Parking Meter Removal Voted By City Council

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Visitors to the downtown business district will soon find most of the parking meters gone as a result of action Thursday night by the City Council.

The Council voted unanimously to adopt, with minor exceptions, the recommendation of the Greenville Parking Authority to remove certain meters in the area.

The Authority had suggested that the parking meters be removed, effective July 1, on a one-year trial basis with a review scheduled at the end of the trial session to consider making the action permanent.

Mayor Percy Cox said last night that the Council decided to remove the designated meter heads effective on May 15 rather than July 1 and to continue the action on a trial basis through the summer, fall and winter periods.

According to a resolution adopted by the Council, "at the end of this trial period, if it is the determination of the...Council that the removal of the parking meters is successful, all meter posts will then be removed from the city sidewalks and parking areas which have been designated for removal."

The action by the Council, which has the endorsement of the Downtown Greenville Association, calls for the removal of all parking meters in the CBD with the following exceptions: red meters allowing 30-minute parking for five cents; meters on two leased lots at the former Rose's site on Evans Mall and at Georgetowne Shoppes; and meters on the Hooker lot at Second and Cotanche Streets which would offer all day parking for 25 cents per day.

The Council also adopted a recommendation by the Authority to initiate a system of tire marking in lieu of the removed meters with shoppers being able to park for two hours free of charge. Overtime parking fines under the new system will be increased from $1 to $2.

An ordinance was also approved establishing a $5 fine for illegal stopping, standing (double parking), and parking. Cox explained that the overtime parking violators will receive a red ticket while parking law violations such as illegal stopping will carry a white ticket.

The question arose from a member of the audience regarding the possibility of parking in one area and having tires marked and then moving to another area to park and receiving an overtime ticket. The mayor contended that the possibility would be remote.

Council member Mildred McGrath suggested that different chalk colors might be used for various areas in the downtown section.

The recommendation by the Parking Authority followed several months of study by the agency as well as by the Downtown Greenville Association, which actively sought and recommended the meter removal.

Over 400 meters are affected by the removal action.

In another key item, the Council voted to adopt a resolution authorizing the mayor and city manager to negotiate a lease with the county for operation by the county of the present city landfill.

Cox explained that the Council had spent a "whole lot of time" with the County Commissioners on the Pitt proposal to take over operation of the landfill.

He said that the county, in assuming operation control of the landfill, would purchase the equipment the city has at the facility for some $85,500.

Full utilization and completion of the landfill site would take place earlier under the county operation, it was pointed out, possibly within six to seven years.

When the site is complete and State Board of Health guidelines and inspections have been met, the property will revert back to the city for

Sheltered Workshop Fire Loss Estimated $100,000

A paper recycling processing and storage facility at the Eastern Carolina Sheltered Workshop and Vocational Rehabilitation Center here was destroyed by fire early yesterday afternoon.

Greenville firemen were called to the blaze at 1:30 p.m. and worked the fire for more than three hours before flames in the bales of paper stored in the building were finally extinguished.

Fire officers, who said the building was engulfed in flames when fire units arrived, said an electrical short circuit may have started the blaze in the wood and aluminum building.

Sheltered Workshop executive director Howard Dawkins this morning said the loss was estimated at about $100,000. He said the building was completed last year at a cost of more than $30,000. One piece of equipment housed in the recycling facility — a bailer for the paper — cost $45,000 while a vacumn system in the structure cost $3,600.

Dawkins said there were some 167 tons of paper stored in the building, valued at more than $5,700.

According to Dawkins, "There was nobody in the area of the building," when the fire ignited, and no one was injured.

He noted that plans are now under way to rebuild the recycling center. "We plan to rebuild it out of steel and concrete," Dawkins emphasized.

The Sheltered Workshop is a local non-profit facility organized by Pitt and Martin Counties to provide training and other services for handicapped individuals.

The paper processing facility collected paper, bailed it and sold it to recycling plants.

Dawkins, who said there was insurance on the building and its contents, expressed the hope that there was adequate insurance to rebuild the facility.

He expressed the hope that the coming year will, "be the best year we've ever had."

Output Up For March

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government said today that U.S. industries increased their output in March by the largest amount in a year, an indication the economy is recovering from its winter slump.

Industrial production for March was up 1.4 percent, the largest increase since March 1977, when it rose 1.6 percent. In January, industrial output dropped 0.8 percent and in February it was up 0.3 percent.

Growing industrial production means factories are hiring more workers and there is an increased demand for products.

In 1977, the economy rebounded strongly in March after snowstorms and freezing weather forced factories to close. The economy has been recovering more slowly this year, but today's report indicated activity is picking up.

Although striking coal miners did not return to work until the last week of March, output of energy materials was up 1 percent in March.

Despite the strong showing in March, the output of the nation's mines, factories and utilities increased only slightly from the fourth quarter of 1977 to the first quarter of 1978. The Federal Reserve Board, which released the report, said that reflected the effects of severe winter weather and the long coal strike.

The biggest gain in March was in production of consumer durable goods, such as automobiles, home appliances and furniture, which went up 5.2 percent. These products, which could lead to increased consumer buying, had been less in demand in January and February.

Production of autos rose 13 percent alone in March to an annual rate of 9.3 million units. Output of home goods was up 1.9 percent.

Production of consumer goods such as food and clothing rose 0.8 percent, not as strong as the 1.9 percent rise in March 1977.

Output of business equipment, a sign of business confidence, advanced 1.2 percent and was 8.2 percent higher than a year earlier.

The output gains in March were described as widespread, and were 4.2 percent higher than the year earlier.

Report Angers Indians

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Relations between the United States and India are bound to be damaged if there is truth to a report that the CIA abandoned a nuclear device in the Himalayas that could poison the holy Ganges River, Foreign Minister A.B. Vajpayee says.

The State Department said it was checking into the report, and U.S. Ambassador Robert F. Goheen told the Foreign Ministry he would provide information as soon as it becomes available.

The Indian Parliament was taking up the report today, and heated words were expected. The 1,560-mile-long Ganges is the principal waterway of northeastern India and considered sacred by the nation's 450 million Hindus.

The report appeared in Outside, a publication of the American magazine Rolling Stone.

It said a CIA mountaineering team tried to plant the device atop 25,645-foot Nanda Devi in 1965 to monitor nuclear test explosions in China. Bad weather halted the climbers 2,000 from the peak, and they cached the nuclear power pack among some rocks. When they returned the next year, they found the device had been buried by an avalanche.

The device contained plutonium 238, which remains radioactive for up to 500 years, the report continued. When its outer covering corrodes, cancer-causing poisons could seep into tributaries of the Ganges and thence into the river.

City, County Lease Plan Authorized

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The execution of a lease agreement between the city and county for the operation of the Moyewood Family and Child Development Center on W. Third Street was authorized last night by the City Council.

The lease, according to Mayor Percy Cox, involves an agreement with the Department of Social Services of Pitt County for the use and operation of the center by the agency at a rental fee of $1 per year.

Cox said that the Moyewood Center has been used for a child care/operation involving some 40 children and an interest has been expressed to increase the services.

He added that the city has offered to take care of renovations at the facility at no costs to the county and then to turn over the operation of the day care center to the Pitt agency. Councilman Clarence Gray voted against the lease agreement.

Under the agreement, the lease will be effective July 1 of this year and terminate on June 30, 1979, "but subject to extension from year to year."

The facilities, formerly utilized as a county maintenance garage, also include a playground area adjacent to the building, enclosed by a chain link fence.

The Council gave its approval to four recommendations submitted by the Traffic Commission, denied a fifth suggestion, and tabled action on a sixth item involving parking in the downtown section.

Approval was given to the commission's recommendation that a request from Mills A. Pruden on behalf of Immanual Baptist Church to erect "No Parking from 1 a.m. until 8 a.m." signs on the north and south sides of Brookgreen Avenue be endorsed.

Also, the request from Hugh Cox to erect "No Parking Tow Zone" signs at the north end of Sulgrave Road from the end of the curbing to the intersection with Charles Boulevard was approved.

A petition from residents of S. Elm Street to erect "No Parking from 1 a.m. to 8 a.m." signs on S. Elm from Overlook Drive to Treemont Drive was approved, as was a petition from residents of Brookgreen Subdivision to erect "No Parking from 1 a.m. to 8 a.m." signs on both sides of Longmeadow Road from Airlee Drive to Garden Circle.

The Council, after discussing the parking situation involving East Carolina University students, voted to deny a request by Police Chief Glenn Cannon to erect "No Parking from 1 a.m. to 8 a.m." signs on the north sides of Seventh and Eighth Streets between James and Cotanche Streets.

Action on a request by Dave Mosier on behalf of the Downtown Greenville Association to erect "No Parking from 1 a.m. to 8 a.m." signs on both sides of Reade Street from First to Fifth Street was tabled. It was pointed out that residents of the women's dormitories near Reade do not have adequate parking facilities and some of the students park their cars along Reade Street during the week.

An ordinance was adopted by the Council relating to abandoned and junk motor

HOTLINE FEEDBACK

RESPONSE

Much more is needed, but Hotline and the family and friends of leukemia patient, Billy Ray Justice, are gratified with the loving response that has come so far to the appeal run Wednesday.

Friends and strangers alike have called and asked what they could do, Billy's fiancee says. She has told them that Billy, who's in isolation at Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center now being prepared for a bone marrow transplant, would love to hear from them. His address is Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center, Room 1910-7, 1275 York Ave., New York, N. Y. 10021; his phone number, 212-879-3000.

Hilton Nichols this morning presented Miss Travis, Billy's fiancee, $1,300 donated by Billy's fellow employees at Greenville Utilities. Hugh Carroll brought her $85 given Wednesday night by Moose Lodge members.

Billy's age was incorrectly reported in the Wednesday item. He is 23, not 28.

12-Year-Old Relates Assault

CONCORD, N.C. (AP)—With school out, Mike, a 12-year-old seventh-grader, headed for the YMCA to play basketball. But he never made it..

Instead, the 4-foot-10, 74-pound youngster said he was waylaid by an older and larger boy who, for the next two hours, subjected him to a beating with a stick and a brick.

Stewart Pernell Huntley, 15, entered a plea of innocent to assault with a deadly weapon, crime against nature, and robbery. Testimony in his trial continued today.

Mike, which is not his real name, related in Cabarrus Superior Court Thursday that he was choked, kicked, kneed, shoved onto rocks, held under a stream of water gushing from a drain pipe and sexually attacked before being set free after the Jan. 6 attack.

Twice Mike broke into tears and once the jury was sent from the courtroom while the youngster composed himself. He said the older boy also took his watch and $1.30 from him.

Mike pointed to Huntley, sitting with his lawyer, and identified the teen-ager as his attacker. "He kept saying if I ran or hollered he'd kill me," Mike testified.

Before he was released, Mike said, breaking into tears a second time, his attacker set his shirt and jacket afire.

Dr. Dave Lockhart, a Concord pediatrician, testified that four stitches were taken in the youngster's head and there were bruises and cuts over much of his body. Mike, hospitalized for days, also had second-degree burns on his back, the physician testified.

U.S. Officials Say Ian Smith Is Blocking Talks

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (AP) — Rhodesian guerrilla leaders are expected to endorse the British-American plan for their country's transition to black rule in a round of meetings begun today with Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and British Foreign Secretary David Owen.

But U.S. officials say Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith — and not guerrilla leaders Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe — is blocking a conference of all Rhodesian factions to negotiate a peace agreement.

Vance and Owen first met with the two guerrilla chiefs for about a half-hour today at the Kilimanjaro Hotel, where Vance is staying. The four were then joined by representatives of Botswana, Tanzania and Zambia, three of the black states that back the guerrillas.

Envoys from Mozambique, Angola and Nigeria were to join the talks later. The discussions are scheduled to continue Saturday.

Although some differences remain, a senior U.S. official said — Nkomo and Mugabe have given their approval to the key elements of the British-American plan to end their six-year-old guerrilla war against Rhodesia's white minority and establish democratic black rule in Britain's former colony in southern Africa.

The two key points to which the guerrilla leaders objected previously were a British high commissioner, Lord Carver, at the head of the transition government, and the stationing of a U.N. force in Rhodesia to keep peace during the transition.

Nkomo and Mugabe were persuaded to agree to these points by their chief supporters, the so-called "front-line" presidents of Tanzania, Zambia, Mozambique, Angola and Botswana.

However, U.S. officials have little or no hope that Vance and Owen, when they go Monday to Salisbury, the Rhodesian capital, will be able to get the concurrence of Smith and the three moderate black leaders with whom he signed an agreement on March 3 for transition to black rule by the end of the year.

The agreement excludes Nkomo and Mugabe and includes guarantees to Rhodesia's white minority which the guerrilla leaders reject. Meanwhile, Smith and his black associates — Bishop Abel Muzorewa, the Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole and Chief Jeremiah Chirau — are setting up a biracial transition government and preparing to write a constitution and hold one man, one vote elections.

Owen on his arrival from Britain said Smith and the moderates "have not completely rejected" negotiations with Nkomo and Mugabe, but "until they realize their route does not offer them peace, I think they will show a certain reluctance."

"I am not totally pessimistic, but obviously the signs are not terribly good," said Owen.

The moderate black leaders claim they have the support of at least 80 percent of Rhodesia's 6.7 million blacks, and the Rhodesian army clearly holds the upper hand in the guerrilla war. But U.S. officials fear that unless an agreement acceptable to Nkomo and Mugabe is worked out, they will seek the help of Cuban troops and Soviet advisers as the governments of Angola and Ethiopia have.

Vance and Owen are going Sunday to South Africa to talk with Foreign Minister Pik Botha about South-West Africa, and then to Salisbury on Monday. Vance is due in Moscow next Friday for arms talks with the Russians.

Claims Hodges Is 'Waffling'

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — State Sen. McNeill Smith, one of eight candidates for the Democratic nomination for U.S. Senate, Thursday accused opponent Luther Hodges Jr. of waffling on the issues in the U.S. Senate campaign and said the Charlotte banker has been quoted as saying he and incumbent Republican Sen. Jesse Helms "are not far apart" in their political philosophies.

Smith was the leadoff speaker at a forum here for the eight Senate candidates, the two 11th District congressional candidates and contenders for the North Carolina Supreme Court and Court of Appeals.

Hodges was represented at the forum by Dr. Fred Bentley, president of Mars Hill College, who said Hodges had a previous commitment.

Hodges is generally considered the front-runner in the contest for the Democratic nomination to the Senate seat now held by Helms.

Smith said he brought to the campaign a lifetime of experience and knowledge of the issues that none of the other candidates have.

"The other candidates, Luther Hodges, for example, have no such record. We have seen his father's record, but not his record because he has none," Smith said.

Bentley did not respond directly to Smith's charges but said the polls show Hodges is the man who can defeat Helms in the general election.

"Luther Hodges has a great record of public and private service to our state and nation, Bentley said.

The other senatorial candidates who spoke at the formum included Tom Sawyer of Greensboro, state Sen. Lawrence Davis of Winston-Salem, Dave McKnight of Fayetteville and Joe Felmet of Winston-Salem.

A representative of Insurance Commissioner John Ingram said Ingram was unable to fit the forum into his campaign plans.

further use.

Mayo Allen, director of Public Works, told the Council that he saw no difference in the operation of the landfill under the county auspices and he noted that the county has indicated it will work with the city in the matter.

Allen added, "I see no problem with it."

Mrs. McGrath said she was "delighted to see the cooperation with the county commissioners" and to have the landfill area finished sooner to provide a "usable recreation site."

The city budget currently calls for some $100,000 for the operation of the landfill, Cox reported.

City residents will still have the opportunity to use the site as under the present operation, it was noted.

