Hard Work In Europe: Hunt

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt, describing his two-week trade mission to Europe said Thursday he saw a capacity for hard work and competition there that "we need to emulate."

"I found a willingness to work hard that has begun to fade here," Hunt said at his first news conference since returning from the trip.

"It's high time we realize many of the countries of Europe have stronger economies than we do," he said. "They're simply doing a better job than we, the country that thinks it's the best in the world."

Hunt was accompanied on the trip by a group of cabinet members and state industry recruiters. Another group of North Carolina businessmen also made the trip but went at their own expense.

The purpose of the trip was to attract foreign industry to locate in North Carolina, and to improve trade relations with several European nations, Hunt said. The governor announced two plant locations while he was abroad, and said he had talked with at least 20 serious prospects.

"We were clearly sending a message to the business people of Europe that North Carolina is on the move," Hunt said.

On a related topic, Hunt announced that industrial investment in North Carolina during the first quarter of 1978 ran ahead of the pace set during 1977, when a record was set.

Hunt said there was a total investment of almost $354 million during the quarter, up $54.5 million from the same period of the previous year. Two thirds of the growth, $252 million, was in new industry and the remainder was in expansion of existing industry, he said.

"Counting both new and expanded industries, this means 6,680 new jobs for North Carolina, an increase of 2,359 jobs over this time last year," Hunt said.

The announcement of a new Philip Morris cigarette manufacturing plant in Cabarrus County was the largest investment during the quarter, and will account for nearly a third of those new jobs.

Will Direct War Against Smoking

By CHRIS CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) —

The government's war on smoking today gained a general who was recruited from the battle against alcoholism.

John M. Pinney was named first director of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare's new Office on Smoking and Health by HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr.

Pinney, 34, had worked for the National Council on Alcoholism, a private organization, for five years, and has directed its Washington office since 1975.

Like Califano, Pinney is a former smoker. He quit the habit early this year, before Califano launched his antismoking campaign and before Pinney knew he was being considered for the job, an HEW spokesman said.

Califano began his campaign Jan. 11, on the 14th anniversary of the first surgeon general's report that warned of the health hazards of smoking. Califano's $29.8 million program includes increased spending on smoking research and on disseminating anti-smoking materials to schools, the media and the public.

Pinney previously had managed programs to fight alcoholism in major corporations in nine U.S. cities under a $2.8 million federal grant.

Califano announced the appointment in Denver in a speech to the Association of State and Territorial Health Officials.

The HEW secretary said in a statement: "As director of a major program to educate the citizens of this country to the dangers of alcohol, (Pinney) understands fully the equally urgent need for educating people — particularly teenagers and those who have not yet begun to smoke — to the dangers and problems associated with tobacco."

Pinney, a former Navy officer, worked as an HEW analyst from 1971 to 1973.

He will oversee distribution of HEW's "seed money" to government and voluntary agencies for smoking research and pilot programs, as well as the development of new antismoking materials.

The new office, situated in Washington, will embody HEW's National Clearinghouse on Smoking and Health, now headquartered in Atlanta.

Nostalgia Time At Hand

FARMVILLE — "Thirty years ago I'd have been glad to see this," Bill Gregory, a 1947 graduate of the school being demolished here, said. "Now it makes me feel a little sad."

Gregory and his daughter were among hundreds of Farmville High School alumni who have stopped by this week to watch for a while the tearing down and carting away of the 57-year-old landmark.

"This was my school, too," I told him, with more emotion than I'd thought I'd feel. There was a portion of the heavy maroon stage curtains given as a class gift by some group of seniors — I don't know which ones — partially suspended among the rubble. There are the balcony seats, row on row, facing the shambles of what used to be the stage. Debris already has covered the first floor seats, and probably by today the balcony ones will be flung down among them.

There's the supply cabinet of my Algebra I classroom, a few panes intact — for a while.

Those ugly green curtains on the far wall of the auditorium are still there. Guess nobody did want to salvage those.

"It makes me feel kinda funny. How about you?" Andy Martin Jr., a 1962 graduate said. I mumbled an answer and hurried around front for a few more last-opportunity photographs.

Now the flashbacks became more vivid and more abundant. I've turned a lot of "flips" on that bar that was probably the remains of a seasaw out front.

I've dashed up that broken concrete walk on the Horne Avenue side many a morning just after I'd heard the bell ring from the house my family rented across the street from the school when we moved to Farmville in 1957.

I learned a lot here, made a lot of friends, even met my husband here. Our daughters will laugh, but yes, Ruel did carry my books for me from classroom to my locker, then newly obtained, a few times.

I take a picture of the columned arched main entrance, partially obscured now by a pile of dug-up shrubbery, and I recall what seemed to be at the time the monumental effort of getting just the right lighting for a night shot of that entrance for the title page of the "Archway" Yearbook of 1964. Bob Aiken, a Snow Hill photographer did the honors, but Jim Dilda, Doug Joyner and I were there, hindering or helping him, I'm not sure which.

I see a classmate, Lydia Webber — Lydia Webber Wade, that is. She and I joke about how Mrs. J. B. Joyner, long an English teacher here, must be shaking her finger in eternity at this demolition crew.

George Allen, father of two FHS graduates, is thinking along the same lines: "Miss Annie Perkins (who taught here for over 50 years) is gonna 'haint' somebody," he says.

This school building, the Farmville Centennial booklet, says, was completed in 1921 at a cost of $180,000. It had been called for in a mass meeting held in 1919 and in a bond vote which followed.

The demolition is being expertly carried out and soon the agony will be over. In the meantime, I dare any one who attended this school for any length of time to watch that wrecking ball do its work and not feel some measure of sentimentality.

Cites Difficulty In SALT Parley

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) —

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance expressed hope that he and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko would make progress toward a new pact limiting nuclear arms in talks starting today. But he warned that "complex and difficult problems" remain.

Vance, arriving Wednesday night from London, said he and Gromyko in four meetings over the past 18 months "made progress ... in bringing the two sides together on a number of issues."

However, "complex and difficult problems remain in the SALT negotiations," he added. "I hope my visit here will make progress on remaining major issues."

Vance failed to budge the Soviets in his last trip here in March 1977, and U.S. officials said they did not expect this visit to yield solutions to remaining problems. They said the three-day stay would be considered a success if it narrowed gaps on three major issues: 1. Soviet reluctance to stop development of new intercontinental ballistic missiles and modernization of existing ones. Washington would like missile restriction on both superpowers for three years.

2. The Soviet demand that the United States not share with its European allies the technology of cruise missiles, the low-flying drone bombers chosen by Carter as a key element in America's defense strategy. Defense Secretary Harold Brown has said no accord will be signed that bars this technology from other members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

3. The U.S. demand for assurances that the Russians will limit production of their new Backfire bomber and will not base it within easy striking distance of the United States. Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev is reported willing to give these assurances in writing. But it is questionable whether this would satisfy such Senate hawks as Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., who are skeptical of Soviet intentions.

U.S. and Soviet negotiators in Geneva reportedly have already agreed on most other provisions of a new nuclear arms limitation accord to run until 1985. Further talks are expected when Gromyko visits the United States next month for a U.N. General Assembly meeting on disarmament.

Vance is also scheduled to meet Brezhnev and discuss the possibility of a meeting between him and President Carter in the United States this summer or fall.

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used. Transcribing is done once a day.

ELVIS RECORD ADDRESS

Hotline has received several requests for assistance in obtaining an Elvis Presley "Hound Dog" records and tapes ordered following the televising of a special record offer on WNCT, Channel 9 here.

WNCT has suggested that anyone who has not received orders that have been placed longer than six weeks to two months contact Brookville Marketing, c/o V & R Advertising, 919 Third Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022.

Most of those who've written themselves apparently have used a mail drop address in Wilmington and their letters may or may not have been forwarded. At least one that we know of was returned marked "Addressee Unknown."

The Channel 9 spokesman said that if writing the marketing company is not successful after a reasonable time, the station will be glad to hear about the situations and will contact the company itself on behalf of the customers.

D.C. Post For Greenville Man

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Lacy Streeter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lacy Streeter of Greenville, has been named to the position of acting general assistant to Mayor Walter E. Washington of Washington, D.C.

The 42-year old assistant, in his new position, will be in charge of a number of special assignment areas under Mayor

Washington. These include liaison with the grassroots network of elected Advisory Neighborhood Commissioners; carrying out the city's new minority contracting law to assure that minorities receive a substantial number of city contracts; and serving as a liaison with commissions and offices which serve groups of citizens with special needs.

For the past five years, Streeter has been in charge of community development activities for Wards 1 and 4 of the D. C. Dept. of Housing and Community Development.

Before working for the city of Washington, Streeter was a research fellow with the Urban Institute and director of youth development for the United Planning Organization, the District's anti-poverty agency. He also serves on the board of directors of the Southeast Neighborhood House, the National Association for the Southern Poor (NASP) and is a member of the NAACP.

A graduate of N. C. Central University, Streeter is married to the former Ann Humphrey and they have two children, Lacy and Lisa.

McCarthy Sees No Apathy

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Former Minnesota Sen. Eugene McCarthy says the violent activism of the 1960s is gone from college campuses, but the nation's students haven't drifted into the apathy of the 1950s.

"In the '50s there was a genuine apathy," said McCarthy, who ran unsuccessfully for president as an opponent of the Vietnam War in 1968. "I don't find that to be true now."

"I think there is a lot of good questioning going on on campus," he said Wednesday before a speech at the University of Georgia. "That's the kind of activism that should be normal to college campuses, not the kind that we had in the '60s."

"I hope it will lead to a clarification, at least, of critical issues and things will be different in the '80s."

Threw Boy Into Gasoline Fire

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — A 10-year-old boy escaped with minor burns Wednesday night after two masked men reportedly threw him into a gasoline fire at a city park, police said.

Edward Foster told police he was playing with another boy in the park about 5 p.m. when two men drove up, poured gasoline on the ground, lit it and threw him into the blaze.

The other youth managed to elude the men but Foster suffered burns on his legs when his pants caught fire, police said.

Officers issued a pickup order for two men seen leaving the park in a late-model car.

conditions made it unlikely that the remaining 19 bodies would ever be recovered or the cause of the blasts found.

"This brings to a close over nine years of treacherous recovery work during which 59 bodies were recovered," Samples said.

He noted that a 1974 agreement with the families of the victims called for recovery efforts to go on only so long as it was "safe, reasonable, feasible and practical to do so."

"We have long since gone well beyond that point," Samples said.

But 19 widows disagree. "It was their negligence that killed them, and I think it's their job to recover them so we can have a proper burial," said Sarah Kaznoski, widow of Pete Kaznoski Sr.

"If they'd had their way they would never have found number one. They started the battle to seal the mine...and leave them entombed from the day of the explosion."

She added, "It just seems so inhuman to me. We know the men are dead, but they still deserve a proper burial."

At 5:25 a.m. on Nov. 20, 1968, the first explosion roared through the mine. Above ground, it was first felt as an ominous rumble, followed by a shock wave that a motel clerk in Fairmont, 12 miles away, believed was the back of his motel blowing up.

May Compete Despite Charge

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Officials of the Miss USA Pageant announced today that Eva Jo Stancil, Miss Alabama, will be allowed to continue in the event despite an arrest last year on drug charges.

Pageant President Harold Stancil told a news conference that he and other officials "decided that the proper course of action is to permit Miss Stancil to continue to represent her state."

Offer Reward

A car, owned by Kenneth Lawrence Ayers, 35 of Red Oak, was found abandoned on Pitt Street near the Bonner's Lane intersection yesterday by Greenville Police.

Chief Glenn Cannon said the vehicle had been missing since Ayers was found shot to death on N.C. 43, about six miles West of Red Oak in Nash County, at 12:20 a.m. Saturday.

Ayers, shot in the chest, had no identification on him when found, and his car was missing. Nash sheriff's deputies found his wallet and personal papers beside N.C. 43 North of Red Oak, sometime later.

Cannon said a $500 reward is being offered by Nash County Sheriff Frank Brown for information leading to the arrest and conviction of Ayers' killers.

ECU Interior Design Students Work On 'Apartment' Project

By FRANCEINE PERRY
ECU News Bureau

The problem: How to modify a standard five-room apartment into an attractive and comfortable interior, without major alterations and expenditure.

The Solution: Come and see it, at 504 E. Ninth St., Greenville.

Twelve interior design seniors in the East Carolina University School of Art are in the process of revitalizing that typical living space — the two-bedroom apartment — in an old university-owned house just off the main campus.

Working from their own designs, and on a limited budget, the students have spent many weeks on the project, which is a kind of "laboratory" requirement at ECU for graduation in interior design.

"When people move into apartments, they are not allowed to make a lot of changes in their walls or in the actual structure," explained student designer Sandy Schlosser of Arendtsville, Pa.

"One of our goals in this project is to help the public realize that a good-looking space can be established within these restrictions without costing a great deal."

The completed project will be open for viewing Sunday, April 23 from 2 to 6 p.m., and during April 24-28, from 2 to 9 p.m. Students will be on hand to answer visitors' questions and give advice on redecoration and construction of inexpensive furnishings and accessories.

Support for the project was provided by several High Point furniture merchants, the ECU Student Government Association and the students themselves. Materials and supplies, as well as funds were donated by Greenville area businesses.

The students' work on their "apartment" did not begin until they had sectioned off part of the original house to use as their prototype five-room space. Anyone who has seen the house after previous annual interior design projects will probably be bewildered by the changes!

Past classes of interior design students have turned the house into several types of dwellings, a suite of offices and even a restaurant. Work on the spring project enables them to put into actual practice the principles and concepts learned in classroom study.

And since they do all the physical work involved, except changes in plumbing and electrical wiring, long hours of labor are spent in building walls, installing windows and doors, laying tile and carpets, and painting before the "fun" parts — choosing and arranging furnishings and accessories.

Having created a space which, unfinished, closely resembles the series of nondescript "cubes" typical of the standard two-bedroom apartment, the students have demonstrated how a good measure of hard work and ingenuity can make an apartment exciting and original.

Most of the furnishings were constructed by hand — seating and shelving units, tables, lamp bases and a sculptured head board made of scrap bits of wood.

Their imaginative color choices in window and wall coverings, carpets and upholstery fabrics do much to relieve the monotony of the space, which consists of a living-dining combination, kitchen with pass-through bath and bedrooms.

The project's theme, "You Can Do It Yourself," is carried out in ways easily imitated by the novice: simple homemade furnishings, good colors and imaginative lighting and wall treatments.

For the convenience of visitors who wish to try some of their ideas, the students have duplicated their plans for distribution during their open house period.

Names of area participating student designers and their parents' names follow:

Pitt County, Farmville — Shelton Chesson; Greenville — Kate Welch, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Jack Welch.

Reception Given Sunday For Mrs. Jenkins

The Rho Zeta Chapter of Chi Omega Sorority, East Carolina University, entertained at a reception Sunday afternoon honoring alumnae, Mrs. Lillian Jenkins, wife of ECU Chancellor Leo Jenkins.

The honoree was presented a corsage of white carnations, the Chi Omega Sorority flower.

The refreshment table and house were decorated with pink and white azaleas and camellias.

Mrs. Jenkins was given an engraved silver Revere bowl by sorority members. Mrs. Jenkins was an originator of the chapter and has aided the house's corporation board through the years.

Approximately 100 guests were in attendance including friends from the Greenville area, alumni and housemothers from the other seven sorority houses.

Pitt Homemakers Receive Top Honors

Two Pitt County Extension Homemakers received top honors in the "Crafts for International" project. Mrs. Wiley Waters was Northeastern District winner in the needlework category and Mrs. Nathan Smith in the creative crafts group.

Mrs. Waters entered a four-way barge pillow in shades of blue and green. Mrs. Smith's creative design was a silver ring.

Pitt County also placed first in the stamp project which is chaired locally by Mrs. Herbert Randolph. Over 133,000 cancelled stamps had been collected and trimmed to be used to feed hungry children in Bangladesh.

