

Informal Carter Deadline For Coal Contract By Day's End

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Negotiations to end the 7½-week-old national soft coal strike resumed today against the background of an informal Carter administration deadline to get a contract accord by the end of the day.

Labor Secretary Ray Marshall met separately with union officials and representatives of the Bituminous Coal Operators Association before reconvening a joint session.

Marshall, taking the role of chief mediator, had kept the parties around the bargaining table nearly continuously from Thursday morning until 2 a.m. today, when the bargainers recessed for a rest.

On Thursday, Marshall announced his intention to push for agreement sometime today, although he said that was not a hard-and-fast deadline.

But he said, "We don't have long. This thing can't go on." There was other pressure from the administration, retreating step-by-step in recent days from its policy of non-intervention in labor disputes.

President Carter met with governors from a dozen states hard hit by the strike. Gov. James Thompson of Illinois said Carter remarked he would personally "step in" — a term that was not explained — if the talks don't result in agreement.

The White House dispatched presidential aide Landon Butler to the Labor Department to monitor the negotiations.

The administration also was beginning to talk more openly about the possibility of invoking the strike-halting provision of the Taft-Hartley Act.

"People are certainly talking about Taft-Hartley if this effort (the talks) fails, but no final decision has been made," said one administration official who asked not to be named.

White House press secretary Jody Powell said, however, there are "no plans to invoke Taft-Hartley" today or at "any specific time."

Sentiment in favor of invoking the act is tempered by a widespread feeling that miners will ignore any back-to-work court order issued under the act. And Pennsylvania Gov. Milton Shapp said the governors' advice to the president was not to invoke the law. In an interview with journalists Thursday, Carter said that "We...have to prepare for the eventuality, that I hope we never see, of a breakdown in the negotiations." The president said if the Taft-Hartley Act is invoked,

"it will require a little more attention to law enforcement to make sure there is no violence perpetrated against persons or properties."

Meanwhile, dwindling coal stockpiles in the Midwest continued to pressure electric utilities and their customers.

State police and National Guardsmen escorted convoys of coal trucks to generating plants in Illinois, Indiana and Ohio. In Springfield, Ill., 200 striking miners protested the arrival of non-union coal at the city's power plant, but the presence of 80 policemen kept the situation peaceful.

Have 'Suspect' In Pipeline Sabotage

By WARD SIMS
Associated Press Writer
FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — Authorities say they are investigating a suspect who may have been involved in an explosion and leak that temporarily shut down oil flow in the trans-Alaska pipeline.

But state police are releasing few details of their investigation into the second act of sabotage against the $7.7 billion line.

Oil was flowing normally through the 800-mile line today after being shut off almost 24 hours because of Wednesday's blast, which ripped a 2-inch hole through the crude-carrying line.

"We do have a suspect in the case. That's all I can tell you," a state police spokeswoman said today.

Lt. George Pollit said the type of explosive used in the blast was not definitely known, but he said the person responsible "has knowledge of the use of explosives."

Investigators have said a 20-foot length of slow burning fuse, believed to be the remains of a primer cord used to detonate the explosives, was found in the snow. They would not say what new leads may have been uncovered during aerial and ground searches of the area.

Last July, dynamite blasts ripped some insulation from the pipeline and dented some fixtures on an elevated section of the line, but the pipe itself was not damaged. Two men were arrested in the case. One pleaded guilty; the other awaits trial.

Oil started flowing through the line again Thursday at 10 a.m. and was "back up to normal"—730,000 barrels per day — by 2:30 p.m., said John Ratterman, Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. spokesman.

The line carries Prudhoe Bay crude to Valdez. From there the oil is shipped by tanker to refineries in the continental states.

The spilled oil was pumped from the ground to tanker trucks for transport to the nearby North Pole Refining Co. plant. Ratterman said officials at the scene reported 90,000 gallons of oil had been removed from the site by noon.

State environmental officials said it was too early to assess fully the effect of the spill, first reported by pilot Gil Glover of Fairbanks.

Committee Is Assigned Study Of Annexation

The State and Local Affairs Committee of the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce has been assigned the task of finding facts and researching questions concerning the proposed industrial annexation in Greenville.

According to Mack Howard, vice president of the Public and Governmental Affairs division of the Chamber, the committee will study the proposed annexation and research possible alternatives for producing the needed additional revenue for the City of Greenville.

Howard Dawkins, chairman of the State and Local Affairs Committee, has selected subcommittee chairmen to work with four issues related to the proposed annexation.

Frank Lawrence and David Duffus are co-chairmen of a subcommittee to study budget analysis. Doug Starr and Don McGlohn will serve as ex officio members. Others members are Bill Ipeck, Doug Gerry, Charles Gaskins Jr., Bill Taylor Sr., Ed Waldrop, Charles Wilkerson and Jim Hecker.

Mark Tipton is chairman of the Alternatives to Annexation Subcommittee. Members are Mack Howard, ex officio; Steve Evans, Howard Wilson, Charles Thompson, Tommy Bunting and Ted Johnston.

Kurt Fickling and Charles Thompson are co-chairmen of the Long-Range Plans Subcommittee. Members are Jeannette Cox, ex officio; H. L. Ormond, Louis Clark, W. H. Watson, Roy Hardee, J. L. Hines and Billy Clifton.

Brayom Anderson is chairman of the subcommittee to study the advantages and disadvantages of annexation. Members are Jerry Powell and Tommy Edwards, ex officio; Jim Barwick; Roger Taylor; Lester Brown; Harry Hastings; Waverly Phelps; Bill Fowler; and Jim Cheatham.

Each of the subcommittees will submit reports to the Executive Committee, which will then make a recommendation to the Board of Directors so the Chamber can make known its position on the annexation issue.

City School Bd. Meets Monday

The regular meeting of the Greenville City Board of Education will be held Monday, Feb. 20 at 8 p.m. at Aycock Junior High School.

A special event scheduled at the beginning of the meeting will be a recognition of the 75th anniversary of the establishment (in 1903) of the Greenville City Schools.

Also, a special presentation will be made by local persons representing the funding drive for the new N. C. Museum of Art Building, as part of a statewide campaign.

Items on the agenda will include a status of accreditation plans and studies, and a review and scheduled action on policy matters.

Rising Income Slows

WASHINGTON (AP) — Personal income of Americans rose 0.3 percent in January, the smallest monthly increase in a year, the Commerce Department said today.

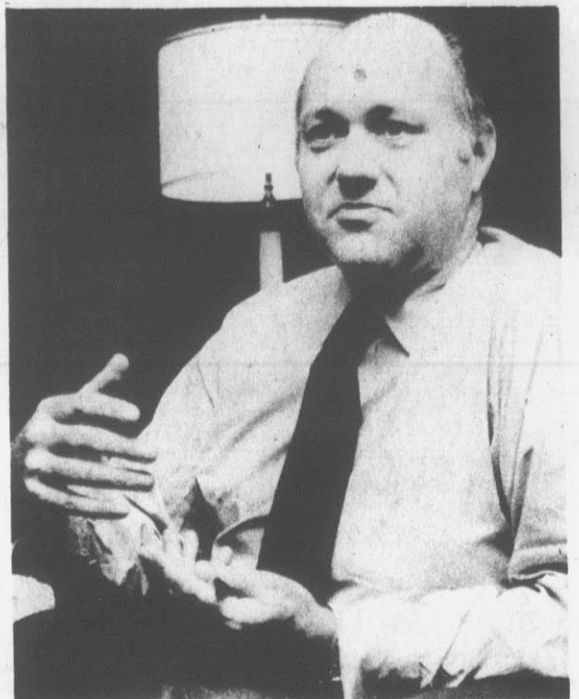

The increase, which followed rises of 1.2 percent in November and 1.5 percent in December, was small because of a variety of unusual factors, the department said.

Overall, the total of wages, salaries, dividend payments, transfer payments such as Social Security and welfare benefits and other income rose by $4.3 billion to an annual rate of $1 trillion, 626.4 billion.

Despite the weak showing, wages and salaries rose $10.9 billion, or 1 percent, after rising only $3.8 billion in December. The report takes into account normal first-of-the-year wages, but some of the increase was attributed to an increase in the minimum wage, which went into effect last month.

An analyst said bad weather had no major effect on income last month, but the slower rise was caused mainly by particularly strong payments in December. Personal income is an important indicator of the money Americans have available to spend and can be a clue about the economy's future growth.

The January increase was the smallest since a $4.1-billion rise in January 1977.

Bailar Quits Postal Post

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar, a financial expert who was not able to eliminate the Postal Service's chronic deficits, is returning to private industry. And he suggests his successor take "a very vigorous approach to cost cutting."

Bailar announced his resignation Thursday, saying he had enjoyed his three years in the job, but that "a businessman's place is in the business community and I'm looking forward to going back."

He said he will have a higher salary as executive vice president of United States Gypsum Co. in Chicago than the $66,000 the postmaster general earns. However, he did not specify his new salary.

In leaving, Bailar spoke out against pending legislation that would strip away much of the independence from Congress and the White House that the Postal Service was given in 1971 when the Post Office Department was abolished.

The mail agency was largely freed from political considerations and was organized like a private business and given the goal of breaking even financially. However, it has been in the red ever since.

The largest three deficits since reorganization were amassed in the last three fiscal years. However, Bailar's cost reduction efforts did reduce the red ink from $1.2 billion in fiscal 1976 to $481 million in fiscal 1977.

Those cost-cutting efforts frequently ran into opposition from the unions representing postal workers and from members of Congress.

For example, he urged serious consideration for eliminating Saturday mail deliveries, which would save the agency an estimated $400 million per year, but was opposed by the unions and by congressional representatives of rural areas.

He also moved ahead with eliminating money-losing rural post offices that serve tiny communities, and again was opposed by congressmen representing rural areas and by the postmasters who would lose jobs.

Bailar came to the government as a graduate of Harvard Business School and a specialist in financial matters. He was a vice president of American Can Co. in New York before joining the Postal Service in 1972 as its top financial officer. Three years later he took over the top post.

A Trade Trip By Governor

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt plans a trip to Europe for two weeks in April in search of more foreign trade for North Carolina.

The state Board of Economic Development announced the trip Thursday. James R. Hinkle of the Commerce Department's international division said about 25 board members, staff and businessmen would accompany Hunt.

The group plans to leave April 2 for Dusseldorf, Germany, where the department has an office. It will spend the first week in Germany and Switzerland, then head for England with a stop in Israel in between.

Hinkle said Hunt was interested in Israeli solar technology for agriculture.

Stops are scheduled in Stuttgart, Germany and Berne, Switzerland as well as London, Birmingham and Manchester, England.

Among the businesses Hunt plans to visit will be tobacco import firms in both Germany and England, two of the major foreign markets for North Carolina leaf.

"We'll be visiting with industrial prospects," Hinkle said, adding that the cost of the trip had not yet been worked out. Businessmen and board members will pay their own way, he said.

Commerce Secretary D.M. "Lauch" Faircloth, Hinkle and Economic Development Board chairman Lynwood Smith will be part of the group.

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — Seventeen miners were reported killed and nine are missing in a methane gas explosion in a coal mine at Tatabanya, 30 miles west of Budapest.

Road Funds For Three Counties

Pitt, Greene and Martin Counties will receive more than $741,000 in highway bond funds for improvements to the secondary road in the three counties, according to initial allocations made by the North Carolina Board of Transportation.

Under the initial allocation, Pitt will receive $405,252, while Greene will get $121,458 and Martin $214,787.

The bond funds for secondary road improvements are allocated on the basis of unpaved secondary road miles in the county as compared with overall mileage of unpaved secondary roads in the State.

Pitt has 276.6 miles of unpaved roads as compared with Greene's 82.9 miles and 146.6 miles in Martin County. There are more than 20,400 miles of unpaved secondary roads in the state system.

The $30 million allocated statewide averages out to approximately $1,465 per unpaved mile. The bond fund allocation for Pitt is in addition to the $365,900 allocated to Pitt for secondary road improvements earlier this fiscal year.

The $300 million highway bond act, approved by the voters last November, directs that over a five-year period, $75 million will be used to improve the State's secondary road system, while $175 million will go for improvements to the primary system. An additional $50 million from the bond act will be used for the State's urban road system.

"We'll be visiting with industrial prospects," Hinkle said, adding that the cost of the trip had not yet been worked out. Businessmen and board members will pay their own way, he said.

Near Final Agreement On Future Of Rhodesia

By JOHN EDLIN
Associated Press Writer
SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Prime Minister Ian Smith and three black leaders were reported near agreement today on the last issue remaining in their negotiations to draw the blueprint for Rhodesia's transition to black majority rule.

After reaching accord on constitutional principles and the makeup of the security forces, informed sources said they agreed today that the interim cabinet would be made up of five members from each of the four parties involved in the talks, meaning 15 blacks and five whites.

They said a comprehensive agreement could be signed by the end of the month.

Smith's minister of manpower, social affairs and health, Rowan Cronje, said the first black majority government could take over within a year. But he warned that the guerrilla leaders who boycotted the negotiations probably would step up their war.

The interim government will draw up the new constitution for Zimbabwe, the black nationalist name for Rhodesia, and hold the country's first election in which black voters will be in the majority.

