Probable Growth Shown By Economic Indicators

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

The government said today its index designed to signal future economic trends increased by a substantial 0.7 percent in December, pointing to probable strong performance of the economy in the months ahead.

The index was the final significant economic report for 1977 and it conformed with other public and private forecasts for strong economic growth at least until mid-1978.

It was the sixth consecutive monthly increase in the index, which attempts to assess the economic prospect for the future on the basis of the performance of the economy during the previous month.

The composite index of leading indicators, as it is called, stood in December at 135.3 of the 1967 average of 100.

For the entire year, the index advanced 6.1 percent after increasing in all but three of the 12 months of 1977. The 0.7 percent increase in December compared with gains of 0.1 in November and 0.8 in October.

Increases of more than 0.5 percent are considered as pointing to a strong economic performance. The index for November was revised upward from the report last month, which had showed it declining by 0.2 percent.

The individual component contributing most to the rise in the index in December was a big increase in orders and contracts for plant and equipment. Also showing gains were sales performance, changes in sensitive prices, the money supply and new orders for consumer goods.

These were partially offset by declines in the average work week, changes in cash and other liquid assets, stock prices and building permits. The 10th component available for the December index, the job layoff rate, was unchanged.

The administration is not confident about the economic outlook after midyear, however, and President Carter's proposed $25 billion in tax cuts is intended to insure that the economy will keep expanding well into 1979.

Carter said at his news conference Monday that the economy should grow by 4.5 percent to 5 percent during 1978 if the tax cut is enacted as he has proposed it. He predicted a tax cut of this size will create one million jobs this year and help reduce unemployment below 6 percent by the end of 1979.

The jobless rate was 6.4 percent in December, and the administration expects it to be reduced to between 6 percent and 6.25 percent by the end of this year. The economy, as measured by the gross national product, grew by 4.9 percent in 1977.

But Carter warned that if Congress balks at any significant part of his newly revealed economic program, it could wreck the entire plan.

He said if Congress does begin dismantling his economic program, he would insist on "some reasonable alternative which would still keep a balanced economic package."

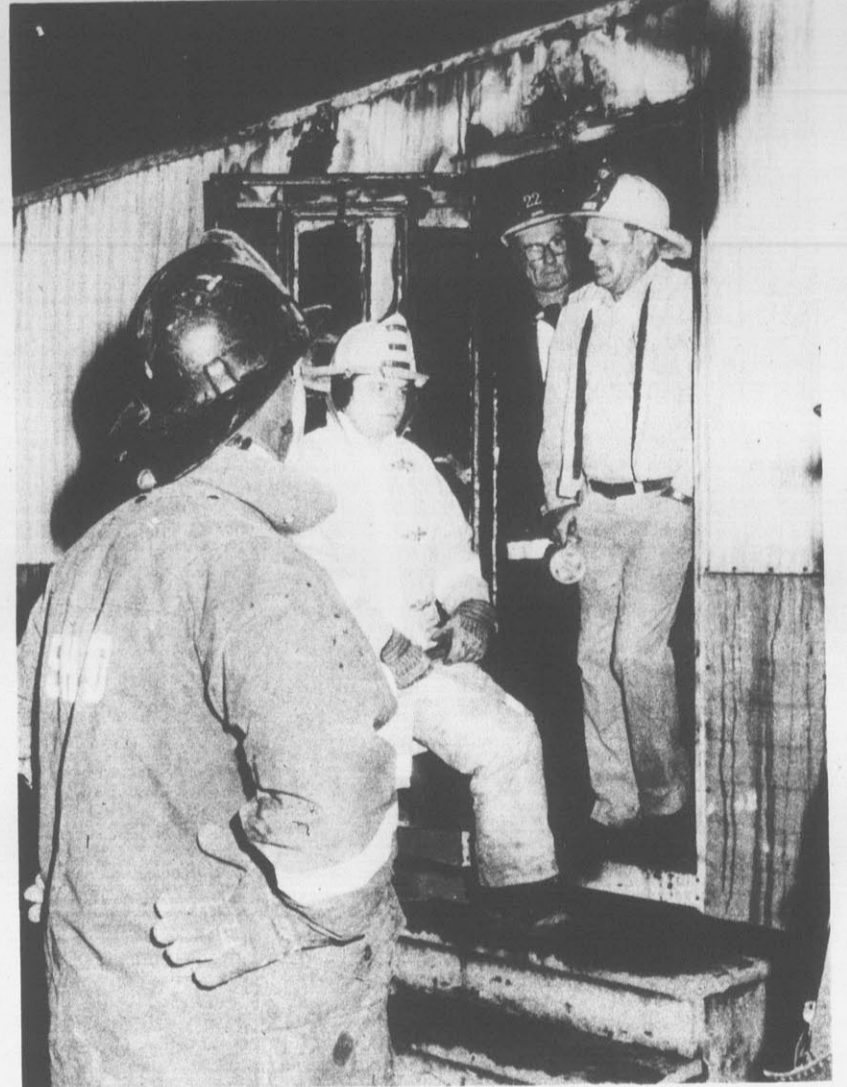

If the tax reforms are rejected, he said the federal budget deficit would get even more out of hand, which could overheat the economy and further aggravate inflation.

The Commerce Department, meanwhile, had the expected bad news for the economy Monday when it reported the nation had a record trade deficit during the year of $26.7 billion, although it was not quite as bad as the $30 billion some officials had predicted.

It was small consolation, however, since Charles L. Schultze, the chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, said a deficit of near the same size is likely this year.

The deficit has resulted in a loss of jobs and production in this country, as well as a decline in the value of the dollar on world money markets.

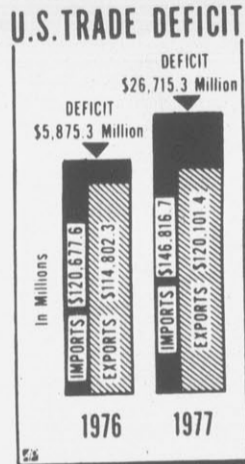

Imports of expensive oil, which cost Americans $42 billion in 1977, were a major cause of the 1977 deficit, although not the only one. There also were stepped-up imports of such things as steel, color television sets and autos.

FIRE CLAIMS LIFE — Pitt County fire investigators stand outside the residence of a Pitt County woman who died last night when her mobile home burned. According to Pitt County Fire Marshal Bobby Joyner, Emma Cannon Powell, was found by firemen in the front bedroom area of the mobile unit. Joyner said members of the Station House fire department responded to the 12:41 alarm and found the center portion of the home on fire. A neighbor spotted the fire and summoned help, Joyner noted. The official said that the woman was apparently alone when the fire broke out. Investigation into the cause of the blaze is continuing. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Palestinian Issue Is The Key: Sadat

By HILMI TOROS
Associated Press Writer
CAIRO, Egypt (AP) —

President Anwar Sadat declared today the issue of Palestinian self-determination remains the major obstacle in the way of peace with Israel and said "a heavy and difficult job" lies ahead.

"We must find a way or everything will collapse," the Egyptian president said just hours before the resumption of Egyptian-Israeli military talks on an Israeli withdrawal from the Sinai Peninsula.

Sadat made his remarks to newsmen after meeting with a delegation of American Jews and Christians at his villa in Barrages, about 15 miles north of Cairo. Earlier in the day, Foreign Minister Mohamed Kamel refused to accept an Israeli-American draft of principles for peace.

"There are many points on which we don't see eye to eye," Kamel said after discussing the draft, which could lead to an Arab-Israeli peace treaty, with U.S. Assistant Secretary of State Alfred Atherton.

Despite his disagreement with some of the Israeli points, Kamel said Egypt is willing to "continue these negotiations, and we hope that with the help and effort of the United States we will eventually reach the comprehensive and lasting peace we are looking for."

The impression conveyed by both Sadat and his foreign minister was that tough bargaining lay ahead with the Israelis despite Israeli Defense Minister Ezer Weizman's arrival here for renewed military talks with Egyptian War Minister Mohamed Abdel Ghany Gammasy.

Weizman said he hoped to "achieve substantial things, not just talks" when the negotiations begin tonight. They recessed Jan. 13 in stalemate over Israel's insistence on maintaining 20 Jewish settlements in the Sinai even after the peninsula is returned to Egypt.

Egypt abruptly broke off parallel negotiations between Egyptian and Israeli foreign ministers in Jerusalem the next week, and there has been no indication when these talks would resume.

Sadat said Egypt would continue to insist on the concept of self-determination — or independence — for the 1.1 million Palestinians living on the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and Gaza Strip.

Plan Purchase An Interest In Nuclear Plant

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)

An authority set up by a group of North Carolina cities has reached an agreement with Duke Power Co. to purchase a 75 per cent interest in one unit of the Catawba Nuclear Station Duke is building at Lake Wylie, S.C., it was announced today.

Duke and N.C. Municipal Power Agency No. 1 announced the signing of a letter of intent on purchase of the generating unit. They said "the agreements are substantially complete and are still subject to governmental approvals." Negotiations for the sale have been under way for about two years.

The agreement still needs the approval of the governing boards of Duke and the agency, the city councils of the 20 municipalities that comprise the agency, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, the N.C. Utilities Commission, the S.C. Public Service Commission, the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, and other regulatory bodies.

Douglas W. Booth, Duke executive vice president, and Marshall Lancaster, acting general manager of the power agency, said the agreements "would mean benefits to both Duke and the agency and to the electric customers of both groups."

The agency is a public body created by Piedmont area municipal electric systems which now buy wholesale power from Duke. The purchase would be the first joint ownership agreement carried out under the electric cities amendment to the state constitution approved by the voters last November.

The Catawba plant consists of two 1145-megawatt nuclear units which together are 20 percent complete. The power agency would purchase 75 percent of unit 2, now scheduled for commercial operation in 1983.

Municipalities in the agency are: Albemarle, Bostic, Cherryville, Concord, Cornelius, Drexel, Gastonia, Granite Falls, High Point, Huntersville, Landis, Lexington, Lincolnton, Maiden, Monroe, Morganton, Newton, Pineville, Shelby and Statesville.

The five major shopping areas in which merchants will be participating in the Dollar Day Sale are Pitt Plaza, Downtown Merchants, Arlington Street Merchants, Greenville Square Merchants, and the West-End Shopping Center Merchants.

Chamber members will display official Dollar Day banners in their businesses.

A HOTLINE APPEAL

HOUSEHOLD ITEMS NEEDED

Pitt County Department of Social Service social worker, Beverly Wheeler, says there have been more families than usual burned out of their homes this winter. She said the Department is usually fairly successful in helping people locate major appliances and furnishings, but has considerable trouble in helping with smaller household items.

She asked Hotline to appeal for donations of kitchen utensils, dishes, linens, pillows, and anything that would be useful in a home were one starting all over to keep house. She said donations may be left at the main desk of the Department of Social Services and that receipts for income tax purposes will gladly be given. With these donations, which the Department hopes will be ongoing, a closet will be set up for use in emergency situations, Mrs. Wheeler said.

Candidate For Bd. Of Education

Sue Zadeits announced her candidacy Monday for one of the six elected positions on the Greenville Board of Education.

In filing for the education post, the candidate pointed out that she felt it "essential that the taxpayers' dollars be utilized in maintaining and assuring the children throughout the city of the highest possible quality of education."

A Wilson native, Mrs. Zadeits attended city schools there and following graduation from Ralph L. Fike High School, attended East Carolina University.

She is president of Sadie Sautler PTA and serves as a representative on the City PTA Council. She is a member of the Association for Childhood Education International.

The candidate is a housewife and resides with her family at 202 Ravenwood Drive. Her husband, William, is employed by Carolina Leaf Tobacco Co. here and the couple has three children.

The Zadeits are members of Holy Trinity United Methodist Church.

Mrs. Zadeits, in announcing her candidacy, stressed the need for citizen involvement in the upcoming election. She noted, "Since this is the first opportunity Greenville citizens have had to elect their school board, it is vital that concerned citizens become involved in our educational system."

Only Minor Delay In Food Supplies

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Extreme weather conditions in the North and Midwest have caused only scattered delays so far in the shipment of grocery items to Greenville, according to spokesmen for area supermarkets and food supply outlets.

Durward Harris, president of Harris Supermarkets Inc. here, related that the firm's biggest problem in shipment delays had involved potatoes out of New York.

Harris reported that grocery shipment receipts with the exception of the potatoes had been pretty much on schedule. He said that the company receives its beef from "out west" and so far shipments "have been on time."

The manager of the A&P Food Store here, Leroy James, said that meat supplies had been a "little short" and he explained that the snow and ice problems had delayed rail shipments of meat products into the company plant at Charlotte.

James, who noted that most of the grocery shipments had been received on time, added that the shipment of some products in glass containers had been delayed in getting to North Carolina due to the threat of freezing in rail cars. Insulated cars have been used to make the shipments in some cases, he pointed out.

"It has not been a major problem so far," James said. Sonny Louya, assistant manager at Winn-Dixie here, reported no problems in the receipt of shipments and "certainly no shortages" yet. Louya said that Winn-Dixie's Raleigh warehouse serves Greenville and no delays have occurred so far.

The spokesman said that in the case of receiving a direct shipment on something like Christmas trees, a problem could arise but the store does not face that problem now.

Parker Overton of Overton's Supermarket Inc. here reported that shipments' including beef from the west, have been on schedule so far.

"All of our beef comes from out west and it came in yesterday on time," noted Overton who added that he had expected the beef to be delayed due to the weather. He said that the beef is shipped by truck and orders are placed a week ahead of time.