The above honors were received at the annual Northeastern District Extension Homemakers Day held in Elizabeth City. The district is made up of 15 counties. Mrs. Phyllis Sawyer, past president of the district, gave a slide presentation on the Associated Country Women of the World's tri-annual meeting held in Nairobi, Kenya.

Pitt County women in attendance were Mrs. Lonnie Staton, Mrs. O. J. Stancil, Mrs. Robert Stancil and Mrs. Randolph of Mt. Pleasant; Mrs. Mayo Rogers and Mrs. Adrian Brown of Sweet Gum Grove; Mrs. H. C. Simmons, Mrs. Frankie Coburn, Mrs. Dan Wynne and Mrs. Smith of Pactolus; Mrs. Hattie Thompson, Mrs. Louise Moore and Mrs. Annie Hardee of Simpson;

Dear Abby

Wife Suspects His Luncheon Sessions

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a clergyman, but I'm not disclosing the denomination because this is a small town. A few months ago, he started counseling a young woman in an effort to save her marriage. (I'll call her "Mrs. J.")

Last week he honed to say he wouldn't be home for lunch as usual because Mrs. J. was coming in for counseling and it might take his entire lunch hour.

I didn't think anything of it until a few days ago when he told me not to bother preparing lunch for the next few weeks because Mrs. J. needs a lot of counseling, and she always brings a nice lunch for both of them when she comes in. (She started with one session a week, now it's five!)

Yesterday when my husband came home, I noticed liquor on his breath. I was shocked because he seldom drinks, and I asked him if he had been drinking. He didn't try to hide it. He said Mrs. J. had brought along a small bottle of wine to have with their lunch.

Abby, I'm not the typical jealous wife, but I'm beginning to wonder what's going on at those sessions.

What do you think?

HIS WIFE

DEAR WIFE: I hope he's not a rabbi, because those lunches sound anything but "kosher" to me.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter called us last month and announced that it was official—she and her boyfriend are living together.

We, her parents, are very unhappy about this arrangement. We like the young man very much. He is a college graduate (as is our daughter), attractive, successful and from a good family. (We are friendly with his parents.) Our daughter and her boyfriend are both 28, and there is no reason why they should not get married, but she made it plain that they have no such plans for the present.

The boy's parents don't like this setup any more than we do, but they are also helpless. People are asking us questions, and it is very embarrassing. What should we tell them?

EMBARRASSED

DEAR EMBARRASSED: Don't be embarrassed. Parents are not responsible for the actions of their 28-year-old children, which is what you should tell people.

DEAR ABBY: In response to the family with "a darling little 88-year-old Granny" who reads their mail, may I add a thought:

At her age, this dear woman probably doesn't receive much mail of her own. By now, most of her friends and probably many of her relatives have already passed on. And since she lives with her daughter, she probably doesn't even get bills of her own.

Reading the rest of the family's mail might be her way of feeling in the mainstream of life. Perhaps if the family saw to it that there was something at "mail call" each day for Granny, she wouldn't need to read someone else's mail to feel important.

Think about it. At 88, receiving a personally addressed card just might be the highlight of your day.

B. IN MEDFORD, N.J.

Seira Members Entertain Mrs. Jenkins

The Seira Book Club met Tuesday at the home of Mrs. E. M. Turcotte at which time Mrs. Lillian J. Jenkins, wife of Chancellor Leo W. Jenkins, was honored.

The immediate past president of the club, Mrs. G. Harry Leslie, presented Mrs. Jenkins a certificate awarding her honorary life membership in the Seira Club. It was the first such recognition given by the club.

Mrs. Jenkins was a charter member of the Aries Book Club, which later became two clubs. She was responsible for naming the new group, Seira Club. The name was a rearrangement of the letters of the first organization. The Seira Club was started Oct. 3, 1967. Mrs. Jenkins was also presented a book "Apples of Gold," which had been autographed by all club members. The book was given in appreciation for her devotion and enthusiasm as well as for her services and leadership in the club where she has held every office, serving as president twice.

Breast Reconstruction For Women After Surgery

By PATRICIA KOZA
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sallye Krause still remembers the terror she felt that November morning in 1974 when she found the lump in her breast while in the shower. For her, the implications were especially acute. Her mother had undergone a mastectomy for breast cancer four years earlier.

"The first thing I thought about was losing my breast," said Mrs. Krause, a seminar and conventions coordinator. "I didn't think about my life at first. The main thing in my mind was disfigurement."

She was immediately admitted to a hospital. A biopsy was done and the results were positive. Her breast would have to be removed.

But before having a mastectomy, she contacted a plastic surgeon who had helped do trauma surgery on her four years earlier when she was involved in a near-fatal auto accident.

"I felt why did I have to be denied something so vital to a woman's psychological well-being?" said Mrs. Krause.

After the mastectomy, her plastic surgeon, Dr. Bernard Scott Teunis, did what was then an unusual procedure: in a series of operations within the next year, he reconstructed the breast with an implant under the skin.

"I was really gutsy to do it at the time," said Mrs. Krause. "This was not a common thing. But I'm a satisfied customer."

Mrs. Krause's first reactions are typical of many women who have been faced with the necessity of having a breast removed because of cancer.

"Their first thought, especially for single women, is loss of the breast," said Rose Kushner, who wrote an informative book on breast cancer called "Why Me?" after having a mastectomy. Mrs. Kushner, who has talked to about 8,500 women on the subject, said, "They may think of life second, and quickly, but the first thing is 'My God, I'm going to lose my breast.'"

According to the National Cancer Institute, one out of 14 women will develop breast cancer some time in her life, and the consequence usually is a mastectomy.

On top of having to deal with the chill of cancer, women who undergo the disfiguring operation are saddled with wearing uncomfortable, external prosthetic substitutes for their missing breasts.

Overall statistics are not available, but plastic surgeons in the field estimate that until recently, less than 5 percent of mastectomy patients in the United States had a new breast constructed.

But reconstruction, in which the prosthesis is deep in the chest wall and covered by skin, has increased dramatically in the past five years, partly as the result of better plastic surgery techniques.

More important, there is a growing belief among some general surgeons that reconstruction surgery by plastic surgeons does not interfere with the prime goal: getting rid of the disease to save the patient's life.

In fact, many persons in the health care field now look at it as a way to get more women into the doctor's office when the suspicion of cancer arises.

"I think it's probably the single most significant factor that will motivate women to come early for detection," said Dr. Wendy Schain, a clinical psychologist in Bethesda, Md., who works with breast cancer patients and has had breast reconstruction surgery.

"The consequence for finding breast cancer is still amputation of the breast and that is scary as the devil to most women."

Among the plastic surgeons who have been in the forefront of the move toward making a woman feel "whole" again is Dr. Charles E. Horton, chairman of the plastic surgery department at Eastern Virginia Medical School in Norfolk.

"I think breast reconstruction is a big stride which has brought a lot of happiness to patients who wouldn't have had it otherwise," he said. "But there are still some general surgeons who absolutely feel that it should not be done."

"They can in good conscience tell their patients that reconstruction is still basically an untried technique and the results are not yet in."

Horton works as a team with Dr. Francis E. Rosato, professor and chairman of the general surgery department at EVMS, and has done about 200 breast reconstructions.

The advantage of the "team" concept, says Dr. Rosato, "is that it indicates from the first day that this will not be just an excisional procedure; that there are reconstructive methods that go along with it. The patient interprets this correctly to mean we are optimistic of her cure as well."

Breast reconstruction can't be recommended for every woman, and the results can vary depending on what plastic surgeons have left to work with after the mastectomy and even on what the woman wants. Some women hope to look acceptable nude; others are satisfied with the prospect of being able to wear a low-cut dress or a swimsuit off the racks.

Dr. Peter McKinney, associate professor of plastic surgery at Northwestern University Medical School in Chicago who also has a private practice, said women should not expect such surgery to provide a magical cure, for example, for a failing marriage.

"Most of the time we succeed, but there are some people who just don't listen," he said. "One of the best reconstruction patients I ever had was miserable because the husband still didn't go for her. She expected it would make a difference and it didn't."

The costs can be prohibitive, from $1,000 to $6,000 or more, depending on what must be done. However, many health insurance plans now consider it part of the rehabilitation process and will pay for it.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

The winter of '78 is slowly becoming a bad memory but the challenges are still there. Thousands of them. They're called potholes and make every outing as adventurous as riding in an open convertible through a mine field.

A network newscaster the other night quoted a rather impressive statistic right down to the number of how many potholes there are in the country. I don't know a pothole-counter personally, but I suspect they're a lot like bird watchers who call in their sightings on a day-to-day basis. ("Harvey Gravel here, reporting a two-footer on U.S. 1 that would make your back teeth rattle!")

The big problem is what do we do now. Light a caution light on them each evening and hope God thinks it's a candle? Plant trees in them and make the environmentalists happy? Or turn them into testing grounds for shock absorbers?

One very imaginative judge in a small Ohio town is trying one solution. For every drunk who appears before him, he sentences him to filling in potholes. As he observed, "They have something in common. One potted condition deserves another."

It's probably oversimplification, but I think I have the perfect solution to the gaping holes dotting the roads and streets of our nation.

If it were up to me, I'd assemble every two-year-old in the country and announce, "I want all of you to take a nap. Under no condition are you to go out into the traffic and play. No one... repeat... no one is to take a bucket and shovel and fill up the holes in the street. Your mommy likes the holes just the way they are. She does not want you to shovel dirt into them, or stamp on them with your good shoes on. If you want to dig new ones, fine, but under no circumstances are you to fill up the holes. Understand?"

Within two days there is no doubt in my mind that every single pothole in the country would be firmly packed with a compound that would handle truck route traffic. Generally, the nation is inclined to underestimate the power of two-year-olds. Actually, they're a vital force who could eliminate war, save the forests, and unearth sources of new energy if given the chance.

There's no doubt in my mind that when Noah built his Ark, somewhere in the neighborhood was a two-year-old who had been told, "Don't you dare turn on that garden hose and get everything wet!"

An Emotional Decision Made

With approval of the final of two Panama Canal treaties by the U. S. Senate Tuesday night, turnover of the canal to the Panamanians by the year 2000 is virtually assured.

There have been few measures which have been more emotional to Americans than this proposal.

The original treaty that brought about construction of the canal by the United States, was signed in 1903 and it was symbolic to South Americans of U.S. interference in southern hemisphere internal affairs.

The canal, though, has always been a source of great pride to the United States and its existence is also essential to a nation which has shores on both the Atlantic and the Pacific. We have both economic and military needs for the shortened water route from our east to west coast.

Preparation of the treaties with Panama stretched over Republican and Democratic administrations, but it fell to President Carter to finally bring the matter to a vote. Needing a two-thirds majority in the Senate, bipartisan support was essential, and it was forthcoming. Like so many other Americans we have negative feelings about relinquishing control of the canal. It is because of this widespread feeling, however, that it took courage on the part of many senators to vote for the treaties.

It has been done and, on the favorable side, the move on the part of the United States should be helpful to our relations with our South American neighbors. If that doesn't seem all that important at present, it is well to remember that South America is a potentially dynamic area. Some powerful nations could evolve there in the next 25 years. They may be nations whose friendship we will desperately need.

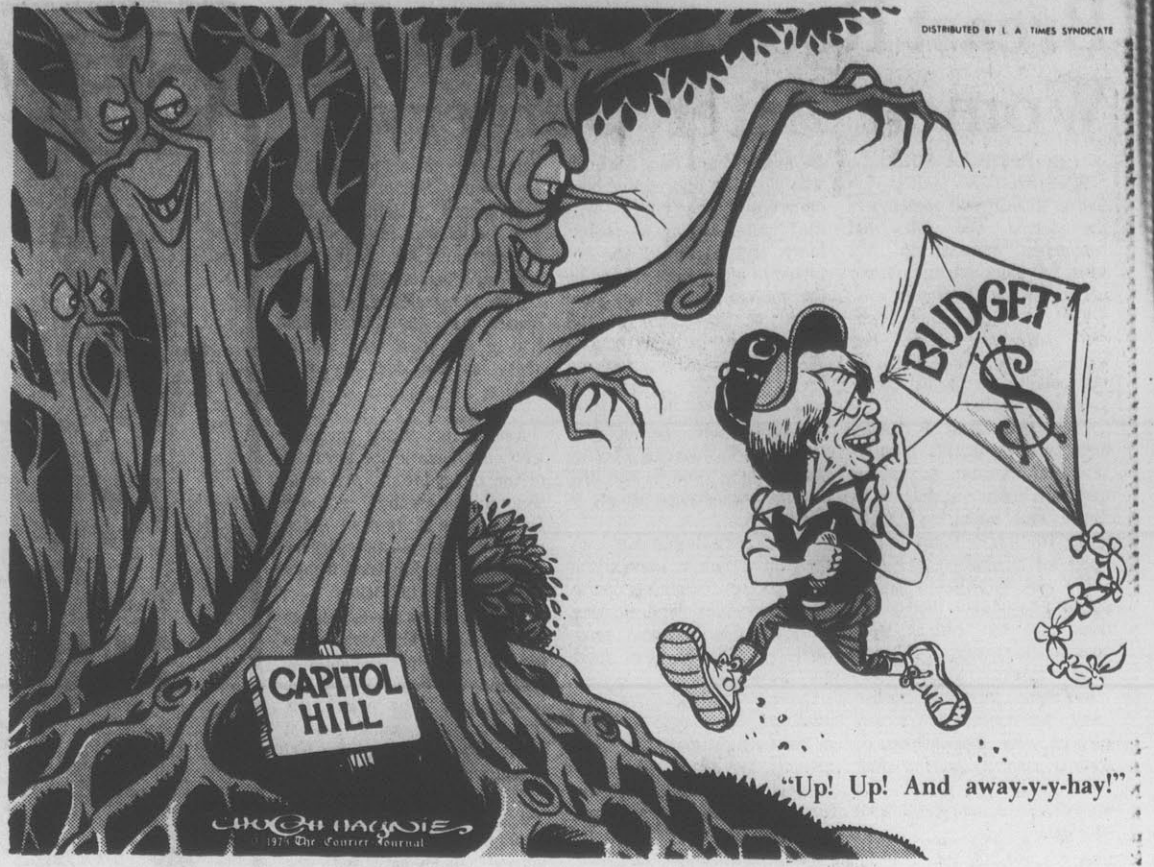

The Annual Tobacco Cycle Underway

First reports of tobacco transplantings came in last week, and even with the cool weather, the annual cycle is underway.

No crop takes any more care and hand labor than tobacco and, because of the expense involved, there is more risk, although in a good year the returns can be high.

Tobacco producers are hopeful this year, but growing conditions and subsequent market conditions will eventually determine just how profitable this year will be.

Speeding Is A Crime

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — It took a national energy crisis to hammer home the simple truth that lowered speeds save lives.

"I don't envision that we will ever return to those high speed limits," says J. Phil Carlton, Secretary of the Department of Crime Control and Public Safety.

The simple truth: Last year, through the month of July, highway deaths were inching ahead of those of the year before. A statewide crackdown was launched in August. By the end of 1977, the annual total was 103 fewer deaths than the previous year.

This year, the highway death rate has climbed again—currently ahead of the same period last year.

"I can only conclude that our motorists believe that we have relaxed our efforts and they are driving faster again...no tolerance above 55 miles per hour will be allowed," Carlton said in announcing another more intensive crackdown.

Save Lives

Carlton is "absolutely certain that when the public is convinced that our patrolmen will not allow any tolerance above 55, lives are saved."

No tolerance? Not even that well-known three or four miles an hour we all figured we had? "That tolerance—some five percent—has never been a formal nor written policy. It is a practice which simply grew up with time," Carlton explains.

The policy, now, is simple: Highway Patrol troopers are under orders to stop any motorist exceeding 55, and have the option of issuing a warning, writing a ticket, or arresting the driver. Action can vary with circumstances, and the trooper has the option and must make the decision.

No doubt it will sometimes prove difficult to get a court conviction for three or four miles over the limit—but the trooper will try if he feels the action is justified.

