'Candid Friendship' Suggested In Brazil

By FRANK CORMIER Associated Press Writer

BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) — Despite pointed differences with his hosts, President Carter said today that Brazil and the United States can call each other friends and still reserve "the right to disagree, even vigorously on occasion, without bitterness or distrust."

The visiting U.S. president suggested in a brief speech to Brazil's congress that understanding and candor should underlie relations between the two most powerful nations in the northern and southern parts of the Western Hemisphere.

The president spoke to the congress before meeting with Brazil's military chief of state, President Ernesto Geisel, a four-star general, for last-minute talks about their differences on human rights and curbing the spread of nuclear arms.

The address followed Carter's second presidential news conference overseas. At the meeting with Brazilian reporters traveling with him, the U.S. president said he is confident the government of Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin "is completely capable" of negotiating a peace settlement in the Middle East.

News reports from the Middle East have claimed that a Carter administration official has urged Israeli politicians to replace Begin with a more flexible leader.

At the news conference, televised live throughout Brazil and in the United States, Carter denied that anyone "in any position of responsibility" in his administration has ever insinuated Begin is not qualified to be prime minister or that he should be replaced.

"I think that Prime Minister Begin and his government are able to negotiate in an adequately flexible way to reach an agreement with Egypt and later Jordan and other countries," Carter declared.

"We have not give up on the possibility of a negotiated settlement in the Middle East."

Carter also told reporters attending the news conference, similar to his first presidential news conference away from home last Dec. 30 in Poland, that shared concerns "which bind us in harmony with Brazil far transcend" current differences between the two nations over human rights and nuclear power development.

Report No Progress On Resuming Peace Talks

By LISETTE BALOUNEY Associated Press Writer

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Israeli Defense Minister Ezer Weizman flew to Egypt today and hurried into a meeting with President Anwar Sadat, but Cairo radio said the session made no progress toward resumption of peace talks.

War Minister Mohammed Abdel Ghani el-Gamassy, Egypt's representative at Weizman's previous negotiations on Israeli withdrawal from the Sinai Desert, was waiting at Cairo airport with a helicopter when Weizman landed aboard a camouflage-painted Hercules C-130 transport.

The two defense chiefs took off at once for Sadat's villa 15 miles north of Cairo.

It was the first direct contact between Egypt and Israel since Weizman's last visit Feb. 1.

Israel's emissary was preceded by a letter from Begin to Sadat two days ago urging him to come up with new responses to Israeli peace proposals and calling on him to reactivate the political and military negotiating committees created in December. Those committees have not met for 10 weeks.

Only one significant change has been reported in Israel's peace proposals, however. It is an offer to let the Palestinians living in the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip participate in negotiations on their future with Israel, Egypt and Jordan. But that is a long way from the full self-determination demanded by Sadat, and Egyptian officials have also objected because the proposal does not include the estimated 2 million Palestinians living in other Arab countries.

Otherwise, there has been no change in the rejection by Begin's government of Egypt's demands that Israel withdraw from all Arab territory occupied in the 1967 war and that it dismantle approximately 100 Jewish settlements established in the occupied territories.

The semi-official Cairo newspaper Al-Ahram said the Israeli cabinet's decision to send Weizman to Cairo reflects a policy that is "swinging between placing obstacles and a pretence of pursuing peace efforts."

Support Program For Tobacco In Excellent Shape, Advises Jones

By STUART SAVAGE Reflector Staff Writer

First District Congressman Walter Jones told members of the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce that tobacco support program, "as we know it, is in excellent shape," as he discussed current legislation at a chamber-sponsored breakfast here this morning.

In saying, "the chances are improving each and every day," to see the Department of Health, Education and Welfare separated into a department of education and a department of health and welfare, Jones referred to HEW secretary Joseph Califano as, "Califungus...alluding to a disease." He added, as HEW secretary, "Califungus...has far too much power," for one man.

Saying, "I am in no way defending Mr. Califungus," in HEW's action to cut off funds to the University of North Carolina because the system's desegregation plan has not been approved, Jones indicated the action was an attempt to buy time.

Explaining, the congressman said HEW was taken to court and a U.S. District Court judge, "ordered certain things to be done," which, "UNC refused to do."

Jones continued, "HEW felt that unless they did this (start administrative action to cut off federal funds to the UNC system)," HEW could be taken back into court and the judge, "would order the cut-off of funds," immediately.

The administrative action, according to Jones, was taken so the case can't go back into court, "...to stave off further court action." In the meantime, he continued, UNC and HEW can negotiate.

In saying the tobacco support program is in excellent shape, Jones pointed out the fact that he is chairman of the House Agriculture Committee's subcommittee on tobacco. Three bills have been introduced and are now pending to phase out the support program over periods of from one to three years.

"I can't find time to hold hearings on them," Jones said, because of his busy schedule. He added that any bill affecting the support program must first go to his committee before action is taken by the full House.

Jones, saying he voted for the Humphrey-Hawkins bill because it does, "absolutely nothing," explained that "not one penny of appropriations," was included for its implementation.

He said the bill, "a vicious piece of legislation," in its original form, is ineffective in the form in which it was finally adopted.

The bill calls for reduced unemployment and inflation, as well as 100 per cent of parity for farmers and a balanced budget, by 1983.

The bill, he said, "is an exercise in futility."

Jones added that, "I wouldn't be too surprised," to see the Senate pass the labor reform bill, which he said "gives the National Labor Relations Board more power."

The congressman also said his vote for an increase in Social Security taxes, "was predicated on...a promise," of income tax relief to offset the taxes for Social Security.

Jones also predicted tax relief or cash payments to families with children in college. "I think there will be some relief," he said, which, "might even extend into the secondary school."

Saying there is no move at the present to revive the draft, Jones emphasized, "we can't afford to have a second rate army. We have too few friends in the world," and may have to have some form of draft in the future if the all-volunteer army is not successful.

The congressman also termed federal financing of campaigns for members of congress, as well as for the presidency, "a raid on the treasury," indicating his opposition to the campaign reform act.

Hunt Defends Big Trade Trip Costs

By WILLIAM M. WELCH Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt, preparing for a two-week trade mission abroad, defended the $30,000 cost of the trip today as "a small investment, given the return that we anticipate down the road."

Hunt will lead a group of ranking administration officials and North Carolina business leaders on the trip Sunday. They will visit England, Germany, Switzerland and Israel.

Hunt released an itinerary of the trip and said he would meet with a number of major industrialists in an effort "to interest them in doing business in or with North Carolina."

The $30,000 will cover expenses of state officials, Hunt said, but the group of 20 business leaders will travel at their own expense.

Those traveling at state expense include House Speaker Carl Stewart, D-Gaston, a member of the state Economic Development board, Lynwood Smith, chairman of the board, Lauch Faircloth, secretary of commerce, Tom Bradshaw, secretary of transportation, Sara Hodgkins, secretary of cultural resources, and five other industrial recruiters and tourism officials.

Hunt said Mrs. Hodgkins was making the trip to discuss the cultural opportunities in North Carolina with foreign businessmen.

"We're going to be talking about the business climate in North Carolina and why this would be a good place for them to locate," Hunt said.

On other topics, Hunt said the winter energy shortage was over, as a result of warmer temperatures and an end to the coal strike. Hunt said the 5 percent voltage reduction imposed by all electric utilities in the state would be lifted, but he urged citizens to continue conservation.

"Conserving is the major way we can hold our bills down," he noted.

Hunt also said he felt sympathy for Democratic candidates to the U.S. Senate who have complained of financial difficulties in their campaigns recently. Hunt said part of the problem may be the federal limit of $1,000 on personal contributions to campaigns.

"We ought to take a look at that and see if it's a reasonable limit," he said.

Hunt also said he hoped the University of North Carolina television network would devote more time to an airing of the issues by candidates.

Hunt said he endorsed public financing of campaigns for president, and gave qualified support to similar financing for Senate candidates. Hunt said he was keeping an open mind on public financing of lesser races, such as governor and congress.

A HOTLINE APPEAL

AQUARIUM REPLACEMENT NEEDED

The children of Stokes Elementary School have enjoyed an aquarium given to them last fall and housed in the library of the school this year. Over the Easter weekend, one panel of it was cracked.

Stokes teacher, Debbie Carson, said she has called several pet and glass businesses and has found no one who can repair it. She has asked Hotline to appeal for either the donation of a new aquarium for the school or the location of someone to repair the damaged one. She may be reached at 752-6907 during school hours and 825-0971 evenings.

DISCONTINUED PATTERNS

I would like to know the name and address of a company that might be able to supply pieces of a discontinued china pattern. I bought six place settings at an estate sale and would love to have two more place settings, at least, of what I think is a very lovely set of dinnerware.

Ariane Clark, a local interior decorator, whose shop is on Arlington Boulevard, shared a portion of her listing of 13 firms which sell pieces of discontinued patterns. Listed here are four which she said are usually the most helpful and the closest: 1. Old China Pattern, 74 Col. Danforth Trail, Highland Creek Trail, Highland Creek, Ont., Canada; 2. Patterns of the Past, 504 S. Main St., Princeton, Ill. 61356; 3. The Jewel Box, Box 145, Albertville, Ala. 35950; and 4. Dick Thirsk, China Chasers Inc., Box 214, Dunwoody, Ga. 30338.

Mrs. Clark said that anyone needing others of the 13 addresses may visit her store and copy the list.

Balloonists In Her Back Yard

FARGO, N.D. (AP) — Unexpected guests literally dropped in on Mrs. John Bloom.

Two hot air balloonists running low on fuel had to land somewhere on Wednesday, and that somewhere was her back yard in the heart of Fargo.

It wasn't the smoothest landing. Mike Deconcini of Fargo and Brad Lund of Grand Forks hit a tree and then a clothesline before touching down. Neither was injured.

Deconcini — a hot air balloonist for four years — said they took off south of Fargo and planned to head south of Moorhead, Minn., but the wind shifted, and they had to land where they could.

French Like Cheese And Potato Dishes

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The French produce more than 300 kinds of cheese and are understandably hard put sometimes to decide how to serve this formidable assortment.

Somewhere along the line, an enterprising Gallic chef discovered that most cheeses have an affinity for the potato, which made its debut in French society during the 18th century when Louis XVI began serving spuds at royal banquets.

France's encyclopedia of classic cookery, Larousse Gastronomique, lists more than a hundred potato recipes and many of them are combined with cheese. The ones I have tried have proved both delicious and filling. In fact, they would not only be fit candidates for a formal dinner but would make hearty fare for your kids.

One simple combination is Baked Potatoes Roquefort, which is great with roast beef. The baked potatoes are removed from their skins, beaten with Roquefort cheese and cream, topped with a mixture of French biscotte crumbs, garlic and butter.

Potatoes à l'Alsacienne is a tasty casserole that includes potatoes, cabbage and onions in thickened chicken broth. The dish is topped with shredded semisoft cheese, like the mild Bonbel or St. Paulin, which comes from a Trappist monastery and has a pleasantly nutty flavor.

Another casserole that has become a classic in France is Pommes de Terre à la Dauphinoise. It is a simple mixture of layered sliced potatoes, onions and grated Cantal cheese in a white sauce, baked until the top is golden brown. Cantal, one of the oldest French cheeses, resembles the English cheddar and ranges from mild to sharp. Or you can use a French Gruyere cheese which closely resembles Swiss. It goes well with lamb chops.

An old French favorite is Pommes de Terre à la Duchesse which consists of mashed potatoes combined with one of France's triple-cream cheeses, eggs, heavy cream, chives and dill — baked in a casserole.

Let Your Guests Decide The Gift

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I will celebrate our golden wedding anniversary in five months—if one of us doesn't kill the other, that is. I'm only kidding, Abby, but right now we are having a big battle about something we hope you'll settle for us.

Everyone knows that after 50 years of marriage, very few couples "need" anything. In fact, most people our age have moved out of their large homes and into smaller quarters and are glad to get rid of most of their "things."

We are planning a party for our friends and family, and I want to put "No gifts, please" on the invitations. My wife says it is improper to mention "gifts" in an invitation. Our children think we should put "money tree" on the invitations. I am totally against that idea as it is like asking for money. What do you say?

ARIZONA READER

DEAR READER: I vote with your wife. If friends or relatives want to get together and give one gift—or money—it's up to them. But I certainly wouldn't engineer it.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 22 and have a 7-year-old daughter who was born out of wedlock. (I'll call her "Terry.") Terry and I have always lived with my parents, and I work. In the last five years I have dated four very fine men. All wanted to marry me, but no matter who I brought home, Terry didn't like him.

When I ask her if she wouldn't like to have a "Daddy," she says she already has one. (She has always called my father "Daddy," although she knows that he is really her grandfather.)

