UMW Members Divided, Uncertain On Contract

By EVANS WITT Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Striking miners, angry over proposed increases in medical bills and curbs on wildcat strikes but worried about the sacrifices of their continuing work stoppage, are divided and uncertain over whether to ratify a proposed contract, interviews with more than 100 local union leaders show.

'A majority don't think much of it. But it will be mighty close,' said Carl Willey, of Craigs, W.Va., president of Local 1254 of the United Mine Workers union.
As rank-and-file balloting begins on the tentative settlement of the 88-day coal strike, Wiley's words reflect the sentiment of many miners.

In Associated Press telephone interviews with 106 leaders of union locals across the country, 24 said their members would vote for the contract while 35 forecast 'no' votes.
But 47 local presidents said Thursday either that it was too early to tell which way this weekend's vote will go or that they did not want to predict the outcome.

The UMW leadership, led by President Arnold Miller, has not yet convinced a majority of the local leaders to back the pact, the interviews found.
Twenty-eight leaders said they personally would vote yes, but 40 said they would vote to reject the pact. Thirty-eight either refused to say or were undecided.
Many union locals held meetings Thursday to discuss the pact and the voting sessions, most of which are scheduled Saturday or Sunday.
A few locals are voting today, and one small local covering parts of Oklahoma and Arkansas voted 85-34 against the contract Thursday night.
Some of Thursday's meetings were not all peaceful.
'There were 162 men there. We went through three pages and everyone got up and walked out. We're definitely going to turn it down,' said William Stumbo of UMW Local 8215 in Ragland, W.Va.
'We had a disruption at our meeting today,' said Uniontown, Pa., local President Thomas Cunningham. 'Some walked out, but the majority stayed. There was a lot of screaming and hollering over

U.S. Trade Deficit High

By MICHAEL DOAN Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's trade deficit for January was $2.4 billion, continuing at a rate that led to a record $26.6-billion deficit last year, the Commerce Department reported today.

weather at U.S. ports. However, the January decline also was attributed to an unusually strong trading month in December, when shipments increased after settlement of a dock strike.
President Carter and other administration officials say they expect the trade deficit to decline this year because of fewer oil imports and improvement in the economies of purchasing countries.
Petroleum imports increased 4 percent from $3.1 billion to $3.2 billion, but almost all other imports and exports were down for the month.
Chemicals, machinery and transportation equipment showed sharp declines of more than 10 percent, the department said. However, breakdowns of other individual products were not available.

Korean Revealing 'Odious' Details

By JIM ADAMS Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Tongsun Park is reportedly giving the House ethics committee what two members call seamy, odious and ugly details on using commissions from U.S. rice deals in an alleged attempt to buy congressional influence for South Korea.
'We covered the most odious episode in the story today,' Rep. Bruce Caputo, R-N.Y., said after Thursday's closed-door questioning of Park.
'It was a conspiracy of American businessmen, congressmen and Koreans to make blatantly improper payments over a sustained period of time with U.S. taxpayers' money,' Caputo said.

only U.S. rice buyer and used some of that money to try to buy influence in Congress.
Park denies the influence-buying charge and says he contributed to more than two dozen congressmen because they were his friends and because he hoped to further his rice business.
Former Rep. Richard P. Hanna, D-Calif., goes on trial next month on charges of helping convince the South Korean government to make Park his rice dealer and of conspiring with Park to try to buy influence in Congress.
Former Director Kim Hyung Wook of the South Korean Central Intelligence Agency has testified he helped make Park Seoul's rice dealer after Hanna promised some of the commission money would be spread among other congressmen 'to help Korea's cause.'

Monday Meet At ECU

The East Carolina University Board of Trustees is scheduled to meet here Monday afternoon with the search committee which has been selecting candidates to be the next chancellor of the university.
Dr. Leo Jenkins, who has been at ECU for 30 years — 18 of them as president and chancellor — will retire July 1. The search committee began work last year seeking a candidate to replace Jenkins.
The committee is expected to make its recommendations to the ECU trustees at the Monday session. The meeting is scheduled for 3 p.m. at the Willis Building.
Troy Pate, chairman of the Board of Trustees and chairman of the search committee, said the ECU board will submit two names to University of North Carolina president William Friday for consideration. Friday, in turn, will recommend one of the nominees to the UNC Board of Governors for appointment as chancellor.
Pate said last week that the search committee was "down below six" possible candidates.

Agreement On Rhodesia Rule Finally Signed

By LARRY HEINZERLING Associated Press Writer
SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Prime Minister Ian Smith and three black leaders signed an agreement today to pave the way for the transformation of white-ruled Rhodesia to black Zimbabwe by Dec. 31.
The agreement laying down the guidelines for the transition to black majority rule in the next 10 months was signed at the former British governor's residence, now a government training center.
Bishop Abel Muzorewa, who claims the largest political following among the black leaders, wore a cloth cap and a flowing blue and white West African gown over his clerical attire. The other two, the Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole and Chief Jeremiah Chirau, wore business suits, and so did Smith.
After the signing, Smith beamed and shook hands with each of the black leaders. Backs were slapped, and some of the black leaders' aides raised clenched fists in black power salutes.

Elsewhere, there was a general atmosphere of gloom in Salisbury. The agreement has been repudiated by Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe, the leaders of the guerrillas fighting the white regime for the past 5 1/2 years, and they vow to keep up their war. There is also widespread belief that Britain, the legal colonial authority, and the United States will not recognize the settlement.
However, Muzorewa told a news conference the settlement would dissuade guerrillas from continuing the war. And Sithole, who founded one of the two guerrilla movements, said "the overwhelming majority" of the estimated 40,000 black fighters will back the agreement.
Meanwhile, Nkomo flew from his headquarters in Lusaka, Zambia, to Maputo, Mozambique, to meet with Mugabe. Sources in Lusaka said they would plan their new strategy in response to the signing of the agreement.

2ND TRUCK NOT USED

A Greenville Utilities employee suffered a serious heart attack while at work and walked into the City Rescue Building for help last week. He was taken to the hospital on a pickup truck. Why weren't there enough rescue men on duty to man the second rescue truck. I understand the first one was out on another call. U. G.

Hotline talked with Fire and Rescue Division Chief Ray Smith and with Assistant Chief for Rescue Tony Brannon, who said the incident occurred Friday, Feb. 24.

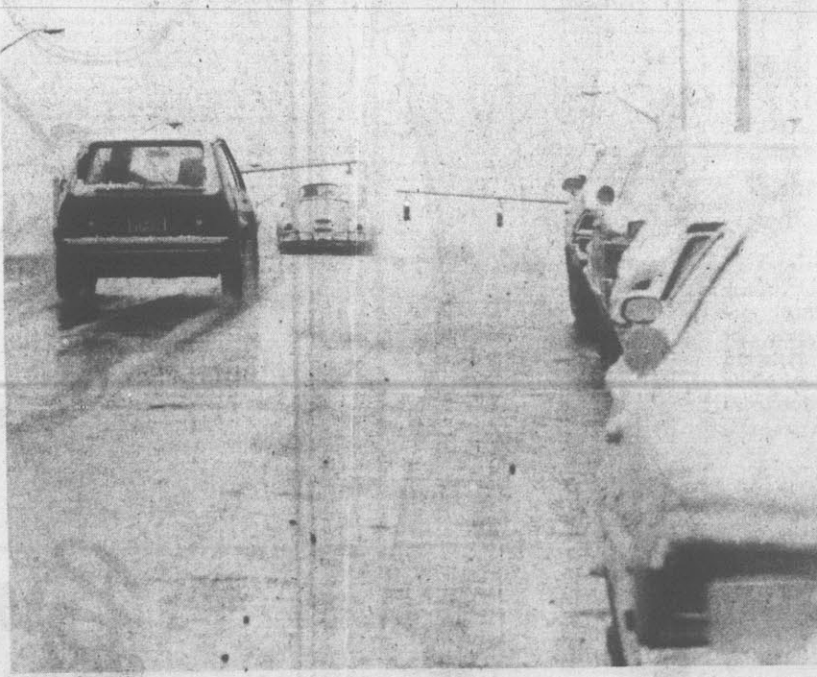

They said three rescue men, in addition to Brannon, would normally have been working that day. However, one man was out of work because of illness and there were no volunteer rescue squad members at the station at the time.

Brannon, who carried the heart patient to the hospital on a pickup truck, as you said, said that the two other rescue men were responding to another emergency call, as you also stated. The man was taken to the hospital in the interest of time. State law requires that an attendant be in the back of a rescue truck with the patient, while another drives, and that the attendant be certified as an Emergency Medical Technician, while the driver must be either an BMT or a qualified ambulance attendant.

In other words, Brannon would have been violating state law and could have risked the continued service of the Greenville Rescue Squad had he used the second rescue truck in an unauthorized manner. He said he did what he could to make the best of a bad situation.

The two officers acknowledged that manpower is a problem at times, with the Squad's responding to an ever-increasing number of calls. With three paid men assigned to each of the three regular shifts, and another scheduled on a rotating basis — and taking into account sickness and vacation schedules — occasionally there are times when there are not enough paid personnel on duty to properly staff the second rescue truck, unless there happens to be a certified EMT volunteer present, Brannon pointed out.

City Manager James Caldwell confirmed the fact that the Squad has requested additional personnel and said the hiring of two additional paid men is on the City Council agenda for Mar. 9.

Meeting Monday

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners will meet Monday at 10 a.m. in the Pitt County Court House.

Major items on the agenda include: consideration of acceptance of a grant offer from the Division of Health Services for Clean Water Bond funds; recommendations for approval of Section I of Stony Brook Subdivision; consideration of a resolution of support requested by Eastern Carolina Emergency Medical Services Systems, Inc. a grant for EMS equipment; and consideration of a request for a resolution designating the Town of Grimesland as lead agency for planning and development of a plan for a municipal sewage collection and treatment facility.
Also included on the agenda is the consideration of the appointment of members of the hospital board of trustees and members of the Sheppard Memorial Library board.

Commissioners will also consider appropriations to enable the county to close out the hospital construction contract and the appointment of a building committee to implement the construction of an additional bed tower at the medical facility.

We Had Snow, But No Real Problems In Area

By DEBBIE JACKSON Reflector Staff Writer

Mother Nature celebrated today as the 51st anniversary of the biggest snow of the century by dumping snow and rain on most sections of the state.

On March 2, 1927, the Pitt County storm was described as "one of the worst blizzards since back in the 1890s." Snow depth reached over a foot that day.

This morning, early rain had cleared the local streets of most of the snow that had accumulated during the night. Light snow began falling in the area before midnight.

Mayo Allen said that the Public Works Department did not have to sand the streets this morning, because rain had cleared most of the snow and ice.

"We're taking every precaution we can, though. There were no problems this morning, but if it turns any colder, there could be."

He said that due to concern over a drop in temperatures, the Public Works crews will probably "have sand all loaded up tonight, just in case."

"We'll do what we can," said Allen.

Sgt. Glenn Swanson of the North Carolina Highway Patrol said that road conditions to the north and west of Greenville are worse than in Pitt County.

Conditions south of here are somewhat better. "From Raleigh west, all main roads are passable with caution. Snow chains should be used on the secondary roads."

In the higher elevations, around Greensboro, he noted that either snow tires or chains should be used.

South of here, roads are passable with caution. Some may require chains due to slush that is remaining on the roads.

He added that in the Boone area, snow tires and chains must be utilized on all roads.

In the east, in the Wilmington area, road conditions are reported fairly good with rain falling.

Swanson said that the Patrol Office could not make any road condition projections for the weekend. "If it gets warm, we'll be fine."