A draft of the proposed lease points out that the "county will conduct a landfill operation and said operation will be at no extra charge to the city of Greenville, or the citizens of the city of Greenville."

Teen Gymnast Aims At Olympics

By MARGARET NELSON
Associated Press Writer

DURHAM, N.H. (AP) — Every day Denise Walker spends at least three hours in the gym — balancing, vaulting, running, stretching and tumbling.

With the single-minded intensity of a champion gymnast, she jumps confidently from the floor onto a 3-foot-high balance beam practicing moves that will draw gasps of admiration from audiences.

Her goal is the 1980 Olympics.

The 17-year-old freshman at the University of New Hampshire sees little of what makes up the life of most of her classmates. Her mornings may belong to the classroom, but her afternoons are filled with balance beams, uneven bars, and the sometimes tedious repetition of exercise.

"I saw my first hockey game this week because I took a day off, but I don't have time to be involved in extra-curricular activities," she said.

Denise's soft voice and slight 5-foot-2, 90-pound frame give an appearance of frailty that is immediately dispelled when she hurls herself from bar to bar on the uneven bars.

Her tentative conversation is punctuated with shy smiles. But her large blue eyes are unwavering, revealing the tenacity that marks her gymnastic performances.

She has devoted most of the past six years to gymnastics. In exchange for missed teenage pleasures she can say she has traveled across the country and competed against some of the top women in the sport.

Her skill on the balance beam, and in particular her ability to perform a front walkover on the width of the beam, is a delight to crowds and earns her almost perfect scores at meets.

She fell just short of qualifying for the U.S. Olympic team in 1976. Now, she only looks to 1980.

"I put together the best performance I possibly could then. Of course I was disappointed, but it wasn't the end of the world," she said.

Her coach says she could be Olympic material even though in 1980 she will be 19, several years over what is considered the prime age for female gymnasts.

"It is a realistic goal as far she is concerned, if she is willing to make the sacrifices, and the sacrifices are considerable," says Lou Datilio, coach of the UNH women's gymnastic team.

Denise says she follows no special diet to maintain her weight. "I eat what I want until I start gaining weight."

But it is her slight frame and flexibility which allow her to exhibit the grace that characterizes many famous Olympic contenders such as Romania's Nadia Comaneci.

"She can perform almost perfectly on the balance beam with little warm-up. And, even when she is having a bad day and occasionally falls, she just gets right back on the beam with no fear," says Datilio.

The UNH team has won all its meets this year, even though it faced much tougher competition than in the past.

Denise's career in gymnastics began when she was 12 and took a local tumbling course. The course led to a competition, which she won. The competition led to gymnastics camp, which led to a full-time commitment.

At 13, she began attending gymnastics school in New Haven, Conn., as a full-time student. While at the Muriel Grossfeld School, she began participating in national competition.

The concentration and cross-country travel have left her with a poise and apparent sophistication beyond that of her classmates. She feels that the disciplined life of a gymnast has helped her mature.

"Gymnastics has had a definite effect on my personality. Since I was 12, I have been totally responsible for myself," she says.

MRS. DAVID BERRY

Couple Weds In Ceremony Saturday

Oakmont Baptist Church was the scene of the Saturday wedding ceremony of Jill Bohanon and David Berry. The double ring ceremony was performed at one o'clock by the Rev. Gordon Conklin.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. June Edwards of Greenville, and Mr. Jay Bohanon of Campbellsville, Ky. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Berry of Mansfield, Ohio.

A program of organ music was presented by Susan Beck.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length gown of white qiana fashioned with a high mandarin collar and long sleeves with wide lace cuffs. The bodice featured a lace inset and a ruffled over-the-shoulder ruffle. She carried a lace fan centered with silk flowers tied with lace ribbon.

The bride attended Murray State University and the University of Kentucky. The bridegroom also attended Murray State University.

Following a wedding trip to the coast, the couple will live in Greenville.

A reception was held at the Ramada Inn following the wedding ceremony.

Memphis Parties Are In A Book

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

A young woman who enjoys entertaining told me that she found a cookbook called "Party Potpourri," published by the Junior League of Memphis, Tenn., enormously helpful. And she said one of its recipes, Sausage Stroganoff, was worth the price of the book.

After trying the recipe, we're inclined to agree. Part of the charm of Sausage Stroganoff is its versatility: it may be used as a main dish or as snack fare. When I talked on the phone to its donor, Mrs. Eugene R. Nobles Jr. of Memphis, she told me that the recipe came from her mother in Helena, Ark. Mrs. Nobles was a prime mover in achieving successful sales for the Memphis Junior League's other publication, "The Memphis Cookbook." Some of the techniques she evolved for selling that book were used to promote "Party Potpourri." As a result, about a hundrd thousand copies of the party book were sold between 1971 and 1977.

An appealing feature of "Party Potpourri" is its inclusion of plans for all kinds of parties — brunches, coffees, small-fry and teen-age festivities, teas, receptions, lunches, informal suppers and elegant dinners. The plans outline appropriate invitations, menus, decorations and service. Enticing party recipes make up about two-thirds of the book.

SAUSAGE STROGANOFF

1 clove garlic, peeled
2 pounds bulk pork sausage meat
3 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
2 teaspoons soy sauce
2 teaspoons paprika
1/8 teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons butter
1 cup chopped (fairly fine) onion
1 or 2 six-to 8-ounce cans sliced mushrooms, drained
1 pint commercial sour cream
Hot cooked rice or Melba toast

Rub a large skillet with the garlic; heat skillet. Add the sausage and cook, crumbling with a fork, until well browned. Pour off all the fat. Stir in the flour. Add the milk. Cook, stirring constantly, until slightly thickened. Stir in the Worcestershire sauce, soy sauce, paprika and pepper; set aside. In a medium skillet melt the butter; add the onion and mushrooms and cook until the onion is golden; add to the sausage mixture and stir well. At serving time, heat until bubbling. Stir in the sour cream; reheat but do not boil. Keep hot in a chafing dish or similar utensil. Serve with rice as a main dish or with Melba toast as a dip. Makes about 2 quarts. Adapted from "Party Potpourri," available from Memphis Junior League Publications, 2711 Union Avenue (Extended), Memphis, Tenn., for $5.50.

Attendance Pins Given Members

Perfect attendance pins were given to several members at the meeting of the Red Oak Extension Homemakers held at the home of Mrs. J. P. Vainright.

Members receiving pins were: Mrs. Carl Crawford, 13 years; Mrs. Bill Goin, 11 years; Mrs. J. T. Manning Jr., nine years; and Mrs. Robert Allen, six years.

President Mrs. Manning conducted the meeting and the devotional was given by Mrs. Vainright.

During the business session, plans were made to attend the Northeastern District meeting in Elizabeth City April 18. Stamp Chairman Mrs. Harold Deitch turned in 3,300 cancelled stamps to be used toward the purchase of food and clothing for the needy.

The education report was given by the County Education Chairman Mrs. Allen. She told of the agencies in Pitt County where disabled and handicapped citizens could receive help. Other leader reports were given on nutrition, house furnishings and volunteer work.

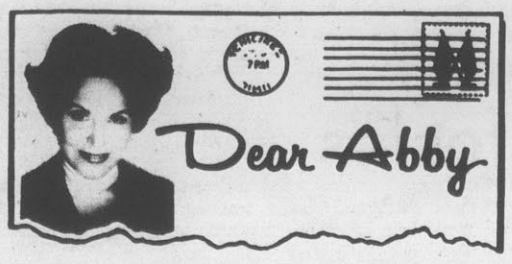

In connection with the Cultural Arts Project on Lap Reading, visual aids were made to be used with children's books at Sheppard Memorial Library story hour.

Preparing For Future Should Start Now

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My sister has a 10-year-old son who was born with one deaf ear and about one-third hearing in the other ear. His doctors have informed my sister that eventually the boy will be totally deaf.

Don't you think my sister is being extremely unfair to hide the truth from her son? She is an intelligent woman, but she seems almost ashamed of her son's handicap. She said she couldn't bear the thought of his studying lip reading or sign language so young.

She thinks highly of your advice, Abby, so please answer.

CARING AUNT

DEAR AUNT: Your sister is doing her son a shocking disservice. The boy should start preparing immediately to live in a silent world. It will be much more difficult for him to learn after he has suffered a total hearing loss.

Urge your sister to discuss it with her son's doctors and to follow their recommendations. And I hope for the boy's sake she acts at once.

DEAR ABBY: There is an old man who goes to our church. He's very friendly and everyone likes him, but he's beginning to get on the girls' nerves. (By "girls," I mean any female between 12 and 60.)

You can't really call him a "dirty old man," although he acts like it at times. I wouldn't mind a brief hug as a greeting, but this man does a lot of pinching and patting in the clinches.

I mentioned this to a girlfriend of mine who has also been on the receiving end of his pinching and patting, and she said, "Forget it—he's 93!"

Abby, do you think a man should be excused for his actions because of his age?

PINCHED AND PATTED

DEAR P AND P: Certainly, there are two periods in a man's life when he can get away with anything. When he's too young to know what he's doing, and when he's too old.

DEAR ABBY: Our 17-year-old son got a ticket for speeding (he has no car, it was his father's), so we took away his driving privileges for a month. It has been only five days now and this boy is unbearable. He is ugly and hateful. He hardly eats, and he refuses to look at us. He answers our questions with grunts and shrugs, and he says he won't be "nice" until we give him one more chance and restore his driving privileges.

My husband has had one coronary and was told to keep calm and avoid excitement, but this son of ours is pushing him to the boiling point.

I honestly don't know how to cope with this. Should we give in?

SULKY'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: If you "give in" now, you will teach your son that the way to get what he wants in life is to punish those around him with his ugliness. Ingore his act. If he doesn't eat, it's his hunger. Don't ask him any questions. It will only provide him with an opportunity to exhibit his surliness. Let him sweat it out. You'll be doing him a favor.

If you put off writing letters because you don't know what to say, get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters For All Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (24 cents) envelope to Abby; 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Today's Ideal Whipping Boy

Department of Health, Education and Welfare Sec. Joseph A. Califano defended his $30 million anti-smoking campaign before the American Society of Newspaper Editors this week.

He called the amount a "miniscule investment" designed to offset the tobacco industry's "sinister" campaign to lure youth into smoking.

Then the secretary had to deliver what must be the misstatement of the year.

Neither alcohol nor drug abuse "costs this country anything remotely near what smoking costs," he was quoted as saying.

Is the secretary kidding? Perhaps he should put some of his army of statisticians to work on figuring the costs of alcohol traffic related accidents in this country. The information is available on accident-report-after-accident-report. There is damage to automobiles, deaths and injuries which eliminate workers from productiveness.He might consider the alcohol related diseases which cut short the lives of those afflicted.

We can't believe Sec. Califano is considering the full costs of drugs in this nation.

There is the health cost to the users and also the tremendous costs of purchasing the drugs illegally.

Figures are hard to come by for something that is handled illegally, but we are aware of huge marijuana confiscations in North Carolina coastal areas. Just the tax loss for that which gets through must be mind-boggling.

To make the statement he did, we have to believe the secretary can't be very aware of the huge cost to society of alcoholism and illegal drugs.

But then, it seems that tobacco is an ideal whipping boy these days. If you are a high official in Washington, you just don't go around messing with the 5 o'clock cocktail hour . . . no matter how many get wiped out on the highways at 5:45.

True To Tradition, Candidates There

The John Pierce Fellowship Club has been meeting on the banks of the Contentnea beween Ayden and Grifton for 56 years. Originally it was a birthday party for John Pierce of Ayden.

There are only a few who remember that first meeting, and they include Marvin Blount, Sr. and Judge Dink James of Greenville.

There are few rules for membership, but on elections years candidates for local and statewide offices flock to the affair — and the crowd is always heavily Democratic.

This week the club met again for fellowship and barbecue, and a short business session. True to tradition, the candidates for the May primary were there, and the topic of conversation was first of all politics.

WASHINGTON (AP) — On the morning after President Carter delivered his latest fight-inflation speech, Washington newspaper readers could take their pick of reaction reported from business and financial circles.

The lead article in the business section of the Washington Post said "business leaders, such as General Motors Corp. Chairman Thomas A. Murphy, expressed relief that the president continued to reject wage and price controls ... ."

Four pages later, under a headline that read "Dollar Weakens Sharply After Carter's Comments," a New York foreign exchange specialist, James Sinclair, was quoted as saying, "The market had anticipated some form of controls other than the voluntary restraint called for."

Carter, in his carefully prepared address Tuesday to the American Society of Newspaper Editors, noted that, where inflation is concerned, "There are no easy answers."

This was something of an understatement. Indeed, every American will be watching to see if there are any workable answers that do not carry political or economic price tags too inflated to be acceptable to Carter, the Congress, business and labor.

Already the unions that represent federal workers are in full cry against a central feature of Carter's anti-inflation program — a proposal to limit the 1978 salary increases for government white collar employees to 5.5 percent.

Carter said he was bent on "setting an example for labor and industry to moderate price and wage increases."

So, for purposes of argument, let's assume Congress approves the wage hike ceiling and that private employers do the same. Then further assume that living costs rise this year by about 7 percent, a level believed likely by many economists.

Obviously, in such circumstances, the worker who is limited to a 5.5 percent wage boost would not be able to buy as

Class Size And Students

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — The bottom line to any debate over public schools in North Carolina today comes down to a concern shared by parents and educators: teaching Johnny to read.

State Rep. G. Malcolm Fulcher, D-Cartaret, thinks his special legislative study commission has cut through to some important ways to do just that.

"The smaller your class size, the better your learning situation. It's amazing what you can do with a smaller group - the interaction, the exchange of affection, the encouragement and inspiration ....the fun," says Fulcher.

The Fulcher Commission has outlined an ambitious change in emphasis for the schools: to restrict class size in all grades from kindergarten through high school to one teacher for 26 students, and to allot teachers at a ratio of one for each 23 students while all administrative, special service and support personnel would be allotted above that mark.

The Cost

Ambitious? It would require nearly 10,000 new school employees, and cost half-a-billion dollars to phase-in the recommendations over a five-year period.

"Sure it calls for a lot of money," Fulcher says. "But this is a blueprint of a long-range goal for North Carolina. At least it would put us on the right track."

Dollar figures, he believes, are deceptive. Declining school enrollment will offset some of the cost increase. But salary hikes through the years will increase them. Much of the change could be accomplished by re-directing present funds, and many local school units already provide additional money to do some of the things recommended.

Why so much emphasis on restricting class size and demanding that teachers be assigned to teach? The present state system puts a lid on class size, especially in kindergarten through grade three, but lets size escalate especially in junior and senior high. Besides, loopholes allow exceptions even to those levels.

Additionally, teaching slots are often used to hire counselors, librarians, administrators, and clerical personnel. Such allotments should be for the classroom, the Fulcher commission concluded.

NOBLITT

As the report of the study group notes: "The reduction in the number of different pupils that must be taught by each teacher would result in a better understanding of each pupil, improved diagnosis of learning problems, the development of a more individualized learning program for pupils tailored to their specific learning abilities, and more personal and individual attention to a pupil's educational needs."

A Gap

Correction is also suggested for what the legislators considered a deplorable gap in the schools — special services in psychology, counseling, social work are "extremely inadequate...school dropouts, drug abuse, truancy, underachievement, and poor discipline are examples of the problems the pupil personnel team attempts to alleviate." But personnel are less than half the numbers needed: one school nurse per 17,400 students; one psychologist per 7,292; one elementary school counselor per 2,438 children.

The State Board of Education accepted the recommendations of the commission on Allocation of Personnel to Local Administrative Units without committing itself to immediate action. Meantime, three other study groups are preparing recommendations: one on teacher training and certification; one on public school funding; and one on salaries for educators.

