Israeli Drive On PLO Strongholds

By GEORGE A. KRIMSKY
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Thousands of Israeli troops overran Palestinian guerrilla bases across southern Lebanon today and Israeli warplanes fired rockets at Palestinian refugee camps in and around this capital, witnesses reported.

Ten residents of one camp were killed, according to early reports.

The aim of the assault was to clear a guerrilla-free strip along Israel's northern border and deter repetitions of the terrorist raid last weekend in which 34 Israelis died. It was believed to be the biggest Israeli attack ever, and the Palestinians said 25,000 Israeli soldiers were involved.

Witness reports from southern Lebanon, 60 miles from Beirut, indicated Israeli tanks and troops appeared to be deploying in a pincer movement — one prong moving north along the Mediterranean coast and the other west to the sea — to surround the guerrillas in the southeasternmost border area.

Witnesses said Israeli jets swooped down in pairs from cloud-filled skies and rocketed the Sabra camp, on Beirut's south edge, home for some 20,000 refugees and base of Yasser Arafat's military command.

"I saw eight sweeps by the planes, each time firing four rockets. It is difficult to see what was hit," said Associated Press photographer Farouk Nassar, who watched from his eighth-story apartment window. Others said the attack was centered between Sabra and Bourg Barajneh, another refugee camp. Right-wing Christian radio reported that Beirut International Airport, one mile south of the Sabra camp, was shut down.

Also reported hit was the coastal shantytown of Ozai near the airport, where 10 refugees were said to have been killed.

Witnesses said anti-aircraft batteries from Sabra fired at the marauding planes but hit none. The Israeli military in Tel Aviv said its jets drew fire from Syrian peacekeeping forces — they have been in Lebanon since putting a halt to the civil war in 1976 — but refrained from attacking the Syrian anti-aircraft positions.

Syria's state radio called for the five permanent members of the U.N. Security Council—the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain, France and China—to "intervene immediately" to stop the Israeli assault. The Syrian government in Damascus warned foreign ambassadors that it would not stand idly by, but did not indicate participation in the fighting.

Israeli Defense Minister Ezer Weizman said he hoped Syria would not intervene. Weizman and Prime Minister Menachem Begin later visited Israeli troops inside Lebanon, NBC News reported from Tel Aviv.

The Israeli military also said its jets attacked a guerrilla base at the Mediterranean coastal town of Damur, 10 miles south of Beirut, from which terrorists sailed to Israel to carry out Saturday's massacre on the Tel Aviv-Haifa coast highway. Beirut radio said the warplanes struck at refugee-packed Damur for 40 minutes.

Witnesses also said Israeli missile boats teamed up with long-range artillery in murderous barrages that set off several fires in two Palestinian camps at the port city of Tyre, 12 miles north of the Israeli frontier.

They said ambulances with wailing sirens and guerrilla-driven Land-Rovers sped out of the smoking camps with full loads of victim and that guerrillas commandeered taxis to transport victims to hospitals in Sidon, 25 miles north of Tyre.

Health Minister Ibrahim Sheito ordered hospitals throughout the country to stay open around the clock because of the casualties and appealed for nationwide blood donations.

Lebanon's Moslem premier, Salim el Hoss, called the invasion "unjustified aggression" and appealed for international intervention to bring it to a quick end. But there was no immediate comment from the country's Christian president, Elias Sarkis.

Reliable observers in southern Lebanon said the Israelis overran at least four key Palestinian bases, gaining control of Naqoura and the inland towns of Bent Jbeil, Maroun al Ras, Khiam and Ebl as Saqi.

The Israeli command in Tel Aviv said its troops crossed the border at six points, from Naqoura on the Mediterranean to Alhiam near the Lebanon Mountains. The command said the ground forces were about five miles into Lebanon and the air force struck deeper.

Defense Minister Ezer

Weizman and Lt. Gen. Mordechai Gur said most of the guerrilla strongholds attacked were overrun and scores of terrorists were killed. They reported Israel also suffered casualties but said it was not soon to say how many.

Tentative New Coal Terms Await Fate

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) —

With the coal strike now 100 days old, leaders of the United Mine Workers are hoping their unpredictable bargaining council and rebellious members will approve a new tentative contract containing industry concessions in two key areas.

The 39-member council, which torpedoed a proposed agreement a month ago, was arriving in Washington today to vote on the settlement reached Tuesday by negotiators for the UMW and soft coal industry.

The new settlement includes concessions by both sides, but the industry appeared to have given up more — particularly in agreements on health care and wildcat strikes, two areas of chief concern to the rank-and-file.

If it passes the bargaining council, the agreement can be put to a vote by the 160,000 miners next week and bring to an end a bitter strike that the Carter administration has been unable to curb.

The miners overwhelmingly rejected a previous proposal on March 5 and have been ignoring a federal judge's back-to-work order issued under the Taft-Hartley Act.

UMW President Arnold Miller, who summoned the bargaining council to vote on the agreement, said, "I think we've got a good agreement," but he refused to predict how miners would vote.

Initial reaction from the coalfields varied.

"If this is an improvement over the last one, I would have to vote for it," said Floyd Lamb, a bargaining council member from Ohio. "I would take it for granted that the bargaining council certainly would vote for it since we voted for a lesser contract."

The council rejected the first negotiated settlement on Feb. 12, but approved the one that was later rejected by the rank-and-file.

"I think it stands a 90 percent chance around here from what I heard," said Russell Riffle Jr., an official of Local 1836 in McClellandtown, Pa.

But the attorney for District 28 in southwest Virginia said initial reaction there was very negative. "We hope the bargaining council won't waste time sending it down to the membership," said Jerry Talton.

White House press secretary Jody Powell said President Carter was "pleased and encouraged" when he learned of the agreement. "The welfare of our country requires a dependable supply of coal," Carter said. "And a negotiated national contract is the best way to ensure that supply."

Powell said 151 mines that were shut down last week are now back in production, including 11 union mines.

While the other union mines remained idle Tuesday, the Justice Department continued its policy of non-confrontation in enforcing the temporary back-to-work order that took full effect on Monday.

Justice Department spokesman Mark Sheehan said the administration would exercise restraint so long as the union and coal operators were moving toward a final settlement of the dispute.

COUNTY BUILDING INSPECTOR?

Isn't it true that, according to North Carolina law, Pitt County soon will have to provide a building inspector? E. J.

According to Pitt County Manager Reginald Gray, a building inspector for Pitt County will be mandatory, according to a law enacted by the 1977 General Assembly, in July, 1981.

Counties which had more than 75,000 population as of the 1970 census have to provide building inspectors by July, 1979, he said. Pitt has about 79,000 residents now, he said, but at the time of the 1970 census has fewer than 75,000 people.

He said he is not in a position to say whether the County Commissioners will act to provide a building inspector and enforce state codes before it is required by law. There is an electrical inspector now, John Payne, whose office is located at 119 S. Cotanche Street, and sanitation codes are enforced by the Environmental Health Division of the Pitt County Community Health Department.

Fire Blamed In High Toll

By RICHARD BOUDREAU
Associated Press Writer

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Fifty-five convicts at Argentina's largest prison died of burns or smoke inhalation and about 70 were hospitalized after rioting inmates set fire to their bedding and furniture, police said today.

Police denied that any prisoners at the crowded Villa Devoto prison 10 miles north of the city's center were killed when security forces crushed an inmate revolt Tuesday with tear-gas grenades and gunfire.

No motive for the riot was given, but one official theorized it could have been a protest against overcrowding or an attempt to cause confusion for an escape attempt. The penitentiary was built for 2,500 prisoners but reportedly holds more than 4,000.

The death toll in the fire was this country's worst prison tragedy and among the worst on record, surpassing the death toll of 43 in a riot and police charge at New York's Attica Prison in 1971.

Forty-four inmates perished in the smoke and flames before firemen could break down the barricaded door of cellblock No. 7 that housed 161 men, a police spokesman reported. The others died later in hospitals, the official said. No guards or policemen were injured.

The uprising began Tuesday morning, police said, when 30 guards entered cellblock No. 7 for a routine morning inspection and were attacked by 50 to 60 prisoners waiting in the entrance hallway. Prison officials said the inmates tried to seize some of the guards as hostages but the security men managed to escape.

Residents living near the high-walled penitentiary reported hearing gunfire and explosions during the three-hour riot. The police spokesman said security forces standing outside the prison fired into the windows of the third-story cell to "intimidate" the rioters and claimed none of the inmates were hit by police bullets.

Housing And Transportation Take Lion's Share Of Dollar

By MICHAEL DOAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) —

Americans are spending a smaller part of their paychecks for food and clothing but a bigger piece for housing and transportation, the government says.

As wages and prices have climbed substantially since 1960, the average worker substantially has changed the way he divides up his earnings, a Labor Department report shows.

The department discovered the changed spending habits while constructing a new Consumer Price Index, which went into use last month. The index is designed to measure changes in the prices Americans pay for a wide range of goods.

When the old price index was first used in 1960, the average hourly worker spent 26 percent of his income in groceries and restaurants. In 1977, he spent only 20 percent. Nine percent went for clothing in 1960, but just 6 percent was spent for the same purpose last year.

Housing consumed about 35 percent of take-home pay in 1960 while eating up about 41 percent last year. Higher prices for houses, financing, rent, fuel and repairs account for most of the increase.

Transportation costs — gasoline, cars and bus rides — rose from 13 percent to 20 percent of spendable income during the 17-year period. The average worker's buying power now is about 10 percent above the 1960 level. That's 4 percent below 1972 when spendable income was 14 percent greater than in 1960.

A department economist explained that workers tend to spend a smaller percentage of their disposable income on food and clothing as income increases.

"Historically, as incomes go up, the proportion spent on basic necessities, such as food, has gone down. You can only eat so much food," said Ken Dalton who heads the Consumer Price Index division.

With more money to spend outside the grocery store, workers buy second cars and longer vacation trips, he said.

In addition, he said, families are smaller now than 17 years ago which might account for the smaller percentage of paychecks going to the butcher and the tailor.

But speculation aside, some economists say simply that consumers are spending more for housing and transportation because the cost of those items has grown more rapidly than the cost of food and clothing.

Meanwhile, trips to the doctor and hospital took less of total income, falling from about 7 percent to 4 percent in the 1960-1977 comparison. Employers have assumed more of the cost of health insurance.

Average Wage-Earner Spending:
	1960	1977
Housing	$ .355	$ .407
Food & Drink	.262	.205
Transportation	.133	.202
Apparel	.090	.058
Medical care	.069	-.045
Entertainment	.037	-.039
Others	.054	-.044

Store Is Held Up By Trio

Three men, one armed with a sawed-off shotgun, entered the Fast Fare store at 425 Hooker Road just after midnight and forced the attendant to empty the cash register and a small safe, Chief Glenn Cannon said today.

Cannon quoted the attendant as saying one of the robbers had a toboggan pulled over his face, while the other two wore stocking masks.

The chief noted that the intruders forced the attendant behind the counter and made him open the cash register and safe.

The amount of money taken had not been determined by 9 a.m., according to the chief, who noted that a roll of pennies and $1.75 dropped by the fleeing men were recovered.

Dogs from the Maury Prison unit in Greene County tracked the three men, but lost the trail in a near-by housing project.

Cannon said the robbery occurred between 12:15 and 12:18 a.m.

Straight-faced Mr. Ford replied:

"I think he's made a couple of double bogeys. And I don't recall any birdies."

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration plans to ask Congress this week to approve massive changes in the nation's prescription drug laws that are sure to encounter strong pharmaceutical industry opposition.

The legislation, the most comprehensive rewriting of the nation's prescription laws since the Food and Drug Administration was created in 1906, is designed to lift the lid of secrecy from FDA operations and make it easier to get new drugs on the market and pull problem ones off druggists' shelves.

Sources who have seen the most recent draft of the bill, still under review by the White House Office of Management and Budget, say the proposal would:

- Allow provisional approval of some new substances that otherwise might be held up by months or years of research. Such approval could be withdrawn quickly if risks were discovered, another lengthy process under current regulations.
- Give the FDA the power to limit distribution of new drugs to hospitals or possibly to patients with prescriptions from certain medical specialists.

The Food and Drug Act was enacted in 1906 to protect the public from adulterated products. Major amendments to the drug section of the law were added in 1938 to require that drugs be safe and in 1962 to require that they be proved effective.

Trip Has Far-Reaching Effect

PERKINS, Okla. (AP) — When Patsy Hardin Sheales went to Australia as a teen-age delegate to a youth group meeting, she had no idea she would some day be living there.

Now, thanks to an unusual series of events, she's gone from this rural area of about 1,000 persons to Canberra, Australia, a city with more than 210,000 population.

"It all started when I was a 4-H Teen Caravan delegate to Australia in 1972," she explained on a recent visit to her home town. "I met Terry Sheales during the annual convention of the Rural Youth Organization — equivalent to the 4-H in the United States."

As top Rural Youth agriculturalist that year, he had won a trip around the world and, jokingly, Patsy said, "You'll have to come to Oklahoma," she recalled.

He took her at her word and in 1973 Terry visited her here. They kept up a correspondence and in 1974 she went back to Australia during her summer break from Oklahoma State University, Stillwater, where she was a junior in home economics education.

"I decided I'd like to go back again if I could get a job," she related, "and I applied for the American-Australian Teachers Exchange and was accepted. But, if you take that you don't know where you will go. You might go way out in the arid, inland region or any place."

After she returned to OSU, she received from Terry a newspaper clipping about a job teaching Home Science in a private Catholic school for girls. Patsy wrote for an application but, before she even got it, a telegram from the principal of Braddon High informed her that the job was hers.

"When I was in Australia previously I happened to get to know a teacher who taught at Braddon," Patsy explained. "When she saw my letter asking for an application she said, 'I know her,' and the principal said, 'We'll hire her.' So that's how I got the job."

After she finished student teaching, she went to Canberra in January 1975 to teach. Then, 18 months later, she and Terry returned to Perkins to be married. Her husband is an agricultural economist for the Australian government.

Already the couple have bought a "nice, big, brick, four-bedroom house," reports Patsy, 25. "It's more common in Australia to save and get a home right off — sooner than here. We bought ours without carpeting and have added it gradually."

"We take a lot for granted in the United States," she said. "So many things we have here are just getting to Australia, such as color TV and new gadgets. I had to get used to wearing woolen underwear because people there never do keep things very warm. They consider that being wasteful."

Patsy believes Australia is the last of the open countries that people can go to for a new start. Among immigrants are many first-generation Italians and Greeks.

"We're getting a few Chinese and, recently, Vietnamese. A lot of English people are still coming. And a lot more would if they could," she added.

Proud of being an American, she says her citizenship is one thing she does not intend to give up and "my husband doesn't expect me to. Many as soon as they immigrate there become citizens, but I don't intend to."

About every 18 months she gets back to visit her parents here and her brother, Donald, an OSU junior.

"In my school, Home Science means cooking, rather than the well-rounded curriculum at OSU of consumer education, family relationships, nutrition and other areas," she said. "But it won't be too long until we'll be teaching a lot more consumer education and housing."

Thermometer Ends Guessing

ARDEN, N.C. (UPI) — For the "home" cook who has everything else, an Arden manufacturer recently introduced an egg cooking thermometer. It looks like a fat fever thermometer about nine inches long and calibrated for hard, medium and soft stages for small, medium, large and extra large eggs.

The manufacturer says the thermometer automatically deals with factors that influence cooking time: atmospheric conditions, altitude, egg size.

Use color effectively in meals. Even a dinner of fried fish, french fries and hush puppies looks better with a sprig of parsley or a slice of lemon on the plate.

the number of eggs boiled at one time and egg temperature when they are placed in the water.

The same manufacturer also introduced a thermometer for microwave oven use that can be left in a roast or poultry while it cooks. It can also be used as a probe after cooking. The slender 5-inch stem is stainless steel.

