City Annexation Proposal Being Seriously Studied

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
The city is preparing an annexation plan, including land north of the present corporate limits involving the industrial area, for consideration by the City Council.

City Manager Jim Caldwell said in an interview Tuesday that the city staff was instructed by the Council, some six to eight months ago, "to develop an annexation proposal, and the staff has been working on it."

Caldwell emphasized that "various alternatives as to the areas to be included in the annexation are being looked at."

In discussing the background behind the annexation study, the city manager explained that inflation has placed the city in a tight budget situation. He explained that the city is in need of some $600,000 in operating money and urgent capital improvement funds, particularly for street improvements.

The city, according to Caldwell, has been depending on federal money, particularly Community Development Program funds, to meet capital improvement needs as well as provide for some operating requirements.

This year, the CD entitlement for Greenville has been reduced from $1.9 million to $1.25 million, he said, and restrictions will not allow the city to utilize the funds in all of the same areas this year.

In addition, revenue sharing funds have also been cut back and the accumulative loss of funds has meant no revenue for a number of important capital improvement projects, Caldwell pointed out. Several, he said, had to be postponed.

In order to meet the $600,000 need, a 20 cent tax increase for the city would have to be adopted or the Utility Commission's turnover to the city would have to be doubled, reflecting substantial rate increases. Neither possibility would be feasible as a revenue source, Caldwell said.

The city is looking at the annexation of the area north of the present boundary as a source of revenue, he explained, with the annexed area providing roughly $750,000 in tax revenues. The assessments would be effective fiscal 1978-79.

The proposed annexation would have only a minimal effect on the city's population, he added.

While acknowledging that the northern industrial area is included in the plan, Caldwell declined to specify particular property that would be brought into the city under the involuntary annexation procedures.

The city official did mention that the majority of the property that is being considered for annexation has water and sewer services available.

"The citizens and taxpayers within the city have made utility services available to the industrial area, which was a requirement in the first place," he said.

Greenville Utilities is involved in the annexation study, he said, "in that it has been asked to come up with cost figures involved in extending water and sewer services" from city facilities to tie in the annexed areas.

"The staff has been instructed to thoroughly examine all aspects of the annexation to make absolutely certain that all services can be extended immediately upon annexation," Caldwell related.

He said that in order to protect future growth, the city is looking into the feasibility of annexing surrounding areas which have already been developed for urban purposes.

The city manager noted that the Council had received "petition after petition" to annex developed property and it was felt that long range planning was needed.

Caldwell said he felt it was "inappropriate" to go into the full details of the plan "until it is complete and the City Council has had the opportunity to review it."

According to the spokesman, the annexation plan will not be considered by the Council at Thursday's regular meeting but will be placed on the agenda for next month's session.

Emphasizing that the report is still being prepared, he said that the "Council will not take any action until the March meeting." Council members have discussed the annexation proposals at various workshop sessions, he added.

In considering the plan at the March meeting, the annexation procedure calls for the Council to adopt a resolution of intent to consider the annexation and then schedule a public hearing on the annexation for the April meeting.

The report and plan for extension of municipal services will be placed with the city clerk for public inspection no later than 14 days prior to the public hearing.

School Bd. Negotiates Land Trade

By DEBBIE JACKSON

The Pitt County Board of Education yesterday approved the exchange of approximately one acre of land which is south of the 15-acre garage site off U.S. 264 for approximately one-half acre of land, east of the garage, with Ernest W. Hahn, Inc., developers of the Greenville Shopping Center.

In its January meeting, the Board appointed a committee consisting of Beverly Conleton, Bill McLawhorn, and Francis Tyson to study the proposed exchange.

Yesterday, the Board heard a report from Attorney Bill Watson, representing Ernest W. Hahn, Inc., who in conjunction with the Board committee negotiated the following stipulations to be included in the property exchange.

The gas line, south of the garage, must not be moved any closer to the new property line than 60 feet.

A 40-foot paved road with a curb and gutter turn should be constructed to the existing road located to the east of the garage providing entrance to the building. This road would intersect at a 90-degree angle with the proposed dedicated road east of the area.

The Board has the privilege of a 50-foot driveway entrance near the center of the new south property line after the 60-foot wide parcel of land to be exchanged is improved.

The ditch which prior to the exchange constituted the eastern boundary of the garage property is to be tiled by the developers.

An amount of $2,000 is to be paid to the Board based on an approximate half-acre difference in the land exchange.

The Board of Education retains timber rights to the 1.2 acres of land to be exchanged.

In other business, the Board heard a report from John McKnight regarding statewide achievement testing and high school competency testing.

According to McKnight, the North Carolina Legislature this past summer approved requiring all students in grades one, two, three, six, and nine to take an annual achievement test. All 11 graders must pass a competency test in order to graduate. Both of these tests - annual and competency - are standardized tests.

It is the competency test that McKnight concentrated on. A sample competency test was given in early November to area tenth-graders to determine how Pitt County students will do on the statewide test. The test in November was given to 232 students throughout the county with approximately 44 percent of them failing.

McKnight noted that the percentage should not be as high when the actual test is taken by 11-graders. "We in Pitt County did not want to be caught unaware," said McKnight, adding that this was the reason for the pre-testing.

Northeast Is Digging Out

By DAVID WYSOCKI
Associated Press Writer

Mountainous snowfalls, hurricane-force winds, floods, a blackout in Boston, looters in the streets. New Englanders today dig out from one of their worst blizzards in history and wait for help from federal troops.

Crews worked furiously to clear airport runways of drifted snow to allow Army troops and snow-moving machinery to arrive. Officials predicted that some troops would reach stricken areas today.

President Carter's declaration of Connecticut, Rhode Island and Massachusetts as federal disaster areas Tuesday also authorized mobilization of soldiers at Fort Meade, Md.; Fort Bragg, N.C.; Fort Dix, N.J.; Fort Hood, Texas; and Fort Benning, Ga.

Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut counted at least 27 deaths in the storm, including a man who drowned when flood waters burst into his basement and a 6-year-old girl who drowned when a fire department rescue boat capsized.

Five men were feared lost on board a pilot boat sent to aid a grounded oil tanker off Salem, Mass.

The dollar toll has not been calculated, but officials say it will total tens of millions of dollars.

In Massachusetts, Gov. Michael Dukakis' ban on nonemergency travel was continued indefinitely. People were told to stay home except for emergencies, and anyone walking or driving on a state highway faced arrest for trespass.

A similar ban was expected to be lifted in Connecticut today.

Parts of Boston remained without electricity from a major power outage which began at 3 a.m. Tuesday. The problems - created when roof debris slammed into a Boston Edison Co. switching station and frozen ocean spray shorted out other transformers - were located in underground terminals, and repair crews were hampered by huge snow drifts, officials said.

The entire state of New Hampshire and the two southern-most counties in Maine were declared state disaster areas by Govs. Meldrim Thomson and James Longley.

High tides and wind-driven waves flooded coastal communities from New York to Maine. Houses were washed out to sea from Fire Island, N.Y., and Scituate, Mass.

Thousands were forced to flee their homes. In the Boston suburb of Revere, people were evacuated in the scoops of front-end loaders.

After the residents left, the looters moved in, prompting extra police and National Guard patrols in Boston, New Hampshire, Maine and Rhode Island.

About 40 persons were arrested for looting in Boston and Providence, R.I., police said.

Police in Rye, N.H., said looters were making their rounds on snowmobiles. National Guardsmen there were given police powers and patrolled with officers through the night.

The storm, with winds clocked at 100 mph in coastal areas, dumped more than two feet of snow in many New England areas, 40 inches on northern Rhode Island and almost 30 inches on the Boston area, the heaviest fall there since records were first kept in 1870.

The two-day storm destroyed most of the 150-foot-high amusement pier at Old Orchard Beach, Maine, and sunk a docked ship which served as a dining room for a luxury restaurant in Boston.

Nicaragua Fears Ranks Of Marxists Swelling

By TOM FENTON
Associated Press Writer

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) - Conservative political leaders opposed to President Anastasio Somoza claim that his refusal to resign is driving his opponents into the ranks of the Marxist Sandinista guerrillas.

"Many of my countrymen now believe the only way out of this crisis is the barrel of a gun," said Eduardo Chamorro Coronel, political secretary for the Conservative Party, the only legal opposition to Somoza's National Liberal Party.

"The longer Somoza stays in office, the stronger the Sandinista National Liberation Front gets. If we don't get a solution soon, we may have a civil war when Somoza does leave office. Liberals and Conservatives fighting together against the Sandinistas."

The Sandinistas have been trying to overthrow the Somoza dynasty for a decade.

The nationwide strike that began Jan. 23 after the assassination of anti-Somoza publisher Pedro Joaquin Chamorro ended Monday. The strike by both businessmen and workers began as a demand to know who was behind the assassination. But it turned into a demand for Somoza's resignation that included a boycott by 63 percent of the nation's voters of municipal elections Sunday.

"Private enterprise and workers united in saying 'no more Somoza,'" said Chamorro in an interview. "He has no political base, but we could strike for years without result."

"Continuing the strike wouldn't accomplish anything," said Fernando Zelaya Rojas, a Conservative member of Congress. "Somoza would just treat it as a military problem. We want it to become a political problem."

The executive director of the Nicaraguan Chamber of Commerce, Orlando Ruiz Roman, said he thought businessmen no longer fear the Sandinistas or care if they are Communists.

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day.

HOTLINE FEEDBACK

"WHO ARE TB PATIENTS"

A line which should have read "Who are tuberculosis patients?" was somehow left off the end of the Hotline item in Monday's paper about flu shots. The closing sentence of the item should have read, "Funds are not available for this service, she said, except for clients of the Health Department who are tuberculosis patients."

FUR FEEDBACK

Hotline yesterday reported the name of a business in Rocky Mount that can remake a fur coat. We did not, at the time, know about Greenville Custom Tailors, a new business located at 203 E. Third Street (in the Turnage Building) here. Norman A. Small, the owner, says he can make or remake any item of clothing. The phone number is 752-1959.

RAWLEIGH FEEDBACK

Hotline has learned of another Rawleigh Products dealer in this area since publishing the item about a Greenville Rawleigh dealer Friday. He is Steve Tyson of 305-B W. Pine Street, Farmville. His phone number is 753-2160.

Farmville Bd. Awards Improvement Project Bids

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

FARMVILLE - Farmville commissioners last night awarded bids for the Downtown Improvement Project here.

They say they hope work will begin within the month. High bidders were L. A. Reynolds Co., $291,602.25 (Streets); L. A. Reynolds Co., $177,519 (sidewalks); Hendrix-Barnhill Company, Greenville, $82,503 (water mains); and King Electric Co., Fayetteville, $191,986.01 (electric).

The Board agreed to blackout and provide a sodium vapor light for an area in an alley behind Charles Joyner's Clothiers and adjacent stores before the tearing up of Main Street begins. W. E. Joyner asked for the measure because he said his son's store would be without an entrance if it were not taken during the renovation time.

The Board went on record as approving the Farmville Housing Authority's bid to ask for 35 more units of public housing from federal sources for Farmville. Linwood Mercer presented this need.

The likelihood of Farmville's needing to begin to use the country, rather than its own landfill, after July 1 was discussed. The situation has changed since the Farmville landfill was begun several years ago and now it appears it will be much more economical to use the county dumping area, even with the hauling costs involved. There is a chance, too, that the county will pick up this cost, so as to make services to Farmville citizens equitable with those offered rural citizens of Pitt County.

Town Administrator Pat Thomas showed slides of unsightly trash at numerous sites throughout Farmville and then showed neat contained trash in dumpsters elsewhere. The Board agreed to a month-long pilot program of having 12 dumpsters in Farmville and seeing what the improvement might be. The pilot study will cost

Conductors of a municipal space needs study will be here Feb. 23 to share their findings and get more input, Thomas said.

The Board agreed to buy a pump for the Collins and Aikman sewer line and to ask that their supplier have another on hand for when it's needed.

It was noted that double sewer rates for nonindustrial users living outside the city limits will remain in effect. An ordinance last month raised rates for other users of the sewer system and failed to include the out-of-town resident users.

It was decided that electric rates for persons having businesses in their homes would be 20 percent over the energy charge.

Some 12 owners of business places downtown have agreed to have renderings made of the facades (fronts) of their stores to have them agree with their historical origins, it was noted.

Files For Pitt Education Board

Horace G. Lawrence of Belvoir is a candidate for the Pitt County Board of Education.

He is opposing William Earl House of Bethel, the incumbent, for the representation of the Belvoir-Bethel area.

Lawrence is a rehabilitation counselor with the N. C. Division of Vocational Rehabilitation and a former public school teacher. He taught high school subjects and was an athletic coach in Pitt County for five years.

A Carteret County native, he has lived in Pitt since 1966. He received both his B. S. and M. A. degrees from East Carolina University and is married to the former Faye Everette of Falkland. The couple has a son, Dean, eight, and a daughter, Tracy, five.

Lawrence is a deacon of the Falkland Presbyterian Church, a volunteer 4-H leader, and a member of the Bethel Masonic Lodge.

"I support the Neighborhood School Concept. To me it seems a necessity in order to keep students and parents involved in the educational process," he said. "I think a community loses its identity when a school is moved away. If I were to be elected a member of the Board of Education, I would do all I could to support this concept."

Awards Made By Insurance Women At Bosses Night

The Pitt County Association of Insurance Women held its annual Bosses Night Saturday at the Ramada Inn. The theme for the evening was "Bosses Night at the Mardi Gras."

A highlight of the program was naming "Woman of the Year" and "Boss of the Year." Mrs. Evelyn Stroud, Hines Agency, is "Woman of the Year" and Mrs. Sarah Jenkins, Willard and Webb Agency, received "Boss of the Year."

President Georgie Hall presented Mrs. Stroud an engraved trophy and silver Revere bowl and an engraved plaque to Mrs. Jenkins. The selections were made by a vote of the club membership.

The entertainment was provided by the Greenville Community Chorus, which is made up of volunteer members from Greenville, Kinston and Washington. Edward C. Glenn directs the group, who sang selections from Broadway hits.

Guests present included June Mumford, first vice president of the North Carolina Association of Insurance Women, Teresa Silvey, president of the Wilmington Association, Don Langston, president and chairman of the board of First State Bank, who gave the response, Clara Seago and Polly Dally, honorary members of the Pitt County club, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Baldree and Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Murray. Mrs. Murray is Personal Lines Underwriter for Reliance.

Table decorations were provided by Mary Stoneham and Mrs. Jenkins, including candles, boxwoods, sequined masks, which were given as favors, and ribbons surrounded by snapdragons, pom poms and roses.

Cooking Is Fun

Lamb Stew with Vegetables

LAMB STEW
Enough for two meals for a small family.

- 4 pounds (about) lamb neck slices
- 3 medium onions, sliced
- 3 chicken bouillon cubes dissolved in 2 cups water
- 1 pound (3 medium) potatoes, pared and cubed
- 1 pound (6 medium) carrots, pared and cubed
- 10-ounce package frozen green peas
- 1 cup light cream
- Salt and pepper to taste

In a large saucepot bring the lamb, onion and bouillon to a boil; simmer, covered, until lamb is almost tender — about 1 hour. Add the potatoes and carrots and let bubble gently for about 1/2 hour, adding the peas about 5 minutes before the other vegetables are tender. With a slotted spoon remove meat and vegetables to a serving dish and keep warm. Skim excess fat from broth. Turn broth into a measure and add the cream; return to saucepot. Thicken with instant flour — 1 tablespoon flour to 1 cup liquid for a thin sauce — and add salt and pepper; pour over the vegetables. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Shoe Salesman Blows His Top

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: OLD SHOE DOG's letter certainly steamed me. I sold fine shoes to both men and women for over 50 years, and I always removed the customer's shoes. (Shoe dog says, "Doctors don't undress their patients, so why should we remove shoes?") What an idiotic comparison. There is nothing degrading about undressing a foot.

Shoe dog complains, "Most people don't even know what size shoe they wear!" Why should they? A competent shoe salesman routinely measures the customer's foot, then gives him (or her) the size that fits. Besides, shoe sizes change according to one's weight. (If you've gained or lost 20 pounds you can't wear the same size dress or suit you wore before your weight changed. The same is true of your shoes.)

I don't know where OLD SHOE DOG sold shoes, but he never could have made it in MY store.

SHOE DOG (RETIRED)

DEAR OLD: You weren't the only one who had a bone to pick with OLD SHOE DOG. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: I'm a practicing chiropodist with a few thousand words for OLD SHOE DOG:

It's shoe dogs like him who are responsible for all those corns, bunions and ingrown toenails we foot doctors see in our offices every day.

Some shoe clerks sell shoes they know will cripple the customer just to make a sale. And some shoe manufacturers should be jailed for manufacturing shoes (especially for women) that not only torture the feet, but cause chronic back problems. Those pointed-toe shoes and five-inch heels so popular in the 50's ruined the feet of millions of women.

Lately I've had MEN come in with serious foot and back complaints caused by the platform shoes they've been wearing. Sometimes I think the whole world has gone mad. Withhold my name, please. I'm not quite ready to retire.

PUZZLED PODIATRIST

DEAR PODIATRIST: I am well acquainted with the pointed-toe shoe of the 50's. I fought that battle after putting my foot in it!

DEAR ABBY: Maybe I shouldn't complain, because my fiancé says he loves me a lot and I know he never even looks at another girl, but here's my problem:

Every deer hunting season, he says he'll see me after the season is over. He is so crazy about hunting, he goes every minute he has off from work. Abby, everyone says I'm a fool to wait for him to come to see me when he feels like it. I think if he really cared for me he'd see me on weekends during the deer season, don't you?

Next season, should I tell him he can either find time for me or he can find someone else?

SECOND CHOICE

DEAR SECOND: If you're sure the only kind of deer your fiancé is interested in is the four-legged kind, you're lucky. Don't challenge him to find another "deer" unless you want to go hunting for a new boyfriend.

If you feel left out and lonely, or wish you knew how to get people to like you, my new booklet, "How To Be Popular: You're Never Too Young or Too Old," is for you. Send $1 along with a long, self-addressed, stamped (24 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

New-Look Iowa Pork Chop Being Promoted

By SUSANNE SCHAFER
DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Iowa pork producers have come up with a new look for the chop which is designed to make it a regular on the restaurant circuit.

"Look out New York Strip, here comes the IOWA chop," reads the national advertising campaign slogan for that new look.

"The term Iowa Chop is intended to show quality. We want it to be seen as the Cadillac of pork," said Russ Sanders of the Iowa Development Commission.

The new look is a chop at least one and one-half inches thick that weighs between 12 and 14 ounces per serving.

The cut is trademarked and Sanders has invested $20,000 in the national advertising campaign.

"It's so big you can see what the fellow next to you is cutting into," said George Karrell, director of product quality for Holiday Inn Corp., Memphis, Tenn.

Karrell said Holiday intends to test the chop in Alabama and Georgia.

Sanders not only promotes the chop in words, but personally prepares it for hotel, motel and restaurant executives.

Sanders and others say the chop has needed an image change for some time.

"We need to tell Americans we don't feed garbage to hogs any more," Sanders said.

And taste enters the picture too, according to Lesley Novich, menu planner for Marriott Hotels in Bethesda, Md. She said she never used to order a pork chop when she went out to eat.

"You just expect a little piece of shoe leather. But I think this is marvelous," she said.

Marriott first offered the Iowa Chop in its Syracuse, N.Y., hotel, which Mrs. Novich said was "meat and potatoes country."

"The chop outsold any other item the first weekend it was on the menu," she said, adding Marriott now serves the chop in its two Washington, D.C., hotels and others are considering it.

Jack Waltman, manager of the dining room for the U.S. House of Representatives, said he intended to add the chop to his menu as soon as he had installed a microwave oven to cook it.

"It's delicious and it's not a political item. A number of states have pork to market," he said.

Karrell said the chop is a money-maker.