Fulcher, who is a school guidance counselor, feels that the combined impact of recommended changes will put the state on the right track educationally.

Improved Tax Fantasies

WASHINGTON — Many magazines have been doing articles on sex fantasies. It's amazing how many men and women will talk about them if their names are not used for publication. But it's rare to have anyone admit that they have tax fantasies. After prying and cajoling, I finally got several people of both sexes to tell me their favorite tax fantasies.

F.M., 33-year-old divorcee, writes: "It is 11 o'clock at night. I'm home alone reading Erica Jong when the doorbell rings. I put on my housecoat and go to the door. 'Who is it?' I ask.

" 'Cohen of the IRS,' is the reply.

" 'How do I know you're Cohen of the IRS?' I ask.

" 'Who else would be at your door at 11 o'clock at night?'

"I open the latch and there is Cohen, holding a satchel in his hand. 'Frieda,' he says, 'I have a $3,000 refund for you.'

"I gasp and clutch the top of my housecoat.

" 'How can that be?'

" 'Your ex-husband, at the suggestion of his present wife, insisted on paying the income tax on your alimony, even though he didn't have to.' He hands me the money and I faint dead away. When I wake up, Cohen is sitting at the table counting out $3,000 in brand-new $100 bills."

L.D., a 30-year-old car salesman, writes: "I have this tax fantasy, maybe two, three times a week. I'm called down to the IRS office for an audit. The agent tells me to bring down all my receipts and records.

"He looks like a fat sheriff in a TV comercial sitting behind his desk smoking a large cigar. I tell him I have been meticulous about my deductions, and he'll find everything in order.

ART BUCHWALD

"He chuckles and says, 'That's what they all say. Why don't you make it easy on both of us and tell us exactly how much you've cheated Uncle Sam out of this time?'

"I say, 'It's all here. Every cent I deducted has been verified and accounted for.'

" 'Okay,' he says, taking out his mini-calculator. 'If you want to play rough, I can play rough.' He starts hitting the calculator with his fat fingers. It takes three hours. He goes over the figures again and again. He can't find one thing wrong with my tax return. His face is red. 'There has to be something here.' he says.

"After the fourth time he realizes that the return is perfect. He looks at me, opens the top drawer of his desk and excuses himself to go to the men's room. I wait in my chair. Suddenly I hear a gunshot from the washroom. An aide says. 'Don't feel bad. For him it was the only honorable way out.' "

B. P., a 42-year-old father of three, says his favorite tax fantasy, which he has not revealed even to his wife, starts when he walks into a post office to mail his tax return. "Suddenly I see television cameras and newspaper people. As I put my folder into the slot, Secretary of the Treasury Blumenthal, dressed up as Uncle Sam, steps up to me and says, 'Congratulations, B. P. You are the one-hundred-millionth person to file a tax return in 1978. On behalf of a grateful government, you have won a free business trip to Hawai for two, a four-bedroom tax

Bridge Weakens

(Henderson Dispatch)

It's something of a miracle that the Oregon Inlet bridge off the Outer Banks did not sag while traffic was moving over it. A shocking accident might have occurred.

The Herbert Bonner Bridge was built some years ago to replace ferries which for years plied the route which marks the meeting of of the ocean and the sound. Its pilings rest upon the watery floor which is not completely free from the shifting sands that are part of the Outer Banks area. Even so, its construction was something of a modern miracle.

Motorists who regularly use the bridge will now wonder if similar, or worse, incidents might occur elsewhere in the 2.4 mile span over water. When built it was assumed that the footings were sound. This sag was within 100 yards of the shore at the south end of the crossing. Land was near, but not so near but that tragedy might have occurred.

Water is in almost every direction in the Outer Banks country. A similar long bridge named for former Governor Umstead stretches about three miles from the upper area of Roanoke Island to Mann's Harbor and Stumpy Point. To get from the mainland to near Kitty Hawk there is the similarly long crossing over Currituck Sound. Some distance away is another three-mile bridge from near Edenton across the wide Chowan river to Bertie county and Windsor.

The crossing from Nags Head to Roanoke Island, used by thousands during the summer season, is not of such distance as the others, but can give one the eerie feeling of satisfaction when land is reached.

The Oregon Inlet bridge was built by the State some years ago and is heavily traveled at times. It will be strengthened and again opened to regular traffic some time in May, according to reports.

40 Years Ago Today

Greenville students and teachers appear to be the only persons who will benefit by any Easter holidays, except of course, the banks. The city schools will close this afternoon and will not resume until Tuesday morning.

Both East Carolina Teachers College and the county schools will operate as usual and officials of the Merchants Association declared that no holiday was planned by the various business houses.

While hearings on the proposed radio station for Greenville will not get under way before the Federal Communication Commission in Washington, D. C., until May 3, preliminary government investigation of the matter will begin here tomorrow when federal representatives will take depositions at the office of J. C. Lanier, local attorney. Both tomorrow and Saturday will be devoted to taking these depositions prior to the May 3 meeting.

THE GALLUP POLL

Favor Death For Killers

By George Gallup

PRINCETON, N.J. — With the debate in the New York state legislature having focused national attention on the death penalty, the Gallup Poll sought to determine current attitudes on capital punishment for four major crimes — murder, rape, airplane hijacking and treason.

Public attitudes on the death penalty are conditioned to a great extent by the type of crime as well as the socio-economic background of the survey respondents.

Six in 10 (62 per cent) of Americans nationwide favor the death penalty for murder. But the weight of opinion is against capital punishment for rape, hijacking and treason.

The public votes 56 to 32 per cent against capital punishment for rape, 52 to 37 per cent against for hijacking and 50 to 36 per cent against in the case of treason.

On balance, current views on the death penalty for murder closely parallel those recorded two years ago, when a 23-year high point was recorded in support. Support for capital punishment for murder is down slightly, but at the same time opposition has also declined.

Women are far more likely than men to oppose the death penalty, except in the case of rape, where their views are similar to those held by men. Whites are more likely than nonwhites to support the death penalty, except in the case of rape.

The educational background and age of respondents are also important factors, with younger persons and those having a college background more inclined to oppose the death penalty in the case of each of the four crimes studied.

Background

In 1972 the U.S. Supreme Court found the death penalty, as then administered, unconstitutional. Since that time, however, 35 states have enacted new death penalty statutes. Both the Senate and the Assembly in New York state recently voted in favor of the death penalty bill. The margin in both houses, however, appears insufficient to override a promised veto by Gov. Hugh Carey.

Fear Of Crime As Grown In Last Decade

The nationwide increase in support for the death penalty over the last decade coincides with a sharply rising fear of crime on the part of the American people. The Gallup Poll's most recent study on crime showed nearly half of the public fearful of venturing out after dark in their own neighborhoods. One person in five nationally says he or she has been physically assaulted, had his or her home broken into or property vandalized during a 12-month period tested.

Reasons Pro And Con

Analysis of the reasons given by survey respondents both for and against the death penalty for murder indicates considerable ambivalence in public attitudes — for example, on the questions of deterrence and rehabilitation.

Those in favor of capital punishment frequently cite these arguments: (1) the death penalty acts as a crime deterrent; (2) jail sentences are an economic burden on society; (3) criminals today "get off too easily"; (4) vengeance — "eye for an eye"; (5) jail is not rehabilitative.

Those opposed to capital punishment give these reasons: (1) Religion forbids it, the Bible says, "Thou shalt not kill"; (2) the death penalty is not a deterrent; (3) there should be life imprisonment with no parole; (4) people can be rehabilitated; (5) the legal system is not equitable; (6) taking a second life will not solve anything.

VALUE OF DREAMS

Leonardo da Vinci made a drawing of an airplane over 500 years ago and iscribed beneath it: "There shall be wings."

People have pondered his words for many centuries, and many dreamed of the time when the prophecy could be realized. But it was necessary to wait until the twentieth century for the building of the internal combusion engine which would make the airplane possible. Leonardo saw the coming of air travel, but for him it could be only a dream.

The dreamer is one of the persons upon whom humanity relies for progress. Plodders there must be by the millions who do the routine work which makes the dreams come true. But it is the dreamer who first sees what is possible, and thereby stimulates people to try new things. So if you are a dreamer yourself, or have a child somewhat disposed to dream, do not be discouraged. Greateness often lies in dreams.

No Desire To Stop Inflation?

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP BusinessAnalyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Barry Bosworth knows why we have inflation. He knows also why we fail to contain it.

Enhancing this understanding is Bosworth job. He is director of the Council on Wage and Price Stability in the executive office of the president of the United States.

So why isn't inflation stopped dead? It isn't from lack of understanding, Bosworth and his staff suggest. But it might very well be, they indicate, that we don't have the desire to stop it.

Here, distilled, is Bosworth's explanation, which removes any notions that we are dealing with a plague whose origins are not understood and against which Washington is relatively helpless:

We know that supply-demand imbalances can initiate inflation. Less easily recognized are the reasons why inflation persists even when the supply demand balance has been restored.

Structural changes in the economy seem to hold part of the answer. The economy has become less sensitive; "competitive market restraints on some price and wage increases have become limited."

Labor markets, for instance, operate differently from the textbooks. Shielding wages from market forces are unions, professional groups, changing social attitudes, legal wage rate requirements and the like.

"Similarly in product markets, economies of scale, product differentiation, high fixed costs and long construction periods often limit the number of firms that are in immediate price competition..."

Consider these additional factors."The growth of the public sector, increased government regulation of private decisions, the growth of non-competitive sectors such as medical care..."

Add to these: "The declining relative importance of the more price-competitive sectors such as agriculture." Together, they have lengthened the lag in the economy's response to market forces.

Long-term contracts complicate the problem.

We expect more. And we have attempted to moderate inequities by dulling the edge of raw competition.

Together, these factors "have had a combined effect of reducing normal competitive restraints on individual price and wage decisions and lengthening the time over which they occur."

It is the concluding cause that is perhaps most pertinent to the current political-economic climate, involving directly their boss, President Carter, and Congress.

"People naturally want to catch up with rival groups, maintaining or even improving their relative position."

But then, without using the word politics, they explain that this desire is fed rather than restrained.

More is promised every interest group but without agreement from others to accept less.

The difficulty, they continue, "is that the sum of the gains — promised and anticipated — exceeds the economy's capacity to provide them, and ultimately inflation becomes the means by which those promises are scaled down."

ONLY FRAME STANDS — Greenville firemen play water on the remaining frame members of a paper recycling plant at the Eastern Carolina Sheltered Workshop yesterday. Flames destroyed the building causing approximately $100,000 in damages. Fire officials said the building was engulfed when fire units arrived. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

shelter in Texas, full depreciation on your house for five years and a tax-deductible three-martini lunch at a restaurant of your choice.'"

T. R. is a 21-year-old career woman who has worked her way up in the stockroom of a very cheap department store. Her boss is known as the "wicked stepmother." Every April there is a ball given by the store before the spring clearance sales.

The stepmother says T. R. can't go to the ball until she counts all the glass slippers that are still unsold from a previous Cinderella promotion which never got off the ground.

As T. R. is counting the boxes a Fairy Godmother arrives with a new dress from Bergdorf Goodman and a diamond ring borrowed from Elizabeth Taylor. T. R. goes to the ball and meets a handsome prince. He falls in love with her, but at the stroke of midnight she has to leave. She loses her glass slipper. After a futile search he finally finds T. R. in the stockroom and tries the slipper on her foot. It fits.

He confesses he's really not a prince but actually works for H & R Block, the tax consultants. He explains to her that if they get married they could save $345 a year on their income tax. Overcome with the thought of the tax loophole, she says yes, and they live happily ever after.

Changes Recommended In Competency Tests

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A cultural bias subcommittee has completed a question-by-question analysis of the state's competency tests in an attempt to eliminate cultural and sexual bias from the testing program.

All North Carolina high school seniors, beginning next fall, must pass the competency test before they receive a high school diploma.

The committee has recommended several changes on the test. For example, the subcommittee suggested changing physicians' names in one question from male to female. They also recommended replacing "Anglo" surnames with Spanish names in another question.

The committee also suggested that many "disadvantaged" students have never seen examples of standard application forms, which are used on the reading portion of the three tests.

James J. Gallagher, chairman of the state Competency Test Commission, said a technical review committee also will provide a statistical analysis of the trail test results which are expected early in May. The analysis is expected to identify questions which cause problems for more girls than boys or more blacks than whites. Gallagher said a second set of recommendations will be based on the technical examination of the tests.

He said no final action will be taken on any of the proposed changes until after the commission decides late in May which of the three trial tests will be used next fall.

Allegations of test bias has become an issue in Florida, the first state to require high school students to pass a competency test in order to graduate. Florida students took their first competency tests last November.

The Florida NAACP complained that the test was "culturally biased." In Florida, 77 percent of the blacks failed the math test and 26 percent the reading and writing portion, compared to 24 percent failure rate on the math portion and three percent on reading and writing for white students.

Gallagher said black and white student performance in the Florida case "does not necessarily indicate cultural bias."

much with his 1978 salary as he could a year ago.

Equally obvious is the fact that if this happened on a massive scale, great numbers of Americans would be forced to lower their standard of living — not drastically, to be sure, but enough to feel a pinch.

Of course, Carter did not voice a direct appeal for lower living standards. Nevertheless, his effort to have federal workers set an example would be a move toward the kind of belt-tightening that leads logically to at least a mild recession.

To be sure, one certain cure for inflation would be deflation — something not seen in this country since the early 1930s.

To repeat, the president is not advocating deflation: he does not want to leave office as the new Herbert Hoover.

B-W Plant Is Cited By VFW

The Greenville plant of Burroughs Wellcome Company on Thursday received a Citation of Excellence from the North Carolina Department of the Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW) for outstanding efforts to hire veterans.

Presentation of the award took place at the Greenville American Legion post during a luncheon meeting of the North Carolina Veterans Council.

The award to Burroughs Wellcome was a statewide recognition for a facility in North Carolina in providing employment to veterans. Burroughs Wellcome was honored in the category of an operation employing 200 or more workers.

A. R. (Pete) Peterson, State Junior Vice-Commander of VFW presented the award to Walter Faulkner, employment supervisor at Burroughs Wellcome.

Also on hand for the occasion were Greenville Mayor Percy Cox, Cleve Cox of Raleigh, State Adjutant Quartermaster, James E. Hannan, manager of the Greenville office of the Employment Security Commission, Kendrick Taylor, director of veteran affairs at the Employment Security Commission, and Robert Bowman of the Personnel Department, Burroughs Wellcome.

The Greenville firm, which produces a wide range of pharmaceutical products, received the award based on the high percentage of veterans who have been hired by the company.

Of a total of 1,032 employees, 250 are veterans, which gives Burroughs Wellcome a 24.3 per cent record of veteran employment. A majority of the veterans employed are ones who have seen service in the Viet Nam conflict; although the veteran force comprises persons who have served in World War II and during the Korean conflict.

During fiscal year 1977, Burroughs Wellcome hired 170 new employees. Of this number 19 were veterans.

In accepting the award on behalf of Burroughs Wellcome, Faulkner pointed out it is the company's policy "to give suitable employment to all workers, to renumerate them well, to promote their welfare, and to assist them in providing for their future.

Faulkner added that "Burroughs Wellcome has made outstanding progress in the area of veteran employment, and has adopted the policy of hiring through the Employment Security Commission here which lists all vacancies not filled from within the plant.

"Veteran preference is therefore assured on all job openings received by the commission. This company is committed to affirmative programs to include employment opportunities for veterans."

In his brief message, Mayor Cox commented that "some individuals and employers believe that hiring of vets is doing the vet an honor. Actually I have found that hiring of vets has been a favor to me. They have been conscientious and eager to perform well."

