Divorce In Royal Family

LONDON (AP) — Princess Margaret and her husband Lord Snowdon have agreed to a divorce, Buckingham Palace announced today.

An official statement on the controversial marriage said: "Her royal highness, the Princess Margaret, Countess of Snowdon and the Earl of Snowdon after two years of separation have now agreed that their marriage should formally be ended. Accordingly her royal highness will start the necessary legal proceedings."

Margaret, sister of Queen Elizabeth II, separated from her photographer husband on March 16, 1976 after 16 years of marriage.

They have a son, 16, and a daughter, 13. A spokesman at Kensington Palace, Margaret's home, said the princess had "no plans for re-marriage."

The 47-year-old princess has drawn criticism in recent months for her friendship with 30-year-old socialite Roddy Llewellyn.

The princess is currently in King Edward VII Hospital in London suffering from suspected gastroenteritis.

Wife Of Defected Soviet Diplomat Takes Own Life

MOSCOW (AP) — Leongina Shevchenko, the wife of the Soviet U.N. diplomat who refused to return home from the United States, committed suicide, her son said today.

Gennady Shevchenko told Western reporters by telephone from the family's Moscow apartment he could give no details about his mother's death Monday "but I confirm that she committed suicide."

Earlier the son, like his father a diplomat in the Soviet Foreign Service, told reporters who telephoned him his mother had died of a heart attack.

"I just did not want to say immediately that she had committed suicide," he said in a subsequent call.

Soviet sources with good official contacts made the first disclosure of the suicide, saying Mrs. Shevchenko died from an overdose of sleeping pills and that her body was found in a closet of the family apartment where she had been living with her 16-year-old daughter since her return from New York in April.

Arkady Shevchenko, the top-ranking Soviet citizen on the staff of the United Nations, left his post as undersecretary-general for political and Security Council affairs on April 5 because of "differences with his government," a U.N. spokesman said.

Informed sources said he refused to obey an order from the Soviet government to return home, and his wife went without him, taking their daughter, after a violent argument. They also have a son, Gennady, who is a diplomat in the Soviet Foreign Service.

The Soviet government blamed the Ukrainian-born diplomat's defiance on a "frameup" by U.S. intelligence agents, but the U.S. government said it had nothing to do with his actions.

Soviet diplomats at the United Nations circulated stories at the time that Shevchenko was having an affair with an American woman and also had a drinking problem. There was also speculation that he was a secret American agent and had been found out.

Mrs. Shevchenko told reporters on her return that her husband's action was a "crude provocation" by American authorities and that he would never have wanted to stay in the United States.

Their daughter, Anya, also said that "my dad wouldn't ever want to stay in the United States."

Three weeks later the 47-year-old diplomat and Secretary General Kurt Waldheim announced they had agreed on the termination of his U.N. contract, which still had two years to run, and the payment of $76,116 in severance pay.

Shevchenko said through his lawyer that he did not consider himself a defector and wanted to retain his Soviet citizenship. But he said he hoped "to lead a normal and productive life" in the United States and would make his address "publicly available" after weeks arranging his affairs. Observers interpreted this as a signal to publishers, the news media, the lecture circuit, universities and other possible employers.

Shevchenko has been under contract for several years to do a book on disarmament for the Alfred A. Knopf publishing house. After he broke with his government and went into seclusion, a spokesman for Knopf indicated his personal story would be more marketable, and he is said to have had offers from four other publishers.

Probe 'Perfect' Landing In Bay

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Federal officials have begun their investigation to learn why a National Airlines jetliner — in no apparent trouble — made a "perfect landing" into Escambia Bay, instead of on the runway three miles ahead.

Flight 193 crashed into the fog-shrouded waters late Monday with 58 persons aboard. Three of the 52 passengers drowned.

Investigators say they have no immediate indication why the three-engine jet wasn't at the prescribed altitude of 1,250 feet when it hit the water.

"There were no changes in pitch or power," said Jim King, chairman of the National Transportation Safety Board. "It was in stable position. Once they went in, many of the people on board just thought it was a particularly hard landing."

Tugboat operator Glenn McDonald of Gulf Breeze told investigators the plane "appeared to be making a perfect landing — into the water," King said. McDonald and crewman Bill Kenney became heroes when they pushed a construction barge next to the plane, then pulled scores of passengers to safety.

King said NTSB officials today would send the cockpit conversation recorder to experts in Washington. The water-drenched device will be kept in a bag filled with water so experts can carefully dry and preserve its contents.

Allen Road Citizens Ask Utilities For Water Line

By KEITH MILLS
Reflector Staff Writer

A delegation of Allen Road citizens petitioned the Greenville Utilities Commission Tuesday night for a water main extension into that area of the county.

Jim Bullock, attorney, told the commission that approximately 20 residences along Allen Road have expressed a desire for city water because of wells drying up and the hard base of clay in that area that makes it difficult to obtain potable water.

Bullock further requested that the project be given "top priority" if a proposed water bond referendum is passed in the fall, or citizens along Allen Road would like to be released from the city's service area in order to obtain water from Bell Arthur.

GUC Director Charles Horne told the group that funds are not currently available and that the commission cannot vote on an "if-ly" question because it cannot be sure the bond vote will pass.

Although a vote was not taken, members of GUC indicated that Allen Road residents would receive top priority if the referendum succeeds.

GUC is currently working with city officials to adopt a $12-$15-million bond referendum for the fall that would provide water service to fringe areas of the city.

In other action, the commission authorized Director Horne to mail a proposed revision of its Electric Underground Policy to developers and builders for approval. If approved, the new policy would go into effect July 1.

The existing Underground Policy was written in 1970 and adjusted in 1975. However, the proposed policy rewrites the current one and addresses areas not covered adequately.

are requested, GUC currently charges $125 extra per lot. The proposed policy changes this to $150 per lot to reflect the commission's cost.

— Subdivision homeowner. GUC currently charges $125 per service with a $100 waiver for all-electric homes. The proposed policy maintains the same charge but eliminates the waiver for all-electric homeowners.

— Apartment complex. The present policy charges $50 per apartment with a total waiver for all-electric service. The proposed policy eliminates the all-electric waiver and specifies exact charges, $50 for 2-gang and $25 for 4-gang services.

— Trailer parks. GUC currently charges $50 per trailer space. The proposed policy charges $100 with a $50 discount if the developer supplies loop-feed meter bases.

— Commercial. GUC currently charges a calculated differential cost. The proposed policy specifies charges for most service commonly used and differential charges for the others.

— Industrial. No change. The new electric rates are based on overhead construction costs.

Charles Horne reported that Olsen Associates Inc. is still working on a study of the 201 Facilities Plan. The plan has not received approval from the state as yet because the engineers have not provided documentation of actual plant performance or cost estimates which show that the plan can be built at the estimated cost.

DELETION PROTEST

I travel the GREAT bus to and from the doctor's office and I hate to think that this service to Oakmont Plaza is going to be discontinued soon. They have to realize that the senior citizens need this transportation. A lot of us have doctors' and dentists' appointment out here and, if it's cut out, what will we do? It is expensive to take a cab — $3 one way. Most of us don't have that kind of money. A. P.

Greenville Transit Service Marketer Linda Hix confirmed that the bus service to Oakmont Plaza will be eliminated May 22, at the same time many other changes in the city bus schedules are made. This is being done, she said, because there are few passengers to this area now, and as of May 31, it is understood that the family physicians' office in Oakmont Plaza is closing, a move which GREAT has reason to believe will further reduce the ridership to this area. The buses on this route have an extremely tight schedule, Mrs. Hix said, and the extra two-miles-plus is not warranted, especially once this doctors' office closes, she said.

If, at a later time, this area is again built up and potential ridership increases and more buses are added to the GREAT service, it will probably be put back on the system, she indicated.

Old-Timer Has Faith In Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-H. Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am a retired coal miner, now 82, and believe it or not, I can still read without eyeglasses. I don't remember when I first started to read DEAR ABBY, but it has now become a very important part of my life.

Will you please do me a favor and settle a lengthy and heated disagreement I have been having with a good friend of mine named Curly. Curly says that you do not personally write your own column or answer your mail. He claims you have assistants and secretaries do it for you. I say that you do all your own writing. Anyway, we have a $10 wager, so please let me know who is right.

GARY AURITT, STONINGTON, CONN.

DEAR GARY: You are. I have a staff of devoted secretaries who are expert typists (I'm not). They do the research and handle referrals, but every line published under my name is written by me!

Collect the $10 from Curly, but be careful how you spend it, Gary, because I don't want to be responsible for contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

DEAR ABBY: When my son was married 12 years ago, I gave him my wedding ring to give to his bride. She wore it for 10 years, then she put it away because my son gave her a beautiful set of rings with diamonds for her 10th wedding anniversary.

Three months ago, my son and his wife started divorce proceedings, and I asked my son to get my wedding ring back. He told me he had already asked his wife for it but she wouldn't give it up. She said it was HERS—regardless of where it came from. Finally I called and told her there was a lot of sentiment attached to that ring and I wanted it back.

She then had the nerve to say that she also attached a lot of sentiment to the ring and refused to part with it.

How can I get it back and what should I do now?

BOILING POINT

DEAR BOILING: Your son GAVE the wedding ring to her, therefore it's hers. And I see no way for you to get it back if she doesn't want to part with it. The word from here is, simmer down and give up.

DEAR ABBY: My 13-year-old sister has this crazy thing about germs. If someone coughs or sneezes near her, she holds her breath or runs out of the room.

If someone touches her food, she won't eat it. She sterilizes her toothbrush every time she uses it. She won't use a towel if anyone else has touched it. When we go anywhere, she won't touch doorknobs or railings with her bare hands because they're "germy."

Our whole family is disgusted with her fussiness and over-cleanliness. What's wrong with her? And do you think she'll grow out of it?

WORRIED SISTR

DEAR WORRIED: Your sister has an obsessive "phobia" (fear) about germs. It is not uncommon, but her chances of "outgrowing it" are slim. Please urge your parents to take her to a psychiatrist. With treatment, her phobia can be removed.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple do-your-own-thing ceremony, get Abby's new booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (24 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Model Doubles As Charm School, Bible Teacher

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Every day a tall, statuesque blonde passed the doorman at the St. Paul Hotel as she fetched rolls and coffee for the other saleswomen at a nearby store.

And almost every day, the doorman said, "What are you doing in St. Paul? You should go to Hollywood and become a star."

Pamela Norman took his advice. Today her name may not be in lights, but her face has stolen the show on everything from fashion magazine covers to oil commercials.

Besides her modeling successes, she has acquired a husband in gospel rock singer Larry Norman and has become deeply involved in Christian pursuits.

Mrs. Norman, the former Pamela Ahlquist of St. Paul, also teaches "Christian charm" to young women and is currently writing a book that will be titled "Beauty from Above."

"I think as Christians we should look as good as we can," she said. "There's no reason to look dowdy."

At 28, she says she has about three years of modeling left. Then she plans to devote more time to the charm school.

"I teach what they would learn in an average John Robert Powers course as well as the things girls have to learn to deal with — like anger and frustration," she said. Her 10-week course costs about $100.

Although she's had "several" movie parts offered, Mrs. Norman turned them down when nude scenes were later added. "God always seems to open the door to something else," she said of her success in finding work.

She played the lead in "Just Last Summer," a Christian film that is shown mostly at colleges and churches.

Mrs. Norman said she continued to work with a Bible study group she started with her husband in the living room of their Beverly Hills home. The classes, which outgrew their apartment, were moved to the beach, and at one time involved about 2,000 young people. An offshoot of the Bible group

One Of Most Admired Women

A news story last week said Betty Ford, wife of the former president, was going home in "magnificent health."
She had been discharged from the Alcoholism and Drug Abuse Center at Long Beach Naval Hospital, and a family spokesman said she would be taking up her usual activities upon returning home.
When she entered the hospital Mrs. Ford said in a statement that she had developed a dependence on drugs which she was taking for arthritis and a pinched nerve. Later she announced that her problem also involved alcohol.

Now Mrs. Ford seems ready to resume her life which includes considerable public exposure, although a spokesman said she would maintain a "continued awareness" of her problem.
As First Lady Mrs. Ford maintained an openness and forthrightness with the public which was refreshing. In private life she has continued this.
She has to be one of the nation's more admired women today, and we doubt if there is anyone who doesn't wish her well.

Mulling Emergency Plans

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Does North Carolina need bomb shelters, radioactivity monitoring devices, and rapidly deteriorating stocks of water and hardtack?
Those services are the outgrowth of Civil Defense launched in the 1950s and still hanging on in spite of efforts to shift that program in the direction of civil preparedness.
"What is needed, top officials of the Department of Crime Control and Public Safety agree, is an emergency response plan couched in real terms as to what can be done in the event of real disasters — floods, storms, building collapses, airplane crashes and such.
A major reshaping of the state's emergency response potential is under study by J. Phil Carlton, head of the crime and safety agency, with a view to moving away from the unreality — and futility — of programs dealing with nuclear attack, and toward a workable program for real events.
The nut of the response program will be a renamed Civil Preparedness office — possibly called Emergency Response agency — and some clearly spelled out plans for who will be in charge, who will respond, and how present-day inter-agency bickerings, competing, and lack of communication can be ironed out.
"It's amazing how many of these little sections of various state agencies are involved when an emergency occurs", say public safety officials. "There is not necessarily a lack of cooperation ... but a lack of understanding."
For instance, from the Department of Human Resources come Emergency Medical Services including rescue squads, and health officials to guard against spread of disease or poisonous substances. From Natural and Community Resources come people dealing with water pollution, housing problems, and community development teams. From Administration come access to federal repair grants and loans. From Transportation come equipment and manpower to fix roads and bridges. Planes and helicopters can come from several different agencies.

Attack
The object, say state specialists, is to "get away from the connotation of Civil Defense ... the old Nuclear Attack syndrome ... and make emergency response relevant to what the problems really are today: floods, wrecked chemical tankers, airplane crashes, storms and such which really affect people."
Despite disclaimers from federal and state levels, Civil Preparedness continues to suffer that "nuclear attack" syndrome. The agency spends more than $800,000 yearly in this state; about half in federal and half in state funds.
A brief review of the program shows major emphasis on radiological equipment, warning devices, repeated surveys of shelters and supplies, tests of devices to measure radioactivity, and developing grandiose plans for sheltering and relocating people, assessing damage, and writing up public information packages to be used in event of nuclear attack.

The Real Carter Emerged

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — The President's own aides were not convinced of Jimmy Carter's springtime regeneration until his answer to the last question at his April 26 press conference when his advocacy of tax reform suddenly echoed the vigor of the 1976 campaign, but also its aberrations.
"I haven't seen this Carter since the campaign," confided one presidential aide, a sentiment widely shared at the White House. But with renewed dynamism came inaccuracy which appears not wholly accidental. What's more, it brought to light elements of his thinking still unknown outside his inner circle.
The reply to the tax reform question was in truth the authentic Carter, warts and all. The frequently dull President reverted to the socially-conscious populist from Plains, Ga., seldom boring but often puzzling.
Mr. Carter returned from the April 16 weekend retreat with his senior staff at Camp David in a feisty mood of self-confidence that infected his aides. "Everybody's been leaning on us, and we're going to start leaning back," said one. The President immediately upbraided Congress for opposing him on tax and energy matters, reflecting what was termed inside the White House "the new spirit of Camp David."

But his first press conference following the Camp David retreat reverted to empty prose and leaden arguments — until the last question. When asked, "Why are you so insistent on pushing tax reforms?" Mr. Carter came to life with an attack on "abuses," with this example: "One medical doctor, a surgeon, owns a yacht, and he took a $14,000 tax credit, tax exemption, for entertaining other doctors on his yacht." This would be forbidden by the Carter tax reform.
In fact, Mr. Carter was referring to neither a "credit" nor an "exemption" but a "deduction," something very different. No President has devoted so much time to educating himself in the intricacies of the Internal Revenue code. He surely knows the difference between a "credit" (a reduction in the actual tax) and a "deduction" (merely a reduction of taxable income).
What's more, Mr. Carter quickly indicated that "credit" was no slip of the tongue. "And when that doctor didn't pay his $14,000 taxes," the President declaimed, "other average working American families had to pay his taxes for him." But the doctor would be paying $14,000 less in taxes only if he took a credit, not a deduction. The fact that Mr. Carter's error was consistent suggests at least the possibility that it was intentional.
This is reminiscent of the 1976 campaign when Mr. Carter frequently played a bit loose with facts to make a sharper point — a failing some advisers warned him about to no avail. They now admit privately that the President exaggerates a little when really impassioned about an issue.
That raises this broader question: when faced with towering problems here and abroad, why is he so passionate over tax reform in general, over entertainment expenses specifically and over deducting a $14,000 business entertainment item in particular? Additional revenue from denying all deduction for yachts, hunting lodges, country club dues and other business entertainment expenses would total $420 million this year-chickenfeed by today's budget standards.
Nor do experienced Democratic politicians, including Carter loyalists, consider it good politics. While ordinary taxpayers dislike that yacht-owning doctor, nobody worries much about him either. It is probably too late this year to build popular support for tax reforms, and Mr. Carter's impassioned if inaccurate plea of April 26 fell on deaf ears in Congress. Why, then, did the President do it?
Because one of the very few inflexible opinions held by Mr. Carter is his low esteem

NOT OVER A BARREL...SORT OF SIDESADDLE!

Everybody Wants One

By ART BUCHWALD
WASHINGTON — Now that President Carter has rejected the neutron bomb, the military has been racking its brains to come up with a bomb that everyone will be happy with.
As you know, the advantage of the neutron bomb was that it killed people without destroying property. The new bomb, called the "RRR" or "Blast bomb," is a great improvement as it will not only kill people but will also destroy everything. It is so powerful it will blow up a mountain, dig a ditch three times the size of the Panama Canal, and with the proper fuse break off the Horn of Africa.
Man has dreamed of a bomb with this much power since time immemorial. Its destructive capability is beyond all imagination, and American scientists have assured us it can work.
The only problem is, if the United States builds it can it keep it for itself?
Every time we get a good thing, the oil-producing states get wind of it and want it for themselves.
There is no reason to doubt that when we perfect it Saudi Arabia and Iran will want it for their own defense, and we'll have no choice but to give it to them in exchange for not raising their prices by $1 a barrel.

