REFINERY ON FIRE — Two 55,000-gallon gasoline tanks blaze out of control at the Texas City Refining

Refinery Fire Sets Off Chain Of Big Explosions

Associated Press Writer

TEXAS CITY, Texas (AP) — A fiery explosion at a Gulf Coast oil refinery early today touched off a chain reaction of blasts that blew up two 55,000-gallon gasoline tanks, plant officials said. At least 11 persons were injured and two others were unaccounted for.

The heat was so intense that firefighters said they were unable to get closer than within two blocks of the Texas City Refining Inc. The flames were visible from Houston 35 miles to the northwest.

Fire officials said there were so many oil tanks in the vicinity that they were not even trying to put out the fires, but were trying to keep other tanks from catching on fire or exploding.

Fire officials said about 100 families were evacuated from their Texas City homes as a precaution.

Rick Sherman, manager of industrial and public relations for Texas City Refining, said more than 15 persons had been working at the refinery when the fire started. He said all but two were accounted for.

Local hospitals reported a total of 11 persons admitted, three of them in critical condition.

The first blast at 2 a.m. was followed by a series of 10 or more blasts over the next half hour and then by another explosion about 4:15 a.m., witnesses said.

Marathon Oil Refinery, across the street, also was reported on fire by some officials.

All fire departments in both Galveston and Harris counties were called to assist in fighting the fires.

Fire department officials said the cause of the explosions had not been determined.

The two refineries are among several located close together about three miles east of Interstate 45. Just west of the refineries a large grassy marsh had been burning for 36 hours, but there was no immediate indication of whether it had any connection to the explosions.

A main disaster area was set up at a baseball park three miles from the refineries. The injured were taken there first, then transported to hospitals.

John Sealy Hospital in Houston and Danforth Hospital in Texas City reported their emergency facilities were full, and other injured were being taken to Hermann Hospital in Houston, which supplied two helicopters that flew out some of the more seriously injured burn victims.

The crew of one helicopter reported it had five burn victims aboard — three in critical and two in serious condition — and was headed for Sealy Hospital. An ambulance crew called for another helicopter to pick up seven more burn victims of undetermined condition.

"The first major blast just shook the hell out of the house. Since then, there have been about 10," said Sherman Irish of Wharton, Texas, who was visiting a friend about two miles from the refineries.

"The sky is lit up. On about the fifth explosion, just a huge ball of fire went to the sky. When it explodes, everything looks like its daylight. The south side of Texas City is lit right now, but with each explosion the whole sky is livid orange," Irish said.

One of the worst explosions in history occurred in Texas City on April 16, 1947, when a ship loaded with nitrate blew up, killing 561 people and destroying much of the port.

Adopted By City Council

A resolution recommending three street improvement projects and supporting the four-lane link between Greenville and Wilson was adopted this morning by the City Council.

The resolution of recommendations, approved at a special call session, will be presented to the N.C. Department of Transportation at its 2 p.m. meeting today in Kinston.

The Council resolved that the city "fully supports the construction of a fully controlled four-lane highway between Greenville and Wilson similar to the highway being constructed between Wilson and Raleigh."

The resolution also noted that "such construction of a four-lane fully controlled highway from Wilson to Greenville and beyond is in the best interest of the entire state...and cries for a high degree of priority."

Council members, in their resolution, recommended to DOT that three street improvement projects "be early accomplished," involving:

— Widening of Evans Street Extended to four lanes, with curb and gutter, from Tenth Street southerly to the Highway 264 Bypass;

— Widening of 14th Street to four lanes, with curb and gutter, from Charles Boulevard easterly to U.S. 264 Bypass; and — Extension and four-laning of Arlington Boulevard from NC 11-US 13 (Memorial Drive) westerly to US 264 Business; and "thence continue in a loop to Stan-tonsbury Road (Secondary Road 1200); and thereafter curve behind Pitt County Memorial Hospital to NC Highway 43 West."

Decide June 1 Parole

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Joe Wright, one of the nine imprisoned members of the Wilmington 10, will be paroled June 1, the state Paroles Commission has decided.

Wright, 25, has said he plans to return to Talladega College in Alabama, where he was majoring in history and pre-law studies at the time of his imprisonment.

The Wilmington 10 are nine black men and a white woman convicted in connection with the firebombing of a white-owned grocery store during racial strife in Wilmington in 1971. Wright was attending Hoggard High School at the time.

The woman, Ann Sheppard Turner, was paroled. The others had their sentences shortened earlier this year by Gov. Jim Hunt, and Wright was the first to become eligible for parole.

James McCoy becomes eligible July 25 and Willie Vereen and Jerry Jacobs become eligible for release July 28. The commission has already begun consideration of their cases and will take action within a few days of the eligibility dates, chairman James Woodard said Tuesday.

Agree To Clarify Rights

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court said today it will decide under what circumstances poor persons charged with minor crimes are entitled to court-appointed lawyers.

The decision may clear up some of the confusion over one of the court's 1973 decisions.

The justices voted to hear the appeal of a Chicago man whose case requires the high court to study once again the rights of criminal defendants who cannot afford legal help.

At issue are two interpretations of the court's 1973 decision.

One view of the court's ruling is that any criminal defendant facing misdemeanor charges for which time in jail is a possible penalty has a constitutional right to a court-appointed lawyer if the defendant cannot afford one.

The second view is that the court's ruling about lawyer help applies only to those criminal defendants who actually do get sentenced to jail and not those who are merely fined.

Vast Soviet Bloc Buildup Requires NATO Act: Carter

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter said today the NATO alliance must bolster its military power to meet a communist buildup that "far exceeds their legitimate security needs."

Addressing the opening session of a two-day NATO summit meeting, Carter pledged that the United States "will play its part" in supplying conventional, tactical nuclear and strategic armed forces.

"The United States will maintain strategic nuclear equivalence with the Soviet Union," Carter said in his remarks to the gathering at the Kennedy Center.

Carter's appearance before the 14 heads of government or state followed a rapid acceleration in anti-Soviet rhetoric on the part of top administration officials.

His comments did not match the stridency of statements Sunday by his national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski, but they were a far cry from Carter's remarks a year ago that the United States no longer need have an "inordinate fear" of communism.

"The Soviet Union and other Warsaw Pact countries pose a military threat to our alliance which far exceeds their legitimate security needs," Carter said.

"For more than a decade, the military power of the Soviet Union has steadily expanded, and it has grown consistently more sophisticated. In significant areas, the military lead we once enjoyed has been reduced."

He expressed confidence that NATO can meet the military challenge but "we cannot be sure of countering the future military threat unless our alliance modernizes its forces and adds additional military power."

The NATO meeting was convened to consider a long-range program to bolster the organization's defense structure, which now finds itself outmanned and, in some respects, outgunned by the Warsaw Pact nations.

Carter said the vigilance of the alliance cannot be limited to Europe.