Broad agreement on the composition and command of the transition army and police forces came in a 2½-hour session Thursday between Smith and the moderate black leaders, sources said, but they gave no details. The Rhodesian army is already 80 percent black, but whites command it at all levels.

Black sources said Smith and the blacks also discussed a "safe return" policy that would allow the return to Rhodesia of guerrillas of the Patriotic Front fighting the white regime from bases in neighboring Zambia and Mozambique.

In a major breakthrough for Smith's efforts to circumvent the proposed British-American blueprint for Zimbabwe and the transition to black rule, he and Bishop Abel Muzorewa, the Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole and Chief Jeremiah Chirau announced agreement Wednesday on principles for a new constitution. They included universal suffrage and guarantees to protect the white minority for 10 years.

British Foreign Secretary David Owen, in the first official British comment, told the House of Commons the agreement was "a significant step toward majority rule" and "should be welcomed."

The State Department, which on Wednesday criticized the agreement because guerrilla leaders Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe were not parties to it, said on Thursday that it "represents only a part of a much larger and more comprehensive set of arrangements which must be worked out."

There was no further mention of Nkomo and Mugabe.

Nkomo said on Wednesday that the guerrilla war would continue.

Dear Abby

Chivalry's Alive At This Airport

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DAR ABBY: To all those cynics who say that everyone is out for himself, I would like to relate the following incident:

Over the Thanksgiving holiday I visited some out-of-state friends. At the airport for my flight home, the limousine driver dropped me off at the wrong airline entrance, which was a long walk from the right airline. I had three heavy suitcases and I was getting very, very tired. I paused for a moment to adjust my suitcases when a young man about my age (27 or 28) came along, took the two heaviest ones and asked, "Where to?"

I told him, but in my cynical heart, Abby, I kept praying that he didn't run off with my suitcases.

We chatted as we walked, and he told me that in his spare time he comes to the airport just to help people. I must admit that I became a bit suspicious. After all, how many people do you find today who do that kind of thing?

When we reached my gate, he set my suitcases down, and said cheerily, "Have a nice flight." Then he quickly walked off before I even had the time to say, "Thank you."

When it finally dawned on me that all this fellow wanted was to help people, I felt ashamed of myself for being suspicious.

Abby, I'm not so naive as to think that everyone who does something for others does it out of the goodness of his heart, but it's nice to know that there are still some people in the world who aren't out only for themselves.

MANCHESTER, N.H.

DEAR MANCHESTER: I don't want to discourage good deeds, but Good Samaritans who make a habit of hanging around airports to "help" people could find themselves in trouble.

For example, say some grateful traveler forces a dollar or two on Good Samaritan, he (Good Sam) is in violation of working at the airport without a license or union membership, for which skycaops pay a pretty penny. Also, whether a Good Samaritan helps people for fun or profit, in effect he's competing with those who "help" people for a living.

DEAR ABBY: Recently there have been letters in your column from tall people who resented having strangers mention their height.

I had a gentlemen friend who was 6 feet 7, and when someone would ask him how tall he was, he'd say, "I'm 5 feet, 19 inches."

One woman who was told that said, "Good heavens, I could have sworn you were over six feet tall!"

A.B. IN ESTERO, FLA.

DEAR A.B.: Thanks for giving my tall readers a short course in how to handle that rude question.

Some Medical Authorities Question Care

EDITOR'S NOTE — If it's true that you can't measure human life in terms of money, it's also true that medical resources and public funds are limited. At times, this presents an acute moral and ethical dilemma. Usually it's found on the upper scale of age, but — as this article shows — it's equally prevalent at the lowest.

By CINDY ROSE
Associated Press Writer
MIAMI (AP) — It cost $150,000 to keep Matthew Amis alive when he was born weighing just 25½ ounces. The price of Mark David Youmans' life was $5,000 — a bargain.

But some medical authorities are questioning the worth of the highly specialized neonatal care needed to save premature babies like Matthew and Mark. "One way to explain the problem is to pose the question: Just what is a newborn baby worth," Dr. Albert Jensen, associate professor of bioethics at the University of California School of Medicine at San Francisco, wrote in a medical article.

"While the cost-benefit ratio of neonatal intensive care is difficult to establish, it is hardly too soon to ask whether the immense effort is warranted when the results, for individuals and for society, are so unclear."

At Variety Children's Hospital in Miami, Dr. Carol Hersh scoffs at such theories as the "kind of nonsense we get from doctors sitting at a desk who never deal with the baby and his parents."

In the Amis home in San Francisco, Matthew is now 1½ years old and "perfectly normal" except for being a bit small for his age. He spent his first eight months in a neonatal care unit and had to have oxygen at home until August.

"Matthew's worth all of $150,000 — although I couldn't really put a price on what he's worth to us," said his father, Albert, a warehouseman who paid about $150, the deductible on the hospital bills. The rest was picked up by group insurance and California's Crippled Children's Society.

At the other end of the scale is Mark Youmans. Born a month prematurely, he was rushed from Titusville, Fla., to the neonatal unit at Variety, where he was successfully treated for hyaline membrane disease, a common lung condition of premature babies.

Frances Cassick Gives Program

Frances Cassick presented the program at the meeting of ESA, Gamma Delta Chapter held at the home of Hester Latham.

The program topic was "The Mentally Handicapped and Job Opportunities for Them."

Chapter President Rubelle Goin presided at the meeting. Seventy-five dollars was sent for the North Carolina ESA Scholarship Fund for teachers working for handicapped children. Members were advised of the State Council meeting in Raleigh March 4 at the YWCA Building.

Ms. Mame St. Michel is now advisor from the National Office for North Carolina chapters.

It was noted that 22 ESA chapters in North Carolina contributed $25,476 to philanthropic activities last year. Other nationally recognized charities ESA contributes to include American Cancer Society, National Kidney Foundation, American Heart Association, Muscular Dystrophy Association of America, National Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults, National Foundation-March of Dimes and National Association for Retarded Citizens.

Whether the cost is $150,000 or $5,000, insurance frequently fails to meet the high cost of special care. While neighborhood blood drives, bazaars and cookie sales help some families over the insurance hurdle, public funds provide hospitals with money for neonatal care units.

In Florida for example, $4.4 million in public funds were appropriated for the year to help defray costs. But it isn't enough to pay all the bills.

Hilario Lazo ran up $5,000 in bills in one month at Variety. "There is no system in the world that can measure the worth of a child's life," says his mother, Lelna. "He's 22 months old now. We thought he wasn't going to make it. It's a miracle that we have him."

Neonatal units are set up in most states, primarily at hospitals connected with university medical schools. Among the leaders are Harvard, Vanderbilt and the universities of California, Colorado, Wisconsin and Cincinnati.

Florida and Wisconsin have special toll-free statewide telephone lines to let doctors know where there is an empty bed for a baby in trouble at birth.

Florida's "Care Line" in Tampa, provides information on the state's eight neonatal care units.

Any cost-benefit ratio is toughest to figure when a baby is likely to be severely retarded.

At Variety, one baby had a $22,000 medical-surgical bill between April and Aug. 18 when he died. Doctors said extensive birth defects were evident and the baby would have been severely retarded.

"We have parents coming here and asking us to stop the ventilator," says Dr. Eduardo Bancalari, chief of neonatology of the University of Miami School of Medicine which operates the center at Jackson Memorial.

"We cannot make that decision, either morally or professionally. We have to explain to the parents that the baby is alive and we have to do the best we can for a patient."

Some babies surprise even the experts. "It is very difficult to predict in a newborn whether he will be damaged or not," says Bancalari. "We get a lot of surprises ... some babies have terrible complications and not much hope. Then we find later they are markedly improved."

Jensen wrote that four years ago a doctor brought "cries of outrage" upon himself when he wrote in a medical journal that he had withdrawn treatment from 43 premature infants under his care and they died.

Few states have laws defining death so the doctor has responsibility to decide what to do — or not do — to keep a child alive.

But it's primarily the hospital administrators who have to deal with the tough financial questions. At Jackson Memorial, officials estimate the cost of the neonatal unit at $400,000 for personnel and $85,000 for supplies in the current fiscal year at nearly full occupancy.

Mary E. Purchase, professor of design and environmental analysis at the N.Y. State College of Human Ecology at Cornell, suggests that cost of operation and servicing costs should be considered.

Sweethearts Night Held By Degree Of Pocahontas

Withia Council No. 42, Degree of Pocahontas celebrated sweethearts night Tuesday at the Rotary Building.

Husbands and children were special guests and were served a covered-dish meal prepared by members. Tables were covered with red and white cloths. Pocahontas Pauline Ross remembered those attending with favors. Candles accented with greenery and red decorated the tables. The Pocahontas' table was decorated with candles and red carnations.

Betty Nobles was presented a red carnation corsage in honor of her birthday. She has served as an officer of the group for over 40 years and is now keeper of records. A sweetheart march followed dinner and prizes were awarded Mildred Merrill and Elroy Highsmith, Glennie Brewer and Myrtle Hunt. The heart puzzle was completed by Thelma and Lloyd Vincent.

Pennie Dunn was voted Withia Council Sweetheart. She received a red carnation corsage, a heart necklace and other gifts from the council. A special card was given to her official escort, Henry Dunn.

Members reviewed the Pitt County Association for Retarded Citizens, Inc. newsletter. The council supports some programs of the organization and also to the N.C. Association for Retarded Citizens, Inc.

Plans were announced for a special enrollment for new candidates scheduled to be held in Hawaii. Applications and information is available by contacting Mrs. Nobles or Great Keeper of Records of North Carolina, Improved Order of Redmen, Cecil Bradshaw.

Second Scout Penny Garris was escorted by Past Great Pocahontas of North Carolina Maycie Culbreth and was installed by Mrs. Nobles.

The next meeting will be Feb. 28 and Reba Cannon will be in charge of Good of the Order. Louise Cox, Ernestine Forrest and Louise Hardy will serve on the refreshment committee.

Mixed Outlook Presented In Meet Of Mortgage Bankers

DETROIT (AP) — A healthy year may be in store for the housing industry, but rising interest rates in conventional financing and a hold-the-line stance by Washington bureaucrats on government-backed loans could hurt the market.

Those were the opinions expressed Thursday by five mortgage bankers during the annual Mortgage Bankers Association meeting.

"Real estate sales activity is expected to be strong, provided that we get realistic financing capabilities," said Felix M. Beck, chairman of the board at Margaretten & Co. of Perth Amboy, New Jersey.

"Without change (in the rates), some of the forecasts could fall short," Roger L. Earnhardt, senior vice president of Cameron-Brown Co. in Raleigh, N.C., said in an otherwise optimistic forecast.

Rates on FHA-insured and VA-guaranteed loans are unrealistically low at 8 1/2 percent and rising closing costs paid by sellers are cutting homebuilders' profits and discouraging new construction, the mortgage bankers said.

Mortgage bankers are still disgruntled by statements last month from Lawrence B. Simons, assistant secretary for housing in the federal housing commissioner's office, indicating there are no immediate plans to raise rates on federally-insured and guaranteed loans.

In the economically booming Houston area, mortgage banker Edward R. Godwin said there is some apprehension over the rise in interest rates on conventional financing — 8 3/4 percent to 9 1/4 in the past three months. Godwin is senior vice president of Mortgage Trust Inc. of Houston.

In California, mortgage rates for new homebuyers stand at about 9.5 percent, but Robert A. Fiddaman, the senior vice president of United California Mortgage Co., is generally optimistic about the pace of the housing market.

Rising interest rates in the conventional market, the federal stance on FHA-insured and guaranteed loans and inflation could hurt housing growth in Michigan, said John A. Courson, executive vice president of the Fort Wayne Mortgage Co. in Birmingham.

Otherwise, Courson sees a healthy year for the industry in Michigan.

Some predictions from the experts:

—In Michigan, some 45,000 new single-family units and more than 25,000 new multi-family units, said Courson.

—In the Houston area, a pace about even with last year, when some 25,000 new single-family dwellings were built and more than 25,000 new apartment units were constructed, said Godwin.

—In California, a strong year across-the-board — in single- and multi-family residential, commercial and industrial activity, said Fiddaman. The office market was overbuilt for several years, but is regaining strength, he said.

To Hold Symposium On Panama Canal

A symposium, "Dialogues on the Panama Canal," will be held at the First Presbyterian Church, corner of Elm and 14th Street, next Tuesday at 7:30 p. m.

The program, being arranged by the Greenville-Pitt Co. League of Women Voters, will feature Herbert Carlton of the Political Science Department of East Carolina University. Carlton, who specializes in American government, has been teaching at ECU since 1963.

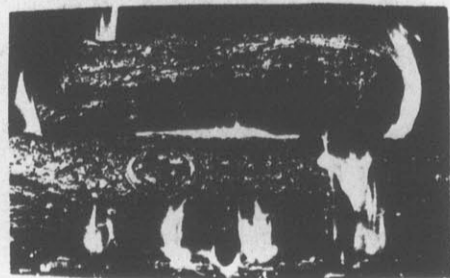

Included in the program will be a slide presentation of a trip through the Canal which was produced by the Panama Canal Company. Dialogue between the audience and the speaker will follow the formal program, with Ruth Mary Meyer, president of the N. C. League of Women Voters, acting as moderator.