"We could buy the chop wholesale for around $2. But it could be prepared and sold for as much as a higher-priced steak," he said.

Sanders said the Sambo chain, the Sheraton Hotel chain and American Airlines have also expressed interest in the chop.

Couple Honored On Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Worthington, of Rt. 1, Greenville, were honored at a reception Sunday held at the Piney Grove Community Building on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary.

Hosts and hostess were children of the couple, J. T. and Clifton Worthington of Greenville, Meron Worthington of Farmville, and Mrs. Wesley Layton Jr. of Garner.

Accenting the yellow and gold motif used in decorating, a silver epergne filled with pom poms daisies, snapdragons and baby's breath flanked by silver candlesticks was featured on the refreshment table. A white linen cloth covered the table.

Ralph Bowen of Ormondville rendered piano selections.

Mrs. Ray Hart of Hookerton served cake and Mrs. Lawrence Tripp of Ayden poured punch.

Approximately 100 guests called during the afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Worthington were married Jan. 11, 1928. They are members of Piney Grove Free Will Baptist Church. They have four granddaughters.

ROMAN Refinements

Downtown Pitt Plaza

Brody's

School Board...

The testing is one of Gov. Hunt's major education programs. The purposes have been stated as follows:

— To assure that all high school graduates are able to function as members of society — To provide a means of identifying strengths and weaknesses in the education process — To establish additional means for making the education system accountable to the public for results

"This competency test this year is focusing on reading and mathematics," but the following tests may include various areas of education, McKnight added.

All students, private and non-private, are required to be tested. Educable mentally retarded students must also take the exam.

If students fail the test, they may re-take it several times. It is not certain how many times they may do so, but graduation depends on passing it.

In further business, the Board authorized the selection of a committee of teachers, administrators, central office people, and parents for the purpose of developing a school calendar to be presented to the Board in March for consideration, but with final approval to be given at the April meeting.

The Board also heard a follow-up report on the 1977 graduates presented by Kathryn Lewis, director of Pupil Personnel Services. According to Lewis, one-third of the students are attending college, the majority of them are in four-year institutions. One-fourth are in trade and technical schools, most at Pitt Technical Institute, and another third are working.

Lewis also introduced the new School Liaison Officers, Bonnie Evans and Doug Tripp, to the Board. The officers are working in four county schools each trying to prevent juvenile delinquency. Evans and Tripp are working jointly with the Pitt County Schools and the Sheriff's Department.

The two officers described their duties as primarily preventive instead of disciplinary. Evans said that in her opinion, the main problem with young people that are supposed trouble-makers is their attitude. The officers are presently working to improve the youngsters' attitude about themselves and their environment.

The Liaison Officers have been in the school system for three months. "We've gotten a very good response," said Evans.

Lewis added that the program is concerned with "the rights of the children." She added that "sometimes in the total justice system, kids get shuffled off into a situation that they never should have been shuffled off to," such as an institution for juvenile delinquents.

The program which is funded for eight months is centered around primarily middle school children who are recommended by teachers, principals, and counselors.

In other business, Carl Toot presented the Vocational Education goals for the Pitt County Schools which is to be submitted to the state for approval. He said that the first of the three-part plan is "an overall umbrella" of the program and must comply with federal and state guidelines.

"The Vocational Education goal... is to provide for all youth enrolled in the secondary schools, and some adults, who want, need, and can profit from vocational and consumer and homemaking programs..." according to the plan.

Priority of target groups to be served are: Skill Development, Disadvantaged and Handicapped, Pre-vocational, Advanced Education Aspirant, Dropouts and Potential Dropouts, and Adults.

Associate Superintendent Tom Craft presented recent sanitation reports, and said that 15 schools have been inspected since his last report. He added that he is "still pleased" with the results of the reports.

Craft also reported that bids will be taken on Feb. 8 for the construction projects at Bethel, Pactolus, and W.H. Robinson Schools. He added that Burroughs Wellcome has donated a sign for Wellcome Middle School at a cost of $2,430.

Superintendent Ot Alford also gained approval on a request to grant maternity-disability leave to several teachers. This will allow the women to remain on the job as long as they desire during their pregnancy and to remain on the payroll during their absence from work.

The Board also at the recommendation of the engineer and the architect, rejected bids received on Nov. 10, and voted to re-advertise. The bids were received for projects at Bethel Middle, Pactolus, and W.H. Robinson Schools. Requests have been made by these schools

New Version Of An Old Favorite

John Houseman's The Acting Company, the only permanent professional repertory company touring the U.S., began its 1978 residency in North Carolina with a performance of Chapeau Tuesday night in East Carolina's McGinnis Auditorium.

Chapeau, a new musical by Alfred Uhry and Robert Waldman, based on Eugene Labiche's The Italian Straw Hat, is directed by Gerald Freeman.

This new version of an old favorite is a hilarious, frolicsome farce set to music — the type of work for which The Acting Company is famous.

The entire company was in excellent form last night, displaying flawless timing, perfect physical expression, and a sense of genuine enjoyment of what they were doing.

Brooks Baldwin was marvelous in the lead role of Gerard, the frustrated bridegroom who finds himself confronted with many annoyances on his wedding day. While Gerard's mind is on his coming nuptials, his mischievous horse, Hippolite — adorably played by Tom Robbins — has eaten the one-of-a-kind straw hat of Fidelia, the adulterous wife of Don Alvarado. Patricia Hodges and James Harper are superb in their roles of the Don and his wife.

While dealing with overbearing relatives of his wife-to-be, Gerard is forced to go on a wild goose chase in an effort to find another hat exactly like the one his horse has destroyed, if he is to have time to be alone with his wife, Angelica, on their wedding night. Leslie Geraci is delightful as the nervous, yet eager bride.

In his search, Gerard encounters the wife of the governor, possessor of the only other hat like the one he seeks. Mary Lou Rosato, a truly gifted comedienne, is brilliant as the governor's wife, Leopoldine, who goes about constantly declaring "Art is my life!" She mistakes Gerard for a noted musician expected at her home. The resultant confusion provides side-splitting funny situations. Ms. Rosato has a flair for stealing the show. Her talents, both as serious actress and comedienne, has made her a favorite with The Acting Company fans.

Another fine comedy performance is given by Frances Conroy as Maria Simpatica, the promiscuous hat shop owner, Gerard's former lover, who tries to rekindle the old flames. The one disappointment is Robert Waldman's musical score. There are a few good songs, but many are rather tuneless.

Two seasons back, the company gave a premiere production of Eudora Welty's bawdy musical comedy, The Robber Bridegroom, which later became a Broadway success, capturing several Tony Awards along the way. Chapeau has the makings of a similar bright future.

The Acting Company will be at McGinnis Auditorium through Friday, Feb. 10. Other performances scheduled include Brecht's Mother Courage and Her Children on Wednesday; Elinor Jones' The Other Half on Thursday; and Shakespeare's King Lear on Friday. Curtain time for all plays is at 8:15 p.m. For ticket information, call 757-6390.

Water Damage In Plant's Fire

CONETOE — Tom Togs Inc. manufacturing plant—here was damaged last night when material in the receiving and cutting area caught fire.

According to Tarboro Fire Chief Eugene Parsons, firemen were still in the building late last night trying to determine the extent of damage.

Firemen were summoned to the plant about 9:15 p. m., when an attendant at a nearby service station heard the fire alarm sound from the automatic sprinkler system.

Chief Parsons noted that there will be considerable water damage to machinery and material in the plant caused by the sprinkler. No one was in the plant at the time, he noted.

The Bethel Fire Department assisted Edgecombe County units in fighting the fire.

Tom Togs manufactures children's sleepwear and playwear and employs about 200 persons. The plant is located on Highway U. S. about 11 miles east of Tarboro.

In other business, the Board:

— Approved a substitute teacher list of 12 names — Approved a recommendation that county school children take part during March in a statewide program to collect money for the N.C. Museum of Art.

— Heard a report from Superintendent Alford concerning the determination by the Equal Opportunity Employment Commission in behalf of Courtney R. King, charging party, and the Pitt County Schools, respondent. The Board was found not to have been discriminatory in the case.

— Voted to allow the son of John Causey to continue to attend Rose High School for the continuation of the year. There was some discrepancy as to whether the son should attend city or county schools.

Third Street PTA To Meet

The regularly scheduled meeting of the Third Street Elementary School PTA will be held Thursday, Feb. 9 at 8 p.m. in the media center of the school.

Karen Sloan of the Dept. of Social Services, will present a film, "Children In Peril," to be followed by a brief discussion on family relationships.

All parents are urged to attend this meeting.

Diabetes Ass'n Meeting Slated

The Eastern Diabetic Association will meet Thursday, Feb. 16, at 7:30 p. m. in Room 2 of the Rehabilitation Center of Pitt Co. Memorial Hospital.

Betty Lou Goodson, the Hospital diabetic teaching nurse, will give a program on "Insulin and Syringes." The members and other interested persons are invited.

Zoo Progress To Be Gradual

North Carolina Zoo Director William Hoff has resigned to take another position and "get back into the mainstream of zoo activity."

He cited slow progress and lack of funding as reasons for leaving.

Certainly development of the zoo at Asheboro has not been as rapid as most people would like.

It is, however, probably the best the state can do given limited resources that we have.

We do hope the zoo's development won't be set back. It is the kind of project that can be gradually developed over a period of years, and we should provide funds from public and private sources.

The educational value of a state zoo is obvious in North Carolina which does not have cities large enough to individually support such a venture.

Life-Saving Service Being Extended

Rescue service has gradually been extended in Pitt County, but there are areas which are not readily reached by rescue squads.

To improve on this situation, the County Commissioners have endorsed the creation of life support squads, which would operate under the sponsorship of existing rescue squads.

The authorized life support members would respond in their areas and give emergency aid until the rescue squad arrived.

Hopefully state or federal funds could be obtained to finance the pilot project.

Getting aid to victims quickly can often mean the difference between life and death. The life support squad system seems to have promise in providing quick aid to more remote portions of the county.

THIS AFTERNOON

Contenders Do Homework

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—The quiet, backroom offices where potential candidates for the office of Governor of North Carolina harbor their dreams are already operating for at least two contenders.

Running for a statewide political office requires a lot of groundwork: names, addresses and telephone numbers of firm supporters must be constantly updated and added to; opportunities for speech-making and hand-shaking events must be cataloged; there is correspondence to be handled.

Newspapers must be clipped so personal congratulatory notes can be sent to civic club officers, local politicians, people who get important promotions or new jobs—even newlyweds and new mothers.

And tabs must be kept on the opposition. In this case, it is assumed that Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr. will seek reelection. Current thinking is that if he indeed hopes to make a bid for national office he must display strength in a bid for a second term.

Mistakes

Meanwhile, the files are kept up to date on any mistakes the governor makes, especially as to important political figures who become disillusioned or angered by gubernatorial actions or appointments to the numerous state jobs and seats on important boards or commissions.

On rare occasions the would-be candidates even find an opportunity to stir up mischief—usually behind the scenes either by circulating information through political channels statewide or by leaks to the press.

Meanwhile, those on the staff of the present administration concede privately that they are operating on the assumption that at least two Democrats will oppose Hunt in the party primary of 1980.

It is widely recognized that Lt. Gov. James C. Green will do so if he can nail down sufficient money and support. He believes North Carolina deserves a chance to choose a more conservative governor than he pictures Hunt to be.

Waiting quietly for Hunt to stub his toe is Attorney General Rufus L. Edmisten. Hunt and Edmisten have been dueling quietly for over a year, even while displaying only amiable and correct relationships in public.

NOBLITT

The governor used his own people to draft bills for his legislative package, bypassing Edmisten. Hunt supporters changed state law to set up a bill-drafting office and staff within the General Assembly rather than using Edmisten's staff.

Edmisten retaliated by insisting the law gives him that authority and demanding that his people be housed in the same office.

Stripped

Helplessly, Edmisten watched Hunt strip his leadership in crime fighting: a Department of Crime Control and Public Safety consolidated several agencies and gives Secretary Phil Carlton much of the clout in that field, leaving Edmisten only the State Bureau of Investigation and the more mundane legal functions of the Justice Department.

Now, there is a move afoot to strip from Edmisten the Police Information Network on grounds it is a computer operation and ought to be housed elsewhere. There is still occasional talk of relocating the State Bureau of Investigation.

Edmisten has kept his political machine intact. His chief aide in the Justice Department is Charlie Smith, a former Charlotte political operative, public relations man, and member of the Mecklenburg County inner-circle of politicians led by Stan Kaplan, Harvey Diamond, Pete Ellington and others. The number-one goal of that group has long been the governor's mansion: a frustrated ambition since the mid-1960's.

Unidentified Potholes

WASHINGTON — I am not one of those people who believe in the supernatural, but I believe there are enough reports of unidentified potholes in the United States that somebody should investigate them.

Over the country, city, county and state officials are getting reports of mysterious potholes showing up in the streets of this country, but they are being kept quiet so as not to alarm the people. Officials fear that if Americans found out how many potholes were made in just this last month, this nation would have panic in the streets.

Samuel Loudermilk, who heads up the Unidentified Pothole Assn., which has kept track of pothole sightings around the country, refuses to remain silent.

"They're out there," Loudermilk said. "And everyone in a position of power knows it."

"Who is out there?" I asked him.

"Something is out there," Loudermilk said. "Look at these satellite photos. You see every one of these dark blotches — that's a pothole."

Future Needs Studied

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Projections differ over how much electricity North Carolina will need in the next decade, but the Public Staff of the state Utilities Commission says consumer rates will probably be tied to the rate of inflation.

"We see an increase in rates in the range of inflation," Ed Tucker, an engineer with the Public Staff's electric division, said in an interview Tuesday as the commission began hearings on energy needs. "We don't think that's going to be changed significantly."

A parade of speakers urged the commission to reject plans for increased use of nuclear power, as sign-carrying demonstrators marched in sub-freezing temperatures outside. The 50 to 75 demonstrators were protesting construction by Carolina Power & Light Co. (CP&L) of the Shearon Harris Nuclear Plant in Wake County.

The hearings are expected to last several days, and projections by the state's major electric utilities and the Public Staff will be presented.

All the projections calculate an increased reliance on nuclear power, and several Public Staff members said the protests over the Harris plant were misdirected.

"The question of whether should we license Harris is not what the commission is looking at," Tucker said. "It's more a question of whether we need more plants and if so, what should they be — coal, nuclear or whatever."

Projections offered by the companies and the Public Staff differ in their assessment of the potential impact of conservation efforts by consumers, with the Public Staff offering the most dismal projection. It anticipates an annual increase in electric demands of 4.6 percent with maximum con-

THE INSIDE REPORT

Reagan Sent His Regrets

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Astonished by the offer, Ronald Reagan turned down Republican national chairman William Brock's proposal that he share the party's formal rebuttal of President Carter's nationally televised appeal for approval of the Panama Canal treaties.

Brock's offer was made before the networks decided whether or not to grant the Republicans equal time to answer Mr. Carter. What made it seem preposterous to Reagan, an all-out treaty opponent, was that he would have been twinned with Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee — a proponent of the treaties intervention rights.

"That's a great image for the Republican party," one Reagan aide told us. "Divided we stand, united we fall?" His point: the party would be split putting one Republican on the air defending the treaty and another Republican attacking it.

Reagan is still smarting under Brock's decision not to mount a national committee campaign against the treaties, using funds partly collected by an anti-treaties letter sent to contributors over Reagan's name. Indeed, Brock's offer to give Reagan a spot in the party's rebuttal of Mr. Carter was intended to save Reagan's resentment.

Brock's problem was multiple: first, avoiding preferential national exposure for one potential 1980 presidential candidate, such as Baker, over another, such as Reagan or Sen. Robert Dole; second, handle the rebuttal while minimizing splits within the party over the treaties; third, find a Republican consensus in sharp enough disagreement with the President to make a rebuttal worthwhile.

Reagan, vacationing in Mexico, never did talk directly to Brock. But in discussing the proposal with his own aides — and quickly rejecting it — Reagan made clear that any "rebuttal" to Mr. Carter that showed the Republican party split down the middle would be self-defeating.

A footnote: Reagan political advisers want him to take a hard public line against the treaties as a national catastrophe, with or without the amendments backed by Baker. That's bad news for Baker, whose support for the amended treaties has hurt him badly with the Republican right wing. Reagan might diminish that damage by praising the Baker-backed changes.

Does Jimmy Know?

Democratic Gov. James Exon of Nebraska and nine other farm-state governors were shocked when Jimmy Carter turned to Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland during a closed-door meeting Jan. 31 to ask whether farmers were running into credit problems because of low farm income.

Mr. Carter, quoting a warning to that effect from Sen. Herman Talmadge, chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, asked Bergland if it was true. Bergland didn't know, and asked one of his aides. The answer Mr. Carter got was: no, there is no "liquidity crisis" in the wheat and corn belts.

Exon, who had set up the White House session to warn Mr. Carter of political rebellion in the farm belt, jumped in at that point. To the contrary, he told Mr. Carter, there certainly was a credit crisis in Nebraska, and other states too. Banks were being forced to extend notes beyond their maturity dates and were encountering evermore stringent liquidity levels.

What worried Exon and the other governors was the implication of the President's and Bergland's lack of knowledge about a fundamental economic farm problem. One told us: "We had to ask ourselves, is Mr. Carter getting the facts he needs to make the nation's farm policy?"

The session did have its successes. The President for the first time seemed genuinely aware that a massive farm problem threatens his party next November. He also showed some interest in Exon's proposal that the four major wheat exporting nations — U.S., Canada, Argentina and Australia — combine their resources to increase foreign sales abroad at steadier and higher prices.

Democratic Fund Raiser

The White House has agreed to conditions laid down by California Democratic leader Charles Manatt to become national finance chairman, but those conditions do not include the right to back a presidential bid by Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. against President Carter. That means Manatt will support Jimmy Carter against Jerry Brown if he is still finance chairman. Manatt, a popular member of the Democratic National Committee, had been expected to play a key role in any Brown campaign.

Asked nearly a month ago by Democratic national chairman John White to take the fund-raising post, Manatt since then has been discussing terms with White and presidential aide Hamilton Jordan. All requests by Manatt were granted.

A major concern of Manatt was the White House-backed change in party rules that

Other Editors Say Carter Unwanted

(Chapel Hill Newspaper)

Those advisors gathered around the President are beginning to get a little concerned about his popularity among the citizens at large. It is reported that a group of them got together recently trying to decide on how to merchandise the president better. A report on the meeting sounded more like the Madison Avenue selling soap, but these days politics and soap have a lot in common.

The advisors admitted that they felt that "human rights" was going to do the trick, but that the country had not reacted as favorably as it might. The President's Panama Canal treaty is beginning to make some progress, but his energy plan and the thinking of Congress have little in common. Everyone wants his taxes reduced, but there will be a lot of changes in the President's tax proposals before they become law. Like the weather in Chapel Hill these days, President Carter is having his trouble.

A prominent candidate for a statewide office in North Carolina said that he would be just as happy if President Carter left the Democratic Party in this state alone this time around.

"The way that HEW Secretary Joseph Califano is planning a new campaign on the dangers of tobacco, and the way the same gentleman is treating higher education, affects everyone in this state," the candidate said. "President Carter should stay just as far away from Califano as possible, and the same goes for Carter in North Carolina."

They say that the new breed (the people Carter has brought to Washington) and the old breed (those who have been running the country for the past 25 years) have little in common. Neither side is making any effort to get to know the other any better. There are no lines of communication, and that is were the real trouble lies. Maybe those advisors should first urge every member of the new breed to talk to at least one stranger a day. That could be a start.

You can tell that things are getting tough in Washington when everyone tries to make a joke of the whole affair. Credit this one to Sen. Dick Clark, D-Iowa: "The Food and Drug Administration today banned births on the grounds that inevitably they would lead to deaths."