"Wholesalers are apparently in good shape also because our grocery supplies have been on schedule," he said.

Alton Spain of Spain's Foodland predicted that it would probably take approximately 20 days for the weather

Experts Await Flu Epidemic

By CHRIS CONNELL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

A panel of medical experts says an epidemic of Russian flu is likely to spread in the United States either this winter or next, and a vaccine can be developed that would be 70 to 90 percent effective in preventing it.

But the experts are less certain about what the federal government's role should be in an inoculation campaign and who should bear the liability for the new flu vaccine.

And, in any event, significant quantities of the vaccine might not be available before December, according to one of the experts.

At an all-day meeting Monday at the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, the panel of experts from both inside and outside government said children with medical disabilities should be the first to be inoculated against Russian flu; then adults with disabilities; adults 65 or older; those 50 to 65, and finally those under 24.

Student Sworn As PTI Trustee

The Pitt Technical Institute Board of Trustees held its regular meeting Monday night.

Kirby Smith, a first-year accounting student from Greenville was sworn into office as a trustee by Nancy Mewborn, Board secretary and notary public. Smith is president of the Pitt Tech Student Council and is authorized to serve on the Board as a non-voting member.

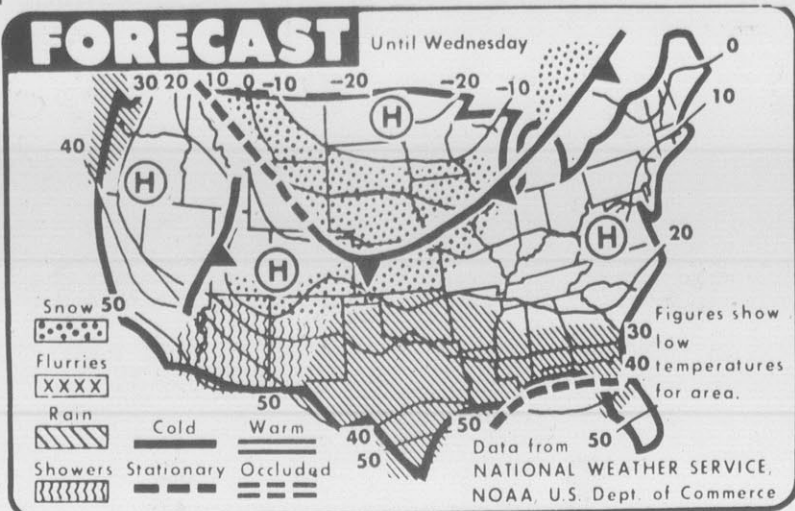

Dr. Charles Holloman, vice president for Policy and Planning, N.C. Department of Community Colleges, attended the meeting at the request of the Board. Holloman spoke to the trustees concerning their duties and responsibilities, authority and liabilities as a Board and as individual trustees.

In other actions, the Board approved the offering of a two-quarter Electric Motor repair curriculum at Pitt Tech and approved certain necessary budget transfers.

Clifton W. Everett Sr., Board of Trustees chairman, stated that Holloman's remarks were "informative and practical". Board members asked questions regarding the Board's liabilities, authority, duties and responsibilities.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Rain and showers are forecast today across the southern part of the country. A belt of snow is expected from the northern Rockies to the Midwest and into the central and southern Plains. Rain is due for the northern Pacific coast. Cold weather is forecast for most areas. (AP Laserphoto Map)

Very cold weather will continue across North Carolina through the rest of the week with temperatures averaging several degrees below normal. Precipitation will be light, occurring mainly as light snow or snow flurries across the mountains today and again Thursday. The forecast called for high temperatures today and again Wednesday to range mostly in the 30s with nighttime lows in the teens and 20s. Low readings this morning included 14 at Greensboro and Raleigh, 19 at Asheville and 21 at Charlotte and Wilmington. Highs Monday included a chilly 35 at Asheville and Fayetteville, 37 at Hickory and Raleigh, 38 at Charlotte and 39 at Wilmington.

Two Receive Honors In Grifton

GRIFTON — Two Grifton men were honored at a joint awards banquet held last night by the Grifton Chamber of Commerce and the Grifton Jaycees.

George Saleeby, owner of George Saleeby Insurance & Realty, was recognized as the Chamber's Outstanding Citizen and Dick Gaddy was chosen by the Jaycees to receive the Distinguished Service Award.

Gaddy, an employee of the Dupont Corporation, was attributed with spearheading the reorganization of the Grifton Jaycees and with involving young people in the area in community projects, including the Shad Festival.

Among Saleeby's accomplishments were: chairman of the Save Our School Committee, former president of the Grifton Jaycees, a lifetime member of that organization, state director of the N.C. Jaycees, Grifton United Fund chairman, former member of the Grifton Town Board, and Grifton Democratic Precinct chairman.

In accepting his award, Saleeby said that "by choosing this town to live in, we have an obligation to contribute our efforts to make Grifton a better place in which to live." He added that he accepted the honor "on behalf of everybody who has given time, effort, and energy to community projects."

Jack Hankins, general manager of WELS in Kinston, acted as guest speaker before a crowd of approximately 100 persons. He is an active member of the Chambers of Commerce of both Kinston and Grifton.

According to Hankins, "Grifton is going to grow, being a part of eastern North Carolina that is going to grow, and we need to decide how it will grow...what direction it will grow in."

Grifton newcomers were also welcomed at the awards dinner with members of local civic groups present to initiate them into the community. The banquet held at the Grifton School Cafeteria was catered by the American Restaurant.

The joint dinner between the Jaycees and the Chamber of Commerce was a first for Grifton residents and was called a "tremendous success" by one spokesman.

In addition to recognizing award winners, the Chamber of Commerce also announced its 1978 officers as follows: President Ron Anderson, Vice President Bryan Stevenson, Secretary Yvonne Smith, and Treasurer Katherine Condon.

Dick Bates, a long-time resident of Grifton, was named an Honorary Jaycee also.

Nominations for the Distinguished Service Award were limited to men ages 18 to 35, but the selections were not limited to Jaycees.

The Outstanding Citizen Award was determined by service to the community and was not restricted by age or sex.

Nominations were received by letters submitted by organizations or Grifton residents.

Plea Bargaining Ends, Court Cases Piling Up

By SUSAN GUFFEY
Associated Press Writer
BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — When Boulder County District Attorney Alex Hunter cut out the practice of plea bargaining, he cut into the off hours of his staff, local judges and public defenders.

"It's ungodly," said Boulder County Public Defender Paul McCormick of his schedule since Jan. 1.

But Hunter says all the extra effort will become worthwhile "as it gets around... that if you do a burglary, you're in trouble."

The Public Defender's office, which handles about two-thirds of all felony trials in the county, is so overloaded by the new system that McCormick says "it'll be Feb. 10 before I'll even have time to find out just how bad it is."

McCormick's staff of three is working from early morning until late at night and putting in more than two eight-hour workdays each weekend, McCormick said.

"At some point, somebody's going to yell 'uncle,'" he said, "but right now, I just don't have time."

The number of felony cases that will go to trial in the county is expected to increase about 400 percent under the new system — from about 30 a year to as many as 120 a year, according to Bill Wise, Hunter's assistant.

The idea, Hunter says, is to restore the public's confidence in the criminal justice system. Under the new system, those charged with felonies will be given a choice of pleading guilty or taking their chances at trial. Hunter says he'll grant few exceptions.

It is common practice across the country for defendants who are charged with several crimes to be allowed to enter a guilty plea to one — usually a lesser offense.

In Boulder, county court judges and civil judges, who usually don't hear felony criminal trials, are being called upon to preside over them. Chief District Judge Rex Scott says he will continue to handle the most serious and difficult cases, but many will go to judges with less experience.

To accommodate the increased work load, at least two of the judges have set time limits for jury selection and opening and closing arguments, Hunter says.

GAO Writes Off Town Debt

HARTFORD, Ark. (AP) — The water will keep running for the 616 residents of this Arkansas-Oklahoma border town. Their water system had been threatened with "repossession" because a 42-year-old loan used to build it had never been repaid.

The General Accounting Office eased worries here by writing off a $67,000 debt. The original loan was $41,500. It gathered some $26,000 in interest while sitting unpaid on government ledger books.

The loan was made to Hartford by the old Reconstruction Finance Corp. in 1935, during the Great Depression. The city used the money to build a new water system.

The loan was not repaid because the system never generated enough revenue and the town's population declined steadily over the years.

The Hartford debt was "discovered" around 1974 and federal officials pushed for collection. But after the Department of Housing and Urban Development examined Hartford's financial situation, it recommended that a lien not be sought for the town water department.

The debt is now a sensitive topic in both Hartford and Washington.

"It's reconciled," said Hartford Mayor Norma Michael.

She will not comment further, saying that the debt had given Hartford bad publicity for more than 40 years.

"It's unpaid," said a bookkeeper in the Little Rock HUD office, which assumed responsibility for old RFC loans in Arkansas.

"There's nothing we can do about it," said a GAO spokesman in Washington.

"Where we find the financial situation is such that there is nothing we can do, we suspend collection or hold the debt in abeyance," said the GAO official, who asked not to be identified. "A record is still maintained of the debt, however."

The GAO says that, officially, the government has no authority to forgive a debt. Unofficially, the debt has been forgiven.

"Economic things happened that were beyond the control of the city," said Sterling Cockerill, director of the Little Rock HUD office. "HUD has recommended that a lien not be placed" on the water system.

Cockerill and the GAO said the town's population has dwindled to the point where it could not pay off the loan and still keep the water flowing. The government felt it was better to "forgive" the Hartford loan than have the town lose its water system.

Records indicate monthly revenues of the water department are about $1,600 and costs run about $1,200. With such a slim margin between profit and loss, officials said it would take 20 years to pay just the interest on the loan.

Hearing Set Feb. 7 On Charges Of Skyjacking

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — A probable cause hearing has been set for Feb. 7 for Sam Dawkins Jr., charged with hijacking a Piedmont Airlines plane Saturday.

Dawkins, 49, remained in the New Hanover County Jail in lieu of $100,000 bond Monday.

According to friends and neighbors, Dawkins was a lonely man with a drinking problem and entered a Wilmington hospital for treatment. He was sent from there to a state facility for alcoholics in Goldsboro and returned home last Friday.

Andy Simmons, operator of Simmons High-Rise Service where Dawkins was employed as a sandblaster, said Dawkins told him then that he planned to visit a relative in Greensboro Saturday and sounded fine.

It was in Greensboro that Dawkins allegedly boarded the Piedmont propjet bound for Wilmington and ordered the crew to fly to Havana. He was subdued by crew and passengers after a flight attendant threw a mixed drink in his face.

"Sam was a fine man and a fine worker as long as you could keep him occupied," Simmons said. "If you could keep him away from the stuff (alcohol), he was always all right."

Dawkins lived alone in a neatly-kept mobile home, and neighbors agreed with Simmons that he was meek, friendly and lonely.

Dawkins' second wife died of cancer about two years ago, they said, and Dawkins mourned her every time he drank or became depressed.

"He was so lonesome," said Linda Whitlock, a next door neighbor. "When he got drunk he would tell us there is no other woman as good as she was."

Another neighbor, Ed Whitehurst, described Dawkins as "a very nice man, congenial with everyone. He must have been despondant. I don't think he knew what he was doing."

A half brother, Aleck Dawkins of Wilmington, said Dawkins had two grown children by his first marriage, which ended in divorce, and a brother and sister.

LITTLE DAMAGE — A few pieces of metal on the ground and some missing paint on the gate are the only indications of damage at the northeast gate of the White House last night after a man rammed the gate with his automobile. Indict Trio After Probe LUMBERTON, N.C. (AP) — A year-long probe of financial dealings of the Lumberton Housing Authority has resulted in indictments of executive director James Vanty Lamb and two other men.

Lamb, 39, was charged with unlawfully endorsing a housing authority check for $2,095.77 made out to Tomberlin Associates, Architects Inc., an Atlanta firm that had done work for the authority in 1973.

Indictments were also returned by the Robeson County grand jury against William Sammy Britt, 33, and John Fuller Sealey, 37.

Britt, a building contractor, was charged with three counts of false pretense for allegedly charging the authority for non-existent freight charges on asbestos floor tile totaling nearly $2,200 in 1973.

Sealey, a service station owner, was named in seven false pretense indictments for bill the authority for automobile repairs and services he allegedly never performed.

All were free today under $500 for each charge — $500 for Lamb, $1,500 for Britt and $3,500 for Sealey.

In a related development, John W. Bennett, 55, a former metal work contractor, pleaded guilty in Superior Court to 16 charges of taking housing authority payments under false pretenses. Sentencing was deferred.

That indictment was returned last September. Bennett is also a former Lumberton city councilman.

Ex-Governor Moneyless

BALTIMORE (AP) — Marvin Mandel says he's jobless, moneyless and $500,000 in debt and can't pay back divorce payments.

Papers filed in court here Friday by the suspended governor of Maryland come days after it was reported that Mandel has signed a lease for a $300-a-month office suite in Arnold, Md.

He and his second wife vacated the governor's mansion in Annapolis last October when Mandel was sentenced on mail fraud and racketeering charges, and moved to a small estate which they rent at a reported cost of $675 a month.

In filing the affidavit, Mandel is asking for dismissal of a suit filed by his first wife, Barbara "Bootsie" Mandel, who claims the governor owes $18,750 in back alimony payments. She has also claimed that the payments are guaranteed by Irvin Kovens, a convicted codefendant of the governor's.

