Sale Of Fighter Planes To Egypt Said Decided

By ROBERT KAYLOR

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Administration officials said Saturday the United States has decided to sell F5E fighter planes to Egypt and is trying to work out a plan to win Congress' approval.

The officials said no final decision on the number of planes to be sold, or the tack to be taken with the lawmakers, will be made until President Anwar Sadat leaves Washington Wednesday.

But they said President Carter has decided he will try to meet at least part of Sadat's request for 120 F5Es — a major shift in U.S. arms sales policy and the first attempt to sell Egypt weapons it could use in combat against Israel.

Officially, the White House declined confirmation of Carter's intentions. Spokesman Jerrold Schecter, said, "No decision has been reached by the president."

Other administration officials said Carter had made the decision in principle, but reporters were told one problem is the Egyptians have to be persuaded to accept the F-5E's, in place of the more advanced F-15 or F-16 that Sadat said he wanted.

Administration officials said the matter will be discussed at the Camp David summit this weekend, and the Egyptian views will be taken into view when the final administration strategy for congressional approval is worked out.

Previously, the United States has provided Egypt with only so-called "non-lethal" military equipment, including C-130 transport planes. Even that sale provoked stiff congressional opposition.

Last year, an earlier request

Acreeage Control

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland will announce Monday he has decided to activate an acreage control "set aside" program to help reduce surplus 1978 production of livestock feed grains.

The plan for a 10 percent acreage set aside was announced on a tentative basis last Nov. 15.

to sell F5s to Egypt was shelved because the administration felt it had no chance of approval.

The officials said one plan being discussed for getting the proposal through this time would be to put the request for the F5Es in the same military assistance package that provides more advanced planes to Israel and Saudi Arabia.

Israel has requested 150 of the faster, longer-ranged F16s and 25 F15s in addition to the 25 F15s they have already been sold. Saudi Arabia wants 60 F15s.

But the officials said all three countries object to being lumped together with the other two for various reasons:

—For political reasons, they said, Saudi Arabia does not want to be grouped with Israel and Egypt as a direct "confrontation state." The Saudis feel their defense needs are special and separate from the Arab-Israeli conflict.

—The Israelis want to protect their special relationship with the United States, and do not want the U.S. commitment to them confused with arms sales to the rest of the Middle East.

—Egypt objects to the implied balance in the U.S. proposal, which would equate a relatively small number of older-generation fighters for Egypt with a larger number of superior, first-line aircraft for Israel.

Sadat's request for a major infusion of U.S. arms was one of the topics he and Carter were discussing at their private Camp David summit this weekend.

Begin: Israel Will Not Yield To Egypt's Unreasonable Demands

MIAMI (UPI) — Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, writing in today's edition of The Miami Herald, said Israel will not yield to Egypt's "unreasonable demands" for creation of a Palestinian State in Judea, Samaria and the Gaza Strip and for a restoration of the June 4, 1967 demarcation lines.

But he reiterated that his country "yearns for peace" and wants to negotiate a Middle East settlement.

However, Israel does not intend to negotiate itself into "national suicide" and in attempting to work out any agreement with Egypt because it "must recall the past realities in order to protect its future security and peace," he said.

The Israeli leader's letter was written at the invitation of The Herald, which last Sunday published a letter from Sadat, containing his personal views.

Explaining Israeli caution, Begin said the 1949 armistice agreements with Egypt, Jordan, Syria and Lebanon were peace treaties "in almost everything but name."

"Yet what happened in reality?" he asked. "Permanent bloodshed, continuous threats, repeated wars. That lesson has been well-learned."

"Therefore," he added, "no beautiful phrases or ugly threats will move the people of Israel into surrendering to the two unreasonable demands submitted to us."

"Let us, therefore, freely and seriously negotiate," Begin said. "We and our Arab neighbors. Let us do so on the basis of completely equality. Neither victors nor vanquished, but equals. Let us do this and we shall have peace."

ECU Professor Charged

ROCKY MOUNT — Dr. Gary Dale McAllister, an East Carolina University Business professor, has been released under $20,000 bond from the Edgewood County Jail on charges of possessing narcotics.

A spokesman for the Edgewood County Sheriff's Department said the home of John and Vickie Langston of Rocky Mount Rt. 4 was being searched when quantities of marijuana, heroine and amphetamines were found on McAllister's person.

The Langstons, who were released under $10,000 bond each, were charged with possession of marijuana with intent to sell and maintaining a dwelling for the purpose of selling marijuana.

The investigation is being continued at the Edgewood County Sheriff's Department.

Century Old Chicago Paper Dead After Losing Millions

By JOHN LESAR

CHICAGO (UPI) — After more than 102 years, the number is up for the Chicago Daily News.

The number — in big red numerals — is $21.7 million, the amount the newspaper has lost since September, 1974.

Rumors of the paper's impending demise have arisen regularly since its afternoon newspaper competitor, Chicago Today, folded in 1974. On Friday, the rumors came true.

The Daily News, which won 15 Pulitzer prizes in its history and employed such reporters and correspondents as Carl Sandburg, Ben Hecht, Paul Scott Mowrer, Edgar Ansel Mowrer, Keyes Beech and John McCutcheon, is ceasing publication March 4.

Myriad wakes were held for the Daily News at the taverns along "newspaper row" Friday night and eulogies were offered by printers and Pulitzer prize winners alike.

The stunned staff reacted with some bitterness toward other members of the media who had been predicting the death of the News for several days.

"The carrion fowl. It's been like they've been hovering around us for weeks . . . like they smelled it," said one veteran wire editor.

John Hahn, a longtime reporter and former labor editor, said the announcement came as no surprise.

"But the sad thing is everybody else was talking about it before we even knew. That's sad — that it had to die slow . . ."

Hahn said.

Scott Rafferty, a veteran Daily News copy editor, said television probably has helped end the era of the big afternoon newspapers.

"People just don't want an afternoon newspaper. They watch the 6 o'clock television news for their afternoon news . . . Sure, they (television) can't get it all in, but people don't want it."

State Chapter

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Farmers from about 52 North Carolina counties gathered at Dorton Arena at the State Fairgrounds Saturday.

Their purpose, according to an organizer, state Rep. G. Ronald Taylor, D-Bladen, was to organize a state chapter of the American Agricultural Movement.

The farmers selected delegates to represent each county there and heard progress reports from Washington-based farm movement lobbyists.

"We're not here on a radical basis," Taylor said of the approximately 800 farmers. "We're here because farmers are going broke."

"It's time for farmers to quit expecting someone to do something for them and do it ourselves. We want a fair shake," Taylor said. "The American public is concerned about our needs, even if it means higher food prices. They know we need more money."

The farmers discussed five objectives of the American Agricultural Movement:

—Guaranteed 100 percent of parity for all domestic and foreign agricultural products.

—Guaranteed 100 percent parity for all products produced for national or international sales.

—Creation of a board made up of producers to approve agricultural policies.

—Curtailement of imports until 100 percent parity is reached.

—Making announcements of changes in the agricultural production cycles far enough in advance to let farmers adjust to them.

GACOC Has PR Manager

By DEBBIE JACKSON

The Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce is trying to sell Greenville to the world this year and they have reorganized some of their staff in order to do so.

Susan Quinn, 23, is the Chamber's most recent addition, joining the staff in December as manager of Public Relations and the Public and Governmental Affairs Division.

The Division is not a new one, but this is the first year that a member of the Chamber staff will serve as its co-ordinator. Quinn is, however, the first Public Relations manager for the Chamber.

"In the past, the executive vice president (Ed Walker) handled most of the public relations," said Quinn. "A little over a year ago there were 354 members in the Chamber. . . ."

Kenneth Ray Evans Is Candidate For Sheriff

Kenneth Ray Evans, former Pitt County Sheriff and Chief Narcotics Officer, has filed as a candidate for the office of Sheriff in the May 2 primary.

Evans, 37, is a ten year veteran of the Sheriff's Department, resigning in August of 1977.

A Pitt County native, he graduated from Chicod High School. After serving a four year enlistment with the Air Force, he worked with WNCN-TV as a television broadcast engineer.

In 1966, he joined the Greenville Police Department and rose to the rank of corporal in the Patrol Division. Evans then joined the Sheriff's Department in 1967 and served as a jailer for 11 months before becoming a field deputy.

K. R. Evans

He became the county's first narcotics officer in 1970 and served in that capacity until 1972 when he transferred to the uniformed division. In 1975, he became narcotics chief and while serving in that role, he and two other deputies seized approximately 450 pounds of marijuana, the largest seizure in the county's history.

Evans said that, "During my ten years with the Sheriff's Department, I felt that the . . . department was here to serve the citizens of Pitt County in any and every way possible. I intend to carry this feeling with me if I am elected by the citizens of this county."

No Charge In Death Of Six-Year Old Girl

BELVOIR — Georgina Renee (Gina) Carroway, 6, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Carroway, was dead on arrival at Pitt Memorial Hospital Friday afternoon following a school bus accident on RPR 1400, north of Belvoir.

Patrolman Fred Davis, investigating officer, reported Saturday that Gregory Dempsey Holland, 16, a school bus driver of Greenville Rt. 6, had stopped his school bus at 3:40 p.m. Friday on RPR 1400 to let five children off. Among the children, Davis said, was Gina Carroway, a first grade student at Belvoir School, who either hesitated in front of the bus or started across the road and came back.

Holland, a junior at North Pitt High School, did not see the little girl and had started on his route when the bus struck her, the patrolman said. Miss Carroway was transported by the Greenville Rescue Squad to Pitt Memorial Hospital where she was pronounced dead on arrival. No charges were preferred in the accident.

REAMER, W.Va. (AP) — "Dear Mom: I just killed Molly and the boys. I always loved you. — Craig."

That was the message in a letter from Frederick Craig Wright received Friday by his mother, Matly Wright of Ecles.

Officers said Wright shot his family, wrote his mother about it, mailed the letter, then shot himself. The letter was post-marked Thursday.

An official at the Department of Highways where he was a draftsman said Wright suffered from cerebral palsy, his wife had been in and out of mental hospitals, and one of the boys recently had surgery.

Consulted Gambling Czar

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An FBI raid on the home of gambling czar Joe Nesline turned up papers showing two friends of President Carter once consulted Nesline about investing in an $85 million Atlantic City gambling casino, authorities said.

Special Agent Nick Stames in charge of the Washington FBI office said Saturday agents are still sifting through the records seized from Nesline's apartment Jan. 14 in nearby Bethesda, Md. There have been no arrests.

The raid also uncovered papers showing Nesline, with a criminal record dating back 40 years, was consulted about a proposed venture of two Carter friends, Nathan Landow, multimillionaire builder, and Smith Bagley, a Reynolds tobacco and metals heir.

Bagley, 42, whose Musgrove Plantation on St. Simons Island, Ga., has been used as a presidential vacation retreat, is rumored to be in line for one diplomatic post or another, possibly ambassador to Britain.

Landow, 45, a self-made builder and heavy campaign contributor to Carter and the Democratic Party, is believed to be under consideration as ambassador to the Netherlands.

According to The Washington Post, which first reported the gambler's connection, Landow and Bagley have become socially prominent since Carter took office.

Settlement Would Wreck Dream

ROCK HILL, S.C. (AP) — A cash settlement to the Catawba Indians' claim to 144,000 acres in three South Carolina counties would so wreck the dream of the tribe's chief that he says would quit as its leader.

Chief Gilbert Blue told the Rock Hill Evening Herald, "If at any date, the tribe as a whole, legally and in the open manner, chose to go for a cash settlement, then I would have to resign as chief."

"I could not in good conscience pursue that course," he said. A group of dissident Catawbas have claimed that a majority of the tribe favor taking cash to settle its claim to land in York, Chester and Lancaster counties.

"I just hate to see them go that route, because they're going to lose their heritage and they're not going to get that much money," he said.

Peasants Leave Peacefully

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Some 50 peasants peacefully left a United Nations building Friday night after occupying it in a bid to have 150 political prisoners freed, police said.

The peasants, affiliated with the Marxist Popular Revolutionary Bloc, also sought U.N. intervention to free relatives arrested during a sugar mill strike.

Vows No Disruptions

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — President Anastasio Somoza vowed neither guerrilla attacks that left 14 dead nor a general strike will disrupt today's municipal elections.

"No violence, no strike, nothing has kept us from continuing to enjoy our constitutional guarantees and one of these is going to the polls without fear and freely," he said Friday night.

Student Violence In Rome

ROME (UPI) — Leftist students protesting the arrest of their comrades went on a firebombing spree in Rome Saturday, setting cars and buses ablaze and battling police who chased them across the city with helicopters and teargas.

Police formally arrested 12 persons, three of them on charges of attempted murder, and detained another 30 for questioning. Seven policemen were injured in the latest outbreak of one of Italy's worst waves of political violence.

The rioting began when students protesting the arrests of several left-wingers tried to turn a rally of about 3,000 persons in the central Piazza Navona into an unauthorized march.

Wilmington 10 Demonstration

WASHINGTON (UPI) — About 200 shouting demonstrators paraded on a sidewalk in front of the White House Saturday demanding President Carter free the Wilmington 10.

Carter was at Camp David with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and there was no visible response from the White House to the demonstration.

The protest, organized by a local coalition to put pressure on the administration to intervene in the case, drew both black and white demonstrators.

Accidents Listed

Several accidents, resulting in two injuries and moderate property damages, were reported at the Greenville Police Department during the weekend.

At 1:27 a.m. Saturday, Benny Allen Beamon of Goldsboro was charged with driving under the influence and making an improper turn after he lost control of his car while turning off First Street on to Harding Street. The car jumped the curb and struck an oak tree.

Beamon and a passenger, Cherri Cousin, also of Goldsboro, were treated and released at Pitt Memorial Hospital. Damages were estimated at $700 to the vehicle.

At 2:03 p.m. Friday, Joan Christine Oosterwyck of Castle Hayne was charged with a safe movement violation after her car collided with another vehicle on Cotanche Street.

The Oosterwyck car was turning off East Ninth Street on to Cotanche Street when it struck a vehicle operated by Mary Tucker Little of Greenville. Damages were estimated at $300 to the Oosterwyck car and $100 to the Little vehicle.

No charges were preferred at 1:20 p.m. Friday when cars operated by James Earl Spell of 1104 W. Third St. and Dennis Lane Taft of 1802 Kennedy Circle collided on Railroad Street.

According to the report, the Taft vehicle attempted to pass a road grader and slid on a muddy spot in the street, causing the collision with the Spell vehicle.

Damages were estimated at $325 to the Spell car and $350 to the Taft vehicle.

Somalian Drive Now Underway

By CHARLES P. WALLACE

MOGADISHU, Somalia (UPI)

— Somalia announced Saturday that Soviet-backed Ethiopian forces in Ethiopia's embattled Ogaden region have launched a massive two-pronged offensive aimed at slicing through northern Somalia to the sea.

"The situation is very grave for Somalia," Abdikassim Salad Hassan, the Somali minister of information and national guidance, said in an interview with United Press International.

Hassan said the offensive began Friday, with Ethiopian, Cuban, Soviet and South Yemeni forces pushing east of the city of Harar and north from the industrial center of Dire Dawa, two strategic strongholds in the north of the Ogaden region.

Harar, which lies 250 miles east of Addis Ababa, has been under attack by Somali forces since the end of November. Dire Dawa is about 40 miles to the northwest over the mountains from Harar.

Hassan said one prong of the attack was aimed at driving through the eastern Ogaden city of Jijiga straight through into Somali territory to capture Hargeisa, the nation's second largest city, and finally the seaport of Berbera on the Gulf of Aden.

The second prong, he said, was driving north from Dire Dawa toward the town of Aysha, 30 miles from the border of tiny Djibouti.

Hassan said Somali regular forces have gone on the alert at the Somali-Ethiopian border and that a general mobilization of Somali forces "will take place sooner or later — and most probably very soon."

News of the Ethiopian offensive was handed Saturday to the ambassadors of the United States, France, Britain, West Germany, and Italy with an urgent appeal for assistance, Hassan said.

Arrests Made

By SCOTT LATHAM

NEW YORK (UPI) — Authorities

arrested a former babysitter, her half brother and another man Saturday in connection with the $100,000 kidnapping of fashion designer Calvin Klein's 11-year-old daughter.

Edward Foley, special agent in charge of the FBI's New York criminal division, said agents recovered all but $100 of the $100,000 ransom paid to gain the release of Marci Klein.

At a news conference at FBI headquarters in New York, Foley identified the suspects as Paule Lewis, 23; her half brother, Dominique, 19; and Cecil Wiggins, 24, all of New York City.

Year Of The Horse, Year 4676 New Year Celebrations

By PAUL LOONG

HONG KONG (UPI)

— Millions of Chinese in Hong Kong and throughout the world were preparing Saturday to ring in the Chinese New Year with deafening blasts of fireworks, dragon dances and huge banquets.

The Year of the Horse — harbinger of energy and liveliness — actually starts at midnight Monday but the celebrations are so involved the preparations actually began weeks ago.

There were red envelopes to fill with stiff new bills as gifts for the children, dragon dances to be practiced, firecrackers to be readied, meals to be prepared and flowers to be bought as signs of the dawning spring, growth and happiness.

The fireworks and dragon shows are to drive off any evil spirits that may try to sneak in with the New Year.

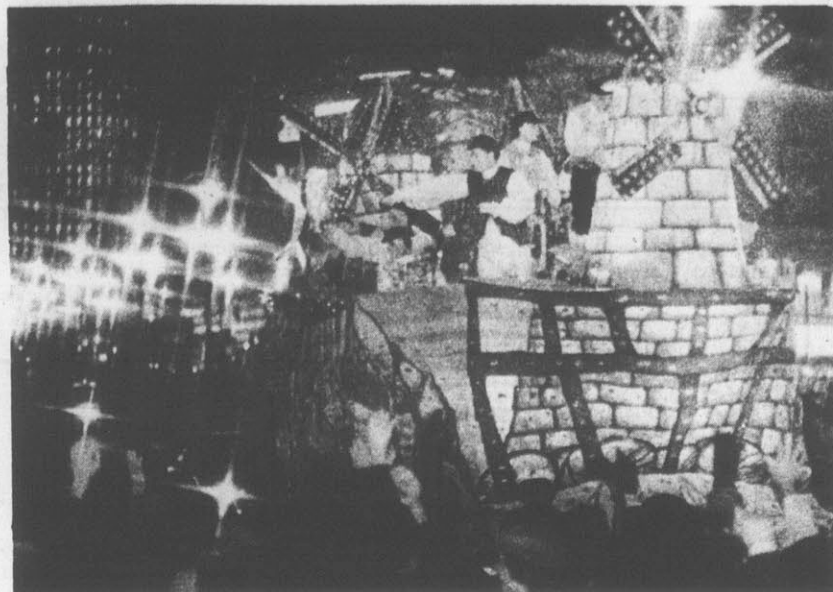

On Monday, someone will carry a branch of peach blossoms through the concrete blocks of Hong Kong and suddenly everyone knows it's 4676 — by the reckoning of the Chinese calendar — and the biggest festival of the year.

The New Year flower markets are a riot of color and scent that cover parks and open areas. Hundreds of thousands of people shove good-naturedly through the sea of humanity at the gatherings.

The days immediately before the new year are a time for the mending of old quarrels, settling old debts and house cleaning — an act of exorcism, ridding oneself of last year's "dirt" and starting off with a clean slate.

Housekeeping In Courthouse

HARLAN, Ky. (AP) — Most of the residents of Yocum Creek have set up housekeeping in the Harlan County Courthouse.

And they have vowed to stay until they get the bridge rebuilt linking their remote mountain community to the highway across a creek.

Until then, there are only two paths to the group of about a dozen houses in Yocum Creek: an 60-foot-long, 18-inch-wide steel I-beam across the creek or a long walk over a rugged, wooded mountain.

May Run For Court

NEW BERN, N.C. (UPI) — Black lawyer Reginald Frazier said Saturday he will not run for the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate but is considering running for the state Supreme Court.

Not Interested

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — State Agriculture Commissioner James A. Graham said Saturday he isn't interested in a high-ranking post in the U.S. Department of Agriculture and recommended former Gov. Robert W. Scott for the job.

Municipalities Buy A Share

In Piedmont North Carolina 20 municipalities have reached an agreement with Duke Power Co. to purchase 75 percent of one of its nuclear power generating units at Lake Wylie, S.C.

The huge 1145 megawatt nuclear power station's two units are under construction and in fact are only 20 percent complete. The unit which the municipalities are purchasing a share of is scheduled to be completed in 1983.

The municipalities, operating under the name of N. C. Municipal Power Agency No. 1 signed a letter of intent to purchase a share of the unit.

The signing represents a new direction in the ways of financing the tremendously expensive electric generating facilities that this nation now must have.

There was a time when many municipalities had their own generating facilities which furnished power for the town. The small units became cost inefficient, however, and municipalities signed contracts with the private power companies to furnish electricity wholesale.

Now, however, the cost of financing the monstrous generating plants which are most cost efficient is becoming beyond the reach of even the big private power companies.

Municipals can finance at far less cost the private companies and the cities involved are anticipating that this will eventually mean lower cost of electricity for their citizens.

The agreement with Duke Power does not affect our area, but there is an N. C. Municipal Power Agency No. 2, made up of municipals which are customers of Virginia Electric and Power Co. There is also an Agency No. 3, in the Carolina Power and Light area.

Agency No. 2, which includes Greenville, is looking at a possible similar deal with VEPCO; that is the agency could purchase a portion of a nuclear power plant as a way to offset rising electric costs.

The negotiations are not as far along as was the case with the Duke Lake Wylie plant, but the eastern municipals will be watching closely the progress in the Piedmont. It is likely we will see more such agreements made, and it is probable that one or more will affect our area.

Continue To Set Enrollment Records

East Carolina University enrollment reached an all-time high with 11,179 students on campus for the spring semester.

The figure eclipsed the previous record of 11,176 set in the winter quarter of 1976-77.

Even with a declining population of college age people and the military draft no longer a factor, records continue to be set. It is remarkable.

THIS AFTERNOON

Wilmington 10 Watchers

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Some purely personal reflections and observations on the circus surrounding North Carolina's celebrated Wilmington 10:

The Soviet government news agency Tass points the finger of guilt at North Carolina for holding political prisoners and suppressing human rights.

Have the gates of Lubyanka Prison been thrown open to the world press for an unrestrained meeting with prisoners in which any emotional diatribe went unchecked and unpunished?

Chavis

Ben Chavis has changed little from the days when I knew him in Charlotte. He was a shy, soft-spoken young man who was almost embarrassed by some of the flaming rhetoric he could use.

I teased him then that it sometimes seemed he frightened himself as much as his listeners as he threatened action by the Black Panther group he represented. Chavis was, at that time, very cooperative with Charlotte city officials in helping to cool tempers, and privately admitted that he had to drive carefully — one auto wreck would have wiped out his entire organization.

In the late 1960s, Chavis was ambitious to gain national prominence, and went to Wilmington.

Suddenly, he was "The Rev. Mr. Ben Chavis." He is not considered a regularly ordained minister of an established church despite regular use of the title by the news media. Chavis ordained himself a minister in the Church of the Black Messiah. Even the United Church of Christ which has been a strong supporter of his has seen fit to clarify the point that he is not a minister in that church.

Press

Representatives of the national and international press hit Raleigh some 100 strong for the occasion of a news conference by Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr. and by the Wilmington 10 at Central Prison.

The governor was challenged repeatedly on almost every point; the Wilmington 10 could respond to practically any question with nothing more than inflammatory rhetoric, but were never pinned down. Lawyer James A. Ferguson appeared to deliberately direct question opportunities to recognizable representatives of the visiting news media, on occasion simply cutting off a question from a North Carolina newsman to turn to another questioner.

BILL NOBLITT

Most time was given to a movie film crew — not even a news operation — which posed political questions and elicited responses from each of the group in turn. When we asked the crew later who they were, where they are from, where the movie will be shown, what organization is backing it, and where the money comes from, the answers were abrupt, hostile, and completely uninformative.

Television

Contrary to the performance anticipated by some North Carolinians, the network television news broadcasts presented balanced and informative reports which stressed that Gov. Hunt determined the court processes had been fair and the prisoners are guilty of burning and conspiring to shoot at officials; while still allowing Chavis and crew to have their say. They did not dwell at length on the emotional harangues which dominated the news conference. One observer snorted: "Ask them what time it is, and the answer would be Time to free us victims of political oppression, etc."

Long Line

Central Warden Sam Garrison observed during the proceedings that if every man at Central who felt himself innocent and the victim of false prosecution were asked to fall in line, it would reach 1,650 long. That moved a reporter to wonder at the possibility of an International Committee to Free the Central 1,650.

Is Governor Hunt worried that ultra-liberal Congressmen and national columnists say they will oppose him if he ever seeks national office? That, says an aide, is "like being thrown in the briarpatch. We would pay some of those to oppose him."

Sunday Morning Notes

Malcolm Green, assistant director of Greenville Utilities, was chuckling at an East Carolina basketball game recently.

He had a ticket to the game and his daughter's porthole gang card in his wallet. The porthole gang card entitles kids under 12 to admission.

Malcolm approached the door to Minges Coliseum and absent minded pulled out the porthole gang card. He flashed the card to the ticket taker who, equally absent minded, waved Malcolm on through.

Big boy for his age.

The Rev. James Bailey, pastor of Jarvis United Methodist Church, recently returned from a tour of the Holy Land.

It obviously was a moving experience for a minister, as it would be for any Christian.

In a church bulletin message to the members, he described taking Communion "in what is presumed to be the quiet garden of Joseph of Arimathea near the tomb in which Christ might have been lain."

The Communion cup, he related, was carved from olive wood "pruned from branches of olive trees that were grown before Jesus' day." (Olive trees live for three to four thousand years.)

"We discovered that with 747 jets this place is not so far away and by the re-enactment of the Sacrament that time-wise the First Century is not that far away either," the Rev. Bailey wrote. "That is what is meant by a trip back in time and space."

He concluded the written message, no doubt with a twinkle in his eye. "But I am convinced the only reason Moses, when looking out from the top of Mt. Nebo, thought that the land beyond the Dead Sea was the Promised Land was because his eyes were not good enough to see all the way to Greenville." Amen.

John F. Minges, Greenville businessman and trustee of ECU, evidently has a good pipeline to campus going on.

At the board of trustees meeting last week, Carolyn Fulghum, dean of women, presented a report on a campus visitation policy questionnaire. She noted that Thursday nights appear to be the most noisy in the women's dorms.

Minges told the board that his information is that at ECU, "there isn't any such thing as Thursday night. It's 'little Friday.'"

Well judging by the cars which fill parking lots most Thursday nights, we wonder how it could be noisy in the dorms. Everybody must be downtown.

40 Years Ago Today

February 5, 1938

Firemen were kept busy from shortly before 4 p.m. yesterday, when the first of four alarms came in, until after 10 p.m.

The first fire was at the intersection of Fourteenth and Pitt Streets, where several junked automobiles burned. Fire Chief George Gardner said no loss was caused by the blaze.

About 7 p.m., firemen were summoned to a home at the end of Cotanche Street. Loss from this fire was said not to exceed two or three dollars.

About an hour and half later the third alarm called firemen to the home on Evans Street. The fire, which was started by a kitchen oil stove, caused damage estimated at $10.

The fourth alarm was false.

Majority Leader Barkley of Kentucky indicated he would move to lay aside the anti-lynching bill next week.

"I am unwilling that this whole session should be wasted or consumed in futile discussion," he said.

Barkley voted against shelving the measure when Southerners failed by a 52 to 34 vote to pigeonhole it yesterday.

Both senate and house were in recess today. Southern senators arranged a caucus to map next week's strategy against the anti-lynching bill.

Iran's Costly Movie

By BOB THOMAS

Associated Press Writer ISFAHAN, Iran (AP) — Elmo Williams squinted anxiously at the Persian sky. Bad news.

Gray clouds obscured the sun, making outdoor photography impractical. A vast caravan of nomads, camels, donkeys and sheep stood ready to march.

"Let's shoot inside," said Williams.

Director James Fargo prepared a scene between Anthony Quinn and his son Duncan, 26, within one of the 50 tents that dotted the rugged hillside. Williams seemed undisturbed by the delay of the caravan march, even though expenses were ticking away at the rate of $6,000 an hour.

"You win a few, you lose a few," the American producer said.

This is "Caravans," Iran's ambitious bid for the world film market. The price: $12 million.

Nearly 800 nomads have been brought from various parts of Iran, plus 60 Iranian soldiers for pursuit scenes. They are paid $18 a day.

Crew members earn far more, and they are an international lot: 55 Iranians, 30 Englishmen, eight Germans, eight Americans, five Iranian-Americans, and one Filipino, Australian, Afghan and Jamaican. Plus the five-man German "Bum Bum Espresso" (Boom Boom Espresso) — for special effects.

Starring in "Caravans" are Quinn, Jennifer O'Neill and Michael Sarrazin, with Joseph Cotten, Barry Sullivan, Christopher Lee, Jeremy Kemp and Iranian star Behrooz Vosoughi.

The man who put it all together is the 64-year-old Williams, who rises at 5 a.m. to look for the stars in the sky — a sign the sun might bless the day's filming.

Born in Lone Wolf, Okla., and reared in Dead Man, N.M., Williams is a 45-year film editor (Academy award, "High Noon"), director, producer and studio chief. He has helped re-stage the invasion of Normandy — "The Longest Day" — and the Pearl Harbor attack — "Tora, Tora, Tora."

"Caravans," the James Michener novel, about a U.S. senator's daughter who joins Afghan nomads, was a 1966 bestseller, and MGM bought the film

THE INSIDE REPORT

'Big Jim' Proving Adroit

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — During his first year of elective office, Gov. James R. Thompson of Illinois has passed one test of a viable presidential candidate opposing Jimmy Carter but is in danger of flunking a second test that has long confounded Republican moderates.

There had been doubts how Republican Thompson, who as the U.S. Attorney in Chicago specialized in putting crooked Democratic politicians in federal prison, would get on with a Democratic legislature. In fact, he has proved adroit at negotiation and compromise — skills that in a presidential campaign would be offered in vivid contrast to President Carter's problems with Congress.

But negotiation and compromise have not reconciled either the Reaganite right or the old guard regulars of the Illinois Republican party' Thompson's fiscal conservatism and anti-crime program do not convince conservative Republicans in the legislature. "Believe me, Thompson's a lot more liberal than he seems to be," says one such legislator, determined to fight Thompson-for-President in 1980.

That suggests a formidable problem of enemies within his home state. But in a broader sense, Big Jim Thompson confronts the same puzzle faced but never solved by Nelson Rockefeller during two decades of trying: how to pacify the Republican right sufficiently to get a crack at wooing Democrats in a presidential election.

So far, at least, Thompson does not share Rockefeller's reputation as a free-spending high priest of big government. "We have had too many unrealistically high expectations about what government can do," Thompson told us. That sounds a lot like Gov. Jerry Brown of California and a little like Jimmy Carter. But unlike both of them, Thompson avoids confrontation with the establishment — especially legislators. Instead, he seeks accommodation.

Chiefly, there has been the grand compromise between Thompson and the Chicago Democratic organization. In return for backing a cut-down version of the late Richard J. Daley's long-frustrated Chicago crosstown expressway, Thompson received Democratic help for his balanced budget. That followed four years of unrelenting struggle between the legislature and maverick Democratic Gov. Dan Walker.

The contrast between Springfield and Washington is not ignored by Thompson. He criticizes Mr. Carter for not using his State of the Union message to offer real compromises on energy that would pass a bill without further ordeal. Big Jim is saying, in effect, that's the way I would do it. Within a few weeks of being elected governor, Thompson on trips to Washington was making friends with congressional Democratic leaders.

He also has been making friends in Springfield, radically changing the climate here following the haughty, fierce-eyed Walker. (Continued On Page A-5)

Strength For Today

THE FUTURE GENERATION

Who will be leading America in the first years of the twenty-first century? What kind of men and women will then be holding offices of prominence and power?

Right at this moment, sleeping in a crib is a boy or girl in whose hands the destiny of our country may rest some forty or fifty years in the future. Some future scientist is now crying lustily because his 4-hour feeding has been delayed. Some artistic genius is perhaps sitting in a humble home playing with building blocks.

We casually say, "Oh yes, they will be running things when they reach maturity." But how are all these children being prepared to meet the great issues of their lives?

We must always keep in mind that stable character comes first; and let us also remember that religious faith is one of the most important elements of this character. We should remember that faith and character do not just happen. They are taught, most importantly, by example.

Pretty Much Rely On OPEC

By MARTIN MERZER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It came as no surprise that most oil company profits increased again last year, but there were two trends that did surprise a few analysts and which could force some companies to alter the way they do business.

Among the nation's top 15 oil companies reporting earnings by the end of this week, only four failed to achieve higher earnings in 1977 than in 1976. The surprising part was that the largest and the smallest companies among the top 15 were among those with reduced earnings.

Exxon Corp., the world's largest industrial firm, said its estimated 1977 net income was $2.41 billion, or $5.38 a share, down 8.7 percent from 1976's net income of $2.64 billion, or $5.90 a share.

The company blamed foreign exchange losses of $265 million for most of the decline. It was one of the latest ramifications of the U.S. dollar's weakness against foreign currencies.

Mobil Corp., Standard Oil Co. of California and the Standard Oil Co. (Indiana) also reported sizable losses due to foreign exchange setbacks, but those losses were more than offset by higher earnings in other areas.

John Simpson, an oil analyst for Citibank, said the firms will have to take steps to avoid the losses in the future.

"It all depends on what happens with the dollar," he said. "If the government doesn't do something to firm up and strengthen the dollar, the companies might have to take some action."

But Simpson and others could not predict what those steps might be.

The other point made by analysts is that the major companies might be moving back toward the money-making formula which served them well before the Arab oil embargo of 1973-74.

"It's the old-time religion," said E. Anthony Copp, an oil analyst with Salomon Brothers. "Those with production gains, those with more petroleum self-sufficiency will do better on average than those without."

Since the embargo, oil earnings have pretty much been tied to price levels set by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries. But with OPEC apparently deciding to forgo large increases in the near future, a company that wants to increase its earnings will have to increase its share of market and production, some analysts believe.

The 15th-largest firm, Ashland Oil Inc., reported a 9 percent drop in earnings for the fourth quarter of 1977. Ashland has been short of oil for its refineries in recent months.

Opposition Is Swelling

By George Gallup

PRINCETON, N.J. — While most Americans support the principle of labor unionism, they are increasingly opposed to the right of public employes to strike.

Specifically, 59 per cent of the public approve of labor unions while about half this many, 31 per cent, disapprove. However:

— A 61 per cent majority thinks policemen should not be allowed to strike, an increase of 9 percentage points since 1975;

— 62 per cent would not allow firemen to strike — a 7 percentage point increase since 1975;

— 51 per cent say teachers should not be permitted to strike, a marginal increase in this sentiment (3 percentage points) since 1975.

A recent 18-nation survey conducted by Gallup International Research Institutes shows 54 per cent of Americans predicting that 1978 will be a year of industrial disputes and strikes, whereas only 23 per cent take the opposite view.

RATING UNIONISM

The public's current endorsement of trade unionism is down from the levels recorded in the period 1936 through the 1960s, but is the same as the figure recorded in the most recent previous survey, in 1973, when 59 per cent also approved.

Following are the questions asked in the survey and trend comparisons of the national results and the findings by members of union and non-union families.

LOW EBB IN CONFIDENCE IN UNIONS IN U.S., ENGLAND

The findings reported today come at a time when confidence in labor unions remains at a low ebb — both in the U.S. and in other nations, including Great Britain.

In the U.S., for example, only 16 per cent of the public expresses "a great deal" of confidence in organized labor, with the percentage not much higher among labor union families — 25 per cent.

In addition, only 13 per cent of Americans give labor union leaders a "very high" or "high" rating for their honesty and ethical standards, while 47 per cent give them a rating of "low" or "very low."

A Conservative View Silly And Symptomatic Of Bureaucracy 1978

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — As if American businessmen didn't have enough foolishness to put up with, they are about to encounter one more imposition from Jimmy Carter and His Jolly Elves. The president's secretary of commerce, Juanita Krebs, wants to establish a corporate Social Performance Index.

I am minded to ask, in a spirit of nearly total exasperation, why? Why this giddy index? Will the Carter administration never be content to get off the people's backs, and simply to leave the people alone?

Mrs. Krebs is a nice person. I do not mean to say an unkind word about her. She means well. But this is an especially fatuous idea: it is a piece of solicitous do-gooding, at once silly and symptomatic, and it is the kind of thing that tends to make big government bigger.

The dear lady trotted forth her Social Performance Index in a speech at Duke University last October. Within the business community, her trial balloon aroused some alarm and no cheers. There was some hope that maybe she would lie down until the impulse went away. Alas, no. Mrs. Krebs turned up before a House committee on January 23 to push this dubious notion anew. She has created a task force. She has taken "a number of new social performance initiatives." She is planning a series of regional conferences. Like it or not, the lady is out to do good. Why, dammit, why?

What Mrs. Krebs is talking about is a corporation's obligation to do something more than merely to earn a profit. She is concerned with how corporations live with their neighbors and with their own employees. She believes — and who would quarrel with the proposition? — that it is in a corporation's own self-interest to consider the public interest. Corporations today are judged, she says, partly on the basis of their social performance. Whaddya know?

This is kid stuff. Somewhere in this broad land a few corporate relics of the 19th century may still be operating in the pattern of the public-benefitted: a few molding tycoons may still be wedded to concepts of the sweat shop, child labor, foul pollution, and to grinding the faces of the poor. But these would be very few.

The far more typical corporation has an entire department of public relations. It has advertising agencies, personnel specialists, recreation consultants, community advisors, cafeteria managers, the whole nine yards. The typical corporation has a budget for philanthropy, for fine art, for gardens, for guided tours, for tea and crumpets.

Mrs. Krebs knows this is so. She acknowledges "numerous examples" in her October speech. This was how she described one of them: "The Corporate Social Policy Department of Standard Oil of Indiana has built on a minority and urban affairs project approach to a broader social impact concern, embracing three basic principles of responsible social performance." Aaargh! Bargle-bargle-bargle!

But Mrs. Krebs is not satisfied with what business is doing on its own. Onward and upward! She expects to devote a "good bit of my attention" to encouraging business leadership in corporate social performance. As a step in that direction, "we intend to develop and publish a Social Performance Index that will give business a way of appraising the social effects of its business operations."

One groans. The dear lady intends to gather data, compile data, and publish data. She will assist businessmen in evaluating their own performance. She will ensure businesses that they get public credit for the good things they do. She will thus use the example of the good children to encourage the bad children, and it will all be peachy keen.

Mrs. Krebs insists that she is not intent on ranking or grading companies. Her measurement system would be entirely voluntary. She is only trying to help, by contriving a management tool. Madam, one would like to say, to help someone else. For the harassed businessman, this is one more form, one more report, one more drain on executive time, one more needless, unwanted goody-goody intrusion by government. Through their own trade associations and their own internal decisions, corporations already are cognizant of their social performance. Who needs another nanny?

"I personally like the guy a lot," says one of Thompson's most severe Republican critics.

Easily recognized at 6-foot-6, Thompson practices the non-imperial governorship. One day last week, irritated by a critical editorial in a downtown newspaper, he wandered up to the pressroom for a late afternoon shot of bourbon. The next day, Thompson spent two hours eating lunch with state government public information officers.

"Gov. Walker was unapproachable; he would never go to a lunch like this," said one official, a Walker patronage employe kept on by Thompson. But such breaking of Illinois's partisan tradition is not universally applauded.

County chairmen complain that non-Republicans get the patronage while their telephone calls go unreturned. Simultaneously, Reaganites grumble about Thompson's vetoes of pro-life and anti-abortion bills, and support for the women's equal rights amendment (ERA). Both groups protest that "whiz kids" run the state.

So, a combination of ideology and old-fashioned politics brings together issue-oriented conservatives who supported Ronald Reagan and patronage-oriented old-guardsmen who supported Gerald Ford into an anti-Thompson coalition. These groups are backing an anti-Thompson candidate for state comptroller in the Republican primary March 21 as a preview of what may aid the governor in the presidential primary two years hence.

Thompson's response to these Republicans is to stress his tough program establishing "class X" violent crimes legislation and his balanced budget, called "our greatest achievement" in a speech last week to the Evanston Chamber of Commerce. Thompson declared to them that "every time a government official starts using words like 'bold' or 'imaginative,' the taxpayers reach for their wallets to see if they're still here." The cheer from the Evanston businessmen foretold future use of that applause line.

To the editor:

The treaties for disposing of the Panama Canal continue to be of great concern to the American people. President Carter has thoroughly reviewed his position with the widest publicity possible. The reasons which the President and others have given provide only three arguments for the treaties: guilt, fear and magnanimity. A fourth is not mentioned: the ulterior purpose of using our national property to underwrite bank loans to Panama.

Only the briefest consideration can be given here to the three reasons which encompass all arguments advanced for the treaties: 1. Guilt: if there is any, it is toward Columbia, not Panama. Only benefit has come to Panama from the Canal, and with the benefit, the lust for more. 2. Fear of disturbance by the Panamanian people. Does this indicate the decline of the U.S. as a world power? Are we to surrender to a tiny Marxist state? 3. Can it be magnanimous to be generous under threat and guilt? Is the word not profligate and prodigal instead? Did prodigal action ever win a friend?

It is important to write to your Senator now; and to your Representative. Address: Sen. Robert Morgan and Sen. Jesse Helms, both U. S. Senate, Washington, D. C. 20510 and Congressman Walter Jones, U. S. House of Representatives, Washington, D. C. 20515.

To the editor:

Why should we get upset? Why be concerned? Why shouldn't Califano and his chief take $23 million of taxpayers' money to tell everyone to stop smoking? He rules our lives through control of our schools, housing, social security, etc. Why not tobacco?

Why not diplomatic relations with Cuba? They need our money. We need their cigars. Human rights?

Why not double standards in human rights? What's wrong with kicking our old friend, Rhodesia, and giving money to Russia?