DEAR ABBY: What can be done for a 72-year-old woman with a drinking problem? That woman is my mother, and it breaks my heart to see her destroying herself. It all began several years ago when Dad retired and they started spending their winters in Arizona. Why would a loving, respected grandmother turn to alcohol when she hardly ever drank before?

Dad is strictly a one-drink-before-dinner man. I finally got the courage to speak to mother about it, and she said she could quit anytime, but I know she can't. She drinks alone and thinks no one knows it. I can't force my mother to go to a doctor, and I can't accuse my father of lying when he says she is "better." How can I help her, Abby?

HEARTBROKEN DAUGHTER

DEAR HEARTBROKEN: No one can overcome alcoholism unless he admits that he is powerless against drink. That is the first step in the Alcoholics Anonymous program. Your mother could possibly be helped by joining that group. It's worth a try.

It is a sad fact of life that no one can be helped who will not help himself. Another fine program I highly recommend is Women for Sobriety, Inc., P.O. Box 618, Quakertown, Pa. 18951. When writing, please enclose a stamped, long, self-addressed envelope since this is a non-profit organization.

DEAR ABBY: I've been going with Adam for two years, and I always thought his family liked me. Adam's brother is getting married next Sunday and Adam will be an usher in the wedding party. I am very upset because I wasn't invited to the wedding. Who does the inviting anyway? Please answer soon as this has left me sleepless.

HURT

DEAR HURT: The bride and her family "does the inviting." But the groom and his family are also allowed to invite a certain number of guests.

If Adam had requested it, you probably would have been invited. But it's possible that they had to limit the number of guests, or maybe the ushers were asked to "escort" the bridesmaids, so Adam had a "duty" date. Ask him.

DEAR ABBY: If I don't get this off my chest, I'll burst. We have two sons. There are none better. Both are married and have lovely families.

When we go to their homes, it hurts when we don't see even one photograph of Dad and me in sight.

We've gone to the trouble and expense of having our pictures taken at a good studio. We've even had them enlarged and framed, but apparently they are stored away in some closet.

Our home is filled with pictures of our sons, their wives and children. Am I wrong to feel hurt?

HIDDEN PICTURES

DEAR HIDDEN: No. Apparently your sons and their wives are not aware of your feelings. No harm in being honest. Mention it.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (24 cents) envelope.

DOT Must Seek Solutions

The State Department of Transportation last week rejected a proposal to re-route U. S. 13 from its present location to follow N. C. 11 between Bethel and Ahoskie.

U. S. 13 presently is routed from Ahoskie to Bethel via Windsor, Williamston and Robersonville.

The N. C. 11 route, which was made possible by a new bridge across the Roanoke would cut a number of miles off the trip to Norfolk. It is in fact already used by many travelers from this area who are headed for the Virginia Tidewater area and northward via the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel.

U. S. 13 has been routed through Windsor, Williamston, Robersonville and other communities between Ahoskie and Bethel for many years and we can understand their feelings against losing the route.

At the same time the need is clear for a major highway from Norfolk across Eastern North Carolina to I-95 at Fayetteville.

The proposed change in U. S. 13 would have provided a straighter route for U. S. 13 with the possibility of upgrading the road to dual lane design.

If the Bethel to Ahoskie N.C. 11 route is not acceptable to DOT, then the department should launch a full study of the highway situation through this area.

Possibly an entirely new highway could be developed between the affected town, particularly if further mileage on the interstate system should ever become available.

The highway situation across northeastern North Carolina is not good and DOT needs to be looking at solutions now.

Major Gifts Count

By JOANNE D'ALCOMO
Associated Press Writer
BOSTON (AP) — The medical school of Boston University accepts students based on grades, sex, race — and on how big a gift their fathers can make to the university, the BU president has admitted.

President John Silber responded Tuesday to a story in today's edition of the student newspaper, BU Exposure, which printed excerpts from a transcript of a trustees meeting 4 1/2 years ago.

Silber was quoted as saying at the October 1973 meeting that "when we facilitate (and) admission there's no reason why we shouldn't go to... the father of the person who's been admitted and talk to him about a major gift to the school."

A spokesman for the university, Wesley Christensen, confirmed the authenticity of the transcript, pages of which were made available to The Associated Press.

Silber said in a statement that of 6,000 students who apply for 85 openings in the medical school, about 50 are chosen because of outstanding academic records.

The remaining 35 are selected from those who qualify academically and also balance the class in terms of race, sex and distribution by home state and undergraduate school, Silber said.

"Finally," Silber's statement said, "we will be very concerned to be on the lookout for potential gifts to BU from wealthy students or their families who can afford to make a gift to BU and whose gift provides a reason for selecting their fully qualified son or daughter over some other fully qualified but not better son or daughter who could not make this contribution."

Christensen said he did not know whether other schools in the university considered family wealth in admissions criteria, but the transcript indicates the law school is also involved.

In an interview, Christensen said the Office of Resources, which is responsible for BU's fundraising activities, helps the medical school locate potential contributors among applicants.

If an applicant has a famous last name, for example, the Office of Resources checks to see whether the applicant is related to the well known family, Christensen said.

The office, he added, also (Continued on page 5)

Leftists Close To Controlling France

A Socialist and Communist coalition, while running strong in French elections, fell behind the center-right coalition as vote counting was nearly complete.

While that news should be pleasing to the United States, it is still disconcerting that the leftist are coming so close to gaining control of France.

Should the Socialists and Communist continue to gain, the U. S. could still be faced with a leftist controlled France. Experience has shown us that once the Communist gain control there is little chance of a nation being able to return to a free enterprise system.

Hunt Takes More Control

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Policy is not a terribly exciting subject in state government — until you realize that after all is said and done, it is policy which shapes everything else that is going on.

The laws and rules and regulations and personalities all are at work in the day-to-day machinery of the bureaucracy. No doubt those forces shape numerous decisions.

But above all is policy: a great, changing and changeable body of mutual understanding — written or unwritten — into which minute and routine decisions can be fitted, along with the profound and significant.

Viewed in this light, recent activities within the administration of Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr. take on a glimmer of meaning and focus.

The nut of the question is: who makes policy? And, what is that policy?

In Place

"I'm proud of what our administration achieved in 1977. We carried through on the commitments we made in the campaign. Our program is in place now," Gov. Hunt commented in a recent discussion of a little-noted reorganization within the hierarchy of his chain of command.

Here are the areas he mentions as "in place": primary reading program, school testing, community school program, a new Utilities Commission and public staff, a crime program, an economic development program, and a citizen participation effort.

This year, says the governor, "is the year to make it work. That's what our administration is going to concentrate on this year — making it happen in the communities of North Carolina... to make state government a catalyst for change. And that makes the ability of the governor to direct and manage his departments all the more important."

Given some clues as to just what his policies are, Gov. Hunt remains nonetheless somewhat of a mystery as to exactly where his primary interests lie. More than any recent predecessor, this governor leaps rapidly and smoothly onto a variety of

That, say intimates, is one of his most serious shortcomings. He is apt to tell whoever is closest to get moving on some project whether or not that is within his or her area of jurisdiction.

To that criticism, the governor responds: he likes "creative tension." In sum, keep a lot of people generating ideas and competing with one another to come up with the best, and pushing for the governor's favor and attention, and the results prove exciting and rewarding.

One Man

Also, this approach to management means that there will be a lot of ferment and activity — but only the top man has a feel for the action and can make a decision from all that.

So a seemingly minor change in the internal structure of things takes on increased significance. John A. Williams was Hunt's state budget officer, a slot in the Department of Administration, headed by Secretary Joseph Grimsley. Williams was named executive assistant to the governor and kept his budget officer job, too.

This means he sifts the governor's incoming material and people, channels the outgoing, and holds the reins on all department heads — actually keeping regular tabs on all, and convening meetings when needed.

As budget officer, he runs the staff which puts together the governor's budget. That tool more than any other is the controlling factor in policy implementation throughout state government. "This... gives me... greater ability to direct the budget and... the performance of the... departments. (The budget) is my best tool for making state government more responsive, more efficient, and more effective," Gov. Hunt says of the changes.

Solving A Coal Strike

WASHINGTON — We've been seeing an awful lot of miners on television these nights. Without taking sides in the dispute, the one thing that comes across is that they're a tough breed and very free spirits. They don't like to be pushed around by anybody, including the government, the courts, the President of the United States or their own union leaders. If anyone orders them to do anything, they have no hesitation in telling them to "Stuff it."

It is for this reason that I do not believe invoking the Taft Hartley Act makes any sense getting the coal miners working again. It was written to give everyone a cooling-off period in a major labor dispute. But in the case of the coal miners it's made them hotter than ever, and more determined to hold out against the mine operators.

I believe President Carter would be much further ahead of the game right now if he had gone on television last Thursday and announced that during the Taft Hartley period no miners would be permitted to go back to work. He should have said that, as President of the United States, he would see to it that not one ton of coal left any shaft of a union-operated mine, even if he had to use troops.

He also might have said that if the miners attempted to go to work without a contract, he would fine the unions $10,000 a day and ask the courts to hold them in contempt.

Can you just see what would have happened if Mr. Carter had said that? The miners would have been in high dudgeon.

They would have met in their union halls where their leaders would have broken the news to them.

"Carter says we can't mine coal unless we have a contract. "Down with Carter." "He says he's going to use the Taft Hartley Act to keep us out of the mines instead of going down into them."

ART BUCHWALD

"No President of the United States is going to tell us when we can or cannot mine coal. If we want to mine it, we'll mine." "He says he'll use troops and federal marshals to keep us out."

"Let him try it. We'll break their heads with our pick axes if they won't let us down in the shafts."

"We're sick and tired of the government telling us what's good for us. If they don't want us to mine, we'll dig out so much coal they'll choke on it."

"They'll have to build 50 new railroads to haul it all away."

"We'll dump 300 tons on the White House lawn."

"Suppose our union president, Arnold Miller, says we can't go into the mines."

"Then we'll dump him on the White House lawn with the coal."

"All right then, are we agreed that if the court upholds the President and says we can't mine coal, we all go back to the pits?"

"We're ready now, even before the court acts. Let's go into the mines and show them who is really running this country."

"Any guy who refuses to mine coal gets his tires blown out."

"Are we going back into the mines?"

"YESSSSSSSSSSSSSSS!"

"When?"

"NOWWWWWWWWWWWWWWWWW!"

"Shout it so they can hear in the Oval Office!"

"NOWWWWWWWWWWWWWWWWW!"

That's what President Carter should have done. But his problem is he doesn't watch enough television.

40 Years Ago Today

March 15, 1938

Unless a lot of Greenville citizens register between now and sunset March 26, only a small percentage of the residents will be able to vote in the March 28 election, at which time the fate of the proposed athletic field and the city recorder's court will be determined.

At noon today, only 222 citizens have qualified to vote, constituting a small percentage of the 1,815 who voted in the May 1937 mayoralty election.

One of the proposals to be decided is the issuance of up to $35,000 in long-term bonds for an athletic field and recreation center.

So far as is known, no organized opposition to either measure has been developed.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Leak That Could Damage

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — at the moment the State Department and the CIA were mapping plans to concede nothing to Moscow in the Shcharansky "spy" case, the No. 2 man on the National Security Council (NSC) staff leaked authoritative word that could gravely damage Anatoli Shcharansky — a tragic case of ineptitude at high levels.

David Aaron, NSC director Zbigniew Brzezinski's top deputy, leaked to Time magazine that Shcharansky's one-time roommate in Moscow, Dr. Sanya Lipavsky, indeed worked for the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) briefly in 1975. That leak (officially denied to us by the NSC) infuriated top officials at both State and CIA.

Aaron had committed a breach of iron-clad espionage policy never to say one word about an undercover agent.

Without informing Dr. Brzezinski, Aaron took it upon himself to confirm Soviet claims made one year ago that Lipavsky had been in the pay of the CIA in 1975. While probably born of panic, Aaron's move seems dictated by a desire to spare the U.S. the unpleasant surprise of an ex-CIA agent testifying for the prosecution at Shcharansky's espionage trial. But unwittingly, Aaron's leak lends superficial plausibility to the trumped-up charges against Shcharansky, leader of the once-flourishing anti-soviet dissidents.

Besides potentially doleful consequences for Shcharansky, this bizarre turn of events further weakens confidence in the present conduct of superpower politics in Washington. From the start, the Carter administration's management of the Shcharansky affair has been bungled.

Intelligence sources here say Lipavsky was that familiar figure in Russian history — the double agent. While working for the CIA, he was also an agent of the KGB. After he blew the whistle on himself by admitting espionage for the CIA, Lipavsky would finger Shcharansky as another "spy." That would deal a lethal blow to the dissident movement.

Aaron's astonishing and apparently unilateral decision to leak the truth about Lipavsky was obviously tied to the astonishing decision made by President Carter last June. He stated then that Shcharansky, already under arrest, "has never had any sort of relationship to our knowledge with the CIA."

That was the first recorded case of a President publicly exonerating a foreign national from his own government's charge of spying for the U.S. It gravely unsettled the CIA. By claiming Shcharansky's innocence, Mr. Carter inadvertently may have weakened him. To find him not guilty, the Russians would have to uphold the President's word against their own charge.

That may partially explain the exhaustive buildup of the Soviet case and the brutal use of Lipavsky to entrap Shcharansky. Unanswered is this question: why did Aaron tell the truth about the Lipavsky-CIA connection at this particular time and against the accepted rules of the intelligence game?

The answer, as supplied by others (Aaron did not return our telephone calls), finds its source in developments in Moscow the first week of March. As the Shcharansky trial neared, American reporters learned that proof of the CIA-Lipavsky link would be part of the trial.

High officials at both State and the CIA, informed of that fact, made a conventional decision: if and when Lipav-

Strength For Today

LIFE WITHIN

In the sixth chapter of II Samuel, we find the account of how the ark of the Lord, that sacred symbol which the Hebrews had venerated from the days of Moses, was lodged in the house of a certain man named Obed-Edom, where it remained for three months. And so great was the health and prosperity of this man's home that King David decided to bring the ark to Jerusalem and put it in the tabernacle. If it did so much for the home of one man, it could be expected to do great things also for the whole nation. The ark of the Lord — or of the covenant, as it was also called — represented the presence of God in the midst of the Hebrew people. Three thousand years ago this took place, and it is still taking place when people sincerely put religion to the test of life. When they bring God into the home, a change comes about which is marvelous to behold. And from that home it spreads outward. A dynamic new spirit begins to permeate all who come into contact with that home.

Public Forum

Letters submitted for Public Forum must be limited to 300 words.

To the editor:
The Larry Gillman issue at East Carolina may appear dead to some, but the resultant effects will be carried over into our next basketball season. Irreparable damage has been done. The healing process for the players involved and the fans is going to be very slow. Chancellor Jenkins has been no more than naive to believe that the same amount of enthusiasm generated at the beginning of the 1977-78 basketball season will come from fans again next season. I predict that season ticket sales will hit a new low!

Gillman's recruiting will have to be miraculous for him to regain the credibility that he has lost. He certainly cannot coach. The mental cruelty in the locker room has been pathetic. Don't be surprised when a few talented, intelligent players give up their grants and go elsewhere. How many of us would stay if our coach told us we "wouldn't be playing next season," even though we had proved ourselves on the court? The players are also aware that the defensive coaching they needed was denied them by Gillman, who would not allow Coach Billy Lee to contribute in a coaching capacity. The talent is there, the direction is not. In my opinion, the season record would have been better with Lee handling the coaching and Gillman only recruiting. Coaches coach — recruiters recruit.