Mandel stated in the affidavit that as of last Dec. 20 his sole asset was the $1,500 cash value of an insurance policy. He said since his Oct. 7 sentencing he has earned only $5,000 and that he has no contract for employment and no other payments claimed by Mrs. Mandel because she has tried to increase the scope of his obligations in the matter.

Riverman Lost His Beloved Towboat

CINCINNATI (AP) — Shortly before the towboat went down, Capt. John Beatty went for a last walk aboard his beloved "Clare E. Beatty."

"They told him to take the valuables off the boat yesterday. He wouldn't do it. He said, 'You don't undress a lady in public.'"

"I guess he believed as long as he kept everything onboard, she would keep her heart," said Beatty's wife, Clare, for whom the boat was named.

The riverman lost his three-day struggle to save his tow-boat Monday. He had watched helplessly as his tug, trapped in ice 35 feet above the Ohio River, was crushed beneath a shifting barge 300 feet long and 52 feet wide.

"She's gone. She's gone and she's sunk," Beatty, 62, sobbed in a telephone interview.

Beatty, a river salvage veteran, is helping the U.S. Corps of Engineers clear the river. On Friday night, he was working to keep 17 barges — which had broken loose in the windy blizzard — from ramming the Markland Dam at Warsaw, Ky., when his towboat's bow was tipped upward 35 feet by a submerged ice flow.

By Saturday evening, his wife said, Beatty was "watching his little boat die."

The craft sat wobbling atop the ice gorge some 300 feet from the dam, about 40 miles downstream from Cincinnati.

The towboat was more than simply the best of his fleet to Beatty. The $900,000 boat was fitted with brass window frames and doorknobs, a wooden figurehead of a naked woman, oil paintings on the bulkheads and barrels from old steamboats.

"Speaking for the Corps, it was a very sad moment," said spokesman Chuck Schumann, "because the 'Clare Beatty' has been a fixture on the Ohio River for many years."

The best way to start the best years of your life.

Valentine Jewelry Designers Used Themes, Imagination

NEW YORK (AP) — There's a whole new way to say "I love you" this Valentine's Day, thanks to imaginative jewelry designers, reports the Jewelry Industry Council.

Take a second look at heart-shaped pendants and pins, the experts say. They have a new look and a new message to convey. For example, one attractive golden heart pendant, on closer inspection, shows itself to be "love power" — the heart is formed from a clenched fist.

Another handsome heart pendant that has an opal stone rimmed with gold can open up and be worn as a free-form pendant.

The very newest design for today's lovers is the provocative "Swingers" heart pendant. The heart shows a male and female whose arms and bodies make up the heart outline.

If none of the aforementioned suits your fancy, you might choose a more conventional form of daintily filigreed gold hearts, or a "hearts and flowers" motif — two heart shapes with finely fashioned gold flowers sculpted in the center and room for your beloved's initials outlined in tiny diamonds.

Along this same theme, there are cutout hearts edged in diamonds, or hearts with diamond pave centers.

HAVE A HEART? — Hearts for Valentine's Day carry their own special themes this year, reports the Jewelry Industry Council.

Another luxurious jewelry item is the "sticks and stones" heart pendant. The heart has tiny little gold "sticks" crisscrossed through the center and in with the sticks are the "stones" — small diamonds!

DEAR ABBY: A woman we work with has been married for 18 years, and her husband frequently sends flowers to her at the office for no special occasion. There is always a mushy card with the flowers, telling her how "great" she is and how much he loves and appreciates her.

We wonder why he doesn't send his wife flowers at home so they can both enjoy them?

We have always been a wee bit suspicious of couples who lay on a heavy lovey-dovey number in public, and we wonder if perhaps they aren't going overboard to give the impression that theirs is a super-great marriage, when in fact it's not all that great. Would you say that we were on the right track?

THE OTHER GIRLS

DEAR GIRLS: Not necessarily. Your co-worker and her husband could have a truly super-great marriage. It's a wise and thoughtful husband who lets others know that he loves and appreciates his wife. When a man publicly compliments his lady (or when a lady publicly compliments her man), the compliment is enhanced.

DEAR ABBY: My mother-in-law taught English in a little country school in Idaho about 40 years ago, so she considers herself an authority on grammar and word usage.

Every time LeRoy gets a letter from his mother she encloses LeRoy's latest letter all marked up with corrections she's made in red pencil. We just laugh and toss it in the wastepaper basket. LeRoy and I are both college graduates, and we know as much about writing as his mother.

Should we tell her to go jump in the lake?
HAD IT IN RUPERT, IDAHO

DEAR HAD IT: If you and LeRoy knew as much about writing as his mother, you would tell her to go jump INTO the lake. If one jumps "in" the lake, it indicates that he was already in the water before he jumped.

P.S. I don't want to be picky, but the same rule applies when tossing something "IN" the wastepaper basket.

DEAR ABBY: When I read the small print at the end of your column claiming that you send personal replies to those who send a stamped, addressed envelope, I didn't really believe it. But my life was such a total mess, that I had nothing to lose but the price of two postage stamps, so I took a chance and wrote to you.

Abby, your response changed my life. I went to a marriage counselor as you suggested and found that he was on the same wave length as I! Pow, it happened! After living with the wrong person for 19 years, I am moving in with the marriage counselor. He's Jewish and gay, about my age, and the most intellectually stimulating and wonderfully sympathetic person I've ever met.

I'm off the booze, off the valium, and off women forever. My indebtedness is endless.

LIVING AT LAST IN SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR LIVING: Mazeltov! (Translation: Congratulations.)

If you feel left out and lonely, or wish you knew how to get people to like you, my new booklet, "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old," is for you. Send $1 along with a long, self-addressed, stamped (24 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Seeks Marinade That's Not Acidic

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

DEAR CECILY: I love mushrooms marinated with vegetables, but often the marinade has too much vinegar for my taste. I'd like to try making this antipasto if you can give me a recipe that is low in acid.

— INEXPERIENCED.
DEAR INEXPERIENCED: The antipasto you want stems, I believe, from the Italian way of preparing vegetables "under vinegar" and mushrooms "under oil." The first preparation is, of course, high in acid; I understand in Tuscany it is often served as an accompaniment to boiled meats and helpings of it are sparing because it is so robust. When Italian cooks prepare mushrooms "under oil" they may not use any vinegar at all.

A friend of mine, well-versed in fine Italian cooking, tells me that the "under vinegar" all-vegetable preparation is called Giardiniera. When I told him about your request and that I had tracked down and tried a delightful low-acid marinated mushroom and vegetable recipe, he said in Italy it would be called Funghi sott'olio e Aceto.

When you first put together this marinated mushroom and vegetable dish, you'll be able to taste the vinegar. But plan to refrigerate it for a few days before you serve it, because then the marinade will mellow and flavor the mushrooms and vegetables beautifully and I don't think you'll be able to detect the acid. — C. B.

MARINATED MUSHROOMS AND VEGETABLES

- 1/2 cup olive oil
- 1/2 cup water
- 1-3rd cup cider vinegar
- 1 medium onion, minced (about 1/2 cup)

ANTIPASTO — Fresh mushrooms marinated with vegetables.

- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 2 cups small fresh cauliflowerets
- 3 medium green peppers, seeded and cut in 1-inch squares
- 1 pound medium-size fresh mushrooms, rinsed and halved
- 1 tablespoon dried basil
- 1/2 of a 7 1/2-ounce jar roasted sweet red peppers.
- drained and cut in strips

In a large saucepan bring to the boiling point the oil, water, vinegar, onion, garlic, salt and pepper. Add the cauliflower and green pepper; bring to the boiling point again; simmer, covered, for 5 minutes. Add the mushrooms and the basil; simmer, covered, for 3 minutes. Off heat, stir in the red peppers. Refrigerate covered, for a few days to allow the marinade to mellow and the flavors to blend. Let stand at room temperature before serving because the olive oil will congeal under refrigeration. Makes about 1 1/4 quarts.

If you want Brussels sprouts to retain their attractive green color and their nutrients, cook them in a small amount of boiling water in a covered saucepan, but lift the cover several times during the cooking. Boil them only until they are tender-crisp; overcooking fades their color.

Whenever there was a conflict of interest between the kids and myself, I could always count on Tony to say, "Your mother is only thinking of you and knows what is good for you." It made you want to throw up.

One day the kids could stand it no longer. They confronted me as a group and said, "Tony isn't what you think he is."

"He blows his nose without a handkerchief when no one's around."

"He calls people on the phone at night and has them check their street light and then tells them to blow it out."

Our house had its share of Eddie Haskells, from the toddlers who rushed in, grabbed my skirt and snatched, "Andy's playing in the water in his good shoes," to, "Mrs. Bombeck, I know how the mud got all over your clean clothes, but I promised Betsy I wouldn't tell on her."

Rural Firefighting Stressed

In North Carolina, there are more fire departments, more firemen and more state-supported fire service training than in any other state.

So reports Keith Phillippe, who is state supervisor of Fire Service Training, Department of Community Colleges.

He says there are 1,100 fire departments and 38,000 firemen in the state. Fifty-seven technical institutes and community colleges have trained 39,695 firemen.

The reason for the large number of fire departments and firemen is obvious — North Carolina is still a relatively rural state and rural fire fighting has become highly organized.

One doesn't have to go back too far to recall when there were few rural volunteer departments. In Pitt County the municipalities such as Greenville, Farmville and Ayden had fire fighting units which occasionally helped their rural neighbors. Fire Underwriters regulations made this impractical, however, and rural areas were left without fire fighting service.

As roads improved and later as rural water systems became available rural fire fighting became more feasible. Rural departments now virtually blanket the state.

The unique thing is most of these departments rely on volunteer personnel. They give their time to help protect their neighbors' and their own property. In addition to time fighting fires they also devote time to training at technical institutes and community colleges and at state agency sponsor programs.

We can't think of a better deal for North Carolina.

Waiting In Line Is Easily Avoided

Among the things to do at this time of year is the obtaining of new auto license tags.

At the local agency, Home and Auto Supply on Dickinson Avenue, it was reported at sales are going slowly.

The deadline for displaying new tags is Feb. 15, around two weeks away.

Inevitably the long lines form a few days before the deadline, and they will again this year.

The long wait is easily avoided, though, by buying early.

Complex Title XX Issue

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—A little-known and less-understandable welfare program is causing an uproar in North Carolina.

The issue, as in most feuds over governmental programs, is money. Big money. Millions of dollars. The program doles out $64 million federal dollars in the state this year.

Known by the inscrutable and unexciting name Title XX, the program is typical of governmental efforts: it came about from efforts to simplify, make more fair, and unconfuse the operation.

So far, there are those who claim the opposite result. Especially numerous county officials who are bombarding the State Department of Human Resources and their legislators with cries of "Foul."

After all is said and done, there are basically two sides to the controversy:

—State officials contend that never before have local governments gotten so much money with so few strings attached;

Complex

—Local officials contend they didn't get nearly the money they were promised, and besides that, the state is siphoning off millions at the top rather than letting it get down to the local level.

As complex and difficult as the situation is, it is certain that some public decisions must be forthcoming and understanding the program is critical to judging how millions of tax dollars will be spent.

Title XX is just two years old. It was created by Congress to replace a hodge-podge of social services programs under a variety of laws which were very restrictive as to eligibility, and very limited as to uses.

People benefiting had to meet strict criteria of need and income which varied from program to program; regulations on use of the money was so stringent that few preventive efforts could be mounted.

The new law removed those restrictions and allowed the states and local governments to write up their own plan of services. Aid could be tailored to specific local needs; services did not have to be statewide, but could be designed for certain geographical areas. All of these services, by the way, are outside the basic welfare aids such as food stamps, Medicaid, aid to families with dependent children. Those funds flow as usual.

and a shopping list of foster care, adoptive, health, legal, protective, vocational, and social services.

Budgets

Each county submitted budget requests, which amounted to $44 million across this state. That left better than $20 million optional money in the state bank account.

The total for Title XX was considerably more than previously doled out for the variety of aid services: $27 million compared to $64 million. Additionally, local governments had to put up another 25 percent matching money for each Title XX program.

And then is when troubles began in the first year of operation. Some counties didn't want to put up matching money or didn't need many of the programs, so participation was light in those areas.

Other counties had existing similar programs and wanted more, so demand was heavy. How could the money be split?

NOBLITT

Title XX is for flexible, local services. The most popular and best known have been meals on wheels, home chore helpers for the sick or elderly, day care operations for working mothers, the Work Incentive approach, special transportation for elderly or sick,

Tilting Toward Unions

WASHINGTON — The sponsors are calling it the "Labor Reform Act of 1978". They ought to be jailed for fraud. At the very least the authors ought to be called to task under the honest labeling laws, for the bill now pending in the Senate constitutes no reform at all. Oh, in a sense it might be termed reform. If one believes that existing labor law should be rewritten so that (1) the unions have all the advantages and the employers have none, (2) non-union workers should be deprived of the few safeguards they now possess, (3) small employers especially should be placed in jeopardy, and (4) the government in certain cases should have the power to fix wages in private industry — then, yes, the bill would accomplish precisely such "reforms".

Curiously, this monstrous piece of legislation has aroused much less attention than the common site picketing bill or the minimum wage bill, though its impact would be immeasurably greater. The entire business community rallied to defeat the common site picketing; another effective coalition from the private sector significantly improved the original minimum wage measure.

