Coalfield Violence Threat Hangs Over A Resort To Court

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amid warnings of violence in the coalfields, a presidential panel is holding a hearing on the 93-day coal strike so the Carter administration can go to court to force miners back to work.

The three-member board of inquiry that President Carter was required to create under the Taft-Hartley Act planned to write a report immediately after today's hearing. Once that report is handed to the president — that could be tonight or Thursday — he may direct the attorney general to obtain a court injunction against the walkout.

Administration officials say a federal takeover of the mines is still possible if a court order is ignored.

The board planned to hear union and management representatives tell their sides of the dispute at a session described by one official as "pretty much a pro forma thing."

Immediately after the hearing, the board planned to write a report, without recommendations, on the status of the dispute, issues involved and chances for a settlement.

Until the panel submits its report to the president, he cannot seek an injunction. The administration has said it expects to go to court by Thursday.

But many of the 160,000 striking miners are expected to defy a back-to-work order, and some strikers predicted there would be fighting between those who try to obey the law and those who don't.

"The majority of the men — 95 percent — doesn't want to go back to work. And if the other 5 percent try to work, there will be violence. You can rest assured there will be," Patrick Burke, a United Mine Workers official in Ohio, warned Tuesday.

UMW President Arnold Miller, who said a number of his members would return to work, also acknowledged that "there will be some problems."

In West Virginia, a miner warned Gov. Jay Rockefeller that if he brought in National Guard troops to enforce an injunction, "there will be war."

Under Taft-Hartley, the miners can be ordered back to work for an 80-day "cooling off" period. The administration does not expect all the striking miners — or even most — to obey the injunction. But it hopes enough return to work so coal-dependent states can avert sweeping layoffs and power cutbacks threatened by dwindling coal reserves.

If too few mines reopen under Taft-Hartley, administration officials say they are actively considering federal seizure of the mines as an alternate way to increase soft coal production.

Robert Strauss, Carter's trade negotiator and a key adviser on the coal strike, said Tuesday that the administration may ask Congress for legislation that would allow a federal takeover of the mines. But first, he said, "We've got to take a run at this (Taft-Hartley)."

Carter rejected an immediate seizure of the mines when he invoked the act on Monday.

Strauss disclosed on Tuesday that he and other administration officials had favored invoking Taft-Hartley and drafting seizure legislation at the same time.

But working against the option of a government takeover was the length of time it would have taken to get the necessary legislation from Congress.

Miners, who rejected a proposed contract by a 2-1 margin over the weekend, have expressed a preference for working in government-operated mines rather than under a Taft-Hartley injunction.

Some administration officials say that even in the face of mass defiance by the striking miners, an injunction may encourage the reopening of nonunion mines that were shut because of threats of violence from strikers and allow coal already mined to be shipped to areas in short supply.

Two Interviewed By Wm. Friday

CHAPEL HILL — University of North Carolina president William C. Friday has interviewed two men nominated by the East Carolina University Board of Trustees Monday as candidates for the chancellor's post at the Greenville school, and will recommend to the Board of Governors the appointment of one of them.

The Board of Governors has scheduled a 10 a.m. Friday meeting on the ECU campus to name the new chancellor.

The two educators were chosen from a field of four finalists — selected from over 200 potential choices — by a search committee which started work last year to find a replacement for Dr. Leo Jenkins, who will retire as ECU chancellor July 1.

The two final candidates were chosen after the four finalists visited the ECU campus and met with more than 100 student, faculty and administration leaders and trustees of the school.

The four candidates included: Thomas B. Brewer, a Texas Christian University administrator; John McCall, senior vice president and provost of the University of Cincinnati; Dr. Haskell M. Monroe, associate vice chancellor for academic affairs at Texas A and M University; and former Secretary of Education in Virginia, Robert R. Ramsey Jr.

McCall and Ramsey said today that they could not comment on whether they were among the two finalists, while Monroe said, "I don't know." Brewer could not be reached for comment.

Sources close to the selection process said today that the man recommended for appointment as chancellor will be in Greenville, Friday, for the Board of Governor's meeting.

Guerrilla Base Inside Zambia Strike Target

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — The Rhodesian army says it killed 38 black guerrillas and lost one man in its first admitted strike into neighboring black-ruled Zambia in 5½ years of war with black nationalist guerrillas based there.

The military command reported it made a "self-defense" raid on a guerrilla camp at Luangwa, 10 miles inside Zambia, after learning that guerrillas of Joshua Nkomo's Zimbabwe African People's Union were planning a major attack into white-ruled Rhodesia.

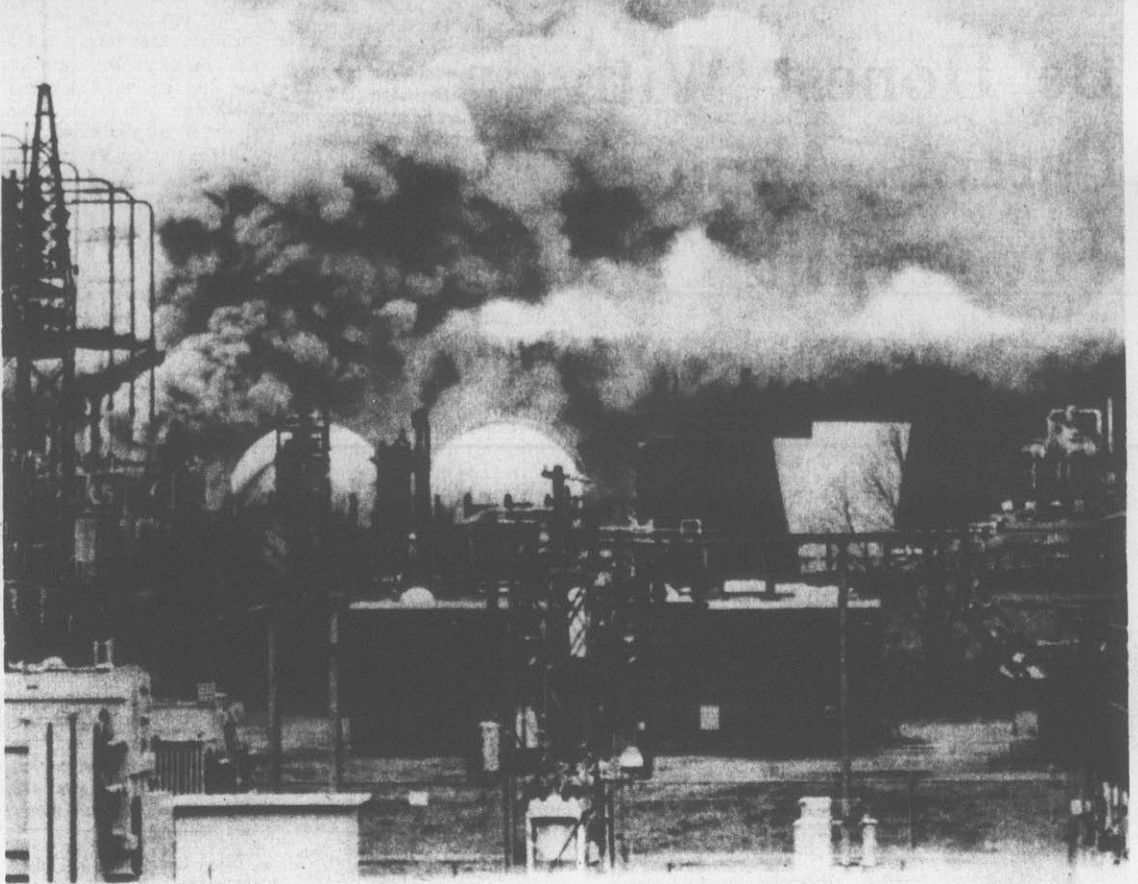

Zambia charged that the Rhodesian strike "unprovoked and indiscriminate." A government spokesman in Lusaka said Zambian troops shot down six Rhodesian planes, but the Rhodesians said no Zambian troops or civilians were in the vicinity of the camp.

The raid was disclosed as the U.N. Security Council continued debate in New York on black African demands that it condemn the agreement last week by Prime Minister Ian Smith and three black moderate leaders to give the black majority control of the Rhodesian government by Dec. 31.

Nkomo and Robert Mugabe, the leader of guerrillas based in Mozambique, were scheduled to speak in the council debate this afternoon. They oppose the Smith agreement because it shuts them out, and they contend that they alone are entitled to control the future black government of Rhodesia, or Zimbabwe as it is to be known.

Bishop Abel Muzorewa, one of the black signers of the pact with Smith, was in Washington to confer with Secretary of State Cyrus Vance. He said he hoped to defend the agreement in the council debate, and a Western member of the council said he gave the bishop "an even chance" of being heard. But the council refused to hear a representative of Smith.

Fumes Forced Evacuation

CHEMICALS IGNITED — Four persons were injured and 1,000 persons were evacuated when insecticide ignited at the Vicksburg (Miss.) Chemical Co. plant. One worker was hospitalized with burns and the others were treated and released. Area residents were allowed to return to their homes several hours later. Concern over toxic fumes brought an alert to Tallulah, La., a town of 9,640 about 20 miles west of Vicksburg, but a shift in the wind blew the smoke away from the city. Company officials said they had no explanation for the initial blast which triggered smaller explosions and fires in barrels of raw material used to make the insecticide. (AP Laserphoto)

Energy Crisis Plan For County Schools Approved

By DEBBIE JACKSON
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Education last night approved an Energy Crisis plan which will go into effect for the county schools if necessary.

Associate Superintendent Tom Craft said that "we anticipate by Friday having to perhaps reduce energy consumption by 15-20 percent."

The anticipated mandate requesting a cut in energy consumption would come from Carolina Power and Light Co. Craft said that the Energy Crisis plan proposed for the schools is "similar to the one implemented last February."

Under the program, the only reason for using heat in unoccupied buildings would be "to protect the building proper," said Craft.

The Energy Crisis plan provides that heat will be shut off in corridors, heating systems will be turned on one hour prior to school's opening and shut off one hour prior to closing, and all evening activities would be cancelled. All outside doors would be shut in order to preserve heat.

The Board voted to implement the cutback if such action is necessary.

At present, five county schools are cutting off their coal-fired heating systems for three hours per day. Craft noted that the coal supply in these schools is running low but "with good weather conditions" there will be enough to last four weeks.

In related business, the Board heard a report from George Laws, School Energy Officer. Laws said that under a state grant, he has been conducting on-site surveys of all the county schools in order to determine the efficiency of individual heating systems.

According to Laws, the most common problem in all county schools is overheating.

"Some schools are in very good shape; however, there are rooms with thermostats reading in the 90s," he added. "We certainly don't want anyone cold."

Laws noted that the recommended temperature for school classrooms is between 68 and 72 degrees, with 68 degrees being the "target number" and 72 degrees being the "attempted limit."

He added that there "will be some variation in this," but that every attempt will be made to correct inefficient heating.

"We're not asking the schools to sacrifice, just to bring the temperatures down to normal levels."

According to Laws, the worst heating conditions exist at D.H. Conley and North Pitt. "The junior highs and senior high schools are not generally a problem."

Laws proposed several conservation measures which would (1) provide adequate heating for all spaces in the schools, (2) eliminate waste and abuse by overheating, and (3) build safeguards into the present facilities to insure conservation wherever possible. He added that by following these measures, schools could cut 15 percent off their budget for heating and lights.

The Board voted to implement these measures and note any changes that need to be made, with a final vote of approval pending at the next monthly meeting.

In other business, the Board approved the reinstatement of Greg Holland as a bus driver for the county school system. "On Feb. 21, we received a parent petition...calling for the reinstatement of this very fine young man," said Superintendent Ott Alford.

Holland was the driver of the bus involved in the Feb. 3 accident in which first-grader Gina Carraway, was killed. "I would personally recommend that Greg be reinstated by the Board," Alford added.

The Superintendent also received approval by Board members to contact the Highway Department, requesting their "best service in scraping all roads after a snow or ice storm, and including the shoulders of said roads." This matter had not been dealt with by the Board sub-committee which was appointed. (Continue On Page 14)

Hold Suspect In Flynt Case

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — A young man arrested in the back of a local tavern was being held today on a Georgia fugitive warrant that named him in the attempted murder of pornography king Larry Flynt.

As Flynt lay in critical condition with a bullet near his spine in a Lawrenceville, Ga., hospital Tuesday night, a police teletype here punched out a message from Georgia authorities: Arrest Teddy Morris.

"They even told us where he was," said Capt. Don McManus of the Norfolk Police Department.

Morris, described as a short man in his 20s, was being held for Georgia police, who were expected to arrive sometime today. Morris will also have to undergo extradition proceedings.

Norfolk detective Sgt. R.F. Miller said early today that Morris, address unknown, had not been formally charged with any crime, but was named in a warrant on two counts each of attempted murder and aggravated assault in the shooting of Flynt and his attorney.

Flynt, the 34-year-old owner of Hustler magazine, and his attorney, Gene Reeves Jr., 47, were shot Monday in Lawrenceville where Flynt was standing trial on a charge of distributing obscene material.

Flynt had his spleen and parts of his intestines removed in surgery at Button Gwinnett Hospital, and a bullet remains lodged near his spine. Reeves, 47, who suffered stomach and liver damage, was listed in satisfactory condition.

FARMVILLE — With a three-to-two vote last night, Farmville Commissioners accepted a $24,000 low bid to demolish the old Farmville High School building.

The vote came after months of discussion among townspeople as to whether the building should be saved for a community center. Pleas to save it were made last night by Lucy Rumley, W. Alex Allen and W. R. "Rusty" Duke Jr. Rumley continued to plead that consideration be given for use of the building, located in the 200 block of North Main Street, as a community center. Allen and Duke asked only that it not be demolished right away, that some use might be found for it when it would be too late.

Commissioner Jack Farrior made a motion to accept the low demolition bid and it died for lack of a second. He then moved that every entrance be closed by masonry, having expressed fear for the safety of a child who might get into the building.

Commissioner John T. Walston then asked that Farrior's original motion be restated, saying he'd second it. This he did, and Commissioner David Stowe voted with the two to carry the motion.

Farrior and Commissioner Leroy Redden said during the discussion time they believe the building will be too costly to renovate, maintain and heat, cool and ventilate. Farrior pointed out that it does not meet State Building Codes.

Mayor Sara Albritton said

she wishes the building might have been saved, but that the town does not have the money to do so. Farrior said he does not feel that the town should tarry in demolishing its condemned building when it forces citizens to either bring their condemned ones up to codes or demolish them.

The low bid was submitted by D. H. Griffin Wrecking of Greensboro.

Worthington Farms Inc., which has under construction a warehouse adjacent to the present Farmville corporate limits, had Attorney James L. Bullock request of the Board an exclusion from annexation for the warehouse. He cited a 1969 recommendation by the Farmville Board that new industry employing 25 or more persons not be annexed for 10 years after its establishment. The Board had its attorney, Jack Lewis, state its understanding that no recommendation by a former Board has bearing on a present Board.