He added that persons traveling today should check "periodically to see how the roads are."

The bad driving conditions could present a problem to many East Carolina University students who are leaving town today. According to university officials, spring break officially begins March 5, but the majority of the students will be leaving campus today.

County and city schools were open today.

Glenn Cox of the Greenville City Schools said that "when you look at the temperature and the weather reports, we're O.K. as long as it doesn't drop."

He added that there were "no problems whatsoever this morning" in getting the children to school.

"The only bad spots that I saw when I was out at 5 o'clock this morning were on bridges. And that wouldn't take much traffic to clear up."

Ott Alford, Pitt County School Superintendent, reported that since all roads in the county were in safe condition in early morning hours, all schools in the county remained open.

"We'll continue to keep a close look at the weather to see what happens," Alford said. "And if it begins to freeze or there's a report of a change for the worse in the weather, we'll make a decision and announce that at the proper time."

Alford added that there was a little slush on some roads at (Continued on page 6)

'Abby' Makes The CB Scene

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Thought you'd like to know the following: My CB buff neighbors have quite unusual handles. She is "Dear Abby," and her husband is "Abby Grabber." How does that grab ya?

MYRTLE CREEK, ORE.

DEAR MYRTLE: Beautiful. It made my day.

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to REALIST who's tired of hearing women gripe about unpleasant surprises after marriage. She wonders why these things aren't noticed before marriage.

How on earth is a woman supposed to know how many showers a guy takes before she marries him? It's not your everyday topic of conversation while going together.

No way could I have known that the guy I married would snore, thrash around and grind his teeth in his sleep, or that his beer intake would triple and his cigarette smoking double.

How could I know beforehand what kind of father he'd make—and for that matter, how could HE know a lot of things about ME before we got married?

When we were going together he was into sports. Now he finds them "too strenuous." He used to love the beach. Now it's "too crowded." He used to like to dance. Now it's "silly." And socializing is "too boring." I wonder why men "slow down" so much earlier than women?

NOT PERFECT EITHER

DEAR NOT PERFECT: Maybe when there's a comfortable home to come to, a man finds fewer reasons for leaving it. But apropos "surprises" after marriage: While going together, both men and women are inclined to be on their "best behavior." However, characteristics as basic as violent tempers, physical uncleanness and "me-first" attitudes rarely go undetected even in the courting stage.

DEAR ABBY: I've been going with Kurt for a year. He's 30 and has never been married. I'm 29, divorced, with a child who stays with my mother most of the time.

Maybe I'm old-fashioned, but I don't believe in living together before marriage, so when Kurt asked if he could move in with me, I said no. (He was having financial problems.)

Next thing I knew, Kurt told me he was sharing an apartment with a guy. He didn't say where, but he gave me the phone number.

I called him up and a girl answered! He explained that he's living with her only "temporarily." He says she is just a friend.

I was furious and gave him an ultimatum—move out of her apartment and into mine immediately, or forget me completely. He said, "I'll think about it." Does this sound like he loves me and intends to marry me?

I don't want to lose him, but I can't let him live with another girl, even though he claims she's only a friend. Hurry your answer.

DEAR MESS: Kurt sounds like a loser to me. If you're wise you will forget him.

CHILI CHUTNEY
You'll recognize the chili-carne flavor!

Two 29-ounce cans fruit cocktail, drained
1 large onion, coarsely grated
1 cup sugar
1 cup cider vinegar
One 1 1/2-ounce envelope season mix for chili
1/2 cup raisins

In a large saucepot stir together all the ingredients and bring to a boil. (Add the seasoning mix just as it comes from the envelope.) Let bubble gently, stirring occasionally during the first part of the cooking period and often toward the end, until thick — about 1 hour; it will thicken more after it cools. Store in the refrigerator. Makes 1 1/4 quarts.

Meeting Set On Usage Of Wood

Two organizations are teaming up March 15 to sponsor an area meeting for people interested in the use of wood in home construction.

The day-long meeting, which will be held at the Ramada Inn, will be sponsored by the N. C. Home Builders Association and the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service.

Mrs. Sue B. May, home economics extension agent, said the purpose of the meeting is to offer builders, architects and other interested persons practical information on the use of wood in home construction.

Mrs. May estimated that the information could save builders from $150 to $500 in the construction of an average house; it could also result in the wood lasting longer and being more satisfactory to the homeowner.

The meeting is one of nine such meetings planned across North Carolina this month. Speakers will come from the School of Forest Resources at N. C. State University, the Southern Forest Products Association, American Plywood Association and National Particleboard Association.

Persons interested in attending the meeting should contact the Pitt County Extension office or the local chapter of the N. C. Home Builders Association.

'The Black Pearl' Role Was Dream Come True

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

The impossible dream is still possible and does come true sometimes — as in the case of 20-year old Mario Custodio.

During a brief Greenville stop-over Friday afternoon on a nationwide publicity tour for The Black Pearl, in which Custodio stars, the young American-Puerto Rican actor explained how for him reality is the stuff of which dreams are made.

And he told his story with a freshness, an eagerness that belies the fact he is faced day after day retelling essentially the same story.

"It started when I was 17," Custodio said. "I was still in high school bagging groceries at Gristede's on the 65th Street and Madison Avenue.

"One day this man, Saul Swimmer, came in and asked me if I'd like to be in a movie. I said 'Sure, why not?' Pretty soon I was given a screen test, then another, then a third.

"Then," he continued, "one Monday there was a long distance call for me from Spain, wanting to know if I could work. I got the first flight out of New York."

Custodio was one of five young men selected for roles in The Black Pearl. Custodio was chosen for the main role, that of Ramon. The others are cast as his young friends.

But making a dream come true more often than not requires dedication and hard work, and so it was with Custodio. The role of Ramon calls for considerable physical stamina as well as acting ability, as Custodio discovered when he arrived in Spain for on-location filming.

"Owen Lee, who is with the Jacques Cousteau expedition, put us through intensive underwater training for three months so that we'd be able to do anything required in the film, to handle all kinds of equipment. Not only that, but we had to run three miles a day," Custodio related.

For Custodio the rigid training proved no real hardship. Though small in stature, five seven at 129 pounds, in high school and with "my friends in the Bronx, I stayed active playing basketball. In fact," he smiled, "that's one of the things I miss most on this tour, a chance to get in a gym and play basketball."

Since the boys chosen for the film roles were unknowns, they also had acting classes every day.

"What really excited me at first and still does," Custodio stressed, "was the chance to travel, to see new places, new people. Until that phone call, I'd never been out of New York, and suddenly there I was traveling in Spain, Malta, Italy. The Mediterranean is really a great area."

The son of Puerto Rican born parents, he is bi-lingual. "I found in Spain that the Spanish language is a little different, more formal, but that was no real problem."

Three years have passed since the initial excitement of someone casually asking if he wanted to be in movies and the finished product, a movie now being distributed to theaters all across America.

Among his experiences, Custodio speaks with fondness of the help veteran Gilbert Roland gave him. "He's a remarkable person, an actor who's been around since the days of silent movies, and he's really super about helping young people out."

Before the opportunity to become a film performer came unexpectedly, Custodio had planned to go to college to study Criminology. "This chance to be in movies has not inhibited my plans to eventually go on to college," he remarked, "but I'm glad now this happened. I can see that getting out, meeting people, doing things, traveling is important too. I really believe most young people would do well to get about some instead of going directly from high school to college."

He admitted he has the acting bug — and would like to try a musical or perhaps a movie with a romantic interest. He has just signed a contract that calls for the option of five films. "Fortunately, it's not one of those inclusive contracts, it's flexible, and I'm glad of that."

And above all, he emphasizes his roots are still in the Bronx. "That's where my parents, my wonderful sister, Nilda, who's now married, and my good friends are. They're all happy for me. The only thing that's changed is that now I'm able to treat my friends more often when we go out. And that I like."

Inching Near An Energy Crisis

That the coal strike is having serious effects in North Carolina is shown by the fact that Carolina Power & Light and Duke Power Co. reduced voltage by five percent to conserve coal.

The voltage reduction had no major effect as far as electrical customers are concerned but it does indicate the seriousness of the situation and brings home the fact that it could get worse.

At the same time Gov. Hunt expressed some pessimism over the possibility of United Mine Workers approving a proposed contract.

The governor also expressed concern that the utilities could run out of coal before the president could act if the miners don't go back to work.

Gov. Hunt said he was preparing for the worst and indicated he did not feel the public was aware of the seriousness of the situation. The governor said he would not be surprised to see a real crisis within ten days.

North Carolina, and other states could be back into the emergency situation which saw industries closing and shorter hours for business firms soon, just as we faced last year.

It is a stark and undesirable possibility, but one we may as well be prepared for unless something happens quickly to improve the coal outlook.

Combatting Infant Mortality Rate

One of North Carolina's medical problems is the infant mortality rate.

The Department of Human Resources has awarded $180,000 to Pitt Memorial Hospital and the ECU medical school for a 29-county perinatal program.

Some $40,000 of this budget is to be used for a special vehicle to transport high risk mothers and infants to the 33-bed neonatal center under construction at Pitt Memorial.

The fully equipped unit will provide care for mothers and babies while they are enroute to the hospital.

The unit could be vital to the health—or even the life—of the patients it will soon be serving.

THIS AFTERNOON HEW's Higher Ed Game

By BILL NOBLITT
CHAPEL HILL—The case of the federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare in continuing desegregation rulings involving the University of North Carolina gets curiously and curiously.

Whenever it is thought some problem has been solved, another is introduced.

Top university officials in candid, private moments confess frustration and the feeling that nothing short of a court challenge to the bureaucrats will resolve the dilemma—one way or another.

State officials and representatives of HEW Secretary Joseph Califano can't even agree on what they disagree on.

At first it was student racial balance and quotas. When that was worked out, the plan was rejected because of program unbalance at campuses within the system.

The other day a team of federal experts flew into town in place of the ailing David Tadel, director of the Office for Civil Rights, to launch a new round of talks.

Employment Goals
After four hours, University President William C. Friday said glumly, "the conversations led to no conclusion... we spent our time reviewing in great detail program duplication and employment goals."

Employment goals? Since when did that subject become an issue? Well, confessed the federal representatives, it's new.

The process leaves university leaders shaking their heads over the game of cat and mouse. Friday says openly that the whole thing comes down to one central question: who is going to make the educational and political decisions in running the university system—the state's legislature and board of governors of the university, or federal bureaucrats.

"That is an artificial way to describe it. All we are trying to do is get a better understanding of what the state is doing... and we are trying to get the state to understand what we want."

responds Arlehe Mendelsohn who was the lead person at the recent meeting. She is a lawyer in the Civil Rights Division in Washington.

But isn't that approach somewhat akin to saying, "Look... we don't like the way you're doing things. Now, we aren't going to say exactly what it is we don't like, and we certainly aren't going to tell you how to fix it, but you come up with some plans and we will tell you whether that is all right?"

"No. The criteria has been set out in broad schemes with specifics in which actions can be proposed by state educators who are in decision-making positions," says Ms. Mendelsohn.

What does that mean? That the feds are not trying to run the system, just to see that it is run the way they want it run, apparently. Ms. Mendelsohn added this: "We still have to pursue other areas... other areas exist to be further addressed."

Dictating
Her agency is not trying to dictate university operations, but achieve desegregation, Ms. Mendelsohn said: "I think we are leaving the determinations of what the state system would like to do up to the educators... We hope they will come forward with suggestions."

University spokesmen complain that whenever they do come up with suggestions they are either rejected, or the subject is changed and the cat-and-mouse game goes on.

