

Hunt Hopeful Can Work Out HEW Difficulties

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt said today he was still "very hopeful" that the state's difficulties with the Department of Health, Education and Welfare over desegregating the 16-campus University of North Carolina system can be worked out.

The governor's comments were made at a lengthy news conference after university officials vowed to press on with their present desegregation plan despite its rejection by HEW and after Hunt told HEW Secretary Joseph Califano that the state would "stick to its position" in a court fight if necessary.

Hunt told his news conference that HEW officials were in effect trying to usurp the prerogatives of the UNC board of governors in directing the university system.

Hunt said that following the HEW proposals to eliminate segregation by eliminating duplicative courses at the university might confront the state with the choice of closing the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill Law School or the North Carolina Central University Law School in Durham.

Hunt said he did not consider that a "reasonable proposal."

Reminded that HEW's action carries with it the threat of cutting off federal aid funds which amount to about $100 million a year, Hunt said:

"We will keep our universities excellent by whatever means it takes."

Hunt called for the state to build up its predominantly black universities "so that they will be attractive to white students."

"We need to upgrade, not tear down," he said.

Califano announced at a news conference Thursday that HEW had rejected the desegregation plans of North Carolina, Georgia and Virginia and was moving to block federal aid to colleges in those states unless acceptable plans are drawn within 45 days.

Hunt said Califano's announcement appeared to break with an earlier understanding.

"I told him (Califano) it was my very clear understanding that we had an agreement with them that if we committed ourselves to increase the black enrollment by 150 percent...that this would constitute a show of good faith and our plan would be accepted," Hunt said.

"We have tried our best to be reasonable," the governor said. "We will continue to be reasonable. I want our people to keep their cool...but there is a great deal at stake here. The educational decisions regarding our state and our universities must be made by the people who are the educational leaders of this state."

Dr. William Friday, president of the 16-campus system, said university officials will continue to implement the present plan while pressing their detailed objections to Califano. The present plan involves stepped up recruiting of black students for the predominantly white institutions and efforts to further desegregate and improve the programming at the traditionally black campuses.

Califano's decision jeopardizes up to $100 million in federal financial aid to North Carolina.

HEW did approve of the plan submitted for North Carolina's 57 community colleges.

Late last year, HEW agreed not to pursue further litigation over North Carolina's plan if state officials could show that good-faith efforts were being made to reach a five-year goal of increasing black enrollment by 150 percent.

Then, earlier this week, it was revealed that the latest HEW directives would require the university system to eliminate some degree programs and transfer others to the traditionally black campuses as a way of redistributing students racially.

Unemployment Rate Dips A Notch During January

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate dropped another notch in January to 6.3 percent, its lowest point in more than three years, the government said today.

Even more important than the slight improvement in the jobless picture last month was the report's confirmation that the big and surprising drop in unemployment in December, to 6.4 percent from 6.9 percent the month before, was not the fluke that some economists had feared.

The Labor Department said an additional 270,000 persons found jobs in January, raising total employment to 92.9 million. The number of unemployed persons remained at 6.2 million, about the same as in December.

The 0.1 percent drop in unemployment last month meant the Carter administration already is near the upper end of its goal to reduce the nation's jobless rate to between 6 and 6.25 percent in 1978.

However, the job picture for blacks and other minorities remained bleak in January, as the overall jobless rate for this group of workers remained at 12.7 percent and for black males and black youths, jobs became even more scarce.

The Labor Department said the jobless rate for black adult men rose to 9.8 percent in January, up from 9.1 percent in December, while the rate for black youths rose to 38.7 percent, up from 38 percent in December. There was an improvement for black adult women, whose jobless rate declined to 10.8 percent from December's 11.5 percent.

The Labor Department gave this additional breakdown on unemployment for various categories in January:

—Adult men, 4.7 percent, down from 4.6.

—Adult women, 6.1 percent, down from 6.6.

—Teenagers, 16 percent, up from 15.6.

—Whites, 5.5 percent, unchanged.

—Fulltime workers, 5.8 percent, down from 5.9.

—White collar workers, 3.6 percent, down from 4.

—Blue collar workers, 7.1 percent, down from 7.2.

The Labor Department said most of the employment gains during January were in manufacturing, up 105,000, and in wholesale and retail trade, up 95,000.

It said overall employment totals were affected by the strike in the coal mining industry, which has removed 160,000 workers from payrolls, although these persons are not counted as unemployed.

The agency said the median duration of unemployment declined to 6.6 weeks in January from 7.1 weeks in December, meaning that half of the unemployed workers had been jobless for less than 6.6 weeks and half for a longer period.

The unemployment rate in January was 1.1 percentage points lower than a year earlier and the lowest since October 1974, when it was 5.9 percent.

The Labor Department made several adjustments in its employment and unemployment statistics in January, including an expansion of its employment survey from 47,000 to a total of 56,000 households. All of the figures in the report are adjusted for seasonal variations.

Despite the surprising drop in the December jobless rate, President Carter has said the realization of his 1978 employment targets depends on whether Congress enacts the $25 billion in tax reductions he has proposed. He said the tax cuts would help create one million jobs by the end of the year.

"They certainly made a lot more specific what they would require in terms of using the transfer of academic programs to affectuate a different enrollment distribution," he said. "Our argument is that this is not a proper way to go about it. There is no such thing as a pupil assignment plan on the university level. It's a voluntary choice."

"You can't move faculty arbitrarily. They have contractual relations with the campuses where they teach...I don't believe sufficient evidence exists to support the idea that if we went to the great expense of moving degree programs horizontally, the desired effect would follow."

Hunt aide Gary Pearce said, "We're prepared to go to court and fight it...Fundamentally, it comes down to HEW saying we have to transfer programs. It means literally closing down a program on at one campus and moving it to another."

U.S. Sen. Robert Morgan issued a statement deploring the latest directives as action that "could literally tear the university system apart, without really leading to any increased opportunity for students, black or white."

"I hope the university will stand by its decision to resist the unrealistic demands HEW is making, and exhaust every remedy in the courts," he said.

City's Post-Snow Conditions 'Good'

By DEBBIE JACKSON
Reflector Staff Writer
Dripping icicles, scattered patches of ice on local roads, and melting snow today were all that was left of yesterday's storm.

Greenville traffic was busy this morning after a somewhat slow day yesterday.

Mayo Allen of the Greenville Public Works said today that streets are clear except in a few isolated instances where shade has prevented the ice from melting.

"Today's sun will take care of that, though," he added.

Mayo said that the department worked all day yesterday clearing the streets after the unexpected snowfall that occurred just before noon.

"We did more maintenance work than we had expected to, but you have to take it as it comes," he noted.

The Public Works Department had one crew out today surveying the streets for ice.

"The streets are in good shape now except for those few shady spots. We'll be on the alert, though, and if we get a call from the police department, we'll take care of it."

According to Sgt. Glenn Swanson of the N.C. Highway Patrol, state roads were in much better shape than yesterday.

"Everything's O.K. except for some problems on secondary roads in Ashe County in the western part of the state," the officer noted.

He said that so many accidents occurred locally yesterday that many of them were not reported. However, the majority of the incidents were minor, with few personal injuries incurred.

Swanson added that the slow speed of the motorists helped to prevent any major accidents.

A spokesman at the Greenville Rescue Squad said that they "had a very busy morning yesterday." At least eight to nine accidents were reported, but none were major collisions. Both rescue units were out all day and the four-wheel drive Scout was out, also.

"Everything's looking good today, though," said the spokesman.

According to Joseph H. Calder of the East Carolina University Security Department, there were no accidents on campus yesterday, but there were several cases of vandalism reported. Students were reported throwing "ice balls" at vehicles, said Calder.

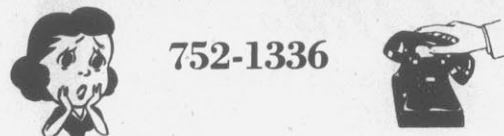

"One windshield was broken out of a car, and all of the windows on one side of a camper were broken," Calder reported.

He added that the vandals

The purchase of the newspaper, with a daily circulation of 350,000, is subject to approval by the boards of directors of both companies.

Utilities Are Still Accepting Beat-The-Peak Applications

Applications are still being accepted by the Greenville Utilities Commission for participation in the "Beat the Peak" program.

"Beat the Peak" is a load management program designed to reduce electric power costs by cutting down on peak electrical usage during the summer months.

Residential customers who have an electric water heater and central air conditioning or a heat pump are eligible to participate in the program and with a $7.50 reduction in their utility bills for the months of June through September.

Customers who volunteer for the program give permission to have special radio-controlled switches installed on their electric water heaters and central air conditioners. When a peak electrical demand period approaches, the switches will be activated by radio signal and the current to the appliances will be temporarily interrupted.

Customers may volunteer for the "Beat the Peak" program by contacting the Commission's Energy Conservation office by telephone, by mailing in an application form, or in person by visiting the energy conservation office on the third floor of the utilities building.

Reese Helms, energy conservation manager for the Commission, said the program represents a long-term commitment to attempt to reduce power costs and to minimize future rate increases.

"This is a community effort," Helms said, "and with the cooperation and support of our customers we can achieve a substantial savings in the cost of electrical power and make a positive contribution to the goal of conserving the energy necessary to supply the peak demand."

Helms said other electric systems throughout the country have, "had great success with this program, and we feel that it will benefit our community by helping to stabilize the rapidly rising cost of electrical power," to all GUC customers.

The commission hopes to have at least 2,500 volunteers signed up for the program by the summer. The long-term goal, Helms noted, is to have 15,000 or more customers participating in "Beat the Peak" over the next seven years.

Helms emphasized, however, that with 5,000 switches in operation (two switches for each of the 2,500 volunteers hoped for for the summer of 1978) large savings can be realized.

He noted that the switches would be operated for only a short period of time on only a few days during the year, with customers realizing little effect on their hot water or air conditioning, if any.

Anti-Terrorism Unit Is Decided

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The U.S. departments of State and Defense are collaborating on creation of an elite anti-terrorism unit to be formed and trained at Fort Bragg, the Fayetteville Times reported in its Friday editions.

In a copyrighted story, the Times quoted high-level sources in both departments as saying the decision to form the commando unit was made in the past year when it was discovered the United States apparently had no military unit trained to cope with terrorists.

The sources said officials were prodded to action by the successful German assault on a hijacked Lufthansa airliner in Somalia last October in which 86 hostages were rescued.

"We looked around and discovered...that we did not have that capability," the paper quoted a Defense Department source.

The Times said the new unit would be an inter-service group and would include civilian employees as well, possibly at other sites besides Fort Bragg. It is to be housed in what used to be the fort's stockade "because of the built-in security," a source told the Times.

The $1.5 million facility was built to house Vietnam-era offenders, but it averaged fewer than 15 prisoners a month last year, and base officials said last month it was being turned over to special forces and engineering units.

The Times said that State Department spokesman Hodding Carter III confirmed that an inter-agency group was being formed to deal with terrorism.

"It is a military unit responsible to the National Security Council and it works through the Department of Defense as a program of the Joint Chiefs of Staff," Carter told the Times.

Fort Bragg officials declined comment on the report.