Chester Don Worthington himself then asked why A. C. Monk and Company should be excluded from annexation when many other industries and businesses on Farmville's outskirts are being slated for annexation. He was told that annexation would be discussed during an Apr. 4 public hearing on annexation, not before.

Marvin Horton, a developer of Farmville Square Shopping Center, also asked for exclusion from the shopping center from annexation. He said he only last year paid double tap-on fees for all buildings in the shopping area and does not feel that an- (Continued on page 10)

Be Honest With Parents About Their Visit

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: How can I tell my parents without hurting their feelings that they cannot come and spend the entire summer with us? (And I mean from May 1st until September 1st.)

The other day my father phoned from Florida to tell me that they were coming to spend the whole summer with me because the summers are miserable in Miami Beach! Abby, I hope you won't think I'm a terrible daughter, but I just can't have them here for that long. One month would be the absolute limit. My mother is a chronic complainer, mostly about her aches and pains, and my father has nothing to do but sit around the house all day and wait for meals.

My husband has never complained when they have visited us before, because he knows they love seeing our children, but he feels the same as I do about having them here all summer. We don't have a guest room. Our children double up and we make room that way, but it's very inconvenient.

My father says the plane fare is too expensive to come for only one month.

Please tell me how to handle this. There is no way I can have them in our home for four months.

THEIR "TERRIBLE" DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: Be honest. Tell them you can accommodate them for a month in your home, but no longer. If you can afford to put them up in a nearby motel, by all means do it; perhaps then they will feel that the trip would justify the plane fare.

And don't feel guilty. A third of a year is a sentence.

DEAR ABBY: Doctors read your column, too. Referring to a recent letter from a woman with an impotent husband who "ogles" all the other women: Let me say that some "impotent" men perform like champions in the company of a more understanding and sexually imaginative woman.

M.D. IN OREGON

DEAR M.D.: So what else is new? Such men, however, are not actually "impotent," they are merely unstimulated.

DEAR ABBY: When I was 16 I married a great guy to get away from home. We live on a large ranch with all the modern improvements. He treats me nice, gives me everything I want and he loves me, but it's not enough. I feel like I'm missing something and I don't know what. Maybe a child would help.

When we're in town, I'm always hoping other guys will notice me. Deep down I don't feel married. If I left him I wouldn't even be able to give him a good reason. I'm so confused. How can I get over thinking of other men? I'm 18, and my husband is 28. Do you think a child would help?

RESTLESS IN TEXAS

DEAR RESTLESS: I recommend counseling. In the meantime, if your thoughts continue to turn toward other men, the best advice I can give you is to make sure you don't have a child until you're reasonably certain your marriage will last.

Problems? Tell them to Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, write Abby: Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Serve Buffet Style When Entertaining

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

DEAR CECILY: I notice that you often give "buffet supper" menus. I'd like to serve buffet style when we have a party because it's easier for me than serving at the table, but my husband says he hates juggling a plate on his knees. Besides, I know he really doesn't like helping himself. What would you do? — DILEMMA.

DEAR DILEMMA: I can sympathize with your husband because I, too, dislike juggling a plate or a tray on my lap. And individual tray-tables are usually too low, too far away or too shaky. The most comfortable way to "serve buffet" is to set places (with place cards) at the dining table and/or small tables and have the help yourself food on a side table.

As to your husband's dislike of helping himself, there's no reason why you shouldn't "fix" a plate and offer it to him or put it at his place. It's always been appropriate for a man to help a languid lady from a buffet table and bring the plate to her. So in this day of liberation, why can't a woman help a man?

In other words, I'd serve buffet style whenever it made entertaining easy. You may want to show the following excerpt to your husband so he can have a good laugh over it. It's a plea for buffet service made in 1850 by a European traveler after visiting this country.

She wrote that in America at the dining table there is such "an incessant asking and inviting, and selecting and answering" that "there is really no time for the enjoyment of the meal, much less of conversation. Neither is one able to help one's self, but the host or hostess, aunt or uncle, or some other polite person, or ... the servant ... helps you, and you seldom get just what you wish for, or as much or as little as you want, and not on that part of the plate where you wish to have it. You are asked, for example,

"Will you have butter?"

"Yes, I thank you."

"Then it goes on: 'Will you take fish or meat? Chicken or turkey?'"

"Chicken, if you please."

"Have you any choice? The breast or wing?"

"Then comes, 'Will you have pickles?'"

"No, I thank you."

"A pause and calm ensues for two minutes. But then somebody on your left discovers that you have no pickles, and pickles come to you from the left. 'May I help you to pickles?'"

"No, I thank you."

"After a few minutes more somebody on the right sees that you have no pickles, and hastens to offer you the bottle. 'Will you not take pickles?'"

"No, I thank you."

"You then begin an interesting conversation with your next neighbor; and, just as you are about to ask some question of importance, a person opposite you observes that you are not eating pickles, and the pickle bottle comes to you across the table, and you are called upon to say once more, in self-justification,

"No, I thank you, not any, and continue your conversation."

"But again, at the moment you are waiting for some reply interesting to you, comes the servant and shoots the pickle bottle in between you and your conversable neighbor, and with horror you again behold pickles ready to be put upon your plate, so that in the end you find yourself quite overcome by the pickle persecution."

Even in 1850, when there was more household help than nowadays, serving at the table had its drawbacks! — C. B.

CONSTRUCTION WORKERS LEARN... that this tiny woman in the hard hat means business and more importantly, knows her business. She's Ruth Richmond, who with her husband runs Richmond Homes-

Ruth Richmond, Construction Boss Knows Her Business

By MARY TOBIN
NEW YORK (UPI) — They called her "peanut" and did what she told them because she was the boss's wife — sometimes.

But the big burly construction workers soon learned that the tiny blonde in the hard hat meant business and more importantly — knew her business.

Ruth Richmond, who with her husband Lawrence runs Richmond Homes-Construction Co., based in Sarasota, Fla., combines skills as a home designer, builder, realtor and interior decorator to direct every phase of the business from "the moment the prospective homeowners walk in the door to the day they walk into their completed Richmond home."

"The men were very condescending when I first went out into the field," Mrs. Richmond said in an interview here. "They were always polite, but they gave me a mental pat on the head — then went ahead and did things the way they knew they 'should' be done."

"But I made them do it over until it was done my way."

One of Mrs. Richmond's "wrong" ways was making the bathroom door open out instead of the traditional inward opening door.

"If people get sick often in the bathroom. If they pass out they fall against the door, making it impossible to open to get to them," she said.

"To me the outward opening door just made sense — but you have no idea how the men resisted — until they saw that it worked."

"I was so new I wasn't inhibited by the traditional taboos in the industry."

Mrs. Richmond and husband Larry, who sat beaming and obviously proud of his wife during the interview, are both natives of Brooklyn.

"I studied dress design and was working in Manhattan, while Larry worked at his exterminating business in Brooklyn," she said.

"We were married on our lunch hour at City Hall, then both went back to our jobs. I was fired the next week when the firm found out I was married."

The Richmonds moved to Long Island, had two children and settled into the suburban life until the big snow of 1950.

"I got stuck on the Long Island Rail Road for four hours and had to end up walking three miles through a blizzard," Richmond said. "I got home and said 'that's it.' That was a Wednesday, and on the following Saturday I turned my business over to a relative, closed the house, and we drove to Florida."

Richmond borrowed money, and he and Ruth worked over the kitchen table at night on plans to construct their first home. "We had lots of guts and lots of love and no money," Richmond said, "so we figured how to cut costs without cutting quality."

Although she "has always been involved in the business, from that first house we designed," she didn't become really active until her children were grown. In the meantime, she studied engineering and got her real estate broker's license — "the toughest test I ever took."

Mrs. Richmond, who looks as if she'd be more at home in Saks Fifth Avenue than at a construction site and speaks with a soft combination New York-Southern accent, said she "never compromised standards. I've never tried to act or talk tough. I dress like this always — wear high heels on the construction site. But I'm stubborn when I know I'm right."

"And the men have learned to both like and respect Ruth," husband Larry added.

Richmond homes cost between $18,000 and $29,390 (the higher price for a three bedroom with family room and dining room), a price that is possible largely because of Mrs. Richmond's determination.

"In 1974, the price of homes was going through the ceiling and that, combined with soaring interest rates was eliminating a lot of people from the market," Mrs. Richmond said. "I was determined to find a way to build a quality home that average people could afford."

Mrs. Richmond drew on her dress-design training, her real estate knowledge and "my own ideas about what I wanted in a home."

Richmond Homes are built from about 26 model plans, but the firm features "custom design" at no extra cost.

"A good example of our personal approach," Mrs. Richmond said, "was one couple who wanted a two-bedroom home. I asked if anyone would be living with them and the woman said 'his mother.' From the way she said that, I told Larry 'she hates her mother-in-law and we've got to build them a home with the bedrooms at opposite ends of the house.'"

The Richmonds have built almost 13,000 homes between Naples and Bradenton and Port St. Lucie, Fla. The firm has contracts to build Richmond homes for General Development Corp., Deltona Corp., and Lehigh Acres.

Arlene Mallison, Mary C. Daugherty and Ann Jackson of Greenville attended a National Legislative Conference, Washington, D. C., March 1-3, sponsored by the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc.

Mrs. Mallison is president of the Greenville BPW Club. More than 600 women from throughout the country heard members of Congress and professional lobbyists discuss the arts of successful lobbying on national issues.

Representatives Lindy Boggs (D-La.), Barbara Mikulski (D-Md.) and Newton Steers Jr. (R-Md.) explained the national legislative process and Carol Bellamy, keynote speaker and newly elected president of the New York City Council, talked about the role of women in politics and her own career in big city politics.

The conference highlighted such topics as "How to get what you want by lobbying" and "Building a grass roots organization." Lobbying techniques were put into practice

Thursday morning when participants visited their members of Congress to push their points of view on current legislation.

Whether or not to give a child a pacifier has been a hot issue—debated among parents for years.

But if you have decided your child needs a pacifier, be sure to buy the right kind. There can be many problems with buying the wrong kind. The immediate one is danger to a baby's life. If a pacifier does not have a big enough guard or shield on it, it can be taken into the child's mouth and cause the baby to choke to death.

A safe pacifier has a nipple that is flattened out to fit comfortably against the roof of a baby's mouth. The guard is big and oval shaped so it won't block the baby's breathing. And it has a couple of ventilation holes in it. These are a safety precaution. In case the baby could get the entire pacifier in his mouth, the holes would still allow him to breathe.

The flattened out pacifier kind is the best shape for the baby's mouth, too.

Children Need To Feel Special
What does it take to make you feel special? A compliment? A note of thanks? A surprise gift?

A child needs to feel like a "special" person at times, too. And adults can do many things to encourage this feeling.

One simple way? Give a child an answer to his question. And make it an easy-to-understand

Stalin No 'Martyr' In Russia

Josef Stalin dominated the Soviet Union through World War II and the years beyond in as despotic reign as most any the world has seen. Twenty-five years ago Sunday he died. Nikita Khrushchev, Stalin's successor, attempted to put the Stalin regime in disgrace. Now, observers say Stalin is seldom mentioned in the Soviet Union and while little honor is accorded him, neither is he an object of governmental disparagement. There can be little doubt though, that during the Stalin domination of Russia, millions were reduced to slave labor through forced collectivization. Purges and labor camp conditions resulted in perhaps millions of needless deaths. Through necessity, his nation went to war on the same side with the United States and for that time there was an uneasy alliance. But in his way Josef Stalin was perhaps as evil as Germany's Adolph Hitler and more often than not his cruelty was directed at his own people. There is no wonder that he is not martyred in Russia.

One More Victim Of A Twisted Mind

Once again a self appointed righter-of-wrongs has taken it upon himself to shoot down a public figure. Larry Flynt, publisher of Hustler magazine, hasn't done much to win the admiration of our society, if you discount his recent profession to being a born again Christian. Nevertheless Flynt didn't deserve to be gunned down in Georgia. Twisted minds have brought so much tragedy and near tragedy to our democratic society that it makes one fear for our freedoms.

Crime Watch On Campus

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — While community crime watch efforts are meeting tremendous success in some communities, declining interest in some, and a notable absence of involvement in some, state officials are launching an organizing effort on college campuses. The North Carolina School of the Arts in Winston Salem is the first campus to organize. Officials hope others will follow since a college campus represents an ideal crime watch community: self-contained, closely knit, and peopled by citizens who ought to be concerned more one for the other. The crime watch program is a voluntary one in which residents band together to watch and note potential crime situations, reporting them to local law enforcement officers but not taking direct action themselves. Most campuses have been plagued with thefts, breaks, and increasingly of late, assaults. Most have security forces, but admittedly not well enough staffed, trained or equipped to handle the demands. State Offices Another area for crime watch organization will be state governmental agencies themselves where thievery and purse snatching often occur while employees are on the job but away from their work areas. Meanwhile, says Cynthia Wertz, assistant director of the Governor's Office of Citizens Affairs, those concerned with the crime watch program are attempting to figure out what is going right and what is going wrong as the effort approaches its third anniversary. At this point there are no firm figures on just how many watch programs there are, or how many people are involved across the state. "We have determined that you really must have the support of your local law enforcement agencies before the crime watch effort can succeed," says Ms. Wertz. It is notable, she says, that where the effort is credited with reducing the crime rate, the local police and sheriff's office have been enthusiastic. Disbanding Another problem area which has developed is in areas where crime watch programs were launched, but are now disbanding. In several cases it is clearly public apathy, says Ms. Wertz: "The people organized and the crime rate has come down...now, people are losing interest because there is nothing going on." To combat that, state officials (two full-time coordinators are on the job) are planning a year-long "calendar" of crime fighting activities. Special training programs, speakers, films and other group activities will be outlined and local crime watch organizations encouraged to meet at least monthly to keep the group interested and involved. A special organizing effort is also planned for communities in 20 counties categorized as high crime and low income neighborhoods.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Defense Mood Bolstered

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — While President Carter decides whether Soviet African adventures are a cause for slowing the pace of SALT negotiations with Moscow, American voters, reacting less ambiguously, are switching to an anti-Soviet mood which signals the end of the post-Vietnam syndrome of low military spending. That is the clear portent of a just-completed nationwide poll conducted by Opinion Research Corp. of Princeton, showing a sharp rise in the public's concern over Soviet military power. Most significant, the sample of 1,015 citizens, published here for the first time, shows that among Americans who feel the U.S. should be "superior" to the Russians in military strength — 48 per cent of the total — a surprising 74 per cent specifically endorsed higher taxes. They expressed willingness to finance up to $10 billion a year in new military programs to achieve that superiority, despite the nationwide tax revolt. As for the current strategic arms limitation (SALT) negotiations with the Russians, the poll showed that 64 per cent believe that the Russians would not "live up to their part of the agreement" if a new agreement were reached. That obviously reflects the present low state of detente. The sample was finished on Feb. 27, just before the administration mounted a major effort last week to persuade Congress that the Russians never have cheated on SALT I. But it followed by one month a Reader's Digest article called "The Russians Are Cheating," by former Defense Secretary Melvin Laird, which attracted heavy public attention and 20,000 letters from concerned readers to the magazine. Commissioned by the Institute of American Relations, a tax-exempt defense-oriented organization, the new poll reveals a stark shift in public opinion on one of the most perplexing political issues facing President Carter: is the Soviet Union moving ahead of the U.S. in military power and, if so, what should the U.S. do about it? One year ago, a similar poll by Opinion Research found that 15 per cent of the public believed the U.S. was "much stronger" than the Soviets, 14 per cent that the U.S. was "somewhat stronger" and 30

To the editor:
The Daily Reflector is to be commended highly on publishing in last Sunday's (Feb. 26) edition the UPI article by David E. Anderson putting into perspective the issues relative to the American Civil Liberties Union and its defense of the right of members of the Nazi group to march on the streets of Skokie, Ill. The ACLU has always acted strongly in terms of enduring principles as expressed in the Constitution of the United States. These must apply evenhandedly to all in our society if this government under law, as we know it, is to endure. It is a rather fine line which separates freedom for one from license to trample the liberties of another, but our first amendment rights are vital for everyone. Loyalty to principle should not be confused with supposed espousal of any particular extremism. Thank you for helping to shed light in this area which is subject to so much confusion and misinterpretation.

