Rebels And Cuban Invaders Reported Advancing In Zaire

KINSHASA, Zaire (AP) — Zaire's army is battling rebel invaders in mineral-rich Shaba province for the second time in 14 months and reports from foreigners in the area indicate today that the government's position is "deteriorating."

President Mobutu Sese Seko of this central African nation, formerly the Belgian Congo, has asked the United States and other nations for help.

A spokesman for the Belgian Foreign Ministry said in Brussels that, according to new information from Belgians in the southeastern province, the situation "which had seemed rather reassuring in the first hours of the attack seems to be deteriorating."

The official Zaire news agency AZAP said Katangan exiles and Cuban troops crossed Zaire's southern border with Zambia on Thursday night. The Belgian ministry said 4,000 invaders in civilian clothes came from Angola, crossed northern Zambia, infiltrated the Shaban copper-mining center of Kolwezi about 25 miles from the border and occupied part of the town in an attack.

AZAP said about 4,000 invaders in civilian clothes infiltrated Kolwezi, 25 miles from the Zambian border, and launched an attack there Sunday night. In Brussels, the Belgian Foreigh Ministry said some fighting was still going on there Sunday night.

AZAP said Zairean troops repelled another attack Sunday at the town of Mutshatsha, 60 miles west of Kolwezi. It claimed Cuban troops were with the invaders there.

A Belgian spokesman in Brussels said the invasion "looks at least as serious" as the last one.

Confirmation of the claim of Cuban involvement was not available.

The Foreign Ministry called in the ambassadors of the United States, Belgium, France, China and Morocco Sunday and appealed for help. There was no immediate response from foreign goverments.

"We are in touch with our diplomatic personnel in that part of the world," said a State Department spokeswoman in Washington. "We are watching the situation and are trying to sort out the facts."

A sizable European and American colony of mining and construction personnel and missionaries is in the Kolwezi area, but the State Department said it had no information on any of the Americans. Most of the Americans are employed by the Morrison-Knudsen construction company of Boise, Idaho.

Carter Predicts Senate To Clear Warplane Sale

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, after talking with several senators, is predicting that the Senate tonight will refuse to block his plan to sell sophisticated U.S. warplanes to Israel and two of its Arab neighbors.

The Senate vote this evening will come after 10 hours of debate today that includes a two hour closed-door meeting of the Senate to discuss classified aspects of the pending sale.

Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, DConn., who asked for the closed session, said he wants the lawmakers to discuss the security implications for "the entire Middle East" of the presence in the area of Soviet-backed Cuban troops.

Even if the Senate should vote to kill the sale of planes to Israel, Egypt and Saudi Arabia, the proposal would survive if the House refuses to block the sale, too.

Such proposals are automatically approved unless both the Senate and the House vote to reject the sales.

On the eve of the Senate showdown vote, Carter lobbied his $4.8 billion plane sale proposal with several senators.

He telephoned them Sunday from the presidential retreat at Camp David, Md., where he spent the weekend.

Then, in a statement issued before he returned to the White House, Carter said he thinks the Senate will approve the proposed sale to Israel, Egypt and Saudi Arabia.

The president said he had been "impressed by the sincere desire of senators I have talked with this weekend to rise above partisanship and political concerns." He called the sales "crucial to our efforts to secure a just and lasting peace in the Middle East."

Senate Democratic Leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia also foresaw victory. "I think we have the votes to allow the sales to go forward," he said.

Two opponents, meanwhile, predicted a close vote.

Republican Sen. Jacob Javits of New York said the resolution to disapprove the sale would be decided by "one or two votes on either side." And the assistant Democratic leader, Sen. Alan Cranston of California, said the situation in the Senate was "extremely fluid." Cranston broke with the administration on the warplane deal, saying the White House offer of 20 additional planes later on for Israel was "insufficient." He also said the assurance that the planes sold Saudi Arabia would not be used against Israel was "undependable."

Carter wants to sell 60 F-15s to Saudi Arabia, 50 less advanced F-5Es to Egypt and 15 F-15s and 75 F-16s to Israel.

Meanwhile, in a letter to Carter released Saturday, King Khalid of Saudi Arabia said he wanted "to emphasize that the planes are being acquired for defense" and that his country urgently needs the planes "because of the continuing, and recently stepped up, communist expansion in the area."

His remarks came shortly after Carter told a group of editors that Cuban military forces are operating in South Yemen.

The House International Relations Committee votes on the warplane sale Tuesday. Unless both houses disapprove the sale by May 28, however, Carter is free to go ahead with the sales.

On A Trial Basis

Claim Abuse

NEW DEHLI, India (AP) — Former Prime Minister Indira Gandhi declared an emergency in 1975 and arrested a number of opposition leaders merely so that she could remain in power, a government inquiry said today.

The long-awaited report, released in Parliament by Prime Minister Morarji Desai, said there was no evidence of an internal threat to India's security, the excuse Mrs. Gandhi used to justify the imposition of authoritarian measures.

Mrs. Gandhi was soundly defeated by Desai's coalition in elections she called last spring.

"Thousands were detained (during the 19-month emergency) and a series of totally illegal and unwarranted actions followed involving untold human misery and suffering," said the inquiry commission, headed by retired Chief Justice J.C. Shah. The commission heard scores of witnesses since its hearings began last September.

The 60-year-old Mrs. Gandhi "misused her position, abused her authority, and subverted well-established administrative procedures and lawful processess," the report said.

Legal proceedings have begun against the former prime minister and her son for refusing to testify before the commission. If convicted, they face a maximum sentence of six months in prison, a $125 fine or both.

'Angry' But No Pull-Out

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Bishop Abel Muzorewa's party says it will continue to participate in the interim Rhodesian government because its withdrawal would cause the collapse of the government.

Muzorewa and his United African National Council threatened to pull out of the government after the other three members of the government Executive Council fired Byron Hove, a UNAC member who was co-minister of justice. Muzorewa said the action was taken behind his back.

The bishop's party said it "remains angry, unhappy and suspicious about the motives of some members of the transitional government." It accused the Executive Council of delaying putting an end to racial discrimination. It also said Muzorewa would not join the other council members at public rallies to drum up support for the agreement they signed providing for a government elected by universal suffrage by the end of the year.

Muzorewa has the largest following of the three black moderates who signed the agreement with Prime Minister Ian Smith.

Swing To Moro Party In Early Italian Vote

ROME (AP — Initial returns from Italian local elections showed a strong swing today to the Christian Democrat party whose leader, Aldo Moro, was slain by the terrorist Red Brigades.

Even as the votes were counted, the Brigades struck again, seriously wounding an official of a car factory in Bologna.

In the area of Trent, the northeastern city where Red Brigades leader Renato Curcio spawned his terrorist philosophy, partial returns from Sunday's voting showed the Christian Democrats scoring a strong increase in their share of the vote while the Communists and Socialists lost some ground.

Political analysts had predicted a strong sympathy vote for the Christian Democrats after the Red Brigades kidnapped and killed former premier Moro, the president of the party, but the shift seemed to be even stronger than predicted. Moro, 61, was kidnapped March 16. His bulletriddled body was found in Rome last week after the government refused to deal with the terrorists who demanded the release of some of their comrades.

The government is Christian Democrat but is supported in Parliament by the Communists, the nation's second strongest party.

In the Bologna incident, police said three men and a woman jumped out of a car, shot 48year-old Antonio Mazzotti as he was entering the Menarini car body factory.

A few minutes after the attack an anonymous telephone caller told the Bologna office of the Italian news agency ANSA: "This is the Red Brigades. We have executed Dr. Mazzotti of the Menarini, a servant of the state."

It was the eighth such terrorist attack in 10 days. The Red Brigades let up Saturday, when the government held a state funeral for Moro, and on Sunday, when voting began in the local elections.

Meany Won't Agree

WASHINGTON (AP) — AFL-CIO President George Meany says President Carter's anti-inflation program calls for voluntary wage controls — a concept he cannot accept.

Meany said Sunday that Carter will find the wage restraint he seeks if prices are held down first.

"I would not go along with wage controls," Meany said. "What he (Carter) was asking us to do was accept wage controls, accept them on a voluntary basis."

Meany told interviewers on ABC television's "Issues and Answers" that Carter's request for smaller wage increases came during a White House meeting last week.

"What the president specifically asked ... was that we notify our local unions and our international unions throughout the country that ... they should decelerate ... the wage increases to something below what they had in their last contracts," Meany said.

But Meany added he couldn't instruct local unions to agree in advance of negotiations to take less than they had in their last contracts.

"We don't negotiate contracts, and that we could not give them. ...." he said.

BACK TO PRISON

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Convicted bank robber Patricia Hearst, who lost appeals to the nation's highest court, is returning to prison today to serve the remainder of a seven-year sentence, according to U. S. Attorney G. William Hunter.

Jump Gun On Official Debate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate debate doesn't begin until Tuesday, but an opponent and a supporter of labor law revisions aren't waiting for the official arguments. Sen. Harrison A. Williams, D-N.J., who supports the changes, and Sen. Orrin G. Hatch, R-Utah, an opponent, squared off Sunday on a television interview show.

Hatch said the revisions were prompted by organized labor's loss of recent representation elections. Williams said the legislation "in no way deals with working people's elections and how they will vote." The measure would streamline operations of the National Labor Relations board and speed the process of union representation elections.

Reporter's Appeal Not Heard By High Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court left standing today a decision ordering a Des Moines news reporter to disclose confidential information in a civil lawsuit in which she and her employer are not involved.

The justices refused to review an appeal by reporter Diane Graham and the Des Moines Register and Tribune Co. that contended the Iowa Supreme Court's decision infringes on Miss Graham's First Amendment rights.

Sally Ann Winegard, claiming to be the common-law wife of John R. Winegard, a wealthy Burlington, Iowa, businessman, sued for divorce in 1973.

In 1974, a state trial court ruled that a common law marriage had existed. Winegard unsuccessfully appealed the ruling to the Iowa Supreme Court.

He then filed suit in federal court, seeking to prevent Sally Ann Winegard from discovering financial information about him during the state divorce proceedings.

While all records of the state proceedings were closed under Iowa law, records of the Winegard's federal lawsuit were not sealed.

The Jan. 8, 1975 editions of the evening Des Moines Tribune carried an article under Miss Graham's byline about the Winegard divorce case. An similar article was published in the following morning's Des Moines Register.

One of the persons quoted in Miss Graham's article was Stephen Schalk, a lawyer for Sally Ann Winegard.

He was quoted as saying that the Winegards had exchanged wedding rings in 1971 and had held themselves out to the community as husband and wife since that time.

Winegard sued Schalk's law firm, charging that he had been defamed and that his privacy had been invaded as a result of the articles.

Floggings And Prison Terms

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Eleven more journalists and other newspaper employees have been sentenced to prison for from three to nine months for violating a ban on public demonstrations.

Four were sentenced to up to five lashes and were flogged shortly after the sentencing Sunday.

Visiting China At Time Of Increased Concern

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski, leaves this week for a three day visit to Peking at a time of heightened concern in the United States and China over Soviet strategic objectives.

The implications of expanded Soviet influence in Africa and the Soviet arms buildup in Eastern Europe are expected to be major topics in Brzezinski's discussions with Chinese leaders.

Administration officials say Brzezinski, who leaves Thursday, also is prepared to discuss the possibilities of an exchange of ambassadors between Peking and Washington, although no breakthrough on this point is likely. The two countries have maintained diplomatic liaison offices in each other's capitals since 1973.

The Chinese are expected to reiterate their longstanding view that normalization of relations will not be possible so long as the United States maintains diplomatic and military ties with the Nationalist Chinese on Taiwan.

For their part, U.S. officials privately do not take seriously Carter's recent expression of hope that the process of normalizing Sino-American relations can be completed "over a period of months."

After an overnight stop in Tokyo, Brzezinski will arrive in Peking on Saturday morning. On his return to Washington, he will visit Japan and South Korea to report on his Peking talks.

It will be the first personal high-level contact between Washington and Peking since Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance visited the Chinese capital last August.

The Chinese have long been skeptical of America's ability to remain steadfast in the face of what they perceive as Soviet expansionism. But in Brzezinski, they will be dealing with the Carter administration's most prominent anti-Soviet hardliner.

Brzezinski, for instance, has taken a more alarmist view than Vance of Moscow's successful efforts to bring Angola and Ethiopia into the Soviet sphere of influence.

Brzezinski is expected to seek to assure the Chinese that the U.S.-Soviet arms limitation agreement now being negotiated will not result in a shift of the strategic balance in Russia's favor.

The talks also are likely to focus on the recent coup in Afghanistan which brought a pro-Soviet government to power, and last week's military action by the Soviet Union across the Chinese border.

Miss Linda Carole Lee Weds Peter H. Wilson

MRS. PETER HOLT WILSON

Miss Linda Carole Lee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kent Edward Lee of Greenville, and Peter Holt Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Nelson Wilson of Wilson's Mills, were united in marriage Sunday at 3:00 p.m. at the Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church.

The Rev. Bob Redmond, pastor of the bride, officiated using the double ring ceremony. Mrs. Mitchell Jones, soloist, sang "There Is Love" and "The Wedding Prayer." Wedding music was rendered by Mickey Terry, organist.

The church was decorated with the traditional green and white decorations. The altar vases were filled with snapdragons, daisies, mums, gladioli and baby's breath. Twenty tiered candelabra highlighted the decorations and pews were marked with white satin bows and greenery.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a formal gown of white satin peau de soie designed with a Victorian neckline, empire bodice fashioned with a sheer keyhole and long bishop sleeves. Appliques of re-embroidered alencon lace enhanced with motifs of seed pearls and crystals adorned the bodice, sleeves and the full A-line skirt. The gown fell into a chapel train bordered with matching alencon lace.

She wore a walking length veil of imported illusion attached to a Camelot cap. The veil was adorned with re-embroidered alencon lace and motifs of seed pearls. She carried a semi-nosegay of white miniature carnations, yellow sweetheart roses, baby's breath and greenery tied with white bridal satin.

Mrs. Steven Smith of Rocky Mount, aunt of the bride, was honor attendant. Bridesmaids were Miss Bonnie Lee, cousin of the bride, Miss Phyliss Conway, Mrs. Steve Riddick, all of Greenvile, Mrs. Alex Wilson of Wilson's Mills, Mrs. Jim Wilson of Smithfield, and Mrs. Steve Wilson of Fayetteville, sister-in-law of the bridegroom.

The attendants wore formal length gowns of maize knit designed with a halter neckline, gathered fitted bodice and full circular skirt. The sleeveless gowns were complemented by waltz length drapes of maize chiffon styled with high rolled collars accented by embroidered motifs of maize, pink and green scattered over the drape. They carried semi-nosegays of miniature pink carnations, yellow daisies and baby's breath tied with canary yellow bows with long streamers.

Steve Wilson, the bridegroom's brother, was best man and ushers were Luke Collie of Wilmington, cousin of the bride, Alex Wilson of Wilson's Mills, and Jim Wilson cousins of the bridegroom, Mark Suber, Ben Youngblood and Scott Strickland, all of Smithfield. Candles were lighted by Alex and Jim Wilson.

The mother of the bride wore an aqua chiffon gown and a white cymbidium orchid. The mother of the bridegroom wore a dusty rose chiffon gown and a pink-throated orchid. Mrs. Floyd McGowan and Mrs. R. B. Lee, grandmothers of the bride, were given orchid corsages.

The bride is an early childhood major at ECU and will complete her education this summer. The bridegroom is a graduate of N. C. State University and was a member of Phi Kappa Alpha fraternity. He is presently self-employed at Wilson's Oil Co., Wilson's Mills, where the couple will live.

For a wedding trip to unannounced points, the bride changed into a three-piece pink pantsuit.

The bride's parents entertained at a reception at the home of the bride's grandmother on Elm Street honoring the bridal couple. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Hall and Mr. and Mrs. John A. Wilson.

The walkway leading to the entrance of the home was flanked with hurricane lamps tied with white satin bows.

Miss Patricia Cox presided at the register and Miss Sara Lee, aunt of the bride, directed guests into the dining room.

The refreshment table was covered with a white linen cutwork cloth and centered with an arrangement of yellow and white spring flowers. Mrs. Betty Casey and Mrs. Lloyd Allen assisted in serving. Mr. and Mrs. Gene Adams poured punch. Mr. and Mrs. Richard Crouch served cake after the bridal couple cut the first slice.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Price invited guests into the gift room and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Tucker said good-byes.

Mrs. Lloyd Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Hall entertained Miss Lee at a bridemaids luncheon Saturday morning at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Nelson Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Wilson honored the bridal couple at a champagne rehearsal dinner at the Holiday Inn following the wedding rehearsal.

Mrs. Floyd McGowan, Mr. and Mrs. James Steven Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Raleigh Bradford Lee and Miss Sara Lee honored the bridal couple, members of the wedding party and out-of-town guests at a breakfast Sunday at the Ramada Inn.

WOTM Hear Wilma Turner

The Women of the Moose, Chapter 1308, held a program night at the Moose Lodge Thursday. The program for the evening was a talk given by Wilma Turner on "The Requirements for a Member of the Academy of Friendship."

The Academy of Friendship is the second degree of a member of the Women of the Moose. This degree may be earned when the member meets the following requirements: the chapter shall qualify for the award of achievement; serve as an appointed or an elected officer; sponsor two or more candidates; be responsible for a chapter program and project.

Frances Breedlove and Janie Raford were presented their rings signifying their achievement of the Academy of Friendship degree. The rings were presented by Mary Knapp, junior graduate regent.

Katherine Cannon, sponsored by Jo Dees; Marilyn Tucker, sponsored by Marga Ross; and Johanna May, sponsored by Mary Knapp, were enrolled as new members.

Senior regent Hazel Barnes announced that election of officers for 1978-79 would take place at the next business meeting. Balloting will take place between 7:30 and 8:00 p.m. and all co-workers are urged to be present.

Refreshments were served during the social hour following the program.

Daughter's Hair Is Frizzy Mop

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Our 28-year-old daughter has been self-supporting since she graduated from college, and we have always been very proud of her. (She's in fashion.)

Yesterday she came over for dinner and her father and I nearly fainted when we saw her. She looked as though she had given herself a cheap home perm and didn't bother to set it!

It looked terrible and we told her so. She said we would get used to it because it is the latest thing.

Abby, her beautiful blond head was just a frizzy mop, with no shape or style. I can't for the life of me understand why any fashion-conscious young woman would want to go around looking that way.

I am 47—not exactly a relic—and I appreciate up-to-date fashions and hairstyles, but I can't understand this new hideous hairstyle, can you?

HORRIFIED IN HOUSTON

DEAR HORRIFIED: No. But cheer up. This too shall pass.

DEAR ABBY: Now I've heard everything! My niece, who happens to be a very good student, claims that she was suspended from Oral Roberts University in Tulsa, Okla., because she is overweight. Can you believe that? She said that she and three others were kicked out of the university because they failed to lose at least one pound a week, in accordance with a pledge they signed when they entered the university.