The crackdown includes driving drunk, which is the other main contributor to highway deaths (speed and drunk driving combined are blamed in 65 per cent of the fatalities). Carlton has told patrolmen to stop any car in which the driver even faintly resembles an intoxicated one.

NOBLITT

After that, it will be up to the courts. Carlton is a former judge in Wilson County. To judges and district attorneys, he offers this advice: "It is time...to stop that practice of reducing charges. Court officials ought to look at these statistics and be convinced that stopping these crimes saves lives."

Truckers

Truckers have defied the speed law in the past, and are visibly responsible for the excessive speeding which has prompted this crackdown. Will the patrol ticket truck drivers, and what reaction is expected?

"There is no question that enforcement will be against trucks. We expect to hear from them...we will get letters. But I wouldn't recommend that they take any action such as blocking the highways...we will not tolerate that," Carlton says.

Will the new crackdown, using variously colored cars of many different makes, and the no tolerance approach gain this state a "speed trap" label? Carlton isn't concerned with that. Neither is he worried about federal funds connected to speed enforcement.

He has concluded that speed kills. "It doesn't bother me a bit if it takes an energy shortage to come up with a program to save lives. We can no longer afford to think that violation of a motor vehicle law is any less serious than violation of any other criminal law. It is a crime to speed...to drive under the influence...No other crimes cost so many lives."

Adding A Few Old Tires

SCRABBLE, Va. — Well, finally! Residents of Rappahannock County, on the eastern slopes of the Blue Ridge Mountains, have been saying that for the past week. Finally, it's spring. We were beginning to think it would never be spring again.

Ordinarily, spring sort of slides into our mountains. We get a few balmy days in March, a few hours of nice warm rain, a week of sunshine, and little by little the fields turn green. In the ordinary spring, you hear the peepers by St. Patrick's Day, warming up their woodwinds down by Timothy's pond. The dogwoods are out by early April. It's slow and easy.

This year has not been that way at all. Winter lingered on like a mean cold in the head. March was very nearly a dead loss. Oh, a few crocuses popped out and a couple of daring daffodils jumped the gun, but right up through the night of Tuesday, April 11, everything was remorselessly blah. When we woke up on Wednesday, the 12th, it was spring. Just like that. Down at the Woodville Post Office, people were smiling for the first time in months. They were smiling and saying, "fi-nal-ly". Now the season improves with every passing day. Our dark and somnolent mountains, sleeping since October, are stretching and stirring. Every day the line of green moves up another fifty feet. This is the green of spring—a shimmering yellow-green, bathed in April sunshine. The trees are almost too perfect, as delicately shaped and rounded as if they had been painted by Grandma Moses for Hallmark cards.

A curious thing about the trees: Many of them have only the barest tint of green. The maples, for example, emerge in tiny red slippers. The birch appears in brown and yellow braids. Here in this orchard country, the apples and peaches are as purely pink and white as a corps de ballet in the Nutcracker Suite.

Down in the rock garden, the warming earth has produced a wedding party—bridesmaids in blue bells, ushers of trout lilies. The deep violet pasque flower has emerged and Hepatica, wild ginger, rue anemones, hyacinth, the columbine that looks like a fairy lampshade. All the flowering shrubs have burst into blossom. The wild cherry is weeping white ruffled tears. Overhead a cloud regatta drifts around the mountains.

Honesty compels a jarring word. It is not all beauty. Our place is bounded on the south by White Walnut Run, a stream so limpidly clear that one can see every pebble, every minnow, every fleeting shadow of a trout. A few days ago, some local loiterer stopped his pickup truck on the one-lane wooden bridge and heaved nine old tires into the run. We saw them Sunday morning, coming back from Burke's Store with the papers.

Why do people foul their own environment? Birds and animals are better behaved. Here was a beautiful mountain stream, flashing a diamond spray in the sunlight, and this loiterer, whoever he was, couldn't stand it. He had to leave an ugliness behind, the mark of the beast homo sapiens.

But one tries to be

Gold Sale 'Cure'

By H. JOSEF HERBERT
Associated Press Writer

The United States, trying to cut its whopping trade deficit and bolster the sagging dollar, will put nearly two million ounces of gold up for public auction beginning next month.

The announcement brought quick response today in Tokyo where the dollar's value rose against the powerful yen to 223.70 after opening at 222.00.

The Treasury Department said Wednesday night it would hold at least six auctions beginning May 23 with 300,000 ounces of gold to be sold at each. The department said it then would determine

The North Carolina Conference of the Women's Missionary Societies of the Methodist Church in session in Greenville, this morning elected Mrs. E. L. Hillman of New Bern, president of the conference for the coming year.

The conference heard reports of activities of the organizations of the various districts, awarded trophies to districts for outstanding services and heard from two of the North Carolina Conference missionaries to Korea.

With around 250 delegates and a large number of visitors present, the conference held its first session yesterday afternoon. Sessions will continue tonight and tomorrow morning.

Automobile fatalities in North Carolina during March dropped to 64. Major Arthur Fulk of the Highway Safety Division reported today that in three months there have been 179 deaths, 55 less than in 1937 during the same period.

Nearly one-third of the March fatalities were accounted for by 20 pedestrians killed, including six children playing in the streets and six persons killed while walking the highways.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Self-Deterrence Prevails

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — One of Zbigniew Brzezinski's key technical advisers, addressing fellow arms specialists behind closed doors over two months ago, propounded this principle: better that this country not enjoy a clear arms superiority over the Soviet Union for fear that we would sometimes misuse it.

Dr. Victor A. Utgoff, director of policy analysis on Brzezinski's National Security Council (NSC) staff, thereby set off spirited debate within the small, contentious community of strategic experts. Although he complains off-the-record comments are being taken out of context, the Utgoff principle explains much about national security policy in the Carter administration.

His remarks reflect self-distrust among middle-level officials. Fearful that the U.S. will make no more principled use of military power than the Soviet Union, they are concerned not only with deterrence in Moscow but self-deterrence in Washington. That mindset among technical advisers may explain why even non-technician Brzezinski, traditionally a hard-liner, has not escaped charges of Carter administration softness toward the Kremlin.

Utgoff, pinch-hitting for deputy NSC director David Aaron, addressed 840 weapons experts in Monterey, Calif., Feb. 1 at a conference sponsored by the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics. He refused to talk to us or give us the text of his speech. However, NSC staffers have corrected and amplified accounts given us by those present.

In no sense did Utgoff advocate unilateral disarmament. Describing the Carter administration's commitment to strategic arms control (SALT) as an "article of faith," he called for "strategic equality...through adequately verifiable arms control agreements." If that is "impossible," he advocated "whatever programs are necessary for our national security," adding: "We'll pay whatever price it takes."

What followed, however, began to raise eyebrows. "We cannot afford to allow ourselves to drift into significant strategic inferiority," Utgoff said. But what is "significant" inferiority? And he soon argued that superiority is no blessing.

Losing superiority would "not be the end of the world," he said. "Some of our advantages are fading, and in some cases, it might be to our advantage to allow U.S. superiority to fade away," Utgoff said. Why? NSC staffers told us Utgoff feels losing U.S. superiority in submarine-based missiles might induce the Soviets toward less land-based missiles—a highly debatable proposition.

Utgoff's speech reaches the heart of what bothers him about U.S. weapons superiority: "I suspect we would occasionally use it as a way of throwing our weight around in some very risky ways." Here is the essence of self-deterrence. If we do not have mobile missiles, neutron warheads and a superior navy, we cannot be tempted to use them.

Those attending Utgoff's speech were instructed it was strictly off-the-record; protestors prowling the aisles tried to enforce that edict. Nevertheless, a set of surreptitious notes soon circulated in Washington and was read at a conference at the Army-Navy Club here March 21. While those non-verbatim notes are incomplete, they do not differ in substance from the NSC official version given us.

Utgoff, 39, holds a doctorate in electrical engineering and was known as an advocate of "minimum deterrence" as a systems analyst at the Center of Naval Analysis before joining the Carter administration. His newness to high-level policymaking explains what

LIMIT TO REASON

Some people are afflicted with religious doubt; others go through their lives never questioning for a moment the spiritual truths taught to them by their parents and teachers. Probably the ideal state is somewhere between these two. Doubt is not wrong, provided we do not linger in it. When doubt hardens into agnosticism or sours into unbelief, then a clamor of major proportions has taken place.

But whether we are prone to doubt much or little, let us be assured that in the final analysis we cannot explain all religious truths on the basis of reason. A good rule for everyone to follow is this: Act on the basis of whatever faith you have, and you will find that the mysteries of religion will cease to bother you. Believe as far as you can, but always bear in mind that there is a limit beyond which human reason cannot go.

If you think that everything can be explained by reason, you are in for a considerable disappointment.

Market's Spasm Involves You

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Suddenly the stock market is news again, a spasm of buying having erupted from long-dormant institutions, which found themselves loaded with cash and needing a place to store it.

Institutions? The state correctional facility is an institution, but generally the people residing there have limited amounts to invest. Who are these investing institutions, and what are they doing?

Prudential Life Insurance is one. The XYZ Mutual Fund is another. So is your pension fund, and the endowment fund of your college. Sometimes bank-administered trust funds are included in the category.

On some days the combined activity of these investors totals 75 percent of the value of all transactions on the New York Stock Exchange, the nation's largest and by far most important exchange.

Sometimes they are called dinosaurs, being so large that any movement by them affects the entire trading environment. In 1975, they owned $230.5 billion of the $685.1 billion market value of all NYSE stocks.

At other times they are compared to horses, excitable and tending to gallop in herds. The comparison is made because of their nervous tendency to study each other's moves as often as stocks themselves.

This in fact is what a good many analysts say happened during April 14, 17 and 18. When a few institutions made their move after having lain idle for weeks, the others may have feared being left behind.

They ran in a herd. That is, they jumped on the same stocks, the big blue chips, the movers of industrial America. Why? Big institutions need big companies, with many shares outstanding, in which to invest.

Why do they need big companies? For their own safety, for one thing. A massive purchase in a small company could make them the overwhelming determinant of price, a dangerous situation for investor and company.

For another, they are permitted to own only small percentages of any one company. Companies such as General Motors, with 286 million shares outstanding, can easily accommodate huge institutional purchases.

And so they bought shares in companies such as General Motors—and then on April 19 were said to have sold some of them. "Profit-taking," said the analysts, so seldom without a likely explanation.

Profit-taking? A term loosely used. You may be sure that many of those who sold shares on April 18 weren't taking any profits. Some of them in fact were merely getting out while the getting was good.

It is unlikely, even in days of in-out trading, for an institution to buy in and sell out within so short a time. More likely, it seems, the sellers were those who had owned their shares for much longer periods.

Whether these sellers had profits or losses is difficult to say, but there is at least the likelihood that a good many had losses, the stock market averages being lower today than they were a dozen years ago.

SHAKESPEARE INTERPRETED FOR THE DEAF — Two performances of the current Playhouse production of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" are being interpreted for students from the Eastern North Carolina School for the Deaf in Wilson. The matinee performance yesterday and the performance tonight will have interpreters translating into sign language the antic action in this comedy. Shown here rehearsing with the cast are interpreters Ruth Aleskovsky (center) and Karen Lewis (right). The project is part of the Playhouse's continuing efforts to eliminate barriers which prevent handicapped people from full enjoyment of the Playhouse productions, general Manager Preston Sisk explained. the risk of complications. Reconstruction after cancer mastectomies is still widely debated in the medical world. Many medical authorities have published papers and given seminars on the subject, and they seem to agree that there is no evidence of cancer recurrence because of reconstructive surgery. But as yet, there is no central source of information. The National Cancer Institute is planning a study on the physical and psychological effects of breast reconstruction, but the results won't be in for several years.

"We've been more concerned with control of the disease in the past than we have been with rehabilitation of patients," said Dr. Ernest DeMoss, who is heading the study. "I think the time is now here when a lot of things are coming together that make this more feasible. The feeling is there's more to care than just getting over the disease."

"whether the amounts to be offered at succeeding auctions should be altered."

The dollar, which had been on a year-long decline, held steady on European markets prior to the news of the gold sale. Gold bullion sold at $174.75 an ounce Wednesday in London and closed at $174.875 an ounce at Zurich, up on both markets.

Treasury Department spokesman Joe Laitin said the gold sales "will have the effect of reducing the U.S. trade deficit, either by increasing exports of gold or by reducing the imports of this commodity."

The United States last year imported 8.3 million ounces of gold worth $1.8 billion for commercial and industrial uses.

Laitin said the sales also would be "a step in the direction" of easing the downward pressure on the dollar. The American currency has been declining against the strong Japanese and West German currencies partly because of the large U.S. trade deficit. The sale of gold would take dollars out of circulation as foreign holders buy gold.

The last U.S. gold auction was held in 1975 when 1.3 million ounces of the metal were sold at two sales. The auctions coincided with a change in U.S. law that allowed citizens for the first time since World War II to buy gold.

The Carter administration's chief aim with the gold sale was to attack the the trade deficit which reached a monthly record of $4.5 billion in February adding to the slowdown of the overall economy during the first quarter of 1978.

It was the 21st straight month that the country had a trade deficit, mainly because of oil imports. Last year the United States imported $26.5 million more in goods than it exported.

The United States has 277.5 million ounces of gold worth an estimated $50 billion at Fort Knox and other depositories around the country.

colleagues call his outrage that his speech (delivered to 840 people) leaked out. NSC officials told us Utgoff was "brainstorming," an unusual description for a prepared speech.

Nevertheless, he was back propounding the Utgoff principle March 27 in private conversation with a naval officer. While determined the U.S. should never be inferior, Utgoff added he equally feared being superior because it might encourage irresponsible U.S. conduct. An NSC go-between explained to us Utgoff meant that if either Washington or Moscow thought it had a strategic advantage, high-risk confrontation might result.

Utgoff's speech was not cleared by superiors and is not government policy, the NSC spokesman told us. Surely, it does not reflect the world-view of Zbig Brzezinski. But as a non-expert in the mysterious world of arms control, Brzezinski depends on technicians who share the considerably different world-view of Vic Utgoff.

For Utgoff is not unique. Middle-level officials, seared by the flame of Vietnam, cannot trust their country to handle power responsibly. They incline to Pogo's Vietnam slogan: "I have met the enemy and he is us" (posters of which have adorned walls of the U.S. Arms Control Agency). The Utgoff principle raises doubt whether officials carrying that national self-image can effectively negotiate with an adversary not similarly burdened.

philosophical. If it were not for an occasional lapse into ugliness, would we appreciate the tenderness of April quite so much? To be flawless gets to be a bore. Over this next weekend, if number one son will bring his own pickup truck around, we will retrieve the auto tires and take them to the Scrabble dump. And probably we will return to discover that some other trashy fellow has pitched in some beer cans while we were gone.

Let it go. Too much is going on. Out in the vegetable garden, the lettuce and snowpeas are doing fine. Down in the greenhouse, the seedling flats of tomatoes and cucumbers are perking up on schedule. The bluebird houses have been cleaned and refurbished—new curtains, nice slipcovers, remodeled kitchens. The house covey of quail has broken up and paired off. At least fifty robins have arrived, as natively turned out as a Palm Beach convention.

What hits you finally about spring is the rich smell of spring. It is not a flower smell; it's the earth smell. Spading up a garden plot, you kneel to break up some clods and the smell is there—pungent, and heady, and langorous. You crumble the friable dirt and bury a fat earthworm before the robins can find him. This is spring, precisely in accord with the grand design; and the winter heart uncurls toward the warming sun.

Co-Op Auto Repair Shop Ideal Grows

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — For every auto owner who has left his car at a repair shop for the day, paid a huge bill for parts and labor and then found it making the same weird noises on the way home, the Community Auto Repair Shop in Durham may offer some relief.

The automotive cooperative is a new idea in automobile repair in North Carolina. Opened in December 1977 to help members save on costly automotive repairs and tune-ups, it has about 270 members who have paid $25 each for a share in the co-op.

Shop manager Edward R. "Ed" Beder says the $25 fee allows members to bring their cars in and be serviced at special rates. Or they can bring them in on Saturdays or weekends and fix the cars themselves, he said.

