Paid Parking Complaints At Hospital Are Futile

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Paid parking at Pitt County Memorial Hospital is raising the blood pressure of many, but complaining about it's going to do about as much good as fussing about the weather, it seems.

The hospital has a five-year lease, with option to renew, with McLaurin Parking Company of Raleigh to operate the visitors' lot, and officials say they're pleased with the performance so far of the system which went into effect Saturday.

Hospital visitors aren't nearly so pleased. Hospital Director Jack Richardson said he's answering letters and calls from many who're protesting one facet or another of the situation.

"Who voted for this mess?" a Bethel woman who refused to give her name said as she drove up to the booth where parking fees are paid. She got her answer and said, "Well, I think the hospital board took a wrong vote."

A Winterville man backed his car some distance in the lot to talk to a reporter. He was irate at having been charged Wednesday for several hours during which his wife was undergoing laboratory work in preparation for surgery and for the time spent admitting her Thursday afternoon. He feels, he said, that cars in the lot for the purpose of admitting, releasing and having laboratory work done should be exempted from paying.

Hospital Patient Representative Ed Hackett said the hospital administration agrees with him. He said that everyone who comes to the hospital to admit a patient or to release one may have his or her parking cards marked in the admitting or cashier's office so as not to be charged when leaving the lot. Those coming to the hospital for laboratory work should park in the back, if possible, he said.

Immediate family members of patients are being charged along with all other visitors, but those who need to spend great amounts of time at the hospital may, on their first visit of the day, buy a $1 ticket which entitles them to come and go at will the rest of that day. These tickets should be saved, and when the family feels that a hardship has been incurred, should be sent in an envelope supplied by the hospital administrative office to the McLaurin Company for a full or partial refund.

A metal detection loop in the pavement of the entrance from the Stanton Road causes a card marked with the minute of arrival to come out of a box mounted on a post. When the driver of the entering vehicle accepts the card, a gate in front of the vehicle is raised so it may pass through. This card must be presented at the booth near the Nursing Home Road exit upon leaving.

The time of departure and the price is marked by a computerized device, so there is no margin for error on the part of the attendant.

The prices are as follows: first 10 minutes free; first 30 minutes 20 cents; each additional hour or portion of an hour, 25 cents; and maximum per 12 hours $1.

Richardson said Bobby McLaurin of the McLaurin Company has told him that about 800 cars went through Sunday. Traffic here equals that of Wake Memorial Hospital in Raleigh the first week paid parking was instituted there, McLaurin said.

The major problem encountered this week, Hospital Physical Plant Manager Ralph Hall said, is that the employees' parking lot is not ready. He hopes work will begin within a few days and that it will be completed in about two months. In the meantime, employees are asked to park out back if there is space available. If one of them must park in the paid lot, he or she may have the parking card marked and is encouraged to use the outer perimeter of the lot.

Visitors' desk workers and security guard in the lobby say they can already see a big difference in the number of visitors. There are fewer, they say, and many fewer who the "lounge around the lobby."

Richardson said he's heard that persons who have used the hospital lot to leave their cars all day while they carpool to other towns have ceased the practice.

"Before we got this system," Hall said, "many of our visitors couldn't get a parking place in the lot out front. Now there's plenty of room. The charges may seem like an imposition at first, but actually they're insurance that one can find a place to park and that his or her vehicle will be afforded reasonable protection."

About 50 hospitals in North Carolina now have paid parking, a timed equipment representative visiting the exit booth said. At least four hospitals in Eastern North Carolina are watching Pitt Memorial's experience before they decide whether to start it. Richardson said he's heard from three others that are interested.

"I'm from Charlotte," a visitor said, and we're used to paid parking up there. Free parking anywhere is just about a thing of the past."

Vance Pressing For Explanation Of Interference

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance began his second day of arms control talks in the Kremlin today intending to press for an explanation of Soviet interference with the American media.

U.S. officials said suppression of wire service photographs and CBS film of a protest outside the U.S. Embassy Thursday by the Russian wife of an American college professor appeared to violate the Soviet promise in the 1975 Helsinki Agreement to support freedom of information.

Vance also planned to take up with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko the plight of the woman, Irina McClellan, who was seized by Soviet police when she tried to chain herself to the embassy fence. She was released after three hours, but the police put a guard on her apartment, apparently to keep her inside.

Mrs. McClellan, 38, has been refused permission to join her husband, a professor at the University of Virginia.

Although Vance was prepared to give prominence to the human rights issue, U.S. spokesman Hodding Carter said it would not impinge on the negotiations to try to clear up issues blocking agreement on a treaty to limit long-range nuclear weapons.

"The two are separate," Carter said. He reported after the first talks Thursday that Vance and Gromyko were "negotiating seriously on major items" and "the atmosphere is good."

In the past the Soviets have complained that the United States was linking the arms negotiations to domestic issues and imperiling relations between the two superpowers.

Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev stayed away from the table again today, but Vance expected to meet with him before the talks wind up on Saturday.

For the second day, the talks concentrated on resolving differences on both sides standing in the way of a new treaty to limit strategic nuclear weapons.

"We have not moved off that," Carter told reporters.

But he said human rights as a subject was on the agenda, along with the Middle East and Soviet activity in Africa.

Moreover, the spokesman said, "the secretary intends to raise the McClellan matter and the photo and film cutoffs directly with Mr. Gromyko."

Tass, the Soviet news agency, refused on Thursday to transmit Associated Press and United Press International photographs of Mrs. McClellan's seizure by police. When CBS attempted to transmit television film of the incident to the United States, Soviet technicians refused, and the satellite feed was blacked out.

British Export More Scotch

LONDON (AP) — Britain is exporting more Scotch whisky than ever before, but less of it is being drunk at home, the Scotch Whisky Association reported today.

The association said 24,775,000 gallons were shipped abroad in the first three months of the year, 7 percent more than in the first quarter last year.

But the association reported fewer Britons are buying Scotch, mostly because a good brand now costs about $8.50 a bottle, 80 percent of which is tax.

Korean Airliner Is Forced To Land By Soviet Interceptors

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Alexei N. Kosygin confirmed today that Soviet interceptors forced an Alaska-bound South Korean jetliner to land on Soviet territory, and he said two of the plane's passengers were dead and two others injured, Japanese officials reported.

The report came from Japanese sources here and was confirmed by the Foreign Ministry in Tokyo.

The ministry said one of the dead was Japanese. But the cause of death and the nationalities of the other victims were not immediately known.

American sources here said U.S. officials were informed by the Soviets the Boeing 707, which landed on a frozen lake, suffered "some damage."

American military sources in Washington said they had no evidence the Soviets used "hostile action" to force the jet down Thursday after it intruded over Russian territory while on a flight across the Arctic.

No Americans were reported aboard the plane, which had been bound from Paris to Seoul, with a refueling stop in Anchorage, Alaska.

The Japanese sources said Kosygin was keeping visiting Japanese Agriculture Minister Ichiro Nakagawa informed on the incident.

They said the Soviets told him the pilot, after being intercepted by warplanes, tried for two hours to avoid landing before he was forced down on a frozen lake near the town of Kem, 600 miles north of Moscow and 300 miles south of Murmansk in the Soviet northwest. Kem is 150 miles east of the Finnish border.

The South Korean Foreign Ministry said today that information it had indicated the plane made an emergency landing after it violated Soviet territory but "not deliberately."

The official Soviet Tass news agency said arrangements were being made for the passengers and crew to leave the Soviet Union. Another KAL plane left Seoul today for Helsinki, Finland, to stand by to pick them up.

Tass said the plane had entered Soviet airspace near Murmansk.

"The passengers and crew of the plane were taken to the nearest populated locality and arrangements are being made for their dispatch from the U.S.S.R.'s territory," Tass said. The Tass announcement made no mention of casualties.

Conferees Near Accord On Energy Legislation

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — House and Senate negotiators, after a stormy session with Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger lasting into the early morning hours, said today they had reached a basic accord on the proposed deregulation of natural gas.

Although sources, who declined to be identified, said there was still a chance the negotiations might break down, most conferees expressed guarded optimism that a compromise may be near. An agreement would break the deadlock stalling President Carter's year-old energy program.

They said two relatively minor differences remain to be resolved on the controversial deregulation issue.

But Rep. Harley M. Staggers, D-W.Va., said he hoped that those differences could be settled in about an hour later today. Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., who leads the Senate conferees, said the negotiators decided to sleep on it because "some of us are tired."

Another meeting was scheduled for later in the day to take up the issues not yet resolved. Both involve the kinds of gas that will be eligible for deregulation on January 1, 1985, the date conferees have tentatively selected for lifting federal price controls.

The conferees emerged with Schlesinger shortly before 3 a.m. EST after nearly 13 straight hours of closed-door negotiations. Congressional leaders had hoped to be able to finish by midnight Thursday to keep the energy program's first anniversary from slipping by, but missed the self-imposed deadline.

On Thursday, Carter took note that a year had passed since he submitted the energy program to Congress. He declared that "precious time" already has been wasted and urged Congress to wrap up its deliberations on the legislation. The energy package had been stalled by the five-month debate over natural gas deregulation.

County Commissioners Move On Waste Disposal Plan By Approving Site Construction

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County Commissioners yesterday took the first steps toward implementing a county-wide solid waste disposal plan by approving construction of two 40-cubic yard container sites.

The sites approved yesterday include one at Farmville and one between Ayden and Grifton.

Commissioners have for sometime been studying the question of solid waste disposal in the county. Following a public hearing last November, the board rejected a proposal to institute a franchised hauler plan under which the county would be divided into districts. Franchised independent contractors operating within the various areas would have been required to provide house-to-house pickup service to any resident in the area for a monthly fee.

In January, the board began plans to implement a 40-cubic yard container program. Under the program, bulk containers, similar to those used in Wilson County, will be located throughout the county. They will provide residents a place to dispose of their solid waste without having to travel to the county landfill.

The large containers would then be hauled to the landfill for sanitary disposal of the waste.

Commissioners as part of the plan, have met with officials from all the municipalities in the county and have gained their approval to use one landfill site for the disposal of the waste.

According to officials, the county landfill could be operated more efficiently by handling all the waste and at no additional cost.

In the past, Greenville and Farmville have operated separate landfills, while other municipalities have used the county-owned site just West of the Greenville city limits.

The waste disposal plan calls for locating 21 bulk containers throughout the county over a three-year period, with 10 to be installed during the first year. The two approved yesterday are the first of the 10 sites.

No charge for dumping solid waste at the landfill will be imposed, and commissioners have said the county would haul waste from the outlying towns from transfer stations at the various municipalities, or reimburse them on a per cubic yard basis if they desire to haul their own waste to the landfill.

County Manager Reginald Gray told commissioners yesterday that Ayden, Bethel, Grifton and Winterville have indicated that they would prefer to be reimbursed for hauling their own waste to the landfill, while Farmville, has indicated its preference for the transfer station, letting the county haul its waste.

Falkland, Grimesland and Simpson officials, according to Gray, have indicated they could dump into containers near those municipalities, while Fountain officials said they could either use the Farmville transfer station or be reimbursed to haul its own waste.

Because of the location of the county landfill, Greenville would haul its own waste, but would not be reimbursed.

Following meetings with Greenville officials over the past several weeks, the city proposed to lease its landfill to the county. Under that counterproposal, the county would close the county-owned site and operate the city landfill as the only landfill in the county until the city site is full — an estimated five to seven years.

Then the city site would be closed and the county-owned facility reopened.

Greenville officials have said the city site is only half-filled. Continued use of the city site will allow the property to be used as a recreation area once the area is completely filled.

The Greenville City Council last week authorized the mayor and city manager to negotiate a lease agreement with county officials for county operation of the city site.

Commissioners yesterday took no action on the lease of the city facility, indicating the concept is acceptable, but saying there are still some details that need to be resolved.

Gray told commissioners yesterday that the cost of the entire solid waste program — including site acquisition and construction, purchase of the containers and contracting the hauling, and operation of the landfill itself — for the coming year is estimated at $604,800.

Noting that the two sites approved for construction yesterday would be funded from this year's budget, and reduce next years expenditure, Gray said the cost for the 1978-1979 fiscal year, "relates to a tax increase of about 6.6 cents per $100 valuation."

He noted that the cost should decrease after the program is implemented.

In a letter to the county, O. W. Strickland, supervisor of the Solid Waste Management Unit of the Department of Human Resources indicated, "It would be wise to fill the Greenville site prior to closing it out."

He added that, "The operational approval would continue to be in effect," for the county site but, "placed in the inactive file until such time as the County wishes to reopen it."

Senate Candidate McKnight In A 'Fiddle Stop' On ECU Campus

By TOMMY FORREST
Reflector Staff Writer

David McKnight, Democratic candidate for the U. S. Senate made a "fiddle stop" on the East Carolina University Campus yesterday afternoon.

McKnight, playing the violin and talking with students, commented on the family farms in North Carolina.

"I feel that the number one issue of this campaign is the family farm," McKnight said. "I believe that our farmers are asking for nothing more than a fair price for the products they bring to market."

"As a city boy, not a farm boy, I believe that the family farmer is entitled to a fair shake in the market place. If that means 100 percent parity, as far as I'm concerned, that is what it's going to be. In any event we've got to do better."

'Cheated' At Police Auction

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) — If you can't believe your local police, whom can you believe?

Andreas Meyn says he paid $1,375 at a police auction for four gold rings that turned out to be brass.