Had Chancellor Jenkins received the same negative input from concerned citizens as the Athletic Department, his decision would have been different. It would have been better for the University to break Gillman's contract and fight him in court than to be made the fool and expose the players to another year under his direction. It's unfortunate that Chancellor Jenkins did not have all the facts. Gillman has made a mockery of us all.

How To Evade Tax On Interest

By JOHN CUNIFF (AP) Laserphoto

NEW YORK (AP) — How would you like to save money secretly through a perfectly legal transaction at an American bank and thus evade payment of federal income taxes on the interest you earn?

Incredibly, that offer is being made by some American banks. Equally difficult to believe, the device that makes it possible — or which until recently did — is called the "bearer bond."

Regulators don't consider them very honorable, and are moving to plug the legal loophole, described by a savings and loan association official as being "truck-size." But for a few months anyway, the activities of a relatively few bankers have provided an episode in the history of banking that some of the more proper members consider scandalous, cynical, unpatriotic.

It began when some commercial banks found there was nothing in the law to prevent them from offering small-denomination savings certificates to the "bearer" rather than to a named person.

Ordinarily, such certificates are issued in denominations of $100,000 or more for commercial purposes rather than as a form of individual savings. Being issued to the bearer, they can easily be traded.

In denominations of as little as $25, however, they become attractive ways of hiding interest income from the government. Since they do not carry the purchaser's name, the bank does not report interest earned.

In their ads, a few banks only slightly disguised the tax angle. Enjoy "the privacy of a Swiss bank account," they said. And more blatantly: "The bank will not issue an IRS 1099 form."

Some bankers were furious about what they considered a provocation to evade taxes. Their trade associations were equally angry. And federal and state regulators were perhaps angrier of all.

While he had no legal authority to prevent the practice, John G. Heimann, Comptroller of the Currency, began in recent weeks to write letters to the offending banks.

The unanimous reaction of those communicating with us is that the advertisements are tantamount to an invitation to evade federal income taxes," he said, continuing with his firm opinion that:

"We believe it is highly inappropriate for national banks to imply" that individuals "might evade federal income taxes simply because the interest income is not reported by the banks."

The Internal Revenue Service added its weight, announcing last week that it was considering a rules change requiring banks to report names and Social Security numbers of purchasers and redeemers.

This week the Treasury Department proposed a change in banking laws that would have the same effect: require that banks record the names of individuals or others purchasing and redeeming the certificates.

Evans Novak... (Continued from page 4)

sky's CIA link emerges at the trial, the U.S. would simply lie — deny the evidence. However, if hard evidence were presented, the U.S. could always acknowledge the truth if needed.

But at the NSC, Aaron panicked. Those familiar with the case say he feared sudden headlines in the midst of the trial, naming Shcharansky's friend Lipavsky not just as a "walk-in" CIA volunteer but perhaps as a target deliberately recruited by the CIA. If the Russians came close to proving that, they could undermine the President's public statement that Lipavsky's friend, Shcharansky, had no connection with the CIA (no matter how true).

Under this reasoning, Aaron's decision to leak Lipavsky's CIA connection — as a "walk-in" recruit who was obviously a KGB plant — had one purpose: to protect Mr. Carter from embarrassment. But Mr. Carter never would have needed protection had he not publicly vouched for Shcharansky.

Aaron's leak smacked of that very amateurism which persuaded the President to go public on Shcharansky last summer, based on a naive assumption that truth has power in the Kremlin.

For those still blind to Soviet reality, Moscow's real interest in the truth has been demonstrated again in the Shcharansky case. The single most effective pro-Shcharansky witness, a young dissident named Dina Bellin, has suddenly been ordered to emigrate after six years of waiting permission. She will not be present at the trial. Against this realpolitik in Moscow, naivete in Washington is cause for concern.

Hunt Talks Of Research

RALEIGH — Gov. Jim Hunt charged the North Carolina Alcoholism Research Authority with the responsibility for research into the causes of alcoholism in his remarks to the Authority here this week.

Speaking at the NCARA's regular business meeting, Hunt also expressed concern for the future of research in prevention programs in the state and asked that the Authority monitor efforts in that area.

The governor voiced strong support for the research funding body in his address to the nine-member board.

He observed, "As we look throughout our society at the things which prevent us as a people from greatness, alcoholism is near the top, behind ignorance."

Hopeful of medical breakthroughs in prevention of the disease which costs the state $22 million a year for treatment alone, the governor recognized the range of problems that can result from the disease of alcoholism.

Hunt expressed gratitude to the Authority for progress made in the past four years and offered his continued support for future research efforts.

Dr. Phillip G. Nelson of Greenville is a member of the Authority.

Arsenic Death Charged Woman

By ELISSA McCRARY
Associated Press Writer

LUMBERTON, N.C. (AP) — A 45-year-old housekeeper described by friends as "a good person," has been charged with murder in the arsenic-poisoning death of her male friend, and authorities say they are now looking into a possible link with three more deaths, including her mother.

Velma Margie Bullard Barfield, 45, was arrested Monday night and charged in connection with the death Feb. 3 of Stuart Taylor. Mrs. Barfield was being held without bond in the Robeson County Jail.

Barbara Burchette, who described herself as a close friend of Mrs. Barfield and worked with her as an aide at the nursing home, said Mrs. Barfield and Taylor were engaged and planned to be married in the early summer.

A friend of Mrs. Barfield who visited her in jail Tuesday refused to identify herself but expressed shock at the arrest.

"People here in Lumberton don't know her very well, but I worked with her in Lumberton and I know she is a kind person," the woman said. She said the two had worked at a department store.

"She's just sick. She told me so today when I went to see her in jail," the woman said. The woman said Mrs. Barfield told her, "I can't help myself. I am sick."

Taylor, 53, was a farmer in nearby St. Pauls. The Lumberton Robesonian reported Tuesday that Mrs. Barfield was Taylor's girlfriend.

Robeson County Sheriff Malcolm McLeod said early Tuesday that Mrs. Barfield had worked as a housekeeper for Taylor. But later Hubert Stone, chief of detectives in the sheriff's department, said the two were friends but that Mrs. Barfield did not work for Taylor.

Stone said she had been working at a local nursing home. But the detective said none of the deaths involved the nursing home.

McLeod refused to comment Tuesday evening.

Earlier he said his department was looking into a possible link with two more poisoning deaths that occurred last year, and the 1974 death of Mrs. Barfield's mother, Lilly McMillan Bullard.

One courthouse source who asked not to be named said Tuesday that a court order would be sought to exhume the bodies of Mrs. Barfield's mother and the other two persons. The order will probably be sought this week, according to the source.

The same source also said he was "pretty sure" that the mother's death in 1974 was due to poisoning.

McLeod said the investigation was broadened to include the other three deaths after officers talked with Mrs. Barfield following her arrest in Taylor's death. He said Mrs. Barfield was apparently working as a housekeeper for the two other persons.

"She was just helping out with the housework and cleaning when the people got sick and died," McLeod said.

Mrs. Barfield lives in a small frame house which badly needed painting on a dirt street in a crumbling section of Lumberton. Her house was locked Tuesday, and neighbors said she had moved here from Fayetteville.

A neighbor who refused to give her name said people in the area did not see Mrs. Barfield often. They said she had two grown children, a man and a woman.

"They're in a state of shock," she said.

The investigation into Taylor's death began after an autopsy revealed traces of arsenic in the liver. Taylor had been treated at Southeastern General Hospital in Lumberton on Feb. 2 and released. He returned to the hospital the next day, when he died.

McLeod said it was not known how Taylor ingested the arsenic. But the sheriff said he assumes it was taken in food or drink.

Mrs. Barfield appeared in court Tuesday and an attorney, Robert Jacobson, was appointed to defend her. Jacobson said she would be sent Wednesday for a psychiatric examination at Dorothea Dix Hospital in Raleigh.

notes whether the applicant has relatives who attended BU and investigates to determine whether the relatives are large contributors, he said.

During the trustees' meeting, which was held to plan fundraising strategy, Silber is quoted as saying the university should obtain a list of the "admission considerations that we've given."

"There have been any number of people crawling all over me for admission to our medical school and our law school who have never been tapped systematically for a gift to this university. I'm not ashamed to sell those indulgences," Silber said in the transcript.

"We don't admit someone to our medical school or our law school who isn't qualified to get in, but at the same time when we facilitate that admission there's no reason why we shouldn't go right back to the person, the father of the person who's been admitted and talk to him about a major gift to the school," Silber added.

Pitt Agribusiness Assn. Told Importance Of Trade Via Ports

The Pitt County Agribusiness Association met Tuesday with Charlie King Jr., Director of State Relations of Tobacco Associates from Raleigh. He stressed the importance of export trade.

According to King, exports of all U. S. products become more and more important as we become more dependent upon other countries for our energy needs. Farm exports in 1977 totaled more than $24 billion, which represents about 25 percent of all cash farm receipts.

Tobacco exports rank among the top, he said, — fifth behind feed grains, soybeans, wheat and flour and cotton. U. S. tobacco leaf exports in 1977 were $1,094 million and tobacco manufactured exports were $637 million, for a total of more than $1.7 billion in total tobacco and tobacco product exports.

Tobacco contributes significantly to help offset our world trade deficit. If you consider the same $300 million imports of tobacco, you still have almost $1.4 billion that tobacco contributes to a favorable balance of payment.

The U. S. flue-cured exports amounted to over $834 million in 1977. Of this, 36 percent was exported to the European Community and 23 percent went to Japan. Including the 66 billion U. S. manufactured cigarettes that were exported, over 50 percent of the U. S. flue-cured crop was exported in 1977.

Exports of U. S. flue-cured tobacco are vitally important to the future of the U. S. tobacco farmer in the Southeast and this is why these farmers have their own tobacco promotion organization — Tobacco Associates — King said.

It was organized in 1947 by tobacco growers to promote export of flue-cured tobacco from the U. S. It works on the farmers' behalf promoting their products in countries of the world where they feel the greatest potential lies. Major emphasis is placed on the Far East, Middle East and certain Eastern "Bloc" countries. It has other promotional activities, as well as the general responsibility to help protect and maintain the tobacco program as it is.

The immediate future of U. S. tobacco exports is bright, but we must continue to make every effort to maintain and improve quality, as well as work closely with trade negotiators to help gain better access to certain European markets, King said.

On the domestic side, he said, we must all work together through our commodity associations, agribusiness groups and other to promote the positive aspects of tobacco. "I feel that the positive aspects far outweigh any negative factor that our foes may offer," he said.

An 11:16 a.m. fire at 425B West Third St. yesterday resulted in heavy fire and smoke damage to the front portion of the dwelling, investigators reported.

Fire officers said the fire, which heavily damaged the front room of the dwelling and its contents, was apparently caused by oil spilled around a space heater.

Police estimated damage at $2,000.

Winterville, Fountain Housing Is Contracted

The Mid-East Regional Housing Authority signed a contract here Tuesday with Westminster Co. of Greensboro to build 20 units of low-income housing in Fountain and 30 units in Winterville.

Total cost of the Pitt County project, which is being financed with loans from the Farmers Home Administration, is $1,291,210, it was announced.

The Fountain housing site is located on Lynch Street and will involve ten buildings containing two apartments each. An office-maintenance building is also planned.

In Winterville, the Kennedy Street site will involve 15 buildings in addition to an office-maintenance structure.

Mid-East, which operates in six eastern counties, also signed contracts for an additional 50 units of low-income housing to be built in Windsor at a project cost of $1,314,540. FHA is also financing the Windsor development.

William I. Cochran Jr., the authority's executive director, said that all of the housing units should be completed within 12 months. He noted that the apartments will range in size from one to three bedrooms, with some available for the handicapped.

Before construction is completed, according to Cochran, the authority will set up temporary offices in Winterville and Fountain to begin processing ap-

Ask More Data On Expanding Of Ports

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP) — A committee of the state Ports Authority asked for more information Tuesday in declining to make a decision on a proposed five-year $27.8 million expansion contract.

The request centers around a disagreement between the ports staff and private shipping agents over container cargo facilities as opposed to break bulk cargo. The bulk cargo is handled in boxes and bales by conventional gantry cranes, while container operations rely on prepackaged containers that can be loaded or unloaded more easily with special cranes.

The staff report, backed by authority director William M.A. Greene, called container operations the trend of the future and said container volume at Wilmington will increase two and a half times by 1982.

But shipping officials Peter Ruffin of the Wilmington Shipping Co. and Jack Tilley of Levine Shipping Co. in Wilmington complained that the report would have the reports go "whole hog" for containers while ignoring conventional methods.

The planning committee's request for more information delayed consideration of expansion of ports at Morehead City and Wilmington by the authority.

Supporters of the Wilmington port have contended that delaying the money would postpone construction at their facility by a year.

Persons accepted for Guild membership will automatically receive an invitation to participate in the 1978 Albemarle Craftsman's Fair, according to Mrs. Elsie Edwards, Area Home Economics Extension Agent, in charge of the craft program.

Interested persons are asked to contact Mrs. Sue B. May, Home Economics Extension Agent, at 758-1196 concerning applications for membership.

Rhodesian Plan Is 'Denounced'

By WILLIAM N. OATIS
Associated Press Writer
UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United States, Britain and three allies abstained as the other 10 members of the Security Council voted to denounce the agreement between Prime Minister Ian Smith and three moderate black leaders for black-majority government in Rhodesia by the end of the year.

Britain and the United States pledged to continue efforts to reconcile Smith and the three moderates with the guerrilla leaders who condemn the deal signed in the Rhodesian capital, Salisbury, 12 days ago.

But both the guerrilla leaders and the moderates refused to meet.

In London, the two leaders of the Patriotic Front guerrillas ended two days of talks with British Foreign Secretary David Owen and declared: "The war goes on."

Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe said Owen failed to persuade them to agree to terms for a new conference on Rhodesia. They contend that only their guerrilla war has made the Rhodesian whites agree to give up power to the blacks, and they demand that they and they alone control the future government.

The three leaders who signed with Smith said earlier they were going ahead with the Salisbury agreement. It provides for an election by universal adult suffrage to choose the nation's first black government by Dec. 31 and special guarantees for the white minority.

Overeaters To Meet Thursday

Charles W. Carter, Eckerd's Drug Store pharmacist, will speak during an Overeaters Anonymous meeting Thursday night.

The meeting will be held at Arlington Street Southern Baptist Church at 7:30 p. m.

The United States, Britain, France, Canada and West Germany abstained Tuesday after failing in an attempt to water down an African resolution terming the agreement "illegal and unacceptable."

Voting for the resolution were the sponsors — Gabon, Mauritius, Nigeria, India, Kuwait, Bolivia and Venezuela — plus the Soviet Union, China and Czechoslovakia. They opposed it because Nkomo and Mugabe oppose it.

U.S. Ambassador Andrew Young urged dispassionate examination of the Salisbury agreement, which Britain and the United States say is inadequate but a significant step toward majority rule in the country of 6.7 million blacks and 263,000 whites.

"We must not resign ourselves that the birth of a new nation must be bloody and violent," Young told the council.

British Ambassador Ivor Richard said the Salisbury agreement could not be endorsed, "but it is a reality and it makes no sense to ignore it."

The resolution asked Britain, still technically the administering power for its former colony, to confer immediately with "the parties concerned" to decolonize the territory through elections supervised by the United Nations. It asked U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim to report results by April 15.

Flynt Condition Is Deteriorating

ATLANTA (AP) — Sex magazine entrepreneur Larry Flynt remained in critical condition today as doctors tried to reverse a deterioration in his condition caused by infection and pneumonia.

His vital signs are stable, although he has a fever, the morning statement said. A respirator is helping him breathe.

Flynt's condition slipped from serious to critical Tuesday afternoon and doctors at Emory University Hospital placed him on a respirator.

A hospital spokesman said, however, that Flynt's vital signs remained stable.