I can't for the life of me understand what a person's weight has to do with his scholastic record, and I find it hard to believe that a school with the fine reputation enjoyed by Oral Roberts University would ever make such a rule.

My niece has always been a fairly good student, but it's possible that she flunked out and just made up that story to save face.

Will you please look into this and let me know if this kid is putting me on or if such a rule really exist?

STEAMED IN OKLAHOMA

DEAR STEAMED: It's true. It seems that your niece ate herself out of the university. But I'm told that every student at O.R.U. pledges that he (or she) will make every effort to keep physically fit, and the university provides a diet and exercise program to help. Furthermore, I have it orally from Oral himself that this rule includes the faculty, too!

DEAR ABBY: When my son was living at home he was so fussy about his shirts that if there was a little wrinkle in the collar, he'd throw the shirt back in the hamper for me to do over.

Well, he's married now, and you should see what he's putting up with. His wife never washes anything unless everything is dirty and they need something clean. I've seen her wash one shirt out in the kitchen sink, and then press it on the kitchen table, right over eggshells and bread crumbs!

Believe me, my son wasn't raised that way, and it kills me to see it. He never complains, and you never hear a cross word between them.

Can a man forget his early training so soon? How can I teach this sloppy girl to keep house properly?

PERTURBED IN PUEBLO

DEAR PERTURBED: If she asks you to teach her, teach her. But don't volunteer. As long as your son is happy, close your eyes and let your mouth follow suit.

If you put off writing letters because you don't know what to say, get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters For All Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (24 cents) envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Committee Up With The Times

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

Times have changed greatly since the first American Mother of the Year Award was given in 1935. Its sponsoring organization is in step with the times.

The New York City-based American Mothers Committee still doesn't take sides on such political subjects as abortion and the Equal Rights Amendment. But these subjects are discussed at state meetings, and the committee includes both supporters and opponents of ERA, says Mrs. Phyllis B. Marriott of Kensington, Md, current president of the non-profit interfaith interracial group.

This year's national Mother of the Year will be named at the committee's annual meeting May 11 in Des Moines from among the 50 state mothers chosen earlier. All are selected for their contributions to family, civic, religious and educational life.

Mrs. Marriott says the committee's basic program, the Young Mother Council Service, remains a "think tank" for helping women help each other by talking about how they cope with family problems and how to strengthen family ties.

Council service subjects range from sex education and why it belongs in the home to how to get children off drugs or prevent them from starting, Mrs. Marriott said in a telephone interview. They also talk about family budgeting and how to stop arguing about money.

"Lots of times we're asked how to keep the family together or get a family back together," she said.

On a recent speaking trip, she was contacted by a girl, 19, who had run away from home and was living with a man who had a drinking problem. "I do it because it's the thing to do," the girl told her, but she was concerned that the man might walk out and leave her with a child to support.

"We've accepted this (kind of relationship) in our society," Mrs. Marriott said.

She told of another committee member, a state mother of the year, who helped a young mother at a rehabilitation center kick the drug habit.

The committee also helps the elderly who want to stay in their own homes by providing programs such as Meals on Wheels, daily home delivery of nutritious hot food. Some members provide transportation to and from doctors' appointments.

"The committee believes in a chapel in every home for people who cannot go to church," Mrs. Marriott said.

The committee's stance has changed in another way, she said.

"Take myself as an example. I've always been active. When my children (three sons, now grown) were young, I believed in doing everything they did. I joined the Boy Scouts, and I think I was criticized by other parents because I wasn't home all day.

"That no longer occurs. Today they say I'm not active enough."

But she's still working with the scouts' national organization and keeping speaking engagements nationwide for the mothers committee. "I've spoken this year in Atlanta, Los Angeles, Arizona."

In Newton Center, Mass., the chairman of the committee's Young Mother Council Service is just as busy. In a telephone interview, Mrs. James H. (Vera) Shaw said she also leads a discussion group of young faculty wives at Harvard, where her husband is a professor of nutrition at the dental school.

"I think there's a turning of the tide," she said, "a shared enjoyment of family life, a commitment to family and to each other that overshadows personal, materialistic things and academic life."

"Families are planning more time together — it's part of this outdoor kick," Mrs. Shaw said.

Among the questions she gets during council service meetings are "How can I plan family playtime and still keep my individuality?" and "How can we have happy mealtimes and good nutrition, too?"

She described one young mother's plan for a special family night. Each week a different member of the family chooses the menu, but instead of eating out, they cook and eat the meal at home. The young mother said the food is better tasting and better nutritionally.

You might enjoy using canned salmon in a stuffing for fish fillet rollups that are to be poached, steamed or baked.

Chapter Officers Named At Meet

The Gamma Delta Chapter of ESA met at the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Sheppard Thursday. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Rubelle Goin.

The following officers were nominated and elected for 1978-1979: Hester Latham, president; Suzanne Leis, vice president; Frances Cassick, secretary; Rubelle Goin, treasurer; and Ruth Forrest, parlimentarian.

Alpha Omega chapter extended a invitation to meet with them for brunch at Three Steers on Saturday morning in celebration of ESA 50th year Founder's Day.

The Gamma Delta chapter contributed $25 to the ESA Disaster Fund. Five dollars was given to the Pitt County Association for Retarded Citizens. Mrs. Goin will be the delegate to the state convention to be held in Wilmington.

Installation of new officers will be held at a local restaurant May 18.

Surrounded

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — U.N. peacekeeping forces have surrounded a band of about 50 heavily-armed Palestinian guerrillas that slipped through U.N. lines in southern Lebanon and occupied positions abandoned by Israeli troops, U.N. sources reported today.

U.N. officials have been negotiating with the radical Palestinians since they were discovered Saturday but the guerrillas have refused to leave, the sources said.

French, Senegalese and Swedish troops in the U.N. force ringed an area seven miles east of the port city of Tyre after the guerrillas were spotted, the sources said.

The leader of the guerrillas claimed his men did not violate the U.N. ban on armed irregulars crossing U.N. lines. He said his men had been in the area for 45 days, and he regrouped them east of Tyre when Israeli troops completed the third phase of a partial withdrawal in southern Lebanon two weeks ago.

The sources said the trapped guerrillas are members of a radical Palestinian movement whose leaders have vowed to cross U.N. lines to attack Israeli forces still in Lebanon.

Califano's Gatherers Of Information

ATLANTA (AP) — Social Security employees in North Carolina have been used to gather information for federal Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano in the dispute between HEW and the University of North Carolina over desegregation of UNC's 16-campus system, according to a published report.

Workers paid from Social Security trust funds were ordered to monitor public reaction in the news media to the threatened cutoff of some federal funds to the UNC system, the report said.

The UNC Board of Governors and HEW finally reached agreement last week on a desegregation plan, settling the decade-long dispute.

Social Security executives in North Carolina and in the Atlanta regional headquarters were called on in March and again in April for priority reports dealing with the desegregation dispute, the Atlanta Journal-Constitution said Sunday.

It attributed its information to unidentified Social Security sources.

In a telephone interview from his home Sunday, regional Social Security Commissioner Gordon Sherman said Social Security executives, with offices in nearly every major city, routinely provide newspaper clippings to HEW in Washington.

"We've always collected news items for HEW," Sherman said. "We are the only part of the agency that has local offices in every large city. So if there are any items of interest to the HEW we clip and send them in.

"Because this (the North Carolina dispute) was a sensitive issue, Califano asked us to expedite them," Sherman said.

The salaries of the Social Security executives come from both the trust funds — money paid by workers for retirement and disability insurance — and general funds appropriated by Congress.

Califano has come in for harsh criticism in North Carolina for HEW's stand on the UNC desegregation issue. State officials have charged that HEW demanded more of them than of other states in the way of desegregation efforts and say the goals for proportional enrollment set by HEW were impossible to meet.

The newspaper said Social Security employees were called on in March to monitor the news media and to report news coverage and comments of public officials to the regional office in Atlanta.

It said they were told to note the reactions of North Carolina's public leaders to Califano's March 22 threat to "defer" certain federal funds unless UNC officials came up with an acceptable desegregation plan.

Again in April, the Social Security system was used to monitor reaction to a meeting of UNC's Board of Governors, according to the newspaper.

Its first information came, the paper said, from a suspicious Social Security executive after the incidents in March. The executive asked to remain anonympous.

Russians May Get CB Radio

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet radio enthusiasts may be able to chatter away over a near equivalent of citizens band radio under a proposal being pushed by hobbyists and a Moscow Communist Youth League newspaper.

The proposal, published recently in the newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda, calls for a CB-style radio system that would be available even for children to use. The paper said its proposal could help spread interest in electronics, while curbing unauthorized "radio hooligans" who now appropriate radio channels for themselves in violation of Soviet law.

If Soviet CB does come into existence, it is likely to rely heavily on home-built equipment. Sets in automobiles probably will be rare. But it will let many radio hobbyists get on the air for the first time, while providing a more constructive outlet for the energies of the current-day "hooligans."

These unlicensed operators broadcasting rock music and irreverent commentary under such callsigns as "The King," "The Lord" and "The Knight," have been interfering for years with regular radio programs and with emergency communications.

Some of the "hooligans" also have relayed foreign radio stations, including the Voice of America, for others in their neighborhoods.

The Komsomolskaya Pravda proposal by Nikolai Dombkovsky did not use the term "citizens band," but the arrangement he described is close to the American model. Soviet operators would be limited to about the same four-watt power permitted American hobbyists, and would be restricted to a special frequency range.

Also as in America, Soviet CB licenses would apparently be easier to obtain than those issued to full-fledged amateur radio operators. In both Russia and the United States, "ham" operators need to pass stiff examinations in electronics and telegraphic code.

One difference between Dombkovsky's proposal and the American system is that Soviet CBers would be restricted to a frequency band just above the range of an ordinary AM radio. This would provide much less opportunity for long-distance "skip" communications than the wider band reserved for American hobbyists.

Granny, 75, Is Avid Backpacker

CHELSEA, Mich. (AP) — Two years ago Mildred Smith got most of her exercise pushing a grocery cart around a supermarket.

Today, the 75-year-old widow bowls, swims, plays tennis and works out at a gym. And that's just so she can stay in shape for her favorite sport — backpacking.

The retired schoolteacher just returned from a hike into the Grand Canyon, a trip that took her over a tortuous 40-mile track that began in knee-deep snow and ended in the arid valley of the Colorado River.

Mrs. Smith enlisted her teenage grandson and a few of his friends as trailmates for the seven-day trip. It was their second hike down the canyon. On last year's trip, however, they took the easy way by walking down a well-worn mule trail.

The second trip was rougher: "I wore hiking boots but they don't have brakes on them. My toes jammed up in front and in time I lost all my toenails," said Mrs. Smith.

"If the boys hadn't been so good I'd probably be sitting on a rock out there now," she said. "They helped carry my pack over the worst of it."

The youngsters took foam pads to cushion their sleeping bags. Mrs. Smith didn't need one.

"By nightfall every day, I was so bushed I'd just lay my sleeping bag on a rock and fall right off," she said.

Mrs. Smith taught school in Ypsilanti for years then moved with her husband to an Indiana farm after their four children were grown. When her husband died four years ago, she moved into the Methodist Home for the Aged in this community west of Detroit. She now works every day as a volunteer, teaching first graders how to read.

She said her love for backpacking began two years ago when she first saw the Grand Canyon with her daughter and family. After watching the backpackers, Mrs. Smith decided: "That's the way to go."

When she got home, she bought a backpack, boots and a down-filled sleeping bag. Then she started hiking along a one-mile nature trail.

Mrs. Smith asked her grandson and his friends to join her on the Waterloo Trail near Chelsea. They covered 50 miles in four days with the boys setting up the tents and making the meals.

"I just dragged myself along, but I liked it," Mrs. Smith said.

"Backpacking has to be explained in poetry," she said. "Someday I'll write that poem, then you'll understand."

Sitting-Around Not For Him

No one who knows him would expect Dr. Leo Jenkins to retire from his position as chancellor of East Carolina University to a life of meditating and fishing.

Jenkins has been the center of too many storms for that and it was known that he was considering several possibilities once he stepped down as chancellor, ending 31 years of service to the university.

Gov. Jim Hunt made it official that Jenkins would remain active in service to North Carolina. The governor, who attended commencement ceremonies here Friday, announced that Jenkins will serve as special advisor to the governor on "economic growth and balanced development."

Jenkins has accepted the job and the governor said he would coordinate the policies of various agencies concerned with this area. His special concern will be economic development in small cities and rural areas.

The governor said he expected Jenkins to bring the same spirit to the new position that "you have seen through the years."

He cited Jenkins' "ability to motivate us to do our very best."

This new position should be eminently suited to Leo Jenkins' abilities. Through his close association with the eastern section of the state Jenkins knows the problems of smaller cities and rural sections well. We expect him to approach his new position with his endless enthusiasm and energy.

More Of Us Today, And We're Older

Not only are there more of us in the United States — 216.8 million as of last July 1 — but as a group we are a little older.

The U. S. Census Bureau says the median age of the population stands at 29.4. There are as many people above that age as below and it is the first time since 1960 that the median age as stood at that point.

If you are in the upper half, 29.4 years doesn't sound all that bad, but the rising median age has implications for government, politicians and business.

Tri-County Career Center

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — When isolated, rural, and low income conditions mean some public school students get short-changed, why not join several counties together to provide a more elaborate program?

That is the simple suggestion put forth by school officials from Chowan, Gates, And Perquimans counties who are asking the State Board of Education to help set up a Tri-County Career Center.

This would be the first time that three local school units cutting across county lines joined together in a central program for all students in the area. Other vocational training programs elsewhere are operating across school district boundaries, but none across such a large geographical area.

The three counties are in northeastern North Carolina, bounded on the South by Albermarle Sound, on the west by the Chowan River, and on the east by Pasquotank County where the more urban Elizabeth City setting can provide a more suitable school course.

But for these three, the largest town is Edenton.

Too Small

"Located in a rural, sparsely populated, and economically depressed area...the counties experience difficulty in providing advanced academic and vocational courses...each county is scarcely large enough to provide a comprehensive high school curriculum in these subject areas," a report to the State Board of Education notes.

The board approved funds to study the proposal in depth, noting that the idea does not run contrary to general policy.

There are some skeptics who see the proposal as another move toward more school consolidation in the state. Such cross-county-line mergers signal the possibility of future efforts to merge school districts in their entirety, based on numbers of students rather than political subdivisions. Some experts contend the state ought to have fewer than 100 school districts.

There are presently 145 local school units, with many areas still having separate city and county systems. In several such instances, the communities are strongly opposed to any moves toward dissolving lines and merging school districts.

BILL NOBLITT

The Tri-County proposal seeks to build in a system to guarantee wide community participation in planning and operating the system, and to limit the move to a career center — not to all public school programs.

No Merger

Local citizens have discussed the idea of a Tri-County High School but have rejected that in favor of a plan which will enable high school students to enjoy the multitudes of additional course offerings...through a joint career center. At the same time, this would enable each locality to maintain its important sense of community," the board was told.

Thus, each school system would keep its own identity and close contact with parents and community.

Actually, the board was told in the recommendation study, advanced academic and vocational offerings in the three school systems are "perhaps equal to many units in the state" but still far short of what could be achieved through "larger concentrations of students...to produce a larger teacher allotment and course offering.

"It is feared by area residents, however, that larger concentrations of people will result in the loss of individual student identity...."and important community relationships.

Limiting the proposal to a career-vocational training center, however, will still allow a more complete study course for about 1,000 students, and allow the area to meet the needs of new industries seeking employees.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Pat Derian's Real Clout

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The State Department's Office of Human Rights has now reached such policymaking eminence that a protest from its boss, Pat Derian, raised the possibility of postponing Vice President Walter Mondale's visit to Manila last week.

Actually, Assistant Secretary of State Derian fought hard not just to postpone Mondale's trip, because it came so close to the much-criticized presidential election there, but to cancel it altogether.

"We wanted to postpone it to July," a top aide in Miss Derian's office told us. "Pat kept asking, why in God's name does he have to go to the Philippines anyway?"

In the end, Mondale went as scheduled but first received a one-hour briefing from Miss Derian on how to handle the delicate human rights question raised by allegations of massive electoral fraud by President Ferdinand Marcos.

The expanding policymaking eminence of Miss Derian's Human Rights Office is raising some prominent eyebrows on grounds that human rights activists are jeopardizing other U.S. foreign policy objectives, particularly among conservative and rightwing governments with intimate ties to the U.S.

Linked to this concern about ever wider ramifications of President Carter's justly praised human rights initiative is the switch from loud to quiet administration handling of non-human rights in the Soviet Union and other Communist states.

A case in point was Secretary of State Vance's recent mission to Moscow on strategic arms limitation (SALT) talks. Vance spokesman Hodding Carter was permitted to inform the press that Vance privately complained about Russia's African adventures in his talks with Soviet leaders. But Carter was not authorized to tell the press that Vance also privately brought up human rights with Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

President Carter's human rights operatives are embarrassed by this dramatic change to an iceberg policy on Soviet non-human rights after the gaudy publicity Mr. Carter deliberately invoked early in his administration by inviting Soviet dissidents into the White House. They are claiming now that they can achieve more by concealed pressure, a claim that so far defies objective testing.

But in the non-Communist world, the unconcealed emphasis on human rights is making troubling noises across Latin America and South Asia. Using the clout of presidential directive No. 30, secretly issued to government agencies by the National Security Council on Feb. 17, State's Human Rights Office has systematically rejected almost every single request from U.S. allies for such routine civil law enforcement equipment as tear gas, .38 caliber pistols for police forces and handcuffs.

What makes this secret presidential directive so virulent, in the view of career diplomats privately fighting the entangling web of human rights restrictions, is this: Miss Derian's office is using it to reject requests, no matter how routine, even from countries such as Singapore never remotely charged with a "consistent pattern of gross violations" of human rights.

The presidential directive officially inserts human rights into every policy decision. It orders American representatives on all international lending institutions, such as the Asian Development Bank, to vote against most loans for countries with a single human rights blemish. The dire implications of this new presidential directive are now being quietly tested throughout the government.

Strength For Today

HIGHEST AMBITION

Ambition can be a highly motivating factor in human life, but it must always be directed toward proper goals.

What is the goal worthy of a Christian? Volumes might be written about this, but the whole matter might be expressed in a few words. The ambition of every Christian man and woman should be to fulfill the spiritual destiny God has appointed. We are to live every day so that at the journey's end we may hear these six thrilling words being spoken: "Well done, good and faithful servant."

Jesus spoke about a man's gaining the whole world and losing his soul. We read obituaries of people who have held high positions and have left fortunes, and often we know that these people, in spite of their glamorous careers, were huge failures in the sight of God.

So we should all strive for the six words: "Well done, good and faithful servant." To gain this simple approval is to gain much more than the world can give.