This program, which has the purpose of presenting historical information on the Panama Canal and examining the value questions raised by the proposed treaties, is one of a series of forums being held statewide by local Leagues under the sponsorship of the State League of Women Voters and funded by a grant from the N. C. Humanities Committee.

The League does not favor or oppose the Panama Canal Treaties, but presents this program as an educational opportunity for the public. All interested persons are invited.

Some Blame May Be Teacher's

The nation has been wondering why Johnny can't read.

The Journal of Reading reports studies which may indicate that, in many cases, it's because Johnny's teacher doesn't read so well.

Some 348 teachers took the Cooperative English Reading Test and here were some of the results:

- 28 percent of the teachers scored lower in vocabulary than did one-half of the college freshmen.
- 49 percent of the teachers did less well in comprehension than half of the first-year students.
- 56 percent of the teachers read slower and with less understanding than the freshman norm.

The teachers tested were graduate students whose responsibilities included teaching, reading in elementary, intermediate or secondary schools.

"It would appear that some teachers' reading skills may be deficient enough to warrant justifiable concern," the researchers concluded. Teachers who find "reading difficult, boring or confusing," may not give it proper emphasis and attention.

North Carolina is seeking the answer to the poor reading problem through the hiring of additional reading specialists.

It might be, however, that more attention should be paid to special training for teachers who show up poorly in reading skills.

White House Setting Adds To Urgency

The negotiations aimed at ending the coal strike are on again — this time in the confines of the White House.

After weeks of negotiations a proposed contract was turned down by the miners. Subsequently President Carter urged the negotiators to continue at the White House.

The White House setting, of course, is designed to add a sense of urgency to the negotiations. The urgency is justified. Soon the nation will be running out of coal and it is essential to end the strike if we are not to face real hardship.

THIS AFTERNOON

Must Rally To Prevention

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—Ask the average citizen, "Do you want parent education or primary prevention," and the answer most likely will be No.

Not me.

Ask instead if a person is concerned about behavior problems in children, marriage breakdowns, alcoholism, emotional upsets and a score of other human problems, seen all around your community, and the answer will probably be Yes.

Ask if the person is interested in protecting himself and his family from such tragedy, and the answer is usually yes.

Ask, "Are you willing to join with a group of other citizens to prevent these problems?" and the response will be ore positive than it would otherwise have been.

Experience in the field has convinced Dr. William G. Hollister, chief of the school of community psychiatry at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, that you have to dig beneath the surface to talk about "primary prevention."

Early

Prevention, simply put, holds that in the gamut of emotional, mental, social, and even physical problems which plague us all there are many which could be better handled—even forestalled—if found and treated early on.

So far, most efforts have aimed at curing and healing after the crisis; a process requiring tremendous investment in institutions, programs, and personnel.

That investment itself is among barriers to moving more strongly into prevention. Hollister sees several forces behind this: "professional sneers, the scientific skepticism, and the low financial priorities given to primary prevention efforts."

Critics make "unrealistic demands (which) are downright unfair," he remarked at a recent conference on prevention as part of the John W. Umstead Distinguished Lectures series.

"Some prevention critics say we don't know enough... put it off until we know more about it... we gave psychotherapy over 50 years to mature and develop. Did anyone say... let's not do it till we know more?"

To critics who argue against investing in prevention because it hasn't been scientifically evaluated, Hollister response. "It is extremely difficult to prove you stopped something that didn't ever happen..."

NOBLITT

But effectiveness can be demonstrated in both physical and psychological arenas, and a steady building of public demand and willingness to participate both actively as volunteers and through the allocation of tax dollars will beneeded to produce major results, Hollister feels.

Not Enough

Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr. told the seminar that "keeping families and communities healthy is far less expensive than paying for the consequences of illness and social breakdown," but he warned that needs are great and resources limited. "We will not be able to get all the funds that you think we ought..."

Meanwhile, Hollister thinks change will come slowly, not in one, great breakthrough. It has, he comments, always been so in fields of health: medicine didn't start with success in heart disease or cancer... first they treated symptoms like pain... then to prevent injuries... then consequences of deprivations which disable people... and on to more complex matters.

"I suggest we borrow from public health's history and learn to start with humble goals... such as preventing symptoms like fear and anxieties, preventing destructive or self-defeating behaviors and preventing relationship breakdowns, role failures, emotional deprivations and the psychological over-reactions that disable people."

Prevention of more complex mental problems are "future goals," he feels, but work could "begin humbly with what we know now."

Survivors In Snowstorm

WASHINGTON—How did people cope when they were stuck in their homes during the blizzard? In order to find out I made several telephone calls to friends in New York during last week's snowstorm.

The first call I made was to Bob Simon who lives in Monsey.

Mrs. Simon answered the phone. "He's outside. I'll call him."

Ten minutes later, Simon got on the phone huffing and puffing.

"What are you doing?" I asked him.

"Shoveling the driveway so I can get the car out."

"You're not going to drive today?"

"Got to. Got to get to the store if it kills me."

"What for?"

"My wife's out of cigarettes. She's afraid she's going to die if she doesn't get a cigarette."

"That bad, huh?"

"She's sucking on a strand of raw spaghetti now, but she says it isn't the same thing. She tried to make a cigarette out of oregano leaves, but they wouldn't stay in the newspaper."

"Suppose the store isn't open when you get there?"

"She told me to smash the windows and loot."

"But you could get prison for that."

"She says it doesn't matter. She says she'll bring the kids up every Saturday to visit me, as long as I get her the cigarettes. I've got to go.

She's rifling through the garbage compactor to see if she can find a butt."

ART BUCHWALD

"Let her do it," I said.

"This is the third time she's gone through it. She found all the butts on the first go-round. She won't believe there aren't any left."

"Okay," I said. "And have a nice day."

The second call I made was to a friend on Long Island. His wife told me he didn't make it home and was stuck at the Waldorf Astoria. I called my friend at the Waldorf Astoria.

"Are you all right?" I asked.

"It's terrible," he said. "I tried to make the 3:45 from Penn Station but it was canceled. So I had to get a room here. I never lived through anything like this. Wait a minute, there's room service." He went off the phone and I heard him say to someone, "Honey, did you want red wine or white wine with your chicken?" Then he came on again. "So like I said, no one can move. All we can do is wait it out. I could be here for days. Hold it will you?... Honey, turn down the TV set, will you?... You're lucky you aren't here. I wouldn't wish this on anyone...Not too much ice, Sweetie...I'll never forgive the Long Island Railroad for what they did to me last night."

"Well, at least you're safe," I said.

"If you call sharing a room at the Waldorf Astoria with a salesman from Syracuse during the worst blizzard in 20 years 'being safe,' then you don't know anything about snowstorms. Listen, I have to go now...my turtle soup is getting cold."

The last call I made was to my sister in Kew Gardens.

"Edith, are you all right?"

"I'm fine."

"How's Harold?"

Spring Liquor Drive

By DAVID TOMLIN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Don't throw away your brown bag if the legislature approves the liquor-by-the-drink bill it will be considering this spring. Making that cocktail legal is one thing. Getting it served will be something else.

So says Bill Hester, chief administrator for the Alcoholic Control Board and the man who will have the job of implementing any decision the General Assembly makes about liquor.

Hester would like to be able to say that his staff had done some of the advance work that will be necessary before any hotel or restaurant will be allowed to serve a drink. But he can't.

"I have a staff of 21 people," he said in an interview. "I physically don't have the staff to do any more than we're doing right now."

Hester may not have to do any more than he's doing now, of course. Liquor-by-the-drink bills have come and gone. But the local option bill now in the legislature has already passed the Senate, and leaders of both sides of the debate give it a better chance in the House than any such measure has ever had.

Hester recites a dreary litany of what he'll have to do if the measure is enacted.

"Some type of stamp will be needed for each bottle a restaurant would buy to designate that the tax had been paid. We'd have to get together with the counties to design one."

"Then we'll need to devise an application form for businesses that want to apply for a permit."

"Then there's the matter of my staff. We can't handle it. Beer and wine permits have just jumped out of sight. I'd have to ask the Emergency Contingency Fund for more people."

"There are some decisions that have to be made too. For example, the law says nothing

40 Years Ago Today

February 17, 1938

Mayor M. K. Blount today received a telegram from Rep. Lindsay Warren assuring him that Greenville was included in the list of towns included in the prescribed area for consideration as a site for the $1,500,000 veterans hospital.

The telegram stated that Greenville was inadvertently omitted from the list. A news story from Washington, D. C., yesterday listed towns situated in the prescribed area, but Greenville was not among those named.

The message also stated that Williamston and Washington were included in the area and would be given consideration when officials begin conferences on the location of the proposed hospital.

Rep. Warren said he had been assured by Frank P. Hines, veteran's administrator, that the omission of Greenville, Washington, and Williamston was a mistake and should have been included in the list.

The telegram declared that the three towns would be considered when engineers make their survey to determine the proper location for the hospital.

Nothing Like Mardi Gras

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Rudyard Kipling thought he had experienced all this world had to offer when he had "seen the eagle and heard the owl."

But he never went stomping on Mardi Gras day way down yonder in New Orleans with Pete Fountain and his Half-Fast Walking Club, which puts this humble scribbler one up on that master of the folk tale.

Dawn was just breaking over the Mississippi delta when we joined that great Dixieland Clarinetist and 20 of his faithful followers, all decked out in Scottish kilts and swinging sporrans, at Commander's Palace, a restaurant up in the Garden District, for their 18th annual ramble down to Canal Street and the French Quarter.

Already the city was awake and alive with costumed revelers roaming the streets and perched on step ladders, balconies, tops of automobiles and lampposts waiting for the Krewe of Zulu, Rex and Comus to come parading by with their colorful floats, showering the populace with souvenir doubloons and gaudy beads.

In between the big parades come marching clubs, like the Pete Fountain organization or lack of same, strutting and cake walking at will through the crowds to the frenzied beat of the old-time music that gave birth to blues down here on the way back from a thousand funerals.

Pete raised his gold buttoned clarinet, intoned "Down By the Riverside" in a magical, mournful wail that was echoed by the slide trombones, and we were off stomping behind a banner that proclaimed "Jack Daniels Country Club."

Besides the Pete Fountain jazz combo, our ranks boasted the Onward Brass Band, a mostly black Dixieland ensemble that in the words of its leader Louis Coltrill "has been planting

'em in the graveyards around here since 1895 and never missed a Mardi Gras."

As always since he began marching in 1961, Pete had the Onward Band's kettle drummer, Freddie Kohlman, right at his elbow, rapping out a "street beat" that modern musicians just can't duplicate. Close by also were "Pops" or Red Fountain, Pete's father who shucks oyster for a living at Bozo's seafood palace, and comedianmusician Phil Harris in high button shoes.

By the time we reached St. Charles, one of the few avenues left in America where streetcars still run, a half million people were in the streets.

Pete hit them with "Hey, Li'l Liza," which they sang back from the hotel windows and balconies, and then had Jimmy Haislip, his lead trombonist, tear them up with the slush pump glories of begging Bill Bailey to come home.

The route, if there was one, meandered down streets that wouldn't see the big parades, and paused at a half-dozen "pit stops," neighborhood bars and people's homes, where the jazz pilgrims were refreshed with various alloys of branch water. A few fell by the wayside, some carried on with a helping hand, and a number of strutters developed pronounced staggers.

A few years ago when the Half-Fast Walking Club sauntered forth in the regalia of Roman gladiators, Pete was carried on his shield for the final portion of the march. But on this day, wearing the bearskin of a Scottish clan chief on the bare skin of his completely shaved head, our leader never faltered and rarely stopped playing as "Maryland," "South Rampart Street Parade," "High Society" and all the other favorites drifted through the canyons of apartments and office buildings.

In front of old city hall, Pete quaffed champagne toasts with Mayor Moon Landrieu, resplendant in the gold derby and polka dot bowtie of a burlesque comedian, and Louisiana Gov. Edwin Edwards, wearing an open chested motorcycle jacket that didn't have a patch on Burt Reynolds. By now the street crowds numbered 750,000, most of them in costume and all of them howling at us to favor them with golden doubloons bearing Pete's

Other Editors Say Civics Is Needed

The Wilson Times

If it is true that an informed citizenry makes a democracy work, the United States appears to be headed for trouble in years to come. A survey of American teen-agers indicated that most know little about the simplest fundamentals of how their government works.

We recall discussing the subject of civics and that it was not a required subject in the public schools, but was offered in the ninth grade. We also remember that among the required subjects was a period for physical exercise.

The survey, conducted by the National Assessment of Education Progress, a federal testing project involving some 145,000 students, disclosed an appalling decline in civic awareness from six years ago. The decline followed a period of heightened public interest in politics.

Most teen-agers knew the name of the president, but fewer than half could name one of their senators or representatives. A fourth did not know that the Senate is part of Congress and about a third did not know a senator is elected. More than a third did not believe a newspaper should be allowed to criticize elected officials.

Such lack of basic knowledge is cause for concern. The problem obviously goes deeper than the steadily dropping enrollment in social studies courses in public schools, although the schools must shoulder some of the blame. Civics courses ought to be more lively and interesting, and they ought to be made a requirement for getting a high school diploma.

