UMW Officials Expect A Fight Over New Contract

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — United Mine Workers officials, conceding they face a battle in winning ratification of a contract to end the 85-day coal strike, say they're prepared to spend an estimated $40,000 airing television commercials promoting the pact.

And Johnny Paycheck, whose country songs are popular on coal country radio stations, has been enlisted to make radio advertisements if leaders decide his name would be helpful.

Paycheck's latest record, ironically, is titled "Take This Job and Shove It." It was the No. 38-selling single in the nation last week, according to Variety, the entertainment trade weekly.

The half-dozen television commercials and the radio spots are planned for broadcast beginning Wednesday on nine television stations and 50 radio stations in 10 states.

The commercials reflect the union leadership's concern over persuading striking miners to ratify the contract and resume mining coal.

Nervous officials say they are counting on a "silent majority" to ratify the proposed agreement with the Bituminous Coal Operators Association.

The tentative contract calls for maximum wage hikes of $2.40 an hour and provides guaranteed health and pension benefits.

But it also calls for the miners to pay a deductible amount for health care that has been free, includes company-run medical plans for most active miners and allows companies to fire wildcat strike leaders.

Union leader called about 250 UMW members together for an explanation of the proposed contract.

After the meeting, the group dispersed for home to explain the pact to the rank and file. The ratification vote is expected to be held Saturday and Sunday.

UMW President Arnold Miller, whose leadership has come under strong attack within the union, said he spent the day continuing negotiations on a contract covering about 30,000 mine construction workers.

Those negotiations remain a potential obstacle to reopening the mines. Even if miners ratify the main agreement with the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, it is unlikely miners would cross a picket line set up by striking construction workers.

A UMW official said the union and the American Bituminous Contractors Association still were working on resolving "two or three" differences.

Meanwhile, the executives of BCOA member companies met to review the proposed contract, which was accepted last Friday under the threat of strong government intervention to impose a settlement.

Ratification by the coal operators is regarded as a foregone conclusion, although it is unlikely it will be announced before the union's rank and file membership votes.

The strike, which began Dec. 6, has forced power cutbacks in some areas and has resulted in scattered job layoffs.

The deepening effect of the strike led the Carter administration to gradually abandon its policy of "non-intervention" in labor disputes.

Labor Secretary Ray Marshall was personally involved as a mediator in the talks, and President Carter brought negotiators to the White House at one point to encourage them to settle.

When they didn't, and the union later won agreement with an independent company, the administration brought pressure on the coal operators to accept the single-company agreement as a pattern.

Agreement on a tentative contract was announced Friday, only two hours before Carter was prepared to go on nationwide television to announce steps to end the strike. Officials said he was prepared to invoke the strike-halting provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act and ask Congress to authorize seizure of the mines.

Egyptian Support Of PLO Is Fading

By NICOLAS B. TATRO
Associated Press Writer
CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Anti-Palestinian feeling is running high in Egypt because of the assassination in Cyprus of one of Egypt's leading newspaper editors.

Sentiment is building up to abandon the Palestinian cause and make a separate peace with Israel. The government took steps Monday to reduce the special tax and travel privileges of the 150,000 Palestinians living in Egypt.

The two killers of Al Ahran editor Youssef Sebael were Palestinians, and Egyptian newspapers have played up reports of Palestinian complicity in the gun battle in which 15 Egyptian commandos lost their lives at the Larnaca Airport.

Palestinian guerrillas are known to have been present at Larnaca. But there has been no proof that they joined the Cypriot National Guard in firing on the commandos trying to storm the Cypriot plane in which the two assassins were holding 11 Arabs hostage.

However, if emotions continue to rise or there are new terrorist acts aimed at Egypt, observers say President Anwar Sadat could divorce himself from the Palestine Liberation Organization and might be tempted to make a separate peace with Israel despite his repeated statements that he would not do that.

Ibrahim Saada, a columnist for the newspaper Akhbar el Yom, wrote that if it was proved that Palestinians were firing at the Egyptian commandos, "we would ask our government to immediately enter serious negotiations with the Israeli foe to restore Sinai alone."

A prominent political science professor agreed, saying, "If Sadat wanted to make a separate agreement, this would be his chance."

The PLO condemned the murder of Sebael and insisted the killers had no connection with it. But recent Egyptian editorials have been especially critical of the organization's leaders. This indicates that Egypt may use the Cyprus incident to try to replace Yasser Arafat as PLO chairman or withdraw recognition of the PLO in favor of Palestinians in the West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip.

However, Sadat has made no move so far to disassociate himself from the PLO or modify his insistence on the right of self-determination for Palestinians as part of a peace settlement with Israel.

An undercurrent of anti-Palestinian sentiment has long existed in Egypt, based on the feeling that the PLO is ungrateful for the sacrifices Egypt has made for their cause.

There was an upsurge of anti-Palestinian feeling when Syria and the PLO attacked Sadat as a traitor following his trip to Israel last November. Egypt closed down the Voice of Palestine radio station and deported a number of Palestinian militants.

Bus Safety Steps Voted By County School Board

By DEBBIE JACKSON
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Education in a special meeting last night approved recommendations of a school bus transportation subcommittee concerning school bus safety.

The subcommittee, composed of Board members William Earl House, Bill McLawhorn, and Tom Patterson, was appointed by Chairman Mark Owens at last week's meeting.

Several county residents appeared at the last meeting and voiced concern over the lack of an efficient school bus monitor system which they linked to the Feb. 3 school bus-related death of first grader Gina Carraway.

The Board then voted last week to implement a school bus monitor system on a non-pay scale for the county school buses.

Superintendent of Pitt County Schools Ott Alford said last night that there is a "much better pupil / driver ratio" on high school buses and a "minimum number of accidents." He added that buses carrying elementary students average 55 youngsters per bus and have the larger number of accidents.

Alford attributed the lack of overcrowding on high school buses to the fact that many older students drive their own vehicles to school.

It was also noted that elementary buses have elementary youngsters for monitors. The question of implementing high schoolers as monitors on these buses arose, but there is a problem in getting the older students out of classes early enough in the afternoon to serve as monitors for other schools.

"You can't hardly find a high school student to ride an elementary bus," said Rodney Bullock, transportation supervisor for the schools.

Bullock added that, in regard to recent criticism of allowing 16-year olds who have had their driver's license less than a year, "42 percent of the accidents are by 17-year olds."

Chairman Owens suggested incorporating the driver's education program with a bus driver program. Under the current system, drivers are selected by the school principal but actual instruction involves a three-day training program under the direction of the Department of Motor Vehicles.

Difficulties in trying to overlap the authority of the Department of Motor Vehicles and the schools were discussed, and Superintendent Alford said that by holding a bus driver seminar in August, preceding school's opening, the problem would be solved.

It was suggested earlier in the meeting that such a seminar be held in May, directly following the selection of drivers, but due to the high dropout rate of drivers during the summer, August was selected.

According to Board member House, several people have expressed concern over drivers with "infractions" still driving buses. "We're dealing with a real safety problem," House added.

Transportation Superintendent Bullock said that assistant principals in individual schools must report such traffic violations to Bullock who in turn decides to suspend the student's bus license if so needed.

The following is a list of the recommendations approved by the Board to ensure a safer bus system:

— To request of the State Board of Education sufficient funds to be included in the budget to pay monitors who would serve on buses transporting elementary students

— To seek adults to serve as monitors on elementary

Rain Is Welcome

YOUNGSTOWN, Fla. (AP) — Weary disaster crews, who learned they had drastically underestimated the amount of chlorine left in a derailed tank car, welcomed the rain today as they began clearing the twisted wreckage where the killer chemical leaked into the air.

A team of state, federal and local workers and a commercial chemical troubleshooter filled a pit with a neutralizing solution of caustic soda and began the delicate job of dragging the punctured tank car the 100 yards to the pit.

Crews worked in a steady rain, which officials said was a blessing because it would make it more difficult for the deadly chlorine to vaporize.

The crews had hoped to neutralize the poisonous chemical on Monday. But they were forced to halt the operation until today when more equipment was expected.

Carter Advisers Still Predict Slow-Down In Rising Price Of Food

By RICHARDE MEYER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite January's sharp increase in consumer prices, President Carter's advisers predict the cost of food will rise less this year than it did in 1977.

"We're still standing by that," said William Nordhaus, a member of the president's Council of Economic Advisers. "That's still our basic view. There's been no major change."

The Labor Department said Monday the price index for all urban consumers climbed 0.8 percent in January after rising 0.4 percent in each of the last three months. If averaged over a full year, the January increase would lead to an inflation rate of nearly 10 percent.

At the same time, the department said, the average worker's buying power declined by the largest amount on record — 3 percent, the biggest drop since the department began keeping track in 1964.

The decline in real spend-able earnings was attributed to higher Social Security taxes, fewer hours worked, changes in the tax laws and rising consumer prices.

Julius Shiskin, commissioner of labor statistics, said the figures are a "cause for concern."

Some of the consumer price increases were caused by short supplies during the severe winter, he said. Nonetheless, Shiskin said, inflation may be worsening because price increases have been showing up at wholesale levels.

However, Jody Powell, the president's press secretary, said January's increase in consumer prices "is not seen as a basic change in the underlying 6 to 6.5 percent inflation rate that we felt was accurate even when the monthly increases were lower."

In a telephone interview, Nordhaus said retail food prices over the 12 months ending Feb. 1 were up 8.1 percent, while overall retail prices climbed 6.7 percent.

This year, he said, the

A HOTLINE APPEAL

PARALYZED CHILD

Friends of Vernon and Linda Clodfelter, former Greenville residents, have asked Hotline to appeal for financial assistance for the couple, who now live in Thomasville. Their daughter, Shannon, six, is paralyzed by what her doctors call a rare form of meningitis.

Shannon, who was born in Pitt Memorial Hospital here, where her father worked as a respiratory therapist, became ill Nov. 11 of last year. She is now about 100 days into the illness and her parents have $40,000 worth of medical bills.

At one point she was attached to a respirator and late last month she underwent surgery to relieve pressure on her brain which had resulted from a buildup of fluid. This past Wednesday, when tubes were removed from her throat, she spoke for the first time since the paralysis set in. Her doctors term the recovery of her speech miraculous, according to an Associated Press story about her published Sunday.

Clodfelter is now an insurance salesman and Mrs. Clodfelter is a bookkeeper. They have another daughter, Dawn, 11.

Tax-deductible contributions to the Shannon Clodfelter Fund may be sent to the Southside Baptist Church, Thomasville, N.C. 27360.

Searchers Find Boy's Body Near His Front Door

UXBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — For 20 days, townspeople scoured the countryside for 10-year-old Peter Gosselin after he disappeared while playing in a blizzard. They found his body in a melting snowbank — five feet from his front door.

Although Peter was the object of daily searching by many of this town's 8,500 residents, the postman who discovered the boy's body Monday wished somebody else had found him.

"I've been delivering mail there for the past three years. But I hoped to heck I wouldn't be the one to find him," Leo J. Lussier, 53, said.

"As I turned away, I saw just the tip of a mitten. At first I didn't think anything of it. I reached over and shook it slightly, and the whole mound of snow seemed to move a little.

"Then I saw a boot, and I ran next door to call the police."

Hundreds of police, firemen, and volunteers had hunted for Peter for miles around this central Massachusetts community. Police Chief John Emerick said.

Searchers had used a metal detector at the Gosselin home on Sunday without finding a trace of the boy who last was seen Feb. 7 frolicking during a storm that dumped more than two feet of snow across New England.

PETER GOSSELIN

"It would appear he jumped and fell down into a snow bank between the breezeway of the house and the garage. There was a wrought-iron railing he could have struck. It was covered. Maybe he jumped off a roof," said Emerick, who added that an exact cause of death would have to be established by a medical examiner.

"There was no sign of a struggle. He was relaxed," said Emerick.

