White House Expects Defiance

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House, anticipating initial defiance by coal miners to any back-to-work order, is hoping that available supplies and at least some resumed mining will tide coal-dependent states over until warm weather arrives.

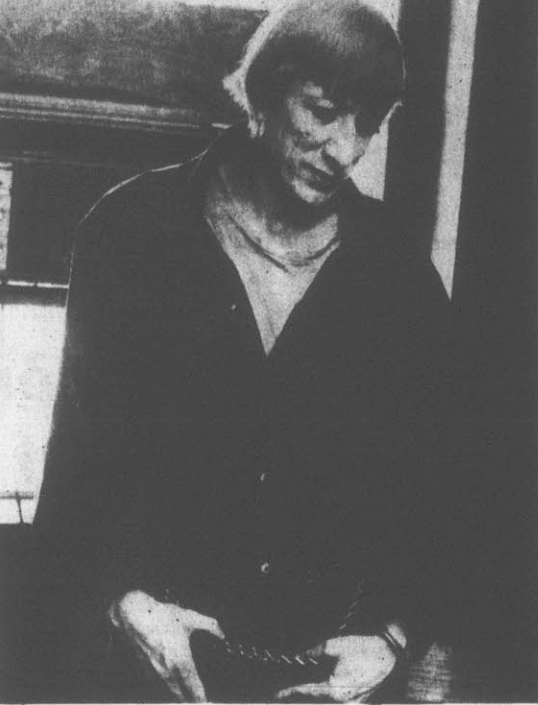

It hinges on several factors convincing miners to return to work, among them court orders, increased wages — and loss of food stamps if they refuse.

CHICAGO (AP) — "Yeah, I killed them. I stabbed and choked them," said Richard Speck, admitting for the first time that, while high on whiskey and heroin, he murdered seven of eight young nurses in a South Side townhouse almost 12 years ago.

"We knocked on the girls' door. No one answered. It wasn't planned or nothing. When we got upstairs we seen them all in the bedrooms asleep. There were three or four bedrooms. I don't know how many."

Flynt Condition Still 'Critical'

By BRENDY MOONEY
Associated Press Writer
LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga. (AP) — Hustler magazine owner Larry Flynt remained in critical condition today after being shot during a break-in this morning.

they had no suspects.

"The only thing we know is the Gazette reporter (who was about 20 feet behind Flynt when he was shot) said he barely heard the shots and that was our best lead," said Sgt. A.W. Greenwood.

Progress on the NC 22-5 Southside housing project under way off Evans Street has been hampered by the weather, it was reported.

But a spokesman for the Chicago Police Department was quick to discount the existence of an accomplice.

"I know he's dead because I shot him six times," Speck was apprehended several days after the murders in a skid row flophouse after a suicide attempt.

According to Laney, the ceiling rent format also has an effect on the private sector because low rent public housing should not be used to house families that can afford private market rent.

sources at the state crime laboratory said today bullet fragments taken from the scene were from a .44 magnum rifle, probably a Marlin deer rifle.

Flynt suffered "extensive tissue damage" in the abdomen and had about two feet of his small intestine, one foot of his large intestine and his spleen removed during surgery in the afternoon and again early today.

He reported that 46 of the 62 foundations in the project have been poured and 38 of the 62 buildings scheduled for construction have been framed.

Speck, convicted of killing all eight nurses, originally was sentenced to die in the electric chair, but the Supreme Court overthrew that sentence. He was resented to eight consecutive prison terms of 50 to 150 years each for the murders.

"Speck's a liar. It's not true," citywide police homicide Commander Joseph DiLeonardi said of the account.

Laney said that when the Authority raised the ceiling rent some two years ago, several families moved out of public housing and into the private market and some bought new housing.

The county prosecutor handling the case got a call about 20 minutes after the shooting saying he wouldn't have to worry about the trial.

Flynt's condition was "more stable" this morning, Hughes said, but would remain in critical condition for at least 48 to 72 hours. Reeves also remained critical after surgery to repair his liver and stomach.

Commissioners adopted a resolution authorizing employees of the Authority with ten or more years service to purchase their military time served to be applied toward retirement.

"If that one girl wouldn't have spit in my face, they'd all be alive today," Speck told Greene in an interview at Stateville Penitentiary near Joliet.

"There was no body found in a boxcar," DiLeonardi said. "All the murders from that night and from several days later have all been cleared up. Only one man committed this crime."

It was pointed out that no more than six per cent of the residents or 30 families out of 531 are affected by the ceiling rent provision and most of them would not be affected significantly.

McGee confirmed that "at least one bullet casing" was found in the abandoned building.

Reeves had bullet wounds in the arm and the side, said Herald Fahringer, one of Flynt's attorneys.

The authorization gives the employees the option to pay a lump sum for their service time and apply the time toward retirement accumulation. The

Just a few hours before the murders, Speck said, he and his accomplice met for the first time on the far South Side. He said at first he and his companion only intended burglary.

He pointed out that the surviving nurse testified that Speck acted alone in the killings.

By eliminating ceiling rent, present occupants who earn a high income would be charged the designated 25 per cent of their income as required by law. Currently, the maximum of $155 per month under the ceiling rent provision is less than 25 per cent of the net income of a few of the

"If I could get rid of the pain, the rest would be duck soup," an aide, Andrew M. Jaffe, quoted Flynt as saying during a brief visit to his room in the intensive care unit.

After the shooting, Judge G. Hughell Harrison declared a mistrial and dismissed the six-member jury hearing the charges that Flynt had distributed obscene materials.

Drifter Chose Simpler Life In Chicken Coop

CHICKEN COOP HOME — Marvin Johnson has been living in this abandoned, unheated chicken coop for the last three months. (AP Laserphoto)

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Marvin Johnson decided to simplify his life, so he ended up living in an abandoned chicken shed in an empty field in Fayetteville.

Johnson calls himself "a pursuer of happiness," adding "it's really a matter of self-realization."

His shack is a crude frame structure with a shingled roof and walls partially covered with shredded tarpaper. It has no door, but there is a crude barrier that keeps some of the wind out.

Johnson declines offers of extra blankets, saying he has some inside his shelter.

He takes his meals in a large trash dumpster near a barbecue restaurant several hundred yards away.

Once they started to empty the dumpster before Johnson, who was inside, had finished his dinner. The driver heard his screams just in time.

Johnson, 26, doesn't talk about himself much. He says he was born in Kansas, the youngest of seven children, and is a high school graduate who spent a year in junior college.

His mother and father are separated, he says, and he left home when he was 19.

He's been calling the chicken shed home for about three months. Johnson said he hurt his foot, which is wrapped in an ace bandage, but he'll move on to warmer weather when it gets better.

Threaten Miners With Loss Of Food Stamps

By RICHARD E. MEYER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — If striking coal miners don't go back to work under a Taft-Hartley injunction, President Carter will hit them where they already hurt: in the breadbasket.

He will take away their eligibility for food stamps, starting next month.

"The administration will act promptly," Joe Shepherd, deputy director of the government's food stamp program, said Monday after the president announced he will seek a court injunction under the Taft-Hartley Act to force the miners back to work.

Pitt Center To Host Meeting

The Pitt County Mental Health Center will host a joint meeting of area directors from the 13 area mental health programs in the Eastern region at the Holiday Inn tomorrow, beginning at 4 p.m.

The purpose of the meeting is to review the current status of funding requests within the Department of Human Resources for the 1978-1979 budget as it relates to the needs of community mental health programs.

Members of the General

Assembly representing the 33 counties which comprise the Eastern Region, along with the area board chairmen, will also attend the session.

Bill McDonald, chairman of the Pitt County Mental Health Board, said, "We are very concerned that the budget priorities transmitted to the Department of Human Resources, which included funds for local community programs as a first priority, do in fact receive priority."

"Mental health centers in this State served 96,969 persons in fiscal year 1973-1974," McDonald pointed out, adding that "last fiscal year, 135,900 persons were served," reflecting an increase of 39,204 persons served during that four-year period.

Featured speakers at the meeting will be William D. Suduth, area director of the Nuse Mental Health Center in New Bern and Pat Webb, deputy director for Community Programs of the N.C. Division of Mental Health and Mental Retardation Services.

Balk At Rhodesia Resolution

By WILLIAM N. OATIS
Associated Press Writer
UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United States is threatening to oppose a Security Council resolution condemning the Rhodesian political agreement signed last week and is trying to get the resolution's black sponsors to modify it. U.S. and U.N. diplomats report. State Department sources in Washington said their government is trying to get the Africans to agree to a statement closer to the British-American position. London and Washington say the agreement signed by Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith and three moderate black Rhodesian leaders is a "significant step" forward but needs to be broadened so it will be acceptable to Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe, the leader of the two guerrilla armies fighting Smith's white regime from bases in Mozambique and Zambia.

British Foreign Secretary David Owen and U.S. Ambassador Andrew Young tried and failed to get all the Rhodesian black leaders and Smith to agree to a British-American plan for transition to black power in Rhodesia. But Nkomo and Mugabe demanded that they control the future black government, and their three moderate rivals inside Rhodesia went ahead and negotiated a settlement with Smith.

The agreement provides for black majority rule in Rhodesia by Dec. 31, but it also guarantees some political and property rights of the white minority for 10 years. Nkomo and Mugabe contend that the blacks who signed the agreement are Smith's puppets and that the whites will dominate any black government headed by them.

The Security Council opened debate Monday on the draft resolution circulated by the 49-nation black African bloc and calling on all U.N. members not to recognize the Salisbury pact. Nkomo arrived in New York Monday, Mugabe was due today and both were to address the council later in the week.

