NCAACE WORKSHOP — The North Carolina Association of Chamber of Commerce Executives held its Spring Executive Workshop at the Holiday Inn and the Willis Building Chamber of Commerce executives from across the state and guests from other areas of the country participated in the two-day event, which began Sunday.

day. C-of-C Role Emphasized

Tim Smith, U.S. Chamber of Commerce legislative and political affairs manager from Atlanta, emphasized the role of local Chambers in governmental affairs during today's session of the North Carolina Association of Chamber of Commerce Executives (NCAACE) Spring Workshop held in the Willis Building.

The two-day event, which began Sunday, focused on the Chamber of Commerce and its involvement within the total environment. Such areas as "Membership and Communication," "Governmental Affairs," "Local Chamber Image," and "Economic Development" were topics of discussion.

Smith, who led a discussion session on "Local Government," said "We're finding out across the nation that the Chamber cannot afford not to be involved in legislative affairs on the local level. The Chamber of Commerce is but a vehicle for business men and women to unify their voices, and that's why we're so concerned that the Chamber has to take a greater role on behalf of the community."

Along the same vein, Greenville Mayor Percy Cox, in an opening comment, told the group that "we do have a strong political party in the Chamber here. The Chamber provides a link between the average people and political activities. It's been good for Greenville."

Dr. Bill Hodge, professor of Management at Florida State University, discussed the various roles played in the Chamber by various people and the role of the Chamber itself.

Hodge emphasized strategies organizations can take in dealing with the total environment. One area in need of change is the roles played by originators, interpolators and administrators. Hodge said most people function in the role of administrators while there is a need for fresh, innovative ideas. Thus, the system needs to be turned upside down so more people can assume roles as originators and interpolators.

HUNGER STRIKE

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Deposed Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto is on a hunger strike to protest poor jail conditions and has taken only tea for four days, says his lawyer, Yaha Bakhtiar.

Small Bomb

WASHINGTON (AP) — A small explosive device blew up today on the sidewalk near the Justice Department's headquarters, causing little damage. No injuries were reported.

District of Columbia police spokesman J.C. Gentile said bomb squad experts were attempting to determine what kind of device was used and who placed it on the ground under a sign reading "Department of Justice."

Hedda Polanski, a public information officer with the department, said the device was a pipebomb.

Police roped off the Constitution Avenue side of the Justice Department and police squads using specially trained dogs searched the area for other bombs.

Gentile said there were no immediate indication of who was responsible.

Virtually the only sign of the explosion was a shiny metal shard about eight inches long on the sidewalk in front of the building.

Energy Pricing Policy

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)

— President Carter, addressing workers at the government's largest electrical utility, today declared that the price of energy "must cover all legitimate costs of production including environmental protection."

Carter's assertion dovetails with long-held contentions of the privately owned utilities, oil companies and other energy producers that environmental costs should be included in prices ultimately paid by consumers.

In an address prepared for a meeting of Tennessee Valley Authority employees, Carter added that energy prices definitely should not cover waste or "windfall profits at the consumer's expense."

The president told his audience that the TVA "is challenging an international uranium cartel and helping to lead the resistance to expanding oil company domination of all of our energy sources."

Carter said his administration "is with you in encouraging more competition, and less concentration of economic power among the producers of petroleum, coal and uranium."

Carter also planned to assure government scientists at Oak Ridge Tenn., that despite his administration's opposition to developing the breeder nuclear reactor there, the mammoth government-owned facility at Oak Ridge remains a frontier outpost of energy research.

Carter flew here today from Plains, Ga., where he was visiting Sunday and where he attended his niece's wedding.

Carter's visit also represented something of a thank-you gesture toward Senate Republican leader Howard Baker of Tennessee, who was in the delegation of official greeters.

Considered a leading contender for the 1980 Republican presidential nomination, Baker supported Carter on ratifying the Panama Canal treaties and approving warplane sales to Saudi Arabia, Egypt and Israel.

Carter was returning to Washington after the Tennessee excursion.

Kolwezi Survivors Relate Rebels' Bloody Rampage

By ALFRED CHEVAL
Associated Press Writer
BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Rebels went on a rampage of murder and rape during their "hunt for the white man" in the Kolwezi fighting, survivors said on arrival from Zaire's copper-mining capital where 170 whites were reported killed. Some accused Zairean troops of looting.

About 1,700 of the 2,500 Europeans and Americans trapped during the May 13-20 siege had been flown to Europe by this morning as

French and Belgian paratroopers mopped up rebel resistance in Shaba Province.

The French Defense Ministry in Paris said rebel forces armed with Soviet-made weapons remained concentrated in a six-mile radius around Kolwezi and were still within smallarms range of its airport.

Olivier Stirn, France's Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, told a radio interviewer in Paris that at least 170 whites had been killed in the Kolwezi area.

Scores of others, including 50 French citizens, are missing and may be held hostage by the rebels, Stirn said.

Following reports of Belgian-French differences over the combined paratroop operation, the office of French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing said Belgian Prime Minister Leo Tindemans telephoned the president today to express thanks "for French efforts to ensure the security of Belgian citizens in Kolwezi."

A Belgian refugee arriving in Brussels who identified himself only as Dupont, an engineer for Zaire's state-owned Gecamines company, said 120 white deaths were confirmed. He said the last whites, mostly doctors and Gecamines managers, were evacuated from Kolwezi Sunday night.

Claude Mercury, a French survivor arriving here, said he feared 170-180 whites had died. Sotiris Casar, a Briton married to an Italian, said on reaching Rome that he believed 200 whites were killed.

Previous reports from the paratroopers who chased the rebels from Kolwezi over the weekend said the rebels killed at least 100 whites, 150 Zaireans and suffered 200 dead of their own.

"It was if the hunting season had been opened in Kolwezi. The hunt was a hunt for the white man," a mining engineer among the survivors who arrived in Brussels said Sunday.

He said four of his neighbors went to their garden gates to find out what was going on in the pre-dawn hours of May 13 and were killed by bursts of rebel machine-gun fire.

Another survivor said the rebels "kept on firing useless volleys in all direction with no reason," and that ragged armed boys were "looting and shooting those refusing to hand over their watches or money while rebels looked on or took part."

One woman said she fled to a private club in Kolwezi "where I knew there were some food preserves. The Zaire army city headquarters was nearby. Some Zaire army soldiers came and said they would protect us. They emptied all the ladies' handbags and pocketed their contents. One lady had a box with money. They took the box away from her."

Jean-Marie Lallemand, a 31-year-old French survivor, said the rebels scarred Frenchmen "on the forehead and cheeks with knives to discourage Zaireans from harboring them."

"I saw three Katangans rape a 10-year-old girl in the presence of her parents and three brothers. People were beaten before they were killed. It was horrible."

Katanga was the name of Shaba Province when Zaire was the Belgian Congo. The rebels, Lunda tribesmen, were driven into Angola in the 1960s after Zaire won independence, and are bent on making Shaba independent of the Zaire government.

Richard Schambourg, a French foreman, said the Zairean soldiers were panicked when the fighting began. "They were shooting in every direction," he said.

"My supervisor's house was razed by artillery fire because there were two Katangans in the yard. We discovered a slaughterhouse in the Zaire army headquarters. Thirty people who had been taken in for safety had been massacred. We are not about to forget these visions of horror."

A nun identified as Sister Helena said, "We were subjected to the worst kind of violence." A 20-year-old Belgian woman said she was raped eight times by rebel soldiers.

Morrison-Knudsen, a Boise, Idaho construction firm building a power line in Zaire, evacuated more than 70 Americans Wednesday. Fourteen others were reported missing at the time, but only one of them — Lonnie Glen, 32, of Yerington, Nev. — was officially unaccounted for.

However, Harold Amstutz, 49, of Portsmouth, Va., a pilot for a Methodist mission in Zaire who was evacuated to Brussels, said Glen, a Morrison-Knudsen security officer, was killed by the rebels.

Berkowitz Goes Berserk At Sentencing In Court

NEW YORK (AP) — A berserk David Berkowitz threw his Brooklyn sentencing for six murders into turmoil today. A judge canceled the proceedings until June 12 and ordered another psychiatric examination for the Son of Sam killer.

Brought briefly into the courtroom in handcuffs, the prisoner began chanting: "Stacy was a whore!" over and over. He was taken out again. Stacy Moscowitz was the last of Berkowitz's murder victims.

Robert Violante, the slain girl's date who also was shot by Berkowitz, stood up in the courtroom and shouted obscenities as the .44-caliber killer was led away.

As guards tried to bring him into the courtroom the first time about 10 a.m., Berkowitz lunged toward a barred window and had to be subdued. In the struggle, he bit and kicked several of the guards and one of them was taken to a hospital, according to a police source.

The extent of the guard's injuries was not known. District attorneys from the three boroughs where the killings took place left the courtroom shortly after the proceedings were to have begun at 10 a.m.

Edward McCarthy, aide to Bronx District Attorney Mario Merola, said Berkowitz told court authorities he did not want to be sentenced — "at least not today."

Berkowitz, who faced prison terms totaling up to 175 years in his sentencings, was in the building but was not seen in the courtroom.

Three judges from three counties — Brooklyn, the Bronx and Queens — planned to deliver sentence in the same courtroom, taking the bench one at a time. The procedure is similar to one they followed two weeks ago when the 24-year-old Yonkers man admitted killing six people and wounding seven others during a 12-month shooting rampage.

Under provisions of state law, Berkowitz will have an opportunity to make a statement prior to each sentencing.

After sentencing, Berkowitz was to be turned over to state Correction Department personnel. But any transfer from Kings County Hospital, where he has been housed since his arrest last August, was not expected for at least several days.

Duplication Study For UNC Still Weeks Away

By The Associated Press
The president of the University of North Carolina says it will be at least three weeks before officials can begin a detailed study of duplication of programs on six campuses.

William C. Friday said the delay in initiation of the study, promised in a desegregation agreement with federal officials, resulted from the large amount of work senior staff members had to do following the compromise agreement.

"It will probably be 10 days or so before we get back on track," Friday said. "Some of these men (senior staff members) have been going 80 hours a week and it's imperative that they get some time off."

The desegregation plan approved by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare calls for a study of program duplication in universities in the same geographic areas and incorporation of the results into a long-range plan to be begun in the 1979-80 school year and concluded by 1982-83.

Friday made his remarks about the study during an appearance in Greensboro.

Meanwhile, civil rights attorney Julius Chambers of Charlotte said in Winston-Salem Sunday he fears the UNC Board of Governors will discriminate against the system's five black campuses

Last year, Berkowitz offered to plead guilty but only if he was allowed to warn the world of the blood-thirsty demons that he said made him kill.

Since then, however, Berkowitz says he has become a born-again Christian and there has been speculation that if he chose to exercise his right to address the court, it might more likely be on religion than demons.

Berkowitz will probably spend only a few weeks in jail, just long enough for department psychiatrists to rule that he is insane and therefore should be committed to a psychiatric hospital.

Task Force Is Aiding Project

A task force group of concerned citizens, "has been the single most important factor in helping to achieve the goal of signing up at least 2,500 Greenville Utilities Commission customers for the first year of the 'Beat the Peak' energy conservation program, according to Reese Helms, manager of GUC's Office of Energy Conservation and Management.

"We have over 2,600 customers signed up for Beat the Peak and have only a few applications left," Helms said.

"It has been very gratifying to see this type of citizen involvement and participation. The work of the task force volunteers has been a big boost to the program," according to Helms.

Organized with the assistance of Linda Starr, who has served as both the task force coordinator and as a neighborhood volunteer, the 17-member group has been making telephone calls and paying personal visits to their neighbors to explain the purpose of Beat the Peak, Helms explained.

"It has been a rewarding experience working with these concerned citizens who not only recognize the problem, but are willing to work toward the goal of reducing electric power costs for all of our customers," Helms said.