Strength For Today

IRRITATING DELAYS
Two businessmen, hurrying to a meeting with colleagues in a neighboring town, decided to save time by taking a shortcut along a narrow, winding forest road. Suddenly they came upon a skunk ambling slowly down the road in front of their car. Despite honking of the horn, he wouldn't get out of the way; and so the car, for obvious reasons, had to go along at a snail's pace behind the skunk until he finally trotted into the woods. By the time the businessmen got to their meeting, they were late and were unable to present some important plans which they wanted adopted. The two men were very irritated, and saw nothing funny about the incident at all. Yet their plans were finally adopted anyway. All of us can become terribly frustrated when our important plans and projects are halted by some minor, unforeseen incident. It may be that these things are given us to teach us patience. Perhaps the Lord wants to demonstrate to us that our schedules are not as important as we think they are.

INDIGNATION CLOAKED IN SIMPLE PURITY!

By ART BUCHWALD

Checkbook Journalism

WASHINGTON — "Louie the Louse, I am authorized to inform you of your rights. You are permitted to make one telephone call." "Okay, I want to speak to the Heartongue Literary Agency. Hello, Heartongue? This is Louie the Louse. I think I got a good one for you this time. I heisted a Brink's truck of 20 million bucks, hijacked the Rolling Stones' private airplane and forged Cliff Robertson's name to a check for $150,000. My attorney thinks it could be a 'Literary Guild Selection of the Month.' No, I won't say anything until you get here." A half-hour later Louie the Louse is sitting under a white electric light bulb surrounded by the district attorney and his underlings. "Louie, who were your accomplices in the Brink's robbery?" Louie says, "I refuse to answer on the grounds that my answer would damage the newspaper syndication rights of my story." The district attorney says, "You told Sgt. Brophy when you were brought in that there were four of you in on the Brink's job, including an inside man. Who was the inside man?" "Wait," says Heartongue, "Newsweek has just offered us $50,000 for the name of the inside man, providing it doesn't appear in The Washington Post first." Louie looks straight at the district attorney. "You can burn my fingers, you can dunk my head in the bathtub, you can knock out my teeth, but I'll never rat on Newsweek." "Louie, we got all the evidence we need. We have pictures of you hijacking the Rolling Stones' airplane." "Let me see those," Heartongue says. "You have no right to these photos. I sold them exclusively to New York magazine."

ART BUCHWALD

"They're state's evidence," the district attorney says. "They're part of the public record which we hope will be used to convict Louie the Louse." "Do you mean to say that you would use photographs that were sold to a magazine on an exclusive basis just to prove a criminal case against my client? Have you no legal ethics?" "I'm not sure what you're driving at, Heartongue." "The Constitution provides that every person accused of a crime is entitled to sell his story to a magazine, a newspaper, a hardcover book company and a paperback publisher. The value of his story is based on what he did not tell the grand jury or the FBI. If you reveal the facts in this case, the TV bidding on Louie's book could be seriously damaged." "Maybe so," the district attorney says. "But my only concern is justice. We have a guy who stole from a Brink's truck, hijacked an airplane and forged a movie actor's name to a check. Now he has to be punished." "He will be," Heartongue said. "But he wants to save it all for the book. Give us a break. A guy's got a right to make a buck on his own crime." The district attorney says, "It's out of my hands. There are a hundred reporters as well as photographers and TV cameras out there. How do I explain to them that Louie's story is copyrighted and they have no rights to it?" "That's your problem. My client has committed a perfectly valid crime which, on today's literary market, is worth anywhere up to seven figures. By making these crimes common knowledge you are depriving him of his literary and subsidiary rights under the Author's League and Dramatists' Guild contracts."

Other Editors Say May Not Be Short

(Henderson Dispatch)
On May 28 the State Legislature will return to Raleigh for what has been termed a short session. But an analysis of the bills left in the hopper when the lawmakers adjourned last June indicate it may not be so short, according to Representative Jay Huskins, veteran member of the House from Iredell county. Huskins says there are 99 bills in House committees that will remain for consideration. Of the 99 bills, 64 are of House origin, the others from the Senate. In addition, there will be new money bills, presumably to gobble up a reported $200 million of income over and above appropriations made last year. Most of the pending bills are in House money committees, according to Huskins. Expected to be the most controversial measure in the so-called short session will be the proposal to authorize liquor-by-the-drink. It has been hard fought in previous sessions. It is supported by the big cities and the resort areas of the State. It was passed by the Senate last year but the House never voted on it. Overall, chief contention will center around finances, Huskins believes. State employees want increased pay and more liberal pensions, and will likely argue the huge surplus that has accumulated already this year in the current biennium. All agencies will be giddling for a finger in the pie. A bill is pending to repeal the intangible tax law. It is unfair as a levy on certain savings of individuals. But the spenders are not about to give up on that bonanza of revenue. Legislators may in the end find that they will be spending a major part of the vacation months sweating in Raleigh through a summer session. Meantime, people back home will wonder what will be the added tax burdens they will be required to carry.

40 Years Ago Today

March 8, 1938
The Norfolk, Baltimore and Carolina Steamship Line resumed regular operations today with the collapse of a strike by some new members who demanded restoration of a 20 per cent pay cut made in January. Pickets were withdrawn from the company offices here in Norfolk. The "Farrington" sailed last night for Washington, N.C., and the "Emblase" will start in Norfolk tonight.
The House tentatively refused today to insert in the tax bill provision for publicity for all corporation salaries in excess of $25,000 a year. The standing vote was 85-48 and a teller vote was 118-60 against the provision. President Roosevelt recently told his press conference he was in favor of such salary publicity. Previously the House turned down an amendment to the tax bill designed to give a tax reduction for money used by corporations to pay debts. The amendment was offered by Representative Wadsworth, (R-NY) who said its purpose was to "lift from the payments of debts the curse that is now placed upon it."

Blackouts A Computer Worry

By DAVID TOMLIN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Rotating power blackouts of the type planned for North Carolina will mean big trouble for the electronic brains that run the state's business and government. According to state Energy Division chief Brian Flattery, if coal supplies continue to dwindle for another 17 days almost all electric customers will have daily four-hour blackouts, mainly during working hours. Computer operators say the shutdowns will at least create backlogs of work that need to be made up later, in some cases will cause irretrievable losses, financial and otherwise, and could mean physical damage to computer systems. "It's going to have a pretty drastic effect here," said David Thornton, who runs the computer center at the state Department of Administration. Thornton said that while power is out, "employees at the 200 terminals in the field that are hooked to this computer will have nothing to do. We'll have to have overtime or extra shifts to make up. People don't like having their paychecks and welfare checks arrive late." Dr. Leroy Martin of the computer center at North Carolina State University said scientific experiments controlled by computers might be ruined by the blackouts. "It would be disastrous to many computer operations," he said. "We only put ours down once a week, and every time we do, we cross our fingers that it'll come back up. Experience shows they run better if you keep them running." Glenn Wilkes of the First Union National Bank computer center in Raleigh said banks would suffer financial damage if computers are forced to go down during working hours. "The loss of money would be worst during the daytime, because that's when we're processing Federal Reserve checking, Wilkes said. He added that his center in Raleigh has a diesel backup generator, but the main center in Charlotte has nothing but a battery system which gives the technicians half an hour in which to shut down the system in an orderly fashion. That's an important point, according to Jesse Meredith, a field manager with ITEL Corp. "You need some warning of a blackout," Meredith said. "If you're not warned, it could cause a catastrophe. There's a good possibility of a lot of damage to magnetic heads and tapes or discs. They've got to know when they're gonna blackout and not blackout." Flattery said consumers would have the necessary warning if blackouts become necessary. "It looks as if the blackouts will be four hours once a day," he said. "Everyone will know to the minute when they're coming so they can plan around them."

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Rain and showers are forecast today from the mid-Atlantic to Florida. Clear skies and warmer weather are expected from the Rockies to the Appalachians but temperatures are expected to continue cold in northern states and for most of the Atlantic coast. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
It took the rain a while to reach North Carolina and today it appeared it would take a while to leave, according to the National Weather Service.

The rain, which started as freezing rain over much of the northern portion of the state, accompanied a low pressure system that was associated with a number of weather fronts.

The system was moving very slowly and the rain was expected to continue through Thursday. The freezing rain, extending as far east as Wilson and Rocky Mount, was expected to change to rain later in the morning.

Heavy rains that had been expected in the mountains during the night did not materialize and a flash flood watch issued Tuesday was discontinued this morning.

Cool temperatures prevailed over the state this morning and were expected to continue through the day with the possible exception of the southeast portion where there was the chance of a warm front moving in from offshore to raise temperatures into the 60s by afternoon.

Tennessee Votes Amendments

By BILL RAWLINS
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Constitutional court reform has been rejected by Tennessee voters, who ratified 12 other amendments including removal of the state's 10 percent interest ceiling and a state spending limit.

Ratification of 12 of the 13 proposals of the 1977 Limited Constitutional Convention led to the most extensive single Tennessee constitutional change in 108 years. But Proposal 13 — court revision — was the first amendment proposed by a Constitutional Convention ever turned down by Tennessee voters.

Less than 390,000 voters turned out for the special referendum Tuesday, also ratifying amendments to:

—Give Gov. Ray Blanton the right to seek re-election to another four-year term, a choice he says he now must make.

—Permit 18 county sheriffs nearing the end of their third two-year terms run again for unlimited four-year terms as part of an extensive reorganization of the state's 95 county governments. All sheriffs elected in August also will be eligible for four-year terms.

—Allow those who go bankrupt to keep $5,000 worth of property, an increase from $1,000, and give the Legislature the right to increase the limit and extend the exemption to personal as well as real property.

Four legislative procedural amendments were approved handily, along with three amendments to remove language long since outlawed by U.S. Supreme Court rulings or a U.S. Constitutional amendment. Oddly enough, efforts to remove one of the outdated sections, a post-Civil War ban on interracial marriages, won by the narrowest margins of any of the 12 proposals ratified.

Also approved was the amendment to lower the voting age from 21 to 18, already done by U.S. constitutional amendment and another to delete required racial segregation in public schools, outlawed by the Supreme Court. The voting age amendment also is designed to prevent election-day registration as proposed by President Carter.

Court revision, opposed strongly by the Chief Justice Joe Henry and other judges, became the first Constitutional Convention proposal ever rejected by voters. J.D. Lee, a Madisonville lawyer and 1977 Convention president, credited Henry with leading Proposal 13 to defeat and said it was "no great disaster."

Removal of the interest ceiling, Proposal 10, was pushed by lending institutions after the state Supreme Court ruled the 1969 law regulating consumer loans invalid because it permitted interest in excess of 10 percent. Consumer loan companies which have halted or curtailed Tennessee operations since that ruling are expected to go back into business soon.

Ratification of Proposal 10 also stops what could have been a long series of lawsuits challenging 18 percent annual interest charged for retail credback to the early years of Lyndon Johnson.

Throughout the Nixon-Ford years, Henry Kissinger's private argument for making sometimes controversial strategic arms agreements with Moscow was that no other course was possible for the U.S. Since Congress would not consider financing all-out competition with the Russians, the next best policy was to try and tie down Soviet strategic growth through SALT.

That argument, disputed even then by some politicians, is no longer valid, a judgment backed up not only by the Opinion Research poll but by the political shift on Capitol Hill. Sen. Edward Brooke, a Republican liberal up for reelection this year, told the Senate 10 days ago that earlier SALT negotiations were handled "in a rather impetuous manner" and that the U.S. "gave far too little attention to the ambiguities of SALT I and their consequences."

Brooke now believes that the curves of declining American power and increas-

"Most of them come from the Southeast, including the D.C. and Baltimore areas," he said. "We also get a lot of skiers from West Virginia, especially from Huntington and Charleston. My students' ages range anywhere from 5 to 50."

Goff said he hoped to continue teaching part time after the end of the coal strike.

Railroad Prepares Local Firemen For Accidents

By J. PAUL WYATT
 JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI)—Railroad accidents involving hazardous materials in populated areas have become so numerous a southern rail carrier has a mobile school to teach local authorities how to deal with them.

The increase in life-threatening railway accidents has grown dramatically throughout the country in recent years, primarily because freight trains are pulling larger quantities and a greater variety (about 1,600) of hazardous materials.

In 1975, there were 679 railroad incidents nationwide involving hazardous materials that resulted in injury to 146 people. In 1976, the tally rose to 950 accidents with two fatalities and 198 injured.

Final figures for 1977 are not yet available, but railroad officials believe the upward trend will continue.

"There has been a substantial increase in the movement of chemicals and we're hauling more chemicals through more populated areas," said Richard D. Sanborn, vice president-executive department, Seaboard Coast Line Railroad.

Last December, one person was killed, 30 injured and 1,000 evacuated from their homes after a Louisville & Nashville freight train carrying poisonous anhydrous ammonia derailed in a Pensacola, Fla., suburb.

Seaboard Coast Line Industries, which operates the SCL, the L&N, the Clinchfield and the Georgia railroads in 13 Southeast and Midwest states, estimates it ran 100,000 cars with hazardous materials in 1977.

"Practically every train has some type of hazardous material," said one SCLI official.

To help state and local emergency personnel handle accidents involving toxic and flammable materials, SCLI has launched a training program for police, fire, rescue and civil defense personnel in the towns through which it operates.

"We're not so interested in teaching the firemen of Atlanta—who have sophisticated hazardous materials teams—what to do as we are the volunteer fire department in Chittin Switch, N.C.," said Sanborn.

If the SCLI program teaches local emergency personnel nothing else, Sanborn said, it should make them first think: "A derailment—there may be hazardous materials on there; not derailment—go pour water on it."

"In one of our films," SCLI spokesman Ray Bullard said, "we show them that because a fire department moved in too fast to put out a propane gas fire, two more cars blew. There are some things you don't put water on."

