Houston North Side Tense After Riot By Thousands

HOUSTON (AP) — Police patrolled a tense north side area today after thousands of Mexican-Americans rioted when police tried to break up a fight at a fiesta in a park. Police reported shots fired, looting and arson in a 10-block area over a six-hour period Sunday night. A police car and a television mobile unit were burned. Two convenience stores were looted and a fire caused heavy damage to a bakery, variety store, and a laundry in a shopping center. Twenty-two persons were arrested and about 15 others were injured. One policeman received a broken leg and two television reporters were hospitalized in satisfactory condition with stab wounds. While more than 100 policemen were at the scene, all other officers were kept on standby alert more than eight hours. "It was the good guys and the bad guys," said KPRC-TV reporter Jack Cato, who was struck on the forehead with a brick and stabbed in the back. "One Latin American helped me get out and others were still throwing rocks at us." The initial outbreak occurred as police sought to stop a fight in Moody Park, which is located in a predominantly Mexican-American community that has been upset since Joe Campos Torres, 23, died a year ago while in police custody. "A couple of people got into a fight and some people jumped in," said State Rep. Ben Reyes. "When the police came, people reacted to their being there." Police answering the initial call were pelted with rocks and bottles. Four hours after the outbreak, police reported scattered looting and one store ablaze. They said no one was injured when several shots were fired from an apartment building. Police in riot gear escorted firemen into the area. Police reported the situation under control at 3 a.m. today. Reyes said there has been "a very volatile situation" in the Mexican-American community since U.S. District Judge Ross Sterling gave probation sentences to three former policemen who were convicted on charges of violating the civil rights of Torres, who was drowned after being pushed into a downtown bayou May 8, 1977. "It is very easy at this point to agitate," Reyes said. "People feel like they can't get any justice and they didn't get any justice. Folks have been very upset." Rachel Lucas, one of the organizers of the fiesta, said several people had been circulating among the crowd talking about the Torres case. "Someone grabbed a microphone and started screaming for justice for Joe Campos Torres," she said. "These were all young people unknown to us. They were not our people. They were not fiesta people."

Asks Runoff

Walter E. Gaskins of Rt. 1, Ayden, who ran second to B. Alton Gardner in voting last Tuesday for the Fifth District seat on the Board of County Commissioners, has filed a formal request for a runoff election with Gardner. Margaret Register, Pitt Board of Elections supervisor, said this morning that she had received Gaskins' letter calling for the May 30 runoff with the incumbent commissioner. Gardner, who failed by only a few votes to gain a clear majority in the primary election, received 4,624 votes while Gaskins polled 2,673 votes. Third place finisher Maxine Wiggins received 1,758 and will not be involved in the runoff balloting.

'Guilty' Plea By Berkowitz

NEW YORK (AP) — David R. Berkowitz pleaded guilty today to gunning down 20-year-old Stacy Moskowitz last July 31 in the sixth and final murder attributed to the "Son of Sam" killer. "It was wrong," the pudgy, 24-year-old former postal clerk from Yonkers told Judge Joseph R. Corso in Brooklyn Supreme Court as he entered the plea in the killing of Miss Moskowitz and wounding of her first-time date, Robert Viantano. Unusual security precautions delayed the start of the hearing, held before Supreme Court justices from Brooklyn, Queens and the Bronx, along with district attorneys from each of the jurisdictions where Son of Sam struck. They were on hand in case Berkowitz went ahead with his intention to plead guilty to all charges against him. Also on hand were hundreds of police officers and an additional 35 court officers stationed on the floor of the building where the trial was scheduled. Berkowitz was brought about 10 miles from a Brooklyn psychiatric prison ward in a Correction Department van, escorted by a heavily armed cordon of police vehicles.

Compromise Near On Warplane Sale

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter and congressional opponents of his proposed Mideast jet sale may be near a compromise on the president's plan to sell U.S. warplanes to Israel and two of her Arab neighbors.

As White House sources said the president is open to a compromise with opponents of the sales to Saudi Arabia and Egypt, a prominent Senate backer of Israel predicted the reported offer would be well received. Members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, meanwhile, were preparing to ask Henry A. Kissinger why he did not tell them three years ago that he had promised advanced U.S. fighters to Saudi Arabia. The former secretary of state, scheduled to testify before the committee today, was the final witness before it acts on Carter's proposal. Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said last week he was unaware Kissinger had made a commitment to Saudi Arabia. Church, who opposes Carter's plan, said such a promise would not be valid unless Congress approved it. An official of the General Accounting Office told the panel last week that the original promise of advanced fighter sales to Saudi Arabia was made in 1974.

Schofield Resignation 'Under Protest'; Asks Hearing Before Council

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
John Schofield, who relinquished his position as city planner here Friday upon the request of the city, said this morning that his resignation was tendered under protest. Schofield, contacted at his home, said that the request for him to resign "came as a total surprise" and he has asked for a "complete listing of the charges against me" and for the "opportunity to defend myself" before the City Council.

The city planner observed that "no one had ever told me that my job was in jeopardy or had anyone ever said that my job performance was less than satisfactory." According to Schofield, who was on vacation when the request for his resignation occurred, he received a telephone call Thursday, informing him that he had an appointment with Mayor Percy Cox at 8 a.m. Friday. Schofield said that in the meeting with Cox, he was informed that the reasons he was being asked to resign were his "inability to get along with the Planning Commission (Planning and Zoning Commission) and inability to delegate authority." Schofield added that he met with Holliday after the session with Cox and the acting city manager indicated that "he was going along with what the Council wanted." Schofield, who said that he has hired an attorney, pointed out that he was concerned that his professional reputation was at stake. He emphasized, "I want to get my record clean." The planner, who was associated with the city for nearly five years, said that he was only two months away from having a vested interest in the city's pension plan. Cox, also contacted this morning, explained that the Council discussed Schofield "at length" at a workshop session last Tuesday and the "city manager asked the Council members if they concurred in asking for his (Schofield's) resignation, of which they all did." The mayor recalled that one of the Council members emphasized that Schofield "worked for the city manager and it was up to the city manager to do what he felt had to be done."

According to Cox, Councilman Clarence Gray was the only member absent from the workshop meeting. Cox said that the Council concurrence in Holliday's request to seek the resignation was unanimous. Cox mentioned that a Council member suggested that Schofield be paid through May and that he be given his paid vacation time which extends into June. And Sen. Jacob Javits, a prominent Israeli backer, said a reported administration compromise offer — involving additional jet sales to Israel in future years — would be well received on Capitol Hill. And Sen. Jacob Javits, a prominent backer of Israel, said a reported administration compromise offer — involving additional jet sales to Israel in future years — would be well received on Capitol Hill. Such a proposal was said to be under consideration by the White House to offset criticism from Israel's supporters in Congress. The House International Relations Committee, meanwhile, was opening four days of hearings of its own into Carter's plan. Unless both houses disapprove the proposal by May 28, the administration may go ahead with the sale of 60 F-15s to Saudi Arabia, 15 F-15s and 75 F-16s to Israel and 50 F-5s to Egypt. Elsewhere in Congress this week, the Senate plans to complete action on two nominations. It scheduled a vote today on the nomination of Lynn R. Coleman, a Houston lawyer, as top attorney for the Department of Energy. Tuesday, the Senate votes on the nomination of Benjamin Civiletti as deputy attorney general. Meanwhile, House-Senate conferees resume public deliberations Tuesday on a proposed natural gas pricing compromise worked out after five months of private negotiations. The proposal, which the president supports, would lift federal price controls from newly discovered gas on Jan. 1, 1985.

Home Buying Myths

WASHINGTON (AP) — There isn't any "typical" homebuyer and the belief that most homes are bought by wealthy middle-aged people is a myth, the nation's largest group of mortgage lenders said today. "In spite of more than a decade of excessive inflation, Americans are buying homes in record numbers," said Joseph P. Benedict, vice president of the United States League of Savings Associations. Benedict's comments came as the league, which represents many of the nation's savings and loan associations, released a study of 8,500 mortgage loans made last year across the country. Most home buyers, 60 percent, are between the ages of 25 and 39, according to the report, and 12 percent are young-er than 25. The survey termed "somewhat surprising" the disclosure that 17 percent of homebuyers are single, and 4 percent are single couples. "One reason so many young people are buying homes can be found in the fact that 55 percent of all homebuyers between the ages of 25 and 30 are either single individuals or young marrieds without children. These young homebuyers have relatively few demands on their incomes — and consequently are buying homes," Benedict said. The absence of children may free both marriage partners to work. Benedict said that second incomes are becoming increasingly important to home buyers. The survey showed that 45 percent of all home buying families had more than one wage earner. Although government reports on home buying often use as a benchmark the average new home price of $55,000, the association survey disclosed that the half of all homes purchased in 1977 cost less than $44,000.

Charge Murder In Pitt Arrest

A Rt. 1, Stokes man was arrested by Pitt deputies and charged with first degree murder following a Saturday night shooting incident at his home. Sheriff Ralph Tyson reported that Joe Kelly Proctor was charged by deputies with the murder of James Edward Martin, 28, of Canton, N.C. The sheriff said that Martin was dead on arrival at Pitt Memorial Hospital after being shot once between the eyes with a .22 caliber rifle. He added that the incident occurred at 10:20 p.m. According to the sheriff, the shooting at Proctor's home on Rural Paved Road 1515 allegedly took place during a party attended by some 30 persons. Sheriff Tyson said that witnesses indicated the incident followed an argument. Martin was standing in the yard at the Proctor home when he was shot, it was reported. A hearing was scheduled for today in District Court here on the charge.

CIA Silent On Angola Stories

WASHINGTON (AP) — The CIA recruited mercenaries to fight in Angola but didn't get much for its money, a former CIA official says. John Stockwell, who said he commanded the CIA's Angola task force in the agency's headquarters, estimated about $500,000 was spent to send 20 Frenchmen to Angola. "Their contracts were for five months," Stockwell said in a television interview Sunday. They fought for one month, and then fled and we never got our money back." Appearing on the CBS show "60 minutes," Stockwell said a second program involving Portuguese mercenaries also was a failure. "The third bunch, the British-Americans, included psychotic killers, maniacs, people who were literally deranged, as well as people who were highly incompetent," Stockwell said.

Negotiating Gas Prices For U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials don't think Mexico has any choice but to sell its natural gas to the United States at prices lower than it hopes to get. The United States wants to pay $1.75 per thousand cubic feet, but the Mexican government is asking $2.70 for that amount of gas. Officials of the two nations discussed the issue in Mexico City last week, but were unable to reach a compromise. One American official said State Department diplomats don't believe Mexico has any other potential customers for the product and will have to sell it to the United States at a lower price.