Under the Beat the Peak program, designed to reduce the peak demand on the GUC electric distribution system, radio operated switches are installed on water heaters and air conditioning units or heat pumps, so that the utilities can cut the appliances off for brief periods to reduce the peak demand on the system.

Beat the Peak participants receive a $30 discount on their utility bills during the summer, and ultimately help prevent increases in the utility bills of other GUC customers by reducing the increase in demand charges made by GUC's electric supplier, Virginia Electric and Power Co.

Task force volunteers, in addition to Mrs. Starr, include: Patricia Moore, Carlynn Knott, Sally Bramley, Helen Weaver, Parma Howard, Carl Wille, Teresa Litten, and Naomi Vick.

Others include: Sandy Vincent, Sheri Fickling, Stewart LaNeave, Ruth Trevathan, Clarene Powell, Sheri Carter, Beverly Reid and Sidney Womack.

Self-Government Experiment Ends With A Thud

MILL VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — An experiment in self-government by a seventh-grade class has ended in scandal with the teacher assuming dictatorial powers over a make-believe government riddled with real corruption.

"I thought, my God, we've got another Watergate," said teacher George Muldoon after he took power over the "Amasudatamaie" government in his Mill Valley Middle School class.

Muldoon seized power after a meeting Friday when all but four of the 27 students confessed to "crimes" under laws they established when their country was formed in January.

Back then, Muldoon recalled, "they thought I was too strict. I said, 'OK, fine, you set up some rules and live by them.'"

The students set up a capitalist democracy. They printed money, with a picture of a baby on $1 bills, a hippie on tens and a skull on hundreds. Class members had to pay in Amasudatamaie dollars to use the pencil sharpener, books, wastebasket or door. Top bidders won the right to operate the "concessions" and reap the revenues from them.

But within weeks the system began to crumble.

The Department of Beautification, the Orwellian name chosen for the police force, issued a rash of citations for such crimes as sitting on desks and messing up the room.

"Some people never got arrested, though," one student observed. "People with money had more power than the president."

Muldoon said class police eventually fingerprinted the whole class, kept dossiers on them "and me" and began accepting payoffs not to issue tickets.

The bank was also knee-deep in scandal, with the president using bank funds to pay other students to do her work. They, in turn, stole from the coffers.

But the crime that eventually brought Amasudatamaie's downfall was counterfeiting, Muldoon said. The chief culprit admitted Friday that he used a duplicating machine to reproduce more than $300,000.

The racket became so good that he soon "retired" from his job as head of the health department and enticed six other students to join the ring.

When police said they would fine the crew for loafing around on their desks. "We'd just flip them $100 and tell them to forget it," one counterfeiter said.

Finally, Muldoon pulled a coup. "I said, 'OK, your country is falling apart. The police are running amok. Your treasury is broke. Now you're going to be run by a dictatorship.' And I took over."

But that's not the end of the story. Now, Muldoon said, students want to try their hands at a socialist state.

A HOTLINE TRIBUTE
HELPFUL POLICE OFFICER
Last night I was returning home from a fishing trip and was stopped by a Greenville policeman and told my tail lights were out. The officer was extremely helpful and courteous. He did not give me a ticket, but, instead, rode behind me to my home to protect others from following me and also to keep someone from running into me. I did not get this officer's name, but I wish to thank him for his help and consideration. If this is the kind of officer, G. P. D. is using, it is truly a public service.

He Enjoys Making People Laugh

By JULES LOH
AP Special Correspondent
BUTLER, Pa. (AP)—Digger Young, the undertaker, loves nothing more than making people laugh.

After a hard day at the graveyard, or at the Butler County Coroner's office, he will go home, take off his black suit and black tie, put on his clown costume and head for a hospital.

"There aren't many children's wards or nursing homes in Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia that I've missed," he said. "I get about 20 requests a month and it's hard to fit them all in."

Digger has this routine, you see.

He puts on a silly wig and gets on roller skates and his baggy clown pants fall down and in pulling them up he te-ters and scrambles and almost falls again and again but never does and if you can watch him without laughing you are a candidate for Digger's back room.

"I realize that some find it incongruous for a funeral director to be a clown, but I never think of it," Digger said. "Some of my colleagues regard it as undignified. I don't."

Digger is a third-generation undertaker. He doesn't mind being called Digger, either, although his father, who named him William F. Young Jr., objected to the nickname strenuously.

"It's inevitable. Some people are going to get a chuckle out of calling an undertaker 'Digger.' They're going to do it anyhow, so why not relax about it? The world needs more chuckles.

"I've been in business with my name on the door for more than 20 years. I've been corner since 1970, yet I doubt if many people in town know my name. To them, I'm Digger. It's okay by me."

William F. Young Jr. did not aspire to be an undertaker even though he was raised from boyhood in the rooms over the funeral parlor his grandfather established in 1896 in nearby West Sunbury. He and his wife and three children still live there.

What Digger aspired to be was a professional baseball player, and came within a spring tryout with the Yankees of making it. He didn't, though, and decided, all right, he would go to undertaker's school. A family tradition endured.

Meanwhile, just for the fun of it, Digger had taken up roller skating and became accomplished at it, doing tricks, clowning around.

"A friend of mine, a judge here in town who was a Shriner, asked if I would consider being a clown in a Shrine parade. I decided to give it a try.

"My grandmother made me a clown costume and from that moment I was hooked.

"I have about 10 costumes now. I try to find the brightest, gaudiest material I can find. Whenever I see some I like, I buy it. I clown every chance I get, and, no, I never charge a dime.

"I love to clown at parades, at conventions, anywhere. When I go to children's hospitals they love me as a clown. At nursing homes, they love me as a visitor. They don't have many visitors.

"Something else about clowning might surprise you.

"Put on a clown costume and you're immediately accepted. That's important. Today everybody seems suspicious of everybody else and we've accepted that aloofness, that distance, even if there is no basis for it. "Did you ever see a child you just wanted to walk up to and hug? You wouldn't dare. It might terrify him.

"Put on a clown costume and it's okay. The child will love you. Put on a clown costume and walk into a crowded room. You will be accepted without question. You will even be appreciated.

"I deal with sadness and tragedy and sorrow every day. That is a heavy burden, and I accept it, and I give it my best. "Then I become a clown, and I'm laughing again."

On The Young Side

By Sharon Connolly

Excitement rose quickly at Rose High School last week as many juniors hurried to complete last minute details for the Junior-Senior Prom.

On Friday night, the Rose cafeteria was converted into a sparkling heaven with many shining stars to support this year's theme "Stairway to Heaven." Music for dancing was provided by the band Cracker.

The Anchor Club held installation of new officers Tuesday night as the club finalized activities for this school year. In addition to the many club members and crew members, several women from the Pilot Club shared in the activities. At this time, Leigh Ledbetter officially announced Elizabeth Dupree would serve as the new faculty advisor for the club.

Members of the Math Club met Tuesday afternoon to elect new officers including: Jean Kim, president; Nina Diaz, vice president; Lark Shea, secretary-treasurer; and Yousef Barakat, program advisor.

At a recent meeting held by the new Varsity Cheerleaders, new officers were decided. Sharon Connolly will be head for the squad and will be aided by Susan Tucker, co-head. Carol Lee will be secretary-treasurer.

On Wednesday evening, the Concert Choir, Advanced Ensemble and the Girls' Glee Club held a special program of dance and song.

The Spanish Club is now making plans to finalize activities for this year. On Tuesday the club will meet to elect new officers. Plans for a dinner to be held at Taco Sid are also being made. Some of the club members are making arrangements to go to the beach as a group Saturday.

DEAR ABBY: I read in your column a reply to a letter in which you state that you took Catholic instruction. It may be presumptuous of me to question you, but since you are a "public person," may I ask if you were planning to switch to Catholicism from Judaism? We'd hate to lose you.

W.S.O., CENTURY CITY, CALIF.

DEAR W.S.O.: No way. I took the course in order to better understand Catholicism, but I told the priest in advance that I wanted to learn—not turn.

DEAR ABBY: I'm the 33-year-old mother of three adorable little girls. I'd like to know the answer to a question I should probably ask my doctor, but I'm afraid he'll think I'm stupid.

After my third daughter was born, I was very disappointed. I had prayed so hard for a boy because I knew that's what my husband wanted. My doctor tried to console me by telling me I shouldn't feel that I had let my husband down—that the father alone determined the sex of a child.

How can this be? Sign me...

"STUPID"

DEAR MOTHER: I refuse to sign you "Stupid"—yours is an intelligent question.

When a child is conceived, the male's sperm, which contains either a "Y" chromosome or an "X" chromosome for sex determination, fertilizes the female's egg, which contains only an "X" sex chromosome. Each partner contributes one sex chromosome, but the female's is always an "X". Therefore, if the father's "Y" chromosome fertilizes the egg, the baby will be a boy, but if the father's "X" chromosome connects, the baby will be a girl.

Your doctor is right. The father always determines the sex of the child.

DEAR ABBY: I would appreciate it if you would air one more opinion about a habit that crosses all lines of age, gender and social status. It's addressing all women as "honey, darling, sweetie, dear"—and other petronizing phrases by bosses, store clerks, receptionists and a host of others who should know better.

I find it extremely offensive. Abby, you would do women everywhere a favor by printing this so that it can be hung in every elevator, bank, restaurant, business office, doctor's office, law firm and store in the nation.

Sign me...

"NOT YOUR HONEY IN L'VILLE, KY."

DEAR NOT: Many women are in agreement with you—but not all. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were in an elevator with a little old lady who was standing behind us. When the elevator door opened, my husband turned to her and said, "Please go ahead of me, dear."

She gave him a warm smile and replied, "Thank you. You have made my day. It's been years since anyone has called me 'dear.'"

Claims Position Of U.S. Better

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States does not attach strategic importance to every mile of territory in Africa, United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young says.

Young commented in explaining this country's cautious reaction to Soviet and Cuban moves in Africa. He said on a television interview show Sunday that by not overreacting to the appearance of communist influence, the United States is in a better position in Africa than a year ago.

Prudent Approach By Governor

Gov. Hunt last week presented his recommendations for disbursement of $278.9 million in extra state funds during the second year of the 1977-79 biennium.

The state anticipates general fund growth of 13.9 percent this budget year and approximately 10 percent in the 1978-79 fiscal year. But, the governor said, most economic outlooks are for a slower economic growth in the latter part of this year.

As had been expected, the governor recommended a six percent salary increase for teachers and state employees, to cost $116.6 million. There were other recommendations for improving the state's educational system. A major item in recommended new spending was $42.1 million in state, local and federal funds for restoration of Medicaid dental program, coverage of increased Medicaid costs and other Medicaid expenses.

A large part of the recommended spending would go into capital improvements, or about $91.9 million.

The governor pointed out that some of this money would go to needed plant maintenance. And he also noted that capital construction is a one-time expenditure while operating budget items added recur from year-to-year. He indicated caution in increasing continuing appropriations because of the possible slowdown in economic growth.

The governor's recommendations put him at odds with state workers and teachers who want to see a ten percent salary increase.

Nevertheless the governor's proposals at this point are prudent. We don't think the governor and the Legislature should risk straining the state budget in the next biennium.

No doubt there will be some changes when the proposals get to the Legislature, but we would expect to see the recommendations generally followed.

No Surprise In Soviet Union's Stance

Sentencing of Soviet dissident Yuri Orlov and others in the Soviet Union should not be surprising to the democratic world.

It has long been clear that a communist state cannot survive if it allows freedom of expression. Thus all the condemnation we can heap on Russia for this appalling act, will have no effect.

Those of us who live in democratic societies should have had it made clear to us once again, however, what we have to lose if communism takes over.

If communism were such an ideal state, there wouldn't be any need to throw in jail those who disagree.