Petition Ready Against Plant

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Two groups opposed to construction of a Carolina Power & Light Co. nuclear power plant near Raleigh say they have collected 12,000 signatures on petitions against the plant.

The groups — Kudzu Alliance and Citizens Against Shearon Harris Nuclear Plant — ask the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, the state Utilities Commission and the legislature to block the plant as unnecessary and unsafe.

The organizations contend that by encouraging conservation and the spreading demand for electricity through the day so that maximum demand is lower, CP&L could delay the need for the new plant by as much as three years.

Tiny Tim Sings At Ga. Jail

DOUGLASVILLE, Ga. (AP) — Fans of Herbert Buckingham Khaury may want to note that he made a command appearance at the Douglas County Jail.

Herbert Buckingham Khaury, to his non-fans, is falsetto singer Tiny Tim.

Tim was at the jail Thursday to post bond on a theft of services charge. But the charges were dropped for lack of evidence, a district attorney's spokesman said.

William Sorrows, former road manager for the singer, had filed the charge, which apparently grew from a dispute between Tim and Sorrows over a performance, the spokesman said.

After the hearing, Tim sang a couple of numbers for the deputies and left.

Suing Over Search In Raid

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Game Station, a center for pinballs and other coin-operated games, is suing the city of Winston-Salem and two police officers for nearly $4.5 million.

Owners of the business contend five woman customers were stripped and searched during an illegal search which police said was a drug raid. The suit claims the search warrant used in the raid was granted on the basis of inadequate information.

Industrial Safety Topic

"Industrial Safety" was the topic of a presentation by Melvin Moore, vice-president of Karastan Spinning, a division of Fieldcrest Mills, at a luncheon held Thursday at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

Moore stressed the importance of safety to industry of any size, and called attention to frequent violations of safety rules at many plants in the U.S. "This disregard of safety regulations is a problem of attitude in most cases," Moore said, "and can only be changed through effective management and appropriate education and training of all personnel."

In his talk, Moore also touched on relationships between profits and safety, attainable goals, accident costs in time and money lost and the role of the Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA).

Valentine's Day Special Treat: Sherry Punch

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer
The advent of Valentine's Day, which floods the mails each year with flower-fashioned cards and heart-shaped candy boxes, calls to mind the history of this sentimental occasion. To go back a little, the historic feast of Saint Valentine was once enjoyed in many lands to commemorate two churchmen of that same name, and it was a grim theme for what has become such a pleasant occasion. According to legend, one was a Roman priest who suffered martyrdom during the reign of Emperor Claudius and the other a Bishop of Terni near Rome who was also martyred.

These somber origins were transformed over the centuries by Christians throughout Europe, and later in the New World.

In Britain, children sing special songs and receive gifts of fruit or candy while their mothers bake special buns containing caraway seeds, raisins and currants. In Italy, many people serve up a Valentine's Day feast on Feb. 14. In America, as in other lands, sweethearts exchange cards and gifts.

In Spain, the day has become a specially festive one. The hosts serve not only food but also sherry, the famed wine of that nation. And since sherry ranges from pale dry fino to oloroso, which is darker and considerably sweeter, many Spanish homes start off the feast with a dry aperitif, go on to a medium-sweet sherry with the tapas — Spanish hors d'oeuvre — and have a full-bodied, creamy dark oloroso, with dessert. Today, a popular way to toast this day, both in Spain and this country, is with a Sherry Sweetheart Punch served well chilled. It is delicious with the Spanish tapas, which come in a dazzling variety. They include smoked salmon bits on toast, caviar on a dollop of sour cream atop a cracker, rolled water-thin bits of roast beef, chilled shellfish, tiny meatballs and, of course, the famous Spanish olives.

Here's a recipe for Sweetheart Punch, which can be stored in the refrigerator if you don't finish it in one evening.

Women Practice Ancient Craft In Carpet Factory

By DOUGLAS STANGLIN
ASHKABAD, Turkmenia, U.S.S.R. (UPI) — Oguljanhan Aramovi is only 22 years old but her fingers fly across her carpet loom with the feel for an art that began before her people were even a nation.

Oguljanhan, a dark-haired, dark-eyed Turkmenian, is one of 5,000 women weaving the intricate Bukhara carpets, tying as many as one million knots of wool yarn per square yard by hand.

The multicolored carpets, woven from dyed wool, are a major export for the hot, desert region of Turkmenia, a sparsely populated Soviet republic along the Iran and Afghanistan border.

Oguljanhan, like most of the women in the Order of Lenin Experimental Carpet Factory, still wears her native Turkmenian dress of swirling red, blue and yellow.

That colorful Turkmenian heritage is reflected in the carpet, which uses the symbols of the ancient Turkmenian tribes, like the Tekhi.

But carpetmaking, although still done by hand in Turkmenia, has undergone the changes that swept across most Soviet institutions after the 1917 revolution.

Since 1926, the wooden looms have been set up vertically, eliminating the backbreaking work over a horizontal loom.

In Ashkabad, the capital of Turkmenia, there are 10 factories turning out 104,000 square yards of carpet a year.

Oguljanhan's factory employs 500 women.

"Men don't have the patience to tie knots," said carpet designer Aziz Mahmudovich Bagirov, who has worked in the trade for 46 years.

A standard seven-square meter carpet (8.3 square yards) takes two women two months to complete.

In the Soviet Union, it sells for about $1,200 and as much as $2,400 abroad. Eighty percent of the carpets are exported.

Factory officials say the average wage per worker is $187 per month although they get a 50 percent bonus if they complete their work ahead of schedule.

CHS Names New Employee

The Children's Home Society of North Carolina has employed Mrs. Rebecca Whitenack as assistant director of professional services, a new position on the agency's statewide administrative staff.

Mrs. Whitenack, a graduate of Flora McDonald College, earned her Masters of Social Work from the University of Tennessee in 1957. ## Cooking Is Fun

SNACKTIME FARE
Peanut Bars Beverage
ALICE PETERSEN'S PEANUT BARS

The former food editor of The New York News once sent us this recipe on a Christmas card.

1/2 cup butter
2 cups brown sugar, packed
2 eggs, well beaten
1/4 cups sifted flour
1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1 cup Spanish peanuts

In a heavy saucepan melt the butter; stir in the sugar well. Off heat, stir in the eggs, flour, baking powder and peanuts. Turn into a greased and floured 15 by 10 by 1-inch jellyroll pan. Bake in a 325-degree oven for about 20 minutes. Cut into bars while still warm.

Many workers weave at home, either for the factory or to make carpets for sale at private bazaars.

Despite the relatively low pay for factory work and the high sales price, factory officials claim there is little advantage for the weavers to set up private production.

They say that supplies, which are government controlled, are difficult to obtain privately and that persons working on their own also must contend with equipment and preparation of material.

So carpetmaking has become a trade, rather than a community activity by the nomadic tribes that used to wander this arid region.

Dozens of women work in a room filled with as many as 25 looms in an environment more like a school room.

Many of the workers are in their early 20s. Their looms are decorated like high school lockers, with pictures of film stars and ice skaters pasted along the side. One loom featured a magazine cutout of Sophia Loren.

Carpet making is no longer an art handed down from generation to generation.

Oguljanhan learned her trade at the factory, like the 70 carpet makers trained by them each year.

Factory directors frown on the use of machines, which they say are unable to draw the knots tight enough for long wear.

The hand tying technique is the same as that used in Persian rugs, although the factory officials say Turkmen — or Bukhara rugs as they are also called — are more durable since they are made of pure wool instead of wool and cotton.

New Cookie Collection Is 'Delectable'

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
That Maida Heatter has done it again. Several years ago, "Maida Heatter's Book of Great Desserts" (Knopf) was published to acclaim. Now, just out, is "Maida Heatter's Book of Great Cookies" (Knopf) and as delectable a collection as you would expect from her. Since the 1930s more than a dozen cookie cookbooks have appeared, but we put our trust in Maida's. That's because she has great taste and is painstaking in giving directions.

Maida's new book runs the gamut — recipes for drop, bar, icebox, rolled and hand-formed cookies. In addition there's a chapter called 'Et Cetera' that offers sought-after rules for such sweets as macaroons, tartlets, fan-shaped wafers, fried twists, nut rusks. Because Maida dearly loves chocolate, there are plenty of recipes — we counted 30 — using that flavor.

Out of all these riches we chose to bake Honey Graham Crackers. It's a copycat recipe because as Maida says, "These are almost like the store-bought ones — plain, dry, crunchy squares." Maida's daughter Toni Evans, whose drawings illustrate the cookie book, found the formula. It was on a mimeographed page of recipes contributed by residents of Aspen, Colo. Toni picked the page up at an Aspen street fair and sent it to her mother. Maida went on from there, giving directions that work like a charm.

HONEY GRAHAM CRACKERS
(Adapted from "Maida Heatter's Book of Great Cookies.")

- 1 cup sifted all-purpose white flour
- 2 cups fine whole wheat flour, fork-stir well to aerate before measuring
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon baking soda
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/4 pound (1 stick) butter
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1/2 cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
- 1/4 cup honey
- 1/2 cup milk

Stir together the flours, leavenings, salt and cinnamon. In the large bowl of an electric mixer beat together well the butter, vanilla, brown sugar and honey. On low speed beat in the flour mixture in 3 additions, alternately with the milk, just until smooth each time. If not completely smooth, turn out onto a smooth surface and knead briefly with the heel of your hand. Form into an even 8x11 rectangle. Wrap tightly with plastic film and chill 2 to 3 hours or overnight. Quarter the dough and work with one portion at a time; keep remainder chilled. On a prepared pastry cloth, with a prepared stockinet-covered rolling pin, roll out portion to a 15 and 5-inch rectangle. Cut into six 5 by 2 1/2-inch rectangles. Draw the back of a knife across the center of each to mark (not cut) into two 2 1/2-inch squares. Place 1 inch apart on ungreased cookie sheets. With a fork prick at 1-inch intervals in even rows. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until lightly colored — 12 to 14 minutes. Makes 2 to 2 1/2 dozen double crackers.

Husband Gives Her Too Much Silence

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I beg you to publish this because I want to know if other readers have the same problem, and most of all what they do about it.

My husband will stop speaking to me for weeks at a time, for no reason at all. Right now he's been silent for three weeks, and it usually goes on for five. Otherwise he's the greatest guy on earth. Not perfect, but great.

I have a job, so I rarely ask him for anything. He never takes me anywhere but I'm happy at home.

He suddenly takes a mind to clam up (about twice a year) and it gets very lonely. My nerves almost go to pieces before he talks again.

I think it's a childish habit his mother let him get away with when he was little. What do you think? Is there a cure?

LONELY

DEAR LONELY: I didn't need a calculator to figure out that your husband gives you the silent treatment for ten weeks out of 52, which is a lot of silence. He is punishing you, which is cruel and abusive. If you continue to put up with this kind of treatment you're asking for it. Insist that he get professional counseling. If he refuses, go alone. Abuse comes in a variety of forms. Silence can be as cruel as physical abuse. It's up to you to refuse to be on the receiving end.

DEAR ABBY: My roommate met a dude at a dance and she really dug him. (I'll call him "Worm.")

Worm gave my roommate a big rush, but she continued dating others because she thinks the way to keep a guy interested is to make him a little jealous. Worm also dates more than one girl at a time for the same reason.