This is what will happen. A Saudi Arabian prince will visit President Carter and say, "We understand you have a new bomb called the Blast which will blow up all of South Yemen."
Mr. Carter will reply, "It's only a tactical weapon. We need something to replace the hydrogen bomb in Europe."
"We'd like to buy a dozen of them for our 1st Camel Brigade."
"I'm not sure the United States would want to sell them to you as it might upset the balance of power in the Middle East."
"All right, if that's the way you feel about it we'll raise the price of oil at the next OPEC meeting. We consider your refusal to sell us the Blast bomb an unfriendly act. Besides, President Ford promised us we could have it when it was perfected."
"Ford didn't mention it to me."
"He told me, 'Anything our military has, you can have providing you only use it for defense.'"
"Ford said that? Wouldn't you consider something like a little F-15 airplane instead?"
"We wanted the F-15s until we heard about the Blast bomb. Our military people are very concerned about the health of the dollar, and we want the biggest bang for the buck. With the Blast bomb we could become one of the major powers in the Middle East."
"But if we give any other country the Blast bomb it could fall into the hands of the Soviets."
"They've already been in touch with us and they claim they have a bigger bomb than you have. If you won't give it to us we'll buy it from them. We want the biggest bang for the rubble."
"You're making it very difficult for me. If I give you the Blast bomb, then I'll have to give it to Israel and Egypt. The Shah of Iran will also want it, and then every Third World power will insist on the Blast bomb to prop up their National Guard."
"The Blast bomb is a matter of honor with us. What

Carter Will Be Active

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite his slumping average in the polls, Jimmy Carter is not going to warm the political bench during the campaign season. Not unless he wants it that way.
There are and will be more requests for Carter's campaign assistance than the White House can fill. The president's political scorekeepers are checking some averages of their own, so as to be most responsive to congressional candidates who have been most helpful to the administration.
That kind of loyalty check may irk some people on Capitol Hill, but it is the way the game is played. It is not customary to advertise this, or to commit it to charts and memos which can, as one did in this case, wind up in print.
But the fact is that presidents always have done, and probably always will do, more at campaign time for those candidates who do the most for them between elections.
That leaves the broader question of Carter's value as a campaign ally in 1978. That almost answers itself. There is nothing like the aura of the White House to draw a crowd, help raise campaign money and stir up the precinct workers to do the political footwork.
Short of war, Watergate or economic catastrophe, campaigning politicians almost always are in the market for an assist from the president.
And for all his troubles in the public opinion polls, President Carter is not likely to be an exception to that rule. Whatever the voters may think of the job he is doing, they agree overwhelmingly that he is honest and hard working. He is and will remain a drawing card, and in a congressional campaign, that helps.
Sometimes it takes a bit of footwork to be helpful. The other night in Spokane, Wash., Carter praised Rep. Thomas S. Foley, then adroitly reminded his constituents that the chairman of the House Agriculture Committee didn't always agree with the administration on farm policy. That's putting it mildly.
The national political leader who really wants to help will be for or against the candidate, whichever does the most good.

40 Years Ago Today

May 10, 1938
Brief but impressive Memorial Day exercises were conducted in Greenville today in honor of the Confederate dead.
The program began at the high school auditorium where student Bill Cobb made a talk on the history of the Confederate flag.
Led by the band, the entire high school student body then marched to the Confederate monument on the court house lawn. Flowers were laid at the feet of the monument, later to be taken to the cemetery and placed on the graves of the old soldiers.
Judge C. V. Cowper was introduced by Mayor M. K. Blodt and made a brief talk. The sounding of taps and the benediction by Rev. W. A. Ryan completed the exercises. There are no living Confederate veterans in Pitt County.

Dry weather broken here and there by local showers, has not yet damaged North Carolina's tobacco crop. L. T. Weeks of State College said today.
Strong healthy plants, the result of an early spring, are largely responsible for the successful season thus far.

Strength For Today

NOT BY BREAD ALONE
In his temptation in the wilderness, Jesus made a rejoinder to Satan which has echoed down the centuries: "Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceeds out of the mouth of God."
The important word here is "alone." Man must have the Word of God. Without that, nothing else in life has value. Man cannot live by bread alone, nor by prosperity alone, nor by family happiness alone, nor by fame and honor alone. These things are all fine and legitimate objectives, but apart from God they are empty misadventures.

Many, if not most people today live entirely secular lives. They attempt to get every possible delight out of life without any attention at all to God. Some try to live by comfort alone, or by brains alone, or by wealth and pleasure alone. But these "alone" lives are hopeless. People live fully only if their lives are sustained by every word that proceeds out of the mouth of God.

Big Recall Of Cars By AMC

By ROBERT PARRY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The government, announcing its first recall of an automaker's entire car output for a model year, says about 300,000 vehicles produced by the American Motors Corp. in 1976 may have defective emission systems.

Although smaller than many of the government's previous car recalls, the Environmental Protection Agency order would affect all AMC cars and many of the company's Jeeps manufactured during the 1976-model year, an agency source said.

The EPA planned to announce the recall today, according to the source, who asked not to be identified.

The government's action was seen as part of a new get-tough attitude by the EPA toward possible violations of air quality standards.

In apparent anticipation of the EPA's order, AMC recalled 153,000 1976-model vehicles Tuesday to replace broken tubes that could increase emissions from the tailpipe, the problem that concerned EPA.

That recall followed a similar one of 157,500 1976-model cars by the nation's fourth largest automaker in February. The EPA order covered the vehicles in the two recalls.

However, an EPA recall would require that corrective action meet government standards while a company recall would not, according to the agency source.

Affected by the recall orders are all AMC 1976-model passenger cars — Gremlins, Hornets, Pacers and Matadors — and about 40,000 1975 and 1976 Jeeps and AM General Corp. dispatcher vehicles used by the

Ad Sells His Rattlers

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — For sale: rattlesnakes.

That's the way Benjamin Roberts' ad read in the Sunday classified pages of the Kansas City Star and he got a number of responses. Some people wanted to buy snakes to cook, some wanted to breed them, some wanted to make pets out of them. One wanted to pit a snake against another rattlesnake, chicken or a bear.

Roberts, 38, scoured the Glass Mountain range near Okeene, Okla., a week ago to search for the elusive Western Diamondback rattler. He said the trip netted seven snakes, ranging in size from 3 feet to 5½ feet. The latter was sold for $35, the remainder for $10 each, Roberts said. One snake, measuring 4½ feet, was kept for the Roberts family to eat, he said.

"One guy wanted snakes that would fight," Roberts recalled. "He said he was tired of bingo and wanted to see a snake fight. I told him rattlesnakes don't fight among themselves, and he asked if they would fight a chicken. I told him the chicken would fly away. Then he asked if it would fight a bear. He asked if I had a bear."

It was Roberts' first rattlesnake-hunting expedition, but he plans to return.

Postal Service.
The vehicles with the possible defect have 232-cubic-inch and 256-cubic-inch, six-cylinder engines.

The automaker said the joint of a sensing tube in the exhaust gas recirculation system would be checked. However, AMC said engine performance would not be noticeably affected by the problem.

Any broken sensors would be replaced free of charge. AMC added.

There probably will be a few Democrats who find it advantageous to issue dramatic declarations of independence, and to announce that they don't want Carter in their territory this fall.

Carter said in Portland, Ore., that no members of Congress had been around to tell him he was a liability and should stay away from their districts.

He said he didn't think he was a political handicap for Democrats. "If any of them think so, then their proximity to me is a voluntary matter," he said.

Carter also said that if he did hear from anyone who didn't want him around, "I would certainly not require them to attend the political rallies and the events in which I participate."

But he said that hardly a day passes without a request for campaign help from the White House.

good is all our oil money if we don't have the Blast bombs to go with it?"

"I'll talk to our military people about it. They're excited about this bomb, and if I tell them the first ones off the production line have to be sold to you they're going to be very disappointed."

The phone rings. Prime Minister Begin is on the line.

Carter speaks, "Mr. Begin, you just heard about the Blast bomb? And you heard we might sell it to the Saudi Arabians? I assure you no decision has been made yet. Of course you'll get an allotment, too. But I must warn you, it's not a toy. If it performs the way we hope it will, it could blow up half the world. The only reason I would sell it to you is to guarantee a lasting peace in the Middle East."

N.Y. Wild Turkey Is Challenge N.C. Firms To Share Shipping To China

By PETE JACOBS
Associated Press Writer
ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — With the season opening near, some 16,000 turkey hunters in New York state are preparing for their annual effort to have Thanksgiving in May.

The bird, which virtually vanished from New York around 1850 because of a combination of subsistence hunting and diminishing habitat, has again become a much sought-after trophy for thousands of hunters.

There are an estimated 15,000 wild turkeys in the woodlands of New York, mainly along the Southern Tier and in the Catskills. They nest in trees at night and roost about by day.

A WARY PREY — A "bearded" tom turkey is shown in the woods of one of the 35 New York State counties that will be open for the spring turkey hunt from May 15 until June 4. The beard is a characteristic of male turkeys, the only turkeys which can be taken during the spring season. (AP Laserphoto) fler, wary, and can run at speeds estimated at 10 miles an hour.

These characteristics make hunting the wild turkey a great challenge, said David Austin, a senior state wildlife biologist.

"When the turkey first started to make its comeback, a lot of hunters didn't know how to hunt them and stumbled around in the woods a lot feeling stupid," said Austin, who also hap-tempts to emulate the seductive sounds of the female to attract the gobble.

With the decline of hilltop farming in this century, the wild turkey returned to New York by walking or flying across the state line from Pennsylvania into Cattaraugus County back about 1940.

New York's terrain had become more hospitable to the turkey. In the 1800s, much of the state's forests had been eliminated by farmers. The turkey was out of a home. But as the number of farmers decreased, forests grew or were replanted and again provided shelter.

No Surprise From Ruling

NEW YORK (AP) — Joan Little says she is not surprised by a unanimous decision of the New York Court of Appeals to permit her extradition to North Carolina in 10 days.

"I am prepared for whatever happens," she said following Tuesday's ruling. She commented in a telephone interview from the city's Correctional Institution for Women on Riker's Island.

Her attorney, William Kunstler, said he will ask the U.S. District Court in Manhattan this week to issue a writ of habeas corpus on the ground that she has been denied her constitutional rights of due process and equal protection under the law.

Miss Little, who once said she would rather die than return to North Carolina, has been fighting extradition since her arrest as a fugitive last December. She had escaped two months earlier from the Raleigh, N.C., prison where she was completing a 7-to 10-year sentence for breaking and entering. She gained national attention earlier during a murder trial in which she was acquitted of killing a white jailer she said attacked her sexually.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina companies throughout the state will have access to direct shipping to markets in Far East when a Chinese shipping line begins regular service to the port of Wilmington.

State Commerce Secretary D.M. "Lauch" Faircloth told the State Ports Authority meeting here Tuesday the Yangming Marine Line of Taipei, Taiwan, will begin regular service to Wilmington July 13.

"The Yangming line is the national shipping line for the Nationalist China. Faircloth said. "The company operates a fleet of modern container vessels, and their service will begin with the arrival of the ship, Mingspring in July.

"The company expects to have four ships call on Wilmington through June of 1979," he said. "At that time, Yangming will expand its fleet with four more and larger container ships so that one of its carriers will be calling at Wilmington almost weekly."

Faircloth said the new line will mean state companies will have access to direct shipping to markets in Taiwan, Hong Kong, Korea and Japan. He said the new service will represent a large increase in the tonnage shipped in and out of North Carolina ports. By mid-1979, the Yangming line expects to be shipping as many containers — almost 6,000 annually — as the current largest customer, he said.

Faircloth said Yangming will be the seventh container line serving Wilmington.

"While cargo will vary with business, the first imports on Mingspring include textile chemicals and machinery, rugs, clothing, glass and glassware, and Japanese steel," he said. "The ship will export from Wilmington chemicals, textiles, machinery, tobacco products and fish and poultry meal."

Suffocated In Octopus Fight

TOKYO (AP) — Police found the body of Yuki Otaka, a 34-year-old postal clerk and amateur diver, in 15 feet of water. On his back was an empty tank that had held enough oxygen for an hour.

Fifteen feet away was a six-foot octopus dead from cuts by Otaka's knife. The police said there were no wounds or bruises on the diver's body. They believed his oxygen ran out while he was fighting the octopus and he suffocated.

Italy Expects More Attacks From Terrorist Gang

By DENNIS REDMONT
Associated Press Writer

ROME (AP) — More terrorist attacks on Italian political leaders are expected despite nationwide revulsion at the Red Brigades' murder of Aldo Moro. The slaying also strengthened the alliance between his Christian Democratic Party and the Communists and promised election gains to the government party.

In a spontaneous burst of emotion, millions of Italians poured out of factories, shops, offices and schools Tuesday to demonstrate against terrorism after Moro's body — chained and riddled with 11 bullets — was found in a parked car in the heart of Rome.

More than 100,000 crowded Milan's Piazza del Duomo. More than 30,000 marched around the Colosseum in Rome, carrying hastily-fashioned white banners for the Christian Democrats and red for the Communists along with black-framed portraits of the 61-year-old former premier.

The massive display of unity gave new support to Premier Giulio Andreotti's Christian Democratic government and to the alliance Moro forged to include the Communists in the government's parliamentary majority for the first time in 31 years.

"The Red Brigades have pushed the Communist Party and their labor unions toward a policy of law and order," commented Luigi Barzini, author of the best-selling book "The Italians."

"They have moved the Christian Democrats closer to the Communists. The murder of Aldo Moro is worse than a crime; it is a mistake on the part of the Red Brigades."

But repeatedly after their gunmen kidnapped Moro on March 16 and killed his five bodyguards, the ultra-leftist revolutionaries said in their "communiques" that the abduction was only one phase of their open war against Italian society.

"Let it be clear that we do not intend to finish the game at this point," they vowed in their first message.

"The capture of Aldo Moro is merely an illuminating moment of the class struggle," said another. "The prime objective is the attack on the imperialist state and the liquidation of the filthy and corrupt Christian Democrat regime."

In addition to a steady stream of attacks on political and business leaders and lesser figures, the Red Brigades are expected to release tape recordings they extracted from the president of the Christian Democratic Party during the "people's trial" at which they said he was sentenced to death for his leading part in Italy's governments for more than 20 years.

In one communique, the gang said Moro's "testimony" would be released to the clandestine terrorist press. Government officials are concerned that Moro was forced to disclose secrets he acquired while serving as premier five times between 1963 and 1976, as foreign minister and as president of the party which has dominated Italian politics since World War II.

But the image of Moro-the-martyr is expected to give the Christian Democrats a boost at the polls Sunday, when municipal elections are held in part of the country. Although the party was still Italy's largest in the 1976 national election, with 38 percent of the vote, it has been steadily losing ground in recent years, and the backlash against the terrorists could help to reverse this trend, for a time at least.

However, the failure of a 50,000-man dragnet to find Moro or clues to his kidnapers during his long captivity could prove a liability in the long run and attract support to those who argue that only the Communist Party can control left-wing terrorism.

The terrorism of the Red Brigades also could spawn counter-terrorism from the extreme right. "Yellow, Green or Blue Brigades can sprout like poisonous mushrooms, competing with each other, shooting each other down like the right-wing death squads and the guerrillas in South America," political analyst Alberto Ronchey wrote.

Italy's small but vocal Fascist movement has called for declaration of a "state of war" and the return of the death penalty. Ultra-conservative Judge Mario Sossi of Genoa, a prisoner of the Red Brigades for 35 days in 1974, said after learning of Moro's murder: "The state should have realized that this is a situation of civil war. If it had applied the constitution, declaring this and acting upon it, Moro's life could have been saved."

Police said Moro probably was killed a few hours before his body was found in the rear of a maroon hatchback Renault parked on Via Michelangelo Caetani, two blocks from one of Rome's busiest intersections.

Flouting the police in one of the most heavily patrolled areas of the city, the car was parked the wrong way on the street and left only about 200 yards from both the Communist and Christian Democratic party headquarters.

A preliminary examination of Moro's body showed he had lost considerable weight during his long captivity. Ballistics experts believed he was shot with two guns, one a rapid-fire Czech CZ61 Scorpion pistol possibly equipped with silencer and the other unknown. The Renault was stolen in Rome on March 2, two weeks before Moro was kidnapped. Its original license plate had been replaced by one issued in Macerata, about 100 miles northeast of Rome, and another stolen from a government office in Naples, 120 miles south-east of the capital.

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Leftist students and others have been setting fire to buses and government vehicles, pelting police with rocks and exploding homemade bombs in Bogota and other Colombian cities this week, but police say nobody has been hurt.

Officials attribute the unrest to a recent 12 percent increase in bus fares. But political observers say it reflects discontent due to inflation, which last year was 29 percent.

Trial Of Southern Bell Official Is Nearing End

By MONTE PLOTT
Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — After more than a week of testimony and a parade of witnesses, the embezzlement trial of former Southern Bell Telephone Co. vice president John J. Ryan appeared nearing its end today, with prosecution and defense attorneys ready to give their final arguments.

Ryan, who headed Southern Bell operations in North Carolina until he was fired in 1973, stepped down from the witness stand Tuesday afternoon after a day and a half of testifying in Mecklenburg County Superior Court.

He steadfastly, and often vehemently during cross-examination by prosecutor Joe Dozier, denied he ever ordered his subordinates to falsify expense vouchers to get money for him.

Superior Court Judge Sam Ervin III dismissed one count against Ryan, leaving 14 charges that he diverted money for his own use. Ervin said a charge that $500 of company money went to Ryan's personal bank account was "vague" and lacked enough evidence to indicate that a crime may have been committed.

During the nearly three hours of cross-examination Tuesday, Ryan launched into lengthy explanations of inner workings of Southern Bell, his hands shaking occasionally but interrupting his answers to questions only for a few sips of water from a paper cup.