Emerick said searchers never lost hope they might find the boy alive. However, the boy's father, Paul Gosselin, said, "We kept expecting the worst all along. What can I say? This is the way it turned out."

Building Permits

Greenville issued building permits totaling $25,361,102 in 1977, according to information reported by N.C. Commissioner of Labor John C. Brooks.

The commissioner said that permits valued at $1,197,640 were issued here during December. Greenville, he reported, was one of 13 cities issuing December permits valued at over $1 million.

Permit totals for 1977 and December in several eastern cities included: Elizabeth City, $6,090,724, $448,675; Goldsboro, $12,749,054, $414,392; Jacksonville, $6,326,561, $503,697;

Kinston, $8,980,803, $675,834; New Bern, $4,155,869, $630,750; Roanoke Rapids, $3,754,069, $105,475; Rocky Mount, $3,092,019, $1,732,115; and Wilson, $13,601,139, $625,459.

Police To Check Up On City Tag-Use

Greenville Police Chief Glenn Cannon said today that local officers will strictly enforce a city ordinance that requires every resident motor vehicle operated in the city to have city license plates.

Since the midnight February 15 deadline for displaying 1978 state and city vehicle registrations, 95 drivers have been cited to court for violating city or state requirements that 1978 registrations be displayed on their vehicles. Cannon said that many of those cited for court for registration violations had purchased their North Carolina vehicle registration stickers, but had failed to purchase their city licenses.

"It doesn't make much sense," Cannon said, that drivers would risk paying $27 court costs rather than pay the $1 fee for a city license.

Ingram Rejects Ready To Fight Sugar Cereal Pushers Increased Rate

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State Insurance Commissioner John Ingram has rejected a proposed $23 million auto insurance rate hike, clearing the way for the insurance industry to exercise its new power to implement increases over Ingram's objection during a court appeal.

Whether the industry would appeal Ingram's ruling and enact the increases was not clear Monday.

Paul L. Mize, general manager of the North Carolina Rate Bureau, said he hadn't read the ruling and didn't know whether the industry would appeal it.

In the past, the industry has appealed rejections by Ingram, and in almost every case Ingram has been overruled by the Court of Appeals. The difference under the new law is that if industry appeals, the increases would go into effect immediately.

If they did, the following things would happen:

- About 70 percent of the state's drivers would pay 3.5 percent more for their liability insurance.
- Liability rates would increase an average of 13.8 percent for the remaining 30 percent, insured through the North Carolina Reinsurance Facility, in which companies pool their risk for drivers considered more likely to have claims.
- Collision insurance rates would go up by 3.8 percent.
- Comprehensive coverage would cost 13.8 percent more.
- Rates vary widely from city to city, rising by 10 percent in "high risk" areas like Fayetteville, High Point and Charlotte.

Ingram objected to those higher charges. He also said the data on insurance losses submitted by the rate bureau had never been audited, and the rate filing did not take into account the money that companies make by investing premiums.

Ingram also said he was rejecting the rate hike because

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — After months of anticipation, the federal government is ready to take on Tony the Tiger, Cap'n Crunch and other heroes of commercials for sugar-coated cereals.

The clash between the Federal Trade Commission and television advertising aimed at children is being joined today as the FTC takes up staff proposals to sharply curtail such ads.

The commission has before it proposals to:

- Ban all television advertising directed at "very young" children.
- End advertisements aimed at children under age 12 for sugared products likely to cause tooth decay.

—Require that television advertising directed at children below that age for other sugared products be balanced by dental and nutritional messages.

Such controls are some time off, however. The staff recommended that the commission hold hearings on its proposals, a procedure that could take months.

And legal appeals from the cereal and broadcasting industries, which have been preparing legal defenses, could further delay the effect of commission action.

Commission Chairman Michael Pertschuk has said he is "convinced some action has to be taken" against commercials for products with high sugar contents aimed at young children.

The average American child watches 20,000 television commercials a year and sees more ads for sugared foods than for any other product.

The staff, in recommending that all TV ads aimed at very young audiences be banned, said "the 30-second commercial is the most effective device yet invented for implanting any relatively simple idea in a child's mind."

The staff report said many young children can't differentiate between a TV program and its commercials and fail to understand that the advertisements are not part of the entertainment.

Millions of advertising dollars are at stake. The Television Bureau of Advertising says 1977 advertising expenditures in two product categories most likely to be seriously affected by any FTC action totaled $487 million.

The industry group could provide no breakdown for children's advertising but reported that confectionary and soft drinks accounted for $315 million in advertising sales. Cereals, both presweetened and unsweetened, accounted for $172 million.

The staff proposals came as a result of petitions to the FTC by two non-profit groups. Action for Children's Television and the Center for Science in the Public Interest.

In a related development, Action for Children's Television has asked the Federal Communications Commission to ban all advertising from children's TV shows. The FCC in 1974 rejected a similar petition from the Boston-based group.

Either federal commission could act on its own to control advertising aimed at children.

Arrested In Fire Deaths

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP) — Jimmy Miller of Rockingham was in the Richmond County Jail today, charged with murder in the burning deaths of his 2-year-old nephew and another infant boy.

Richmond County sheriff's Lt. Nathan Graham said Miller was accused of starting the fire Sunday night by kicking over a kerosene stove in a two-room frame house where he was reportedly arguing with his mother, Rita Miller.

The flames raced through the two-room frame house at the Pee Dee Mill Village near here with the two children and five adults inside.

Graham said the two youngsters, Johnny Miller and Christopher Parsons, were in the back room of the house and the kerosene stove Miller kicked over was just inside the door of the room.

They said Jimmy Miller kicked out a window in the front room and jumped out, followed by his mother and three neighbors who were also in the room. Graham said one of the neighbors, Kathy Bowman, said she saw the children on fire through a window as she jumped.

Mrs. Miller was listed in critical condition in Baptist Hospital in Winston-Salem. Another neighbor, Roy Brock, 51, was also in critical condition in Charlotte Memorial Hospital. Miss Bowman was in satisfactory condition in Hammond Hospital. The fifth neighbor, Doris Quick, 51, and Jimmy Miller were also burned, Graham said, but not as severely.

The bodies of the two children were found beside the stove, Graham said.

Miller is in Rockingham County Jail awaiting a preliminary hearing on the charges which Graham said will probably be held Wednesday.

Pitt Demo Executive Committee Has Meet

The Pitt County Democratic Executive Committee met here Monday night with Betty Speir, committee chairperson, presiding.

During the session, packets of information regarding upcoming party events were distributed to the precinct chairpersons on hand.

Mrs. Speir announced that precinct meetings will be held in the county polling places on Thursday, March 16 at 8 p.m. with business agendas for the meetings including the election of delegates and alternates to the county, district and state Democratic conventions.

According to the chairperson, the county convention will be held in Greenville at 1 p.m. on Saturday, April 29 in the District Courtroom of the Pitt Courthouse.

It was pointed out that 22 delegates and 22 alternates will be elected at the congressional district conventions throughout the state on May 20, with two delegates and two alternates being chosen at each convention.

Six delegates and six alternates will be elected at the state convention, scheduled for June 24 at Dorton Arena in Raleigh.

The Pitt committee elected Rufus Higgins of Greenville to fill the unexpired term of Dr. D. D. Gross, who resigned from the state executive committee to seek election to the N.C. House of Representatives.

The speaker for last night's meeting, Steve Glass, executive director of the state Democratic Party, explained the party's plans for delegate selection to the national party conference to be held in Memphis, Tenn. in December.

Glass said the Memphis conference will formulate the rules governing the Democratic National Convention of 1980.

The guest speaker described the party's affirmative action plan for 1978 and indicated that the aim of the plan is to encourage new voters to register and to provide information regarding procedures for registration.

Mrs. Speir reported that every precinct in the county was represented at the committee session by either its chairperson or first vice chairperson.

Blind Volunteer Is Teaching

By RAFAEL BERMUDEZ
BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) — Debra Lynn Barber's sandy hair and freckles stand out head and shoulders above the crowd as she jostles her way to work on a brightly sunny summer morning.

Much less visible is the long aluminum cane that helps the blind 24-year old Peace Corps volunteer get around, mostly on her own, in the teeming capital city of 5 million people.

Despite Bogota's reputation as a dangerous city because of the many muggers, purse snatchers and pickpockets that roam the streets, every weekday Miss Barber takes a public bus by herself to and from work.

Work is teaching in an elementary school for the blind where she says her most important job is to "challenge people's attitude..."

"Here," she says, "they think of most blind people as beggars."

Independent from the beginning, Miss Barber never attended special schools to learn how to deal with her blindness, caused in the first days of her life by an overdose of oxygen following her premature birth.

Miss Barber graduated from Fairmont West High School in Dayton, Ohio, where her father owned a small trucking firm. Later, she went to Eckerd College in St. Petersburg, Fla., where she majored in Spanish. During her college years Miss Barber visited Colombia and fell in love with the country.

Soon after graduation from Eckerd in 1976, she followed her brother into the Peace Corps. He was assigned to Thailand, she to the city of Bucaramanga near the Venezuelan border to teach blind children.

She moved to Bogota in June, 1977, and lived with a family for a while, but her penchant for doing things the hard way made her move away and into an apartment of her own.

"I just felt that I wanted to do more things by myself, to be more on my own," she said in an interview.

Asked why she decided to work in Colombia rather than the United States, Miss Barber said, "I like adventure. I like challenge. In the States it would be too easy for me. Psychologically, it would not be good for me."

"I have a feeling there is so much that can be done here in Colombia. In the States there is much being done for the blind."

Miss Barber teaches her pupils music and English and gives remedial lessons in reading, writing and mathematics at her school, the Colombian Institute for Blind Children.

But she feels she is doing more than teaching academic subjects. She's showing the Colombian children that being blind is neither a total handicap nor something shameful.

"I would say that the majority of the kids reflect what society expects of them. I think there are some who are willing to rebel enough to achieve their full potential."

When asked what her students think about her, Miss Barber smiles and says, "I have good rapport with the kids but sometimes they don't like me because they think I'm too rough."

Miss Barber does much of her own shopping, cooking and housework. Wherever she goes she takes one of Bogota's crowded buses.

"I haven't up till now had any trouble. People have been very helpful," she said.

What little spare time she has Miss Barber likes to spend on music and reading in braille. She plays the guitar, violin and piano and has lately tried her hand at short story writing.

Miss Barber said she would like to remain in Colombia following her Peace Corps tour, perhaps as a professional interpreter.

Stickpins Are Latest Fashion Accessory

By The Associated Press

They're popping up all over the place. On collars, on suits, on coats. And they're destined to be as big a fashion hit this year as they were last year. Stickpins are in.

Once an ornament reserved for securing a cravat, the currently hot jewelry item is fast replacing the chain as the big trend-setting accessory for the fashion conscious.

Observers of the ever-changing fashion scene say the stickpin owes its re-emergence to a renewed popularity in shawls and scarves. And what better way to secure these often immense garments than with an elegant pin.

"It is a rage," said a salesperson at New York's Bergdorf Goodman, as she displayed a spider stickpin with rubies and diamonds for $155 and enamel butterflies for $105. "They're selling big. We get calls for them all day long."

In Chicago at Marshall Field and Co., the prices are somewhat lower for gold plated and gold-filled stickpins. But the popularity is the same. Initials, love knots and hearts, ranging in price from $5 to $15, are selling well.

The big sellers at Tiffany and Co. in New York are stickpins with diamonds. Prices range from $55 for a plain round gold circle to $395 for a tennis racket surrounded by diamonds.

"People are coming in and talking about getting their grandmother's stickpins out and making repairs," said Sally Burrrell of Tiffany. "We started selling them last fall and had a tremendous Christmas season with them."