Federal officials have said they will initiate cutting some $88 million in federal funds now received by the university unless an acceptable plan is produced.

There is growing sentiment in the university system, in the governor's offices, and in the General Assembly to draw the line for a showdown over the running conflict.

Jordan a Marked Man

WASHINGTON — I've tried to avoid it, but I don't seem to have much choice. I'm going to do a think-piece on Hamilton Jordan. Last week the White House ordered its mimeograph machines put on a war footing and issued a 33-page White Paper concerning a subject of urgent national interest: "Whether Ham Jordan, while eating a steak at a singles' bar called Sarsfield's, did or did not spit a part of his Amaretto topped with whipped cream at a lady sitting next to him at the bar."

The unidentified woman said he did. The White House, after interviewing the bartenders and witnesses, concluded he didn't.

I am inclined to believe Ham Jordan and will continue to until the Washington Post gossip columnist who printed the item produces the smoking pistol, which in this case would be the lady's Amaretto-stained blouse.

But the question isn't whether Ham did or did not spit his drink as much as what is behind it? The fact of the matter is that there is now a "press contract" out on Hamilton Jordan, and he is a marked man in Washington.

Somewhere out there at this moment is a woman, lady or girl who is prepared to show Ham Jordan he isn't any better than she is, and "he may be the second most important person in the Administration, but by gosh he's just another guy trying to pick her up in a bar etc. etc. etc."

Ham may be sowing his wild oats in Washington, but he isn't any different from most guys of his age who sow oats with one exception. He now has a REPUTATION and someone is out to cut him down to size. He's now in a class with Muhammad Ali, Joe Namath, Marlon Brando and many other personalities who can no longer go into a bar for a steak without some girl challenging him to spit an Amaretto on her blouse.

If there is anyone to blame for Ham's position it's President Carter. By refusing to let his people drink liquor and whipped cream in the White House the President is driving them out into the streets, where they are forced to take abuse and whatever else they dish out at a singles' hangout on Friday night.

ART BUCHWALD

Do you think Ham wants to go to Sarsfield's to relax and unwind? Do you think it's fun for him to fight through the women to get to a bar stool for a shot? Do you believe, for one second, that if Ham could get a decent drink in the White House from a friendly bartender he would put up with all the gaff that goes with trying to get a bite in a joint reeking with spilled Amaretto drinks? The answer is obviously "no."

If Ham Jordan was a cheating kind of person, he could tie a liquor bottle on a string outside his White House window as Ray Milland did in "The Lost Weekend," and pull it up every time he wanted a slug. But as Ham told Jody Powell, "I could do it but it would be wrong."

So what have you got? An assistant to the President of the United States who has been fingered by the gossip columnists. Since he has been recently separated from his wife, he is a marked man by every woman who goes to a singles' bar looking how to get even with a guy who won't pick her up. Bring on the photographers and you've got the greatest no-win situation since Norman Mailer took a poke at Gore Vidal.

The real problem is that the aide who sits next to the Oval Office is supposed to be taken seriously. If the aide calls up a union official and says, "I'm speaking for the President. He wants you to start (Continued on page 5)

Farmer Price 'High'

By BRIAN B. KING
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — If protesting farmers were granted all their demands, consumer food prices would jump 20 percent in three months, Agriculture Department economists say.

The economists spoke before the Senate Agriculture Committee Thursday.

Four private research groups also told the panel that meeting the demands would hurt U.S. agricultural exports, reduce consumers' buying power, increase inflation and unemployment, send land prices soaring and weaken the housing industry.

Besides creating severe enforcement problems, said chief USDA economist Howard W. Hjort, meeting the demands would generate a "substantial shock to export markets, domestic livestock and grain production, food prices and land values and would slow the economy."

However, the negative findings were contested by Gregg Suhler, of Springfield, Colo., home state of the American Agriculture movement, the leading farmers' group.

Suhler and other farmers' groups have been lobbying Congress since mid-January to pass laws mandating higher prices for farm products.

If full parity were enacted, a USDA study said, net farm income would improve dramatically from $20.4 billion in 1977 to $23.9 billion this year and to $41.2 billion in 1979.

By 1982, net farm income would be $47 billion a year, surpassing the best year so far, 1973, when farmers netted $29.9 billion, the study said.

Over the last month, the USDA has examined the demands that embrace more than 100 commodities.

The private studies considered only a handful of major products and the main propos-

March 3, 1938
The Merchants Exposition being conducted in Farmville this week under the auspices of the American Legion post there is attracting big crowds nightly.

The week of entertainment was officially opened Monday night by Governor Clyde R. Hoey, who was heard by one of the largest crowds ever to gather in a warehouse for a public speaking in this section.

The exposition is being held in Knotts warehouse, and the Governor described the building as one of the most beautifully decorated warehouses ever seen.

The entertainment program consists of an array of talent and the various features are being received with much enthusiasm.

Tonight will be observed as "surprise night", but the program for tomorrow night calls for the Queen's ball, with Secretary of State Thad Eure honoring the young women who have participated in the advance sale of tickets contest. The State official will crown the queen of the exposition, after which Hod Williams and his orchestra will furnish music for dancing until 2 a.m.

THE INSIDE REPORT

The Indispensable Insider

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — The needed taste of victory within the White House over tentative settlement of the coal strike must be tempered by the role played by Robert Strauss, the indispensable insider enlisted at the 11th hour for his long experience in how power really works.

Strauss, the notable establishment politician in an administration of outsiders, not only contacted executives of steel companies which own coal mines but was the central figure pressuring other coal operators to accept the union's last offer. The reality for President Carter was this: nobody else had the experience or contacts for that mission. But Strauss, splitting his time between being chief trade negotiator and cabinet member without portfolio, is spread too thin.

His role belies the claim of administration officials (especially Strauss himself) that the Carter team was well prepared for the coal strike. The truth is closer to this candid appraisal by one middle-level official closely connected to the coal crisis: "Our grade was D, a step ahead of failure. It was good only when compared with the Marston affair, because this one almost got away from us."

That "D" seems a trifle harsh, considering that the President met his desperate need to show success somewhere. The belated exercise of presidential power was essential to sagging self-confidence at the White House. Still, the unstructured impromptu approach to handling the crisis spells danger ahead.

Contrary to natural White House efforts to rewrite history, the coal question was wholly in the hands of Labor Secretary Ray Marshall until mid-February. Marshall, a college professor without labor mediation experience, had devised no thorough strategy. Both coal state

To the editor:
I couldn't help thinking after reading your recent editorial entitled "Israel is Not Helping Cause of Peace" how a double standard is applied to Israel's conduct with such regularity as to practically pass unnoticed.

It's odd how the first Arab leader in 30 years who agrees to accept Israel's perennial invitation to talk face-to-face and who abruptly breaks off these negotiations after a day and a half is hailed as the peace-maker, and Israel is the stubborn one.

As in any negotiating process, there must be a willingness to compromise. Israel has said that everything is negotiable except the re-dividing of Jerusalem. This includes occupied land and settlements.

In regard to settlements, there has not been a single new civilian settlement established in the Sinai since Primes Minister Begin took office. The purpose of the settlements in the Sinai and on the West Bank is to create a defense buffer-zone of towns, and there is certainly international precedent for such a concept.

I would suggest that the prospects for peace are not being hampered by Israel, but rather by those countries who are attempting to circumvent the peace process by forcing Israel to adopt a certain course on action through ultimatums. Both Presidents Sadat and Carter sometimes lose sight of the legitimate U. S. role as mediator rather than arbitrator. The people who will have to live (or die) with the peace agreement should be the ones who thrash it out in face-to-face negotiations.

Strength For Today

ORDEAL OF FIRE
The great plague which broke out in London in 1665 was a disaster almost unparalleled in modern times. People died in such numbers that those still able to get around had to work day and night just to get the corpses buried. It was said that no sound was heard in the streets but the rumble of wagons carrying the dead to their burial places.

Suddenly a great fire broke out, which proved to be a disaster almost as great as the plague. But what medicine could not do to rid the city of the great epidemic, the fire did. The congested centers, which were the breeding places of the disease, were entirely consumed. Two great results followed. The plague stopped almost immediately, and the modern city of London arose from the ashes of the old city.

It sometimes takes the ordeal of fire to cleanse the life of man, as the great fire cleansed the life of London. This can be a terrible experience, but often it is a creative one also.

Need Capital To Create A Job

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Where do jobs come from? A brokerage house believes Americans can't answer that question any more than a 2-year-old can tell you where babies come from.

Paine Webber doesn't say it in those words; it uses thousands more than that in a 25-page section of its annual report, but the impression left is that even the government is mystified.

There's no mystery, it says. It takes capital to make a job, about $37,000 per. That capital must be saved and invested and nurtured into growth. It must be put to work in innovative ways. But it isn't.

We are making it difficult to raise capital, it says. We are encouraging consumption instead of saving. We tax what people earn rather than what they spend.

"The federal government taxes the money people earn and spend only once. It taxes the money people earn and save again and again," it observes.

And as a consequence, it continues, Americans save and invest only 5 percent to 7 percent of their incomes. West Germans, who have fewer penalties for saving, invest 14 percent, and the Japanese, 22 percent.

"As a result," it observes, "between 1960 and 1975 unemployment averaged 5.1 percent in the United States, less than 1 percent in West Germany and 1.3 percent in Japan."

And how do we attempt to solve this problem? By draining still more money from the innovative job-forming private enterprise areas into sterile, self-perpetuating unemployment programs.

We don't stop with that, says Paine Webber. Small business, which is known to be the more effective producer of new jobs, is besieged by regulations it cannot meet. And new businesses cannot get started.

In 1969, new public stock issues by smaller companies totaled $1.1 billion. In 1974, they totaled only $16 million. Last year, the total was still only $168 million.

And restrictive regulations then make things worse. The report continues: "Regulation tends to impose yesterday's procedures on today's business, stifling innovation and robbing small companies of the agility which is often their main advantage in competition."

Larger companies, therefore, may well become more complacent.

"Among the world's industrialized nations," it notes, "we have the highest percentage of obsolete production facilities (more than a fifth of our facilities are more than 20 years old)."

That's only part of the sad tale, as Paine Webber sees it. We have, it continues, "the lowest ratio of capital investment to gross national product, and the lowest rate of productivity increase."

If Paine Webber's description of things is correct — and many others in business, academic and government seem to share it — it leads to the provocative conclusion that our thinking is inside out.

Are we simply digging one hole to fill up another? No, says the brokerage house. Futile as that is, our current practice is even more destructive. We are digging ourselves two holes and filling neither.

My only solution for Ham is that he stay in the White House day and night. Some day, maybe a year from now, people will forget about the pyramids of Egypt and the Amaretto with the whipped cream on the blouse and he will be a free man again. Right now, he's a sitting duck.
It isn't your fault, Ham, but when Jody has to start putting out White Papers on how you spend your nights, you have no choice but to dig a foxhole in the Rose Garden, cover yourself with a poncho and wait until your long nightmare is over.

Mrs. Henry Cannon Is Show's Co-Star

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — On Saturday night, "Festival '78," the public TV's national fund drive this year, kicks off with a telecast of Nashville's "Grand Ole Opry." Mrs. Henry Cannon will co-star.

Who? Let's use her better-known name — Minnie Pearl. She's the funny lady in the store-bought hat with the price tag still dangling. She's been an Opry regular for 38 years.

In town last week for the "Grammy" awards show, she took time to discuss public TV's coming Opry show, which will be televised exactly as it's been performed for radio station WSM since 1925.