Why shouldn't soldiers and sailors refuse to go into battle with their union stewards' permissions? President Carter has approved the immediate unionization of military personnel, even though Congress hasn't approved it.

Why shouldn't Soul City get some more millions? It is benefiting a few people.

Why not lie about Marston's firing? Pres. Carter only lied three times.

Why shouldn't the White House withhold the FBI investigation of Torrijos and his brothers' involvement in the drug traffic in the U.S. Human rights? What's wrong with a little cover up?

Why should all Russian children be required to learn to speak and read English? This is to prepare them for a U. S. vacation, or maybe for the takeover of America.

Why isn't Torrijos qualified to operate the Panama Canal? He has already bankrupted Panama, plus owing New York bankers millions.

Why shouldn't we give the Russians arms superiority in the Salt II agreement? Russia says, "You can trust us." What more do we need except a strong belief in the Easter Bunny?

Why shouldn't we dump Taiwan? Then get in bed with Red China—drop a little one and get a big one.

Why can't Pres. Carter change his mind? Candidate Carter wrote a letter strongly advocating deregulation of natural gas. Pres. Carter says deregulation is "war profiteering."

Why should we balance the budget? Most everybody gets his chunk of federal money — except the middle class wage earner who pays the bills.

Recognition May Come Even In Waiting Rooms

Fame has its disadvantages.

I should know. Not that I've ever been mobbed by a crowd of eager male fans lusting after my autograph. I could handle that. In fact, I've often dreamed of that. But I have shared some of the misery of having a name that is occasionally recognized.

Last week, for instance. It was the day after the bad windstorm, and I had spent the night awake, waiting for an uprooted tree to crash through my window. There were huge circles under my eyes. The atmosphere didn't agree with me, and my hair looked as if I'd stuck all ten of my fingers in an electrical outlet — one at a time. All I wanted to do was to spend the day in bed with my head well-hidden under a pillow. Instead, I had to take Meg to see the pediatrician at the Well-Child Office —

Where we waited. And waited. And waited. One and a half hours we waited. And Meg was patient — for the first ten minutes. For the next five she occupied herself by playing on the indoor slide in the playroom. Then it was my turn to entertain her.

"Come on, Mommy — come in there and play," she said, pulling my arm. Unfortunately, the only chair in the playroom was one foot high. It took me five minutes just to ease my aching body into it. Then Meg again commanded, "Play!" and shoved a virulent looking doll in my face.

"What do you want me to play?"

Three mothers were staring at me with an "Oh, poor child" look.

"Oh, all right," I sighed. "Bring me a story, and I'll read it to you."

She brought me GO DOGS GO. And I read GO DOGS GO three times. Three times I read, "Where are those dogs going? To the tree! To the tree! Up the tree! Three times I squirmed under the amused glances of the couple across from me. Three times I blushed to the roots of my haywire hair.

This all happened before Meg found the bathroom, escorted me to it four times, and beat on the door once when it was occupied. THAT was before she shut herself in the coat closet twice and took an unguided tour of the examination rooms.

Finally, the nurse called her name — "MEG MICHAELS!"

"Say," said the woman sitting across from me. "Aren't you the one that writes that column for the paper?"

"Yes," I gulped.

She turned to her husband. "See, Harry, I TOLD you it was all true."

"Come with me!"

As an independent producer, Williams tried to buy "Caravans." MGM would let it go for what the studio had invested: $1 million.

But three years ago at the Cannes Film Festival, the producer encountered Dr. Mehdi Boushehri, an Iranian official who wanted Williams to help the oil-rich nation start a film industry.

The Iranians suggested a film about Cyrus the Great. Williams said no. He went after "Caravans," made a deal with MGM for $100,000 and a share of the profits.

President Carter's Spending Plans, And You

By LEONARD CURRY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter says he would like to spend $2,300 next year for every man, woman and child in the United States.

Congress must approve the plan outlined Jan. 23 for a $500.2 billion budget in the federal bookkeeping year that begins Oct. 1. But if the president gets his way, the outcome would be something like the following for many Americans.

For every person who earns $15,000 a year or less and heads a family of four, the budget would provide more in federal services than the worker pays in taxes directly or indirectly — through purchases on which businesses would pay taxes.

For families of four with earnings of more than $15,000, the president's budget would take more in direct and indirect taxes than it would return in federal spending.

Retired people and those on welfare stand to gain more from the federal budget than those who work or who have substantial investment income. But with an estimated 218 million people in the United States, spending of $500 billion would average about $2,300 for each.

Here is how some of that amount would be divided:

— $560 to old-age retirement, widows with dependent children, medicare and medicaid benefits.

— $370 for federal worker payrolls and retirement benefits.

— $470 to buy everything from airplanes to pencils and other materials and services used by federal employes.

— $900 for mass transit, street and sewer construction, food and services for allies overseas, subsidies for rents and home purchases, employment and training, energy research and development, disaster loans, subsidies for farmers and education grants for schools and colleges.

The Carter budget calls for an average $258 income tax reduction for a person with a $15,000 income and three dependents. But social security taxes would go up $42, which leaves a benefit of only $216 — or about $4 more in the weekly paycheck.

Carter also envisions simplifying income tax returns so that nine of every 10 taxpayers can take a standard deduction. This could save time and the money that paid for help in preparing income taxes. For those who itemize income tax deductions, the chance of an audit will be greater.

Carter will allocate more money to the Customs Bureau to enforce federal laws prohibiting low-price "dumping" of products from abroad that hurts U.S. production and employment. This could lead to higher prices for imported steel, cars and television sets and layoffs or reduced earnings for Americans working in the import trade.

For those selling goods made in America, there might be new job opportunities and higher earnings. But it might also lead to retaliation by foreign countries, which would hurt American business people and workers who depend on the export trade.

The $61.6 billion deficit that Carter envisions to carry out the spending program would be the third largest in history and raise the federal debt to $873 billion — or $4,000 for every person in the country.

The increase in the debt will lead to inflation and higher interest costs, which means the family with a $15,000 or higher income might not be able to afford a mortgage for a home. But if the income is less than $15,000 a subsidized home might be possible because of the increased emphasis on housing that is in the budget. And if the family already has a home, inflation could raise the value enough for another home to be purchased by using the increased equity.

Carter's decision to increase spending for national defense and energy research could mean more jobs for people who work for defense contractors and energy companies.

Federal spending for pollution control, anti-discrimination, parks and recreation will keep pace with inflation. Like the increases, those decisions also affect people with an economic or social stake in the areas affected.

How is Carter going to finance all of this? He says the money will be raised through:

— $61.6 billion in borrowing — Income taxes of $190 billion on workers, the self-employed and investors.

— Excise taxes of $26 billion on individuals and businesses.

— Social security taxes of $142 billion on workers, the self-employed and businesses.

— $20 billion from other sources including death taxes, renting of public lands for grazing livestock and rights to harvest minerals, oil and other natural resources.

Candidate Ingram Visited Here Friday

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

North Carolina Insurance Commissioner John Ingram, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate, visited Greenville Friday afternoon, concluding a court house and media swing through 11 counties last week.

The senatorial candidate, declaring, "We have been making free enterprise work," in North Carolina, said if elected to the Senate, he would introduce legislation "to take away the special interest exemption" insurance companies now have under the current anti-trust laws, and push for a health insurance program that will insure adequate health care for all Americans.

Ingram, who will officially kick off his campaign at a meeting Monday night in Randolph County, said America needs people in the Senate, "who will respond to the people not the special interests."

Noting that he fulfilled campaign promises to end the assigned risk plan and age and sex discrimination in auto liability insurance in the State — which Motor Trend Magazine and Small Business Magazine termed landmark legislation — Ingram said, "Our fight must now be in the national area of anti-trust, as well as insurance."

Indicating that the insurance industry is "too powerful to fight successfully at the state level year after year," Ingram said it is "important to break up monopolies and stop price fixing."

Explaining that the insurance industry is the only multi-billion dollar industry now exempt from the nation's anti-trust laws, Ingram said, "This special-interest exemption must be abolished."

According to Ingram, "We can make free enterprise work in all areas of health care. We broke the one company monopoly, which manufactured a fake malpractice crisis in North Carolina."

"North Carolina doctors," Ingram said, "formed their own company and this company now has a majority of the business and has requested two rate reductions."

Ingram emphasized, "We must make free enterprise work in health insurance so everyone can go to the agent of his choice and the company of his choice and get health insurance just like we purchase automobile liability insurance."

Special interest groups, according to the candidate, say free enterprise will not work in health insurance. "They would resign the problem to another federal bureaucracy attached to Social Security."

"They do not understand the problem, or they are so close to the special interests that they don't want free enterprise to work," Ingram charged.

Ingram noted that his work as Commissioner of Insurance has not been limited to the field of insurance.

Through his office, Ingram said, he works "very closely with...the firemen and the rescue teams that work so hard for the people of North Carolina."

He explained that through the Insurance Department's Fire and Rescue Services division — which provides training for firemen and rescue squad workers through the state — "we have helped many," fire departments become rated, thus reducing insurance rates for the people they serve.

"This means tremendous savings in insurance premiums to our home-owners and businesses buying fire insurance," in the state. Some 31,600 homeowners enjoy reduced fire insurance costs because of rated fire departments, he noted.

Under his leadership, according to Ingram, the Department of Insurance, through the administration of the State Building Code, "has led the fight to conserve energy. We were one of the first three states in the country to respond to the 1973-1974 oil embargo," he said, by requiring, "every new home to insulate floors, walls, and ceilings."

Anti-Terrorist Training Center

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — An almost unused stockade at Ft. Bragg has been chosen for a special program to boost American capability to combat terrorist activities, the Fayetteville Times reported Friday.

Activity increased Friday around the $1.5 million stockade, which military officials privately confirm will be the center for anti-terrorist training in the United States.

Thoms Ross, assistant secretary of defense for public affairs, told the Times that he could not deny the account of the anti-terrorist center, but he would not comment further.

Joan Little Seeks Work

NEW YORK (AP) — Joan Little said Friday she's been looking for a job since her release on bail Tuesday from the Women's House of Detention on Riker's Island.

"People are watching me to see what I do with my time," Miss Little said during a taping of the WNBC television program "Positively Black." She continued, "I am hated by a lot of people who think I shouldn't be on the streets."

No Hurry To Open Up Tibet

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — Chinese Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping today gave a rare news conference, joking with reporters and dampening Nepalese hopes for increased trade and possible joint tourism projects with Tibet.

Looking relaxed and self-assured, Teng fielded questions about his nearly four hours of talks Friday and Saturday with Nepalese Prime Minister Kirti Nidhi Bista, indicating that China was not in a hurry to open up Tibet.

Herndon

He commented, "Because of my lifelong experience in education, I feel qualified to work for the Greenville schools in order that our system can be as responsive as humanly possible to the needs of the students, to the concerns of the parents, to the teachers who spend the most time with the children, to the administrators who operate the system, and to the citizens whose tax dollars make our schools possible. We need to listen hard to all these people."

Herndon added, "I am deeply committed to a quality education for all students consistent with proper budgetary practices and sound educational principles."

Shank

also a member of Kappa Delta Pi Honor Society, and is listed in "Who's Who In American Women '77, '78."

Mrs. Shank is the mother of three children — Michael, 18, Mark, 15, and Tim, 12. All are now attending Greenville City Schools.

In her remarks on why she seeks election, Mrs. Shank said "It is evident that the making of several major far-reaching decisions will face the board in the near future. My deep concern is that there be sufficient knowledgeable input where policy and budget matters are determined, and especially when plans for a possible merger of the county and city units are considered."

"There are two areas of priority which I believe must continue to be strengthened and supported constantly, those of teaching quality and of parental and community involvement."

"Our community," Mrs. Shank added, "has shown tremendous growth economically and culturally; our schools should also reflect this progress."

Wall

"Civic involvement gives each of us the opportunity to express ourselves and to be involved in a worthy common purpose," Wall said. Commenting that no purpose can be more worthy than the education of our children, Wall added "Greenville has dedicated teachers and administrators but needs dedicated support and effort from all citizens in our community. I would like to give my time and energy to help make the Greenville City Schools the very best they can be for all our young people."

Evans Is Candidate For Sheriff...

He noted, "Pitt County is a growing county and all phases of county government must grow to keep up with this expansion. The Sheriff's Department is one of the most important parts of this government, in that it is the sole protector of the lives and property of its citizens."

The candidate added, "All law enforcement officers must grow to keep up with the constant changes in law and procedures. Since a large part of this training has to be done on the officer's off-duty time, the agencies must provide incentives for the officers to get this training."

Evans has almost completed the curriculum from the Department of Community Colleges for an associate degree in police science. He has graduated from the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs Investigators School, the SBI Drug Abuse Investigators School, the Basic Law Enforcement School, Jail and Detention Services School, arson detection, two riot control schools, two schools conducted on firearms and explosives, several local firearms schools taught by the FBI, and various law enforcement training schools.

While in law enforcement, Evans was a member of the Pitt County Law Enforcement Association, North Carolina LEA, and North Carolina Sheriff's Association. He is currently a member of the National Rifle Association, the North Carolina Rifle and Pistol Association, the Shooters Club of America, and the North Carolina Wildlife Association.

He has been a guest lecturer with the Department of Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Safety at East Carolina University. Evans is a member of the East Carolina Regional Drug Program and conducted drug abuse seminars at all high schools in the county and at several of the lower grade schools.

The former deputy is married to the former Rose Ann Ritchie and is a member of Hollywood Church.

Susan Quinn Named As First GACOC Public Relations Manager

(Continued from page A-1) present, there are 615 members. Our goal for this year will be 200 more. The responsibilities have just grown," she noted. It was this increase in membership and responsibilities that called for a Public Relations manager. At the out-of-town planning meeting held in November at Williamsburg, Va., Chamber members decided that several changes should be made to increase efficiency in their operations. Among these changes were the addition of staff members to divisions previously headed by members. It was at this meeting that Quinn's two positions were created. The East Carolina University graduate said that the Division of Public and Governmental Affairs is one of four Chamber divisions — the other three being Economic and Industrial Development, Organization and Membership Development, and Community Development. "The four divisions are divided into committees, and the number of committees are determined by the number of people within the division." Public and Governmental Affairs contains four committees — Public Issues, Congressional Action, State and Local Affairs, and Education. According to Quinn, her duties as manager of the Division include attending all committee meetings and co-ordinating their efforts.

"There are also sub-committee meetings, but I don't attend those," she added. She plans the agenda for each committee and also reads material pertinent to the individual groups from which she gathers information and reports to the committees. "Also, a very important part of my job is that I attend all major governmental meetings in Pitt County and if there are any public hearings, I will go to those." Quinn said that her purpose is to "observe legislation which would affect business in our area," and present written reports on such action. She noted that she also is responsible for contacting government officials, state, local, and federal, "to make them aware of how we (the Chamber) feel about the legislation." The Public and Government Affairs Division at present is making plans to issue a monthly publication listing the highlights of business, education, and all areas of government of concern to area residents. The Division is also planning to print a report of issues and answers pertaining to the upcoming spring election which should be published prior to the primary. "We might also have a forum for the candidates to participate in," she added. "The purpose of the Public and Governmental Affairs Division is to become involved in government and how it relates to business as well as to inform the Chamber membership and the general public how business legislation affects them." Quinn said that the Division does not intend to become involved in actual lobbying in political questions, but that trips will be made to speak to representatives and send communications to those representatives to express the Chamber's stand on given issues. "We're not really lobbying as such, but we're trying to develop a very close working relationship with all government officials." In her position as Public Relations Manager, Quinn is responsible for all news releases, including those for newspapers, television, and radio. She also said that she does a great deal of speech writing for Chamber members. Quinn said that she is very excited about her job and does not feel any inhibitions about being a woman in a managerial position. For one thing, there are two other women managers at the Chamber. "I have no hold-backs, possibly because I'm so interested in it. I feel that it's a position that could be equally filled by men or women...I'm very excited about it." She noted that the reason for her enthusiasm is the dedication expressed by Chamber members. "The Chamber last year has become very active in the area of Greenville," she said and cited plans for a new Chamber building on Red Banks Road as an example. "We're also trying to sell Greenville to the world this year," an effort involving publications, billboards, and slide presentations given in other cities. "That will involve a tremendous effort." Quinn added that the Chamber of Commerce also hopes to go county-wide before 1979. When asked which position she prefers, public relations or governmental, she said, "I don't think either one of these positions is more important than the other."

"The best part of my job is working with the volunteers." She added that writing "is my first love...government and how it affects people is my second love." Quinn, a native of Lenoir County, has lived in Winterville for the past two years. Prior to joining the Chamber staff she worked at both the Kinston Free Press and the Daily Reflector. Most recently she acted as senior bookkeeper at Greene Lamp, Inc., a Community Action Program located in Greene County. She is a member of the Winterville Missionary Baptist Church, N.C. Press Women's Association, and Clowns of America.

Charity Ball Is 'Trip To Old Williamsburg'

"A Visit To Old Williamsburg" was the theme for the 15th annual Charity Ball held at the Greenville Golf and Country Club Friday evening.

The ball was sponsored by the Greenville Service League and all proceeds will benefit the Laughinghouse Hospital Fund. The fund helps pay hospital bills of needy patients with no other source of revenue.

The league members recreated scenes of the Colonial past. From the torch lighted driveway, the 326 ball patrons and their guests were met by a doorman dressed as a Colonial coachman.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Boyd Lee and Mr. and Mrs. Leon Moore Jr. received in the club foyer. Mrs. Lee served as overall chairman of the event and Mrs. Moore is current president of the Service League.

The entrance hall featured elements of an elegant traditional Williamsburg setting, a crewl screen banked with greenery, a hunt board with brass candlesticks in hurricane globes and a fruit arrangement with tall fern stands.

Leaving the entrance hall, guests stepped into the candlelighted ballroom, where large portraits were placed on the walls and groupings of period furniture were featured in front of the windows. Of special interest was a fireplace flanked by wingback chairs and tea tables set with silver services.

Patrons were escorted to their tables by usherettes. Amy Pierce, Margaret McGlohon, Angela Patrick, Patsy Woronoff and Susan Vick, high school students and daughters of Service League members. The young ladies were dressed in handmade colonial costumes of emerald green, shocking pink and navy taffeta that featured an overbodice with a lace panel in front and flat butterfly caps.

The guests tables were covered with white cloths and adorned with blue candles in hurricane globes centered with dried flower arrangements in pewter bowls. Blue napkin rings and formal cream-colored programs in old English script marked each place. The bandstand was enclosed with a railing providing a gallery effect. Tall fern stands in the back added to the stately treatment.

As patrons arrived and dined, the Collegium Musicum, led by John McLellan, dressed in period costumes, played late Baroque musical selections which were typical of Colonial times. Composed of students in the East Carolina University School of Music, the group plans to go to Williamsburg when they finish their studies and perform in functions there.

Barry Shank's orchestra, The Highlighters, provided music for dancing.

The menu, taken from "The Williamsburg Cookbook," included baked ham with orange sauce, chicken with wild rice casserole, green beans, squash and swiss cheese casserole, frozen fruit salad with honey dressing and rum cream pie.

The entire membership of the league worked with Mrs. Lee to create the setting for the ball. Committee chairmen included: Finance, Mrs. Hubert Bryant;

Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Richard Gammon; Invitations, Mrs. W. C. Taylor Jr.; Food, Mrs. Allen Taylor and Mrs. Alfred Ferguson; Programs, Mrs. Percy Cox; Publicity, Mrs. Lawton Nisbet; Cleanup, Mrs. Herbert Carter; Sales, Mrs. Thomas Mallison; Mrs. Norwood Whitehurst was decorating chairman assisted by: Foyer, Mrs. Don McGlohon; Bandstand, Mrs. Charles Wilkerson Jr. and Mrs. John Whichard; Walls, Mrs. Charles Carter; Driveway, Mrs. C. L. Lupton; and Usherettes, Mrs. Bernard Vick. Mrs. Robert Woronoff served as chairman of special projects, which included an additional fund raising event during the ball to benefit the Greenville Rescue Squad.

ARC, State Funds Make Purchase Of ADAP Van Possible

By LYNN CAVERLY
Reflector Staff Writer
What do ADAP, WAG, REAP, and RESPIT all have in common? They are just a few of the organizations helped in one way or another by the Pitt County Association, for Retarded Citizens (ARC).

One of the most recent contributions from ARC was $4,500 which, along with matching funds from a state agency, allowed the Adult Development Activity Program (ADAP), to purchase a van.

ADAP is located in a residential house, and according to former ARC president Hester Latham, "offers the ultimate in social and academic training on an adult level".

There is another side of the ADAP program, RESPIT, which provides short term residential care for up to five adults or children, according to Carl Rothrock, director of ADAP-RESPIT.

"Sometimes families need to be relieved of the day-to-day care of their mentally retarded family members," said Rothrock, "and that is where RESPIT can help."

According to Rothrock, the van will hold 15 persons and will be used by both programs for field trips, transportation to and from community resources such as movies, restaurants and the like.

"The van will go into operation as soon as all those who will be driving the van obtain their chauffeurs license," said Rothrock, "and we get our 1978 tags."

The ARC office is run by Susan T. Peterson, executive secretary, who is available for consultations and lectures, according to Latham.

Recently she visited some of the organizations that ARC helps out to access their needs to see if there was anything ARC could provide.

On a visit to WAG, a center for the mentally retarded, she uncovered the need for a small refrigerator to keep food and medicines in.

"Basically," said Latham, "we provide support and try to obtain things that these organizations wouldn't ordinarily have."

Hester and her husband Vann, who is also active in the organization, have a mentally retarded son, Val. In a Bike-Hike sponsored recently by ARC, Val was the only retarded person to participate in the event, riding 15 miles and collecting $225.

"Although there is no program stressing public acceptance for the mentally retarded," said Vann Latham, "retarded from the support shown for these programs."

PRESENTING KEYS... to the newly acquired van to be used by participants in the ADAP-RESPIT Center is Susan T. Peterson, executive secretary of Pitt County Association for Retarded Citizens.

Dr. Charles Mitchell Pitt MHA President

"People are more important than things. Accept a person for what he or she is, not as what you would like him or her to be."

This was the central idea of a talk given by Dr. Charles Petty during the annual meeting of the Mental Health Association in Pitt County Tuesday evening.

Dr. Petty said oneness, affection, acceptance, humanity and religion are five of the "family covenants" he considers vital to the mental health of the family unit.

Officers installed during the meeting by Mental Health Association in N. C. President Ludie White were Dr. Charles Mitchell, president; Mrs. Janice Buck, vice president; Mrs. Evelyn Spangler, secretary; Mrs. Pam Kachmer, treasurer; Dr. Frank Fuller, assistant treasurer; and Carl Blackwood, member-at-large.

New Board of Directors members recognized were Dan Kelly, Matthew Lewis, John Bizzell, Jessie Harris, Howard Dawkins, Mrs. Howard Dawkins, Mrs. Theresa Shank, and Clifton Everett Jr., all of Greenville; Mrs. Mark Owens of Fountain; and Mrs. Patsy Mills of Ayden.

Dr. Mitchell presented the annual $500 David W. Hardee scholarship award to James Kelly Burgin, an East Carolina University graduate student majoring in psychology.

Mrs. Douglas Moore and Mrs. Lucille Sledge were presented pendant necklaces engraved with "People Who Make A Difference" for their volunteer work in the Operation Santa Claus project to provide Christmas gifts for residents of state mental institutions.

Outgoing president, Carl Blackwood, was given a special plaque noting his outstanding leadership during his presidency during 1976-77.

Mrs. Dorothy Hardy of Goldsboro, Eastern Regional Vice President of the MHA-NC and Ms. Peggy Hill, program director, were recognized.

conservation, we have been saving North Carolinians energy and money for three years," Ingram said.

The insurance commissioner noted too, that through the efforts of his department, North Carolina in 1975, became the first state to require smoke detectors to be installed in new homes—a step designed to save lives and property through the early detection of fire.

"The issue of issues," according to Ingram, "is who will represent the people and not the special interests."

"Solving this issue will help solve other issues such as energy, inflation, jobs, the economy, anti-trust and monopolies, and health care," Ingram charges.

"When someone says there are no simple solutions, tell them the difficulty is in overcoming the special interests."

FROM SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

By WILLIE MAE GIBBS
From Sheppard Memorial Library

During a half century of international fame, Marlene Dietrich, one of the great liberated women of the twentieth century and a superstar of stage and screen, has attempted to lock up most of the secrets of her private life. At last her biography, MARLENE: THE LIFE OF MARLENE DIETRICH, reveals for all to see a woman who has lived by her own rules, chosen her own men, and dared to present a bisexual image in her famous solo stage appearances. Written by Charles Higham, the New York Times' best-known interviewer of the stars and author of the best-selling KATE: THE LIFE OF KATHARINE HEPBURN, this book is based on over 160 interviews with Marlene's closest friends, colleagues, and directors. The child of a Prussian military family, impoverished by revolution and depression, Marlene emerged as a dazzling theater and cabaret performer in Berlin during the 1920's. She became internationally famous as Lola-Lola, temptress of the film classic THE BLUE ANGEL. Higham's biography discloses her romantic involvements with prominent figures of literature, stage, and screen, as well as her relationship with her daughter, her husband, and her husband's mistress; her triumphs in the theater; her post war success with her one-woman shows; and her later years of lonely seclusion, ill health and financial difficulties. The incisive interviews and personal accounts recorded in this book portray Marlene up close and off camera, the mesmerizing way she sounded and moved, the appeal of her direct sexuality that captivated thousands of men including Hitler, who begged her to be his mistress.

On the light side David Crea-ton has written in THE BEASTS OF MY FIELDS the happy and hilarious memoirs of an animal farmer. David is to animal farming what James Herriot is to animal doctoring. His glowing warmth, superb humor, and joyous love of life are totally captivating. Young and green but strong and enthusiastic, David moved with his mother, brothers, and sisters to a rambling farmhouse near Canterbury after the death of his father. Their only companions, a pair of sows called Skinny and Fatso, are soon joined by their own enormous and uncontrollable litters, scores of other personable and lovable animals, an amusing burlesque duo named Pete and Bert who from time to time are prepared to pose as farm hands, and a wife — in that order. All of these highly individual creatures go through the cycles of mating, and breeding, and milking, and going to market, and dying, while the author fends off chaos with a shaking hand. These cycles, along with farming's gentler attractions present a fascinating vision of farming before mechanization. David Crea-ton's tale at once bawdy and lyrical, rugged and gentle, is a warm-hearted portrait of the earthy hazards and pastoral joys of a way of life that is fast disappearing.

A Guide To The Value Of Old Books

Is My Old Book Valuable? By Edward L. Sterne. San Francisco, Calif. Fifth edition, 1977. A. Gordon Murray, Publisher, P. O. Box 18245, San Francisco, Calif., 94118. Paper, large format, 70 pp. $5.50 (includes postage and handling).

People who like books, people who are incurable seekers of anything collectible, or those who simply are curious about the possible monetary value of old (and not so old) books will do well to get a copy of Is My Old Book Valuable?

Author Sterne stresses in the preface that "most persons seeking information about their old books want to know the CASH value." Working from this premise, Sterne provides concise, valuable guidelines to the art of determining the value of a given book — and he honestly emphasizes there's no short-cuts to seeking out and establishing such information. Often, it is a time-consuming, intricate process.

The first, and leading, misconception about the monetary value of books that Sterne dispels is the common belief among novices that "old" alone equates to rarity and consequent value monetarily. His rebuttal to that belief is a table of prices realized for 16 books over a hundred years old — published as early as 1689 and up to 1847 — in comparison with 21 books published between 1904 and 1945.

Of the group of old books, sale prices realized range from $7 to $27.50, while prices realized for books in the newer group range from a low of $45 for a 1914 first printing of Kilmer's Trees and Other Poems to $850 for a copy of Monograph of the Birds of Prey, with color plates, published in 1930 by Swann and Wetmore.

There's little about basic factors that help determine the monetary value of a book that Sterne does not touch on. But in all instances, he cautions that in the final analysis, each of these factors must be considered and applied to any individual book, even to relatively rare ones.

Is My Old Book Valuable? provides brief, fascinating insights into all fields of buying and selling books and other printed or written matter, newspapers, prints from books, autographs, etc. The glimpses he provides of minor variations that often mean a big difference in a book's monetary value — things like fly leaf changes, errors, or page margin notes by a noted former owner — all make for intriguing reading. A chapter listing technical terms applicable to the printing and formats of books, and a few suggestions on where to seek additional information are most helpful.

Chances are that after browsing through Is My Old Book Valuable? the average reader will be more inclined to think in terms of becoming a collector rather than a seller.

Although this volume is primarily a "how to" type of book, it's beautifully printed and illustrated — with the glaring exception of the nondescript cover which is totally at odds with the rest of the book.

At $5.50, admittedly a little on the high side for a paperback publication, Is My Old Book Valuable? is still worth its weight in fine paper in these inflationary times. If you're a book lover, get a copy.

Hopes Score Is By Mozart

By IVA DRAPALOVA
Associated Press Writer
PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — Music experts think they have found part of a long-missing work by Mozart, but are stymied because so much of the piece seems amateurish.

"The first 16 bars or so (of each section of music) are always so beautiful. You could swear it was pure Mozart," said Jitka Snizkova, a Prague Conservatory professor and composer.

"But then there is a sudden break, and music of a different quality begins, amateurish music," said Miss Snizkova.

A number of music experts think part of the manuscript is a lost version of the Missa Solemnis by Mozart.

But many have given up hope that is THE Missa Solemnis mentioned by Ludwig von Koechel in the supplement to his famous catalog of Mozart's works.

It had lain around for 20 years in an archive in the East Bohemian town of Rychnov nad Kneznou.

The manuscript was discovered in the choir of a little church in Olesnice, a town near Rychnov nad Kneznou, in the 1950s.

Nobody thought much of the find, even though its title page bore the name of Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, native of neighboring Austria.

The manuscript was a copy and it was missing the parts for the all-important first and second violins. Although there appears little hope of finding the original, Miss Snizkova has been able to locate another copy.

It, too, was missing parts but different ones from the first copy.

Miss Snizkova was joined by other musicians in constructing a complete score from the two incomplete copies.

The musicians were ready to have the work performed, but Miss Snizkova said they had dropped the idea for fear other musicians would accuse them of trying to pawn off an unauthentic Mozart.

The trouble becomes most obvious in the Agnus Dei, Miss Snizkova said.

"The fugue is at first well developed and the gross violations of counterpoint begin," she said. "Such mistakes Mozart would not have made even during his learning years, even as a child."

"There is no Mozart composition which would have professionally weak, uncraftsman-like spots."

Miss Snizkova said she had worked out her own theory about who composed the music. "I can just see Mozart sitting in a pub and dashing off the introductory bars for a musician friend, leaving him to complete it in his own way. He was so full of musical ideas. It would have been no problem for him."

Pirate Rally Falls Short; ECU Loses To Richmond

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Like two emaciated hound dogs, East Carolina and Richmond, both hungry for a victory, battled for the bone called "win" last night, but it was the Spiders who went away satisfied, while the Pirates tucked their tails between their legs to wait for another chance.

The Spiders, who had failed to win a game on the road in eight earlier tries, came away with an 82-80 win over the Bucs as Herb Gray's last second effort to tie it up fell off the rim of the basket just before the horn sounded.

The contest, which matched teams with a combined 7-27 records, was close all the way. Richmond led by as much as six points down the stretch, while the Pirates enjoyed as much as a five-point lead, that coming in both halves.

Rebounding again seemed to be the key to the win by the Spiders. They pulled down 36, while East Carolina got only 28, led by Greg Cornelius' eight. Miller Butler had 13 to pace Richmond.

In shooting, the two were almost even, Richmond hitting 51.5 per cent and East Carolina, 52.6 per cent. The Pirates had only one more turnover, 21 to 20 for the Spiders.

The game also was a shooting contest between Richmond's Mike Perry and ECU's Oliver Mack. Both ended up with 30 points. Perry hit 13 of 21 from the floor and four of four at the line. Mack made good on 12 of 18 field goals and six of six at the line.

Herb Krusen ran his free throw percentage to 97.8 as he hit eight to be 45 of 46 for the year. Unless he misses, and even if he doesn't shoot against UT-Chattanooga on Monday, he will become the national free throw percentage leader.

There was little good Coach Larry Gillman could point to after the game. "Let's talk about

Richmond	ECU	g	f	r
Perry	13	4	30	Gray	4	8
Butler	4	3	15	Krusen	5	8
Rosemond	2	0	4	Cornelius	4	3

the good things first," he said. "The support of the community and student body is still outstanding, especially after the way we played against Old Dominion. That shows that some people genuinely care about our program." Official statistics listed 2,444 as the attendance.

"As for the game," he said, "we took a little lead there in the first half and had the chance to break it open, but we made a few mistakes that cost us. Richmond was able to come back and they did a good job. I was surprised by the first half shooting (60 for ECU and 55.5 for Richmond).

"We didn't play real good basketball. We played hard in the second half, but you have to play hard and good to win.

"Richmond is an improving team, and Perry is a fine player," Gillman added.

He was unhappy with the call at the end that sent Richmond to the foul line with a chance to wrap it up. "I didn't see the foul, and it was a late whistle if there was a foul."

Otherwise, Gillman had little comment on the officiating. "If I say anything, they'll hate me.

They do the best they can. Some nights they have off-nights, some nights the coaches have off-nights, and some nights the players have off-nights. I'm not saying who was off tonight."

East Carolina got the initial lead in the game, as Mack and Gray both hit for a 4-0 lead, but Richmond came back on baskets by Mark Reed and Perry to tie it after 1:45. Richmond then went ahead for the first time as Perry stuffed one in with 17:02 showing.

After that, the two teams began swapping the lead back and forth. The lead changed hands 15 times during the next ten minutes, with East Carolina finally moving ahead, 27-26 on a baseline jumper by Gray with 6:31 left. Krusen hit to tie the lead to three, and two minutes later Roger Carr sank two free throws to run the Pirate lead to five, 35-30 with 4:17 to go.

But Richmond got baskets from Perry and Vince Cowan and then Perry made two free throws with 2:45 left to put Richmond back into the lead, 38-37. Perry scored again with 2:06 left in the half for a three-point edge, and the Spiders held on for a 44-41 edge at halftime.

East Carolina fought back and regained the lead at 47-46, but

Furman Pulls Another Upset

State's Craig Davis (20) falls after foul by Ron Smith

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Jonathan Moore hit a turnaround jumper with 17 seconds left to give Furman a 68-67 win over North Carolina State Saturday night, marking the Palladins' second comeback win in as many nights in the North-South Doubleheaders.

The Wolfpack's Hawkeye Whitney went to the foul line in a one-and-one situation with 5 seconds left and a chance to tie or go ahead. But Whitney missed his shot and sophomore Rick McKinney hauled in the rebound and Furman ran out the final seconds.

Moore had 26 points for the game. Kendal Pinder was high man for State with 17 and Whitney added 13 points.

North Carolina met Virginia Tech in the second game of the doubleheader Saturday night.

Furman fought back from a 12-point deficit in the first half, almost matching their 14-point comeback to win against North Carolina on Friday night. The Palladins drew to within six at 40-34 at halftime on points from guard Bruce Grimm. Moore, McKinney and a goal at the buzzer by Al Daniel.

Furman tied the score at 56 all with 6:40 on the clock when Moore passed to Dave Dredger under the basket. The Palladins went up by as much as five in the final minutes, but the Wolfpack came back and in the final two minutes outscored the Palladins six points to two.

Kenny Matthews hit both ends of a one-and-one with 1:55 left and Pinder scored to put the game 66-65 with 1:34 left. Matthews hit again from the foul line with 58 seconds showing to put State back in front, 67-66.

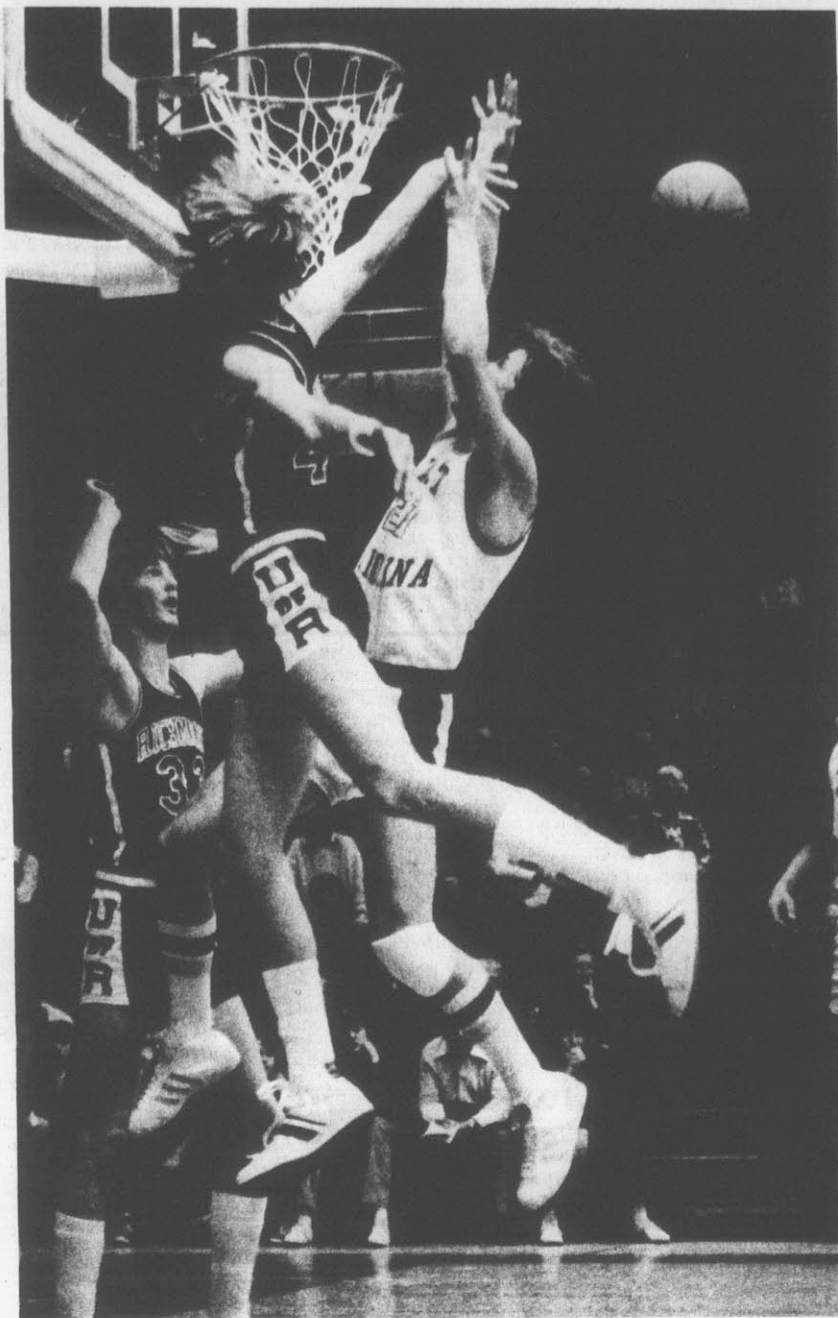

But Moore's final bucket gave the Palladins their one point margin. Furman is now 14-5 and State is 15-5.

Furman Coach Joe Williams said after the game, "I felt like we didn't seem to be playing well in the first half. But with three or four minutes left in the half, I knew if we could play even, we would be in the game. We decided to tease them in the second half. We took a little longer to shoot and move the ball a little more and it helped the player's confidence."

O'Koren Scores 31 As Heels Rebound

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Mike O'Koren hit for 31 points, tying his college career high, and helped North Carolina dominate the backboards as the Tar Heels demolished Virginia Tech, 101-88, in the North-South Doubleheaders Saturday night.

The Tar Heels opened leads of 19 points in the second half and the best the Gobblers could do in the final minutes was cut that margin to 12 at one point. In the final minute, the only question was whether North Carolina would break 100 points and the answer came when reserve guard Mike Pepper hit a jump shot with six seconds left.

The win, which bounced North Carolina back from an upset loss to Furman in the North-South on Friday, put the Tar Heels at 18-4 for the season. The Gobblers dropped to 16-5 overall.

Guard Les Henson was high man for Virginia Tech with 21 points and teammate Ron Bell scored 18.

Al Wood added 14 and Phil Ford hit for 13 for the Tar Heels.

Virginia Tech was stymied by North Carolina's zone defense and had to resort to shots from the outside and the Tar Heels hauled down several valuable rebounds.

The Gobblers were also saddled with foul trouble playing much of the second half with three key players at four fouls each.

North Carolina parlayed a 46:37 halftime lead to a 59-41 margin in just over three minutes by outscoring the Gobblers 13-4.

Ford, who suffered a hip injury during Friday night's game, only hit for two points during the first half.

North Carolina Coach Dean Smith said Ford's injury "bothered him when he shot, but he showed his ability as a playmaker."

Smith said the team was not worried after its loss to Furman last night and he didn't think they were gearing themselves to bouncing back.

"I don't want to have to keep bouncing back. We had to after Wake Forest. I guess we had to after last night," Smith said.

Wake Takes 3rd Big Victory

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Frank Johnson scored 19 points and three other Wake Forest players were in double figures as the Deacons baffled 11th-ranked Virginia 74-62 Saturday in an Atlantic Coast Conference basketball game that was regionally televised.

The contest followed the pattern of Wake Forest's triumphs over Duke and North Carolina as the Deacons broke out to an early lead and then coasted to victory.

Virginia moved ahead briefly 4-1, but Wake Forest, led by center Larry Harrison, outscored the Cavaliers 23-10 in the next eight minutes. The Deacons led 24-12 with 9:55 remaining in the first half.

Virginia closed the gap to 37-28 at halftime and came within eight of the Deacons in the second half on several occasions but were unable to get any closer.

Wake Forest's Rod Griffin and Leroy McDonald each had 16 points. Harrison added 11, scoring nine in the first half, and also pulled down 11 rebounds for Wake Forest.

Jeff Lamp was Virginia's leading scorer with 14 points and Mike Owens added 12.

Both teams now are 5-3 in conference play. Wake Forest is 14-5 overall while the Cavaliers fell to 15-3.

