HEW Issues New 'Guidelines' For UNC

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) - The University of North Carolina is at odds again with the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare over the agency's efforts to speed desegregation of the 16-campus state university system. HEW officials have issued new guidelines which would require the UNC system to eliminate many programs at white campuses which are offered at black campuses too.

All other graduate, undergraduate and professional programs in the UNC system offered at black and white campuses must be considered for elimination or transfer completely to black campuses, the proposal says. Friday said this would include education, business, nursing, journalism and other courses of study.

After meetings with HEW officials, UNC officials prepared a proposed desegregation plan and sent it to Washington. The new directives are in response to that plan. HEW is under court order to speed integration of university systems in several southern states, including North Carolina.

traditionally white institutions," HEW said. Friday said he has written Tatel that the new guidelines are "not acceptable and I shall so recommend to the board."

Israeli Proposals Rejected Sadat Strongly Objects

By HILMI TOROS Associated Press Writer CAIRO, Egypt (AP) - President Anwar Sadat and U.S. Assistant Secretary of State Alfred Atherton talked for more than an hour today amid reports that Egypt strongly objects to Israeli proposals the American conveyed at the meeting.

me some of the Egyptian government's ideas on the draft declaration and we will be reflecting on this to see where we go from here." Negotiations have centered on a declaration of principles to guide an overall peace agreement. Sadat has said he does not expect to announce agreement on a declaration after meeting with Carter.

Cairo sources said Egypt is close to asking the United States to formulate proposals similar to those outlined by Carter when he met with Sadat at Aswan last month. Carter said then that a Mideast settlement would have to be based on normal relations between the Arabs and Israelis.

Atherton also talked with Egyptian Foreign Minister Mohamed Ibrahim Kamel and Vice President Hosny Mubarak. After the meeting one Egyptian source said that "at this stage, and after seeing the written ideas from Israel brought by Atherton we can still say the gap is quite wide."

Egypt has insisted the Israelis dismantle settlements in the occupied Sinai desert, but the Israelis demand that Jewish settlers be allowed to remain, along with air bases to protect them.

The indictment, released Tuesday, accuses Humphrey of passing confidential and secret documents to Truong for relay couriers who carried the documents to Vietnamese officials in Paris.

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Mention Dr. Kinsey and most people think of the books based on his surveys of human sexual behavior. But when Dr. Kinsey's name crops up, I think of the best darned Persimmon Pudding!

I found his recipe for it in "Edible Wild Plants of Eastern North America," a book Professor Alfred Charles Kinsey of Indiana University co-authored in 1943, five years before his first book on sex was published.

In his introduction to the recipe, Kinsey commented, "One of the best ways of serving persimmons is in a pudding." Here's the recipe Kinsey favored, his directions brought up to date:

DR. KINSEY'S PERSIMMON PUDDING
2 cups flour, fork-stir before measuring
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon baking soda

1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon allspice
1/2 teaspoon cloves
1 teaspoon cinnamon
5 medium (about) soft and juicy (fully ripe) cultivated persimmons
1 large egg
2 cups milk

On wax paper thoroughly stir together the flour, sugar, soda, salt, allspice, cloves and cinnamon. Halve the persimmons and put through a food mill; discard the skin residue; there should be 2 cups pulp. In a large mixing bowl beat the egg and milk until blended; add the 2 cups persimmon pulp and beat until blended. Add the flour mixture and beat well until blended. Turn into a buttered 2-quart oblong glass baking dish (11 3/4 by 7 1/2 by 1 3/4 inches) or similar utensil. Bake in a preheated 325-degree oven

Can Person Help And Stay Alive?

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1978 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Last week I read another report of a woman who was dragged from her home by her husband and shot on the street in full view of neighbors and several witnesses—and no one helped.

It got me to thinking about what I would do if I were to witness such an act. Of course I would notify the police, but in the meantime the poor woman could suffer a terrible beating and even be killed. What else could I do to help, other than call the police?

I certainly couldn't attack a man who had a gun or a knife. He could easily kill me, and I have a responsibility to my family to stay alive. If I were to shoot the man and he lived, I'm afraid he would come after me next.

Please, Abby, ask your law enforcement friends to give some advice to people who want to help, but also want to remain alive.

N.M. IN ARDMORE, OKLA

DEAR N.M.: All my law enforcement friends and consultants agree that the wisest move is to call the police immediately, and be sure to stress that it is an emergency.

DEAR ABBY: I am a reasonably attractive 27-year-old woman. A friend, also a woman, age 30, went with me to a very nice supper club for an evening out. We were not there to hunt male company. All we wanted was a cocktail, dinner and girl talk. Obviously we were not flirting with any of the men in the place.

Halfway through dinner, a man about 50 came in with a woman and took the table next to ours.

Just as they were leaving, the man stopped by our table and said, "May I ask you a question? Are you two in love—with each other?"

We were too stunned to say anything at the time, but after they left we thought of many appropriate Abby-like retorts.

Later we learned that the man is a judge! Such gross rudeness and poor judgment in anyone is hard to take, but in one who is supposed to rule impartially on complicated issues, it's frightening!

Were we wrong to be there? Somehow I can't believe the judge would have asked that question of two men dining together.

INCREDULOUS IN ORLANDO

DEAR INCRED: Don't bet on how this judge would have judged two men dining together. Anyone who is so curious about the sexual preferences of strangers that he would inquire, obviously has a serious problem in that area. And no, you were not wrong to have been there.

CONFIDENTIAL TO R. B. G.: In American courts, a man is innocent until proved guilty. Surely every child has the right to the same consideration from his parents.

Problems, Tell them to Abby. For a personal unpublished reply, write to Abby: Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

until a cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean — about 1 1/4 hours. The pudding will look dark brown. Serve warm with whipped cream. Makes about 12 servings. Left-over portions may be reheated. Food Editor's Note: Dr. Kinsey used wild persimmons, unavailable to us. — C. B.

School Move Won't Be Easy

If all goes according to the current schedule the oft delayed move into the new Middle School facilities on Arlington Boulevard will be made on Friday, Feb. 10.

The new building is expected to be ready for occupancy by that time and school officials plan to go on and make use of it.

It won't be easy. Not only is a move difficult to make over a weekend but construction of Arlington Boulevard is far from complete.

Originally the move had been planned for the Christmas break, which would have allowed time for the work. There was some finishing up to do on the building, however, and the move was delayed.

As for access, when the Arlington Boulevard work is completed the thoroughfare will stretch from Hooker Road all the way to the New Bern Highway. For now though, access to the school will be only from Hooker Road, and even that will depend on good weather. A single drive is available for access to the school, and this will be used regardless of the weather.

The move can be made smoothly on Feb. 10 and the new building put to use. The full cooperation of the 400 students, 25 staff members, parents and the public will be needed to make the move successful.

The rewards will be full use of a modern new facility in Greenville's educational process.

Trade Deficit Should Frighten Us All

A small chart on the front page of Tuesday's Daily Reflector ought to scare us all.

It showed the nation's trade deficit was $5.9 billion in 1976; in 1977 it was $26.7 billion.

Neither inflation nor cost of oil is sufficient to justify such a jump. It means simply that we are buying more from other nations than we are selling, and that is not a good economic situation for the United States.

THIS AFTERNOON

Error In Being Too Soft?

By BILL NOBLITT
(Second of two articles)

RALEIGH — State officials currently feeling the wrath of local welfare officials and county commissioners over distribution of Title XX federal funds believe the worst mistake made was being too lenient with first-year money.

The state received $64 million in federal funds for a host of services for low income people, in addition to the regular Medicaid, food stamps, and welfare money.

A fair-share split to the counties was essential, and the plan was to divide the money on a complicated formula based on potential recipients.

Many urban counties were willing to provide the local matching money, were anxious for the aid programs, and already had similar services in operation. Among those, the popular day care, meals on wheels, home chore helpers, transportation and others.

Other counties either weren't interested, didn't need the services, or didn't want to provide the matching local money.

"During the year as staff was hired or contracts put into operation, some spent more than others. Some overspent and asked for help.

Not Spent

"We re-allocated from the non-spending counties to the spending counties," explains Louis G. Christian, chief of operations in the division of plans and operations of the Department of Human Resources.

Then, because of the overlap of fiscal years between state and federal levels, another $2 million windfall developed. That also went to the heavy spending counties.

"We reminded the counties at that time that we would go back to a fair-share formula next year," Christian adds.

What happened next is a case example of bureaucratic budgetary policy: Welfare agencies which had gotten windfall money from either the surplus or the re-allocation took budgets to their county commissioners based on that higher amount — betting on the come that once having gotten more, they'd get more next time.

Not only did the budgets call for spending at a higher level, but the agencies then proceeded to actually spend money at the higher rate well before finding out how much would be available.

That explanation from the state level is contradicted locally. Officials in the counties contend they were promised money which wasn't delivered and they are having to cut programs. Further, they argue, the change was made arbitrarily with the coming to office of Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr.

NOBLITT

The record, however, shows that the distribution formula now in effect was drawn up by a committee established when Phil Kirk was Secretary of Human Resources under Gov. James E. Holshouser. The split is to be made on a weighted formula related to the public assistance caseload locally.

Phase-In

For those which had been spending more there is a three-year cutback period to reach the formula share: for those not spending their limit, encouragement to gear up programs.

"But several counties had gotten into the habit of spending more than their share because the shifts in funds had been made. Maybe we should have drawn a line and said No... you can't have anymore, and there is no phase-up or phase-down period. But I couldn't see sending millions back to Washington when some could spend it," Christian recounts.

Meanwhile, another problem develops. Some counties still aren't spending and the state is contemplating another re-allocation. "Several counties have threatened to sue if we take back the unspent money, so we have backed off and postponed that. But we are keeping an eye on underspending, and they will be asked to surrender the money next July," Christian said.

The strange thing in it all, he adds, is that all the counties are getting more than they ever got before. The only cut has come for those who overspent the already higher amount and got a bonus... which they are now losing.

A STRONG SECONDING SPEECH

By ART BUCHWALD

Explaining To The KGB

WASHINGTON — It's tough to be a KGB agent in Washington, D.C., mainly because the home office has no idea what you're talking about. I happened to be outside a public telephone booth the other morning when I heard a Soviet secret agent make a person-to-person call to Moscow. I know it's impolite to listen in when a secret agent is calling but I couldn't restrain myself.

"Anya, is Vladimir, speak is President of Redskins, which most people in Washington think is more important job.

"I'm not making this up, Anya. All the newspapers have been full of Allen. The TV stations have taken off regular programming to put on special stories about firing. No one in Washington is working because they're all talking about Redskins."

ART BUCHWALD

Other Editors Say They Want More

(Washington Daily News)

Talk about the federal government cutting taxes, and immediately the big city mayors go up in arms. The last thing they want the national government to do is to cut taxes right now.

The big city boys do not want taxes cut because they want Uncle Sam to give the cities big chunks of money. Now it hardly makes sense for the federal government to do for states or for counties or for cities what each of them ought to be doing for themselves. The levying and collecting of taxes are responsibilities, as we see them, of the unit of government where the spending is to be done.

President Carter is proposing an overall tax cut of $25 billion, and immediately big city Democratic mayors begin expressing their opposition. They are saying to the president "if you cut taxes in Washington, D.C., then we'll have to raise our taxes in Podunk."

Well, if Podunk needs money that much, let Podunk raise its own cash. It is so easy for local government on the one hand to yell about the red tape of the federal bureaucracy, while at the same time using that federal bureaucracy and that red tape to squeeze out every possible dollar. And what big cities get from the federal government, they just do not have to levy and collect that amount at home.

We realize that the big city liberals have just about bankrupted their governments. And what they call for today at every turn is for Uncle Sam to come in and save them.

It might be wonderful for state and local politicians if Uncle Sam levied all the taxes there are in our nation. That would be taking states, counties and cities out of the tax collecting business. And that would be taking a lot of criticisms off the shoulders of local politicians everywhere. But it would also remove responsible government out of sight of local people.

We have no knowledge either way on the tax needs in our federal government. But let the taxes be levied according to the needs of the federal government and not according to the wishes of big city mayors in deep trouble and wanting the federal government to save the day — and the city.

We look at revenue sharing with a caustic eye. We have great fears that year by year back home politicians will simply ask for more and more. And regardless of whom collects the taxes, it is the people who pay.