Bishop Abel Muzorewa, one of the three blacks who signed the agreement, was due in Washington today to confer with Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance. He is expected to come on to New York to take part in the U.N. debate.

Denouncing the Salisbury pact as a "sellout," several black delegates criticized the United States and Britain in the debate Monday for not rejecting the agreement.

"If an impression is created that the United Kingdom and the United States or both are willing to quickly abandon their own proposals, a legitimate question would arise as to how serious they were in the first place," said Tanzanian Ambassador Salim Ahmed Salim.

Sings Praises Of Wildfoods

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Dennis Burnette of Greensboro was singing the praises of wild foods at the Nature Science Center here Sunday, and he even made muffins made with cattail flour and pollen sound good.

Burnette, a commercial photographer and member of the North Carolina Wild Food enthusiasts, said he has found many edible plants, berries and flowers growing in the Piedmont. The wild food enthusiasts go on periodic hikes to find edible foods, he said.

Other wild food delicacies in Burnette's repertoire include pickled pokeweed shoots and milkweed buds with cheese sauce, along with dandelion coffee or rose hip tea and deep-fried day lily flowers sprinkled with confectioners sugar.

Cattails, for instance, "are one of the most versatile foods in our natural supermarket," Burnette said. "Almost every part is edible."

In the fall, the brown flower would yield no more than a mouthful of fluff. But in the spring, a narrower flower, the male part, buds atop the bigger, sausage-shaped flower. It can be steamed or boiled and eaten like corn.

Once the pollen forms, it can be knocked off into a bag and used as a high-protein flour substitute. Flour can also be made from the root.

Another favorite of wild food enthusiasts is the lowly chickweed. The plant, with its tiny leaves, is found growing wild in yards, vacant lots and almost everywhere.

"Did you know it came over with the early colonial settlers?" Burnette asked. "It was a garden vegetable in Europe, and it was so popular that they brought it here to cultivate."

The tender leaves can be used in salads and its taste is similar to spinach, Burnette said.

Then there's the relative of mustard greens known as creasy, also called cress or yellow rocket. It tastes a lot like watercress, Burnette said.

He also recommended dandelion greens. Burnette suggested picking the young leaves before the plant's flowers form, eating them raw, steamed or made into a wilted salad with hot bacon grease mixed with a little vinegar poured over them.

Eating wild foods may be fun, but people should not pick foods willy-nilly from their lawns or in the woods without knowing what they are, Burnette cautioned.

Some plants are quite poisonous, he said. Pokeweed berries, for example, are lethal. Certain types of mushrooms are deadly, and Burnette said that is one wild food he rarely harvests.

Spoke Before City Ministers

The Greenville Ministerial Association, which met Monday, heard a talk by Betty Rouse of the Pitt County Department of Social Services about the county's Food Stamp Program. Enacted during the meeting was a resolution honoring a recently deceased member, the Rev. O. J. Rooks. The Rev. Rooks, long a pastor in the Pitt and Martin County area, died Jan. 18.

At Wit's End

By Ermo Bombeck

I just read a pretty shocking figure.

A survey was taken revealing that at the end of the year, 48 per cent of the American people were $500 in debt.

Have you any idea what that means? It means 52 per cent of you out there just aren't trying.

Lord knows, I've tried to do my share. I've overextended ourselves, lived beyond our means, and at one time suffered credit card burns over 3/4 of my hands.

Some people sit around and do absolutely nothing for the national economy. My friend, Mayva, is one of them. She and I will start out early in the morning to shop.

By noon, I will have made three trips to the car and still have a shopping bag so laden that it is severing the fingers from my right hand.

Mayva will have purchased a 15-cent belt for her sweater and two potholders that are seconds. "You make me sick," I told her the other day. "You and your tight fists."

"I don't see anything I need," she said.

"You call yourself an American? What's that got to do with anything? Do you honestly think I enjoy dedicating my life to unpaid balances and second notices? This country was built on the premise that 100 per cent of its people would live above their means. There are only 48 per cent of us living up to our bargain. How does that make you feel, Mayva, to be a part of that vast majority who doesn't care?"

"Something is wrong here. Tell me again how by saving money, I'm letting my country down."

"Look, Mayva, when our forefathers came to this country they were bullish on poverty. They had to spend money to lose it, take it out of their socks and breathe life into our economy. If God had wanted us to save money He would have sent floods to EOM sales. Our whole system is based on supply and demand. We supply the bodies for Halston dresses and our creditors demand payment for them. Do you smell something, Mayva?"

She sniffed. "Not really."

"It's a sale. I smell a sale, Mayva. I do believe it's a half price. Here, give me your hand and I'll slide your charge card

Children's Checks Work For Mom

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: You were way off base to defend the lazy Grandma who gave her grandchildren checks for Christmas.

It's obvious that you haven't lived with small children for some time. A check means absolutely nothing to a small child. But I'll tell you what it means to a small child's mother. It means she has to make a trip to the bank, and then a trip to the store to buy something with the money. That usually means dragging the kids along with her. That may not sound like much of a hardship, but working around the children's naps, it would take my whole day to do it.

I can think of a lot of ways I would rather spend my time than doing my mother-in-law's shopping!

NO CHECKS, PLEASE

DEAR NO: If the gifts happen to be the right size, the right color and exactly what the children need or want—wonderful! But what if they aren't? Wouldn't you rather have a check than the chore of exchanging the gifts? (Most mothers are more familiar than grandmothers with their children's needs and desires.) My mail has been running 20 to one in favor of checks. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: FURIOUS must be kidding! She's the nanny who complained because her mother-in-law gave her a check and told her to buy something for her kids for Christmas from "Grandma."

I should be so lucky! My mother-in-law walks in empty-handed on Christmas Day to pick up HER gifts! Tell FURIOUS I'll be glad to give her my mother-in-law if she'll give me hers.

FURIOUS WITH FURIOUS

DEAR ABBY: My mother is always on my back about something. It's "sit up straight, talk slower, turn down the TV, quit picking your face, go do your homework!" What's a poor defenseless teenager supposed to do anyway?

HASSLED

DEAR HASSLED: Sit up straight, talk slower, turn down the TV, quit picking your face, or go do your homework.

DEAR ABBY: This for the person who was looking for an alternate to the traditional cigars handed out on the arrival of a new baby.

We had a baby last October, and being a non-smoker, I had no intentions of handing out cigars. Instead, my wife boiled three dozen eggs and wrote "IT'S A GIRL" on each one with a pink felt-tipped pen.

It made a great hit in the office.

RON G., GRANADA HILLS, CALIF.

DEAR RON: Considering that an "egg" started the whole thing, you hatched a great idea!

CONFIDENTIAL TO "J" and "F": What parents leave in their children is far more important than what they leave TO them.

Coal Is Essential To Nation

Unionized coal miners have rejected a new contract by a two-to-one margin and President Carter has invoked the Taft-Hartley Act.

Taft-Hartley requires the president to appoint a three member board of inquiry which is to report back to him.

Following this, a court order can be obtained theoretically to send the miners back to work.

The problem may well be that the miners would ignore the back-to-work order, even in the face of legal penalties such as fines or jail terms.

Thus it is clear why the president was reluctant to use Taft-Hartley. The latest rejected contract was worked out under White House supervision and President Carter was hopeful of avoiding further action.

With the turn-down by the miners the next logical step was use of the Taft-Hartley. What next? The president could turn to seizure of the mines by the government, a move many miners apparently want, but one which definitely is not desirable for the nation.

The administration is in a difficult position, but the president should deal sternly with the miners who, after all, have turned down an extremely lucrative contract.

Coal is essential to the welfare and jobs of millions of Americans. The miners deserve fair compensation for the difficult work they do. On the other hand, the United Mine Workers should not be allowed to hold the coal mines as hostages for browbeating the nation.

Further Hospital Additions Launched

Even as additions are under construction at Pitt Memorial Hospital, planning is underway for additional units.

A committee was appointed by the Pitt Board of Commissioners to plan for a $3.8 million bed tower addition slated for 1981. State funding for the project is anticipated.

The additional beds will be needed because Pitt Memorial is becoming a referral hospital due to the medical school staff and other specialists here.

There is further improvement ahead for Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Volunteers Assist Change

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—There is more to volunteerism than the personal satisfaction which comes to an individual; there's the potential for future change in the community.

That facet is being driven home for state-level specialists in the governor's Office of Citizen Affairs.

Dr. Sandra C. Thomas who heads up that organization finds that once people get directly involved, run into the hard knocks of political realities, learn the ropes and the personalities which make things happen, they begin to bring about change in the political process.

"My feeling is that it is one thing to simply belong to a civic organization and attend the meetings and make a collective effort at doing things. But it is quite another to make an individual effort," says Dr. Thomas. That personal involvement rather quickly dispels the prevailing apathy and political naivete so widespread in North Carolina and elsewhere.

Political Action

Volunteerism, she feels, may well lead to increased citizen involvement, concern, interest, and a new breed of political activism in the broadest sense.

"Once people get out into volunteer activities, they gain a new feeling of being involved in—and an understanding of—the process of government, that's what politics is all about," Dr. Thomas says.

Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr. has pushed volunteering as the foundation for getting people involved in their own communities, pushing for improvement, and strengthening traditional bonds between neighbors.

For his Office of Citizens Affairs, that effort has become more than just a routine promotional activity. Emphasis is going more and more toward thorough training of volunteers in workshops so that more important work can be done, and so that occasional friction between the professionals and the volunteers can be alleviated.

NOBLITT

Volunteerism is reaching toward a professional level to the degree that specialized training in administration, management, and personnel concerns are required; some universities and some governmental agencies are now gearing up to provide such expert training.