Wake Forest, which shot 58 percent from the field for the game, opened the second half shooting and outscored the Cavaliers 20-12 in the first nine minutes. The Deacons led by 17 twice on Griffin's two free throws and on Mark Dale's 21-footer with 10 minutes remaining.

But for the next 3:13, Wake Forest couldn't get a point and Virginia whittled the Wake lead to nine points at 59-50.

"I was really surprised we had a chance to pull the game out at all," Virginia Coach Terry Holland. "We got it down to eight, there a couple times, but we were never able to get it to six and put some real pressure on them."

Virginia's inability to score and the primary reason for the Cavalier loss was the Wake Forest defense, which Coach Carl Tacy termed "the best we've played all year."

"The man-to-man defense we played today was exceptional. Definitely, it was as good as we've played it all year," Tacy said. "By and large, we kept their shooters from getting the ball, and that was certainly vital."

Virginia's best shooter, Lamp, had a miserable day with just 3 of 14 shots from the field.

"Lamp was certainly a priority. I thought we did a good job on him in Charlottesville and we did a good job on him today," Tacy said.

Green Fires 68 To Lead Hawaiian

HONOLULU (AP) — Hubert Green continued his sharpshooting assault on the Waialae Country Club Course Saturday carding a 4-under-par 68 to take a 3-stroke lead in the $250,000 Hawaiian Open.

Gene Littler, Hale Irwin, George Burns and Bill Kratzert were tied for second with 54-hole totals of 206. Littler shot a third-round 68, Irwin a 67 and Burns and Kratzert, 69s.

Green is 13 under par for three rounds with a 69 on the first day and a 66 the second.

A number of golfers are withering striking distance of the lead going into Sunday nationally televised final round.

Bobby Cole, Bill Calfee, Chi Chi Rodriguez and Bobby Wynn were just 4 strokes off the lead.

Scores were extremely low Saturday as the conditions were nearly ideal at the 7,234-yard, par-72 Waialae. Three players — Calfee, Cole and Andy Bean — all had third round 65s.

Although the course is one of the longest on the PGA tour, it is basically a straight layout with true greens and short roughs.

Green, current U.S. Open champion and nearing $1 million in career earnings, began the day at 9 under. He picked up 2 more strokes on par with a 34 on the front nine, then sank birdie putts on the 11th and 13th holes.

bounced back from a second-round 73 to move into contention.

Five players were within 5 shots of the lead going into what could be a wild finish. Bean, Don Bies, Jim Chancey, Bill Rogers and Tom Watson, all were at 208.

Watson, winner of two of the four PGA tournaments played this year, had a 69 Saturday.

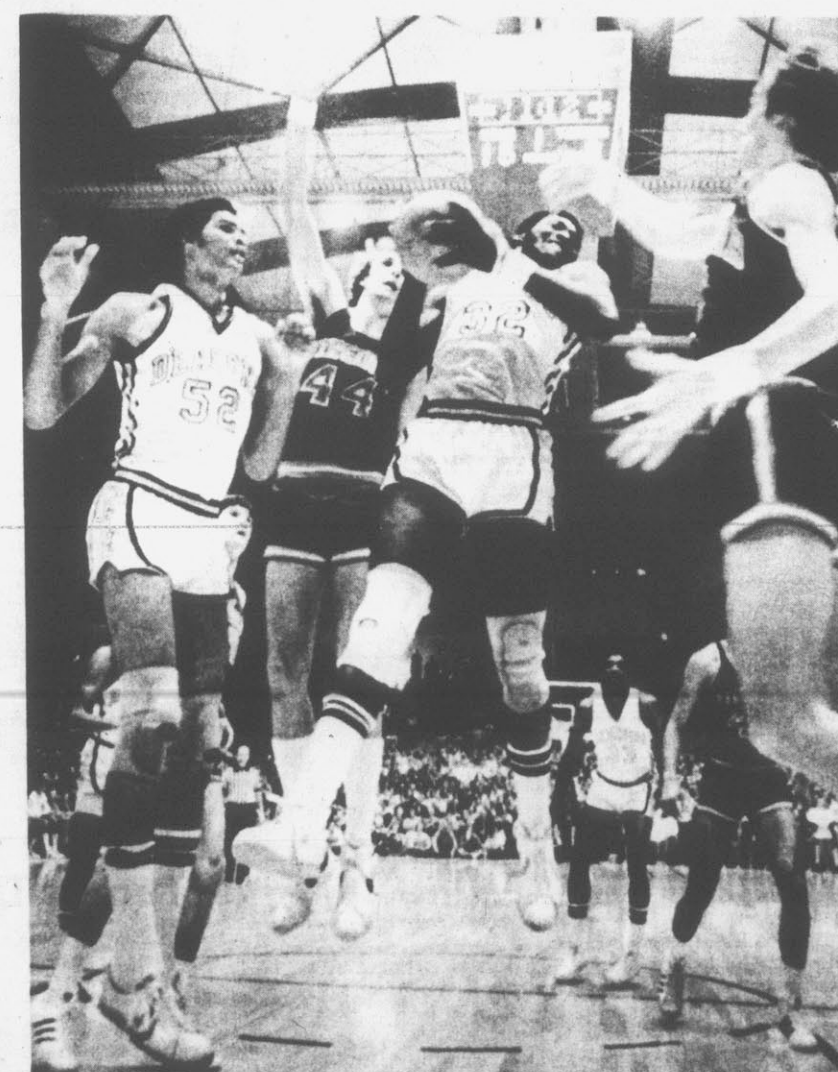

Those chasing Green were hoping that the final round would be played under less suitable conditions than was the third round.

"Needless to say, we had better playing weather this time than for the second round," said Irwin. "But personally I prefer to see the wind. When the wind is not blowing you have to shoot very, very low just to keep up."

Littler, pleased that he could come back after the near-disastrous second round, said he believes it will take a 66 or so to beat Green — providing Green has an off day.

Green himself is not considering the $50,000 winner's check his just yet. "I'm up three shots but there is a logjam out there," he said. "I should be able to win, but it will be a real dogfight."

While happy with his third round, Green said his putting left a little to be desired. "I drove well, my iron play was real good and I was putting pretty good. But actually I missed a couple of easy putts."

Rose Nips Gryphons, 76-75, In 1st Tie

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

All the simple cliches go out the window in trying to describe this one. It was simply one heck of a ball game, regardless of which team you were pulling for.

Friday night, when Anthony Bryant tossed back a missed shot just as the horn went off, pandemonium erupted in the Rose High School gymnasium. The Rampants had just pulled off a 76-75 upset victory over Rocky Mount's Gryphons, previously unbeaten in Division I play.

The outcome knotted the two teams for first with 5-1 records. Each has now beaten the other in their respective home gyms.

Both, too, still have the rest of the conference to wade through before they can lay any claims to the Division I championship. If it comes to it, a tie would be broken by a coin-toss.

The last two and a half minutes of the contest bordered on pure hysteria. Rose was leading by only one point, 72-71 when William Barnes went to the foul line for a one-and-one. He made the first, but missed the second. Bryant was on hand, however, for a rare Rose rebound in the game, and the Rampants were successful in keeping the ball away from the Gryphons until Derwin Clemons was fouled with 47 seconds to go.

Clemons missed and Rocky Mount got the rebound, but turned the ball over with 36 seconds to go. Rose, made a bad inbounds pass, however, and the Gryphons intercepted and got it to Buck Williams for a game-tying stuff with 33 seconds left. That made it 73-73.

Billy Roberson was then fouled with 27 seconds to go, and made one, but Rocky Mount again got the rebound when he missed on the second try. James Hawkins fouled Reggie Barrett with six seconds left and Barrett's two shots gave Rocky Mount the lead for the only time during the entire game.

Hawkins then drove the ball downcourt and spotted Roberson open in the corner. Roberson's shot, however, was short, and fell back into Bryant's hands. He put it through just as the horn went off, and as the officials signaled the shot good, the fans erupted.

The loss took nothing away from a magnificent effort by Gryphon star Williams, who controlled the backboards, getting most of Rocky Mount's 35 rebounds, while tossing in a game high 37 points.

But his performance was just slightly above that by Rose High School's James Hawkins, who poured in 32 points of his own, and in hindsight, might have gotten the most important basket of the game. That came on another buzzer shot, as the third period ended, from 25 feet.

"We made a boo-boo right there at the end (throwing it away on the inbounds pass), but we came through at the end," Coach Jim Brewington said.

And despite his feeling for his own team, Brewington heaped praise on Williams. "He's got to be the best player in the state," he said. "I don't think he missed but three or four shots all night long."

"But Hawkins matched him offensively. He played a heck of a game. Well, everyone contributed well. It was Bryant's best game. Barnes did his share, and well, just everyone."

If there were problems for the Rampants, they came at the foul line and on the boards. Rocky Mount held a firm 35-23 edge in rebounding.

And in the final quarter, Rose missed the equivalent of eight free throws, more than enough to have sewn it up long before the end.

"It was a well-played game," Brewington said. "The people got their money's worth, for sure. I just hope that they'll come back now."

The Rampants shook loose Rocky Mount in the early minutes of the game after a 4-4 tie. Greg Guthrie hit with 5:30 left for a 6-4 lead, and Barnes hit in the lane to up it to 8-4.

Hawkins later scored on a fast break and Bryant drove in to up the lead to 14-6. Then, Bryant added a jumper with 2:22 left for an 18-8 lead, and the Rampants held that margin, 24-14 at the end of the period.

Behind the scoring of Williams, Rocky Mount thundered back in the second period, and two free throws by Jeff Battle knotted it at 34-34. Rose went back out, saw it tied again, then regained the lead at 38-36 on a jumper by Barnes, who followed with a stuff with nine seconds left, giving the Rampants a 40-36 lead at halftime.

Rocky Mount crept back within three in the third period, but Rose was able to inch away again before the play of Hawkins to as much as a seven point lead most of the way, and as much as eight at 59-51. Rocky Mount edged back, however, and trailed 62-55 as the final quarter started.

The Rampants were hampered when Guthrie collected his fifth foul with 7:04 left. Williams then went on another of his rampages, hitting three straight baskets to cut the lead to 68-65. Battle added a basket to trim the lead to one, 68-67, but Roberson and Bryant both hit to

Furman Surprises Tar Heels In 89-83 Upset; State Tops Tech

By MONTE PLOTT
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Sixth-ranked North Carolina got caught up in a purple rage Friday night as the purple-clad Furman Paladins swarmed over the Tar Heels in a stunning 89-83 upset in the North-South Doubleheaders.

Plucky 6-2 guard Bruce Grimm, high man of the game with 32 points, turned Furman around from a 14-point deficit in the second half to a victory won on virtually flawless shooting from the freethrow line.

North Carolina State had an easier time of it in the first game of the 20th annual North-South as the Wolfpack downed Virginia Tech, 83-68.

North Carolina handled the Paladins with no problems until midway through the second half when Furman, led by Grimm, began whittling at the Tar Heel's 61-47 lead.

"This is an excellent win for us," said Paladin Coach Joe Williams. "In the first half I thought we had not played well but we played well enough to stay in there. We stayed close and took advantage of our opportunities."

A mammoth opportunity hit with 7:42 left and the Tar Heels ahead, 69-62. North Carolina drew back-to-back technical fouls and when Grimm stepped away from the freethrow line after the technical shots, it was 69-66.

"Technical fouls helped Furman," said North Carolina

Coach Dean Smith. "It's a good way to come back. The first technical was on someone on the bench. It wasn't I. I wanted to see which player it was...and followed the official to mid-court. He said I wasn't supposed to be there and I wasn't. It's not a pretty way to win but Furman had what it took."

Jonathan Moore put Furman ahead for the first time since the early minutes when he hit two foul shots to make it 71-69 with 4:58 left in the game.

North Carolina tried fouling to recoup in the waning seconds but they hit the wrong man — freshman Rodney Arnold — who popped seven straight foul shots in the final thirty seconds.

Arnold, Williams allowed, had a history in high school of hitting free throws under pressure.

North Carolina was beset by foul trouble early in the game, with All-America guard Phil Ford saddled with three fouls in the first ten minutes and sitting out much of the first half. North Carolina committed 31 fouls, compared with Furman's 19, and had four players foul out.

Ford sustained a hip injury during the game and UNC coaches said his appearance in tonight's game was doubtful.

In the first game, North Carolina State kept Virginia Tech away from the basket with a solid zone defense, and managed to hold the lead for the first 15 minutes of the game.

The Gobblers took a 38-37 margin to the dressing room at halftime, but Wolfpack juniors Kendal Pinder and Tony Warren went wild in the second half, pumping in 14 and 13 points, respectively.

The Wolfpack moved into the lead for good with just over 14 minutes left in the game.

"They dominated the boards and intimidated us inside," said Gobbler Coach Charles Moir. "Our problem was that we didn't score down the stretch."

Wolfpack Coach Norm Sloan agreed that his team controlled the backboards, especially in the second half.

"I didn't have a feeling we played that well in the first half, but we had a great second half," he said.

Celtics, Lakers And Blazers Collect Wins

By The Associated Press
Here come the Boston Celtics... there goes Kareem Abdul-Jabbar... and the Portland Trail Blazers, well, they're just out of sight.

The Celtics, one of the major disappointments in the first half of the National Basketball Association season, now are showing signs of snapping out of the doldrums. Friday night they stretched their mini winning streak to three — their longest since mid-November — trouncing the Washington Bullets 116-94.

Abdul-Jabbar ran over and through the bewildered New Jersey Nets, scoring 37 points, grabbing 30 rebounds, blocking six shots and handing out five assists, powering the Los Angeles Lakers to a 105-99 victory in overtime. It was the Nets' 16th loss in a row, four short of the league record.

The Trail Blazers, defending NBA champions, improved their record to 40-8 — by far the best in the league this season — and extended their home court victory string to 44, crushing the Golden State Warriors 112-92.

In other NBA games before the break for Sunday's All-Star Game at Atlanta, the Cleveland Cavaliers overcame the Buffalo Braves 104-101, the Philadelphia 76ers whipped the Indiana Pacers 116-104, the Chicago Bulls stopped the San Antonio Spurs 110-107, the Denver Nuggets downed the Detroit Pistons 115-102, the Phoenix Suns defeated the Milwaukee Bucks 115-105 and the Houston Rockets trimmed the New York Knicks 112-102.

"Peaks and valleys are the nature of this game," Boston center Dave Cowens said. "You just try to eliminate the valleys."

The Celtics, who have been experiencing mostly valleys this season, reached one of their peaks against Washington as John Havlicek scored a season-high 29 points, Sidney Wicks had 28 points and 20 rebounds, and Cowens collected 20 points and 19 rebounds.

"Our execution was great, we were sharp," said Tom Sanders, the Celtics' coach since replacing the recently dismissed Tom Heinsohn.

Kevin Grevey led Washington with 25 points, one more point than Elvin Hayes.

Lakers 105, Nets 99
"He was absolutely magnificent," Los Angeles Coach Jerry West of Abdul-Jabbar's 53-minute performance, which included seven of the Lakers' 14 points in overtime.

The 30 rebounds gave Abdul-Jabbar 10,017 for his career, making him the 14th NBA player to reach the 10,000 plateau.

John Williamson paced the Nets with 31 points.

Cavaliers 104, Braves 101
Cleveland, trailing 101-93 with two minutes left, overtook Buffalo by scoring the game's last 11 points, handing the Braves their eighth straight setback.

Bingo Smith's 22 points and Elmore Smith's 20 led a balanced Cleveland attack.

North Lenoir Conquers Conley, 81-55

Carolina Conference game Friday night. The Hawks defeated the Vikings in the contest 81-55 to take over first place in the league. (Reflector photo by Tom Foreman Jr.)

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer
HOLLYWOOD — The contest was supposed to be the highlight of the Eastern Carolina Conference's regular season. The top two teams — along with the top two players — in a head-to-head battle. But from the second quarter on, it was strictly no-contest.

The second quarter was when North Lenoir ace Mitchell Wiggins cranked up his scoring machine to lead the Hawks to an 81-55 rout of D. H. Conley. The victory gives North Lenoir the undisputed top spot in the league with a 10-1 record, while the Vikings drop to 8-2.

"The only thing I'm elated about tonight is that it's not the last game of the season," Conley coach Shelly Marsh said after the game. "I think it goes back to what I said at the first of the year: we've got a few seniors on the team that are still relatively inexperienced; and it showed tonight for the first game of the season."

One of those seniors is 6-10 center Al Tyson, a sought-after big man who went to the bench with two early fouls and rode the sideline for most of the rest of the way. When Tyson went out, Conley's offensive and defensive organization seemed to go with him. "For the first time this year, we couldn't get it going with him out of the ballgame," Marsh said.

The contest was close for a quarter and a half. The Vikes built a 4-0 lead on layups by Ricky Rountree and Mike Cox, but the Hawks quickly tied things up and got two straight jumpers by John Cratch to take the lead for the first time with one second left in the frame 14-13.

North Lenoir got a layup off the opening tip in the second quarter for a 16-13 lead, but Conley stayed close and trailed 20-19 after Darryl Thompson's shot from the lane with 6:05 on the clock. But that was when Wiggins began to turn it on. The 6-4 guard scored five straight buckets, all on jumpers, while the Vikings got just two foul shots from Cox, to give North Lenoir a 30-21 lead, and it was all downhill from there for Conley.

Wiggins, who was held scoreless in the first quarter, ended up with 12 in the second period and 27 for the game. The high-jumping guard scored from all over the hitting everything from 24-foot jumpers to two slam dunks. His shooting percentage was amazing, 37 of 16 from the field.

The Hawks as a team were nearly as accurate, hitting 36 of 66 shots for 54.5 per cent. The Vikings could manage but 40 per cent of their attempts, 22 of 55, while Tyson, their usual high scorer, was held to just seven points.

North Lenoir is known as a high-key offensive club, which relies little on its defense, but the Hawks turned on the "D" Friday night. "Their defense was much better than ours," Marsh said. "They never let us get anything going offensively and some of our players got frustrated. We made some bad fouls out of frustration."

"Our defense was super; we did the best defensive job we've done all year," said Hawk coach Jerry Walton. "I thought we played the best ballgame we've played all year. We had to play the best one, and I thought we did."

"We knew that's what we had to do — hold Tyson down and not let him get so many rebounds. Of course, he got in a little foul trouble and that helped some, too."

Walton said the team has been working on its defense all year. "We've been concentrating on it all along, it just hasn't paid off that much. But, everybody worked tonight and made it work."

North Lenoir also got 12 points from Ronnie McPhail and 11 from Amos Pearcill, who scored nine of them in the game's hectic final minutes when mostly substitutes were on the floor.

The Vikings were led by Mike Cox with 21 and Ricky Rountree with 10.

In the girl's game, the Valkyries had an easy time with the Lady Hawks, despite a second-quarter surge. Conley jumped out to a 21-3 first-quarter margin, but North Lenoir cut it to 33-19 at the half.

In the third quarter, the Valkyries pulled back in front by 19 and they stretched their margin to 25 at the end of the game.

Annie Hardy scored 21 points, and Annie Wooten added 16 for Conley, while Mary Rhodes had 23 for North Lenoir.

The win keeps the Valkyries astride the ECC girl's rankings, with a 9-1 record, while the Lady Hawks fell to 1-9.

D. H. Conley played last night at Southern Nash and will travel to Ayden-Grifton on Tuesday.

HOUSTON (AP) — When the New Orleans Jazz drummed out a 103-101 victory over Houston in an NBA game here, the winners set a league record for fewest free throws made in a game — one.

The Jazz had five foul shots and made only one. By contrast, the losers made nine of ten free throws.

Ayden-Grifton Blasts Southern Nash, 100-67

LITTLEFIELD — Ayden-Grifton sizzled the nets Friday night against Southern Nash's hapless Firebirds, romping to a 100-67 victory. The Ayden-Grifton girls also came away with an easy win, topping the "Birds, 53-24.

The girls' game was close only in the opening minutes, after which Ayden-Grifton rolled out to a 17-10 lead. The Chargerettes continued to pull away in the second period, building their lead to 32-15 by halftime.

Ayden-Grifton upped its margin by nine more points in the third frame, and took a 44-18 margin into the final quarter. The Chargerettes outthrew the Lady Firebirds, 9-6, in that frame.

Oddly enough, no one hit double figures for either team. Karen Haseley was the game's high scorer with nine for Ayden-Grifton.

The Ayden-Grifton boys had even less trouble with the Firebirds in their game, rolling out to a 26-7 lead in the first quarter. That was increased to 51-30 by the end of the half.

Southern Nash managed a tiny rally in the third period, 19-16, but still trailed, 67-49. Then, in the final period Ayden-Grifton outthrew the Birds, 33-18, to hit the century mark.

James Leggett led Ayden-Grifton with 23 points, while Frankie Dail added 20, Henry Ormond had 16 and Donnie Jackson had 10. Dwight Mitchell led Southern Nash with 17, while Alex Sherrod had 15 and Ricky Murray, 13.

Albemarle Tops Martin Academy

EVERETTES — Albemarle Academy gained a 64-44 win over Martin Academy Friday night, while the Martin girls gained an overtime win in the preliminary, 46-41.

In the girls' contest, Albemarle slipped out into an 8-6 lead in the first period. Martin came back with a 13-10 advantage in the second frame, taking a 19-18 halftime lead.

In the third, Albemarle again slipped into the lead, taking a 29-26 advantage. But in the last quarter, Martin rallied, and Lib Johnson hit a field goal with 30 seconds left in the game, knotting it at 41-41.

Then, in the overtime, Martin scored five points, while holding Albemarle to zero.

Johnson led Martin with 26 points, while Carol Spencer had 21 to Albemarle.

In the boys' game, Albemarle ran out to a 19-6 lead in the first period and the Pioneers never caught up. Albemarle ran its lead out to 38-18 by the half, and boosted it to 56-36 as the final quarter opened. Both teams scored eight in the final frame.

Mark Turner with 16 led Albemarle, while Wade Smith had 14, Jesse Wood had 12 and Wayne Banks, 11. Cliff Haislip had 16 to pace Martin.

The Pioneers travel to Greenville Christian on Tuesday.

Bear Grass' girls inched out into a 10-8 lead in the first period and still had trouble shaking the Lady Bullets in the second frame. Bear Grass led only 25-21 at intermission.

But in the third period, the Lady Bears pulled away, building their lead to 35-26. They outthrew Jamesville, 16-10, in the last period.

Patricia Taylor led Bear Grass with 20, while Jandra Crawford had 13, and Joette Rogers had 12. Edith James led Jamesville with 20.

Players View Game As More Than A Show

By ED SHEARER
AP Sports Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Rick Barry of the Golden State Warriors calls it "more than just a show."

Dave Cowens of the Boston Celtics says, "We're not going to just go through the motions because we're not used to doing that."

The two National Basketball Association stars were talking about the same thing — the annual NBA All-Star Game, set for a 1:45 p.m. EST tipoff in the Omni Sunday.

"Too many expect to see the guys show what they can do," said Barry, who calls that one of the problems with an all-star game.

"Basically, what an all-star game should be is a chance for players to show they can blend together," he said. "You should be able to blend into team play."

"I don't know how many minutes people will play, but winning it is a matter of personal pride," said Cowens. "The players who have been chosen are players who obviously take the game very seriously."

Both will be in the starting lineup Sunday — Barry for the slightly favored West team coached by Jack Ramsay, who steered Portland to the NBA championship last year, and Cowens for the East, coached by Billy Cunningham of the Philadelphia 76ers.

The East team features two late additions as replacements for injured players.

John Havlicek of the Boston Celtics replaced the NBA's leading scorer, Pete Maravich of New Orleans, and Washington's Elvin Hayes was named as the replacement for Buffalo's Billy Knight.

Havlicek, who announced last Sunday that he will end his illustrious career at the conclusion of this — his 16th — season, will be making a record-tying 13th appearance in an all-star game, a mark shared by Wilt Chamberlain and Bob Cousy.

Cunningham will decide whether to start Havlicek or his own ace guard Doug Collins.

Other East starters will be Philadelphia's Julius Erving, last year's most valuable player in the all-star game, and Larry Kenon of San Antonio at forwards. Cowens will be at center, and San Antonio's George Gervin, second-leading scorer in the NBA, will hold the other guard slot.

Barry and Portland's Maurice Lucas will open at forwards for the West. Bill Walton of Portland at center and David Thompson of Denver and Paul Westphal of Phoenix at guards. The starters for each team were selected by a vote of fans, and the remaining spots on the roster were filled by the coaches.

West reserves will be Bob Lanier of Detroit, Artis Gilmore of Chicago, Walter Davis of Phoenix, Bobby Jones of Denver, Brian Winters of Milwaukee and Lionel Hollins of Portland.

Rounding out the East's roster will be Houston's Moses Malone, New York's Bob McAdoo, Buffalo's Randy Smith and New Orleans' Leonard Robinson.

Williams Hits 81 For Portland State

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The North Carolina Tar Heels couldn't wait to go to their "Four Corner Offense" and then they couldn't wait to get out of it.

By the time they switched signals, however, it was too late — and they suffered an 89-83 upset at the hands of Furman Friday night.

"We weren't flat," said North Carolina Coach Dean Smith. "I thought we played well enough to be up by 20 points at half-time, but it wasn't to be."

The loss, on the heels of North Carolina State's 83-68 victory over Virginia Tech in the opener of the annual North-South doubleheader at Charlotte, N.C., was doubly embarrassing because the nation's sixth-ranked team blew a 14-point lead.

Even with less than eight minutes to go, the Atlantic Coast Conference power held a 69-58 advantage. But North Carolina then lost both its poise and its lead as the Palladins scored 18 straight points despite facing the Tar Heels' exasperating offensive formation and their intimidating press. The Heels went into their famous slowdown offense with six minutes remaining but were unable to control the game as they usually do.

Meanwhile, Freeman Williams turned in an incredible 81-point performance for Portland State in leading the Vikings to a 133-110 victory over Rocky Mountain College of Billings, Mont. Williams' production was the second highest in the history of major college basketball.

The Portland State star had 54 points in the first half and continued to hit field goals at a locomotive pace after intermission as he surpassed Temple's Bill Milkley, who once scored 73 points in a game.

Frank Selvy of Furman holds the all-time single-game record with 100 points against Newberry in 1954.

Williams now holds three of the top eight single-game scoring marks in NCAA Division I. Last year, Williams scored 71 points in one game and his previous high this season was 66.

outscored Weber State 77-67 and North Carolina A&T nipped Howard University 94-93 in double overtime.

Rodney Arnold hit five straight foul shots in the last 15 seconds to clinch Furman's upset of North Carolina. Bruce Grimm led the Palladins with 32 points while Phil Ford's 17 paced the Tar Heels.

In the opener, Kendal Pinder and Tony Warren combined for 27 points in the second half to trigger North Carolina State past VPI. Les Henson led the Gobblers with 21 points.

"They worked their offense better than I've seen them all year," said VPI Coach Charles Moir.

Gene Bentz hit a 20-foot jumper with three seconds left to boost Columbia over Princeton in a game delayed 40 minutes by a bomb threat in the Tigers' Jadwyn Gym. Tony Price's 21 points powered Penn over Cornell; a 16-point performance by Mike Santos led Utah State past Denver; Bran Robinson's 21 second-half points boosted Idaho State over Weber State and North Carolina A&T beat Howard on the strength of Joe Brawner's four free throws in the second overtime.

Tigerettes Are Again Champions

PLYMOUTH — Williamston High School's girls' basketball team wrapped up another Northeastern Conference championship Friday night, taking a 69-54 victory over Plymouth.

The Plymouth boys held off a Williamston rally for a 75-74 win in their game.

The victory for Williamston gave the Tigerettes a 10-1 record in the league with one game left to play. Everyone else has lost at least three games now.

Williamston jumped out to a 14-5 lead in the opening period. They pulled further out in the second period, taking a 30-16 lead into the intermission.

The Tigerettes, with their eyes on the title, continued their rampage in the third, running the score out to 52-31. They allowed Plymouth a 23-17 comeback in the final period.

Paula Bennett led Williamston with 26 points and 27 rebounds, while Jan Rogerson had 21 points and JoAnna Lilley added 14 points and 15 rebounds. Sharlyn Norman had 22, Annette Davis had 14 and Dora Bell had 13 to pace Plymouth.

In the boys' game, Williamston slipped out into a 14-11 lead in the first period. But Plymouth came back in the second overtime.

cond frame and inched into a 33-32 halftime lead.

Plymouth tacked two more points to that spread in the third period and led, 56-53 as the final quarter began. Williamston outthrew them 21-19, in that frame, but failed to catch up.

William Barnes led Plymouth with 21 points, while James Brown had 18 and James Simpson had 14. Horace Wynne led Williamston with 14, while Walter Harris had 13, Joe Peele had 12, and Jimmy Barnes and Danny Mobleigh each had 10.

Williamston closes out the regular season Tuesday, hosting Edenton.

legally taken, and that game animals could only be hunted during the day between sunrise and sunset.

BOTH FOX HUNTERS and fur dealers were unhappy with parts of the ruling and the fur dealers successfully sought a temporary order in Wake County Superior Court that required the Wildlife Commission to continue issuing permits to fur dealers to buy and sell lawfully-taken fox skins until the case was tried in the next term of the court.

The court upheld the right to buy and sell legally-taken fox skins, and on Friday, Jan. 20, the N. C. Supreme Court refused a request by a group of fox hunters to overturn the lower court judge. "Some newspapers wrongly reported that this decision would also allow the trapping of foxes, but it doesn't," according to Robert B. Hazel, the NCWRC's executive director. "The trapping of foxes has been, and still is, illegal."

HAZEL RECENTLY EXPRESSED sympathy for the sportsmen, trappers and fur dealers who have been caught up in the confusing, and often contradictory, laws. "We're simply enforcing the laws as we are required to do," he said. "Our position is to try to determine the proper interpretation of the law, and then proceed with its enforcement."

Hazel said hunters are unhappy with the restrictions the attorney general placed on night hunting. "The Wildlife Commission is not taking sides with any particular group on this issue. We're not pro- or anti-fox hunters, trappers or fur dealers. All have legitimate interests. We don't want to see this matter develop into a bitter controversy among these various groups, and we hope that the laws regarding foxes can be changed so as to clear up the matter."

"In my opinion, some revision of the state game law is the only real answer."

The situation with the foxes exemplifies the need for the passage of the Wildlife Commission's revision of the game law by the state legislature. Hazel asks that sportsmen join the Commission to work for the swift passage of these revisions.

Greene Central Down Falcons

PIKEVILLE — A fourth-quarter Greene Central rally broke a 29-29 tie and gave the Rams a 45-39 victory over C. B. Aycock Friday night.

THE FOX HAS been the subject of some legal controversy which has loomed large in recent years. It seems that — unlike most wildlife species — state laws concerning fox hunting and trapping are unclear, and in fact, contradictory in some cases. Moreover, legal interpretation and court action has not served to clarify the matter.

Last year, efforts by the North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission to streamline and clarify all wildlife laws — including those applying to foxes — through a comprehensive game law revision in the state legislature were stalled for the time being. The bill was carried over to the 1979 session and will be studied this year by a special committee of legislators and Wildlife Resources Commission members.

Since then, a ruling by North Carolina's attorney general, followed more recently by a temporary order from the Wake County Superior Court and the state Supreme Court have, at least temporarily, set forth certain restrictions regarding fox hunting, trapping and selling. However, the fox still lives in a legal limbo that will continue, according to the WRC, until it can be ultimately resolved by changes in the laws.

The situation is this: The attorney general recently ruled that the fox is a game animal and that game animals may not be trapped. Furthermore, the ruling stated that fox skins could not be bought or sold, regardless of whether they were

Pacific Isle No Paradise

ISLAND OF POVERTY — No one knows for sure the population of the 64-acre Pacific island of Ebeye. What is known is that virtually every one of the islanders lives in deep poverty. — UPI Photo

By RAY YUEN
EBEYE, Marshall Islands (UPI) — Official estimates of the population of the 64-acre Pacific island of Ebeye, located just three miles north of its rich atoll sister island Kwajalein, range from 7,000 to as high as 10,000.

No one knows for sure. The Army on Kwajalein and long-time civilian residents say an accurate census is impossible because the Marshallese come and go from Ebeye as they please.

What is known is that virtually every one of the Marshallese on the one-mile by 250-yard island lives in deep poverty.

The Kwajalein missile range employs about 700 of the Marshallese on Ebeye. The U.S. Trust Territory of the Pacific, in which the islands are located, provides some public works jobs. Most of the rest, in accordance with Marshallese custom, live off their relatives.

Homes and most other buildings on Ebeye are built with plywood boards for walls and corrugated tin for roofs. The tin serves a dual function since it diverts rain water into gutters which feed water cisterns. Ebeye has no natural water resources.

There are only two doctors on the entire island.

Litter, mostly soft drink cans, is scattered throughout the island and even parts of the surrounding reef. Garbage often overflows litter containers.

A litter pollution control project is under way on the island's north end, known to residents as "Dumptown," but even that project produces thick clouds of dust that blows into the pristine waters of the atoll lagoon.

Coast Guardsmen who have lived for up to a year at the 14-acre Loran-A navigation station on the island's south end, known locally as "Rocktown," say the Ebeye children are malnourished and occasionally steal water from Coast Guard cisterns and coconuts that fall from trees on the Coast Guard station grounds.

The Coast Guardsmen say the main diet of the Ebeye Marshallese is rice and water. Chicken, which is much more expensive on Ebeye than Kwajalein, is considered a delicacy.

Alcoholic beverages on Ebeye are limited to beer. The island elders have barred anything stronger. And a $5 a year permit is required to drink beer.

The beer costs 55 to 60 cents a glass and, according to a Coast Guard officer stationed on Ebeye, goes as fast as 80 cases a night at one of the 10 bars on the island.

When the Coast Guard donated its medical supplies to Ebeye's only hospital recently, the donation constituted 65 percent of the medication the hospital then had on hand, and most of the Coast Guard supplies consisted of vitamin pills.

When Chief Petty Officer Carrol Blackwell, 38, of Houston, Texas, leaves Ebeye, he says he will remember is "seeing things I can't believe, such as children dying of normal food poisoning."

There is a king on Ebeye — King Magellan Kabua, reportedly 85 years old and revered by all the Marshallese, especially those on Ebeye.

Kwajalein is also his domain, and it is with him that the U.S. Army signs the lease documents and pays the money for the use of Kwajalein for its classified missile range operations.

He is considered wealthy by Marshallese standards. His estate on Ebeye consists of several wooden buildings, all of plywood construction, an American-made metal trailer, and a low white picket fence around the parcel.

"Anything he wants, he gets," says an American employee who has lived on Kwajalein since last January. "If he wants your TV set, your chair, your chicken, even your wife, he'll just take it, no questions asked, and the Marshallese accept that."

But W. "Murphy" Ownbey, Trust Territory liaison officer on Kwajalein, says Kabua takes care of his people; that, for example, he will pay the transportation and medical care costs for women who need more treatment than can be provided on Ebeye.

"The people love him," he said.

STORAGE, HOBBY AREAS ABOUND IN PLAN

By Jerry Bishop

SPLIT FOYER DESIGN ASSIGNS THREE BEDROOMS

PLAN YOUR HOME

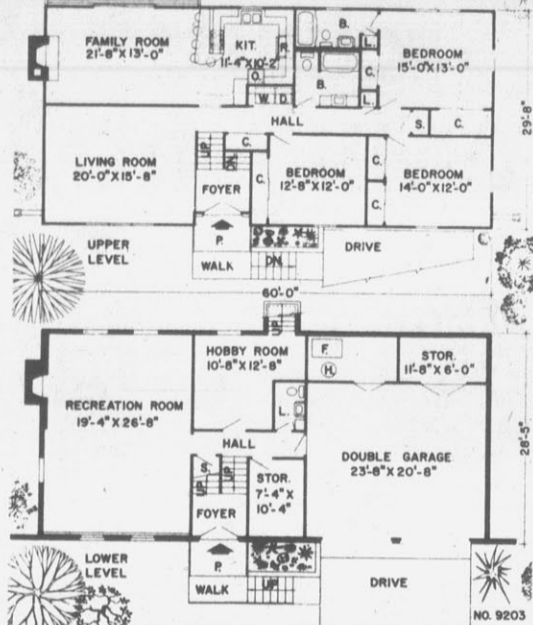

Extensive closet space on the upper level, two storage rooms on the lower level, and two recreation areas make the Millcreek, a split foyer plan, a highly livable home. Besides solving storage problems, however, the design makes the most of its square footage and incorporates a living room, family room and open kitchen as well as the downstairs hobby and recreation rooms.

Refreshing in appearance, the clean exterior lines of the Millcreek are accented by shutters, a railing that frames the living room, and traditional double entry doors. Inside, the floor plan depends on the foyer and central hallways and operates with success.

Up from the foyer are the main living areas of the home, where the central hallway results in virtually no cross-traffic. Sizable and secluded, the living room retains an air of formality, while the bordering family room, with its wood-burning fireplace, is informally open to the kitchen.

The kitchen maintains a good relationship to living areas. Besides being effectively organized itself, it provides a breakfast bar that serves to merge working and activity areas. Sliding glass doors admit light to the entire area and allow access to the spacious wood deck at rear.

Back the bedroom hallway is a welcome laundry niche that puts washer and dryer exactly where they are needed, next to the full recreation room with wood-burning fireplace and adjacent hobby room offer plenty of space for the multiple interests of a large family. A half bath and plenty of storage are provided on the lower level.

From various sources come these bits of information of interest to homeowners:

The many heat reclaimers now on the market have been tested for safety by Underwriters Laboratories. These reclaimers, for use with gas, oil or solid fuel-fired heating appliances, are installed on the vents or chimney connectors and hooked into the electrical power supply. The testing was based on the capability of the reclaimers to contain chimney fires and any adverse effect they may have on the appliance venting systems, such as blocking or restricting flue gas passages and the formation of condensation or creosote due to cooling of the flue gases. A list of approved reclaimers was compiled.

A 30-month program is under way to build and test a mechanical heat-storage device that could prove to be a practical, cost-effective solution to the problem of storing solar energy when the sun is not shining. The device was invented by the General Electric Research and Development Center at Schenectady, N.Y., and has a rolling cylinder which accommodates a number of heat-storage materials which absorb large amounts of heat as they melt, one of the principal ingredients being sodium sulfate decahydrate. This chemical is said to be able to store more than seven times the energy of an equal volume of water and about 12 times as much as an equivalent volume of rock.

Despite a call for smaller houses by some segments of the population, at least one survey shows that the average square footage of a typical builder's best-selling model home is 2,000 square feet. The survey, conducted by the trade publication, Professional Builder, also shows that the one-story ranch remains housing's most popular style.

Among the trends in the asphalt roofing business, according to Joseph Hall, president of the Asphalt Roofing Manufacturers Association, is the growing popularity of earthtone colors. Homeowners are showing greater preferences for roofing in blends of brown, buff and beige that complement the environment.

The variable rate mortgage has received a thumbs-down report from an important committee of the National Savings and Loan League, which has supported that type of mortgage, which can fluctuate with the state of the economy. Instead, the committee wants savings and loan associations to back graduated mortgage payments, where initial loan payments are lower, rising as income increases; reverse annuity mortgages, which permit older families to take advantage of the equity in their homes; and extended mortgages, which would increase the legal limit on mortgages to 40 years, thereby lowering monthly payments.

Paid-Up Mortgage Is No Bargain Today

NEW YORK (UPI) — Family security no longer means money in the bank and a paid-up mortgage, says a Cornell University economist.

In a 1978 economic outlook, professor E. Scott Maynes says savings accounts and other investments pale by comparison with putting as much money as possible into a home mortgage.

Maynes advises taking the biggest mortgage a bank will give.

"The larger the mortgage payment," he says, "the more interest can be deducted from taxable income on federal and state tax forms. Property taxes also can be deducted."

Maynes, who is chairman of the Department of Consumer Economics and Housing, added: "Assuming that your income keeps pace with inflation, in 12 years your mortgage dollar will take only half as much of your income as it did when you first borrowed it. In 25 years, it will take one-quarter as much."

Heating System Parts Explained

BERKELEY HEIGHTS, N.J. (AP) — Heating systems using boilers are called "hydronic," while furnace systems are usually termed "forced hot air," says the Better Heating-Cooling Council.

A furnace uses ducts to transmit heat, and blow hot air into the rooms; a boiler is used to heat steam or hot water, and the heat is transmitted to the rooms through pipe or tubing, the council explains.

(Do-it-yourselfers will find much valuable information in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," available by sending $1.50 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, N.J. 07666.)

Lifestyle May Be Big Factor

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

Is a luxury home the key to the executive door for young businessmen? Some seem to think so — and even their parents can be appalled at the thought of a darling son tuned into a $1,000-a-month house payment.

One father made a grandiose move, he says. His son had worked hard to put himself through college and was having difficulty repaying his student loan even though he now had a good job.

"He had been married four years and we made a big decision when their first child arrived — why not buy them a house?"

This father couldn't really afford it, but as he says, "We could always borrow because we have a good credit rating, and the $20,000 cash we could afford to use for this purpose was well invested, we thought."

The house purchased was a starter ranch in the New York suburbs. The young people were delighted.

Two years later the son announced he was moving into a bigger house. His dad decided it best not to ask too many questions. They would soon find out, he said.

They couldn't believe their eyes — even before they got out of their car, the landscaping, long driveway and a four-car garage added up to a $100,000 home package.

"You've hit an oil well!" father exclaimed incredulously to son.

"No matter the sacrifice, if you want to succeed in business, or whatever, you must live elegantly and get a reputation for observing the amenities — like serving the right wine," the son told his father. In fact, he suspects his lifestyle had helped him win his recent promotion.

The attitude of that businessman seems to be the prevailing one even with some younger fellows in graduate business schools.

"First, I'm not staying in this city because living conditions aren't that great," one 23-year-old graduate student in his last year told his parents. He was referring to a popular city where his university is located.

"I'd like a nice condominium for a few years, maybe in a suburb near New York City or on the West Coast, maybe then I would buy a house when I could afford a big one," he rambled on.

This young man has noted, he says, that his friends who are new in business have a greater chance of success if they live well and entertain in an assured manner.