Cartier has several new stickpin designs planned for the future, according to gold buyer Jeanne Schaffer. "We're definitely in the stickpin business, but we want to do more important and more exclusive items," she said. "There are too many people in the market. Our clients are special and we want to do something a little bit different."

One plan calls for converting already popular Cartier diamond pendants to stickpins. The oval, teardrop and round diamond designs range from $1,500 to $3,000. Clusters of diamonds, rubies, emeralds and sapphires set in 18k gold will run from $650 to $1,200.

The 1977 annual business survey of the Retail Jewelers of America, which represents 11,000 stores around the nation, reports that last year was indeed the year of the stickpin. Stores in Iowa, for example, reported that "factories couldn't supply them fast enough."

Georgia stores said stickpins "led fashion."

Forecasts for 1978 seem to indicate that the fashion world will have a long way to go before it can unstickpin itself.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

It's funny how most people have total recall when they remember where they were when Pearl Harbor was attacked, what they wore to the Senior Prom, and who taught them to drive.

You may think this is weird, but I remember the exact day I lost my modesty and every detail surrounding it.

It occurred on the birth of my first child in a Midwestern hospital. When I checked in at 10:15 a.m. I was right out of the pages of Vanity Fair — timid, blushing, shy, demure. There wasn't an attendant in the emergency ward who doubted for a moment that they were seeing the results of the first divine conception.

Four days later I was walking down the corridors with my bathrobe open like Hester with an A on her chest. Hospitals do that to you. And you are helpless to fight back. The elevated bed... the doors that swing open and shut with no locks... the skimpy gowns (I've had blemishes bigger than that)... the intercom that interrupt a visit you're having with the clergy and queries, "Have you had your BM this morning?"

Before I converted to immodesty, I thought my roommate was a real swinger. As the 200 or so people moved in and out of our room every day, she didn't wait for the name or the ID, she just threw back her covers and waited for the probing fingers.

One day she yelled impatiently, "Will you get on with it before I catch cold?"

The man said, "You can put your covers over you. I just have to clean under the bed."

A resident came in one day and observed, "Oh, you've had your baby." Tiredly, she threw back the covers.

"Sex?" he asked.

"Animal!" she shouted back and turned toward the wall.

Few people check out of hospitals the same as when they went in. Somehow I knew after my experience, I would never blush again when I used the word pregnant... never spell c-r-a-m-p-s in front of an MD... never apologize for going to surgery brasless.

No, I will never be that pale flower again. I remember one day my husband came by as I was discussing my irregularities.

"Which doctor is that?" he asked.

"What doctor? It's the television repairman."

Dear Abby

His Marriage Not A Life Sentence

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for three months and we just had our first big fight. It all started when I mentioned to him that I had read that the longest marriage on record was 86 years! My husband then replied that 25 years is our limit—and no more.

Abby, I got married for life and I hoped that he did, too, so this really got me upset.

Then he said, "You should be pleased with a guarantee of 25 years."

What do you say, Abby?

V.V.

DEAR B: Nobody has a "guarantee" that he'll wake up tomorrow morning, so your husband's "guarantee" of a 25-year-long marriage doesn't mean much.

Live your life one day at a time, and if your husband tells you after 25 years that your "guarantee" has run out, write again, and if I'm still around (and I hope I am), I'll help you deal with it.

DEAR ABBY: I have a boyfriend who has three favorite sayings: "I'm starved," "I'm tired" and "I'm broke." I can't see why he should always be starved. He lives at home. And he shouldn't be tired since he sleeps every chance he gets. And he shouldn't be broke either since he has a job. He comes over every Friday night, and when I ask him to take me to a movie, he says he's broke. When I suggest going somewhere else, he says he's too tired. I don't understand why I want to marry him, but I do. What's wrong with him?

SUZIE Q.

DEAR SUZIE Q.: He needs someone who will feed him, give him an allowance, and tuck him in every night. (A mother.) He's for ADOPTING—not MARRYING.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 46-year-old widow in love with a 47-year-old widower I'll call Bill.

Bill's wife died four years ago and left him with a daughter who is now 12. (I'll call her Betsy.) The problem is the way Betsy feels about me. She's insanely jealous. Bill once kissed the back of my neck while helping me on with my coat and Betsy became hysterical. She yelled and screamed and cursed me, saying, "You will NEVER take my mother's place!" It took Bill an hour to calm her down.

Whenever we three drive anywhere, Betsy has to sit between us. When we three are together, Betsy sulks and looks at me with hate in her eyes. Until recently, Betsy slept with her father, but I told him I thought it was very unhealthy so she stopped it.

Bill is begging me to marry him. He says Betsy will outgrow her jealousy after we're married, and she will learn to love me, but I'm afraid to take a chance. I really love Bill and don't want to give him up. Please help me.

NEEDS HELP

DEAR NEEDS: Tell Bill that unless (and until) he gets Betsy to a psychotherapist for some counseling, and her sick attitude changes, marriage between you would be a disaster. (He could also use some therapy.) Under no circumstances should you marry Bill with the situation that now exists. If he doesn't agree to getting help for Betsy, say goodbye. And don't look back.

Problems? Tell them to Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, write Abby: Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Chancellor-Search Is Moving

The search for a new ECU chancellor seems to be very near to its conclusion. Board of Trustees Chairman Troy Pate said last week that his board may consider the search committee's recommendations within a week or two. It is anticipated that two names will be submitted to UNC President William Friday. Friday in turn will recommend one of those names to the UNC

Board of Governors for final action.

We know that the search committee has done a tremendous amount of work in seeking candidates and conducting interviews. It has been an exhaustive effort but it should mean that the best qualified person will eventually be chosen to lead East Carolina University in the years ahead.

N.C. Must Be Doing Something Right

North Carolina is still behind the more affluent states, but there are indications that we are catching up. One is that our population is growing faster than the nation's as a whole. The Division of State Budget and Management sees the 1980 population at 5.8 million, up 14 percent over 1970. An encouraging part of this is that rural growth is expected to be 12 percent during the 1970s. If our people are staying here and more are coming in then North Carolina must be doing something right.

THIS AFTERNOON

Infighting On Hunt Team

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — In a rare public display of vicious political combat, two high-level state officials recently engaged in debate before a legislative commission. The event was outstanding from a number of different viewpoints: rare insights into how hardball politics is played between North Carolina's "new breed" and the "old guard"; early signs of how the governor's race may shape up next time; and titillating charges involving nepotism, favoritism, unauthorized use of state helicopters, administrative maneuverings, power, and money. All of that took place before the commission determined this was a "personnel matter" and went into executive session. The arena was the Governmental Operations Commission of the General Assembly, chaired by Lt. Gov. James C. Green, an outspoken opponent to Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr. and likely gubernatorial candidate in the Democratic primary of 1980. The combatants — both appointed to office by Governor

Hunt — were the chairman of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board and the secretary of the Department of Crime Control and Public Safety. Old Guard Marvin L. Speight Jr. is one of the original Good Ole Boys; hailing from Farmville, rich from real estate, filling station, and auto parts operations; and a long-time political operative. His barbeques are legend, and he helped Jim Hunt get elected. His reward: chairmanship of the powerful ABC Board. J. Phil Carlton is one of Hunt's "good buddies", and comes from Pinetops. He is a former schoolmate of the governor; a lawyer and judge, and a soft-spoken — almost shy — person who was characterized by Hunt as one of his "non-political" appointments. He heads the state's first agency designed to pull under one umbrella various law enforcement and protection activities of state government. Here is the stage-setting: When Speight took over the ABC operation it included the board which sets policy and decides on licenses and suspensions, and the network of enforcement agents statewide. When Carlton took over the crime control agency, the alcoholic law officers were transferred to that department, leaving Speight with the board in the Department of Commerce. The General Assembly approved the reorganization at Hunt's urging.

NOBLITT

For a year, Speight has been complaining that taking his agents makes the system unworkable. Hunt administration sources say, however, that the chairman knew full well the change would be made. Speight is not being a "good soldier" in stirring up trouble — especially by taking it public in Lt. Gov. Green's committee, they say. Unaware Carlton came before the commission unaware of the assault to come, and outlined how the system works: agents under his control are trained in investigations and enforcement. They investigate applicants for beer or wine licenses and send the information — and information on any violations which occur in outlets — to the board. The board is a quasi-judicial body making rules and regulations and finding facts in issuing licenses or revoking them. But that is what is bothering Speight. "We could be more responsive to the people if the agents were under our control... we've been reorganized right out of communication." Speight complained that by acting as law officers the ABC agents were making people mad, were not representing him and the board, didn't pay enough attention to continuing relationships with the people who run the beer and wine outlets, and furthermore he had a hard time getting prompt attention from Carlton's crew in giving him information or delivering stuff from the board to the licenses. In sum, Carlton was demanding a legitimate law agency; Speight wants agents who don't run around acting like policemen.

THE GAMES PEOPLE SHOULDN'T PLAY

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

Citizen A Supplicant?

WASHINGTON — A few weeks ago, CBS News and the New York Times undertook an ideological poll. In the process, they asked a random sample of respondents to explain the difference between liberalism and conservatism. Half the respondents had no idea. President Carter on February 8 could have provided a textbook answer. Mr. Carter called a special press conference to unveil his new plan to provide expanded federal assistance in the field of higher education. His plan is at bottom a grant plan. At about the same time, Senator William Roth of Delaware was promoting his alternative approach in this same area. Senator Roth is pushing a plan of tuition tax credits. These opposing propositions offer a perfect test of political philosophy. Given these choices only, a liberal will go with Mr. Carter every time; a conservative will go with Senator Roth. You could not find a better example of what the ideological fight is all about. Consider the Carter proposal. The president asks for an additional $1.5 billion to assist middle-income families in meeting the costs of college education. Two-thirds of the increase would be channeled into the Basic Educational Opportunity Grants (BEOG) that began in 1972. Under this plan, middle-income students with "proven need" would become eligible for grants up to $250 a year. Ironically, there are certain similarities. Roth's plan would also cost about $1.5 billion. He too has a figure of "up to $250" in mind. But

Roth would provide the $250 in the form of a straightforward tax credit to any taxpayer who certified that he was paying college tuition for a dependent. Roth's approach would require no more than one line on a Form 1040, with perhaps a supporting affidavit. Under the Carter plan the people are seen as supplicants, begging a handout from a generous father-government. The supplicants would have to "prove their need". The proving process would demand an immense bureaucracy. The approach contemplates forms, reviews, disclosures, judgments, vast paperwork, prolonged correspondence. The important thing is the relationship: Under the Carter plan, Welfare Secretary Joe Califano is the master; the applicants for BEOGs are subjects. Government retains the power to approve or disapprove. Roth's approach is 180 degrees around the circle. Here the relationship is wholly different. Here the people are saying, through an amendment to the tax code, that higher education is a good thing. In times past, the people have said that home ownership is a good thing, that contributions to charity are good things, that special consideration for the aged and the blind is well deserved. And the tax code has been drafted to permit deductions for the interest on mortgages, for gifts to the Red Cross, and so on. Just as every taxpayer who has a home mortgage can deduct the interest he pays, regardless of his net income, so every taxpayer with a tuition-paying dependent could take the Roth tax credit. The element of welfare is eliminated. The government does not award a "grant". The citizen does not apply for help or prove his need. Under the Roth approach the power of government is not enlarged at all. Early on, the Carter administration had objected to Roth's bill almost solely on the grounds of cost. This was the chief criticism in December, after Roth had

Trial Run On Tests

By DAVID TOMLIN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Some time between now and March 10, North Carolina's 88,000 high school juniors will spend about six hours apiece taking a test on which they will never know their grades. These are the field trials for three competency tests, one of which will be selected by state education officials as the standard test which every high school student must pass if he or she wants a diploma. Results from the current round of trial tests will help determine not only which test will be selected, but how well students will have to do on it in order to pass. Of the 88,000 students, 40,000 will take one reading test and one math test, just as juniors will be doing this fall when the testing program actually begins. The field trials now under way were designed by a technical research committee of the testing commission which must eventually pick the test to be used. The 8,000 students who are taking one reading and one math test will be answering the question of how many students might need remedial programs in any one area," said Dr.