Meyn said Wednesday the rings were advertised as gold and were kept in a locked case with each ring stamped "18 kt."

When he had the rings appraised, however, he was told they were worth about $5 each.

Meyn asked the police board to refund his money, but the board voted 3-2 not to.

"The mayor goes on and on about morality, about prostitution and pornography," an angry Meyn said. "At least in prostitution they deliver the goods."

McKnight said he is the only senatorial candidate to attend tractorcades showing his support and understanding for the farmer.

When asked his opinion on the HEW Sec. Califano situation in the South, McKnight commented, "...to single out tobacco and tell individual people what they should do or should not do, to me goes beyond the realm of government."

McKnight is remembered by people for his campaign walk last year. McKnight also said he is trying to attend as many campuses as he can talking with young people.

FBI Veterans Submit Pleas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former acting FBI director L. Patrick Gray III and two other former FBI officials pleaded innocent of charges they violated the civil rights of Americans while searching for members of the radical Weather Underground in the early 1970s.

The pleas were entered Thursday in U.S. District Court as hundreds of current and former FBI agents gathered outside in support of the three defendants.

Gray, Edward S. Miller, former assistant director of the FBI's domestic intelligence division, and W. Mark Felt, a former acting associate director, were released without bond.

The three have been charged with unlawfully ordering break-ins of private homes while the bureau was trying to locate members of the Weather underground between December 1972 and May 1973. The homes belonged to relatives and acquaintances of members of the radical group.

Conviction on the single count of conspiracy to violate citizens' civil rights carries a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison.

Except to declare their plea, the three stood mute in the courtroom of U.S. District Judge Charles R. Richey. Later they were taken to the U.S. marshal's office for processing, including the taking of mug shots and fingerprinting.

Leaving the courthouse, Felt and his wife moved through the crowd of current and former FBI agents. "All I can say is

Judge Bars Rail Union Walkouts

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A federal judge has issued an order barring Conrail clerical union employees from participating in a wildcat walkout or work slowdown. Union officials had said there was a possibility of walkouts at Conrail facilities because workers were unhappy with the railroad's transfer procedures.

U.S. District Judge John B. Hannum, at the request of Conrail lawyers, issued the order Thursday after meeting with the lawyers and the International Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Carrier Clerks, the union representing 22,000 workers.

God Bless everyone," he said. Ed Morgan, speaking for the Society of Former Special Agents, said the agents appeared outside the courthouse with "profound sorrow that this day has come to pass."

"Your lifetime of dedication to law enforcement, to the cause of justice and to the security of this land bespeaks your character," Morgan said, aiming his remarks at the three defendants.

In announcing the indictments last week, Attorney General Griffin Bell said he decided that criminal prosecution should be brought at the highest level of authority.

Gray was acting director of the FBI for only a year, succeeding J. Edgar Hoover. Miller and Felt were long-time veterans of the agency.

Participating in the program were Frances Dudley, chapter president, who welcomed guests, Ruth Staton, who gave the ABWA history, Jane Distler, Woman of the Year chairman, Dot Ellen, who gave the vocational speech, and overall chairman Mrs. Bleizeffer, mistress of ceremonies.

Crab Is Second Favorite

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer
Americans eat more shellfish than anybody despite the soaring cost of these delicacies. And because of this love, our chefs have created a wide variety of shellfish classics like oyster stew, shrimp gumbo, crab cakes, deviled lobster and so on.

Next to shrimp, our country's favorite crustacean is the crab, which abounds in a dazzling variety of shapes and sizes off American shores. They include the giant king crab from the North Pacific waters off Alaska, rock crabs from New England, stone crabs off Florida, green crabs from southern Maine, lady crabs from Cape Cod, buster crabs from the Gulf of Mexico, the famed Dungeness off California and the popular blue crab from our East and Gulf coasts.

Fresh crabs, like lobsters, are sold live. Faced with the prospect of cleaning them, many people prefer canned or frozen crabmeat, both of which are excellent.

Dungeness crabs are available in San Francisco from November to June and around Crescent City, Calif., from December to mid-July. In the mid-1950s, San Francisco crab fishermen were catching close to 9 million of the crustaceans a year. Now the catch has fallen off drastically in the city of the Golden Gate but it still runs up in the millions in Crescent City.

Crabs have long been a favorite in the American Southland and some of the most delicious dishes come from there. Charleston is famous for its she-crab soup and New Orleans for its gumbo. In Baltimore, it's crab cakes and in Atlanta, Crab Imperiale.

One of the most popular of the crustaceans is soft shell crab which is actually the blue crab after it has shed its hard shell during June and July. When a commercial fisherman spots a blue shell about to moult, he puts it in special float until it sheds the shell. He continues to leave it there until the new shell is hard enough so that the crab can be shipped to distant markets.

Here's a recipe for the classic Crab Gumbo, usually made from the hard shell blue crab available the year round in coastal areas.

- 1/2 pound crab meat
- 1/2 pound butter
- 1/2 cup chopped celery
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 1 clove of garlic
- 10 ounces diced okra
- 2 1/2 pounds canned whole tomatoes
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1/4 teaspoon crushed thyme
- Black pepper to taste
- 1/4 teaspoon granulated sugar
- Bay leaf

Cook crab meat till tender in butter after adding celery, onion and garlic clove chopped fine. Add okra, tomatoes and seasoning. Simmer covered 45 minutes. Remove bay leaf and serve. Good with chilled dry white wine.

Couple Weds In Recent Ceremony

The marriage of Carrie DiAnne Bowen and Reginald Morton Fountain Jr., both of Greenville, was solemnized Saturday, April 8, in the Cashie Baptist Church. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Haywood D. Holderness Jr. at 3:00 p.m.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel W. Bowen of Windsor. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. R. M. Fountain Sr. of Tarboro, and the late Mr. Fountain.

A program of wedding music was presented by Miss Betty Joyce Sanderlin and Mrs. Sylvia Brooks.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an original design floor length gown with a chapel train of qiana and imported silk Venise lace. The empire bodice featured a Victorian neckline with an English illusion yoke and full length sleeves. Silk Venise lace adorned the bodice, sleeves and outlined the English illusion yoke. The flared qiana skirt extended into a chapel train.

The bride chose a fingertip mantilla with an illusion blusher bordered with silk Venise lace attached to a face frame design headpiece. She carried a cascade bouquet of roses, daisies, baby's breath and ivy.

The matron of honor was Mary Joyce Bowen Brady of Asheville, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Beverly Bowen Kirkman of Morehead City, and Miss Dorothy Bowen of Windsor, both sisters of the bride.

T. T. Fountain of Raleigh was best man and ushers included Ben Brinson of Tarboro, Jim Little of Greenville, Tom Alexander of Raleigh, and Dan Bowen Jr. of Windsor, brother of the bride.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall after the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. John B. Gillam III greeted guests and Mrs. Lewis Rascoe Jr. presided at the bride's book.

Mrs. Jerry Herald and Mrs. Joe Alexander assisted in serving. Good-byes were said by Mr.

Mrs. Reginald Morton Fountain Jr.

and Mrs. Ernest Carraway. Mrs. Godwin Byrd was mistress of ceremonies assisted by Mrs. Arthur Bowen.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in Greenville and Whichard's Beach, Washington.

The bride is a graduate of North Carolina School of Arts, Winston-Salem, Chowan College, Murfreesboro, and East Carolina University. She is a former panelist on WNCT-TV "Carolina Today."

The bridegroom is a graduate of the University of North Carolina with a degree in business and a doctorate of law. He is a special agent, CLU, for Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Corp., life and participating member of the Million Dollar Round Table, a realtor and a member of the World Champion Mercury Racing Team.

Widower Promised Not To Remarry

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I can't believe that I, a 62-year-old man, am actually writing a letter to Dear Abby, but I have a problem I cannot solve. How do you or your consultants (perhaps a minister or psychiatrist) feel about deathbed promises?

The situation is as follows: I am very much in love with a 60-year-old widow. I am a widower. Our children are grown and independent. This widow and I both had good and faithful spouses. I lost mine two years ago, and she lost hers three years ago. We met by accident. Neither of us was looking for anyone.

After keeping steady company for a year, we are very much in love and want to marry. However, my wife, on her deathbed, asked me to promise her that I would never marry again. I made that promise, and now I feel guilty because I want to marry. What obligation have I to a dead spouse, and what should I do?

FEELING GUILTY

DEAR FEELING: First, shed those guilt feelings. Deathbed promises are almost always made under emotionally charged circumstances. Your only obligation is to yourself. Go ahead and marry the lady, and the sooner the better. Life is for living.

DEAR ABBY: I had a buffet dinner party at my home recently to which 12 of my relatives were invited. (One was my mother.)

The party was scheduled for 6:30. At 6:25 my mother arrived with a giant pot of turkey soup. I was caught by surprise. My dinner was already prepared and there was no way I could have served my mother's turkey soup. For one thing, I don't have enough soup bowls or soup spoons to serve 12, and even if I had, turkey soup wouldn't have been appropriate with the meal I planned.

I politely told my mother that I would put her turkey soup away and save it for another time. She was miffed and let me know it. Was I wrong, Abby? She keeps bringing it up to me that I wouldn't let her serve her turkey soup. How can I make amends for my gross error? IN THE SOUP DOWN SOUTH

DEAR IN: You weren't wrong. Tell your mother-you gobbled up her turkey soup later and it was delicious.

DEAR ABBY: Our car was damaged by a drunken driver who works at the same factory as my husband. The estimated cost of having it repaired is $700.

My husband didn't want to have the other man booked for drunken driving, so instead of calling the police to report it right away my husband called the man's wife to take him home and sober him up.

The wife couldn't sober him up, so she came back to the scene of the accident and told the police that she was the driver of the car, instead of her husband. My husband backed her up.

My husband and I have been going round and round about this. I told him that he was dead wrong to have agreed to such a thing—the police should have been notified at once, and if they booked the other man for drunk driving, it might teach him a good lesson. I don't think drunken drivers should be protected. What do you think?

DISGUSTED

DEAR DISGUSTED: I'm with you. Not only is the drunken driver now free to repeat the offense (and possibly cause a more serious accident), but also your husband is a party to falsifying an accident report—a serious offense!

If you put off writing letters because you don't know what to say, get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters For All Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (24 cents) envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Deviled eggs taste good served on top of hot split biscuits and a well-seasoned cheese sauce. A combination of curry powder, ketchup and Worcestershire sauce will make the cheese sauce taste savory.

Torrijos Undercut Own Image

Gen. Omar Torrijos, leader of Panama, did not do much to assure the world of his ability to control the Panama Canal in the aftermath of U. S. Senate treaty approval.

Torrijos claimed that his forces would have destroyed the canal if the treaty turning it over to Panama by the year 2000 had not been approved.

Making such a statement a day earlier would have assured the treaty's defeat.

As it is, the Torrijos statement is discounted in Washington as merely talk aimed at strengthening his regime with the Panamanian public.

Torrijos started off the expected turn-over period in extremely poor fashion. We can only hope that Panama will see a more stable and democratic government before it gains control of the canal.

Nuclear Weaponry Spread Goes On

If a French newspaper's report is correct, France has exploded a neutron bomb experimentally in the South Pacific.

The news, if true, is not welcomed by the world.

As more and more nations develop more terrifying nuclear weapons, the possibility of their use at some time in the future becomes more probable.

The possibility of world destruction by nuclear devices seems to have been put out of most people's minds — probably to persevere individual sanity.

It could happen, however, unless we find some way to halt the spread of nuclear weaponry.

Federal Vs. State Law

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Did you ever wonder why anything government does seems to be so complex, time consuming, and confusing?

The certificate of need situation in North Carolina currently illustrates the absurdities of the system.

Exploring the alternatives as a legislative study commission on health cost containment did recently produce a mind-boggling array of actions and reactions; options and closed doors.

Here is the situation:

The 1974 federal health planning act passed by Congress requires that states have a certificate of need system to checkoff proposed new or expanded hospitals and other health care facilities, new services, or re-allocation of existing health care facilities.

North Carolina had a certificate of need law until 1973 when the North Carolina Supreme Court ruled such regulation of commerce permitting a monopoly for existing facilities as opposed to the State Constitution. A private corporation wanted to build a hospital, and existing hospitals objected.

Funds Cut

So when the federal government said a certificate of need system was required, and in traditional manner linked that to withholding of funds not only in building programs but a host of health areas such as mental health, alcoholism, drug abuse programs, etc., the North Carolina Attorney General's office filed a suit.

That suit in essence says the federal government has no right to pass a law or impose regulations upon a state government when that state's constitution forbids such a course of action.

That is a profound subject, having to do with state's rights, the Tenth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, a whole lot of other relationships between Washington and all states, and even ramifications in the present argument between the U.S. Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare, and the University of North Carolina.

A federal appeals court ruled against the state, and the matter is on appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States.

Meanwhile, the North Carolina Department of Human Resources wants the state General Assembly to pass a new certificate of need law so federal funds up to $60 million over the next two years won't be terminated.

NOBLITT

Besides, say some health officials and legislators, such a certification system is needed to help bring soaring medical costs under control — the same rationale which originally impelled the Congress to the same conclusion.

But, say state attorneys general, to pass such a law now would require an amendment to the State Constitution, a highly unlikely prospect since this would formalize governmental meddling in commerce.

Options

Or, the amendment would have to remove all (public or private) health care activities from the constitutional ban against governmental dictation. Either is something most Tar Heels would find difficulty in approving.

