Carter Re-Raises Security Promise In Greeting Begin

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter said today that if Israel accepted guarantees for its security the action could be a key step toward achieving an over-all Middle East peace settlement.

Carter made the comment as he welcomed Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin to the White House at the start of a three-day visit.

Neither Begin nor Carter referred to the many problems separating the two countries as they spoke during a trimmed-down ceremony on the White House south lawn.

Carter did make an unexpected reference to the concept of security guarantees for Israel, which a succession of Israeli governments has resisted on grounds that Israel alone should be responsible for its security.

"Peace can come from a guarantee of security," Carter said. It was not clear whether he had a specific proposal in mind to present to the Israeli leader.

Begin was restrained in his comments. He expressed hope that the spirit of peace negotiations started with Egypt several months ago can be renewed.

Carter was reported in a tough frame of mind for the talks beginning today after a White House welcoming ceremony.

The president wants a pledge of an early end to the Israeli military occupation in Lebanon so he can get Begin to focus on the lagging negotiations for a Mideast settlement.

State Department officials said they thought Begin would "cooperate" and they did not expect any problem. However, Begin has concentrated on gaining assurances that the terrorists flushed from Lebanon's "Fatahland" would not return to use the border region as a springboard for attacks on Israel.

Trying to ease Begin's concerns and to avoid a conflict between him and Carter, U.S. officials emphasized that the U.N. peacekeeping contingent would keep unauthorized armed forces out of the area.

In the broader issue of Mideast peace negotiations, Carter is seeking:

— Israel's acknowledgement that it is bound by 1967 and 1973 U.N. Security Council resolutions to withdraw from the west bank of the Jordan River. Begin has said that is not his interpretation.

— Softening of Israeli resolve to maintain settlements and airfields in the Sinai. The United States and Egypt consider these illegal and obstacles to peace negotiations.

Carter would also like Begin to accept the U.S. decision to sell warplanes to Egypt and Saudi Arabia. Pro-Israeli members of Congress will try to veto the deals next month.

Israeli Consolidate New Seizures In S. Lebanon

By FRANK CREPEAU
Associated Press Writer

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Fighting slackened off in southern Lebanon today as Israeli forces consolidated their control of all territory south of the Litani River except the port of Tyre.

A token U.N. peacekeeping force was waiting to move in when fighting stopped, but U.N. officials in New York said it could be "weeks or months" before Israel heeded the Security Council's demand to withdraw its troops from Lebanese territory.

The Israeli army reported shelling guerrilla positions but said the level of firing had dropped.

Independent observers in Lebanon said the south was comparatively quiet after intensive Israeli bombardment of Tyre and other guerrilla fallback positions north and south of the Litani on Monday night.

A Palestinian communique issued in Beirut said Israel made two air strikes during the night against guerrilla positions near Tyre and in the Arkoub region, 50 miles to the west in the foothills of Mount Hermon.

Defense Minister Ezer Weisman told a news conference Israel decided not to occupy Tyre, the Palestinians' chief supply port 12 miles north of the Israeli-Lebanese border, "for reasons of population and to avoid more destruction."

Associated Press correspondent Aly Mahmoud reported from Tyre that the guerrillas remained in tenuous control of a nine-mile coastal strip, stretching from the Rashidieh refugee camp south of Tyre to the Litani, 15 miles north of the border.

"We don't have the weapons they have. We are outnumbered," Mahmoud Labadi of the Palestine Liberation Organization said.

Guerrilla fighters in Tyre cursed their Arab and Soviet backers for failing to come to their aid. "Tell our treacherous Arab leaders that we wish our guns were turned on them rather than on Israel," one guerrilla shouted from a trench.

Less than 300 beleaguered guerrilla fighters were holding on to the city and neighboring Palestinian refugee camps.

Israeli troops and tanks seized the approaches to the crusader city from the south, east and northeast. The Israeli navy blockaded the harbor and only the coastal highway to Beirut was still open.

The bulk of the 10,000 guerrillas retreated to fallback positions north of the Litani when the estimated 15,000-25,000 Israeli invaders launched their final offensive over the weekend.

Israel's military chief of staff, Lt. Gen. Mordechai Gur, said the escape corridor to the north and the Kasmyia

Bridge over the river were left open "so the people of Tyre won't feel encircled."

The Israeli Cabinet declared Israel would not withdraw from southern Lebanon until it received assurances that the area "will no longer serve as a base for the terrorists and their murderous attacks." Gur said that to be effective, the U.N. peacekeeping unit must keep guerrillas away from the Litani River, Tyre and the border areas.

Lebanon complained to the United Nations about Israeli air and naval bombardments. Its ambassador gave the U.N. a list of "hostile acts" his government said Israel committed since the Security Council's withdrawal resolution was adopted Sunday.

Lt. Gen. Ensio Sillanvuo, commander-in-chief of the U.N. peacekeeping forces in the Middle East, flew from Jerusalem to Beirut today to discuss arrangements to deploy peacekeeping units in the south. U.N. sources in New York indicated sizable forces would not be sent in until the fighting stopped.

Casualty figures for the six-day-old invasion varied widely. The Lebanese government reported 1,168 Lebanese and Palestinians killed. The PLO said on Sunday that 144 of its guerrillas had been killed and claimed 450 Israelis killed or wounded. The Israeli command reported 20 deaths among its troops and estimated 400 Palestinians killed.

Elections Based On 1976 Map Offered School Bds.

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Members of the Greenville City Board of Education Monday night acknowledged a Pitt County Board of Elections March 18 resolution on conducting county and city school board elections based on school district boundaries presently established in the Lake Ellsworth sub-division.

Efforts to resolve conflicting claims over district boundaries have not been successful, and in its March 18 meeting, members of the Pitt County Board of Elections adopted a resolution to conduct 1978 elections for city and county school boards according to a map of the district lines furnished by the city school and on which the 1976 elections were based.

In jacking this action, election officials noted it is impossible to determine the boundaries with exactitude from information from the two school boards.

City school board members reaffirmed their stand that the 1976 map, signed by both city and county school officials, is still the valid map on which pupil attendance at the two systems will be based. They also authorized Superintendent Glenn Cox to work with school attorney Mickey Herin in efforts to reach a decisive ruling between the two systems on the school district boundaries at Lake Ellsworth.

The curriculum schedule for J. H. Rose High School for school year 1978-79 was approved, with a stipulation that the proposal for co-ed physical education be left so that students will have an option to choose for co-ed or separate activities.

About a dozen new courses will be introduced, several of them utilizing a combination of regular classroom teaching personnel and resource personnel.

Three lab courses have been added — a reading lab that will be part of Phase III English, and Essential Skills Lab that will combine English and math special programs; and a Math Lab that will be part of General Math I.

Also, the current algebra course will be available in either an accelerated one-year course or in a two-year course designated Algebra IA and IB. Office Occupations I will comprise an introduction to all office occupations courses, with a separate Introductory Data Processing course offered to familiarize students with the vocabulary of data processing without actual use of data processing equipment.

Another encompassing introduction course is Trade and Industrial Education, which covers all five basic subjects in that field. A separate introductory course is offered in Auto Mechanics I; and cabinetmaking is extended with the addition of Cabinetmaking III.

Health Occupations Education I is an entirely new course being added, and will require the addition of a new staff member, a registered nurse.

A few courses have been dropped — clerical practice; personal typewriting; notehand; and family living — but these have been assimilated in the new courses added. Girl's Glee Club is being dropped and the new course will be a glee club open to both sexes.

On the matter of a proposed co-ed courses for grades 10, 11, and 12, board members asked for a go-slow approach that next year would still give students the option of the co-ed courses in physical education or separate courses for boys and girls. Rose principal Frank Davenport pointed out that the state has mandated an integrated program by school year 1980-81.

In adopting the policy on the use of student teachers from East Carolina University as substitute teachers, board members approved a policy that includes several requirements. These are:

— Approval of the student teacher by the ECU supervisor; that student teachers can only substitute for the teacher in the Greenville schools who is supervising the student teacher; that student teachers can substitute no more than two consecutive days or a total of five days for the entire ten week student teaching period; that when used as a substitute the student teacher be paid the regular teaching rate; and that the approval of the supervising teacher is required.

In another action, the board (Continue On Page 14)

Ceasefire

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israel declared a cease-fire in southern Lebanon today effective at 6 p.m. — 11 a. m. EST — an official army communique said.

"The minister of defense has instructed the chief of the general staff to effect a cease-fire along the entire front in Lebanon as of 1800 hours today," said the brief army spokesman's announcement. "As from that hour the Israeli defense forces will maintain a ceasefire."

The announcement came after a day of scattered shooting between Israeli forces and Palestinian guerrillas around Tyre. But the shooting had died down from previous days.

Seven days ago Israel launched air, land and sea forces to clear Palestinian guerrillas from its northern border. The operation followed a Palestinian terrorist attack in Israel which killed 35 Israelis.

The Israeli announcement came as Prime Minister Menachem Begin was meeting with President Carter in Washington and as the United Nations tried to work out details of a U.N. peacekeeping force to go into southern Lebanon.

There was no immediate indication if Israel had taken a unilateral action in announcing the cease-fire and whether the Palestine Liberation Organization would go along with an end to hostilities.

The Israeli army claimed to control all of southern Lebanon up to the Litani River, except for a small area around the port city of Tyre.

Miners Give Few Hints On How They Will Vote

By The Associated Press

Rank-and-file members of the United Mine Workers are giving few hints on how they will vote on the coal industry's latest proposal to end the 106-day nationwide coal strike.

Local UMW leaders began presenting the proposed 26-page contract to members Monday. All miners were to have seen the contract by Wednesday; voting starts Friday.

The UMW has rejected two offers from the industry, the first of which never got beyond the bargaining council, and miners have defied a federal Taft-Hartley back-to-work order that a federal judge in Washington last Friday refused to renew.

In an interview with The Associated Press in Washington Monday, UMW President Arnold Miller said "it looks a lot better" for ratification this time. He said UMW district leaders "are explaining it better than last time."

Some local leaders agreed with Miller that the new proposal stands a better chance than the previous pact.

If miners ratify the contract and mines can be ready for work quickly, the strike still could drag on for a long time. The UMW and the Association of Bituminous Contractors are still negotiating a separate agreement to cover an estimated 10,000 mine construction workers who also went out on strike Dec. 6.

The current proposal offers $2.40 an hour pay hikes to miners, who earn an average $7.80 an hour. The increase would be spread over three years.

Rhodesia's Black Moderates Sworn Into Transition Council

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Three black moderate leaders were sworn in today to join Prime Minister Ian Smith at the head of the transitional government to shepherd Rhodesia to black rule by the end of the year.

Bishop Abel Muzorewa, the Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole and Chief Jeremiah Chirau took an oath of allegiance to Rhodesia and its laws at a 45-minute lunchtime ceremony at Independence. Smith's suburban residence. The proceedings were closed to reporters.

Smith himself remains bound by the oath he took when he was returned as prime minister following national elections last fall in which only white Rhodesian citizens voted.

The four men make up the policy-making Executive Council of the new government outlined in the constitutional settlement agreement signed 17 days ago.

The new council was to hold its first meeting later today and begin work on its first major task, appointment of a second-level ministerial council to handle the day-to-day administration of the government. Each ministry will be headed jointly by a black and a white.

Government sources said that Smith would meet tonight with a party of 31 prominent touring American business executives who will make an overnight side trip to Salisbury while visiting South Africa. The group, sponsored by Time magazine, includes George W. Ball of Lehman Bros., a former undersecretary of state, and former Xerox chairman Sol Linowitz, who helped negotiate the new Panama Canal treaties.

Once the full transitional government has been set up, it will start to draft the constitution for Zimbabwe, the future blackruled Rhodesia, and to organize elections on the principle of universal suffrage that will choose the country's first parliament with a black majority.

DIRT IN YARD

Greenville Cable TV Inc. came and dug a hole in our yard. They filled it back in, but left dirt, which has not been any help in selling our house, as we need to, since my husband already has a job in another town. Several prospective buyers have seemed to be "turned off" by that pile of dirt and the unsightliness of the filled in place. I need to talk with someone who can do something about this situation, but don't know who to contact. Mrs. T. P.

Hotline called the Rocky Mount Cablevision office and asked that Ray Bell call us at his earliest convenience. He came in to see us the day after he got our message. He sent someone to come to your yard and pick up the clay that had come out the hole and truck it away, saying that they'd probably have to bring some of it back later on, since clay tends to settle slowly, especially in wet weather as we were having at the time the hole was dug and refilled. He said he is eager to hear from anyone who might have any complaints about the way "dug up" areas are restored. Even though most of the areas affected are on city rights of way, they affect the appearance of private homes, he said, and he wants to see that all are well restored. He said some have wasted days calling the city, Greenville Utilities and others and that his company, Greenville Cable TV Inc. is the one to contact. An office is being built and a tower erected on Hooker Road now, but a telephone answering service is already installed. The phone number is 756-5677.

Lynn-Boyd Vows Spoken In Ceremony Saturday

Wells Chapel Church of God in Christ was the scene of the Saturday afternoon wedding ceremony of Clara Elizabeth Boyd and Larry Donnell Lynn. The double ring ceremony was officiated by Bishop L. B. Davenport at 2 p.m.

A program of nuptial music was presented by organist, Johnny A. Wooten. The bridal march was played by the Instrumental Ensemble, conducted by Anton Wesley. Debra Mayo, soloist, sang "The Lord's Prayer," "The Joy of Love" and "O Perfect Love."

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Evelyn Boyd of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Lynn of Pendleton.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Johnny A. Wooten, the bride wore a white floor length gown with a chapel train of chiffon and peau d'ange lace etched with seed pearls. The gown is an Alfred Angelo original designed by Elythe Vincent, fashioned with an empire peau d'ange lace bodice which featured a split V-neckline with a Queen Anne collar and full length chiffon lantern sleeves cuffed at the wrist, enhanced with peau d'ange lace and satin buttons. Seed pearls etched the pattern of lace on the bodice. The back was closed with traditional bridal buttons. The full length flared layered chiffon skirt extended into a chapel train.

The bride chose a layered chapel mantilla set in a Camelot cap, which was bordered with peau d'ange lace attached to the cap. The cap was etched with lace and seed pearls. She carried a nosegay of white carnations, daisies, pink and springer greenery with pink baby's breath, bows and streamers with love knots centered with daisies cascaded from the bouquet.

Miss Geraldine Duncan of Maryland, aunt of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a pink formal length gown with a matching chiffon cape. The cape was embroidered with appliques of flowers in the center. She carried a nosegay of pink and white carnations and white pom poms with green bows and streamers. Sprigs of green baby's breath accented her hair.

Bridesmaids were Miss Lena Cox of Winterville, Miss Phyllis Forbes of Greenville, Miss Mae V. Lynn of Pendleton, sister of the bridegroom, Miss Kathy Selby of Columbia, and Miss Yvonne Smith of Winterville. They wore gowns identical to that of the maid of honor. They carried nosegays of pink and white carnations and white pom poms with pink bows and streamers. Sprigs of pink baby's breath accented their hair.

The flower girl was Miss Ja-Fana Ghita Harris of Greenville.

MRS. LARRY DONNELL LYNN

She wore a pink and white floor length gown of satin and chiffon, similar to the attendants. She carried a white wicker basket with pink and white carnations and pink, white, yellow and green pom poms with pink streamers.