Leo W. Jenkins Day Proclaimed In New Jersey

PERTH AMBOY, N.J. — Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, chancellor of East Carolina University, received special recognition in his native state of New Jersey yesterday as Gov. Brendan Byrne declared May 7 as "Leo W. Jenkins Day." Jenkins, attending a Citizens League Awards banquet also received a resolution from the New Jersey General Assembly recognizing his contributions to North Carolina as a native son of The Garden State. The assembly's resolution, adopted last November 28, noted that Jenkins had "dedicated his life to public service and gained recognition as a scholar, educator, administrator and public servant." The resolution also said that Jenkins, as president and chancellor of ECU since 1960, recognized, "that Eastern North Carolina was a sleeping giant which would soon awaken to its potential greatness, and, "succeeded in making the university the third largest university in North Carolina, establishing a four year, degree-granting school of medicine at East Carolina University, for which he received the North Carolina Public Service Award in 1977. The resolution and the governor's proclamation were presented to Jenkins by State Rep. George J. Otowski who is also mayor of Perth Amboy. Jenkins, assistant to the Commissioner for Higher Education of the Department of Education in New Jersey before coming ECU in 1947 as Dean, announced an annual scholarship award on behalf of Dr. Robert Nenko, formerly of New Jersey, who is now medical director of the Pitt County Mental Health Center. The scholarship award is known as the Oakwood Fund Medical School scholarship award, and this year's recipient is Richard Gierlich of Perth Amboy.

FROG LEVEL—HOW NAMED?

I'm a Pitt Countian who's wanted to know for a long time — How did Frog Level get its name? V. S.

Your question has Hotline and the staff of Shepard Memorial Library perplexed. Julie Hix of the library staff said "The North Carolina Gazeteer," which tells the names of such similarly picturesque names as Lizard's Lick gives not a clue about Frog Level. Perusing of various county scrapbooks also turned up nothing, she said.

So we appeal to our readers — How did Frog Level (a community on Highway 264 between Greenville and Farmville) get its name?

STILL PICKING UP?

Since the Sheltered Workshop paper storage facility has burned, are we to discontinue saving paper for them? Mrs. P. J.

Chuck Clodfelter of the Sheltered Workshop said the Workshop must temporarily discontinue collecting paper refuse. He said there is nowhere to store it during the two months it is expected to take to rebuild the facility. The Workshop will use this time, he said, to bring the paper collection houses in and refurbish them. Hotline will be glad to tell in a feedback item when collection begins again. In the meantime, it's up to you, of course, as to whether you feel able to allow the paper to accumulate in anticipation of the program's beginning again.

Reader Has Book Idea

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Why is it that brides-to-be can write hundreds of invitations and wedding announcements to people they scarcely know, but after the wedding they can't write a simple thank-you note for the gift?

This has happened to me so often lately I am about ready to stop buying gifts.

You have a booklet on "How To Have a Lovely Wedding." How about writing one on what to do afterwards?

L.S. IN BOONE, IOWA

DEAR L.: I have. It's "How To Write Letters For All Occasions."

DEAR ABBY: Last summer I read a very moving article in your column about a 17-year-old boy who had been killed in a car accident due to his own reckless driving. It made a deep impression on me. Little did I know that we would lose our own 18-year-old son in a car accident soon after. If this letter saves one life it will be worth writing.

Our son wasn't driving Mother's or Father's car, he was walking home from a party with a friend. A car stopped and the driver, a 19-year-old boy, offered the boys a ride home. They happily accepted.

The driver started to speed and the police took out after him. He refused to stop. Finally he struck a tree and his car was severed in half!

Our son was killed instantly and his friend died three days later without regaining consciousness. The driver survived with minor injuries. This happened only half a mile from our home.

We later learned that the driver of the car was on probation and the car was stolen, so he was afraid to stop. No alcohol was involved. And yes, Abby, he was our only son.

LONELY IN JOLIET, ILL.

DEAR LONELY: There is a valuable lesson to be learned here. Never accept a ride just because it's offered.

Are your problems too heavy to handle alone? Let Abby help you. For a personal, unpublished reply, write: Abby; Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

First Lady Attends Inaugural

By TOM FENTON
Associated Press Writer
SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — Rodrigo Carazo, who has promised to kick fugitive American financier Robert Vesco out of Costa Rica, becomes this

sash at noon in the national soccer stadium, officially signifying the transfer of power. Fireworks lit up the skies over San Jose Sunday night, and the city was decorated with Costa Rican flags and portraits of the president-elect. A whirl of inaugural parties got under way, to continue into Tuesday, and horn-honking caravans of cars toured the city. Mrs. Carter, who arrived Sunday afternoon, attended a reception at the residence of U.S. Ambassador Marvin Weissman, where she is staying, and another at the Foreign Ministry.

The U.S. first lady greeted the guests at the ambassador's home in Spanish and in a brief impromptu speech told them, "I like the way you respect human rights here, and I like your democracy. I feel very happy to be here."

Mrs. Carter also spoke Spanish at the airport when she arrived and said her visit "demonstrates U.S. backing of the democracy that exists here." Costa Rica has a 79-year-old tradition of democracy, no army, and is one of the few countries in the hemisphere in which the literacy rate exceeds 90 percent.

Caught Between Pledge And Senatorial Views

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration apparently is caught between its pledge to take judicial appointments out of politics and the disapproval of two North Carolina politicians for administration candidates as it tries to fill a vacancy on the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. The White House is trying to choose a successor to the late Circuit Judge J. Braxton Craven Jr. the non-political way, from a list of five nominees selected by a presidential commission on judicial appointments. But reports indicate that none of the five men favored by the committee has the support of either North Carolina senator — Democrat Robert Morgan or Republican Jesse Helms. President Carter appears to be hesitant about sending the Senate a nominee strongly opposed by the two. "We would like to be able to send up a candidate that's acceptable to the Senate," said Pat Barlo, associate press secretary for the White House. "We haven't been able to find one like that." Carter has made a promise to take the judicial selection process out of politics by relying on the commission. But politics is holding up the appointment to the judgeship, which has been vacant for more than a year. Senators traditionally have virtual veto power over judicial nominations from their states. The five finalists for the 4th Circuit seat, which normally is filled by a North Carolinian, were U.S. District Judge James McMillan of Charlotte; Duke University Chancellor A. Kenneth Pye; Dickinson Phillips, a law professor at the University of North Carolina; attorney Julius Chambers of Charlotte; and William Van Alstyne, a law professor at Duke. The Justice Department and White House have not said which candidates are still under consideration, but there have been reports indicating that the names passed along to the White House from the Justice Department were McMillan, Pye and Phillips.

Cool Spring Hurt Peanut-Planting

This spring has not been one of the better planting years for eastern North Carolina peanut farmers, according to Sam Uzzell, assistant agricultural extension agent. Uzzell blames the cool temperatures, especially during the night, and the lengthy periods of rain for the poor conditions. "As the season gets later, it becomes apparent that planting certain crops at the optimum soil temperature is critical," said Uzzell. This season, peanut seed supplies are a little scarcer than in recent years. For this reason, it is imperative that peanut growers plant when soils are moist, not wet, and are 65 degrees or higher. "Peanuts will not grow well at all when soil temperatures are below 60 degrees," said Uzzell. "If peanuts are not growing vigorously, they are much more susceptible to seedling disease or decay." Uzzell stressed the fact that peanuts should be planted when there is adequate moisture in the seed bed with soil temperatures around 65 degrees for three or more consecutive days. "Soil temperatures should be measured at a depth of four inches at mid-day," said Uzzell. "We want to avoid having to replant peanut fields due to seed decay and seedling blight. It may be difficult to obtain good quality seed to replant peanut fields and its more important than ever to reduce production costs this year. Since the support price of peanuts is $420 per ton, we need to grow peanuts as cheaply as possible in order to maximize profits," the agent said. When the weather becomes more favorable, many farmers will attempt to plant their remaining tobacco, peanuts, cucumbers and vegetables, and begin planting soybeans. It is wise not to fall prey to rushing plants into ground that is not yet ready to support fast, healthy seedling growth, Uzzell said.

Won After Years Of Fighting

Pitt County seems virtually assured of getting U. S. 264 dual laned to the west now.

It took years of fighting but the project is at last set for planning and construction.

Now the people of central and northeastern North Carolina need to go to work on a major highway in that area.

We badly need an interstate highway leading from the Tidewater populous area of Virginia across northeastern North Carolina to tie in with I-95.

No doubt we can quickly get an answer that such a project is impossible given the state of North Carolina's building road funds for the foreseeable future.

If the project were to be financed entirely with state funds that would be understandable. But the project we envision should have been included in the original interstate system when it was designed nationally.

If a northeastern North Carolina super highway is ever going to be developed then somehow the project will have to be added to the interstate system so that federal funds will cover most of the costs.

Getting an addition made to the interstate system is not an easy thing to do, but it is possible. What will be needed is a broad effort on the part of citizens of this area and also of the Tidewater area of Virginia to make this dream come true.

The Highway 264 Association was an effective approach to bringing about improvements to U. S. 264. A similar organization might do wonders for a northeastern North Carolina interstate highway.

At Flood Stage, Tar River A Menace

The Tar River is generally peaceful and relatively unnoticed.

It can, however, turn into a raging torrent when upstate rains send it over its banks in Pitt County.

The river was up to 18 feet over the weekend. Fortunately there is a wide floodplain on the north side so that flooding of buildings is minimal except in the direct circumstances.

At a high flood stage, however, the waters of the Tar can get close enough to property to keep us reminded of its awesome power.

Employment 'Cap' Needed

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — What does it matter that state and local governments are leading the field in North Carolina in adding new employees?

Each new job created in government will cost taxpayers one million dollars during the lifetime of that position, management experts have concluded.

That startling conclusion is an average — some jobs last longer than others (but seldom are they eliminated); and some employees are paid more than others. On average, though, when those department heads make a pitch to the governing boards for new people in state and local governmental agencies, they are talking about big dollars in years ahead.

Adding five new people at a cost of $10,000 including fringes doesn't sound like much one year. But over the long run the costs mount.

And there is a growing conviction among governmental officials that the essential work of government can be done without continually expanding the payroll.

Cost Waste

Joseph W. Grimsley puts it this way: "We know that state government ... and local government ... is not as efficient as it should be." He acknowledges that it is "sometimes the case" that employees have to do their work, and the work of other employees who aren't performing well.

Grimsley is heading up an 18-month pilot project in resources management in government. The purpose is to increase productivity and efficiency — to keep costs down.

Essentially, the study is involving each employee in several state agencies in describing his job, how much work he does, and suggestions on ways to improve. Incidentally, a specially trained group of 20 analysts are conducting the study which eventually will be expanded into all state departments.

Resulting, says Grimsley, will be productivity improvement and management techniques to make the system work better. "If we can contain the growth of numbers of employees in a department this fiscal year to present size, through increased productivity, then that will be five, or 10, or 20 additional employees who are not on the payroll next year ... this will pay off in the long run," Grimsley believes.