In North Carolina, the state has hired four full-time volunteer coordinators to help local communities set up effective programs. The coordinators work in four "high priority" areas: education, energy, children with special needs, and community crime watch.

Coordinators

The coordinators are traveling the state to bring together local citizens and both local or state agencies so that volunteers will find the work which best suits them, and those who need volunteers can locate them.

A central volunteer skills bank is being established in which files are kept on the skills being offered by volunteers and the needs of various groups. More than 500 entries are already on hand as this effort is just beginning.

Another step will be a statewide network of contact people to help bring together those who would serve and those who would need them.

"Our goal is to double volunteerism in this state during the governor's term," says Dr. Thomas. "There are still counties which have not become involved. It's hard to tell right now just how many are at work, but there are promising signs of increase."

THE INSIDE REPORT

Real Problem Of Jordan

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Continuing expansion of Hamilton Jordan's jerry-built power at the White House, despite the titillating public debate over what he did in a Washington singles bar, reveals much about the Carter presidency and hints at future problems.

Once President Carter's principal aide became the target of political cartoons and Johnny Carson monologues, old Washington hands presumed Jordan's days were numbered. That betrayed the establishment's inability to understand Jimmy Carter. The Oval Office perception that anti-Jordan ridicule is a cultural attack on the Georgians now in power solidifies Jordan's position.

The result is more than mere survival. Rather, the unfavorable publicity coincided with the evolution of Jordan into a de facto chief of staff who will not and cannot fulfill the duties of that post. Because nobody else can perform those duties while Jordan holds the job, the trouble afflicting the White House in the first Carter year may be perpetuated.

Serious problems posed by Jordan's unsuitability for the role are now eclipsed by his difficulties with the gossipists. Other presidential aides say that for Mr. Carter to downgrade the beleaguered Jordan at this time would invite anti-Carter snipers to pick off others in his official family.

This admirable sentiment, however, hints at an "us-against-them" bunker mentality. By the account of presidential aides, the attack on Jordan stems partly from the Washington establishment's scorn for the Georgia upstarts and partly from a desire to damage the President himself. Such intense emotion tends to bury the real Jordan problem.

Jordan spent his early White House period as a patronage dispenser, but in easy, unpublicized steps has taken on the difficult assignment of coordinating action and policy. He was first assigned the task of political analysis on all questions, then given the job of coordinating all policy steps with political ends. He now runs meetings of both the senior staff and overall staff and attends national security staff meetings. Jordan has been the point-man on everything important: Lance, Panama, coal, Mideast, SALT.

This looks suspiciously like the conventional chief of staff that both the President and Jordan abjure, but herein lies the danger. While seeming to perform that necessary function, Jordan cannot really meet its administrative requirements. Of all the Georgians close to Mr. Carter, press secretary Jody Powell might best be qualified to handle that job, but never Jordan.

A symptom is his refusal to return press or congressional telephone calls. He explains this by saying he does not want to preempt press secretary Powell or White House lobbyist Frank Moore, but in fact he never returns anyone's call.

How does he explain this phobia about the telephone, unparalleled since the notorious phonophobia of Czar Nicholas II? Friends of Jordan insist it is not arrogance, but shyness and administrative incompetence. "Hamilton just can't handle hundreds of phone calls," one staffer told us.

If that administrative task is beyond Jordan, obviously he cannot handle what other presidential aides feel is urgently needed: a reduction of Mr. Carter's routine, an early-warning system for trouble ahead, a high degree of political coordination. While Jordan stays as ineffective chief of staff, obviously no effective chief can be installed.

Moreover, Jordan is no formulator of coherent administration philosophy. Some colleagues say he is a committed liberal; others that he is more pragmatic than ideological. He was instrumental in the President's decision to scrap the B-1 bomber, but his argument was Mr. Carter's duty to fulfill a campaign promise.

Jordan's forte is instinctive political analysis. He first warned the President of Panama Canal trouble and mobilized a campaign to meet it, though this was hardly a unique insight. In truth, at 33, Jordan is a bright young man with limited background and good political insights, who like other mortals is sometimes right, sometimes wrong.

Power has not accrued to him because of incendiary circumstances to ride into the street. But he obviously is turning the possibility over in his mind. He rides the bike half-way down the driveway to the street; then he goes to the curb line. Finally with a triumphant look around, he circles out into the street and back.

Here is the garden of Eden story enacted over again. Unfortunately it is easier for adults to recognize the scenario when it is acted out by children than when the adults themselves play the lead roles.

"JERRY, MY SON, I'M GIVING YOU A NEW MANTRA.... PRES-I-DENT /"

Distributed by Los Angeles Times SYNDICATE

By WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY, Jr.

Post Versus The Times

On the whole, I would say that the Washington Post got the better of the argument with the New York Times, which had denounced the Post's pre-publication of the Haldeman journal as a "second-rate" burglary. The reason the Post got the better of it is that it was able to use the Times own arguments against itself, namely those by which the Times had justified publishing the Pentagon Papers in 1971.

"The New York Times," chuckled the Washington Post, "was in the forefront of those taking sharp issue with the argument that was being advanced by the Nixon Administration's Justice Department. We have in mind the argument of John Mitchell, for example — and, yes, H.R. Haldeman — that those 'purloined papers' could not be published for the reason that somewhere along the line they had been 'stolen' from the government."

The Post made a further comment of a legal kind. If the Haldeman papers had been published by the Times according to schedule, the Post (and every other journal) would have been entitled to treat the revelations as news and transmit a precis to its readers. No one doubts this, provided that in doing so, copyright provisions limiting the number of words quoted directly were respected. Now — says the Post, or rather says the Post's lawyer — what the Post did was break a publication date. But it takes two to establish a publication date, and the Post was never a party to such a contract. Whee! (One can see the triumphant expression on the face of Clark Clifford or whoever thought that one up.)

Now to be sure, there is a little overhang, although it does not directly affect, by the above reasoning, the right of the Post to publish. There is the, er, whatever you decide to call what Nancy Collins did. It cannot formally be termed a burglary because it is not proven that she forcibly entered another person's premises with felonious intent. Theoretically, she might have come across a copy of the book left by some careless editor in a taxicab.

After all, if one of America's premier physicists could lose the plans for the atom bomb in Grand Central Station, a copy editor could lose Haldeman's memoirs in a taxi cab. But suppose she went right into the printing plant without prying open the door? In that event, there was no technical burglary.

If, during her tour of the plant, she picked up a copy of Haldeman's journal as a souvenir, then she can be prosecuted for theft. But is it grand larceny? Not if the real value of the product is the measure of the offense. Seen in that way, what she picked up was probably fifty cents' worth of paper. The courts have always had difficulty with this problem. Steal the original of Lincoln's Farewell Address and the defense will take the position that what you stole was a sheet of paper, that the alchemical increase in value is not recognized under common law. That, by the way, is one of the reasons why the theft of credit cards has been so attractive to criminals.

Meanwhile, dear Nancy Collins (she is a sweetheart) has not made it easy for the prosecution, taking the position that what happened in that plant was a mysterious corporealization of the manuscript in her innocent, prehensile hands.

All in all, an interesting caper, though a very expensive one for the Times and its clients. Still, something should be done about it.

The absolutists on the one side (I think of Mr. John McMullan of the Miami Herald take the position that news of the character withheld until now by Haldeman belongs to the

A Canal Across Alabama

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Once upon a time, a powerful nation called Panama decided to build a canal across Alabama and that made Sen. James B. Allen very angry.

Allen is the senator from Alabama, who is leading the fight against ratification of the Panama Canal treaties. A tall, round-shouldered man with slicked-down reddish hair, Allen holds the floor for hours, arguing in an ash dry, nasal drawl for one of the pocketful of amendments and parliamentary ploys he keeps at hand.

Supporters of the treaties listen impatiently, when at all. And when one of them gets the floor, as Sen. John C. Culver of Iowa did the other day, and wants to use a hypothetical state to make a point, Alabama seems to pop to mind.

"If there was a strip through Alabama — let us take this hypothetical example — if there was a strip through Alabama 50 miles long and 10 miles wide," began Culver.

Culver went on. He embellished and Allen seethed.

Then it was Allen's turn to speak.

"I believe that if the distinguished senator from Iowa should ever see fit to leave the Senate he would have no difficulty doing extremely well as a successor to Hans Christian Anderson or the Grimm brothers in relating and weaving fairy tales."

"He is not the first senator who has used Alabama in this example. I must confess it is getting under my skin just a little bit."

"I am no longer offended, but I do suggest that the State of Alabama not be used in any hypothetical fairy tale. Let a senator use his own state or use 'State X.'"

Tom Vincent, Pitt County native, says he will pay attention to the whimpering and whining of his pet dog from now on.

Saturday night, Mr. Vincent returned home after attending a show in Greenville to hear his dog, which was tied up, scratching, growling and otherwise trying to attract attention. Thinking the dog wanted to get loose, Mr. Vincent untied him and went on to bed.

The dog, however, was not satisfied at being loose, and continued his barking. Finally, Mr. Vincent got out of bed and went out to see if anything was wrong. When he did he found the dog lying at the door with a large racoon by his side.

Ronald Hocutt of Raleigh, assistant director of the State Highway Safety Division, and John L. Skinner of Littleton, secretary of the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners, brought the highway safety program to Greenville today.

Emphasizing the "Safety Week" proclaimed by Governor Hoey for this week, the two officials said they are on a tour of the principal eastern Carolina sections in an effort to create interest in the safety program.

To the editor:

Are we, the people of Pitt County, so interested in so-called progress and the dollar that we are going to let all the beautiful farmland in this county be placed under concrete?