"You can move up faster, it seems, if you show stable qualities like the ability to handle your own small estate," he said.

Some young business bachelors involved in the house stat— us idea opt for lush apartments and city living.

Glass, plants and deep pile rugs can provide an opulent look on a budget, one suggested.

"I can't see how a rising executive can rush home each night to a lot of domestic chores — cats, dogs and garbage to take out. He needs good maintenance help, which can be found in a good apartment."

One young man would live as close to his work as possible.

He thinks commuting is passe, breeds bad dispositions and leaves little time for the family, the main reason usually for living in the suburbs.

He has a few more years before he must make such a decision — he, too, is in graduate school. But he can tell you how he plans to decorate the apartment when he acquires one.

Q — Our house is on a concrete slab. Moisture sometimes forms around the edges. We have been told that this is because the slab was not properly insulated when constructed. We also have received contradictory advice on how to correct it. One party says we can add insulation to the slab edge outside the foundation. Another says that the moisture will disappear if we install heating elements near the outside walls. Which is correct?

A — Either measure will end the condensation, but the placement of the insulation is a cure. Heat merely will correct the symptom, not solve the problem.

Q — We have a vacation home which we rent out for a considerable part of the year. It is our understanding that when we make out our income tax this spring, we can no longer write off maintenance costs and depreciation. If this is so, does it also apply to mortgage interest and property taxes?

A — The new law has nothing to do with mortgage interest and taxes. Both can be deducted whether it is your principal residence or a vacation house. In the matter of a part-time home, you can still write off maintenance costs, depreciation and other expenses if your house is rented and you do not live there more than 14 days during the year or 10 percent of the total number of days it is rented out, whichever is greater.

Q — There is a leak in the center of our living room ceiling. Directly above that area is the second-floor bathroom, so there must be a leak there. I have used tub grout, but that had no effect. Is there some kind of paint that could be used to seal the ceiling area so that neither it nor the bathroom floor or wall has to be ripped out?

A — You appear to be more interested in hiding the leak so that you don't see it than in correcting the cause of it, which is a bad practice in anything in life. If the leak could be hidden with paint or anything else, it would only be a question of time before you would have a lot more trouble. There simply is no way to repair a leaky pipe or fitting without first finding it.

Q — I have a table that was varnished a few years ago with regular varnish. Now I would like to refinish it with a synthetic varnish. Can it be applied right over the old finish?

A — Yes, but be sure the surface is clean, smooth and with any remaining gloss dulled by sanding or light steel wooling.

(You can get either of Andy Lang's booklets, "Wood Finishing in the Home" or "Paint Your House Inside and Out" by sending 35 cents and a long, STAMPED, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column, but individual correspondence cannot be undertaken.)

Clean After Painting Up

NEW YORK (UPI) — Paint brushes and rollers can be reused several times if they are cleaned and stored correctly after each use.

Paint should not be allowed to dry on the tools. The first step is scraping excess paint off with a round stick onto newspaper.

Brushes and rollers used for oil-based paints should then be cleaned in brush cleaner or mineral spirits, washed in detergent or soap suds and rinsed. Excess moisture should be pressed out before storage.

Tools used for latex-based paints should be washed in sudsy water; work the bristles between thumb and forefinger to remove paint from the heel of a brush. Suds roller nap with both hands.

Follow with a rinse, then use a metal comb on brush bristles to prevent matting and hang brushes by their handles to dry. Place rollers upright or on pegs to dry.

Once cleaned, all should be wrapped in foil to keep them dust-free.

Q. Where can I get information on pruning my shade trees? They were badly damaged by the ice storm. (Mrs. L.G., Siler City)

A. The North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service has a publication called "Pruning Shade Trees and Repairing their Injuries." Check with your local extension office — located in the county seat — for a free copy. (James McGraw, extension forest resources specialist)

Q. I recently purchased a "pocketbook plant." How should I care for it? (Mrs. H.R., Salisbury)

A. Maintain the indoor night temperature for the pocketbook plant (Calceolaria) at 50 to 55 degrees. Move the plant out of the hot sun on bright days to prevent burning. Check your plant at least every morning. Once the soil is thoroughly moistened don't water again until it begins to dry out. Plants in cool rooms will need less water than those in warmer, drier rooms. (Joe Love, extension horticulturist)

Q. We are planning to add a room and carport to our house and one casualty will be a large black walnut tree. Where can I find a market for the wood? (L.G., Lexington)

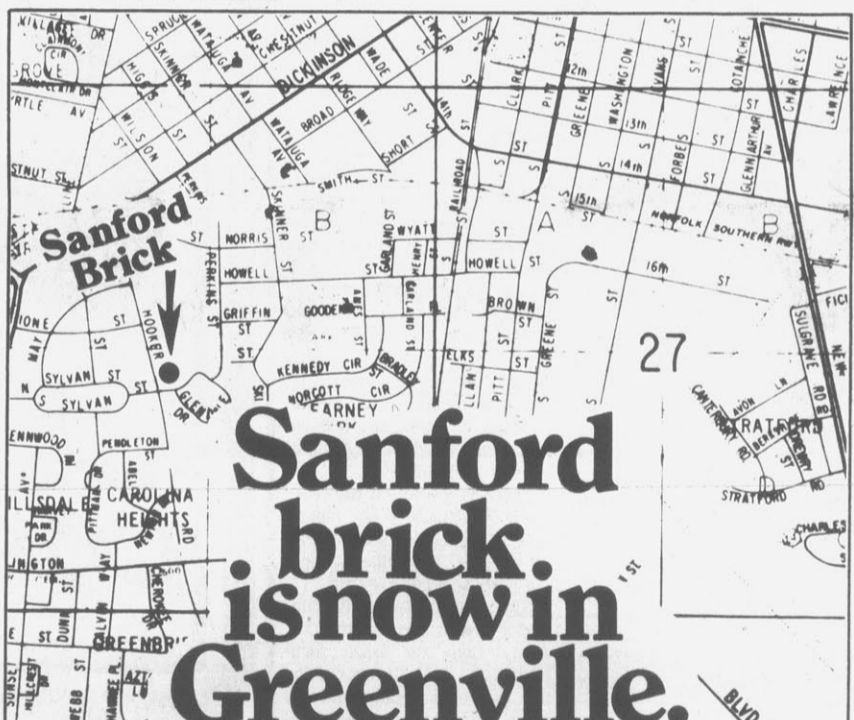

A. Recent publicity about one black walnut tree which sold for $30,000 has resulted in many homeowners taking more interest in that walnut tree in their yard. Unfortunately, walnut yard trees in the South do not have the quality or size to be of high value. There are local craftsmen and hobbyists who are interested in black walnut trees or seasoned walnut lumber. Probably your best alternative is to advertise the tree for sale, giving its diameter at four and one-half feet above ground level. An ad in the "Agricultural Review," the N.C. Department of Agriculture's biweekly publication, will reach a lot of potential walnut buyers. There is no charge for this agency's service. (William M. Stanton, extension forest resources specialist)

Q. Will sweet cherries do well in the Chapel Hill area? (Mrs. T.W., Chapel Hill)

A. Usually not. Sweet cherries are not recommended in North Carolina east of a line that runs roughly through Person, Alamance, Randolph, Stanly and Union counties. The chances of growing sweet cherries west of this line are a little better especially at the higher elevations. The trees tend to suffer from winter trunk damage. They bloom early and are often killed. Birds are a problem. Two varieties are needed for pollination. (Mel Kolbe, extension horticulturist)

That Filter Said Hazard

By WILLIAM P. MOORE
EDINBORO, Pa. (UPI) — Of an estimated 54 million Americans who smoke, many use filter cigarettes with the idea doing so compensates, at least partially for the harmful effects of which the surgeon general warns on every pack.

Gus Miller says filters don't. He says they are even more dangerous than unfiltered cigarettes.

While scientific evidence mounts on both sides of the "Does Smoking Cause Cancer?" controversy, statistical data compiled by Miller, a mathematician at Edinboro State College, supports research indicating smoking shortens lifespan by about 10 years.

But Miller's work goes further. Miller, who also has degrees in chemistry and psychology, has compiled figures indicating a life expectancy for continuous non-filter smokers of about 65 years, while it is 63 years for those who smoke filters.

Miller's study, financially supported in part by the Northwestern Pennsylvania branches of the Heart Association, Lung Association and Cancer Society, indicates nonsmokers have an average life expectancy of 76 to 77 years.

Through newspaper death notices, Miller traced survivors of about 7,500 residents of Erie County, Pennsylvania, who died of natural causes between 1972-74. He gathered his data through telephone interviews with relatives of the deceased.

The premature deaths reflected in Miller's study are not exclusively due to cancer or heart disease, he said. The carbon monoxide produced by cigarette smoking breaks down tissue and weakens the body's ability to deal with any disease.

Miller cites studies showing that filter cigarettes produce more carbon monoxide than non-filters. Related studies show carbon monoxide to be a major contributing factor to cardiovascular diseases.

"It is a waste of time trying to produce a safe cigarette," Miller said. "You can't get a safe cigarette, simply because anything that burns can't be healthy — it produces carbon monoxide, tar, and other unhealthy components."

Miller's theory about filters contradicts statements by the medical profession over the last 15 years that if one must smoke, it should be a filter cigarette.

The 1978 edition of "Cancer Facts & Figures," issued by the American Cancer Society, says that in addition to being responsible for 80 percent of all lung cancer deaths, cigarettes have been "implicated in other diseases, ranging from colds and gastric ulcers to chronic bronchitis, emphysema, heart disease and hazards to unborn children." Like the wealthy Romans who contracted fatal lead poisoning from their wine glasses, Miller says, America's refusal to heed smoking warnings will lead to more premature deaths.

"Men used to live longer than women. Now all of a sudden women live longer."

"How come?" "Because men smoke more," Miller said. "The sooner people realize this and do something about it, the better off we all will be."

Miller said, however, smoking among women continues on the upswing while the reverse is true for men.

Dr. Marvin Kastenbaum, director of statistics for the Tobacco Institute, maintains Miller's study is inaccurate because persons who smoke are younger than persons who don't — and, thus, those who die at early ages would be more likely to have been smokers, without their death necessarily being related to cigarettes.

"The average age at death of people who sleep in cribs is much lower than the average age at death of people who don't sleep in cribs," Kastenbaum said.

Miller discounts Kastenbaum's criticism.

"If he had bothered to read my material, he would know I don't have average age at death, I have life expectancy after age 30. We are getting all of the people, a complete population, and it is not biased."

"They (the tobacco industry) say people who smoke are of a younger age group. That is just not true. Men have smoked for about 150 years, and some women have for about 100 years."

Miller criticized the tobacco industry for "trying to confuse the masses" by relying on data gained from studies of dubious scientific accuracy.

"Tobacco manufacturers deny the accuracy of any of the good studies, and use the poor studies that support their results," he said.

Miller claims his study is more accurate than most because it included a cross-section of the entire population, not just hospitalized persons or volunteers.

He advocates free, government-sponsored smoking cessation clinics and government-funded public information campaigns to counter the multi-million dollar tobacco industry advertising budgets.

Miller met with HEW Secretary Joseph Califano in Washington just before Califano's department launched its anti-smoking campaign. He spends most of his time studying smoking, conducting smoking cessation clinics and spreading his views in television and radio talk shows.

Never a cigarette smoker, he does not permit smoking in his home or office.

Joint Meeting Of SOS Groups

GRIFTON — The second joint meeting of Save Our Schools will be held Wednesday, Feb. 8, at 7:30 p.m. at the Ayden Courtroom.

A meeting was held Jan. 24 in Grifton to discuss the middle school controversy and what steps the S.O.S. organizations in both communities might take next.

At the Feb. 8 meeting, plans will be discussed as to what direction the organization plans to take.

All interested persons are invited to attend.

ANTIQUE COFFEE GRINDER — This early 20th century coffee grinder provided some famly with many cups of the warm brew before it was outdated by the "store-bought" brands.

CIVIL WAR RELICS — A pistol, Confederate money, and a Confederate Army cap are just a few of the mid-19th century artifacts displayed in one of the museum cases.

Grifton Historical Museum Portrays Local Heritage

Text And Photographs By Debbie Jackson

OLD WATER PUMPS — such as this one may be found on farms throughout the state. However, they are not a common sight anymore. This particular pump sits in the corner of the Home Implements room at the museum.

GRIFTON — The Grifton Historical Museum, housed in the Grifton Civic Center, looks much today as it did many years ago.

But several changes have taken place.

The old brick structure protected by towering trees and located on the south side of town began as an all-black school in 1936. After the switch to the desegregated school systems, the building was the home of a county migrant education program.

Then in 1976, interested persons inquired about the possibility of being funded by the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration for the purpose of turning two of the original classrooms into an area museum.

The Historical Museum Committee received a $5,000 grant from the Administration as a result of their efforts.

Janet Hasley, an Historical Museum Committee member, said that she and others felt the need for an area museum — one that reflected the heritage of Griftonians — and not just another general museum such as many have become.

Also, Hasley said that the Grifton area is rich in Indian heritage and that prior to the establishment of the museum on Dec. 31, 1976, many Indian relics had been displayed for the public to view. Special rooms in the museum contain prehistoric Indian artifacts, most of which are Tuscororan.

Hasley added that the Committee in 1976 thought it would benefit the community and eastern North Carolinians to organize a permanent means of displaying the arrowheads, spearheads, and other Tuscororan relics. The theme, in fact, of last year's Shad Festival was "Tuscororan Indians," and the museum which was the town's Bicentennial project was dedicated at the 1977 Shad Festival.

Hasley said that when plans to organize the museum were announced several people donated antiques and artifacts, some dating as far back as 7000 B.C. to 10,000 B.C. So the original idea of displaying Indian artifacts expanded to all artifacts of historical value.

"Raeford Blizzard of Richlands brought down two carloads. Tony Kelly of Kinston also provided several items," she added.

"After that" the collection grew by leaps and bounds."

Members of the Museum Committee carried many of the donated objects to authorities to have them dated and to gain any additional information that they needed.

"Dr. Jeffrey Coe of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and Dr. David Phelps of the Anthropology Department at East Carolina University both helped us in dating the objects," said Hasley.

"John Ellington, advisor to the North Carolina Museum of History, also gave advice in the early stages."

The museum is presently divided into seven areas of interest — the Shad room, recent history, Indian heritage, natural history, early home implements, farming, and industry.

A broken Atlatl weight, used to increase the radius of a spear when tossed, was dated at 7000 B.C. There are also displays of old home-use items — a wash basin and pitcher, hand-woven chairs, and the hoop from a hooped skirt — farm equipment, including a two-man saw, and a genuine "likker still."

Many old tales surround the antiques. For example, Mrs. Janie Mae Mewborn, a long-time resident of Grifton, noted the smoothly-worn edges on the cane chairs. She said that many years ago, when children were learning to walk, parents would turn these chairs on end and the children would push the chairs in front of them much like a walker. That is why what are supposed to be round knobs at the top of the chairs are worn flat.

Hasley said that the museum tells much of the story of "Catechna" — the original Tuscororan village located in the Grifton vicinity — and also the history of the locale and its people.

"Everything here (in the museum) was either used by the people or is very similar to what was used," she noted.

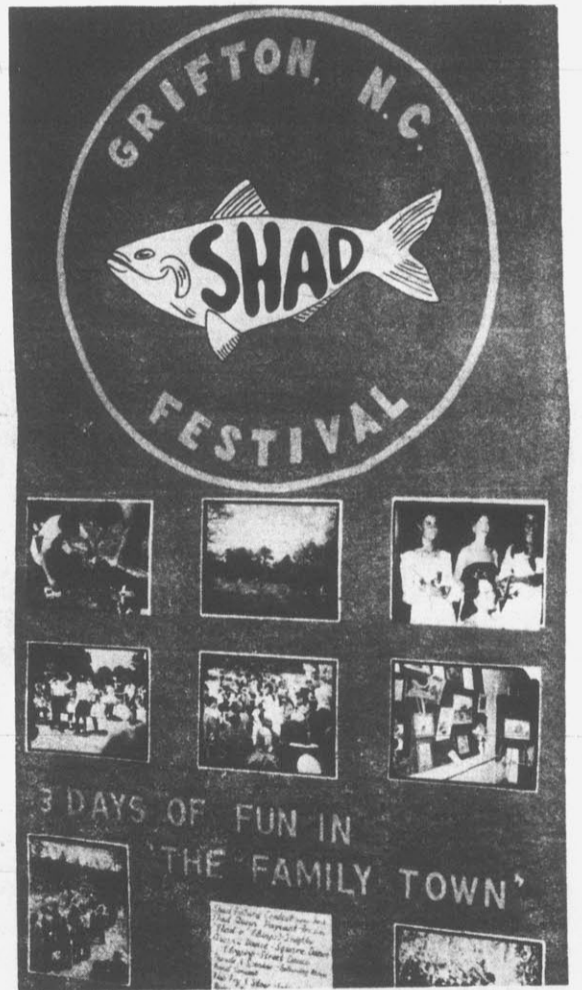

She added that at the 1977 Shad Festival, the Committee invited Tuscororan Chief Arnold Hewitt to attend. The chief visited Grifton from up-state New York where the tribe presently lives.

This is the sort of feeling that the Museum Committee wishes to bring to the area — a feeling of bringing together the past and the present.

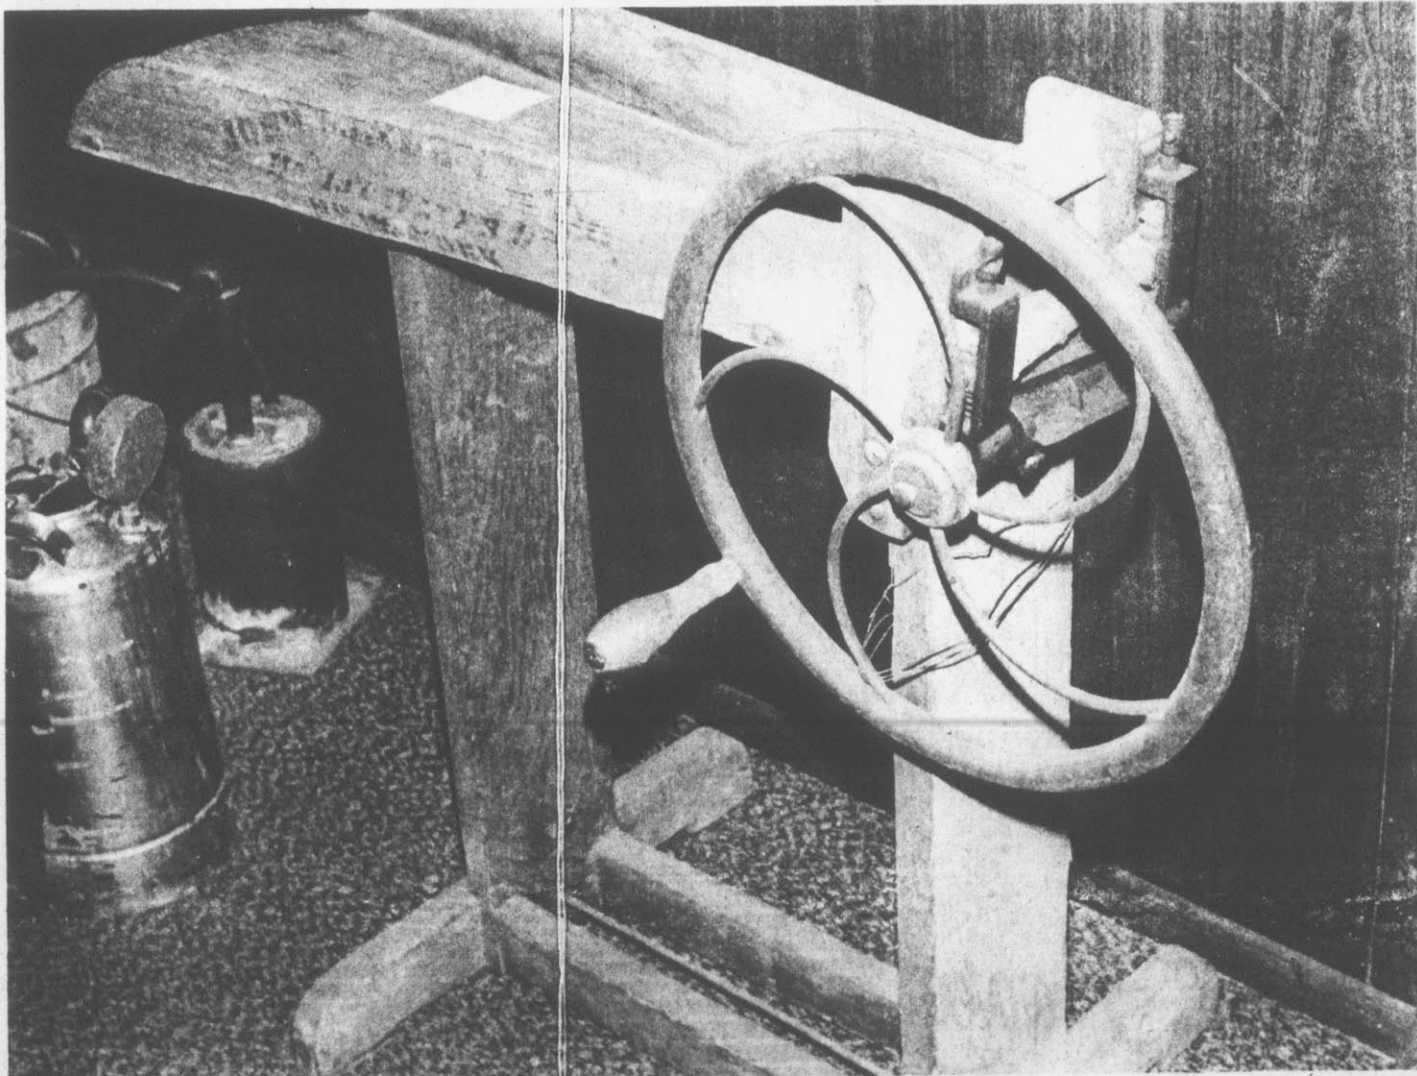

Hasley said that they hope to soon expand the present facilities to include the other two of the original fourclassroom structure. That would double their floor space.

"We have already had people to donate display cases for the exhibits. Now we just need time to do it."

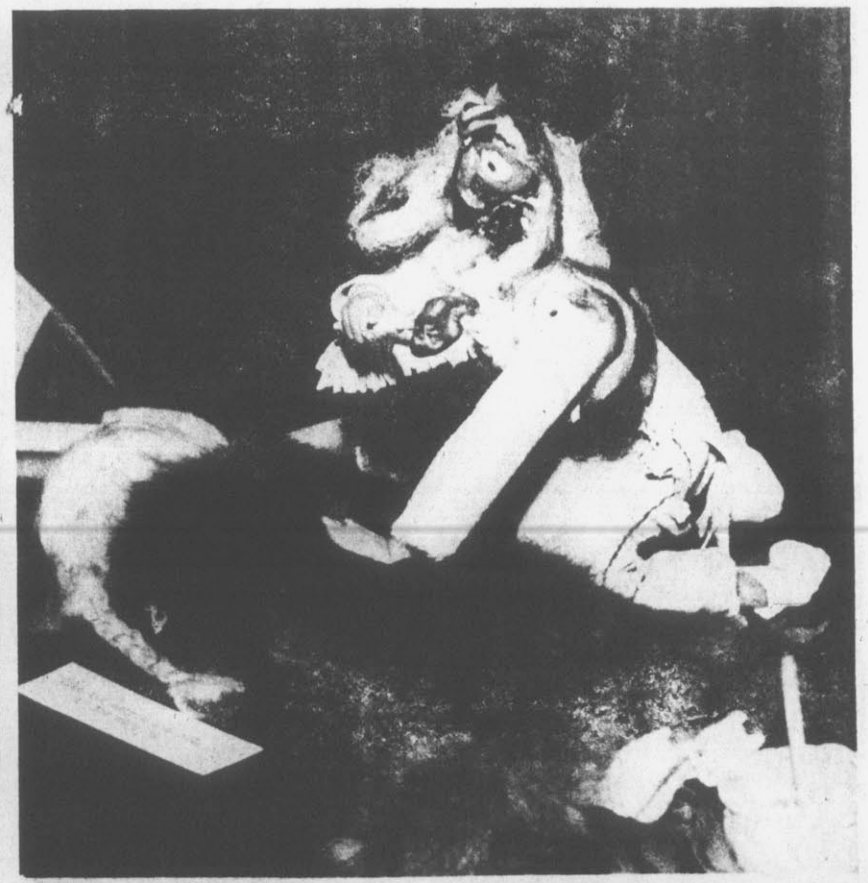

The museum is open to the public on Sundays from 2-4 p.m. Appointments may be made during the week by calling Janet Hasley at 524-4356.

SHAD SIGN — The Grifton Shad Festival is more than likely the town's greatest source of advertisement. This poster which partially tells the story of the festival is located in the Shad Room.

CUTS CORN — This old farm equipment was used to chop fodder and green corn. To the left is a small still that was never found by "revenooers."

INDIAN DOLL — A replica of a Tuscororan Indian doctor kneels over one of his less healthy patients. The two dolls were made by a local Griftonian and can be seen among a collection of other Indian relics.

Smyth-Watts Vows Said In Ceremony Saturday

KENBRIDGE, VA. — Saint Paul's Episcopal Church here was the scene of the Saturday afternoon wedding ceremony of Bernice Kathleen Watts and Sidney Malcolm Smyth. The double ring ceremony was performed at three o'clock by the Rev. Norman Baty.

Daughter of Mrs. Harry Douglas Souder of Colonial Heights, Va., and Mr. Robert Karl Watts of Richmond, Va., the bride was given in marriage by her mother. She was escorted by her brother-in-law, Herman Daniel Jackson.

She wore a candlelight chiffon wedding gown featuring a sweetheart neckline and satin bodice encrusted with pearls and crystal beading. The gown was styled with a natural waistline enhanced by a chiffon cummerbund, crystal pleated bishop sleeves with satin cuffs accented by matching pearls and crystal beading. The formal length circular skirt of chiffon had a chapel length train.

Her Juliet cap of pearls was fashioned with divided panels of chiffon. She carried an airy European cluster of white sweetheart roses, stephanotis and baby's breath accented with ribbon and love knots.

The bride is the granddaughter of Mrs. William Marcellus Windham of Rt. 4, Greenville, N. C., and the late Mr. Windham.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. John Russell Smyth of Kenbridge, Va., and the late Susan Nebbett Smyth.

A program of wedding music was rendered by Mrs. James Averill, organist, and Debbie Fishell and Sterling Smyth, vocalists.

Mrs. David Johnson of Richmond, Va., sister of the bride, was the honor attendant. She was dressed in a strawberry qana and chiffon halter gown gathered at the shoulders. The gown had an empire waistline and two toned triangular chiffon cape with a self-tie at the mandarin neckline and formal length A-line skirt. She carried a nosegay of red sweetheart roses, white miniature carnations, baby's breath and springerli foliage.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Herman Daniel Jackson of Chester,

MRS. SIDNEY MALCOLM SMYTH

Va., and Mrs. Truin Neal Adams Jr. of Greensboro, N. C., sisters of the bride, Deborah Ann Jackson of Chester, Va., niece of the bride, and Wanda K. Smith of Kenbridge, Va. Their gowns and flowers were identical to those of the honor attendant.

The flower girl, Cassandra Whitlow, of Kenbridge, Va., wore a formal length oyster white chiffon dress with a mandarin neckline trimmed in lace featuring a natural waistline enhanced by a pink velvet sash and long bishop sleeves.

The ring bearer was Arthur Joseph LaVance of Richmond, Va.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers included Sterling McFarland Smyth, brother of the bridegroom, Lewis William Irby and Howard F. Davis, all of Kenbridge, Va., and Cardwell Camden Nukols Jr. of Richmond, Va.

The mother of the bride selected a gown of pink qana styled with a formal length A-line skirt, V-necking and empire waistline. The gathered bodice was accented by matching Venise lace and rhinestones.

The bridegroom's stepmother was dressed in a formal length gown of blue qana styled with a V-neckline, empire waistline and long fitted sleeves.

For a wedding trip to Caracas, Venezuela, the bride changed into a beige suit with matching blouse and dark brown accessories. She wore the bridal corsage lifted from her bouquet.

The couple will reside in Kenbridge, Va.

The bride is a graduate of Atlantic Christian College and the bridegroom is a graduate of Louisburg College and the University of Richmond.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Lunenburg Country Club.

New Flavor For Peanuts

TYRONE, Pa. (UPI) — Peanuts with the flavor of pecans, black walnuts or toasted almonds are new from a manufacturer here. They are not likely to fool anyone who eats them out of hand, because the texture differs from that of the nuts they imitate. But used in baking and confectionery, the texture difference is less apparent. As an ingredient, they cost less than the other nuts.

Nu-nuts are made by Flavored Nuts, Inc. in Tyrone and marketed by Feaster Foods Co., Omaha, Neb.

The fourth annual antiques show and sale, sponsored by the Chapel Hill Preservation Society, will be held Feb. 9-11. Dealers will exhibit at two locations on Pittsboro Street, the Carolina Inn and the Wesley Foundation.

Hours of the show will be 7:30-9:30 p.m. Thursday, 11 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. Friday and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday.

Dealers will display a variety of items for sale including period furniture, porcelain, silver, rare books, prints, glassware, primitives and antique clothes.

Prior to the opening of the show Thursday, patrons will attend a preview party where they may meet the dealers.

Jean Holcomb, chairman, has announced two special events to be featured during the show and sale. The fashion show, to be held in conjunction with a box luncheon, will be coordinated by Pam Benson of Night Gallery, Chapel Hill, and will be held for the first time this year. Models will show antique clothes. In addition, the Side Porch Shop consignment booth of previous years will be repeated.

Proceeds from antiques show admissions will go to further the work of the Chapel Hill Preservation Society in the community. Past restoration projects have included the Betty Smith House, the Fountain House and the Horace Williams House, which now serves as a center for many social, educational and cultural events.

Visitors to the Southern Living Show, Charlotte, will be able to see hundreds of unique handmade crafts and craft demonstrations during Feb. 25 through March 5.

The show is scheduled for the Charlotte Merchandise Mart. Show hours are 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. weekdays and Saturdays and noon until 6 p.m. Sundays.

Others features are the show's famous gardens, orchid area, designer rooms created by members of the American Society of Interior Designers, judged flower show, Gardener's Marketplace offering the sale of plants and accessories, Shopper's Row with wall and floor coverings, appliances, indoor-outdoor living furniture and a Travel and Recreation Pavilion.

The opening weekend of the show coincides with a sports event, the Sun Belt Conference Tournament, Feb. 24-26 at the Coliseum. Six of the south's leading basketball teams will compete for the championship title.

Single Servings Now Available

CHICAGO (UPI) — A new buttermilk pancake mix is a good buy for small households because it can be used to make a single serving as well as multiple servings. The dry mix contains eggs, buttermilk and shortening, among other things. Only water need be added to make batter. The manufacturer says a 2-pound package makes about 42 (4-inch) pancakes.

Wedding Invitation

Mr. and Mrs. Richard S. Harris request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter, Sandra Louise, to Billy Evans, on Saturday, Feb. 11, at 4:00 p.m. in the Falkland Presbyterian Church.

Country Inn Has Purring Cats

By JO-ANNE BYRNE
WABASHA, Minn. (UPI) — A delicious meal, a toast or two, hot bricks for your bed on a cold Minnesota night and a house cat to purr you to sleep.

If that sounds more appealing than the way you spent New Year's Eve, you should have spent the evening in Wabasha at the Anderson House.

It is the oldest operating hotel in Minnesota, having opened in 1856. Its roots can be traced to Pennsylvania's lush Lancaster Valley where the Amish know how to feed and house a weary body.

Operating as a country inn, the Anderson House clings to Victorian customs and traditions, wrapping them around each visitor and allowing him to depart the bustle of the 1970s.

Grandma Ida Anderson began running the red brick inn in 1901 after learning her cooking skills in Lancaster, Pa. She quickly became famous for her superb taste treats, which continue today under the auspices of her great-grandson John Hall.

In February, for example, when the inn is full of skiers, guests might get scrapple and fastnachts, the morning meal dish and plump doughnuts; familiar to the fortunates raised in Pennsylvania. Shoo-fly pie also may appear on the menu.

But the food is not all Pennsylvania "plain." It can reach the elegant heights of any big city restaurant.

And after the food, guests can retire to one of the 52 rooms recently remodeled by Hall. All are decorated in bright wallpapers with matching quilted spreads made by two senior citizens in a Wabasha nursing home.

If you reserve it, you might get the Mayo Suite, which includes a bedroom, sitting room and bath. Otherwise, plan on using the bath down the hall in the tradition of an inn.

The inn is furnished with antiques, many sumptuous, particularly the Norwegian bridal bed in the Bridal Suite.

Leave your shoes outside the door when you retire. In the morning they'll be freshly shined. And if your feet are very cold, ask for the hot bricks.

If you've been out cross country skiing and caught a cold, there are mustard plasters to heat your chest.

Cat lovers can order up one of six cats for a bedside companion.

In the summer some of the inn's rooms are used as a youth hostel and, for visitors from another country, there is no charge.

Jeanne Hall, John's mother, worked for a large hotel chain for a period during which the Anderson House had another owner. She grew weary of the "plastic world" and yearned to return to the Anderson to practice her creativity.

The family managed to repurchase the inn last year for five times what they sold it for in 1964.

Mrs. Hall now has freedom for her creative urges and reigns over the inn with a smile.

For visitors staying more than a night, "we insist our employees know the people by their names," she said. That little amenity will get them every time.

The Anderson House is one of only three inns currently operating in Minnesota. The others are the New Prague Hotel in New Prague, which specializes in Czech foods, and the sophisticated Lowell Inn in Stillwater.

Dear Abby

Husband Won't Put Up A Fight

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: This may sound strange, but in the six years my husband and I have been married, we have never had a fight. We've had plenty of disagreements, but we have never settled any of them. When my husband is mad about something, he clams up and sulks. He won't even tell me what's wrong.

I am as bad as he is. When I'm upset, I get a lump in my throat, tears in my eyes, and I keep quiet. Sometimes I wish we could bring all our complaints out in the open and have a good old-fashioned shouting argument, but I honestly wouldn't know how to start one.

Any suggestions?

SULKER'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: You are wise to want to air your feelings. Allowing unresolved tensions to build up inside can cause one major explosion far more serious than a series of minor blowouts. Few married couples agree on EVERYTHING.

When you're upset, swallow that lump in your throat, let the tears fall where they may, and say exactly what you're thinking. Don't attack you mate in anger—simply describe your feelings honestly.

This is sure to provoke some sort of reaction in your husband. He'll either deny or affirm, defend or counterattack, justify or apologize. And before you know it, you'll have a healthy, honest dialogue going.

DEAR ABBY: Why do so many people object to children? I am the mother of three, ages 2, 4 and 6, and I take them with me everywhere. If I'm invited somewhere, I always ask if my children are welcome, and if they're not, I don't go.

Children need to be with their parents as much as possible. It assures them that they are loved. Leaving children at home all the time is hard on them. It makes them feel unwanted and insecure.

I am not insulted if I am told my children aren't welcome. I realize that sometimes children are hard to take. Even mine. It requires a lot of love and patience to take your children with you all the time, but they grow up so fast, it's worth it.

I will stick by my beliefs and encourage others to do the same.

LOVES CHILDREN

DEAR LOVES: You ask why so many people object to children. Because, unless they are disciplined and well behaved, they tend to impose on the rights of others. Children cannot be expected to behave as adults, and to demand that they do puts an impossible and unfair burden on them.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have put up with this nervy couple long enough. They always come at mealtime. Being a well-mannered person, I cannot eat in front of people, so I ask them to join us. And when they do, they eat everything in sight.

We bought curtains to close off the front windows, but they seem to know when we are home and keep ringing the bell and pounding on our door until we let them in.

We have started to eat in our basement with the lights off, but my husband refuses to eat down there in the dark anymore. How can we discourage these people?

AT A LOSS

DEAR AT: For openers, you could come right out, and tell them that when you want dinner guests you will invite them. And if you're lucky, they'll never visit you again.

DEAR ABBY: A few years ago I fell in love with a married man. We both work in the same office, so of course we see each other every day.

I know his wife will never give him a divorce, and as long as I am around this man I'll never get over him, so I have decided to quit my job and find another one.

My problem is, what reason should I give my boss for quitting?

STUMPED

DEAR STUMPED: Tell him you want a change of scenery. (It's true.)

DEAR ABBY: I have tried to solve my problem myself, but it has gone too far for me.

I have a 12-year-old son who is an only child, and my husband babies him to death. Anything Scottie wants, Scottie gets.

Well, Scottie has been out of school going on the fifth week. He says he doesn't feel well, and his father believes him and lets him stay home. I know Scottie could go to school if he wanted to, because the minute the bus is gone Scottie feels better. He spends the day watching TV, eating and fooling around.

If I try to make him go to school, his father says I am being "mean." I am not mean, Abby. I am only trying to do what's best for the boy. Can you help me?

DESPERATE MOM

DEAR MOM: A physician should examine Scottie and decide whether or not he is well enough to go to school. If he is, go a step further and find out WHY Scottie doesn't want to go to school. A conference with his teacher might be the key to the whole problem.

Prepare For TV Appearance, Then Relax

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

The average active person has a good chance to get on television these days, when there is much emphasis on talk shows.

In small towns the Chamber of Commerce, women's clubs and panel groups all get a chance at the tube. Housewives and career girls are especially thrilled at the prospect.

Some good advice in coping with one's first appearance on video is offered to its members by the American Society of Interior Designers, and the tips can apply to everyone.

For example, relax. The host and producer want you to make a good impression and will help make you look good. They will encourage you to say something interesting for their audience. In being informal, however, don't be flip or breezy.

Know what you want to say. Be ready with your opening line. Think of yourself as the host and take the lead, if you can.

If you have a point to make, don't be afraid to make it or rephrase it. Equip yourself with some interesting remarks, before you make your appearance.

If you are boring and there's a more interesting guest handy, you may be cut short.

But don't rehearse your remarks until they are so pat they sound canned. And don't hog the mike, the decorating group advises.

Spend some time watching yourself in the mirror or in a home movie to observe any idiosyncrasies. Do you do strange things with your mouth—biting the corner of your lip, for example? Do you roll your eyes upward when you are asked a question? Try to improve such facial habits.

Look confident, on the upbeat, but don't spend too much time looking at the monitor.

Look at the camera occasionally and casually so the audience knows you are talking to them. You will notice the host assumes that stance.

As for grooming, it is better to wear medium to soft colors. You should avoid wearing sparkling and highly polished jewelry that jingles, and don't fidget with it. Avoid sharply contrasting patterns and colors in clothes and don't try out a new hairdo for the first time. In fact, be sure your hair is neatly arranged so you are not constantly brushing it from your eyes—a mannerism annoying to the viewing audience.

Women should not wear heavy makeup; men should cover a heavy beard with pancake makeup and a little powder might be used on a bald head.

Be comfortable and relaxed but don't slouch, throw your arms over the back of a chair, or cross and recross your legs.

There are about 45 companies listed in the American Society for Training and Development that offer coaching services. The interior design society advises its members. But if you don't want to spend the time and money, you might watch talk show guests and copy from the best.

Liquid Sugar Not The Best Buy

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — A food and nutrition specialist says a new product, liquid brown sugar, is not a good buy as it appears at first glance.

Teresa Shaffer of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln evaluated the product in relation to regular brown sugar. Following the manufacturer's directions, she used half as much liquid as she would have the granular form. She found the liquid form cost seven cents more than the old-fashioned kind on a per cup basis.

The manufacturer also recommends the liquid produce as a syrup or sauce substitute on pancakes, waffles or ice cream. Ms. Shaffer said a comparable product can be made at home more cheaply: using half a cup of water for each cup of brown sugar, blend and heat on low until sugar crystals have dissolved.

Thin-skinned and russet-colored grapefruit is usually juicy. For a delicious compote, mix membrane-free sections of the grapefruit with golden raisins and honey.

Early Women Composers Researched

NEW YORK (AP) — Like detectives painstakingly putting together bits and pieces, an American entertainer and his wife have pursued the mystery of turn-of-the-century women who composed ragtime music.

Max Morath, musician, ragtime expert and Public Broadcasting Service series host, and his wife, Norma, gradually uncovered some "startling" facts about the women composers, the hardships they faced and the obstacles and prejudices they encountered.

"We found that women pianists outnumbered men by at least a 10-to-one margin, not only in the home, but also in silent movie theaters, clubs and restaurants," Max reports. After sifting through thousands of pieces of sheet music, Max and Norma learned that a woman composer was frequently identified only by her initials.

While touring the country in his one-man show, Max spent his days going through old music journals and newspaper files, talking with music collectors and old-time musicians, and checking telephone books for clues.

As he tried to track down surviving relatives who had old photographs and biographical information on the composers, Norma recruited college researchers who delved into material in the Library of Congress and other libraries with music archives.

One result of the research was an album, "The Ragtime Women," recorded by Max Morath on Vanguard. The record features the music of these composers who went unrecognized in their lifetime and whose works are rarely heard today.

"Ragtime, a form of music created by young black composers that was considered a threat to morality in those days, was condemned not only from the pulpits, but also by the American Federation of Musicians," Norma explains. "Ragtime was played in the home, often against stormy parental objection, but for a woman to play it in public was a sign that she was a fallen woman, if not worse."

Norma concluded that prejudice had been a factor after finding that few women composers ever belonged to music organizations, especially to clubs that stressed "fraternity" over business.

"Even musicologists of today knew about the music, but had little or no information on the women who composed it," she adds.

So, who were the women composers they discovered?

Julia Lee Niebergall of Indiana appears to have been an early feminist, who supported herself by teaching and furnishing accompaniment to silent movies at the Colonial Theater in Indianapolis. Married as a young woman, she sought a divorce shortly thereafter, and resumed her maiden name. The Moraths found that she kept her own home and profession until her death at 82, and she was one of the first women in Indiana to own an automobile.

