TCU Vice-Chancellor, Dean

T.B. Brewer Is Selected As Successor To Jenkins

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Dr. Thomas B. Brewer, presently vice chancellor and dean of Texas Christian University, was appointed chancellor of East Carolina University by the University of North Carolina Board of Governors this morning.

UNC President William C. Friday recommended Brewer to the board, which met on the ECU campus at 10 a.m. His appointment ended a process which began a year ago, with a search committee reviewing more than 200 possible candidates for the post.

The selection committee's job was concluded Monday when the Board of Trustees of East Carolina accepted the committee's recommendation and named Brewer as its top choice to replace Dr. Leo W. Jenkins who will retire July. 1.

Brewer, a Fort Worth native, received his B.A. and M.A. degrees from the University of Texas - Austin, then taught at Southwest Texas State University and North Texas State University. After receiving his Ph.D. degree from the University of Pennsylvania in American History in 1962, Brewer taught at NTSU, the University of Kentucky, and Iowa State University before going to the University of Toledo in 1968 as professor and chairman of the History Department.

Returning to his home town in 1971, Brewer became Dean of Arts and Sciences at Texas Christian. The following year, he was named vice chancellor and dean of the university, with responsibility for all academic programs, admissions, and organized research. As vice chancellor and dean, Brewer also chaired the University Council, was an ex officio member of the Faculty Senate, and was institutional representative for the Interuniversity Council. He also served on the Priorities Committee, which planned the TCU goals and objectives and as a member of the University Court, an internal court of last resort for student and faculty grievances.

Brewer's academic concentration and research activities have centered on U.S. Business History, particularly in the field of transportation history.

He is also general editor of the Railroads of America series of 20 to 25 volumes, published by the Macmillan Company, and is currently coauthoring a history of the Missouri Pacific Railway Company as part of the series.

Brewer and his wife Betty, also a Fort Worth native, have three children.

Texas Christian is a Disciples of Christ school founded in 1873. In 1977 the enrollment was more than 6,000 with 456 teachers. The university is a member of the Southwest Conference, along with Texas, Texas A and M, Texas Tech, Arkansas, Houston, Southern Methodist University, Rice and Baylor.

Annexation Is Dead

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The City Council gave unanimous approval to a motion to dispense with the public hearing scheduled for March 21 on the annexation of the Industrial Park area and to table the matter with the understanding that it not be brought up "as long as this Council sits as a body."

Action on the annexation issue last night followed comments by each Council member and culminated several weeks of discussion and controversy on the possibility of bringing the industrial section into the city.

Councilman John Howard, who had made the motion last month to hold the public hearing, offered last night's motion to put the issue to rest.

Mayor Percy Cox told the Council that he would like to see the annexation issue "killed" and "put away for the time being." He observed that at some time in the future as the city grows northward, the subject of annexation would probably come up again.

The mayor expressed the feeling that the city and industry will work together in the future.

Cox related that the city, in considering annexation possibilities, looked at not only the industrial area but other sections as well. He said that the city never got into the impact study phase of the industrial annexation possibility.

He asserted that the impact study was not necessary because now "I've had all the impact I can take."

Councilman Clarence Gray noted that he was in favor of growth for the city but he said there are "things that can help a city grow" and "things that impede growth." Gray said that he felt the annexation would impede growth.

"Everybody knows I have taken a different stand from the rest of you," commented Council member Mildred McGrath. She said that while she would vote for annexation if the matter came up, she agreed that the Council "must stop the public hearing."

Mrs. McGrath, who has endorsed the annexation proposal, said she was "extremely sorry it was handled in the way it was." She also said she felt industry would be willing to work with the city and help it in the future.

While Mrs. McGrath said she did not think the annexation matter could come up again soon, she said she wanted to go on record as saying that there was no assurance the city would never annex the industrial area.

According to Howard, his reason for offering the motion earlier to have the public hearing was to air the grievances and facts that had surfaced in the matter.

Howard said that he did not think that City Manager Jim Caldwell should be made the scapegoat for the annexation controversy, noting that Caldwell was instructed by the Council to undertake the study. Howard said that the Council should take full responsibility for authorizing the study.

The councilman said he recognized the problems faced by the city and he also recognized that the city could not accomplish the things it wanted to do without income. He said that if a tax increase is entailed, it would have to be done.

Howard said that of the vast majority of people he had talked to regarding annexation, "to a man I have not heard anyone say we should annex."

Councilman Joe Taft Jr. commented, "The annexation issue began several weeks ago as a study and a study is just what it has been. We have all had an opportunity to conduct a thorough study and investigation."

Taft mentioned, "This has already been similar to a public hearing with the information in-put having been received by all members. After considering this information, I am convinced annexation would be detrimental to the growth of the Industrial Park and not in the long range best interest of Greenville."

Council member Judy Greene said that even though she had felt strongly that the public hearing should be held, she felt it would not be in the best interest now to conduct the session.

Councilman Charles Vincent, who seconded Howard's initial motion to hold the hearing, pointed out that he had talked with many people and while he still felt the public hearing would serve the citizens, he had noticed a change in attitudes. He said the attitude now seems to be that people will be willing to work together.

Since that change in attitudes has come about, Vincent added, "I see no reason...for the public hearing."

HOTLINE APPEALS

HOUSE BURNED

The home of John and Dixie Murphy and their son, Morris, 17, has burned for the second time in a year.

The Murphies were visiting an aunt in the hospital when their home in Albertson, near Kinston, caught fire and burned to the ground, destroying everything they had. Last year, the kitchen and dining room had burned and all wiring had had to be replaced.

Murphy is the brother of Mrs. Grace Wells, who asked Hotline to appeal for assistance for him and his family. She said they are going to put a trailer on their lot and will not need furniture, but could use linens, dishes, and the like. The three are also in need of clothes. Both Murphy and his son wear size 31-31 pants and 15-15-and-a-half shirts. Mrs. Murphy wears size 14 dress and 9 shoe.

Contributions for them may be sent in care of the Friendship Baptist Church, Pink Hill, N. C. 28572, which Murphy serves as Sunday School Superintendent.

Inquiries may be made of Mrs. Wells at home, 746-4493 or at work at Venter's Grill, 752-2767.

KIND MEN

Mrs. Marion Biggs would like to contact the two men who she said were so kind to her when her car struck a tree during sleet the morning of Feb. 2.

The incident occurred at the corner of Fourth and Maple Streets, she said, and the two stayed with her until police arrived. She failed to get their names and would like to personally thank each of them. One was wearing a dark gold corduroy coat; the other a Navy peacoat, she said. She asked that either or both of the two call her at 756-5940.

No Stampede Back Into Mines

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — As contract talks resumed in the 95-day coal strike, federal marshals today delivered copies of the back-to-work court orders to the leaders of the striking miners.

The order directed the 160,000 miners to go back to work at 7 a.m. today but reports from the coal fields showed there was no stampede to return to the job.

In many places, the miners said they were waiting until federal marshals actually delivered the court orders. Technically, a defendant is not required to obey the order until he is served with a copy.

The marshals have until 4:30 p.m. EST Monday to hand out the orders to the 1,451 defendants named by the federal judge who issued the back-to-work mandate under the Taft-Hartley Act. Carter administration officials say they will not have a good estimate of the miners' response until toward the end of next week.

President Carter declared Thursday that he believes "a substantial portion of them ...will comply with the law" and go back on the job.

Meanwhile, negotiators for the United Mine Workers union and the coal industry negotiators met at a downtown Washington hotel to search for a settlement of their bitter dispute, which has forced electric utilities to curtail power and industries to lay off thousands of workers.

Sources said UMW President Arnold Miller and his bargaining team were meeting with four officials from the Bituminous Coal Operators Association without the presence of federal mediators.

"If it's going to be resolved, this is where it's going to be resolved," Miller told reporters. "It 's not going to be resolved by intervention."

The two sides have not bargained on a new national contract since the industry agreed to union contract demands two weeks ago under the threat of presidential intervention. The contract was rejected by the rank-and-file by a 2-1 margin last weekend.

Many mine managers said today their mines were ready for the miners to return to work.

Anthony Harris, foreman of a mine near Fairmont, W. Va., said he ran radio announcements saying the mine would open today. He was present to welcome the men at 7 a.m. but no one showed up, Harris said.

Jim Krese, a federal mine safety official, said most of the large mines in Southern West Virginia were in relatively good condition and could reopen in short order.

"We've been conducting safety inspections for several weeks now, in anticipation of the mines being reopened," Krese said.

In Kentucky, some mines were ready to resume production but the miners didn't show up for work.

In Pennsylvania, mines remained idle as the strikers awaited the marshals.

U.S. District Judge Aubrey E. Robinson Jr. issued his temporary back-to-work order Thursday under the Taft-Hartley Act agreeing with the Carter administration — represented by Attorney General Griffin Bell in a rare court appearance — that the strike's continuation would "imperil the national health or safety."

The order, which requires miners to work for the same wages and benefits they received under their old contract, expires at 6 p.m. EST on March 17, when the judge has scheduled a hearing on a government request for an 80-day injunction.

Carter's Visit Will Be Brief

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — President Carter's visit to Winston-Salem on March 17 is expected to last little more than an hour.

The only announced stop so far on the president's itinerary is the Wake Forest University campus, where he is scheduled to make a speech on national defense policy in the 2,800-seat Wait Chapel.

The speech is scheduled to begin at 9 a.m., an hour sooner than had been announced previously. The president is scheduled to leave the campus by 10 a.m. and continue on to Savannah, Ga., for another appearance.

Jobless Rate In February Down Despite Effects Of Coal Strike

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writter

WASHINGTON (AP) — A big increase in new manufacturing jobs helped push the nation's jobless rate down to 6.1 percent in February, the fourth straight monthly decline in unemployment and the lowest since October 1974, the government reported today.

The unemployment rate in January was 6.3 percent.

The best unemployment gains in February were for blacks and other minority workers, whose jobless rate declined to 11.8 percent, down from 12.7 percent in January and the lowest in more than three years.

The February report said the effects of the long coal strike either had not yet shown up or not yet had an impact on overall employment, although it noted that the strike has taken 160,000 miners temporarily out of the labor force.

Aside from the miners themselves, the Labor Department reported Thursday that 25,500 factory workers had been laid off in the week of Feb. 26 as a direct result of coal and electricity shortages in the 11 Midwestern and mid-Atlantic states most affected by the strike.

The agency said nearly half of the lay-offs were in Indiana. Other significant layoffs were reported in Pennsylvania, Illinois, Maryland and Ohio.

Administration officials agree that if the strike continues into April, the impact on jobs will mount at an alarming pace.

Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger said Thursday that the number of unemployed workers would exceed 1 million by the end of March and 3.5 million in April, while several million more workers would have reduced working hours.

The Labor Department said 93 million Americans had jobs in February, up from 92.9 million in January, while 6.1 million were unemployed, down from 6.2 million a month earlier.

Reflecting the steady improvement in the nation's economy, the February unemployment rate of 6.1 percent was the lowest since a 5.9 percent rate during the recession in October 1974.

The Labor Department said overall employment last month was 3.7 million higher than in February 1977, the first full month of President Carter's term in office.

If unemployment remains at the February level for the rest of 1978, it means the Carter administration already has achieved its goal for the year of reducing the nation's jobless rate to near 6 percent.

But a Labor Department analyst cautioned that the coal strike could seriously complicate the jobs outlook in months ahead unless it is ended soon.

"Generally speaking it is a good report, but we have to be uncertain about the future of the coal strike and what effect it will have if it continues," he said.

The Labor Department gave the following unemployment rates in February for various categories of the labor force:

—Adult men 4.5 percent, down from 4.7 percent in January.

—Adult women 5.7 percent, down from 6.1 percent.

—Teen-agers 17.4 percent, up from 16 percent in January.

—White 5.3 percent, down from 5.5 percent.

—Blacks and others 11.8 percent, down from 12.7 percent.

—Full-time workers 5.7 percent, down from 5.8 percent.

—White-collar workers 3.5 percent, down from 3.6 percent.

—Blue-collar workers 7.1 percent, unchanged.

'Racing' In Their Large Mudhole

FOWLTOWN, Ga. (AP) — Georgians enjoy all kinds of auto racing. Sometimes the cars are sleek aerodynamic racers on asphalt. Sometimes they're jalopies in demolition derbies. But in Fowltown they're four-drive vehicles in a 300-foot mudhole.

It's called boggin', and it involves speeding up until the car reaches the mud, then driving, skidding and steering through the muck as far as possible.

The finish line is rarely reached, and there's a tractor on hand for scooping out stranded autos.

Markets Offer Good Buys, Nostalgia

By JOSEPH M. CHAPMAN
United Press International

This coming spring, Lillie Crowley once again will sell her homemade dewberry and three-plum jams, jalapeno pepper jelly and grapefruit marmalade in the Dallas Farmer's Market — to the music of Mendelssohn, Tchaikovsky and other classical composers .

Recreational events like the annual Flower Festival — featuring the music of the Dallas Symphony — are a integral part of the city owned and operated Dallas Farmer's Market operation, city officials say.

The market is one of thousands across the country, but Jamie West, spokeswoman for Dallas' consumer affairs office, boasts it is "the largest pure farmer's market in the U.S.

"It's intensely successful," she said. "We're looking at an expansion plan to triple its size in 10 years."

Dallas officials believe their market operation could be a model for those of many other cities, where frequently produce dealers and not farmers do the selling to consumers.

Many farmer's markets were started decades ago amid complaints that would sound familiar to today's farmers — among them low prices and the big profits reaped by the middlemen.

There are some farmer's markets where farmers are hard to find and which offer little, if any, advantage in price or quality, but a random sampling indicates farmer's markets frequently have real benefits to consumers.

First are fruits and vegetables that aren't wrapped in cellophane and that don't taste like sawdust, assuming they're in season and aren't imported just like the supermarket produce.

Frequently savings are significant, especially in larger quantities, but consumers should carefully compare both quality and price of produce from the stalls with fruits and vegetables from the supermarket.

In Dallas, nobody takes customers for granted, one reason for events like the annual Flower Festival — on May 15 this year — or the Harvest Festival in the fall.

At the Flower Festival the Dallas Symphony will share star billing not only with Lillie Crowley's jams, jellies and marmalades, but other performing groups, the season's first vine-ripened peaches from East Texas, all kinds of produce, crafts and, of course, flowers.

On a festival day, you might see Texas-style ballet by a Mexican-American troupe out of San Antonio, an old time fiddler's contest or antique tools. Exhibits show city kids about farm life, including one that shows them where milk comes from.

All the activity obviously helps business. Each year 4.5 million shoppers buy $15 million worth of produce at the Dallas market.

In many cities, most stalls in the farmer's markets are leased by dealers, who might buy from a wholesaler or a farmer. In some cities, farmers are hard to find in the markets.

Jim Romine, a marketing specialist at the Atlanta State Farmer's Market, feels that farmer's markets are thriving, "but we don't have as many actual dirt farmers as in years past.

"Farming operations have changed," he said. "There are not many (where) the man who grows it, brings it in and sells it himself. We still have some, but not many.

Atlanta's dealers

On one recent winter day, all the sales in the Atlanta market were being made by dealers.

Phillip Kelly, 35, and his brother Jerry, 41, kept warm around a big pot-bellied stove while they waited for customers who would buy their potatoes and onions.

"There's not much money in this business any more," said Jerry. "I don't believe there's much money in anything any more."

Even at the height of the growing season, Romine estimates farmers rent no more than about 20 percent of the stalls, which rent at $5.25 a day for an enclosed space or $4.75 for an open stall.

"Fifteen years ago, it probably was just the reverse," Romine said. "About 80 per cent would be farmers. Now the farmers find it more profitable to sell their crops to truckers who pick it up in the fields and bring it to market. Peach farmers used to bring their crops in here, but now they sell to a trucker."

Romine is convinced the market offers real bargains, but said, "You need to shop the dealers. You'll be amazed at the difference in prices on virtually every type of produce."

New Hampshire's own

In New Hampshire, about 1970, county agents helped organize farmer's markets in Manchester, a city of 90,000, and three much smaller towns, Kenne, Dover and Lebanon. Farmers were unhappy with prices in Boston, New England's center for produce wholesalers.