THIS AFTERNOON

What Kind Of Assembly?

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Warnings from any number of experts both inside and out of the General Assembly are rapidly coming true: North Carolina faces a significant choice between a General Assembly of "citizen legislators" or of professional lawmakers.

Tradition favors a group of citizens who at some sacrifice are willing to spend some time in the state capital tending the public's business.

Demands of the job have grown beyond all reason until assemblymen now must be willing to devote a major portion of their energy to government. Some say this will eventually lead to a Legislature dominated by the wealthy and retired.

Meanwhile, a gradual shift in power balances between the legislative and executive is creating pressures and conditions for further change which will be reflected in the choice between "citizens" or "professionals."

The governor now can run for two terms, a move which will increase power in the executive. To offset that, a number of plans are afoot in the General Assembly:

— The Speaker of the House will likely become a long-term post, and committee chairmen will retain their positions for longer periods;

— The Senate will likely move to a seniority system for committee chairmen and most powerful committee memberships;

— Legislative staff is increasing rapidly and exercising increasing responsibility and influence;

— Lawmakers are studying various ways to exercise greater control over state spending and routine agency performance.

In just a dozen years, the Legislature has outgrown the State Legislative Building, an imposing structure designed to serve the state well into the next century. An adjoining structure costing between $3 million and $5 million is planned.

BILL NOBLITT

Part of the need for the new building comes from larger staff and more time required of lawmakers. Part, however, comes from political ego: the part-time assemblymen now have a secretary apiece, and the little offices designed to house one person are too small for both the legislator and the secretary.

Those favoring "citizen" lawmakers were influential in that building design decision. At that time, it was felt, only committee chairmen needed secretaries. Then senior members got them, so naturally freshmen demanded them, too. Proliferation of committees added to the problem, so a new building is proposed.

Public debate on the central question of what kind of assembly is best for North Carolina could result from the proposal by Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr., that a time limit be placed on the assembly. A "brief but adequate" Constitutional amendment allowing the sessions to run "no longer than necessary to get the job done" appeals to Hunt.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Carter: Black And White

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
ATLANTA — Growing disparity between white and black perceptions of Jimmy Carter's performance as viewed from his own backyard poses political problems for the beleaguered president, embodied in this question:

Can President Carter hold the 90 percent-plus black support he gained in 1976 without endangering his support by whites with their wholly different values and standards of what makes a good president?

On issue after issue, Mr. Carter gets a dramatically different reaction in two neighborhoods — one black, one white — in Georgia's 5th Congressional District on Atlanta's southwest side.

By a 15-to-1 ratio, 50 black voters we interviewed in trim houses along quiet, tree-lined streets approve of the way Mr. Carter is handling the national security issue. But in the nearby middle-income white neighborhood, 40 white voters came down stridently against the president by a 4-to-1 ratio.

This disparity runs deep, with 30 blacks giving the president a "good" or "excellent" rating but not one white scoring him "excellent" and only 9 "good." To black voters, here, the president is on top of his job. The recurring complaint of whites was broken promises and lack of presidential qualifications.

A white 30-year-old salesman explained why he wishes he had voted for Gerald Ford instead of Mr. Carter: "He doesn't know what he's doing half the time." Another white switcher away from Mr. Carter, a 41-year-old lift operator, blamed Congress for lack of cooperation, but told us Mr. Carter "has shown his inexperience," adding: "The most important problem in the country today is getting men capable of running our government."

Armed with questionnaires prepared by Patrick Caddell's Cambridge Survey Research, we interviewed voters in two precincts with the help of Judy Tannenbaum, Caddell's top Atlanta field representative, and four polltakers. Black precinct 9B gave Mr. Carter 97 percent support in 1976. White precinct 8P gave him 61 percent support.

Our political scouting expedition showed continuing immense strength for the president in the black precinct. "He's been traveling the world for peace," a middle-aged black housewife told us. A young truck driver praised his "honesty." A 25-year-old bride said that "putting Andy Young in for the United Nations" had helped make Mr. Carter a good president.

Against this black approval were implications that Mr. Carter's white Southern base is eroding. Mr. Carter's greatest voting gains in the country over recent Democratic presidential tickets came among white Southerners, who gave him about 50 percent support — far above recent Democratic nominees.

Of the 40 white voters we interviewed, 25 said they backed Mr. Carter in 1976, 10 picked Gerald Ford and 5 would not say. Today the president keeps only 17 of those 25, with 5 defectors moving to Ford and 3 to "don't know."

A 39-year-old sales engineer epitomized the white criticism: "Carter hasn't kept his word. He is a weak president who hasn't demonstrated the strength he promised in the campaign."

No such defections showed up among black voters, who gave Ford not a single vote in 1976 and wouldn't today. Their only change was hesitation: 4 of the 40 pro-Carter 1976 voters have switched to "don't know" today. Indeed, Mr. Carter gets extraordinary credit from black voters. He has "cut expenses in the White House," "helped the solar program" and "visited countries no other president ever went to."

The president's "handling the Soviets" was approved by one half the blacks but with 2 out of 3 whites calling Mr. Carter "too weak." Only 3 blacks, but more than half the

Strength For Today

UP FROM MISERY

The magnificent Symphony in C Minor by Ludwig von Beethoven is, in one sense, a page torn out of his life written in blood. Beethoven was continually harried by discouragements and pain. His greatest trial was his deafness, and as this increased he realized that the time was coming when he could not hear a single note of his magnificent compositions. His wretchedness, as one observer put it, "shrieked to high heaven," and thoughts of death laid hold upon him in a most morbid fashion. As he struggled with himself and his many problems, a great musical theme began to filter through his mind, colored by all these events which were driving him to despair. The result of all this suffering was the Symphony in C Minor, which is a kind of musical picture of how a soul sorely tried rises above its misery. The symphony ends on a bold, triumphant note. Beethoven was fortunate in finding one way of triumphing over his sufferings. Other ways are available for all of us, if we will only seek them. —Elzha Douglas

Poor People's Poor Image

WASHINGTON — Unless I'm mistaken, the big political issue in this fall's election is what is happening to the "middle class" in America. The standard cliché in this country is that the rich and the poor are getting everything, and the middle class is being left out in the cold.

It may be true about the rich, but there is some doubt that the poor class is as well off as the politicians might have you believe.

Since it's too early for the candidates to talk to the poor people (they usually wait until the week before the election to take a walk through a ghetto), I decided to find out if the poor people were as lucky as the middle class thinks they are.

My source was Target, who fits all the qualifications of being poor. He's unemployed, lives in a slum and needs food stamps to keep his family from starving.

"Target," I said, "there's a lot of hostility from members of the middle class because they think you poor people have it made."

"Don't I know it?" Target said. "We're really getting it for being poor. The vibes are everywhere."

"How do you explain it?" "Well, as I see it, the middle-class people are mad at us because they feel that their taxes are supporting the poor. They're not half as mad at the rich people, because they all hope to be rich someday themselves, and they dream of having everything the rich are entitled to. Now, despite the fact that they think we poor are having a ball, I haven't met one person from the middle class who wants to change places with me, though God knows I've made the offer a thousand times."

"That's true. The middle class never thinks it's supporting the rich," I said. "In their hearts, middle-class people think the only ones getting their tax money are the poor."

"Right. But the truth is that a large proportion of the money set aside by the government for the poor is actually going to the middle class. Thousands and thousands of bureaucrats are making very nice middle-class salaries administering the poverty programs. I would guess that the poor people get about ten cents on the dollar, and the rest goes to keep us poor people honest."

ART BUCHWALD

"It's true that people get angry when they read a story about the poor people cheating the government," I said.

"Of course, they do. But nobody gets uptight when doctors, military contractors, and large corporations rip off the government. They figure that's a part of the game. The difference between poor people and the big guys is that they can plead 'no contest' and get fined, while we're urged to plead 'guilty' and take the jail sentence."

Target went on, "The trouble with the middle class is when you mention poor people, they think of blacks, Hispanics and American Indians. They forget that there are millions of poor people eking out a bare existence on Social Security. They're white, elderly and were once part of the middle class until they were wiped out by inflation. Most of them are parents of your present middle class, but when they get mad at the poor they never include their own mothers and fathers in their grouching."

"Is there any way to improve the image of the poor in this country?" I asked Target.

"I believe, there is. Once middle-class people realize that we're supporting them more than they're supporting us, they might become more sympathetic to our plight. If I have any legitimate criticism of the poor class, it's that in spite of our numbers we've never gotten our story over to the people. The rich do that so much better."

Forum To Get Votes

By JAY PERKINS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)

There is nothing like a congressional hearing to give an aspiring Senate candidate a boost in the old campaign.

Particularly if you can get a half dozen top administration officials — including a couple of White House advisors — to appear in supporting roles.

And if you can find a news-worthy topic — say drug smuggling — to discuss, so much the better.

New Mexico Attorney General Toney Anaya, a candidate for the Senate seat now held by Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., put it all together during a recent appearance before a Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee.

And although his testimony was not exactly bathed in the floodlights of television cameras, he can only hope that his campaign goes half as smooth as his hearing.

Anaya admittedly had a purpose, other than political aspirations, for his appearance before the subcommittee. And the deference given him by other witnesses clearly could be ascribed to his work in the past year to get the federal government to improve its ability to catch drug traffickers.

But the problems of combatting drug trafficking is one of his campaign issues. And his appearance before a Senate subcommittee, surrounded by top administration officials, obviously could not hurt his campaign.

This certainly was not the first time Democrats — or Republicans, too, for that matter — have rolled out the carpet for an aspiring candidate. Former New York Knicks basketball star Bill Bradley, a Democratic candidate for the Senate seat held by Republican Clifford Case, got a similarly nice reception in a recent appearance before another committee.

More than a dozen reporters were on hand as Anaya told a Senate subcommittee how his state's efforts to halt drug smuggling often are ruined because of overlapping investigations by one — and sometimes two and three — federal agencies.

He also told how drug smugglers were far better financed — and sometimes far better armed — than the state and federal officials who were trying to catch them.

And then, in response to a friendly question from Sen. George McGovern, D-S.C., the subcommittee chairman, he told how he eventually became so frustrated with the federal effort that he opened his own talks with Mexican officials in hopes of gaining their cooperation in curbing drug trafficking.

Although Anaya was only one of seven members of a panel which included officials such as White House health advisor Peter Bourne and various top drug enforcement officials, he clearly was the star.

Despite the smoothness of the hearing, the attorney general faces a rough battle for Domenici's seat.

U.S. Investment Record Review

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — If you believe, as some do, that the United States has lost some of its attractiveness as a place to invest, you should consider these recent items:

From the Conference Board, a non-profit educational and research organization supported mainly by business: "The United States was the site of nearly half the 214 worldwide manufacturing investments in the first quarter of this year."

"While the latest count is down from the 235 investments announced in the fourth quarter of 1977, this was more than offset by the generally larger size of first-quarter projects."

From Salomon Brothers, the securities firm: "Foreign investors' purchases of U.S. Treasury securities accelerated in the first quarter of this year."

"In the first three months of 1978 alone, foreign holdings in custodial accounts at the New York Federal Reserve Bank swelled to $88.3 billion, an unprecedented increase of $12.5 billion for just three months."

"Foreign investors, mostly official institutions, are now the largest single factor in the U.S. Government securities market."

From the head of North American operations for an Italian manufacturing company:

"There is only one country in which to invest today. Because of political and social problems, it is too risky to put money into some developed countries. The United States is the only safe investment."

From the National Association of Realtors: "Just how extensive are foreign investments in U.S. farmlands? The answer is elusive."

"As of the end of 1974, according to the survey by the Commerce and Treasury Departments for the Foreign Investment Study Act of 1974, foreign interests owned just over 1 million acres of agricultural land in the United States."