I want to get married, but I don't want to marry anyone Terry doesn't like. What should I do?

TERRY'S MUMMY

DEAR MUMMY: Don't be a dummy. When you meet the man you want to marry, introduce him to Terry as your future husband—and leave the word "Daddy" out of it. Terry has known only one "Daddy" (your father), so she can't be blamed for rejecting any man she thinks will replace him.

Concentrate more on getting a husband for yourself and less on providing Terry with a new "Daddy," or she'll get married before you do.

DEAR ABBY: I am buying a house from a friend of mine for $95,000. He asked me if I would do him a favor and state the price of the house as $75,000 in the agreement of the sale, and give him the balance in cash.

He said he didn't want his wife to know how much he was actually getting for the house because she's the kind who spends a thousand if she thinks they have a hundred. Would there be anything wrong with my doing this for him as a favor?

NEEDS TO KNOW

DEAR NEEDS: Yes. Plenty. Don't falsify the price of the house on the agreement unless you want to be a party to a fraud. Tell your friend he'll have to work out the problem of an extravagant wife some other way.

DEAR ABBY: Our Social Issues class is having a discussion on today's problems and I have been appointed to ask you what you think is the greatest danger in the world today.

NANCY C., ALBANY, N.Y.

DEAR NANCY: Indifference! The bystander who doesn't want to get involved helps the criminal.

"Heaven has no rage like love to hatred turned, nor hell a fury like a woman who has lost her car keys."

How do you like that? My car keys have only been gone two hours, 36 minutes and three seconds and already I'm paraphrasing Ciberber.

They're gone and there's nothing I can do about it. Oh, I could tear up the entire house, go through coat pockets, empty out handbags, look in doors, the car ignition, or on the countertop in the kitchen where I definitely last put them. But what's the use?

I recognize what a lot of women refuse to admit. Car keys are pedestrian. Unlike coat hangers and paperclips, they have no sex life, but they're mobile all right.

It's happened before. Once I definitely remember putting them in my beach bag. Several hours later, they were gone. I discovered them in the sand under a beach towel three bodies down. Those little car keys' feet must have started moving before I got my tan line wet.

Why do they do it? It must be as obvious to you as it is to me. They're male. They're short. And they're unhappy because they've got a ring in their nose.

They think I can't do without them. Well, they're wrong. I didn't always have a car, you know. You want to know something? I got more done when I didn't have a car. And that's the truth!

Sometimes when the kids were off at school, I'd straighten up my daughter's paper dolls, making sure the tabs went all one way . . . or I'd make crackers from scratch . . . or thin down all my nail polish and wax the TV antenna. I was busy. I didn't need a car. Who needs car keys? Do they think I enjoy dressing up and going into town for lunch? Or cruising around the shopping center shopping? Meeting my friends for tennis and getting rid of the kids at the playground for a couple of hours? It's pressure. I don't need that kind of pressure.

One thing I know, I'm going to keep calm and when they're ready to show themselves, I may take them back, but I'm getting pretty sick of their theatrics. I'll try just one thing and if it doesn't work, I'm going to forget it.

I threw myself head first into the clothes hamper and shouted hysterically. "I'M PREPARED TO GROVEL!"

Community Land Trusts Grow

By RICK HAMPSON
Associated Press Writer
BELCHERTOWN, Mass. (AP) — Members of a "back to land" movement, finding less and less land to move back to, are trying an idea that dates from colonial times — the community land trust.

"I know what it means to work the land, and I love it," said Carl Davies, 24, striding through deep snow in the woods near this western Massachusetts town. "And I think everyone should have the option to be a farmer."

So Davies and about 30 other Hampshire and Franklin County residents, eager to save farms and fight the spread of condominiums and shopping malls, formed the Valley Community Land Trust.

The United States has about 50 community land trusts, and the number is growing. Typically, the nonprofit, tax-exempt trust acquires farm land and then leases it to people who can not afford market prices.

"The idea is to preserve community resources so somebody 20 generations from now doesn't look back in contempt at what we did," said Harold Skellon of the National Community Land Trust Center in Cambridge.

He said most community land trusts in this country are modeled on the Jewish National Fund, a trust that owns and leases about two-thirds of the farm land in Israel.

The Valley Land Trust is small — it doesn't even own any land yet — but its goals and problems are instructive.

The trust's members have been unable to agree on whether to accept donations from foundations, even those oriented toward social change, such as flour heir George Pillsbury's Haymarket Foundation in Cambridge.

Since the land trust's policies are made by consensus, anyone can veto acceptance of a grant.

Meanwhile, Davies said, developers and speculators keep buying up land. Although farms once covered western Massachusetts, more than half of the agricultural land in the region's lower Connecticut Valley went out of production between 1950 and 1969.

Throughout the country, land is held by fewer and fewer owners, and values keep rising from development and speculative pressures. As a result, the community land trust — grounded in the tradition of the early New England town common — has sprung up across the nation.

The largest community land trust in America is in Albany, Ga., 5,700 acres on which it has tried to provide farms and towns for landless people, most of them blacks.

Although the concept emphasizes community rights, it also retains some individual property ownership. The farmer has the right to any improvements he makes on the land, and a 99-year renewable lease can be inherited — so land can stay in a farm family.

Since the trust retains development rights, the one who inherits the leased agricultural rights pays fewer estate taxes — which have forced many farm families to sell their land.

WEATHER FORECAST — Sunny skies and warmer temperatures are forecast today for most of the nation. Rain is expected from the central Rockies into the northern Plains and from northern Minnesota to the upper Great Lakes. Cooler weather is due for the Pacific Northwest. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
Cooler temperatures were in store for North Carolina today under generally sunny skies as a cold front over coastal waters continued to move out to sea.

High pressure was moving in from the northwest, bringing cooler temperatures for today and tonight. As the high pressure moves off the coast Friday temperatures again will climb to the upper 60s and low 70s.

Today's highs were expected to hold mostly to the 60s after low readings this morning generally in the 40s and 50s. Lows tonight are expected to drop to the 30s.

Three Accidents In Wednesday Traffic

An estimated $1,750 property damage resulted from a series of three traffic mishaps investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Heaviest damage resulted from an 8:58 p.m. collision on Greenville Boulevard, east of the Arlington Boulevard intersection, involving cars driven by Brent Riley Venable of Morehead City and Patsy Tew Lowe of 100 Dogwood Dr.

Officers, who charged Venable with having improper equipment, estimated damage at $800 to the Venable car and $50 to the Lowe vehicle.

Rese Garte Graham of 229 Windsor Rd. was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 2:20 p.m. collision at the intersection of Tenth and Elm Streets.

Police, who identified the driver of the second car involved as Mary Dianne Keller of Buies Creek, estimated damage at $400 to the Keller car and $200 to the Graham vehicle.

A 7:40 p.m. collision on Greenville Boulevard, 30 feet East of the St. Andrews Street intersection involved a car driven by Dean Tracy Ferrell of Durham and a truck driven by Sam Robert Hayes of Route 1, Snow Hill.

Damage was set at $250 to the Ferrell car and $50 to the truck.

Could Lose Everything

WASHINGTON (AP) — When a Texas man discovered someone used his lost or stolen electronic banking card to withdraw $2,300 from his account, he notified the bank.

While there was no negligence on his part, the consumer was unable to get his money back, said Rep. Frank Annunzio, D-Ill., who wants to protect the public from such incidents.

Annunzio, who conducted committee hearings on electronic banking, said Wednesday the system could cost people their life savings.

A consumer using the system is given a "debit card" that he can use in a store to have his purchase automatically deducted from his bank account.

Annunzio's bill would give electronic banking customers the same protection already established for credit card users.

The consumer's liability would be limited to the first $50 of unauthorized use and financial institutions would be liable for their mistakes in handling the accounts.

FBI Prepares

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI is stepping up its anti-terrorist training program because it fears political kidnappings and murders may spread from Europe to this country.

FBI Director William Webster told a news conference Wednesday he has no specific indications that U.S. political leaders face terrorist attacks.

But he commented, "Experience shows that when we have epidemics of this kind around the world, they are likely to spread to the United States."

In addition to intensified training at the FBI Academy in Quantico, Va., the bureau is consulting with U.S. Army anti-terrorist specialists, Webster said.

On another subject, Webster said there is wide distrust of the FBI in black and Hispanic communities. He said he wants more agents from those minority groups.

Doubts Claim Of Campaign Gift

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Birch Bayh says he doesn't believe Tongsun Park's allegation that Park contributed to his 1974 re-election campaign. But the publicity is as damaging to him as if he had taken the money, Bayh says.

Bayh said Wednesday the Senate Ethics Committee told him of the South Korean's claim that he contributed $1,500 to $1,800 to the 1974 campaign. "Given the total context of things, that is just about as damning in the minds of the public today as if he had stuck 18 $100 bills in my coat pocket," Bayh said.

Duty With Obvious Sadness

There wasn't a person who was unaffected at the meeting Wednesday night when members of the city council accepted the resignation of City Manager Jim Caldwell.

The council did what it had to do but, at the same time, Mayor Percy Cox and other council members recognized the work that Caldwell had done since coming to the position in 1976. The city council did its duty with obvious sadness.

Then, faced with continuing administrative functions of city government pending the selection of a new city manager, the council turned to the most experienced executive in the organization. The council named City Engineer Charlie Holliday to serve as interim city manager.

Holliday is a veteran city official and, as such, is familiar with the various functions of Greenville city government. He should perform well during the interim period.

In the meantime the council will be conducting a search for a permanent city manager. No doubt the process of taking applications and conducting interviews will take some time. All city employees and local citizens should give the interim city manager their best efforts in the weeks ahead.

Better Habits Seem To Have Impact

A little good news came out this week. There has been a dramatic decline in the nation's death rate. U. S. public health officials say the decline is due to a lowering of the heart disease rate among our population. That is credited to changes in diet, better exercise and early detection of hypertension. All that is pretty good proof that changing our eating and exercise habits can lengthen our lives. In other words, to a large degree it is up to the individual as to whether or not he or she will live a long and healthy life.

THIS AFTERNOON Clean Water Cost-Sharing

By FRANK JETER, Jr.
PIO, USDA-Soil Conservation Service
RALEIGH — Something brand new in water quality work — the sharing of costs for planned measures to improve water quality on farmland — will come to North Carolina and the nation with implementation of the rural clean water program under the 1977 Clean Water Act.

The Clean Water Act, popularly called the "Culver Amendment" because it was introduced by Senator John Culver, Democrat of Iowa, will provide for five-to-10-year cost-sharing contracts with farmers and other rural landowners to help them install "best management practices" that will keep soil and chemicals from washing into streams, rivers and lakes — thereby improving water quality.

Up To 50 Percent
The program, when it becomes effective October 1, 1978, will provide cost sharing up to 50 percent of the cost of water quality improvement work.

Jesse L. Hicks of Raleigh, who heads the SCS in North Carolina, emphasized that participation in the program "will be strictly voluntary. SCS is in no way a regulatory agency. And this new authority will actually be an improvement on work we have been doing for more than four decades. We have always worked to curb erosion and sedimentation. This cost-sharing authority should be a big help." Several other federal agencies will help carry out the program, including the U.S. Forest Service, the Farmers Home Administration, the Science and Education Administration, the Statistics and Cooperatives Service and the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. Nationally, Administrator R. M. Davis of the Soil Conservation Service heads the new committee.

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) will approve water quality plans and concur in USDA rules, regulations and project proposals.

Cooperation Needed
In carrying out the program, the Soil Conservation Service and other Federal agencies will work closely with state and local agencies and groups.

Commenting on the new emphasis, State Conservationist Hicks said: "North Carolina is more fortunate than many of the heavily industrialized states in the quality of its water — we have lots of good water now." Participation in the new clean water program, like all programs and services of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, will be available, to everyone without regard to race, creed, color, sex or national origin.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Talked Tough, Cuts Navy

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — No sooner had President Carter delivered his stirring preparedness speech at Wake Forest University March 17 than he went into full-speed reverse on a course that has slashed over two-thirds of his previous commitment to rebuild the U.S. fleet.

That decision was revealed by the President at 1:30 p.m. March 23 in the Oval Office to a surprised, unhappy W. Graham Clayton, Secretary of the Navy. But since dissent is tolerated in this administration, the fight is not finished. Clayton made clear to Mr. Carter he cannot publicly endorse this naval defeat. Efforts for faster shipbuilding will be pushed in Congress, with Clayton's backing.