Adeline Shepherd of Milwaukee wrote "Pickles and Peppers," a huge success when ragtime was king. That tune also became William Jennings Bryan's campaign song in his 1908 presidential bid.

After a brief flurry of creative success, she married a prosperous insurance executive named Olson. Her obituary made no mention of her success as a composer. Marriage also ended the music career of May Auferheide of Indianapolis, the Moraths report.

Little information was obtained on Gladys Yelvington, Charlotte Blake, Mabel Tilton or Louise V. Gustin, but it was readily available on Muriel Pollock. The author of "Rooster Rag," she later wrote Broadway shows, became a radio star and a staff musician at NBC. She married songwriter Will Donaldson and they moved to Hollywood, where her stepson, Ted, became a child star.

Dr. Kathy Craig also was easy to locate. Her "Romantic Rag" was an award winner at the Joplin Festival in Missouri, and she frequently plays club and concert dates in Los Angeles. The only living composer represented on "The Ragtime Women" album, she is a practicing dentist by day.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

If compliments were food, I'd have starved to death 28 years ago.

My husband belongs to that great fraternity of men who not only believe silence is golden... it's safe.

Just once I'd like to come in from the beauty shop and not have him say, "Whatsa matter, couldn't they take you?"

Yesterday, I came in from the beauty shop and he said, "Whatsa matter, couldn't they take you?"

"Quit clowning around. Do you like it or not?"

"Do you?"

"Yes."

"Then that's all that matters."

"What do you mean by a crack like that?" I chided.

"It's not a crack. I liked your hair before."

"Then you liked it better the way it was than you do now. Why don't you admit it?"

"I didn't say that. Is that a new style?"

"You didn't notice that it's Solar Hair? Everyone's wearing it."

"Fine, then you'll look like everyone else."

"Thanks a lot. Do you like the color?"

"It's interesting."

"Anwar Sadat is interesting. Hair is exciting, revolutionary, striking, memorable."

"I pick memorable."

"Do you think anyone will notice the change?"

"Do you want them to?"

"Why do you always answer a question with a question?"

"Did I say that?"

"Would it kill you just once to come out and say you liked something?"

"Is that what you want me to say?"

"I want you to say what you feel!"

"I'm hungry, what's for lunch?"

"If you hate my hair so much, I'll have it changed back to the old style and the old color. But just once I wish to heavens you'd give me an honest opinion instead of beating around the bush with those stupid innuendos."

"I think your hair looks like a porcupine in heat," he said clearly.

"Who asked you?" I said, slamming the door.

There's Comfort In Main-Dish Soups

By CECILY BROWNSTONE Associated Press Food Editor

Every once in a while you may find, as we do, that it's comforting to have a main-dish soup on hand in the refrigerator or freezer. For those unexpected but happy occasions these days when the whole family is ready and willing to sit down to a meal together. For weekend company that may or may not come. For a day when you are too busy or tired to do any real cooking but long for a good homemade dish.

Here's a Hungarian-style main-dish soup we can recommend. It was inspired by a recipe in Alice Loebel's cookbook dealing with stockpot and steamer cooking. Mrs. Loebel thickens her soup with flour and you may also want to do so. We prefer it as we have given it — with a thin broth.

HUNGARIAN-STYLE SOUP

- 1/4 pound bacon, cut in 1-inch crosswise pieces
- 4 medium onions, coarsely chopped
- 1 pound lean chuck beef, diced (1/2 inch)
- 6 cups fat-free beef broth or 6 beef bouillon cubes dissolved in 6 cups boiling water
- 16-ounce can tomatoes, undrained
- 1/2 cup red wine
- 1 tablespoon tomato paste
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 2 teaspoons paprika
- 1/2 teaspoon caraway seeds
- 1/4 teaspoon dried crushed marjoram

- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 1/2 teaspoon sugar
- 1 pound potatoes, pared and diced (1/2 inch)
- 1/4 pound ready-to-eat kielbasa-style or beef frankfurters or knockwurst, sliced

In a large saucepot cook the bacon until it is transparent. Add the onion and, stirring often, cook until golden. Add the beef and cook, stirring, until its surfaces lose their red color. Add the remaining ingredients except the potatoes and frankfurters. Stir well and bring to a boil. Simmer, covered, for about 30 minutes. Add the potatoes and frankfurters and let bubble gently until the potatoes are tender — about 30 minutes. Skim off some of the fat now or remove it after refrigeration when it has hardened. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Boil one fourth cup of dry white wine with 2 tablespoons minced shallots, one half cup canned beef bouillon, diluted as label directs, and one eighth teaspoon of pepper until mixture has reduced to 2 tablespoons, about 5 minutes. Cool. Cream one half cup butter with a fork. Add butter to wine mixture 1 tablespoon at a time. Add parsley and beat. Spread on steaks or chops as they come from the broiler or skillet or use on cooked vegetables. To make the dip, substitute cream cheese for the butter and follow same method. Serve with raw vegetables or crackers.

The St. Peter's Women's Club held its meeting Wednesday in the school hall. David Harter, of H and R Block, showed an IRS produced film on tax audit.

President Lud Sherwood welcomed Laurie Fowler as a special guest.

It was announced that because of a conflict of dates the club's card party scheduled for Feb. 17 would be postponed until a later time. Fanny Flower, chairman of the spaghetti supper, gave a report on the event held Jan. 14.

A set of dishes was donated by the club to Social Services to be used for a family whose trailer burned. Dina Dorney was named chairman of the club's St. Patrick's Day party to be held Saturday, March 18, in the school hall. The club will sponsor a wine and cheese sharing at the church Holy Thursday, March 23.

Would Protect Small Inventor

By RICK HAMPSON
Associated Press Writer
SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Good old Yankee ingenuity is alive in a dusty, cluttered, one-room office here filled with creations such as a pyramid television antenna and a peg set to hold down beach blankets.

Alexander Marinaccio, president and founder of the Inventors Club of America, sat one recent afternoon behind a desk covered with some of the paperwork that goes into inventing.

He explained why he felt small-time inventors could be New England's economic salvation. "Local inventors don't make their products using foreign labor in Hong Kong or Taiwan. They stay here and hire Americans," he said.

"And they won't run off to the Sun Belt like the big corporations. They tend to stay in the area they're from and put up with local laws and taxes that drive the big operators out." But these are hard times for the small inventor. The inventors fear competition from foreign inventors, plus the usurpation of ideas and labor by big manufacturers or firms that make a business of stealing invention ideas, Marinaccio pointed out.

Although about 70 percent of patents issued in the United States last year went to individuals, a rising number are held by foreigners, Marinaccio says that's mostly because the system is rigged against small American inventors.

"Inventors were ripped off to the tune of $500 million last year," he said. "Most of them don't know what to do with their inventions or how to protect their patents."

"We want a union of inventors... they will be able to help each other."

The club has a lawyer lobbying in Washington for patent law reform, Marinaccio said.

Marinaccio started the club in 1933, but the Great Depression had the economy bogged down. The club's membership never grew beyond four.

Marinaccio revived the club in 1970 after retiring from the appliance business.

"We're a small seed trying to grow," he said. The club counts around 150 members in Springfield, and somewhere between 500 and 600 nationwide.

Grandparent Good Source

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "If you want to understand what it really felt like to live at the turn of the century, or during the Depression of the '30s, or before automobiles, radio or television — go to your grandparents."

That's the advice of Temple University historian Allen F. Davis, who teaches a course on "Your Family History" and is co-author with Jim Watts of the City College of New York of "Generations: Your Family in Modern American History."

Much of the research done by students in the course deals with family emigration, war and the Depression, as well as ethnic living, celebrations and food.

Dr. Davis suggests that students study "the impact of those two major events of the 20th century — the Depression and World War II — on their families and communities."

"Your own grandfather is more important to you than Grover Cleveland," says the professor, who asks students in his classes to "find out as much as you can about your own family and try to turn in about 20 pages on your findings."

"The study of family also provides a chance for the young college student to get acquainted with his or her grandparents and to find out the grandparents were real people. They come away with a greater respect for their parents, grandparents and great-grandparents," he says.

Potential For Computer Crime Worrying Experts

EDITOR'S NOTE — Experts won't talk much about computer crime, or its potential, but they're worried enough to develop elaborate precautions not only against theft and spying, but against sabotage that could affect the nation's well-being.

By EVANS WITT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — In this electronic era, not every bank robber needs a gun. He may find a computer terminal and a telephone line more useful. And instead of bombs, the with-it terrorist could use a computer terminal to open the floodgates of a dam, shut down a city's electric power or erase an insurance company's records.

Theft by computer is no longer a rarity. Sabotage by computer has remained isolated and unpublicized thus far. Many computers that control crucial operations in the public and private sphere or contain personal information on virtually every American are vulnerable to mischief. Computer security has become a big issue.

Puzzles — cryptograms and codes — provide one means of protection: Unbelievably esoteric puzzles that would take the fastest computer billions of years to solve.

Design of these puzzles has generated a shadowy conflict in the regions of higher mathematics between the nation's most secret spy agency and academics working on codes to safeguard computer information.

The professors believe that the National Security Agency has tried to stifle public discussion of their research because an "unbreakable code" that becomes generally available might crimp NSA's monitoring, intercepting and decoding of communications by foreign governments and agencies.

They also are concerned that failure to pursue their research could allow intelligence agencies to gain unparalleled access to the private lives of Americans.

Companies that are victimized don't like to talk about it, for obvious reasons, and computer crimes are often difficult to prove. But they are lucrative. One study shows the average booty is nearly $500,000 per crime.

One computer expert tells of the conservation of a Tennessee Valley Authority official when told that someone could sit in his home with a computer terminal and a telephone and order TVA's computers to open the flood gates on its dams.

Oil company employees in Alaska were using their company's computer in Texas to develop bids for leases of federal land.

Repeatedly, the company's bids lost by only a few dollars, says Donn Parker, a computer security expert at SRI International in Menlo Park, Calif. Suspecting industrial espionage, oil company officials checked out the company's telephone line in Alaska.

"About three miles down the line, they found another building where two wires were attached to their telephone line. Inside the building was an identical terminal, printing out everything that they had been getting on their terminal," Parker says.

While codes make things much tougher for the intruder, many can be broken — deciphered without a key. A tough code to break is so cumbersome and expensive that only the very highest security communications use it. The Washington-Moscow hotline is protected by such a code.

So the search has continued for a code that is practical for users other than governments. Two groups think they have found one: The U.S. government and the academic researchers at Stanford and Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Which is where the National Security Agency, a great listener, comes in. Codes are NSA's business. Its job is to keep U.S. codes secure. It monitors foreign powers' and agencies' codes and decipherers them. If a university research produced a readily available, undecipherable code, "they won't be able to read other people's mail," as one engineer put it.

Independent work at Stanford and MIT hit on a group of mathematical functions called "NP-complete problems" that forms the basis of the code. Its developers believe both encoding and decoding can be done on a device similar to a pocket calculator and the code itself would be impervious to non-initiates.

That, researchers suspect, is the reason behind a mysterious letter received shortly before an Institute for Electrical and Electronic Engineers seminar last fall that included discussions of the developers' work.

The letter to the IEEE from J.A. Meyer of Bethesda, Md., warned that discussion of the coding systems or distribution of technical papers could violate federal laws prohibiting unauthorized export of weapons and defense material.

Sources in a position to know say Meyer is an employee of NSA, although the agency will not confirm it.

At one time, NSA insisted the letter did not state an official agency position. More recently, NSA refused to give its position on the letter.

In any case, the seminar went on as scheduled in October at Cornell University at Ithaca, N.Y.

On advice of lawyers, one of the scientists, Martin Hellman of Stanford, read the papers of two of his students. University lawyers said Hellman, a tenured professor, would be defended by the university but that the students' status was uncertain. After talking with MIT attorneys, another developer, Ronald Rivest, refused to give out copies of his paper, although he has now resumed distribution.

"Open discussion is being substantially chilled by the letter from Meyer," says one scientist.

Another controversy involving NSA is over the U.S. government's Data Encryption Standard.

The National Bureau of Standards asked private firms to propose coding standards that could be implemented inexpensively with the latest electronic technology. Both the federal government and private companies would use it.

A proposal by International Business Machines was accepted. DES takes computer data and shuffles them several times according to a key provided by the user. The shuffling is done on a special integrated circuit no bigger than a fingernail. The same circuit also can be used to decode encrypted information.

A series of numbers called "S-boxes" is used by DES to shuffle data. The National Security Agency asked IBM not to disclose how S-boxes were designed, and IBM agreed.

At a seminar on DES, an

IBM representative was asked to prove that the S-boxes made the system stronger. According to those who were present, the response was, "You must trust us."

Hellman has suggested that information encoded by DES could be read if a special-purpose computer were built to try every possible key until the right one is found.

"It'd be like a combination lock. If you can search all the combinations then you can break it," Hellman explained.

Without full computer security, the potential for massive invasions of privacy, not to mention computer crimes, will vastly increase. With iron-clad safeguards, as one expert puts it, "the windows into other people's communications will close."

Learn System 'From Scratch'

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — If your children seem to pick up metric measurement quicker than you can, the reason may be that they don't try to translate it into something else, says a Purdue University professor.

Adults may encounter unnecessary difficulty because they try to convert the kilometers or grams of the metric system into miles and pounds of the Imperial system.

It's better to skip the conversion problems and learn metrics as a separate system the way the kids do, advises Gerald Krockover, an associate professor of education and geosciences, who is preparing a plan for instructing elementary school children in metrics.

He points out that it's much easier to think of a centimeter as the approximate width of your little finger than it is to think of a centimeter as 0.3937 inch.

It's easier to grasp the idea that 10 centimeters is about the span of a hand than to try and remember that 10 centimeters is little less than four inches.

With a bit of practice, adults will soon begin to conceptualize a kilogram, the metric measure of weight, as so many ground beef patties or quantities of some other everyday item, Krockover says.

The liter, the metric unit of liquid, happens to be almost equal to a quart, so conversion makes sense in this case, he notes.

Besides distance, weight and volume, about the only other metric measurement most citizens will encounter regularly is the Celsius (centigrade) temperature scale. Krockover believes most persons will learn it quickly through weather forecasts and other usage.

The metric system includes several other units of measurement, but most of them are used primarily in scientific and technical work, the professor points out. Most persons will seldom encounter the newton, a measure of force, or the lux, a measure of illumination. Additional training is needed to use these measurements, he concedes.

One source of confusion over the metric system is the use of prefixes with the various units. Although the same prefix always means the same thing, sometimes pronunciations change as they are added to different units. A kilogram is 1,000 grams and a kilometer is 1,000 meters, but kilo is not pronounced the same way in both words.

Another problem, Krockover says, may be in spelling. In the United States, it's meter and liter. Elsewhere in the English-speaking world, it's metre and litre.

Old Car Hobby Has Become A Business

WILLOUGHBY, Ohio (AP) — It wasn't too long ago that used-car salesman Bob Butcher sold one for a profit of $8,700.

It wasn't your average used car, but Butcher is not your average used-car salesman. He deals in antiques.

That particular sale was a 1940 Ford convertible that he bought for $9,800 and kept almost a year. It finally went for $18,500.

Butcher started in the business as a hobby collector of old cars. He opened up shop as Antique Auto, Inc., in September 1975.

"The demand for certain cars is so great they are extremely difficult to find and the investment possibilities are growing every day," he said.

Consider: 15-year-old Ford Thunderbirds may bring up to $10,000; the 1955-57 Thunderbirds are selling for up to $20,000; a 1965 Ford Mustang has gone for $4,100.

Not any old car will bring that kind of money. Butcher prefers to deal in what are termed "classic" or "special interest" cars. Classics are models which were usually in limited production for only one or two years. Special interest cars are of some unusual design that are designated as future classics by the Special Interest Auto Club of America.

"Classics, for the most part, bring more money than antiques," Butcher said.

Some production models of recent years can be designated as future classics and Butcher said these are the cars people should invest in. As examples, he cites the Continental Mark III produced in 1969-71, and the 1953 Buick. Butcher has his own collection of eight cars, ranging from a model "T" Ford to a Rolls Royce. He said they had doubled or tripled in value because they were irreplaceable.

"People buy cars they can relate to," he said. "I had one woman buy a car for her husband for their anniversary. It was like the first new car she and her husband bought years ago."

New collectors of old cars, he advises, should start out simply, with a car that doesn't need much mechanical or restoration work.

"In this way, they ease into the hobby and learn more about it," he said. "If they buy a first auto which requires too much work they may become discouraged."

"They should consult an expert before buying an antique or classic."

Cave Home Is Spacious

By JUDY BOCKLAGE

Associated Press Writer
GREENWOOD, Ark. (AP) — After living in a mobile home with three children, a dog and a cat for several years, Sharon Dorsey thinks her new $15,000 cave home is "downright spacious."

Sharon and Tommy Dorsey moved their family in September into the home Sharon's uncle, Jeff Cate, and 81-year-old grandfather, Tink Cate, designed. The home was carved out of a Sebastian County hillside with the aid of a bulldozer late last winter, and Jeff Cate lived there through the summer.

Now he has moved his family back to town, not because he's disenchanted with cave life, but for personal reasons.

It was Grandfather Tink's idea to build the cave home, primarily to escape soaring utility bills, Mrs. Dorsey said. Now she and her family are looking forward to a winter of low heating bills.

During October, the cost of providing electricity to run the refrigerator, television, clocks, lights, hot water heater and range was $28.

"We'll rely on a wood-burning stove for heat this winter," Mrs. Dorsey said, so the utility bills are not expected to get any higher when the weather stays cold.

One recent afternoon when it was a blustery 30 degrees outside, Mrs. Dorsey and her 18-month-old baby relaxed in a cozy 75-degree warmth, provided by some coals still warm from a fire made earlier in a wood-burning furnace "to take the chill out of the air."

From a distance the three-bedroom home looks like a grassy mound off old U.S. 71. But Mrs. Dorsey is planning some changes in the original design. She hopes to add wood doors to the front and the back, and to make a greenhouse by sloping fiberglass panels on one side of the cave.

About 62 percent of the U.S. population, or 133 million Americans, were licensed to drive motor vehicles in 1976.

Besides the three bedrooms, the home has a combined dining room, kitchen and living room.

When they built the cave, Tink and Jeff Cate sealed the concrete block walls with tar on the outside. A 2-foot-deep layer of dirt was shoveled on top and about 8 feet of dirt was stacked on the sides to help insulate it from the hot sun last summer, a technique that appears to have worked.

When he lived there, Jeff Cate said one typical June day when the mercury outside hit 89 degrees, the inside temperature stayed at about 70 degrees — without the aid of an air conditioner.

"At night it got so cool you needed a blanket," he said. "The secret to the steady temperature inside the cave is its insulation, Mrs. Dorsey said. "It's like a storm cellar."

After the first six weeks of living as a modern cave family, Mrs. Dorsey says they hope to stay there indefinitely.

"This is home," she said.

Critics May Dislike Robbins' Style; But He Sells

By RICHARD NEWCOMBE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a business known for arrogant executives, there was nothing unusual about the cocky young film studio vice president throwing a movie script on his boss' desk and shouting: "Even I could write a better novel than this!"

But three decades ago, Harold Robbins did more than shout. He did write a better novel. "Never Love a Stranger," one of the biggest sellers in history — more than 19 million copies so far, and 600,000 to 800,000 paperbacks still sold every year.

"I went home every night and started typing, writing my first book," Robbins said in an interview, recalling his decision to begin writing while still a financial vice president — at $300,000 a year — with Universal Studios.

"After I typed the first line — 'Mrs. Cozzolina tasted the soup' — I knew writing was for me."

Robbins' writing may not satisfy literary critics, although many admire his facile style, but his 14 books — novels like "The Carpetbaggers," "79 Park Avenue," "The Pirate" and "The Lonely Lady" — have sold a staggering total of 200 million copies.

All are still in print, in English and a variety of the 41 other languages in which they have been published.

The only three novelists who have sold more books — Agatha Christie, Earl Stanley Gardner and Edgar Rice Burroughs — are dead. No living author comes close.

"All I want to do is write novels," he says. "I'm the best novelist in the world."

Robbins, now 61, was in Washington to promote his latest novel, "Dreams Die First," the story of a sex magazine publisher who was born into wealth, on unemployment at 30 and a multimillionaire by 40.

Like most of Robbins' novels, his latest is heavily laden with sex.

The publisher is a hedonistic bisexual who has one affair after another — all described in vivid detail. Although the fictional publisher is not directly involved, the book is laced with sado-masochism and sexual abuse of children.

"This has got something to say about today's world," Robbins said. "We make cracks about the gays, but their sexual preferences are their own and I tried to show that, by having a real life character who is bisexual."

Robbins, who refused to say how many times he has been married, admitted to having had sexual relations with men and to using drugs — particularly cocaine — to get "a feel for the high" so he could describe it.

But as for child abuse, he said, "What I was trying to say was that the sexual abuse of children offends even the homosexual."

Robbins, who lives with his wife Grace and two daughters, owns homes in Le Cannet, France, and Beverly Hills, Calif. Each year he spends seven months in France and five in California.

A chain smoker who wheezes,

Robbins is balding slightly but trim and otherwise looks in good shape physically.

"I spent eight years researching 'Dreams Die First,' and then nine months writing it," he said. "I interviewed Hugh Hefner, Bob Guccione and Larry Flynt — the three big publishers of sex magazines in this country, and then a group of others from overseas."

But he said the main character is not directly based on any of them.

"They wouldn't admit to being bisexual," he said.

When writing, Robbins locks himself in a "hideaway" — usually an elaborate hotel room — and closes the blinds. He won't open the blinds or leave the room for months at a time.

"I lose all track of day or night," he said. "When I write all I do is type — I'm the fastest two-finger typist in the world — sleep and eat. I have the food brought in."

Robbins said he never writes more than one draft, though he occasionally throws away a chapter and starts over again.

"I do no rewrite. I'm not geared that way," he said. "But I may discard something and take a completely different approach."

Robbins said he uses the hideaways because he is easily distracted.

"All I have to do is have an excuse and I'll stop writing," he said. "When I'm alone in the room, writing and writing — I can get into the people. I write about people."

"That's the main reason my books sell. I can be in an airport in any city in the world and not know a word of the language where I'm at but I can go to the book stand and see 'Harold Robbins' next to half a dozen novels."

"When I write I get into a sort of fever about the story. I can't stop once I'm on track and developing the character and events. The plots in my books always follow the people."

A native of New York City, Robbins — who is Jewish but says he is not religious — spent his first 11 years in a Catholic orphanage. Then he was adopted by a Jewish family. He ran away at 15, lied about his age and joined the Navy.

By 20, he wanted to go to bankruptcy court after losing $2 million on a food business he started.

"I had to wait a few months until I was 21," he said. "I was too young to declare bankruptcy."

Robbins said he went to Universal because the movie industry was the only one that would take an upstart with such a shaky beginning.

As financial vice president, he had homes in New York, Los Angeles and London — and lived in each a month at a time year round.

"That was very exhausting," he said. "But I stayed at Universal until I had written my first four novels because they held me to a seven year contract. In those days I had to do my writing after work."

Robbins stressed that the sex and drug scenes in his books are not trend-setters but mirrors of the mores of society.

"In my earlier books, critics said they were full of sex, but by today's standards they are tame. The same is true for the books today. I think they reflect our standards, and if they're more graphic in the sex descriptions it's only because we have evolved to that point — where we're allowed to be."

In Middle Ages, Few People Survived To Be Middle-Aged

By DUSTON HARVEY
WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (UPI) — In the Middle Ages, few people lived to middle-age.

Grueling work, poor diet and disease reduced the average life expectancy to the 30s for men and women in medieval Europe, says a Purdue University historian.

John Contreni, an associate professor of history, is studying the effects of health on society between 400-1050 A.D.

"Life was very difficult then," he said. "When cemeteries are dug up, they find bodies of young people. A lot of people died before the age of six."

"It varies from cemetery to cemetery, with many dying in their teens and others in their 50s, but the average for males was about 39 and for females, their lower 30s."

"They had the same life expectancy as we do, with persons living to be 80, 90 and 100. But many fewer attained those ages."

In an interview, Contreni said a high infant mortality rate was characteristic of western civilization into the 19th century. Many died in childbirth or between the ages of two and six from "weaning trauma," the nutritional problems and diseases that occurred when children stopped breast-feeding.

Because children were a burden until they could begin working at age eight or nine, he said, it was not uncommon for them to be abandoned in the woods to die.

Church leaders complained mothers would sometimes roll over and deliberately suffocate children in bed. Contreni suggested those deaths might be due to Sudden Infant Death Syndrome, or "crib death," an unexplained fatality of seemingly healthy infants that still occurs today.

Contrary to popular belief, the average medieval family had only two to three children, he said.

"They had no romantic view of children, such as we have today, and any more were an economic burden in an age when agricultural methods made it difficult to feed them."

Among young men, the years 18 to 30 were deadly. Warfare was a major reason. For women, many deaths from age 13 on were due to "repeated childbirth."

"People who did survive and worked were tremendously strong," Contreni said. "Most of the work was manual labor, and tools were not efficient."

The heavy, back-breaking work done by peasants caused them to develop huge muscles. That in turn compressed their bones. Ankle bones became deformed because of constant walking on uneven surfaces in fields and on roads.

Paralysis and blindness were common.

Personal hygiene was nearly non-existent.

Sticks with pigs' hair sufficed for toothbrushes, but teeth found in dug-up graves show mouths ridden with cavities, said Contreni.

"There are many stories of people who bathed irregularly. The stench must have been terrific."

The diet for both peasants and aristocracy consisted mainly of bread with some meat and fish. Class differences were reflected in quantity.

Beer, wine and milk were the main beverages. Water wasn't drunk because it was usually contaminated.

Most medicines were herbs. Little surgery was performed.

"If you had an attack of appendicitis, you simply died," he said.

Skulls were sometimes drilled or bored with an augur or file to release "demons" inside a person's head, a technique that actually released pressure and had some medical merit, Contreni said.

"The amazing thing to me is that they were able to cope, and I believe they did it through belief, hope in miracles and the fact that some of them had access to medical knowledge."

Contreni is studying old medical manuscripts, contemporary stories about miracle healings and records of archeological digs under a $10,000 grant from the American Council of Learned Societies. He plans to piece together a history of how people coped with disease in the fifth through 11th centuries.

He is sure of one thing: pictures of knights in shining armor rescuing damsels in distress do not accurately portray the Middle Ages. They were anything but romantic for the average person.

Treat Syphilis Intensively

I caught syphilis two years ago. I was immediately treated. Imagine my concern when I just learned that I still have the disease and didn't know it. Wasn't I right in thinking that penicillin should have completely cured it? — Mr. R.R., Calif.

Dear Mr. R.:

Penicillin, undoubtedly, has been the greatest boon for the effective control of syphilis. Note that I say "control" because there is a small percentage of cases in which penicillin does not produce a complete cure.

Even those people who are intensively treated in the very early phases of syphilis still may have failures in about two to ten percent of the cases. It is for this reason that all doctors who treat patients with early syphilis remind them that a follow-up blood study should be done at regular intervals.

Many patients seek a doctor's help outside their own community. This "strange" doctor, therefore, does not have as great control over these patients as he does over his other patients. It becomes the patient's responsibility to continue testing and seek further treatment if any evidence of syphilis is found.

You must now persist in getting treatment until you permanently eliminate all vestiges of syphilis in your body.

I am plagued with canker sores. Name it and I've tried it, but no go. I still get them. Have you come across anything that helps or shall I just shoot myself? — Mr. D.W., Mich.

Dear Mr. W.:

Hold the gun. I know how you feel about canker sores. These painful ulcers and sores that occur on the mucous membrane of the tongue, the gums, the cheek, the mouth and the palate come and go at will (their will). Unfortunately, the cause is unknown. Some believe that the virus "herpes simplex" is responsible. Others think that allergy, hormone imbalance, fever, injury by the teeth or tobacco may be the cause.

Emotional stress, poor dental hygiene, chronic fatigue, alcohol and inadequate diet may be added to the possibilities.

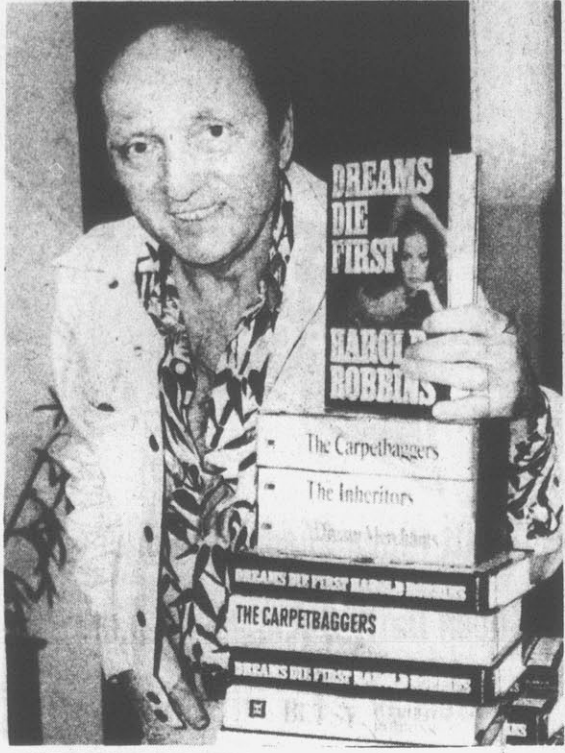

As to treatment, some doctors are prescribing this technique for relieving the pain and to shorten the healing time. They suggest that 250 milligrams (a usual capsule) of tetracycline should be dissolved in a teaspoonful of water. Hold the mixture for three minutes in the mouth, then swallow it. This is a double-barreled attack.

First, the tetracycline antibiotic stays in contact with the canker sore (aphthous ulcer). Then, when swallowed it continues its antibiotic action. This should be done four to six times a day.

Soothing solutions of camphor or benzocaine give some relief. Doctors may use cortisone and cauterize the ulcers with special chemicals. Sometimes they disappear and never come back!

DR. COLEMAN welcomes letters from readers. Please write to him in care of this newspaper.

As Of Today, Britons Unwilling To Rock The Boat

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG
LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister James Callaghan was a reasonably contented man as he saw 1978 in with members of his family, gathered around a log fire at Chequers, his official country residence.

The political and economic storm clouds that threatened to engulf him and his minority Labor Party government in 1977 were largely dissipated.

The ailing British economy, which had long made Britain notorious as the "sick man of Europe," appeared to be on the mend.

With a little luck, no major political upheavals looked like overthrowing the Callaghan government during the coming year.

True, Britain still is wallowing sluggishly in a political stalemate.

Except for 3½ years of Conservative party government from 1970-74, the country has been run for 13 years by the Labor Party. Before that it had experienced 13 unbroken years of Conservative Party rule. Other parties had not had a look-in.

There was street violence last summer between the extreme right-wing National Front and the extreme left-wing Socialist Workers' Party.

"We cannot afford to say that revolution could never happen here," warned Lord Chalfont, a former Labor government minister.

That's a worrying thought to some Britons, yet it's hardly uppermost in their minds in the current improved economic and political climate.

The present mood is "let's not rock the boat."

Admittedly, there is discontent beneath the surface — taxes are too high, the government keeps a stern clamp on pay raises, inflation and unemployment remain a nagging worry.

Margaret Thatcher and her Conservative party are poised to oust Labor — if they can maneuver Callaghan into holding a parliamentary general election and if they can persuade the voters that a dose of tough-minded Conservatism is what the country needs.

But, if the country wants a change, it will achieve it by traditional means. There are no signs of the violent "winter of discontent" many had predicted.

Callaghan, 65 — "Big Jim" or "Sunny Jim" to his fellow countrymen — presides over a government that clings to office only with the support of the 13 parliamentary votes of the tiny Liberal party. It is torn by feuding between its own left and right wings.

But Callaghan is an archetypal political survivor. He is a man who likes to be liked by everyone — the Labor party's right wing, its left wing and above all, the trade unions.

Though many, indeed millions, of Britons dislike Labor's policies and deplore the fact the country is run by a Labor government, Callaghan's "let's avoid trouble" mentality probably accurately reflects the national mood.

Callaghan hangs on to office because of a piece of political horse-trading last March with David Steel, 42, the politically inexperienced Liberal Party leader.

The deal provided that the Liberals would not vote against the government on any confidence issue as long as the prime minister consults them on major policy matters. It falls short of a coalition, because Callaghan took no Liberals into the cabinet.

Steel defends this trade-off on the ground that the government needs political stability to smash the twin problems of inflation and unemployment. Although he does not like the Labor Party, he dislikes the Conservatives even more.

For Callaghan the deal meant a welcome stay of execution, banishing the daily threat of being toppled by a sudden vote in parliament.

Under Britain's constitutional system, each parliament is elected for five years. The prime minister of the day cannot be forced to quit, dissolve parliament or order a new general election before the end of that five-year period, unless his government is defeated in parliament on a major confidence issue or unless he feels he no longer can govern without a new mandate from the voters.

The present parliament was elected in October, 1974. That means Callaghan could conceivably cling to office until October, 1979.

There is little that Mrs. Thatcher, who is vying to become Britain's first woman prime minister, can do.

"The present government can go on as long as the Liberals or the other minor parties support it," she admits ruefully.

Callaghan's own long-term strategy is to hang on, probably into 1979.

By then he hopes the economy will be back on the rails, North Sea oil fields will be paying off in a big way, unemployment will be down from its present 6.3 percent and he may be able to appeal to a contented electorate with the same sort of "You never had it so good" claim that gave Conservative Prime Minister Harold Macmillan a landslide victory 18½ years ago.

"There is a road forward," Callaghan told the annual convention of Britain's 11.5 million-strong Trades Union Congress (TUC) last fall. "The question is whether we have all got the guts and the stamina to stick to it."

Callaghan's main task is to push Britain's current 12 percent inflation rate down to single figures, to cut back the jobless total and to keep the Labor government's alliance with the unions intact.

His biggest worry is that after more than two years of tough anti-inflation pay curbs the unions again will hold the country to ransom with a new barrage of exorbitant wage demands, plunging it into another disastrous pay explosion like that of 1975.

Some unions have staked claims to 30, 40 or even 95 percent pay boosts. The government wants to keep increases within 10 percent.

One thing Callaghan knows he must do to stay in office is to keep the big battalions of the labor unions on his side.

Traditionally, the British Labor Party is almost totally dependent on union goodwill. More than four fifths of the party's financial support comes from the unions. Their block votes decide the result of every ballot at the party's annual convention.

The Conservatives, for their part, draw most of their financial support from big business and industry.

Callaghan and other Labor party leaders say no Labor government can survive without union support. But concern about excessive union power has sparked a national debate on the issue of the union closed shop, something not only endorsed but actively promoted by the Labor party.

As a result of Labor legislation, it now is virtually impossible for millions of workers to get or hold a job without a union card.

Mrs. Thatcher condemns this as an "injustice" and promises a future Conservative government would change it.

"The Conservative party is utterly against a closed shop in principle," she says. "We would bring in legislation to ensure that anyone forced into this position had a recourse to a court of law."

Labor Party spokesmen encourage the notion that "union power" might simply prevent a future Conservative government from functioning — an argument advanced by them against giving power to the Conservatives.

Britons have not forgotten that a nationwide coal miners' strike early in 1974 forced the country on to a three-day work week and ultimately toppled the Conservative government of Prime Minister Edward Heath. Mrs. Thatcher insists there would be no such "confrontation" again with the unions. But, if it did come, she says, she would appeal to the country, either in a general election or through a referendum vote.

"We should have to say 'let the people speak,'" Mrs. Thatcher said recently.

More than 15 years of Labor party rule since World War II have brought present day Britain on a long march down the road to state Socialism.

Britons live in a cradle-to-grave welfare state, criticized — even deplored — by many of them but generally accepted as a fact of life by the nation as a whole. Few think it will ever be reversed.

Most key industries are state owned, among them coal, gas, electricity, steel, railroads, air and road transport, airports, water, and postal services.

About one fourth of the entire working population of 25 million is employed by state run industries. State Socialism, coupled with high taxation, has saddled Britain with a huge, unwieldy bureaucracy of 750,000 civil servants.

Most medicine is operated by the state run National Health Service.

Yet the Labor party plans to drive the nation still further down this road with plans which the official party program says, "have at their heart a basic Socialist priority: to bring about a fundamental and irreversible shift in the balance of power and wealth in favor of working people and their families."

Labor left wingers go even further. They want banks and insurance companies nationalized; they want the government and unions to have a say in the investment programs of all major companies and the unions to have seats on their boards of directors. They demand "fairer distribution of wealth" through the introduction of a wealth tax and abolition of all private schools — forcing children into a single, uniform state run school system. They want to abolish the House of Lords, with its built-in Conservative majority, and to take Britain out of the Common Market.

All this means that, moderate though Callaghan himself may be, if Labor stays in power, Britons may yet have another big dose of Socialist measures in store.

The Conservatives, for their part, are cagey about just what they would do if they win the next general election.

They castigate state Socialism, union power, the closed shop, high taxes, cuts in British defense spending and Labor's plans to close down private schools.

But Mrs. Thatcher is careful not to promise new legislation to clip the unions' wings or to slash social services. Such pledges, Conservative spokesmen concede, would be electorally damaging.

All Mrs. Thatcher promises is "to go from the present flat, non-expansion, non-growth, non-incentive society to what I would call an incentive enterprise package."

"What the people want is freedom — freedom of choice," she says.

She promises, too, to introduce legislation which, without abolishing the union closed shop, would ensure that anyone losing his job as a result of it would receive adequate compensation.

Until recently, few political pundits would have given much for Callaghan's chances of surviving. Inflation, tough pay curbs and high unemployment sapped the government's popularity ratings.

The Labor party took a disastrous clobbering in local government elections last spring. Its performance in recent parliamentary by-elections (special elections) has been equally dismal.

Nowhere But In Beverly Hills

By JOHN BARBOUR
AP Newsfeatures Writer
BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — The restaurant is expensive. Lunch is over. People wait for their cars under the canopy. The nabob, sharing his self-importance with his cigar and the young blonde on his arm, bursts into the sunlight. "Get my car," he growls to the attendant. "It's a Rolls Camargue."

The attendant, used to coping with the urbane or the crude, has his own peasant's bag of put-downs. He heads for the parking lot, stops, turns and asks in a voice suddenly public, "What color?"

The story is not apocryphal. The Rolls Camargue, the self-important nabob, the parking valet with slavish wit are real. All are part of the image of this little slice of heaven and the 32,000 people who live here.

Nor is the question, "what color?" unreasonable. So many expensive and exotic vehicles prowling the streets of this town that a two-car crunch can run into five figures before you can say tow truck.

License plates, when they aren't monograms or cute names, read like "67 GEES" or "71 THOU."

This is the legacy of Hollywood. Beverly Hills began as the luxurious bedroom of the stars — people like Charlie Chaplin, Gloria Swanson, Rudolph Valentino, John Barrymore, Harold Lloyd and Tom Mix. Today, it is the front office.

The old major studios that controlled the 50-cent delights of pre-television America are gone. Hollywood is a grunt of its former self. But there are still fortunes made in entertainment — from movies, television, records. The deals are made here. The lavish parties of yore are gone, but the thirst for success and power linger.

Cars, comfort, credit, women, money, security, power, glory, these are the libido of this golden ghetto. If only Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks Sr. could have seen the future when they moved here in 1919. Fairbanks paid $35,000 then for his 11 acres. Today it wouldn't make key money for a tiny shop on Rodeo Drive (Ro-day-o, please.)

Residents, like literary agent Swiftly Lazar, say this is the wealthiest community in the United States, with the possible exception of Grosse Pointe, Mich. The difference is that the people in Grosse Pointe keep their money in the bank. Here they wear it, drink it, eat it, love it, savor it.

Surely, for a mere 5.7 square miles, there is more wealth in evidence here than anywhere else. The typical Beverly Hills woman is a gleaming example. She is elegant, flat-topped and California blonde. She marries rich if not well. The town is designed for her.

It has 122 jewelry stores, 24 furriers, 101 fancy dress shops, 170 beauty salons, 71 interior decorators, eight elite department stores and 54 furniture stores. There are very few supermarkets.

The cloistered shops are a cathedral of extravagance. Many stores have valet parking on Rodeo Drive, the golden track that gleams from the Beverly Wilshire Hotel on Wilshire Boulevard to the Beverly Hills Hotel on Sunset.

Giorgio's offers customers refreshments from its bar while they fondle the silk and suede. Gucci has the Galleria. Charge account customers only, by appointment, your own salesperson, espresso, wine or liqueur for refreshment, and items ranging from a gold-embossed lizard-skin picture frame for $300 to a diamond necklace for $140,000.

Ultimately the invited will be given a gold key for entrance, real gold. "But it's not a club," says the store manager. "It is like a home. You may invite anyone in to enjoy your hospitality, but for the guest you trust, you give a key."

It takes money to make money on Rodeo Drive, however. Gucci reportedly paid $180,000 key money for its $14,000 a month shop. The average shop might pay $9,000 a month, with key money up to $100,000.

Cash is not in evidence. Credit — a plastic card, a famous face or a signature — is the currency here.

How much, for instance, would you pay for a one-bedroom apartment? Jody Sherman, former actress turned real estate broker, has one to show at 325 North Oakhurst, a condominium with valet parking, communal swimming pool, party room and terrace.

The one-bedroom apartment is on the penthouse level. It is elegantly furnished in black and white. A black marble fireplace graces the living room which yields on one hand to a spacious dining room and on the other to a bar and sitting area, call it a den.

An open spiral staircase ascends from the living room to the open second floor with its own sitting room of over-stuffed chairs, backed up to the single bedroom with its sumptuous half-acre of matted splendor. It has its own black marble fireplace, its own private terrace with barbecues. It has two dressing rooms, his and hers, each as large as most suburban bedrooms. The bathroom has its own sauna, steam bath and bidet.

There's a wired security system on the windows and external doors. In addition, guests arriving in the lobby are scanned by residents via closed circuit television before they are allowed on the elevators. There are two panic buttons in the apartment, one by the front door, another near floor level by the bed. A touch brings guards on the run.