Furthermore, say the attorneys, to pass a certificate of need law now would effectively negate the state's pending Supreme Court showdown; undercut an issue which offers the hope, however slim, of getting the federal government off the state's back; and would require withdrawal of that suit.

What to do? The legislative commission decided to leave the suit intact by refusing to move this year on a referendum for a constitutional amendment leading to a new certificate of need law.

Will the Supreme Court hear the suit, and if so how will it rule — for or against state's rights? Will the federal government cut off funds to North Carolina's health systems? Will the General Assembly decide to go for a certificate of need law to satisfy federal requirements? Can medical costs be contained without some regulation of building? Mind-boggling!

Wall Street Madness

WASHINGTON — There is a certain insanity going on in the country at this moment which cannot be diagnosed by any doctor. If you don't believe me, take a look at what happened on Wall Street last Friday. All week long we saw and heard nothing but bad news about the economy, inflation, the national deficit, the fall of the dollar etc., etc.

Then on Friday, Wall Street went ape, traded 52 million shares of stock in one day, and the market went through the roof. It was hard to believe that the men and women who drove up the Dow Jones by 20 points were watching the same economic news as the rest of the country.

As soon as I heard about it I called a friend on Wall Street to find out what was going on.

He sounded very giddy on the phone. "They're buying," he cried. "They're buying everything. Zip a dee doo!"

"I know that," I said. "But why are they buying?"

"You know Thompson, who manages all of Glutton Insurance Co.'s investment portfolio?"

"No, I don't know him," I said.

"He started it. He'd been sitting on $2 billion worth of cash, and not doing a damn thing with it. Well, he went to the health club on Friday morning and suddenly started screaming, 'I can't take it any longer. I've got to buy something.' Then he went running down Wall Street in the nude yelling, 'Buy! Buy! Buy! I'm going to buy everything!'"

"Did they lock him up?"

"Lock him? I should say not. Everybody started taking off their clothes, too. They figured Thompson knew something they didn't."

"Pretty soon we were all dancing in the street. The big guys from the mutual funds, the pension trusts and the banks were running around naked screaming at their brokers to buy any stock they could get their hands on."

Panic broke out, and money managers, who were playing gin rummy for a penny a point, were throwing orders for millions of dollars out their windows. The brokers got on their phones to the little guys and told them the big guys were buying. That's all the little guys had to hear, and they started buying, too. I've never seen anything like it."

ART BUCHWALD

"You mean to say because one person went nuts in a steam room the entire financial community went berserk?"

"Right. We always knew that's all it would take. If we could just get one of the big guys to go off his wagon, everyone else would follow suit. Nobody likes to be left behind on Wall Street when someone takes his clothes off and starts buying stocks. When the word got out that Thompson had lost his marbles it started an avalanche of business the likes of which none of us has ever seen."

"Where is Thompson now?" I said.

"Someone threw a blanket around him so he wouldn't catch a cold."

"But doesn't anyone up there know what's going on in Washington now?"

"We don't care what's going on in Washington. We were desperate for action. An investor can't sit on billions of dollars forever — something has to give. If it hadn't been Thompson, it would have been somebody else. Everyone was cracking up from the boredom, but Thompson was the first one to completely flip."

"What's all that noise I hear in the background?"

"Merrill Lynch has just unleashed a thundering herd of cattle on Wall Street, and they're goring everyone in sight."

"Why did they do that?"

"Because Merrill Lynch is bullish on America again."

"It all seems too good to be true," I said. "What happens when Thompson sobers up and decides he wants Glutton Insurance out of the stock market again?"

"Don't ask."

Calmer After Debate

By WALTER R. MEARS

AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — As a political issue, there may be less to the Panama Canal than met the ear during all those weeks of Senate debate and White House lobbying.

The threatened counterattack from the right, to punish at the polls what was done in the Senate, does not appear as formidable now as it once seemed.

It will be months before the proof is in, but the issue looks perishable as the Senate moves on to more mundane matters — like spending, taxes, energy and an array of other issues that hit Americans in the wallet.

They lack the symbolism of the 38-day canal debate, and the drama of the identical 68-32 votes by which the Senate approved companion treaties to yield the waterway to Panama at the end of this century.

But they will have a lot more impact on the average voter, who is likely to remember what he pays in taxes long after he has forgotten the canal controversy.

Fifteen senators who will be running for re-election in November voted in favor of the two canal treaties. Five are Republicans, but only two of them, Clifford P. Case of New Jersey and Edward W. Brooke of Massachusetts face active or likely conservative challenges in primary elections.

The season is early, there could be other contests, and treaty foes probably will try to make an issue of it in the fall.

But at this point, it hardly seems to have the makings of a major conservative uprising. For months, the political pressure from a well-organized opposition has been constant, in the mountains of mail, the incessant telephone calls from constituents. But converting that into a durable campaign issue will not be an easy task.

Indeed, one of the most vehement treaty opponents, Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina, may have as much political trouble on his hands as anyone who voted for the pacts. Helms could have a difficult re-election campaign, and his likely Democratic challenger favored the treaties.

The canal was a fine issue for the Senate, tailored for

THE GALLUP POLL

Public Wants Tax Credit

By George Gallup

PRINCETON, N.J. — As Congress debates how to come to the aid of financially strapped parents of college students, the American people have added their voice to the debate.

By a 51-to-34 per cent margin, the public favors income tax credits rather than an expanded financial aid program to help middle-income families pay for college expenses.

Basically, the question before Congress is whether to pass an administration-backed bill that would provide expanded financial aid under a variety of programs or to allow tax credits for all parents of students in college or post-secondary vocational schools.

People interviewed in the nationwide survey who have a college educational background are more likely to favor the tax credit idea (57 per cent) than are people whose education ended at either the high school (48 per cent) or grade school (45 per cent) level.

A similar pattern is found when the results are analyzed by annual family income. People in the highest income bracket are more likely to favor tax credits over expanded financial aid (60 per cent) than are those in the lowest income category (41 per cent).

Parents lean more to the tax credit proposal (54 per cent) than do non-parents (48 per cent).

Congressional Alternatives

Financial aid for students from middle-income families is an issue that has assumed new urgency in recent years. Middle-income parents have found that inflation has made it more and more difficult to finance a college education for their children — a comparative luxury which has become increasingly available only to students from lower-income families, because they are most likely to receive the available financial aid, and those from upper-income families who don't need the aid.

The President has said he would veto any tax credit legislation because it would be too costly.

Although the bill to liberalize financial aid through such programs as educational grants, college work-study jobs and guaranteed student loans is the one currently before Congress, there are proposals being formulated in both Houses that would allow tax credits of up to $250 per student this year. Under the Senate version, credits would be increased to $500 in 1980 and expanded to include elementary and secondary students.

A tax credit is money subtracted directly from the amount of money owed to the government as opposed to a tax deduction which is subtracted from the total income of the taxpayer on which taxes must be paid.

Here is the question asked and the results by key demographic groups:

"Congress is now discussing ways to increase financial aid to college students. One plan would increase tuition aid and expand existing student loan programs for students from middle-income families.

"The other plan would provide tax credits which would enable parents of students to deduct the amount of the credit from their tax bill.

"Which would you prefer, the plan which would increase tuition aid and student loans or the plan which would provide tax credits for parents of students?"

	Tuition Tax Credits Vs. Expanded Financial Aid Programs
	Tax Credit	Tuition Aid	Don't Know
NATIONAL	51%	34%	15%
College	57	35	8
High school	48	34	18
Grade school	45	35	20
$20,000 and more	60	34	6
$15,000-$19,999	55	36	9
$10,000-$14,999	53	30	17
Less than $10,000	41	40	19
Parents	54	34	12
Non-parents	48	35	17

The results reported today are based on telephone interviews with 1,011 adults, 18 and older, conducted in more than 300 scientifically selected localities during the period March 20-April 3.

Strength For Today Proposing Candy, Snack Rules

PERFECT WORLD?

An English admiral said to a chaplain during World War II, "If I had a captain in my fleet who let his ship get into as bad order as God Almighty appears to have let the world get into, I'd sack him right off."

Probably many people have wondered why God has not made a perfect world, since as creator He obviously can do so. No one, of course, knows the answer to ultimate questions of this kind, but perhaps the reason is that if God created perfect beings on this earth who followed His will in every particular, they would not be humans. They would simply be automatons, creatures without will or personality, driven by a force outside themselves. They would not even be good, or moral, because true goodness and morality require a choice of alternatives.

God appears to be preparing souls with whom He can fellowship through eternity. Built as we are, the only way this can be done is by allowing us to have freedom of choice. But as long as this freedom exists, there will be many mistakes and much suffering.

WASHINGTON (AP) — School cafeterias would have to delay selling candy, chewing gum, soft drinks and other snacks until all meals for the day have been served if a new Agriculture Department proposal is adopted.

"We are proposing to prohibit the sale of these foods because we believe they have contributed to a decline in the consumption of nutritious foods in school and to reduced participation in the school lunch and breakfast programs," Assistant Secretary Carol Foreman said today in a speech prepared for the Newspaper Food Editors and Writers Association in San Jose, Calif.

In general, the foods that would be prohibited from sale before the final meal include candy, soda drinks, frozen desserts and chewing gum.

The proposal is aimed at eliminating the sale of sweets that are not part of the regular school cafeteria menus for breakfast or lunch. The department administrators all child nutrition programs, including school lunches and breakfasts. About 25 million pupils are served daily under the school lunch program.

Walter Reed, director of public relations for the National Automatic Merchandising Association, said in an interview from Chicago that "we have no interest" in competing with schools which serve meals to children.

He said the industry is often "wrongfully accused" of enticing children to gorge themselves on snack food while ignoring or eating only part of their cafeteria meals.

Reed said a 1975 association survey of schools in 10 states showed that vending machines provided an average of 3.5 candy bars and 3 soft drinks per student each month. He said it was "a complete myth" that children rely heavily on vending machine candy and other snacks at the expense of school meals.

Congress last November gave the Agriculture Department authority to prohibit the sale of food items in schools which the department "determines are of little nutritional value."

Bringing Religion To Alaska's Bush

By WARD SIMS
Associated Press Writer
FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — A program envisioned by an Episcopal priest from New Jersey is taking theological education and training into Alaska's bush villages.

The Episcopal Diocese of Alaska's Network program is the brainchild of the Rev. David Keller, who was introduced to Alaska bush-style religion as a seminary student in 1959.

A special service of recognition for Mary Boyd (Tig) Sugg will be held at the First Presbyterian Church here Sunday morning.

Ms. Sugg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. Harding Sugg of Greenville, has recently become a candidate for the ministry in the Presbyterian Church in the United States.

At the spring meeting of Albemarle Presbytery held at the Neuse Forest Presbyterian Church, New Bern, Ms. Sugg was received as a candidate for the ministry, the first woman candidate from this presbytery.

At the present time, she is a student at Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, Va. Following the service of recognition at 11 a.m., there will be a covered-dish picnic on the grounds in celebration for the new candidate.

Dr. J. White Iddings will be the pulpit guest at Our Redeemer Lutheran Church at the 11 a.m. worship service Sunday.

Dr. Iddings is a representative of Leinor-Rhine College, Hickory, and has been a long-time member of its Board of Trustees. He is a retired Lutheran clergyman, having served churches in Concord, Granite Quarry, Asheville and Albemarle before becoming the Lutheran Institutional Chaplain to the Durham area, a position from which he retired in 1977.

After the service, Dr. and Mrs. Iddings will be the guests of the congregation at a covered-dish luncheon on the church grounds.

R. Graham Nahouse, pastor of the church, invites the public to attend.

A series of revival services will begin at the Meadowbrook Pentecostal Holiness Church Monday night and continue through Sunday night, April 30.

The guest evangelist will be the Rev. Lotis Joyner, pastor of the Hopewell Pentecostal Holiness Church. Services will begin at 7:30 and special singing will be held.

The pastor, Rev. G. A. Casper invites the public to attend.

Elder Michael Johnson will give the services on Sunday, April 28 at 7 p.m. at St. Rose's Disciples of Christ Church.

Elder Johnson is being sponsored by Catherine Barrette.

FIRST ANNIVERSARY
The Antioch Holiness Church of Bell Arthur will begin celebrating its first anniversary on Monday, May 1. There will be different speakers nightly.

SUNDAY SERVICES
GRIMESLAND — Mike Berry will be singing at the Proctor Memorial Christian Church Sunday at 7:30 p.m.

The public is invited to attend.

The program is dedicated to supporting ministry of both clergy and laity, as well as providing on-the-job experience in the ministry.

Correspondence courses provided through the program range from church administration to Bible study. There also are workshops and seminars.

"This program is designed especially for people whose jobs and family responsibilities make it impossible for them to go away to seminary or Bible school," Keller said. "We try to reach wherever people desire theological education."

"Because Network's students are learning at home, they are able to use what they are learning right away through practical experience in home, congregation and community."

With a budget of about $58,500 a year — including $5,000 contributed by the congregations and people it serves — the program is reaching into 12 villages along the Arctic coast and the Yukon River, as well as Fairbanks. More than 300 persons are actively involved.

"We would like very much to expand our operations, but there are staff limitations at the present time," said Keller, a 40-year-old native of New York City who was reared in the Morristown-Dover area of New Jersey.

Among the instructional aids being used in the program is a 20-lesson course which Keller is developing as part of his work toward a doctoral degree from New York University.