ESC Manager Hannan, commenting on the award, stated "Burroughs Wellcome has made outstanding efforts in the hiring of veterans. We're quite pleased with the fine example that the company, one of the largest employers in Pitt County, has set in the areas of veteran and minority employment."

VFW AWARD TO BURROUGHS WELLCOME . . . Walter Faulkner, left, accepts the Citation of Excellence on behalf of Burroughs Wellcome from A. R. (Pete) Peterson, State Junior Vice Commander of the N. C. Dept. of Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW). The award to Burroughs Wellcome was in recognition for outstanding efforts in the employment of veterans.

Freshman Trying To Be Wake Forest Trustee

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — A freshman at Wake Forest University, backed by 1,094 signatures on a petition, is trying to become the first student trustee who is not a North Carolina Baptist.

Daniel Peterson, a Presbyterian student from McLean, Va., says that despite the odds against him, he knows he has one-third of the undergraduate student population of the school behind him.

And he says some of Wake Forest's administrators, including President James Ralph Scales, are on his side.

"I just don't think it's fair for the student trustees to have to be North Carolina Baptists," Peterson said. "Registered North Carolina Baptists comprise only 22 percent of the student body here."

Student body elections are Tuesday, and the only name which will appear on the ballot for student trustee is that of Jay Helvey, the only state Baptist student who has applied for the post.

Peterson's campaign began about eight days ago, when he saw a notice advertising the election of student trustees. The student trustee serves as a regular board member along with the 36 trustees, and is elected to a two-year term.

Peterson was told, when he applied to the student committee, that he couldn't run because he is not a North Carolina Baptist.

The Wake Forest charter and the by-laws of the board of trustees stipulate that the student trustees, like the regular trustees, must be a state Baptist.

Student body officials have promised Peterson that they will discuss the issue with a faculty committee which screens applications for the position.

In the election of the student trustee, the student body officials choose the top six applicants, and the student body votes for three. The faculty committee then chooses two of the three. University president Scales then picks the trustee from those two students, and the other student becomes the alternate.

"Technically, there is no way for me to be the winner," Peterson said. "But at least I will make a point."

Peterson said Scales plans to try to open the board up to non-North Carolina Baptists next year.

Candidates To Appear

The League of Women Voters of Greenville-Pitt County will hold a County Commissioners' Candidates' Forum Tuesday at 8 p. m. at the First Presbyterian Church, corner of 14th and Elm Streets here.

County Commissioner candidates have been invited to express their views and objectives and answer questions. Pitt County is governed by a six-member Board of Commissioners who select their own chairman and vice chairman. They establish policies and laws of the county, levy taxes, make appropriations, authorize bonds and appoint certain county officials. They are salaried and meet regularly on the first Monday of each month, with call meetings frequently held.

The four-year terms are staggered, with three commissioners elected every two years. Seats vacant this year are those of the fourth, fifth and first district. Nine candidates have filed. They are incumbents, Ed Warren, Alton Gardner and Burney Tucker, and new aspirants Tom Johnson, Etsil Gordon, Howard Wilson, Douglas Gurkins, Walter Gaskins and Maxine Wiggins.

Experts Say Art Thefts Nearing Epidemic Stage

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Today's art thieves range from international criminals who send stolen paintings along trails traveled by narcotics to small-time burglars who fence sculptures as if they were television sets, say experts who warn that the problem is getting worse.

A Picasso watercolor stolen Wednesday from a Rochester, N.Y., museum was valued at $150,000. There are no comprehensive statistics on the worth of art stolen every year, but the total is rising. Alan Baer, executive director of the International Association of Art Security, said it is "way in excess of, substantially in excess of, $25 million." Other experts have put the value near $1 billion.

The people interviewed by The Associated Press agreed there is no such thing as a profile of the typical art thief.

"Some thieves are knowledgeable," said a spokesman for the Art Dealers Association of America Inc., who asked not to be identified by name, but "many art crimes" are committed by people who don't know the value of what they have stolen.

"As the art market has grown, the thief himself has matured," said New York City Police Detective Robert R. Volpe, an expert in recovering stolen works. Volpe said burglars who used to steal jewelry now are turning to art and antiques.

Volpe said there is "joint cooperation among the criminal element" involved in art theft. "It's a crime network." He said this international network often operates along the lines used by organized crime for narcotics. "There's a relationship between the two ... networks," Volpe said, although he added that they do not necessarily involve the same people.

Discussing the diversity of art theft, Huntington Block, head of the Huntington Block Co. of Washington, D.C., which insures many major collections and exhibits, said: "People react differently to art." Some thieves want ransom, Block said; others fence the loot. "We've even had a few who just wanted to look at the paintings for a couple days," he added.

The spokesman for the art dealers group said lesser-known paintings and sculptures often are sold by thieves just as they would sell any other stolen object. The stolen items are unrecognized by the buyer and "easily sink into a kind of anonymity."

At the same time, the spokesman said, "More and more, works are taken which are ransomed back" by insurance companies. Why? "It works. They (the thieves) get their money. They don't have to know how to market a famous work and the collector or institution is simply happy to get the work back."

Volpe disagreed. He said many works used to be ransomed, but said such payments are "no longer an accepted practice." He said law enforcement authorities try to discourage insurance companies from paying ransom which "only invites a second theft" by solving the criminal's problem of how to dispose of the art.

Baer, whose nonprofit, New York-based association keeps a computerized file of stolen and recovered art works, real and fake, said that New York, because of its size, is the best market in the United States for fencing stolen art. But he said cities in Europe and South America are also popular. "There is some similarity between the network of stolen art and that of narcotics," said Baer.

He said there were several reasons for the increase in art theft, including lack of technical expertise on the part of law enforcement authorities, lack of a means of positive identification for works of art and lack of a central reporting facility.

It is not hard to transport paintings from country to country, Baer said. "I've walked around with close to $50,000 worth of paintings ... and never had the packages examined," said Baer, describing a trip from New York to London and then on to France and Switzerland.

The Megavitamin Fad

My daughter will attach herself to any fad. Now she and her girlfriend are spending a good part of their salary on a megavitamin trip. I am not in a position to battle with her. I wonder if you have any information that might be important for me and for her. — Mr. D.H., Fla.

Dear Mr. H.:

I have very special feelings about the exploitation of young people who become involved and overenthusiastic about a new fad. Very recently, Dr. Victor Herbert, Clinical Professor of Medicine at the Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons in New York City, has made his feelings clear about the megavitamin fad.

He said, "Megavitamin therapy is largely nutritional nonsense. Now I know that some people won't agree, but I'd like to state why I believe megavitamin therapy, with a few rare exceptions, is not only nonsense but potentially dangerous quackery.

"In general, a megadose is tenfold or more above the recommended dietary allowances. These RDAs are levels of essential nutrients considered adequate to meet the nutritional needs of practically every normal person. These levels are deliberately set above the daily requirement by a substantial safety margin to ensure that the needs of nearly all normal persons are met. Thus, they exclude persons with congenital defects in vitamin utilization and acquired defects in nutrient absorption. Such individuals do require intensive medical evaluation and proper treatment which may at times include large doses of vitamins.

"When a patient has a vitamin deficiency because of inadequate ingestion of the vitamin, the treatment is simply to provide the vitamin in reasonable dosage rather than megadoses, or preferably to get the patient to eat each day a food containing the missing vitamin."

Dr. Herbert, in this authoritative article, points out that undesirable effects can result from megadoses of vitamin A, vitamin B6, nicotinic acid, vitamin D, and vitamin E. He refers specifically to megadoses and not to the daily nutritional requirements of the body. He emphatically states, "I can see no value in using megavitamin therapy except in very specific instances... otherwise I believe megavitamin therapy is without rational basis and may be harmful."

Now, you have this from an authority who has studied and evaluated the need for rational use of vitamins. There is no mistaking his attitude to a fad which he considers exploitative and potentially hazardous. Armed with this documentation, perhaps your daughter and her friend can reasonably accept his opinion and modify their enthusiasm for this new and unsubstantiated fad.

264 Discussion

Two public informational meetings regarding the preliminary corridor location alternatives and an environmental impact statement for proposed improvements to U.S. 264 from Wilson to Greenville have been scheduled this month.

The N.C. Department of Transportation, Division of Highways, has employed the engineering firm of Rummel, Klepper and Kahl to prepare the impact statement, and meetings have been set to receive public comment regarding the study on the corridor locations.

The first session is scheduled for April 25 in the courtroom of the Municipal Building in Farmville, while the second is set for the high school auditorium in Saratoga on April 26. Both sessions will be held at 7:30 p.m.

The proposed improvements — four-laning of U.S. 264— are included in the State's Highway Improvement Program for right-of-way acquistion to being in fiscal year 1980 and for construction to begin in 1982. Total estimated cost of the project is $54 million.

Written comments or requests for additional information should be addressed to T. L. Waters, Manager of Planning and Research, Division of Highways, P. O. Box 25201, Raleigh, North Carolina 27611.

A total of ten Pitt County students — six from county schools and four from Rose High School — have been selected to attend the prestigious Governor's School during the summer of 1978.

North Carolina's annual summer Governor's School is an enrichment program for high school students designed to broaden the knowledge of students in their primary fields of interest.

This year for the first time, the Governor's School, is being held in two locations in North Carolina — at the traditional site for the Governor's School Salem College in Winston-Salem, and at the newly added school for the program, St. Andrews College, Laurinburg.

Governor's School this summer begins on July 2 and ends on August 12. It is administered by the State Department of Public Instruction with funding from the N. C. General Assembly.

A brief resume of school and community activities and achievements of individual students follow:

Rose High School

— Thomas Chenier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo J. Chenier, has a primary interest in the field of math and will be attending the Governor's School at Salem College. Chenier is a member of the Student Government Association, vice-president of the Chess Club and plays on the chess team, and also belongs to the Math and Spanish Clubs. He is a track team performer, and is secretary of the Catholic Youth Organization and serves on the "Visa" staff.

— JoLindy Kaye Daniels, daughter of Mrs. Josephine Daniels, will attend Governor's School at Salem College based on her ability in math. Claims Dracula Early Patriot

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dracula, at least to Romanian President Nicolae Ceausescu, was no blood-sucking vampire fleeing the dawn.

No, says Ceausescu. Dracula was a Romanian freedom fighter who struggled against foreign domination and oppression.

The subject of the legendary figure of horror fiction arose during Ceausescu's appearance at the National Press Club here on Thursday.

He was asked what he thought of American tourists invading his land to visit Count Dracula's castle in Transylvania, a mountainous region in central and northwest Romania.

—In the first place, the communist chief of state replied, Dracula was no count. He was a commoner.

—In the second place, he was no vampire.

"He was a leader of the struggle of the Romanian people against the yoke of the Ottoman Empire," he said. "It is true he was tough on our enemies and those who had committed treason. But he was very kind and mild to the people and fought for their freedom."

During Ceausescu's state visit here, there have been protests at the White House by Hungarian-Americans about they what they say is a lack of human rights accorded that minority in Transylvania, which touches Hungary's border. Both countries are members of the Soviet bloc, with Romania considered by Western observers as the most repressive internally while being allowed the most freedom to vary from the Soviet position on foreign affairs.

The American image of Dracula is based on the 1897 novel by British author Bram Stoker. He wove a tale about a Transylvanian nobleman who, after sunset, changed into a giant bat that flew about the countryside drawing blood from the necks of his sleeping victims.

In the novel, the count moves to England, terrorizes the nation and eventually dies after a stake is shoved through his heart.

Stoker is said to have based his character on a 15th century Transylvanian known to history as Vlad the Impaler.

He is said to have earned this title from his habit of dropping captured Turks from his castle onto sharpened stakes driven into the earth below.

Say No To Added Days

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Two Western North Carolina school districts have rejected the state Board of Education's proposal that schools closed this winter due to icy roads apply for special funds to extend their school year.

The Alleghany and Watauga county education boards voted this week to ask for permission to reduce the number of days classes are held during the current academic year. The state Board of Education will consider the requests next month. State law requires school districts to hold 180 days of classes, but the Board of Education last year exempted some mountain districts hit by bad weather for lengthy periods.

Elaine Jones, a member of the Watauga County School Board, said the decision not to seek an extension of the school term came after samples of scholastic aptitude test scores showed Watauga High School seniors have not fallen behind academically.

Tom I. Davis, information director for the state Board of Education, said other school districts faced with the problem of extended layoffs during the winter are the City of Asheville, and Ashe, Avery, Buncombe, Haywood, Henderson, Jackson, Madison, Mitchell, Swain and Yancey counties.

Craig Phillips, state superintendent of public instruction, has appointed a task force to study long-term solutions to the problem of weather-related interruptions of classes in mountain areas. The committee is expected to hold its first meeting later this month or in May.

EXTENDED WEATHER UTLOOK FOR N.C.

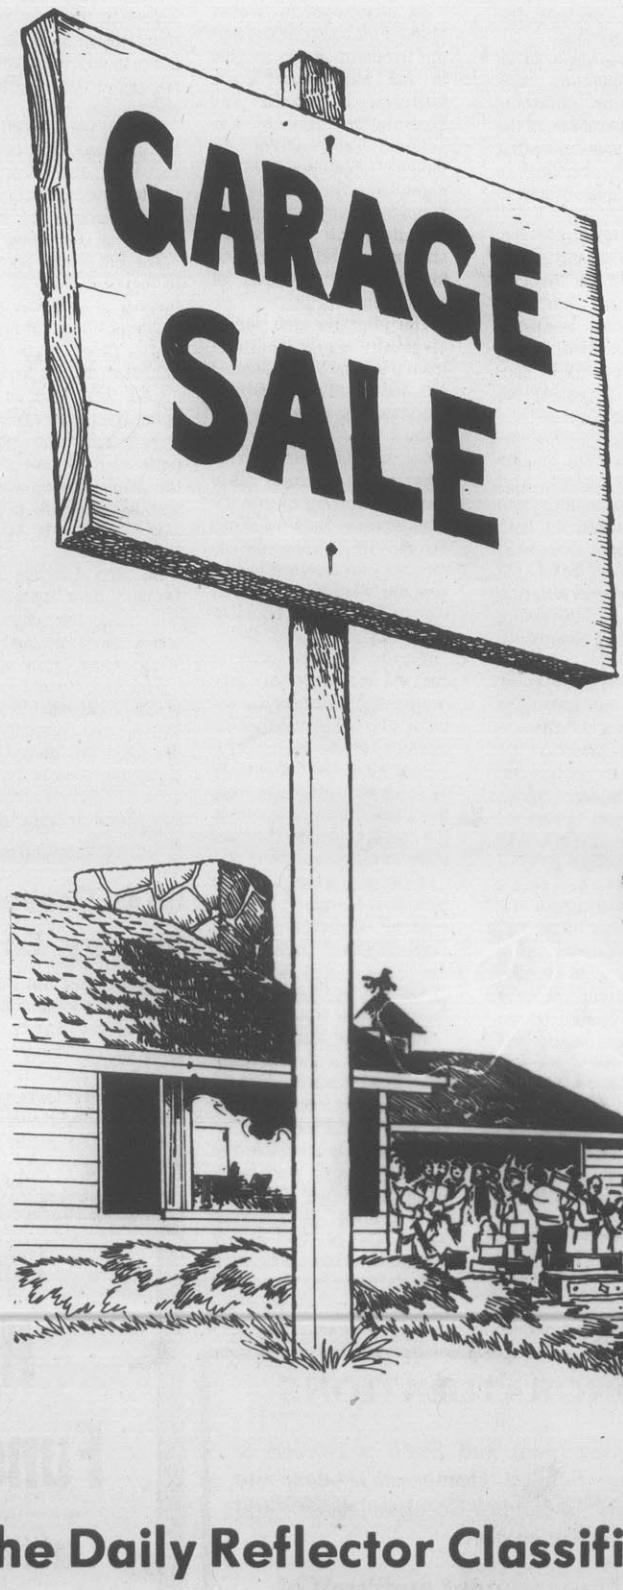

Partly cloudy and mild Sunday through Tuesday. High temperatures will run in the 70s and overnight lows from the 40s in the mountains to 50s on the coast.