"His gastrointestinal bleeding has been controlled by arteriographic occlusion of the bleeding vessel," the spokesman said. "His infection and his deteriorating pulmonary status continue as his most threatening problems."

Friends and family gathered at Flynt's hospital suite Tuesday, but they declined to talk to reporters.

The 35-year-old owner of Hustler magazine and a local attorney, Gene Reeves Jr., 47, were shot near the Gwinnett County courthouse in Lawrenceville, Ga., March 6 during a break in Flynt's trial on a charge of distributing obscene material.

Earlier that day, Flynt testified concerning his much-publicized conversion to "born-again" Christianity at the hands of evangelist Ruth Carter Stapleton, President Carter's sister.

He was returning to the courthouse from lunch when he was shot.

Flynt was transferred to Emory from a Lawrenceville hospital last Wednesday. A bullet and bone fragments near his spine were removed Thursday.

Surgeons said Flynt was paralyzed from mid-thigh down, and they gave him less than an even chance of ever walking again.

Reeves was listed in guarded condition at a Lawrenceville hospital Tuesday.

Gwinnett County police reported no leads in solving the mystery of the sniper attack.

A total of $15,000 has been offered as reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of Flynt's assailant or assailants. Of that money, $10,000 was offered by a California-based adult movie organization and the rest by the Gwinnett County Commission.

How Tar Heel Congressmen And Senators Voted

By ROLL CALL REPORT

WASHINGTON — Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Mar. 2 thru 8.

HOUSE

D.C. REPRESENTATION — Adopted, 289 for and 127 against, a proposed constitutional amendment giving the District of Columbia voting representation in the House and Senate. It also permits D.C. to take part in the Electoral College as if it were a state and participate in the ratification of constitutional amendments.

The measure (joint resolution 54) now goes to the Senate and, if approved there, to each of the states; approval of three-fourths of the states is required to amend the Constitution. Presently D.C. has a non-voting delegate in the House and no representative in the Senate.

Rep. Robert McClory (R-Ill.), supporter, said: "By voting for this proposed constitutional amendment, we can elevate the status of 'second class' citizens residing in America to a status which would guarantee them their equal constitutional rights."

Rep. Carlos Moorhead (R-Calif.), an opponent, said: "This runs fully counter to the perception of the Federal City held by the framers of our Constitution. D.C. was not created to be a state. Rather, it was established as a federal enclave, fully under the control of the Congress."

Members voting "yea" favored giving D.C. voting representation in Congress.

Reps. Walter Jones (D-1), L.H. Fountain (D-2), Charles Whitley (D-3), Ike Andrews (D-4), Stephen Neal (D-5), Richardson Preyer (D-6), Charles Rose (D-7), W.G. Hefner (D-8), James Broyhill (R-10) and Lamar Gudger (D-11) voted "yea."

Rep. James Martin (R-9) voted "nay."

DEVT LIMIT — Defeated, 165 for and 248 against, a bill (HR 11180) to increase the public debt ceiling by $72 billion, to a total of $824 billion. A new, higher ceiling must be enacted if the government is to be able to pay its bills after Mar. 31.

Each year Congress must raise the debt ceiling to keep pace with increased federal spending — increases that have already been approved by the passage of appropriations bills. Despite temporary setbacks as in the present case, the ceiling is invariably raised. Thus, after defeat of this measure, House leaders began preparing a similar bill for consideration before Mar. 31.

Rep. Ed Jenkins (D-Ga.), a supporter of the bill, said: "To vote for this bill is an act of fiscal conservatism as much as a vote against a wild spending proposal. All the bill really provides is that the Treasury Department be able to raise the money through the financial markets to pay the bills that this Congress has already voted to incur."

Rep. Delbert Latta (R-Ohio), an opponent, said he would vote against the bill "because I did not vote for the huge spending increases which make it necessary. I leave the dubious honor of passing this increase to my colleagues who vote for the massive spending programs which make it necessary."

Members voting "yea" favored raising the debt limit so the government can pay its bill.

Preyer and Rose voted "yea." Jones, Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Neal, Hefner, Martin, Broyhill and Gudger voted "nay."

SENATE

PANAMA CANAL — Tabled, 52 for and 40 against, an amendment to the proposed Panama Canal neutrality treaty. The amendment sought to enable the U.S. after 1999, to prevent enemy warships from using the canal in time of war. It came as the Senate continued debating the neutrality treaty, one of two proposed canal treaties now pending. A final vote on the neutrality treaty was imminent. The treaties aim to turn over control of the Canal Zone to Panama after 1999 while guaranteeing the canal's neutrality.

Sen. Frank Church (D-Idaho), a supporter of tabling and thus killing the amendment, said the treaty provides for "non-discriminatory transit of vessels through the canal, both in time of peace and time of war, in order to insure that the canal would stay a neutral international waterway."

Sen. James Allen (D-Ala.), an opponent of tabling, asked: "Why should we be so impractical, why should we be so demagogic, about having a provision saying that enemy warships can transit the canal in time of war without inspection, without search and without surveillance, when everyone knows, I assume, that we are not going to permit that?"

Senators voting "yea" opposed the amendment.

Sen. Robert Morgan (D) voted "yea."

Sen. Jesse Helms (R) voted "nay."

PANAMA CANAL — Tabled, 58 for and 36 against, an amendment exempting a top-secret U.S. Naval installation on Galeta Island in the Canal Zone from the Panama Canal neutrality treaty, in order to keep the facility in operation after the zone becomes neutral in 2000. Defeat of the amendment apparently means that the installation, which reportedly tracks the movement of enemy aircraft and vessels, will have to be re-located once the U.S. relinquishes control of the canal. The vote came during consideration of the neutrality treaty (see vote above).

Sen. Gary Hart (D-Colo.), a supporter of tabling and thus killing the amendment, said that as a member of both the Armed Services and Intelligence Oversight committees he has "absolutely no reason to believe that it is necessary to adopt this amendment to protect our interests in that area."

Sen. Jesse Helms (R-N.C.), an opponent of tabling, said: "Now the fact is that we cannot perform the mission of Galeta Island from any other location. Yet the mission of Galeta Island is a very important ingredient in our capability to maintain the regime of (canal zone) neutrality."

Senators voting "nay" favored exempting the Galeta Island installation.

Morgan voted "yea." Helms voted "nay."

Deadline Near For The Annual Report

For persons who are receiving social security checks and are in the category of being required to file an annual report of their earnings for 1977, the deadline is only a month away.

According to Social Security District Manager Mary W. Cain in the Greenville office, the deadline for such reports is April 17.

Anyone missing the deadline may be subject to a penalty unless they receive a time extension.

Persons required to file are those receiving one or more social security checks during 1977 and who fall under the following guidelines:

- did not reach age 72 before January 1977.
- Had total earnings of $3,000 or more in 1977.

— Did not have all benefits withheld during 1977.

Also, those who had some benefits withheld during 1977 because they expected to earn more than $3,000 but whose actual earnings were less than $3,000 are to file a report in order to receive back benefits. Such benefits cannot be paid unless a report is filed.

Persons needing more details about the reports are to contact the social security office at 103 Plaza Drive or to telephone, 756-2368.

Creative Arts In Five Prisons

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Endowment for the Arts has named five federal prisons for its 1978 Artists-In-Residence program.

The program, which places professional artists in federal prisons, will be conducted at facilities in Springfield, Mo., El Reno, Okla., Terminal Island, Calif., Lexington, Ky., and Peterburg, Va. Besides increasing the number of creative arts programs in the federal prisons, the program aims to make the arts available to persons not in the cultural mainstream.

Each participating prison will receive a total budget of $16,500. The National Endowment provides $5,000 of the total, with the remaining $5,000 coming from the central office of the Federal Bureau of Prisons and $6,500 from the Bureau's regional office or contributed by the prison.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today as traders kept a cautious eye on developments in the Middle East.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 1.99 to 760.57 in the first half hour.

But gainers took a 2-1 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The market began rallying late in Tuesday's session when negotiators for the coal companies and the United Mine Workers announced a tentative settlement.

Traders seemed to be hopeful that the union membership would react more favorably to the new pact than they did to the previous proposal which they rejected early this month.

But that enthusiasm seemed to be tempered today by wariness over Israeli forces' drive into southern Lebanon in retaliation for a terrorist raid last weekend.

Sony was the early volume leader among NYSE issues, up 1/4 at 7 1/8.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average recovered from an early 4-point loss to finish with a 2.60 gain at 762.60. Advances outnumbered declines by about a 5-3 margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume came to 24.30 million shares against 24.07 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite common-stock index rose 21 to 49.75.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .12 at 125.77.

Board Okays A Stoplight

GRIFTON — The Grifton Town Board last night voted to erect a four-way stoplight at the intersection of Country Club and Fairway Drives.

A petition requesting the signal was submitted to the Board with approximately 14 signatures on it. Work on placement of the stoplight is to begin immediately.

The Board also appointed Doug Quinn as Safety Inspector under the Occupational Safety and Health Administration. Quinn who is presently superintendent of utilities for Grifton will be responsible for inspecting town buildings.

In other business, Board members also created a sergeant position on the police force. The chief of police will make a recommendation for the new position at the next Board meeting.

A deed was also accepted from Grifton Plumbing and Heating for a right-of-way on Dogwood Lane. The street is presently a dirt road. Town officials requested the right-of-way in order to pave it.

Hunger Is Local Problem

"Hunger is a world concern, but local hunger is our immediate problem," says Patrice A. Chenier, Pitt County Coordinator for the N. C. Hunger Coalition.

The Coalition aids the Pitt County Department of Social Services in finding the hungry. Outreach is conducted jointly by Betty B. Rouse, Social Services Outreach Coordinator, and Chenier. Through cooperative efforts, a county plan has been formulated to meet state requirements and further benefit Pitt County. Special activities are planned for each month.

Each year the N. C. Dept. of Human Resources selects a target group believed in need of special attention from the County Social Services agencies. The group selected this year is children of indigent families.

It was recognized that children living in families whose income falls below the poverty line may be unable to obtain the balanced nutritional diet necessary to maintain good health and ensure proper development of intellectual skills. It is an expression of concern for the state's future citizens, Chenier said.

Public education and Food Stamp outreach have been correlated with nutritional education, which is emphasized, she said. Community meetings are being held to educate the public about the Food Stamp program and pre-screen for Food Stamp certification. Nutritional information is given at follow-up meetings to show grocery shoppers how to buy the best food for their dollars.

It is proposed that poster contests be conducted in the elementary schools, while essay contests be held on the secondary level. Winning entries would become part of the public education program.

Young adults would be encouraged to learn about nutrition as part of their civic and personal responsibility.

Trial development of outside certification sites is going on. Until now, all certification and issuance of Food Stamps has been done at the Greenville office of Social Services, Rouse said. Trial sites will be established at the Senior Citizens Centers in Greenville, Ayden and Farmville. If response is great enough, these sites will become permanent and may lead to other certification centers in the county, as a service to those who lack transportation to the Greenville office, she said.

Malaria is transmitted by the bite of an infected Anopheles mosquito.

"Even when travelers are properly informed and do receive prophylactic medication, they often stop taking their drugs as soon as they return home," the CDC said.

The CDC emphasized that the cost of preventing malaria is low compared to the rising cost of treatment.

the CDC said.

The CDC said Tuesday that from 1970 through 1975, the number of cases of malaria among U.S. civilians reported through its surveillance system increased from 151 to 430 a year.

Malaria Is On The Rise

ATLANTA (AP) — Malaria, under control in many countries in recent years, has resurfaced and has been imported to the United States, causing the number of cases in the nation to rise, the national Center for Disease Control says.

The CDC said Tuesday that from 1970 through 1975, the number of cases of malaria among U.S. civilians reported through its surveillance system increased from 151 to 430 a year.

Malaria is transmitted by the bite of an infected Anopheles mosquito.

"Even when travelers are properly informed and do receive prophylactic medication, they often stop taking their drugs as soon as they return home," the CDC said.

Although many countries are listed as especially dangerous to the traveler from the United States, the CDC said malaria is known to exist in Mexico, Haiti, Central America, South America, Africa, the Middle East, the Indian subcontinent, Southeast Asia, Korea, Indonesia and Oceania.

"All persons traveling to one or more of these areas are at the risk of acquiring malaria,"

the CDC said.

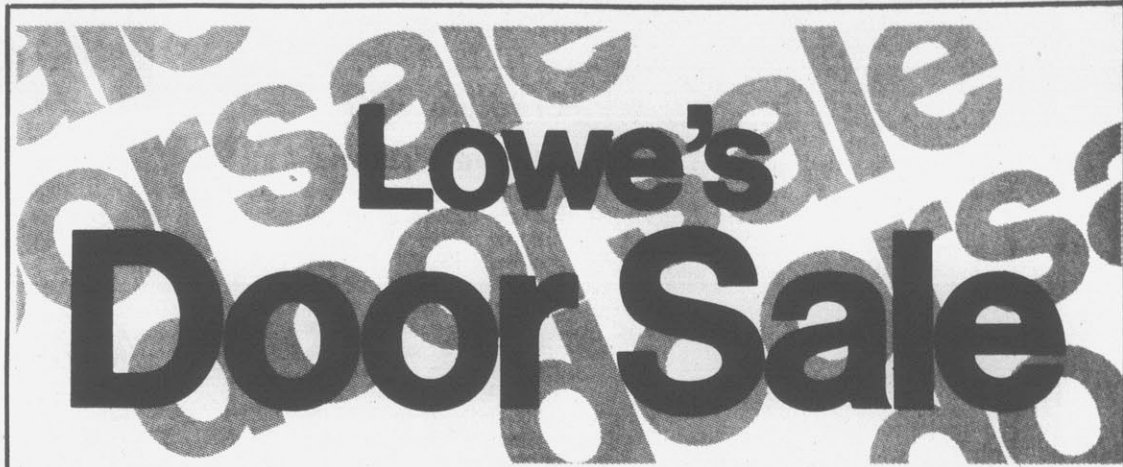

The CDC emphasized that the cost of preventing malaria is low compared to the rising cost of treatment.

"All persons traveling to one or more of these areas are at the risk of acquiring malaria,"

Skelton Knocks Programming

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Red Skelton says television is often a great big bore.

In Nashville for an appearance at the Grand Ole Opry, the red-haired comedian told reporters Tuesday violence on television often distresses him and few of the so-called lighter shows make him laugh.

In short, Skelton said, TV is "a waste of time, at times."

In the old days, people listened to "Fibber McGee and Molly" on the radio waiting for the crash when Fibber opened his junk-filled closet, noted Skelton. Now they wait for Archie Bunker to flush his toilet on television's "All in the Family."

"They think this is funny but it isn't," said Skelton. "I think that anything that goes into people's homes, you should have dignity for that home."

Up For Grabs

Detroit's John Long (51) and N.C. State's Tony Warren (24) go up for the loose ball during first half action in Tuesday night's second round NIT game played at State's Reynolds Coliseum in Raleigh. The Wolfpack defeated the Titans, 84-77, to advance to the semifinals at Madison Square Garden in New York. (AP Laserphoto)

Wolfpack Dumps Detroit

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer
 RALEIGH—N. C. State's youthful basketball team received another vote of confidence in its quest for the National Invitation Tournament championship last night after the Wolfpack dismantled Detroit's run-and-gun offense for an 84-77 quarter final victory over the Titans in Reynolds Coliseum.

"I thought North Carolina State had a very fine ballclub; I hope they can go all the way," Detroit coach David Gaines commented after the game. "I said last week that this game would probably decide the champion, no doubt about it."

The win was a hard-fought one for State, which was unable to seal the victory until the final minute. Forward Hawkeye Whitney connected on both ends of a one-and-one to give the Wolfpack an 82-71 lead with 1:13 left, but guard Clyde Austin missed two bonus situation foul shots in the final 45 seconds.