Southern Bell had a special category of expense vouchers for entertainment of public officials and members of the N.C. Utilities Commission, he said.

Ryan said it was an unwritten company policy that "it would be in the best interest of the company" not to list names for expenses such as lunches and what Ryan described as a "productive educational" trip by utilities commissioners to Bell System laboratories in New York.

"You don't put the name of the commissioners when you wine them and dine them," Ryan said.

He also said money from a political fund fueled by "compulsory" salary kickbacks from Southern Bell executives in Atlanta came to North Carolina in 1972, when money from an identical plan in the state was not enough to go around in the gubernatorial race.

Denying allegations that he ordered bogus expense accounts to get money for political contributions, Ryan said the only money used during that campaign was from the salary kickback plan.

Envelopes containing $3,000-$4,000 in cash "systematically" came up from Southern Bell headquarters in Atlanta to be used in the campaign, Ryan said.

Southern Bell has previously admitted that executives contributed to political funds prior to 1973, but the company said contributions were strictly voluntary and therefore legal.

J.W. Travis, vice president of operations for Southern Bell and Ryan's boss, said outside the courtroom that money did go from Atlanta to North Carolina in 1972, but only from voluntary contributions and not in amounts as large as Ryan described.

Ryan continued to put the blame for any falsified vouchers on his subordinates. He approved their expense vouchers without question because "they were signed and sworn correct by subordinates I trusted."

J.B. Smith, one of Ryan's aides, testified earlier that he diverted money for Ryan through bogus vouchers and other means at Ryan's orders.

Ryan described Smith as "my right arm in the civic community," and said he never questioned Smith's expenses.

Ryan's former wife, Jean, testified in his defense regarding several rugs, television sets and furniture allegedly bought by Ryan's subordinates with company money and delivered to the Ryan home.

Her estimates of when the items were bought contradicted earlier prosecution testimony.

The prosecution presented as its final witnesses five current or former Southern Bell officials who said they knew of a bogus voucher scheme. They said Ryan instructed them to falsify vouchers to pay for items such as a sportcoat for Ryan and weekend hunting trips.

Ryan earlier denied having a subordinate buy a sportcoat for him, and he said entertainment related to company matters was considered a legitimate expense.

Under cross-examination by Allen Bailey, all of those witnesses admitted they either had falsified vouchers or had been held responsible for money misused through vouchers.

Bailey also emphasized that all former or current Southern Bell officials testifying in the case had a grant of immunity from prosecution. That grant was part of a plea-bargaining arrangement worked out between Southern Bell and local prosecutors in return for the company's guilty plea in February to one count of mishandling the funds through political contributions.

All That Money Was Worthless

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — George E. Cole III opened the back of a second-hand record player he bought at an auction and thought he had become a millionaire. But the money he discovered was worthless.

Cole found about one million German marks, issued between 1914 and 1923. It was during those years that Germany suffered severe inflation. Germans themselves use the marks to start fires and paper their walls, a currency expert told Cole. The only value they have is historical.

Cole said he was curious why the money happened to be inside the stereo, and concluded that "somebody probably had it from the war, and didn't want anyone to mess with it."

Agree To 'Clean' Race In Democratic Runoff

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Talk of bloodletting, mud-slinging and political dirty tricks was put aside Tuesday as state Democratic Party leaders held a unity meeting and called the race for the U.S. Senate nomination a good, clean fight.

had complained of.
Flanked by George Autry, campaign manager for Hodges, and state Rep. Charles Webb,

D-Guilford, campaign manager for Ingram, Mrs. McCain said she was certain the party "can close ranks on the 31st day of May and we can defeat Sen. Helms."

The meeting was the second Mrs. McCain has called during the Senate primary, the first one coming when personal charges started flying before the May 2 primary. As at the earlier meeting, neither candidate attended.

Both Autry and Webb said their candidates would support the other if nominated, and both said they thought the runoff would not hurt chances for a November victory.

"I think we're here to dispel the myth that primaries are divisive," Webb said. "We may be hard-hitting, but we will stay within a framework of fairness."

"The second primary, contrary to all popular opinion, could be helpful because it gives the people of North Carolina a chance to hear all the issues and see who is the strongest candidate to face Sen. Helms in November," Autry said.

Mayor Indicted By Grand Jury

HERTFORD, N.C. (AP) — Columbia Mayor George Raymond Rowsom Tuesday denied charges that he was involved in what has been described as an illegal life insurance scheme.

Rowsom and three other persons have been indicted by a Perquimans County grand jury here on six charges in connection with an illegal life insurance scheme, according to District Attorney Thomas Watts.

Watts said he anticipated additional indictments in additional counties. He said the grand jury action Monday climaxed an investigation lasting eight months in which the Chowan County and Perquimans County sheriff's departments and the investigative division of the state Insurance Department cooperated with his office. He described the scheme as "a life insurance fraud scheme involving the collection of insurance premiums which were not remitted to the insurance companies."

Rowsom, one of the few black mayors ever elected in eastern North Carolina, was indicted on three misdemeanor charges of aiding and abetting in violation of the insurance laws and on counts of aiding and abetting in felonious false pretense, being an accessory after the fact of embezzlement and conspiracy to commit embezzlement.

Contacted Tuesday, Rowsom, a funeral home operator, said, "I'm denying everything. I'm not guilty."

Watts said that also under indictment are:

—George L. Rowsom, in his late 20s, the mayor's son who operates the Edenton Funeral Home, on one count of conspiracy to commit embezzlement.

—Clarence L. Badham, 55, an employee of the Edenton Funeral Home, on two counts of embezzlement, and one count of conspiracy to commit embezzlement.

—Joseph Earl Dixon, 32, an employee of the Edenton Funeral Home, on two counts of embezzlement and one of conspiracy.

Watts said the four defendants were arrested late Monday and were all released under bond pending trial scheduled in the August 7 term of Perquimans Superior Court.

Area Students Among Grads

Two area students graduated from Campbell College Monday. David DeVane Butler received a bachelor's degree in Business Administration. He is a native of Williamston.

Thomas Cecil Tripp of Grifton received a bachelor's degree in Religion.

TIRING TASK—The crew of this cumbersome craft faced a big problem in the annual spring boat race on the Contoocook River — getting to the starting line. Made of 426 truck tire tubes, the vessel proved as unwieldy in the water as on the land, carrying its 60 crew members to last place in the race, behind an assortment of rafts, kayaks and a foot-pedaled barge in the New Hampshire event. Public Works Week is Proclaimed Here

Mayor Percy Cox proclaimed May 21-28 as Public Works Week and urged "all citizens to recognize the contribution of public works employees to the quality of life in our community."

Cox said that local Public Works employees "promote the public health of our community in the following ways:

— The regular collection and safe disposal of garbage and trash;

— The safe operation and maintenance of facilities for the collection and treatment of sewage; and — The provision of an adequate supply of properly treated water, which is also an integral part of the community's fire protection."

The Public Works Department, the mayor said, "promotes the public safety by installing and maintaining traffic signs and signals, and by cleaning and repairing streets and bridges."

Cox also cited the employees involvement in the maintenance and care of public buildings, grounds and trees, as well as maintaining vehicles needed in the programs of other city departments. The department reviews plans for subdivisions and other developments and plans the construction of public buildings, streets and other capital improvements "which enhance the community," he added.

The national observance of Public Works Week is also scheduled for May 21-28, it was noted.

A MOTHER'S WORK — A possum named "Pauline" has almost more than she can handle as she trudges along a log with her litter clinging to her back at a Stone Mountain, Ga., wildlife game ranch.

When baby possums are very young they ride in their mother's pouch; but at this age, it would take a miracle for this pocketful. So they hang on the best way they can. (AP Laserphoto)

BES-PAK INTRODUCES DEGRADABLE PLASTIC

NEW STRONG TRASH BAGS THAT CAN HELP YOU PROTECT NATURE FROM POLLUTION.

Strong. Dependable. Good for big, heavy loads. That's the way Bes-Pak® has always made trash bags. And now Bes-Pak has added a special ingredient to the plastic that helps it degrade. Here's how it works: Use the bags. Put them outdoors as usual. When the plastic has been exposed to prolonged sunlight of sufficient intensity (in your yard or at the dump), a gradual chemical change will begin. And a few weeks or months later, the plastic will break down and turn back into harmless natural elements. Even if it's buried in landfill. Another nice thing. Bes-Pak Bags don't cost more than other leading brands. Usually a little less. So now when you get rid of your trash, you can help get rid of an environmental problem, too. Look for the boxes with the Bes-Pak seal.

• Trash Bags • Heavy Weight Bags • Leaf and Lawn Bags

25¢ off on any box of Bes-Pak Degradable Bags.

TO THE DEALER: You are authorized to act as our agent in redeeming this coupon provided it has been accepted in a bona fide transaction toward purchase of one package of Bes-Pak Degradable Bags. Bes-Pak will pay you its face value plus 5¢ handling cost, in accordance with the agreement made with you and the rules and conditions applicable thereto. Cash value: 1/20 of 1¢. Sunshine

A cloudless sky — the first in a good while — and a bright sun greeted Greenville area residents this morning.

Weathermen yesterday predicted good weather—and an end recent heavy rains—for the rest of the week.

The Greenville Utilities Commission weather station recorded .56 inches of rain during the 24-hour period ending at midnight last night, with no precipitation since then.

The high temperature yesterday reached 82 degrees, while the low was 58. At 8 a.m. the temperature was 66 degrees.

The Tar River level at 8 a.m., according to the GUC weather station, stood at 13.5 feet.

The National Weather Service forecast office in Raleigh said yesterday that the Tar should be back at bankful — 13 feet — today. The river reached a high of 18.3 feet last Friday.

Hyde Portrait Goes On Display

ENGELHARD — The public showing of a long lost portrait of Edward Hyde, Governor of North Carolina from 1710-1712, got underway today in Hyde County and will be on view tomorrow and Friday.

The initial showing took place beginning at 1 p.m. today at Matamuskeet School. An evening showing will be from 7:30 to 9:30 tonight at that school, with the following showings to take place tomorrow and Friday:

- Thursday — 9 a.m. to noon, Davis School, Engelhard; 1 to 3 p.m., Peay School, Swan Quarter; 7:30 to 9:30 p.m., Ocracoke School.
- Friday — 9 a.m. to noon, Ocracoke School.

The portrait is of Edward Hyde as a young man. It was discovered on November 5, 1975, by Norman H. Turner of Cheshire County, England stored away in a family home. After authentication of the portrait arrangements were made to loan it to North Carolina for restoration and to be exhibited. The restored portrait was unveiled in Raleigh on January 12th this year and has been brought to Hyde County for this series of public showings.

Hyde had the distinction of being governor of Carolina at the time the Proprietors Grant made the area into two colonies, North and South Carolina.

Rites Today For Judge Nowell

GOLDSBORO, N. C. (AP) — First Baptist Church of Mount Olive was the scene today of the funeral service for District Court Judge W. Milton Nowell, who died Monday. He was 53.

Nowell, a native of Wendell, had served since 1971 as judge in the 8th Judicial District, which embraces Wayne, Greene and Lenoir counties.

He was graduated from Atlantic Christian College and received his law degree at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill in 1960.

Good Deed Met By An Arrest

THOMSON, Ga. (AP) — A 24-year-old Anniston, Ala. man thought he was doing a good deed when he stopped to offer a ride to a stranded motorist during a rainstorm.

But Preston Bluit was arrested and charged with offering to sell marijuana to his passenger — an undercover agent for the Georgia Bureau of Investigation.

GBI spokesman Don Branch said Monday the agent was en route to Thomson when his car broke down on the expressway.

A passing motorist stopped to give him a ride and offered to sell the agent some marijuana, Branch said. When his companion stopped for a hamburger, the agent slipped away and telephoned his office.

Branch said agents found two pounds of marijuana in the trunk of the car.

All They Got Is Scrawny Pigs

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) — Jogging 25 miles a week failed to reduce the risk of heart attack in pigs, and the theory that it helps in humans should be reviewed, according to a University of California study.

Researcher Max Sanders said "The findings caused a great deal of anguish" among his colleagues who are dedicated joggers.

The pigs were run on treadmills, and lost 20 per cent of their body weight, but their circulation — an indication of how prone they would be to heart attacks — was no better than that of sedentary pigs, the study said.

DePauw Honor To Jane Pauley

GREENCASTLE, Ind. (AP) — "Today" show co-host Jane Pauley will receive an honorary doctorate of journalism at DePauw University's commencement exercises May 21.

At 27, she is the youngest person ever to be chosen as the recipient of an honorary degree from DePauw, university officials said.

An Indianapolis native, Miss Pauley graduated from Indiana University in Bloomington with a political science degree.

because they believe in the program," Helms said. "We still have those who think the signal cuts off the oven."

The Load Management Program is designed to reduce peak loading by switching off central air conditioners and hot water heaters at periodic intervals during the day.

The GUC approved the adoption of an emergency load reduction plan. The emergency load reduction plan is designed to coordinate with the reduction program adopted by the Virginia Electric Power Company (VEPCO), dated May 1, 1978.

The GUC's emergency load reduction plan includes three basic plans:

— Plan I — Voltage reduction (5 per cent). Voltage reduction will normally be the initial step taken to curtail load. Under this plan, the distribution of circuit voltages will be reduced by five per cent. GUC does not plan to decrease voltage where such reduction would create intolerable conditions.

— Plan II — Voluntary load reduction. Phase A: Selected commercial and industrial customers on the system will be requested to curtail the use of all non-essential electricity. A list has been prepared of the customers to be called. Each of these customers will have had the plan explained to them prior to the actual request to allow them time to formulate their plans for voluntary load curtailment. Phase B: Public appeals for voluntary load curtailment will be made through the news media.

— Phase III — Supervisory and manual load shedding. The objective of this plan is to further reduce demand in increments of 1.5 per cent (2000 kilowatts). Should manual load curtailment be required, VEPCO will advise the commission as to the number of 1.5 per cent increments VEPCO's Williamston District will take and the commission will initiate a similar number of increments. Under this plan, individual substation circuit breakers would be opened to de-energize various pre-selected distribution circuits. This would be accomplished by the existing supervisory control where available and by switchmen at other substations. This plan would operate on a rotating basis and would be implemented in such a manner that no distribution circuit would be de-energized for more than two hours in the summer or one hour in the winter.

The commission's Load Management System would be utilized, where practical, to reduce the load by 1.5 per cent increments (2000 KW) in order to minimize the number of customers that experience a total outage.

Arabs In Israel Street Renovation Bid Shun Festivities Accepted By Ayden Bd.

By LARRY THORSON
Associated Press Writer
TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The Star of David is flying in Israel's Arab villages for the Jewish state's 30th anniversary celebrations but the Arabs aren't dancing in the streets like their Jewish countrymen.

"It would be like dancing on your father's grave," said one young member of Israel's Arab minority, who make up 15 per cent of the population.

The Arabs who remained in Israel have caused no trouble in the nation's wars with neighboring Arab countries. In the three decades of statehood, their number has grown from 120,000 to 550,000. The Arab population is exploding, with 4.4 children to the average family compared to a Jewish average of 2.4.

They share in the prosperity produced by the Jews, who have given Israel a living standard equal to Italy's. According to government statistics, the average urban Jewish household had a disposable income in 1976 of $5,000; the Arab average had $4,000. Arab unemployment, like the Jewish, is under 4 percent.

Yet the Arabs remain determinedly different, as much by their own desire as by the design of the nation's Jewish leaders. They are Moslems, Christians or Druzes in a Jewish state, with a separate Arabic school system in which Hebrew is the second language. Only 55 percent live in cities and towns, compared to 90 percent of the Jews.

Israeli Arabs are not subject to military service as Jewish men and women are. The nation's 3.1 million Jews see the Arab world's 100 million people as adversaries, while Israeli Arabs feel kinship to them though their Israeli passports deny them entry to the Arab world.

AYDEN — A $21,572 bid for proposed street renovations was accepted by the Ayden Town Board Monday night.

The low bid, sent in by the L. A. Reynolds Co., was approved for the summer street renewal plan.

A $5,563.20 bid from M & W Chevrolet, Ayden, was also accepted for the July 1 purchase of a new police car.

The Board discussed a resolution to be sent to the North Carolina Department of Transportation requesting improvements on Lee and Third Streets, both parts of state maintained roads.

A policy concerning rental fees for town owned buildings was established, there being no previous set guidelines.

The board also approved a change in the town ordinance concerning discharge of firearms in the city limits, extending the ordinance to include town owned property.

Discussion on Ayden's preliminary application to the Department of Housing and Urban Development for proposed funds (totaling $351,159 led to the Board's final approval.

The meeting followed with a planning board recommendation for a tentative conditional use permit for Bryan Hargett.

Hargett, a developer who wishes to build a livestock auction and sale enterprise in an industrial zone asked for a conditional permit.

Commissioner J. Elliott Dixon made a motion to allow a public hearing to be set on the matter. However, no second was voiced, and the motion was dropped.

In other business, the Board approved a recommendation for town accounts to be kept with Planters Bank for the coming year.

Trevino Is Strong Favorite In Colonial

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A variety of factors combine to make Lee Trevino a strong candidate for the title this week in the $200,000 Colonial National Invitation Golf Tournament.

"I played good enough to win in Dallas. Maybe this week," said Trevino, whose pounding, last-round challenge to Tom Watson fell short by a single stroke last weekend in the Byron Nelson Classic.

That performance made obvious the fact that Trevino is playing extremely well. He led at one point in the Masters, was second in the Tournament of Champions, led one round at New Orleans, then had another runner-up finish.

"And we're getting into the part of the schedule I like," said Trevino, whose only Texas triumph came in this tournament two years ago. "We're playing a lot of good, hard courses where you don't have to shoot 700 under par to win."

"We're getting into the hot weather, too. And that helps. I'm a hot-weather player. It can't get too hot for me. I just can't handle that cold."

That, at least, should not be a problem on the 7,190-yard, par-70 Colonial Country Club course. This event, which draws an invitational field of only 102, often is subjected to some of the hottest weather on the tour.