Like titanium, which burns at 6,000 degrees Fahrenheit. Because of its intense heat, water feeds a titanium fire, Bullard said. The best way to extinguish it is to use graphite, soda ash, powdered sodium chloride or just plain sand.

"We've had numerous mistakes where firefighters moved in too fast," said J. L. Frost, SCLI director of fire prevention and protection.

"We had one case in which a tank car of LP (liquid petroleum) gas ruptured," Frost said. "The fire department rushed up and put out the fire. Then you had unburned gas escaping. The best thing is to let it burn itself out."

Frost said SCLI instructors will travel in two vans through the 13-state area served by SCLI railroads, presenting the two-day, five-hour, audio-visual program to groups as large as 300 people.

One of the first things the instructor will tell his audience is where to find information about hazardous materials involved in an accident.

Recently, conductors riding in the SCLI cabooses have been given computer printouts, which not only list each car and what it contains but also provide instructions on how to deal with each hazardous material.

Emergency personnel also are told they can contact the train's dispatcher by telephone or radio. The dispatcher has a copy of the train's contents and is in contact with the SCLI operations center in Jacksonville.

The operations center, located on the seventh floor of the SCLI headquarters building, plots the location of each train on a huge wall map with magnetic tabs representing numbered engines and cabooses.

It is manned 24 hours a day, 365 days a year.

Operations personnel can call up on a video display terminal computerized information from the Association of American Railroads' Bureau of Explosives about any of 1,600 hazardous materials.

The SCLI program also shows emergency personnel how to identify the kinds of hazardous materials by a car's color, labels, contour and valving arrangement.

"If you see a bunch of cars piled up after a derailment, it's difficult sometimes to recognize them," Frost said.

As a last resort, Frost said, the dispatcher has the name of the product's shipper on a waybill and "nobody knows more about the animal than the man who makes it. He can give expert advice."

Closer coordination between local emergency authorities and railroad officials also may avoid unnecessary evacuations, said Frost, who noted that because of the way radioactive materials are packed they seldom pose a danger.

Overtured One Finding

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—The North Carolina Supreme Court has overturned the false pretense conviction of former Beaufort County Social Services Director Betty Agnew.

But in its decision handed down Tuesday the court let stand two other convictions for embezzlement and misapplication of funds.

In the majority opinion written by Justice William Copeland, the court ruled that the original trial court should have allowed defense motions for a judgement of nonsuit, or dismissal, on the charge of obtaining property by false pretenses.

Mrs. Agnew was convicted on three charges involving alleged irregularities in a Department of Social Services checking account.

The allegations involved a $1,314.75 advance paid from the account, $430.75 drawn to cover a business trip to Boston, and $1,128.94 used for staff parties, gifts and flowers to county officials and other office expenses.

The high court's decision upheld a Court of Appeals ruling on the pretense charge, but reversed a similar finding for dismissal of the charges of embezzling and willful misapplication of funds.

In a separate dissenting opinion, Justice James G. Exum Jr. argued for affirming the appellate court on all three charges.

"There is substantial evidence here of inadequate and perhaps careless bookkeeping in the embezzlement case and poor judgement in the misapplication of funds case by a harried county employee," Exum wrote. "There is no substantial evidence of criminal or corrupt conduct on her part."

nextion so soon would be fair or in the best economic interests of the area. He urged the Commissioners, "Never let it be said that my hometown has involved itself in the capricious gerrymandering of property or the giving of advantage to one group or the other."

The town does making it unlawful to discharge a firearm within the corporate limits was altered to allow for the shooting of "animal pests" under the supervision of a police officer. The revision was prompted by a request from Pierce Brothers Warehouse to shoot pigeons.

A $4,500 grant from the State Energy Division to study routing of sanitation vehicles so as to save fuel was announced. The work will be done by Public Research and Management, Town Administrator Pat Thomas said.

A workshop was set for Apr. 11 for the Commissioners to begin to go over with the town attorney possible changes in the town ordinances. Lewis is in the process of recodifying all the wording of town's ordinances.

Sue Singleton of the Mideast Commission's Nutrition Program answered questions about the program. The Commissioners expressed concern over the quality of the food that has been served in recent months, stating their wish that it might be locally produced rather than by the Dunn firm that is currently supplying meals for about 500 senior citizens per day throughout this region.

Singleton explained why this could not be done, however, saying that the Nutrition Program hopes to have its own kitchen in Oak City by the beginning of the next fiscal year. The contract, which is for transportation and the paying of a site manager's salary, was approved by the Commissioners. They said they realize they have no real say-so about the food quality, and must either go along with the program as it is or eliminate it.

A survey and planning grant for historic restoration of the downtown area was approved. It is a 50 percent matching grant, with much of the town's cost being "in-kind" contribution.

The Board went on record declaring its intention to phase out its local landfill operation and begin to use the county's facilities by the beginning of the next fiscal year, July 1.

It also went on record declaring that no official policy exists to grant exemptions for town employees and fire and rescue volunteers from building permit fees. This has been an unofficial policy of the town, but the Board says it feels there are better and more equitable ways to reward service to the town.

An update was made in the water rates schedules to insure that the rate schedule does not fall below the rate on any cost-plus contractual rate. The state rate is 27 cents.

It was voted to communicate to Collins and Aikman that it will be held to its agreement to pay for underground tv study of damaged sewer lines. The agreement was made some time ago, and C and A has expressed its desire to be let out of the agreement since its sewer rates have been increased recently. The work has already been done and the bill must be paid, the Commissioners said.

It was voted to eliminate parking for 75 feet west on Horne Avenue from its intersection with Davis Drive from 7:30 to 8:30 a. m. each school day and from 2:30 to 4 p. m. each school day. The purpose is to allow more turning room for school buses leaving Bundy School. Citizen Tommy Rollins, who lives in the block being discussed, said he believes the solution to the congestion at this corner is not parking restriction, but making the block open only to one way traffic—west on Horne—in this block during the school opening and closing hours. He was told his suggestion would be taken under advisement.

A public hearing was set for Apr. 4 on the annexation of a subdivision being developed by Bennie T. Eastwood east of Allen Acres here.

A resolution was passed recognizing that the house at 404 W. Action Place has been brought into compliance with Minimum Housing Code. It was condemned earlier by the Town.

Boykin Construction Company of Kenly was approved as the low bidder in the U. S. 264 West Sewer extension. The base bid is $114,028.75, with the price of stone $9 per ton.

Annexation reports must be approved by the Board at least 15 days before the Apr. 4 public hearing and be made available for public review, it was reported.

The administrator's suggestions for application for 701 planning and management assistance grants were approved. The grant will be in three parts: land use extension and updating — $3,000; zoning ordinance revision — $4,000; and work monitoring and evaluation — $5,000. The Town's share will be about 40 percent, Thomas said.

Thomas also suggested the study of alternative uses of the landfill: a Southside Fire Station site location study; the study of alternative uses of the de-activated sewage treatment plants; and a study of development alternatives for a recreational lake adjacent to the new treatment plant.

Mrs. Cherry Easley was reappointed to the Library Board.

The pay plan was amended to allow for the hiring of a maintenance mechanic for the waste treatment plant.

A citizens' request for speed humps in the Pinetown Apartment housing project was considered. It was decided that these humps may be installed under the supervision of the Police Department if a petition showing that a majority of the residents of the area are in favor of the installation.

Budget amendments approved included cost and revenue increases in electric rates increases by CP and L and the Town; debt service costs on the sewage treatment plant and revenue resulting from sewer rates effective Apr. 1; the lowering of nutrition program revenues and budget due to the direct payment for meal by the Mid-East Commission; the transfer from water and sewer contingency for purchase of an emergency pump to protect the C and A line; the cost of cleaning, reviewing and evaluation of the C and A line and the corresponding contribution hoped for from C and A; and the increase in the U. S. 264-West sewer project to reflect the Clean Water grant and post-bid estimates. Some $102,000 of the last item is to come from capital reserves and $34,000 from Clean Water Funds.

Another Pot Plane Seized

SYLVANIA, Ga. (AP) — Four trucks and a car — and a contingent of state and federal agents — were waiting when the latest-known Georgia pot plane landed at the airport here, according to the Georgia Bureau of Investigation.

The vehicles, loaded with 5,000 pounds of marijuana from the plane, were leaving the airfield Monday night when the agents seized the vehicles, the marijuana and the airplane and arrested 12 persons, GBI agent Michael Eason said Tuesday.

Eason said the 12 persons were being held on federal charges of conspiracy and possession of marijuana with intent to distribute.

Agents of the Drug Enforcement Administration, U.S. Customs, the GBI, Georgia State Patrol and the Screven County sheriff's office "had subjects under surveillance" and were waiting when the twin-engine Lockheed Learstar landed, Eason said.

The marijuana had a street value of about $1 million, according to the GBI.

U.S. Magistrate Spence Grayson, during arraignment hearings in Savannah Tuesday, set bond at $100,000 for five of the men: Tony Darwin, 32, St. Petersburg, Fla.; Donald Eugene Maskeny, 51, Largo, Fla.; Kenneth Muchison, 29, Chapel Hill, N.C.; Lee Derwood Harvey, 29, Alexandria, Va.; and Barry Wayne Toombs, 32, Fairfax, Va.

Bond was set at $50,000 for Joseph Charles Blackburn, 29, Madison, Va.; Charles Michael Crocker, 28, Front Royal, Va.; Jim Richard Kraince, 26, McLean, Va.; Jesus Manuel Maycher, 32, Tucson, Ariz.; Sidney Larry Perwell, 30, Springfield, Va.; Mark Timothy Perkins, 32, Pontiac, Mich.; and Thomas Julian Pernell, 35, Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

All the men were returned to Chatham County jail in Savannah after the hearing, said jailer Rufus Boyd.

Monthly Meet Held By Home Builders

The Greenville Home Builders Association held its March meeting Tuesday night at the Beef Barn.

Special guest for the meeting was Nick DeMai, executive vice president of the N.C. Home Builders Association, who installed six new members.

The new members installed included Alton Warren, Rob Whitley, Gerald Buck, Tom Chapin, Stuart Hardy and Stuart Buchanan.

It was pointed out that the new members bring the total membership of the association to 101. The goal for the end of the year had been set at 100 members, it was mentioned, and two to three months still remain in the membership drive.

DeMai urged the association to support BIPACT, the Building Industry Political Action Committee, by contacting legislators and encouraging support of bills concerning the building industry.

Merle Bowser, chairman of a special committee for planning and zoning study, told the members that they should become familiar with the new zoning ordinance under consideration by the city.

The annual Parade of Homes has been scheduled for Sept. 23 and 24, according to chairman Sammy Pollard, who reported 100 per cent participation of builder members.

Bill Jones, representing American Mutual Insurance Co. in Raleigh, discussed some of the changes in workmen's compensation for home builders.

Association vice president Connally Branch presided at the meeting in the absence of Mark Tipton, president.

Ex-Wife Named Handle Estate

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Elvis Presley's ex-wife, Priscilla, has been named formal guardian of Lisa Marie, their 10-year-old daughter, and thus takes charge of the estate Presley left the child.

Mrs. Presley's attorney, Roger Toll, described the action Tuesday in Superior Court as routine. He said parties in probate proceedings on the Presley will have been "perfectly amicable."

Although details of the Presley will have not been made public, a common practice where a minor is involved is for the child to receive an allowance until reaching the legal age of majority. At that time the child inherits the rest.

Mrs. Presley was not named in the will of the singer, who died Aug. 16 from an apparent heart attack. His will is being handled in courts in Tennessee and in Riverside County, Calif., because he maintained a home in Palm Springs.

Education Board... Collins & Aikman Plant Marks Safety Record

 pointed following the February accident.
 The Board also voted to allow those bus drivers working for the county, who are presently 16 years old, to remain working. However, those drivers employed in the future must be 17 years old and have been driving for at least six months.

In addition, members voted that bus monitors shall not leave the buses, but will remain on the bus, walking to the front to view children as they cross the streets. It was noted that if bus monitors got off and on the bus every time it stopped, approximately 20 minutes would be added to the bus route.

Alford noted that local parents will receive letters from the County Board of Education today requesting that concerned parents volunteer to act as bus monitors.

In further business, the Board voted to seek the aid of Attorney C.W. Everett Sr. in the disputed school line question, involving the Lake Ellsworth subdivision.

Superintendent Alford said this morning that he will contact Everett and request that the attorney "move with dispatch...and take such action as is needed in order to resolve the question as quickly as possible."

Board of Election officials have notified both the City and County Boards of Education that the question of whether the subdivision lies in the city or county jurisdiction must be decided before the spring elections may be held.

The Board also heard a report from Superintendent Alford concerning recent congressional action on retirement age. Such action provides that 70, instead of 65, be the recommended age for retirement.

According to Alford, the recommended retirement age for all Pitt County employees is 65. "However, those persons continuing to render an effective service and who remain in good and vigorous health may continue to work beyond age 65." Continued employment will be considered on an individual basis.

In related business, the Board voted to allow that Mrs. Ethel Dudley of Ayden Elementary and Miss Inez Parker of Sam D. Bundy be permitted to continue to serve in their present positions, since the retirement does not take effect until Jan. 1, 1979.

In other business, the Board voted to fight the Office of Civil Rights in a matter dealing with an unwed pregnant employee.

According to Alford, the Board gave the employee two options, (1) to resign, and (2) to take a year's leave of absence with the stipulation that she be reinstated after that time. The employee chose the latter option, but then contacted the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

HEW then contacted the Board, according to Alford, and said that the young woman should be reinstated, that she be reimbursed in the amount of $35,000-$39,000, and that the Board do away with any regulations which might cause a repeat of this incident.

Board members wrote HEW recently, stating their disapproval of the department's recommendation, and received a letter on March 2 which reaffirmed HEW's stand on the issue. Yesterday, Board members moved to fight the issue.

Prior to the slated agenda, Board members heard a request by George Saleeby, chairman of the Griffon Save Our Schools Committee, asking that the Board reconsider its Aug. 4 decision to merge Ayden and Griffon middle schools.

Saleeby said that the recent controversy over the school merger had left "a cloud over southern Pitt County." He added that, in his opinion, the Board's decision to merge the two schools was based on the population for that section of the county. Saleeby said that the projection which the Board used was incorrect and that the Ayden and Griffon areas are growing instead of declining.

"Ayden needs a school; Griffon doesn't," said Saleeby. He added that "consolidation is not going to solve the problem of education in our schools."

Board members said that they would consider Saleeby's request.

In further business, the Board:

- Heard a report by Alice Keene on the Community Schools Project which is aimed at creating a better working relationship between the individual schools and the communities that they serve.
- Noted the recent sanitation reports for county school cafeterias and a report of the new law providing unemployment insurance coverage for public employees, both presented by Associate Superintendent Craft.
- Approved the list of new substitute teachers.
- Voted to hold school on April 27 and 28 in order to make up for "snow days"
- Voted to allow Richard Adams to graduate early from Ayden-Griffon High School.
- Recognized Mrs. Elaine King, Ayden Middle School Counselor, as the first recipient of the Luther Taft Award "for outstanding practice as a school counselor."
- Approved a finance report presented by Dan Thomas

Consider Possible New Housing Site

WILLIAMSTON — The target area for a possible new HUD housing development was the subject of another public meeting by the Williamston Town Board at its March meeting on Monday night.