HOW TO DO A LITTLE BUSINESS ON YOUR OWN...

Holding a garage sale is a fun way to do a little business on your own . . . but it takes a bit of planning.

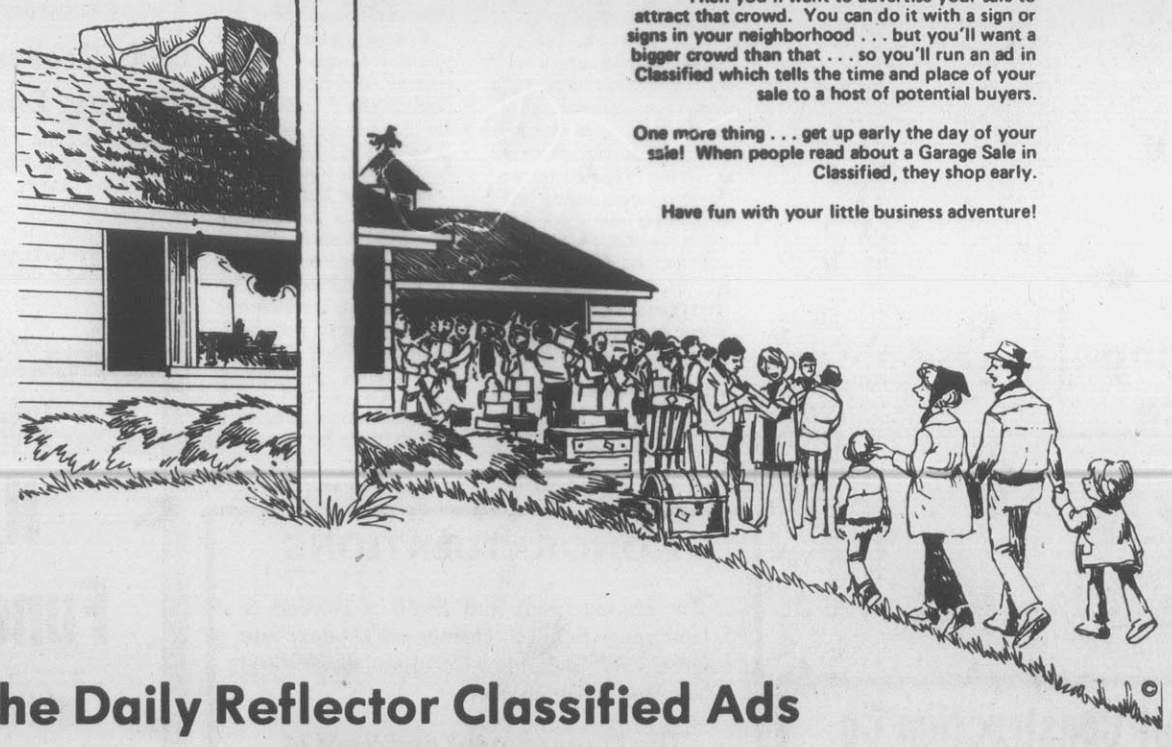

Like you'll want to decide what to sell and how much to charge for each item . . . and then you'll need price tags so other people will know what you're charging.

And you'll have to be able to make change for all your customers . . . so that means you should have lots of one dollar bills and an assortment of coins.

Then you'll want to advertise your sale to attract that crowd. You can do it with a sign or signs in your neighborhood . . . but you'll want a bigger crowd than that . . . so you'll run an ad in Classified which tells the time and place of your sale to a host of potential buyers.

One more thing . . . get up early the day of your sale! When people read about a Garage Sale in Classified, they shop early.

Have fun with your little business adventure!

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market swept ahead today, caught up in a powerful wave of buying that broke trading-volume records at the New York Stock Exchange.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 11.52 at 786.73.

Gainers outdistanced losers by more than a 4-1 margin among NYSE-listed issues.

Big Board volume reached 23.91 million shares by noontime, mounting a challenge to the single-day record of 44.51 million set Feb. 20, 1976.

The first-hour total of 14.97 million made it the busiest opening hour in exchange history.

There was no single news development to explain the upsurge of activity, which began Thursday when the Dow climbed 8.92 points.

Analysts said the market's recent strength in the face of bad news on inflation and other economic problems had touched off a rush of buying by investing institutions who had been sitting on large reserves of cash.

They also said several factors reinforced the rally today. The dollar climbed in value against leading foreign currencies.

And the relatively small $400 million rise in the basic measure of the money supply reported late Thursday by the Federal Reserve came as a pleasant surprise to Wall Street.

Most Fed-watchers had been predicting a large increase that might prompt the central bank to tighten credit in its efforts to restrain inflation.

The rally reached into nearly every corner of the market, with the exception of gold stocks and some other metals issues. More than 1,100 NYSE issues had registered gains as of mid-day.

The Big Board's composite index climbed .61 to 51.52. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .90 at 134.58.

Farmer Plans Plow Up Wheat Crop

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County farmer J. C. Galloway said Thursday that he and his son plan to plow up their 15 to 20 acre wheat crop in a gesture of support for wheat farmers in the midwest.

Galloway noted that midwest wheat growers have already begun a total plow-up of their crops in response to Wednesday's rejection in Washington, D.C. of emergency farm-aid legislation.

The local farmer, who serves as a spokesman for the state effort in the American Agriculture Movement, reported that the farmers in the midwest are being supported in their actions "because the time is soon coming when tobacco growers here will need the support of midwest farmers."

The farm legislation, referred to as the Flexible Parity Bill, represented an increase in the basic support prices for wheat, feed grains and cotton and offered growers of those crops higher federally guaranteed prices this year in exchange for idling one acre for every two they planted.

Rejection of the bill by the House "left no legislation in the pipeline to help us this year," Galloway asserted.

The local spokesman, who said that he has been in Washington for the past eight weeks lobbying for farm legislation, pointed out that the government has approved a measure whereby farmers will be paid for leaving 20 per cent of their grain acreage idle.

The action, according to Galloway, is contrary to what the AAM wants in that the movement is seeking a better price for grain and not a subsidy from the federal government.

Galloway noted that corn prices are currently up from what growers received last fall when they sold their crops. He said that the "price being up does not help the corn farmer now because the $1.60 per bushel that was paid last year is what affected him."

The spokesman said that farmers feel sure that corn prices will go down again when the time comes to sell this year's crop. Farmers, as a rule, do not have adequate storage for corn and are faced with an immediate sale after harvest situation, he asserted.

Current corn price stands at $2.65 per bushel, he said, noting that the U.S. Department of Agriculture has indicated that it considers parity to be $3.45 involving cost of production plus a fair price.

Galloway, former president of the Pitt County Farm Bureau, is currently a director of the N.C. Farm Bureau and a member of the executive board of the state organization.

Wingtips Touch, Two Jets Crash In Flight

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Two Air Force jet fighters which were part of a four-plane formation on a training flight crashed near Jacksonville Thursday, killing one of the pilots and injuring three crewmen.

A spokesman for Seymour Johnson AFB near Goldsboro said the crash may have occurred when the wingtips of the planes touched during flight. The planes were climbing from 8,000 to 20,000 feet when the accident occured.

The dead pilot was identified as 1st Lt. Terry P. Moore, 25, of Fairborn, Ohio.

The surviving crewman, all reported in good condition at the Regional Naval Medical Center at Camp Lejeune, were identified as Capts. Danny J. Lacayo, 29, of Nevada City, Calif., Gregg P. Rice, 30, of Duluth, Minn., and Barton W. Cobb, 28, of Columbia, S.C.

Rice, the pilot of one of the planes, and Lacayo and Cobb, weapons systems operators, bailed out and landed in the area near the crash sites.

Crash witnesses said it appeared that Moore tried to parachute to safety. His body was found near the wreck of one of the planes with his crash helmet split open.

The two jets crashed about a half mile apart in a rural area about six miles west of Jacksonville. One of them hit less than 100 yards from the home of Lena Rochelle, 79.

Mrs. Rochelle said she heard a sound like thunder, went to the front porch and saw smoke and "a big ball of fire coming toward the house." She said she fainted and didn't remember what happened after that.

Small pieces of the aircraft were scattered in her yard, and patches of grass were burned by the flaming debris.

Tom Yates, owner of Mashburn's store near Harris Creek, about eight miles west of Jacksonville, said he was standing outside the store when he heard the explosion coming from the wooded area behind him. He said he saw two planes, one of them burning, fall on either side of the woods.

Yates and a customer, Wendell Shepard, ran to the area and found Moore's body.

Military authorities immediately roped off the crash site and began investigation of the dent.

vehicles in the city.

City Attorney Louis Singleton explained that the revised ordinance only adds the city building inspector and gives him authority to declare that an abandoned vehicle constitutes a health, fire, or safety hazard in the city. The previous ordinance provided the city law enforcement officers with the authority to declare the vehicles as hazardous.

Approval was given to an ordinance stipulating rules and regulations governing tow service operations in the city. Chief Cannon noted that the city had no ordinance to back up towing operations in the past.

The new ordinance requires that a towing operation have proper liability coverage and suitable storage facilities available, Cox said. Applications for the rotation tow list will be considered under the guidelines of the ordinance.

Approval was given, following a public hearing, to a request by Carroll and Associates for rezoning some 34.5 acres located on both sides of Arlington Boulevard between Seaboard Coast Line Railroad and Green Mill Run from RA-20 to Shopping Center and Office and Institutional.

George Hamilton, representing the Lakewood Pines Preservation Society, said that the residents of the Lakewood Pines section did not object to the rezoning action but were concerned about possible alterations in the flood levels of the area.

City Planner John Schofield pointed out that the city is a member of the National Flood Insurance Program and as a participant must regulate what occurs in the flood fringe areas. Developers must insure that water runoff after a development is completed will not exceed the runoff that took place prior to development.

The Council also conducted a public hearing on a request by Allen-White Inc. for rezoning the present Ramada Inn site on Greenville Boulevard from Shopping Center to Highway Commercial.

Schofield said that the motel was built under the provisions of a special use permit and the owners felt it would be desirable to have the property rezoned to designate the motel as a permitted use. Some 4.6 acres are involved in the matter.

An application by Walter Murrell for a special use permit to operate a private club in the old Folger Buick building at Tenth and Washington Streets was denied. The current ordinance stipulates that no nightclub, beer hall, coffeehouse, cocktail lounge, private club and other similar activity can be located within 500 feet of another such facility.

The proposed club site is diagonally across the street from a lounge, it was pointed out, and would not be permitted under the ordinance provisions.

Cox said that the reason for adopting the ordinance was to "prevent winding up with the situation we have on Fifth Street." He said that the ordinance was designed to prevent the "very thing" Murrell was requesting the Council to approve.

Charlie Holliday, who is serving as interim city manager, announced last night that he is transferring authority for the implementation of all of the Community Development programs from the Planning Department to the Redevelopment Commission.

Holliday said that under the new arrangement, the executive director of the Redevelopment Commission, Joe Laney, will serve as director of Community Development.

The Council authorized the use of $1,175 of the funds appropriated in the Community Development budget for General Neighborhood Improvements to complete the structural repair work needed at the former West End Fire Station on Chestnut Street. The city had earlier designated $3,000 to be used for the repairs but cost escalations necessitated the need for additional funds.

House Okays Staff Boost

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation for the president to nearly double the number of high-level White House assistants won approval in the House and now goes to the Senate.

But Republicans pointed out before the 265-134 vote Thursday that President Carter, who sought the increase, had promised during his 1976 presidential campaign that he would cut down the number of White House employees.

Hugh Carter Jr., special assistant to the president for administration, said there are no plans to add significantly to the number of senior White House aides.

He said the authority to make the increases were being sought so that the administration would have flexibility in event of "an emergency like World War II or something."

The bill would permit Carter to increase from 55 to 100 the number of executive and supergrade positions on his personal staff. Those posts pay from $42,500 to $57,500 a year.

"All this, keep in mind, is being sponsored and pushed by a president who ran on the promise to reduce the size of the White House staff and to de-imperialize the presidency," said Rep. John B. Anderson, R-Ill.

But Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., floor manager of the bill, said the change would bring more accountability to White House hiring practices.

And Rep. Ronald V. Dellums, D-Calif., argued, "It's rational, logical and reasonable for a president to move beyond a campaign promise."

Confirm Fears Of Community

By CAROLE FELDMAN
Associated Press Writer

RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — A state epidemiologist has confirmed the worst fears of local residents — the incidence of leukemia among children and teen-agers here is abnormally high.

But an authority on leukemia told a community gathering Thursday not to panic.

"I don't think you should sell your homes. I don't think you should keep your children out of school," said Dr. Arnold Rubin of the Leukemia Society of America. "There is no danger. This is not a threat to this community."

Six cases of leukemia have been reported during the past five years among residents and former residents between 5 and 19 years old, Dr. Ronald Altman, state epidemiologist, said Thursday. The normal incidence of leukemia in a town with 20,000 residents, such as Rutherford, is less than one, but even two cases would not be considered abnormally high, he added.

Two boys, both students at the Pierrepont Elementary School, have died of leukemia.

Calling the statistics "meaningful," Altman said the leukemia cases occurred in a cluster around the Pierrepont school.

In all, 13 cases of leukemia, 11 cases of Hodgkins disease and eight cases of lymphoma and related blood cancers were reported. In a community of Rutherford's size, an incidence of 13.5 leukemia cases and four cases of Hodgkins disease are expected, Altman said.

"We do not have an excessive rate of leukemia for the town as a whole for all age groups," he said. "We do have more cases of Hodgkins disease than would be expected in a town this size."

Altman said other incidences of cancer clusters have disappeared after a short period of time.

The scientists failed to answer the question foremost in the minds of residents — why?

"We wanted to hear that they made some kind of discovery," said Carole Arnold, "not that they really don't know what caused it."

Have 84 Ways To Spend Funds

RALEIGH, N.C. — State researchers and scientists have thought of 84 ways to spend the $300,000 set aside by the General Assembly to help fund energy research in North Carolina.

Dr. James C. Bresee, director of the state Energy Institute, said the number of proposals indicates the high interest in North Carolina for energy work.

Bresee said solar energy attracted the most interest, accounting for most of the research proposals.

East Carolina, N. C. State Divide Two

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

ROCKY MOUNT — Pete Conaty pitched a five-hitter at N.C. State, allowing East Carolina to come back and split a doubleheader with the Wolfpack here last night.

State won the opening game, 3-0, behind the pitching of Doug Huffman, with the Pirates coming back to take the nightcap, 5-2.

Conaty was touched for just one earned run and was in trouble only once after the second inning. He didn't walk a batter and struck out eight in evening his record at 4-4.

"Pete had a super game," Coach Monte Little said. "I don't know when I've seen him throw harder."

Little said he felt that Pirates hit the ball harder in the second game, too. "We just couldn't get a break in the first game. But I guess that's what makes baseball interesting."

The coach also praised the Wolfpack, which split a four-game series for this year with the Pirates. "They're a better ball club than when we first played them this year," Little said.

Mickey Britt took the loss in the opening game, only his second in nine decisions. He was tagged for nine hits in just over five innings by the Wolfpack.

"Mickey didn't have one of his better games," Little said. "He just couldn't get anything on his fast ball, so he could set up his curve."

In the first game, the Pirates hit shots off Huffman, who limited the Pirates to just five hits, but none of them would fall in for the Bucs.