Detroit's Terry Duerod hit a couple of bombs from the outside and Turono Anderson, made a layup to quickly cut the margin to five at 82-77 with 24 seconds left.

But the Titans were unable to gain a steal after Duerod's final shot and missed on a field goal try after Austin failed to connect from the foul line with 11 seconds on the clock. Tiny Pinder, who paced the Wolfpack with 18 points, made both ends of a one-and-one with two seconds left to clinch the win.

The key to the game, according to Gaines, was an amazing 64-33 rebounding advantage by the Wolfpack over the smaller Titans. State controlled the boards on both ends of the floor with Pinder leading the way with 21 caroms.

"We're a running team," Gaines explained. "We must rebound in order to run."

Winning coach Norm Sloan said, "I thought it was a heck of a ballgame, and I would have said that if the outcome hadn't been the same. But I would have been very disappointed if we had lost, I thought we were the best team out there."

Sloan said the Wolfpack's switch from a 1-3-1 zone to a man-to-man in the second half was a big factor in the ballgame. The Titans, behind center Terry Tyler's 15 points, led for a good portion of the first half, but a Wolfpack flurry near the end of the opening period provided State with a 44-38 margin at intermission.

The 6-7 Tyler dominated the inside during the early going, despite the presence of 7-2 Glenn Sudhop and 6-11 Craig Watts. Tyler completed two three-point plays after alley-oop passes in the first half as the Titans were able to effectively penetrate the inside of the State zone.

But after the switch to man-to-man, the Titan postman was rendered ineffective. He picked up four fouls in the first seven minutes of the second half and scored only four points after halting time to finish with 19 for the evening, high for the game.

Tyler spent much of the second half on the bench and his absence helped prevent a Detroit comeback. "Rebounding is very tough for us with Terry Tyler out of the game," Gaines said.

Sloan was proud of his team's performance on the boards, especially Pinder and Whitney, who had 14. "We did a real good job on the boards. We kept them off the boards better when we went to man."

The State man-to-man defense, which held Detroit to nearly 20 points below its season's scoring average, helped the Wolfpack quickly build an 11-point lead early in the second half.

Detroit, led by Kevin Smith, kept battling back, however, and State was unable to put the game on ice. The Wolfpack was hurt by a 38.5 field goal percentage in the second half.

"We kind of stumbled around a little bit there at the end," Sloan said. "It could have been much worse."

The Wolfpack coach used ten players extensively in the game due to the stifling head in the coliseum. "I knew we would have to play a lot of people tonight," Sloan said. "It was designed to keep fresh players on the court for us."

State went into a semi-stall late in the game after going up by 10. "We had a 10-point lead and it was hot," Sloan explained. "We wanted to make them pay a penalty to chase us around. If we'd have hit our free throws, it'd have been a lot easier."

Four State players broke into double figures in the scoring column, led by Pinder's 18. Whitney added 17 and Austin, who seeded the crowd of 11,800 on several dazzling drives, had 12. Donnie Perkins added 10.

Besides Tyler's 19, Detroit got 17 points from guard John Long, 16 from Duerod and 12 from Smith, all of those in the second half.

"I'm just pleased to death we had another chance after the triple-overtime loss (to Marland) in the ACC tournament," Sloan said. State's next chance will come Sunday night in Madison Square Garden when the Wolfpack faces Georgetown in the tournament's semifinals.

'Bird' Is Back

By HERSHEL NISSENON
AP Sports Writer

Now hear this, you American League baseballs — "The Bird" is back!

And Mark "The Bird" Fidrych says he's over his sore arm, which means that flocks of baseballs are in for sore arms when the talkative Fidrych gets his verbal act down pat.

"The Bird" won his second exhibition game Tuesday, allowing one run — on two singles around a stolen base — in three innings as the Detroit Tigers trounced the Philadelphia Phillies 8-3.

Fidrych, who missed the last 12 weeks of 1977 with tendinitis in his pitching arm after winning Rookie of the Year honors in '76, said he threw "a heck of a lot more" fast balls than he did in his first spring appearance.

"Every time I go out there, I let loose," the 23-year-old said.

"If you short-arm it, you can hurt yourself. Even if I had a sore arm I'd go all out. I gave up being concerned about it. If it goes again, it goes again. That's part of life."

Meanwhile, two veteran left-handers were in the spotlight with mixed results.

Oakland's Vida Blue allowed one hit in four innings and out-pitched Frank Tanana as the A's notched their first spring triumph, defeating the California Angels 7-2. "I imagine you'll see him April 7 in Anaheim," said Manager Bobby Winkles, naming his opening day pitcher.

Ken Holtzman, however, was bombed for seven runs and nine hits in just two innings as the Atlanta Braves clobbered the world champion New York Yankees 11-1. After a 2-3 record and 5.75 earned run average in '77, Holtzman was being showcased for a probable deal, since the second inter-league trading period ends tonight.

Elsewhere: —George Foster slammed three home runs and a double and Mike Lum drilled a game-winning two-run homer in the ninth as the Cincinnati Reds outlasted the St. Louis Cardinals 11-10.

—Dwight Evans socked a three-run homer and Mike Torrez hurled four strong innings as the Boston Red Sox beat the Toronto Blue Jays 3-1.

—Lee May rapped out the Pirates with a 387 score. Arkansas State and East Tennessee State were tied for fourth with 389s.

Donny Owens led the Pirate individuals with a 73, two strokes behind a trio tied for first place at 71. Other Pirate scores included Tim Parkin 78, Steve Jones 78, Keith Hiller 79, Mike Buckmaster 79, and David Brogan 82.

The tournament continues through Thursday.

Golfers Are 3rd

PINEHURST — East Carolina University's golf team was in third place after part of the first round of the Pinehurst Intercollegiate Invitational Golf Tournament played yesterday.

The complete round was washed out by rain, and was to be completed this morning. Georgia Southern had taken the lead, however, among those teams finished with a 364 score.

South Carolina was second with 386, followed by the Pirates with a 387 score. Arkansas State and East Tennessee State were tied for fourth with 389s.

Donny Owens led the Pirate individuals with a 73, two strokes behind a trio tied for first place at 71. Other Pirate scores included Tim Parkin 78, Steve Jones 78, Keith Hiller 79, Mike Buckmaster 79, and David Brogan 82.

The tournament continues through Thursday.

Bucs Hire New Football Coach

East Carolina University head football coach Pat Dye has announced the appointment of Wayne Hall to the Pirate football coaching staff.

Hall comes to East Carolina after serving for two years as linebacker coach at Virginia Tech. Prior to working at VPI, Hall was a graduate coach for two seasons under Bear Bryant at the University of Alabama.

The 27-year-old Hall will be in charge of the defensive line for East Carolina.

A graduate of Alabama, Hall earned a degree in business administration in 1973. While playing for the Crimson Tide, Hall was a linebacker on squads that played in the Cotton, Sugar and Orange Bowls after winning the Southeastern Conference title each year.

Hall was born in Jacksonville, Fla., attended Huntsville High School in Huntsville, Ala. and is married to the former Pat Hatcher.

At the start of the 1977 National Football League season, Southern California, with 41 players, had the most men on NFL rosters.

Martin Is Experienced

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

With all of last year's starters returning, first-year Martin Academy softball coach Elaine Crandall is optimistic about this year's team and anxious to get the season underway.

"I think we're looking real well. I really do," she said. "I'm real excited about it."

The Lady Pioneers finished with about a 500 record last year, but Crandall is hoping for much better from the team this season.

"One thing is, all the players are back. That's a big help. I've got good hitters and some real strong arms. I think experience will be the big thing." Crandall said the team has only been able to practice for about a week, however, so it may take a few games to reach peak form.

Senior Gay Griffin and sophomore Lou Johnson will be the leaders in the Lady Pioneer infield this season, Crandall said. Griffin will start at shortstop and is "real strong in that position." Lou Johnson will get the nod at first base.

Rounding out the Martin infield will be Debbie Roberson, a senior, at second and Linda Jo Warren, another senior, at third.

"I think they're pretty strong," Crandall commented on the entire infield. "All are good at their positions."

The coach hasn't designated the individual positions her outfielders will play, but has narrowed the field down to four. Lib Johnson, Lou's twin sister, will start in center field, but she is the only one to have nailed down a specific spot. She has a "very strong arm."

The outfielders will be 8th-grader Amy Corey, sophomore Gloria Wynne and senior Lisa Bunting.

Amy Perry will be the team's catcher, while sophomore Marsha Griffin and freshman Lisa Thomas will make up the pitching staff. Crandall said she feels her pitchers will "do pretty well."

The Lady Pioneers will compete in the Tar Heel Independent Conference.

"The conference has some good teams, but I'm really not the familiar with it," the rookie coach said. "It will be a good schedule, I think."

Crandall couldn't give a definite prediction of her team's chances for success this year, but said, "We'll go better than half, and I'm hoping for like first or second" in the conference.

New NFL Rules Passed To Aid Passing Games

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — If you thought the Lynn Swanns and Drew Pearsons, the Dave Caspers and Russ Franceses, the Ken Stablers and Fran Tarkentons were dead before, wait'll you see 'em in action next season.

They'll have more time and more room to operate — and perhaps a little less fear about getting clobbered, too, thanks to the votes Tuesday by the National Football League's club owners.

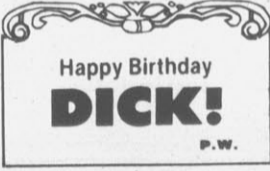

The NFL, concerned that the increasing emphasis on defense and the steady drop in scoring could someday lead to an erosion of fan interest, decided to try and open up the offense in 1978 by:

- Allowing offensive linemen a little more freedom in their use of hands and arms against pass-rushers.
- Limiting the amount of contact (called "chucking") a defender can use against a potential receiver.
- Adding a "side judge" to increase the officials' coverage of downfield pass areas and prohibit mayhem occasionally perpetrated against receivers in the recent past.

The owners also decided to allow officials to penalize players who "bait or taunt" the opposition (an effort to cut down on potentially violent confrontations); to permit a receiver to tip a pass to a teammate without requiring a defender to touch the ball between them; to prohibit forward passes after the ball has crossed the scrimmage line, even if it is carried or thrown back again before the pass is made; to assess a 10-second and 5-yard penalty against a team which, in an official's judgment, stops the clock by intentionally committing a foul or penalty; to assess a safety when a passer intentionally grounds the ball in his own end zone; to reduce other intentional grounding penalties from 15 to 10 yards (retaining the loss of down); and to permit hurdling of players by a ball-carrier to avoid by being tackled.

"Unquestionably in recent years coaches have adopted a lot of the Darrell Royal philosophy," NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle said of the former University of Texas coach, "that if you pass three things can happen and two of them are bad. That in turn has made more conservative offenses and has cut point production down considerably." a drop of nearly a dozen points a game in the last dozen years.

Rutgers Pulls Upset

By GARY MYERS
AP Sports Writer

It was a strange ending to a very peculiar game, but the bottom line shows Rutgers going to the semifinals of the National Invitation Tournament. Indiana State led Rutgers 56-53 with 3:46 to go at Piscataway, N.J., Tuesday night. Following a Rutgers missed shot, Indiana State attempted to stall the game away, but Rutgers forced a turnover. The Scarlet Knights again misfired and the Sycamores went right back into a stall. And again they lost the ball. This time Rutgers' 6-foot-9 center James Bailey connected to cut the lead to 56-55. Bailey then stole the inbound pass and hit a 15-foot jumper with 17 seconds to go. That's where the turmoil began. Indiana State set up for the last shot, trying to work the ball into All-American forward Larry Bird. But the Rutgers box-and-one defense converged on Bird — who scored a game-high 23 points — and Harry Morgan missed a desperation shot with three seconds showing on the clock. "Rutgers played great defense on Bird the whole game and at the end we couldn't get him the ball," said Sycamore Coach Bob King. "Morgan had to take the shot." Rutgers' Tom Brown grabbed the rebound and was intentionally fouled with two seconds to go. He missed the first foul shot and intentionally missed the second, not allowing the Sycamores to set up for a final shot. But the Sycamores weren't out of it — yet. Indiana State rebounded Brown's miss and heaved the ball out to Bird, standing at midcourt. He collided with Steve Hefele as time ran out. King charged referees Bob Wortman and James Desman, both of the neutral Mid-American Conference, claiming that Bird was fouled before the buzzer. "The referees told me that there was no foul, that there was no contact," King said. "How can there be no foul? They wound up rolling on the floor." Bird also went after the officials, but to no avail. In other NIT quarter-final action, Georgetown defeated Dayton 71-62 and North Carolina State beat 18th-ranked Detroit 84-77.

In the semifinals, starting Sunday at Madison Square Garden, North Carolina State will face Georgetown and Rutgers will meet the winner of the Nebraska-Texas game, being played tonight at Austin, Texas. Abdel Anderson led Rutgers with 16 points, and Bailey — who scored Rutgers' last seven points — was held to 13 points and played just 18 minutes because of foul trouble. Kendall "Tiny" Pinder scored 18 points and Hawkeye Whitney added 17 as North Carolina State eliminated Detroit. The Wolfpack scored the last eight points of the first half and outscored the Titans 11-6 at the outset of the second half to take a 55-44 lead.

Detroit managed to close the gap to 61-58 with 11 minutes to play, but the Wolfpack pulled away and put the game away. "We went down fighting," said Detroit Coach Dave Gainey. "Our kids played their heart out. There's no doubt in my mind that N.C. State will win the NIT. I hope they do." Detroit finished the season at 25-4. Reserve center Ed Hopkins scored 18 points to lead Georgetown past Dayton on the Flyers' home court. Both of the Hoyas' NIT wins have come on the road. They defeated Virginia at Charlottesville and won at Dayton, where the Flyers had a 17-2 record.

Every Team In Pacific Division Has A Chance At NBA Playoffs

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Imagine every team in a division making the National Basketball Association playoffs. Okay, now stop imagining and look at the NBA standings. Golden State, in last place in the Pacific Division, is just 1 1/2 games behind Milwaukee in the race for the final Western Conference playoff berth following the Warriors' 103-96 victory over the Chicago Bulls Tuesday night. Here's the way the playoff setup works: the four divisional winners qualify, as do the teams with the next four best records in each conference. Thus it is possible for every club from a five-team division like the Pacific to qualify, as long as the record of the last-place team in the Pacific is better than the record of the second-place team in the Midwest.

Seven teams are fighting for three Western Conference playoff berths. Only six games separate the No. 4 team in the conference, Los Angeles, from the No. 9 team, Detroit. Golden State, Milwaukee and Los Angeles all strengthened their chances with victories Tuesday night. While the Warriors were beating the Bulls, the Bucks defeated Phoenix 121-106 and the Lakers outscored the New York Knicks 135-117. In other NBA games, the Boston Celtics beat the Detroit Pistons 105-98, the Buffalo Braves topped the San Antonio Spurs 123-115 in overtime, the Cleveland Cavaliers defeated the Houston Rockets 119-98, the Washington Bullets stopped the Seattle SuperSonics 120-115 and the New Orleans Jazz surprised the Portland Trail Blazers 109-103.

State ahead to stay. Rick Barry scored 10 of his 24 points in the fourth quarter and caused six turnovers that helped clinch the victory for Golden State. Bucks 121, Suns 106 Brian Winters scored 29 points and rookie Ernie Grunfeld added 22 as Milwaukee built a 73-49 lead in the third period and coasted home despite 38 points by the Suns' Walter Davis. Lakers 135, Knicks 117 Los Angeles pulled away from New York with an 80-point second half, including a 43-point fourth quarter. Adrian Dantley scored 29, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Don Ford 22 each and Lou Hudson and Charlie Scott 18 each. Jazz 109, Blazers 103 Aaron James hit three consecutive baskets in the final two minutes as New Orleans scored the final 10 points of the game to beat Portland. Celtics 105, Pistons 98 Boston dealt a blow to Detroit's fading playoff hopes as John Havlicek and Dave Cowens combined for eight points in the final 2 1/2 minutes as the Celtics erased a '95-'91 deficit.