Keller said he has tried to develop the course so the people of Alaska's differing cultures — including Indian, Aleut and Eskimo — can study at home and apply their learning in their own cultural situations.

He returned to Alaska — to Shageluk — the following summer and remained at St. Luke's Mission as the priest-in-charge until 1968.

It was while he was at Shageluk that he conceived the idea of Network. He remembers that there were people in the village of 175 who wanted to serve God but had no way to further their education.

"My dream of Network goes beyond the Episcopal Church," Keller said. "I hope someday it can serve all the people of Alaska."

Keller first came to Alaska in 1959 to head the Episcopal mission at the Athabascan Indian village of Minto, 50 miles west of Fairbanks, for the summer. He had just completed his first year at General Theological Seminary in New York City. He had never before been west of the Mississippi River.

Arrest Duo For Drug Violation

Greenville Police early this morning arrested two men on drug law violation charges following an incident on Greene Springs Park Road.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Byron Carter Smith, 22 of Route 1, Bethel and Jerry Dale Sherrill, 29 of Route 1, Stokes, were charged with possession of MDA.

Cannon said the pair was charged with the drug law violation after the car in which they were riding was stopped about 1:35 a.m. for a traffic violation.

He noted that Smith, the driver of the car, was charged with exceeding a safe speed and driving with an expired registration plate.

The chief said officers found three packets of MDA — about 3.5 grams of pinkish powder — in the vehicle.

Street value of the illegal drug was set at $500.

Both men were placed under $5,000 bond each on the drug charge. Smith was also placed under a $200 bond on the traffic charges.

Cannon noted that the car, allegedly purchased by Smith yesterday, was impounded.

Two Collisions In Early Hours Today

More than $4,000 damage resulted from two collisions investigated by Greenville Police early today.

Police reported Willie Ray Clemmons of 1406 Myrtle Avenue was charged with leaving the scene of an accident following investigation of a 2 a.m. mishap on Pitt Street, 200 feet South of the Elks Street intersection.

Officers said the Clemmons car collided with a utility pole, causing $2,000 damage to the car and $75 damage to the pole.

David Jerome Guillems of Goldsboro was charged with driving under the influence, careless and reckless driving and transporting liquor with the seal broken, following investigation of a 1:30 a.m. mishap in a parking lot at the intersection of Third and Reade Streets.

Police said the Guillems car struck a parked truck and careened off the truck and into another parked car, which in turn struck a stationwagon.

The Guillems car then rolled backward into still another car and a utility pole.

Police identified the owners of the other vehicles and the damage to them as: James H. Vaughn of Greenville, $300; Thomas Rhea Davis, Hampton, Va., $700; Alton N. Woolard, Route 1, Bath, $900; and Hal Humrickhouse, 302B Eastbrook Apts., $100. Guillems was placed under $750 bond.

Club Organized By First Year Group

ECU News Bureau

First-year students at the East Carolina University School of Medicine have organized an ECU Family Practice Club to get a better understanding of the specialty that is the foundation of the medical school.

Sixteen of the 28 students in the class are charter members of the club, which is affiliated with the North Carolina

Academy of Family Practice and the American Academy of Family Physicians.

"The purpose of the club is to fill in the gaps left by textbooks and get a more meaningful understanding of family medicine," says Sigsbee Duck, president of the club. "We also think it will be a good organization for attracting future medical students into the specialty."

The club's adviser is Dr. Jack Wilkerson, a Greenville family practitioner who is chairman of the Committee on Student and Medical School Affairs for the North Carolina Academy of Family Practice.

Officers for the new organizations are, in addition to Duck, Mike Tripp, vice president; Manjun Sharma, secretary; Frances Doyle, Greenville treasurer; and Linda Robertson, program coordinator.

Dr. James G. Jones, chairman of the Department of Family Medicine, is club sponsor.

Recognition For Faculty

ECU News Bureau

A certificate of recognition has been presented the East Carolina University health education faculty by the N. C. Steering Committee for a Preventive Dental Health Program.

The certificate was presented on behalf of the committee by Dr. Richard Murphy, committee member, at a recent faculty meeting of the ECU Department of Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Safety.

Recognition was made because of the faculty's "special service to the state's preventive dental health program," said Murphy.

"The faculty in ECU's health education section has been presenting preventive dental health information to each senior class of elementary education students at ECU for the past three years," he noted.

"The results are already apparent to those who are working in the schools of eastern North Carolina and have come in contact with teachers who have received the instructions provided by the ECU health education faculty."

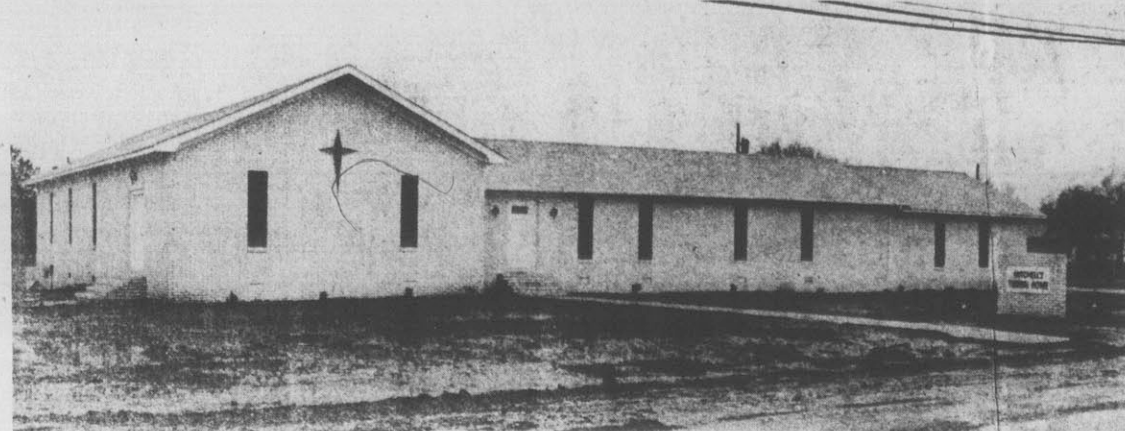

Dismiss Charges Against Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A committee of reporters has cleared syndicated columnist James J. Kilpatrick of accusations that he violated rules prohibiting members of the congressional press gallery from lobbying or promotional work.

The Standing Committee of Correspondents dismissed the allegations against Kilpatrick at a meeting April 13. Two other reporters leveled the charges against the columnist for his writing a monthly column for a U.S. Chamber of Commerce publication and for accepting a $3,000 lecture fee to address a Society of Real Estate Appraisers convention.

According to Mitchell, the new funeral facility, located at 603 N. Mills Street, has a chapel with a seating capacity of 310 and numerous other rooms to serve the families of the deceased.

The building is completely air conditioned and heated, he said. The dedication activities will include guest speakers, Mitchell reported, with Dr. W. L. Jones delivering the dedicatory address.

Gospel singing is also planned and refreshments will be served on the grounds, it was pointed out.

Mitchell also owns and operates Mitchell's Funeral Home in La Grange.

oratory, high-level lobbying and last-minute compromise. One senator called the long debate a waste of time.

Much of it probably was. There were days of discussion about things that almost certainly won't happen. And the artfully worded compromise that finally assured two-thirds approval is not much more than a word game.

Denies Doctors Are Responsible

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — An official of the state Medical Society says doctors are not responsible for spiraling inflation in medical costs.

Dr. Assad Meymandi, a member of the society's communications committee, was responding to recent published reports that doctor fees have been growing faster than the general inflation rate.

Meymandi said in a written statement that the society's own calculations show that fees of accountants, attorneys, garbage collectors and street cleaners have been growing faster than those of physicians.

He blamed rising medical costs instead on government interference in health care, the development of expensive new surgical techniques and "the basic devotion of the American culture to preservation of life at any cost."

"The practice of medicine has dealt a devastating inflationary blow to the cost of health care," Meymandi said. "The HEW cost of administering a health care dollar is approaching 49 cents. The amount of sheer waste by HEW, in 1977, conducted by the federal government's own auditors, was over $6.6 billion."

Meymandi said the national average income for a physician is $54,000 for a 60-hour week, or $36,000 for a 40-hour week. He compared the physician's income with that of a pilot, whom he said makes $60,000 to $75,000 for an 18-hour week.

Meymandi defended the amount of income a physician receives, saying, "A physician with at least nine years of post high school education, with enormous burdens of studying, examination and $5,000 to $10,000 a year medical school tuition is devoted to the betterment of his or her patients and community."

Meymandi said the state Medical Society and its constituent county medical societies "are prepared to conduct scholarly and factual dialogue with the communities."

Study Grant To Simpson

SIMPSON — The second of three public meetings on a proposed Community Development grant for Simpson was held Wednesday night.

The three meetings, the last of which will be held Apr. 26 at 8 p.m., are being held to get citizen input into this activity. During the second meeting, it was verified that local citizenry feels that housing is the biggest need of the Simpson community and that rehabilitation of existing housing is probably the best route to take. The deadline for applying for HUD Community Development Single Purpose funds is May 15.

A draft of a preapplication will be submitted at the Apr. 26 meeting by John Crew of the N. C. Department of Natural and Economic Resources, who is working with the town officials. Mayor John McDonald said it is important that as many citizens as possible participate in the upcoming meeting.

Seven Accidents On Thursday Comic Book Ads Under New Review By FTC

More than $7,000 property damage resulted from a series of seven traffic mishaps investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Heaviest damage resulted from a 2:04 p.m. collision in the 1500 block of East Fourth Street, officers said, when cars driven by Mary Scandale of 402 South Eastern St. and Margaret Bixler of 302 Maple St. collided, injuring both drivers.

Officers, who charged Mrs. Bixler with failing to stop for a stop sign, estimated damage at $1,800 to the Scandale car, and $2,000 to the Bixler vehicle.

Paul Edward Nordsiek of 1006 Chestnut St. was charged with driving under the influence after his car collided with a utility pole on Ninth Street, 30 feet West of the Cotanche Street intersection about 11:45 p.m.

Officers set damage to the car at $500 and placed damage to the pole at $150.

Devaghn Parker of Baltimore, Md., was charged with leaving his vehicle unattended following investigation of a 7 p.m. mishap on 14th Street near the Sixth Street intersection.

Police reported Parker stopped his car on the street and got out of the vehicle, leaving the car engine running.

The Parker car rolled backward, striking a pedestrian,

Jimmy Ray Jones of 1210B Chestnut St., then colliding with a house at 519 West 14th St.

Officers, who reported Jones was injured, estimated damage, at $250 to the car and $500 to the home.

A car driven by William Raymond Moore of 201 South Bubba La., and truck operated by Thomas Lincoln Doiron of High Point collided about 7:30 p.m. at the intersection of Tenth Street and Greenville Boulevard, causing an estimated $550 damage to the Moore car.

No damage resulted to the Doiron truck.

A 12:04 p.m. collision at the intersection of Greenville and Arlington Boulevards involved cars driven by Richard Thompson Commander Jr. of 101 Martinsborough Rd., and Holly Kathryn Chapman of Charlotte.

Police set damage at $350 to the Commander car and $50 to the Chapman auto.

Mack Erastus Fleming of Route 1, Stokes was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 2:24 p.m. collision on Beech Street, 50 feet South of the Fourth Street intersection.

Officers reported the Fleming car collided with a truck driven by Norman Hilton Boyd of 2607 East Third St., causing an estimated $175 damage to the truck and $300 damage to the Fleming car.

A 10:40 p.m. mishap on Reade Street, 35 feet South of the Fifth Street intersection involved cars driven by Fred Davis Collins III of Charlotte and James Clay Sullivan of 105 North Harding St.

Officers, who charged Collins with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety, set damage at $300 to the Collins car and $75 to the Sullivan vehicle.

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Tired of bullies kicking sand in your face?" asks the ad picturing a skinny chap standing meekly next to his buxom, bikini-clad companion. "Send for our body building kit."

Or.

"Just $1.25 for sea monkeys. Cute. Easy to train. Includes a full year's supply of sea monkey food. Just add water and you have instant life." What you get are two ugly brine shrimp.

Or.

"Just 99 cents for 200 stamps to start your very own valuable collection." You get the stamps. You get another batch each month and bills for $9 or $10 dollars.

Or.

"Amaze your friends when you shake hands. This buzzer will startle them." It probably will.

Comic books are full of these come-ons and the Federal Trade Commission wants to take a closer look at just what young consumers are getting for their money.

Advertisers spend about $66 million a year to plug their wares in comics. And it's no wonder, says the commission's William Exleben:

"Between the ages of 5 and 15 there are 40 million potential buyers. Independent figures show that 82 percent to 92 percent of all children between the ages of 7 and 11 read comic books.

"And our estimates indicate that for every $1 spent on comic book ads, there are $3 in sales. That amounts to a $200 million product industry each year," Exleben said.

He said the commission worries especially about a child's first contact with the "free enterprise system."

"Children can become very disillusioned with the system and legitimate business should be very concerned," Exleben said in a telephone interview.

He related a story told by a fellow worker whose daughter had saved for weeks to amass the 95 cents called for by a comic book ad. The pitch was for a machine that would turn plain paper into dollar bills.

"It arrived and the girl put the paper in, turned the crank and nothing happened. She hadn't seen the fine print about putting your own dollar in first, then the plain paper. It (the ad) admitted there was nothing magic involved," Exleben said.

The big problem, with many of the schemes, he said, is they are run from post office boxes.

