

Recommend Removal Of Parking Meters

The Parking Authority voted unanimously Wednesday to recommend the removal of over 400 parking meters in the downtown section of town.

Action on the meter issue took place during a call meeting of the Authority and culminated several months of discussion and study.

The Downtown Greenville Association Inc. had recommended removal of certain meters in the downtown district and had been active in the study phase of the Authority's consideration of the matter.

In adopting its recommendation, the Parking Authority is requesting concurrence by the City Council.

Gene Skinner, Authority chairman, pointed out yesterday during the call session that the Authority recommended removal of all meters, with the exception of: red meters in the district which would offer 30 minute parking for five cents; meters in the city's two leased lots at Evans Mall and Fourth Street and at Georgetown off

Cotanche Street; and meters on the Hooker lot at Second and Cotanche which would offer all-day parking for 25 cents.

In addition, Skinner reported, the Authority recommended that the overtime parking fine be raised from $1 to $2.

Action on the removal of the meters would be effective on July 1, it was explained, and would be on a one-year trial basis with a review scheduled at the end of the trial period. If the plan is found to be acceptable after the one-year trial, a recommendation would be made that the removal action be permanent.

Based on past records, according to Skinner, the fines and collections from the meters remaining in the district would place the Parking Authority in a break-even situation as far as salaries and meters are concerned. Repairs to lots would require financing from some other fund, he said.

Currently, there are 619 meters in the city.

The DGA proposed the removal of certain meters initially "in order to maintain, perpetuate and hopefully increase the tax revenues for the city, in order to be in an unhampered competitive position, and, to remove the one excuse people have for not shopping downtown."

DGA officials yesterday thanked the members of the Parking Authority for the "time, interest and thorough study" given to the association's recommendation.

The officials also offered their appreciation to "The Daily Reflector" for "coverage and editorial support" of the parking meter removal issue.

Wholesale Prices Rise, But At A Slower Rate

By MICHAEL DOAN

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) —

The outlook for grocery shoppers improved slightly as wholesale prices rose at a slower rate last month than they had earlier this year, the Labor Department said today.

Wholesale prices rose 0.6 percent in March, which could lead to an annual inflation rate of just over 7 percent if such prices increase at the March rate for the rest of the year.

There was a 1.1 percent increase in wholesale prices in February, the biggest rise in more than three years.

Wholesale food prices rose 0.8 percent in March after jumps of 1.1 percent in January and 2.9 percent in February, the Labor Department said. The price of other consumer goods rose 0.5 percent last month.

Economists watch the monthly wholesale price report closely because price increases are usually passed on to consumers. Consumer prices increased 1.4 percent during the first two months of this year.

The Labor Department said wholesale prices for pork, processed poultry, refined sugar and fresh fruit turned downward in March after going up in the previous month. And the rate of increase in prices for beef and veal, eggs and dairy products was less in March than it was in February.

Prices turned up in March after February declines for vegetable oil products, flour-based mixes and milled rice. Candy prices increased. Coffee prices went down.

Prices for long-lasting goods, such as autos, furniture and jewelry, went up 0.6 percent in March. Higher prices were recorded for cosmetics, alcoholic beverages and luggage. Prices of gasoline, home heating oil and tires went down.

The Labor Department calculates these prices by surveying manufacturers and finding out what they have charged retailers.

processors and others for goods that are ready for the consumer. It is called the producer price index for finished goods, and it now stands at 189. That means that producers are charging $189 for products that cost $100 in the base period of 1967.

Aide Recalls $10,000 Gift

By JIM ADAMS

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) —

A former aide says she dispensed $10,000 cash from Tongsun Park for former Rep. Nick Galifianakis' 1972 Senate campaign out of her dresser drawer at home.

The House ethics committee heard that story Wednesday along with conflicting testimony under oath on whether a middleman got $5,000 from Park for Rep. John Breaux, D-La.

The ethics committee scheduled more hearings for next week in its investigation of whether to recommend punishment of any congressmen in connection with alleged South Korean influence-buying.

Special Counsel Leon Jaworski would not rule out the possibility that present congressmen will be among the witnesses next week.

Park, meanwhile, was in a Washington courtroom Wednesday, testifying at the trial of Hanchu C. Kim, a Korea-born businessman accused of conspiring to set up an influence-buying scheme.

In her appearance before the ethics committee, former congressional aide Barbara Fletcher testified that she did not recall specifically telling Galifianakis, D-N.C., about the $10,000. But she said she believed he knew she picked it up and could have been the one who told her to do so.

She said Galifianakis told her "something like, 'Only you and Mr. Park directly participated in that transaction and so only you two can testify to it.'" told her he denied to FBI agents that he got $15,000 and said she believes he told her he did not tell the agents of getting the $10,000.

She testified Galifianakis

Galifianakis had issued a statement earlier saying he would not comment on Tongsun Park's testimony on giving him the $10,000 until he sees the transcript.

Miss Fletcher said someone had her fly to Washington to pick up the $10,000 at Park's home. She said she does not remember who and that it could have been Galifianakis.

She said she dispensed campaign payments from the $10,000, which she kept in a dresser drawer at home, and gave Galifianakis whatever was left over.

She said she did not report the contribution and does not know how much was left over.

Park testified under oath that he gave Louisiana rice miller Gordan Dore $5,000 for Rep. Breaux's 1972 campaign but Dore swore under oath he had no knowledge of getting the check.

"I know I'm sitting here subject to perjury," Dore said. "But I've searched my records and I have wracked my brain. And I have no recollection of cashing that check and giving the money to John Breaux and I think that I would."

The committee released photostats showing that Park made the $5,000 check out to cash and endorsed it himself and that it was cashed in a bank in Dore's hometown of Crowley.

The check stub had the notation "(Dore-Breaux)".

2 Good Days

The Bloodmobile visit to East Carolina University resulted in a good, two-day collection total this week of 557 pints of blood, according to Mrs. Ruth Taylor, executive secretary of the Pitt Red Cross.

Mrs. Taylor, who said that officials were pleased with the results of the visit, reported that Tuesday's effort brought 238 pints of blood with 19 persons deferred, while Wednesday's blood drive saw 319 pints collected and 22 deferrals.

"They were two good days," the Red Cross official observed. She offered her appreciation to the students, faculty and other campus personnel for supporting the Bloodmobile visit, which was sponsored by the Panhellenic and Inter-Fraternity Councils at ECU.

Mrs. Taylor also thanked the members of the Service League, nurses and other volunteer help and ECU for making Wright Auditorium available for the visit.

Campus blood donations for the fiscal year totaled 1,785 pints, it was pointed out. She added that, "we depend on them campus donors they come through for us."

The next ECU visit is scheduled for July but will come under the new fiscal year.

HOOPER "HANCOCK"

Is there anyone in this area who can help me find out the value of a J. Edgar Hoover signature dated 1943. I want to learn the value, but it is not for sale. J. T.

Francis Belcik of the Greenville Collectors Club is not a signature collector himself, but he graciously agreed to do some research for us.

He said, based on information in a Mar. 15, 1978 issue of "Antique Trader Weekly," he believes the value of your Hoover signature to be about $50. It listed a letter with the Hoover signature, written Mar. 9, 1937, as having this value.

He gave us the following addresses of autograph dealers, who will buy or sell autographs, and also provide estimates of values. They are: 1. North Company Manuscript Division, 448 Henry, Detroit, Mich. 48201; 2. Rendell Inc., 154-F Wellf Ave., Newton, Mass. 02159; 3. Autographs, 1200 S. Post Oak Road, Suite 200, Houston, Tex. 77056; and 4. Joseph Rubinfine, Rt. 1-T, Pleasantville, N. J. 08232.

He suggested that you look in "Antique Trader Weekly" yourself, or in "Hobbies," a magazine available at the local library. It has a section on signatures.

See Increased ABC Permits

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) —

North Carolinians are drinking more these days, and state Alcohol Control Board officials say that is good news for the state's economy. "The number of beer, wine and brown-bagging permits has increased," said Bill Hester, state ABC administrator. "We have issued 34,000 permits to date, up 2,000 from six months ago."

Hester credits the beer-permit increase to new businesses in areas where such sales are already allowed, and the popularity of beer with North Carolinians.

The increase in beer drinking in the state has been attracting breweries to North Carolina, Hester says. North Carolina now has two breweries, Miller in Eden and Schlitz in Winston-Salem. And Hester says he hopes there will be more since the two breweries employ more than 2,000 workers.

State Department of Revenue tax figures show that more than 37 million cases of beer were sold during fiscal 1977. That means that a total of $45,396,082 in beer excise taxes were paid during that same period.

But beer isn't the only beverage boosting the state economy. Hester says wine permits are also increasing because wine is a very popular drink right now.

"Increased demand for alcoholic beverage permits signals a change for the better in the economy as a whole," Hester said. "As with other products, when times improve, people start buying again."

And Hester says increased beer and wine sales mean winter is over.

"Sales definitely increase in the summer," Hester said.

Senate Cool To Concept

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Social Security tax cut that members of the House are warming up to may find a cooler reception in the Senate, where two key committee chairmen oppose the concept of financing the reduction with income taxes.

So far, Rep. Robert N. Giaimo, D-Conn., chairman of the budget committee, has written a proposal calling for a $7.5 billion reduction in Social Security payroll taxes as part of an overall $20 billion tax reduction next year.

He suggests that $5 billion of the cut come from income tax collections with the rest to be made up from other but unnamed funds.

The cut, which would save American workers in upper income brackets nearly $300 each next year, was examined by the House Democratic Caucus on Tuesday.

The caucus voted 150-57 in favor of the concept of financing the Social Security payroll tax reduction with general revenues but did not specifically endorse Giaimo's figures. The caucus vote is not binding on House Democrats.

Social Security worries are facing congressmen just four months after they voted to increase taxes for the beleaguered system by $227 billion over the next 10 years. Some in Congress now are worried about voter response in an election year.

But Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, has said he remains firmly opposed to using income tax revenues for Social Security despite the worries of other congressmen.

"If we can't raise the taxes to meet the program's cost, then our only real alternative is to find a way to reduce benefits," Long said.

The other key chairman, Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, who heads the budget committee, also has balked at the financing plan.

They were joined in opposing the measure by House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., who told reporters after the Democratic Caucus meeting that he had voted against the resolution.

UNC And HEW To Talk Funds Cutoff

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The University of North Carolina and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare will resume negotiations immediately on HEW's planned cutoff of federal funds to UNC.

UNC President William C. Friday made the announcement Wednesday afternoon after receiving word that HEW has extended UNC's deadline until May 1 for response to the proposed cutoff. Friday said the extension was a "precondition" set by UNC before it would agree to resume negotiations in the desegregation dispute. HEW Secretary Joseph Califano announced plans to cut off certain federal funds received by the university on March 22, and he gave UNC 20 days to file a response and seek a hearing before an administrative law judge.

"The discussions will now resume," Friday said. "No further statement will be made by the university until the meeting of the Board of Governors on April 14."

Friday said the negotiations would be held in Chapel Hill, but he said, "I don't know where they will take us."

Califano had said he hoped the university would continue negotiations with HEW, but in a strongly-worded statement the day the cutoff was announced, Friday said, "It is questionable whether we can or should continue discussions."

UNC ran into problems when HEW approved the desegregation plans of five other southern state but rejected North Carolina's. Califano said there were still "vestiges" of segregation in North Carolina's 16-campus university system. He accused North Carolina of having a separate and unequal school system of higher education.

The university Board of Governors has hired the Washington law firm of Jaworski and Fulbright to represent it in any legal action with HEW.

Russian Force In Gulf

WASHINGTON (AP) — A small Soviet Navy task group headed by a guided missile destroyer is cruising in the Gulf of Mexico under the eye of a U.S. destroyer.

The Pentagon said the Kashin class destroyer accompanied by a tanker and a minesweeper entered the Gulf of Mexico March 31 after a call at Havana.

Visits by the Soviet Navy to the Caribbean and the Gulf of Mexico have become somewhat routine.

The Soviet Navy has sent a task force to Cuban waters on 18 separate occasions since 1969.

Last December and January, two missile-armed Krivak class Soviet destroyers, an attack submarine and a tanker made two sorties into the Gulf of Mexico, approaching to within 60 miles of the Florida panhandle, the Navy said.

The U.S. Navy customarily shadows Soviet ships in the Caribbean and the Gulf of Mexico.

All But One Of Voters At Polls

MARBLE, Colo. (AP) — Voter apathy? That's hardly the case in Marble.

Thirty-seven of this mountain town's 38 eligible voters turned out at the polls this week for the municipal election. Twelve of them were running for office.

Marble, whose quarries supplied the marble for the Lincoln Memorial in Washington, has 47 residents.

Springtime Can Bring Twisters

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Springtime in North Carolina can be a gentle season, bringing warm sunshine and balmy days. But spring often shows its violent side in the form of tornadoes.