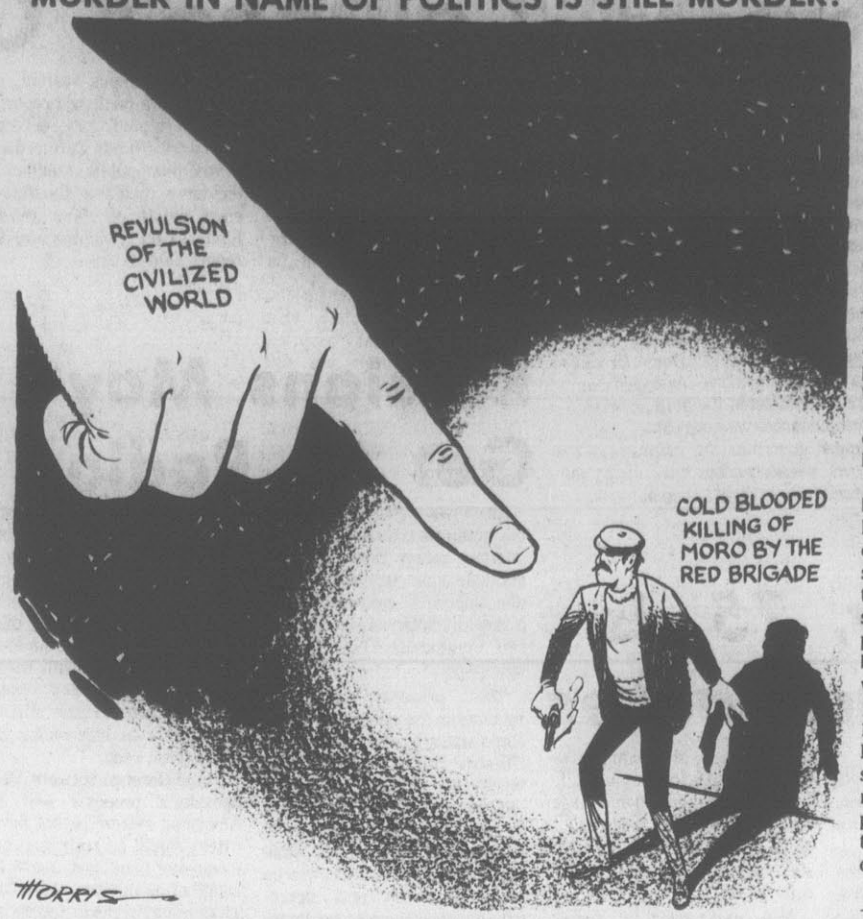
MURDER IN NAME OF POLITICS IS STILL MURDER!



By ART BUCHWALD

Why I Like The Horses

WASHINGTON — I watched the Kentucky Derby on May 6 along with millions of other people and really enjoyed it. During one of the breaks for commercials I tried to figure out why I like horse racing more than any other sport on television. Then it dawned on me. Horses can't talk.

In the age of TV sports hype, we are constantly barraged by athletes sounding off. Whether it's boxing, football, basketball, baseball, tennis or golf, there has to be controversy or the viewers will turn off their sets.

The sports announcer is always shoving a microphone down some athlete's throat and asking, "Doesn't it really get you mad that Wilmot Slobovik is getting twice as much money as you are?" Or, "Champ, you haven't shown anything since your last fight with the Liechtenstein Mattress, Helmut Flug. Are you washed up or just coasting until you can get a $15 million gate?" Or, "Tommy, the Yankees paid a million dollars for you to win a series for them. Now people are saying you have a glass arm. Don't you consider yourself an utter failure?"

But they can't do that to a horse. They can put the microphone up to his teeth or in his ear and he isn't going to say a word. He'll never knock the other horses in a race; he'll refuse to blame his jockey or put down his trainer when he loses. He'll just look the sportscaster in the eye and keep his mouth shut.

A horse couldn't care less whether he gets a good press or a bad press. Money means nothing to him. He knows he won't get any more eats whether he wins every race or comes in last. He likes to run but it's not the biggest thing in his life.

ART BUCHWALD

Horses never complain about officials. They don't ask to be traded to Los Angeles and they don't threaten to play out their options if management doesn't give them a duplex stable and a brand-new Cadillac van.

When you watch television you never see one horse hitting another in the chops, or knocking down another horse when the judges aren't looking.

A horse never holds up his hoof to indicate he's No. 1 when the TV cameras are on him.

He never breaks photographers' cameras, nor does he lose his cool when the fans start booing him.

Noble and graceful, he keeps his head high whether he's running in the Kentucky Derby or a claiming race in Cheyenne, Wyo. The horse is the ideal athlete — the last one left still unspoiled by all the TV hoopla and money that most sports are now associated with.

There may be jockeys, trainers and owners who will spout off when they see a TV red light, but the racing horse is the only athlete, who doesn't bore you.

Although Affirmed won the Kentucky Derby, he took the victory in his stride. Alydar lost it, but he showed no hard feelings toward the winner. Believe It, who came in third, happily went to his paddock refusing to speak to Howard Cosell.

I was proud of all the horses who raced that day. They behaved with dignity and refuted the American belief that "Winning is everything." They were, if you'll forgive the pun, "a credit to their race."

Other Editors Say
Rebuttal Needed

(Shelby Daily Star)

They say North Carolina's image is suffering in the nation, perhaps even in the world.

And some of "them" wouldn't have it any other way, because it serves their purposes too well.

"They" would paint our state racist and backward. They would point to the Joan Little, Wilmington 10 and Charlotte 3 cases and to the University of North Carolina System desegregatopm instance as examples of Tarheels' unwillingness to join the mainstream.

"They" would ignore the poignant scene on national television in which a white kid from the back country of North Carolina and a black kid from Philadelphia embraced each other in the euphoria of a basketball tournament victory. "They" would ignore the North Carolina Symphony's triumph in Washington this year, in New York last year. "They" would ignore the fact that Joan Little was acquitted of murder in this state.

And "they" have the support, in the UNC instance at least, of Joe Califano, the secretary of Health, Education and Welfare. Even if unwitting, Mr. Califano's machinations on UNC desegregation — the word is a misnomer, since UNC is already fully desegregated — lend credence to the slander that has poured our way.

What "they" are really doing, however, is polarizing North Carolina again after significant gains in racial harmony and justice. "They" are doing so in order to win their point on one particular case, and "they" don't care what happens in other cases or after their case is completed.

North Carolina has the capacity and the will to engage in self-examination. We talk about ourselves, and we attempt to resolve our shortcomings. We don't need self-serving individuals and groups to attempt to destroy us without caring about us. It's high time North Carolina fought back. The UNC System, with an amazing amount of support throughout the state, is leading the way. The rest of the state should do no less. We must right our wrongs as they are found, but we need not endure two wrongs.

Local Option Year?

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Backers of liquor-by-the-drink are talking with confidence about their bill's chances for passage when it comes before the state House next month. But behind that, there is some concern about just what could happen if it doesn't pass.

The local-option mixed-drink bill, which cleared the Senate last year, represents the best chances for legalizing liquor sales by the glass rather than the bottle since 1973, when a statewide referendum was approved by the General Assembly — and rejected overwhelmingly by the voters.

Wets were considered about 15 votes shy of approval in the House last year when they shrewdly sent it back to committee to wait for 1978 and a possibly better climate. Now they hope the difference is down to one or two votes.

But if the bill doesn't succeed — and even the most ardent supporters admit they still need a few more votes — momentum for the issue is likely to be seriously damaged for 1979, when it is certain to be raised again.

"Certainly this is the best year for it to pass," one legislative leader who asked not to be named said recently. "It'll be a pretty serious setback if it fails now."

Henry Brown, a government specialist for the North Carolina Citizens Association who is doing the head-counting for proponents, acknowledged as much in an interview last week.

"It probably would hurt. I would hope it wouldn't, but it probably would," he said. "But eventually, we're going to have mixed drinks."

If mixed-drink legislation is not successful this time around, however, proponents think time will eventually prove to be on their side and that other factors are likely to overcome a temporary falter.

Legislative reapportionment will come up in 1980, and many observers are predicting that metropolitan delegations will grow in size, leading to a significant shift in power from rural to urban areas. Rep. H. Parks Helms, D-Mecklenburg, a prime mover behind the current local-option drink bill, figures that would be good for his side.

"If they don't go along with this local-option bill, there is the real possibility that after reapportionment, this legislature would simply enact a statewide bill," Helms said in a recent interview. "They would not have control over their own towns then, like they would under this bill."

The current bill would allow each municipiality with an Alcohol Beverage Control system to decide for itself whether to legalize mixed-drink sales.

"They'd be better off with a local-option bill, and they'd better take it," Brown said bluntly. "That's not a threat, but they would be better off."

Rev. Coy Privette, the Kannapolis Baptist who annually leads the opposition, discounts that theory. "Of course we faced this in 1970," he said. "But you know, we always manage to pick up some support from these cities, and we'll keep doing it."

One thing Privette is certain about is that a defeat of the bill in the upcoming legislative session will not put an end to the issue.

"You know the Bible says: 'Don't grow weary of well-doing,'" he said recently. "Our

Pondering Economic Numbers

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — In the statistical entrails of the economic numbers examined each month by the federal government are some revealing oddities, perhaps omens of things to come.

Like the employment figures for the first quarter of the year, which improved while the total output of goods and services declined, an unexpected, probably inexplainable, and maybe unlikely occurrence.

Does it mean that the nation's unemployment rate, which declined to 6 percent, the lowest in 3½ years, was a statistical fluke? Or that employment really didn't rise by 535,000, as the Labor Department said?

Or does it mean perhaps that industry decided to gear up for a big surge in this, the second quarter, partly in an effort to make up for earlier, weatherinduced downtime?

It's a puzzle okay, and some economists are no more confident of what it means than a witch doctor trying to extract meaning from a pile of chicken bones.

But two things at least must be considered probabilities: A second-quarter jobless rate rise; or a rise in Gross National Product. One or the other. As it is, the two are out of balance.

So, some say, was the latest Producer Index for Finished Goods, which rose a 1.3 percent in April, a sharp worsening over prices reported for March. Or if not the index, then the popular interpretation of it.

The popular use of the index, as a quick fix on retail prices to come, admittedly is a source of frustration to the professionals, who are much more cautious in their usage. But it does happen.

Consumers, for example, concentrated on the sharp rise in the price of foods at the finished stage of processing. But professionals put just as much emphasis on jewelry prices.

Jewelry prices? Yes. They soared. They alone accounted for about 30 percent of the increase in the Finished Goods Price Index, Robert Stein of the Bureau of Labor Statistics told Congress.

It means the overall increase would have been kept below 1 percent, bad as that is, if jewelry, hardly as essential as food to the well-being of consumers, had been removed temporarily from the calculations.

Through all this, consumers seem to be putting up more than just a brave front. They're also putting up their money — borrowed though it is — or they were in March, when the latest statistics were compiled.

In that month more installment credit was granted than in any other month in history, some $4.07 billion, a good deal of it for automobiles and for those mysterious purposes categorized as personal loans.

Some credit analysts are now concerned that consumers have reached their limit and that, much as they might be willing to buy, they'll just have to face the reality of not being able to do so.

Hunt Says Achievements Are Refuting 'Backward' Theory

PM-Graduations,300
By The Associated Press

Achievements of the University of North Carolina refute the theory that the state has become "benighted and backward," Gov. Jim Hunt told university graduates at commencement Sunday.

"You graduate at a time when North Carolina's hard-earned and priceless reputation as a progressive state is being brought into some question," the governor said in prepared remarks to the graduates, their families and friends at Chapel Hill.

"But I don't accept any theory that North Carolina has been backsliding into a climate of racism, injustice and indifference to the needs of her people," he said. "And I think that those who propound this theory have too little understanding of the recent history of our state and too little faith in the good sense and the good will of the people of North Carolina.

"Those theorists take a few current events and try to prove that North Carolina has been transformed — suddenly if not magically — into a benighted and backward Southern state."

Hunt was apparently referring to criticism of North Carolina because of the Wilmington 10 and Joan Little cases and a dispute with the federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare over desegregation of the 16-campus UNC system.

The governor said the agreement reached last week between the UNC Board of Governors and HEW Secretary Joseph Califano in the desegregation dispute is welcome news to supporters of higher education.

Meanwhile, graduates of the UNC Law School at Chapel Hill were told the Wilmington 10 case may set the "outer limits of justice" in North Carolina.

Dr. Lawrence Tribe, a law professor at Harvard University, said during a special convocation speech that people who helped the Wilmington 10 have been denounced as radicals and outside agitators. But he said North Carolinians and the state's newspapers have given the case needed public attention.

He said the "truest test of a legal system is not how it does on average, to the unobjectionable defendant or the unremarkable plaintiff, but whether it grants the fullest measure of the fairest process that is due, even to the least popular of its citizens."

For example, an appeal is in the works to reverse a human rights veto of routine police equipment for Singapore (officially described by the State Department as "free from corruption"). In the case of similar rejections for Taiwan and South Korea, weeks have been consumed in the appeals' process. One appeal went to the desk of Vance himself, who bucked it back to Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher, top human rights coordinator. Adjudication of Miss Derian's decrees are consuming an inordinate amount of bureaucratic time.

What is happening to U.S. allies in Asia afflicts longtime U.S. allies in Latin America at least as sharply. Meanwhile, the Communist world, which is generally beyond the commercial or political reach of the U.S., is untouched by the unpublished presidential directive.

This trend in Mr. Carter's human rights crusade is seldom publicly criticized within the administration. Terence Todman, who is about to leave his post as Assistant Secretary of State for Latin American affairs, did raise pointed questions about it in a New York speech three days before the Feb. 17 presidential directive. But for warning against human rights moves "without calculating the likely reaction and responses" abroad, he was rebuked by high officials at State.

That shows the clout of Pat Derian, the sincere but total advocate of making the U.S. the conscience of the non-Communist world.

GOV. HUNT VISITS — Following ECU's graduation Friday, Governor Jim Hunt stopped on campus to commend participants in the Pitt-Greenville Community Schools Program for "renewing our commitment to provide a means of public education." The Community Schools Act, endorsed by the governor and passed in the General Assembly in 1977, is designed to provide increased citizen participation in public schools and make school facilities more available to the public. Currently, the program offers a variety of activities in such things as karate training, exercise classes and drama workshops. Arts and crafts will be offered in several schools this summer. people sometimes get tired of fighting it, but we know it's going to be a perennial question."

Privette will be paid to lobby against the drink bill when the General Assembly convenes May 31 and the House takes up the measure. Privette gave up his ministry at a Kannapolis Baptist church when he ran for governor two years ago.

Last week he was appointed assistant director of the Christian Action League, a group he once headed as president. Privette, who is running for the state House from Kannapolis as a Republican, said he will work part-time at first on a per-day basis.

He will decide whether to go full-time after the fall election, depending on whether he is able to unseat one of the three incumbent Democrat representatives from his district.

Under the agreement, Privette said, he will take over the full-time executive director's job in three years when the current director retires.

THE BODIES STAY

TORRINGTON, Conn. (AP) — Community opposition apparently has buried a proposal to evict several bodies from a 19th-century cemetery to make room for a parking lot. Alfred Waterfall, a local bank president who made the suggestion, says "it's time the idea was dropped."

CLEAN-UP EFFORT — A junk vehicle is removed from the pond area off Mumford Road during Saturday clearance project by personnel of the U.S. Army Reserve's 398th Supply Co. Sheltered Workshop Is Asking For 5 Vehicles

The Eastern Carolina Sheltered Workshop is requesting five vehicles from UMTA to replace high mileage vehicles and open a new route for client services.

These vehicles will also be used for the Senior Citizens Nutrition Program. They will be used by the Workshop for recreation, daily client pickup, medical transportation, shopping and health services.

The Workshop will be responsible for financing 20 percent of the total cost. One of the vehicles will have a lift for wheelchair clients. They will be equipped with air conditioning and two-way radios.

Clients are from Pitt, Martin and Beaufort Counties.

The purchase and use of these vehicles and equipment is subject to the terms of the financial assistance contracts between the N. C. Dept. of Transportation and the U. S. Dept. of Transportation and between the local Sheltered Workshop and the N. C. Dept. of Transportation. This project will be carried out if the City of Greenville and Pitt County both approve. The City of Greenville helped plan to meet these needs. This project has been reviewed and approved by the A-95 Clearinghouse.

Any written comments on this project will be appreciated as to the service that has been given to the Workshops clients and senior citizens. These comments should be submitted to Howard G. Dawkins, Exec. Director, E. Carolina Sheltered Workshop, Greenville, N. C. 27834.

Allot More To Transportation

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House committee has approved considerably more money for mass transit and highway programs over the next four years than President Carter had requested.

The legislation passed by the House Public Works and Transportation Committee on Friday would provide nearly $66 billion for such programs. The Carter administration had requested about $50 billion.

The bill also would give states more flexibility in shifting funds from one kind of project to another. The House bill contains about $45 billion for highways, $2 billion for safety and $18 billion for mass transit projects.

Lear Didn't Want To Learn The Meaning Of Word 'Impossible'

By TOM GARDNER
Associated Press Writer

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Jim Greenwood remembers once telling multimillionaire inventor William Lear that he should go back to school to learn the meaning of the word "impossible."

The reply: "I don't want to."

"He felt that life could be met with confidence and the supreme feeling that anything could be done and any challenge could be met," said Greenwood, vice president of corporate affairs for Gates Learjet Corp. in Wichita, Kan.

Lear, who died of leukemia here at age 75 on Sunday, represented the "true Horatio Alger story," said Greenwood in a telephone interview Sunday night. "I don't think there's any other man who reflected the true American pioneering spirit."

Lear, whose fortune was estimated at $75 million, pioneered the small corporate jet which took his name. He also invented the car radio, the eight-track stereo and the autopilot, which enables an airplane to fly a set course without the manual steering of a pilot.

In all he held about 150 patents.

Lear thrived on work but also had a reputation at play. He was known for his parties, his gambling binges and his flamboyance.

His death interrupted his most recent transportation dream — a seven-passenger, 400 mph turboprop plane built mostly of plastic.

The one major project to stymie Lear was the steam-powered car. His effort to develop a steam turbine engine for cars and buses, begun in a period of boredom and depression, cost him about $17 million. A prototype automobile was made but never put into production.

WM. P. LEAR

Lear's drive to succeed was largely shaped by the economic deprivations of his childhood in Hannibal, Mo. At age 12, Lear prepared a "blueprint" to overcome those hardships.

"I resolved first to make enough money so I'd never be stopped from finishing anything," Lear said several years ago. "Second, that to accumulate money in a hurry — and I was in a hurry — I'd have to invent something that people wanted, and third, that if I ever was going to stand on my own feet, I'd have to leave home."