As educators who conducted the survey noted, the family, the community and the communications media also wield considerable influence over youngsters. They, too, ought to assume more responsibility for educating American youth in the principles and workings of democracy.

Parents are the strongest educators and the performance in this area no doubt points to widespread parental apathy. Parents should be ever mindful that rearing their children to be good citizens is as important to their future as learning to read and write.

Several Carter Coal Options

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has broad emergency powers to ease the coal strike's impact, ranging from having the military dig coal to giving Americans free firewood.

But government sources say Carter is not yet ready for any such dramatic role, opting instead to let the states set power curtailments while encouraging negotiators to break their deadlock.

Energy officials, who asked not to be named, said Carter probably will take no major action as long as he believes the negotiations that resumed Wednesday night at the White House might settle the coal strike which began Dec. 6.

The officials also said the federal government would not impose emergency measures until the states have a chance to do all they can.

But, should the situation worsen, the president does have powers to provide at least emergency relief. Here are a few:

—He has legal authority to impose mandatory electricity saving on the states.

—He can seek a court injunction under the Taft-Hartley Act requiring striking miners to go back to work for an 80-day cooling-off period.

However, that would involve a substantial chance of failure. Union leaders say miners would refuse to work without a contract settlement, even under court order.

—He can declare a national or regional energy emergency and use his authority under the National Energy Act to allocate available coal supplies to areas most in need.

—If coal shortages eventually force widespread power reductions, industries and businesses may start shutting down, putting hundreds of thousands of employees out of work.

The latest federal survey, not yet made public, reported that as of Feb. 11, the east-central states had coal stockpiles adequate to meet requirements for anywhere from 47 to 110 days.

Ohio reported only a 47-day coal supply, and Tennessee and West Virginia reported 51 days each.

Missouri reported a 53-day coal supply; Illinois, 54 days; Maryland, 64 days; Virginia, 67 days; and Indiana, 69 days.

However, supplies also vary between companies. Indiana's largest utility says that at midnight Monday it will drop to a 40-day supply, a level that will trigger the first mandatory power cutbacks, covering nonessential commercial lighting. Partial cutbacks will be extended to schools, businesses and homes when supplies reach a 30-day level.

After negotiations reach an agreement, the pact must go to the union's bargaining council for acceptance, which could take a number of days.

Approved there, it goes to the rank-and-file, where a ratification election would take about 10 days. And miners say it will be about two weeks after ratification before coal is moving in substantial quantities.

INTERIOR DECORATING
When John Quincy Adams, who had been the sixth president of the United States, was walking the streets of Boston one day in his eightieth year, he was asked by a friend, "How is John Quincy Adams?" "He is very well," replied Adams, "but the house he lives in is very dilapidated. It trembles with every wind, and I think John Quincy Adams will have to move out of it before long."

Recently a preacher who quoted this incident over the radio received a letter from one of his listeners which read, "This is an old lady who writes to you, and the house she lives in is eighty-two years old. Considering its age it is in good repair, although it does not look as well as it did fifty years ago. Recently I have been spending my time interior decorating. The windows I look out of are clear, and I have a reliable tenant in the upper story."

If, in our senior years, we give enough attention to interior decorating, the condition of the rest of the house will not matter so much to us.

Judaism Delegation Meeting Moslems

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — A delegation from the three branches of American Judaism was in Egypt this week to open a dialogue with Moslem leaders, the first such officially representative U.S. Jewish visit in history.

It reflected a surge of initiatives both by Jews and Christians to enliven relations with Moslems, sparked by their rising influence in the world and their role in a sought-for peace in the Middle East. All three monotheistic faiths find their origins in the Bible.

While the political efforts for peace temporarily were snarled over differences between the governments of Israel's Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Egypt's President Anwar Sadat, the new religious contacts bloomed.

Recent events "have opened new possibilities for serious and fruitful encounter between Moslems and Jews," says Rabbi Saul I. Teplitz of Woodmere, N. Y., president of the Synagogue Council of America.

He heads the 12-member council delegation, embracing Conservative, Orthodox and Reform wings of Judaism, with meetings scheduled over a two-week period with Islamic and other religious leaders in Egypt. While the Middle East conlict has obscured the fact, "Judaism and Islam share significant spiritual and cultural links," Teplitz says.

"It is our hope that as a result of our visit to Egypt, both faith communities will be encouraged to draw on their respective religious traditions to help heal the wounds caused by 30 years of political conflict and hasten the day of peace."

About 200 Jews still live in Egypt, compared to an estimated 65,000 to 75,000 there at Israel's establishment in 1948.

In a kindred development, the National Council of Churches, including most major Protestant and Eastern Orthodox denominations, recently set up its first task force to foster

Christian-Moslem relations. The unit's director, the Rev. Dr. Byron L. Haines, says U.S. Christians are taking "increasing interest" in Moslems, whose numbers have grown swiftly in America lately, along with the mounting sway of Islamic Arab nations in international affairs.

Conferences and study seminars of Christians and Moslems are taking place around the country, Haines says, noting that some local churches are offering their buildings to Moslems groups for worship and meetings.

So far, the agency has held two meetings, begun issuing a bi-monthly newsletter and compiled a list of about 300 U.S. Moslem organizations, but says the gathering of information still has a long way to go, as does development of literature on the subject.

"The oneness of God is central to the belief of the Moslem and the Christian," Haines says. Despite differences over the role of Jesus and over the Islamic Scriptures, the Koran, Haines says both faiths worship the God of Abraham, Moses and Jesus.

QUESTIONS POLICY — Eileen Dorfing, 34, a former resident of Bristol, Conn., and now living in Haifa, has filed a petition in Israel's High Court questioning a policy which does not permit a person who believes in Jesus as the Messiah to become an Israeli citizen. (AP Laserphoto)

Conduct Service Sunday Night

KINSTON — Evangelist Shirley Jean Daniels will render services at the Gospel Outreach F.W.B. Church here Sunday at night.

The church is located at 605 N. Independent Ave. and the pastor is Eldress Mary Wallace.

Church To Hold Revival Series

FARMVILLE — Beacon F.W.B. Church, in a new location one mile west of Joyner's Crossroads near here, will hold a revival Wednesday through Sunday at 7:30 each evening.

There will be a different speaker for each service: Wednesday, the Rev. Alvis Harris of Maranatha F.W.B. Church; Thursday, the Rev. John Moran of Belvoir F.W.B. Church; Friday, the Rev. Roger Tripp of Grace F.W.B. Church; Saturday, the Rev. Van Dale Hudson of Trinity F.W.B. Church; Sunday morning, the Rev. James Avery of Faith F.W.B. Church and Sunday evening, the Rev. Ted Reynolds of Parker's Chapel F.W.B. Church.

The public is invited to all of these services.

Gospel Sing To Be On Sunday

A gospel sing will be held at the Black Jack Pentecostal Free Will Baptist Church Sunday at 7 p.m.

The J. Stone Quartet of Fayetteville and their musical group will be singing.

The pastor, Nathan F. Hanchey, invites the public to attend.

SPEAKING SUNDAY

FALKLAND — Minister Jimmy Stokes of Greenville will speak at Friendship Holiness Church Sunday at 8 p.m.

The public is invited.

Missionary To Deaf Will Speak

Jerry Potter, N. C. Baptist State Convention missionary to the deaf, will speak at Arlington Street Southern Baptist Church Sunday at 11 a.m.

Potter, who has a weekly televised sermon for the deaf each Sunday, will speak and sign his sermon here.

Sunday at 7:30 p.m. John A. Moore, South Roanoke Association missionary, will conduct a mission study at Arlington Street Church. The study title is "The Leaven and the Salt."

HOLDING SERVICES

The Rev. Thorbs and his congregation will be in charge of the 3 p.m. Sunday service at Selvia Chapel F.W.B. Church.

The public is invited to attend.

about whether vendors will be allowed to call on local bars and restaurants directly. I think at first we really shouldn't allow them."

How long will all of this detail work take? Hester doesn't know. "I haven't any idea what kind of ramifications this thing will have. We haven't even sat down and discussed it. I don't even have a guess."

There will be at least some breathing room after enactment, if it comes, of the local option measure. Counties that want liquor-by-the-drink will have to say so with referendums, and that will take some time.

But it may not take as much time as Hester needs to mobilize a staff that is geared now to the processing of beer and wine permits.

"We gained roughly 1,900 permits in a six-month span last year," he said. "There are more than 30,000 of them out there now."

"If he's right here how come you don't know?"

"We haven't been talking for two days. As long as you're on the phone tell him that dinner is ready if he wants some."

Harold came on the phone. I said, "Edith says dinner is ready."

"Tell her I'm not hungry," he replied.

Edith came on the phone. I told her, "He says he's not hungry."

She said, "Tell him that's too damn bad."

"Hey, listen. I'm calling long distance. I just wanted to find out how both of you were."

"Wonderful," she replied. "Being stuck in your apartment for two days in a snowstorm with your husband is the next best thing to having a second honeymoon."

countenance.

Peking's Square of Heavenly Peace, which is supposed to accommodate a million marchers, never looked this exciting on its busiest day, probably because the citizenry never has put aside its Mao suits to come forth as Kojak, Mickey Mouse, Tutankhamun and a thousand more masked marvels. Cheeky revelers who demanded to know what a Scotsman wore under his kilt or sought to find out for themselves were rewarded with the sight of some outlandishly lacy underpants and Shakespearian codpieces that would have frightened the Loch Ness Monster.

Coming onto Canal Street, the wind off the Mississippi howled up the lowlands of our kilts, causing the parade route to undergo drastic zigzags as we tacked like sailboat to keep the wind at our backs.

Still strutting five hours later, our ranks were infiltrated by a "Jesus Saves" group, with placards held on high, a man in a Richard Nixon mask sang out for a double and, in the French Quarter, a number of "Flashers" whipped open a cloak or lifted a skirt to bare their souls and whatever to Pete's soulful clarinet.

"I love this city," said an exhausted Pete Fountain, and his clarinet spelled it out with "heaven on earth, they call it New Orleans."

Jack Webb Bows In Sunday With New TV Series

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Jack Webb started in radio in 1945, at KGO in San Francisco. He learned much from the chief announcer, who began each day with a shot of rye and the cry: "My boy, life at best is a task."

Webb went on to fame and a few millions as Sgt. Joe Friday in "Dragnet." He's been at a new task this year — starting "Project U.F.O.," an hour-long series beginning Sunday on NBC.

Starring William Jordan and Casey Swain, it dramatizes files of the Air Force's now-defunct Project Blue Book, which investigated reported sightings of unidentified flying objects for nearly 23 years.

Replete with costly special effects, with music by Nelson Riddle, it'll cost about $500,000 a show, Webb estimates.
It's a bit more than the tab for his first series in early 1946. "One Out of Seven," a radio effort in San Francisco that dramatized news reports of wire services. It cost maybe $200 a week.

"And that included the staff organist," observed Webb, who narrated and acted in that series. He does neither in "Project U.F.O." He hasn't emoted since 1970, says he has no real desire to try it again.

Now 57, his black hair flecked with gray, Webb in the flesh is anything but the terse, grim Joe Friday he played on radio from 1949 to 1956 and in two TV eras, 1952-59 and 1967-70.

An intense man, he walks quickly, laughs easily and talks rapidly. About the new show: he says he didn't make it to ride the success of "Star Wars" or "Close Encounters of the Third Kind."

Webb, who says he's seen neither film, said his show occurred because (a) a long fascination with UFOs, and (b) he learned last year the once-secret Blue Book files were being made public.

"I didn't want to do an outerspace Western, it isn't really my bag," he said. "If I was going to deal in any kind of phenomena, I wanted to be involved in something that was factual, because it's more satisfying."

"So when Blue Book was declassified, he said, he got an aide to microfilm the project's more than 13,000 reported UFO sightings and commenced work on his documentary-style series.

He estimates 70 per cent of the reports can be explained satisfactorily, 20 per cent partly explained and the rest not at all.

He said Jordan and Swain, playing Air Force investigators, will cover all three areas, plus what he calls "bunco," or hoax attempts.

"We deal with the full spectrum," he said. "I think it's much more interesting, makes better entertainment."

Actual names and places will be changed for legal reasons.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: A equals Y
The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

South was a trifle impulsive in leaping to four spades. We would have preferred a game try of sorts, perhaps three clubs. However, the final contract would have been the same.
West led the jack of diamonds and continued the suit, declarer ruffing. South's prospects seemed bleak. To make his contract, he had to hold his heart losers to two. The only legitimate way to achieve this is to find one defender with both the ace and king of hearts, or guess which one held a doubleton high honor, in which case declarer could duck out the honor. However declarer had good reason to suppose that the heart honors were split on this hand, and he knew that a 4-3 break was much more

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Argentina will receive $105 million from the World Bank to build 840 miles of highway, reports a spokesman from the National Highway Systems.

More Profit In Retirees

MIAMI (AP) — Gone are the waterbeds and the X-rated movies. The mirrors have been removed. Aloha Motel co-owner says there's more money in retirement leisure than there was in the X-rated kind.