And in today's America, taxes represent a rather big subject.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Rescuing The Tax Reform

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — A rescue mission to Capitol Hill by Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal has prevented an immediate separation of tax reform and tax reduction even though long-term prospects for reform remain grim.

When the quick congressional reaction to President Carter's tax package favored splitting reduction and reform, Blumenthal scheduled private meetings with influential Democratic Congressmen to deliver this message: The President really cares deeply about the reform side of the package.

That had its impact on Democratic members of the House Ways and Means Committee, who would prefer to consider reform proposals separately after passing a tax cut. If the President really feels that deeply, they say, we won't insist.

But what kind of tax reform Mr. Carter can expect is another matter. Although the President's reform proposals are but a shadow of his previous plans, they will be whittled down still more sharply in Congress. His highly publicized crusade against the "three-martini lunch" is in desperate trouble inside Ways and Means, whose members oppose the Carter proposal to halve the tax deductibility of business lunches.

A footnote: The Ways and Means Committee is also hostile to the Carter tax plan's increase of income taxes for $25,000-plus incomes. The congressional rule of thumb is that everybody, even the rich, should get some slice out of the tax-cut pie.

HHH'S Last Act

The last political act of Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, an appeal to Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin not to lose the chance for peace in the Mideast, has generated disagreement and debate among some of Humphrey's closest friends.

There is no doubt his letter to Begin dated Jan. 11, two days before the Senator died, was the sincere effort of a stalwart friend of Israel to urge flexibility. Less clear is the Carter administration's role.

The idea of Humphrey appealing to Begin was mentioned in the Senator's last telephone conversation with President Carter. David Gartner, Humphrey's top aide, told us it was Humphrey's idea, concurred in by the President. The downhill course of the Egyptian-Israeli talks was a major worry of the Senator in his final hours, according to Gartner.

But other Humphrey intimates who are strong advocates of Israel claim the letter was written at Mr. Carter's specific and strong request. Obviously concerned that Humphrey's last words on Israel support "full Egyptian sovereignty" in the Sinai, these friends tend to paint the incident as the case of a dying man being manipulated by the Carter administration.

Humphrey personally toned down an earlier draft of the letter, prepared by his own staff, which more specifically blamed Begin for the Sinai deadlock. According to Humphrey's pro-Israel friends, the administration preferred the earlier, more strongly worded version.

Courting Congress

Proof that President Carter really is trying harder to get along with Congress is provided by a surprise private meeting between him and one of his most powerful and persistent conservative Democratic critics: Rep. Joe Waggoner of Louisiana.

Strength For Today

A LIFE GREATLY LIVED

Clara Barton, founder of the American Red Cross, lived to be almost ninety years of age, and into those years she crowded about as much human helpfulness as any person who has lived in recent centuries.

Born to a well-to-do family, she became a school teacher at fifteen and some years later became one of the first women in America to hold a government job.

When the Civil War broke out, she followed the Union armies and took such care of the wounded soldiers that she became known as the American Florence Nightingale.

Some years thereafter she founded the Red Cross, largely as a result of her war experience. Then, shortly afterwards, at age 77, she plunged into the arduous work of nursing soldiers in the Spanish-American War.

Here was a woman whose life must indeed have pleased the Master who declared, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

Exchange Link-Up Is Dragging

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Linking America's separate stock exchanges into a central market is proving to be a greater challenge than joining two vehicles in space.

The concept has been around for close to a decade now, and it's been about three years since Congress mandated the change, but progress comes slowly, painfully, and with resistance.

One of the reasons is the lack of a specific goal, since Congress never did say what it meant when it called for an all-out effort to produce an efficient, competitive National Market System.

And what it did say hasn't always helped. It said that the Securities and Exchange Commission could create a National Market Advisory Board of interested parties. The SEC did, but the parties disagreed.

Said John Scanlon, chairman of the advisory board: "The commission did a very good job of picking people representing various interests... In so doing, however, they foreordained that there would not be consensus."

Nevertheless, there is in operation now a composite reporting tape that displays volume and prices of trades where ever they occur, rather than on just one or another exchange.

This indeed can be called progress, because it enables an investor to determine where the activity and where the best prices are likely to be found, on whatever exchange they occur throughout the country.

But the tape activity is history. It is what happened, and investments are made instead on what is likely to happen.

The next step, therefore, is to enable brokers to know where the best prices, the best buy and sell offers, are to be found throughout the country, and then quickly route orders to that point.

The New York Stock Exchange thinks it has that system. Its Intermarket Trading System is an electronic linkage that routes orders to exchanges where trades can be made most advantageously.

The Midwest Stock Exchange isn't convinced. "There continue to be some elements of a full national market system that ITS does not address," John Alexander, vice president, said this week.

What is missing? Automation. Under ITS, said Alexander, NYSE personnel retain the option of routing or not routing orders to another exchange that might have better prices.

Human Rights Impact

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Acting under a 1976 law requiring human rights violations to be considered in allocating military aid, President Carter is cutting off military assistance to Nicaragua — but continuing it to South Korea, the Philippines and Indonesia.

The decisions, revealed by State Department sources, are contained in Carter's 1979 foreign aid budget. They are likely to disappoint some activists who contend military assistance to repressive governments destroys the credibility of the expressed U.S. commitment to human rights.

The country-by-country plan for distribution of the $5.2 billion foreign aid budget is scheduled to go to Congress in February. Human rights assessments go to Congress this week.

Nicaragua is receiving $25,700 in flat military grants during the current fiscal year, as well as $400,000 in grants for training the military and police.

It was to get $2.5 million in military assistance credits — aid in financing arms purchases — but the State Department held up the allocation because of human rights violations.

The Nicaraguan regime of President Anastasio Somoza has been criticized for arresting and exiling dissidents and for ruling under what amounted to martial law until last September.

Indonesia and the Philippines both have been listed by the State Department as human rights violators.

But Indonesia, considered to be strategically important in Southeast Asia, continues to receive U.S. support. One of the poorest countries in the world, Indonesia has been considered a U.S. ally since President Suharto came to power in 1965.

The Philippines are of similar status.

Chairman W. W. Lee of the 1938 Roosevelt Birthday ball held here last night declared today that the affair was successful and he considered the crowd good despite the inclement weather which kept many persons at home who otherwise would have attended the dance and show.

"I wish to thank everyone who helped to make the ball a success," declared Chairman Lee, "without their wholehearted cooperation it would have been impossible to have made as good a showing as we did."

While no figures are available on the profits derived from the annual event, the advance sale of tickets was encouraging and officials are hoping that a good sum will be realized to aid children crippled from infantile paralysis or other causes.

coach its football team . . . But this is very important. President Williams plans to appoint one very fast so if we want to move, the best time is now when everybody in Washington is looking for new coach.

"You must believe me, Anya, ever since the firing I haven't heard a word about the Middle East negotiations, the South Korean scandal in Congress or the Panama Canal treaty. This town has priorities and no one will do a thing until they know who the new Redskins leader will be.

"Why is this important to the Kremlin? I'll tell you why. Because Allen has left behind a team of wounded football players and no draft choices . . . I said no draft choices.

"Anya, make sure you get this correctly. The Redskins have no draft choices until 1979.

"Wait, will you please wait? The U.S. Army does not have a draft. That is true, Anya. But the National Football League still does. Allen gave up his draft choices because he said there was no tomorrow.

"Anya, don't hang up on me . . . Hello, operator, I was cut off from KGB Headquarters in Soviet Union. Oh, never mind . . . If people in U.S. don't understand what is happening in Washington, how can I explain it to Moscow?"

Waggoner, a key figure on the House Ways and Means Committee, once was nearly expelled from the committee's Democratic caucus because of his close relationship with then Republican President Richard M. Nixon. Since the 1976 election, he has been a tough opponent of many Carter proposals (particularly his energy tax measures).

So, when he showed up at the White House one recent morning in response to a presidential summons, Waggoner noted to an aide that he appeared to be the first Congressman to arrive for the meeting. No, he was told, you're the only one invited. Mr. Carter used the private get-acquainted session to sound out Waggoner's views on a variety of issues.

A footnote: While Republican Congressmen generally keep a maximum distance from the exile of San Clemente, Waggoner has maintained his ties with Nixon. He calls the former President from time to time, most recently to wish him a happy birthday and talk about developments in the Mideast.

importance. The Carter administration last fall endorsed a five-year agreement to allow the United States continued use of two military bases in the Philippines in return for $1 billion.

Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos, who declared martial law in September 1972 because of widespread Moslem and communist separatist movements, has announced a series of reforms he says will ease human rights violations.

And South Korea, considered strategically important by U.S. military planners, has continued to receive U.S. military aid despite what congressional critics call the repressive policies of President Park Chung Hee. Nicaragua is not the only country that will receive no military assistance in the 1979 budget, the first to be formulated under the 1976 law.

Congress has barred Argentina and Chile from receiving military aid. Uruguay, El Salvador and Guatemala decided they could do without U.S. military assistance after Carter made an issue of human rights last year.

Union Pension Fund Again Suit-Basis

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Labor Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Labor Department is suing Teamsters President Frank E. Fitzsimmons and 15 other former trustees of a scandal-ridden union pension fund to recover millions of dollars in allegedly illegal loans, government sources say.
Labor Secretary Ray Marshall called a midmorning news conference to announce the suit, due to be filed today in U.S. District Court in Chicago.

The ex-trustees of the Teamsters' Chicago-based $1.4 billion Central States Pension Fund allegedly made loans that were improper or illegal under the 1974 federal pension reform law.

"We really don't know the true extent of the losses and probably will never know, but it involved tens of millions in loans," said one Labor Department source.
The defendants, in addition to Fitzsimmons, include William Presser of Cleveland and his son, Jackie, 51, who is among those frequently mentioned to succeed the 69-year-old Fitzsimmons as head of the nation's biggest union.

The others include trucking industry executives and union officials, all of whom had served as Central States trustees before resigning in 1976 and 1977 under the pressure of threatened government action against them.

For years, reports in the press and elsewhere have alleged that the giant pension fund, which covers 450,000 Teamsters, has made loans to businesses to benefit the trustees as well as to organized crime figures.

The reports were partly responsible for the Labor Department launching the investigation in 1975 that forced the removal of the trustees, book-keeping reforms and the turning over of its assets last year to outside professional managers.

After winning those concessions, the government, in hopes of recovering money allegedly lost through such loans, focused its investigation on any improper or "imprudent" actions by the ex-trustees themselves.

Under the federal pension law, trustees can be held personally liable for losses a pension fund incurs as a result of wrongdoing or imprudent loans.

In testimony last July before a Senate subcommittee, Labor Department officials told of millions of dollars in questionable loans, including a $4 million loan to the owners of the Aladdin Hotel in Las Vegas that was secured in part by gambling "chits" or notes valued at $9 million.

The Labor Department suit seeks only the return of the money allegedly spent illegally. Any federal criminal action against the fund's former trustees would have to be sought by the Justice Department.

Anti-Washington Aura Strong

By JONATHAN WOLMAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —
Frank Keefe, arriving late to a workshop at the White House Conference on Balanced Growth, was buttonholed by a man from the Brookings Institution who seemed a little anxious.
"Thank God you're here," said the Brookings man. "They were about to vote to abolish the federal government."

"They" didn't, reports Keefe, but the incident is indicative of the anti-Washington atmosphere that is unfolding from the 500 delegates attending this week's conference.
"Uncle Sam is taking it on the chin," said a conference organizer.

The headlines in the conference have gone to the speeches taking place in a big auditorium, but the mood is being set in dozens of workshops designed to thrash out the government's role in charting the nation's economic future.
Most of the politicians, labor leaders, business officials and community activists want more federal aid in their principal areas of interest, but they say they resent the strings attached and the burdensome paperwork requirements.

Keefe, Massachusetts' planning director, and other unabashed supporters of the federal branch say they have been outnumbered in the great debate over Washington's worth.
In Workshop V, section C, 20 delegates introduced themselves and gave their thoughts. Most were critical.
Dan Malone, a University of Texas student and one of the conference's youngest delegates, said he is certain of the need for economic planning, then added "but I'm suspicious of any centralized planning from Washington."
Leslie Gates, head of Gates Engineering in Beckley, W.Va., said the small businessman "has neither the sophisticated staff nor the funds to deal with federal regulations."