At the age of 16, Lear joined the Navy, where he was a radio operator during World War I. He said he gave up the Navy after deciding it would "take too long to become an admiral."

Lear founded his first company, the Radio Coil and Wire Corp., in 1926. He traded it in 1930 for one-third interest in the Galvin Manufacturing Co. of Chicago. After Lear developed the car radio, Galvin Manufacturing became the Motorola Corp.

Lear is survived by his fourth wife, Moya Marie Olsen, daughter of Ole Olsen of the Olsen and Johnson vaudeville team; six children and seven grandchildren. Funeral services are scheduled here Wednesday, with cremation at Masonic Memorial Gardens.

Report More Rings On Saturn

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Astronomers at California Institute of Technology and Hale Observatories have discovered three additional rings surrounding the planet Uranus, bringing the total to eight.

The scientists said one of the rings is relatively broad and eccentric, comparable to a lopsided hula hoop. The width of the ring apparently varies considerably, narrowing near the planet and widening farther away, the scientists said. The observations were made April 10 in Chile by Eric Persson of Hale Observatories.

The geographic area of Afghanistan is 253,861 square miles — slightly smaller than Texas.

Disaster Loans Are Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — Victims of storms and floods this year on the West Coast and in the Northeast and Midwest will be getting about $758 million in federal disaster loans.

The House by voice vote on Friday completed action on the disaster loans. The measure now goes to President Carter, who had asked for the money.

The disaster loans have interest rates far below loans on the open market.

Former CIA Director Admits Tactics A Mistake

An AP News Special
By PETER ARNETT
AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) — In the days when the CIA's paramilitary skills were freely in use around the world, he sent the first sabotage teams into North Vietnam.

From those clandestine beginnings grew the intense American bombing of North Vietnam and the commitment of 550,000 U.S. ground troops. The man who admits to starting it all, William Colby, later director of the CIA, now believes it was all a mistake.

In his book published today by Simon & Schuster, "Honorable Men: My Life in the CIA," Colby argues that "whether we would have won or lost," the only way to have sensibly fought the Vietnam war was at the village level as a political struggle against the communists, using only Vietnamese forces.

As CIA station chief in Saigon in 1963, Colby writes of attending a Hawaii conference where plans were discussed to escalate the war. He tried to convince then Secretary of Defense Robert MacNamara that the sabotage teams sent into North Vietnam had disappeared quickly from radio contact and possibly were captured "and that putting such teams into the north did not and would not work."

Colby wrote that MacNamara "listened to me with a cold look and he rejected my advice. The desire to put pressure onto North Vietnam prevailed, and there and then the United States military started the planning and activity that would escalate finally to full-scale air attacks."

Colby criticizes the late President John F. Kennedy for going along with "what I still consider the worst mistake of the war, the American-sponsored overthrow of President Ngo Dinh Diem," and writes that earlier two "high ranking" United States officials clearly implied that the CIA should assassinate Ngo Dinh Nhu, Diem's brother and opponent of American plans for reform.

The one-time clandestine operative came home to head the CIA in 1973 and was soon involved in a major congressional investigation of the organization. He was fired by President Gerald Ford as the result, he writes "of the tug-of-war between those who believe the agency's activities must be kept totally secret and those who want the American people to understand and appreciate the workings of the CIA."

Colby is one of the latter.

WASHINGTON (AP) — An ex-CIA director believes current and former employees of the spy agency should be punished for disclosing secrets. But an impartial judge should first decide whether they revealed a real secret or a cover up of wrongdoing.

William Colby said Sunday punishment was needed because, "You can't run an intelligence service if every junior officer decided which secret to keep."

Colby said on CBS television's "60 Minutes" that he favors a "very limited law" applied only to CIA employees who take an oath of secrecy.

Last week the former head of the CIA's Angola task force broke his oath of secrecy and spoke out against the Angola operation. John Stockwell contended he was released from his oath because he learned of activities that went counter to what agency officials told him.

Stockwell, who has written a book about the Angola episode, contends that "blundering stupidity" by the agency led to massive Cuban and Soviet intervention in Angola.

Colby, who also has written a book on his life in the CIA, responded, "Well, that's great rationalization because I'm sure if Mr. Stockwell joined CIA he read enough spy stories and novels and other accounts of the invisible government and all the other books written in the early '60s about CIA that he knew roughly what kind of an organization he was joining.

"And if he says that suddenly it doesn't turn out to be the Boy Scouts, I think he was asking a little much. And he's not relieved of that obligation."

Colby said Stockwell violated his pledge to the CIA by not submitting his book to the agency for review before publication.

First Indications Castro Has Ambitions In Middle East

An AP News Analysis
By HUBERT J. ERB
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's casual remark that Cubans are operating in South Yemen is the first indication that Fidel Castro's ambitions have now moved beyond Africa to the Middle East.

A State Department official, who asked not to be identified, estimated that 500 and 600 Cubans are in South Yemen, "some as civilian advisers, some training paramilitary forces."

The Cubans are among more than 1,000 foreign communists, also including Russians and East Germans, who are serving in the Marxist nation, which guards Western shipping lanes to the Red Sea and the Suez Canal from the northern coast of the Gulf of Aden.

The Cuban contingent in South Yemen, which the State Department official said has been there since the early 1970s, was increased earlier this year during the Soviet-Cuban buildup in Ethiopia.

Neither the State Department official nor the president, during a meeting with Hispanic journalists on Friday, made any reference to the strategic importance of the Soviet-Cuban presence on the Arabian Peninsula opposite the Horn of Africa, where they now are operating in strength.

But Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said on Sunday that it "quite clearly indicates the Cubans have become surrogates for mischief in Africa and now the Middle East."

Carter mentioned the Cuban presence in South Yemen as an example of "unnecessary and excessive use of military forces by Castro" overseas, primarily in Africa but "to some degree lately in the Middle East, like in South Yemen."

The State Department has said Cuba has between 38,000 and 39,000 military personnel and 6,000 civilians throughout Africa, including an estimated 17,000 military personnel in Ethiopia.

Report Arrests For Corruption

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — The state minister for administrative reform says authorities have arrested 2,761 government workers in the last 11 months for alleged corruption and bribery.

J.B. Sumarlin told reporters that of the total, 2,315 have been given administrative sanctions, including dismissal and reduction of rank, 313 have been brought to trial and the remaining 133 were still being investigated.

An anti-graft agency was formed by the government last year to fight corruption throughout the nation.

SUPERINTENDENT FOR DAY — Jame Welborn, a junior at Rose High School, sits in the chair of State Superintendent of Public Instruction Craig Phillips as deputy state superintendent Jerome Melton looks on. Miss Welborn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Odell Welborn, became State Superintendent of Public Instruction for a day as part of Youth Involvement Day in Raleigh, May 9 and 10. Other high school students took over the offices of other state officials, including the office of Governor.

Hardest Cases Left For Last

By CYNTHIA MILLS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nine justices of the Supreme Court are procrastinators, just like a lot of other Americans.

They issue opinions at a tortoise-like pace throughout the first seven months of their annual nine-month term.

Then, come mid-May, the avalanche begins. The justices put all their effort into finishing work in time to begin summer vacation in late June or early July.

This year is no different.

In the first 7½ months, the justices ruled on 71 of the cases argued before them. But 101 cases remain to be decided in the next seven weeks.

And, as it often does, the court has left some of the hardest ones for last.

The most highly publicized of these is the "reverse discrimination" case in which Allan Bakke, a white, is challenging a medical school admissions program that reserves a certain number of seats for disadvantaged applicants, almost always minorities.

Constitutional law scholar Anthony Amsterdam, a Stanford University professor who once was a law clerk for Justice Felix Frankfurter, says human nature and a variety of other factors explain why the court often waits until the last minute to finish its work.

"The court like everybody else tends to procrastinate," he said. "But that is compounded in major decisions simply by the fact that it takes longer."

There are more briefs to read and the justices are more likely to be divided, to discuss such cases together more often and to rewrite their opinions and dissents again and again, he said.

The justices also must spend long hours listening to oral arguments on cases from October until April, and only have extra time in May and June for writing their opinions.

Amsterdam said it is possible the court will delay ruling on it until the next term beginning in October, he said.

Perhaps the court's worst year for procrastination was 1972-73, when they issued 15 opinions, including a landmark obscenity ruling, on the last day. The opinions from that one day now make up a full volume of the court's decisions.

More Interest In Army ROTC

FORT MONROE, Va. (AP) — College students around the country are showing renewed interest in Army Reserve Officers Training Corps, says Maj. Gen. Charles C. Rogers, deputy chief of staff for ROTC at the Army's Training and Doctrine Command here.

"Whatever the motive — to receive a commission as second lieutenant in the U.S. Army; to be awarded a merit scholarship; or to develop leadership and management skills — students are enrolling in Army ROTC, which is making a strong comeback," says Rogers.

For the fourth consecutive year, enrollment in Army ROTC programs has shown substantial increase, he reports. Latest nationwide figures show that about 60,000 cadets, approximately 14,000 of whom are women, are taking part in Army ROTC.

More than 6,000 ROTC candidates are expected to be commissioned this year as second lieutenants in the Army.

There are 280 colleges and universities across the country that host Army ROTC programs, plus more than 600 other schools which offer the program through cross-enrollment.

"In the past five years the program has been overhauled and given a new approach," the general says. "For example, the academic curriculum has been thoroughly and thoughtfully revised to meet the needs of today's college students in terms of their field of study and future careers. Emphasis is placed on leadership and managerial skills.

"We provide a stimulating challenge for our students — not just an intellectual challenge but a physical one as well," adds Rogers, noting that one of the most popular programs developed in recent years is Adventure Training.

Adventure Training includes instruction in rubber rafting, mountain climbing, survival training, rappelling and orienteering. Rappelling is controlled descent down a rope from high lofts such as mountains, cliffs and helicopters. Orienteering is a relatively new sport that takes boredom out of cross-country running. The objective is for the participants, known as orienteers, to navigate themselves over rugged and mapped-out terrain with the aid of a topographical map and compass.

Another attraction of Army ROTC is the scholarship program, Rogers points out. The four-, three-and two-year merit scholarships are available to qualified students on a competitive basis. These scholarships pay the entire tuition, plus the cost of textbooks, laboratory fees and other education expenses. In addition, ROTC scholarships provide a living allowance of as much as $1,000 a year, each year the scholarship is in effect.

The FARM SCENE

By L. GAYLON AMBROSE
Associate Agricultural Extension Agent

The recent heavy rainfall has caused many problems for Pitt County farmers. Unfavorable weather conditions have delayed transplanting of tobacco, delayed planting of peanuts and in some cases delayed corn planting.

An additional problem faced by corn producers is the increased need for layby fertilization with nitrogen on many corn fields.

Nitrogen can be lost from the plant rooting profile by two processes, leaching and denitrification. Leaching occurs on sandy textured soils, soils with good internal drainage. A deep sandy soil is one that has no increase in clay texture until a depth of 18-20 inches in the soil profile. In the deep sandy soils the nitrogen can be washed down with the rain until it is located below the rooting depth and therefore is unavailable to the young plants.

In these cases denitrification occurs in soils with somewhat poor to poor internal drainage. In these soils the plow layer may remain saturated several days following heavy rains. Denitrification occurs under these saturat conditions. When denitrification occurs the nitrate nitrogen changes to nitrogen gas and escapes into the atmosphere where it is no longer available to the plants.

The farmers who applied all of their nitrogen at planting are more likely going to have to make some additional applications of nitrogen. Farmers who split their nitrogen application and apply the most of it at layby (or after the recent rains) will not be affected as much.

Another factor that makes the decision more difficult is the source of nitrogen. In general, nitrogen in the nitrate form is lost to leaching and denitrification. Primary nitrogen sources for corn include anhydrous ammonia, ammonium nitrate and ures.

(The liquid nitrogen solution used by many growers made up of about one-half ammonium nitrate and one-half urea.) In general, the nitrogen in the soil goes through a reaction from ammonium to nitrite, to nitrate. In general, the ammonium is not subject to leaching or denitrification. Nitrites and nitrates are subject to leaching and denitrification. What makes it more complicated is that the reaction (or conversion) takes place under the temperatures that have been cool. With the cooler temperatures the conversion from ammonium to nitrates should have taken place at a slow rate. In reference to temperature and date of application, growers that applied their nitrogen fertilizer in late March and early April, are more likely to have to make adjustments. There was a period of warm weather in late March and early April in which the nitrogen fertilizer converted to nitrate nitrogen and as a result was more subject to leaching and denitrification.

Farmers who applied all of their nitrogen prior to the heavy additional nitrogen should be added to corn to replace the nitrogen lost as a result of leaching or denitrification. It may take up to 100 pounds of additional nitrogen on the deep sand and 40 to 80 pounds of additional nitrogen on the poorly drained soils.

Any form of nitrogen may be used as long as application techniques are proper. Anhydreous ammonia can be knifed in, ammonium nitrate or urea can be applied with a sidedressing rig.

If all of the nitrogen was applied prior to the heavy rains, evaulate your situation. Additional nitrogen may make the difference between a profitable corn crop and one which is not.

Soviet Dissident Has Offered Innocent Plea

By SETH MYDANS
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — Yuri Orlov, founder of the Soviet Union's best known dissident group, pleaded innocent today to charges of "anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda," Tass reported.

The Soviet news agency said questioning of Orlov began after he made his plea at the opening of his trial in a Moscow courthouse. His wife and two sons were admitted to the courtroom, but his friends and foreign reporters were barred.

Tass said Orlov agreed with the facts stated in his indictment but not with the interpretation placed on them.

Two founders of the Georgian branch of Orlov's also went on trial today in Tbilisi, but Tass said they pleaded guilty to the charges of anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda. Like Orlov, they could be sentenced to seven years in a labor camp plus five years "internal" exile to a remote area of the Soviet Union.

Orlov, a 53-year-old physicist, founded a group to monitor and publicize the Soviet government's failure to comply with the human rights provisions of the Helsinki Agreement. He was arrested in February 1977 and held incommunicado for 15 months while the government prepared its case against him.

The indictment said that from 1975 to 1977 Orlov prepared and circulated documents that "slandered the Soviet Union's political and economic system, its domestic and foreign policies and called for the overthrow of the system and struggle against it."

The defendants in Tbilisi were Zviad Gamsakhurdia and Merab Kostava, both 39. Gamsakhurdia worked on underground journals and wrote articles on prison conditions and economic problems. Kostava is a musicologist who wrote for dissident publications.

Two other original members of Orlov's Group to Promote the Fulfillment of the Helsinki Accords in the U.S.S.R., Anatoly Shcharansky and Alexander Ginzburg, have been in jail for more than a year but their trial date has not been set.

Orlov, a successful physicist specializing in the accceleration of elementary particles, was fired from the staff of the prestigious Institute of Earth Magnetism in Moscow in 1973 for supporting Sakharov and his dissident actvities.

Leaf Meet On May 26

RALEIGH — The 32nd annual membership meeting of the Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corporation will be held May 26 at the Kerr Scott Pavilion, North Carolina State Fairgrounds from 10 to 12 noon, with a complimentary barbecue lunch served after the meeting.

The featured speaker will be Ray Fitzgerald, administrator, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture, and executive vice president of Commodity Credit Corporation.

As ASCS administrator, Fitzgerald works with the federal agriculture farm commodity programs.

He served with ASCS from 1962-69 as deputy administrator for state and county operations.

A native of Plankinton, S. D., Fitzgerald served as State Secretary of Agriculture in 1959 and 1960.

Gov. James B. Hunt will give the address to the group from the five-state, flue-cured tobacco producing area.

Former Prime Minister Dies

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Sir Robert Gordon Menzies, Australia's longest serving prime minister who guided the country's postwar development, died today at his home in Melbourne, the government announced.

Sir Robert, the son of a country storekeeper, was 83 and had been living in retirement since 1966.

Known as the Australian Winston Churchill, he dominated Australian politics as prime minister from 1949 to 1966 and also headed a wartime coalition government from 1939 until 1941.

A staunch conservative, lawyer, orator, Anglophile, and cricket fan, Menzies was unswervingly loyal to the British Crown, loved good food, cigars and witty conversation, and made no attempt to hide his contempt for journalists, socialists and the United Nations.

A brilliant parliamentarian and politician, he put together the Liberal-Country Party coalition which ousted the Labor government in 1949, when Australia was bedeviled by strikes, tired of wartime restrictions and worried about Communism.

The coalition won five more elections with the help of rising affluence, Labor disunity, the Communist bogey and a war-with-Indonesia scare.

Queen Elizabeth II knighted Menzies in 1963 and three years later he handed over the government to the late Harold Holt, the federal treasurer. Before stepping aside, he won Parliament's endorsement for Australia's entry into the Vietnam War in support of the United States.

He is survived by his wife, Dame Pattie, and one son.

"All Australians will mourn his passing," said Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser, a protege of Menzies. "He gave his party and his country inspiration."

She Acquired A Lost Boy

BOSTON (AP) — Three-year-old Domingo Oronde Guiton was lost in a downtown department store. A woman answered a page by security guards and took him away. But she was not his mother.

Late Sunday, police arrested Carol Hooker, 19, an unmarried housekeeper who told an investigator she was unable to have children, and charged her with kidnapping.

The red corsage she wore for Mother's Day still was pinned to her three-piece white suit when police locked her into a cell.

Domingo and his mother, Norwella, 22, were reunited Sunday more than 24 hours after he was led from the store.

Police said Miss Hooker called them Sunday afternoon and said she had taken the boy to her home after his mother failed to answer the page at the Jordan Marsh department store. She said she had found the boy and taken him to the security office.

A store employee told police Miss Hooker announced she was Domingo's mother minutes after another woman brought him to the office explaining she had found him. The women left together, employees said.

Norwella Guiton said she responded immediately to the store's call, but by the time she reached the office, Domingo, her only child, had disappeared.

N.C. Law On Sodomy Is Allowed To Stand

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today let North Carolina's sodomy law stand by refusing to hear arguments that the law violates the constitutional rights of homosexuals.

The court, which has not granted full review to a case involving the rights of homosexuals in more than a decade, let stand the conviction of a Jacksonville, N.C., man for an "abominable and detestable crime against nature."

Today's action is a significant setback for civil liberties forces who had urged the justices to use the case to reach a major decision on the rights of sexual privacy.

"This case involves the question whether the government may constitutionally prohibit private consensual homosexual activity between adults," the court was told by lawyers for Eugene Enslin.

Enslin, owner of a combination massage parlor-adult bookstore in Jacksonville, was convicted in 1974 of having oral sex with a young U.S. Marine from nearby Camp Lejeune. He was sentenced to one year in prison.

Enslin was freed after serving some nine months of his sentence, one of his New York lawyers reported.

The North Carolina law used to prosecute Enslin states: "If any person shall commit the crime against nature, with mankind or beast, he shall be guilty of a felony and shall be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court."