Durand Harrell of Charleston, S. C., was best man. Ushers were Rudolph Lynn, brother of the bridegroom, and Joe T. Branch, cousin of the bridegroom. Groomsman included Michael Williams, cousin of the bride, of Greenville, Earl Cox of Raleigh, Joseph Lynn of Pendleton, William Lynn of Raleigh, both brothers of the bridegroom, and John Nichols Jr. of Conway.

Ring bearer was Derek Lynn, nephew of the bridegroom, of Raleigh.

The bride is a graduate of J. H. Rose High School and St. Augustine's College, where she was member of Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority. The bridegroom graduated from Northampton High School and St. Augustine's College, where he was a member of Omega Psi Phi fraternity. He is employed as the assistant manager of K-Mart, in Hampton, Va.

After a wedding trip to Charlotte, the couple will reside in Newport News, Va.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church parlor. Guests were greeted by Mrs. Lucille Sledge of Greenville.

The bridal table was covered with a white linen cloth encircled with white fabric trimmed with lace. The table was centered with the wedding cake and arrangements of pink carnations, white daisies and greenery, with a pink lighted candle and tiny bows in each, accented the table. After the traditional cutting of the cake by the bride and bridegroom, Mrs. Travis Duncan of Greenville served, Miss Wanda Carmon of Greenville poured punch.

At the register was Mrs. Gwendolyn Malleary of Portsmouth, Va. Assisting with rice bags and scrolls were Miss Debra Hall of Greenville. Goodbyes were said by Mrs. Martha F. Jones of Greenville.

On Friday evening following the rehearsal, the wedding party, family and out-of-town guests were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Preston Williams. Michael Williams, cousin of the bride, of Greenville was host. Guests were greeted by Miss Aissa Moore of Greenville.

Give Evasive Response To 'Personal' Question

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem that you or one of your readers may be able to help me with. I own several ranches in the Wyoming-Colorado area, and when I meet a city person for the first time and he learns that I'm in ranching, he invariably asks, "How many acres do you have?"

Abby, I consider this a very personal question. It would be like asking someone, "What is your net worth?" or, "How much is in your bank account?"

I realize that they mean no harm, and are just trying to make conversation, but I also feel that how many acres I have is none of their business.

Can you (or one of your readers) suggest an answer that wouldn't hurt their feelings, and at the same time wouldn't give them any information about the size of my operation?

RANCHER

DEAR RANCHER: Any evasive response will do, provided it's given in a friendly, good-humored tone. (a) "Too many." (b) "Not enough." (c) "All I can handle."

DEAR ABBY: A month ago we received an invitation to a wedding in England. (We live in Maryland.) The groom has been a guest in our home on several occasions and we are friendly with his parents.

Yesterday we received word from the groom's mother saying that we would not be included in the very small family wedding group, but were expected at the reception, and she hopes that we will "understand."

We were terribly hurt and do NOT "understand." We are on a retirement income, and would not consider making such a costly trip for a "reception" only. But if we were invited to the wedding, we would gladly go.

I have already written to tell them that "something has developed" that may prevent us from making the trip, in order to leave it open for the moment.

Are we wrong to feel as we do? What would you do?

FRUSTRATED

DEAR FRUSTRATED: I would write to the groom (leave his mother out of it) and tell him that it is customary to invite out-of-town guests to the ceremony, and unless you are included, you must decline. Period.

DEAR ABBY: I have three healthy, wonderful daughters, ages 7, 5 and 3, and they are all beautiful in my eyes. However, the eldest is an exceptionally attractive child with a head full of golden curls, enormous brown eyes and long dark lashes. I know she's pretty, and so does she, and so do her sisters, who happen to be very plain.

My problem, Abby, is the well-meaning idiot who stops me in the supermarket when I am with all three and says, "My, what a GORGEOUS child! She should be in the movies!" Or, "Wow, what a heartbreaker that blonde will be when she grows up!" (She is 7, and she's already asking me when she is going to start breaking hearts!)

Please comment about people who fuss over one child in the presence of brothers and sisters. It makes it so hard on the others.

Any suggestions on how to handle these idiots? I'm sure other mothers have to deal with it, too.

MIDWEST MOM

DEAR MOM: There is no help for the idiot. You can only try to shut him up by signaling with your face or hand—or your foot, if necessary. But I'll print this in the hope that well-meaning but thoughtless strangers who are overwhelmed by the beauty of a child will think twice before they speak.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 9-year-old girl who has juvenile rheumatoid arthritis. To treat my symptoms I take a heavy daily dose of cortisone. Until my illness I was a normal kid in size and appearance, but the medicine I take has made me "moonfaced" and very heavy.

Abby, many of the kids at school call me names and tease me because of my weight, and lately it's been hurting me.

What's the best way to make my classmates understand that I can't help the way I look, and it's not from eating too much sweets.

FAITHFULLY WAITING IN MASS.

DEAR WAITING: You need not be ashamed to tell your classmates exactly what you have told me. Please do. When they learn the truth, I bet they'll stop the teasing and name-calling. Please write again and give me a progress report. I care.

Brenda Harrison Is Bride

Brenda Joyce Harrison and Donald Brenston Maynard were united in marriage Saturday at 1:00 p.m. in a single ring ceremony.

Dr. Glen A. Holm, of Holy Trinity United Methodist Church, performed the ceremony at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ansel Harrison, parents of the bride, of Greenville.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Garnett Brinson of Selma, and the late Mr. Ennis B. Maynard.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white formal dress of cotton voile fashioned with a square neckline and long sleeves, with lace extending down the sleeve to the cuff. The three tier ruffles had lace inserts. Her short veil headpiece was attached to white velvet and she carried a single blue tipped white carnation. The bride wore a single strand necklace.

Joan Harrison of Greenville, sister of the bride, was the honor attendant. She wore a formal length qiana dress with capped sleeves and empire waist. She carried a single white carnation.

Gurnie Bell of Columbia, S. C., brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

The mother of the bride wore a street length dress of blue knit and the bridegroom's mother selected a navy blue print knit street length dress. Each wore a corsage of white pom pom mums. An arrangement of mixed bridal flowers decorated the mantel and white potted mums were placed on each side of the area where the ceremony was performed.

For a wedding trip to unannounced points, the bride changed into a black velvet pants suit and wore her mother's corsage. The couple will reside in Clayton.

The bride and bridegroom are both recent graduates of ECU. She is an accountant with Transmissions Networks International and the bridegroom is a counselor with the N. C. Commission of Indian Affairs.

A reception was held following the ceremony. Liz Elks poured punch and cake was served by Laura Phelps. Assisting were Mrs. Jennie Hall, Mrs. Leslie Turner and Mrs. Sallie Klingenschmitt.

The refreshment table was centered with an arrangement of white roses and baby's breath.

State Arts Festival Winners Named Saturday

Three students from J. H. Rose High, three from D. H. Conley High Schools and two members of the Greenville Woman's Club attended the NCFWC Arts Festival Friday and Saturday.

The Arts Festival is annually held at the Fine Arts Center, Salem College, Winston-Salem.

Mrs. Ernest Holt and Mrs. W. E. Roseware were club members attending.

Blue ribbon from the Greenville Woman's Club were: Mrs. Holt for her sonnet "Perpetual Life" and Clyde Owens, Rose High junior, for his craft, jewelry (silver with agate stone) for which he will receive a $25 Savings Bond. Owens also received third place recognition for his combination metal craft with enamel.

Mrs. James H. Smith, club member, was second place winner with her crochet pattern.

As winners in District 15, Jennifer O'Neal, Rose High senior, entered the music competition playing the viola and Joseph Powell, Conley High senior, played the tuba accompanied at the piano by Tammy Stocks. David Pate, Conley High senior, was a club guest. Tyrone Artis, Rose High senior, represented the Woman's Club in the drama competition and Ray Alexander, Rose High senior, in public speaking.

The winners in each contest were announced, awards given and the winners asked to perform as the finalist in his competition at 1:15 Saturday in the main assembly auditorium.

AGS MEMBER AMERICAN GEM SOCIETY

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

All those years when my knees rubbing together whispered "No, no," but there was a "Yes, yes" in my mouth, I fought the battle.

All those years when I lost 10 pounds every Monday (five in my neck and five in my bust), I hung in there.

All those years when I embraced cottage cheese as a formal religion, I gave it my all.

But after yesterday, I have to admit, I'm beaten. I'm fighting the battle alone.

It started in the morning when I faced the refrigerator with my hand over my heart and once again pledged allegiance to hunger. I poured myself a half glass of tomato juice mixed with half a glass of buttermilk and tossed it down. I felt virtuous.

At lunch, I threw down a cup of bouillon and pretended celery was wicked.

I had dinner ready to serve by 3:30 in the afternoon. It was well-balanced and would be totally satisfying. Broiled fish, an oil-free salad, asparagus and an apple.

At 4:00 p.m. I looked at the dinner again. It looked pale, so I surrounded it with a fruit salad with coconut in it.

At 4:30, with nothing to do, I rolled out a pan of biscuits to pop into the oven.

By 5:00, the asparagus looked naked without a sauce, so I opted for a Hollandaise.

By 5:30, I was furious. How dare my husband be late and force me to obesity? I added whipped potatoes to the meal.

By 5:45, as I stood watching the driveway, I got a horrifying feeling. How could you possibly serve dry whipped potatoes? I added a pan of gravy.

By 6:00, the fish looked terminal. I decided to get my husband's mind off the small main course by giving him a robust appetizer. I rolled out those little butter, cheese and flour things stuffed with olives and popped them in the oven.

By 6:15, I sliced the apples and covered them with a pie.

At 6:30, my husband walked into the kitchen. "I'm home!" he shouted brightly.

"You animal! You don't care about other people at all. How they look. How they feel about themselves. If I go to my grave with pantyhose around my hips, let it be on your conscience!"

He pretended he didn't know what I was talking about.

Silent Auction Held By Club

The Friday meeting of the Greenville Garden Club was held at the Woman's Club.

Forty members and guests participated in a silent auction of a variety of plants which had been propagated and prepared for sale by members of the club.

The plant sale is an annual project of the horticulture committee consisting of Mrs. R. M. Helms, Mrs. R. R. Forrest, Mrs. S. H. Mitchell, Mrs. Gilbert Peel and Mrs. R. A. Piver.

Hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. J. Paul Davenport, Mrs. J. R. Carrington, Mrs. R. A. Davis, Mrs. R. E. Laughter, Mrs. M. G. Martin and Mrs. K. R. Rowe.

$5 Million-Plus Impact In County By Pitt Tech

FREE FOOD — Members of UMWA Local 1405 received bags of groceries following Monday's meeting to review the new proposed contract between the UMWA and the Bituminous Coal Operators Ass'n. The food was collected by Local officers from merchants in the Big Stone Gap (Va.) area and given to those most in need of help. (AP Laserphoto)

The economic impact of Pitt Technical Institute on Pitt County exceeds $5 million per year, President William E. Fulford, Jr. reported at the Institute's Progress Night Monday.

Financial aid to PITI students exceeds $2 million (including VA benefits) and the institute's total budget exceeds $3 million.

Guests of the Pitt Tech Board of Trustees for the evening were: Pitt County Commissioners, locally-elected representatives to the N.C. House and Senate, mayors of local towns, chairmen of the Pitt County and Greenville School systems, former trustees, and Pitt Tech personnel.

Dr. Fulford presented the institute's Progress Report. He said that for 1976-77, PITI served over 2146 full-time equivalent students through its curricula programs, compared to 1,601 F.T.E. students in 1973-74.

Fulford stated that student curricula enrollment for the current quarter exceeded 1,700, an increase of 200 over fall quarter, 1977.

In addition to the economic benefits of Pitt Tech to Pitt County and North Carolina, Fulford said that the institute provides continuing opportunities for individuals to learn new job skills or upgrade old skills; thus, increasing the individual's earning and purchasing potential, and ability to pay local and state taxes.

He added that 56 percent of the students are from families with less than $10,000 annual income. In addition, 95 percent of the Pitt Technical Institute students are high school graduates or have High School Equivalency Certificates. The average age of the students is 26.2 years.

Fulford told guests that over 100 four-year college graduates are being served by Pitt Tech curricula programs.

During the past three years, according to Fulford, three new special programs had been added to assist students — Special Services for the Disadvantaged (counseling and tutoring), Special Services for the Blind, and Human Resource Development. Approximately 275 students per year participate in these programs.

Several efforts of progress in curricula programs were cited by Fulford. Improvements mentioned included: (1) adding an additional quarter of instruction in Electronics and Architectural Drafting, (2) adding more fundamental courses to the English offerings, (3) adding an IBM to the Data Processing Program and going from the card to the disk system, (4) A.M.A. approval of the Radiologic Technology Department, and (5) increased enrollment opportunities in Nursing.

ed the number of short courses in local industries.

In looking to the future, Fulford stated that a new shop / classroom building of 2,600 square feet, at a cost of $1 million, is expected to be completed by May, 1979. New curricula programs in the planning stage include: energy conservation, auto parts counterman, auto body repair, industrial mechanic, and a college transfer program.

C.W. Everett Sr., chairman of the Pitt Technical Institute Board of Trustees, presented Dedicated Service plaques to former members of the Board of Trustees — Wiley Gaskins of Grifton, and Robert Ramey, James W. Brewer, and Earl Aiken, all of Greenville.

Senator Vernon White of Winterville was presented a Dedicated Service plaque for his service as chairman of the Pitt Technical Institute Board from 1971 to 1977.

Warmer Weather Not Ending Energy Concern

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Spring has arrived, but state officials say the warmer temperatures do not spell the end to North Carolina's energy woes.

If the United Mine Workers do not ratify a contract proposal in voting that begins Friday, the state could face much more serious problems than it does now, according to Brian M. Flattery, chief of the state energy division.

"People have the feeling that we've come out of the long winter and the (energy) problem is over," Flattery said in an interview Monday. "But the problem could get markedly worse if we need air conditioning."

Flattery said mandatory conservation measures, certain to cause layoffs, are likely to be taken if the miners reject a contract tentatively agreed upon by their representatives and the Bituminous Coal Operators Association.

"If they reject the contract, I see no way we could avoid the mandatory measures," Flattery said. "So I'd call it a serious situation."

The state has already survived a close brush with such mandatory measures. The coal reserves of Carolina Power & Light Co. (CP&L) and Duke Power Co., the state's two largest utilities, fell steadily through February and early March.

At one point, the supplies of CP&L fell to the 34-day level. The state's emergency energy plan calls for mandatory cutbacks in electrical consumption when the reserves fall to the 30-day level.

Those reserves have been supplemented in recent weeks, however. Duke began receiving

Storms Menace Broken Tanker

By PAUL TREUTHARDT
Associated Press Writer

BREST, France (AP) — New storms threaten to break open the wrecked American supertanker Amoco Cadiz and spill the 29 million or more gallons of oil still aboard along the polluted Brittany coast.

More heavy weather was predicted as gale winds and high seas swept the vessel Monday, delaying a survey for underwater rocks so that a smaller tanker can get alongside to pump out the remaining oil.

Capt. Claude Phillips, marine transport manager for Amoco, said the operation is "completely subject to the weather. We cannot risk lives or ships out there."

Environmental experts said the rough weather could have a beneficial effect by moving the oil away from the coastline and helping to emulsify it, thus reducing the concentration, as has happened in some past spills.