Vincent Peterson, a farm market analyst for the state agriculture department, said all but the Lebanon market are on solid footing now and hopes it

Homemaker's Haven

By Evelyn L. Spangler

Have you ever had to pay a "Security Deposit", and the first month's rent, when moving into an apartment or house? Did you wonder what the landlord did with that money, and whether you might get it back? One of the new laws, passed by the N.C. Legislature last year and effective last October 1, tells what your rights are and what the landlord must do.

According to Dr. Justine Rozier, NCSU Specialist in Family Resource Management, the Tenant Security Deposit Act (Senate Bill 453) says that the amount of the security deposit shall not be more than (1) two weeks rent if you pay by the week, (2) one and one-half months, rent if you rent by the month, or (3) two month, rent if you pay rent for longer periods.

The landlord is required to deposit your security deposit in a trust account in a bank or savings and loan institution in North Carolina, or furnish a bond from a North Carolina insurance company. Also, the landlord is supposed to let you know where your deposit is located, or the name of the insurance company providing the bond, within 30 days of the time your lease begins.

In general the security deposit is supposed to gurantee that you will take good care of the property while you live there and will not break any terms of the rental agreement you signed when you moved in. Specifically, the law states that your security deposit is to be refunded to you unless you still owe past rent, damage the premises, do not fulfill your rental period or have any bills due which become a lien against the property because you lived there. Also, the landlord can claim the costs of re-renting the property if you move out before the specified time in your contract, or any court costs that have to do with ending your tenancy. Claims against your deposit must be itemized in writing and the statement sent to you, with any balance remaining in the deposit, within 30 days of your moving out.

The landlord may not withhold as damages part of the security deposit for conditions that are due to normal wear and tear nor may the landlord retain an amount which exceeds his actual damages. (If the landlord charges a fee for your keeping a pet on the premises, it is not refundable.)

Dr. Rozier states that if the ownership of your dwelling changes for any reason, the landlord or his agent must inform you of the new owner's name and address. He may claim any portion of the deposit due to the conditions named above, and then he must either return the balance to you or transfer it to the new owner.

You can sue the landlord if he fails to return your deposit or fails to account for the money he witholds. Under some conditions you may also be able to recover damages and court costs. The act applies to all persons or businesses that rent or manage residential dwelling units, excluding single rooms, on a weekly, monthly or annual basis.

Under the "Residential Rental Agreement Act" (House Bill 949) the responsibility for maintenance of residential dwelling units is defined. It says that your obligation to pay rent and the landlord's obligation to keep the rented premises in good shape are "mutually dependent" — that is, each must do his part.

The landlord shall:

— comply with the current applicable building and housing codes

— make all repairs and do whatever is necessary to put and keep the premises in fit and habitable condition

— keep all common areas (halls and stairways, etc.) in safe condition

— maintain in good and safe

Boss's Wife Asks Same Question

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am the secretary for a businessman whose wife is getting on my nerves. When she phones him at the office, and I tell her that her husband is talking on the phone, she always asks, "How long do you think he will be?"

Abby, how do I know how long he will be? He could say goodbye in three seconds, or he could talk for half an hour.

Please print this for a lot of other dummies who ask that question; a million secretaries will love you for it.

SOMEBODY'S SECRETARY

DEAR SECRETARY: Everybody can use a little more love, but I confess that on occasion I'VE been one of those "dummies."

DEAR ABBY: Do you think it is all right to speak to my mother in the same tone she uses when she speaks to me? When she yells at me or gets sarcastic, and I answer her back in the same tone, she slaps me right in front of my friends. They're all afraid of her.

Before my friends come over, they ask if my mother is in a bad mood today.

Please tell me how to get along with a person everybody is afraid of? I have four more years to go before I'm old enough to leave home, and I can hardly wait.

MOTHER TROUBLE

DEAR TROUBLE: It's NOT all right to speak to your mother in the same tone she uses to speak to you. Mothers have problems children know nothing of, and they sometimes take out their frustrations on those who are nearest and dearest to them. When mother is in a "bad mood," try being especially patient and understanding, because that's when she needs it the most.

DEAR ABBY: I am 5 feet 11 and weigh 230 pounds. That's not all. I'm black, female, 22 and very lonely. I guess you can see why.

I try to lose weight, but I get upset about something and start eating again. Nothing seems to help. I sit around feeling sorry for myself, then I force myself to go out and meet people, but they always turn out to be the wrong kind of people.

If you know anyone who wants a big, tall, black girl to love, please let me know, because without love, there's no point in living.

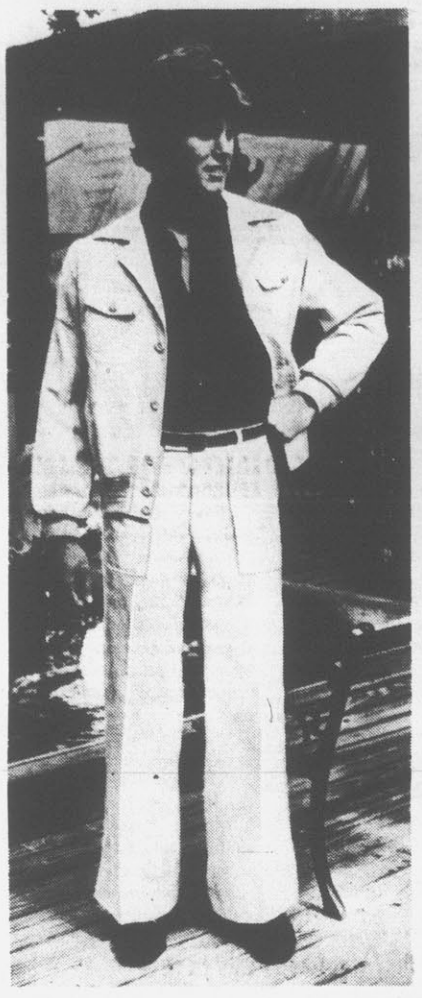
LONELY IN GA.

DEAR LONELY: I don't put people in touch with people through my column, but perhaps I can help you. Being overweight is only part of your problem. I don't know if there's an Overeaters Anonymous chapter in your town, but if there isn't, it would be worth taking a trip to the nearest city that has one. And if you're not sure whether life is worth living, please call your Suicide Prevention hot line.

Write to me again and let me know if you've followed these leads. I care.

Who said the teen years are the happiest? For Abby's new booklet "What Teenagers Want to Know," write Abby: 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Enclose $1 and a long, stamped (24 cents), self-addressed envelope, please.

When you are using a baking mix as a topping for a meat or chicken pie, you can add a little poultry seasoning to the mix before making it up.



Suitable For All Seasons

TRANSITION PERIOD — Between late winter and early spring, or all year long' these are smart wardrobe additions. At left, his cream-colored suit features elasticized blouson jacket with dropped shoulders and flapped pockets. More pockets, too, for the straight-leg, casual pants. She wears olive drab straight-leg pants and tunic jacket accented with drawstring waistband, side slit and cargo pockets. Worn with tailored skirt, outfit would look equally stylish with cowl-neck sweater or by itself in summer.

Mrs. Ballard received a corsage of miniature roses on arrival and a gift presented by sorority member Charlotte Smith.

Following dinner, Mrs. Ballard was accompanied to the Kinston Airport by Ms. Wicker, Ms. Gore, Ms. Pettis and Ms. Helen Johnson.

Mrs. Smith will be hostess for the next meeting.

The Westhaven Home and Garden Club met Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. Virginia Lashmit. Mrs. Alice Angell was assisting hostess.

It was decided that a club sponsored bake sale will be held at Pitt Plaza March 25 beginning at 10 a.m. Plans for a neighborhood Easter party were made.

The upcoming Greenville Flower Show was discussed with several club members planning to enter.

'Cloning' Author Earlier Talked Of Fiction Work

By The Associated Press

David M. Rorvik, author of a forthcoming book that allegedly chronicles the creation of a human being by cloning, once said he was writing a pornographic, science fiction thriller called "The Clone," the Great Falls (Mont.) Tribune said today.

The Tribune said that Rorvik, who was born in Circle, Mont., on Nov. 1, 1943 and went to school in the state, was interviewed by the newspaper in May 1970. He discussed his career as a free-lance writer and talked about the novel he planned to write.

"Rorvik says he finds fiction writing more difficult than nonfiction, but is determined to complete his novel, 'The Clone,' and perhaps get it made into a movie," the 1970 Tribune story said. "'The Clone' is a pornographic science fiction thriller based on current medical possibility, he said," according to the eight-year-old report.

Rorvik's new book, "In His Image: The Cloning of a Man," is being published by J.B. Lippincott Co. It describes the alleged creation of a boy, now 14 months old, by cloning, the process of duplicating living things from an individual cell. Cloning has been used in creating plants and a frog but has never been attempted with humans. Lippincott has said Rorvik assured them the story was true, but that the publishing company did not know whether it was indeed fact.

Rorvik has been unavailable for comment since news of his book first broke. A statement issued by Lippincott on Wednesday quoted him as saying the boy, offspring of a wealthy, unidentified man, is "alive, healthy and loved today."

Information about Rorvik himself also has been sketchy. He is a 1966 graduate of the journalism school at the University of Montana and received a master's degree from the Columbia University School of Journalism in 1967. The same year he received a Pulitzer Traveling Fellowship and, according to Lippincott, used it to study racism and apartheid in white-dominated countries in Africa.

Rorvik became embroiled in controversy during his senior year at the University of Montana, the Tribune said, because of his editorials published in the student newspaper, the Kaimin. Parents threatened to remove their children from the university because of alleged sex-flavored and subversive material published in the newspaper.

When Rorvik tried to publish a poem banned from the campus literary magazine as "flagrantly offensive," the night foreman of the University Print Shop refused to set the poem in type.

Rorvik replied to criticism he received at the time with the following statement: "It's quite possible that some of the material included in the Montana Kaimin has been sex-flavored. So what?

"If subversion entails deviating too far from the flag-waving standards of provincial Montana in the defense of free expression, political freedom (even, or especially, for the communists) and total sexual autonomy to suit the supporters of Orphan Annie, J. Edgar Hoover, Pope Paul, Tim Babcock (then governor of Montana), pristine printers and rest of those tired old women, then we are in fact subversive. And proud of it."

The Tribune, in its story, noted that Rorvik spends summers in Bigfork, Mont., and said he has spent the last three winters in San Francisco. His phone in San Francisco was answered Wednesday night by someone who said Rorvik had not been home for two weeks, the Tribune said.

Rorvik was in New York City last week. The Tribune said he called his mother, Frances, at her home in Ronan, Mont., said he was in New York, asked if she had been overly bothered by phone calls and told her the publicity was necessary.

Warren Brier, dean of the University of Montana School of Journalism, said Rorvik was named the outstanding male graduate of his journalism class. Last fall, Rorvik was named one of the university's outstanding male alumni.

During 1968 and 1969, Rorvik worked for Time magazine, later becomming a free-lance writer with articles in publications including, Lippincott said, the New York Times Magazine, Harper's, Esquire and McCalls. He also has written several books, including some on genetic engineering.

At the University of Montana, Rorvik completed courses in psychology, geology, zoology, anthropology and microbiology.

The book originally was scheduled for publication in June but the date was advanced to March 31.

A Vermont doctor said Wednesday, however, he believed Rorvik's story.

Markets...

will do well this year.

"People will go out of their way to find stuff that isn't shipped in from Florida," Peterson said. "Right in the middle of our corn season, stuff is being shipped in from Florida and New Jersey that is two and three days old."

Peterson said farmers can make more money in the markets by cutting out the middleman and selling at prices competitive with the supermarkets. But Peterson also said much New Hampshire produce is sold at an estimated 300 roadside stands.

"For a lot of them, the roadside stand is their only outlet."

And if jalapeno peppers are a specialty of the Southwest, New Hampshire and other New England farmers do a big seasonal business every year selling maple syrup direct from their stalls or roadside stands.

Seattle's Pike Place

A large sign over the entrance to the Pike Place Market in Seattle states:

"Meet the Producer."

But farmers are directly responsible for only a small percentage of the business done at the market.

Last year only 75 farmers received permits to sell produce at the market. In 1932 there were 628 issued.

Ironically, the Pike Place market was founded in 1907 by farmers angered over the high markups and profits of middlemen and peddlers. Now the farmers are selling to middlemen again, even at the farmer's market.

Planners trace the market's decline to the World War II internment of Japanese-Americans, who had dominated the market with produce from their truck farms.

Between 1939 and 1942 the number of permits held by farmers dropped from 500 to 200, with the all time low coming in 1969 when only 42 were issued.

Redevelopment and escalating land costs in urban areas frequently cause problems for farmer's markets.

In some cities, markets were forced out of convenient locations to more remote sites by redevelopment.

That's not the problem in Seattle. In 1971 voters decided to rehabilitate the old market rather than allow it to be torn down and developed into a high rise hotel and convention complex.

The number of farms near Seattle is declining rapidly under pressure from the city's growth and only recently have serious efforts been started to preserve farmland.

And, the average age of the relatively few farmers who sell at the Pike Place Market is already over 60. Most of them are Filipino, consider themselves semi-retired, and hope to sell their farms for as much money as they can get according to Frankie Whitman, farmer liaison with the Pike Place Market Preservation and Development Authority.

"It's their security," she said. "But for the younger people, land prices are so high, it's difficult to buy into."

Bethesda's Farm Women's Market

The Farm Women's Market in Bethesda, Md. was all female and all farmer when it was started during the Depression, but no longer. Now everything from the usual produce and jars of preserves to egg rolls, lo mein noodles and a variety of other prepared foods is sold.

The market is facing serious problems. One is competition from a similar market recently opened nearby. And the Bethesda market is on some of the most valuable real estate in Montgomery County, the most affluent suburb of Washington, D.C.

Get It All Out Into The Open

Tongsun Park, who may hold the key to some Congressional indescretions, is finally back in this country and has testified before a House ethics committee.

Park, a South Korean, is accused of attempting to buy Congressional influence for the South Korean government.

He has been promised that the criminal charges will be dropped in return for his truthful testimony.

The charges involved alleged payoffs to several former congressman and campaign contributions to others.

On his arrival here Park said, "I hope that as a result of my giving my side of the story as well as I can recollect how things did happen, I hope we'll come to a happy ending."

We hope for a happy ending, too, but we would expect that any congressmen or candidates who did take outright payoffs in this matter would be dealt with sternly.

Park gave big spending parties in Washington which were attended by some congressmen. There is too much of that in the capital and too many congressmen who lend themselves to various causes by freely attending these lavish social affairs.

Members of congress can well afford to pay for their own entertainment. By so doing they would avoid putting themselves in a position where they could even be supected of taking money from men like Tongsun Park.

In this case, at least, let's get it all out in the open.

Early Spring Can Make A Difference

There is a virtual race on now toward the spring season, which would bring warmer weather, and ease the strain on the nation's dwindling coal supplies.

Warmer weather could put the nation in much better shape in dealing with the coal strike which threatens to curtail electricity and cripple many industries.

An early spring could make a lot of difference in this latest national crisis.

SELF-APPOINTED POWER IN POLITICS!

Energy Hopes Raised

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State energy officials say they are encouraged by reports that North Carolina utilities have slowed the drain on their coal reserves, delaying for now the need for mandatory conservation steps.

Spokesmen for Duke Power Co. and Carolina Power & Light Co. (CP&L) met Thursday with state officials keeping tabs on the coal shortage, and offered brighter estimates of their coal supplies than were being heard earlier in the week.

Mandatory measures restricting businesses to a 60-hour week and putting state government on a four-day work week are set to go in effect when either coal supplies of Carolina Power and Light Co. or Duke Power Co. dip to the 30-day level.

Duke Power officials said Thursday their supplies were at the 45-day mark. CP&L reported being in the most danger, at the 34-day point, but said its supplies should remain at that level for eight to 10 days with the conversion of the 500-megawatt Sutton generating plant at Wilmington from coal to oil.

"I'm extremely encouraged," Brian Flattery, state energy director, said afterward. "I'm encouraged that we can delay going into our 30-day plan. But we really will not know we're out of the woods until we see what cooperation we're getting from the coal miners under the president's Taft-Hartley order."

Flattery said voluntary conservation efforts by citizens were still needed.

Duke Power, which is generating 40 percent of its electricity with nuclear power, reported it has received increasing amounts of coal from non-striking mines — enough to meet about 50 percent its needs.