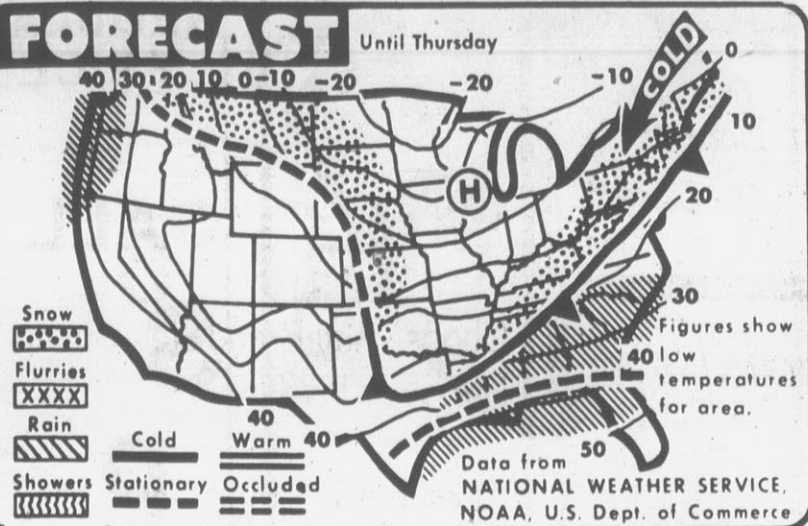

North Carolina state Sen. William Prichard of Durham, although believing government "should have a role in determining the kind of quality of growth we will have," suggested Washington try not to dominate the debate.
Frank Benjamin, an official of the New York-based Allied Stores, said simply, "The government that is closest to the people serves the people best."
It was left to Ruth Neff and Bethlyn McCloskey to fight the good fight for Washington.
Ms. Neff, of the Tennessee Environmental Council, took up the case for one of government's classic bad guys, telling her workshop colleagues, "We've got to quit picking on the EPA."
The Environmental Protection Agency has been taking it on the chin since the conference opened Sunday night, but Ms. Neff firmly defended the agency's vehemence in enforcing environmental legislation.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Rain is forecast today for the Southeast. Snow is expected from the northern Plains to Oklahoma and from the upper Mississippi Valley to the Northeast. Rain is due for the northern Pacific coast. Most areas are expected to be cold. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
Another winter storm watch has been issued for North Carolina, with a cold front moving into the state from the northwest and low pressure moving northeast out of the Gulf of Mexico — the same combination that brought last week's ravaging winds.
A mixture of winter weather is expected through Thursday, with snow beginning late today across the mountains, continuing tonight, and tapering off to flurries Thursday.

East of the mountains there was a good chance of snow beginning tonight, changing to rain along the coast and in the southeast portion of the state. The snow may become mixed with sleet and freezing rain across the northern coastal plain and Piedmont Thursday.
The extended outlook calls for cold temperatures and gray skies continuing on through the weekend.
Some light snow fell across the mountains Tuesday, adding another inch to Boone's mantle. Meanwhile, temperatures varied widely from a high of 17 at Boone to 47 at Wilmington.

Elsewhere, highs for the day generally were in the 30s to low 40s. Low readings this morning included 12 at Asheville and Greensboro, 13 at Raleigh, 15 at Hickory, 17 at Rocky Mount and 19 at Fayetteville and Elizabeth City. Other low readings were generally in the low 20s.

New Funeral Home Opens

WINTERVILLE — Mitchell's Funeral Home opened at 603 N. Mills Street here yesterday.
The new funeral home is owned and operated by W. H. Mitchell, who also operates a funeral home in La Grange.
He said the new facility, which is located adjacent to Highway 11, has a chapel with a seating capacity of 310 and numerous other rooms to serve the families of the deceased. He said burial insurance is offered to anyone from birth to 90, without physical examination.
Mitchell's specializes in out-of-town funerals, he said, and will go anywhere to serve a bereaved family. An open house and dedication will be held in April.
Phone numbers for the business are 756-3492 or 756-3493.

DECORATED — Pierre Salinger, former press secretary to John F. Kennedy was decorated Tuesday with the French Legion of Honor by Foreign Minister Louis de Guiringaud. Salinger, who lives in Paris, is a correspondent for a French news magazine and a sort of unofficial interpreter of the U.S. lifestyle for the French people. (AP Laserphoto)

Driver Charged In Collision

Peter Stowe Hargett of 1803 Fairview Way was charged with failing to reduce his speed enough to avoid an accident following investigation of a 9:10 a.m. collision here yesterday on Greenville Boulevard, 42 feet South of the 14th Street intersection.

Police said the truck driven by Hargett collided with a car operated by Helen Bennett Llewellyn of Concord, causing an estimated $300 damage to each of the two vehicles.

Unions Ask For Election Date

LENOIR, N.C. (AP) — Six months into an effort to unionize six Broyhill furniture plants in Caldwell County, labor organizers think they've got enough support to win union elections and they have asked the National Labor Relations Board to set the dates.
"We feel it's time to move," said H.L. Thomas of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners. "We wouldn't have filed (for the elections) unless we thought we had a majority of the workers."

Broyhill, one of the nation's largest furniture manufacturers, operates 18 plants in North Carolina, with none of them unionized.

"Morale in the plants is high, and we don't think our workers will be taken in by any pie-in-the-sky false promises," said Paul Broyhill, chairman of the spring. Harold McIver, southeastern director of the Industrial Union Department, said the AFL-CIO drive wouldn't start until March and, "We can't say yet which companies will be the primary targets."

McIver said the Carpenters' union is conducting its own drive, but "I've got a lot of organizers scattered around and if they need our help, we'll sure give it to them."

The NLRB will order elections if it is convinced 30 percent of the eligible workers have signed cards supporting the union. So far, the NLRB has certified that the union has sufficient support in one factory, Broyhill's Harper plant in Lenoir.
An election date has not been set.

North Carolina is the largest furniture-making state, producing about $1.5 billion worth of furniture a year, but only a few plants in the state are organized. Overall, North Carolina has the lowest percentage of organized workers in the nation — 6.9 percent.

The state's 80,000 furniture workers average $3.88 an hour. The national manufacturing average is $5.36.
The organizing effort by the United Brotherhood of Carpenters is not connected with plans by the AFL-CIO's Industrial Union Department to launch a unionization drive in North Carolina furniture plants this

Dr. Tingelstad said "As a parent and pediatrician I am extremely interested in the intellectual and physical development of our children and youth. I believe in high quality education with a strong emphasis on the fundamental elements, namely spelling, reading and math, thereby preparing the student for survival in the world outside the classroom.
"I would encourage greater parent interest and involvement in their children's study program and school activities, and would work toward the most efficient use of our current school facilities and support the development of long-range construction programs consistent with our projected needs."

Surviving her are four sons, James Earl Staton of Colorado Springs, Colo., George Eddie Staton of the home, Levorn Staton of Lansing, Mich., and Joseph Staton of Washington, D. C.; a daughter, Mrs. Barbara Jean Williams of Baltimore, Md. and eight grandchildren.

The body will be taken from Flanagan and Hardee Funeral Home, Greenville, to Medley Chapel Church, where family visitation will be held Friday from 7 to 8 p. m.

Only One Similarity In Roof Of Minges, Hartford Center

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The roof of the Hartford (Connecticut) Civic Center Coliseum which came tumbling down two weeks ago under a heavy load of ice and snow was built on the ground and jacked into place just as the roof on Minges Coliseum on the campus of East Carolina University was almost 10 years ago.

However, that's where the similarity stops.

A partner in the firm of F. Carter Williams Architect, which designed the ECU facility, described the Minges roof as, "a truss-type roof with 16 points of support... in sort of a tick-tac-toe pattern."

Turner Williams said Minges' roof is designed to support a "live load" (rain water, snow, etc.) of 30 pounds per square foot and withstand wind pressure of 45 pounds per square foot.

The Williams firm received an American Institute of Steel Construction award for the framing design of the Minges roof.

The Hartford coliseum roof, however, was a lattice-type space frame design supported by only four concrete posts.

One of the Hartford facility designers wrote in Civil Engineering magazine in January 1974 that architects and structural engineers on the project wanted to create something daring and visually spectacular so their plans included, "a delicate roof that would appear to float high above thousands of spectators."

That "delicate roof" appeared to engineers examining the rubble after the roof collapsed January 18, to have floated 85 feet straight down, breaking into a million pieces.

That increase should translate to a shelf price hike of about two cents a gallon, although it could be more or less, depending on the competitive situation in various parts of the state.

The commission began using the pricing formula in October, bearing milk prices to dairy feed costs and federal consumer and wholesale price indexes.

Sinclair said the formula has been driven up primarily by rising feed grain and non-farm labor costs.

The price increase for April could be turned back if it drove milk prices higher than in neighboring states or if there were an oversupply of milk in April, but Sinclair said neither of those things seemed likely.

when it hit bottom.

According to The Hartford Courant, rain, sleet and snow storms in the days before the collapse had dumped the equivalent of 4.71 inches of water on the coliseum. The weight of the frozen precipitation Courant writer Toni Martin said, was about 24.34 pounds per square foot — somewhat less than the 30 pounds per square foot load the roof reportedly had been designed to withstand.

Although ECU has not had that kind of a problem with the Minges roof, there have been troubles with the coliseum top.

Vice-chancellor for business affairs Cliff Moore said the Minges roof leaks. However, Moore noted that leaks are, "characteristic of built-up roofs," and the problem is not confined to the top of Minges Coliseum. Other built-up roofs at the university also leak, he indicated.

Milk Price Rise Coming

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state Milk Commission says you can expect a milk price increase of about two cents a gallon in April, the second such price hike since November.

The increase is the result of the commission's pricing formula, geared to various economic indicators.

Neill B. Sinclair Jr., assistant executive secretary of the commission, said the farm price of milk will probably go up under the formula from $11.63 per hundred pounds to $11.78 on April 1.

That increase should translate to a shelf price hike of about two cents a gallon, although it could be more or less, depending on the competitive situation in various parts of the state.

The commission began using the pricing formula in October, bearing milk prices to dairy feed costs and federal consumer and wholesale price indexes.

Sinclair said the formula has been driven up primarily by rising feed grain and non-farm labor costs.

The price increase for April could be turned back if it drove milk prices higher than in neighboring states or if there were an oversupply of milk in April, but Sinclair said neither of those things seemed likely.

The commission could also set aside the formula and freeze the price at its present level or grant a smaller increase than the formula indicates.

Privette To Run For House Seat

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The Rev. Coy C. Privette, who ran unsuccessfully for the 1976 Republican gubernatorial nomination, filed Tuesday as a candidate for the state House.

Privette, a longtime crusader against liquor-by-the-drink and a former president of the Baptist State Convention, will run in the three-seat 33rd District, consisting of Cabarrus and Union counties.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices edged upward today, recovering from the jolt of Tuesday's dividend reduction by U.S. Steel.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 35 at 770.27 after the first half hour.

Gainers took a 4-3 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The general market suffered a brief setback Tuesday when U.S. Steel reported sharply lower fourth quarter earnings and cut its quarterly dividend from 55 to 40 cents a share.

But traders seemed to be encouraged by the market's ability to recover its balance later in the session.

Analysts said it drew support from the report by the Commerce Department Tuesday morning that the index of leading economic indicators climbed 0.7 percent in December. The index is designed to signal the likely future course of economic activity.

Few individual issues showed more than fractional price changes in early trading.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average finished with a 2.52 loss at 769.92.

But the average would have shown a very slight gain but for the drop in U.S. Steel shares, which fell 3 1/4 to 28 1/4.

Advances just slightly outnumbered declines on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 19.87 million shares against 17.40 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index was down .04 at 49.41.

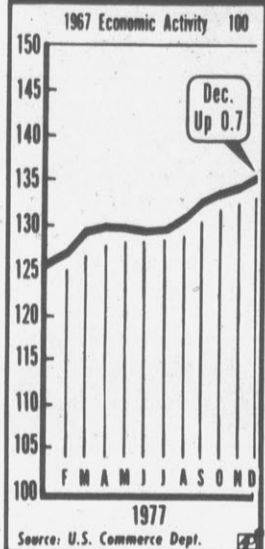

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index slipped .03 to 121.39.