"You can chase them all over the country just to find them operating somewhere else shortly."

He said his Seattle regional office will conduct the investigation over the next 18 months and thinks it may have recommendations for the FTC that will "make sure kids are getting a fair shake."

Probe Fiery Cross Cases

HOPE MILLS, N.C. (AP) — The burning of crosses in two Hope Mills officials' yards has prompted a State Bureau of Investigation probe of the incidents.

The crosses were burned at the homes of town Mayor Fulton West and Police Chief Robert A. Hall following a town board meeting, at which Commissioner Iris Barbour left angrily after talking of "harrasment" and "obscene" calls.

At the board meeting, West appointed Mark Lancaster police commissioner after removing Mrs. Barbour from the post. The action stemmed from her forbidding town police from eating in local restaurants.

Hall said he called in the SBI because "the thing revolves around the mayor, me and Commissioner Barbour, and I thought maybe I should stay out of it."

In commenting on the cross burnings, Mrs. Barbour said, "I deplore violence of any kind, and to me that is an act of violence."

Under state law, it is a felony punishable by up to five years in prison to burn a cross with the intent of intimidating a person. Another provision of the law makes it a misdemeanor to burn a cross without permission on the property of another.

$200,000 Trust Is Transferred

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — A Forsyth County su-

Stumped By Explosions

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Authorities say they are stumped by the explosions of three pipe bombs in Charlotte during the past week.

No one was injured in any of the blasts.

"It looks like we are going to have to rely a lot on informants to solve these cases," police Maj. R.C. Eidson said.

"We have no eyewitnesses," he added. "Other than the fact that all three involved pipe bombs, we can't connect the incidents."

The latest blast occurred Monday afternoon under a 1978 Thunderbird parked in a downtown parking lot. It shattered both side windows and the windshield, bent a mirror and drove hot fragments through the door and into the roof lining.

"Until I found out there had been other explosions, I thought someone may have had something against me," said Skee Robin James, 22 a Duke Power Co. file clerk who owned the car. "But if anyone I know was that mad at me, they'd let me know."

A bomb went off under a trash can outside Charlotte Memorial Hospital last Friday, hurling the can two stories into the air. The hospital was evacuated following a bomb threat phoned several hours later, but no explosive was found.

Another pipe bomb exploded in a telephone booth in the downtown area Sunday afternoon.

The fund was established in 1941 by Capt. James C. Carter Sr. of Lenoir to benefit the Lenoir High School band. Harper stipulated that the money would go to the college if the high school band were discontinued.

The Lenoir Administrative Unit, which controlled the city schools, merged with the Caldwell County schools in 1974 and Lenoir High School was phased out at that time.

The superior court ruling Thursday awarding the fund to Davidson provided that the money should be used for the college's music department if possible. Harper requested that it be earmarked for instruction in symphonic and orchestral instruments and related performing groups.

"Capt. Harper has been a devoted alumnus who has taken special satisfaction in seeing music at Davidson grow over the years," said Dr. Samuel Spencer, president of Davidson.

"He has given a very valuable service to the young people of Lenoir and North Carolina with his trust fund."

Harper organized the Lenoir High band in 1924 and served as its director until his retirement 34 years later at age 65.

Known as the father of high school bands in North Carolina, he is generally credited with giving a boost to bands at other schools by his success at Lenoir.

Bands directed by Harper gave a number of concerts in Washington and marched in several gubernatorial inauguration parades in Raleigh.

Pitt Tobacco Beds Said Below Par

The condition of Pitt County tobacco beds is below par this year, according to Gaylon Ambrose, associate agricultural extension agent, who said the "long winter, low temperatures, and frequent rains delayed plant bed preparation and seeding activities."

Ambrose explained that the tobacco seeds germinated over a longer period of time and as a result, many beds were spotted and filled in later. Many beds are in poor condition, he added.

The agent pointed out that while some Pitt growers will have ample supplies of plants, others will not have enough to transplant their crop from their own beds.

The Extension Service, according to Ambrose, is asking growers to participate in a county-wide program called "Operation Transplant," a "help your neighbor program designed to share any surplus of tobacco plants that might be available."

He asked tobacco growers who

Protest Use

EUREKA, Calif. (AP) — Several Indian tribes are protesting the spraying of plant-killing chemicals on forests near California's largest Indian reservation because, they say, the practice destroys brush trees and weeds important to their way of life.

Timber companies use a herbicide to kill vegetation that interferes with the growth of commercially valuable trees. One of the herbicide's victims is the tan oak, used in making acorn soup, which has been part of the Indians' diet for centuries, said Peter Jackson, a member of the Hoopa Valley Tribal Council.

Weeds, bats, seabirds, echoes, memories—and neglect—hold sway on Ellis Island as it drowns amid the turmoil of New York harbor. But between 1897, when its Main Building went up, and 1954, it throbbed with the hopes and anxieties of the 16 million immigrants who arrived at this entry point to the New World and the new life whose promise had drawn them. After 1954, when the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service moved its regional office to Manhattan, Ellis Island was abandoned. Its buildings are slowly crumbling, its sea wall is weakening. But tourists on Liberty Island nearby often ask if they can also see Ellis—technically part of Liberty Island National Park—and now a movement is under way to restore the lonely landmark and open Ellis up to visitors.

Low readings included 35 at Asheville, 37 at Charlotte and Raleigh, and 38 at Greensboro and Hickory. Temperatures elsewhere ranged in the low to mid 40s.
The forecast called for considerable cloudiness with a chance of mixed rain and snow in the northern mountains today, while over the rest of the state it was expected to be breezy and cool, with temperatures getting no higher than the 60s.
Frost warnings have been issued for the central and southwest mountains tonight with temperatures expected to range from the upper 20s in the northern mountains to the low and middle 40s on the Outer Banks.
The weekend is expected to be generally cool and the only chance of rain will develop late Sunday. High temperatures will be in the 60s.

Dayan Will Try Salvage Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan will attempt to rescue the stalled Middle East peace negotiations next week during a visit to Washington.
The State Department confirmed on Thursday that Dayan would visit Washington for consultation with U.S. officials. The department said the visit will curtail mediation efforts now underway by U.S. Ambassador Alfred Atherton, who was to arrive in Egypt today.

Life In Galaxy Estimates Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — There may be more stars in the Milky Way galaxy with life supporting planets encircling them than previously had been believed, two astronomers say.
Helmut A. Abt and a research assistant, Saul G. Levy, estimate that about 10 percent of the galaxy's 100 billion stars could have planets orbiting them. And, they say, the more planets there are, the higher the chances are that some might be inhabitable.
The two scientists are from the Kitt Peak National Observatory in Arizona.

Readjusting The 'Poverty Level'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Taking into account the rising cost of living, the Labor Department is readjusting the national poverty level.
The department says from now on a non-farm family of four with an income of $6,200 is considered as living in poverty. The figure was $5,850 a year ago. The poverty level for a farm family has been increased from $4,980 to $5,270.

By STEELE HOLMAN Associated Press Writer COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — This city's "stocking strangler," taking his seventh victim in seven months, spread terror to a new neighborhood and intensified pressure on a task force assigned to catch the killer.
A widowed first grade teacher, Janet T. Cofer, 61, was found strangled Thursday in her home about three miles from the Wynnton Road area where six elderly women have been strangled since Sept. 16, 1977.

Columbus Police Chief Curtis McClung said the style of the slaying left investigators convinced that Mrs. Cofer's killer is the strangler they have sought for seven months.
Coroner J. Donald Kilgore said the latest victim, strangled with a stocking, died at about 4:30 a.m. Thursday. It was not immediately known whether Mrs. Cofer had been sexually assaulted.
The first four victims were strangled with stockings, the fifth with a cord and the sixth with a scarf. Investigators have

New Hampshire Ready For Big Celebration

By ADOLPHE V. BERNOTAS Associated Press Writer CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Tonight, New Hampshire residents start a long weekend to celebrate a holiday born in 1681 — with a merriment that would have sent shivers down the dour consciences of their ancestors.
What they are remembering is the death of a colonial official. Had he lived, Monday would be as blue in New Hampshire as anywhere else. Instead it has become Fast Day — for anything but fasting.

Fast Days in the times of the early settlers were not holidays at all. Culprits caught at "labour, business or work of their ordinary calling," were fined 10 shillings. Church attendance was mandatory. Sport and recreation were forbidden.
Ah, but times change.
On Monday, public education and "work of the ordinary calling" will still take a licking — schools, state offices and many businesses will be closed for Fast Day — but extravagance and intemperance will be more than likely.

So much alive, in fact, that as many as three fast days used to be observed in New Hampshire.
But that bit of extravagance proved too much. It came to an end in 1949, when the Legislature decided the fourth Monday in April would be sufficient as a day to do anything but fast.

Ervin Sees Wasted Year

MORGANTON, N.C. (AP) — Former Sen. Sam Ervin Jr. says the Panama Canal treaties amount to another foreign aid giveaway by the United States.

The retired senator said the Senate has "wasted all this year" debating the treaties when it should have been working on reforming the federal bureaucracy or fighting inflation.
"This is part of a very foolish foreign policy we've been pursuing since the end of World War II," Ervin said when asked about the treaties during an interview.
"This treaty is just another species of foreign aid."

North Carolina's two senators cast opposing votes on the treaties, with Democrat Robert Morgan favoring ratification and Republican Jesse Helms helping lead the opposition.

Ervin said he doesn't know what effect Morgan's position on the treaties, which won final approval Tuesday, will have on his chances for re-election in two years but added, "I don't know many people in North Carolina who wanted to give the canal away."
He said the United States should stand up to criticism from foreign nations. "If somebody says 'Boo,' the State Department jumps," Ervin said.

Win Science Meet Award

ECU News Bureau
A research project conducted by five East Carolina University geology students won an award for third place in the physical science division at the annual meeting of the North Carolina Academy of Science held in Winston-Salem.

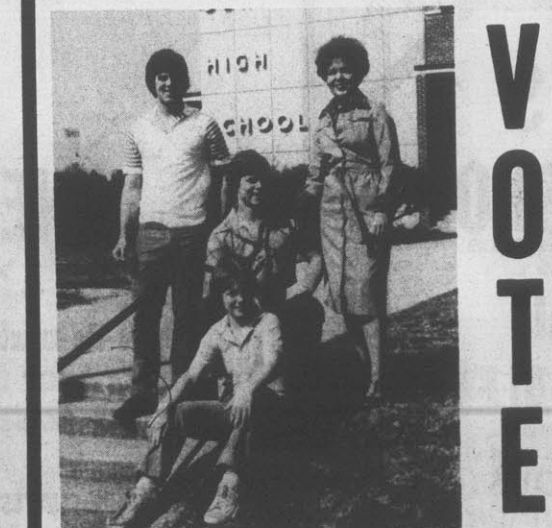

The project, "A Mineralogical Study of the Neverson Quarry - Wilson County, N. C.," was conducted by Michael Barwick of Warsaw, Michael Sutton of Ayden, Alain Isnard of Greensboro and Bruce and Brian Gray of Greenville.
Using slides and a written presentation before the NCAS group and a panel of judges, the students discussed the details of their research. They reported that they had located a total of 30 species of minerals in the quarry.
Dr. Pei-lin Tien, a professor of geology at ECU, served as their faculty advisor.

TO ABOLISH PENALTY
MADRID, Spain (AP) — The Spanish government has sent Parliament a bill to abolish the death penalty, which was abolished by the Republican government in 1931 and restored by dictator Francisco Franco in 1939.

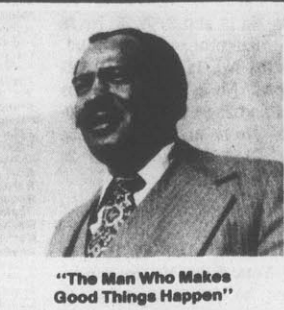

said the victim had turned down an invitation to move in with her because one of her two sons often stayed overnight.
Dr. William H. Hinson, pastor of the church, said "a kind of numbness" had fallen over the community after her death.
Police extended patrols to the Dimon Head area where Mrs. Cofer lived. A special patrol had focused on the Wynnton Road district after the earlier killings.
But some of Mrs. Cofer's neighbors remained frightened or angry that the killer remained at large.
"I'm just going to have to sell my house," Mrs. Rebecca McRae said. "With Janet gone in this terrible way I can't stay here any longer."
A woman who asked not to be identified said, "I don't understand why they haven't found him. I think it is the government dragging their feet."

A task force of investigators from the Columbus police, the Georgia Bureau of Investigation and the state crime lab was beefed up Thursday afternoon. Some state agents had been taken off the case a month ago for lack of solid leads to pursue.
Asked in an interview if the new slaying in a different neighborhood might help break open the case, McClung said, "It is too early to say if there is anything significant in this change in pattern.

"We don't know what may have caused him to change his location. Your victim selection remains very constant. We don't know what factor may have entered in."
All seven of the strangling victims were white, but two black women were killed in another case in which letters to police and a local newspaper threatened their deaths unless police caught the strangler.
The four letters, signed "Chairman of the Forces of Evil," threatened to kill a black woman every 30 days until the strangler was caught. After telephoned tips, police found the beaten bodies of the two black women threatened by name in the letters.
Spec. 4 William Henry Hance, a black soldier stationed at Fort Benning, which adjoins Columbus to the south and west, was arrested this month and indicted on charges of killing one of the two women and of attempted extortion. Police said one of the "Forces of Evil" letters included a demand for money.
Hance is being held without bond pending trial.
Investigators said they saw no connection — other than the letters — between the stranglings and the "Forces of Evil" killings.