THIS AFTERNOON

Denouncing HEW's Boss

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — If President Jimmy Carter decides to come to North Carolina, he is certain to hear a lot about how people feel about Joseph Califano, secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

For whatever reason, North Carolina is feeling strong lashes from the man behind federal actions hitting at tobacco — the mainstay of the state's agricultural economy — and the university system — a source of pride to all regardless of alma mater.

Gov. James V. Hunt, Jr. says there is a good chance the President will visit the state holding one of his town meetings. That is seen as an important move in Democratic Party efforts to unseat Republican U.S. Senator Jesse Helms in this election year.

Gov. Hunt is convinced, after his talk with President Carter in the Oval Office recently, that the President is concerned with the damage being done to this state on both the tobacco and university fronts, and would like to see some reasonable solutions put forth.

Concern

The President, says Gov. Hunt, expressed "grave concern and leaves the feeling he would very much like to see it resolved....he says that with real concern and feeling."

That conviction is tempered, however, with the admission that the President did not make any commitments. He can't do that, Hunt explains, but he can listen, check into the facts, and move to temper actions of Califano and the agency he heads.

Of course Hunt also admits that he once called David Tatel, chief of the Office of Civil Rights, a most reasonable fellow. Tatel is "considerably less reasonable" these days, Hunt adds, in light of the continuing pressures and roadblocks being flung at the university system by HEW.

The governor reminded President Carter that Tatel had previously said flatly he was concerned with overall end results, not with specific institutions within the university system, or particular programs.

NOBLITT

Waffling on that, Tatel is now pressing for program changes and has introduced a new subject — hiring — after the state had thought the matter of desegregation was settled.

Meanwhile, talk turned to tobacco as Hunt found Carter sympathetic and concerned over farmers whose livelihood depends on the product, and the value of the crop to this state's manufacturing economy as well.

The President, says the governor, is not willing to stand for prohibition or other overt actions on tobacco. He feels research is needed and that educating and warning people is sufficient government involvement.

No Campaign

Of the $23 million program Califano proposes to fight tobacco Hunt says: "I am cofident that propagandizing, indoctrinating, and that reforming zeal will not be prosecuted with taxpayer funds." There is a thin line between educating with legitimate health information and spreading propaganda, Hunt feels. He thinks Carter is aware of that distinction as well.

Meanwhile, it is clear that both issues hold more than passing interest for a president obviously savvy on things political. He need not be reminded that his own popularity and the chances of Democratic victories diminish in proportion to Tar Heel unhappiness with the way things are going.

If Carter comes for that town meeting in this state, says Gov. Hunt, people will have a chance to ask him themselves where he stands on these points. Between now and then, says the governor, "you can look for some improvement."

Prepared For Reforms?

WASHINGTON—President Carter's long-awaited civil service reforms have finally been unveiled and, like most of Mr. Carter's plans, they sound swell on paper. The President wants to get the government on a more businesslike footing by rewarding those who do a good job with merit raises and by punishing those who do a bad job with dismissal. He would also protect whistle blowers who, by going public, embarrass their bosses and find themselves booted out in the street.

All well and good. So what's the problem? The problem is that no one, including the President, Congress and the Supreme Court, has ever defined exactly what a government employee should do. There are job descriptions in the civil service regulations, but since the government is not a profit-making organization it is almost impossible to accurately measure a civil servant's productivity.

For example, I work in a building on Pennsylvania Ave. in which six of the 13 floors are rented to a government agency. Since I am located on the thirteenth floor I come into contact with government employees every day. Some are going from the sixth floor to the seventh. Others from the second to the tenth and still others from the fifth to the ninth. They are always carrying official-looking papers in their hands so I have to assume they are doing something very important.

The question is, are government employees who move up and down in the elevator and whiz to and fro more productive than those who sit in their offices reading The Washington Post funnies?

ART BUCHWALD

The elevator rider, you may say, is giving us a bigger bang for our buck. He or she is engaged in the nation's business of writing new regulations, interpreting old ones, sending out memoranda, stamping classified material, setting up committees, turning out reports and doing all the things expected from a servant of the people.

So surely he or she should be given a raise and a promotion.

Perhaps. But the elevator rider is also the person making the government more unwieldy and impossible to control. By going from the second floor to the tenth he or she may be responsible for a new regulation putting 10,000 people out of work, making a national park into a coal mine or giving the go-ahead on a new missile that will never fly.

A short trip from the fifth to the sixth floor by an innocent-looking chap with a pipe clamped in his mouth could cost every man, woman and child in this country $165.

After traveling up and down the capital's elevators for 16 years, I have come to the sad conclusion that those government employees doing the most work in Washington are also doing the most damage.

Therefore, before I go along with Carter's reform package he's going to have to spell out exactly what he expects government employees to do for their salaries. My fear is that, by instituting a merit system and causing government employees to compete against each other, the President will not reduce but add to all the red tape he said he was going to eliminate when he became Unfriendly demonstrations in London today, greeted von Ribbentrop, Germany's Foreign Minister, both before and after a conference in which he and Britains Foreign Secretary canvassed the whole field of Anglo-German relations.

A crowd of 500 demonstrators tried to break strong police cordons as von Ribbentrop left the foreign office after more than two hours with Viscount Halifax, new director of British foreign policy.

Banks would be empowered to loan small business men up to $100,000 with government backing, under a bill introduced today by Representative Mead (D-NY).

The RFC would insure the banks against loss between March 19, 1938 and July 1, 1940.

Mead's purpose is to improve the financial situation of small business and thus indirectly increase employment.

Mandatory Tests Argued

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — When the scarecrow showed up asking for brains, the Wizard of Oz gave him a diploma. That seemed to please him, even though the wizard was a fake.

There's a bit of that flavor in the current controversy between politicians and educators over mandatory tests to determine whether public school students have learned enough to graduate.

Educators contend that statewide test standards are likely to be meaningless at best, and may do more harm than good. Any kind of national tests would be worse, they say.

Nevertheless, there is a growing trend toward state testing systems as legislators respond to the pressure of dissatisfied voters who don't think the schools are doing a good job.

Thirty-one states now have adopted testing systems to determine the competence of students, and the other 19 are considering them.

The government has just concluded a national conference on achievement testing and basic skills, but it produced no consensus on steps to make sure that students emerge from the public schools competent at least in reading, writing and mathematics.

Acknowledging that the public clamor to do something is understandable, a panel of the National Academy of Education said statewide tests are not the answer.

That panel of educators said the setting of state standards for high school diplomas is "basically unworkable, exceeds the present measurement arts of the teaching profession and will create more social problems than it can conceivably solve."

One major difficulty, they said, is that any test tough enough to be meaningful would be too difficult for many students to pass. That conclusion underscores the problem, and the educators acknowledged that the schools should be paying more attention to the fundamentals of reading, writing and arithmetic.

The panel said standardized tests in the lower grades could be useful, not only to pinpoint student weaknesses, but also to build "public pressures if schoolwide performances in basic skills continue over time to be consistently low. ..."

But it warned against the abrupt imposition of state tests as a requirement for graduation.

"It is basically unworkable because in many populous states, cutoff points for a passing grade that are politically and educatively acceptable to parents, pupils and educators would have to be so low that an overwhelming majority of students would be allowed to pass," the panel said. "This would make the diploma standard almost meaningless."

That would make the tests, like the diploma the wizard bestowed, just so much paper.

The problem is compounded by the fact that disadvantaged and minority students in troubled big-city school systems are more likely to have trouble passing standardized tests than are those in more affluent school districts.

Yet, they are the people who would be penalized most severely by failure. The academy of education panel warned:

"If success on tests for purposes of graduation or promotion is achieved by four-fifths of a suburban school system, but only one-third of a central city system, the consequences could be serious for domestic tranquility as well as social equity in a world where a high-school diploma, regardless of intrinsic meaning, is frequently a ticket to particular jobs."

But that leads back to the wizard's diploma, for if a certificate of graduation has no intrinsic meaning, it is not going to be a ticket to anything for very long.

N.C. Port Needs

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

It may be that most North Carolina citizens take our state ports for granted. They do not realize the extent of the revenue taken in by these facilities each year.

North Carolina ports are of significant economic benefit to the entire state. According to a study prepared by the Research Triangle Institute, each ton of cargo moving through the state ports generate a total of $76 in personal income to every citizen of North Carolina.

The study also shows that there are more than 32,000 jobs in North Carolina that are directly or indirectly dependent upon the North Carolina port activities.

Business in the state's ports has increased significantly since 1972. In fact, the overall tonnage has increased each year.

The major problem with the development of the ports of North Carolina is the lack of adequate facilities when compared with other states.

For example, the Virginia Port Authority has invsted over $124 million in capital projects and is presently seeking $15 million in new funds for additional facilities.

The South Carolina Port Authority has just recently received approval for the Wando River Project at a cost of $60 million for the development of 100 additional acres of land.

The Georgia Port Authority has a total capital investment in excess of $130 million and has just proposed a new port expansion project for Hutchinson Island at a cost of $100 million.

The total invested in North Carolina ports of $73.3 million is insignificant when compared with the investment and proposed expansion of port facilities in the adjoining states.

North Carolina has to either accept the position of a secondary port state or has to provide sufficient capital to compete with the adjoining states.

North Carolina needs to commit $50 million in the next five years to develop its ports if they are to be competitive with other states. This is a significant investment for our state and one that deserves the attention of the people and the Genral Assembly.

Strength For Today

PURSUIT OF HAPPINESS

The French historian Ernest Renan once wrote, "When people complain of life, it is almost always because they have asked impossible things from it."

Most of us like to think that we would be perfectly happy if only we could get enough of what we want most — money, power, popularity, fame, or something else in this same category. Yet our common sense tells us, if we will but look about us, that attainment of such a goal is no guarantee of happiness. We have all known rich men, possessing more wealth than they could spend, who nevertheless struggled and worried and fought to become still richer. Most of us have also known people hungry for fame, popularity and power, whose eternal hunt for these rewards brought only misery.

If happiness will not come from the fulfillment of great desires, how may we acquire it? John Stuart Mill, the English philosopher, has provided one very practical answer: "I have learned to seek my happiness by limiting my desires, rather than in attempting to satisfy them."

The Regulators Want To Know

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Three regulatory agencies will embark next week on an odd mission. Through public hearings they will attempt to determine what Congress meant when it passed a law for them to enforce.

Nobody knows, not even Congress, nor the regulators or the regulated. Maybe the public can tell us, government officials reasoned. And so they have scheduled public meetings in an effort to find out.

From Washington they will travel to Atlanta and then to Boston, Chicago, Dallas and San Francisco. After a month they hope to know — what did Congress mean when it passed the Community Reinvestment Act.

The general goal is known — to encourage financial institutions to invest a substantial portion of their funds in communities from which they draw deposits. But Congress sidestepped the specifics.

Instead, it told the regulators — the Federal Reserve, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation and the Home Loan Bank Board — to write rules implementing the act. The regulators were baffled.

What, for example, did the legislators mean by "community?" Where does the community begin and end? What are the "credit needs of the community?" We will ask the public to tell us, the regulators said. By this point the organizations that represent financial institutions, such as the American Bankers Association, were appalled. "It is certain that consumerists will show up in droves," the ABA said.

Indeed they will, for the invitation is an opportunity for pressure groups and interested parties of all sorts to attempt to write the law.

Lenders will be there too, and it isn't inconceivable that the regulators will wind up with an impasse only slightly different from the one that now exists. They might have more ideas, but no decision.

Says the ABA, "It would be impossible to satisfy the requirements of the Act with anything other than a regulation written in language which is just as broad and general as the law itself."

Some bankers and others with a vital interest in the outcome resent having to attend the hearings, but not to do so, they fear, could result in others exerting undue influence.

"Legislative blackmail," the ABA quotes one banker as saying. It comments further, "Guessing the intent of Congress in passing such a vague law is an impossible task."

If Congress could not define what it meant, critics argue, perhaps Congress didn't even know what it wanted. If it didn't know what it wanted why should others know? And can Congress so delegate lawmaking.

The questions go on and on. What limitations are there on such an open-ended law being expanded into a maze of destructive regulations and obligations, and an accompanying blizzard of paper?

Raps Social Security Rules

By DEBBIE JACKSON
Reflector Staff Writer

The Social Security system "must be overhauled" so that adequate benefits are assured to taxpayers without requiring "continuous tax increases," according to North Carolina Insurance Commissioner John Ingram.

During a press conference in Greenville yesterday, the Commissioner said that "increases in the Social Security tax have brought criticism from employees and employers alike."

Ingram, who is running for the United States Senate on the Democratic ticket, noted that a new law requires "huge increases in annual maximum taxes beginning in 1979.

"Future increases must be curbed," he added.

"The average American is being taxed to death, while the special interest groups get tax loopholes and the super rich don't feel the pinch."

Someone making $100,000 a year, he added, does not pay any more Social Security tax than does the person that brings home $17,700 a year. "Under the new law, each one pays $1,070.85 yearly," said Ingram.

He noted that next year the maximum employee tax rises to over $1,400 from this year's $1,070.85.

"Most Americans today fear that far too much of their paycheck is going into a system that may be bankrupt tomorrow," unless a change is initiated.

According to Ingram, the answer to the continued increase in Social Security taxes is "to overhaul Social Security to protect those citizens over 65 who are now drawing benefits, as well as to protect those now paying into the system."

He added that solving this problem will help solve other issues, such as energy, inflation, jobs, the economy, anti-trust, and health care.

JOHN INGRAM

"When someone says there are no simple solutions, tell them the difficulty is in overcoming the special interests," he added.

Ingram said that as the state's U.S. Senator, he would introduce a bill to abolish the special interest exemption in the insurance industry.

"Our goal is to break up monopolies and stop price fixing. The insurance industry is the only multi-billion dollar industry exempt from this nation's anti-trust laws. This must be changed," said Ingram.

He added that the insurance industry is "too powerful" to fight at the state level, so he plans to take up the fight if elected to the U.S. Senate.

"For free enterprise to work for anyone, it must work for everyone."

Ingram noted that one area where his department has saved the state and the citizens money is in abolishing "assigned risk and age discrimination in auto insurance."

North Carolina was the first state to abolish age discrimination for safe drivers. The insurance industry put the plan into operation, he said, "but there is still not enough sur-charge for offenders."

He added that changes should be made so that "habitual offenders" pay more.

Concerning the ongoing controversy between the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare and the North Carolina tobacco farmers, Ingram said that "Secretary (Joseph) Califano made a serious error in attacking the tobacco farmer."

He noted that the tax revenues from tobacco amount to seven times what the farmers get for their crops. "We support the farmer in getting a good price."

In view of Califano's anti-smoking campaign, Ingram said, "You can't legislate morals." He added that citizens cannot successfully fight HEW by "whipsawing" HEW.

"You can beat a pot with a spoon and make a lot of noise," but nothing is accomplished. According to the Commissioner, the most efficient means of taking the pressure off the tobacco industry, is elect to representatives that will "trim the budget" in that area.

Ingram said that he does not approve of HEW's proposed budget, calling for $23,000,000 going to anti-smoking campaigns and $18,000,000 to alcoholic rehabilitation.

"The scale is out of balance.'

"The issue of issues in this Senate campaign is: Who will best represent the people of this state and not the special interests?"

The third major utility serving the state, Virginia Electric and Power Co. (Vepco), reported being in the best shape. Vepco, which burns more oil than coal, reported a 54-day supply of coal on hand.

Flattery said the state will keep a close watch on the coal supplies and is prepared to order a sharing of either coal or electricity as needed. The energy officials will meet again next Tuesday.

"CP&L is still critical," he said. "If Sutton comes on and keeps it stabilized, it could delay it 10 days. And if that's the case, we've bought more time. If not, we might have to go into it (mandatory steps) Wednesday."

Under the state's energy plan, a fourth phase would go in effect once supplies reach the 20-day level. That would include rotating blackouts, beginning with homes.

Flattery said the entire state would be subject to such mandatory steps, even if one utility had more reserves than another. The state would order remaining power to be distributed evenly, he said.

Residential customers would be blacked out for four-hour periods, between 9 a.m. and noon and 1 p.m. and 5 p.m., no more than three times during one week, said Andy Williams, a staff engineer with the state Utilities Commission.

