

Scaffold's Fall Took 51 Lives
March Consumer Prices See Inflation Continue

WILLOW ISLAND, W.Va. (AP) — Witnesses said it looked an apple being peeled, watching a skeleton of scaffolding drop away from the inside of a huge tower and break off a ring of concrete, taking 51 men screaming to their deaths 170 feet below.

George Pepper was 200 feet from the tower when he heard something "that sounded like a big train roaring by." "The next thing I saw was a pile of dust. All I could see was heads busted up, legs out of socket, arms scattered around. It was just a mangled-up God-forsaken mess. I'll see that scene the rest of my life," he said.

The accident occurred Thursday as workers prepared to make the 29th of 82 concrete pours on a giant cooling tower being built at a $680 million coal-fired electrical generating plant overlooking the Ohio River here.

Federal inspectors moved in today to investigate reports of faulty scaffolding and the possibility that the huge catwalk on which the men worked was moored in still-wet concrete.

In Washington, a spokesman for the Occupational Safety and Health Administration said 13 inspections of the Pleasants Power Station site since 1973 had revealed "numerous violations both serious and nonserious." But he said he did not know what they were or whether they involved scaffolding.

OSHA spokesman James Foster said the most recent inspection was a year ago and that the operations of Research Cottrell Inc., the Bound Brook, N.J., subcontractor building the tower, had never been inspected.

But Thomas Buontane, director of corporate communications for the company, said the scaffold was inspected daily. He said it was "a complete mystery how this could happen ... It's impossible." "I heard a loud roar, rumbling and rumbling," said Yales Seils, an asbestos worker. "I looked up and saw the top of the cooling tower fall inside and the scaffolding peel away. You could see the men running ahead of it as it was peeling. It just went faster and faster and overtook them."

Rescuers, using cranes to untangle the debris, found no signs of life among the tons of twisted metal, splintered wooden planks and rope safety net. "If they lived through the fall, they didn't have a chance in that stuff," said one witness.

"There wasn't a sound coming from it," said Bill Hess, a 22-year-old laborer. "They were torn up so bad I couldn't tell looking at them if any of my friends had been killed."

Lee Steele, a retired laborer suffering from cancer, lost four sons, a brother, two brothers-in-law and three nephews. Steele was one of dozens of people who waited in a little white steeped church near the temporary morgue set up in a firehouse in nearby Belmont, W.Va. Names of the victims were called out one by one.

The cooling tower is one of two under construction for Monongahela Power Co., which serves 22,000 customers in West Virginia and southeastern Ohio. Workers had poured a four-foot layer of concrete Wednesday and were working on the next layer Thursday when the collapse occurred about 10 a.m., Monongahela spokesman Lyle Corder said. "As it was being poured today, the 28th (layer) disintegrated and the bolts that were holding the scaffolding pulled loose away from it," he said.

It Just Couldn't Happen

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — The impossible happened. Fifty-one men died. And Research Cottrell, maker of the scaffolding that collapsed with the 51 West Virginia workers aboard, cannot figure out why.

"It's a complete mystery how this can happen because of the type of scaffolding we use ... It's impossible," said Thomas Buontane, a spokesman for Research Cottrell, which was a subcontractor on the Willow Island, W.Va., site.

The scaffolding was inspected daily by Research Cottrell officials at the site, said Buontane. "We have to assume that it was inspected" Thursday before the accident.

The company had constructed 36 similar towers without incident. Judging by past performance, officials of the Bound Brook, N.J., corporation said the accident never should have happened.

"Nothing was done that was different than in the 36 jobs that were successfully completed," said Philip Cocco, a director of corporate communications.

Cocco said corporation President Dennis Carlton-Jones and other company officials were at the scene searching for an explanation.

Company officials declined to speculate on causes. But a spokesman for the International Union of Operating Engineers in Charleston, W.Va., suggested that a form being filled with cement broke, beginning the collapse of the attached scaffolding.

Lyle Corder, a spokesman for the Monongahela Power Co., said the layer of concrete that had been poured Wednesday disintegrated as a new layer was being added and the bolts that were holding the scaffolding pulled loose.

The 428-foot-tall cooling tower was being built for Monongahela, which draws water from the Ohio River to make steam and generate electricity.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rising food and housing costs pushed consumer prices up 0.8 percent in March as inflation continued at a rapid pace, the Labor Department said today.

The March increase would mean an inflation rate of nearly 10 percent if it lasted all year. However, economists are predicting improvement later in the year.

The higher prices last month matched a 0.8 percent increase in January, which had alarmed government economists and was the biggest increase in nine months. Consumer prices rose 0.6 percent in February.

The department said the purchasing power of the average worker rose 0.2 percent in March because of increases in hourly earnings and the number of hours worked.

Food prices rose 1.3 percent last month after climbing 1.2 percent in both January and February. Most of the increase was for meat, fruit and eggs.

Grocery shoppers paid 2.6 percent more for beef in March and 2.9 percent more for pork. Fresh fruit prices went up 4.7 percent, after declining somewhat the month before.

Prices also rose for such foods as poultry, dairy products, cereal and bakery products, sugar and candy and fats and oil products.

Prices on vegetables and coffee, however, declined.

The cost of buying and taking care of a house went up 1 percent in March, a worse performance than the 0.6 percent increase in February and 0.8 percent in January. The price of houses went up 0.8 percent in March, double the February increase, while mortgage interest, home maintenance and fuel costs rose rapidly, the department said.

Clothing prices also rose sharply by 1 percent after declining 1.2 percent in February. The cost of entertainment was up 0.8 percent, about the same as in February. On a brighter note, the cost of medical care climbed 0.6 percent in March, a smaller rise than in previous months because of smaller increases in fees by doctors and dentists.

Automobiles prices edged up 0.1 percent, while gasoline prices rose 0.3 percent in March, the first increase this year.

Because of declines in food prices at the end of last year, the consumer prices for March were still only 6.5 percent higher than they were a year ago. The department adjusts its price figures to take into account seasonal variations, such as seasonal crop shortages or annual price increases.

The Consumer Price Index for all urban consumers stood at 189.8 in March, indicating that the average product costing $100 in the base period of 1967 cost $189.80 in March.

For the first three months of the year, inflation was running at a rate of 9.3 percent, the department said. Prices for food and beverages were climbing at an annual rate of 15.4 percent and housing were increasing at a 9.9 percent rate.

The reports have prompted administration officials to call inflation the nation's No. 1 economic problem.

Outspoken Gen. Singlaub Agrees To 'Retirement'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Outspoken Maj. Gen. John K. Singlaub agreed today to retire from the Army after his second public blast at President Carter's policies.

Brig. Gen. Robert Solomon, the Army's information chief, told reporters that Singlaub "agreed to retire" following a meeting that Singlaub had this morning with Army Secretary Clifford Alexander and Gen. Bernard Rogers, Army chief of staff. The Army officials had ordered Singlaub to fly to Washington after they learned that Singlaub in a speech Thursday had blasted Carter's decision not to produce the neutron warhead and had disagreed publicly with the Panama Canal treaties.

Last year, Singlaub was reassigned from a top job in South Korea after criticizing to a newsman Carter's decision to withdraw U.S. ground troops from Korea.

Solomon said Gen. Frederick Kroesen, Singlaub's boss at the Army Forces Command headquarters in Atlanta, had recommended to Alexander and Rogers that Singlaub "be permitted to retire."

The Army spokesman did not say what Alexander and Rogers did after receiving Kroesen's recommendation, but it was evident that all parties had agreed to resolve the situation in that way. Kroesen accompanied Singlaub to the Pentagon.

threequarters of his active duty pay for life.

Solomon indicated the date of Singlaub's retirement was not yet definite. Having suffered wounds in battle, he could claim some degree of disability benefits and this normally is determined by a medical board before a military officer actually retires.

Singlaub's remarks on the neutron warhead and the Panama Canal were made Thursday to ROTC cadets at Georgia Tech.

"I think the decision not to produce the neutron bomb without some compensating concession from the other side is like throwing your trump card away in a game of bridge," Singlaub said. "I think it's ridiculous."

Singlaub also told the cadets the Panama Canal treaties, ratified by the Senate after months of intense lobbying by the administration, were unnecessary. He said he was concerned about ties between Panama and Cuba and worried that Panama might put restrictions on use of the canal.

About 11 months ago, Singlaub was ordered home from South Korea by Carter after the general publicly opposed the president's plan to withdraw U.S. ground troops from that country. Singlaub said the plan would lead inevitably to war.

The general, then chief of staff of U.S. forces in Korea, had a 30-minute meeting with Carter and several days later was reassigned to the comparable job at the command headquarters in Atlanta.

The president said at the time that Singlaub "was not being chastized or punished" for the comment, but transferred because his Korean post would have directly involved him in the policy he was criticizing.

"We are now in the process of carrying on this policy," Carter said last May of the Korean withdrawal. "And I don't believe that Gen. Singlaub ... could have effectively carried out this policy when he had publicly been identified as being opposed to it."

Carter also said then that Singlaub had committed a very serious breach of his responsibility by making "an invitation to North Korea."

It was uncertain whether Singlaub, meeting with Army Secretary Clifford Alexander and Gen. Bernard Rogers, Army chief of staff, would get off as lightly this time.

The much-decorated Singlaub, a combat veteran of World War II, Korea and Vietnam, is 56 years old and has completed more than 35 years of military service. He is eligible for retirement at

In Just An Instant He Lost 10 Of His Family

ST. MARYS, W.Va. (AP) — Lee Steele battled cancer for 10 years. In one day, in just an instant, he lost 10 members of his family.

Four sons — Larry Steele, 32, Ronald Steele, 30, Earnest Steele, 29, Miles Steele, 26. A brother — Emmett Steele, 61.

Two brothers-in-law, Robert and James Blouir, and three nephews, Steve Blouir, Chester Payne, 19, and Brian Taylor, 18.

All fell to their deaths Thursday when scaffolding inside a 170-foot power plant cooling tower under construction beside the Ohio River collapsed.

"We were very close, me and my sons," Lee Steele, a burly man who professes strong Christian beliefs, said in a telephone interview from his home here.

"I just trust in God. He'll never put more on me than I can bear. He gets me through the rough spots, but it's hard." A few hours before, he had stood weeping outside a makeshift morgue set up in the nearby Belmont, W.Va., fire station. "Four boys, I lost four boys," Steele had cried.

Inside were the bodies of 51 workers, including his kin. Steele, a retired construction laborer, has met tragedy before. A brother fell to his death in a construction accident on a New Jersey bridge in 1960. Steele himself has undergone 20 weeks of radiation treatment for cancer.

Steele has four daughters and, now, one son. Robert Steele, 35, had been working nearby on the Pleasants Power Station construction site when he heard a roaring sound as the scaffolding and sections of concrete peeled away from the partially constructed tower.

"I knew that they were all up there," he said. "I work right beside them."

Emmett Steele's oldest son, Carlton, also was working near the cooling tower, the incomplete twin of a 428-foot tower built nearby for Monongahela Power Co.

Carlton said he and other family members tried to get his father to quit the high-level iron work and take a job on the ground. "We tried to get him to change with us, but he wouldn't."

Extra Years For Babies Of 1977

NEW YORK (AP) — Babies born in the United States last year will live an average of 73 years, an all-time high, says an insurance company report.

Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. said the figure of 73 years for 1977 is 0.2 years more than the life expectancy computed for children born the year before, and 2.3 years more than for those born in 1969-71.

The decline in mortality in the first year of life was responsible for most of the gain in longevity, the bureau said, pointing out the infant mortality rate fell from 20 per 1,000 live births in 1969-71 to 15.1 in 1976 and 14 in 1977, another record low.

Threatens To Resume Boycott

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — United Farm Workers President Cesar Chavez says his union may resume its boycott of Gallo wines if the state does not order the world's largest winery to bargain with the union.

Chavez demanded Thursday that the state Agricultural Labor Relations Board grant the UFW a bargaining order for Gallo field workers because of "massive law violations" stemming from a 1975 representation election.

Changing Times

This weekend most of the continental United States' residents will lose an hour's sleep but gain an extra hour of daylight in the evenings.

It is the weekend for moving the clock forward one hour Saturday night, or Sunday morning — whichever suits you best — to gain that extra daytime hour.

The official time for moving the clock up is 2 a.m. Sunday, but most folks change the clocks before they go to bed Saturday night or first thing upon arising on Sunday.

Daylight time will be in effect for six months, until Oct. 29. The last hour of sleep will be regained then.

N.C. Ports Expecting Face Prolonged Strike

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Officials of the International Longshoremen's Association say union members are ready to go on strike against the North Carolina State Ports Authority Saturday.

"At this point, the negotiations are over with," Samuel C. Whitt, an attorney for ILA Local 1426-A, said Thursday night after the SPA rejected a contract proposal by the union.

"They'll strike Saturday," Whitt added. He said the local offered to drop its request for compulsory union if the SPA would agree to required checkoff of union dues. The two issues have been the stumbling blocks in contract talks that started last October.

"Since it was rejected, we're now going for the whole ball of wax," Whitt said, referring to both required union membership and automatic dues payment.

Officials of the Ports Authority were not available for comment on the development.