Thus, questions during the 1976 campaign about where Jimmy Carter really stands on defense policy are still unanswered. How does the President's overdue challenge to Moscow square with the drastic cutback facing the Navy? Certainly, that cutback taints the spirit of Wake Forest, and must so be perceived in the Kremlin. "This proves that we can afford words but not hardware," a Pentagon official told us. Similarly, defense-oriented critics in Congress advise: watch what the President does, not what he says. During the 1976 campaign,

Mr. Carter, the Naval Academy's first gift to the presidency, pledged naval expansion (while also promising defense cuts). In his first year, he approved a tentative five-year program to build 160 ships, 40 more than President Gerald R. Ford planned.

Pentagon and National Security Council advisers immediately began chipping away. Leading the crusade for a Navy designed for convoy duty but not control of the seas was Russell Murray, assistant secretary of Defense (one of Robert S. McNamara's now aging whiz kids). By year's end, shipbuilding was reduced sharply and the doctrine of "maritime supremacy" was downgraded.

But Clayton, a Washington lawyer and railway executive (who was a World War II lieutenant commander), proved a vigorous advocate. He pushed hard for naval expansion and was making progress with Secretary of Defense Harold Brown. Testifying before the Senate Armed Services Committee a few weeks ago, Brown cheered proponents of naval power by declaring: "Since as a nation we depend upon maritime lines of communications more than the Soviets do, we need to have more capability than the Soviets."

This was in harmony with the tough talk at Wake Forest March 17. But later that day aboard the nuclear carrier Eisenhower, the President conferred with Brown about a decision on shipbuilding. The final intense arguments followed the next week in Washington.

Unknown to Clayton, the President selected the lowest possible option. The 160 new ships over five years were cut to 70, of which only 46 were combatant vessels (including six Trident missile submarines, for strategic rather than seacontrol purposes). This points to a 375-ship Navy, gradually whittled down from the 800 goal as the 1970s began.

Oblivious to this decision, Clayton was called at 8 a.m. March 23 and asked to join Brown and the President at the White House that afternoon. In the morning, in top secret testimony to the Senate Armed Services Committee, he defended the existing policy as he then knew it. Clayton testified he could live with reduced naval spending for the coming fiscal year, but added that additional shipbuilding in the years ahead is imperative. Both he and Adm. James Holloway, chief of naval operations, spoke favorably of an extra nuclear carrier.

Leaving Capitol Hill, Clayton went to the White House for the President's unpleasant surprise. Mr. Carter urged everybody to support the presidential decision. Clayton replied he could not publicly endorse the stripped-down shipbuilding program. The President responded with his smile, familiar but enigmatic.

Clayton will not wage an open-mouthed campaign courting his own dismissal. But responding to questions from Congress, he will give the Navy's view and give it strongly. That will assure extra naval spending ordered by Congress, possibly reaching $2.4 billion (including $2 billion for that extra nuclear carrier). Brown, perhaps the most knowledgeable and certainly the least revealing Secretary of Defense, is expected to keep playing the sphinx.

The real enigma is not Brown, however, but the President. The decision to emasculate shipbuilding was clearly his, not the secretary's. Why did he do it? Defense-oriented members of Congress, including powerful Democrats, say this strongly suggests — some say proves — that the Wake Forest speech merely appeased hawkish political sentiment and that the President really distrusts military power.

The true source of the Navy's defeat may be not so much presidential perfidy as confusion. In the spirit with which he twice reversed himself philosophically on natural gas deregulation and defied history by calling Marshal Tito a champion of human rights, the President throws down the gauntlet to Moscow while savaging his most politically visible arm. It could be that Mr. Carter simply fails to see how his actions undermine the credibility of his words.

Strength For Today

ALWAYS A STRUGGLE
The mahogany trees which are in low and damp soils grow very rapidly, but the trees which grow amid rocks and upon sterile soil grow more slowly and produce a more beautiful wood. There is greater compactness and beauty of grain and texture in the lumber cut from such trees which grow under adverse conditions.

It happens frequently in human life also that affliction and trial develop very admirable traits in character. It takes struggle, trial, and the discipline of hard work to bring ing out the best in every one of us. It is a dismal sight to look back upon an able person held back in life because of handicaps or the denial of any opportunity to exercise his gifts. But it is equally discouraging to see people with brains and personality coming to the end of their lives with failure written across each decade.

So the story of the mahogany tree is symbolic of the struggle to bring the beauty of grain and texture into our lives.

Virginia Joins Parade

RICHMOND, Va. — The Commonwealth of Virginia last week joined an academic parade that is marching across most of the nation. The Old Dominion became the 37th state to require a competency test as a condition for high school graduation.

W.E. Campbell, Virginia's superintendent of public instruction, described the plan. Beginning in 1981, students must demonstrate a minimum level of competency in reading and in mathematics in order to receive the ordinary high school diploma. In succeeding years, a minimum competency in history and perhaps in science must also be demonstrated. Students who fail the statewide standardized tests, after repeated opportunities to pass them, may receive a certificate of attendance only.

Here in Virginia, as in other states, the announcement triggered an explosion of protests. A spokeswoman for the National Education Association said NEA objects to such tests because they erect unnecessarily specific standards. The NEA views the results as "meaningless." Protests were also heard from minority leaders, complaining that the tests have a built-in bias.

This same pattern of announcement and protest has appeared wherever the states have introduced competency examinations. What we are witnessing is a kind of full-blown rebellion by parents and by some school board members as well. After years of hearing that "Johnny can't read," fed-up taxpayers are demanding the facts. If Johnny truly can't read, who is responsible? And what can be done about it?

The competency tests are providing melancholy evidence on the first point. Test scores indicate that reading skills are generally as poor as most critics have said. Mathematical skills are more lamentable still.

This is nothing new. Nearly three years ago, reports of the National Assessment of Educational Progress brought a harsh judgment from the Council for Basic Education: "The blunt truth," said the CBE, "is that our schools are failing miserably, scandalously, outrageously, in at least 20 percent of our young people. About this portion leaves our schools after ten to twelve years unable to read in any meaningful sense, unable to write beyond a primitive, inaccurate, and sometimes incoherent level, and unable to compute almost anything at all."

To judge from recent reports in Florida, the council's 20 percent estimate is far too low. Florida's high school students are failing the state's competency test in droves. Among black students, the failure rate is an appalling 77 percent.

Florida's program illustrates the situation. Under an act passed in 1976, the state now administers two tests, one in reading and the other in math. These tests were not purchased ready-made off the rack from consultants in New York. The

To the editor:

It came to my attention in a news item that a foreign diplomat's car was traveling 90 miles per hour where North Carolina's speed limit is 55 m.p.h., after being stopped by a highway patrolman, was permitted to depart without a ticket for speeding because of diplomatic immunity.

It is incomprehensible to me that diplomatic immunity gives one the right to violate the laws of a state or country. It would seem to me that breaking a law is a crime, regardless of who commits the crime. Foreign diplomats are given privileges, but are they immune from law enforcement?

Helen Y. Trupp

To the editor:

Under the principle of separation between church and state, the state is to refrain from mandating its preferences upon the church, and the church is not to mandate its choices upon the state. Two ecumenical organizations, the World and National Councils of Churches, have seen fit to violate this principle.

In 1977 alone, the WCC contributed $125,000 to the revolutionary South West Africa People's Organization (also subsidized by China, North Korea and Russia). This financial support is seen by the WCC as smashing racism, not financing violence. The Governing Board of the NCC endorsed the Panama Canal Treaties on Nov. 9, 1977. According to the magazine "Presbyterian Survey", "NCC member Churches were asked to have their members support the approval of the treaties via direct communication with their United States senators."

I believe it is vital that Christians — as individuals and/or members of political parties — take an active part in the processes of government. But when the church, as a worldly establishment of religion, takes a stand for or against government action or inaction, it has crossed the line of demarcation between church and state. When the church, as an institution, gives its endorsement (verbal or financial) to a particular stance or political issue, it admits that it is not teaching enough of God's Word to its people for them to be able to take stands as individual citizens.

Each Christian must decide as Joshua of old, "But as for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."

Major Drug Source

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Colombia is now the chief supplier of marijuana and cocaine to the United States, in part because of police and court corruption, government auditors say. The illegal traffic flowing into this country rakes in $6 billion a year on American streets, the General Accounting Office said in a report released Wednesday.

Corruption in Colombia, the report charged, "is present at various levels and places in the government, including the judiciary and the police." The study did not detail alleged corruption in any other South American nation.

It said a drug control program financed chiefly by the United States for the last five years in most of South America "has had a minimal effect on the flow of narcotics."

According to the report, U.S. officials believe "the real key to program success is a stronger commitment by South American governments to control the drug flow...."

"However, such a possibility is limited by corruption within many South American countries, particularly Colombia, and a lack of host government resources that can be allocated to drug enforcement."

The report said nearly all the cocaine smuggled into the United States is grown as a coca plant in Peru and Bolivia, and then processed into cocaine in Colombia.

The report also said the federal Drug Enforcement Administration "now estimates that Colombia has surpassed Mexico as the principal supplier of (marijuana) to the United States."

The study said the DEA estimates U.S. retail sales of marijuana and cocaine grown or processed in Colombia total $6 billion annually, and that illegal drug trafficking returns $1 billion to the Colombian economy annually.

According to other earlier estimates, Colombia's cocaine exports equal the country's coffee earnings.

40 Years Ago Today

March 30, 1938
Police and United Auto Worker's pickets, both swinging clubs, fought at the entrance to the Federal Screw works today in Detroit, Michigan, for the fourth time in three days. Fifty pickets were knocked down and one policeman was hurt as police escorted about 50 non-strikers into the plant.

One hundred and fifty-eight policemen, armed with night sticks, opened a path through the massed pickets to the employment entrance. The pickets carried heavy sticks a foot and a half long which they used as weapons when the fighting began.

Special Tutoring Given Those With Learning Disabilities

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — A handful of people who can't read because of learning disabilities that make it hard for them to recognize words are getting help through a tutoring program at the Salem College Center for Special Education.

To people with learning disabilities, "of" looks like "fo", the letter "n" looks like a "u" and the word "stop" can be confused with "spot."

The program in progress and an expanded one which will begin in September are not for slow learners or the retarded, said Dr. Dudley Shearburn, the center's director.

They are for working motivated adults who are "obviously intelligent," said Mrs. Shearburn. They may be able to solve problems easily; their vocabulary and the way they talk may be fine, but what they have are "gaps or weaknesses" in their reading abilities.

The learning disabilities of these people have "something to do with how they take in information, how they process it. We take in information through seeing and hearing and also by touch," she said. We also take it in through "spacial orientation," which means movement, such as left and right.

A person with a learning disability may be deficient in one of these areas, and "anyone of these things can keep a person from being good at reading," said Mrs. Shearburn.

A person who has a visual perception problem, for example, might see "fo" when he is looking at "of." Or he may see words reversed, and he "may see every letter okay, but not be able to integrate them so they become words. Part of that may relate to visual memory. Some don't have any," said Mrs. Shearburn.

This means that they can't remember that stop is "stop" and not "spot."

Tutors at the center try to help in a variety of ways, Mrs.

Shearburn said. If the person has a visual perception problem a tutor may have him use his sense of touch, by cutting out letters from sandpaper, for example.

Or the pupil might practice one word, saying it, then tracing it lightly with sandpaper or burlap, or form the letter with yarn. Another method would be for him to shape his body like the letter "T" with arms outstretched. Then he writes the "T" and is told to make the "T" sound.

"The idea," said Mrs. Shearburn, "is to be as creative as you can to help the person learn the sound and symbol relationship."

The five or six people being tutored at the center pay $30 a week for three one-hour sessions. "It is a slow, expensive process," said Mrs. Shearburn, but the tutors are highly skilled reading professionals.

A similar but expanded program will begin in September with a $12,800 one-year grant from the Winston-Salem Foundation. Because of the grant, that program will be free.

Woody Allen Won't Be On Hand For Oscars

By PETER J. BOYER
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Woody Allen stands to gain the most at next Monday's Academy Awards show, with five Oscar nominations for his partly autobiographical film "Annie Hall."

But he says he wants nothing to do with the affair and will not be there to collect if he wins.

However, unlike reluctant honorees of the past such as actors George C. Scott and Marlon Brando, who made their absences political statements, Allen is staying home because Hollywood's extravagant awards feast makes him nervous.

"Woody's trying desperately not to make an issue of not coming," said "Annie Hall" producer Charles Joffe in an interview Wednesday. "He's not doing a George C. Scott or a Marlon Brando. It's just too difficult for him to hear a whole audience applaud."

"I understand Woody's nervousness about accepting laurels. But I'm just as disappointed as the Academy that he's not going to be there," Joffe added.