Labor costs at the garage are "competitive," he said.

"We didn't open with the idea of doing cheap work here," Beder, a 28-year-old New York native, explained. "Car owners still get good service, something they can depend on. And they know what's being done to their cars because they can oversee the work."

On most work, labor is guaranteed for 30 days and parts for 90 days. The shop employs two full-time mechanics, Beder said. They will work on non-members' cars, but they will charge more for the service.

Although the idea of an auto co-op may be new here, Beder says in the northern states, car cooperatives are more numerous.

"The idea for the co-op came in part from an automobile co-op I worked with in Albany, New York," Beder said. "We had a small group of people, and the whole thing worked very well."

The Community Auto Repair Shop caters to owners of both domestic and foreign cars. If a member needs parts, the shop orders them, although Beder says the co-op orders parts from the same places the car owner himself buys car parts.

Beder says the co-op is mechanically sound, but that financing the idea has put the shop on shaky ground.

"We have had trouble with financing of the co-op because the idea is new to North Carolina," Beder said. "Financial institutions are unwilling to lend money to any kind of co-op."

Beder says financing has come mostly from the sale of shares, adding, "We have a small loan from a bank, and another from an individual who wanted to see the co-op idea work here."

"We try to run the auto co-op like any other business," Beder said. "We have 11 people on our board of directors to oversee the operation and to make important decisions concerning the co-op. Right now, we're just hoping we can ride out this financial thing and get the co-op running like we planned it."

Spent 2 Days In Oceanography

The Sixth Grade Class of Pace Academy spent two days at Atlantic Beach doing oceanography research.

They visited the Public Aquarium, where they received a guided beach walk, viewed a film and studied various oceanographic tools.

They also visited Hampton's Mariner's Museum, where they learned about North Carolina's commercial fisheries. Shell animals were discussed in a slide presentation.

Helen Honeycutt, their teacher, and Mrs. Leyard Ross accompanied the students.

Reception For Students Friday

A reception for East Carolina University School of Art students exhibiting in the annual Student Exhibition will take place Friday.

The reception will be from 8 to 10 p.m. Friday in the Wellington B. Gray Gallery in the Leo W. Jenkins Fine Arts Center on campus.

The public is invited to attend the reception and to see this new exhibit which will be on view through May 9.

Postal Workers' Union Ignoring Carter Appeals

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Four postal unions, opening the country's largest collective bargaining negotiations this year, are refusing administration pleas to cut their demands and join the president's anti-inflation crusade. Leaders of the unions representing 554,000 workers begin talks today with Postal Service management — the first national negotiations since President Carter's anti-inflation speech last week.

Carter urged unions and industry to hold wage and salary increases "significantly below the average rate for the last two years."

"We don't intend to go along with any guideline that was invented just in time to apply to us," Emmet Andrews, president of the American Postal Workers Union, said in an interview.

"The White House didn't come up with anything like this when it was taking a big role in the coal miners' negotiations," Carter last month endorsed the settlement that brought miners wage and benefit gains of nearly 40 percent over three years.

"My members have had to put up with inflation that we did not cause. We are all for reducing inflation because it hurts us too, but the sacrifices should not be just by postal workers. Coming after the coal miners' contract, the White House timing on this could hardly be worse," said Andrews, whose union represents 299,000 workers.

The executive council of the 181,000-member National Association of Letter Carriers, in a resolution passed after Carter's speech, objected to his effort to limit the union's demands.

The resolution termed it "totally unrealistic that wage demands be held to a level less than the economic needs of letter carriers."

In another interview before the negotiations, Lonnie L. Johnson, director of the 36,000-member mail handlers division of the Laborers International Union, said, "We don't want to be the scapegoats."

The White House is jawboning in an effort to moderate the eventual settlement. Barry P. Bosworth, director of the President's Council on Wage and Price Stability, met with the union leaders Tuesday.

Tom Joyce, spokesman for the council, said Bosworth, who had previously met with postal management representatives, outlined Carter's anti-inflation program to the union leaders.

Joyce said the administration wants unions to reduce their annual gains by one-half of 1 percent to 1 percent from what they would otherwise be.

Joyce added, "There will be further meetings." The union participants said they made no promises.

The negotiations are to replace a three-year contract that expires July 20. Both union and management representatives have played down the chance of a strike, which is illegal but not without precedent.

East Coast walkouts in 1970 helped lead to a law that established collective bargaining for postal workers. Previously, their pay had been set by Congress.

According to Postal Service figures, annual wages, which averaged $8,757 in 1971, now average $15,877. Union officials say wages were held unreasonably low until collective bargaining was authorized.

While the unions have not revealed their wage demands, Andrews said they want periodic increases plus cost-of-living adjustments. He said their position "will certainly reflect the increases in productivity conceded by management."

The fourth union, the 38,000-member National Rural Letter Carriers Association, is bargaining separately from the others, which have formed a negotiating committee.

Winners In Arts, Crafts

GRIFTON — An arts and crafts show was held during the Grifton Shad Festival.

Crafts winners were Bruce and Essie Owens of Stanfordsburg, for gourd craft, first; Maxine Harker of Grifton, for applehead dolls, second; and George McLawhorn of Grifton, for woodcraft, third.

Sculpture winners were David Lister, first; Lisa Tucker, second, and Alex Warren, third. All of these are from Grifton and all are members of a town-sponsored art class made possible in part by a grant from the N. C. Arts Council.

High School division winners were Cindy Potter, oil, first; Cindy Potter, pen and ink, second; and Rex Anne Thorne, pen and ink, third. All of these are Grifton residents studying under F. M. Cardelli in town-sponsored art classes.

Adult division winners were Wilbur Holland, oil, first; Jane Lambert, oils, second; and Ona Gilland, oil, third.

Students In Walkathon

The D. H. Conley Literary Club announced sponsorship of a walk-a-thon on Saturday, May 6, in support of the United Cerebral Palsy drive.

The Conley students will leave the school at 8:30 a.m. and will walk from Conley to Winterville on Highway 1117 and from Winterville (on Highway 11) to the Town Common area in Greenville.

The walkers will take a five to ten minute break between each mile, it was noted.

Literary Club members are now in the process of soliciting support from merchants, businesses and the general public for the drive.

Club members reported that anyone wishing to support the "United Cerebral Palsy Happiness Walk" should contact D. H. Conley High School.

ECU Faculty Senate Gives Chancellor Jenkins Ovation

The general faculty of East Carolina University on Tuesday expressed its respect and admiration for retiring chancellor

Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, with standing ovations, a speech, hand-shaking and travel gifts. Special committee chairman

John C. Ellen Jr. said "It is doubtful that Dr. Jenkins will ever retire. Instead, he will devote his energies in new directions." Jenkins will retire this summer after 31 years at East Carolina, including 18 years as president and later in the position of chancellor.

"Jenkins' name became almost synonymous with East Carolina, and he is known far and wide as that aggressive man down at East Carolina.

Jenkins, accompanied by his daughter, Sallie Jenkins Person, was escorted into the Mendenhall Student Center Theater for special ceremonies during a regular meeting of the ECU Faculty Senate.

Among remarks made by

Ellen were those noting that Jenkins is respected and admired because he has been "so closely associated with East Carolina University, the Greenville community, and all eastern North Carolina" for more than three decades, and for his "tremendous amounts of energy" devoted to his idea that Greenville could become the economic, industrial and cultural center of the region. A gift of a travel stipend and luggage was presented to Dr. Jenkins, with the chancellor being told that he and his wife, Mrs. Lillian B. Jenkins, are to choose their travel itinerary.

In brief remarks thanking the faculty, Jenkins said it has "been a love affair for 31 years... I don't remember having an argument with anyone." He spoke further of the spirit of "kindness and love and of getting along together" even in difficult days.

Police Note 2 Collisions

An estimated $2,000 damage resulted from two collisions investigated here yesterday by Greenville Police.

Heaviest damage resulted from an 8:42 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Dickinson Avenue and 14th Street involving cars driven by Anthony Waller of Winterville and Myrtle H. Leslie of 209 McGregor La.

Officers, who charged Mrs. Leslie with failing to stop for a stop light, estimated damage at $600 to the Leslie car and $1,000 to the Waller vehicle.

Cars driven by Doctor Glenn Bowen of Route 1, Ayden and Patricia Ann Paschal of 1709 Rosewood Dr. collided about 9 p.m. at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Sheraton Dr.

Damage was estimated at $350 to the Bowen car and $50 to the Paschal vehicle.

Here is exciting value. Quite frankly, we don't know how the famous maker does it—there's so much quality here. All the frames are select, kiln dried lumber. They're made the old-fashioned expensive way, double dowelled, screwed and corner-blocked. Cushioning is urethane foam with high quality polyester fibre wrap. Most styles can be had as swivel rockers for a small extra charge. Come early for best selection of decorator-selected covers.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market ran up another strong gain in heavy trading today, reviving its recent rally as the dollar rose sharply in foreign-exchange trading.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 10.65 at 818.65.

Gainers outnumbered losers by more than a 4-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The Dow average had soared nearly 44 points last Thursday through Monday in record-breaking volume. The market quieted down a bit Tuesday and Wednesday, but the pace heated up again this morning.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange reached 21.38 million shares by noontime, running only moderately behind the record pace of Monday, when the day's turnover totaled 63.51 million.

The dollar rose sharply in value against leading foreign currencies today following word that the U.S. government would sell gold at a series of public auctions as part of a plan to support its currency.

Recent strength in the dollar has been cited as a major factor in the market's recent rally, since it has tended to make U.S. stocks more attractive to foreign investors.

Another significant development cited by brokers was the performance of the market itself on Wednesday. Faced with an apparent move by the Federal Reserve to tighten credit by pushing interest rates higher, the market nevertheless gained 4.77 Dow points.

That showing seemed to demonstrate investors' eagerness to buy stocks regardless of news developments, and thus heightened hopes that the market could keep its recent rally going.

Big-name stocks gaining ground in active trading included Eastman Kodak, up 1/2 at 48 3/4; American Telephone & Telegraph, ahead 3/4 at 62 1/2; and Dow Chemical, up 3/4 at 27.

At its annual meeting in Miami Beach on Wednesday, AT&T reported record earnings for the first three months of the year.

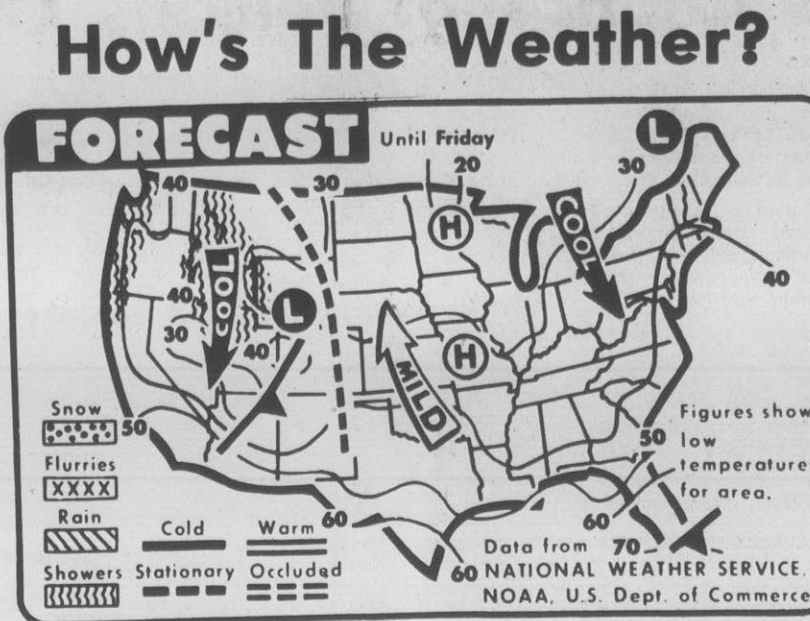

The NYSE's composite index gained .61 to 52.96 by noontime. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .62 at 135.45.

Hogs
RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA) — The overall trend on the North Carolina hog market today was mostly .50 higher. Rocky Mount, 43.75-44.25; Wilson, 45.00; Clinton, Fayetteville, Dunn, Pink Hill, Chadbourne, Ayden, Pine Level, Laurinburg and Benson, 45.00; Tarboro and Bethel, 43.00-43.50; Salisbury, 44.50; Spivey's Corner, 43.00-44.00.

Poultry
RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA) — The trend on the North Carolina f.o.b. dock broiler market today was lower for next week's trading, supplies moderate, demand moderate, weights desirable. The dock weighted average price for this week is 47.49. Estimated slaughter today 1,395,000.

WEATHER FORECAST — Thursday's forecast includes rain for the northern half of the Atlantic Coast across the Great Lakes and Ohio Valley, and for the northernmost corner of the Pacific Northwest according to the National Weather Service. Snow is expected over Minnesota and Wisconsin. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
Bright, clear skies prevailed over most of North Carolina today after Wednesday's barrage of thunderstorms and squalls that battered sections of Piedmont and coastal plain counties. At least two tornadoes were reported sighted.

Tornado sightings were reported in Robeson and Duplin counties and tornadic winds ripped off the roof of a farm home and demolished two mobile homes near Richlands in Onslow County. No injuries were reported.

A wave of colder air bore down on the state today and as it entered the mountains early this morning some scattered showers and a few snow flurries developed in the higher elevations.

The cold air will be flowing over the state during the day and tonight. Temperatures were expected to get no higher than the 40s in the northern mountains today and range to the low 70s in the southeastern part of the state. Lows tonight will be from near 30 in the northern mountains to near 50 on the Outer Banks.

High temperatures Friday will range from the 40s and 50s in the mountains to the 60s elsewhere.

The weekend outlook calls for fair Saturday and a chance of rain by Sunday.

Photographic Evidence Aldo Moro Still Alive

By EDWARD MAGRI
Associated Press Writer
ROME (AP) — A photograph of kidnapped former Premier Aldo Moro holding a copy of a Wednesday-dated newspaper was found by a Rome reporter today after a telephone tip, the daily Il Messaggero said.

The discovery was made after the news media received a new message attributed to his Red Brigade kidnappers saying Moro was still alive but would be executed if the government refused to free jailed communists by Saturday.

The communique denied an earlier message that the political leader had been killed.

There was no immediate confirmation from police that the photo purportedly showing Moro alive as of Wednesday was authentic and not a montage. Il Messaggero said the picture shows Moro holding Wednesday's edition of La Repubblica, another Rome daily paper.

Meanwhile, a prison guard was shot and killed in Milan, and an anonymous telephone caller claimed responsibility for the Red Brigades. It was the ninth slaying this year attributed to the extremist group that kidnapped Moro five weeks ago.

In the Apennine Mountains, police today found a body in a frozen lake where a message Tuesday said the terrorists had dumped Moro after executing him. The body was identified as that of a missing shepherd.

The two-page, type-written statement received today dismissed as "fake and provocative" the earlier one saying Moro, 61-year-old president of the Christian Democrat Party and five-time former premier, had been killed.

"North Carolina has more than 67,000 farm ponds, and 1,400 of these are right here in Pitt County," Little continued. "Since they are very attractive, and most are stocked with fish, people will be using them."

"We urge that landowners require the buddy system for young people who go swimming in their ponds, and also consider it a wise precaution for people going fishing to go in pairs or larger numbers. It's easy to get in trouble where water is over your head, and we don't want any drownings at pond sites."

The chairperson pointed out that some landowners have become so concerned that they have fenced pond sites and locked gates in the fences.

"Most of us don't want to go this far," said Little, "but we

Arrest 2 With A Stolen Sign
Greenville Police early this morning arrested two East Carolina University students on charges of possession of stolen property when a stop sign was found in their possession.

Chief Glenn Cannon identified the two as William Lawrence Beam Jr. of Route 3, Gastonia, and Harold Phillip Mann of Durham.

The chief said the two were charged after officers stopped their car about 2:45 a.m. at the intersection of Howell and Perkins Streets when they saw the sign protruding from Beam's car.

Both Beam and Mann were placed in Pitt County jail under $400 bond each on the charge. Cannon said the sign allegedly was taken from the intersection of Sixth and Elm Streets.