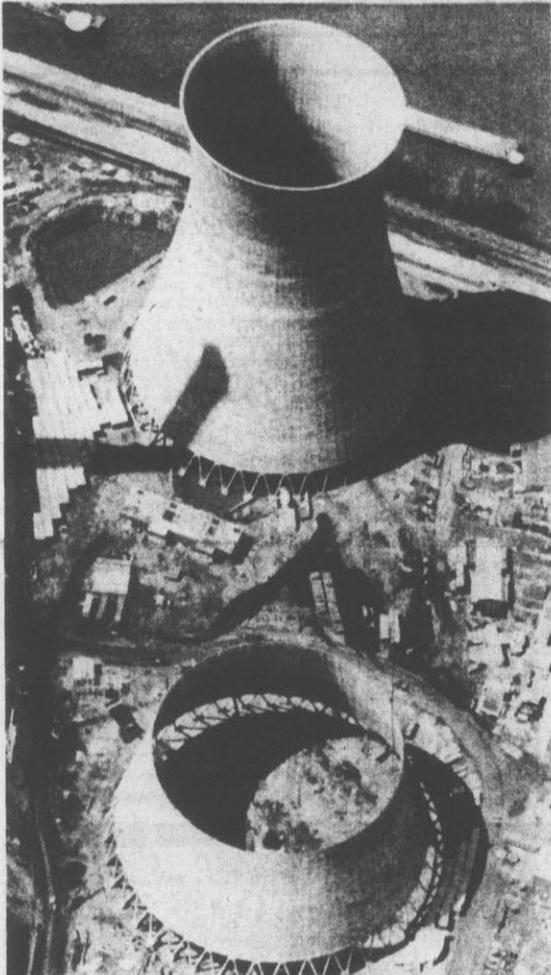

Breaking a six-month silence on the negotiations, Whitt said ILA officials held a meeting with rank-and-file members Thursday afternoon to inform them of the situation.

He said the membership voted about two weeks ago to authorize a strike over the union shop and dues checkoff issues. He said he would be "very, very surprised" if the SPA agreed to resume negotiations over those two points before Saturday's strike deadline.

Officials of the Ports Authority have said they have $3.2 million in liquid assets to pay the remaining non-union workers and that they are prepared to hold out "indefinitely" if ILA members walk off the job.

Whitt said the union has been building a strike fund for two years and is prepared for a prolonged walkout.

"I would say we can hold out indefinitely," he said. "I would say they can hold out indefinitely."

Friends Can Help Cook Paella

By CECILY BROWNSTONE Associated Press Food Editor

One of the best small Spanish restaurants in New York City is near my house and sometimes I take out-of-town guests there for paella. It comes in a big metal casserole — loads of converted-style rice, each grain separate and colored yellow with saffron, turmeric or achiote. Buried in the rice is a piece of chicken for each person, slices of the Spanish sausage called chorizo, shrimp and clams. Garnished with pimiento, and sometimes green peas, it looks as good as it is to eat.

One evening recently, when several friends suggested cooking supper at my house, we made our own paella and ate it as soon as it was ready. If your kitchen is big enough to accommodate some willing guests, you might like to entertain this informal way and try our version of this flavorful Spanish dish.

One word about how many this paella will serve. We used about the same amount of rice and chicken as the restaurant serves a group of our size. But although all of us loved the rice mixture and stuffed ourselves with it, there was some left over along with a couple of small pieces of chicken. The next night I cut up the leftover chicken, added it to the rice mixture and reheated it in my countertop microwave oven. Followed by a tossed salad, fruit and cheese, there was a delicious meal minus effort.

PAELLA
2 1/2 to 3-pound frying chicken, cut up
1/4 cup flour
2 teaspoons salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
5 tablespoons olive oil
16-ounce can tomatoes
Two 7-ounce cans minced clams
3 to 3 1/2 cups chicken broth
1/2 pound chorizo, sliced
1 1/4-inch thick
2 cups converted-style rice
1/4 teaspoon powdered saffron
2 cloves garlic, minced
1/2 pound shelled and deveined cooked small shrimp (see Note below)
1 green pepper, seeded and cut into thin strips
10-ounce package tiny frozen peas, thawed
1/2 of a 7 1/2-ounce jar roasted sweet red peppers, drained and cut in strips

Roll or shake chicken in a mixture of the flour, salt and pepper. In a 12-inch skillet in the hot oil brown chicken on all sides; cover and cook gently, turning as necessary and uncovering the last 10 minutes to crisp, until cooked through — 40 to 60 minutes. Remove chicken and keep hot. Reserve skillet with drippings in it. Drain the tomatoes and clams; to their liquid add enough chicken broth to make 5 cups. Break up the tomatoes and add to the broth mixture with the clams.

To the drippings in the skillet add the chorizo and cook gently until browned. Add the tomato-clam-broth mixture, the rice, saffron and garlic. Bring to a boil. Cover tightly and cook over low heat until the rice is cooked through — about 20 minutes. Stir in the shrimp, green pepper, uncooked peas and pimiento. Let stand off heat, tightly covered, until all liquid is absorbed — about 5 minutes. Top with the chicken and serve at once.

Note: If you use small "fresh" shrimp in the shell, buy 3/4 pound and cook lightly, shell and vein. If you use frozen shrimp, buy an 8-ounce package that's been cooked, shelled and deveined and thaw it. Have either kind of shrimp at room temperature before adding it to the paella so it will warm quickly in the off-heat rice mixture.

Credit Women Hear Speaker

The meeting of the Greenville Credit Women-International was held Tuesday at the Three Steers. Ed Turcotte, Pitt County magistrate, gave the program. "Small Claims Court: An Alternative Collection Method" was the program topic. He explained there are 10 magistrate positions in Pitt County, five of which are in Greenville. Their functions consist of two parts, criminal and civil. They write all warrants for arrests and search warrants when probable cause is shown by a law enforcement officer.

Some of the civil duties include marriage ceremonies and small claims. Small claims court is held on Monday, Tuesday and Thursday for costs up to $500. Turcotte explained that small claims court is the "people's court" in which the magistrate acts as a referee in problems with nonpayment of rent, nonpayment of installments with financial institutions and worthless check cases.

The business session was conducted by Mary Roberson, parliamentarian. Plans for a membership drive were discussed.

Members were urged to attend the state meeting in Charlotte May 28-29.

Flower Club Ad Led To Many Seeds

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I answered an "ad" in a magazine for information about joining a flower club. All I wanted was information about the club, but before I knew it, they started sending me all kinds of seeds.

I don't want these seeds and didn't order any, so I just put them aside. (I may have even thrown some away.) Now I am getting letters from this flower club telling me that if I don't send them the money or return the seeds they are going to sue me!

Abby, I am worried sick. Can they sue me? Please help me! I have four children and no money to go to court to fight this thing.

SCARED

DEAR SCARED: Throw their letters in the wastebasket. No one is obligated to pay for—or return—anything that has been sent to him unsolicited.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is 47. We've been married for 20 years and have a fine family. I have known for many years that he is a transvestite. He enjoys dressing in women's clothing (only in private)—a practice which I tolerate but do not encourage.

He saw a psychologist for two years in an effort to overcome this urge, but decided not to fight it any longer. For the last six months, he's been taking hormones, and he applies hormone cream (10,000 estrogen units per ounce) to his chest area daily. I think he is beginning to develop breasts, but the change is so gradual and subtle that it's hard to tell. Also, the hair on his hands and arms has become finer and thinner.

Abby, I don't want a female-shaped husband. What do you suggest?

HUDSON, MASS., MRS.

DEAR MRS: From what you tell me, you are going to have a female-shaped husband whether you want one or not, because that's the way things are developing.

You should be aware that your husband is a transsexual who appears to be preparing for a sex-change operation. I recommend some candid dialogue between you and your husband in order to plan your future—and his.

DEAR ABBY: My sister has a son (I'll call him Jason) who was born out of wedlock. He is 6 years old. About 4 months ago, my sister married a man who refuses to take Jason into his home, although he pays for his support. Jason now lives with our parents and he can't understand why his mommy "visits" him at Granny's but won't take him "home" with her.

My sister hasn't told Jason anything. I think he should be told something. But what? I have a right to ask this question because my mother is in poor health, and now my sister wants me to promise that I will look after Jason in case something happens to our mother.

I am 26, have been self-supporting since I was 17, and plan to be married in August. Please withhold my name.

CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: Jason should be legally adopted by someone who wants him—ideally you, since you appear to be the only one who is concerned about what the boy thinks.

Under the circumstances, the child should be told the truth. No one can be forced to raise a child he doesn't want. And if he could, I'd pity the poor child.

Proposal Needs Re-Thinking

President Carter, apparently trying to win support for civil service reforms, is proposing the right of union collective bargaining for federal employees.

Large numbers of federal workers are currently represented by unions, but the right to collective bargaining comes only through presidential permission.

The presidential concession to providing by law for collective bargaining is expected to increase chances for civil service revisions.

Included are provisions to make firing for incompetence less difficult, elimination of job tenure, salary bonuses for top executives and pay raises gained through merit by middle level managers.

The president's civil service proposals are needed and, in fact, long overdue. To give over the right of collective bargaining, and the implied right to strike, however, is a very major concession.

No group has done better in the area of pay, benefits and retirement than the employees of the federal government. The federal employees have done so well, in fact, that they are the envy of workers in other areas and, in fact, this is the cause of some dissatisfaction in the private sector.

Collective bargaining could make the army of federal workers such a powerful group that no politicians and no private taxpayers could stand up to it.

The administration should re-think this proposal to win over reluctant votes with the collective bargaining carrot. We think the civil service reforms can be won if the president will impress upon the congressmen that sooner or later they will face some very unhappy taxpayer-voters who are tired of paying the bills for sluggish government.

"First the GOOD NEWS! We're making great progress on the derailment problem. The bad news is: This picture is upside down."

Necessary If Costs Are To Be Reduced

Some names familiar to millions of Americans who have seen military duty appear on a list of bases slated for closings or cut-backs.

The Army proposes closing of training centers at Ft. Dix, N. J. and Ft. Jackson, S. C. Also on the list are Chanute Air Force Base, Ill. and Goodfellow Air Force Base in Texas.

For the marines either famed Parris Island, S. C. or San Diego recruit depot would be closed. And either the Navy training center at San Diego or Great Lakes, Ill. would shut down.

The closing prospects are not pleasing to the areas involved, but such moves are necessary if costs are to be brought in line.

Major Shakeup Is Coming

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Don't expect a miraculously quick cure for the nation's economic ills.

"We cannot promise immediate and quick relief ... we can not say that on a given date the inflationary spiral will end," says Charles L. Schultze, chief economic advisor to President Jimmy Carter.

Schultze was the chief designer of the package of economic steps put forth by the President recently. Many critics have labeled those approaches simply more of the same rhetoric, speaking to symptoms and not root causes.

His advisor bristles at that idea. "We are getting at causes and not symptoms. We are attacking that spiral of wages chasing prices chasing wages chasing prices ... that is the self-perpetuating condition causing inflation."

But doesn't Carter's proposals sound much like the ill-fated WIN campaign which the public laughed out of existence when proposed by former President Gerald

Psychological
Not at all, Schultze insists. The Ford program "never asked business or labor to do anything about prices and wages. It was just a general psychological campaign. We are asking business and labor to lower the rate of increase in prices and wages below that of the previous two years." There are only three significant ways to bring inflation under control said the economic advisor who was in North Carolina to address a student-faculty seminar on economic policy at North Carolina State University.

Writing the economy out through slow growth, unemployment, recession, an agonizing, slow process which he terms "harmful ... not acceptable."

Number two — Government controls which "in the long run won't work," and Number three — A combination of reasonable and feasible actions by business, labor, and by government in those areas where it has an impact.

No overnight cure will result, he concedes, but nibbling away at inflation will produce a gradual decline over time, while economic growth continues. A decrease to what level? Schultze denies reports that administration officials are willing to live with a six per cent inflation rate. He wants to see it continue to decline—over time.

Many outspoken critics of the administration continue to pinpoint governmental spending, waste, fraud, a $60 billion budget deficit coming up, commitments to ill-advised and failing social programs, over-regulation and general government meddling in private business as root causes of the economic mess.

Always Waste
Schultze refuses to accept this contention. Sure there is waste ... but any big operation is going to have waste, and the government is trying to reduce that, he says.

The size of the budget is being cut ... the increase in a couple of years will be only two per cent when adjusted for inflation, he argues.

And besides, it isn't the federal government that's to blame: "The big growth in spending has been in state and local governments, and that is now leveling out so that there may be some tax relief in store."

He would like to see governmental spending as a share of the national worth decline, but it is clear from his comments and those of other economic experts in the administration that any immediate assault upon governmental spending is not likely.

Does the administration and the Congress lack the political courage to do the job? Schultze says the job is getting done, and he perceives a "gradual acceptance of the fact that the President's anti-inflation program is workable and effective."

Old Habits Die Hard

By ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — I was shocked to turn on the television set last week and see FBI agents taking advantage of the First Amendment to protest the indictments of three of their own for allegedly violating the First Amendment rights of others.

Demonstrating in the streets is not what the FBI does best. Under J. Edgar Hoover and his successors, the role of the FBI was to monitor those people who were organizing and financing protests, to infiltrate those groups that were marching and to report on the "troublemakers" who were using the sidewalks and boulevards to call attention to their grievances.

Old habits die hard for some of the agents, and last week's FBI demonstration was no exception.

As the FBI agents and former agents were fiercely protesting in front of the U.S. District Court building, a man was taking photographs of them.

"O'Toole," shouted one of the protesters, "what the hell are you doing?"

"I'm taking pictures of the ringleaders of this demonstration for the agency. I got some really good ones."