"Annie Hall," the fictionalized love story of Allen and actress Diane Keaton, is nominated for best picture. Miss Keaton is nominated for best actress for her title role. Allen is nominated for best actor, best director and best screenwriter.

In an interview with CBS entertainment critic David Sheehan about the awards program, Allen said, "I just have a kind of negative feeling about that kind of thing."

Allen cited an Ernest Hemingway saw in which the author said if artists believe good things said about them, they have to believe the bad, as well.

"And I never believe it when they say I'm lousy, so it's hypocritical for me to believe anybody when they say I'm great," Allen said.

But Allen said he would not turn down any Oscars he might win.

"I'm just not going to be there," he said. "It's just not on my mind. I'm just working on my next picture, thinking about the picture after that...and the only regret is that I won't see Bob Hope, whom I adore."

Hope is the master of ceremonies for the program.

Kilpatrick...

tests were carefully compiled by committees in 46 Florida school districts, and then extensively revised and reviewed in a determined effort to wash them free of cultural bias. The questions were made progressively easier in order to measure only minimal skills in language and computation.

And still the students flunked in droves. Some teachers took a constructive view: The test findings were seen as a challenge to do better. Others took refuge in familiar excuses: The poor scores weren't the fault of the schools, but were the consequence of TV watching, one-parent homes, juvenile crime, drugs, alcoholism, vandalism, and so forth.

Competency tests such as those conducted in Florida and now promised in Virginia ought not to be regarded as the be-all and end-all. They ought to be used rather as warning signals. Thoughtfully administered, at the third, fifth and eighth grade levels, these tests can indeed indicate that trouble is developing. Good teachers and principals, if they review the test findings affirmatively, should be better able to spot weaknesses and to correct them.

Nothing is gained, however, but the flat opposition one hears from the teachers' unions and the educationist lobby. When three-fourths of the states demand a day of reckoning in the schools, that day will come — not only as a measure of the pupils, but of their schoolmasters too.

Medical Lab Week Is Set

Apr. 9-15 is National Medical Laboratory Week and has been declared so in Greenville by Mayor Percy Cox.

According to Jan Mangun, there are between 400 and 500 persons in Pitt County working in medical laboratories. Among the laboratories involved are those at Pitt County Memorial Hospital, the East Carolina University School of Medicine, physicians' offices, the Pitt County Community Health Department, the Regional Blood Bank, and the Burroughs-Wellcome Company.

Ms. Mangun, who works in the pathology department of the medical school, is a member of the N. C. chapter of the American Society for Medical Technology, which is sponsoring this national recognition of medical laboratory workers. There are more than 150,000 medical lab workers nationwide, she said.

Open house will be held at the Pitt County Memorial Hospital Laboratory Apr. 12, 13, and 14 from 2 to 4 p. m. The laboratory staff invites the public to come and see their world of microscopes and automated medical analysis equipment.

Steelmakers Mull Following Leaders' Price Hike

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Steelmakers are checking balance sheets to see if they'll follow two of the industry leaders in boosting prices after the winter-long coal strike, increases President Carter today called excessive.

Carter, at his news conference in Brasilia, the Brazilian capital, today said the increases are far greater than would be warranted by the increased costs produced by the coal strike settlement.

Earlier, the administration said the increases are more than double what could be justified by the miners' walkout.

U.S. Steel Corp., the nation's largest producer, and Wheeling-Pittsburgh Steel Corp., the ninth largest, announced increases of $10.50 a ton Wednesday. The increases are expected to mean higher prices for new appliances and an estimated $9 to $10 increase in the cost of an average American car. Autos are being reduced in size to save gasoline and require a bit less than a ton of steel, industry sources say.

The new prices are to go into effect Saturday. They apply to sheet steels, structural shapes, plates, tin plate and tube products.

"The cost of the new coal contract began immediately...when the miners returned to work," U.S. Steel argued, noting that workers who went back to the mines Monday received a $100 bonus.

The administration's Council on Wage and Price Stability estimated the coal agreement would increase steel production costs by about $4 a ton over the coal contract's three-year life.

The council termed the steel price increase inflationary.

"Such inflationary price increases seriously endanger the continuation" of the industry's recovery from the beating it had been taking recently from foreign competition, the wage and price council said.

The council has no power to order a rollback, but White House opposition presumably could pressure the steel firms to reconsider.

President Carter successfully persuaded steel producers into pulling back on price increases when they announced 6.8 percent to 8.8 percent boosts in flat-rolled sheets and bar products last May.

The latest increase, if followed by the rest of the industry, would mean a raise in steel prices of 8 percent since the beginning of the year. U.S. Steel, the nation's largest producer, announced a 5.5 percent increase on some major products just last month.

Airline Pilots Planning Strike

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Pilots for Northwest Airlines say they will strike on April 29 when a 30-day "cooling off" period ends.

Northwest rejected an offer by the National Mediation Board for binding arbitration to settle their contract dispute. Thomas Beedem, chairman of the association's executive council, announced the planned strike on Wednesday.

No Immunity In Antitrust Suits

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court says cities may be sued for federal antitrust violations, a ruling dissenters say "will impose staggering costs on the thousands of municipal governments in our country."

The 5-4 decision announced Wednesday likely will carry broad national impact because virtually all U.S. cities provide social services subject to antitrust lawsuits. In essence, the court said that cities do not enjoy, as do states, a blanket immunity from antitrust suits.

Arrest Five Rejoicing Over For Larceny Plant Location

Pitt County deputies arrested five Kinston residents early this morning and charged them with the larceny of property from M & W Chevrolet on Highway 11 near Ayden.

According to Sheriff Ralph Tyson, deputies arrested Antonio Fields, 16, of 26A Craven Court; Vincent Kornegay, 16, 6A Craven Court; Jerry James, 16, 15D Craven Court; Margaret Renee Kornegay, 20, 214 E. Washington Avenue; and Karen Ann Kornegay, 17, 214 E. Washington Avenue, all of Kinston.

Sheriff Tyson reported that the five were charged with the larceny of four radial tires, rims and lug nuts from the dealership. The incident was reported at 1:49 a.m. today, he added.

All five persons were placed in Pitt County Jail under $500 bond each, the sheriff noted, and hearings will be scheduled in District Court here.

CONCORD, N.C. (AP) — Jubilation reigned here Wednesday as word broke that unofficial sources in New York were saying the Philip Morris Co. had chosen Cabarrus County for a $100 million cigarette plant.

"I think it's terrific, man," said Jim Johnson, who directed Concord's community efforts to attract the new industry through his Cabarrus Citizens for Philip Morris.

"Today saw the passing of probably the last major area totally dominated by one industry that we have in the state," Johnson said. "And it's not and shouldn't be looked upon as a defeat for the Cannon interests."

Johnson was referring to Cannon Mills, the sprawling textile industry that has long dominated Cabarrus County. Philip Morris did not officially announce that Cabarrus County had been picked for the new cigarette plant. Other areas, primarily Columbia, S.C., had tried to woo Philip Morris.

But sources in New York told the Associated Press that the plant will be located in Cabarrus County, and a Philip Morris spokesman pointed out that Clifford Goldsmith, president of Philip Morris-USA, will name the location when he attends a rally Friday in Cabarrus County.

"I have some mixed feelings about how the decision was made," said Bob Leak, director of the South Carolina State Development Board. "We did the job as far as professional rules of conduct for site selection."

There were reports that Cannon Mills may have been behind a motion asking the Chamber of Commerce to withdraw support for Philip Morris. But the motion failed, the chamber stayed on record in favor of the plant and Harold Hornaday, chairman of the board of Cannon Mills, issued a statement that included, "Should Philip Morris decide to locate in this area, Cannon Mills Co. will cooperate with that company in every possible way."

The public is invited to attend.

Outbreaks Still Baffle Experts

ATLANTA (AP) — Researchers at the national Center for Disease Control say they still are baffled by what triggers an outbreak of Legionnaires' disease.

Dr. Brenda Politi told a meeting of the U.S. Public Health Service Professional Association on Wednesday that eight outbreaks and more than 200 sporadic cases of the disease have been confirmed in the United States. The bacterial ailment, with pneumonia-like symptoms, was responsible for 29 deaths after an American Legion convention in Philadelphia in 1976.

Arrested on Drug Charges

David Christopher Blackwell, 20, of Fayetteville, was arrested last night on marijuana possession charges, according to Greenville Police Chief Glenn Cannon.

Cannon said Greenville police and East Carolina University officers took Blackwell into custody about 10:30 p.m. at his Aycock Dorm room and confiscated about two ounces of marijuana seed and a half-ounce of marijuana.

Blackwell was released under a $500 bond pending hearing of the case in court.

Fishermen Of Riga Go Into Canning

By THOMAS KENT
Associated Press Writer
RIGA, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Some of the old salts of Riga's fishing fleet are manning canning factories now.

One reason they are not at sea is the 200-mile fishing zones marked off around the world in recent years by the United States, the European Common Market countries, Iceland, Sweden, Japan and others, according to an official of the 9th of May Fishermen's Cooperative in Riga.

The cooperative, one of the most prosperous in the Soviet Baltic states of Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia, had 500 fishermen at sea on 32 ships three years ago. They caught an average of 25,000 tons a year in the Atlantic, the Baltic Sea and the Gulf of Riga.

This year, there are 300 fishermen out on 25 ships and their catch will be down by 40 percent.

The cooperative rushed a fish processing plant into operation in an 18-month period to keep up its profits and keep its members at work. Sailors who used to fish for a living are working in the plant, doing work once reserved mainly for women.

Now they leave their bungalows shortly before 9 a.m. instead of 4 a.m. and are home every night for dinner.

"It's not really so much worse than fishing," said one man who exchanged his oilskins for the white smock of a canner. "At least I get to spend some more time with my family."

"Of course, there are sailors who really love the sea, who want to go back to it," said the vice chairman of the cooperative, Vladislav P. Buklovsky. "For them, we try to stay in touch with other fishing and sailing organizations in case any jobs come up."

Sitting in his small office with charts on the wall showing the disposition of the association's small fleet, Buklovsky blamed the reduction in the catch on the increasing number of protected fishing zones around the world and the depletion of fish stocks.

Fishing is becoming more competitive at the same time that the Soviet fleet — the world's biggest — is under pressure from the nation's economic planners to increase catches drastically.

The government is demanding that the nation raise its total output of fish products 30 to 32 percent during the 1976-80 Five Year Plan. Fish consumption by the average citizen is programmed to grow from 37 to 46 pounds. Since meat is often scarce, the Soviet citizen gets about 20 percent of his protein from fish.

The 1977 target of 10.3 million tons of fish was met in 1977, but that was 200,000 tons less than the catch in 1976.

Like other Soviet fishing associations, the 9th of May cooperative has tried to compensate for restricted and competitive conditions at sea by using new equipment to find and catch fish more quickly.

Members have also discussed moving to new fishing grounds, including the Barents Sea, where the Soviet Union and Norway agreed this year on fishing zone boundaries.

Wooten For Jesse Helms

Frank M. Wooten Jr., of Greenville has been named a member of the statewide steering committee of the Democrats for Jesse Helms committee.

Sen. Helms, who is seeking reelection on the Republican ticket, announced Wooten's appointment Tuesday.

A former Pitt representative to the North Carolina General Assembly, Wooten said "No man in public life is held in higher esteem for his integrity and morality than Jesse Helms."

"As Democrats," Wooten continued "we must provide bipartisan support of this great man, who with his love of our state and our country, is uniquely qualified to hold the office of United States Senator."

Wooten said Helms has been effective in dealing with the problems of North Carolinians, and added, "what Jesse Helms has done for North Carolina ranks with the outstanding record of Sen. Sam Ervin."