The 1,067-foot tanker carried 67.6 million gallons of oil in 15 tanks when it ran on the rocks and broke in two in a storm Friday. Harry Rinkema, Amoco vice president for marine transport, said he was told there was "a huge slick, eight miles long and a mile wide, containing perhaps 50,000 to 60,000 tons of oil, floating out to sea in the English Channel."

That would be 14.7 million to 17.6 million gallons, or about 20 to 25 percent of the total aboard. Millions of gallons more have fouled the coastal fishing beds and some 80 miles of beaches along the Brittany peninsula.

Hundreds of fishermen kept ashore by the pollution of the lobster beds and fishing grounds handed in their licenses to reinforce their demands for immediate government compensation.

Local mayors prepared damage inventories for the government in Paris.

Five British ships experienced in treating oil slicks were en route to join 11 French navy ships spreading dispersants, detergents, chalk and absorbent plastic balls. Experts from the U.S. Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration arrived to give assistance.

Local Collectors Met In Kinston

A joint meeting of the Greenville Collectors Club, Inc. and the Kinston Collectors Club, Inc. was held at the home of Fred Cole, Kinston.

The meeting was conducted by Bessie Ross and a discussion was held on antique books to be donated to Sheppard Memorial Library, Greenville, from lists prepared by Francis P. Belcik, secretary.

Members were reminded of the Kinston Mammoth Spring Flea Market, sponsored by the Kinston club, set for May 28.

The April meeting will be held in Greenville at the home of Belcik.

McNeill Smith To Visit County

McNeill Smith, a candidate for the U.S. Senate in the May Democratic primary, will visit Pitt County Thursday.

Smith, a Roland native, is scheduled to visit Ayden, Winterville, Farmville, and some public buildings in Greenville, then attend a reception at Mendenhall Student Center on the East Carolina University campus from 4:30 to 6 p.m.

The reception, according to Dr. John Ball, Pitt campaign committee chairman, is open to the public, and he urged all interested people to attend.

Smith was elected to the N.C. House of Representatives in 1970, then appointed to the State Senate in 1971. He was elected to the Senate post in 1972, 1974 and 1976.

Banquet Honors Simpson Native

GOLDSBORO — Elder Charles Ray Parker, a Free Will Baptist minister who is a Simpson native, was honored at a birthday banquet held at the Quality Inn of Goldsboro recently.

The event was sponsored by Smith Chapel of Mount Olive, Cherry Lane of Greenville, and Saint James of Farmville, all of which are pastored by Elder Parker. Approximately 175 persons attended.

Presentations from the three churches to Elder Parker were made by Deacon Truman Loftin of Smith Chapel, Brother Nathan Cobb Jr. of Saint James, and Brother Julius Phillips of Cherry Lane.

Bundy To Speak At Convention

Sam D. Bundy will be the featured speaker at the banquet for the Mid-Atlantic Mosquito Control Association Convention in Wrightsville Beach Thursday, Mar. 23.

Friday, Mar. 31, he will speak at a banquet in Greenville honoring Gold Star Mothers.

Missionary Will Be Speaking

Missionary Mamie Gorham will speak at New Hope Holiness Church Wednesday at 8 p.m.

The church is housed in the old school building on the Falkland Highway west of Greenville. The public is invited.

Peace-Keepers To The Front

With United States backing, the U. N. Security Council approved sending a peace-keeping force into southern Lebanon.

In approving the 4,000 man force, the Security Council sent Israel a demand that it pull its troops from the area.

The military force will not include U. S. troops although they will be flown in on American planes. They will be taken from the Sinai and the Golan Heights.

The U.N. action came on the eve of talks between President Carter and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, talks that have become more complicated because of the Palestinian raid in Israel and the subsequent Israeli sweep into Lebanon.

Begin will be looking to Carter for stronger guarantees that the Palestinian terrorists won't be allowed to operate out of southern Lebanon, and it may take strong assurances from President Carter before peace talks between Israel and Egypt can resume.

At this point, at least, Israel doesn't seem to regard the U.N. peace-keeping force as the answer. There will be critical talks between President Carter and Prime Minister Begin this week.

Grower Participation Being Tested

News stories last week reminded tobacco farmers that April 7 is the sign-up date for the program which allows growers to plant 120 percent of their allotments by agreeing not to harvest the bottom four plant leaves.

Farmers will inform Agricultural Stabilization Service and they must pay an inspection fee for the program.

The growers are free not to participate and those who don't will continue to plant their normal acreage allotment.

It will take at least one growing and selling season to determine whether the new program will help the U.S. tobacco situation, but it is certain that something has to be done about the glut of lower leaf tobacco.

Oversight System Mulled

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Members of the legislative Governmental Operations Commission are quietly mulling over a plan which would catapult that somewhat obscure governmental agency into one of utmost importance.

The proposal would effectively establish the commission as a constant review board for performance of all state government activities — with sufficient clout to make agencies toe the line.

Essentially three steps are involved:

which will in turn report to the chairmen of the Appropriations and Ways and Means committees.

A System

Those three steps combined produce a comprehensive approach to pulling together several currently popular review processes being tested both in this state and in others. Elements of Sunset, Program Audit, Budget Watchdog, Performance Contract, and Base Budget Review are all contained in the proposal.

The Joint Legislative Commission on Governmental Operations was created in 1975, partly by pressures of the recession, and partly as a Democratic method of keeping an eye on the Republican administration of Gov. James E. Holshouser. State Senator I.C. Crawford, D-Burcombe, chaired the group as it probed a host of state agency wrongdoings and foulups.

Little was accomplished, other than to spotlight such problems from time to time. It became apparent that the commission lacked staff, investigative power, and follow-through clout to either get the needed information, or to make recommendations stick.

When a squabble later broke out between Gov. James B. Hunt and Lt. Gov. James C. Green over Green's role in the new Democratic administration, a proposal to make chairmanship of the Governmental Operations Commission was among several suggested solution solutions.

NOBLITT

Now, with the lieutenant governor in charge, the commission has taken on enlarged responsibilities and increased power. Additionally, key legislators recognized as effective leaders and who chair other important committees now serve on the commission.

Given these changed circumstances, the legislative proposals now under consideration would go a long way toward establishing a powerful and effective state governmental watchdog which could reach into the heart of the bureaucracy.

Opposition

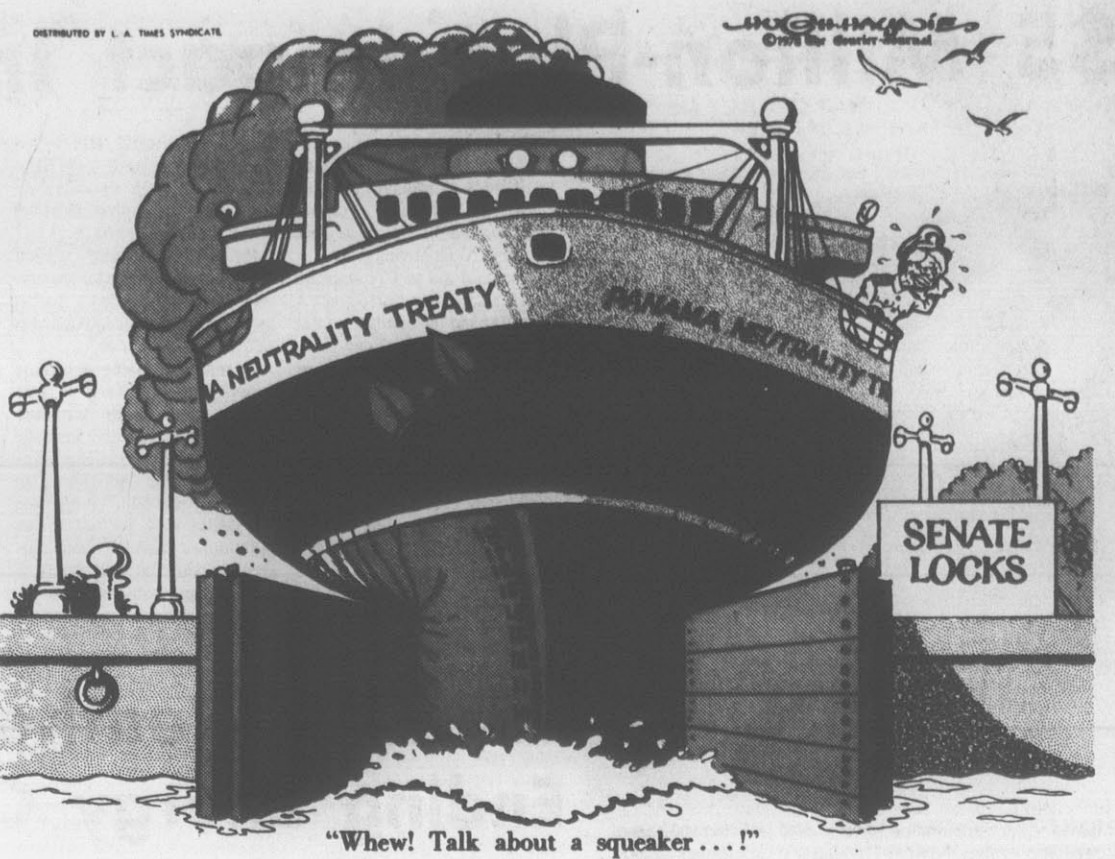

For that and other serious political considerations, it is unlikely that Gov. Hunt will let such a system come into being unchallenged. He will obviously see legislative meddling with executive prerogatives — the budget proposals, agency conduct, etc. Also, he and Green are at crosspurposes personally, politically and philosophically, so the growing clout of the Green commission will be viewed with alarm.

On the other hand, those knowledgeable of bureaucratic ways recognize in the proposals essential tools to bring the machinery of government to heel.

As the working document now being studied points out: the political process is supposed to meet the needs of the public and set priorities regarding the extent to which needs are being met from public funds. The relevance and effectiveness of governmental activities are often questioned by the taxpayers, the report states.

Control measures would allow the General Assembly to "take a second look at new programs before they become lost in the multi-billion dollar continuation budget", and spurs agencies to do well what they have promised to do, and gives legislators a way of seeing that this is done, members of the commission feel.

How To Ruin Rhodesia

LONDON — In both London and Washington, we are witnessing these days the making of a monumental blunder. By their refusal to embrace the Rhodesian settlement, Britain and the United States are demonstrating to the whole world how the West will be lost.

There are terrible failures afoot — failures of understanding, failures of purpose, failures of will. Britain and the United States have been handed a golden opportunity to advance every conceivable interest they might have in Southern Africa — and the two Western nations seem aimlessly inclined to miff it.

How can these interests be defined? Unless reason has fled our temples altogether, we are interested in halting the spread of Soviet-Cuban adventuring in Africa; we are interested in having an anti-Communist, as distinguished from a pro-Communist regime in this part of the world. We are interested in seeing in Rhodesia a peaceful, multi-racial, more or less democratic society, in which the black majority rules without obliterating the rights and property of the white.

The settlement reached between Prime Minister Ian Smith and the three moderate black leaders provides all these things. Without bloodshed, and without provoking incurable animosities, this agreement would transform white Rhodesia into black Zimbabwe by the end of this year. All that is required is for Britain and the United States publicly to welcome the compact, and to throw their influence, their money and their arms behind its acceptance.

In Washington, President Carter and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance are vacillating. UN Ambassador Andrew Young, foot in mouth, is saying the fatuous things for which he is justly acclaimed. Here in London, Foreign Secretary David Owen is under heavy pressure from Conservative forces, but he seems to have no clear idea of what to do. He is stalling.

This is their explanation: The settlement does not include the terrorist factions headed by Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe. The objection is quite simply fantastic. Nkomo and Mugabe, by the most generous description, are a pair of Marxist freebooters whose main interest lies in gaining power for themselves. Neither cares a fig for democracy, for human rights, for the ideal of one man, one vote.

Nkomo and Mugabe profess to lead the "Patriotic Front". Theirs is the patriotism of murder, mutilation and rape. Over the past two years, their ragtag guerrilla forces, amounting to no more than 5,500 persons, have committed unspeakable atrocities upon blacks unwilling to fall into line. The two leaders are a pair of sly and hungry foxes. Ambassador Young's idea is to welcome them into the henhouse.

The fear voiced by the Carter administration is that guerrilla warfare will continue if Nkomo and Mugabe are not given power in a new government. But this is pusillanimous counsel. There is no way of knowing what support the two brigands might command in a free and fair election. Nothing in the pending settlement would prevent Nkomo and Mugabe from political participation in the future. If they can win power through the democratic process, well and good; but it is madness to insist that they be handed power on a platter.

There are times when great powers must act as great powers. Ordinarily nothing much may be lost, save only self-respect, in bootlicking the United Nations and fawning upon the Organization of African States. It is nice to be loved. But now and then great powers must flex their muscles and impose their will.

Such a time is at hand in Rhodesia. Britain and the United States need only to act decisively, promptly and fearlessly. So far as we are concerned, they might say, the UN sanctions no longer will be honored; we will support the new government with credits, loans, diplomatic recognition, and with whatever military aid may be required to smash the

Wage, Price Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — As part of its new anti-inflation program, the Carter administration plans to speak out against wage and price increases it believes are unjustified, says the administration's chief inflation fighter.

"Private decisions are not completely private when it comes to wages and prices."

The government has to be prepared to step in," Barry Bosworth, director of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, said in an interview Monday.

While the council can't force wage and price rollbacks, Bosworth said it will use all the powers it does have, including public hearings and subpoenas of wage and price information. Bosworth said the in-

County agent R. R. Bennett said that his office had received no reports of blue mold in the county, although Columbus County reported over the weekend the tobacco plant disease had been found there.

The county agent said that unless the disease "is worse than it has ever been before we will have plenty of plants."

He added however that Dr. Luther Shaw, plant specialist at North Carolina State College, would conduct demonstrations on destroying blue mold at a later date in the county.

Dr. Shaw said in Raleigh yesterday that numerous reports of infestation had come from other counties, but that Columbus County was the only one in which blue mold is definitely known to be prevalent.

Dr. Shaw explained that a farmer could tell for certain if his plants were infested with the disease by carefully examining the underside of several diseased leaves. If a pale blue powdery or moldy development can be observed, it is certain, he said, that they are affected with blue mold. If this development is not present, he added, it can be concluded that the plants are not affected with blue mold.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Thurmond And Black Vote

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

COLUMBIA, S.C. — By tenaciously courting South Carolina's increasingly important black vote, Republican Sen. Strom Thurmond is a slight early favorite for re-election over Democrat Charles (Pug) Ravenel — causing Ravenel's operatives to dredge up Thurmond's old Dixiecrat rhetoric.

Thurmond has gently dulled his sharp conservative edges to run against the telegenic Ravenel; his American Conservative Union rating declined from 100 per cent in 1976 to 82 per cent last year. But his courting of South Carolina's blacks — who will be casting about 27 per cent of the 1978 vote — does not rest on any ideological transformation. Rather, it rests on personal contact, a form of Old South politics that Thurmond, 75, has now proved he can play as well with black as with white voters.

To counter this, the Ravenel campaign points to harsh segregationist statements by Thurmond in 1948, when he carried four states against Harry Truman as presidential candidate of the States Rights Democratic Party (Dixiecrat). But the past may not be able to obliterate the present. "No one, but no one, can deliver like the Senator can," one South Carolina black leader told us.