There've been other Opry shows for TV, she noted, but always structured for television, right down to those flashing "applause" signs for the studio audience. There'll be none of that Saturday.

"It's the radio show televised live, unrehearsed and unprompted," said Nashville's First Lady of comedy. "For the first time, it'll just be turning on the cameras and letting it run."

I'm a comic who yearns to be a comedic actress."

Sounds odd, but Minnie, born of a well-to-do family in Centerville, Tenn., educated at Ward-Belmont College in Nashville, says she never thought of being either a comic or comedic actress in her childhood.

She dreamed of being a serious actress, an idea she now says, with a gentle smile, "was baying at the moon."

What caused the change? "Well, I believe the Lord has a divine plan for all of us," she said. "But I actually fought the idea of playing comedy. Yet all the time I was set up for it. Things never went right for me."

"My petticoat would show. Or I'd make what I considered a dramatic entrance and stub my toe. And people invariably laughed. Well, very early on I realized it was fine to hear them laugh.

"So it was in the back of my mind, like an ace in the hole. But I still had the mistaken idea I wanted to play serious roles on Broadway, follow in the train of Helen Hayes or Katherine Cornell."

Co-Producers For MTM Show

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tom Patchett and Jay Tarses have been named co-producers of the one-hour comedy-variety show that will star Mary Tyler Moore next season on CBS.

Patchett and Tarses previously produced "The Bob Newhart Show" and created and produced "The Tony Randall Show." Before joining MTM Productions they wrote for "The Carol Burnett Show."

Show's 30th Anniversary

NEW YORK (AP) — The CBS religious program "Lamp Unto My Feet" will celebrate its 30th anniversary with a special one-hour program on Sunday, March 5.

It will present highlights from past CBS News religious and cultural programs. "Lamp Unto My Feet" is the oldest religious program on television.

Anne Baxter Replaces Lana

LOS ANGELES AP — Academy Award-winner Anne Baxter has replaced Lana Turner as the mother of tennis star Maureen Connolly in "Little Mo" for NBC.

Miss Turner was stricken with the flu and unable to start the film. Glynnis O'Connor stars in the movie as Miss Connolly.

"I study — and steal," she explained. A grin crept across her face.

"My two idols in comedy are Mary Tyler Moore and Carol Burnett, because they're not comics. They're comedic actresses, and there's a big dif-

Karen Valentine In Western Role

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Karen Valentine will star in the light-hearted Western movie "Go West Young Girl" for ABC.

In the film, written by George Yanok, Miss Valentine plays a woman who sets out to win fame and fortune writing about the Old West.

Portray Assassins

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ed "Too Tall" Jones of the Dallas Cowboys and Lyle Alzado of the Denver Broncos have been signed to play assassins in the suspense mystery "The Double McGuffin."

'Annie' Role London-Bound

NEW YORK (AP) — New York's Little Orphan Annie says she's trading the bright lights of Broadway for a three-month run in the London edition of the hit musical, "Annie."

Andrea McArdle, who plays the title role in the musical version of the venerable comic strip, will bow out of the show after Sunday's performance.

The 14-year-old actress said she was offered a contract to remain on Broadway for another year but turned it down. "I'm not tired of 'Annie.' I'm tired of doing it in the same place," she said.

favorite activities with congenials. Take health treatments and improve your appearance.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get busy putting your house in order and establishing more harmony there with kin. Strive for increased happiness.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Plan time for those activities that are difficult to do during busy work week. Be careful of your reputation.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) If you use good practical sense, you find that you can handle personal affairs successfully. Take needed exercise.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Improve your vision so that you know you are headed in the right direction. Accept a social invitation and have fun.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Study your immediate surroundings and make plans for improvement. Make plans to have greater income in the future.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Obtain the data you need from the right sources. Engage in recreational activities late in the day and have a good time.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be a most practical person and should have a fine education so that the career is a successful one. Give good spiritual training early in life. Sports will knock off any belligerency in the nature.

Energy Compromise Is Nearer

WEATHER FORECAST—Showers are forecast today for the Southwest. Snow is expected from the central Plains to northern Texas, and snow flurries across the Great Lakes into New England. Most areas will be cold with showers forecast for Florida. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Key Senate energy negotiators say they are close to breaking a three-month deadlock on the natural gas pricing part of President Carter's energy plan, but that some obstacles remain.

The negotiators were to resume their deliberations today after failing on Thursday to produce the overall agreement that might put Carter's plan back on course.

"I think we're close to it, but we're not there yet," reported Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., leader of the Senate bargaining team.

Energy Secretary James R.

Schlesinger has been meeting with the group to lend administration support to the effort to break the stalemate.

Senate conferees must settle their own differences before formal bargaining sessions with the House on a compromise energy bill can proceed.

However, broad outlines of a proposed compromise are taking shape, with Senate negotiators reporting informal agreements that would:

- Lift price controls from newly discovered natural gas after 1984 but give the president and Congress the power to reimpose them if prices to consumers skyrocket.
- Immediately raise the price ceiling on natural gas from the present $1.47 per 1,000 cubic feet to somewhere between $1.84 and $1.88 and then allow it to rise gradually until the price lids came off.
- Give the president emergency power to order natural gas planned for industrial use in producing states moved to cold-weather states if necessary to heat homes, schools and hospitals.

Such a compromise would be more costly to consumers than the Carter administration plan for continued price controls, passed by the House, but less expensive than the original Senate-passed bill for deregulation after two years.

Conferees said a major unresolved issue entails coming up with a compromise definition that would determine how much natural gas would be considered newly discovered and thus qualify for the higher prices and deregulation in 1985.

Jackson and other administration allies on the Senate bargaining team want to keep this definition as tightly drawn as possible so only new discoveries of gas can get the premium prices.

But senators representing the industry view are holding out for a broader definition that would not only include newly discovered gas but some gas from existing fields.

Other remaining disputes are over deciding how fast prices should escalate between now and the deregulation date and over the wording of a proposal that would require industries to initially absorb the brunt of the more expensive deregulated gas.

There is no guarantee that House conferees will go along with the Senate-produced compromise, if one is ever achieved. But key House conferees have indicated great flexibility on the matter, saying they want to get the energy bill off dead-center.

Two Injured In Collision

Greenville Police reported $7,000 damage resulted from a 6:21 a.m. collision on a bridge on Memorial Drive north of the Tar River today in which two persons were reported injured.

Officers identified the drivers involved as Fannie Brown Jr., Letty Margaret Gipson and Barbara Nobles Daniels.

Investigators reported the Daniels car skidded into a guard rail, causing an estimated $300 damage to her car.

The Gipson vehicle, officers said, applied brakes to avoid colliding with the Daniels vehicle, skidded across the roadway and into the guard rail on the opposite side of the roadway. The Brown truck then skidded into the Gipson car.

Damage to the Gipson car was estimated at $6,500 while damage to the truck was set at $200.

Police, who charged Mrs. Daniels with exceeding a safe speed, reported Mrs. Daniels and Mrs. Gipson were treated for minor injuries at Pitt Memorial Hospital and released.

Face Court In 3 Weeks

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina's Christian academies have another three weeks before their dispute with the state Board of Education goes to court.

The schools are refusing for the first time to file the annual reports on enrollment, curricula and teacher credentials which are required by the state.

The board has been trying to work out a compromise with the schools and voted Thursday to grant another delay until March 23 before proceeding against them in court.

Former State Sen. Thomas Strickland of Goldsboro, attorney for the Christian academies, said he would confer with his clients and see if they had changed their minds about complying with the law.

The reporting law requires an annual report from each school listing information on teachers, what children attend and what subjects are taught.

The fundamentalist, church-related schools maintain that any form of government regulation of their schools is an infringement on their religious freedom.

But in a recent letter to H. David Bruton, chairman of the board, the Christian academy leaders asked for a month's delay because another attorney, William Ball of Harrisburg Pa., could not attend the Thursday meeting.

Ball is a noted constitutional lawyer who defended the right of the Amish not to send their children to school after age 14.

The Christian schools launched a campaign last year to eliminate state regulation. They object to state regulations that require schools to hire state-certified teachers, teach certain minimum subjects and participate in the state's competency testing program.

Snow In Martin Melting Fast

WILLIAMSTON — Thursday night's snowfall was light in Martin County and was fast disappearing this morning under the effect of warming rains.

Roads in the county were reported safe, though some dirt roads were in soft condition.

Opening of schools throughout the county was delayed until 10 a.m. "This was more due to wet roads than to any real hazard," Eugene Rogers, Martin County Schools Superintendent said.

"We're keeping in touch with weather conditions and if weather reports continue to seem favorable, schools will stay open on the normal schedule."

Young people plan today for tomorrow.

The latest winter storm has spread snow from the mountains to near the coast in North Carolina and today the precipitation continued as freezing rain over a wide area, threatening further ice damage.

An ice storm warning was issued early today for almost all of the state east to the Raleigh area, and a travelers advisory was in effect for the southwest and central mountains and the northern coastal plain. Gale warnings were in effect along the coast.

An intense low pressure system that developed in the eastern Gulf of Mexico moved northeastward along the coast, and was expected to reach Virginia by tonight. Snow continued this morning over the northwest mountains but elsewhere it had turned to sleet and freezing rain, causing ice to accumulate on trees and utility lines from the Piedmont to the mountains.

Along the coast, the precipitation was mostly rain, with thundershowers a possibility during the afternoon and evening.

Snow was heaviest in the mountain areas, dwindling to about an inch at Raleigh and some points eastward. Asheville reported four inches this morning and Charlotte and Greensboro had recorded three inches.

Highway travel was expected to remain hazardous throughout the day over the western half of the state and central sections were not to improve before mid-day.

Winds also were expected to increase over coastal areas today and over the state by tonight as the storm passed. The winds were expected to rise to 15 to 25 miles per hour from the northwest.

Temperatures were around freezing — a little below or above — throughout the state this morning with only a little warmup expected through the day. Lows included Asheville 24, Charlotte 31, Greensboro 26, Raleigh 28 and Wilmington 35.

Hosted District 8 Jaycee Gathering

WINTERVILLE — The Winterville, Fountain, Walstonburg, and Macesfield Jaycees were hosts to the 1978 Spring District B meeting here Wednesday night with members from nine Jaycee chapters in attendance.

During the meeting, Steve Evans of the Winterville chapter won the district "Speak-Up" competition. Evans competed in the open division which involves Jaycees who speak in their professions for a career.

The local winner will represent District B in the Southeast Regional competition March 24 and 25 in Goldsboro. The regional winner will take part in state competition in Raleigh during May and the state winner will represent North Carolina in competition at the National Jaycee Convention in Atlantic City, N.J. in June.

Evans, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stacy Evans of Greenville, is a real estate broker with Overton & Powers Realty Co. in Greenville. He is past president of the Winterville Jaycees and now serves as chairman of the board and the Southeast Regional membership and extension chairman.

The Winterville chapter received an award from the State Ten Million chairman and the Eastern Seal Society for raising $651.33 to help build a swimming pool at Camp Sertoma in Winston-Salem.

District director Mark Green from Kinston served as master of ceremonies for the meeting and Joe Hollowell, past president of the N.C. Jaycees, was the guest speaker.

The district, involving chapters from Dover, Grifton, Fountain, La Grange, Macesfield, Maury, New Bern, Walstonburg, and Winterville, announced its support for Harold Herring, regional director, for president of the N.C. Jaycees.

Hopeful News in Medicine

"We're getting somewhere" was the enthusiastic comment of two cancer specialists. For a type of lung cancer and lymphocytic leukemia seemed to respond to total irradiation of the body.

