Carter Ends Africa Visit Expressing His Concern

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

MONROVIA, Liberia (AP) — President Carter ended his precedent-setting visit to black Africa today with a warning that South African rejection of a reasonable solution in Namibia "could precipitate more serious differences" with the United States.

Talking to reporters aboard Air Force One before stopping in Liberia on his way home, the president said he believes Nigerian leader Olusegun Obasanjo shares his concern about Cuba's military presence on this continent. But Carter added, without elaboration, "I think there is a difference in emphasis."

At a working lunch with Liberian President William R. Tolbert Jr., Carter called for an Africa free from "interference of a military or other nature from outside forces or from their proxies." Especially in Angola and the Horn of Africa, where Cuba and the Soviet Union have sent troops and advisers, Carter said, "we want to see outside military forces and outside influences depart."

Tolbert told the visiting American president: "We would urge a positive American policy of creativity which would inhibit rather than prevent or bewail the occurrences of external subversion and armed intervention, particularly between proxies of the superpowers."

After lunch, Carter visited 250 American volunteers at a Peace Corps center on the outskirts of Monrovia before returning to Air Force One for the 10-hour flight home.

Carter left the Nigerian capital of Lagos for this last stop on his way home to Washington after finding common ground with Obasanjo in the search for peaceful solutions to black nationalist aspirations in both Namibia and Rhodesia. However, they clearly were at odds on how to achieve black goals in South Africa.

The president, reviewing his entire week-long trip to Africa and Latin America, told reporters on the presidential jet: "I thought it was a great trip — much better than we had anticipated in every way."

Two of the nations along Carter's route — Nigeria and Venezuela — are major exporters of oil to the United States. In response to a question, the president said it is obvious both countries favor an increase in world oil prices.

The other country visited by Carter was Brazil. He said the results of his talks there were "more than we had any reason to expect." But he offered no explanation.

As the president, greeted by thousands of Liberians, mounted a platform for welcoming ceremonies at Robertsfield International Aiport outside Monrovia, he stumbled. But Liberian President William Tolbert, caught him by the arm, and he regained his balance.

Liberians worked around the clock to repair roads, build triumphal arches and erect welcoming banners in their capital of Monrovia, where Carter's plane touched down after a two-hour flight from Lagos, Nigeria. Moments before he arrived, police with nightsticks pushed back a small group of Liberians who broke a wooden barrier at the airport, where thousands waved and applauded.

Most wore western garb but others were in dashikis and some were barefoot. Over larger-than-life portraits of Carter and his wife was a sign: "A hearty welcome to Liberia. We are happy to have you, Jimmy and Rosalynn." The government declared a public holiday, and the crowds included many school children.

Rollback By U.S. Steel

PITTSBURGH (AP) — U.S. Steel Corp., the nation's leading producer, said today it will roll back an announced $10.50-a-ton price increase to remain competitive with other steelmakers.

The company said in a statement that its price "increase would be modified to be competitive in the marketplace on a product by product basis."

That was interpreted to mean that U.S. Steel would accede to pressure from the White House and other major producers and raise prices an average of $5.50 a ton.

However, a spokesman declined to say what range the price increases might take. Some prices could rise substantially more than $5.50, depending on market conditions.

There was no immediate word from troubled WheelingPittsburgh Steel Corp., which had followed U.S. Steel's price lead.

The nation's biggest steel company surprised Washington inflation watchers and the industry last Wednesday when it announced the across-the-board hike for all steel mill products.

President Carter termed the initial increase "excessive" during a press conference in Brazil.

The administration's Council on Wage and Price Stability called the initial increase "inflationary" and warned it threatened the industry's continued recovery from 1977 setbacks.

National Steel, the nation's No. 3 producer, followed Thursday with a $5.50-a-ton increase. Other producers later modified that to an average of $5.50 a ton.

The increases will affect nearly all forms of steel, including hot and cold rolled sheets, which are used widely in the auto and appliance industries.

They are the second price changes for major products this year. A 5.5 percent increase on most products took affect in February and March.

High Hopes

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt said Sunday he may announce the location of an industrial plant in North Carolina while on an industrial recruitment trip to Europe and Israel.

Hunt left Raleigh-Durham Airport Sunday on a flight to New York to begin the trip.

Before boarding his flight, Hunt said, "Because we've done a lot of spadework, there is a possibility I will have a plant announcement to make while I'm over there. It will depend on our final conversations when I meet with the people who are considering North Carolina."

Accompanying Hunt on the trip are Commerce Secretary Lauch Faircloth, Cultural Resources Secretary Sara Hodgkins, Transportation Secretary Tom Bradshaw, and several state industrial recruiters.

Their trip will cost the state $30,000.

A group of North Carolina businessmen, many of them members of the state Economic Development Board, are traveling along at their own expense.

"I think the chances of us getting a number of new plants and very fine jobs because we are going is very good," Hunt said. "We're meeting with people who are interested in North Carolina."

The first stop on the trip is Germany. Hunt will arrive in Dusseldorf Monday, then go to Hamburg and Stuttgart Wednesday. On Thursday, he will travel to Zurich, Switzerland.

On Saturday, the group will travel to Israel, with stops in Tel Aviv and Jerusalem. The governor will fly to London on Tuesday, April 11. The following Friday he will stop in Brussels, Belgium; Lille, France and Manchester, England.

The group is scheduled to return Saturday, April 15.

Israeli Cabinet Urges Sadat To Resume Parleys

JERUSALEM (AP) — The Israeli cabinet called on Egyptian President Anwar Sadat to take another look at Israel's peace proposals and resume negotiations, but a cabinet spokesman would not confirm a report by Sadat that Defense Minister Ezer Weizman would return to Cairo this week.

At Sunday's weekly cabinet meeting, Weizman reviewed his talks with Sadat and other Egyptian officials last week. A statement issued after the meeting said: "The government of Israel expresses its wish that the Egyptian government re-examine the positive Israeli proposals aimed at the renewal of peace negotiations."

Sadat, in an interview in the weekly magazine October, said Weizman would be returning to Cairo. But he said it would be "impossible to resume the meetings of the military and political committees unless there is a clear change in the Israeli position."

Those committees were set up during the Christmas Day meeting between Sadat and Prime Minister Menachem Begin, but they have not met since January.

Egyptian officials said Weizman brought no new proposals to Cairo last week. But the cabinet statement said he carried "new suggestions, ideas and thoughts that had not been raised before."

Spokesman Arieh Naor said another trip to Cairo by Weizman was "one possibility among others."

Manson Loses Appeal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Charles Manson's bid to have his conviction and life sentence overturned in the 1969 murders of two California men was turned down by the Supreme Court today.

The justices left intact Manson's 1970 conviction for the murders of Gary Allan Hinman and Donald "Shorty" Shea. Police say the two men were killed within weeks of the Tate-LaBianca mass murders.

Hinman's body was found in his Malibu home in late July 1969. The body of Shea, a handyman who lived at a ranch where Manson and his followers stayed, was never discovered. Prosecutors said he was killed sometime in August 1969.

In August 1969, movie actress Sharon Tate, wealthy industrialist Leon LaBianca and his wife, and four other persons were murdered at homes in a fashionable Los Angeles neighborhood.

Manson was convicted of the Tate-LaBianca murders in a 1971 trial that became one of the most publicized criminal prosecutions in history. He later stood trial for the Hinman and Shea murders, and testimony by former Manson "family" members and others indicated that Manson had ordered both men killed.

Pitt Board Okays Fair Grounds Line

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County Commissioners this morning approved a $5,890 expenditure to fund installation of a four-inch water line to the new Pitt County Fair Grounds.

The approval came after the Pitt County Fair Association requested help in establishing the fair as a regional agricultural fair.

The Greenville Utilities Commission, which will install the line, indicated it would be abandoned eventually when they install a 12-inch or 18-inch main in the area in several years.

Commissioners also approved a request for $1,500 for the Greenville Art Center. The county money and a $1,500 grant from the Greenville City Council will be used to secure a $3,000 grant from the state to help fund operations of the art center.

The board also appropriated $2,450 for radio console equipment for the Fire Marshall's office and $550 for a radio for the assistant fire marshall.

Commissioners heard a report from Alice Keene on the recreation program. She told the board that she is now trying to develop programs in cooperation with the various schools in the county, saying, "We've got a good start here," through the Community School project.

Pitt Memorial Hospital director Jack Richardson told commissioners that the Health Systems Agency has approved a heart catherization lab at the

2-Day Blood Drive

The Bloodmobile will be at East Carolina University on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week at Wright Auditorium, according to Mrs. Ruth Taylor, executive secretary of the Pitt Red Cross.

Mrs. Taylor said that the blood drives will be conducted from 11 a.m. until 5 p.m.

The spring visit is being sponsored by the Panhellenic Council and Inter-Fraternity Council at ECU, it was mentioned. Anne Thompson and Dalton Denson are serving as co-chairmen.

Mrs. Taylor pointed out that the visits are open to everyone in the community, not just students and campus personnel.

The Bloodmobile drive this week is one of two visits scheduled at ECU during the current fiscal year.

Plan Nominating Clerk Of Court For Election

The Pitt Democratic Executive Committee will meet here on April 17 to choose its nominee for the November election to fill the Clerk of Superior Court vacancy created last week by the death of H. L. Lewis Jr.

Betty Speir, chairman of the executive committee, said the meeting will be held at 8 p.m. at the District Courtroom and voting by committee members will take place as specified in the Democratic plan of organization.

Superior Court Judge Robert Rouse of Farmville, it was explained, appointed assistant clerk Sandra Gaskins last week to serve as acting clerk of court for a 30-day period.

At the end of the 30-day tenure, Rouse will appoint a clerk of court to serve on an interim basis until the November elections, according to Mrs. Speir. She noted that Rouse's appointee may or may not be the executive committee's nominee for the election.

Lewis, who had served as clerk of court since 1968, had announced his intention to seek reelection. Lewis was running unopposed in the May primary.

His current term would have expired on the first Monday in December.

The new acting clerk, a Greenville native, has served in the Pitt office for nine years. She began her duties as deputy clerk and served in that capacity for two years before becoming assistant clerk under Lewis.

PRACTICE RANGE?

What steps can be taken to minimize the danger of misdirected golf ball at the practice range along Charles Street in the Minges Coliseum vicinity? One recently hit my car with force, and, since, then I have heard several say they have experienced this, also. What is really frightening is that a ball might strike a pedestrian or a bicycle or motorcycle rider. B. R.

Dr. Edgar Hooks, chairman of the East Carolina University Health and Physical Education Department, said that persons using the grounds between Minges and Charles Street for a golf driving range are doing so without permission. He said he often has to ask individuals to leave this area when he sees them using it for golf, but that he cannot police it at all times. He said signs to this effect have been placed here time after time, but usually are not allowed to remain.

He said the driving range for ECU students and faculty is behind the Allied Health Building, purposely placed away from any road for safety reasons. He said he realizes that this open area near Minges is tempting to persons wishing to practice their golfing because there is not a range open to the public in Greenville. Anyone who uses this or any ECU-owned land in this manner, however, must be liable for the damage inflicted to persons and property, he pointed out.

Fires Fanned By High Winds, Low Humidity

By The Associated Press

More than 200 forest fires, fed by hot weather, high winds and low humidity, were reported in North Carolina over the weekend, authorities said today.

At least 5,000 acres were burned Saturday by 231 different blazes, said Dane Roten, a spokesman for the state Division of Forest Resources. But weather conditions eased a bit Sunday, and far fewer fires were reported, Roten said.

Two major fires, one in Cherokee County in the west and one in Harnett County in the east, were controlled late Saturday night and early Sunday.

Roten said the Harnett blaze consumed 1,500 acres before being contained, according to a revised estimate. The Cherokee fire covered 600 acres.

Arson apparently was the cause of several of the blazes, Roten said. In Franklin County, Sheriff W.T. Dement said that a Franklinton man was arrested and charaged with deliberately setting a forest fire.

On Sunday, two small fires were touched off in Columbus County and two more in Onslow County, but all were brought under control quickly. Roten said air tankers dropped 2,400 gallons of fire retardant on the worst one, near Whiteville.

"There was not anything serious Sunday," he said. "There were a few scattered fires, but the winds fell down and the humidity was higher."

However, Roten said that unless there is some rain in the state in the next few days, "we'll be in the same (fire) situation."

He said burning permits remained cancelled today in a 24county region of western North Carolina, including Rutherford, Burke, Caldwell, Alexander, Wilkes and Alleghany counties and all areas west of those counties. The ban on burning "will probably stay in effect until we get some rain," Roten said.

Karen Quinlan Outlays Soar; Family Profits

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — An estimated $400,000 in public funds has been spent on the medical and legal costs of the Karen Ann Quinlan case three years after the comatose woman's parents filed their famous "right-to-die" suit, a newspaper says.

The Star-Ledger of Newark reported the estimate Sunday and also estimated that a movie contract and publishing contracts would bring her parents, Joseph and Julia Quinlan, from $150,000 to $200,000.