If needed, businesses and industry would be blacked out next, for an eight-hour period once a week.

President.

If employee Brown submits a 10-page regulation on the amount of whipped cream permitted in an Amaretto liqueur, will employee Guggenheim write a 20-page regulation to outdo him?

Compared to other countries, the bureaucrats in the United States have been like a sleeping giant. But if you threaten them with demotion and dangle financial incentives in front of them, they could become an aroused beast, prepared to regulate anything that gets in their way.

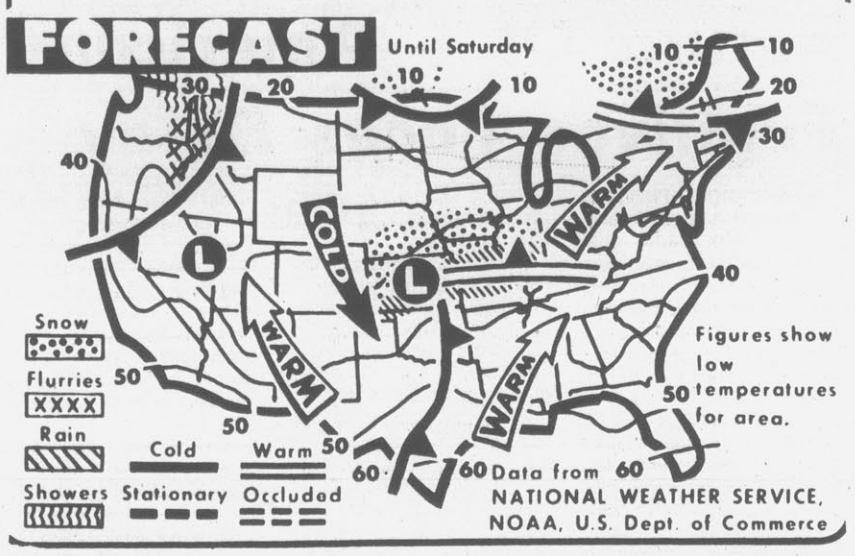
Before it approves the Carter Administration's reform package I believe Congress should ask itself the following questions:

1—Is a government employee who puts in an honest day's work making any worthwhile contribution to society?

2—By taking an elevator from one floor to another is a bureaucrat saving us money or merely wasting the country's energy?

3—If you fire all the drones in the government and keep only the overachievers, who will be left to blame when a giant federal program fails and goes down the tube?

How's The Weather?



WEATHER FORECAST — Snow and rain are forecast today from the central Plains to the Midwest. Snow flurries are expected for the northern Rockies. Warmer weather is due for the Southwest and most of the East but interior sections are expected to remain cold. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press

Rain is expected to continue across North Carolina today, but take heart.

Weather officials say it's spring rain, not winter rain.

In fact, weather officials say warm weather will begin to return to the Tar Heel state today, with the initial breezes drifting north from the Carribean.

Although spring will not arrive officially until 6:34 p.m. on March 20, people in the weather business say it looks as if winter has finally subsided.

"I don't want to go so far as to say it's not going to get cold again, but it looks like those steady shots of cold Arctic air are over with," Bruce Cheatham, a National Weather Service forecaster in Raleigh, said Thursday.

The rain is expected to continue into this afternoon, but there's hope for some sunshine late in the day. Highs are expected to reach the upper 50s in the eastern counties, while the mountain areas will have temperatures in the 40s.

The weekend outlook calls for sunny skies with highs nudging up into the 60s in eastern North Carolina. And the long-range forecast for the rest of March calls for temperatures to be from near normal to nearly spring-like.

Cheatham said the winds that have brought freezing Arctic air from Canada all winter have begun to recede, causing a warming trend in North Carolina. Most freezing air is now reaching only the northern and central states, he said.

"Once the cold air that's trapped here moves out to sea, we shouldn't see any more steady cold weather," he said. "This looks like the breaking point."

Coffee Producers Seek Way To Boost Prices

By KEVIN M. KELLEGHAN
Associated Press Writer

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Central American coffee producers are meeting in San Salvador to try to figure out ways to push prices back toward last year's higher levels. Their best hope may be reduced production due to drought.

The seven Central American countries agreed last month in London to suspend exports, but at least one of them, El Salvador, continues doing business as usual. And the world's largest producers, Brazil and Colombia, are not represented.

"There will definitely be an impact if they don't sell," said one source close to the market in El Salvador. "But if they don't sell, they would be hurting in a short time. It would affect their balance of payments, their bank reseves and debt payments.

"Anyway, I don't think they can even coordinate their marketing strategies."

"We aren't selling all that much," said Ricardo Falla Caceres, manager of the government Salvadorean Coffee Company. But Fausto Cantu Pena, who heads the Mexican Coffee Institute, told reporters that "flexibility within the agreement is not understood."

Honduras announced last week that it has stopped selling.

Falla Caceres blamed commodity speculators for the drop in the spot price from $2.50 a pound last year to $1.72 a pound Thursday. He said speculation is causing panic among producers, some of whom have no organizations to control exports.

Production in some of the countries dropped due to drought, depleting reserves.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture earlier this year estimated the region's production at 14.6 million 132-pound sacks. But one delegate said it could be 2.6 million sacks less.

A dry spell cut last fall's harvest in El Salvador almost in half, from 2,7 to 1.5 million sacks, Falla Caceres reported. He said Brazil could end up with a 4-million-sack shortfall this year because of drought.

Police Count 2 Collisions

An estimated $2,400 property damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated here by Greenville Police yesterday.

Heaviest damage resulted from a 7:30 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Fifth Street involving cars driven by Richard Arnold Allen of Route 1, Hookerton, Brenda Ray Ogeary of 13J Oakhurst Cir., and Archie Corey of 1206 West Third St.

Police, who charged Corey with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety, estimated damage at $800 to the Allen car, $600 to the Corey vehicle and $400 to the Ogeary car.

Investigators reported an estimated $600 damage resulted to a Police Department vehicle driven by Lt. Edward Earl Laughinghouse of 1007 Colonial Ave. when the car struck a tree on Dickinson Avenue 25 feet East of the Wade Avenue intersection about 8:10 p.m.

Officers said Laughinghouse was responding to a call and was in the process of passing a vehicle when the auto pulled into the path of the police car. Laughinghouse pulled to the left to avoid colliding with the vehicle and struck the tree.

Driver of the second car involved, which was not damaged, was identified as Cynthia Braxton of 107 Wade St.

Mrs. Brewer Is Looking Ahead

By DEBBIE JACKSON
Reflector Staff Writer

Betty Brewer, wife of the newly-elected East Carolina University Chancellor Dr. Thomas B. Brewer, said in an interview this morning that she does not "feel any different" in her new role.

"I've never been a chancellor's wife before, so I really don't know what to expect," she said jokingly.

Mrs. Brewer has short, neatly-cut, brown hair and a voice that bubbles when she talks. Unexpectedly there is no Texas drawl. She noted that this was her second trip to the Greenville area since the selection process for the new chancellor began about a year ago.

A Fort Worth, Tex., native, she added that she has enjoyed these visits and also enjoyed meeting new people. The bad weather that area residents have been complaining about has not dampened Mrs. Brewer's spirits, though, as she noted that "it was cold in Texas when we left there. The last time I was here it was sunny and beautiful."

A mother of three, two daughters and one son, she said that she has worked at an earlier time in her life, but now laughs as she refers to herself as "a lady of leisure."

Her interests, which are many, center around people. She expressed a desire to become involved in the workings of East Carolina University and the city of Greenville.

"I enjoy a variety of things, entertaining of any kind, and just getting to know people," she added.

She said that she hopes to develop a close relationship with the ECU faculty. "I've found that it's good to know the faculty in order to know what needs to be done...to develop a good line of communication."

Mrs. Brewer describes herself as an "active" person, having been involved in much volunteer work in Fort Worth.

"I worked one day a week at the hospital there with arthritis patients. But it doesn't end at the hospital. You get involved with people and end up going home with them and listening to them."

She has also been involved with the boy and girl scouts, but said that since her children have grown up — the youngest is 15 — she has turned her efforts to other areas.

"I have driven for FISH," a Christian organization that aids the elderly. She has also contributed her time to the PTA and the General Education Degree program in Texas.

Mrs. Brewer asked about volunteer work in Greenville and said that she hopes to be able to help the community with her services.

"This is going to be a challenge, but I'm looking forward to it."

Dr. and Mrs. Brewer will move to Pitt County this summer, as Dr. Leo Jenkins retires from the ECU chancellor position on July 1.

Brewer Named ECU Chancellor

Brewer for the ECU post last August, said, "Without a doubt, Dr. Brewer is a leader. He takes good initiatives and has good follow-through," and has shown, "vigor and imagination in creating and allowing participatory decision-making in ways that represent distinct advances over anything previously in effect at this university."

Moudy, who was dean of Atlantic Christian College in Wilson, 20 years ago, said Brewer, "is a proven scholar. His goals are high and there is no doubt that he sees excellence as the ideal."

The Texas Christian chancellor added Brewer has, "a very strong interest in local and intercollegiate athletics."

Brewer, according to Moudy, "relates honestly and openly with others. We are sorry to lose Dr. Brewer. He is undoubtedly the finest academic leader we have had at Texas Christian University and he will be missed."

Thomas W. Lowe of Austin, Texas, a former TCU student-body president, termed Brewer, "a realist who thrives on confronting new challenges and is widely admired among students and faculty for his honesty...both personal and intellectual...

TCU's director of athletics Frank Windegger said Brewer, "has been a strong ally of our athletics program here," adding, "I am sure he will take a favorable position with regard to strengthening and enhancing your program there, if you have such a need."

In commenting on Brewer's appointment by the Board of Governors, Friday said, "First, let me say Troy Pate and members of the advisory committee did an excellent piece of work in making this search. Dr. Clint Prewett deserves special commendation for his efforts. But I can't praise the entire committee and faculty representatives enough.

"I have spent quite a bit of time with Dr. Brewer," Friday continued, "and find him to be a very energetic, highly competent and aggressive leader.

"I believe he will provide East Carolina University the kind of quality leadership we shall need during the years immediately ahead."

Friday emphasized, "I was pleased to recommend Dr. Brewer for this appointment because I believe him fully qualified and quite committed to East Carolina."

According to the UNC president, Brewer's salary will be $48,800 and, "will be adjusted in July." Jenkins' salary is now $47,000 a year.

A New Jersey native, Jenkins will reach the State's mandatory retirement age of 65 on May 28.

He came to the Greenville campus in 1947 as dean of East Carolina Teachers College after being Commissioner of Education for the State of New Jersey. He was on hand when the school became East Carolina College in 1951, and when the 1967 General Assembly approved legislation making East Carolina a university.

When Jenkins became president of East Carolina in 1960, there were 3,500 students and the school's budget totaled $4 million. Last year the school boasted 12,000 students and a budget of $35 million.

Jenkins commended the chancellor selection committee, "for the excellent choice they made," and said, "I'm very confident that Dr. Brewer will do a superb job as chancellor."

The veteran ECU head added, "Mrs. Brewer is a very charming woman and will be well received by the students, faculty and the people of Greenville."

ECU board chairman Troy Pate of Goldsboro, said, "I'm very pleased with the selection of Dr. Brewer."

"The committee," Pate emphasized, "is very satisfied that Dr. Brewer meets the criteria that we established as closely as we could hope to get."

"We believe that Dr. Brewer will do an outstanding job as chancellor at East Carolina University. His interests lie in the areas that have been promoted at East Carolina in the past."

Brewer, commenting on his appointment said, "To be named chancellor elect of East Carolina is indeed an honor, and I accept with a deep sense of humility. I thank the search committee, the Trustees, President Friday, and the Board of Governors for the confidence they have placed in me."

Brewer continued, "Betty and I already feel part of the East Carolina community because of the warmth and friendliness of all the people who have so graciously welcomed us.

"The university," he said, "is an outstanding institution of higher learning for many reasons, but one of the most important has been the gifted leadership of Chancellor Leo Jenkins, who has faithfully served East Carolina for 18 years. Universities are not buildings and grounds, they are people, and East Carolina is what it is today because of the dedication and accomplishments of faculty, staff, and students."

"Another important ingredient," according to Brewer, "in that success is the spirited population of Greenville and Eastern Carolina, which loyally supports the university and its commitment to excellence."

Brewer said, "I believe that universities do not plateau, they either improve in quality or they decline. All the constituencies of East Carolina are firmly committed to a university which will continue to grow in quality — a place where teacher-scholars and students interface in an atmosphere in which the faculty reaches new heights of creativity and students achieve their maximum educational potential. This drive for new levels of excellence," he continued, "encompasses all areas of university life, including athletics, student life, and community and regional service."

The chancellor elect said, "I especially welcome the opportunity to work with President Friday, who is one of the outstanding leaders of higher education in the United States. As a constituent institution of the University of North Carolina, East Carolina is, and will continue to be, a strong contributor to the excellence of the system."

"To all the people who comprise the East Carolina community," Brewer concluded, "I promise my every effort in our mutual quest for a continued dynamic, exciting, quality East Carolina University."

Icy Obstacle To Seal Pup Kill

ST. ANTHONY, Newfoundland (AP) — The value of this year's seal pup kill could be cut sharply because of ice blocking ships from the area off northern Newfoundland where the seals are born, fishery officials say.

Four Canadian and four Norwegian ships are seeking a safe way into the ice pack, which has been driven by winds into a solid sheet up to 20 feet thick among the islands off the Labrador coast.

The herd also appears to be out of reach of demonstrators from the Greenpeace Foundation of British Columbia who are expected to begin arriving in this northern Newfoundland town today to protest the hunt. Two U.S. congressmen are coming to join them.

Fisheries officers who flew over the ice 250 miles north of St. Anthony said most of the young seals apparently already have been born.

Because of the ice, they say, the valuable white coats of the infant pups could change color before the hunters arrive. Once pups are 18 days old, the fur turns a spotted gray, making the skins less valuable.

"The ships will be a week reaching the seals," one fishery officer said.

Fishery officers said it would take gale winds and a heavy swell to break the ice away from the Labrador shore. They said in a similar ice situation in 1966, only three out of four pups taken had white coats.

Greenpeace says the clubbing method of killing the seals is cruel. The Canadian government says it is the most humane method available and that in addition to the value of the furs to the sealers, the seal population must be controlled to sustain fish resources.

The Canadian government has set the limit for this year's kill at 180,000 harp seals and 15,000 hood seals. The harp seal limit is up 10,000 over last year.

Conservationists dispute the Canadians claim that the seal population is increasing in spite of the kills.

Reps. James M. Jeffords, R-Vt., and Leo J. Ryan, D-Calif., flew to Ottawa Thursday night to join the Greenpeace crusaders.

Return Of 6 American Fugitives Faces Delay

By RICHARD T. PIENCIAK
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Six American fugitives who were to have flown home to surrender on air piracy charges were left in Havana after Air Canada refused to fly them out because it was not satisfied with security arrangements.

Airline security officials had traveled to Havana Thursday morning, "looked into the situation and decided not to grant the men passage," said Marie-Josee Bourgeois, an airline public relations representative in Montreal.

"The airline was not given any more information except that they were called expatriotes," said Ed Johnson an Air Canada security official. "You can call them what you like. We're caught in the middle of this one."

Sources said it was still possible the surrender would be worked out — possibly sometime today.

The fugitives, wanted in connection with hijackings between 1969 and 1971, were to have flown from Havana to Mirabel Airport, 35 miles northwest of Montreal, on a regularly scheduled Air Canada DC-10 with 170 other passengers.

There, U.S. Marshals were to board the aircraft, which was to depart as a special charter to Kennedy Airport where the expatriotes would be arrested.

But when the plane arrived in Canada Thursday night, the men were not aboard. Air Canada did not announce its decision to refuse passage until after the plane had landed.

FBI official J. Wallace LaPrade said the agency had only tentative identifications on the fugitives because there are arrest warrants for more than 80 persons known to have hijacked airliners to Cuba.

Arrangements for the repatriation were made through the "interest sections" the United States and Cuba have set up at foreign embassies in each other's capitals, officials said.

The FBI tentatively identified the six returnees as:

—Garland Grant of Milwaukee, Wis., who allegedly hijacked a Northwest Airlines jet to Cuba on Jan. 22, 1971.