Remission rates of almost 50 percent followed the use of radiation chemotherapy and cortisone. This treatment for chronic leukemia seems to be highly impressive.

Dr. Ralph E. Johnson, of the University of Florida in Gainesville, recently said, "The combined treatment has opened new horizons for leukemia patients. We are at a point now where at least half of them are achieving a complete response. This will be translated into dramatic improvement in survival. Instead of living another two or three years, these patients can expect to live eight to twelve years."

Dr. Johnson is also enthusiastic about the combined use of X-ray and drug treatment for "oat cell" lung cancer.

Such research highlights the hope that lies implicit in the intensive scientific research that continues all over the world.

A vaccine against pneumonia is leaving the drawing boards of speculation and is becoming more of a reality.

At the University of California in San Francisco, a group of doctors under the direction of Dr. Arthur J. Ammann have been using the new vaccine in children who have had their spleens removed because of injury or infection.

Children with sickle cell anemia were also given the vaccine. In all the cases studied, no pneumonia has occurred after vaccination.

In contrast to this, more than 100 non-immunized patients with sickle cell disease were studied. In this group, eight cases of pneumonia occurred.

The outlook for the vaccine is bright. Since the advent of the antibiotics, some of the pneumonia-causing bacteria have become resistant to the antibiotics. Consequently, the news that a vaccine against pneumonia is in active work comes as a great source of hope that one day the devastation from epidemics of pneumonia may be bypassed.

Certain kinds of epileptic seizures, especially in "petit mal," come on suddenly, without any warning. This is unlike the "grand mal" seizures of epilepsy which usually are preceded by some warning so that the victim can prepare in advance for an attack.

Dr. Alan F. Mirsky, of Boston University, is working on a miniature computer which will alert the victim of "petit mal" to an impending seizure.

SPEAKING OF YOUR HEALTH... Any attempt to lose weight by the means of water pills is sidetracking the real problem... overeating!

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, pulling back from an early advance following news of another wide U.S. trade deficit. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up more than 2 points in early trading, showed a .09 loss at 746.36 by noontime. Gainers held a 4-3 edge on losers at the New York Stock Exchange after leading by more than 2 to 1 at the outset.

For the second straight day the dollar generally posted gains in foreign exchange.

But brokers said traders still seemed doubtful that the U.S. currency was ready to stage any significant recovery.

Today both the stock market and the dollar were faced with the news of another large U.S. trade deficit in January. The nation's imports exceeded exports by $2.38 billion, according to Commerce Department figures issued at the opening.

Sony led the active list, up ¼ at 7¼. A 100,000-share block of the stock traded at 7¼.

United Nuclear jumped 3¼ to 36½. A New Mexico judge ruled in favor of the company in an action it brought against General Atomic Co. involving uranium pricing.

The NYSE's composite index was unchanged at 48.00. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose .05 to 123.11.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 9.03 million shares as of noontime, against 8.54 million at the same point Thursday.

In a final appearance Thursday in Capitol Hill, Bailar said the delivery of letters and other pieces of paper is being supplemented by other means of communication, including computerized electronic messages.

"The delivery of hard copy (paper) is dying. By the end of this century, the maintenance of daily delivery will be possible only if it is justified on some basis other than on economic need," Bailar told a Senate Governmental Affairs subcommittee.

He said such a justification might be preserving the jobs of postal employees, who now number close to 1 percent of the American workforce.

Bailar said electronic message systems and new uses for the telephone are having an increasing impact on the Postal Service by diverting what once would have been mail to substitute forms of communication.

Bailar resigned last month to re-enter private industry and will be replaced on March 15 by William F. Bolger, now deputy postmaster general.

In his three years in office, Bailar has urged the public to ponder which mail services are still needed considering the new methods of communication.

Push To End Required Retirement At Age 65

By JANET STADHAR Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Most American workers could stay on the job until age 70 under a bill expected to whisk through Congress soon, while federal employees could stay on the payroll indefinitely.

A House-Senate conference committee ironed out final details Thursday of legislation that abolishes most requirements in private business that workers retire at age 65. It also does away with the federal government's age-70 limit.

But executives "in a high policy-making capacity" who would have retirement incomes of $27,000, minus Social Security, would be exempt from the legislation. Businesses could still retire them at 65.

Senate and House conferees predicted the bill will whisk through Congress in a few weeks. No opposition is expected from President Carter.

"It's of monumental significance to the nation's workforce," said the 77-year-old chairman of the House Aging Committee, Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla.

The age-70 ceiling for private business would go into effect Jan. 1, 1979. The ban on forced retirement for federal workers would take effect this Sept. 30.

The bill applies to workers whose employer has 20 or more persons on the payroll — about 70 percent of the labor force. It also allows two years for age-65 retirement clauses to be phased out of existing labor union contracts.

Almost all the nation's three million federal workers are subject to the current age 70 forced retirement regulations.

Pepper said he was confident even the age-70 retirement cap for private business will be eliminated one day.

"We are establishing the federal government as a model employer which will use competence, not age, to determine whether a person should retain a job. This experiment will demonstrate the desirability of a complete ban on mandatory retirement in the private sector," he said.

The exemption for top executives was added after employers argued it would permit women, minorities and younger persons to fill the executive spots vacated. Employers also say they would have been hurt financially by having to keep highly paid employees, who otherwise could be replaced by lower-salaried younger people.

Under an amendment sought by some colleges, the raising of the forced retirement age to 70 for professors doesn't go into effect until July 1, 1982. This would give college administrators time to adjust hiring and tenure policies.

The wording of that amendment was a compromise. Some senators contended that colleges need bright young persons as educators but are closed out by tenured faculty members. Pepper, along with other House members, argued that older people make fine teachers too.

The bill orders the labor secretary to study the feasibility of a total abolition on mandatory retirement.

The law does not change 65 as the age at which most retirees can start collecting their maximum Social Security benefits.

Soyuz Prepares Space Link-Up

By BARTON REPERT Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — A newly launched team of Russian and Czechoslovak cosmonauts began preparing their Soyuz 28 capsule for docking with the orbiting Soviet Salyut 6 space station, Tass reported.

No time was given for the linkup.

The Soviet news agency said Soviet cosmonaut Alexei Gubarev and Czechoslovak Vladimir Remek had completed 13 orbits around the earth since their blastoff from Soviet Central Asia Thursday evening.

During their first radio communications session with ground control, the cosmonauts "reported that they had started implementing the program of preparing the Soyuz 28 ship for a rendezvous with the orbital complex Salyut 6 - Soyuz 27," Tass said.

These pre-docking preparations included a correction in the Soyuz capsule's orbital trajectory.

The new orbit was carrying them to a

Pirates, Mounties Gain Semifinals

By WOODY PEELE

East Carolina and Appalachian State each took different routes but both arrived at the semifinals of the North Carolina AIAW Division I Tournament yesterday.

East Carolina romped to an easy 87-47 victory over Duke, while Appalachian State had to fight through an overtime to claim an 80-76 win over stubborn UNC-Greensboro.

Tonight, the semifinals of the tournament will be held in Minges Coliseum, with the winners battling Saturday night for the title.

At 6 p.m. tonight, East Carolina meets North Carolina, while at 8 p.m. nationally ranked N.C. State takes on ASU. The losers battle Saturday at 6 p.m. in the consolation game, while the winners meet at 8 p.m. for the championship.

Three of the teams will advance to the regionals, to be held later this month at Chapel Hill. North Carolina, as the host team, already has a berth. The other two will go to the top two finishers in the tournament, other than UNC-CH.

All the excitement came in the first game, which saw Greensboro rally from eight points down early in the second half to nearly pull it out.

After claiming an early lead, Greensboro fell behind by as much as 18-10 midway through the first half. They closed back to within two several times, but trailed, 35-31 at the half.

Appalachian pushed its lead back to eight at 39-31 with 17:32 left, but again Greensboro came back, finally taking the lead again, 46-45. During the final ten minutes of the half, the two teams exchanged the lead 11 times, and it was tied on five occasions. Cathy Strange finally hit for Greensboro with 22 seconds left to knot it at 68-68, forcing the overtime when ASU failed to get off a shot in time.

Greensboro took the lead quickly in the overtime, but ASU regained it at 72-70, and after one more tie, moved ahead for good as Madeline Frosch hit with 2:39 left for a 74-72 lead.

The Lady Mountaineers ran their lead out to as much as six after that in claiming the win.

"Either team could have won it," ASU's Judy Clarke said afterwards. "I got worried when Madeline got her fourth foul, but she was able to stay in there and help us." Frosch is the state's leading rebounder, and pulled in 11 for ASU in the contest. Strange, however, led the game's rebounding with 14.

"This is the second straight overtime game we've had with UNC-G," Clarke said. "I was scared."

At the end, she admitted that ASU had a set play to try and score at the end of regulation, but that the team just lost track of the time.

"Our defense has improved during the season, but we had some problems, too. Madeline didn't play as well as she could have, and their defense was the thing that bothered us the most."

The saving time, however, was when UNC-G switched from its man-to-man defense to a zone. "We were able to shoot from the outside. If they had stayed in the man, we might have had a different outcome."

Jan Donahue of Greensboro said that foul troubles forced her team out of the man-to-man defense. Both Anna Parker and Jan Gillean drew their fourth fouls, and the zone was used to protect them. Gillean eventually fouled out in the overtime. "Losing Jan definitely hurt us," she said. "She's a clutch player."

Donahue predicted that her game with ASU would be the best in the first round. "We lost at the buzzer last year, and I figured that both teams had a 50-50 chance. I don't think we were the underdog."

She noted that the zone press helped UNC-G in its last meeting with ASU, and worked effectively in the game Thursday. "I just wished we could have stayed with it and the man-to-man. I hoped they would take longer to adjust to the zone when we went to it, but they started hitting right away."

Carol Almond led ASU with 20 points, while Frosch had 18 and Alison Hiltz had 15. Strange poured in 31 for UNC-G, with Kim Morgan adding 14, Parker, 11, and Gillean had 10.

ECU-Duke

For the Lady Pirates, it was only a brisk workout, as the regulars got little playing time.

Only one of the starters, April Ross, played as much as 25 minutes.

With Lydia Rountree playing her best of the year, the Pirates streaked out to a 12-0 lead in the first two minutes of play and never were in trouble.

Duke never got closer than ten in the first half, and eventually trailed by as much as 50 points. That came when Rountree hit a layup with 14:02 left, making it 73-23.

East Carolina had held a 50-16 margin at the half.

Rountree led the ECU scoring with 25 points, while Rosie Thompson had 22 and Debbie Freeman had 10, Tara McCarthy had 13, Kathy Friend had 11, while Lisa Warren had 14 to pace

Duke.

Duke coach Debbie Leonard called it the worst showing of the year for her team. "It's just too bad that it had to happen here. We lost to East Carolina by only four just a few games back."

She added that she was "most proud" of the fact that her players didn't give up.

"We have improved during the year. We lost to Carolina, by seven and to ASU by six recently. But I'm almost relieved. When you're 1-19 your first year, you can't keep your head up like you'd want to."

She said that her players didn't react in the first half as they should have. "We had a game plan, but they did nothing I asked of them. After that, we just tried to make them understand that we could be respectable if we had to lose."

"But East Carolina is so quick, probably the quickest team in the state," she said.

Duke is only in its first year of Division I play, and Leonard, also in her first year, said that it would stay Division I. "If Duke wants to put money into the program, I'll build one," she proclaimed.

Catherine Bolton, the Pirate mentor, said she came into the game worried about her team being ready to play. But they soon relieved her of that notion. "We had had two flat games prior to the tournament, but we were sure ready today."