The area being considered for a possible new housing area is that area north of Washington Street bordered by Houghton St. and the railroad tracks.

To clear up some misunderstanding on the applicable rules for making an application to HUD, town commissioners set a meeting with the committee representing the community, to be held tonight.

A resolution was approved appointing the Mid-East Commission as the agency to handle restoration planning and technical assistance on historic properties in Region Q.

Another matter considered was a request to study the parking lot situation in the public parking area behind stores north of Main Street.

The board approved the purchase of 1,500 feet of three inch hose for the new fire truck. This item was not originally included in the town's budget.

Two members were appointed to the Williamston Parks and Recreation Advisory Board. These are Rev. James R. Horton, chairman, and member Walter Miller.

Choice Of Golf Or Candidacy

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Gerald Ford may run for president again in 1980. Then again he may be a golf pro by then.

Although the former president is becoming about as much a fixture on the pro tour these days as Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer, his scores indicate he's in no danger of losing his amateur status.

Officials of the 1978 Greater Hartford Open golf tournament announced Tuesday that Ford will play in that tournament's pro-am event July 26.

N.Y. Is Holding Raleigh Woman

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A North Carolina woman was denied bail in state Supreme Court Tuesday after being arrested as a fugitive.

Barbara Langworthy, 28, of Raleigh, was arrested in a downtown employment office. Police said she left North Carolina three weeks ago.

The Jackson County sheriff's office there has warrants for her charging four counts of conspiracy to attempt murder, four counts of conspiracy to commit armed robbery, two counts of armed robbery and two counts of bail jumping.

Police said Mrs. Langworthy had succeeded in landing a job as a bookkeeper for a Buffalo jeweler. She had a 10-inch linoleum knife in her purse when arrested, police reported.

She is being held pending extradition proceedings in North Carolina.

Exhibitions Begin Today

By HERSHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Play Ball! Snow may be on the ground and winter in the air over much of the land, but spring training is upon us. And when spring training arrives, the exhibition season isn't far behind. Today, at Holtville, Calif., the California Angels and San Diego Padres become the first two major league teams to clash in exhibition play. "We'll try to win as many games as possible," said Angels Manager Dave Garcia. "but it is important to prepare our 25 players for the opening game. I'm not going to play Joe Rudi and Bobby Grich every day and every inning to win games and I want to look at all our pitchers."

Rudi and Grich are coming off surgery, the former for a broken wrist, the latter for a herniated disc in his back.

The Angels warmed up Tuesday by edging Japan's Yakult Swallows 1-0 as Ken Brett, Balor Moore and Mike

Overly each hurled three goose eggs. The other clubs continued to play intrasquad games and the Boston Red Sox received some good news when Fred Lynn, hobbled much of last season with ankle problems, whacked a pair of three-run homers.

The Sox have so much hitting that they couldn't find a place for Jack Baker and the minor league slugger, now with Cleveland, delivered a single, double and triple. The Indians' bad news came when sores shouldered right-hander Wayne Garland, suffering from tendonitis, reported he still had pain despite a cortisone shot last Friday.

Andre Dawson slammed two home runs for the Montreal Expos while Willie Stargell, Frank Taveras and Dorian Boyland connected in the Pittsburgh Pirates' camp.

Three rookies homered for the St. Louis Cardinals — Ken Oberkfell, Dane Iorg and John Tamargo.

Holdout slugger Jeff Burroughs reported to the Atlanta Braves' camp and said he would like to remain an outfielder.

Gamecocks Ease Past Pirates

COLUMBIA, S.C. — The University of South Carolina came up with two runs in the bottom of the ninth inning to pull out a 4-3 victory over the East Carolina Pirates yesterday.

The defeat was the second in a row for the Pirates, who are now 2-2 on the year. South Carolina won its fifth game in seven starts.

The two teams are scheduled to meet again this afternoon.

Pete Conaty went all the way in making his first start for the Pirates, scattering seven hits. Three of those came in the ninth inning however, and that cost the Pirates the victory.

Aaron Scott claimed the victory for the Gamecocks. He gave up only five hits to the Pirates in recording his first win.

"It was a very, very tough one to lose," ECU Coach Monte Little said. "I really thought we had 'em."

"Our overall fielding was not up to par, and we are still not hitting the ball that well. We just have to hope that we can come back (Wednesday)."

East Carolina pushed into the lead in the second inning scoring a run. That came when Raymie Styons led off the inning and belted a 1-1 pitch out of the ball park for his first home run of the year.

East Carolina ran its lead to 2-0 in the fifth inning. With one down, Billy Best singled and stole second. Pete Paradossi followed that up with a single, driving in Best.

South Carolina got on the scoreboard in the bottom of the fifth. With one away, Tom Mixon beat out an infield hit. Tom Williams followed with another infield hit, and an error on the play let both runners advance. John Marquardt was hit by a pitch, loading the bases, and Mixon scored when Wes Westbrook grounded out.

South Carolina then tied it up in the sixth. With one away, Randy Rodgers reached second on a two-base error. A wild pitch moved him to third. Ronnie Crapps walked and Greg Jonson reached on an infield hit, loading the bases for the second straight frame. Williams then walked, forcing in Rodgers with the tying run.

The Pirates went back on top in the seventh. Once more with one away, Best singled. Paradossi walked, and Best stole third. The throw to get him was off-target and went into the outfield, with Best coming on home on the play.

It stayed that way until the fateful ninth.

Williams led off the ninth with a single to left and Marquardt singled to center. Westbrook attempted to sacrifice, but his bunt was fielded by Conaty and relayed to Jerry Carraway at third, where the umpire ruled Williams safe.

"The play could have gone either way," Little said. "But it was a fateful one for us."

Paul Hollins came on to pinch-hit, singling sharply through the drawn-in infield, scoring both Williams and Marquardt, giving the Gamecocks the victory.

Following today's game, the Pirates return home Friday to face Big Ten member Purdue in a doubleheader.

Smith: Programs Need Support

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Loren Smith, executive director of the University of Georgia Bulldog Club, said that athletic programs must have a very successful financial program to succeed in a talk with the Greenville Sports Club yesterday.

Smith regaled the club with a series of stories about sports personalities whom he knew during most of his talk.

"All phases of the educational system are making a push for financial donations for the betterment of their individual programs," Smith told the group. "Even now we are facing the push for women's athletics. And we are going to need an interpretation of this rule by HEW before we can fully understand it."

Smith continued that athletics must have the support of groups outside the university proper. "The only problem is that the more support you get from the community, the greater the pressure there is to win. And unfortunately that sometimes leads to cheating."

He added that he did not know how widespread cheating is, but that he hoped it was only among a small percentage. "It is really bad for athletics," he said. "The NCAA has a lot of problems, and I'd be unhappy if the University of Georgia, for example, was put on probation. But if such a thing were to happen, I would feel that the NCAA was justified."

Smith said that he feels the college game (of football) is still much more exciting than professional football. "The college game still have the element of surprise. It's not as structured. This is due to the turnover in personnel and the unpredictability of the game," he said.

Smith also urged the group not to forget their support of high school sports too. "They deserve the support. Few of these athletes will make it on to college and even fewer into the pros. But they deserve their share."

The next speaker for the club, on March 21, is scheduled to be East Carolina basketball coach Larry Gillman.

Gay's Wife Said Jealous

CAMDEN, N.J. (AP) — Many of Blenda Gay's Philadelphia Eagles teammates say his wife, Roxanne, was almost obsessively jealous of him, to the point of calling many of them in the middle of the night.

Testifying at her sanity hearing here Tuesday, a string of witnesses, including Eagles Coach Richard one of Gay's roommates, said Mrs. Gay repeatedly called the Eagles training camp and office looking for her husband.

A hearing before Camden County Court Judge I.V. DiMartino to determine Mrs.

Gay's mental condition at the time of the murder began Monday and is expected to continue until Thursday.

The witnesses said she accused secretaries in the office and team cheerleaders of running around with Blenda, a defensive lineman.

She once appeared at training camp in the early morning with the couple's 3-year-old daughter and forced the child to cry for her father, the witnesses said.

It was her jealousy for her husband that caused most of their domestic arguments, according to testimony.

Trail Blazers Fizzle In Loss To New Orleans

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer
A crowd of 28,842 came to the Louisiana Superdome to see the National Basketball Association champions, the Portland Trail Blazers. What they saw was something less than super. "We didn't catch the ball, pass it or shoot it — and there is not much else," said Portland Coach Jack Ramsay after watching his team score just 12 points in the fourth quarter in losing to the New Orleans Jazz 84-82 Tuesday night. "We've won without Bill Walton before," added Ramsay, referring to the Blazers' all-star center who is sidelined following foot surgery. "This was a very poor offensive game on our part." Elsewhere in the NBA Tuesday night, the Atlanta Hawks beat the Detroit Pistons 123-109, the San Antonio Spurs trounced the New Jersey Nets 129-98, the New York Knicks defeated the Houston Rockets 112-101 and the Phoenix Suns topped the Denver Nuggets 126-112. New Orleans was able to win despite going 5-40 without a score in the third quarter and 5-20 without a score in the final period. Portland is now 0-8 against the Jazz in the Superdome. The Blazers led by as many as nine points in the early going, but the Jazz tied it at 38-38 and it was close thereafter. Truck Robinson led the Jazz with 27 points while Maurice Lucas had 21 for the Blazers. Hawks 123, Pistons 109 John Drew's 19 points and 15 rebounds led a balanced attack as eight Atlanta players hit double figures. The victory lifted the Hawks one percentage point ahead of Cleveland and kept them one-half game in front of New Orleans in the scramble for the final two Eastern Conference playoff spots. Spurs 129, Nets 98 San Antonio trailed by as many as 17 points in the second period and 55-46 at the half, but outscored the Nets 41-19 in the third quarter to take command. Larry Kenon scored 27 points and Billy Paultz added 25 as the Central Division leaders posted their fifth straight home victory and dealt the Nets their 15th consecutive loss on the road. Knicks 112, Rockets 101 Bob McAdoo scored 29 points and Earl Monroe added 20 to lead the Knicks to their sixth victory in the last seven games, while Houston suffered its fifth loss in a row. The Knicks buried the Rockets with a 19-4 burst late in the final period. Suns 126, Nuggets 112 Rookie Walter Davis scored 34 points. Ron Lee added 27 and Paul Westphal hit for 21 — including seven in the final 39 seconds — to lead Phoenix past Denver. The Suns led by just five points before Westphal took control, hitting a jump shot from the corner, following with a steal and a three-point play and adding another layup.

ECU Faces Kentucky In Regional Opener

East Carolina University's women's basketball team might be excused if they feel they are looking at a carbon copy of the N.C. State women's team Thursday in the first round of the Regional AIAW Tournament in Chapel Hill. The Lady Pirates, North Carolina runner-up, will take on Kentucky in a 1:30 p.m. game in Carmichael Auditorium Thursday in the first round of the regionals. They will play a second game Friday, depending on whether they win or lose. "Kentucky is big with a balanced attack," ECU coach Catherine Bolton said. "They have excellent depth. They were ranked early in the year, but they've dropped out of the top 20. They've done well against some of the stronger teams, but they've lost to some they shouldn't have lost to." Among the losses, the Lady Cats count one to North Carolina, the regional host team. The reason for the N.C. State-look-alike look is that Debbie Yow, the sister of N.C. State coach Kay Yow, is the Lady Cat coach. "They try to do a lot of things just like State, but they don't have the same ability. I imagine that we'll face a 1-3-1 defense, too," Bolton said. State used a 1-3-1 zone in their successful championship game against the Pirates Saturday night.

The Lady Cats do have size. Their front line will probably consist of 6-2 freshman center Jeannine Mjoseph from Germany; while the forwards will be Pam Browning, a 6-0 senior; Maria Donhoff, a 5-11 freshman; or Janet Timperman, a 5-10 senior. The backcourt will include either 5-2 junior Debbie Mack, 5-5 freshman Geri Grigsby, or 5-9 sophomore Linda Edelman. "Rebounding will be the key to the game," Bolton said. "If we can get to the boards, we should be able to run and our speed should give us an advantage." The Lady Pirates will start Rosie Thompson and Debbie Freeman at forwards, Marcia Girven at center, and either Gale Kerbaugh, Lydia Bountree or April Ross at the guards. Should the Lady Pirates win, they will face the winner of the Tennessee-North Carolina game at 9 p.m. Friday. A loss would send them against the loser of that game at 1:30 p.m. Friday.

Farmville In Romp

PINETOPS—Farmville Central's baseball team rolled over South Edgecombe 6-2 in its first outing of the season yesterday afternoon. The Jaguars built up a 6-0 lead before allowing the Dragons to score one run in the bottom of the seventh. Farmville got its first run in the second inning when Allen Moore singled, advanced to third on a passed ball and a wild pitch and then scored when Edward Hines walked and then got caught in an intentional rundown.

In the third, Billy McLawhorn singled and Clark May and Scott Evans walked to load the bases for the Jags. Phillip Gordon singled to score McLawhorn and May, and he and Evans came in when Moore got a base hit. Farmville's final run came in the fifth when Tony Eason doubled and then scored on a single by Hines. The Jaguars, now 1-0 play at Southern Wayne on Friday. Farmville 014 010 0-4

Poor Weather Hurts Roanoke

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer
Defending Eastern Plains Conference champion Roanoke could have the best baseball team in the school's three-year existence, according to coach Nolan Respass, if pitching and the weather don't hold the team back. "The weather has been the biggest disappointment so far," Respass said. "We've only been able to practice about twice — real good practices." Respass also said he is worried about the team's pitching staff. Lack of good practice time is one reason, but the coach added, "In the past, they haven't shown me they can throw strikes."