And the course is to Trevino's liking, too. It's one of the most difficult the touring pros encounter all year. Over-par figures have been good enough to win. And it's even tougher this year.

The green on the par-3 13th has been redesigned and now is on two levels. "If you get the ball on the wrong level," said tournament chairman Bill Speer, "it's going to be almost impossible to two-putt."

Only two men who have won 1978 tour titles — Jack Nicklaus and Miller Barber — are missing from the field that begins the 72-hole chase Thursday.

The leading contenders for the $40,000 first prize are South African Gary Player, who reeled off a string of three consecutive victories: U.S. Open champ Hubert Green, winner of two titles this year, and 1977 Player of the Year Tom Watson, who collected his third victory of the year last week, became a golfing millionaire and moved into this year's leading money-winning spot.

Other 1978 winners include

Jay Haas, Lon Hinkle, Barry Jaeckel, Mac McLendon, Gil Morgan, Tom Weiskopf and Bill Rogers. Also on hand are defending title-holder Ben Crenshaw, Ray Floyd, Jerry Pate and Mark Hayes.

Portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday will be televised nationally by CBS.

Tennis Winner

ECU tennis player Tom Durfee copped all the awards for tennis this year. Durfee was named most valuable, most improved, and also received the Coaches' Award. The Bucs had their best season since 1965 last year under coach Randy Randolph. (Reflector photo)

It takes more than an inside fastball or a four-outfielder defense to rattle Jim Rice.

The Boston Red Sox slugger, hit on the arm by Kansas City's Jim Colborn in the fifth inning Tuesday night, came right back to belt a Colborn fastball for a two-run homer in the seventh inning, giving the Red Sox a 4-3 victory over the Royals.

The Royals used their four-outfielder alignment, unveiled the previous night by Manager Whitey Herzog, on two of Rice's five trips to the plate. He singled once and was retired on a long fly ball the other time. Against a normal alignment, he grounded out, was hit by a pitch and hit his game-winning homer.

The key, says Rice, is concentration.

So far this season, he's done just about everything. He leads the American League in six of offensive categories: batting average, .376; runs scored, 29; runs batted in, 34; hits, 47; triples, 4, and homers, 10.

In other American League games Tuesday night, the New York Yankees beat the Minnesota Twins 3-1, the Cleveland Indians edged the Seattle Mariners 5-4, the California Angels defeated the Detroit Tigers 7-5, the Toronto Blue Jays blanked the Oakland A's 4-0 and the Texas Rangers topped the Milwaukee Brewers 7-1. Chicago at Baltimore was postponed because of wet grounds.

Yankees 3, Twins 1

Catfish Hunter allowed just one hit in six innings — a lead-off single by Willie Norwood — before giving way to Sparky Lyle, who finished the three-hitter. It was Hunter's best outing in almost three years, since he pitched a one-hitter against the Texas Rangers on May 31, 1975, and it came 10 years and one day after he hurled the major league's last perfect game — also against the Twins.

Indians 5, Mariners 4

Two errors by Seattle shortstop Craig Reynolds helped Cleveland erase a 4-1 deficit with three runs in the seventh inning, then a two-out single by Mike Vail drove in Larvell Blanks with the winning run in the ninth.

Rangers 7, Brewers 1

Al Oliver belted a three-run homer and a run-scoring single to back the seven-hit pitching of Ferguson Jenkins as Texas beat Milwaukee. Sixto Lezcano homered for the Brewers' only run.

Blue Jays 4, A's 0

Oakland suffered its third consecutive shutout, this time at the hands of Tom Underwood, who tossed a five-hitter, striking out nine. Rick Bosetti drove in one run and scored twice.

Angels 7, Tigers 5

Ron Fairly led California past Detroit with three run-scoring singles. The last one came in the eighth inning and snapped a 5-5 tie. Don Baylor and Tony Solaita of California and John Wockenfuss of Detroit all hit home runs.

Greene Central Drops Jaguars

SNOW HILL — Greene Central moved into command of the Eastern Carolina Conference baseball race last night with a 9-7 victory over Farmville Central.

The victory gives the Rams a 10-1 league record, while the Jaguars drop to 6-3. C. B. Aycock is in sole possession of second place with a 7-2 record.

The Rams had to hold off a strong Jaguar rally to take the win, however. Greene Central held a 4-3 lead after the first inning and both teams added one run in the fourth. The Rams then scored two runs in the fifth and sixth, but the Jags came up with three in the seventh and had the tying run on when the game ended.

Billy McLawhorn walked for the Jaguars in the first and Scott Evans singled. Phillip Gordon doubled them both home and Edward Hines got a base hit to plate Gordon.

Mike Chase singled in the Greene Central first and Greg Holmes moved him up with a sacrifice. Jay Carraway hit a two-bagger to score Chase and he followed on Russell Brann's triple. Collyn Beamon's single plated Brann and Beamon came in on a base hit by Jeff Scott.

Clark May came in on Evans' infield out in the fourth, while Carraway scored on a double error to make it 5-4.

Al Murray and Beamon added runs for the Rams in the fifth, while Greg Holmes came in on Carraway's two-run homer in the sixth.

In the seventh, Gordon reached on an error. Allen Moore singled and Hines walked to load the bases. Eason walked in Gordon and May singled to bring in Moore and Hines, but the Rams retired the next two batters to win it.

Both teams play again Friday. Greene Central travels to Ayden-Grifton, while Farmville Central will be at C. B. Aycock.

ANNE NOT FAZED

IPSWICH, Mass. (AP) — Her friends told Anne Bapson football with the boys would be tough but the sturdy eighth-grader says she didn't find it that way. Anne played on the Ipswich Junior High School team in the fall of 1977. And she had as much playing time as any boy on the squad.

"The game is not as rough, not as physically tough, as I thought it would be," Anne said. "One thing that really helped was the boys accepted me right off. They would defend me against hecklers, many of them girls."

Pirates Add Three Athletes

East Carolina University has announced the signing of three athletes to grants-in-aid, two in wrestling and one in tennis.

Pirate wrestling coach Bill Hill announced the signing of Mark Twigg from Sayre, Pa. A two-year letterman in football and four-year letterman in wrestling, Twigg compiled an overall mat record of 78-22-1, including a 35-3 record his senior year.

Wrestling in the 132-pound weight class, Twigg was a member of the Pennsylvania all-star team, finished first in his regional and sectional tournaments, placed third in the districts and fourth in the state. His 35 wins last season were the second-most ever in the state for a single year. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Twigg.

Hill also announced the signing of Thomas Robinson of Apalachin, N. Y. Robinson compiled an overall mark of 80-22 over his four years at Vestal High School. During his senior year, Robinson finished with a 28-4 record. He received three letters and was nominated last year as a high school all-America. He led his team to a perfect 14-0 tally this past season.

Reds 3, Mets 2
Dan Driessen smashed a 10th-inning home run off New York reliever Skip Lockwood to pace Cincinnati over the Mets. Driessen hit a 1-0 pitch off the Mets' relief ace one inning after George Foster had hit a game-tying homer in the home half of the ninth.

Giants 3, Pirates 2
Larry Herndon singled home Jack Clark from third base with the winning run in the ninth inning as San Francisco beat Pittsburgh. Clark got a bunt single down the third base line with one out, stole second and kept on going to third as catcher Ed Ott threw the ball into center field.

Cubs 5, Padres 5
Larry Cox clouted a two-run homer and Woodie Fryman won his first game of the season in Chicago's victory over San Diego. Cox's homer with Bobby Murcer on base broke up a scoreless tie in the fifth and the Cubs never trailed after that while snapping a four-game losing streak. Gene Tenace drove in three runs for San Diego with two homers.

Braves 3-4, Expos 2-7
Brian Asselstine hit a bases-loaded, ninth-inning single to lead Atlanta over Montreal in the opener of their doubleheader.

Gary Carter slammed a two-out, three-run homer in the ninth inning to pace Montreal's second-game victory.

East Carolina head tennis coach Randy Randolph announced the signing of Keith Zengel to a tennis letter of intent. Zengel, who hails from Baltimore, was a three-year letterman in tennis at Kenwood High School. In his junior and senior years, Zengel played at the number one singles spot. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Zengel.

Richard Wakes Up Houston

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

The Houston Astros have been playing baseball recently like they've been walking in their sleep.

But J.R. Richard sure woke them up Tuesday night with his buzzing fastball.

"For consistency, this was one of my best games this year," said Richard after his four-hitter led the Astros to a 5-1 decision over the Philadelphia Phillies. "This was one of my better games stuff-wise."

That overpowering performance helped the Houston right-hander record 11 strikeouts, boosting his National League-leading strikeout total to 57.

The Astros had lost four games in a row and six of seven before Richard's effective performance.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 3-1; the Cincinnati Reds edged the New York Mets 3-2 in 10 innings; the San Francisco Giants turned back the Pittsburgh Pirates 3-2; the Chicago Cubs defeated the San Diego Padres 8-5 and the Atlanta Braves defeated the Montreal Expos 3-2 in the first game of a doubleheader before losing the nightcap 7-6.

Dodgers 3, Cardinals 1
Reggie Smith hit his sixth home run and unbeaten Doug Rau won his fifth straight game as Los Angeles defeated St. Louis. Rau needed eighth-inning relief help from Terry Forster, who preserved the victory with his fourth save.

Reds 3, Mets 2
Dan Driessen smashed a 10th-inning home run off New York reliever Skip Lockwood to pace Cincinnati over the Mets. Driessen hit a 1-0 pitch off the Mets' relief ace one inning after George Foster had hit a game-tying homer in the home half of the ninth.

Giants 3, Pirates 2

Braves 3-4, Expos 2-7

Palmer In Controversy

By GORDON BEARD
AP Sports Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — Jim Palmer came out of the shower and opened an envelope, containing a bill, which had been left on his clubhouse chair by Clay Reid, the equipment manager of the Baltimore Orioles.

"This will have to wait, Clay," Palmer cracked. "I've just been fined."

The amount of the fine, for breaking a club rule by leaving the ballpark before the end of a game, was not disclosed.

But, at most, it was probably a couple of hundred dollars, a piddling amount to a pitching star who makes some $250,000 a year. What's more, Palmer admitted he was wrong.

So, he could afford to joke. But over the past two seasons, as the Orioles have felt the effects of their inability or unwillingness to compete for re-entry players, Palmer has become embroiled in controversy.

Perhaps expecting the worst from a team which had helped him win three Cy Young Awards in the four previous years, Palmer had some uncomplimentary things to say about his teammates during spring training of 1977.

He also complained about his salary under a three-year contract signed only the year before, and the Orioles gave him a pay hike while extending the pact through the 1981 season.

Baltimore, playing nine rookies after losing Reggie Jackson, Bobby Grich and Wayne Garland, surprised everyone by winning 97 games while finishing only 2½ games behind the New York Yankees in the American League East.

But Palmer managed to stay in hot water. He argued with teammates and glared at them when they made errors, refused to talk to the press, and was occasionally booed by the local fans.

After Palmer gave up nine home runs in two starts against the Boston Red Sox in June, catcher Rick Dempsey claimed he had "lost his competitiveness."

Several times during the year, despite his remarkable record, Palmer apparently had to be reassured by Manager Earl Weaver and the coaches that he should stay in a particular game because he was the best pitcher available.

Then, after winning his last seven decisions to reach the 20-game victory level for the seventh time in eight years, Palmer's problems reached the front office.

Despite Palmer's 20-11 record, 319 innings pitched and a second-place finish in the Cy Young voting, General Manager Hank Peters refused to pay Palmer a $15,000 bonus under a "significant contribution" clause in his contract — noting he had fallen short of prescribed goals.

Peters took the same stance against pitcher Mike Flanagan, outfielder Ken Singleton and pitcher Rudy May, since traded. He later paid the bonuses, but then filed a grievance to get the money back.

This spring, the 32-year-old Palmer came up with a sore shoulder after two outings. Few doubted the pain was for real, but he managed to cast doubts himself by talking about the injury to his "grievance muscle."

Palmer, expected to make three starts in Baltimore's first six games of the season, stayed in spring training an extra week to get ready and the Orioles got off to an 0-5 start. They have played 500 ball since, while failing to execute basic fundamentals. Pitching and defense, Baltimore strong points over the years, have been ordinary. Palmer, however, won three of his first four decisions and looked strong as ever. But he removed himself from a recent game in the seventh inning with the score tied 1-1, and last Sunday he left the park after giving up six runs and five walks to the Minnesota Twins in 11-3 innings.

"I misunderstood something Earl said on the field," Palmer said after the fine was announced Tuesday, following a meeting with Weaver and Peters. "I never, ever said I was right in leaving. I just left. I was frustrated, and things weren't going too well."

Weaver, who couldn't understand why a pitcher with 197 major league victories was consistently throwing high pitches, recalled that he told Palmer to "try harder."

"He apparently thought I said, 'Are you trying?'" Weaver said. "He ought to know I wouldn't say that."

Weaver prefers to have all players around after a game, in case he wants to call a meeting or to talk with a player personally. While contending he dislikes fines, the Orioles' skipper said he had no choice.

"If we didn't take some kind of action, I don't know how that could be accomplished," Weaver said of his postgame rule. "The other players were aware Jim was gone."

Dr. J. Says 76ers Must Go With Best

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Julius Erving thinks it's time the Philadelphia 76ers quit coddling his teammates. The Sixers should stick with their best, win or lose, and Dr. J. feels he figures prominently.

The 76ers trail the Washington Bullets 3-1 in their best-of-seven National Basketball Association Eastern playoff final. To survive, Philadelphia has to win three straight, including one on Washington's home court.

But this doesn't appear to perturb Erving. Not even the chance that the team's playoff hopes could be crushed tonight in bitter disappointment when they face the Bullets in Game 5.

"I think it's time to forget trying to pacify everybody and do what's best for the team," said Erving. "We have to go with our key players, win or lose it that way."

Thus far, the Bullets have played inspired basketball, led by Elvin "Big E" Hayes, who is averaging 26.3 points, 16 rebounds and 3.3 blocked shots a game.

Hayes is being aided by Bob Dandridge who is scoring 24.3 points per game with 5.5 assists. He's shooting 52.4 percent from the field. The Bullets are averaging 117 points.

Philadelphia's key players are Erving, George McGinnis, Doug Collins, Henry Bibby and Caldwell Jones.

Erving, who has been taking about 16 shots a game, indicated he plans to take at least 25 tonight and in future games if there are any. He'll shoot more if necessary.

Nuggets SuperSonics
The Seattle SuperSonics, says Dennis Johnson, are right where they want to be.

At home in Seattle — and tied with the Denver Nuggets — after the first two games of their National Basketball Association semifinal series.

"We went up there trying to get one game, and we did it," said Johnson, the Sonics' rugged second-year guard.

"I don't want to say we have the advantage, but we're tough at home," Johnson said. "The fans get behind us. I believe in our home-court advantage."

The Sonics rode the fourth period shooting of Fred Brown and the defensive tactics of Johnson and 7-foot-1 Marvin Webster en route to a 121-111 victory over the Nuggets in Denver Sunday that squared the best-of-seven Western Conference championship series at 1-1.

Game 3 is set for tonight before a Coliseum sellout crowd of 14,096. Game 4 is scheduled for Friday in Seattle.

Braxton In New Victory

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. — Chuck Braxton of Farmville added another title to his growing list of power-lifting titles this past weekend, grabbing off the Chattanooga Power-Lifting Open Meet.

Braxton won the U.S. Masters Superheavyweight division in the meet, lifting a total of 1,840 pounds. His victory has moved him up in the national ranking to fourth.

He has now set five records so far this year.

A total of 400 lifters competed in the event, one of the top power-lifting meets in the country.

Braxton's next competition is scheduled to be in the North Carolina state meet in High Point in September.

Davis Gets Rookie Of The Year Honor

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Walter Davis, "Sweet D" of the University of North Carolina Tar Heels, has been named Rookie of the Year in the National Basketball Association.

Selection of the Pineville, N.C., forward who was picked No. 1 last year by the Phoenix Suns, was announced Tuesday.

"I'm very happy to receive this award," the 6-6, 195-pounder said at a news conference attended by Suns General Manager Jerry Colangelo. "I'm sort of sad, too, because I really think a lot of Marques Johnson and Bernard King," said Davis, 23.

Johnson, of the Milwaukee Bucks, received 10¼ votes to 4¾ for Davis. King, of the New Jersey Nets, who polled 5¼, Jack Sikma of the Seattle SuperSonics drew one vote, and Norm Nixon of the Los Angeles Lakers finished with one-quarter.

"I can't really take all the credit," said Davis, praising Suns Coach John MacLeod and his teammates. Colangelo said the award will mean a financial bonus for Davis but cited Suns policy in declining to give a figure.

"It's gratifying to do so well in the draft," Colangelo added, noting that Suns center Alvan Adams was named Rookie of the Year in 1975-76 and Suns guard Ron Lee finished second to Adrian Dantley, then of Buffalo, in last year's balloting.

Davis said being drafted by the Suns was "a blessing in disguise because Phoenix is one of the teams I knew the least about." He helped the Suns to a 49-33 record, averaging 24.2 points per game. He set a franchise record .526 field-goal percentage, and led the Suns in free-throw accuracy with .830. The Suns were eliminated by Milwaukee last month in the first playoff round.

Davis, who was named to the NBA All-Star squad in February, scored in double figures in 80 straight games, making 10 or more fourth-quarter points in 25 appearances.

"I had no personal goals for myself," Davis said, recalling his entry into the NBA. "I just wanted to make the team and contribute. I still want to be part of an NBA championship team."

Williams To VPI

BLACKSBURG, Va. (AP) — Virginia Tech has hired as its new sports information director Jack Williams, who for 11 years held the same post at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Williams, 48, a native of Durham, N. C., replaces Wendell Weisend, who served as Virginia Tech SID for 22 years.

During 10 of his 11 years at UNC, Williams was associated with Bill Dooley, Tar Heel football coach who came to Virginia Tech as its new athletic director and head football coach after last season.