"As I speak today, the activities of the Soviet Union and Cuba in Africa are preventing individual nations from charting their own course. As members of the world's greatest alliance, we cannot be indifferent to these events — because of what they mean for Africa, and because of their effect on the long-term interests of the alliance."

This appeared to be a call for an expansion of NATO's responsibilities beyond the North Atlantic, but NATO Secretary General Joseph Luns of the Netherlands said in a news conference Monday evening that no such step is contemplated.

In his remarks Sunday, Brzezinski said that Moscow, through "unilateral exploitation of the world's troubles," had violated "the code of detente."

Only last week, Vice President Walter F. Mondale said that Soviet development of the SS20 nuclear missile "is a new departure in destructive power and represents a substantial increase in the nuclear threat of the Soviet Union."

Luns said Monday that Soviet military expenditures have increased 5 percent a year over the last decade — 10 times the pace of the NATO increase.

"When one looks at the present situation, one cannot be overly optimistic," he said. Luns added, however, that he did not believe the Soviet buildup meant that Moscow is intent on waging aggression against the West.

The two-day NATO summit meeting has been preceded by intense, year-long preparations. The secret long-range program the delegates will consider calls on each member of the alliance to commit itself to a 3 per cent increase in military spending yearly from 1979 to 1984.

Another key proposal calls for developing an integrated allied air defense over the next 15 years.

Officials estimate that it would cost NATO upwards of $80 billion over the next decade to follow through on the proposals. In addition to the proposal for an integrated air defense, the document also calls for increased expenditures for antitank weapons, chemical warfare defenses, deploying reinforcements more quickly and improvements in maritime defenses, communications and electronic warfare techniques.

The most critical area for the alliance is Central Europe, where the bulk of the Warsaw Pact forces and weaponry are deployed. But concern over NATO's southern flank has been heightened by the continuing dispute between Greece and Turkey over Cyprus and over air and mining rights in the Aegean Sea.

Carter will meet with Turkish Prime Minister Bulent Ecevit and with Greek Prime Minister Constantine Caramanlis on Wednesday in hopes of promoting moves toward a settlement.

But, as Luns noted in his remarks Monday, it is difficult for Turkey to make (Continued on Page 8)

N.C. Democrats Go To Polls Today

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) —

North Carolina Democrats go to the polls today to decide whether they want state Insurance Commissioner John Ingram or former banker Luther Hodges to have the party's nomination to the U.S. Senate.

Polls open at 6:30 a.m. and close at 7:30 p.m. Turnout is expected to be below the 38 percent of North Carolina's 1.7 million Democrats who voted in the first primary on May 2.

The winner of today's primary runoff will face Republican Sen. Jesse Helms in the general election in November. Helms, ending his first term, had no opposition for the GOP nomination.

Both senate candidates put in a full day of campaigning Monday, crisscrossing the state for press conferences and other appearances. And both expressed confidence the Democratic Party would be able to rally around the winner. Each pledged to support the Democratic candidate against Helms.

Ingram and Hodges topped a field of eight candidates for the Senate seat in the first primary. Hodges led with 40 percent of the vote, followed by Ingram with 26 percent.

Throughout the runoff Ingram has charged that Hodges is connected to special interests because of his banking background and has "ripped off" the people of North Carolina.

Hodges has criticized Ingram for making what he considers irresponsible charges and for running for the Senate nomination while retaining his job as insurance commissioner. Hodges resigned as former chairman of North Carolina National Bank last summer when he began campaigning for the Senate seat.

At the beginning of the runoff, both candidates were urged to run clean campaigns and avoid personal attacks for the sake of party unity. Reportedly Democratic Party Chairman Betty R. McCain is trying to arrange a "unity breakfast" shortly after the runoff. Both candidates said they would participate.

Party leaders have repeatedly called for a united front in order to prevent the emotions of the primary from hurting the winner's chances against Helms.

Hodges, whose father, Luther Hodges, was governor of North Carolina during the 1950s and Secretary of Commerce during the Kennedy administration, said at a press conference at the Raleigh-Durham Airport Monday he was confident he would be the choice.

"I'm ready for the people to come together and focus on the real issues of November," Hodges said. He expressed regret at the bitter tone of the runoff campaign, but said he had made charges only in response to Ingram's.

In Asheville Ingram predicted victory for his "people's campaign" and vowed to work for reforms of campaign laws if he is elected in November.

In an apparent reference to Hodges, Ingram said, "the spending of millions to buy this election has got to be stopped. The borrowing of hundreds of thousands of dollars has got to be stopped."

N.C. Community College Prexy To Step Down

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) —

Saying his first love has always been the institution, books, students and teachers, Benjamin E. Fountain Jr. announced his resignation as president of the state's community college system after this summer.

Fountain told a conference of the state community colleges Monday he is resigning to become president of Isothermal Community College in Rutherfordton.

Fountain left the presidency of Lenoir Community College in Kinston in 1971 to become head of the statewide system, which includes 57 community colleges and technical institutes.

"I turned down the job when it was initially offered to me," he said Monday. "My first love and interest has always been the institution, books, students, teachers. I'm really looking forward to getting back to the campus. I'm looking forward to having 1-57th of the responsibility."

Fountain said he was pleased with his tenure in the statewide position. "When I went to Raleigh as state president, frankly and candidly, the system was stalled," he said. "The budget had leveled off. The construction dollars had dried up to nothing."

By 1973, he said, the construction budget had tripled and the operating budget had doubled. During Fountain's tenure, enrollment has increased from 270,000 to 500,000, and with the dedication of Piedmont Technical Institute next Sunday, all 57 institutions will have campuses.

Fountain said he was proudest that the system has adhered to its original mission of job training. "None of our institutions have even asked to become four-year schools," he said.

A Rocky Mount native, Fountain received degrees from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and taught in the school of education there.

At Isothermal, he will succeed Fred Eason, who is retiring. The State Board of Education will select Fountain's successor as state president.

One Ham Brings $2,300 At Saturday Night Sale

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

"I was flabbergasted, could hardly believe it," Haywood Price, pastor of Faith Pentecostal Holiness Church remarked about the auction of a ten pound two ounce ham on Saturday night for $2,300. The ham was the center of attention in an auction that included among other things a case of motor oil, cakes and pies, ceramics and a water heater.

"I had a hard time Sunday morning convincing my congregation, or those who were not at the auction, that the ham actually brought that price," he added.

According to Price, the ham became the object of a relay-type auction. "On the first round, the ham went for $150, and the buyer gave it to me," Price said. "I decided instead of taking it to offer it to anyone who wanted it for one hundred dollars, and that's what really kicked things off. A couple of men in our congregation bidded together to get it up to the $2,300 mark."

Price added "The amazing thing is that this whole deal was spontaneous, it was not at all a pre-arranged bid. I think those who did the bidding were as surprised as the rest of us."