—Nobel Mason and Larry Brooks, wanted for the hijacking of an Eastern Airlines flight bound for Miami on Jan. 28, 1969.

—Angel Cassado, wanted for the hijacking of an American Airlines Flight on Oct. 25, 1971, as it headed for Puerto Rico.

—Rudolpho Rios, wanted for the hijacking of Pan American Flight 299 on Aug. 8, 1970.

—Richard Witt, wanted for the hijacking of Allegheny Airlines Flight 703 on Sept. 19, 1971.

Farmville Bd. Vote Unanimous

FARMVILLE — Official minutes of the Farmville Town Commissioners' Tuesday night meeting show that the vote calling for acceptance of the low bid on the demolition of the old Farmville High School building was unanimous.

The Reflector, in its Wednesday report, has called it a three-to-two vote, judging by a show of hands. State law says that any vote not recorded as a "nay" is automatically affirmative, the Farmville Town Administrator Patrick A. Thomas pointed out.

Telethon Aided Campaign Fund

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The campaign committee of U.S. Senate candidate Lawrence Davis says its two-hour telethon brought in more than $16,000 in pledges of contributions.

Warren Steen, press secretary for Davis, said Wednesday night's show, aired by Winston-Salem station WXII, cost $6,000 to produce and air. The campaign staff had originally set the break-even point as its goal, Steen said.

Davis, a state senator from Winston-Salem, is one of eight Democrats running for the nomination to the U.S. Senate to oppose Republican Sen. Jesse Helms, who is seeking a second term. The primary election is May 2.

Recruiting Of Students Eyed

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Officials at Winston-Salem State University, where enrollment this year is below expectations, say they have embarked on a more active recruiting program.

"This shortfall in our enrollment reflects a failure to recruit and admit students at anticipated levels during the preceding academic year," Chancellor Douglas Covington told university trustees.

He said the recruiting office has been reorganized and that two recent graduates are on the road allmost full time to recruit students.

The enrollment had been projected at 2,000 to 2,080 this year, but the actual enrollment is 1,970. Last year's enrollment was 1,890.

Participated In Founder's Day Celebration

D.D. Garrett and the Rev. Luther Brown have just returned from Lomax-Hannon Junior College, Greenville, Ala., where they were part of a Founder's Day celebration at the college.

Bishop Alford D. Bunston of Philadelphia, Penn., presided over the Trustee Board. Business centered around determining a chairman for the search committee which is in the process of selecting a new president for the college.

Former President of Lomax-Hannon, C.M. Smith died this past July.

M.C. Williams of Tuscaloosa, Ala., was selected as chairman of the committee.

The organization also raised $38,000 recently, it was reported at the meeting, to go for renovations on the campus of Lomax-Hannon.

Want A New Snow Record

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Rochester has been "lucky" to get 154.5 inches of snow this winter, and now is not the time to stop, according to The Times-Union.

In an editorial entitled "7.3 Inches More Snow, Please," the newspaper came out in favor of breaking the city record.

"Having endured a cold, stormy winter to this point, why not go for broke and participate in a high point of Rochester history?" The Times-Union asked.

Besides, it said, this season's constant cold has its good features:

"The consistent temperatures are supposed to be healthier. We don't know whether the Rochester region had less flu than it might have had if temperatures had zoomed up and down in the usual February fashion — there seemed enough illness as it was — but at least the kids knew without being told every day that they had to wear their warmest coats."

Survey Indicates New Catholicism Emerging

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

A new, broader kind of Roman Catholicism is emerging in the United States as portrayed in survey findings. It's more educated, more diverse in religious interpretations, its people at ease in differing with official positions, yet loyal to the church, confident and devout.

That picture is in marked contrast to the past image of a homogenous bloc of uniform religious views and practice, with dissenters considering leaving the fold. But now they're staying explicitly in it, comfortable in doing so, dedicated to the faith, even though often disagreeing with authorities about its implications.

In short, as brought out increasingly by several recent studies, Catholics have come to terms within the church, accepting it without being edgy or alienated by it, undeflected by it from devotion to the church.

"We're finding that large majorities of Catholics do not agree with the church's position on such key issues as divorce and birth control, but they're staying within the church, and in many cases, are the most devout members," says George Gallup Jr., head of the Gallup poll organization. No longer, he adds, do they feel compelled by such dissent to drop out.

Gallup's latest broad-scale survey on the situation, commissioned by the Catholic Press Association and its results released last week, showed that a rising proportion of Catholics are college-educated, a third of them, double that of a decade ago, with their influence mounting.

They're more active in church life than those with only high school education, attend more regularly, rate their religion more important but also are most likely to disagree with official church positions.

Overall, 69 percent of Catholics disagree with church prohibitions of remarriage after divorce and 73 percent disagree with the church ban against contraception. The figures are higher for the college-educated, 74 percent and 83 percent respectively.

But the indications that they're also particularly devout suggests that differences with church authorities no longer dampens church participation.

A rising proportion of Catholics rate their faith as "highly favorable," and more attend worship at least once a week, now 58 percent compared to 55 percent a year ago. They're also increasingly involved in other religious activites such as Bible study, prayer and meditation groups.

An overwhelming majority of them — 84 percent — want closer relationships with Protestant and Eastern Orthodox Christians.

Unitarians Will Meet Sunday

The Unitarians will meet Sunday at the First Federal Building located on 264 By-pass.

Following the potluck dinner at 12:15 p.m., Dr. D. D. Gross will talk on issues facing the State House of Representatives. A question and answer period will follow the program.

The public is invited.

Quarterly Meet This Sunday

Quarterly meeting will be held Sunday March 12, at Mt. Shiloh Baptist Church in Winterville at 11 a.m.

The Rev. Laws, pastor of Tabernacle Baptist Church, Vanceboro, will be the speaker. At 3 p.m., the Rev. Hugh Walston and Sycamore Chapel will render the service.

The public is invited to attend.

Eye Reunion On Saturday

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Lonza Lewis hopes to start getting to know his 17-year-old daughter Saturday.

He'll be meeting her for the first time in 14 years.

The last time Lewis talked to his daughter, Lynda, she was 3 years old. It was just before Lewis and his first wife separated. Lewis, a machine worker, tried over the years to locate his child.

Tuesday night, the day before her 17th birthday, Lynda arrived at her home in Roanoke Rapids to find a phone message saying her father had called.

"I was so shocked I didn't know what to think," Lynda said Thursday. "I ran to the phone and dialed it and then I got scared. What would I say?"

As she feared, the brief phone conversation with her father was tense and emotional. Neither was able to speak freely.

"I was pretty shook up," said Lewis, who had located Lynda's number through a family member. "I said something like, 'Is this Lynda? ... This is your father.'"

Lynda told him that she had lived with her mother and with relatives in Missouri, Hawaii and several North Carolina towns, and that she was well.

"We mostly sat and listened to each other breathe on the phone," she said. "We were too excited and worked up to say anything much. After I hung up, I thought of a hundred things I wanted to ask him."

Lewis said he was serving in the U.S. Army when he and his first wife separated. He said he saw her only once since then — he caught a glimpse of her at a dance seven years ago, but did not get to talk to her.

Quarterly Meet Begins Tonight

The Chemistry of Character
There is no precise formula. But there are certain elements usually found in significant measure in persons of character.
One is belief. And not just belief in one's self. The men and women we most admire generally have strong convictions which influence their daily lives.
Another is commitment. Far beyond mere involvement. Those who stir our admiration devote their time and talents unselfishly to worthwhile causes.
And there's usually a third element; but it's never boasted of or paraded about. That's sacrifice. People of character are always willing to deny themselves something to achieve something greater.
Nearby are plenty of "laboratories" where belief, commitment and sacrifice combine to produce Christian character. They're called CHURCHES.

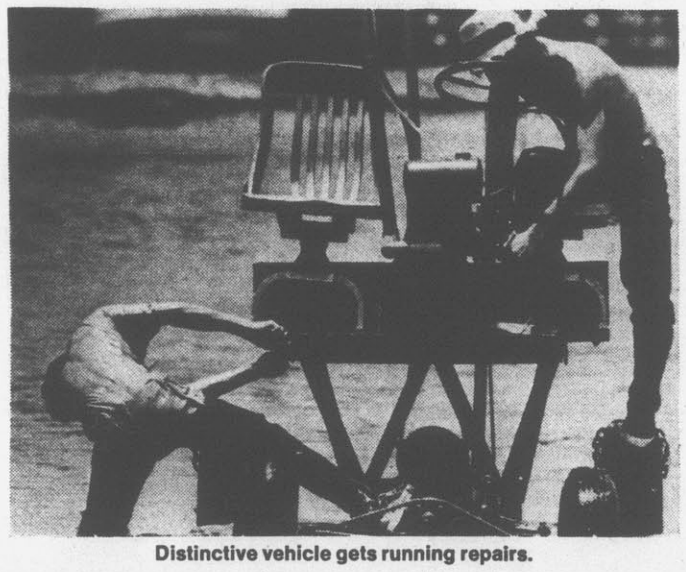
Buggy racer on the wild, wet "race course" at Naples, Fla.

Two-man team dashes on through mud and spray...hoping they are still on course.

Cowboy hats come out first from flurry of competition among buggies.



Distinctive vehicle gets running repairs.

SWAMP BUGGY DAY

Big Mac, Bo Hawg, Dirt Dawber, Electric Banana...unlikely machines with matching names slosh through the wild, wet "race course."

It's swamp buggy race day at Naples, Fla., and it's a twice yearly celebration. The atmosphere is festive, the music country and western, the refreshments hot dogs, cotton candy and beer. Crash helmets and cowboy hats abound.

The machines—each one different—are practical inventions. They're the only way to travel through Florida's vast Everglades swamplands. The racing competition seemed a natural development.

Sitting high above the marshy surface, each driver must battle the rest of the field and the swamp itself. There are always the winners and the losers, but never a dry survivor.

Buggies play on race day—but work as well: they're practical inventions, the only way to travel around swamps of Everglades.

Several Hearings Held At Meeting Of Council

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Public hearings were conducted on several matters last night as the City Council breezed through its lengthy business agenda.

Approval was given, following a hearing, to the adoption of a resolution ordering the closing of a portion of Radio Road located west of the Garner-Wynne-Manning property and abutting the W. C. Taylor property on the north and south.

The Council also followed the recommendation of the Planning and Zoning Commission in approving a request by H & H Development Corp. for rezoning a tract of land on NC 33 approximately one mile east of Green Street.

The rezoning, from RA-20 to R-6, involves approximately 40 acres, it was explained, and will allow the development of single family structures. No opposition was expressed during the public hearing.

Council members voted, following a third public hearing, to adopt a resolution directing that street improvements on portions of Drewry Lane, Sulgrave Road, and Stratford Road be undertaken. No opposition was voiced during the public session on the preliminary assessment resolution on the Stratford Subdivision improvements.

Approval was also given to an appropriate amendment to the city budget to accommodate the improvement project.

The Council conducted a public hearing on the issuance of $200,000 worth of electric system bonds and adopted an order authorizing the bond issuance.

City Manager Jim Caldwell explained that the city had the authority to issue the net debt reduction bonds without a referendum.

According to Greenville Utilities director Charles Horne, the funds will be used for the expansion of the GUC electric system, particularly the addition of new transmission lines.

Horne related that 66 million kilowatt hours of energy were delivered by GUC in February to its customers and the expansion of the system is needed to take care of the growth.

The bonds will be paid off with electric revenues, it was mentioned.

The Council adopted a resolution ordering the closing of a portion of Cedar Street between Fourth and Fifth Streets. Mayor Percy Cox said that he had talked with all of the parties involved and they were in agreement on the street closing.

A public hearing on the matter was held at the February meeting and the issue was tabled pending further discussion with property owners.

Priority items designated by Greenfield Terrace, Riverdale and Higgs neighborhoods to be undertaken under the General Neighborhood Improvement Program was approved by the board.

Funding totaling $23,761 was designated under the GNIP account to pay for additional streets lights in Greenfield Terrace, neighborhood park additions and improvements at Third Street School, and street light additions in the Higgs section.

Other proposals submitted by the neighborhoods will be considered by the Council as the program continues.

It was explained that some $80,000 was allocated for the program as part of the 1976 and 1977 Community Development effort. The purpose of the GNIP has been to allow the neighborhoods to set their own project priorities and allow the city flexibility in working with the requests, according to CD director John Schofield.

The Greenfield Terrace, Riverdale and Higgs neighborhoods submitted lists of proposals for improvements in their sections and designated one priority item for consideration at this time.

Eugene Prescott was reappointed for a second five-year term on the Greenville Utilities Commission. Prescott's first term expires this month.

The Council reappointed Dr. Sam T. White and Lois D. Worthington to new two-year terms on the Firemen's Relief Fund Committee and Mark Grossnickle was named as the Rose High School representative on the Sheppard Memorial Library Board. It was pointed out that Margaret Cain, who was filling an unexpired term on the board ending this month, is moving out of town.

Other action taken by the Council included:

— Approval of applications for renewal of permits for mobile homes at 1607 Garland Street and 101 Hooker Road;

— Granting of taxicab operator's permits to Willie Lee James, Gregory Earl Mobley, and Ms. Peatric Adams Shiver;

— Adoption of the 1975-77 Community Development Grantee — Performance Report;

— Authorization for the submission of an application for a Historical Preservation Survey to the North Carolina Department of Cultural Reserouces, Division of Archives and History (city matching fund costs would be $1,270 and would be part of next year's budget);

— Adoption of a project completion agreement for the Shore Drive Redevelopment Project between the city and Redevelopment Commission providing for Shore Drive close-out under Community Development procedures with the city agreeing to bear any future costs or obligations incurred in connection with the project;

— Approval of budget amendments regarding $7,000 for furniture purchases for the new recreation-library complex, and funding for three additional personnel in the Recreation Department and two new Rescue Division personnel (anti-recessionary funds used for the new personnel);

— Adoption of amendments to the Utilities budget reassigning certain projects to certain funds;

— Granting of an off-premise beer and wine privilege license to Carey and Son's Fast Stop at 3016 Memorial Drive;

— Scheduling of public hearings on April 13 on two requests for rezoning;

— Referral of a petition to annex the Greenville Utilities Operations Center site and the Floyd Nichols property adjoining the city limits on Hooker Road, to the Planning and Zoning Commission;

— Waiver of privilege license requirements for the Optimist Club Boat Show March 30 and 31 and April 1 and 2; and — Approval of Hub Uniform Co. of Charlotte bid in the amount of $8,134.94 for spring-summer uniforms for the Police Department.

Councilman John Howard mentioned following the conclusion of agenda business that the Council included in the budget last July the funding for an assistant to the city manager. Howard said that he felt that in view of the workload of the city, the search for a person to fill the assistant position should "actively begin."

Confiscated Cash And Cocaine In Local Raid

CONFISCATED DRUG PACKETS and money which police seized Thursday are shown above

Greenville Police and State Bureau of Investigation agents yesterday confiscated some $15,000 worth of cocaine and $7,094 in cash following a search of a Greenville residence just before noon yesterday.

Chief Glenn Cannon said in addition to the cocaine, a small quantity of marijuana and MDA were also confiscated.

Charged with possession of cocaine and possession of marijuana in connection with the incident were Alexander Andrews Williams, 25 and Thomas Keith Parker, 22, both of 1816 Greenville Blvd.

According to the chief, the drugs — three to four ounces of cocaine and $75 worth of marijuana as well as a gram of MDA — were found in the dwelling, while the cash was found in Parker's car.

Williams, Cannon said, is a carpenter, while Parker is an East Carolina University student.

Both were placed under $10,000 bond each following the 11:38 a.m. raid.

Juanita Kreps Has Interceded

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — U.S. Commerce Secretary Juanita Kreps, former vice president of Duke University, reportedly has interceded with President Carter in the controversy over desegregation plans for the University of North Carolina.

The News and Observer of Raleigh today quoted a Commerce Department spokesman as confirming that Mrs. Kreps has raised the UNC desegregation issue at a recent meeting with Carter but "the president did not pursue the matter."

Sources have described Mrs. Kreps as being concerned about the extent of federal pressure on UNC and worried about the affect the case is having on public opinion of the Carter administration in North Carolina, the newspaper said.

U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare officials are trying to reach a negotiated settlement with UNC on a desegregation plan by March 20, the date set for beginning enforcement proceedings against the 16-campus system.