40 Years Ago Today

February 8, 1938

One of the most outstanding achievements in the Pitt County schools in the past five years is the improvement of instructional supplies, especially libraries, declared D. H. Conley, superintendent of the system, today in discussing the large increase in the various libraries.

Two years ago, the schools had a total of 15,528 volumes, as compared with 25,151 books now, a gain of nearly 10,000 volumes in the comparatively brief period.

It was also considered significant that of the total cost of $6,362.77, local communities had raised $2,892.27, the remainder coming from county funds.

"This fact shows that the various communities still are keenly interested in their schools," declared the county superintendent.

A survey of the North Carolina house delegation indicated the decision of Representative Lambeth not to seek re-election ended retirements among the 11-man group unless Representative Goughon decided to quit.

Lambeth's decision brought to three the number of Tar Heel representatives who will not seek reelection to the House. The others are Representatives Hancock and Umstead.

No Way To Run A Dairy Farm

By MILLER BONNER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A South Carolina dairyman and state official told the House Agriculture Committee he would "hate to run my dairy farm the way you run this government" because "you'd never get around to milking the cows."

Bryan Patrick Jr.'s homespun comments Tuesday before the committee gained him a standing ovation by the more than 100 supporters of the American Agriculture movement who crowded into the hearing room.

"Our president thinks we need more money to borrow, but he also has a budget with a $60-billion deficit. If he thinks that's the way to run a farm, he's mistaken," said Patrick, who also serves as South Carolina's agriculture commissioner.

"Farmers don't want more loans or any handouts," he continued. "We need a cost of living increase. It was good to see our coal miners get off the poverty level of an $8-an-hour wage. The farmer would certainly like to get $8 an hour for his labor."

Patrick was joined by congressmen, bankers, farmers and agribusinessmen in detailing problems confronting the nation's farm community.

The committee hearings, which continue through Thursday, were sparked by rallies and lobbying by the Colorado-based American Agriculture movement, which called for a farm strike on Dec. 14.

Rep. Bill Burlison, D-Mo., also received a standing ovation after telling his congressional counterparts: "Most economists agree that plight of the farmer precipitated the Great Depression of the '30s. If we don't act positively, it will happen again..."

"We ought to have the courage and perseverance to legislate for our producers and not be sidetracked by the money and power and influence of the processors, the trade and other middlemen. In my judgment, our performance in the past in this regard has been indefensible."

All 25 persons who testified Tuesday before the committee called for an increase in the percent of parity paid farmers.

"Parity is what I call a fair price," said Bill Clevenger, a spokesman for the Texas-New Mexico Sugar Beet Producers based in Hereford, Texas. "It's the same price the machinery man gets for his product he sells us. It's the same margin (of profit) he enjoys. It's the cost of production plus a reasonable profit."

The farmers are demanding 100 percent parity, which theoretically would give them the same buying power enjoyed by farmers in 1910-14. The Agriculture Department estimates farmers are currently receiving 65 percent parity.

Without immediate congressional action, a Craig, Colo., farm-implement dealer claimed, the farm economy will crumble, followed by the rest of the country.

"During the last 60 days," Darrell Knight told the committee, "the repossessions at my business have equaled all the repossessions of 1976. With the prices they are getting, farmers can't expect to even break even and pay their bills."

Strength For Today

Despite the darkness and gloom of some periods of history, some sincere and luminous characters have shown brightly by contrast.

Jesus described himself as the Light of the World. He said also of his disciples, "Ye are the light of the world". If we have any light at all, it is because the little candle of our ability or our character or our influence has been lighted from the great candle of his divine life.

Very small candles can sometimes transmit a strong light; and conversely, large candles will often glow with only a faint light. The radiance of our influence, the example of our everyday lives, will not depend upon our size — educationally, financially, socially — but upon the inner quality of our lives. What is most important is the extent to which we respond to the wisdom with which God is willing at all times to light up our hearts and our minds.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Snow flurries are forecast today from the Dakotas to Oklahoma. Rain is expected for the central Pacific coast. Temperatures will be cold over most of the nation. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
Temperatures are running below normal in North Carolina and there is no immediate relief in sight, and finishing out this week there is a chance of precipitation Friday and Saturday.

Looking ahead into next week, the National Weather Service says that with the below normal temperatures there will be above normal precipitation.

Low temperatures this morning showed some slight moderation from Tuesday although it was still cold. Asheville, which had a low of 6 degrees Tuesday, registered 13 degrees this morning. Other lows included Greensboro 12, Raleigh 17, Charlotte 23 and Wilmington 25, all some warmer than the previous morning.

Similar low readings are expected tonight after high readings this afternoon from the middle 30s to the middle 40s except for some 20s in the mountains.

North Carolina, although spared from the blizzards that have paralyzed the Northeast, continues to have its share of cold weather and related problems.

Two major power companies in the state reported record demands for electricity Tuesday morning, when record lows for the date were set in three cities.

Schools in Ashe and Watauga counties have been closed for four weeks, and officials said Tuesday they did not know when classes would be able to resume.

And a long-range forecast issued Tuesday by the National Weather Service called for unseasonable cold and above-normal precipitation for Feb. 13-17.

Record low temperatures for the date were set Tuesday in Asheville, Greensboro and Wilmington. Asheville reported a low of 6 degrees, Greensboro recorded a frosty 9 degrees, and Wilmington residents awoke to a reading of 18. A reading of 5 below zero was reported Tuesday morning at Boone.

In the midst of it all, Duke Power Co. and Carolina Power & Light Co. (CP&L) reported record high demands for power, breaking marks established during last winter's extreme cold and last summer's extended heat wave and drought.

Virginia Electric and Power Co. (Veeco), which serves part of eastern North Carolina, reported a near-record demand Tuesday morning. But none of the three utility companies reported any difficulties in meeting the demand.

However, officials of Duke Power and CP&L said conservation measures and rotating blackouts may be needed if the nationwide coal strike does not end soon.

CP&L reported a 64-day stockpile of coal, or about 1.2 million tons, while Duke Power reported a 61-day supply. If supplies dropped to a 30-day level, the companies would probably implement rotating blackouts, spokesmen said.

If the coal strike continues another two weeks, CP&L would begin urging voluntary conservation by consumers, said Albert Morris, a company vice president.

Meanwhile, Dr. Roger Jackson, Ashe County school superintendent, said Tuesday that county school principals and other officials had decided "we had so many roads in such bad condition that we could not go back to school tomorrow."

"We are concerned about all the time we are missing," Jackson said. "We feel it is likely to affect our (students') overall achievement levels."

He said the possibility of re-opening schools would be reviewed daily, "but we're going to wait for some improvement before we attempt to operate again."

M.C. Hagaman, personnel director of Watauga County schools, said roads there were "still slick, very slick." He said the situation would be reviewed daily and "as soon as we can run the buses on a limited bases, we will reopen."

He showed me a blowup of the Queens pothole. "What does it look like to you?" he asked.

My eyes bulged. "It looks like — it looks like a GIANT FOOT."

"Exactly," said Loudermilk. "A giant foot. Right now there are millions of these giant feet all over the length and breadth of the United States. Here in Atlanta and over here in St. Paul, and even here in Salt Lake City. How do you explain potholes of this size all over the country at this time of year?"

"Maybe," I said, without much conviction, "it's because we had a lousy winter."

"That's what they want us to think," Loudermilk said. "They hope we'll believe that these potholes were made by our own winter when in reality they were made by them."

"But if what you say is true that means they're here already."

"That's what I'm trying to tell you," Loudermilk shouted. "They're here already and our government is keeping it from us. Every time you see a pothole in the street it was made by one of them."

"But if they're here why don't they show themselves?" I asked.

"They don't have to. Each day another car or truck or bus sinks in the middle of the street without a trace. Pretty soon there'll be so many potholes and so few of us left, they'll be able to take over without a struggle."

PTA Meeting On Thursday

The Sadie Sautler P.T.A. will meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the school's all-purpose room. Barry Humphries will present a program entitled "Parents are People Too."

Following the meeting, parents are invited to visit the library and see the books, games and puzzles being offered at the book fair. The Sadie Sautler Book Fair will be held the week of Feb. 10-16. Various paperback books, games and puzzles will be available for parents to select.

During February an interesting collection of antique valentines will be on display in the school's display showcase. Parents are invited to visit the display after the meeting.

Recycling Plant Faces Obstacle

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state's plans to build a motor-oil recycling facility here may run afoul of city ordinances that forbid the location of oil or petroleum distillation processes anywhere in the city.

State officials, eager to get the $1.4 million plant built near the Women's Correctional Center, have asked the city Board of Adjustment to decide whether the zoning code will permit the plant.

The board will hear the matter next Monday. State officials contend the recycling plant will have neither a refinery nor distillation process.

Rep. Flood's Role Described

By BROOKS JACKSON Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Newly released State Department documents show that Rep. Daniel Flood, D-Pa., engineered a $10 million agricultural aid package for the Bahamas over the objections of foreign-aid officials in the early 1970s.

A department official says Flood's principal assistant at the time, Stephen Elko, then pressed vigorously but unsuccessfully to put control of the project in the hands of a group formed by a friend of Flood, Nassau lawyer F. Nigel Bowe. One State Department memo concluded that Bowe intended to make money on the deal.

"The genesis of this proposal was a stay that Congressman Flood had made in the Bahamas a few months ago," said another memo dated Dec. 9, 1971 by congressional liaison officer Jean Lewis. "He became very ill and received very good care: to show his gratitude he promised to help the Bahamas attain any goal they desired."

Elko has since been convicted of taking kickbacks, and allegedly is accusing Flood of doing the same, which Flood denies. Flood is under federal investigation in a separate matter that was being handled in part by David Marston when he was fired as U.S. attorney in Philadelphia.

Bowe said in a telephone interview Tuesday that Flood did not benefit personally from the Bahamian aid deal. Flood's Washington office said Flood was snowbound at home and unavailable for comment.

The project was nicknamed the "Bahamian Red Meat Project" in State Department correspondence, because the original idea was to promote cattle grazing on the thinly populated island of Andros in the Bahamas. The emphasis now is on goats, sheep and crops, although some cattle are still being raised.

The department on Tuesday voluntarily released an inch-thick packet of internal memoranda and copies of letters dealing with the project.

They show that the idea originated with Flood and Bowe, and probably never would have gotten off the ground except for pressure from Flood and two other high-ranking members of the House.

The memoranda show that John Hannah, then head of the Agency for International Development, opposed the project because the Bahamas were far more prosperous than other recipients of U.S. foreign aid in the Caribbean, and because the islands were not yet independent of Britain.

Hannah stated his objections in a letter to Poage on Feb. 22, 1972.

Flood, himself a high-ranking member of the House Appropriations Committee, enlisted the aid of Rep. Otto Poage, D-La., and Rep. W.R. Poage, D-Tex. Poage then headed the subcommittee with jurisdiction over foreign-aid money, and Poage was head of the Agriculture Committee, which influences overseas food programs.

The memoranda show that Hannah, then head of the Agency for International Development, opposed the project because the Bahamas were far more prosperous than other recipients of U.S. foreign aid in the Caribbean, and because the islands were not yet independent of Britain.

Hannah stated his objections in a letter to Poage on Feb. 22, 1972.

But Flood, Poage and Poage jointly signed a letter to Hannah dated Feb. 29, 1972, in which they said they wanted "to point out and make abundantly clear" that $10 million was earmarked for the Bahamas. "And we expect an immediate acknowledgement," they said.

An earlier memo by Jean Lewis quoted Elko as threatening that foreign-aid appropriations "would be stymied if this project were not funded."

REJECTED AGAIN

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — The South Carolina Senate voted 25-20 Tuesday to table ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment, eliminating the need for even submitting the ratification question to the House. It was the third rejection of ERA in South Carolina in recent years.

Expansion Plans

Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co. expects to spend $776,000 in the Greenville area for outside plant facilities and central office equipment during 1978.

The spending is included in a $66.8 million construction and expansion budget announced by company president J. C. Cluen. The largest item in the company's 1978 growth program will be additional exchange lines throughout the company's service area, which will require an expenditure of $20.2 million.

A total of $18.5 million has been allocated to add central office equipment to serve new customers. Of $21,686,000 budgeted for new cable installations, Carolina Telephone expects to spend $19,961,000 for underground installations.

The United Telephone System, third largest in the nation, of which Carolina Telephone is a member, expects to invest $413 million for new facilities during the year in the 20 states in which United operates.

servation, ranging to an increase of 6.7 percent with no conservation.

"We're very interested in conservation and load management. Our problem is that we don't have any results to look at," Tucker said.

The staff's higher prediction calls for CP&L to press its Harris plant into use in 1983, a year earlier than the company now plans.

Steve Griffith, a Duke Power Co. lawyer, said Duke Power projects an average yearly growth in electricity demand of 5.4 percent and plans to eventually get 50 to 55 percent of its power from nuclear generation.

CP&L Spokesman Mac Harris said his company projected an annual increase in demand of 5.9 percent.

Among the public witnesses was John Warren of Durham, representing the Sierra Club, who said the commission should emphasize conservation and the potential of solar energy.

Another speaker, Brad Stuart of Chapel Hill, said North Carolina was becoming more dependent on nuclear power than any other state.

Warden Is Gun Victim

MONTREAL (AP) — Three gunmen shot and killed the warden of the maximum security Archambault penitentiary Tuesday night as he was clearing snow from his driveway, police reported.

Michel Roy, 38, was wounded several times and died on the way to Maisonneuve Hospital, not far from his home in Montreal, a police spokesman reported.

The prison is just north of Montreal.

The gunmen escaped. The Quebec Human Rights League charged two weeks ago that conditions were "deplorable" at the penitentiary.

Paul Rose, serving life sentences for the 1970 kidnapping and murder of Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte, said in a letter this week to the newspaper Le Journal de Montreal that he and other members of the 15-man Archambault Prisoners Committee had been moved to the segregation block at nearby Laval Institute, another maximum security prison, because of their work with the committee.

In contrast to century-old Laval, the modern Archambault penitentiary had a good reputation among prisoners until recently. Roy, the warden since September, denied that conditions deteriorated after he took over. He said the prisoners would not accept the fact that their committee is a sounding board and not a decision-making body.

Greenville Man Brings Suit Against Surgeon

Harold M. McGrath of Greenville, has filed a malpractice suit in Pitt County Superior Court against Dr. Howard Gradis, a local surgeon.

According to the complaint, McGrath charges that Gradis, on January 8, 1974, performed surgery on him and diagnosed McGrath, "as having carcinoma of the pancreas," and "performed surgical bypass of the pancreas."

The suit also charges that in diagnosing and treating McGrath, Gradis, "did not exercise the degree of care or skill or possess the degree of knowledge ordinarily exercised and possessed by others of his profession," in the Greenville area.

According to the suit, the physician, "failed to properly suture and close the incision... did without any consultative opinion or proper and sufficient diagnostic tests and evaluation, did place plaintiff on a program of chemotherapy..." and prescribed an "improper choice" of drugs.

McGrath also alleges that Gradis, "failed to monitor" his condition while on the chemotherapy program.

The complaint alleges that McGrath underwent surgery performed by another physician on August 23, 1977, "due to the plaintiff's worsened condition," and it was "determined for the first time since the operation on the plaintiff," in 1974, "that the plaintiff did not have a carcinoma of the pancreas nor had he ever had such a condition."

The complaint alleges that McGrath had been suffering from, "a hiatal hernia and reflux of acid content from the stomach into the esophagus."

Requesting a trial by jury, McGrath asks in the suit for $10,000 in compensatory damages.

McGrath's wife, Mildred McGrath is a member of the Greenville City Council.

Gradis, in private practice in Greenville for a number of years, is now an emergency room physician at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Medium fire damage and light smoke damage were reported.

Convicted Of Armed Robbery, Sues For $500,000 Damages

A man convicted of armed robbery charges in connection with an April 15, 1976 shooting incident here has filed suit in Pitt County Superior Court seeking $500,000 in damages from assistant district attorney Thomas D. Haigwood and Pitt deputy sheriff D. D. Respass.

Otis Bernard Walston, the plaintiff, was convicted of armed robbery in Superior Court in connection with the case in which Gary Michael Smith was shot in the back of the head during the incident in an apartment here.

Walston, now confined in the Caledonia Correctional Institution in Halifax County, charges in the suit that Haigwood and Respass, "did under color of law deprive plaintiff... the equal protection of the laws and equal privileges and immunities under the laws."

According to the complaint, Walston alleges Haigwood presented a bill of indictment to the Grand Jury which was, "total defective and invalid," in that the, "bill failed to charge the offense of armed robbery," and that Haigwood, "failed to exercise reasonable care ... in presenting the bill to the grand jury."

Walston also charged that Haigwood and Respass took him into a room during a superior court session and, "exploded into a torrent of abuse, cursing and vile language directed at the plaintiff, with language so vile, scurrilous and indecent that plaintiff is embarrassed to repeat them in this pleading and to spread said language upon the public record."

Walston's complaint alleges that because of the acts of the defendants, he, "experienced extreme mental suffering to his physical detriment."

The suit asks that the court set aside the conviction; seeks $250,000 in damages; and asks $250,000 in punitive damages for the, "cruel" wicked and wrongful acts."

Walston was charged by Greenville Police with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill as well as with armed robbery in connection with the incident at Cherry Court Apartments.

The assault charge was dismissed; however Walston was convicted in Pitt County Superior Court on February 11, 1977 of the armed robbery charge and sentenced to 20 to 25 years in jail.

Fourth Arrest In Arson Probe

LENOIR, N.C. (AP) — Lenoir police have reported a fourth arrest in their investigation of the fire Sunday in a downtown office building which was described as a "confirmed case of arson."

Chief Detective Dana Townsend said that Harvey Eugene Walker, 37, of Patterson in Caldwell County had been charged with conspiracy to commit arson. Walker was held in Caldwell County Jail under $100,000 bond.

The fire in the 50-year-old brick building and the arrest of the three other men resulted in the formation of a special police task force to investigate the possibility of arson in more than 50 fires in the Caldwell County area during the past four years.

Ethiopia On Offensive; Cuban Role Is Reported

By RICHARD TOMKINS
Associated Press Writer
MOGADISHU, Somalia (AP) — Somali rebels fighting in eastern Ethiopia denied that an Ethiopian offensive had routed them and said the Addis Ababa government's claims were "mere wishful thinking." A communique broadcast today by Mogadishu Radio in effect confirmed the Ethiopian announcement that the long-expected offensive to regain the Ogaden Desert for Ethiopia had started.

The Western Somali Liberation Front claimed that its forces destroyed 43 Ethiopian tanks and shot down two planes Sunday and Monday. It said the Ethiopian claims of major victories were "baseless."

No confirmation was available of either the Ethiopian or Somali claims.

A member of Ethiopia's governing Military Provisional

Council, Sub. Lt. Tamarat Federe, told foreign correspondents in Addis Ababa Tuesday that the Ethiopian offensive had started and the Somalis were fleeing "in all directions." Tamarat said Ethiopian forces were advancing from Harar and Direedawa, their last two major strongholds in the Ogaden, in an attempt to recapture the town of Jijiga, 275 miles east of Addis Ababa, 45 east of Harar and about the same distance west of the border of Somalia.

Tamarat denied the Somali government's charge that Ethiopia plans to invade Somalia to re-establish the Soviet navy in the naval bases commanding the southern approach to the Suez Canal from which the Somali government expelled it because Moscow was siding with Ethiopia.

He also denounced as "completely baseless" U.S. estimates that some 3,500 Cuban troops and 1,500 Soviet military advisers are in Ethiopia. But the State Department said Monday that at least 1,000 more Cubans have been sent to Ethiopia, and Western diplomats in Mogadishu said Soviet ships carrying 3,000 to 6,000 Cuban troops left Cuba for Ethiopia last week.

A mediator from the Organization of African Unity, Nigerian Foreign Minister Joseph Garba, arrived in Mogadishu from Addis Ababa today. He said the Ethiopians had "put some very tough proposals on the table," and he implied that one of the demands was withdrawal of all of Somalia's troops from the Ogaden.