Weather forecasters say the state is hit by an average of 8.6 tornadoes a year.

The tornado season arrives with the coming of spring, and the number of tornadoes to hit the United States rises during April to a peak in May before dropping during summer. Nationally, there is an average of 605 tornadoes a year.

The most damaging twister to hit the Tar Heel state through Greensboro April 2, 1936, killing 12 persons and injuring more than 100. Dozens of homes and buildings were destroyed.

Forecasters can now issue watches and warnings to keep the public aware of developing conditions and in most cases, give people time to prepare for severe storms. A tornado watch indicates weather conditions favorable for development of a storm, and a tornado warning means a twister has been spotted in the area.

The National Weather Service issues these warnings: —If you are outdoors, lie face-down in a ditch.

—If you are driving, get away from the storm if there is time, or if there is not time to escape, get out and lie in a ditch.

—Mobile home residents should go to stronger buildings if possible, or go outside and lie in a ditch.

—Avoid buildings such as gymnasiums or auditoriums with large roofs supported by walls.

—Occupants of buildings with large amounts of glass should go to the basement or an interior corridor.

—At home, go to the basement, or if there is not one, to a closet, bathroom or other small enclosed area on the lowest floor of the house.

Having A 'Nose' Is Essential To Perfumer

By LILLIAN O'CONNELL
UPI Life-Style Editor
RAMSEY, N.J. (UPI) — The perfume industry is one business you can't keep your nose out of.

A basic sense of smell — having a "nose" — is essential, particularly if you have ambitions as a perfumer or fragrance evaluator, says James Rogers, Jr., group vice president and director of fragrance and flavor research for Fritzsche-Dodge & Olcott, Inc., New York, a company which traces back to 1798 in this country.

"The nose is much more important than formal education," Rogers said in an interview at his home here. In discussing perfumers, he said, "We've had some who started at compounding, with maybe a high school education."

Compounding is the production end of the industry. "They take somebody else's formula and mix it ... maybe 11,000 pounds in a big tank. They give him the formula, supply him with the raw materials that are checked by a quality control group and tell him how to mix it. He starts off as an apprentice ... works his way up ... smells everything he adds. If he has a good nose, is attentive, wants to work, somebody gives him a break.

"A perfumer is an artist. He must be creative and he has to have a good nose," Rogers said, adding that most of the companies like to train their own people because there is no place outside where they can be trained.

But once he is established, the perfumer's life is not all Chanel No. 5. Problems come in from all kinds of companies all the time, Rogers said.

"Say the finished goods house wants a scent that nobody else has had before — something that smells like, well, steel, perhaps."

According to Rogers, this actually happened a couple of years ago in a search for a new men's fragrance. "Well, think of a viking with a sword in his hand..." Rogers said. "It's very difficult. Steel."

The cosmetic house gives the perfumers what they call a profile. "So all the perfumers get together in a room, with banners and pictures on the walls to invoke the proper image, and they're supposed to sit in this atmosphere and be creative."

The perfumers start out with maybe 5,000 raw materials to work with, but whatever formula they concoct, the final choice is all based on smell, Rogers said.

"You have to convince the company, yes, that smells like steel. At least it does to me."

Rogers is co-author with Wayne Dorland of a new book, "The Fragrance and Flavor Industry" (Wayne E. Dorland Co., Box 264 Mendham, N.J. 07945), a popular non-technical history. An anecdote in the book relates how one perfumer used the power of positive smelling to launch his career.

In 1900, a young Corsican, who had adopted the name Francois Coty, offered his first fragrance to an exclusive Parisian merchant. The merchant turned him down. This so angered Coty that he deliberately broke a small bottle of the scent, Rose Jacqueminot, on the main staircase of the shop. The customers, so the story goes, were so taken with the fragrance that they besieged the shop and the owner had to recall Coty and place a substantial order.

A survey quoted in the book shows that fragrance plays a big part in purchases, in what Rogers estimates is a $5 billion business. Of 790 women queried, fragrance was the second most important consideration in their decision on what toilet soap, bath oil or hand cream to buy. The only factor they rated more important was feel or texture.

DEAR ABBY: Do you think a refrigerator is a good place to keep money stored? My husband keeps all our savings in our refrigerator, and when I think of all the interest we're missing out on, it's very upsetting to me. Don't tell me to convince him to open a savings account, because he'll only say he wants his money where he can get it in a hurry.

Any suggestions you have will be greatly appreciated. WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: A refrigerator is a poor place to store one's savings—whether it's hot money or cold cash. Aside from the interest you're losing, you risk being robbed. Tell that lunkhead you're married to to do himself a favor and put at least part of it into a savings account!

DEAR ABBY: When I got home from work last evening, my wife said to me, "Rory (our 15-year-old son) sassed me back so I am giving him the cold, silent treatment, and I want you to do the same."

Abby, I told her that I was not going to go along with that kind of stuff—that if the boy sassed her back, it was HER problem. He never sasses ME BACK.

The wife got mad and now she's giving ME the silent treatment, too. Was I wrong, or was she? ATLANTA QUERY

DEAR ATLANTA: She was wrong for demanding that you punish the boy per her prescription. And you were wrong, too, for letting her down. Although Rory wasn't guilty of sassing YOU, his rudeness to his mother calls for some kind of punishment. And since his mother appears unable to discipline the boy, it becomes YOUR responsibility.

A few well-chosen "hot" words from you could have accomplished more than the cold, silent treatment. Unless you want a father-son team versus mother, try to develop better communication with your wife.

DEAR ABBY: I have just observed a group of "unselfish" church women preparing for a church rummage sale, the proceeds of which will go to charity. Almost every good item donated by someone from this group was snapped up by another member of the group. Of course, they pay for these items, but a typical conversation was, "Say, who marked this lamp five dollars? The shade is soiled!"

Then someone would reply, "I did. I paid $65 for it new—but mark it whatever you want and take it."

Then the other woman would mark it a dollar and promptly cart it off to her car. Understand, Abby, these volunteers are not charity cases themselves. They are well-to-do society women. Do you think it is fair of them to skim the cream off the top that way? Hundreds of dollars could have been added to the proceeds if it weren't for this kind of thing. I welcome your remarks and you may sign me...

APPALLED IN OMAHA

DEAR APPALLED: The volunteers should have been told that such shenanigans are tantamount to taking money out of the cash register. Why didn't you speak up? Silence implies approval.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "YOUNG PHILOSOPHER" IN MINNEAPOLIS: Wisdom does not automatically come with old age. Nothing does—except wrinkles. It's true, wine improves with age. But only if the grapes were good in the first place.

Are your problems too heavy to handle alone? Let Abby help you. For a personal, unpublished reply, write: Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

One of the questions talk show hosts frequently ask is, "Do your children show signs of an acute sense of humor?"

I will share with you what I got for my birthday this year and you can be the judge. My daughter bought me an electric can opener (I've already worn out three), one son wired me a bouquet of spring flowers (I've always loved him best), and the other son bought me a bicycle.

The bicycle has two wheels, three gears, and is guaranteed to shorten my life by 10 years. I have never been what you would call athletically inclined. I had to repeat showers. Signs of my son, "You need this, Mom. After all, you don't jog, swim, ski, and you play tennis like you just had a spinal."

Three weeks later, he came over and said, "Why haven't you ridden your bicycle?"

"Get serious," I laughed. "You know I haven't had a chance to buy a bicycle wardrobe."

"What wardrobe? Why don't you just take off in what you're wearing?"

"Do you actually think I'd be caught on the road in public with a waistband that gaps and shows half of my underwear when I bend over the handlebars?"

A few more days passed by before he said, "Why don't you take the bike out of the bedroom and onto the street."

Mrs. Duque Entertained

The Greenville area Mothers and Babies and Mothers and Toddlers groups entertained Leigh Duque, founder of the local organization, at a party Tuesday evening held at the home of Brenda Ratliff.

Mrs. Duque, who started the groups during the summer of 1977, will be moving to Colorado in May.

Mrs. Duque was presented an engraved gold locket from the group. She was also presented a handmade doll for her daughter, Sarah.

Sixteen of the charter members attended. Decorations included spring flowers and candles.

Marriage Announced

Mr. and Mrs. James E. Cobb of Greenville announce the marriage of their daughter, Mary Mona, of Greenville and Atlanta, Ga., to Thomas Leon Thompson of St. Petersburg, Fla., and Atlanta, Ga., on March 18 in Atlanta. The couple are living in Atlanta.

Normally, issues in a campaign for a judicial post are hard to find. But Austin B. Campbell, a Democratic candidate for the North Carolina Court of Appeals said here, "I do think we have an issue," in this year's race.

Campbell, a practicing Fayetteville attorney, said during a visit Tuesday, "I think the governor's involvement in this campaign," is an issue, "and may bring into question the independence of the court."

Campbell said Hunt appointed three judges to the Court of Appeals and two of them have no opposition in the primary. He noted that two of three candidates for the Supreme Court are appeals court judges now, which means Hunt will appoint two more appeals court judges if the two are elected.

"Even if I'm elected," Campbell noted, "four of the appeals court judges) will be appointments by Hunt...in a six month period.

"The governor has given us an issue by doing this," Campbell emphasized. "I think the people value this right to elect judges in North Carolina."

An Ohio native, Campbell is a graduate of the National Law School of George Washington University in Washington, D. C., and has done work at Duke University. Campbell served in the U.S. Army from 1962 to 1967, with most of his active duty service being as an officer in the Army Special Forces, "Green Berets," in the Congo, Korea, and Vietnam. He is currently a major in the Army Reserves with a duty assignment to the general staff of the John F. Kennedy Center for Special Warfare at Ft. Bragg, where he participates in military training including parachute jumps and airborne operations.

A licensed pilot with instrument rating, Campbell served as Robert Morgan's pilot during Morgan's 1974 Senate campaign, and was an assistant Attorney General of North Carolina under Morgan.

The candidate, who ran unsuccessfully for the N.C. General Assembly, said, "I like (North Carolina) better than any other place I've been." Pointing to the fact that his father was a military man and citing his military service, Campbell noted, "I've been all over the world, and it still holds."

He said his decision to seek the Court of Appeals post was made because judges in "an appellate court have some personal opinions," and help "make laws," while, "trial judges have very little input in a trial itself."

Campbell, citing the fact that there is a backlog of cases before the Court of Appeals, (a "one-year waiting period") even though three new judges have been added, said, "that's too long, in my opinion."

North Carolina, he said, needs judges at the Court of Appeals level, "who are willing to work hard."

Charge 9 In Sex Assaults

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Nine unidentified Fort Bragg soldiers have been charged with alleged sexual assaults on two teen-aged girls in two unrelated incidents March 25 on the post, according to a post spokesman.

In the first incident, five soldiers from the Personnel Control Facility have been charged with rape and sodomy in connection with an alleged attack on a 13-year-old girl in a unit barracks about noon that Saturday, the spokesman said.

In the second incident, four men assigned to the 32nd Medical Depot, 44th Medical Brigade, were charged by their unit commander with rape, sodomy, aggravated assault and kidnapping.

The charges resulted from allegations by a 16-year-old girl that she was assaulted in a barracks room shortly after 11 p.m. that Saturday night.

Officials have declined to identify the nine suspects at this time, according to Lt. Dan Grigson of the Fort Bragg public affairs office.

The Fayetteville Times quotes an informed source as saying that the 13-year-old said she was visiting with a friend at the Personnel Control Facility barracks and was lured to a second-floor room by being told she could find a private toilet there.

There she was repeatedly sexually assaulted, "perhaps as many as 15 times," she told investigators, according to the source.

The newspaper quoted another source as saying the 16-year-old told investigators she was in a barracks room at the medical depot when a group of men entered the room and attacked her.

Investigators have found no connection between the two alleged incidents, the source said.

FIVE ATTEMPTS

MONTREAL (AP) — Five people jumped in front of five Montreal subway trains within a five-hour period yesterday. A man was killed, two men and a woman were injured, and another woman was not hit because the motorman stopped in time. Police said there was no apparent connection between the suicide attempts.

A Dead End on Rhodesia

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON (AP)—The newest rationale behind Carter administration preference for Soviet-supported guerrillas instead of pro-Western moderates to run Rhodesia is fear of yet another Cuban military operation, a rationale so clearly bogus that it brings the U.S. near a dead end in Africa.

U.S. enters a policy dead end contrary to its own interests. That support for the internal settlement is rising among the anti-Communist black nations of French-speaking Africa (reflected by Gabon's March 24 statement expressing "optimism"). Once elections install black majority government with a black prime minister in independent Zimbabwe starting in 1979, world support would move toward the moderates. The one potential obstacle: a military takeover before then.

Find Answer To Montezuma's Revenge

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — A seldom-used antibiotic will soon be routinely prescribed to prevent so-called Montezuma's Revenge, the intestinal misery that afflicts legions of Americans traveling abroad, doctors say.