Splendid? Elegant? Granted. But it's still only a one-bedroom apartment. How much? One million dollars. That's how much. The condominiums in this building begin at $750-and run to $1.5 million. Some 60,000 people a day come to Beverly Hills to man this mini-hub of power and banking. There are 197 accountants, 678 attorneys, 172 business managers and consultants, 32 stockbrokers, 73 artist and talent agents, 100 advertising and public relations people. And to pick up the pieces there are 528 physicians and 73 psychologists.

When the red Volkswagen convertible nosed its way through the Bentleys and Stutz Bearcats at the Beverly Hills Hotel, the driver wasn't given a parking receipt. "How will I get my car back?" he asked. "Just ask for the red Volks," the attendant answered. Of course.

Congress Of The Laity Scheduled
LOS ANGELES (AP) — About 800 leaders in government, business, science, the professions and arts are expected to take part in an unusual North American Congress of the Laity here Feb. 17-20 to encourage stronger moral leadership in society.

Planned and financed by Texas Baptist businessman Howard E. Butt Jr., participation will be broadly ecumenical with main speakers including British social critic Malcolm Muggeridge, New York Times columnist James Reston, church historian Martin Marty, management expert Peter Drucker, sociologist Peter Berger and Catholic lay theologian Michael Novak.

The key question for analysis, Butt says, is: "How does one successfully lead in society, handling the power of money and prestige, and at the same time follow Jesus Christ and the spirit of his uncompromising commandments?"

Children Often Suffer Falls
WASHINGTON (AP) — The most common home injuries to very young children come from falls, reports the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Following falls, the leading accidents suffered by children include blows, cuts and animal bites, suffocation and strangulation, poisoning, drowning, fires, burns and electric shock.

Historic Days Of John F. Kennedy Assassination Re-created In Special

Michael Lerner portrays Jack Ruby in "Ruby and Oswald," a three-hour dramatic re-creation of authenticated events that trace the lives of President John F. Kennedy, Jack Ruby and Lee Harvey Oswald during the four days preceding and following the assassination of President Kennedy, Wednesday, Feb. 8 (8-11 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

"Ruby and Oswald," a three-hour dramatic re-creation drawn from authenticated events that retrace the lives of Jack Ruby and Lee Harvey Oswald, in an almost minute-by-minute account, over a four-day span preceding and following the tragic assassination of President John F. Kennedy in Dallas, Texas, Nov. 22, 1963, will be presented Wednesday, Feb. 8, 8 to 11 p.m., on CBS-TV.

Michael Lerner and Frederic Forrest star in the title roles of Ruby and Oswald, respectively.

The factual account of what Jack Ruby and Lee Harvey Oswald said and did, according to eye-witness accounts, direct testimony and thorough investigation, during those dark historical days between Thursday, Nov. 21, and Sunday, Nov. 23, have been faithfully recreated on film by noted director Mel Stuart. It was Stuart who also produced and directed the two-hour documentary, "Four Days In November," which detailed the same tragic events and was nominated for an Academy Award in 1965.

President Kennedy's actual movements will be shown in newsreel footage from the moment he boarded Air Force One at Andrews Air Force Base in Washington to take off from San Antonio until that fateful moment at 12:30 p.m. on Nov. 22, when his life was snuffed out in Dallas while traveling down Elm St. in Dealey Plaza. The newsreel footage of the President's movements have been interspersed through-out the first two fateful days covered in the three-hour special film.

Paul Freeman was the producer and key location filming was done at the actual historical sites in Dallas. Freeman and Stuart trained their cameras on Dealey Plaza; the Texas School Book Depository, where the Warren Commission Report set down that Oswald assassinated President Kennedy with rifle fire from a corner window on the sixth floor; Oswald's rooming house at 1026 Beckley St. in Dallas, where he stayed while away from his family in Irving, Texas; the basement of the Dallas police station where Jack Ruby shot Oswald to death; and 410 10th St., where Oswald gunned down officer J.D. Tippit.

Other key scenes recreated from the actual events take place in the Texas Theatre where Oswald was apprehended, Jack Ruby's Carousel Club, his apartment, and many Dallas locations where he visited prior to the fatal shooting of Oswald, and the interior of the Dallas police station, site of the interrogation of Oswald and his brief press conference.

Anniversary Celebrated

On Sunday, Feb. 5, 7 to 11 p.m., ABC-TV will air the most exciting and spectacular birthday in its history as more than 200 celebrities who have starred or are starring on ABC programs lend the talent and glamour to the network's "Silver Anniversary Celebration."

This fun-filled prime time extravaganza will spotlight stars gathered for an evening of gala entertainment and a salute to the important roles they have played as members of the network family.

The centerpiece for this unique and special telecast will be the party itself, a monumental event that will give viewers a closer look at many of the people who have contributed to ABC's successes since its corporate inception 25 years ago.

The festive telecast will span the spectrum of programs that have marked ABC-TV's growth and development since its beginnings a quarter-century ago as the youngest of the nation's television networks.

Among the program segments will be a reprise of various medical series, hosted by Robert Young ("Marcus Welby, M.D.") with an assist from Vince Edwards ("Ben Casey"); a look at comedy programs emceed by Marlo Thomas ("That Girl") and Henry Winkler ("Happy Days"); Charlie's Angels introducing adventure series and John Wayne hosting the westerns.

Howard Cosell will recall some of the great sports figures of the past decade. Jim McKay will document ABC's much-honored Olympics coverage. Frank Gifford will comment on the production innovations that the network introduced into television coverage of NCAA college and NFL professional football, and Keith Jackson will report how in 1961, "Wide World of Sports" changed the look of sports coverage on television.

Harry Reasoner and Barbara Walters will co-anchor a segment on ABC's hard news coverage.

Sex Appeal Is Handy, Says Angie Dickinson

Angie Dickinson, star of NBC-TV's "Police Woman" (Wednesdays, 10 to 11 p.m.), says sex appeal is a definite 'must' when you're going after the bad guys. "I have a feeling that if you questioned a room full of undercover police women, you'll find that they have the same situations that we have in the show," she says. "These things do happen, and you use your sex appeal to lure, trap, whatever. That's why you're working on the case instead of the guy."

Angie who admits that she does take "quite a few baths and showers" to bring her sex appeal across to the viewers, doesn't think the show's producers go "overboard" with her sexiness. "I never wear a plunging neckline, and I hate short skirts.

I may take too many showers, but I find nothing wrong with a nice looking, sexy-looking woman.

"We don't want to be dull," she says, "and if you put a drab robe on a woman and not dress her up, who's going to watch the show?"

Angie watches "Police Woman" every week. "I never miss it. After all, how can you know how your hair looks if you don't check it in the mirror? It's the same with the show. How can I know what's wrong if I don't view it myself?"

When the series first began, there were reports of conflict between Angie and her co-star Earl Holliman, but she says that's all over now. "It was never 'Police Woman and Friend,'" she explained. "I was the star...this was the only way I would ever do a series...and yet he deserved credit, too. There were times when we forgot to kiss and make up, but we've had a marvelous relationship for the past year-and-a-half."

Any flack from the Women's Lib movement about the show?

"I've heard not the first word from them!" she exclaimed. "Not a letter. Not a statue. Nothing! I think it's because I pose no threat. I don't come on too strong, nor am I too weak. I must be striking a happy medium."

Angie Dickinson took "Police Woman" to prove to herself that she could become an outstanding actress, and she's glad she made the decision. "I've now shown myself that I can be a success in a TV series, and it's really a good feeling."

Original dramas, dramatic biographies and historic documentaries that have brought stature to a quarter-century of broadcasting are recalled in "ABC's Silver Anniversary Celebration," airing Sunday, Feb. 5 (7-11 p.m.) on ABC-TV. Included among the highlights of the network's 25-year history are these memorable presentations: Top row (1 to r) — Billy Dee Williams and James Caan in the moving "Brian's Song"; Edward Herrmann and Jane Alexander in "Eleanor and Franklin"; Edward Asner and LeVar Burton in "Roots," and "Africa," a major documentary of that troubled land. Bottom row (1 to r) — (top) Scott Jacoby and Hal Holbrook in "That Certain Summer"; (bottom) Katharine Hepburn and Sir Laurence Olivier in the "ABC Theatre" presentation of "Love Among the Ruins"; "The Undersea World of Jacques Cousteau"; John Travolta and Glynis O'Connor in "The Boy in the Plastic Bubble," and Jodie Foster on the shoulders of her conquering teammates in "Rookies of the Year."

Daring Rescue At Sea

Three teen-agers attempt a daring rescue at sea when their pleasant afternoon of sailing turns into a fight for survival, in "The Cruise of the Courageous," the fourth episode of "The Winners" series, to be broadcast Thursday, Feb. 9 4 to 4:30 p.m., on CBS-TV. Kristen Vigard, Alan Amick and Denis McKiernan star as the trio.

Each monthly episode of "The Winners" features a dramatic account, highlighting actual events, of young men and women who manage to reach their goals despite physical or personal obstacles.

Based on true incidents, "The Cruise of the Courageous" is the story of Amy, Mark and Steve, members of a sailing club, who take the club's only boat, Courageous II, out for an afternoon of practice in preparation for their race. They spot a seemingly deserted fishing boat, but on closer inspection find the fisherman has been injured and cannot make it back to shore by himself.

With Mark and Steve in the fishing boat, and Amy in the Courageous, the youths tie the boats together and try to make it to shore. But a severe storm develops and a choice must be made. Should they cut loose the sailboat, the collective property of all their friends and their only chance to win this year's sailing competition, or do they try to save the boat and further endanger their safety?

When the teen-agers make their decision, and cut loose the boat, they learn the valuable lesson that there can be no price placed on human life. As one of their friends says when they return to shore, "A human life is worth more than any boat...even a boat like the Courageous."

Kristen Vigard, 14, who stars as Amy, has motion picture, stage and television experience. She will soon be seen, in the TV special "Home to Stay."

Kaplan Visits Museums

When Gabriel Kaplan was a kid, he used to go to museums — with a Tommy gun at his back. He was a Brooklyn street kid, and the name of the game was survival, not Leonardo de Vinci. He used to go to museums because his class went "maybe once a year to the Brooklyn museum. "It was," he says with a smile, "a legitimate way to get out of school for a day."

Of course, all of that was before Gabe Kaplan became Mr. Kotter, who, in turn, became a television smash. And on Sunday, Feb. 5 (5 to 6 p.m.), Kaplan will prove that he's picked up a thing or two about art since his Brooklyn days. He'll host "What's a Museum For, Anyway," taped at the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C., to be broadcast on "The CBS Festival of Lively Arts for Young People" series.

"At the top of the show," says Kaplan, "they wanted me to say something like 'Museums are new to me, too.' I made them change it. I may not be an expert on art, but I do go to museums. And I own some works. Not by anyone very famous, and nothing terribly expensive, but they're mine."

Kaplan didn't always have time to visit museums. And there certainly was the time he didn't have the scratch to lay out on art. Although his sister and 14 cousins all have college diplomas, Kaplan never finished high school. "The only fun I had in high school was clowning in school plays. Of course, today I wouldn't advise any kid to drop out. I was lucky."

Talented, too. But it took time to show. The years between Flatbush Ave. and fame were taken up by playing minor league ball ("I was never very good"), chopping down trees in Alaska ("I saved a few thousand"), bellhopping and working as an M.C. in a parade of dives. After hitting it semi-big in 1971 ("I made $750 a week"), he decided he could be as funny as any comedian on TV. He honed a new act in non-paying spots and ended on the Carson show. Anyone can pick it up from there.

Kaplan taped the "Museum" special over a weekend, working from eight in the morning to as late as midnight. During the day, gallery visitors milled around, trying not to trip over television cables while they stole a look at Kaplan. To keep the crowds manageable, Kaplan, between takes, was spirited by security police to a makeshift dressing room behind Gallery 518 where they keep the Rubens.

The hours were long, the waits between takes were tedious, and the flights to and from California were exhausting. But Gabe's glad he did the show.

Premieres

"Your Turn: Letters to CBS News," the first in a bi-monthly series of viewer-response broadcasts, will debut Sunday, Feb. 5, 10:30 to 11 p.m.

"Until now," says Richard S. Salant, President of CBS News, "network television journalism has not had a satisfactory counterpart to print journalism's 'Letters to the Editor' column. We've worked for 15 years on a forum in which viewers would have a meaningful voice, and without CBS News taking the last word. 'Your Turn' represents that principle and that effort."

The first broadcast of 'Your Turn,' anchored by Sharron Lovejoy and produced by Anne Chambers, features interviews with viewers who've written letters — pro and con — concerning news broadcasts on the network.

Those broadcasts are: "How Sweet It Is," a November 1977 segment of "60 Minutes" anchored by Dan Rather, concerning the effect of sugar in Americans' diets; CBS Reports: "The Battle Over Panama," with Bill Moyers, broadcast this past November, which examined the controversy over the Panama Canal treaties; and a two-part report on abortion presented on the "CBS Evening News With Walter Cronkite." Also heard are viewers' comments concerning the retirement of correspondent Eric Sevareid.

THE PROSPECTORS

The cast and crew of "How The West Was Won" had a great time becoming prospectors out in the wild location of the series that stars James Arness as Zeb Macahan and which will begin airing Sunday, Feb. 12.

Everytime the director called "Cut," the get-rich-quick schemers would take to the creek beds looking for the shiny flack in the rocks that signaled gold. None will get rich, but many took shiny rocks home to give to their kids.

 (11) The Story

From 1933, when "The Lone Ranger" series began (on radio) until the mid-1960s, when the show went off the air as a regularly scheduled TV series, the masked man became a legend among the countless millions of Americans who numbered themselves as Lone Ranger fans.

Basically, the saga of the Lone Ranger was the story of a fictional Texas Ranger who, wounded and at death's door, was rescued by Tonto, an American Indian (played by Jay Silverheels on TV).

The Ranger's name was John Reed, and he set out to correct injustice wherever he found it. His trademarks were a plain mask, numerous disguises and silver bullets, which he used in part to remind him of the precious quality of human life.

The Lone Ranger, portrayed by actor Clayton Moore, himself an accomplished horseman and outdoorsman, never shot to kill — only to disable or disarm evildoers.

But, why reprise the exploits of a western hero from days of yore, long after he has left the home screen? Simply because Clayton Moore will play an integral role in "ABC's Silver Anniversary Celebration," airing Sunday, Feb. 5, 7 to 11 p.m.

Moore, who earned his spurs at the old Republic Studios along with such western stars as John Wayne, will have some memorabilia on hand for viewers who once made his program a Thursday, 7:30 p.m. habit.

Now 63, Moore isn't appearing very much on TV or in motion pictures. As he put it, "I have plenty of work on my hands just fulfilling commitments for personal appearances at rodeos, horse shows and the like." However, he refuses to appear in character without his complete Lone Ranger outfit.

Moore and his wife, Sally, are residents of Calabasas, Calif., and have been married 35 years.

By the way, in case anyone's interested (and almost everybody seems to be), Kemo Saby — his spelling — means "faithful friend" or "trustworthy scout."

What's left to say but to echo the grizzled prospector, dancehall girl or townsman who invariably would intone at the end of an episode, "Who was that masked man?" to which another character would respond, "He didn't say his name, but he left behind a silver bullet!"

To this day, whenever Clayton Moore makes a personal appearance, he never departs without leaving behind his unique signature — a silver bullet.

Brock Peters Starts

Brock Peters was spotted hanging around the Georgia location for filming of a Walt Disney Productions' TV movie, but he was in no mood for conversation. He was tied up for the moment and at the end of his rope. In fact, Peters was wearing the latest in 1860's neckties, and dangling precariously over a tree limb as the main event in a lynching.

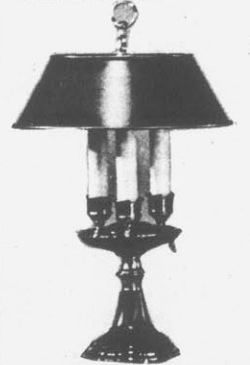

It was part of "The Million Dollar Dixie Deliverance," a Civil War thriller filmed entirely in the South and premiering on "The Wonderful World of Disney," Sunday, Feb. 5 at 7 p.m. in a special two-hour presentation on NBC-TV.

Producer-writer-singer Peters dons his acting cap for his Disney debut, portraying Zechariah, a captured Union soldier who risks his life to help five captive Yankee youngsters escape Confederates.

During the perilous journey, Zechariah survives a bullet wound; evades pursuing Rebels in a wild cross-country chase, and braves the treacherous white water of a raging river. The children later return the favor and save Zechariah from his confrontation with the hangman's noose.

'Anna Karenina' Airs

The romantic, tragic story of "Anna Karenina," Tolstoy's sensual rebel heroine, will be told on Masterpiece Theatre on PBS in a 10-part dramatization beginning Sunday, Feb. 5, at 9 p.m.

Acknowledged as the Russian author's greatest work after "War and Peace," and as the greatest novel of modern realism, "Anna Karenina" paints an indicting portrait of the social and political fabric of upper-class Russia in the 1870's as it centers on a young society woman's doomed extra-marital love affair.

Starring as Anna — a role that has been played by Garbo and Vivien Leigh — is Nicola Pagett, last seen on PBS as Elizabeth Bellamy in "Upstairs, Downstairs." Karenin, her convention-bound, austere husband, is Eric Porter.

Third party to the eternal triangle in which Anna is trapped is her partner-in-adultery — rich, aristocratic Count Vronsky, played by Stuart Wilson. Levin, the eccentric nobleman who chooses to live as a peasant, and who is generally regarded as a Tolstoy self-portrait, is portrayed by Robert Swann.

Readers in the 1870's were variously outraged, titillated or entranced by the novel. One accused Tolstoy of trying to "degrade public morality" with "an epic of baronial passions." Another — the novelist Destoyevsky — called it "a perfect work of art."

"Adultery had not been used as a serious theme in Western literature for almost 200 years," Masterpiece Theatre host Alistair Cooke explains, "until it was re-introduced to a shocked world by Flaubert with 'Madame Bovary' in 1857 — and that was 20 years before 'Anna Karenina.'"

"What set Tolstoy off as a great novelist is the ruthless observation of life as it is lived, and in detail," adds Cooke.

Naive Co-Ed Caught In Web

Kay Lenz (l) lives unhappily in the shadow of her sister's sunny smile (Morgan Brittany) in "The Initiation of Sarah," the suspense drama of a college girl's terrifying psychic powers, on "The Monday Night Movie," Feb. 6 (9-11 p.m.) on ABC-TV.

An innocent freshman co-ed goes through terrifying changes when she is drawn into the bizarre rites of a strange sorority in "The Initiation of Sarah," a suspense thriller airing as "The Monday Night Movie," Feb. 6, 9 to 11 p.m. on ABC-TV.

Kay Lenz and two-time Oscar-winner Shelley Winters star in the drama. Also starring are Tony Bill, Morgan Brittany, Morgan Fairchild and Robert Hays. Kathryn Crosby, widow of Bing Crosby, makes a rare TV appearance in a cameo role.

Sarah Goodwin (Miss Lenz) enters college with excitement and naivete, but her life is quickly changed by the frightening rituals of womanhood conducted by the old sorority she had joined. Suddenly the quiet campus and Sarah herself are plunged into an endless night of terror.

Bowling Alley Poses Problems

More and more TV movies are shot on location, but the problems are great and so, too, are the possibilities for foul-ups.

Writer-producer Gerald Gardner and Dee Caruso found that out when they started filming "How to Break Up a Happy Divorce," which will be rebroadcast as the "CBS Late Night Movie" Monday, Feb. 6, at 11:30 p.m. on CBS-TV. Barbara Eden, Hal Linden and Peter Bonerz star in the comedy.

The company was filming at a Pasadena bowling alley. "We had rented half of the bowling alley and in the other half the Senior Citizens League of Van Nuys was holding a tournament," says Gardner. "Each time we were ready to shoot a scene, the production manager would ask for quiet. But as the day advanced, the novelty of observing a movie in progress flagged and the director found take after take marred by the shouts of bowlers and the crash of pins."

The climax of the scene required Barbara to bowl a strike. The company had to be out of the alley by 6 p.m.: a tournament was scheduled and the bowlers were waiting for the alleys.

"All we needed was someone to bowl a strike so the camera could record it," said Gardner. "Yet with an alleful of inveterate bowlers to call on, with the camera rolling and the clock moving, no one was able to bowl a strike."

"A hundred dollars to anyone who can bowl a strike," shouted the director.

"We'll try one more," said the production manager, "then we'll have to wrap." And on the final roll—a strike.

'Hard Times' Premieres

Men, women and children are at work in the dim mill. Outside, factory noises permeate the soot-filled air where men, women and children work 14-hour days. Into this squalor, a traveling circus suddenly appears. Its colors are faded and even the animals look scruffy. But the magic is bright and it seems to be an apparition from another world. Even a circus as run-down as "Mr. Sleary's" is a tribute to human imagination.

Imagination is an important element in Charles Dickens' great novel, "Hard Times," which will air in four parts on PBS beginning Monday, Feb. 6, at 9 p.m.

The circus represents human imagination in the novel. For the film, a five-acre circus set was constructed, and more than 300 actors, extras and acts were involved at any given time.

Mr. Sleary's circus comes and goes, but it leaves behind an orphaned girl named Sissy Jupe. Her view of the world is very imaginative and greatly at odds with the education principles of the day.

The school scenes were filmed at the Sharp Street Ragged School, Manchester, England. It was founded in 1853 to educate children who might not attend school because of the wretched state of their clothes. The school has since become a Sunday school, but during the filming it once again served as a Victorian-style school where children chanted their lessons in unison.

Charles Dickens was horrified by this kind of an educational system, "where the bright childish imagination is utterly discouraged." Dickens himself was forced to leave school at an early age to become an apprentice, and therefore avoided that sort of discouragement: his imagination was fed, in fact, by his loquacious, fantasy-addicted father.

In "Hard Times," Louisa's imagination receives no nourishment from her father, Mr. Gradgrind. His hard-facts principles are poor preparation for her life...but through her downfall, Gradgrind is able to recognize the limitations of his teachings, and in his transformations there is a vein of hope...the hope that was always so important a part of Dickens' vision.

When the circus returns to the village, a sadder but wiser Mr. Gradgrind converses with Mr. Sleary. "The people must have us," says Sleary. "They can't always be working and learning. They've got to have us."

SERIES BEING DEVELOPED

"Courthouse" is being developed as a hour-long series for ABC-TV by Bruce Geller's Unit Productions and 20th Century-Fox TV.

The highly stylized crime drama is woven in and out of the framework of a trial. The show was created by Geller and William, and the latter is now writing a two-hour pilot.

Suzanne Refutes Old Cliche

Suzanne Somers, who co-stars in "Three's Company" (Tuesday, 9 to 9:30 p.m., on ABC-TV), is the perfect refutation of the old Hollywood bromides "dumb blonde" and "beautiful but dumb."

Blonde, yes. Beautiful, yes. Dumb? Not likely. While not tossing IQ figures around, Suzanne, one of the best young comedienne currently on television, is also the author of two published books of poetry, a non-fiction self-help book, "Some People Live More Than Others," has attended Le Cordon Bleu and is writing a French cookbook based on recipes she has created over the years. She is one of the most delightful and sought-after guests on talk shows, particularly on Johnny Carson's "Tonight Show," with over 30 appearances.

Born in San Bruno, Calif., Suzanne attended schools in the Bay area. After receiving her BA from college she worked for a year as a nurse's aid giving psychological tests, before turning to the fashion field as a top San Francisco model.

In her own words, Suzanne "decided to become an actress because it looked like fun and I enjoyed the fact that acting entertained people, made them happy." She appeared in small parts in such films as "Bullitt," "Daddy's Gone A-Hunting" and "Magnum Force."

To really learn and perfect her craft, she spent three seasons in summer stock musicals, numbering "Guys and Dolls," "Annie Get Your Gun," "The Sound of Music" and "The Boy Friend" among her credits.

Firmly committed to an acting career, she moved to Los Angeles where she continued to study with acting coach Charles Conrad.

Her film debut was in "American Graffiti," in which she played the blonde in the Thunderbird. Her first audition for television resulted in a guest star spot opposite Dom DeLuise in "Lotsa Luck" and, in rapid succession she appeared on episodes of "The Rockford File," "Starksy and Hutch," "The Streets of San Francisco" and "One Day at a Time."

The character she plays in "Three's Company," is blonde, beautiful and not quite as helpless as one might expect. Suzanne won the role in competition with some 200 other young actresses.

Suzanne Somers portrays Chrissy Snow on the hit comedy series "Three's Company," which airs on Tuesdays (9-9:30 p.m.) on ABC-TV.

Sinatra Roasted Tuesday

Frank Sinatra is "roasted" by luminaries from politics, motion pictures, television and nightclubs as the "Man of the Hour," when Dean Martin and friends tee off on the singer verbally, Tuesday, Feb. 7, 9 to 11 p.m., on NBC-TV's "Dean Martin Celebrity Roast."

This particular roast was expanded from the regular one-hour format because, says producer-director Greg Garrison: "When you have someone of the stature of Frank Sinatra — and have a dais with such blockbuster names — you need time for some of the great ad lib performances."

Joining host Martin are Milton Berle, Ernest Borgnine, George Burns, Red Buttons, Ruth Buzzi, Charlie Callas, Dom DeLuise, Peter Falk, Redd Foxx, Gene Kelly, Jack Klugman, Rich Little, LaWanda Page, Ronald Reagan, Don Rickles, Telly Savalas, James Stewart, Orson Welles, Flip Wilson and Jonathan Winters.

When Martin was informed of his guests, he quipped: "These are big names! I may show up to meet some of them myself!"

During the taping of the 'Roast' at Las Vegas' MGM Grand Hotel, Martin explained that the shows are done out of love. "They make people who are so admired really human."

U-2 Spy Incident Dramatized On CBS

The intensely personal story of one of the most notorious diplomatic incidents of the cold war between the Soviet Union and the United States is dramatized in "Francis Gary Powers: The True Story of the U-2 Spy Incident," to be broadcast as the "CBS Late Movie," Tuesday, Feb. 7, at 11:50 p.m. on CBS-TV.

he said. "It ends with the exchange on the bridge, and I'm free again."

Lee Majors stars as the late Francis Gary Powers in the dramatization of events surrounding the shooting down of the American spy plane over the Soviet Union in May of 1960. The film details the story of Powers' capture, trial and subsequent conviction for espionage and his nearly two years in a Siberian workcamp, before he was released in a carefully executed prisoner exchange.

But the real story is the fear, frustration, and the isolation of being unable to tell his wife and family of his supersecret espionage flights as a civilian employee of the CIA.

Based on the book, "Operation Overflight," by Powers, the history-making incident is put into perspective as it is woven into the tragic personal story of its effect on Powers' marriage and on his parents.

Before his death last year, Powers talked about all that had happened to him during the preceding 14 years. "But this period isn't covered in the film."

'Hustle' Airs On Tuesday Movie

Burt Reynolds and Catherine Deneuve star as mismatched lovers, a tough cop and a jet set call girl, whose affair reaches a crisis during the investigation of the suspicious death of a troubled young woman, in "Hustle," to be broadcast in its world television premiere on "The CBS Tuesday Night Movie," Feb. 7, 9 to 11:20 p.m. on CBS-TV.

The film also stars Ben Johnson, Paul Winfield, Eileen Brennan, Eddie Albert and Ernest Borgnine and co-stars Jack Carter.

Lt. Phil Gaines (Reynolds) and Nicole Britton (Miss Deneuve) are deeply in love, but for Gaines, marriage is out of the question for several reasons — her profession, his unhappy previous marriage and his inability to provide her with the luxuries she now knows.

A telephone call awakens the lovers one Sunday morning when the body of a young woman dead from an overdose of barbituates, is found on the beach. At the suggestion of his superior (Borgnine), Gaines lists the death as a suicide although there is evidence that the woman had been molested.

The woman's distraught father (Johnson) accuses the police of ignoring the possibility of murder because his daughter was a "nobody." His wife (Miss Brennan) explains to Gaines that her husband is emotionally unbalanced because of his war experiences and that the family had lost touch with the daughter after she ran away from home several years earlier.

Gaines' partner (Winfield) decides to investigate further as the father also probes his daughter's death. Both uncover the girl's seamy back-street life, as well as evidence that links her with a prominent lawyer (Albert), who also happens to be Nicole's close friend and protector. Subsequent investigation also unearths the mother's guilty secret.

Astin Talks About Astin

When "Rosetti and Ryan: Men Who Love Women" airs Sunday, Feb. 5, as the "NBC Late Night Movie," at 11:30 p.m., TV viewers will see Patty Duke Astin directed by John Astin.

"I hope you will take this in the acting sense," says Patty, "because in the Astin household we have an equal situation. The 'roles' found in the average home are interchangeable in the Astin domain.

"But being directed by my husband in a TV movie for the first time became a stimulating, absorbing and sometimes tension-filled experience for me during the filming of 'Rosetti and Ryan,'" she explained.

The word Patty heard most often from John was 'patience.' "I mean the whole place could be falling apart and he's just easy-going, patient John. And it instills confidence in you. I knew I could take chances and I had faith in him that he would never let me do anything that would make me look ridiculous."

Because the Astins live in the same house, Patty was privy to a lot of the problems that go with being a director, like setting the schedule, casting the show, sets not being ready..." "I found I really got anxious," she exclaimed.

"I finally had to say to myself, 'What are you doing? If this was another director, you wouldn't even worry that the man hadn't slept the night before. I found that I was absorbing a lot of John's tension, even though nobody asked me to.'"

Patty thinks that if you really feel at one with someone, their success is your success, their failure is your failure, their trial and tribulation is yours. "So I found that I was really exhausted by the end of the movie — and I was only a guest star. That's how I felt. It was a good learning experience."

Patty also learned another lesson. "There are some people who can be absolutely obnoxious in a given situation, but John, who has an ego (and a healthy one) and insecurities, just never let his emotions get out of control. It's fascinating to me. He has really learned to channel those things, to keep those things in perspective."

A tough cop (Burt Reynolds) falls for a jet-set call girl (Catherine Deneuve) during the investigation of a bizarre murder, in "Hustle," to be broadcast on "The Tuesday Night Movie," Feb. 7 (9-11:20 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

Who Are 'Reel' Heroes?

Beau Bridges, no stranger to hero roles, is frankly admiring of those he considers the real heroes of Hollywood: the stunt men and stunt women. "They're the ones who really make us believe."

He made the statement during the careful staging of a street accident scene for "The President's Mistress," a mystery thriller in which he stars with Karen Grassle and Susan Blanchard, to be broadcast on "The Friday Night Movie," Feb. 10, 9 to 11 p.m. on CBS-TV.

"I can't say enough about the skills, hard work and bravery of stunt people," Bridges declared. "We can tell ourselves that what we see on the screen is trickery. But someone actually does those falls and fights and scary car chases. It's the stunt men and women who glue our dramatic work together with their action."

He got sound support from pretty Susan Blanchard, who was the one supposedly knocked down by a speeding car in the scene.

"I must tell you," she said, "it was all I could do to stand my ground when the car got as close as 18 inches before my double took over. I was scared pink. It's the part of acting you can't train for. You just do it."

The script called for Bridges and Miss Blanchard to be jogging across a quiet residential street when a big black sedan suddenly veers around the corner. It misses Bridges but strikes Miss Blanchard.

The stunt woman was petite Janet Gibbs. Setting up the action was coordinator Buddy Joe Hooker, with David Ellis as the car driver, and Freddie Hice as Bridges's double.

It took two hours to get ready for filming. The arrival of the car at the point of impact had to be timed exactly, and the performers went through their action repeatedly to make sure everything meshed. Miss Gibbs took practice rolls on the grass before duplicating them on pavement. She also vaulted onto the hood of the car so director John Moxey would have a choice of shots.

Portrait Of Artist Premieres Wednesday

A half-hour film portrait of the late Mississippi Gulf Coast artist Walter Anderson premieres Wednesday, Feb. 8, at 10 p.m. on PBS.

Anderson, who was an obscure artist during his lifetime, is beginning to emerge as a popular American painter. He did much of his work on Horn Island, a small island 16 miles off the Gulf Coast of Mississippi, near his hometown of Ocean Springs. He lived on the island alone for weeks, painting — leaving his wife and four children behind on the mainland.

In 1937, Anderson asked to be hospitalized. He was aware of emerging mental problems, due to the conflict between his family responsibilities and his desire for freedom — to be one with nature.

In the late 1940s he began to isolate himself from his family and society more and more. Anderson would pack food in trash cans and row out to Horn Island where he spent a great deal of time. He occasionally visited his family and was seen riding his bicycle through town. People thought him outlandish and bizarre.

After his death in 1965, Anderson's family discovered in his house extraordinary artistic treasures. Among them were 9,000 watercolors and beautifully carved wooden figures.

"The Islander" was filmed in 1976 on the Mississippi Gulf Coast and Horn Island and is based on extensive interviews with Anderson's wife and children and on logs he kept about the island.

Mary Anderson Stebly, Anderson's daughter, narrates the special and portrays his wife. Two of his grandchildren play his children. Actor James Best, who is an artist himself, portrays Anderson.

"The Islander" received a Silver Award from the International Film Festival of New York.

Re-Creation Eerie

When director Mel Stuart trained his camera on actor Frederic Forrest as he entered and moved about the inside of the inconspicuous wood-frame house located at 1026 N. Beckley St. in Dallas, Texas, its owner, Mrs. Amy Gladys Johnson, informed Stuart's producer, Paul Freeman, that her home was now a state monument.

No wonder, when you consider that this is the house where alleged Presidential assassin Lee Harvey Oswald rented a room for six weeks, prior to the fateful day on November 22, 1963, when it's claimed he gunned down President John F. Kennedy with rifle fire from the Texas School Book Depository Building in downtown Dallas.

Now, Forrest, starring in the role of Lee Harvey Oswald, was filming key scenes in the Johnson home for "Ruby and Oswald," to be broadcast Wednesday, Feb. 8, 8 to 11 p.m., on CBS-TV.

"My, he reminds me of Oswald," exclaimed the intense, grey-haired Mrs. Johnson, as she watched Forrest moving through a battery of lights that had translated her modest dwelling into a remote Hollywood set.

"He's so quiet and withdrawn, just like Lee," she reminisced. "Why that man rented a room from me for six weeks but seldom ever talked. He kept to himself. He used to keep his milk and sandwiches in my refrigerator, and one time my husband drank his milk by mistake. I was so embarrassed. I apologized and promised to replace the milk as soon as possible."

Forrest finished his scene and came over to be introduced to Mrs. Johnson. "You surely do remind me of Lee Oswald," she reiterated to Forrest. "Just you folks being here reminds me all over again what took place in my home. My life's never been the same since."

Tarheels Face Terrapins

As always, the Atlantic Coast Conference proves to be probably the toughest basketball conference in the country. In order to survive you must wade through just about all top-ten teams, and then some. The University of North Carolina, highly favored to win the ACC and picked as one of the probable NCAA Tournament finalists this season, faces another deadly ACC foe, the Maryland Terrapins, Wednesday, Feb. 8 at 9 p.m. on Channels 3N, 5, 6, 9.

Among the many standouts for the Tar Heels is 6 foot 9 inch sophomore center Rich Yonakor. Rich was pressed into service at center last year after an injury sidelined Tom Legarde. He started 11 of the final 13 games last season and took part in 31 games. Rich performed well, scoring 117 points (3.7 average), while grabbing 79 rebounds and handing out 25 assists. With returning stars like Mike O'Koren and, of course All-American Phil Ford, it is hoped that Yonakor can help boost Carolina's pivot play which they need in order to be a No. 1 contender.

The NCAA finals included three North Carolina basketball teams — Wake Forest, UNC-Charlotte and North Carolina — with Carolina ending up in the finals. For the past eleven years the Tar Heels have finished first or second in the ACC, but this season they may find it tougher going than ever. And Maryland will be one of those teams standing in the way.

Tar Heel Rich Yonakor, a 6 foot 9 inch sophomore center, will be one of the UNC standouts when they meet the Maryland Terrapins, Wednesday, Feb. 8 at 9 p.m. on Channels 3N, 5, 6, and 9.

Mirrors "Group" Home Concept

"Fish," the comedy series that airs on ABC-TV Thursday, 8:30 to 9 p.m., has some real-life fans who are happy about what the television show is doing for the group home concept.

The show is based on the premise that Phil Fish has been retired from the New York City Police Department, and that he and wife Bernice have taken in five "problem" children who otherwise would probably have been remanded to juvenile homes or other custodial facilities.

Fish isn't crazy about the idea, but he's willing to go along with Bernice's maternal instincts and give it a go.

Oddly enough, it works. It is a mutually beneficial blending of a couple in their sixties and five of the most irrepresible, contrary and individualistic kids ever to be thrust together on a TV show.

True to life? Pretty much, according to Walter Logan, Deputy Director of Child Care Services for the Social Services Department of the City of New York.

Mr. Logan is quick to point out that no studies have been conducted to disclose what impact the series has had on the group home program.

Deputy Director Logan, who, by the way, has no association, official or unofficial, with the "Fish" series, confesses that the program has been so pressed with urgent business that it hasn't had the opportunity or the budget to indulge in surveys.

But, he's been watching. Says Logan, "The shows I've watched have very well reflected the philosophy of the group home concept. Of course, certain liberties are taken on TV that wouldn't be permissible in an actual group home. But, that's understandable. It's better to spotlight the program in an entertainment program that millions will watch than in a dull program or not at all."

Logan also says that there has been "a great deal of discussion" within the Social Services Department about the importance of "Fish" in promoting the group home concept.

"We all watch that program, and we're delighted that it's now moved to a day and time when more people — in New York City and throughout the country — will be able to enjoy it and maybe absorb some of what we're talking about in the group home program."

ABC GOING TO DOGS?

A series tentatively titled "Charlie's Dogs" is one of several series projects now being developed by ABC for next season, by the same producers of "Charlie's Angels."

Ron Austin and Jim Buchanan of "Angels" are developing an early-evening adventure show in which the stars would be three police dogs and their patrolmen partners.

Pike's Peeks

By Charlie Pike
TV Showtime Staff Writer

HOLLYWOOD — Production on "Starsky and Hutch" came to an unscheduled halt recently when series star David Soul returned from a weekend skiing trip with a sprained back. David insists he didn't fall, but hurt his back by simply "over doing it" on the slopes.

Erik Estrada, the personable young actor who portrays Ponch on NBC's "CHiPs," has a new steady companion — a dog. Erik found the stray on the last day of filming the show's first 13 episodes, and not knowing the fate of the series at the time, he named the animal Don't Cry. So far Erik hasn't.

Fred Silverman's announcement that he's leaving ABC left everyone and anyone affiliated with the network in Hollywood in almost stunned silence. As one network publicist uttered, "The only thing good about today is that it's not raining," which it had almost daily since last Thanksgiving.

Now that Henry Winkler has agreed to return for one more season of "Happy Days," don't be surprised if the planned spin-off pilot for Anson Williams and Donny Most isn't quietly scuttled for at least a year.

Jack Riley, the funny Mr. Carlin on Bob Newhart's show, was asked what he was going to do now that the series has completed production and is leaving the air. Said Jack, "You'll have to ask my shrink."

Patty Weaver is leaving daytime's "Days of Our Lives" to concentrate her time and energies on her singing career. She'll be leaving soon for a tour of Australia, where her first two albums have been big hits.

Denise Nichols of the new CBS series, "Baby, I'm Back," has an interesting approach for her media interviews. She welcomes a reporter to her dressing room at 6 p.m. with wine and snacks.

Larry Wilcox, the other highway patrolman on "CHiPs," who already raises Appaloosas and participates in rodeos, is now investing in race horses.

Antonio Fargas, who plays Huggy Bear on "Starsky and Hutch," co-stars in the Paramount Picture production, "Pretty Baby," a movie starring Keith Carradine that is set in early New Orleans and focuses on the houses of prostitution there at the turn of the century.

Robert Blake has said 'no' to a lucrative bid from Universal Studios to return for still another season of "Baretta" after the one that begins next fall. Meanwhile, he and estranged wife Sondra are seeing each other and may reconcile.

WIDMARK AT FEST

Richard Widmark has been named the American member of the International Jury for the 18th International Television Festival of Monte Carlo (Feb. 9-18).

Meriwether And Jones Are Alike

Lee Meriwether says she essentially portrays herself when she appears as Betty Jones, Buddy Ebsen's daughter-in-law and assistant on the long-running CBS-TV detective show "Barnaby Jones" (Thursdays, 10 to 11 p.m., on CBS-TV).

That's quite all right with her, Lee adds. "It's safe to say that I play 'me' in the show, especially the way I respond to people," Miss Meriwether says. "She has changed as much as I have changed."

"Betty seems to have gained strength out of necessity," she adds, "and the addition of the new character, Mark Shera, who plays Barnaby's cousin, hasn't diminished the part."

In fact, Lee's self-portrayal on the series was enhanced recently when her 17-year-old daughter, Kyle, took a small part on the show. Mother couldn't have been prouder.

"Kyle handled it well. I should remember that she had come through like a trouper on other occasions," Lee says. "Once a set tumbled down in a high school play and she went right on. Another time she fell off the stage in the finale of 'Godspell' and, although bruised, she never complained."

Lee refuses to be a stage mother and complain that her daughter deserved a bigger role. After all, she has another teenage daughter, Leslie, who is not an actress. And maintaining a family atmosphere without the "celebrity aura" is important to her.

"Leslie did remark that it was a good thing Kyle didn't get the big role or we'd never be able to live with her again," Lee says.

Lee also refuses to dwell on the roles she wishes she'd had. Though she admits that no subject is as interesting to her as theatre and dramatics, she plans to enroll in a battery of tests at UCLA called "Career Modes," to see where her outside talents may lie.

Lee Meriwether portrays Betty Jones, Barnaby Jones' widowed daughter-in-law and assistant, in the dramatic series "Barnaby Jones," which stars Buddy Ebsen in the title role. The program in telecast Thursdays (10-11 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

'Family Circus' Comes To NBC-TV

Bil Keane, creator of "The Family Circus," the leading newspaper comic panel in the nation, has been getting letters which will stop filling his mailbox very soon now.