Morris County officials, who paid $54,101 to guard the comatose woman's room at Morris View Nursing Home in Morris Plains until last December, have expressed dismay at the costs.

"I feel they (the parents) have a moral obligation to the county in light of the monies flowing in as a result of the whole situation," said county Deputy Freeholder Director Alfonse Scerbo.

Family lawyer Paul Armstrong told the newspaper recently that the Quinlans "feel a debt to the people of New Jersey and Morris County in particular."

The family has set up the Karen Ann Quinlan Memorial Fund to handle profits from the sale of their adopted daughter's story and plans to build a health facility in North Jersey to show their appreciation, he said. The fund is administered by the Roman Catholic Diocese of Paterson.

Because she was over 21 when she lapsed into the coma, Miss Quinlan, who beco 24 Wednesday, qualified for state Supplemental Security Income as a disabled adult.

Her doctors' bills have been paid partly with state and federal money through Medicaid, said the woman's father. Much of the cost has been absorbed by the nursing home and two hospitals where she has stayed, the newspaper said.

Miss Quinlan fell into a coma after mixing alcohol and drugs in April 1975. Her parents' plea for "death with dignity" for their daughter was granted in March 1976, when the state Supreme Court said the parents had a right to disconnect her respirator.

She continued to live after her respirator was unplugged, but doctors say she never will recover from her vegetative state.

MRS. BOBBY GENE BONE

Bone-Wooten Vows Exchanged

FALKLAND — The Falkland Presbyterian Church here was the scene of the Sunday afternoon wedding ceremony of Andrea Dawn Wooten and Bobby Gene Bone. The Rev. William Forbes conducted the double ring ceremony at three o'clock.

A program of organ music was presented by Miss Janet Smith of Fountain.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Annie D. Wooten of Rt. 1, Fountain, and the late Mr. Wooten. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Madie S. Bone of Rt. 2, Rocky Mount, and the late Mr. Bone.

The bride and bridegroom entered the church together. The bride wore a formal length gown of sheer pink chiffon over tinted pale pink peau de soie featuring a V-neckline outlined with hand-sewn miniature bridal pearls, beaded sequins and sculptured beads. A sheer layer of chiffon formed a capelet. Cascading tiers of the capelets extended throughout the entire length of the skirt etched with the hand-sewn miniature bridal pearls, beaded sequins and sculptured beads. She wore a diamond necklace, a gift of the bridegroom.

She carried a long-stemmed American beauty rose showered with pink satin picot streamers and love knots extending the full length of the gown.

Mrs. Jerry D. Wooten of Rt. 1, Fountain, sister-in-law of the bride, was the honor attendant. She wore a baby blue formal length gown of peau de soie etched with seed pearls fashioned with an open neckline and empire waist. The flowing caftan sleeves fell to points over the hand embroidered with appliques of seed pearls. She carried a long-stemmed American beauty rose accented with crimson satin ribbon streamers and love knots.

The wedding was directed by Ms. Ann Wooten of Winston-Salem, who also presided at the register.

Charles Daughtridge of Rt. 4, Rocky Mount, was best man.

The bride is a graduate of Pitt Technical Institute and is employed by the N. C. Department of Transportation, Appraisal Section, Greenville, as a secretary. The bridegroom is a graduate of West Edgecombe High School and is employed as a carpenter with Mark Braswell of Rocky Mount and farms.

An after-rehearsal party and cake cutting were held for the bride and bridegroom at the home of the bride. Hostesses were Mrs. Elizabeth Moore and Mrs. J. Alton Moore Sr.

The refreshment table was covered with a white lace cloth centered with an arrangement of spring flowers. After the bridal couple cut the traditional first slice of the wedding cake, it was served by the bride's mother and the mother of the bridegroom poured punch.

Couple Weds In Double Ring Ceremony Sunday Afternoon

Ms. Deborah Crawford Eason and Kenneth Tyson Cleaton were united in marriage Sunday at three o'clock in Johnson Memorial Presbyterian Church. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Edward Conner, pastor of the bride.

Nuptial music was presented by Marcia Leggett, organist, and Deane Smith, soloist, who sang "Evergreen" "You Light Up My Life" and "First Time Ever I Saw Your Face."

Vows were spoken before a background of emerald fern and a basket of white gladioli, yellow snapdragons, blue carnations and white daisies. Pews were marked with blue carnations and white daisies tied with yellow ribbon. A 15 branch candelabra, two nine branch and two single branch completed the wedding scene. The couple knelt on a brass prie-dieu for the benediction.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, wore a formal gown of candlelight organza over polysatin. The gown featured an empire bodice and chapel train with a ruffled flounce edged in re-embroidered lace. Her gown, fashioned by her mother, featured bishop sleeves extending to cuffs fastened with satin buttons. The bodice with a sheer inset with V-shaping featured a sheer ruffle edged in re-embroidered lace and had a wedding ring collar of re-embroidered lace. Lace extended around the train and empire waist.

Her elbow length veil was fastened to a band of blue and yellow silk flowers and edged in re-embroidered lace. She carried a cascade arrangement of miniature carnations with blue and yellow silk flowers.

Miss Becky Crawford served her sister as maid of honor. She was dressed in a formal gown of yellow organza over yellow peau de soie designed with a portrait neckline featuring a double ruffled bertha collar centered in front with a self-fabric bow and short caplet sleeves. An inset band encircled the empire waistline. The modified A-line skirt was enhanced by a ruffled flounce at the hemline that extended up the back of the gown to a silk fabric rose that gave a bustle effect. She wore blue and yellow silk flowers with baby's breath in her hair and carried a white mum arm bouquet tied with white ribbon.

Bridesmaids were Miss Donna Skinner of Farmville, cousin of the bride, Mary Ann Cleaton of Wilson, Jeannie Cleaton of Greenville, sisters-in-law of the bridegroom, and Emma Lou Crawford of Bethel, sister-in-law of the bride. They wore dresses like that of the honor attendant in blue. They wore blue and yellow silk flowers with baby's breath in their hair and carried a yellow mum arm bouquet tied with white ribbon.

Serving as flower girl was Angie Leggett of Greenville. She was dressed like the honor attendant in yellow and wore matching flowers in her hair. She carried a basket of yellow and blue miniature carnations and baby's breath. Ring bearer was Walt Cleaton of Wilson, nephew of the bridegroom.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers were Ronald Crawford of Tarboro, and Alton Crawford of Bethel, brothers of the bride, Mike Cleaton of Greenville, and Danny Cleaton of Wilson, brothers of the bridegroom.

MRS. KENNETH TYSON CLEATON

The mother of the bride was wearing a formal gown of pink qiana with long full sleeves and tucked waistline. The mother of the bridegroom selected a formal gown of green. Both wore corsages of white carnations. Mrs. Melver Crawford of Maury, grandmother of the bride, was remembered with a corsage.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Crawford of Rt. 1, Tarboro. She graduated from North Pitt High School and attended Mitchell's Hair Styling Academy and Pitt Technical Institute. She is employed at Wachovia Computer Center.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cleaton of Ayden. He graduated from Ayden High School and attended ECU. He is employed at Helig-Meyers.

After a wedding trip to Myrtle Beach, S. C., the couple will live in Greenville.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Alice E. Wilson of Tarboro.

Following the ceremony, a reception was given by the bride's parents in the church fellowship hall. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Earl Doughtie of Bethel.

Mrs. Lorraine Burton of Bethel presided at the bride's table which held a burning candle, a portrait of the bride and the register.

The refreshment table featured a green cloth overlayed with white dotted swiss. The centerpiece was yellow snapdragons, blue carnations and white daisies with ivory candles. The three-tiered wedding cake was served by Mrs. Shelby Rogester of Bethel.

Good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Tripp of Tarboro.

The bridal couple entertained at an after-rehearsal party for members of the wedding party, guests and friends at the church following the rehearsal. Women of the church greeted guests and assisted in serving.

NEW YORK (AP) — Today's "New 20s" are more mobile, more highly paid, more educated, more employed and have a wider choice of living styles and careers than ever before, says Kathleen Fury, editor of Your Place magazine, a publication aimed at the concerns of that age group.

Of this group, 57 percent have attended college — double the national average — and 81 percent work, according to Ms. Fury, who adds that "about the only thing they have less of is children."

FINAL COMPREHENSIVE ANNUAL SERVICES PLAN
UNDER TITLE XX
THE DEPARTMENT OF HUMAN RESOURCES
STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA
PROGRAM YEAR OCTOBER 1, 1977 TO SEPTEMBER 30, 1978

Requests for changes in service definitions and service delivery proposals have necessitated the amendment of the Final Comprehensive Annual Services Plan for social services under Title XX of the Federal Social Security Act. Following are brief descriptions of the changes:

- Changes were made in services provided by local departments of social services due to revisions in planned expenditures.
- The definition for "Family Planning Services" was rewritten so that North Carolina's age limitations for nontherapeutic sterilizations would be the same as those allowed by federal regulation.
- The reference to marital status was removed from the discussion of alternatives for resolving a pregnancy in the definition for "Problem Pregnancy Services" because the alternatives are the same for married and ummarried parents.

PUBLIC COMMENTS disclosed that Watauga County would be out of compliance with the state mandate to provide Caseworker Services to Enable Individuals to Remain In or Return To Their Own Homes if both Chore Services and Homemaker Services were deleted from their services plan. Therefore, the final amendment reflects that Watauga County will continue to provide both of the services in order to meet the requirements contained in the definition of Caseworker Services.

EFFECTIVE DATE OF THE CHANGES is April 3, 1978.

THE PUBLIC MAY REVIEW the final amendment at any county department of social services Monday through Friday from 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

THE FINAL AMENDMENT MAY BE OBTAINED free of charge by calling 1-800-662-7030 (toll-free) or by written request to the office listed below. A copy of the entire services plan may be purchased for $3.00 (check or money order) mailed to:

'Women's' Work Not for 'Macho'

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: What is your opinion of a man who is so "macho" that he flatly refuses to help his wife with anything that is connected with housework. He says, "That's women's work."

We have no children and both work, but he insists that I get up earlier than I ordinarily would in order to blow-dry his hair every morning.

He thinks it's a wife's duty to pick up after her husband, so he leaves his dirty socks, underwear and shirts all over the house. He says his mother was his father's "slave," and he expects me to be his!

As a working wife I contribute equally to the household expenses and think I should be treated as an equal, but I'm not. His "old world" upbringing has given him this "macho" attitude, and it's about to drive me to the divorce court. Any suggestions?

SLAVE

DEAR SLAVE: You're working, right? You contribute equally to the household expenses, right? You are a "slave" by your own definition, right?

Emerson said, "Slavery is an institution for converting men into monkeys." That goes for women, too, right? So quit picking up after the tyrant and tell him to use some of that hot air he's full of to blow-dry his own hair.

(P.S. A counselor might be able to save your marriage, but I'm not optimistic about your chances of getting your husband there.)

DEAR ABBY: This may not seem like much of a problem but it's very serious to me. My wife chews her fingernails. Her fingers are constantly in her mouth. They are now infected and smell bad. So does her breath. The tips of her fingers are always red and inflamed. She must be a wreck inside to do this to herself.

She is otherwise attractive and well-dressed. The paradox is that she wears very beautiful, expensive jewelry on those unsightly hands. It's a shame.

No names please. This is a small town.

LAST RESORT

DEAR LAST: Your statement: "She must be a wreck inside to do this to herself," is the key to the problem. First she needs to find out why she's into such self-destructive behavior before she can overcome it. Psychotherapy is the solution.

DEAR ABBY: You invited readers to express their views on writing or phoning to thank a hostess after a party. I implore you to stress writing instead of calling. A phone call is both ridiculous and redundant.

Example: (Guest): "You had such a lovely party last night, etc."

(Hostess): I'm so glad you could come, etc."

(Guest): "Your dinner was delicious, etc."

(Hostess): "We loved having you, etc."

As for those who neither write nor phone: Well, those lazy, ignorant people don't deserve to ever be invited again, and that is my personal policy!

Wake Forest Is Planning A Face-Lift

WAKE FOREST, N.C. (AP) — Business and civic leaders in this northern Wake County town are preparing the residents for a new look to the place.

It's an attempt to restore Wake Forest's lost beauty while helping her grow graceful and more contemporary with age.

The first step is mostly cosmetic. Old, dilapidated signs have been torn down, and broken windows and tattered storefronts are due to be spruced up and repainted.

The second step will take several years. A Downtown Revitalization Committee has been appointed, to set long range planning objectives and policies for pumping new life into the downtown area and upgrading streets and sewer services.

"We've still got our small-town flavor, and we don't want to lose that," said Pete Hendricks, president of the town's Chamber of Commerce.

"But the town has been in a decline — we haven't had many improvements over the past 25 years. We want to move forward and develop, but we want to do it with sound planning while maintaining the good things we have."