One night when my roommate was busy, Worm asked me out and I went. He then asked me for another date, which I accepted because by this time I was beginning to really like him.

Then Worm dated my roommate again. I know she likes him, but so do I.

My question: Do you think Worm is dating my roommate again to make me jealous? Or is he dating ME to make her jealous?

And should I date him again if he asks me?

AIRES

DEAR AIRES: Don't date a guy if you suspect he is using you to make another girl jealous. And a girl who really digs a dude but dates others just to make HIM jealous is a bit of a worm herself (an angle worm).

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for advising parents to believe their children to be innocent until proven guilty. I wish I had read that years ago.

When my sons were younger they were accused by a neighbor of a serious misdeed. Although my sons denied it up and down, this neighbor was sure, so I punished the boys severely by not allowing them to go to the country fair. This meant a great deal to them, since we were financially unable to offer them much else in the way of entertainment.

About a week after the fair, this neighbor called to say that he was "sorry" — he had made a mistake, and my boys were not the guilty parties.

It was too late to take my heartbroken boys to the fair, but you can bet, Abby, ever since that time I have believed them to be innocent until proven guilty. And I've never regretted it, either.

Who said the teen years are the happiest? For Abby's new booklet "What Teenagers Want to Know," write Abby: 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Enclose $1 and a long, stamped (24 cents), self-addressed envelope, please.

UNC Board Deserves Support

Just when the University of North Carolina feels it has its desegregation differences settled with the Department of Health, Education and Welfare this inegmatic agency comes up with still a new set of guidelines.

It happened again this week. HEW sent out new guidelines which would require the university to eliminate programs at predominantly white campuses which are also offered at black campuses.

Later in the week HEW Secretary Joseph Califano announced partial rejection of the UNC System desegregation plan.

As usual HEW stood on shaky ground in its reasoning. HEW bases the "guidelines" on an effort to speed up desegregation, blithely ignoring the fact that North Carolina universities are more integrated than most others in the nation.

HEW also ignores the ancient principles of academic freedom by which universities have come to protect themselves from unwarranted outside interference in the teaching and research processes.

UNC President William Friday immediately said the university must stand firm in opposition to this HEW meddling.

"The university must assert its right to maintain itself through the Board of Governors," President Friday said.

The president said he had written HEW Director of the office for Civil Rights David S. Tatel that the guidelines were unacceptable and "I shall so recommend to the board."

President Friday and the board deserve the support of every North Carolinian in the effort to keep the university system from being crushed by the federal agency.

'Fireside Chat' Value Still Unproven

President Carter took to television complete with a crackling fire — in his attempts to sell the public and Congress on the Panama Canal treaty Wednesday night.

He described approval of the treaty as in the highest national interest of the United States.

It may be, but it also seems that relinquishing control of the canal is not a popular move with U. S. citizens.

It remains to be seen whether the presidential "fireside chat" will be persuasive.

THIS AFTERNOON

Avers Aid Needed

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Despite mistakes and failures of the past and the present, Luther Hodges, Jr. sees no alternative to continued governmental involvement in massive programs designed to cure social ills.

At a time when numerous experts perceive a shift in public sentiment away from governmental involvement in so many phases of the economy, the Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate says he "may not be the best economist in the world... but I'm the best you ever saw who could get elected."

To those who complain that governmental spending, taxation, payrolls, and swollen bureaucracies are much to blame for our shaky economy, Hodges replies that such contentions are "a convenient philosophical argument," but address symptoms without cutting to the heart of the matter.

Taxes have spiraled, he concedes, but, "You are getting something for your tax dollar... governmental services..."

Jobs Critical

The key issue is that a balanced federal budget, a solution to the Social Security mess, persistent unemployment, and other economic ills "can't be solved till we get people to work... and we have to involve public service employment in that... until the private economy becomes more productive."

But what of the countless examples of waste, bureaucratic siphoning of funds, trainees who train and train but seldom if ever work?

"There has been plenty of waste. But there are some which work. Not all has been totally wasted... and there is no alternative to not spending that money on a problem area," Hodges responds.

As chairman of the Manpower Development Corporation, he became convinced that "not everybody is shiftless" and that programs designed to reach out, motivate changed attitudes,

NOBLITT

Jobs are at the foundation of many social problems, Hodges believe. For example, three of every 100 young Black males are in jail. "That is an economic problem... a dramatic social problem with economic roots. They are in jail because they don't have jobs."

"Conservatives can sit around and complain about this all day, but it is not going away," he says bluntly.

Does this mean, Hodges was asked, that he sees a continuing — even growing — role for government in solving social problems.

"Yes. That is the role of government. Who else would?" he said.

Keynesian

Jobs, Hodges says, are the fundamental question in the economy, and as a U.S. Senator he could "get involved in the economic development of this state... particularly in international areas." Meanwhile, public service jobs for the hardcore Black unemployed are essential.

"The people of North Carolina are very aware of these problems and are concerned. And they know that there are no easy answers," he has found on his campaign trips.

John M. Keynes, economist and monetary expert, is the father of Keynesian Economics which, at its simplest, embraces large scale governmental involvement in economic planning and spending, monetary controls, and employment.

Are you... in light of these comments... a Keynesian? Hodges was asked flatly.

"Yes," he replied.

THE CHURCHILL PORTRAIT

It's A British Tradition

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
LONDON (AP) — So Baroness Spencer-Churchill chucked Graham Sutherland's portrait of Sir Winston into the fireplace at Chartwell. Or perhaps slashed it with the sword left in the closet from his days as First Lord of the Admiralty.

Well, why not? It was a gift from Parliament, commissioned for his 80th birthday, but they both loathed it. Sutherland, an eminent portrait artist from the tell-it-like-it-is, warts-and-all school, realistically captured the stiffness of old age so the great wartime leader came across as an arthritic, heavilylidded bullfrog in a bow tie.

"It makes me look half-witted, which I ain't," grumbled Winnie when he first saw it. Lady Clementine Spencer Churchill, who died last month, destroyed the painting while Winnie was still alive, according to the announcement of the three executors, who included Lady Soames, Churchill's daughter. The fate of the portrait, valued at $150,000, had been a matter of cocktail circuit speculation for 23 years.

Portrait artist Sutherland said the demise of his masterpiece was "without question an act of vandalism," but it should have come as no surprise. The British always have been tough on their painters.

Private Eye, the satirical press magazine, regularly ran Sutherland's portrait of the jowly, rather stout Lord Goodman as a mock pharmaceutical ad under the headline "Constipated?"

Art in England never has been revered and encouraged as in the warmer Mediterranean countries. Some blame it on the beastly British weather, the lack of decent light that accounts for the murkiness of Turner and Whistler and others of the fog-bound palette school. Others blame Henry VIII's dissolution of the monasteries, the ransacking of idolatrous images by the Puritan Parliament and the general lack of church patronage.

"I hate all Boets and Bainters," said George II, who spoke English like a German waiter in Luchow's.

Some of Britain's best Boets were bored by the world's best Bainters.

Shelley thought the genius of Michelangelo was "highly overrated. He has no temperance, no modesty, no feeling for the just boundaries of art...no sense of beauty."

Byron, who dressed like every romantic's idea of an artist, confessed he "did not think much of Murillo and Valesquez" and "was never so disgusted in my life as with Rubens and his eternal wives and infernal glares of colors."

"There are moments," allowed Oscar Wilde, "when art almost attains the dignity of manual labor."

Nudes in particular seemed to unhorse the British aesthetes.

A friend reported Wordsworth's shock at seeing the figleaf-less statues of Cupid and Psyche kissing in Christie's auction rooms: "his face reddened, he showed his teeth and then said in a loud voice, 'the Devil-vil!' Mrs. Disraeli, wife of Benjamin Disraeli, the novelist and Prime Minister, spent a weekend at a country house and told her hostess at breakfast, "I find your house is full of indecent pictures. There is the most horrible picture in our bedroom. Disraeli says it is 'Venus and Adonis.' I have been awake half the night trying to prevent his looking at it."

Critic James Agate told of the reaction of the Mayor of a Lancashire town upon being presented with a pair of unclad statues: "Art is art, and nothing can be done about it, but there is the Mayoress's decency to be considered." The unveiling of Jacob Epstein's statue "Rima" in Hyde Park proved blushes and horror. "I confess it makes me physically a little sick," said novelist John Galsworthy. "The wretched woman has two sets of breasts."

"May the devil fly with the fine arts," harrumphed Thomas Carlyle. James McNeil Whistler, the American who lived around the corner from him on the Thames embankment, cried "Listen, there never has been an artistic period, there never has been an artistic

That $1.50 Is For Real

WASHINGTON — I guess the worst thing about living in Washington is how callous a person becomes about money. This was demonstrated once again last week when President Carter's new budget was revealed.

The day the figures were announced, I ran into Doubleday at Class Reunion, a bar and restaurant.

"Did you hear that Carter's 'lean and tight' budget will be $500.2 billion?" I said.

"No kidding," said Doubleday. "I thought it would be somewhere around $505.3 billion."

ART BUCHWALD

"But that means we're going to have a $60 billion deficit."

"Well, you can't make an omelette without cracking some eggs," he replied.

"What exactly does that mean?" I wanted to know.

"Beats me, but people always say that when a new budget comes out."

"Do you realize," I said, "that in 1962 the federal budget hit $100 billion and everyone was shocked? And then it doubled in 1972 to $232 billion. Now it's gone over the half a trillion dollar mark."

"I'll admit if you call it a half-trillion it sounds bad," Doubleday said. "But why can't you say it's $500 billion like everybody else and let it go at that?"

I shrugged. "It seems like so much money."

Doubleday took a handful of peanuts. "How do you know it's a lot of money?"

"What do you mean, how do I know?"

"Have you ever seen a billion dollars?"

"No," I said. "I've never seen a billion dollars. I don't think anyone has ever seen a billion dollars."

"So how do you know if it's a lot or a little?" he asked.

River Life Is Rough

By ANDY LIPPMAN
Associated Press Writer
WARSAW, Ky. (AP) — Ordinarily, there's a lot to be said for living on the banks of the Ohio River.

Joe Robinson, a retired farmer, can sit on the bank and fish while his wife, Albertha, watches from the porch and catches a cool breeze.

But life on the Ohio has not been fun for the past week because of the largest icejam on the river oldtimers can remember.

Three miles long and up to 40 feet deep, it is pressed against the Markland Dam a few hundred yards downstream from the Robinson house.

The Robinsons had to leave for two days last week because water backing up behind the growing cake of ice threatened to flood their home. Although their house was not touched a nearby trailer park was flooded.

Then Thursday, the Robinsons' kitchen cabinets rattled from dynamite blasts as workers tried vainly to blast a channel through the ice.

"It's opened my cabinets and knocked glasses down from the shelf," said Mrs. Robinson. "Pictures have been knocked from my walls. Nobody told me this was going to happen."

The Robinsons peered from the front door of their wood-framed house at the explosives experts, who came to the door to warn them each time a new blast was about to shake their home. At each warning, the Robinsons' three grandchildren clasped their hands over their ears.

The largest of the blasts shook lamps and windows for miles around.