Despite its price tag of $230 a pound, the ham is to be eaten. "Flossie (Mrs. Price) is going to cook it, along with eggs and home made biscuits, and invite all who bid to have breakfast with us," Price revealed.

"But we're going to have a reminder of the ham, since our plans are to have all who bid autograph the bag. Then we'll frame the bag."

Altogether, the Saturday night auction realized a little over $5,000. The money raised is being used to help pay a note on the fellowship building of the church.

Area Medical Facilities Hold Open House Sunday

The Eastern Carolina Family Practice Center and the Eastern Area Health Education Center will have open house at their facilities Sunday from 2 to 5 p. m. The public is invited to attend.

The buildings are located adjacent to Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

The Family Practice Center, a $1.8 million facility designed to provide primary health care, is operated by the East Carolina University Department of Family Medicine under contract with Eastern AHEC.

In addition to offering patient services, the center also serves as the educational facility for the ECU Medical School's Family Practice Residency Program.

The facility was constructed with funds provided by Eastern AHEC, an agency which provides continuing education to health professionals in 23 counties in Eastern N. C. Eastern AHEC also coordinates field placement for students in the health disciplines.

Participating in the ribbon-cutting will be Dr. Leo Jenkins, ECU Chancellor; Dr. Edwin Monroe, ECU Vice-Chancellor for Health Affairs; Dr. William E. Laupus, Dean of the ECU

School of Medicine; Dr. F. J. Simmons Patterson, Eastern AHEC Executive Director; Dr. James G. Jones, Center Director and Chairman of the ECU Dept. of Family Medicine; Evelyn Perry, Dean of the ECU School of Nursing; Dr. Ronald Thiel, Dean of the ECU School of Allied Health and Social Professions; Jack Richardson, PCMH Director; and Henry Leslie, PCMH Board Chairman.

House Vote Planned On Tax Cut For Children In School

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation designed to cut taxes for families with children in school will be voted on by the House this week when the lawmakers return to work after the Memorial Day weekend.

The House debate, which begins Wednesday, will focus on a bill to allow direct subtraction from income taxes owed of 25 percent of college or other post-secondary tuition up to $250. No votes are expected before Thursday.

The Senate is continuing its recess all week.

President Carter and a number of educational, minority and civil rights groups oppose the legislation, but the House Republican Policy Committee and some educational groups support it, including those who speak for church-affiliated schools.

The House will consider three amendments. One would expand the credits to include private elementary and secondary schools, with maximums of $50 in 1978 and $100 each year in 1979 and 1980.

Another amendment would allow the deduction of 50 percent of tuition, but maintain the same ceilings.

The third would drop the notion of tax credits and instead provide low-cost loans in the form of tax deferrals for post-secondary tuition only, beginning with the second year of college or equivalent education.

Under the tax deferral plan, a taxpayer would be allowed to defer up to $1,000 per student per year starting Aug. 1. The maximum would go to $1,500 in 1982 and $2,000 in 1986. The deferred amounts would be paid back over a 10-year period at 3 percent interest.

The major argument for college tuition tax credits is that they would provide relief to middle-income families considered too affluent to qualify for most existing public and private scholarship aid programs.

Opponents of tuition credits say much of the help would go to families that need it least, since there would be no income test and families too poor to owe income tax would receive nothing. They also contend the credit would be so small in proportion to college costs that it would not usually affect a decision on whether to seek higher education. Accordingly, they say, the $1 billion cost to the federal treasury would be wasted.

Justices Agree To Rule On Alimony Payments

By RICHARD CARELLI Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court agreed today to decide whether state laws providing alimony payments for women only foster unconstitutional sex discrimination.

The justices said they will study a challenge to Alabama's alimony laws.

Thirteen states award alimony to women only. In addition to Alabama, they are Arkansas, Georgia, Idaho, Louisiana, Maine, Mississippi, Nevada, New York, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee and Wyoming.

In a case that may become a rallying point for the women's rights movement, William Orr, now a San Francisco resident where he is president of the Orr Corp., says Alabama's law discriminates against men.

Orr and his wife Lillian, still a resident of Opelika, Ala., were divorced in 1974. Orr agreed to pay Mrs. Orr $1,240 a month in alimony.

In July 1976, Mrs. Orr charged that her ex-husband was almost $3,000 in arrears in his alimony payments, and Orr was ordered to show why he should not be held in contempt of court by disobeying terms of the divorce decree.

As a defense, lawyers for Orr argued that the decree was invalid because it was based on unconstitutional state laws. The laws providing for alimony only to women violate the equal-protection guarantees of the Constitution's 14th Amendment, they said.

A Lee County trial court held Orr in contempt, and its ruling was upheld without opinion by the state's highest court.

In seeking Supreme Court review, Orr's lawyers argued that recent court holdings state that laws based on sex-centered generalizations — such as wives are always dependent on their husbands for financial support and husbands never are financially dependent on their wives — cannot pass constitutional muster.

The nation's highest court has been confronted with the legal issue once before, in 1974. At that time, the justices left intact without comment a Georgia law that also provides for alimony payments only to women.

Casino Changed

Holiday Aura

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Casino gambling saved this seaside resort from what otherwise would have been a disastrous Memorial Day weekend, the city public commissioner says.

Commissioner Edwin Roth said gambling at Resorts International Hotel Casino drew many people who otherwise would have stayed away from the shore because of gray skies and cool temperatures. Police Chief William ten Brink said more than 183,000 vehicles and 300,000 people traveled through the city during the weekend. He estimated more than 100,000 people visited the casino.

Visitors Crowd Mountain Range

SEATTLE (AP) — Visitors are crowding the world's tallest mountain range, so an American expedition planning to climb K2 in the Himalayas this summer will be delayed two weeks.

Seattle climber Jim Whittaker, the team leader, said Monday that the shift in dates was ordered by the Pakistani government to avoid conflict with a British expedition planning the same climb. Several other expeditions will be in the same area during the summer.

Minor Injuries To Pedestrian

Marie Braxton, 20 of Route 4, Greenville, was treated at Pitt Memorial Hospital for minor injuries she received when struck by a car about 11:30 p.m. Saturday at the intersection of Fifth and Cotanche Streets.

Investigators reported Miss Braxton was struck by a car driven by Kenneth MacDonald Avery of 2607 Jefferson Dr. as she was crossing Cotanche Street.

No damage resulted to the Avery car and no charges were made.

Rawl Scholarship Will Be Presented Here Friday

Friends of the late Ed and Barrie Rawl have established a scholarship fund in memory of the Greenville couple who were killed in a plane crash several months ago.

The Rawl Scholarship will be presented for the first time at Awards Day at Rose High School Friday, with one or more of the three Rawl children on hand.

Its recipient each year will be a Rose High School senior chosen on the basis of four attributes: good moral character, academic excellence, athletic participation and extra-curricular activity. It is to be based entirely on merit, not financial need.

A trust was been set up at First State Bank here to administer the scholarship and funds are still being collected. A spokesman for the trustees, who wish to be anonymous, said it is hoped that interest on the principal will provide "a scholarship of at least $500 each year perpetually."