Many Wake Forest residents feel the town started slipping in 1956, the year the focus of its existence, Wake Forest College, was lured away to Winston-Salem by tobacco money. Before it incorporated as Wake Forest in 1909, the town was called the Town of Wake Forest College.

"Some people here still haven't gotten over the college leaving," said town manager Julian B. Prosser Jr. "People felt the town was going to go down the tubes and dry up and blow away. You can see that the place doesn't look much different than it did 20-some years ago.

But there has been some growth. Southeastern Baptist Seminary, which took over the old Wake Forest campus, has been growing steadily and now has 1,000 students. The addition of several new industries and a downtown shopping center during this decade have helped broaden the town's economic base.

Town leaders now feel growth is moving toward Wake Forest. They point to the proposed Falls of the Neuse watershed project between Wake Forest and Raleigh, along with the widening of U.S. 1 linking the two municipalities and scheduled improvements on N.C. 98 connecting Wake Forest and Durham as evidence.

Last December, Chamber of Commerce leaders started discussing ways to spruce up Wake Forest's image.

"The town was in decline and people seemed to have lost interest in it," said Hendricks. "We looked around and it seemed like the whole world was growing toward us, so it was time to prepare ourselves for it."

In Mice, A Devastating Drug Hits Cancer Cells

By WARREN E. LEARY
AP Science Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — A devastating drug sticks to malignant cells longer than other anticancer agents and therefore can kill all the cancer in mice with a single dose, scientists say.

While there is no direct evidence the drug will work in people, and no human tests have been conducted, researchers from the University of California at San Francisco say the agent looks "very promising."

Dr. Martin Apple, professor of pharmacology and experimental therapeutics, said Sunday that azetomicin is one of a new class of drugs designed with computer aid to bind to cancer cells for relatively long periods in order to intensify its effects.

A common cancer drug such as adriamycin binds to cancer cell molecules for about one second, he said, but azetomicin stays stuck for almost 25 minutes.

Apple said azetomicin "is probably better than many drugs used clinically now, at least according to our computer projections."

And the computer model his research team uses "almost never misses" in judging whether a new drug will work on people, he added.

Computer design is the key to the new drugs in azetomicin's class, he said.

Most of the drugs developed this century resulted from trial and error, a slow method that produces relatively few useful agents that do exactly what scientists want, Apple said.

The California researchers built their drugs with the help of PROPHET, a nationwide computer network of chemical and biological data sponsored by the National Institute of Health.

With this background, they simulated molecules on television screens in three dimensions and manipulated the chemistry of the models for the desired effect. The scientists then synthesized only the simulated molecules that were projected to be improved drugs.

"An average day of 'PROPHET study is often more useful than a year or two of trial and error in the lab," Apple said.

Azetomicin, the most promising of the new drugs developed through the computer, was tested in mice. Animals with malignant tumors as large as 15 percent of their body weight were routinely cured with a single dose, Apple disclosed.

Mark Rudd Is Almost Clear

By STEVE HINDY
Associated Press Writer

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Mark Rudd, the student radical leader of the 1960s who emerged from hiding last fall to face long-standing charges, now leads a quiet life while his lawyer tries to get one remaining charge against him dismissed — marijuana possession.

Rudd is "working as a construction worker or something," says the Rev. Bill Starr, Columbia University's Episcopal chaplain and a participant in a 1968 Columbia student strike led by Rudd.

He says Rudd, 30, has promised to appear at a program marking the anniversary of the strike April 20.

"We're going to show a film called, 'The Columbia Strike' and a series of people who were involved, including Mark, are going to talk," Starr said.

Rudd, who was a fugitive for seven years until he surrendered to authorities in New York in September, once grabbed national headlines as a leader of the Students for a Democratic Society and as a member of the SDS splinter group, the Weather Underground. Now he avoids reporters.

"I guess his goal is that if he doesn't say anything his name will someday resume to be that of an ordinary person," said Rudd's lawyer, Gerald Lefcourt.

Lefcourt says the only outstanding charge against Rudd is for alleged possession of marijuana at the Canadian border in New York's Niagara County in 1969. "We're hoping that will be dismissed," said the attorney.

Rudd went free in October after pleading guilty to a single charge of criminal trespass in connection with the 1968 Columbia takeover. The district attorney's office did not comment on the plea bargain that resulted in Rudd's freedom.

Rudd pleaded guilty to a charge of aggravated battery in Chicago in connection with the 1969 radical "Days of Rage" demonstrations. He was fined $2,000 and placed on two years probation.

Rudd's parents, who live in a split-level home in suburban Maplewood, refuse to discuss their son.

His brother, a Newark lawyer, also is protective. "I can't tell you where he is, whether he works, what color his hair is," says David Rudd. "My lips are sealed. Those are his orders."

Clash Mars Marching

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — More than 1,500 chanting supporters of clemency for the Wilmington 10 marched through downtown Raleigh Saturday to the State Capitol, calling for the release of the group.

At the capitol, marchers listened until late afternoon to speeches denouncing Gov. Jim Hunt's failure to pardon the Wilmington 10, and deploring competency testing, the imprisonment of the Charlotte 3 and racism around the world.

Police described the marchers as generally well behaved, but a struggle occurred between police and two marchers at one point.

Police charged the two marchers with assaulting an officer, while several eyewitnesses complained the police used excessive force.

The incident began when police issued a citation to Allen Blitz of Greensboro, who operated a sound system for the march, for violating a city noise ordinance, according to Blitz.

"He was given a citation. Some others resented the citation and assaulted Capt. C.L. Price and knocked him down," Raleigh Police Chief Robert E. Goodwin said. "They were taken to the magistrate's office."

Those arrested were Nelson N. Johnson, 34, a march official who returned to speak at the rally after he was released on bond, and Kurt M. Krumperman, 26, of Durham, according to police.

Johnson was charged with assault and Krumperman was charged with assault and resisting arrest, police said.

The Rev. Leon White, who coordinated the march, said the arrests were not unexpected.

"We've been harassed from the very beginning. This is just another form of harassment. The police have been fussing about the mike before we got here. We expected it," White said.

Abandon Search In Boat Mishap

WRIGHTSVILLE BEACH, N.C. (AP) — The U.S. Coast Guard has suspended a search for a young Wilmington man who apparently fell overboard from a 46-foot pleasure boat about five miles off Wrightsville Beach.

A Coast Guard spokesman said a two-day search for Bill Dolan involving a cutter and two planes was suspended Sunday night pending "further developments."

Dolan was reported missing Saturday afternoon, the spokesman said.

Says Carter Is Disappointment

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Rev. Jesse Jackson says many of the blacks who voted for President Carter would not do so today.

"We elected Carter to deal with our problems, and so far he has not done it," Jackson said in a copyrighted interview in U.S. News and World Report. The magazine also carried similar comments from interviews with Urban League President Vernon Jordan and Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass.

Poor Chow For Soviet Troops

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — American GIs who spent their military careers complaining about Army chow should hear the latest intelligence on the Russian military diet.

A U.S. Army analyst reports many Soviet soldiers suffer from vitamin and mineral deficiencies because their diet is short on vegetables.

And many Russian regiments and military schools must supplement their rations by raising their own vegetables, pigs, livestock, rabbits and poultry on "kitchen farms," the report says.

Victoria Dibbern, a nutritionist with the Army's Foreign Science and Technology Center at Charlottesville, Va. reported, "Even potatoes and cabbage may run out before the new harvest."

"Difficulties with food production, preservation and distribution in the civilian sector are reflected in the military food supply," she wrote in an official publication of U.S. Army logistics.

Ms. Dibbern reported a gradual upward trend in the variety and quality of food available to the Russian armed forces, "especially the officer corps and other groups."

Without detailing the sources of her information, Ms. Dibbern said that "nutritional difficulties of the Soviet armed forces are corroborated by Soviet military medical literature."

Her article was the latest of a number of reports in recent years by U.S. defense specialists focusing on the Soviet serviceman, his characteristics and the conditions under which he lives and trains.

"Better food is a privilege of rank in the Soviet military," Ms. Dibbern said. "The conscripted rifleman and the noncommissioned officer are served more meat than enlisted men while officers enjoy a greater variety of meat, as well as eggs, dairy products, fresh fruits and vegetables that the troops see only on holidays."

WHAT IS AN APPRAISAL?
True, A REALTOR can suggest a selling price for your home if you intend to list it with his office. This is common practice and part of the value of selling through a REALTOR. But this should not be construed as an offical appraisal.
An appraisal is the valuation of your property by a qualified Appraiser for a fee. This fee is based solely on the ammount of work involved-not the market value of the property. His detailed written instrument will carry its full weight as documentation if used in any official capacity such as for tax or legal problems.
As Appraiser will provide you with a dated document which will cover in detail all the elements which go into the valuation such as: prices of comparable properties that have sold, value of location, construction, age and depreciation of the property, zoning, restrictions and reproduction cost. If it is income property he will capitalize the present and future income potential. Qualified Real Estate Appraisers will probably be members of the American Institute of Appraisers.

It's Oscar Night, And The Show Aims For A Bigger TV Audience

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The trumpeters are set to trumpet, the limousines to limo, the stars to shine and their agents to collect 10 per cent of the glory, if any. It's Oscar night here, for the 50th year.

It airs live at 7 p.m. PST on ABC, which aired it last year.

And as you wonder who'll win, Hollywood's film establishment will wonder if their show again suffers something awful that happened last year. It was worse than a streaker. It was a ratings drop.

"Exorcist" director William Friedkin produced that show. He vowed it would be streamlined, less "tacky," more dignified. He got all that.

He also got the lowest ratings the Oscars have had in 24 years on national TV. His show was seen in about 22.1 million homes by an estimated 63 percent of the national audiences, ratings say.

Impressive, but that was 3.1 million fewer homes than tuned in the Oscars of '76

Some in the industry thought the nominees of 1977 lacked the appeal of past Oscar contenders. Some film leaders thought the ratings drop was due to what they saw as Friedkin's deglamorization of Oscar night.

And an ABC analyst theorized that the lateness of the hour when the major awards came caused viewers in the East to opt for the Land of Nod instead of staying awake for the grand finale in the Land of Odd.

Whatever the reason, changes have been made for tonight's show.

Howard W. Koch, president of the motion picture Academy, again is at the helm of the Oscar show, as he was in the five years preceding Friedkin's effort. And there won't be a raft of masters of ceremony.

Only one M.C. will be at the podium, Bob Hope, a durable ratings-getter who did the same solo act in 1967.

Koch was busy last week doing whatever it is Oscar show-producers do, and wasn't available to say how the old pizazz — and presumeably the old, higher ratings — would be returning.

But Tim Steele, associate producer of the Oscar show the past four years and now an ABC overseer of it, quoted Koch as emphasizing that an effort definitely will be made to bring back the old-style glamor.

He cited as an major example a restoration of TV shows that show the stars arriving at the Los Angeles Music Center, site of the program, and the excitement this always causes at curbside.

Although Friedkin last year excised this bit of Oscar night, he said, viewer mail indicates "that a large number of people enjoy that aspect of the show, so it'll be back in this year."

He was asked if perchance the spread of award shows — 12 have been on network TV so far this season — has diminished viewer interest in even the Oscars, traditionally the highest-rated show of them all.

"No, I don't think so," he said. 'It continues to be immensely successful because it's a legitimate awards show in the sense it's certainly not staged (created for TV) by the television people."

Phyllis George Asking Divorce

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Nearly a year after their marriage, sports announcer Phyllis George has asked for a divorce from film producer Robert Evans.

The Miss America of 1971 filed the petition Friday in Los Angeles Superior Court. It was the first marriage for the 29-year-old Miss George, a Texan who works for CBS.

For Evans, 48, a former head of Paramount Studios and now an independent producer, it was his fourth marriage.

They met at a 1976 Christmas party and were married April 14, 1977, in Beverly Hills.

Q.1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AKQ8 ♡AK76 ◇K9 ♣QJ3
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
2 NT	Pass	4 ♡	Pass

What action do you take?

A.—Pass. Partner has said that he wants to play four hearts. Your hand contains nothing that partner doesn't expect—you have the 22 points you promised for your opening. Had partner had the slightest interest in slam, he would have responded three hearts.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠J1072 ♡84 ◇Q107 ♣KQ82
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	2 ◇	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♡	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Four spades. You have no more than you promised with your free raise. While partner has shown a very strong hand and has made a slam try, you must bear in mind that he wasn't strong enough to open with a demand bid initially.

Q.3—North-South vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠7 ♡KJ9652 ◇K853 ♣94
Partner opens the bidding with one no trump. What do you respond?

A.—You surely want to be in game opposite a partner who opened one no trump. With your long suit and unbalanced hand, you are not interested in playing in no trump. You can convey all this to partner with one bid. Jump to four hearts.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠QJ7 ♡85 ◇KQ10 ♣AQ1095
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	3 ♠	Pass

What action do you take?