Just Tired Of Running

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — "He just got tired of running," said an official at Southampton Correctional Center of an inmate who turned himself in after being at large since August 1975.

Kenneth Wayne Armstrong, 22, who had escaped with another inmate in a farm truck, walked into the prison at Capron and surrendered, officials said Tuesday.

Armstrong was serving a 15-year sentence on a 1973 robbery conviction in Richmond Circuit Court.

Assistant Superintendent Eugene Grizzard said he didn't recognize Armstrong, who wore a faint beard, moustache and new hairstyle, when he walked into the prison office at 7:55 a.m.

"He got tired of looking over his shoulder all the time" and was afraid that even a minor traffic ticket would reveal his identity, he said.

"He said he got tired of moving every six months." Armstrong, who said he was living in Richmond before surrendering, now faces escape and vehicle theft charges, Grizzard said.

A 'No Visitation' Dorm Area Okayed

ECU News Bureau
Next Fall, a portion of one dormitory at East Carolina University will be designated as a "no visitation" area. And other areas in the selected dorm will be set apart as a "quiet dorm."

This change in dormitory visitation policy, approved by the ECU board of trustees Tuesday, is to be an experimental step in response to a recently completed survey on the university's visitation policy.

Carolyn Fulghum, Dean of Women, presented the survey results in a report to the trustees, noting that it had brought a "number of complaints." Most complaints about campus security, she said, appeared to be based on "mostly rumor."

"Security is good," she said, "and as good or better than at any state-supported school." Some improvements are needed, she conceded. Joseph Calder, Director of Security, also discussed the campus security system.

Dean Fulghum said other complaints were mostly with the matter of noise in the dormitories resulting in an inability to study. She added that all ECU dormitories have designated study areas and that "noise is not necessarily a major problem."

Pilot Safe In Jet Crash

MYRTLE BEACH AIR FORCE BASE, S.C. (AP) — The pilot of an A7D fighter plane escaped injury after the one-seat aircraft developed engine problems on takeoff Tuesday and crashed at Myrtle Beach Air Force Base.

The ejection system automatically threw the pilot, Capt. Mike Chase, from the plane and opened his parachute. He landed safely before the plane crashed about 11 a.m., according to an Air Force spokesman.

The one-seat plane, used for close air support, was on a gunnery training mission and was loaded with 20-mm bullets, according to Capt. Bob Kesling, base public information officer.

After the plane caught fire, chemicals were sprayed on the wreckage to prevent the live ammunition from exploding.

Chase was "up and walking around" but was taken to the hospital as part of standard procedures, Kesling said.

An accident investigation board will try to determine the specific engine problem that caused the crash, Kesling said.

He added that the Air Force is in the process of phasing out the A7D.

Old Dominion Crushes Bucs

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Ice-cold shooting by the East Carolina Pirates, coupled with the red-hot hands of Old Dominion resulted in a 112-81 rout of the Bucs by the Monarchs last night.

The loss was not only the worst in the 14-game series with Old Dominion, it was the worst of the season for the Pirates. It also marked the sixth time this year that the Pirate defense has allowed over 100 points in a game, a new school record.

Old Dominion shot a hot 56.3 per cent in the game from the floor, including 61.0 in the first half and 52.2 in the second. They also completely dominated the backboards, snatching off 59 loose balls, while the Pirates were able to come away with just 38.

Time and time again, they were able to get loose for easy shots, as evidenced by 19 layups in the first half. Oddly enough both teams were charged with 18 turnovers.

East Carolina managed only 39.4 per cent shooting in the game, including a high of 47.2 in the second half and just 31.4 in the first.

"They took us out of the game in the first half," Pirate coach Larry Gillman said afterwards. "We were very, very lethargic in the game. It reminded me a lot of the way we played against Wilmington. We just simply were not ready to play."

Gillman added that excuses like youth, illness and the like didn't work this late in the season. "We just got outplayed."

"There was a little spurt in there where we played good defense," the coach said, "but we didn't sustain it. Overall, I just think they (Old Dominion) were sky-high after beating William & Mary on Saturday."

The coach said he was very disappointed in the performance of his team. "We just didn't get the effort we should have."

Asked about the defensive problems the team is having, Gillman said that in a fast tempo game, you would like to hold your opponent to 65-85 points. "But we haven't been doing this. One thing that is hurting us is a lack of depth. Then, when we get someone like (Bernard) Hill hurt, we've got even less to play with. When someone like (Greg) Cornelius or (Herb) Krusen is having a bad game, we can't go to the bench consistently. I thought (Kyle) Powers came in and did a good job for us, but we just don't get what we need down the line."

Gillman pondered the reason why the Pirates seem to play their best on the road. "I really can't understand it," he said. "We played well against Indiana, in the Charlotte tournament, and we had good halves against State and Duke. But here, I think we only played one good game, against the Athletics in Action. We had good halves against William & Mary and St. Peter's, but that's all."

East Carolina led only twice in the game, at 2-0 and 5-4. Oliver

Mack hit the first basket 30 seconds into the game, but Tom Conrad tied it up for the Monarchs. Then, a minute and a half off the clock saw Chris Pickett hit to put Old Dominion into the lead for the first time, 4-2. Mack hit a free throw, then Krusen scored for a 5-4 lead with 18:00 left.

Pickett scored off a steal 23 seconds later to return Old Dominion to the lead, and the Monarchs never trailed again.

They slowly built the lead up to ten, at 19-9, and half that margin until it reached 27-17.

From there, however, the Monarchs outthit the Pirates, 25-4, and charged into a 51-21 lead with 3:08 remaining in the half. After that, it was simply a question of what the final margin would be.

Old Dominion carried a 59-31 lead into intermission.

After the break, Old Dominion came back and built its lead out to 31 at 74-43 with 16:19 left on a basket by Richie Wright. But after that, the Pirates put on a rally that eventually cut the margin back to 20, 82-62 with 11:24 remaining.

Old Dominion, however, pulled away again, and put it back around the 30 mark for the rest of the half.

Wright, hitting 11 of 15 shots, led the Monarchs with 26 points, while Ronnie Valentine, with 10 of 15 field goals, had 22. Both of them have only recently returned to the team after about two week absences.

Bobby Vaughan added 14 points, while Bobby Haincock had 12 and Pickett had 11.

Both Valentine and Pickett had ten rebounds each for the Monarchs.

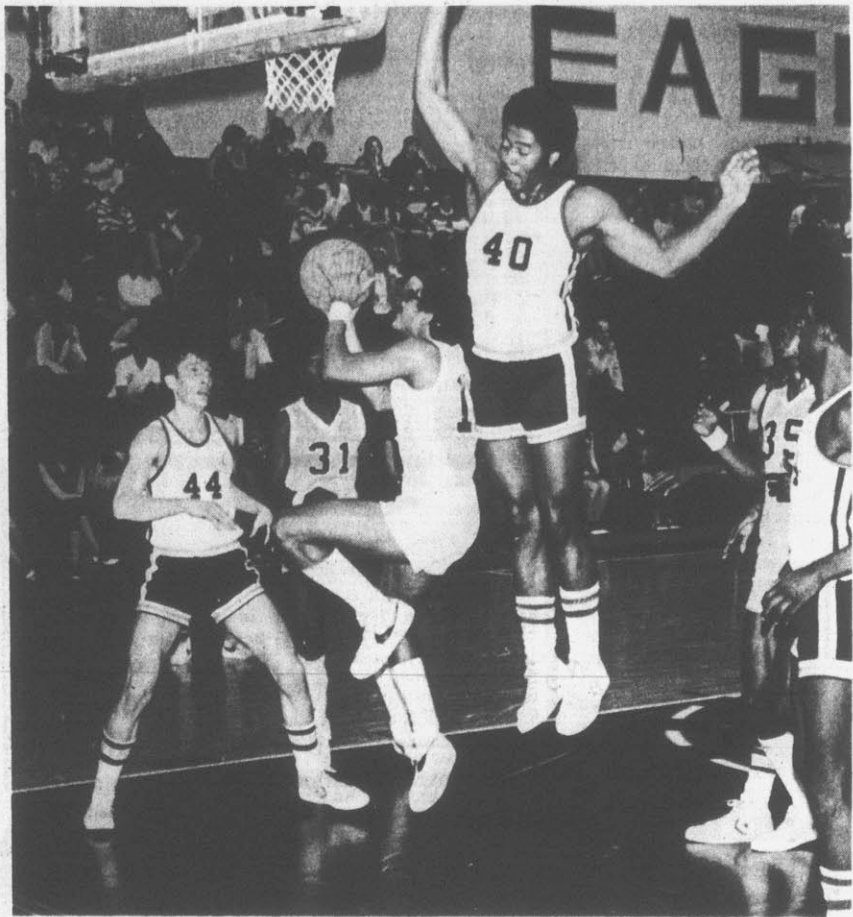

Mack led the Pirates with 22 points, while Krusen had 14. Herb Gray led the rebounding with 14.

The defeat dropped the Pirates to 4-13 on the year, while Old Dominion climbed to 8-10.

East Carolina returns to action on Saturday, hosting the University of Richmond, another former Southern Conference foe that has also fallen on hard times. Going into this week the Spiders were 3-13.

"Our heads are hanging tonight because of the way we played," Gillman said. "But now we have a few days off to regroup and come back and look like a basketball team."

Lady Pirates Roll To 83-65 Win Over Camels

BUES CREEK — East Carolina's women's basketball team jumped out to a 26-8 lead and proceeded to romp over Campbell College 83-65.

The Pirates shot 59 per cent from the field in the game and were able to clear the bench in the first half. In fact, the substitutes increased the lead on the hapless Lady Camels.

The Bucs were able to gain their first-half lead, despite an injury to ace Rosie Thompson, who broke her nose in the early going. She returned to action later in the half, however, and should be ready for Thursday night's game at UNC.

Thompson scored 13 points and Freeman 18 to pace the Lady Pirates. Freeman's output moved her to within 15 points of the all-time women's record at ECU. She trails Sheila Cotten, who scored 1,322 points.

Other outstanding individual performances in the game for East Carolina included Marsha Grevin's seven blocked shots and a five-for-five shooting streak by Kathy Suggs, who finished with 10 points.

Campbell was led by Barbara Fox with 19 points, Wanda Watkins with 11 and Janet Walker with 10.

Coach Catherine Bolton was pleased with her team's performance as ECU raised its record to 11-4. A defense designed to stop Fox held her to just two points in the first half. The Lady Bucs reverted to their regular defensive formation after intermission.

Two Pirates Among Leaders

East Carolina wrestlers D.T. Joyner and Butch Revils are both ranked among the nation's top ten in their respective weight classes in the "National Mat News Mid-Season rankings."

Joyner, who also plays defensive tackle on the Pirate football team, is ranked fifth in the nation in the heavyweight division. He has a 12-1 record this year and took first place in the Carolina Invitational earlier in the season.

Revils owns a 12-4-1 record and is ranked ninth in the nation at 177. Revils has won tournament titles in the Monarch and Wilkes opens and took second place in the Carolina Invitational. He was voted the Outstanding Wrestler in the Monarch Open and received the award for the Outstanding Freshman in the Wilkes Open.

Both Joyner and Revils are from Norview High School in Norfolk, Va., where they wrestled for Kenneth Whitely.

"I'm real pleased to see that we have two wrestlers of such outstanding caliber that are ranked nationally," Coach Bill Hill said. "Both D.T. and Butch have done an excellent job for us this season."

Jamesville Romps To Victories Over Mattamuskeet Cage Teams

SWAN QUARTER — Jamesville High School took a pair of Beaufort-Hyde-Martin Conference victories from Mattamuskeet High School last night. The Lady Bullets won their game, 60-27, while the boys recorded a 76-55 triumph.

In the boys' game, Jamesville rode out to an 18-10 lead in the first period and were not pressed for the rest of the half. They upped their lead to 34-25 by the end of the half.

Mattamuskeet put on a rally in the third period, however, outthumping the Bullets, 18-8. That pushed the Lakers into a 43-42 lead as the final quarter started. But in that period, Jamesville rushed through 34 points, while holding Mattamuskeet to just 12, to gain the victory.

Trent Ange led Jamesville with 27, while Ricky Whitehurst had 25 and Tommy DiNardo had 13. Bennett Harris had 14, while Ellis Spencer and Mike Topping each had 12 each for the Lakers.