"This is the worst thing we've ever seen on the river," Mrs. Robinson said. "We've seen boat wrecks and floods, but nothing like this."

"Still, I guess I wouldn't

40 Years Ago Today

February 3, 1938

More than 100 checks have been received here for distribution under the unemployment compensation program. W. C. Cherry, in charge of the local office, disclosed today.

The first check delivered here was for $3.20.

Mr. Cherry declared that he expected between 400 and 500 more checks to be received here before the end of the week.

The benefit payments range in amount from 40 cents to the maximum allowed under the program, $15. The average was $3.50 each. Firemen were summoned to the building on West Third Street occupied by Drs. Skinner and Smith this morning when a blaze broke out in the basement, but the damage was declared negligible by Chief George Gardner.

The fire started in a box of kindling in the boiler room. The call, a silent alarm, came in about 10:30.

Making Mountain Of Molehill

By WALTER E. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — As an exercise in mountain-making, the case of David W. Marston is a classic.

President Carter could have cut it back to molehill size, but not without an admission he refuses to make — that his campaign promise to take politics out of the appointment of prosecutors is one he hasn't been able to keep.

Instead, Carter insists that the ouster of Republican Marston as U.S. attorney in Philadelphia is compatible with his campaign statements.

"I made a campaign commitment that any appointee to a position as U.S. attorney or a judgeship would be appointed on the basis of merit and this campaign commitment will be carried out," the president said the other day.

The commitment went beyond that. "All federal judges and prosecutors should be appointed strictly on the basis of merit, without any consideration of political aspect or influence," Carter told Democratic platform draftsmen in 1976.

There was more. Carter said the attorney general "must be removed from politics," made independent, and given a five-year term, subject to removal from office only for cause.

No more has been heard of the latter proposal. Carter has set up selection boards to recommend nominees for federal appeals courts and has encouraged the same system for the selection of district court judges who are, by long custom, recommended by their senators.

That leaves the prosecutors — U.S. attorneys — and they are still being picked the old-fashioned way. That means patronage.

There's nothing wrong with it. As a matter of fact, it generally works pretty well. No one expects a president to keep his predecessor's Cabinet. By custom, and by law, the 93 federal prosecutors are subject to the same terms of employment.

So this administration, like those before, has been replacing Republican U.S. attorneys with Democrats. Most have gone quietly although some, like Philip Van Dam of Detroit, refused to resign. The Justice Department fired him.

Marston might have been a good one to leave alone, at least for a while. He had made waves with his political corruption investigations.

Carter walked into a more serious problem when he relayed to Attorney General Griffin Bell the urging of Rep. Joshua Eilberg, D-Pa., that Marston be replaced quickly.

Carter says he did not know at the time that Eilberg was the target of an investigation.

And the whole episode was magnified because Carter had campaigned for a change in the system.

For all his insistence that the pledge is being kept, 65 of the 66 U.S. attorneys he has appointed are Democrats.

Again, that's fine. The people elected a Democratic president, and Carter noted that he had said during the campaign that when all else was equal, he would choose appointees whose philosophy meshed with his.

"The fact is at this point we have about one-third of the U.S. attorneys around the country who are Republicans," he said.

Although he didn't say so, they are left over from the previous administration — and their job security is shaky at best.

Carter said that when he took office, there were only three Democratic U.S. attorneys. He said Richard M. Nixon and Gerald R. Ford didn't go around appointing Democrats.

That's true. But neither did they say that they wouldn't make political appointments.

Marston certainly was one.

He was an aide to Sen. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., when Ford, late in his term, appointed him U.S. attorney for eastern Pennsylvania.

Ironically the whole business has put Republicans in a position to piously protest Carter's use of the system under which Marston was appointed.

The Republican National Committee has demanded a congressional investigation of what it calls an abuse of power. There weren't any complaints from that quarter when Republican were wielding the same power.

The morning after his 1972 re-election, Nixon ordered all his appointees to submit signed resignations so that he could get rid of people he wanted to replace.

The Republicans didn't demand an investigation then. Although as things turned out, they should have.

Strength For Today

THE SABBATH DAY

We enjoy one day's rest in seven because religion has established the Sabbath. Most of the people who take advantage of the opportunity for rest on this day are unaware of the fact that had it not been for the Church and its teachings, people would probably be working seven days a week.

Everybody approves of one day's rest in seven. But the Sabbath is more than a day of rest. It is intended also to be a day of worship. It is the Lord's Day. And those people who use it only for rest and recreation have disregarded one-half of the privilege which Sabbath confers upon humanity.

Rest, worship, and good works — these are the ends to which the day is divinely dedicated. To use the day for any one of these three objectives without using it also for the other two is to misuse the day. The Sabbath rest is a merciful provision, and we should enter into its privileges with gratitude.

Parish Bulletin Offers Answer To Query: Why Go To Church?

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—Why go to church? You can believe without getting up on Sunday morning. You can have faith, pray, be thankful for life without ever joining others in doing so. It's possible, in part. But is it likely?

That question was posed recently in the parish bulletin of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church in suburban Port Washington, N.Y., and it offered this answer:

"We're variable creatures, not flawless paragons. We don't hold steady by ourselves. We're influenced, helped, sustained by others, listening to them, responding, learning. It's the way we are. We're relational beings. "It's possible to think, speak, eat, laugh and play all alone, even to love in an abstract way. But it's not likely that any of these functions will thrive in isolation. Nor would they be very satisfying. We just don't work that way."

"It's a simple truism. We need each other in nearly every aspect of living. In the same way, if we want a lively, healthy faith, it's natural for it to be with others who share it."

"The church is where we stay in touch with the spiritual level of reality. To skip church is, in part, to cut ourselves off from that reality, to detach ourselves from mutual nurturing in that dimension of our lives."

"We need solitude, yes. We can pray, listen for God in private. And that's important, individually, Christian meditation has been a vital adjunct to faith long before Eastern varieties of it became a fashion in this country."

"But it's only a supplement, an enhancement to the work of the Christian movement which lives and serves through our association not only with the great 'Other' but with others like us, our neighbors. That — and something else — helps keep it all together."

"For where two or three are gathered in my name," Jesus said, "there I am in the midst of them." It's a plural operation, a joint process.

"The church, that stumbling, fallible, easily criticized, yet heroic old institution, has kept faith alive for 2,000 years. It wouldn't have happened automatically. It required a movement, a tangible, organized effort — of people. That's the church."

"It's survival has depended on them, on us, on people of countless generations, on congregations yesterday and today, here and elsewhere, on the pastors and participants, including the old codger nodding on the back row."

"He at least showed up. By his very doing so, he buttressed and reinforced the church. By getting up that Sunday morning and heading to church, he proclaimed a public message to all around — that the church is worth attention."

"And that's the word that has kept the movement going. Enough of us showing by our action that it's worth the effort."

A Lifetime To Live

To many people a lifetime is a number of days, weeks, months and years. It is the time measured from the day of our birth to the day of our death.

Isn't a lifetime more than chronological years? Isn't a lifetime really a succession of meaningful events that occur in the life of each one of us?

Regardless of the past, our age, or in whatever state we find ourselves today, at church we can find that we still have A LIFETIME TO LIVE.

want to live anywhere else. I've been in Warsaw all my life and I love the river. It's just a way of life that we love."

After two days of experimental blasting, the Army Corps of Engineers said it would give up on that approach for a while at least and revert to the more conventional method of having tow boats chip away at the icejam's upper end in hopes of opening a passage for stranded barges.

Victor Lombardo Quits The Royal Canadians

MIAMI (AP) — Victor Lombardo has left Guy Lombardo's Royal Canadians after striking a sour note with the band famed for "the sweetest music this side of heaven."

Victor, who closely resembles his late brother, gave television viewers across the nation a twinge of nostalgia last New Year's Eve when he hosted the Royal Canadians' annual appearance at New York's Waldorf Astoria hotel.

For many years Guy had emceed the performance, capped by a mellow rendition of "Auld Lang Syne." After he died in Houston last October at age 75, Victor, who had left the band in 1971, was brought back to front it.

He said he decided to leave the Royal Canadians again last week because of "little differences" with his brother, Lebert Lombardo.

"I'm much happier with my own band," Victor said Thursday in an interview.

But Lebert says the differences weren't little at all and that Victor, 66, was ousted for trying to alter the band's traditional sound.

"He wanted to make changes," said the 72-year-old Lebert, one of the original partners in the band with brothers Guy and Carmen. Carmen died in 1971.

"I want to run the band like Guy. I don't want to change one thing," Lebert said by telephone from West Palm Beach, Fla., where the band was performing.

"He (Victor) wanted to fire four guys. He had no authority to do that."

So now Victor says he'll soon be on the band circuit with his own group and Lebert vows the Royal Canadians will be the same as always.

"It's not going to change two inches," Lebert said. "Our fans are very happy."

The finesse is a peculiar animal. Sometimes you must spurn it when you seem to need it. On other occasions, you must take it when it appears to be superfluous.

North-South reached their optimum spot in quick time. Since his partner was a passed hand, South suppressed any thought he might have had for slam after North jumped in diamonds, and simply settled for what looked like a sure thing.

West led the queen of spades, which held the trick. Had he shifted to a heart, the contract would have been beaten unless declarer possessed ESP powers, but we can attach no blame to West for electing to continue with a spade.

Declarer ruffed and saw no problem. He drew trumps in two rounds, cashed the ace of clubs and led a club to his king. When West showed out, declarer was in trouble. In order to avoid losing a club trick, he had to ruff three clubs in dummy, but there were only two trumps on the table. In addition, the defenders were entitled to a heart trick for the third defensive trick.

Declarer was unlucky to find a 5-1 club break, but he had only himself to blame for failing to make the contract. When East follows to the second round of clubs, declarer can guarantee the contract by finessing the ten.

No, we are not result merchants. Let's assume the worst: West wins the queen of clubs and returns a heart. Declarer wins the ace of hearts, but the club suit is now established since it can break no worse than 4-2. Declarer cashes his three good clubs, discarding three hearts from dummy. Now he can ruff his heart loser on the table, and he ends up losing one spade and one club, thus making his contract.

White House Steps Into 60-Day-Old Coal Strike

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House stepped into the 60-day-old United Mine Workers strike today as President Carter asked UMW President Arnold Miller to postpone a scheduled meeting of his union's bargaining council.

Miller had called the council into session to brief it on the status of negotiations aimed at ending the walkout. But he said he was putting off the session until Saturday after receiving a call from the White House.

"President Carter asked me to postpone for one day the meeting of the council," he told reporters.
Asked why the president made the request, Miller said: "It's obvious we're trying to get a contract."

Negotiators for the union and the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, the industry's bargaining arm, were reported at one point "very close" to a settlement before recessing their talks early today.

Federal mediators had no immediate word when talks would resume.

Chief federal mediator Wayne L. Horvitz announced shortly after midnight that 14 hours of talks on Thursday had failed to produce an accord. Although he had been hopeful early in the day, he said, "We don't have an agreement tonight."

Carter has been under increasing pressure to intervene in the strike, whose effect on utilities and other coal customers is mounting as stockpiles become depleted.

But the president emphasized at a news conference earlier this week that he did not intend to invoke the strike-halting provision of the Taft-Hartley Act, which provides for an 80-day cooling off period.