Wet Pirates Torpedo Pembroke, 5-3

Catching On Newly-acquired Chicago Cub catcher Dave Rader loses his balance, and the ball, as Larry Parrish of Montreal streaks past him in the second inning of Wednesday's game at Chicago. Parrish scored on Rudy May's hit. (AP Laserphoto)

By WOODY PEELE Reflector Sports Editor

If the East Carolina University Pirates ever decide to put in a submarine force, Coach Monte Little's baseball Bucs would probably fit the bill well. Last night, the Pirates torpedoed Pembroke State's Braves, 5-3, in a rain-soaked, rain-shortened contest, avenging an earlier upset loss. The contest went only the required four and a half innings, and even then, it was touch-and-go whether the game would reach that level, making it official. Twice it was stopped when downpours hit Harrington Field. But each time, the rains slackened and the teams retook the field. The last time, the rains started heavily again with two out in the top of the fifth, and the umpire waved the Pembroke batter in in an effort to get that one batter out of the way. He obliged with a fly ball up the alley in right center. Eddie Gates made a running grab of the ball amid sheets of water to give the game the "official" tag. The players left the field at that point, but the rain again slackened off and the two teams agreed to continue playing, but one more shower hit before the field could be put into playing shape, and that was it. "Both teams were flat," Coach Little said. "I don't think either team figured that the game would even get started, let alone go this far. "But it was a game that I wanted. I wanted this win badly, and I'm certainly glad we got it in." Little praised winning pitcher Bill Lucas, who went the short distance for the Pirates. He was overpowering early in the contest, but gave up three runs in the fourth inning after having to wait out a short delay in the dugout while one of the showers passed over. "The wait hurt Bill," Little said. "I think that's the only reason they got any runs off him. He was strong otherwise." Lucas, in the five innings of work, gave up five hits, three of them in the fourth, when all three runs scored. He walked just one, also in the fourth, and struck out eight batters. Pembroke got the first threat of the game, putting a man on second in the second inning. With one down, John Corbett singled and moved up on a wild pitch.

But he died there. East Carolina got on the board first with four runs in the second inning. Butch Davis opened the inning with his third triple of the year, up the alley in left center. Bobby Supel then reached on a slow roller down the third base line. Max Raynor singled to left, driving in Davis with the first run. After both runners moved up on a passed ball, Robert Brinkley singled to right, scoring Supel and Raynor. Jerry Carraway reached on an error, and walks to Eddie Gates and Billy Best forced in Brinkley with the fourth run. Pembroke then got a double play to get out of the inning without further damage. The Braves then came up with three in the fourth to cut the lead to 4-3. With two away, Corbett again singled, and Butch Gillis walked. Robert Poole singled to the infield, loading the bases. A wild pitch let Corbett in, and a single to right by Mike Leonard

Tarboro Tops Tigers By 6-4

WILLIAMSTON — Tarboro High School came up with three seventh inning runs to pull past Williamston, 6-4, last night. Tarboro scored twice in the first inning to take the lead. Tim Crisp walked and Danny Squires doubled him in. Bill Wilder then singled, scoring Squires. In the third, Tarboro added another run. Crisp reached on an error, as did Squires. Another error, on a ball hit by Jeff Brady, scoring Crisp for a 3-0 lead. Williamston's Tigers rallied for four runs in the bottom of the sixth for a 4-3 lead. Alan Peaks singled and Randy Ellis walked. Ricky Cowan singled, loading the bases. Grady Winstead singled in Peaks and Ellis and Joey Weller reached on an error, scoring Cowan and Winstead. But the Vikings came back with three in the seventh to win it. Kevin Bryant walked and Keith Parrishier singled. Crisp then cracked a three-run homer.

Ruthven Seems To Like Coming Back Home To San Francisco

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON AP Sports Writer It's not clear whether Dick Ruthven left his heart in San Francisco, but the San Francisco Giants probably wish he had left his arm in Atlanta. The 27-year-old right-hander went to high school in the East Bay town of Irvington, a few miles from San Francisco, and you can't blame him for calling Candlestick Park home sweet home. Especially after he hurled the Atlanta Braves to a two-hit 2-0 victory Wednesday and raised his career record to 8-2 against San Francisco.

NL Roundup ndon beat out a high hopper to shortstop leading off the seventh, pitched his masterpiece one night after teammates Preston Hanna and Adrian Devine blanked the Giants on one hit. Before the shutouts, Atlanta pitchers had allowed 54 runs in eight games. Elsewhere, the New York Mets and St. Louis Cardinals traded two-hitters, with the Mets winning 2-0 behind Pat Zachry; the Los Angeles Dodgers edged the Cincinnati Reds

5-4, the Houston Astros nipped the San Diego Padres 2-1 and the Montreal Expos scored four times in the ninth inning to beat the Chicago Cubs 8-6. Mets 2, Cards 0 While Zachry was limiting St. Louis to second-inning singles by Keith Hernandez and Jerry Morales, Bruce Boisclair drove in both runs, with a sacrifice fly in the first inning and a single in the third as the Mets completed a sweep of a three-game series. Zachry called it "my best game in the majors."

Dodgers 5, Reds 4 Rick Monday drove in four runs with a pair of homers and unbeaten Tommy John scattered nine hits for his third victory as Los Angeles salvaged the finale of an important early-season three-game series. The Reds' Joe Morgan tied a major league record for consecutive errorless games by a second baseman, completing his 89th flawless game. Morgan, who committed only five errors last season, matched the mark set by Baltimore's Jerry Adair in 1964-65.

Williamston Takes Victory

WILLIAMSTON — Williamston High School captured first place in a boys' track meet held yesterday. The Tigers finished the day with 97 points, while Roanoke Rapids was second with 66. Edenton, scheduled for the meet, did not show. The Tigers took first place in ten of the 14 individual events; and also captured one of the two relays. Anthony Griffin captured the long jump, the 440-yard dash, and the 220 for Williamston, while Vincent Peele won the discus and the shot put. King won both of the hurdles events for Roanoke Rapids. Horace Wynne won one event, but had to share first place in another for the Tigers. He took the triple jump, but tied for first in the high jump. Summary: Pole vault: Bunch (W) 7-6; Wells

Ayden-Grifton Track Builds For Future

By WOODY PEELE Reflector Sports Editor LITTLEFIELD — During the past few years since its inception, track has not been the most successful sport at Ayden-Grifton High School. But Coach Monte Riggs is hopeful that those days are about to come to an end. Riggs is in his first year of coaching the track team, and says that he can see improvement in several areas of this year's team. "Considering everything, I'm optimistic about the future of the program here," he said. The biggest problem the coach has faced this year is a lack of depth. "There are just not enough people out for the sport to be successful. In the past, they've had just enough out to say that they've got the sport here. But it's difficult to have 15 or 18 and go up against a team that has 35 or 40 members. Depth is where you get your points, especially in the running events." Currently there are 16 members on the Ayden-Grifton track team. "Not having more has made a difference in our scoring in meets," Riggs said. Not that the Chargers don't have some good people. They do, and Johnny Cannon and Cleveland Brown are listed by Riggs as the best for the team.

"They have been doing real well. I couldn't ask for more from them. If we had a full team of people like them, we'd be coming home with some wins." Riggs is hopeful that they and some of the others will do well in the conference in a couple of weeks. "The only thing we can do is do our best." As far as a team finish is concerned, he would like for the Chargers to escape from the cellar. "But I'm not going to worry about it. It would be nice to finish above last place, but we're really looking to the future." Brown, a junior, leads the team in several areas. He is the top high jumper, runs both of the hurdle events, along with the 100-yard dash. Cannon, a senior, paces the team in the long jump, the triple jump, the 100, and in both of the hurdles. Ronnie Strong, a sophomore, is the top man in the pole vault, while Dalton Ellis handles the shot and discus. He is a sophomore, also.

Tony Eubanks, a senior, adds depth to the 100-yard dash group, and also runs the 220. Mark Cannon, a senior, handles the 440 for the Chargers with Greg Ellis, a senior, running the 880. Randy Taylor, only a freshman, is the miler, with West Paul, a sophomore, running the two-mile. The 880-yard relay team is usually made up of the Ellises, Cannon and either Terry Morris or Eubanks. The Ellises, Eubanks and Doug Williams run the mile relay. "Next year, we're going to try and recruit a lot more people," Riggs said. "We're going to work closely with the physical education people to try and get more interest in the sport, and we're going to put up posters, and have our experienced guys talking with other guys to try and interest them. "I really think we can show a lot of improvement," Riggs added. "We can make this a good sport here."

WHEAT SWAMP — Farmville Central's girls' softball team romped to a 14-6 victory over North Lenoir yesterday. North Lenoir scored a run in the second, but Farmville Central came back with four in the third to take the lead. They added two in the fourth, three in the fifth, two in the sixth and three more in the seventh. North Lenoir came up with three more in the fourth and two in the sixth. Melba Willoughby was the winning pitcher for Farmville.

The Lady Jaguars were led by Beth Massey and Dianne Barrett with four hits each, while Diana Gordon, Courtney Lancaster and Shari Hargrove each had three, and Melba Willoughby, Michelle Parker, Clair Mozingo and Debbie Gowen each had two. D. Mason had two for North Lenoir, a triple and a homer. Farmville Central is now 3-3 in the Eastern Carolina Conference and 4-6 overall. They travel to C. B. Aycock on Friday. McAdoo Must End Slumps If New York Is To Have Any Hope Left

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Is it the finesse of Caldwell Jones? The muscle of Steve Mix? The wear and tear of a season that started six months ago?

Whatever the reason, unless New York center Bob McAdoo ends his shooting slump tonight, the Knicks will likely be in for a long evening against the Philadelphia 76ers in the third game of their best-of-seven National Basketball Association quarter-final playoff series.

"They had better show something different from what they showed in the first two games," said the 76ers' Julius Erving, referring to his team's easy 130-90 and 119-100 victories in the series' first two games.

The biggest difference must come from McAdoo, the NBA's No. 3 scorer with a 26.5 average who has shot 11 for 34 and scored just 22 points in the first two games.

"I'm in a scoring slump," said McAdoo, stating the obvious. But why?

"It's a combination of two factors," he said. "First there is the tough defense of Caldwell Jones. The other is that I've been taking shots from out of position."

Jones, a lean 7-foot-1 leaper, starts the game at center for Philadelphia and plays McAdoo head to head.

"Everywhere he goes on the court, I'm following," Jones said. "You just can't let him take those uncontested shots, or he'll score 100 on you."

When Jones leaves the game and muscular Darryl Dawkins takes over at center, the job of guarding McAdoo goes to 6-8 forward Steve Mix.

"He doesn't like the physical type of defense on him, so I'll bump him and shove him and crowd him," said Mix. All of which means McAdoo is drawing constant attention, as he has all season. He is the key to the Knicks' offense and every opponent knows it — contain McAdoo and you'll beat the Knicks.

McAdoo thinks part of the problem lies with his teammates.

"I'm not getting the ball enough, but there's nothing I can do about it," he said. "When I run to get it, I'm out of position."

Whatever the cause of McAdoo's current problems, Jones knows that he and his teammates can't expect to stop New York's scoring ace forever.

The Knicks would like nothing better than such a "Big Mac Attack" tonight, or in Sunday afternoon's fourth game of the series. If it doesn't happen, chances of the series returning to Philadelphia are remote — and the Knicks know it.

"Bobby got us here," said Reed. "He's a pro. He's just got to weather this storm."

Philadelphia's game at New York is the only one on the NBA calendar tonight. The other series resume Friday night, with Seattle, leading 1-0, at Denver, and San Antonio at Washington in a series tied 1-1.

Calling His "Broker"

Denver Nuggets' superstar David Thompson responded to the kidding he received at practice yesterday, after agreeing to a reputed $4 million contract over the next five years, by picking a phone at courtside and jokingly phoning his "broker" amid teammates' laughs. (AP Laser-photo)

Tigerettes In Track Victory

WILLIAMSTON — Williamston High School won a girls track meet here yesterday. The Lady Tigers finished the afternoon with 87 points, while Roanoke Rapids had 37.

Edenton, also scheduled for the meet, did not show up.

Vanessa Brown set a new school record in the discus with a throw of 104 feet, 4 inches. Paula Bennett also set a new mark with a leap of 5 feet, 3 inches in the high jump.

Williamston won nine of 12 events, and added all three of the relays. Bennett won the triple jump as well as the high jump.

Rain Hits Schedule

Rain continued to play havoc with the spring sports schedule in the area, forcing the delay of several contests from yesterday.

Postponed until today were: Rose at Rocky Mount softball; North Pitt at Greene Central baseball; Ayden-Grifton at Conley baseball; Rocky Mount at Rose baseball, and Wilson at Rose girls track.

Postponed until Friday was Aurora at Jamesville baseball. Delayed until Saturday is Conley at Ayden-Grifton softball.

No new date was set for Williamston at Roanoke softball, and a girls' track meet between C.B. Aycock and Farmville Central was cancelled.

Winkles Will Keep Gray Hair; Martin Might Pull All His Out

By BERT ROSENTHAL
AP Sports Writer

Oakland Manager Bobby Winkles will settle for all the gray hairs his young, low-salaried A's will give him this season...if they keep winning.

New York Yankees Manager Billy Martin, on the other hand, probably is ready to tear out his hair over the performance of his veteran, highly paid world champions...especially relief specialist Rich Gossage.

The A's, who under penurious owner Charles O. Finley have unloaded virtually all their players from the 1972, 1973 and 1974 World Series winners, were not expected to be contenders this year.

But so far they have been the early-season surprises of the major leagues.

Wednesday, they raised their record to 8-3 and moved within one game of first-place Kansas City in the American League West, beating the Minnesota Twins 6-5 in 11 innings.

The Yankees, AL champions the past two years, fell to 5-6, three games behind frontrunning Detroit in the East Division, losing to the Toronto Blue Jays 4-3. The winning run scoring on Gossage's second throwing error in the ninth inning.

"I'm sick. I'm almost ready to cry," said the downtrodden, dejected Gossage, loser of his third straight game since signing a reported $2.75 million, six-year free agent contract with the Yankees after the 1977 season.

In the only other AL game Wednesday, Ron Jackson drove in six runs with two doubles and a single, powering the California Angels to an 11-2 rout of the Seattle Mariners. Two games were rained out — Detroit at Cleveland and Milwaukee at Boston.

Blue Jays 4, Yankees 3

Toronto scored the winning run in the ninth inning when

John Mayberry led off with a single, pinch runner Garth Iorg was safe at second on Gossage's bunt and Iorg scored when Gossage fired Dave McKay's attempted sacrifice over the head of first baseman Chris Chambliss.

Angels 11, Mariners 2
Jackson delivered a two-run, two-out single in the third inning, a run-scoring double in the seventh and a three-run double in the eighth after Enrique Romo walked the bases loaded. Chris Knapp allowed one run over the first five innings and picked up the victory while Jim Todd, who replaced Seattle starter Glenn Abbott in the second inning, was the loser. Abbott reinjured a hamstring muscle.

Bear Grass Takes A Win

BEAR GRASS — The Bear Grass girls' softball team rolled to a 17-4 victory over Chocowinity yesterday.

Bear Grass pushed over five runs in the first and added two in the fourth, nine in the fifth and one in the sixth. Chocowinity got three in the third and one in the seventh.

Vickie Holliday was the winning pitcher.

Lisa Broadway, Pat Small and Liz Caldwell each had three hits for Chocowinity, while Vivian Myers added two, including a triple.

Vickie Holliday led Bear Grass with five, including a double, while Lydia Hoell, Angela Coltrain and Kay Taylor each had three. Coltrain had two doubles and Taylor a triple.

Bear Grass is now 4-2 in the Beaufort-Hyde-Martin Conference and 5-3 overall. They travel to Aurora on Monday.

Win Again Aycock In Fifth Win

E.B. Aycock Junior High School took another step in dominance of junior high school track yesterday, downing four other area opponents in a five-way meet.