Said Keane: "For years, people have been writing me, asking when 'The Family Circus' would be on television." It's happened. The first animated adaptation of the panel, "A Special Valentine With the Family Circus," will be telecast Friday, Feb. 10, 8 to 8:30 p.m. on NBC-TV.

Is Keane happy? Does the sun shine in July? "I'm very, very happy, of course. The panel is a natural for television. It's a family-oriented feature, containing all of the ingredients of typical American family life."

All of the principals who bring smiles to the nation every week will be featured in the colorcast: the four children, Billy, Dolly, Jeffy and little PJ, plus Mommy, Daddy and even Kittycat and the dogs Barfy and Sam.

"The television special will project the same things the comic panel does," Keane said. "There are the typical parental reactions to antics by the children and a sense of warmth and love. I think the key ingredient is insight. Sometimes it's funny, sometimes it tugs at the heartstrings. But I hope it always rings true. I often receive letters from readers saying, 'How did you know that? It's almost as though you peeked into my home...'"

The focal point of the plot for "A Special Valentine with the Family Circus" is the effort by the youngsters to make valentines for Mommy. As is the case with the newspaper panel, the special mirrors real-life situations which have taken place in the Keane household. "Everything I do is based on what has happened to my own family," Keane said. "Reality is the key to my style. Unlike some cartoonists, I try to make everything recognizable."

Keane, who describes himself as a lifelong optimist, has been drawing "The Family Circus" since 1960 (it appears in 600 newspapers). He also is the creator of another popular newspaper panel, "Channel Chuckles."

Eisenmann Is Happy Teenager

Teenage actor Ike Eisenmann likes what he's doing. "Acting is fun for me now because I'm only 15 years old," he says. "I only work four hours a day and go to school the rest of the time. It's harder for adult actors. They have to work longer hours. I'm really lucky to be working and having fun at the same time."

That's an honest appraisal of acting from young Ike who stars in the fantasy adventure "The Winged Colt," an "ABC Weekend Special." It will air as a three-part program Feb. 11, 18 and 25, from 12 to 12:30 p.m.

Ike Eisenmann was born in Houston, Texas, on July 21, 1962, where his father, Al Abel, starred in his own TV program, "The Cadet Don Show." The family moved to California in 1968 when Ike's father decided to try for an acting career in Hollywood. He successfully made the transition and in addition to his own acting career, coaches Ike in his thespian work.

Ike began his career when his father suggested acting as a means of financing his college education. Several commercials were followed by his first acting role in a "Gunsmoke" episode. He did a total of four "Gunsmoke" shows and also performed in "Kung Fu," "Emergency," "Fantastic Journey" and other TV series.

He has also starred in the Walt Disney movie, "Escape to Witch Mountain," and in three "Wonderful World of Disney"

TV features, "The Sky's the Limit," "The Secret of the Road" and "Kit Carson, Fremont and the Mountain Man."

Ike plays racket ball, tennis, baseball and basketball. His hobbies are collecting rocks, stamps and coins. Another favorite pastime is building model airplanes, and he prefers balsa and paper models to the ready-made kits.

He is also an artist and one day hopes to work as an animator. "That's what I do best," he says.

'Freebie And The Bean' To Broadcast

Two San Francisco cops, played by James Caan and Alan Arkin, stake out a numbers racketeer and become involved in a relentless progress of violent shootouts, chases and pile-ups in "Freebie and the Bean." The film will be broadcast as the "ABC Friday Night Movie," Feb. 11, 9 to 11 p.m. on ABC-TV. Co-Starring are Loretta Swit, Jack Kruschen, Mike Kellin, Alex Rocco and Valerie Harper.

Serving as the core of the slam-bang action is a storyline centering around our heroes' stakeout of a big numbers racketeer, played by Kruschen. When they sift some incriminating evidence out of his garbage (which was planted by his wife (Swit) so she could run away with a cop while her hubby went to jail), they're ready to nail him but can't until an eye-witness is found for the Grand Jury. Learning that a contract has been put on the racketeer's life and that the hit man is expected to arrive from Detroit, the pair of plainclothesmen suddenly find themselves playing bodyguard to protect their own investment.

Predictably, their enthusiasm knows no bounds. When they spot a Cadillac with Detroit license plates, they viciously attack the owners, who turn out to be an innocent Cadillac salesman and his wife. And every time they have to give vehicular pursuit (inevitably through thick traffic or streets filled with scores of pedestrians), the results are innumerable smashed up cars, broken bones for innocent bystanders and stray bullets.

Caan, as the hip, social climbing cop and Arkin, as his more sensitive but no less violence-prone Mexican-American partner, work well off one another, spending as much time spitting between themselves as with the criminal population.

Valerie Harper is perfection as Arkin's sprightly Mexican-born wife and provides the film's funniest — and most human — moments as she patiently counters every bit of her husband's 'evidence' of her infidelity with the most incredible but logical explanations imaginable.

Defends His Title

Carlos Palomino defends his WBA Welterweight Championship title when he meets challenger Ryu Sorimachi. The bout will be part of the "CBS Sports Spectacular" airing Saturday, Feb. 11 at 4:30 p.m.

Palomino won the WBA Welterweight title by defeating England's John Stracey in London, June, 1976. Stracey's promoter, Mickey Duff, felt that Palomino, a 10-to-1 underdog, would be an easy prey for his then-champion fighter, and Palomino's win was completely unexpected.

Duff, who had seen three of Palomino's fights, had him pegged as just a good club fighter working his way through Long Beach State College in California.

Men's Finals Air

A total of 52 star athletes in a variety of sports have been competing in the four qualifying rounds of "The Superstars," and 14 have made it to the Men's Finals, airing two consecutive Sundays, Feb. 5 and 12 (2 to 3:15 p.m.), from Freeport, Lucaya, Grand Bahamas Island. Top bonus to the winner of the Men's Finals is $25,000.

Appearing as expert commentators in this final preliminary round along with ABC Sports commentator Frank Gifford, host of "The Superstars" series, will be New York Yankees Reggie Jackson and Olympic decathlon champion Bruce Jenner.

In each preliminary a $10,000 bonus went to the winner, with $5,000 for the runner-up and $2,500 for the third-place finisher. The four leading point-getters in this preliminary moved on to the Men's Finals.

In the glittering field of the final qualifying round are:

Jack Youngblood, Los Angeles Rams, star defensive end named to his fifth Pro Bowl;

Franco Harris, Pittsburgh Steelers, one of the all-time leading rushers in the NFL;

Greg Pruitt, Cleveland Browns, who just concluded his third straight 1,000-yard season as a rusher;

Walter Payton, Chicago Bears, recently named Offensive Player of the Year by the Associated Press;

Alan Page, Minnesota Vikings, first defensive player to be named NFL's most Valuable Player (1971);

Bill Bergey, Philadelphia Eagles, who rates with Hall of Famer Chuck Bednarik as one of the greatest middle linebackers in Philadelphia's history;

Dave Casper, Oakland Raiders, who is regarded as one of the top tight ends in pro football;

Jim Young, considered one of the three leading contenders for the heavyweight boxing title;

Chuck Foreman, Minnesota Vikings, who ran for 1,112 yards in 1977, his third straight year over the 1,000-yard mark;

Lyle Alzado, Denver Broncos, recently named Man of the Year by the NFL Players Association;

Mark van Eeghen, Oakland Raiders in 1977 with 1,273 yards;

Cliff Harris, Dallas Cowboys, all-pro free safety;

Earl Campbell, University of Texas, who led the nation's collegiate players in rushing with 1,744 yards.

NBA All-Star Clash Is Slated

On Sunday, Feb. 5, the National Basketball Association will present its 28th Annual All-Star clash, and CBS will televise the action, beginning at 1:45 p.m.

The list of participants reads like a "Who's Who" of pro basketball. Names like Rick Barry, Maurice Lucas, David Thompson, George McGinnis,

"Dr. J" Julius Irving, Bill Knight, Doug Collins, "Pistol" Pete Maravich, JoJo White and—last but by far not least—the two premier centers in the NBA, Bill Walton and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar. Of course, these are just a few of the NBA's "Greats" that will be playing.

Anytime you start talking pro basketball, the names most certainly to pop up are Jabbar and Walton. And when they do, the question of who is the best always arouses a good argument between the die-hard round ball fans. This question has been hashed and rehashed ever since Walton came into the League.

Bill was just a rookie when he and Kareem first faced each other head-to-head in the fall of 1974. After that game there was no question as to who was the best. Kareem was clearly the best player. The arguments then subsided. For the time being anyway.

But that was three years ago. Last year Walton and his Portland teammates went on to win the NBA Championship and, in the process, defeated Jabbar and the Los Angeles Lakers four straight games in the championship series last spring. Now the arguing and debating has started all over again and will continue for sometime.

Just recently, Basketball Weekly took a survey of NBA coaches asking the question, "Which man would you choose, in starting a franchise?" Sixty percent of the coaches in the survey showed a preference towards L.A.'s Jabbar, but they also stated that they were being asked to choose between two very great men.

Jabbar and Walton will play on the same team in this game, so the question will remain. Who is the best?

Gamecocks Play Marquette

Sunday, Feb. 5, at 4 p.m., NBC will televise NCAA basketball featuring the Marquette University Warriors and the Gamecocks of South Carolina.

If the Gamecocks hope to beat Marquette, it could hinge on 6 foot 9 inch sophomore center Jim Graziano's performance. Jim was a two-time high school All-American at Farmingdale High School in, of course, Farmingdale, N. Y. He was voted one of the top five prep players in the nation and was also named to Sport's Magazine's "Dream Team" two years ago. As a senior at Farmingdale, Jim averaged 22 points and 15 rebounds a game.

Coach Frank McGuire, who also happens to be the schedule-maker, has lined up some devastating intersectional games for his Gamecocks. Teams like Notre Dame, Louisville, Kentucky, Alabama and finally the team they will be facing in this game — Marquette.

Marquette will be a tough nut to crack. The Warriors have been highly rated since before the NCAA season began and they are living up to all expectations. With personnel like forwards Bernard Toone and Ulice Payne, center Jerome Whitehead, All-America guard Butch Lee and guard Jim Boylan, Coach Hank Raymonds shouldn't have too much to worry about.

The longer people watch guards Butch Lee and Jim Boylan together in Marquette backcourt, the more fans line up to rank them the top collegiate backcourt in the nation. Both are regarded as complete players by Raymonds. Equally adept at shooting, passing and defense, both of these players rate high among National Basketball Association scouts for this year's Pro draft.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar will be one among many stars from the NBA to be featured in the 28th annual NBA All-Star game Sunday, Feb. 5 at 1:45 p.m. on CBS-TV.

WBA On NBC

Two 15-round title fights for the World Boxing Association featherweight and welterweight crowns have been acquired by NBC Sports for telecast on "SportsWorld."

On Sunday, Feb. 5 (2:30 to 4 p.m.), the program will feature exclusive coverage of the scheduled 15-rounder for the WBA featherweight title between champion Cecilio Lastra and 19-year-old challenger Sean O'Grady, live from Oklahoma City Fairgrounds Arena in Oklahoma City, Okla. On Sunday, March 5 (2:30 to 4 p.m.), "SportsWorld" will air taped coverage of the WBA welterweight championship bout between champ Jose "Pipino" Cuevas and Harold Weston Jr. The match will be held at the Olympic Auditorium in Los Angeles, Calif. on Saturday, March 4.

The WBA featherweight championship bout will mark the first title defense and first appearance for Cecilio Lastra, the 26-year-old Spaniard who won the title in a unanimous decision over Raphael Ortega, Dec. 17, 1977. O'Grady, his 19-year-old opponent, is one of the most exciting young scrappers in the game. A freshman in pre-med at Central State College near his hometown of Oklahoma City, O'Grady has compiled a most impressive 52-1 mark, including 47 KOs. This will be the first title fight for the hard-hitting "Green Machine" who is managed by his father, Pat.

In the WBA welterweight championship match, 20-year-old champ Jose "Pipino" Cuevas, a seasoned battler with knockout power, will go against Weston, a stylish boxer-puncher. Cuevas, the youngest man ever to win a world title (he was 18 when he dethroned Angel Espada), has made four successful title defenses, winning each by KOs. Weston, a New York City fighter managed by Gil Clancy, has a career mark of 24-5-5, with 5 KOs.

Stars In Film

Robert Mitchum plays Raymond Chandler's gritty, laconic detective, Philip Marlowe, who, in the course of tracking down a mysterious, elusive woman named Velda, uncovers much more than he needed to know in "Farewell, My Lovely." The film will air on "Saturday Night at the Movies," Feb. 11, 9 to 11 p.m. on NBC-TV. Charlotte Rampling, John Ireland and Sylvia Miles co-star.

Velda was the girlfriend of Moose Malloy (Jack O'Halloran), a hulking ex-convict who wants her back in spite of the fact that she apparently forgot him as soon as he went to prison. To find the lady in question, Marlowe embarks on an investigation that takes him from the top to the bottom of Los Angeles society in the 1940s.
 Along the way he comes to a number of dead ends and finds some not-so-innocent victims of the corruption that prevailed that society.

The landscape of "Farewell,
 My Lovely" consists of cheap motels, greasy chop suey joints and tacky bungalows, all made even more bawdy by the constant flash of neon signs.

Ms. Rampling provides the film's dusky feminine mystique as the mysterious Mrs. Grayle, the young wife of an accommodating old judge, and she plays against Mitchum with a husky voice and smoldering eyes.

Mitchum makes Marlowe into his own personal creation, a tired tough guy who's seen it all and knows the world is rotten.
 However, he still keeps a sentimental spot inside for Joe DiMaggio and bright-eyed orphans.

Ms. Miles gives a gem of a performance as an aging ex-chorus girl who exchanges some information and her life story for a cheap bottle of booze, only to be killed for her trouble. John Ireland is excellent as Nulty, Marlowe's old friend and rival on the police force, and O'Halloran's giant body, thick features and monosyllabic dialect are perfect in his portrayal of Moose.

Little Man, Tall Man

At three feet, eleven inches and 70 pounds, Herve Villechaize may be short in size but he's long in show business experience.
 Since he began his formal dramatic training in 1968, he has racked up more than a dozen feature films, two Broadway plays, three Off-Broadway, three operas, numerous repertory company productions and a variety of television appearances. He currently costars as Ricardo Montalban's helper, Tattoo, in "Fantasy Island," which airs Saturdays, 10 to 11 p.m., on ABC-TV.

Herve was born in Paris,
 France, to a French surgeon father and an English mother.
 When he was 11, he quit school to pursue his primary interest of art. After studying for three years at the Beaux-Arts school in Paris, he emigrated to New York to continue his studies at the Art Student League.

Herve came to the United States unable to speak a word of English. He says he learned the language by watching television.
 Television intrigued him so much that he chose to change professions and began studying acting with Julie Rovasso.

With his art behind him, (he still teaches art periodically and one of his paintings is hanging in the Museum of Paris), he embarked on his first film, "The Guitar," shot in Spain. His other film credits include "Hollywood Blvd. No. 2," "Hot Tomorrow," "Man with the Golden Gun," "Crazy Joe," "The Gang That Couldn't Shoot Straight," "Seizure," "Greaser's Palace,"

Raquel Welch Rolls

Raquel Welch stars as a rollerderby queen who has the whole team going in circles when she races after romance in "Kansas City Bomber," to be seen as the
 "CBS Late Night Movie" Friday, Feb. 10, at 12-midnight, on CBS-TV.

K.C. Carr is a rough and wild skater whose looks, style and competitive spirit make her a crowd favorite on the derby circuit. It also puts her in the good

"Chappaqua" and, most recently, "The One and the Only."

Herve's Broadway plays are "Elizabeth the First" and "Gloria and Esperenze." Off-
 Broadway, he has performed in "Honest to God Schnozola,"
 "The Moon Dreamers" and
 "Young Master Dante." He performed mime in the New York City Opera's production of "Pagliacci" and also appeared in "Rigoletto" and "Carry Nation."

FOR CLEVELAND AMORY, founder of the Fund for Animals

Most everyone is against the cruelty of cockfights and bullfights, but why doesn't anyone ever speak out about what goes on at rodeos? As a sport, how do they rate with you? — R. Ziegler, Huron, S.D.

● I personally dislike them because of the blatant cruelty. We have never said they should be abolished, but those events, particularly the steer-busting and team-roping, should be under much closer surveillance. The single-calf roping can turn your stomach. I have seen a calf bull banged down and lying there shaking in fear and agony while the entire audience gasped in horror. Horses and bulls don't buck because they enjoy bucking. They do so because they're in torture from the straps on their genitals. My main complaint, however, is that while the Rodeo Cowboys Ass'n. and the Int'l. Rodeo Ass'n. are always talking about policing their rodeos, together they have authority over less than 30 percent.

FOR THE "ASK" EDITOR

I feel so sorry for Barbra Streisand's half-sister, Roslyn Kind. All the spotlight is on Barbra and none on Ros. Tell me something about her, please. — A.S., Rome, Ga.

● Ros, 27, is nine years younger than Barbra. They have the same Mom, Diana, who married Lewis Kind (a realtor) eight years after Emanuel Streisand (Barbra's father, an educator) passed away. Ros cut her first record at 17, seven years after Barbra's big break and, since then, has been performing at clubs and in concert halls across the country. She leads a quiet life in L.A., where she and her manager's wife own a bakery. When Barbra went there, news got out that Ros's career had reached rock bottom, that she was forced to serve in a bakery and that Barbra had stopped by to give her sister and the store a break. Ros is still burning from that rumor. "We were close as kids," she says, "and we still are. We'd be even closer if our careers didn't send us to opposite ends of the country."

She's for the quiet life.

FOR ROSALYNN CARTER

When you were packing to move to the White House, you said one thing you'd be sure to take along would be your sewing machine. Did you take it, and have you ever used it? — Mrs. Roy A. Spangler, Ormond Beach, Fla.

● I did bring it with me, and I keep it open and ready to be used in my dressing room. I've used it for alterations, sewing up seams and hemming for Amy. And Amy and I have both used the machine to make clothes for her Barbie doll.

FOR LYNN A. GREENWALT, director, Fish and Wildlife Service, Department of Interior

Who is the most deadly member of Mother Nature's domain? — Mrs. Clara L. Strand, Osnabrock, N.D.

● It's the common Old World rat. Rat-borne diseases have killed more humans than all the wars during the past thousand years. Its fleas still carry the bubonic plague, its lice, typhus. It still spreads rabies, tularemia and trichinosis. It also contributes to world food shortages by destroying billions of dollars worth of grains, fruits and vegetables.

FOR PRINCE CHARLES

Why do you always stand with your hands behind your back? — J.V., Costa Mesa, Calif.

● My father does it, too, but it's not a habit I picked up from him. The reason (or cause or fault or blame) lies with our tailor; we both share the same one. He makes the sleeves so snug, we have a hard job keeping our hands in front.

FOR KATHERINE HELMOND, star of ABC-TV's Soap

Would you say that the family life portrayed on your show parallels real life? — P.M., Bangor, Maine

● In the sense that every family is not without some kind of madness, plus problems, yes. But as to the type of problems, no. Our show is an exaggerated comedy, a farce. What happens to us isn't supposed to represent an average house. Weird things do go on behind closed doors, but even so, Mr. and Mrs. Citizen wouldn't deal with them the way we do. There's no message in our show. We want to entertain, not educate.

FOR CHRISTINA ELLEN MOLLER, America's Junior Miss of 1977

Now that you're halfway through your "reign" and have traveled all over the country, what do you know now that you didn't know before? — I.B., Wilmington, Del.

● That I'm not meant for big-city life. I'm from Jonesboro, Ark. (pop. 30,000), and got scared out of my wits at all the crowds and noise. I can't get over the way people dress in big towns. They don't care if a style is a fad; they go right out and buy. At home, we make sure it's here to stay before we invest money.

FOR EDWIN NEWMAN, NBC newscaster and author of Strictly Speaking

Are you not ashamed to have mispronounced Lebanon on the air recently? — F.K. Arnold, Wilmington, N.C.

● No, because I don't recall having done so. I have, of course, made a mess of other names. I called Lima, Ohio, "Leema" Ohio. Once I had so much trouble with former President Macapagal of the Philippines that I said on the air had I known what was to happen, I would have contributed to his opponent's campaign.

PRO John J. Rhodes (R.-Ariz.), House Minority Leader

A tax cut now is the quickest way to pump more real buying power into our faltering economy. It would create more jobs and reduce unemployment without adding to inflation. Right now, government siphons off 42 percent of all income for taxes. As Emperor Tiberius once told his tax collector, "A good shepherd shears his sheep, but he does not skin them." We Republicans in Congress have proposed a general tax cut averaging 33 percent over the next three years for a family of four with an income of $15,000; that would mean a tax savings of $1,068. Our program is modeled after President Kennedy's tax cuts in the 1960's, which led to a long period of solid sustained economic growth.

PRO AND CON

Should There Be An Income Tax Cut Now?

Illustration by Hal Just

CON C. Lowell Harris, professor of economics, Columbia University

The huge deficit in the Federal budget means that a cut in the personal income tax would be dangerously inflationary. And inflation, as it is often said, "is the cruelest tax of all." A tax reduction that would force the Treasury to go further into debt would invite more of the deficit financing that puts new money into the economy. Until Americans can persuade Congress to slow down the increase in spending, we should not expect to have our income taxes reduced. All responsible economists will condemn the high rates of income taxation and the burdens they impose as inflation pushes earnings into higher tax brackets. The task is to reduce inflation. For this we need control of Federal spending.

KRIS AND RITA: THEY HELPED EACH OTHER TO THE TOP

Despite Kris's self-destructive tendencies, in the past year both he and his wife have become superstars. Now they face the tremendous pressures of living in the public eye.

By Deedee Moore

Going on tour with Kris and Rita is like joining a circus. It's colorful, clannish, exhausting and often frightening. It's an experience that proves becoming superstars — as Kris Kristofferson and his wife Rita Coolidge recently have done — means facing tremendous pressures.

On a recent tour, their group converged in Atlanta. The various managers flew in, as did the six-member band and Rita's jazz pianist accompanist and her secretary. Finally, there were Kris and Rita and their 3-year-old daughter, Casey, and Rita's mother, Charlotte Coolidge, in charge of taking care of Casey.

After arriving at the airport, Kris and Rita are surrounded by airport security personnel and accompanied by 40-odd pieces of personal and professional luggage. Missing are the lighting and sound crews, who will arrive by truck.

In Tallahassee, Fla., the Kristofferson entourage takes over the Hilton's entire 16th floor, and the hotel provides 24-hour guards at the exit doors and elevators. The stars are escorted in an express elevator to and from their limousine.

Kris and Rita go nowhere these days without security-planning. It's a must to keep the screaming, clamoring fans from overwhelming them and their baby daughter. At the Tallahassee performance, dozens of fans trying to grapple over a hurricane fence had to be repelled by guards.

Once, at Radio City in New York, a group of fans huddled for an hour in a downpour awaiting the pair. Such loyalty may seem touching, but there is always the danger the crowd will explode out of control. The Kristofferson home in Malibu Hills, Calif., is equipped with a barbed-wire fence, a closed-circuit TV at the front gate and patrol dogs. Although Kris spoofed such extensive measures in his song, "Rocket To Stardom," the truth is superstars are forced to wall themselves off from the public. Security guards are now an important item in Kris's and Rita's budget, and limousine drivers are chosen for their ability to make fast getaways.

After the group arrived in Orlando, Fla., Kris was strumming his guitar and waiting to go on stage when a dozen screaming, squealing girls pushed through the dressing-room door and tried to squirm past the guards. Kris leaped back, a look of utter horror on his face. Only when the door was closed again did he realize he had overreacted and grin sheepishly. Still, after the concert, he said, "Boy, if you think having people say I've got sex appeal don't make me feel good, you've got to be nuts, man. You spend your life trying to be appealing to the opposite sex and, here I am at 41, and they're saying it! I mean, it's got to make you feel terrific." All the same, crowds at some performances have become hostile to Kris and Rita when the encores ended too soon.

Kris's and Rita's concern for Casey is such they trust only a family member to care for her while they are all touring together. Recently, Rita prevailed upon her mother, a gracious woman with a soothing manner and relaxed good humor. Charlotte Coolidge openly admires her daughter's coolness under pressure, too. "It tickles me," she says in her easy Southern way, "that Rita's got a lot more confidence on stage now. She's a lot different from even a year ago. And she's so organized — the tour, Kris, Casey and all. I don't know how she does it. I'm amazed at her emotional and physical strength."

There's no doubt Rita's warm, stable, supportive family has helped her cope with stardom. (By contrast, Kris's relationship with his family could easily be called tormented.) Rita was born in Nashville, home of country music, and grew up in a cultured, music-oriented family. Her grandmother writes poetry and sings; her Baptist preacher father and schoolteacher mother write religious songs that they sing together. Her sisters, Linda and Priscilla, are singers married to singers, and her brother is a novelist and university professor. It is a close family in which all are encouraged to do whatever they want, as long as they do it well. Rita is as proud of her heritage as her family is supportive of her success.

Rita could sing before she could talk, but she took an art degree at Florida State University before returning to Nashville and music. She broke into the business with commercial jingles and by 1971, when she was 26, she had cut an album and formed her own singing group. She met Kris by chance in the Los Angeles airport. She was headed for Memphis, he for Nashville. He changed his flight while she saved him a seat, and they've been singing and living together ever since, married, in 1973, by Rita's dad. Rita's natural serenity — she also practices transcendental meditation — has kept their relationship from disintegrating when Kris's self-destructiveness threatened it.

"People have said I was self-destructive

Nate Cutler/Globe Photos

By any standard, Kris and Rita have had a dizzying ascent to fame in the past year: he because of his film roles in A Star Is Born and Semi-Tough; she because of her hit singles, "Higher and Higher" and "We're All Alone" from her album, Anytime... Anywhere. Kris has recently been in London making Hanover Street, a World War II love story. At left is Kris's daughter Tracy by his first marriage.

since I was straight as an arrow playing football," Kris says one night in his bourbon voice as we sit in his mother-in-law's hotel room in Tallahassee.

Kris talks at length about the lonely time he had growing up, a topic many of his songs poignantly reflect. Born in Brownsville, Texas, in 1936, the son of an Air Force major general, Kris was urged to follow in the family tradition — his brother is a Navy jet pilot, his sister married a West Pointer. Kris clashed intensely with his parents, who had little sympathy for his "creative" impulses or his desire for fame. Kris did become an ROTC officer at California's Pomona College, although he broke the mold by majoring in creative writing. He also became a Golden Gloves boxer, played football, soccer and rugby and was graduated Phi Beta Kappa. And he won an Atlantic Monthly short story contest, which helped earn him a Rhodes Scholarship to study at Oxford University. In England, he studied Blake, Yeats and Shakespeare and was determined to prove to his parents he could be the great American novelist.

Later, true to family training, he returned to the States, married a hometown girl, fathered two children — daughter Tracy, now 15, and Kris Jr., 9 — and, to support them, enlisted in the Army. He attended Ranger jump school, became a helicopter pilot and moved his family to Germany, where he served four and a half years in uniform. He was on his way back to the States to teach literature at West Point when he decided to plunge into a music career. Although faced with immense medical bills for surgery for his son and with little real hope of a secure future in music, Kris sent his wife and kids to her folks in California and headed for Nashville. He was 29, and as he remembers it, "I figured it was my last chance." His marriage soon broke up.

"Music represented this wild side of me which she thought was driving me to the devil," he says now of his former wife.

From that troubled time came his hits, "Silver Tongued Devil" and "For the Good Times."

To survive, Kris took a job as janitor at Columbia Record Studios, where he is now a star, tended bar at the Tally Ho Tavern, which he wrote a song about, and flew choppers to off-shore rigs in Louisiana. Often as not, he was broke or in debt. Even after his career got a good launching in 1969, life continued to be a series of painful ups and downs.

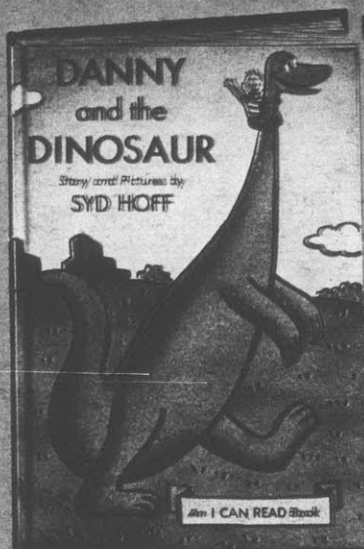

For years Kris had been a heavy drinker, but fame scared and depressed him so much he began appearing on stage drunk. He often slurred his own songs, fought with his band, whispered insults to Rita and abused his fans. One of the worst moments came in 1976 when Kris, intoxicated, posed for an exhibitionistic Playboy photo spread along with batty actress Sarah Miles. Many spouses have walked out after having suffered much less of an insult, but Rita weighed her commitment to Kris and their daughter and stayed.

Kris says he finally quit drinking when he saw a scene from A Star Is Born and recognized in the character he portrayed the way he, too, was destroying himself. In reacting as he did, Kris saved his marriage, his voice and his sanity just at the time when he and Rita would begin their dizzying spiral to superstardom.

Despite all Rita has had to put up with, Kris says she never has held his drinking up to him. He is aware of the fact that Rita has great reserves of physical and emotional stamina, that she is the organizer in the family and the one who must discipline Casey. Kris is simply an indulgent father.

Yet for all he has been through, and considering the astounding fame he has had thrust upon him, Kris seems never to have lost his candor. He will talk for hours about his self-doubts and worries regarding stardom and conclude, humorously, that "the start of the thing really has happened when the people are squealing like I'm David Cassidy..."

AMERICAN DANCE IS SWEEPING THE COUNTRY— AND THE WORLD

It has an audience in the U.S. of 20 million persons, and no wonder, seeing as it is great exercise, celebrates the body and is a formidable diplomatic weapon.

By Luisa Kreisberg

A doctor warned Ted Kivitt's mother: "Your son will die of asthma unless you send him away." Instead, she sent him to ballet school.

"I was 10 years old and growing up in southern Florida," says Kivitt. "When the tough guys found out I was learning to dance, I kept getting beaten up. I was afraid to go to school." Kivitt has since become principal dancer and soloist with the American Ballet Theatre, a major professional company specializing in classics from the great ballet era of Imperial Russia.

Kivitt's father, who had been a Golden Gloves champ, taught the boy how to fight. By age 15 he was playing football for the high-school team and taking three ballet classes a day after school.

Nowadays, Ted Kivitt is something of a local hero. Described by one critic as "America's first danseur noble," he has toured the country with American Ballet Theatre. Married to a dancer from Fort Worth, Texas, he sums up his life with a line from the Broadway play A Chorus Line: "God, I'm a dancer. A dancer dances."

There are many stories of male ballet dancers who, like Ted Kivitt, began dancing to cure asthma or otherwise improve their health. They were brave lads, indeed, for they were entering an almost exclusively female domain. "At one time boys studying ballet were outnumbered by girls 50 to one," says Jacques D'Amboise, a principal dancer with the New York City Ballet, who was recently named dean of dance at the State University of New York College at Purchase. "But this is changing. Now dance is seen as an athletic endeavor for men and women alike."

The age-old stigma attached to ballet as a "fussy" pursuit may be a thing of the past. Today as never before dance is booming on all levels. Ballet dancers leap to our attention from magazine covers and movie and television screens. Two current films feature ballet superstars: Valentino with Rudolf Nureyev and The Turning Point with Mikhail Baryshnikov. Both Nureyev and Baryshnikov, who has been described as "Clark Kent turned into Superman," defected from Russia to the West in search of artistic freedom.

In one week last summer there were three important televised dance events. Mary Tyler Moore brought the Bolshoi Ballet's Romeo and Juliet to commercial prime time. The Public Broadcasting Service showed Swan Lake live — intermissions and all — from New York's Lincoln Center. And station WGBH of Boston released its Dance in America series to the Public Broadcasting Service and its affiliates. And recently an NBC special featured former First Lady Betty Ford's narration of the Bolshoi's Nutcracker.

Television's first prime time continuing series on dance, *Great Performances: Dance in America, is now in its third season. Made possible with $4½ million in grants from the National Endowment on the Arts, the Corporation for Public Broadcasting and the Exxon Corporation, the series is being video-cast on PBS stations around the country.

The highlight of the current season is a two-part special on George Balanchine, in charge of the New York City Ballet. Considered one of the finest companies in the world, Balanchine's corps of 95 dancers, including Edward Villella, Peter Martins and Helgi Tomasson, are known for their speed and stamina. One of the most widely quoted statistics about the company is that a pair of ballet shoes per dancer is worn out at each performance.

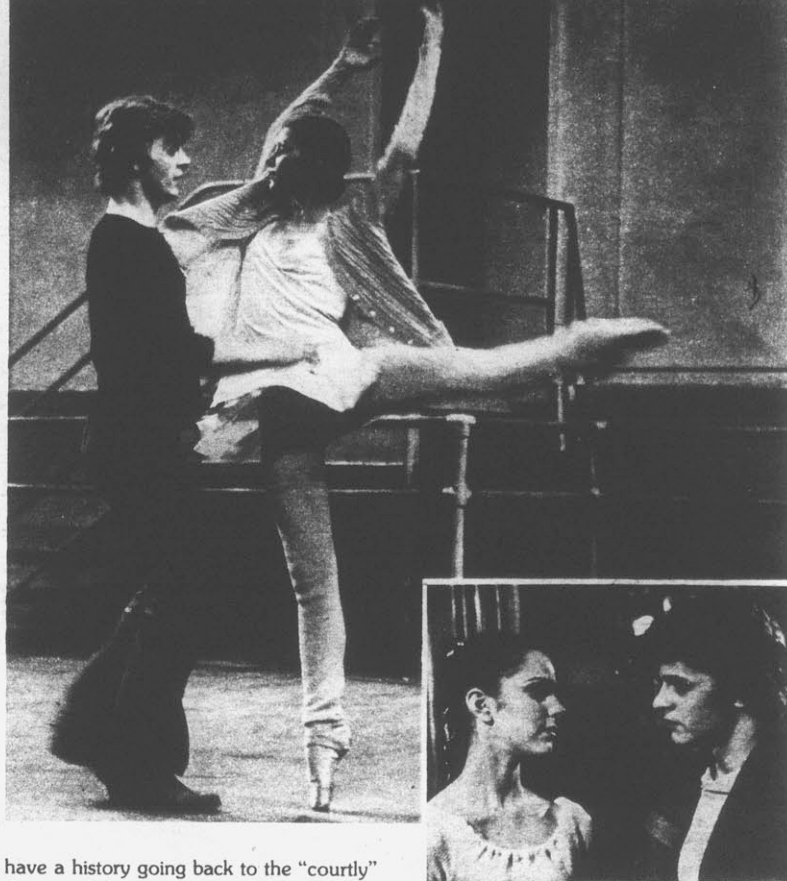

Dance actually gained its first foothold in television 20 years ago when Gene Kelly did a broadcast entitled Dancing: A Man's Game on CBS. Kelly, a dancer, choreographer and director who starred in a number of musical films in the 40's and 50's, compared Edward Villella's athletic skills with those of Olympic skating champion Dick Button, champion boxer Sugar Ray Robinson and others.

"As I directed it," Kelly said in a recent interview with Dance magazine, "I was saying to myself, 'Well, this is the basis of how I invented a cockamamie style of dance — by basing it on athleticism and on athletic movements.'"

The filming of dance for television and film seems to be having a ripple effect across the country. Audiences for dance in all its diversity — ballet, modern, jazz, pop and ethnic — have expanded greatly. The art, in fact, has become competitive with major-league sports. In Houston and New York ballet is luring more fans than the National Football League. Ten years ago the size of the U.S. dance audience was 1½ million; today it is estimated at 20 million. Some 350 regional and resident companies now belong to the American Association of Dance Companies — 50 of them new this year.

More Americans than ever are satisfying "an appetite for motion." Dance in every conceivable style is bursting out all over, elating audiences with its lung-and-leg splitting demands. People are watching ballet and modern dance for the sheer joy of it, thrilling to the spectacle of human beings precariously balanced.

The movements they are witnessing have a history going back to the "courtly" dances of the Renaissance. Today, however, there is a distinctly American style of dancing. It is strenuous and athletic, spanning the gamut from the romantic on-toe movements of classical Russian ballet to the popular cancan, cakewalk or old-fashioned soft-shoe.

But dance has not always enjoyed such popularity. It struggled for legitimacy through the Victorian age of corsets and curtains of Turkish beads and into the early 20th century, when a rebel named Isadora Duncan scandalized the country by dancing barefooted.

At about the same time another rebel named Ruth St. Denis began dancing not only barefooted but also bare-waisted. Weaving Oriental themes into her dances, she made her debut as an Indian goddess in a theater suffused with incense. She was booed from the galleries, too, but it was the beginning of a new era.

Out of this period came modern dance, a new art form distinguished from ballet by the bare feet of its dancers. Modern dance's leading exponent today is Martha Graham, an innovator whose name is synonymous with American dance throughout the world. The nation's highest civilian award, the Medal of Freedom, went last year to Miss Graham.

More than half a century has passed since Isadora Duncan and Ruth St. Denis shocked the country with their choreography. Today American dance and dancers have conquered the entire world. Dance, in fact, has become one of our most effective diplomatic weapons. The New York City Ballet has attracted huge crowds in virtually every European country, including Russia, stronghold of classical ballet. The Alvin Ailey Dance Theater, a predominantly black troupe, set the Russians cheering when in 1971 it became the first modern dance company to visit the Soviet Union. In Moscow and Leningrad audiences gave the company as many as 30 curtain calls.

"The last performance in Leningrad they wouldn't go home," recalls Ailey, the 46-year-old Texas-born director of the company. "They stood and screamed and clapped. They chanted 'Spasibo' [thank you] and 'Come Back.' I got down into the orchestra pit and signed autographs. I signed people's arms, calendars and programs. It was beautiful."

Interest in professional ballet and modern dance has also been sparked by volunteer dance organizations in communities.

Like the people who sponsor them, these organizations come in many sizes and shapes. In New York's Westchester County, for example, the Westchester Dance Council Inc. is an educational non-profit organization that sponsors workshops and a variety of dance events. In West Orange, N.J., the Creative Arts Group offers classes for children in music, dance, drama and art. The Chicago Dance Council caters to a variety of dance interests, from hoedowns with square and folk dances to demonstrations in primitive dance. The Dance Forum of Winston-Salem, N.C., tries to broaden the dance experience of members and those interested in dance with master classes, dance movies and forums.

Greta Levart, a dancer and teacher who is a long-standing member of the Westchester Dance Council, sums it up this way: "We've come a long way from the early Puritanical days of the country when the soul was considered good but the body was bad. Dance has only one way to go — and that's up."

Luisa Kreisberg, a free-lance writer specializing in the arts, has recently completed a book on the arts in local governments.

SOLAR ENERGY: HOW IT WILL HELP, HOW IT WON'T

It's a fairly new idea, and there are questions to be asked: How does it work? Will it work for me?

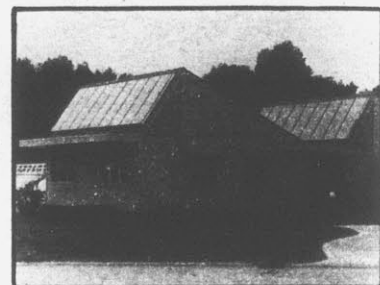

The more we hear about the energy crisis, the more we hear about solar energy for home heating. Although there are only a few thousand solar-heated homes in the United States today, interest in solar as an alternative to conventional fuels is accelerating. Twelve states (Arizona, Colorado, Illinois, Indiana, Maryland, Montana, New Hampshire, North Dakota, Oregon, New Mexico, South Dakota and Texas) give homeowners a tax break for installing solar-heating systems, and President Carter has proposed Federal income-tax incentives for homeowners who want to be energy pioneers. But despite all the interest, there remains some confusion about solar heat, what it costs and what it can do. Here are the answers to some commonly asked questions.

Q. What advantages does solar heating offer?

A. Solar energy has two main advantages over other forms of fuel — there's a lot of it, and it is pollution-free. Although a solar system can't provide all the heat and hot water the average household consumes daily, it can provide from 50 to 75 percent of total heating needs.

Q. How does it work?

A. The heat from the sun is absorbed by black metal panels installed on the roof. They are called solar collectors. Air or water is forced through the collectors to be heated and then is piped back into the house to be stored in the basement either on the size of the house, climactic conditions, the design, type and size of the system itself. HUD estimates the cost of a solar-heating system designed to provide hot water at $1,000 to $1,500. But in addition to the price of the system itself there are installation costs — about $300 for a solar hot-water heating system and much more for a complete system.

Q. Can solar save you money?

A. Yes, but it can be difficult to calculate the savings. If you install a $1,500 solar hot-water heater, you'll want the answers to two questions: 1) how much less you are paying to heat your hot water; and 2) how many years it will take to recover your investment in the solar hot-water heater. If your hot water was heated electrically before you installed the solar heater, you can learn what you're saving by comparing the number of kilowatt hours of electricity you used the year before installing the solar system with the number of kilowatt hours the year after the system was put in. Don't look at the amount of money you paid — that could change simply because of rate increases. A quick way to gauge how long it will take to recover the cost of a solar hot-water system is to determine how much of your hot water the solar heater is providing and then look at what it cost to heat the water in the past.

Q. Is solar heating for everyone?

A. No. Solar heating systems naturally work best in homes with good southern exposures and that don't stand in the shade of other buildings, hills or trees.

Q. What about warranties, repairs and maintenance?

A. Because the solar industry is so new, there have been some serious problems with companies failing to honor warranties and to fulfill maintenance contracts. Some distributors are so inexperienced that they have improperly installed systems. To be sure your warranty will be honored and that you'll get expert installation and reliable maintenance and repairs, check out the reputation of the selling company and make sure it has a staff with the training and expertise to handle any problems that may arise.

For more information contact the National Solar Heating and Cooling Information Center at its toll-free number: (800) 523-2929.

in a water tank or a specially constructed bin of gravel or rocks. At night and on cloudy or rainy days a back-up system run by electricity, oil, natural gas or coal takes over to supplement the stored solar heat. The back-up system takes over entirely should the stored solar heat be exhausted during prolonged cloudiness.