The purpose is not necessarily to reduce state jobs, but to at least bring under control the expansion. But Grimsley admits that analysis may show some jobs which could be eliminated, in which cases people leaving state government by retirement or for other jobs "provide ample opportunity for cutting any positions."

Better Work

Such attention to jobs can improve employee morale, increase the work done by workers and supervisors, and provide a continued level of quality in services. "In fact, based on similar programs in other areas, the quality and effectiveness of the job we do for the state's citizens should be improved," Grimsley says.

The costs of paying employees is government's single biggest cost. It is variously estimated that from 60 to 75 per cent of the governmental budget goes into direct employee payments of one sort or another.

"It is naive to think that we can reduce budgets now or in the future," Grimsley recently told members of the North Carolina Tax Collectors' Association.

Citizens demand more and better services, while the cost of everything continues to rise. But, he added, "we can do some things to avoid long-range costs by careful management now."

The King Of Overdrafts

WASHINGTON — Among the charges the SEC made against Bert Lance was that he was involved in a series of banking and securities violations jeopardizing a Georgia bank he headed, Lance, the federal complaint charged, authorized and prolonged overdrafts to his family to the tune of $800,000 — 70 percent of all the overdrafts at his bank.

If these charges are true, there must have been some funny conversations going on at the dinner table in Lance's palatial dining room in Calhoun at the time. I wasn't there, so I'm just imagining how one went.

David, the Lances' teenage son, says, "Hey, Dad, my checking account has been overdrawn by $11,000. I only wrote one check this month for a Frisbee which cost $1.50."

"Shut up and drink your soda," Bert says.

"But gosh, Dad, there must be a mistake at the bank."

"There was no mistake at the bank. I had to write a check for your Uncle Clyde, who owed the First National Bank of Plaitire $11,000 in interest for a loan we got from them to pay for some work on our farm."

"Why is Uncle Clyde paying for work done on our farm?"

"Because I didn't want to write any more checks on your mother's account. She has an overdraft of $110,000 and most of that went to the Coyote Savings Bank, which gave us the money to pay the interest on the loan we obtained from the Catfish Trust Company."

LaBelle says, "Bert, I don't mind having overdrafts, but does the bank have to send me nasty notes saying I'm getting to be a bad risk? It makes me nervous."

"Don't pay attention to the notices, LaBelle. They're just routine."

"How much of an overdraft do I have?" asks Beverly, the Lances' other teen-ager.

"Just $10,000," Bert replies.

"That's not fair. David always gets a bigger overdraft than I do."

"David's older. He's entitled to owe the bank more than you."

"Ha, ha, ha," David says. "I'm overdrafted $1,000 more than you."

"Stop it, children," LaBelle says. "I'm sure when you get to be 18, Beverly, you'll be in as much debt as your brother."

"Maybe more," Bert says. "What did you do with my overdraft, Daddy?" "I used it to cut down on Uncle Willy's overdraft. He was complaining that he couldn't get an American Express card because he was so much in hock to our bank."

"Aunt Martha called," David says. "She wanted to know if she could write a check for $7,000 to buy a new car. She said she only had $49 in her account."

"Sure, call her back and say it's fine. On second thought, I better call her. She may be surprised when she gets a statement next month that she has an overdraft of $30,000."

"What for?" LaBelle asks. "I had to start paying on the principal of the money we borrowed from the General Lee Savings and Loan Assn., which I needed to cover the

Change In The Runoff

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Tying up loose ends from last week's primary:

Insiders at the Luther Hodges Jr. camp say to look for a more aggressive Hodges if John Ingram continues, as expected, his accusations aimed at the frontrunner in their runoff for the Democratic Senate nomination.

"Now it's one-on-one. To some extent, Luther will have to respond," Hodges campaign manager George Autry said last week, when the dust had settled from the first primary and both sides began thinking about the May 30 runoff.

"The campaign is going to have to start taking a closer look at John's record," he said.

Throughout the campaign Ingram was on the offensive against Hodges, calling him "the banker candidate" and accusing him of being bound to special interests. Ingram, state commissioner of insurance, continued that tactic even with his family gathered around him at a news conference the day after the voting, suggesting that Hodges' campaign finance reports were filed late deliberately.

Earlier, Ingram made sweeping accusations that Hodges accepted contributions "in excess of the legal limit."

In a heated exchange with one reporter at the news conference, Ingram was pressed for specifics on his charges and offered none. His campaign manager, state Rep. Charles Webb, D-Guilford, was quoted later as saying "we don't have any specific thing on that."

Such charges, Autry says, are the type Hodges intends to take seriously.

"Luther will correct the mistakes John makes," Autry said. "We will not ignore reckless and unsubstantiated charges."

Up to the primary, Hodges responded generally only when questioned by reporters.

Ingram has made much of what he contends are ties to "special interests" by Hodges, pointing out a $1,000 contribution from famous heir John D. Rockefeller IV and Hodges' background as chairman of North Carolina National Bank.

But Ingram's own campaign reports show an interesting trend too. Of 77 itemized contributions reported, six were from insurance agents, six more from insurance company executives and one from an insurance department employee. No occupation was listed for five contributors.

A $1,000 contribution to Ingram was reported from Bernard Rapoport, listed as chairman of the board of American Income Life Insurance Co. of Waco, Texas.

Ingram, whose commissioner's office regulates insurance companies, contends that is not evidence of special interest support for him. Rather, Ingram says those contributors are largely persons who, despite their jobs, side with him in his many battles with the insurance industry because they feel the industry is wrong.

One thing Tuesday's primary made clear was that Lawrence Davis likely has a bright political future. He went from "Lawrence who?" by his own admission last November, to a 100,000-plus vote-getter.

"As far as the outcome is concerned, you don't count it all in votes," Davis noted when it was over.

Davis won a remarkable 61

THE INSIDE REPORT

A 'Nyet' To Human Rights

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — Fear of "antagonizing" the Soviet Union led to remarkable instructions by President Carter to Secretary of State Cyrus Vance ruling out any public mention of human rights during his recent visit to Moscow.

That decision, in a letter from the President to Vance, angered realists on the National Security Council (NSC) staff. They insist that keeping human rights pressure on Moscow is essential to save Mr. Carter from looking like a paper tiger.

The decision to avoid any public mention of human rights followed the recommendations of Marshall Shulman, Vance's top adviser on Soviet affairs. In all the public briefings from Moscow describing the talks between Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko on SALT (strategic arms limitations), not one word was said about human rights.

Shulman told us Vance did mention human rights at some point during his private three-hour talk with Gromyko. That is a total surprise to other government officials, who know of nothing said about human rights in the Vance-Gromyko talks.

Vance also played down U.S. concern over Soviet freewheeling across the continent of Africa with Cuban troops as Soviet proxies. But disgruntled administration aides note a difference. Vance avoided Moscow's Cuban Africa corps at the start of his Moscow talks; but unlike human rights, it was publicly announced by U.S. spokesmen that Vance brought up Africa to Gromyko (without pressing it hard) before he left Moscow.

Vance did protest to Gromyko about the outrageous handling of Mrs. Irina McClellan. A Russian married to an American citizen, she was dragged away from the U.S. embassy in Moscow by Soviet police. But that scarcely opened the general question of human rights.

Why this once-over-lightly for human rights? Shulman is a product of academia without practical experience in dealing with the hard-faced gentlemen of the Kremlin. He and others among Vance's inner circle believe bringing up the sensitive human rights question could torpedo hope for a strategic arms limitation (SALT) agreement, which was Vance's basic purpose in Moscow.

No Help From Meany

Robert S. Strauss, whose jawboning efforts have won big business cheers, received a raspberry from the voice of big labor: AFL-CIO president George Meany.

Strauss's session with Meany at AFL-CIO headquarters here April 25 got off to a shaky start. An ABC television crew doing a story on the much-publicized anti-inflation czar wanted to accompany him to Meany's office. "No, sir!" snapped the 83-year-old Meany.

"No, sir!" also was the substance of his answer when Strauss asked for moderation in union wage demands. Meany replied that he did not see much sign of self-sacrifice for the sake of fighting inflation elsewhere in the society and therefore saw no reason for labor to hold back.

Strauss responded that he was not asking labor to forgo all wage demands but just please restrain them a little, adding that there would also be examples of business restraint. Meany made no nod of agreement.

A footnote: When Meany went to the White House the next day, April 20, to see President Carter, the emphasis was less on vocal restraint than on vocal restraint. The President stressed to Meany how personally hurt he was by organized labor's incessant public criticism after his administration had worked so hard for labor's goals.

Soviet Naval Muscle

Both the political impact of naval power and the Soviet Union's growing self-assurance were shown early this year in the Mediterranean Sea by an unexpected Russian demonstration.

During Soviet naval exercises in late January, planes off the deck of the aircraft carrier Kiev carried on simulated air attacks against British and French warships, coming within a few thousand feet of the vessels.

I want to go on record as a strong supporter of John Schofield, Greenville's City Planner. I have served for six years on the Planning and Zoning Commission, and I think I can speak with some expertise. John Schofield has done an excellent job and Greenville has seen more planning and less reaction to zoning requests than in the past.

Greenville has entered an unprecedented growth period and only with strong planning efforts, can this community emerge with any semblance of an orderly, attractive and livable city.

When his resignation was requested by the City Manager on Friday, Greenville lost a strong planner who has devoted time, ability and devotion. He will be difficult to replace.

To the editor:

Get this one. How many N & O Editors does it take to start a riot? Three. One to throw bottles at the police and two to take pictures. It was bound to happen sooner or later, though. After all, the N & O editors have antagonized everybody else in North Carolina. Why should the Raleigh police force be any different.

Boy, would I hate to be a poor policeman involved in that bust. Not only are they planning a "Wacky-Toback" benefit to raise defense money, but Claude "Big Daddy" Sitton has agreed to kick in a few of his megabucks.

Although this whole incident is one heckuva idea to generate news on a dull day, personally, I prefer the good old days when N & O editors were a rather harmless bunch. You remember, "silver-tongued devils leading the ignorant masses." Quite frankly, I hope no one gets hurt. In the future maybe N & O editors could wear brown armbands or something to set themselves apart from the regular citizenry so the police will know who not to arrest.

Many Lease Instead Of Buying

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

A growing number of Americans are leasing items they used to buy and consumers have to learn new ways of shopping to compare costs and contract terms.

According to Hong Dea of the Federal Trade Commission, automobiles are by far the biggest category of leased items, with furniture running "a poor second."

The FTC is one of several federal agencies responsible for administering the Consumer Leasing Act, which took effect last year and which requires leasing companies to provide certain detailed information to potential customers.

The law applies to personal property leased by an individual for four months or more for personal, family or household use. It covers such items as cars, furniture and appliances.

The law does not apply to short-term car rentals, apartment leases or furniture that comes with a rented apartment or month-to-month rentals that you can cancel, without penalty, at the end of the month. It also does not apply to property leased to companies or to individuals for business uses.