Industry is very necessary, but will we sacrifice our food supply for money? I remember the rainy day we farmers tried to awaken the people of our dear county, state and country to the farmers' plight. Some remarks were none too nice to the farmers. Some went so far as to say the farmer gives me the "belly ache."

Dear friend, if we allow any power of any kind to come into our county and tell us how, why and when we can do this or that, we all are going to have a "belly ache" of another kind. Houses and jobs for all people are very important, but please think of tomorrow — ask ourselves now — not too late — where did all the farmers go? If we are zoned into the city, will we be exempted from city taxes? Don't push the farmer too far off the land. Remember, we reap what we sow. Let all of us reason together. What is progress? It can mean speed — shoot ahead. Yes, it also means improvement. Let's don't be in too big a hurry or shoot ahead into something, or let any power of any source make us not take our time and really know what we are letting our county in for. The greatest progress is to be sure that this progress helps us all in the best way.

Railroads Claim Safety Gains

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Close to 1,600 commodities classified as hazardous materials move by railroad today, compared to about 30 or 40 products so termed at the beginning of the century.

According to the railroads, this evolution of society, rather than negligence, is the primary reason for spectacular and tragic wrecks, such as those recently at Waverly, Tenn., and Youngstown, Fla.

Sensitive to periodic waves of criticism, the Association of American Railroads is about to release a background paper citing what it feels is a steady improvement in safety.

In 1976, the paper relates, 1,684 people were killed in rail accidents, a reduction of 1,000 since 1966. And of that total, 458 fatalities were classified as trespassers on railroad property.

But other statistics are making examiners, including the railroads', pause to reflect.

The great majority of deaths, 1,168, occurred at grade crossings, some in the middle of towns. Forty-two percent of accidents were caused by track or structural defects.

Add to these figures the rise in hazardous commodities, such as liquefied petroleum gas, chlorine, anhydrous ammonia and vinyl chloride, and the mixture becomes volatile, as does the criticism.

Seeking to defuse the issue, the Association of American Railroads acknowledges its seriousness but maintains that statistics always must be put in perspective.

It claims that 91 percent of hazardous cargo accidents involve trucks rather than railroads. Seventy-five percent of the accidents and 80 percent of the fatalities occur on the highways, it adds.

In many cases, it says, there is no satisfactory alternative to railroad movement of dangerous commodities. They must be shipped, and they must be shipped by rail.

"Imagine the outcry if 80 million tons of volatile, corrosive or otherwise dangerous materials were suddenly transferred to the nation's highways," said Richard Briggs, association vice president.

But the concern of millions is not alone, or even mainly, with which is safer, highway or railway traffic. Of greater concern is what is being done to reduce or even eliminate safety hazards.

What, besides spending money, are railroads doing about defects in tracks and structures, the most common cause of accidents?

For one thing, trying to convince the public that there is little relationship between accidents and the inability of some railroads to maintain their roadbeds.

No correlation was found, said Briggs, author of the report, between roads with a high degree of track maintenance and those with poor maintenance. Poor railroads reduce speed to avoid accidents, he said.

The track maintenance record is impressive, he states: more than $9 billion for capital improvements and maintenance in 1977, achieved despite some of the lowest earnings since World War II.

Do not be fooled by appearances, the association seems to say in conclusion. Railroads accidents are spectacular, but they also are relatively rare.

FORBIDDEN FRUIT

The story of the temptation and fall of Adam and Eve tells how our first parents brooded over the fact that there was one tree in the garden, the fruit of which they were denied. But the more they thought about it, the more they wanted the fruit of that tree. Nothing was needed to involve them in catastrophe but the suggestion of the serpent that they eat and enjoy it.

As this is being written, a small child is riding his tricycle in front of the house. He has been told never under any

Time And Coal Running Out For Utilities In N.C.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Time and coal are running out for North Carolina's public utilities, so the news that President Carter has invoked the Taft-Hartley Act in an effort to get coal miners back to work was greeted with general relief. Still, there was some concern over whether the president had acted in time. Gov. Jim Hunt feels "it's too early to tell whether it (invoking Taft-Hartley) will be of any help to us," said Stephanie Bass, the governor's assistant press secretary.

The coal supply at the generating plants of the state's two major power companies continued to dwindle. Carolina Power and Light reported it was down to a 36-day supply and Duke Power reported it had a 46-day supply on hand.

Opinions were divided on whether the president should have acted sooner in invoking the Taft-Hartley Act, under which miners can be ordered to return, to work for 80 days while a contract is being negotiated.

"I wish he had acted sooner," said Hugh Wells, director of the Public Staff of the state Utilities Commission. "It's not too late, but it would have been better if he had acted sooner." "I think he acted at the appropriate time," said Brian Flattery of the state's energy division. "We'll have to wait and see what the compliance is. There have been all sorts of pessimistic reports. I certainly hope if they do not comply, Carter will seize the mines. State energy officials and representatives of the power companies are scheduled to meet Thursday morning to evaluate the situation. The state already is in Phase II of its emergency energy plan. Under Phase II, power companies reduced the voltage they delivered by 5 percent, power customers have been urged to eliminate all unneeded outside lighting and citizens have been urged to conserve energy. The next phase would bring mandatory requirements to reduce power usage. "We're not at that phase yet," said Flattery. "If there is no more flowing coal, we will probably reach that level next week." Spokesmen for CP&L and Duke said they were going to continue to appeal to their customers to conserve electricity in every way they can until normal deliveries of coal are resumed.

cost to the Authority would amount to .13 per cent of the employee contribution to the retirement system. The city and Greenville Utilities have already approved the military service purchase option for its employees.

Two vacancies were reported in the housing units operated by the Authority during February, according to Sallye Streeter, director of tenant affairs. Average rent in the five developments amounted to $74.43, she said.

Mrs. Streeter said that rent averages included: NC 22-1 (Meadowbrook), $65.13; NC 22-2 (Kearney Park), $75.92; NC 22-3 (Moyewood), $78.64; NC 22-4 (Moyewood), $77.46; and NC 22-6 (Newtown), $67.46.

No wonder Allen is a little sensitive. His fight against the treaties is not going well.

Late one afternoon, Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, who is anxious to speed the pace of the debate, urged Allen to call up another of his amendments.

Allen replied, "With my track record on the amendments offered and not accepted, I believe I shall wait until another day to offer another amendment and see if I can phrase an amendment that might be more acceptable to the membership."

"I believe 38 is the highest number of votes we have received, and I feel we ought to get somewhere in the neighborhood of 51 or something like that."

public as a matter of right. With that position I am not sympathetic for philosophical and pragmatic reasons. Human impressions, analyses, calculations, are the core of private property. Besides, as a practical matter there is no civilized way to pry this information from someone unwilling to divulge it, other than purchasing it. Whence the whole notion of the copyright.

What we need, surely, is an extension of the copyright code designed to grant the principal the right to protection against the breaking of a publication date set by himself. All publishers should be invited to subscribe to that code. The logical sanction against recalcitrants would be to deny them copyright protection for their own material. It shouldn't be necessary to codify gentlemanly conduct, but as a matter of fact, often it is.

brilliance but because the President trusts, loves and needs him. White House over-reaction to attacks on Jordan in his time of personal ordeal is, therefore, understandable and even commendable. But beyond that, what one aide calls "the symbiotic tie" between Jimmy Carter and Hamilton Jordan may prevent needed changes and dangerously deepen the shortcomings of the President's first year.

Copter Victims Are Identified

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — One man was killed and two others were hurt Monday when a Marine Corps CH-53 helicopter crashed and burned at Camp Lejeune near here.

The dead man was identified as PFC Rickey E. Knable of Chambersburg, Pa. He was the crew chief.

The pilot of the Sea Stallion helicopter, Maj. Darrell Smythe McIlung of Jacksonville, was not hurt. The copilot, Lt. Douglas Jensen of Salt Lake City, was treated for shock and the first mechanic, Corp. Thomas Stockton of Milan, Ill. suffered facial cuts.

N.C. To Launch A 'Goat Pool'

GRAHAM, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina will inaugurate its first goat pool here on March 15. If all goes well, and if the second pool, scheduled for June 27, is also a success, farm observers say it could mean a new area for North Carolina agriculture to break into — including goat milk and cheese.

The young goats are products of the state's infant goat business. They will be sent north to growing ethnic markets which use the meat for religious holidays and feast days.

The market and North Carolina producers are so new that no one is sure how much the Tar Heel kids will bring. "Goats have been increasing in the last few years," said Chuck Miller of the state Department of Agriculture. "But it's not the type of thing to turn the world upside down."

Seniors Club Plans Luncheon
Town and Country Senior Citizens' Club held its regular meeting Thursday at the St. Paul's Episcopal Church Fellowship Hall.

The Rev. Adrian Brown opened the meeting with devotion. Members planning to attend the luncheon on March 14 are requested to make reservations with Mrs. Sarah Ashton by March 12.

Dr. Brewster introduced Jeff McAllister, the director of the Pitt Council on Aging. McAllister spoke to the members on the functions of the Council.

Refreshments were served following the meeting.

ALL OR NOTHING
CLAREMONT, Calif. (AP) — Former CIA Director George Bush said yesterday he's thinking about running for president and won't settle for any lower elected office. But he said he might consider being secretary of state under a Republican president.

He said he was being maintained, a gun shop in the village has declared itself off-limits to our police and four of our policemen don't even have driver's licenses.

Polsky said police have neglected to respond to calls and have failed to testify in court.

"Our jail had to be closed because it was not meeting the minimum standards; the men are not well trained, there have been fights between police and between police and citizens," Polsky added.

"No files are being maintained, a gun shop in the village has declared itself off-limits to our police and four of our policemen don't even have driver's licenses."