Disclosures this week that Israel is selling arms to Ethiopia and Egypt is selling them to Somalia brought an announcement from the U.S. State Department that it had told both governments the United States opposes arms shipments to either side.

The Soviet news agency Tass said today the Soviet Union seeks a peaceful settlement of the war in Ethiopia's favor "through talks on the basis of mutual respect for sovereignty, territorial integrity and noninterference in the internal affairs of each other."

It accused Somalia of military actions that "glaringly contradict the principles of the U.N. Charter and the OAU decisions."

COUNTEROFFENSIVE — Ethiopia claimed Tuesday it has launched a major offensive to recapture the disputed Ogaden Desert. An official said troops are fanning out from the cities of Harar and Direedawa to recapture the rebel-held town of Jijiga. (AP Laserphoto Map)

Clanton Named To N.C. Council

Hobert Dee Clanton of Greenville has been appointed by Gov. Jim Hunt to the newly established N. C. Council for the Hearing Impaired.

He will be sworn in by N. C. Supreme Court Chief Justice Susie Sharp Feb. 7 during the Council's first meeting in Raleigh.

The 1977 N. C. General Assembly created the Council to advocate for the approximately 350,000 persons in the state who have hearing problems, including the 45,000 who are deaf. The Council is composed of representatives from eight state agencies, three organizations interested in deafness, five hearing-impaired consumers, and two legislators.

Clanton is a Vocational Rehabilitation counselor for the hearing impaired with the N. C. Division of Vocational Rehabilitation Services, serving Eastern N. C. out of Greenville. He is a 1969 graduate of the N. C. School for the Deaf and a 1975 graduate of Gallaudet College for the Deaf in Washington, D. C. He has received additional special training in working with the deaf.

He is president of the Tar Heel Lions Club of Raleigh; vice president of the N. C. Association for the Deaf; second vice president of the New Bern Club for the Deaf; and a member of the Advisory Board to East Carolina University's Program for Hearing Impaired Students.

Showing Film Of Voyages

A travel adventure film, "Sailing Adventures," by Captain Irving Johnson, will be presented at 8 p.m. on Thursday, Feb. 9 in Mendenhall Student Center.

The film is being shown under the sponsorship of the student center and is part of the annual Travel-Adventure Film Series.

Sailor Johnson was born on a New England Farm and has been going to sea since he was 17. Nearly half a century ago, in 1929, Johnson made the sailor's supreme voyage — around the Horn in a square rigger, "The Peking," which was bound from Hamburg to Chile for a cargo of nitrate.

Captain Johnson will narrate his film and lecture on sea voyages. Tickets for the public are $1.50 and can be purchased from the Central Ticket Office in advance or at the door prior to the hour of showing.

Klose Named To 'Moot' Bench

Robert C. Klose, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Woodward of 107 Oxford Rd., Greenville, has been selected by the International Section of the UNC-Chapel Hill Holderness Moot Court to sit on the Moot Court Bench for 1978-79.

The Holderness Moot Court Program is designed to provide law students with an opportunity to develop practical skills in legal research, legal writing and appellate oral advocacy.

Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

'Hagar The Horrible' Headed South For Birthday

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

SIESTA KEY, Fla. (AP) — Hagar the Horrible, the adorable abominable Viking with two horns sticking out of his helmet and the double umlaut over the first "a," has come South to ravage and pillage for the winter and to celebrate his 5th birthday.

Cartoonist Dik Browne, who dropped the "c" out of his first name long before he blessed Hagar with an umlaut, is getting to look more and more like his incarnation of Viking power, with long flowing hair, long flowing beard and a paunch to match.

Browne, a gentle Irishman born in New York's Yorkville section, was hunched over his drawing board in a rented Florida house working up a panel that had Hagar offering to play hopscotch with some Nordic tots and then crashing through the sidewalk on the first hop.

"How do you lay out a hopscotch court?" he implored everyone within earshot with all the helplessness of Hagar trying to figure out how the tiller works on a slave galley.

Hagar lit up Browne's imagination during one of the darkest years of his life. "My brother had just died. My sister had a complete breakdown. My wife's father died. Her mother lost an eye to cancer. And I suffered a detached retina while driving through southern New Jersey in a blizzard at the height of gas rationing. That led to glaucoma. I thought some Russian novelist had taken over writing my life."

But Browne clung to Hagar, his lifeline. "writing gags with my son taking them down all the way back in the ambulance."

Now the vexed but never vicious Viking appears in 910 newspapers around the world and ranks just behind Blondie, Peanuts and Beetle Bailey in best selling cartoon strips.

"Hagar the Horrible" is the name Browne's kids called him when he used to rough house with them back in the days when he was working as an artist for the advertising agencies, drawing the Campbell soup kids and Chiquita bananas.

The hapless Viking was the booty of his long quest for a universal comic character who "needed no footnote or elaborate explanation. Everyone knows what a Viking looks like. I never met anyone who didn't like a Viking. Even the people they used to rape and loot go around telling everyone they must have a little Viking blood if they have even a tint of blond hair."

Hagar, a thoroughly domesticated Viking with the everyday problems of bringing home the loot to a bossy wife and a son who doesn't shape up as a novice plunderer and a daughter who wants to be a warrior-maiden, fits Browne's definition of "comedy as second cousin to tragedy."

"Turn 'Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?' inside out and you have Andy Capp," he explains. "Life goes on. When Rome fell, some guy had to take out the garbage and change the wheel on his chariot."

Browne started out in life with a dream of "becoming Willy Scoop, the boy reporter." He got a job as a copy boy in the art department of the New York Journal, began doodling around with pen sketches and wound up drawing maps and charts for Newsweek. In the Army, assigned to an engineering outfit, he worked up a poster gag about camouflage that became a classic: "All right, Lieutenant, where the hell are the airplanes?"

He gravitated into ad work after the war and then was contacted by King Features to do the art work for a new cartoon that Mort Walker, creator of "Beetle Bailey," was working up.

The result, now appearing in some 600 newspapers, was "Hi and Lois," with Walker supplying the ideas and Browne the cartoon figures. "We've been together 24 years and have never had a written contract."

Browne's work-a-day world consists of turning out two cartoon strips seven days a week, 52 weeks out of the year, with no time out for illness or vacations. His regular studio is in the cellar of his Wilton, Conn., home.

Hagar's mail has been steady and heavy. Browne did one where Hagar was about to attack a castle when the king cried out. "My lawyer will speak for me." A tiny hole opened in a turret and a lawyer began to read the riot act to Hagar, accusing him of trespass, breaking and entering, burglary and a whole compendium of crime. "Right on," agreed Hagar's own warriors. The king had the final word: "He's expensive, but he's good."

"Lawyers all over the country, including Gov. Connolly wrote in asking for that panel," recalls Browne. "It was one of the few nice gags ever written about the profession."

Occasionally women write angry letters to Hagar. "He is a bit of a chauvinist," admits his creator. "But one woman who mistook the word ravage for ravish wrote in to complain that rape is never fun. I agree. Hagar never carries off women, and never bashed them over the head. He's a family man. When he loots a town, he's always going around looking for a size 52 dress for his wife."

Small Farms In Soviet Continuing To Flourish

By CHARLES M. MADIGAN
MOSCOW (UPI) — President Leonid Brezhnev's hard-fought battle to make the small farmer a fixture in Soviet collective agriculture is apparently beginning to bear fruit.

Brezhnev, long an advocate of the use of small, independent plots to increase agricultural production, succeeded in getting the concept inserted into the new Soviet constitution.

He prevailed in the battle against political forces who warned the small plots would lead to speculation and greed on the part of independent farmers.

And he was able to include in the constitution a section requiring the state to provide all of the assistance possible to the collective farm workers who set up their own small plots.

The newspaper Bakinsky Rabochy recently reported that in many areas of the Soviet Union the small plots are providing an important new source of income and production.

At the same time, it noted that the fears of opponents of the plan were apparently justified in some cases, calling on prosecutors and officials to take a hard line on instances of speculation.

In one collective farm area of Azerbaijan in the Caucasus, production on the farms has increased almost hand-in-hand with profits from the small plots operated by some 600 families.

"We visited one farmer with five children who has a monthly income of $409," the newspaper reported.

"The fact that they have cows on their plot means they always have meat, milk and butter and they sell at market whatever is left."

"This situation is profitable not only to the collective farm but to the collective farmer, too," the newspaper reported.

"By jubilee day in November, the farm had sold to the state more than 156 tons of milk and 29 tons of meat, which more than exceeded the annual plan."

In that region, it reported, the collective farm board constantly provided seed and forage at low prices to the small plot farmers, helping to make up for the fact that grazing land is in short supply.

The paper reported that, unfortunately, the program is not doing as well in some other regions.

In one case, it reported, a collective farm manager refused to provide any assistance to his small plot farmers.

"What's all the fuss about," the farm chairman reportedly said. "Let them buy their meat and butter and milk in the stores. I have enough problems already."

In that region, the paper said, the number of livestock kept by small plot farmers dropped by drastic proportions over the past few years, indicating it was all but impossible to feed and care for the animals without support from the main collective.

In another region, investigators found large scale speculation in meat production among farmers who had much larger herds than they reported to the state.

In that region, where there were 690 plots, it was reported that only 147 sheep were being raised for wool and slaughter. But an inspection found that on only 45 of the 690 plots, there were some 316 sheep and more than 60 head of cattle.

One worker registered only two cows and five sheep, but was feeding five cows and 35 sheep.

Despite this problem, the newspaper praised the system but called on the authorities to crack down on speculation.

Tar Heel A Devastating Agent

By IRVING DESSFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Today, in a space-age world of automatic photography and jet plane travel, it's hard to comprehend the enormous difficulties endured and overcome by pioneers in travel photography at the turn of the century.

Do you remember the American legend in travel photography who brought pictures of people and sights from around the globe to the nation's hamlets and cities for more than fifty years?

LAST STOP—ALL OUT! An incredible train accident at Montparnasse Railroad Station, Paris, in 1895, was photographed by Burton Holmes whose exploits are recounted in "The Man Who Photographed The World," a long overdue book about America's pioneer travelogue man.

Burton Holmes, of course! — the man who invented the word "Travelogue" to describe his worldwide adventures in slides and motion pictures.

In the past two decades since his death in 1958, the name and fame of Burton Holmes has become gradually obscure but now, at last, a magnificent album of his photographs and experiences has been published.

"The Man Who Photographed The World — Burton Holmes: Travelogues 1892-1938," selected and edited by Genoa Caldwell, is an impressive art book by Harry N. Abrams, New York ($25). It includes a perceptive introduction by Irving Wallace and is illustrated by 340 photographs of which 40 are full-page color plates.

In 1883, at age 13, Holmes bought his first camera. He became a full-fledged amateur fan, which meant doing his own darkroom work. Photography became his lifelong involvement for 75 years until his death at age 88.

Another early passion was the desire to travel it didn't much matter where. He wanted to see and photograph the fascinating sights and interesting people in the next county, a neighboring state, another country or a different continent.

At 16, Holmes quit school to accompany his grandmother on his first trip to Europe, camera in hand. In 1880, another trip abroad became the basis for his first travel-slide talk presentation. It was impressive enough to be done as a public show and earned $350 for his Chicago Camera Club. Two years later, he made a five-month photo tour of Japan during which some of his slides were exquisitely hand-colored by Japanese artists.

The depression of 1893 made him face the necessity of earning money. Rather than "go to work," he put together a slide show on Japan, hired a hall, and sold tickets for two public shows. They were his first "professional" appearances. They were sellouts, and his career as "The Travelogue Man" was successfully launched.

What followed is best summed up by Irving Wallace in the introduction, reprinted from an article he wrote in 1947 and which remains the definitive summation:

"Burton Holmes, a brisk, immaculate, chunky man with gray Vandyke beard, erect bearing, and precise speech, is one of the seven wonders of the entertainment world. As Everyman's tourist, Holmes has crossed the Atlantic Ocean 30 times, the Pacific Ocean 20

By Dr. H.G. JONES
For the Associated Press
CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — In the last year of the American Civil War, a North Carolina native carried out daring espionage operations for the Confederacy.

Jacob Thompson was selected by President Jefferson Davis to serve as a secret agent in Canada. His object was to demoralize the Northern states.

He was well financed, taking $200,000 with him as he left Richmond and picking up several hundred thousand dollars more from Confederate raids on banks and payroll trains in such places as Kentucky and Vermont.

Funds were liberally spent in efforts to undermine morale in the North by fomenting political troubles.

For instance, Thompson apparently paid the editor of the New York Daily News $25,000 for editorial support of the peace movement. He spent perhaps $50,000 in support of James Robinson as a peace candidate for governor of Illinois, and he bought up about $50,000 in Northern gold in an effort to upset the economy.

That was pretty impressive work for a fellow who had been born in 1810 on a farm at Leasburg in North Carolina's Caswell County. The son of a substantial farmer, Nicholas Thompson, the boy attended Bingham School and then was graduated in 1831 from the University of North Carolina at the top of his class.

After tutoring for three terms at Chapel Hill, Thompson studied law under Judge J. M. Dick in Greensboro. He was admitted to the bar, then joined the exodus of North Carolinians moving southwestward.

In 1835, he settled in Pontotoc, Miss., an area that only a short time before had been taken from the Chickasaw Indians. There he quickly established a thriving practice, married Catherine Jones of a prosperous Mississippi family, and at the age of 28 was elected to Congress.

In Washington, the young House member was especially active in matters relating to the Indians, and soon he was chairman of the committees on public lands and Indian affairs. He remained in Congress for a dozen years, declining an appointment to the U. S. Senate in 1845. After retiring in 1851, he turned down appointment as consul to Cuba.

But politics tugged at him and in the mid-1850s, he sought the Senate seat that he had previously declined. He lost by two votes in the caucus to a former secretary of war, Jefferson Davis.

President James Buchanan, however, impressed by Thompson's familiarity with public lands and Indian affairs, named him secretary of the interior in 1857. Out of disparate agencies, the North Carolina native welded together an efficient department.

When it became clear that Mississippi would secede from the Union in January, 1861, Thompson resigned from the cabinet and aided in the enrollment of state troops.

Thompson accepted a commission in the Confederate army. He was an aide to General Beauregard at Shiloh, served on Pemberton's staff at Vicksburg, and for a time was inspector general in the army. He then resigned and served in the Mississippi legislature.

In 1864, President Jefferson called his old political opponent to Richmond and persuaded him to become the chief Confederate agent in Canada. There he was to encourage Southern sympathizers in the North and to seek the release of Confederates from prisons near the border.

Among the most memorable raids — one which Thompson supposedly disapproved — was the daring infiltration of the town of St. Albans, Vt., by Confederate sympathizers.

The men practically took over the town, robbed its bank, and rode off with about $175,000.

With the defeat of Confederacy in 1865, Thompson became a center of controversy. Some Northern politicians sought to implicate him in John Wilkes Booth's assassination of President Lincoln, and some leading Southerners suspected him of having retained for his personal use some $300,000 that rightfully belonged to the defunct Confederate government.

The latter suspicion was heightened when Thompson refused to return to the United States immediately. Instead, he and his wife remained in Canada for a while, then spent a couple years in Europe.

No less a person than John C. Breckinridge, the former secretary of war for the Confederacy, visited him and sought unsuccessfully to get a full accounting of the funds that had been at Thompson's disposal.

Thompson claimed that he was due compensation for the destruction of his property at home during the war, and when he returned to the United States in 1868, he moved his family to Memphis, Tenn., where he took an active part in the civic and religious life of the community and managed his thousand acres of land in several states.

He died in 1885, leaving an estate estimated at a half million dollars. A three-panel stained glass altar window memorializes him in Calvary Episcopal Church in Memphis, where he is buried in Elmwood Cemetery.

times, and has gone completely around the world six times. He has spent 55 summers abroad and recorded a half-million feet of film of those summers. He was the first person to take motion picture cameras into Russia and Japan. He witnessed the regular decennial performance of the Passion Play at Oberammergau in 1890, attended the first modern Olympics at Athens in 1896. He rode the first Trans-Siberian train across Russia and photographed the world's first airplane meet at Rheims.

"As the fruit of these travels," Wallace said, "Burton Holmes has delivered approximately 8,000 illustrated lectures that have grossed, according to Variety magazine, $5 million in 53 winters.

"His travelogues have won him such popularity that he holds the record for playing in the longest one-man run in American show business. In five-and-a-half decades past, Burton Holmes has successively met the hectic competition of big-time vaudeville, stage, silent pictures, radio and talking pictures, and has survived them all."

Burton insisted he was a performer, not a lecturer, with his travelogues. It's a word he coined and defined: "Travelogue — the gist of a journey, ground fine by discrimination, leavened with information, seasoned with humor, fashioned in literary form and embellished with pictures that delight the eye, while the spoken story charms the ear."

In a typical season, Holmes made 187 appearances, starting in San Francisco in September 1945 and winding up in New York in April 1946. People paid up to $1.50 each to attend his shows at a time when the best Hollywood movies could be seen for a dime. He averaged six travelogues a week, spoke for two hours at each. In his entire career, Holmes missed only two college dates due to severe laryngitis. Even when an auto accident in Finland left him with broken bones, he appeared in a wheelchair to fulfill his 1939 schedule of 129 engagements.

When motion pictures and Hollywood's rising popularity loomed as a competitive threat, he didn't fight — he joined forces. Holmes contracted to make 52 travel shorts per year from 1915 and 1921. Later, his travelogues were released in four languages. In 1933 he made his radio debut and in 1944 made his first appearance on television.

His most popular travelogue would be right on target today: "The Panama Canal." It was shown in 1912 when the canal was under construction and news-hungry Americans flocked to see and hear about it.

"To travel is to possess the world," was Holmes' favorite personal inscription and it still rings true today. It is an unselfish possession, he pointed out, for it makes no one else the poorer and it can be shared with countless others. And, like photography, you are free to enjoy its dividends always.

"The Man Who Photographed The World — Burton Holmes" is a long-overdue reminder of his exploits and a well-deserved tribute to a photographic pioneer.

Gravity Helps Keep Air Clean

HOMER CITY, Pa. (AP) — Gravity is helping keep the air clean in this western Pennsylvania region.

Sulfur is being removed from coal before it is burned in an electric generating plant here by a process using the force of gravity to separate the two substances. This greatly reduces emission of sulfur dioxide gas, which is an air pollutant, from the plant's smoke stacks, explains William G. Kuhns, of General Public Utilities Corp. which runs the Homer City plant.

The process, in addition to reducing air pollution, will cut tens of millions of dollars from the cost of building and operating the generating plant, compared to methods now used to remove sulfur from smoke stack gases after the coal has been burned, Kuhns says.

Eastern PTA Meets Thursday

The Eastern Elementary PTA will meet Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the school Multi-Purpose Room.

Reginald Gray will speak on the school's accreditation. There will be a short business session following, including a discussion of several money-making projects.

All parents are urged to attend.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market advanced broadly today, extending the rally it began on Tuesday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 2.25 to 781.10 in the first half hour.

Gainers outnumbered losers by more than a 5-2 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts noted some "catch-up" buying by investors who missed Tuesday's session, which opened an hour late in New York because of a severe snowstorm.

They also cited continuing hopes that a compromise might be impending in Washington on natural-gas prices, breaking an impasse on proposed energy legislation.

Trans World Airlines was the early volume leader among NYSE issues, up 1/4 at 12. A 22,500-share block traded at that price.

Advances outnumbered declines by more than a 2-1 spread at the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 14.73 million shares against 11.63 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index rose .44 to 50.08.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .74 at 123.66.

Heavy Agenda For City Council Meet

The City Council will tackle a 27-item agenda at Thursday's 8 p.m. meeting at city hall.