A committee composed of a trustee plus the principal, athletic director and a guidance counselor of Rose High will select the recipient each year. "Neither Ed nor Barrie attended Rose High, but all their children did and they were extremely interested in the activities of this high school," a spokesman for the trustees said. "For this reason, we feel this is an appropriate way to honor our friends' memory."

Another new offering is "The Hungarian Rhapsody," complete with strolling violinist.

"Breakfast with Love" announced the new catering and delivery services Monday, along with the change of name, which it said was brought on by a threat of legal action from Hoving, chairman of the jewelry and silver emporium.

Hoving said he feared people might actually think Tiffany's had gone into the catering business.

Now it's "Breakfast with Love, Ltd.," and if you're rich enough, the "Love" can even include a belly dancer and or someone who will play an oud, a lute-like string instrument.

But that comes with the $1,000 breakfast, entitled "One Thousand and One Nights" and consisting of champagne, caviar and "de foi gras truffe."

Evacuate Area Of Derailment

MOSSY HEAD, Fla. (AP) — About 300 people were evacuated from their homes early today after two rail cars carrying toxic anhydrous ammonia ruptured when the last 30 cars of a 100-car train derailed.

No injuries were reported, but Walton County sheriff's deputies said 11 of the derailed cars were carrying dangerous chemicals.

Louisville & Nashville Railroad officials were trying to stop the leaking ammonia and were examining the other cars for leaks.

Highway patrolmen blocked off Interstate 10 and U.S. 90 near this Florida Panhandle town of about 700 people and deputies evacuated people living within two miles of the wreck.

The derailment shortly after midnight was the third mishap in 24 hours involving Louisville & Nashville trains in the area.

Monday evening, several hundred residents of De Funiak Springs, several miles east in Walton County, were evacuated temporarily when a train car leaking an unidentified caustic chemical stopped in the town.

The train was stopped because two cars carrying rocks on an earlier train had derailed. Railroad officials used pneumatic jacks to get the two cars back on the tracks. The leaking car was moved out of town after a delay of about two hours.

French Snap Up 'Friperie' Fashions

By ALINE MOSBY
PARIS (UPI) — The flowered rayon dress with short sleeves had a label marked J.C. Penney. It probably sold for $10 to a logger's wife in Polson, Montana, around 1947.

That old dress with a secondhand price tag of 160 francs — about $35 — was being tried on eagerly the other day by a young Parisian in a chic new boutique on one of Paris's most elegant shopping streets.

New York-New York offers a new look for the French — American clothes from the thirties and forties.

Old clothes have been a fast-selling item among fashion-conscious females in Paris for some years. They first discovered ancient lace-trimmed night gowns, frayed evening gowns and ruffled petticoats, mostly from the turn of the century, in stalls at antiques flea markets.

The French dubbed these clothes frip — an abbreviation of friperie, or secondhand clothes.

Now frip is branching out into refined specialties. Flea market stalls and little boutiques offer men's old shirts and vests and clothing from the thirties and forties. One big department store, Galeries Lafayette, has installed a special boutique for old clothing in its "20 Years" department.

The New York-New York boutique opened last fall on the plushy Rue Jacob off the Boulevard Saint Germain on the Left Bank.

"American clothes of those years are special," said boutique manager Nicole Blanes. "They really have style and they're quite different in the frip business."

"Old American clothes are much farther out than the French clothes of those years. Most of the styles I sell were made between 1935 and 1945, very large shoulders, much more embroidery and pearls than you saw on French dresses. The dressy 1940-50 cocktail dresses of the United States are much more eccentric than the French styles. They have a special look, a special cut."

Mrs. Blanes, who with her husband used to operate French restaurants in Spain and New York, got the idea for the boutique when she saw similar shops in New York.

"There are wholesalers in New York who deal only in used clothing," she said. "I had to look through boxes and boxes of old clothes. I cleaned the clothes when necessary and took down hemlines if they were too short."

Her steady stream of customers is mostly in the 30-35 age range.

One recent day, they were fingering crepe cocktail dresses

York boutique, which opened last fall. (UPI Telephoto) that swept America during the World War II era. Plain ones were 150 francs — about $35; beaded, 200 francs — about $45.

Printed afternoon dresses looked like those American women wore to the town hotel for lunch in the 1940s.

One corner of the shop could have been a 1945 coat rack in a midwestern college town. There were well-scuffed suede jackets for 300 francs (about $63) that appeared to be veterans of bowling alleys and football field bleachers. Frenchwomen also were happily pawing over cotton windbreaker jackets at 120 francs — about $25 — that could charitably be called wrinkled relics.

Young Parisians buy American lace-trimmed nightgowns and bedjackets to wear to discotheques. The shop also does a brisk trade in American railway workers' striped coveralls and carpenters' white work pants.

"I love these sweaters," said Mrs. Blanes, holding up a cardigan embroidered with pearls, a hot U.S. fashion in the forties. "French women never wore any such thing before."

Some Americans might get the feeling the French are making fun of U.S. fashions. Others might conclude that the revival of the Hollywood movie star look is flattery. Because big name Paris designers are inspired now by what they see on the streets, the Joan Crawford wide-shouldered silhouette was strong in the April ready-to-wear fashion showings in Paris.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Do you know what the basic difference is between youth and old age?

Boxes. Youth has always believed that somewhere around the next bend, there is always a box when they need it.

Old age never wants to take that chance.

I don't think I'll ever forget the first time I discovered my mother was a "box junkie."

She had given me a birthday present and as I lifted the lid off the top to unfold a robe, Mother leaned over, snapped the lid back on the box and took it back.

Later, when I thought about it, I was always receiving a scarf in a stationery box, a blouse in a shoebox, and once I got a small pendant in a box marked "Rectal Thermometer."

At Christmas, there was no size too large or small, no form too ridiculous, no present too pithy to be matched up to one of Mother's famous boxes.

After awhile I came to recognize them. The box from Saks (Mother had never been to Saks in her life) that always caused the recipient's heart to beat a little faster (until I found a floral ironing board cover in it one year), a Christmas box from Nieman-Marcus (she'd never been to Texas in her entire life) that she salvaged from the lost-and-found at the church, and her ace in the hole, a box from Tiffany's which I didn't get too choked up about when she gave me a mood ring in it two years ago.

She had boxes stashed all over the house for transporting cakes, hamsters, laundry and picnic supplies. Boxes for mailing. Boxes for storing. Boxes for science themes, sleeping dogs, snapshots and memorabilia. Boxes for starting fires. Boxes for rainy-day projects. Boxes for boots by the door. And boxes to keep the baked beans from spilling over the car trunk. Boxes for a child's birthday present that you didn't know you had until you went through the catch-all drawer in the kitchen. She had boxes in her boxes.