For the last year Williams had served as assistant sports editor of the Raleigh Times.

The Los Angeles Dodgers had four men with 30 or more home runs in 1977: Steve Garvey, Reggie Smith, Ron Cey and Dusty Baker.

Through the 1977 campaign, pitcher Don Sutton of the Los Angeles Dodgers had five one-hit career games.

Fans Remember Pele

An AP Sports Analysis
By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Legends do not disappear overnight. You cannot pack them away in the closet and forget them. It just does not work that way.

Pele, the world's ambassador of soccer, is learning that lesson firsthand.

Wherever he goes in his first year of retirement, Pele is hailed by those who remember the lightning speed and trigger-quick reflexes that made him the world's most renowned soccer player. Occasionally he even is hailed by those who don't remember but who only have heard of his marvelous skills.

A soccer team from Rio de Janeiro was touring Africa last month, playing exhibition games against local clubs. It seemed a perfect time for the Brazilian company he represents to send Pele on a goodwill tour of the continent.

"We were in Nigeria," Pele said. "I was promoting some appliances, when I heard from the government."

The message was that Pele was expected to play with the Brazilian team in the local exhibition.

"I tried to explain," he said. "I am retired. I didn't come there to play soccer. I don't play anymore."

"They said I must play," Pele said. "What could I do? I don't want to fight with them."

So Pele played once more, satisfying another audience, making more friends for the game that was his life.

The encores never seem to stop for the man who, at 36, after 21 years as a player, decided to leave the game to younger men.

"I miss it," he said. "I played since I was 15 years old. You can't shut off a thing like that."

"When I am in Brazil, I practice with Santos. In New York, I practice with the (North American Soccer League) Cosmos. Sometimes, during the games, I will sit on the bench. Then it is hard. The heart pumps."

For soccer players around the world, the pumping is hardest during the World Cup tournament which begins June 1 in Argentina. Pele has played in the last four and will be at this one as a television commentator for the closed circuit broadcasts that will beam the event throughout the United States and Canada.

There were 1,281 goals in his career but few were as difficult as the one Pele set for himself when he came to the United States to play with the Cosmos in 1975. The job was to sell soccer to Americans, whose preoccupation with other sports like baseball, football, basketball, tennis and golf had always puzzled Pele.

When he arrived, the NASL was struggling. Three years later, the league and the sport are established.

"My mission is complete," said Pele.

If he isn't careful, though, he's liable to have a new assignment. The Africans liked what they saw in that brief appearance. He could wind up doing encores.

Blaylock Inks Georgetown Pact

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — East Forsyth High School basketball forward Ron Blaylock has signed a grant-in-aid to attend Georgetown University.

The 6-3 forward, who averaged 17.8 points and seven rebounds a game while leading East Forsyth to a 24-2 season, expects to be shifted to the backcourt at Georgetown.

Blaylock was a unanimous choice for the 1978 Fran Spencer Award as the outstanding basketball player from northwest North Carolina for the 1977-78 season.

"Ron's future at Georgetown is gonna depend on him," said Coach John Thompson of the Hoya team. "But the most important thing is he comes from a winning program with a team concept. That's what we try to do here."

Georgetown lost three guards off last year's team, which had a 23-8 season climaxed by an appearance in the National Invitational Tourney in which it lost to North Carolina State.

Thompson said Blaylock has the ability to score, is quick with the basketball and penetrates well.

Blaylock said Thompson was a major factor in his decision to go to Georgetown.

"Coach Thompson seems to be a fine man," Blaylock said. "He's straightforward — he talks what's on his mind. And he's the boss."

"Georgetown is a strong school academically," added Blaylock, who will graduate with a 3.8 grade-point average from East and is looking forward to a business major.

Sugar Ray Robinson Best Of All Boxers

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Sugar Ray Robinson, now 58 years old, remembers the moment that a possible third world championship slipped through his gloves. Or, perhaps better stated, he remembers what he does not remember.

It was June 25, 1952, a sweltering New York summer evening, and Robinson, with welterweight and middleweight titles already to his credit, had battered light heavyweight champion Joey Maxim through 13 rounds at Yankee Stadium.

It was 110 degrees under the lights. The first casualty was referee Ruby Goldstein, who left the ring with heat prostration in the 10th round.

"I felt I was ahead in the fight, I felt I was leading on the judges' cards," said Robinson. Most observers would bear him out.

"But I started feeling heat prostration in the ninth round and at end of the 10th," said Robinson, "because I don't even remember when they carried Ruby Goldstein out of the ring."

When Robinson was unable to continue in the 14th round, Maxim, bedraggled and exhausted himself, held onto his title. Robinson had failed in his bid for that mythical triple, but in the minds of many, he was still the best boxer, pound for pound, that had ever lived.

The cliché "pound for pound" was, in fact, coined to describe Robinson. Heavyweight champion Joe Louis was the idol of a nation, yet the boxing world looked to Sugar Ray.

On Tuesday, that old title was reaffirmed when the Boxing Writers of America announced that their membership had voted Robinson the greatest fighter of all time.

The vote, held in conjunction with Home Box Office network's "Boxing's Greatest Champions" series, had Robinson a 4-1 winner over Muhammad Ali. Louis was third. The exact tabulation was not revealed.

"I was blessed by God above with the talent that has allowed me to be considered for this honor," Robinson said in a telephone hookup from his Los Angeles home to the New York offices of HBO, where a special screening of the final episode of the six-part series was held for newsmen.

"I can't be more grateful. It is one of the greatest boosts from you fellas," said Robinson, who now works with school children through the LA parks and recreation department.

Balloting also was held in individual weight classes. The winners in their divisions were: Heavyweight — Joe Louis, Muhammad Ali, Rocky Marciano.

Light heavyweight — Archie Moore, Billy Conn, Bob Fitzsimmons.

Middleweight — Robinson, Carlos Monzon, Mickey Walker. Welterweight — Robinson, Henry Armstrong, Barney Ross.

Lightweight — Roberto Duran, Benny Leonard, Henry Armstrong.

The final segment of HBO's "Boxing's Greatest Champions" will premier Thursday, May 11 at 8 p.m. EDT.

Rollins Is New Star

SPARTA, N.C. (AP) — Rip Rollins says he really doesn't expect to step into the big leagues next year. But he did say he is thinking more and more about playing major league baseball these days.

Rollins, a husky Allegheny High School senior, could become the first baseball player since David Clyde was drafted by the Texas Rangers in June 1973 to go straight from high school to major leagues.

The Allegheny High Trojans lead the Blue Ridge 2-A Conference with a 10-0 record, and Rollins has picked up eight of the wins. His last ball, clocked at 89 mph by a Los Angeles Dodgers timing gun, is about the average speed that major league pitchers throw at age 24.

Rollins struck out 18 of 21 North Wilkes batters he faced last Tuesday in the Trojans' 8-1 win. The other three outs were two bouncers back to the box. He didn't complete the game.

UN-FLATION®

An Idea That's Behind Its Time

Industry OKs Inflation Fight; Big Labor Next

By OWEN ULLMANN
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — With big business promising to support his anti-inflation program, President Carter now is asking big labor to cooperate in slowing the pace of wage and price hikes.

To that end, Carter may be on the verge of extracting a promise of support from the nation's key labor figure, AFL-CIO President George Meany. The labor patriarch appears to be warming to Carter's plan for controlling inflation. Carter's chief of inflation fighter, Robert Strauss, along with Labor Secretary F. Ray Marshall and other top administration economic advisers are joining Carter at today's meeting with Meany and more than 20 top union leaders.

Reunion Held By Jackson Family

AYDEN — The family of the late Joe S. Jackson and Mattie Stokes Jackson held its annual reunion Sunday at the Ayden Community Building.

Approximately 60 persons attended, including the Ray Jackson family of Greenville, S.C., and the Bobby Redick family of Jacksonville.

The president met three weeks ago with 16 top business leaders who promised they would try to show restraint in raising prices.

Confronted by a sharp rise in the inflation rate so far this year, Carter has proposed a program calling for voluntary reductions in wage and price increases to levels below those of the past two years.

"We intend to cooperate to every extent possible (on the anti-inflation program)," Meany said Tuesday after extracting from Carter a renewed pledge to fight for Senate passage of a labor law revision bill.

The head of the 14 million-member labor federation said a formal inflation policy statement would be issued after a meeting of the AFL-CIO executive council which is holding its spring session.

When Carter first unveiled his voluntary wage-price guidelines in January, Meany all but rejected them, saying that "guidelines, in any form, are a step down the road toward controls."

Last month, however, a more conciliatory Meany promised to cooperate with the administration's program, saying that working American's are the principal victims of inflation.

But he said labor's willingness to show wage increase moderation is contingent upon business holding down prices. Meany said the causes of inflation are not wages but the skyrocketing costs of energy, land and interest rates, which he said have increased faster than wages.

He also reminded Carter of the AFL-CIO's opposition to wage controls and complained about Carter's decision to hold annual wage increases for federal white-collar workers to 5.5 percent this year to set an example of wage restraint for private industry.

Officials have said that recent wage increases won by big unions have been averaging between 9.5 and 10 percent a year, outpacing price increases.

Unless the unions curb their wage appetites in upcoming negotiations, the officials argue, it will be impossible to reverse the rise in the wage-price cycle.

Governor Hunt Again Stresses Community Needs

BY ELISSA MCCRARY
Associated Press Writer
ROBBINS, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt told a group of Moore County educators Tuesday night that meeting community needs is one of the most important goals of North Carolina's schools.

Hunt was in Moore County to look over the county's community schools program, which was launched in January. The Community Schools Act was passed by the legislature in 1977 and calls for funds to help schools open their doors at night and on weekends to students and adults for all types of educational and leisure activities.

Hunt has strongly supported the community schools concept in the state, and this year he received the National Public Affairs Award, presented annually to a government official involved in educational program.

"We want to make North Carolina schools the best schools in the nation," Hunt told the Moore County Advisory Council on Community School Programs. "And nothing can make the state's schools better than the ideas which come out of the community schools concept."

Hunt said the Community Schools Act encourages the use of schools by all community residents for meetings, adult education, athletic events and special classes. He said he believes it wise, economically and educationally, to use the schools as many hours a day as possible.

Hunt got into the activities at several Moore County schools, playing tee ball with a group of students, tapping his feet at a clogging demonstration, and looking in on crafts, cake-decorating, small engine repair and business classes.

He also got his exercise for the day in a women's slimnastics class at the High Falls Elementary School gymnasium, where he delighted the participants by joining their toe-touching session and later presenting members of the class with ribbons and kisses for their weight-losses.

Jim Clarke, state director of the community schools program, who joined Hunt on the tour, said there are 71 school systems all over the state now participating in the program. He said the total budget for the program this year is $1.5 million, with local communities putting up 25 percent of the money. Moore County's portion of the funds was $25,000 this year.

Clarke said the state's community colleges and recreation departments, which were skeptical of the program at first, have put their full support behind the community schools concept.

Robert E. Lee, superintendent of Moore County schools, said the community schools program will save Moore County taxpayers alone millions of dollars in the future.

"The program provides a place for recreation activities at the schools for all people in the community," Lee said. "The recreation departments in the various state communities won't have to duplicate facilities when the schools' facilities are open to the public. And the people get the feeling that the schools really do belong to them when they know the schools and all they have to offer are open to them."

Unsigned Art Is Withdrawn

PAR, England (AP) — Kathleen Tacchi-Morris put two pieces of scenery she said were painted by Picasso up for auction, trying to raise $5,400 to renovate the theater she operates in her barn at this town in Cornwall.

The 79-year-old former ballerina withdrew the two unsigned backcloths when the bidding Tuesday stopped at $1,800 for one and $1,000 for the other.

"Pablo must be turning over in his grave," said Mrs. Tacchi-Morris.

Disease Hits The Sycamores

The disease called anthracnose of sycamore, which is highly visible this spring and appears on viewing to be drastic, should not cause permanent damage, according to Dr. Ron Jones, plant pathologist at N. C. State University.

Caused by a fungus, symptoms of the disease are brown, blighted leaves, especially newer, smaller leaves on lower branches. Despite excessive leaf loss, the sycamore is capable of replacing the defoliated twigs.

There is no known control for the disease, however, once daytime temperatures average above 60 degrees for two weeks or more, anthracnose should become less of a problem.

Festival Fall Injures Climbers

HONG KONG (AP) — Nearly 200 persons swarmed up two 50-foot bamboo towers filled with buns at the climax of a festival on Cheung Chau Island early today in the belief that eating one of the buns would bring them good fortune and peace throughout the coming year.

The towers collapsed and 24 of the climbers were injured, one of them seriously.

Chimp Behavior Found Overly Human

By AL ROSSITER JR.
UPI Science Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Jane Goodall has been studying the behavior of chimpanzees in the wilds of Tanzania for 18 years and says her most horrifying discovery was that they can be as savage as humans.

The occasional brutality of chimps became evident after a community of the animals split apart with one group moving south to establish a new community. In four years, gangs of males from the original group were attacking and killing lone males of the splinter group.

"I think the horrifying part about that is that before these killings happened, I thought well, okay, there are many similarities between chimps and humans but basically chimps are rather nice, and more gentle than we are," she said in a recent National Geographic Society briefing.

"But now, having seen this kind of behavior, which we wouldn't have known about if we had stopped after 10 years of research, we now know that chimps in this way too have rather strong similarities to humans."

Dr. Goodall, director of the Gombe Stream Research Center in Tanzania's Gombe Stream National Park, encountered human violence in 1975 when a group of rebels kidnapped four students and carried them across Lake Tanganyika to Zaire. They were released two months later after ransom was paid. Before that incident, the 44-year-old scientist had lived at Gombe Stream and watched the life of the chimpanzees almost continuously since 1960. Now that observation is carried out by a group of trained Tanzanian men who report daily by radio to the famed English-born zoologist. She visits the site once a week.

Why maintain such a lengthy watch on a chimpanzee community? To try to throw some light on the behavior of early man, she answers.

"If you look carefully at chimp behavior on the one hand and human behavior on the other, you do see similarities," she said.

In greeting patterns, for instance, she said both species will kiss, embrace, hold hands and pat one another on the back. They both use and make tools, cooperate in hunting and now it is known they have similarities in aggressive behavior.

"Presumably if they're there in modern man and modern chimp, they may have been present in a common ancestor if we are going to postulate that there was such a thing.

"The only way we can try to get at what his behavior was like is this comparative approach. We'll never know if early man shook hands or kissed, but at least we can suspect what he might have done.

"If you get this kind of picture of early man, living in an environment more like that of the chimp today than our own society today, you can begin to understand the kind of evolutionary pressures which molded our behavior into the kind of behavior we have today."

The first of the deadly chimp attacks she observed happened in 1974 when a group of males from the main chimp community attacked a male from the group to the south. The chimps don't usually use weapons but rely on their hands, feet and teeth.

"Whereas an attack within a community is about a minute, and an injury is rare, this lasted 20 minutes and was very savage and very brutal and the victim almost certainly died," she said.

"Since '74, these kind of attacks have been seen five times. One victim was an old female, post reproductive, partially crippled, and she was seen to die as a result of her injuries.

"And the last almost certain killing happened at the end of last year. This was, as far as we know, the last male of the seven who moved down. He's now gone. They broke his leg and beat him up and it was quite clear he couldn't live. Nobody found his body, but we're pretty sure he died.

"As a result of this, our main study community has incorporated all that territory to the south into its own. So they have very largely extended their own range as a result of these killings."

An 'Assistant' To Firefighters

NEW YORK (AP) — A slide and cassette training program titled "The Fire Fighter and Plastics in a Changing Environment" has become a best seller for its producer, the National Fire Protection Association.

Funded by a grant from the Society of the Plastics Industry, the program teaches volunteer and professional firemen to recognize the hazards — including those caused by plastics — of fires in a modern environment, and how to avoid them.

Within weeks, the NFPA says it sold 2,000 sets of the training program, at $35 a set.

The NFPA says it has received letters from fire departments describing how the course has prevented injuries to firemen.

How To Cope-A Favorite Topic

NEW YORK (UPI) — Apart from news reports, the topics newspaper readers want most to read about concern the problems of coping with daily living.

A recent study showed best food buys at the head of a list of 34 subjects. The next six, in order of rank, were health, nutrition and medical advice, human interest stories about people in the news, consumer news, the environment, editorials and political figures or public officials.

The list was compiled from interviews with more than 3,000 adults by Audits and Surveys, Inc. for the Newspaper Advertising Bureau.

The respondents were asked about the amount of space they would devote to each subject, other than general news, in a paper tailored to their personal tastes. The study noted that what people say they want is not necessarily what they will actually read.

Community Patients Benefit In Money-Back Plan

By ROSEMARY ARMAO
United Press International
A county-owned hospital and an affiliated nursing home at Findlay, in northwestern Ohio, offer a money-back guarantee on nursing care, food, cleanliness, laboratory and emergency room work.

One patient recently complained she had found a hair in her dinner. Her account was credited for $2. Another patient heard employees discussing him. His bill was cut by $11.65. After four years of the program, the two institutions have fewer malpractice suits, shorter hospital stays, better patient care, greater employee productivity and good public relations, says William E. Ruse, president and chief administrator of Blanchard Valley Hospital. Hospital officials decline to attribute the shorter stays totally to the guarantee plan. But, Ruse said, patients may feel a little less anxious and more confident in a hospital proud enough to guarantee its care.

He also said lessened patient apprehension could lead to slightly shorter stays and smaller bills.

The moneyback program does not cover the results of medical care and the services of private doctors. In a telephone interview, Ruse said his hospital's financial people "nearly had to be resuscitated in the emergency department" when the program was proposed. But their fears have been allayed, he said.

He attributed malpractice suits filed between 1971 and 1974 to the hospital's loss of "our ability to communicate or, in the alternative, as we grew larger our contacts with patients grew less personal."

Only one suit has been filed since the Guaranteed Services program began, he said. The plaintiff was a woman from another state who had a relapse after discharge from the hospital.