A.—Your useful intermediates make your hand worth better than a minimum opening, and the double fit further enhances the value of your hand. However, you do not know what the best final contract is likely to be. If partner has heart values, no trump could be your best spot. You can suggest this by bidding three diamonds to show your values in that suit.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KQ8 ♡Q873 ◇K96 ♣752
Partner opens the bidding with one heart. What do you respond?

A.—Two hearts. If you revalue your strength in hearts by 1 point as recommended, it seems that your hand is now worth 11 points and therefore is too strong for a simple raise. However, you should deduct 1 point for the flaw in your holding—the 4-3-3-3 hand pattern. That brings it back to 10 points, the top for a single raise.

Q.6—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠K863 ♡QJ7 ◇954 ♣K107
The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
1 ♠	2 ♡	2 ♠	?

What action do you take?

A.—Pass. In modern bidding methods, North's jump to two hearts is preemptive. There is no point in raising—that might only succeed in alerting the opponents to a heart shortage in one of their hands. But if you still use the old-fashioned strength-showing jump overcall, we would recommend a jump to game. Either four hearts or three no trump would be acceptable.

Q.7—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♡KJ95 ◇AKJ83 ♣K1072
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇	1 ♠	1NT	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Two hearts. Strictly speaking, your hand is not strong enough to "reverse," especially since partner has wasted values in spades. However, there is a possibility that the overcall prevented partner from showing a four-card heart suit. If partner does not raise hearts or prefer to diamonds, you will get the chance to show clubs at your next turn, thus completing the description of your hand.

Q.8—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠Q86 ♡KQ93 ◇K97 ♣A103
Partner opens the bidding with one club. What do you respond?

A.—You have the values and the shape for a jump to two no trump, so we would not fault you if you chose that descriptive response. However, we do not like bypassing a good four-card major suit, so our first choice would be a simple one heart response. You will be able to handle any rebid partner makes, and can drive the hand to game no matter what he does.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: I equals H

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Tong-Sun Park Going 'Public'

By JIM ADAMS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tong-sun Park is facing his first public questioning on whether the $750,000 he says he paid more than 30 congressmen was meant to buy influence for the South Korean government.

Park's testimony before the House ethics committee starts today and continues through Wednesday in the same hearing room where impeachment proceedings were considered against former President Richard M. Nixon.

er, contends the money was simply political contributions and business payments to congressional friends. While acknowledging he had contacts with high officials in Seoul, he denies being a South Korean agent trying to buy influence.

Elsewhere in Congress this week:

—The Senate is continuing debate on the remaining Panama Canal treaty, which would turn the waterway over to Panama by the year 2000. A final vote is scheduled by April 26.

—House-Senate conferees are going back to work on President Carter's long-stalled energy package, taking up differing plans to deregulate natural gas prices.

—The House is taking up a proposal to give it veto power over any planned changes in mail service.

One former congressman has been convicted for taking Park's money and another has been indicted. The ethics committee needs Park's testimony to determine if any present congressmen should be punished.

Former Rep. Otto E. Passman, D-La., once a foreign aid powerhouse, was indicted Friday on charges of taking $213,000 to help the South Koreans secure loans to buy U.S. rice.

Former Rep. Richard T. Hanna, D-Calif., pleaded guilty two weeks ago to conspiring with Park and South Korean officials to try to influence Congress.

Justice Department sources, who asked not to be identified, say two more former congressmen may be indicted for taking money from Park. But officials there have publicly said they do not expect to file criminal misconduct charges against any present congressmen.

In another South Korean development, William J. Porter, the former U.S. ambassador to Seoul, confirmed in a CBS television interview to be broadcast tonight that the United States had a listening device in the office of South Korean President Chung Hee Park.

In the past, U.S. officials have refused to say whether the South Korean president's offices were once "bugged."

Porter said he was told the bugging stopped before he arrived in Seoul and added, "I gave a specific order that it was not to be renewed." Porter, now retired, was ambassador from 1967 to 1971.

Previous reports indicated the device was installed because the United States knew little about President Park when he came to power in 1961. Porter said he didn't feel the risks warranted continuing the operation.

Weekend N. C. Traffic Has Taken Nine Lives

By The Associated Press

Weekend traffic accidents in North Carolina have claimed the lives of nine persons so far, pushing the toll for the year to 309. That's eight more than were killed during the same period last year, the state Highway Patrol reported.

Janie Lee Neff, 25, of Royal Oak, Mich., was killed about 9 a.m. Sunday when the car in which she was riding collided with another car traveling east in the westbound lane of Interstate 40. The accident occured in Haywood County three miles west of Canton.

Marshall E. Campo Jr., 18, of Charlotte, died following an accident late Saturday night in that city. The patrol said Campo was the driver of a car that crossed the center line and struck a second vehicle headon.

Killed early Sunday morning on a rural road seven miles west of Asheville in Buncombe County was Rebecca Fuller Maples, 23, of Candler. The patrol said she was a passenger in a car that ran off the road and struck a utility pole.

Mary Estelle Dameron, 14, of Rhodhiss, died when the car in which she was a passenger ran off the road at high speed, struck and embankment and overturned, the patrol said. The accident occurred just after midnight on a rural road four miles north of Morganton in Burke County.

In another accident just after midnight Sunday, Joe Tucker, 40, of Dover, died when his car ran off the road and plunged into a creek in Craven County. The patrol said the accident occurred on a rural road 14 miles west of Vanceboro.

A Gaston County accident Saturday night claimed the life of Albert Michael Starr, 29, of Lincolnton. The patrol said the accident occurred when a second car crossed the center line and struck Starr's vehicle headon, on a rural road 4½ miles south of Gastonia.

Kenneth Dale McAbee, 22, of Gaffney, S.C., was killed early Saturday when his car ran off an Alexander County road five miles south of Taylorsville at a high speed and overturned several times, throwing him from the vehicle.

George Washington Gilliam, 53, of Aulander, was fatally injured early Saturday in a collision on U.S. 13 in Hertford County just south of Ahoskie. Gilliam's car broadsided a tractor-trailer that was backing into a driveway.

On Friday night, a car-train collision at a Randolph County railroad crossing fatally injured Amy Sue Parrish, 3, of Sophia. The collision occurred on a rural road just south of Archdale.

Sunday Saw 2 Accidents

An estimated $1,150 property damage resulted from two collisions investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 4:52 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Maxwell Street involving cars driven by Barnette Crandell of Winterville, and Kathy Sue Gaskins of Route 3, Greenville.

No charges were made by police who estimated damage at $500 to the Crandell car and $200 to the Gaskins auto.

A 4:05 p.m. collision on Elm Street, 50 feet North of the Greenville Boulevard intersection involved a car driven by Theresa Lee Oakley of 2106 North Village Dr. and a truck operated by Jeffrey Wayne Casey of Route 8, Kinston.

Damage was set at $300 to the Oakley car and $150 to the Casey truck, by investigators who made no charges in connection with the collision.

Predicts Extending Of Bottle Deposits

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Encouraged by Connecticut, backers of legislation that require deposits on beverage bottles predicted Saturday more states will enact such laws before the federal government takes action.

"We expect the Connecticut bill will have a domino effect in New England," said Diane MacEachern of Environmental Action.

"Connecticut legislators supporting the bill have sent red scarves they wore on the floor during this week's vote to Massachusetts legislators seeking their support," she said.

Bottle bill strategists have been advised "to get more states and then go back to the federal government," she said.

The Connecticut law, which takes effect in Jan. 1980, requires a nickel deposit on beverage containers.

Due to opposition from labor, the bill gives displaced bottle industry workers 75 percent of their salary for two years from the state treasury.

Gov. Ella Grasso is expected to sign the bill next week.

Deposit legislation initiatives are planned this fall in Alabama and Nebraska, she said.

In Iowa, the bill has passed the Senate, but the House added a deposit on liquor bottles with money not refunded to be given to alcoholic treatment centers. The measure is in a conference committee.

States which already have deposits are Oregon, Vermont, Michigan, and Maine.

President Carter, despite his environmental stand in the presidential campaign, has not taken a position on bottle legislation.

In January, Ms. MacEachern's group organized a campaign which resulted in thousands of containers mailed to the White House.

The House has held hearings on a proposed national bottle bill which would require a minimum five-cent deposit on all beer and soft drink contains to go into effect after three years.

"It would not ban any type of container," supporters noted.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA) — The trend on the North Carolina f.o.b. dock broiler market today was steady for this week's trading, supplies light to moderate, demand good, weights desirable. The dock weighted average price is 44.37 for this week. Estimated slaughter today 1,398,000.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market suffered a broad setback today amid concern over the slumping dollar and fears of tighter credit.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off 6.41 at 750.95.

Losers predominated over gainers by a 3-1 spread among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The dollar continued to lose ground against leading foreign currencies today following last Friday's news of a record U.S. trade deficit in February.

Analysts noted speculation that the dollar's lengthy slide might prompt the Federal Reserve to encourage interest rates to rise in an effort to make the dollar more attractive to international investors.

Fed Chairman G. William Miller has indicated that the central bank would also be inclined to tighten credit if the recent acceleration of inflation continues.

U.S. Steel led the active list, down 1/2 at 25 in trading that included blocks of 150,000 and 100,000 shares at that price.

The company said it would cut back on the $10.50-a-ton price increase it announced recently in order to be "competitive" with other steelmakers, most of whom have posted increases in the $5.50-a-ton range.

The NYSE's composite index fell .39 to 49.46. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .35 at 128.59.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 9.63 million shares as of noontime, against 8.49 million at the same point Friday.

Arrest 235 At Dog Fight Arena

BEN WHEELER, Texas (AP) — Texas Rangers and county law enforcement officers have arrested 235 people at an elaborate outdoor dog fight gambling arena. Pit bulldogs — one flown in from Canada — had just finished fighting when the raid took place, officials said.

They said spectators had paid $50 to get in.

Only 10 persons were taken to county jail and charged, according to Van Zandt County District Attorney Richard Davis. The charges ranged from gambling, promoting a dog fight, carrying a prohibited weapon to possession of a controlled substance.

Detroit Resists The Small Car

DETROIT (AP) — Car buyers in the Motor City are resisting the lure of small autos, and some dealers say it's because small cars are still thought of as imports.

Large cars make up 62 percent of sales in Detroit, compared to 50 percent in most other major markets.

"Detroiters don't want to follow Californians into smaller cars," one dealer said. "People here tend to relate most small cars to imports, and they don't want to buy imports."

medical facility to be developed with East Carolina University medical school funds, and recommended that bids for a neonatal center ambulance be rejected.

Richardson said a decision has been made to use a regular ambulance with a portable neonatal unit, rather than a special neonatal ambulance.

Ralph Hall, head of the hospital's physical plant, said the neonatal center should be completed by July 1, two months behind schedule.

In other business, the board approved giving title to a water wagon, acquired from the Coastal Plains Regional Commission for the Bethel Fire Department, to that department.

Pitt County Planner Larry Hurlocker told the board that five of the nine initial 40-cubic yard container sites proposed under the board's solid waste disposal plan have been tentatively located, with two others still under negotiation.

The board also agreed to refer a study of the county employees insurance program and changes in the retirement system to the board's personnel committee.

Commissioners also recommended that Mrs. Mildred Indorf continue as a member of the Pitt Memorial Hospital Board of Trustees. Mrs. Indorf was unable to attend board meetings part of last year because she was out of the country.

The board indicated at that time that they wished her to continue as a member of the Board of Trustees.

TOBACCO GROWERS TALK ABOUT VIKING SHIP® CALCIUM NITRATE

"Best body of tobacco I've ever had"

J.O. 'Tommy' Naylor
Spivey's Corner, N.C.

"I used Calcium Nitrate for the first time in 1976 after great results with 'CN' on my produce crops. 'CN' contributed to the growth and weight of my crop. My tobacco growed off faster than ever before. It put early body and length to the leaf and made my tobacco mellow all the way up the stem. I'll be using Calcium Nitrate again this year."

Pirates Roll Up Big Win

NORFOLK — East Carolina rebounded from a five-game losing streak by pounding out 19 hits and scoring 16 runs against Virginia Wesleyan yesterday. The Pirates came home with a 16-4 victory.

After each team scored a pair of runs in the first inning, the Bucs took control with three tallies in the third. They added solo runs in the fourth and fifth and then scored five in the sixth. ECU finished up with a five-run ninth inning, including three homers.

The Pirates, who lost the last five games by a total of six runs, got their offense wound up yesterday. Four players had three hits apiece in the game, Pete Paradossi, Butch Davis, Bobby Supel and Tim Hardison.

Davis, Supel and Mike Sage each homered in the ninth, while Tim Hardison and Billy Best both hit triples. Davis batted in four runs and Hardison three.

Starting pitcher Rick Ramey picked up the victory in the game, raising his record to 3-2. He went seven innings. Releivers Bob Patterson and Earl Mobley each hurled one complete inning for the Pirates.