"Are you out of your mind? We're all FBI agents demonstrating." O'Toole seemed disappointed. "You mean you don't want photos for your files?"

"No, we don't want photos of us demonstrating. What we're doing is perfectly legal. It's covered by the Constitution."

"I gotcha. I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll infiltrate the crowd with a tape recorder and check to see if anyone is talking about overthrowing the government."

"O'Toole, you don't have to do that. We're all good Americans and what we're doing is calling an injustice to the attention of the American people."

"Yeah, I've heard that one before. But someone's behind this demonstration and I think we better find out who. I hear the money's pouring in for a defense fund for the people who were indicted. It could be coming from the Soviet Union or Cuba."

ART BUCHWALD

"Dammit, O'Toole, the money for the defense fund is coming from former and present FBI agents. There is no foreign money involved. Why can't you understand we've got a legitimate grievance, and we want to see that the people who were indicted are not used as scapegoats just because the Justice Department wants blood?"

"I think we should tap the lines of the guys who were indicted. That could lead us to the source of the money, and

Ration Plans Aired

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A standby gasoline rationing plan expected to be announced next week by the Carter administration would distribute fuel in a national emergency based on the number of cars a business or family owns, congressional sources say.

Rationing is not being advocated by the administration at this time. However, a 1975 law requires a rationing plan to be on hand in the event of a national energy emergency.

Under the proposal, the more cars an individual, family or business owned, the more coupons that could be obtained. The plan does not spell out how much gasoline would be allotted for each car, other than to say the car's fuel economy would be a factor.

Energy Department officials recently briefed Senate staff members on the plan. A summary copy of the plan was obtained by Associated Press Radio.

Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger has frequently said the administration views rationing as an unattractive option — one that would be considered only in an emergency or as a last resort.

The Carter plan differs markedly from one submitted by former President Ford in January 1977, shortly before he left office. It would have based gasoline coupon allotments on the number of drivers licenses in a family.

A memo prepared by Max Friedersdorf, director of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, questioned the fairness of the Carter plan.

"If you can afford to own several cars, does that mean you should be allocated more gasoline during a shortage than someone who may be able to afford only one car?" he asked.

His memo also said that persons might buy old junk cars just to enable them to purchase more gasoline. But Friedersdorf conceded cheating could be a problem under the Ford plan, too.

Once Carter's plan is formally submitted, Congress must act on it within 60 days. If he — or a future president — decides to activate the plan, either house of Congress has 15 days in which to disapprove it.

Carter's Space Shortage

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is attempting to reorganize and strengthen his White House staff without bruising anyone's feelings — including his own.

Consider the matter of office space, an issue fraught with potential trauma for the bureaucratic psyche.

When Carter took office, he had but a single woman on a senior staff then limited to nine members. The lone woman was Margaret "Midge" Costanza, former vice mayor of Rochester, N.Y., and an early Carter backer in the Empire State.

Because the president had promised to appoint unprecedented numbers of women and blacks to federal positions, Ms. Costanza had a certain advantage in the initial rush for choice office space in the West Wing of the White House, where Carter has his own Oval Office.

To the surprise of few, Ms. Costanza was allocated space closer to Carter's own than any other member of the senior staff. Closer than Hamilton Jordan. Closer than Vice President Walter F. Mondale.

But now the president has added a second woman to the ranks of his senior advisers. She is Anne Wexler, who has enjoyed grand quarters as deputy under secretary of commerce.

Ask where Ms. Wexler will get desk space at the White House and you are greeted with blank looks.

The current housing shortage will only be aggravated when Carter ends his search for yet another senior staffer, a black.

The current leading candidate, who hasn't said yes, is Mayor Richard Hatcher of Gary, Ind., a man unlikely to take kindly to the windowless basement cubicles occupied by some of the president's men.

Which takes us to yet another problem facing Carter as he realigns personnel and functions.

At the moment, the ranking black on the staff is Martha M. "Bunny" Mitchell, who has a modest second-floor office in the West Wing, like a number of other second-echelon aides.

When Carter named Ms. Mitchell, the president said she would act as his link with blacks and with the District of Columbia government.

Naturally, the soon-to-be named higher ranking black will become the administration's chief liaison with black groups. And the scope of Ms. Mitchell's domain will be reduced correspondingly.

As for the feelings of the president himself, he doesn't want to be portrayed as one who seeks fresh help and is refused.

Before Hatcher visited the Oval Office, it was an open secret that he was being offered an appointment as a senior adviser.

Within minutes of Hatcher's departure, however, press secretary Jody Powell told reporters, "We didn't get down to any specifics about jobs."

It took mystified reporters all of 30 seconds to decide that Hatcher was undecided about joining Carter's staff. So naturally a specific job would not be offered until or unless the mayor was agreeable.

To the editor:
April 24-29 has been designated as Bike Safety Week in Greenville.

The Recreation Department and the Police Department have worked very hard to promote bike safety during this week. To help prevent theft of bikes, the Recreation Department is holding bike registration clinics at all recreation centers this week and next week. Registering a bike may not keep it from being stolen, but it does make it easier to identify.

A Bike Rodeo is planned for Saturday. This is an excellent opportunity for young people to take an active part in Bike Safety Week and learn in the process. A program for elementary-aged children has been planned, with the aid of films and booklets. We must put into action all the safety rules and regulations we read and learn or they will be of no benefit to us.

About 1,000 bicyclists are killed in the U. S. each year, with the majority involving motor vehicles. Another half million are seriously injured in accidents involving lack of skill and motor vehicles. In 1976, over half of all the adult bikers who were killed in accidents with motor vehicles contributed to their own death by crossing the road incorrectly, failing to yield right of way or by not following one of the many safety rules for bikers. Most serious accidents result from the violation of common-sense rules of the road, rather than lack of skill. The most frequent error is cycling on the wrong side of the road against the flow of traffic.

Support the Recreation Department and the Police Department in their efforts to make us all more safety-conscious.

40 Years Ago Today

April 28, 1938

Agriculture Department officials considered possible changes in the new crop program today in an effort to appease farm region of protests and complaints from midwestern corn belt farmers and those in the tobacco belt of the south.

They expressed concern over recent protest meetings in Illinois, Mississippi, Kentucky, the Carolinas and numerous letters being received at the department criticizing the program.

Most of the complaints centered, officials said, on acreage allotments being given growers of the two crops. Many farmers feel, they said, that the allotments call for "too drastic" reductions in planting. In many cases farmers are being asked to cut tobacco acreage as much as 25 percent.

While defending the program, officials said it might become necessary to enlarge the corn acreage allotment, fixed at a maximum of 97,000,000 acres, in order to allow individual growers large allotments. Such action probably would require an amendment to the new farm law, they said.

PRACTICE IS VITAL

Important as belief is in religion, practice is more important. Above everything else, religion means living in awareness of the presence of God.

Brother Lawrence, a monk who lived centuries ago, developed the art of "practicing" the presence of God — as he put it — by bringing the Spirit of God into the humble work of kitchen and field. This is the ideal toward which every truly religious person must direct his or her efforts.

If we insist on cherishing a

On Young Americans Abroad

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — In the great age of exploration a few centuries back, it was considered educational and scientific to bring a noble savage back from the Americas or Down Under and expose him to civilized London or Paris.

Sea captains returning with such trophies were invited to the best salons and drawing rooms, and quite frequently the exotic tourist from afar was passed from one great house to another, where he lived like a royal guest.

Squanto, the Indian brave who befriended the Pilgrim Fathers upon their arrival at Plymouth Rock, had made two such voyages to England.

Today one can achieve the same scientific end of exposing a primitive culture to civilized society by traveling to distant lands with teenagers, although invites to the best houses rarely result.

As one who has just journeyed some 9,000 miles to the Far East with a pair of teenagers, children of some friends, I can report that the experiment is revealing if not necessarily educational in a sociological way.

First of all, these noble savages have a slavish addiction to noise. Amid the discordant sounds of the Orient, the clang of temple bells, the horns hooting in the busy harbors, the cries of the street peddlers, American teen-agers abroad never feel secure unless engulfed, surrounded and mesmerized by a hard rock cassette music.

Rather than play the strict guardian or house master, I found it necessary in a number of foreign capitals to pick up the telephone and feign a foreign accent to quell the pandemonium.

"Ma foi, cette musique iz terrible! Unless you desist toute de suite, I call zee manager."

"— Vos is das mad music. Achtung, stop, or I breck down das door mit mein foot. Gott in himmel!"

Invariably there followed the pitter-patter of racing sneakers across the carpet and an end to the music.

But every new dining room we entered — in Auckland, Sydney, Hong Kong, Bangkok, Manila, wherever — had to be made aware of an American presence with a ritual wine glass serenade.

The urchins would wet a forefinger, run it delicately around the rim of every glass in sight until the rafters throbbed with a high pitched eerie banshee wail that built in resonance like the sound track of a Vincent Price horror film.

Teen-aged America has its own staid standards of what a world class hotel ought to be. I told them that the Orient in Bangkok, an outpost of elegance in the great days of Empire, was one of the most famous hotels in the world, having sheltered on its wide wicker-furnished veranda the likes of Joseph Conrad, Somerset Maugham and Noel Coward.

"Does that mean they'll have good cheeseburgers?" asked the 15-year-old.

Charlotte's Christian Club Forced Shut Down

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Charlotte's first commercial supper club specializing in Christian entertainment has closed its doors.

But its owners are optimistic that they'll be open on weekends in a different location within a month.

"The Lord was trying to tell us he didn't want us in this space on South Boulevard," said owner Bill Mitchell of the Celebration Christian Supper Club's location at Tyvola Mall. "I still have faith we will see this through."

Mitchell and his wife, Carolyn, who owned the club with him, first face $20,000 in bills which Mitchell says must be paid off by "myself, my wife and the Lord."

The couple has sent out 750 letters to restaurant customers, asking help in paying the bills owed to the lease company, utilities and the Internal Revenue Service.

"Many people who came to the restaurant have told us to call them if we ever need help," Mitchell said. "And we need it now." He said most of the bills must be paid by next month.

The Mitchells, who attend Belmont United Methodist Church, said the decision to close was made last Friday morning, although there were signs of the end weeks before.

"Our Friday and Saturday evening crowds were good. But we were losing money on trying to serve lunch here," Mitchell said. "We didn't have the office buildings to draw a regular crowd from."

The restaurant was open for lunch only on weekdays and dinner only on weekends.

The Mitchells decided to form a club in July, 1976, when they and some friends were embarrassed by profanity in a play at a local dinner theater.

Convinced there can be adult entertainment without obscenity, Mitchell — who says he was unemployed then — got some help from friends and began sponsoring Christian enter-

Horse Show To Be Held May 6

The 1978 Northeast District 4-H Horse Show will be held Saturday, May 6 at Ram Horn Stables.

The event, according to Mike Regans, associate extension agent in Pitt County, will involve participants from a 15-county area.

Regans said that 4-H participants between the ages of nine and 19 will compete for trophies and attempt to qualify for the State 4-H Horse Show in Raleigh. Some 39 classes will be offered with both Western and English horses and ponies participating.

Persons seeking further information on the annual event or the 4-H horse program should contact Regans at 758-1196.

Final Event of Safety Week

The final event of Bicycle Safety Week, a Bicycle Rodeo, is scheduled for Saturday at 10 a.m. at Jaycee Park and on Skinner Street at the Boys' Club.

Three age groups will be eligible to participate for certificates and trophies, according to the city Recreation and Parks Department, including third grade and below, fourth through sixth grades, and seventh grade and up.

Seven different skill tests will be scheduled for the participating cyclists, it was noted.

The rodeo is co-sponsored by the Recreation and Parks Department, the Optimist Club, the Jaycees, and the Host Lions Club.

tainment several nights a week, first at the Mint Hill Dinner Theater, then at the Century Hotel.

The next location was at the Holiday Inn North, operating one weekend a month when there was no convention. The club moved to its present location so it could operate any weekend.

Mitchell said he hasn't received a paycheck from the restaurant since December. The Mitchells have been living on the part-time salary of Mrs. Mitchell, who is a librarian at the Western North Carolina Conference United Methodist Church, and donations from friends.

The Mitchells still believe Charlotte needs and will have a Christian restaurant.

"We want to open again. It won't be at this location," Mitchell said. "I'm sure that within a month we can open up on weekends at a motel the way I had done in the past."

Through a bureaucratic quirk in the Senate, Ford's rationing plan was never formally received on Capitol Hill and the 60-day period never began. Carter withdrew the Ford plan, and the administration has been working on its own version ever since.

Meanwhile, the president's troubled energy program hit more rough going in Congress.

In what was billed as a protest vote, the House energy and power subcommittee agreed 8-1 on Thursday to block a $13 billion bill needed to keep the Energy Department functioning during the upcoming fiscal year.