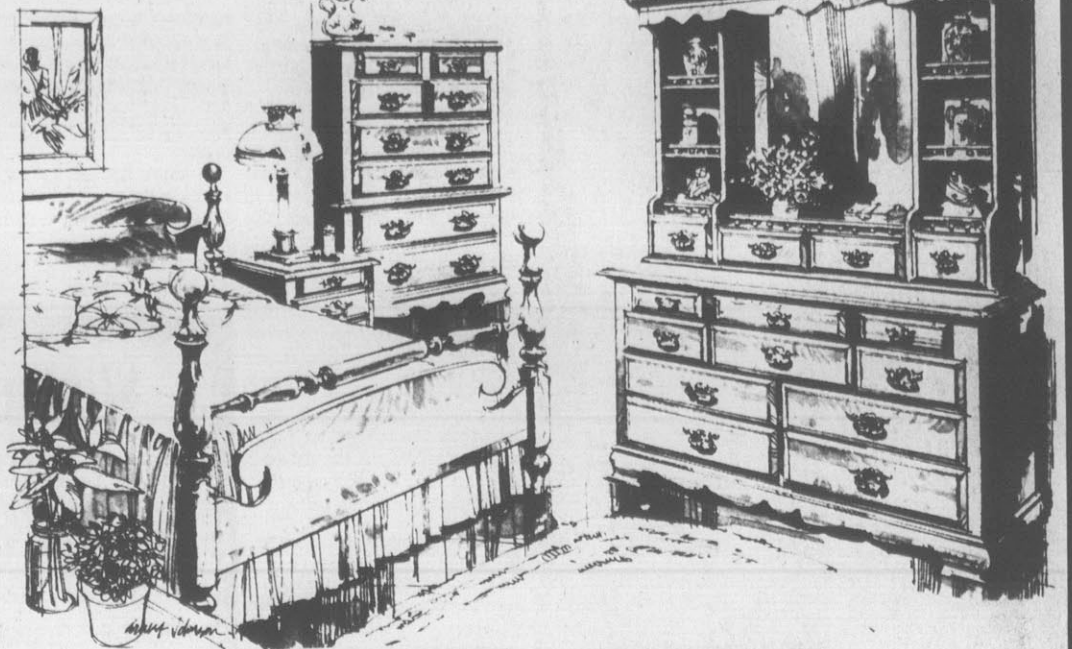

Wooten, a Greenville lawyer concluded, "I am proud to be a Democrat, and there are a number of people I could support if Jesse were not running."

O'Berry Policies Are Changed

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — New medical policies have been instituted at the O'Berry Center for the Mentally Retarded, where the deaths of three patients have been connected recently to improper medication.

Until last week, the physician on call to handle O'Berry's after-hours medical emergencies was not required to stay anywhere near the state institution at Goldsboro, acting director Michael S. Pedneau said Wednesday.

"A new policy here at O'Berry will be that the physician on call will always be within a 15-minute or 15-mile radius of O'Berry. The previous practice placed no limitation on the physician on call," Pedneau said.

Pedneau also said that in the future, one member of the administration staff would always be there in case of emergency. In the past, both an administrator and a living complex director were on call, he said, but the new arrangement will simplify matters and place the responsibility on one person.

Another policy change eliminated the practice of a doctor sometimes leaving standing instructions specifying what medication should be given if a patient experienced a particular change or problem.

In the future, Pedneau said, the attending physician must diagnose any problem and prescribe treatment at the time, rather than relying on or allowing nurses to rely on standing orders.

Ben W. Aiken, director of mental health and mental retardation for the North Carolina Department of Human Resources, said Wednesday that the requirement the doctor on call be close at hand was particularly important.

"If I'm a physician and I'm 50 miles away, it's certainly impossible for me to get there" in time to handle an emergency, Aiken said. "If I'm in a hospital, my physician would be within 15 or 20 minutes away from me."

In one recent emergency, a severely retarded Raleigh girl suffered a seizure on the evening of March 7. Anne Cecile McGee, 16, died early the following morning. An autopsy revealed that she apparently had not been received three drugs prescribed to ward off seizures.

The doctor on call at the time was nearby in Goldsboro, Pedneau said. But he said there had been times when the on-call physician was as far away as Raleigh — 50 miles from O'Berry, whose 600 patients are mostly children.

Aiken declined to comment when asked whether any of the new policies could have prevented either Miss McGee's death, the 1975 overdose of James Glen Gulley, 9, of Wake County, or the 1977 overdose of 21-year-old Jo Ann King of Durham.

Aiken had asked the State Bureau of Investigation to probe the Gulley death after the state medical examiner reported Monday that the child died because he was given excessive doses of three sedatives before a dental appointment.

District Attorney Donald M. Jacobs of Goldsboro said Wednesday the SBI had not yet completed its investigations of two 1977 incidents: the Demerol overdose of Miss King, who had ingested more than twice her prescribed dosage of the sedative while she was recovering from an accidental scalding, or the non-fatal poisoning of Tonya Zimmerman, who drank a caustic fluid that had been placed in a prune juice bottle.

A new conservation booklet "A Debt to Ourselves — A Conservation Challenge" has been published by the Soil Conservation Service and is now available without charge from SCS offices in North Carolina, it was announced yesterday by State Conservationist Jesse L. Hicks of Raleigh.

The 18-page booklet, illustrated with photographs and two maps, covers conservation problems and techniques to solve such problems in North Carolina.

Specific activities of the Soil Conservation Service toward environmental quality and conservation are described, including such subjects as Public Law 566 watershed projects, Resource Conservation and Development, and progress in the statewide progressive soil survey.

Such program activities are pictured on maps. Other subjects include agricultural conservation, wildlife enhancement, woodland management and development, environmental education, and the contribution made toward conservation by elected supervisors of North Carolina's 92 local soil and water conservation districts.

Oral Roberts Wins A Vote

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The Oklahoma Senate has overwhelmingly adopted a resolution endorsing the construction and licensing of Oral Roberts' proposed City of Faith Medical and Research Center in Tulsa.

The Oral Roberts' resolution was adopted Tuesday 42-5 despite arguments by some senators that the Oklahoma Health Planning Commission has more facts available to make the decision on whether the hospital should be built.

The Senate defeated an amendment by Sen. Bob Funston, D-Broken Arrow, to reaffirm its faith in the wisdom of the commission, which has the final say on whether certification of need to build the facility should be issued.

Sen. Gene Stipe, D-McAlester, made the longest argument for adoption of the resolution, sponsored by Sen. E. Melvin Porter, D-Oklahoma City.

Stipe said the Health Systems Agency, which he said is against the proposed hospital, includes "mostly self-serving individuals trying to keep out competition in their own field."

Greyhound Bus Official Says Amtrak 'Elitist'

ATLANTA (AP) — Amtrak trains are "elitist" transportation that serves relatively few Americans, and the national railroad passenger service should decide against taking over the financially ailing Southern Crescent, says an official of Greyhound Bus Lines.

James L. Kerrigan, chairman of the Phoenix-based Greyhound, said in an interview Wednesday that he hopes Amtrak officials will think carefully about a request by Southern Railway that they take over the Southern Crescent, which runs from Washington to New Orleans.

"Surveys have found that the average income of an Amtrak rider is double that of a bus passenger," he said, adding that bus riders are forced to pay higher fares because of Amtrak.

"We take a bus with 20 people, divide the cost of operating that trip and that's the price of a ticket," he said. "But if Amtrak takes four of those riders away, there's that may fewer people to make up the cost of the trip."

Hundreds of millions of tax dollars go to service only a few hundred locations where there is rail service, while the entire private intercity bus industry carries perhaps 20 times as many passengers, Kerrigan said.

The Amtrak board delayed a decision Wednesday on whether to take over the Southern Crescent, saying it wanted to wait until the completion of a Department of Transportation report on the nation's rail passenger system.

Southern has asked the Interstate Commerce Commission for permission to halt the service, which company officials say loses about $560,000 weekly.

Kerrigan criticized the whole concept of the national rail service, saying that there are a lot of services which go by the board "because they no longer have any practical use."

"It's a creeping cancer," he said. "It's time now before Amtrak picks up the Crescent to stop and look where they're going with the whole package."

Kerrigan said he doesn't object to Amtrak paying money to upgrade inherited passenger equipment, but he doesn't like the subsidizing of day-to-day passenger service.

"If people want a train, they ought to pay for it," he said.

"When it started out, Amtrak's subsidy per passenger was $8. Now it's $32," he said. "And I never thought anyone could lose money selling booze, but the liquor on board the trains is subsidized 65 percent."

Trooper Is Cut In Fray

MORGANTON, N.C. (AP) — A Highway Patrol Trooper was in guarded but stable condition at Grace Hospital in Morganton Wednesday night after he shot and killed a man who allegedly attacked him with a knife.

Trooper James A. Jennings, 35, was cut on the back, neck, chin and arms in the attack, according to the Highway Patrol. He underwent surgery at Grace Hospital for his injuries Wednesday night.

Killed in the alleged attack was Joseph Ricky Huffman, alias Terry Lay, 30, of Morganton.

A spokesman for the Highway Patrol said Jennings chased Huffman, who was riding an unregistered motorcycle, into the driveway of Huffman's apartment house on Route 5 north of Morganton.

There Huffman allegedly attacked Jennings in the front seat of the trooper's patrol car with a knife. Jennings shot Huffman approximately three times and Huffman died at the scene, the spokesman said.

The SBI, Highway Patrol and Burke County Sheriff's Department are investigating the attack.

"I'm sure the trooper has no idea why he was attacked," the spokesman said.

Philadelphia Gaining On Blazers' Advantage

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Portland and Philadelphia, last year's two playoff finalists, are heading in opposite directions as the end of the National Basketball Association's regular season approaches.

The injury-riddled Blazers, who beat Philadelphia 4 games to 2 last spring, suffered their fifth loss in a row Wednesday night, bowing to the Phoenix Suns by the embarrassing score of 127-94.

Philadelphia, meanwhile, put on its biggest offensive show of the season in routing the Buffalo Braves 149-118 for the Sixers' 11th victory in the last 12 games and their 24th win in a row at home.

Portland now leads Philadelphia by just one game in the race for the best record in the NBA and the home-court advantage should the two clubs meet again in the playoff finals. Portland is 55-21. Philadelphia 53-21.

76ers 149, Braves 118
Buffalo fell behind 32-16 and was never in the game against the streaking 76ers, who got 25 points from George McGinnis and 24 from Julius Erving.

Randy Smith scored 37 points for the Braves, who lost their seventh straight.

Spurs 106, Pacers 91
Billy Paultz and George Gerwin scored 20 points apiece and Larry Kenon had 19 as San Antonio beat Indiana and clinched at least a tie for the Central Division title. It was the fourth loss in a row for Indiana.

Kings 106, Bullets 105
Otis Birdsong scored 25 points, including a 10-foot jumper with 24 seconds left in overtime and a free throw at the buzzer, as Kansas City handed Washington its fourth loss in the last six home games.

Lakers 106, Jazz 103
Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 34 points, grabbed 16 rebounds and blocked 9 shots to lead Los Angeles past New Orleans, dropping the Jazz one-half game behind idle Atlanta in the battle for the last Eastern Conference playoff spot.

Warriors 112, Rockets 89
Golden State climbed two games above .500 as second-year center Robert Parish scored a season-high 28 points. It was Golden State's fifth triumph in its last six games and put the Warriors 1½ games back of idle Milwaukee for the final playoff spot in the Western Conference.

Pistons 121, Sonics 116
Leon Douglas, starting at center in place of the injured Bob Lanier, scored 23 points to lead Detroit past Seattle, which got 32 points from Gus Williams.

Nuggets 100, Celtics 106
Denver, which had trailed since the opening minutes, scored the final 8 points of the game to pull it out and move four games ahead of Milwaukee in the Midwest Division. David Thompson of Denver led all scorers with 35 points.

Geiberger Returns To Pro Tour

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Al Geiberger expects no miracles in his return to pro golf tour action.

"I really don't know what to expect. I'm just glad to be playing again," the popular, soft-spoken Geiberger said before teeing off today in the first round of the $240,000 Greater Greensboro Open Golf Tournament.

"I feel like a rookie out here," the 40-year-old Geiberger said as player after player streamed by his locker to shake his hand and welcome him back to action. He's been out of action all year following major surgery.

"I haven't played much and, really, I haven't practiced all that much. I did do some cross-country skiing, and it's amazing how good that is for getting you in condition."

Geiberger admitted, however, he's dropped some 7-8 pounds from an already-skinny frame and has not regained full strength.

"We'll just have to see what happens," said Geiberger, a former Greensboro champion and the only man to shoot 59 in pro golf tour competition.

Despite his health problems and lack of competition, he ranked as one of the key figures in a weak field that was chasing a $48,000 first prize over the 6,984-yard, par-72 Forest Oaks Country Club course.

With most of the game's great names taking a pre-Masters vacation, Lon Hinkle was the top money-winner in the 144-man field. He's No. 8. Only five — Hinkle, Lou Graham, Howard Twitty, Jay Haas and Andy North — of the top 20 money winners are on hand.

PGA champion Lanny Wadkins, rounding into shape after a mild slump most of the year, ruled as the probable favorite.

Other top contenders included Hinkle, Lou Graham, defending titleholder Danny Edwards, South African Gary Player and Australian Graham Marsh.

"Ol' Sarge" Orville Moody, who had one of his best tournaments in years in last week's Heritage Classic, was another likely contender.

Also in the field were Billy Casper, Gene Littler, Dave Stockton, J.C. Snead and Europe's leading player, Severiano Ballesteros of Spain.

Portions of the final two rounds will be televised by NBC-TV.