Ruse said the plan grew out of other patient satisfaction programs, including the Aspirin Line and telecare. The line is a 24-hour extension that lets patients unhappy about missed backrubs or late meals complain to an administrator. Telecare is a call-in followup service for elderly patients living alone after release from the hospital.

Ruse also credits the guarantee with greater employee productivity. Annually the employees share as a bonus all budgeted money that is not paid out to complaining patients. It averages only about $25 dollars a year per person but the idea is to recognize and motivate hospital workers, he said.

Ruse said employee satisfaction can also be measured "in the remarkable ability of the hospital to attract new physicians." In a mostly rural community of 38,000, with a drawing area of about 80,000, he said it has attracted about 30 new physicians in the past three and a half years. Ruse said Las Vegas Valley Hospital in Nevada is the only other hospital in the country he knows of that offers such a guarantee.

His secretary said she has received so many calls for information she now mails out a package of articles and speeches in response.

Mercy Hospital in south central Portsmouth, Ohio, had planned to institute a similar program this spring. A hospital spokeswoman says the project been postponed indefinitely because of "other things we're doing."

The hospital's total costs so far for patient complaints are $593.17, he said. The largest payment, $70.75, went to a patient who was medicated and then removed from the operating room when it was found he had not signed a consent form. Ruse and a group of hospital administrators decide the legitimated and then removed from the operating room when it was found he had not signed a consent form.

Ruse and a group of the complaints were considered unwarranted or because the callers just wanted to talk. He said non-working televisions, early wakeup times and greasy wheelchairs prompted such calls.

"We try to guarantee subjective satisfaction of the patient," Ruse said. "If our patients are unhappy, even though we disagree, their account is credited to the extent of tuarantee subjective satisfaction of the patient." Ruse said. "If our patients are unhappy, even though we disagree, their account is accredited of about 3.1. Costs are about 25 percent below other hospitals of the same size in the area.

Rebound In 2nd Quarter Is Probable

INTERSTATE SECURITIES CORPORATION

Despite the adverse impact of severe weather and the coal strike, first quarter 1978 corporate profits appear to have remained relatively flat with the fourth quarter of 1977.

When compared with the same period of 1977, first quarter 1978 corporate profits rose, but much of the gain appears to have been from inflation. Companies reporting income gains outnumbered those reporting profit declines by a substantial margin.

The problems faced by business in the first three months of the year included higher minimum wages and social security taxes, higher interest rates, and plant closings caused by sharply reduced coal supplies or severe winter weather. Additionally, productivity (output per man hour) declined at a 3.6 percent annual rate in the quarter, the sharpest decline in four years.

One of the worst earnings performances was by the steel industry. Representative companies in that industry reported a decline in earnings of more than 50 percent. U.S. Steel reported the largest quarterly loss in its history of $59 million. Industry officials blame the poor showing on the coal strike, which raised energy costs and disrupted production, and on the winter weather which interrupted normal shipments. Railroad profits also declined sharply in the first quarter due principally to the prolonged coal strike.

Airline profits rose sharply from the year ago level. The large increase in passenger volume, not all of it due to discount fares, was the main reason. Earnings of building materials manufacturers also rose, although some companies lagged as bad weather slowed shipments. Housing and non-residential construction remain strong and demand exceeds supplies of some building materials. The two major factors which restricted earnings gains in the first quarter—weather and the coal strike—will be absent in the second quarter, and profits should improve accordingly.

Estimates for full year gains in corporate profits range from seven to ten percent over 1977 figures, estimates that could prove to be on the high side. A rebound in economic activity in the second quarter would mean improved productivity and improved profits, but slower rate of growth in economic activity in the second half would generally tend to reduce profits.

Additionally, these estimates increases in corporate profits to the full year assume that President Carter's tax proposals will be effective October 1. The provisions affecting corporate profits include a reduction to 45 percent for the corporate tax rate and liberalization of the investment tax credit. Failure of Congress to pass these proposals by that date would moderate the gains in income which are expected.

Japan's First Nuclear-Powered Ship May Have Found A 'Home'

THE MATSU, Japan's first nuclear ship, may find a new home port after a four-year search. The research vessel is shown on its first test run in 1974. (UPI Photo)

By TELJI SHIMIZU
TOKYO (UPI) — Japan's first nuclear vessel may find a new home port after a four year search — near the city where the second atomic bomb was dropped in World War II.

The controversial 8,300-ton Mutsu, a research ship powered by nuclear energy, has had nothing but trouble since its launching in 1974.

The $25.4 million ship had its first misfortune when it sprang a leak in its reactor during the maiden voyage.

Fishermen in Aomori Prefecture's port of Mutsu, for which the ship was christened, demanded the ship be moved, protesting their fishing grounds would be contaminated by radioactivity.

The leak was later proved to be insignificant. Nobody was hurt and sea waters in northern Japan were declared safe.

The government settled the dispute by promising the fishermen that the Mutsu would be moved from northern Japan.

To find a new home port for the Mutsu in this nuclear sensitive country was not easy. Coastal cities where it might have been based rejected the idea.

Officials suggested Sasebo in southern Japan, where the United States has a naval base only 20 miles from Nagasaki, the second city after Hiroshima to be by the atomic bomb.

The Nagasaki government, which has jurisdiction over Sasebo, refused the Mutsu on grounds that the 1945 nuclear horrors still live in many residents' memory.

But now, a prolonged business slump that beset the shipbuilding industry may change that.

Nagasaki Gov. Kanichi Kubo told fishermen recently that he was in favor of allowing the ship into Sasebo if the nuclear reactor was "sealed." The governor said a "sealed" reactor would be virtually the same as removing it from the ship.

He had said earlier he would accept the Mutsu only if the nuclear reactor were dismantled.

The governor did not give the reason for his sudden change of heart. Industrial sources, however, speculated that one of the reasons may well be economic.

They said repair work on the ship could be a shot in the arm to Sasebo Heavy Industries Co., a recession-plagued shipbuilding firm which has had hard times getting bank loans to pay retirement allowances to 850 workers who had agreed to "voluntarily" retire. Spokesmen for the fishermen said they were not in a position either to endorse or criticize the government's plan to allow the Mutsu to berth at Sasebo.

The Sasebo city council already has passed a resolution welcoming the Mutsu — with its nuclear reactor left onboard intact.

Warn Of Spring Lawn Diseases

MARYSVILLE, Ohio (UPI) — Two lawn diseases, leaf spot and snow mold, may break out this spring because of the unusually heavy rain and snowfall this past winter in much of the country.

Leaf spot is a turf disease that first appears as small purple-black spots on the surface, stem or crown of leaves, says a lawn and garden products manufacturer in Marysville. As the spots grow, the leaves yellow and then brown, leaving the lawn thin and off-color. To prevent further damage, the manufacturer, O.M. Scott and Sons, recommends applying either a fungicide or a product containing both a fertilizer and a lawn disease preventer.

By the time snow mold appears, most of the damage is done, the manufacturer said. He recommends raking the afflicted areas thoroughly to remove matted blades and give grass air and sunlight. Severely damaged areas may need re-seeding.

The Men's Residence Council at East Carolina University has elected new officers to serve during the academic year 1978-79.

They are Gerry Wallace of Kenansville, president; Charles West of Dunn, vice president; Tripp Murray of Chapel Hill, treasurer, and David Murray of Chapel Hill, secretary.

The Council, serving more than 2000 ECU male students who live in campus residence halls, is the governing and programming body for the men's dormitories.

More Primary Care Physicians

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — For the first time in recent years, more primary care physicians than specialists are being trained in California.

The figures, compiled by the California Medical Association, suggest there will be a turnaround in the declining percentage of primary care physicians in practice.

In fact, a "cautionary note should be sounded so that the production of primary care physicians does not create an imbalance in future years," said Michael Jones, association director of research.

Barbershop Traditional

GETTING TRIMMED — Barber Jim Borren, 80, trims a customer in a barbershop that harkens back to another era. Borren adheres to traditional haircutting methods and to traditional prices. (AP Laserphoto)

By JOHN NOLAN
Associated Press Writer
WOODBURY, Tenn. (AP) — Jim Borren's one-room barbershop is a throwback to days past. A pot-bellied stove supplies heat. Hardwood benches for waiting customers run along two walls.

But then the 80-year-old Borren is a throwback, too, seeing how he refuses to charge more than 25 cents for a haircut and 15 cents for a shave. Borren's two-bit haircut looked for a while like an endangered species, but a friend came to the rescue.

For the 25 years he has been barbering in his little shop in this rural middle Tennessee town, his landlady, Glera Armstrong, charged him just $30 rent a month, including a living space in the rear. But Mrs. Armstrong died last November, and on Saturday her relatives sold the building which houses the barbershop and a flower shop.

Borren said he bid $15,500, but it was not enough. High bidder Hal Larimer, a Woodbury funeral director, who paid $20,500, said he had no immediate plans for the building but considered Borren a friend and said they will reach some agreement.

"I've buried most of Mr. Borren's family for the past 30 years, and they've been fine people," Larimer said in an interview.

"We've got no intentions of interrupting a fellow's lifelong career," he said, referring to Borren. "I told him just to relax."

Borren said he is relieved to be able to keep his business and home. And the prices are staying.

"I don't want to ever raise the price of my haircuts," the balding Borren said.

Borren said his ornate leather-and-wood barber chair is probably older than he is. Older than an electric trimmer for fine work along the neck, Borren sticks to oldtime tonsorial tools — the straight razor, comb and scissors — because they are cheaper, he said.

He taught himself the barber's trade years before actually going into business. He got his start one day when his brother needed a haircut. After that, Borren's home was busy with people coming for haircuts.

For years, he said, he has worked six days a week, 10 hours a day, taking only one holiday a year — Christmas.

"Five other barbers work in Woodbury, but competition has not been a problem, he said. "There's enough for everybody....I've got enough to do. I reckon I cut about 20 heads a day," he said.

And he added one last comment: "I want to cut hair until I'm 100."

Crippled, She Has New Life

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Rosemary Valencia recently peeled seven apples in one day. The experience left her exhausted but gratified.

Miss Valencia, 47, has had rheumatoid arthritis since she was 14. She hasn't stood on her feet, baked a pie or performed any ordinary household task in nearly 25 years.

Within the last two years, she has made radical improvement. Now, through a combination of surgery and physical and occupational therapies, she is fulfilling many aspirations she had as an adolescent.

Her doctor is Robert Volz, an orthopedic surgeon at the University of Arizona's Health Sciences Center.

Noted Mathematician Avers Teachers Don't Try Enough

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
 AP Science Editor
 STANFORD, Calif. (AP) —

In life, says George Polya who has lived 90 years of it, "everything is just a guess, concerning your job, your home, your family, even the laws of physics."

And you can make better guesses if you know some mathematics, says Dr. Polya, who is teaching math again at Stanford University.

"By knowing the essence of math, you learn to look at things closely, and not to accept them too easily. Math provides a school in judgment. It can improve your critical judgment."

Polya, white-haired, bushy-browed, slightly stooped but vigorous, talked about his favorite subject in his sunny home here on a recent weekend.

Internationally known, he is author of some 250 papers, some dealing with research in probability, number theory, and combinatorics, and of "How To Solve It," a book giving advice to students that has sold 250,000 copies in 15 languages.

Polya started teaching math 60 years ago, among other places, he taught for 26 years at the Swiss Federal Institute of Technology and 11 at Stanford until his retirement in 1953 at age 65.

When Sputnik put new emphasis on science and math, Polya began teaching high school teachers how to teach math.

Now he's back at Stanford, filling in for a colleague, teaching an introductory course to combinatorics in the computer science department. This is a branch of science dealing with problems of choice and arrangement.

Born in Hungary, coming to America in 1940 "because Hitler was too close," and becoming a U.S. citizen, Polya finds "the American public is not sufficiently critical. What they see on TV, they tend to accept right away."

"Schools should teach math better. It tends to be the least popular subject. Math teachers should arouse the kids and make them like math. Give them problems that hold natural interest for them, something to do with baseball, for example. If they learn the essence of math, their decisions would be more rational. What is the scientific method except Guess And Test?"

Students and colleagues compliment Polya's teaching skills

— "He describes abstract concepts in concrete terms... He has a great love for explaining things to people... He has always been full of very clever examples and ways of looking at things."

Polya became a mathematician somewhat by default after early interests in literature, biology, physics, law and philosophy — "my way of study was to zig and zag."

He had three math teachers along the way, "one very good, the other two bad, in different ways." Finally he decided "I was not good enough for physics, and too good for philosophy, so math was in between."

He received his Ph.D. in mathematics in 1912, after earlier qualifying to teach Hungarian and Latin and starting to acquire speaking knowledge of four languages.

Polya thinks computers are "especially important for business decisions. The directors (of a company) don't understand it, but what the computer comes up with can be checked to some extent by their common sense."

Modern miniaturized calculators "can be good. But they are bad if you don't learn your math tables and have to rely on them. The machine itself can't make a mistake, but you can. If you know some math, you can know that some answers just can't be right. If you don't know simple math, they can be dangerous. For kids, they are educational if you use them the right way."

He was given a calculator on his 90th birthday last Dec. 13, "but I don't use it, I use the slide rule I got in Göttingen (Germany) 70 years ago."

Retirement at 65, he says, "is good for the young; otherwise they don't have jobs. But we need to have busy hands all our lives."

Besides providing top-flight international competition, the Philip Morris European Cup is an excellent source of material for bridge columnists. Consider this hand from the tournament played in Brussels, and see how you would play a contract of six diamonds.

The bidding was straightforward. Once the diamond fit was discovered, there was no way to keep South out of a slam.

West led a low club, East won the ace and returned the suit. The Average Player might draw three rounds of trumps, then try to set up hearts with one ruff. When that does not succeed, he must lose the ace of clubs as well as another trick-down one.

The Unlucky Expert realizes that the odds are against a 3-3 heart break. He will improve considerably on the above line. After winning the second club he will draw only two rounds of trumps with the ace and king, then try to ruff two hearts in dummy. Unfortunately, the defender with four hearts has only two trumps, so West will be able to ruff a heart with the jack of trumps for down one. (Note that if declarer uses dummy's ace of trumps for ruffing, West's jack of diamonds becomes established as the setting trick.)

Now watch the Technician at work. When Rixi Markus held the South cards, she won the second club and cashed only one high trump in her hand. Then she played three rounds of hearts on the theory that if West had only a doubleton heart, he was more likely to hold three trumps than East.

Since there was nothing to gain by ruffing the third heart, West let go a spade. Declarer ruffed in dummy, discarded a heart on the queen of clubs, then cashed the ace-king of spades and ruffed a spade in her hand. Now she led her last heart, and West was finished. If he ruffed, declarer would over-ruff with dummy's ace and take the last two tricks with the Q-7 of trumps. But discarding was no better, for declarer would ruff low in dummy and the A-Q of diamonds would be the fulfilling tricks.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for wonding rubbers. Milk and Allergic Reactions

I try to get as much milk as I can into my children. I have three. My 6-year-old says she gets sick whenever she drinks milk. I force it on her and sometimes she does get sick. Could all this be a game she's playing? — Mrs. T.T.S., Wash. Dear Mrs. S.:

I have high blood pressure and am under treatment for it. I'm 67 years old. I just found out that I need a hernia operation. Frankly, I'm scared about the combination of the two. My doctor told me I have nothing to worry about, but I would feel better if I had a second opinion from you. — Mr. G.A., Calif. Dear Mr. A.:

The suggestion that this might all be a game intimates that you think your child's reaction to milk is all psychological. I constantly reiterate the fact that there is a close unity between the mind and the body. Undoubtedly, the mind can affect every body function. Yet far too often there is a temptation to tag a child's complaint as being emotional in origin. There are many known physical reasons for the inability to tolerate milk. Allergy to milk is the first thought that comes to mind. Another is the possible lack of a special enzyme necessary for the proper digestion of milk. Some people are not able to metabolize or digest lactose, or milk sugar, a substance that is found in milk. Nausea, vomiting and diarrhea are common complaints of children and adults who have this disturbance.

With improved pre-operative planning, with the excellent anesthesia that now is available, and with the refined techniques now being used, many of the former complications of surgery are controlled and eliminated.

In those cases where the judgment of the anesthesiologist and surgeon suggests the slightest danger about general anesthesia, the operative procedure can be performed painlessly under local anesthesia.

There now are many excellent substitutes for milk. These, with supplementary vitamins and minerals, can give your child all the nutritional requirements for health and growth that she would be getting from milk.

My "second opinion" is that you arrange to have the operation done as soon as your surgeon recommends it. To delay doing it may convert a simple operation into a complicated one.

With the help of your doctor, you can determine if there is a physical reason for your child's resistance to milk.

Terrorist Gangs Keep Govm'ts Alert

By ARTHUR L. GAVHEON AP Diplomatic Correspondent Political terrorists are busiest now in Western Europe, but they are also still active in the Middle East and Latin America. Italy's feared Red Brigades, who kidnaped and killed Aldo Moro, are linked in policy and purpose with Arab, West German, Japanese and other terrorist groups. American, British and West German anti-terrorism specialists who helped Italian police in the unsuccessful hunt for Moro said there were similarities in his case and the seizure and murder last year of West German industrialist Hanns-Martin Schleyer by the German terrorists of the Red Army Faction. Authorities in Europe are convinced that an international terrorist network links four major groups of extremists: —Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization, an umbrella for 15 guerrilla groups, the most militant of which is the Marxist Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, pledged to destroy Israel. Their goal is the destruction of Israel and its replacement by a Palestinian state governed by the PLO. —West Germany's Red Army Faction, the outgrowth of the Baader-Meinhof Gang founded 10 years ago by Andreas Bader, an aspiring artist, and woman journalist Ulrike Meinhof. Both are dead. Italy's Red Brigades have worked with the Red Army Faction and its European sympathizers since 1970 and the aim of both is the destruction of capitalist society. —Japan's United Red Army, formed nine years ago by students to oppose the American-Japanese security treaty. Within a year its Arab Committee established a base in Beirut, where its members trained for suicide missions including the 1972 massacre at Israel's Lod Airport, in which three Japanese men opened fire on a crowd of Roman Catholic pilgrims, killing or wounding 98 persons. —Junta de Coordinacion Revolucionario, which combines revolutionaries from Chile, Argentina, Bolivia, Paraguay and Uruguay. It claims tens of thousands of its comrades have been killed or wounded in those countries and says its purpose is to challenge authoritarian governments. There are also a number of terrorist organizations whose activities and aims are limited to one country: the largely Roman Catholic Irish Republican Army and Protestant guerrilla groups fighting it in Northern Ireland; ETA, the underground army of Spanish Basques fighting for the independence of the Basque provinces in northwest Spain, the Puerto Ricans of the FALN in the United States and right-wing death squads in Brazil and Argentina who kidnap and murder leftists with tacit government approval.