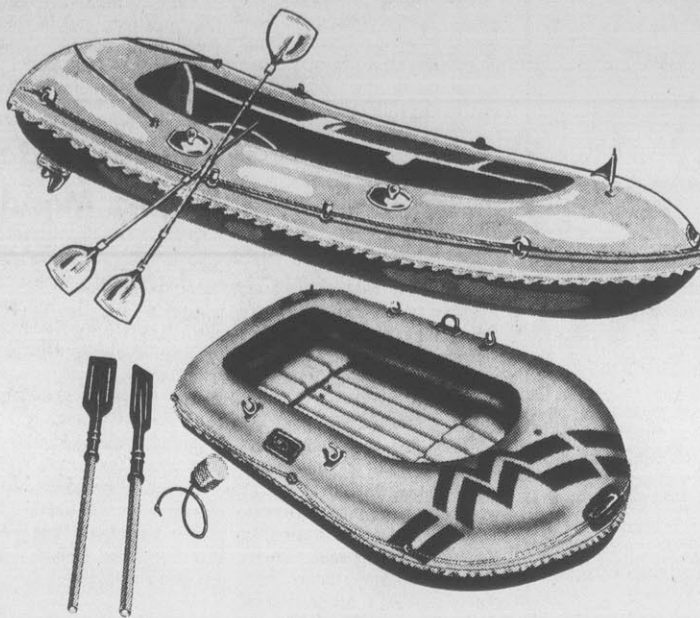

And, the Senate Finance Committee voted 11-6 on Thursday to go on record against presidential imposition of a tariff on oil imports as an alternative to the proposed crude oil tax.

The White House has suggested it might impose such a tariff if Congress fails to pass the tax.

FAA Turns To Meteorologists

WEATHER FORECAST—Today's forecast includes a band of showers extending from Washington through the northern half of the Rockies into the upper and middle Mississippi

Valley, according to the National Weather Service. Showers are also possible for parts of Texas and Oklahoma. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
Sunny skies prevailed over North Carolina today providing a welcome change from the rain, wind and mountain snows of the mid-week spring storm.

With the clearing weather also came warming temperatures. It was chilly Thursday and still cooler this morning with some low readings in the 30s. But afternoon readings were expected to be up in the lower 60s to lower 70s, and Saturday's highs are expected to be in the 70s.

Low readings this morning included 36 at Raleigh and Rocky Mount, 38 at Hickory, 39 at Goldsboro and Elizabeth City, 41 at Asheville and Greensboro, and 42 at Charlotte.

High readings Thursday as the storm blew out of the state

Still Can't Sell Old CB Radios

WASHINGTON (AP)—Used 23-channel citizen band radios still cannot be sold in this country following a government decision to uphold a Jan. 1, 1978 cutoff date for sales.

The Federal Communications Commission denied several requests Tuesday to extend the date. Earlier, the FCC declined to extend the date for new sets. Petitions for extension to sell repaired 23-channel radios as used were filed by the Davidson Supply Co. of Greensboro, N.C., and the Colorado Pawnbrokers Association.

HAMPTON, Ga. (AP)—Air traffic controllers once relied on pilots themselves to provide information about storms that could threaten an airliner.

But tragedies like the weather-related crash of a Southern Airways jet in April 1977 have spurred the Federal Aviation Administration to station meteorologists in air control centers to provide the most up-to-date weather information possible.

"Before this, we weren't as aware of the weather ... we didn't have as good information," said Bill Clark, project supervisor at the Atlanta air traffic control center in Hampton. "We depended on the pilot himself. He is up there. He can see it."

Accurate as that on-the-scene information was, it didn't give much advance warning of weather developments.

And Clark said information received by the air controllers from the National Weather Service through normal means sometimes was old before they received it.

The meteorologists experimentally stationed at Hampton, about 20 miles south of Atlanta, can give instant weather developments covering 80,000 square miles to air traffic controllers, he said.

Meteorologists have been placed at FAA's Atlanta center and several similar facilities to test whether the additional service "is worth having," Clark said.

The project is not a direct result of the crash of Southern Airways Flight 242 near New Hope, Ga., during an intense hailstorm, Clark said. But the deaths of 72 people in the crash

"accelerated it," he said. "Everybody seems to be more conscious of it (weather) since Southern," he said. "Southern just brought it home again, darn it — storms to bring airplanes down."

Clark said the controllers' main task still is separating aircraft, and each airline still is responsible for providing its pilots with weather information.

But controllers now can take the weather into account in keeping traffic flowing smoothly, he said.

New equipment also has been added to the air traffic center, including three weather radars.

Clark said air traffic radar does not show a detailed picture of clouds and other weather formations, while the weather radars can differentiate among six levels of storm intensity.

"We must be more weather conscious," he said. "These people are here to provide us with that information.

"I guess before, it was a kind of hurry up and catch up situation. Now it's an advanced warning situation."

Fighting Rages On After Report Of Afghan Coup

By BARRY SHLACHTER
Associated Press Writer
NEW DELHI, India (AP) — More fighting was reported today in Kabul, the capital of Afghanistan, despite broadcast claims that rebel troops led by an air force commander had "eliminated" President Mohammed Daoud.

Afghanistan's borders and airports closed, and all commercial communication channels were cut. But Western diplomats in New Delhi said their embassies in Kabul reported about 200 bodies were seen in the streets.

There was no report on the situation in the important military centers of Kandhar and Herat, and one diplomat commented: "To seize Kabul is not to seize Afghanistan. Resistance in the form of guerrilla warfare could continue for months."

The rebels led by Lt. Gen. Dagarwal Abdul Qadir launched the coup Thursday with tanks and jet fighters.

MOHAMMAD DAUD

ringing key government buildings and capturing the Defense Ministry, the diplomats said.

Fierce fighting raged through the night in sections of the city where two army divisions are based, the sources reported. By sunrise it had subsided somewhat but small-arms fire could still be heard.

Meanwhile, the air force's Soviet Su-7 fighters fired rockets down Darulaman Road in the center of the city toward the Justice Ministry and the headquarters of the army central corps. The informants said the planes encountered heavy anti-aircraft fire, and one plane was shot down.

A heavy pall of smoke hung over the city of 500,000, and no civilians were seen out of doors, the sources said. Rebel troops surrounded some Western embassies and refused to permit diplomats to leave their compounds.

In Washington, the State Department said there are about 1,300 Americans in Kabul, and it had no reports that any of them had been injured.

Diplomats in New Delhi had no concrete information on the fate of the 69-year-old president, who took over the government in a military coup in 1973, or his family. But the news announced on Radio Afghanistan today declared: "Daoud is gone forever. Daoud has been eliminated forever by the will of the people of Afghanistan."

Unconfirmed reports said the former royal palace in which the president lived had been reduced to rubble by fire from 50 tanks.

A broadcast said the new Military Revolutionary Council abolished the 1977 constitution and ordered top military officers to report to the Defense Ministry and "be punished by military law."

Abdul Qadir said in an earlier broadcast that the new government will follow a foreign policy of "strict" non-alignment, but diplomats in Delhi refused to speculate on the political orientation of the Military Revolutionary Council.

Surrounded by the Soviet Union, Pakistan and Iran, landlocked Afghanistan has traditional close ties with its big Communist neighbor, and the Soviet Union is its major trading partner. But it also receives aid from the United States.

An Afghan diplomat in New Delhi said Abdul Qadir is about 40 and took part in Daoud's 1973 coup. At that time he commanded an air base.

Can't Reject Inmate Suit

Club Staging Two Plays

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A federal appeals court has ruled that the state of North Carolina may not summarily reject claims of mistreatment by a group of inmates in 13 prisons across the state.

The 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals overturned a ruling by U.S. District Judge Woodrow Jones of Asheville. He had dismissed the complaint on grounds the complaints were not supported by factual evidence.

Jones also said he was reluctant "to take over the control and management" of North Carolina prisons.

The complaint was brought by a group of 29 inmates, supported by the North Carolina Civil Liberties Union.

The prisoners charged that they were given inadequate medical and dental care, that authorities interfered with their personal mail and legal rights and that the prisons were overcrowded and had poor food and inadequate educational and recreational programs.

A spokesman for the state attorney general's office said officials will not reach a decision on whether to appeal the ruling to the U.S. Supreme Court until they have studied the opinion.

Two plays will be presented by the D. H. Conley Literary Club to the student body Wednesday.

The plays are "Headin' for the Hills" and "The Laughing Ghost."

Characters of "Headin' for the Hills" are Tim Avery, Sherri Lawrence, Windy Bowen, Terry Cobb, Cathy Vandiford, Neil Johnson, Eddie Woodall, Greg Stokes, Kathy Drabicki, Kelly Humphreys, Steve McLawhorn, Kim Killenberger, Carol Morris, Carol Kittrell, Stacey Hibbard, Christy Gurganus, Kinsey Worthington, Michael Benton, Tony Cannon, Frank Eastwood, Cheryl Lanzo, Carolyn Lawrence, Christy Lawrence, Davis Williams, Todd Humphreys and Carlton Wooten.

Characters of "The Laughing Ghost" are Charlie Lockamy, Sherri Lewis, James Tetterton, Patricia Branch, Vanessa Barrett, Lois Bazen, Denise Buchanan, and Kelly Humphreys.

Admission is $1. Proceeds will be given to Billy Justice, a former D. H. Conley wrestling champion who is battling leukemia now.

Talbot Charges Are Dismissed

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A district court judge has dismissed charges against two insurance companies and their presidents in connection with corporate contributions to a 1977 inauguration breakfast for Insurance Commissioner John Ingram, who now is a Democratic candidate for the U. S. Senate.

Wake District Attorney J. Randolph Riley gave notice following Thursday's ruling that he would appeal to Superior Court.

George Talbot, president of Charlotte Liberty Mutual Insurance Co., Walter B. Clark of Fayetteville, president of Mid-South Insurance Co., and the two firms had been charged with diverting company money for political purposes in violation of state campaign laws.

Talbot and Clark both acknowledged writing a company check in the amount of $500 to help finance the breakfast for Ingram, who contended that since he already had been elected the money did not constitute a campaign contribution. Talbot appeared in court with his attorney but Clark did not participate, having agreed earlier to a continuance of his case. However, after the hearing, Clark's attorney, Richard M. Wiggins, asked Judge S. Pretlow Winborne to dismiss charges against Clark also, and the judge agreed.

Pretlow ruled in each case that the law would be unconstitutional if it could be interpreted broadly enough to cover the inauguration breakfast.

"That's exactly what we've said all along," Ingram said after the ruling. "It had nothing to do with the re-election campaign."

Guernica Case Probe Is Asked

BILBAO, Spain (AP) — Spanish and foreign historians have petitioned the government for a full investigation of the bombing during the Civil War of the Basque town of Guernica on April 26, 1937.

The town was nearly destroyed by Nazi bombers supporting the Nationalist rebels led by Gen. Francisco Franco. Franco's forces claimed the destruction was the work of local Communists.

The historians also asked that Picasso's famous painting inspired by the bombing be returned from New York and placed in the town.

Other Items Taken Up In Zoning Meet

Several additional items of business were handled by the Planning and Zoning Commission at Wednesday night's meeting.

The action included: — Endorsement of proposed floodway regulations and recommendation by the board for adoption by the City Council;

— Approval of the final plat of Country Squire Estates, Section I, located off Highway 33;

— Approval of the preliminary plat of Section I of River Bend Estates, located on the north side of the Tar River, west of the Pitt-Greenville Airport and abutting the old River Road;

— Receipt of the first draft of the state's urban policy statement; and — Scheduling of a special meeting for May 10 at 7:30 p.m. to consider new regulations governing adult uses.

In recommending six to two that the City Council approve the request of Leroy Cherry and Associates to rezone 21.6 acres at the intersection of Norfolk Southern Railroad and 14th Street Extension from R-9 and RA-20 to R-6 and R-9, commissioners E. E. Howell, Bill Heymann, J. T. Manning, Bill Gibbs, Elbert Mills and Mrs. Ann Worthington voted in favor of the motion, while Mrs. Ruth Trevathan and Wes Hankins opposed the matter.

Forced 20,000 Abandon Homes

DACCA, Bangladesh (AP) — The Burmese army has forced more than 20,000 people to abandon their homes in north-west Burma and flee into Bangladesh in the past week, observers report. There was speculation that the mass expulsion is part of a new drive against rebellious Moslem hill tribes in northern Burma.

More than 8,000 Burmese fled across the border earlier this month, the officials said.

Many of the refugees were wounded and told of torture, rape, looting and arson by the army, the officials reported.

Banking Commissioner, Deputy Resign After Report On Inquiry

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State Banking Commissioner John R. Tropman and his deputy, Jesse L. Yeargan, resigned Thursday, three days after an investigative report on the department was given to Gov. Jim Hunt.

State Secretary of Commerce D.M. "Lauch" Faircloth said the banking department "was not supervised as closely as it should have been." He said Tropman's resignation would be effective immediately.

Yeargan was suspended with pay from his post last Aug. 17 after the FBI was told Yeargan had accepted a gift of a $1,600 burglar alarm system from the Northwestern Bank in North Wilkesboro.

The News and Observer of Raleigh quoted unidentified sources as saying Tropman would be offered another job in state government, in a department not under the governor's control.

Tropman, 64, and Yeargan, 46, had worked in the banking department for more than 20 years each.

Tropman said in his resignation letter to Hunt, made public Thursday, he had "learned you are not satisfied with my performance as commissioner of banks. Obviously that situation is mutually intolerable. I am, therefore, in the public interest and because of the importance of the position, tendering my resignation as commissioner of banks to you effective as of a date that you determine to be suitable."

Faircloth said the action by Tropman, 64, who was appointed banking commissioner in 1976, resigned "in the interest of permitting the commission to get on with its work and to remove the cloud of suspicion that has been raised by the investigation of Deputy Banking Commissioner Jesse L. Yeargan."

Bradford, 58, is a retired partner of Ernst and Ernst, a nationally known accounting firm.

After submitting a financial disclosure statement to Faircloth, Bradford was sworn in to serve until a permanent replacement for Tropman is found.