Greenville Results

Isabel Rivers won a ladies' day points event tournament at Greenville Golf and Country Club last Friday, while Eleanor Ruffin was second and Sue Hardy third.

Upcoming events at GCC include a best ball net and gross tourney on March 31 and a captain's choice event on April 7. Both tournaments will begin with shotgun starts, the best ball at 9:30 and the captain's choice at 9:15.

Tyson Signs With Pirates

East Carolina University head basketball coach Larry Gillman announced today the signing of Al Tyson to a grant-in-aid with the Pirates. This is the first announced signing by the basketball staff.

Tyson is a 6-10, 215-pound center from D.H. Conley High School, located only ten minutes from the East Carolina campus.

While playing for coach Shelly Marsh, Tyson started for three seasons at center, averaging in double figures each season. As a senior, Tyson averaged 18.6 points per game and 12 rebounds per game as Conley recorded a 19-6 season.

Honors for Tyson thus far have included all-Eastern Carolina Conference, all-America East Region by "Street and Smith," all-state by "Basketball Weekly," all-area by the Greenville Daily Reflector, and in pre-season was noted as one of the top ten big men in the country by National Scouting Service.

The grant is binding only on East Carolina at this time. The National Letter of Intent, which binds a player to most of the schools across the country, cannot be signed until April 12.

Jamesville Tops Bertie By 3-2

JAMESVILLE — Jamesville High School nipped Bertie, 3-2, yesterday to gain the championship finals of its own Invitational Tournament on Friday.

Today's final games include the seventh place battle between Bear Grass and Edenton, and the third place final between Bertie and Creswell.

Jamesville and Roanoke meet for the title on Friday, while Manteo and West Edcombe battle for fifth place.

Bertie scored first, getting a run in the fifth. Cutrell singled and stole up, scoring when Harrell reached on an error.

Jamesville came back with two in the bottom of the fifth. Keith Modlin walked and Toby Holliday walked. Jeffrey Holliday reached when his sacrifice was errored. Ed Lilley singled in Modlin, but Holliday was cut down at the plate. Greg Sullivan walked to load the bases and a walk to Tommy DiNardo brought in Jeffrey Holliday.

After Bertie tied it up with one in the sixth, Jamesville got the winning run in the seventh. Trent Ange reached on an error, stole second and scored on Lilley's single.

Lilley had three of the Bulets' four hits in the game.

Jamesville is now 4-2 overall.

LA's Olympic Bid Questioned

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles has been the only bidder for the 1984 Summer Olympics up to now, but the city's desire to stage the Games at no cost to local taxpayers has the International Olympic Committee in a furor.

So much so, in fact, that many IOC members reportedly are ready to throw out Los Angeles' bid and invite applications from other cities.

There appeared to be no problem as far as Los Angeles' bid for the 1984 Games is concerned until the IOC received the city's answers to a questionnaire, the Associated Press learned. IOC members are bristling over the tone of the answers.

IOC members say the answers were arrogant, even insulting. Particularly resented was the city's open avowal that it will be responsible for television rights and will basically receive all television revenue. This is in defiance of IOC rules.

GRIDIRON MUSIC

BALTIMORE (AP) — Glenn Doughty, Freddie Scott and Raymond Chester, all members of the Baltimore Colts, are part of a musical group called Shake 'N Bake. They play professionally.

Doughty, a wide receiver, beats out the rhythm on the conga drum while Scott, also a wide receiver, chimes in with the percussion and tight end Chester strums the bass fiddle.

"Our early reviews from our teammates were mixed," Doughty admitted. "Some of them complained about headaches. But they know we're getting better."

Boston Gets Nod In AL East

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The New York Yankees, Boston Red Sox and Baltimore Orioles waged an exciting down-to-the-wire race in the American League East last year and all three managers are optimistic heading into 1978.

Billy Martin, Yankees: "I feel good about the 1978 Yankees and once again I see us taking it all."

Don Zimmer, Red Sox: "Last year at this time I said we would be in the pennant race right to the finish, and that's what happened. I feel the same way again this year."

Earl Weaver, Orioles: "We think we will be solid contenders again this year. Even though we did not sign any big names from the re-entry draft, we think we can improve on our '97 wins."

Those 97 wins were enough to tie the Orioles and Red Sox 2½ games behind the Yankees.

Despite losing Mike Torrez to Boston, the Yankees have no shortage of pitchers, a good thing because Catfish Hunter must prove he can still be a consistent winner, injury-prone Don Gullett has been sidelined with a sore shoulder and Andy Messersmith will miss a couple of months with a shoulder separation.

New York probably will open with a rotation of Ron Guidry, Ed Figueroa, Hunter, reliable Dick Tidrow and possibly 6-foot-6 rookie Jim Beattie. Rich Gossage and Rawly Eastwick join Cy Young Award winner Sparky Lyle in what Martin says "might be the best bullpen in the history of baseball."

The rest of the club will be the same as last year.

As usual, the free-swinging, power-laden Red Sox will go as far as the pitching can take them. The starters are Torrez, Luis Tiant, Bill Lee and Mike Paxton, but Tiant will miss the start of the season with a finger injury. Ace fireman Bill Campbell will have help from Jim Willoughby, Dick Drago and Tom Burgmeier. Bob Stanley, Reggie Cleveland and Rick Wise will be swing men.

The rest of the lineup is impressive. Catcher Carlton Fisk is one of the best, and speedy second baseman Jerry Remy, late of California, has been added to an infield that includes George Scott at first, Rick Burleson at short and Butch Hobson at third. Three outfielders and a DH will come from among Carl Yastrzemski, Jim Rice, Fred Lynn, Dwight Evans and Bernie Carbo.

People laughed a year ago when Weaver insisted the Orioles were contenders. No one's laughing this time. They picked up Don Stanhouse and Joe Kerrigan, who will join Tippy Martinez and Nelson Briles in the bullpen.

Jim Palmer, seven times a 20-game winner, is the pitching ace, but he was hampered by arm trouble during the spring. The rest of the rotation includes Mike Flanagan, Dennis Martinez and Scott McGregor.

Catcher Dave Skaggs hit a surprising .287 after Rick Dempsey was injured last summer. Both are back. Baltimore led the league in fielding and double plays and third baseman Doug DeCinces, shortstop Mark Belanger and second basemen Billy Smith (glove) and Rich Dauer (bat) return. However, first baseman Lee May becomes the DH, with DH Eddie Murray, the 1977 Rookie of the Year, taking over in the field.

The outfield two fine hitters, Ken Singleton, coming off elbow surgery, in right and Al Bumbry in center. The third spot will go to Andres Mora, Pat Kelly or Carlos Lopez, possibly a platoon.

The Detroit Tigers may be a team to keep an eye on. Mark Fidrych, the rookie pitching sensation of 1976, returns from an injury-plagued summer and his spring showing indicated he was all the way back.

First baseman Jason Thompson, left fielder Steve Kemp and pitcher Dave Rozema emerged last year and this season the team is looking to a new double play combination in shortstop Alan Trammell and second baseman Sweet Lou Whitaker. Catcher Lance Parrish promises to be a good one, too, although Milt May still looms as the No. 1 backstop. Rusty Staub is the DH with Tim Corcoran and Charlie Spikes in right field. The brilliant Ron LeFlore is in center, super glove Aurelio Rodriguez at third.

The Tigers acquired a starting pitcher from Milwaukee in Jim Slaton, but Jack Morris, counted on as the fourth starter, has developed arm problems. The bullpen is manned by Steve Foucault, John Hiller and Jim Crawford.

Jeff Torborg starts his first full season as manager of the Cleveland Indians. He gets outfielders Rick Manning and Johnny Grubb back from the injury list but hard-throwing pitcher Jim Bibby has left via the free agent route.

The third outfield spot probably will go to Paul Dade.

The infield has Andre Thornton at first, Duane Kuiper at second, Buddy Bell at third and either Larvell Blanks or Tom Verzyer at short. Willie Horton is the DH.

Fred Kendall and Ron Pruitt are capable catchers. The staff they'll be handling starts with sometimes brilliant Dennis Eckersley and Wayne Garland, again battling arm trouble. Jim Kern is one of the league's top short relievers but the rest of the corps must prove itself.

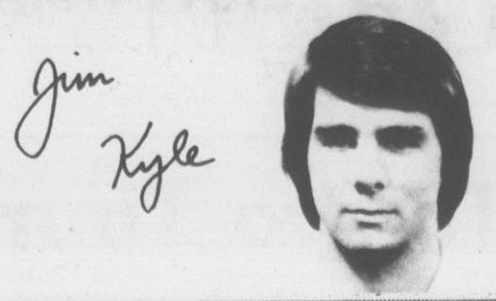

The Milwaukee Brewers dipped into the free-agent market for Larry Hise, the AL's RBI king, but the real problems were on the mound so they hired Baltimore pitching coach George Bamberger as manager.

With Bill Travers on the disabled list, the starters include

THE DAYS LEADING up to Monday night's NCAA basketball tournament championship game were not easy ones for Kentucky coach Joe Hall. According to Hall, so much was expected of the Wildcats that for their season to be successful, they HAD to defeat Duke in the final game.

"This season was without celebration for us," Hall said at a news conference the day before the game. "So much has been expected of us. We've had only two losses this year and still there has been so much pressure. It's been real tough."

Hall said, "When we started practice this fall, people close to our program began the year by saying, 'We know you're going to win the NCAA.' Not 'We HOPE' you win the NCAA,' but, 'We KNOW you're going to win the NCAA.'" So the only way Kentucky could be successful, Hall said, was to win the tournament. "It's strange that you can have this much pressure in an academic setting," he added.

The strain was so great that the coach who succeeded Adolph Rupp six years ago hinted at possible retirement at the news conference if the Wildcats won the game. He later denied he would leave at the end of the season in a statement which said, "I will not resign, win or lose, tomorrow night."

Neither Hall nor the Kentucky team succumbed to the pressure. The Wildcats built up a big lead and then held off a ferocious Blue Devil rally in the closing minutes for a 94-88 victory. But Duke came so close that Hall had to reinsert his starters after taking them out with less than a minute left.

IT IS HOPED that Duke coach Bill Foster took note of the things going on around Hall because he could very well be in the same position next season. With everyone who played for the Blue Devils Monday night returning, they are virtually assured of being the preseason favorites to take it all next year.

Duke's fans are already looking to next season. They spent the last minutes of the championship game chanting, "We'll be back. We'll be back."

They certainly should be, for several years to come. Two of the Duke starters are freshmen, two more are sophomores, and the oldest of the first five is only a junior. So the Blue Devils are set for awhile.

But the road won't be easy for them and they will be under a tremendous amount of pressure. Much of that pressure will come from Atlantic Coast Conference competition. N. C. State, for example, will also have all five starters back. The Wolfpack made it to the finals of the National Invitational Tournament before bowing to Texas, another team that returns everyone.

The real problem, however, could be the Duke fans and how they handle this season's success. Too much pressure on winning titles can be counter-productive, as Hall found out this season and Gene Bartow learned at UCLA.

The Blue Devil fans would be better off to just sit back and bask in the light of Duke's most successful season in over a decade. As for next season, too much talk of a championship takes all the fun out of winning individual games, and the team got as far as it did this season partly because it was having such a good time.

Lady Jaguars Nip Rampettes

FARMVILLE — Farmville Central pushed over 11 runs in the sixth inning and eeked out a 17-16 victory over Rose High School's winless Rampettes yesterday.

The win was the first of the year for the Lady Jaguars.

Rose gained a brief lead in the first with one run, but Farmville countered that with two in the bottom of the inning, then added four more in the second. Rose came back with two in the third and two more in the fifth to cut the lead to 6-5.

The Rampettes then pushed over six in the top of the sixth for an 11-6 lead, only to see it vanish when Farmville pushed over 11 in the bottom of the frame. Rose then came up with five in the seventh to pull within one before the rally ended. Debbie Gowen and Melba Willoughby led the Lady Jaguar hitting with three each, while Beth Massey, Dianne Barrett, Lynn Webb, Courtney Lancaster and Clair Mazingo each had two.

Donna Cullipher, Camille Smith and Veronica Bridges each had two hits for Rose.

Farmville plays host to Ayden-Grifton on Friday, while Rose is idle until April 18 when it travels to Rocky Mount.

Rams Fall To Scotland Nine

ROCKINGHAM — Scotland County, the defending state 4-A Champions, pushed over three runs in the sixth inning and gained a 6-1 victory over Greene Central yesterday. The contest came during action in the Pete Hogan Invitational Tournament at Richmond County High School.