Federal Reserve Board rules implementing the Consumer Leasing Act require companies to provide a written statement of costs, including:

- The amount of any advance payment like a security deposit.
- The number, the amount and the due dates of regular payments as well as the total of those payments.
- The amount you must pay for license, registration and taxes, where applicable, and any other fees.

You must be told whether you need insurance and, if so, what kind; what sort of warranty there is on the property; what sort of standards are used to measure wear and tear; what penalties exist for default or late payment; the conditions under which the lease can be cancelled; and who is responsible for service.

There are two basic kinds of leases: closed-end and open-end.

With a closed-end lease, you are responsible for a given number of monthly payments of a specific amount. To figure out the total cost, add up the payments.

With an open-end lease, you run the risk of owing extra money when you return an item and, for this reason, the monthly payments usually are lower than they are in a closed-end arrangement.

The risk occurs because the total amount you pay depends, in part, on the value of the property when you return it. Suppose, for example, a company estimates that a car will be worth $2,000 at the end of a three-year lease. If, for any reason, the car is worth only $1,500, you will have to make what is known as a "balloon payment" to cover the difference.

The law limits a balloon payment on an open-end lease to no more than three times the average monthly payment, unless you agree to pay more or your usage of the property has been above normal (by driving more miles than average, for example). The company also may go to court to seek a high payment.

Strength For Today

DISGUISED SUCCESS

Phillips Brooks was one of the great preachers of the late nineteenth century. For years he held the people of Boston spellbound. He preached in Westminster Abbey on several occasions.

Yet Phillips Brooks was a disappointed man. The great desire of his life was not to be a preacher, but a teacher. As a young man he had been a teacher of Latin in a boys' school near Boston, but was an abysmal failure. The headmaster dismissed him with the encouraging observation that people who failed in teaching also failed in everything else.

Yet failure is often the door through which God leads us to our greatest successes. For example, Patrick Henry and Abraham Lincoln both failed as storekeepers before they went into public life. William Blackstone's inability to get clients drive him to his study where he wrote his famous Commentaries on the Laws of England — the leading textbook on law for over 100 years.

Nuke Protestors Seen At Duke Commencement

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Between 100 and 200 graduating students wore orange armbands and carried "No Nuke" signs to protest the choice of Glenn Seaborg, former head of the Atomic Energy Commission, as the speaker at Sunday's Duke University commencement exercises.

Seaborg, the co-discoverer of plutonium, advocated the development of knowledge and technologies that would enable a growing number of people to survive on the earth's limited resources in his commencement address.

The protesting students were silent and did nothing to disrupt the speech or ceremonies as they stood in position behind the upper tier of Wallace Wade Stadium while Seaborg spoke from a podium in the end zone.

In his speech, however, Seaborg made no reference to nuclear power but advocated use of solar power and other energy alternatives.

He said there were three challenges confronting the world today which could reach crisis proportions.

They were, he said, the need to match global resources to the requirements of growing populations, the need to more fully understand the ecology of the planet so human activities would not upset natural balances, and the need to fulfill human potential.

"These are the three criteria for a world of peace, economic and social stability and general health," he said.

"The restrictive limits over the next few decades are due more to a lack of knowledge and political organization than to a lack of natural resources," Seaborg said.

Letters that were mailed to Pitt County alumni of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill regarding the upcoming alumni meeting here indicated an incorrect day for the session.

Dr. Jasper Lewis of Greenville said that the letters, mailed directly from the UNC Alumni Association, should have stated that the Pitt meeting will be held Thursday, May 18 rather than Wednesday, May 18.

Lewis said that due to the incorrect information, the reservation deadline has been extended to Friday, May 12. He added percent against seven opponents in his home county of Forsyth, and fared well in surrounding counties, carrying Yadkin and losing Surry by less than 100 votes. It led one political analyst to conclude he should have been running for Congress.

Davis, who was shown with just 4 percent of the vote in the late-April poll conducted by the News and Observer of Raleigh, finished with a barrage of television commercials and got 16.2 percent.

He apparently picked up a large portion of the late undecideds with his strong tv use, his conservatism, and by staying out of the personal charges made during the final weeks by other candidates.

Insurance, always an issue for John Ingram and a hot legislative potato last year, may have been responsible for poor showings by some state House and Senate incumbents.

In Greensboro, state Rep. Mark Short was defeated in his bid to move up to the state Senate, and in Winston-Salem, Sen. Carl Totherow ran fourth in a three-way race for re-nomination, though he has the right to a runoff.

Both were instrumental in pushing through the General Assembly a controversial bill whose effect was to reduce Ingram's authority over insurance rates. Short is chairman of the House Insurance Committee; Totherow is chairman of the Senate equivalent.

Finally, Joe Felmet added color to the Democratic U.S. Senate primary with his unabashed style, and on at least a few occasions sparked debate on issues by the major candidates.

But Felmet's determined campaigning apparently didn't do him much good. Felmet ran last in the eight-way race with about seven-tenths of one percent of the vote. William B. Griffin nearly doubled that showing without campaigning.

How much should an owner spend to get his property ready for sale? If it's a relatively small amount for improving appearance, fine-but think twice before investing large sums into making extensive improvements prior to putting your house up for sale.

The chances of getting the money back in a correspondingly higher sales price are remote. Depending on the nature of the improvements, the recovery historically runs from 10% to 50% on every dollar spent.

The exception to the rule is what we call "cosmetic treatment". If the property looks run down, then a paint and paper job once over lightly may be prudent.

But it's a whole new ball game when you start with extensive repairs and remodeling. The best solution is to discuss your situation with a local REALTOR. You may find that you can sell the house faster, with more profit and less inconvenience by dropping the price about the same amount you expected to spend on repairs.

100,000 Rally To Back Begin

NEW YORK (AP) — Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin has ended his visit to the United States in a frenzied encounter with 100,000 supporters of the Jewish homeland.

The visit, which marked the 30th anniversary of Israel's statehood, was climaxed with a "Salute to Israel" parade up Fifth Avenue and a speech by Begin at a rally in Central Park.

"I say to our Arab neighbors, give up all your designs that Israel can be destroyed by force of arms," Begin said. "Israel will never be destroyed. Never! I call upon you on behalf of the people of Israel," he said. "Let us sit down and negotiate peace, negotiate peace!"

The crowd interrupted Begin's speech with applause 25 times and greeted him with chants of "Begin! Begin! Begin!"

The 65-year-old prime minister had been scheduled to fly home Sunday night but was delayed by fog. His departure was rescheduled for today. For the past four days Begin has stayed at Gracie Mansion, official residence of Mayor Edward Koch.

Earlier in the day, at the taping of NBC's Meet the Press, Begin said he has "great hope" that peace talks between Israel and Egypt, broken off nearly four months ago, will be renewed.

has been the talk of the U.S. intelligence community. Aviators off U.S. carriers have been making simulated attacks against Soviet warships for years, but this is the first time for such activity by the Soviets. It dramatizes not only the new presence of Soviet naval power but also Moscow's current military confidence.

Daniel Ellsberg In Protest Camp

GOLDEN, Colo. (AP) — Daniel Ellsberg, the former Pentagon analyst, has returned with at least 20 other anti-nuclear protesters to the Rocky Flats nuclear weapons plant.

Ellsberg and the group set up camp Sunday just outside the plant.

Ellsberg and 27 others had been camped on the little-used railroad spur leading to the plant until Friday when they were arrested by sheriff's deputies. The group was booked on charges of criminal trespass and unlawful blockage of a passageway and released a few hours later.

The protesters are urging an end to the production of nuclear weapons components at Rocky Flats.

Holding Revival In Winterville

WINTERVILLE—A witness awareness revival is being held at Winterville Missionary Baptist Church.

Following each service, a talk-back session will be held in the fellowship hall.

The message topics are as follows: Monday, "The Fear Factor in Witnessing?"; Tuesday, "Witnessing to the Overly Religious?"; Wednesday, "Developing A Witnessing Lifestyle" (no talk-back session.)

The revival will end with a chance for interested persons to enroll in a ten-week witness training class.

Services begin nightly at 7:30, with a separate class for children, ages six to eight. The nursery opens at 7:15.

The Rev. Wayne Adkisson invites the public to attend.

Ask To Exhibit Picasso Works

NEW YORK (AP) — The Museum of Modern Art has asked the French government for permission to exhibit a number of paintings and other art works by the late Pablo Picasso.

A museum spokesman said Sunday that the works are those which Picasso's heirs have agreed to turn over to the French government in lieu of estate taxes.

Museum director Richard Oldenburg said the museum hoped it could exhibit the works before they go on permanent exhibit in a Picasso museum France plans to build.

Week Of Revival Begins Tonight

The annual meeting of the League of Women Voters of Greenville-Pitt County will be held tomorrow at 7 p. m. at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in the mode of a covered dish supper.

Pres. Margaret Wirth will report on her attendance at the national convention held last week in Cincinnati, Ohio. Other business will include adoption of the local budget, election of board members, and confirmation of study programs for the coming year. All members are reminded of the meeting and all interested citizens are welcomed to attend.

Average Citizen Said Not 'Sold'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The average American must be convinced that he or she can benefit from the administration's inflation-fighting plans if they are to work, says the man in charge of the effort.

"The thing we have to do is convince the average working man and woman in America and the average representative of these people that are in the trade union movement," Robert Strauss said Sunday. "If we can convince everyone that everyone will have a share in this, then everyone will come along."

LWV Holding Annual Meeting

Jim Warren of the N. C. Department of Agriculture Markets Division will speak to the Pitt County Agribusiness Association tomorrow at 7:30 a. m. at the Holiday Inn Restaurant.

He will discuss establishing a farmers' market. This will be a dutch breakfast.

I wish to thank the many friends and well-wishers that voted for me and/or contributed to my campaign in any way in my effort to win election to the Greenville City School Board. May God bless each one of you.

NEW YORK (AP) — Strength in the dollar and signs of a stable outlook for oil prices helped the stock market post a moderate gain today.

Advances outnumbered declines by a 2-1 margin in the over-all tally of New York Exchange-listed issues.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 4.68 at 833.77.

The dollar rose against most European currencies today, adding to hopes for continued interest in U.S. stocks among foreign investors.

Traders also seemed to respond favorably to news that Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries oil ministers had adjourned a weekend meeting without making any plans to increase prices.

Saudi Arabia's Ahmed Zaki Yamani was quoted as saying he didn't expect any oil price increase through the rest of 1978.

Continental Oil climbed 1 to 30 and Exxon gained 1 1/4 to 49 1/4. Both companies are searching for oil and gas in the Atlantic Ocean off New Jersey.

Pan American World Airways led the active list, unchanged at 7 1/4. A 135,000-share block traded at that price.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose .28 to 54.25. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .72 at 140.61, passing the 140 mark for the first time since it was established at 100 in 1973.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 16.12 million shares at noontime, down from 20.87 million at the same point on Friday.