"We never expected it to be this good," Feldman said. "We paid $900,000 for this place originally, and I think we may have doubled its value now."

Three months ago, Feldman decided he was tired of citizen attacks on the hotel. Anyway, he said, the Aloha wasn't making much money as a sex palace and the owners decided Miami, a retirement mecca, would be a better market for the old than the young.

$100,00 Is Also 'Gone'

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP) — The $85 in Charles Walsh's bank account belongs to him. But the $100,000 he withdrew before disappearing belongs to a bank, officials say.

An arrest warrant has been issued for the quiet coin dealer who until recently lived in the same home where he had grown up.

Walsh, 52, began withdrawing the money from the bank Dec. 21 when a regular bank statement showed his meager account had ballooned to $100,085, said police Lt. Ben Riccardi.

"This is the first one like this we've ever handled," Riccardi said. "But we have hopes of finding the guy."

Commercial Trust Co. officials discovered an error in Walsh's account Feb. 9 and filed a complaint charging the modest bachelor with fraud.

Russian Flu Finds S.C.

COLUMBIA (AP) — Two cases of Russian flu have been diagnosed in South Carolina, the state Department of Health and Environmental Control said today.

Richard Quinn, a spokesman for DHEC, said the Russian flu determination was made by Dr. Harold Dowda, director of diagnostic microbiology at the agency.

The cases involved two teen-aged black boys in Spartanburg who came down with the disease on Feb. 5, said Dr. Richard Parker, chief epidemiologist at DHEC.

"All we know is that it's from two teen-aged children in the rural part of Spartanburg County," he said. "They were probably sick in the early part of February. The throat washings from which the virus was isolated was taken on the 8th of February."

Asked if the Russian flu might be expected to spread, Parker said, "I would assume that we're in for a fair amount of it on the grounds that it has already spread to 11 states. On that basis fairly I would assume it would spread fairly widely throughout South Carolina."

The symptoms are "just like any other flu, fever, cough, sore throat, headaches, muscle sores," he said. The time required for recovery varies, he added.

DHEC is working to uncover any other cases of Russian flu that might break out in the state, Parker said. "We have a surveillance system going," he added. "We have some more throat washings in the laboratory. All of them up until now have been A-Texas."

Lee Resigns Key Posts With Home Savings And Loan Ass'n

HERBERT W. LEE

J. LARKIN LITTLE

J. Larkin Little of Greenville will become executive vice president and managing officer of Home Savings and Loan Association effective March 1, replacing Herbert W. Lee who has held those posts for the past 18 years.

Lee has resigned those positions and will become vice president for marketing for the Association. In his letter of resignation, Lee cited health reasons for relinquishing the top management post.

Little, 35, has served as vice president and secretary of Home Savings and Loan for the past five years. In addition to taking over the top management post, Little will become a member of the association's board of directors.

Board chairman Kenneth Dews, in announcing the management changes, said, "We appreciate the leadership and direction Herb Lee has given Home Savings and Loan... these past 18 years. Under his direction Home Savings and Loan has grown from a financial institution with assets of $7 million and deposits of $6 million, to assets of more than $50 million and shareholder deposits of $42.5 million."

Dews said, "We are pleased that Mr. Lee will remain an officer...his long experience...will continue to be an important asset to the management of this organization."

Lee joined Home Savings in 1954 and was named its managing officer six years later. In addition to its two Greenville offices, Home Savings has branches in Plymouth and Bethel.

A native of Clayton, Little joined the Home Savings staff in 1966 in Greenville and a year later went to Plymouth as manager of the branch there. He remained in Plymouth until 1972 when he returned to Greenville as chief loan officer and secretary of the Association. He was named vice president in 1976.

Little received a degree in business administration from Campbell College in 1966 and has done graduate work at East Carolina University and at the Institute of Financial Education of the U.S. Savings and Loan League.

In Plymouth, Little served as chairman of the Washington County United Fund and a member of its board of directors. He was also a member of the Plymouth Lions Club and an officer of the Plymouth Jaycees.

Little currently is a member of the Greenville Rotary Club, the local Home Builders Association, and a past president and director of the Coastal Plains Chapter of the U.S. Savings and Loan League. He also served as chairman of the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce annual meeting last month.

Little is married to the former Betsy Barbee of Hertford. They have two daughters, Deborah, 10 and Laurie Anne, 7.

Job Count Up For Southeast

ATLANTA (AP) — All the states in the Southeast except Alabama and Kentucky — where coal mining strikes are occurring — contributed to a regional increase of 62,500 to more than 13.1 million non-farm workers in December, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported.

This was an increase of 482,800 workers in the eight states for the 12-month period, the bureau said. And 27 out of the 31 Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas in the region, reported monthly employment increases. Three reported decreases and one was unchanged.

For the year, 29 metropolitan areas reported employment increases, while Birmingham and Tuscaloosa, Ala., registered declines.

The bureau attributed the monthly increase in the Southeast mostly to a seasonal increase in trade (85,700 workers), with retail and wholesale divisions posting gains of 71,200 and 14,500 respectively.

Smaller gains were recorded in manufacturing (15,400); transportation, communication and public utilities (3,800); government (1,600); finance, insurance and real estate (1,400), and services (900).

However, the coal strike resulted in a downturn of 34,700 in mining, while the normal seasonal decline cut 11,800 from contract construction payrolls, the bureau said.

Changes by states, with monthly figures in parenthesis followed by annual figures, include:

Alabama (minus 2,600) 33,400; Florida (43,600) 104,500; Georgia (14,600) 57,200; Kentucky (minus 18,700) 56,200; Mississippi (3,400) 35,300; North Carolina (9,900) 79,700; South Carolina (4,400) 36,400; Tennessee (7,900) 80,100.

Meet Held By Collectors Club

The Greenville Collectors Club met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mickey Elmore Tuesday.

Letters of appreciation from the Pitt County Dept. of Social Services for the contribution to the Foster Children's Christmas Fund and from the Monitor Recovery and Restoration Foundation for the contribution were read. Reports were given on the Raleigh Flea Market and the Jeff Stuart Antique Show by President Bessie Ross and Secretary Francis Belcik.

Collectibles displayed included antique valentines, postage stamps, an 1884 Harper's Bazaar magazine, and several items from the Jamestown Exposition of 1907, including a miniature mirror.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cole in Kingston.

The most imposing mountain peaks in Nicaragua are Momotombo, a perfect cone rising to 4,000 feet on the northwestern shore of Lake Managua, and the 5,000-foot Concepcion, in the center of Lake Nicaragua, to the south.

BUDGET IS INCREASED

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Buoyed by a 5 per cent increase in pledged contributions from regional districts, the board of directors of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod has raised its 1978 budget to $28.5 million, compared to the $27.2 million budget last year.

Bullets Stun Pantego Five

PANTEGO — Jamesville's one for the Bullets. Jamesville outthit the Warriors, 13-7, in the extra period for the win.

Ricky Whitehurst led Jamesville with 31 points, while Tommy DiNardo had 16 points, and Trent Ange had 14. DiNardo also led the rebounding with 17.

For Pantego, Donnie Carter had 18, John Booth had 16, Mann had 13 and Wayne Jones had 10.

In the girls' game, Belhaven, unbeaten this year, rolled out to a 17-2 lead in the first period. They upped that to 28-12 by the half, and increased that to 42-24 as the final period got underway. Belhaven finished off the Lady Bullets, 21-14, in the last quarter.

Linda Nelson led Belhaven with 25 points, while Martha Gibbs had 12 and Mary Satchel had 10. Lorie Modlin and Edith James each had ten for Jamesville.

The Jamesville boys will face the winner of tonight's game between Belhaven and Chocowinity, while Belhaven's girls meets the Bath-Pantego survivor, in Saturday night's finals at Bath.

Jamesville's girls, however, playing at Belhaven, were eliminated from the tourney, 63-38.

Pantego carried a 26-0 record into the game, and had around a 40-game winning streak carried over from last season, going into the game with the Bullets.

"It was the biggest win of my career, that's for sure," Coach Ron Davenport said afterwards. "I don't really see it as an upset, though. We nearly beat them both times we played them. We've come a long way this year."

Pantego had a chance to take the lead in the game with 1:10 left, as Steve Mann went to the line with a one-and-one and a one-point deficit. Mann hit the first, tying it at 59-59, but missed the second. Jamesville rebounded, and worked for a final shot, but took it early and missed. Pantego then turned the ball over trying for a late shot, forcing the overtime.

Jamesville had taken a 20-12 lead in the first quarter of the game, but Pantego cut that back to 37-31 at halftime.

Pantego cut that lead back to 49-47, after the third period, and finally got back in the final quarter, but failed to take the lead.

In the overtime, Jamesville had the advantage, as Pantego had lost two starters to fouls to

D. H. Conley's Cassandra Tyson (32) waits for a rebound against North Pitt in last night's ECC tournament semi-final game as North Pitt's Connie Dupree (21) looks on. The Valkyries defeated the Pant-HERS in the game 48-28. (Reflector photo by Tom Baines)

WHEAT SWAMP—A pair of heartstopping finishes, along with an old-fashioned blowout, completed the field last night for tonight's finals in the Eastern Carolina Conference basketball tournaments.

D. H. Conley's top-seeded girls made it to the title game by virtue of a 48-28 victory over North Pitt in last night's opening contest. In the second game, Ayden-Grifton nipped North Pitt's fired-up boys 43-42, while C. B. Aycock's girls slipped past Greene Central 28-27 in the nightcap.

Last night's results mean number two Aycock will meet Conley for the girls' championship at 7 p.m. and Ayden-Grifton's third-seeded Chargers will battle host team North Lenoir for the boys' crown.

DHC Girls 48, NP 28

North Pitt used a press in the third quarter to attempt a comeback against the Valkyries, but although the press was effective, the Pant-HERS shooting was not and Conley went on to an easy victory.

The Valkyries opened up a 19-4 lead early in the second quarter as Annie Hardy scored 11 first-half points. They stretched that margin to 23-6 on a pair of free throws by Tina Dixon, but North Pitt scored the last four points of the first half to make it 25-12.

The Pant-HERS came out pressing in the third quarter and forced a number of Conley turnovers, but they were unable to take advantage of them by hitting their shots. North Pitt did cut the margin to 31-21 on two foul shots by Cynthia Barnes, but Annie Wooten ended the third quarter with a three-point play for Conley.

The Valkyries put the game away early in the fourth period, scoring the first seven points of the quarter to go up by 20, 41-21.

"Well, we're one step closer," Conley coach Norma Respass said. "Considering I did a lot of substituting, I thought the whole team gave a fine effort."

Respass had accolades for her team's defense and said Glenda Green did a "fantastic job," while Annie Wooten and Cassandra Tyson rebounded well.

"I'm just pleased. I still think we can play better, but I'm just glad to be this far."

As for tonight's championship game, Respass said, "I think my girls are going to be playing a lot better. They'll play ball when they know the other team is just as good as we are."

Hardy led all scorers with 15 points for Conley, while Glenda Green scored 11. Cynthia Barnes paced North Pitt with 10.

North Pitt coach Gail Stanfield said, "I feel like we played as well as we can against them. They're too quick and have too many good outside shooters. We just can't stay with them."

A-G Boys 43, NP 42

The Chargers trailed for most of the game, but guard Sheldon McCarter led a fourth-quarter rally and hit from the top of the key with five seconds left to give Ayden-Grifton a 43-42 victory.

The out-manned Panthers executed nearly perfectly and held a nine-point lead at the half behind Reginald Knight's eight second-quarter points.

Ayden-Grifton had both barrels blazing in the third quarter, however, and the Chargers scored the first ten points of the period to take a 25-24 lead. Six of those points came on turnarounds on the inside by center James Leggett.

After the teams traded a couple of baskets, the Panthers forced a trio of Ayden-Grifton turnovers with a three-quarter court press and pulled to a five-point lead 34-29.

The Panthers held that five-point edge with under three minutes left in the game, but the Chargers sliced it to just one when a McCarter layup made it 42-41 with 1:04 on the clock. Hosca Coley made a steal on the play and fed McCarter for a fast break.

North Pitt was able to run the clock down to 27 seconds before Mickey Hines was fouled. His free throw bounded away and Leggett grabbed the rebound.

The Panthers moved back down the court and narrowly avoided tumbling the ball away before feeding McCarter at the top of the key. His shot went through and North Pitt called time with four seconds left.

The Panthers threw the ball in to William Knight, who dribbled the length of the court and put up a 30-footer which looked good, but bounced off the rim at the buzzer.

"It looked good; I thought it had a good chance to go," a happy Charger coach Bob Murphrey said of the last-second attempt.

"I'm really proud of our guys because we weren't playing well, but we made up for that with our effort."

The Ayden-Grifton coach had nothing but praise for the Panthers. "North Pitt played super. They played about as well as you could play. They didn't deserve to lose, really, but I didn't think we deserved to lose, either."

The Panthers defeated the Chargers twice during the regular season, and Murphrey said, "We don't match up against them well. It's their quickness against our height, and sometimes it just comes down to a matter of style. Their style of play gives us problems."

Looking to tonight's championship game, Murphrey said, "I just hope this (the North Pitt game) didn't drain us. We had to fight hard. We feel like we have a good chance at North Lenoir. I think we've played them just as close as anybody since Christmas."