Volunteer officers of the Greenville Rescue Squad were installed at the annual installation supper Friday night.

They include: Captain Pratt Williamson, 111, Les Causey, 21, Teresa Stokes, 21, Brent Stocks, Secretary Robin Little and Treasurer Mickie Savage.

Mayor Percy Cox, who attended the dinner meeting, said, "I think the rescue squad is made up of the most dedicated men and women in Greenville. Thank you for the fine job you're doing."

Buddy Shaw, a member of the Goldsboro City Council and commander of the North Carolina Rescue and First Aid Association, said "Greenville is not the only people to be proud," of the squad.

"The whole state is proud of it," citing the fact that a heavy duty rescue team from Greenville took first place in the international rescue contest sponsored by the International Rescue and First Aid Association in St. Louis, last year.

Noting that Greenville won its first international rescue championship in 1962, and over the years has been a top competitor in competition in North Carolina, Shaw said, "the one thing that stands out the most," over the years, is that Greenville, "has always been one outstanding sportsman...not criticizing...real champions."

Shaw said the Greenville squad is recognized across the State because it has, "put forth the best in dedication to training. Many rescue squad members across the state have learned because Greenville taught them," he emphasized.

Shaw noted that Pitt has been selected for a pilot life support squad program. "The governor is looking at it. It's being done here because," of the interest and dedication in the county.

If there is a purpose in living, Shaw said, it is, "helping others." The Greenville squad, he said, has spent, "long hard hours of work," toward that end.

"The average citizen," Shaw said, "does not realize the long hours of work," spent in training and other activities that benefit the community.

Last year, members of the Greenville squad responded to 1,268 calls within the city limits and 442 calls in Pitt County, resulting in 13,651 miles traveled and 1,568 man-hours responding to emergency situations.

Squad members also spend 5,283 man-hours on stand-by as various public events and taught 88 classes to various groups during 1977. Much more time was spent by the 11 paid men and 19 volunteers in training activities.

Mrs. Ruth Hardison of Wilson, and Mrs. Peggy Graves of Walstonburg, two brothers, Jessie Harrell of Walstonburg, and Elmer Harrell of Maury; 32 grandchildren, 49 great grandchildren and four great great grandchildren.

The family will receive friends at the Farmville Funeral Home from seven to nine o'clock tonight. The family will be at the home of Mrs. Tom Speight near Walstonburg.

Fire Entire Police Force

ROBBINS, Ill. (AP) — All 15 police officers in Robbins have been fired amid charges some of them committed armed robbery, burglary and car theft.

It is not the first time the Chicago suburb of 9,600 people has had trouble with its police. Over the years there have been frequent allegations of assaults against citizens, shakedowns and thefts.

The entire force was suspended in 1970 after two people were shot to death by police.

Douglas Polsky, attorney for the village, confirmed Monday that village trustees voted 3-1 to fire the police force effective today although the officers will be paid through April.

He said the predominantly black village has received a $1.5 million federal grant to upgrade its police department and build a new village hall. It will rely on sheriff's officers and those of nearby suburbs for protection until a new force is hired, he said.

Polsky said the mass firing was prompted by a variety of wrongdoing and slipshod work.

"Evidence was not inventoried, bond money and narcotics have disappeared, there have been a large number of brutality complaints, and police have been accused of armed robbery, burglary and car theft," he said.

It was not clear, however, whether any specific criminal charges were outstanding against any of the ousted officers.

Polsky said police have neglected to respond to calls and have failed to testify in court.

"Our jail had to be closed because it was not meeting the minimum standards; the men are not well trained, there have been fights between police and between police and citizens," Polsky added.

"No files are being maintained, a gun shop in the village has declared itself off-limits to our police and four of our policemen don't even have driver's licenses."

Area college students home this week on Spring Break may want to vote by absentee ballot in the May 2nd primary.

Procedures now in operation provide for one-stop voting, according to Margaret Register, executive secretary of the Pitt County Board of Elections.

Students may apply for a ballot, receive the ballot, and vote on the spot, by going to the Pitt County Board of Elections, 201 East Second Street. Ballots may also be mailed back to the Board of Elections.

As an alternative to applying for a ballot in person, students and others who will be out of town on the May 2nd election date, may write for an application for a ballot or have a close relative apply for an absentee ballot at the Board of Elections.

All applications for absentee ballots must be received at the Pitt County Board of Elections by 5 p.m. April 26.

Plan Hearing Here On Testing Program
The new statewide Annual and Competency Testing legislation is being implemented for the first time during March and April.

On March 15, both the Annual Testing Commission and the Competency Testing Commission will be in Greenville to hold a public hearing. The purpose of the hearing will be to explain both testing programs and to answer any questions by the public or school personnel attending.

The meeting will provide an opportunity for interested persons to gain an understanding of the basics of each program. The hearing will be held at 9 a.m. in the Willis Building on the corner of First and Reade Streets, Greenville.

As a follow-up to this meeting, persons may also go by the Pitt County Board of Education offices on March 22 at 9 a.m. and review actual copies of the competency tests which were administered.

In mid-July the results of the trial competency testing will be available. At that time a meeting will be held in order to adequately share this information with the public.

Oratorical Winner
Isabella Malby, a senior at Rose High School, is winner of the Pitt County Oratorical Contest sponsored by American Legion Post No. 39.

For her topic, Ms. Malby spoke on "The 14th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution." As winner of the county level competition, she will now advance to the district contest level to be held at the American Legion Post on Thursday, March 9.

Mrs. Malby is the daughter of Mrs. Maria Malby. Her instructor at Rose High is Mrs. Carol Bowman.

The annual American Legion Oratorical Program was first held in Norman, Oklahoma in 1938. Subjects for debate in the competition must be on some phase of the American Constitution.

Offer Workshop On Gun Safety
A hunter and gun safety workshop will be held on Saturday, March 11, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Pitt County Wildlife Reserve near Falkland.

The course will be taught by members of the Cardinal Rod and Gun Club and is sponsored by the Pitt County 4-H Clubs.

Cost for the workshop will be 50 cents and each participant should bring a bag lunch and drink.

Interested persons, 12 years and older, should pre-register by calling the 4-H office at 758-1196 by March 10.

Natural Gas Prices Will Rise: Hodges

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Democratic senatorial candidate Luther Hodges Jr. said the price of natural gas will have to be raised eventually, but the blow will have to be cushioned for North Carolina's natural gas consumers.

In a statement read at a news conference Monday, Hodges said the state's gas customers "can't afford such sudden jolts" as immediate deregulation of natural gas prices would bring.

While "letting prices rise sharply through deregulation will certainly stimulate conservation...immediate deregulation would price many North Carolinians right out of the market for the gas they need to heat their homes and cook their meals," Hodges said.

"We must give the American family and the national economy time to offset price rises by making more efficient use of what natural gas they must burn or by switching to other sources of energy," Hodges said.

He called for immediate passage of "President Carter's energy program in the Congress or, at the very least, a comprehensive compromise package."

In a reference to the nationwide coal strike, Hodges said, "If the problems in coal continue to hinder its potential, then it becomes imperative that we look more closely, and more rapidly, at other energy alternatives."

"The coal strike and the dollar decline," he said, "are events which should be telling the American people that they don't have to run out of gas or face a blackout to be in real trouble."

Gillman Will Be Retained

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina University will retain controversial basketball coach Larry Gillman, chancellor Leo W. Jenkins announced this morning.

Gillman, who has been on the hot seat for several weeks, had little to say when he heard the news. "I have no comment. I'm just going out and start recruiting."

The Pirate coach, who finished the season with a 9-17 record his first season, has two years to go on a three year contract.

"I have completed a post-season evaluation of the university's basketball program," Dr. Jenkins said in a prepared statement. "This process included a review of recommendations by many interested persons who follow and support East Carolina athletics.

"It is my decision that it is in the best interest of the university to retain coach Larry Gillman as head basketball coach.

"I am confident our basketball program will continue to improve. The university is grateful to all of our many friends who are providing loyal support for our sports programs."

Athletic Director Bill Cain said, "We will continue to work toward improving the basketball program."

Cain said he had no further comment, nor would he answer any questions on the subject put to him.

A source who asked not to be identified said that the school's athletic council had turned in a unanimous recommendation to Dr. Jenkins that Gillman's contract be terminated.

Reportedly, the council met for several hours on Friday, without reaching a decision. Coach Gillman was then called in before the council for another meeting, later Friday.

After that, the council reached its decision, placing it in the hands of Dr. Jenkins.

Questions began to be asked about the program early in the season, after the Pirates lost a hard-fought game to Indiana, then were routed in their home opener by UNC-Wilmington.

After that came a close win over small Alderson-Broadus followed by a defeat at the hands of the University of Maryland.

The Pirates then lost two straight games in the First Union Tournament in Charlotte, and the questions began to arise more frequently. Defeats at the hands of N.C. State and South Carolina followed before the Pirates snapped that against William & Mary.

During the season, the Pirates had several high points, including a road victory over Old Dominion, the team that handed them their worst loss of the season, by 30 points.

That loss, coupled with one to UNC-Asheville, and to weak Richmond, brought on new pressures, and following a loss to Georgia Southern in the final home game of the season, Gillman threatened to resign because of the "flack" he was getting from the fans.

That was followed by reports on television that he would be fired at the end of the season.

The year wound up last Wednesday with a loss at Virginia Tech, but the expected announcement, one way or the other on Gillman, was delayed from day-to-day until this morning.

Kentucky Holds To Its No. One Perch

By GARY MYERS
AP Sports Writer

For the first time in a month, a No. 1 team has managed to hold onto its ranking for two consecutive weeks in The Associated Press college basketball poll. The Southeast Conference champion Kentucky Wildcats remained at the top of the latest and next-to-last balloting of sportswriters and broadcasters.