River Level Has Dropped

The Tar River has dropped rapidly from its 18.3 feet high Friday, to 15.0 feet this morning, but the National Weather Service this morning said the river may rise again.

According to the weather service, the river stood at 15.0 feet at 8 a.m. and is expected to drop to about flood stage — 13 feet — by tomorrow. However, spokesmen said recent heavy rains in the Piedmont and West may force the river back up over the 13-foot mark.

According to the Greenville Utilities Commission weather station, the river, at 8 a.m. Saturday had dropped to 17.9 feet, while the 8 a.m. Sunday level of the Tar was 15.5 feet.

The high temperature yesterday stood at 66 degrees, while the low was 49 degrees. The temperature at 8 a.m. today was 57.

The GUC weather station recorded 20 inches of rain from 8 a.m. Sunday until 8 a.m. today.

Man Stabbed In Side By Intruder

Timothy Hoyle of 1410 Dickinson Ave. was reported stabbed in the side by an intruder in his home about 12:57 a.m. today, Chief Glenn Cannon said.

The chief said an intruder entered the home and first demanded money from another resident of the dwelling. The man then scuffled with Hoyle and stabbed him in the side, breaking the blade of the weapon off in Hoyle.

Cannon said Hoyle was taken to the hospital by three other residents of the house where he underwent surgery.

Investigation of the incident is underway, according to Cannon.

Investigate Rape Charge

A young Greenville woman was reported raped early today in her North Greenville home, Chief Glenn Cannon said this morning.

Cannon, who said the incident was reported at 5:53 a.m., said the victim reported she was awakened by the sound of glass breaking. Going to investigate, she found a man in the hallway of her home.

The intruder, Canon said, allegedly forced the woman into her bedroom, threatened her with a pipe, and raped her.

The chief noted that the assailant allegedly remained in the home for about three hours before leaving shortly before the incident was reported to police.

Investigation of the case is continuing.

Hitchhikers Try Robbery

Earl Elwood Penny, 27 of Greenville, told officers yesterday that two hitchhikers he picked up attempted to rob him.

Chief Glenn Cannon said the incident, reported at 3:30 a.m. Sunday, apparently began when Penny picked up two men on West Fifth Street.

The chief said the two passengers attempted to force Penny, at knife-point, to give them his money after Penny drove the two around the Western section of the city for a time.

Cannon said Penny, who stopped on Fairfax Avenue at one point to let the two men out, finally eluded the pair after colliding head-on with a parked car on Ford Street.

Investigation of the incident is continuing.

Many Recruits Fail Standards

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 40 percent of new military recruits don't make it through their first enlistment term because they fail to meet minimum behavior or performance standards, a Senate committee reports.

The Senate Armed Services Committee, citing that figure and depleted reserve ranks, has ordered the Pentagon to study alternatives for mobilizing new recruits. It said it is "concerned over the ability of the active military to attract sufficient numbers of high quality recruits."

Watson Captures Nelson Win

DALLAS (AP) — Tom Watson at the tender age of 28 has found the secret of taking pressure and recycling it into fun and $1 million. "I didn't think about blowing that putt on the last hole. I thought about making it," said Watson, who captured his second Byron Nelson Golf Classic title Sunday with a typical pressure-proof finish.

Watson shot a final 4-under-par 66 to edge hometown hero Lee Trevino by one shot with an 8-under-par 272 over the soggy par-70 Preston Trail Golf Club course for the $40,000 final prize.

You just don't think about it," Trevino, who also shot a closing 66, made a tremendous back-nine run at Watson. Trevino eagled the 15th hole to pull even but Watson, watching from the fairway, birdied to go back ahead by a shot. Undaunted Trevino birdied the 17th hole. Watson responded by stroking a 20-footer into the hole from the fringe for a birdie. Then came the final test. After Trevino had parred 18, Watson hooked a 6-iron second shot that left him with a wedge chip over a yawning bunker. "I felt I could get it up and down," said Watson. And Trevino said, "I thought he would get it up and down. He wouldn't be the leading money winner on the tour if he couldn't. Nobody hits all the greens." Watson's third shot was two feet below the hole. He made the putt just as he and Trevino knew he would.

Pirates End 1978 Season On Low Note

BLACKSBURG, Va. — East Carolina's baseball team dropped its second straight game yesterday to end a somewhat disappointing season on a low note.

The Pirates were held to just two hits in a 4-0 loss to Virginia Tech and finished the year with a 27-18 record. Just about all hope of an NCAA playoff bid had faded Saturday when the Bucs dropped a 3-2 decision to the Gobblers.

Tech got good pitching from Mike Rhodes, who went the distance in raising his record to 5-2. He held the Bucs to just two safeties, one each by Butch Davis and Max Raynor. Only five ECU hits made it out of the infield.

Starter Pete Conaty was the loser. He pitched 4 1/2 innings, giving up the four VPI runs, all earned. His record dropped to 7-5. Rick Ramey came on in relief and finished up for ECU, pitching effectively for 3 1/2 innings.

The Gobblers scored three runs in the first inning and added their fourth in the fifth frame. The Pirates threatened in the ninth, loading the bases, but fizzled out.

Mike Preisser led off the first with a walk for Virginia Tech, and after two outs Dennis Duff homered to make it 2-0. Wayne Shelton then walked and stole second, scoring on a single by Eric Keller.

In the fifth, Andy Aldrich doubled and went to third on an infield out. He scored on a fielder's choice by Shelton, beating the throw home.

The only serious Pirate threat came in the ninth when two walks and an error loaded the bases. But pinch hitter Macon Moye struck out looking and the season ended.

Cincy's Rose Misses Game

CINCINNATI (AP) — Two days after he passed one milestone, Pete Rose ended another. His five-year streak of playing in 678 consecutive games has stopped at that point.

For the first time in his 2,372 game career, the Cincinnati Reds' captain was sidelined because of an illness.

He sat out the second game of Sunday's doubleheader against Montreal, ending the longest streak by an active major leaguer.

Rose, who joined the exclusive 3,000-hit club Friday night, said he sent word to Manager Sparky Anderson prior to the second game that he was ill.

"That's the worst I've ever felt in 16 years. I like to play every day, but I was so miserable. I couldn't get revved up," said Rose.

He was also bothered by back spasms.

"Could be I got them from bowing so much this week," he quipped.

Anderson was loudly booed in the eighth and ninth innings when he failed to insert Rose after the crowd chanted, "We want Pete."

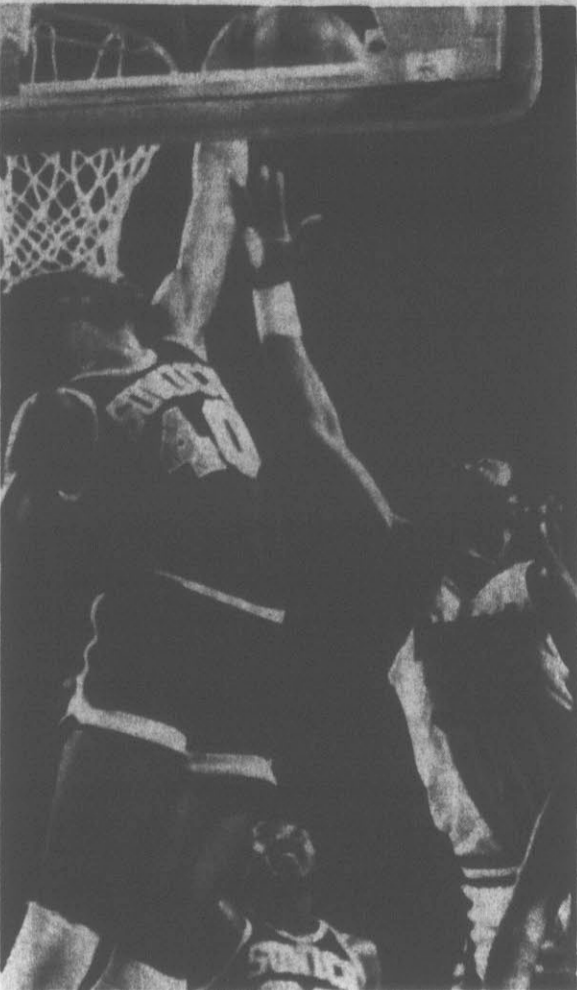

Afterwards, Anderson said Rose was in the original lineup card, but was scratched after team trainer Larry Starr reported that the 37-year-old third baseman was sick.

Rose played in the first game, going 1-for-5 as the Reds suffered their worst loss in 10 years, losing 19-5. The Reds won the second game 4-2.

Hayes: We'll Finish Sixers This Wednesday

Elvin Hayes, sometimes playing like a man possessed, predicts the underdog Washington Bullets will finish off the Philadelphia 76ers on Wednesday night.

NBA Roundup

"I know we're going to win the next game," Hayes said after his 35 points and 19 rebounds paced a 121-105 victory Sunday and gave the Bullets a 3-1 lead in the National Basketball Association's best-of-seven Eastern Conference finals.

"When we won up there, I knew we had 'em," Hayes said of Washington's victory in the series opener at Philadelphia.

"I thought we had control of the series after the first game," said Washington Coach Dick Motta. "We play better together than they do."

The 76ers, who won the Eastern Division title handily and then demolished the New York Knicks 4-0 in the semifinals, insisted they weren't finished.

"We are not planning any vacation," said Coach Billy Cunningham, sounding the keynote. "We are not going to fold up."

But an observation by Philadelphia's George McGinnis sounded a bit ominous for the 76ers and was about as logical as the team's play to date.

"It all boils down to a 2-out-of-3 series, and they've got to beat us one more game," he said, forgetting that the only thing the 76ers will derive from just two more victories will be the early vacation Cunningham wants to avoid.

The Western Conference playoff series between Seattle and Denver, tied 1-1 after Seattle's win on Sunday, moves to Seattle Wednesday and Friday.

Fred Brown, a seven-year pro from Iowa, came off the bench to score 26 points in just 25 minutes of playing time and spark the SuperSonics to the 121-111 triumph over the Nuggets on Sunday.

Brown took charge in the fourth quarter, which began with Seattle holding a slim 83-81 lead. He scored on a 3-point play to open the period, and wound up with 15 points in the quarter as the Sonics gradually moved ahead of a Denver team plagued by fouls for the second time in this series.

Triple Crown Chances Good

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The chances of Kentucky Derby winner Affirmed capturing the Triple Crown are quite good, according to trainer Laz Barrera. Then, with a big laugh, he added: "I'm the only one that can do it."

That became evident Saturday when Affirmed, ridden by 18-year-old wonder Steve Cauten, charged through the stretch to win the first leg of the crown before a crowd of 131,004 at Churchill Downs, third largest in the 104-year history of the Derby.

Now it was Sunday and the rain fell while Barrera stood in Barn 41. He said the Harbor View Farm colt would be shipped to New York's Belmont Park today and remain there for a week before going to Baltimore for the 13-16ths-mile Preakness Stakes May 20 at Pimlico.