Baltimore researchers have found that the drug, called doxycycline, will give most people at least one month's protection against this illness. The malady has various names around the world and is also called Delhi Belly or simply travelers' diarrhea.

"This is the first drug that has really been shown to be highly effective," Dr. R. Bradley Sack, one of the researchers, said in an interview.

The researchers predicted that taking the antibiotic will become a routine precaution for Americans traveling to underdeveloped parts of the Middle East, South America, Africa and Asia.

The drug was tested on Peace Corps volunteers in Kenya by doctors from Baltimore City Hospitals. Their findings were published in today's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

Sack said Americans have a 50 percent to 60 percent chance of getting travelers' diarrhea if they go to countries where it is prevalent.

The doctors gave doxycycline to 18 American volunteers for three weeks, and only one of them contracted the illness.

Twenty-one others got inactive pills, called placebos, and nine of them became sick.

The protection lasted for one week after the medication stopped, but then it wore off, they said.

The volunteers took one pill a day, and the researchers cautioned doctors against prescribing the drug for longer than three weeks until more tests are done.

Doxycycline is a form of tetracycline, a commonly used drug. It is sometimes used to treat cholera and Rocky Mountain spotted fever.

The doctors said the medicine fights a disease-causing variety of the common microscopic organism called Escherichia coli.

"If there are geographic areas where these organisms are resistant to the antibiotic, we would not expect it to be effective," Sack said. "So far, none of these areas have been reported."

Less Partying By S. Korean

By JURATE KAZICKAS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Korean businessman Tongsun Park, whose lavish parties for members of Congress were part of an $850,000 influence buying campaign, keeps his party-going to a minimum these days.

When not testifying about giving envelopes stuffed with cash to dozens of congressmen, Park has spent his evenings at the movies, in favorite restaurants, and at two or three small dinner parties.

Park is accompanied everywhere by two U.S. marshals and a personal aide. His residence has been changed three times since he returned to Washington a month ago with a promise of immunity from prosecution in return for his testimony before the House Ethics Committee.

Park denies he was an agent for the South Korean government and says the gift-giving was to promote his business affairs.

His constant companion during the years when Park earned a reputation as one of Washington's most impressive hosts was Tandy Dickinson, and she is still his steady date.

"We're not doing anything exciting. This is a serious time for him. Besides it's a little tiring to be followed around by all those people everywhere we go," says Mrs. Dickinson. "He is feeling fantastic and he's in good spirits. He knows he was not a government agent so he doesn't care what people say."

The couple has been spotted standing in line to see the movie "The Turning Point," at a Chinese restaurant, and at Peter's Place, a restaurant owned by Park's friend Peter Malatesta.

Park ended up celebrating his birthday in a private home donated for the occasion by realtor Gertrude D'Amecourt, who said she has known Park for 20 years. She went to another party that night.

Guests were not told the location of the party until the last moment, after first meeting at Mrs. Dickinson's Watergate apartment.

Southern Forestry Officials Yearn For Rain

By The Associated Press
The possibility of thunderstorms in Mississippi and Tennessee late today won't help much in the battle against wildfires that have burned more than 100,000 acres in Southern states in five days, forestry officials say.

What is needed is a steady rain that will drench Southern forests and grasslands, where dry weather has created favorable conditions for fires caused by arson and burning debris, officials have said.

Weather conditions in the region Wednesday — gusty winds, low humidity and no rain — were highly favorable for fires, said Thomas R. Hegele of the North Carolina Division of Forest Resources.

"The outlook for the next few days isn't any better," he said. Rich Cromwell, a U.S. Forest Service spokesman in Atlanta, said Wednesday that about 112,000 acres have burned in Southern states in a five-day period. In national forests alone, 175 fires burned 3,789 acres from last Friday through Tuesday, said Russ Daley of the Forest Service.

Georgia authorities said 197 fires were reported in the state Wednesday, involving a total of 1,856 acres.

Other states plagued by fires included Alabama, Tennessee, North Carolina, South Carolina and Mississippi.

A Franklinton, N.C., man, 25-year-old James Thomas Jefferys, was charged with intentionally setting three fires in Franklin County on Saturday, North Carolina authorities said.

Thirteen other persons have been charged with arson in Georgia and Alabama, where forestry officials said many fires have been set in recent days. Authorities in Mississippi and Tennessee said some fires in those states appeared to be the work of arsonists, but no arrests had been made.

"It's hard to imagine why anyone would set a fire," said Daley. "Some people possibly are mad at the government about something. Some people just like to see fires. And right now there are all the ingredients for a good fire."

The National Weather Service said most areas of the Southeast would continue to have warm, dry weather today. But forecasters said there was a chance of thundershowers late in the day in Tennessee and north Mississippi.

North Carolina officials said 60 fires were burning in their state Wednesday.

Nelson Peach of the South Carolina Forestry Commission said 337 fires burned 2,610 acres there in the first three days of this week.

In Georgia, the state Department of Public Safety offered air and ground equipment and personnel to help the Georgia Forestry Commission stop deliberately set fires in the state. A $500 reward was offered by a private group for information leading to the conviction of forest fire arsonists.

Alabama Forestry Commission spokesman Frank Segal said 189 fires were burning 12,576 acres in his state, where Gov. George Wallace has placed 25 counties under no-burn orders.

Firemen and equipment from Mississippi, Florida, North Carolina and South Carolina have been moved into Alabama to assist with fire fighting there.

Whiskey Daily At Breakfast

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Jay Percy Zachary says his daily breakfast fare is a shot of whiskey with bacon and eggs on the side. It seems to agree with Zachary, who celebrated his 106th birthday last month.

Zachary says he tasted his first liquor when he was 9, but has never been more than a moderate drinker.

"I take just one shot a day," he said recently with a chuckle. "Just one shot, some bacon and eggs and I'm set for the day. Whiskey is medicine. It's not made to get drunk on."

Zachary admitted, however, that the "one shot," taken about 6 a.m. before he eats, almost fills a coffee cup. "I drink only 100 proof," he added.

Gathering Data In Cancer Probe

RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — An investigation into an unexplained cluster of 16 cancer cases is proceeding at top speed, but health officials do not exactly know what they are looking for.

"If we knew what we're looking for, we'd have it knocked," borough health officer Henry McCafferty told a group of concerned mothers Wednesday.

Vivian Cleffi and Betsy Van Winkle, both mothers of leukemia victims, joined a group of women who met Wednesday at the offices of a group called Mothers Matter to discuss ways of informing local citizens about the problem.

Mrs. Cleffi's son, James, and Mrs. Van Winkle's son, Wesley, were two of six students at Pierrepont Elementary School who contracted leukemia or related blood diseases. Both boys died.

Mrs. Cleffi said the mothers wanted to alleviate the fears of local residents. "We don't want them running out of town, but we do want it checked out," she said.

Two New Jersey Department of Health epidemiologists were in Rutherford Wednesday to begin compiling data on the number of cases diagnosed in a certain period of time. The doctors were to go through hospital records, talk to physicians and visit the homes of cancer victims.

"Then we plan to do the statistical work to determine if Rutherford has a higher than usual incidence of cancer," said department spokesman Mitchell Leon, who estimated the work would take at least two weeks.

The emphasis of the meeting next week is to inform residents, said Tutty Giordano, member of a liaison committee between residents and borough officials. "People think they're not being told the whole truth," she said.

PRECINCT MEETING

Farmland Values Continue Show General Increase

ATLANTA (AP) — Georgia farmland rose 11 percent in value last year because it is in a good growing climate, it has potential for good return on investment and there is water for irrigation, according to state experts.

The increase compared to the national average of 9 percent, according to a U.S. Department of Agriculture report.

Other land in the South also increased in value, jumping 13 percent in Kentucky, 12 percent in Tennessee and 15 percent in Mississippi and Louisiana.

The 9 percent national average gain was the smallest in six years, said the USDA report, issued Wednesday in Washington.

Georgia farmland was valued at an average $564 per acre as of Feb. 1, the report said. New Jersey had the top value of $2,057 per acre.

"Georgia farmland is typically infertile, but it responds well to management," Phil

Beegle, who operates an Atlanta farm management firm, said in a recent interview. "The land is more reasonable in terms of production per dollar invested."

Land values are climbing because "local people have been buying it," said Henry Good-year, president of Plantation Services, an Albany farm management firm. Local buyers want to add on their farms, he said.

Both men said there is a tremendous supply of ground water available for irrigation in Georgia.

The Midwest Corn Belt and populous Eastern states continued to have the most valuable land, according to the USDA report.

But the value of New Jersey farmland increased only 3 percent from a year earlier, the report said. Land in Rhode Island and Connecticut was valued at $1,939 and $1,962 an acre, respectively, and was up 10 percent.

The only state showing a decline in value from Feb. 1 of last year was Nebraska, with an average of $385 an acre, down 4 percent.

Nationally, the average value of farmland was $490 an acre against $450 on Feb. 1 of last year. In 1972, before commodity prices began soaring and inflation took its full bite, farmland nationally averaged $219 an acre, up 8 percent from 1971.

But then values rose to $246 an acre in 1973, up 12 percent; $302 in 1974, up 23 percent; $341 in 1975, up 13 percent; $387 in 1976, up 13 percent; and $450 in 1977, up 16 percent, according to revised figures in the report.

The lowest priced farmland as of Feb. 1 was reported at $93 an acre in New Mexico, up 4 percent from a year earlier. Average values of farmland in Southern states as of Feb. 1 and the percentage increase from 1977 include: North Carolina $694 and 3; Kentucky $671 and 13; Tennessee $608 and 12; South Carolina $543 and 3; Georgia $564 and 11; Florida $838 and 8; Alabama $452 and 5; Mississippi $464 and 15; Arkansas $571 and 10, and Louisiana $669 and 15.

Reverse Discrimination Suit Faces Law School

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — A reverse discrimination suit similar to the controversial Allen Bakke case has been filed here against the University of North Carolina Law School at Chapel Hill.

Patricia Lynn Bostick of Raleigh and Steven Palmer Rader of Charlotte charged in a complaint filed in U.S. Middle District Court Wednesday that they were denied admission to the law school because they were white while other students, whose qualifications were inferior to theirs, were admitted because of their race.

Named as defendants in the case are William C. Friday, president of the UNC system; Robert Byrd, dean of the law school; Phillip Dickson, former law school dean; and Ferebee Taylor, chancellor of UNC at Chapel Hill.

Byrd declined to comment on the suit itself, saying he hasn't received a copy of it yet. However, he did say the school has a special admissions program for "disadvantaged" students. There are 51 black students in the student body of 670.

Friday could not be reached for comment.

The case is similar to one in which 37-year-old Allen Bakke claimed the University of California Medical School denied him admission because he was white. The medical school had a special program in which 16 of 100 annual openings were reserved for minorities.

The Bakke complaint was upheld by the California Supreme Court but has been appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court, which has not announced its decision yet.

Like Bakke, Miss Bostick and Rader claim their right to equal protection of the laws guaranteed by the 14th amendment has been denied. The two say the law school gets federal financial aid and they are being deprived of full participation and equal benefits of the school.

Miss Bostick applied for admission in the fall of 1977 and still has not been admitted to law school. Rader was denied

NEW YORK (UPI) — Lucie Arnaz will star as Annie Oakley in the Jones Beach Theater production of "Anny Get Your Gun" June 29 through Labor Day this summer.

Two Killings Are Linked

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Wilmington police have tied a New Hanover County bingo parlor robbery to the fatal shooting Tuesday of a Wilmington policeman.

Police say bullets that killed the policeman were fired from the same rifle used to critically wound a bingo parlor operator last December.

Wilmington Police Chief Dar-yl Brustle says some shell casings taken from among 24 on the ground near the body of slain patrolman, J.W. "Billy" Nunalee, match ballistically with three shells recovered from the scene of the bingo robbery.

FBI agents say the bullets were .223 caliber and were probably fired from an M-16 military rifle.

Nunalee was shot early Tuesday as he returned to his patrol car from a routine check of a Wilmington convenience store.

In both the Nunalee shooting and the bingo parlor robbery, the gunman was described as wearing dark, bulky clothes, a mask and gloves.

Sgt. D. A. Hollified, who is heading up the Nunalee slaying investigation, says any connection has been ruled out between the slaying and a note found at the Wilmington Employment Security Commission office later in the day Tuesday. The note said in part, "There will be no peace until the Wilmington 10 are free. Governor Hunt, we cannot and will not be nonviolent any longer."

The governor's office has announced that the state is offering a $5,000 reward for information leading to the solution of the Nunalee murder.

Princess Margaret Is 'On The Carpet'

By ED BLANCHE
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister James Callaghan and Queen Elizabeth II meet tonight amid expectations that they will discuss the public outcry over Princess Margaret's relationship with playboy Roddy Llewellyn.