"The pitching staff is a question mark. They've got a lot of potential, but they've got to show me they can throw strikes and get people out first." Pitching may be a problem for the Redskins, but hitting shouldn't be, according to Respass. "I think the strength of our team will be with the bat. We hit the ball real good last year and most of our good hitters are back. We've got a lot of competition for the starting positions and this should make for an interesting season." Respass said he has experience at just about every position on the team. A four-year starter, senior Charlie Smith, will get the nod at first. "He's a very experienced player. If he doesn't hit well and hit the long balls for me, I'm going to be very disappointed," Respass said. Smith is also a pitcher and has a good arm, according to the coach. Will Harris, a junior, will start at second base. "He was a spot starter last year and is a pretty good defensive player. His bat is a question mark right now, though." At shortstop is another four-year starter, Ken Gurganus. He will be the team's leadoff batter. He has "a knack for getting on base," according to Respass. Gurganus is also "a sound defensive ballplayer." Sophomore Glenn Cargile, who started as a freshman last year, will be at third. The second-leading hitter on the club last season, Cargile is termed "a good clutch hitter." He is also a good defensive player, although he is slowed by a basketball injury. It should be cleared up in about two weeks, however. The outfield positions aren't really settled yet, Respass said. The probable lineup will be senior Des Andrews in left, senior Wayne Council in center, and senior Cliff Keel in right. Andrews started on occasion last season and "should hit the ball pretty good for us," Respass said. Council is a .300 hitter who should be one of the teams better players before the year is out. Keel, who also pitches and plays first base, is a power hitter. Respass also mentioned a sophomore prospect, Anthony Latham, who is currently hitting the ball better than anyone on the team. "We've got to find a place for him somewhere," the coach said. Latham may pitch, play outfield or be the team's designated hitter. Street Lee, a junior, has been working behind the plate. "He is a real competitive kid, a hard worker, and he swings a pretty good bat," Respass said. The pitching lineup includes senior David Jenkins, junior Clay Roberson and sophomore Jesse Matthews. Jenkins has the best control on the team, but doesn't have a real good arm, Respass said. Roberson has a strong arm, but not much control right now, while Matthews is "a pretty good-looking prospect," who can pitch or play infield. Two other players, sophomore Wesley Johnson and first-year senior Kent Butler, will also see some playing time. Johnson will probably fill in some at first, while Butler, a good hitter, should see some action as the designated hitter. The Redskins should be the favorites to repeat as the conference champions, Respass said, but South Edgecombe, West Edgecombe and Elm City will provide some tough competition. "I think most of the coaches will pick us as the favorites on paper, but that doesn't mean anything." Right now, the biggest challenge is coming from the weather. "If we can just get a few days of good weather, I think we'll be all right," Respass said.

Some Teams Cut To 24 Men

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

A number of major league clubs, mostly in the National League, are prepared to go into the 1978 baseball season with 24 players instead of the traditional 25.

The teams won the right to cut back to 24 players during negotiation of the current basic agreement — the same talks that resulted in the high-priced, free agent re-entry draft. And many of them intend to use that right this year.

"It's a verbal agreement reached at the winter meeting among National League owners," said Rudy Carpenter, owner of the Philadelphia Phillies. "Nobody signed an oath in blood."

"But Earl Weaver, manager of the Baltimore Orioles, thinks that might not have been a bad idea.

"I think it will last until the first club puts 25 guys on the roster," he said. "Do you think the Yanks are going to break camp with 24? Anyone playing at a disadvantage is stupid and not using good sense. It's like starting a checker game without all the checkers or a chess game without a couple of pawns or a knight."

All of Weaver's 25 pieces will be in place if he has anything to say about it.

Some NL executives, though, think the 25-man limit is overrated.

"Before World War II we had 21, then went to 23 just after the war," said Al Campanis, vice president for player personnel of the Los Angeles Dodgers. "We got along well enough then."

Houston is also committed to the 24-man move, and Astros' president Tal Smith thinks 24 may not be the bottom line for major league rosters, although the current basic agreement prevents any drop below that number.

Also involved is the matter of money. One less body on the roster means the saving of a major league salary and the fringe expenses of traveling, hotels and meal money.

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn says the decision is strictly up to the individual clubs and would not object to some clubs using 24 players while others in the same league use 25.

Ray Attempts Comeback

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — Stock car driver John Ray, whose career was interrupted a couple of years ago by a broken neck in an accident at Daytona, says he's going after the NASCAR Winston Cup Rookie of the Year title with a new racing team.

Ray said Tuesday that his team will run in the May 7 Winston 500 at Talladega and the May 28th World 600 at Charlotte, along with other events on the circuit schedule.

Ray and rookie Chuck Bown, the 24-year-old 1976 NASCAR Winston West champ from Portland, Ore., will join the chase in Ray's Chevrolet that has been driven sparingly over the last two seasons.

Ray maintains the car in his trucking company garage within earshot of Alabama International Motor Speedway at Talladega.

Tigerettes Prepare For State 3-A Finals

HICKORY — Williamston High School's girls will open play in the State 3-A tournament in Hickory Thursday night, facing Shelby Burns.

Burns brings a 28-1 record into its first state tournament action. Until last year, the school was a member of the now-defunct Western High School Athletic Association.

Williamston is just a step behind in record with a 26-1 mark, and will be making its fifth straight appearance in the state playoffs.

"I really don't know a lot about them," Coach P.J. Taylor said. "We're not going to do anything different in the tournament. What's gotten us this far is going to have to take us the rest of the way. I feel we're well-versed in the game. We've gotten scouting reports in the past that have proven to be inaccurate, so we're not going to worry, just go out and do our best."

Burns, according to reports reaching Greenville, won its six six games of the year after having a 22-game streak broken in its final regular season game.

The Shelby Star sports department told the Reflector that Burns is not a particularly good shooting team, but is quick and plays a very good defense.

The leading scorer is Vanessa Simmons, a forward, hitting about 14 a game. Next comes Mary Ann Wright, a guard, scoring around 13 a game. Susan Hull, the other forward, scores around ten a game. The other starters are playmaker Diana Sweezy and center Bertha Ross. Ross is the tallest player at 5-10.

The team largely goes with only six players during the course of a game, with Trudy Gold drawing the reserve duty.

Williamston will be led by its front-court trio of Paula Bennett (15.0), JoAnna Lilley (12.3) and Jan Rogerson. Guards Miriam Martin and Alicia Robertson can hit from the outside.

"We're going to approach this like any other game," Taylor said. "This will be our sixth straight State tournament trip, so I don't think any of the girls will be bothered by the jitters."

Williamston, however, is still seeking its first championship, having advanced to the finals only once in those six years.

Hudson In Lead

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Tommy Hudson of Akron, Ohio, averaged 236 and rolled a 276 in his final game to take the second round lead in the $100,000 U.S. Open here, sponsored by the Bowling Proprietors Association of America.

Watson, Nicklaus Face Off In Doral

MIAMI (AP) — Tom Watson and Jack Nicklaus, warming up for a rematch of their 1977 Masters-British Open heroics, will face each other for only the second time this season in the $200,000 Doral Open Golf Tournament this week.

And, importantly, each appears primed and ready for the 72-hole struggle for a $40,000 first prize that gets started Thursday on the 7,065-yard, par-72 Blue Monster course at the Doral Country Club.

Nicklaus quite obviously wasn't ready in their only other meeting this year. Making his first start of the season after a lengthy layoff, he had a ragged 77 in the opening round of the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am.

The game's greatest player didn't get in contention in the Crosby, which Watson claimed as his second victory of the year. In his last two starts, however, Nicklaus finished second in Los Angeles, then won Inverrary with a fantastic finish that saw him birdie his last five holes.

Watson, with two titles already this year and leading the money-winning list at $103,181, sat out those two tournaments and is coming off a three-week break that has him rested and refreshed.

While they're the top attractions, the 144-man field is loaded with potential challengers.

Among them are U.S. Open champ Hubert Green, like Nicklaus a previous winner of this event; Tom Weiskopf, Lee Trevino, Ben Crenshaw, Australian David Graham and defending title-holder Andy Bean.

Also on hand are 1978 winners Jay Haas, Bill Rogers, Miller Barber and Mac McLendon, who took the title last week in Orlando, Fla., along with Ray Floyd, Bruce Lietzke and Jerry Pate.

Kinston Tops Chargers

LITTLEFIELD—Kinston defeated Ayden-Grifton 7-2 yesterday afternoon in the opening game of the Chargers' baseball season.

Ayden-Grifton scored first in the game when Harold Edwards walked, went to second when Ed Coley reached on a fielder's choice, stole third, and scored on Mark Cannon's infield out.

Kinston took the lead in the top of the second, however. Phil Bailey walked and Whitfield singled. An error advanced both runners and they scored on Walker's sacrifice fly to center field.

Ayden-Grifton tied the game up when Clayton McLawhorn scored on Wayne Newton's sacrifice in the second, but Bailey doubled home Spence and Gardner in the top of the third for Kinston to give the Vikings the lead for good.

Kinston added two more runs in the fifth and one in the sixth.

Tigers Win

WILLIAMSTON — Williamston High School gained a 6-3 victory over Roanoke High School yesterday in a tennis match.

How Tar Heel Congressmen And Senators Voted

By Roll Call Report
WASHINGTON — Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Feb. 23 thru Mar. 1.

HOUSE
CASELOADS Passed, 266 for and 133 against, a bill doing away with the "diversity of citizenship" rule which is said by critics to unjustifiably jam federal court dockets. The bill (HR 9622), which made other changes in federal court jurisdiction, was sent to the Senate.

Under the nearly 200-year-old diversity rule, civil cases involving state law can be heard in federal courts if the plaintiff and defendant are from different states. The original rationale was to avert local bias by the judge or jury against the out-of-state litigant. Diversity cases comprise about one-fifth of the caseload of the 403 federal judges. There are some 6,000 state court judges.

Rep. Peter Rodino (D-N.J.), a supporter, said: "More than 20 years ago Mr. Justice Frankfurter referred to 'the mounting mischief inflicted on the federal judicial system by the unjustifiable continuance of diversity jurisdiction.' Today, the time has arrived to rid ourselves of the mischief of diversity."

Rep. Dan Glickman (D-Kan.), an opponent, said the bill amounts to "shifting that congestion to the state courts... they are, in many instances, equally as crowded (as federal courts)."

Members voting "yea" favored eliminating the diversity rule.

Rep. Walter Jones (D-1), L. H. Fountain (D-2), Ike Andrews (D-4), Richardson Preyer (D-6), W. G. Hefner (D-8), James Broyhill (R-10) and Lamar Gudger (D-11) voted "yea."

Reps. Charles Whitley (D-3), Stephen Neal (D-5) and James Martin (R-9) voted "nay."

Rep. Charles Rose (D-7) did not vote.

FTC POWER Rejected, 146 for and 255 against, the conference report on HR 3816, a bill giving the Federal Trade Commission more tools for curbing unscrupulous and otherwise questionable business practices. Although the Senate had earlier adopted the conference report, the House votes mean another conference must be held.

While opponents voted "nay" for a variety of reasons, much opposition stemmed from the fact that House-Senate conferees dropped provisions for a "congressional veto" of FTC rules. The House earlier had voted in favor of such a restriction on the FTC.

Rep. Harley Staggers (D-W. Va.), a supporter, said the FTC operates as "an independent regulatory agency in seeing that fair play is done in the marketplace... and I think that since it has begun to be active today in trying to do a better job, opposition has been generated."

Rep. James Broyhill (R-N.C.) an opponent, said: "The congressional veto provision would have provided us with a mechanism to use to more closely scrutinize the rulemaking authorities exercised by the Federal Trade Commission."

Members voting "yea" favored the conference report.

Jones, Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Hefner, Martin, Broyhill and Gudger voted "nay."

Rose did not vote.

GRAZING FEES Passed, 257 for and 47 against, a bill (HR 9757) delaying higher fees for ranchers whose livestock graze on federal lands in the 11 Western states. A new fee schedule had been slated to take effect Mar. 1. During the year-long moratorium imposed by this bill, Congress would seek to develop a fee structure less costly to ranchers.

A 1976 law called for charging cattlemen a fair market value for grazing access to U.S. Bureau of Land Management and National Forest lands. The agencies then proposed increments of 25 per cent annually for three years beginning in 1978—a plan this legislation seeks to scuttle as being too tough on ranchers. The bill was sent to the Senate.

Rep. Teno Roncalio (D-Wyo.), a supporter, said the government's plan is "simply too drastic an increase" at a time when "the western livestock industry is beset by four consecutive years of low beef prices and severe drought conditions."

Rep. Berkley Bedell (D-Iowa), an opponent, said the bill might be biased in favor of the larger ranchers, and added that he is "very much concerned over the movement away from the small family operator to bigger and bigger operators all through our agricultural sections."

Members voting "yea" favored delaying the higher grazing fees.

Jones, Whitley, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Rose, Hefner, Martin, Broyhill and Gudger voted "yea."

Fountain did not vote.

SENATE

PANAMA CANAL Tabled, 55 for and 34 against, an amendment to the Panama Canal treaties permitting U.S. troops to remain in Panama until 2019 if a President wanted to keep them there that long in order to protect the neutrality of the canal zone. This vote meant that proposed treaty language providing for U.S. troop withdrawal at the end of 1999 remained unchanged. A final vote on ratification, was having an unpaid, a free, defense of their canal? It is going to be turned over to them, and all we would be doing is giving them an unpaid defense of some 8,000 or 9,000 troops there. So it seems to me that this is something Panama might want."

Senators voting "yes" favored keeping the present 1999 troop withdrawal deadline.

Sen. Jesse Helms (R) voted "nay."

Sen. Robert Morgan (D) did not vote.

PANAMA CANAL Tabled, 60

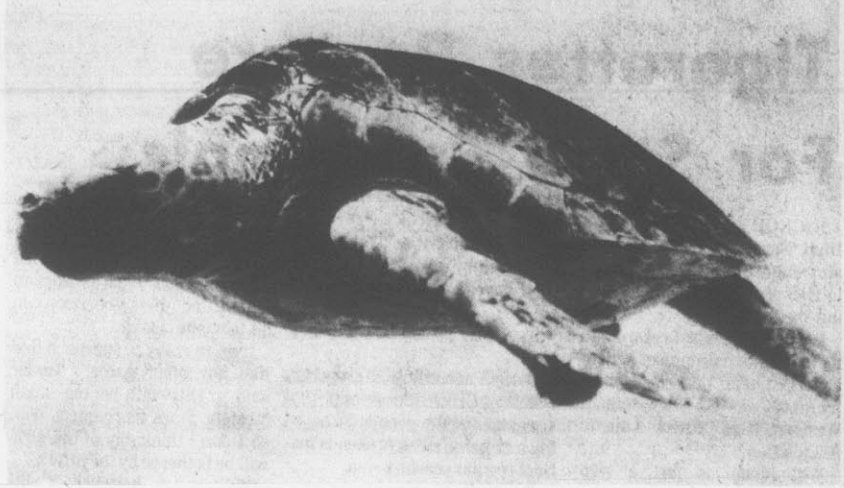

for and 34 against, an amendment to the Panama Canal treaties stating it would not violate the neutrality of the canal zone if, during war, the U.S. intercepted enemy ships trying to reach the sanctuary of the canal. The tabling came as the Senate continued debate on the proposed Panama Canal treaties (see above vote).

Sen. Frank Church (D-Idaho), a supporter of tabling and thus killing the amendment, called it a "frivolous" measure because "our right to intercept enemy vessels on the high seas during times of war is not anchored in this Neutrality Treaty... We assert that right as an international practice on the high seas..."

Sen. James Allen (D-Ala.), an opponent of tabling, said the measure "merely spells out whether or not our action in intercepting... enemy ships... before they get to the canal is violation of this neutrality treaty which promises free and unimpeded transit by enemy warships and submarines through the canal."

Senators voting "yea" favored killing the amendment. Morgan voted "yea." Helms voted "nay."