The strike entered its 60th day today, making it the longest industry-wide work stoppage in UMW history. The union struck for 59 days in 1946.

Fresh concern was expressed, meanwhile, over the effect of dwindling coal supplies on electric utilities.

A council of power companies in Pittsburgh appealed to President Carter for intervention to halt the strike. Stanley G. Schaffer, chairman of the East-Central Area Reliability Council, said the group was asking Carter to take steps short of invoking the strike-halting provision of the Taft-Hartley Act. But Schaffer did not specify what action the organization wants Carter to take.

"We're going to tell him that the time we can buy, through such measures as using alternate fuels, is gone," said Schaffer.

The council includes utilities in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, Indiana, Michigan and Kentucky.

Word that Miller had summoned the council to Washington on Thursday raised optimism that negotiators might finally be close to a tentative agreement in their stormy talks. The council must approve any contract proposal before it can be submitted to the union's rank and file for ratification.

Another indication of progress came when one source close to the talks reported the two sides were "very close" to an agreement. But hopes that a tentative settlement was imminent diminished as the talks dragged on Thursday night.

"I think basically that I'd of the board membership will be determined by election. Six of the seats will be filled in the election and the remaining three seats will be filled by City Council appointments.

"I am pleased to have the opportunity to provide experience and capable leadership in determining the destiny of the children involved in the educational process," Carter commented in announcing his candidacy.

Carter, who has been a member of the board for six years, noted that many accomplishments have been made but "there are critical considerations facing the school board, including the merger, completion of the middle school, innovation in curriculum matters involving the resolution of disciplinary problems as well as alternative approaches in education."

A native of Havelock, Carter attended Queen Street High School in Beaufort and graduated from Virginia State College in Petersburg, Va.

A veteran of eight and a half years service in the Army, he attained the rank of captain and received two Bronze Star awards and three Army Commendation Medals. He served in various assignments, including Vietnam.

Carter resigned from the Army in 1971 to assume a staff position at Burroughs Wellcome Co. and he currently serves as section head of the Quality Assurance Division at BW here.

He is a member of Mt. Calvary Lodge No. 669 and also holds memberships in Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity and in RECAST, the regional organization designed to recruit students into scientific and engineering fields. Carter is a member of Cornerstone Missionary Baptist Church.

The candidate is married to the former Evelyn Jean Simpson of Greenville and they have three children.

Nicaragua City Under Attack

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Heavily armed guerrillas attacked the national guard garrison and burned the post office in the lakeside city of Granada, killing at least one person, witnesses said.

They said between 25 and 40 Sandinista National Liberation Front guerrillas held Liberation Plaza in the center of town for more than two hours during the Thursday night attack.

The raid came as leaders of the 12-day-old general strike against President Anastasio Somoza claimed the protest was gaining momentum despite a government statement that more than three-fourths of the businesses in Managua, the capital, have reopened.

While one guerrilla team gutted the Granada Post Office with gasoline bombs another attacked the national guard garrison in another section of the town, 27 miles southeast of Managua, the witnesses said.

A guard officer said there were military casualties but he refused to give details.

Mrs. Berna Locayo de Sandino, who witnessed the post office raid from her porch overlooking Liberation Plaza, said guerrillas hurled gasoline bombs into the building. The ensuing fire destroyed the inside of the building and left only the stucco still standing, said the mother of 11 children.

She said the raiders were armed with submachine guns, shotguns, rifles and a grenade launcher.

Other witnesses said the guerrillas, who drove into the plaza at about 10:30 p.m., fired shots into the air accompanied by warnings to townspeople.

In stating his reasons for filing for the board, Platania said that "Greenville City Schools are fortunate because we benefit from having East Carolina University here, producing the best qualified teachers in the state. But even with these highly qualified teachers, there is something wrong with the system when we are allowing functionally illiterate students to graduate from high school."

"Now that I am no longer teaching, I am able to become involved with the administrative aspect of the school system, and hopefully find some way to avoid producing these functionally illiterate students."

Platania graduated from East Carolina University with a bachelor's degree in biology, and teaching certificate. He is married to the former Patricia Finch of Raleigh, and they have an infant son.

The veteran of seven years on the school board said she decided to run for election because of her strong commitment to educational needs and opportunities for all the children in the city of Greenville.

"While I feel the school board has done an admirable job of providing strong leadership in the City School system, there are many things yet to be done and I would like to be a part of the decision-making process that is responsible for accomplishment of these vital needs," she said.

"One thing that I do not like is 'social promotions'. They're more a hindrance than a help to the children," Jester added.

Post-Snow...

had not been found. "There's nothing you can do about it when you've got a hundred kids out there throwing ice balls."

Classes at the university remained on schedule throughout the day yesterday. Dr. John Howell, Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs, said that night classes were also held. However, the university does not keep an actual record of attendance, such as the high schools do, and he did not know how many students were present for classes.

"Some rumors were started on campus that classes would be closed but those were not true," he added. There were no problems reported with maintenance or heating on campus.

City and county schools closed early in the afternoon yesterday following heavy snow.

Glenn Cox, superintendent of the Greenville City Schools, said that no problems were reported with the buses yesterday or today, except for one minor incident. No injuries were reported. Buses arrived on schedule this morning.

"I have had no indication of a decrease in attendance today, either," said Cox. He added that most of the city school staff reported to work yesterday, but that he did not have a report on the students' attendance for yesterday.

County School Superintendent Ott Alford said that one bus was stuck in the snow for a while yesterday afternoon, but that was the only problem noted.

"We hated to close the schools, in all honesty, but the weather reports indicated that the snow would continue — which it didn't," he added. He said that county officials rode around the the county yesterday afternoon to survey the streets.

"The unpaved roads were really no worse than they are when they're muddy," said Alford. He noted that the county buses made it in on time this morning with no problems.

Pitt Technical Institute did not close at all yesterday.

"We had slightly less than normal attendance, but we have had worse," said Dr. Edward Bright, Dean of Instruction at the school. He added that attendance during the day was worse than that at the night classes because of the snow during the morning hours. There were no accidents reported on campus and no acts of vandalism.

The bad weather did have some adverse effects on one local group — the Greenville Merchants. Yesterday was Dollar Day, an area-wide sale that local merchants had been planning for some time.

John Shannonhouse, manager of White Stores and chairman of the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce Merchant Committee, which was in charge of the campaign, said, "It was disastrous."

He said that the downtown merchants' reactions were quite negative. "They said the weather really hindered

The body will be on view at Joyner's Mortuary after 5 p.m. Saturday. The family visitation hours will be Saturday evening from 7-8 p.m.

their sales. "Nobody came to town...it was just too bad to get out," Shannonhouse added. "We were asking people to come out and the weathermen were telling them to stay at home."

Shannonhouse added that many merchants are continuing Dollar Day sales throughout the weekend "so that shoppers who were unable to attend Thursday will be able to benefit from the special."

Don Merritt of Kroger-Sav-On said that his business was up yesterday approximately 15 percent. He attributed the additional sales, mostly to the Dollar Day special, but to some extent, to the fact that Kroger's sells groceries.

"The Dollar Day specials went very well," said Merritt.

Gene Skinner of Belk-Tyler did not report such good news. "The weather had quite an effect on sales. We had some traffic but we closed early," he added. Skinner said that his store plans to continue the specials through the weekend.

It only took 23 inches of precipitation to cause all these problems yesterday. The Greenville Utilities Commission reported this measurement during the period ending at 8 a.m., 24 hours. Yesterday's high was 35 degrees with a recorded low temperature of 26 degrees.

Today's 8 a.m. reading was an even cooler 20 degrees. The Tar River level at 8 a.m. today stood at 12.3 feet on the National Weather Gauge — a one-foot drop from yesterday.

Everybody Had Lucky Number

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Well, at least Terry Trent knows his Shoppers News is well read.

Trent, vice president of the 39,000 circulation free advertising weekly, ran a lucky number sweepstakes in Wednesday editions. The reader whose paper had the number 69161 would win $250 cash.

But Thursday morning, traffic was backed up nearly a half-mile to the Shoppers News office and telephone lines were jammed as thousands of winners tried to claim their prize.

"Every paper — every single one of them — 39,000 copies — had the winning number this time," said Trent. He blamed the problem on a stamping machine malfunction.

The winner? Paul Staggs, whose telephone call late Wednesday made him the first to notify Shoppers News he had the winning number.

Flu Epidemic Is Widespread

ATLANTA (AP) — This year's flu epidemic is widespread over half the country and flu is on the increase in 20 states, the national Center for Disease Control said today.

Deaths from influenza and pneumonia the last week in January were running 66 percent above the expected rate for that time of year, according to data from 121 selected cities, the CDC said.

Oklahoma was the only state to report no flu. The Russian flu — A-USSR — was confirmed by laboratory tests only in Cheyenne, Wyo. However, said CDC spokesman Don Berrett, "because of the nature of flu, you would expect that if it is there, it is in other parts of the country."

The illness was typified by fever, muscle ache, cough and headache. Absenteeism in the high school hit by the outbreak reached 60 percent, due to a variety of flu strains, the CDC said in its weekly report.

A-Victoria and A-Texas flu continue to be reported across two-thirds of the country.

Various type-A flu infections have been confirmed in 44 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico, the CDC said.

States with widespread flu, in counties comprising more than half the state's population, are: Connecticut; Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island; Vermont, Maryland, Virginia, Florida, Georgia, North and South Carolina, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, New Mexico, Iowa, Missouri, Nebraska, Colorado, South Dakota, Arizona, California and Alaska, and the District of Columbia.

Flu is decreasing in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York and Oregon, but on the increase in Massachusetts, the District of Columbia, Virginia, West Virginia, Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi, South Carolina, Michigan, Louisiana, New Mexico, Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska, Colorado, the Dakotas, Arizona, California and Alaska.

There were no reports from Minnesota, Arkansas and Nevada.

North Carolina Defeats Pirates

CHAPEL HILL — The University of North Carolina rolled to a 72-44 victory over East Carolina University's women last night in Chapel Hill.

The Pirate women fell behind in the first half and were unable to catch up in the second.

Neither team shot well. The Lady Pirates hit just 32.8 per cent of their shots, while the Lady Heels canned just 38.4 per cent. Rebounding was almost even, with the Heels pulling off 54, and the Pirates, 53.

One slight difference was in the turnovers, where the Pirates were charged with 28, and the Heels with 23.

"We just didn't play well," Coach Catherine Bolton said, pointing out that Rosie Thompson, usually a crack shot, hit only eight of 28.

"Then, we were hampered when Lydia Rountree mashed her finger in the door of the van during the trip. But injuries were not the problem. We were not aggressive enough on offense or defense," Bolton added.

"It's not a tryout, as such," Mueller said. "But it's a chance for me to see if I would like to join the organization next year." Mueller said athletes who sign up commit themselves for two years at a time in the program, which allows them to retain their amateur status.

Mueller will wrestle at the 177-pound weight in a Monday match at Ball State University, then travel to Ohio State on Wednesday and West Virginia on Friday.