Callaghan was going to Windsor Castle for the weekly audience at which he advises the queen on political and constitutional affairs. Both have remained publicly aloof from the controversy over the queen's younger sister. But it was considered certain that they could not ignore the criticism of the 47-year-old princess for her close association with the 31-year-old brewery heir and would-be night club singer.

Buckingham Palace refused to comment on a report in the Sun Wednesday that the queen had ordered Margaret to give up Roddy or give up public life. But the Daily Mirror reported today that Prince Phillip, the queen's outspoken husband, told Margaret to quit public life because she is hurting the royal image.

The princess is certain to be the target of more criticism in the House of Commons Friday when the government announces the annual civil list, the tax-free allowance paid by the state to 11 members of the royal family to compensate them for the public duties they perform and to pay for the maintenance of their households.

The list last year totaled 2.9 million pounds, or $4.51 million. The Times of London reported a 10-percent increase was likely. Margaret got 55,000 pounds ($95,000), and an announcement of an increase for her is certain to bring a howl from left-wing members of Callaghan's Labor party.

Left-wing Laborites have been the most vocal critics of the princess since she spent a winter vacation recently in the Caribbean with Llewellyn while Britons at home were struggling with winter cold, high prices, unemployment and inflation. They accuse her of not doing her share and of not living up to the standards of conduct expected of the royal family.

Margaret was at Windsor with the queen after an announcement Monday that she had the flu and the royal doctors had put her to bed. Buckingham Palace reported that she got up for lunch Wednesday with the queen and her children.

But another announcement said she was not able to attend the confirmation of her daughter, 13-year-old Lady Sarah Armstrong-Jones, and two other royal children at the castle chapel on Wednesday.

Sarah's father, Lord Snowdon, did attend. He and Margaret separated two years ago after 16 years of marriage and two children. Llewellyn has been her most frequent companion ever since.

Court Test On Horizon

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state Board of Education and a group of Christian schools seem headed for court over the board's attempt to require private schools to file annual reports.

"I don't think there's any doubt about the fact we're going to court very soon," said Kent Kelly of Calvary Christian Church in Southern Pines. He made the statement Wednesday at a news conference held by the executive boards of the North Carolina Association of Christian Schools and the Organization of Christian Schools.

About 60 Christian schools run by Protestant or fundamentalist groups have refused to file annual reports required by the state.

Representatives of the schools met in Raleigh last month and announced that the reports would be filed by April 10. However, they said later that each school would send in only as much information as it felt was appropriate.

"We are prepared to go all the way to the Supreme Court if necessary," said David Oates, administrator of Vandalia Christian School in Greensboro.

The private schools are upset over state certification of teachers and the state's new mandated student testing program, Oates said. They agree the state has the right to request certain fire and safety information.

Kelly said the educators hope to introduce legislation during the 1979 session of the General Assembly that will correct the problems they have with the state's authority over Christian schools.

Cleveland Schools Ask Voters To Hike Taxes

By STEVEN P. ROSENFELD
Associated Press Writer

CLEVELAND (AP) — With nowhere else to turn for financial relief, Cleveland's embattled public school system asks voters today to increase property taxes by $30 million a year to keep schools open.

Passage of the measure — which would boost school taxes on a $25,000 house by more than 25 percent, adding $87 to the present tax of $310 to $320 — would enable the district to use the anticipated tax revenue as collateral for loans.

Efforts over past weeks to borrow from banks failed. As a result the 113,000-pupil school system could not meet last Friday's $5 million payroll for 11, 100 full-time employees, including 5,400 teachers.

In addition, the district has outstanding debts of almost $7 million, some dating back to late last year.

Only limited funds will be available from the state between now and the end of May, not even enough to meet the bi-weekly payrolls.

"We have used up every avenue up to this point short of a levy. Now all doors are closed," said Arnold Pinkney, president of the school board.

Polls opened at 6:30 a.m. and close at 7:30 p.m. at 649 precincts. About 30 percent of the city's 290,000 registered voters are expected to cast ballots.

School officials have said schools would have to close this year if the 9.9-mill, five-year emergency tax measure fails.

Performing Here This Weekend

"The Instruments of Peace" of Annapolis, Md. will perform at Holy Trinity United Methodist Church and at Immanuel Baptist Church here this weekend.

The "Instruments" are six representatives of the Baptist Student Union in Annapolis. They perform works of contemporary composers like Buryl Red, Andre Croch and Ken Medema to a taped accompaniment.

The concert at Immanuel will be held Saturday at 7:30 p.m. with a coffee house atmosphere. Sunday the entire morning worship service at Holy Trinity will be led by "Instruments."

Both the Saturday night and Sunday morning performances are free and open to the public.

They have already scheduled another election in June in case of defeat today.

Opposition is expected from citizens who do not want their tax dollars being used to implement a court-ordered desegregation plan, scheduled to take effect next fall, which includes massive busing. About 60 percent of Cleveland's public school students are non-white.

School officials say the district's money problems are not related to desegregation, but admit that they have been reluctant to ask voters to approve higher taxes out of fear of a backlash from desegregation foes.

Violations of Neutrality Up

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Military violations of neutral Sweden's territory increased in 1977, totaling 19 trespasses at sea and 28 in the air, Defense Minister Eric Kronmark told Parliament.

"There are signs that NATO and the Warsaw Pact allies have become increasingly interested in the Baltic Sea," Kronmark said.

Volunteers For Festival Needed

GRIFTON — Volunteers of all ages are needed throughout the Shad Festival weekend April 14-16 to help in the drink and hot dog wagons, according to Refreshments Coordinator Marion Allen.

Food will also be sold at "Shad-O" Friday and Saturday evenings and at the ballfield concession stand during the softball tournament, and Saturday evening at the Pancake Supper.

Anyone who can donate time or Shad Festival Chairman Tommy Wilson at 524-5147.

Carver Has Hobby Time In Winters

INTERNATIONAL FALLS, Minn. (AP) — Tom Karsnia carves his way through the northern Minnesota winter.

"I get a lot of satisfaction from making things," says the part-time soapstone carver and furniture maker. "The long winters can be depressing and working with wood is one of the best kinds of therapy."

"For me, getting out in the shop actually makes winters too short now. There just isn't enough time during the winter months to do everything I'd like to do."

Karsnia, 42, would like to retire at 50 or 55 and work full time at his 12-year-old hobby. He works four hours a day at it now, after his job testing paper for Boise Cascade.

Everything in the Karsnia home is handmade except for the beds, a couch and chair — even the clothes hamper in the bedroom. He has built intricately carved tables, planters, hutches, deacon's benches, and fireplace stools, and has built fireplaces, sidewalks and garden terraces of rock.

In each piece of Rainy Lake soapstone he carves what he sees — usually a bird.

"I always liked art and I liked to do things with my hands. I started with wood first and then was introduced to soapstone. I found it nicer to work with."

"I can't think of a better setting than Rainy Lake for a person to pursue art," he says. "I feel that living up here in this country is like being in a big stadium, way up in the top seats and looking at the rat race of the rest of the world go by."

In the summer Karsnia escapes at the end of a fishing pole "and I'm immediately at peace with life." Besides the stringers of walleye that he brings home, his summer garden is the envy of everyone driving by on County Road 94.

He picks mushrooms and could easily be called a gourmet cook. The 10 gallons of wine he made this year include chokecherry, pincherry, rhubarb, gooseberry and wild grape.

The artist streak apparently runs in the family. His dad could draw and his grandfather was a craftsman. And most of Tom and Edna Karsnia's five children appear to be artistic.

"I want to be remembered when I die," said Karsnia. "I don't want to die and just be remembered as a man who was a good worker. I want to leave a part of the way I feel about life and about this area behind me."

Makes Home In The Tower Of London

By JOAN BRUNSKILL
NEW YORK (AP) — What's home life like in the Tower of London? Does all that bloody history cast a pall?
"I've never felt spooky in that house at all," declares Adeline Raeburn, wife of the Tower's governor, "not even when I'm entirely alone there in the dead of winter."
This comes with cheerful matter-of-factness after she has regaled a visitor to her New York hotel room with lively anecdotes about the ghosts which share her home, the 450-year-old Queen's House, inside the Tower complex.
Mrs. Raeburn was on a visit to this country with her husband, Maj. Gen. Digby Raeburn, in connection with the Tower's 900th birthday this year — the central White Tower was built for William the Conqueror in 1078.
For all the matter-of-factness, keeping house in Britain's most famous tourist attraction and most notorious monument is clearly something out of the ordinary. The Queen's House, the governor's official residence, is considered London's finest example of Tudor architecture.

"It was built by Henry VIII for Anne Boleyn, but by the time it was finished they had moved to Hampton Court," explains Mrs. Raeburn. "The only time Anne used the house was as a prisoner, for 18 days before she was beheaded" — on the scaffold site a few steps away from Mrs. Raeburn's front door.
The Gray Lady, her home's best-known ghost, hasn't been seen for about four years, says Mrs. Raeburn, "when she walked down the passage behind my niece." The haunting of the spare bedroom is of a "quite common kind" by Tower standards — a suffocating sensation felt by occupants of the room. "I never put children or women on their own in the spare bedrooms," Mrs. Raeburn is quick to add.
Another haunting has not been heard from recently — the heavy footsteps plodding up the back stairs. "I used to hear it when I was in the kitchen," Mrs. Raeburn remembers. "I thought it was someone making a delivery and I'd call out, 'Bring the bread, or vegetables, in here, please.'" No one ever came in, with or without the bread. Mrs. Raeburn suggests the ghost tired of being addressed so unceremoniously and took itself off.

Life in the Tower means taking history in one's stride along with the ghosts. "I keep my bicycle and the potatoes in Richard Coeur de Lion's stable," says Mrs. Raeburn.
The Tower is home to other people, too: the famous Beefeaters, formally known as the Yeomen Warders, who guard the Tower, the chaplain, doctor, carpenters, plumbers — and their families — altogether some 300 men, women and children. And the drained and grassy moat is now a community asset. "All the dogs go round the moat in the morning, and all the dogs go round the moat in the evening. That's where you stop and pick up the Tower gossip," Mrs. Raeburn observes.

There are some adjustments to be made. The Tower's throngs of tourists can be a problem, especially in summer, even though the Queen's House itself is not open to the public.
"I try to get back from my shopping before 9:30 in the morning to avoid the crowds," says Mrs. Raeburn. "Winter is much more peaceful and I love it then, even though with its Tudor timber frame it's rather a cold house and the drafts come whistling through all our windows."
William Penn, founder of Pennsylvania, was once a prisoner in the Queen's House, as was Sir Thomas More. There are no prisoners now, but Tower security is still strict. "Everybody has to show a pass at the gate to get in and nobody can just drop in on me," says Mrs. Raeburn. "After midnight, even I need the password to get from the gate to the house."
In seven years in residence at the Tower, Mrs. Raeburn has become familiar with details of its history. Near the Queen's House is the Chapel

Royal of St. Peter ad Vincula, where Tower residents go to church and where many of those executed on Tower Hill are buried. "Anne Boleyn is buried in an arrow box," Mrs. Raeburn remarks. "They'd forgotten to get a coffin for her, or perhaps with her head off she was so little the arrow box was just right for size."
Visitors to the Tower aren't guaranteed ghosts. But there are always such sights as the Crown Jewels and the Armouries, and in this anniversary year there'll be performances of Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Yeomen of the Guard" in the moat, special band concerts and other events.
In addition, Mrs. Raeburn points out, visitors can attend the Ceremony of the Keys, which takes place each evening just before 10, as it has for some 700 years. There are a limited number of free tickets available each night for those who write for them in advance.
Church services are open to the public, too, not only every Sunday morning in St. Peter ad Vincula, but also at Easter, Whitsun and Christmas, when State Services are held. For the latter, the Yeomen Warders wear their full state dress, the resplendent scarlet and gold uniforms worn since Tudor times. For every-day duties, the Yeomen wear the familiar blue uniforms granted to them in 1888 by Queen Victoria.

Everything For Quality In Three-Star Restaurant

By ALINE MOSBY
PARIS (UPI) — The revolutionist, blackbearded, eyes intense, folded his hands on the table and squinted thoughtfully behind his smoked glasses.

"I think," said Alain Senderens softly, "that we have reached the turning point."

Revolutionist Senderens is chef and proprietor of the wildly popular Paris restaurant, l'Archestrate, which in the 1978 edition of the prestigious Michelin restaurant guidebook became the newest three-star restaurant in France.

In the same issue the mighty Maxim's, probably the world's most famous restaurant, vanished entirely (the owner requested omission reportedly to escape the humiliation of only two stars) after reigning with three stars for 25 years.