Thurmond's vestigial influence in the vast federal bureaucracy extends to regional offices in Atlanta still staffed with Republicans from the Nixon-Ford era. This often gives him a unique advantage in announcing those federal grants and bird-dogging those federal projects of particular interest to black voters.

Thurmond's fastidious attention to black constituents he once spurned probably will at least double the 8 per cent vote he achieved in 1972. White votes were plenty then for his 64 per cent runaway third-term election.

No runaway is in prospect this year against Ravenel, the 40-year-old Charleston blueblood who came from nowhere in 1974 to win the Democratic nomination for governor. Ravenel's brilliant use of television made him a cinch for election until forced off the ballot by a non-residence technicality.

Thus, Thurmond's chances may turn on whether he can double or triple that 8 per cent black vote, a possibility that disturbs Ravenel's campaign managers. Going back 30 years, they have constructed a record of anti-black, anti-civil rights statements by Thurmond that reads like a page from the South's Jim Crow past.

As Dixiecrat candidate in 1948, Thurmond said, "There are not enough troops in the Army to force Southern people to admit Negroes into our theaters, swimming pools and homes." In 1965, after becoming a Republican, he attacked civil rights demonstrators as "Communist led and inspired."

Although Ravenel told us he personally would have nothing to do with circulating this record to black voting precincts' one campaign aide said it would be "available" to anyone who asks. However, Thurmond's arduous wooing of blacks the past seven years could cause an anti-Thurmond campaign to backfire against Ravenel.

"We don't care what the Senator did in the '40s and '50s," Isaac (Ike) Williams, head of the state NAACP told us, "but how he is representing us in 1978." Williams, while uncommitted, said that, if voters "just try to punish a politician for the sins of the past, what does it profit him to improve?"

Considering where he started, Thurmond's improvement is indisputable. He has established scholarships for black students at four South Carolina colleges with religious affiliations, nailing down political con-

Strength For Today

INSIDE AND OUTSIDE

We often hear people complain about modern architecture. They say it is awkward and ugly, undignified and shapeless. These people miss the columns, arches, spires, porticos, and other such features of conventional styles of the past.

But at least the best of modern architecture is honest. It looks like what it is. It is without false appearances. We do not find handsome marble facades applied to cinderblock structures. We do not find the exterior of an office building masquerading as the exterior of a Greek temple. Whether in buildings or people, we admire genuineness and honesty. In the same way, we would all like to have a reputation for honesty and generosity, but it is more important that we actually have these qualities and practice them. Seeming without being is worthless. If we begin to work on what we are, what we seem to be will take care of itself.

As Socrates said, "The way to gain a good reputation is to endeavor to be what you desire to appear."

To the editor:

I trust North Carolina citizens will pause Tuesday, Apr. 4, 1978, and reflect back 10 years to Apr. 4, 1968, the day a Baptist minister was killed as he worked to make this a better world.

As a North Carolina Baptist, I feel we Baptists, in particular, need to become more concerned and compassionate for the welfare and progress for our black citizens.

Last year the State of N. C. put out a survey of state goals. It was put together by some of our top leaders in this state. We Baptist were well represented. The chairman and vice-chairman were both well known Baptists in our state. Over 100,000 were returned. I feel this type effort can be helpful in making our state better.

The survey omitted one area that I feel should not have been left out. No mention was made in this survey about opportunities for black, human rights or racial relations. This omission has been called to the attention of our Governor. He seemed concerned — how much, time will tell.

This omission drives home the point to us white Americans and us white Baptists that we tend to pat ourselves on the back and say, "Look what we have done." More often, we have done what we had to.

If Gaston County and its tokenism reflect the condition in our state and nation in 1978, we need a new commitment for human rights at home. I hope we will make it a personal goal in our lives.

I plan to leave Gastonia Mar. 28 and walk to Raleigh, arriving Apr. 4. This is my way of expressing my regret that racial goals were left out of the state survey. This walk is also my way of expressing my appreciation for the work of Rev. Martin Luther King Jr.

Bigger, Better Benefits Seen

By MICHAEL L. GECZI

AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The open-door policy of the United States toward investments from abroad already is reaping large dividends. But even bigger and better benefits may be in the offing.

In the past five years, direct foreign investments in this country have more than doubled to $30 billion, according to a new report compiled by Bank of America, the San Francisco-based institution that is the nation's largest commercial bank.

Some of the recent activities have included the $210 million purchase by Societe Imetal of France of a 67 percent stake in Pittsburgh's Copperweld Corp.; Michelin Tire Corp. of France's announced plans to invest $300 million to expand tire production; and Sandoz Ltd. of Switzerland's $190 million acquisition of Northrup King & Co., a Minneapolis agricultural chemical producer.

Of the $30 billion invested in 1976, about 41.6 percent was concentrated in manufacturing, the report said, and nearly 20 percent was invested in petroleum operations. The largest investors were the Netherlands, Canada and the United Kingdom, each with roughly one-fifth of the total.

Though the growth has been substantial, there appears to be a great deal of room left for future investments. Foreign-owned businesses accounted for less than 2 percent of the United States' gross national product in 1976, according to a study by The Conference Board, a New York business-research firm.

Bank of America cites three reasons for this rather modest showing. "Companies based abroad frequently have cited labor costs, taxes, and the sheer size of the U.S. market economy as factors that have restrained them from pursuing the advantages of direct investment here," the report states.

These disadvantages have leveled off in recent years, the bank says, leading to the conclusion that investments will continue to increase, possibly at a faster pace. In addition, it says, the United States will be aided by two other factors:

—More earnings for investments are being generated by continued economic recovery abroad.

—Merger activity has grown sharply in both Europe and Japan, thus creating companies that have both the financial expertise and capital to invest in the United States.

Though the impact of the investment has been relatively modest, the report says that the United States already has benefited in a variety of ways, including:

—The creation of about 1.1 million U.S. jobs and $11.4 billion in additional wages by the end of 1974.

—The generating of technological and product improvements helped along by new methods and processes from abroad.

BURNING BARGE — At least one person was killed and 14 others injured when the barge caught fire and exploded during loading operations at the Getty Oil Co. refinery at Delaware City, Del., shortly after noon Monday. The Coast Guard said the mishap oc-

Nebraska Fears More Flooding

VALLEY, Neb. (AP) — A huge ice jam clogging the Elkhorn River near its junction with the flood-swollen Platte below Omaha could break up at any time, officials say, sending more rushing water downstream.

Rescuers watched river levels today, poised to evacuate more eastern Nebraskans if water continues to rise. Already 4,000 people have been chased from their homes.

A Douglas County official estimated the flood had already caused at least $250 million in property damages.

Much depended on the ice jam. The National Weather Service said the Platte River had fallen slightly north of the Elkhorn and probably would be back below flood stage by late Wednesday.

A forecaster said that if the ice broke, water backed up behind it would flow toward the towns of Plattsmouth and Louisville and into the Missouri River along the Iowa border. Meanwhile, a spokesman for the Civil Defense emergency operations center in Lincoln said the situation had stabilized Monday night and that all evacuations had been completed.

Gov. J.J. Exon said he planned to ask the Legislature today for a multi-million dollar appropriation to meet the flood emergency. He said that once supportive figures were in, he would ask President Carter for a federal disaster declaration.

Exon told volunteers near Fremont, along the Platte northwest of Omaha, that the flood danger in their area soon would be ended.

Further upstream in North

Bend, Dodge County Sheriff Richard Wennstedt said he believed the worst of the flooding was over, leaving one person dead and damage in the hundreds of thousands of dollars.

tacts that reach deep into the state's black Baptists and Methodists. In 1971, he became the first Deep South Senator to put a black aide in charge of his homestate office, and now has seven blacks on his staff (Mississippi's Sen. James Eastland, running for re-election, just hired his first).

There is also a convoluted racial factor that could help Thurmond by hurting Ravenel. After he was ruled out of the 1974 race for governor, Ravenel refused to endorse former Rep. William Jennings Bryan Dorn, his successor as Democratic nominee. Dorn narrowly lost to the present governor, Dr. James B. Edwards, a right-wing Republican whose official trip to South Africa infuriated black voters. Unfairly or not, some of that anger is directed against Ravenel for helping elect Edwards by not helping Dorn.

More dangerous to Ravenel is Thurmond's valid claim of full credit for the expected nomination of Matthew Perry as the South's first black Federal District judge. Perry is now a judge on the military court of appeals — also thanks to Thurmond's patronage.

Such actions, though large in symbolism, have little bread-and-butter meaning for this state's blacks. In today's politics, however, issues often lose force at the expense of imagery — a fact well known to canny old pol Strom Thurmond. Accordingly, the symbol of a reformed Thurmond aiding his black constituents may be more decisive in this year's election than the hackneyed symbol of time for a change.

flationary cycle can be broken only if the government takes a more aggressive public role in wage and price decisions. He said the administration's anti-inflation policy "will not be credible if we're not willing to speak up."