Aycock finished with 87 points, while previously unbeaten New Bern was second with 68. Kinston had 40, Bertie, 14, and Washington, 10.

Aycock won eight of the 14 events, while Kinston and New Bern each won three.

Summary of winners:

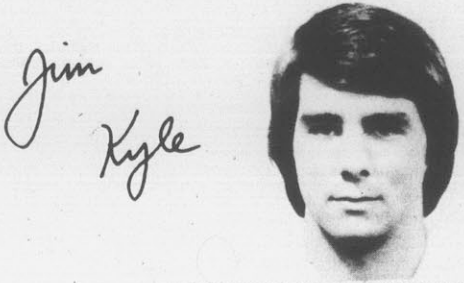

Long jump: David Sherrod (A) 20.4; pole vault: David Baggett (K) 48.5; triple jump: Abner Clark (A) 40.8; high jump: Carlton Smith (A) 6'11/4; discus: David Baggett (K) 145.4; low hurdles: David Sherrod (A) 15.9; 100: Atonza Taylor (A) 10.05; mile: Kenny Smith (A) 4:53.8; 880 relay: Kinston 1:41.0; 440: Richard Benjamin (NB) 55.23; 220: David Brown (NB) 2:23.8; 880: Bob Sumrell (NB) 2:11.5; 440 relay: Aycock (McGlohon, Clark, Cox, Taylor) 49.0.

Rocky Mount In Fifth Win

ROCKY MOUNT — E. B. Aycock's baseball team continued to roll along yesterday, grabbing a 5-0 victory over Rocky Mount.

Billy Dough hurled the victory for the Jaguars, while Mitch Brann led the hitting with two. S. Barnes had two hits to pace Rocky Mount.

Aycock is now 5-0 on the year and travels to Nash Central on Friday.

NBA Superstar David Thompson's Attitude is Refreshing

The former N. C. State All-American, who led the Wolfpack to the national championship in 1974, has apparently agreed to a new contract with the Denver Nuggets for a reported $3.7 million over a five-year period.

Granted, this makes him the highest paid player in the game, but he could undoubtedly have netted even more cash had he chosen to become a free agent at the end of the season.

When Thompson signed with the Nuggets after his senior season at State, his contract stipulated that he could opt to become a free agent at the end of his third season. The Denver team is currently winding down Thompson's third season in the NBA playoffs. Thompson has averaged around 27 points per game this season.

But Thompson, who has been called by many in the NBA the best forward ever to play the game, chose to renegotiate his contract with the Nuggets instead of go after the big bucks reportedly being readied by such franchises as the Los Angeles Lakers and the New York Knicks.

David Thompson's stint in the Mile-High City has been a happy one. The fans and press alike have taken to the soft-spoken 6-3 super-leaper. Thompson likes Denver, and the feeling is mutual. He has bought a home there and has said he would like to settle in the area.

Thompson also gets along well with his teammates and the team's coaches. The attitude of the Nuggets is also to Thompson's liking. The team is enthusiastic and it has the support of the community.

Thompson put Denver and the Nuggets above the money involved. He could have signed somewhere else for more money, but Reggie Jackson did that, and look at the troubles it caused him.

Pirates Slashing Records

Second-year East Carolina head baseball coach Monte Little has once again produced a record-breaking team. With 12 games left on the schedule, the Pirates have already broken or tied a number of marks.

The team has already set a new record for runs scored. The Bucs have scored 229 runs this season to surpass the old record of 216 set last year.

Pirate hitters have slapped 15 triples to date, three more than the old mark of 12 set back in 1967.

East Carolina has easily broken the old team home run record of 27 set in 1968. The Bucs have already hit 38 round-trippers this season, and every regular on the roster has contributed at least one.

The team has now hit for 500 total bases this season, besting the previous standard of 461 set last year.

Eddie Gates has tied Jim Snyder's 1968 individual record of eight home runs in a season, while Bobby Supel's four triples this year breaks the old record of three.

Finally, Pete Paradossi has scored 76 runs in his career, surpassing the previous record of Geoff Beaston set from 1973 to 1976.

Player seeks Third in A Row Lack Of Depth Hurts Viking Track Squad

HOUSTON (AP) — It was 20 years ago, at about this time of the season, that Gary Player won his first American pro golf title, the Kentucky Derby Open.

That tournament has long since disappeared from the PGA schedule.

Player has not.

For two decades the South African has flitted about the world, busily building a reputation as golf's greatest internationalist. He annually competes on five continents and cash checks in yen and pounds, francs and pesos, rand and cruzeiros.

And dollars. Lots of dollars. About 1 1/2 million of them.

It could have been much more.

"I play in about 15 American tournaments a year," Player noted before teeing off today in the first round of the $200,000 Houston Open.

"If I lived in this country, I'd probably play in 30 to 35. So it stands to reason that I'd have doubled my money winnings in this country and doubled the number of tournaments I have won if I'd played here on a full-time basis."

But he hasn't. He's competed world-wide which, he insists, is the only measure of a true champion.

"I'd like to see Jack Nicklaus make five round trips a year to South Africa and see how he does," Player said. Player has followed that sort of schedule and has won 113 international events, an unmatched accomplishment.

That schedule has, of course, limited his play in this country. But he's made the most of it. He's collected 20 American titles, including the U.S. Open, two PGA championships and three Masters.

And, despite a four-year victory drought — which he insists was not a slump — he's as much, or more, in evidence now than ever before.

"Over the last four years, I've played this well many times. Last year I won $12,000 and finished second twice. That's pretty well. But I didn't win in this country. I won three in a row in South Africa, including the South African Open for the 11th time. I won all over the world. But I didn't win in this country and so, in Greensboro, I pick up the paper and see myself referred to as a fading star."

He buried any such references with his amazing come-backs from seven-shot deficits that brought him the titles in the last two American events, the Masters and Tournament of Champions, and made him a prime favorite for the $40,000 first prize here.

Opposing him on the 6,997-yard Woodlands Country Club course are Lee Trevino, a runner-up last week, PGA champion Lanny Wadkins, defending champion Gene Littler, Ben Crenshaw, Jerry Pate, Bill Rogers, Bruce Lietzke, Bill Kratzert, Johnny Miller, Australian David Graham and Arnold Palmer.

Portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday will be televised nationally by NBC-TV.

sophomore Curtis Joyner and freshman Clifton Swinson. Sophs James Chapman and Jesse Carmon run the 220, while another sophomore, Lawrence Greene, helps out in the 440.

Junior Jeff Credle leads a trio of runners in the 880. He is also the top miler on the team and Dunn said, "We rely on him a lot." Junior Alvin Lang and sophomore Gary Pearsall also run the 880, while sophomore Michael Joyner helps out in the mile.

The two mile is one event in which the Vikes have some depth with juniors Joe Greene and Shawn Carson, along with senior Mark Dixon. All three runners have been fairly consistent this season, Dunn said. Greene and Carson have both broken 11 minutes, while Dixon has come close.

Seniors Tim McLanahan and Johnathan Waller and sophomore Melvin Baker make up Conley's hurdling contingent. McLanahan is also the leading pole vaulter on the team and holds the school record of 11-0. Sophomores Jeff Gould and Mark Black also pole vault.

Hill is the top long jumper, while Joyner participates in all three jumping events. The high jump is his best. At 5-7, Joyner has cleared 6-2 in the high jump this season, although he doesn't get in a lot of practice. "He's just beginning to have confidence about his high jumping," Dunn said.

Juniors Allen Meeks and Johnny Bryan handle the shot duties for the Vikes, while junior Steve McLanahan and sophs James and Jerry Coward and Earl Paige are in the discus. McLanahan holds the school record at Conley.

"Southern Nash has demonstrated that they're the strongest team," Dunn said, looking towards the conference meet this year. "North Lenoir has some outstanding athletes, and they're going to be tough."

Despite their lack of depth, and the fact that they have no practice track, the Vikings could be in the fight for second place in the meet, along with Farmville Central and North Lenoir, Dunn said.

But the team will have to get some third- and fourth-place points to have a chance.

Clemson Awaits Rest Of League

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — Clemson, winner of the regular-season Atlantic Coast Conference baseball title for the sixth straight year, learns this afternoon whether it'll play Maryland or North Carolina State in the second round of the tournament Friday.

The Tigers won a bye and the home field for the double-elimination portion of the tournament.

The Terps-Wolfpack game was rained out at College Park Wednesday and rescheduled for Raleigh. Also rained out was the Duke-North Carolina game at Chapel Hill. It was to be played this afternoon.

The Terps-Wolfpack game was rained out at College Park Wednesday and rescheduled for Raleigh. Also rained out was the Duke-North Carolina game at Chapel Hill. It was to be played this afternoon.

Wake Forest will play the winner of the North Carolina-Duke game in Friday's second game.

Three games are planned Saturday and the championship Sunday.

The winner goes to regional competition in a selection process leading to the College World Series at Omaha.

Wake Forest, which won the tournament last year, failed to get out of the region, but Clemson as an at-large entry went on to the finals.

Coach Bill Welhelm's eighth-ranked Tigers have a 32-12 record and are anxious to add the conference title to their laurels. Only once in the five years the ACC has had a baseball tournament has Clemson won it.

Welhelm said, "Our goal every year is to be competitive in the ACC and we usually have been. We want to win this weekend and everything after that is gravy."

Facts Don't Support Free Agent Theory

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn says the free agent system is dangerous because the strong are getting stronger. Only the facts don't seem to support his contention.

—Fact: Of the 14 top players signed as free agents for the 1978 season, seven went to clubs with records above .500, six went to clubs with records below .500 and one went to a club with a .500 average.

—Fact: Of those 14 top players, only two — Doc Medich and Bruce Bochte — left teams with sub-.500 records, meaning most of the weak teams weren't getting any weaker.

"In the past year, (free agency) has been used by the strongest teams to make themselves even stronger," Kuhn said Tuesday in Atlanta.

On Wednesday, through spokesman Art Berke, Kuhn attempted to elaborate on that position. He cited the recent improvements made by the Yankees, Texas, Boston and California as the best examples for his concern. He also pointed out that in the last two years, 28 of the 50 free agents chosen by more than two teams signed with the Yankees, California, Boston, Texas and the Chicago White Sox.

The Yankees picked up relievers Rich Gossage and Rawly Eastwick and Boston grabbed ex-Yankee Mike Torrez for 1978. These teams were strong before free agency began last year, but California, Texas and the White Sox only gained stature during the free-agency period of 1977 and 1978. Wasn't that one of the goals of free agency, to give clubs like Texas, California and Chicago a chance to build winners?

Of the 1977 division winners beside the Yankees, Kansas City picked up one free agent in two years, backup infielder Jerry Terrell; Los Angeles took one, reliever Terry Forster, and Philadelphia has taken one, first baseman Richie Hebner. Cincinnati, the best team in baseball in recent years, has stood pat.

"I do not know why he chooses to ignore the fact that the record shows that, if anything, there is a better balance as a result of the free-agent system than existed before," Marvin Miller, executive director of the Players Association, said Wednesday.

Moral Suasion Failing Say Church Spokesmen

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Representatives of six national church organizations say "moral suasion has proven singularly ineffective" in labor negotiations with J.P. Stevens & Co.

The church leaders issued that statement here Wednesday after hearing complaints from present and former employees of the Stevens plant at Boylston in north Montgomery.

During the grievance session, a number of persons said they were dismissed or otherwise harassed by the giant textile manufacturer for their union activities.

The church group followed the session with their statement calling on "persons of good faith" to support the consumer boycott of Stevens' products.

The group also recommended creation of a national interfaith committee to support the boycott that was launched a year ago by the Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers Union, which is trying to organize workers at Stevens' plants.

Regarding the Boylston plant, the church group stated, "We have learned first hand that the abuses, documented in court records, are continuing."

"We have heard about harassment on the job because of union activity, unsafe and hazardous working conditions, arbitrary and capricious changing of job assignments and doubling of work."

The regional office of the National Labor Relations Board at New Orleans has found evidence that at least 18 employees at the Boylston plant have been dismissed or lost pay as a result of labor activities.

The NLRB complaint currently is before an administrative law judge. For that reason, Stevens spokesman Paul Barrett said it is "not appropriate to comment" on the church group's charges.

Barrett added: "We are disappointed that this group...decided to go to Montgomery for this purpose without advising the company. They have met with executives in our New York headquarters on a number of occasions to discuss personnel matters. Yet they chose to visit Montgomery without contacting the Stevens management."

Signing the church group's statement were representatives of the United Methodist Board of Church and Society, United Church Board for Homeland Ministries, Christian Churches-Disciples of Christ Board for Homeland Ministries.

Also, the women's division of the Board of Global Ministries of the United Methodist Church, National Federal of Priests Councils and National Assembly of Women Religious.

Will Attend Convention

Ten students and two advisors from Rose High and Aycock Junior High schools will attend the Eastern District Student Councils' convention Saturday and Sunday at Goldsboro.

Some 300 delegates and advisors, representing 75 schools in 33 eastern counties will attend the session.

Bish Godwin of Goldsboro will address the convention's theme, "New Horizons — US" in his keynote speech at the opening session Saturday.

Activities for the two-day meeting include nomination of officers, speakers, seminars, discussion groups and workshops for advisors.

Greenville students attending include: Quentin Eaton, Anne Middleton, Montro Streeter, Kim Waller, Wade Stokes, Angela Worthington, Julie Budacz, Kamala Worthington, Jimmy Jones and Melanie West. Advisors schedule to attend include Wende Allen and Diana Coble.

CHURCH SERVICE

General Mother Elizabeth Little will conduct services at St. John F.W.B. Church, Farmville at 3 p.m. Sunday. The service is sponsored by Rebecca Barrett, Mother Odessa Adams is president of the home missionary work at the church. The public is invited to attend.

Financial Problems In Community Hospitals

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina's three community mental hospitals are getting more and more patients who would have been sent to Broughton Hospital at Morganton in the past, but officials say the facilities are not receiving enough money to care for them.

Authorities say a new federal law and a sharp reduction in state support are causing the community hospitals increasing financial problems.

Some state legislators say they plan to come to the rescue of the community hospitals during the 1978 meeting of the General Assembly, just as they did last year when it seemed a shortage of funds might close the Mecklenburg Hospital in Charlotte, the Gaston-Lincoln Inpatient Unit at Gastonia and the Smokey Mountains Inpatient Unit in Franklin.

Arthur Wakefield, mental health director at Gaston-Lincoln, said other states have been reallocating funds to local programs that are taking over the load from central state hospitals.

If the community mental hospitals are to function effectively, Wakefield said, "the dollar is going to have to follow the patient" from Broughton to the local centers.

Dr. Charles Edwards, Mecklenburg-area mental health director, also expressed concern that no one is crediting the community hospitals with the savings realized from the reduced number of admissions at Broughton.

State Human Resources Secretary Sarah Morrow said the savings at Broughton have not been large enough to significantly reduce the staff there and that inflation is increasing the facility's operating expenses even though the patient load is down.

Mrs. Morrow also said she had to cut the budgets of the three community hospitals in order to comply with a new federal law requiring equal education opportunities for the handicapped.

Although the division of mental health services sought $2.7 million for the three hospitals — the same appropriations they got this year — Mrs. Morrow reduced it to $1.25 million. Officials of the hospitals say that isn't enough to continue operating at current levels.

Count Six Left In UDC Ranks

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP) — Six women whose fathers fought for the Confederacy are still members of a local chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, honoring the men who wore gray in the Civil War.

In their 80s and 90s, they are among 14 members of New Bern Chapter 204 of the UDC, and some recall the stories their fathers told about the fighting between the blue and gray.

The UDC was formed during Reconstruction and, although its membership is dropping, it continues to "salute the Confederate flag with affection, reverence and undying remembrance."

The organization has 700 chapters with a total membership of 26,000, including 3,000 in North Carolina.

Most of the current members are granddaughters or women who had an uncle or great uncle in the Confederate Army. Many chapters have disbanded as death took its toll and daughters of new generations showed other interests.

"We keep going in memory of our loved ones for their sacrifices," said Mrs. Larry E. Warrington, president of the New Bern chapter.