40 Years Ago Today

February 28, 1938
Hundreds of high school seniors, their teachers and parents are expected to accept the invitations to "High School Day", which have just gone out from East Carolina Teacher's College to the high-school students of eastern North Carolina. The day will be observed this year at the college on Tuesday, April 12. The program, designed to acquaint the high school guests with the activities of a college campus, will open with a program in the Robert H. Wright building in mid-morning followed by the ever-popular barbecue luncheon. This will be the third such "visiting day" held by the college in the last three years to interest more of the state's high school graduates in entering some college. Fire early this afternoon damaged the upstairs of the Firestone service station located at the corner of Fifth and Reade Streets, which is used by various departments of the school, but no immediate estimate of the loss was available. Chief of the fire department, George Gardner, said he was unable to say what the loss would amount to, but added that the building was "pretty badly damaged by fire, smoke and water". Chief Gardner said he was unable to determine the cause of the fire, which broke shortly after one p.m. and was not under control until after 2:30.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Finally, A Carter Victory

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — When Republican Rep. Tom Railsback of Illinois was told by his secretary last week that "Mr. Vance" was calling, he was running into a grimly determined effort to avert yet another Carter administration defeat in Congress on the B-1 bomber. Railsback was flabbergasted. The only "Mr. Vance" he had heard of was Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, but he had never met or talked to him. Why would Vance call? To lobby Railsback on the B-1 bomber vote, scheduled to come up in the House within a couple of hours. Railsback voted for the B-1 bomber anyway. But extraordinary lobbying efforts by President Carter and Secretary Vance turned the tide to kill the super-bomber and produce a victory desperately needed by the White House. That political motive transcended military factors in the heavy push against the B-1. When lobbyists for all government departments met at their weekly White House conference before the B-1 vote, they were told a win was essential after months of stalemate on the energy bill and the defeat of Mr. Carter's consumer protection bill. The shocking consumer setback was cited as reason to demonstrate that the House was not running out of control. The President himself placed private telephone calls to about a dozen swing Congressmen who could have gone either way. "We gave him a pretty rough list," according to a White House aide, but Mr. Carter did "a lot better" than he had on the consumer product safety bill (when five or six lobbied Congressmen turned him down). More unusual was the recruitment of Vance, arranged by chief White House lobbyist Frank Moore. Vance's message to House members: the U.S. does not need the B-1; the new strategic arms agreement (SALT) with the Russians would give this nation all the latitude it needs to arm the aging fleet of B-52s with cruise missiles (a highly debatable conclusion); therefore, would the Congressman please vote against building the last two of five B-1s originally programmed for research and development? The entire administration

DISAPPOINTMENTS
Sometimes our disappointments turn out to be our greatest blessings. Nothing would involve us more certainly in ruin than to be granted everything we want just the way we want it. Frustration followed by triumph is one of the great evidences of a divine power behind all things. Abraham Lincoln is a good example. He had many disappointments in life which hurt him keenly. A few years before his election to the presidency he was denied ap-

Other Editors Say Air In America

(Greensboro Daily News)
There was news from the Environmental Protection Agency in Washington last week about the air Americans breathe. Depending on your sentiments, you can read the news two ways: 1. The air is considerably cleaner and safer than it was in 1970, when the EPA first began enforcing pollution standards. Sulfur dioxide levels are down 27 percent, carbon monoxide levels 20 percent, and particulates 12 percent. 2. A majority of Americans, despite eight years of work by the EPA, breathe air that conceivably could cause them health problems, or aggravate other health conditions. Sulfur dioxide can irritate the upper respiratory tract and cause lung damage. Carbon monoxide can cause stress to the heart and circulatory system. Particulates can cause respiratory illness and breathing difficulties. Both conclusions are valid, of course, but we incline toward the latter approach. This country has made a commitment to cleaner air, and has taken significant and sometimes controversial steps toward achieving its ambitious goals. It can do still better. How did North Carolina fare in the EPA survey? Guilford, though an urban county, registered no violations in any of the five categories the agency surveyed. Mecklenburg and Durham counties were lagging in two categories apiece and Buncombe and Mitchell in one category apiece. By January those counties, like 602 others across the land, will have to submit to the EPA the plans they propose to implement to bring their air quality into conformity with federal standards by 1982. Failing to do so — or failing to show "good faith efforts" to the EPA (where have we heard that phrase?) — could threaten their eligibility for federal dollars, to be used in such areas as road construction and waste treatment. At a time when the federal share of those important projects is crucial to localities, the EPA's threat may be just the right kind of carrot.

Britain's Eurphoria Baseless?

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The recovery of the British economy is being built on weak foundations, propped up by pre-election politics, according to an analysis by the prestigious Merrill Lynch Economics concern. The conclusions, signed by Arnold Simkin, its senior economist in London, contain statements that are bound to irritate the British, who by some accounts have been euphoric about various economic indicators. The euphoria is not really warranted, said Simkin. "It's political and may just outlast the next election, and no more," he said in the report to influential private and public officials here and abroad. The British government's economic strategy seems to have a strong pre-election flavor," he said, suggesting that the goals were near-term political power as much as long-range economic stability. He suggested that the government might take advantage of the strong economic indicators to call for an election soon, "if not in June, then sometime in the early Autumn." The Merrill Lynch study comes at a time when some analysts were beginning to lend credence to the belief that the British economy, after decades of difficulties, was finding a strong foundation. Statistically, this appears to be so. The budget deficit has declined, taxes were cut in November and another cut may come in April, and North Sea oil production has reduced the nation's dependence on imports. In addition, the foreign payments balance seems to be better, foreign exchange reserves are high, and the pound sterling has risen in value from around $1.72 last July to more than $1.90 recently. But the analysis by ML Economics, which is affiliated with the nation's largest brokerage house, refers to "some worrisome developments," chief of which is the attitude toward fiscal policy. The next budget is to be presented in April, but Simkin comments that the expenditures already have been spelled out, calling for an 8 percent jump in total government outlays for the next fiscal year. At the same time, the analysis continues, the government is committed to cutting income taxes in an effort to offset the dilution of personal incomes because of inflation.

"What all this suggests," it states, "is that in the next fiscal year, the public sector's deficit is likely to be larger than in the current fiscal year, and could well be in the $15.5 billion range. "Such growth of the government deficit could give the economy trouble after the summer because the deficit will have to be financed." Combined with the enlargement of the money supply, and wage hikes that appear likely to exceed 10 percent, the deficit might not only boost the economy but accelerate inflation, the analysis concludes. Inflation, which only recently dipped into single numbers, has been the scourge of the British economy. Simkin says its resurgence may send sterling into decline, perhaps by 10 percent to 20 percent later this year.

was tied up in the big money bill that had been stalled in Congress for months because of the B-1. Buchanan voted for the bomber, but other Congressmen presumably were moved by such tactics.

The high-pressure campaign included one unusual 55-minute briefing by Secretary of Defense Harold Brown of a bipartisan group of undecided Congressmen. The President personally nailed down one of those undecideds: Rep. Mel Price of Illinois, chairman of the House Armed Services Committee.

But Mr. Carter would still have lost the B-1 vote if defense-oriented Congressmen had not joined administration forces for reasons of economy. They felt the money to be spent on those last two prototypes—at least $200 million—would be money down the drain. That explains the pro-Carter, anti-B-1 vote of Republican Jack Edwards of Alabama, Democrat Dale Millford of Texas and other defense stalwarts.

Goodbye, Bella
Joy reigned on the floor of the House Feb. 15—particularly among her fellow Democrats—over news that Bella Abzug, victim of a stunning upset the previous day in New York City's special congressional election, would not be coming back.

Rejoicing senior Democrats included Frank Thompson of New Jersey and Lucien Nedzi and John Dingell of Michigan. Dingell chortled to a Republican Congressman passing by: this is one victory we don't begrudge you.

But nobody seemed happier than Mrs. Abzug's fellow New York liberal Charles Rangel, representing Harlem. Rangel had been verbally attacked and insulted in confrontations with the tempestuous Bella and had no desire for reruns.

A footnote: The Democrats took special pleasure in noting Bella's election-day call to the House superintendent's office to make sure that her office space was ready for her triumphal return to Capitol Hill Feb. 15.

Energy vs. Environment
The civil war between energy and environment inside the Carter administration did not halt during the coal strike crisis, as the biggest generating utility in Illinois found out.

Commonwealth Edison officials in Chicago received a frantic SOS from Energy Department officials in Washington begging the utility to increase its output and transmit it to power-short states even if that violated environmental standards. Commonwealth Edison agreed and got the permission of state environmental officials.

But not from the federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) in Washington. Coal strike or no coal strike, EPA bureaucrats insisted on sticking to the letter of environmental codes. Communication between the Energy Department and EPA was once again nonexistent.

James Gallagher, head of the commission's staff.

Once the results from the trial tests are all in, Gallagher said, researchers will do several things:

—They'll compare results of each of the three tests with results on the ninth grade achievement tests, which are being used as a sort of benchmark from which to measure the students' progress as revealed by the various competency tests.

—They will analyze the distribution of scores to "find out if there was anything unusual with any of the tests."

—They will test the test results for signs that any of the tests gives an advantage to any particular group by race, sex or whether they live in city or country.

These and other considerations should permit the commission to decide which test suits the state best. Then the commission must decide what the pass-fail cutoff score will be.

Nicaragua Rioting Claimed 13 Lives

By JUAN MALTES
Associated Press Writer
MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP)

Thirteen persons were reported killed in riots and gun battles following a new refusal by dictator Anastasio Somoza to resign before his term ends in 1981.

About 50 others were wounded. Somoza's National Guard arrested hundreds more.

Three of the dead and two of the wounded were students cut down Monday night by troops firing machine guns and rifles at 1,000 anti-Somoza demonstrators marching out of the University of Nicaragua campus, witnesses said.

The protesters had been driven back into the campus half an hour earlier by the guardsmen shooting over their heads and lobbing tear gas. A second attempt to march from the campus set off the direct attack, the witnesses said.

About half the demonstrators scattered during the shooting, but 500 others fled back to the campus. After several hours of negotiations the guardsmen promised not to shoot them and let them go home.

succeeded in tacking his plan to the Social Security bill as it passed the Senate. But the administration's objection now falls of its own weight. The budgetary effect is identical, whether one thinks of $1.5 billion going out, or of $1.5 billion not coming in.

Yet the fiscal effect is not quite identical either, for the Carter-Califano BEOGs would cost millions of dollars to administer. The Roth plan would involve no administrative costs whatever. The political effects are different, too. If Congress goes for Carter-Califano, thousands of students and their middle-income families presumably will be humbly grateful to the Democrats for a handout. This is how you win elections; and it is how you lose control of Government.

tion could either take the recommendation of the manufacturer of the selected test, consult a panel of reading and math experts or examine the distribution of scores in the field trials for what seems like an appropriate cutoff.

"No matter how you do it, though, the cutoff should be pretty close to the same," Gallagher said, adding that a passing score would be no less than 50 or 55 percent correct and no higher than 70 percent.

"The thing we want to stress on this," Gallagher said, "is that this is a remedial program. The test is only the front edge of that program. The law requires remediation for those who don't pass the test, and it's the nature of the remediation that is really important."

Seven guerrillas were killed and 15 wounded in fighting earlier in the day in the anti-government stronghold of Diriamba, 37 miles south of Managua, police said.

An eighth fatality was identified as a soldier. The two other dead reported were not identified.

Fifteen more persons were reported wounded in a gunfight between government forces and guerrillas in Masaya, 21 miles southeast of here.