Rumored Bride Of King Hussein

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — King Hussein, whose most recent wife died in a helicopter crash last year, soon will marry Elizabeth Halaby, the 23-year-old daughter of former Pan American World Airways President Najeeb F. Halaby, according to reliable sources.

The royal palace refused to confirm or deny the report, but a palace spokesman said an "official communique" would be issued sometime this week.

Miss Halaby, a tall blonde who has been seen recently in Amman with the diminutive 42-year-old monarch, could not be reached for comment. She has been working in Amman with her father, who is chairman of a civil aviation consulting service advising the Jordanian and Syrian national airlines.

Hussein has one child from his first wife, four from the second and one from the third. His first two marriages ended in divorce.

A Degree Given Stevie Wonder

WASHINGTON (AP) — Stevie Wonder, who has collected more than two dozen gold records and Grammy awards, now has an honorary doctor of humane letters degree to add to his trophy case.

The popular singer-composer was awarded the degree Saturday at the Howard University commencement.

The citation called Wonder a "living legend" who overcame blindness and expressed his inner self in music of "phenomenal popularity."

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N.C.

Doesn't Hold Self Responsible

LONDON (AP) — Princess Margaret's brewery heir companion, Roddy Llewellyn, says he doesn't consider himself responsible for Margaret's divorce and that he won't be marrying her.

It was announced last week that Princess Margaret will divorce her husband of 16 years, Lord Snowdon.

"I do not consider myself in any way responsible for the divorce," Llewellyn, told British reporters in Tangier, Morocco, the London Daily Telegraph reported Sunday.

The 30-year-old nightclub singer was quoted as saying he will continue to see the 47-year-old sister of Queen Elizabeth II, but, he added, "There is no chance of my marrying Princess Margaret."

Llewellyn, who has been staying at York Castle in Tangier for several weeks, was also quoted by the newspaper as saying his friendship with the princess was "greatly exaggerated."

Henry Brown To Address Local C-of-C Meet

Henry Brown, director of governmental relations for the North Carolina Citizens Association will speak at the May 18 meeting of the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce's Congressional Action Committee.

Brown will discuss current business legislation on both the state and national levels. Discussion will include information about the inventory tax bill, labor law reform, and the National Health Insurance bill.

Brown will also discuss the N.C. Citizens Association's activities and involvement in governmental relations.

Further information may be secured by contacting the Chamber of Commerce at 752-4101.

Stay with the reliables.

Bargain basement sucker control is no bargain.

When you're raising a crop that's worth up to $3600 an acre, you don't take chances on anything as basic as sucker control.

That's why most tobacco growers stay with the industry's two leading systemics. MH-30® or Royal MH-30® from Uniroyal Chemical.

Good tobacco growers know that you never sacrifice dependability for price. So go for all the reliability you can buy. Insist on original MH-30 or fast acting Royal MH-30 with Sorbatran.* It's just good business. Uniroyal Chemical, Division of Uniroyal, Inc., Naugatuck, CT 06770.

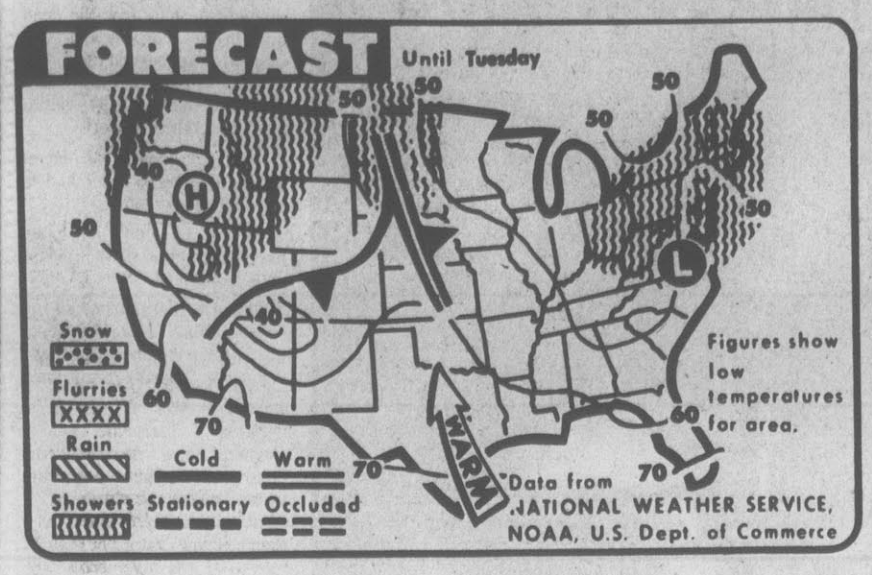
How's The Weather?



WEATHER FORECAST — Areas of showers are forecast across the northern tier of states from the Pacific to the Northeast. Cool weather is expected for the same areas. Warm weather is due from the Southwest to Florida. Clear skies are forecast for the area. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press

Cool, showery weather which has prevailed over North Carolina for the last several days will persist on into Tuesday, according to the National Weather Service, which attributes the unstable weather to a pool of cold air anchored over the Ohio Valley.

This system also has forced the cool air into the state, holding temperatures to about 10 degrees cooler than normal. However, a warming trend is indicated by the latter part of the week.

Around the state Sunday high readings for the day held generally in the 50s in the mountains, the 60s in the western Piedmont and the low to mid 70s in coastal areas.

Low temperatures this morning cooled to the 40s over western sections while the 50s prevailed eastward to the Outer Banks where lows were in the 60s.

Jugtown Returning Grant And Interest

JUGTOWN, N.C. (AP) — For once, the state of North Carolina is going to have grant money it handed out eight years ago returned. It's even going to get it back with interest.

Returning the $2,500 grant given Jugtown, a small group of potters in Moore County, was the idea of potter Vernon Owens. He started thinking about it five or six years ago, but it wasn't until now the community felt it could afford it.

Jugtown's trademark is as well known as that of any regional crafts group. But not even the most successful handicrafts can't usually generate a great deal of capital.

"There's never a big profit in handwork," said Nancy Sweezy, who directs Jugtown along with Owens. "And there was never really any extra money with which to return the grant.

"So we made a collective decision to do without something important in order to repay the grant," Ms. Sweezy said, "and decided to put off buying the new truck we need."

At Jugtown, they don't feel they're returning the $2,500 that was given them to build two kilns. Instead, they feel they're recycling it, like a renewable resource. They've even increased the amount to $3,000.

"We're just trying to give others some of the same support we got when we needed it," said Owens. "It's a responsibility that comes with getting on your feet."

"Timing is everything," Ms. Sweezy said. "At that moment we needed the Arts Council money very badly, and it came at just the right time. Now, when we're on a more solid footing, there are others who need it."

Half of the money will be put to use immediately. The people at Jugtown stipulated that $1,500 be given to the North Carolina Office of Folklife Programs to help in preparation of the Folklife Festival to be held July 1-4 at Durham's West Point on the Eno Park.

INFLATING COSTS

NEW YORK (AP) — Inflation and stricter environmental requirements have boosted the cost of pollution control more than $1 percent to $38.4 billion for U.S. businesses, according to a survey by the Economics Department of the McGraw-Hill Publications Co.

Most Smugglers Just Fined

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Most of those persons convicted in U. S. District Court for the Eastern District of North Carolina of operating illicit mail-order cigarette businesses get off with fines, federal court records indicate, even though the state loses millions of dollars in taxes in the operations.

Few persons convicted go to jail even though there is a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $1,000 fine for each count.

Federal prosecutors in the Eastern District of North Carolina began charging cigarette mail-order operators with mail fraud in 1974 in an attempt to put them out of business, but some say they drive has been unsuccessful.

Court records show that every operator sentenced in the Eastern District between 1974 and 1977 had been indicted on multiple counts of mail fraud, but only seven of the 26 defendants went to prison.

Chief Judge John D. Larkins Jr. of Trenton has handled 17 of the 21 cigarette mail fraud cases in the district since 1974. He has had 19 guilty defendants and has fined them an average of $3,022 each. Larkins sent one man to prison.

U.S. District Judge Franklin T. Dupree of Raleigh handled three cases with six guilty defendants. Dupree fined five of the defendants an average of $7,800 and sent each to prison.

Semi-retired Judge Algernon L. Butler of Clinton handled one case with one guilty defendant, whom he fined $100.

Larkins said he thought fines and a warning issued from the bench were successful in running the operators out of business.

"The deterrent just isn't there on a fine, as far as I can see," said H.W. Anderson, director of Minnesota's special taxes division. He estimated Minnesota is losing about $12 million a year in taxes because of cigarettes smuggled or mailed into the state and said leniency of the courts is "certainly a contributing factor."

The mail-order business is profitable because North Carolina's cigarette tax in only two cents per pack while state and local taxes are as high as 23 cents.

Dupree refused to be interviewed about the cigarette mail fraud cases, but some of his views were refected in a memo he issued in June 1976 to the U.S. Attorney's office after being asked to reduce the six-month sentence of Jack Tew of Dunn.

The memo said Dupree wrote Tew's lawyer that this apparently was the first case in which a cigarette mail-fraud defendant had been given an active prison sentence and "that it was my recollection that this fellow cleared about $80,000 or so in a short time; that I knew of no way that this kind of traffic could be stopped if they could simply pay a fine and keep in business."

Contest Winner Will Get A Car

SEATTLE (AP) — The winner of the contest will be the pilot whose craft flies into the open sun roof of a new car parked inside the Kingdome arena. The prize: the car itself.

The pilots will be flying paper airplanes.

Michael Campbell, a Seattle sports promoter, has issued invitations to all 142 member countries of the United Nations to send representatives to the World Indoor Paper Airplane Championship in the Kingdome June 18.

Only serious contestants need apply, says Campbell. "This should not be taken lightly," he said at a news conference.

After consulting Boeing engineers about aerodynamics, it was determined the only official material eligible for competition would be 17-inch, medium weight, recycled paper.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market, after a strong surge in the previous two sessions, headed moderately lower in early trading today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, up by about two points shortly after the opening, was down 3.21 to 837.49 by noon.

Analysts said profit-taking was responsible after gains in the Dow index totaling more than 18 points in the previous two sessions.

The market decline came despite an indication from Federal Reserve Board Chairman G. William Miller over the weekend that the Fed might ease up on credit in the near future because of the White House decision to reduce proposed tax cuts and lower the budget deficit.

The New York Stock Exchange composite index of all listed stocks was down .12 to 54.73 in the first two hours of trading. Declining issues outnumbered gainers by a small fraction.

Volume on the Big Board came to a fairly active 14.22 million as of noon. On Friday, a heavy trading day, volume was 22.63 million in the same period.

American Telephone & Telegraph, which on Friday said it was implementing a major reorganization in its management structure, led the NYSE most active list. AT&T was up ⅜ to 62.

Other actively traded issues included: Texaco, up ⅛ to 25⅛; White Motor, unchanged at 10¼; and Polaroid, down 1¼ to 34⅞.

Most blue chip issues showed fractional losses. Prices included U.S. Steel down ⅛ to 27⅛; General motors off ¼ at 62¾; Union Carbide down to 40¼; and IBM off 1⅛ at 261½.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index gained .13 to 142.70

HOUSE DESTROYED ... Fire leaps through the roof of this house at 523 West Third St. this morning as firemen put water on the fire through the front door. Fire officers said the blaze was reported at 2:32 a.m. The two-story frame dwelling was completely engulfed in flames when fire units arrived at the scene. The cause of the blaze in the unoccupied dwelling was listed as "undetermined" by fire officers who theorized the fire started on the ground floor near the center of the abandoned dwelling. Saw Brother Fire Victim

SEATTLE (AP) — Firefighter Ed Shaw saw the dead man in the bedroom and realized he was beyond help. He went on to fight the blaze. Later, Shaw learned the victim was his brother, Robert.

"And just then I ran out of air for the mask and I had to go out," Shaw said.

He said he didn't know the fire was at his sister's house until he arrived.

"When I realized it was my sister's house, I worried about my sister's children, Julie and her sister, Laurie," Shaw said. The girls, it turned out, were away.

When Shaw searched the house, he found the victim, whom he did not recognize. "I went right to my brother, but I didn't know him. I thought maybe it was my niece's boyfriend," he said.

The captain said his brother, 39, had been living in California with his wife and children and had come to Seattle for a visit.

Officials estimated damage at $30,000. The cause of the blaze was under investigation.

WHAT IS A DEED?

In simplest terms, a deed is a written document that conveys title (evidence of ownership) to real estate from one person to another. You don't acquire title until you receive and accept the deed. The sales contract you get when you buy a house is a pact to convey title sometime in the future. The actual transfer is done by a deed.

Every deed must have a grantor (seller). He must be of legal age, mentally competent, and legal owner of the property. If he does not fulfill all three requirements the deed is worthless.

The person who receives and accepts the title is known as the grantee (buyer). If husband and wife are to be co-owners, the property will be conveyed to "John Doe and Mary Doe, wife". Proper wording will insure that if either spouse dies, the survivor will become the sole owner.

Yarborough Edges Baker In Winston

AP Laserphoto

Cale Yarborough leads Winston 500 field into turn at Alabama Speedway

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — A.J. Foyt had planned to start alongside Cale Yarborough. It was some consolation that he at least got to finish next to him.

Yarborough came home with a two-car length victory over Buddy Baker in Sunday's $250,000 Winston 500 stock car race, with Foyt, the third place finisher a lap down, pulling even as they took the checkered flag.

Foyt, who gambled that Indianapolis 500 qualifying would be rained out Sunday — it was — had qualified alongside Yarborough 10 days ago before the original race date here was washed out.

But when the green flag came out, Foyt started dead last, 41st, ordered there by National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing officials. Foyt pulled out of line to stop in pit road and have his two-way radio fixed.

"I didn't see anything wrong with that. They let Richard Petty get back in line in the Daytona 500 two years ago after he lost an oil line on the pace lap," Foyt said.

It only took Foyt seven laps to streak back into the top five, but he didn't stay there long.

"I thought I had a good chance of winning that race, even starting that far back" Foyt said. "But just about the time I got into second place, the car started acting up."

The engine in Foyt's Buick popped and banged for the next 70 laps, dropping Foyt a lap behind the leaders. Then it cleared up and Foyt was at full speed once again.

"I thought I'd made up the lap there on one of the cautions," Foyt said. "But they said no."

Foyt, whose third was his best Grand National finish in years, was pleased.

"For as few races as we run with these guys, we did darn good. Our slowest pit stop was 15.2 seconds," said Foyt, a six-time U.S. Auto Club champion. "It's hard for a part-time team to be as sharp as these guys like Cale who run all 30 races."

Yarborough looked sharp as he gave Oldsmobile it's first ever victory at Alabama International Motor Speedway. It was also Yarborough's first victory at the track, leaving him only two tracks on the circuit, Pocono and Ontario, where he is without wins.

Yarborough led 82 of the 188 laps, more than any other driver, and averaged 159.699 miles per hour.

Yarborough, whose car was obviously faster than Baker's, stayed behind Baker until the final lap when he used the slingshot effect to zip past Baker and into the lead.

Baker contended that because Foyt also went past with Yarborough that it interfered with his chances to retake the lead.

"If A.J. would have stayed behind me, we could have pushed each other past Cale before the finish line," Baker said.

Foyt agreed that might be true. However, he said he believed that unless he made his move that he would have lost third place to Skip Manning, who was on his rear bumper.

Lee Trevino hoists Colonial trophy

Trevino Sets Course Record; Wins Colonial

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — "Golf is a crazy game," says Jerry Pate, and along comes Lee Trevino to prove it.

With his lead in jeopardy, Trevino chipped in from off the green for a birdie, swept in with a sparkling 66 and won the $200,000 Colonial National Invitation Sunday with a runaway record 268.

"A fantastic week," said Trevino of his 12-under-par performance and its $40,000 reward. "I love it."

Trevino abandoned his swashbuckling, go-for-broke style and said it was a craftier Latino who fired rounds of 66, 68, 68, 66 to capture his second Colonial crown by a comfortable four shots.

"I just kept jabbing away," he said. "I think I played it very smart."

Pate knifed through the pack with a closing 5-under-par 65 to tie Jerry Heard at 272 for second place. The consolation prize was $18,000 for each.

Heard, the only serious challenger in the stretch run, slipped in with a 68 after a bizarre turn of events at the 14th and 15th holes that ended a tense duel in the Texas sun.

"The turning point was the 14th," said Trevino, who was nursing a two-shot lead, flirting with a bogey five and looking at Heard's second shot resting 10 feet from the cup.

"Everything was up for grabs until the 14th hole," he said. "It looked like Heard was going to get even and instead he went three down."

Trevino holed out from 30 feet and Heard, the 1972 Colonial champion, missed his 10footer.

A double bogey at the par-4 15th ended the Heard threat.

Tom Watson, who started the last 18 three back of Trevino, two behind Steve Melnyk and one in arrears of Heard, took a triple bogey 7 at No. 5, the most treacherous of the Trinity River spread. But he salvaged a 68 and a tie for fourth with Melnyk, who shot a 70.

OFFICIAL NORTH CAROLINA STATE INSPECTION STATION

Governor Jim Hunt put in a plug that East Carolina University football coach Pat Dye and the Pirate fans probably were quite glad to hear Friday during the graduation exercises.

Hunt, in the midst of the expansion construction work that will enlarge Ficklen Stadium to 35,000 seats by the fall, referred to the construction work, and to the accomplishments of the football Pirates.

Pointing out that the Pirates had beaten N.C. State, Duke and North Carolina in recent meetings, he noted that "with the completion of this stadium, I can see no reason why home-and-home games with these teams can't be scheduled."

Of course, that's what it is all about. The Pirates want to get these teams into Ficklen. Hopefully, the time won't be too far distance in the future, despite the fact that Carolina's present position is not to play ECU following the 1981 season, when the current contract expires.

A visit to the stadium is impressive, indeed. Hopefully the day when it is filled to capacity will not be far away. That will be an even more impressive view of the facility.

Sexual Discrimination

We've heard nothing more on the grievance hearing that is supposed to be upcoming on the East Carolina University campus.

A group of four women and one man have charged that the East Carolina athletic department has discriminated, both in funds and facilities, against the women's athletic program.

How much truth there is in the charges, we do not know. We await the hearing like everyone else.

But getting additional funds for the women's programs is going to be easy. Where will these funds come from, we may ask. The people bringing the charges say at one point that they do not want to hurt existing programs, but they want their fair share. Their claim is that since half the students at East Carolina are female, half of the students funds should go to women's athletics.

But it all seems to end up with robbing Peter to pay Paul. The money must be there first, and right now it isn't. So to funnel a great deal more money into the women's program would naturally hurt the other sports.

And hurting football, basketball and baseball, the only moneymakers on campus, would be killing the goose that lays the golden egg. Without them, none of the others can exist.

The money must come from more Pirate Club recruitment. Graduating athletes should be encouraged to join the Pirate Club. Parents of athletes should also be encouraged to do so.