At East Carolina, Mueller compiled an 88-5 record, twice winning Southern Conference championships. He was also selected as the Outstanding Wrestler in the Southern Conference, the Outstanding

Two basketball teams, both starved for victory, meet Saturday night in Minges Coliseum, attempting to snap losing strings.

East Carolina's Pirates come into the 7:30 p.m. game with a two-game losing streak, having lost to Duke and Old Dominion, while the Richmond Spiders, only 3-14 on the year, have lost their last six in a row.

The most recent defeat of the Spiders came Wednesday night, when they bowed, 110-90, to Virginia Military. Ironically, Richmond's last win was an 82-81 victory over Old Dominion, a game played without Richie Wright and Ronnie Valentine, the two top Old Dominion players.

Coach Carl Sloan's Spiders have not won on the road, either,

Powers Seeks More Action

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

For a sophomore on a team dominated by young players, one would expect to get quite a bit of playing time, but for Kyle Powers, it hasn't been quite like that at East Carolina University so far this winter.

The Fayetteville native has been limited to only 119 minutes in 17 games, although he did not see action in one of those. He's averaging just 2.6 points a game. Last year, playing in 26 games, he scored over four points an outing.

"It's been pretty rough," Powers said. "I had hoped to play a lot more this year, but (Herb) Krusen and (Herb) Gray have been playing so well that my time has been cut down pretty well," Powers said.

"I'm hoping to play more from here on in," he said. "I had a pretty good game against Duke (scoring eight points in just a few minutes of play), and although I didn't score much against Old Dominion, I did get a few rebounds and a couple of steals. So maybe things may start looking up."

Despite the fact that the Pirates are having a rough year and go into Saturday's meeting with Richmond just 4-13, Powers doesn't feel the team is getting down on itself.

"We're disappointed that we haven't done better," he said. "At the beginning of the season, we were looking forward to better things. We had some goals and it looked like we might be able to reach them. But we're really disappointed that we've done like we have."

While insisting that there is no dissension on the team, Powers does feel that the team could be playing "together" more. "We get along fine together; everyone of the players are great people," he said.

"We have more talent than we had last year, and we've been able to take the ball to the basket more this year instead of running a slower patterned offense. We're running the ball so much, we really don't have time to set up that much."

Defensively, the Pirates have had their problems, and Powers feels this comes from the youth of the team. "Coach (Larry) Gillman has installed a whole new defensive philosophy, where everyone has to help out. But there are little lapses where someone doesn't quite get their job done, and it makes it look glaring. Any one breakdown can get the other team two points."

While Powers would like to be playing more, he feels that the future of the team lies ahead. "I think I can contribute more than I've been able to so far," he said. "We are young, but hopefully next year, we'll be able to put it all together. We'll know each other better and know what the others can do more then."

Putts Lift Gene Into The Lead

By RON STATON
Associated Press Writer

HONOLULU (AP) — Gene Littler recently began using an old putting grip that he last used three or four years ago.

And the "double overlapping" grip helped lift the 47-year-old tour veteran to the first-round lead in the $250,000 Hawaiian Open golf tournament Thursday.

"This grip gives me a new feel and it's worked very well," said Littler, who began using it again last week and promptly tied for second in the San Diego Open.

"I've been putting badly for some time and when you are putting badly, you're always tinkering around and changing something — either your grip or your stance or something," he said.

Littler had a 7-under-par 65, one stroke ahead of John Schroeder, with whom he tied at San Diego. Mark Hayes, Eddie Pearce, Dave Stockton and Bob Wynn were tied for third at 67.

Tom Watson, the 1977 Player of the Year and leading money-winner, was at 68 along with Bobby Cole, Mike Morley and Lon Hinkle.

having lost all eight games away from their home court.

The game is the first of three basketball contest during the next seven days. Monday, the Pirates host UT-Chattanooga, and Thursday, they travel to UNC Wilmington.

The Pirate track team, fresh from its triumph at the Pitt Invitational, will be at the VMI Winter Relays on Saturday, while the swimming teams, both men and women, will visit Duke.

Monday, the ECU women go to Duke, while the wrestlers are at N.C. State. Thursday, the women travel to begin competition in the Winthrop Tournament.

"Richmond is having a down year, too," Coach Larry Gillman pointed out. They have about ten new players on their team, but they've been getting a little better every time out.

"Both teams are in need of a win, so somebody will leave the gym happy," he added.

Richmond has only one scorer in double figures, Mike Perry, averaging 19.3 points a game at the start of the week. He is a 6-5 freshman forward.

Other members of the probably starting five include 6-0 sophomore guard J.D. Harrison, 4.7 points a game; 6-0 senior John Campbell, 4.5 ppg; 6-11 sophomore Mike Dew, 4.7 ppg; and 6-7 junior Miller Butler, 8.7 ppg. Dew is the leading rebounder, getting 5.5 per game.

The Pirates will counter with Oliver Mack, 25.6 and seventh ranked nationally in scoring, and Walter Moseley, 5.1, at the guards; Greg Cornelius, 8.4 at center; and Herb Krusen, 16.6 and Herb Gray, 13.5, at the forwards.

"We weren't ready to play against Old Dominion and I hope that we will be ready against Richmond," Gillman said. "I also hope that Bernard Hill will be ready, but he's doubtful. Having him adds to the flexibility of the team."

Monday's game with Chattanooga will be a rematch of the two teams who played an overtime contest just over a week ago. The Moccasins gained a 110-101 win in that game.

The Mocs have three double figure starters in their lineup. They include 5-11 Edsel Brooks, 16.0; 6-7 Keith Parker, 16.5; and 6-6 William Wright, 15.0. Joining them are 6-6 guard Ray Byron, 5.0, and 6-7 Mark Merritt, 9.5.

The Pirate track team, in traveling to VMI for the Winter Relays, will be out to duplicate their triumph of last week that saw 12 of the 13 Pirates attending place in the Pitt Invitational.

But the VMI field will prove to be a tough one, Coach Bill Carson feels.

"This year's meet will be better than in the past due to a lack of other meets this weekend. N.C. State, North Carolina, Norfolk State and others will be there. I expect this to be a super meet."

Carson looks to the mile relay to be the feature event, with an outstanding matchup between State, VMI and the Pirates. The Bucs also look for strong showings in the 880 relay, the sprint medley relay and the distance medley relay, along with the 60-yard dash, the high hurdles, the triple jump and the high jump.

Meanwhile, Monday's wrestling match will send the Pirates up against a team that gained a slim 19-18 win last week against the Bucs.

"I think we suffered a letdown against State. We didn't wrestle well at some weight classes that we probably should have won. But State has a good, solid team from top to bottom," Coach Bill Hill said.

Wayne Newnam

Newnam Appointed As Promotions Director

Wayne Newnam, former Director of Promotions and Sales for the East Carolina University Pirate Club, is now Director of Promotions for the entire athletic program, it was announced today.

Bill Cain, ECU athletic director, said Newnam will assume his new duties immediately.

"This is a position we have wanted for several years," said Cain. "After serving for one year with the Pirate Club, it was our feeling that Wayne could best serve our athletic program by being in charge of all promotions and sales, and not just those of the Pirate Club."

"Wayne has a great talent and enthusiasm as displayed throughout the previous year. We are all extremely pleased to be able to make this realignment of duties. This is just another step in the total growth and development of the East Carolina University athletic pro-

Newnam came to East Carolina last February from Myrtle Beach, S.C., where he had served as General Manager and Director of Design at Wayside Contract Interiors.

The 28-year-old Newnam is a 1972 graduate of East Carolina University with a degree in Fine Arts, majoring in interior design. He is a native of High Point, and a graduate of High Point Central High School.

During the previous year, Newnam prepared and edited the football and basketball programs at East Carolina, as well as designing several pieces of promotional material used in the Pirate Club and throughout the athletic department. These same duties will be involved with the realignment, along with other such areas of promotional work.

Previously, the majority of all promotional work was done through the Director of Sports

Defense Worked, But Offense Didn't

While East Carolina University's football schedule still hasn't been released, a copy of a slate said to be a tentative one has come into our possession.

Some of the games were gleaned from the Southern Conference's release of its football slate for the coming year, while others came from other unnamed sources.

The official schedule was promised some two weeks ago, but apparently late snags continue to hold up its official release.

However, according to our sources, the Pirates will open the season on September 3, playing Western Carolina in their first game in the newly expanded Ficklen Stadium.

After that, the Bucs will go on a three-game road trip, playing at N.C. State on the 9th, at North Carolina on the 16, and at Southwestern Louisiana on the 23rd.

Then the Pirates return home to face Texas-Arlington on September 30.

It's back on the road to travel to VMI on October 7, and then down to Hattiesburg, Miss., to face Southern Mississippi on October 14.

The 21st of October will see the Pirates again in the Oyster Bowl in Norfolk, Va., facing the University of Richmond.

Following an open date on the 28th of October, the Pirates close out with three-straight home games, Appalachian State on November 4, William & Mary on the 11th, and Marshall University on the 18th.

Athletic Director Bill Cain also wants to release the 1979 schedule at the same time. That one is known to be more attractive, and will include all four members of the "Big Four," Duke, Carolina, State and Wake Forest.

Top Women's Games Coming Up

During the month of February, the East Carolina women's basketball team have two outstanding basketball games coming up in Minges Coliseum.

The first comes on February 15, when the Pirates will entertain the number two-ranked N.C. State Lady Wolfpack. Then, three nights later, the University of North Carolina comes in for a rematch.

To top it all off, the Lady Pirates will be the host team for the North Carolina AIAW Division I Tournament on March 2, 3 and 4.

Women's basketball hasn't attracted a large number of fans yet in the area, but it is growing, and these two games, plus the tournament will be true highlights and should bring in a lot of people.

Windup of Basketball

The high school basketball scene will be winding down in a couple of weeks. The Eastern Carolina Conference has its tournament during the week of the 13th, and divisional events will be scheduled for the following week, followed by the state tournaments the first week of March.

The Eastern Carolina Conference will send four teams into a district tournament against four from the Northeastern. In addition, four Eastern Plains teams will be in action in 2-A, and five Beaufort-Hyde-Martin teams in 1-A. Two Division I 4-A teams qualify for State Playoffs.

On defense, Michigan State's players take their instructions by cue cards from the sidelines in one of the most unique systems in college basketball. On offense, they're on their own.

Actually, that was the problem Thursday night.

The seventh-ranked Spartans did okay defensively, holding high-powered Michigan to 65 points. But they only got 63 themselves — and the reason was a highly visible offensive goof.

"You've got to make those shots," said Michigan State Coach Jud Heathcote, talking about a missed layup by Bob Chapman that cost State the important Big Ten game.

The teams were tied at 63 in the last minute when Michigan State intercepted an inbound pass by the Wolverines. Chapman drove in for what appeared to be a cinch layup, but missed.

Heathcote moaned.

"He had a 10-foot lead, slows down and blows it," Heathcote said. "Bobby didn't have a good night."

From the view of Michigan Coach Johnny Orr, it looked as if his reserve guard, Mark Lozier, had blocked the shot. That was debatable. But Lozier's basket a few seconds later wasn't.

He sank a 30-footer at the buzzer to sink Michigan State.

"It was a great effort by Lozier on the block," said Orr, "and then on his basket that gave us the win."