State grabbed off the lead in the first inning of the opener, with one run. Chuck Harman singled to left and Tommy Crocker, playing in front of a home-town audience, followed with another hit. With two away, Roy Dixon, the ACC's leading hitter, poked one into center, scoring Harmon.

State threatened again in the third, putting a man on second, and in the fifth, when one reached third, but it wasn't until the sixth that the Wolfpack scored again.

With one down in the sixth, Dixon doubled to left, and Dave Moody followed with another two-bagger in almost the same place, scoring Dixon.

The final State run came in the seventh. Rich White reached on an error and was sacrificed up. Crocker singled and a hit by Dixon brought in White.

East Carolina had two threats, the best coming in the third inning. With two away, Billy Best singled and Pete Paradossi got a single. Butch Davis walked to load the bases.

Bobby Supel then hit a shot to center, which Dixon caught backhanded on a dead run, ending the rally.

In the fifth, the Pirates left men on second and third.

The shutout was the seventh recorded by the Wolfpack this year, setting a new school record.

State came back in the first inning of the second game to score first again. Harmon reached on an error and Crocker singled. John Isley reached on another error, allowing Harmon to score.

The Wolfpack got its other run in the second. Ray Tanner led off with a single and was sacrificed up. With two away, White doubled to left center, scoring Tanner.

But the Wolfpack got only two more runners on against Conaty, who buckled down after that. In the fifth, Pat Sheehy beat out an infield hit, and with two away, Crocker again singled, but Eddie Gates made an outstanding catch of Isley's drive to right, saving the Pirates' lead. The Bucs, who had threatened in the first when three walks loaded the bases, came back to score three times in the second to take a 3-2 lead.

Robert Brinkley led off with a double to right center. He moved to third on an out and scored on a wild pitch. Scott Layden reached on an error and Gates followed with the night's only home run.

The roundtripper was the seventh of the season for Gates, leaving him only one homer short of the school record.

The Bucs left a man on third in the third, but didn't score again until the fourth, when two more runs scored.

Gates, Best and Paradossi led off the fourth, all walking. Davis, however, hit into a double play, getting Gates and himself. But Supel followed with a double to left, scoring both Best and Paradossi, closing out the scoring.

"I still stand by the statement I made at the first of the season that this is the best club that I've been associated with at East Carolina," Little said afterwards. "We just playing the toughest schedule anyone has ever played here.

"We're not out of it (a spot in the NCAA playoffs)," he added, "but we're going to have to finish strong."

The Pirates come back to Harrington Field for an important home stand starting Saturday.

The Bucs will entertain UNC-Wilmington on Saturday at 7:30 p.m., then play host to South Carolina on Sunday at 2 p.m. The University of Maryland comes in for a game on Monday, followed by Atlantic Christian on Tuesday and Pembroke State on Wednesday. Each of the latter three will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Guzzo To Take Wesleyan Post

Tony Guzzo, an assistant baseball coach at East Carolina for the last two years, will be named as the new head baseball coach at N.C. Wesleyan in Rocky Mount this weekend.

An announcement of Guzzo's appointment is expected to be made either today or tomorrow by the Rocky Mount Methodist school.

A 1971 graduate of East Carolina, Guzzo is a native of Norfolk, Va. Following his graduation with a degree in physical education from ECU, Guzzo returned to Norfolk to become assistant football and head baseball coach, and became head football coach the following year.

Over a three-year span, he was 17-10-2 in football and 86-32 in baseball over a four-year tenure, winning the conference championship each season. He was named conference Coach of the Year in 1976.

He also served as a part-time scout for the Kansas City Royals in 1974, and was a Cincinnati Reds scout in 1975 and 1976. He returned to East Carolina as graduate assistant in baseball in 1977, with a primary responsibility of working with the catching staff.

Guzzo is married to the former Kitsy Pridgen.

He will assume full duties at N.C. Wesleyan on September 1.

Rain Halts Contests

Rain and wet grounds forced the postponment of most high school activity throughout the area yesterday.

Among those games or events delayed were: Rose, Bertie track, postponed until today; C.B. Aycock-Farmville Central tennis, postponed until Wednesday; Conley-C.B. Aycock softball, no new date set; Roanoke at South Edgecombe track, no new date set;

C.B. Aycock-Conley baseball, no new date set; Pungo Academy-Martin Academy baseball, postponed until May 3; Pungo-Martin softball, postponed until April 24; North Pitt-Farmville Central softball, postponed until today; Farmville Central "B"-Tarboro baseball, postponed until today; and Rose-Kinston golf, postponed until Tuesday.

Sakata May Be Best Second-Sacker Around

MILWAUKEE (AP) — What to do with shortstops Paul Molitor and Robin Yount — if and when Yount plays again — isn't the only pleasant personnel problem in the Milwaukee Brewers' infield.

Manager George Bamberger also has Lenn Sakata, who may be the slickest fielding second baseman in the American League.

"When I decide to play Sakata regularly, he'll be the All-Star second baseman, and he'll be the All-Star second baseman for 10 years," Bamberger said. "But I'm not going to do that until I decide it's best for the club."

Sakata now plays against left-handed pitching, with Don Money at third base and Sal Bando the designated hitter.

That easily is the best defensive combination, but against right-handed pitching, Money plays second and Bando third, with Sakata on the bench. That's because Bamberger has as his alternate DH Ben Oglivie, who hit 21 homers for Detroit last year. The Brewers, off to a 5-0 start, clearly have their greatest depth ever.

In the opening series against Baltimore, Sakata sprinted to about 20 feet from first base and dived to glove a ground ball. Somersaulting on his backside, Sakata flipped an over-the-shoulder hook shot on one bounce to first baseman Cecil Cooper.

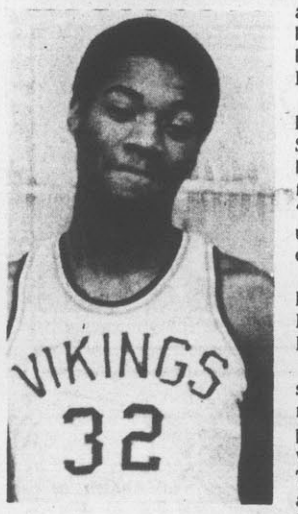

The play, not unlike a basketball player hurtling out of bounds to flip the ball back into play, beat the runner by three steps.

"I've had good compliments paid me about my defense, and that pleases me," said Sakata, 24. "I take pride in my defense. But people tend to overlook other things. Some people think I can't hit. First impressions are lasting ones."

Always a solid minor league hitter, Sakata batted only .162 in 154 times at bat after the Brewers called him up from Spokane last July.

Currently going with the pitch much better than last season, Sakata has five hits in 12 times at-bat. After an error by Graig Nettles Wednesday, Sakata singled off ace relief pitcher Rich Gossage to set up Money's game-winning two-run double against the New York Yankees.

Tyson Inks With Bucs

Al Tyson, 6-10½ center at D.H. Conley High School, has become the first official signee of East Carolina University for this recruiting year.

Tyson signed a national letter of intent with the school yesterday.

"Al has more potential than any other player I've ever signed," Coach Larry Gillman said. "We're real, real happy to have signed him. Several top schools were in the race for him.

"At 6-10½, 215-pounds, he has his best basketball ahead of him," Gillman added.

Tyson, who was a four-year starter at Conley under Coach Shelly Marsh, was a three-year All-East selection, and earlier this year was named as one of the top big men in the country. He is the state's tallest player for this year.

Tyson averaged 18.5 points a game and 14.2 rebounds per outing for the Vikings.

Gillman is expected to announce additional signings in the next few days.

Golfing Deacs Back On Top

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The Wake Forest golf team took the Atlantic Coast Conference crown Thursday with a 19-over-par 1,099 for the tournament.

The Deacons were led by individual titlist Scott Hoch in the 54-hole tourney.

The Deacons' five-man team was 10 shots ahead of defending champion North Carolina at 1,109. The Tar Heels had a one-stroke advantage going into the final day but Wake Forest, with Jesse Haddock back as head coach after a year's absence, was only 6-over par as a team on the final 18 holes.

This was Wake Forest's 11th conference title in the past 12 years and Haddock's 14th in 18 years as the Deacons' coach.

Hoch fired a 3-under-par 69 over the par 72 North Ridge Country Club course, giving him a three-day total of 214, 2 under par and a four-stroke edge over second place finishers John McGough of North Carolina and Jeff Goettman of Duke at 418.

Hoch's victory made him the only back-to-back individual winner.

McGough who led Hoch by three shots after two rounds, had a 4-over-par 76 in his final 18 holes. Goettman had a sizzling 6-under-par 66 in his final tour over the 6,711-yard tract, tying a competitive course record.

Trailing North Carolina by 12 shots in third place was Maryland at 1,121. Duke, on the strength of Goettman's round of six birdies and 12 pars, was fourth at 1,124.

Clemson placed fifth at 1,132, N.C. State placed sixth with 1,137 and Virginia was seventh with 1,182.

Lady Pirates Split Pair

RALEIGH — East Carolina University and N.C. State split a pair of women's softball games yesterday. The Lady Pirates took the opener, 3-2, but State came back with a 5-3 decision in the second contest.

In the opener, State took a 2-0 lead in the first inning, but the Lady Pirates came back with three runs in the second. There was no more scoring in the game.

Lee Sellars was the winning pitcher for East Carolina and paced the hitting with two, including a triple. Peggy Copeland and Debbie Phelps also each added two hits for the Pirates.

In the second game, State scored a run in the third, and added two in the fourth. The Lady Pack picked up one each in the fifth and sixth.

The Pirates scored all three of their runs in the sixth.

Teresa Whitley led the ECU scoring with three hits.

East Carolina, now 13-10, travels to N.C. Central on Tuesday.

Monte Towe New NCS Aide

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Monte Towe, North Carolina State basketball star who guided the Wolfpack to the 1974 NCAA championship, is returning to NCSU as an assistant coach.

Towe will assume his coaching duties June 1, filling the vacancy created when Eddie Biedenbach accepted the head coaching job at Davidson.

"Monte has proven himself a winner, and I'm confident he will do a tremendous job for us," said Norm Sloan, head Wolfpack basketball coach. "More importantly, he has a winning attitude and a positive outlook on everything, and I'm sure he will add a lot to our program."

Towe's play earned him selection to tournament teams in the Eastern Regional and NCAA finals, as well as several All-America clubs.

Towe, 24, is a native of Converse, Ind. He played with the Denver Nuggets for two years following his collegiate career. He is currently completing graduate courses at the University of Colorado.

"I'm real happy to be re-joining the Wolfpack," Towe said. "I played four years for Coach Sloan, and I know I'll enjoy working with him. The best years of my life were in Raleigh, and I'm looking forward a great deal to coming back."

Ford Sparks Game Here

Phil Ford scored 41 points last night to lead the UNC All-Stars to a 129-109 victory over the Greenville All-Stars in an exhibition game played at Rose High School.

Ford got help from Tom Zaligiris with 38 points and Geff Crompton with 22. The Greenville team was paced by Greg Ashorn with 22 points and Bob McEvoy with 20.

All proceeds from the game will go to benefit the Rose High athletic program.

Homer Triggers Candy Bars

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

How sweet it was for Reggie Jackson.

Returning for the first time to the scene of his greatest personal triumph, the New York Yankee slugger delivered on his first at-bat and triggered a shower of candy bars at Yankee Stadium Thursday.

"I didn't want anyone to get hit in the head," said Jackson, "but I knew it was a gesture of appreciation."

Hundreds in the crowd of 44,667 who had received the candy bars as an Opening Day gift pitched them on the field following Jackson's three-run homer in the first inning that got the defending World Champions off to a 4-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Jackson's blast off Wilbur Wood was the fourth straight at the Stadium for the Yankee star, who hit three homers in his final three appearances in last October's sixth-game World Series victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The flood of candy bars, which incidentally are endorsed by Jackson and called "Reggie!" bars, forced a delay of five minutes.

In other American League games, the California Angels edged the Minnesota Twins 1-0 in 11 innings and the Oakland A's turned back the Seattle Mariners 3-1. In limited National League action, the Cincinnati Reds nipped the San Francisco Giants 7-6 in 13 innings and the St. Louis Cardinals stopped the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-5.

Angels 1, Twins 0

Joe Rudi's one-out home run in the bottom of the 11th inning, barely ahead of a curfew, carried California over Minnesota in a game in which Angels' starter Nolan Ryan struck out 12 and allowed four hits in the first 10 innings.

A's 3, Mariners 1

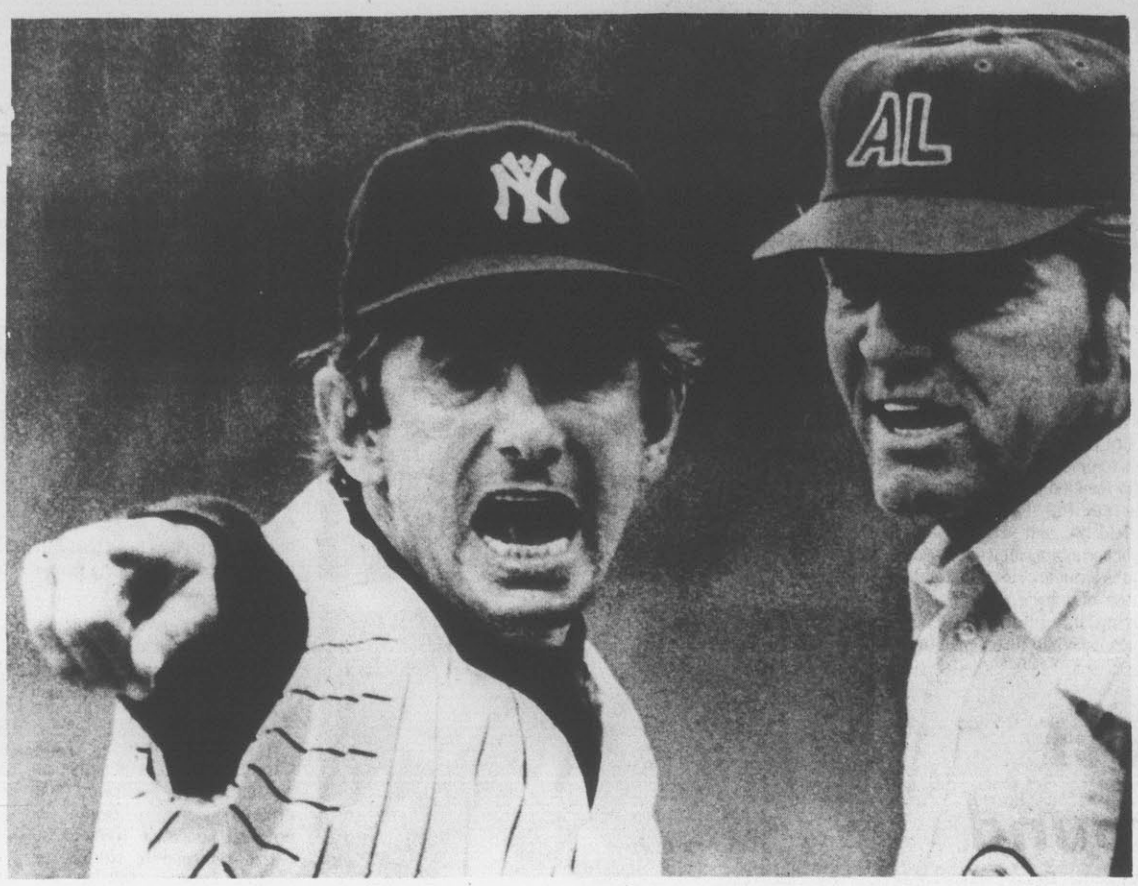

Gary Alexander's two-run homer in the ninth inning propelled Oakland over Seattle. Alexander's homer, his second of the season, came off losing pitcher Steve Burke, who had walked Steve Staggs opening the ninth. Mario Guerrero sacrificed, then Alexander hit his homer deep into the left field bleachers.