Where are those voices now? The National Right to Work Committee, as always, is yelling like Paul Revere. The U.S. Chamber of Commerce has circulated some excellent background material. A few other organizations have sounded alarms, but a sense of urgency is missing. The House passed this very bad bill in October by a margin of 257-163. Unless inattentive Senators can be swiftly awakened to what is afoot, the bill will float through the Senate also.

Consider, if you will, a few provisions.

The bill would literally reform the National Labor Relations Board, which would be reconstituted with two additional members named for seven-year terms. The board has five members now. Organized labor, rebuffed in its choice of a Secretary of Labor a year ago, would exert irresistible pressure to make certain that two labor flunkies were named to the posts. We already have seen Mr. Carter's weakness in this regard in his nominations to the Federal Elections Com-

Three Greenville business houses were entered and robbed last night and local officers believe that one person was responsible for at least two.

The Evans Feed and Seed Company located on Dickinson Avenue was entered through a window. Officers are certain the robber was a small person as he had to crawl through a hole only six and one-half inches by nine and one-half inches large. A quantity of cigarettes and candy was taken from the place.

Saleed's store was entered under conditions similar to that at the feed and seed company. Some pants and coats were stolen from the clothing store.

The third place entered was the Pitt Drug Company. The store was entered through the back door. Officers reported that fountain pens, cigarettes and razor blades were reported to have been taken.

The commerce department said it had sent over 800 invitations to small business men to attend its Wednesday conference.

The list included J. M. Harrington of Washington, and Jas. A. Ficklen of Greenville.

Other Editors Say This Is Reform?

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

The so-called Labor Reform Bill now being considered by Congress, seems to be, in reality, little more than a push by labor to gain new members. Union membership has been decreasing steadily over the past several years, so it isn't surprising that union leaders would want to do something about this.

But the Labor Reform Bill (S.1883-H.R. 8410) tries to solve labor's membership problems by mandating several new policies which are blatantly unfair to employers.

For example, the Senate version of the bill would allow unions to call elections within 15 days if a majority of employees seek the election. This hardly seems enough time for an employer to do an adequate job of presenting his side of the story.

The bill would also allow union organizers to talk to employees about the union on company property and on company time. Unions are already allowed to contact employees at their homes, but employers are forbidden to do this.

The bill also has disturbing punitive provisions. The most disturbing is one which states that employers who willfully violate a National Labor Relations Board order would be prohibited from obtaining federal contracts for up to three years. This is an extremely tough penalty. It would put many firms out of business, which doesn't even make sense from the union's point of view.

Another provision says that if NLRB finds that an employer has refused to bargain in good faith for a particular period, it can impose mandatory wage rates on the employer for that period.

This provision would work a real hardship on small businesses, since their wages, on which the enforced wage rates would be based — are average wages paid to bargaining units of 5,000 or more workers.

Another provision requires the NLRB to seek a court ordered reinstatement of any worker believed to be illegally discharged during a union organizing campaign. This means an employer may be forced to re-hire workers who have been fired for good cause.

If the bill passes, it could easily have the effect of making employers throw up their hands and allow unionization of their firms, whether their employees want it or not just to avoid these unreasonable penalties.

This, of course, would increase union membership. And this is what big labor wants.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Preparing A Lethal Stew

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

PANAMA CITY — If Gen. Omar Torrijos, the self-styled "maximum leader" of Panama, is forced by the U.S. Senate to resubmit the canal treaty to a second plebiscite here, the result would probably be humiliating defeat for both the treaty and the General.

Just such a lethal stew is now being cooked up by treaty enemies in the U.S. Senate. If they succeed in attaching formal amendments to the treaty and the 700,000 voters here have another chance to say "si" or "no," the result will be a massive, probably fatal decline in public support (which only reached a meager 66 per cent in the Oct. 23 first plebiscite).

Romulo Betancourt, Torrijos's tough, outspoken chief treaty negotiator, told us that if anti-treaty Senators nail a formal amendment (as opposed to an "understanding") into the neutrality treaty, incorporating the permanent U.S. right to intervene "against any aggression or threat" against the canal, a second plebiscite will be unavoidable under Panama law. That U.S. "right" is now in the form of a joint statement by President Carter and Torrijos.

"Torrijos is not trying to make trouble," Betancourt said. The almost desperate hope here is that the Senate will attach the Carter-Torrijos statement to the treaty only as an "understanding." That would leave the treaty text unchanged, finessing a second plebiscite.

What Betancourt failed to explain, however, is why a second plebiscite might well defeat the treaty. It would hinge as much on the rising unpopularity of Torrijos as on the hostile but unstated reaction everywhere here to the parade of visiting Senators twisting Panama's arm to accept treaty changes. These changes are perceived as humiliating.

"If the General has to take the treaty back to the country, in my opinion it would fail," David Samudio, head of the large (but now legally inactive) Liberal Party, told us.

A political enemy of Torrijos ever since the General seized power, Nasser-like, in 1968, Samudio supported the first plebiscite after the directorate of the Liberal Party voted for it, 48 to 9. The party's governing body would undoubtedly vote overwhelmingly against backing a second plebiscite, costing Torrijos tens of thousands of votes.

Reason No. 1: national pride. This is a potentially explosive emotion kept just beneath the surface by an acute, accurate awareness of the futility of going to the mat with the superpower to the north. A new plebiscite might crack that surface in a wholly unpredictable way, a fact that neither Torrijos nor the large anti-Torrijos establishment will discuss publicly for fear of offending the U.S.

Reason No. 2: Torrijos himself. Many prominent anti-Torrijos leaders here — businessmen, bankers, traders — voted "si" in the October plebiscite despite full awareness that a "no" vote would hurt the maximum leader. That decision, based on the deeper interest of Panama's future and its relationship to the U.S., would yield to rabid anti-Torrijosism in a second ballot.

In ten years, Torrijos has pyramided the national debt from $160 million to nearly $2 billion; has closed the credit window to the outside world; has earmarked 38 cents of every tax dollar for debt service; has allowed unemployment to go close to 20 per cent; and, most important, has extinguished all vestige of democracy.

Naturally, then, the temptation is strong to strike at Torrijos, using a second (Continued on page 5)

Strength For Today

FOUNDATIONS AND SUPERSTRUCTURES

The chairman of a campaign committee to raise funds for a new hospital was telling the campaign workers why it was not possible to add two more stories to the present building. The foundations, he said, had not been built to stand the strain.

Jesus said that the man who hearkened to his words would be like a person who built his house upon the rock. Whether it be moral character or a modern skyscraper, foundations stand out as supremely important. The foundations of our houses are not particularly beautiful. In fact, they are usually so unattractive that we try to hide them with shrubbery. What we are proud of is the superstructure. But the superstructure is possible only because of the foundation, and the house is just as secure as the walls upon which it is built.

Some people collapse because strong foundations of moral integrity have never been built into their souls. All of us may be tested at any time to determine whether we have built well or poorly.

Individual Shareowners Fading

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Do

you remember the individual investor, sometimes called the little guy, the fellow who was supposed to usher in people's capitalism by building up his own private portfolio?

One of the more recent efforts to recall him, to mind and to market, was the initiation of a survey by the New York Stock Exchange "trying to find out why we lost our customers."

That was a year ago, and the results of the search, via 2,500 interviews, won't be known until March. But Harold Williams, chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, knows one reason why.

"I find it difficult to rationalize why small investors' rates are being raised at a time when institutional customers are receiving executions at rates that are possibly below cost," said Williams.

This is one of the curiosities of a stock market wherein the laws of buying-selling sometimes get inverted. In which, for example, monopoly practices were condoned for years in the name of free enterprise.

The stock market needs the individual, exchange officials agree, among other things to provide the wide range of buy and sell decisions needed to limit price changes to dollar fractions instead of dollar multiples.

But you might never guess that, as Williams pointed out in an address here, Less than a decade ago, when institutional business was sought by some brokers, they actually refused to work with individuals.

Brokers also urged buyers to leave securities with them, in order to facilitate trading (and incidentally, permit the broker to lend those shares to short sellers). Now they want a fee for the "service."

The needs and rights of the easily forgotten individual here further submerged early in this decade by what was considered the biggest of all regulatory problems, development of a central market.

The central market, in which the exchanges will link up electronically, has made slow progress over the past seven years, even though Congress sought to spur progress with a mandate three years ago.

But the cause of the individual has made no progress at all. The very randomness of his thinking, his relative lack of organization, his very individuality have seen to that. His cause has regressed.

And so, like the high schooler who cannot make progress, he drops out. A New York Stock Exchange survey, conducted in 1975, revealed that nearly one out of five shareowners had left the stock market since 1970.

From a high of nearly 31 million in 1970, the number of individual shareowners plunged to just over 25 million in 1975. The market became more institutionalized, through mutual and pension funds especially.

Rather than seeking to attract him back, the brokerage fraternity, sometimes worried over its own existence in a restructured marketplace, charged the individual even more when fixed commissions ceased in 1975.

At the same time they lowered the rates for institutions, the intermediaries that collect the funds of small investors and then, for a fee, invest them in bulk. The trend was becoming a rut.

Duke Power Asks General Hike

By MONTE PLOTT
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — If Duke Power Co. has its way, most North Carolina customers will be paying nine to ten percent more for electricity later this year.

Duke formally asked the state Utilities Commission Monday for a 9.3 percent increase in revenues from its 875,000 customers in the state. Duke last sought a general rate hike in 1974, and that 23 percent increase went into effect in 1975.

Company officials cited inflation as a reason for the proposed increase but Carl Horn Jr., chief executive officer of the company, was quick to point out that the request was less than the 21 percent jump in the cost of living since 1974.

"Our customers have gone two full years and will go another half year without a rate increase. We think this is pretty good, considering the rate of inflation," Horn said.

Duke customers might be "relieved, if not grateful, that it (the proposed increase) is less than two digits," Horn said.

mission. This is Franklin D. Roosevelt's court-packing scheme, born again with Jimmy Carter.

The bill would rewrite the procedures for certification elections: these now are held in most cases about 60 days after a union's petition. The reform bill would speed things up to 14 days, too brief a time for workers who may oppose a union to rally their forces for a fair contest. The whole idea of this provision is to tilt the scales in favor of union victories.

Suppose the union wins one of these instant elections, and management begins to bargain on an initial contract. This is what could happen under this in-credible bill: If the newly-packed Labor Board is not happy with the employer's bargaining, the Board on its own motion could compel the employer to raise wages and benefits by whatever percentage the Board perceives under "major collective bargaining settlements" in the nation. This is reform?

There is more. Under this bill, an incompetent, insolent, no-account worker need only identify himself with "union activity" to lead a charmed life. The employer who fires such a worker risks a Board order directing that the bum be rehired with double back pay. Under one provision, the Board would be required to seek court injunctions against employers charged with unfair dismissals, even if the charges were patently frivolous.

Still more. If the newly packed board determines that an employer has willfully violated this stacked and rigged reform act, the board may bar that employer from bidding on any Federal contract for a period of three years. No penalty, naturally, attaches to violations by a labor union.

The bill is aimed primarily at small companies with 50 to 100 workers. In the eyes of organized labor, these are plump pigeons waiting to be plucked. Under this bill, if the president of such a company dares to talk to his own workers about the union, the union must be given the same time, at the employer's expense, to conduct its counter campaign.

The bill (S. 1883) speaks for itself. If freedom-loving workers fail to lean on their Senators, they will have only themselves to blame.

The increase, which could go into effect on Sept. 1 if approved by the commission, would add about $70 million a year in revenues for the company, Horn said at a news conference.

Duke's earnings for 1977 have not been released but Horn said the company collected slightly more than $1 billion in 1976.

Duke will file for a similar increase in South Carolina, but a date for that has not been set, he said.

Duke's current rates are based on 1974 cost levels and that has not been enough to match inflation, completion of three generating units and a need for new capital, Horn said.

"Since 1974 the company has brought into service new electric facilities costing $550 million and the carrying charges on this investment must be covered in our rates," Horn said.

The state's other major electricity supplier, Carolina Power & Light Co., was granted an 11 percent rate increase last year. Duke's proposed rate increase would boost the cost of 2,000 kilowatt hours a month for an all-electric home from $63.24 to $69.82.

In homes using electricity for water heating but not totally electric, the monthly bill for 1,000 kilowatt hours would go from $32.20 to $38.67 under the proposed increase.

Duke also proposes creating a new billing rate that would give conservation-minded customers a break with slightly lower rates.

The new rate would be available to customers who use conservation measures such as increased insulation, and storm windows and doors.

Those customers would get the double benefit of using less electricity and getting it at lower rates, Horn said.

According to company figures, 2,000 kilowatt hours of electricity a month would cost general residential customers $85.52 while those in the conservations category would pay $68.58.

plebescite as the weapon. "Another plebescite will not be decided on the treaty," one well-informed Western diplomat told us. "It will stand or fall on Torrijos."

Thus, the treaty is under a heavy threat from collateral political handicaps here as it is in the U.S. There, a major impediment is deep, emotional concern over yielding control of the stupendous canal enterprise at a time the U.S. is in a worldwide defensive posture which has its roots in the humiliation of the Vietnam defeat.

In between his attempts to market the treaty retail to visiting U.S. Senators, Torrijos is keeping quiet and praying. Going public with his fears about a second plebescite might look like a threat, bringing reprisals from Washington.