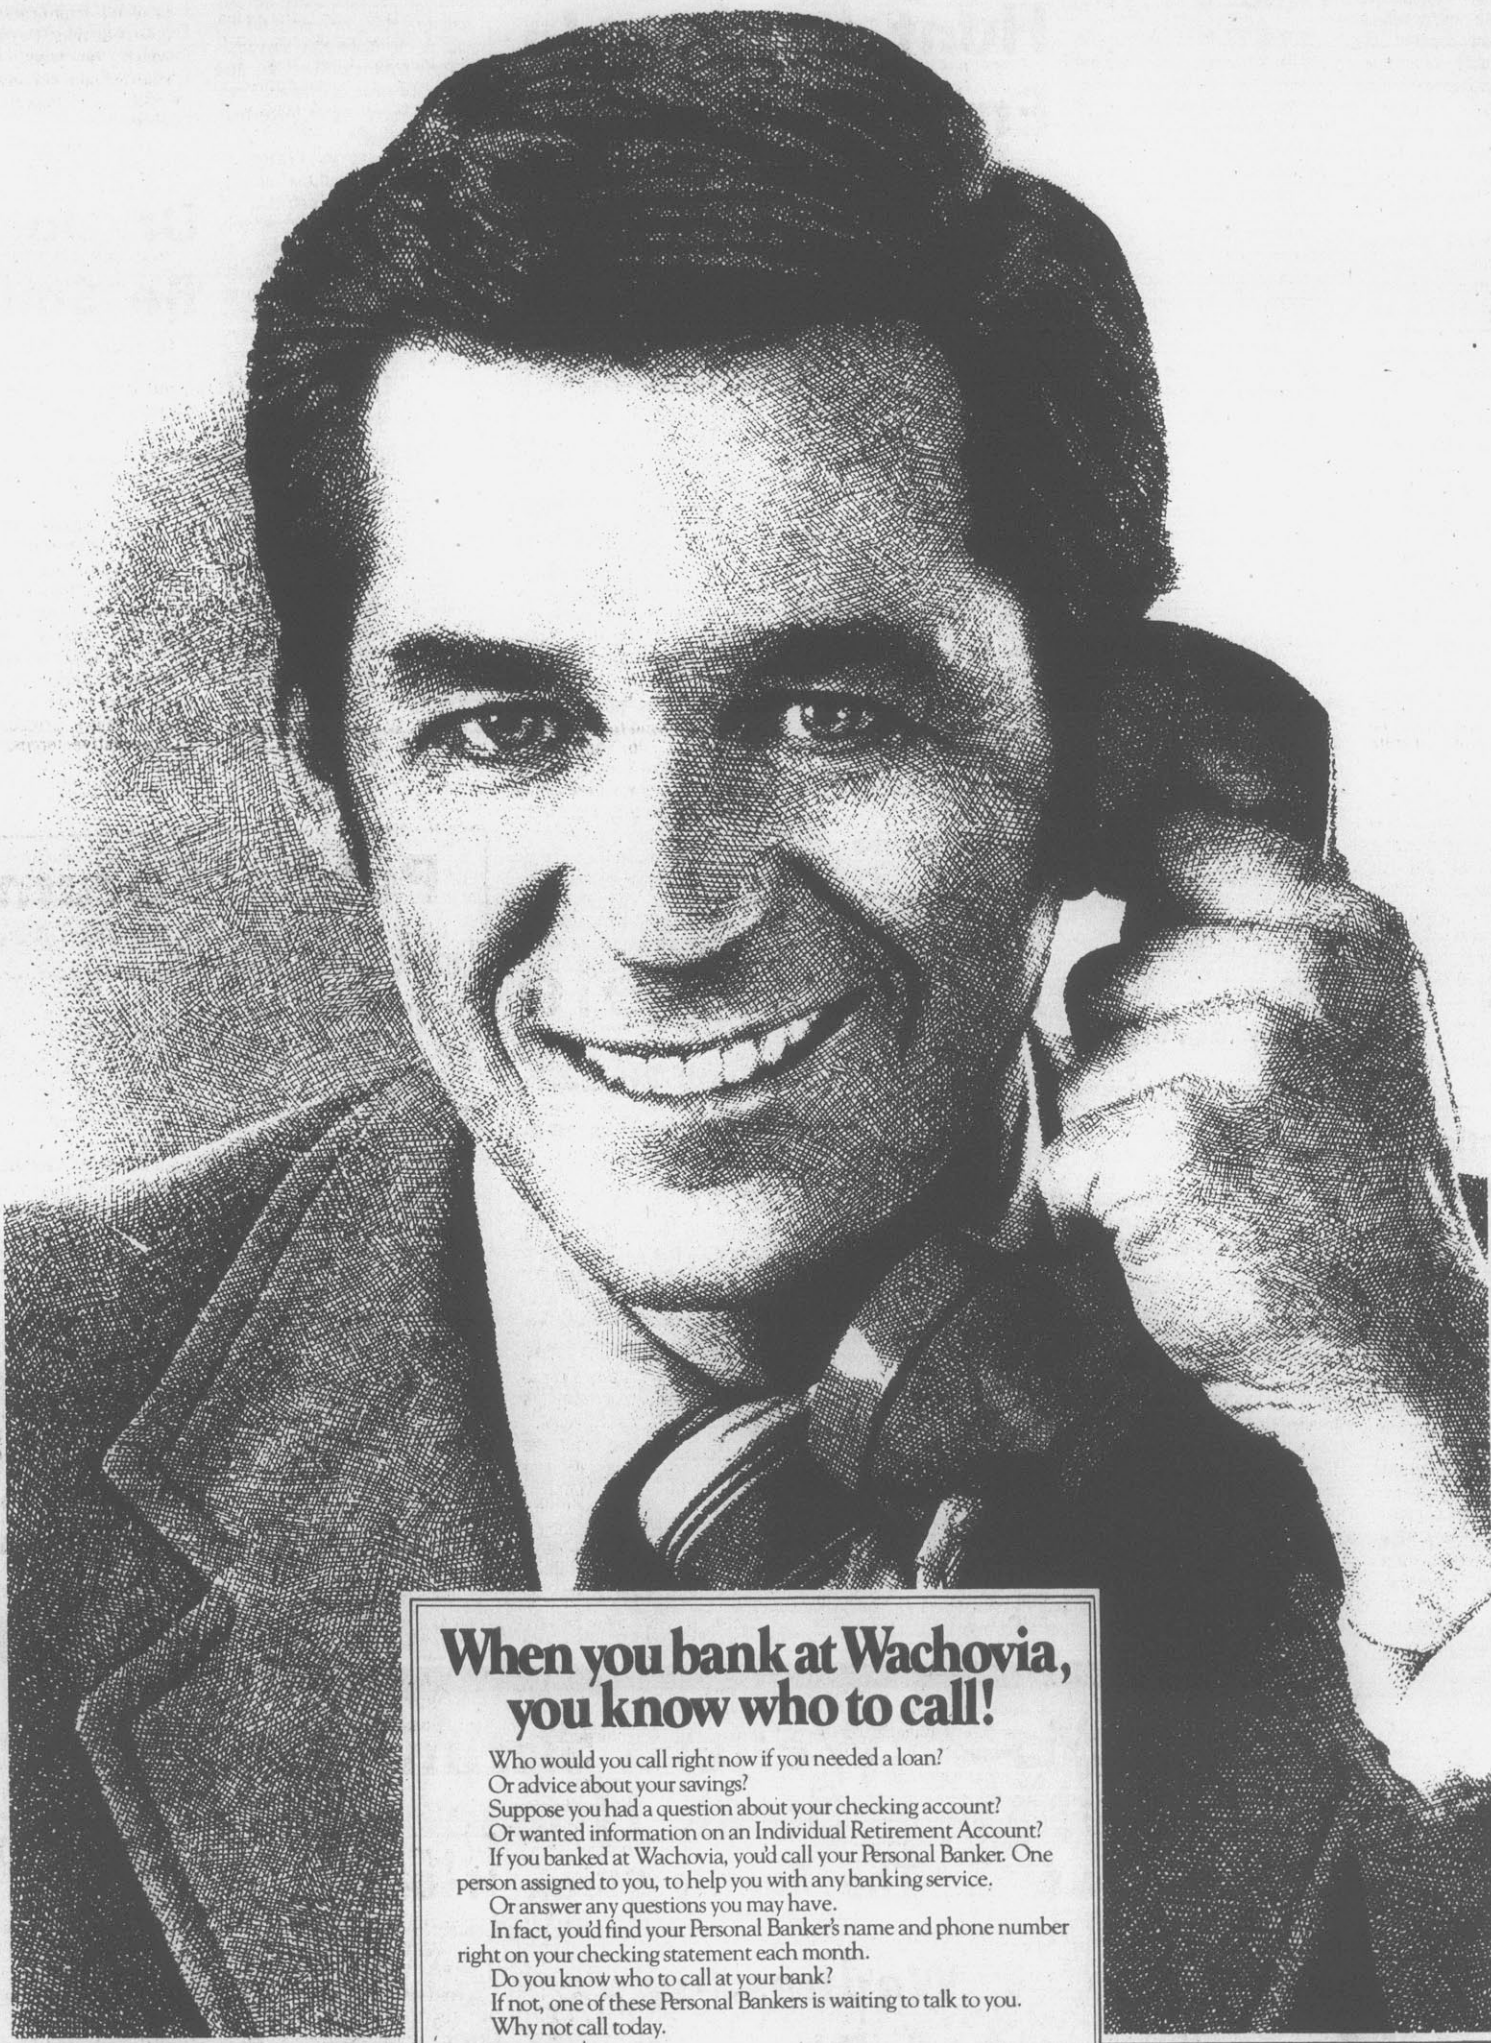

Bosworth, 35, was a senior economist at the Brookings Institution here before Carter named him to the council post.

He acknowledged the program already has a credibility problem because nothing has been done to put it into operation. "On the basis of what they've seen so far, I agree with them (the public) that the program is going to fail."

Bosworth said the president "needs to play a far more visible role than he's been playing," but has been diverted by other problems. He said Carter may make a major speech on inflation soon.

The framework of the program was announced by Carter in January. It is voluntary and aims to reduce the rate of inflation by 0.5 percent a year by convincing unions and companies to hold new wage and price increases to levels at least 1 percent below increases of the last two years.

When the program is in operation, possibly in another two weeks, the administration plans to call in leaders of major industries to press them to restrain price increases. A similar push with unions is planned next year.

Took $1 Million

ST. JOVITE, Quebec (AP) — Four gunmen held up an armored car at a roadside diner early today and made off with about "a million dollars," police said.

It was not known whose money was taken in the robbery, but the armored car is owned by Alliance Securite, a private firm which handles most shipments for the province's credit unions.

A provincial police spokesman in this community about 62 miles north of Montreal said two guards were wounded in the incident.

The guards had stopped at the diner for a snack when the gunmen burst in and fired a shot, the police spokesman said. One of the guards was wounded in the chest and another in the arm. A third guard was beaten when he refused to give the gunmen the keys to the vehicle.

The trio "took part of the money...about $1 million" and fled in a stolen truck, the spokesman said.

No arrests have been made, police said.

Veto Over ERA Facing Challenge

By HERBERT SPARROW
Associated Press Writer
FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Two years ago, Lt. Gov. Thelma Stovall fought successfully to prevent Kentucky's Legislature from withdrawing the state's 1972 ratification of the proposed Equal Rights Amendment.

"How is it going to look for Kentucky, with a woman lieutenant governor, to take this slap at women?" Mrs. Stovall asked then.

This year, Mrs. Stovall, an ardent advocate of women's rights, could not prevent the General Assembly from approving a resolution to rescind the ERA vote.

So, in her capacity as acting governor because Gov. Julian Carroll was out of the state, she did the next best thing. She vetoed it.

"Through a maze of the most dubious parliamentary maneuvers, the Legislature allowed itself to be used by the misguided and plunge itself into action which I consider regrettable," Mrs. Stovall said in her veto message Monday.

The 58-year-old Mrs. Stovall came under immediate criticism from ERA opponents, who said they would challenge the veto in court. That appears to be the only avenue open — the General Assembly adjourned its 60-day session Saturday and will not meet again until 1980.

A Frankfort attorney, Joseph Leary, said the state constitution, in Section 89, "makes it crystal clear" that a legislative resolution can be vetoed by the governor or acting governor.

Mrs. Stovall, who announced her candidacy for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination for 1979 by saying "I'll run if I'm alive," said she did not fear political backlash from ERA opponents.

Mrs. Stovall said Monday that she was "dam glad" that Carroll had left for a three-day vacation Saturday — just as the legislature closed. At the same time, she indirectly criticized the governor for not taking a public position on the recession resolution.

"When the people vote to elect their leaders, they expect them to act and act decisively," she said.

Phone Rates Hike Okayed

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina Utilities Commission has issued an order allowing United Telephone Co. of the Carolinas Inc. an increase in its local rates and charges to produce $1.4 million in additional annual revenue.

United Telephone, a subsidiary of United Telecommunications System Inc., formerly was headquartered in Southern Pines and concentrates its service in the state's Sandhills area, although some other areas are served.

It now is under the managerial direction of Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co. of Tarboro, also a UTS subsidiary which filed an application in January for increases in rates and charges for a number of categories of basic business and residential telephone service.

The United Telephone Co. was granted its entire request in the action announced Monday by the utilities commission, which said that even with the increase the company would earn something less than a fair and reasonable rate of return.

The application was essentially uncontested, and the only other party to the case was the commission's Public Staff.

Pitt Countian Named To Board

Congressman Walter B. Jones today announced the appointment of 10 new members to the Plant Variety Protection Board of the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture.

Among the new members, the only one who is from North Carolina is Rachel Speight, Snyder of Winterville. Mrs. Snyder will serve a two-year term.

This Board serves as an advisory group for the program which protects breeders of new seed reproduced plants. The Plant Variety Protection Act provides for 17 years' legal protection, similar to a patent, to developers of new varieties of plants which reproduce from seed.

Report Results In Cambodia

By IVAN STEFANOVIC
Associated Press Writer
BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — The national bank building is a mass of rubble, the national library is a storehouse for furniture and swallows nest in the ventilation ducts of the abandoned post office in Phnom Penh, Yugoslav journalists report from Cambodia.

These are some of the results of the "squaring of accounts with the imperialist, colonialist and neo-colonialist heritage in culture" in Cambodia's capital since the Khmer Rouge took control in 1975.

The Yugoslavs are the first foreign press group admitted by the Cambodian Communists. Their two-week tour ended Monday.

Premier Pol Pot told them that millions of city dwellers were resettled in the countryside to counter American sabotage plans, the official news agency Tanjug reported.

A reporter from Politika, the Belgrade daily, said once-bustling Phnom Penh, which teemed with 2 million people during the war, was now a bureaucratic center with an estimated population of 20,000 officials, factory workers and their families. But the government says the population is 200,000 for the city and surroundings.

With traffic confined to pedestrians and an occasional bicyclist, all traffic signs have been painted over in white and traffic lights are idle.

The national bank was blasted into rubble two days after the Communist takeover, the result of alleged enemy diversion, Politika reported.

Phnom Penh's post office is closed with the shutters pulled down. "There is no public mail system operating with other countries," Politika said.

Except for the Chinese, all foreign embassies — North Korea, Romania, Albania, Cuba, Egypt, Lao and Yugoslavia — are located on a single street. The embassy offices have no telephone linkup with the foreign ministry.

A diplomatic canteen is open twice a week for foreigners and sells Scotch whisky, French wines and American butter for U.S. dollars.

The market place is planted in cabbages. Food is distributed to officials and military personnel through a network invisible to visitors.

lieve there's a big untold story."

VanderWerf said he thought that charges against Snyder, a mortgage vice president at the Cassopolis branch of Michigan National Bank, were "grossly exaggerated."

During the nine years that Snyder and his family have been members of the church, Snyder served as deacon, church treasurer, a Sunday school teacher and lay preacher, the minister said.

"It's a tremendous burden and blow to the family to have allegations made that in no way gibe with the man's history," VanderWerf said. He said Snyder's wife and four children, who the banker left behind, were taking the charges hard.

The charges stem from the complaint of Levola Tillman, president of Smith Hoist Co. here, that Snyder took $425,000 from her by recording deposits in two false savings passbooks.

The passbooks and $50,000 to $60,000 in cash from her safe deposit box were missing Friday when Mrs. Tillman opened the box. Snyder had a key to that box, according to Terry Dillon, an assistant U.S. Attorney in Grand Rapids.

Mitchell Is To Testify

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Attorney General John N. Mitchell is scheduled to tell congressmen what he knew of alleged South Korean influence-buying in Congress and what he did about it.

Mitchell's scheduled public questioning by a House international relations subcommittee today is his first since he was sent to prison last year for his role in the Watergate coverup.

The subcommittee is also wants to hear testimony from former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Rep. Donald M. Fraser, D-Minn., chairman of the subcommittee, said last week that unnamed Nixon cabinet officers had detailed intelligence reports by 1971 on South Korean lobbying plans but took no effective action to stop them.

The subcommittee released a lengthy report Mitchell got June 8, 1971, on South Korean financing of Radio Free Asia that refers to Tongsun Park as a "middleman, influence peddler and lobbyist."

The report to Mitchell said: "We know for a fact that Park offered to contribute to the campaign funds of several congressmen — coincidentally just before (a foreign aid appropriation bill) was submitted to the Hill — and have suspicions that he has been involved in many other irregularities as a lobbyist."

Mitchell had the FBI investigate but it found no grounds for action against Radio Free Asia. The FBI also said it found no evidence to support an intelligence report suggesting Tongsun Park was a South Korean agent.

C.D. Wallace Among Speakers

C. D. Wallace, a representative of the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society of New York, spoke to 1,500 Jehovah's Witnesses during the weekend meeting held in Fayetteville.

The talk was the highlight of the two-day regional convention held by the group from a six-county area of eastern North Carolina. More than 100 members of the Greenville congregation attended according to Charles Corey, resident minister.

The Sunday morning session was a planning type workshop directed toward the international conventions the witnesses will hold in 21 American cities and around the world this summer. The convention information was presented by Wallace and Daniel Wakelin, circuit overseer for this area.

The meetings of the local congregations will resume a normal schedule this week.

Industrial Development Prospects Are Studied

Several members of the Industrial Development Team of the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce met with the N.C. Department of Commerce officials in Raleigh Monday to discuss attracting more industries and businesses to the Pitt County area.

Bryan Smith, chief officer of Industrial Development for the Department of Commerce, told the group that Greenville has a good labor market and a good quality of life that industry is interested in.

Resse Hart, director of the Pitt County Development Commission, said that industries considering locating in the Pitt County area should be attracted by the two new waste water systems developed in the county and the expansion of Highway 264.

Department of Commerce staff members present at the meeting were as follows: Roger Critcher, field office representative; Everett Knight, Environmental Management; Bob Brinkley, Support Services;

Jim Arrstead, Administrative Services and Smith.

Chamber representatives at the meeting were: Jerry Powell, vice chairman of the Industrial Development Team; Howard Moe, Austin Britt, W.W. Speight, and Susan Quinn; Manager of Public Relations.

During the visit to Raleigh, chamber members also met briefly with Secretary of Transportation Tom Bradshaw to convey appreciation for the Highway 264 expansion plan.

Secretary Bradshaw reported to the group that the highway expansion plan should be completed prior to deadlines.

Dr. John Ball Will Be Smith Manager

Dr. John Ball of the East Carolina University Department of Allied Health and Social Professions has been named Pitt County chairman for the McNeill Smith for the U.S. Senate campaign.

State Senator Roger Sharpe, statewide campaign coordinator for Smith, announced Ball's appointment today.

A former Baptist minister, Ball has been on the ECU faculty since 1968. Prior to moving to Greenville, Ball was associated with the Division of Psychiatric Social Work of the N.C. Department of Mental Health, and has been a part-time member of the psychiatry staff at Duke University Medical Center.

Ball has also worked for the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and the Baptist Children's Home as caseworker and supervisor.

As a pastor, Ball served churches in Granville County after completing his education at Southeastern Seminary at Wake Forest, the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and at Duke University.

In accepting the appointment, Ball said, "I am convinced that McNeill Smith is a strong candidate and one which will have broad appeal in Eastern North Carolina."

"It's an honor to work for the election of a man with his integrity and his record of performance as a state legislator."

WEATHER FORECAST — A mixture of rain and snow are forecast for New England today with showers expected to extend the rest of the way down the East Coast. Rain is also anticipated for the Southwest. Temperatures are expected to be cool over New England and mild elsewhere. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
Widespread cloudiness prevailed over North Carolina this morning but temperatures during the day were expected to reach the low to mid 70s after overnight lows that ranged generally in the 50s except for the northeast corner of the state. While low readings were in the 50s in Asheville, Charlotte, Greensboro and Raleigh, a chilly 39 was recorded at Elizabeth City. Scattered showers and thunder showers were a possibility for the mountains this afternoon, arriving ahead of a cold front expected to move through the state along with rain during the night. The rain may linger along the coast Wednesday morning, while elsewhere inland it is expected to be sunny. The extended outlook indicates seasonal temperatures with highs in the 60s and lows in the 40s Thursday through Saturday with little or no rain.

Hardee's Sale

Tentatively Set

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP) — An agreement in principle was announced Monday for Pet Inc. of St. Louis, Mo. to buy Hardee's Food Systems Inc. The deal between the Rocky Mount-based fast food chain and Pet Inc. will not be final until reviewed by analysts and shareholders in both companies and by federal agencies. A Hardee's spokesman said those steps could be taken within 120-130 days. Ralph E. Peterson, Hardee's senior vice president for finance, said the sale would not affect Hardee's operations. Pet manufactures, markets and distributes food products and store equipment. Among its subsidiaries are Pet Ritz, which makes frozen pie shells; Whitman's Samplers, which makes candy; and Stuckey's restaurants.