Joey Rose was the loser. His record fell to 0-2. He started and pitched 4 2/3 innings for Virginia Wesleyan, giving up 10 hits and seven runs, three of them earned. John Newboldt came in to finish out the fifth inning, while Bryan Mullins closed out the game. The Bucs had a total of 12 earned runs.

Eddie Gates started the East Carolina scoring attack in the top of the first. He singled and stole second. After a Best walk and Pete Paradossi single, Gates scored when Davis hit into a double play. Best, who went to third on the double play, scored when Bobby Supel reached on an error.

Those runs were matched in the bottom of the inning, however. Bob Jacobs singled and went to third on an error for Virginia Wesleyan. Kevin Thornton got on by an error to score Jacobs and he came in when Greg Curtis reached on a Pirate misplay.

Three East Carolina runs came across in the third. Gates reached second on an error and scored on Davis' infield hit. Supel walked and Styons' singled in Davis. Hardison's base hit brought home Supel.

Gates scored on a triple by Best in the fourth and Hardison tripled home Robert Brinkley in the fifth to give the Bucs a 7-2 advantage.

In the sixth, Jerry Carraway walked, Gates doubled, and Best was hit by a pitch to load the bases. Paradossi singled in Carraway and Gates scored when Davis was hit by a pitch. Supel's base hit brought around Best and Hardison sacrificed to center field to score Paradossi.

Don Page scored for Virginia Wesleyan in the seventh when hit singled and came home on an infield out.

The final five Pirate runs came across in the ninth, helped along by three home runs. Sage led off with a solo homer. Carraway doubled and went to third on a long fly. He came home on Best's sacrifice fly. Paradossi singled and was brought around by Davis' homer, and Supel finished up with another solo home run.

Tony Brewer scored for Virginia Wesleyan in the bottom of the inning when he singled and then came in on Greg Curtis' sacrifice fly.

The Pirates evened their record at 11-11 with the victory. They return home to Harrington Field on Wednesday for a night game against North Carolina.

Knicks, Denver Make Playoffs

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

New York and Denver are in, but Boston, Chicago and Detroit are out as the National Basketball Association playoff picture gradually becomes clearer.

The New York Knicks qualified for post-season play in their first season under Coach Willis Reed by beating the Washington Bullets 114-109 Sunday. The Denver Nuggets assured themselves of a playoff spot by beating the Houston Rockets 109-100, while the Golden State Warriors were losing to the Phoenix Suns 105-99.

The tradition-steeped Boston Celtics were eliminated after losing to the Indiana Pacers 123-120 and the Milwaukee Bucks' 129-121 victory over Detroit ousted both the Pistons and the Chicago Bulls.

With one week remaining in the regular season, eight of the 12 playoff spots are now filled — Philadelphia, San Antonio, Washington, New York and Cleveland in the East and Portland, Phoenix and Denver in the West. The four division winners qualify, as well as the teams with the next four best records in each conference.

With Cleveland and New York having clinched berths over the weekend, Atlanta and New Orleans are fighting for the last spot in the East. It's an uphill fight for New Orleans, however, since any combination of two Atlanta victories or New Orleans losses will give the playoff spot to the Hawks.

In the West, only 2 1/2 games separates the four teams fighting for the final three berths — Seattle, Los Angeles, Milwaukee and Golden State.

Knicks 114, Bullets 109

Bob McAdoo and Lonnie Shelton scored 25 points apiece for New York and rookie guard Ray Williams got all 15 of his points in the fourth quarter to send the Bullets to their sixth loss in the last eight home games. Washington was without All-Star forward Elvin Hayes, who attended his grandmother's funeral. Mitch Kupchak, starting in place of Hayes, led the Bullets with 30 points.

Nuggets 109, Rockets 100

Guard Ralph Simpson, playing his best game since returning to Denver in midseason, scored 21 points to lead the Nuggets past Houston. The Nuggets took the lead in the second period and were never headed.

Suns 105, Warriors 99

Paul Westphal scored 10 of his 27 points in the fourth quarter as the Suns rallied from a 12-point deficit to beat Golden State. Rick Barry scored 31 and Phil Smith 30 for the Warriors. Late in the game Barry went into the Phoenix stands after a fan who had been heckling him, but he was restrained before any damage was done.

Pacers 123, Celtics 120

Boston's loss to Indiana means the Celtics will be out of playoff contention for the first time since 1971. Boston was unable to hold a 99-93 lead early in the fourth quarter and two free throws by Mike Flynn with three seconds left clinched the victory. Forward Mike Bantom led Indiana with 24 points and Dan Roundfield and Ron Behagen, two other forwards, scored 20 each.

Bucks 129, Pistons 121

Milwaukee posted its seventh victory in the last nine games behind 24 points by rookie Marques Johnson, 23 by Junior Bridgeman and 21 by Brian Winters. John Shumate scored a career-high 31 points for Detroit and also grabbed 15 rebounds.

Hawks 124, Nets 113

John Drew scored 27 points and led a 19-6 burst midway through the fourth quarter that carried Atlanta past New Jersey, despite 40 points by the Nets' John Williamson and 33 by rookie Bernard King.

Spurs 111, 76ers 107

In a matchup of two teams that already have clinched playoff berths, as well as division titles, Mark Olberding tied the score for the Spurs at 107 on a jumper with 1:25 left, then put San Antonio ahead to stay with another jumper with 22 seconds left. George Gervin and Larry Kenon led the Spurs with 20 points apiece. Olberding had 17.

Sonics 101, Blazers 86

Gus Williams scored 29 points and led a fourth-quarter Seattle rally that buried the Blazers, who were still without injured center Bill Walton. Williams scored eight points in a 14-4 spurt that gave the SuperSonics a commanding 96-80 lead with 3:02 left in the game.

Lakers 133, Kings 127

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 31 points and Los Angeles attained a magic number of two to get into the playoffs. Lou Hudson added a season-high 30 points and Adrian Dantley totaled 25. Los Angeles led nearly all the way and held a 70-61 halftime advantage. The Kings made a late run but could get no closer than four points in the final seconds. Otis Birdsong led the Kings with a career-high 37.

Young Ballesteros Gets GGO Victory

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Relax Jack. And you, Tom. And Hubert and Lanny and Hale.

Seve's going home soon. And he won't be back in a hurry.

First, however, America's leading pros must contend with dynamic young Severiano Ballesteros of Spain in this week's Masters. And, with his spectacular victory Sunday in the Greater Greensboro Open Golf Tournament — making up 10 shots in the last 36 holes, the not-yet-21-year-old globe-trotting Spaniard must be considered a definite threat in the classic at Augusta, Ga.

But Ballesteros, who always seems to say the proper, humble thing at the proper time, discounts that possibility.

"I putt fantastic this week," he said in improving English. "Must improve in my game to play the Masters. Very difficult course. Very many more good players over there."

Ballesteros, who had played in only a couple other American tournaments, shot a closing, 6-under-par 66 to acquire his first U.S. Tour title and become the youngest man in 15 years to acquire an American tour title. Despite his youth, the matador-slim, darkly handsome Ballesteros now has collected 19 worldwide victories.

But this, he said, was "my most happy tournament. Very much prestige to win in the States. Very difficult to win in the States."

He qualified for the final two rounds at the cut score, 147. He made up 5 strokes in the final with a blazing 31 on the front nine, but needed 21-year-old American rookie Jack Renner's bogey from a bunker on the 72nd hole by cool, composed, 21-year-old American rookie Jack Renner to avoid a playoff.

Renner matched par 72 in the hot sunlight that bathed the 6,984-yard Forest Oaks Country Club course. He finished with a 283 total, one short of Ballesteros' 6-under-par 282, and in a tie for second with Fuzzy Zoeller who birdied the last hole for a 69.

Craig Stadler shot 70 for fourth at 284. PGA champion Lanny Wadkins, with a closing 70, was one of nine tied at 285.

Ballesteros won $48,000 from the total purse of $240,000. Renner and Zoeller each won $22,200.

Although relatively unknown in this country, Ballesteros, who will be 21 next Sunday, is a seasoned, successful internationalist.

He's led the British Order of Merit for the last two years, played on the last two winning World Cup teams, was runner-up in the 1976 British Open, won last year's Swiss and French Opens and other titles in England, Japan and New Zealand. In his only other start this season, he won the Kenyan Open.

He has no immediate plans for playing the American tour, intending instead to concentrate his activities in Europe.

"I need more experience to play in the States," said Ballesteros, who failed the Tour's qualifying school in 1975.

"The European tournaments, they have been very nice to me. I think they like to see me play. I think I owe it to them to play in Europe."

The young man, who competes with the flair, verve and drive of a young Arnold Palmer, paused a moment and flashed a smile. "Two, three, four, five years I come to play in the States. I promise."

He meant it as an apology for not coming sooner. But it had the overtones of a threat.

If everything goes as expected by the time you read this Georgia Tech will probably be a member of the Atlantic Coast Conference.

For several years, since more or less giving the cold shoulder to South Carolina when it made overtures of wanting back in, the ACC has made little secret of the fact that it wanted the Atlanta school above all others.

A year ago, Virginia Tech made formal application to join the conference, the first time a team actually tried to join the league since its organization back in the early 50s. Tech, however, was quickly rejected.

For Georgia Tech, however, it was another story. The ACC almost went courting the former Southeastern Conference school. The message, "We want you," was told loud and clear.

So Georgia Tech took the move. First, it went back to the Southeastern, its old home, and asked for a chance to rejoin. "Go away," the SEC told the school.

With that, Georgia Tech sent back the word to the ACC, "We're here if you really do want us."

And want Tech, the ACC did. It took only a short while before it was all but made official during last week.

The merger of the league and Georgia Tech may have some effect on other independents in the area. There has been some talk of the formation of a new conference since East Carolina and several others bolted from the Southern, the conference that gave birth to both the Southeastern and the ACC. Whether plans for such a new conference could get moving now is the big question.

The ACC has picked its newest member and is not likely to be tapping anyone else on the shoulder for some time. Those schools that are left out, East Carolina, Virginia Tech, South Carolina, and others may want to take another hard, long look at the possibilities of a new league.

Working Georgia Tech into schedules over the next few years may have an effect on these schools. East Carolina currently has contracts with Duke, N.C. State and Carolina, along with upcoming games with Wake Forest. It is unlikely that Duke or State would drop the Pirates. Duke already has Tech on its schedule and State likes the rivalry of the intrastate contest. Carolina has already stated it would be dropping the Pirates after the current contract runs out.

What Wake Forest may do is questionable. Before Chuck Mills was fired, it became known that he was hedging on playing East Carolina. According to reports, only one game of the proposed series has been signed for so far.

The full impact will probably take five or so years to come around. Maybe by then, a new conference could be a reality.

What's Happened To The Pirates?

A little over a week ago, it looked like East Carolina University's baseball Pirates were getting their game together. They had beaten Clemson, one of the top teams in the country, and then bowed in a game played right to the wire before being decided.

But since then, there has been a complete collapse of the Pirates. They have won by one game since then (not counting yesterday's game at Virginia Wesleyan). They've dropped five in a row. Four of those games, to Southeastern Massachusettes, William & Mary, and two to Old Dominion, were decided by one run. The other, to North Carolina, was a two-run decision.

When the season started, Coach Monte Little looked at the experience he had back and felt that the Pirates had a good shot at another NCAA regional berth, despite the fact that the Bucs are independents this year.

But that experience has folded during the first half of the season. Going into yesterday's game, the Pirates were 10-11. Little felt that no more than ten defeats in the 49 scheduled games would send the Pirates back to the playoffs.

That seems little more than a dream now. Instead, the season has turned into a nightmare.

Yankees Have A New 'Old Reliable'

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

In their glory years during the late 1930s and 1940s, the New York Yankees had an outfielder-first baseman named Tommy Henrich, nicknamed "Old Reliable" for his remarkable clutch hitting.

Now, they have a modern-day "Old Reliable," only he's a pitcher named Dick Tidrow who answers to the unique nickname of "Dirt" and who, like Henrich, usually does whatever is necessary.

In six major league seasons, the last four with the Yankees, Tidrow has started 112 games and relieved in 139 others. Last year, he saved the Yankees' pitching staff with seven consecutive superb starts — five wins, two no-decisions — after 68 straight relief appearances. And he did it with an aching elbow that required postseason surgery. Goodbye, bullpen.

So Tidrow went out and mowed down the Orioles, allowing three hits in six innings in a 5-0 New York victory, with Cliff Johnson driving in three runs and boosting his spring total to 20. In 18 innings this spring the 30-year-old Tidrow has yielded two runs and eight hits for an earned run average of 1.00.

Elsewhere:

—Nolan Ryan gave the California Angels six good innings, allowing one run and four hits and striking out nine in a 10-1 romp over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

—Jack Billingham, who was dealt from Cincinnati to Detroit early in the spring, pitched eight strong innings in the Tigers' 5-2 triumph over the Chicago White Sox.