In the girls' game, Jamesville gained an 11-5 lead in the first period, then ran it out to 28-7 by the end of the half. Jamesville kept it up in the third period, 10-8, as the score climbed to 38-15. The Lady Bullets finished off the Lady Lakers, 22-12, in the final quarter.

Joyce Manning led Jamesville with 20 points.

The Bullets travel to Bear Grass on Friday.

Tarboro Nips Williamston

TARBORO — Tarboro and Williamston split a pair of Northeastern Conference basketball games last night. The Williamston girls continued to roll along with a 55-29 win, while the Tarboro Vikes took a 66-60 win over the Tigers in their game.

Williamston's girls ran out to a 13-3 lead in the first quarter of their game, and were never in trouble. They boosted the lead to 25-12 by the end of the half.

The Tigerettes continued to pull away in the second half, holding a 41-24 lead as the final period got underway. They outthrew Tarboro, 14-5, in that quarter.

Paula Bennett led Williamston with 21 points, while JoAnna Lilley added 12.

In the boys' contest, Williamston edged out into a 12-10 lead after the first quarter's horn. But in the second, Tarboro held a 16-13 scoring edge, and carried a 26-25 lead into the dressing room.

Both teams pushed through 19 points in the third period as it remained neck-and-neck. Tarboro held a slim 45-44 lead as the final quarter began. But the Vikings outthrew Williamston, 21-16, in the stretch to pull out the win.

Bath Rallies To Top Bears

BATH — A fourth-quarter rally by Bath gave the Pirates a 55-51 victory over Bear Grass in a high school basketball game last night.

Bath led at the end of the first quarter 17-16, but the Bears grabbed the advantage in the second quarter and led 30-25 at the half. Bath cut the margin to three in the third period and outscored the Bears 14-7 in the game's final period to gain the victory.

Bear Grass sported a balanced attack in the contest as Jackie Harrison scored 14, Jesse Bullock 12, and Duane Baker and Norris Wallace 11 each. Bath's Tony Rodman led all scorers with 18, while Kevin McBride had 11 and Frank Hawkins 10.

In the girls' game, the Lady Bears stomped the Pirates by a 30-point margin 63-33.

Bear Grass led only 10-6 at the end of the first quarter, but had rallied that margin to 30-11 at the half, and increased the lead in the second half.

Patricia Taylor led all scorers with 23 points for Bear Grass, while Paula Williams added 10. Gina Allison was the only Bath player in double figures with 10.

Bath also won the junior varsity game 57-32.

The Lady Eagle scored five straight points, however, their entire output for the quarter, to take a 31-29 lead before Sheryl Taylor hit an eight-footer from the right baseline with 40 seconds on the clock to tie it at 31.

Neither team scored in the first overtime period, but Streeter's bank shot with 2:25 remaining in the second OT won it for the Rampettes. Taylor was the only player in double figures in the game with 15 for Rose, now 7-6 overall and 2-3 in Division I.

Taylor Named Comatose Wife Now A Mother

To Bank Post

R. Eugene Taylor has been named city executive for North Carolina National Bank here.

Sid R. Warner, NCNB senior vice president and Greenville Area executive, said that Taylor succeeds Jerry W. Powell, who has resigned.

Taylor, a vice president, has been a commercial loan officer in NCNB's Greensboro office since 1976.

The new executive joined the bank's Credit Department in Charlotte in 1969, later serving as a branch manager, commercial loan and marketing officer and metropolitan director. He transferred to Greensboro as city administrator in 1975 with responsibility for 17 branches there.

A former resident of West Palm Beach, Fla., Taylor is a graduate of Florida State University.

R. EUGENE TAYLOR

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — For 21-year-old Rick Goforth, the joy of being a new father is tempered by knowing that his comatose teen-age wife is still unaware she is a mother.

Instead of carefree hours with his 23-day-old daughter, Susan Michelle, Goforth spends precious moments at his wife's bedside in a hospital's intensive care unit. He is allowed to visit her twice a day for 10 minutes at a time.

Eighteen-year-old Laurie Goforth had a heart attack Dec. 18 and has not regained consciousness. She gave birth Jan. 8, but doctors said she was unaware of the event. The baby is healthy and normal.

Goforth left his job in Borger to live in a small apartment near Northwest Texas Hospital and work at an Amarillo aerosol plant. His mother-in-law is caring for the baby in Borger.

To compound his worries, Goforth learned Tuesday that the major medical insurance policy on his wife that he applied for just six days before she was stricken has been rejected.

Until this crisis, life was a joy for the high school sweethearts, married last year. The hours before the heart attack had been special. The couple had just bought a color television — their Christmas present to each other and, of course, for the expected baby.

"It had been a good day. We came home and heated up some pot pies for dinner. After we ate, Laurie and I sat on the couch and she was writing Christmas cards," recalled Goforth.

"Then, all of a sudden, Laurie screamed, 'Oh, no!' I thought at first she was kidding me, but she collapsed in my lap. I didn't know what had happened," he said.

During the 50-mile ambulance run from Borger to Amarillo, Mrs. Goforth had another attack. By the time she arrived, she had suffered severe brain damage, doctors said.

Birth contractions began Jan. 8 and 6-pound, 8-ounce Susan Michelle was born 2½ hours later.

On Dec. 12, Goforth had applied for two major medical insurance policies — one for him, the second for his wife. "The agent told me that we would be covered from the time we signed up. I got my policy back in the mail, but Laurie's never came," he said.

The American National Insurance Co. of Galveston told The Associated Press on Tuesday that it had rejected Laurie's application.

Jim Mineer, a senior vice president, said the application was rejected Jan. 26 and a letter to that effect had been mailed to Goforth, along with his initial payment.

Mineer said a letter from her family doctor showed past medical problems. He would not reveal the contents of the letter.

Mrs. Goforth's mother, Mrs. Al Butcher, said doctors had told her that her daughter had a fast heartbeat as a youngster, but she had never been treated.

Goforth said he hasn't had time to worry about the insurance.

"I just have to hope and pray that Laurie can make it. We feel that the fact that she had the baby OK was a miracle. If one miracle can happen to us, another one can, too," he said.

Probing Theft From Apartment

Chief Glenn Cannon said this morning that police are continuing their investigation into the theft of $11,955 worth of property from an apartment at 204 North Elm St. January 26.

The chief said James Stewart Mann was away from his residence for about three hours and when he returned, found someone had forced open a rear door and taken a number of items including two color television sets, stereo equipment, jewelry and cameras.

Another resident of the apartment, Stephen Grice, reported a citizens band radio and ring missing, according to Cannon.

Arrested With Marijuana

Greenville Police early Tuesday morning arrested a 20-year-old East Carolina University student on charges of possessing marijuana and assault on an officer following an incident near the intersection of Fourth and Cotanche Streets.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Melvin Barry Harmon of 316 Jones Dorm was charged with the violations about 12:40 a.m. following an earlier disturbance at a nearby nightspot.

The chief said the man allegedly assaulted an investigator and after taken into custody, officers found a quantity of marijuana in his possession.

Harmon was placed under a $1,000 bond pending hearing of the case in court.

Argentina's Police Live In Violence

EDITOR'S NOTE — Police stations in Buenos Aires, after more than a decade of terrorism, resemble the Maginot Line. Police cars are mini-armored, each manned with three, sometimes four, cops. Nevertheless, three dozen officers and more than 650 citizens were killed last year in political violence.

By WILLIAM F. NICHOLSON
Associated Press Writer
BUENOS AIRES (AP) — The 31st Precinct is hardly your neighborhood police station.

Three concrete pillboxes guard the entrance to the white two-story stucco building. Wary police sentinels with bulletproof vests and steel helmets check identities before allowing strangers to enter.

In front, signs along Cabildo Avenue caution motorists not to make sudden stops; sentries may open fire with automatic weapons.

Argentina is in a virtual state of war against the far left. Violence began here in the 1960s, with the birth of several guerrilla groups seeking to build a socialist society atop the ashes of the revolving-door governments that had failed to bring stability.

The military has been in charge of the country after toppling President Isabel Peron in a coup in March 1976. The armed forces now claim the far-left is on the defensive, its ranks nearly decimated by vigorous anti-guerrilla operations.

In 1976, 1,480 persons were reported killed in political violence, about half of them suspected leftists. The rest were security men, businessmen, politicians and those who happened to be in the wrong place when bombs exploded or shooting broke out. In 1977, 677 died in political violence.

Federal police, run by the Ministry of the Interior, control security in Buenos Aires, the capital of some 8 million people. Figures are secret, but it is reliably reported the force numbers about 30,000 — 4,500 more than in New York City, which is of comparable size.

But in New York, four policemen were killed in the line of duty in 1977, compared with 36 policemen in Buenos Aires.

Patrol methods in the cities also differ. To save money, New York is sending some police cars out with a single officer. Never fewer than three policemen ride in a Buenos Aires patrol car, often four.

Consider car 131. Officer Pasqual Papaleo, 27, is the driver. Raul Rodriguez, 28, is the car commander and Hector Gelso, 39, a noncommissioned officer, is in the back seat as "gunner." He accompanies Rodriguez outside the car to cover him in case of attack.

In addition to the patrolmen's handguns, the car is equipped with combat helmets, two 12-gauge shotguns and a 9mm submachine gun.

At least one patrol car in each of the city's 48 precincts has a small computer terminal near the dashboard. It broadcasts a continuous signal so headquarters can electronically track the car on a television display map. There is also an emergency button to signal for help.

But the main function is to give instant access to the police computer bank. A patrol car can learn in seconds if a suspicious vehicle is on the stolen list. Likewise, the name of a suspicious person can be entered. The computer immediately tells whether the person is wanted for a crime or is a suspected guerrilla.

Because of their preoccupation with terrorists, routine duties such as chasing traffic violators fall by the wayside. On the other hand, officials report that because of the warfare with terrorists, the use of handguns has dropped in crimes such as burglary and robbery.

They say everyone knows if a policeman sees someone with a gun, he might shoot first and ask questions later.

No Selectivity In Withholding

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — An Episcopalian priest from Franklin has lost his appeal for exemption from payment of the portion of his federal tax that goes for military spending.

The Rev. Howard W. Lull appeared before a federal tax judge Tuesday and said he withheld more than $8,000 in taxes in 1974 and 1975 for reasons of conscience.

The bidding:
East South West North
Pass 1 ♣ Pass 2 NT
Pass 3 ♣ Pass 4 ♣
Pass 5 ♣ Pass Pass
Pass

Opening lead: Queen of ♣.

East followed the dictum of "waste not, want not," only to learn that he had been "penny wise, pound foolish."

North-South bid expertly to their best contract. Many pairs would have reached three no trump on these cards, but five clubs is distinctly superior. After a spade lead, the no trump game is in considerable jeopardy. Five clubs, however, can survive almost any lie of the cards.

West led the queen of spades. Declarer played low from dummy and East signalled encouragement with the ten. West continued with a spade, which declarer ruffed. South led the queen of clubs, and when West followed low, he scorned the finesse in an effort to secure his contract. He rose with the ace, ruffed dummy's last spade and led another trump to draw the outstanding cards in that suit.

East shifted to a heart, but declarer did not even need the finesse. He won the ace, crossed to the ace of diamonds and then overtook the queen of diamonds with the king. On the jack-ten of diamonds declarer discarded dummy's remaining hearts, and dummy's trumps took the rest of the tricks.

East should have realized that his side did not need two spade tricks to defeat the contract. East was looking at nine cards in hearts, and declarer had to have the remaining four cards in the suit since he had opened the bidding with one heart. The king of trumps was a sure trick for the defense, and if declarer had just one spade East could guarantee the contract's defeat.

At trick one East should rise with the ace of spades, setting up the king in dummy as a trick. When declarer follows suit, East simply shifts to a heart. No matter what declarer does, West will ruff and East's trump trick will be the setting trick. Indeed, if declarer rises with the ace of hearts, West ruffs and East will later score both the king of clubs and king of hearts for down two.

Under-Use Is Secret Of Laugh-Track

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Why must TV comedies have a laugh track? George Schlatter, who has a "Laugh-In" on NBC tonight, offers this theory: The audience would feel a key ingredient is lacking.

"The laugh track is now used to such a degree that the home audience really expects it," says the bearded, quick-to-laugh producer. "Without a laugh track, they're just sitting there hanging..."