Reds 7, Giants 6

Rick Auerbach's pinch-hit double with one out in the 13th inning scored Ray Knight from first base, providing Cincinnati with its winning run over San Francisco. With one out, Knight drew a walk from John Curtis and raced home when Auerbach doubled to the left field wall on his first swing of this season.

Cardinals 6, Pirates 5

Ted Simmons and Keith Hernandez smashed run-scoring doubles in a three-run first inning and Mike Phillips tripled home two more in the third, helping St. Louis beat Pittsburgh. The Cardinals scored all their runs off Bert Blyleven, who was cuffed for eight hits in six innings.

Mouthing A Point

Fiery New York Yankee manager Billy Martin makes a point to first base umpire Terry Cooney in the eighth inning of Thursday's home opener in Yankee Stadium against the Chicago White Sox. Martin was upset that Thurman Munson had been called out at first. Histrionics aside, the Yanks won 4-2. (AP Laserphoto)

Bees Bother Jack And Ben

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) — Severiano Ballesteros, Bobby Cole and Bill Rogers got the birdies. Jack Nicklaus and Ben Crenshaw, unfortunately, got the bees.

While an international trio representing Spain, South Africa and Texas shared the lead in the first round of golf's $225,000 Tournament of Champions, Nicklaus and Crenshaw shared bee-sting miseries.

Both were stung Thursday at the posh La Costa Country Club. Crenshaw while playing to a 73 in this winners-only event and Nicklaus immediately after finishing a round of par 72. His was the more serious.

"I'm allergic to bee-sting," he said and hurried off for medical attention. The physician who treated the sting said Nicklaus' left palm was red and swollen but that he would be able to continue in the elite tournament he has won five times.

He was three shots behind the leading 69s produced by Ballesteros of Spain, Cole of South Africa and Rogers, from Texarkana, Texas.

He scored his first tour victory early this year in the Bob Hope Desert Classic at Palm Springs, Calif., and now finds himself surprisingly sharing the lead in one of the game's more prestigious events. "I know it's only the first round, but I'm loving it," he said.

One shot back at 70 was Gary Player, Cole's more famous countryman who last week won a third Masters championship. Player birdied all four of the par 5 holes.

He was tied with Bill Kratzert and Mac McLendon.

The only others in the field of 29 who broke par in the mild, cloudy, breezy weather were British Open champion Tom Watson, PGA titleholder Lanny Wadkins, Jerry Pate and Hale Irwin, tied at 71. U.S. Open champion Hubert Green shot a 73.

Indiana Pacers Get First Pick; And They Know Who They Want

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Indiana Pacers know who they want when they make the opening selection in the National Basketball Association's college draft, but they don't know if Larry Bird will turn pro.

The Pacers won the right to make the opening selection Thursday in a coin flip with the Kansas City Kings. The flip was conducted through a telephone conference call in the office of NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien. Bob Leonard, coach and general manager, participated for the Pacers. Owner Paul Rosenberg and General Manager-President Joe Axelson participated for the Kings.

Leonard quickly said that Bird, an All-American at Indiana State during the 1977-78 season, was his favorite for the draft. However, Bird has another year of college eligibility and he has indicated he intends to stay in school.

"There isn't any outstanding player like a Marques Johnson available this year," Pacers assistant coach Jerry Oliver said Thursday. "We haven't talked to Bird, but if he's interested in playing for Indiana we'd like to know."

Leonard was in on the call for the Pacers from Hawaii, where he plans to vacation for the next two weeks.

"We've got time to see who would like to talk trade with us for the top pick," said Leonard, "and then we'll decide how we'll go."

Indiana received the top selection after tying with Kansas City for the worst record in the Western Conference during the 1977-78 NBA season. Earlier in the week, the Pacers won a draw with the Golden State Warriors, who had held Kansas City's pick. The Kings, meanwhile, had acquired the first-round draft pick from the New Jersey Nets, the team with the lowest percentage in the Eastern Conference.

Indiana won the toss when Kansas City incorrectly called heads.

But the Kings weren't upset. Axelson said before the flip that "it doesn't really matter whether we win or lose the flip. (All-Americans) Phil Ford (of North Carolina) or Mychal Thompson (of Minnesota) will be available and either one would help."

The New York Giants batted .319 as a team in 1930, the highest by a major league club in this century.

Ayden Golf and Country Club

The team of James Edmundson, Ed Murphy, Gwynn Merritt and Willard Moye took first place in a Super Ball Tournament this past weekend with a net 61.

Second place went to Emmett Koonce, Bobby Congleton, Bill Angel and Bob Warren with a 62. Third, also with a 62 were Jeff Wingate, Thomas Heath, Gill Moore and Mac Harkrader.

Gwynn Merritt eagled the 15th hole, hitting a three-wood into the hole on his second shot. Mike Sutton eagled the fifth, hitting a five iron on his second shot.

Dennis Warren had his best round, a 37, while Pat Joyner recorded a 76.

Wayne Hall had a hole-in-one on the ninth hole, a 175-yarder. The new ECU assistant coach used a three-iron.

The Ayden Four-Ball Tournament will be held April 22-23, with a deadline for signing up on April 19.

Embittered Maris Got Nothing But Abuse After Home Run Chase

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) — "The Hall of Fame is charity — it's something they give you and not something you necessarily earn," said an embittered Roger Maris. "I'm not one to ask for charity.

"I'm going to be in there some day. If the writers keep me out, there are other ways."

Crew-cut, tanned, young-looking but 30 pounds heavier than when he was one of baseball's most cherished records with 61 home runs in 1961, Maris returned to Yankee Stadium Thursday for the first time in 12 years.

Along with Mickey Mantle, the other member of the dreaded "M&M" power tandem of the 1960s, Maris drew a tumultuous ovation and, with his Hall of Fame teammate, strolled to the pitcher's mound while a tape of his historic 61st home run was flashed on the scoreboard screen.

Instead of hoisting him in a sphere of baseball respect and immortality, it was a blow that turned the fine outfielder's career from sweet honey into sour milk.

"Before I broke it, Babe Ruth's record of 60 home runs was the one that everybody talked about," the one-time Yankees outfielder said. "Afterward, it became meaningless. The press degraded it, said it was nothing.

"Writers began saying derogatory things about me. It was as if I had defiled some institution. They made my life hell."

Maris came to the Yankees from Kansas City in 1960, and, although he played side-by-side with Mantle, he became the American League's most valuable player in 1960 and 1961. For three years, through 1962, he had 100 or more runs batted in each season.

"I had back trouble and played in only 90 games in 1963," he recalled. "Still, I hit 23 homers and batted in 53 runs."

In the years immediately following his halcyon 1961 season, Maris said he was the victim of untold abuse, particularly from two syndicated New York columnists who nailed him every chance they got.

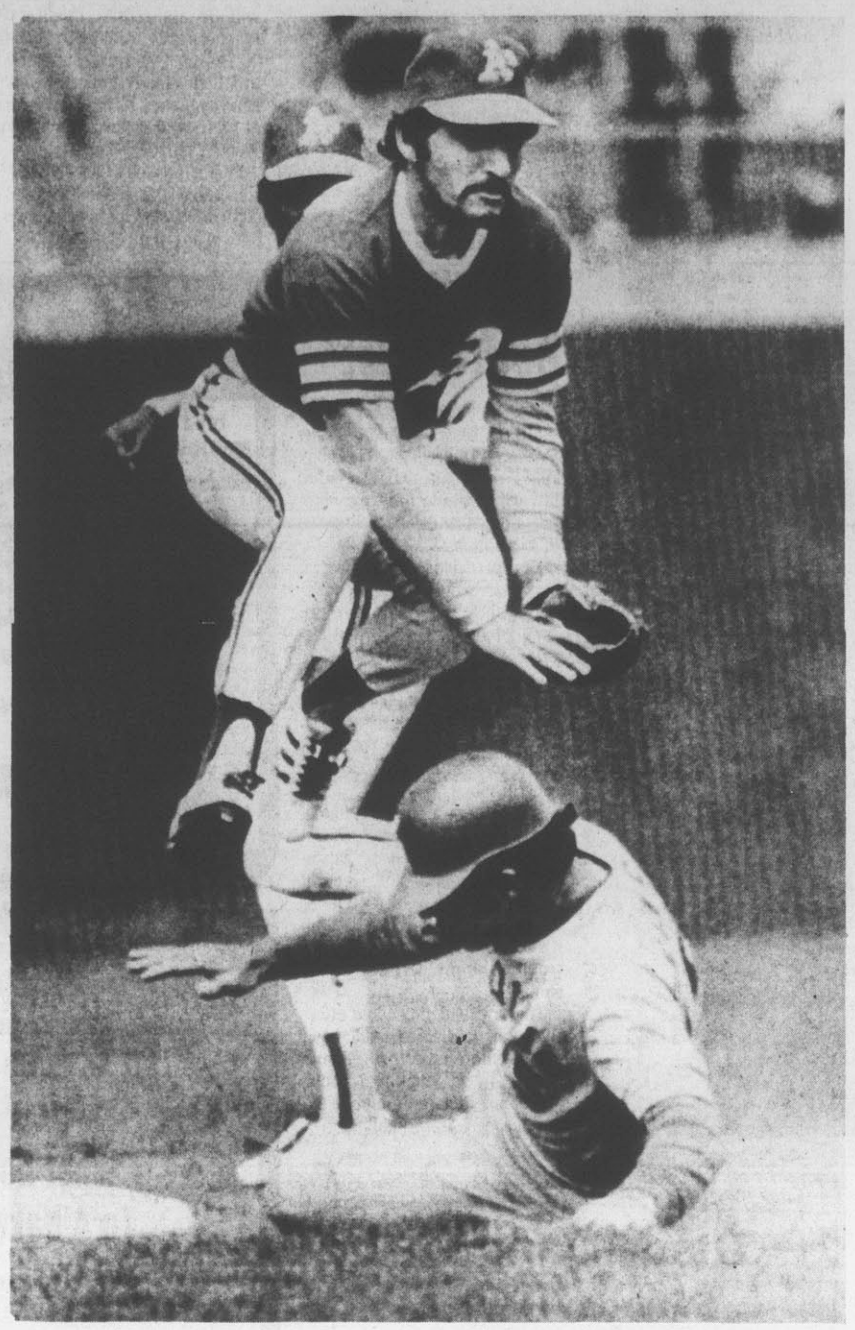

"Baseball got to be no fun for me in New York," he said. "But I managed. It was when I started getting lambasted in all the other parks around the league — you name them — that I found I couldn't take it any longer.

"They were years of anguish for me. I suddenly lost all my desire to play. I went out and tried. It was no use. I was washed out. The dedication just wasn't there."

To loss of desire was added physical injury. In 1965, Maris suffered a broken right hand and lost strength in his last two fingers. He was traded to the St. Louis Cardinals at the end of the 1966 season.

"The National League knew I was a fastball hitter," he recalled. "I managed to hang on while they were feeding me the curving and tricky stuff but when they found out I couldn't hit the fastball anymore, I knew time was out."

Maris quit after the 1968 season and retired to Gainesville, Fla., where he now operates a thriving beer distribution business.

THAT'S NERVOUS

RUSTON, La. (AP) — Before the home opener of the Louisiana Tech basketball team in the 1977-78 season, assistant coach Tommy Vardeman was asked if he was nervous.

"You better believe it," he said. "I'm as nervous as a cat with a long tail in a room full of rocking chairs."

Inexperience Troubles Farmville's Baseballers

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

Farmville Central's baseball team has let its inexperience show at times this year, according to coach Linwood Woodard, and as a result, the Jaguars have been less successful than the coach would like.

"So far, things haven't been too good," Woodard said. "We've played a few good games and we've played some bad games. They've let their inexperience show at times."

The biggest problem for Farmville has been the inability to get hits when they count — with men on base. "A lot of times, we have just taken ourselves out of the game, instead of letting the other team beat us," Woodard said. "We're hitting the ball well, we just have a problem with hitting with men on base."

The Jags lost 11 seniors off of last year's team, which finished 13-10. "We've had to fill in at a lot of positions," Woodard commented, but added, "I'm pleased with their work."

Senior Edward Hines, one of the team's leading pitchers, starts at first base when he's not on the mound. Woodard said his defense is much-improved, and he's probably the most- improved player on the team. Freshman Lewis Yelverton gets the nod at first when Hines is pitching.

Donald Holloman, another senior, returns to his starting position at second. He has been out much of the time due to an injury, however, and junior Greg Oakley has been filling in. Oakley is new to second base and still learning the position, Woodard said.

At shortstop, Woodard starts junior Billy McLawhorn, who is currently batting .387 as the Jaguars' leadoff man. "He has the ability to play the position well. He has made some errors, but has played real well at times. He needs to work on his concentration," Woodard said.

Four-year starter Scott Evans is at third base. Batting .333, Evans has been playing good defense, the coach said. He also provides leadership for Farmville as the team's captain.

In the outfield, juniors Clark May and Al Hamm share time in left. Another junior, Allen Moore, starts in center. He has been doing a good job in the outfield and at the plate, Woodard said.

Sophomore Tony Eason gets the nod in right field. He is a converted infielder, the coach said. His batting has improved and he also does some relief pitching for the Jags. "He's going to be a good ballplayer," Woodard commented.

Eason is backed by Ted Johnson, a junior. Johnson usually logs time as the squad's designated hitter. He is batting .390 and is the top man on the team for hitting with men on base. Johnson was named most valuable player in the Pitt County Easter Tournament.

Joining Hines on the pitching staff are sophomore right-hander Eugene Joyner, junior right-hander Phillip Gordon, and senior left-hander Hackney Yelverton.

Hines is the best pitcher, with a 1.50 ERA, Woodard said. He has walked only four batters in compiling a 2-3 record.

Joyner has great potential, if he'll work hard. He has a good curve and adequate fastball. Gordon "has the ability to be a stopper; he just lacks control right now," Woodard said.

Gordon and Yelverton share time at catcher.

Woodard, like most of the other coaches, puts Greene Central and C. B. Aycock at the top of the list of teams to beat in the Eastern Carolina Conference this year.

The Rams have a good hitting team and a deep pitching staff, Woodard noted. That depth on the mound could be a big plus.

For the Jags to win the title, they need to split with those two teams, Woodard said. "If we do, I think we'll have a real good chance to make a run at them. I think we can play with the other teams."

Four NBA Teams Seek To Close Out First Round Series Tonight

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

The New York Knicks and Milwaukee Bucks, also-rans a year ago, aim to wrap up their National Basketball Association first-round playoff series at home tonight, while the Washington Bullets and Seattle SuperSonics try to close out their series on the road.

"If we play like we did in the opener, we'll be tough to beat," said Knicks Coach Willis Reed, whose club came up with one of its best games of the year in beating the Cleveland Cavaliers 132-114 at Richfield, Ohio Wednesday.

Reed's Cleveland counterpart, Bill Fitch, agrees.

"I was worried about something like this," he said. "Everyone around the league will tell you the same thing: if the Knicks play together and shoot well, they're tough. And they played together; they looked like they'd been together five years."

And they shot well, 61 percent to be exact, Bob McAdoo leading the way with 41 points on 17 for 25 from the field. What's more, tonight they'll have the home-court advantage.

Besides Cleveland at New York, tonight's schedule also lists the Phoenix Suns at Milwaukee Bucks, the Washington Bullets at Atlanta Hawks and the Seattle SuperSonics at Los Angeles Lakers, the latter on national TV (CBS, 11:30 p.m. EST).