We realize that all athletes and parents cannot join, but there are a large number who could.

Women's athletics has come a long ways in a short time at East Carolina, but it cannot overcome all of the hurdles right away.

We agree that the women deserve more. But it can't come right away without hurting other existing programs.

Women's Publicity

One of the charges was that the women weren't getting adequate publicity from the school's Sports Information Office.

We cannot fully agree with this statement. From having worked with the SID office during the past years when women's sports was beginning to grow we know that much of the fault lies elsewhere.

It is impossible for someone from that office to attend each contest, whether home and away, just as it is impossible for this newspaper to cover every athletic event we try to report.

According to Sports Information Director Ken Smith, each sport's coach is asked to contact him either at his office or at home as soon as possible after each game.

Many times, this never happens. Some teams who lose don't want it publicized. Some who win are just too caught up with victory to call. And others simply don't care.

Time and time again, we have called the SID office for reports, only to be told that the SID office has not received it.

So what do we do then? We forget it.

Rose Banquet Slated

Sykes Shuts Out A's Again

By The Associated Press

Having Bob Sykes around is like having your own copying machine. Sykes, you see, appears to be in something of a rut. It seems all he can do is pitch four-hit shutouts against the Oakland A's.

Since coming back to Detroit from the minors, the 23-year-old left-hander has made two appearances eight days apart with similar results. He blanked the A's 6-0 with a four-hitter in Oakland on May 6 and Sunday he repeated, this time by a 15-0 score as the Tigers pounded out 20 hits.

In other American League action, the Kansas City Royals outslugged the New York Yankees 10-9, the Boston Red Sox downed the Minnesota Twins 6-2, the California Angels edged the Cleveland Indians 4-3, the Baltimore Orioles shaded the Texas Rangers 3-2 and the Milwaukee Brewers nipped the Chicago White Sox 5-4. The Seattle-Toronto game was rained out.

Royals 10, Yankees 9

Clint Hurdle opened the bottom of the ninth with a double and scored on a double by Amos Otis, who swung away after failing to sacrifice. Otis' double was the 10th of the game and followed an intentional walk to Darrell Porter, who homered earlier. Hurdle and Porter drove in three runs apiece.

Red Sox 6, Twins 2

Fred Lynn hit a three-run homer in the fifth inning and Dennis Eckersley won his third consecutive game as the red-hot Red Sox posted their 10th victory in 11 games. With the score knotted 2-2 and one out, Lynn lined Minnesota reliever Mac Scarce's first pitch into the right-field bleachers for the decisive three-run blow. Carlton Fisk also homered for Boston while Willie Norwood and Mike Cubbage connected for Minnesota.

Angels 4, Indians 3

California scored three times in the eighth inning on three walks, a hit batsman, an error and Tony Solaita's two-run pinch single while Frank Tanana won his sixth game with last-out help from Paul Hartzell. Tanana allowed seven hits in 8⅔ innings and blanked the Indians until the ninth.

Orioles 3, Rangers 2

Lee May belted a towering two-run homer off Dock Ellis in the top of the ninth inning and reliever Don Stanhouse pitched out of a bases-loaded, none-out jam in the bottom half. The Rangers loaded the bases when pinch hitter John Lowenstein singled and Mike Hargrove doubled against winner John Flinn and Stanhouse issued an intentional walk to Juan Beniquez. He then got Toby Harrah on a pop-up, struck out Richie Zisk and retired Jim Sundberg on a grounder to pick up his sixth save.

Brewers 5, White Sox 4

Don Money, who hasn't started a game since April 27 because of a pulled groin muscle, drove home the tying and go-ahead runs with a pinch double in the seventh inning. Milwaukee's other runs came on a three-run homer by Ben Oglivie while Mike Caldwell scattered eight hits.

Seattle Slew Makes Return To Win Easily

NEW YORK (AP) — "I'll remember the winter of '78 for a long time," said Mickey Taylor, standing in the wind and rain of Aqueduct and basking in the sunshine of Seattle Slew's comeback.

"It's a great feeling to know that he's back."

Slew won easily in the sevenfurlong allowance race Sunday. But more importantly, he raced after months of doubt.

The Triple Crown winner and Horse of the Year in 1977 had been scheduled to return to the races in January, but he contracted a serious blood disorder that knocked him out of training and almost out of racing.

Now the doubting is over.

"He's back," a relieved Taylor said after Seattle Slew ran away from five rivals. "Now it's just a matter of hoping for the best. I was probably more anxious today than nervous. We waited 10 long months."

The race was Slew's first since he had finished fourth 16 lengths behind winner J.O. Tobin in the Swaps Stakes July 3.

"Super," said veterinarian Jim Hill, another Slew co-owner. "It couldn't have been better. He went along easily and did it like a workman."

Jockey Jean Cruguet, who has ridden Slew in his all his races, said simply. "I thought he ran pretty good."

Well, he ran good enough to turn the race into a public workout.

Saddled for the first time by Doug Peterson, who replaced Billy Turner as trainer late last year, Seattle Slew took the lead from Gallant Bob with a little more than a half mile left and splashed home 8¼ lengths ahead of Proud Arion.

A crowd of 16,361 and a national television audience saw the winner carry 122 pounds over a very sloppy track in 1:224-5. He paid $2.20, $2.10 and $2.10.

"This is the least weight you'll see him race at for a long time," said Hill. "Pretty soon I'll be able to ride him and I weigh 200 pounds."

The prestigious handicap races in the fall are the goal for Seattle Slew before he retires to stud next year under a $12 million syndication.

"We'll run in the Met now," said Taylor, noting Sunday's race was a prep for the onemile Metropolitan Handicap at Belmont Park May 29. "We've chatted about racing about three more times this spring and then pointing to the Marlboro Handicap in the fall. We'll take the summer off."

"In one respect it was just the prep race he needed and in another respect it was just like winning a stakes race because now he's back and he won with such authority," Hill said of the Slew comeback which overshadowed the Withers Stakes for 3-year-olds on the same program.

Junction took charge at about the half mile pole and won the $54,200 Withers by 4¾ lengths over Star de Naskra, carrying 126 pounds over the mile in 1:364-5 and paying $7.20, $3.20 and $2.80.

LA, IOC Mull Contract, TV

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Who draws up the contract for the 1984 Olympic Games? And who will own the television rights?

When lawyers have settled those points, the International Olympic Committee (IOC) will decide whether to award the games to Los Angeles or look for another city. Munich, Montreal, Mexico City and Brussels have all been reported to be interested in stepping in. A decision on Los Angeles' bid is expected by Thursday.

The IOC sent Los Angeles a contract form months ago, but the Californian city was displeased with it. Lord Killanin, president of the IOC, discussed some possible amendments and asked Los Angeles for its comments.

Instead, Los Angeles sent a new contract of its own, three times the length of the previous one.

"We are still waiting for Los Angeles' comments on our proposed contract," said Monique Berlioux, director of the IOC — a sign that the IOC feels it is being pushed around.

Los Angeles' draft contract contains a sentence which reads: "The Los Angeles organizing committee is hereby granted an exclusive licence to all television and radio broadcasting and distribution rights in and to the games throughout the world."

Yet Los Angeles has climbed down on one point and agreed to divide television revenue the IOC's way. This means Los Angeles will take two thirds, and the IOC will take one third to help amateur sport around the world.

Gerulaitis Takes WCT

DALLAS (AP) — Vitas Gerulaitis, the newly-crowned World Championship of Tennis titleholder, had a message for one of his teammates on the World Team Tennis New York Apples: Take that Billie Jean King.

"I know this will show Billie Jean, because she says I never work hard enough," Gerulaitis joked Sunday after quickly dispatching a ragged and struggling Eddie Dibbs 6-3, 6-2, 6-1 for the WCT crown.

"I'm gonna go back and tell her, 'I'd like to see you go out and win that tournament,'" quipped Gerulaitis, who's never been known as a hard worker on the practice court, perhaps because of his conscientiously-groomed playboy image.

The well-rested Gerulaitis got into the finals on a default Friday by injured, top-seeded Bjorn Borg and hadn't played since Wednesday night. He needed only an hour and a half to overwhelm Dibbs with his deadly volleys and newly-strengthened serve.

"I was never in the match with the guy," said Dibbs, who played Thursday and Friday night. "I couldn't get going. The racket felt like it was dead or the strings were dead."

Kingman Repeats Feat: 3 HR's In Los Angeles

By The Associated Press

At 6-foot-7, Dave Kingman is a giant among baseball players. Whenever he visits Dodger Stadium in Los Angeles, he looks even taller.

As a member of the New York Mets two years ago, the hard-hitting outfielder smashed three home runs and drove in eight runs in his favorite hitting park.

As a member of the Chicago Cubs Sunday, he did the same thing.

"I consider this my home," said Kingman after leading the Cubs to a 10-7, 15-inning victory. "I can recall a lot of times coming here to end a long drought."

In other National League games, the Philadelphia Phillies defeated the Cincinnati Reds 7-4; the Pittsburgh Pirates whipped the San Diego Padres 1-0; the Atlanta Braves edged the Montreal Expos 2-1 and the San Francisco Giants took a doubleheader from the St. Louis Cardinals, 5-4 in 12 innings and then 4-3 in 10. A doubleheader between New York and Houston was rained out.

Phillies 7, Reds 4

Home runs by Mike Schmidt, Richie Hebner and Greg Luzinski carried Philadelphia over Cincinnati. Schmidt's solo home run and Hebner's two-run blast highlighted the Phillies' threerun sixth and Luzinski's basesempty shot in the eighth provided the Phillies with their final run and a safe 7-1 lead.

George Foster drove in three runs for the Reds, one in the first with a single and two in the eighth with a triple.

Pirates 1, Padres 0

Rookie right-hander Don Robinson hurled a four-hitter to pitch Pittsburgh over San Diego. The 20-year-old Robinson struck out seven and didn't walk a batter in improving his record to 3-1. Randy Jones took the loss.

Braves 2, Expos 1

Dick Ruthven scattered eight hits and Atlanta Braves scored the go-ahead run in the seventh inning on Rod Gilbreath's double to beat Montreal.

Brian Asselstine gave the Braves a 1-0 lead with a homer in the first inning. But the Expos came back with a run in their half of the inning on Gary Carter's sacrifice fly.

Giants 5-4, Cardinals 4-3

Terry Whitfield's two-out homer in the bottom of the 12th inning led San Francisco to its first-game victory over St. Louis and then Whitfield doubled and scored the winning run in the 10th inning of the nightcap to complete a doubleheader sweep for the streaking Giants.

The dramatic victories gave the Giants a five-game winning streak and improved their lead in the National League Western Division to 1½ games over the Cincinnati Reds and two games over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Slamming Kingman

Chicago Cubs' Dave Kingman (10) is congratulated by teammates Manny Trillo (left) and Bill Buckner (22) at home plate in the sixth inning after Kingman hit his first of three home runs Sunday in Los Angeles against the Dodgers. Kingman, who knocked in eight runs, hit his third home run in the 15th inning, knocking in three runs to break a 7-7 tie. The Cubs beat the Dodgers, 10-7, in the longest game played this year in the National League. (AP Laserphoto)

Nuggets Remain Alive

DENVER (AP) — Some minor adjustments, such as a switch in defensive assignments, and one major change, an effort to set picks for superstar David Thompson, helped extend the Denver Nuggets' season at least another game.

With Thompson regaining his shooting touch and his confidence to score 35 points, the Nuggets held off a second-half Seattle comeback and beat the SuperSonics 123-114 Sunday in their National Basketball Association semifinal playoff series.

The triumph reduced the Sonics' lead to 3-2 in the best-of-seven Western Conference finals. Game 6 will be played Wednesday night in Seattle. Game 7, if necessary, would be played Friday night in Denver.

The winner of the series meets the Washington Bullets in the championship round, which begins next Sunday at the home of the Western champion.

"Now the monkey's on their back," said Thompson after the Nuggets bounced back from three straight defeats to stay alive in the series. "Seattle has to win up there. I'm sure they don't want to come back here for the seventh game. We can go up there Wednesday and be loose, just play our game."

From an historical standpoint, Denver's task would not appear to be quite that simple. Only two teams in NBA playoff history have rallied from 3-1 deficits to win a series. In addition, the Sonics are no pushovers at home, having won 19 straight games at the Coliseum.

"They're still in the driver's seat," admitted Denver center Dan Issel, who scored 27 points and pulled down 10 rebounds as the Nuggets held a 55-40 rebounding edge Sunday over the taller Sonics. Issel said winning the sixth game "is a pretty good size hill to climb, but stranger things have happened."

Lady Rams In Rout

FARMVILLE — Greene Central's softball team romped to a 20-4 victory over Farmville Central Saturday.

The Lady Rams were led by Sharon Bright, Sutton, and Geraldine Hooker with three hits each. Iris Pridgen added two hits for the winners, while Sutton had a home run. Lynn Shackleford pitched the win.

Diana Gordon had three hits and Debbie Gowan two for Farmville.

Halpern Coming Back After Term In Prison

An AP Sports Analysis
By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Bobby Halpern steps through the ropes and into the ring at Madison Square Garden tonight to continue boxing's most unlikely comeback.

It will be Halpern's second date in the Garden ring. The first one was 20 years ago.

Halpern was a promising young heavyweight in 1958, a tough kid, who had learned his fighting in the streets and had won more of those sidewalk bouts than he had lost. The Garden put him in against Tom McNeeley for a four-round prelim bout that December and the two men put on a slugfest.

Three years later, McNeeley fought Floyd Patterson for the heavyweight championship of the world. Halpern spent that fight night in a prison cell.

"I remember that, McNeeley fighting for the championship," said Halpern. "I remember thinking, that could have been me."

Sent to prison on armed robbery and kidnapping charges that he is still appealing, Halpern met a convict who knew McNeeley. Bobby recalled that Garden blood bath and a few months later, he received a letter from McNeeley, who had heard of the meeting.

"He said he had never fought a tougher guy than me," said Halpern.

There is pride in his voice when he relates that story. Pride and a bit of bravado constructed from having survived 17½ years of what the authorities call rehabilitation. Halpern laughs at the term.

"There is no rehabilitation," he said. "To them, rehabilitation means conforming to their standards."

He is a lot of things but nobody ever accused Halpern of being a conformist. You can tell that from his face, which looks like a map of the streets where he learned his craft.

Like McNeeley, there are a lot of guys who never fought anyone tougher than Halpern. Most of them had their bouts with him in the social register of New York State prisons — Sing Sing, Dannemora, Attica and Green Haven.

Halpern was paroled early in 1976 and now, at age 45, he is picking up the pieces of his life. The most important piece is boxing.

"That's what I do — I fight," he said. "That's what I've always done."

Once, in Green Haven, a friend smuggled some boxing gloves inside to Halpern and he sparred with the other inmates. "I'd take 'em on one at a time. Spar 'em, you know. I'd go 12 rounds in the yard with 12 different guys. The guards let us do it."

It was the first quasi-boxing program the prison ever had and now it is a formal part of Green Haven's routine. "My legacy," said Halpern.

Ironically, Halpern believes the years he spent behind bars allowed him to return to the ring at an age when most boxers are long since retired. "Prison preserved me," he said. "In prison, you keep good hours, you can't drink, you can't go running around at night. I feel in better shape today than when I was a kid."

Local Skiers Place

ANGIER — Five Greenville residents were among the winners in the Angier Spring Open Water Ski Tournament this weekend.

Kristi Overton won first place in the junior girls' trick division, while Jackie Rollins took second place. Miss Overton was also first and Rollins' second in the slalom.

Becky Overton finished in second place in the women's trick division, while Jack Rollins was first in the senior men's trick division.

Parker Overton was fourth in the Men's II Trick Division.

The next water ski tournament is scheduled for June 3-4 at Wilson.

TOYOTA'S MILLION-DOLLAR-DASH FOR THE 1980 OLYMPIC GAMES.

SOMETHING FOR THE U.S. OLYMPIC ATHLETES... A $1,000,000 DONATION.

As you may know, our Olympic athletes are not government subsidized. So they need money to train now if they're going to win in Moscow in 1980.

Here's our plan: Toyota and your participating Toyota dealer will make a donation for the U.S. Olympic team every time a new Toyota car or truck is sold through June 30th, 1978. Help us make our sales goal, so we can give $1,000,000 or more, to help build a tough U.S. team. When you buy a new Toyota, you'll also get a specially designed Olympic pin, patch, and a certificate thanking you for your support. Now you can get a tough Toyota, and a tough Olympic team.

SOMETHING FOR YOU... A CHANCE AT $1,000,000 IN PRIZES. ENTER NOW!

Three "Gold Medal" first prizes, worth over $134,000 each. How'd you like to win all of this? A $100,000 condominium in Snowmass, Colorado. Two brand-new Toyotas. $5,000 in AMF Sports Equipment. A Nikon FM Camera. A $1,000 Levi Shopping Spree. A 3-week trip for two to Moscow, Munich, and Montreal, with $10,000 in pocket money. And a Sony Color TV, in case you get bored. That's just the first prize. Three lucky people will win them. Good luck!

Ten "Silver Medal" second prizes. Every "Silver Medal" winner will receive a Toyota Corolla SR-5 Liftback, a $1,000 AMF Sports Shopping Spree, a Nikon FM Camera, and a one-week trip for two to the European Track and Field Championships in Prague, Czechoslovakia. And $2,500 cash.

1000 "Bronze Medal" third prizes. A Nikon FM 35mm Camera with 50mm F2 lens. Nice to have around even if you can't make it to the games.

How to enter: Just go to your participating Toyota dealer and fill out an entry form. There's nothing to buy, no sentences to complete. But do it soon. Your Olympic-sized chance to win it big ends June 30th. The Million-Dollar-Dash for the Olympic Games. You asked for it. You got it. Toyota.

Complete rules available at participating dealers. U.S. licensed drivers only. Sweepstakes void in Missouri, Maryland, and where prohibited by law.

Sportive variations on the grid theme: 23rd Street, looking east from Ninth Avenue.

FASCINATIN' RHYTHMS

On the map Manhattan's a grid. But in its three-dimensional reality pulsating patterns emerge and impose themselves wantonly on the city, a few blocks at a time, hardly ever more. Each contributes its own characteristic vibration to the restless visual medley of the city. Here, prim rows of old-fashioned town houses. There, elegant, lofty lines of Fifth Avenue mansions. Modern housing developments strike their permissive angles boldly. Solid bourgeois blocks suddenly sport series of turrets and pinnacles. Crazy rhythms, precise refrains, all jostle each other in rich variety. You'll get the idea from these photographs, taken from a Goodyear blimp cruising along on a not-so-far-above-street-level survey.

Ryan Opines His Ordeal Ended Much Expense Account Faking

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — John Ryan says he can take credit for at least one achievement after his ordeal since blowing the whistle on an illegal political fund within Southern Bell Telephone Co.