The Rams, in losing dropped into the losers' bracket of the eight-team tournament, and will meet Plymouth today at 1 p.m. They will play again on Friday in the contest for either fifth or seventh place in the field.

Scotland County pushed over two unearned runs in the second to take the lead. With one away, Tony Clark reached on an error and Harold Currie singled. Larry Bradley got another hit, leading the bases. Then, after a second out, Steve Lyles reached when his fly to short center was misjudged allowing both Clark and Currie to score.

Greene Central, after leaving the bases loaded in the third, came up with a run in the fifth. Mike Chase singled and was sacrificed up. Jay Carraway reached on a two-base error. Russell Brann's grounder to the infield was relayed to home in time to get Chase there. Al Murray then singled to score Carraway with the lone Ram run. The Rams went on to load the bases again, but a line drive out ended the threat.

After Scotland got another run in the fifth, they came up with three more in the sixth on three singles and three walks.

Frank Warren, who went the distance for the Scots, struck out 13 Ram batters.

Conley Seeks Baseball Improvement

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

With nine returning lettermen, D. H. Conley baseball coach Walter Claybrook is expecting improvement over last year's team, which finished 7-12 and in the lower half of the Eastern Carolina Conference.

"We're really looking for a lot better team this year. We have a lot of people back and we're hoping to be in the upper half," Claybrook said. "I'd have to rate C. B. Aycock and Greene Central as the favorites, but we hope to challenge them."

Claybrook said the strength of his team is twofold. First, the Vikings have nine returning lettermen. Second, the team's attitude has improved over last year. "They're wanting it more this year," Claybrook said. "The attitude wasn't that bad last year, let's just say it was kind of lackadaisical."

Inexperience up the middle may be a problem for Conley, however. The team sports sophomores at catcher, second base and shortstop. "I think we can overcome this; it's just going to take some experience."

Before the season began, pitching was also a worry for Claybrook. But that area has been a pleasant surprise so far. "Pitching was real suspect at the first of the year, but it has come around just fine."

The Vikings will start sophomore Curtis Spencer behind the plate. Spencer, who started as a freshman last season, "is just a tough competitor," Claybrook said. "He's going to be a good one before he leaves — he's already a good one."

At first, will be senior Dale Bailey. He needs to work on his hitting, according to the coach. Micah Dixon, a sophomore, gets the nod at second base. "He has the potential to develop into one of the best ballplayers in the conference," Claybrook said. Dixon has some experience from summer league ball.

Another soph, Mike Edens, is the team's shortstop. Consistently is his biggest problem. "When he makes up his mind to really work, he's a good ballplayer. On his good days, he's good, and on his bad days, he's bad."

Third base is the position most wide open, Claybrook said. Two seniors and a sophomore are battling for the starting spot there. Senior Mike Phillips played the position last season, but actually makes a better designated hitter, Claybrook said. Senior Craig Buck is also working there, along with sophomore Doug Branch.

"All have the potential to step in and take it," according to Claybrook. "And all of them are pretty good hitters."

The Viking outfield will change constantly during the season, depending on the opposition. Nuggie Worthington, a senior and the leading outfielder, will alternate between left and center field. "Wherever we feel the other team's most dangerous, we're going to play Nuggie," Claybrook said.

Two pitchers, senior Randy Edens and junior Ben Wilson, will also play in the outfield when not on the mound. Wilson will be used strictly in right.

Sophomore Arnell Credle may play in center or left for his defense, while senior Gary Brock will be seeing some action in right, the coach added.

Of the team's pitching, Claybrook said, "So far we're real pleased; we're surprised, too."

The Viking bullpen sports four lefthanders. Senior pitcher Randy Edens is the hardest thrower on the team, but is in his first year as a pitcher. Inexperience is his biggest problem, Claybrook said.

Junior Ben Wilson, another lefthander, is "right now, our most consistent pitcher. He's really worked hard on it. He's not going to throw the ball by anybody, but he will be around the plate."

The Vikes have also used junior southpaw Jeff Allen as a starter and have three other pitchers who have yet to see action. They are sophomore lefty Carl Arnold, and righthanders Neil Johnson, a senior, and Sammy Tucker, a freshman. Claybrook expects good development from Tucker.

Aycock and Greene Central should be the teams to beat in the ECC, Claybrook said, but the entire conference is improved. "Farmville Central and North Pitt should be better, Claybrook said. "The conference should be strong. I know we're going to be better."

"If we can develop consistency and come up with the big play, I think we can challenge the top three clubs."

Alternate Farm Program To Be Put In Operation

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration, vowing to veto an emergency farm bill now before Congress, is ordering an alternate plan into effect that it says will boost farm incomes without accelerating the increase in consumer food prices.

Vice President Walter F. Mondale and Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland announced the plan Wednesday. It does not require congressional approval, and Bergland said instructions on its implementation are now going to Agriculture Department field offices.

The program will not stop consumer food prices from increasing. But Bergland said it should not cause prices to climb more than the 6 percent to 8 percent increase already projected for this year.

He said the package "will not change the food price factor at all," although the program for cotton farmers might add about 10 cents to the cost of a cotton shirt.

The announcement came after months of pressure by militant farmers, who complain that rising production costs and low crop prices are forcing them out of business.

The most vocal protests have come from the American Agriculture group, which declared a farm strike last year and has staged frequent demonstrations to push its demands for increased government action.

In announcing the program, both Mondale and Bergland said the emergency farm bill passed by the Senate last week faces a certain veto if approved in its present form. The bill now is in a conference committee with the House.

"That bill would ruin the structure of our farm programs, subject farmers to excess government regulation and, over the long term, destroy the export markets on which we rely for a major share of our farm income," he said.

Mondale said the bill would add $2 billion to $3 billion to "a budget that is already in deep deficit" and would trigger another spiral of wages and prices like the nation experienced in 1972-73.

An administration analysis said the bill in Congress would "reverse the recovery in the livestock industry and increase retail food prices an additional 2 to 3 percent."

The new plan calls for payments to corn, feed grain and cotton farmers for taking land out of production, coupled with higher support payments — in effect, minimum prices for farmers who choose to participate — for soybean farmers.

Officials estimated that if farmers who grow the crops take full advantage of the revised programs, they can add $3 billion to $4 billion to their gross earnings this year.

Included in the administration package are:

- Payments to corn and other feed grain farmers for idling land beyond the 10 percent they already must set aside to qualify for federal supports.
- Payments to cotton farmers for idling 10 percent of their land. There was no previous acreage-iddling requirement for cotton.

—Permission for wheat farmers to take advantage of the land-iddling payment while letting livestock graze on 40 percent of their land, to a maximum of 50 acres, instead of growing grain on it. Payments will be made on the basis of grain they otherwise would have harvested.

—Soybean loans of $4.50 a bushel, up from $3.50 last year. This is the amount farmers can borrow from the government by using their crop as collateral. If the market price is below the loan price, the crop is taken by the government at the higher loan price.

The bill in Congress that Mondale said faces a veto includes payments for idling additional land, higher supports for grain and cotton and a "flexible parity" feature, which would provide price guarantees for those who idle up to 55 percent of their grain and cotton land.

The U.S. Dept. of Agriculture says that in 1976, the latest year for which a complete breakdown is available, less than one-third of the $172 billion Americans spent on food went to the farmers and the other two-thirds went for marketing costs. ## Immobilized 900-Pound Man Taken To Hospital

SEATTLE (AP) — Jon Minnoch was so weak from a vegetables-only diet that he could not budge from bed. It took a dozen firefighters and an improvised plywood stretcher to move the 900-pound man into another bed — in a hospital.

The 36-year-old Minnoch had been lying on his side, practically immobile, for about three weeks, said Louie Marker, a friend living with the Minnoch family. Marker said Minnoch had injured his foot and, after spending a few days in bed, found it impossible to get up.

Minnoch, covered with painful bedsores, finally consented to pleas from his wife that he enter a hospital. He was reported in fair condition Wednesday, undergoing treatment for complications related to obesity, a University Hospital spokeswoman said.

Jean Minnoch said her husband had become so weak from his 600-calorie-a-day diet, prescribed by a doctor, that he had been unable to work at his job as owner of a taxi cab company.

Marker said the 5-foot-10 Minnoch had "always been heavy," weighing more than 300 pounds when the friends first met about 16 years ago and gaining weight over the years.

Firefighters arrived at Minnoch's home on Bainbridge Island at 10:30 p.m. Tuesday and maneuvered him onto a three-quarter-inch sheet of plywood measuring four feet by eight feet. A five-foot window in his first floor bedroom was removed because the doorways were too narrow, said Hugh Maguire, public relations officer for the Seattle Fire Department.

Planking from the bed was placed under the plywood to lift it to window level and then down to the waiting aid car, Maguire said.

The aid car rolled onto a ferry and arrived at the hospital around midnight, where Seattle firefighters were waiting to help.

It took 90 minutes to get Minnoch into a bed, or rather two beds.

His jerry-rigged stretcher would not fit through the hospital doorways, so it was cut down with a saw, said Maguire. Minnoch then was put onto two beds placed side-by-side.

"My husband has tried to diet before," said Mrs. Minnoch, who weighs 110 pounds. "He was determined this time to make it work. It got to the point where he just couldn't get out of bed."

Couple Marry, But Are Suing

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Thomas Roger Person and Carol Ann Figueroa were married at last on Tuesday.

But they're not dropping their $50,000 lawsuit against the two magistrates who refused to wed them last year because Person is black and his new bride is white.

The couple filed suit in federal court last May against Forsyth County court magistrates J.C. Lewter and Harold W. Thomerson, claiming the men both refused to marry them because of personal and religious beliefs against mixed marriages. Their suit contended that the refusals violated their constitutional rights.

The two magistrates are the same two who married Person and Miss Figueroa this week.

"We just took them up on their offer," said the couple's attorney, Ervin Brown. "They told us they would marry them any time they wanted to."

Attorneys for the two magistrates said in an answer to the suit that the two, who are state employees, are immune to such suits because of their judicial status.

The latest action in the suit came last month, when Chief Judge Eugene A. Gordon denied class action status in the lawsuit. The judge has not ruled yet on the immunity issue.

Only friends and relatives of the couple were admitted to the short ceremony Tuesday, in which the two magistrates pronounced the couple husband and wife in union.

The new Mrs. Person said she thought the two men rushed things a bit, probably because it "made them a little mad" to do it at all.

Person, 26, who works for the Industries for the Blind, said he was glad the ceremony was finally performed. "But they should have done it from the beginning," he said.

Toxic Fumes In Explosion

LEWISVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Roads through Lewisville were opened early today but town residents were kept from their homes because of toxic fumes left over from a chemical explosion after a train derailment.

The town was evacuated Wednesday morning after a Cotton Belt freight train left the tracks and a chemical on one of the cars apparently exploded, shooting flames into the air.

Lafayette County sheriff's Deputy Victor Knight said the main fire at the site of the train derailment was still burning today but crews were working to clear overturned cars and repair the track.

Three train crewmen who were injured in the derailment were reported in satisfactory condition at Magnolia Hospital today. No other injuries were reported.

About 200 residents of Lewisville spent Wednesday night at Stamps High School, sleeping on cots in classrooms and eating meals in the school lunchroom. Others stayed with relatives and friends, or in motels.

ton, so declarer had to guess the trumps immediately. Declarer won the ace of hearts and was off to a good start when he led a spade to the jack, which held. Next declarer cashed the king of spades, and West dropped the queen!

This allayed declarer's fears about a possible heart ruff and presented him with a line of play that seemed to guarantee the contract regardless of how the clubs were divided. Declarer abandoned trumps, led a diamond in dummy. Now, declarer had to get back to his hand to draw the last trump, which he presumed was with East.

It seemed perfectly safe to come back to the South hand with a heart. But when declarer crossed to the king of hearts, West ruffed with the trump he "could not" have. Declarer still had to lose a club trick for down one.

When defending, if you are known to hold a particular card and you are given a choice of plays in that suit later, it is generally a sound principle to play the card you are known to have. Observe how that caused South to go wrong in the play of this slam.

Having already responded at the two-level, North must have thought he had an extra ace in his hand when he chose to jump to three spades—two would have been quite adequate. South cannot be blamed for driving to a small slam after such strong encouragement.

West led the jack of hearts, and the contract was not all bad. If declarer could guess the location of the queen of spades, or if the king of clubs were onside, matters could be handled. However, the opening lead was almost surely a single-trick. Declarer had to guess the trumps immediately. Declarer won the ace of hearts and was off to a good start when he led a spade to the jack, which held. Next declarer cashed the king of spades, and West dropped the queen!