What is significant to Senderens is not that Maxim's slid off the three-star list but that Maxim's represents the traditional "haute cuisine" of France. And replacement Senderens is a fiery leader of the "nouvelle cuisine" (new cuisine) revolution which during 10 years has slowly encroached on the centuries-old cooking style in the West's bastion of culinary supremacy.

Senderens is the first "nouvelle cuisine" chef of Paris to receive the coveted three stars, although three-star new cuisine restaurants are sprinkled elsewhere around France (chefs Paul Bocuse, the brothers Troisgros, Michel Guerard, etc.).

Michelin, whose three stars are to cuisine what the Nobel prize is to literature, also singled out other "nouvelle cuisine" restaurants for lesser honors in its 1978 edition.

"The suppression of Maxim's could be the turning point," said Senderens in his apartment above his small restaurant at 84 Rue de Varenne on the Left Bank.

"That the Michelin guidebook dares to attack the hierarchy, the sacrosanct, the institute, the most important, for Michelin to understand that a three-star restaurant is an ensemble of good things, but above all, good cuisine..."

"It is a first step forward," he said, leaning forward like a revolutionist off to the street barricades.

Senderens, 38, is optimistic that in a decade he and the other revolutionary "nouvelle cuisine" chefs will have swept traditional French cooking off its throne. "Certain dishes already are disappearing from menus," he said.

"We can go to the moon and Mars and yet cuisine has not moved in a century," he said. "That's mad. In the cuisine of France there must be 100,000 pages. We have touched only the first 10 pages. The rest has been ignored."

"Nouvelle cuisine" means healthier food in Senderens' view. Its practitioners leave the flour out of sauces, and serve very few sauces.

They use more fresh vegetables than in traditional cuisine; often the vegetables and even fish are half raw. Combinations unheard of in traditional cooking are used, such as Senderens' salad of hot scallops and cold greens, or asparagus and caviar stuffed inside a pastry shell, or pigeon cooked in ginger and lemon.

"The young 'nouvelle cuisine' chefs started overturning traditional cuisine about the time the May, 1968, student revolution in Paris shook up many old ways in tradition-loving France."

Senderens, born near Toulon, had come to Paris after working as an apprentice in a Lourdes hotel. He worked in several Paris restaurants, including Lucas Carton. In 1968, after the almost-revolution, he struck out on his own, opening l'Archestrate first near the Invalides monument and then moving in 1972 to nearby Rue de Varenne.

At first he served classic dishes, "but I began to take ancient recipes and adapt them to modern tastes."

Senderens named his restaurant l'Archestrate after the first great cook four centuries B.C. in the age of Pericles. He adopted Archestrate's philosophy which appears on the restaurant menu: "Quality products and simple seasoning."

"He was against sauces 24 centuries ahead of his time," the chef said triumphantly.

Senderens, like other "nouvelle cuisine" chefs, has discovered vitamins and says that when he creates his dinners (around $40 per person without wine), "I am like a doctor. People eat not just for pleasure but to seek strength. After a traditional meal you leave a table tired. One must leave a table full of energy."

"Man should live 150 or 200 years," he said. "With the usual diet people grow older faster."

He cooks with whatever raw materials are in season. He does not buy at the Paris wholesale market but has found food growers around France who ship directly to him for super freshness.

He pays 13 chefs to make food in his tiny kitchen for 80 customers a day in the restaurant decorated in darkest brown. Other three-star places have 15 cooks for 200 diners, he said.

"I have the smallest three-star restaurant in Paris," he said. "I do not want to enlarge it to make more money. I sacrifice everything for quality."

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market turned mixed today after the rally of the past two sessions bogged down amid inflation worries.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up 12.04 points in the last two trading days, was off 1.65 at 761.43 by noon today.

Gainers held a 3-2 edge on losers at the New York Stock Exchange, but the margin had shrunk from better than 2 to 1 at the outset.

The Dow rose about 2 points at the opening on the momentum of the recent rally, but by mid-morning it had turned back.

One factor that apparently encouraged selling was a gloomy assessment of the inflation outlook issued by the Council on Wage and Price Stability, which said the underlying inflation rate seemed "hopelessly stuck" in the 6 to 7 percent range.

The council's report also asserted, "The risks of higher future inflation are far greater than the possibility of deceleration."

Kennecott Copper topped the active list, up 1 1/2 at 28 3/4. Curtis-Wright Corp., which is waging a heated proxy battle against Kennecott management, said it would seek to have the company buy back half its stock for $40 a share if it prevails.

The NYSE's composite index managed a .04 gain to 50.13. At the American Stock Exchange, meanwhile, the market value index cracked the 130 level for the first time since it was established in 1973, climbing .71 to 130.56.

Volume on the Big Board reached 12.98 million shares by noon, against 10.46 million at the same point on Wednesday.

Students To Give Hospital Facelift

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A group of North Carolina State University design students is going to give Dorothea Dix Hospital a facelift.

Ten NCSU School of Design students are focusing their attention on the hospital's Kirby Building, which houses Dix's new mental retardation program. Some of the 105 mentally retarded patients living in Kirby Building have been at the hospital for 40 years.

The improvement program is a cooperative venture by the design school and Dorothea Dix. And like most other plans in state government, the success of the project depends on money. Dix administrators are trying to find a way to finance the project.

The plans for redecorating began early this year when new Dix retardation chief William M. Zieger decided that the interior design of Kirby Building was no longer appropriate for the kind of training and care his patients need.

NCSU Design Professor Joseph H. Cox and his class are spending this semester working on plans to make the building a more humane and friendly place.

Zieger says the plans reflect a chance in how Dix treats mental retardation. Cox says his students, who asked patients for ideas on redecorating Kirby Building, have plans for redesigning stairwells and sitting rooms. Students say they are looking for suggestions to give the building a homelike atmosphere.

Efforts to redecorate Kirby Building marks the second time in the past year Dix officials have tried to improve hospital living quarters. The first project involved installation of partitions in the sleeping quarters of about 600 Dix patients. Officials say the new partitions give the patients more privacy.

May Apply For Summer Camp

The Eastern Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults of North Carolina Inc. is now accepting applications for summer camp.

The family will receive friends at the funeral home tonight from 7 to 9 o'clock.

Haze Not Due To Local Fire
The smokey haze that was evident in the Greenville area today was not the result of a local fire, according to Pitt County Fire Marshal Bobby Joyner.

Joyner reported this morning that smoke from a woods fire in Washington County yesterday apparently drifted into Pitt County today, aided by favorable winds.

East Carolina Pounds Tar Heels, 12-3

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

There's something about a game with North Carolina that seems to bring out the best in East Carolina University.

Last night was no exception as the Pirates, playing their best baseball of the year, thumped the visiting Tar Heels, 12-3 behind the pitching of Mickey Britt and the batting of nearly the whole team.

"We played like we always knew we could play," Coach Monte Little said afterwards. "This was the team we've been looking for."

The Pirates even got a little help from the football team. Coach Pat Dye came into the locker room prior to the game and added his own pep talk to that of Little.

The combination of pep talks, desire, ability and having the Tar Heels at Harrington Field worked its magic as hit after hit fell for the Pirates, and the Bucs' own defensive work was outstanding.

East Carolina banged out 17 hits off four Tar Heel hurlers, chasing starter Matt Wilson of Robersonville from the mound after only three innings.

Britt, who claimed his sixth win against one loss, was relieved by Pete Conaty in the ninth. Britt, however, said he wasn't upset about having the leave the game. "What upset me was giving up three runs in the eighth," he said afterwards.

"Mickey was a little tired, and we wanted to work Pete a little before the weekend," Little said. "Mickey stayed in the dugout too long between the seventh and eighth innings, and he worked too fast when he got back out there."

"I really think our kids played loose," the coach continued. "They played like they enjoyed it. I've been hard to live with for the past week or so, and I was just too hard on the kids. I told them Sunday (prior to the Virginia Wesleyan game) that we've got to get our heads up and enjoy it."

Dye reportedly told the team that it had to go out and attack the opponent and not sit back and wait for a mistake by the other team. "Play like you played last year," he said.

The Pirates took both coaches to heart, going to work from the start. East Carolina pushed over two runs in the first inning. With one down, Billy Best was hit by a pitch and with two away, Butch Davis cracked out a two-run homer to center, which cleared the 390-foot sign.

The Pirates added two more in the second. With one down, Tim Hardison singled to right and Herb Brinkley followed with a hit to left. Jerry Carraway singled to center, loading the bases. Best then provided a two-run single to left, scoring both Hardison and Brinkley.

After a double-play took the Pirates out of the third, they added two more in the fourth. Carraway singled and Eddie Gates walked. Best reached on another single, loading them up. Pete Paradossi sacrificed Carraway in and Davis singled to center, scoring Gates.

Another Pirate run scored in the sixth. Gates walked, moved up on Best's infield hit and took third on a fielder's choice. He scored when Davis reached on an error.

The crowning blow came in the seventh, when the Pirates added five more runs for a 12-0 lead.

Carraway got a two-out single to start it and Gates walked. Best then finished off a four-for-four night with a home run to right, driving in three runs.

Paradossi singled and Davis reached on a two-base error. Bobby Supel then singled to score both Paradossi and Davis. Carolina had been held in check throughout the evening until the eighth. The defensive play of the game came in the third when Paradossi went deep behind second to throw out Phil Griffith at the start of the third inning. It probably saved a run as Lloyd Brewer doubled to deep center on the next play.

But it wasn't until the eighth that the Tar Heels finally broke the ice. Griffith singled to center and Brewer got a hit. Mike Fox walked, loading the bases. A wild pitch scored Griffith, and a sacrifice fly by Roy Clark brought in courtney runner Brad Lloyd. Jim Atkinson singled in Fox with the final Carolina run.

The Pirates, in addition to getting four hits from Best, got three from Davis, Hardison and Carraway, and two from Brinkley. Clark and Brewer each had two for the Heels.

East Carolina climbed to 12-11 with the win, while North Carolina dropped to 25-10.

The Bucs host Elton tonight at 7:30 p.m.

Overall, Bertie won just six individual events, but they took two of the three relays, Rose won six events also, but the relays made the difference.

Seattle Captures Baseball Opener, 3-2

SEATTLE (AP) — Glenn Abbott was grinning over how well he'd done. Dave Goltz was shaking his head over the pitch that got away and Gene Mauch was muttering something about his grandmother.

That's how the 1978 major league baseball season began Wednesday night as Abbott scattered five hits over 61-3 innings to help the Seattle Mariners trim the Minnesota Twins 3-2 in the Kingdom.

good year," the big right-hander joked, "between 35 and 40 wins."

Abbott, who led Seattle's pitchers with a 12-13 record last season, got relief help in the seventh inning from Enrique Romo, who quelled a dramatic Minnesota rally in the ninth to preserve the victory.

"I got a little tired and started getting my pitches up," explained Abbott, who was greeted by a standing ovation from the crowd of 45,235 when he left the game with Seattle ahead 3-1.

"But I'm really glad about this. I'm usually an awfully slow starter," he said.

Abbott was buoyed by short-stop Craig Reynolds' two-run homer in the second inning that staked the second-year Mariners to a 3-0 lead.

"For a Punch-and-Judy hitter like me, that's mind-boggling," said Reynolds, who hit just four homers last season. "I was just trying to meet the ball. The pitch was something up and, for me, I hit it good."

Goltz, the Twins' ace right-hander, went the distance Wednesday night but knew he had made a mistake with Reynolds.

"The first two innings everything I threw was up," said Goltz, who was 20-11 with 19 complete games last season. "I threw Reynolds a nothing fast-ball. Anybody can hit those out. The rest of the way I was okay."

Minnesota Manager Mauch was generally pleased with his club's showing.

"It took Goltz a while to get settled down," Mauch said. "He threw three straight balls and then laid one in (to Reynolds). My grandmother could hit a home run in this ballpark. "Abbott pitched very well, the best I've ever seen him pitch. He threw a lot of ground balls. Some of them were hit pretty hard, but they were ground balls nevertheless."

The Twins threatened in the ninth when Glenn Adams blasted a leadoff double off Romo. Bombo Rivera, who came in to pinch-run for Adams, moved to third as Dan Fingers grounded out. Dan Ford then fled to Ruppert Jones, and the center fielder's perfect throw to the plate held Rivera at third.

Romo then got Mike Cabbage to pop out to catcher Bob Stinson in front of the Seattle dug-out, ending the game.

Minnesota had closed to within 3-2 in the seventh on Cabbage's hit-and-run single that scored Dan Ford from first base. The Twins had scored in the fifth inning on consecutive two-out doubles by Willie Norwood and Rob Wilfong.

Seattle's first run came in the first inning on Lee Stanton's two-out RBI single that scored Bruce Bochte, who had doubled.

35 HOURS NOT MUCH PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Coach Dick Vermeil of the Philadelphia Eagles says his job boils down to about 35 hours each autumn.