—Bill Bonham scattered three hits in seven scoreless innings and Johnny Bench homered as the Reds defeated the New York Mets 3-1.

—The Toronto Blue Jays edged the Montreal Expos 15-14 with three runs in the bottom of the 10th, capped by Roy Howell's RBI single.

—Atlanta's Dick Ruthven allowed one run and three hits in six innings as the Braves defeated the Boston Red Sox 5-3.

—Garry Templeton's two-run triple highlighted a four-run sixth inning that lifted St. Louis over Kansas City, 4-1.

—Bruce Bochte, who played with Cleveland last season but signed with Seattle as a free agent, hit a tie-breaking two-run single in the fifth that started the Mariners to an 8-1 victory over the Indians.

—Bobby Murcer drilled a home run, triple and two singles, driving in three runs and leading the Chicago Cubs over Milwaukee 13-6.

—Dave Bergman, an ex-Yankee like Murcer, drove in five runs to help the Houston Astros beat the Texas Rangers 11-9.

—Dave Parker's fifth hit, an RBI single, capped a three-run uprising in the 13th inning that carried Pittsburgh past Philadelphia, 4-1.

—The San Francisco Giants beat the Oakland A's 9-3 as Jack Clark drove in three runs with a single, triple and homer.

—Veterans Gaylord Perry, Mickey Lolich and Rollie Fingers combined to pitch San Diego to a 6-2 decision over Minnesota.

IU-Evansville ExpectsApproval

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — The University of Evansville, wiped out last season by tragedy, is confident the NCAA will approve its petition for immediate basketball eligibility for transfer students.

And that, says Athletic Director Jim Byers, could provide "maturity in a hurry" for the rebuilding Aces' program in the wake of the Dec. 13 plane crash in which all 14 team members were killed.

Evansville's petition, to be presented at the NCAA's April 23 meeting, is based on an NCAA rule that was adopted after several Wichita State football players died in a plane crash in 1970.

Rose Thinclads Hope To Challenge Bertie

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Rose High School's boys' track team is hopeful of offering a challenge to the Bertie Senior Falcons this spring when the Division I meet rolls around.

But whether it will be a big enough challenge remains to be seen, according to Coach Billy Byrd.

"We've progressed fairly well," Byrd said. "We've got a good attitude and with hard work, our times should come down as the season progresses. I think we can have a pretty good year."

While listing Bertie as the team to beat, Byrd does not feel that the Falcons are as far ahead of everyone as they have been in past years. "Northeastern is also going to be strong, but I think we should be in the top three. I haven't seen everyone yet, so it's hard to tell, but I think we have a good shot at finishing high."

Byrd feels the strength of the Rampant team is in the distance and middle distance running events. "We have pretty good strength and depth in the 440 through the mile. And our sprints are now that bad.

"But we are extremely weak in some of the field events, especially the jumping. We don't have much depth, and in the high jump, we really don't have a good threat as yet."

While there is continued improvement in all areas, Byrd points out, it may not be enough by the time the Division I meet rolls around. "I think we have people who can place in nearly every event, but whether we can get enough people in will be another question."

Byrd expects some of the sophomore and junior runners to post excellent times in the future. "Mike Joyner is a sleeper and could break loose like his brother and get his times down in the 100 and 220."

There are about 40 athletes out for the team, and Byrd admits that he'd like to have a few more. "We're pretty well set in the running events, but we could use some help in the field events. There are probably people in school who could do it, but they haven't come out."

Byrd listed his top personnel in each event.

Billy Roberson and Kenny Hall lead the team in the 120-yard high hurdles, while the two are joined by Mark Vestal in the 180-yard low hurdles.

Joyner and Derwin Clemons are the top runners in the 100-yard dash, while Joyner and Todd Tyson top the 220-yard dash list.

Quinton Eaton and Jerry Daniels lead the Rampants in the 440. Alan Parks and Mike Norfleet head the list in the 880, and Bill DaVanzo and Steve Blackwell are the leaders in the mile.

Blair Smith and Tommy Chenier are the leaders in the two-mile run.

The 880-yard relay team is made up of Joyner, Clemons, Tyson and Calvin Whichard, while the mile relay team is composed of Eaton, Yousef Barakat, Daniels and Don McGlohon.

Ted King leads the team in the pole vault and is joined by Hall in the high jump. Joyner tops the Rampants in the long jump, with Roberson and Cliff Kilpatrick in the triple jump.

Curtis Little, Ron Butler and Dusty Darden are the Rampant shot putters, while Butler and Raymond Wooten handle the discus.

Sandra Post Wins

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — Sandra Post could not believe she'd actually won the richest women's golf tournament, and that did not exactly place her in a minority.

Talk around the Mission Hills Country Club course for the four days of the $305,000 Dinah Shore Winners Circle usually drifted to how long it would take Post to blow the lead she'd taken with an opening 65.

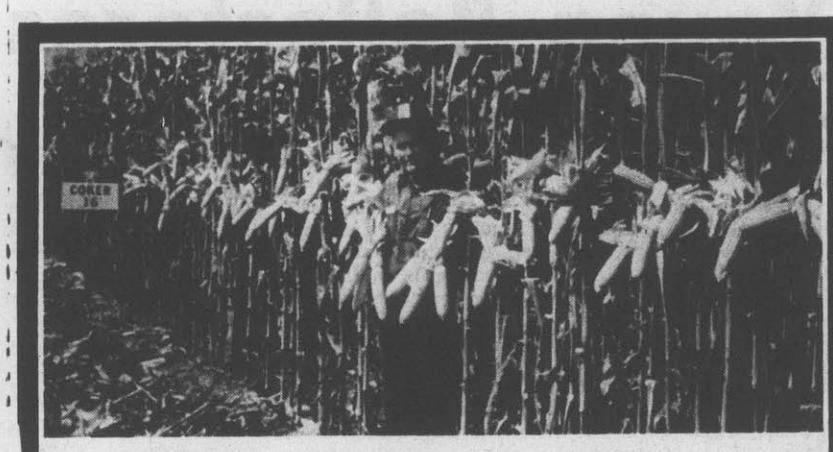

The 29-year-old Canadian, a consistent top 10 finisher but a winner just twice in her decade on the Ladies Professional Golf Association circuit, did finally lose her advantage, as Australian Penny Pulz evened the match with a birdie on the final hole of regulation play.

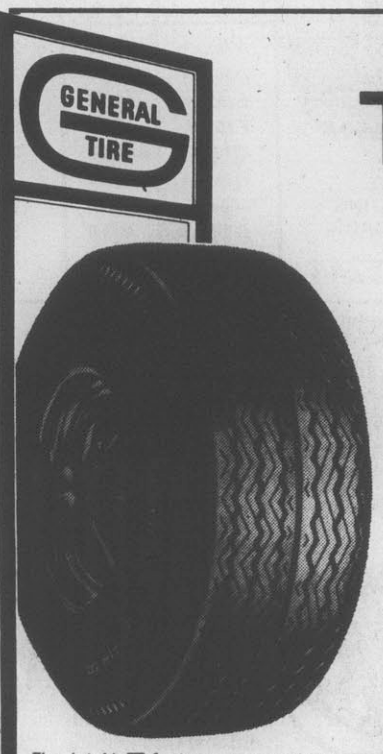

But on the second sudden-death playoff hole, Post tapped in a par putt after Pulz' long putt for a par rimmed the cup and ran past.

The Big Question For HEW: Why North Carolina

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Mild weather is forecast today for the eastern third of the nation. The rest of the country is expected to be cool. Rain is due for the Pacific Northwest and from the Great Lakes to Tennessee. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press

The summerlike weekend weather in North Carolina will give way today to partly cloudy skies and near-normal springtime temperatures. But because of low humidities and strong winds, the danger of fire remains high.

Afternoon highs will range from around 70 across the northern sections of the state to the low and mid 70s in the southern sections.

Before cooler air moved into the state Sunday afternoon, temperatures climbed into the 80s across much of North Carolina. A high of 91 at Wilmington set a record for the date. But when a cool front moved through the area late in the day, the temperature dropped 30 degrees in four hours.

Clouds increased in the northern and eastern parts of the state Sunday night and early today. Overnight lows were in the upper 40s to middle 50s.

Skies will be partly cloudy through Tuesday with highs near normal. An upper-level disturbance in the Mississippi Valley this morning will move east and bring a chance of showers to North Carolina on Tuesday.

Warmer Temperatures Also See More Fires

This weekend's warm weather was beautiful for those with sunbathing or other outdoor activities in mind, but not so good for the Forestry Service.

Circumstances connected with hotter temperatures resulted in five local fires in Pitt County Friday and Saturday. Four fires between Grimesland and Greenville occured Friday, involving approximately 14 acres of property, said Assistant Ranger Tom Harris.

Two fires, one involving three acres, also kept rangers busy Saturday.

Harris said that the two major problems now are in people burning trash and farmers burning off fields.

"The only advice that I can give them is that, if they are going to burn, they should burn late in the afternoon after the wind dies down," he added.

Residents burning trash in their yards should also stand watch over the fire, and always have a supply of water handy.

Harris said that there were no fires reported on Sunday, and that the ones which occurred earlier in the weekend were all controlled through the Forestry Service.

Temperatures dipped back down this morning with an 8 a.m. reading of 49 degrees. The high and low temperatures for the 24-hour span leading up to midnight last night were 85 and 51 degrees, respectively.

There was no precipitation recorded over the weekend, according to Greenville Utilities Commission. The Tar River level this morning was 11.6 feet on the National Weather Gauge and dropping.

New Voters Registered

Seven special registrars were present at Rose High School on Friday for a mass voter registration drive sponsored by the Greenville-Pitt County League of Women Voters.

The League designated March as the focal point of its voter registration efforts with an emphasis on the younger voter, including 17-year olds, who are now eligible to vote in the primaries if they will be 18 on or before the date of the general election.

Registration was conducted in the English classes with the help of Rose High Faculty, student groups, and the Pitt County Board of Election. Approximately 100 students were registered.

Kay Adler, voter service chairman, stated that the League was "pleased with Friday's results and we hope to carry our registration efforts to the other high schools in the county before the general elections in November."

Electrocuted As Power Line Hit

SALISBURY, N.C. (AP) — Four men were electrocuted here at 4 p.m. Sunday as they moved a mobile home porch away from the home, according to the Rowan County Sheriff's Department.

The four have been identified as James Gobble, 18, Danny Lee Messick, 23, Adolphus Holshouser Jr., 55, and Earl Gaskey, 30, all from Salisbury.

A spokesman for the sheriff's department said an antenna connected to either a television set or a citizen's band radio which was resting on the porch hit a power line during the moving and the four were killed instantly.

In Court, Had Victim In Car

CHICAGO (AP) — Police say a suspect in the kidnapping and killing of a doctor's wife kept his victim locked in the trunk of his car when he drove to appear in court on charges in an unrelated rape case.

During a recess in the court proceedings, police say, Hernando Williams, 23, of Chicago opened the trunk and spoke with the victim before closing it and returning to court, where his case was continued.

The victim was Linda Goldstone, 29, who had been reported missing Thursday when she failed to show up to teach a child birth course at a hospital, authorities said.

Police said she was shot to death Saturday morning on the far South Side moments after she escaped from her kidnapper and frantically knocked on doors and called for help. One resident called police but refused to let the woman enter as her abductor returned, police said.

Mrs. Goldstone's body was found in a nearby garage. Police said she had been shot once in the head and once in the chest.

Police arrested Williams later Saturday. He was charged with murder and aggravated kidnapping, police said. Conviction carries a possible death penalty.

Police said Williams gave them a 33-page statement but refused to sign it. In it, they said, Williams related that he chose Mrs. Goldstone at random and took her to a motel for several hours Thursday night, that she spent most of the day Friday locked in his trunk and that she was shot moments after being freed.

The statement said Mrs. Goldstone was allowed to call her husband twice Friday morning but was warned not to give away her location. Her husband, an obstetrician at Northwestern University Hospital, was told that she would be home shortly.

According to police, Williams forced Mrs. Goldstone into the trunk of his car and drove around Friday, eventually arriving in suburban Maywood for his court appearance.

A month ago, Williams was released from jail after his bond was reduced from $50,000 to $25,000 in a case in which he was charged with the kidnapping, rape and robbery of a woman in suburban Evergreen Park last July, police added.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — With the latest turn in the University of North Carolina's dispute with the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, the question that keeps recurring is, "Why North Carolina?"

The federal agency took steps to cut off millions of dollars in federal aid to UNC after first approving desegregaton plans in five other states. Yet some of those states — Oklahoma, Arkansas, Georgia, Virginia and Florida — seemingly have done less toward integrating higher education than North Carolina has already accomplished.

Just a couple of months ago, Virginia was refusing to even file a desegregation plan at all, in effect telling HEW where it could shove all those guidelines, goals and quotas.

But now all five, including Virginia, have come to terms with HEW, leaving North Carolina alone in its dissent.