FACE EXTINCTION — Giant sea turtles that once numbered in the millions along North America's Pacific Coast face extinction unless prompt action is taken to save them, conservationists warn. Conservationists want immediate action to protect nesting beaches and stop the slaughter of the reptiles. (AP Laserphoto)

Year's Salary For Research

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — After watching her husband waste away and die of leukemia, Alma Margosian decided to donate her entire 1978 salary to cancer research.

It means giving up $8,000 to $10,000 in paychecks and living on $408 a month from her husband's retirement. A daughter living at home while attending college receives Social Security survivor's benefits.

"Our lifestyle is going to change considerably," Mrs. Margosian says. "We worked all our lives to reach a time when we could enjoy things. Then Ed's illness came and brought that to an abrupt end." Mrs. Margosian's commitment developed from watching "the futility of my husband's efforts" over more than two years to combat the spread of leukemia with chemotherapy.

Edward Margosian, a sheriff's lieutenant who died in May 1977, was "an extremely strong man," she says.

"But from the moment treatment began, it was all downhill. It just seems you cannot introduce poison into the body — which chemotherapy is — without something to rebuild the body."

Mrs. Margosian is focusing her donation toward research on nutrition because she feels chemotherapy destroys healthy cells as well as cancerous ones. "Something should be done to rebuild the body," she says.

Her paychecks are being sent to the Linus Pauling Institute at Menlo Park, Calif., which is experimenting with diet and vitamin C to inhibit cancer. Mrs. Margosian divides her work week, spending part of the time as a medical secretary for a physician and part as a medical transcriber for a hospital.

"I'm not in any position to give up a year's salary, but I feel so strongly about this," she says.

"I'm hoping I can stir up dust and have research laboratories across the nation aware of the feelings cancer patients or cancer families have. I hope other people will be so motivated so more research funds can be available.

"I think one year of my time is worth it if more effort can be made toward cancer research."

And donating to cancer research is not entirely unselfish because more than 20 percent of the nation's population contracts some form of the disease, Mrs. Margosian feels.

"There is no guarantee we're not going to get it, and I'd want treatment better than what is now available," she says.

Hunt Values During Low On Market

INTERSTATE SECURITIES CORPORATION
 The Dow, along with major industry groups, has been in a protracted downturn for nearly two years. Many observers feel the March Dow peak above 1,000 in 1976 marked the orthodox high of the most recent bull market even though the Dow reached a slightly higher point in September of that year. The bear market in the Dow, the basic industry stocks, and various glamour issues is now "old" by historic comparison. This means that now is the time to start searching for values when the overall market is low and pessimism is growing. What should be profitable strategy to pursue at this juncture? We offer the following advice:

1. As always, opt for preservation of capital—buy strong balance sheets, growing dividends, low price/earnings ratios, above-average earnings prospects, and stocks temporarily out-of-favor for one reason or another.
2. Continue sticking with the strong, high-quality secondaries. We believe they will continue to be leaders in the next bull market. These abound in almost every industry, and are plentiful throughout the Carolinas.
3. We think selective choices in the glamour group make sense as well. For the first time in several years, selected glamour/growth issues offer relatively good value. The multiples have been coming down while earnings and dividends have grown rapidly.
4. There is much concern about investor capital eroding through higher taxes and continuing rapid inflation. Well-chosen stocks offer protection from both these ogres. Capital gains of more than one year are subject to a reduced tax rate. Rapidly growing dividends (on the order of 7-10% annually) offer the protection needed to help offset inflation. Any number of stocks on the two major exchanges and over-the-counter satisfy both these objectives.
5. We cannot help but be impressed by two phenomena that offer hope for a stronger stock market later in 1978. First, since 1888 each year ending in eight has seen the Dow Jones Industrial Average bottom no later than April. Second, major market bottoms have occurred about four years apart over the last two decades—1974, 1970, 1966 and 1962. In the fall of this year, it will have been exactly four years since the market bottomed in 1974.

There is growing reason for optimism about stocks with each passing day. Bearish sentiment is rising—more forecasters are turning negative, business articles are pessimistic, mutual fund liquidity is building, and the bear market is showing signs of old age. These always presage a market turnaround. The majority of peoples are most negative at market bottoms. For investors, the environment is growing increasingly fertile with each passing day. Take this opportunity to prepare for the next bull market. It will come because it always has.

Area Students In Honor Soc.

Two local college students have earned membership in Phi Eta Sigma, a national academic honor society, at North Carolina State University.
 Chancellor Joab L. Thomas noted that the students receiving the honor, 89 in all, represented less than three percent of the freshman class.
 Students earned an academic standing of 3.5 or better records. Carolyn D. Evans, wildlife biology, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A.K. Evans Jr. of Greenville; and Elizabeth A. Heath, physics, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B.O. Heath, also of Greenville, both were taken into the society.

Argentina Deadly For Journalists

By WILLIAM F. NICHOLSON
Associated Press Writer
BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — In the last four years, more than 35 journalists have been killed in Argentina, 30 have been arrested and scores more have left the country after receiving death threats.

Oscar Serral, 43, an Argentine citizen who works for The Associated Press, was one of the lucky ones. Men in civilian clothes picked him up as he left home for work last November. He was released 18 hours later after the U.S. State Department, the AP, other international news agencies and foreign newspapers, and a few other governments pressured the military regime to "find" him.

He was freed near where he had been abducted. He could not identify his captors, who had put a black hood over his head.

Most missing journalists, whose publications lack the clout of a worldwide agency, rate only a few lines, if anything, in the local press, and many are not heard from again.

Many of the kidnappings are presumed to be the work of government security forces. More than 700 persons died in political violence last year as the government stepped up its drive against leftists, and more than 2,000 people were reported missing.

There is no formal censorship. But local editors are mindful of the fate of their colleagues and often let that affect what they print or ignore.

Editorials and stories playing up patriotic speeches by military commanders are well displayed. So are pictures of troop maneuvers. Statements by anti-government groups outside the country and news of disappearances are seldom printed.

"Lately I've been sitting down with my wife and discussing the possibility of selling everything and just saying 'the hell with journalism,'" a prominent publisher told a foreign acquaintance recently.

Recently foreign journalists also have come under government pressure.

The foreign ministry called in Juan de Onis of the New York Times and him told the government didn't like what he was writing. De Onis and Karen de Young of the Washington Post have reported extensively on violation of human rights in Argentina, and the ministry complained to the U.S. Embassy last month about the reporting of both.

Journalists from ABC and NBC, the Voice of America, the British Broadcasting Corp., United Press International, the AP and the Wall Street Journal have been detained and questioned for writing about relatives of missing persons.

The presentation, not the content, of the local press often tells readers what is important. "Reading the Buenos Aires papers is like reading the wall posters in Peking," said a foreign diplomat.

Editorial comment on sensitive subjects which appears on front pages attributed to "reliable sources" or which the papers say "has been learned" nearly always has been planted by the government.

Seedsman Are Experts In Fooling Mother Nature

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

Seedsman and plant nurseries are busy these days fooling Mother Nature.

Vegetable and herb novelties offered in 1978 seed catalogs include white broccoli and zucchini, green cauliflower, miniature cauliflower, blue-podded beans that turn green when cooked, round carrots, spaghetti squash, melon-squash, tree mushrooms, parsley two to three feet tall with stalks that can be eaten like celery, cucumbers averaging 10 to 12 pounds each and sweet corn with white kernels that turn black when dried.

Oriental vegetable seeds that a few years ago were available mostly if at all in major metropolitan areas now are sold by large and small seedsman in widely separated areas of the United States.

William S. Sher, marketing director for a young San Carlos, Calif., company that carries oriental vegetable and herb seeds and oriental cookware, says Tsang and Ma International almost doubled its sales last year, and sales are starting to grow outside of California. Most of the company's seeds come from the People's Republic of China.

A random sampling of 1978 catalogs from American companies and the U.S. agent for a British seedsman indicates demand is also growing for seeds and plants produced without synthetic fertilizers and synthetic pest and disease controls. Demand also is increasing for fresh herbs and seeds and beans for sprouting.

In Northampton, Pa., Metro and Kathryn Myster raise and sell organically grown vegetables and herbs. "More and more people are interested in the organic way of raising vegetables," Mrs. Myster said in a telephone interview. She said most of their herb plants are sold at their greenhouse because they do not ship well by mail. Among their herbs are Dutch and French shallots and elephant garlic, plus multiplier onions that you plant in fall for spring harvest.

"People are into herbs a lot more than they were three or four years ago," she said.

Betty Walker, manager of Nichols Garden Nursery in Albany, Ore., named white French bush zucchini and spaghetti squash as among its most popular items. The flesh of the squash looks like thin spaghetti. The giant parsley and black Aztec corn are also from Nichols.

"Gardening is becoming more popular as food prices go up," Ms. Walker said.

She said all the company's seeds and plants are grown with natural fertilizers and natural pest and disease controls.

Ms. Walker and spokesmen for two oriental seed companies in California and the British company attributed the growing demand for oriental vegetables to the increasing popularity of Chinese cooking in the U.S.

More and more seed catalogs these days offer cookbooks and cooking and canning aids as well as gardening supplies. The most diversified catalogs we've seen so far are from Nichols and Thompson and Morgan of Ipswich, England.

Dolores Porter, the English company's mail order division manager in Farmingdale, N.J., says three of its most popular offerings currently are caulflower with heads of one and a half to three and a half inches at maturity, and tree and shitake mushrooms. Both mushroom varieties grow indoors on organic plant material containing preplanted spores.

Tree mushrooms are ivory-colored and shaped like oysters. Dried shitake mushrooms are often used in oriental cookery in the U.S.

Thompson and Morgan also offers unusual sprouting mixtures — herbal green mint, sandwich, salad and multi-colored cocktail snack blends, as examples — plus ornamentals, fruits and berries, even cheese, cider and wine presses and a home garden fish aerator for people who want to raise fish in their yards. "For prices and delivery (of fish) contact your local fish farmer," the catalog adds.

Nichols' catalog lists more than 1,200 different varieties of food seeds and plants, along with dried herbs and spices, herbal teas, winemaking supplies, cooking and canning aids, food and gardening books.

In Louisiana, Mo., Paul Stark, Jr., sees a definite trend toward compact dwarf and summer dwarf trees.

"They are much more efficient bearing units and get higher production per acre. Of course, you have to plant more trees per acre."

Stark Bros. Nurseries owns or leases 2,700 acres in four states and is known for its fruit trees, although it also does a big business in flowering shrubs and roses. Its home garden catalog also lists horseradish and vegetable seeds.

In Chesterland, Ohio, Sunnyside Farms Nursery's specialty is herb plants. Its 150 different varieties include more than 30 common English and French cooking thymes as well as scented and fancy-leaf geraniums: coconut, apple and peppermint, as examples.

Manager Kim Ruh is the third-generation of her family in the business. She said most of the company's customers are east of the Mississippi.

Her mother developed a 32-plant colonial herb garden for the Bicentennial that still is available. It includes seeds, planting instructions, directions for drying herbs, an herb bibliography, and the design for a six-foot circular garden. Most of the Centennial garden plants are hardy culinary herbs, but some are medicinal.

Mrs. Ruh said the company was started as a hobby during the Depression by her grandfather, a Columbus pediatrician. He dealt in trees and shrubs. His wife introduced herbs and their daughter continued the business, except for a suspension during World War II.

Cosmic Rays Could Tell About 'Big Bang'

By RALPH WAKLEY
DUGWAY, Utah (UPI) — Some 20 billion years ago — so the Big Bang Theory goes — our universe was born in a gigantic explosion that sent the core of matter flying apart. The universe, according to the theory, then developed into a system of expanding galaxies. But man's efforts to interpret the results of the supposed explosion have, until now, always been limited by limited technology.

Now a team of University of Utah astrophysicists is on the verge of opening a new era in cosmic ray detection and particle physics that may expand the limits of astronomy to the edge of the universe.

"We hope to learn about the dynamics of our galaxy," said Dr. George Cassidy, associate professor of physics, "and perhaps the structure of the universe itself."

Cassidy and his team of more than two dozen university professors and graduate students is developing a new method of tracking the faint, spreading light from cosmic ray particle showers.

The university's observatory, called "Fly's Eye," is being constructed on a mountain at the U.S. Army's Dugway Proving Ground in the western Utah desert.

Cassidy says Fly's Eye will eventually be an array of about 100 giant concave mirrors that will focus the ultraviolet light of cosmic ray showers onto a bank of "photomultipliers" which intensify the light and convert it into an electronic signal fed into university computers.

The observatory will measure cosmic rays streaming in on the Earth from all directions.

"Lower energy cosmic rays ... are bent by the various electromagnetic fields in the universe," Cassidy said.

But he said cosmic rays accelerated to the energy level range of 10 to the 18th power electron volts, and at higher energy levels, tend to travel in straight lines.

Cosmic rays of this energy level most likely come from super nova, an exploding star; from pulsars, the contracted remnants of an exploded star which emit high energy impulses, or from Seyfert or N-type galaxies, which have small and intensely bright nuclei emitting strong energy signals.

"Some researchers, using conventional measuring techniques, have found indications of cosmic rays in the energy range of 10 to the 20th power electron volts."

Energy of this intense level could possibly come from quasars, celestial masses of dense matter at the edge of the universe. Quasars emit immense quantities of energy, and Cassidy said some astrophysicists think quasars may have been formed at the time of the Big Bang.

"Since we know these cosmic rays in the top energy range travel in a straight line, once we go above the energy level of super novas, pulsars and high-energy galaxies, it could be that we'll be measuring energy from quasars only."

In theory, the university team will be creating an energy picture from cosmic ray formation from the edge of the universe as it expanded eons ago.

And, by adapting the measuring equipment, the researchers hope to determine whether cosmic rays are uniform throughout the universe, and thus created by a source such as quasars, or if they come from sources inside the universe, which will tend to deflate some of the bang in the Big Bang theory.

Cassidy said, if the ultra high energy cosmic rays are coming from a few or many galaxies inside the universe, such as the Seyfert galaxies, "that won't disprove the Big Bang, but we may have to modify our thinking about the amount of energy released when the universe was formed."

The researchers predict up to 10 readings annually of cosmic rays in the highest energy range.

"We'll need at least 100 ... before we'll be prepared to come out with any definitive statement on the source of the super high energy stuff, if we can prove it exists at all," Cassidy said.

Village official of Mount Hagen, highlands of Papua New Guinea.

Amiable stone-age tribesman poses near mission church in highland region of Papua New Guinea.

THE LAST WILDERNESS

Children in mountain village relish rough-and-tumble game of soccer.

A country of rugged mountains, stone-age tribes and impenetrable jungle: that's the side of Papua New Guinea that causes it sometimes to be called "The Last Wilderness." Then there's also the country that on Sept. 16, 1975, ended nearly 100 years of European colonialism and became a fully independent nation.