Reminds Intent To Save Lives, Fuel

The national law decreasing highway speeds from 65 mph to 55 mph was originally executed in order to save lives and gasoline. Carl Whitfield, field representative of the Eastern District of the Governor's Highway Safety Program, said at a recent meeting of the Progressive City Kiwanis that the program also "requires the meshing of a dedicated effort by public leaders across the country and the willing cooperation of all Americans who travel the highway." He added that all 50 states have complied with the national speed limit and, in addition, they have all "established required programs for enforcement of the speed limit law."

next two million will die in half the time it took to kill the first two million should impel all North Carolinians to drive safely." The Governor's Safety Program is the coordinating agency for federal, state, and local traffic safety activities. The office was established as a result of congressional enactment of the Highway Safety Act of 1966. Whitfield said that "the Governor's Highway Safety Program has accepted the responsibility of developing and implementing traffic safety projects for which the need has been clearly established, but which are outside the scope of operations of other existing agencies."

WASHINGTON (AP) — No pricetag can easily be put on how much it has cost farmers to demonstrate here since American Agriculture began its push for higher prices last fall. And head counts of farmers who have been to Washington in several waves since the strike protest gained momentum in December are subject to debate, depending on whose figures are looked at. Jerry Wright, an American Agriculture spokesman said Monday at the group's national office in Springfield, Colo., that "something like 200,000 farmers off and on" have visited Washington since early December. Those included an estimated 45,000 to 50,000 farmers who police told American Agriculture were in town in January, Wright said. The Washington Chamber of Commerce estimated that 21,000 hotel and motel rooms were rented to farmers in the January protests, he said. In last week's demonstration, which included a brief takeover of an inner patio at USDA, more than 30,000 participated, Wright said. Telephone checks Monday with the chamber, Board of Trade, Washington Convention Center and the Washington Hotel Association failed to turn up any figures on how many farmers rented rooms or how much money they might have spent during their visits. One Capitol Hill hotel that has been popular with the farmers has room rates of $42 a day for one person and $52 for two. There are other hotels with higher rates and some with lower.

reporters that the largest rally included about 4,000 persons. However, hundreds and perhaps thousands of others ignored the major rallies and moved about Capitol Hill and elsewhere in smaller groups or on their own. The largest single farmer demonstration in January, according to federal police at the time, involved about 5,000 farmers. Wright said that farmers are paying for the Washington trips out of their own pockets, although some neighbors and communities have helped raise money to send delegates here. At the Agriculture Department, officials said that a recent count of letters sent to Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland included about 4,400 in support of the protesting farmers and 26 who challenged

American Agriculture's goals and its methods for gaining 100 percent of parity for farm commodity prices. Although many were form letters, hundreds of others were hand written or typed as personal letters urging Bergland to pay heed to the financial plight of farmers. In one letter to Bergland from Hamer, S.C., Gurnie Rowell expressed a feeling of many farmers in the Southeast who were hit by drought losses last year along with falling commodity prices. "We know unless we get relief we cannot survive much longer," Rowell said.

Pirate Bats Overwhelm Warriors, 8-4

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina University got good pitching from Pete Conaty and slammed the ball around off two Eastern Connecticut pitchers last night to roll up an 8-4 victory over the Warriors.

The win boosted the Pirate record to 7-5 overall, while the Warriors dropped to 2-5.

"We finally looked like the ball club I thought we had before this season opened," Coach Monte Little said afterwards. "We had a great deal of intensity out there."

Little said that following a split with Campbell College over the weekend, the team held a meeting and decided that they would get down to some serious baseball and not let their hopes of a second straight NCAA berth slip through their fingers. "We beat a real good ball club tonight," Little said. "They've been to the nationals nine out of the last ten years."

Little added that he thought the team played the kind of baseball that the students and the public wanted in the game. "We were hustling all the way. It was a good crowd, too. And maybe it'll get better if we do."

Conaty sailed through six scoreless innings before he was finally touched for a couple of runs in the seventh and two more in the eighth.

"I got a little tired," he said. "and my back was hurting me."

Conaty added that the team meeting helped him, too. "I haven't been approaching the games with the right frame of mind. Now, I've decided to go out and do the best I can. I know that we've got a heck of a good bullpen, so I'll just do the best I can as long as I can."

After giving up the four runs and eight hits, Conaty finally came out after facing one man in the ninth, with Tim Stiller coming on to get the next three in order.

The Pirates unleashed a 15-hit attack on the Warriors including three homers and a double.

The home runs accounted for five of the eight runs.

The Bucs got their first run in the second when Eddie Gates opened the game with a bloop double that fell in between the charging outfielder and infielder in center. Billy Best then singled to center, scoring Gates.

The Bucs added four more in the third. Gates got things started with his second homer of the year, a blast to left.

Then, Raymie Styons reached on a fielder's choice and Bobby Supel singled with two away. Macon Moye popped up down the right field line, and Warrior Mark Riemer appeared to make a diving catch of the ball in foul territory, but neither umpire could make a call on it, despite the protests of the Eastern Connecticut coach. Moye stepped back in and slapped the second pitch over the fence for a three-run homer.

The Pirates got another in the sixth. That came on a 430-foot blast over the center field fence by Butch Davis.

The Warriors then got into the act. Bud Silva doubled and Don Fusari slapped one out in center field for a two-run homer.

Then, in the eighth, two more came in. Lou LaVecchia singled and Tom Pellerino ran for him. Kirk Bennett walked and both scored on Bob DeLucia's double to left center.

But the Pirates added two more in the bottom of the eighth. Gates reached on a fielder's choice and Best singled him to third before, stealing second. Pete Paradossi hit a sacrifice fly to score Gates, and a single by Styons scored Best.

Perhaps the oddest inning was the sixth, after Davis hit his homer. Robert Brinkley singled and Jerry Carraway reached on an error that sent the ball all the way to right field. Brinkley, trying to score from first on the play was cut down at the plate. Carraway moved on to third and was then thrown out trying to score on a passed ball. Gates walked, and when Best singled to right, Gates was thrown out at third.

The two teams meet again tonight at 7:30 p.m.

Bolton, Lee Resign At ECU

Catherine Bolton, women's head basketball coach, and Billy Lee, men's assistant basketball coach, have resigned their positions at East Carolina University. Athletic Director Bill Cain announced today.

In accepting the resignations, Cain said, "We appreciate the services rendered by Coach Bolton over the previous nine years and her outstanding teams. We accept her desire to take a new direction for her future."

"We also appreciate the outstanding contributions of Billy Lee, not only to the basketball program, but also to the athletic department, over the past two years. His rapport with the athletic staff and supporters of our program was outstanding."

Bolton came to East Carolina as head women's coach in 1969-70, having compiled a 115-54 record in nine years. This year's team finished 20-11, the first 20-win season ever for a women's basketball team at East Carolina, while finishing second in the state tournament and qualified for regional tournament play.

The Lady Pirates of 1972-73 recorded an undefeated regular season, won the state championship, the regional championship and participated in the national tournament in Queens, N.Y. No other North Carolina team has advanced to the nationals since the formation of the AIAW.

"My primary function at East Carolina is as a physical education instructor," said Bolton. "I feel the demands on the coaching position are such that I cannot fulfill both positions. It's my hope that the athletic department will hire a fulltime coach so that we can recruit with some of the stronger programs in our area and can carry the program to excellence."

Billy Lee joined the men's basketball staff two years ago as a graduate assistant coach and was elevated to fulltime assistant status this past season.

Prior to joining the Pirate staff, Lee was highly successful as head coach at New Bern High School, guiding the 4-A Bears to a 42-18 mark, best ever at the school. In 1972, he coached New Bern to the school's first 4-A conference championship and into the state playoffs. Ten players under Lee entered college basketball programs in those three years.

"I resign my position with mixed emotions," said Lee. "But I think it is the best thing for my coaching career."

Cain noted that a thorough search will be conducted in seeking a new head coach for the women's program, while head basketball coach Larry Gillman will be in charge of seeking a successor for Lee in the men's program.

Williamston Nips Bullets

WILLIAMSTON — Williamston High School snuck past Jamesville yesterday in a baseball game, 4-3.

Williamston pushed over a run in the second inning to take an early lead. Rusty Lilley singled and Ricky Cowan got a hit scoring him.

In the third, Jamesville grabbed the lead, scoring twice. Tommy DiNardo singled and scored when Alan Frazier reached on an error. Trent Ange then singled in Frazier.

Jamesville added a third run in the fourth. Jeffrey Holliday reached on an error and Victor Lilly singled. Keith Long singled in Holliday.

In the fifth, Williamston came back with two to tie it. Cowan singled and Keith Clark walked. Hank Edwards reached on an error and Peaks singled in Cowan. Clark scored on a fielder's choice.

The winning run came in the sixth. Chuck Rogerson walked and was sacrificed up. He scored on Cowan's single.

Cowan led the Williamston hitting with three.

Williamston is now 1-1, as is Jamesville. Williamston plays host to Clearfield, Pa., on Thursday. Jamesville returns to action on Friday, also hosting Clearfield.

Eastern Wayne Gets Win Over Jaguars

FARMVILLE — Farmville Central fell before Eastern Wayne in a hard-fought track meet yesterday,

Rampants Own Farmville Nine

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

Rose High sophomore Skip Topping in his first varsity start, pitched five innings of no-hit baseball, and although he tired late in the game, held Farmville Central to just four hits and the Rampants held off the Jaguars for a 4-3 victory yesterday afternoon.

It was the second win of the day, and the third in three starts, for the Rampants as they also defeated Farmville 10-8 in the conclusion of a game which was suspended after six innings last Thursday.

"Topping really threw the ball well, didn't he?" Rose coach Ronald Vincent commented after the game. "He's got a good future ahead of him."

Vincent was not totally pleased with his team's effort, however. "We're still making too many mistakes on defense, and we're still not getting that real big hit we need with two outs."

The Rampants committed four errors in the contest, two in the sixth inning which allowed the Jaguars to get on the scoreboard. They had eight hits in the game, but left seven men on base.

Farmville Central's Edward Hines went the distance and was charged with the loss. Each pitcher gave up only one earned run.

Rose took the lead in the third inning of the game with a pair of runs and built a 4-0 margin in the fifth before the Jaguars scored. But Farmville Central never gave up and had the winning runs on base in the top of the seventh as Topping struggled to finish.

Each team threatened to score early in the game. Helped by a pair of Rampant errors, Farmville Central put runners on first and second in the top of the opening frame, but a short to second to first double play ended the inning.

The Rampants got a runner on in the second, but couldn't capitalize.

In the bottom of the third, Bob Woronoff reached second on an error for Rose and scored on Doug Selby's base hit up the middle. Selby went to second on the throw home and came around when Robert Morehead beat out a grounder to third base. Rose got two more men on in the inning, but Farmville came up with two straight outs.

The top of the fourth was highlighted by three straight strikeouts from Topping, who finished with 10 for the afternoon. In the bottom of the frame, two Rampant runners reached third base, but both were thrown out before they could score.

Rose got its final pair of runs in the fifth inning. Morehead led off with a base hit to left field and stole second. He scored when Ronnie Chapman reached on an error by the shortstop. Chapman stole second and came home on Jeff Aldridge's hit to center field. The Jaguars ended the frame with a double play.

Topping grew visibly tired in the top of the sixth, giving up his first hit to the leadoff batter, Ted Johnson. Johnson went to second when Billy McLawhorn walked, but was put out at third by Don Holloman's fielder's choice to the Rose third baseman.

McLawhorn went to third and Holloman to second on Allen Moore's hit to right field to load the bases. Philip Gordon reached on an error to score McLawhorn and Holloman came home when Hines' grounder was erred.

After one out in the seventh, Topping walked his third batter of the day, Lewis Yleverton. Johnson then laced a hit up the middle to send Yleverton to second. McLawhorn's sacrifice bunt down the first base line advanced both runners and Yleverton scored on Holloman's hit to left. Allen Moore hit a fielder's choice to the shortstop and he threw Holloman out at second to end the game.

In the opening game of the afternoon, which lasted only one inning, each team scored one run, but the Rampants' lead in the suspended contest gave them the win.

Rose held a 9-7 lead when the game was suspended due to darkness at Farmville last Thursday. Three runs by Chapman and two each by Morehead and Shank helped provide the Rampant margin. Most of the Jaguar scores came in a six-run fourth inning.

Joey Mattheis, who finished up on the mound for Rose, got on to a fielder's choice as leadoff batter Marty Worthington was thrown out at second in the top of the seventh. Courtesy runner Reggie Selby scored on Morehead's double to center field.

McLawhorn scored the Jaguar run in the seventh. He walked, went to second on May's infield out, to third on a wild pitch, and scored when Gordon singled after Moore's base on balls. Scott Evans also walked in the inning, but the game ended with the bases loaded for the Jaguars.

Farmville Central is now 2-3 for the season and will host Southern Wayne tomorrow. The Rampants travel to Rocky Mount on Thursday in what Vincent said will be "the real test."

Panthers Young, Face Rebuilding This Year

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

North Pitt coach Pat Smith isn't trying to hide the fact that his Panther baseball team is young and is going to take its knocks this season, but the coach is confident the team will improve greatly in the future.

"We're going to be real young," Smith said, pointing out that only two seniors and a junior return from last year's team. "We've got better ballplayers ability-wise, but they're real young," Smith said the Panthers have no experience at all on the pitching staff. Neither of the two regular pitchers have ever pitched in a varsity game before this season.

The Panthers will go with sophomore left-hander Melvin Howard and freshman Bob Hemingway on the mound this year. Howard pitched for the North Pitt "B" team last year, while Hemingway was a hurler on the Bethel 7th- and 8th-grade team.

Both pitchers show a lot of potential, according to Smith, but it may be next year before they begin to live up to it.

"I'll be honest with you, I think we're going to suffer," Smith said. "We're just going to be weak this year, but we're building."

There are some good things to say about the Panthers, Smith added. "Overall, we've got a fair defense. Our infield is pretty well set. Defensively, we should do a pretty good job."

In addition, the team has three pretty good hitters. "But, overall, we're weak there also," the coach said.

Two of North Pitt's returnees are infielders, shortstop Roy Briley, a senior, and third baseman Jeff Hines, a junior. Briley has "an outstanding arm" and is a three-year starter. Smith expects him to do a good job. Hines, an all-conference selection last season, is "probably the best all-around player on the team," Smith said.

"Hines hits real well, runs well and plays average third base. He is having some problems with the slow-hit balls."

Rounding out the infield are first baseman Tim Corey and second basemen Rodney Pritchard and Chris Holder.

Corey, a junior, "is just starting to round into a fairly good hitter," Smith said.

Pritchard and Holder will share time at second. Pritchard, a senior, is hitting better, but Holder, a junior, is fielding the ball a little better right now, Smith said.

Sophomore transfer Victor Evans will start in left field. He has good speed and plays fairly good defense, according to Smith.

The center fielder will be sophomore Carl Knight. He has "real good speed and a fair arm, but his hitting leaves a lot to be desired," Smith said.

Sophomore Neal Carr will get the nod in right. He is a good defensive player, but also lacks in the hitting department.

Senior Carl Wilson, another returnee, will be the starting catcher. He is termed an "outstanding hustler" who has really improved, his coach said.

In addition, freshman Ronnie House will probably see some time in the outfield. He is hitting the ball well, but his defense needs improvement, Smith said.