"An artist can hang his work on a wall and people will view it any hour of any day," Vermeil said. "A writer's work can be read over and over. But in the football coaching business you are judged by what happens in two-and-one-half hours of playing on 14 weekends of the year. The results of all you have done, or tried to do, are out there every Sunday for the whole country to evaluate."

ROGER ANGELL'S NEWEST book, "Five Seasons: A Baseball Companion" should be on the reading list of any major league fan. Angell, who also wrote "The Summer Game", has re-written his stories of the past five seasons which originally appeared in "The New Yorker" magazine, and it makes for interesting reading.

All of the material appeared in "The New Yorker" except for one chapter, entitled "Stories For A Rainy Afternoon", but it is in this chapter that some of Angell's best writing is found.

The chapter is devoted to the lore of the game that is passed between fans during a rainy lull at a ballgame. One of the best tales involves Los Angeles manager Tom Lasorda, the man who says he bleeds "Dodger Blue".

Lasorda's story begins in his boyhood and proves that he is a patient man, according to Angell. Growing up in Morristown, Pa., Lasorda became a baseball fan early on. He volunteered to be crossing guard at his parochial school when he learned that he would get to see a big-league ballgame as a reward.

Lasorda and the other crossing guards were taken to Shibe Park to witness the Phillies and the Giants. It was a great afternoon for young Tom and before the game ended he left his seat for a position beside the runway to get some autographs on his scorecard as the players left the field.

Tom asked the first player to come by for his autograph, but was brushed aside.

"When Tom Lasorda tells the story now, the shock of this moment is still visible on his face," Angell writes. Lasorda was stunned and says tears came to his eyes. But he looked at the number on the player's back as he walked off and matched it on the scorecard: Buster Maynard, then an outfielder. "I never forgot it," Lasorda said.

LASORDA GREW UP to become a promising pitcher in the Dodger organization and in the spring of 1949, Angell writes, he was a star with a Dodger farm team in Greenville, North Carolina. (We suspect he was actually south of the state line in "the other Greenville" since no record can be found of his playing here.)

He took the mound on opening day in Augusta, Ga., and retired the first two batters. Studying the third batter as he stepped into the box, Lasorda heard the announcer say, "Now coming up to bat for the Yankees, Buster Maynard, right field." It was the same man.

Lasorda's first pitch nearly removed the button from the top of the batter's cap. The second was behind his knees and the third shaved dangerously close to his Adam's apple. Maynard got the message and charged to the mound. The two men were finally separated and play resumed.

After the game, Maynard walked up to Lasorda with a puzzled expression on his face and asked if the two had ever met before. "Not exactly," Lasorda answered.

"Well, why were you tryin' to take my head off out there," Maynard asked.

Lasorda shrugged, "You didn't give me your autograph."

Angell says Lasorda tells that story to his rookies every spring with the moral "Always give an autograph when someone asks you. In baseball, anything can happen."

"FIVE SEASONS" IS full of other good tales, most more recent, some even further in the past. It is a good book to read to celebrate the opening of a new major league season.

Ficklen Stadium Expansion Is On Schedule For Opening Game

The expansion of East Carolina University's Ficklen Stadium is well underway with assurance that the Pirate football team will be opening at home as scheduled on September 2 against Western Carolina University.

The expansion project will expand Ficklen Stadium's seating capacity from the current 20,000 to 35,000, giving East Carolina the fourth largest football stadium in the state. Only Carter Stadium in Raleigh, Wallace Wade Stadium in Durham and Kenan Stadium in Chapel Hill will seat more than Ficklen Stadium.

"The construction work is a week or two ahead in some areas and a week or two behind in others," said Jim Lowry, director of the physical plant at East Carolina. "In general, however, construction work is about on schedule, particularly in the major areas."

"All steel work is scheduled to be completed within six weeks, while pre-cast concrete seats are already being placed in one corner of the stadium."

"There should not be any real problem in having the construction completed on schedule."

The $2.7 million project is being handled by the Parke Construction Co. of Charlotte.

"It's really got me excited," said Pat Dye, head football coach. "Every day I sit here and can watch the work outside my window. I can't help but get excited thinking about those 35,000 fans in the stands. That's what it's all about for us."

"Everywhere we go with the Pirates Club, there's enthusiastic conversation about the stadium expansion. This could open up so many doors for us in getting bigger name teams to come to our place and play."

"But the first thing after getting the expansion finished is to start filling it up with East Carolina fans." Dye added.

In addition to the seating expansion, a modern three-level media facility is being constructed, along with a chancellor's box, an elevator to service the media facility and additional rest room facilities.

The media facility will be partially completed for 1978, but the structural work for additional space will be in place for further expansion. The 1978 season will find all sportscasters, sportswriters and others involved with the staging of a game housed on the first floor of the facility. The first level will contain two rows for the working media, a dark room facility for photographers, a food service area, rest rooms, newspaper copy filling area and storage area.

The second level will be only floored in and walled in, but not completed inside.

The third level of the facility will be for film crews for television and coaches' films. This will be completed and operable for the 1978 season.

The chancellor's box will be underneath the media facility, complete with cushioned seats, food service area and rest rooms. The elevator will also service the chancellor's box.

"It looks just great to me," said Bill Cain, athletic director. "No one can imagine what a beautiful sight that is to all of us here who have dreamed of such for so many years."

You know, back in 1963, we had one side completed. Then, in 1968, we put up the other side and it took us five years to have a capacity crowd. Now, in 1978, we'll have nearly double the seating capacity of the last ten years, but it certainly will not take us five years to fill 35,000 seats as it took in 1968 to fill 20,000."

The deadline for completion is August 31, although it appears completion will occur earlier than this date. Should the stadium not be completed by August 31, a $100,000 penalty clause is written into the contract.

The Pirates will play the opening game of the 1978 season in the expanded stadium against Western Carolina at 7 p.m. September 2.

Nicklaus Feels He Has Best Chance To Win Another Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — By his own calculations, Jack Nicklaus figures to have a 50-50 chance of winning the 42nd Masters golf tournament.

But young Jerry Pate, still thankful that he ignored a doctor who wanted to extract a rib and outdueled a hypnotist over a steak last year, was among 77 challengers anxious to test Nicklaus' prediction as the tournament opened today at the Augusta National Golf Club.

Nicklaus is not one to make rash statements, even though he has won this event a record five times and is the favorite virtually every time he plays in one of the four major tournaments.

On the eve of this event, though, he offered this careful assessment: "In the last 15 Masters, excluding my first one as a pro and my three as an amateur, I've felt probably 10 times that I've come in here playing as well as I can. I won half of those times."

"Now my game is better than it ever was and I'm as well prepared as can be."

There's more. He is off to his best start ever, having won twice and finished second twice in his last four starts. He is rested yet tuned, having bypassed the last two tour events and played several practice rounds at Augusta. He is driving the ball 10-15 yards farther, having returned this year to a driver with a smaller angle on the club face.

And, perhaps most important,

he is hungry.

He points toward the major tournaments (the others are the PGA and the U.S. and British Opens). He was beaten by Tom Watson twice last year, here and at the British Open. It has been two years since he won the last of his 14 "Big Four" events.

Watson is back to defend his title, although he has missed the cut in two of his last three starts. Hubert Green, the U.S. Open champion, seems to be at the top of his game. So does Severiano Ballesteros, the 20-year-old Spaniard who has dominated European tournaments for the past two years and won his first U.S. title last week at Greensboro, N.C.

Other top contenders in the select, invitational field over the par-72, 7,040-yard course are PGA champion Lanny Wadkins, four-time Masters runner-up Tom Weiskopf, Hale Irwin, Ray Floyd, Ben Crenshaw, Lou Graham and David Graham. Also on hand are Arnold Palmer, a four-time winner here; Johnny Miller, still in a deep slump, and Lee Trevino, who has won every Big Four event except the Masters.

A player who also figures to be in the chase is Pate, the 24-year-old Floridian who shot to the top of the pack by winning the 1976 U.S. Open, then was plagued by arm injuries last year. He is healthy again, and wants another major title.

"I like to always feel like I'm due," said Pate, who won the Southern Open late last year and has been playing well this year.

"When you win a major tournament at 22, it can make it hard to come out every week to make a living. The majors are more important. They're worth more to you. I'd love to win the Masters," he said.

"I know all the letters and advice were sincere but some of these treatments were unbelievable. I think the only thing that wasn't suggested was seeing a psychiatrist."

Aycock In Second Win

E.B. Aycock's baseball team captured an 8-7 victory over Goldsboro Junior High School yesterday.

Billy Dough hurled the victory and helped himself along with a three-run homer in the first inning. Mitch Brann and Billy Kirtrell each added two hits to the Aycock attack.

T. Battle led Goldsboro with two hits, including a solo homer in the third inning.

Aycock is now 2-0 and returns to action on Tuesday, traveling to Kinston.

Lack Of Hitting Keeps Tigers From Enjoying Full Success

WILLIAMSTON — Williamston's girls' softball team dropped its first game of the year earlier this week, and Coach P.J. Taylor is just a little worried about the future.

"We're 2-1 right now, and I guess I'm pleased with that record. But we shouldn't have lost (to Bertie). We left too many people on base, and our bats have been weak."

The Tigrette hitting is the biggest worry of the first-year Williamston coach, who moved over from North Pitt at the start of the school year.

"Our defense has been real good. We did have a little mental letdown against Bertie that hurt us, but overall, I'd have to say that our play in the field has been the highlight of the season so far."

But at the plate, Taylor says that the Tigettes are not getting power into their bats. "We're hitting too many fly balls instead of getting it down for base hits. I think it will eventually come around. We hit the ball well last year, and we have seven of our starters back from last year."

"I guess we're just going to have to put more time on hitting in practice," she added.

Pitching is also another trouble area. "It's not where I'd like for it to be. We have only one full-game pitcher. It could be much better. Right now, we're just trying to get it over the plate to make them hit instead of walking them."

Another thing that has hampered the Tigettes has been an injury to second-baseman Terry Hopkins, the lead-off hitter for the team. She's out with a cracked bone in her wrist and will probably miss another two weeks.

"That leaves us with six of our ten players back from last year, so we still should be okay," Taylor said.

In the lineup, Taylor is using sophomore Sherri Singleton at pitcher, with freshman Ginger Edwards as catcher.

JoAnna Lilley, a junior, is at first, with Pam Lilley, a

Rounding out the team are freshmen Lori Gurkin, Mary Baker and Mary Hardison, and sophomore Nadine Rodgers.

As far as the conference race is concerned, Taylor is uncertain what to expect. "I really don't know that much about the league yet. Plymouth was strong last year, and Washington could be real good. I'll just have to wait and see."

"But I do think, with our experience, that we could be right in the race. It's just a question of getting our bats in order. We have the potential. I just hope more practice time will make the difference."

Silent Cal Given Credit

The Atlanta Hawks are in the National Basketball Association playoffs and Coach Hubie Brown credits Calvin Coolidge for it.

"This has been a miracle," said Brown after the Hawks defeated Buffalo 87-74 Wednesday night to eliminate New Orleans and secure Atlanta's first playoff berth in five seasons.

"There's been a quote we've carried with us all year. It's from Calvin Coolidge and it's a hell of a quote: 'There's nothing more common than unsuccessful people with potential.'"

"Our goal was to be successful without potential."

The Hawks accomplished the task thanks to Brown's masterful coaching and the hustling of such unknowns as John Drew, Steve Hawes and Eddie Johnson. Drew and Hawes scored 21 and 20 points, respectively, in the victory over Buffalo and Johnson added 12 points and eight assists.

Outspoken Hawks' owner Ted Turner made the trip to Buffalo and saw his team win its fifth straight by holding the Braves to 12 points in both the second and third quarters. The 74 points was the second lowest total in Braves' history.

The Seattle SuperSonics also clinched a Western Conference playoff berth Wednesday night, defeating the Houston Rockets 113-100.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Philadelphia clinched the homecourt advantage in all Eastern Conference playoff series with a 126-115 victory over Detroit.

76ers 126, Pistons 115

Philadelphia snapped a four-game losing skid and extended Detroit's winless streak to four. The 76ers broke out to a 42-20 first-period lead and cruised the rest of the way.

"The first quarter got us the game," said Julius Erving, who led Philadelphia's scoring with 29 points, 14 in the opening session. "If we can play four quarters of offense and defense like that, that's reaching out potential."

Bullets 125, Lakers 119

A 14-4 streak midway through the fourth quarter sparked the Bullets past Los Angeles. Wes Unseld scored a personal season-high 25 points and Elvin Hayes added 23 for Washington.

Nuggets 129, Nets 121

Denver held off the Nets despite 38 points by rookie Bernard King and 20 assists by Kevin Porter. Dan Issel had 32 points for the Nuggets.