An employee of the banking department since 1956, Tropman was named commissioner by former Gov. James Holshouser. He had served as deputy commissioner since 1966 and his term as commissioner was to have expired April 1, 1979.

The FBI notified Yeargan last summer it was investigating his acceptance of a burglar alarm from a Northwestern Bank subsidiary in 1975. Although Yeargan paid for the $1,800 alarm shortly after the FBI probe began, the SBI later entered the case and made a report to Hunt and Faircloth Monday.

"Based on the confidential reports given to me by the FBI and the State Bureau of Investigation, I believe that the banking department was not supervised as closely as it should have been," Faircloth said.

Two Collisions Here Yesterday

An estimated $3,000 damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Heaviest damage, officers reported, resulted from a 5:50 p.m. collision at the intersection of Red Banks Road and Charles Street and involved cars driven by Mary Mitchell Kaiser of Route 1, Clayton and William Calvin Sanderson Jr. of 516 Westchester Dr.

Damage to the vehicles was set at $600 to the Kaiser car and $1,800 to the Sanderson auto.

Cars driven by David Earl Brown of Route 3, Greenville, and Michael Leroy Hillis of Azalea Gardens collided about 4:47 p.m. at the intersection of 14th and Chestnut Streets, causing an estimated $150 damage to the Brown car and $450 damage to the Hillis auto.

Late Easter For Six Million Americans

To Conduct Bible Study

The Rev. Judi J. Smith will conduct a study of the women of the Bible at Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church's Chapel Sunday and Monday at 7:30.

REV. JUDI SMITH

Rev. Smith, pastor of Pilmoor Memorial United Methodist Church, Currituck, is in the second year of her first pastorate. She was ordained Deacon in June, 1975, and will receive her Elder's orders this June. She is a graduate of Meredith College with a B. A. degree and of Duke Divinity School with a Master of Divinity.

The senior minister, the Rev. James H. Bailey, invited all interested persons.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—More than a month after most Christians celebrated Easter, Eastern Orthodox believers are doing it. The reasons are meshed in the quirks of time and religious history. But for about six million Americans, this Sunday is the "great day."

"Christos Anesti" — "The Lord is Risen!" Greek Orthodox Archbishop Iakovos resounded that gospel news in a message to be read in Saturday midnight services. "What joy, what beauty that message contains! What warmth, what radiance, what spirit!"

There is a touch of the poetic, graphically affirming the inexpressible in the eastern churches' response to the mysteries of faith, contrasting with the rationalizing tendencies of western churches.

That confident and vivid imagery was in rich effusion in the Orthodox rites as they marked events of Easter week with moving liturgies of the cross, the icon of Jesus and tapestried bier of burial, the dramatic chants and chorales, mournful and then exalting at the resurrection, a darkened cathedral flaming with countless lighted candles, in procession.

"And in that blinding flash that bursts from the empty tomb, all things tremble and are suffused with light," Archbishop Iakovos says in his message. "As the rays of the sun disperse the gloom, so is sorrow banished from men's faces, displaced by the transforming glow of resurrection joy."

The differences in dating Easter between eastern and western churches is an age-old problem, and Protestantism, Roman Catholicism and Eastern Orthodoxy all have indicated they favor a common date, both for practical clarity and to show forth unity — rather than division — of faith.

But officially authorizing steps still are to be taken.

Under the present pattern, western Christianity (Roman Catholicism and Protestantism), hold their celebrations on the first Sunday following the first full moon after the vernal equinox on March 21. Even in this tradition, because of variations in the moon's cycle, the Easter date varies over a month-long period of spring, anytime from March 22 to April 25. This year, it was early — March 26.

Eastern Orthodoxy, including 14 branches in this country such as Ukrainian, Antiochian and Carpatho-Russian, uses the same formula but with one exception — Easter always must come after start of the Jewish Passover.

Some time ago, the World Council of Churches polled Protestant denominations and found most favor a fixed date for Easter, the Sunday following the second Saturday in April. That would make it always fall between April 9 and 15.

The Vatican has indicated willingness to settle on such a date.

Eastern Orthodox leaders also have favored a common date—as a "sign and a reminder" that Christianity is one, says Orthodox Ecumenical Patriarch Demetrios I, spiritual leader of all Orthodoxy.

But no action is expected until Orthodox bodies convene their long-awaited Pan-Orthodox Synod, long planned but still unscheduled.

Singing Program Slated Sunday

A singing will be held at the Greenville Church of God Sunday beginning at 2:30 p.m.

The featured singers will be the Victory Singers of Clayton. Local singers will also be featured.

The public is invited to attend.

Peace... without stillness. One of the marks of the world God made.

Small avalanches rumble in the distant mountains as the spring thaw advances. Every hemlock sprig is bursting with new growth. In the sky as in the river there is life and motion, restlessness and questing. Peace... without stillness.

Doesn't that tell us something about our own quest in the world God made? Peace without stillness is one of the supreme longings of mankind. It seems to HAPPEN when every thing or person realizes his mission and pursues it.

Next Sunday you'll have a precious opportunity to join your neighbors at church. That's where folks are seeking — and finding — their mission in the world God made.

German Native Made 'Dixie' Famous

By Dr. H.G. JONES
For the Associated Press
 CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Dan Emmett, an Ohio minstrel, created the song "Dixie" in New York in 1859, but it was left to a German native who vacationed in western North Carolina to write down the music.

It happened that Emmett, who sang the words to an improvised air in its New York debut, later in the same year appeared in a minstrel show in Montgomery, Ala., where he sang "Dixie" again.

In the audience was Herman Frank Arnold to whom the strains sounded very much like an old German hymn that he had sung back in his native land.

Arnold boldly approached Emmett at intermission and asked him to hum the tune again. As he did, Arnold reduced it to score on the wall of the theater. It was the first time the song had ever been written in music.

This first scrawl on the theater wall was crudely written, the tune was later copied, polished, and orchestrated by Arnold. He then published 50 copies. A photographic copy of the original manuscript is preserved in the Alabama State Archives.

In 1861, Arnold's band was invited to play during the inauguration of Jefferson Davis as president of the Confederate States of America. The band played "Dixie" twice — at the head of the parade and during the raising of the Confederate flag in Alabama.

Davis is said to have been so pleased with the virtually unknown tune that he suggested to Arnold that it would make a fine national air for the South.

As the Civil War progressed, the song became increasingly popular, even though it had been composed by a Northerner.

Frank Arnold migrated from Prussia to Memphis in 1857. There, and later at Montgomery, he taught music and conducted a band. His wife, the former Victoria Luciana, lived for a number of years in Wilmington, N. C., and also was a musician.

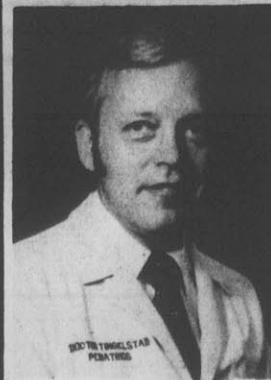

For many years, the couple spent a part of each summer in Asheville. He died in 1927, she in 1928.

The Asheville chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy decided to commemorate Arnold's role in popularizing "Dixie." On Oct. 6, 1929, a marker to him was unveiled in the "Open Air Westminster Abbey of the South" at Calvary Episcopal Church in Fletcher, near Asheville.

Throughout his life Arnold was careful to point out that the words and original tune were the creations of Dan Emmett, and that he, Arnold, had only written down and polished up the score.

"Dixie" has become controversial in recent years, but it is worth noting that the song was written by a Northern, sung first in New York, and reduced to writing by an immigrant.

Assassination Witness Leaves Mental Center

BOLIVAR, Tenn. (AP) — A 62-year-old mental patient who says she saw the man who killed Martin Luther King Jr. 10 years ago has been released from Western Mental Health Institute.

Grace Walden was released Tuesday to a sheltered boarding home in Memphis, hospital superintendent Dr. Morris Cohen said Thursday. Her confinement had been criticized by clergymen who reject the official account of King's April 4, 1968 slaying.

Cohen said Mrs. Walden will continue to receive care from the University of Tennessee Mental Health Center in Memphis.

Mrs. Walden, who lived in a Main Street hotel where the King assassin fired his fatal shot, says she saw a man running down the hotel hallway after King was shot to death on the balcony of the nearby Lorraine Motel.

She has been confined to the Bolivar hospital since July 1,

1968. Cohen said earlier this month she was suffering from "chronic brain syndrome, I suspect due to abuse of alcohol."

On the 10th anniversary of King's death earlier this month, a group of clergymen issued a statement demanding Mrs. Walden's release.

Among those signing the statement were the Rev. Jesse Jackson of Chicago, a former King aide, and the Most Rev. Carroll Dozier, Roman Catholic bishop of Memphis.

The clergymen say Mrs. Walden was confined in the hospital because she refused to identify James Earl Ray as the man she saw fleeing from the hotel.

"Grace Walden was the one witness who saw the assassin flee from the rooming house bathroom after he fired the shot that killed Dr. King," the clergymen's statement said.

"When James Earl Ray was arrested, she was shown his photograph by agents of the FBI and by Memphis police officers ... After she refused to identify Ray she was arrested ... and placed in a mental institution."

Ray, who is serving a 99-year prison term in East Tennessee as the result of his 1969 guilty plea, was not arrested until after Mrs. Walden had been committed to the Bolivar hospital.

Lifesaving Site Saved

RODANTHE, N.C. (AP) — A year-long fight to preserve the Chicamacomico Lifesaving Station was successfully completed Thursday when the Chicamacomico Historical Association was presented a deed to the site.

Walter R. Davis purchased the lifesaving station from Outer Banks developer E.S. Younce earlier this year and donated it to the historic association. Younce had bought the property at a public auction for $95,000.

The historical association, headed by Carolista Baum, began a campaign to preserve the lifesaving station last year. The 10-acre tract and buildings had reverted to heirs of the original owners, who had given the property for the construction of the station in 1874.

The inherited shares of the property had been subdivided among more than 150 people across the United States during the past 104 years. The historical association began raising money to buy the property after several heirs petitioned for a court auction of the site.

The CHA has raised about $50,000, which it will use for restoration of the buildings and creation of a national U.S. Lifesaving Service Museum.

Located on Hatteras Island, the Chicamacomico station was abandoned by the U.S. Coast Guard in 1954 when the rescue outpost was deemed outmoded by modern ocean-travel monitoring equipment.

Surfmen of Chicamacomico Station received six of the 11 Grand Crosses of the American Cross of Honor presented for "unusual and extraordinary heroism" in the 1918 rescue of the torpedoed British tanker "Mirlo."

Review Team Visits 2 Pitt County Schools

A review team from the statewide Interagency Council on Community Schools visited two Pitt County schools Wednesday to review programs in progress following a regional meeting in Williamston, designed to give community school coordinators an opportunity to share program progress with council members.

Pitt County Community Schools coordinator Alice Keene and the assistant coordinator Anne Creech, who attended the Williamston session, accompanied council members to the Wellcome Middle School and the Bethel School to outline facilities across the county.

Ms. Keene said plans are being developed to carry out the purposes of the Community School Act which is designed to encourage greater community involvement in the public schools and to encourage greater community use of school facilities.

The coordinator said, "This will be done in a variety of ways, including volunteer programs, an advisory council, establishing rules and regulations for use of facilities, and by working with other community agencies."

Ms. Creech continued, "We certainly welcome input and suggestions from the community," and encouraged interested citizens, "to get involved," by calling the county school office, 752-6106, extension 58.

The Interagency Council on Community Schools was appointed by Gov. Jim Hunt and works directly with the State Superintendent of Public Instruction to encourage the involvement of statewide agencies with the public schools.

Says Tradition Was Obscured

PROVIDENCE, R. I. (AP)—Roman Catholic Bishop Louis Gelineau says the reception of Holy Communion by Catholic nuns and other Catholics at a service led by a woman Episcopal priest was "a scandal" and a "serious error" against church law.

The service was conducted by the Rev. Elizabeth Habecker, rector of St. Ann's Episcopal Church at Wyndham, Maine, following a lecture to about 50 people at McAuley House, operated by the Sisters of Mercy to feed the poor. Nearly all present, including nuns, were reported to have received communion.

Claims Church Law Violated

NEW YORK (AP)—Eugene Fisher, director of the Roman Catholic bishops' Secretariate for Catholic-Jewish relations, says that as Christians learn to understand the Jewishness of Jesus they grow in appreciation of Judaism as a permanent way of salvation.

In a new book, "Faith Without Prejudice" (Paulist Press), he says one of the church's most ancient traditions is that "the Jews as Jews have a vital role to play in the economy of salvation," but that tradition became obscured through the centuries as Christianity lost contact with its historical roots.

John Wayne Is Home — Frisky

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The Duke is home and feeling frisky after a four-week hospital stint in Boston for open-heart surgery.

John Wayne, wearing the wide-brimmed Stetson that has been his movie trademark, trotted eagerly off a private jet at Santa Ana's Orange County Airport on Thursday and told a throng of reporters: "It's sure good to be home."

The 70-year-old actor, who had surgery to replace a ruptured heart valve with a similar valve from a pig, was embraced by his two daughters, Aissa and Melinda, as he hustled off the jet. He was accompanied on the flight by sons Patrick and Michael and a doctor from Boston.

"I've got a close family, thank God," Wayne said, adding that the good wishes from his fans across the country had been so moving that "I want to cry."

During his hospitalization, thousands of letters poured in from around the world. Even President Carter called and told Michael Wayne that his father was "a great national asset."