"The trick is to under-use it. Many times we even take out laughs because they go on just too long and overlap the dialogue."

Schlatter, whose L-I specials this season had studio audiences ranging from 25 to 300 fans, has more of a laugh track problem than sitcom-makers. For starters, his skits and gags aren't taped in sequence.

The work is stop-and-go. Some is outside the studio. And it's all literally pieced together in the editing room. Each show, he says, averages 1,100 tape edits, 300 film edits and 300 sound effects.

The effects, dialogue, music and laughter are taped on separate tracks, then mixed together in the show we see. The laugh track uses chorlines from audiences actually present at various tapings.

But canned ho-hos also back scenes unattended by the public, like a skit filmed in beautiful downtown Burbank. It's a major task to avoid any hint of the laughter, like the show, comes in bits and pieces.

The "Laugh-In" laugh-meister, whom Schlatter considers a virtuoso, is John Pratt, a lean, soft-spoken veteran of 35 years in sound, 16 of them as one of Hollywood's handful of laugh track experts.

Pratt estimates that his company currently handles laugh track for 20 shows a week, most of them situation comedies.

He declines to name them, saying — with a chuckle — "it's like plastic surgery. It's not the doctor's place to say who got the nose job." But he says there's a misconception about what he does.

"Eighty-five per cent of the work we do now is shot in front of an audience. We re-insert their own material," he said, referring to laughter of an audience present during a show's taping.

"What we're doing is not adding laughs, but blending edits." By this he meant avoiding an abrupt halt of laughter — or the abrupt start of it — in scenes edited after taping ends.

On occasion, as when the audience has left but the producer needs to re-shoot a scene, Pratt will add some ho-hos from his stock of cassettes containing 1,200 laughs of varied length and intensity.

But, like Schlatter, he feels that when using either imported or domestic studio laughter "less is best."

An Unexpected Find In Raid

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — New Hanover County authorities Tuesday found an unexpected bonanza in a car seized during a weekend drug raid — $50,000 in cash.

About three quarters of a pound of marijuana was found in the car after the raid early Sunday. The money was found on the basis of new information Tuesday.

The money was found in a paper bag filled with fruit. There were four arrests.

Majestic Summit View Shows Pollution's Impact

By BILL MARTIN
Associated Press Writer

MOUNT DIABLO, Calif. (AP) — If mountains had memories,

3,849-foot Mount Diablo could be forgiven for waxing nostalgic over the good old days.

The peak east of San Francisco — which some say offers a panorama surpassed only by Africa's 19,000-foot Mount Kilimanjaro — has seen better times.

Once a prestigious mecca for 19th-century tourists, the mountain and its spectacular view are largely unknown outside Northern California.

But the view — a majestic tribute to nature's whim in plunking a tall mountain in the midst of rolling foothills — is often hampered by the leavings of civilization.

The peak has begun the long road to recovery after a devastating fire which blackened more than 6,000 acres over a three-day period last August. It will take decades for growth resembling that lost to the flames to return.

A trip to the summit can be awe-inspiring, but visitors aware of the environment can be saddened by thoughts of what used to be.

While landmarks such as the Golden Gate Bridge are easily visible, visitors must look down also on urban sprawl touching the foot of the mountain. The view is often obscured by a layer of smog.

"There is some conjecture about whether we ever again will have the crystal clear days that have been written about historically," says Bert Bogardus, a ranger at Mt. Diablo State Park.

"There are days when you can see the thick, brown air below and the clear blue sky above. Some of the surrounding hills look like islands sticking up through the brown," he said.

But those who have been away from the peak for some time are most shocked by the bedroom communities spilling across Diablo Valley.

Despite the blights of smog and tract homes, the Golden Gate Bridge and San Francisco, 31 miles away, are easily seen across a ridge of smaller mountains. On rare days the Farallon Islands, 30 miles off the coast, are visible to the naked eye.

Under perfect conditions, Half Dome, looming over Yosemite Valley 135 miles away, can be picked out of the High Sierra with binoculars.

In fact, some 40,000 square miles in 35 of California's 58 counties can be seen from the summit, reached via a 102-turn road snaking up the 4.5 miles from park headquarters.

"There are three things that make for the best visibility," explains Bogardus. "Cold weather, brisk, but not too brisk winds and a little preceding rain."

Spectacular sunsets are a daily event, although the sun rises tends to be obscured by the perpetual haze over the San Joaquin Valley.

Northward snake the tentacles of the Sacramento River. To the southwest, the peninsula below San Francisco is identifiable by thick brown fog hugged by a pair of small mountain ranges.

The most spectacular view is due west, where San Francisco skyscrapers and the landmark Golden Gate Bridge front the Pacific, rendered a shiny blue by the sun.

In the morning silence, animals rustle through bushes and birds shake the shrubs. Far overhead, a jet appears to coast through the sharp blue sky, its intrusion softened by the beauty all around.

PANORAMA—From the top of Mount Diablo, looking west, Bay Bridge and San Francisco are visible through the smog. In the foreground are communities of Alamo, nearest camera, and Moraga.

Counties Share In Family Assistance

Wilson and Greene Counties have a joint program for assisting the families of young mentally and/or physically disabled children.

The Adult-Infant-Child (AIM) Multidisciplinary Training Program is a home-based program serving Wilson and Greene County children from birth to three years old. These are children who were first identified as high risk infants. A therapist is assigned to a family and visits are made to the home weekly. Counseling, prescriptive programs of language stimulation, gross and fine motor skills, cognitive development, social skills, and training in self-help skills and behavior management are provided, based on individual needs. As children progress to higher ability levels, appropriate referrals are made and placement secured.

The aim of the program is to train parents to be their child's teacher and deal with his or her special needs, and to assist the child in developing to his fullest potential. Anyone aware of persons in Greene or Wilson Counties needing this service is asked to contact the AIM Program, 753-2154, or the Mental Health Center for more information.

The director of the program is to be Verell Small. The therapist is Beverly Burnette. The secretary is Susan Nichols.

The program is funded by and under the auspices of the Wilson-Greene Mental Health and Mental Retardation Center, with the base office located in Walstonburg.

Says Job Denied

On Two Counts

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Carolyn Pettigrew, 21, has filed a discrimination complaint against the Wake County Emergency Medical Service, claiming she was denied a job because she is a short person and a woman.

Miss Pettigrew, 4-foot-9 and 103 pounds, contends she is trained as an ambulance attendant and has experience.

County officials say her size disqualified her because she might not be able to handle heavy patients. The complaint was filed before the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

'Pumping Iron' Star Sets Sights On Acting Roles

By SUSAN GARLAND
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Arnold Schwarzenegger refused to take off his shirt for a picture. He's given up the nearly nude poses under bright lights, the trophies and the daily eight-hour workouts to make sure every muscle bulges. Schwarzenegger was acclaimed the best built man in the world — a Mr. Universe several times — to the applause and gasps of thousands who watched him flex his 22-inch biceps. But he has an explanation for the change. "I'm an author," he said in an interview during a tour of 26 cities in the United States and three countries to promote his book, "Arnold: The Education of a Body Builder."

Schwarzenegger — also an actor, businessman, lecturer and sports commentator — no longer feels he has to prove he's the champion muscle man.

"This book is a promotional idea for weight training, to get people into physical training, trimming down. It has nothing to do with flexing," he said.

"Two years ago I retired from competition. I got the satisfaction I wanted. It was a means to an end. It made me a lot of money. It got me into films, writing books. It gave me the exposure and a chance to meet great people.

"My philosophy is to achieve things — to live richly, to live fully. And body building was my vehicle. Everyone uses a vehicle."

Schwarzenegger fell in love with body building when he was 15 and living with his parents in Graz, Austria, although he's not sure why, any more than other people know why they choose their professions.

He said it wasn't to be sexy, from vanity, because he was a sickly child and teen-ager, or to prove to other kids he was a hotshot.

Schwarzenegger wanted to achieve something, to be the best, to have attention, "to know that nobody is better than you are."

"It didn't matter if it was body building. I wanted to be a champion and I wanted the challenge it takes to become one and the self confidence you gain," he said.

"I was never a delicate thinking person. I was more rough cut. That's what I wanted my body to be. I'm better at making decisions than dealing with details. I don't like little things, little cars, little homes."

So for years, he stood the laughs from friends who thought he was crazy and from high school girls who refused his dates. Now he has fame and a bankroll that nobody can laugh at.

Schwarzenegger, who starred in "Pumping Iron" and "Stay Hungry," says he does not get upset when he hears people say body builders are vain or homosexual.

"None of the stereotypes upset me at all," he said. "I cannot be mad. These people are narrow minded and stupid. I have to laugh about it. When I ask them why they think body builders are gay or narcissistic, no one can come up with any reason. "People off the street are weight training. Where does it say you have to be homosexual?"

"The only reason body builders stand in front of the mirror is to get instant feedback. If the standard of body building is symmetry and the size of the muscle, this is what you have to do. "If you read something you write over and over to make sure it's just the way you want, does that mean you are narcissistic?"

"There are always people saying you shouldn't deal with bodies but with the soul. For hundreds of years, people were told not to deal with their bodies. But interest in the body is coming back and I'm trying to raise people's consciousness."

Schwarzenegger says his book, a combination autobiography and description of exercises, is in part intended to raise consciousness.

"It's meant for general training. Everyone could read it a little bit," he said.

"I wanted to make people understand the stereotypes have no grounds. Weight training is becoming popular. Insurance companies and fire departments are even setting aside rooms with weights."

"It's beginning to be very fashionable. It can even be a social event. Some want to do it to be sexy, or for the sport of it. Or a salesman may want to train so he'll look healthier."

Schwarzenegger said he is also trying to persuade the promoters of the Mr. Universe contest to change the name of the event to World Championship in Body Building.

"It's stupid. Who wants to be called Mr. Universe? It's not a beauty contest. It's now an official sport," he said.

Schwarzenegger said he has put aside body building competition forever. He works out for an hour four times a week to feel fit and to keep his legs in shape for skiing.

and body building shows, write books, continue investing in real estate and maintain his mail order business writing and selling literature for professional body builders. His greatest goal for the time being is more acting and he said Paramount has signed him to act in another film.

"I can apply the same philosophy to acting as I did to body building — having faith in myself ... You've got to know what your goal is and then discipline yourself. "I'm starting new, all over again. It's wonderful for your mind ... Life doesn't go fast enough for me. I have an enormous drive for going on."

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR AP Newsfeatures

"Photography is the intersection of science and art, and it is on this intersection that our industry must continue to be focused."

That was a key statement by Dr. Edwin H. Land, chairman of the board and director of research of Polaroid Corp. at its annual shareholders' meeting last year.

That keynote haunts and harnesses the inventive minds of scientists, engineers, chemical and optical experts under Land to come up with new or improved miracles in the instant photography field. Last April he unveiled Polavision, the magic of instant movies. This past fall and winter, the system of "immediately visible living images" was made available on the West Coast. When production permits, possibly in late spring, instant movies will be distributed to the rest of the nation.

Meanwhile, there is constant effort to improve present products so that instant photography becomes easier, quicker and better for picture takers. The latest report from Cambridge, Mass., zeroes in on present SX-70 film and modifications that are making it easier and more colorful for users.

A new SX-70 film is now being introduced by Polaroid which shows pictures in half the time and with brighter colors than before.

This new film begins to reveal an image in 30 seconds; shows sufficient detail to evaluate the picture in slightly less than a minute; and reaches full color appearance in four minutes. At present, the range from first image appearance to full color saturation goes from one minute to eight minutes.

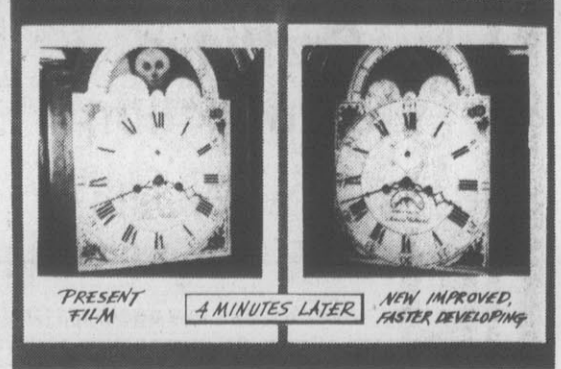

This quicker image response offers photographers greater assurance of getting the pictures they're after. If a subject's eyes are closed or the expression, pose or background is bad, a decision to snap a second shot of the same scene can be made within a minute with the new, improved film.