Reasons for the dilemma aren't simple. UNC officials, when asked about it, point to the complexity of the university's structure.

None of the other states under review, they contend, showed the commitment to black education that North Carolina did. Georgia has three traditionally black campuses; the rest have just one or two. North Carolina has five.

HEW Secretary Joseph Califano, when asked "Why North Carolina?" at a news conference last month, noted a philosophic difference but said the issue is solely integration. "There are some issues of educational import here," he said, "that the university system has some strong feelings about... (But) what we have to look at is the reality of the fact that there is a separate and unequal school system of higher education in North Carolina."

The real reason, however, may be this: UNC President William Friday and his top assistants show a basic resolve not to make the same agreements the other five have made.

"The other states have made all sorts of promises that they know and I know and you know they can't meet," one top UNC official, asking not to be named, said last week. "We're not going to do that."

What those promises involve are the two basic stumbling blocks that remain between North Carolina and HEW, and that may drive them into federal court.

First is the matter of student enrollment. HEW has set a five-year goal of a 150 percent increase in black enrollment on white campuses of UNC. Richard Robinson, legal assistant to Friday, says as far as he can tell from the other five state plans, HEW has sought and received the same terms elsewhere.

North Carolina first agreed to the goal after receiving assurances that sanctions would not be imposed if it showed a good faith effort but turned up short. But now HEW is insisting — and UNC is balking at the demand — that each white campus be examined separately, so success at one place wouldn't make up for failure at another.

Second is the HEW requirement that the university, in an effort to promote integration, study elimination or merger of programs duplicated on both white and black campuses. Included would be all graduate programs and all but the most basic undergraduate offerings.

Again, the same thing was agreed to in the other states. In North Carolina, some officials suggest, it might lead HEW to later insist on a merger of North Carolina A&T and UNC-Greensboro, both located in that city.

But the same is true elsewhere. In Georgia, one UNC official noted recently, Savannah State and Armstrong State, also in Savannah, might be studied for merger too.

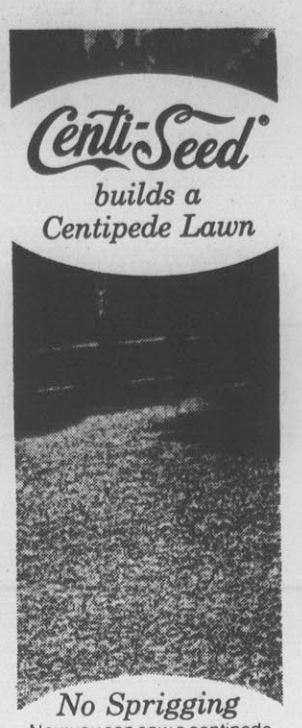

The UNC argument against such a promise is that it would give up control of the university's future to Washington, without assurances that anything would be accomplished by it.

"The question is, if you close down one, does that achieve the movement of students you want to achieve," UNC Vice President Raymond Dawson noted. "And I don't think there's any evidence that it does."

In fact, UNC argues that the entire case boils down to a disagreement not over integration but over the amount of intrusion into higher education that Title VI of the 1964 Civil Rights Act gives the federal government.

There is little legal precedent now to decide that issue, though there have been many cases involving elementary education. The University of North Carolina, having refused to concede to HEW on the points that five other states have, perhaps will establish some.

Herd Of Heifers Air-Shipped To Iran

By WILLIAM DICKINSON IV

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Seventy-two cows clatttered into a makeshift corral, sounding like a stampede in the Old West. But old-time cowboys never would have dreamed the purpose of this roundup at Kansas City International Airport.

A sleek Boeing 707 jet stood on a snow-covered runway, a steel ramp leading into its cargo hold. In half a day the jet would be in Iran, where the government has ordered the pregnant heifers as part of a health program to provide fresh milk for its citizens.

Trans World Airlines has handled more than a dozen such shipments since the Iranians began purchasing Missouri dairy cattle last year. Each shipment is handled early on Sunday mornings because traffic at the airport is light and the cargo plane is available.

Kansas City was picked as a loading site because of its location, the availability of cattle and availability of workers' familiar with livestock.

"To ship this thing out of (New York's) Kennedy (airport) would be a 'Chinese fire drill,'" said Jerry Hyatt of Hyatt International Inc., a New York brokerage firm. "It is a hell of a lot different than loading boxes sitting in a warehouse."

The temperature dipped to six degrees above zero at loading time, a drastic difference from the kind of weather the cattle would face when herded off the plane 7,400 miles away in Tehran.

"We do have some problems moving cattle from one extreme temperature to another," said Hyatt, the air freight broker who handles the sales.

A special fan was installed in the jetliner to prevent a buildup of temperature and humidity while the plane was on the ground. Without the fan, even in winter time, temperature in the cargo hold can rise to 120 degrees. During the flight, the temperature is controlled in the 70s.

The heat and humidity precautions are taken because cattle are susceptible to pneumonia and can become sick and in some cases die during the 13-hour flight from Kansas City to Iran.

The shipment got off behind schedule because airline personnel had to search for a tail support to insure balanced loading. Then the cows, each weighing between 1,000 pounds and 1,200 pounds, were systematically loaded onto the plane.

During an earlier livestock shipment at another airport the cattle ran to the rear of the plane, causing the overweight tail section to tilt toward the ground. Workers herded the cattle forward, shifting the craft back on its nose gear, but the flight had to be delayed while airline maintenance personnel checked for damage.

As many as 80 cows have been shipped on the plane and this load totaled 83,267 pounds.

Transporting two-year-old Holstein heifers approximately six-months pregnant — the gestation period is nine months — presents other unique problems. During a loading in Chicago by another airline "a cow started calving on the ramp," Hyatt said. The calf was delivered on the spot and mother and daughter were sent on to their destination as scheduled.

"We try not to cut it that close," he said, "but it does happen."

Department of Agriculture inspectors supervised the loading of small groups of eight to 10 cows each. They were herded out of two tractor trailer trucks, driven up the covered loading chute and into the cargo hold.

The cows, thick streams of white vapor pouring from their nostrils, were frightened and puzzled as they are herded aboard the craft which took them to New York and Paris before arriving in Tehran.

Once inside the planes, workers herded them into eight makeshift pens to keep them from wandering about during flight. The removable plastic floor was covered with a thick blanket of wood chips. The workers alternated filling the pens, first forward, then aft, trying to keep the weight balanced.

Occasionally, a frightened heifer would break loose before the pens were locked, but the airport cowpokes were ready and all strays were quickly hustled back to the pens.

What is it like flying a load of cattle capable of producing two tons of manure on the trip during the trans-atlantic flight?

Not really that bad, said Capt. Dick Nicholas, making his second "milk run."

There's "a very faint odor of a barnyard, which I guess is not all that unpleasant," he said.

Few Bargins For Consumers At Food Counters In March

By The Associated Press

Consumers looking for bargains at the supermarket last month found them few and far between. An Associated Press marketbasket survey shows price increases for a wide variety of items ranging from meat to laundry detergent.

The AP drew up a random list of 15 commonly purchased food and nonfood items, checked the price at one supermarket in each of 13 cities on March 1, 1973 and has rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month. One item, chocolate chip cookies, was dropped from the list at the end of November 1977 because the manufacturer discontinued the package size used in the survey.

Among the findings of the latest survey:

—The marketbasket bill increased last month at the checklist store in 11 cities and decreased in two. On an overall basis, the average marketbasket bill at the checklist stores was 1.4 percent higher at the start of April than it was a month earlier. During January, the average bill went up 1.2 percent and during February it rose 1.9 percent in February.

—Meats led the list of items rising in price. The boosts reflect higher prices paid to cattle and hog producers. The price of a pound of chopped chuck went up at the checklist store in eight cities, rising to an average of $1.30 a pound, compared to $1.03 a pound at the start of the year. Hot dogs went up in price last month at the checklist store in 11 cities and pork chops increased in six cities.

—Nonfood items, which generally fluctuate less in price than foods, showed more movement than usual last month. Laundry detergent increased at the checklist store in seven cities and paper towels went up in four cities.

—On the bright side, coffee continued to drop, decreasing at the checklist store in eight cities. The average price at the start of April was $3.04 a pound, down from $3.40 a month earlier.

A look at the overall number of items in the AP survey showed that 33 percent increased; 17.6 percent decreased; 46.7 percent were unchanged and 2.7 percent were unavailable at the checklist store on one of the survey dates.

No attempt was made to weight the AP survey results according to population density or in terms of what percent of a family's actual grocery outlay each item represents.

The AP did not try to compare actual prices from city to city; the only comparisons made were in terms of percentages of increase or decrease.

The items on the AP checklist were: chopped chuck, center cut pork chops, frozen orange juice concentrate, coffee, paper towels, butter, Grade-A medium white eggs, creamy peanut butter, laundry detergent, fabric softener, tomato sauce, milk, frankfurters and granulated sugar. The cities checked were: Albuquerque, N.M., Atlanta, Ga., Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Los Angeles, Miami, New York, Philadelphia, Providence, Salt Lake City and Seattle.

Are you planting
Soybeans too thick?

If you're still planting a bushel of seed per acre, you may be cutting soybean yields, the experts say.

Essentially, you're wasting seed if you plant for more than eight soybean plants per foot. Once you exceed eight plants per foot, you begin to lose proportionally a greater and greater percentage of the plants. Nearly 25% of the seedings fail to mature when initial populations reach 12 plants per foot. Count the plants in the seeding stage to learn how many plants die before maturity at different plant populations.

In my opinion, the happy median for soybean seeding rates on most farms is planting 10 to 12 seed per foot or row with the goal of 8 to 10 initial plants per foot. That rate, results in rougly 110,000 to 125,000 plants per acre.

High seeding rates result in smaller stems and usually in mere lodging under good growing conditions.

Lodging is a problem which research has shown can reduce soybean yields by 20%. Some experts believe that lodging is not much of a problem if the yield potential is only 25 to 30 bushels per acre but a considerable problem is the producer is trying to make 50 to 60 bushels per acre.

How many seed are necessary for top soybean yields? Planted 7, 10, 13, and 17 seed per foot of row in 38-inch rows, the lowest planting rate gave the highest yield from all varieties used of Essex and Forrest. But yield differences were small regardless of planting rates.

Farmers should base the seeding rate on conditions on their own farms. A planting rate of 10 live seed per foot is sufficient for top yield in most situations. However if your seed germination is low, 80% or less, and you are farming soil with a crusting problem and where emergence is poor, you may want to increase you seeding rate.

Fed Up With Divorce Rate

OTTAWA (UPI) — A Roman Catholic bishop thinks he has the answer to the climbing divorce rate — he refuses to marry anyone under the age of 18.

Bishop Adolph Proulx of the Ottawa region told a news conference this week he was fed up with broken marriages in his diocese which includes Gatineau, Quebec, a nearby town with the highest divorce rate and the lowest average marrying age in Canada.

Bishop Proulx told reporters the soaring divorce rate — 460 per 100,000 — among his 160,000 parishioners spurred his decision to include age as an eligibility factor in church marriages.

He said the church also will recommended a six-month preparation period for couples planning to marry. The waiting period becomes mandatory if one of the two is under age 20.

Feel Losses Due Drought

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A drought in northeastern Mexico is killing cattle, damaging key harvests and could worsen the nation's already heavy foreign debt, estimated at $28 billion, a private bank reports.

Banco Nacional de Mexico, in its February study of the economy, said Mexico will have to import more agricultural goods than usual this year, including at least $114 million worth of corn, a traditional Mexican staple. Corn is the most widely grown crop in the country.

"We feel corn imports could reach 1.2 to 1.4 million tons in 1978," the bank said. The average price per ton is expected to be $95.

The drought has struck just south of the Mexican-American border, an important grain-producing region. December and January were dry and soy and sorghum harvests were particularly hard hit, the bank said.

The report estimates Mexico would lose 25 percent, or 140,000 tons, of the annual soy harvest and 10 percent, or 400,000 tons, of sorghum.

Ranchers said this week at least 20,000 cattle have died since the drought which began late last year and dried up water holes and wrecked grazing grounds. Monterrey slaughterhouse buyer Ricardo Morales said fewer than 40 percent of the ranchers in the state of Nueva Leon have the means to buy feed for their starving cattle.

Sinatra Helps In Fund-Raiser

NEW YORK (AP) — It was hard to tell whose blue eyes were shining brighter — Frank Sinatra's or Gov. Hugh Carey's.

Sinatra, backed by a 39-piece orchestra, appeared before 800 politicians, businessmen, labor leaders and others at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. The dinner-dance sponsored by Friends of Gov. Carey raised about $800,000 to wipe out Carey's 1974 gubernatorial campaign debt.

No speeches were read and there was no overt campaigning. "This is just a typical Sinatra social," the governor said.

SPRING REUNION

RED SPRINGS, N.C. — The Spring Reunion of Flora MacDonald College and Vardell Hall Alumnae will be held at the Red Springs campus on April 8. The reunion will open with a 10:00 a.m. coffee hour in the parlors and conclude with a picnic luncheon in the dining hall at noon.