This allayed declarer's fears about a possible heart ruff and presented him with a line of play that seemed to guarantee the contract regardless of how the clubs were divided. ## Alternatative To Game Shows

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Each week night, before prime-time network programs begin, the usual TV wares are syndicated game, talk or nature shows, or reruns of reruns. But an alternative to all this is afoot.

It's "PM Magazine," a concept for a locally produced program of feature stories, "informational" material and hosted by staffers of each station airing the half-hour show Mondays through Fridays.

"PM" was cooked up by the New York-based Group W broadcast chain, and has its origins in the "Evening Magazine" local shows that air on the firm's stations in San Francisco and four other cities.

Win Baker, president of Group W's TV stations division, says 10 stations already are signed for "PM Magazine" and perhaps double that will be airing the show when it starts in September.

In the "PM" project, he says, Group W provides two general-interest feature stories each night, plus "tips," or short reports on health, home life and leisure-time activities.

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Bagging a thief is a familiar expression but when a camera bag literally catches a thief, that's news ... and here's the story.

Our hero is the "System Bag," a distinctive camera case designed by two working professionals, Eric Jacobson and Gary Miller. It was introduced last July and 600 orders from amateurs and professionals poured in following its announcement. It's a waterproof, tan canvas bag designed to carry a complete photographic system but its offbeat design and appearance make it easy to spot and hard to forget.

The System Bag's announcement was a bit ahead of its availability, resulting in a waiting list of up to four months as demand exceeded supply. One photographer who is exceedingly glad he waited is Richard Hutchings, a New York-based freelancer.

Recently, Hutchings finished an assignment and drove to a restaurant near his studio. Knowing the danger of leaving camera equipment in the body of an automobile, he opened the trunk and transferred his System Bag into it. The bag contained a new Hasselblad system, a Nikon motor drive and extra accessories with a value of about $3,000.

When he returned to the car, he discovered the trunk had been opened and the bag and equipment were stolen. Evidently, some sharp-eyed predator had watched Hutchings transfer the camera bag, then enter the restaurant. He went to work while Hutchings went to eat. Needless to say, the photographer's after-meal digestion was disastrous.

A few days later, the owner

THE SYSTEM BAG is reunited with its owner Richard Hutchings. The distinctive bag tipped off a dealer it had been stolen.

of a local camera shop where Hutchings bought supplies phoned him. Two young fellows had just been in the store, the dealer told him, and wanted to sell a camera bag with its equipment.

"They offered the stuff at a bargain price," the owner said, "but I recognized the System Bag and remembered you had a Hasselblad outfit. I decided to stall them until I could check with you. I told them I had to get the manager's OK and asked them to return at noon on Friday by which time we'd have the money too."

The thieves had a redeeming feature — they were punctual with their appointment. The camera store owner was waiting. And so were detectives and Richard Hutchings. The thieves were bagged and Hutchings' digestion improved miraculously.

A camera bag which catches thieves is worth looking into. The story also sounds an alarm for photographers and provides an opportunity to commend alert camera store dealers who make an effort to thwart thieves.

The ideal camera bag, like the ideal camera, has been sought perpetually by photographers. The requirements for an amateur certainly would not suit a professional — literally, it would not be his bag. Many professionals, unhappy with what's been available, have designed their own. That's how the System Bag evolved. Jacobson and Miller spent three years designing and testing it based on their professional needs on assignments. It had to pass on size, weight, capacity, durability and accessibility of contents.

Their bag's heavy-duty waterproof canvas is light enough for easy carrying but strong enough to protect the contents. It measures 7 inches wide, 10 inches deep and 20 1/2 inches long. The main section is divided into four compartments. A typical load capacity might be: three SLR camera bodies, eight lenses, two exposure meters, two strobes, and accessories.

The two end compartments, each 2 1/4 inches wide, can accommodate 30 rolls of unboxed 35mm film each.

The main section and compartment dividers are constructed like a sandwich with the canvas on both sides and a quarter-inch layer of poly foam between them to absorb bumps. The main compartment has Velcro fastenings for quick opening and closing but there are three buckles for between-use security. The cover has a zippered pouch for written material and small electrical gadgets or tools.

The canvas has top and bottom leather patches, heavy-duty stitching and industrial-grade hardware which can support 200 pounds of equipment — far more than any photographer would want to haul. Carrying is done with shoulder straps and/or hand straps, which are handy in crowded hallways, taxis, planes, etc.

Richard Hutchings' experience shows that he made a mistake in transferring his equipment openly where he left his car. The equipment should have been in the trunk before he parked his car. He could have stopped en route to make the switch. Or he should have taken the equipment with him into the restaurant. It's a bit inconvenient, but better security.

Another suggestion: never leave empty film boxes or cartons or anything that is linked with a valuable possession in view anywhere in a car. Passing prying eyes can spot a clue and it may tempt a rip-off artist to investigate a car trunk.

Camera store dealers and private individuals who are offered tempting bargains should resist and try to get some identification of the seller. A legitimate owner won't object but shady operators try to get around it. That's when the excuse to raise the money needed sounds sensible as a reason for a second meeting — this time with authorities present.

The stolen camera you help to return — may be your own. For more information about the System Bag, write to: System Bag, 63 Hillside Ave., Pleasantville, N.Y. 10570.

Circle K Club Wins 4 Awards

ECU News Bureau

East Carolina University's Circle K club was given four awards at the recent 17th annual Carolinas District Convention in Charlotte, and ECU delegate Eric Davidson of Statesville was elected one of seven district Circle K lieutenant governors.

Davidson, a sophomore political science major, will have charge of North Carolina's Eastern Division of Circle K.

ECU's eleven-member delegation also received several awards, including the first place annual Achievement Awards and the Single Service Award, given for a joint crime prevention project the ECU club undertook with the Greenville Kiwanis Club and the local high school Key and Keyettes Clubs.

The ECU club also received the Member-Mile Award, for having sent the largest delegation the longest distance to the convention. ECU's club president, senior accounting major Barbara Bumgarner of Youngstown, Ohio was given the Outstanding Club President Award for her work in reactivating ECU's chapter last year.

Sponsored by the Greenville Kiwanis, ECU's Circle K club is the oldest active club in International Circle K, comprising chapters on campuses throughout, the U.S., Canada and the Bahamas. Circle K's propose is to be of service to the local community and campus through organized projects.

Accompanying the delegation to the Charlotte district convention were the club's sponsors, Dr. David Stevens, director of the ECU Office for Equal Opportunity Programs, and Richard Farris, assistant personnel director for employee relations at ECU.

To Make Film In New Jersey

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Voices" will be filmed in New Jersey, marking the first time since "The Perils of Pauline" in 1917 that a major motion picture has been made entirely in that state.

New Jersey was the first home of the movie industry, but soon lost out to Hollywood.

The film stars Michael Ontkean, Amy Irving, Alex Rocco and Barry Miller.

Signed For 'The New Maverick'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Charles Frank will star opposite James Garner in "The New Maverick," a two-hour movie and pilot for ABC.

Frank plays Ben, the son of Beau Maverick, played in the original series by Roger Moore.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Real or Imagined Illness?

I often hear friends say that they get sick when their resistance is low. Is this a comment of someone with an active imagination? Or is there some truth to the idea? — Mrs. T.R.T., La. Dear Mrs. T.:

It is not unusual for patients to volunteer the information to their doctors that when their resistance is low they "get sick."

Body resistance is a very complicated phenomenon and is one of the most exact mechanisms that prevents illness, cures illness and keeps the body in good health.

Scientists have for many years been exploring every possibility that will augment the body's natural reserve and resistance.

It is well-known that excessive fatigue or rapid chilling of the body devitalizes the body's ability to resist infection.

Endocrine problems, vitamin deficiencies, malnutrition and circulatory conditions interfere with the body's capacity to counteract bacterial invasion.

It is well-known, of course, that emotional disturbances, stress and anxiety reduce the body's capacity to throw off acute illnesses. The close interaction between body and mind is clearly established by modern scientific thought. Interruption of this delicate balance plays havoc with physical and emotional fortitude.

Adequate rest and diversion, controlled exercise, careful use of leisure and a well-balanced, sensible diet can undoubtedly add to man's body defenses, particularly against infectious diseases.

Our 7-year-old daughter has a face tic which is driving us out of our minds. Do you know any way that this can be cured? — Mrs. E.M., Del. Dear Mrs. M.:

Muscular tics and movements of the lips, face and eyelids are extremely common. Even though there seldom is found an underlying medical condition, a complete medical examination is essential.

Problems with vision, allergies and some neurological conditions are associated with a variety of facial tics.

When such an examination fails to uncover the reason for the tic, then emotional factors should be sought. Unusual pressures at home or at school are the obvious possibilities for the cause of habit tics.

Psychological studies, when well interpreted, can often lead the way to the basic emotional conflict. Then psychological guidance and simple direction may be the total answer to the problem.

Children should not be shamed or embarrassed into giving up their tics. This only serves to magnify their emotional conflicts.

Home Ec Study Role Underlined

ECU News Bureau

"There were as many as one million teenage pregnancies in America last year."

"In our snack-oriented society, many people have 20 or more food contacts per day."

"About a half of affluent American families may be malnourished."

These were among the facts which reaffirm the need for home economics in the school curriculum discussed last week at a gathering of home economics professors at East Carolina University.

Members of the N.C. Home Economics Teacher Educators, from seven of the eight state universities offering home economics programs, met here for the organization's annual spring meeting.

Dr. Lilla G. Holsey of the ECU School of Home Economics, NCHETE chairperson, directed the meeting's sessions.

In addition to a work session to compile updated information which supports the continuing need for home economics courses in the secondary schools, the meeting featured an address by Dr. Letty Pryor of the UNC-Greensboro School of Home Economics.

In her discussion, "A Relevant Curriculum Validation Process", Dr. Pryor discussed the recent plans for competency education and testing as they relate to home economics.

Chamberlain And Conrad Star

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Robert Conrad and Richard Chamberlain will star in NBC's 25-hour adaptation of James A. Michener's "Centennial," about events that shaped the West.

Conrad plays the hardy French trader Pasquinel and Chamberlain is McKeag, the red-bearded fugitive who flees Scotland after killing a Highland lord in defense of his sister. The two become partners when the Frenchman rescues McKeag from the Pawnees.

The entire production will be filmed on location in Colorado and Kentucky. It will premiere next season with a three-hour show, then be followed by episodes of two hours each.

Prices Soar On Diamonds

LONDON (AP) — Depressed by rising costs for everyday items like food? Cheer up. The rich have problems, too. Diamond prices are soaring.

The increase is worrying everyone from De Beers Consolidated Mines Ltd., the people who dominate the market for uncut diamonds, to Walter Hoving, the man who heads Tiffany & Co.

Both De Beers, which claims to produce about 85 percent of the world's diamonds, and Hoving, board chairman of the store whose name is synonymous with all that glitters, blame speculators for the boost. And both say that it is substantial.

"It's hard to generalize because so much depends on the quality and classification of a diamond, but certainly it's safe to say that prices are being inflated by at least 50 percent and much more in some cases," said De Beers spokesman Richard Dickson.

Speculators buy diamonds as an investment when, as is happening now, world currency values fluctuate. They also buy gold, which is why its price often goes up when the dollar's value declines.

In New York, Hoving said small diamonds — one carat and under — are up 50 percent over last year; larger ones cost 35 percent more. Upset by the increase, Tiffany's placed an ad in Friday's New York Times headlined: "Diamonds Are Too High." The ad said "some speculators" — whom Hoving declined to identify — have driven up prices and concluded, "We suggest you look before you leap."

He said the latest ad does not mean Tiffany is going to stop selling diamonds; it has a good stock of stones purchased before prices soared. But the store does want to stop speculation.

Hoving said it was impossible to give specific price jumps because stones vary so in quality. Rings with stones of about one carat are being advertised by New York stores anywhere from $1,200 to $2,400, depending on the cut, quality and setting. The same stores last year advertised similar rings at from $1,000 to $1,600.

Youth Rally To Be April 9

TARBORO — The youth of churches in the Albemarle Presbytery will hold their spring rally at Howard Memorial Presbyterian Church Sunday, April 9, at 2:15 p.m.

Districts will elect representatives during the rally to serve on the Presbytery Youth Council for 1978-79.

The Rev. L. W. Mitcham of Columbia, S. C., will lead the "frog kissin'" sections of the program. This is an experience in affirmation of other persons. Bible study, recreation and worship. Youth and adult leaders present will participate in the experiences.

Mitcham, a native of Kings Mountain, is a graduate of Lenoir Rhyne College, Southern Lutheran Seminary and the University of South Carolina. Presently he is responsible for Christian education, youth ministry and camping in the S. C. Lutheran Synod. He is the author of "Who Speaks For God," a book for high school and young adults.