Sonics 113, Rockets 100

Seattle clinched a playoff spot and brought Lennie Wilkens' record as coach to 40-17 since he took over early in the season from Bob Hopkins. Gus Williams had 22 points and Marvin Webster 20 for Seattle.

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Modern cameras and the principles of photography evolved from a variety of optical devices created by the inventive minds of artists, scientists, magicians, ancient priests and imaginative experimenters.

Take the camera obscura, for instance. It means, literally, a "dark chamber," and refers to the optical principle of producing an upside-down image of a scene on a wall or screen in a dark room, a box or a tent from a tiny hole opposite the image. About 400 years ago, it was discovered that the image could be made sharper and more brilliant by putting a lens in the hole. Artists and travelers used portable camera obscura tents and boxes to trace the images to get accurate perspective in the scenes they drew.

It was a natural step for someone to come along with the idea of preserving the image with chemicals instead of tracing it on drawing paper. Thomas Wedgwood is credited with making the first photographic experiments with the camera obscura in 1799. Daguerre also made use of the camera obscura in his early days as a painter but it wasn't until he formed a partnership with Niepce in 1829 that it led to an eventual breakthrough. In 1839, the French government announced to the world Daguerre's successful methods of making, developing and fixing of an image on a copper plate. Photography was born!

Now, the educational aspect and the fun of making facsimiles of the camera obscura and other early optical devices have been made simple and economically easy by Budd Wentz of the Lawrence Hall of Science, University of California at Berkeley. He's the author of a paperback book, "Photo and Scene Machines — Ready-to-

A stereoscope is a viewer designed for a pair of stereoscopic pictures so that they can be seen as a single image with a three-dimensional effect. The pair of pictures show a scene as seen by each eye separately.

The 10 pages with cut-out drawings and full instructions are the basis for constructing 10 working models of optical devices. Among them are: the camera obscura, zoetrope, stereoscope, magic lantern, kaleidoscope and diorama. To complete the cardboard models, additional materials usually found in the house are needed, items like: plastic tape, glue, tracing paper, a magnifying glass, purse-size mirrors, a flashlight or a small desk lamp.

Some of the projects are more complicated than others so it would be wise to start with the simpler devices. The easiest one is the project with anamorphic pictures. They were popular 300 years ago and are somewhat similar to the distorting mirrors found at carnivals and fairs, only in a reverse manner. The anamorphic pictures are strangely distorted and are made to look normal only by viewing them in exactly the right way.

One picture has to be cut out and curled around a shiny cylinder. The reflection in the cylinder then reveals a normal ballerina or the face of a gentleman of the 18th century. A strange, elongated drawing turns out to be the head of Abraham Lincoln when held up to eye level and viewed from the narrow end.

The zoetrope was an optical device invented in England in 1833. It consists of a cylinder mounted on a central pivot so it can be spun by hand. The top half of the cylinder is pierced with a series of slits while a paper band is fastened around the inside of the cylinder on the bottom half. This band carries a series of pictures like an animated cartoon. The illusion of moving pictures is created when the cylinder is rotated and the pictures are viewed through the slits. The illusion is possible because of the phenomenon known as "persistence of vision."

Inevitably, experimenters combined the features of the magic lantern with those of the zoetrope to create projected motion pictures. That was the beginning of the movie industry.

Each picture has a slightly different angle of vision. The brain merges the two pictures into one image with the illusion of depth.

The Wheatstone stereoscope, invented in 1832, incorporates two mirrors and a type still in use today in modified form.

The projects in "Photo and Scene Machines" should provide many hours of educational entertainment for youngsters and adults, and should be fascinating for beginning camera fans and experienced enthusiasts alike.

Author Budd Wentz, who recreated these optical gadgets, is also the author of "Paper Movie Machines," an award-winning book from the same publisher and at the same $2.50 price. The books are distributed nationally in book, gift, toy, art material and educational supply stores. Martin School Board Adopts Student Policy

WILLIAMSTON — Members of the Martin County School Board at the April meeting approved a no-admittance policy for out-of-state students. The policy applies to students whose parents or guardians are not residents of North Carolina, but who seek to attend the public schools in Martin County. In approving the policy, an exception was made to students in the out-of-state category already enrolled in the schools.

Another policy matter was discussed but no action taken. This was the portion of a personnel policy that now allows payment to teachers for lost time due to an injury in the line of duty, with no time period specified. The discussion centered on means of putting a time restriction on such payments so that it would not amount to an "open end" policy.

A decision was made to go to the county commissioners to seek funding in the amount of $197,530 to complete work on Phase II of the Roanoke High School athletic facility. This is the amount needed to install bleachers, a press box, concession stands, lighting; and a fence. Funds for this facility are not included in the current school budget.

A low bid of $6,995 made by Builders, Inc. was approved for work to correct the floor level of the auditorium at Farm Life Elementary School. In another property related matter, the board voted to grant a 60 foot right of way to the town of Jamesville for the purpose of constructing a road around the school site.

An amount of $1,300 was approved to support a special project undertaken by students at Bear Grass School under the direction of Elizabeth Roberson. The students are preparing a book on the history of the tobacco industry in Martin County.

In a follow-up action from the last meeting, the board added supervisors to personnel approval for a salary supplement. Funds for the supplement will be from local sources.

Something new and instant has been added to the public services provided by the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Service.

The Extension Teletip is a toll free phone-in recorded informational service that provides pre-recorded tapes on many dozens of topics under several major categories.

The Teletip number is 1-800-662-7301, and the service is operable from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday.

Four instructional steps are involved in getting the information. These are: Select from the brochure the number of the tape you wish to hear; dial the teletip number; request tape by its number; and have a paper and pencil handy to take notes.

Sixteen major categories are listed in the brochure. These are: Canning; freezing; food safety; jellies, jams and preserves; pickles; drying and storing; flowers; shrubs; lawns and ground covers; fruits and nuts; house plants; trees (shade and ornamental); pets (in and around the house); vegetable gardening; vegetable gardening (general information); and energy.

Promoting Leaf Sales

HAMBURG, WEST GERMANY (AP)—Governor Jim Hunt met Wednesday with German cigarette manufacturers and officials of several German companies to try to boost German imports of U.S. tobacco.

Hunt was on the third day of an industry-hunting trip in Europe.

Hunt told German tobacco officials he would like to see U.S. tobacco sales expanded into East Germany.

"Purchases of American tobacco have gone down some 24 percent in the last two years," Hunt said. "And the German representatives cite as one reason a lack of flavorful up-pestalk tobacco."

Hunt said the German companies are urging more American tobacco growers to produce more of the top-quality leaf.

Hunt also strongly urged that the German tobacco companies encourage their government to press for reduction of tariffs and tax barriers to the importation of American tobacco.

"I would also like to see discussion among the tobacco importers and the American tobacco farmers so the farmers can understand the needs of the importing countries," Hunt said.

Plan To Teach The World By Satellite

By HAROLD H. MARTIN
PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Never leaving his Philadelphia operating room, a professor of surgery at the University of Pennsylvania teaches his art to a pupil who stays at the University of Calcutta. That's the idea.

If Prof. Thomas Naff is successful, it may happen. It would be done by television, video systems and satellites. "The mind soars," said Naff. "A surgeon here could teach that technique live to medical students in several parts of the world at the same time. And they could see more than if they were sitting in the operating room."

"Think what it would mean in teaching language and history, to take the student into a village and have interaction. You could have a great scholar giving a lecture to our students at the same time as he gives it to his own."

"There is so much to do before we can achieve that — the ultimate goal. "But it is not a fantasy. It's a reality that is achievable in a decade."

Naff then qualified that to say it could be achieved domestically within a decade, but worldwide may take another generation.

"I really don't know if we can make it work. But it has to be tried."

Recently at the U. of P., Naff hosted a meeting of educators, television experts, satellite builders, legal experts and technicians. They formed the National Committee for Internationalizing Education

PRINCIPAL'S LIST

Jeffrey Spain was recently honored for academic achievement at Wellcome Middle School when he was named to the Principal's List for the last marking period.

Through the Use of Educational Satellites.

Meeting came five years after Naff began talking of the idea as a way to avoid duplication of efforts among universities. The experts looked at the problems — technical, legal and otherwise — of establishing a worldwide satellite educational system and tried to set a program for making it a reality.

Naff says a satellite system could provide a daily diet of courses utilizing the teaching of world experts. It would have, in his words, "the potential — I do not exaggerate — for changing higher and secondary education fundamentally within the next decade or so."

In particular, he says it could help bring about change "eradicating kinds of ignorance our student body has about other regions, even as close as Canada, and the stereotypes."

While a lot of work has been done already on satellite education, Naff said, interest and financing has been fragmented. The technology is already available.

"What we need to do is mobilize all the interests and get them to work in unison toward this goal," he said.

Although on an informal basis he has uncovered some interest abroad, Naff said his initial intention is to organize the system within the United States and test its operation here before approaching foreign governments.

He said he would expect that if it were government financed, as he believes it must be, it would first operate abroad in those areas of chief interest to the United States.

Seeks Help Other Women In Grip Of Alcoholism

By RICHARD HUGHES
NEW YORK (UPI) — One evening about four years ago, Dr. Jean Kirkpatrick saw a television news clip about an illiterate old man who worked a lifetime to become the world's best maker of bricks.

"I, on the other hand, had tried my hand at a hundred things and never mastered any, simply because everything came too easily for me," she thought. "What was I an expert in? Drinking. Just drinking."

"That night I couldn't sleep because of thinking of that old man. Again I felt disgust with myself because all I knew was 27 years of drinking. It was the only thing in my life that I stuck with through thick and thin."

Dr. Kirkpatrick, now 55, recalls this moment in a book, "Turnabout: Help for a New Life," which chronicles her alcoholism and a program of recovery from the disease for women through "Women for Sobriety."

Dr. Kirkpatrick, who holds a doctorate in sociology, began "Women for Sobriety" to provide women with an alternative to Alcoholics Anonymous, which she tried without success. The organization is based on the methods she used to get sober and to rebuild her self-esteem as a woman.

"I think that the fact that the image of self of women alcoholics is the main thrust of the whole thing, the reason why women need a separate organization," she said in an interview.

A major difference between female and male alcoholics, she said, is that women have strong feelings of guilt for problems caused by their drinking while men feel remorse but rarely guilt.

"In the years I was in A.A. and heard men alcoholics, I rarely heard a man talk about guilt. I heard very many stories in my years in A.A. about remorse, but I don't ever recall any one man discuss guilt. I'm not saying they don't feel it, but I don't think it is a large problem with the majority. Whereas with women, I would put it as high as 98 per cent feel some kind of guilt." Dr. Kirkpatrick also believes that although more women are finding their way to A.A., the organization still is dominated by men. "There is a reason for this," she said. "In the beginning, they didn't even want women in. They found it very unusual to admit a woman into the program. That was in 1935. Even today, A.A. membership is only 31 percent (female)."

Alcoholics Anonymous, which is acknowledged to have the most successful program for the treatment of alcoholism, holds to a tradition of refusing public comment on public issues, but most male members — and many female members — would question Dr. Kirkpatrick's claim of sexism.

Kathy, 31, a recovering alcoholic and a counsellor in an alcoholism treatment program in New Jersey who participated in the interview with Dr. Kirkpatrick, said that, while she identified with Dr. Kirkpatrick's personal story, she had not experienced discrimination against women in the three years she has been attending A.A. meetings in rural Pennsylvania or suburban New York. Said Robert B., a 34-year-old New York writer: "I find it the most equal organization in the world. It doesn't matter how you make your living, where you went to school or didn't or what kind of clothes you wear. All that matters for men or women, black or white, tall or short, rich or poor, is that we have all been down that same road and we found a new one to walk today."

Dr. Kirkpatrick agreed the number of women in A.A., particularly in urban areas, "is growing because alcoholics everywhere — and most especially women — are coming out." But she said discrimination still exists against women alcoholics in many areas of the nation and in government-sponsored recovery programs.

According to Dr. Kirkpatrick, there are 10 million alcoholics in the United States and only about 1 million are in recovery programs. Women comprise about half the total number of alcoholics but are short-changed on the available programs of recovery, she said. "Out of 600 halfway houses in the United States, only 30 are for women. Out of 574 federally funded programs, there are now only 17 for women. It went up three last year."

Priorities Are Planned

GRIFTON — Priorities were set and plans made to go ahead with improvements to the Town Park tennis courts and formation of a Tennis Improvement Association at a meeting held at the Town Hall Friday, March 31.

An organizational meeting for the new group will be at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, April 12, at the Grifton Library, and all tennis players are urged to attend to help decide how and when to launch a ways-and-means project to supplement funds in the Town Recreation budget earmarked for tennis.

Estimates on patch-paving the often-called "dangerous" area near St. David Street at the tennis courts will be obtained before the meeting by John Cotton Manning, and estimates for resurfacing the entire courts will also be presented. These were listed by the group last week as the first priority.