Wayne said he would almost immediately begin work on a new movie. "I'm going to go to my house, lie down for a couple of days and then start working on a script," Wayne said. He told reporters in Boston that the movie, entitled "Beau John," was "a helluva good story."

At first, Wayne said, the operation at Massachusetts General Hospital scared him. He used his given name, Marion Morrison, when he checked into the hospital March 29 under a shroud of secrecy.

Judge Delays Abortion Law

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — A federal judge issued a 32-day restraining order that bars Akron's new abortion ordinance from taking effect Monday.

U.S. District Judge Leroy Contie Jr. granted a request by lawyers of the American Civil Liberties Union Thursday. Conti said he wants to analyze the effect of the ordinance, enacted Feb. 28 by the City Council, before issuing a final ruling.

The ordinance requires that women considering an abortion be told 24 hours before the procedure that they may suffer emotional problems, sterility or complications as a result. It also requires parental consent for females under 15 and notification of the parents of females under 18 before an abortion is performed.

Helms Sees Rountree Rated Futile Step Among Top 5

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., says the Treasury Department's decision to sell 1.8 million ounces of gold is a futile attempt to bolster the American dollar.

"The sale of gold will no more help the dollar over the long haul than throwing a sandbag into a rampaging river will halt the flow," Helms said.

"The sale of gold will net about $300 million over the next six months," he said. "That is the equivalent of about 4 percent of the growth in the money supply — not much in the way of 'soaking up dollars.'"

Helms, who opposes the sale of United States gold to foreign and international banks and gold dealers, is sponsoring legislation stipulating that any sale of gold by the government would have to be in the form of one and one-half ounce gold medallions.

The North Carolina Republican said the federal government's gold supplies are too important to sell and that it should be treated in the same manner as other natural resources.

A survey of legislators, lobbyists and legislative reporters, conducted by the North Carolina Center for Public Policy Research, Inc. of Raleigh ranks Pitt Rep. Horton Rountree among the top five members of the House of Representatives in effectiveness.

The survey, just published, lists House Speaker Carl Steward, D-Gaston, and Sen. Kenneth C. Royall, D-Durham as the most influential members of the North Carolina General Assembly.

McCovey's Bat Rips Atlanta For Giants

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The Atlanta Braves got the short end of the stick — from the long end of Willie McCovey's bat.

The truest Giant of the San Francisco Giants, McCovey took some hard swings at the Braves Thursday night and knocked them down with a three-run double and a solo homer.

McCovey's big game added up to a 5-3 victory for San Francisco and another step in the slugger's quest for the prestigious 500-homer plateau.

"Five hundred has been on my mind for a few years," said McCovey, whose home run Thursday was the 496th of his career. "It's a nice, round figure. I'd rather have 500 than say, 498. It just reads better."

McCovey's bases-loaded double capped a first-inning rally that got the Giants off to a fast 3-0 lead. His homer in the sixth gave the Giants a 4-3 advantage and their winning run after the Braves had come back to tie the game.

The contest was the only other National League game played Thursday night. In the American League, the California Angels whipped the Seattle Mariners 5-1; the Minnesota Twins defeated the Oakland A's 6-1; the Toronto Blue Jays downed the Kansas City Royals 8-7 and the Texas Rangers trimmed the Cleveland Indians 3-1.

While McCovey was doing his thing at the plate, another left-hander of note also provided some solid help to the San Francisco cause. Vida Blue scattered seven hits to win his second game in three decisions since coming to the National League from the Oakland A's shortly before the season started.

double capping the rally.

Blue Jays 8, Royals 7
Willie Upshaw cracked a two-out, two-run double in the ninth inning as Toronto rallied to beat Kansas City. Rico Carty drove in five runs with a pair of home runs for the Blue Jays, who completed a two-game sweep of the Royals while handing them their third straight loss.

Rangers 3, Indians 1
Mike Hargrove hit his third home run in as many games and Jon Matlack and Len Barker combined on a nine-hitter as Texas beat Cleveland. Hargrove, mired in a .196 slump at game time, slammed a two-run homer off Cleveland starter Rick Waits in the fifth inning to provide the Rangers with the winning edge.

Matlack scattered eight singles before leaving the game with one out in the ninth inning in favor of Barker.

The 6-7, 180-pounder is the second signee announced by the second-year Pirate head coach.

During his senior year at Springfield Tech, he averaged 19 points per game, and 10 rebounds. He was named All-City and All-Western Massachusetts. This past season at Wilbraham and Monson Academy, he averaged 19.8 points, 13 rebounds on a 19-3 team.

Gillman said that McLaurin chose East Carolina over Holy Cross in his final decision.

"Mark is a left-hander and this will add a new dimension to the team. The year in prep-school really helped him, and he should be able to add some outside scoring punch to our team. He was impressed with our returning talent, and this helped him make his decision," Gillman said.

Already signed by the Pirates is 6-10 1/2 Al Tyson of nearby D.H. Conley High School.

NCHSAA Okays Outside Play

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina High School Athletic Association has removed most restrictions on prep athletes participating in fund-raising sports activities.

The association took the action during a meeting held in Chapel Hill Wednesday and Thursday.

Officials said the NCHSAA board of directors decided that high school athletes may compete in fund-raising contests provided the events do not occur on the same day as a school contest and that no loss of school time is involved.

The state Board of Education recently announced it has removed the double-participation regulation for high school athletes, subject to the same restrictions.

The NCHSAA board also voted to renew a five-year 4-A playoff format in football and basketball. It adopted a new draw to determine specific pairings for the playoffs.

In other action, the board decided to poll the association's membership concerning proposals to:

- conduct wrestling playoffs at 16 sectional sites, with the individual winners qualifying for the state tournament.

Undefeated Frank Tanana fired a four-hitter for his fifth victory to lead California past Seattle. Tanana walked two batters and struck out three.

Twins 6, A's 1
Right-hander Gary Serun, making his first major league start, pitched a five-hitter and struck out six as Minnesota beat Oakland and snapped the A's eight-game winning streak. At the same time, the victory ended Minnesota's nine-game losing streak.

The Twins took a 2-0 lead off loser Allan Wirth in the second with Willie Norwood's RBI

Lady Rams Take Win

SNOW HILL — Melody Hamm went 3-4 and hit a two-run homer to lead Greene Central's softball team to a 10-2 victory over Southern Nash yesterday.

The Lady Rams built up a 10-0 lead before allowing Southern Nash to score a pair of runs in the seventh.

Cindy Creech, Alberta Sutton and Iris Pridden were each 2-4 in the hitting department for Greene Central, which is now 9-1 overall and 4-1 in the Eastern Carolina Conference.

The Lady Rams play at North Lenoir on Tuesday.

Ken Smith Resigns Sports Info Position

Ken Smith, sports information director at East Carolina University for the past four years, has resigned that position, according to Athletic Director Bill Cain. The resignation becomes effective at the end of May.

In addition to serving as the sports information director, Smith served as coordinator of the school's Pirate Sports Network for the past three years.

"I leave with mixed emotions," Smith said, "but I have no choice but to accept a very enhancing management position with a growing firm in Greensboro. One must consider future directions and advancement possibilities, and with that in mind, I feel this decision is best for my future interests."

"My four years with the Pirate athletic department has been very rewarding to me, and I hope to the school as well."

Smith came to East Carolina in the fall of 1974 after previously serving as sports director of a High Point radio station.

A native of Rockingham, Smith graduated from Ragsdale High School in Jamestown in 1967 and received his B.A. degree from the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill in 1971, with a double major in journalism and radio-tv-motion pictures.

While at East Carolina, three sports brochures compiled by the staff under Smith won national recognition. In 1972, Smith was named an Outstanding Young Man of America.

Under Smith's coordination, the Pirate Sports Network grew from only ten radio stations in 1975 to 25 stations last season. Also, basketball tripled in stations on the network during that same period of time.

Smith has held memberships in the College Sports Information Directors Association of American, National Association of Sports Writers and Sportscasters, Sigma Delta Chi, United States Basketball Writers Association, Carolinas Golf Reporters Association and the North Carolina Association of Sports Broadcasters.

The search for a successor to Smith is currently underway by athletic director Bill Cain.

Lee Looks Back, Gary There

Blackouts Get New Hearing

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer
 NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Lee Trevino took a long look over his shoulder at his friend Gary Player, four shots back going into today's second round of the $200,000 New Orleans Open Golf Tournament.

"He's gonna be a tough man to beat," Trevino said. "He is the perfect example of determination. He never gives up."

"A lot of us out here, we start playing bad and we're Hollywooding it, back-handing putts and just trying to finish and get off the golf course and go home. And there's little Gary out there grinding away, trying to hole it from the fairway for a 12."

"He never quits on you, no matter what."

"His motto is, 'It's never over until the last ball is in the hole.' He just keeps trying, just keeps coming at you. He's tough. And he's tough to beat."

Trevino took advantage of ideal playing conditions and a manicured 7,080-yard Lakewood Country Club course to fire a spectacular, 7-under-par 65 that put him a single shot in front of the field and four ahead of Player.

The South African didn't make a bogey on his way to a 69. "I'm quite satisfied," he said. "I didn't hole as many putts as I have been lately, but I'm not complaining. It was a nice round of golf."

Player came into this event with three consecutive comebacks under his belt and seeking to become only the third man in PGA Tour history to win four consecutive tournaments.

"He's got it going and he's got all the confidence in the world," Trevino said. "They talk about pressure. He doesn't have any pressure, because nobody expects him to win four in a row. He can free-wheel it. He's gonna be a tough man to beat."

Trevino's 35-foot birdie putt on the final hole lifted him a single stroke ahead of soft-spoken Mark Hayes, who would have had a share of the top spot but for a three-putt bogey on the 18th that left him with a 66.

Tied at 67 were Ray Floyd, Bob E. Smith and Homero Blancas, who one-putted 11 times. In the big group at 68 were former New Orleans Open winner Miller Barber and Andy Bean, a runner-up to Player last week in Houston.

Tom Watson took a triple bogey-7 on the first hole and finished with a 73. The two-time winner this season was tied at that figure with defending titlist Jim Simons.

MIAMI (AP) — The long battle over television blackouts of National Football League games that are sold out in advance headed for a renewal today, with a committee of Congress doing the officiating.

The House Subcommittee on Communications scheduled a hearing on bills that would restrict the power of the NFL to prohibit local television broadcast of games sold out ahead of time.

From 1973 to 1975, Congress banned blackouts of games sold out 72 hours in advance. Since the law expired, the NFL has voluntarily complied with its provisions — apparently to ward off even more restrictive federal legislation.

The subcommittee plans another hearing later in Washington, but opened its deliberations here because the Miami Dolphins present "a good case study," says one staff member.

Dolphins owner Joe Robbie is a vigorous opponent of halting blackouts. Robbie says paid attendance for Dolphins games dropped from an NFL record 551,000 in 1973 to 369,000 last year, and season ticket sales fell from 74,961 to 34,838 over the same period.

But over the same span, the Dolphins also cooled as an attraction, fading from two-time Super Bowl champions to a team that missed the NFL playoffs.

Robbie and Tampa Bay Buccaneers owner Hugh Culverhouse were among the invited witnesses, along with lawyer Ellis Rubin, who has waged an anti-blackout campaign since 1970, filing 11 suits in Miami, Los Angeles, New Orleans and Washington.

Of three proposals before Congress, even the mildest would reinstate the original law through 1980. That bill was introduced by Rep. Paul Rogers, D-West Palm Beach.

Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., has offered a tougher version that would impose a permanent ban and reduce the sellout deadline to 48 hours.

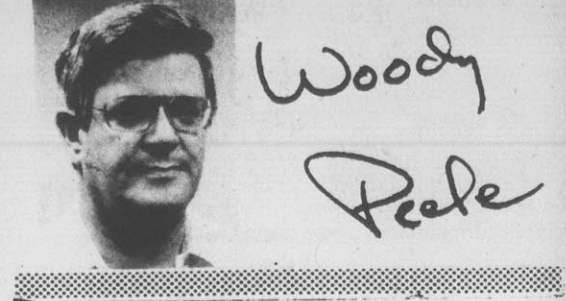

Griffin is ranking Republican member of the communications subcommittee in the Senate.

The most stringent bill has been offered jointly in the House and Senate by Rep. John Florio, D-N.J., and Sen. Don Riegle Jr., D-Mich., with support of the Ralph Nader sports consumer group. "Fight to Advance the Nation's Sports" — FANS. That measure proposes a 48-hour deadline, but requires only a 95 percent sellout. And it would reduce the area blacked out to a 30-mile radius instead of 75.

The NFL says ticket sales have suffered because of the ban. Since 1973, the league says, 26 teams lost 185,000 season ticket sales. The figures do not include expansion teams Tampa and Seattle.

"If we don't have bodies in those seats, either through lack of sales or no-shows," NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle told club owners at their annual meeting last month, "the importance of our league and of our teams is going to hit the chute, and that'll be reflected in television ratings, money and everything else."

Michigan State football coach Darryl Rogers was voted Big Ten Coach of the Year in 1977.

Brook Valley Golf and Country Club
 Austin Britt proved a good leader for his team in a Superball Tournament held at Brook Valley Golf and Country Club last weekend.

Britt, playing with Earl Bruton, Tommy Lane and Ray Roy Thompson, got a hole-in-one on the fifth hole, using a three-wood. The ace, his second, enabled his team to win the event by one shot with a 61.