'Gays' Again Given Big Rebuff In Vote

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — In a resounding "mandate for righteousness," Wichita voters told homosexuals to keep their life-style to themselves and repealed a gay rights ordinance by a 5-to-1 margin.

"People are saying loud and clear to the nation that America does not feel that pro-homosexual legislation brought under the civil rights issue is legitimate," said the Rev. Ron Adrian, a Baptist minister who led the group which forced the referendum. "I think God's using this vote to openly rebuke the pro-homosexual forces." The vote in favor of repeal was 47,246, and 10,005 supported retention of the 7-month-old ordinance, which prohibited discrimination in housing, employment and public accommodation because of "sexual or affectional preferences."

Similar ordinances were repealed in Miami last June and in St. Paul, Minn., on April 25. A referendum is scheduled later this month in Eugene, Ore., on a gay rights ordinance there.

The 83-to-17 percent victory margin came in one of Wichita's largest election turnouts, with 44 percent of the city's 128,888 registered voters casting ballots. Both supporters and opponents of the ordinance had expected repeal but the margin of defeat surprised all.

Jim Warren Is Speaker

Jim Warren of the N. C. Dept. of Agriculture was guest speaker Tuesday at the monthly meeting of the Pitt County Agribusiness Association held at the Holiday Inn.

"Directed Consumer Marketing" was the topic discussed by Warren, who concentrated on produce markets in other areas of North Carolina and the possibilities of establishing a farmer's market in the Greenville area.

"A curb market or farmer's market should succeed in Pitt County," Warren stated. "You certainly have the producers, an established demand, and growing civic interests in promoting it here."

According to Warren, "there are now 35 to 40 local markets now in operation across the state in addition to two state-owned and operated farmer's markets in Raleigh and Asheville." The two state markets are major food distributing centers, while the "local markets are popular sources of fresh locally-grown produce. The local curb markets and pick your own operations are gaining rapidly in popularity across the state," Warren stated.

Boy 'Nazi' A Paranoiac

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A 15-year-old self-proclaimed Nazi has pleaded no contest to murdering a classmate after being taunted for his beliefs.

Roger Needham of Lansing, a frail-looking boy, wore a Nazi party emblem on his jacket when he entered his plea. He will remain in the Ingham County jail until June 5, when Circuit Judge Donald Owens will decide where he is to go for detention and psychological treatment.

Needham, son of a Cooley Law School professor, suffers from a rare form of mental illness that made him "a true paranoiac" according to a psychiatrist's report. Daniel McLellan, chief assistant prosecutor for Ingham County, said Tuesday that the illness leaves the paranoiac with an intense feeling of superiority and an equal conviction that others are plotting against him. McLellan said it is a sickness "that generally ends in a murder."

On Feb. 22, Needham fatally shot 15-year-old Bill Draher with a Luger-style pistol in a hall of Everett High School. Kevin Jones, 16, who was wounded in the gunfire, admitted Monday he had been looking for a fight with the Needham "because of the Nazi deal."

Jones said he was standing with Draher by Needham's locker, and called Needham a "punk." He said he stepped toward him anticipating a fist fight. Needham then pulled out a .22-caliber pistol and started firing. Jones testified. After the shooting, authorities found a diary in Needham's room. In it the boy said: "While I in no way forgive my enemies, I will refrain from killing them for the moment."

Contributions By Credit Card

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Political contributors can give a donation to candidates and charge it on their bank credit card, the Minnesota Ethical Practices Board has advised. The board issued an opinion to Larry Schwartz, president of National Order Systems, Inc. of New York, a telephone marketing system.

Schwartz had asked whether candidates using radio and television commercials could invite listeners to phone in contributions and charge them to VISA or Master Charge credit cards. The board polices campaigns and lobbyist activities in Minnesota and issues advisory opinions on request.

In 1881, ring-necked pheasants were first successfully introduced in America when birds from eastern China were set free in Oregon.

Seven Adoptees Challenge Law

DENVER (AP) — Seven adopted persons seeking to locate their natural parents are challenging Colorado statutes barring them from access to their original birth certificates, records of their adoptions and other information.

The suit filed in U.S. District Court contends that state laws governing the keeping of records in adoption cases violated the rights of the seven persons by denying them equal protection under the law and freedom of choice of association. It was filed as a class-action suit for all persons in similar situations.

Gold Bug Reappears In Spring, Early Summer

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - More than a century after the great rush west, the gold bug is still biting. "A sort of old-fashioned gold fever seems to strike many people in the late spring and summer; requests for maps and reports that describe the known deposits of gold in the country - particularly in the West - mount rapidly," says a government geologist.

But the experts say today's prospector is more likely hoping to pay for his vacation than to strike it rich. And officials at the U.S. Geological Survey say even paying for a vacation is unlikely for the beginner.

Frank Forrester, a survey spokesman, says a prospecting trip can be profitable in other ways, if not financially. There is, for example, the constant hope that each pan may contain some "pay dirt," he said.

"Few thrills can compare with that experienced when one sees even a few tiny flecks of gold glittering in the sand at the bottom of a pan," Forrester said.

But he noted that fewer than one in each thousand western prospectors has ever made a strike. The pioneers who found most of the gold-bearing areas in the last century were experienced miners from Alabama and Georgia. At the peak of the rush, some 120,000 miners were crawling over the California foothills.

After the first rush, Chinese workers combed the ground for low-grade remains. During the Depression, itinerant miners worked the area, but only a small percentage could even support themselves.

While commercial mining has mostly given way to large-scale mechanized operations, Forrester said there is still a chance of success for the small prospector who carefully analyzes what he's up against.

The best chances of success, he said, lie in known productive areas, rather than in trying to discover new deposits. The only large mine opened in recent years, the Carlin mine in Nevada, followed intensive scientific and technical studies.

Nevada's 'Great Land Rush' Has Bogged Down

By CY RYAN
CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — It was billed as the "Great Land Rush" — a chance for city folks to shuck urban crime, pollution and other worries for a return to mother earth.

It was an opportunity to turn 2 million acres of Nevada's desert into agricultural spas. But so far, the only crops have been bitterness, disappointment and charges of rip-offs.

"It could have been super if it was done right," said Karen Wilson who, with her husband George, sought a 320-acre spread about 30 miles east of Carson City. "It could have made a difference in the old desert in developing water."

The Wilsons, of Schurz, Nev., were two of the 1,867 applicants who filed for desert land under the Carey Act which was reactivated in 1977 by the Nevada Legislature. It revived an 1894 law, allowing modern-day settlers to seek 160 acres each on which to start a farm and make a living.

Almost immediately the land rush was on. Persons from Nevada and other western states stood in long lines at the state Division of Land Planning to file. It was an opportunity to get land at a small price for filing fees, most thought.

Some, who didn't know what they were doing, filed for land on military reservations, on mountain peaks or in sand dunes. There was claim jumping as three and four applications were filed on the same parcel.

The prospective pioneers came from every walk of life including Las Vegas show producer Frederick Apar, Clark County Health Officer Otto Ravenholt, Assembly Majority Leader Danny DeMers of Las Vegas and prominent Nevada lobbyist Charles Bell. But most were the ordinary guy, whose experience was probably limited to a summer home garden.

A number thought they could be weekend farmers, leaving the heavy toil to an illegal alien who would be hired at a cheap wage to farm the arid desert land.

And there were charges persons were bilked. The district attorney's office in Riverside County, Calif., filed a civil suit against Pioneer Filing Service, a company that got individuals to apply for their 160-acre plots. Deputy District Attorney Nelson D. Buck estimated the company collected in excess of $100,000.

The firm, according to the complaint, told prospective customers that some lands close to Las Vegas were "choice" sites. But the suit said the land had already been claimed by the city and was not available for farming. There were allegations about untrue statements on access to roads, filing fees and that a man named Jake Stone misrepresented he was an employee of the Nevada State Registrar of Lands. The suit is still pending.

So far the state has not approved a single land grant. And it will probably be one to two years before the first prospective farmer sets foot on his land.

Some 700 applications have been denied because of lack of water and that angers some. Edwin O. Johnson, 57, a sheet metal contractor from Napa, Calif., wanted a place to retire near his son's home in Fish Lake Valley in Southern Nevada.

"Everybody thinks California is the place to come," he said. "It's not like it used to be when I first came to this country when we had a little bitty town of 8,000-9,000 people. Now we've got a town of 50,000 and growing."

Johnson said he can't understand why his application was turned down because of inadequate water supplies. "Anybody can sink a well no deeper than 100 feet and pump 900 to 1,000 gallons a minute out of those wells. A lot of people down there are raising alfalfa. Saying there's no water there is a lot of bull."

Johnson said there may be a class action suit filed to overturn the ruling of the state engineer's office. Mrs. Wilson, whose husband is a surveyor, said, "We feel they are wrong about the water." The Wilsons, who planned an alfalfa or potato farm, also are thinking about suing.

Meanwhile the program is bogged down in bureaucracy.

Before the state can approve any applications, the federal Bureau of Land Management must approve regulations for release of the land. State officials complain the federal agency is dragging its feet because it doesn't like the Carey Act and would rather sell the land.

The federal government, however, points out the Carey Act hasn't been too successful in the past. In the 1920s, 2 million acres in Nevada was set aside for homesteaders but only 600-700 acres actually got into agricultural production.

Addison Millard, director of the state Land Planning Division which is responsible for processing the applications, said he never expected the "land rush to develop." He said his staff felt it might receive ten applications a day, but instead there were more than 100 filed on some days. He then declared a moratorium, refusing to accept any more filings. Millard said he has been accused of being "negative" towards the program but he's merely telling the truth about future hardships faced by homesteaders.

"Some people didn't analyze what they were doing," said Millard. "They didn't analyze the cost of applying for water and for providing the necessary maps from a registered water rights surveyor." And he said it is estimated to cost $80,000 to $100,000 to develop a 160-acre parcel.

To gain patent, the settler must either build a home or move a trailer onto the land and then carve out a living from agriculture. The land must be his primary residence.

but he is allowed to have a secondary home elsewhere. In many cases, several members of one family each filed for a 160-acre plot so they could combine it into a single parcel. A few land companies filed applications for thousands of acres. But Millard said he wants to make sure the land goes to individuals and not to speculators.

In other cases, ranchers have sought to add to their existing spreads by getting the cheap federal land.

The line-up of cars includes a 1905 Pung Finch, with open cockpit; a one-seat futuristic Windmobile; a custom-made 1931 16-cylinder, dual-cowl Cadillac Phaeton; an Indianapolis 500-type Buggati racer; the world's record-holding rear-engine dragster; and a specially designed duplicate of an Auburn Speedster.

U.S. Waterways Cleaner

By HAROLD H. MARTIN
PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Six years after Congress passed the Federal Water Pollution Control Act there is evidence that the nation's waterways are cleaner.

Success is not complete and probably never will be, according to a report issued by the Academy of Natural Sciences of Philadelphia.

"Along many of the nation's rivers, perhaps most of them, it is unrealistic to expect that even the most ambitious of efforts will bring back the streams which early explorers charted as they crossed the American wilderness: dams probably cannot be demolished; cities unbuilt."

But, noted the report, "even the worst polluted rivers can be improved once their major problems are identified and solved."

There is enough improvement for hope that the goals of the national act of "water quality which provides for the protection and propagation of fish, shellfish and wildlife, and provides for recreation in and on the water" will be achieved by the target date of 1983.

Some states with greatest improvements had local pollution control laws long before the national act.

The academy report, compiled from various state and national reports, notes as signs of improvement:

— More shad returning to spawn in the upper reaches of the Delaware River, where once water was so foul that sailors left ship in port to keep from getting sick. The first major effort at cleaning up began in 1936.

— The return of the flourishing oyster industry to the Housatonic River in Connecticut, where pollution control efforts were intensified in the late 1960s. Bluefish from Long Island Sound and blue shell crabs have also begun inhabiting the river.

— Increased bass fishing in the upper Ohio River, which carries more freight traffic than the Panama Canal. Even the freshwater drum, wiped out by polluted waters in the 1920s, returned.

— Creation of a chain of state parks along Oregon's Willamette River, the first river in the nation to meet all federal standards for discharge of pollution. Clean-up began in the early 1950s and municipal and industrial users were meeting standards set in the 1972 act before it was passed.

— Restoration of Sope Creek which passes through metropolitan Atlanta, to conditions enjoyed by the Cherokee's who once camped along its banks. Rapid suburban development choked the creek with waste until it was so foul, fishing and picnicking along it was forbidden. Within months after a treatment plant was installed in the early 1970s, water had cleared and bluegill bream and largemouth bass returned.

— The return of fish and shellfish to the Hackensack River in Bergen County, N.J. and the development of parks along its banks. In 1971 the river was declared "virtually dead." Within five years after discharge treatments began, blue claw crabs, strippers, alewife and herring returned and ribbed mussels introduced into the river became established.

Some waterways, the report notes, cannot be recovered. It singles out the Snake River in Idaho, where soil conditions in the river basin are themselves a problem, despite pollution control.

In the 1960s three-quarters of a million fish died along the Snake River. A clean-up of municipal and industrial discharge stopped the fish kills, but high pollution remained.

Scientists found that water runoffs, the soil in part of the basin and natural spring waters supplied excessive nutrients that couldn't be controlled.

Water life contains: bacteria which feeds on pollutants, using oxygen to convert complex chemical components into simple chemical compounds used by other aquatic life (biodegrading); microscopic animals that feed on bacteria; algae that thrive on the product of biodegrading and convert it into oxygen, and fish and insects.

Essential to healthy water is oxygen and a balance of nutrients.

Too many nutrients from waste can use up oxygen and can spur growth of algae, the green scum seen on many waterways. As it dies it uses more oxygen to decompose, and fish and insects are deprived of their oxygen needs and food sources.

Municipal and industrial pollution is only part of the problem, the report said.

Many areas do not treat storm water, which takes runoff from fertilized lawns, and from streets polluted by lead from autos, animal feces, human sputum and rotting trash.

It has been estimated that a heavy downpour in Philadelphia has the same impact on the Delaware River as raw sewage from a city of 10,000 people.

It's a problem that some experts estimate will cost $85 billion to solve, but, said the report, "Among ecologists studying urban rivers there is an increasing concern that the uncontrolled runoff from streets is introducing excessive amounts of potentially toxic material into local waterways."

Symposium Will Honor Quilters

LAWRENCE, Kan. (UPI) — Who needs quilts in June and July in this part of the country where the temperature often tops the 100-degree mark during those months?

The Kaw Valley Quilters Guild, that's who.

The guild will select old and new quilts from across the state to be displayed at its quilt symposium July 20-22 at the University of Kansas. The three-day symposium will honor past and present quilters from Kansas and surrounding states.

As a warm-up to the symposium, the university, which owns one of the finest collections of quilts in the Midwest, will display its own quilts in its new Helen Foreman Spencer Museum of Art and The Watkins Community Museum in the downtown area June 18 through July 30.

How Tar Heel Representatives, Senators Voted

By Roll Call Report
WASHINGTON—Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Apr. 28 through May 3.

HOUSE
FEDERAL PAY—Rejected, 172 for and 210 against, an amendment to limit to 5.5 percent the pay hike slated for military personnel and federal white collar employees in fiscal 1979. The vote left authority in the budget for at least a six percent "comparability" raise for some two million military and 1.5 million civilian employees. The amendment would have saved an estimated $255 million in payroll costs. It was proposed to H Con Res 559, the congressional budget resolution setting recommended spending limits to govern later consideration of individual money bills. The measure was headed toward final passage and conference with the Senate.

Rep. Jim Mattox, D-Tex., the sponsor, called the amendment necessary to fight inflation. "If we are not willing to bite the bullet, so to speak, within the federal government, I see no reason to ask the American industry or American labor...to be willing to take lower pay raises."

Rep. Henry Gonzalez, D-Tex., an opponent asked: "Why should we set a pay ceiling on federal workers alone? Why not pick out other groups? Why not doctors or plumbers or lawyers or mechanics?"

Members voting "yea" favored the cap on federal pay.

Reps. L.H. Fountain, D-2, Stephen Neal, D-5, James Martin, R-9, James Brodyhill, R-10, and Lamar Gudger, D-11, voted "yea."

Reps. Walter Jones, D-1, Richardson Preyer, D-6, and W.G. Hefner, D-8, voted "nay."

Reps. Charles Whitley, D-3, Ike Andrews, D-4, and Charles Rose, D-7, did not vote.

DEFENSE SPENDING—Rejected, 142 for and 262 against, an amendment to add $2.4 billion to the fiscal 1979 budget authority for defense spending. The money was to fund construction of another nuclear-powered aircraft carrier. It was in addition to $127.4 billion already proposed in the 1979 congressional budget resolution (H Con Res 559, see vote above). The $127.4 billion represents the budget "authority." The amount to be actually appropriated, which cannot exceed the authority, will be determined later in the year.

Rep. Samuel Stratton, D-N.Y., the sponsor said the additional money is needed because "frankly, I am worried today about the defense of our country."

Rep. Robert Giomo, D-Conn., an opponent said: "By holding the line of add-ons, whether they be in defense or in other areas of the federal budget, we will begin to get some discipline on spending."

Members voting "yea" favored the amendment.

Gudger voted "yea." Jones, Fountain, Neal, Preyer, Rose, Hefner, Martin and Brodyhill voted "nay."