But his fear is genuine. A second plebescite could prejudice his political career in a most unpleasant way. But that would scarcely be noticed in the wreckage of Jimmy Carter's failed effort following 13 years of U.S. promises to Panama.

OLDEST HOUSE ON THE PRAIRIE — John C. Dittmer, 32, stands in front of the house in rural Hancock County, Illinois, which he and his wife are reconstructing. The 191-year-old house was built 50 years before the first white settlers came to Western Illinois, when the prairies were still the domain of Indians and the buffalo. According to Dittmer, the hardest part of reconstruction was in moving the structure from Westfield, Mass., to its current location—a cornfield. (AP Laserphoto)

N.C. Inmate Asks To Die

BLANCH, N.C. (AP) — Dennis Cole, serving a 16-year prison sentence for armed robbery, says he can't take prison any more and he wants to be executed.

Cole, 28, asked to die in letters to President Carter, the U.S. Middle District Court and Gov. Jim Hunt.

"I'm tired of it mentally," Cole said. "I'd rather not go through with it day in and day out. It's better to be dead, and that's what I want."

Cole is ordinarily held at the medium security facility at Yadkinville, but prison officials said he had broken prison rules recently and had been moved to the close security unit at Blanch.

He was convicted of armed robbery six years ago, but he had other convictions before that and has spent all but 16 months of the last 14 years in prison. The armed robbery charge was a state court matter, and neither President Carter nor the federal court has anything to say about Cole's fate.

The governor's power to commute or pardon contains nothing that would permit him to grant an execution. Hunt's office pointed out.

Cole said he was being harassed by prison guards and contended in his letters that prison administrators discriminated against him.

Hunt's office said those accusations would be passed along to the Department of Corrections for investigation.

Cole contends his request for death is a plea for mercy, not punishment, and is no less reasonable than would be efforts by relatives of a terminally ill patient to have life support systems turned off.

Stevens Co. Firing Upheld

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga. (AP) — Dismissal of unfair labor practice charges against the Milledgeville plant of J. P. Stevens Co. has been upheld by the director of the National Labor Relations Board's Office of Appeal, an NLRB spokesman said Monday.

The Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers Union charged last year that two workers had been dismissed from the plant for union activities.

But NLRB Regional Director Curtis Mack ruled last November that the employees had been fired in accordance with a valid company regulation that forbids fighting on company grounds.

The union appealed the ruling, but a Jan. 23 letter from Robert Allen, director of the office of appeal, upheld Mack's ruling.

NLRB spokesman Thomas W. Miller Jr. said the union could appeal to a court, but he said no court ever has overturned an NLRB general counsel ruling.

Company officials said the Jan. 23 letter also confirmed the denial of a union request for an NLRB order requiring the company to recognize and to bargain with the union without an election.

The company quoted the letter as saying that because only isolated unfair labor practice charges remained, "a remedial bargaining order was not warranted in this case."

Speaking of Your Health...

Don't Overdo on Exercise

My husband is a sports enthusiast. Sometimes he comes into the house after a game with younger players and he's in a state of total exhaustion. Wouldn't it be more sensible if he took up less strenuous exercise than touch football and handball? He's 42. — Mr. H.L., Ind.

Dear Mrs. L.:
Exercise to the point of exhaustion makes no sense at all. The purpose of well-regulated exercise is to balance the effort with one's capacity. Knowing the limits of endurance and using the good sense of moderation is the ideal combination.

Very recently, at the meetings of The American Heart Association, a most interesting paper was presented by Dr. Ralph S. Paffenbarger, of the School of Public Health of the University of California in Berkeley.

Almost 17,000 male alumni of Harvard University, between 35 to 74, were periodically studied over a period of six to ten years. "The energy that each man expended was appraised, both according to the activity he was engaged in, such as stairs climbed, blocks walked, and sports played, and in terms of the total calories he burned each week."

The basic conclusion was that men who participate in strenuous sports have a lower rate of heart attacks than men who expend the same amount of energy in other sports such as "golf, bowling, baseball, soft ball and volley ball." Strenuous sports include "swimming, running, basketball, handball and squash." Tennis can be classified either way, depending on how it is played.

It is universally agreed that well-regulated exercise is beneficial to almost everybody. It is also agreed that exercise to the point of utter exhaustion can do more harm than good. This is the obvious case with your husband, who does not respect sensible limits.

A friend of mine drinks only distilled water. He says that it's good for arthritis and helps circulation. Is this true? — Miss L. S., S.D.

Dear Miss S.:
The origin of this misinformation is intriguing. How it begins and how it spreads from one person to another is not clear, but when a "believer" gets on the bandwagon, it almost becomes imperative to spread the message.

Distilled water is made by boiling water and then allowing the steam to condense. Unfortunately, this purification process may remove minerals that are valuable. There is no possible relationship between the use of distilled water and circulatory or arthritic disturbances.

Says Battered Wives Largely On Their Own

By MARTHA COLE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — "I have had glasses thrown at me," wrote the abused wife who said she went to the police for help.

"I have been kicked in the abdomen when I was visibly pregnant," and she sought help from her pastor.

"I have been whipped, kicked and thrown, picked up and thrown down again," and she asked help from her doctor, friends and a counselor.

The battered wife, a white, middle-class woman with three children and a professional husband, was writing to Marta Segovia Ashley, who set up a center for battered wives in San Francisco.

"Everyone I have gone to for help has somehow wanted to blame me and vindicate my husband... I know that I have to get out, but when you have no where to go, you know that you go on your own and with no support," the woman wrote.

Her letter was presented in a paper today for the first national conference on battered women held by the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights. It was called to examine research on the phenomenon and its perpetrators, on laws protecting battered wives and their enforcement and on the need for short- and long-term services for the women.

In an article coming out next month, Dr. Suzanne K. Steinmetz of the University of Delaware says 7 percent of the country's 47 million wives are victims of severe physical abuse by their husbands.

The article will appear in a new journal called "Victimology," which is published in Washington.

Ms. Ashley, who included the letter from the battered wife in her prepared address, said the woman has summarized the inadequacy of all existing social service agencies.

She said there are many reasons a woman remains with a violent man who has beaten her — a man who will beat her again.

"Economic necessity. No where to go. Fear. Dependency. Children," she said, keep the woman mired in the abuse and dread.

Ms. Ashley said the women must have a place to go, like her shelter, La Casa de las Madres.

But also, she said, there must be social change in this society, which she said trains women to be sweet, passive and self-sacrificing.

Commission Asks Regulation Of Tobacco Industry

Files May Shed New Light On Famed Sacco-Vanzetti Case

By MARC CHARNEY
Associated Press Writer
CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — In August 1927, an outraged journalist in New York wrote: "From now on, I want to know, will the institution of learning in Cambridge which once we called Harvard be known as Hangman's House?"

Harvard president Abbott Lawrence Lowell, descendant of Puritans and son of one of Boston's most prominent families, had just helped seal the fates of two Italian-born radicals in a robbery-murder of which they insisted they were innocent.

Two weeks later, Massachusetts touched off worldwide protests among radicals by executing Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti.

Today Harvard is providing what may become a major footnote to the case's history when it opens Lowell's private papers on Sacco and Vanzetti to public view.

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Commission on Smoking and Public Policy today called for government regulation of the tobacco industry as a key part of a broad new program to reduce cigarette smoking. It said its primary goal is to cut the toll of "more than 320,000 deaths annually related to cigarette smoking."

Established by the American Cancer Society, the Commission declared the tobacco industry was "virtually unregulated" and "unaccountable to any department or agency of government for the content of its products, or the health consequences of their use."

regulated product on the market. "No other product is forbidden to advertise on television and forced to carry a health warning on every pack and in every advertisement," he said.

The federal government has done little except to warn of health hazards in smoking, and "the failure of the Executive and Legislative branches to safeguard the public interest and public health could be described as a national disgrace," it said.

William Kloppeper Jr., senior vice president of the Tobacco Institute, said the commission's suggestion "indicates the ignorance of the American Cancer Society over the fact that cigarettes are the most heavily

The commission began taking testimony July 11, 1927. It made its report to Gov. Alvan Fuller July 27, and on the basis of it, Fuller let the executions go through. Sacco and Vanzetti died just after midnight the night of Aug. 23, 1927.

In the summer of 1927, Lowell was 70 and had been president of Harvard since 1909. He had a legal background and had been a professor of government before he was president. He was from a family of prominent poets, judges, industrialists and scientists.

Lowell's Sacco-Vanzetti papers — 1,500 sheets in all — were turned over to the university in 1948 by Lowell's secretary and his biographer. The rest of Lowell's papers have been on public view for years, but those relating to the Sacco-Vanzetti case were sealed until last December, a stipulation of the donors. Holden said.

The papers are not expected to end the controversy. Last summer, the issue sparked a fight between the legislature and Gov. Michael Dukakis when Dukakis tried to set aside the 50th anniversary of the execution as a memorial day.

Record Raw Egg Eater's Secret

SEATTLE (AP) — Dan Wood, 23, says he has the secret formula for eating a record number of raw eggs — "the trick was to expand my stomach."

That done, Wood slurped down 50 raw eggs in an hour last Friday in what he hopes will be recognized as a world record.

Wood said the stirring was important "because otherwise the yolk sticks in your throat and you start choking. You can't bite into them, either, because they explode in your mouth."

Beale Street Is Off Of Maps

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — A part of historic Beale Street has been wiped off the city maps and a number of citizens, including the mayor, want an explanation.

Hicks said Monday engineers don't survey streets before updating the maps, but rely on official documents. But Mayor Wyeth Chandler, upon learning of Beale Street's absence from the city's latest map, fired off a memo to the mapping department asking why the street was dropped.

Beale Street west of Main and east of Fourth is included on the official 1977 city map, but the world-famous stretch on which W.C. Handy introduced the blues is not shown. And apparently every city map since 1973 has omitted the four-block stretch of vacant theaters, pawn shops and clubs.

Police, who charged Miss Wood with exceeding a safe speed, estimated damage at $1,500 to the Wood car, $300 to the Perkins vehicle and $200 to the Pfeifer auto.

Maps filed at the property assessor's office show the street is still there, and several businesses are paying taxes on Beale Street addresses. City Council records show the street was never officially closed.

Police estimated damage at $100 to the Johnston car and $1,600 to the second vehicle involved — a car driven by Edna Malloy Moore of 307 Prince Rd.

But Calvin Hicks, senior office engineer of the city's mapping, property and microfilm section, said the street was apparently dropped from the city map after the Memphis Housing Authority submitted a 1971 plan showing Beale Street as a pedestrian mall.

City Counts 2 Accidents

An estimated $3,700 property damage resulted from two collisions investigated by Greenville Police Monday.

Investigators reported heaviest damage resulted from a 5:12 p.m. collision on Dickinson Avenue 150 feet East of the Ridgeway Street intersection.

Drivers involved in the mishap were listed as Albert Louis Pfeifer of 1310B Willow St., Virginia King Perkins of 400 Summit St., and Wanda J. Wood of Route 1, Hookerton.

Police, who charged Miss Wood with exceeding a safe speed, estimated damage at $1,500 to the Wood car, $300 to the Perkins vehicle and $200 to the Pfeifer auto.

Judith Carr Johnston of Route 1, Oriental was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 5:20 p.m. collision on Greenville Boulevard just East of the Kirkland Drive intersection.

Police estimated damage at $100 to the Johnston car and $1,600 to the second vehicle involved — a car driven by Edna Malloy Moore of 307 Prince Rd.

Samuel Dash May Get Marston Post

CONFIRMATION HEARING — Federal Judge William H. Webster, President Carter's choice to be the new FBI director, chats with Chairman James O. Eastland, D-Miss., left, of the Senate Judiciary Committee in Washington as the panel opens confirmation hearings on Webster's nomination. By MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Samuel Dash, who was the Senate Watergate committee's Democratic counsel, is the first choice recommended by a panel of lawyers to succeed ousted Republican U.S. Attorney David W. Marston of Philadelphia, sources close to the panel say.

Attorney General Griffin Bell begins interviewing today the five persons recommended by the panel. Dash, a professor at Georgetown University Law Center here and a former Philadelphia district attorney, is the first in line to see Bell.

Bell scheduled a second interview with J. Clayton Undercoffer III, a Philadelphia lawyer who served as U.S. attorney by appointment of the federal judges in Philadelphia in May and June 1976, before Marston's appointment. Undercoffer pushed to set up a corruption unit in the office and some of the cases that helped make Marston's reputation were started during Undercoffer's brief stint in the job.

Bell has not yet scheduled interviews with the other three candidates, and a spokesman for the Justice Department. Robert Havel, said the attorney general does not feel limited to the list provided late last week by the panel of four prominent Philadelphia attorneys, whom Bell asked early this month for advice.

Sources close to the panel, headed by Jerome J. Shestack, said Dash was the panel's first choice to succeed Marston. It could not be learned whether they ranked the other four candidates for Bell. The panel also included Robert M. Landis, David Berger and Tom A. Masteron. A fifth member, Robert Trescher, resigned recently.

The sources also said Bell offered Shestack the U.S. attorney's job last June, but Shestack rejected it and urged that Marston be retained. In fact, the sources said, members of Shestack's panel urged Bell as late as the middle of this month to keep Marston.

During the televised Watergate hearings by Sen. Sam Ervin's committee in the summer of 1973, Dash's face became familiar to millions around the country as the panel's chief interrogator.