The Cuban-born trainer felt vindicated because Calumet Farm's Alydar had been made the 6-5 favorite.

Chambliss Heeds Advice

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Even when Reggie Jackson isn't hitting game-winning home runs, he has a hand in them.

The New York slugger, who has a dramatic flair for breaking open games with the long ball, struck out Sunday, but that didn't stop him from helping the Yankees win a game.

On his way back to the dug-out, he gave some crucial advice about Texas reliever Len Barker to the next batter, Chris Chambliss. What did he say? "He said Barker wasn't throwing very hard and his ball was straight," Chambliss later reported.

Chambliss straightened Barker's fastball out even more—all the way out to the bleacher wall in right-center field, and the result was a 3-2, 12-inning victory for the Yankees over the Rangers.

In other American League games, the Kansas City Royals beat the Milwaukee Brewers 8-6; the Boston Red Sox stopped the Chicago White Sox 5-0; the Minnesota Twins whipped the Baltimore Orioles 15-9; the Detroit Tigers beat the Oakland A's 4-0; the California Angels routed the Cleveland Indians 16-3 and the Seattle Mariners trimmed the Toronto Blue Jays 9-7.

Royals 8, Brewers 6
Fred Patek lashed three hits, scored twice and doubled in the go-ahead run in Kansas City's three-run sixth inning, rallying the Royals over Milwaukee. Joe Zeb, Al Cowens and Frank White knocked in two runs apiece for the Royals, who snapped a five-game losing streak.

Red Sox 5, White Sox 0
Mike Torrez fashioned his first complete-game victory with Boston and Jim Rice and Carl Yastrzemski belted two-run homers, leading the Red Sox over Chicago. Torrez, who signed for $2.5 million as a free agent after pitching the Yankees to the World Series title last fall, allowed six hits and struck out four without issuing a walk. He boosted his record to 4-1.

Twins 15, Orioles 9
Mike Cabbage, Rod Carew and Butch Wynegar knocked in 10 runs among them as Minnesota cracked 18 hits to defeat Baltimore.

Cabbage collected two singles, a double and triple and knocked in four runs, while Carew had two singles and a sacrifice fly for three RBI and Wynegar socked four singles and a sacrifice fly to drive in three runs.

Tigers 4, A's 0
Milt Wilcox pitched a five-hitter and Jason Thompson and Alan Trammell blasted home runs to lead Detroit over Oakland.

"I wanted to show the manager I was not just a five-or-six-inning pitcher," said the 28-year-old Wilcox, who has had a checkered, eight-year career in the majors. "I couldn't spend my whole career as a long relief man."

Angels 16, Indians 3
Ron Jackson smashed four singles and drove in four runs and Don Baylor knocked in three with his eighth home run and added three singles to pace a 21-hit attack as California buried Cleveland.

California's biggest hit total of the season alsther batters.

Mariners 9, Blue Jays 7
Bruce Boche's two-out, two-run triple broke a 5-5 tie in the eighth inning and Leon Roberts followed with a two-run homer that gave him a club-record six RBI as Seattle downed Toronto. Rick Bosetti's grand-slam homer for Toronto with two out in the eighth had tied the game at 5-5.

Pirates Rely On Speed Instead Of Booming Bats

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

They used to be the lumber company, the guys with the booming bats. The Pittsburgh Pirates' idea of offense used to be waiting around for somebody to hit one over the wall.

NL Roundup

That's changed since Chuck Tanner took over as manager last year. The Pirates stole 280 bases in 1977, 73 more than any other major league team, and shortstop Frank Taveras led the majors with 70.

And they're off and running again this season. They swiped eight bases in eight attempts against Los Angeles Sunday, running left-hander Tommy John ragged and pinning the first loss of the season on the Dodgers' ace, 6-4.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Montreal Expos split a doubleheader with Cincinnati, winning 19-5 and then losing 4-2, the San Francisco Giants edged the Chicago Cubs 2-1, the Philadelphia Phillies beat the New York Mets 8-5 and St. Louis Cardinals defeated the San Diego Padres 8-4. Houston at Atlanta was rained out.

Expos 19-4, Reds 5-4
Montreal tied a club record by scoring 19 runs against Cincinnati in the opener, the most runs by any team in any game this season. It was Cincinnati's worst defeat in 10 years.

Montreal pounded four Cincinnati pitchers for 20 hits in the opener, including home runs by Andre Dawson, Ellis Valentine and Tony Perez.

An error by third baseman Larry Parrish on a double steal attempt in the sixth inning gave Cincinnati two runs and dealt Ross Grimsley his first loss after five victories.

Cincinnati's Pete Rose, who reached the 3,000-hit milestone on Friday, sat out the second game because of a stomach disorder, ending a club-record streak of 678 consecutive games, the longest of any active major leaguer. "It's the worst I've felt in 16 years," said Rose. "I took every pill I could to get better."

Giants 2, Cubs 1
Vida Blue won his fourth game in a row for the Giants after losing his season opener. He pitched no-hit ball for 52-3 innings and allowed four hits before being lifted in the ninth as Manager Joe Altobelli played left-righty percentages for the final two outs.

Right-hander Randy Moffitt relieved and retired right-hander Dave Kingman for the second out, then Gary Lavelle, a left-hander, came in and got lefty Bobby Murcer to end the game.

Willie McCovey drove in both Giants runs on an infield out in the third inning and a single in the fifth.

Phillies 8, Mets 5
Greg Luzinski belted two home runs and drove in four runs and Bob Boone and Richie Hebner hit one homer each as the Phillies won their third in a row and ninth in the last 11 starts, surviving a 16-hit New York attack.

Cardinals 8, Padres 4
Garry Templeton's two-run single capped a four-run fifth inning that carried the Cardinals past San Diego as Bob Forsch raised his record to 5-2 by scattering eight hits.
Ken Reitz singled home a run to produce a 3-3 tie in the fifth, then San Diego catcher Rick Sweet dropped the ball at home plate on an attempted force play, allowing the Cards to score the go-ahead run. Templeton then gave St. Louis a 6-3 lead with his single.

Foyt Might Bypass Winston 500 For Indy

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — Cale Yarborough will be back on the pole next Sunday — but don't look for A.J. Foyt alongside him.

Yarborough won the inside front-row position for the $250,000 Winston 500 Grand National stock car race with a qualifying run of 191.904 miles an hour last week. But Sunday's event was postponed for one week when thunderstorms swept the Alabama International Motor Speedway.

When the green flag drops next Sunday, Yarborough will be there. But Foyt may be after even bigger game, namely a fifth Indianapolis 500 title and a second straight. A year ago, he became the first driver ever to win four of them.

Qualifying for the May 28 Indy is next Saturday and Sunday and if Foyt hasn't qualified on the first day — or hasn't achieved what he feels is a satisfactory speed — he'll bypass the Winston. He also is expected to name a substitute driver later in the week for next Saturday's practice at Talladega.

The May 14 rain date for the Winston was held open in case of poor weather. However, rain also pushed back the Music City 420 in Nashville, Tenn., from May 13 to June 3.

Eritreans Under Relentless Daytime Air Attacks

By MICHAEL J. DUFFY
Associated Press Writer

MANDEFERA, Eritrea (AP) — The Ethiopian government is carrying out a relentless daytime air war against secessionist guerrillas in Eritrea, forcing many civilians to go about their tasks during the night. Classes for schoolchildren begin at dusk.

Leaders of the Eritrean Liberation Front claim the aircraft — U.S.-made F-5 Freedom Fighters and Soviet-supplied MiG-21s — are flown by pilots from Cuba and the leftist Arab nation of Yemen.

During the two weeks this reporter and AP photographer Claudio Luffoli toured areas controlled by the Liberation Front, known as the ELF, we saw the effects of Ethiopian air power on life inside Eritrea.

Militarily, the planes allow the Ethiopians to soften guerrilla positions in hot fighting areas, to maintain some military presence in distant areas controlled by the rebels and to prevent movement of troops and materiel during the day when every truck on the road is a target.

For civilians, the planes are a source of death and terror that keep life in the cities and villages from returning to normal.

Eritrean rebels have been fighting for independence since Ethiopia annexed their homeland in 1962. Victories in the last two years have brought the ELF and the Eritrean Peoples Liberation Front control of the entire countryside and all but a few of the major cities.

Eritrea, a 45,000-square-mile area, about the size of Pennsylvania, with a population of three million, provides Ethiopia its only access to the sea and is a strategic spot in the Horn of Africa for control of oil traffic through the Red Sea.

Now that Ethiopia has succeeded, with Cuban and Soviet help, in chasing Somali troops from the contested area of the Ogaden in the southeast, the northern province of Eritrea has become the focus of activity. Backing the ground troops are F-5s left over from the late Emperor Haile Selassie's era when Ethiopia was a principal African ally of the United States and MiG-21s that have been imported since the new military regime proclaimed itself revolutionary socialist.

ELF military leaders told us they estimate 4,000 Cuban troops, 35,000 Ethiopians and 100 Soviet-built T-54 tanks are massed south of Eritrea's border, poised for a major attack. They said airstrips in neighboring Tigre province are being expanded for intensified air strikes.

Most of the estimated 15,000 ELF troops are concentrated in the area between the border and Asmara, the Eritrean capital near the coast, where besieged Ethiopian troops recently made unsuccessful attempts to break through a guerrilla noose around the city.

Our first day inside Eritrea, at an ELF base camp near the Sudanese border, we heard a jet fly overhead just after daybreak and attack a position some 10 miles away. We were told later that the plane had attacked some trucks but that a goat was the only casualty.

The next day in the border town of Tessenei, we saw new air raid shelters dug in the streets and began to see the effects on civilian life. People stayed off the streets during the day and children attended school that began after dark.

Guerrilla leaders say there have been no night flights, adding that the attacks usually come in the early morning and just before dusk. The aircraft fly out of Asmara, which has been under a guerrilla siege for six months and is supplied by air.

WEATHER FORECAST — Rain and showers are forecast today for the upper Great Lakes and part of the Midwest and in the East from the Carolinas to New England. Cool, clear weather is due for most of the country. Temperatures are predicted to be mild in the southern states from the Pacific to the Gulf. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
Rain spread over the state Sunday and Sunday night and some heavy downpours have been reported in portions of the Piedmont. Rainfall up to one inch had been recorded by this morning in areas of the mountains and Piedmont, and some Piedmont sections had measured up to two inches.

Rains were to end in the west this morning and were expected to end in all but the northeast portion of the state by late morning. But showers and thunderstorms were expected to return again over much of the state during the afternoon, continuing tonight and Tuesday.

The rains have spread northward from the Gulf of Mexico, pushed by a warm front that moved to the southern border of the state. The warm front pushed Sunday temperatures to 80 degrees at Charlotte and Fayetteville along the southern border, but to the north it did not get as warm.