I worry about Mother. I really do. No one should be that obsessed with boxes. It's really bizarre to get more excited over the outside of a gift than the inside. And what's she going to do with all of them?

Of course, if she leaves them to me, I have 600 pounds of leftover ribbons in plastic bags on the shelf of my closet... bows with a touch of adhesive still left... satin fragments three inches long... tired ready-mades that just a touch of the iron would revive...

High School and the mother of three children.

The awards were made on the following merits, enthusiastic spirit, willingness, dependability, attitude, unselfishness in volunteering services, participation, attendance and sincerity.

Working Women Do Chores

CLEVELAND (AP) — Women's liberation has not brought women as far as some may think.

A study on how Americans use their time shows that about 80 percent of all housework and child care is still women's work.

The study by Dr. John P. Robinson, professor and director of communications research at Cleveland State University, indicates that whether women are employed outside their homes or not, they apparently are satisfied with doing most of the housework and child care.

"Relatively few women — 23 percent — said they wanted their husbands to help more with the household chores," the report noted, "and the demand was not that much greater among employed women than among housewives."

Robinson divided his study on the uses of time into two categories — the obligatory uses of time and free time.

The obligatory uses, things that have to be done by everyone, included time spent at work, in child care, doing housework, personal needs and travel.

Free time included socializing and recreation, organizational and adult education and time devoted to using the mass media.

Although women do most of the housework and child care, the study indicated they work outside the home and travel only two-thirds as much as men.

In the area of personal needs it showed men and women came out even, with everyone giving about 10 hours a day to this.

"The major amount (of the 10 hours)," the study report noted, "is given to the proverbial eight hours of sleep."

After the necessities, the study indicates Americans have 20 percent of their time, about 34 hours a week, for free time.

Social classes determine how they use this time.

"The less affluent watch more television and rest more," it states. "The more affluent are involved more in adult education courses, formal organizations, reading and going to places of entertainment."

Even with free time, the individual's sex has an important role.

Men with employed wives or large families, the report notes, have about two more hours each week of free time than single men or men with unemployed wives or small families.

Women who are employed or who have large families, it claims, have about two hours less free time each week.

The study indicates Americans give about one half of all free time to the mass media — radio, television, newspapers and magazines. Television gets more of this time than all others combined.

"Television has caused the greatest change to American daily life in the past 100 years," the study states.

The time usage study was done by combining five different surveys conducted by Robinson and other researchers.

"Time is the most equally distributed human resource available," Robinson said. "Inequalities arise from different energy levels people invest and the productivity they derive from these constant amounts of time."

Weddings Should Be A Joint Expense

DEAR ABBY: BOILING MAD IN PA. made me so mad I am seeing red, and I'm still "seeing red" (in debt) after paying for three daughters' weddings that ran over $2,000 each!

I say if the groom's family wants a part in the planning of the wedding, let them put up some cash; otherwise, it's the bride's day, and she and her family can have the full say over all the wedding plans.

I am now looking forward to my son's wedding, and I don't want a bloomin' thing to do with the plans as long as the bride's family foots the bill.

SEEING RED IN SEATTLE

DEAR SEEING: Personally, I would like to see the wedding become a joint effort, shared equally by both sides.

Must Insure A Short Session

Wednesday the State Legislature will go into session for the second year of the biennium.

In previous times the Legislature met only every other year, and the main session is still held on the first year of the biennium.

Meeting in off years has occurred only recently because the governor and the Legislature could have a better picture of revenues at that time.

That in itself is not bad, but the legislative leaders should do everything in their power to see that the session is a limited one.

The Legislature needs only to consider the budget recommendations, complete the consideration of liquor-by-the-drink in the House and handle a few other non-controversial matters.

If the second year meeting of the biennium is allowed to drift, it won't be too many years before we find annual sessions running for several months.

Legislative leaders are hoping to get this session over with in three or four weeks. They should stick to this schedule.

Dark Day Of Bank Robberies For N.C.

Last Thursday was a dark day insofar as bank robberies were concerned.

There were three in North Carolina within two hours.

Two women employees of a bank in New Bern were wounded. In another robbery, a suspect fleeing from the police was involved in a traffic accident in which a Rocky Mount man was killed.

The penalties for bank robbery are already stiff but where innocent people are killed or injured, there should be no court mercy for those convicted.

THIS AFTERNOON

Further Political Changes

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Voters might have thought that approving an amendment to the State Constitution allowing a governor to seek a second term in office settled for some time further consideration of major change in the structure of government.

All signs point to the contrary.

It is widely expected that three other major issues will come to a head in the coming four or five years: the power of a governor to veto measures passed by the lawmakers; restrictions on the length of legislative sessions; and efforts by some legislators to get more power over preparation of the state's annual $4 billion budget.

The first two will require another amendment to the State Constitution, and some insiders already see tradeoffs shaping up in which legislators might get some of the powers they want in exchange for beefing up further the office of governor.

Skirmishing

In recent weeks, the skirmishing both publicly and privately has been intense, centering largely around Gov. James B. Hunt on the one hand, and Lt. Gov. James C. Green on the other.

Green is chairman of the Governmental Operations Commission where much of the advance planning for legislative power is taking place. He is an outspoken critic of Gov. Hunt, and fully expected to challenge him in the 1980 elections should Hunt seek re-election.

Gov. Hunt pushed and won the matter of a second term for the governor, and still feels that the veto is needed. To offset the clout gained by being able to run again, key legislators now seek to put stronger limits on the administration in these key ways:

— Restrict budget flexibility once the assembly approves a certain spending program;

— Establish sunset, zero-base, and performance contract oversight of programs; — Set up a legislative budget shop and law giving the General Assembly full access to all base data which makes up the governor's budget proposal each year.

BILL NOBLITT

"I have talked with the Lieutenant Governor about these and have expressed my strong concern... about doing anything that erodes the power of the executive," Gov. Hunt says. He opposes several of the measures as put forth.

"One of the things which is most inappropriate is the legislative budget office. It would simply add another layer of bureaucracy — a layer of legislative bureaucracy — and make it tougher to respond to the people," the governor feels.

Erode Power

Hunt says there is "nothing I feel more strongly about than not eroding the powers of the Office of Governor," and feels the people elect the governor to run programs on a day-to-day basis and to evaluate them and be able to make quick adjustments when necessary.

As to restricting the length of legislative sessions, Hunt says, "I think most members of the General Assembly would welcome this."

Many now complain that meeting every year and with sessions running several months, working people can't serve. The assembly faces growing domination by the wealthy, the retired, and educators who can take leaves to serve.

If limited to shorter sessions of perhaps two months, Hunt believes, the assembly would settle down to work and get done what may take six months if there are no limitations.

He Sent'em A Message

WASHINGTON — George Corley Wallace may have bowed out of the 1978 senatorial election in Alabama, but anyone who thinks Wallace has thereby bowed out of politics should be penalized 15 yards for naivete. The governor will stop politicking when the Tombigbee freezes over.