Leggett led all scorers with 20 points for the Chargers, while the Panthers were paced by Reginald Knight with 16 and Terry Shelton with 10.

"We made a couple of mistakes there at the last on both ends of the court, and that was it," a disheartened Panther coach Cobby Deans said, referring to Coley's steal and the missed free throw.

"But, we'll be back. Most of these guys will be back, and they want to work hard, so I'm looking forward to next season already."

CBA Girls 28, GC 27

Aycock overcame a poor overall performance with a shot at the buzzer to squeak past Greene Central 28-27.

The Lady Falcons got only eight points from the usual high-scoring Helen Jones and had to scramble in the final quarter to defeat the charged-up Ewes.

Aycock rushed out to a 9-2 bulge in the first quarter and appeared on the way to a rout, but the Ewes worked hard in the second period and finally tied the game at 13 on three straight foul shots, two by Iris Pridgen and one by Ann Woodard.

The low-scoring game was a see-saw battle from that point on with neither team building more than a four-point lead.

Gail Batts scored from underneath for Aycock at the 4:00 mark to give the Lady Falcons a 25-23 lead, but two seconds later, Melody Ham was at the line for Greene Central and she canned two free shots to tie the game.

A rash of turnovers gave the Ewes three chances to move ahead, and they finally did when Ham hit from the line with just 35 seconds on the clock.

Pridgen then stole the ball from the Lady Falcons and was fouled. She missed the attempt, but Woodard came down with the rebound and got the ball to Shannon Brown, who was fouled with 12 seconds left. She also missed on her first shot, and Woodard tied up Aycock's Jayne Pate on the rebound.

Pate controlled the tip and Jones raced down the court with the ball and was fouled on a layup attempt. She hit the first, but missed the second. Renee Hales pulled down the rebound, however, and hit a turnaround at the buzzer to provide the win.

Pridgen was the only player in double figures with 10 points.

Williamston In Girls' Finale

WILLIAMSTON — Williamston's once-beaten girls' basketball team vaulted easily past Tarboro, 55-25, to move into the finals of the Northeastern Conference Tournament last night.

Williamston will meet second-seeded Plymouth in the finals of the girls' tournament, while Washington and Tarboro battle for the boys' championship. The finals will be held in Plymouth tonight.

Williamston romped out to an 11-3 lead in the first period and were never in danger after the opening minutes. The Tigerettes powered their lead out to 25-11 by the end of the first half.

In the third period,

Williamston dumped in 20 points and expanded their margin to 45-21. They coasted home with a 10-4 margin in the final period.

Jan Rogerson led Williamston with 17 points, while JoAnna Lilley and Alicia Robertson each had 14.

Tarboro — Jones 14, Perry 3, M. Jones 2, Lassiter 2, Denny 2, Draught 2, Johnson 1, Morris 1, Jones 1, Banks 1, Lane 1, Parker 1, Johnson 1.

Armstrong New Bear Leader

CHICAGO (AP)—Neill Armstrong, defensive coordinator for the Minnesota Vikings for the last eight seasons, is the new head coach of the Chicago Bears.

"The ultimate goal is to win," said Armstrong, who was reached at his home in Minneapolis after he was named Thursday night. "It takes people to win."

"I've coached in all phases of the game and I've coached on offense," said Armstrong, in an attempt to prove that he is more than merely a defensive coach.

Armstrong's selection was announced by Jim Finks, vice president and general manager of the Bears.

Armstrong, 51, has been in the National Football League for 13 years and becomes the ninth head coach of the Bears. He succeeds Jack Pardee, who left the team after three years last month to take over the Washington Redskins.

The Bears called a news conference for today to introduce Armstrong, who played for Oklahoma State from 1947-1951 when the team won 21 straight games and was a member of the Philadelphia Eagles as a receiver and a defensive back.

Armstrong completed his playing career with Winnipeg of the Canadian League in 1954 and spent seven years as an assistant with Oklahoma A&M.

He served as an assistant coach with Houston from 1962-1963 and head coach of the Edmonton Eskimos from 1964-1969. Edmonton three times advanced to the finals of the Canadian League before Armstrong joined the Vikings in 1970.

Carolina Matmen Defeat Pirates

The University of North Carolina won six matches last night to capture its second victory of the season over East Carolina, 32-15.

The Tar Heels won three matches in the lower weights and came back to win three more in the upper weights to beat the Pirates. North Carolina is now 7-3 overall, while the Pirates dropped to 3-7 for the season.

Bob Passino defeated UNC's Bobby Monahan, 1106 at 118, while Paul Osman edged Joe Galli, 12-8, to give the Pirates victories in the lower weights.

Steve Goode topped Carter Mario, 9-8, at 158, and D.T. Joyner won by forfeit at heavyweight to provide the Pirates with two victories in the upper weights.

The Pirates wrestled without regulars at 126, 167 and 190. Charlie McGimsey, Butch Revils and Jay Dever all missed the match due to illness. East Carolina had to forfeit at 126.

East Carolina returns to action on Thursday when the Pirates host William & Mary.

118: Bob Passino (EC) defeated Bobby Monahan, 11 6.
126: Moeck (UNC) won by forfeit.
134: Paul Osman (EC) decisively Joe Galli, 12 8.
142: Bill Rumley (UNC) pinned

Don Foster, 5-24.
150: Dave Juergen (UNC) pinned Frank Schaefer, 2-14.
158: Steve Goode (EC) decisively Carter Mario, 9 8.
167: Clayton Bernard (UNC) pinned Aubrey Wynno, 0 51.
177: Carl Hoffman (UNC) decisively Vic Northrup, 16 7.
190: Dean Brier (UNC) decisively Ronnie Goodall, 16 5.
Heavyweight: D.T. Joyner (EC) won by forfeit.

Mueller To Join AIA

Phil Mueller, former East Carolina University wrestler, will join the Athletes In Action as a full member of their wrestling squad next fall.

Mueller recently returned from a one-week workout with the AIA, wrestling three matches for the team in bouts at Ball State, Ohio State and West Virginia.

"It wasn't a tryout, in that sense, but just to see whether I would like it or not," Mueller said. The former Southern Conference champion decided he did like it, and will join the team as a regular member in September.

Mueller won all three of his matches during the brief stay with the AIA team.

While nothing is definite, it would be assumed that the issue of whether East Carolina University and basketball coach Larry Gillman will come to a parting of the ways.

The turnaround that the Pirate basketball team has accomplished during the past two weeks has been very gratifying not only for Gillman and his players, but for the fans of the school as well.

East Carolina has now won four in a row, and has a definite shot at winning more. While the Pirates admit that they don't play their best basketball at home, they host Georgia Southern here, a team they have already beaten.

Then, they got to Richmond, facing a team they should have beaten in their Minges meeting. Following that, the Pirates have road games at Mercer and Virginia Tech to close out the season.

It will take great efforts to win the final two, but it can't be counted as impossible. And a 12-14 record to end the year after the start the Pirates had, cannot be considered anything but good.

Improvement can still be made in the Pirate basketball program, that is for sure. Defense is still a problem. Against Old Dominion, there were periods when the Pirates played good defense, but there were also periods where they played poorly also.

Defense, therefore, must be a key element that Gillman and his staff must work on before next season's beginning.

A lot has been learned by the Pirates and their coach during the past year. Hopefully, many positive things will come from this experience.

Next year's schedule is much tougher than this year's, so there must be improvement before next December 1.

Mack On The Move

Oliver Mack continues to take aim at the East Carolina University scoring record for a single season.

He currently has 567, and must have 96 points during the next four games to snap the 1953-54 mark of Bobby Hodges of 662. A 24.0 average over those four will take care of it.

Mack also has a shot at the best scoring average, currently 26.5, set by Hodges the same year. To set a new mark there, Mack must score 98 more points. Mack is almost assured of membership in the 1,000 Point Club at East Carolina also. Next year, if he continues the same pace, he could end up with over 1,300 points, putting him in a good position to take over third place.

Only 11 Pirates have broken into the select group, and all did it in three or four years of play. He will be the first to do it in two years.

Both Herb Krusen and Herb Gray also have a shot at moving into the group during the coming season, and will most certainly make it before they finish up.

It is doubtful if any of the current crop have a true shot at the all-time career leader, Hodges, who scored 2,018 points in a four-year career.

Time To Retire

Can there be any doubt that Muhammad Ali should retire now.

During the past 14 years, Ali has served boxing well. There were times when many lined up against him, and there were many who were pulling for Leon Spinks to take his title Wednesday night, simply because of Ali's flair with words.

Still, it must be admitted by all boxing fans that Ali was the most colorful champion of all time. He held the crown twice, and was only the second to regain his title after losing it.

Unfortunately, he spent the years of his prime in exile because of his stand against service in the Army. But even on the road down hill he could still show flashes of his former greatness.

Wednesday's final round showed this. The 36-year-old Ali, however, just didn't have the punch left that he might have shown a few years back.

A comeback? Don't come back, Ali. Remember Joe Louis. He got out on top, then came back to be crushingly defeated in his old age. Bow out gracefully.

NEW YORK (AP) — The Tripucka clan was out in full force at Madison Square Garden.

There was Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tripucka and two of their children sitting in the stands. There was Kelly playing for Notre Dame. There was Tracy coaching Fordham and there was T.K. playing for his older brother.

"The Walton Family," Notre Dame Coach Digger Phelps called the reunion, chuckling. But when the game ended Thursday night it wasn't the most together family in the world. Loyalties were divided after Fordham lost to Notre Dame 95-76 — and it was a larger "family" of Notre Dame players that did it.

"I've never had more depth," Phelps said in between signing autographs and shaking hands in the celebrative Notre Dame locker room. "I've had players with better individual talents. (John Shumate and Adrian Dantley come quickly to mind).

The Irish, playing in the second game of a doubleheader at the Garden after Georgetown edged Manhattan 81-80, had little trouble flicking off Fordham, one of the few easy touches on their brutal schedule.

What little competition the second game offered, the first game more than made up for.

Georgetown at first didn't live up to its ranking as the nation's No. 18 team and fell behind by 16 points in the first half. The Hoyas were guilty of 18 turnovers and some poor shooting.

"I told my players that I was embarrassed for them," said Coach John Thompson. "I told them they were a much better team than they showed in that first half. I told them they just weren't playing ball the way I knew they could. I told them to stop standing around."

Derrick Jackson and John Duren led a spectacular late rally after Manhattan had forged a 22-point lead, at 64-42. A 22-5 scoring burst in which Jackson and Duren scored nine points apiece keyed the Georgetown comeback and the Hoyas finally won in breathtaking style on Al Dutch's foul shot with two seconds left.

In other games involving the nation's ranked teams, No. 1 Arkansas whipped Southern Methodist 86-75; No. 8 DePaul defeated Wisconsin-Green Bay 55-49; Purdue upset No. 10 Michigan State 99-80 and 13th-ranked Providence edged Jacksonville 52-50 in overtime.

Elsewhere, Indiana beat Ohio State 83-70 behind Wayne Radford's 23 points; Ron Joshua's 18-foot jump shot at the buzzer gave Arizona State a 76-75 decision over Brigham Young.

Uniforms Wanted

Lost, strayed or stolen: two East Carolina basketball uniforms.

Assistant Basketball Coach Herb Dillon has issued an appeal for the return of two East Carolina uniforms before the Pirates start their final road trip of the year next week.

"Someone got into our locker room during the women's game Wednesday night," Dillon said. Missing afterwards were the travel kits of starting guard Don Whitaker and reserve Jim Ramsey. Included in the kits were the practice uniforms and the game uniforms for road trips of the two players.

"We don't have any spare uniforms, nor do we have any extras," Dillon said. "And there isn't enough time left to order new ones. We desperately need these two uniforms back. "If whoever has them will return them, no questions will be asked," Dillon said.

Girls Bow

ROCKY MOUNT — Rocky Mount Junior High School gained a 31-18 victory over E.B. Aycock's girls' basketball team yesterday.

Donna Whittington led Rocky Mount with 12 points, and was the game's lone scorer in double figures.

The loss dropped the Aycock team, in its first year, to 1-12.

Aycock hosts Rocky Mount on Monday.

Jaycee

WINTERVILLE — The Winterville Jaycees will play host to the Southeastern Regional Jaycee Basketball tournament tonight and tomorrow.

Two games will be played tonight, starting at 8 p.m., while five are on tap for Saturday, starting at 1 p.m.

All games will be played in the A.G. Cox School gymnasium. The tournament winner will advance to the state tournament next week in Laurinburg.

Many Allegations, No Evidence, In Haldeman Book

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL, Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — H.R. Haldeman, once Richard Nixon's alter ego, went public on Watergate with a single, strident theme: Nixon, the president, was behind it all. According to Haldeman: —Nixon "himself caused those burglars" to break into Watergate. —Nixon "was in on the cover-up from Day One." —Nixon may have submitted to blackmail from Charles W. Colson. —Nixon threatened to embarrass the CIA if it refused to participate in the cover-up.