The organization on the local, state and national level holds discussions and guest lectures on the history of the war, caring for elderly and invalid daughters, erecting and maintaining memorials to the war dead and collecting and housing historical archives pertaining to the Civil War period.

The UDC's state division has given about $180,000 in college scholarships for descendants of Confederate soldiers.

Gertrude Lacy Lancaster, a member who is in her 80s, said she remembers her father, Sgt. Eiley Allen Ewell, telling of the last battle of the war at Bentonville. She said he told her you "could walk a mile on dead and dying men."

Another member, 90-year-old Sarah S. "Sadie" Whitehurst, said her father, Henry Clay Whitehurst, enlisted at age 17 as a flag bearer and rose to the rank of lieutenant.

Winners In 4-H Event

The Pitt County 4-H Clubs announced the 1978 District 4-H project winners.

The winners include: Brenda Roberson of the Bethel Golden Eagles 4-H Club, in the area of public speaking; and Barbara Hardison of the Fountain Trailblazers 4-H Club, in safety.

Leroy James, Pitt County extension chairman, said that the 4-H winners received their honors by completing 4-H cumulative record books, which provided a record of their achievements and activities throughout their 4-H years.

James said that the two winners will receive their certificates of achievement at the 4-H Show Night scheduled for tonight at 7 p.m. at the American Legion Building here.

The activities tonight will include the annual fashion revue, talent show, and project exhibit. The public is invited, it was noted.

The bidding:

Pass Pass 1 ♡ Pass
3 ♡ Pass 4 ♡ Pass

Opening lead: Three of ♣.

One threat to a crossruff is that a defender might overruff and return a trump. The way to prevent that is to ruff so high that you can't be overruffed. South's technique in negotiating his contract of four hearts is worthy of study.

South selected one heart as his opening bid to provide for an easy rebid should his partner respond in spades or no trump. Had the opening bid been in first- or second-seat, North would probably have raised to four hearts, but he allowed some leeway for a possible light opening bid in third seat. South was better than minimum for his opening, so he had no hesitation about contracting for game.

West led a low club, and declarer saw that he had a choice of attack plans. He could either play to establish dummy's spades, or go for a crossruff. Since entries to dummy were in short supply, a crossruff was the sounder line.

Declarer had three tricks in the side suits, so he had to score seven trump tricks to make his contract. That seemed no major feat providing that suits split normally and that he could prevent an overruff. After winning the ace of clubs, declarer cashed the ace of spades and ruffed a spade. Ace of diamonds and a diamond ruff put declarer in dummy for another spade ruff.

Back to dummy with a diamond ruff for another spade lead. When East produced the last spade, declarer had to take care to guard against an overruff. He achieved this by ruffing with the ace of trumps for his eighth trick.

The contract was now assured regardless of which defender held the queen of trumps. Declarer simply led a diamond and ruffed with the king of trumps—his ninth trick. Now he led a spade and ruffed with the jack of trumps. He did not mind if East overruffed, for then the ten of trumps would be established as the game-going trick.

Your play to the first trick could decide the fate of the contract! A writer once remarked: "There's no such thing as a blind opening lead, only deaf opening leaders!" FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, APRIL 21, 1978

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A beautiful day and evening for you to consider just what will impress those of whom you are fond. Let them know what you'll do to get along better with them. Coordinate your efforts with theirs in a workable course of action and get satisfactory results in the days ahead.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Talking over any differences with those you love can bring understanding and harmony now. A romantic evening in the offing.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You accomplish much both in work and at home. Have a better rapport with co-workers, too. Show you are alert and clever.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Be with good friends during spare time and have a delightful time. Your creativity is high so make good use of it and accomplish a good deal.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Spend more time at home and get conditions there in apple pie order. Study new ventures and involve yourself in them.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 21) Encourage partners and gain much from them. Handle correspondence well. Take time to call good friends you haven't seen in some time.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You are anxious to get monetary affairs in fine order and can do so by applying yourself diligently. Make necessary repairs to home and increase its value, comfort and beauty.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Show more affection for a loved one and get good results. Strive for harmony both at home and in business.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Investigate what you don't understand and come up with the right answers. Come to a better understanding with a loved one. Use tact.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Contact good friends who are able to help you with any problems you may have. Get into the social whirl and make new contacts of worth. Be careful of credit.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Get in touch with a bigwig you know who can help improve your position in life. Participate more in community affairs.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You have new ideas that should be studied carefully before you proceed. Make new contacts and learn much from them.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Take advantage of a situation that could add to your income. Pay more attention to loved ones for more harmony.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be able to cooperate easily with others and thereby make a success of life. Your progeny will appreciate beauty, color, fine finish, so slant education along lines where such talents are necessary. Good musical talent here, too.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Festival At Elmhurst

A Spring Festival of fun and games is being sponsored by the Ways and Means Committee of the Elmhurst Elementary School to raise funds for several school projects.

The festival, to be held at the school on Berkeley Road, will open at 3:30 Saturday afternoon, April 22 and continue until 7 p.m.

The principal attraction will be a series of competitive games for which a small fee will be charged each participant. Some of the games scheduled are prize in a haystack; a cake walk; basketball throw; pie throwing at teachers; and, pick up the ducks.

Refreshment stands will be set up to serve food and drinks to those in attendance.

All proceeds realized from the festival will be applied to three projects. These are books and supplies for the school's library; field trips for students to places such as Fort Macon, Kill Devil Hills, and Tryon Palace; and maintenance and equipment of the school's playground.

The public is invited to come and to take part.

In twenty-four hours a nice college kid named Jimmy J. robbed a liquor store, got drunk, held a seance, crawled through a cemetery, raided lovers' lane, dropped the Homecoming Queen, and went to jail. It happened on September 30, 1955, the day that shook up a generation!

Nazi-Hunter Has Told The Same Story

By MIKE GOODKIND
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — The tragic story of Jewish genocide by Nazi Germany reached an estimated 120 million American TV viewers this week. It was the same story that Nazi-hunter

Simon Wiesenthal has told to thousands for 30 years. NBC's four-part docu-drama, "Holocaust," told in terms of one fictitious family named Weiss, reached more people in four nights than Wiesenthal has spoken to in his 69 years. The network made the estimate of how many people watched "Holocaust."

"I cannot say I am happy, because to say you are happy in connection with the Holocaust is wrong," said Wiesenthal, who saw much of the series. "But I say it is good that they made it."

Wiesenthal said he did not think the TV story overstated the brutality that occurred in the death camps of World War II.

"The human language is inadequate to express the terror; you cannot present all the cruel situations," he said.

The Nazi hunter spoke in an interview Tuesday at the Simon Wiesenthal Center for Holocaust Studies, now under construction in West Los Angeles.

The only one of its kind in the country, the center is dedicated to keeping alive the memory of the Holocaust, the name given to the systematic elimination of 11 million people by the Nazis in World War II. Six million of the victims were Jews like Wiesenthal.

Wiesenthal, through his Vienna-based Documentation Center, has labored to track down and secure the extradition and conviction of about 1,000 former Nazis responsible for genocide, including SS official Adolf Eichmann, who was hanged in Israel in 1962.

"I don't agree with a number of details (in the show)... but these are little things," said Wiesenthal, who spent 4½ years in Nazi prison camps. He referred specifically to the portrayal of SS officers as having military-like ranks.

"These were not soldiers. Soldiers fight with a risk, but these people fight with no risk... The German Army veterans didn't even want the SS included in their ranks. The SS was a criminal organization.

"Look, there were 10 million Nazi party members in Germany, but only 150,000 committed crimes... This 30 years I'm not fighting against Nazi party members, only against these people who commit crimes... We are not anti-German."

He said that portraying one family heightened the show's impact.

"The big impact of the diary of Anne Frank was not the story of a million children, it was the story of a young girl," he noted.

It was Wiesenthal who tracked down the Gestapo agent who arrested Anne Frank, a Dutch teen-ager who kept a journal while hiding from the Nazis, and sent her to the concentration camp where she died.

"I think this was good that they took a family, very good... Eichmann himself said that 100 killed people is a catastrophe, but a million killed people is a statistic."

Wiesenthal is touring the United States to explain the atrocities and raise funds for his Nazi hunt.

Wiesenthal believes the United States should deport what he estimates are 100 former members of the SS — members and volunteers in units that helped kill civilians.

Student Votes Are Challenged

HILLSBOROUGH, N.C. (AP) — The Orange County Board of Elections has begun mailing letters to all University of North Carolina undergraduate students whose voting rights in Orange County have been challenged by a citizens' group.

Election board officials have decided that the challenges to thousands of county voters will be held at the polls during the primary election. But they say hearings will only be required of full-time UNC undergraduate students.

U.S. Attorney H. M. "Mickey" Michaux Jr. said his office, at the request of the Orange County Committee, is looking into the challenges for possible violations of the Voting Rights Act of 1965.

A representative of the Orange County Committee, the citizens' group that initiated the challenge, will be allowed to attend the hearings, which will be held before a registrar and two judges.

In order to vote, the challenged undergraduate voter must be accompanied by a registered voter of the same precinct who will testify under oath as to the challenged voter's identity and his residence in Orange County.

Michaux said the committee representative will be allowed to present evidence in the hearing, but will not be allowed to question the prospective voter.

In filing the challenges, the Orange County Committee claimed UNC students who are not residents of Orange County were being allowed to vote illegally. The committee also claimed challenged voters were improperly registered.

More than 6,000 UNC students have been challenged. About 1,434 voter challenges were thrown out by the election board because the names were no longer on county lists. The committee requested earlier this month that all challenges except those to full-time UNC undergraduates be dropped.

Joseph L. Nassif, Orange County election board chairman, said the challenges will require three additional workers to assist the three regular employees who man the 18 precincts.

Students To High Court

ECU News Bureau
Ten pre-law students at East Carolina University, members of the ECU Law Society, visited Washington, D.C. last week, where they met with U.S. Supreme Court Justice William Rehnquist.

The students, accompanied by faculty advisor Dr. David Stevens, toured the U.S. Supreme Court and had lunch in the Supreme Court Dining Room.

The group also met with Sen. Robert Morgan, whose staff arranged the tour of the Supreme Court, and with Sen. Jesse Helms, whose staff arranged for them to tour the U.S. Capitol and the U.S. Senate floor.

Composed of students who plan to pursue careers in law, the ECU Law Society invites attorneys to the campus to speak to members and visits several law schools each year.

Biologists Tell Research

ECU News Bureau
Nineteen students, staff and faculty biologists from East Carolina University presented research reports at the recent annual meeting of the N.C. Academy of Science at Wake Forest University in Winston-Salem.

Faculty members reporting at the meeting were Dr. Gerhard Kalmus who spoke on "Aggregate Formation Using Dispersed Early Chick Blastoderm Cells" and Dr. Vincent Bellis, whose topic was "Relationship of Shoreline Vegetation to Estuarine Erosion." His research was undertaken in cooperation with Drs. Stanley Riggs and Michael O'Connor of the ECU Department of Geology.

Also reporting was staff researcher Martha Jones, whose topic was "Nutrients in Currituck Sound Water: A Preliminary Assessment."

Graduate students reporting at the meeting included Mitchell White III of Greenville, "Sediment Toxicity of the Pamlico River Estuary," (research done with Dr. Charles O'Rear).

Three Named To Phi Beta Kappa

Three Greenville students were named to Phi Beta Kappa at UNC-Chapel Hill, the nation's highest honor society, in a ceremony held today in Chapel Hill.

Requirements for membership is an overall quality point ratio of 3.6, out of a possible 4.0.

The students are: Arthur Gordon Klose, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Woodward of 107 Oxford Rd.; William H. Billica, son of Dr. and Mrs. Harry R. Billica of 216 Pineview Dr.; and Robert Griffin Brame Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. R. G. Brame of 307 Kenilworth Rd.

Enterprise Began Small, Is Big Today

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — The handkerchief-making operation began after World War II on the second floor of an old building in downtown Greenville, M.P. Niven, an Air Corps colonel during the war, started with a few hundred dollars borrowed from friends.

Since then, Carolina Manufacturing has grown into a company with sales in the millions each year, although Niven, whose family still owns the company, declines to divulge its earnings.

Carolina Manufacturing is better known as Hav-A-Hank, the name that appears on the large cards where the handkerchiefs, wrapped in plastic, hang in stores, restaurants and other places.

"Niven coined the name Hav-A-Hank. 'I couldn't afford an artist, but across the street from me was a man who ran a filling station,'" he said. "I got him to draw a design for me."

"The man's payment was a dozen seconds from the handkerchief assembly line.

"The building Niven found for his enterprise was a garage. Its floors were so soaked with oil and grease that he tried to scrape it up with a garden hose."

"I had a pot-bellied stove to warm the place," he said in an interview. "The soot would rise when you opened the stove and everybody would have to run around and cover the handkerchiefs."

"He had so little money that he had to ask for advance payment on some orders to buy the material to make the handkerchiefs. When it came time to ship them, he combed downtown alleys for shipping crates."

"Then he drove the truck himself. "Word got around that I was crazy," he said. "I had a hard job living that down."

"Still, 'I had made up my mind to have the world's largest packaged handkerchief (business) in 10 years and I did it in eight.'"

"The firm fills orders for 1.5 billion packages of handkerchiefs every 30 days. The product is all-cotton and the fabric is woven and finished in South Carolina, he says.

"As far as being a service to your nose, all cotton is best," Niven says.

"Also, the handkerchiefs are hem-stitched, a technique that makes the edge hold up longer, according to Niven. "The hems will last the whole life of the cloth," he says. "The hem is locked into the thread and holds better."

His sales include a recent bulk order of tan handkerchiefs to the Saudi Arabian army. The Saudis specified a hem-stitched handkerchief, he adds.

"The firm, now in a new building on the outskirts of Greenville, employs 60 persons. Niven says he has been able to hold down the number of employees and production costs through automation. "If we didn't have automation, there would be no way we could compete with imports from the Far East."

Bethel Citizen Meeting Slated

BETHEL — A citizen participation workshop for residents of Bethel to provide input into Community Development projects has been set for 7 p.m. Tuesday, April 25 in the Bethel Middle School Auditorium.

Among subjects to be discussed in connection with (1) General information relating to the 1974 Housing and Community Act; (2) Types of grants for which Bethel intends to apply, and the amount of funding involved; (3) The criteria for selection of applications; and (4) plans for developing activities, goals, objectives including housing for low and moderate income families.

All Bethel residents are urged to attend this meeting and to be ready to provide specific suggestions for input into the planning stages underway at this time.

Confidence Slips In U.S. Business Management

By LeROY POPE
UPI Business Writer
NEW YORK (UPI) — Confidence in America's much-vaunted business management appears to be slipping both in the eyes of the world and in its image of itself.

Not only is confidence in American management slipping abroad but a recent authoritative survey indicated American business leaders have lost self-confidence and confidence in the country's immediate economic future.

The survey, by McGraw-Hill's research staff, ranked American business confidence next to last among 13 industrial nations. Only the Belgians were more pessimistic.

Surprisingly, confidence was highest in Britain, which has had some hard times in recent years. It also was high in Italy, which has had both hard times and violent turmoil. Not surprisingly, confidence was France and not bad in Japan.

But the McGraw-Hill researchers said it all was relative, that the British and Italians considered that things, having already hit bottom, couldn't get worse short of revolution, they had to get better.

American business leaders' pessimism about the future was based mainly in the failure to end inflation, high interest costs, capital shortfalls and, above all, on shrinking corporate profit margins.

But Richard S. Sloma, a former International Telephone & Telegraph division president, says in a book he has just published, "No-Nonsense Management" (Macmillan, New York), that management's own inadequacies are about as much to blame.

In an interview, Sloma told UPI geopolitical considerations probably are the prime cause of most of the United States' current economic problems. "Geopolitics always has been the biggest factor in economics and probably always will be," he said. "Nevertheless, there is a lot management could do and isn't doing."

To put it bluntly, Sloma said American management is not now nearly as effective as Japanese management.