Dash was criticized by some people in Washington at the time for headline-grabbing, stemming in part from a news conference he called on his own early in the investigation. Dash reportedly was dressed down privately by committee members for taking on a public role usually reserved for senators.

The other nominees are: —David N. Savitt, administrative judge in the Philadelphia court of common pleas and a former defense attorney and state legislator. Savitt in 1976 upheld the legality of an effort to recall Philadelphia Mayor Frank I. Rizzo but was overruled by the state Supreme Court.

—Lynne M. Abraham, a one-time trial assistant in the district attorney's office and now a Philadelphia County municipal judge. In 1974, she was fired as executive director of the Philadelphia Redevelopment Authority at Rizzo's insistence.

—Charles H. Rogovin, a

Temple University law professor and the head of the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration during the Nixon and Ford administrations and was assistant director of former President Lyndon B. Johnson's Commission on Law Enforcement.

The FARM SCENE

By SAM UZZELL
Ass't Extension Agent

Most farmers in North Carolina are aware of soil sampling services provided free by the Agronomic Division of The North Carolina Department. Fewer growers know that this agency also provides a Nematode Advisory Service. Wee in North Carolina are one of only a few states that offer this service. For the nominal cost of only one dollar, a grower can submit a sample of soil and predict whether nematodes will be a problem before planting.

Nematodes are a perennial pest in North Carolina and in some years can be devastating in certain fields. According to NCDA figures, the total loss in all crops due to nematodes amounted to nearly 50 million dollars in 1974 in North Carolina alone. Nationwide, an estimated 2 billion dollars is lost annually to nematodes.

If nematodes are suspected to be a problem in a field and are severe enough to have caused some noticeable damage, a nematode assay is necessary. It is recommended that every field be assayed each year preferably after harvest in the Fall. A few general requirements for a proper sample are listed below. A nematode sampling test is only as good as the sample taken, so these few steps should be kept in mind.

1. Collect one quart of soil for each sample (about 20 soil cores taken with a soil sampling tube).
2. Fill out the information sheet in detail, especially crop history.
3. Enclose the one dollar processing fee.
4. Take samples only when the soil is in good working condition.
5. Collect samples and mix in a plastic bucket. Place mixed sample in a quart-sized plastic bag and mail in the proper pre-addressed carton. The materials for nematode assays can be obtained from the County Agricultural Extension Service Office.

If you've submitted a good sample and receive word from the Nematode Advisory Service that you have a high nematode population or that you may have a nematode problem during the growing season, what do you do to correct the situation?

Depending upon several factors, crop rotation may be a partial solution. Resistant varieties of some crops can withstand nematode attack and may ease the situation. Chemical control is perhaps the most widely relied upon control method.

Many growers were distressed to learn that Nemagon and Fumazone (DBCP) is no longer available. However, other satisfactory nematicides are available and labeled for most crops. Hopefully more growers will supplement chemical control this year with better cultural control and variety selection in an integrated system to reduce pest problems.

For further information on nematodes, the NCDA nematode advisory service or nematode control measures, contact the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Service, at 203 W. Third Street in Greenville, or call at 758-1196.

Can't Legislate Plain Language

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Assemblyman Art Torres of Los Angeles found out you can't legislate plain language.

The Assembly defeated his bill Monday that would have required all contracts offered to consumers to be "written in non-technical language and in a clear and coherent manner using words with common and everyday meanings ..."

One opponent, Assemblyman Walter Ingalls said the bill "would put every lawyer in the state to work full time" trying to agree upon plain language.

Another opponent, Assemblyman Leroy Greene of Sacramento claimed he even had trouble understanding the language in the plain-language bill.

Tax Collections Are Announced

Net sales and use tax collections in Pitt County during December totaled $222,141, according to a report issued by Mark G. Lynch, secretary of the N.C. Department of Revenue.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices followed up on Monday's rally with a moderate advance today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which climbed 8.32 points Monday for its best showing so far in 1978, added another 1.04 to 773.48 by noon today.

Gainers held a 7-4 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The upswing got its start Monday as the government listed a smaller-than-expected U.S. balance of trade deficit for December and 1977 as a whole.

Today the Commerce Department reported that its index of leading economic indicators rose 0.7 percent in December.

It was the sixth consecutive monthly rise in the index, which is designed to signal the likely future course of economic activity.

United Technologies rose 1/4 to 34 1/2 in active trading after a 1 1/2-point gain Monday, when the company reported higher fourth quarter earnings and raised its quarterly dividend from 45 to 50 cents a share.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks was up .09 at 49.54. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index gained .21 to 121.63.

Volume on the Big Board stepped up to 8.57 million shares by noon against 6.41 million at the same point Monday.

Guerrillas Argue Rhodesia's Future

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON
AP Diplomatic Correspondent
RABAT, Malta (AP) — Black guerrilla leaders called today for sharing power with Britain during Rhodesia's transition to statehood in a new plan rivaling American-British proposals for a settlement.

Robert Mugabe, joint leader with Joshua Nkomo of the Patriotic Front, explained the blacks' approach — prompting British spokesman Hamilton Whyte to acknowledge the existence of "very considerable differences" between the two plans.

These differences, according to Whyte and U.S. delegation spokesman Stoney Cook, focused on the military and political implications of a cease-fire in the war between Prime Minister Ian Smith's white-led forces and the Patriotic Front's guerrillas.

Nkomo and Mugabe appeared to have moved toward the Anglo-American position on the issue of holding countrywide elections before — not after — Rhodesia is granted full legal independence by Britain. Independence would come after a six-month period of transition.

Previously the Patriotic Front, supported by Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda, had insisted that the one-man, one-vote ballot take place after the country assumes black rule as the new state of Zimbabwe, the nationalists' name for Rhodesia.

The blacks have demanded that they be allowed to form a transitional government. They also want a say in the formation of a national army and in arrangements for an election.

The Patriotic Front leaders gave copies of their plan to U.S. Ambassador Andrew Young and British Foreign Secretary David Owen late Monday, but it was discussed today for the first time.

Whyte and Cook said the guerrilla leaders displayed their "misgivings" over powers reserved for Carver in the Anglo-American plan.

Nkomo and Mugabe did not formally reject the Anglo-American proposals, saying to do so would be "too negative an action." But they have refused to call a cease-fire in their five-year guerrilla war.

Mugabe, referring to Lord Carver, said recently that "we want no more dictators, thank you."

'Assault' By DA Claimed

NEW BERN — District Attorney Eli Bloom has been charged with assault in connection with an April 4, 1977 incident at the Craven County Court House here.

The warrant charging Bloom was signed by Mrs. Hazel Jones of New Bern who alleged the district attorney, "grabbed her by the arm and hit her with his hand."

The assault warrant was issued January 28, and the case is set for trial in District Court in New Bern, February 9.

Bloom, a Greenville resident, said this morning that the incident stemmed from a case in Craven County Superior Court in which Mrs. Jones' son Donald Jones was charged with the theft of tobacco from a relative in 1976.

"The woman grabbed hold of me," Bloom said, "and I pulled away." He termed the charge, "a frivolous thing."

The district attorney noted that he chose not to prosecute the case against Jones and the charges were dismissed.

Police Killed A Wrong Man

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Plumber Donald Herkes crawled from under a house and met a hail of police bullets. He was fatally wounded, mistaken for a man wanted in the slaying of a deputy moments earlier, said authorities.

Jefferson Parish Sheriff Alwyn Cronvich said the deputy who shot at Herkes — whose name he would not release — has been relieved of duty.

Herkes, 25, was repairing the heater at the home of Elise Kennair when a police dragnet swept onto the quiet suburban street Monday morning.

Mrs. Kennair said a neighbor telephoned to warn her that deputies were looking for a man who shot down their fellow officer at the Metairie Bank and Trust Co. "Don't let anyone in, they're searching for the man in this neighborhood," the neighbor said.

Herkes' brother, Robert, was working inside the house. Mrs. Kennair said she told Robert Herkes about the deputies and suggested they warn Donald.

She said they were almost at the back door of her home when she heard the first shot. "Oh, my God," she screamed as she ran out of the door. "Don't shoot my plumber."

A neighbor said he heard eight or nine shots, then heard someone exclaim, "I think we just shot the wrong man."

The shooting occurred eight blocks from the bank where Deputy Sheriff Robert Cochran, 32, was killed. The bank has been the target of armed robbers five times over the past two years.

Sheriff's Sgt. A.J. Valenti said the gunman apparently panicked and opened fire when he saw Cochran inside the bank.

Dr. Julian Schorr Is Charged With Murder

NORFOLK, Va. — Dr. Julian B. Schorr was charged with murder in connection with the shooting death of his wife at their home here.

Schorr is a professor of pathology at the Eastern Virginia Medical School here and has been director of the Red Cross regional blood center in Norfolk since April 1975.

Schorr was appointed as clinical professor of pathology at East Carolina University School of Medicine in Greenville, N.C. December 1, 1977.

Police said Schorr, 51, was arrested about 1 a.m. at his home after officers found the body of his wife, Phyllis, about 12:30 a.m. in a bedroom. Investigators said the 49-year-old woman had been shot one time in the chest with a .22 caliber rifle.

Officers said Mrs. Schorr had been shot sometime between 3 p.m. and 5 p.m. Sunday. Police were alerted to the shooting by Schorr's former wife, and said the incident apparently resulted from a domestic argument.

Dr. William Laupus, dean of the ECU medical school said Schorr was an "adjunct clinical faculty member...unpaid," at the Greenville campus.

"I'm quite shocked about the whole business," Laupus said. Schorr was an "adjunct clinical well known pediatric pathologist with interest in hematology over many years."

The ECU dean said Schorr came to Norfolk from New York to direct the regional Red Cross blood center, "and it was through his activities in the regional Red Cross blood center that he worked with members of our faculty and with the School of Medical Technology as well."

Laupus added that Schorr, "participated with us as part of his duties," with the blood center in Norfolk, "and blood banking activities locally...overseeing activities here," at the Red Cross subcenter. "It was in connection with these," Laupus said, that Schorr, "consulted with the schools of medicine and medical technology," at ECU.

Laupus noted that, "our activities with Dr. Schorr were in the future...planning to work with him in the expansion and sophistication of the blood bank in Greenville."

Eight Senate Seeker

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State Rep. Thomas B. Sawyer of Greensboro announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination to the U.S. Senate today, leveling a blast at the state banking industry and stressing his opposition to legalized abortions.

Sawyer, a four-term state legislator, announced his candidacy at a sparsely attended news conference and said he did not decide to enter the race until last Sunday. "The crowds will come later I assure you," he said.

Now the eighth Democratic candidate, Sawyer's entrance into the race was not widely expected. It came a day after a Rockingham mill worker also filed for the Democratic nomination to Republican Jesse Helms' seat.

Sawyer said inflation is the country's top problem and blamed it on the nations banks, which he said have deliberately set high interest rates. Those rates, he said, have been passed along in higher consumer prices.

"I think the skyline of Charlotte is a beautiful monument to usury," he said in reference to several state banks with large buildings in that city.

Sawyer said he favored a "right to life" amendment to the U.S. Constitution. Under questioning, Sawyer said he believed abortions should be allowed only "if the doctors say it's a matter of life and death" for the mother.

Saying North Carolina has the lowest industrial wages in the country, Sawyer said he favored federal legislation that would outlaw state right to work laws such as in North Carolina.

Pirates Host Old Dominion

East Carolina University's basketball Pirates open a three-game home stand tonight as they play host to Old Dominion University.

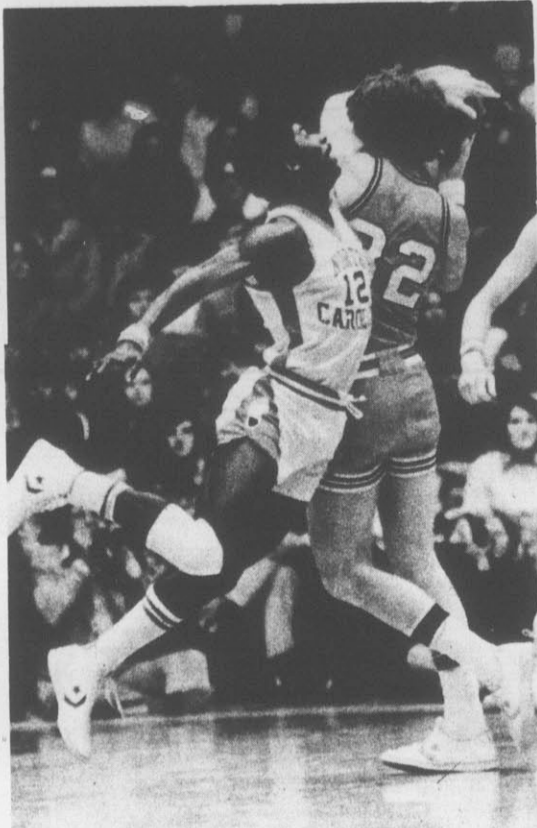

Tipoff is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in Minges Coliseum. The Pirates come into the game following a 105-82 defeat at the hands of the nationally-ranked Duke Devils on Saturday. The brightest spot in that game was the play of Herb Gray, who poured in 19 points and pulled away 13 rebounds.

Old Dominion comes into the game with a 7-10 mark, unusual for the Monarchs, who are used to winning seasons. However, the ODU five have been missing the services of two of their regulars recently. Both of them, Ricky Wright and Ronnie Valentine, returned to action last week, however, and led the Monarchs to a 64-63 win over William & Mary.