1. The voting, which reflects games through Sunday, Kentucky, 24-2, received 37 of the 52 first-place votes cast, and a total of 994 points. The Wildcats beat Georgia and had an easy time with Nevada-Las Vegas in action last week.

UCLA held onto its runner-up spot, collecting 11 first-place votes and 926 points. The Bruins defeated cross-town rival Southern Cal and cross-country rival Michigan to improve their record to 24-2.

Marquette remained in the

No. 3 position. The defending NCAA champion Warriors netted a pair of first-place votes and collected 826 points. Marquette defeated Butler and squeezed past Detroit and enters the tournament with a 24-3 record.

The remainder of the Top Ten bears little resemblance to last week.

DePaul jumped from sixth to fourth. The Blue Demons collected one first-place vote and 605 points. DePaul, 25-2, defeated Valparaiso and Illinois State in action last week.

New Mexico also moved up two spots, improving to the No. 5 position. The Lobos received 566 points and upped their record to 24-3 with two wins.

Michigan State moved from ninth to sixth with two Big Ten wins. The Spartans, 23-4, received 456 points. Arkansas, which was No. 1 three weeks ago, plummeted from fourth to seventh after its 70-69 loss to Houston in the Southwest Conference post-season playoffs. The Razorbacks enter NCAA play with a 28-3 slate.

Duke made the most significant improvement of the week. The Blue Devils leaped from 15th to eighth after capturing the tough Atlantic Coast Conference tournament. Duke, 23-6, received 382 points.

Kansas dropped from fifth to ninth after losing to Kansas State in the semifinals of the Big Eight tournament. The Jayhawks, 24-4, received 379 points.

Notre Dame rounds out the Top Ten, dropping from seventh. The Irish lost to Dayton in its only action of the week and finished the regular season at 19-6.

North Carolina is at the top of the Second Ten. The Tar Heels are followed by Louisville, Florida State, Houston, Utah, — which received one first-place vote — Texas, Illinois State, Syracuse, Detroit and San Francisco.

Eleven of last week's Top Twenty teams lost, and thus, only Kentucky, UCLA and Marquette held onto last week's ranking.

Georgetown and Providence dropped out after losses in the ECAC tournament. They were replaced by Houston — which knocked off Arkansas and Texas in winning the SWC tournament — and San Francisco.

The Top Twenty teams in The Associated Press college basketball poll, based on games through Sunday, with first-place votes in parentheses, season records and total points. Points based on 20-18-16-14-12-10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1:

1. Ky. (37)	24-2994
2. UCLA (11)	24-2926
3. Mqtte (2)	24-3826
4. DePaul (1)	25-2605
5. NMexico	24-3566
6. MichSt	23-4456
7. Arkansas	28-3396
8. Duke	23-6382

9. Kansas	24-4379
10. NDame	19-6247
11. NCaro	23-7200
12. Lou'ville	22-6198

Wildcats, Irish Warm Up For Tourney

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Kentucky and Notre Dame tuned up for the NCAA Tournament Monday night while Miami of Ohio captured the 32nd and final berth and Mississippi State, upset at being bypassed for post-season play, was upset again, this time by lowly Mississippi.

Top-ranked Kentucky completed a 25-2 regular season by defeating Vanderbilt 78-68 behind Kyle Macy's 22 points. But the Wildcats were generally unimpressive and left Coach Joe Hall disappointed.

Meanwhile, 10th-ranked Notre Dame, 20-6, trounced Chicago Loyola 83-68 as Dave Batton scored 14 of his 18 points in the second half.

Archie Aldridge with 24 points and Randy Ayers with 21 paced Miami to an 84-67 rout of Eastern Michigan. By winning, the Redskins clinched the Mid-American Conference crown and the dubious honor of facing third-ranked Marquette in the opening round of the tournament.

And that brings us to red-faced Mississippi State. Just a few hours after State Rep. David Bowen lodged a "strong protest" with the folks who issue the NCAA bids, the Bulldogs dropped a 61-60 squeaker to Mississippi, the Southeastern Conference's last-place club.

Before the game, Coach Ron Greene pointed out that his second-place team lost only one game in February, by two points to champion Kentucky.

Greene, however, was speechless after Ole Miss erased a 59-53 deficit and won it on two free throws by freshman Elston Turner with eight seconds left.

Vanderbilt held Kentucky to a 47-all standoff with 14 minutes remaining but the Wildcats then went on a 21-7 burst to nail down the triumph. Rick Robey added 17 points for Kentucky, while Vandy freshman Mike Rhodes topped all scorers with 24.

"Our defense was not a good effort and I think it was bad that we played this way in preparation for the tournament," said Hall, whose team meets 13th-ranked Florida State in the opening round.

Kentucky may have had Florida State on its mind rather than Vandy, which lost 17 games for the first time in 52 years.

Notre Dame, in its final game before meeting onrushing Houston in Tulsa, pulled away from an eight-point halftime lead against Loyola and boosted the margin to 21 in the closing minutes.

Mississippi State was annoyed at being overlooked since the SEC runnerup went to either the NCAA or the National Invitation Tournament in each of the last four years.

"Eight of the 32 teams in the (NCAA) tournament have as many or more losses than us," said Greene. "And I thought playing in the SEC was supposed to mean something."

All it meant Monday night was aggravation as Ole Miss got a 28-point performance from John Stroud and the Bulldogs missed a desperation 30-foot shot at the buzzer.

In other SEC action, Auburn got 35 points from Stan Pietkiewicz in beating Tennessee 107-94.

Louisiana State took third place in the SEC by routing Alabama 103-85 behind Durand Macklin's 25 points.

Bertie Rips Williamston

WILLIAMSTON — The Williamston track team opened the 1978 season on a sour note yesterday, bowing to Bertie, 119-17.

The Tigers managed to win by one event, as Ricky Rodgers won the mile run. Bertie captured first in each of the other events.

W. Hargett, J. Outlaw and W. Barnes were each double winners, while R. Parker was a triple winner. Parker won the high jump, the high hurdles and the low hurdles. Hargett took the long and triple jumps, Outlaw won the two-mile and the 880, while Barnes won the 100 and 220 yard dashes.

The Tigers return to action on Thursday, hosting Ahsokie. The girls track team will also open its season on that date.

SNOW HILL — Greene Central's tennis team fell to its second straight defeat yesterday, but it took a fine effort by 4-A Eastern Wayne to pull off the 5-4 win.

Two of the singles matches went to three sets before being decided, and the two teams split those. Greene Central also lost one of the matches by a pair of 7-6 scores.

Eastern won four of the six singles and added the number three doubles to pull out the win. Greene Central, now 0-2, travels to Eastern Wayne for a return match on Thursday.

Summary:

Jay Hughes (GC) defeated Craig Martin, 7-6, 6-1.
Jeff Talton (EW) defeated Steve Cook, 6-3, 2-6, 7-5.
Pete Alwater (EW) defeated Robert Carraway, 6-2, 6-4.

Billingham Goes To Detroit Tigers

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
AP Sports Writer

Jack Billingham is a Detroit Tiger but Jim Bibby may or may not be a Cleveland Indian. The Tigers, seeking to bolster their pitching, acquired the 35-year-old Billingham from the Cincinnati Reds in exchange for two minor leaguers — outfielder John Valle and pitcher George Cappuzzello.

So barring another trade, Billingham knows which uniform he'll be wearing this season. Bibby, however, isn't at all sure.

"I have no preference about which team I go to," the right-hander said Monday after he was declared a free agent by an arbitrator in a grievance he filed over the Indians' late payment of a bonus.

For openers, the Philadelphia Phillies are interested in Bibby, who was 12-13 with a 3.57 earned run average last season as both a starter and reliever. Texas officials indicated that they, too, were interested in re-acquiring Bibby, whom they traded to Cleveland on June 13, 1975, along with Rick Waits and Jackie Brown for Gaylord Perry.

Waits is still an Indian but Perry is a San Diego Padre. Brown recently was released by the Montreal Expos and Bibby, well, who knows? He might even wind up back in Cleveland.

Gabe Paul, president of the Indians, said the club would make an attempt to re-sign the pitcher.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for the Tigers said Billingham "has the experience and the ability to help our starting rotation." Billingham has a lifetime 119-95 record but was only 10-10 last year with the Reds, plus a sky-high 5.22 ERA.

An old baseball axiom is that you never have too much pitching so the Kansas City Royals are keeping a close eye on Steve Busby, the one-time ace of their staff who has missed almost two full seasons with arm trouble.

Another hurler attempting a comeback is Larry Dierker of the St. Louis Cardinals, 2-6 during an injury-plagued 1977. Dierker surrendered a two-run homer to Roger Freed during an intrasquad game but Manager Vern Rapp said he thought the right-hander "threw harder than at any time last season."

In other training camp news: —Three Baltimore Orioles were injured. Third baseman Doug DeCinces suffered a broken nose on a bad-hop grounder and will be out for at least a week, outfielder Andres Mora sprained an ankle and pitcher Don Stanhouse aggravated a pulled muscle on his left side.

—Boston Red Sox pitcher Mike Torrez was hit on his throwing arm by a line drive in batting practice. The Red Sox suffered a major scare but Torrez got only a minor bruise.

—The Montreal Expos renewed the contracts of outfielders Andre Dawson and Warren Cromartie for what General Manager Charlie Fox called substantial salary increases. —New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner met with catcher Thurman Munson and relief ace Sparky Lyle. Both players are signed but reportedly want more money.