Elizabeth City and Greensboro got no warmer than a chilly 58 while Cape Hatteras reached only 61. Wilmington warmed to 77 and Asheville to 73.

The warm front was expected to move slowly northward during the day with rains ending from the south and west, but showers and thundershowers will develop in the warm air south of the front.

Warm and windy weather is forecast for Tuesday.

Sunday Saw 2 Accidents

An estimated $2,150 property damage resulted yesterday from two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville Police.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 5:43 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Sixth Street and Roosevelt Avenue involving cars driven by Margarette Barrette of 109 Douglas Ave. and A. D. Chapman of Red Barn Trailer Pk.

Police, who charged Chapman with failing to stop for a stop sign, estimated damage from the mishap at $1,000 to the Barrette car and $600 to the Chapman auto.

Vehicles driven by Frank Joseph Gray Jr. of Silver Springs Md., and Bobby Ray Brown of Route 5, Greenville, collided about 4:15 p.m. at the intersection of Memorial and Village Drives.

Officers estimated damage to the Gray truck at $300 and set damage to the Brown car at $250.

Prince Likes Royal Pomp

NEW YORK (AP) — Prince Charles, in an interview in Time magazine, says he would change nothing in the pomp and ceremony of the monarchy and that he hopes he won't leave "a messy mark" on history.

The current issue of Time, which features the 29-year-old prince on its cover with the heading, "The Man Who Will Be King," said it was the first interview Charles has given to a non-British publication.

On pomp and ceremony, Charles said, "I would change nothing. Besides ceremony being a major and important aspect of monarchy, something that has grown and developed over a thousand years in Britain. I happen to enjoy it enormously."

As for his personal goals, the heir to the British throne said: "I have not set myself a general goal in life, nor am I sufficiently ambitious or overconfident to have decided what mark I would like to make on history. I would only hope that it won't be a messy mark!"

Albania is located on the southeast coast of the Adriatic Sea.

At Planters you can avoid complicated tie-ins and service charges with a simple $100 minimum balance in checking.

You won't see them advertising it, but a lot of North Carolina banks have raised the cost of "free" checking by doubling your minimum balance. And complicated your once simple checking account by introducing unwanted options. Like requiring you to have other accounts.

Fortunately, we're not one of them. At Planters, the checking minimum is still $100. We've also lowered the monthly maximum by eliminating those unpredictable per check charges with a new flat $2 fee (if your balance ever falls below $100). Chances are you'll save money.

Now, when you put it all together — our simple $100 minimum, our new $2 maximum, plus the easiest-to-balance monthly statement in North Carolina — you've got every reason you need to check with Planters.

WE STILL KNOW THE VALUE OF YOUR DOLLAR.

"While other banks have raised their minimum balance for no cost checking to $200 and complicated things with unnecessary options, tie-ins and high service charges, we've made it simple. Our minimum is $100."

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF

Q.1-Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AQ10♥AKJ1088♦88♣QJ
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1♥ Pass 3♦ Pass
3♥ Pass 6NT Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.-Bid seven no trump. Your partner was prepared to contract for a small slam on the basis that you held a minimum opening bid and a rebidable heart suit. Since you have quite a bit in reserve, the grand slam should be a laydown.

Q.2-Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠872♥J88♦A10754♠84
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1♥ Pass 1♦ Pass
2NT Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.-Pass. Partner has shown 18-20 points, and you'll not stretch to pass—especially if partner bids only a doubleton diamond. Bear in mind that partner's jump to two no trump, while strongly invitational, is not forcing. You barely had enough for your initial sequence, and it would be folly to jeopardize a possible part score.

Q.3-East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KJ♥AJ953♦854♠92
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1♦ Pass 1♥ Pass
2♣ Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.-Two diamonds. You have enough for only one forward-going bid, and you have made it. All you can do for the moment is take preference to partner's first suit. A rebid of two hearts would show a much better suit than you possess.

Q.4-As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠K7♥AQ4♦AJ76♠A843
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1♥ INT Pass 3♦ Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.-Partner's response comes as a pleasant surprise. Even though it is not forcing, he should have a good suit and perhaps just enough on the side to give you a good play for slam. At any rate, you must tell partner that you have a maximum no trump and good fit, and you can accomplish that with one bid—a cue-bid of three hearts.

Q.5-Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠K106♥J8♦A852♠AK107
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1♦ Dble. 1♥ Pass
2♦ Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.-Partner might be bidding out of weakness, or he might have a hand just short of a redouble. One thing is sure—his spade suit is at least five cards long. You can advise him of the fit and that your hand is better than minimum by raising to two spades. If he has a fair hand, he will bid again.

Q.6-As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AJ92♥74♦KJ7♠AK97
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1♦ Pass 1♥ Pass
2♦ Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.-Some jump is in order, and it would seem that the obvious bid is four clubs. However, the key to a slam could be partner's heart holding, and if you jump in clubs you might not have the eggs to describe your hand fully. We suggest that you first bid three diamonds, intending to show your club support at your next turn. That would give a level of bidding and enable you to probe for the slam with greater accuracy.

Q.7-Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KQ10854♥8♦9♣K10765
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1♥ Pass 1♦ Pass
2NT Pass 3♦ Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.-Partner has shown 19-20 points, and that, combined with your highly distributional hand, suggests that there could be a slam in one of your suits. Therefore, we recommend a bid of four clubs to hear what that elicits from partner.

Q.8-Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AKQ854♥742♦6♠A85
Your right-hand opponent opens the bidding with one spade. What action do you take?
A.-None at all—there is nothing you can do for the moment. It is presumptuous to suppose that your opponent is overbidding. Pass, and see how the bidding develops.

Handful Of Women Cracking TV Barriers

By JAY SHARBITT
AP Television Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — In the early 1960s, Nancy Malone, then 16, acted in CBS' "I Remember Mama," produced by Doris Quinlan. Now, she's in a CBS movie, "Like Mother, Like Me," also produced by a woman.

And it's not hard for actress Malone to consult with the producer. She is the producer of this as-yet scheduled film starring Linda Lavin and young Kristy McNichol.

Mr. Malone is among the handful of women who in recent years have cracked the traditional old-boy network of actual and apprentice moguls making television shows here.

Her acting credits go from "Kraft Theater" to "77 Sunset Strip." Her producer credits include "Bionic Woman," an NBC kiddie special; two NBC movies, two CBS comedies, and now "Mother."

A red-haired, articulate New Yorker of Irish-American heritage, she says she began the transition from acting to producing five years ago because of gripes she made earlier to a pal, Tom Moore.

He ran ABC at the time. Her gripes at the time concerned the dreadful or demeaning roles usually offered women on TV.

"I was generally mouthing off," she grinned. "And he said, 'Well, I wish you'd get off my back about all this and do something about it,' I said, 'I'm an actress, what can I do?'"

She found out when he left ABC to head Tomorrow Entertainment, the firm that did "Miss Jane Pittman." He offered Miss Malone a job as a story analyst and the chance to learn the producing business.

She said she gave it much thought, as the weekly pay was $200, not the $1,500 she could get for just one series episode. But she took a big breath, then the Tomorrow job, and commenced learning.

Since then, in addition to producing, she's been director of TV development and later vice president for comedy at 20th Century-Fox, which she left last July to resume independent production work.

She agrees with a theory that the recent emphasis on TV films with strong roles for women — such as "Mother" — indicates the networks suddenly realize that women usually rule the TV set at home.

"Sure," she said, "I don't know why they weren't aware of that, because so much advertising is geared toward the women in the family."

She was asked about another trend in TV: A rash of weekly series in which female bosoms and bottoms like those co-starring on "Charlie's Angels" are displacing the macho mayhem of yesteryear.

"Well, it's coming from a certain morality that's trying to show there can be action, adventure, sex and what have you, anyway," she said. Then she broke into a good Irish laugh.

"But I must say I'd like to see the reverse. I'd like to see a 'Mabel's Angels' with three very adorable guys in tight pants. I think that'd be nice for the women to see."

Thompson, an auto broker for Sun Auto Co., took issue with a Duke University professor who claims it's economically impractical to use the sun for heating of homes in the South.

Dr. Jack B. Chaddock, head of the Department of Mechanical Engineering and Materials Science at Duke, was quoted in a newspaper article Thompson read as saying it is economically unfeasible to use solar power to heat homes in the South because it would take too long to recover the money invested in equipment.

Chaddock said homeowners in the North, where winters are longer and colder, are in a better position to recover their investments in a reasonable period of time.

Chaddock said the northerner might save enough on fuel bills to pay for his solar heating system in 20 to 25 years, but the homeowner in the South might have to wait 30 to 35 years.

"You might use a $10,000 solar home heating system in the South for only five months a year, no more than six," he said last week.

But Thompson said Chaddock based his explanation on a cost of $20 per square foot for installation for solar collectors. He said his system cost only $10 a foot.

He also said the system will become more valuable as time passes and energy costs climb.

"It's an investment rather than a purchase," Thompson said. "As fuel gets more costly, it will be worth more."

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Bob Thompson heats his Orange County home with solar energy, and he thinks. "There ain't no experts on solar heating — just some opinions."

Betty Ford Home Again

She has long suffered from arthritis and a pinched nerve in her neck.

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Former first lady Betty Ford spent a relaxing weekend at her desert home following her discharge from Long Beach Naval Hospital, a family spokesman said.

Bob Barrett said Sunday that Mrs. Ford's treatment for alcoholism and drug addiction was "absolutely successful." He said she will not require continuing treatment.

Mrs. Ford entered the hospital's alcoholism and drug addiction center April 11 after issuing a statement saying she was "overmedicating" herself.

The FARM SCENE

By MICHAEL E. BURGANS
Associate Agricultural Extension Agent

Beef cattle feeding systems can be devised to use varying ratios of forages to concentrates. Grain feeding expanded rapidly

In the 1960's due to an abundance of economically priced grain and a growing demand for choice beef. Cattle are less efficient than monogastric animals in utilizing grain and when grain prices are high, forages can be used to a greater extent in producing beef. With continued expansion of the world human population and increasing energy costs it is important for the cattle industry to be prepared to produce an increasing volume of beef from forages.

Changing consumer demands and new beef processing procedures may contribute to changes in the kind of beef that will be produced. It is quite likely that there will be a growing demand for lean beef. The increasing percentage of beef marketed as hamburger has been well publicized. At this time it is difficult to know if this trend will continue when the current volume of cow slaughter declines and the price of ground beef increases in relation to standard retail cuts. However with the popularity of fast food chains and demands of working women for foods that can be prepared quickly, it is likely that the use of ground beef will continue to increase. New processing techniques such as mechanical tenderization and desinewing may also alter the kind of carcasses in demand.