"I don't think there's a person in North Carolina or in Florida or in Georgia or in South Carolina that will ever fake another expense account," he said. "That's an achievement. I want to take credit for that."

Ryan, 58, was accused of falsifying expense vouchers to embezzle Southern Bell funds while he was vice president of the company and its chief executive in North Carolina.

He was acquitted last week on 14 counts of embezzling money from Southern Bell and says college students and others could profit from his ordeal.

"I got a bloodbath by a corrupt bunch of people," he said, adding there is still "a place for somebody who is honest, and you don't have to cheat to get promoted."

"I feel I have an obligation, particularly to the young Americans who are entering the corporate world," he said. "I would like to record my experiences and present them in a manner that could be of enormous help to young people aspring to become business leaders."

Ryan said his superiors at Southern Bell told him in 1973 that he would have to resign. Although he said the reasons are unclear, he said a Southern Bell trainee had complained that Ryan was showing favoritism to a female employee — a woman he testified he had an affair with in 1972. She is now a Southern Bell executive in Miami.

Ryan told reporters in January 1975 that he had operated an illegal political slush fund fueled by kickbacks from salary raises for the company from 1964 until 1973.

Investigations of the company led to the indictment of more than two dozen Southern Bell executives, but charges against all but Ryan were later dismissed. The company was fined $310,712 last February after pleading guilty to one count of misapplication of company money.

Ryan had a salary of $64,000 a year with the telephone company, but he was declared indigent before his recent trial. His $14,000 annual pension goes to his ex-wife and children.

He said he believes his troubles began as the result of a frame-up to eliminate him from competition for the future presidency of Southern Bell, but he added that he never expected things to go so badly for him when he exposed the political fund.

"I never imagined in my wildest horrible thoughts of the ultimate that they would put together a case that would get me arrested," he said. "I guess it was a miracle that I survived."

He said his experience had a devestating effect on his family of three sons and a daughter, now in their 20s.

U.S. Savings Bonds Sales Grow Despite Array Of Opportunities

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Sales of U.S. Savings Bonds are growing at a steady pace, despite the increased array of other investment opportunities for consumers.

The Treasury Department reports Savings Bond sales in the first three months of 1978 topped $2.1 billion, up 4 percent from the first quarter of 1977. The first-quarter total was the highest since the War Bond drive of 1945.

A study conducted for the Treasury Department last year by the Survey Research Center at the University of Michigan showed that 35 percent of all families questioned owned Savings Bonds. The study also showed, however, that most people are unfamiliar with the value of their investment. Only 15 percent of those polled said they knew the annual interest rate on the bonds and less than 15 percent gave the right answer — 6 percent when the bonds are held to maturity.

To help you learn more about Savings Bonds, here, in question and answer form, are some of the basics:

Q. What kind of Savings Bonds are sold today?

A. Series E and Series H. Series E bonds are sold at a discount and can be redeemed at face value when, in five years, they reach maturity. There are eight denominations, ranging in price from $18.75 (face value $25), to $7,500 (face value $10,000). Series H bonds, in denominations from $500 to $10,000, are sold at face value. Interest is paid semiannually and the bonds reach maturity in 10 years.

Q. What if I want to cash in the bonds early?

A. You must hold Series E bonds for at least two months. After that, you can cash them in at most banks and many other savings institutions. You must provide proof of ownership. You also can exchange Series E bonds for Series H bonds which can be redeemed at face value at any time six months after the issue date.

Q. Can I keep them after they reach maturity?

A. Yes. Both Series E and H bonds may be held for at least 10 years after their original maturity date and you will keep getting interest at the annual rate of 6 percent.

Q. Many investments offer tax breaks. What about Savings Bonds?

A. They provide several tax advantages. The interest you earn is subject to federal income tax, but is exempt from state and local income levies. In addition, with Series E bonds, you can defer your federal taxes until you actually cash in the bonds.

Q. What about buying bonds in my children's names?

A. Another potential tax break since the tax due in any given year is unlikely to exceed the child's exemption. The first year you do this, however, make out an income tax form for your child, listing the interest earned. This establishes your intent to pay.

Q. Where can I buy Savings Bonds?

A. Series E bonds can be bought at most banks and other savings institutions or through a Payroll Savings Plan run by your employer. Series H bonds are sold by Federal Reserve Banks and their branches and the Bureau of the Public Debt, Securities Transactions Branch, Washington, D.C., 20226.

Peace College Area Grads

RALEIGH — Four Pitt County young women received associate arts degrees at Peace College graduation exercises Saturday.

Robin Blanche Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Moore, 209 S. Elm St., Greenville, plans to continue her education at East Carolina University in sociology. She was a dean's list student her sophomore year.

Virginia Gayann Wallace, daughter of Mrs. Gay Nell Wallace, Route 5, Greenville, plans to major in math education at East Carolina University. She was on the dean's list her sophomore year.

Jacqueline Elaine Robinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley H. Robinson, Route 5, Greenville, will continue her education at East Carolina University in sociology. She was a Theater Art Group member.

Alice Ruth Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Brown, Sr., Route 1, Bethel, will enter East Carolina University as a nursing major.

Chapel Hill Conference

A conference on "Implementing the National Health Planning and Resources Development Act" sponsored by the Eastern Carolina Health Systems Agency and the School of Public Health at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, will be held here May 23 for elected and appointed public officials.

The conference will focus on activities of the Eastern Carolina HSA and the role of local government in planning and developing better health care in Eastern North Carolina.

Health problems and health care resources will also be discussed, along with plans ECHSA has for improving them.

Keynote speakers include Grover C. Lancaster, chairman of the Craven County Board of Commissioners; Dr. William E. Laupus dean of the East Carolina University School of Medicine, and Dr. Harry Phillips, associate dean of the School of Public Health at UNC-Chapel Hill.

The conference is set to begin at 9:30 a.m. at the Willis Building at the intersection of First and Reade Streets, and continue until 4 p.m.

The public is invited to attend.

Port Shutdown Affects Others Than Strikers

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The strike at North Carolina's two state ports involves only 183 dock workers who have actually walked off their jobs.

But more than 800 other longshoremen, dockworkers, clerks and checkers are out of work because the ports are shut down.

And now still other persons, farther away and less directly involved, are beginning to feel the effects of the strike.

Independent economic figures indicate an additional 2,000 persons whose livelihoods are affected by cargo movement at the two ports are or soon will be jobless. Another 32,000 workers face reduced work time and diminished earnings.

Besides wages, millions of dollars in business revenue and state and local taxes are involved as exports must be shipped by longer, more expensive routes.

Another factor which can't be measured in dollar signs is the intangible perception of the stability of the state's ports in the national and international trading community.

Ports and union officials and spokesmen for the administration of Gov. Jim Hunt expect the strike to follow a certain pattern.

North Carolina has no intention of making the first move in resuming negotiations, officials say.

It is believed the International Longshoremen's Association national headquarters in New York will take a greater role in developing strategy.

State officials doubt the dockworkers' ability to withstand long unemployment. They hope the larger, more influential locals under the national ILA contract, idled because of the state employees walkout, will bring pressure for early renewal of talks.

A rift between the presidents of the Wilmington and Morehead City dockworkers locals has been healed and this is expected to result in greater union harmony.

It is expected that longshoremen's union leaders at ports in other states will attempt unspecified acts of harrassment to slow or stop delivery of cargo from North Carolina ports. They may not, however, engage in an overt secondary boycott, a tactic prohibited by federal law.

Became Ill At Podium

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — The executive secretary of the Southern Baptist Convention became ill Sunday night while delivering the baccalaureate sermon at Wake Forest University and was taken to Baptist Hospital.

Dr. Porter W. Routh of Nashville, Tenn. was listed in stable condition late Sunday night but there was no report on what caused his illness.

Routh had passed the major point in his sermon when he stopped and clenched the sides of the podium.

Dr. Richard Janeway, dean of Bowman Gray School of Medicine, went to his side. After striking Routh on the chest several times, Janeway led him from the speakers platform to an office in the rear of Wait Chapel. An ambulance took him to the hospital.

Routh, 66, is considered one of the most powerful figures in the Southern Baptist Convention. Friends of Routh said he had been ill Saturday night. After he left the platform, the audience sang a hymn and benediction was given.

No Fatalities In 19 Cities

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Nineteen North Carolina cities did not have a fatal traffic accident during 1977, according to the state Motor Club.

They are: Albemarle, Belmont, Boone, Cherryville, Eden, Graham, Henderson, Hendersonville, Mount Holly, Morehead City, Morganton, New Bern, Oxford, Roxboro, Smithfield, Tarboro, Thomasville, Waynesville, and Williamston.

Mount Holly has taken over the safety spotlight with a six-year record without a fatality. Cherryville has been without a fatality for the last four years. Charlotte led the state in fatalities with 35, followed by Greensboro with 22, Winston-Salem 17, Raleigh 13, Fayetteville 12 and High Point and Durham 10.

Suspect Thieves Taking A House

FARGO, N.D. (AP) — Police aren't sure yet, but they think somebody was trying to steal a house — the whole thing.

Neighbors reported seeing two men work for two afternoons to put an 18-by 30-foot pink house on blocks, apparenty to haul it away.

The house, owned by the Fargo-Cass County Municipal Industrial-Development Corp., is located on the city's north side.

Bob Everson, the corporation's executive director, said he knew of no legitimate attempt to have the house moved. Fargo's two commercial house movers also had not been contacted.

Police also were puzzled. They're investigating the incident.

Cars Collided At Intersection

A 2:20 a.m. Sunday collision at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Evans Street involved cars driven by Andree Hart Blanchard of Route 1, Hookerton and Walter Ray Walston of Route 1, Pikeville.

Police estimated damage from the mishap at $500 to the Blanchard car and $200 to the Walston car.

Five Died In N.C. Traffic

By The Associated Press

Five persons, including a Newport News, Va. man, have been killed in North Carolina traffic accidents so far this weekend, according to the North Carolina Highway Patrol.

The deaths bring the state's traffic toll for the year to 476. That compares to 481 for the same period in 1977.

William Earl Kirkendoll, 61, of Newport News, Va., was killed early Sunday afternoon as he stood on the right shoulder of N.C. 34 in Currituck County about 9¼ miles south of Chesapeake, Va. The patrol said the driver of the vehicle which struck Kirkendoll fell asleep and ran off the road. Evelyn Willis, 34, of Newton was killed early Sunday in a headon collision on U.S. 64-70 about a mile east of Hickory. She was the driver of one of the cars.

A 20-year-old Fairview man, John Bostic, was fatally injured early Sunday when a car in which he was riding ran out of control and crashed into a bridge abutment on U.S. 74 about six and a half mile east of Asheville.

The other two victims were killed in accidents Saturday.

Susan Lynn Bailey, 18, of Briscoe, died shortly after midnight Saturday when a car she was riding in ran off a Moore County road about 11 and a half miles west of Robbins and overturned.

Daniel Larry Clanton Jr., 16, of Davidson was fatally injured early Saturday when the car he was driving ran off N.C. 115 about seven miles north of Charlotte.

Believes He Uncovered Early Hemingway Play

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
Associated Press Writer

NATICK, Mass. (AP) — A frothy, cornball comedy called "Hokum" — never published and only recently discovered — is believed to be the first professional work of Ernest Hemingway, who co-authored the play at the age of 21.

"This is Ernest Hemingway's first book," said William Young, the rare book dealer who hunted down the play. He said the three-act play is a "terribly important" discovery because of Hemingway's position among 20th century authors.

Princeton historian Carlos Baker, a Hemingway biographer, said he has found a letter written by Hemingway to a friend in which Hemingway wrote that he and Morris McNeil Musselman were doing a 50-50 collaboration on a play.

"The fact that Hemingway did collaborate on this hitherto undiscovered thing does give it some significance. His name alone on it is apt to create something of a stir," Baker said in a telephone interview.

But Baker cautioned that Musselman — a high school chum of Hemingway in Oak Park, Ill., who became a successful film writer in Hollywood — probably wrote more of the play than Hemingway.

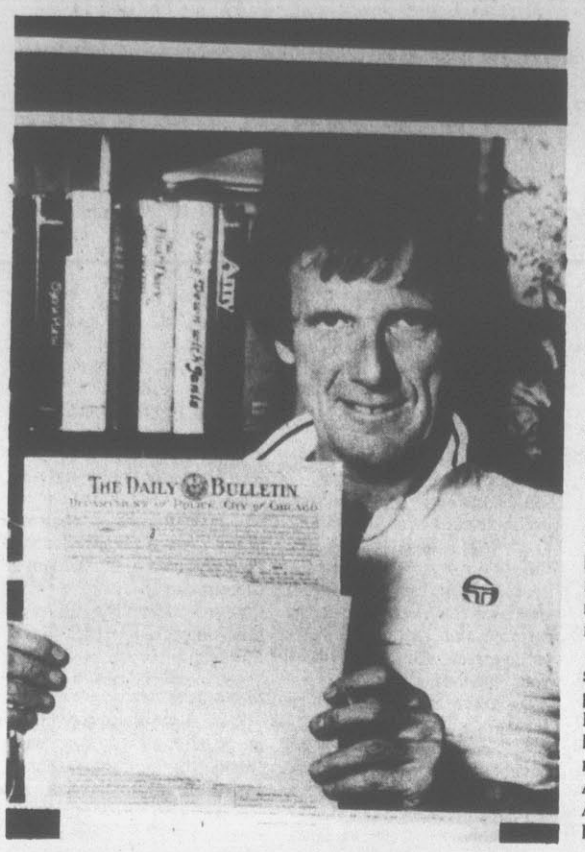
"I would be skeptical that Hemingway did half of it," said Baker. "But how can you tell who did what in a collaboration?"

Until now, historians believed Hemingway's first book was "Three Stories and Ten Poems," published in France in 1923.

"Hokum," copyrighted June 4, 1921, concerns a starving artist's scheme to wed a rich society girl.

"It's cornball," said Young, who is publishing a limited edition of the play. But he says it has flashes of Hemingway's famous style: "His bitter vernacular is evident here in its infancy stages."

Hemingway, who committed suicide in 1961, won the Pulitzer prize for fiction in 1953 and the Nobel prize in literature a year later. Among his most highly regarded novels are "The Sun Also Rises," "A Farewell to Arms" and "For Whom the Bell Tolls."



THE FINDER — William Young holds examples here of a note by Hemingway and a Chicago Police bulletin from 1920 that Morris McNeil Musselman used the backside of to write a manuscript co-authored with Ernest Hemingway in 1920. (AP Laserphoto)

Bill Dana Comedy Is Returning

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Bill Dana, the writer best known as Jose Jimenez, the scared, funny citizen of the old Steve Allen show, is returning to NBC Tuesday in a comedy pilot called "Windows, Doors and Keyholes."

He helped write it and also appears in it. You haven't seen much of Dana on the tube recently, but he's been busy gagwriting. He isn't yet in that Hollywood category called "whatever happened to..."

Bill, born 54 years ago in Quincy, Mass., was talking recently about that category. He was amused that certain show biz folks here had put him in it just because he'd blown town a while.

The departure, he said, was in 1971. Beset with personal woes that included a busted marriage, he tipped his derby and moved to Hawaii to cogitate, write, read and generally take the Pacific breezes.

"It was what you'd call the deja vu part of a career," said Dana, whose career began in 1950, when he teamed up with a pal, Gene Wood, for a comedy act, then became a comedy writer as well as performer.

He left Hollywood because "all of a sudden there seemed a sameness in what I was doing, and I wanted to shake up my life a little bit."

He likened the move to that of Oscar-winning filmmaker Francis Coppola, who left here to set up shop in San Francisco: "I went to be Coppola in Hawaii — to have my poi and eat it, too."

His Hawaiian stay proved productive. He says he wrote comedy ideas, about 40 songs, did a revue and even sketched a syndicated cartoon strip about the environment called "Eco-Jest."

The stay recharged his creative batteries, added Dana, who still has a home on Maui as well as one here. He said he moved back here four years ago, but discovered an odd fact he explained this way:

"What I didn't know, what happened to me in this town, is that I'd lost my credibility as an active member of this (Hollywood) society. Got a great story about anyone with the temerity to stave off:

"Three years ago, I was talking about Marlo Thomas. Somebody said, 'Where's Marlo?' I said she's starring in 'Thieves' on Broadway. And the response was, 'Oh, she's outta town?'"

Dana, who spoke of all this with laughter, not bitterness, was asked what prompted him to move back to all this from Hawaii.

It's simple, he said: "I've always been a workaholic, and there was no way for me to ply my trade there."

As part of the plying, Dana, who thinks of himself as a writer, not a performer, says he's gone into producing with Leonard Stern, head man of Tuesday's comedy show on NBC and an old pal from the Allen days.

He grinned when told the reason American humorist S. J. Perelman, who once fled New York for London, gave as a reason for coming home after a few years: There's such a thing as too much couth.

He was asked if there's a comparable reason, that perchance an overdose of fresh Hawaiian air drove him back to Hollywood's smog.

"Well," Bill Dana sighed, "there's too much reward there, it's too premature. I wasn't ready for heaven. I really didn't have the ability to gear down and enjoy myself in paradise."

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, MAY 16, 1978

Your Daily HOROSCOPE
from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A very good time to put some zip and zest in the details of projects you are involved in now. Avoid becoming so wrapped up in minor personal matters that you miss out on some larger phase of your duties. Be alert to change.

ARIES (March 21 to Apr. 19) Ideal time to get right down to work and handle it most efficiently so that you have big benefits from it. Take time for health improvements. Forget socializing and rest up.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You are magnetic and can gain the favors from others that you desire. Indulge only in pleasures that are not too expensive. Stay within your budget and all is fine.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Take care of minor problems at home wisely and they are soon behind you. Don't be a smart aleck and irk a bigwig, whether in business or at home. Take no risks where health is concerned.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Contact closest friends and come to a better understanding with them. Handle all correspondence, reports intelligently. Get information you need to carry on more efficiently.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Study your present monetary position and make needed changes. A good adviser will be most helpful if you show your best qualities.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study your appearance and interests and see where to make needed changes. Take any health treatments you may need. Be at your best with everyone.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Find more efficient ways to take care of chores that waste so much of your time. Steer clear of a trouble maker who does nothing but aggravate you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Get an early start on an important project and make real progress with it. Gain the cooperation of good pals for some personal aims you have.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) A good time to handle important matters since your thinking is clear. Talk over with a bigwig how best to commercialize on your talents.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Get the data you need at the right sources and then use it wisely. Plan that trip you want to take early in the day. You can make fine new contacts later in the day.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Handle obligations well and gain goodwill that is so important in business. Show loved ones how truly devoted you are and have fine rapport. Be careful in the handling of money.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Be more thoughtful of associates and come to a better understanding with them. Be more concerned about the welfare of mate, loved one.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be exact and painstaking in everything, which is fine, provided you teach ethics early. Otherwise your progeny could get so bogged down with details that big issues are all but forgotten. Teach early to listen in order to understand, since there is a tendency to do all the talking here. Give music lessons to discipline the mind and fingers.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Today's Criptoquip clue: B equals S

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

GOREN BRIDGE

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠KJ10973 ♡A854 ◇7 ♣82
The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
1 ♠	Pass	1 ◇	1 ♠
Pass	1 NT	2 ◇	?