The newspaper quoted several unnamed officers last weekend as saying their superiors had pressured them to void traffic citations.

Rampants Slip Past Gryphons By 4-3

Brewers Get Taste Of Their Own Medicine As Red Sox Romp

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

When the Milwaukee Brewers opened the season by battering Baltimore for 40 runs in three games, Manager George Bamberger, who spent 10 seasons in an Orioles uniform, cracked that "things could be worse. I could still be their pitching coach."

Bamberger was singing a different tune Thursday after the Brewers received a taste of their own medicine.

"They wiped us out and I just want to get out of here," he said after the Boston Red Sox bombed the Brewers 10-4 with a 16-hit attack and scored 26 runs in sweeping a three-game series at Fenway Park. "They're the best hitting team in the league," Bamberger added.

That was the only American League game played since New York-Toronto and Detroit-Cleveland were rained out. In the National League, the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated the Houston Astros 5-1 and the San Diego Padres blanked the Atlanta Braves 2-0 while St. Louis-Pittsburgh and Montreal-Chicago were washed out.

Butch Hobson, called "the best No. 9 hitter in baseball" by Texas Manager Billy Hunter, belted a three-run homer and Fred Lynn, who had four hits, lined a two-run shot in the third as the Red Sox breezed to their seventh consecutive victory and a 6-0 home record behind Bill Lee's seven-hitter.

"Hobson and Lynn certainly are hitting the ball, but so is everybody," said Manager Don Zimmer. "It doesn't surprise me in the least. I knew we could hit the ball. Seeing Lynn get four hits, Butch a long homer, Carlton Fisk and Jerry Remy get three hits apiece and others drill the ball doesn't surprise me.

Virtually overlooked was Carl Yastrzemski's 2,735th career hit, a fourth-inning double that moved him into a tie with Goose Goslin for 32nd place on baseball's all-time hit parade. With 936 extra-base hits, Yaz is 20th, two behind Eddie Mathews.

Dodgers 5, Astros 1

Steve Yeager's three-run double broke a tie as Los Angeles scored four times in the sixth inning and snapped Houston's four-game winning streak behind Doug Rau's eight-hit pitching.

Mike Shank slapped a baseball past the diving Rocky Mount shortstop yesterday, driving in a game-ending run and giving Rose High School's Rampants a 4-3 win over the Gryphons.

The Rampants, giving away all three of the runs against them, struggled back from behind once, and then had to break the tie in the bottom of the seventh inning with Shank's single, which scored Ronnie Chapman.

"We gave them their runs," Coach Ronald Vincent said. "This rain has kept us from getting out and working, and we're not at our sharpest, and that may be the reason."

Vincent heaped praise on pitcher Mike Williams, who picked up his fifth win against one loss this season. He gave up six hits, and only one of the runs against him was earned. He walked one, hit one, and struck out 12.

"Mike really threw the ball well. But then everyone is playing good ball for us now. Shank has been up and down and was due to come up with a hit like this."

Vincent rated the contest a "very key game" for the Rampants, keeping them hot on the heels of Division I leading Wilson. The Rampants are now 9-3 overall and 4-2 against league competition.

The Rampants got the scoring going in the first inning, getting one run. Chapman walked and moved up on a passed ball. He took third when Shank arrived on a fielder's choice, as the throw to third was late. Jeff Aldridge then singled Chapman in.

Rocky Mount came back with a couple of unearned runs in the second. With one out, Jake Lassiter was hit by a pitch. Kevin Bunn singled, but was cut down at second on Linwood Silver's grounder to short. Silver took off for second in an attempt to start a double steal, but Lassiter was caught off third and trapped in a rundown. But an overthrow put the ball into left field, and allowed Lassiter and Silver, who had kept running, to both score. That put Rocky Mount ahead, 2-1.

The Rampants tied it up with one in the third. Chapman opened up with a single and moved all the way to third on an infield out. He scored when Greg Lee grounded to second.

Rose regained the lead in the fifth with a run. Will Sanderson walked and was sacrificed up. Chapman was hit by a pitch, but was forced at second on Shank's grounder.

Shank then took off for second, and the Gryphon pitcher, whirling to try and pick him off, balked, allowing Sanderson to come in with the go-ahead run.

Rocky Mount got back into the game in the sixth. Dee Whitley walked and stole second, moving to third on the second out of the inning.

Bill Merrifield then hit a slow roller down a third base line that appeared headed for foul territory, but Williams picked it up just inches short of the chalk, then slipped and fell and was unable to make a play, allowing Whitley to score.

Rose then pushed over the winning run in the seventh. With one down, Chapman beat out a bunt down the first base line. He stole second, and Shank delivered the hit past the Gryphon infield to easily score Chapman with the game-ending run.

Rose will play host to Bertie today at 4 p.m. at Guy Smith Stadium.

But it was Hill who provided the biggest show. First, he won the long jump with a leap of 23-1½, then took the 100-yard dash in :10.1. He also won the 440 in a time of :51.8 and finished up with a victory in the 220 with a :21.3 clocking.

Milk & Honey For Gary

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — "This," said Gary Player, "is a tour of milk and honey."
Player wasn't referring solely to the 7-shot rallies that brought him titles in the Masters and Tournament of Champions in his last two starts, nor to the 8-under-par 64 that gave him the first-round lead Thursday in the $200,000 Houston Open.

The 42-year-old South African was talking about the entire American tour.
"It's the greatest in the world," said Player, who annually competes on five continents and has claimed 113 titles worldwide.

"Everything is done to perfection here — the administration, the greens keepers — everything. If you want a ruling, there's a man there to handle it. The courses are prepared better than any place in the world. This is the top of the game."
"Truly, it is a tour of milk and honey."
"It is a thrill to me to play on courses as well prepared as this."

He wasn't alone. The beautifully-conditioned, 6,997-yard Woodlands Country Club layout combined with some ideal playing conditions — a warm, windless Texas spring day — to produce some of the lowest scores of the season.

Trailing Player by a single shot was Australian Bob Shearer, whose 65 marked the best round of his two-season American career. With those two in the lead, it was the 10th time in the last 13 rounds on the American tour that foreign players had led or shared the lead.
PGA champion Lanny Wadkins and Bob Murphy were another shot back at 66. The group at 67, 5 shots under par, included Andy Bean, Randy Erskine, Orville Moody and George Burns, who generally plays well in this event.

Defending titleholder Gene Littler was in a group at 68. Arnold Palmer and Lee Trevino shots 70s. Johnny Miller matched par 72.
Player, bidding to become the first man in two seasons to win three straight events, was followed by his wife and son on his course record-matching romp and has two more of his children with him.
"It makes all the difference in the world, having your family with you," he said. "It's torture playing tournaments all around the world and being away from your family for months at a time."
"The American players really aren't away that much. They can hop on a jet on Sunday night, be home in two hours, be with their families Monday and Tuesday and still get out to the next tournament."
"What a difference it would have made in my career if I'd been able to do that."

With his family watching, he reeled off a string of three birdies beginning on the fifth hole, all on putts in the 12-15 foot range. He holed a 10-footer on the ninth to turn in 31, then got another 10-footer in the cup on the 11th.

Philadelphia Does It To The Knicks Again

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Lonnie Shelton, the rugged forward of the New York Knicks, was asked what it would take for his club to beat the Philadelphia 76ers.

"Maybe we just can't beat them," he said quietly.

Spencer Haywood, another Knicks forward, was not about to give up although his club is one loss away from elimination from the National Basketball Association playoffs.

"A couple of them might get sick," he suggested.

That isn't likely to happen before Sunday's fourth game of the best-of-seven quarter-final playoff series, which Philadelphia leads 3-0. A fifth game, if necessary, is listed for next Wednesday in Philadelphia.

If the first three games of the series are any indication, it shouldn't be necessary.

"When it comes to awesome talent, the 76ers have it," said Knicks Coach Willis Reed, whose club played well but was soundly beaten 137-126 Thursday night.

76ers Coach Billy Cunningham said he was giving his club today off.

"After winning three in a row, there's no point in practicing," he reasoned.

The Knicks also will have the day off, during which time Reed will try to devise some way of stopping Philadelphia.

Julius Erving wishes him luck.

"When we play like this, it's just possible that nobody can beat us," Erving said. "I'd sure like to think so."

While Philadelphia and New York are resting, the other six teams contending the NBA title will be in action tonight.

The defending champion Portland Trail Blazers, stung by Seattle 104-95 in their series opener, will try to even their series against the Sonics at Portland; the San Antonio Spurs and Washington Bullets, tied 1-1, will meet at Landover, Md., and the Denver Nuggets, leading 1-0, will host the Milwaukee Bucks.

LIKES ADVERSITY

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Wayne Kreklow, a junior star on the Drake basketball team, thrives on adversity. Before the game against Southern Illinois he lost a contact lens in his hotel room and skipped dinner to look for it. Trainer Lonnie Clark found it and Kreklow scored 18 points.

He caught an elbow in the face against Bradley and scored more. For the next game, against Indiana State, his face was so swollen he could barely see out of his right eye. But he poured a career-high 29 points into the basket.

Clemson, Duke Gain Final Field In ACC

By The Associated Press
North Carolina State will face regular-season champion Clemson and defending champ Wake Forest will take on Duke when the Atlantic Coast Conference baseball tournament resumes Saturday at Clemson.

The double-elimination portion of the tournament was scheduled to have begun today, but it was postponed because of poor playing conditions resulting from rain this week.

North Carolina State erupted for five runs in the top of the ninth inning to oust Maryland 7-2 and Duke's Jim Donegan tossed a six-hitter as the Blue Devils edged North Carolina 3-2 in games Thursday afternoon. Wake Forest advanced by blasting Virginia 16-2 Wednesday.

Rightfielder Rich White drove in one run with a double in the ninth inning and leftfielder Tom Crocker added a grand slam home run for North Carolina State.

The Terps jumped to a 2-0 lead in the second inning when third baseman Billy Owens hit a homer and leftfielder Dickie Cann scored from first base on a double by Neal Herrick and a throwing error by Wolfpack centerfielder Roy Dixon.

Second baseman Chuck Harmon's two-run homer for N.C. State tied it at 2-2 in the fourth inning. Donegan, getting his first win in three decisions, walked eight and struck out eight as Duke got its first win in tournament history.

Bill King drove in a pair of runs for the Blue Devils with a sacrifice fly in the sixth inning and a single in the eighth.

The Tar Heels threatened in the bottom of the eighth, advancing runners to second and third with none out. But Donegan struck out J.D. Henderson, retired pinch hitter Kevin Cadell on a short fly and got Lloyd Brewer when shortstop Bob Michael made a diving catch of a sharply hit ball.

NCAA Cage Field May Expand

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The national collegiate basketball tournament may expand from its current 32 entrants to 40 because of problems posed by increased popularity of postseason conference tournaments, Big Ten Commissioner Wayne Duke said Thursday.

"There is speculation that we might expand the tournament to 40 teams, going back to bying certain teams out of the first round," Duke, also chairman of the National Collegiate Athletic Association Tournament Committee, told the Milwaukee Pen and Ink Club.

The NCAA was widely criticized last month for not inviting several teams which had won 20 or more regular season games to the tournament.

There was further criticism when several teams which were invited were forced to play far from their geographical regions.

Much of the problem stemmed from postseason conference tournaments. Duke said. Several schools with strong teams, notably independent Detroit (24-3), failed to receive NCAA tournament bids this year because priority was given to conference postseason tournament winners.

Regular season conference champions which lost in postseason play also had to be considered because of fine records and strong schedules, Duke said.

"I am concerned with the emergence of postseason conferences," Duke said. "There were 11 postseason tournaments this year, and in eight instances the regular season champion didn't win.

"The postseason tournaments reduce the flexibility of the tournament committee, which is forced to consider teams with less than 20 wins," he said.

He said that trying to keep top independents in their area regionals and separating for regional play two representatives of a given conference resulted in loading up the West Regional with powerhouses Arkansas, Kansas and North Carolina. All three were conference champions which had lost postseason conference meets, but still were invited to the NCAA tournament because of strong overall records and schedules.

Duke said he is opposed to the Big Ten adopting a postseason tournament. Such a move is expected to be voted on at a conference meeting May 1.

Williamston Girls Could Take Northeastern Track Championship

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

WILLIAMSTON — Williamston High School's girls track team is looking to the future, but is also keeping an eye on this year too.

Coach William Matthews has a very young team that is performing well. "I think we might have a chance at winning the (Northeastern) conference title this year," he said. "We have a lot of young girls, but they've been performing well, better than expected."

There are only two seniors on the team, but both of them are doing well. Paula Bennett has the best triple jump distance in the conference, and just this week set a new school mark in the high jump, 5-3. "She's also in a couple of our relay events. She's a good athlete, and has been picked for the Greensboro All-Star Basketball game."

The other senior is Velma Brown, a sprinter. "Most of the girls are freshmen. We have a couple of juniors and a couple of sophomores. If they keep on going like they are, I think we can win the conference next year, and maybe even think about a state title," Matthews said.

Bennett has gone 32 feet, 7 inches in the triple jump, while two freshmen, Michelle Price and Beverly Woolard, jumping for the first time in competition this week, both cleared 29 feet. "That's a great start for them," the coach said.

One of the juniors, Vanessa Brown, also broke a school record this week. She threw the discus 104 feet 4 inches.