Jamesville Rolls By Plymouth, 11-3

PLYMOUTH — Jamesville High School opened its baseball season last night with an 11-3 romp over Plymouth's Vikings. The Bullets banged out only seven hits in the game, but bunched their runs together. Jamesville gained the lead in the first inning, scoring three runs. Toby Holliday walked and Glenn Ellis also drew a free pass to first. Trent Ange singled in Holliday, and Ed Lilley singled to score Ellis. Jeffrey Holliday then hit a sacrifice fly to score Ange. What proved to be the winning run came in the second. Alan Frazier walked, stole second and moved to third on an t. He scored on a wild pitch for a 4-0 lead. The Bullets added four more in the fifth and three in the sixth, while all three Plymouth runs came in the fourth. Lilley, Ange and Toby Holliday each had two hits to pace the Bullet attack. # Kinston Tops Chargers

KINSTON — Kinston High School added single runs in the fourth and sixth innings to edge past Ayden-Grifton's Chargers yesterday, 7-5, in a baseball game. It was the second straight victory for the Vikings over the Chargers. Ayden-Grifton scored first, getting a run in the top of the first. Harold Edwards and Ed Coley both singled and Clayton McLawhorn walked to load them up. A walk to David Smith scored Edwards. But Kinston came back with two in the bottom of the frame. Marshall Whitfield doubled and scored on Glenn Spence's triple. A wild pitch scored Spence for a 2-1 lead. Ayden-Grifton got a run in the second to tie it up. Brady Quinn walked and stole up, scoring when Edwards tripled. In the third, Kinston moved back ahead with three more runs. 5-2: Spence walked, as did Walter Gardner. Phil Bailey then cracked a three-run homer. What proved to be the winning run, came in the fourth. Kim Lamm singled and stole up. Spence then singled him in. Kinston added its other run in the sixth, after Ayden-Grifton had scored three in the sixth. Edwards and Quinn each had two hits for the Chargers, while Spence had two for Kinston. Ayden-Grifton, now 0-2, is at home Friday to Jones Senior. Ayden-Grifton 210 030 0-5 7 2 Kinston 203 101 x-7 7 0 Dail, C. Teachey (3), M. # Dutch, Moluccans Agree More Terrorism Ahead

By DAVID MINTHORN
Associated Press Writer

ASSEN. The Netherlands (AP) — Dutch officials and militant South Moluccans warned of more terrorism to come despite a successful commando raid that freed 70 hostages only 29 hours after Moluccans imprisoned them in a government building.

"More blood will have to be spilled," said one member of the Moluccan independence movement. "The Dutch must recognize our claim to their support for the freedom of our homeland."

"There's no way to stop them from hatching these plots," said Assen city spokesman Chris van der Veen. "As long as there are South Moluccans in jail, their comrades will try to force their release."

Marines of the anti-terrorist unit that ended a double Moluccan siege last year stormed the provincial headquarters Tuesday and captured three gunmen after they reported falsely that they had begun killing hostages. The terrorists were 19, 20 and 22 years old.

"Our decision was determined by the fact that they refused to negotiate with us," said government spokesman Wim van Leeuwen.

No serious injuries were reported in the commando assault. The Moluccans shot and killed a 40-year-old civil servant Monday, and officials said 11 other persons were wounded or injured.

The assault by some 100 marines lasted 20 minutes. The commandos set off explosives at the back of the building to draw the attention of the terrorists, then broke through the front door and rushed up the stairs to the top story where the hostages were being held.

Armed with rifles, pistols and a submachine guns, the terrorists, demanded the release of 21 other Moluccans jailed for previous attacks, $13 million and a plane to fly all of them out of the country.

One of the hostages, Dini Huisjes, 25, said their captors were "rotten boys, real rascals" who from time to time Monday fired at persons outside and who were obviously pleased when they wounded a news photographer.

"They were shooting to hit. It didn't bother them if somebody was killed," she said.

Then they rounded up the hostages, forced them to sit in a circle and suddenly pointed to one of the men.

"They said, 'Stand up, that man wearing glasses — you are going to die.'" Mrs. Huisjes continued. "They took him to a window and just shot him to death. I don't know why, probably because he didn't follow their orders."

The victim was Karel de Groot, a city planner.

The terrorists were local youths, but leaders of the independence movement among 15,000 Moluccans in the area repudiated them. However, the leaders warned more trouble unless the government supports their demand for the independence of the So-Molucca Islands from Indonesia.

The Christian Moluccans were supporters of the Dutch during the Indonesian revolution after World War II and were promised independence. But in the 1949 settlement their islands became part of Indonesia with a central government dominated by the Moslem Javanese and Sumatrans.

Crab Shelling Is Automated

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Scientists from North Carolina State University have come up with a new food processor which shells crab meat and eliminates the need for crabs to be picked by hand.

Dr. Frank B. Thomas, the N.C. State scientist who headed the project, explained, "The need for a device like this came about for several reasons. A generation of older people who picked crab for a living are retiring, and it's become very hard in today's labor market to find pickers. Also, today's higher minimum wage makes labor very expensive considering that processors only get a 15-pound yield from 85 pounds of crab."

The machine is designed to de-shell several varieties of crab and works by the means of pressurized rollers. As the meat moves back and forth, pressure is exerted on the rollers and the shell is separated from the meat.

The scientists, from the university's Department of Food Science, reviewed the entire preparation process which included tranquilizing, dipping and the checking of cooking time. But their eye was on the rolling process and the quality of the finished product.

Except for some water loss which meant the meat needed additional seasoning, the machine worked perfectly. The meat had good color, kept its shape and had fewer shell fragments than most handpicked crab meat.

"As a result of our research," Thomas said, "three North Carolina companies have already adapted to the processor." He predicted the machine would prove "to be a tremendous asset to the industry."

Free Lecture On Lost Colony

MANTEO — An illustrated talk on the water color drawings of John White and his sensitive perception of the Carolina Algonkian Indians is the subject of a free lecture being given at 8 p.m. tonight.

The lecture will be held in the Lost Colony Activities Building next to the Elizabethan Gardens at Fort Raleigh National Historic Site just north of Manteo.

Professor Nancy McCauley of the National Humanities Institute, New Haven, Connecticut, is giving the lecture.

Currently, Professor McCauley is researching original watercolor drawings of artists who accompanied voyages of exploration from the 15th to the early 19th century. She is now writing a documentary script on artist John White for a PBS TV broadcast at a future date.

The presentation is scheduled for Sunday, March 19, 7 P.M., at the Belvoir Free Will Baptist Church, Route 4, Greenville. Rev. John Moran is host pastor.

The play enacts the impact of the Crucifixion on several witnesses, as imagined by Don A. Mueller, the drama's author. Reverend Joseph Jones, director, says the play's aim is to help those who see it to face the question posed in the play by Barabbas, the thief whose place Jesus took: "A man is dying for me. What will I do about it?" Reverend Jones is a member of the college's Speech Department faculty.

The Evangel Players are students attending Free Will Baptist Bible College. The 20-member group is currently on its annual spring tour and will give their program 15 times in North Carolina and Tennessee. They are sponsored by the college's Office of Development, headed by the Reverend Ronald Creech, former North Carolina pastor and State Evangelist for the North Carolina State Association of Free Will Baptists. Reverend Creech will accompany the Evangel Players on the tour.

Jazz Great Is Now An Ad-Man

NEW YORK (UPI) — Benny Goodman, one of the all-time jazz greats, is telling automobile and property owners about the advantages of insuring with Government Employees Insurance Company in TV and radio spots and print advertising.

"Benny Goodman was chosen as our spokesman because he represents quality and because of his appeal to the type of solid citizen we want for our customer," said T.N. Exarhakis, GEICO marketing and communications vice president.

TV and radio spots feature Goodman on clarinet playing a few bars from his famous "Jersey Bounce," then introducing some new GEICO lyrics to go with it. Similar spots will point up the company's home-owners and boat insurance coverage.

First Computer Goes To Pieces

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Old computers never die.

Oscar, the first computer purchased by Hallmark Cards, labored faithfully here for 27 years. Its name was an acronym for its duties: order processing, system-atic administration, control of inventory, analysis and reporting.

But old age finally caught up with the computer which led Hallmark from processing 2,000 greeting card orders a day in 1961 to more than one-half million every 24 hours today. The old war-horse will be used as replacement parts for another firm's bank of similar computers.

Americans Abroad Must Remember Role As Guests

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor

Americans are probably the most peripatetic people in the world. Each year, they head by the millions to near and far-off places in search of new adventures and experiences.

Each is, in effect, an unofficial ambassador of the United States. His, or her, behavior could influence the opinion of some stranger in some foreign place who had heard stories about the "Ugly American" but never actually met an American before.

No one expects every American who goes abroad on vacation to be an expert on foreign affairs, languages, customs and traditions of the various peoples around the world.

But they can add enjoyment to their visit — and make points for the United States — by learning something about the people and history of countries on their itinerary before the trip.

Such an obvious interest in the other fellow's way of life can go a long way toward erasing ill-feelings and suspicions left over by the myth of the self-centered "Ugly American" of the early post World War II years. Incidentally, the "Ugly American" has been replaced by successive waves of "Ugly Germans" and "Ugly Japanese" in more recent years.

The main thing to remember is that you are a guest in the foreign country and any slip in etiquette or behavior — even unintentional — could not only reflect on all Americans but ruin your vacation. (Returning from a trip to Europe several years ago, I overheard a woman tell her seat companion that she loved Italy "but there were too many Italian foreigners there.")

Actually, Americans should have few language difficulties in the popular tourist destinations abroad — a surprising number of people along or near the beaten tracks speak English. (Take warning: I saw a Japanese girl blush furiously at an obscene remark by an American in a Tokyo elevator. I was embarrassed, too.)

You do not have to be a linguist in your travels. But it shouldn't take too long to learn such common phrases as "good morning," "thanks," "excuse me" or even "where is the toilet, please?"

And there is little doubt you will feel a lot more comfortable if you know something about local customs and traditions. They differ from continent to continent and from country to country.

Generalizations are risky. But here are some helpful tips picked up during many years of travel to all four corners of the world:

Europeans shake hands — just a quick pump — with men and women every time they meet. French friends will greet you with kisses on both cheeks. Italians will hug you. Germans will click their heels and bow. In Eastern Europe, men and

Or pull out an English-whatever dictionary and watch the delighted reaction. You might be pleasantly surprised at how anxious everybody will be to be extra helpful. (A French farmer left his tractor in the fields and drove his car about 10 miles to guide me back to the right road in the Loire valley.)

And there is little doubt you will feel a lot more comfortable if you know something about local customs and traditions. They differ from continent to continent and from country to country.

Generalizations are risky. But here are some helpful tips picked up during many years of travel to all four corners of the world:

Europeans shake hands — just a quick pump — with men and women every time they meet. French friends will greet you with kisses on both cheeks. Italians will hug you. Germans will click their heels and bow. In Eastern Europe, men and women may be welcomed with a bear hug and a buss on the cheek. Almost everybody with a degree is called doctor. Formality is important — do not call new acquaintances by their first names unless requested.

In Asia, where touching another's body has been a virtual taboo for years, the generally accepted greeting is to clasp the hands as in prayer and slightly incline the head. In Japan you bow your head slightly unless the other person offers his hand first. Handshaking is becoming more common these days in some of the more westernized nations of the Far East however.

Calling cards are important. Never sit with the soles of your shoes showing, avoid crossing your legs, and do not sit or stand higher than others in the room if possible. And never point directly at a person or object.

Proper dress is important.

also. In many foreign countries, particularly in the major cities and big towns, people generally dress much more conservatively than most Americans do in their hometowns. Save the casual wear for traveling and the beach or mountain resorts. And jackets and ties are still a must after dark in many places, including the tropics.

If your sightseeing includes places of worship, observe the local religious traditions. In Europe, women are expected to cover their hands and arms when visiting Roman Catholic churches. Shoes must not be worn inside Moslem mosques and men should cover their heads when entering Jewish synagogues. Be quiet — particularly if services are under way — and do not smoke or take pictures unless official permission is granted. It is customary to drop a few coins in poor boxes or other receptacles even if a member of a tour group. You also tip the man or boy who watches your shoes at the mosque or provides the head covering at the synagogue.

In Japan, you might have to leave your shoes outside when visiting private homes, inns, restaurants, tea and geisha houses or other places where the ancient custom prevails. In some of the Moslem countries, if invited to dinner at a private home you should offer to take your shoes off before entering.

Table manners differ, too. It is not considered proper to pick up a piece of fried chicken with your hand in some European countries. And you don't have to switch knife and fork while eating, as we do in the United States.

On the other hand, if invited to dinner in some countries in the Middle East you might have to eat with your hand — the right one only, the left one is reserved for certain bodily functions and is taboo. Here it is proper to leave a little food on the plate and belching is acceptable — regarded as a compliment to the cook. Don't smoke or ask for liquor unless your host makes an offer — Moslems are forbidden to drink alcoholic beverages.

If heading for the Far East, practice eating with chopsticks. It is not as difficult as it appears. Knives and forks may not be available and your host will appreciate your efforts. At Chinese dinners, the guest of honor is expected to taste every dish — and there can be more than a dozen — first. You can leave something on the plate, too; otherwise you'll get seconds.

Wherever, mind your manners. Veteran travelers will agree that the American least liable to win friends and influence people is the one who pushes his way to the front of the line, demands special treatment because he is an American, complains about almost everything, and never speaks below a shout.

Television Meant Renewed Fame For Irwin Shaw

By PHIL THOMAS
AP Books Editor
NEW YORK (AP) — After writing a steady stream of novels, short stories and plays for more than 40 years, Irwin Shaw finds it wryly amusing that television has led a new, young generation to "discover" him.

IRWIN SHAW

"I sold my first short story when I was 20. I'm 65 now," says Shaw. He laughs with delight as he recalls, "I used to go from year to year, just hanging in there. Then all of a sudden — at my age — this happens."

"This" was the televised version of Shaw's best-selling novel "Rich Man, Poor Man."

"TV did a pretty good job with that book," Shaw says, pointing out that "because of that series they reprinted all of my books all over the world."

"Sure, this made me money — I paid a tremendous income tax last year — but I'm not so much interested in the money as I am in the fact that people are reading my books. And the kids seem to think they've discovered a new, young writer. Why, they're reading books that came out 40 years ago. Isn't that funny?"

Shaw — who has published more than 20 novels, short story collections, plays and nonfiction books — says plans are under way to translate his novel, "Beggarmen, Thief," into a television series. The book, Shaw's latest and another best seller, is his sequel to the saga of the Jordache family which began in "Rich Man, Poor Man."

Hunching forward in his chair, the powerfully-built Shaw stabs the air with his finger to emphasize that "I am now through with the Jordache family. No more!" But, a moment later he laughs aloud and says, "although, what I might do — as a joke, of course — is stick one of the Jordache characters in a future book of mine, just as a minor character. That would be kind of sly."

Shaw says he is currently going through his many short stories and plans to select 60 of them for inclusion in a book to be published late in 1978. He plans to write a preface for the volume and then return to work on a book in progress that he calls "Novel No. 10."

"I've got about 250 pages of it done," he says. "It's an absolutely new book, it has no Jordaches in it. It's a very closely plotted book and small in scope. It's about corruption through charity and good will and more than that I don't want to say."

Shaw, who grew up in Brooklyn but now divides his living quarters between Klosters, Switzerland, and the United States, says he is thinking of moving back to his native land permanently.

Gospel Sing Is Set March 18

There will be a gospel sing at the Meadowbrook Pentecostal Holiness Church on Saturday, March 18, at 7:30 p.m.