Nevertheless, the startling announcement from Montgomery two weeks ago provides an opportunity for a retrospective look at this consummate politician. Most political figures take politics seriously, but most of them have other interests also.

This has never been true of Wallace. He sleeps, eats and breathes politics. He sweats politics from every pore. Reporters who interview the governor return from the experience dazed and shaking. Wallace comes at you like a fire hose, gushing torrents of facts, figures, reminiscences, anecdotes. He has no interest in art, music, architecture, philosophy, drama or the dance. I once called him a cultural Moon Mullins and he liked it. "More of them," he kidded me, "than there are of you."

Before he was crippled by an assassin's bullet in the campaign of 1972, Wallace was the closest thing to perpetual motion ever set loose on the campaign trail.

He had been a bantamweight boxer in his youth, and those quick and nible feet were always moving. His gestures were a boxer's gestures — the jab, the punch, the protective shoulder.

After the shooting, all that changed. A couple of years ago, Joe Kraft and I were barnstorming around Illinois, and learned that Wallace was upstairs in a nearby hotel. We went up to say hello, and the governor, fully dressed, was stretched out on the bed. The soles of his shoes were perfectly new. But if Wallace was paralyzed from the waist down, from the waist up he was still full of the old p, and v.

When the next edition of Bartlett's "Familiar Quotations" goes to press, perhaps the editors will give a little deserved space to the governor. Not for his defense of "segregation now, segregation tomorrow, segregation forever," but for the greatest slogan ever devised in the presidential arena: "Send 'em a message!" The slogan was meaningless. It gave no hint of the message to be sent nor of the "them" who were to receive it, but the slogan leaped over rational dissection. "Send 'em a message!" It was beautiful.

In his prime, Wallace ranked as one of the most effective speakers I ever heard. He had the marvelous gift of cadence — Martin Luther King and Bobby Kennedy had it also — by which an orator establishes a rhythmic antiphony with his audience. Wallace once apologized, teasingly, to an Eastern reporter for keeping him waiting. "I've been demagoguing over in Louisiana, and my plane was late." Much of his oratory was indeed demagoguery, but it was very high-class stuff.

Psychic Scars Absent

By ROGER GILLOTT
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Despite predictions that the lives of Vietnam prisoners of war could be left in shambles by bad memories, bitterness and anguish, the 300 POWs who gathered over the weekend showed little evidence of psychic scars.

The only noticeable scars were physical — a limp, a twisted hand, a large blotch of scar tissue from a bad burn.

However, the POWs generally remain bitter about the way the war was fought — not vigorously enough, they contend — and about those who protested the war.

"We had all these forecasts from the doctors and the head shrinkers about how bad we'd turn out because of the deprivation, the isolation, the bad food, the malnutrition and so forth," said former Air Force Col. George Day, who won the Medal of Honor while in a prison camp. Day, 53, is now a lawyer in Fort Walton Beach, Fla.

"The truth is, I think I'm better off because of what I went through," said retired Air Force Lt. Col. Don Odell, 47. He wears a permanent collar brace because his neck was broken by his captors, who were trying to extract an anti-war testimonial from him. They did not get it.

"I have a better understanding of myself and my fellow man. You learn how much you need other people to survive," Odell said.

Most of the POWs — more than half of the 556 freed by Hanoi in May 1973 — talked freely and matter-of-factly to reporters during a two-day convention marking the fifth anniversary of their release. With many of them were wives and girlfriends.

Most were near middle age and graying. A few were paunchy, but most seemed in good shape physically. All had been fliers and officers.

Most still believed the war was right and had praise for former President Richard Nixon, whom they credited with forcing Hanoi to free them by deciding in 1972 to bomb North Vietnam by B-52s.

Highlight of the convention was a party given by Nixon at his Casa Pacifica villa in San Clemente on Saturday. Once before, shortly before resigning the presidency in 1974, Nixon held a similar party for the POWs.

American Legion Auxiliary officials who had charge of the poppy sale said today that more than $110 was realized from the sale of the little blossoms in Greenville alone.

When reports are made by other places in the county, the total is expected to be boosted substantially.

Floyd Roberts of Van Nuys, California, raced to a record-breaking victory in the 500-mile automobile race held in Indianapolis, Indiana. It was his first major triumph in 22 years of racing.

The winner finished over five miles ahead of Wilbur Shaw of Indianapolis, winner of the 1937 classic.

Roberts covered the 500 miles in 4:15:58.40 to establish the remarkable average of 117.200 miles an hour, smashing the record of 113.500 hung up by Shaw last year.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Bypassing The Military

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Just two days after secret testimony by the new chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff (JCS) reaffirmed the military's opposition to a total nuclear test ban, President Carter ordered U.S. negotiators to press for precisely such a deal with the Soviets.

Mr. Carter's propensity to take military decisions against the military's advice has never been clearer. On May 18, at closed-door Senate hearings on his nomination as JCS chairman, Air Force Gen. David Jones unequivocally opposed, in the interests of national security, a "zero yield" ban (prohibiting even low-yield explosions) of all underground tests. He was patently unaware that a "presidential decision memorandum" taking the opposite position was being readied for Mr. Carter's signature May 20.

After the fact, the joint chiefs met on blue Monday, May 22, with a majority opposed to the president's decision. The choices before them now are agonizing. Should they loyally back their president to support what they consider a hazardous course for the nation? Should they fully express their misgivings but only in congressional hearing rooms? Or should they go to the nation, either directly or indirectly?

The uniformed military's concern over the test ban treaty surpasses earlier charging over removing troops from Korea, cancelling the B-1 bomber and suspending neutron warhead production. Jones, criticized by fellow officers as overly pliable to civilian politicians, made no fuss about such earlier Carter moves as Air Force chief of staff.

Consequently, defense-oriented members of the Senate Armed Services Committee pounced on JCS chairman-designate Jones when his confirmation hearings began May 18. These senators were particularly concerned about the test ban treaty. Paul Warnke, chief disarmament negotiator, that week was pressing for a U.S. Soviet moratorium on all tests prior to negotiations for a "zero-yield" treaty.

Answering questions from Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina, the general declared: "I could not recommend a comprehensive test ban... in the context of zero testing." The secret transcript reveals Sen. Harry F. Byrd of Virginia asking whether Jones agreed that any treaty must permit testing in the 3 to 5 kiloton range, below which tests cannot be verified. "Yes, senator, I do," the general answered.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson pointed out that the joint chiefs previously opposed a zero-yield treaty. "I subscribe to that," Jones responded. "...We don't see any capability to verify the Soviets with any assurance down to zero yield." Pinning Jones down, Jackson asked whether "this is still the JCS position." The response: "Yes, it has not changed."

Jones refused to alter this stance despite prodding by Sen. John Culver of Iowa, battering ram of the arms control bloc. "Isn't it true," asked Culver, that the treaty "will provide us with a fair degree of confidence on compliance and provide a low incentive for Soviet cheating?" The general stood his ground: cheating "may not be quite that difficult... I am not assured that we would have confidence the Soviets couldn't cheat."