She praised Rountree as getting "her game picked up the way we've been waiting for."

Bolton added that she was surprised by the way the Lady Pirates jumped out to their early lead. "Duke played a great second half against us in Durham, and I just looked for a tougher game. Duke gave a great effort, but talent-wise, we controlled the game."

Not having to play the regulars all the way gave them a chance to rest, too, to get ready for tonight's meeting with UNC.

"I hope we'll be ready for them and not be intimidated like we were earlier," she said.

Bucs Fail To Win A First

PITTSBURGH, Pa. — The East Carolina swim team suffered a disappointing first day in the Eastern Intercollegiate Swimming and Diving championships at the University of Pittsburgh yesterday.

Although the Pirates were able to qualify first in several events, they were not able to take any first place finishes in the finals. The highest ECU finishers were second places by Ted Nieman in the 500-yard freestyle and Billy Thorne in the 50-yard freestyle. In the 500, Nieman set a new ECU varsity record with a time of 4:32.24.

The Pirates are in third place after the first day of events, and Coach Ray Scharf noted that he was a little disappointed with that position.

"We swam fairly well in the trials, but couldn't come up with the good times in the finals," Scharf said. "This is really a fast meet."

While the Pirates stand third, Scharf expects the team to move up a notch before the meet is over. "We thought we had a chance for first, but we still feel we have an excellent shot at second. Pitt just beat us where we were strong."

Pittsburgh leads the team totals with 125, while Maryland is second with 104. East Carolina has 84.

In addition to Nieman's second place finish in the 500, Kevin Neisel finished eighth in 4:41.75 and Doug Brindley was 11th in 4:45.46.

John Tudor was fourth in the 200 individual medley in 1:58.46, while teammate Joe Kushy was 12th in 2:00.30.

Thorne's second place time in the 50 was 21.40 seconds. John McCauley was third in :21.49, while Ross Bolken was fifth in :21.59 and Bill Fehling was tenth in :21.84.

The 400-yard medley relay team was seventh in 3:35.74.

The meet continues today and Saturday.

Still No Decision

There was still no word at midmorning about the fate of East Carolina University basketball coach Larry Gillman.

University officials were mum on the future of the first year coach, who has been rumored out at the school, despite having two years left on a three-year contract.

Athletic Director Bill Cain said that the program is still under reevaluation. Cain was reportedly in a meeting at midmorning, and Gillman was unable to be reached.

Arnie Chases Elusive Win

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP)—The desire for victory still exists for Arnold Palmer. He wants it. He hungers for it.

But Palmer, brutally honest as ever, admits it isn't the same. The passing years, growing wealth and worldwide fame such a few men have enjoyed have dulled the sharp edge of his desire.

It's now a yearning, no longer a burning.

"Twenty years ago I was 28 years old and broke. And that's a hell of a lot of difference," said the living legend who now counts his personal fortune by the millions of dollars.

"I could sit here and tell you the desire is the same, but it just isn't there. It's obvious. My golf game has shown it over the past few years."

Over the past few years, five of them since he last won a tournament in the United States, Palmer has slipped from constant contender to the uncomfortable role of elder statesman. He made a major move to reverse the trend, to roll back the years, with a solid, 7-under-par 65 Thursday that put him in a tie with Bob Murphy and Tom Kite for the first-round lead in the $200,000 Florida Citrus Open Golf Tournament.

It was his best score in two years. It came on the heels of a runnerup finish in Australia in his last start. It was a solid—almost errorless—performance.

He has his work cut out for him in his quest for his first victory in this country since the 1973 Bob Hope Classic. Not only are two men tied with him but there are 18 locked within three strokes of the top spot.

Australian David Graham and Roger Maltbie toured the flat, heavily-wooded, 6,929-yard Rio Pinar Golf Club course in 66s, just one stroke back. The group at 67 included Lee Trevino, Hale Irwin, Ed Sneed, Steve Melnyk and Pete Brown. Among the big bunch at 68 were such standouts as Jerry Pate, Ray Floyd and Ben Crenshaw.

Get That Ball!

Duke and East Carolina players move after a loose ball in the lane during action yesterday in the first round of the state AIAW basketball tournament at Minges Coliseum. Players from Duke include Liz Bulger (34) and Stephanie Fagerburger (21), while Pirates are Lynn Emerson (left), Debbie Freeman (35) and Debbie Tritt (40). East Carolina romped to an 87-47 win in the game. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Pirates Set To Open Baseball Season Here

The East Carolina baseball team opens up its 1978 baseball season Saturday at home against Elon College. The game was originally scheduled to be played at Elon, but the Fighting Christians new field is not ready, so the game has been switched to Harrington Field.

The first pitch of the season is due at 2 p.m.

The Pirates will open with a mixture of the old and the new in the starting lineup, as six regulars return, and two new faces have been added to the lineup.

Coach Monte Little is expected to start freshman Mike Sage at first base, with Pete Paradossi at second, Bobby Supel at shortstop and Jerry Caraway at third. Last year, Caraway played short and Supel was at third.

Eddie Gates, the stolen-base record holder, will open in right field, with Billy Best in center and Max Raynor in left. The battle for the designated hitter is between Butch Davis and Macon Moye.

Another familiar face will be on the mound for ECU, with either Pete Conaty or Mickey Britt getting the opening day nod.

Elon will bring a strong club to Harrington Field, as eight lettermen return from last year's 30-18 club. Top returner is catcher-first baseman Tommy Vaughn, who hit .354 last year.

"We're anxious to get started," said Little. "It would be nice if the weather were a little warmer, our practices have been good, and I think the team is ready to go."

Season tickets will be honored for the game.

"I'm happy that we get to open at home," Little said. "That's always a little easier than having to start off with a long road trip. It would be great to have a good crowd out for our first game."

The Pirates travel to Raleigh for a Sunday doubleheader with N.C. State, then go to Columbia, S.C., for a two-game set with South Carolina on Tuesday and Wednesday, before returning home against Big Ten member Purdue on Friday.

Golfers Advance

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C.—The East Carolina golf team moved into fifth place after the second round of the Coastal Carolina Classic with a second-round total of 306.

Ball State leads the overall standings with a two-day score of 612, followed by Duke at 616 and N. C. State at 618. East Carolina has a two-day total of 628.

Mike Buckmaster, Donnie Owens and David Brogan tied for medalist honors for the Pirates with four-over-par 76's.

Keith Hiller had a 78, followed by Doug Davis with an 84 and John Abraham with an 85.

Keith Hiller is the low man for the Bucs in the tournament with a two-day total of 153.

The tournament concludes today.

Netters Claim Win

East Carolina's tennis team raised its season record to 2-1 yesterday with a 7-2 victory over James Madison University.

The Pirates, who won the first five singles matches and two of three doubles bouts, will host Salisbury State at 1:30 Saturday.

Deacs Stun Heels; Duke Tops Terps

Floor Battle

North Carolina's Al Wood (30) battles Wake Forest's Rod Griffin (left) and Larry Harrison for the loose ball during first half action in Thursday night's ACC tournament basketball game in Greensboro's Coliseum. The Deacons upset the Tar Heels to move into Saturday's finals against Duke University. (AP Laserphoto)

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — "We're certainly where I'd hoped to be in my wildest dreams," said Wake Forest coach Carl Tacy.

All the same, Tacy seemed less surprised than anyone that his Deacons had made it to the finals of the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball tournament.

The Deacons, combining a harassing zone press and an effective inside attack, fought back in the second half Thursday night to stun 10th-ranked North Carolina, 82-77, in the tournament semifinals.

Their opponent in Saturday's championship game will be 15th-ranked Duke, which wore down a pesky Maryland team earlier Thursday for an 81-69 victory.

"I feel our club right now is on the move," said Tacy, whose Deacons have managed to handle the Tar Heels more consistently over the past two seasons than anyone else.

North Carolina coach Dean Smith saluted Tacy and his team for doing "a super job," but said the pressure was on the Tar Heels, not the Deacons, who now stand 19-9 for the season. North Carolina dropped to 23-7.

"The best thing Wake Forest has going for it is that we're Carolina," Smith said. "They do a good job of getting up for us."

Particularly inspired Thursday night was all-America Rod Griffin, who dominated all but the nine minutes when he was benched because of foul trouble.

In Griffin's first-half absence, the Tar Heels stormed from a 16-16 tie to a commanding 37-26 lead. But Griffin, playing with three fouls, returned to guide the Deacons' second-half comeback, finishing with 18 points and 12 rebounds.

"The foul situation hurt us, with Rod out in the first half," Tacy said. "But he made up the difference in the second half. He made the key buckets."

North Carolina's own all-America, Phil Ford, was a one-man show for the Tar Heels, putting in 30 points, but he was the only North Carolina player to master the Deacon defense.

"Their zone was effective," conceded Smith. "They can't play us man-to-man. We played a lot of man-to-man, but they sure managed to get inside."

Leroy McDonald, as well as Griffin, took advantage of North Carolina's weakness under the bucket. McDonald scored 13 of his 21 points from the foul line, but many of the fouls were made while he was driving through the lane.

Smith, despite the loss, was confident that the Tar Heels' season was not over.

"We're hopeful to gain a spot in the NCAA playoffs," he said. "If the NCAA looks at our schedule, we should have no trouble. We just have to get ready mentally. When Ford found out he was injured a week ago it hurt the team mentally."

North Carolina's loss prevented a rematch with Duke in the tournament finals. But it also put added pressure on Duke to win the championship game in order to qualify for the NCAA playoffs.

The Blue Devils will automatically qualify for an NCAA berth if they defeat Wake Forest. But a Duke loss would put Duke in competition with the Tar Heels for an at-large invitation.

After his team's conquest of Maryland, Duke coach Bill Foster said he thought the Tar Heels "wouldn't be a bad choice" for the NCAA playoffs.

But through the first half of their game against the upstart Terps, the Blue Devils didn't look like a championship team — nor much like themselves.

Center Mike Gminski couldn't find the range before intermission, making only one of 10 first-half shots, but he came alive in the second half as Duke slowly pulled away from the Terps. The sophomore finished with 14 points.

"He was disappointed at the half, but he did it himself in the second half," Foster said of Gminski. "We gave him a little prodding at the half."

Whatever void Gminski's slow start created was filled by an unusually balanced Duke scoring attack. All five starters finished in double figures, led by Jim Spanarkel with 21 points and freshman Eugene Banks with 17. Maryland coach Lefty Driesell, whose team never allowed the Blue Devils to get comfortably ahead, was disappointed with the outcome, but not by his team's performance.

"I thought our kids played about as well as they can play," said Driesell, whose team had conquered North Carolina State in triple overtime the night before. "We had Duke in a good position for them to choke in the second half, but they didn't do it."

Lawrence Boston led Maryland with 21 points. Center Larry Gibson had a game-high 13 rebounds, but connected on only two of 14 field goal attempts for the otherwise hotshooting Terps.

Freshman Albert King, one of the Terps' leading scorers this season, saw limited playing time because of an injured ankle and back spasms.

Maryland outshot and outrebounced the Blue Devils, but the most telling statistic was turnovers. The Terps handed the ball over 20 times but forced only nine Duke miscues.

The Blue Devils move into the championship round with a 22-6 record, while Maryland dropped to 15-13.

Ken Anderson of the Cincinnati Bengals completed 20 passes in 22 tries against the Pittsburgh Steelers in a 1974 game.

Allen Returns To A's Camp

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

This is about two one-time slugging first basemen trying to make comebacks. Only one, however, has really been away.