"Japanese managers presently are more dedicated, more industrious and more innovative than American managers," he said. He pointed out, though, that in one respect, managing is easier in Japan. Japanese society is more cohesive and disciplined and Japanese industry gets much more formidable and intensive government support than American industry.

Since Japanese competition is the most difficult foreign competition the United States faces at present, Sloma's observation would seem very pertinent.

The trouble with American management, Sloma said, lies in motivation. "The motivation of the so-called 'robber baron' managers of the 19th century may frequently have been socially reprehensible but it was clearly defined and vigorous, fanatically dedicated and generally highly innovative," he said.

But American management now seems to Sloma to be over-analytical and often confused in its motivation, lacking in dedication to profits and steady long-term growth.

"To be succinct, many managers are quite lacking in leadership," he said.

And although he is himself an MBA (from the University of Chicago) he gives MBA's as a class rather a low mark. "They are the cause of the over preoccupation with the analytical, the technological and other considerations that are only tangentially relevant to real concerns of management — profits and growth," he said.

Asked where good managers should come from if not from graduate business schools, Sloma answered, "From anywhere you happen to find them."

John C. Biegler, a senior partner in the national accounting firm, Price Waterhouse & Co., made comments somewhat similar to those of Sloma in a recent speech before the Pittsburgh Chapter of the Financial Executives Institute.

Biegler said, "The business response (in America) to its critics still is often directed at yesterday's standards of behavior ... We are simply not responding consistently to today's altered expectations ... We are being asked to account for corporate behavior in areas where no real standards of accountability ever have been established."

Biegler went on to say that "many aspects of corporate experience are beyond measurement and always will be." Sloma would appear inclined to disagree with that. He says emphatically that managers can be measured overall "by the numbers" in the financial statements of the companies they run. And he thinks the test of a good manager is how well he runs the company and judges his subordinates by the numbers.

That is the only thing that will enable a top manager to put an end to office politics that allow incompetents to rise to high levels in the company, he insisted.

The alternatives to managing by the numbers, he said, inevitably are advancement through power games or even through prejudice and these create dry rot all through the company.

Sloma calls his book a management primer and among his copybook maxims are these:

— Keep out of your workers' personal lives.

— Delegate your work to those who seek responsibility.

— Tell a person quickly if his or her work is mediocre. And don't tolerate mediocrity; others will quickly sense that failure is tolerated and they, too, will lower their goals.

— Don't overanalyze. "Avoiding a decision is the surest way to create a complete void in achievement."

— But don't make an irreversible decision too soon.
— Never stop planning.

At the same time that Sloma was urging managers to concentrate on profit and growth accountability, Price Waterhouse's Biegler said they are being confronted with a tidal wave of demands that they become more socially accountable to government and the public on such subjects as political contributions, marketing practices, recycling materials, land use and other environmental concerns, minority employment, safety training, fuel conservation, aid to education and community involvement.

All this puts a double edge on the blade of the management challenge Sloma talked about.

ESC Service Affects Many

Compilation of figures for the fiscal year Oct. 1, 1976 to Sept. 30, 1977, recently released for the five county Region Q area, shows that more than 1,000 employers and over 20,000 job applicants were affected by services offered by the Employment Security Commission Job Service.

The Job Service covers a full range of services as a labor exchange, seeking out job opportunities for available applicants, providing employer services for area firms, and guiding applicants through counseling and testing services to develop their skills for employment.

The Employment Security Commission Job Service is the largest single source of job applicants listing and placement in the five county Region Q area.

Highlights from the charts prepared in the study reveals that new applications and renewals totaled 23,276 individuals, with 5,570 placed in jobs.

A further breakdown shows that of that total, women numbered 11,759 with 2,349 placed; young people over 22 constituted a total of 7,459 with 2,250 being placed; and there were 3,200 older workers (over 44) of which 484 were placed.

Other figures are: veterans, 2,622 with 960 placed; minority applications, 13,498 and 3,573 placed; handicapped 2,093 applicants, with 460 placed; and seasonal farmworkers, 2,069 from which 724 were placed in jobs.

Most of the jobs involved wages of a lower scale. However, a total of 653 were placed in jobs that for the reporting period paid at the rate of $3.50 per hour and higher.

To Screen Use Of Surveillance

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Intelligence Committee is giving tacit approval to a proposed special panel that would screen requests from intelligence-gathering agencies for the right to use electronic surveillance.

The panel didn't formally vote on the plan Tuesday. But it rejected a proposal to give the White House and the attorney general the last word on use of electronic surveillance against foreign powers or agents operating in this country.

REQUEST APPROVED

City Manager C. A. Holliday announced the approval of a request by the Greenville Host Lions Club for permission to conduct its annual broom sale door-to-door from May 1 to June 15. Holliday said that the request was submitted by J. C. Boyd.

Waste-Watchers Bill In Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — A dozen federal agencies would have inspectors general to hunt for wasteful spending if a House-approved bill becomes law.

The measure went to the Senate Tuesday on a 388 to 6 vote. The departments involved are Agriculture; Commerce; Housing and Urban Development; Interior; Labor; Transportation; the Environmental Protection Agency and the Veterans, Small Business, Community Services, General Services and National Aeronautics and Space administrations.

New Procedure For Vasectomy

I'm contemplating having a vasectomy. I have two children.

At the age of 42, I think that's enough in this complicated society. That's how I feel today, but I can't anticipate how I will feel about this at some future time. If there should be any change in my attitude, is it possible for me once again to father a child? — Mr. S.J.K., Texas.

Dear Mr. K.:

When first the vasectomy operation was designed as a male contraceptive technique, there was little or no possibility of reversing the procedure. This was considered the greatest disadvantage of this simple, effective technique for stopping male fertility.

Many men who enthusiastically welcomed this surgery could not project themselves into any future change in their social situation. The possibility of divorce and remarriage are rarely contemplated at the time that vasectomy is undertaken. Yet such do occur, bringing unhappiness and regret to the person who abdicated all fertility rights.

Spurred on by this great disadvantage, urological surgeons have devised a number of techniques that now make the vasectomy operation reversible in a large percentage of cases.

A tiny tube, the vas deferens, normally carries the sperm from the testes where it is produced. It is the vas deferens tubes (there are two) that are cut and tied in order to interrupt the flow of sperm. At one time, small metal clips were placed around the vas, anticipating that they could be removed should the man once again seek a return of his fertility. Unfortunately, this procedure was not entirely successful and the reversibility was not attained in a high percentage of cases.

Today, a highly technical, delicate operation is performed under a microscope. By this micro-surgical technique, the fine sutures that surround the vas deferens can later be removed with an excellent possibility of returning the free flow of sperm. Despite the fact that there is a high percentage of return of male fertility, it is wise to give a great deal of consideration to all of these factors before actually embarking on this very significant decision.

Someone in my high school class told me that fish is a brain food and can make you smarter. Is there any truth to this? I hate fish, but I'll eat it if it works. — Karen J., S.D.

Dear Karen:

There is no scientific truth to the fact that fish or any other food can increase intellectual attainment. The brain is an organ that needs the same good nutrition that every other organ in the body needs. A well-balanced diet supplies protein, carbohydrates, fat, minerals and vitamins to sustain good health. The only "foods" that will help intellectual development are reading, studying and learning. This type of nutritious eating will bring you tremendous joys and reward.

Convention Honors For Conley FBLA Group

Nancy Berg, D. H. Conley sophomore and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Berg, was elected historian of North Carolina FBLA at the 24th Annual Leadership Conference held at the Hyatt House in Winston-Salem.

Conley students returned with several honors in addition to having the new officer, Jimmy Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Theibert Smith of Winterville, won first place in Business Law. David Payton, son of Mr. and Mrs. John David Payton, won third place in the Extemporaneous Speaking Contest. Betty Gurganus, outgoing secretary, was one of the nine members in the State chosen for Who's Who in FBLA in North Carolina. The chapter received for the fifth consecutive year a Gold Seal Chapter Award of Merit for outstanding work accomplished during the year. Pam Carter, local vice-president, was on hand to accept this award.

In addition to recognition of students who competed in various events, two $450 scholarships were awarded to worthy students. These scholarships were presented by Dr. James L. White, East Carolina University, in whose honor they are given. Dr. White organized the first FBLA chapter in North Carolina and served for a number of years as state advisor.

Two adults were given special recognition during the conference. Mrs. Kathryn Brown Meadows, former state chairperson and consultant in Business and Office Education, was awarded an honorary life membership. John Keely, business manager, Bowman Gray School of Medicine, Department of Clinics, who has been a long-time supporter of FBLA was named Man-of-the-Year. Mr. and Mrs. David Gurganus, along with parents of the other state officers, were honored guests of the conference.

Other students who attended the conference from Conley and either participated in written or skill events were: Jeff Allen, Marc Black, Patricia Branch, Willie Chapman, Terry Dixon, Susan Hall, Kay Heath, Lynn Hunt, Stacy Hibbard, Jodie Faust, Branch Jones, Kim Langley, Wanda Mills, Robbie Riggs, Vickie Smith, Gwen Smith, Joey Weathering and Carlton Wooten. They were accompanied by Annie Chappell and Mary Thompson.

Look At The Record

1. Has served four terms in the North Carolina House of Representatives and now ranks 19th in seniority among 120 members.
2. Has served on major House Committees of Education (Vice-chairman), Constitutional Amendments (Vice-chairman), Mental Health, State Personnel, Agriculture, Appropriations and Base Budget And Finances.
3. Has served on special assignments such as the Study Commission on Teachers' & State Employees' Retirement System and the Study Commission to Evaluate the Textbook Commission. Now serving on the North Carolina Advisory Council on Teacher Education.
4. Has served on North Carolina State Board Of Awards (Approves contracts for purchase of goods and services needed by the State Agencies).
5. Has served on the Advisory Budget Commission (Formulates, prepares and recommends the budget for the State to the General Assembly.)

Plan For On-The-Road Medical Emergencies

By PATRICIA MC CORMACK
UPI Health Editor

Rolling along on Interstate 84 a shiny new compact car filled with a happy family heads for vacation destination.

There's all the usual togetherness — singing, yelling, eating, playing the license plate game. Mom, Dad, Grandpa, little Archibald and Becky are filled with peanut butter sandwiches, cream soda and joy.

But this cheerful group suddenly is interrupted. A bee buzzing in the backseat.

Grandpa ducks. Little Archibald ducks. Becky isn't fast enough. Bee hits a target — Becky's proboscis.

Before the noxious bee exits out an open window Mom opens the latch on the first aid kit. She moves quickly, tending to Becky's injured nose.

A modicum of order and peace returns — thanks to Mom's advance planning for medical emergencies of any type during the annual vacation.

You, too, should plan for medical emergencies — ranging from insect stings to upset stomachs or worse. Plan BEFORE the vacation. Also make a point of knowing the operating procedure for getting medical or dental help quickly.

The modus operandi for that:

head for the emergency room of the nearest hospital. Most big highways have signs telling which exit leads to a hospital. If there is no time to take a chance guessing the location of a hospital, try for a police escort. Use all possible methods to signal for such help. You could use such help if the Grandpa or Grandma in your family had chest pains or worse. Or if son or daughter developed a sudden allergy and breathing became difficult.

Vacation planning with an eye to possible health problems also requires one to take along extra glasses or prescriptions for glasses, all medications currently being taken and an extra prescription for each.

Kaopectate is another must — to keep upset digestive systems from cutting short vacation fun. And carry some bags for car sickness, just in case the kiddies have a problem where it's not convenient to pull over and stop.

Safety authorities at the American Medical Association suggest you take along the following if yours is an on-the-road vacation:

— A first aid kit with ample supplies. Check over the offerings at your drug store.

— A first aid manual — Red Cross or American Medical Association issue. The AMA one is 45 cents and available by mail. The AMA address is 535 North Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill. 60610.

— Some wood splints in case bones break. Get from any good lumberyard four lengths of wood 4 inches by 30 inches; four pieces 3 by 14 inches. The longer wood is for splinting legbone breaks; the shorter, for arm fractures.

— Six large triangular bandages from a medical supply section of a drug store.

— A supply of large and small sterile dressings for the emergency treatment of wounds.

— A blanket to cover an injured person.

— A flashlight.

— Flares.

— Notebooks and pencils, used to record information in the event of an accident.

It may also be a good idea to give everyone a whistle. If a mishap on the highway pitches you, car and other occupants into a deep ditch you won't be seen from the highway. The whistles and flashlight can aid in summoning help. The whistles also can be blown by little kids who get lost in forests or at campgrounds.

Historic Prague Square Restoration Nears End

By IVA DRAPALOVA

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — The beauty of huge, historic Wenceslaus Square, hidden for a decade, is re-emerging as workmen dismantle scaffolds covering nearly one million square feet of facades.

Armies of knights on horseback and soldiers in tanks have rumbled across the sloping, boulevard-like square in the heart of Prague during its more than six centuries.

The overhaul of the 740-by-66-yard square, which began in 1968 with construction of a subway, was to have been completed by the end of 1977. Although the target date has passed, the end does appear in sight.

A finishing touch of blue and pink mosaic tiles is expected to be laid over the pavement by the end of this year. Street-car tracks will remain until 1980, when subway service will take over.

Once the scaffolding and construction fences have been removed, city fathers plan a five-year ban on repairs around the square to allow tourists and residents to enjoy a rest from eyesores.

The square, half as long as Paris' Champs Elysees, derives its name from the patron saint of Czechoslovakia — the "Good King Wenceslas" of the English Christmas carol.

An equestrian statue of the saint, who was also Bohemia's most famous King, stands before the 19th-century National Museum, the square's most imposing edifice.

Wenceslaus Square, which was known as Horse Market until it was renamed in 1848, is a model of medieval town planning. It was laid out in 1348 by King Charles IV as part of what was known as Prague's New Town.

It kept its original shape even during a hectic period of reconstruction at the turn of the century, which turned the area into an outdoor museum of 19th and early 20th century architecture.

Tears streaming from their eyes, Czechs saw Hitler's Wehrmacht parade in triumph through the square in 1939.

Soviet army tanks took up positions in the square during the 1968 Czechoslovak invasion that put an end to the Prague spring of liberalization. The following January, student Jan Palach burned himself to death in the square to protest the invasion.

A ban on skyscrapers in the historic center of Prague leaves unobscured the beauty of the churches and palaces.

A few of the houses bordering the square retain Gothic foundations, but above ground the style is art nouveau. The finest examples include the Koruna Palace and the Europa Hotel.

At the corner of the square and Vodickova Street stands a neo-renaissance building with beautiful sgraffiti by the Czech painter Mikolas Ales.

A few paces away stands the Lucerna building, the city's first structure made of reinforced steel. It houses one of the city's most popular concert halls.

The House of Shoes — a glass and steel structure — is an example of the Czech constructivist school. Among the best examples of post-war architecture are the House of Foodstuffs and House of Fashions, built on bomb sites, and the ornate Jalta Hotel.

FAMED SQUARE—Prague's Wenceslaus Square, with its statue of the patron saint of Czechoslovakia, the "Good King Wenceslaus," is emerging from a decade of repair work, as workmen put the finishing touches on the restoration of the six-centuries-old landmark.

Big Band Will Play For Dance

WASHINGTON — Well known trombone player Buddy Morrow, conductor of the Tommy Dorsey orchestra, will be making a concert appearance on Monday, April 24 at the Bright Belt Tobacco Warehouse in Washington.

The appearance is sponsored by the Beaufort County Shrine Club for a dance to begin at 8 p.m. and last until midnight.

Tickets are available from any Shrine Club member and in Washington at Jowdy, Jimmy's Grill and Small's Book Store. Table reservations are being accepted by the Beaufort County Shrine Club for those who purchase blocks of five tickets with seating for ten at each table. Refreshments will be available during the evening.

HIGHWAY COMPLETED
BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — The 175-mile China-Laos Friendship Highway connecting Luang Prabang, the former Laotian royal capital, and southern China has been completed, the official Laotian news agency reports.

New Marlboro Lights 100's

Lighter in taste. Lower in tar.
And still offers up the same quality that has made Marlboro famous.

The spirit of Marlboro in a low tar cigarette.