Culver persisted, suggesting that a treaty lasting five years or less would not threaten reliability of the U.S. nuclear stockpile. Jones replied that "something unexpected" can always effect "reliability," adding: "You just may not find the problems if you don't do testing."

Jones clearly was uninformed about other plays elsewhere in the Washington arms game. Warnke that week failed to get his pre-negotiations moratorium but won agreement on a zero-yield, five-year treaty (three years longer than the chiefs prefer). The "presidential decision memorandum" signed May 20 directed negotiators to start from Soviet proposals for on-site inspection and unmanned seismic detector stations — considered inadequate for verification by Pentagon scientific experts.

The JCS convened May 22 to talk it over. Gen. Bernard Rogers (Army), Adm. James L. Holloway (Navy) and Gen. Louis Wilson (Marines) were dead set against it. The new Air Force chief of staff, Gen. Lew Allen, wavered. Jones seemed to back away from his strong stance, suggesting that the chiefs should study the question a little more.

But during his confirmation hearings, Jones had locked himself into independence. When one defense-oriented senator after another asked whether he would be his own man as JCS chairman, Jones replied time and again: he would not travel the country (Continued on page 5)

Other Editors Say The Undisciplined

(Goldboro News-Argus)

North Carolina legislators should monitor carefully the effects of a new state law which prohibits sending a juvenile "status offender" to a state training school.

Status offenders are youngsters who have committed no criminal act but who either refuse to attend school, hang out in places where children are forbidden by law, run away from home or are persistently disobedient to their parents.

Purpose of the new law, we understand, is to avoid placing these youngsters with those who are sent to training school for criminal acts.

On the surface the law is a good one. But judges will tell you that the undisciplined child can be the most difficult person the court has to handle.

The spectre of training school has in the past been at least one way of trying to keep such a child in line.

Under the new law, the courts will have no real jurisdiction. In our district, the cases for status offenders will be referred to the court counsellors. They can recommend programs through existing resources such as mental health agencies and social services.

But the undisciplined child and his parents can simply ignore the recommendations and the counsellor and the courts have no recourse.

In effect, the new law takes the child out of the training school and turns him loose on the streets.

The Legislature should take a long hard look at the results after the first year's experience.

We may find that we need two types of training schools: one for criminal offenders and another for undisciplined children.

Strength For Today

DIVINE CONDITIONS

"If" is an important word in the Bible. God promises earthly blessings, triumph over difficulties, entrance into eternal life. But always on the condition that we do certain things to earn these benefits.

God does not force His way into a person's heart, but He will enter the human heart and cleanse and save it if mankind will do certain things. We are saved when we allow God to do the divine work which He accomplishes through Jesus Christ. But we must hear His voice — that is, our hearts must be so attuned to divine things that we can hear them when they are uttered. We must open the door so that the King of Glory may come in and make our hearts His own.

So the word "if" is tremendously important in religion. God is ready to give us everything our lives need for their fulfillment, but in return we must give to Him our complete trust and confidence.

Some Things In Your Future

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Among the items you may expect to hear about over the next few weeks and months are these:

— Higher food prices. In the first quarter of the year they rose at an annual rate of better than 16 percent, and the Agriculture Department concedes that the yearly increase might be 6 percent to 8 percent.

A better idea of what's in store will come Wednesday, when figures for the April consumer price index will be released, perhaps shocking some economists whose research is conducted in labs rather than stores.

We know that beef prices will be higher. The National Cattlemen's Association has informed us that in the month to May 11, the national average of five beef cuts was $1.89 a pound, up 11 cents from April 11.

Some non-governmental forecasters are now saying that food prices for the entire year could inch into the double digits, although barely so. But even the minimum double digit, 10 percent, is extraordinary.

— A slowdown in the strong first-half increases in personal income. It was these increases — 1.4 percent in both March and April, adding more than $40 billion to incomes — that staved off consumer bitterness.

With such increases unlikely in the second half of the year, and with prices rising, consumers are likely to become more vocal, especially since many of them already are borrowed up to their limits.

— Rising interest rates. The prime lending rate for most banks is now up to 8.5 percent and rising. While the prime does not directly affect consumer rates, it is an early indicator of general market pressures.

Eventually, these pressures affect consumer loans and home mortgage rates, and could force the latter up close to double-digit levels later this year. While this isn't certain, mortgage lenders are worried.

— More corporations are likely to announce they will cooperate with the Carter administration and hold executive salary increases to 5 percent. But they'll be less likely to offer cooperation on prices.

— Recession. Many independent economists are already raising the odds for the beginning of one very late this year. But while the amount of discussion will increase, it does not mean recession is inevitable.

In fact, one of the most positive statements about the economy, that there wouldn't be a recession this year, was issued a few weeks ago by the National Association of Purchasing Executives.

The executives even extended their forecast into the very early part of next year, based on the strength of orders at the nation's factories. After that, it seems, the possibility might increase.

— Considering the negative aura of business news, you'll probably hear little about the economy's pluses, such as the greatest number of workers, and the greatest number of home owners and homebuyers ever.

Arkansas Voters Also Going To Polls Today

By The Associated Press
Arkansas Gov. David Pryor tried today for the second time to win nomination as the Democratic candidate for the U.S.
Senate — this time for the seat left vacant by the death of John McClellan, who defeated him six years ago.

And in North Carolina, two Democrats faced each other in a runoff to decide who will take on Republican Sen. Jesse Helms in the November general election.

McClellan, who died on Nov.
28 at the age of 81, was in his 35th year in the Senate. Attorney Kaneaster Hodges of Newport is serving the last year of McClellan's sixth term. Since he was appointed to fill out the term, Hodges is barred by law from running this year for a full term.

Reps. Ray Thornton of Sheridan and Jim Guy Tucker of Little Rock and political newcomer A.C. Grigson of Texarkana were in the race against Pryor, a two-term governor who lost in a primary bid to McClellan in 1972.

The winner of that race will face Republican Tom Kelly, a political newcomer who had no primary opposition, in the November general election.

Along with the Senate primary race in Arkansas, voters there will choose a Democratic gubernatorial nominee from a five-candidate field.

State Attorney General Bill Clinton took on former legislator Frank Lady of Jonesboro, former County Judge Randall Mathis of Arkadelphia, former prosecutor Joe Woodward of Magnolia and retired farmer Monroe Schwarlose of Kingsland in the Democratic gubernatorial primary.

GOP chairman Lynn Lowe, who was not opposed for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, will face the winner of the Democratic primary in November.

In North Carolina, meanwhile, former Charlotte banker Luther Hodges Jr. and state Insurance Commissioner John Ingram squared off in the Democratic senatorial runoff election.

Helms, a Republican who had no primary opposition in his party, is the state's first Republican senator in this century.