Q. How much does it cost?

A. The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development estimates that a combined solar heating and hot-water system installed in a single-family house can cost from $5,000 to $19,000 depending

We've never met and probably never will, but I think we share a common interest. That interest is in achieving complete and total financial freedom.

Recently my net worth reached the magic million dollar mark, and it only took me 48 months to achieve that.

That might not impress you, but if you had seen me just a few years ago, you might wonder how I did it. I lived in Denver then, in a cramped, tumbled down house at 2545 South High Street. My wife was expecting our second child and we were so broke we had to borrow $150.00 from a relative just to buy food and pay the rent.

By the way, I know I didn't make a million dollars because of my superior intellect — I barely got through Ames High School (Ames, Iowa) with a C average. I did a little better later on but I soon realized that a salaried job was not the way to become financially free. If you'll stop and think, you'll realize that millionaires do not work 10, 20, or 50 times harder or longer than you.

FINANCIAL FREEDOM

Now, how can we help each other? I am willing to share everything I have learned and know that would help and guide you to achieve your own financial freedom and independence. But the only way I would ever give you my secrets, methods and formulas is if I benefit also. Because as you will find when you reach your ultimate financial goals, you really don't want to stop there but you are motivated to go and make more. It seems that most people who are charging for financial advice have studied how to "do it" but have never actually "done it" themselves. You will find as you read my formulas, that since I have actually achieved total financial freedom myself, that you will receive from me more than just the motivation to achieve your own financial independence, but a workable step-by-step plan to actually do it.

STEP-BY-STEP

Contained in the work entitled How To Wake Up The Financial Genius Inside You are the various formulas which will show you exactly how you can do each of the following:

- buy income properties for as little as $100 down.
- begin without any cash.
- put $10,000 cash and more in your pocket each time you buy (without selling property.)
- compounds your assets at 100% yearly.
- legally avoid paying federal or state income taxes.
- buy bargains at one-half the market value.

MORE LEISURE

If you apply these formulas and methods you will find in a very short time, you will be able to spend three weeks out of every month doing any-

How to Achieve Total Financial Freedom

by Mark O. Haroldsen

PL-2 © Mark O. Haroldsen, Inc., 1978

What are your Financial Possibilities in 1978? Mark O. Haroldsen became a millionaire in four years because he found a way to harness inflation to his benefit. Now it's your turn! "I've found" says Haroldsen, "that most people just need a specific road map to follow... they can do what I've done."

thing you care to do, and I think, at that time, you will find as I have, that spending several weeks on the beaches of Hawaii, or on the ski slopes of Colorado, or just sightseeing in Europe, or any other place in the world, you begin to understand what real freedom is all about.

Most people think that it would be impossible to do some of the things listed above. For example, to buy a property, and at the same time put $10,000 (or more) cash in your pocket without selling the property, or to buy a property with little or no cash down. Believe me, it is possible and fairly simple. This is exactly how most wealthy people actually do make 10, 20, or 50 times more money than you do.

ASSET FORMULA

These formulas of mine do not have to be used with income properties only. They actually can be applied to virtually any asset.

While I was struggling on making my first million, I often thought how nice it would be to have the personal advice and counsel from someone like Howard Hughes or J. Paul Getty.

What would I have been willing to pay for this service? I can tell you one more thing for sure, it would have been a lot more than the $10.00 that I'm going to ask you to invest in your financial future.

FOR YOUR FUTURE

What will this $10.00 actually do for you? It will give you a complete step-by-step plan that you can follow to become totally and completely financially independent.

Please try to understand my dilemma. I'm not a New York advertising agency will all their professional skill and manpower to write a powerful and persuasive ad to convince you that I can make you financially independent. I am just somebody who has actually 'done it', and can really show you how to 'do it'.

What would you do, if you were in my shoes. You have in excess of $1,000,000 net worth, you have a desire to share your formula with others, because you not only have a simple, honest and workable method whereby others too can enjoy the riches of this land, but you also want to benefit and make money from sharing this information, so you can continue to grow financially.

I think you might do what I'm doing — that is to write a simple open letter to the type of people who share similar goals as mine asking them to try the formulas for themselves, to see if they work as well as the claims described. Because, I know, as you would know if you were in my shoes, that if I can just convince you to test my formulas and methods, you will see for yourself that they will work as easily for you as they did for me.

TEST IT YOURSELF

It's really quite frustrating to have something so valuable as I know I have, but lack the skill to convince people to try it for themselves. I hope by my simple direct approach I can convince you to try my formulas.

INDECISION — THE COSTLY DECISION

It seems the majority of the people in our rich country lose, not because they lack intelligence, or even willpower, but because of procrastination, or lack of action — please don't be like the masses. Make a decision while you have this paper in your hands. Make a decision now to either act now and send for my material or immediately round file this paper. If your decision is to subscribe, do it now, not later. Otherwise you may lose, just be default.

"FINANCIAL FREEDOM"

To order, simply take any size paper, write the words "Financial Freedom," your name and address, and send it along with a check for $10.00 to Mark O. Haroldsen, Inc., Dept. G-218, Tudor Mansion Bldg., 4751 Holladay Blvd., Salt Lake City, Utah 84117.

If you send for my materials now, I will also send you documents that will show you precisely how you can borrow from $20,000 to $200,000 at 2% above the prime rate using just your signature as collateral.

IT'S GUARANTEED

If you are still somewhat skeptical, and believe me, when I started out I certainly was, because of the many people in the world trying to deceive others, I would encourage you to post-date your check by 30 days, and I promise and guarantee that it will not be deposited for at least those 30 days, and if for any reason you do not think that what I have sent you lives up, in every aspect to what I told you in this letter, send the material back, and I will quickly, without question, refund your money and send back your own uncashed check or money order.

By the dawn's early light. If you live in a snowbelt city at this time of year, you don't need a weatherman to tell you the outside temperature. As soon as your alarm clock rouses you, you can hear the groaning of starters trying to rouse automobile engines that have been sitting out in the weather all night. The worse the groaning, the worse the morning—unless your neighbors have begun to use Mobil 1, our synthesized motor oil.

Duck soup at 30 below. Our tests show that fast sub-zero starts are duck soup for Mobil 1. And it's nice to get the same word from our customers, in letters from the cities whose weather you hear about on the late news. Like Duluth, Minnesota, where Rev. Verne Selseth parks his car outside every day, even when the thermometer reads 20 and 30 below zero. He says he's been telling his friends that his car starts every time with Mobil 1. Then there's the case of Mrs. Gary L. Young, who writes to us from Burnsville, Minnesota. She said that when she and her husband came back from Hawaii last winter, they were greeted by 30-below weather at Minneapolis airport. Their car had been parked out in the cold for two weeks. Started right up, Mrs. Young says—unlike others parked in the cold for only two days. "We are Mobil 1 fans forever," she concluded, making us fans of Mrs. Young.

First it was golf, then tennis, then backgammon, now all they talk about is Mobil 1.

In the sunbelt, too. You don't need to head for the snowbelt to enjoy the advantages of Mobil 1. We get letters from Florida, too—like the one from Benjamin F. Bickel in Madeira Beach, who says his logbook shows a "tremendous improvement" in gasoline mileage since he switched to Mobil 1. Somewhere in between, weatherwise, is Albert E. Friedman who writes from Roslyn, New York. Besides easier starting, he said, he's had a substantial improvement in fuel economy. He closes with: "It's great to find something that solves your problem and pays you in the bargain. Thank you!"

Meanwhile, back at the lab... we subjected the new lubricant to one of the most grueling performance tests yet. Mobil 1 was used for 5,000 miles in state highway patrol cars (which operate around the clock, as they're passed from trooper to trooper). Then the oil was drained and used for 5,000 miles in a fleet of taxis (under virtually the same 24-hour conditions). Finally, the used oil from the cabs was run for 5,000 more miles in a passenger car. The result? Laboratory analysis of Mobil 1 after its 15,000-mile ordeal showed it still performed as well as brand-new premium motor oil.

PEOPLE QUIZ/By John E. Gibson

Are the aches of some people caused by a "need to suffer"?
Do blonds have higher pain thresholds than brunets?

HOW PAIN AFFECTS YOUR PERSONALITY

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Some people accept pain without making an undue fuss, and others exaggerate aches and pains.
2. How much pain you feel from bumps and bruises depends on whether you're a blond or brunet.
3. Many pains are brought on by deep-seated emotional conflicts or a need to assuage a feeling of guilt.
4. If you're plagued by chronic low back pain, you have a lot more company than you may think.
5. Were it not for pain, we all would die.
6. One man's pain is another man's pleasure.

ANSWERS

1. True. University of California School of Medicine studies show that the "style or manner in which a person responds to a painful stimulus is often confused with pain tolerance or pain thresholds. The stoic person usually has a pain sensitivity and tolerance level quite similar to the person who is exaggerating his pain." Findings showed that people who complain the loudest about aches and pains tend to be strongly extroverted types. Introverts, on the other hand, often suffer moderate amounts of pain in silence.
2. True. Studies at the University of Melbourne (Australia), where pain sensitivity tests were made on men and women of various ages and from all walks of life, showed a significant difference in the pain thresholds of blonds and brunets. The latter leads a more painful existence in terms of the amount of "hurt" produced by garden-variety mishaps and assorted types of trauma. A further finding: the blonder a blond the less the sensitivity to pain, and the darker a brunet the more sensitive.
3. True. At the University of Texas Medical School, investigators made a study of the type of patient whose pain is a symptom of a "need to suffer." Such a need was found to be characteristic of many persons afflicted with aches and pains of a psychogenic nature, that is, pain resulting from emotional rather than organic causes. "Careful scrutiny," the investigators report, "reveals that such individuals have repeatedly placed themselves in situations in which they were bound to fail (resulting in painful circumstances). A striking feature is the onset of painful symptoms when things are going well and the remission of symptoms in times of external stress."

4. True. A study conducted by medical specialists at the University of California indicates that patients with complaints of chronic low back pain comprise at least 70 percent of referrals to pain clinics. The specialists present evidence showing that in a large percentage of cases, chronic low back pain is associated with emotional conflicts, negative self-conception and depression. The specialists are careful to note, however, that "low back pain is not usually associated with 'tension' or 'nerves,' and orthopedists and neurosurgeons do not seem prepared yet to view chronic low back pain as a symptom of a psychophysiological disorder." It's further noted that some of these patients play a game with doctors and actually attempt to defeat their doctors' efforts to relieve their suffering. For example, the medical team makes this observation in summarizing its findings: "When saying to our chronic low back patients, 'It looks as though the doctors can't help you,' we often observe tight smiles of satisfaction."

5. True. As Dr. David J. LaFia observes in his treatise, The Psychology and Meaning of Pain, "Pain is not a disease in itself. It is not an injury or malfunction of the body in any way. It is perfectly natural. It is merely a symptom — a sign or natural warning that something is wrong.... In this respect pain is a blessing and a lifesaver." He notes, for example, that without the warning of pain we could run rusty nails through our feet and walk on until we dropped dead of tetanus.

6. True. As Dr. Ronald Melzack, professor of psychology at McGill University (Montreal), observes in his monograph, The Puzzle of Pain, "Pain differs from person to person. What produces intolerable pain in one person may be tolerated without a whimper by another." Indeed, he points out that people with masochistic tendencies seek and enjoy injurious stimulation. It's also noted that psychological evidence indicates that pain is "a perceptual experience whose quality and intensity are influenced by the meaning the individual gives to the pain-producing situation and by his state of mind at the moment." (A person distracted sufficiently by thought or action — a player on the football field or a soldier in battle, for example — may sustain serious injury and feel no pain at the time.)

DON'T GIVE UP— DEPRESSION CAN BE OVERCOME

A disease that comes in many forms, it is always marked by loss of self-esteem, a feeling of worthlessness and a distorted outlook on life.

By Paula Dranov

When the last of their children left home, Charlotte and Jim agreed it was time to do what so many of their friends had done — sell the house and the furniture and move into an apartment.

A meticulous woman, Charlotte at first attributed her loss of appetite and insomnia to the excitement of the move. Confronted by dozens of decisions — new rugs, new draperies, wallpaper — she found the simplest task a challenge she couldn't meet.

She took no pride in the apartment. "I hate it," she responded when friends complimented her on the decor. "It's like a prison." She began losing weight rapidly, and although she continued to fix meals for Jim, she rarely shared them. In the supermarket, she would stare in bewilderment at the shelves of food. Unable to decide what to buy, she would rush from the store in tears. If she slept at all, it was for just a few hours. By 4:00 A.M. she was prowling the apartment. She worried about Jim's health. She worried that he was worrying too much about her. She thought about suicide. She began to talk about it.

Depression. It is the most common mental illness in the world. It seems to come out of nowhere, enveloping its victims in a swirling fog of hopelessness, helplessness and despair.

We all experience some forms of depression — periods of unhappiness ranging from grief to the "blahs." But the full-blown depression Charlotte suffered from is a complex illness. In its mildest form, it can be likened to a common cold. At its most severe, however, it is a serious and sometimes fatal illness.

"There is probably no more painful psychological condition that a human being can experience," says one prominent psychiatrist. And it's beginning to look as though depression is as prevalent as it is painful. About 7 percent of the population — some 18 million persons — are believed to suffer from the disabling malady doctors describe as "clinical depression." A recent National Institute of Mental Health (NIMH) report showed that every year two to four of every 100 Americans require treatment for depression, and that one in eight will be severely depressed at some time during adult life.

Charlotte's loss of appetite, her insomnia, her inability to make decisions, her fears about her husband's health and her own are just a sampling of the symptoms. Although she couldn't eat, other victims may eat everything in sight. Some can't sleep; others can't drag themselves out of bed. Some are so drained of energy that they can't work; others throw themselves into work with unnatural frenzy. Some people lose interest in sex; others go to the opposite extreme. But common to all cases, says Dr. Robert M.A. Hershfeld, director of clinical studies in depression at NIMH, is a loss of self-esteem, a feeling of total worthlessness and "a distorted view of themselves and the world."

Hershfeld confirms that more women than men seem to suffer from depression. But, he adds, depression in men is often camouflaged by other problems such as alcoholism. In men, depression is more likely to be triggered by a professional failure. In women, interpersonal problems, especially marital difficulties, are more often the triggers.

While depression affects people of all ages and economic groups, it has the highest incidence among people under 30. "In general," says Hershfeld, "the less resources you have — that is, the worse off you are economically and the less emotional support you get from friends and family — the more likely you are to have problems, including depression."

Children are by no means immune. NIMH reports that behavior problems in children — hyperactivity, chronic trouble-making and, at the opposite extreme, lethargy and apathy — may stem from depression. "The idea of depression in children is foreign to most people," says one psychiatrist. "Parents don't consider the possibility that their children may be depressed. Beyond that, the child is not likely to complain of the emotions that accompany his condition. The child will talk about not feeling well or about specific things, such as stomachaches, but not about feeling sad all the time."

In addition, depression seems to strike parents of young children more than those of older children. Research regarding the depression mothers experience when their children leave home suggests this may be one of the least-depressed times. Depression also may intrude when we're supposed to be happiest. Depression may be related to the realization that even the things we have wanted most don't necessarily make us happy.

Just why depression occurs at all isn't fully understood. Despite years of research, no clear-cut cause has emerged. Scientists have been delving for the answer into the biochemistry of the brain, into the mysteries of heredity, into the dynamics of the human personality and even into the social pressures that breed cynicism and distrust leading to a sense of helplessness and confusion. "What we do know," says Hershfeld, "is that there are different kinds of depression with different causes and different ways of treatment."

There is, for example, manic-depressive illness, a condition characterized by wild swings of mood from soaring, dizzying highs to numbing, despairing lows. For Charlotte, depression was unsparring, unrelieved unhappiness, month after month of hopelessness, the same kind of all-embracing sadness that once prompted Abraham Lincoln to write, "If what I feel were equally distributed to the whole human family, there would not be one cheerful face on earth."

Since Lincoln's time, of course, much has been learned — if not about what causes depression, about what cures it. "Although a great deal of research remains to be done, many treatments are very effective," Hershfeld explains. There are drugs that have dramatically reduced the amount of suffering induced by depression. For severe cases there is electroconvulsive therapy (shock treatments). And there is psychotherapy.

The traditional way of treating depression has been to explore the emotional roots of the disorder so that the patient can better understand — and then presumably alter — his behavior. A newer approach, behavior modification, sidesteps this exploratory process and focuses on eliminating depression by eliminating the symptoms. Behavior therapists see these symptoms — the insomnia, lack of appetite, etc. — as "learned" habits that can be "unlearned." But whatever the treatment, the goal is the same — to restore self-esteem and self-confidence.

One principle that seems to underlie various therapies revolves around getting the patient to realize that any form of lasting depression involves a distorted outlook. The patient's job, then, is to discover how his view of the world is distorted.

The first step toward recovery is recognizing that help is needed, but it's not a simple matter to determine when "normal" depression becomes clinical. The symptoms, after all, aren't very different for depressions that last a few hours than for those that last months. But time is the surest measure of the seriousness of depression. "When the Monday-morning blahs are still around on Friday, or the weekend slump continues through the week, it's time to suspect something more serious," says Dr. Aaron T. Beck of the University of Pennsylvania. Another doctor says the approach of the clinical condition can be recognized "when the signs of depression persist too long, when social behavior is overly disrupted, when the mood becomes increasingly deeper and more stubborn...."

At this point, the depression is beyond the control of its victim. Looking back on his own experience, a former patient recalls that suddenly "I couldn't control my mind; it seemed to be running loose, and I could no more grab ahold of it and steer it back than I could grab a jellyfish."

Living with a person who feels that out of control can be almost as difficult as living with the depression itself. About the only thing that can be offered is patience and, once treatment is underway, frequent reminders that depression is an illness that can be cured.

In Charlotte's case, it took a combination of drugs and psychotherapy to restore her zest for life, her pride in her home and her sense of well-being. She speaks of her depression today as "when I was sick," but admits to still being puzzled by its sudden onslaught and by the paralyzing grip it had on her.

But she does understand now that what she suffered was what millions have endured through the centuries. Fortunately, we now know it for what it is — a contradictory, crippling but eminently curable illness.

DON'T LET OUTMODED IDEAS KEEP YOU FROM THE JOB YOU WANT

You could be stifling your own chances for success and happiness by adhering to "expert" advice that is no longer valid.

By Norman Lobsenz

"I decided back in high school that I was going to be a lawyer," said the distressed college senior. "I thought I'd always be involved in dramatic court cases. Well, I know better now, and I'm not so sure I made the right choice, but I guess it's too late to change."

Until recently, most people made decisions about their life's work on similar bases. One either sought security, followed in a parent's footsteps or picked an occupation at random — perhaps because it seemed exciting, perhaps just because one has to choose something. The important point, almost everyone used to agree, was to make a choice and stick with it.

Today, however, career-guidance experts suggest a new approach. "Choosing the right line of work should begin with a realistic understanding of who you are, what you enjoy doing, your strong and weak points," one authority says.

For example, a 25-year-old North Carolina man had a good job as a traveling salesman for a furniture-manufacturing firm. He earned a decent salary — but he hated his work. "I'm on the road most of the time, away from my family," he said. "And I enjoy working with my hands a lot more than I do dealing with people." After talking with a vocational adviser, this man quit his job and used his savings to open a shop where he sells hand-crafted furniture he designs and builds.

In another instance a young woman who had her heart set on going to medical school found her test scores weren't good enough to win admission. Disheartened, she was ready to settle for a routine office job. But after a talk with her school adviser she became a medical technologist. "Maybe I'm not a doctor," she said, "but I know my work still helps to save lives."

A second major new concept in career planning is that new job choices can always be made. Traditionally, "jobhoppers" were considered unreliable. Imagine the conversation if Dr. Albert Schweitzer, the renowned medical missionary who founded a hospital in Africa, ever had to be hired for that work:

Interviewer: What do you want to do in Africa?

Dr. Schweitzer: Build and run a jungle hospital.

Int.: You are a medical doctor, of course?

Dr. S.: Not exactly. I'm going to medical school now.

Int.: Well, do you have any previous experience for this sort of work?

Dr. S.: I have been a theologian, organist, historian and philosopher.

Int.: I'm sorry. You not only aren't qualified for the work, you also have an unstable job history.

Changing jobs to gain experience is now considered a sign of intelligent career planning. According to Nathan Kelle, coordinator of New York Life Insurance Co.'s public-service career-guidance project, a key to vocational success is "to explore as many options as necessary to discover your personal goals." Here are some ways to do this:

- Talk to people who work in fields that interest you. Find out what they do and how they feel about it.

- Visit places where work that interests you is performed.

- Learn how you react to a specific job by being a volunteer at it, or working at it part-time.

- Explore opportunities in new fields opened by modern technology.

- If you are a woman, remember that many careers once considered "man's work" are now open to you. If you belong to an ethnic minority, realize you now have a chance at jobs that might not have been open to you a few years ago.

- Invest in psychological or vocational testing to pinpoint your aptitudes, skills and interests.

LOOK WHAT YOU CAN CREATE WITH FOIL

Using ordinary kitchen-variety foil, you can easily make these decorative objets d'art.

Foil-covered owl and cattails.

Delicate poppies captured in copper.

Aluminum foil, the kind used in the kitchen, is one of today's most versatile craft materials. It can be used to camouflage almost any kind of surface — jars, lamp bases, trinket boxes, bottles — and then, using various antiquing techniques, to give a surface the look of old-world pewter, pewter-washed copper, brass or gold.

The foil can be applied to cardboard forms to create pins, pendants, earrings and bracelets as well as formed to make plaques for the wall.

The popular metal sculptures seen in gift departments also can be reproduced. Blowtorch and goggles are not needed.

Once you become familiar with working with aluminum foil, you can go on to working with copper and brass foils, available in hobby and craft shops.

And, believe it or not, aluminum foil can even be used to transform a plain wall into a striking backdrop. Aluminum foil is easier to apply to walls than most wallpapers. It can be embossed and antiqued to give it an elegant appearance, color-matched to your decor and easily removed when necessary.

To learn the techniques of working with foils, creating an owl sculpture and making jewelry, poppy sculpture, face masks, plaques, "wallpaper" and other decorative accessories, send for FAMILY WEEKLY's instruction leaflet.

WHEN YOUR CHILD IS STRICKEN WITH APPENDICITIS

Knowing the most important symptoms and acting quickly could save your child's life.

By Alvin N. Eden, M.D.

Appendicitis is most commonly seen in children between six and 12 years of age, and acute appendicitis continues to be the most common abdominal condition requiring surgery. Although the mortality rate of acute appendicitis has been lowered, the incidence of ruptured appendices followed by peritonitis (infection of the abdominal cavity) remains just as high as ever.

When dealing with an inflamed appendix, the name of the game is early recognition and early treatment. Treatment is surgical removal of the infected appendix. Therefore, parents must be aware of the three most important symptoms of appendicitis so that they know when to call for medical help. These are: 1) abdominal pain; 2) vomiting; 3) low-grade fever.

Abdominal pain: The child usually starts with pain in the epigastric area (around the umbilicus). As the disease process continues, the pain shifts to the right, lower quadrant of the abdomen. (See diagram.) The child with acute appendicitis usually lies with his knees drawn up and is very reluctant to move his legs. The pain is persistent, and it increases steadily and progressively.

Vomiting: In almost all cases of acute appendicitis the child vomits one or two times.

If your child is suffering from this triad of symptoms, it is most important that your physician be notified immediately. As far as I am concerned, such a child has acute appendicitis until proven otherwise.

After the appendix has perforated, the child looks very ill. He will develop a grunting type of breathing with flaring of his nostrils along with an ashen color and a very anxious expression. The abdomen will become hard as a board and the temperature will rapidly go up to between 103°F. and 105°F. Obviously, this is a medical emergency, and the child must be taken to the hospital immediately.

The prognosis for acute appendicitis is excellent, especially if the surgery is performed before the appendix has perforated. After rupture, the mortality rate is still below 1 percent, but the child will often have a long and stormy hospital course following surgery. Since this diagnosis is very difficult to make, especially in the younger child, a certain number of normal appendices are removed, even by the hands of the most skilled pediatricians and surgeons.

There are some cases in which the diagnosis remains in doubt, and in such situations exploratory surgery is sometimes necessary. When the diagnosis is in question, your doctor may decide to hospitalize your child for a 24- to 48-hour period of observation. The blood count and urinalysis are both very helpful in helping to arrive at the proper diagnosis. A high white blood count makes the diagnosis of appendicitis more likely. If the child does not have acute appendicitis, his symptoms will gradually subside, after which he will be sent home.

Why lie to yourself?

We moderns have our faults. True. Still, we would like to believe that honesty is one thing we have going for us. We bristle whenever anyone calls us a "phony" or a liar. Don't you agree?

All well and good. You don't lie to people. But do you lie to yourself? At least sometimes? Let's say you call yourself a Christian. Are you really a person who lives in union with Christ on His level of worship and moral living? Or are you simply a name in a church register with a pattern of life no different from that of unbelievers?

These are uncomfortable questions. So are questions about cancer. Yet, they need to be answered. Why lie to yourself? We have asked ourselves these questions, and we're glad that we have. You will be too. Let us help you. Write for our pamphlet: Christian Life and the Modern World. It's free. No one will call on you.

OLDE WORLD CUCKOO CLOCK

WITH BAROMETER
& THERMOMETER

Check these fabulous features:

- ✓ Cuckoo sounds each quarter-hour
- ✓ "Fair" and "Rainy" weather folks come out to tell tomorrow's weather
- ✓ Expertly hand-crafted clockworks and cabinet

- Thermometer has readings in both Fahrenheit and Celsius
- When maiden comes out of the mountain chalet, you'll know there's Fair weather ahead
- When man in raincoat and umbrella appears, there's rain-a-comin'

You've seen handsome clocks like this in European museums and expensive private collections. But now you can own this Authentic Black Forest Cuckoo Clock for such a tiny price. Made in Germany's Black Forest for centuries by master clock builders passing on the secrets to generation-after-generation — secrets that assure each clock will have superb time-keeping and flawless woodworking detail.

Its precision works tell time with the German accuracy you'd expect... accuracy that's made even more exact with the adjustable swinging pendulum that provides a soft, relaxing tick. And, just like the Black Forest Clocks of centuries ago, there are two little folks inside the pretty chalet. When the weather's Fair, the cute maiden comes out to tell you a lovely day is ahead. But when her beau comes out with an umbrella and wearing a raincoat, you know there's rain or snow in the forecast. Between their doors is a handy thermometer that's calibrated for readings in both the Fahrenheit and Celsius scales.

The final nostalgic touch is the celebrated little cuckoo that rocks on his perch and chirps a delightful "cuckoo" on each quarter-hour. (The workmanship is so detailed, the cuckoo's beak even moves!)

You'll be proud to hang this attractive clock in any room in your home. The 10" high chalet is natural wood, brightly painted in six rich colors. Painstaking decorative accents include a water pump and trough, adorable little birds, 3-dimensional flowers, and the handsome pine-cone counterweight. Send for your Olde World Black Forest Cuckoo Clock today... at this marvelous price, why not get two, they make great gifts. If not delighted, return within 14 days and your money will be refunded in full (except postage & handling).

Soap operas on our TV
Have a way of catching me.
The characters I know, each one,
As well as, well, my wife or son.
The plot intrigues, and its suspense
Holds my attention wholly. Hence
It fills my mind, a heavy load,
Until the next day's episode.
I find, though I have but one wife,
I lead a sort of double life.

PEOPLE AND YOU

Do Nice Guys Finish Last?

Psychology professor Julian B. Rotter says you can do yourself and your children a favor if you forget the "nice guys finish last" idea. Instead, encourage your family to trust rather than to distrust others. By "trusting," Dr. Rotter does not mean being gullible or having a goody-goody belief in the goodness of everyone and everything. He means maintaining an attitude of expecting that others can often be relied on when they give you their word or tell you something is true.

Based on research spanning 14 years, Dr. Rotter and other researchers have discovered that the trusting "nice guy" (or girl) is happier, freer of emotional conflicts and better adjusted than the nontrusters. The trusters are also a lot more popular than cynical nontrusters, both with their own sex and with the opposite sex. Even cynics would rather have a truster than another cynic as a close friend.

Fostering an intelligent trusting attitude in your children will not make them gullible, says Rotter. Experiments clearly indicate that trusting people are "not any more likely to be taken in" than low trusters. Trusters can spot a phony as well as the cynic can. Moreover, in their own lives high trusters tend to act on their own beliefs — they are usually more honest, more reliable, and, as a result, more comfortable with themselves than are the Doubting Thomases. Dr. Rotter also points out that cynicism frequently can lead to a problem worse than gullibility: "The cynics often lose out by distrusting honest people and thereby forfeit the benefits that trusting others might bring them."

the jeweler's secret that will keep all your rings fitting right forever!

- No resizing!
- Works instantly!
- Protect your expensive fine jewelry!
- No slipping—no sliding!

Every woman who loves beautiful jewelry has experienced the frustration of rings that don't fit properly because they're too loose. They slide around and look awkward on your hand when you wear them. They can even slip off unnoticed while you wear them. And certainly no one wants to lose a valuable and favorite ring.

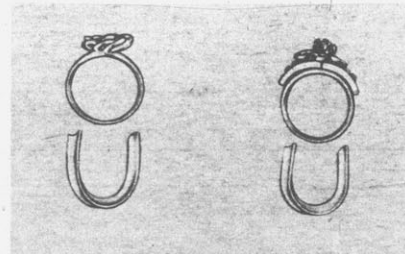

Before our newly developed ring size adjusters, there really wasn't a satisfactory solution to this annoying problem. You could leave the ring in your jewelry chest. Or you could go to a professional jeweler and pay an expensive fee to have the ring resized. Even if you did this, a change in weight or weather (finger joints swell more in hot weather than in cold or moderate weather) could always know your rings will fit perfectly—and comfortably!

You're also getting a no-nonsense guarantee. When your ring size adjusters arrive, use them on all your problem rings... and use them for other members of your family. If you don't agree they're a tremendous value, just return them any time within 90 days and we'll rush you a full and unquestioned refund.

That's why our ring size adjusters are so welcome—and so practical! You get a set of five, so they'll fit any size ring—man's or woman's. They are especially handy for making a man's ring fit a woman's finger without discomfort or sliding. And they're clear plastic, so they're undetectable when you're wearing them.

You simply slip your ring on, then slip in the ring size adjuster. Result? A perfect fit—instantly! No fuss! No bother! That's all there is to it!

A Family Approach To Weight Control

If you want to know why someone is overweight, look at his or her family say 2 Penn State researchers. Dr. Anthony D'Augelli and Dr. Helen Wright, who conduct a program to teach parents how to encourage healthy eating habits in their children, say, "We would like people to think not in terms of one individual with a problem but of the family as a whole. Poor eating habits tend to run in the family."

D'Augelli and Wright have a good idea of what goes on at their students' dinner tables because they send a tape recorder home with the parents to tape conversations during mealtime.

What are some of the poor eating habits that surface on the tapes? "Many parents nag children because they're very concerned about proper nutrition," says

Wright. "We try to get parents to relax and not to nag about a particular fruit or vegetable." Wright points out that nagging and pressuring children to "clean their plates" often encourage overeating. Eating on the run is another culprit.

Wright and D'Augelli say you can make some changes in your family by evaluating the 3 areas their course covers: food selection, eating habits and family activity patterns. If you see an area that needs improvement, try to make some change — but don't go overboard.

"People are often ready to make dramatic changes, and then get discouraged," says Wright. "We emphasize moderate change because even a seemingly small change can have an impact on the child's life over time."

Babyproofing Your Home

After picking the baby's name, there's something else you should do if you're a prospective parent — babyproof the house. What's babyproofing? According to Dr. Solomon H. Katz, who developed the concept, "Babyproofing is a way of thinking about and removing certain environmental problems beforehand, thereby allowing the parents to spend more time enjoying the child."

Katz, dir. of the W. M. Krogman Center for Research in Child Growth and Development at Philadelphia's Children's Hospital, says that babyproofing can be especially important to first-time parents who tend to learn about child-rearing through trial and error.

The nursery is a good place to start babyproofing says Katz. The crib should not be close to a radiator or in direct line with a hot or cold-air duct because excessive heat or air can dry out the baby's mouth and throat and make him more susceptible to upper respiratory illness.

Lighting, moisture and even plants are also important considerations says Katz, who notes that eating poisonous plants recently surpassed aspirin as a leading cause of accidental poisoning of small children. Katz advises making sure that the plants in your home are safe and out of reach of the infant, who may eat plant parts.

For more babyproofing suggestions, write for a free copy of Katz's booklet, The Gentle Art of Babyproofing (Box 4263, Chester, Pa. 19016).

Quick Takes

Men get paid more than women for doing the same type of work even though new research says that the women tend to work harder. A study by the Univ. of Michigan's Inst. for Social Research reports that the average workingman earns $7 per hour compared with $4.34 for the workingwoman. After studying a representative national sample of workers, the Inst. says men spend 52 minutes of every working day on lunch hours, on coffee breaks and socializing; women fritter away only 35 minutes per day on these activities.

Are you planning a wine and cheese party? If so, here's a helpful hint from a leading cheese producer. Never use flowers for a centerpiece at a cheese party — they absorb and give off cheese flavors! An appetizing decorating alternative might be a bowl of fresh fruit.

American workers' salaries are falling behind those of their foreign counterparts. A new survey by the Conference Board, a N.Y.-based economic and management research organization, says that U.S. salaries have fallen from 1st to 6th place among industrial nations. The Danes took the salary lead; beginning engineers in Denmark earn 37% more than similarly employed Americans. U.S. salaries also trail those of workers in W. Germany, Switzerland, Norway and Belgium.

IMPORTANT

HERE'S HOW YOU CAN TELL YOUR GEMFIRE COUNTERFEIT DIAMONDS ARE NOT CHEAP COSTUME JEWELRY.

- A. Count the facets. Gemfire stones all have 58 facets — just like expensive diamonds prepared by diamond cutters.
- B. Examine your stone in a dimly lighted room. It should sparkle like in daylight. Gemfire stones sparkle even in the moonlight.
- C. Study your ring under a powerful magnifying glass to look for flaws. Gemfire stones have clarity — are flawlessly perfect. No specks! No blemishes! No cracks!
- D. Gemfire stones are so hard you can actually scratch your initial in glass with them! Prove it to yourself.

Words And Pictures

Words and pictures don't begin to show the beauty, brilliance, and fire of these magnificent rings. That's why we want you to wear them and judge them on their own merits — not on what we tell you. See if your friends and family can tell them from an expensive "natural" diamond worth 100 times as much. In all probability you can fool them if you want to. Not many people can tell these brilliant counterfeits from the expensive real ones. Yet now you can own these beautiful rings at amazingly low prices.

Low Price Doesn't

Mean Low Quality. These counterfeit diamonds are not cheap fakes. In fact, they are carefully cut and polished by skilled craftsmen in the same manner as natural diamonds. They have 58 facets — just like natural diamonds. They are hand set in heavy 18Kt-HGE (heavy gold electroplate), or solid sterling silver by master jewelry craftsmen. They shine like a $1,000 diamond — but cost you less than $25.00.

GLOSSARY OF TERMS

CARAT (CT)—a measure of weight for a diamond—however, Gemfires and Diamonites are given approximate carat values based on size (not weight). A 1-carat Gemfire or Diamonite is approximately the same size as a 1-carat diamond.

HEAVY GOLD ELECTROPLATE (HGE)—this mounting uses karat gold (either white or yellow) that is electrically bonded to the mounting after it is formed and the gold, by government standard, is 14 times thicker than the designated "gold electroplate."

STERLING SILVER (SS)—the mounting is 92.5% pure silver, 7.5% other metals for strength, and to eliminate tarnishing is lightly plated with precious rhodium.

How to Find Your Ring Size

1. Cut a strip of paper 3 inches long and 1/4 inch wide.

2. Wrap the strip around the finger that is to wear the ring. Then place a dot, on the strip where it meets the end.

3. Place the dot on the strip of paper at "A" on the ring guide. The number at the end of the strip is your ring size.

An Exciting Gift For Someone Special

These exquisite rings make a much appreciated gift for a special someone in your life. They will last a lifetime. Give for birthdays, anniversaries or just as a wonderful surprise. And even if you choose to tell your loved one will be amazed and proud that you were clever enough to find such an expensive-looking ring at these remarkably low prices. The difference between it and a natural diamond could make a down payment on a new car, or home, or even a wonderful vacation for just you two!

Even Millionaires

Wear Counterfeit Diamonds. Today many wealthy people, TV and movie stars feel unsafe making public appearances wearing expensive jewelry. Oftentimes they keep their diamonds in a safe deposit box and wear counterfeits. Now you too can wear these master-crafted counterfeit diamonds and impress your friends!

PUFF PUFF

THIS IS HARD ON US LUNGS

IF I START COMPLAINING, YOU'RE ALL IN TROUBLE

SHUT UP, HEART!

WHY DO WE FEET HAVE TO DO ALL THE WORK?

HOW ABOUT TOES? YOU THINK IT'S EASY BEING A TOE?

YOU GUYS ARE ALWAYS COMPLAINING... WE EARS CAN HEAR YOU WAY UP HERE!

ALL I KNOW IS, RUNNING IS HARD ON THE BACK... BACKS SHOULD BE HOME IN BED...

HOW ABOUT NOSES? I HATE JOKES ABOUT RUNNING NOSES!

LIPS ARE MADE FOR KISSING, NOT RUNNING... WE NEED MORE KISSING...

I'M HUNGRY!

HA! I KNEW THE STOMACH WOULD START COMPLAINING PRETTY SOON! WE ARMS NEVER COMPLAIN

THAT'S A LAUGH! IF IT ISN'T BURSTITIS, IT'S TENNIS ELBOW! WE STILL SAY IT'S WE FEET WHO DO ALL THE WORK...

YOU THINK IT'S EASY BEING A FINGER?

HOW CAN THE LONG-DISTANCE RUNNER EVER GET LONELY?

Our Story: THE AFTERMATH OF WAR: PAIN, WOUNDS AND SCENES OF BRUTALITY. WHAT AT FIRST SEEMED HEROIC WAS BUT EXPERT BUTCHERY.

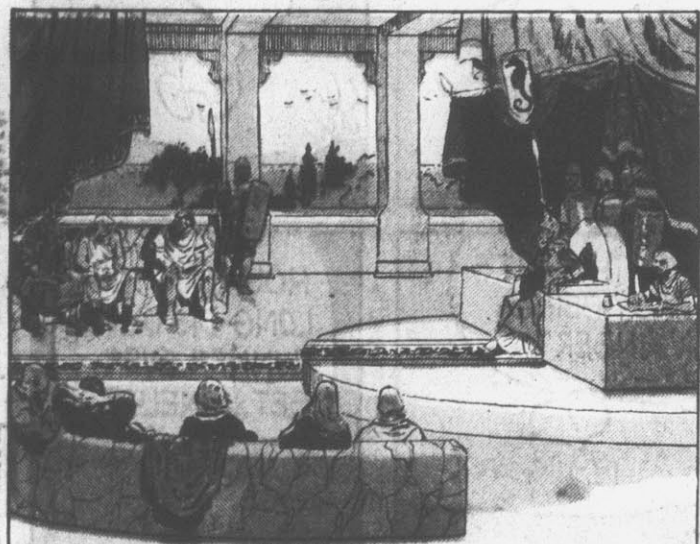

"LET US SAIL FOR CAMELOT. I LONG TO SEE ARN AGAIN AND IT IS TIME YOU TAUGHT HIM FURTHER IN THE USE OF ARMS."

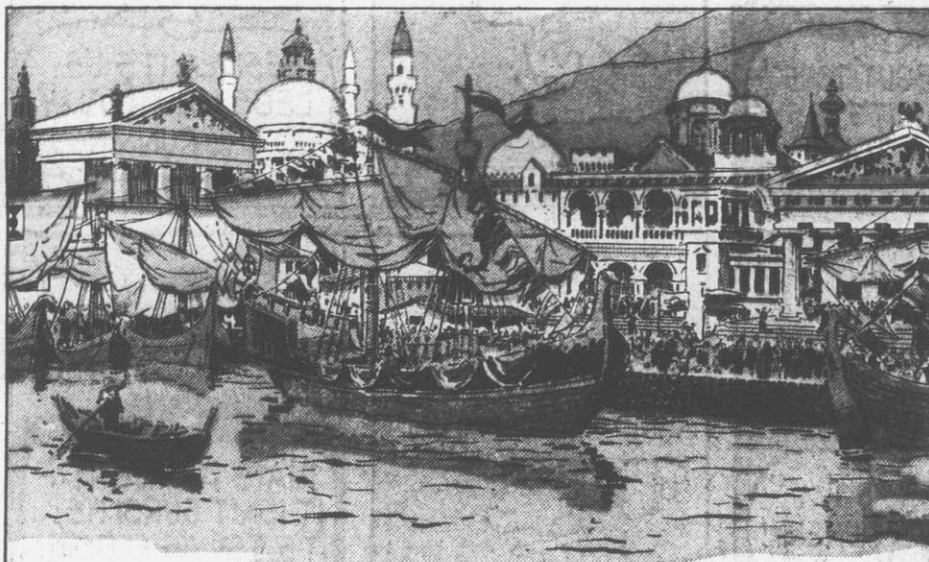

THEN ALETA ASKS VALETA IF SHE CARES TO VISIT CAMELOT. VISIONS OF GALLANT WARRIORS AND ROMANTIC KNIGHTS DANCE IN HER IMAGINATION.

KAREN IS NOT ENTHUSIASTIC ABOUT LEAVING. SHE HAS JUST FINISHED TRAINING YOUNG RANSYD, SON OF AN AMBASSADOR, AND IS ANXIOUS TO SEE IF HE IS NOW A PASSABLE SWEETHEART.

NOW QUEEN ALETA PUTS HER LITTLE KINGDOM IN ORDER. SHE ARRANGES THAT MESSENGERS BE SENT TO BRITAIN EVERY SIX MONTHS TO KEEP HER INFORMED OF STATE MATTERS.