While there are only 12 girls on the team, they work hard, according to Matthews, and should be able to press Edenton and Washington for the title in the conference meet next Saturday.

Running down the events, Matthews listed Bennett, Price and Woolard as the top triple jumpers, with Woolard and Price topping the long jumpers.

Vanessa and Cherry Brown lead the discus group, and also handle the shot put.

Bennett, who went to the state meet last year in the high jump, is the best for the Tigers in this event.

Beverly Rawls and Bernadette Speller pace the hurdlers, while Velma Brown and Price take care of the 100-yard dash.

Rawls and Velma Brown run the 220, with Annette Brown and Kim Corey running the 440. Deborah Clemmons and Annie May Mackey run the 880, with Corey in the mile and Sonja Wiggins in the two-mile.

Bennett, Jamie Ore, Velma Brown and Price make up the 440-yard relay team, while Rawls replaces Brown in the 880. Annette Brown, Woolard, Clemmons and Corey are on the mile relay team.

"Edenton may be a little stronger in the conference meet, but I certainly think we can have a shot at it," Matthews said.

Tigerettes Claim Win

ROBERTSONVILLE — Williamston High School spotted Roanoke a run in the first inning, then rallied late in the game for a 5-1 softball victory yesterday.

Roanoke got the lone run in the first frame, then held that until the fifth, sixth, when Williamston came up with two. The Tigerettes added three in the seventh.

Sherri Singleton was the winning pitcher.

JoAnna Lilley, Jean Rodgers, Alisa Robertson and Kristi Rogerson each had two hits for Williamston. No one had more than one for Roanoke.

Williamston is now 5-2 overall, while Roanoke is 5-4. The Tigerettes play at Plymouth today, while Roanoke goes to Elm City on Tuesday.

Chicod In Two Wins

CHICOD — Chicod defeated Ayden in a pair of junior high ballgames yesterday. Chicod won in softball 12-5, and in baseball 6-5.

Annette Manning was the winning softball pitcher. Zinna Harrington hit a home run for Chicod, while Ayden was led at the plate by Derrie Branch, who had two hits.

Billy Bunting hurled the win in the baseball game, which went eight innings. Jeff Cox had three hits for the winners, while Timothy Suggs and Art Rouse had two each for Ayden.

Ingram Charges Hodges Would 'Deal' On Tax Changes With 'Mud-Slinging'

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — U.S. Senate candidate John Ingram accused opponent Luther Hodges of engaging in mud-slinging Thursday as the campaign for the May 2 Democratic primary continued to heat up.

Without referring to him by name, Ingram made a blistering attack on Hodges, who resigned as chairman of the North Carolina National Bank to enter the race, and accused him of trying to buy the election by outspending other candidates.

"The banker candidate, in a desperation move, has launched a mud-slinging attack," Ingram said. "In an effort to divert attention from his wealth and his ties to the big-money banks and insurance companies, he is attempting to throw up a smoke screen by attacking my wife."

The statement apparently referred to a comment Hodges made last week during an interview with The Associated Press. In response to a question, Hodges had said Ingram's personal financial disclosure omitted mention of his wife's holdings.

Hodges and candidates McNeill Smith and Lawrence

Davis all released financial statements that included holdings in the names of their wives.

George Autry, Hodges' campaign manager, denied Ingram's charge and said Mrs. Gini Ingram "is a fine and gracious lady. Luther never has and never would imply otherwise."

"He (Ingram) contends that mud is being slung in this campaign," Autry said. "But such mud as has been slung all seems to be coming at Luther in the closing weeks of the campaign. It is the tactic of candidates who are losing an election and know it."

Ingram originally made the statement in a tape-recorded message hooked up to an incoming telephone line at his campaign headquarters and campaign manager Charles Webb said he repeated it during an appearance in Winston-Salem.

"This banker has made a reckless and irresponsible statement about my wife having a lot of money," Ingram said. "This is not true. People realize he is trying to buy this election by spending almost a million dollars. That is why he is attacking my wife."

Hodges' latest report of campaign expenditures, filed about two weeks ago, showed his campaign committee had spent about $700,000 on the election effort.

Hodges, Smith, Ingram and Davis have voluntarily made statements about their personal finances. All eight candidates must file such statements by May 15 with the secretary of the U.S. Senate.

Nancy Simmons, a legal counsel for the Federal Elections Commission, said the mandatory filing as a general rule requires disclosure of finances of the candidate, his spouse and dependents.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is indicating he will do some horse trading after hearing that his $24 billion tax cut plan stands no chance of passing Congress.

At a White House meeting Thursday, key members of the House Ways and Means Committee gave Carter that assessment of congressional sentiment — an attitude that has become increasingly evident.

The committee chairman and two members of the tax-writing panel left the session with the impression, they said, that the president is ready to talk with advisers and key congressmen about a negotiated reduction.

Press secretary Jody Powell said, nevertheless, the administration sees no reason to alter its plan and that Congress will be blamed if the economy suffers from lack of a tax cut.

Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., the committee chairman, told reporters after the meeting that, "The president can now go back and talk to his advisers... Obviously the bill is going to be a lot different from what he recommended and there has to be some determination of what to do."

Ullman said he would try to hold the net tax cut to $15 billion.

Later, he met again with Vice President Walter F. Mondale, who sat in on the original White House session and who apparently has been assigned to work with Congress on the tax issue.

Ullman said he and Mondale had made progress on a "possible alternative."

Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., another Ways and Means member, invited to the White House session, said he expects Carter to meet with more committee members and "look for a package that can be salvaged."

"The bill is in big trouble," Rostenkowski said.

The committee recessed its meeting until Monday after postponing consideration of a number of Carter recommendations.

The president's $24 billion proposal for reductions was to be partly offset by increases totaling nearly $9 billion. In preliminary decisions going against Carter's recommendations, the committee has eliminated the total increase package plus $1 billion.

Simple arithmetic, should the tax increase portion of the package remain canceled, indicates that the best Carter could hope for in reductions would be about $14 billion.

But both sides are aware that all decisions so far are only tentative and might change significantly before a deal is struck.

Now pending before the committee are motions to ease capital gains taxation rather than tighten it as Carter would like. There also is a move to drop the whole notion of additional tax cuts, while merely keeping in effect reductions of $9 billion enacted two years ago but scheduled to expire.

While Ullman, Rostenkowski and Rep. Joe D. Waggoner, D-La., were giving Carter the bad news, Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., the speaker of the House, said he will push for the president's plan.

"I would have to predict we would have to go with the tax cut," he told reporters. "We'll have to sit down and have a talk."

Highway 264 Ass'n President Is Named

Washington businessman James A. Hackney III has been elected to serve as president of the Highway 264 Association, it was announced by current president Jerry W. Powell of Greenville.

The organization is dedicated to the development of a limited access, four-lane, east-west highway to serve the cities and towns along the U.S. 264 route, according to Powell.

Hackney is president of Hackney and Sons Inc., a truck body firm, with headquarters and North Carolina production plant in Washington.

Hackney previously served as overall campaign chairman of the association, it was pointed out, and is a charter member of its board of directors.

JAMES HACKNEY

In addition to Hackney, other new officers elected by the board were: Lawton Nisbet of Greenville, vice president; Dr. Charles Boyette of Belhaven, secretary; and R. W. "Woody" Harrison of Wilson, treasurer.

Powell said that the organization's new officers will be officially recognized at a Spring Four-Lane celebration on April 26 at the Washington Moose Lodge.

Slowdown At State Ports

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — State Ports Authority officials say shippers who diverted cargoes to Virginia or South Carolina ports will return to Wilmington and Morehead City once the state dispute with the International Longshoremen's Association is over.

Exports from state ports are continuing to drop in anticipation of a dock worker strike. However, imports are running above average as companies are trying to build up inventories before the strike begins.

Executives of some companies affected by the threatened strike say they aren't sure how difficult it will be to get business back up to a normal level when the strike is settled.

"As soon as things are settled and some confidence is restored in the ports, we will do all we can to bring it back," said Maurice Hobbs, distribution manager of Federal Paper Board Co. in Riegelwood.

Federal ships about 275,000 tons of paper board daily from Wilmington under normal conditions. But under the threat of a strike, the shipments have been diverted to Charleston.

"It will take longer to bring it back than it did to take it away," Hobbs predicted.

Federal chief executive C.C. Peters said much would depend on the ability of Wilmington facilities to handle a planned doubling of Federal shipments.

"If North Carolina is going to grow, they're going to have to expand the ports," he said.

North Carolina's contract with the longshoremen expired Dec. 31, and negotiations stalled in February. The National Mediation Board pulled out of the talks last month. Under federal law, a strike can begin April 29 when a 30-day cooling-off period ends.

Union leaders say they have arranged an embargo on North Carolina shipments if a strike is called.

Referendum On April 26

L. Gaylon Ambrose, associate agricultural extension agent in Pitt County, reported that North Carolina corn producers will be voting on a corn referendum on April 26.

Ambrose said that the proposed assessment is for one-quarter cent per bushel whereby a producer averaging 100 bushels per acre would contribute 25 cents per acre.

He noted that among the actions taken on Jan. 31 at the first statewide meeting of the Corn Growers Association was the decision to have a referendum to determine if corn producers were willing to assess themselves financially to support the work of the association.

The N.C. Board of Agriculture has approved the referendum, Ambrose added, which would be effective for three years if approved.

The purpose of the association, he said, is to encourage, promote, and develop more effective marketing and corn production in the state and to participate in all matters relative to the interest of corn producers in North Carolina.

Ambrose said that polling places will be set up throughout the county on April 26.

His election was announced following recent action by the highway development organization's board of directors. Powell, executive vice president of First State Bank here, served as president following the term of charter president Thomas F. Taft, a Greenville attorney.

Meeting Held By Collectors

Sea shells, Vaseline opalescent glass and oil paintings were shown during the April meeting of the Greenville Collectors Club Inc.

The group met at the home of Francis Belcik, with Mrs. Bessie Ross presiding. Plans were made to donate books on antiques to the local library.

HIS EXPENSE ACCOUNT — An expense account submitted by Paul Revere, above, for the first of his famous rides at the start of the Revolutionary War, goes on the block next week in New York City. Endorsed by John Hancock, the document asking 14 pounds, two shillings from "The Committee of Correspondence" is expected to fetch at least $10,000, say Sotheby Parke Bernet officials. SKATEBOARD ENTHUSIASTS . . . A contingent of young skateboard enthusiasts pose for a group picture during a practice session at the Mormon Church in Greenville. They are among an estimated 60 to 100 contestants expected to sign up for the benefit competition Sunday afternoon to raise funds for the local Easter Seal Society.

Skateboarders Compete Here In Benefit Event On Sunday

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

One of America's fastest growing sports — and one best suited to young, supple bodies, is the exhilarating sport of riding the skateboard.

Local people will have an opportunity to view a competitive skateboard event on Sunday afternoon when a number of battle-scarred skaters will compete for 18 trophies in a benefit skateboard competition designed to raise funds for the Easter Seal Society.

Ed Yancey, Jr., coordinator of the event, and Bill Clark, of The Bicycle Shop, co-sponsor with Chanelo's Pizza and Spaghetti House, provided information on plans for the event scheduled for Sunday afternoon.

"We expect about 60 to 100 skateboarders to enter the competition," Yancey said. "We probably will have some girls entering too. If they do, they will be competing by the same rules with the boys."

An entry fee of $5 is being charged for each skateboard rider signing up. All contestants must sign up before noon on Sunday, and can do so by contacting Yancey or Clark.

Yancey said the competition is divided into two categories: "The junior category for those 13 and under, and the senior category for those 14 and over."

Clark said a total of 18 trophies are to be given. There will be nine for juniors, and nine for seniors.

"The competition is in three divisions," he added. "These are a giant slalom event where contestants will skate between cones, a free style event where the contestants can do tricks, and the jump competition to see who can jump the highest."

First, second and third place trophies will be awarded juniors and seniors in each of the three events.

The skateboard competition will be held between the hours of one and six Sunday afternoon on Sulgrave Road, just off Charles Street across from Minges Coliseum. The area will be cordoned off by members of the police department. A rescue truck and first aid people will be standing by.

Two of the older contestants already signed up are Kyle Inman and Winfield Cheek. Inman, a student at East Carolina University, last week placed fifth in the Greensboro competition that drew contestants from several states. He was also top winner in three Raleigh events.

There is no admission fee for the public, and spectators are urged to attend and to cheer the competitors as they seek to show their best form and win a trophy.

All funds realized from entry fees paid by the contestants will go to the Easter Seal Society in Greenville to be used in its continuing projects.

Public Is Invited Participate In A Bike Tour Here On Sunday

The public has been invited to participate in a bike tour on Sunday afternoon which will kick-off the local observance of Bicycle Safety Week.

Dr. Jim Hix, chairman of the Citizens Bikeway Committee, said that the bike tour this year is being sponsored by the local Boys' Club under the coordination of Ed Meyer, the club's educational director.

According to Hix, the tour will follow a route that amounts to approximately three miles with a break in the middle for refreshments.

In addition to participation by the general public, Hix noted that city officials, university heads and Student Government Association representatives have been invited for the event, which begins at 2:30 p.m.

Hix said that although the tour is being promoted during bike safety week, the bikeway committee hopes that interest in bike safety will carry over for the entire year and not just be a one-week concern.