Last month, HEW declared that the latest UNC plan, as well as those of five other Southern states, did not measure up to court-ordered federal guidelines.

The newspaper reported that several sources said Mrs. Kreps first raised the issue at a cabinet meeting, but Carter cut off discussion. Mrs. Kreps also brought up the issue at a subsequent private meeting with Carter, the sources said.

Other sources said Mrs. Kreps' willingness to raise the issue may have heightened Carter's awareness of the controversy surrounding it in North Carolina.

"Juanita took up for us," one source said. "She has gained among North Carolina folks a great deal of stature and reputation for political finesse."

Policeman Shot Down

TURIN, Italy (AP) — Assassins gunned down an anti-terrorist policeman on a Turin street today and an anonymous caller claimed responsibility for the Red Brigades urban guerrilla gang whose members are on trial here. Later the trial was postponed for a day after all four defense attorneys claimed to be ill.

Two or three gunmen killed policeman Rosario Berardi, 55, in a hail of bullets as he was about to board a steetcar. They then escaped in a car that witnesses said was driven by a woman.

The Turin office of ANSA, the Italian news agency, got a call a short time later saying: "This is the Red Brigades. We have hit Rosario Berardi. A communique will follow."

Berardi was a veteran of Turin's anti-terrorism squad and recently had been transferred to head a police station.

He was killed less than 24 hours after 15 guerrilla suspects, led by bearded Renato Curcio, went on trial for the third time in two years, facing 20-year terms for anti-government terrorism. Their two previous trials were postponed after a district attorney, a lawyer and two bodyguards were killed.

The four defense attorneys did not show up for today's session, saying they were ill. The Red Brigades refuse legal defense. New attorneys will be appointed by the court.

The children of the couple have been placed in foster care by the Pitt County Department of Social Services.

The animal cruelty charges were brought by the Pitt County Humane Society, because of a mother dog and puppies left outdoors during the time the family had gone to Sanford.

Pitt NAACP Meets Sunday

The Pitt County Branch of the NAACP will meet Sunday at 7:30 p. m. at Good Hope FWB Church, Winterville.

Music will be furnished by the Church Men's Chorus.

Railroad Is Suit Target

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Debra Lynn Cook of New Hanover County wants to be an engineer with Seaboard Coast Line Railroad Co. But the company has denied her request, so Ms. Cook has filed a sex-discrimination suit in federal court here.

In her complaint, Ms. Cook said railroad officials told her she could not become an engineer because she "weighed too little, was too short and had hair too long for engineer work." Ms. Cook stands 5-feet-4 and weighs 100 pounds.

Ms. Cook has worked for the railroad for five years in several locations and a number of positions, including rail yardwork, cleaning railroad cars, working in a company freight office and working the railroad switchboard.

Her suit asks that the company be prohibited from discriminating on the basis of sex. It also asks for back pay and benefits, as well as promotion.

Thomas F. Ellis, a Raleigh lawyer and the railroad's registered agent in North Carolina, said Thursday he had no comment on the suit.

NEW YORK (AP) — Strength in the dollar and an unexpected drop in the unemployment rate helped push stock prices broadly higher in an active session today.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 4.42 at 754.42.

Gainers outstripped losers by more than a 3-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The dollar gained in value in foreign-exchange markets on word that officials of the Federal Reserve and the West German central bank were discussing possible moves to strengthen the U.S. currency, which has been slumping for the past several months.

News accounts said the talks were expected to reach a conclusion over the weekend.

At the same time traders who had been expecting the coal strike and bad weather to drive the unemployment rate upward got a pleasant surprise. The Labor Department reported that the jobless rate dropped last month from 6.3 to 6.1 percent, its lowest level since October of 1974.

Kennecott Copper led the active list, up ⅛ at 24⅜. A 290,000-share block traded at 24¼.

The NYSE's composite index picked up .26 to 49.20. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose .45 to 124.88.

Volume on the Big Board reached 11.83 million shares by noontime, up from 9.53 million at the same point on Thursday.

Young Pitt Tobacco Farmer Honored

CHAP TUCKER

Chap Tucker is the type of young man who gives the impression that he could be anything he wants to be, from lawyer to astronaut. He has chosen to be a tobacco farmer.

At age 25, he is to flue-cured tobacco farming what David Thompson is to shooting jump shots and Farrah Fawcett is to smiling. He is good at what he does.

This has earned him the distinction of being the first grower honored by the Outstanding Young Tobacco Producer Recognition Program.

The program is conducted by the agricultural extension services at North Carolina State University and other land grant universities in flue-cured and burley growing states, with the sponsorship of Philip Morris U.S.A.

Its purpose, according to N.C. Agricultural Extension Service Director George Hyatt Jr., is to recognize outstanding young (35 and under) growers and leaders and to encourage the production of high quality tobacco.

Ralph Chapman Tucker Jr. grows about 250 acres of tobacco in Pitt County, the largest flue-cured producing county in the country.

Chapman started at age 16 with six acres rented from his father. Now he is leasing and managing the entire 1,500-acre farming operation. About 55 percent of the farm income is from tobacco.

"We're doing things a lot different than we used to and on a larger scale," said Tucker, "but one thing about tobacco has remained the same through several generations of our family. That is, tobacco is still the hub around which everything else revolves. It provides the means for us to do other things."

Seek Mate For Gorrilla

SAN DIEGO (AP) — After 10 years in San Diego, Massa the gorilla is heading north to Los Angeles in search of a lover.

The 13-year-old male has been a resident of the San Diego Zoo and Wild Animal Park since he was rescued as an infant in 1965 by a Peace Corps worker in Gabon, Africa. He had been orphaned by poachers who slaughtered his mother.

He was cared for by Albert Schweitzer's daughter, Rhena Eckert, until 1968, when he became too big to handle and was shipped to San Diego.

Massa just didn't hit it off with Alvila, a female gorilla about his age who was born at the zoo. Last week Alvila was carted off to Fresno's zoo to see whether she might be more interested in Freddie, their resident young gorilla.

And on Thursday, Massa was sedated, given a physical examination, crated and trundled off to Los Angeles on a breeding loan.

According to Crew, two other construction companies submitted bids, Reynolds Construction and Barnhill Construction.

The public improvements are a result of a $123,000 portion of a $293,000 grant from the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. The remainder of the grant will be used to rehabilitate housing, said Crew.

Expected Reject Change In U.S. 13

The State Transportation Board, which is meeting in Wilmington today, is expected to turn down a proposal to relocate a major segment of U. S. 13 through several northeastern N. C. counties.

Highway Administrator Billy Rose said he plans to recommend that the Board not accept the proposal by the Division of Highways' Traffic Engineering Section that the new, shorter route from Ahoskie to Bethel be adopted. The present route is through Williamston. Area governmental bodies and business interests oppose the change.

The proposed new route would be shifted westward to parallel existing N. C. 11 and would be 10.7 miles shorter.

Rose said the staff recommendation was "based strictly on consideration of the traffic operations and consideration was not given to the past efforts of the communities, local governments, businesses, and individuals in establishing the route. He said the engineers' recommendation did not take into account "possible adverse impacts that could result to businesses which have located along the existing route."

Pirates Dump Purdue

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Behind the power hitting of Raymie Styons and Bobby Supel, each of whom cracked solo home runs, the Pirates of East Carolina gained a 6-2 triumph over Purdue University yesterday.

Styons, Supel, Butch Davis and Eddie Gates each picked up a pair of hits in the game, which raised the East Carolina record to 3-2 so far this year. Purdue is yet to win in four outings, and scored its first runs of the year in the contest.

Played in mid-thirty weather, the contest was not one for the pitchers. Mickey Britt got the victory for the Pirates, going the first five innings. He allowed five hits and gave up one of the runs. He walked three and struck out a similar number.

Bill Lucas went three more innings for the Pirates, allowing the other run and four more hits. He walked two and fanned none. Tim Stiller finished the last inning, fanning a pair.

Purdue used five hurlers in the game, with Keith Murphy, 0-1, getting the defeat. He went the first three innings.

While shaking his head at the weather, Coach Monte Little said he was glad to get the game in. The contest was added to the slate after the Pirates had a game at South Carolina "coled-out" on Wednesday.

"I'm pleased that we won, but it was a very difficult day to swing the bats," Little said. "The infield is rough, and you're going to have errors because of it. But it's the same for both teams."

Despite the weather, Little was pleased by the hitting, as the Bucs raised their home run total to four. Last year, they had 12 all season. "I think we'll really start hitting the ball when the weather gets warmer. And I know that we can definitely run the bases."

While pointing out that Britt pitched a "superb" game at N.C. State Sunday, Little felt that the cold bothered him yesterday. "He just couldn't get his breaking stuff going because of the cold. Lucas was a little erratic, too, but Stiller did a fine job in the ninth. He threw hard."

Purdue offered a mild threat in the first on two walks, but it was the Pirates who drew blood in the inning.

Eddie Gates led off with a single to left and then stole second. The throw to get him bounced off his leg and into left, and Gates went on to third on the play. Pete Paradossi brought him in with a sacrifice fly.

Styons followed that up with his homer, a blast over the left field fence.

After leaving a man on third in the second frame, the Pirates got their third run in the fourth inning. Macon Moye opened the fourth with a single to right, and Davis added another hit to right. With one down, Jerry Carraway grounded to third, and the play got Davis at second, while Moye was able to make it to third. Gates reached on an infield hit, scoring Moye for a 3-0 lead.

Purdue finally snapped its long scoreless streak in the fifth inning, getting a run. John Madia singled to right and Terry Schlatter singled to left. Chris Dietrick followed with another hit, driving in Madia.

East Carolina countered that with a run in the fifth, that on Supel's blast over the fence in left, making it 4-1.

The Pirates added two more in the seventh. Gates walked and stole second. Again, the ball was off-target, and Gates raced on to third. He scored on a passed ball. With one down, Paradossi walked and Supel singled him to third. Another passed ball brought Paradossi over.

Purdue got its other run in the eighth. Greg Beno singled to open the inning and Steve Broccolo got a hit. Carlos Rodriquez reached on a fielder's choice that got Broccolo at second. The Pirates just missed on a double play as Todd Cooney grounded to second, but Beno scored on the play.

The two teams are scheduled to meet again this afternoon in a doubleheader, starting at 1:30 p.m.

The Pirates also face Madison in single games Saturday and Sunday.

Games Are Postponed

Cold weather forced the postponment or cancellation of several area athletic events yesterday.

A baseball game between Tarboro and North Pitt was delayed until April 8. Another between Conley and South Edgecombe will be played today.

A boys and girls' track meet between Ahoskie and Williamston was also postponed, with no new date set.

A tennis match between East Carolina and High Point College was also delayed, with no new date set.

Rose High School's baseball game and tennis match at Kinston today were both postponed. The baseball game was tentatively rescheduled for March 22, while the tennis match has not yet been reset.

Kentucky Rolls Past East Carolina Women

CHAPEL HILL — The University of Kentucky rolled to an 81-65 victory over the East Carolina University Lady Pirates yesterday in the first round of the AIAW Region II playoffs at Chapel Hill.

The defeat knocked the Lady Pirates into the consolation bracket, where they will encounter the University of North Carolina for the fourth time this season.

The game was close only for the first six minutes. After that, Kentucky took charge and began to pull away. The Lady Cats built up a 14-9 lead with 14:06 left in the first half, but the Lady Pirates were able to pull back within one at 16-15 as Gale Kerbaugh hit.

But the Cats continually pulled away after that, with Pam Browning leading the way. She scored 14 of the final 20 points for Kentucky in the half, and the Cats outhit the Pirates, 14-4 in the last five minutes to build up a 42-25 halftime edge.

The Lady Pirates put on a small rally in the first five minutes of the second half, cutting the lead back to 12. Lydia Rountree hit three baskets, while Rosie Thompson added one and Kerbaugh got a basket and a free throw. That cut the lead to 48-36, but the Pirates ran out of steam there.

Kentucky poured in nine straight after that, moving out to a 57-36 lead, and it was all over.

"We were totally ineffective through the first half with our game plan," Coach Catherine Bolton said. "Except for the first five minutes of the second half, we had little going right."

Bolton said that Kentucky's height advantage was one of the key elements in the game. "They were extremely strong inside and their height advantage let them get the ball into their big people.

"I'm just sorry that East Carolina couldn't give them a better game. I think it was more a case of our poor execution causing us to lose rather than them winning," she added.

East Carolina hit on 40.3 per cent of their shots from the floor, while Kentucky enjoyed a 47.6 per centage. The Lady Cats also pulled down 42 rebounds to just 33 for the Pirates.

Rountree led the East Carolina scoring with 16 points, while Debbie Freeman had 14 and Kerbaugh had 11.

Maria Donhoff led Kentucky with 20, while Browning had 17, and Linda Edelman and Debbie Oden each had 11.

East Carolina and North Carolina meet at 1:30 p.m. today in the consolation bracket. A loss will send the Pirates home, while a win would allow them to play for the consolation championship on Saturday.

East Carolina—Thompson 6, Freeman 14, Gervin 9, Kerbaugh 11, Rountree 16, Emerson 5, Ross 4, Tritt, Suggs.
Kentucky—Donhoff 20, Oden 11, Browning 17, Grigsby 2, Timperman 6, Edelman 11, Mjoseth 6, Mack, Upton 6, Hurst, Combs, Eagan, Lykins 2.

Rain Again Hits Tourney

MIAMI (AP) — Another day was lost to rain — the fifth time in 10 weeks this year such a thing has happened — but PGA tour officials were counting their blessings.

"It could have been much worse," said Jack Tuthill, the man in charge of the day to day field operations for the tour.

"Actually, we're lucky. We could have lost two or three tournaments."

The Phoenix Open, the Bing Crosby and the Bob Hope Desert Classic all were interrupted by storms and had forecasts that threatened the completion of the tournaments. All managed to finish.

The pounding rains which interrupted the first round of play Thursday in the $200,000 Doral Open forced tour officials to schedule a double round of 36-holes for Sunday for the second week in a row. A similiar situation developed last week in the Citrus Open.

This time, rookie Ed Fiori holed out a par-saving putt on the final hole after the siren had sounded halting play. The last man off the tee in the morning half of the field, Fiori completed his best round as a pro, a 7-under-par 65, that gave him a 2-shot lead with half the field yet to finish.

All the afternoon starters, 75 of them, were stranded on the 7,065-yard Blue Monster course at the Doral Country Club. They marked their positions — all were on the front nine — and were scheduled to complete play Friday morning.

The tournament schedule — which has a good forecast for the rest of the week — now calls for second-round play on Saturday. The field will be cut to the low 60 scorers, as opposed to the normal cut to the low 70, with a 36-hole windup on Sunday.

Tom Watson, defending champion Andy Bean, Lee Trevino, Jerry Pate and Ray Floyd were among the group stranded on the flooded course and due to finis today. All had just gotten under way when play was halted, and eventually called off for the day.

Of those who finished, Tom Weiskopf topped a group of five tied at 67, 5 under par and 2 shots back of the chunky, low-key leader.

Burns Ousts Williamston

HICKORY—Williamston's girls fell far behind in the first quarter and could never catch up with Burns, losing a 63-57 decision despite a furious fourth-quarter rally In the state 3-A basketball tournament.

The Tigerettes trailed by a 24-6 score at the end of the first quarter and could only come within 15, 38-23 by halftime.

Another Williamston lull in the third period enabled Burns to go up by 55-31 score, but the Tigerettes outscored Burns 26-8 in the final period to almost pull the game out.

Williamston, led by Paula Bennett with 20, Jan Rogerson with 14 and Jo Anna Lilley with 13, came within five points with just over a minute left, but Burns was able to hold the Tigerettes off down the stretch.

Burns' Vanessa Simmons was the game's high scorer with 26 points, while Susan Hull had 13 and Mary Ann Wright 12.

The loss ends the Williamston season. The Tigerettes compiled a 21-2 record.

It would now appear that the Larry Gillman issue at East Carolina is a dead one. Coach Gillman has received his vote of confidence from Chancellor Leo Jenkins, despite some grumblings from others in the athletic circle.

The controversial coach spent the latter half of the past season dodging brick-bats tossed by fans and members of the ECU athletic circle, and managed to survive it all.