Second place went to Bernie Warren, Charlie Berkey, Bob Glutting and Tom Murchison with a 62, while Steve Raynor, John Jackson, Bill Reynolds and Carlos Murray were third at 64. Mike Bach, Gene Briley, Joey McGroarty and Andy Boles were fourth with 64, while Boley Farley, Louis Clark, Dick Stephenson and Ernie Holt were fifth with 65. A total of 18 teams participated.

The Mets, Without 'Top' Hurler, Leading In Earned Run Average

NEW YORK (AP) — Look who's leading the National League in earned run average — the supposedly pitching-poor New York Mets.

With two members of their Big Three, Tom Seaver and Jon Matlack, dealt away, the Mets headed into the 1978 season with a questionable pitching staff and what was supposed to be a better hitting club.

So after 19 games Mets hurlers boast a nifty 2.30 ERA, but the team is batting an anemic .195. Last weekend they were in first place in the National League East, but have since lost four in a row and are in fifth place with a 9-10 record. However, they trail division leader Montreal by only 1 1/2 games.

Chuck Tanner, the Pittsburgh manager whose Pirates swept a three-game series ending Wednesday night, while getting just five earned runs and 16 hits off the Mets, says: "The Mets have five of the best starters in the league. And just think — we didn't have to face two of their best, Jerry Koosman and Nino Espinosa."

"The Mets' pitching has opened up my eyes. Our division is really going to be something this year."

Craig Swan, a right hander who has failed to live up to his potential in the past, has a 1.24 ERA, best in the league. The ERAs of the other starters are 1.59 for rookie right-hander Mike Bruhert, 1.61 for rightie Pat Zachry, 2.00 for Koosman, a left-hander and lone holdover from the Big Three, and 3.12 for Espinosa.

Espinosa, a 24-year-old right hander, is regarded by many as having the best chance to be the ace of the staff. Pittsburgh's Dave Parker, the National League's defending batting champion, said he was glad he didn't have to face Espinosa in the recent series.

"He's the toughest right handed pitcher in the league for me," said the left-handed slugger. "He keeps the ball low and moves it around with good location. He's got a great future ahead of him."

Mardie Cornejo, the rookie right-hander, has been a welcome addition to the bullpen, which also includes Skip Lockwood, Butch Metzger, Bob Myrick and Paul Siebert.

"It's a shame to get such excellent pitching and lose," says Mets Manager Joe Torre. "Our hitting has got to bust out one of these days."

"It's amazing that everyone is in a slump at the same time," said Mets batting coach Phil Cavaretta. "Usually it's just a few guys and there's somebody to pick up the slack. But so far nobody has."

Ironically, Flynn, a lifetime .239 hitter who often bails out on curve balls, is the leading regular with a .281 batting mark. No other regular is hitting above .250.

Bird's Arm Still Hurts
 SEATTLE (AP) — One of the most famous arms in baseball is still getting the kind of attention its owner could do without.

Detroit Tigers pitcher Mark "The Bird" Fidrych gave up in disgust Thursday after less than five minutes of trying to throw.

One of the team's radio broadcasters, WJR's Paul Carey, says Fidrych threw softly to catcher Lance Parrish, then "threw his glove down in disgust" as the pain in his arm persisted.

Fidrych, the team's No. 1 pitcher, was yanked from a game April 17 when the shoulder stiffened up.

He was canceled as Saturday's starter because of the trouble and received a cortisone shot Sunday.

He is traveling with the club, but it's uncertain when he will try to pitch again. He is 2-0 on the season.

Fidrych missed the start of last season because of a knee injury, then posted a 6-4 record before tendinitis in the right shoulder sidelined him for the year.

JUVENILE ACE
 DALLAS, ORE. (AP) — On Aug. 15, 1977, Rebecca Ann Chase, an 8-year-old third grader from Dallas, Ore., made golfing history. She hit a hole-in-one on the par-3, fifth hole, at the Oak Knoll Golf Club in Independence, Ore.

In Drug Cases

Athletes Treated Differently

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Some college athletes caught using drugs at North Carolina colleges are dealt with less severely than other student drug abusers, and standout players often get even greater preferential treatment than their teammates, according to a published report.

The Fayetteville Times said today it was told by athletes and former athletes at the University of North Carolina, Duke and East Carolina of the non-uniform treatment of drug offenders.

In the fifth installment of a six-part copyright series on drug abuse in college athletics, the newspaper said players at N.C. State and Wake Forest reported they knew of no such double standards for athletes.

Benjamin Rollins, director of judicial programs at UNC, said school policy requires that all drug offenders be turned over to university officials for disciplinary action.

However, George Simpson, a former Tar Heel football player who graduated in 1972, told the Times a group of players was caught with drugs about six years ago and dismissed from the team by former coach Bill Dooley. He said Dooley took no other action against the athletes.

Dooley, who is now football coach and athletic director at Virginia Tech, confirmed that he booted the players off the team but said he was unaware of "any written law" requiring that they be reported to school officials.

"There was nothing done to them beyond their removal from the team," Dooley said. "There was nothing more done to them by the university."

Another former UNC football player, Mark Gaines, said he was never turned over to university officials after he was caught with marijuana and removed from the team in 1974.

Rollins said Gaines should have been reported to the dean of student affairs.

The Times said students and athletes at Duke told of marijuana incidents last year and in 1975 involving football players. The report said no disciplinary action was taken but that athletes on other Duke teams have been ejected by coaches in similar cases and that non-athletes have been suspended from classes.

William J. Griffin, dean of student affairs at Duke, said no one has been turned in to his office for drug abuse in the past three years.

"If the campus police were to catch a student smoking marijuana, they would be required to turn that over to this office," Griffin said. "Any other type drug, they would probably contact authorities downtown, who would then notify us."

At East Carolina, players said different athletes got different treatment for smoking marijuana. Coaches said they knew of no uniform university policy.

"I've only had one case and that was with marijuana," ECU wrestling coach Bill Hill said. "My discipline was that he was kicked off the team."

However, former Pirate basketball coach Dave Patton said two players caught with marijuana by police were suspended from the team but were later voted back onto the squad by fellow players.

ECU football coach Pat Dye said he didn't know of any school policy but "I believe they turn them over to the city government."

James Tucker, dean of student affairs at ECU, declined to spell out a firm policy on handling drug cases.

Bullets, Nuggets Seek To End Current Series

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

The Washington Bullets and Denver Nuggets will both have the home-court advantage tonight as they seek to wrap up their National Basketball Association quarter-final playoff series.

Washington, leading 3-2, plays the San Antonio Spurs at the Capital Centre in Landover, Md., where the Bullets have won all three of their games against the Spurs. But that does not prevent Washington Coach Dick Motta from approaching tonight's game warily.

"We should be afraid of them," he said. "By now we should know how good they are. One letup and they can beat us."

San Antonio posted its first victory ever over the Bullets Tuesday night by a 116-105 margin to stay alive in this best-of-seven series. Tonight is the Bullets' last chance to end the series at home, because the seventh game, if necessary, would be played in San Antonio on Sunday.

"That puts a great deal of pressure on us," says Motta.

The Nuggets, meanwhile, lead the Milwaukee Bucks 3-1 and will have two chances to end their series at home. The clubs meet at Denver tonight, play a sixth game if necessary in Milwaukee Sunday, then return to Denver for the seventh game, if necessary, next Wednesday.

The Bucks know that winning three in a row is not going to be easy.

"We're down 3-1 and we're in trouble," said Milwaukee Coach Don Nelson.

TOYOTA'S MILLION-DOLLAR-DASH FOR THE 1980 OLYMPIC GAMES.

SOMETHING FOR THE U.S. OLYMPIC ATHLETES... A $1,000,000 DONATION.

As you may know, our Olympic athletes are not government subsidized. So they need money to train now if they're going to win in Moscow in 1980.

Here's our plan: Toyota and your participating Toyota dealer will make a donation for the U.S. Olympic team every time a new Toyota car or truck is sold through June 30th, 1978. Help us make our sales goal, so we can give $1,000,000 or more, to help build a tough U.S. team.

When you buy a new Toyota, you'll also get a specially designed Olympic pin, patch, and a certificate thanking you for your support. Now you can get a tough Toyota, and a tough Olympic team.

SNOWMASS

FIRST PRIZE

THREE "GOLD MEDAL" first prizes, worth over $134,000 each. How'd you like to win all of this? A $100,000 condominium in Snowmass, Colorado. Two brand-new Toyotas. $5,000 in AMF Sports Equipment. A Nikon FM Camera. A 3-week trip for two to Moscow, Munich, and Montreal, with $10,000 in pocket money. And a Sony Color TV, in case you get bored. That's just the first prize. Three lucky people will win them. Good luck!

Ten "Silver Medal" second prizes. Every "Silver Medal" winner will receive a Toyota Corolla SR-5 Liftback, a $1,000 AMF Sports Shopping Spree, a Nikon FM Camera, and a one-week trip for two to the European Track and Field Championships in Prague, Czechoslovakia. And $2,500 cash.

1000 "Bronze Medal" third prizes. A Nikon FM 35mm Camera with 50mm F2 lens. Nice to have around even if you can't make it to the games.

How to enter: Just go to your participating Toyota dealer and fill out an entry form. There's nothing to buy, no sentences to complete. But do it soon. Your Olympic-sized chance to win it big ends June 30th. The Million-Dollar-Dash for the Olympic Games. You asked for it. You got it. Toyota.

Complete rules available at participating dealers. U.S. licensed drivers only. Sweepstakes void in Missouri, Maryland, and where prohibited by law.

Base-Closing Program Often 'Snagged'

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thirteen years ago the Pentagon said the Portsmouth Naval Shipyard would be closed. The defense secretary said his decision was "absolutely, unequivocally without qualification, irrevocable."

The shipyard, near Portsmouth, N.H., is still at work and apparently out of danger. But it shows how a base tagged by the Pentagon for elimination can be saved by the application of political power.

That power — some call it clout — will get another test soon, as the Pentagon has proposed base cuts and combinations at 107 installations in 31 states to save an estimated $337 million a year.

Congressmen from many of the affected areas already are attacking the plan, announced on Wednesday, that would result in the loss of 23,200 jobs — 14,600 military and 8,600 civilian.

The Portsmouth facility isn't alone in having come close to extinction only to gain new life and live on for years.

Take Fort Dix, N.J. Over the years, the fort has repeatedly come close to making the Army's "hit list." It landed there in 1973. Army officials said it was saved by pressure from Sen. Clifford Case, R-N.J.

Fort Dix is vulnerable again. In his announcement Wednesday, Defense Secretary Harold Brown said the Army is thinking of shutting the base's training facility — its reason for being. But there's a chance that the fort may survive as home for elements of the 2nd Infantry Division, scheduled for withdrawal from South Korea.

In the case of the Portsmouth Shipyard, it was ordered shut in the mid-1960s after a special study board had singled it out as "the best shipyard to close" because of various shortcomings.

But Democratic Sens. Thomas McIntyre of New Hampshire and Edmund Muskie, whose Maine constituents work at the Portsmouth yard, appealed to President Lyndon B. Johnson. He overrode the order and the yard stayed open.

In a reported effort to help re-elect Republican Rep. Lewis Wyman, President Richard M. Nixon proclaimed later that year that the shipyard would remain open because it is important to national defense. Its future seems assured.

President Carter has been involved at least twice in bringing about reconsiderations of base cutbacks ordered by the Ford administration. Less than a month after Carter promised a Massachusetts town meeting last year that he would look into the situation, the Army reversed plans to heavily cut operations at Fort Devens, Mass.

At a briefing yesterday, Assistant Defense Secretary John White acknowledged what many of his predecessors also came to realize — congressmen pull two ways on the base closing question.

"In the general sense, they recognize our problem — that is, we have too many bases, and they have urged us to make reductions," White said.

"On the other hand, obviously they do not want to see reductions in their particular area that affect their constituents."

Chicks Bring Delay In His Tax Audit

The writings of German political scientist Eric Voegelin (born 1901) and their influences upon American conservatism are the subjects of a recently-published article by Dr. John East of the East Carolina University political science faculty.

The article, "Eric Voegelin and American Conservative Thought," appears in the spring issue of the quarterly review, "Modern Age."

"Although he did not label himself as a conservative nor write specifically for a conservative audience, Voegelin's work has been sympathetically received by many Americans of conservative persuasion, and his impact upon conservative thought in America since World War II has been considerable," says East.

The article is one of a series Dr. East has written for "Modern Age," analyzing the work of noted conservative political philosophers. Support for East's research was provided by a grant from the Earhart Foundation.

Joan Little Plea Is Set

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Lawyers for Joan Little will ask the state's highest court next Wednesday to keep her from being returned to prison in North Carolina.

The state Court of Appeals formally announced Thursday that it had stayed Miss Little's extradition until it could reach a final decision.

Her plea was added as an extra case on the court's Wednesday calendar, apparently so arguments could be heard before the court takes a recess at the end of next week.

Miss Little gained national attention in 1975 when she was found innocent of murdering a Beaufort County, N.C., jailer who she said had tried to rape her.

She was sent to a state prison in Raleigh, N.C., to complete a 7-to-10-year prison term on breaking and entering charges, but she escaped last October and was arrested two months later in New York City.

She has been fighting extradition ever since, claiming she would "rather die" than return to North Carolina.

partner's suits, but on this occasion West had an impeccable excuse. When he selected the five of clubs, it was obvious to declarer that West was void in diamonds, so declarer deemed it wise to win the ace of clubs, ruff a club and immediately draw three rounds of trumps.