Spanarkel Admits Duke Is New Premier Team Of Atlantic Coast

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Duke's Jim Spanarkel allowed as how he hadn't given it much thought, but yes, Duke did seem to be the new premier team in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Duke's victory in Saturday's ACC championship game. "I don't know. I haven't thought about that yet...Well, in a way, I guess we are. We're the new champs and we have everyone coming back next year. I guess you could say that, but I'm not thinking about next year. I'm thinking about winning some more this year." In another corner of Greensboro Coliseum, Wake Forest's Demon Deacons were looking toward a much bleaker future — one without the likes of Rod Griffin. They were saddened that the brilliant forward wound up his career without an ACC title. "It's hard to believe we never won the ACC title while he was here," said sophomore guard Frank Johnson. "I really thought it would happen today (Saturday). I thought so last night and I really thought so at halftime when the Deacons led 42-37."

Apparently, Johnson was not giving enough credit to Duke's potent offense or its zone defense, one of the biggest and best-polished in the country. "I just doesn't seem like their zone is that good," said Johnson. "It doesn't look all that good when you're down there against it. It looks like you can go right inside of them, but I guess there size back there takes over when you do that."

"It's going to be tough for anyone to knock them off now," he said. "Every team in the league is going to have to dig a lot deeper against them next year."

East Carolina Will Field First Women's Softball Team This Year

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

This spring will mark the first season for East Carolina University's women's softball team, a new entry into intercollegiate athletics.

Alita Dillon is serving as the coach of the team, and looks for a good year, considering that it is the first for the team.

"Everyone has played, either in high school or on city leagues during the summer," she said. "So we have no problem with experience. Most of the girls know other girls who play for other schools, so they are pretty excited about the season."

Mrs. Dillon looks for a pretty strong infield and a fairly fast outfield to give the Lady Pirates good defensive strength. "We are pretty much two deep in every position. We have 20 girls on the roster, but two of them are hurt, and one may play very little if at all. So some of the girls may play several positions."

"We hope to play a lot of them in our early games, so that we can take a good look at everyone. With the poor weather we've been having, we haven't really had a good chance to look at everyone."

Among those who will be missing for Monday's opening contest with N.C. Central will be Mary Bryan Carlyle, listed as the top pitcher on the team. "She was injured in an accident, and we are hopeful that she'll be out soon to help us," Mrs. Dillon said.

In the meantime, Lee Sellers will be the number one pitcher, with Gaye Hines backing her up. Peggy Copeland and Sandy Swain will handle the catching duties.

Jan McVeigh and Teresa Whitley will share first base, while Debra Phelps, Hines and Sue Cobb are working at second base. LuAnn Davis and Miriam Sutton are vying for the third base position, with Gale Kerbaugh, when she finishes basketball, and Jo Barrow working at shortstop.

Outfielders include Donna LaVictoire, Denise Dixon, Kathy Grant, Addie Carter, Robin Faggart and Kathy Brooks.

Hines is the only senior on the team, while there are eight juniors, six sophomores and three freshmen.

On the pitching, Mrs. Dillon said that it was still uncertain. "We're working hard. Anyway, in slow pitch, people are going to hit the ball, and you depend on defense. That's more fun, because you have more people involved with the play of the game."

The hitting has been looking fairly good, according to the coach. "Nobody is belting it out of the park, but then, the park is a pretty good sized one." The Lady Pirates will play their home games at Evans Park, where the fence is 25 feet beyond the 150-foot minimum. Mrs. Dillon added that no admission would be charged for home games.

East Carolina will be one of eight Division I teams in the state this year. The others include N.C. State, Appalachian State, North Carolina A&T, Campbell, Elon, the University of North Carolina, UNC-G, and Western Carolina. "We'll be playing a tournament at the end of the season to determine the champion," Mrs. Dillon said. UNC-G is the defending champion.

"We just don't have any idea how we'll do since this is the first year of the program," the coach said. "I'm not promising big things until I see what we can do."

Mears Won't Return To Coaching Job At University Of Tennessee

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Ray Mears was called a top-notch mentor, a gentleman and friend by some of his Southeastern Conference counterparts when he bowed out as Tennessee's basketball coach after 16 years.

Tennessee's athletic director Bob Woodruff announced Monday night after the Vols dropped their final game of the season, 107-94 to Auburn at Auburn, Ala., that Mears, sidelined all season by mental depression, would not coach Tennessee next year.

"All of us who love Tennessee athletics regret very much that Coach Ray Mears has decided not to return next year as Tennessee's head basketball coach," Woodruff said. "He is a great coach, and the Mears era has provided Tennessee with an excellent basketball program and record."

Auburn Coach Bob Davis said Mears' teams were always well prepared.

"I say this jokingly but I'm glad he's out of the league," Davis said. "He's the greatest coach I have coached against. He can do more things with a team than anybody I've ever seen. He's one of the few people I consider one of my close friends."

Mears, 51, was hospitalized in Radford, Va., for several weeks of electric shock treatment at the beginning of the 1976-77 season. He later returned to active coaching and, with the help of Bernard King and Ernie Grunfeld, guided the Vols to a 22-6 record and a share of the SEC title.

But his doctor again ordered him home the day before practice was to begin last fall, and Cliff Wettig, Mears' top assistant, was named acting coach.

"It is sad for the conference to lose a coach like Ray Mears because of the pressures that college basketball put on him," Vanderbilt Coach Wayne Dobbs said. "I wish him well and good health. He is a tremendous coach and a great gentleman."

Joe Hall, coach of No. 1-ranked Kentucky, said, "We are losing one of the most outstanding coaches ever to coach in the SEC. We will miss his competitiveness and his fine brand of basketball."

Asked how the decision was reached, Mears said, "It was a mutual decision between me and the athletic committee. I have no immediate plans but right now I am still employed by the University of Tennessee and our staff will be involved in recruiting. My greatest concern is that the program at Tennessee will grow."

Woodruff said he hoped to find a new coach soon after the National Collegiate Athletic Association tournament.

Spinks Had Rib Injury

NEW YORK (AP) — Leon Spinks was suffering from a rib injury when he won the heavy-weight crown from Muhammad Ali, the new champion's lawyer says.

Milton Chwasky, Spinks' attorney, disclosed Monday the rib cartilage injury and said it might prevent him from fighting in the near future.

"Before the fight, I didn't know about a rib injury because I wasn't involved in training," Chwasky said. "After the fight, he had a rib injury."

The 24-year-old Spinks took the title from Ali on a split decision in Las Vegas, Nev., Feb. 15. The injury reportedly occurred before the bout.

"I just found out about the extent of the injury today," Chwasky said. He said Spinks would be examined later this week by Dr. James Nicholas, a noted sports physician.

However, Spinks was seen dancing in the wee hours at a New York discotheque Feb. 23 with no apparent sign of an injury.

The announcement of Spinks' injury came a day before a reported meeting between Bob Arum, president of Top Rank, Inc., which has the promotional rights to Spinks' next three fights, and Bob Biron, manager of challenger Ken Norton, for a Spinks-Norton bout in May or June. Biron has agreed to a title fight for which Norton would get only $200,000.

CBS has the television rights to Spinks' first defense against anybody but Ali for a $1.55 million package, of which Spinks would get $1.05 million.

Interviews Have Taken New Look Overplanting Okay If Harvest Limited

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — I got to worrying recently about old-style Hollywood interviews that sort of gush. They seem rare now, endangered by a rash of hard-hitting tales of Tinseltown business scandal.

How to detect the rare, old-style story? Well, it often starts by saying a show, call it "The Wayward Wail," is on TV tonight. Then it adds: "It is a gem. Don't miss it. It is that good."

TV movie 'marks a new direction in my 20-year career, which began in 1958 when I was Jack in Eugene O'Neill's little-known, "The Play Ends in Two More Hours."'

The auction was unremarkable. North bid both his major suits, and had enough in reserve to continue on to game when his partner showed a club stopper.

Declarer won the heart lead in his hand and ran the jack of diamonds. East won the queen and returned the jack of hearts. This was allowed to win and the heart continuation was taken by the king.

The king of diamonds was led from dummy, and East made a fine defensive play—he refused to take his ace. Declarer tried the club finesse, but when that failed he had no way to make his contract. He only had one entry to his hand, and he needed two to set up and run the diamonds. What is your verdict?

We salute you if you found South guilty of negligence in handling his entries. If the opening lead was an honest fourth-best, the hearts were going to break 4-3 (declarer was looking at the deuce in dummy). In that case, declarer could afford to lose two hearts and two diamonds.

South should win the opening lead in dummy to preserve the ace of hearts

Successor To Veterans Office

KINSTON — Hubert Sutton of Kinston, former veterans coordinator with the Veterans Office at Lenoir Community College, is taking up his duties this week as VA Representative at LCC.

Sutton is succeeding Ron Brown of Greenville who held the post for the past five months, it was announced today.

Brown has been shifted to heavier duties in the Greenville area. Sutton has been serving Wayne Community College.

The LCC office processes more than 500 veterans' applications each quarter.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: H equals V

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A change in the government's flue-cured tobacco program will allow farmers to substantially overplant their acreage allotments yet retain eligibility for price support, provided the lower stalk leaves are not harvested.

The announcement was made here today by Ray Fitzgerald, administrator of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Under the change, flue-cured tobacco farmers can plant up to 120 percent of their acreage allotments and still receive price support if they do not harvest the four lower leaves of each stalk, exclusive of the plant bed leaves which normally are not harvested anyway.

Growers who do not agree to this arrangement will receive price support only if they limit their plantings to 100 percent of their allotments. For the 1977 crop, the acreage limitation was 110 percent of allotment.