Part of what makes the United States attractive to foreigners is the lower value of the dollar in relation to foreign currencies, which makes American goods and services that much less expensive to buy.

But such an explanation is simple to the point of not being one at all. A better explanation is that foreigners are simply acting like all prudent investors:

They are concerned foremost with the security and high yield of their investment, and they feel that relative to many other countries the United States still offers the best deal available.

Still Cleaning Up Big Oil Spill 2 Months Later

By PAUL TREUTHARDT
Associated Press Writer

BREST, France (AP)—Two months after the world's worst oil spill, 6,000 French soldiers are still cleaning thick black tar foot by foot from the beaches, rocks and bays of northern Brittany.

"A month ago, two weeks ago, I was optimistic. Now I'm frankly pessimistic," said Lt. Col. Jean Croguennec, senior Civil Defense officer at pollution clean-up headquarters.

"We clean a beach and 24 hours later, it's covered again with tar balls the sea has washed up. We've cleaned some beaches six times now," he said.

More than 219,000 tons of crude oil — the equivalent of about 65 million gallons — were spilled into the sea when the American-owned but Liberian-registered supertanker Amoco Cadiz was wrecked March 17 on the Portsall rocks north of Brest and less than two miles offshore.

Today fish from the oil-soaked inshore waters remain tainted. France's richest oyster beds will not be productive for months to come and the fast-approaching season in France's second largest tourist region has been severely threatened.

"All the big mechanical work is over, pumping oil from the waterline and scraping beaches with bulldozers," Croguennec said. "Now it's a job of picking up tar balls one by one, shoveling oil-soaked sand from between the rocks, washing down the rocks. It's a Herculean task and it seems endless."

Thousands of volunteers came to Brittany shortly after the spill to help clean up the area but created such difficulties of organization and lodging they were gently encouraged to leave.

In the past two months, the clean-up has produced 32,000 tons of waste liquids, most being treated at recovery stations, some 60,000 tons of bulk solid waste, and a further 242,000 small plastic sacks of solids that will be treated and used as road-fill.

The soldiers work two-week spells on the clean-up, rotating from bases all over France. "We always send them to a different beach when they come back, it's better for morale," Croguennec said.

A squad of 26 men from a mechanized infantry division was at work on the 100-yard beach at Pors-Mer near Plouescat, filling plastic sacks with tar, sand and seaweed.

"We shifted 30 tons one day," said the squad's lieutenant, "but twice a day, with each tide, the stuff comes in again."

The latest technique is to hose down the rocks with near-boiling fresh water from high pressure pumps. After much scientific debate, dispersants are finally being used to clean tourist spots in carefully selected coastal spots. "It's a trade-off we have to make against possible environmental damage," Croguennec said.

There is general agreement that on the exposed coastline, the storms of next winter will finish the clean-up job. But in the calm "abers," fjord-like inlets that are rich oyster grounds, traces of oil may linger for years.

The cost of the clean-up and damage payments is not yet known, "but it will obviously be far greater than the $30 million of pollution insurance," Croguennec said. The new pumps alone cost 70,000 francs, the equivalent of $14,500 each and 120 have been ordered.

Under international agreements, $30 million is the maximum the French government can claim. But officials have said they expected "talks" over extra compensation, and one private group in Brittany is suing Amoco in the Chicago courts.

The French government is making "advance payments" to unemployed fishermen and oyster harvesters in the region. Oysterman Alain Madec said there was general agreement not to market any oysters "until we are certain not even one is tainted."

Fishermen generally are staying in port until scientific examinations of test catches also show them untainted.

Preliminary scientific surveys show "heavy deposits of oil on the seabed, near the coasts, and a strikingly heavy concentration, as much as 10 times the normal amount, half way out into the English Channel and deep into the water," said a spokesman for France's national oceanographic research center in Brest.

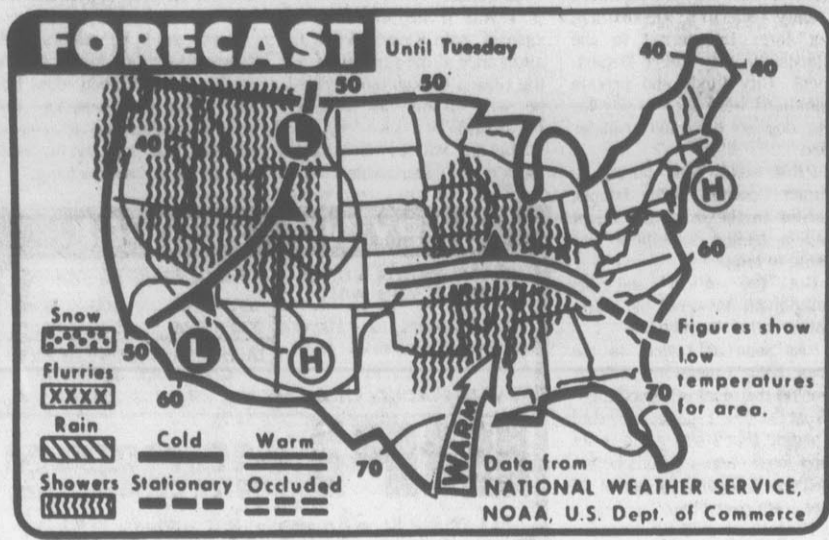

The spokesman said it was too soon to predict the longer-term effects of the spill. Initially there was a heavy toll of shellfish and smaller creatures in the coastal life cycle, and 2,800 dead birds were found, which experts said indicated a total bird kill of at least 12,000.

The Union of Hotel Owners in western Brittany reports summer booking down by as much as 40 percent, including areas far from the oil-spill zone.

Portsall itself, where the bulbous bow and bridge of the shattered tanker are still visible, is fully booked for August, the traditional French vacation month, but are down for July, said Deputy Mayor Jules Legendre.

In Brest, Capt. Pasquale Bardari, the Italian master of Amoco Cadiz, is a lonely figure in the lobby of a hotel. He is forbidden to leave Brest until his trial on a charge of "negligent pollution," which may not take place for some months.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Showers are due today in the Northwest and from eastern Texas and the central Mississippi Valley to the southern regions of the upper Great Lakes.

Warm temperatures are forecast for the Southeast, cool readings in the Northwest and the rest of the country is expected to have seasonably mild weather. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
Cooler weather prevailed over North Carolina today as temperatures in the 70s replaced the 80s of Sunday. The cooler readings came in the wake of a cold front that moved across the state during the night and headed out to sea today.

Increasing cloudiness was forecast for the western part of the state tonight and there will be a chance of rain in the mountains. It is expected to become mostly cloudy with scattered showers over much of the state Tuesday.

New Bern was one of the warmest reporting points in the state Sunday with a high of 91 degrees. Asheville reached 82 and readings generally were in the 80s elsewhere except at higher elevations in the mountains.

The extended forecast calls for a chance of rain Wednesday, becoming fair and warmer Thursday and Friday.

and long sleeves. She wore a white carnation corsage with white baby's breath. The grandmothers were presented corsages of white miniature carnations.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man. Bob Taylor, brother of the bride of Greenville, was head usher, assisted by Ernest Hooks of Winterville and Lyndy Kittrell of Greenville.

Mrs. Louise Hearne provided organ music. G. W. Harris sang "If " and "The Wedding Prayer." Mrs. Julia Moore directed the wedding.

The bride's parents entertained at a reception in the church fellowship hall following the ceremony. The refreshment table was covered with a white linen and lace cloth, with by a centerpiece of blue, white and yellow spring flowers, surrounded by candles.

Mrs. Shirley McLawhorn poured punch, while Mrs. Martha Turner served the wedding cake. Mrs. Christine Croom and Mrs. Joyce Hill assisted in the serving. Mrs. Libby Wall was present at the register table centered with a picture of the bride and a long-stemmed red rose. She said the good-byes.

The after-rehearsal dinner was given at the home of the bridegroom's parents, honoring the wedding party and out-of-town guests.

The bride, a graduate of D. H. Conley High School, is employed at Burroughs Wellcome Co. The bridegroom, also a graduate of D. H. Conley, is employed at Boyd Associates, Inc.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in Greenville.

Thurmond On Trial Today

AIKEN, S.C. (AP) — Dr. Allan G. Thurmond, brother of U.S. Sen. Strom Thurmond, was scheduled to go on trial today in U.S. District Court, charged with committing 34 acts of Medicaid fraud.

Also on trial will be Nell C. Shaffer, Dr. Thurmond's nurse. He is an obstetrician and gynecologist in North Augusta.

Because of Dr. Thurmond's political connections in South Carolina, the U.S. Court of Appeals has appointed U.S. District Judge Robert R. Merhige Jr. of Richmond, Va., to preside over the trial.

Thurmond was indicted Feb. 14 on charges of submitting false Medicaid claims for payment of services between June 1973 and January 1976.

The maximum penalty on each of the 34 counts is a fine of $40,000 and five years in prison.

The indictment says Dr. Thurmond received $9,275 in Medicaid payments for women treated by other doctors and personnel at University Hospital in Augusta, Ga. Claims for the women were filed by Dr. Thurmond and Mrs. Shaffer, the indictment says.

The indictment listed the names of women patients, amounts of money and treatments claimed to be made by Dr. Thurmond over the two-and-a-half year period. Most of the claims involved fees of about $300.

Dr. Thurmond was first accused of making false Medicaid claims in January 1977, when the state Legislative Audit Council listed him along with about 20 other doctors as having submitted claims for services not rendered.

The council said Thurmond had been overpaid by $28,910. Thurmond sent the Department of Social Services a check for that amount.

Brown Beauty's sponsors, Ohio State University students Mark Schad and Stuart Ensor, said they borrowed the chicken from a nearby farm.

In all, 119 entries flapped, fluttered or flopped to the delight of about 1,200 spectators over the weekend. Most of the entries flapped about 30 feet and landed ungracefully on their tail feathers.

"It's the slowest growing sport in the United States," said Lee Durieux, a spokesman for the International Chicken Flying Association.

Durieux and Bob Evans, on whose southern Ohio farm the contest was held, hatched the idea of the association.

"We used to do this stuff when we were kids," said Evans, a 59-year-old sausage producer and restaurant owner. "It's kind of a crazy thing, but people like it," he said.

Charles Loving, a chicken flyer from Luchenbach, Texas, agreed. But, he added, "when you fly from Texas up here to fly one chicken, it's an expensive sport."

Loving's bird, a 34-ounce bantam named Cocoa Cluck, is a relative of a record-holder, Mrs. Cluck.

The Guinness Book of World Records says Mrs. Cluck's 1975 flight of 267 feet, 11 inches in Texas is a world record.

However, Durieux said the record book since has recognized a 297-foot, 2-inch flight at

Flying Chicken Title Awarded

RIO GRANDE, Ohio (AP) — There was a flutter of activity as the contestants — some fat, some skinny, all unwilling — arrived for the big event.

And when the dust settled at the seventh annual International Chicken Flying Meet, Brown Beauty, a portly 56-ounce Ohio farm bird with no training, strutted away the champion after flying 113 feet, 5 inches.

Brown Beauty's sponsors, Ohio State University students Mark Schad and Stuart Ensor, said they borrowed the chicken from a nearby farm.

Liquor Arrests Reach Three Counties

Safeguards For Whistleblowers

By JOHN F. BARTON
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. James Abourezk said Saturday he has introduced legislation to protect "whistleblowers" federal employees from reprisal if they reveal wasteful, illegal or improper government activities.

"No one has lifted a finger to protect whistleblowers" despite President Carter's campaign promises to do so, Abourezk, D-S.D., told several hundred present and former federal employees at a "Whistleblower's Conference on National Security."

He said those who try to expose wrong-doing or ineptitude within the intelligence and national security agencies are particularly vulnerable.

"Dissenters who appear in national security agencies are subject to an end to their careers," said Abourezk. "Either you are completely loyal to the agency, right or wrong, or you are out."