Items scheduled under "old business" include: appointments to boards and commissions; public hearing on the 1978-79 Community Development Program; public hearing on the preliminary assessment roll on improvements to Fourth Street;

Public hearings on the closing of portions of Cedar Street and Seventh Street; public hearing on rezoning 21.4 acres west of the city landfill from RA-20 to R-6; public hearing on a proposed amendment to the cable television ordinance;

Consideration of a resolution approving the transfer of effective ownership and control of franchise and cable television system of Greenville Cable TV Inc.; consideration of the South Evans Redevelopment Plan; consideration of the acceptance and dedication of Barnes Street in Section III of Windy Ridge; and consideration of an application for renewal of a mobile home permit.

Request by the Downtown Greenville Association for removal of all parking meters in the Central Business District; bond order authorizing the issuance of electric system bonds in the amount of $200,000; resolution of appreciation to Dr. M. B. Massey;

Consideration of a resolution declaring the intent of the board to close a portion of Radio Road and calling for a public hearing at the March meeting; consideration of an ordinance providing for the repair, closing, or demolition of abandoned structures;

Proposed ordinance amending the city's personnel policies ordinance regarding maternity leave; approval of a proposal by the North Carolina League of Municipalities for revising the city's personnel policies, pay plan, and classification plan;

Scheduling of a public hearing on a request for rezoning 53 acres on NC 33 one mile east of Green Street from RA-20 to R-6; receipt of the semi-annual reports of the Joint City-County and Greenville Planning and Zoning Commissions;

Consideration of requests for privilege license waivers; authorization for the tax collector to advertise delinquent 1977 real property taxes and to conduct the lien sale;

Consideration of requests for release and refund of city taxes; consideration of bids for a transit vehicle; consideration of bids on a night-vision scope system and accessories for the Detectives and Narcotics Division of the Police Department; and approval of a resolution authorizing the execution of a grant agreement for the Airport Authority.

Farmville Bd...

Resolutions were passed showing intent to annex the U. S. 264-West area and the site of the Valor Division of U. S. Industries. Public hearings will be held Apr. 1.

Acceptances were made of $100,000 from the State Department of Transportation for street improvements in connection with the Downtown Improvement Project and of Clean Water Bond Sewer Grants for the U. S. 264-West Sewer Extension and the U. S. 264-A West and State Road 1143 Sewer Extensions.

The town administrator was asked not to reenter a contract with the Midwest Commission to continue the Older Adult Nutrition Program unless the meals being provided can be improved. Commissioners called the food being served since the caterers were changed from a Farmville firm to one outside the area "poor."

Pitt County Health Director Roger Barnaby discussed health needs in Farmville in connection with a five-year health plan he is developing. Commissioners told him transportation might be a need here and that, if he solved the stray dog problem here, he would be a town hero.

An ordinance to provide six-foot opaque fencing and other cleanups at junkyards was enacted. Those affected have until July 1 to comply.

It was noted that any fire alarm boxes that become damaged or are used more than once for a false alarm should be removed, as the system is no longer needed nor required.

Margaret Sugg was appointed by Mayor Sara Albritton as a member of the Recreation Committee.

A residence at 530 S. George Street was ordered to be either repaired by Apr. 7 or demolished.

She taught in high schools in Roanoke Rapids and Wadesboro and was Director of Guidance at R. M. Wilson Junior High School in Rocky Mount. She was Assistant Supervisor of the Teacher Training Program of the ECU English Department from 1959-66. She edited the N. C. English Teacher Magazine and contributed to the N. C. High School Journal and the N. C. Folklore Magazine.

She was both secretary and president of the N. C. English Association; chairman of the Editorial Board of the N. C. English Teachers Association; secretary-treasurer of the N. C. Virginia English Teachers Association; and a charter member and faculty advisor of the Sigma Tau Delta Honorary English Fraternity; chairman of the Freshman Committee of the English Department; and held memberships in the Modern Languages Association; the National Council of Teachers of English; the Anson County Historical Association; Phi Theta Kappa, Phi Rho Pi, and Delta Kappa Gamma honorary societies.

She was named a full professor at ECU in 1965.

Surviving her are her mother, Mrs. Mabel Herman Caraway of Wadesboro, and two sisters, Mrs. William Sineath of Wrightsville Beach and Mrs. J. Herbert Hildreth of Wadesboro.

The family suggests that those wishing to do so may contribute to the State Scholarship Fund of the Delta Kappa Gamma Society. Checks may be made payable to Eta State, Delta Kappa Gamma in memory of Dr. Hermine Caraway and mailed to Miss Ida Belle Moore, 1517 Oriole Place, Greensboro, N. C. 27408.

Student Dies In Initiation

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Authorities and school officials are investigating the death of a 20-year-old junior at North Carolina Central University who collapsed during an off-campus fraternity initiation rite.

The student, Nathaniel Swinson of Kinston, was dead on arrival Sunday morning at Durham County General Hospital, about six hours after he collapsed.

A spokesman said the university is conducting an investigation "to see as far as possible that things like this don't happen again." Several members of the fraternity, Omega Psi Phi, were questioned by law-enforcement authorities.

The spokesman said a chapter of the fraternity had been suspended from operating on campus more than a year ago after "some infraction" school rules, but had been reorganized and received a new charter from the national fraternity.

Approved fraternities and sororities are permitted to conduct initiations on university grounds as long as university rules are not broken, he said.

Two students, Edmond Purdie and Kenneth Koonce, said they sat up "most of the night" with Swinson after his collapse. They told police Swinson was among 15 pledges who were required to do exercises and run four miles Saturday night.

When the run ended about 3 a.m., Swinson was sweating heavily and said he had fallen in a ditch. After resting half an hour, the pledges began running wind sprints and Swinson collapsed from cramps. He was taken into an apartment, placed in a tub of hot salt water and given a glass of salt water at his request.

He was later wrapped in several blankets. At about 8:30 a.m. he was taken to a hospital. After drinking a bottle of apple juice on the way to the hospital, he became very dizzy and couldn't hold his head up, the students said.

School officials said Swinson came to the university on a football scholarship and had an insignificant history of high blood pressure. Dr. S.E. Harrell, a school physician, described Swinson as "a big healthy fellow, 200 pounds."

Dr. Mack Reavis, a state medical examiner, said the cause of death had not been determined. An autopsy was performed Sunday, but the outcome of several tests would not be available for several days, Reavis said Tuesday.

Union Election Request Dropped

LENOIR, N.C. (AP) — The United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners Union of America (AFL-CIO) has withdrawn a petition for a union election of Broyhill furniture workers at Lenoir.

The petition filed Jan. 18 with the National Labor Relations Board in Winston-Salem had petitioned for a vote in seven plants involving about 1,300 workers.

Herbert L. Thomas, union representative, said the petition was withdrawn because as a result of worker turnover it did not know whether it had the required 30 per cent of names on the petition.

But Paul Broyhill, chairman of Broyhill industries, said, "This flopping by the union makes it appear it's not sure of its standing with Lenoir furniture workers. I have confidence that the employees will stick with the stability of the company."

Attorney Will Coax Polanski

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The attorney for fugitive movie director Roman Polanski has flown to Paris to try to persuade his client to return to the United States and face sentencing for having sex with a 13-year-old girl.

A secretary at lawyer Douglas Dalton's office confirmed Tuesday that Dalton was in Paris and probably would remain there this week.

Polanski fled to London the night before he was to have been sentenced Feb. 1 on the charge of having sexual intercourse with a minor — an offense previously known as statutory rape. The Polish-born director then flew to Paris, where, because he is a French citizen, he cannot be extradited.

Nonetheless, the district attorney's office here was preparing extradition papers for Polanski.

Mark The End Of Mardi Gras

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Midnight church bells ringing from St. Louis Cathedral marked the beginning of the 40-day Lenten season and the end of Mardi Gras, but parties roared on today for many who refused to let it end.

Cleanup crews collected tons of trash in the French Quarter.

Two weeks of Carnival, with its daily parades, climaxed with a Mardi Gras somewhat dampened by the wounding of a float rider and by cold, wet weather that forced cancellation of the Comus parade Tuesday night.

A costumed rider on a homemade float in the Elks' Krewe of Orleanians parade was shot and wounded in a squabble with a spectator over a wad of beads. The reveler, identified as Carlo Romano, 30, of suburban Gretna, was in stable condition with a chest wound.

Other men jumped from the float and chased the gunman into the crowd, but he escaped.

Accounts varied as to what provoked the shooting. One said the man on the ground was angered when hit by the beads tossed from the float. Another witness said someone in the crowd hurled beads at the float and the riders threatened to climb down and fight.

Parade crowds were thinner than usual because of temperatures in the low 40s and a nippy north wind. Many bundled up in blankets and bed rolls.

Warmer celebrations in past years lured upwards of one million people, many in scanty costume.

Nuclear Export Curbs Favored

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate and House agree almost unanimously that the United States should try to limit the spread of atomic weapons by putting tighter controls on nuclear exports.

By an 88-3 vote Tuesday, the Senate approved a non-proliferation bill similar in practically all major areas to a measure adopted on a 411-0 vote in the House last year.

Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, floor manager of the Senate legislation, said he foresees little difficulty in reaching an agreement on a single version when Senate and House negotiators meet in conference. The bill has been on Capitol Hill for more than two years.

Four-Laning Is Recommended

BOONE, N.C. (AP) — Widening of a 5.3-mile segment of U.S. 321 to four lanes between here and Blowing Rock has been recommended by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers in an environmental-impact statement.

"The existing two-lane highway does not have sufficient capacity to serve the current 6,500-plus vehicles per average day. A four-lane facility will have adequate capacity to serve the estimated future traffic of 16,000-plus vehicles per average day," said the engineers' statement.

The impact statement is the first step necessary for the state Department of Transportation to obtain a permit from the corps to reroute 3,550 feet of Middle Fork Creek for the highway-widening project.

'Lost' Rampants Defeated By Bertie

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Tuesday night, Rose High School could have used him. It seems like the entire basketball team disappeared.

Oh, there was a team out there on the court, but in no way did it resemble the same one that beat Rocky Mount Friday night and moved into a first place tie.

The one that played Tuesday night, losing to Bertie, 79-64, couldn't have been the same one. The one that played Rocky Mount shot well, played good defense, and avoided turnovers.

And because of it, they no longer are a first place team. "I guess Friday just took too much out of us," a thoroughly disgusted Coach Jim Brewington said. "It was just one of those games where nothing went right for us."

"We got nothing out of our inside game, and the outside shooters couldn't hit at all. They (Bertie) had everything going for them and they took complete advantage of it."

"I thought they (the Rampants) realized how important every game was, but I guess I was wrong. I just hope that they remember come Friday night," Brewington added. Friday, Rose must travel to Northern Nash.

Bertie shot well and rebounded well enough. The Falcons had trouble handling the ball, committing 27 turnovers, but they found that the Rampants were just as fumble-fingered.

Giving It Up

Rose High School's Anthony Bryant, partially hidden behind Bertie's Edward Outlaw (20) pushes a pass out of the lane after he found his path to the basket blocked during action last night. Other Falcon players guarding him include Julius Sessoms (21) and Jean Williams (34). Bertie upset the Rampants, 79-64, last night, knocking Rose out of first place in Division I. (Reflector Photo by Woody Peele)

Many times, Rose would force a turnover, only to throw the ball away trying to make an outlet pass. The Rampants ended up with 29 turnovers of their own.

The rebounding, surprisingly, was fairly even, with Bertie holding only a 44-42 edge. Shooting was what made the big difference. The usually keen-eyed Rampants hit only 25 of 67 attempts, a cool 37.3 per cent.

Bertie banged in 35 of 60 for a hot 58.3 per cent. For a while there, it looked like the Rose team that we've grown used to seeing, as the Rampants rolled out to an 11-point lead early in the second period. But from that 11-point spread, Rose was outscored, 28-6, going to an 11-point deficit. The Rampants came back to within five before Bertie once more pulled away again to a final margin of as much as 18 points.

Clack Criticizes Tube

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Jim Clack, offensive guard for the Pittsburgh Steelers, said that television was hurting football more than it was helping it, in a talk before the Greenville Sports Club yesterday.

"Television is getting too critical of everything," the ten-year veteran said. "Officials are human and make mistakes, but the media, especially television, is blowing it all out of perspective."

He added that incidents like the George Atkinson-Lynn Swann case hurt the team, requiring Coach Chuck Noll to be involved in a trial rather than paying attention to football. "Atkinson should have been suspended for five games," Clack declared. "Football should have no place for people who are out to hurt other people."

Clack blamed this year's somewhat unsuccessful year for the Steelers on too many outside interests by the players. "We have the best talent in pro football. We're a close-knit group that enjoys playing together. But mistakes killed us in the playoffs. Denver didn't make mistakes, and that is why they won. They were not really an outstanding team."

The former Wake Forest lineman said that Noll is the guiding light of the Steelers. "Things were going bad in Pittsburgh till Noll came along and turned things around. Everyone has faith in him. He inherited one of the worst teams in football, but drafted athletes and molded them to fit the team's needs."

Clack said that Noll's motto, "Do not be denied" had become the attitude of the Steelers. "This is the difference in winning and losing."

Clack described the typical week for a pro football team. "Monday, we have the day off, and Tuesday is a light workout day, where we see films and get criticized. Our workout is just to loosen up. Wednesday through Friday, we hit, and we go live all the time. That's why our line is so good. Saturday, the specialty teams get their workouts, and then Sunday, we play the game."

Jenkins Promises To Keep Contract

Dr. Leo Jenkins, chancellor of East Carolina University, has told ECU basketball coach Larry Gillman that his three-year contract will be honored.

According to reports, Gillman met with his team after conferring with Dr. Jenkins and told the players that he had been assured that he would retain his post for the next season. There have been rumors for several weeks that the coach would not be retained after the end of the season.

Jenkins, when questioned, said that Gillman had come to him and asked where he stood. "I told him that historically, we have always honored our contracts with everyone associated with the university. We have every intention of honoring the contract with him."

Jenkins, who will retire at the end of the current academic year, said that the university would honor contracts as long as he was at East Carolina.

The chancellor added that Gillman had not specifically asked if he would be the head coach next year. "He just wanted to know where he stood and we talked in generalities."

One source added that honoring a contract can take on several forms, and pointed out that the contract of Tom Quinn, who was dismissed with one year remaining on his contract, was fulfilled by the university.

Officials at The Citadel scheduled a news conference this afternoon and were expected to confirm that football Coach Bobby Ross is resigning to become an assistant coach with the Kansas City Chiefs of the NFL.

Ross Reportedly Going To Chiefs

The National Football League team was expected to announce Ross' decision at the same time.

Ross, 41, will become specialty teams coach under new Chiefs Coach Marv Levy, a Columbia, S.C., newspaper said in today's editions. The two were together at William and Mary.

Since taking over at the state-supported military school in December 1972, Ross' teams have had a 24-31 record. His best seasons were 6-5 in 1975 and '76. Last fall the Southern Conference member won five and lost six.

The Bulldogs were scheduled to begin spring practice Monday but that is expected to be postponed until a search for a new coach is complete.

Ayden-Grifton Upsets Conley

Tyson For Two

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer
LITTLEFIELD — With just under two minutes left in the game, Ayden-Grifton center James Leggett stole the ball and drove the length of the court before being fouled by D. H. Conley's Mike Cox. Leggett dropped in both ends of a one-and-one to put the Chargers ahead for good in what had been a see-saw battle and Ayden-Grifton won 55-53.

It was fitting that a pair of free throws should be the deciding points, and it was also fitting that Leggett should be the one to make them, because both were instrumental in the Chargers' upset.

"I think the difference in the game was at the free throw line," said a disappointed Viking coach Shelly Marsh. The Vikings were just 15 of 9 from the line. "If we had made the front end of some one-and-one's, we would have been all right."

While Conley was having its troubles at the charity stripe, the free shots were a breeze for the Chargers. They canned their first 15 opportunities from the line and ended up 15-17, missing two that could have put the game out of reach in the final seconds.

And then there was Leggett. The lithe 6-6 inside man worked well against Conley's 6-10 Al Tyson, as the two had another of their classic battles. Tyson scored nearly at will with lob passes against the Charger zone, while Leggett had to work a little harder for his shots over Tyson's outstretched arms. Tyson led all scorers with 29 points, while Leggett scored 25.

"It was another good match-up between Al and James," said Charger coach Bob Murphrey. "Neither one could stop the other, it looked like. I thought Leggett made the big plays for us offensively and defensively. He got the steal and made the one-and-one to put us ahead."

The steal was part of a wild finish to what had begun as an extremely slow fourth quarter.

The teams went into the period with the Vikings ahead 47-46. Ricky Rountree's semi-dunk to cap a fast break and Tyson's shot from underneath gave the Vikes a 51-46 lead, but they were the only scores for the first 4:50 of the period.

Then things started to move. Terry Morris brought the Chargers to within three with a jumper from the free throw line at the 3:10 mark, and after Cox missed a foul shot, Henry Ormond scored on a 15-footer from the left side to make it a one-point ballgame with 2:09 left.

Leggett's steal came on the next trip down the court and his two free throws made it 52-51 with 1:47 on the clock.

Conley missed on a field goal attempt and Cox was fouled with 1:28 left, but he missed the shot and Dail was hacked on the rebound. He made both free throws to put the Chargers up by three with 1:24 left.

The lead enabled Ayden-Grifton to switch back to a zone, but Tyson got the ball inside for an easy shot to make it 54-53 with 1:02 left.

The Chargers got the ball down the court past the Viking press, but Dail traveled on a drive down the lane and the Vikes got the ball with a chance to take the lead. They missed two shots, however, and the Chargers grabbed the rebound after the second and ran the clock down to five seconds before Sheldon McCarter was fouled. He hit the first end of the one-and-one and missed the second, but the Chargers came down with the rebound to save the win.

"It was a good win; one that we needed," Murphrey said. "We needed a big win going into the tournament (next week). This is going to be a shot in the arm for us, I hope."

Marsh was not as happy looking towards next week, however. "We picked it up on defense, but our offense is not where we want it to be at tournament time."

The loss eliminates the Vikings, who led the Eastern Carolina Conference for nearly the entire season, from a chance to finish on top. They now have three losses after losing Friday night to North Lenoir, which leads the league with a 12-1 mark. The Vikings are 9-3, while Ayden-Grifton is now 8-5.

Leggett was the only Charger in double figures, while Little added 12 points for Conley.

Neither team shot well in the game. Conley was 24-55 for 43.6 per cent, while Ayden-Grifton was 20-54, 37.0 per cent. The Vikes held a 37-29 rebounding advantage, but were outscored 15-5 at the foul line.

Girls' Game
The girls' game was also a close battle, as Conley edged Ayden-Grifton 46-42.

Conley jumped to an early 16-11 lead, but the Chargerettes cut it to 26-25 at halftime and tied the game at 35 going into the final period.

Irene Lewis' pair of free throws at the 6:43 mark gave Ayden-Grifton a 38-37 lead, but Glenda Green converted a three-point play to give Conley a 40-38 lead.

The Chargerettes were able to tie the game at 40 on Karen Haseley's follow shot, but the Valkyries pushed back in front on free throws by Cassandra Tyson and Miriam Paramore.

Conley's girls, like the boys, were unable to hit from the foul line, and could have put the game away sooner had they scored on all their opportunities.

Annie Wooten scored 14 points and Annie Hardy 12 for the Valkyries, while Ayden-Grifton was led by Haseley's 18.

Conley's girls remain in the ECC lead with an 11-1 record, followed by C. B. Aycock at 11-2. The Chargerettes are now 8-5.

Friday night, Ayden-Grifton travels to C. B. Aycock on Friday for the final regular-season game, while Conley has two games remaining, at Greene Central Friday and at home to Southern Nash Saturday.

Martin Sweeps Pair From GCA

Greenville Christian was unable to overcome a terrific first-half deficit as a Knight rally came up short and they were defeated by Martin Academy 62-54 last night.