He admitted earlier that he had brought on a lot of it himself, by proclaiming the team to be more than it turned out to be.

"But I feel I had to do it," he told me the other day after all was settled. "We had to have a lot of season ticket sales and a good gate. We got that, and I still think the people liked a good deal of what they saw."

Gillman does not think that this will cause problems next season. He looks for even more preseason ticket sales for the basketball program. Whether this turns out to be true or not is another question.

Despite the fact that Gillman's future, at least for the coming year, appears settled, there are still rumors flying around the program.

Some of the players are reported to be considering either transfering to other schools or not playing basketball. Whether this is true or not will probably not be know until late this spring, or possibly as late as next fall when registration for the next year rolls around.

There will probably also be some changes in the ECU staff. We hope that Coach Gillman will be very careful in picking whomever he chooses to join the program. We hope also that he will take advantage of his staff to help with the coaching duties.

It is no secret that this year's team set a new record for allowing the highest average by opponents ever for a Pirate team. That indicates a lack of defense, and that is one of the big squawks that the fans had during the past year. Hopefully, Coach Gillman and his staff will put a lot more effort into building a good defense next year.

A good offense is not necessarily going to be enough to win. The old saying "A good defense is the best offense," would seem to be borne out by this year's team.

The 1978-79 season can be a good one for the Pirates, despite the tougher schedule they reportedly have set for them. But it will take a great effort. It will take good defense. It will take a lot more than was shown on the court this year in all forms.

Recruiting may be the key to the whole situation. Coach Gillman has five grants to award this spring, unless, of course, someone does give up his grant.

The Pirate staff does have some players they are going after strongly, although they apparently have lost one of those already. That would be Alvis Rodgers of Washington, who committed to Wake Forest earlier this week.

Another top Eastern Carolina player, Rocky Mount's Buck Williams, appears headed for Maryland, although that is not definite.

That would leave Al Tyson of Conley as the best bet for the Pirates in this part of the state. They are also high on a guard in the New York area.

Word on the recruiting success will be coming shortly, we would hope. Gillman currently is in the New York area, seeking to talk top players into joining his program.

The year ahead will be a closely observed one, that is for sure. Gillman may be safe for the coming season, but he will still be under a magnifying glass by his fans and foes, alike.

Red Sox Appear To Have Lineu For Opening Day Already Set

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

As usual, the pitchers are ahead of the hitters at this stage of spring training. That's a tired baseball axiom.

But when you have your starting lineup already fixed for Opening Day by March 9...well, that's news.

Don Zimmer appears to be in that lucky position with the Boston Red Sox.

"That's my opening day lineup, barring any complications," the Red Sox manager said as he put his starters on the field at Winter Haven, Fla., for an exhibition game with the Detroit Tigers Thursday.

The lineup had Jerry Remy playing second base and leading off, followed by shortstop Rick Burleson, designated hitter Jim Rice, left fielder Carl Yastrzemski, catcher Carlton Fisk, center fielder Fred Lynn, first baseman George Scott, right fielder Dwight Evans and third baseman Butch Hobson.

"Wade through that a little while," Zimmer said. "How would you like to be an opposing pitcher?"

In the same context, opposing hitters wouldn't especially enjoy facing the likes of pitchers Luis Tiant and Reggie Cleveland. They were in midseason form Thursday, hurling the Red Sox to a five-inning, rain-shortened 6-0 victory over the Tigers.

California's Frank Tanana also got off to a good start Thursday, pitching three perfect innings as the Angels defeated the Oakland A's 4-1. Ron Jackson and Carney Lansford hit home runs to support strong pitching by the Angels' staff, which allowed but five hits.

Elsewhere, catcher Dave Roberts' line single in the 12th inning scored Paul O'Neill from third base, leading the San Diego Padres to a 4-3 victory over the Seattle Mariners.

Rookie first baseman Wayne Cage singled home a pair of runs in Cleveland's four-run eighth inning, then doubled and scored the winning run in the 10th as the Indians opened their Cactus League exhibition season with a 5-4 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

Jerry Augustine and Mike Caldwell both pitched one-hit, shutout ball in three-inning stints and Jim Wohlford's sixth-inning RBI single broke a 2-2 tie, leading the Milwaukee Brewers to a 4-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs in both teams' opener.

Two games were rained out — the New York Yankees vs. the Texas Rangers at Pompano Beach, Fla., and the Houston Astros against the Atlanta Braves at Palm Beach, Fla.

In off-the-field action, the Pittsburgh Pirates announced that Manager Chuck Tanner has signed a second two-year contract, extending his agreement with the National League team through the 1980 season.

The Philadelphia Phillies announced that catcher Tim McCarver had signed a two-year year contract and also signed rookie shortstop Todd Cruz. The Chicago White Sox extended the contract of center fielder Chet Lemon for four years through the 1982 season.

The Milwaukee Brewers signed pitchers Eduardo Rodriguez and Bill Castro and infielder Ed Romero. The Montreal Expos renewed the contract of pitcher Rick Sawyer. Oakland signed third baseman Wayne Gross to a one-year contract.

Picture Muddled

NEW YORK (AP) — Leon Spinks is commission-officially hurt. Regardless, he won't fight until September. And he won't fight in Bophuthatswana.

That's the heavyweight story ... at least for today.

When the new champion does fight, it looks like his opponent will be Muhammad Ali, but Bob Arum, who has a promotional rope around Spinks, says Ken Norton still is a possible opponent.

Meanwhile, the World Boxing Association has given a green light to a Spinks-Ali rematch even though in its latest rankings it rates Ali No. 3 challenger behind Norton and Jimmy Young. The rival World Boxing Council, which has ruled Spinks must sign by April 7 to fight Norton by July 7 or be stripped of title recognition, ranks Ali No. 2 behind Norton.

The Nevada State Athletic Commission announced Thursday that effective Wednesday night Spinks has been suspended for 90 days because of a rib injury three Las Vegas physicians say he suffered before the Ali fight. At almost the same time, Arum said that because of outside pressure Spinks will not fight in the new African nation of Bophuthatswana.

Johnny Mangiaracina, executive officer of the Nevada commission, a member of the World Boxing Council, said the 90-day suspension was due to a cartilage injury to a rib on Spinks' lower left side.

The injury was scoffed at by supporters of a Spinks-Norton fight.

The 90-day suspension would not affect the WBC edict for a Spinks-Norton fight by July 7.

Rampants Claim Win

Rose High School's golf team came up with its first victory of the season yesterday, romping past Goldsboro.

The Rampants finished the round with a team score of 315, while Goldsboro ended up with a 402 score.

Don White led the Rampant individual scoring with a round of 35-38—73. Mike Moye carded a 76, while Greg House and Thil Jolly each had 83.

Goldsboro's best round was a 93 over the Brook Valley course.

The win evened the Rose record at 1-1 on the year. Kinston visits Rose next Thursday.

Good Second Half Sparks Pacers To 112-105 Win Over Pistons

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — "We had a good second half," Indiana Coach Bobby Leonard said, and it spelled a 112-105 National Basketball Association victory for the Pacers over Detroit Thursday night.

Mike Bantom with 28 points and Ricky Sobers with 24 led the Pacers.

"The game never really seemed to get going," Leonard added. "I think we had better ball movement in the second half."

The Pacers won it at the free throw line, hitting 24 out of 32 attempts. The Pistons got 29 tries but made only 19.

"Down the stretch they made the baskets they had to make to win the game," Detroit Coach Bob Kaufman said.

Trailing 79-77 after three periods, Indiana went ahead for good 83-81 on a jump shot by Sobers with 10:52 left to play. The Pacers opened a 101-93 margin on James Edwards' field goal with 5:02 left.

Bantom scored 20 of his points in the second half. Danny Roundfield added 19 points for the winners and had 19 rebounds.

Forward Ben Poquette paced the Pistons with 18 points and Eric Money had 17.

In the only other NBA game, the Phoenix Suns defeated the Chicago Bulls 112-103.

Paul Westphal triggered the Suns' victory over Chicago with 34 points as three Bulls' players, Mickey Johnson, Artis Gilmore and Cazzie Russell, fouled out.

Phoenix opened a 36-32 lead and extended it to 14 points three times before settling for a 58-49 halftime edge.

Chicago closed the deficit to six points with two minutes to go, but Phoenix pulled away, mostly with foul shots.

Johnson, who fouled out with 3:27 to go, was angered at the officials. He drew technical fouls and had to be escorted out of the arena by an assistant coach and trainer.

Wilber Holland led the Chicago scoring with 23 points while Walter Davis added 23 for Phoenix.

Coach John MacLeod of Phoenix said, "I thought we played well the first 2½ quarters but slacked off the last 16 minutes. It's difficult to keep a team like Chicago down."

Ed Badger, the Chicago coach, said, "I don't think we can lose three men and win. It's the first time three men have fouled out."

Look For Fast Field Sunday

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP) — Barring a siege of bad weather, Sunday's Late Model Sportsman half of the $121,790 Dogwood 500 Classic doubleheader at Martinsville Speedway could be the fastest ever.

Veteran Sonny Hutchins of Richmond, Va., driving a Chevrolet Nova, shattered the .572-mile track's qualifying record for Late Model Sportsman cars with a speed of 91.185 miles per hour Thursday as the first 20 spots were filled for Sunday's race.

Modified drivers were scheduled to take their crack at the track today with the first 20 spots in the other half of Sunday's race due to be decided.

Another 20 drivers will qualify Saturday for each race in six 25-lap races.

But Hutchins wasn't the only driver to show some speed Thursday in the Late Model Sportsman qualifying.

The next five drivers bettered the old track qualifying record of 89.499 mph set by L.D. Ottinger of Newport, Tenn., two years ago and the first 11 qualifiers were under the Dogwood 500 qualifying mark of 88.914 mph set last spring by Harry Gant of Taylorsville, N.C.

Miami Not Thrilled Over Pairings

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

For as long as anyone can remember at Oxford, Ohio, it's been the same, old story for the Miami basketball team: a heavyweight year, then a first-round knockout in the NCAA playoffs.

The Redskins can thank third-ranked Marquette for most of that post-season frustration, so you can understand why Miami coach Darrell Hedric isn't exactly thrilled about meeting the Warriors again in one of the NCAA's opening Midwest Regional games Saturday.

In the last four years, the Redskins have had a record of 75-29, winning one Mid-American title outright, sharing another and losing out on a third on the last game of the season. It's been fun while it's lasted — but it hasn't lasted longer than the first round of the NCAAs.

Mid-American champions, incidentally, have a sorrowful history against Marquette. The defending national champions have ousted five of the last seven conference representatives to the NCAA playoffs.

The Marquette-Miami meeting is one of two Mideast games at Indianapolis. In the other first-round contest there, Providence faces Big Ten champion Michigan State.

Another Mideast doubleheader, meanwhile, will take place the same day at Knoxville, Tenn., with Kentucky of the Southeastern Conference playing Florida State and Western Kentucky of the Ohio Valley Conference taking on Syracuse.

The West Regionals will also be held Saturday as 32 basketball teams begin their quest this weekend for the NCAA title, the Holy Grail of college basketball. The finals will be held in St. Louis on March 25 and 27.

At Eugene, Ore., Pacific-8 champion UCLA plays Kansas of the Big Eight and Weber State of the Big Sky takes on Southwest Conference power Arkansas in one West Regional doubleheader. In the other one at Tempe, Ariz., San Francisco of the West Coast Athletic Conference meets North Carolina of the Atlantic Coast Conference and Western Athletic Conference winner New Mexico plays Fullerton State of the Pacific Coast Athletic Association.

The first round of the East and Midwest regionals will be played on Sunday.

In one East doubleheader at Charlotte, N.C., Atlantic Coast Conference champion Duke plays Rhode Island and Furman of the Southern Conference challenges Indiana of the Big 10. In the other at Philadelphia, it's Ivy League champion Penn vs. St. Bonaventure and Villanova of the Eastern Eight against La Salle of the East Coast Conference.

At Wichita, Kan., a first-round Midwest doubleheader features Missouri of the Big Eight against Utah of the Western Athletic Conference and DePaul against Missouri Valley Conference winner Creighton. At Tulsa, Okla., Southwest Conference champion Houston tackles Notre Dame and Louisville of the Metro Conference takes on St. John's.

Meanwhile, the National Invitation Tournament continued first-round play at regional outposts Thursday night with Rutgers edging Army 72-70 and No. 19 Detroit stopping Virginia Commonwealth 94-86.

Hollis Copeland hit two foul shots with six seconds remaining, leading Rutgers over Army at the Rutgers Athletic Center. Copeland, who had 18 points in the game, went to the foul line with Rutgers leading 70-68. Army had scored six straight points in the preceding 36 seconds, cutting into a 70-62 deficit. But Copeland's success on the 1-1 opportunity negated a last-second Army basket.

James Bailey led Rutgers in scoring with 20 points, while Rodney Duncan added 12. Bailey also had 11 rebounds.

Terry Tyler and substitute Turono Anderson had hot shooting streaks early in the second half to help Detroit beat Virginia Commonwealth. Detroit led 50-40 at halftime, then Anderson and Tyler went to work, scoring 20 of the Titans' first 24 points of the second half as Detroit's lead climbed to 74-56 after 7½ minutes.

Tyler, who was blocking shots all night and rebounding consistently, led the Titans with 19 points. Terry Duerod followed with 18 — 17 in the first half. John Long had 16 and Anderson had 14.

The victory sent Detroit into the NIT's second round against the winner of tonight's South Carolina-North Carolina State game. Rutgers will play the winner of the Indiana State-Illinois State contest.

In other first-round games tonight, Temple meets Texas and Fairfield plays Dayton.

East Carolina Netters, Although Young, Could Be The Best Ever

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina University's tennis team is a young one this year, but Coach Randy Randolph feels that it may have more promise than any team the Pirates have fielded in a long time.

"I'll have to admit that I haven't been pleased with the way things have gone so far," Randolph said earlier this week. "It's a series of things: the lack of practice time due to the weather; then we lost a tough match to Salisbury State that we shouldn't have lost."

Randolph blamed the weather on that defeat. "Salisbury has indoor courts, and they've been able to get in more practice than we have. It was a close match, and I really thought that we should have won." Salisbury took a 5-4 win in the match, leaving the Pirates with a 2-2 record going into a scheduled match with High Point yesterday.

"We played with intensity in the match, and we didn't give up. We had it and we let it slip away. I guess it was my most disappointing moment in my two years as coach here," Randolph said.

Randolph has added an East Carolina Invitational at the end of the season which he hopes will somewhat make up for the lack of a conference tournament. "It'll give us something to shoot for." He does not think that the team will be a factor in the District NCAA events, however, mainly due to the youth of the team.

"But I do think we can be one of the better teams in this region, a tough region, in a year or so, when our freshmen and sophomores get a little more experience."

Randolph terms the Pirates as having the best ability and personnel in a number of years at East Carolina. "We recruited some of the best people in Virginia, Pennsylvania and New York this past year. On paper, we look great, but they have to play to their potential, and that may be in the future."

There are only two seniors on the team, number two singles player Tom Durfee and number six Randy Bailey. There are no juniors.

"We really have a chance to build for the future," Randolph said. "We had a good recruiting year, and we're playing good, still competition. We just need experience, because it's not going to come overnight."

Randolph feels that he has one potential All-America player in his current number one singles man, Curtis Tedesco, who already has claimed a victory over a strong Wake Forest man. He's just a freshman.

The other three singles players are Maury Werness, a freshman, at number three; Henry Hostetler, a a sophomore at number four, and Dave Marino, a freshman, at number five. Hostetler is rated as the most consistant player on the team. He led the team in record last year.

Tedesco and Durfee join for the number one doubles, with Werness and Marino at number two. Bailey and Kenny Love, a sophomore, form the number three doubles unit.

Others on the team include freshmen Buddy Campbell and Wes Singleton, and sophomore Mark Gray.

"Our top six or seven will remain about the same all year," Randolph said.

"I'm not much at making predictions. I just hope we do the best we can. With the kind of team we have, plus the inexperience, it's hard to say how we'll do. But we could be outstanding if the young players come through."

TV's Grizzly Adams A Far Cry From The Original Character

PETER H. KING
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — On the tube, bearded Grizzly Adams is a mellow mountain man who doesn't eat meat or wear animal skins. His best friend is a gentle bear named Ben.