"Contrary to what this administration says, whistleblowers are fired. They can be certain only of one thing: Monumental legal bills."

The senator argued that the government has no right to use terms of employment as "a prior restraint" against free speech.

His legislation would establish a special counsel empowered to take action against federal officials or employees who retaliate against whistleblowers, including those within the intelligence agencies.

Abourezk was loudly applauded by the audience, many of whom said their careers had been hurt because they tried to publicize large cost overruns or government activities harmful to the public health.

Citing cases of whistleblowers subjected to retaliatory pressure, Abourezk said Ernest Fitzgerald, a Defense Department official who once publicized huge cost overruns in weapons projects, "now rots away his professional career in the attic of the Pentagon."

"Frank Snepp and John Stockwell did not sign away their first amendment rights," he said in reference to two former CIA employees who are in trouble for writing books critical of CIA operations in Vietnam and Angola.

"The agency is not the master, nor the employee its slave," Abourezk said.

Calling the Civil Service Commission "a whistleblowers graveyard," he said the administration "has turned its back on reform."

"In agency after agency, the same thugs who intimidated people under the Nixon and Ford administrations are doing business as usual," Abourezk said to shouts of "Yes!" and bursts of applause.

Sponsored by the Institute for Policy Studies, the conference held workshops Saturday outlining legal options available to whistleblowers.

Arrests were made in Pitt, Martin and Greene Counties on charges relating to liquor law violations this weekend as agents of the Alcohol Law Enforcement Agency conducted several raids.

Pitt agents Danny Dilda and Warren Hopkins reported that five persons were arrested in Pitt County and eight charges preferred with an estimated $60 worth of liquor confiscated.

The agents said that Leonard Langley, 35, of 116 Taylor Turn, Farmville, was arrested at 2:30 a.m. Sunday and charged with possession of an assortment of cans and bottles of beer for the purpose of sale, possession of 1.5 gallons of tax paid whisky in an unauthorized place, and possession of 1.5 gallons of tax paid whisky for the purpose of sale.

Langley was arrested at Ballards Inn on rural paved road 1738 near Ballards Crossroads.

Soloman W. Maye of 1204 Merwin Avenue, Greenville was arrested at 2 a.m. Saturday at the Pleasant Plain Inn near Ayden and charged with possession of a quantity of tax paid whisky in an unauthorized place, the agents said.

The officers also arrested Thomas Carmon III of 405 Line Street, Greenville, and William Dixon, 31, of 123 Zeno Street, Farmville, early Saturday on liquor law violations.

Carmon, 31, was charged with possession of intoxicating beverages for the purpose of sale, while Dixon was charged with consumption of intoxicating beverages after legal hours. Both Carmon and Dixon were arrested at 2:30 a.m. at the Scorpio Club in Farmville.

Ricky Little, 23, of Rt. 1, Box 314, Bethel, was arrested Saturday on Church Street in Bethel and charged with unauthorized consumption of intoxicating beverages.

The agents assisted in the arrest of six persons on 14 charges in Greene County and four persons on seven charges in Martin County over the weekend. All of the charges related to liquor law violations, they said.

An estimated $500 worth of liquor was confiscated in Martin County, it was pointed out, while alcoholic beverages with an estimated value of $300 were confiscated in Greene County.

Poultry

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA) — The North Carolina f.o.b. dock broiler market today was steady, supplies moderate, demand good, weights desirable. The dock weighted average price for this week is 46.33. Estimated slaughter today 1,398,000.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market swung upward again today in relatively quiet trading, rebounding from the setback it sustained late last week.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which fell 11.52 points last Thursday and Friday, gained back 2.51 to 849.36 by noontime today.

Gainers held a 6-5 advantage over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said a further rise in the dollar in foreign exchange today was working in the market's favor. The dollar's recent recovery is presumed to have reawakened foreign investors' interest in U.S. stocks.

On the negative side of the ledger, brokers noted concern over credit-tightening by the Federal Reserve. Actions by the Fed last week were interpreted as a signal that the central bank was pushing short-term interest rates higher for the third time this spring.

Gaming stocks continued to attract buyers with the first casino slated to be opened in Atlantic City, N.J. this week. Caesar's World rose 1 1/4 to 19 1/4 and Bally Manufacturing, which makes slot machines, added 1 1/4 to 31 1/4.

The NYSE's composite index gained .14 to 55.09. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .54 at 145.20.

Volume on the Big Board came to 11.59 million shares as of noontime, down from 15.30 million at the same point Friday.

Justices Decline To Act

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today left intact police-hiring practices in Rochester, N.Y., that give preference to applicants from racial minorities.

The justices refused to hear an appeal by 16 unsuccessful white applicants for police jobs who claimed the practices are a form of illegal racial discrimination.

The court's action today does not represent any ruling as to the merits of the city's police-hiring policies.

The justices merely left standing a decision of the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals that the 16 white applicants had no legal right to challenge the policies because they had waited too long to do so.

Still pending before the high court is the "reverse discrimination" case of Allan Bakke, an unsuccessful white applicant to a California medical school who claims he was the victim of unconstitutional race bias.

The court's decision in Bakke's case, expected sometime before July, could be its most important statement on race relations since it outlawed segregation in 1954. The future of hundreds of "affirmative action" programs throughout government and private industry could be affected by the Bakke ruling.

The Rochester controversy stems from a 1974 lawsuit filed against the city by a group of minority members who had unsuccessfully sought city police jobs.

Police Move On Rioting Miners

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Police moved in with tear gas to quell rioting black workers who burned down several buildings at a gold mine south of Johannesburg, police and mine officials reported today. They said 14 men were injured in the disturbances.

A spokesman for the Anglo-American Corp., which operates the President Steyn mine, said it was trying to determine the cause of Sunday night's "labor unrest."

He said the situation at the mine at Welkom, 150 miles south-southwest of here, was "calm and under control" today. Police arrested 16 men Sunday night and were continuing to patrol the area.

The mine employs 15,000 workers, all but 1,300 of them black.

Dollar Opened Strongly Higher

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar opened strongly higher in Europe today due to anticipation by money dealers that U.S. interests rates will go up soon.

Higher interest rates mean that dollar-investors earn more for their money.

Gold rose in London, where the morning fixing price was $179.35 an ounce, up from $178.85 at the close on Friday.

In Tokyo, where trading ended as European markets were opening, the dollar closed at 228.95 yen, from 227.375 on Friday.

Elks of Route 7, Greenville collided with the police vehicle driven by William Ronald McLawhorn of Route 1, Greenville, resulting in an estimated $600 damage to the city car and $900 damage to the Elks auto.

Officers charged McLawhorn with failing to stop for a stop sign following investigation of the mishap.

Stunt Flying, Displays And Rides At Air Show

Skydiving, stunt flying, displays and rides, and a flying exhibition highlighted the Alfa Aviation Air Show held Sunday at the Pitt-Greenville Airport.

City Councilwoman Judy Greene, County Commission Chairman Alton Gardner, Alfa owner Les Fuchs and General Manager Duane Eisenhauer cut the ribbon to open the show. There were more than 30 aircraft on display to the approximately 2,000 persons who attended the free air show.

Airplane rides around Greenville were available to the public for a small charge.

An unmanned radio-controlled model aircraft exhibition was held by James Mayo and Frank Coburn. One of the model planes weighed 16 pounds and had a wingspan of more than 10 feet.

A flyby was staged by Alfa pilots, Randy Snead, Nelson

Striplin, Duane Eisenhauer and Mike Allison. Featured was side-by-side flying of two 300 mph twin-engine Grumman Aerostars.

Dr. John Hartness, a Rocky Mount dentist, stunt flew in a Pitts biplane.

Daredevil pilot Douglas Croom followed in a single-engine Flying Decathlon. He "stopped the show" by cutting off his engine at the top of a loop, diving from about 800 feet, then restarting and pulling the craft out of the dive.

The show was climaxed by parachutists, Steve Torrent and John Van Drasec of Cherry Point, who jumped from 4,000 feet and landed in a designated area about 50 feet from the spectators.

Proceeds of soft drink and hot dog sales will be given to charity, Fuchs said.

No More Lady's Price Discount

COLUMBIA, Md. (AP) — That 10 percent discount on wine purchases for the ladies will no longer be offered on Tuesdays at the Richburn Liquor Bowl.

Store owner Herbert A. Richards said the promotion gimmick was started because men make most of the liquor purchases, and Tuesdays are particularly slow days.

Gene Eng was rebuffed in an attempt to take advantage of the discount, and he complained to the Howard County Office of Human Rights.

Richards was eventually told to stop the discount practice or give men a similar cut — so he dropped the promotion.

As for Eng: "I just wanted to make the point that equal rights are for everyone."

Joashley Marshall Colcord of 1738 Beaumont Dr., charged with the use of an explosive or incendiary device in the firebombing of Tarheel Truck Rentals on Airport Road here May 17, was released from Pitt County Jail early Friday night following a first appearance hearing in District Court during which his bond was reduced.

Colcord, a 53-year-old East Carolina University associate professor had been held since Wednesday afternoon under $25,000 bond for allegedly causing an explosion and fire which burned Tarheel Truck Rentals' owner G. Vincent Howell.

At the Friday hearing, Judge Norris Reed reduced Colcord's bond to $15,000 at the request of Colcord's attorney.

Colcord was released from jail at 6:45 p.m., and is scheduled to appear at a preliminary hearing May 31.

Women Slowly Win Status Jobs

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's better-paying, higher-status jobs are slowly but increasingly being filled by women, says the Conference Board, a non-profit business research group.

A study released Sunday by the organization showed that women — more than 40 percent of the labor force — made slow but steady progress toward management, professional and some craft jobs from 1970 to 1975. The study said that due to stringent federal laws and regulations mandating non-discrimination in employment, the gains signal "the start of a major trend."

ESCROW

One word used frequently in real estate matters but not too well understood by the layman is the word "ESCROW."

This word normally pops its head with regard to "deposit" or "earnest money" paid at time of signing a purchase and sales agreement. This deposit is held in "escrow" of a "trustee" account until the closing. The word "ESCROW" may occur again at the culmination of the sale of a home if any of the terms of the purchase and sales agreement are incomplete. This sum of money is placed in the hands of an impartial party (usually the attorney or the bank) by one party of the transaction and is not released to the other party until he meets specific conditions.

For example, if there is painting or landscaping to be completed at the time of the closing, the money for this work can be held in escrow until it is completed. In this way, the passing of title will not be held up until the job is completed, yet both parties are protected.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at BLOUNT & BALL REALTY CO. 201 E. Arlington Blvd., Greenville. Phone: 756-3000. We're here to help!

Block That Shot

NBA championship series game Sunday in Seattle. Going up for a rebound is Seattle's Bruce Seals (45). (AP Laserphoto)

Sonics Rally To Victory

SEATTLE (AP) — Dick Motta knew it was going to happen, but there was nothing he could do to stop it.

"We figured Freddie would do some of that. He was getting his shots," said Motta, the Washington Bullets coach. "He's probably the purest shooter in the league."

The subject of Motta's praise was Seattle's veteran guard, Fred Brown. Brown victimized the Bullets for 16 of his game-high 30 points in the final 9½ minutes Sunday, and the Super-Sonics fashioned a hair-raising comeback to beat Washington 106-102 in the opening game of the National Basketball Association championship series.

Game 2 of the best-of-seven series will be Thursday night at Landover, Md.

"He (Brown) can miss his first 20 shots and still win the game for you. He doesn't get discouraged. His shots are going to be in the hole from an unlimited range," said Motta of the 6-foot-3 Brown, who took 30 shots Sunday and made just 13. But Brown's baskets came when the Sonics needed them most.

"We got us in a wonderful, fine mess," said Brown of the Sonics, who trailed by 19 points late in the third period. "I told them (his teammates) we had made our bed and we had to get out of it."