The changes in the SX-70 film include a new component in the positive receiving layer which produces a faster image transfer, and modifications in three of the film's basic components which result in better color saturation, especially in the greens and yellows, according to a Polaroid spokesman.

This latest time and color improvement brings to mind the revolutionary splash with which SX-70 film made its appearance five-and-a-half years ago in October 1972. It did away with the messy developer goo, the peeling away and the litter of early instant pictures. It emerged from the camera automatically as a hard, dry protected print which developed before your eyes in daylight—a miracle in itself.

Today there are seven camera models which accept SX-70 film from the top-of-the-line Alpha 1 to the simple and inexpensive OneStep camera which reduces photography to the frame-aim-and-shoot class.

But even if you don't have to focus a camera to get the subject sharp or adjust a camera for correct exposure, there are basic principles for pleasing images for every photographer: Hold the camera firmly, pressed against the face and squeeze the release button—don't jerk it!—to avoid camera movement. This must be done as a conscious effort until it becomes second nature and is then done automatically. It can make the difference between a critically sharp image and one that is blurred.

TIME TESTED. At Boston's Museum of Fine Arts, two side-by-side Polaroid cameras simultaneously shot the face of an authentic Early American Simon Willard clock. A new improved SX-70 film (at right) developed twice as fast as present film (left). It reached full color quality in just four minutes.

Move in close. Too many pictures are taken from too far away and they include a meaningless expanse of foreground or background which detracts from the picture's subject. Make it a game to see how close you can come to make a self-sufficient picture. You may be surprised at how much you can eliminate by coming in closer and still closer. However, don't commit human brutality and amputate feet at the ankle or cut off hands at the wrist.

Look at and study the background to avoid unpleasant mergers and distracting appendages to people in the foreground. The background, normally, is that part of a picture which you don't notice until you see it in the print. To get a simple or more harmonious background, you can change the camera angle or move the subject if necessary. Search for a more interesting viewpoint than from the first, obvious straight-on camera angle. Circle a scene, stoop low or step up to a higher vantage point before deciding on the best shooting angle.

Take pictures of people in natural action instead of the Wooden Indian, look-at-me-and-smile pose. You can interrupt an action, perhaps, but don't kill it entirely when someone is working, playing, relaxing, reading, painting, sewing, etc. Have a person pick up and hold an appropriate prop to keep hands meaningfully occupied.

Shoot at the peak of an action or emotion, the high point of a gesture, a swing, a dive or an expression. You must anticipate and be alert for that instant, and, if you miss it, be prepared to try again. With experience, you're more likely to hit a bull's-eye.

And that's when you bring your creative art to that intersection where photography meets the technical advances of science... an image you will cherish.

Few Effective No-Fault Laws

By CHARLES S. TAYLOR

ATLANTA (UPI) — Almost half the states have some form of no-fault automobile insurance but few are effective, according to one of the nation's top insurance executives.

Joseph F. Murphy, executive vice president of the Continental Corp., said that despite the spread of no-fault insurance to many states, the concept is not working to the benefit of policy holders or accident victims.

Murphy said the reason is "unrealistically low tort thresholds." He said this makes it possible for a deluge of court actions involving small claims that run up insurance costs. "Not many states have meaningful, effective no-fault laws," Murphy said. Of all the states with no-fault laws on the books, Michigan comes closest to having the best regulations. In that state, Murphy said, "medical expenses must be reasonably high before you can sue."

Murphy said he favors "meaningful federal no-fault standards which would be administered at the state level."

He blamed the lack of workable no-fault insurance laws on the organized resistance of lawyers, particularly those in state legislatures, whose income would be reduced by no-fault regulations that tend to eliminate or decrease court actions.

Murphy discussed no-fault laws while in Atlanta with J. Dean Cassidy, senior vice president of the Continental, to address a meeting of the Atlanta Society of Financial Analysts. Continental Corp., which last year had record revenues of $2.4 billion, is the country's fifth largest property and casualty insurer.

Cassidy described as an industry "phenom" a decline in the number of automobile accidents nationwide that started in 1976 and continued through 1977. He said the reason for the decrease was not clear, but listed as possible factors the increase in insurance deductibles, the higher costs of automobile repairs that may have encouraged better driving habits, the higher cost of gasoline and the imposition of the 55 miles per hour speed limit.

Murphy said that despite the declining number of accidents, "the cost of accidents has not declined. That's going up. The severity of claims is still increasing. The inflation of medical costs, auto crash parts and repairs goes on."

Many Firms Today Said 'Cash Rich'

INTERSTATE SECURITIES CORPORATION
 In distinct contrast to the days of the late 60's and early 70's, many corporations today are cash rich, a situation which has caused concern among other companies and the nation's economists.

Ten years ago, the fiscal strategy of many companies was to use leverage to reach the growth target. Cash was considered an idle asset. Companies with large amounts of cash on hand became takeover targets. Fiscal conservatism has once again moved to the forefront, however.

There are several reasons for the cash build-up among corporations. The economic recovery is into its third year, and as in every recovery, profitability has increased dramatically from the recession lows. Because of the uncertain course of the economy in the future - i.e., inflation, interest rates, energy, etc. - this money is not being invested.

Capital spending programs for expansion or modernization usually require the greatest amount of a corporation's cash. The severity of the 1973-74 recession has businessmen looking back at what happened to prevent it from recurring. Leverage and over-expansion hurt many companies then when interest rates and inflation rose sharply, sales and earnings fell dramatically. Conservatism prevails today - capital spending programs are being delayed or postponed until a clearer economic picture comes into view.

American corporations once used overseas territories for expansion. Now, international profitability is declining because of increased competition, and the policies of foreign governments do not always encourage American investment.

Capital spending remains modest, but internally generated cash is being used in a variety of ways. Cash dividends are on the rise. Through the first nine months of 1977, cash dividends paid by the companies in the Standard and Poor's 500 Index rose 16.6 percent. This trend is likely to continue.

Some companies are using excess cash to buy their own stock in the open market. If the shares sell for a low enough price/earnings multiple, the return on that investment can exceed the normal rates on capital expenditures.

One of the more recently visible uses for corporate cash has been to buy up other companies, turning the tables from the 60's when cash rich companies were purchased by others. Their merger wave we are still experiencing is the largest yet considering the companies and purchase prices involved. Other than having the cash available, the main reason for this binge is that it is cheaper to buy than to build from scratch.

Even after mergers, expansions, and dividend increases, some companies still have large amounts of cash on hand. Whether this is good or bad depends on the individual company and its estimated future requirements for expansion, dividends, and new products. From an economist's viewpoint, it isn't good. At this phase of the economic recovery, capital spending usually takes over from consumer spending to sustain the recovery. That has not happened so far.

The fact that corporations are not rushing out to spend their money, that they want to make careful investments, adds the potential for steady growth to our economy. The fiscal conservatism of today's American corporation provides an excellent building base for the future.

Child-Rearing

Cost Runs High

NEW YORK (UPI) — It costs about $54,000 to raise a child to the age of 18 while maintaining a moderate standard of living in the northeastern United States. This estimate by the Population Reference bureau covers only direct costs, says Hada Iris Lugo-Pagan of Slosser of Cornell University's Cooperative Extension Service. For a rural non-farm child in the same region, the cost is estimated at more than $57,000, and for a farm child, nearly $46,000.

There are four new referees in the NBA for the 1977-78 season, Bernie Fryer, Milt Cooper, Joe Crawford and Mel Whitworth.

Argentina Grain

Harvest Is Up

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Argentina's corn production for the 1976-77 harvest year reached 8.3 million tons, up 41.8 percent over the previous harvest, the Secretary of Agriculture and Livestock has reported.

The tonnage is 6.4 percent over the average harvest for the last five years. Other grain harvests, as well as grain exports, were generally higher than in 1975-76, despite a continuing two-decade decline in the area of land under cultivation.

The Agriculture Secretary attributed the growth to a steadily climbing yield per acre in most crops.

Joy And Laughter Return To Old, Grim Monument

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
WASHINGTON (UPI) — When Frankie Hewitt learned in 1965 that the Interior Department was going to renovate Ford's Theatre as a museum, she says she was horrified.

A theater should be "a place of joy and laughter" and it was unthinkable that Ford's, the site of Abraham Lincoln's assassination, become a "lifeless monument to murder, a grim reminder of one mad act."

For two years, Mrs. Hewitt spent her time commuting weekly between New York City and Washington trying to convince department officials, members of Congress, the White House and anyone else who would listen, that Ford's must be a "living memorial."

Mrs. Hewitt's vision of the theater carried the day and on Jan. 30, 1968, actress Helen Hayes stepped onto the stage of Ford's. With a national television audience looking on, she opened a new chapter in the life of America's most well known theater.

Miss Hayes, with others such as Frederic March, Henry Fonda, Harry Belafonte, all performing for free, kicked off the effort to make Ford's a truly national theater that would reflect Lincoln's love for the performing arts and what

Mrs. Hewitt called "his pervasive humanity."

This month Ford's Theatre celebrates the 10th anniversary of that experiment and Mrs. Hewitt, now executive director, says she is ready for an even bolder second decade.

In an interview, Mrs. Hewitt said that the theater would launch a $1 million fund drive among corporations, unions, foundations and individuals so that Ford's can expand its program of commissioning and staging new American dramas and make them available to wide and diverse audiences.

Mrs. Hewitt describes herself as "an incurable optimist" and the decade of Ford's productions — witnessed by some 1,500,000 patrons in the 741-seat Lincoln-era theater — reflect that optimism.

"Perhaps the most satisfying part of what I do is finding properties that present the human spirit in some kind of positive fashion," she said.

Ford's has been among the pioneers in the single-character drama, presenting James Whitmore's "Will Rogers," Hal Holbrook's "Mark Twain," Craig Stevens' "Ogden Nash" and Eileen Heckart's "Eleanor Roosevelt."

Perhaps the theater's best known play was "Godspell," a musical version of the passion of Jesus set in a city like New York. It played 18 months at Ford's.

But Mrs. Hewitt's own productions, such as the black-oriented "Don't Bother Me I Can't Cope" and "Your Arms Too Short to Box With God" also were hits as was Whitmore's "Give 'Em Hell Harry!" That evocation of Harry Truman at his peppiest had its first showing on Ford's stage.

"Now that we've found a personality," she said, "our problem is to get enough money to spend a whole year just thinking about plays and not worrying about raising funds."

She has persuaded Rosalynn Carter to be honorary chairman of the drive and Mrs. Thomas P. O'Neill, wife of the Speaker of the House, is general chairman. She has also enlisted President Carter to host a reception at the White House Jan. 29 before the taping of an anniversary celebration at the theater that will be nationally televised Feb. 2.

"Parts of the past 10 years have really been painful," she said. In the early days there was controversy, some of it with the U.S. Park Service, which maintains and operates the museum in the theater as a national historic site and some as a result of the plays chosen for production.

Those early days, between 1968 and 1970, were dedicated largely to fundraising by Mrs. Hewitt and programming was provided through contracts with independent producers — not always successfully.

"But most of our problems are solved," she added. "We're running at 76 per cent of capacity without subscriptions" and the theater ends nearly every year in the black "because I raise the money before I spend it."

In 1971, Mrs. Hewitt began producing plays, beginning with the highly successful "Don't Bother Me, I Can't Cope," which went on to a national tour, played three years on Broadway and won numerous awards. It remains her favorite show at Ford's because "it was my first."

"I decided I wanted to do something different, something new that would serve the community," she said.

And that connects with what she calls "the other most satisfying thing."

"That was to bring a wide choice of black theater to Washington. I think that was — and continues to be — one of Ford's most important accomplishments."

"And that's not just for the black audience, although we've been more successful than other Washington theaters in doing that. But it's an attempt to bring black culture to a mixed audience, a way of opening up the cultural accents of the black community to a total audience."

As just one example, Ford's was the site of the world premiere of Billy Dee Williams' portrait of Martin Luther King, Jr., "I Have a Dream."

"Black theater is a very changing thing," she said. "It is becoming a very vital part of the whole of American theater."