Milwaukee Coach Don Nelson, whose club had the worst record in the Western Conference last season, had listed making the playoffs as his team's primary goal this season. But now that the Bucks are there, Nelson sees no reason why they can't keep on going, especially after they opened with a 111-103 win over the Phoenix Suns at Phoenix.

"There's nothing very complicated about the playoffs," said Nelson, who played in 150 playoff games as a member of the Boston Celtics. "You have to play hard, play well, do all the little things and take advantage of situations as they come up. It's just execution and hard play. It's no big secret."

If that's the case, the Atlanta Hawks should have a chance at evening their series against the Washington Bullets at home tonight, after losing the opener 103-94 at Landover, Md.

But the Bullets can more than hold their own as far as muscle is concerned, with big men like Wes Unseld, Elvin Hayes, Mitch Kupchak and Greg Ballard to sweep the boards. That was the big difference in the series opener, and that's what Washington is counting on to win on the road tonight.

Seattle, a 102-90 winner at home, seeks to eliminate Los Angeles — one of the pre-playoff favorites — on the road tonight.

Los Angeles was more vulnerable than usual at home this season, losing 12 times. But Lakers Coach Jerry West thinks his club can turn the Sonics series around tonight.

"If we play them as well physically as we did in the opening game, we'll win," said West. "And if we win in Los Angeles, I like our chances in Seattle Sunday."

Alcott Finds Tour Not Easy

MASON, Ohio (AP) — Amy Alcott, once the 19-year-old sensation on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour, is finding the tour is not as easy as it first seemed it would be.

The native of Kansas City, Mo., won in only the third LPGA event she played and went on to Rookie of the Year honors in 1975, establishing a money winning record of $26,000 for newcomers at the time.

She followed with a pair of victories and more than $71,000 in earnings in 1976, but tailed off to a single triumph and $47,000 a year ago. She has won less than $4,500 this season.

"Being young," said Alcott, "I expected too much too soon."

Alcott will be part of the field that plays in the $150,000 LPGA Championship at the Nicklaus Golf Center June 8-11.

"I have a challenge ahead of me," said the former U.S. Junior Girls' Amateur champion. "I'm still one of the youngest golfers on the tour, but the first thing you have to realize about being young is that you have to acquire patience."

Skipping college golf was no handicap, she contends, saying, "It's been a real experience, learning how to put thoughts out for the public."

Alcott has a positive mental approach toward everything, from her sport to her column in a golf magazine and to her wine collection.

"I've always believed in myself," she said. "That's why I'm so successful. I've always driven myself, wanting to be great, not good, in anything I do.

"I think of it as maturity. People say I'm mature because of my age. I think I understand myself, that's something golf can help you do."

The horse Chris Evert beat Miss Musket by an incredible 50 lengths in a 1974 match race at Hollywood Park.

Mickey, Jr. Signs New Pact

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — Mickey Mantle Jr., who came close to giving up baseball a month ago, will be in uniform tonight when the Alexandria Dukes of the Carolina League open their season at Salem, Va.

Amid specualtion that he's trying to follow in his father's footsteps, Mantle signed Thursday with the Class A team, saying he'll give himself two years to make it to the major leagues.

If the younger Mantle, an outfielder, makes the grade, it probably won't be with the New York Yankees organization, for whom the older Mantle starred in the 1950s and 1960s.

Mickey Mantle Jr., who failed earlier in a spring tryout with a Yankees farm team at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., said he was looking forward to suiting up with his new team, which is an independent.

The Dukes are beginning their first season in Alexandria, a populous suburb of the baseball-hungry nation's capital, which lost the Washington Senators to Texas in 1971.

An ebullient Mantle told reporters he telephoned his father in Dallas after signing the contract with the Dukes.

Mantle, 23, said his father was pleased he made the team, and that both were happy over his decision to leave the Yankee organization and come to Virginia.

"If I can't make it by the time I'm 25, then I will have to look for something else," he said.

Mantle admitted to be being a little overweight during the Fort Lauderdale stint and noted that he'd been used sparingly. After the club left him behind when it made its first road trip, Mantle said, he and his father agreed it was best to leave.

But the director of scouting for the Yankees, Bill Bergesch, said the team was ready to offer Mantle a contract when he left camp.

"He was doing very well. We were happy with his progress. But we never had the opportunity to talk contract. He had far to go to get himself back in shape," Bergesch said.

But, he said, Mantle " ... showed some of the things his father had. He has the ability to hit the ball with power."

The Duke's general manager, Mike Halbrooks, conceded Thursday that he often has been asked whether the younger Mantle was signed merely as a gate attraction for the first-year franchise.

Entertainers And Sidewalk Art Show

Five groups of entertainers are scheduled to add periods of musical fare, magic and puppetry to the annual Greenville Sidewalk Art Show to be held on the Town Common from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. tomorrow.

Musicians and performers who have volunteered their time to provide entertainment during the day are:

— 11 a.m. — A violin concert by 30 students of Jo Ann Bath, Patricia Bath, Serena Matney, and Jennifer O'Neal. The students will be playing and demonstrating the Suzuki violin technique.

— 12 noon — Bill Robinson, Greenville's "Mr. Magic," will present a slight-of-hand magic show.

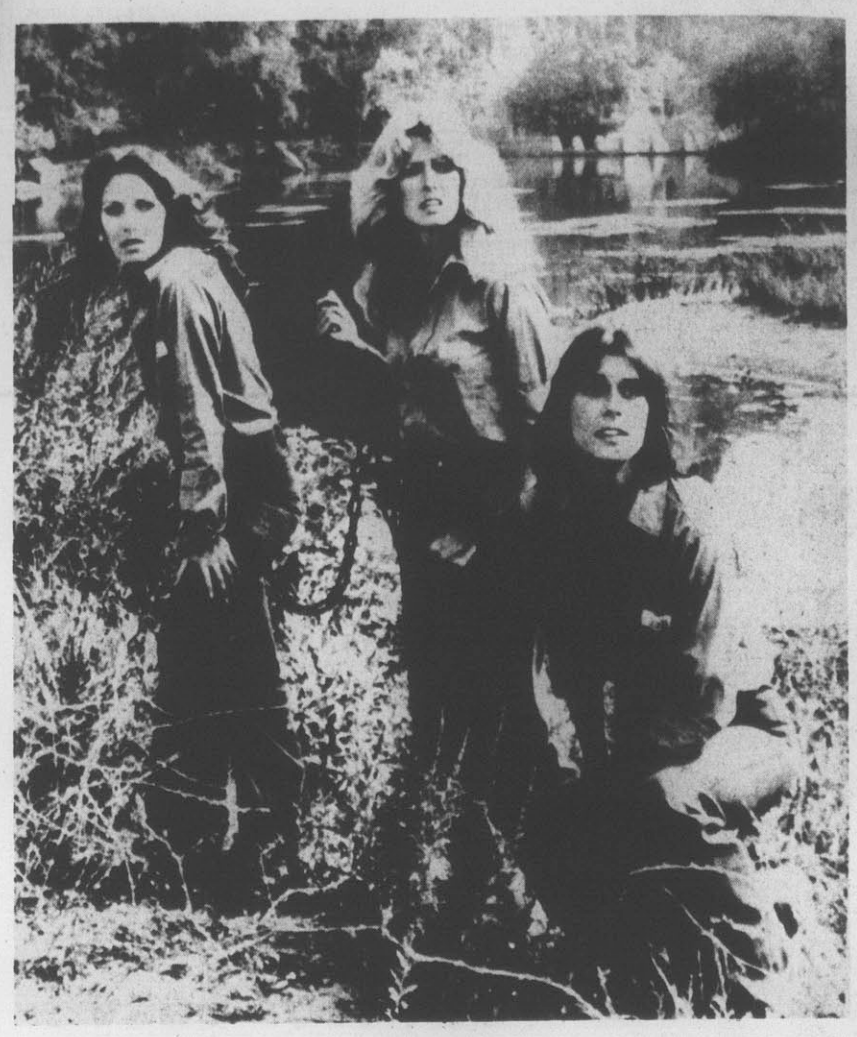

— 1 p.m. — Billy and Sandra Stinson will appear in a casual concert of guitar playing and singing. The couple has performed on numerous occasions in the Greenville area.

Overruled In Court Test

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge Franklin Dupree Jr. Thursday ruled unconstitutional a state law which would limit the number of sex-oriented businesses in a building.

Dupree declared the law "facially unconstitutional, in violation of the First and Fourteenth Amendments" Thursday in Fayetteville.

Dupree concurred with U.S. District Court Judge James McMillan of Charlotte, who issued a preliminary ruling in February calling the law unconstitutional.

"We disagree with the judge, and we will appeal it," special deputy Attorney General Edwin Speas Jr. said. "The General Assembly apparently felt it would be effective, and I think it would be effective in controlling the proliferation of sex shops."

The law, which became effective Jan. 1, divided adult businesses into four categories and made it a criminal misdemeanor to operate more than one business in a building.

Flynt Flown To Ohio Hospital

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Hustler magazine owner Larry Flynt was flown to his home city from Atlanta today 5½ weeks after being partially paralyzed by a gunshot wound during a break in his pornography trial at Lawrenceville, Ga.

A private jet airplane landed at Don Scott Airport about 1½ hours after Flynt was moved from Emory University Hospital in Atlanta to Dekalb-Peachtree Airport and put aboard a plane.

The transfer in Atlanta was made under police guard and police in Columbus kept newsmen several hundred yards from the airplane after it landed. An ambulance was driven alongside the jet, then quickly left the airport on an eight-mile trip to University Hospital on the Ohio State University campus.

Control tower workers at the airport, which is owned by the university, said the small jet parked alongside a larger plane and they were unable to see any passenger activity.

Flynt has been partially paralyzed since the shooting. A spokesman in Atlanta said his condition was stable and that he was accompanied by a physician and "quite a bit of security."

Police in Gwinnett County, where the shooting took place, have been unable to question Flynt for more than a few minutes about the shooting, Chief John W. Crunkleton said late Thursday.

Crunkleton complained earlier this week that Flynt's family had not cooperated in the investigation, and he said Thursday that Flynt's transfer "is going to complicate matters."

Police say they have no suspects in the case.

Flynt's local attorney, Gene Reeves Jr., also was wounded in the shooting. He has been released from a Lawrenceville hospital and is recuperating at home.

Olivia Hussey Likes Change Of Pace

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It is quite a leap Olivia Hussey makes from Juliet and the Virgin Mary to Alicia in "The Bastard," Operation Prime Time's first show of the year.

"That's why I took the role," said Olivia, who recently moved back to California after several years in London.

"Alicia puts money first. She really loves Phillipe, but marries his half-brother because he has the money and the title. When he is killed she goes after Phillipe. She is a bit of a whore, really."

She said it was the first television role she had ever accepted. Although "Jesus of Nazareth," in which she played Mary, was shown on NBC, she said Franco Zeffirelli filmed it at the leisurely pace of a movie.

"When I went on the set of 'The Bastard' they were already under way," she said. "They shoot so much faster. I was very nervous. It took me a day to get calmed down."

As it turned out there were many delays in shooting the two-part, four-hour film. Heavy rains postponed the outdoor scenes, so Olivia flew back to London, closed out her affairs there and flew back with her 5-year-old son, Alexander Gunther Martin, and her secretary.

She said she hopes that her divorce from Dean Martin Jr. will be completed in the next few weeks and she will be free to marry singer and composer Paul Ryan.

"The Bastard" was adapted from the first in the series of books written by John Jakes for the American Bicentennial. It will air in May on a number of stations across the country. Operation Prime Time was organized by a group of independent stations about two years ago to produce shows that would enable the stations to compete with network programming.

Andrew Stephens plays the title role of "The Bastard," who flees England to the American colonies just before the Revolution. It has an all-star cast.

Olivia was spotted in a London production of "The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie" by Zeffirelli at the time he was looking for a Juliet for "Romeo and Juliet." The film made her a star and she has since appeared in "Lost Horizons," "The Cat and the Canary" and the upcoming "Death on the Nile."

She said she hasn't done TV before because "the right parts haven't come along." She said, "I've been offered roles before but turned them down. I will do more television if I can find more parts as good as Alicia. Television money nowadays is as good as the movies."

Presenting TV Special Sunday

The Evangelism Department of the N. C. Conference of the Pentecostal Holiness Church will present a television special Sunday at 1 p. m. on WITN-TV.

The presentation, titled "Ye Are My Witnesses", will feature special music by a join choir of churches in the Raleigh area under the direction of Mrs. Billie Butler. The program will inform about the objectives of the Pentecostal Holiness Church and will feature conference officials, including Supt. J. Doner Lee, Evangelism Director L. B. Collins and Christian Education Director Bobby L. Collins.

Opening lead: Three of ♠.

Study the play of this hand, then decide if any player erred. If so, who and why?

North-South did well to reach a spade slam on a good fit and a key singleton. North's jump to four clubs was a "splinter" bid, showing the values for game with spades as trump and a singleton in the bid suit. South cue-bid his diamond control and North needed no further encouragement to contract for the small slam.

West led a trump, and since the hand was a spread if trumps were 3-2, declarer won in dummy and led a spade to the ten. When East showed out, declarer could count only eleven tricks. He decided to score his twelfth via club ruff in dummy, so he led the jack of clubs.

West won the queen and found a brilliant defense—he returned a heart. Suddenly declarer realized his predicament. If he ruffed a club in dummy, he would have no entry to the hearts. Instead, he drew all the trumps, then ran the hearts. He later cashed the ace-king of diamonds in the hope of dropping the queen, but when that failed he could gather only eleven tricks.

The defense was stunning—West's heart return is one of the best plays we have come across in some time. Nevertheless, we fault South for failing to spot a dummy reversal that would have landed his contract easily.

When the second trump lead reveals the 4-1 trump break, declarer should cash the ace-king of diamonds, then cross to dummy with a heart. He cashes one more heart on which he discards a diamond. Now declarer can ruff a diamond in his hand with the ace of trumps, cross to dummy with a trump, draw the last trump and run the hearts. Declarer simply concedes a club after taking the first twelve tricks.

Your play to the first trick could decide the fate of the contract! A writer once remarked: "There's no such thing as a blind opening lead, only deaf opening leaders!" FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, APRIL 15, 1978

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: If you are too stirred up about emotional matters, control yourself, and make a point to maintain calm and poise throughout the day. Don't make promises that are likely to be broken.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Study your surroundings and make plans for improvement. Make long-range plans that could give you more abundance in the future.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You have to be diplomatic when dealing with others today if you wish to gain your aims. Don't neglect your correspondence.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Any financial problems should be handled in a most efficient way, otherwise you could get into deeper trouble. Be more practical.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Ideal time to clear up all those little tasks you have put aside for a long while. Sidestep a troublemaker.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Don't be tempted into an argument with one who means a great deal to you. Control your temper and all is well. Be happy.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Don't let hurt feelings cause a rift between you and a good friend. Await a better time for the social side of life.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Be more objective in your dealings with others and get excellent results. Avoid one who could do you harm in a business way.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A new project can be successful provided you first confer with a higher-up who can be helpful to you. Relax at home tonight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Study the promises you have made to others and do the best you can to keep them. Try not to spend money foolishly.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Avoid one who disagrees with you and likes to cause trouble. Engage in favorite hobby during spare time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) An associate views things differently from you and could be difficult today, if you permit. Take needed health treatments.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) If you start an argument at home, this could be a serious matter, so use tact instead. Take no risks where money is concerned today.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will possess much strength and will do well in activities that require mental alertness. Teach to have more patience, since the ambition here is enormous. Don't neglect spiritual training early in life. Sports are a must.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!