Brown, the Sonics' No. 1 draft pick from Iowa seven seasons ago, ignited the comeback with a short jumper that began a run of 12 consecutive points and brought Seattle back into the game.

"I got rhythm from them (teammates)," said Brown, who gave Seattle its first lead of the game, 93-91, on a break-away with 5:07 to go.

"We're not going to die. This ball club isn't going to quit. We've done this all year," said Brown.

"I thought it was a super comeback," said Seattle Coach Lenny Wilkens, whose club won its 21st straight game at home, including nine in the playoffs.

"One thing about these players, and they have done it all year long, is that they don't give up," Wilkens said. "They don't win all the time, but they fight to the end."

The Bullets were in complete command in the early going behind the play of Elvin Hayes and Kevin Grevey. Washington led 58-49 at halftime and was up by 19, 84-65, with 2:26 left in the third quarter.

But the Bullets played as though they were shackled with ball and chain in the final 14½ minutes of the game. Seattle outscored Washington 41-18 in that stretch for the triumph before a deafening Coliseum sell-out crowd of 14,098.

Simons Wins Memorial

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — Jim Simons tamed his nerves, his idol and one of America's toughest golf courses all at once.

His dividends were unprecedented — a cherished conquest of Jack Nicklaus and his biggest payday Sunday in seven years of tour activity, $50,000 as the Memorial Tournament champion.

Aside from a fist punched skyward after his clinching 21-foot putt at No. 18, Simons showed none of the nervousness he would reveal moments later.

"I haven't relaxed all week. I'm very relieved today is over," said the 28-year-old Pennsylvanian after he unseated his idol, Nicklaus, with a closing 2-over-par 74 for a total of 284.

"A lot of guys won't admit it," he said, "but it's a continual battle to fight your nerves. This is a high pressure business we're in. I'm so intense I can't play a lot of weeks in a row."

So he's skipping the Atlantic Classic this week — flying in a hot air balloon in Louisville instead. Simons also has a couple of exhibitions scheduled.

Simons felt the heat of playing with Nicklaus, especially before Jack's hometown throng at the Muirfield Village Golf Club, a 7,101-yard monster he created.

"I really respect the man," Simons said of Nicklaus. "He's been the golfer since I've been around the game. But it's difficult to go out and ignore you're playing with Jack. I knew the big crowd would be helpful for him."

Simons met and whipped that obstacle, repulsing a belated Nicklaus charge and nipping Bill Kratzert by a single shot. Kratzert, earning $28,500, closed with a 74 for 285. Fuzzi Zoeller was third with 70-287.

Nicklaus, a triple bogey at 4 and a double bogey at 17 ruining his challenge, settled for a fourth-place tie at 288 with Ed Sneed and Masters champion Gary Player. Sneed had a final 71 and Player a 74.

Those six players were the only ones in the original international field of 105 that equaled or bettered par over the water-logged layout.

Simons uncovered a masterful short game. The Wake Forest College product had nine 1-putt greens in the closing round. He needed just 56 putts the last two days.

Five of Simons' 1-putters came in the last 7 holes.

The biggest of all was on the final hole, where he faced a treacherous downhill putt. Simons felt he had two advantages though.

"I played a practice round with Tom Kite. He told me Nicklaus said the putt from above the hole is straight. It appears to break left. That's an optical illusion.

"Rod Curl (his second playing partner) had about the same putt ahead of me. He played it out to the right. It stayed out to the right. I played mine straight at the hole."

After Simons holed the putt, Nicklaus congratulated him and said, "Fantastic."

Kratzert watched the putt from behind sun glasses with no emotion near the scoring tent. "It was a helluva putt for all the marbles," he said.

Pearson Takes M-D 500

DOVER, Del. (AP) — Some people were saying that David Pearson was over the hill. But for the moment at least, the South Carolina grandfather is king of the stock-car racing mountain.

Pearson took advantage of pit-stop problems among the early leaders and overcame some slow pit work by his own normally rapid-working Wood Brothers crew to win the Mason-Dixon 500 at Dover Downs International Speedway Sunday.

It was just the second victory of the National Association For Stock Car Auto Racing's Grand National campaign for Pearson, coming 2½ months after his triumph in the Carolina 500.

Two victories in 11 races would be considered a great season for most drivers, but that record from the winningest super-speedway driver in NASCAR history had more than a few observers wondering if Pearson had lost his touch.

The "Silver Fox" from Spartanburg, S.C., however, knew better. "A winner never quits," he said. "We've kept searching for the right combination, but it wasn't there until today. We've just been having bad luck. I don't know what the trouble has been."

Then, referring to sub-par seasons for fellow veterans Cale Yarborough and Richard Petty, Pearson added: "Surely all of us aren't over the hill. Cale, Richard and the others — we couldn't all go together."

Yarborough, the defending champion, finished second Sunday in an Oldsmobile, 12.4 seconds behind the winning Mercury. Lennie Pond was third with Benny Parsons fourth, both more than one lap behind Pearson. Pond and Parsons both drove Chevrolets.

Pearson's winning speed was 114.670 mph, well below the track record 123.237 mph set by Yarborough in last year's race.

Until the midway point Sunday, it looked like Pearson would continue his also-ran status for at least another week.

He was more than a lap behind Darrell Waltrip, whose Chevy was easily the fastest car on the track. Waltrip was threatening to lap the entire field when the caution flag was unfurled for a minor accident, and his chances of a NASCAR-leading fourth victory of the season quickly snapped.

During a seemingly routine pit stop for tires and fuel, a front wheel stud broke on Waltrip's car. By the time it was fixed he was three laps behind, and a second stop was quickly needed when Waltrip found his front brakes malfunctioning.

"They replaced (the bolt) but left the brake unattached," Waltrip said. "I ran down into the corner and I almost ran over (the car of driver) Elmo Langley. They didn't tell me about the brakes."

Neil Bonnett took over first, but soon relinquished it because of tire troubles, and Pearson pulled into the lead on the 357th lap.

Pearson's Mercury blew off several challenges and appeared safely in the lead until it pitted 79 miles from the finish. There was a problem changing a rear tire, and it took Pearson 20 seconds — about five seconds longer than normal — to get back on the track.

"We had trouble on the right rear tire, and earlier we had trouble with a left-side tire," Pearson said. "Another time they put the wrong tire on. I had to come in to change it."

Pond and Parsons briefly jumped ahead of Pearson but fell back when they, too, had to pit.

The victory, worth almost $16,000, was the 47th on a super-speedway for Pearson and boosted him into the unofficial lead in the second leg of NASCAR's driver standings. Because of poor showings the first half of the season, however, Pearson remains out of the top 10 overall point-winners.

It took 25 years for the Triple Crown to be won after Citation's 1948 victory, and there were times when it looked like it might never happen again.

Then came Secretariat and the jinx of the years was broken. A lot of the yardbirds said then that it might take another 25 years for another horse to win those three in a row.

But it was only a couple of years later that Seattle Slew did the trick. And now, in three weeks' time, we will know if fate is to strike again.

Affirmed is two-thirds of the way there. Saturday's Preakness victory, however, was one that went right down to the wire before the three-year-old champ edged out pre-Kentucky Derby favorite Alydar.

The Belmont Stakes is the longest of the three, and for that reason, probably the toughest. Over the years, a lot of good horses have come to this race and failed in the test after winning the first two.

Whether Affirmed will become Triple Crown winner number 11 will be seen in early June. But 18-year-old whiz Steve Caithen will have to keep a close eye over his shoulder, not only for Alydar, but from a couple of others that might keep Affirmed from becoming the first horse ever to win the Triple Crown only one year after another horse has done it.

New SID Coming To ECU

The announcement should come sometime early this week. It might even be today. East Carolina University will be naming a new Sports Information Director.

The new man will replace Ken Smith, who is resigning to enter private business in Greensboro. Smith has served in the post longer than any other man at the university. For years prior to Smith's appointment to the post, it was a swinging door, with a new man coming and going each year.

As Ken leaves, we wish him the best, not only in his new business efforts, but in his forth-coming marriage. And they said he'd never find a girl....

The new SID comes in at somewhat of a fateful time. Ficklen Stadium is being enlarged, and there is a new press box taking shape above it. Smith is hopeful that his successor will give him a press-box ticket for one game, so that he will be able to see what he and others long dreamed of come true this fall.

The new man, according to the latest odds-makers may be current N.C. State assistant SID Walt Atkins.

When the job first came open, it appeared that Willie Patrick, a former student assistant here, and SID at UT-Chattanooga for the past two years, might get the job. He had the solid backing of the area media.

Reports have it, however, that some people in the athletic department, wanted someone from a more prestigious school, and that appeared to give the inside track to Atkins.

Atkins has served at State for six years, having served as a student assistant while an undergraduate at the University of Maryland. The 28-year-old Atlanta native would bring good credentials into the job, should it become his, as the rumors now have it.

Tigers, Bosox Split In Pair To Stay Close

By The Associated Press
Life at the top can be tough. Just ask Don Zimmer and Ralph Houk...then duck!

The Detroit Tigers and Boston Red Sox, eyeball-to-eyeball atop the American League East, tried to shake loose of each other Sunday. They wound up a few percentage points closer together. And both managers — Zimmer of the Red Sox and Houk of the Tigers — wound up in their respective clubhouses a few minutes ahead of their respective players.

The teams entered their doubleheader with the Tigers 18 percentage points ahead of Boston. Detroit won the opener 2-1 on Jason Thompson's tie-breaking homer in the sixth inning off previously unbeaten Bill Lee and Mill Wilcox's six-hit, 11-strikeout performance.

That put Detroit a game in front of the Red Sox — until Boston rode Luis Tiant's eight-hit pitching and Bob Montgomery's four-hit, four-RBI display to a 9-3 romp that left the teams 16 points apart.

The first-game fireworks began when usually mild-mannered Fred Lynn of the Red Sox exploded after being called out on strikes in the ninth inning. He protested so furiously that he bumped into home plate umpire Nick Bremigan and was instantly thumbed out of the game.

That's when Zimmer arrived — and when he also bumped Bremigan, he was heaved out as well. The Red Sox manager was still livid after the game. "The ball was this far off the ground and this far outside," he said, his hands about 12 inches apart. "You couldn't reach it with an ironing board...How would you like to be a hitter with a 3-2 count and get called out on that pitch?"

In the second game, Montgomery, the Red Sox' catcher, hitless in two previous at-bats this season, singled for a run off Dave Rozema in a three-run fourth inning, drove in two more with a single in the fifth and tripled for a run in the ninth.

Orioles 3-2, Indians 0-3

David Clyde scattered seven hits in 6-1/3 innings and got relief help from Jim Kern and Dennis Kinney to give the Indians their second-game victory and pick up his second triumph. "This proved the first one wasn't a fluke," he said.

Scott McGregor's first-game victory was no fluke, either. He did it with his second straight four-hitter for his first major league shutout.

White Sox 6-0, A's 2-8

Mitchell Page's five RBI on a homer and two doubles and John Johnson's three-hitter for his — and Oakland's — third complete game turned the tables on the White Sox. Chicago ripped the A's in the opener on eighth-inning RBI singles by Junior Moore and Eric Soderholm and Lamar Johnson's two-run homer in the ninth.

Yanks 2-0, Blue Jays 1-1

Yankee catchers killed Toronto pitchers in New York's sweep.

In the first game, Cliff Johnson continued to feast on Toronto pitching with a two-run homer. This year he's got two homers, both against the Blue Jays. Last year he had 12 of them — six off the Blue Jays. In the second game, Thurman Munson had a two-run homer — half of his RBI for the day.

Brewers 2, Angels 1

"I made a deal with Harvey Kuenn last night," Milwaukee's Cecil Cooper said of the Brewers' batting coach. "I told him that every time I swing at a high fastball I'd give him a dollar. I did it once last night and he said, 'You owe me one.'"