Not all of the book is accusatory. Haldeman praises Nixon for his mastery of foreign policy, discusses a tensely declined invitation to join the Soviet Union in a nuclear attack on China, and dwells at length on Henry Kissinger. The insights it offers, however, are strengthened by the source. Haldeman was at Nixon's side from 1962 until the heat of Watergate forced his resignation as White House chief of staff 11 years later.

"I was never a social friend of Nixon's," he writes. But he was "closer than anyone else professionally." Says Haldeman: "Few men in all history have had the privilege of being raised as high as I was; and few have had the tragedy of being brought as low." But elsewhere he recalls once saying out loud: "Nixon was the weirdest man ever to live in the White House." Other accounts have laid the genesis of the June 17, 1972, Democratic Party headquarters burglary to the eagerness of Nixon re-election officials to gather political intelligence. No one has come as close as Haldeman in placing Nixon at the planning stage.

Nixon, he writes, "sometimes seemed to lose touch with reality" on matters pertaining to industrialist Howard Hughes, whom he blamed for his election defeats in 1960 and 1962. And the president long suspected that Lawrence F. O'Brien was a paid Hughes lobbyist while serving as Democratic Party chairman. "I believe it is almost certain that Nixon asked Colson to help him 'nail' O'Brien," Haldeman writes. "Colson naturally turned to Hunt. And Hunt tried to do it by tapping O'Brien's telephone at the Watergate." E. Howard Hunt, a retired CIA agent with a long string of clandestine assignments, was Colson's protege at the White House and the Nixon re-election committee. He and G. Gordon Liddy, the election committee's lawyer in charge of political intelligence, recruited the five burglars who were caught inside Watergate and they were convicted with them. Colson denied Haldeman's charges that he and Nixon ordered the burglary.

Highlights

NEW YORK (AP) — Here are highlights of the 30,000-word excerpt of H.R. Haldeman's forthcoming book, "The Ends of Power," released by Newsweek magazine:

WATERGATE BREAK-IN — Richard Nixon caused the Watergate break-in in an effort to get evidence to prove that Democratic national Chairman Lawrence O'Brien was on Howard Hughes' payroll at the time he was head of the Democratic National Committee. Nixon and aide Charles W. Colson were furious at O'Brien for capitalizing on the ITT scandal, and Nixon told Colson to prove that O'Brien was employed by Hughes.

NIXON AND COVER-UP — Nixon was involved in the Watergate cover-up from the very beginning, Haldeman said. He wanted the cover-up for three reasons: So he would not be linked, through Colson, to the break-in; to prevent disclosure of any responsibility John Mitchell might have had; and to keep secret other activities such as the break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

CHINA INCIDENT — The Soviet Union asked the United States in 1969 to join in a preemptive nuclear strike on China and, when rejected, planned to go ahead on its own. The attack was averted by diplomatic moves, Haldeman said. ALLEGED BLACKMAIL — Kenneth Clawson, a former Colson aide, told Haldeman that Colson was blackmailing the president with tapes Colson made of his conversations with Nixon.

DEMOCRATIC PARTY DUPLICITY — Haldeman wrote that Democratic Party leaders were aware that their headquarters were going to be broken into but decided not to block the break-in. Instead, he wrote, the Democrats tipped police.

CIA INVOLVEMENT — The Central Intelligence Agency monitored the progress of the Watergate operation and then sabotaged it. As evidence of sabotage, Haldeman cited actions by former CIA agent James McCord. He said the bug placed by McCord on O'Brien's phone did not have the range to reach the place where the receivers were. He also said McCord placed tape on doors in the Watergate complex where it could easily be discovered.

18-MINUTE GAP — Regarding the 18-minute gap in a key tape, Haldeman said he believed that Nixon may have started to erase the tape himself but was too clumsy to finish the job. The conversation that Without offering any new evidence, Haldeman makes these conjectures in a new book, "The Ends of Power," rushed

Avoid Strike For Airline

WASHINGTON (AP) — American Airlines avoided a strike when it reached agreement shortly before midnight Thursday with the Transport Workers Union.

The strike, which would have shut down the nation's second largest airline, had been scheduled for 12:01 EST today.

The union represents 12,000 American employees, most of whom hold mechanical, maintenance, inventory, communications and meteorology jobs.

Charles A. Pasciuto, the airline's vice president for employee relations, said the two sides agreed on a 28-month contract, retroactive to last September, when the old accord expired. He said the new contract would expire March 1, 1980.

The agreement must still be ratified by the union members and details of it were not available.

Ernest Mitchell, director of the TWU's transport division, said the tentative contract covered wages, hours and working conditions and provides for "the highest wages and one of the best pensions in the industry."

The union had extended the old contract's deadline until Jan. 16 and the two sides continued negotiating during a 30-day cooling off period mandated by the Railroad Labor Act.

American serves 63 cities in the United States, Canada, Mexico and the Caribbean, operating about 1,000 flights and carrying some 65,000 passengers daily.

A FRIEND IN NEED — The tables were turned Thursday when Atlanta Fire Lt. Edge rescued "Shoestring" during a house fire. The fireman found the dog hiding under a bed in the bedroom and used the oxygen bottle to resuscitate him after assisting the family to safety. "Shoestring" learned that humans, and especially firemen, can be very friendly. (AP Laserphoto)

Summer Internship Programs Slated

RALEIGH — Learning through participation is the goal of two state government summer internship programs announced this week by Gov. Jim Hunt.

"These programs have provided insight into the workings of state government for thousands of students through the years," the governor said, "and I'm real excited about the good things these students do for government and the understanding of government they receive."

The Summer '78 Internship Program, sponsored by the North Carolina Internship Office, will place approximately 125 students in various state agencies for 10 weeks, June 5 through Aug. 11. Interns will work 40 hours each and will receive a salary of $120 a week.

Interested students should contact the State Internship Office, 112 W. Lane Street, Raleigh, 733-5966.

Twenty-four college juniors and seniors will have the opportunity to intern in state government through the Institute of Government Summer Internship Program. The 11-week program, from May 30 through Aug. 11, is open to any college or university junior or senior who is a resident of North Carolina.

Applications may be obtained from the Institute of Government, Chapel Hill. Deadline for application is Feb. 27.

Arrest Women In Meat Thefts

Greenville Police Wednesday arrested three women on charges of receiving stolen goods in connection with the theft of $89.95 worth of merchandise — mostly meats — from Kroger Sav-On Food and Drugs at 600 East Greenville Boulevard.

Chief Glenn Cannon identified the three as Patricia H. Simpson, 20 of Route 1, Winterville, Jannes Paige, 40 of Evans Street, and Mary Jean Davis, 20 of 112 Howell St.

According to the chief, the three were arrested after officers investigating a shoplifting report, found a quantity of rib eye steaks, bologna, spare ribs, franks, luncheon meat, chickens, ground beef and other items of merchandise in a car driven by Ms. Simpson.

The incident was reported at 11:15 a.m.

Reminds Tags Are Required

BETHEL — Police Chief Walter Gray has announced that all residents of the town of Bethel are required to comply with the town ordinance to purchase and display Bethel town tags on vehicles.

Gray said the ordinance applies to all persons who are or will be residents for a period exceeding 30 days. The cost of the town tags is $1 and they may be purchased at the town office or at the police department.

Failure to comply, Gray said, will result in a citation.

Sec. Bergland Bids For Time To Soothe Farmers

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — As President Carter's man in the middle of an angry farm protest over prices, Agriculture

Secretary Bob Bergland is bidding for time. He hopes that warm spring weather and a new farm law will melt the icy barbs of his critics. Some leaders of American Agriculture, which called a nationwide farm strike Dec. 14 to force up commodity prices, want Bergland to resign. They say he misrepresents farmers' demands.

Like Carter, Bergland, 49, has his roots in farming. Frugality has been a part of his life. He bought a 260-acre farm in 1950 and built it to 600 acres, producing grain and lawn seed. He says that hard times in the early years were good training for his present job.

If he were back on the farm in his native Minnesota, he probably would be "raising hell on Capitol Hill" about the financial plight of farmers, says an associate.

As a three-term member of the House of Representatives before Carter tapped him for the Cabinet more than a year ago, Bergland has heard it all before. He is sympathetic to farmers' complaints but refuses to bow to American Agriculture's demands.

The Colorado-based group wants Congress to pass a law prohibiting the sale of farm commodities for less than 100 percent of parity, a price standard related to the buying power farmers had in 1910-14. If wheat was priced at 100 percent of parity today, it would be selling for $5 a bushel — about the record farmers got several years ago — instead of $2.54 a bushel they received last month.

Bergland — and Carter agrees — says it would take an expensive system of government controls and the kind of regimentation he says farmers would be unwilling to accept to bring 100 percent parity.

Bergland wants to hold down federal costs of farm programs and guard against actions which would cause food prices to soar, feeding inflation.

Carter and Bergland say the new farm law passed by Congress last year should be given time to work. It provides price supports for key crops, including wheat and corn — the commodities many farmers say are in the most trouble.

The trouble stems from huge harvests the past three years resulting in much more grain than Americans could consume or export. Market prices have dropped sharply from the high levels of 1973-74 when supplies were at a low ebb.

Net farm income last year dropped to $20.4 billion from $21.9 billion in 1976 and a record of $29.9 in 1973. Meanwhile, farm debt is at a record level and farmers who bought expensive land when wheat was $5 a bushel are having a tough, sometimes impossible, time now.

Bergland says that the new law provides tools for farmers to help themselves, but he warns that there is no fast, easy cure. He suggests farmers should sign up this spring in an acreage "set aside" program aimed at reducing 1978 crops of wheat and corn.

Another tool favored by Bergland is a national grain reserve to be held by farmers themselves. It enables farmers to store part of their grain — primarily wheat and corn — for three years and get 25 cents a bushel annually from the government to help pay storage costs.

But strike movement leaders show little faith or trust in the USDA programs or in the Carter administration's arguments against their demands. In congressional testimony this week, American Agriculture spokesmen said a telephone survey of 13,809 farmers showed that 63.9 percent never trust USDA's information. And Bergland responded by saying the surveys are no more accurate than the information provided the department by farmers.

Despite such exchanges, associates say that Bergland has kept his cool in the strike.

"But he's bored," one associate said privately. "He heard all this stuff during six years in Congress. He knows they (farmers) have problems."

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Showers are forecast today for coastal areas of the Pacific Northwest. Snow flurries are expected for the eastern Rocky Mountains and rain is due in North Florida. Temperatures will continue cold for most of the country. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
Another winter storm was headed toward North Carolina today, prompting a winter storm watch for the mountains, foothills, and the northern and northeast Piedmont for tonight and Saturday.

The storm system earlier today was spreading snow through Texas and Oklahoma as it pushed eastward. Tonight, a low pressure system is expected to develop off the northwest Florida coast. This will move northeastward and intensify along the Carolina coast.

A combination of the two weather systems is expected to result in a mixture of precipitation spreading into the state from the south and west tonight and Saturday.

The outlook is for snow in the mountains and foothills and snow, sleet and freezing rain through the Piedmont by Saturday morning, with rain falling to the east and south during the day.

Snow spread into the mountains around sunrise Thursday and there was rain over the rest of the state by midday. Greensboro had a mixture of rain, sleet and snow but it measured only a little more than a trace.

Dense fog was widespread over the state this morning but conditions were expected to improve later in the morning.

Low temperatures this morning ranged in the 20s and 30s. They included 23 at Greensboro, 28 at Charlotte, 29 at Asheville, 34 at Raleigh and 38 at Wilmington. Highs Thursday held in the 30s and 40s and were expected to hold to the 40s today.

Near Arrest In Murders

ELIZABETHTOWN, N.C. (AP) — The slayings of two women slashed and beaten to death on Labor Day of 1976 may be nearing solution, six months after Attorney General Rufus Edmisten ordered the case reopened.

Max Bryan, special operations supervisor of the State Bureau of Investigation, said Thursday that new evidence had been uncovered and an arrest might follow within a few weeks.

"We are confident we have our man," Bryan said, "and we feel we can get a suspect indicted within a matter of weeks."

Josephine Davis, 75, and her daughter, Aileen Davis, 57, were found dead in their Elizabethtown home with their throats cut and their bodies marked with bruises.

Shortly afterward, the Bladen County sheriff's department received a letter which said the writer knew who had done the killing. "I'm afraid he'll kill me if my name is exposed," the unsigned letter said.

Officials say they believe the writer was a prison inmate. The chief suspect after the slayings had been a prison escapee, but authorities were unable to link him with the deaths and no charges were filed.

Edmisten organized a special homicide squad of the SBI last summer and ordered it on Aug. 27 to reopen the case.

There is a state reward of $5,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killer.

Dinner To Honor Registration LWV President For Pre-School

Ruth Mary Meyer, president of the North Carolina League of Women Voters, will be honored at a dutch dinner at the Three Steers Restaurant here Tuesday at 5:30 p.m.

Mrs. Meyer will be in Greenville to moderate the Dialogues on the Panama Canal, to be held at 7:30 the same evening at the First Presbyterian Church here. A Durham resident, Mrs. Meyer is serving her second term as president of the State League, having been active in League since 1959. She holds a B. S. degree in physics from Wellesley College and has done further work in physics at the University of Geneva in Switzerland.