The National Guard cordoned off both Diriamba and Masaya and cut telephone connections with them.

Anti-Somoza demonstrations were reported in the cities of Rivas, Leon, Boaco, and Chinandega.

Carlota Potosme, a resident of an Indian neighborhood called Monimbo in Masaya, said machine-gun fire and tear-gas bombardment by the National Guard was almost continuous Monday. The Monimbo Indians raided a weapons warehouse last week and took on guardsmen in an all-night shootout, and Mrs. Potosme said she saw a pickup truck loaded with weapons arrive at Monimbo.

Nicaragua has been in turmoil since publisher Pedro Joaquin Chamorro, a leading foe of Somoza, was assassinated Jan. 10. The president denied having anything to do with the murder, but agitation for an investigation to determine who was responsible culminated in a 17-day general strike that turned into a movement to end the diclatorship. Somoza, whose family has ruled this Central American nation for 42 years, said in a speech Sunday, as he has before, that he planned to finish out his six-year term and then relinquish power.

"If we make an error on your taxes, we pay the penalty. And the interest."

Mark County Road For Hippo Crossing

IRVINE, Calif. (AP) — There's a new sign on heavily traveled Laguna Canyon Road in Orange County. It reads: "Hippo X-ing."

It's for Bubbles, the athletic hippopotamus.

The two-ton hippo has eluded officials for a week since she cleared a 4½-foot fence at Lion Country Safari. It was the third time she had broken out since Feb. 13, officials said.

Rangers who work for Lion Country Safari say Bubbles stays submerged in a murky lake in the hills 1½ miles from the wild animal refuge.

Hippos forage at night, so rangers have been hiding in the reeds nightly waiting for Bubbles. But on Sunday night, the adventurous hippo slipped past them, lumbered across the road and slid quietly into another lake.

Rangers heard the screeching brakes of motorists on the rain-slick road. But by the time they, police cars and a police helicopter rushed to the scene, Bubbles was once again out of sight beneath the water.

Thus the 1½-by-2½-foot hand-painted "Hippo X-ing" sign. Part of the problem in searching for Bubbles is dealing with onlookers, says Lion Country spokeswoman Jo Schetter. About 50 showed up Monday and had to be shoed away by police. The California Highway Patrol closed the portion of the poorly lighted road where Bubbles is likely to come ashore.

If it appeared Bubbles might endanger human life, she would lose her own, Lion Country officials say.

On her first escape, Bubbles took along her 800-pound daughter. They came home on their own after several hours. The second time they were tranquilized and carted home in a bulldozer scoop and a jeep.

GREENVILLE CITIZENS CARE ABOUT THE ENERGY PROBLEM. WE WANT YOU TO KNOW THE FACTS.

Q. Dear Sirs, I am a Greenville businessman with a family of four. I'm concerned about the energy problem and how it might affect my family and our community. I have read the facts about your BEAT THE PEAK program. I am aware that you will pay Greenville and Pitt County honorariums up to $30.00 during the summer to have THE SWITCH installed on our air conditioning units and hot water heaters. I also understand that THE SWITCH is only commenced about 15 days a year and only operation about 15 minutes at a time. I know that BEAT THE PEAK is the approach Greenville is taking to cut down the city's overall electrical power costs by reducing "peak" electricity usage. I see that this will save money and energy for me and you. But I have to ask: will my family be helping to solve everyone's energy problem? What about the folks who don't have THE SWITCH installed—will they benefit too? Aren't there other ways to solve this "peak" problem?

A. Good questions. Yes, there are a number of ways to help reduce costly, wasteful "Peaks"—the times when a lot of folks are demanding a lot of electricity.

Just understanding the problem is a big start. When folks realize the waste of money and energy that results from "Peaking," they will see the importance of doing everything that can be done to REDUCE PEAK DEMAND.

For example, during the hot summer months if everyone would just do the major part of their washing and drying, cooking, and the like in the early morning or late evening our peak demand could be reduced.

In the winter, peaks occur in the early morning. So, being careful not to use too much electricity on cold mornings helps BEAT THE PEAK in the winter.

Summer or winter, the thermostat setting can help, or it can hurt. It helps when set at 68 degrees or lower in the winter, and 78 degrees or higher during hot weather.

Our customers who volunteer to BEAT THE PEAK are making a BIG contribution. Having The Switch installed on their electric water heaters and central air conditioners helps us reduce peak demand and SAVE MONEY AND ENERGY. And it's true. Everyone will benefit in the long run, even those customers who don't have The Switch installed and don't receive the $30.00 savings.

Most of all, it's the concern of folks like you that will help solve our energy problems. The Peak Problem is everybody's problem.

Thank you for caring.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices sustained a broad loss today, faced with renewed weakness in the dollar and expectations of a negative signal on the economic outlook.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which fell 7.89 on Monday to a new 34-month low, dropped another 2.25 to 746.10 by noontime today. Losers outpaced gainers by close to a 3-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The slumping dollar, which has been a subject of continuing concern on Wall Street, lost more ground against leading European currencies today. Analysts also noted expectations of some negative news in the government's report on the index of leading economic indicators for January, due out later in the day.

Economists recently have pointed to evidence that the index, which is designed as a kind of crystal ball of business trends, might be headed for a downturn.

Datapoint, which announced plans for an offering of 600,000 shares, fell 1 1/2 to 37 1/2. The NYSE's composite common-stock index dropped .24 to 48.57. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .43 at 122.91.

Volume on the Big Board came to 8.79 million shares by noontime, against 8.92 million at the same point on Monday.

buses whether volunteer or paid

To determine the interest on the part of adults to become elementary school bus drivers and to begin to utilize adult drivers as a general practice, and especially in the absence of student drivers with a minimum of one-year driving experience

To spell out the specific duties and responsibilities of school bus monitors, including the duty to move to the front of the bus (remain on bus) to help the driver determine that those students crossing the road have in fact done so before the bus is put in motion

To establish a system-wide program of recognition of those buses which go through the year without an accident, and further, to initiate system-wide recognition of the services rendered by all monitors by providing to each of those who serve for the course of an entire year an award of $50 each

That no 16-year old serve as a school bus driver without a minimum of six months of driving experience as is recommended by the State Board of Education and the General Assembly

To request individual school principals at least monthly discuss with the monitors their duties and responsibilities

To post in each bus specific rules of safety in full view and as a constant reminder

To require with the approval of the appropriate officials of the Motor Vehicles Department that bus safety seminars be conducted in August and January, with the first seminar to be implemented as soon as possible; to require the local Motor Vehicles Department representative ride individual buses throughout the year monitoring all safety aspects; to schedule all programs of work a month in advance and provide each principal with a copy; and that the representative maintain an office in the school bus garage

It was also recommended that a school calendar be developed in hopes of minimizing the "need for schools to operate on days when the roads are covered with snow and ice," according to the committee report.

Residents were also encouraged to report to the Supervisor of Transportation by no later than 6 a.m. reporting road conditions when bus safety is questioned. Concerned parents and residents should also report any incidents of unsafe bus practices that they witness.

The report also stated that "high school students will continue to be used for high school bus drivers "with the more experienced drivers given preference with all other factors being equal."

Finally, it was decided to charge the Supervisor of Transportation "with the responsibility of monitoring the transportation program in keeping with all rules and regulations of the Board of Education, the State Board of Education, and the Motor Vehicles Department."

The Board approved the recommendations and Superintendent Alford said that "I will move to begin implementing" the recommendations immediately.

City Counts Re-Marriage Said 2 Accidents On Shaky Grounds

An estimated $2,000 property damage resulted from two collisions investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Heaviest damage resulted from a 4:05 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Fifth and Greene Streets involving cars driven by Jeffery Eugene Yates of Raleigh and Brenda Leigh Bailey of Route 3, Goldsboro.

Investigators, who charged Miss Bailey with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety, estimated damage at $1,000 to the Yates car and $800 to the Bailey vehicle.

An 11:15 a.m. collision at the intersection of Bismark Street and Greenville Boulevard, involved a U.S. Postal Service truck driven by William Lee Buck of Route 4, Greenville and a car driven by Teresa Ann Jones of Route 1, Winterville.

No charges were made by officers who estimated damage at $200 to the Jones car. No damage resulted to the truck, police noted.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Angelina Alioto, who bitterly contested ex-Mayor Joseph Alioto's divorce suit, says the pair is still married in the eyes of the church despite his remarriage over the weekend.

A Roman Catholic Church official in New York, where Alioto married on Saturday, said Monday that the ceremony was performed by an ex-priest "who goes through the form of Catholic marriages." The marriage was legal, however, he said.

But Angelina Alioto said Monday: "As long as Joe Alioto and Angelina Alioto live, they are husband and wife before God and man and cannot be remarried under any circumstances until one or the other dies."

Alioto, 62, and Kathleen Sullivan, 33, were married by the Rev. Joseph O'Rourke, described by church officials as a former Jesuit priest. The newlyweds were reported honeymooning in Italy and could not be reached for comment Monday.

Monsignor Eugene Clark of the New York Archdiocese agreed with Mrs. Alioto that the marriage ceremonies were not Catholic. He said O'Rourke "was asked to leave the Jesuits a few years ago."

"Father O'Rourke goes through the form of Catholic marriages and frequently deceives the parties," he said. "We're concerned most of all about the deception and misapprehension of the couples."

Alioto, a lawyer, served as mayor of San Francisco from 1966 to 1974, and made an unsuccessful run for governor in 1974. His bride is a member of Boston School Committee. Her father, William Sullivan, is owner of the New England Patriots of the National Football League.

Conley Girls Win; Hawks Top Chargers

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer
LITTLEFIELD—Mitchell Wiggins scored a game-high 39 points and sparked a second-half rally that helped North Lenoir defeat Ayden-Grifton in overtime 76-73 in the semifinals of the District 3-A tournament at Ayden-Grifton last night.

The game completed the field for tonight's championship games, with the winners entering the state finals. In last night's opening game, D. H. Conley's girls downed Washington 49-44. Tonight, the Valkyries will play Williamston at 6, while North Lenoir will meet Washington at about 7:30. Tonight's finals will feature both Northeastern conference champions against both Eastern Carolina Conference champions. "We had our chances; we had our opportunities to win," said Ayden-Grifton coach Bob Murphrey after watching his team lose an 11-point halftime lead and then fail to take advantage of several openings late in the game.

Led by center James Leggett, who pumped in 26 points, and forward Frankie Dail, who added 19, the Chargers overwhelmed the Hawks in the first half. Most of the bounces went Ayden-Grifton's way before halftime.

John Cratch took advantage of a mismatch inside early in the ballgame, scoring six straight points to help the Hawks to a 6-2 lead, but the Chargers bounced back and went up by five before the end of the quarter, 18-13.

North Lenoir pulled ahead early in the second period on six unanswered points by Mitchell Wiggins, but Charger Henry Ormond came off the bench to lead an Ayden-Grifton run just before halftime and the Chargers took a 40-29 lead into the locker room.

"I told them (the Chargers) at halftime that they (North Lenoir) were going to make a run at us, and to expect it," according to Murphrey. "We got off to a real slow start in the second half. We were getting good shots, they just wouldn't go."

North Lenoir coach Jerry Walton said his team changed offenses at halftime and cited that as a key to the Hawks' second-half rally. "We put in a new offense this week," he said. "It's an offense that Mitchell and them ran when they played jayvee ball, so it was easy for them to learn. I thought that made the difference; we got some easy layups."

The Hawks outscored the Chargers 12-2 early in the third quarter with Mitchell Wiggins, who scored 28 points in the second half, providing eight.

That pulled the Hawks to within one 42-41, but the Chargers were able to pull back in front by eight on baskets by Mike Teachy and Donnie Jackson, and a three-point play by Dail.