What action do you take?

A.—Partner has shown some scattered values with his bid of one no trump, so we are not inclined to sell out without a bit of a battle.

Partner could have four hearts, or even five, which he could not show because of your spade bid. Nevertheless, we would not introduce such a sketchy suit now, since partner might pass with three hearts and two spades. We would compete with two spades.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AQ105 ♡J8742 ◇7 ♣1092
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 ◇	Pass
1 ♡	Pass	1 ♠	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Two spades. Admittedly you have very fine support for partner's second suit, but nevertheless, your hand contains only one ace, no king and a possible flaw in a singleton in partner's first suit. Since you have already bid a suit freely, a simple raise describes your hand adequately.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠6 ♡KQ965 ◇K83 ♣AQ82
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
2 NT	Pass	3 ♡	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
4 ◇	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Partner's bidding shows a maximum two no trump opening—a good 23 or 24 HCP—so simple arithmetic tells you have at least 37 points in high cards. You certainly intend bidding a grand slam, but it is possible that, because of the unbalanced nature of your hand, hearts might play better than no trump. Since partner's bidding could be based on a heart fit, you should give him time to clarify his holding. Bid five diamonds.

Q.4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KJ982 ♡K9543 ◇7 ♣J6
Partner opens the bidding with one heart. What do you respond?

A.—There is a bid that describes your hand exactly—four hearts. That shows excellent trump support (usually a five-card suit), a distributional hand and not enough strength for a forcing jump raise of partner's suit.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠Q843 ♡8 ◇K962 ♣J763
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—In support of spades your hand is worth nearly 10 points. Since you are maximum for your initial action, you should be delighted to cooperate with partner's effort to reach game. Bid four spades.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠5 ♡Q1062 ◇AJ72 ♣AQ85
The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
1 ♠	Dble.	2 ♠	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Facing a takeout double of one spade, you have a very powerful hand. Even a jump to four hearts doesn't come close to doing your hand justice. We suggest you cue-bid three spades, and see what response that evokes from partner.

Q.7—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AJ74 ◇9852 ♣KQJ72
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♡	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
2 ♡	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♡	Pass	?

What action do you take?

A.—Pass. What started out as a promising hand has become progressively worse as the auction unfolded. It is never advisable to bid no trump when you are void in partner's suit, especially with such a weak holding in the unbid suit. Partner has long hearts, so pass and hope that you have enough for him to make nine tricks.

Q.8—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠A ♡J7 ◇KJ92 ♣AKJ1073
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	1 ♠	2 ◇	2 ♠

What do you bid now?

A.—Your excellent hand has become even more powerful in view of partner's response. A jump raise to four diamonds won't nearly describe the full strength of your holding. The way to alert partner to your slam ambitions is to cue-bid the enemy suit—three spades.

Speaking of Your Health...

A Nation of Back Pain Sufferers

The large fraternity of low back pain sufferers keeps adding new members to its miserable group. Few doctors in the practice of medicine are not bombarded with the universal complaint of pain in the lower back and with the urgent request for relief.

Low back pain extracts an enormous toll in the loss of productivity in jobs and at home. At one time, it was thought that most of the distressing symptoms of low back disorders were due only to bad posture and strain on the spine. Then it was felt that the tendency to overweight and the laziness about regular exercise programs could be additional culprits.

Now, orthopedic surgeons, specialists in bone disorders, are attacking the problem of low back pain in a more intense way. A series of exhaustive tests are make in order to eliminate, one by one, all the possible causes for persistent and distressing low back pain. First, they rule out the possibility of some birth defect. Tumors, arthritis, degenerative disk disorders, muscular imbalance, curvatures of the spine, neurological disease and infections in neighboring areas are all given consideration. X-rays of the entire spine are extremely important in revealing many of these problems.

Specialized studies, myelography, using dyes to help pick up abnormalities, are occasionaly used. Complete blood studies for calcium disorders and for a gouty tendency can be very revealing. Neurological examination and electrical studies of the muscles that surround the spine can also help pinpoint the reason for low back pain.

Bone scans, using the highly developed CAT method (Computerized Axial Tomography), can reveal changes that formerly were not so readily apparent.

Such diligent tests need extraordinary cooperation between doctor and patient if the underlying cause is to be determined. Not unless this is accurately pinpointed can any sensible regime be established. The patient must be prepared for long, arduous testing and often expensive procedures.

There is no way to bypass this intensive investigation. Those who do often fall into the hands of quackery medicine. Manipulation by untrained people, the copper bracelet brigade, mail order belts, "electronic" machines and the wide variety of unguents, lotions and magical jellies ensnare the low back pain sufferer.

The most important reason for avoiding gadgetry and nonmedical "cures" is because it delays finding the fundamental cause of the pain, inviting the possibility of complications.

Trial Set For Sophia, Carlo

ROME (AP) — Movie producer Carlo Ponti and his wife, actress Sophia Loren, are scheduled to go on trial June 24 on charges of illegally transferring $12 million in Italian lire out of the country.

The couple, who have not been in Italy since Miss Loren was stopped by customs officials March 9, 1977, at the Rome airport, are not expected to return to Italy for the trial. Both gave up their Italian citizenship years ago and took French citizenship.

Ponti is the principal defendant in the case. Miss Loren was charged as an accomplice to the alleged removal of currency from Italy. She was additionally charged with illegal export of art objects.

WILLING INMATE

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Cheryl Davis is serving five days in jail, close to the ones she loves. The 27-year-old has been jailed for making harassing telephone calls to the Tampa Police Department — she called officers repeatedly to say "I love you."

Sears Watches Program Image

CHICAGO (AP) — Sears, Roebuck and Co. says it has withdrawn its advertising from the TV shows "Charlie's Angels" and "Three's Company" because the programs had too much sex.

A Sears spokesman said the withdrawals are in keeping with a continuing policy and that Sears commercials have been withdrawn from about 70 shows — including made-for-TV movies — in the last year. Other recent withdrawals, he said, were from "Barnaby Jones" and "Six Million Dollar Man."

Find Women Getting Bigger Share Of U.S. Job Market

By PATRICK J. KILLEN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Putting off marriage and children longer, today's women are gaining an ever-increasing share of America's jobs and now make up 41 percent of the total labor force, the Census Bureau reported Saturday.

Profiling the U.S. population, the bureau said the labor force topped the 100 million mark for the first time in 1977 with a gain of nearly 14.7 million workers in the period from 1970 to 1977. Women accounted for 57 percent of that growth and now hold 41 million jobs.

In 1960, the bureau reported, 38 percent of all American women were employed while in 1977, 48 percent of the women had jobs. During the same period the proportion of men working dropped from 83 to 80 percent.

The ratio of males to females in the civilian labor force declined from 2-to-1 in 1960 to 1.44-to-1 in 1977.

The bureau said the number of working wives continued to increase, rising from 40.5 percent in 1970 to 46.4 percent in 1977.

Young women are delaying marriage and childbearing longer. About 43 percent of the women married in the 20-24 age group in 1977 had not borne children, compared to 36 percent in 1970 and 24 percent in 1960.

The number of women in their early 20s who have not married went from 36 to 45 percent between 1970 and 1977.

Based on interviews with some 53,000 households interviewed monthly, the report pulls together assorted population figures mentioned in earlier surveys. Items:

An estimated 1,914,000 unmarried adults of the opposite sex were living together in 1977, an 83 percent increase since 1970.

The marriage rate went up marginally from 9.9 per 1,000 in 1976 to 10.1 in 1977 but was still below the peak of 11.0 in 1972. The number of marriages in 1977 was 2,176,000, nearly twice the number of divorces, 1,097,000.

About 38 percent of the first marriages of women in their late 20s may eventually end in divorce, the bureau estimated. It said women in the same group with an incomplete college education were more likely to be divorced, 49 percent, than those with exactly four years of college, 29 percent.

The average size of an American household has declined from 3.14 persons in 1970 to 2.86 in 1977.

Median or mid-point family income in 1976 (the only figure available,) in constant dollars, was $14,960, about $500 higher than in 1970, and was 3 percent higher in 1976 than in 1975.

White families had a median income in 1976 of $15,540, black families $9,240 and Spanish origin families $10,260. Families headed by females had a median income of only $7,210 compared with a husband-wife family whose median income was $16,200.

In 1976, about 25 million persons or 12 percent of the population were below the poverty level with blacks making up 30 percent and Hispanics 11 percent of the poor people. The elderly accounted for another 13 percent.

There were 24.5 million blacks in the population in March 1977, representing 11.5 percent of the total. Persons of Spanish origin numbered 11.3 million. Their total included 6.55 million persons of Mexican origin, 1.74 million from Puerto Rico, 680,000 from Cuba, and 2.30 million from Central or South America or other Spanish locations.

The 1977 birthrate was 15.3 per 1,000 population, up from 14.7 in 1976 and 1975. The death rate edged downward to "a historic low" of 8.8 per 1,000, compared with 8.9 in 1976 and 1975.

Order Deposits On Containers

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Iowa has a new law requiring a minimum five-cent deposit on all liquor, beer and soft drink containers.

"Americans are part of a throw-away society," Gov. Robert Ray said as he signed the bill Friday. "Last year the average American threw away 370 beverage containers. That is over 80 billion bottles and cans." Iowans will have to start paying deposits on liquor bottles next May 1, and on all beer and soft drink bottles and cans on July 1, 1979.

MARKETING SPECIALIST

(Textile Auxiliary Chemicals)

GAF seeks an aggressive person whose strong technical knowledge is complemented by a keen awareness of the business factors that go into marketing a successful product line. Requires a BS in Chemistry and five years of experience in the Textile Chemical Specialties field—including some field sales and a working background in lab research, technical service or production processing. Familiarity with application of dye auxiliaries, scours, softeners, lubricants, antistats and wetting agents also a must.

Based in Charlotte, your primary responsibility will be to insure the continued profitability and marketability of our well accepted line of textile chemical specialties. You'll call on customers to provide technical assistance, monitor market trends and recommend plans to improve products and product lines. You'll also interface with R&D, Technical Service Manufacturing and Quality Control areas to create the timely introduction of new products.

Rewards include a fully commensurate salary and fine benefits package. Your success will make a strong impact on our future growth—and yours. Send resume in strict confidence including current compensation to: Employment Manager, P.O. Box 1967 in care of this paper.

'Year Of Love' For Idi Amin

Editors: Correspondent William Campbell is one of the few Western journalists to visit Uganda since President Idi Amin Dada declared 1978 a "year of love and reconciliation." In the following dispatch Campbell assesses the changes that have taken place in Uganda in the last few months.

By WILLIAM CAMPBELL

KAMPALA, Uganda (UPI) — (Delayed) — Uganda appears to be emerging slowly from a seven-year nightmare of fear and death.

President for Life Idi Amin Dada, a man with more blood on his hands than possibly any other national leader, declared 1978 a "year of love and reconciliation" in this beautiful landlocked African country.

Remarkably, given his unpredictable and often tyrannical record since he seized power in January, 1971, Amin is keeping his word, according to residents and diplomats in this hilltop capital.

Amin has put his dreaded State Research Bureau on a tight leash and there have been no purges or large-scale arrests since last summer, when army and air force officers attempted to assassinate him — at least the 14th such coup or assassination attempt.

The infamous Makindye prison, scene of countless tortures and murders, is quiet. Amin himself has been keeping a low and quiet profile.

Shops are full as they have not been for several years. Wary civilians are cautiously venturing back to the sidewalk cafes, bars, restaurants and nightclubs that once made Kampala one of the liveliest capitals in Africa.

Soldiers are a rare sight in the pleasant, tree-lined streets of Kampala's seven hills.

Even a major government reshuffle that Amin has been conducting in the last few weeks has become a hopeful sign.

Although he strengthened his own position by taking over several ministries and the police and prisons, Amin also got rid of some of the more notorious figures in his regime.

They included Ali Toweli, director of police training and head of the Public Service Unit — second only to the State Research Bureau in spreading terror — and Lt. Col. Nasur, commander of the suicide regiment that Amin has used to crush any opposition to his regime.

Brig. Moses Ali, the country's current finance minister and another longtime Amin crony, dropped from sight and was in apparent disgrace.

Col. Juma Oris, his foreign minister, was shunted aside to the relatively unimportant post of lands and water resources minister.

All those men were deeply involved in the early Amin years when "Big Daddy's" goon squads laid waste to a country Winston Churchill once dubbed "the jewel of Africa."

Amin's apparent change of heart is all the more stunning given the record of his first seven years in office.

After ousting President Milton Obote in what was a popular coup, backed enthusiastically by such nations as Britain and Israel, Amin launched a rule of outright tyranny and murder.

As many as 250,000 Ugandans, including former cabinet ministers, judges, civil servants, police officials and army officers, were killed or simply disappeared.

Tens of thousands of terrified Ugandans fled to neighboring countries.

One of those exiles, former health minister Henry Kyemba, accused Amin of eating parts of his victims.

Amin expelled 40,000 Asian traders to launch his economic war and became famous — or infamous — for his outrageous telegrams and other actions.

In trying to assess Amin's new image, diplomatic sources said he appeared more ready now to face reality.

Buoyed by good coffee sales and the high price of coffee on world markets, Uganda's economy appeared to be in better shape than for several years. But some observers said this was basically illusory.

"Everything is continuing to go downhill," one diplomatic source said. "There are new cars on the roads and new tractors.

"But there are no spare parts and no one to maintain machines, elevators or plant equipment. There's no public transport in Kampala and no trucks to move Ugandan products (most of the coffee is flown out)."

"Amin has realized he must repair his relations with other countries to restore the trade links and get the foreign experts he needs to revive the economy."

Ironically, given his past treatment of the Asians, Amin has moved closer to both India and Pakistan, who have sent advisers to Uganda.

Western nations, however, were much more cautious in responding to Amin's overtures for better relations.

There was no indication Britain, which severed ties in 1976, wished to renew contacts. American officials in East Africa said they would be better able to judge Amin's latest about-face "perhaps in another year."

For the average Ugandan, the most obvious signs of Amin's "year of love and reconciliation" are the full shops and a relaxation of tension throughout the country.

Prices are still outrageous, but goods are on sale for the first time in years and there is no shortage of buyers.

Amin personally is again trying to promote the image he carried when he first came to power — that of a jolly, gentle giant.

In public Amin has appeared relaxed and friendly. Even his favorite jazz band took up the theme at a recent concert Amin attended.

"Things are better, things are better," the band improvised for a beaming Idi Amin.

Underwater Park On One Of Key Largo Showplaces

By JOHN PLATERO
Associated Press Writer

KEY LARGO, Fla. (AP) — If Poseidon, the mythological Greek king of the sea, had a favorite vacation spot, it might well have been here off the Florida Keys, where thousands of tourists come each year to enjoy one of the most unique underwater parks in the world.

Its natural beauty protected by state and federal regulation, the John Pennekamp Coral Reef State Park boasts the only living coral reef in the Western Hemisphere. The reef is seven miles offshore and runs for 23 miles along the coast. The only other live coral reef is in Australia.

Only 2,300 of the park's 75,000 acres are on land. But the majority of the 50,000 yearly visitors go to enjoy the crystal clear blue waters and the beauty beneath it.

In addition to the living coral, Pennekamp is the undersea playground of hundreds of species of fish. The park's waters, on the Atlantic side of the Keys, run from 2 to 60 feet in depth within the preserve's 100-square miles. There, numbers of colorful tropical fish abound.

They include many of the fish found in aquariums and home fish tanks. And there are parrot fish, sergeant majors, grouper, angel, moray eels, turtle, barracuda and even shark, to name a few.

The fish seem accustomed to the human invaders who enter their world with underwater cameras, snorkel tubes, scuba gear or glass-bottomed boats.

Since the reef was dedicated by the state as a marine preserve in 1961, there has not been a single report of a shark or barracuda attack on visitors. Some local scuba instructors are known to hand feed some of the barracuda they look on as pets.

The star attraction of the park is a statue — it, too, under water.

Called "Christ of the Deep," the 9-foot-high simple bronze statue stands submerged a couple miles offshore, atop a 20-ton concrete base — its arms upraised, the fingers a few feet from the water's surface.

Rays of light work through the water's surface, lighting up tropical fish attracted to the statue and gradually dissipating near the tiered base 28-feet below.

The statue has a duplicate in 50 feet of water in the Mediterranean off Naples, Italy. That statue, "Christ of the Abysses," was created by Italian sculptor Guido Galletti, who was inspired by Duilio Marcanet, an underwater swimmer.

Mercanet wanted an underwater shrine that could inspire those who lived, worked or played on or under the sea. The shrine also was intended to comfort those who lost loved ones at sea.

Its dedication in 1954 drew international attention and in 1961 a duplicate was cast from the same mold for Egidi Cressi, an internationally known industrialist and undersea sportsman who gave it to the Underwater Society of America. The ocean floor at Pennekamp Park was chosen as its resting place.

Put Eggs In Other Nests

JACKSON, Wyo. (UPI) — Federal wildlife experts, armed with 10 rare whooping crane eggs, set out for an Idaho wilderness Saturday to place the unhatched eggs with "foster parents" — the Sand Hill cranes.

The idea is to increase the miniscule population of the endangered whooping crane by having a cousin to the species hatch the eggs.

Best estimates now show 100 wild and captive whooping cranes in North Ameica, said Cheryl C. Williss, Fish and Wildlife Service spokeswoman in Denver.

The eggs and experts — together with an ABC television crew filming for the American Sportsman — flew into Jackson from Patuxent Wildlife Research Center in Maryland, where the eggs were obtained.

Then it was a 60-mile helicopter ride west to the Grays Lake Wilderness. The whooping crane eggs were to be placed in egg-laden Sand Hill nests. Sand Hill eggs will be returned to Patuxent.

"Sand Hill cranes seem to do real well as foster parents," Ms. Williss said.

However other factors — predators and weather — took their toll in 1977, the third year of the program. "Only one survived," she said. "Obviously, we're hoping for better this year."

The adult whooping crane has a distinctively long neck, white with black wing tips and a seven-foot wing span. By contrast, the Sand Hill variety is gray with a patch of red above the eye and around the crown of the head.

'Why I choose to smoke.'

"Why kid anyone? I smoke because I enjoy it. I'm the kind of guy who gets pleasure out of a cigarette. But I'm not deaf to what's being said about tar.

"So I searched out a cigarette that would give me taste with low tar. And two years ago I found it in Vantage. Vantage has all the taste I enjoy yet, surprisingly, much less tar than my old brand.

"Why did I choose Vantage? Because I like it."