Most of the dialogue on NBC's popular series, "The Life and Times of Grizzly Adams," consists of pleasant chats between Adams and the critters. They appear to communicate quite successfully.

So much for television's Grizzly Adams.

A century ago, the real life and times of James Capen "Grizzly" Adams sizzled with grisly death struggles with bears, wolves and other beasts. And Adams picked most of the fights.

"That's true," says Charles E. Sellier Jr., creator and producer of the television series and its pilot movie. "In doing my research, I found that the original Adams probably hated animals."

Take it from ol' Griz himself. Here's a typical passage from his autobiography, "The Adventures of James Capen Adams," which was compiled by San Francisco newspaperman Theodore Hittel in 1860 after a series of interviews with the famous mountain man:

"The bear, as the ball slapped loudly in the fat of her breast, staggered and fell backwards, and began pawing and biting the ground..."

After firing five more shots into the beast and stabbing her, he witnessed the following scene.

"Again she endeavored to rise, but was so choked with blood that she could not. I drew my knife across her throat, and after a few convulsive struggles she expired."

Television's Grizzly Adams would rather flee his beloved woods for New York's Hell's Kitchen than commit such a dastardly deed. The real Grizzly gloried in his kill.

Who is this vicious fiend and why did they make such a nice television show about him?

According to biographer Richard H. Dillon, Grizzly Adams was born in Medway, Mass., in 1812. He trained as a shoemaker, but eventually tired of the sedate life and headed west.

In California's mountain gold country, Adams became a hunter of the animal which soon would give him a nickname.

The cover of Dillon's "The Legend of Grizzly Adams" growls: "His encounters with his quarry were many and varied, not always successful, often near disastrous — but every time Grizzly emerged, torn and bruised perhaps, but intrepid still, uncowed, with ever a sarcastic word in his mouth for the natural fright of his companions."

Adams' fame gained full stride as he began to catch, rear and train a string of grizzly cubs — after mangling their mothers, of course.

Grizzly brought his bears here in 1857 and became an instant hit, both with the act and the wild yarns which sprang freely from a rather large credibility gap.

Three years later Adams took his California menagerie to New York where he caught the eye of circus king P. T. Barnum. They became partners. On the show's opening day, Adams, dressed in his standard garb of skins and furs, paraded his eight or nine growling bears down Broadway. Reviews were favorable.

On Oct. 25, 1860, at age 48, Adams died. Cause of death: A scalp wound first opened by an angry bear and frequently aggravated by playful pats from his trained grizzlies.

Sellier admits the real Adams and his Adams — portrayed by actor Dan Haggerty, himself a onetime animal trainer — have some philosophic differences about humanity toward animals.

He says the major similarity is that both Adams have a pet grizzly named Ben which was raised from a cub.

"The character I created is much more benevolent, sort of in love with animals and life," says Sellier, president of Sunn Classic Pictures.

"And although I used the name Grizzly Adams," he adds, "I just didn't feel audiences were interested in a guy who walks around the wilderness beating things up."

Today's Cryptoquip clue: P equals A

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Bridge in Australia has been strengthened by an influx of players from Europe. Of the six players who made up the 1977 Australian world championship team, three were immigrants. Study the sterling defense of one of them—John Lester, formerly of England.

Four spades was a normal contract for North-South to reach in one manner or another. Note that North's hand does not qualify for a reverse rebid of two diamonds because of the possibility of a misfit—South's response had been in North's short suit.

West led the queen of diamonds and declarer made the technically correct play of ducking one round. On the diamond continuation declarer rose with dummy's ace, felling Lester's king. He crossed to his hand with the ace of clubs and led a heart, which Lester won with the ace. The crux of the hand had been reached. Only one return defeats the contract—can you spot it?

Lester found the killing return—he shifted to the two of spades! Declarer was faced with an insoluble problem. If he rose with the ace of spades, he would have to lose two trump tricks in addition to the two red-suit tricks he had already lost. If he played low, West would win the queen and be able to cash another diamond trick to defeat the hand.

Observe that shifting to the king of trumps would not have defeated the contract. Declarer can win the ace, cross to a high heart in dummy and take a diamond discard on either a heart or a club. His only remaining loser would be a trump. The same applies to any other defense.

Lester's sparkling defense is strong indication of why he was a member of Australia's international team.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, MARCH 11, 1978

Your Daily HOROSCOPE from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Avoid hasty action whereby arguments, trouble could follow. Later, you are able to put into effect whatever new course of action appeals to you. Your mind is working overtime and you can make interesting new decisions.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Be objective and handle whatever comes up intelligently. Later take time for social fun with congenials. Take no chances with your health.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You have to be prepared if you are to accomplish what you want now. Later, go after good advice from a real expert. Come to a better understanding with loved ones.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You may find it difficult to gain your aims early but later all works out as you wish. Being very social is your best bet for getting ahead now. Don't take risks where reputation is concerned.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Take care of a pending affair now and later get into some civic work that is just your cup of tea. Handle credit accurately and your affairs work out much better.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Settle a matter with one whose background is different from your own. Socialize and make new acquaintances.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Be conscientious in keeping promises you have made to others, and clear the slate for bigger things ahead. Save recreation with congenials for later.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get together with partners and relieve tensions now existing between you. Reconcile with one who has been acting rather strangely.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Instead of going off on a tangent, get busy at all the work that faces you and accomplish a good deal. Take treatments you need to improved health.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Do those necessary chores early and then you can have a fine time with kin, friends. Look into a project that interests you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Try not to argue with those at home and spoil friendly relations. Look into a new project that interests you and could be profitable.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You are thinking very clearly now and can plan the future more intelligently. Talk over with partners how best to expand it. Relax and be with loved ones.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Instead of investing heavily now, get busy and improve present financial structure. Compliment a bigwig you know and gain support you need, good advice also.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she seems to be born in divine discontent and must be taught early not to fight for every little thing asked for but to ask politely for it and then this becomes a successful life. The mind is good and many an inventive idea is in it.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Selecting Of Students Begun For Project CARE

INITIAL FUNDING . . .for Project CARE, now being readied for a dozen students in the 12-14-year old age group, is being provided by Community-Based Alternatives funds administered by the N.C. Dept. Of Human Resources. Present at the delivery of the initial check for $9,300 are (left to right) County Manager Reginald Gray, Mrs. Ann Harrison of the Greenville City Schools, and Alton Gardner, Pitt County Commission chairman. Mark Livesay (right) presents the check. (Reflector Photo By Tommy Forrest).

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

A dozen students between the ages of 12 and 14 are now in the process of being selected as the first contingent of children to be enrolled in Project CARE.

"Records of a number of students are being studied in both the county and city schools," Mrs. Ann Harrison, Director of Special Programs in the Greenville City Schools stated. "The 12 will be chosen soon and will be the first group to be enrolled in the project."

CARE (Changing Attitudes through Recreational Education) is an alternative school designed to help youngsters in the 12 to 14 age group who have a record of truancy and behavior problems in regular school classes.

The project is being financed by 90 per cent CBA (Community-based Alternatives) funds administered by the Dept. of Human Resources, and ten per cent local funds. For this initial program, CBA is providing $12,818.14 and $1,218.81 is coming from local funds, for a total of $14,099.95.

On Wednesday, Mack Livesay of the N. C. Dept. of Human Resources presented a check for $9,300 of the total amount to Mrs. Harrison, County Manager Reginald Gray and County Commission Chairman Alton Gardner.

"The van to be used in Project CARE has already been ordered and is expected soon," Mrs. Harrison commented. She also revealed that Miss Libby Gurley, a recreational-therapist and graduate of N. C. State University, has been employed as the first instructor in the program. "She will be teaching three days a week for this initial program," Mrs. Harrison said. "We hope and expect to expand this to full time next year with an additional site added."

Agnes Fullilove Community School is the site of the program which Mrs. Harrison says "should get underway the last week in March, right after the Easter holidays."

The official goal of the program is described as one "To improve the interpersonal skills, behaviors, and attitudes of risk youth (ages 12-14) students through the development and utilization of a therapeutic recreational educational program."

The opportunity to meet one day each week outside the regular classroom is contingent on the student having a record of regular attendance and good behavior for the previous week.

Even though the weekly one-day session for each student is held outside the regular classroom, activities on that day will include both academic and special interest assignments that will focus on the development of individual competencies and skills.

Among activities that will be considered as therapeutic help to these students are a number of outdoor and creative activities such as field trips, cooking, personal grooming, physical fitness, art, dance, drama, music, and gardening.

At this stage, the recreational therapist and qualified volunteers who may be assisting will study all possibilities in an effort to provide the best personal program for each individual student.

To determine the most needy dozen to be enrolled in the first phase of Project CARE, an Admission Committee to study student records and select the 12 will be composed of Mrs. Harrison as the Program Director, the two directors of Pupil Personnel Services— from both the Pitt County and Greenville City Schools, the Director of Children's Services of the Pitt County Mental Health Department, the Supervisor of Children's Services of the Department of Social Services, and the Intake Officer from the Juvenile Court Counselors.

"Until now," Mrs. Harrison noted, "our special help program in the Extended Day School has been directed to older students with special problems. This is our first opportunity to try to reach a younger age level student, and we are hopeful it will work well and that next year we will be able to expand it."

Somalia Quits Ogaden Conflict

By BRIAN JEFFRIES
Associated Press Writer

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — The Ethiopian government is expected to pour reinforcements and arms into the rebellious northern province of Eritrea to end the 16-year-old war there following Somalia's announcement that it is withdrawing its forces from the rebellion in eastern Ethiopia.

A spokesman in Beirut for one of the two Eritrean rebel factions reported Ethiopian troops already have launched a two-pronged offensive in Eritrea that has broken a two-month-long siege of the Red Sea port of Massawa by the Eritream People's Liberation Front.

The spokesman, Omar Alim of the rival Eritrean Liberation Front, said the Ethiopians were battling to dislodge his organization's guerrillas from the outskirts of Asmara, the Eritrean capital, "but we are rallying back."

Alim said there had been daily air attacks on rebel forces besieging the two cities. He reported about 3,000 EPLF guerrillas were killed in Massawa, bringing that rebel faction's attempt to capture the port to a "disastrous end."

Ethiopia's war machine is well oiled and humming with $1 billion in Soviet military aid, Russian advisers and an estimated 10,000 Cuban troops. Somalia's announcement Thursday signaling the end of the fighting in the eastern Ogaden Desert means the Addis Ababa government can unleash them now for the more important battle for Eritrea, the former Italian colony Emperor Haile Selassie annexed in 1962 to give Ethiopia access to the Red Sea.

The EPLF, which along with the ELF claims to have captured 90 percent of the province, said last week that 1,000 Cubans already have joined Ethiopian forces in Asmara and there is evidence Cuban soldiers also are in Massawa.

To the south of Asmara, Ethiopian troops also control the port of Assab, which has the nation's only refinery and is a major point of entry for Soviet weapons and Cuban troops bound either for the war fronts or for Addis Ababa, the capital 550 miles to the southwest.

Up to now, the Assab-Addis Ababa highway has been plagued by the guerrillas, whose total strength is estimated at 40,000 men. Ethiopian forces in the province have been estimated at 25,000 regulars and 25,000 hastily trained militiamen.

The end of the Ogaden War was signalled Thursday when the Somalia government announced in Mogadishu that at the urging of the "world community" it was withdrawing its troops from the region where they had been helping ethnic Somali tribesmen in their eight-month-old war to take their semi-desert homeland away from Ethiopia and annex it to Somalia.

In Washington, President Carter welcomed the announcement, adding: "As soon as Somali forces have withdrawn completely and as soon as Ethiopian forces have re-established control over their own territory, withdrawal of Soviet and Cuban combat presence should begin."

Two Rescued After 24 Hours In Trapped Sub

LERWICK, Shetland Islands (AP) - Two oil workers were rescued unharmed from the icy depths of the North Sea today after being trapped 355 feet down for nearly 24 hours in a mini-submarine.

The sub, the PC9, was stranded on the sea floor Thursday by a half-inch wire cable that fouled its propeller while its two crewmen were working on an oil wellhead in a British Petroleum Co. field 80 miles west of the Shetland Islands.

It was cut free this morning by divers taken down by another mini-sub. The PC9 maneuvered to the surface under its own power and was hoisted aboard its mother ship, its owner, the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Co., reported.

The P. and O. at first identified the two trapped men only as an Englishman and a Scotsman. Today it said they were James Jones and his copilot Bill Cornwall, two experienced sub men in their early 30s.

Two men in a diving bell tried to free the propeller before dawn today but failed, and the bell was hauled back up. Then a mini-sub from another company, the Intersub III, was sent down with two divers who did the job.

A P. and O. spokesman said Jones and Cornwall had not been in danger and took their plight "rather philosphically."

"They have enough air and food for seven or eight days," he reported Thursday night. "They are making regular radio checks with their mother ship on the surface every half-hour. They've shut down all non-essential equipment to conserve power."

Oil industry sources had predicted little difficulty freeing the men if the weather stayed calm. But rising winds were forecast, with a chance of gales by Saturday.

Since the North Sea oil boom began a decade ago, 36 divers have died in the North Sea and there has been one mini-sub mishap.

The PC9 is 26 feet long and seven feet wide and was built by Perry Oceanographics Inc. of Riviera Beach, Fla. It can carry four persons and can dive to 1,350 feet.

Paralysis May Cripple Flynt

ATLANTA (AP) — Hustler magazine owner Larry Flynt has less than a 50 percent chance of ever walking again, say doctors who have operated on him.

"There are no reflexes in the lower extremities and there is a loss of sensation from his mid-thighs down," Dr. George Tindall, Emory University Hospital's chief neurosurgeon, said Thursday after a 2½-hour operation to remove a bullet from Flynt's lower back.

It will take six months to a year to know the full extent of the damage, Tindall said.

Flynt, 34, and one of his attorneys, Gene Reeves Jr., 47, were shot Monday outside the Gwinnett County courthouse, where Flynt was being tried on obscenity charges.

Guards stood at the operating room doors where Flynt underwent his third operation since the shooting. His wife, Althea, was with him in the recovery room.

Tindall said he removed bullet fragments and bone chips from Flynt's spinal canal at the third lumbar vertebra during the operation. He said severe damage occurred to nerves near the end of the spinal column. Some of the nerves were broken or damaged.

Reeves, who suffered stomach and liver injuries, remained in satisfactory condition in the intensive care unit of Button Gwinnett Hospital in Lawrenceville.

Seek Extend Rural Road

WINTERVILLE — The Winterville Town Board this week authorized Mayor Walter Dail to request the State Highway Commission to extend S.R. 1714 approximately 400 feet for the purpose of lessening heavy traffic.

The extension would be inside the Winterville city limits. Local officials say that the improvements are needed for industry located in this area.

The Board also endorsed the Pitt County plan for waste disposal. The plan involves a countywide tax increase to be set by the Commissioners and the installation of seven 40-cubic yard trash containers. The plan is to be implemented July 1, 1978.

In other business, the Board approved the Ragland Acres subdivision, Section III plat, which was approved earlier this week by the Planning and Zoning Board.

Mayor Dail reported that the proposed new maintenance building would be reduced to a 16-foot high structure. Negotiations are still in progress with Jackson Builders.

The Board also accepted the resignation of Police Officer Clarence Junior Warren.

New York City's transit rail system has a total of 230 route miles, and about 71 of those miles are elevated.

One of the 35 children aboard the bus was reportedly a bit shaken up, but not taken to the hospital. The driver of the vehicle, Deborah Jean Mills of Rt. 2, Greenville, has been charged with failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident. Dale Lewis Bailey of Rt. 3, Greenville, was driver of the school bus. (Reflector Photo By Tommy Forrest)

Our restaurants are a little cooler, but our smiles are as warm as ever.
We don't have to tell you about the current energy shortage. But we did want to tell you what we're doing to help.
We've turned our thermostats down to 60°, so it'll be a little cooler in the restaurant.
We've turned down the lights in the dining area, and in the signs outside, so it'll be a little darker, too. (Some restaurants call that intimate dining.)
And we're cooking with less equipment, so you may have to wait a bit for your food.
Even though McDonald's® is cooler inside, your welcome will be just as warm, and your food just as hot as ever. It'll be a cold day before we cut back on that.
We do it all for you.