Whitley and Andrews did not vote.

PRISONERS' RIGHTS—Excluded, 227 for and 132 against, adult prisoners from a bill designed to insure the civil rights of certain disadvantaged citizens. The bill (HR 9400) gives the U.S. attorney general the power to sue to remedy abuses of such institutionalized persons as wayward children, the mentally retarded, the elderly, the chronically ill and the handicapped. The bill, which affects local, state or federal institutions, was sent to the Senate. This vote excluded adult but not juvenile prisoners from its scope.

Rep. Allen Ertel, D-Pa., a supporter, said that prisoners already have "every basic right that any other American citizen has as far as the right to redress and petition the courts is concerned."

Rep. Millicent Fenwick, R-N.J., an opponent, said that in "outstandingly unjust cases" of prisoners being abused the bill "offers some hope that their constitutional rights will be observed."

Members voting "yea" favored excluding adult prisoners from the bill.

Neal, Preyer, Rose, Hefner, Martin and Brodyhill voted "yea." Jones, Fountain, Whitley, Andrews and Gudger did not vote.

SENATE
OSHA—Confirmed, 56 for and 33 against, Bertram R. Cottine to serve on the Occupational Safety and Health Review Commission, the panel that oversees the much-criticized Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA). Some senators viewed Cottine, a 31-year-old activist lawyer once associated with Ralph Nader, as a symbol of over-zealousness by OSHA.

Sen. Harrison Williams, D-N.J., a supporter, said Cottine is "committed to making the commission truly responsible to the needs of America's workers and America's industry."

Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, an opponent, said Cottine's appointment would tilt the commission against business because his "sympathies clearly and unequivocally have been on the side of labor."

Senators voting "yea" favored the nomination.

Sens. Robert Morgan, D, and Jesse Helms, R, voted "nay."

A NEW CANAL?—Rejected, 43 for and 49 against, an amendment authorizing $8 million for studying the possibility of building a new Panama Canal about ten miles west of the existing waterway. This amendment sought to revive an unfinished study conducted between 1964-70 by the Army Corps of Engineers. It was proposed to HR 8309, a bill later passed and sent to conference with the House.

Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, the sponsor, said the interests of commerce require a larger canal. "Right now," he said, "the obsolescence of the (Panama) canal is very, very clear."

Sen. Peter Domenici, D-N.M., an opponent, noted that the new Panama Canal treaties call for a joint Panamanian-U.S. study of the possibility of a new canal. He urged the Senate not to tamper with those plans.

Senators voting "yea" favored the amendment.

Morgan and Helms voted "nay."

Color TV Prices Down

NEW YORK (UPI) — Although the cost of automobiles, health care and housing has risen sharply during the past quarter of a century, color television prices actually have declined 43 percent during that time, according to RCA.

Roy Pollack, RCA vice president, notes that since 1954 the average retail price of a color TV set dropped from $1,000 to $575. In that same period, the average selling price of a new car has gone from $2,620 to $6,120, an increase of 134 percent. The median price of a new one-family house has gone from $12,500 to $48,700, a jump of 290 percent, while health care spending, on a per capita basis, rose from $101 to $637, a rise of 531 percent.

In the past 10 years alone, Pollack says, when color TV prices were holding steady, prices of washing machines had gone up 44 percent; room air-conditioners, 34 percent; vacuum cleaners, 26 percent; refrigerators, 39 percent; clothes dryers, 54 percent; ranges, 43 percent; and garbage disposals, 39 percent.

U.S. Trails In Energy-Saving

WARWICK, R.I. (UPI) — The United States lags more than 10 years behind European nations in the use of energy-savings systems, according to an advisor to the Alliance to Save Energy, a national voluntary group dedicated to help Americans conserve energy.

In an address here at Energy Expo '78, J. W. Kennedy, president of Borg-Warner's York Division, pointed out that "in U. S. homes, 41 percent of all the energy we pay for is wasted; in our commercial buildings 48 percent is wasted, and industry wastes 49 percent."

Europeans have eliminated much of this waste, Kennedy said, because historically, with their energy costly and in short supply, they have been forced to become strict conservationists, which in turn has pushed them to design and employ systems that use energy efficiently.

Bilingual Rule Is Modified

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Office of Education says it has tightened regulations to make sure bilingual education classes serve only students who are "significantly limited in their command of the English language."

The comment came after release of a $15 million study which said that only about one-third of the students in the classes were significantly limited in their ability to speak English.

COSTUMED TOUR
CLIFTONVILLE, England (AP) — Kim Wall, director of the International Arts Center on the Isle of Thanet, is getting together 150 Britons who will tour the United States in September wearing Georgian, Victorian and Edwardian period costumes. The tourists will pay $4,000 each for the trip.

Underground Economy: Symptom Of Nat'l Threat?

By LEROY POPE
UPI Business Writer
NEW YORK (UPI) — A recent cartoon in The New Yorker shows a wealthy lady catching a burglar redhanded in the library of her sumptuous home.

Unabashed, the burglar tells her, "Crippling local, state and federal rules and regulations have made criminals out of many a small businessman, Ma'am."

The burglar has become a member of the underground economy, the implications of which are being explored by a number of economists and tax consultants including Dr. Peter A. Gutmann of the City University of New York's Baruch College and Samuel J. Fossaner, a New Jersey tax accountant whose book "The Frustrated American," (Olympic Press, Montclair, N.J.) contends that the economy of the United States now is drifting utterly out of control and something must be done about it.

Dr. Gutmann contended recently that 800,000 to 1.6 million Americans now are in the underground economy and that their activities may add $200 billion to the annual Gross National Product — $200 billion that goes untaxed.

A more alarmed view of this subterranean economy is taken by Arthur Milton, a New York insurance broker and author of the current book "Will Inflation Destroy America?"

Milton told UPI that, unless present trends are halted soon and the entire U.S. economy reformed, about 50 per cent of the economy may go underground at no distant future, leaving the government threatened with bankruptcy.

He said the alternative to swift ending of the present corruption, confusion, drift and gross inequities could be armed insurrection. He said such a revolt could result from unemployment rates of up to 40 per cent in the black community and from the bitter frustrations being experienced by other Americans.

Milton said it is much too late to save the situation by piecemeal tinkering and that neither Congress, the White House nor the bureaucrats can do the needed job. He believes President Carter should move to set up an organization similar to a constitutional convention to hold periodic hearings for perhaps four years looking toward a complete overhaul of the nation's economic system, particularly the tax system.

He said that although labor, industry and the academic community should be heard, the public, through elected members, should have a dominant place in the movements. He said he is convinced that the public is far ahead of the politicians, the unions or the scholars in knowing how serious the situation is, and what should be done about it.

Honoring Mom Over 300 Years

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — This year marks the 70th anniversary of Mother's Day in the United States. But its predecessor, "Mothering Sunday," has been celebrated in England for over 300 years.

In the 17th century, young apprentices would return home on the fourth Sunday in Lent with gifts of specially baked cake for their mothers, says Hallmark researcher Sally Hopkins.

Nowadays, Mother's Day is celebrated worldwide, but not always on the same date. In Israel, Mother's Day is Feb. 18. Costa Rica celebrates it Aug. 15, and Panama Dec. 8. Here, Mother's Day is always the second Sunday in May.

taxpayers ought to be the most powerful lobby in America, Fossaner said, but they just aren't organized.

"If dedicated, conscientious Americans who have no selfish ax to grind don't unify their efforts and hang together, they're going to hang separately," he said.

As an example of the frustration and confusion in America now, Fossaner said that when he consulted two IRS executives about his own tax return, one told him he owed the government $2,500 more and the other said he was entitled to a $7,300 refund. He said this kind of muddledness prevails all through the U.S. economy and social fabric and upsets people and makes them cynical.

"The existence of the subterranean economy clearly casts doubts on the accuracy of government unemployment figures because so many persons are working and being paid 'off the books,' while registered as unemployed.

By going underground and paying 'off the books,' employers can avoid social security taxes and local employment taxes and a lot of paperwork. They may also be able to conceal the size of their businesses to reduce other taxes and save on other expenses.

Some of the people who work in the underground economy often have gross incomes of $25,000 a year or more, perhaps half of it in the regular economy, the rest underground.

several studies indicate.

The attitudes of some of these persons expressed to interviewees who agree to preserve their anonymity tends to support Milton's concerned view. They say they can't make out without cheating on taxes and when articles about the underground economy appear in the press, editors may get letters denouncing the articles as attacks on the poor, accompanied by demands that the editors forget about ordinary folk who don't report all their income for taxes and concentrate on tax evasion by the corporations and the very wealthy.

Whitman Prize To Karen Snow

NEW YORK (AP) — The Academy of American Poets has named Karen Snow the recipient of its 1978 Walt Whitman Award for her first book of poetry "Wonders," soon to be published.

The poet, a 54-year-old mother of two sons, is a Michigan native and lives with her husband near Seattle, Wash., on an island in Puget Sound. Karen Snow is her pen name.

The award includes a $1,000 cash prize and the publishing of "Wonders."

Tips On The Tick Hazard

CHICAGO (UPI) — Millions of Americans will soon be flocking to the fields and woods again and many of them will pick up a few ticks.

Ticks sometimes are carriers of a nasty illness — Rocky Mountain spotted fever. It isn't confined to the Rockies. Cases have appeared in many other regions.

In a recent issue of the "Journal of the American Medical Association," Dr. Donald E. Weidhaas of the U.S. Department of Agriculture Research Service at Gainesville, Fla., gives these pointers on coping with ticks:

- Personal-use repellents, highly effective, are available in many stores, but it is important to read the directions on the label and use the material only as directed.
- Apply repellents to socks and trouser cuffs and any openings in the clothing, such as around the neck, top of trousers, button areas, and fly.
- Remove ticks with forceps, a bent twig, or fingers covered by paper or a leaf. Pull gently at first, directly outward from the body. Pull from as close to the skin as possible, to avoid leaving part of the tick imbedded. Avoid crushing the tick.
- The publication also reports that the older vaccine against Rocky Mountain spotted fever is being phased out. A promising new vaccine is not yet ready.

Cache Of Rare Wine Tasted

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Several cases of Albany's cache of rare 19th-century French wine were opened, and the initial findings were "very good."

The cache was discovered in an abandoned wine cellar of a historic mansion more than a year ago, but it was only recently that efforts were made to determine its value.

After opening several cases, Alexander McNally, a wine expert, called the discovery, "Better than I expected. The coloring is good, the body is good and the wine is up to the shoulder of many bottles."

The cache could be worth $125,000 at auction if the Albany County Historical Association, owners of TenBroeck Mansion, are willing to sell the bottles, he said.

McNally termed the cache "the largest and most important collection of 19th-century golden age vintages ever discovered."

Mid-Manhattan Auto Paradise

NEW YORK (AP) — A car buff's paradise has opened temporarily here in mid-Manhattan.

Almost every conceivable type of vehicle — from the bulky cumbersome automobiles of the early 1900s, to a one-seat futuristic car driven by wind power — is drawing crowds to the Kodak Photo Gallery. The free exhibit, entitled "Auto Exotica," also includes more than 175 of the world's finest automobile photographs — both European and American slide shows, movies and artifacts.

One part of the exhibit is devoted to "replicas," a fast-growing trend of taking an assembly-line car and transforming it into a higher-priced, classier one by installing new hoods, ornaments and grilles.

BILLION DOLLAR BABY
NEW YORK, N.Y. (UPI) — The plastics industry is presently a $50 billion a year business. By the end of 1981 the total will be doubled, topping $100 billion yearly, the Society of the Plastics Industry forecasts.

Calcutta Improving Slums Instead Of Ending Them

By JOHN NEEDHAM
CALCUTTA, India (UPI) —
In the fetid slum of Darapara, a man squats next to a six-inch drain at the left side of a six-foot wide alley that serves as a main road.

The man urinates into the drain, while a woman 10 feet away washes her pots and pans in the oily water.

A wider drain farther along flows into a catchment that is clogged. The black water, floating with human and animal excrement, overflows into the middle of an unpaved walkway and runs down the middle.

Dozens of goats and chickens run through the narrow lanes, mingling with naked children, many with the distended stomachs of the ill fed. At a tiny butcher shop, five pieces of meat hang in the sun, so covered with flies and so gray it is impossible to guess from what animal they came.

One out of every three people in the city of Calcutta — 1.1 million of 3.3 million, lives in a slum, or "bustee," as it is called here.

Officials have now given up trying to abolish the slums. Instead, they work to improve them.

"The registered slum dwellers are respectable citizens, who pay their taxes, who pay their rents," said S.C. Basu, an official of the Calcutta Metropolitan Development Authority, in an interview.

"Our goal is to provide improvements for all the slums in (metropolitan) Calcutta in four years. There will be one water tap for each 100 persons, one sanitary latrine for 25 persons and the main roads in the slums will be paved. There will be electricity on the streets."

Increased Yield Said Only Fair

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Treasury Department official says it is "only fair" to raise the interest rate on government savings bonds.

Assistant Secretary Roger C. Altman told a House committee on Monday that the Treasury doesn't think an increase is needed now, but would like authority to raise the bond yield above 6 percent if warranted by money market conditions.

slums in metropolitan Calcutta. Another 500,000 to 1 million live in "unregistered" slums. Darapara is a registered, unimproved slum, waiting for CMDA attention.

The police estimate that 40 percent of the adult men in Darapara bustee are criminals. Outsiders do not enter after dark.

A home for destitute women, run by Mother Theresa's Missionaries of Charity, is surrounded by a 10-foot-high wall, topped with strands of barbed wire and broken glass to prevent break-ins.

Darapara has no sewer connection, no electricity, no paved road, and water for only two to four hours a day.

Abdul Hussain, who thinks he's about 30 years old, sits with one of his sons next to a once-whitewashed wall painted with faded political slogans. He is surrounded by dozens of tin cans he has scavenged from the numerous garbage dumps in the slum. They are hammered out, painted and he is now covering with them hide to make tiny drums.

"I came here looking for work," Hussain says. "I've been living here 15 years."

He says he makes 50 rupees ($6.25) per week selling the drums and pays 15 rupees ($1.87) per month to rent the 6-by-8 foot, one-room flat where he lives with his wife and five children.

"We want water, electricity, roads to be fixed, better drainage," he says. "When this road gets flooded during the monsoon, we can't work and there's nowhere to go."

About a mile from Darapara is Kasia Bagan, an "improved bustee."

The roads are paved, but some are showing gaps. A garbage dump that should have been emptied a month ago is overflowing. But there are sanitary latrines, lighted streets and enough water for all.

improvement, things are more comfortable," said Anwar Hussain, 28, who works the night shift at a nearby packing plant. "And the rents haven't gone up."

Hussain says the best improvement has been a park on the fringe of the bustee, where children now play. Past attempts to move bustee dwellers to four-story apartment buildings failed.

"We are no longer going to try to move the bustee dwellers. We are going to improve the bustees," Basu said.

A Face Lift Is Accorded Piccadilly

By GREGORY JENSEN
LONDON (UPI) — Construction is finally under way to give a face lift to Piccadilly Circus, and that means the public has won at last.

Changes are coming to London's most famous intersection. Some already have begun.

"But all the big changes in the Circus which were thought about won't be happening now," said Martin Stearman, the former chief Piccadilly planner.

It took 74 years of battle between public opinion and public planners to reach the point where, today, one side of Piccadilly Circus is a gaping hole lanced by a building crane. An adjoining building is swathed in scaffolding. An even bigger rebuilding job is due to start this spring.

But the Piccadilly Circus of tomorrow, said Jack Chambers, the current planning officer, "will look very much like the Piccadilly Circus of today."

Some traffic will be rerouted to bypass the Circus. Individual buildings will be rebuilt — like the Monico site where work has begun — or remodeled. But their size and shape will remain as before.

"The changes are being made piecemeal," Chambers said. "We're treating Piccadilly Circus as we do everything else."

That's quite a switch. Piccadilly Circus is perhaps the most planned area on earth, though to a stranger it might seem perverse that Londoners resisted every effort to make something sparkling out of it.

True, it is the city's focal point. Piccadilly is a place to celebrate the end of a war, the birth of a future king, a big soccer match. Soho starts here, and theaters and top shops and cinemas cluster on all sides.

The statue in the center, misnamed "Eros," is a favorite place for tourists to sit amid the famous neon advertising signs and watch the cars go by — even though they risk life and limb by dashing through traffic to get there.

But this chaotic, roughly triangular intersection once known as "The Hub of the Empire" had gotten distinctly sleazy.

Seven streets collide here, and they choke it with the noise and fumes of 55,000 vehicles daily. Decay was evident everywhere. Neon no longer concealed the grime.

Planner after planner schemed to sort out the mess. Developers by the dozen dreamed of converting its potentially golden real estate into scintillating plazas, ranks of skyscrapers, split-level urban dreams.

At least 77 separate development plans were proposed. Londoners shouted down every one.

The outcome, says the magazine "Architectural Journal," means that Piccadilly Circus will be "a spectacular example of underdevelopment." But Londoners want it that way, and public opinion has triumphed over public planners.

The biggest rebuilding job still to come will transform the Criterion site, which holds the subway station entrance and the Criterion theater.

Its owners submitted 41 complete redevelopment plans over the years. The 42nd, which was approved, will create an arched colonnade along one side of the Circus, a covered walkway opening onto shops.

Stretching in front of it in a broad triangle will be a pedestrian-only peninsula, tipped by "Eros" — which is really the Shaftsbury Memorial Fountain. The street which now isolates Eros will be closed to create this peaceful triangle.

Tourists will still sit on the statue's steps amid the neon of tomorrow's Piccadilly Circus, but they'll no longer have to risk their lives to reach it.

A Modern-Day Tower Of Babel

EKOFISK CENTER, North Sea (UPI) — This oilfield complex is a modern-day Tower of Babel. Seeking high pay with long leaves, men from 12 countries work together in the middle of the sea. Americans, Norwegians, Thais, Japanese, Spaniards, Mexicans and Dutch are some of the peoples represented, says Phillips Petroleum, operator of the complex.