Guest singers are the "Gospelairees" from Roanoke Rapids. There will also be some local groups singing. The pastor, the Rev. G.A. Casper, invites the public to attend.

Urge Hiring Over-40s

Mayor Percy Cox has designated this week as National Employ the Older Worker Week here and urged "all employees of this area to give special consideration to the skills and qualifications of those men and women 40 years of age and older."

Cox related, "Americans have been reflecting upon the contributions citizens through the years have made to this country. We need also to think about a group of Americans who have made a contribution and can still make even greater contributions — given the opportunity."

The mayor said there are 74 million citizens 40 years of age or older and many of them are having difficulty finding work "for no reason other than that there is a prejudice against older workers."

Noting that the federal government is working to eliminate "this unfounded discrimination against older workers," Cox endorsed the government efforts and designated the observance here through March 18.

"I am also asking those public officials who are responsible for job placement, counseling, training and retraining services to intensify, throughout the entire year, their efforts to help older workers find suitable jobs and training opportunities," he said.

Found A Rare Treasure In The Trash Pile

By JULES LOH
AP Special Correspondent
WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass. (AP) — Everyone dreams of finding a treasure in a trash pile. Ed Bohl did, and doesn't know what to do with it.

"I rented a safe deposit box to keep it in. But what's the use of having it if you don't have it around to look at? I like to look at it and wonder about something being that old."

Ed Bohl found a bottle. It does inspire wonder.

It is made of glass, very thin glass. It is about seven inches tall with a long, slender neck and a ball-shaped bottom. The glass is coated here and there with a greenish crystalline film.

The experts tell him it is an unguentarium, a vessel that held perfumed oils buried in the tombs of people who died long ago.

When Ed took it to one expert to be appraised, the man said, "I thought you were going to show me an antique, not a museum piece," and wouldn't touch it for fear he might break it.

In 10 years as a trash collector, Ed Bohl has found any number of useful items people have thrown out.

His wife used a sewing machine he carted off. He has scavenged a whole set of dishes, a flint-lock rifle, $89 in loose pennies, a working clock, a set of brass scales, an assortment of silver spoons and various bottles and vases which his wife collects.

He found this bottle among the rubbish from a house stripped of its furnishings after the owner had died. Ed tossed it in the back of his dump truck and went about his collections.

"Everytime I threw another load in the truck, that little bottle caught my eye. Finally I tossed it on the seat next to me. It knocked around in the cab for three months before I brought it home."

His wife, Patricia, thought it was unusual, too. When she took it to the sink to wash it, she found a note inside.

The note was dated April 15, 1933. It was written to a Miss Harris from someone named Grace C. Parcella, who said she was passing the bottle along to Miss Harris out of friendship.

"I was told," Grace Parcella wrote, "that it was buried with the mummies about 2,000 year ago and takes its coloring from the elements in the earth."

Ed and Patricia didn't believe it, of course.

Ed decided to show it to a professor at Williams College.

The professor, impressed, sent him to an expert on ancient glass at nearby North Adams State College. That was the man who wouldn't touch it. He had little doubt what he was looking at.

Proper scientific measurements were made and an actual-size color photograph taken. Ed sent the information to places his consultants recommended: The Corning Museum of Glass, the New York Metropolitan Museum of Art, the University of Pennsylvania Museum.

All the experts agreed it was what Grace Parcella said it was, that is in excellent condition and that it likely was made in either Syria or Palestine between 150 A.D. and 50 A.D.

South Carolina Atlas Is Found And Returned

BEAUFORT, S.C. (AP) — An early 19th century atlas of South Carolina, taken by a Union officer who was in the force occupying Beaufort, is back at the Beaufort library.

Julie Zachowski, county librarian, said the volume was discovered in the Flint, Mich., public library and sent to the South Carolina State Library in Columbia, then back to Beaufort early this year. Miss Zachowski says the book is in good condition and has only two pages missing.

She hopes to arrange for it to be publicly displayed but that no facilities are presently available for that.

Mills, a native South Carolinian who designed many public and private structures in the early 1800s, was state architect from 1820-30 and the federal architect Washington in the administrations of seven presidents.

He worked on his 1825 atlas for five years. The volume contained maps of the state and its individual sections and was prepared under the direction of the General Assembly.

Charles H. Lesser of the state Department of Archives and History, said the volume had a large printing but that copies are in great demand by collectors.

Research by his office and the Flint library determined that the one now in Beaufort was originally in the port city before the Civil War. It has the words "Beaufort Library" written inside the cover.

The book was brought to Flint by Dr. James C. Wilson, a surgeon stationed at Beaufort.

Flint Librarian Cheryl Renwick wrote, "Whether Dr. Wilson confiscated the book personally or received it from another person would be total speculation."

A member of Wilson's family gave it to the Flint library, apparently within the decade after the war.

Miss Zachowski's research shows it may have been taken by Federal troops for auction. She said, "The books were going to be sold in New York, but the auction was called off. The books from Beaufort were stored at the Smithsonian in Washington for return."

"They were destroyed by fire there."

She said the atlas is the only book from the pre-war collection now at the Beaufort library.

Look For New Ways To Finance Campaigns

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — T-shirts, telethons and art auctions will be featured this year as candidates for the U.S. Senate look for new ways to raise the money to finance their campaigns.

State Sen. Lawrence Davis recently held what his backers describe as a highly successful telethon. It cost about $6,000 and produced $16,300 in pledges.

State Sen. McNeill Smith of Greensboro is asking supporters to contribute through monthly drafts on their bank accounts. So far, he's gotten $35,000 in pledges that way.

The Smith campaign also hopes to raise some money through the sale of bright yellow T-shirts bearing the legend, "I'm a skinny cat for Mac Smith." It's an effort to suggest that the fat cats are supporting some of the other candidates.

Major art auctions in Charlotte and Raleigh are being planned by the staff of Luther Hodges Jr., the former Charlotte banker. They are described as "two unique fundraising events designed to benefit not only the Luther Hodges Senate campaign but also the state of the arts in North Carolina."

The Hodges campaign plan also calls for peddling Hodges T-shirts as well as scarves designed by Dot Hodges and canvas handbags.

Campaign workers say the emphasis on small donations is the result of a federal law limiting campaign gifts to $1,000. With $5,000 and $10,000 contributions a thing of the past, the candidates are scrambling for any size gift up to the limit.

"This is a tough year, as all off-year elections are," said George Atry, Hodges' campaign manager. "The changes in the election laws make it tougher, and while I approve of them wholeheartedly, they have made it much more difficult to run a campaign on."

Ron Carpenter, a Davis supporter, sees it as part of a transformation of campaign financing practices, saying campaigns in North Carolina are becoming more sophisticated.

And he sees an effort by each candidate to do something different as "striving for a different flair."

All this doesn't mean that candidates aren't sticking to the tried and true techniques like direct mail advertising and those $25 and $50-per-head receptions and dinners. Such operations are expected to furnish the bread and butter of campaigns for years to come.

Rep. Frederick W. Richmond, D-N.Y., sent President Carter a Library of Congress analysis last week that said the regulation was declared null and void by a federal court in California two years ago.

Bergland said the material provided by Richmond was "construed to be an unofficial opinion."

"We'll be guided by the opinion of the attorney general in this matter," Bergland said.

Enrollment in the $5.5 billion a year food stamp program has shown a sharp increase since the coal strike began Dec. 6. Department officials say they cannot tell how much of the increase could be blamed on bad weather and regular unemployment and how much on the strike.

Can Withhold Food Stamps

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department says the administration has the legal authority to cut off food stamps for striking coal miners if they ignore federal orders to return to work.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland said a decision to proceed with the food stamp cutoff was made Monday night at a White House meeting attended by Attorney General Griffin Bell and others.

"The attorney general indicated that they're satisfied that the regulations in force are authorized by law," Bergland said Tuesday.

The regulation, adopted in 1973, calls for denying food stamps to heads of households involved in a strike that has been declared illegal by a court.

Youngster With Ulcers?

Imagine how upset I was when I was told that my 12-year-old daughter had ulcers of the stomach. I just can't believe it. I thought ulcers only happened to older people. Does this mean that she'll always have it? — Mrs. J. S., Wis.

Dear Mrs. S.:

This is a major misconception about peptic ulcers of the stomach and the duodenum (upper intestine). Children may complain of bellyaches which are quickly attributed to the junk food and pickle-and-ice cream diet. But today, physicians are keenly aware that some stomach pains can be caused by ulcers and they readily use X-rays to locate them.

Children are less likely to be aware of the cycle of pain and the relief after eating than are adults. It is this cycle of pain that may awaken a child in the night. There is a temptation to accuse children of wanting to gain attention by these complaints. Perhaps some do. But my experience with children is that they are very reliable and in general complain when there is good reason for it.

You are fortunate that your doctor, with excellent insight and diagnostic support, confirmed the presence of an ulcer. This early detection coupled with adequate treatment should be sufficient to return your daughter to good health.

There is no reason why you should anticipate any permanent or recurrent ulcer condition when once she has been cured.

I once was a heavy drinker. When I was told that my liver was enlarged because of alcohol, I stopped drinking entirely. That was 12 years ago. Is there any way to find out if my liver is completely normal now? I feel that I am in perfect health. — Mr. P. L., Va.

Dear Mr. L.:

There are indeed many ways by which the health or disease of the liver can be determined. In fact, a series of complicated blood studies and enzyme tests can give what is known as a "liver profile." The functioning capacity of the liver is readily determined by the compilation of these new and definitive studies.

You are fortunate that you recognized the threat to your life by the ingestion of large quantities of alcohol. It is a testimonial to your good judgment that you stopped drinking. Now you should be tested at regular intervals to insure that no residual damage to the liver remains.

Rastafarians Are Gaining Converts In Caribbean

By JAMES CUCHIARA
CHRISTIANSTED, U.S. Virgin Islands (UPI) — The mystic Rastafarian cult, a movement of marijuana-smoking blacks who want to drop out of what they regard as a corrupt white society, is spreading from Jamaica throughout the Caribbean.

It is now gaining converts in the U.S. Virgin Islands. The "Rastas," as they are popularly called, are most easily distinguished by their hair, worn in dreadlocks, although genuine Rastafarians complain of many imitators who copy the hairdo as a fad but don't go along with the rest of the lifestyle.

Since Rastafarianism is a way of life and not a political movement, a church or a social club, no formal membership rolls are kept. Estimates as to the numbers of followers are a matter of guesswork. But it is generally believed there are thousands on Jamaica, perhaps thousands more in Trinidad, hundreds on the smaller islands like Dominica and Antigua and between 400 and 500 in the U.S. Virgin Islands, almost all of them young.

The cult derives its name from the late Ethiopian emperor Haile Selassie, whose name before he ascended to the throne in 1930 was Ras Tafari, "ras" being the Ethiopian word for prince. The demise of the Ethiopian monarchy and its replacement by a pro-Marxist junta doesn't seem to have stilled the growth of Rastafarianism in the Caribbean.

Rastafarians use the Christian Bible as a guide, but do not accept it as the complete word of God.

"We, the lost children of Africa, are looking for our Moses," said 36-year-old Trinidadian Horace Richardson, who is a Rasta preacher on the island of St. Croix under the mystical name of I-I Am, reminiscent of the Hebrew Yahweh name for God meaning, I Am Who I Am.

Rastafarians are often vague as to their eventual political aims when they find their new black Moses. Sometimes they speak of establishing a new black nation in the Caribbean. At other times they express a desire to return to Africa.

"The planters were paid at the abolition of slavery," a Rastafarian flyer circulating on St. Croix proclaims. "We have yet to be paid. We are the sons and daughters of slaves. We have come to the end of this service. We desire return back to Africa. Transportation to and finance of such a venture is a responsibility of Babylon U.S.A. and her allies."

Whatever their eventual goal, the Rastas are unanimous in their condemnation of the present white-ruled society, which they call Babylon after the sinful tower of the Biblical days.

The present society will collapse as surely as Babylon did, according to I-I Am and for the same reasons — "An overweight of vice, hypocrisy and materialism."

Rastafarians have developed their own kind of language, based on English but without any pronouns except for the first person "I" which they use constantly in a kind of monotonous litany.

"I-I Am seeking knowledge and understanding of I-Man God to free I-Man brothers and sisters held in captivity in the system what we are living today," is a typical Rasta pronouncement coming from the former Horace Richardson.

Besides some Biblical teachings and Haile Selassie's black idealism, the Rastas have incorporated elements from the Jamaican runaway slave group, the Maroons, into their lives-

tye. The Maroons lived in Jamaica's Blue Mountains for three centuries, smoking ganja (marijuana) and wearing their hair in long plaits greased with the juice of the alo plant, in a tribal-communal life away from the Jamaican mainstream.

To the Rastas, the dreadlocks are a symbol of strength, like long hair was to Samson, the Israelite who slew Goliath of the Philistines. They consider King David and Solomon forerunners of the cult.

Smoking marijuana is a sacrament to the Rastas and they use the weed generously. "I-I and I brothers believe ganja is the healing of the nation," I-I Am explains.

Another sacrament is land and vegetarianism. The Rastas don't eat meat and grow their own edible plants and vegetables. On many Caribbean isles, they have petitioned governments for their own plots, sometimes in the middle of cities.

Non-violence is another dogma, but the Rastas' commitment to peaceful means was seriously questioned in the Virgin Islands after a Rastafarian confessed to the gunshot slaying of a policeman on St. Croix last summer.

"I brothers going through tribulations," I-I Am said of supposed Rastas in jail for violent crimes. "I did something which I preach against. I would bring shame down on I. I want to shine a light on the deepest part of hell. I want to show them a way out." But he also noted, "there are many false Rastas."

Another Rasta tenet is polygamy and Rasta "prophets" recently testified before the Virgin Islands constitutional convention urging the delegates to lift the ban on polygamy on grounds it would infringe on their rights of religious freedom.

The suggestion got nowhere when feminist delegates suggested that women should be able to have several husbands, too, in that case.

WAITING FOR DINNER — Detroit Zoo worker Sheryl Krause, of Detroit, warms a bottle of milk in the sink of the kitchen in the zoo hospital while a month and a half old camel waits for his dinner. The young camel was abandoned after its birth in the snow and cold; now the young addition is being cared for in the zoo hospital until he can join the rest of the camel population on the outside. (AP Laserphoto)

Young Rancher's Pride; Spitting Llamas Herd

By TIMOTHY KENNY
ATHENA, Ore. (UPI) — In the rolling hill country of eastern Oregon, Andrew Tillman lives the quiet life of the rancher-poet that he is, working his import business in between hours spent caring for his herd — of llamas.

Throughout his life, Tillman has been interested in unusual animals of one sort or another.

As a boy he raised two buffalo calves. Now he spends part of his time tending to his 40 llamas, a herd he believes is the country's third largest.

It all started, said the 25-year-old Tillman, when a friend told him about "these llamas, two or three, he had seen in a pasture in Washington."

He bought his first three from a private dealer shortly after, originally as pack animals. Then he got hooked and bought eight more from the Denver zoo. After that he was off and running — after llamas.

"I've bought them from all over the country," Tillman said, ticking off the list of states that includes Texas, South Dakota and Colorado.

A llama is not an inexpensive purchase, by the way. Tillman says an infant female can cost $2,000 or so while a mature female can run as high as $3,000.

He has his llamas bred, traveling "all over the country to get different bloodlines. I would guess there are approximately 1,500 to 3,000 llamas in the United States. Probably half of those are in zoos. The other half, people like me own."

In fact, the largest herd in North America is owned by Richard Patterson of Sisters, Ore., some 180 miles southwest of Athena as the crow flies. Patterson, who has been in the llama business about 19 years, owns more than 400 at his central Oregon ranch.