Martin raced to a 17-8 lead in the first quarter and extended it to 35-16 at the half. That proved to be a little too much for the Knights. They outscored the Pioneers 20-14 in the third quarter and 18-13 in the fourth, but still lost by eight.

Cliff Haislip led all scorers with 24 points for Martin, while Grady Smith and Victor Van-Nortwick added 14 each. Tim Sutton was the high man for Greenville Christian with 21 and Steve Tyburski had 11.

In the girls' game, the Lady Knights never stood a chance as they dropped a 42-10 decision. The Lady Pioneers outscored Martin 13-2 in the first quarter and held a 20-6 halftime edge. They held GCA to just four points in the second half.

Marsha Griffin was the only player in the game to score in double figures. She finished with 11 points.

The victories raise the Martin Academy records to 5-9 for the girls and 3-10 for the boys. Greenville Christian's girls are now 0-8, while the boys are 3-10. Friday night, Martin will travel to Pungo, while the Knights will host Falls Road.

Rams Get Past Southern Nash

SNOW HILL — Greene Central began the final week of the regular season with a twin-killing of the Southern Nash Firebirds. The Ram varsity gained a 71-62 win, while the girls took a 44-19 victory.

Southern Nash escaped only with the junior varsity game, 59-48.

In the girls' game, Greene Central rolled out to a 16-4 lead in the first period and was never in trouble. The Ewes built their lead out to 23-7 at the end of the half.

In the third period, the Ewes continued their slaughter, running the margin out to 38-13. Both teams scored six points in the final quarter.

Shannon Brown led Greene Central with 10 points, while C. Dunn had ten for Southern Nash.

The Greene Central boys built up an 18-12 lead in the first period, only to see it vanish in the second. Southern Nash came back with a 23-16 advantage, and charged into a 35-34 halftime lead.

The Rams turned that around in the third quarter, outscoring the Firebirds, 16-8, to regain the lead, 50-43. They outdid Southern, 21-19, in the final quarter for the win.

Johnny Croom fired in 24 points to lead the Rams, while James Best and Graylin Edwards each added 16. Timmy Tabron hit 20, Dwight Mitchell, 11, and Jeff Strickland, 10, for the Firebirds.

The Rams close out the regular season Friday by hosting D.H. Conley's Vikings.

Wilson Edges E.B. Aycock

WILSON — Wilson Junior High School gained a 63-62 victory over E.B. Aycock Junior High yesterday.

The Jaguars, who stuck close throughout the game, were never able to quite catch up in the closing quarter of the game.

Johnny Sheppard had a career high of 32 points to lead Aycock, while James Brewington added 16 points. Anthony Ruffin led Wilson with 25, while Ken Emory and Gary Coley each had 12.

Aycock, now 6-4, travels to Kinston on Friday.

Mattamuskeet Dropped By Bears

BEAR GRASS — Bear Grass swept a night of basketball from Mattamuskeet High School last night. The Bears won the boys' varsity game, 84-66, took the girls' game, 69-35, and gained a 41-36 triumph in the junior varsity.

The Lady Bears pulled ahead in the first period, taking a 15-8 lead. They continued to pull away in the second quarter, running up a 28-15 halftime lead.

Bear Grass kept it up in the third period, with a 27-6 margin, upping the lead to 55-21. Both teams scored 14 points in the final quarter.

Patricia Taylor led the Bears with 24 points, while Joette Rogers added 10. Augusta Gray had 12 for Mattamuskeet.

The Bears broke into a 21-14 lead in the first quarter of the boys game. Bear Grass held onto that lead, expanding it to 40-26 at the horn.

The margin continued to grow during the third period, climbing to 61-43. Like the girls, both teams matched points in the final quarter, each scoring 23.

Jesse Bullock led the Bears with 24 points, while Jackie Harrison added 17. Norris Wallace had 15 and Duane Bullock had 12. Benny Harris led the Lakers with 17, while Jerry Bryant had 15 and Michael Topping had 13.

The Bears close out the regular season on Friday, traveling to Aurora.

Roanoke In Romp Over N. Johnston

ROBERSONVILLE — Roanoke's boys' and girls' basketball teams romped to easy victories over North Johnston last night. The girls won 51-35, while the boys took a 65-46 victory.

In the girls' game, Roanoke roared out to an 18-8 first-quarter advantage and held a 28-18 halftime lead. The Squaws put the game out of reach in the third quarter when they outscored the Lady Panthers 18-2 for a 46-20 advantage.

Yvette Modica scored 13 points, Carolyn Duggins 12 and Barbara Bullock 10 to pace the Squaws, while the Lady Panthers were led by Beth Foster with 14.

The Redskins started with a 13-10 first-quarter lead and steadily stretched it out during the remaining three quarters. They were ahead 29-23 at halftime and 47-37 at the end of the third quarter.

Edward Ward led all scorers with 26 points for Roanoke, while

Farmville Central Defeats C.B. Aycock

FARMVILLE — Farmville Central and Charles B. Aycock split a pair of Eastern Carolina Conference games last night. The Farmville boys won their outing, 49-39, while the Aycock girls stayed close to league-leading Conley, 59-43.

Farmville Central's junior varsity rolled up a 101-58 win in its game.

The Jaguars slipped into an 11-10 lead in the first period, then pulled away in the second frame.

They outthrew the Falcons, 15-4, to gain a 26-14 halftime lead.

Aycock tried for a comeback in the second half, but was able to cut only one point off the lead in each of the quarters. The Falcons trailed, 39-28, going into the final quarter, and got only a point closer.

James Tyson led Farmville with 21 points, while Donald Freeman contributed 15. Barry Uzzell hit 11 to lead the Falcons.

Aycock's girls edged ahead in their game, 12-9, after a period of play. They continued to pull away in the second quarter building up a 31-20 halftime margin.

Farmville managed to cut two off that in the third period, closing to 41-32. But Aycock outthrew the Lady Jags, 18-11, in the final quarter.

Heleen Jones led Aycock with 27, while Rene Hales added 10. Pam Moye had 12 and Diana Gordon had 10 for Farmville.

Farmville Central plays host to North Lenoir on Friday, then closes out the regular season on Saturday at North Pitt.

Tigers Defeat Edenton Aces

WILLIAMSTON — The Williamston Tigers closed out the 1977-78 regular season last night with a pair of victories over Edenton. The Tigerettes won their game, 51-33, while the Williamston boys came away with a 67-57 win.

The victory left the Williamston girls with a 21-1 regular season record, while the boys broke even, 11-11.

In the girls' game, Williamston ran out to a 16-6 lead in the first period. The Tigerettes continued to pull away, and built up a 30-11 halftime edge.

Williamston boosted that lead to 40-19 by the end of the third period, and finished up by allowing Edenton a 14-11 margin in the closing quarter.

JoAnna Lilley led Williamston with 18 points, while Redmon had 21 to pace Edenton.

In the boys' game, Williamston tripled the score on Edenton in the first quarter, 18-6. Edenton made a comeback in the second period, however, 22-17, and trailed by 35-28 at the half.

Williamston added two points to its margin in the third quarter, taking a 52-43 lead into the final frame. The Tigers held off the Aces, 15-14, in that quarter.

Walter Harris led Williamston with 26 points, while Jimmy Barnes added 20 and Horace Wynne had 14. Linwood Morris had 19, Kelly White had 14 and Earthan Ward had 10 for Edenton.

Jamesville Gets Win Over Aurora Cagers

JAMESVILLE — Jamesville High School won a pair of Beaufort-Hyde-Martin Conference games from Aurora last night. The Bullets took the boys' game, 59-49, while the girls gained a 47-43 victory, in overtime.

In the girls game, Aurora jumped out to a 12-2 lead in the first period, but could not hold it. Jamesville came to life in the second quarter, outthrusting Aurora, 19-9, to tie it at 21-all at the half.

Both teams scored eight points during the third period, extending the score to 29-29. Then, in the final quarter, the two again matched points, 14-14, as the regulation ended with a 43-43 deadlock. Jamesville outthrew Aurora, 4-0 in the overtime for the win.

Joyce Manning led Jamesville with 23 points, while Edith James had 14 and Lori Modin had 10. Daphne Moore led Aurora with 14, while Lisa Griffin added 12.

Jamesville's boys ran out to an 11-7 lead in the first quarter of their game and were never caught. They outthrew Aurora, 19-12, in the second frame, for a 30-19 halftime lead.

Aurora cut into the lead in the third period, trimming it to 42-33. Jamesville outscored their guests, 17-16, in the final quarter.

Ricky Whitehurst led the Bullets with 27 points, while Tommy DiNardo had 16 and Trent Ange had 10. Robert Williams paced Aurora with 23, while Edwin Moore added 10.

Deacons, Cavaliers Can Gain Tie For 1st

By The Associated Press

Wake Forest, which has made a practice in recent weeks of defeating nationally ranked Atlantic Coast Conference teams, is now one of those teams itself.

After an absence of several weeks from the national ratings, the Deacons have emerged in the 14th spot, one notch below their most recent victim, Virginia.

North Carolina, which lost to Wake Forest earlier, fell to seventh this week, and Duke, which couldn't solve the Deacons either, dropped out altogether.

But it's all just icing on the cake for Wake Forest, which has rebounded from early-season defeats to become a serious challenger for the conference lead.

The Deacons and Virginia have opportunities to pull into a tie for first as early as tonight — with victories of their own and a little help from Maryland.

The Terrapins will be out for revenge tonight when they host North Carolina. Wake Forest will travel to Clemson and Virginia will visit Duke.

Wake Forest's recent resurgence can be attributed in large part to Leroy McDonald, who persuaded coach Carl Tacy to return him to the starting lineup.

As a regular in the last five games, McDonald has averaged about 15 points and shot 65 percent from the field. The Deacons have won four of the five games.

McDonald, however, feels he shouldn't be given too much of the credit.

"Everybody's just playing well," he said. "You can't say we're winning because I'm starting. It's everybody, even people who are coming off the bench."

Hawks Clinch Title In Win Over Panthers

BETHEL — North Lenoir gained a 57-49 victory over North Pitt last night, clinching the Eastern Carolina Conference boys' championship.

North Pitt's girls edged past North Lenoir, 34-32, in their game, while the North Pitt junior varsity took a 59-49 win.

The Hawks, coupling their win with a loss by D.H. Conley, moved out to a two-game lead in the standings, with just one game left to play.

North Pitt surprised them, however, with a 14-13 lead by the end of the first period. The Hawks were unable to shake the pesky Panthers, and trailed 27-26 at the end of the half.

Things stayed close during the third period, but the Hawks were finally able to get ahead, 40-39, at the end of the quarter. North Lenoir then outthrew the Panthers, 17-10, down the stretch to claim the win and the title.

Mitchell Wiggins tossed in 29 points, while Johnny Wiggins added 13 for the Hawks. Lawaskia Jenkins led North Pitt with 14, while Reginald Knight added 12 and Terry Shelton had 11.

In the girls' contest, North Lenoir slipped out into an 8-6 lead in the first period, but the Pant-HERS came back to tie it up at intermission, 15-15.

North Pitt then drew ahead in the third quarter, taking a 25-22 lead into the final frame. North Lenoir stayed close, and tied it at 32-32 late in the contest, but a basket by Cynthia Barnes with 40 seconds to go sealed it for the Pant-HERS.

Sue Grimes led North Pitt with 12 points, with Sherrod hitting 10 for The Lady Hawks.

How Tar Heel Representatives And Senators Voted

By Roll Call Report

HOUSE
BANKRUPTCY Rejected, 146 for and 262 against, an amendment to block creation of a new category of federal judges for bankruptcy cases. Defeat of the amendment left intact a proposed corps of bankruptcy judges who would have lifetime tenures and be essentially independent of U.S. district court judges. Such a system would replace the present system whereby bankruptcy "judges" actually are referees subordinate to district courts.

The new system is contained in HR 8200, a bill providing the first modernization of U.S. bankruptcy laws in 40 years. It later was passed and sent to the Senate.

Rep. George Danielson (D-Calif.), a sponsor of the amendment, argued that HR 8200 "would be setting up a super court, one that has greater jurisdiction than the U.S. district court."

Rep. Robert Drinan (D-Conn.), an opponent, said the new system is needed "so that the thousands of people who

Members voting "nay" favored establishing the new corps of bankruptcy judges.

Reps. Walter Jones (D-1), L.H. Fountain (D-2), Charles Whitley (D-3), Ike Andrews (D-4), Stephen Neal (D-5), Richardson Preyer (D-6), W.G. Heffner (D-8), James Martin (R-9), James Broyhill (R-10) and Lamar Gudger (D-11) voted "yea."

Rep. Charles Rose (D-7) voted "nay."

ENERGY Rejected, 143 for and 229 against, a substitute version of the bill (HR 1614) governing the extraction of oil, natural gas and other energy sources from the Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) of the U.S. This substitute was offered by the Republican minority of the House and generally was supported by the oil and gas industry.

HR 1614, the Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act, imposes a new array of rules and laws by which the federal government will lease the lucrative OCS lands to private energy companies. It updates a 1953 OCS statute. The bill later was passed and sent to conference with the Senate.

Among its many provisions, the substitute sought to limit test drilling by the federal government and curtail the role of the Occupational Health and Safety Administration (OSHA) in OCS operations. Also, it sought to block the bill's provision for dual leasing, under which the government would award one lease for exploration and another for production; it favored one lease for both processes.

Rep. Hamilton Fish (R-N.Y.), an opponent, called the substitute unfair to small energy companies and said it "clearly eliminates the authority to require compliance with state standards for the Clean Air Act."

Members voting "yea" favored the substitute.

Jones, Martin and Broyhill voted "yea."

Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Rose, Heffner and

Gudger voted "nay."

ENERGY Rejected, 187 for and 211 against, a second proposed substitute version of the Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act (see above vote). This was the substitute endorsed by the oil and gas industry. It was opposed by the Administration the Democratic leadership.

Rep. John Breaux (D-La.), sponsor of the substitute, said the House "should be trying to do everything humanly possible to maximize our own domestic production and at the same time (come) up with a realistic conservation program."

Rep. John Murphy (D-N.Y.), an opponent, said: "All along I have felt that industry's main objection to HR 1614 was the threat of competition...The Breaux-industry substitute serves only to reconfirm that suspicion."

Jones, Fountain, Whitley, Martin, Broyhill and Gudger voted "yea."

SENATE
REDWOODS Passed, 74 for and 20 against, a bill (S 1976) adding 48,000 acres to Redwood National Park in California, bringing to 76,000 the acreage of the 10-year-old park. Also, the bill designated a 30,000-acre buffer zone that could be added to the park by the Secretary of the Interior if he felt such action necessary to fend off man's encroachment. The bill later was passed and sent to the House.

Sen. James Abourezk (D-S.D.), a supporter, said that nearby logging operations pose a "threat" to the park that is "immediate, direct, extensive, and, without prompt congressional action, may very well be fatal."

Sen. S.I. Hayakawa (R-Calif.), an opponent, called the bill a "land grab" by the government which would create unemployment in the timber industry. "We already have 181,000 acres of old growth redwoods set aside...in local, state and federal parkland," he added.

Senators voting "nay" opposed the expansion of Redwood National Park.

Sen. Robert Morgan (D) voted "yea."

Sen. Jesse Helms (R) voted "nay."

REDWOODS Rejected, 28 for and 68 against, an amendment deleting from the Redwood National Park bill a provision establishing a 30,000-acre "park protection zone." The Secretary of Interior could incorporate all or part of the zone in the national park if he judged that necessary to protect the park. The amendment was proposed to S 1976 (see vote above).

Sen. S.I. Hayakawa (R-Calif.), the sponsor, called the zone "an incredible infringement on the private rights" of owners of the 30,000 acres.

Sen. James Abourezk (D-S.D.), an opponent, said the standby zone is needed because "we do not want to go back to 1968 again when we did not take enough (acreage for the park). That is why we are back in 1978 trying to protect what is left of the old trees."

Morgan and Helms voted "yea."

B-1 Reaffirmed, 58 for and 37 against, the Senate's opposition to continued development of the B-1 bomber. The vote came during debate on HR 9378, an appropriations bill later passed and sent to conference with the House. It instructed Senate conferees to insist that $462 million in fiscal 1977 B-1 money not be spent, in accordance with President Carter's decision to scrap the B-1 as the next-generation U.S. bomber. Carter favors outfitting existing B-52's with Cruise missiles.

Sen. John Culver (D-Iowa), a supporter, said: "The time has come to cut our losses, to terminate B-1 production, before we scale a Himalayan peak of waste and extravagance..."

Sen. Jesse Helms (R-N.C.), an opponent, called the B-1 a "vital defense option," and added: "We must take those steps which are necessary to provide for the security of all Americans."

Morgan voted "yea."

Helms voted "nay."

Halperin Named Ass't Professor

ECU News Bureau
 Dr. Alan K. Halperin has been appointed assistant professor in the Department of Medicine at the East Carolina Univ. School of Medicine, according to Dr. Eugene D. Furth, chairman of the department.

Halperin has assumed responsibility for implementing the primary and ambulatory care activities of the Department of Medicine and will assist the department in serving the health care needs of eastern North Carolina.

His professional interests focus on the delivery of primary care in the rural setting and the use of rural practice to train medical students and residents.

Halperin, formerly a physician with the National Health Service Corps, was most recently affiliated with Tri-County Health Services, Aurora, N.C. Prior to that service he was a corps physician in Tierra Amarilla, New Mexico, where he established the community's first maternity care unit and served as its director.

Halperin received his undergraduate degree from the University of Michigan and his MD from the University of Kansas School of Medicine. He took his residency in internal medicine at the University of Wisconsin Hospitals.

A member of Alpha Omega Alpha, the national medical honorary society, Halperin has been certified by the American Board of Internal Medicine.

Set Courses For Adults

ECU News Bureau
 Four courses to develop skills in dealing with others will be offered by East Carolina University to area adults this spring.

Two courses, "Assertive Living I" and "Talking With People" will meet on weekday evenings, and two one-day workshop courses, "Assertive Living II" and "Conference Leadership Skills" will meet on Saturdays.

"Assertive Living I" is scheduled for Mondays, March 13-April 17, 7 to 10 p.m.

The Saturday, March 18, session, "Assertive Living II," is designed for persons who complete the evening course or who have had some experience in self-evaluation.

Instructor for the "Assertive Living" classes is Dennis Chestnut of the ECU psychology faculty.

"Talking with People" will be held Thursdays, March 2-April 27, 7:30 - 9:30 p.m. The class will be taught by James Rees of the ECU speech faculty.

He will also teach the Saturday, March 4, session, "Conference Leadership Skills".

Further information about these and other adult programs is available from the Office of Non-Credit Programs, Division of Continuing Education, East Carolina University, Greenville.

Immunologists Will Meet On February 22

RESEARCH TRIANGLE PARK—Leukemia in mice and its genetic control will be discussed at a meeting to be held Wednesday, Feb. 22, at Burroughs Wellcome Co., 3030 Cornwallis Road, Research Triangle Park.

A leading research scientist in this subject area, Dr. Frank Lilly, of Albert Einstein Medical School, New York City, will be guest speaker.

This 1978 meeting of the informal Antigenetics Group will begin at 6:30 p.m. and include a social hour and light supper. A $3 registration fee will be collected. Anyone wishing to attend should notify: Dr. Fred Avis, Department of Surgery, North Carolina Memorial Hospital, Chapel Hill, N.C. 27514.

Hide And Seek No Game In Child Custody Case

EDITOR'S NOTE — Little Wojciech Bejnarowicz is the object of a game he doesn't want to play, the battle between his mother and his father for his custody. For most of his seven years, he's been hidden, first by his mother from his father, now by his father from his mother. The courts are involved, but nobody pays much attention to their orders in an extreme example of a modern custody battle.