The change was proposed Dec. 20 and is designed to enable farmers to produce and market a larger part of their poundage quota in higher value, upper stalk tobacco and less lower

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, MARCH 8, 1978

Your Daily HOROSCOPE
from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You can make headway under the influence of the New Moon now by carrying through with what you have agreed to do. Don't force issues, but let situations develop in their own time. Not a good day to take chances since judgment is not good.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Planetary conditions are difficult now and you cannot think out a problem intelligently, so be patient. Pay pressing bills and avoid headaches in the future. Emotional life is good, though.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't rely so much on friends for assistance today since they have problems of their own. Look to a partner for the aid you need and get good response. Avoid the social and save money, energy.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Show respect to big-wigs or you could certainly get into hot water now. Get work done efficiently and please both higher-ups and co-workers. Be more loving with mate, loved one.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Others are in a bad mood, so be sure to cheer them up and all goes well. A new acquaintance should be cultivated since this person is sincere. Avoid pretenses.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Instead of griping about work you promised to do, get right to it and reap the rewards. Listen to advice of kin that can be most helpful to you.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Keep silent with co-workers otherwise you could stir up a hornet's nest and big arguments could ensue. Read that letter carefully and get the most out of it. Be kind with loved ones.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Don't make any changes where your work is concerned because you are bored with it. Tune up your system instead. You soon have better luck, also. Light recreation only is best now.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You have a talent that needs perfecting, so go at it now. Take no chances where your health is concerned.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) If you are blunt with kin you can start arguments that are best avoided now. Use reason and all works out fine, also in the business world. Take no risk with credit either.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Try not to lose your temper and then drive or you could have a bad accident. An unexpected letter arrives that can be good news for you. Take it easy and be happy with kin.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Study practical affairs and if funds are hard to come by, look into a new interest that brings you benefits right away. A higher-up will give support you need, also.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Stop getting so uptight over little matters and do something big and constructive and get on the right track. Strive for happiness.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be full of curiosity about everything and could get into much trouble if you do not teach early to concentrate on own affairs. A good chart for the government worker, the researcher, the detective, or whatever has to do with humanitarian professions.

LWV To Mark 'Finance Day'

Wednesday has been designated by the Greenville-Pitt County League of Women Voters as "League Finance Day."

"Good government through informed citizens is what the League of Women Voters is all about," Margaret Wirth, the local League president, says. She has announced the kickoff of the League's 1978 finance drive.

Letters were sent out last week requesting contributions, and tomorrow LWV members will call on prospective contributors who have not replied to these letters.

League members volunteer time to gather and distribute factual information on political candidates and issues, monitor

New Varieties Of Corn Are Added To List

RALEIGH — Commissioner of Agriculture James A. Graham announced today that 386 hybrid corn varieties, have been recorded for sale in North Carolina in 1978.

The varieties are recorded by the N.C. Department of Agriculture to identify hybrids which have been sold in the state previously which are being offered for the first time, or which have been genetically modified from previous hybrids under similar designation.

According to the commissioner, 27 companies offer hybrid corn varieties for sale in the state.

Graham said that the recording is in no way a recommendation for any hybrid. "Farmers should select their hybrids for planting based on their production experience, yield trial results, or demonstration observations in their communities."

Orders Review Of Voter Rolls

GRAHAM, N.C. (AP) — Orange County was ordered Monday to remove from its voter registration rolls any full-time student at the University of North Carolina whose hometown is listed by UNC as being outside the county.

"I am finding as a fact that a large number of students are registered to vote in Orange County and that a large proportion of those students are not bona-fide residents of Orange County," Superior Court Judge James H. Pou Bailey said in issuing the order.

He ordered the county to check its voter registration rolls against UNC records in making the determination.

Joseph L. Nassif, chairman of the Orange County Board of Elections, said he thought no more than 2,500 students now registered to vote would be affected.

Bailey also ordered the county board of elections to use written questionnaires rather than oral questions in deciding whether students who want to vote in Orange County are legal residents of the county.

With the exception of one line asking the prospective voter's occupation, the Orange County questionnaires are to be identical to those that have been used, ever since a 1972 state Supreme Court ruling, in Wake County and other areas of the state with transient populations.

Bailey's orders were included in a preliminary injunction he issued in a lawsuit brought by the Orange Committee, a conservative group of Orange County residents that contends that thousands of UNC students have been allowed to vote illegally.

The defendants in the lawsuit, the four-member Orange County board of elections and its 121 election officials, may appeal Bailey's order to the North Carolina Court of Appeals. They could ask the appeals court to stay the order.

The board did not say Monday whether an appeal will be filed.

Bailey also said in his order that the county board should presume in future registrations that a student lives with his parents. Bailey said the burden should lie on the student to prove himself a resident of the county.

Joseph L. Nassif, chairman of the Orange County board of elections, said after the hearing that Bailey "sure said an awful lot, and a whole lot of it didn't have any meaning."

For example, Nassif said, "If you're a full-time student, 35 years old and married, and your parents live somewhere else, you'd be purged off (the rolls)."

Find Abandoned Newborn Baby

COLUMBIA (AP) — A baby girl, its umbilical cord still attached, was found under flowers atop a grave near Columbia Monday. She was reported in good health after being taken to Richland Memorial Hospital.

Ambulance attendants named the infant Grace.

Attendant Rod Hitchens said, "Grace seemed like the name to give the child because it was a miracle" that she survived.

He said the infant had blond hair and weighed between 8 and 9 pounds. A bobby pin had been used to clamp the umbilical cord.

Hospital personnel estimated the baby was between 2 and 12 hours old when found by a woman visiting the cemetery. The woman was placing flowers on her husband's grave when she heard the child crying.

She wrapped the baby in a coat before calling police.

The Richland County Sheriff's Department said a canopy was over the grave where the child was placed.

WHEREAS, it is the intention of this Council to conduct a hearing at the regularly scheduled March 9, 1978 meeting of the City Council in order to permit any person who may desire to be heard on the question of whether or not the closing would be detrimental to the public interest, or the property rights of any individual; and

WHEREAS, that portion of Radio Road proposed to be closed is described as follows:
BEGINNING at a point in the northern right of way line of Radio Road, said point being located S. 85 deg. 30' W., 5 feet from the southwest corner of the Garner Wynne Mann Property, and running thence, S. 85 deg. 30' W., along the northern right of way line of Radio Road, 350.10 feet along the W. C. Taylor Property to the southeast corner of the ABC Moving & Storage, Inc. Property; Thence, S. 04 deg. 30' E., crossing Radio Road, 40 feet to the southern right of way line of Radio Road; Thence, N. 85 deg. 30' E., along the southern right of way line of Radio Road, 50 feet to a point; Thence, N. 04 deg. 30' W., along the southern right of way line of Radio Road, 50 feet to the point of BEGINNING.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, THAT THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF GREENVILLE, NORTH CAROLINA, that it is the intention of the City Council of the City of Greenville, North Carolina, pursuant to the provisions of G.S. 160A-299 to permanently close the dedicated but unopened portion of Radio Road as herein above described. That this Resolution shall be considered and acted upon at the next regular meeting of the City Council, to be held on the 13th day of February, 1978.

PERCY R. COX, MAYOR
ATTEST: Lois D. Worthington, City Clerk

Angry Reaction To Carter Among Union Miners

By The Associated Press
"It ain't gonna work," said one mine union official. Another called it "slave labor." An Ohio miner was even more succinct as he watched President Carter on television invoking the Taft-Hartley Act. "That does it," he said, and walked out.

Similar comments were heard across the coalfields Monday as miners heard Carter announce the first moves to order them back on the 91st day of the United Mine Workers strike, a day in which even harsher power cutbacks were announced in the coal-short Midwest.

Carter named a panel whose job it will be to recommend an 80-day, back-to-work order during which new efforts could be made to negotiate a contract. The panel has scheduled a hearing Wednesday, and a federal judge could be asked for an order that same day.

Administration sources also noted miners who violate a government order might become ineligible for food stamps and that refusal to work could result in fines or jail sentences for local union leaders.

Army staff officers, meanwhile, were reported reviewing civil disturbance control plans, but Pentagon officials said federal troops would be used in the coal strike crisis only as a very last resort.

Carter acted after miners from Appalachia to as far west as Oklahoma rejected, by a more than 2-to-1 margin, the latest offer from the Bituminous Coal Operators Association. They had voted over the weekend and Monday.

Whether the 166,000 striking miners would return to the job under orders was in serious doubt, given the UMW tradition of no-contract, no-work, and the attitude of many miners' toward Carter's latest move. Some miners interviewed Monday said they would go back, but many more said they would not or would wait for local union votes.

UMW President Arnold Miller predicted fewer than half the strikers would return to work under Taft-Hartley. "And those that don't go to work will try to stop those that do," he said. "It's a sticky situation."

Some miners expected violence should any men return to work. Chester Newsome, president of Local 8100, which favors the contract, said his truck was smashed and overturned Monday near Pikeville, Ky.

Some miners and union leaders also said miners would go back only if the government seized the mines — one other option open to Carter and one they felt would put the onus on mine operators as well as miners.

"Nobody is going back. We want seizure, not Taft," said miner Terry Hodge near Cabin Creek, W.Va. "Nobody can make us do nothing. United we stand, divided we fall. We're going to stand."

Asked why he wanted seizure, Hodge said, "That way we go to work under the federal government, not the coal operators ... I think they — the miners — will go back under that. No way Taft-Hartley."

Normally under a Taft-Hartley injunction, strikers return to work under the terms of their expired contract. But Carter said Monday that he would "seek to permit any company" to offer the wages contained in the rejected contract.

That contract called for an immediate $1 an hour increase in the miners' $7.80 hourly wage.