While Patterson has been at the llama business a while, Tillman is just starting out, eager to "breed a strength pack animal."

Tillman sells his llama wool, "but I can't produce enough to satisfy the demand," he said.

"The wool is valuable (selling for $1 to $3 an ounce compared to 75 cents a pound for sheep wool) because it's very warm.

The Pendleton Woolen Mills have carded some up for me and I had ponchos and sweaters made from it.

"But," he added, "I'd hate to make my living off it."

At this point in his career, Tillman's money comes mostly from buying, breeding and selling his llamas. He began his llama operations soon after graduating from the University of Oregon in 1974 with a degree in philosophy.

Tillman owns llamas because, simply put, he likes them.

"They're gregarious, social animals. They do spit, seldom at people but at each other a lot. I've been spit on twice by accident. They spit food or saliva, which is odorless.

"If they get really mad they'll get bile up from their stomach. It's like green pea soup. They hold their mouths open for two to three hours afterwards. They don't like it either," said Tillman, laughing.

Llamas are tough customers on occasion, he added. "The males have a fang in top of their mouths that can make a hell of a puncture hole. They're usually very docile but I've seen them kill coyotes out here."

Fantasy Factor In Buying Cars

NEW YORK (UPI) — Many people buy cars for reasons of fantasy more than reality.

"Men in their 40s or 50s, with wives and several children, who buy sports cars are trying to regain their youth more than they are having a vehicle which will satisfy the needs of the family," says Carole Altman, a psychotherapist specializing in sexual communication and a writer for "Forum Magazine."

She points out that shy women who feel insecure and have a low libido may buy large cars which are expensive to operate and much more than they can afford in order to give themselves a sense of power.

Opportunity In Times Of Pessimism

The stock market as measured by the Dow Jones Industrial Average continues to do poorly, and a pessimistic attitude surrounds Wall Street. A contrary attitude at this point of the market cycle might prove worthwhile.

One investment advisory service indexes the investment attitudes — bullish or bearish — of the major investment advisory services. The latest reading shows that 65 percent of the advisory services were bearish, compared with a high reading of nearly 70 percent in August 1974.

Since the record shows that bearish sentiment predominates at market bottoms and bullish sentiment abounds at market tops, contrary thinking suggests that you could be looking at a good buying opportunity.

It takes courage to buy stocks in a declining market. The magnitude of the decline the Dow has experienced in the last year and a half should lead you to consider whether the decline is nearing the bottom. The Dow Jones Industrial Average could fall further before a final bottoming, but upside potential appears to outweigh downside risk at the current time.

Fears of recession, inflation, high interest rates, and a weak dollar have combined to produce extreme pessimism on the part of institutional investors. Their sentiments are reflected in the price declines of the Dow and glamour stocks. Institutional investors are cash heavy now, waiting for an opportunity to buy.

The market seems to have already discounted the recession which may or may not take place late in 1978 or early 1979. By the time a recession is apparent, the markets will already be anticipating an economic recovery.

Recent Conference Board surveys show that consumer confidence in the economy is rising, but this has not been reflected in stock prices. Why? It appears that human nature expects that once a trend is set in motion it will continue. In the case of the stock markets, the decline has run long enough that people expect it to continue. Until the turn actually comes, they do not believe it will.

There are many financially sound companies around with good records of sales, earnings and dividends, selling at relatively low multiples of those earnings. Stock prices may decline a little further, but if the value is there it will be eventually recognized by other investors.

Contrary thinkers believe buying of stocks should be done when the atmosphere is most gloomy, since a high degree of pessimism usually indicates we are nearing the end of a decline. We could be reaching such a point now.

Doctor Looking For 'Old Air'

SEATTLE (AP) — Dr. Reinhold A. Rasmussen is gasping for air and he prefers that it be at least 50 years old.

He has tried sampling air from old wine bottles, tires from ancient tractors and sealed model-ship bottles in his elusive quest.

"We became experts at telling the ages of toilets because we were interested in the air sealed in the floats," quipped Rasmussen.

Rasmussen and his group from the Oregon Graduate Center near Portland are seeking uncontaminated old air to determine how badly man has fouled the atmosphere.

Specifically, they are looking for air sealed off before 1930 to determine whether fluorocarbons, which came into industrial use about five decades ago, are also created spontaneously in nature.

Diseases Linked To Malnutrition

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — Kwashiorkor and marasmus are diseases associated with malnutrition and common to children in several African countries. Youngsters subsisting solely on diets of bananas or sweet potatoes are hardest hit by these illnesses, according to the Christian Children's Fund. Unless remedied by food programs insuring adequate nutrition, the diseases spell irreparable brain damage or even death.

The state of California provides almost 97 percent of the raisins grown in this country and Arizona produces the rest.

Strawberry Picking Is Now For Fun

By DUSTON HARVEY HUNTINGBURG, Ind. (UPI) — Americans won't stoop over and pick strawberries for money any more. But they'll do it for fun.

"Strawberries are becoming more of a recreation industry all the time," says Philip Ahrens, owner of a nursery that sells five to seven million strawberry seedlings annually to gardeners, nurseries and commercial producers.

More and more of the seedlings grown and sold annually by Ahrens and Sons Nursery in this southwestern Indiana town wind up in home gardens and on "pick-your-own" farms near urban areas.

"It's a social change," said Ahrens, 36, whose firm was started by his father 48 years ago. "People won't bend over to pick for money any more, but they will for their own recreation."

"Thousands of acres around cities are being converted into 'you-pick' or 'pick-your-own' strawberry patches for city dwellers, who use them as an excuse for an outing as well as food. A lot of growers are playing up that aspect."

He said farmers near urban areas are converting from corn and soybeans to all types of fruits and vegetables and selling them directly to consumers because they can set their own prices and avoid "four or five" middlemen.

Ahrens said strawberries are no longer picked and shipped long distances except out of California and Florida and, to a much smaller extent, from Michigan.

The "pick-your-own" trend parallels a phenomenal increase in the number of people planting gardens, Ahrens said. He predicted the trend would continue.

"Urban people are turned on by growing something in their own garden. Growing their own food gives them the feeling they are maintaining some of the old American 'do-it-yourself' heritage. And it feels good to get your fingers dirty once in a while."

Ahrens sells 25 varieties of strawberries, shipping dormant seedlings in plastic bags to 26 states. Most go to a half dozen Midwestern states.

The varieties differ in taste, texture, growth time, harvest period, size and disease resistance. Most popular in the upper Midwest are Red Chief and Red Guardian. Ahrens said they come out of a freezer with most of the texture they had going in. Only one new variety was added this year, a brilliant red scarlet developed at Michigan State University.

Catalog orders from gardeners account for a quarter of Ahrens' strawberry plants. He also sells a half million raspberry, grape, asparagus, rhubarb and currant plants annually.

The strawberry has been popular a long time, Ahrens said. There are references to it in the writing of the Greek physician Hippocrates, who lived about 400 B.C., and in the works of the Roman poet Virgil.

It grew as a wild plant until the 1300s, Ahrens said, when Europeans started moving it into their gardens and cultivating it as food. It also was used for decoration, in the background of some artworks of the Renaissance period.

A better tasting berry was produced when wild strawberries found in the Americas were crossed with European varieties. By the mid-1500s, farms in England were growing them as a crop. By the 18th and 19th centuries, they were grown throughout Europe.

Right From The Horse's Mouth

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Chinese New Year started this month and throughout 1978 it's the Year of the Horse. Chinese "Horse" years actually come only once every 12 calendar years, say the experts at Chun King, which is involved in things Oriental. But there is only one thoroughbred horse birthday in the American calendar for purposes of determining age.

U.S. thoroughbred horses are considered "born" on Jan. 1 in the year of birth regardless of the month and date on which they are really born. Thus, a thoroughbred born on Dec. 31, 1977, and one born on Jan. 1, 1978 — a one-day difference — are officially one year apart.

Choking on food is the sixth leading cause of accidental death in the United States, according to the American Council of Life Insurance.

Ringo Starr Is Beating Drums For His Special

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — You always start a story about Ringo Starr by noting he's an ex-Beatle. You always ask him if he favors a Beatles reunion. He says no. And is asked why.

"Because it's like a revival, and I don't feel like I ever died," draws Ringo. He's then asked if he's seen "Beatlemania," a musical in which Beatle look-alikes carry on and sing Beatles songs.

He says no, he doesn't want to, and adds: "Terry Southern, a friend of mine, had the greatest idea. He says what we should do is get together and do a parody on 'Beatlemania.'"

"That'd be the only way we could get back together and" — an amused smile commenced — "they won't come and see us, either."

Ringo, 37, who left Rory Storm's Hurricanes in 1962 to drum for and make a few bob with the Beatles until their split in 1970, now is drumming up publicity for his first solo special on U.S. television.

Airing April 26 on NBC as "Ringo," it's a rock musical comedy loosely based on Mark Twain's "The Prince and the Pauper." Ringo plays both roles, aided by ex-Beatle George Harrison.

Starr said it's about rock stardom, and "we re-create Ringo as people imagine him, with all the women and joys and luxuries of life — when all he really wants is an hour off."

The look-alike pauper is one Ognir Rratz (sic). He, Starr said, makes his way in this world "selling maps to the stars' homes. He dreams he'll end up some day in one of those mansions."

The interview site could have fit right in the show: a Beverly Hills hotel suite, 70 degrees outside, air-conditioning going inside, a blaze in the fireplace to maintain at least 70 degrees.

But Ringo, clad in a black suit and red sneakers, seemed as serene in such surreal surroundings as in his second movie, "The Magic Christian," a time, deadpan spoof of the lunacy money can cause.

Possessed of a dry, sardonic sense of humor, Starr spoke of bracing himself for a fresh round of interviews next month after a vacation-and-business trip to Europe.

While there, he said, he'll be

Railroad Lover Has Six Cars, Lacks An Engine

By RICK BOOTH
The Westerly Sun
STONINGTON, Conn. (AP) — The Stonington and Southern Line is never late because it never leaves Jim Bradley's back yard.

Bradley, at 60-years-plus, thinks of himself as a railroad man and spends most of his time fixing up the six passenger cars he has collected over the last 18 years for his own pleasure.

However, he has no engine or caboose and doesn't seem interested in buying them.

"Some folks have to leave their savings to someone else," says Bradley. "I get to have fun with mine."

From the platform leading to the "Fox Point," an observation car once doomed to be destroyed, one can see across the water to Watch Hill as well as look at the other cars in Bradley's railroad.

True, there is no locomotive to pull the Fox Point or the five other cars but Bradley says that only means the Stonington and Southern will always be on time.

He reasons that if you have nowhere to go, you can't be late.

Bradley owns a seventh piece of rolling stock — a presidential touring car he bought in Canada and has loaned to the Narragansett Pier Railroad in Peace Dale, R.I.

The car is still used during the summer on a spur line that once brought the wealthy to southern Rhode Island's seaside resorts.

Bradley's remarkable story began in 1960 when he saw old passenger cars with their names blacked over being towed down the New Haven Railroad tracks past his home.

The one-time post office clerk, who had to retire in 1967 because of an accident, inquired about where the cars were headed and was told they were going to be stripped and melted down.

Suddenly, Bradley developed "car fever," contacted New Haven officials and arranged to buy two of the cars, which were delivered by rail and road to his home and mounted on tracks Bradley laid.

One car led to another and soon they were four. The local zoning board forced Bradley to move his tracks a little and an argument with a neighbor prompted him to add more rolling stock.

Computer Ends Bias In Grading

NEWARK (UPI) — College students are grading one another's papers objectively, thanks to a computer-assisted system at the Newark campus of Rutgers, the State University of New Jersey.

The system removes favoritism and bias from the students' evaluations. It uses a procedure called PERATE that was developed by Dr. Purnell H. Benson of the Graduate School of Business Administration. The students are checked for accuracy of their grading on written and oral assignments.

The procedure has been used successfully by graduate students in financial accounting, marketing and advertising courses. It has also been adopted for courses on psychology and child psychology at the Newark College of Arts and Sciences.

"There was one fellow, seemed he didn't like it," said Bradley, adding that the neighbor made him mad. "I was going broke, but went out and borrowed money and bought two more cars."

Through the years, Bradley has lovingly worked on the cars, restoring them to their original color and condition. He purchased each one for about $1,000.

Though he is still able to get around well, the train fancier has started looking for help in restoring the electrical systems and metal work. However, he can't afford to pay for help.

That's because Bradley — the Stonington and Southern's owner, operator, engineer, fireman, trainman, conductor, brakeman and porter — has sunk his life savings into the train.

1 ♦ Pass 1 ♦ Pass
2 ♣ Pass 3 ♦ Pass
3 ♥ Pass 6 ♦ Pass
Pass Pass
Opening lead: Jack of ♣.

Here's another chance to test your dummy play. Cover up the East and West hands with your thumbs and decide how you would play six diamonds after the lead of the jack of hearts.

If South's diamond suit were genuine (North-South were playing five-card majors), North wanted to be in slam. He made a quiet bid of one spade to see what his partner would do, and South's club rebid confirmed a diamond suit. When South next showed the ace of hearts, North needed no further encouragement to leap to slam.

West leads the jack of hearts. In which hand do you win the trick, and how do you tackle the trump suit?

Let's take the second part of the question first. The answer is that you don't know how to play the trump suit because you do not yet know whether you can afford to lose a trick in trumps. To find out, you need to know if the club finesse will succeed.

That answers the first part of the question. It is simpler to win the first heart in dummy and immediately lead a club to the queen. When this wins, you can afford to take a safety play in trumps. Lead low toward dummy and, if West follows with a low trump, finesse the nine. If West shows out, win the ace and lead a trump toward your queen. Either way, that guarantees that you will lose no more than one trump trick.

What if the club finesse were to lose? Now you cannot afford to lose a trump trick and must rely on one of two possibilities: You can either lead the ace of diamonds, hoping to drop a singleton king, or lead the queen in an attempt to find West with the guarded king of trumps and East with the singleton jack.

Which of these two methods should you choose? Lead the ace. That works if either defender has a singleton king of trumps, whereas the other line succeeds only when East has specifically the singleton jack. In other words, cashing the ace is twice as likely to bring in the trump suit as leading the queen.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Today's Cryptoquip clue: M equals Y
The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

DANCE AT MET
NEW YORK (UPI) — The Metropolitan Opera will present the Martha Graham Dance Company for a one-week engagement at the Metropolitan Opera House, June 26 through July 1.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, MARCH 16, 1978

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: New ideas are all right to look into now but don't expect one in a position of influence to give you the backing you wish. Make sure you study every phase of a condition facing you.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) One to whom you are obligated can keep you from gaining a goal now, so postpone your plans until a better time.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Obtain the data you need from the right sources early in the day. Come to a better understanding with family members.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You can gain an aim that is important to you, but it entails much work at this time. Put those unused talents to work.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You can gain much now by conferring with one who is an expert in your field of endeavor. Sidestep a troublemaker.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Listen to what a good friend has to divulge to you that can be helpful but don't enter into an agreement that could be detrimental to you.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Take care of an important business matter early in the day for best results. Later contact good friends and plan social affairs wisely.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You get a good idea that should be discussed with a higher-up, but don't let seeming disinterest discourage you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Find a better system for carrying through with your work so that it is better and brings in greater income. Be logical.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be sure you understand what is expected of you by allies and then carry through in a positive fashion. Be wise.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Handle necessary tasks early in day so you will have time to make future plans with associates. Strive for greater success.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You have a fine, creative idea that should be in operation as soon as possible for best results. Show affection for mate.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Put your talents to work and add to present security. Allow time to put your personal affairs in the right order.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will receive a good education so that the ability in this chart will be brought to fruition. A good marriage is denoted here. Be sure to give ethical and spiritual training early in life. Not much interest in sports in this chart.