That would be Disappearing Dick Allen, who had his water and his salary turned off — i.e., suspended — by Oakland A's owner Charlie Finley, who caught him taking a shower during the sixth inning of a game in Chicago last June 20 in which he was still eligible to play.

Allen, 36, showed up unexpectedly at the A's spring training camp in Mesa, Ariz., this week and was welcomed back with open arms by Finley.

Meanwhile, in Fort Myers, Fla., 29-year-old John Mayberry is trying to regain his 1975 form when he batted .291, walloped 34 homers and drove in 106 runs for the Kansas City Royals. Mayberry slipped to .232 and .230 the last two years, with a total of 36 home runs.

"I'm going back to my old way of hitting," Mayberry said, which apparently means forgetting about home runs. "I've been too home run conscious. You can't force home runs. When I was hitting, really hitting, I wasn't thinking home runs all the time. When you're hitting, the home runs will come. Doubles are quite a weapon, too."

"Trying for home runs killed me. I'd wind up grounding out or popping up. Everybody tried to tell me what I was doing wrong. I listened, but what I was doing wrong was trying to force home runs."

Now, Mayberry is only trying to force his way back onto first base and fight off the challenge of young Clint Hurdle, who batted .328 with the Royals' Omaha farm club.

Although Allen played 54 games with Oakland last season, the A's haven't really seen him hit the way he used to: Allen's 351 career homers would place him third among active players, but sometimes it's difficult to be sure whether or not Disappearing Dick is an active player.

In other training camp news: —Second baseman Rich Dauer will be lost to the Baltimore Orioles for at least two weeks after burning his right hand while he and his wife were making popcorn.

—Kansas City pitcher Steve Busby, who hasn't pitched in the majors since injuring his arm in 1976, was impressive in hurling 10 minutes of batting practice. "Busby is throwing 400 percent better now than he did last year at this time," said General Manager Joe Burke.

—Jason Thompson and Steve Kemp, Detroit's first holdouts since 1960, agreed to report to camp today after the Tigers automatically renewed their contracts.

—The Toronto Blue Jays renewed the contracts of 11 unsigned players, including Bob Bailor, who hit .310 last season as a rookie.

—The New York Yankees extended outfielder Mickey Rivers' contract for three years, starting in 1980, at an estimated $1 million.

—San Francisco Giants Manager Joe Altobelli says he plans to play newly acquired Mike Ivie at both first and third base.

The timing at East Carolina University makes this column somewhat outdated perhaps as it is being written.

Word is expected "soon" on the fate of Pirate basketball coach Larry Gillman. And no matter what that word is, some people are going to be disappointed.

There are two distinct camps on the fate of Gillman. There are a large, vocal group who want the coach retained, feeling that East Carolina has not given him a proper chance with just one year.

There is another group, just as large and vocal, who want him fired. Many of those people feel that the won-lost record really doesn't have a bearing on the situation.

Regardless of the outcome, we hope that when the dust has settled that people will be willing to forgive and forget and unite behind Gillman, if he is retained, or behind his successor, if he is let go.

No matter what the decision, however, there are going to be some hard feelings. But there usually are in such situations. Some people will quit the basketball program either way and never return.

One thing that can be safely said about Coach Gillman and his program: there is no middle ground among the fans. They either hate him or love him.

Two Head Into Playoffs

Two area basketball teams will be participating in the State tournament starting this weekend.

Tonight, Rose High School's Rampants, the runner-up in Division I, travel to Fayetteville, to meet Division III winner Terry Sanford.

The Rampants will have a definite height advantage over the Bulldogs, and that could be the key to their moving on. They will have to play good defense, however, and they'll have to work their offense well.

Domination of the boards will be a big factor, and unless the Rampants find themselves shut off the boards, they should rule them.

It would be their first trip to the final eight in Greensboro next week as a 4-A team, if they win.

The other team to be in action will be the Williamston girls, who seem to have a hammerlock on the Division I 3-A berth. They've won it nearly every year for the past six or seven.

Their opponent has not been announced yet.

Baseball Season—In The Snow

East Carolina University is supposed to open its baseball season Saturday.

The game was originally scheduled to be played at Elon College, but their new field is not ready, so the game will be played at Harrington Field, starting at 2 p.m.

With the weather last night, seems hard to think of it as baseball time.

Tom Casanova, Cincinnati Bengal safety, is a medical student at the University of Cincinnati.

No Clues In Chaplin Body Theft

CORSIER SUR VEVEY, Switzerland (AP) — Police say they have no clues to the grave robbers who stole Charlie Chaplin's body from a small, unguarded Swiss village cemetery two nights ago.

They said no ransom demand has been received, and they would not speculate on other possible motives for the theft.

But they were discounting the theory that the theft was masterminded by a mentally deranged person.

"If it were extortion, normally one does not hear from such people for two, three, maybe 10 days," said Jean-Felix Paschoud, the Chaplin family lawyer.

The thieves dug up the heavy wooden coffin and carried it off between nightfall Wednesday and dawn Thursday. A cross at the head of the grave was undamaged, and the police took it to a laboratory to check for fingerprints.

Chaplin died Dec. 25 and was buried two days later in a small cemetery on a rarely traveled dirt road near this Lake Geneva village where he had lived since 1952. There was no elaborate grave marker because he had said he wanted his grave to be as simple as the others in the cemetery.

The little graveyard is surrounded by a stone wall about three feet high. The nearest house is about 50 yards away.

The thieves left the grave open, with the freshly dug earth mounded alongside. Mayor Ferdinand Volet said the hole apparently was discovered by visitors to the cemetery, but the police did not learn of the desecration until a municipal worker saw it and reported it Thursday afternoon.

The film star died in his sleep at the age of 88, a few hours after celebrating Christmas Eve with his family at his hillside estate, Manoir de Ban, overlooking the village.

There have been at least five other thefts or attempted thefts of remains of famous people in recent years.

The day Chaplin was buried, the urn containing the ashes of opera star Maria Callas was taken from a Paris cemetery but was found nearby several hours later.

Last August, four men were arrested in Memphis, Tenn., and accused of trying to steal the body of singer Elvis Presley 11 days after he died.

Last June, a body bag containing the charred remains of movie producer Mike Todd — who died in a 1958 plane crash while married to Elizabeth Taylor — were stolen from his grave outside Chicago. They were found 75 yards away several days later.

In 1974, students and monks opposed to the Burmese government took over the hearse carrying the body of former U.N. Secretary-General U Thant, but police reclaimed the body.

In 1973, the body of Marshal Philippe Petain, who headed the Vichy government after France's surrender in World War II, was taken by fascists from its traitor's grave on the Atlantic island of Yeu. It was found in the back of a panel truck near Paris and returned to the island.

O'Berry Study Critical Of Director's Policies

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A special review committee that visited the O'Berry Mental Retardation Center near Goldsboro in January has issued its report, much of it devoted to criticism of center director Jose deVarona and his personnel policies.

DeVarona announced his resignation Tuesday, and two more officials followed suit Thursday — Alton Dale, director of clinical support services, and Dr. Margaret Wiebe, director of program services.

The center and deVarona have been heavily criticized in recent months by parents of patients and by staff members who contended that conditions were unsafe and the staff inadequate.

One patient was scalded in a shower and later died of an overdose of medication. Another was fed cleaning fluid from a jar that was supposed to contain prune juice. Both incidents increased the criticism.

Thursday's report by a six-member team of mental retardation experts, parents and community workers said deVarona, whom it didn't mention by name, had failed to develop an effective staff organization or to provide leadership in relations with staff and parents.

The strongest criticism was of the center administration's dealings with staff and parents.

"The major problem seems to be the 'we-they' atmosphere apparently generated primarily by key management personnel," the report said.

Interviews with employees revealed "definite feelings of favoritism and unfair practices around disciplinary actions, merit increases and promotional opportunities."

DeVarona denied any responsibility for the center's problems when he announced his resignation, but he said a new director would start with "a clean slate" with the press. The other two officials gave no reasons publicly for their resignations, effective later this month.

Ben W. Aiken, director of the state Division of Mental Health and Mental Retardation Services, said an acting director would probably be named today.

Invite Exhibits At County Health Fair

Any agency or interested individual or group which would like to exhibit or perform screening services at the Pitt County Health Fair will be welcomed.

The County Health Fair will be held Thursday, Apr. 13, from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. in the Willis Building, corner of First and Reade Streets here.

Co-chairmen of the event are Martin McDowell, Health

Educator with the Pitt County Health Department, and Dan Kelly, Training Officer with the Walter B. Jones Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center. The Mental Health Association in Pitt County is administering the program, with Mrs. Juanita McCarthy, Executive Secretary, in charge.

McDowell said the Health Fair will be an opportunity for citizens, health professionals and community leaders, as well as young people from our schools, to learn about the variety of health-related services and activities that exist in the county. Each agency and/or group is invited to set up an exhibit and explain its activities and mission.

The Pitt County Heart Association has promised to provide free blood pressure screening, and it is hoped that various other free screening services will also be offered, in addition to such valuable information, Kelly said.

Classes, organizations, and individuals will be urged to attend.

Speaks Here On Monday

Solomon Ono, Sr., a native of Hawaii, will speak to the Greenville Chapter of the Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship Monday night. Roy Honeycutt II, president, will preside.

Solomon's talk is scheduled following a supper and special music rendered by Wayne and Ruth West of Williamston.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the American Legion Building. Supper will be served at 6:45. All persons in the community are invited to attend; there is no charge to attend the meeting. Solomon comes to Greenville under the sponsorship of five acting officers and board of directors of the Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship.

Solomon is now living in Raleigh. He is a former director of the Business Men's Fellowship International, which has as its purpose to support the church and encourage members to be active in their church affiliation and support.

Activities At Church Listed

The Junior Choir and Ushers of Mt. Calvary F.W.B. Church will have rehearsal Saturday, March 4, at 5 p.m. at the church.

A business session will follow. All members are asked to be present.

On Sunday, March 5, at 9 p.m., the Junior Choir and Ushers will observe their Anniversary. All Auxiliaries of the church are asked to be present.

The Rev. Jerry McCrary of Parmele will be the guest speaker. The public is invited.

Safety Engineer Is Speaker At Meet

Robert Jones, Safety Engineer for the Iowa Mutual Insurance Co., addressed the Pitt County Safety Council during a noon meeting Thursday at Parker's Barbecue.

The work of a Safety Engineer was reviewed by Jones. He also defined the terms most generally used when insurance companies insure industrial plants. The determination of premiums through an "Experience Rating Plan" was depicted as the newest method for assessing premiums by most insurance companies.

Jones said the fact that losses due to accidents can be accurately predicted when thorough surveys are made in plants and safety consciousness assessed. These surveys are then used by insurance companies to determine insurability and renewals.

Because of the importance of continuing industrial safety programs, safety engineers have been employed by insurance companies to promote and evaluate industrial programs in addition to providing professional guidance.

"Safety attitudes displayed by both the company and its employees undoubtedly is the most important factor when determining risk on the part of the insurance company," Jones said. "Unsafe actions by workers accounted for six times more accidents than unsafe machinery."

He added that "the definition of safety is 'a state of mind whereby each individual accepts responsibility for his own behavior.'"

Safety Council President Carl Whitfield, reminded members that the April meeting will also be held at Parker's while the Greenville Golf and Country Club is being remodeled.

Nutrition Week Is Designated

Mayor Percy Cox has designated March 5-12 for the local observance of National Nutrition Week.

In proclaiming the observance, Cox said that "nutrition is the substance of which life is made and by which life is sustained" and he pointed out that the "quality of food the individual consumes each day plays a vital role in his health throughout the life cycle."