"And we have built a black audience that is coming not just to see black shows but other productions as well" — a situation such prestigious cultural institutions as Washington's Kennedy Center have yet to solve.

Ford's has also forged what Mrs. Hewitt calls "a vital and crucial link" between the theater world and the business community — two groups which usually mistrust one another.

Her board of directors reads like a Who's Who of the American business community and includes Willard F. Rockwell, Jr., as chairman, and C. William Verity, of Arco Steel as chairman of the board of trustees.

Only A Tip Of Iceberg

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — An international security expert says many acts of terrorism by political extremists and criminal groups never come to light.

Those that are publicized are only the tip of the iceberg, according to Donald Darling, head of an organization that bears his name. He said negotiations for ransoms are frequently kept from the police, particularly in other countries.

Terrorism in one form or another is increasing, he said, a viewpoint that bears out the forecast of the more than four-year study made by the Santa Monica "think tank," the Rand Corp., for the federal government.

"Remember one thing," Darling said, "it is the hard-nosed professional that comes to light. This is the tip of the iceberg. Many negotiations, especially for ransom, are carried on without knowledge of law enforcement officials."

"God only knows how much is paid out annually on this sort of thing. Many people feel it is more to their advantage to conceal this sort of terrorism."

Rupert Brooke Remembered By Cathleen Nesbitt

By ROBERT MUSEL
LONDON (UPI) — "Do you know anybody at this party?" asked the dazzling young man. "Not a soul," said the dazzling young lady.

But they knew each other by reputation, of course. For he was Rupert Brooke, only 23 years old but already spoken of by literary critics as a romantic poet in the line of Keats and Shelley.

And she was Cathleen Nesbitt, also 23, a rising actress whose beauty — like his — was among the adornments of their time.

There was something inevitable about their meeting, although the party was to honor a long forgotten novelist whose chief claim to fame was his scandalous elopement with someone else's wife — an act that took a certain amount of social daring in Edwardian England.

Sir Edward Marsh, a patron of the arts, invited Cathleen knowing Brooke, a legendary heartbreaker, would be present. Perhaps he thought at last the gifted Rupert would meet his match.

That was almost exactly 65 years ago. The other day Miss Nesbitt opened the door of her Kensington apartment and it was easy to see in the kind light of a winter afternoon why the young man, instantly smitten, had written to a mutual friend: "Cathleen is incredibly, devastatingly, calamitously, hearteningly, adorably beautiful."

She is in her 90th year. No one really cheats time, but the clues to the beauty that was are all there in the bright eyes, the finely boned face, the warm smile.

She is now, and has been for generations, a distinguished actress, honored in Queen Elizabeth's recent New Year's Honors list with the decoration of a Commander of the Order of the British Empire. She is the widow of a happy marriage, the doting grandmother of a grandchild, incredibly only eight years old.

"I met Rupert when I was playing Perdita in 'A Winter's Tale' at the Savoy. I was 23 and determined not to let his extravagant words get to me. People kept saying things about my looks, but you know I never liked the shape of my face. I was always seeing faces I liked better than mine, and I would have been happy to trade with the owners."

But the love letters from Rupert kept arriving and their friends were convinced they would marry.

"We didn't because we were both on the rebound from other affairs and wanted to make sure that time," she said. "I suppose we waited too long and yet, when I think of it, I don't think Rupert would have been faithful to me, or anyone. He was in love with life, restless with a zest for living that might have required the stimulation of new loves."

She confirmed all that has been said of Brooke's physical attractions. "I've never seen a grown man with such golden hair," she said, "or such deep blue eyes." A contemporary poet wrote of him:

"A young Apollo, golden-haired
Stands dreaming on the edge of strife
Magnificently unprepared
For the long littleness of life."

And that, said Miss Nesbitt, says it all. Somewhat to her surprise, so many people seem to know about her romance with Brooke that Miss Nesbitt decided to retell the story in exceedingly readable memoirs titled "A Little Love and Good Company" (Stemmer House). She never kept a diary, but an actress who actually saw Sir Henry Irving in the full flight of his stage technique, who appeared with Gerald du Maurier and many other great figures of show business in more than 200 plays need not remember everything to trap a reader.

It all began some 70 years ago in her native Belfast when she was teaching French to an elocution teacher who suggested she repay the lessons with speech training. The teacher had an amateur dramatic company and gave Miss Nesbitt a small role which led the critic of the Belfast Telegraph to write: "Miss Nesbitt should take up the stage professionally." She took the advice and has since delighted audiences in Britain, the United States and France, on the stage, in films and TV. She was Rex Harrison's mother in the original company of "My Fair Lady."

She has a fine line in self-depreciation and puts her career down to "luck." She also alleges she was short and plump — against the fervent evidence of experts. She is now gossamer slim but evidently as tough as steel.

After some 25 years, mostly spent in the United States, she returned to England at the age of 80 with the intention of retiring. But so many roles were offered she could not refuse them.

Then, early in 1977, she was asked to play in a Broadway

They Teach People To Live With Pain

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — The culprit is pain. Sharp, dull, constant or intermittent. It can steal sleep, patience, friends and jobs from its victims. Drugs can give relief, but they must be taken in ever-increasing doses.

Until recently, pain was considered a sideline of whatever else was wrong with a patient. Its treatment was secondary.

Beginning early in 1979, Boulder Memorial Hospital will operate a pain-control center to concentrate on the diagnosis and treatment of severe pain. For cases where all else fails, doctors will teach victims to live with pain without daily medication.

Patients will be based at a local hotel and bused to the hospital daily. They will enter the program with their husbands or wives, because the hospital believes that pain control must be understood by the spouse if it is to be effective.

"The person with chronic pain thinks of himself as a sick person and so does his family," explained Joyce Thomson, rehabilitation coordinator at Memorial. "The children are told, 'Don't jostle Dad.' They become little slaves for him, getting his slippers, waiting on him. He could have been a strong person in the family, but his treatment is making him weaker."

There will be no one discipline at Memorial. Surgery may help some patients. If not, the hospital will try relaxation techniques, exercises, heat, massage, ultrasound, biofeedback and transcutaneous electrical nerve stimulation, which sometimes eases pain.

The cost will be about $1,500 a week, with the typical patient spending four to six weeks and having the spouse involved at least part of the time, a spokesman said.

Then, early in 1977, she was asked to play in a Broadway revival of "The Royal Family" and while learning her lines in a borrowed New York apartment she skidded on the unfamiliar slippery parquet floor and suffered a double fracture of the pelvis.

She had to miss the play, but she was out of bed in half the time the doctors predicted. "My father also healed quickly," she said, "and he lived to be nearly 100." She was deeply disappointed at losing the chance to appear on Broadway again and is, she says, now "resting" and "waiting for someone to write a good role for an old lady." She is reluctantly accepting that her hearing is not what it was.

"I hear Sir Ralph Richardson and Sir John Gielgud perfectly when they're on stage so I thought for a while that maybe I couldn't hear the younger players because they were not speaking as precisely as we were taught to do. One hates to admit one is losing a faculty."

Rupert Brooke had thought about all that, too: "But the years that take the best away
"Give something in the end."

How Tar Heel Senators And Congressmen Voted

By ROLL CALL REPORT
WASHINGTON — Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Jan. 19-25.

HOUSE
SEARCH-AND-SEIZURE — Adopted, 215 for and 131 against, an amendment limiting the circumstances under which federal game wardens can conduct searches without warrants. It was attached to HR 2329, a bill changing certain operating procedures of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the National Marine Fisheries Service. The bill was later passed and sent to conference with the Senate.

The amendment says warrantless searches and seizures can be made only when the federal agent has "reasonable grounds" to believe the law has been broken in his "presence or view." This replaced less specific language in HR 2329.

Rep. Ted Weiss (D-N.Y.), the sponsor, said supporters of the amendment "are concerned for the civil liberties of not just hunters as hunters but of American citizens as American citizens."

Rep. Charles Wiggins (R-Calif.), an opponent, said "The consequence of this ill-conceived amendment is to expose the arresting officer unnecessarily to a risk of harm" because it would limit his ability to "pat down" a suspect for concealed weapons.

Members voting "yea" favored the stricter language.

Reps. L. H. Fountain (D-2), Stephen Neal (D-5), James Martin (R-9) and James Broyhill (R-10) voted "yea."

Reps. Ike Andrews (D-4), Richardson Preyer (D-6), Charles Rose (D-7), W. G. Hefner (D-8) and Lamar Gudger (D-11) voted "nay."

Reps. Walter Jones (D-1) and Charles Whitley (D-3) did not vote.

MONEY — Passed, 292 for and 103 against, a bill more than doubling the budget of a federal agency known as The Administrative Conference of the United States. The bill (HR 7662) gradually increases the authorization from its current $950,000 annual level to $2.3 million in fiscal 1981. It was sent to the Senate.

The mission of the 91-member conference is to monitor the administrative and regulatory processes of government in hopes of making them more efficient and fair. Its recommendations sometimes find their way into law, such as in the Consumer Products Safety Act and the Freedom of Information Act.

Rep. Carlos Moorhead (R-Calif.), a supporter, said that "if this Congress is genuinely committed to the concept of regulatory reform, it can take no more substantive action" than to approve the additional money.

Rep. Elliott Levitas (D-Ga.), an opponent, noted that notwithstanding a fulltime staff "a substantial amount" of the amount of the conference's work is contracted out to attorneys and others in the private sector.

Members voting "yea" favored more than doubling the agency's annual budget.

Whitley, Andrews, Preyer, Rose, Broyhill and Gudger voted "yea."

Jones, Fountain, Neal, Hefner and Martin voted "nay."

ENERGY — Adopted, 247 for and 158 against, the parliamentary rule under which the House will debate the Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act (HR 1614). The bill is designed to guide the Interior Department's awarding of leases to energy companies for oil and gas drilling on the vast mineral-rich Outer Continental Shelf around the U.S.

The rule was favored by the Administration and the Democratic leadership, who felt HR 1614 would enable the Interior Department to better guard against profiteering in the pricing of leases and to oversee a more orderly development of the OCS resources.

It was generally opposed by the Republican leadership and members from natural gas and oil-producing states, who argued, in part, that the Administration was trying to ramrod passage of complex legislation that needed careful deliberation to protect the interests of energy companies and the energy-consuming public.

Members voting "yea" favored adoption of the rule.

Jones, Neal, Preyer, Hefner and Gudger voted "yea."

Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Rose and Broyhill voted "nay."

Martin did not vote.

SENATE
OBSCENITY — Adopted, 49 for and 41 against, an amendment tightening the U.S. Code's definition of "obscene" material. The amendment was attached to S 1437, the proposed new U.S. criminal code. The massive bill was headed for final passage and consideration by the House.

This amendment requires that in federal obscenity prosecutions the jury be instructed that "community standards" refers to the state or local community where the material is disseminated. It replaces language in the bill allowing existing case law to define the community.

Sen. Robert Dole (R-Kansas), the sponsor, said the amendment "would allow the citizens of each town the opportunity to decide what publications they feel are obscene."

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (D-Mass.), an opponent, said that because the obscenity issue is so volatile and changing the proposed new criminal code had limited itself "to a simple restatement of case law."

Senators voting "yea" favored incorporating more restrictive obscenity language into the new criminal code.

Sens' Robert Morgan and (D) Jesse Helms (R) voted "yea."

PRE-TRIAL DETENTION — Failed, 29 for and 62 against, to table language calling for increased pre-trial detention of suspects in certain serious crimes. Left intact by this vote was an amendment increasing the number of alleged offenses for which a suspect can be denied bail.

As the U.S. criminal code is now written, a suspect can be denied bail only if the alleged crime is an airline hijacking that resulted in death. This amendment added to that list murder, rape, armed kidnapping, armed robbery and certain instances where hostages are taken. On a non-record vote, the amendment later was attached to the bill (S-1437) establishing a new criminal code (see vote above).

Sen. Robert Dole (R-Kansas), the sponsor, said that under his amendment "the vast majority of persons charged with these serious crimes would still be granted pre-trial release. This is not an effort to do away with that concept."

Sen. Edward Kennedy (D-Mass.), an opponent, said the amendment would "tamper with the basic and fundamental concept of the presumption of innocence... would change the presumption of innocence of individuals who are charged with a particular crime to create the presumption of guilt... Senators voting nay favored the Dole amendment. Helms and Morgan voted "nay."