"Today he said, 'We're even.'" Cooper added after his fourth hit, a two-out single off a Dave LaRoche fastball in the ninth inning, beat California. "I would have owed him two dollars but because I got a hit he let me go."

Twins 3, Royals 2

Rod Carew is at it again. The AL's six-time batting champ went 3-for-4, drove in two runs and raised his average to .407 in the Twins' triumph.

He doubled in the fourth inning and scored on Dan Ford's single. In the sixth he doubled to score Bob Randall and Willie Norwood.

Rangers 5, Mariners 4

Al Oliver had three runs batted in, one of them on a ninth-inning, two-out double, in the Rangers' victory. Winner Doyle Alexander gave up all four Seattle runs on a pair of Bob Stinson homers.

Slumping St. Louis Cardinals Are Mystery In National League

By The Associated Press

NL Roundup

The National League has counted 10 over the slumbering St. Louis Cardinals and when they'll awake nobody knows. "It seems to be something different every day, nothing you can put your finger on," Manager Ken Boyer sighed Sunday after the Cardinals dropped a 3-2 decision to the Chicago Cubs. The 10-game skid is the Cardinals' longest since 1957 and five short of the club record set in 1909.

To add to the Cardinals' troubles, starting pitcher Eric Rasmussen, who allowed only one earned run in five innings, had to leave when a line drive off the bat of Bobby Murcer struck him on the right wrist and broke a blood vessel. He was to be X-rayed today.

Meanwhile, Tom Seaver moved past Bob Feller and Warren Spahn into seventh place on the all-time major

Dodgers 4, Giants 1

Lee Lacy and Ron Cey homered to lead an 11-hit attack as the Dodgers tightened up the race in the NL West. The Giants lead Los Angeles and Cincinnati by one-half game.

Mets 6, Phillies 5

The Mets spotted Philadelphia a 5-0 lead in the first inning on Mike Schmidt's three-run homer and Bob Boone's two-run double and then roared back to win with two out in the 10th in Lee Mazzilli's infield hit

Pirates 7, Expos 0

Omar Moreno hit a sixth-inning homer for the game's first run and Rennie Stennett blasted a grand slam in the ninth while John Candelaria and Kent Tekulve combined to pitch a six-hitter.

Braves 6, Astros 4

Jerry Royster keyed a four-run Atlanta fourth inning with a two-run triple as the Braves ended a four-game losing streak to help Manager Bobby Cox celebrate his 37th birthday.

and Steve Henderson's double.

Seattle's Steve Henderson's double in the eighth inning was the key to a 4-3 victory over the Mariners. Henderson's double drove in two runs and gave the Mariners a 2-0 lead in the eighth. Henderson's double was the key to a 4-3 victory over the Mariners.

A 'Heartfelt' Victory

SEATTLE (AP) — The man had a heart attack and was taken to the hospital. His first request in the coronary care unit was to watch the first game of the National Basketball Association championship playoffs between the Seattle SuperSonics and the Washington Bullets.

Then his heart stopped beating. Doctors worked feverishly to revive him and succeeded but had to insert a tube into his windpipe.

"He couldn't talk," said Dr. Scott Linscott of Virginia Mason Hospital, "but he motioned for a piece of paper and a pencil. He wrote that he wanted to know what the Sonics' score was. The man, who was not identified, was reported to be resting comfortably early today — after the Sonics won, 106-102.

Legal Defenses Cost Texan Millions

By JIM BRIGANCE
Associated Press Writer
FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Texas tycoon T. Cullen Davis spent more money on lawyers in the past 18 months than most Americans could hope to earn in a lifetime — more than $3 million. He'll be spending more.

The millions won Davis acquittal last fall in this state's longest, costliest and perhaps most lurid murder trial. Another murder charge and two of attempted murder are pending, and late this summer Davis faces a complex, high stakes divorce case.

Davis, 44, is a partner in KenDavis Industries, a conglomerate whose business takes him around the globe in a private jet. The largest company in the group is Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Supply.

Seeking a substantial chunk of Davis' financial empire is his estranged wife, Priscilla, 36, who has claimed Davis killed her daughter and her live-in lover and wounded her in August 1976. He was acquitted of the child's murder.

Mrs. Davis, married to the millionaire for eight years, filed for divorce in the summer of 1974 after Davis moved out of their $6 million hilltop mansion.

Mrs. Davis lives in the mansion. Davis, free on $650,000 bond, shares the middle-class suburban home of longtime companion Karen Master, 29.

"We talk about the future," said Mrs. Master, a divorcee whose two young children live with her and Davis. "No, Cullen doesn't sit around biting his nails. He brings his work home, spreads it out here on the table, and opens his mail."

"We live our lives just one day at a time," Mrs. Master said. "Cullen goes about his business just like anybody else. What else can you do? We rarely talk about it."

"It" refers to the nightmare of Aug. 2, 1976, when 12-year-old Andrea Wilborn, Mrs. Davis' daughter, was found shot to death in the basement of the mansion.

Mrs. Davis and her lover, Stan Farr, 31, arrived home at midnight to find bloody handprints on walls, the girl's body and "a man dressed all in black" and wearing a woman's wig lurking behind a door.

The man shot at them: Mrs. Davis was seriously wounded; Farr was killed; a family friend, Gus Gavrel, 23, was paralyzed by a bullet.

Mrs. Davis accused her husband of being the man in black. A few hours later, Davis was arrested at Mrs. Master's house. She later served as a key defense witness, providing the alibi that Davis was asleep in her bed when the killings occurred across town.

In a front-page murder trial held in Amarillo, Houston criminal lawyer Richard "Racehorse" Haynes led a high-powered panel of lawyers who showed there was reasonable doubt Davis was the killer.

A parade of witnesses suggested to the jury the shootings stemmed from a drug traffickers' dispute. Other witnesses described the Davis mansion as a palace of exotic drugs and sex parties.

Davis has not been tried on charges of murdering Farr and wounding Mrs. Davis and Gavrel. Tarrant County Assistant District Attorney Joe Shannon said no decision has been reached on whether to prosecute.

"Certainly, cost is a consideration," he said. "It's a factor but it's peripheral. We wouldn't want to do it if you couldn't win."

Weekend traffic accidents around North Carolina claimed the lives of at least 10 people, authorities reported Sunday.

The deaths brought the state's traffic fatality toll for the year to 503, two less than for the same period in 1977.

Millard Gordon Joyner, 32, of Elizabeth City was killed Sunday afternoon in a head-on collision eight and a half miles east of his hometown on U.S. 158.

A 22-year-old High Point man, William R. Sheehan, was fatally injured Sunday morning in a one-car accident near Jamestown in Guilford County.

The Highway Patrol said a car Sheehan was driving ran off the road and overturned.

Mark Roger Gustafson, 17, of Charlotte died Saturday night when a car he was riding in ran off a street and hit a tree, the patrol said.

A pedestrian, Floyd Lofton Carroll, 55, of Jacksonville, was killed early Sunday when he was hit by a car on U.S. 258 two miles west of Jacksonville.

Joseph Christopher Williams, 26, of Raleigh was killed in the capital city Saturday night when he lost control of his car in a curve and hit two trees.

Gastonia police said Robert Timothy Raynor, 31, of Gastonia died Saturday afternoon following a collision in downtown Gastonia that morning. Raynor was a passenger in a panel truck that collided with a tractor-trailer.

Joy Lynette Alexander, 4, of Harrisburg was killed Saturday on a Cabarrus County road three miles south of Harrisburg. She stepped in front of a car, authorities said.

Pamela Elizabeth Yow, 18, of Seagrave was killed early Saturday about 14 miles southwest of Asheboro when the car she was driving ran off a Randolph County road and overturned, throwing her from the auto.

Joy Buchanan Jones, 29, of Rt. 1, Valdese, died Friday night in a collision on a Burke County road 13 miles south of Morganton. The Highway Patrol said a car traveling at a high rate of speed went out of control, crossed the center line and struck the Jones vehicle head-on.

TYCOON STILL FACES TROUBLES — Millionaire T. Cullen Davis (left) was acquitted in 1977 of murdering his wife's daughter in the longest and costliest trial in Texas history. Davis still faces murder and attempted murder charges. Also, his wife, Priscilla (center) has filed divorce proceedings. At right is Davis' girlfriend, Karen Master. (AP Laserphoto)

The FARM SCENE

By Samuel N. Uzell
Asst. Agricultural Extension Agent

Pitt County has traditionally been a farming area, not only producing large quantities of valuable commodities for the nation and world, but produce for local residents as well. Most folks in this area know the value of fresh vegetables in season and frozen or canned foods during the winter. It is a common part of June, July and August to prepare food for storage for the winter.

A great many people grow their vegetables themselves in home gardens and only occasionally buy produce at the supermarket. Items such as lettuce, broccoli or other items that are difficult to grow here year-round, of course must be obtained from supermarkets.

There are other sources of good produce available in this area. One such alternative to supermarkets and home gardens is the so-called "pick-your-own" operation. This type of enterprise enables the consumer to pick his or her own produce without having to worry about growing it. The producer plants, tends and cultivates the crop and advertises when it should be picked. This is a workable alternative because the grower does not have to harvest and market his commodity and the consumer is able to obtain fresh vegetables without having to expend time and effort in growing them. Pick-your-own operations are growing more and more popular across the state.

Another way to get fresh produce is the local curb market or Farmer's market. The Pitt County area no longer has one of these markets in operation. This type market not only enables consumers to buy fresh local produce in season but it is a profitable outlet for local farmers and growers to market surplus produce or to produce vegetables for sale specifically at the farmer's market.

The two state-owned and operated farmer's markets in Raleigh and Asheville are busy and successful operations. Local farmer's markets elsewhere in the state are successfully operating on a community-managed basis. These operations enable farmers to increase their income and help quickly fill the produce needs of the consumer.

There is currently a renewal of interest in establishing a farmer's market for the Greenville, Pitt County area. The Agricultural Extension Service, the Greenville Chamber of Commerce and the Pitt Agribusiness Association would like to put a small farmer's market into operation next year, the summer of 1979. In order to do this, it must be established that a suitable market exists and that enough people in the community will visit such a market. Also it must be known who would like to raise produce to be sold at this market, how much produce and what types of vegetables.

If you have interest as a grower of produce or as a buyer please call the Agricultural Extension Service at 758-1196 and indicate whether you would like to produce vegetables for sale or whether you would like to purchase these goods. Hopefully, there might be a place where fresh produce can be bought and sold in Greenville, and many people will be benefitted.

Worms Like Grain Dust

NORTH KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Volatile grain dust is a hazard to grain mills and elevators but a boon to worm farmer Russ Latimore.

Latimer, along with his older brother, owns and operates the Huck Finn Worm Farm on the banks of the Missouri River in North Kansas City, about 10 blocks from where a grain mill exploded last month.

Latimer said the explosion was what directed him to start feeding his worms grain dust. "Someone on television said they wished they had a good use for grain dust," Latimer explained. "And worms will eat anything that has ever lived or died."

Latimer said he was just getting into the worm business at the time of the explosion and decided to try and use grain dust as an additive at his farm. "It looks like something you'd pull out of your vacuum cleaner bag," said Latimer. "They just eat it like you wouldn't believe."

Latimer said the grain dust is "not hazardous in the form that we have it."

His firm began distributing the grain dust to other worm farmers this week and he says he expects the unorthodox food to catch on.

"We're selling it for $3.97 for 40-45 pound bags, and that's about four dollars less than any other worm feed," he said.

"We've had a good response on the local level. We don't expect much competition because no one will bag it. We have a bagger that will do it for enough money."

They received "Bachelor of Arts and Leisure" degrees for learning what organizer Wilder Knight called "a practical skill." The skill? Juggling.