"I don't feel competition with A.A. at all. For heaven's sake,

Dr. JEAN KIRKPATRICK

Big Turnout At Meeting

Tuesday night's meeting of the Greenville Home Builders Association attracted a record attendance for the fourth consecutive month as 94 persons were on hand.

Etsil Gordon and Ed Warren, candidates for the Pitt Board of County Commissioners, spoke to the association on their campaigns.

Sam Pollard, chairman of the Parade of Homes project, reported that the regional Parade of Homes activities are set for Sept. 23 and 24. Ollie Harrington, state director, gave a report on the recent meeting of the state association in Greensboro.

Two special guests, Jay Gavins, national representative for the region, and Bob Bonham, an employee of the National Association of Home Builders on the HOW (Home Owners Warranty) Council, were present for the meeting.

Gavins spoke on trying to define problems of the local association and solving them on the national level. He also discussed the Westlaw program of computerized legal services offered by the national association. Bonham discussed the new HOW program, involving up to a ten-year warranty on new construction.

Chico Clark was installed as a new member of the association.

there are four million (female alcoholics) left over with no program to go around. I would like to see frankly, if it is possible, women in both programs.

"In our membership a lot of women do use both programs, and there's a large part of our membership who went to A.A. and it didn't work for them."

She added that a "large portion of our groups are lead by women with five, six, seven years of A.A. sobriety, and they look upon this as an addition to or a different phase of their recovery process."

"We are not really saying the heck with our brothers," she said. "This means really in a sense within our group among alcoholic women we are responsible for each other's sobriety. It's not that I'm telling men alcoholics to go fry an egg."

Like A.A., Women for Sobriety meet in small groups to share their experiences and feelings and seek kinship and support in a common bond. Dr. Kirkpatrick encourages women to join who may not be alcoholic but whose lives have been disrupted because of drinking. "A great thing about Women for Sobriety is that women are coming in at a much earlier stage in their drinking," she said.

In the more than two years since Women for Sobriety was begun in July, 1975, with one chapter in Quakertown, Pa., it has grown into a nationwide organization with more than 200 chapters and approximately 2,000 members. Since Dr. Kirkpatrick's book was published, the organization's Quakertown office has received as many as 100 letters each day, and 10-15 new chapters have been established.

Helen Hayes Returning To TV After Long Absence

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The tiny, two-time Oscar winner said she first visited this hamlet in 1917 to make a movie, "Polyanna, the Glad Girl," and "when we got here, my 17-year-old heart nearly burst."
"Because I was breathing the same air as those gods and goddesses... then it smelled of orange blossoms," Helen Hayes said. She surveyed the smog outside her hotel room and winked.
"It smells a little different now."

Miss Hayes, who usually partakes of fresher air around her homes in Nyack, N.Y., or Cuernavaca, Mexico, was in town to tout a new movie she just did for NBC, "A Family Upside Down."
It airs Sunday, her co-star is Fred Astaire, it's about an elderly couple separated when the husband suffers a heart attack, and it marks her reunion with producer Ross Hunter of "Airport" fame.
Miss Hayes, who got her second Oscar as the little old stowaway in "Airport" (the first was in 1931 for "The Sin of Madelon Claudet"), appears on TV about once every vernal equinox.

But the pleasant, kindly face of America's first lady of theater lit up when one mentioned how much he enjoyed the "Snoop Sisters" detective shows she did with Mildred Natwick for NBC in 1974.
"It's surprising, people keep saying that," she mused. "It was a miniseries, with the possibility of doing more. But the hours were fierce and we never got a script in advance."
"I think we worked too hard for two women of our age."
Miss Natwick concurred, she said, and asked her to write

NBC, asking for a cease-fire. So she sent "a very polite letter" that said both stars loved the show, but there was one thing wrong.
"I said I was too old for it, so would they let me off the hook?" Miss Hayes said. She said she then went to North Africa on vacation, returning to find she had indeed been let off the hook.
"First time I've ever been fired," laughed the lady, who began acting at age 5 in her hometown of Washington, D.C. "Ever since then, I've met more people saying they liked that show."
She said she later considered doing a similar series and even signed with a TV mogul to do a small-screen version of Agatha Christie's "Miss Marple" mystery novels.

Seek Shrubbery For Beautifying
GRIFTON — An appeal was issued this week for evergreen shrubs such as hollies for foundation plantings and for beautification of the area near the concrete pad at the Grifton Civic Center.
Telephone poles, railroad ties, topsoil and fertilizer have been pledged as donations to the beautification effort for the Civic Center grounds, and shrubs and labor to plant them is still needed, according to Beautification Coordinator Mrs. Janie Mae Mewborn.

Anyone interested in aiding the beautification program should contact Mr. Mewborn.

But there was a wee snag, she sighed: The mogul couldn't get the rights. Fortunately, she was paid anyway, "and this helped me make my whole garden over in Cuernavaca."
Would you still like to do a Marple-like series, anyway?
"Not anymore, no," Miss Hayes said. She cited "a lovely daydream" she's had about seriously retiring because the advance word she's gotten on "A Family Upside Down" as that it's a fine film.

"I felt, wouldn't that be a nice exit — not to go back and start scrambling around doing something else," she smiled.

been correct, for the hand is balanced and that is the most descriptive bid. South simply bid what he expected to make.
West attacked with the ten of hearts, won in dummy. The king of spades was led from dummy, and East flew up with the ace to return the queen of clubs. It was obvious to West that this was a singleton, so after he won the ace he made a shrewd return—the ten of clubs. His idea was to lull declarer into thinking that East had led from the queen-jack of the suit. Declarer fell hook, line and sinker. He rose with the king, and East's ruff spelled defeat, for declarer had no way to avoid a diamond loser.
Declarer was unlucky to encounter a 5-1 club split, and West is to be congratulated for his cleverness. But boiling in oil might be a just fate for declarer for going down in a cast-iron contract.
South can afford to lose three tricks—the ace of trumps and two in the minor suits. He shouldn't care whether it was one trick in each minor or two in clubs. Declarer should simply play low on West's club return, preserving the king for later use.
It makes no difference whether East follows to this trick or not. Declarer can ruff the next club, draw trumps, and later use the king of clubs profitably to dispose of his losing diamond, thus making his game.

West indulged in a mild bit of deception to defeat South's four spade contract on this deal. However, declarer had only himself to blame for going down.
With stoppers in all suits, North had an ideal one no trump opening, despite the fact that he held a five-card suit. Even if the five-card suit had been a major, one no trump would have

William Friday Gets Fan Mail

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — The largest volume of fan mail in North Carolina right now may be going to a 57-year-old educator whose role as president of the University of North Carolina system has brought him into conflict with federal officials.

William C. Friday is receiving an average of 25 letters a day praising his opposition to the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare in a dispute over desegregation of UNC.

An aide to Friday said Wednesday that virtually all the mail, along with 99 percent of the heavy volume of phone calls to the university regarding the desegregation dispute, praises the university president for his decision.

"Thank you for standing your ground against HEW's unreasonable demands," a Martinsville, Va. woman wrote recently. "It is comforting to know there is one man left who is not a spineless jellyfish and a lilly livered coward."

A Greensboro business man wrote, "Certainly I join many fellow graduates of our fine university system in applauding your courageous stand during these difficult times. I understand and appreciate how fortunate we are to have an educator of your character and standing looking after one of the state's valuable assets."

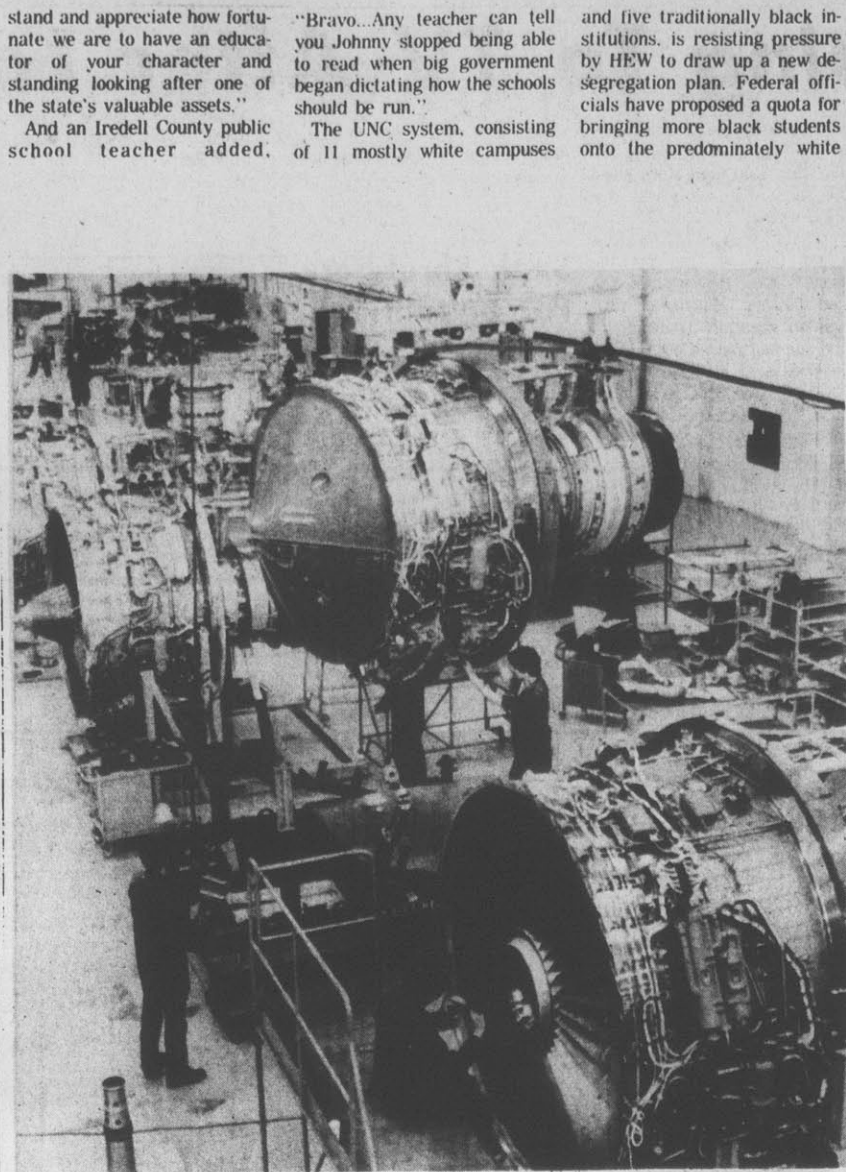

And an Iredell County public school teacher added, "Bravo...Any teacher can tell you Johnny stopped being able to read when big government began dictating how the schools should be run."

The UNC system, consisting of 11 mostly white campuses and five traditionally black institutions, is resisting pressure by HEW to draw up a new desegregation plan. Federal officials have proposed a quota for bringing more black students onto the predominately white will sell engines for 12 aircraft in a deal worth $218 million to Lockheed with an option for 14 additional aircraft. The Rolls-Royce engines were chosen in favor of the General Electric or Pratt and Whitney designs. (AP Laserphoto)

Symposium On April 12

The Rho Epsilon Real Estate Fraternity, in cooperation with the North Carolina Association of REALTORS and the North Carolina Real Estate Educational Foundation, will sponsor its third annual symposium on April 12 in Mendenhall Student Center.

The program will begin at 9 a.m. and conclude at 4 p.m. The topics to be covered include: Residential Brokerage, Property Management, Mortgage Banking, Residential Land Development, Commercial Brokerage, and Real Property Valuation.

The purpose of this program is two-fold: first, to give the student some insight into the opportunities open to them in various real estate specialties and, second, for those REALTORS having openings in their firms to offer such positions to graduating students of interest to them.

Several real estate firms have expressed an interest in hiring ECU graduates. All interested persons are invited to attend.

Library Week Being Observed

This week is National Library Week. Its theme is "County on Your Library."

Mrs. Beatrice Maye, librarian at Aycock School here, said library-media centers and their programs are an essential part of any school. She said the right to have books and other materials to read and to have them in abundance and easily accessible. This abundance and accessibility is provided in the schools, she said, where students may read books — hard and paper backs, view filmstrips, educational tv, listen to records and tapes, tape their role-playing performances for self-evaluation and to share with others, play educational games, and browse through newspapers and magazines.

It is imperative, she said, that everyone "count on his library" every week in the year, not just this special week.

Venezuela Bans Some Imports

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Despite its sizable oil revenue, the Venezuelan government has banned the import of some 500 consumer products in an attempt to ward off a predicted $2.5 billion foreign trade deficit.

The banned items include plumbing fixtures, shoes, carpets, cloth for curtains, cooking pots, wardrobes, clothes dryers, bicycles and wall paper. Motor vehicles were banned earlier in the year.