By ARTHUR H. ROTSTEIN
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — Life has been a marathon of hide and seek for 7-year-old Wojciech Bejnarowicz. For six years, his father searched for him. Now it's his mother's turn. Wojciech Stanislaw Bejnarowicz has been at the center of a custody battle which has bounced from Chicago to London and back like a ping pong match. It has the all the elements: divorce, contempt citations, abductions, private detectives. There can be no winner. There is one big loser — Wojciech, last seen with his father in Zurich, Switzerland, last fall. Experts say that even if he's found, he will be scarred psychologically. Wojciech's mother fled with him from Chicago to London in 1971. A year ago, he was snatched from his mother's arms by his father on a dark London street. Last August, a judge awarded custody to the mother. The father disappeared with his son. On Dec. 9, the attorney for the boy's mother persuaded the Cook County Circuit Court to issue a felony warrant charging unlawful restraint of the child. Such warrants are applicable anywhere in the country and in any foreign country that has an extradition agreement with the United States. Zygmunt Bejnarowicz, 47, and Franciszka Margaret Niw-czyk, 41, natives of Poland, weathered the misery and depression of displaced persons' camps to find their separate ways to London after World War II. Zygmunt completed dental studies in 1958 and migrated to Chicago, home for his mother and sister. Margaret, reunited with her family in 1948, had become a British subject. They were married in a civil ceremony on Oct. 7, 1966, then returned to separate existences. In 1968, they were married in a London church, then returned to live in Chicago. Shortly afterward, marital troubles began. In court testimony, Mrs. Bejnarowicz said she was not accepted by her in-laws and that she had no friends in America. Also, she said her husband said he didn't want children. Bejnarowicz said the world was unfit for children. He admitted asking his wife to pray with him for a miscarriage but said his attitude had changed at Wojciech's birth and he had done everything for him. On Dec. 19, 1970, Margaret left her home in Park Ridge, taking her 5-month-old son with her. She filed for divorce and obtained a court order barring her and her husband from taking the infant from Illinois. But in April 1971, she took him to England and her husband, who had filed a counter-complaint, obtained an order for temporary custody. Margaret and the boy spent the next 5½ years in London, living across the street from her parents. She hid the boy in a garden behind her parents' home when officials attempted to serve the court's order. Bejnarowicz continued his search. He said he made 10 trips to London and spent $30,000 to $40,000. He had obtained a divorce in January 1972, at which time the Circuit Court in Illinois reserved a decision on "the matter of physical custody ... for hearing when the child returns to the state of Illinois." Finally, Zygmunt and a British private detective spotted the boy on a London street. On the night of Nov. 17, 1976, several men, including Zygmunt, jumped Margaret, ripping the child from his screaming mother's arms. The terrified boy was dragged off kicking and screaming. Margaret suffered a broken nose. Bejnarowicz returned with the boy to Chicago five days later. Margaret followed on Dec. 26. She landed at O'Hare amid TV cameras and sheriff's deputies, who were ready to arrest her on a contempt citation. Subsequently, a judge granted Margaret the right to visit her son twice a week at Bejnarowicz's home. The judge also appointed Arthur M. Berman to represent the boy's interests in future hearings. In August, Circuit Judge John L. Crown held a nine-day hearing. Dr. Ner Littner, a court-appointed psychoanalyst and the only one of several psychiatrists who examined all principals, testified that Bejnarowicz was suffering from mental illness that gave him "no chance to empathize with the child." But the doctor said Mrs. Bejnarowicz was "well tuned in to the boy."

Two psychiatrists for Bejnarowicz gave sharply different evaluations. Dr. Vladimir Urse found the father had no personality problems. Dr. Roman T. Solecki said he could not detect any abnormal behavior or emotional disorder in the boy. He said he found "no evidence of anxiety, depression, nor organic brain damage."

Last Aug. 29, the judge awarded custody to the mother. The boy was to remain with his father while his mother was jailed on contempt charges for leaving the country. The judge said she could take the boy to England if she posted a $50,000 cash bond, but must bring him to the United States for six weeks annually and provide Zygmunt visitation rights on every other Christmas. The boy was never asked with whom he wanted to live. His lawyer, Berman, says: "The child was fearful of communicating. It would have been futile to have done so. I don't think he would have fully understood the question, and because of his emotional disorder and his identification with the father as the aggressor."

By the day of the decision, however, Wojciech had vanished. Three days later, the same day Margaret started her jail sentence, Zygmunt was held in contempt. Zygmunt and Wojciech were seen at the Toronto Airport on Aug. 29, 1977. They checked out of a Zurich hotel on Sept. 7, two days before investigators arrived.

Bigger Oranges For 1978 Crop

VAN NUYS, Calif. (UPI) — A larger-than-normal size range is predicted for western-grown navel oranges by a California-Arizona growers' cooperative. Domestic sales manager D.P. Barker credits the dramatic growth spurt in what had been small-sized fruit to heavy rains that began in California during Christmas week.

EARNINGS ROSE
GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — Earnings of the Liberty Life Insurance and Liberty Life parent company of Liberty Life Insurance and Cosmos Broadcasting, rose 18 percent in 1977 over the previous year, the company said Tuesday.

Students' Investor Game Saw Fantastic 'Profits'

By JAMES A. WHITE
UPI Business Writer
NEW YORK (UPI) — Few have heard of the investment team of Gargiulo, Senita, Cassetta, Tracy & Palm. Investors suffering through the stock market's year-long decline may wish they had.
For while it was more profitable for most to put money under the mattress last year than stay in the market, the Gargiulo outfit was doing quite well, thank you — rolling up a 237 percent profit on stocks in only 10 weeks.
Their secret was nothing more than the maxim — buy low, sell high — but they were able to spot stocks with enough swing potential to make it work. When they found a winning stock, they repeated the process.
Investors wanting to sign up the Gargiulo team for advice will have to wait, however.
John Gargiulo, Robert Senita, Paul Cassetta, Paul Tracy and Gary Palm are seniors at North

Salem High School in New York's Westchester County. They took their "profits" on paper last fall during the first playing of the Stock Market Game, topping more than 300 high school teams in New York state.
"We all wish we had real money to do it," says Paul Cassetta who helped increase the winning team's original paper bankroll of $100,000 to $337,609.10. Reflecting for a moment, he added: "We lost money, too."
For the most part though, the team of novices was right. They sold stock short and were able to rebuy it at a lower price. They also took advantage of price shifts connected with tender offers and stock splits to boost their portfolio.
Many high school classes follow stock prices in newspaper tables and some make limited stock purchases. But the New York game, while still a paper exercise, had the attraction of a computer to analyze the student portfolios and the added element of competition against other schools.

"I haven't seen anything that makes the dismal science of economics more interesting than this," said Dr. William B. Bennett, director of the Buffalo State College Center for Economic Education, who organized the game.
"It's not because I think buying and selling stocks is all there is to economic education but it ties into so much — current events, interest rates and most anything that affects the market."
Working with Patrick McMahon, a computer programmer at the Buffalo college, Bennett developed the idea after seeing economics students in Ontario, Canada, play a game based on trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange.
Bennett adapted the game to New York Stock Exchange rules, making it as realistic as possible without actual stock trades.

Backed with a $2,500 grant from the Securities Industry Association, a Wall Street trade group, Bennett lined up more than 60 New York schools to give the game a try.
The teams, two to eight students with a faculty advisor, each start with $100,000 on paper and have the choice of any NYSE-listed stock to build their portfolios.
All stock purchases and sales are made at the last closing price appearing in newspaper stock tables. Students make their daily investment decisions by 10 a.m. EDT — the opening hour of the NYSE — to assure all teams use the same prices.
The buy-sell decisions are turned over to teachers and sent off each Friday for processing at the Buffalo center computer. A few days later, teams receive printouts showing their holdings of cash and stock, their borrowing power and the interest and commission fees they have "paid" rates based on the actual prevailing rates.

Reading, Writing Courses In Spring
ECU News Bureau
Eastern N.C. adults who wish to improve their reading and writing skills are invited to enroll in any of three non-credit evening and Saturday courses to be offered this spring.
They are "Speed Reading" (Mondays and Thursdays, March 16 - April 17, 7:30 - 9:30 p.m.); "Written Communications" planned for Wednesdays, March 15 - April 5, 6:30 - 9:30 p.m. or Saturdays, March 4 and 11, 9:30 a.m. - 3:30 p.m.; and "Writing for Publication" (Wednesdays, March 1 - April 12, 7-9:30 p.m.).
The speed reading course will be taught by Homer Yearick of the ECU School of Allied Health and Social Professions.

"Written Communications" course instructor is Dr. Keats Sparrow of the ECU English faculty, who is senior editor of the book "The Practical Craft: Reading for Business and Technical Writers".
"The Writing for Publication" class instructor is Thomas A. Williams, editor of "Tar Heel" magazine and a successful freelance writer.
Further information is available from the Office of Non-Credit Programs, Division of Continuing Education, ECU, Greenville, N.C., telephone 757-6143.

Students keeping their own records use the printouts as verification but the Buffalo center also adds information of keen interest to the competitive teams.
One item is a listing of the most active game stocks during the week, a tipoff to strategies of other teams. The computer also ranks teams by the value of their portfolios for each week of the 10-week game.
Bennett, running behind with the processing, once skipped the team rankings. "Never again," he vowed after anxious teams called to learn their standing.
Team approaches to investing run the gamut. The most conservative did not do well in the first game because the biggest profits went to speculators taking risks. Bennett says most teams lost money and one went $1,600 into the red.
The profitable teams in most cases could not duplicate their successes in the game in the real market. Purchases, unlimited as to size in the game, would affect the available price in the real market. Teams often bought huge blocks of stock, multiplying a small gain into a giant profit. Bennett has revised the rules to close this loophole but says he expects ingenious teams "still will be looking for every trick in the book" to try to beat the game.

Many Fossils In Cooper River
COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — More than three tons of fossil remains have been removed from the bed of the Cooper River by paleontologists working the area ahead of a projected channel dredging.
The University of South Carolina Institute of Archeology and Anthropology put its divers to work after a chemical company agreed to sponsor the work.

Uncomplicated, Crisp Story Involving Ruby And Oswald

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Last fall, ABC aired "The Trial of Lee Harvey Oswald." Tonight, CBS airs "Ruby and Oswald."

Both recreate the slaying of President John F. Kennedy in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963. But CBS' docu-drama is infinitely better than ABC's what-if drama about what might have been had Oswald not been slain by Dallas nightclub owner Jack Ruby and been tried for JFK's assassination.

Unlike that murky, hypothetical show, the CBS effort doesn't offer a barrage of conspiracy theories, doesn't ask viewers for a "verdict" on Oswald's guilt or innocence in the Kennedy killing.

It's simply a crisp, straightforward re-creation of the lives of Ruby and Oswald during a four-day period preceding, during and following the death of Kennedy.

Frederic Forrest plays Oswald and Michael Lerner plays

Ruby in tonight's three-hour show, which starts by claiming every scene is based on "sworn testimony" in the Kennedy assassination.

The program mixes — in what strikes me as a responsible manner — old news clips with re-enactments to effectively evoke the feel of that sad chapter in American history.

The father-and-son scriptwriting team of John and Michael McGreevey uses a simple pattern to let the story unfold.

They start with the day of Nov. 21, 1963 and offer a quick scene of how Oswald began that day, then a news clip of JFK heading for Texas, then show Ruby going about his business that morning.

That's the story-telling technique, going from Oswald to Kennedy to Ruby and back again, gradually tying their unrelated stories together into the tragedy that was to occur in downtown Dallas.

Usually, it works well. But at times it gets monotonous, particularly in the depiction of Ruby as an occasionally violent, tormented man and unabashed admirer of John F. Kennedy.

Lerner's portrayal of Ruby is okay. But the script, in noting the man's torment, does it too often and loses impact.

Forrest's work as Oswald, the laconic loner, is passable. But it lacks the subtle shadings that John Pleshette brought to the role in ABC's "Trial of Lee Harvey Oswald."

The best acting in CBS' show comes from Lou Frizzell, who quietly steals every scene he's in as homespun J. Will Fritz, the police captain who interrogated Oswald after the latter's capture in Dallas.

The show's fine direction is by Mel Stuart, who made a JFK assassination documentary in 1965, "Four Days in November."

His expertise obviously helps CBS' program, which avoids conspiracy-dabbling and covers only documented aspects of the assassination and four days in the lives of Ruby and Oswald.

Alas, for all its expertise in recreating history, "Ruby and Oswald" seems oddly unsatisfying. Its story is too familiar. The show comes across as just a well-executed rehash offering nothing new.

It's a decent program, but I hope it's the last of its kind.

Webb Pierce A Great Showman

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — At the Bluegrass Inn, where the beer costs 65 cents a mug and the band plays "Orange Blossom Special" at least twice a night, a sign on the wall says: "The Good Lord Giveth Webb Pierce."

For 15 years, Pierce has been country music's P.T. Barnum, a stunning showman with a flair for gimmickry.

First, in the early 1960s, he promoted himself by driving a car decorated inside and out with 1,000 silver dollars.

Then, about nine years ago, he built a guitar-shaped swimming pool at his home and it became a top tourist magnet until neighbors got a court order barring tourists from visiting it.

Now he wants to build a $1 million copy of the pool near downtown Nashville on Music Row. Some music industry spokesmen have objected, saying the pool would be out-of-place.

But Pierce, 51, says it takes "flamboyant flash" to distinguish yourself in the glitter of this community of celebrities.

"If you're going to be in show business, you've got to look the part," Pierce said in an interview at his antique-laden home. "Some others don't have flamboyant flash...."

He estimated a million would see the downtown pool every year.

"About every venture I've been involved in has been successful," he said. "And this pool will be before I'm through. I wish they'd just leave me alone. People are always going to rise up against you. Jesus Christ is an example — he was perfect and they crucified him. "But I can take it. I've been through these battles before. And I've got the best publicity agents in the world — my enemies."

Two million people have seen the $75,000 pool at his home.

"I never thought people would want to see it," he said. "But it showed up in magazines and people came from as far as England to film it. It snowballed and became the No. 1 attraction in Nashville other than Opryland. But I built it as something to reflect my business — a symbol of my business."

Pierce devotes much of his time to business interests, which include five radio stations, a skating rink, music publishing companies and oil property in Louisiana. During the summer, he performs at a Nashville nightclub. His current record — his first in a year — is "The Only Fool Is Me."

Rixi Markus may be better known as a writer than as a player these days, but she is still a formidable opponent at the table. This hand from the Philip Morris European Cup tournament in Amsterdam shows her at her best.

After East elected to sacrifice against his opponents' heart slam, Rixi decided that she would receive poor compensation for doubling six spades. Instead she elected to try six no trump, and West, looking at a sure trick in the only suit the opponents had bid, doubled with the expectation of a certain set.

West led the king of spades, and as soon as dummy appeared, declarer decided that West had to have the three missing hearts for his double. Therefore, the only way to land twelve tricks would be via an end-play.

Declarer won the ace of spades, crossed to the king of clubs and reentered dummy with the queen of diamonds. On the ace-queen of clubs declarer discarded a spade and a heart, then ran the diamonds, bringing the hand down to four cards. Dummy held the jack of spades and three hearts to the ace-ten, while declarer had four hearts. West was forced to hold the queen of spades to stop the jack from becoming the twelfth trick, as well as the queen-jack-five of hearts.

When declarer led a low heart, West was helpless. If he played low, declarer intended finessing the ten, and would have made an overtrick. But it did not help West to split his honors. Declarer captured the jack with the ace, then threw West in by leading the jack of spades to the queen. West was forced to lead away from the queen of hearts into declarer's tenace, giving declarer the last two tricks and her slam.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do you know something you don't? FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 9, 1978

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are now likely to be overwhelmed with various duties and new activities so use care and don't overextend yourself. Later, you have a considerable amount of energy and inventiveness in getting everything in the pink of condition.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Annoying little situations that arise during the day could test your patience but the evening is very smooth-running. Don't argue with mate or loved one and spoil an upcoming occasion.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Avoid any altercations with good friends or you run the risk of severing valuable connections. Plan future amusements wisely and cleverly.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Use poise in handling civic matters during daytime or you get into big trouble. Don't argue over a credit affair, but do your best to handle it properly.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) This is not a good time to get involved in a new project. People you meet would not be right for you now, but social encounters at a later date are fine.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Follow through with work you have planned and gain the right benefits from it now. Come to a better understanding with fellow workers. Be careful you don't overwork and damage health.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Know what is expected of you by others and try to cooperate more. Reach better accord with associates. Show your possess wisdom.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Tackle work enthusiastically and show your finest abilities. Take time to rest and build up lagging energies. Don't push yourself so hard.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Take part in recreations that please you most. Do little favors for those you like and gain their goodwill.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Do not bring up any controversial subjects at home that could cause arguments. Get rid of worn-out appliances and replace with the new.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Go to the right sources for the information you need to get ahead faster in life. Join with good friends for a good time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Your monetary affairs can be worrisome during the day but handle them cleverly and all is fine. A talented businessperson can give you fine advice. Take some new matter under advisement.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Get rid of that feeling of discontent by getting into productive pursuits and make headway. Find the right social outlets that will give you pleasure. Advance more quickly that way, too.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will require good moral and ethical training early, so be sure to give it so that your child will not feel lost in dealing with others. Slant education along lines of endeavor that require precision and mental cleverness.

From Her Office, She Speaks For The Indians

By MIKE FEINSLBER
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Wearing a pants suit and a silky blouse, Veronica Murdock says she is the middle-class product of a middle-class home, where politics was the usual topic of supper table talk.

Mrs. Murdock, 34, is an American Indian and the elected leader of Indians. As the first woman president of the largest Indian organization, the National Congress of American Indians, she speaks for 154 of the more than 400 Indian tribes and for about 600,000 of the 1.25 million Indians in America.

VERONICA MURDOCK speaks for 154 of the more than 400 Indian tribes and for about 600,000 of the 1.25 million Indians in America.—UPI Photo on the 268,000-acre, Colorado River Indian Reservation in a fertile valley in Arizona. That's why politics dominated tabletalk at home, and why Veronia naturally drifted into a political career.

She was only a day over the mandatory age of 25 when she was elected to the nine-member tribal council which governs the reservation. Previously she had worked as a secretary for the Bureau of Indian Affairs in Phoenix and with a Great Society program to create jobs for young Indians on the reservation.

Now she lives the way a leader of a national woman's organization might, flying from one conference to another, making a speech here and attending a ceremony there.

But for all her middle-class comfortableness, she sounds angry — and frightened — when she speaks about the Indian way of life in today's America.

Mrs. Murdock, whose job involves frequent appearances before committees of Congress (where one bill out of every five deals with Indian affairs), has taken office at a troubled moment. "Because Indians have started pressing claims in courts to vast stretches of eastern states and to fishing and hunting rights in the west (and winning favorable court decisions), there has sprung up in Congress and among some neighbors of Indian tribes what the Indians call 'white backlash' — and it scares the Indians.

As evidence of backlash, Indians point to "the Native Americans Equal Opportunity Act" introduced by Rep. John Cunningham, R-Wash. The bill's preamble states its purpose: "To direct the president to abrogate all treaties entered into by the United States with Indian tribes in order to accomplish the purposes of recognizing that in the United States no individual or group possesses subordinate or special rights..."

A recent 16-page issue of the Yakima Nation Review, an Indian newspaper, devotes every article to "backlash" and carries a map showing that "formal or informal opposition to Indian tribes" exists in 23 states.

"It seems that everything we want to do we have to go to court to do, and so now they're trying to take away our right to go to court," Mrs. Murdock says.

"Why? What have the tribes done that is so terrible that these people feel they have to completely destroy our lives, our existence?"

She compares Indians who lay claim to eastern lands — including a big portion of the state of Maine — to someone who comes upon a deed in grandma's attic to land he did not know he rightfully owned. She asks, wouldn't he go to court?

If she could have the country's ear and could go on all three networks for five minutes, what would she tell white Americans about red America?

In a word, she said, she would ask for "sovereignty."