"We weathered the storm when they did come back on us," Murphrey said. But the Hawks made another challenge, this time tying the score at 49-49 with 1:21 left in the third quarter. Things were knotted at 51 going into the final period. North Lenoir got two baskets from Johnnie Wiggins for a 59-55 lead with 4:56 left in regulation, but a shot underneath by Leggett and two foul shots by Dail quickly tied the game again.

The score was knotted again at 61 and at 65. A travelling violation on the Hawks gave Ayden-Grifton the ball with a chance to go ahead for the first time since early in the fourth quarter and guard Terry Morris narrowly avoided being trapped in the corner with a job pass to Leggett, who put the ball in from close range with 23 seconds left.

North Lenoir called time out and was able to get the ball to Mitchell Wiggins in the lane for a basket with 10 seconds on the clock. His shot tied the score at 67-67.

The Chargers called time out with seven seconds left, but a long pass was intercepted by the Hawks and the game went into overtime.

"We let (Mitchell) Wiggins get loose on us at the end," Murphrey said of the guard's shot from the lane. "I thought we could stop them and get the ball back. We missed opportunities late in the game."

Mitchell Wiggins scored the first four points of the overtime period to give the Hawks a 71-67 lead. Dail then hit a follow shot for the Chargers to cut it to two.

Amos Pearce scored on a tip-in on the next trip down the court to make it 73-69. The Chargers claimed goaltending when Pearce slapped away a shot that hung on the rim. Those two points would have made it a two-point game again.

"There's no doubt in my mind that it was goaltending," Murphrey said after the game. The referee under the basket called for two points on the play, but the outside official, whose vantage point was near Murphrey's, overruled the basket.

The Hawks ran the clock down to 18 seconds when Mitchell Wiggins was intentionally fouled. He hit both shots to make it 75-69.

Leggett hit a follow shot with 12 seconds left to pull the Chargers to within four, 75-71 with 12 seconds left, but Ronnie McPhail hit a foul shot with six seconds on the clock to seal the win.

Morris scored for Ayden-Grifton at the buzzer.

"Well, we had to come back one time, we went down, we

Rose-Rocky Mt. In Title Game

Rose High School's Ramparts go up against Rocky Mount tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the Gryphon gymnasium with the Division I title and a home-court tournament berth at stake.

Both teams have already clinched a berth in the first round of the state 4-A basketball tournament, but the loser will have to travel while the winner will hold a home-court advantage.

The two teams will both return to action on Friday in the tournament's first round. The top-seeded team from the conference, tonight's winner, will be at home to the runner-up from Division IV. The loser will travel to face the winner of the Division III league.

Rose comes into the game with a 16-8 record, and riding a four-game winning streak. Rose rolled past Northeastern, 109-76, in the first round of the Divisional tournament, then knocked off Northern Nash, 71-48 on Friday to clinch their state tourney berth and another meeting with Rocky Mount.

The meeting will be the third for the two teams. Rocky Mount won an earlier meeting on its home court, while Rose won in Greenville.

Rocky Mount has a 20-4 record coming into the game, and was the pre-season favorite to win the conference title. The Gryphons actually ended up in a tie with Northern Nash for the regular season crown.

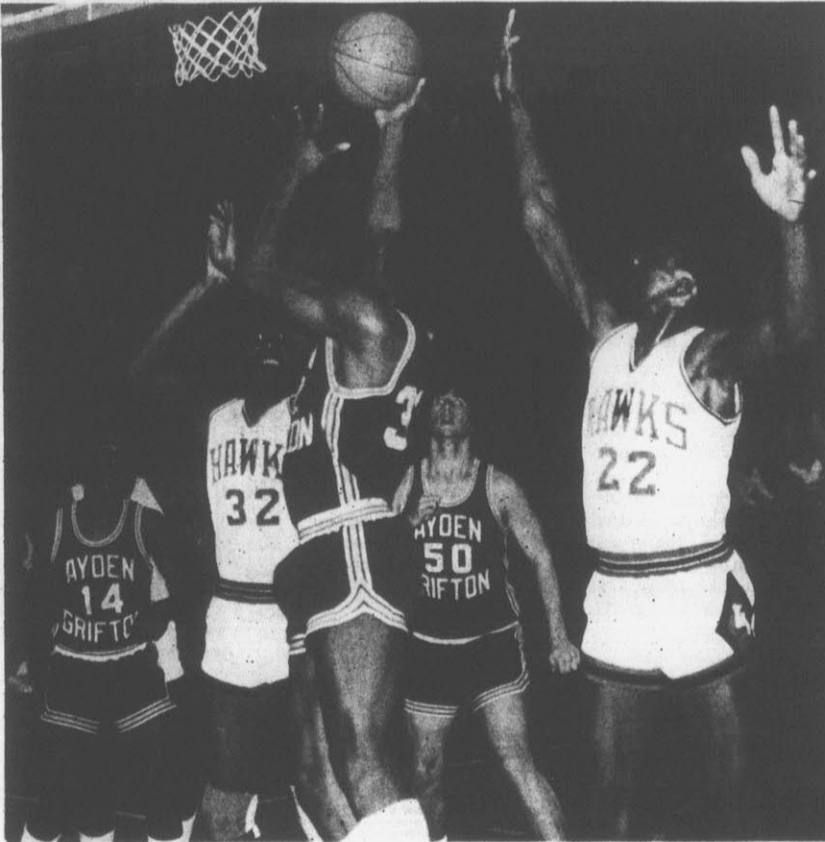

Rose is paced by William Barnes with an 18.2 average, while James Hawkins is hitting 15.5 per contest. Greg Guthrie is scoring 14.8 per game and Anthony Bryant rounds out the double-figure scorers with a 12.9 mark.

The other starter could be either Billy Roberson, Derwin Clemons or Ronnie Chapman.

Rocky Mount will counter with three in double figures, led by All-everything candidate Buck Williams, considered by many as the top senior in the state. The 6-8 center is averaging 21.5 points per game and 19.1 rebounds.

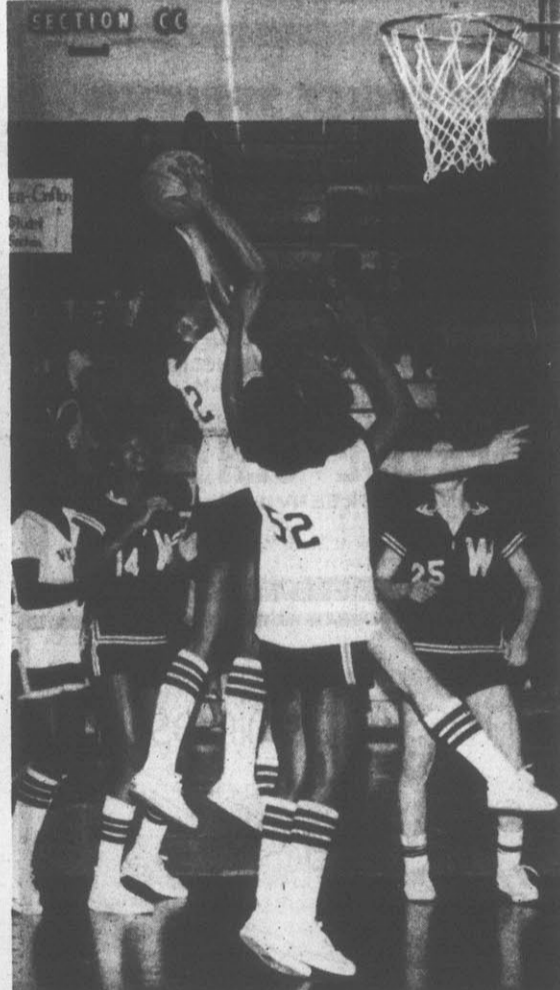

He's joined by Jeff Battle, hitting 15.3 points per game, but scoring 24 per game over the last four outings. Reggie Barrett is the only other Gryphon in double-figures hitting 12.5.

Mike Lewis will hold one of the other starting positions, while the other will go to either Terry McKnight, Freddy Woods or Darryl Lewis.

Gillman Denies Job Statement

East Carolina Coach Larry Gillman denied yesterday that he had stated that he had been offered a job by the Chicago Bulls of the National Basketball Association.

Gillman was quoted in an Associated Press story that originated in Greenville that he had been offered such a job.

Mike McClure, public relations and marketing director of the Bulls, told the Daily Reflector yesterday afternoon that "we have never heard of Larry Gillman, and no job has been offered him. It's a complete fabrication."

Gillman stated earlier in the day that he did not make any such statement.

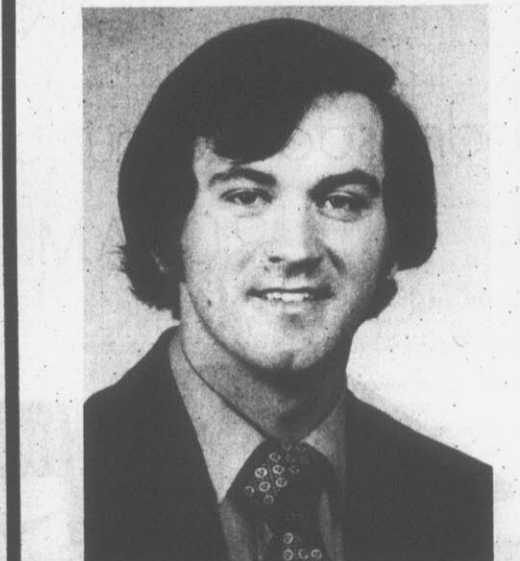

Henry Hinton of radio station WOOW in Greenville said that Gillman made the statement to him and two other people, another in whom is also employed. "With following Gillman's story right radio story carried by that station."

Hinton said Gillman was asked during a conversation what he would do if East Carolina dismissed him. Gillman was quoted as saying he had another job offer. When asked with whom, Gillman replied, "With the Chicago Bulls."

NCAA Investigators Threatened Athletes

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former NCAA field investigator has charged that the National Collegiate Athletic Association's enforcement staff routinely cajoled — and even bribed — student-athletes to gain information from them.

J. Brent Clark, a 29-year-old attorney who worked for the NCAA for 2½ years before resigning Dec. 30, also told a House Interstate and Foreign Commerce subcommittee that the athletes are threatened with a loss of their eligibility if they do not cooperate with the investigators.

Clark was the initial witness Monday in a public Congressional probe of the NCAA, particularly the organization's enforcement procedures, which most likely will last all spring.

The hearings continued today with representatives of Mississippi State University and Michigan State University and Jack Fusak, a past NCAA president, scheduled to testify.

Almost as soon as the hearing got underway, the subcommittee split along political party lines with the Democrats, including chairman John Moss, D-Calif., and Rep. Jim Santini, D-Nev., attacking the NCAA, while Republicans, including Norman F. Lent, R-N. Y., and Marc L. Marks, R-Ohio, closely questioning Clark, now a subcommittee staff member.

Kentucky Returns Top Spot

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Returning to the No. 1 position in The Associated Press college basketball poll didn't have much effect on the Kentucky Wildcats, the team that resided there most of the season.

"It's nice," said Coach Joe Hall, "but it doesn't mean anything. We would just as soon not have it."

"More important is how we'll play in the tournament," Hall added.

He means the National Collegiate Athletic Association tournament that will settle college basketball's national championship. Kentucky, having wrapped up its 31st Southeastern Conference title, will open its postseason action in the Mideast Regional at Knoxville, Tenn., March 11.

The Wildcats settled their return to the top after a two-week absence by downing Georgia 78-67 Monday night for their 23rd victory in 25 games.

Kentucky received 39 first place votes and 1,044 points, jumping from second to replace defending national champion Marquette, which was upset by Notre Dame Sunday.

The Wildcats had fallen to third two weeks ago after losing to Louisiana State. Arkansas bolted to the top that time, but held it only one week, losing to Houston and opening the door for Marquette.

UCLA, a perennial power, moved into second place with 13 first-place votes and 964 points and Marquette dropped to third.