Smith said the Eastern Carolina Conference race should involve C. B. Aycock, Greene Central, and possibly Farmville Central.

The Panthers, hampered by a wet field which has prevented much practice, probably will not figure into things at all this season.

But Smith doesn't seem terribly unhappy about that. "We've got some real enthusiastic guys, and in the future, it's going to be a real good baseball team."

"Next year, we're going to be a factor, but this year, we're going to take some lumps."

Only 37 Pick Division I-A

MISSION, Kan. (AP) — Thirty-seven schools have chosen membership in the newly created I-AA college football division, the so-called "minor league," and 139 entered Division I-A, the NCAA announced Monday.

"We are of course very disappointed," said J. Neils Thompson of the University of Texas, NCAA president.

"Hopefully, many of the lower tier now in I-A will change their mind."

The schools have until April 13 to switch their declaration. But there was no indication they would do so, and Thompson declined to speculate on what action the NCAA might take to correct the imbalance.

"I would hope we could go ahead and develop the I-AA program," he told the Associated Press from Austin, Tex. "Maybe some of the institutions that entered I-A will change. I certainly would urge them to."

"The 37 in I-AA are going to benefit a great deal from television revenue and the championship program."

Under terms of a four-year, $118 million contract the NCAA signed last year with ABC-TV, Division I-A has no television guarantees while I-AA can count on a guarantee of about 10 regional appearances each two-year period, with a payoff each game in the neighborhood of $450,000. In addition, a national championship tournament is planned in I-AA, with at least another $750,000 in television money and the title game slated for national television.

Division I-A, the "major league," has no television guarantees. ABC, within the stipulation that no team can be on more than five times each two year, is free to choose which game to carry.

"I think eventually the numbers will even out," said Thompson, who made restructuring his chief goal when he assumed the NCAA presidency two years ago.

NCAA football programs now in Division I-AA:

Alcorn State; Austin Peay; Boise State; Boston University; Bucknell; Connecticut; Davidson; Delaware State; Eastern Kentucky; Grambling; Howard; Idaho; Idaho State; Jackson State; Lafayette; Lehigh; Maine; Massachusetts; Middle Tennessee State; Montana.

Also Montana State; Morehead State; Murray State; Nevada-Reno; New Hampshire; North Carolina A&T; North-eastern; Northern Arizona; Northwestern State of Louisiana; Portland State; Rhode Island; South Carolina State; Southern University; Tennessee Tech; Texas Southern; Weber State and Western Kentucky.

All other institutions previously in NCAA Division I football declared membership in Division I-A.

State, Texas In NIT Finals

NEW YORK (AP) — Texas Coach Abe Lemons may be the king of the college basketball jokers, but everyone knows the kidding stops at the opening tipoff.

It'll be no different tonight when the jovial coach sends his Longhorns into the National Invitation Tournament final against North Carolina State.

Lemons spent part of Monday entertaining the media at the NIT luncheon, bemoaning New York prices, poking fun of his coaching ability and absolutely refusing to pay attention — outwardly, anyway — to the Longhorns' bid for the title of the 41st NIT.

"I just came from breakfast and I had a couple of eggs that cost $4.95," said Lemons. "I asked to see the chicken. Where I come from, I never saw a chicken that could lay eggs worth $4.95."

"That's more amazing than this game."

Yes, just another game for Lemons and his 25-5 Longhorns. He doesn't know what to expect from the 21-9 Wolfpack and doesn't seem to care much.

"I never scout an opponent," he said. "How smart can I be? I've never written a book."

Lady Jaguars Top Warriors

FARMVILLE — Farmville Central's girl's track team rolled to a 75-46 victory over Eastern Wayne yesterday.

The Lady Jaguars won nine of the 12 individual events and tied for another, leaving Eastern Wayne with only two outright wins. Eastern took two of the three relays however.

Farmville had three double winners. Lynette Harris won the triple and long jumps; Terri Lloyd won the mile and the 880, while LuAnn Eason took the discus and the shot put.

Farmville will return to action on Wednesday, traveling to Rose.

State Plans Leave New Wilderness Area As Is Identifies Accused As 'Gestapo'

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Some 9,000 acres of undisturbed sub-tropical wilderness to which the state of North Carolina has assumed title will be left "wild and beautiful just like God made it," according to Gov. Jim Hunt.

The land — 1,000 acres of prime beach property and 8,000 acres of low-lying marshlands — was handed over to the state Monday, completing a 1973 agreement that permitted development of a portion of Bald Head Island.

Title to the land was given by the Bald Head Island Corp. to Tom Massengale, a representative of the Nature Conservancy, a conservation group, who in turn handed it over to Gov. Jim Hunt in a ceremony Monday at the state Capitol.

The 12,000-acre barrier island, also known as Smith Island, is located in the Atlantic, three miles off Southport and is the state's southern-most point. It includes beaches, dunes, salt marshes, a scenic bluff and fresh-water ponds.

Part of a 1973 accord, which was reached after three years of debate, called for developers to negotiate with the Nature Conservancy or another agency to provide protection from development for much of the ecologically unique areas.

The smaller of the two tracts, which includes the bluff and fresh-water pond, was given to the state outright by the corporation. The larger tract was disputed land to which the developers and the state had both claimed title.

"The state will maintain all the areas acquired in as near their natural condition as possible and will permit traditional uses of the area as long as they don't conflict with our intent to preserve the ecology," said Howard Lee, secretary of natural resources and community development.

Lee said the island is the home of loggerhead sea turtles, falcons and pelicans and is the state's largest breeding rookery for herons and egrets.

Bald Head Island Corp. received a construction permit for a marina on the island last December after overcoming legal challenges. John Messick, general manager of the corporation, said Monday that further development has progressed.

He said an 18-hole golf course is now open, that 600 of the 1,100 available lots have been sold, and that 12 houses and an eight-room inn, used primarily by the corporation for sales, have been completed.

Messick said the island is the northern-most point on the Atlantic coast where palm trees grow naturally.

CHICAGO (AP) — Speaking in Polish, the witness pointed to a South Side factory worker and said that was the Gestapo agent who 36 years ago had shot and killed a ghetto woman who had refused to remove her clothes for him.

"I have very good eyesight," said David Gelbhauer, a 60-year-old locksmith from Bat Yam, Israel.

Asked if Frank Walus was the man Gelbhauer remembered from the Jewish ghetto in Czestochowa, Poland, he said, "Yes."

Federal prosecutors have charged the 55-year-old Walus in a civil complaint with lying about his past to immigration officials when he became a naturalized citizen in August 1970.

Walus could lose his citizenship and face deportation hearings if U.S. District Judge Julius Hoffman rules in favor of the government, a prosecutor said Monday after opening arguments.

Gelbhauer testified he was a forced laborer at Gestapo headquarters in Czestochowa and that his jobs there included removing victims of Nazi questioning from interrogation rooms when they were unable to leave on their own. He said he saw Walus there numerous times.

The locksmith, who spoke through a translator, said he also had to pull wagons carrying bodies for burial when Nazis began "liquidating" the ghetto.

He recalled one such incident in October 1942.

Gelbhauer said he was loading bodies onto a wagon when he recognized Walus, dressed in the uniform of an officer of the Gestapo, or Nazi secret police, talking to a woman with two children.

He said he heard Walus order the woman to disrobe. When she refused, Gelbhauer said, "He shot her ... through the back of the neck."

Gelbhauer said he turned away, "because I heard those children screaming." He said two more shots rang out. He looked back to see the children lying next to their mother.

Prosecutors said 11 witnesses would swear Walus is the man they saw terrorize and murder Jews in Poland.

Defense cross-examination of Gelbhauer had just begun when court adjourned for the day. It is expected to continue today.

Surgery for Cleft Palate

Our newborn child has a cleft palate. You can imagine the distress this has caused my husband and me. One doctor said the baby could be operated on when he is very young, but we're afraid to take this chance. We're writing to you to get another opinion from an outside source. — Mrs. T.H., Okla.

Dear Mrs. H.: Since a cleft palate is often associated with a harelip, I will discuss them both as one condition. They may or may not occur together.

During the development of the fetus, both sides of the body fuse. In rare instances, failure of complete fusion results in a harelip or a cleft palate.

The results of modern surgery for this condition are amazing. Doctors who specialize in this delicate field tend to prefer to perform the operation at a very early age. In some instances, operations are done as early as six months after birth. Since there are many variations in the degree of this developmental abnormality, the decision of the surgeon must be depended on. He makes the choice for the optimum time in order to obtain the optimum benefit.

Parents of these children are understandably distressed. Sometimes they bombard themselves unnecessarily with a feeling of guilt as though they were responsible for this defect. You obviously need the special assurance that this is not so.

The opinion that you seek from an "outside source" should really be obtained through your doctor. That is the ideal way for confirming one surgeon's opinion.

These columns are never intended to replace the viable personal doctor-patient relationship. Seeking an additional opinion will give you an enormous amount of assurance that your child's condition can be markedly improved.

The delicacy of today's surgery for the repair of cleft palate and harelip can almost completely obliterate the defects. I believe you will be delighted with the results.

I have a diverticulum of the bladder. Is this in any way related to diverticulitis of the intestines? — Mr. B.D., Calif.

Dear Mr. D.: There is no relationship between the two. A diverticulum is simply a pouch, or anatomical defect. This can occur in the bladder, in the intestines or in the esophagus.

A pouch, or diverticulum, of the bladder may be the result of long-standing infection or some obstruction to the outlet of the bladder.

Only when symptoms are marked is surgery necessary for a repair of the diverticulum of the bladder.

DR. COLEMAN welcomes letters from readers. Please write to him in care of this newspaper.

Revival Series Begins Tonight

There will be a revival beginning tonight at Saintsville Holy Temple Church.

The services will continue through Friday night. Quarterly conference will also be held Sunday. The public is invited to attend this week's services.

How your old car can get you the best deal on a new car.

When you buy a car, there's more to consider than just the price of the car and the amount of money you're going to have to borrow.

There's also the amount of money that you put into your old car to get it ready for trade-in.

Some people spend too much; some spend too little.

Either way, it can make as much as a $500 difference in the total amount of money you spend.

So here are some tips on getting your old car ready.

1. Wash and polish the car; touch up paint and chrome.

2. Clean the upholstery, vacuum carpet, wash mats, clean out glove compartment and trunk.

3. Check gas, water, oil, brake and transmission fluids; make sure tires have the right pressure.

4. Replace burned-out light bulbs. You can do all this yourself for no more than $25.

Now here are some expenses you should avoid:

1. A new paint job. It can make it appear that you're trying to "cover up" some major problem.

2. Major repairs. It'll cost you a lot more than you'll get out of it. So settle for a lower trade-in, if there's a big problem with the car.

All told, this should give you a "better deal" on a new car.

And, if you'd like an idea of the amount you can borrow before you look for a new car, come see us.

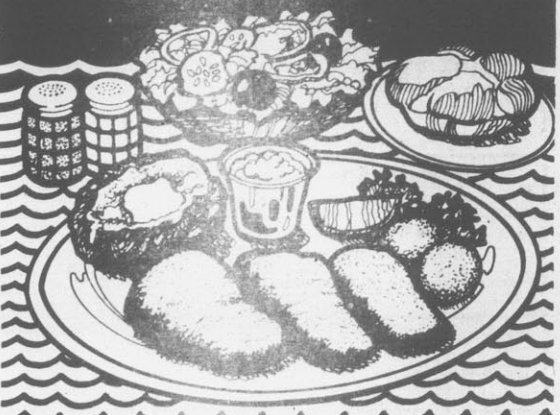

We'll give you a fast, direct answer, not a runaround. We'll work out the payment plan that works best for you. (If you like, we can even arrange automatic payments from your NCNB Checking Account.)

In short, we'll do all we can to make things easier for you. Which is probably why, in one way or another, more people borrow money from us than any other bank in North Carolina.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Consider well your overall ambitions and goals and then reduce them to a working success by your own efforts and initiative. Be meticulous in your thinking.

ARIES (March 21 to Apr. 19) Make plans that are practical in both business and at home and get better results in the days ahead. Change diet where necessary and enjoy better health. Stop being so belligerent.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Improve health and appearance before you go out for recreation and have more enjoyment. Don't neglect outstanding bills.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get your basic affairs in better order and all works out admirably for you now. Improve your home so that everyone is happier in it.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make routines more efficient—running so that you get better results and more leisure time. Don't neglect necessary shopping and correspondence. A more optimistic attitude is vital now.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Seek out financial experts who can give you excellent ideas on how to improve your position in life. Economize and build up a reserve.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You are highly magnetic today and can get excellent results in dealing with others. Get together with close ties and have a good time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Handle private and confidential matters well today and get good results. A better understanding with loved ones is possible now. Use a more masterful approach.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Pigeonhole friends and relatives so that they work out best in your social and recreational activities. Making new contacts is also good, especially where business matters are concerned.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Consult with those at the head of groups and organizations for the information you want. Get into civic work that is good for you and your community.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Look at everything from a more expanded perspective and you can grow accordingly. Cultivate new acquaintances, socially and in business. These can be good for you in the days ahead.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Handle obligations efficiently and you benefit since your thinking is exceptionally clear. Be more cooperative.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) Long talks with allies can bring greater accord and more ideas for expansion and success in the future. Civic work you do is also helpful.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will like to do good work and should be given as good an education as possible in order to make the most of this quality. Teach not to get involved with details so that the overall aims are forgotten.

UNC-TV Hopes Funds Continue Roll In

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Inflation has not just driven up the prices of coffee, cars and haircuts. It is also taking a bigger bite out of public-broadcasting budgets to pay for shows like Sesame Street and Great Performances.

So the primary purpose of a recently concluded fund-raising effort by the University of North Carolina Television Network was just to maintain the network's current programming and operations, according to one network official.

"This will help to pay the increased costs of national programs, to meet our own operating expenses and to increase the quantity and quality of our local productions," said Mary Leaver, director of audience services for UNC-TV.

By the time it officially ended Sunday night, the network's 16-day festival '78 fund drive had generated just short of $128,000 in pledges and contributions from about 7,000 viewers, Ms.

Leaver said.

But "the mail was still pouring in" Monday, she said, adding that she "would be not at all surprised" if the goal of $185,000 in pledges were met.

"People have been very generous," Ms. Leaver said. "It's a nice way for the (network)

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government plans to spend $15 million to resettle 500 inhabitants of Bikini Island, because new studies show that radiation from atomic tests there remains at an unsafe level.

staff to find out that the people out there really do care."

The funds raised through private donations will be supplemented on a matching basis by the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, which will kick in $1 in future appropriations for each $2.50 raised by the network, she added.

That will help UNC-TV to keep pace on the treadmill of increased costs for such shows as Sesame Street, Great Performances and Nova, as well as for Evening at the Symphony, which is no longer underwritten nationally, Ms. Leaver said.

"The main purpose (of Festival '78) is not to add programs, but so we don't have to decrease the number we show now," she explained.

It now costs more than $20,000 a year for the network to purchase Sesame Street, she said, and prices for other shows are also increasing steadily.

In addition, the price tag on the network's coverage of the General Assembly is also rising, with last year's six-month session costing about $30,000 to produce — a figure that is likely to rise next year, she said.

Currently, UNC-TV receives about $2.1 million a year from the university itself and $455,000 from the Corporation for Public Broadcasting. The network, with studios in Chapel Hill, Raleigh and Greensboro, broadcasts on eight transmitters and five translators reaching 96 percent of the viewers in the state.