The "commencement," coming a day before the university awards degrees to 1,050 Yale seniors, was planned by Knight, a professional juggler, to show parents what their sons and daughters learned at Yale.

He told parents who had gathered after Yale's Class Day exercises that "after four years and $28,000 you may ask what your kids have learned. We really have no practical skills, except we can juggle."

Then, five at once, Knight's proteges tossed balls, tins and even bagels into the air.

Knight, a senior from St. Petersburg, Fla., even sent engraved invitations to his mock ceremony. He won't have to put his juggling skills to immediate use. He plans to study history in Sweden next year on a fellowship grant.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Glomar Explorer, which recovered parts of a sunken Soviet submarine, may be used to explore for oil and natural gas and conduct drilling operations in 12,000 feet of water.

National Science Foundation and U.S. Geological Survey officials say the agencies are considering contributing $50 million to convert the 240-foot vessel into a ship that could safely explore for oil and gas.

Claims Value In Challenge

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Rev. Jesse Jackson says inner city students respond well when challenged to make decisions about their future.

Jackson said Sunday that allowing students to make their own decisions is an important part of his "Operation PUSH for Excellence." Students are asked to avoid violence, drugs and alcohol, and must sign a pledge to study two hours a night with no interruptions.

Real Trial For TV Audiences

WASHINGTON (AP) — Television viewers will have a chance to watch a murder trial Tuesday, and it won't be a fictionalized Perry Mason script.

Public television will present highlights of the trial of 16-year-old Ronney Zamora which were videotaped under a one-year state government experiment in Florida. Zamora was convicted last September in the shooting death of Elinor Haggart, his 82-year-old neighbor. The defense blamed television violence for the killing.

Diplomas Go To Jugglers

NEW HAVEN (AP) — "Pomp and Circumstance" was played and the graduates wore black caps and gowns, but the diplomas handed out to 40 seniors at Yale University were a bit unusual.

Bargain basement sucker control is no bargain.

When you're raising a crop that's worth up to $3600 an acre, you don't take chances on anything as basic as sucker control.

That's why most tobacco growers stay with the industry's two leading systemics, MH-30*

What do you bid now?
A.—You have an awkward hand. Despite the fact that you hold six clubs, your hand is essentially balanced and you hold stoppers in all suits. For that reason, we slightly prefer a rebid of one no trump over two clubs. While both are mild underbids, you are unlikely to miss game if partner cannot act again.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠KQ63 ♥J5 ♦AJ ♣AK854
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1♦ Pass 1♥ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—You have the values for a jump to two no trump (your five-card suit and controls make your hand worth more than 18 points), but it is our principle not to conceal a good four-card major suit. Therefore, we would simply respond one spade (you do not have the values for a jump shift) in the firm belief that, should partner pass, we will probably be in the best spot.

Q.4—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AJ109 ♥AKQ7 ♦743 ♣86
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1♦ Pass 1♥ Pass
2NT Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—We intend playing this hand in slam, so we do not fault you if you jumped to six no trump. However, since your hand is slightly unbalanced and there is a chance that partner bypassed a four-card spade suit, we would rebid three spades. If partner does anything but raise to four spades, we can still bid six no trump.

Q.5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AKQ104 ♥A106 ♦Q83 ♣J3
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1♦ Pass 1♥ Pass
3♦ Pass 4♥ Pass
4♦ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Despite our cue-bid, partner could make no move toward slam, but this was not unexpected. He is undoubtedly worried about his trump support. We can reassure him on that point, while pinpointing our concern about the minors, by bidding five spades now. The hand will not produce a slam unless partner can bid it because we have too many losers he must cover.

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KJ83 ♥Q9852 ♦A862
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1♥ 2♦ Pass ?
What action do you take?
A.—Pass. While it is possible that you have a better spot somewhere, you have no intelligent way of investigating. Your hand should prove useful to partner, and there is always the chance that the opponents might reopen the bidding.

Q.7—As South, vulnerable with 60 on score, you hold:
♠A92 ♥KQJ83 ♦AK ♣Q103
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1♥ Pass 2♦ Pass

What action do you take?
A.—Don't do anything drastic. Partner is aware of the score, and he might be stretching a bit in an attempt to close out the rubber. A bid of two no trump will suffice for the moment. We can show our full strength later if partner can make a forward-going move.

Q.8—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠J5 ♥AQJ872 ♦109 ♣962
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1♦ 1NT Pass ?

Going Is Slow, But The Trip Worth Watching

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — "The Dain Curse" is an old-fashioned whodunit, and although the going is slow, the trip is worth it. James Coburn stars as the doggedly determined private eye who cuts through a bewildering maze of clues and false leads, plus a generous supply of suspects, to find the answer to the curse and the murderer behind it.

The six-hour, three-part miniseries airs on CBS tonight, Tuesday and Wednesday. It is the first miniseries on CBS.

It is a richly textured piece set in 1928, populated with intriguing characters and interesting faces seldom seen on television. And it follows a baffling trail that will keep you guessing to the end.

The pace set by director E.W. Swackhammer is leisurely — some would say sluggish — yet it offers the viewer the time needed to absorb the complex mystery.

Coburn plays Hamilton Nash, who was known only as the Continental Op when Dashiell Hammett published the book as a serial in Black Mask magazine 50 years ago. He was the first of the hardboiled private eyes. Robert Lenski adapted the book for producer Martin Poll, changing the locale from San Francisco to New York.

Coburn's Nash, craggy of face and lank of form, comes through as a complex, three-dimensional character who is realistic, competent and likeable.

All of the performances are remarkable: Jason Miller as the flamboyant, slightly decadent writer; Jean Simmons as the proprietress of the Temple of the Holy Grail, where the gullible are separated from their money; Beatrice Straight as the quiet housewife who suddenly emerges as a woman with a past; Nancy Addison as the beautiful young woman haunted by the curse.

Hector Elizondo plays the resort town sheriff, wary of the intruding private detective yet anxious to take any political advantage of his discoveries. Paul Stewart is "the old man," who runs the detective agency with an iron hand and a velvet touch.

Andrew Laszlo, utilizing locations at Shelter Island, N.Y., Easton, Pa., and New York City, photographed it in autumnal colors, like an Edward Hopper painting. In one extraordinary scene the Oscar-winning Steadicam follows Coburn in a search through a house in one continuous shot, up and down the stairs and turning 360 degrees twice.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N.C.

Cloudy with chance of rain Wednesday. Fair and warmer Thursday and Friday. Lows Wednesday in 50s increasing to 60s by Friday.

Volunteers Stir Dispute

SEATTLE (AP) — A lesson in pride for their school has got 175 students and teachers at Denny Junior High School into a labor dispute.

The group volunteered to stay after school for two hours to clean up the grounds, but Pete Olson, business representative of Local 609, Seattle School Custodians, says he will file charges against the school with the Public Employment Relations Commission because it was having gardeners' work done without wages.

"It's putting our people out of work," said Olson.

He said the number of gardeners in the Seattle School District has been reduced from nearly 40 to 21 to take care of 136 buildings.

"As long as there are these self-help programs there is no way the gardeners will be rehired," he said.

Denny vice principal John Hoyt said the project was only for two hours and that the school didn't have any money to rehire the gardeners any way. "They did a fantastic job. They were real proud of themselves." Of the children, Hoyt said.

What do you bid now?
A.—You certainly want to be in game opposite a 16-18 point no trump hand, and that is exactly what partner's overall showing. Since your hand is slightly unbalanced, you prefer to play in hearts, so you should simply bid four hearts.

Your play to the first trick could decide the fate of the contract! A writer once remarked: "There's no such thing as a blind opening lead, only deaf opening leaders!" Minnesota Rain Forest

APPLE VALLEY, Minn. (UPI) — A tropical rain forest is nestled among the rolling hills of this Minneapolis suburb and the sounds of rare, exotic birds and the calls of monkeys echo through the treetops.

It is not an apparition. It is the realization of a 20-year dream — the new Minnesota Zoological Garden.

The $40 million, 430-acre zoo, scheduled to open Monday, is designed to immerse the senses in life and growth, earth and water and sky.

"People, we hope, will go away with a feeling of their oneness with nature and the need to preserve natural things and resources," said Bev Rongren, who heads the zoo's educational programs.

"The stress is not necessarily on the animals or the plants but on how these things flow into a balance."

The highlight is the Tropical Rain Forest, a climate-controlled, skylighted building that transports visitors to the wilds of southeast Asia.

A path winds through an acre and a half of jungle plants, ravines and waterways, taking visitors within inches of 80 species of swimming, flying, crawling, climbing creatures — from spotted leopards to dolphins.

Only waist-level walls or moats surround some exhibits, though wire mesh protects visitors from more dangerous animals.

The prime outdoor exhibit is the Northern Trek, where large northern hemisphere animals like Siberian tigers and rare Mongolian wild horses roam. A monorail is planned for that area and is expected to open next fall.

Vacation College Program Has Something For Entire Family

By LOUISE COOK
 Associated Press Writer

A growing number of U.S. colleges and universities are offering summer programs designed to combine learning and leisure for the entire family and to offer a relatively low-cost alternative to traditional vacations.

Most of the programs are sponsored by alumni associations, but are open to non-alumni as well, sometimes at a slightly higher cost. Participants generally spend the morning in classes. Afternoons are devoted to cultural events, sports and travel. Separate programs for youngsters are geared to age and offer a mix of activities. Families eat and live on campus, usually in dormitories.

The setting of the vacation college can provide a free bonus: families attending American University in Washington, D.C., for example, can sightsee in the nation's capital; participants in the summer Alumni College at Dartmouth College at Hanover, N.H., get a chance to enjoy the New England scenery.

One of the oldest programs in the country is Cornell University's vacation college, now in its 11th year. There will be four one-week sessions at the Ithaca, N.Y., campus this summer, starting July 9. The price is $215 per person for adults, with an extra charge for a private bath. The fee for pre-kindergartners is $100 each and there is a charge of $125 each for older youngsters.

Further information is available from the Cornell Alumni University, 626B Thurston Ave., Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y., 14853.

Another well-established program is at the University of Oregon which began a vacation college for adults 15 years ago and expanded the sessions to include children last year.

This year's vacation college for families will run from July 16 to 21 and will offer lectures and discussions on "An Overview of the Former, Familiar and Future Family." The charge is $145 per person for adults; $55 each for youngsters.

Further information is available from Effie Fairchild, 1978 Vacation College, Summer Session, University of Oregon, Eugene, Ore., 97403.

A newer program is "The Berkeley Experience," run by the California Alumni Association. The program, now in its fourth year, is informal with lectures on topics including energy, stress and the brain. Two elective courses, "Stages in the Life Cycle" and "New Games, Adventure Games" are available for an extra charge.

The basic fee for the Aug. 5 to 12 general session ranges from $40 for children under 2 to $225 for adults in a single-occupancy room. Non-members of the alumni group must pay $20 per person extra.

Further information is available from "The Berkeley Experience," California Alumni Association, Alumni House, Berkeley, Calif., 94720.

Radioactivity In Bikini's People

WASHINGTON (AP) — New findings from medical examinations show the 139 residents of Bikini Island have radiation levels that are well beyond government-established safety limits. The island sustained fallout from a 1954 S. hydrogen bomb test.

Government officials report that the increased level of radioactive cesium alone is causing internal radiation almost two-thirds of the allowable absorption level.

'Why I choose to smoke!'

"Why kid anyone? I smoke because I enjoy it. I'm the kind of guy who gets pleasure out of a cigarette. But I'm not deaf to what's being said about tar.

"So I searched out a cigarette that would give me taste with low tar. And two years ago I found it in Vantage. Vantage has all the taste I enjoy yet, surprisingly, much less tar than my old brand.

"Why did I choose Vantage? Because I like it."