Norman Cousins To Try Teaching

NEW YORK (AP) — After serving as editor of Saturday Review magazine for 36 of the last 38 years, Norman Cousins has decided to step down from that post to try teaching.

The magazine's president, Carll Tucker, 26, will succeed him, Cousins said.

Cousins said he will conduct seminars on philosophy and literature at the medical school of the University of California at Los Angeles starting in June.

He will also serve on a task force on medical ethics at the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia University in New York, and will be advisory editor of the college's quarterly.

Cousins became editor of The Saturday Review in 1940.

HUMANITIES FORUM

Gambling Billions Of Dollars

By RITA SHADE

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — By summer's end, seven to 10 derrick ships and semi-submersible rigs will dot the waters beyond the view of the naked eye off the coast of Atlantic City.

By then the rush to find black gold under the ocean in the mid-Atlantic will be in full swing. But what it means today is not what it was said to mean a few years ago.

In the early 1970s, when debate was hot and energy scarce, government and petroleum officials made inflated predictions on how much is hidden under the Atlantic's shelf — 10s of billions of barrels of crude oil and 10s of trillions of cubic feet of natural gas.

Now, the conservative estimate is between 2 to 4 billion barrels of crude and 5 to 15 trillion cubic feet of natural gas.

The odds of a find? Five to one — against!

The cost? Billions.

The best prospect? Based on the estimates now projected: Enough natural gas and oil to carry the United States for four months in the year 1985.

In the beginning, there was talk of the jobs and industry it would bring to the East Coast — 10 thousand jobs, billions of dollars in business. Maybe, some day, but state officials now talk of 20 menial jobs in a year, maybe 800 later. They talk of some contracts for helicopter service and for standby of firms that combat oil spills, maybe eventually some port facilities.

But it all could go bust.

While geological formations in the Mid-Atlantic indicate fuel reserves, they also resemble the Destin Dome, an area west of Florida in the Gulf of Mexico. Exxon spent $625 million dollars drilling for oil in the Dome and came away without a drop.

Despite the risk and the uncertainty, the need for new reserves and the high price of foreign fuel prompted 38 oil companies to pay $1.1 billion to the U.S. Department of Interior just to lease plots in the Baltimore Canyon. The Canyon is a 200-mile valley in the ocean floor along the Continental Shelf from the tip of Long Island to Cape Charles, Va.

After nearly four years of court battles and opposition from environmentalists and state governments, drilling was scheduled after the late March, arrival 95 miles off Atlantic City, of the first ship with a derrick in its center.

It will be 60 to 90 days before Exxon's geologists can determine whether hydrocarbons — the organic compound found in petroleum and natural gas — are in the offshore layers of its 5,700 acre plot. Exxon has individually leased 28 plots and is in partnership in some of the other 126.

The other rigs to arrive this summer will be operated by Gulf, Mobile, Texaco, Tenneco, Shell, Houston Oil and Minerals, Conoco, Union of California, and Murphy.

The test wells the rigs drill will be in key plots of a 529,500 acre section leased by the federal government. Looking like a bloated letter "y" with a slim rectangle to the bottom left, it is located squarely off the coast of southern New Jersey.

If there is a find, will this mean cheaper gasoline?

"Probably not," said Joel Jacobson, head of the New Jersey Energy Department. "These are federal lands. They belong to the federal government. They belong to the entire nation."

"We'd love to find oil off Bayonne so the state would have a claim to it, but obviously that's not going to happen," said Donald Linky, environmental lawyer for Gov. Brendan T. Byrne.

"If there is oil out there, it will help the country cut down on imports and shave off the balance of payments deficit by billions of dollars, which bankers think a lot about, not you or me," said Glenn Paulson, assistant commissioner in the Department of Environmental Protection.

"And in so far as it replaces foreign oil, money will be churned around inside the United States and not in a foreign country," Paulson added.

If New Jersey's five refineries and Pennsylvania's five refineries would buy the oil produced offshore, then prices might go down locally on by-products.

More predictably, consumers may not even realize when Mid-Atlantic oil is pumped ashore, Paulson said.

"If it's smeared out over 20 years, you may not notice when it goes on and when it's turned off," he said, referring to the pipeline.

Will natural gas be more plentiful along the East Coast, which is now on the short-end of the pipeline that starts in Texas?

"Well, if there's anything there that hasn't leaked out and bubbled into the water over the millenniums... the East Coast would probably get some share," Paulson said. "But the federal government would probably just use it to replace the allocation of natural gas we now get from offshore Louisiana. Savings would come only if it shaved a little bit off transportation costs."

Actually, then, drilling offshore is to preserve the status quo. Inflation and constant demands for energy will keep prices high. Only the oil companies would get a windfall profit — and that's only if natural gas prices are deregulated by the federal government.

Despite overtures in Congress to deregulate, that doesn't mean you should rush out and buy blue chip stock.

"Right now, there is no activity in oil stock as a result of drilling or the lack of drilling. Drilling does not mean anything in terms of production. The payoff is too far down the line," said Linder, the stock analyst.

"International regulations and international politics — 'What is happening to the dollar? What is happening to the mark?' — play a heavier role. In terms of overall impact, I don't see it as a real panacea for a company's stock. Even the Destin Dome didn't cause the stock to fluctuate."

The economic boom to the East Coast is more discernable.

If oil is found in large enough quantities to make it worthwhile to recover, onshore facilities will be needed.

During the test well period, the oil companies will continue to use an old navy post in Davisville, R.I. as central headquarters. Supplies will be shipped out of there, rigs repaired there, geological data screened there.

But a substantial find will necessitate a closer geographical base. New Jersey is pushing for Perth Amboy, an industrial harbor port. Even though Perth Amboy is about 180 miles away from the "y" plots, it has good dock space and easy access to rails and highways.

A bid is being made by a company with acreage in Virginia to build a stockyard to construct drilling rigs.

The first visible change on the East Coast is a helicopter base that opened in Atlantic City mid-March. Oil rig crews will fly in and out of Bader Field.

Two years ago, Atlantic City lobbied for the major on-shore facility, saying it needed the jobs to revive its sagging economy. But now the city is preoccupied with casino gambling and has not even included a potential dock site in its new master plan. Potential acreage is also overpriced due to casino investments.

A proposal to fill in a portion of wetlands, across the bay from Atlantic City, also is moot.

Again, when arguments were being made for offshore drilling, proponents fostered visions of 10s of thousands of new jobs and millions of in-coming dollars, primarily to New Jersey.

Realistically, though, the oil companies will bring their experienced crews with them. It's an internal operation until fuel is found. The job bonus won't come until Year Four, if there's a major find.

"Ten, maybe 20 local people will be hired for menial jobs, maintenance jobs right away. In the second year, maybe 800 people will be hired who are directly related to the drilling," said a specialist in the state Department of Labor and Industry.

For example, oil spill clean-up firms along the coast will be hired to be on stand-by to help Clean Atlantic Associates in Davisville, R.I.

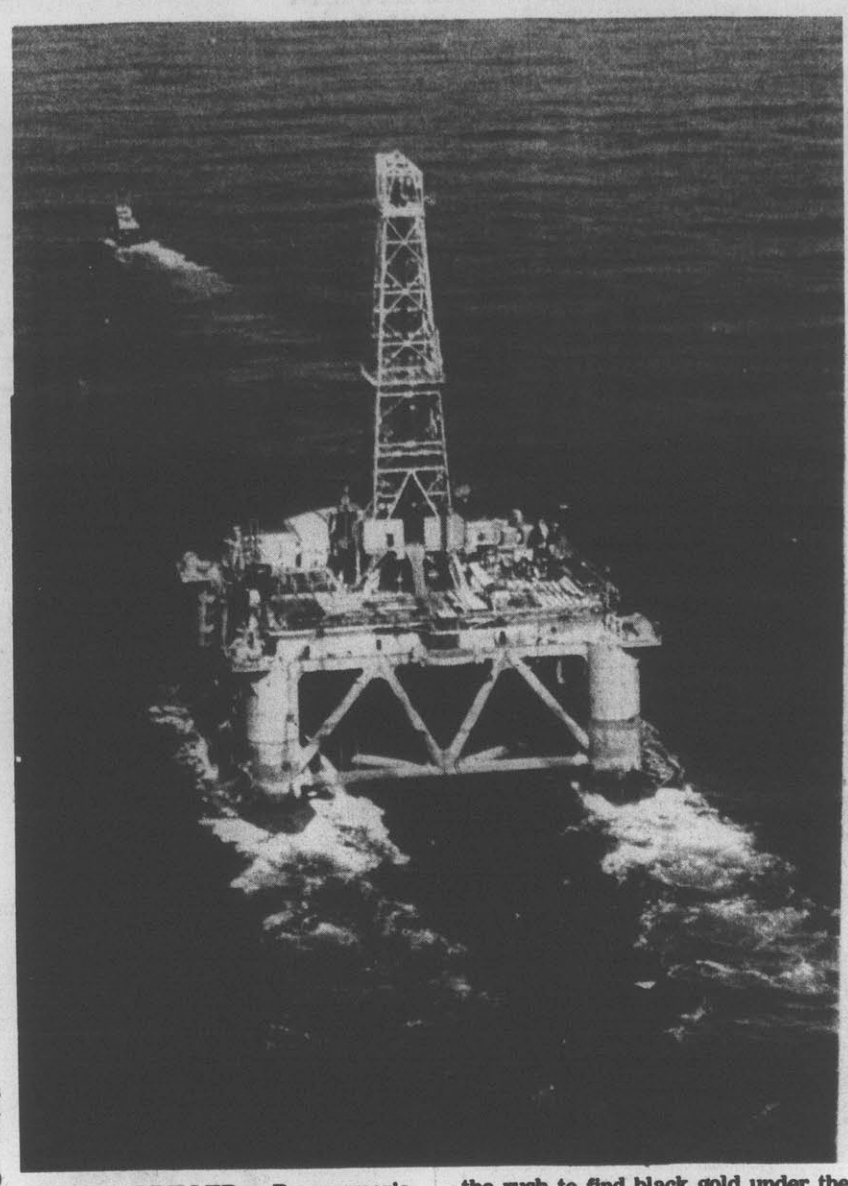

"In the 16th year zero there will be 23,000 new jobs in New Jersey, with aggregate wages of $1.1 billion a year," Jacobson said.

And there will be the rippling effect on local economies.

One of the major unanswered questions facing the oil companies if they strike it rich is how to bring the fuel ashore.

If the find is small, tankers will be used.

If it is big, an underwater-aboveland pipeline is safest. It also costs $1 million a mile to build.

COASTAL DRILLER — By summer's end, seven to 10 derrick ships and semi-submersible rigs will be in full swing off the coast of Atlantic City in the rush to find black gold under the ocean. Among them will be the New Era, leased by Continental Oil Co. (UPI Photo)

Speaking of Your Health...
Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I can't discuss this problem with my doctor. We live in a small community and I'm afraid that my husband would be furious with me if I talked about it. During the past two years, he has begun to behave in a strange way. I really believe he is undergoing a change of life. I've heard this is possible for men, too. He normally is a very quiet, gentle man. Now, at the age of 54, he is either depressed or he flares up in anger at me and the children. If it is a change of life, can anything be done for it? — Mrs. R.E.E., Minn.

Dear Mrs. E.:

Not all doctors agree that there is a male climacteric, or change of life, comparable to that which occurs in women. Yet, there is considerable scientific study constantly ongoing in various hospitals in an effort to better understand some of the physical and emotional changes that sometimes occur in men about the age of 50.

Hormone imbalance and changes were thought to be the answer to unusual irritability, insomnia, urinary disturbances and diminution of sexual activity at this age. Those who were enthusiastic about this concept tried using "testosterone," a male sex hormone, thinking that this might re-establish the hormone balance, and thus eliminate or reduce some of the new patterns of behavior.

This form of treatment was not universally accepted by all doctors everywhere.

There is a wide spectrum of other symptoms that are present in many of the cases of so-called "male menopause": severe anxiety, depression associated with vague physical signs of fatigue, chronic constipation, loss of appetite and, sometimes, loss of weight.

The change in attitude and personality of your husband may well be attributed to some physical or psychological alteration. There should be no sense of shame or embarrassment in a frank and forthright discussion of this problem with your doctor. After a complete physical examination to rule out any possible physical disorder, the psychological aspects of his problem can then be pursued. If you pretend that no problem really exists, and if you fail to get the advice of your doctor, you may find that more psychological symptoms will become apparent, and that the tranquility of your home will be even more upset.

Whether or not a period of hormone therapy is tried will depend, of course, on your doctor's reaction to the need. There now are a great many excellent psycho-energizing drugs which may help to take your husband out of his sense of depression. Later, it may be necessary for him to get some psychological guidance in order to help him during this rough transitional period.