Four other Top Twenty teams lost in a night of multiple upsets. South Alabama defeated No. 15 Florida State 58-56; St. Bonaventure shocked No. 16 Providence 72-64; Wake Forest beat No. 17 Duke 79-60 and Portland turned back No. 20 San Francisco 101-87.

Elsewhere, third-ranked Marquette whipped Penn State 73-60; No. 5 UCLA downed Stanford 101-64 and No. 10 New Mexico edged Wyoming 94-91.

Lozier, a sophomore guard who has seen little action this season, let the winning shot go against Michigan State from beyond the key after the Wolverines had called timeout with three seconds left. The Spartans had trailed by 14 point-semidway through the half before coming back to make a game of it behind Earvin Johnson.

Lonnie Leggett hit a 35-foot shot at the buzzer to lead South Alabama over Florida State. The Seminoles missed a close shot before South Alabama's Thomas Ledford got the rebound. He fed Leggett, who took one step over the midcourt line and threw the ball in cleanly.

Nick Urzetta scored 18 points and Greg Sanders and Tim Waterman had 16 each to lead St. Bonaventure past Providence. The Bonnies shot 58 percent from the floor in winning their sixth straight game. The loss was the third straight for the skidding Friars.

Rod Griffin and Leroy McDonald combined for 40 points to lead Wake Forest over Duke. The Deacons led by 42-24 at intermission and the Blue Devils, playing without center Mike Gminski, could come no closer than 12 points in the second half.

Darwin Cook scored 41 points, one short of the Portland record, as the Pilots whipped San Francisco in a West Coast Athletic Conference game. The defeat knocked the Dons out of the conference lead.

Jerome Whitehead had a career-high 25 points and 13 rebounds to lead Marquette past Penn State. Butch Lee had 11 rebounds from his guard position for the Warriors.

"Those look like a big man's stats," said the muscular Lee, a 6-foot-1 senior who led the Warriors to the national championship last season. "Let me keep this and frame it."

David Greenwood scored 21 points and pulled down 13 rebounds to pace UCLA over Stanford in a Pacific-8 Conference game. The point production moved Greenwood, a junior forward, to 19th place on the all-time UCLA scoring list.

Marvin Johnson and Phil Abney teamed for 41 points and New Mexico withstood a rally by Wyoming to beat the Cowboys. Wyoming scored eight straight points at the end to throw a scare into the Lobos.

In a doubleheader at Madison Square Garden in New York, Phil Nessel scored 28 points to lead Lafayette over Fordham 79-76 and St. John's beat Cincinnati 75-66 as George Johnson and Reggie Carter each scored 20 points.

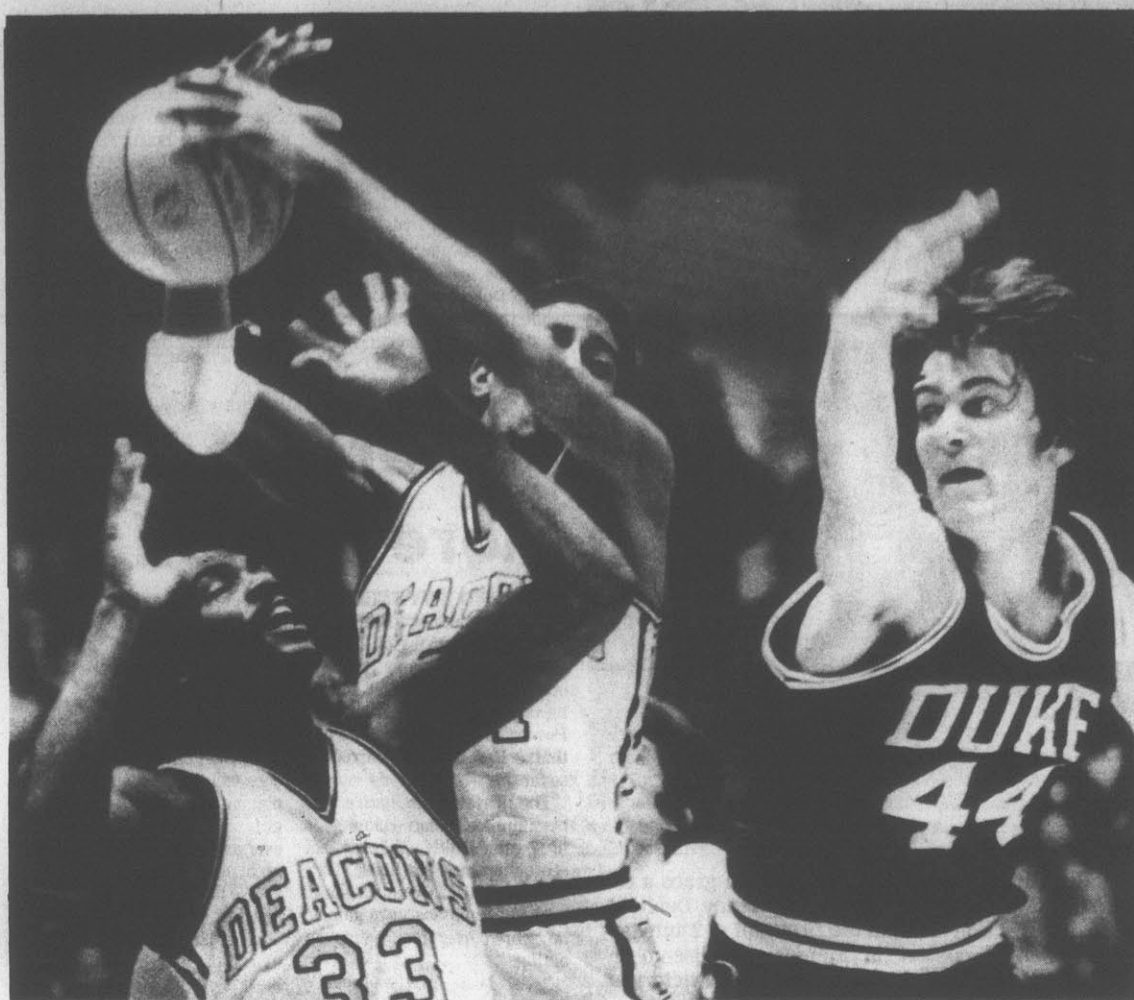

Elsewhere, Reed Add son's 23 points led West Texas State over Wichita State 64-59; Dayton stopped Duquesne 67-65 as Jack Zimmerman scored 21 points; a 20-point performance by Billy Keys paced Tulsa over Bradley 88-80; Mychal Thompson, Kevin McHale and James Jackson combined for 58 points to lead Minnesota past Iowa 82-71; Jerry Sichting's basket with eight seconds to play boosted Purdue over Ohio State 71-69 and Levi Cobb's two free throws with 23 seconds remaining led Illinois over Wisconsin 74-71.

Also, Bob Lindsay and Tom Glenn combined for 44 points to power George Washington over Boston University 89-66; Eric Williams' desperation 30-footer provided Massachusetts with a 77-76 victory over Holy Cross; Wayne Radford's 22 points triggered Indiana over Northwestern 86-70; Cliff Robinson's 39 points led Southern Cal over California 87-81; Washington State clipped Oregon State 63-58 behind Terry Kelly's 16 points and Don Walker's 17 points led Washington over Oregon 58-52.

Wake Forest Builds Up First Half Lead, Coasts Past Duke

By The Associated Press

North Carolina and N.C. State face Furman and Virginia Tech in the North-South doubleheader, starting tonight, and the twin bill at the Charlotte Coliseum could be a tough one for the two Atlantic Coast Conference teams.

"It could be a very difficult weekend," said State coach Norm Sloan. "You would think it's somewhat of a relief to get away from the Atlantic Coast Conference for a couple of games, but in this case, it's not."

Both Virginia Tech and Furman are excellent teams. We must approach them with the same intensity we would if they were conference opponents," Sloan added. "I'm not sure our players understand this."

State, 4-3 in the conference and 14-4 overall, meets Virginia Tech, an independent with a 16-3 record, in the opener at 7 p.m. North Carolina, 6-2 in the ACC and 17-3 overall, takes on Furman, 6-3 in the Southern Conference and 12-5 overall, in the nightcap.

State has won 26 of its 34 games with Tech, but all five Gobblers starters have double-figure scoring averages this year. The Tar Heels have beaten Furman in each of their 15 encounters.

The two ACC teams switch partners for Saturday's round. In Thursday night's only ACC action, Wake Forest used a combination zone and man-to-man defense to sting Duke, 79-60.

After Eugene Banks scored the opening bucket, Wake pounded away with 14 unanswered points and ended the half with a 42-24 lead. Duke clearly missed starter Mike Gminski, still out with a foot injury suffered against Virginia. The Blue Devils got no closer than 12 points in the second half. Jim Spanarkel, usually the scoring leader and play sparker, fouled out with only 10 points. Banks was the leader with 18 points for Duke.

Rod Griffin led the Deacons with 21 points, and Leroy McDonald added 19.

"They didn't adapt to our defenses," said Wake coach Carl Tacy. "I don't know if we're the best defensive team in the conference, but we're doing

Smith Leads Cavaliers To Win Over Bullets

By The Associated Press

Not the flu, a headache nor tired eyes could keep Elmore Smith from his appointed mission: to play well against the Washington Bullets.

Cleveland's 7-foot center, in his best performance of the National Basketball Association season, scored 32 points and hauled in 24 rebounds Thursday night, leading the Cavaliers to a 110-93 victory over the slumping Bullets, who suffered their 11th road loss in 13 games.

"He came in and played sick," pointed out Cleveland Coach Bill Fitch, after the Cavaliers had ended a three-game losing streak. "He and Campy (Russell, who did not play) both came up with the flu today. It was a tremendous performance."

Smith played 47 minutes, and Fitch said, "It would have taken an act of Congress to get him out of there. Each timeout in the first half, I kept telling he'd come out when he missed. He just didn't miss."

"With the height advantage

(over 6-8 Wes Unseld), I felt I could get my shot," said Smith. "I made a few shots early, and I just kept at it."

"I'm tired," he added. "I have a bad headache, and my eyes bother me. But I felt okay out there."

In other NBA games, the San Antonio Spurs beat the New York Knicks 123-113 for their eighth straight victory, the Kansas City Kings downed the Detroit Pistons 113-101, the Atlanta Hawks edged the Indiana Pacers 107-105, and the Golden State Warriors topped the Milwaukee Bucks 105-102.

Smith scored 19 points and grabbed a club-record 16 rebounds in the first half when Cleveland took a commanding 51-38 lead.

Bob Dantridge led the Bullets with 25 points.

Spurs 123, Knicks 113

All-Star starting forward Larry Kenon amassed 42 points and All-Star starting guard George Gervin collected 24 as San Antonio tied a franchise record for consecutive victories set in 1970 when the club was in Dallas in the American Basketball Association.

Bob McAdoo paced the Knicks with 20 points.

Kings 113, Pistons 101

Ron Boone's 29 points, including 12 in the decisive third period, helped Kansas City end a five-game losing streak and snap Detroit's winning string at five.

John Shumate and Eric Mony each scored 20 points for the Pistons, but All-Star Bob Lanier had only 15 points, 10 below his average.