Registration for Bethel Elementary Pre-School will be held in the latter part of March. This will concern all pre-school children who will be attending kindergarten at Bethel Elementary School next year. Children must be five years old by October 16, 1978.

Parents will need to get a copy of their child's birth certificate along with his or her immunization records. Concerning immunizations, it is required by law that children receive three doses of the DTP vaccine, three doses of the polio vaccine and one dose of the measles vaccine in order to be enrolled in school. For more information call 825-3801.

Warns Cancer Upsurge Looms

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy says Americans may face "massive cancer epidemics" because of the many industrial chemicals being released into the environment.

The Massachusetts Democrat, chairman of the Senate subcommittee on health and scientific research, was one of the speakers at the Food and Drug Administration's Science Symposium on Risk-Benefit Decisions and the Public Health.

Six million American workers regularly are exposed to chemicals known to have produced cancer in animals, Kennedy said.

And what is known already about the substances' effects may be "only the tip of the iceberg," Kennedy said.

USDA Official To Talk Before Tobacco Group

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C.—Thomas R. Saylor, associate administrator of the U.S. Department of Agriculture Foreign Agricultural Service (FAS), will be a featured speaker at the midwinter meeting of the Board of Governors of Tobacco Association of the United States here on February 25.

The Tobacco Association of the United States is the oldest tobacco trade organization in the nation. Thomas H. Harvey Jr., senior vice-president of Carolina Leaf Tobacco Co. of Greenville, N.C., is president of the group and will preside at the sessions here.

Hugh C. Kiger, executive vice-president of the association said, "We are fortunate that one of the USDA's top officials on foreign trade can be with us."

Prior to becoming FAS associate administrator Saylor served as staff economist on the Senate Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition and Forestry. He worked primarily on USDA international programs, legislation involving trade, and U.S. international food and development assistance programs.

A Georgia native, Saylor attended Georgia Institute of Technology where he received a bachelor of science degree and Harvard University where he received a master's degree in international trade and business policy.

Other USDA officials scheduled to speak at the association meeting include: William L. Lanier, assistant to the administrator of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service; B. G. Andrews, director of the Tobacco Division FAS; and J. C. Frink, international marketing director for Tobacco and Seeds, FAS.

Members of the Board of Governors of the association from Pitt County, N.C. include: L. S. Ficklen, W. B. Glenn and C. W. Howart of Greenville; and W. A. Britt, A. C. Monk, Jr., and W. C. Monk of Farmville.

01 PUBLIC NOTICES

NOTICE OF SALE
Pursuant to findings made and entered in that certain special proceeding entitled: "IN THE MATTER OF THE FORECLOSURE OF A DEED OF TRUST EXECUTED BY NORMAN DALLAS EASON AND WIFE, LOUISE P. EASON, DATED APRIL 28, 1976, RECORDED IN BOOK 29, PAGE 305, PITT COUNTY REGISTRY BY MILTON C. WILLIAMSON, TRUSTEE" being File No. 78 SP 15, and further in accordance with the provisions of said deed of trust, the undersigned Substitute Trustee, at the request of the holder of the note secured by said deed of trust, will offer for sale and sell to the highest bidder for cash before the Courthouse door in Greenville, North Carolina, on March 9, 1978, at 12:00 o'clock noon all the following lots or parcels of real estate, located in the City of Greenville, North Carolina, and described as follows:

Internship Program Is Planned For Teachers

Three teachers in Greenville's secondary schools have been selected to take part in five-day internship programs devoted to vocational education teachers and guidance counselors throughout North Carolina.

Funds for the project are being provided with federal money through the Education Professional Development Act Grant, for which North Carolina will receive $32,892.

Two of the teachers — Clara Carr, a business and office occupations teacher at J. H. Rose High School, and Pam Penland, career guidance counselor at E. B. Aycock Junior High School, have been selected as master teachers to host interns coming to Greenville during Feb., March, and April for five day periods.

These two were among 55 chosen in North Carolina from over 4,000 teachers and 100 guidance counselors to fill the role of master teachers in school programs that are considered outstanding examples in North Carolina educational circles.

The third teacher, Stewart Stocks, a teacher of industrial occupations at E. B. Aycock Junior High, is one of about 75 vocational teachers in North Carolina who will be attending a five-day interne program in another school. Stocks will be attending a program sometimes during the three month period.

The purpose of the project is to provide vocational teachers and counselors with an opportunity to exchange teaching and counseling techniques, and to give a means for all involved to become more familiar with new materials and the sources of these materials.

Saving Loses Former Appeal

NEW YORK (UPI) — Saving for the future is not as appealing an idea as it used to be, says the American Council of Life Insurance.

Given three choices about savings, 72 percent of the people who responded to a council survey last year said they preferred to save regularly, down from 82 percent in a similar survey in 1968.

Only eight percent of those questioned in 1968 said they wanted to "spend now." That figure doubled by 1977.

Eleven percent said they have less reason to save these days because more financial security is provided by their employers and the government; the comparable figure in 1968 was seven percent.

Charge Foundation Misled The Public

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State and federal officials Thursday accused the Monitor Research and Recovery Foundation of misleading the public into believing the sunken Civil War vessel could be raised from the ocean floor in the near future.

Lt. Edward M. Miller of the Monitor Marine Sanctuary Commission said the foundation was raising premature hopes in order to generate more contributions.

"The ship is so large and complex, you're not going out there and raise it in three years, which the Monitor foundation says it will do," said Miller, a Navy salvage expert. The commission oversees all Monitor-related research and other activity. It held its first meeting Thursday in Raleigh.

But foundation president Robert G. Sheridan denied the foundation, a private group with a limited federal permit to do research around the sunken vessel, was misleading anybody.

"I think they're misleading the public in that they're not thinking in terms of a full commitment," Sheridan said. "We're saying let's do it, and they're saying let's hold off. That's what it comes down to."

Miller and several other members of the commission said nobody knows enough right now to raise the vessel from more than 200 feet of water 18 miles off Cape Hatteras. He said feasibility studies alone would take five or six years.

But Sheridan said there is sufficient technology to salvage the vessel by the early 1980s, given enough public support and money. He said he would protest to the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration that he wasn't invited to Thursday's meeting.

The commission ordered the state Division of Archives and History to draw up a "flexible" master plan for research on the Monitor.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, FEB. 18, 1978

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You now have the time to study problems that concern your home and family, so straighten them out as well as you can and with the least amount of friction. Express happiness.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Do whatever you can to improve the situation at home. Find a better way of handling routines. Avoid a troublemaker.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Be of assistance to family members with problems they find hard to solve. Take no chances where your good name is concerned.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Use common sense in handling business affairs and be less worried about money matters. Rest tonight and feel more content.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Do something to improve your health and appearance and make a finer impression on others. Engage in favorite hobby.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Study every angle of private affairs and know how best to handle them. Avoid temptation to lose your temper and you win out.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Make plans to bring the good things into your life that you desire. Avoid one who has an eye on your assets. Be wise.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A good time to complete any jobs left undone that are important to your career. Evening is best time for amusements.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Getting into new activities now will help you advance in your line of endeavor. Evening is best for relaxing.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Those obligations you have to meet may seem annoying, but handle them quickly since they are important.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Be precise in handling promises made to others, whether of a personal or business nature. Use care in motion.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Take time to improve your health and appearance. Evening is fine for the social side of life, but take no chances with your reputation.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Study a new interest that could bring you added income in the future. Allow time to engage in hobby with congenials.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be very ambitious and should be given the best schooling possible in order to have a happy and successful life. Teach to be more objective since there is much sensitivity in this nature. Don't neglect religious training early in life. "The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Southern Bell's Long Legal Battle Quietly Ended

By MONTE PLOTT
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — There was no slamming of musty law books, no shuffling of yellowed paper Thursday when a judge fined Southern Bell Telephone Co. for illegally using corporate money for political contributions.

Counted Seven Accidents Here

An estimated $10,750 property damage resulted from a series of seven traffic mishaps investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Heaviest damage, officers said, resulted from a 5 p.m. collision on Memorial Drive, 125 feet North of the Arlington Drive intersection involving cars driven by Michael Anthony McCormick of 303 Greenwood Dr. and Ruby Spikes Rasberry of Farmville.

Damage was estimated at $2,000 to the McCormick car and $1,500 to the Rasberry auto. Police charged Mrs. Rasberry with driving with an obstructed windshield.

A 5:30 p.m. collision at the intersection of Fifth and Ford Streets involved cars driven by Richard Edwin Lawler of 117 Woodside Dr., Claude Comstock Morton of 210 Ash St., and Frederick Eugene Acklin of 1308A Colonial Ave.

Police estimated damage to the Morton and Acklin cars at $1,000 each and estimated damage to the Lawler car at $200.

Acklin was charged by investigators with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety.

Cars driven by Elizabeth Diane Davis of 119 Greenwood Dr. and Kimberly Lynn Robinson of Glendale Ct. collided about 4 p.m. at the intersection of First and Library Streets, causing an estimated $1,500 damage to the Davis car and $300 damage to the Robinson auto.

William Thomas Miller II of 1502 Ceder La. was charged with failing to stop for a red light following investigation of a 12:40 p.m. collision at the intersection

Southern Bell. "This closes the case against the company, as far as I'm concerned," declared Mecklenburg County District Attorney Peter Gilchrist. Superior Court Judge Lacy Thornburg fined Southern Bell $310,712 and court costs for a falsified expense voucher scheme which channeled corporate funds into political contributions to North Carolina politi-of Fifth and Reade Streets, police reported. Officers said the Miller car collided with an auto driven by Catherine Faye Barbor of 111 North Summit St., causing an estimated $800 damage to the Miller car and $750 damage to the Barbor vehicle. Investigators reported Miss Barbor was injured in the mishap.

A 4:08 p.m. collision on 14th Street west of the Broad Street intersection involved cars driven by Peggy Elizabeth Manning of 114 West 11th St., and Clarence Regina Somrell of 2008 Fern Dr.

Damage was estimated at $400 to the Manning car and $200 to the Somrell auto by police who charged Manning with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety.

Cars driven by Carolyn Ruth Council of 319 Conley St., and Virginia Mae Sutton of Kinston collided about 6:45 p.m. at the intersection of Greene and 13th Streets, resulting in an estimated $400 damage to the Council car and $200 damage to the Sutton auto.

An estimated $250 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in an 8:45 a.m. mishap on Elm Street, 200 feet North of the 14th Street intersection. Drivers involved in the collision were identified by police as William Ryan Barrett of 113 Williamsburg Dr., and Carrie Lee Gaskins of Ayden.

And Southern Bell attorney James E. Walker conceded Southern Bell could "respond in almost an unlimited way financially," but he contended the company had been punished enough. Thornburg set the fine without explanation, except to say $160,712 would pay costs of the state investigation. He referred the matter to the Utilities Commission, which will decide how Southern Bell should pay the fine. The money could come out of profits, with only stockholders feeling the effect in lower stock dividends, or it could come from general revenues and possibly be passed on to customers.

A Bell spokesman said the company had never planned to pay a fine in the case out of any funds but profits. Gilchrist kept his feelings about Thornburg's fine to himself. "The judge is the man who puts the sentence on. They can afford it," he said. Walker said Thornburg "did what he thought was right. I wouldn't disagree with what the judge did."

During his closing argument, Walker said one reason Southern Bell pleaded guilty was to end the three-year case. "At least once it's done these people can get back to running a telephone company," he said.

The company contended that was not illegal because employees were not forced to contribute. In the three years since allegations of political slush funds were first revealed in news accounts, there have been investigations by federal and state grand juries and the State Bureau of Investigation, leading to indictments against 15 executives and one former official and charges against the company. The 15 indictments were dropped last year. But there is one skirmish left, this one between Gilchrist and John J. Ryan, head of Southern Bell in North Carolina at the time the expense voucher scheme was operating. Ryan, who was fired in 1973, faces charges of embezzling company money for his own use, and Gilchrist said he intends to prosecute. It was Ryan who first made public statements about political contributions by Southern Bell.

Observing Career Day

Career Day is being held today at Wellcome Middle School for seventh and eighth graders.

Delores Little, one of the school's occupational teachers, said that the program was planned in celebration of Occupational Education Week which was this week.

Approximately 15 representatives from local businesses are expected to attend.

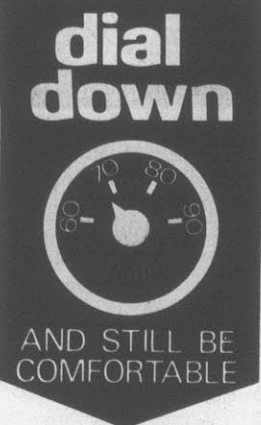

"The purpose of this is to enlarge the students' knowledge of the business force in the Greenville so they'll be more aware of what's available when they go out to look for work," said Little.

The program will provide students with a chance to ask questions of the business representatives. Individual classes visited the gymnasium where the program is being held between 9 a.m. and noon.

Student Tests Set Feb. 23

Pace Academy will be testing student from grades pre-first through tenth for entrance for the 1978-79 school year in Thursday, Feb. 23 at 2:45 p.m.

Appointments may be made by calling Sharon Harris at 756-2244. Pace Academy is a private day school which stresses reading and math programs.