Rounding out the Top Ten in order were Arkansas, Kansas, DePaul, Notre Dame, New Mexico, Michigan State and North Carolina. DePaul was named on two ballots as the

No. 1 team.

"It's a great honor to be ranked No. 1," said Kentucky power forward Rick Robey. "But when it comes tournament time, you don't have much time to look at standings. Rankings don't mean much then because everybody there can play."

Pirates Swim In Eastern

Every team sets goals for itself at the start of a season, and the East Carolina swim team set a goal that they will have a chance to reach this week when they participate in the Eastern Intercollegiate Swimming and Diving Championships. The meet, to be held at the University of Pittsburgh starting Thursday, is the highlight of the season for the ECU swimmers. It is the one main event around which the season is structured.

East Carolina always seems to do well in the meet, though second-place finishes in 1976 and 1977 are the best to date. However, ECU coach Ray Scharf feels this could possibly be the year his team comes out on top.

"We are definitely capable of winning this thing," Scharf stated. "It will take really outstanding performances from our guys to win it. If we get the kind of performances we had against North Carolina, (a 61-52 ECU win, with 2 national qualifying marks set) there is a chance."

Host school Pittsburgh is the favorite in the three day affair. The Panthers won it last year, and are seeking to repeat the performance at home.

"Pitt should be the favorite," said Scharf. "They are a strong team, and will be at home. We have a good shot at first or second, and teams like Syracuse, Maryland and West Virginia will all be up there too. It should be a great event."

Coach Scharf went on to explain that in order for the Pirates to come out on top, several things would have to occur.

"We need to do as well or better than we did against Carolina," he said. "But we also need help from the other schools. It is going to take almost total domination from us in the freestyle, while other teams break up Pitt's strength in the off strokes. If we get some good finishes in the breaststroke, backstroke, butterfly and IM, possibly varsity records, we could carry this thing to the wire."

Scharf said that after a somewhat disappointing finish to the dual meet schedule, all the Pirates are healthy and ready to go.

"Everybody is well, for a change," the ECU coach noted. "We've been looking better in workouts, and have shown good spirit."

"If we get it going like we did against UNC," Scharf added, "our momentum will snowball and carry us through."

"I'm really looking forward to this meet," he continued. "I enjoy going to these things because they are fun, and especially because it gives us a chance to see how far we've come towards meeting our goals."

GCA Sets Record

Greenville Christian Academy racked up a school record number of points in romping over Calvary Academy 104-43 last night.

The Knights had five players in double figures, led by Steve Tyburski with 24. Tim Sutton scored 17, Melvin Wooten and Marshall Crumpler had 16 each, and Troy Hudson had 10.

In addition to the point record, Crumpler pulled down a record number of rebounds in the game.

Calvary was paced by Luke Waddell with 13 and David Harris with 10.

Babe Ruth Meeting Set

The Senior Babe Ruth League will hold an organizational meeting on Wednesday, March 1 in the Elm Street Gym at 8 p.m.

At this meeting, new officers will be elected and the dates for registration and tryouts will be disclosed. Those interested in the league, either players or coaches, are urged to attend.

Wake Downs ECU Netters

WINSTON-SALEM—East Carolina's tennis team managed to win just two singles matches yesterday and dropped a 7-2 decision to Wake Forest.

Pirates End Season Against Virginia Tech

East Carolina University's basketball team winds up its 1977-78 season Wednesday night at Blacksburg, Va., as the Pirates take on Virginia Tech.

The Gobblers bring an 18-8 record into the game, and some faint hopes for a National Invitational Tournament berth. However, the team lost its last two games, to Wake Forest and West Virginia, and that will take some of the luster off their tournament hopes.

For the Pirates, the game gives the Bucs one last chance at a tenth victory. The Pirates come in with a 9-16 record, after having lost to Mercer Saturday night in Macon, Ga.

Virginia Tech, which won its first eight games before bowing to Duke, 86-79, also has fallen before Virginia, South Carolina, N.C. State, and North Carolina. They did beat Virginia Commonwealth, however, 71-63, for one of their bigger wins of the year.

The Gobblers, averaging 85.3 points a game, have all five of their starters in double figures.

Ron Bell is the leading scorer for the Techmen, hitting 16.2 per game. Les Hanson adds 15.0 per contest, while both Tic Price and Wayne Robinson are averaging 12.5 per outing. Marshall Ashford rounds out the starters with an 11.0 average.

Robinson is the leading rebounder with 9.2 per game, while Hanson is pulling down 7.8 per contest.

Overall, however, Tech has been outbounded, 41.8 per game to 40.8. Their opponents are scoring 76.3 per contest.

East Carolina will be led by All-America candidate Oliver Mack, whose 33 points Saturday enabled him to crack the old season scoring record of 662 points. He now has 667, and needs only 33 more to reach 700 points, a goal he has set for himself.

Mack will be aided by Herb Gray and Herb Krusen, both also hitting in double figures. Gray is the team's leading rebounder, followed closely by Greg Cornelius.

caught up, and we went back down again," Walton said. "Our boys just wouldn't quit; they kept coming. They had something to prove from last week." Walton referred to the ECC championship game which the Chargers defeated the Hawks, also in overtime.

"One of the big things was that goaltending call," Murphrey said. He added that his team's defense loosened up a little too much in the second half.

Murphrey termed tonight's championship game "a toss-up. Washington's got the power, North Lenoir has the speed and the shooters. It should be a good matchup: two teams of different styles."

Girls' Game

In the opening game, Conley fell behind early, caught up and went ahead of the Lady Pam-Pack and then had to hold off a Washington rally for a 49-44 victory.

The Lady Pam Pack held a 15-14 lead at the end of the first quarter, but a second-period flurry by the Valkyries gave them the lead.

Conley outscored Washington

15-0 at one point in the second period, but the Valkyries' ballhandling got a little sloppy near the end of the first half and Washington was able to pull to 29-24 at intermission.

"We got into some foul trouble and had three substitute players in the second quarter," Conley coach Norma Respass said. "I guess the pressure just got to them," she said of the turnovers.

Glenda Green hit a pair of short shots late in the third quarter to stretch the Conley lead to 10, 39-29.

In the final period, the Lady Pam Pack cut the margin to five, but that was as close as they could come.

"Washington played a very aggressive game; a fine game, I thought," Respass said.

As for tonight's championship game, Respass said, "Williamston has an excellent ball team. It's going to be whoever wants it the most tomorrow night. Mine will be up for it."

The Valkyries were led by Annie Hardy with 15 points and Green with 10. Susan Campbell and Brenda Minns each scored 11 points for Washington.

Scatman Crothers Been Playing Jazz 50 Years

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — "I came here in '44 with the first pop band they had here," Scatman Crothers was saying. He sang a bit of trumpeter Dizzy Gillespie's pop classic, "Night in Tunisia."

He also mentioned he's written and recorded the title song of an NBC comedy pilot he'll soon tape — "Scatman," starring him — and said the tune is a Dixieland kind of thing.

He also said he composed a new old-fashioned 12-bar blues number, "Mean Dog Blues," which he's trying to get put in a new Jack Nicholson movie in which he plays a convict.

Crothers may be best-known now as Louie in NBC's "Chico and the Man," but he's been in jazz more than 50 years, singing, drumming and playing a four-string tenor guitar.

"The first paid gig?" he said, thinking a minute. "It was back home in Terre Haute, Indiana, back in 1925, '26, when I was going to high school and working in a speakeasy."

There was no straight salary involved, he said. "It was a feed-the-kitty deal. You know, a bowl up on the bandstand, put your money in. And it was good money for those times."

As they say, Scatman has been around. At the NBC works here, where he tapes "Chico," he often bumps into guys who've been around with him. Guys like trumpeter Snookie Young of the "Tonight" band.

"He was in my band back in the '30s in Dayton, Ohio," Crothers grinned. He said they teamed up again recently when he recorded his "Mean Dog Blues" for a new jazz album starring Young.

Crothers, who lives in nearby Van Nuys with Helen, his wife of nearly 41 years, has worked nightclubs ever since his start in Indiana.

But he didn't make the movie scene until 1949, he says, when friends who caught his act at the old Oasis club here recommended him for a part in a Dan Dailey musical, "Meet Me at the Fair."

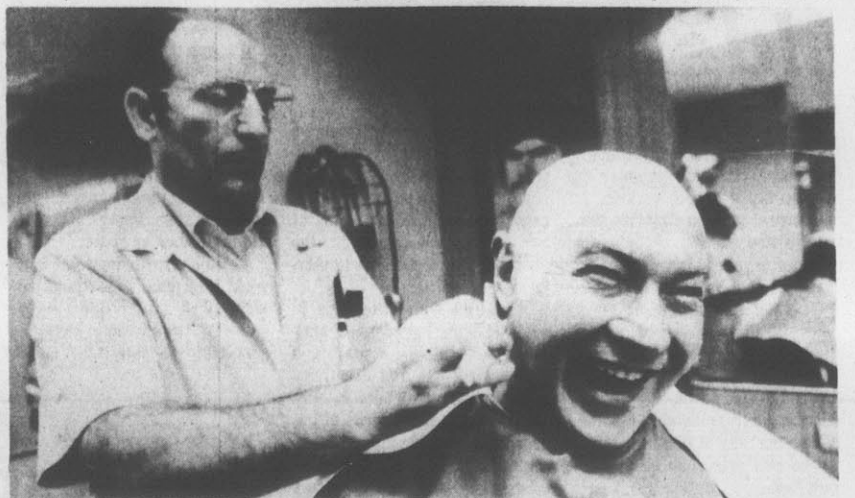

He's popped up in a few TV and film roles since. But oddly enough, it was a fellow musician, a retired jazz drummer he'd never met, to give him his biggest break in "Chico and the Man."

Said ex-drummer is James Komack, producer-creator of the show.

"I didn't know him," Crothers said. "I was in my lawyer's office one day, and Helen called, said they wanted me to come out and read a part for 'Chico and the Man.'"

"I was working clubs at night, and I said, 'What is that?' They said, 'Just come in and read.' So I did and they liked it. Simple as that."

Komack, he added, is producing the pilot of "Scatman."

KOJACK HE IS NOT — In the case of Reid Shelton, who portrays Daddy Warbucks in the Broadway show "Annie," a shave and a haircut are the same thing. But despite that, the whole pate-polishing operation by barber Joe Dispenseri runs more than two bits. Ah well, perhaps that's part of the price of portraying a millionaire. (AP Laserphoto)

There are times when even an expert declarer is faced with a pure guess. More often, however, he can place the cards almost exactly.

Because of the fact that he had a wealth of prime controls and good intermediates, North elected to value his hand at more than the 17 HCP it contained. Accordingly, he issued a slam invitation by making a quantitative jump to four no trump. Note that this was the only intelligent slam suggestion North could make despite his unbalanced hand—his partner had denied a decent four-card major when he failed to bid it at his first turn, and if a 4-4 diamond fit existed, it still could be uncovered later in the auction. Since South was at the top of his range with only three-card diamond support, he obliged by bidding the slam in no trump.

West led the top of his club sequence and declarer won the ace in dummy. A diamond finesse lost to the king, and the nine of clubs return was won by the king as a spade was discarded from the table. Before committing himself to the spade finesse for his contract, declarer set out to learn what he could about the distribution.

Behind-The-Screen TV Disruptions

NEW YORK (AP) — A real drama in NBC's mini-series "Loose Change" has unfolded behind the screen as a technical boo-boo and a censorship dispute disrupted viewing across the nation.

Monday night, the eastern two-thirds of the nation saw almost 17 minutes of the wrong episode of the three-part serial-ization of Sara Davidson's novel about three women growing up in the 1960s.

James Bess, operations supervisor for NBC, said a technician who he declined to identify took the wrong episode out of a locker.