Since the location of the missing diamonds was known, declarer needed to find East with both missing high heart honors to have any play for his contract. However, the situation was complicated by the fact that there was a dearth of entries to dummy.

Declarer took care to win the third trump in dummy so that he could lead a heart toward his honors. He intended finessing the jack if East played low, but East complicated life by splitting his honors. Declarer countered by allowing the queen to hold the trick.

East had no better return than the ten of hearts. Declarer finessed the jack, then cashed the ace to strip that suit from his hand and dummy. Then he led a low diamond to the king. East won the ace and returned the jack, but declarer ducked for the second time!

East found himself trapped. A low diamond continuation would permit declarer to let it ride to dummy's nine. A club lead would allow declarer to ruff in one hand and discard a diamond from the other. Either way, declarer would lose no more than three tricks altogether.

Despite his good hand, South could do nothing more than make a simple overall after East had opened the bidding in his second suit. We are inclined to take issue with North's decision to jump raise spades. True, he had the necessary point count for that action, but his king of diamonds should have been regarded, at best, as a doubtful asset.

"The majority of our parents and teachers feel we need to get back to basics—to keep our sights on effective education—education that produces results in the so-called average child. Let's roll up our sleeves and work toward that end. But let us do so without neglecting the child with the learning problem or the child with exceptional abilities..."

For the first time, we have the opportunity to elect members of the Greenville Board of Education. We can all now play a more direct role in the development of policies that affect the education of our children.

Like many of you, I have often wished I could do more to help improve our school system. As a public school teacher, principal and university professor for the past thirty years, I have fought many of the same battles you are now fighting. As the parent of an elementary student in the city school system, I have shared many of the same frustrations with you as a parent/teacher. Now, with your help, I hope to do something about many of the things that concern us all.

New Arrests In Break-In

Greenville Police last night arrested local men in connection with an attempted break-in early Tuesday morning at Hargett's Drugs at 2500 Charles St.

Chief Glenn Cannon said this morning that Marshall Whitehurst II, 22 of 2305 East Tenth St., and David Randall Lewis, 22, of Highland Trailer Pk. were charged with attempted breaking and entering and with possession of burglary tools and placed under $5,000 bond each.

A third man, Dewey Alan Baker, 22 of Tarboro, was taken into custody by investigators behind the drug store about 3:15 a.m. Tuesday on similar charges. Cannon said Baker was arrested as he apparently attempted to flee from the area of the rear of the store.

Three walkie-talkie radios, a crow bar and a car were recovered near the scene.

Cannon noted that officers investigating the attempted break-in Tuesday morning charged Whitehurst and another man with possession of marijuana after finding a quantity of "grass" and marijuana seeds in Whitehurst's apartment.

Some Skipped Passover Meal

NEW YORK (AP)—In celebrating a symbolic "Seder for Soviet Jewry," Rabbi A. James Rudin said thousands of Soviet Jews didn't celebrate the Passover meal this year for fear such action would call government attention to them and their families.

Rabbi Rudin of the American Jewish Committee told participants, including Christian leaders, that the "universal message of Passover has never been more timely or more poignant than now" in regard to "our brothers and sisters who are imprisoned in the Soviet Union."

"The message is 'Let my people go!'" he added, quoting the words of Moses to the Egyptians to free the Jews from ancient slavery.

Polish Baptists Invite Graham

WARSAW, Poland (AP)—The Baptist Union of Poland has extended an invitation to evangelist Billy Graham to hold a series of meetings next September, his second preaching visit to a Soviet bloc country.

The invitation was approved by the Polish government's State Council for Religious Affairs. Graham spent a week in Hungary last year. In 1967, he held meetings in non-aligned Yugoslavia.

On Strike At Soviet Plant

BESANCON, France (AP)—The 30 French workers at the Soviet-owned Slava Watch factory in Besancon are on strike, demanding more money, shorter hours and longer vacations. The 10 Russian employees are not striking.

The French workers struck last June and quickly won a half hour reduction in the work week.

HOSPITALIZED
BOSTON (AP)—David A. Kennedy, a son of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, remained in stable condition today at Massachusetts General Hospital where he was taken with pneumonia, the hospital said.

Terrorists Planned Big Attack

ROME (AP)—The Red Brigades planned a widespread "terrifying" attack 24 hours after it kidnapped Aldo Moro to "bring the country to its knees," but the leaders of the terrorist army called it off, the conservative newspaper Il Tempo reported today.

Il Tempo said the disclosure came from Cristoforo Piancone, 28, a Red Brigades member who was wounded and captured after the ambush of a prison guard in Turin April 11. He was quoted as saying, in what it called an "exclusive dialogue" from his hospital bed:

"In connection with Moro's kidnapping, 24 hours later we should have carried out a subversive plan aimed at bringing the country to its knees, something terrifying. ... But those at the top level in the organization stopped it because it was felt to be politically inopportune at the time."

Il Tempo said Piancone did not elaborate on the plan. But it said he gave this detailed description of the Red Brigades, Italy's most feared terrorist organization, which kidnapped Moro, the president of the ruling Christian Democratic Party, on March 16.

"We are 1,500 all told, divided in four local squads — one independent from the other, and based in Milan, Genoa, Turin and Rome — 1,500 persons dedicated to a revolutionary cause and for whom death is not an obstacle, committed to killing and aware of the risk of being killed."

The members are recruited from all social classes, but most of them are young workers and students. Training may take several years.

"When one is asked whether he wants to join the Red Brigades, his reply must be satisfactory beyond any doubt, and the organization takes no risks. "After a period of small actions, car thefts and the like, one goes on to real and true terrorist training for about one year and almost always outside Italy."

Il Tempo said Piancone did not locate the foreign training sites. Other newspaper reports have mentioned Palestinian guerrilla camps, Cuba, Czechoslovakia and Angola. The New York Times reported today that the U.S. government is particularly interested in reports that Czechoslovakia's Communist party provided money, arms and training for the Italian terrorists.

"What you call dens are real and true military barracks to us." Each member gets $275 a month for food, transport, newspapers and similar expenses, while "the organization" takes care of lodging, clothing and weapons.

"No money from abroad, we get our cash through 'proletarian expropriations,'" holdups, kidnapping for ransom and extortion.

Piancone said Red Brigades members are also outfitted with bulletproof jackets, "but on April 11, I forgot to put mine on and here I am in the hospital."

He was one of the 13 imprisoned terrorists whose freedom the Red Brigades demanded in exchange for Moro's life. Although the kidnapers threatened to kill their captive, the government rejected the demand, and the organization has been silent since Monday.

YOUNG AT HEART—She may be 66, but Ginger Rogers isn't ready to hang up her dancing shoes, she tells a press gathering Thursday in New York. Miss Rogers announced plans to begin a North America nightclub tour next month, and this fall, a record album of songs "associated with my career" will be released in England. That career took flight in the 1930s, and in 40 years she made 73 movies. Miss Rogers' new stage show which premiered at London's Palladium in March is a one-hour-plus show of singing, reminiscing and dancing. (AP Laserphoto)

Record Mogul's Movie Given A Promotion Costlier Than Film

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Neil Bogart, a record mogul whose stable includes "Kiss" and disco diva Donna Summer, say he believes in the power of radio and TV. And he's testing it to the tune of $1 million.

That's what he says his Casablanca label is putting in broadcast ads in mid-May for his first effort as a film producer — a family-trade disco flick, "Thank God It's Friday," starring Miss Summer.

He also says Columbia Pictures, the film's distributor, is putting another $2 million into promotion. Which amounts to $3 million to tout a movie Bogart says cost a modest $2.2 million to make.

In addition to paid air ads for it, he says it also will be featured on two Merv Griffin shows next month, on NBC's May 26 "Midnight Special" and May 27 on ABC's "American Bandstand."

Also, his company is offering stations a 30-minute TV special on the making of "Friday," a film he says lacks the violence, sex and naughty words of the hit, R-rated "Saturday Night Fever."

It is what's called a media blitz to get patrons of all ages to see his film and buy the accompanying disco album. It even involves the off-duty expertise of a local news anchorman at KTTV-TV here.

Bogart says that citizen is Chuck Ashman, "an independent consultant that Casablanca uses." He says Casablanca planned the blitz "with Chuck's assistance and his knowledge of the media."

The aim of the airwave blast for PG-rated "Friday," Bogart said, is "to acquaint the public to what the new nightlife is, and say 'Hey, if you want to take a peek at it, come see our movie.'"

"There's a new wave of entertainment going on in this (disco) area. The entertainers now are the people, the public."

He meant that those who visit discos go there as much to watch others shake their booties as to do it themselves.

He didn't rap "Fever," but says it "presented a view of disco that might make a parent say, 'Nope, our kid's not going to see that.'" His film and its ads, he says, try for the opposite reaction.

"We're hoping to have mom and pop say to their kids, 'Let's go see this picture together,'" emphasized Bogart, a short, energetic, self-made millionaire born in Brooklyn 35 years ago.

Bogart, who calls his film a disco-beat "American Graffiti" of the Seventies, says his costly broadcast blitz for it applies the same principle he uses to sell records: Create the demand first.

"The record business is one of immediacy, where you put out the product, invest in it, advertise and promote it," he said.

"You don't really wait to see what some reviewer's going to say about it. You go out and create the audience."

Reading Program At Middle School

"Reading Unlimited" was the theme of a recently concluded program at the new Middle School, one designed to promote reading.

Students took part in a wide range of activities. One was a puppet show written and given by Scott Alford, Tim Askew, Chip Cayton, and Susan Nelson. Alford, Askew and Ruby Holloway also appeared on the TV program, "Carolina Today."

In contests held in conjunction with the reading week, Poster Contest winners were Kipper Hair and Tim Dail; poetry winners were Catherine White, Jessica Murphy, Jesse Staton, and Natalie Hobbs; and Inger Fearing won the bulletin board contest. A highlight event was Character Dress-up Day, with students and teachers dressed as book characters. Top winners in this contest were Tim Shank, Allan Smith and Chip Cayton. Another contest held was that of Book Jacket Design. This was won by Martha Richardson, Kevin Johnson, and Beth Winchester. Principal John Carstarphen was winner for the most appropriate costume.

Joe Stines, Children's Librarian for the city libraries, and Mrs. Willie Mae Gibbs, librarian at Carver Library, gave talks and periods of story telling for the students.

Voting Soon On Aid To Victims

WASHINGTON (AP) — The full House Education and Labor Committee is expected to vote within three weeks on a bill to authorize a federal program to help battered wives and other victims of family violence.

The bill, approved Tuesday by an education and labor subcommittee, would establish an Office of Domestic Violence under the secretary of Health, Education and Welfare. Some $125 million in grants is to be distributed to the states each year.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, APRIL 29, 1978

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is one of those days when you may want to upset present plans for an illusionary new appeal, but you would be wise not to discard carefully laid plans of the past.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Try not to argue with a long-time friend or you could regret it later. Take the right steps to gain a personal wish. Be patient.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Make an effort to improve your position in your community. Not a good day to ask an influential person for a favor.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Plan time to study a project that could mean increased income in the future. Engage in recreational activities you enjoy.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Try to please an irate associate so that you can carry on with mutual interests more harmoniously. Relax in the evening.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Plan how to complete your chores with fewer interruptions and increased efficiency. Take treatments to improve your appearance.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Your mate is under an emotional strain that you can help to alleviate now. Don't do anything to jeopardize harmony at home.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Be patient with one at home who may be upset since the planets are not favorable at this time. Establish more order around you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Make sure not to react bitterly to remarks of a careless person and upset present harmony at home. Be more tolerant.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Study your surroundings and make plans for improvement. Don't jeopardize your present security in any way.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You could be tempted to conclude a present business arrangement and get into something new, but this would be most unwise.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) If you analyze a new enterprise more carefully you will know how to be more successful. Make new friends in the evening.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Don't lose your temper over a situation that displeases you. This would only make matters worse. Sidestep a troublemaker.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will easily comprehend the problems of others and also will be endowed with the ability to help solve them wisely. There is much humanitarian in this chart, and the education should be directed along lines of helping people.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, APRIL 29, 1978

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is one of those days when you may want to upset present plans for an illusory new appeal, but you would be wise not to discard carefully laid plans of the past.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Try not to argue with a long-time friend or you could regret it later. Take the right steps to gain a personal wish. Be patient.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Make an effort to improve your position in your community. Not a good day to ask an influential person for a favor.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Plan time to study a project that could mean increased income in the future. Engage in recreational activities you enjoy.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Try to please an irate associate so that you can carry on with mutual interests more harmoniously. Relax in the evening.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Plan how to complete your chores with fewer interruptions and increased efficiency. Take treatments to improve your appearance.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Your mate is under an emotional strain that you can help to alleviate now. Don't do anything to jeopardize harmony at home.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Be patient with one at home who may be upset since the planets are not favorable at this time. Establish more order around you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Make sure not to react bitterly to remarks of a careless person and upset present harmony at home. Be more tolerant.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Study your surroundings and make plans for improvement. Don't jeopardize your present security in any way.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You could be tempted to conclude a present business arrangement and get into something new, but this would be most unwise.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) If you analyze a new enterprise more carefully you will know how to be more successful. Make new friends in the evening.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Don't lose your temper over a situation that displeases you. This would only make matters worse. Sidestep a troublemaker.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will easily comprehend the problems of others and also will be endowed with the ability to help solve them wisely. There is much humanitarian in this chart, and the education should be directed along lines of helping people.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!