According to Cox, "there is a need for continuing nutrition education and a massive effort to enhance family nutrition practices."

The mayor encouraged "all citizens to become concerned about their nutrition and the nutrition of others in the hope of achieving optimum health for both today and tomorrow."

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N.C.

Defiant Farmers Stay In Jail After Bridge Clash

Brooding Erupted Into Barrage From Shotgun

By CYNTHIA KYLE
Associated Press Writer
JACKSON, Mich. (AP) — Two weeks of silence and brooding by a young factory laborer erupted in a barrage of shotgun blasts that wounded 18 co-workers, including his stepfather, as they scrambled for cover in a crowded lunchroom, police say.

Leslie Bernard Torrey, 21, was arrested Thursday in a parking lot outside the factory after he walked up to police and said, "I'm the man you want," according to Jackson Police Capt. Calvin Watson.

Moments before, a man carrying a shotgun had walked into the lunchroom at the Pittsburgh Forgings Co., which manufactures forgings for auto and related industries, and fired a volley of shots.

Two of the victims — Jerry

Pelham, 47, of Cement City and Oliver Strine, 59, of Jackson — were in serious condition at Jackson Foote Hospital.

Sixteen others, including Torrey's 52-year-old stepfather, Ernest Baynes, were treated for minor wounds and released.

Torrey, who had worked at the plant for almost a year, stood motionless Thursday afternoon as 13th District Court Judge Robert Cray set bond at $35,000 on a single charge of assault with intent to commit murder. Torrey was held at Jackson County Jail and ordered to appear for a preliminary hearing March 13.

Wearing gray pants, heavy work boots and a nylon windbreaker, the tall, slender Torrey's only words were to his wife, Ivy.

"Don't say anything to them," he ordered when she was surrounded by reporters in the tiny courtroom.

Torrey refused advice from friends to hide his face from photographers. "Why? I did it," he told them.

The judge said bail was set relatively high "for the safety of the community" and because of threats against Torrey's life.

Police were puzzled by the attack. "We just haven't come up with a motive," said Detective Michael Rand.

Members of Torrey's family said he was a high school track star and the father of two young daughters, but suggested he had "things on his mind." They declined to elaborate.

Co-workers said Torrey had been unusually quiet for the past two weeks but had given no indication of what was bothering him. They said he left at lunchtime, returned shortly before the break was to end and began firing at cars in the parking lot.

He then turned his weapon on the workers, first firing through a plate-glass window into the two-story building, they said.

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer
EDINBURG, Texas (AP) — Defiant striking farmers, sticking to their demands that charges against them be dropped, completed their second night in jail here today.

About 200 American Agriculture supporters from several states were arrested Wednesday during a violent skirmish at an international bridge at Hidalgo.

The jailed farmers unanimously voted to stay locked up after a two-hour session with Attorney General John Hill and local officials.

The protesters have refused to pay the $18.75 that would free them.

"They decided they'd spend the night and talk things over among themselves," spokesman Gerald McCathern of Hereford said upon emerging from the negotiating session in the county jail.

Hill, a gubernatorial candidate, said the discussions were "positive." But he told one farmer that the chances for dismissal of all the charges did not seem good.

The farmers were charged with obstruction of a passage way after they blockaded the international bridge.

"I proposed the use of personal recognizance bonds be considered," Hill said after a courthouse meeting with local district attorney Oscar McInnis and other officials.

Hill also said there is a possibility of reducing the charge to a class C misdemeanor.

The attorney general was cheered when he arrived but booed when he made his statement.

Hill said his office will "definitely" investigate the bridge incident. The farmers had been corralled into a fenced area by nightstick-wielding police who had tossed tear gas canisters into the crowd.

Several farmer's suffered cuts and bruises and one woman was taken to a local doctor several hours after the skirmish.

The strikers are protesting the import of Mexican beef and produce. The scuffles came after they had blockaded a produce truck.

Officials said force was used because the farmers did not keep their word to disperse peacefully at the bridge. The American Agriculture supporters said no such agreement had been made.

Hidalgo County Sheriff Brig Marmolejo, who had ordered the bridge cleared Wednesday, said the crowd that gathered outside the jail Thursday could stay as long as they were not blocking traffic.

After a line of about 75 tractors and trucks rolled onto the scene, two deputies headed out to direct traffic. The sheriff called them back and, looking at the billy clubs, said, "Put those damn things away."

The gathering in the parking lot broke up at sundown after the prisoners' decision was announced. McCathern said the sheriff had suggested it would be better not to spend the night outside the jail.

"He said it could be a problem. We could get hard to get along with. Maybe one or two fellows get to drinking and the crowd can get rowdy," McCathern said, adding he agreed that a night's rest after the day in the hot south Texas sun was a good thing.

Helmeted riot squads stood by most of the day as the crowd swelled to about 300. Tow trucks were also readied.

Throughout the day, as it became apparent the prisoners were prepared to hold to their demands, requests went out for provisions. Farmers outside the walls quickly returned with sacks of cigarettes, soft drinks and chewing tobacco.

McCathern said the farmers decided to spend the night in a grassy jail yard. He said the prisoners were being treated well and that officials were seeking cots for them to sleep on.

The jailed strikers had spent the first night on the damp grass.

Many of the demonstrators who collected here were Rio Grande Valley farmers. The local group had not been vociferous in its support before the bridge melee.

"It's good to see these local boys get off their duffers," one out-of-town protester said.

Arnold Paulson, a spokesman from the National Organization of Raw Materials in Minnesota, called the prisoners "heroes" of the movement and urged demonstrators to rally behind them.

"This demonstration here has done more to unite the American Agriculture movement than anything they've done until now. I think McAllen has done American Agriculture one hell of a favor by doing exactly what this city has done," he said.

HOME-COMING HAPPINESS — A bark and a yell commiserated how they missed each other as Sara Marie Kent held her dog Pepe for the first time in 4 days. The dog spent the time locked in the house after the Kents evacuated the area Sunday due to the chlorine gas emergency in Youngstown, Fla. following a train accident. (AP Laserphoto)

'Delegates' From Sixteen Campuses

ECU News Bureau
Approximately 90 students from 16 eastern U.S. campuses were at East Carolina University last weekend as delegates to four 1978 Atlantic Coast Model United Nations Security Council meetings.

ECU students Wiley Betts of Raleigh and Sheila Wilson of Winston-Salem served as Model

UN Secretary General and Under Secretary General.

Students representing Bolivia at the conference presided at council sessions.

They were ECU student Steven Billet of Greenville, N.C. and U-Va. student David Cummings of McLean, Va. (Security Council A), Temple University law student Richard Serafin of Philadelphia (Council B), University of Pa. student Marie Koczyński of Philadelphia (Council C) and Connie Moore Zuckerman of Farmville, N.C. (Council D), an American University student.

Junior ROTC Is Heliborne

The D. H. Conley JROTC Rangers participated in a heliborne operation recently, with helicopter support from the North Carolina National Guard.

A spokesman for the JROTC unit said that the mission for the Rangers, utilizing the National Guard helicopter, was to "overpower and destroy an 'enemy' ammunition dump" located approximately ten miles west of the high school.

The spokesman said that the mission was completed, with the "element of surprise" employed to overpower the "enemy," portrayed by members of the JROTC Men's Drill Team.

Names of area student delegates, their campuses and the nations they represent follow:

PITT COUNTY, Greenville — EAST CAROLINA UNIVERSITY: Wiley Betts (Secretary General, Council 1); Sheila Wilson (Under Secretary General); Steven Billet (Bolivia); Danny Perry, Ray Hudson (Canada); William Byrd, Jr. (China); Ava Collins, Mike Harrison and Bill Bennett (Czechoslovakia); Robin Hammond (France); Drake Mann and Sue Anne Root (Gabon); Susan Kessler (India); Michael Hasty and Young Key Park (Kuwait); William Barbe and Alonzo Newby (Mauritius); Jeff Packard (Nigeria); Jeffrey Price (United Kingdom); Vinson Brett Melvin (United States); Jonathan Platt and Randy Ingram (Soviet Union); Kent Johnson (Venezuela) and Richard Knox, Jr. (West Germany).

Certificates To Course-Takers

A dozen members of the Junior Police Cadets Explorer Post were presented certificates and patches by Chief Glenn Cannon earlier this week for completing the Red Cross Multi-Media First Aid Course.

The course was taught by Greenville Rescue Squad instructor Robert Beppard.

To Be Speaker At Symposium

Dr. James L. Mathis of Greenville will be the keynote speaker during the Fourth Annual Cherry Hospital Symposium to be held at Cherry Hospital Thursday and Friday of next week.

Dr. Mathis, who is chairman of the East Carolina University School of Medicine Department of Psychiatry, will speak on "Revitalizing the Institution — New Ideas Behind Old Walls."

Raft Rider Is River Victim

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — One raft rider was drowned and two others were missing after their raft overturned during a midnight trip down the swiftly-flowing waters of the San Gabriel River, authorities said early today.

The river was swollen from a week of almost-steady rain.

Los Angeles County Sheriff's deputies reported that the body of a woman wearing a lifejacket was pulled from the river about an hour after a man had been rescued from the normally dry riverbed in Norwalk.

Henry Lassard, 55, of Maywood, told deputies he and three friends had fallen into the river after launching their raft for a late night adventure in Montebello, about 20 miles inland from Long Beach.

The identities of the dead woman and the two missing men were not released.

Good Response To Bloodmobile

The mini-visit held Thursday by the Bloodmobile at Stator House Fire Department resulted in a good donor response with 62 pints of blood collected.

Mrs. Ruth Taylor, executive secretary of the Pitt Red Cross, said that officials were pleased with the results of the four-hour drive.

According to Mrs. Taylor, the visit was aimed primarily at reaching industry employees and she noted that Carolina Leaf Tobacco Co. and Eaton Corp. had the largest turnouts. In addition, the Sheltered Workshop was well represented, she said.

The other firms in the area had some participation.

Mt. Pleasant Christian Church had a good turnout of members and the fire department also had several members to donate, she reported.

Mrs. Taylor reported that in addition to the donations, there were eight persons deferred for various health reasons.

She thanked Stator House for offering its new facilities for the visit and also appreciation was expressed to the volunteers who assisted in the drive, which was spearheaded by Billy Ross, a member of the Red Cross blood committee.

The next Bloodmobile visit here will be on April 4, 5 and 6 at East Carolina University.

Board Accepts Sectional Plat

WINTERVILLE — The Winterville Planning Board met on Feb. 27 to approve Section Three of Ragland Subdivision.

Norman Worthington, owner, presented the final plat of Section Three for approval.

The Board accepted the plat with the following alterations:

- Drainage right-of-way easement be shown on the west boundary
- Correct reference points be shown on the final plat
- Identify the southern property on the final plat

The Planning Board recommended the plat for approval by the Town Board at Monday's meeting at 7 p.m.

Quarterly Meet Service Sunday

Quarterly meeting services will be held at Christ's Temple Church Sunday, March 5, at noon.

Speaker will be Elder Rogers of Farmville. Dinner will be served following the services. The public is invited to attend.

Nominate Biko For Peace Prize

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The American Friends Service Committee has nominated the late Stephen Bantu Biko, the South African activist who died in prison of suspected police beatings last fall, for the 1978 Nobel Peace Prize. The Quaker organization, as a co-recipient of the prize in 1947, is entitled to make a nomination each year.

Rev. Dingler To Preach Saturday

Rev. Charles W. Dingler of Castle Hayne will preach at Holy Trinity Church at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, March 4.

The public is invited. The sponsor is Sister Mary Daniels.