Good quality ground beef requires less fat than is present in the average choice carcass and grinding makes tenderness less critical than for beef consumed as roasts and steaks. Carcasses with 15% fat (20-25% in the boneless meat) meets the demands for ground beef while choice carcasses contain about 25% fat (30-35% in the boneless meat) resulting in 10-15% excess fat. The kind of beef needed for ground beef can be produced by muscular, standard and good grade carcasses, grades that can be readily produced on forage rations. As we move into the phase of the cattle cycle when herds are being expanded in size with less cow and non-fed beef on the market, supply-demand forces will determine the profitability of raising cattle specifically for ground beef. It is a product that can be produced in volume in the Southeast.

In the more conventional production systems, we in the Southeast have not fully utilized our advantages in climate and forage production to capitalize on the cattle industry. A large portion of our calves have left the area at light weights that often show little or no returns for the cost of keeping the cow herd for a year. The better the job the cattleman does in producing high quality forage and managing its utilization, the

Better Acceptance Of White Students On Campus Is Goal

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — In a curious twist to a traditional discrimination problem, officials are finding that as more white students enroll at predominately black Winston-Salem State University, special efforts must be made to increase their acceptance by black students.

Dr. Douglas Covington, chancellor of Winston-Salem State, said the real issue of campus desegregation is the relationship between students of different races. At Winston-Salem State, he said, this means better acceptance of white students, who make up 11.5 percent of the student body.

Covington said efforts should be made to get more whites involved in the school's "social academic program...that they do take an interest in issues raised by students. "This is what integration is all about," Covington said. "mutual understanding and harmonious relationships as well as quotas."

Clarence (Jeep) Jones of Boston, president of the school's alumni association, said earlier this week that he would ask for the alumni's help in making white students more at home at Winston-Salem State. He said the issue would be discussed when the alumni meet Saturday.

"I feel some guilt about it (lack of acceptance of whites)," Jones said. "I've really missed the boat on that one." Although he noted that the help of alumni in dealing with the problem must be limited, Jones said that "maybe the alumni can help break the ice a little bit."

When white students first come to the school, "maybe we need to pull them together and just say 'Welcome' if nothing else," Jones said.

Both Covington and Jones are concerned with the maintenance of traditionally black universities and colleges, an issue in the fight between Department of Health, Education and Welfare officials and UNC over desegregation plans.

"There is a need for black colleges, but that doesn't mean there shouldn't be white students there," Jones said.

"I share the concern about the preservation of our institutional heritage as a traditionally black university," Covington said. "But I believe that

There is "not a lot of interaction" between blacks and whites on campus, Covington said. "but there is some friendliness and mutual acceptance."

White enrollment at the school has increased from 15 in 1967 to 222 during the current spring semester, Covington said, and the increase is likely to continue for some time to come.

Although he would like to preserve the traditionally black character of the university, Covington said, "I encourage all qualified students who are interested in a good quality education to attend Winston-Salem State, regardless of race."

Old Ironclad Cost Is High

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — A state archaeologist said Sunday he believes the Civil War ironclad the Monitor, which sank off the North Carolina coast in 1862, could be recovered from the ocean floor before the end of the century.

But Gordon P. Watts Jr. said a Navy expert on underwater recovery has estimated it would cost $10 million to raise the vessel and preserve it.

"There's a foregone conclusion you could bring it up," Watts said. "But do you have the resources to do it?"

Watts, an underwater archaeologist for the State Division of Archives and History, spoke at the Nature Center in Winston-Salem.

Ever since researchers for the state and Duke University found the Monitor in 1973, there has been a continuing debate over whether it should be recovered.

Acres in tobacco: ( ) less than 15 ( ) 15-30 ( ) 30-45 ( ) more than 45

Mrs. Orena Harrison, Mullins, S.C.: "Not a thing. We saved more than $10,000 on labor this year alone bringing in 35 acres of tobacco with the LaborLess harvester! We love it!"

Marvin Smith, Lumberton, N.C.: "After I saw the LaborLess being demonstrated, there was no way I could turn it down. I don't know of anything you could change to make it any better."

Wayne Rogers, Mullins, S.C.: "Had no complaints... no trouble with the LaborLess harvester."

'Solid South' Falls Apart Over Port Competition

By JOAN MOWER
United Press International
 The solid South falls apart when officials of coastal states start talking about their port facilities and the keen competition for shipping business.

Jim Bisson, a spokesman for the Georgia Ports Authority, sounds like he's discussing a horse race in comparing the Garden City operation near Savannah and the port of Charleston, S.C.

"We and Charleston run about neck-and-neck in volume," Bisson said. "They've got an edge on us now in containers, but they got into the business a little sooner."

Indeed, ports are big business.

The South Carolina State Ports Authority estimates the port operations generate almost $600 million a year, and international trade activities have an effect on about 10,000 jobs in the Charleston area — where most of the berths are located.

Based on the most recent 1976 figures, Charleston, with its sophisticated container operation, was leading other South Atlantic ports in the value of the cargo — $2.1 billion.

The port, that specializes in importing and exporting textiles and textile-related machinery, is ranked eleventh in the nation in cargo value. Savannah, with nearly double the berth space, was close behind, ranked No. 13. Its cargo was valued at $1.4 billion.

Jacksonville followed in the No. 15 spot, with $1.1 billion in cargo, and 19th-ranked Wilmington came in with $794 million.

But Ann Morise, an SPA spokesman, said Charleston was slightly behind Savannah in the amount of tonnage handled. The Charleston facility has 13 berths — about half the number at Savannah.

"We really have to beat them with efficiency," said Ms. Morise. "We have had ship captains tell us they can get out of here quicker than out of Savannah — and that's important."

Jerry Gainey, a spokesman for the North Carolina Ports Authority, said that state only supplied $2.4 million in fiscal year 1977-78.

"Don't we know we're way behind Georgia and South Carolina," Gainey said. "That's what we're trying to remedy."

The Wilmington port, hit by a dockworkers strike Monday, had no ships in the berths.

At Charleston, which employs about 420 dockworkers, the ports authority has concentrated on developing facilities to load and unload containers in which high-value goods are usually packed.

In a containerized operation, goods are packed by the manufacturer and are not opened until they reach their destination.

"We think this system has paid off," Ms. Morise said, noting containerized cargo accounted for about 40 percent of the entire value in 1976. But she said the ports authority was not neglecting "break bulk," or unpackaged goods.

While ports authorities in Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina and at Jacksonville are semi-autonomous organizations, each state except Florida has been pouring money into capital development.

Bisson said the port at Savannah, which exports a lot of paper and clay and imports steel, jute and Japanese cars, is currently concluding a two-year, $52 million growth project that puts the port about even with Charleston.

The Georgia General Assembly also put up $11 million for the GPA to buy some new land and build two 200,000-square-foot warehouses and a new crane.

Four years ago, South Carolina voted to issue $68 million in bonds for the SPA. About $12 million of that went to improve existing facilities, with the rest slated for a new Charleston terminal on which construction is slated to begin this year.

One big plus for the Savannah port, Bisson said, was a light-weight vehicle assembly plant where a type of Chevy truck is assembled.

"We call it the 'LUV' (lightweight utility vehicle) assembly line which sounds like a dirty movie," said Bisson. "By doing assembly in this country cuts down on the tariff a bit."

The Jacksonville port is No. 3 on the list, in part because the state has not sunk money into it. That operation, finances most of its own capital improvements with some help from the municipal governments.

Competition has reached to highest state levels with Georgia Gov. George Busbee and South Carolina Gov. James Edwards frequently touting their state's facilities.

"Gov. Edwards has had several conferences with federal officials to do what we can for our facilities," said his spokesman.

Sponsor Program On Shoplifting

The Merchants Committee of the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring a new educational shoplifting program known as "Shoplifting Takes Everybody's Money" (STEM).

According to Greenville Police Department statistics, 346 cases of shoplifting were reported here last year with a total of $6,086.30 worth of merchandise stolen.

In addition, the committee reported, it is expected that hundreds of other cases of shoplifting occurred but were not reported or detected.

George Martin and John Shannonhouse will be co-chairmen of the program in the Greenville area. All merchants will be encouraged to participate in the program in order to inform the public of the consequences of shoplifting, as well as to inform consumers of how much shoplifting costs everyone.

Two shoplifting educational programs will be sponsored each year. The first will be held during the last two weeks of May while the second program will be conducted prior to Christmas.

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

When Pain Threshold Is Low

We have two adolescent children. One can withstand a great deal of pain without complaining. She's the girl, 12 years old. Our 14-year-old boy falls apart with the slightest ache or pain. Can you explain this? — Mrs. D.T., Texas.

Dear Mrs. T.:
 The capacity to withstand pain is an individual one. There is no mathematical or computerized way to measure the degree of pain. The tolerance for pain, known as the "pain threshold," varies with each individual. Many factors are involved in determining one's threshold. The interrelationship between the body and mind is one of the most important determining factors in the level of that pain threshold.

Many people who do not react sharply to pain may find that their own threshold varies under different circumstances. Some, who normally can tolerate a great deal of pain, may suddenly find that under emotional stress their tolerance is lower. Then they react more severely than usual.

There are many superficial and deep-seated psychological explanations for the differences of the level of the pain threshold as they occur in one family.

Frankly, I do not believe that you should make too much of a point of your son's inability to tolerate pain as compared with his sister. The comparison can only serve to stigmatize him in the family. This can secondarily reflect itself on his relationship with friends. Supporting him with understanding and patience will be more helpful than criticism.

My son was injured in an automobile accident. He had a brain concussion. Even though he has completely recovered we want to know if, at some later time, this brain injury may affect his work at college. He is 16 years old now. — Mr. K.R., Pa.

Dear Mr. R.:
 The fact that your son has completely recovered is an excellent indication of the fact that you need not live with a sense of concern about his health and accomplishment.

The brain is a very hardy organ. In fact, even during surgery, it can withstand far more manipulation than can the intestines and the stomach. Even skull fractures need not result in permanent injury to the brain.

Numerous tests can readily indicate that the brain has recovered, after an injury. These tests, coupled with electroencephalographs, and substantiated by the judgment of the neurologist, have undoubtedly been done for your son.

The psychological and physical reaction to such an experience may take some time to subside. During this interval, it is most important that you do not look anxiously at his every move. Even people who have fully recovered can remain chronic psychological invalids when someone else's level of anxiety is transmitted to them.

SPEAKING OF YOUR HEALTH... Poor speech should be corrected early in childhood. Charming remnants of baby speech should be eliminated before the start of school.

Introducing the solution.

The low tar/low taste problem... solved!

Camel Lights deliver the real satisfaction no other low tar cigarette can. But, then, no other low tar is a Camel.

It starts with a richer-tasting Camel Blend. Carefully formulated for low tar filter smoking. The result: a rich, rewarding, truly satisfying taste. With just 9 mg. tar.

The name says it all. All the flavor and satisfaction that's been missing in low tar cigarettes. This one delivers. Because this one's a Camel. Put the solution in your hands.

New Camel Lights

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

9 mg. "tar", 0.8 mg. nicotine av. per cigarette by FTC method.