East Carolina earlier split with the Indians, winning in Williamsburg, but losing in Greenville. Valentine, a 6-7 forward, leads the team with a 23.7 average, while Wright, a 5-10 guard, is next with a 15.3 mark.

The other guard, 6-3 Reese Neyland, holds down an 11.2 mark, followed by 6-8 center Larry Orton at 8.0. The other forward is 6-7 Tony Ellis, a junior college transfer, averaging 4.5 points a game.

East Carolina has had little success against the Monarchs during the 13-game series with the Virginia school, winning only three while losing ten. Last year, ODU won both of the meetings by scores of 86-74 and 87-78. East Carolina's last victory was during the 1974-75 campaign, when a last-second basket allowed the Bucs to take a 71-69 win.

MacPhail Hated His Innovation

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Larry MacPhail brought night games to baseball, then looked back sadly at the monster he had created.

When President Franklin Delano Roosevelt threw the switch at Crosley Field in Cincinnati that night in 1935, MacPhail looked at it as an achievement. Years later, when the number of night games permitted was increased from seven to 14, MacPhail told the club owners that "baseball has been ruined. Now, there is no limit and they're even going to have night games on Sunday."

He said those words in 1962, 13 years before his death. His concern for the sport and his dedication to sensible management and promotion were among the many factors that led the 18-member veterans' committee to induct him into the sport's Hall of Fame Monday.

Also inducted was Adrian Joss, a star Cleveland Indians pitcher in this century's first decade. Slugger Eddie Mathews had been selected for enshrinement earlier by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

"Baseball," MacPhail once said, "belongs to the public. We in baseball have been slow to realize this. We haven't merchandized our product. We have given the public dirty parks and uncomfortable seats."

"The public that pays the freight is entitled to good seats, clean parks, and shouldn't be pushed around in the stands.

"A ball park should be a decent place for a lady to spend an evening."

That was one of his goals and it was accomplished by the former owner of the Cincinnati Reds, Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Yankees. His era saw the innovation of pre-game fashion shows, Old Timers' games, travel by airplane for his players and a pension plan for baseball executives.

Joining MacPhail will be Joss, whose enshrinement was approved after the veteran's committee waived the 10-year eligibility requirement in the pitcher's case.

Court Battle Brewing Again

NEW YORK (AP) — Vida Blue is back in Oakland and, as a result, Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn may be back in court.

Kuhn's annulment of last month's deal in which the Oakland A's shipped Blue, a left-handed pitcher and three times a 20-game winner, to the Cincinnati Reds for minor league first baseman Dave Revving and $1.75 million in cash drew angry criticism from both clubs, even though the commissioner did not close the door on a future deal involving Blue.

President Bob Howsam of the Reds predicted Monday night that "public confidence in the game will be destroyed... when the public realizes that the commissioner, if he can do what he proposes to do in this case, in effect would have the ability to dictate where a team can end up in the standings."

"I don't think that baseball allowed to win pennants and how often," Howsam said.

However, Kuhn argued that "a player-for-cash deal can substantially weaken the competitive position of a club. Moreover, such deals inevitably cause the public to question the integrity of the game, its methods and operations and may adversely affect public confidence in the game."

Oakland owner Charles O. Finley, rebuffed by Kuhn for the second time in an attempt to sell Blue for a large amount of money, said that "my future actions will speak for me. At this time, I do not wish to discuss what these actions will be, other than to say I will enjoy meeting him (Kuhn) in the courts once again in round 2."

It was not clear whether Finley intended to go to court to overturn Monday's decision or if he was referring to a scheduled Feb. 21 appeal of a 1977 U.S. District Court ruling upholding the commissioner's right to prevent Finley from selling Blue, pitcher Rollie Fingers and outfielder Joe Rudi on the June 1976 trading deadline.

Conley's Vikings Lead Way Into Eastern Carolina Mat Tournament

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

With six returning tournament champions, D. H. Conley is the clear-cut favorite to win its third straight Eastern Carolina Conference wrestling tournament.

The Vikings, who will host the Thursday event, have six wrestlers who won weight class championships in the tournament last year and all except one are undefeated in league competition this year. Conley's overall record is 11-2 and the Vikes are currently ranked sixth in the state by Mat News.

The tournament was originally scheduled for Wednesday afternoon at Southern Nash, but has been moved to Conley and changed to Thursday. The semi-finals will begin at 1:30, the consolation at 4:00 and the finals at 5:00. The other participants are Southern Nash, Farmville Central and North Pitt.

"We're in good shape, as long as everybody stays healthy," said Conley coach Milt Sherman. "The team title will probably come down between Farmville Central and us — that's what usually happens."

But the other coaches feel the real battle will be for second place, with the Vikings virtually assured of the top spot. "I predict they (Conley) will win," said Farmville coach Linwood Woodard. "They moved people down and that kind of messed up our strategy. They should win the first three weight classes, be tough in the middle and take 169 and 185."

The Vikings boast a strong lineup with possible champions in nearly every weight class. Four wrestlers, Gary Harris at 101 or 108, Alton Crandall at 115 or 122, Marvin Hardy at 141 or 148 and Jesse Davis at 188 or 198, are undefeated. Crandall and Harris Hardy are 19-0, while Gary Harris and Davis are 18-0-1. They are all defending champs. The others from Conley are Ronald Harris at 135 or 141 and Charles Hanson at 170. Ronald Harris is 16-2, while Hanson is 17-1.

Conley also has three other wrestlers who could be good bets. Rick Farris at 101 or 108 is undefeated in the conference with a 10-6 overall record, while Donald Hardy at 115 or 122 and Robert Carney at 122 or 129 each have one conference loss.

Farmville Central is the only other team in the meet with a possible chance of challenging the Vikings, the coaches agree. Sherman said, "Farmville Central is a very well-balanced team. They'll fill all 13 weights. "Through their balance, they may very well be able to win the thing. We have more experienced individuals, but we can't field a whole team."

The Jaguars have the meet's only other returning titleholder, Horace Williams at 134. He is currently 13-0. Three other Farmville wrestlers have lost only once this season, David Newton at 128, William Maye at 195 and Roger Joyner at 134. The Jags also have Joe Ebron, who is 11-2 at 107.

"We will probably be able to give Conley a pretty good effort because of us having a full team," Woodard said. "I feel like we have a chance to get three or four first places, but I predict they will win." He added the competition for second place should be real good.

North Pitt's Wayne Powell said, "I feel like we can compete with Farmville Central, but Conley's strong." Powell has five wrestlers who should make a good showing at the tournament.

Mike Manning at 155 is currently undefeated. "If he doesn't win, it will be a surprise," Powell said. Tim Andrews at 112 is "going to be strong, and I'm looking for a good showing out of Sam Mayo at 167 and Danny Shaw at 145."

One surprise for the Panthers could be Mike Manning's younger brother, Donald, who just became eligible. "If we can get him in shape, he's going to be tough."

The Eastern Carolina Conference will also feature a full

Marvin Hardy Proves Ideal Type Wrestler

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

Marvin Hardy is the type of athlete wrestling coaches love to get. He started in his freshman year, stuck it out for four straight years, steadily improved, and was undefeated his senior season.

Almost, anyway. Hardy is currently 19-0, but still has a number of tough matches left, including the district tournament, and hopefully, the state tournament.

"He's a very determined athlete this year," according to his coach at D. H. Conley, Milt Sherman. The Vikings are currently preparing for Thursday's Eastern Carolina Conference tournament, which they will host, and are the favorites to win their third straight conference championship.

Hardy is just one of four wrestlers on the team with undefeated records, but only two of them are untied and Marvin leads the team in pins with 16. At 141 or 148 pounds he has also won championships in the Bull Durham and West Carteret tournaments this year.

"Marvin's been wrestling since the ninth grade," Sherman said, "and he has gradually improved through all four years. He just made up his mind that this is going to be his year."

Hardy credits Sherman's coaching with much of his mat success. "You learn new stuff in practice and work at it until you get it pretty good," he said.

In addition, the presence of other outstanding individuals on the team helps, Hardy said, because he is practicing against tough competition.

Hardy was asked if he thought any luck was involved in the fact that he hasn't been beaten this year. He lost three matches last season. "That's hard to say," he answered. "There's a lot of good wrestlers in the state, but I'm sure that I can handle them."

When Hardy first went out for wrestling his freshman year, he didn't intend to make it a four-year thing. He said he knew little about wrestling then, but had some friends on the team and they persuaded him to try it. He ended up liking it and sticking with it.

D. H. Conley was the state runner-up in wrestling last year, but Hardy said he believes the Vikes have a good shot at the title this year. "As tough individuals as we have, we've got a chance to win the state."

That will take some more hard work, however, Hardy said. "Right now, we're in just about the best shape, but we have to work hard in practice on our moves. And with the good coaching we have, we'll probably get by. I hope we do."

Hardy, who enjoys playing baseball, basketball, and swimming, said, "I think we have a little better chance this year."

What's a little better than runner-up? A state championship, of course.

Kentucky Rebounds To Get Win; Tar Heels Squeeze Past Mercer

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Kentucky, derailed by Alabama one week ago, is back on track — and this track leads to the Southeastern Conference title.

The Wildcats, ranked No. 1 in The Associated Press college basketball poll again this week, rebounded from their only loss of the season and whipped Georgia 90-73 Monday night, showing no ill effects of a one-week layoff.

And they got an unexpected boost when Alabama, runner-up to Kentucky in the SEC race, was knocked off by Florida 84-73.

"We certainly played better than we did at Alabama," said Kentucky Coach Joe Hall, referring to the Wildcats' 78-62 loss last Monday.

Kentucky hit 59 percent of its shots in the first half in rolling to a 48-32 lead and was never in trouble. Jack Givens scored 19 points and Kyle Macy and James Lee each added 18 as the Wildcats raised their record to 7-1 in the SEC and 15-1 overall.

In other games involving nationally ranked teams, No. 6 North Carolina squeaked past Mercer 73-70, Indiana upset No. 7 Michigan State 71-66, No. 15 Texas edged Houston 73-72 and Virginia Tech dealt No. 18 Syracuse its second consecutive defeat 87-71.

North Carolina got a big scare as it was unable to pull away from Mercer. The Tar Heels saw a 9-point lead cut to 1 at 71-70 with 20 seconds to play but Mercer missed two shots at taking the lead before freshman Al Wood clinched the victory with a pair of free throws with four seconds left.

Phil Ford scored 21 points for North Carolina, but three times missed the front end of a one-and-one free throw situation in the second half. Stewart Reese of Mercer had 26 points.

Indiana scored 8 straight points to wipe out a 34-31 half-time deficit and went on to hand Michigan State its first Big Ten loss as Wayne Radford scored 23 points and Mike Woodson, held to 2 field goals in the first half, finished with 16.

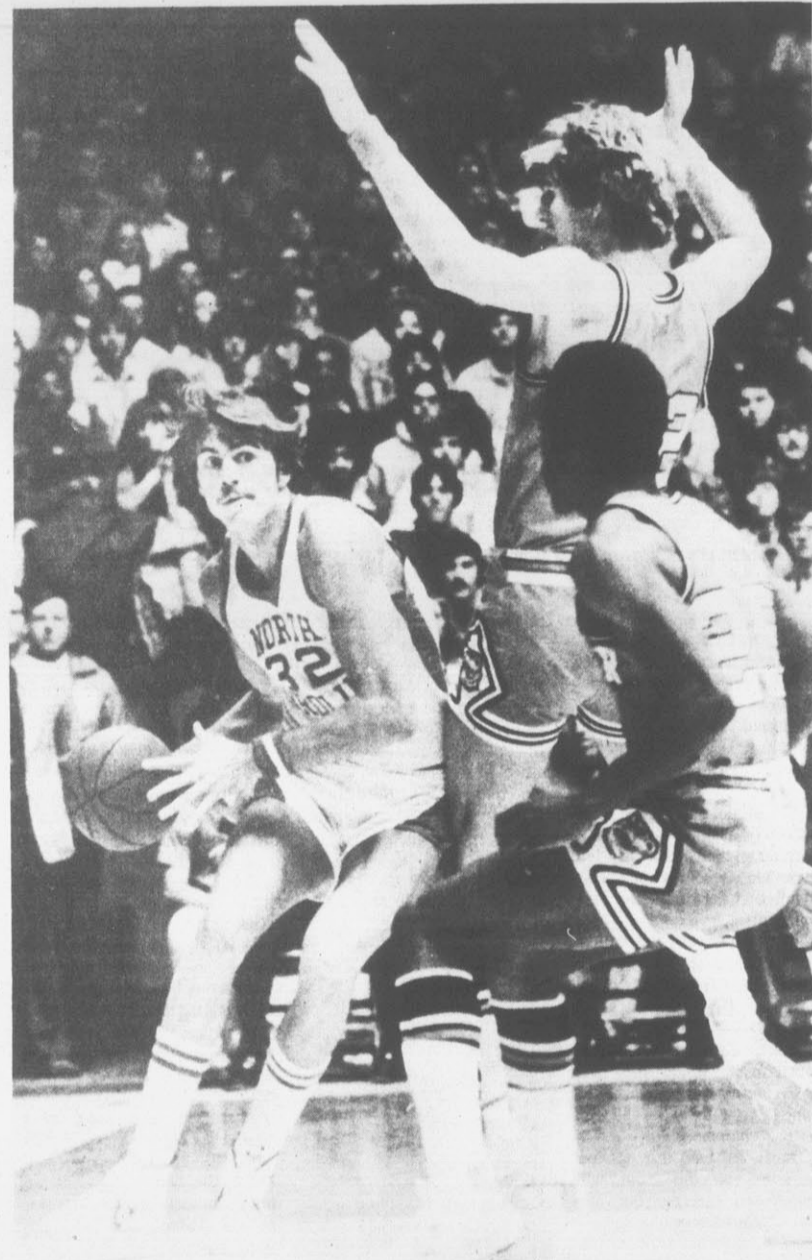

Houston built a 48-39 halftime lead over Texas and stayed in front throughout the second half until, with just 18 seconds left, Tyrone Brynson sank a pair of free throws for the final margin. The victory lifted Texas' Southwest Conference record to 9-0 and set up a showdown Wednesday night against 7-1 Arkansas, the nation's second-ranked team which has a 19-1 overall record.