"The tribes feel sovereign and they want to be dealt with in that fashion," she says. "Someone always has the ultimate plan to solve the Indians' problems — but it never comes from Indians. "It's just like individuals — when they reach a certain age they no longer want their lives controlled by other people, especially if you are trying to retain your land and your rights and your culture and your Indianness and you have all these outside forces coming in and trying to take your land, your resources, your water rights."

Mrs. Murdock says "the vanishing American" has refused to vanish, and young Indians are far more interested in retaining Indian culture, language and traditions than her own generation was.

With help from her father — who never spoke Mojave at home — her daughter, Alice, 8, speaks far more Mojave than she does, she says — proudly.

In General, Still Honest

By EDWARD CODY
Associated Press Writer
PARIS (AP) — You may think old-fashioned honesty went out with the horse and carriage. But Jacques Brunet says not, and he ought to know.

For 20 years, the 50-year-old Frenchman has been handling the rags and riches lost in Paris buses and subways and turned in for restoration to their owners.

"In general, people are still honest," he told a visitor to his lost and found department. "Oh, there are some specialists around, but the general rule is that people don't take what doesn't belong to them. I am perhaps too optimistic, but I still have faith in the human animal."

Like the person who turned in a briefcase forgotten in a subway car a few months ago by an elderly paleontologist whose memory isn't as good as it used to be. Inside the briefcase was 45,000 francs, or about $9,000, now restored to the owner.

Or the one who turned in a vanity case left on a bus by an old lady out shopping for gifts. It contained 57,900 francs, or about $11,600, also restored to the owner.

Brunet once had a passenger turn in a briefcase with 1.7 million francs, about $350,000, but that was 10 years ago, and "you see that less and less."

"Nowadays people lose pocketbooks stuffed with credit cards," he said. "Credit cards, identity cards and all kinds of cards."

In his time Brunet has seen a skeleton, a wooden leg, a bass fiddle, and crutches.

More than 100,000 articles a year are lost on the Regie Autonome des Transports Parisiens, the Paris mass transport system. About 20,000 are returned within a few hours by a bus driver or subway station chief. But the rest — 80,000 — end up on Brunet's sorting tables.

They are added to the some 60,000 articles turned in directly to police by theater ushers, cab drivers and pedestrians with a sharp eye. The whole collection is catalogued and, presuming the owner cannot be identified, held for claiming.

Perishable goods are kept as long as possible, then thrown away. Most items — umbrellas are the most numerous — are kept for four months then turned over to the government to be auctioned off or jettisoned.

Student By Day, Bum By Night

GLASSBORO, N.J. (AP) — Steve Lipski is a college student by day and a bum by night.

Lipski, 22, a communications senior at Glassboro State College, roams Philadelphia's skid rows every night on a personal project to find out about derelicts.

Lipski tries to be authentic. He wears the dirtiest, oldest clothes he can find. He is unshaven and carries a bottle of port wine diluted with water.

Lipski, who lives in Gloucester City, plans to write a novel about his experiences and one day to set up a chain of halfway houses for the down-and-out.

"My father? He's pretty cool. He knows I can handle myself but he also knows I can't stop bullets," he said.

The student says he especially enjoys watching suburbanites on his train ride home. "People look and say to themselves, 'What is this guy doing? He's dirty, he stinks and he's writing.'" Lipski said.

Unique Hotel Stands In Middle Of North Sea

HIGH HOTEL—The Ekofisk Hotel rises from the middle of the North Sea, where it was put up on stilts in two days and two nights. Cranes benefited from an unusual winter calm to hoist the 900-ton, five and six-story sections of the 106-room hotel on to a platform alongside Ekofisk Center, the heart of an oil and gas development from six fields in the Norwegian zone. The hotel will provide accommodations for the oilmen.

By PAUL TREUTHARDT
Associated Press Writer
EKOFISK CENTER, North Sea (AP) — Europe's newest hotel cost one million dollars a room and was put up in two days and nights on stilts in the middle of the North Sea.

It has a spectacular view of the platforms of a huge oil field, lit like diamond clusters at night with the roiling flames from flare stacks throwing blood-red images across the sea.

It's called the Ekofisk Hotel. But don't try for a reservation in the exclusive establishment 180 miles — a 99-minute helicopter ride — off the Norwegian coast. It was designed and is operated only for workers and invited guests to the heart of an oil and gas development from six fields in the Norwegian zone.

The 100-million-dollar cost for the 106-room hotel would be outrageous for the most luxurious shore-side resort. But everything comes high in the midst of a treacherous sea. Current estimates for full development of Ekofisk run to 5 billion dollars and oilmen expect to see a further one billion poured in as inflation takes its toll.

A massive barge crane hoisted 900-ton, five- and six-story sections into place in two days and nights. Installation of generators, water purifiers and other complex machinery below the living quarters will take until early spring.

The hotel will bring a new lifestyle — and women — to Ekofisk and alleviate the serious accommodation problems which Phillips Petroleum, the operator of the Ekofisk group, faces daily. It has had to hire three of the great submersible drilling rigs just for sleeping space, and on a typical night had only two spare beds in the entire field.

"We run a helicopter ballet here twice a day," said a radio-room operator, "shuttling 1,200 men in two hours between the platforms where they work and where they sleep."

The giant hotel modules were carefully equipped by the Norwegian builders ashore. The two-bed rooms were fully carpeted and equipped with private bathrooms and consoles for taped music or four radio channels.

The 106 rooms flank a central unit boasting a two-story cinema, with balcony, billiards, card and reading lounges, a gym with sauna, a six-bed hospital with emergency operating facilities, and administration and training areas.

The hotel is topped with a helicopter deck over waiting rooms and a hotel check-in counter on a floor which also has a small chapel. Three elevators serve the seven-floor structure.

Work schedules at the center call for eight 12-hour days, followed by eight days off ashore, with a long break every four tours. This system meets with enthusiastic approval from the multinational staff because it gives long periods ashore to spend with families or in sight-seeing.

Hydrogen Fuel Tested By Bus

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — The first operational automotive vehicle in California to use hydrogen as a fuel has begun service here.

It is a 21-passenger bus, part of the city's fleet of seven vehicles serving senior citizens.

Unlike conventional automotive vehicles, which have fuel tanks filled with gasoline, this bus has a series of cylinders containing the silvery-gray compound, iron-titanium hydride.

The heated hydrogen gas is ducted to the engine, mixed with air and ignited, driving the pistons. The exhaust is water vapor and very small quantities of oxides of nitrogen.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Extending Human Life

If science continues to progress, how long can life expectancy be increased? I know this is a pure academic question, but the answer intrigues me. — Mr. D.E., N.J.

Present day statistics state that a female child born today has a life expectancy of about 75 years. A male born today has a life expectancy of about 71 years. There have been various, but vague, explanations for these differences.

The remarkable increase in today's life expectancy as compared to that of the turn of the century is a testimonial to advances in medicine, surgery and scientific endeavors.

With concentration on preventive medicine, the life expectancy before the turn of the century should be between 90 and 100 years. This, of course, depends on the elimination of cardiovascular disease, the earlier recognition and treatment of cancer and, hopefully, a greater knowledge of the prevention of cancer. Vaccines against pneumonia and venereal disease and other severe infectious diseases will materially add to such hopeful statistics.

Ultramicroscopic research now studies the process of aging cells. It is believed that these cells in all organs can delay the aging process.

The explosive amount of information that has accrued about immunology portends additional years of longevity. Reduction in accidents, especially automobile accidents, will play an enormous role in the longer life span.

The elimination of birth defects by genetic manipulation and the hope that mental retardation can eventually be prevented are no longer in the realm of fantasy.

The accumulation of years is not the only ultimate hope of those interested in delaying the process of aging. With these years there must be a quality to life that makes additional years a gift rather than a burden. Social planning must provide adequate nutrition, good housing, excellent education, and the right of every person in every age group to have proper medical attention.

Premature dislocation from jobs with forced early retirement makes the added years of longevity a problem to cope with. Slow phasing out, rather than abrupt separation from jobs allows the person to adjust to new patterns of living.

Such added years of health, productivity and enjoyment at first seems to be an unattainable Utopian philosophy. Actually, it can become a reality if the medical forces and the social scientists and the government agencies combine their talents to attain this goal.

SPEAKING OF YOUR HEALTH... The police department and the fire department with their trained paramedics, play important life-saving roles. They are vital factors in the health team.

Aides Keep City Clean

CLEAN SWEEP—A young woman member of the Metro Manila Aides in the Philippines cleans up an area where the wall has been colorfully painted, also as a part of Manila's beautification program.

By ROMMEL CORRO
MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The street cleaners called Metro Manila Aides inspired a song about Manila as a beautiful city of pretty girls.

The aides' white sneakers, blue denim trousers, volcano-shaped red palm leaf hats and, most of all, long-sleeved yellow T-shirts, with "Metro Manila Aides" in bold, black letters across the front, have appeared in movies and television shows.

They have become a standard fixture of Manila's scenery, a uniquely Filipino manifestation of President Ferdinand E. Marcos' martial law regime.

Begun as a public relations gimmick by Marcos' wife Imelda, the metropolitan governor, the aides in little more than a year have converted Manila from one of Asia's dirtiest cities to one of its cleanest.

They seem everywhere in the metro area's 380 square miles, sweeping up after the seven million residents, cutting grass, painting street curbs, collecting garbage.

"The job doesn't pay well. Just enough to live on," said Jose Mendoza, 39, as he pounced upon a crumpled cigarette pack.

Mendoza turned to the dried leaves, cigarette butts and candy wrappers on the sidewalks, oblivious to the passing pedestrians, and continued:

"My needs are simple: a small, rented room for my wife and one kid. Breakfast for me is a cup of coffee and two pieces of hot pan de sal (rolls); I have a plateful of rice and dried fish for lunch; and another plateful of rice and pansit (noodles) are my dinner. I can't afford to buy meat these days."

The refuse and environmental sanitation division of the Metro Manila Commission said there were 6,884 Metro Manila Aides working three shifts a day in four cities and 13 municipalities of the metropolitan area.

The commission said aides working on a daily basis received 10 pesos or $1.33 per day, the minimum wage decreed by law. Regular employees in the yellow shirts earn 12 to 14 pesos daily, or $1.60 to $1.86.

Metro Manila Aides cost the city about $12,000 a day in basic wages.

The aide was an obscure street figure until July 1976 when Mrs. Marcos mobilized hundreds of them as part of a cleanup drive to prepare for the October 1976 Manila meeting of the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank.

When she set out on her beautification campaign, Mrs. Marcos said she wanted to make Manila "an indivisible city we shall be proud to call the crown of our civilization."

Car Restraints For Youngsters

By CARL MANNING
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — On January 1 Tennessee became the only state which requires parents to have children 4 years old or younger wear restraint devices while riding in a car.

Law enforcement officials say it will not be an easy statute to enforce. But members of Gov. Ray Blanton's administration point out the law has some loopholes through which many Tennessee motorists may drive.

Providing fines of $2 to $10, the Child Passenger Protection Act was signed by Blanton in April 1977 and requires use of federally approved equipment. Supporters of the act say conventional seat belts in cars do not fit small children properly. The restraints resemble portable seats, have child-size seat belts and are usually anchored with the adult-size seat belts.

"This law, like any law, will require a lot of voluntary compliance," Jim Henderson, state safety department information officer, told a reporter. "There is no way we can enforce any law without a lot of voluntary cooperation."

Henderson said the Tennessee Highway Patrol would establish roadblocks later in the year to see whether motorists are complying.

He said state troopers would be required to note on accident reports whether a child restraint device was in use when a wreck involved youngsters.

Nevertheless, parents would not be required to use child restraint devices, which cost up to $30, if the child is held in the arms of an older person.

The law applies only to persons carrying their own children in a car and specifically exempts vans and trucks used as recreational vehicles. It also exempts trucks having a tonnage rating of one ton or more. Failure to have a child restraint system cannot be considered as contributory negligence in a lawsuit and such failure shall not be admissible as evidence in a civil trial, the law says.

Statistics show more than 1,000 persons under the age of 5 are killed in automobile accidents each year. In Tennessee 20 to 25 children die each year in automobile accidents and as many as 1,000 children are injured in Tennessee car wrecks each year.

Dr. Robert Sanders, a Murfreesboro, Tenn., pediatrician and a strong supporter of the legislation, says the restraint devices could reduce fatalities of children in automobile accidents by 90 percent.

Old Premise On Alcoholism

BOONE, N.C. (AP) — In a day when alcoholism is regarded as a disease, there is a 30-year-old treatment center which operates on the premise that an alcoholic is a plain old sinner.

"We view alcoholism not as a disease but as a sin. We try to get these men to accept Jesus Christ as their savior," says Gary Hoyle, assistant director of the Hebron Colony.

The Colony, started in 1947 by the Rev. E. Archer Dillard with a minimum of cash and a maximum of hope, takes its name, Hebron, from a biblical reference: the Old Testament Jews found peace and hope at Hebron after wandering in the wilderness for 40 years.

"We feel safe in saying we have a 65 to 80 percent success rate," Hoyle said.

Question Is If Market At Bottom

INTERSTATE SECURITIES CORPORATION

With the Dow Jones Industrial Average presently trading below the 800 level, it is fairly easy to accept that the high was recorded in September 1976 at 1014.79. The market has obviously been in a downturn for the last 16 months, so the next question is: where is the bottom and when will it be reached?

A look at previous market cycles will not provide a pat answer, but it will allow us to view the current market in an historical perspective. In the period beginning April 1897 and ending September 1976, there were twenty complete trough-to-peak cycles traced by the Dow Jones Industrial Average.

One conclusion that can be drawn from examining the figures is that the market spends more time rising than declining, and that on average the moves up are greater than the declines. In seven of the twenty cycles since 1897, market bottoms were lower than previous bottoms, and in the remaining cycles the bottoms were higher. There were only four periods when market bottoms were significantly lower than previous market bottoms, and these were depression-type periods when standards of living were seriously affected.

The longest decline, from peak to trough, was 41 months - from March 1938 to April 1941, a reflection of the war environment. The next longest was 38 months, from 1946 to 1949. The average duration of decline since the Depression has been 15 months. The longest declines were not the sharpest. The most severe post-depression decline ended in December 1974, after a 45% loss. In the entire post-depression period, that was the only decline that exceeded 40%. It lasted 23 months.

Given the differences between the 1974 economy and the 1978 economy, it seems reasonable to expect a more moderate price decline this time around. The Dow Jones Industrial Average has declined 22% in the last 16 months, and both these figures exceed the post-depression averages. It would appear that a bottom is near, but market bottoms can only be determined in retrospect.

Acknowledging that we are in a bear market, which may be near its end, we do not believe investors should leave the market. Rather, we suggest that some prudent switching may be in order. Certain individual stocks are more vulnerable to decline than others. Sell these and buy those stocks which sometimes move counter to the general market trend and may presently offer some upside price potential.

Additionally, we recommend that from an investment viewpoint, now may be a good time to make new commitments in the market after doing some fundamental research. No one can pick the market bottom or the lowest price of any individual issue, except with hindsight. This bear market will turn around and go back up, just as all other bear markets have.

Mice Take Cut From Donations

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The wishing well at the Jewel Box in Forest Park is losing money to mice.

Dollar bills thrown into the well have been gnawed into bits by mice who live at the bottom.

A yearly clearing recently turned up four bags full of money, including 10,833 pennies. The total haul came to $397.80, including $10 in foreign money, which is divided among several local charities.

The total would have topped the $400 mark, but at least two dollar bills were not included. After the mice were finished, only George Washington's face was left of one bill, and another had been nibbled into shreds.

Bottled Water Differs A Lot

NEW YORK (UPI) — Thinking of buying bottled water as an alternative to tap water?

Read labels carefully to make sure you're getting the type you want, says the trade association for the bottled water industry.

It says the types currently available are: spring or well water for drinking or manmade versions with minerals added to improve the taste; mineral-free waters are either purified by de-ionization or reverse osmosis; distilled water has been vaporized to get rid of minerals, solids and trace elements; and fluoridated water contains controlled amounts of fluoride to help prevent tooth decay.

Cattlemen Hopeful Of Price-Rise

By DAN CHISZAR
DENVER (UPI) — Cattlemen, having toughed out a western drought by thinning their herds and taking out mortgages in 1977, look forward to higher beef prices within the next two years.

The arithmetic is this simple: It cost about $250 to raise a calf in 1977. Stockmen got $160 to $170 for a calf during the year.

It can be broken down this way:

A calf weighs about 400 pounds. Ranches must get 55 to 65 cents per pound to get their costs back. In 1977, they got only 41 or 42 cents per pound.

Losses for the cattlemen can be traced to low beef prices caused by overproduction, something that occurs with cyclical regularity in the beef industry.

"About every 10 years we overproduce, and we're doing it again," said marketing expert John Welch of the National Cattlemen's Association in Denver.

The last year cattlemen made a profit from their stock was in 1973, when only 34 million head were slaughtered. The slaughterer climbed from that year and beef prices dropped.

"That increase led to low prices," said Welch. "I would say the price of ground beef decreased 30 to 40 cents in supermarkets from 1973 to 1976."

The cattle business was good in the late 1960's and '70s. So good that more people entered it, and those already in it expanded production. Since 1973 cattlemen haven't made enough profits to cover costs of raising their stock.

In 1975 there were 132 million head of cattle on the nation's ranches. Poor market conditions and a western drought in 1977 forced stockmen to thin their herds to an estimated 118 million head.

"A large number of producers have gone out of business," said Welch. "A lot have had to arrange short-term operating financing by mortgaging their land."

Most cattle producers are small ranchers and farmers with mortgages and less than 50 head of cattle. These stockmen probably shifted production away from cattle to other agricultural products while beef prices remained low.

"If a man owns less than 50 head of cattle he probably has some other means of income," said Welch. "A lot of them have gotten out of the cattle business and concentrated on other alternative products."

Cattle slaughter in 1977 was estimated to be 41.9 million head, down from the 42.5 million of the previous year.

Cattlemen expect to be making a profit or breaking even on their stock in the next two years as the supply of beef goes down, said Welch. He said the brighter outlook, along with the perishable nature of their product, kept cattlemen from joining in the farm strike movement that began in December.

The western drought in 1977 hit cattle producers especially hard in California, Nevada, Utah and western Colorado. Grazing lands dried up, and cattlemen were forced to sell more of their stock. Damp weather near the end of 1977 gave some appearance of a break in the drought.

Cattlemen also complained about foreign beef imports during the year. Slightly more than one billion pounds of foreign beef was imported, mostly from Australia and New Zealand. There was much discussion about pushing for lower importation limits, but not much action.

Stockmen during the year also decided against the proposed "beef checkoff system," which would have assessed cattlemen three-tenths of 1 per cent of the value of each calf at the marketplace. The money would have been used for a beef promotion campaign, heavily endorsed by the NCA.

"Cattlemen were afraid the checkoff system would be a government program, and they didn't want any more government in their lives," said Welch.

Only 56 per cent of cattlemen participating in the nationwide referendum voted in favor of the checkoff system, which needed a two-thirds majority to win approval. It was a bitter defeat for the NCA.

PRICE YOUR NEXT PRESCRIPTION AT NICHOLS PHARMACY
YOUR PRESCRIPTION IS OUR MOST IMPORTANT SERVICE
PRESCRIPTION TRANSFER PLAN!
Here's another important service from your Nichols Pharmacy!
Did you know you can transfer your refillable prescription from your present Pharmacy to Nichols?
If you want Nichols to fill a prescription you originally had filled at another Pharmacy, simply bring in the label or the whole container. Nichols Pharmacist will be glad to call your Doctor for authorization to fill your prescription. If your Doctor authorizes the refill, we will have it ready for you as soon as possible. For added convenience, you may telephone in the prescription number you wish transferred along with the Doctor's name. Pharmacy it was originally filled at, and the name of the medication. Nichols will handle the rest. Remember this new service, the next time you have a prescription to be filled or refilled.
And Remember at Nichols Pharmacy your prescription is our most important service.