Symposium On Thursday

A symposium on Latin America will be held Thursday, March 23, at East Carolina University from 9 a.m. until 12 noon at the Brewster Building, Room C-103.

Dr. Milton Altschuler of the ECU Department of Sociology, who is serving as coordinator of Latin American studies, said that the three featured speakers will be: Professor Herbert Carlton of the Department of Political Science at ECU who will address the issue of the Panama Canal;

Dr. Henry Landsberger of the Department of Sociology, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, who will speak on the decline of democracy in Chile; and Senor Rene Mujica, Second Secretary of the Cuban Interest Section, which represents the Fidel Castro government in Washington, D.C. Senor Mujica, who was formerly with the Cuban mission to the United Nations, will speak on the historical perspective of the Cuban Revolution.

The meeting is open to the public.

LONDON CONCERT — With the initial 'R' on the lens of her spectacles, American singer Rosemary Clooney and her son Rafael arrive at London's Heathrow Airport today, from Los Angeles. Steve Ford Now Spokesman

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Steve Ford, the 21-year-old son of former President Gerald Ford, is riding high in a new job — calf roper and chief public spokesman for a professional rodeo team.

The Los Angeles Rough Riders, one of six rodeo teams in the nation that are launching a Major League Rodeo circuit this year, announced signing Ford Monday.

"I feel that the concept of Major League Rodeo will give America's oldest sport the recognition it deserves and will show . . . what truly fine athletes today's rodeo performers are," said Ford.

'Coffee Break' For Motorists

Pitt County REACT Team 3133 will hold a coffee break for motorists on Highway 43 South at Chichod School on March 25 from 9 a.m. until 9 p.m. and all day Sunday, March 26.

The coffee break, according to a spokesman, is part of the team's effort to encourage highway safety during the Easter weekend.

Today's Cryptquip clue: P equals C

The Cryptquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Southern Bell Income Rose

ATLANTA (AP) — Southern Bell Telephone Co.'s net income rose $68 million — from $336 million to $404 million — last year, the utility reported Monday.

In its annual report, the utility said revenues were $3 billion, an increase of $379 million over 1976. Expenses increased $226 million to about $2.6 billion.

The company, which serves Georgia, Florida, North Carolina and South Carolina, said investment in facilities to provide service was $7.2 billion in 1977, up from $6.6 billion in 1976.

Southern Bell spent nearly $1.1 billion on new construction during 1977 — 17 percent more than in 1976 — reflecting continued "recovery from the 1974 recession," the report said. Planned construction expenditures for 1978 are nearly $1.3 billion, it added.

Last year was "a good one," said President L. E. East, but "our earnings must be considered in terms of our responsibilities to our customers. For if we are to serve them well, we must earn well."

"Our rate of return on average total capital was 9.75 percent. It was, however, below the 10.5 percent we must earn to cover our cost of capital," he said.

Propose More Transmitters

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A $6.3-million outlay for four new public-television transmitters in eastern North Carolina and improvements in the system in western counties has been proposed by a special state legislative committee.

The improvements would beam the University of North Carolina Television Network to an additional 652,000 persons and improve reception for 1.73 million others, said George E. Bair, director of educational television for the university.

A legislative committee, chaired by state Rep. Liston B. Ramsey, D-Madison, was appointed last November by House Speaker Carl J. Stewart to study the needs of the UNC-TV network.

In an interview Monday, Stewart predicted the General Assembly would include the committee's appropriation proposal in the university system budget during its upcoming session, which begins May 31.

The proposed funding is three times the amount the university has requested from the legislature and would roughly double the state's capital investment in the broadcasting system since it was established in 1955.

Under the proposal, new UHF transmitters would be built in Robeson County, Raeford, Jacksonville and Roanoke Rapids. Bair said the new transmitters would enable the network reach an additional 566,000 persons in eastern North Carolina and substantially improve reception for 370,000 others.

In the west, broadcasting power would be increased at existing transmitters and as many as 30 broadcast translators would be added to reach all large mountain communities and public schools. That would add an audience of about 86,000 persons and improve reception for another 1.36 million, Bair said.

Junk Trombone Is Tops In Contest

MORGANTON, N.C. (AP) — Take two toilet-tissue tubes, one 12-ounce orange-juice can and the nozzle from a hair-coloring bottle. Put them together, and what have you got?

A prize-winning trombone. That was the musical invention of Mark Pickett, an eighth-grader at Morganton Junior High School. Pickett's homemade trombone earned him the title of "champeen" musical-instrument maker in a recent contest at the school.

The competition included a drum made out of a coffee can and a piece of inner tube, a set of bottles filled to different levels with water, several primitive stringed instruments, and lots of tambourines and maracas.

It was all part of a school-wide effort to think of creative ways of recycling materials. The musical-instrument contest was timed to tie in with both Music in Our Schools Week and Beautification and Recycling Month at the school.

Strings were plunked and scales were blown on bottles, but the biggest hit was Plunkett's rendition of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" on his trombone.

With sheet music spread before him, Pickett moved the orange-juice-can slide up and down in a convincing imitation of a trombone — although he admitted later, "The slide doesn't make much difference, it just looks better."

Before he designed the trombone, Pickett had tried his luck at making several other musical instruments from recycled trash.

First, there was the xylophone made from a shoebox. When he put the keys on, the box caved in. Later, he decided to make a brass instrument out of a water hose. But that, he soon realized, "was not very practical."

Pickett's experience with real musical instruments comes from playing the trumpet, not the trombone. "But I sat beside a trombone player in sixth grade," he said, so he had some idea of how to put one together.

The secret to playing his junk trombone, he explained, is in the player's lips. The tightness of the lips on the mouthpiece — the hair-coloring-bottle nozzle — makes the sound higher or lower.

He used the sheet music to remember which notes were the high ones.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market turned lower today in what analysts described as profit-taking after a string of steady gains.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was off 5.11 at 768.80 as of midday.

The Dow indicator of blue chip performance rose more than 15 points on heavy trading in the past three sessions.

"It's normal for a little profit-taking at this point," said Leslie Pollack of Shearson, Hayden, Stone Inc., adding that he is optimistic about the underlying market trends.

In the noon tally of issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange, losers outnumbered gainers by a margin of about 3-2. The NYSE composite index slipped .23 to 50.34.

RCA Corp., down 3/4 to 24 1/2, headed the noon NYSE active list. Trading included a block of 154,900 shares at 24 1/2. Revlon, down 1 to 40, also was actively traded and included a block of 100,000 shares at that price.

Trading in Sears Roebuck, active in the early going, was halted, pending its announcement of earnings. Sears last traded at 24 3/4, up 1/4, before announcing lower fourth quarter earnings but improved profits for the full year.

Among other issues, airline stocks were generally lower. Prices included American Airlines, down 3/4 to 10; Delta, off 1/2 at 39 3/4; TWA, down 1/4 to 14 1/2; and United, off 1/4 to 21 1/2.

Volume on the Big Board came to 11.21 million shares, over the first two hours, compared with 14.29 million on Monday.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index fell 24 to 127.70.

Cites Obstacle To Free Speech
ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Equal Rights Amendment opponent Phyllis Schlafly says the people who shout her down when she speaks against ERA are against the right to free speech.

She made the comment Monday after doing verbal battle with backers of the proposed amendment to the U.S. Constitution during an appearance at the University of Rochester.

"I bet everybody who came here neutral will be turned off," she said of the constant interruptions from the audience.

She told the largely male student audience that when they graduate, "if you do," they should thank her for encouraging women to stay home and out of the job market.

Our Sincere Thanks
We would like to express our deepest gratitude to everyone who helped us through our tragedy. One has a feeling of complete helplessness when watching all our belongings burn.

Due to your help we have been able to resume housekeeping. We thank God for people like you. We feel that God has blessed us through you. We thank Him for this blessing. Thank you again.

HEW Decision On UNC Still In The Wings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. of health, education and welfare has delayed a decision on whether to extend the time on negotiations between the department and the University of North Carolina system on a desegregation plan.

Monday was the deadline but a HEW spokesman said Califano had put off the decision until today or not later than Wednesday.

The decision is on whether to start proceedings for withholding federal funds from the 16-campus university system for failure to meet court-ordered desegregation guidelines. The UNC system is expected to receive about $90 million in federal funds this year.

Of five states originally involved in the court order, North Carolina now is the only one whose proposed desegregation procedure is held to be in non-compliance.

A HEW spokesman issued a statement Monday saying, "The secretary does not expect to take action of any kind today with respect to the request of the state of North Carolina for a postponement of the start of administration proceeding on desegregation of the state system of higher education. This means simply that he has reached no decision one way or the other on this matter and needs a little more time in which to do so."

It was indicated, however, that he would make his decision no later than Wednesday.

Meanwhile, in Chapel Hill, UNC President William Friday said the university had not asked for a postponement. He also said he had not been in negotiation with any HEW officials in the last several days.

Hurt and Callaway have taken their case to federal court. Ms. Callaway, 31, is awaiting trial on a charge of using a stolen credit. Hurt is serving time for a break-in and theft.

The two have been casual acquaintances for several years but it wasn't until both found themselves under the same prison roof that love blossomed.

Hurt, a trusty at the jail, says he proposed March 6 as he delivered a tray of food to Ms. Callaway's cell.

"When I handed her the tray, I whispered in her ear, 'Will you marry me?'" she said. "Yes," says Hurt.

"A lot of men lose their wives in jail. I'm getting mine in jail. If we can get married, it will give me a better reason to be a better man when I get out," Hurt says.

Seek Owner Of Jewelry Box
Pitt deputies are trying to determine ownership of a wooden jewelry box and its contents found on a rural paved road Sunday on Rt. 6, Greenville.

According to Sheriff Ralph Tyson, the cedar jewelry box, containing some $80 worth of coins, several pieces of costume jewelry, a small amount of Canadian money, and cuff links, was found on the highway near the All Pines area by Lee Waters of Rt. 8, Greenville.

Sheriff Tyson, who noted that his department had not received a report regarding a jewelry box theft, said that the lid was broken off the box when it was found.

Responsible For City Potholes
JACKSON, Mich. (AP) — When Janet McAllister fell into a pothole, she sprained her ankle and broke her arm. She asked her husband, Wes, to find out which city official was responsible for potholes.

"Under the city charter, the city manager is," said Wes, who is the city manager.

"She'll probably garnish part of my paycheck over this," he said Monday.

The Pitt County Board of Education has postponed its Budget Workshop from tonight until March 28, at 7:30 p.m. in the Courthouse.

State Plans To Buy Ashe Land
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state is planning to buy 104 acres of Ashe County land adjoining the New River later this year to develop the river's first access area, according to James S. Stevens Jr., director of parks and recreation.

Stevens said efforts to buy the land will begin before August. The expected cost of $150,000 may be met in part through federal matching funds, he said.

The site will feature 48 picnic tables, nine primitive camping spaces, a daytime horse camp and parking facilities. One of two planned park offices will be constructed on the site.

approved updating the current list of substitute teachers. This basic list is periodically reviewed and revised by the school board.

The 1976-77 audit of the Greenville City Schools, which was tabled until March because of procedural discrepancies noted by auditors in four schools, was approved last night after Cox assured board members steps had been taken at these schools to insure that all required procedures would be strictly followed in every phase of accounting.

A motion that will end the present rotation of banks for accounts of the city schools and introduce a bid process was approved. Under the new ruling, bids for the city school accounts will be let on a two-year period. Board members Miles Frost and Dr. James Bearden abstained from voting.

Also in budget matters, Frost asked that a determination be made on why a $86,491.91 net overdraft appears in the February budget sheet for the city schools.

"Somebody is not running something right when this happens," Frost commented. A status report on the Middle School reveals that general contractor work is complete except for final site grading, re-seeding, and the completion of a few punch list items such as touching up and a few minor replacements such as broken tiles.

Furniture for the media center is due in June, and casework, due to be installed about April 1, has been delayed since the manufacturer in New Hampshire was closed for a month due to severe weather conditions.

The final cost figure for the portion of Middle School just completed amounts to $2,103,452. Cox said the next and final phase is projected to cost $1,750,000. The final phase will include the auditorium, gymnasium, and an arts and crafts area, and additional classrooms.

Cox reported that for the first time since last December, construction workers were able to get a full week's work in on the construction of Arlington Boulevard past the Middle School. He noted that Barrus Construction people had been most helpful in keeping the access road and entry roads into the parking lot negotiable during the wet weather.

Firemen were slightly injured while fighting the blaze. They were treated and released at Catawba Memorial Hospital.

Firemen fought the fire from about 1:20 until 5:30 Tuesday morning.

Fire damage was estimated by Bunton at $200,000. The plant manufactured frame furniture with throwaway cushions.

Assistant Fire Marshall Rupert Little said the cause of the fire has not been determined yet, but that he doesn't suspect arson.

Investigation into the cause of the blaze is continuing.

No Wedding In Jailhouse

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — Wayne Hurt proposed. Lani Callaway said "yes." But Samuel Pruett said "no" and now the wedding is off.

Pruett is administrator of the Albemarle-Charlottesville County jail, where Hurt and Ms. Callaway are incarcerated.

Pruett said no to the jailhouse wedding because he said it would pose a security problem.

Hurt and Callaway have taken their case to federal court. Ms. Callaway, 31, is awaiting trial on a charge of using a stolen credit. Hurt is serving time for a break-in and theft.

The two have been casual acquaintances for several years but it wasn't until both found themselves under the same prison roof that love blossomed.

Airline Joins The Stork Club
LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — When Western Airlines flight 567 left for Los Angeles, there were 83 passengers on board. When it returned to Las Vegas a few minutes later, there were 84.

The newest arrival, a 7-pound girl, was born in the galley section of the Boeing 737 shortly after it left McCarran International Airport Monday morning.

Western said the mother, Mrs. Talal Shaibi, told a flight attendant she was ill shortly after the 7:40 a.m. takeoff. The stewardess located two doctors on the plane who helped Mrs. Shaibi to the rear and delivered the baby.

The plane returned to Las Vegas where an ambulance took Mrs. Shaibi to Sunrise Hospital. Mother and daughter were reported doing well.

Surviving her are two sons, Willie O. Boyd of Rt. 3, Greenville and Jesse Boyd of RFD, Chocowinity; six daughters, Mrs. Lizzie Arnold of Rt. 1, Grimesland, Mrs. Clarence Hodges of Greenville, Mrs. Dalton Moore of Robersonville, Mrs. Frances Bates of Washington, Mrs. Lucinda

Vandford
BELL ARTHUR — Mr. Willis H. Vandford, 57, died today in his home.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Arrest Man For Gasoline Theft
A 22-year-old man was arrested Saturday by Pitt County deputies and charged with larceny of gas from a Rt. 1, Bethel service station.

Deputies, according to Sheriff Ralph Tyson, arrested Robert Lewis Jordan of 107 Josie Lane, Colonial Park, and charged him with the larceny of $10 worth of gas from Robert Stalon's Service Station on Highway 11.

Jordan, it was pointed out, allegedly pumped the gas into his automobile around 6 p.m. Saturday and then drove off without paying.

Bond for Jordan was set at $500 with a hearing scheduled for March 29 in District Court here.

The sheriff noted that Dixon also reported the theft of a camera and diamond ring from the residence, located approximately two miles from Black Jack.

The break-in was reported Monday at 6:14 p.m., Sheriff Tyson said.