Syracuse, beaten by Rutgers Saturday, lost its second in a row on the road as Virginia Tech, led by Les Henson and Ron Bell, ran off 17 consecutive points midway through the second half to build a commanding 61-45 lead. Henson finished with 22 points and Bell 20.

In other games, Indiana State, ranked among the Top Ten earlier this season, suffered its fifth straight loss, bowing to Chicago Loyola 79-76; George Johnson grabbed 15 rebounds to raise his career total to a school-record 1,131 as St. John's, N.Y., defeated Davidson 79-67; reserve guard Steve Collier's 16 points helped Cincinnati beat Tulane 70-63.

Preparing To Lay It In University of North Carolina's Tom Zaliagaris draws in defenders from Mercer University prior to laying the ball in during first half action in their game played Monday night. Joe Everett (25) and Ricky Walker (52) try to stop Zaliagaris. The Tarheels won a close game over the Bears by a 73-70 score. (AP Laserphoto)

Wildcats, Despite Loss, Hold To Lead In AP's Cage Listing

By DAVE KAYE
AP Sports Writer

The Kentucky Wildcats weren't about to sit back and wait to see if they were still No. 1 in this week's Associated Press college basketball poll.

After dropping a 78-62 decision to Alabama last Monday, the Wildcats figured to get some competition for the top position. To show they belonged in the No. 1 spot, the Wildcats went out and beat Georgia 90-73 Monday night.

And the nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters kept Kentucky atop the Top Twenty. The Wildcats, 14-1 before Monday's victory, received 35 of a possible 50 first-place ballots to remain No. 1 with 926 points.

Of the remaining 15 first-place ballots, No. 2 Arkansas received four, No. 3 Marquette five, No. 4 Notre Dame two and seventh-place Michigan State, which was upset by Indiana 71-66 Monday night, received four. Arkansas, 19-1, moved up from fourth last week with 728 points as the Razorbacks defeated Baylor 56-55 in overtime and then beat SMU 72-65 and Texas Tech 54-49.

Marquette lost to Chicago Loyola 68-64 after beating Cincinnati Xavier 78-62 and fell from second with 664 points and a 15-2 record.

Notre Dame, 14-3, beat Dartmouth 78-64, West Virginia 103-82 and Maryland 69-54 and moved up a notch with 649 points.

UCLA, 14-2, received 582 points as the Bruins beat Southern Cal 83-71 and rose a spot from sixth.

North Carolina, 16-3 before beating Mercer 73-70 Monday night, lost to Wake Forest 71-62 and beat Clemson 98-64 last week and fell from third to No. 6 with 562. Michigan State, 15-1 prior to Monday's loss, remained at No. 7 with 560 points as the Spartans dropped Ohio State 70-60 in their only action last week.

Kansas, 16-3, remained at No. 8 with 264 points after beating Colorado 85-56 and losing 62-58 to Nebraska.

Louisville routed Tulane 105-82 and moved up from 12th to No. 9 with 242 points and a 12-3 record.

New Mexico beat Brigham Young 95-82 and Utah 113-89 to up its record to 15-2 and move up from 14th to 10th to round out the top 10.

Virginia, 14-2, moved up from 18th to 11th after beating Duke and North Carolina State. Texas, 16-2 before knocking off Houston 73-72 Monday night, moved up from No. 15 to 12th after beating Texas A&M, Baylor and SMU last week.

DePaul leaped from 19th to 13th after beating St. Louis and Providence to raise its record to 16-2. Georgetown, 15-2, edged American University and then massacred New England College 80-30 to move up from 16th to 14th.

Florida State, 15-2, beat St. Louis to jump two spots from No. 17 and rounded out the top 15.

The rest of the Top Twenty were Providence, 16-2; Duke, 15-4; Syracuse, 14-3 prior to a loss to Virginia Tech 87-71 Monday night, Illinois State, 1-1 and San Francisco, 15-4.

Duquesne Nips South Carolina

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — Jeff Baldwin's statistics told one story. His smile told another.

"This one goes down as the best shot I ever took in my life," he said after his three-point play with three seconds left gave Duquesne University a 63-61 basketball victory over South Carolina Monday night.

The 6-foot-4 sophomore guard finished with a total of just four points in the game in Pittsburgh. He'd missed all four of his field goal tries before hitting the winner.

"That's the kind of shot they call a Hail Mary," said South Carolina Coach Frank McGuire.

After rebounding a missed shot by teammate John Moore, Baldwin threw in his off-balance jumper from the foul line as he was knocked to the floor by South Carolina center Jim Graziano.

"I just laid there smiling," said Baldwin, who became a starter last week after the Dukes lost top-scorer Lonnie McClain with a shoulder injury.

Baldwin converted the free throw. Then South Carolina's Jackie Gilloom missed a shot from beyond mid-court at the buzzer as the Gamecocks fell to 10-10 and Duquesne climbed to 7-9.

McGuire, in his 14th season as South Carolina coach, had kind words for Duquesne Coach John Cincicola. "It might be his time to win," said McGuire, whose team rallied after trailing 32-25 at halftime.

"He's a very fine guy and a good coach. He's had a tough year so far, and that might get him going."

McGuire had kind words for referee "Dutch" Shamble, whom he said missed a crucial call.

It came after Duquesne guard Ron Dixon hit two field goals in a row, his only points of the night, to pull the Dukes to within 61-60 with 11 seconds left.

South Carolina guard Kenny Reynolds, who'd hit four free throws in a row, took the in-bounds pass.

But the ball skittered out of bounds at the Duquesne end, giving the Dukes possession with eight seconds left and setting up the winning play.

Bethel, GRW Split

BETHEL — Bethel and G. R. Whitfield split a pair of junior high school games yesterday.

Whitfield took the girls' game, 25-22. Gladys Roberson led Bethel with eight points, while Ella Barnhill had 15 to lead Whitfield.

In the boys' game, Bethel gained a 33-30 win. Gregory Hines led Bethel with 19, while Hardison had 16 to lead Whitfield.

ATLANTA (AP) — Flames billowed Monday where Hollywood's spotlights once played on the ornate facade of Loew's Grand Theater, the site of the glamorous 1939 premiere of "Gone With the Wind." Awed Atlantans lined sidewalks for the landmark theater's spectacular last show.

The fire destroyed most of the top three floors of the 86-year-old theater building and soared across an alley to several floors of a modern office building.

A doctor, his hair singed by the blaze, escaped along with his office manager down a fire ladder from the top floor of the Loew's building. They apparently were the only ones there.

The 12-story Continental Insurance Building next door was evacuated before the fire spread there, badly damaging several floors.

Eight firefighters were treated for smoke inhalation as firemen fought four hours to contain the fire and continued late into the night fighting small blazes.

The plush 2,300-seat theater, closed last summer for lack of business, occupied the back portion of the Loew's Grand building and received an undetermined amount of damage, although fire officials said it fared better than the seven-story front of the building.

But its future seemed bleak. There had been talk of preserving the building as a national landmark with live shows, but a city spokesman said, "Those hopes apparently were destroyed by the fire."

Dr. Richard Freeman, who discovered the fire when he smelled smoke, said he and office manager Tracy Walker couldn't make it to an elevator and would have had no way out if firefighters hadn't gotten the ladder raised to a sixth-floor window in time.

"I thank God they did," he said.

He said there were only a few offices still in use in the building, which had fallen on hard times.

Freeman, 35, was too young to recall the 1939 premiere when newsreel cameras recorded Clark Gable, Vivien Leigh and other stars of what many still consider the greatest movie ever made as they walked into the theater with lights blazing. The front of the building was covered then with a huge replica of the plantation mansion Tara.

Mugsy Smith, 76, remembered it all as he watched the fire.

"I watched the whole parade back then; it was really something," said Smith, a former state legislator who said he was a friend of the late Margaret Mitchell, author of "Gone With the Wind."

"I hate it, hate it," he said, and he turned away from the fire shaking his head.

Younger Atlantans, seeing that no lives were in danger, took a lighter view as they watched.

Referring to the Civil War burning of Atlanta, a highlight of the film, one jokingly hinted that Yankees were responsible for Monday's fire. "First they burned the city, now they burn the theater."

The building opened as the DeGue Opera House in 1892, and many of the biggest names in theater — Sarah Bernhardt, Lillian Russell and others — appeared there in its vaudeville days.

In the 1970s it stepped to movies such as "Seven Blows of the Dragon," then closed its doors forever last June.

LOEW'S GRAND THEATRE, which burned Monday on Peachtree Street in Atlanta, was the site of the world premiere of "Gone With the Wind" in 1939. The theater closed last June as a result of smaller audiences and fewer choice films. (AP Laserphoto)

Public TV Will Keep Idea Alive

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Woman Alive" and "Woman" may no longer be made for public TV, but the idea of a series on modern women isn't extinct. In fact, such a series began on public TV this week.

It's "Turnabout," produced by station KQED in San Francisco for $25,000, or roughly what it cost sponsors for a minute's TV time during the last Super Bowl. It has an initial 26-week run.

Each half-hour show, done in news magazine format, has a single theme, such as juggling family life and a career, physical fitness, female fiscal power — or the lack of it — and women in religion.

Purchased by 148 stations, the series is hosted by Jerri Lange, a San Francisco TV figure, journalism teacher and mother of three sons, one of whom plays the barkeep on ABC's "Love Boat."

"Turnabout" sprang from a two-year local series she hosted, "Womantime & Co.," according to Martha Gleissing, a Kansas City, Mo., native who is executive producer of the new venture.

She says the "Womantime & Co." tag was changed when the show went national for two reasons. The first, obviously, was to avoid confusion with the old "Woman" and "Woman Alive" series.

Reason two: The new program is, to borrow the title of a commercial series, not for women only.

"This show has been developed to appeal to men as well," Ms. Gleissing said by phone from the city by the Bay.

On Dean's List At Georgia Tech

Joseph H. Thurber, son of Dr. Robert E. Thurber of 302 Martinsborough Road, Greenville, recently made the Dean's List at Georgia Tech, located in Atlanta, Ga.

To qualify for the Dean's List, students were required to compile grade point averages of 3.0 (B) or better during the Fall Quarter, 1977.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 NT Pass 2♣ Pass
2♥ Pass 4♥ Pass
Pass Pass
Opening lead: Jack of ♣.

Carding is the language of defense, and East-West cooperated nicely on this deal to defeat South's sound four-heart contract.

Since North held distributional values, he used the Stayman Convention in an effort to locate a 4-4 heart fit. When partner obliged by showing a heart suit, North's hand revealed to 12 points, so he wasted no time in leaping to game.

West could have led either black suit, but his choice of the jack of spades was a prudent selection. In the light of South's one trump opening bid, a club lead might have proved far too costly. Declarer won in hand and led a trump to the ace and another to West's king. On these two tricks East followed first with the nine of hearts and then with the deuce.

In signalling length in a side suit, the normal procedure is to echo with an even number and play up the line with an odd number. In the trump suit, this is reversed—you might not be able to spare your highest trump if you have only two. Thus East's trump plays indicated that he had started with an odd number of trumps—exactly three.

However, a trump echo is more than just a method of giving count. Most defenders use the echo to show either the ability or the desire to ruff.

West had no problem interpreting his partner's message. From his hand, East could want a ruff in only one suit—clubs. So West shifted to a low club and was gratified and relieved to see his partner ruff with his remaining trump for the second defensive trick. Try as he might, declarer could not escape losing two more tricks—to the ace of diamonds and king of clubs. Down one!

State Lottery Not New Idea

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Government-run lotteries are not new in the United States, say officials of the New York State Lottery.

The Congress of 1776 provided a national lottery, which had the support of Thomas Jefferson and other first statesmen. Before 1820, Congress passed as many as 70 acts authorizing lotteries for the building of schools, roads and other public works.

Funds derived from lotteries have helped to build and repair canals, roads, ferries and bridges, says the commission.

Awards Money Is Set Aside

NEW YORK (AP) — Former bandleader Artie Shaw must feel as though he's in the category of now-you-have-it-but-now-you-don't.

An award of $118,200 to Shaw for the loss of the right to make a movie out of "The Great Gatsby," was set aside Monday by the Appellate Division of the state's Supreme Court.

Last July, the state court jury decided Shaw was entitled to $118,200 from Broadway producer David Merrick, Paramount Pictures and others.

Shaw had contended that Frances Scott Fitzgerald Smith, daughter of "Gatsby" author F. Scott Fitzgerald, breached a contract that called for Shaw to make the movie.

Merrick and Paramount made a film of "The Great Gatsby" in 1973.

The appellate court said there is no evidence that Paramount and Merrick induced Mrs. Smith to break the contract, and that the law demands such evidence.