Bess said the network was deluged with calls immediately, but by the time the correct reels were located and set up, 16 minutes and 36 seconds had elapsed. The proper episode was shown in its entirety, Bess said.

In Utah, Idaho and Montana, viewers missed 3 minutes and 45 seconds of the show Sunday night when KUTV, the feeder station in Salt Lake City, cut out spicy portions of the program, in deference to Utah's Mormon population.

LaMar Smith, KUTV program director, said: "We notified all stations involved that the cuttings were going to be. All the stations agreed . . ."

Smith said one scene that was edited depicted a college professor removing his pants in class while giving a lecture on author D.H. Lawrence. KUTV took out closeups of him unzipping his pants.

"It was better production and viewers got the same story," Smith said.

Despite Smith's contention that all stations agreed to the cut, some affiliates were angered by it.

"I don't think other NBC affiliates should be dictated to by feed stations in their selection and choice of what should or should not be edited out of NBC television programs," said Bob Krueger, president and general manager of KTVB in Boise, Idaho.

He said he received more telephone calls complaining about the cut than he had received at any other times in his 22 years in broadcasting.

"I have not received one phone call supporting the action of the Salt Lake City television station," Krueger said.

Zoo Curator Leaving Job

ASHEBORO, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina Zoo, whose director announced earlier this month he was resigning, is losing another high-level executive to a larger operation.

Joseph Davis, the general curator of animals, said Monday he will take a similar position with the Chicago Zoological Park at Brookfield, Ill. He leaves North Carolina May 1.

Davis said he had already decided to resign in December, well before zoo director Bill Hoff made it known that he, too, would be leaving. Hoff is already gone, saying he wanted to get back to managing a larger zoo.

Davis' resignation leaves the zoo with only one of its three top officials remaining. He is Andy Lueker, former general manager and now acting director.

Davis said his decision to leave was made before he knew Hoff planned to resign.

"My resignation has absolutely nothing to do with what Bill did," he said. "but I admit it's not the best of all possible times for me to be leaving."

Davis said his reason for leaving was "some differences with zoo policies and the approach being taken here to exhibit design, problems that existed at the time I made my personal decision to leave back in December."

He declined to answer questions about the differences between him and habitat designers. As planned, the zoo would be the world's first completely natural habitat zoo with all animals separated from the public.

by natural barriers. Davis said his salary at the Brookfield zoo would be higher than the $19,000 he receives now. He has been with the North Carolina zoo more than three years, coming here from the Bronx zoo where he was curator for 16 years.

Identifying 'Gifted' Can Be Difficult

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Your 2-year-old daughter is constantly asking questions. Is his normal curiosity or the sign of a gifted child?

Your 4-year-old son likes to look through books. Is he merely typical for his age or is he showing indications of something more?

Almost all parents like to think their children are unusually talented or bright in some area, but identifying the truly gifted youngster can be a difficult task.

According to the Office of Gifted and Talented in the U.S. Office of Education, gifted and talented children are capable of high performance; they have demonstrated ability or achievement in one or more of a number of areas, including general intellect, creative thinking, visual and performing arts or leadership.

The office estimates that 3 to 5 percent of the school-age population — two to five million children — could be considered gifted or talented. How can you tell if your child is one of the few?

Writing in a recent issue of "American Education," Dorothy A. Sisk, director of the Of-ice of Gifted and Talented, noted that the intellectually gifted child — the one who begins reading early, for example, and rapidly goes through all his or her school books — is the easiest type to spot, particularly in a school setting.

"Children with giftedness in say, specific academic aptitude, leadership, visual and performing arts and creativity may be high achievers in only one subject, with records of underachievement in other areas," said Dr. Sisk.

Dr. Sisk said there are several characteristics that point to a gifted child. Among them:

- Early use of advanced vocabulary. A normal 2-year-old, for example, might say: "There's a doggie." The gifted 2-year-old might expand the sentence, including more than one idea. For example: "There's a brown doggie in our backyard sniffing the flowers."
- Keen observation and curiosity. Watch for the child who pursues a specific line of questioning, seeking more and more information.
- Retention of a variety of information. Gifted children often amaze parents and teachers by recalling details of past experiences.

—Periods of intense concentration. A 1-year-old gifted child, for example, might sit for five minutes or more listening to a story being read to an older brother or sister.

—Ability to understand complex concepts and think abstractly.

—A broad and changing spectrum of interests. Gifted children often show an intense interest in one subject for a period of time, then turn, equally intensely, to a totally unrelated subject.

—Strong critical thinking skills and self-criticism. Gifted children evaluate themselves and others, but they are particularly critical of themselves. If you believe your child is gifted, you should consult with teachers and other school personnel or with authorities at the local college or university. Further information is available from the Office of Gifted and Talented, U.S. Office of Education, Donohoe Building, 400 6th St. S.W., Room 3835, Washington, D.C., 20202.

Big Response To Plans For Snaring Smugglers

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — States with high cigarette taxes are so eager to catch smoke smugglers that North Carolina's offer to help catch them has drawn more response than the single agent assigned to the job can handle.

"It was our intention to use one man, but based on this response, he's going to have to have some help, at least temporarily," said J. Phil Carlton, secretary of crime control.

A.L. Felton, assistant director of the alcohol law enforcement section, had been assigned to the job, which Carlton said would include finding out what the other states needed, determining what North Carolina could provide and then matching the two.

"His initial job is to meet with them, to see what they need, keeping in mind that we don't know of any North Carolina laws being broken, making the resources of our law enforcement community available to them," Carlton said.

He said a session was held Monday with Florida officials. Another is scheduled today with Pennsylvania officials and New York and Massachusetts officials are also scheduled to come in for visits.

North Carolina, Virginia and Kentucky all have cigarette taxes of between 2 and 3 cents per pack. Smugglers buy in bulk in those states and then sell the smokes at a profit but still below other retail prices in states like Pennsylvania, which has an 18-cent tax.

High tax states estimate they lose an estimated $400 million a year in lost taxes, and officials in several states have been critical of North Carolina for not helping solve the problem.

Gov. Jim Hunt announced the new effort last week.

But Carlton said Monday he was unhappy with an advertising campaign Pennsylvania has begun offering rewards to North Carolinians for tips on smuggling operations.

He said he phoned Pennsylvania revenue secretary Mill Lupus to complain.

"I said we'd prefer that he not run these ads because we're starting into this with professional law enforcement personnel," Carlton said. "That's a dangerous thing for amateurs to get involved in. Somebody could get killed that way. He told me that some already had."

Authentic English Stoneware. Free. From BB&T.

English Stoneware is something special. Made the way it's been made for over 150 years. By hand. By craftsmen.

Potters take the clay from their native England and fashion it into distinctive shapes. Each piece is individually dipped in a glaze. Then hand decorated by a talented artist.

All this care does make an elegant difference, recognizable in subtle variations from piece to piece.

By saving at Branch Banking and Trust Company, you can get your first three-piece place setting free.

That's a hand-crafted cup, saucer and dinner plate free, just for depositing $25 or more, in a new or existing BB&T Regular Savings Account at any BB&T office.

12 piece snack set for four.

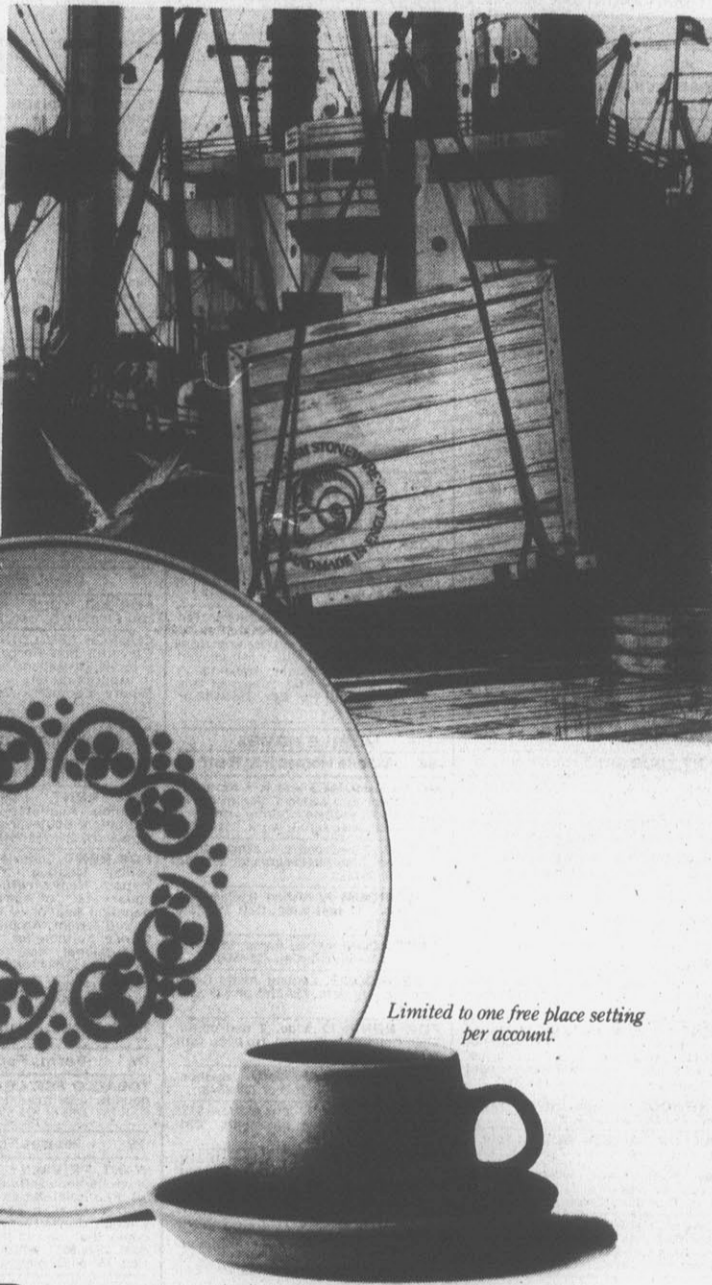

Each snack set consists of a coffee mug, soup/cereal bowl and a salad/luncheon plate. It's ideal for snacks, breakfasts and light lunches.

When you deposit $500.00 in a new or existing BB&T Savings Account, you may purchase this twelve-piece snack set for four for only $31.75.

26 piece service for four.

Entertain the idea of having enough Stoneware for a dinner party this evening: four dinner plates, four cups, four saucers, four bread and butter plates, four soup/cereal bowls, a 1.5 quart casserole dish with lid, an oval platter, a sugar bowl with lid, and a cream pitcher.

They can all be yours for only $65.00. Simply deposit $1,000 in a new or existing BB&T Savings Account. And entertain.

Beauty doesn't have to be fragile.

Authentic English Stoneware is as practical as it is pretty. You can do things with this Stoneware that you'd never think possible.

You can use it in a regular or microwave oven. You can freeze in it. You can put it in the dishwasher. And yet, it will look like new after years of this kind of hard use.

This Stoneware is so strong that the supplier gives a limited two-year warranty. Which you can pick up at any BB&T office.

Start your collection today.

Stop by any BB&T office today and get your first place setting of Authentic English Stoneware free with a deposit of $25 or more in a new or existing savings account. And while you're at the bank, pick up a complimentary copy of our fully-detailed brochure.

Authentic English Stoneware is something nice to have. And BB&T is offering you a nice way to get it.

Almost a lost art.

This Stoneware had its origin in Belper, England, which is near the origin of another famous story. That of Robin Hood, Sherwood Forest and Nottingham are just a short distance away.

Here, craftsmen have passed the secrets and skills of their art from father to son to grandson. Establishing a tradition of unsurpassed hand-craftsmanship.

Each piece of Authentic English Stoneware is hand-formed by craftsmen, glazed by hand, and the decorations are painted on by skillful artists.

The result is beautiful in an honest, natural way.