Papua New Guinea occupies the eastern part of the island of New Guinea and includes some other, smaller islands to the west. It has potentially vast stores of minerals, timber, fish—even petroleum, perhaps—which promises well for future prosperity. But the job of forging a unified nation is complicated by the thousands of years of tribal jealousies among 2.6 million people divided by 700 different languages, who still fight each other with arrows and stone-age axes in the primitive highlands.

Outdoor Greenery Can Prove To Be Very Deadly

By PATRICIA Mc CORMACK
UPI Health Editor

Many things in vegetable and flower gardens and vacant lots can poison humans. Warn the pint-sized ones who tend to nibble indiscriminately outdoors.

About 9,000 cases of ingestion of poisonous plants were reported to the National Clearinghouse for Poison Control Centers last year. The figure goes up annually, Dr. John J. Crotty said in an interview.

Crotty, director of the clearinghouse, said parents must teach children not to put anything in their mouths while playing outside or helping with garden chores.

"Teach the children not to eat any growing thing without first checking with you," Crotty said.

The clearinghouse figure is based on reports from nearly 600 poison control centers nationwide. There are higher estimates.

In its booklet on poisonous plants, the Do It Now Foundation of Phoenix, Ariz., says 12,000 children are poisoned annually by things growing in the yard or garden or a vacant lot. Many times that number are believed to occur but go unreported.

The health education foundation fights all kinds of poisonings — from drugs and alcohol to the lesser recognized sources such as flowers, weeds and garden greenery.

Crotty said the clearinghouse's list of poisonous plants includes baneberry, bittersweet, bloodroot, castor beans, princess rose, daphne, deadly nightshade, foxglove, green hellebore, jimsonweed, larkspur, lily of the valley, monkshood, pokeweed, water hemlock and yew.

Daffodils eaten in quantity can cause diarrhea, trembling, vomiting and convulsions. Children are attracted more to the bulb than the flower — it looks like an onion.

The fact that some parts of garden crops are poisonous while others are edible complicates the poison control job. Consider rhubarb.

The reddish leaf stalk is used for pies and puddings, but eating the leaves can produce such symptoms as difficulty in breathing, burning of the throat and mouth, nausea, vomiting, stomach pains, weakness, internal bleeding, coma and even death.

Some seeds are poisonous. Sweet pea seeds can cause slow and weak pulse, shallow breathing, convulsions and death.

Mary Ann Gudas, a health educator and author of the foundation publication "Poisonous Plants: A Guide for Parents," says about 700 different species in this hemisphere alone have been found to be moderately poisonous to deadly.

Some blossoms contain poisons. With some species, plant toxicity varies with stages of growth.

"The unripe fruit of many species, for example, often is toxic," Ms. Gudas says. "But there is never one particular part of plants in general which can be regarded as most dangerous."

"In the case of the mayapple, the entire plant is poisonous with the exception of the ripe fruit."

"The seeds of the common apple contain cyanide. Most people eat so few seeds that they are not affected, but there has been at least one report of a man who ate a cupful of them and died."

The mustard family is a good example of common wild and cultivated vegetable plants that can be toxic.

Members of that family include cauliflower, horseradish, cabbage, brussels sprouts, kale, broccoli, cress radish, rutabaga, turnip, mustard and even stock.

"Eaten raw in large quantities, these can cause vomiting and diarrhea," Ms. Gudas said.

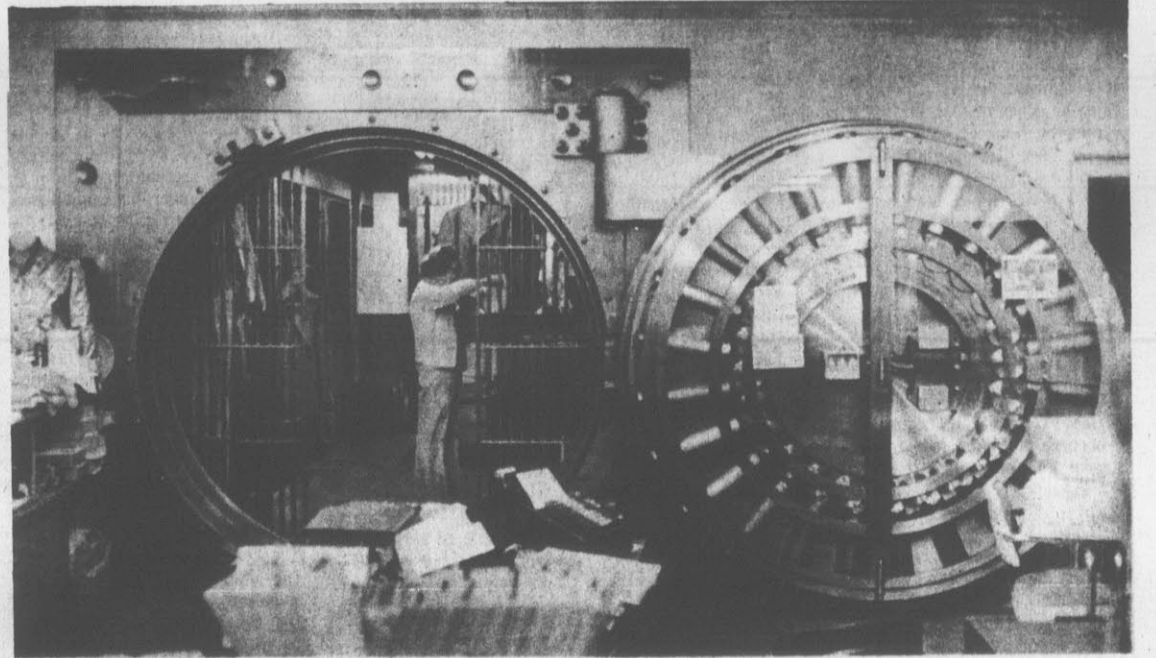

"The roots are the most dangerous part ... There have been many cases of people who became ill after nibbling on large amounts of fresh horseradish."

Even the tomato plant has poisonous leaves. Children have developed violent reactions from either eating the leaves or drinking tea made from them.

Green and spoiled potatoes and potato sprouts also have caused poisoning of humans.

"Do not eat potato tubers that are green below the skin or looking spoiled," Ms. Gudas says. "And always throw away the sprouts."

Stopping the VD Epidemic

The mass epidemic of venereal disease continues to expand despite massive health and educational campaigns. Gonorrhea and syphilis are striking adolescents, teen-agers and young adults with a mathematical enormity that is terrifying.

A large and intensive study was undertaken in New York City because of the prevalence of gonorrhea without any symptoms. Dr. Karen Hein and Dr. Michael I. Cohen, of the Division of Adolescent Medicine at the Montefiore Hospital in New York, studied adolescents between the ages of 12 and 16 years who had been admitted to temporary youth detention centers in New York City.

The detection of the presence of disease was diagnosed solely on the basis of laboratory testing. Those with any symptoms were eliminated from this particular study.

An important summary of their findings was based on 574 females who had complete physical examinations. A total of 374 (or 65 percent) of these patients had no signs or symptoms referable to the genital tract. Nevertheless, 26 females had positive cultures for the gonorrheal bacteria. This meant that 7 percent of the adolescent females who were studied had the disease without knowing it. This figure was nearly four times higher than in the male group that had no symptoms.

Drs. Hein and Cohen said, "If our goal is the eradication of gonorrhea among adolescents, then it is incumbent upon the pediatrician to diagnose and treat not only the symptomatic teen-ager, but also to evaluate and treat the sexually active yet asymptomatic (no symptoms) adolescent."

VD is an enormous threat to the adolescent and to his adult destiny. Parents, educators, doctors, and the mass media must coordinate their talents in a concerted effort to effectively combat the enormity of this threat.

I almost forgot. I returned home from the operating room one morning at 3:30 a.m. For some reason, the television set was still on. At 3:35 a.m. an anti-VD fragment was shown on the screen with the suggestion that further information could be obtained by calling an easily forgotten ten-digit number. Somebody's social guilt was satisfied by this poorly timed "commercial."

What can cause a sudden obstruction of the intestine in a perfectly normal person? — Mr. G. W., Tenn.

Dear Mr. W.: Any interference with the normal passage of food through the intestinal tract is an obstruction.

When adhesions or bands of firm tissue encircle the intestine, they cause narrowing and, in some instances, obstruction. Sometimes a knuckle of intestine may become caught in an old or neglected hernia. Obstruction may follow. Infections, inflammation, tumors, and spasm may also be responsible. In most instances, there is some evidence of trouble prior to an obstruction. It is rare that a sudden obstruction occurs without any previous warning or indication of intestinal disorder.

DR. COLEMAN welcomes letters from readers. Please write to him in care of this newspaper.

Too Cold For Motel Romance

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — Motel owners at Niagara Falls can testify it's hard to be romantic when you're cold.

"There are just no people — period," said Lily Huang, new owner of the Moonlite Motel.

She said when she and her husband bought the motel, they were assured, "business during the summer was good enough to help you make it through the winter."

She said some motel owners "don't even bother to open up" during the winter.

Business leaders here say honeymooners account for a great percentage of the area's tourist business during the spring, summer and fall but that tourism falls off dramatically each winter.

Television Will Honor Milton Berle's Career

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Milton Berle stepped outside the Brown Derby. He winced at the gray skies and pouring rain, and sighed: "California's a beautiful place to live if you're an umbrella."

A good one-liner. It's probably among the 4½ million gags he says he has on file. Some are rumored to be borrowed. Best not mention this, as he estimates the file includes 10,000 retorts to hecklers.

On March 26, the man they call "Mr. Television" is getting a star-loaded salute and look back at his 30-plus years in TV. He was one of the first top stars ever to try weekly television.

The try was in 1948, the show Berle's "Texaco Star Theater." It became the infant medium's biggest hit, led in 1951 to his now-legendary $200,000-a-year NBC contract that won't expire until 1981.

Berle ticked off the names on his premiere on NBC-TV — bandleader Allan Roth, Bill "Bojangles" Robinson, Pearl Bailey, Smith & Dale, Senor Wences and Stan Fisher, a harmonica virtuoso.

Contrary to common belief, Berle said, that premiere didn't mark his debut on TV. He then commenced to startle his lunch visitor.

name of a comedy pal sharing the bill in this pioneer venture: "It was Trixie Friganza, a great comedienne. We went in a small studio and put on makeup this thick."

He grinned and indicated several inches with his fingers.

"I've known about television since the '30s, early '40s," said the comic, whose career began 65 years ago when he essayed a tot in a famed silent movie, "Tillie's Punctured Romance."

"I studied television, cameras, everything. With the Texaco show, I just took my format from vaudeville and nightclubs, combined them, put 'em on a stage with cameras in front of them."

Some of that may come back, Berle says he's thinking of doing a daily series with clips from those early years. He talked with great relish about mishaps in the days his variety show aired live.

The best tale was a funny, anguished account of what happened just before he introduced a bear act on the show. It can't be repeated in detail. But it can be said the bears suffered from flatulence.

And that a microphone picked it up, thus providing unique punctuation to a monologue Berle was delivering to a national audience.

Going live was risky, but fun, he added: "You got what you saw, saw what you got. There wasn't any second chance."

Concerned about the future of humor, Berle, an alternately brash and gentle man, says for the past 30 years his 4½ million-joke file has been open to any young comic in need of material.

And he occasionally lectures at colleges about humor to students of same.

Failed To Meet Camp Standards

NEW YORK (UPI) — About one-fifth of the summer camps visited last summer by representatives of the American Camping Association failed to meet national standards required for association membership.

To obtain accreditation, a camp is reviewed on 163 operating areas. Fourteen association standards relating to health and safety are mandatory. A passing grade of 75 percent is the minimal baseline for remaining requirements.

Hedge Against Imponderables

By ARTHUR HIGBEE

PARIS (UPI) — The French wear their hearts on their sleeves but their wallets on the right. So goes the old saw, and it is proving itself as next week's legislative elections approach.

Penthouse apartments that usually are sold the same day they are advertised are going begging in the classified advertisements of the daily Figaro.

A yacht salesman complains that he hasn't sold anything bigger than a 12-footer in months. Limousines in the big showrooms along the Champs-Elysees are gathering dust.

On the other hand, small cars are selling well. Business is humming at the big jewelers in the Place Vendome. Small cars and economy apartments are moving and so are rare postage stamps.

On Feb. 6, the one-kilo (2.2 pound) gold ingot hit a record high of 29,840 francs ($6,000), or 475 francs ($100) higher than the previous record set in November, 1974, when France was reeling from the quadrupling of oil prices.

Many French people, in short, are hedging against whatever may happen at the polls.

Few are panicking. The American embassy says the number of inquiries about immigrant visas to the United States increased slightly last fall but has since dropped off to normal.

The leftists have promised to soak the rich. That could mean higher taxes on what French tax officials call "exterior signs of wealth," such as yachts, limousines and penthouses.

An indecisive election result could mean months of unrest, which in turn could mean inflation. Gold, jewelry and postage stamps are standard hedges against that.

As for a victory of the incumbent center-right coalition, the leftists say that will mean more inflation and more unemployment.

Considering all these imponderables, one elderly woman who has jealously guarded her properties all her life has suddenly put her vast apartment on the fashionable Rue du Faubourg St. Honore in the name of one daughter and her country villa in the name of the other.

The drain of French francs into Swiss banks has been going on for years and is not noticeably higher.

It is already too high, says Socialist Francois Mitterrand, leader of the Socialist opposition, who claims that "400 million francs ($80 million) equal to the annual state budget, lie in numbered Swiss bank accounts, casting a curious light on the national sentiment of depositors."

Big business has hedged its bets for years by placing ads in Communist publications. It is hard to find a businessman who will admit he would welcome nationalization, but some of the big steel, glass and paper companies are in such deep trouble that nationalization would be one way of getting off the hook.

On the other hand, some of the big multinational corporations have let it be known that if their French branches are nationalized they will no longer cooperate in marketing the products of these nationalized firms around the world.

Certainly business investment has been sluggish for the past year, barely staying ahead of inflation.

Jean-Francois Clemenceau of the French Management Association insists, "This simply reflects sluggish economic conditions worldwide rather than any preoccupation with the elections."

Officials in the commercial section of the American embassy agree. One U.S. expert says, "The relative inertia of French investment is due more to the economic climate than to any political flight of capital."

However, in the past 18 months French investment in the United States has doubled to $2 billion.

But all in all, the French have not stampeded. They are not fond of emigrating. And in the past 200 years they have survived two violent revolutions, three enemy occupations and 17 changes in their form of government.

stating the facts.

"Observe that South beat himself. He did not need two heart tricks for his contract, and three club tricks would have sufficed. Taking these facts into account, the contract could not be defeated.

"South should have won the ace of hearts at trick one! He enters dummy with the queen of spades and takes the club finesse. Let us assume that West holds off. When declarer leads another club, East shows out, so declarer rises with the ace and continues the suit to force out the king. West has no counter. Nothing can stop declarer from taking four spade tricks, one heart, one diamond and four clubs, for an overtrick. We ask that the case be dismissed."

 Today's Cryptoquip clue: J equals M

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.