The bike tour will start from the intersection of Fifth and Evans Streets (formerly Five Points), progress east to the university, go through the campus to Tenth Street, progress east on Tenth to Elm and then south on Elm to the recreation center for a brief break and refreshments. The tour will leave the center and continue south on Elm to 14th, then west on 14th to Charles, north on Charles to Cotanche and then Ninth Street, turn west on Ninth to Evans, and then progress north on Evans back to the starting point.

The committee spokesman said that the tour should last approximately one hour.

Purpose of the tour, it was mentioned, is to promote awareness in the community of the need for bicycle safety and to launch the safety week observance and activities.

"We would like for all residents to come out and support the bike safety effort," he added.

Hix said that bike rodeos are planned for Saturday, April 29 from 10 a.m. until 12 noon. Rodeos will be held at a site in front of the Boys' Club and also at the Jaycee Park parking lot.

All participants in the rodeos will receive certificates while trophies will be awarded to the winners in the three age groups: third grade and below; fourth through sixth grades; and seventh grade and above.

The Optimist Club, Greenville Host Lions Club, and Jaycees are sponsoring the rodeos.

Permits Top $1.3 Million

Building permits totaling $1,357,035 were issued in Greenville during February, according to statistics reported by State Labor Commissioner John C. Brooks.

Greenville, Brooks reported, was one of 13 cities in North Carolina having building permits exceeding $1 million.

Permit totals in Greenville for the first two months of 1978 amounted to $3,738,360, the commissioner said.

Other eastern cities and their February and two-month totals included: Elizabeth City, $366,100; $527,100; Goldsboro, $726,494; $1,758,134; Jacksonville, $376,022; $1,404,405;

Kinston, $378,855; $751,730; New Bern, $105,635; $556,885; Roanoke Rapids, $228,268; $399,868; Rocky Mount, $886,096; $2,766,600; and Wilson, $865,510; $2,823,253.

According to Brooks, permits totaling $47,933,343 were issued in February by 38 cities of more than 10,000 population. He noted that the February total was up 11.3 per cent from the $43,084,612 reported last February but 6.6 per cent below the $51,341,903 recorded for January.

Feel Unsafe

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A survey of women students at North Carolina State University indicates that many of them have experienced sexual assault or harassment and fear to walk alone on the campus at night.

University officials said questionnaires were distributed last month to 402 women selected at random from the 5,262 female students on the campus. They said 242 women answered the questions.

Thirty-four percent of those responding said they had been the target of verbal harassment, 14 percent had been bothered by a peeping tom or exhibitionist, 5 percent had been physically attacked and 2.1 percent were victims of an attempted rape.

More than half the participants said they were afraid to walk alone on the campus at night, but most of them said they do anyway.

Odd Couple Launching Variety Series

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — What seems one of TV's odder pairings — country singer Mel Tillis with lovely Susan Anton, the cigar pitchperson — starts a four-week trial run this Saturday night on ABC.

"Mel & Susan Together" is the name of their 30-minute variety series. The premiere guests are Donny and Marie Osmond, and Billy Carter, who is giving the Brother-Of business a bad name.

It sounds like a mess of sophistication, saccharine and grits, aimed at drawing the urban trade with Miss Anton, the pre-teen pop crowd with the Osmonds and the rustics with Carter and Tillis.

But by golly, the first Mel-and-Susan effort isn't all that bad, particularly in the music department, despite an opening dialogue by the stars that is double-knit in nature: It stretches forever.

Said patter concerns Miss Anton's nervousness, and also good-naturedly joshes the well-publicized fact that Tillis stutters when he talks but never when he sings.

Then they commence with a police station skit in which Miss Anton, cast as a lady cop, brings the Osmonds in for booking by Tillis, the desk sergeant. The humor is the only thing that's arrested.

Sample line, by Tillis about Miss Anton: "Oh, here she comes — the only cop who uses her gun as a hair dryer."

Things improve only when Marie O. cries, "Hey, we're too cute to go to prison," and, when the Osmonds are asked to produce identification, just smile as their gleaming teeth blind all.

Miss Anton later displays a flair for comedy in a solo bit as a Rona Barrett type who reveals that Cher Bono Allman has "just announced her engagement to K.C. and the Sunshine Band."

But the show's real strength is its music, whether it's Tillis doing his country thing alone or Miss Anton, a fine singer, harmonizing with Donny O. on "My Music" and "Good Friends."

They should share the credit with a gent by the name of Bob Rozario, whose music arrangements are first-rate, tasty and pretty good, too.

President Carter's brother, who as a performer is an excellent gas station operator, is whisked in for the show's final skit, essaying a judge at a "Simon Says" contest.

(Simon should say Billy, ask your brother to let you do something useful, like perhaps be the U.S. ambassador to Washington.)

When Mel and Susan thank Billy for doing his bit for the show, he cheerfully replies: "My pleasure, really. I'll do anything for fun. When do I get paid?"

They graciously neglect to pop the key query: For what? Summation: "Mel & Susan Together," produced by the Osmond Brothers at the new Osmond studios in Orem, Utah, is a painless entry, weak in comedy writing but tops in musicianship.

If the program's scriveners can get their act together, there's no reason why Mel & Susan, solid talents each, can't be a welcome addition to ABC's regular roster of shows for next fall — and maybe a hit.

The bidding:

Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: Ten of ♦.

Study the bidding and play of this hand, then decide if any blame attaches to either North or South for the result (and, if so, to whom?), or if South was just the unlucky victim of an inspired opening lead by West.

With the vulnerability in his favor, West had just enough to preempt with three clubs. East further complicated life for South by raising to game over North's takeout double, so South elected to shoot out slam in his long suit.

We would wager that ninety-nine out of a hundred players would lead the king of clubs from the West hand, and South would coast home in his slam. Unfortunately, South met the hundredth defender. West reasoned that South was probably prepared for a club opening, so he decided to take advantage of the only time he was likely to have the lead to try to hit something in his partner's hand. He was eminently successful with his choice of the ten of diamonds.

Declarer had no means of obtaining a quick discard, so he was forced to take the diamond finesse at trick one. East won the king and subsequently scored his ace of hearts for a one-trick set.

What's your verdict? Certainly, North cannot be blamed for his takeout double. His hand was not suitable for an overall in hearts because that would run the risk of losing the spade suit and landing in an inferior contract.

However, we do think that South's jump to six spades was too unilateral. Since he had decided to play a slam, he could afford to probe a little at no cost. We suggest that South should cue-bid six clubs. If North bids six diamonds, South can correct to six spades. However, there is the chance that North might bid six hearts, in which case South should be content to play right there.

The clue to the situation lies in South's diamond holding. With only two low cards in the suit, South should realize that it could be to his side's advantage to have North as declarer, to protect a possible tenace in that suit.

FACE RARE DISEASE — Possibly four members of the Robert Crall family are believed to have a rare blood disease which doctors say hangs like a sword over their lives. Left to right are: Stephanie, 5, Richard, 10, Mrs. Diana Crall holding Scott, six weeks, Robert and Robert Jr., 3. Doctors say Crall definitely has the disease, the two older children almost certainly have it and the baby may also be a victim. (AP Laserphoto)

Sword Of Death Hanging Over 4 In Family; Rare Disease Found

By ROBERT MACY
Associated Press Writer

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A rare blood vessel disease called hereditary hemorrhagic telangiectasis is more than Diane Crall can pronounce. But it is not more than she can comprehend.

It threatens the lives of her husband, Robert, 26, their children, Stephanie, 5, and Robert Jr., 3, and possibly month-old Scott as well.

One of the family's doctors at the University of Kansas Medical Center says he had seen only one previous case of the disease during his career. Yet Crall, his youngsters and a niece apparently are afflicted with it.

Crall's sister, Teresa, died three years ago at the age of 19, a month after giving birth to a daughter, Tracy. Doctor say Teresa's death may have been caused by the disease, and Tracy may have it.

The disease surfaced last summer when Crall, an active, healthy man, began having problems with bleeding. Tests at the medical center diagnosed the rare disease.

Spotches have appeared on the two Crall children's skin, and doctors say it may be a sign that they have the disease.

Crall cannot work, exert himself physically or tolerate heat. He has frequent broken blood vessels and the pain of massive headaches. Neighbors in the Kansas City suburb of Oak Grove have started fund-raising activities to assist the family, which has been on welfare the past several months.

A routine day of non-strenuous activity leaves Crall "almost incapacitated by evening," according to his wife.

The disease, said Dr. James Couch of the medical center's neurology department, "is like having the sword of Damocles hanging over your head."

He said the disease is a formation of small blood vessels that bleed easily, located up and down the digestive tract and also on the surface of the brain and around the spinal cord. Victims can bleed to death internally if the vessels rupture.

"The chances of having something catastrophic happen are pretty high," he said.

Couch said because the rarity of the disease, little research is under way to find a cure.

"There's nothing any more dear to a mother than her children," said Mrs. Crall. "The possibility of losing them is...you know..." She chokes on the words. "And I love my husband so much...I can't imagine life without him."

Mrs. Crall says the family has received strength from God.

"Who are we to question His plan? Through Him we gain strength to face it, I don't think He'll put anything on us that we can't bear."

Hatching Emus In Bird Preserve

THOMASVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The six and a half acres preserve behind Pay R. Jones' house is a bird-lover's paradise.

A bird-watcher for the past 40 years, Jones has one of the best bird collections in the state, with about 75 to 80 species living on the preserve.

Among the varieties he keeps are emus, swans, peacocks, scarlet macaws, Chinese bamboo partridge, cerise geese and Siberian red-breasted geese — the rarest of the collection.

Until recently, Jones had two pairs emus — prehistoric-looking, five-foot-tall birds indigenous to Australia.

But two of the emus, which are left free to wander the preserve, laid about 30 eggs. Jones said he had high hopes for the eggs being naturally hatched by the male emu, but he hadn't been sure about those in the incubator until last week.

Those eggs, laid in March, represented Jones' first attempt to hatch emus in an incubator — and the time limit was about up.

But he opened the incubator one day last week and saw a tiny beak sticking through one of the tough black shells.

The emus, said to look as if they were around when dinosaurs roamed the earth, grow to weigh 150 pounds and have brown-and-white fur-like coverings.

Jones is retired after 28 years with Thomasville Furniture Industries, but his bird preserve keeps him busy. It takes from 45 minutes to two hours to feed them, with each group of birds being fed every other day.

Cite A Potential Cure For Elm Tree Disease

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Two Forest Service scientists say they may have a cure for North Carolina's diseased elm trees. But the former head of the state forest service pest control program says he is skeptical of their new theory.

The scientists at the Southern Forest Service station in New Orleans say that it may not be Dutch elm disease killing the state's trees, but a "mycoplasma" that can be cured by a combination of tetracycline antibiotics.

Dr. Ted Filer, one of the scientists who has developed the new method for treating diseased elms, said his theory is that many of the elms are suffering from a mycoplasma infection as well as Dutch elm disease. He said it is possible that some trees have been successfully treated for Dutch elm disease and later died of a mycoplasma infection.

Filer and researcher Robert Lewis got on the track of the mycoplasma when elms began dying several years ago in Mississippi. They said the microplasma was identified under an electron microscope. Smaller than a bacterium, the mycoplasma can be identified only under high magnification.

H. J. Green, former pest control director and now forest service operations chief, said Dutch elm disease began attacking elm trees in North Carolina in the early 1960s and was first discovered in Greensboro. He said the forest service has spent a lot of money and time to find a way to either put an end to Dutch elm disease or to control it. But so far, efforts have failed.

"Periodically, someone announces a cure for Dutch elm disease," Green said, "but the cures never seem to pan out. The problem is still in controlling the disease once the tree is afflicted."

Filer's theory calls for the tetracycline solution to be injected into the tree. He has developed an inoculation apparatus to inject the medication into the trees.

But Green said the injection system won't work if the tree has Dutch elm disease, even if it also has a mycoplasma infection.

"Dutch elm disease spreads along the water-carrying vessels of the tree," Green explained. "And as the disease progresses, these vessels become blocked. Water can't circulate through the tree. So if the tree has Dutch elm disease, the injection solution won't circulate through the tree, either."

Green said all injection programs to save the elms have failed in the past.

Seek Return Of Accused In India

KINSTON, N.C. (AP) — Kinston police are seeking the return of a 28-year-old man from India to face a murder charge in the slaying of his wife Jan. 15.

District Attorney Donald Jacobs has begun extradition proceedings against Harris Nathaniel, who is charged with murdering his wife, Gladis, with a .22 caliber rifle at their home here.

Officers who questioned Nathaniel following the shooting said he "went berserk" and they took him to Cherry Hospital. He is reported to have told police his wife, a nurse at Lenoir Memorial Hospital, committed suicide.

Dr. E.V. Maynard, director of clinical psychiatry at Cherry Hospital, said Nathaniel was released March 13 in the custody of a brother from Fayetteville.

"He never should have been here in the first place," Maynard said, explaining that anyone involved in a felony should have been taken to Dortha Dix Hospital in Raleigh. "I think they sometimes bring people over here because they don't want to drive all the way to Raleigh."

Detective Capt. Aaron Brooks said authorities had no probable cause for a murder charge against Nathaniel until ballistics tests were made and other information was available.

He said Nathaniel had left the hospital and apparently slipped through customs for India, the couple's native country, by the time a murder warrant was issued.

Police said they informed the Indian embassy about the charge and that Mrs. Nathaniel's father, Lawrence Gabriel of Jabalpur, India, has written the embassy.