Hawks 107, Pacers 105

Steve Hawes scored a career-high 27 points and John Drew also netted 27, as Atlanta handed Indiana its fourth straight setback.

Alabama Troopers Tear-Gas Strikers In A Rescue

OAKMAN, Ala. (AP)— Alabama State Troopers tear-gassed some 150 to 200 striking miners early today and rescued seven non-union miners trapped at a small strip-mine near Oakman in Walker County, a trooper spokesman said.

Lt. Roy Smith said several troopers suffered cuts and bruises when the striking miners threw rocks and sticks at the troopers when they moved in. He said several shots were fired and dynamite sticks thrown but no trooper was injured by this. Smith said he did not know if any miners were injured. The seven non-union miners were rescued unharmed.

Smith said the striking miners had told the mine owner in the presence of a State Trooper Thursday that the non-union miners would not be allowed to leave the mine area alive.

He said the striking miners had set up checkpoints and bonfires on Alabama 69 south of Oakman at the intersection of Alabama 69 and a small county road.

Three special operation teams of State Troopers were dispatched to the Oakman area accompanied by three tactical teams, a State Trooper helicopter equipped with a 65-million-candlepower night light and two Army National Guard helicopters.

"Our first thought was to go in with helicopters and bring the people out, but after a survey of the area we found that the helicopters could not land," Smith said. "A decision was made to rescue the trapped miners at approximately 12 midnight. At 12:39 a.m. troopers arrived at the intersection, encountering approximately 150 to 200 miners.

"They were given a lawful order to disperse after being declared in unlawful assembly," Smith said. "The miners became very abusive and started throwing rocks, sticks and anything they could get their hands on. After the trooper teams came under attack, tear gas was used to rout the mob gathered around the intersection. Some were in cars but mostly pickup trucks and also a house located about 50 feet from the intersection.

"After tear gas was administered, troopers came under small arms fire, and sticks, rocks and firebrands from the bonfires were thrown at us," Smith said. "Two sticks of dynamite were thrown from the house and exploded just mere feet away from the squad. Another stick was thrown under a patrol car containing two troopers but it failed to go off. The State Trooper helicopter flying the night light came under heavy ground fire.

"After the mob was dispersed, the troopers proceeded to the mine area about 2 1/2 miles down the dirt road where the seven miners were located at a house right next to the mine," Smith said. "The seven miners came out after we identified ourselves. Their vehicle had been firebombed by the striking miners. They were put in a patrol car and brought out of the area."

Smith said 10 to 15 patrol cars were damaged, everything from bullet holes to windows broken.

He said the operation was headed by Major James Fuqua, commander of the highway patrol division, and Colonel E.C. Dothard, director of the Department of Public Safety.

"Our mission here was to protect lives and property," Smith said. "The lives of these seven men were in serious jeopardy and we took what action was necessary to get them out."

Georgia Blocks Laetrile 'Cure'

ATLANTA (AP) — A teenager suffering from cancer has been placed in the state's custody for treatment because her parents wanted her treated only with Laetrile, the head of the Georgia Department of Human Resources has confirmed.

"I consider children with cancer whose parents have rejected conventional treatment in favor of Laetrile to be deprived. At least one Georgia juvenile court has agreed with me," DHR Commissioner W. Douglas Skelton said Thursday.

Dr. Skelton was referring to a juvenile court's previously unpublicized action last December putting the girl in the state's care. He said he personally made the decision to proceed with court action after the case was brought to the DHR's attention by the girl's physician.

Skelton mentioned the girl's case during testimony before a legislative committee Wednesday and elaborated on it Thursday in an interview.

The girl, who Skelton declined to identify, has been diagnosed as suffering from Hodgkin's disease, cancer of the lymph glands.

Hodgkin's disease, cancer experts say, is almost certainly fatal if left untreated. However, they say 95 percent of the cases are cured if radiation treatment is begun in the disease's early stages.

Laetrile, a controversial substance extracted from apricot pits, is claimed by supporters as an effective cancer treatment, but organized medicine and the government condemn its use as quackery and worthless.

"The case was brought to the attention of a county Family and Child Services Department by a physician who had made a recommendation for treatment which was not accepted (by the parents)," Skelton said.

Skelton said the parents voiced "pretty strong feeling that the teen-ager should not be subjected to chemotherapy and radiation."

He said the girl is now receiving treatment and that she is doing better.

The commissioner testified before the General Assembly that if two bills legalizing Laetrile in the state are passed, the DHR might not be able to intervene on behalf of such a child.

Paul Sage, a Laetrile expert with the Food and Drug Administration in Washington, said he knew of only three cases nationally in which government agencies have sought to impose conventional treatment on a child whose parents rejected it for Laetrile.

Act To Avoid A Confrontation

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state Board of Education has offered to make major changes in the reporting form which non-public schools must submit to the state.

The board has also voted to exempt those schools from state competency tests if they have their pupils take any other nationally-recognized competency test and submit the results to the state.

The two moves are aimed at heading off what was shaping up as a courtroom confrontation between the state and 51 Christian academies who said that laws making them accountable to the state violated their religious principles.

Leaders of the group said Thursday after the board acted that the compromise proposals were not what they wanted.

"I don't believe there is a single one of the 51 schools who will file a report," said the Rev. Kent Kelley of Southern Pines. "If they were trying to compromise, they didn't understand the issue."

"What the state board attempted to do was to bend over backwards to get voluntary compliance," said deputy Attorney General Andrew A. Vanore. The laws had required them to submit regular reports on their enrollments, teacher credentials and courses. They were also included in the upcoming competency testing program.

Vanore said the action on tests give the non-public schools a choice of nationally-recognized tests, and commented that "all the state board is doing here is, in keeping with the mandates of state statutes, to try to obtain voluntary compliance by making it much easier for them to comply."

Vanore said that in revising the questionnaire, the board had eliminated all questions which were not "absolutely essential" to comply with state law which requires the board to obtain certain information from the non-public schools.

"I feel the board has done everything reasonable within their power to give these schools which have failed to file their fall reports an opportunity to do so now," he said.

Vanore said he did not know whether the Christian schools would comply with the new requirements laid down by the board.

"I don't know what is going to happen," he said. "We will just have to wait and see what happens as of March 1."

If the Christian schools — about 50 of them with about 10,000 pupils are affected — fail to meet the revised requirements as laid down by the board, the board will then have to decide whether to force compliance through the courts.

Big Cigarette Theft Stopped

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Armed with a tip from an informant, authorities knew that thieves planned to drive off with a truckload of cigarettes worth a quarter of a million dollars Wednesday night from the Overnite Transportation Co.'s Wake County terminal.

Another truck was taken from the same spot on Jan. 21, but this time state and local officers were there and watched the tractor-trailer roll out of the terminal.

A caravan of seven cars, including Wake County deputies, State Bureau of Investigation agents and state Highway Patrol officers followed the truck, which was also shadowed by a Highway Patrol helicopter.

The officers followed the rig for more than 200 miles over back roads, watching a change of drivers near Winston-Salem and a change of the car in which other alleged participants in the theft were following the truck.

Near Newton in Catawba County the officers closed in on the truck and pulled it over at about 2 a.m. Thursday.

"We had it under observation all the time," Chief Wake County Deputy Sheriff Lester W. Kelly said Thursday.

Kelly said that Bill Frank Easterly, 42, and Lones E. Fields, 62, both of Rt. 4, Durham, were charged with larceny of the truck and more than 1,000 cases of cigarettes, and James William Rector, 30, of Rt. 5, Statesville, James Rodney Ramsey, 37, of Troutman, and Earle Clint Hager, 35, of Rt. 8, Statesville were charged with receiving the stolen truck and cigarettes.

According to Kelly, the five were arrested when officers stopped the truck and a car that had been following it near Newton early Thursday morning.

Kelly said that Easterly and Brenda Faye Pendergraph, 26, of Rt. 7, Durham, had been charged with the theft of $29,000 worth of cigarettes and a truck from the Overnite Transportation Co. terminal in Wake County on Jan. 21.

Miss Pendergraph was arrested when she came to the Wake County Magistrate's office to ask about bail for the other five. Kelly said she had once been a billing clerk for Overnite.

The six were being held in Wake County Jail with bonds for the men set at $200,000 each and the bond for Miss Pendergraph set at $50,000.

Mostly sunny skies prevailed over North Carolina in the wake of the latest winter storm which spread snow across the western and northern sections of the state.

Snow averaged about three inches over the northern counties and many areas still were snow-covered today. Streets and roads generally were clear but early morning driving had its hazards in the form of lurking icy spots.

Skies began to clear in the early afternoon Thursday in western sections of the state and high temperatures for the day climbed into the 40s. They remained in the 30s over the eastern section.

Lows this morning dropped into the teens and 20s. They included 17 at Greensboro, Raleigh and Elizabeth City, and 20 at Hamlet. Other lows included Asheville 24, Wilmington 25 and Charlotte 26.

High readings today were expected to range again in the 30s and 40s and similar readings are expected Saturday. Some slight warming, with temperatures reaching the 40s and 50s, is seen for Sunday and Monday. There also is a chance of rain along the coast Sunday and again Tuesday.

Patty Hearst Appealing Bank Holdup Conviction

WASHINGTON (AP) — On the eve of the fourth anniversary of her kidnapping by the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army, Patricia Hearst is appealing her bank robbery conviction to the Supreme Court.

The newspaper heiress, who was kidnapped from her Berkeley, Calif., apartment on Feb. 4, 1974, and later said she had joined her abductors, is currently free on $1 million bond and living with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Randolph A. Hearst, in a San Francisco suburb.

Now 23, Miss Hearst was sentenced to seven years in prison in 1976.

In a brief filed with the high court on Thursday, her lawyer, F. Lee Bailey, said, Miss Hearst's conviction for taking part in a 1974 bank robbery with SLA members was based partly on "non admissible" evidence that she participated in a subsequent holdup at a Los Angeles sporting goods store.

Bailey said the facts of the later crime should not have been admitted during the trial because there was no logical connection between the bank robbery charges and the other alleged crime.

Because that evidence was admitted, he claimed, a federal court jury was led to believe in his client's guilt in part because of a crime allegedly committed a month or more after the bank robbery.

Bailey also sought Supreme Court review on grounds that the trial judge refused to admit testimony of a clinical psychologist who interviewed Miss Hearst. Bailey said Dr. Margaret Singer would have backed up Miss Hearst's testimony that she did not voluntarily take part in the bank robbery.

The jury in the case heard tapes and saw handwritten notes indicating that Miss Hearst willingly joined in the holdup.

Bailey said Dr. Singer, an expert in psycholinguistics, would have testified that the tapes and handwritten notes also were made under duress and thus were valueless as indications of Miss Hearst's state of mind.

The trial judge, however, declined to hear Dr. Singer on grounds that it would consume too much time, Bailey said.

He also contested a ruling by the U.S. 9th Circuit Court of Appeals that Miss Hearst waived her Fifth Amendment rights against self-incrimination. Bailey said the trial judge failed to advise her that she did not have to testify about her year as a fugitive from a nationwide FBI search.

In addition, he claimed that Miss Hearst's right to privacy was violated by tapes made from her jail cell. Officials contended at the time that the tapes were made in the interest of prison security.