Ingram was 14 percentage points behind Hodges after the primary election on May 2, and exercised his right by law to demand a runoff when Hodges did not receive a majority of the votes.

Hackles Are Raised By Reports Of FBI Steps

ATLANTA (AP) — Reports that the FBI used a prominent black leader to help them oust
Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. from the helm of the civil rights movement in the 1960s have raised the ire of King's widow, who says Americans should consider dismantling the FBI.

And Dr. Joseph Lowery, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference which King founded, said Monday he'll ask President Carter to have the FBI "substantiate the fantastic claim or withdraw it."

Monday's Washington Post reported that a confidential FBI memo from 1963 indicates the bureau was working with an unidentified black leader in trying to replace King as a civil rights leader.

The memo from former FBI director J. Edgar Hoover to his assistant, William C. Sullivan, reportedly alluded to a discussion between the unnamed black leader and FBI official Cartha DeLoach.

"While I am not going to comment specifically on this latest FBI revelation, it simply proves once again that the FBI treated the civil rights movement as if it were an alien enemy attack on the United States," King's widow, Coretta Scott King, said Monday.

"The personal innuendos are beneath contempt and they establish once again the FBI's obsession for invading private lives and developing imaginative scenarios for their own purpose," she said.

"And all of this raises the real issue of today — since we can't do anything about yesterday — and that is to question the purposes and the practices of the FBI in whether we should as a nation consider dismantling it and replacing the FBI with a law enforcement agency with genuine and lawful objectives and procedures," said Mrs. King, the president of the Martin Luther King Jr.
Center for Social Change.

Lowery said the FBI should identify the black leader whose name was deleted from the report.

"First of all, I think it is absolutely incredible that a prominent, reputable black leader would collaborate with the FBI to destroy or remove

Dr. King, to use their words.

"While we suspected paid informants, they could have been at any level. But they said this was a top executive or prominent leader who was chosen by the FBI and could have replaced Dr. King," he said.

"I think they ought to drop the other shoe. I think it is unfair to cast shadows on the whole movement this way," Lowery said.

The SCLC president said the FBI's action could be interpreted as an attempt to "shift blame for Dr. King's tragic death from the FBI and racists to blacks."

Scholarship For Carrier

Richard Augustus Adams, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. (Dick) Adams of Grifton, has been awarded an honor scholarship at Brevard Junior College.

Adams, a marshal at Ayden-Grifton High School, plans to bypass his senior year at AGHS and attend Brevard this fall.

According to school officials, some students are able to bypass their final year. The parents, the school principal, a review committee, the local advisory council, and the Board of Education must all review and recommend the student for this procedure.

Adams will not technically graduate from high school until completion of his first English course at college. The stipulations of the honor scholarship require Adams to maintain good grades for the school year.

Adams will also end a long career with The Daily Reflector as a paper carrier. He began several years ago, and is now known throughout his route for his helpfulness.

Richard has also been recognized in "America's Names and Faces," 1977-78 edition.

Mary Ann Mobley of Brandon, Miss., was named Miss America in 1959.

When it came to evading

Jacksonville. This was early

TV studio where a panel of questioners awaited him.
Toward the end of the half-hour program, one of them asked the governor a mean question about the Allende government in Chile. Wallace never blinked. He turned the question into a general response having to do with foreign aid. The next voice was the moderator's, saying, sorry, governor, our time is Cornelia walked outside the studio with me. These were happier times; the awfulness of May 15 was still two mon-arm. "When that boy asked George about Chile," she said, "I lak to die-yied. I said,

You saw! He knew

Helms Claims Panama Won't Abide By Pact

REIDSVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Republican Sen. Jesse Helms told a party rally here that he intends to unveil information in a speech on the Senate floor next week that shows the Panamanian government has no intention of abiding by the Senate amendments to the Panama Canal treaties.

Helms told the Republican rally Monday that the Panamanian government has rejected "all of the the amendments adopted by the Senate to make the treaties more palatable."

But a State Department spokeswoman said Panama notified the government last month that both treaties and all amendments were acceptable.

Helms told WFMV-TV he had a copy of a communique from the Panamanian government to the United States in which, he said, the message is clear that "Panama will not respect the amendments."

Helms said he did not have the document with him and could not recall word-for-word what it said, but said he would unveil the information in a speech on the Senate floor June 5.

State Department spokeswoman Kimerly King told WFMV-TV Monday the Panamanian foreign ministry notified the U.S. government in late April that both treaties and all amendments to them are acceptable to Panama.

She also said no communications have been received that would lead the State Department to believe the Panamanian position had changed.

The Senate amendments referred to by Helms were intended by their sponsors to give the United States the right to maintain the security of the canal in the interest of national security.

"So the question is," Helms said, "whether the president of the United States in full knowledge — and I'm going to make sure he knows it if he doesn't already — that the president of the United States will go down there and sign these treaties giving away our canal with no conditions whatsoever."

Helms said he had been working on the "rather long" speech he will deliver June 5 "for two or three weeks after considerable research."

At Least 17 Dead In N.C. Toll

By The Associated Press
At least 17 persons died on North Carolina highways over the Memorial Day weekend, according to the Highway Patrol.

The deaths raised the state's yearly toll to 534, one fewer than in the comparable period last year.

A 2-year-old girl was killed Monday afternoon in Northampton County three miles north of Conway. Larkesha Jennings of Pendleton was killed when she ran into the path of a vehicle, the patrol said.

Three members of a Stokes County family and a Winston-Salem woman were killed in a head-on collision Sunday seven miles north of Walnut Cove in Stokes County. The victims included Larry Daniel Ely, 29, of Rt. 1, Walnut Cove; his wife, Sarah Jane Ely, 26; and their 5-year-old daughter, Tanya. Also killed was Michelle Joan Dehaven, 25, of Winston-Salem. Ely's car reportedly crossed the center line on N.C. 8 and hit the Dehaven car head-on.

"Whether you're abroad as a businessman or on a holiday, people don't look at you as anything but an American astronaut," Cernan said. "Once you've walked on the moon, you can never unwalk."

After commanding Apollo 17, the last manned flight to the moon in December 1972, Cernan remained in the space program and worked on the U.S.-Soviet Apollo-Soyuz linkup in space. He could have stayed on for the current space shuttle program but decided it was time to get out.

AIR FORCE ACADEMY
Colo. (AP) — The Air Force Academy's 20th graduation ceremony will be the first without a "Tail-End Charlie." Officials have decided to hand out diplomas in alphabetical order this year after naming the top 65 graduates, instead of in the traditional "graduation order of merit."

Capt. Ron Bell, duty information officer, said Monday that in the past, the lowest-ranking, last-named cadet was given a trophy and, occasionally, a silver dollar from each classmate. Bell said the order of merit was determined primarily by grades, but included athletic performance, military accomplishments and the like.

Our Body's All-Important Immunity

Our 5-year-old daughter has been having all kinds of infections. The doctors recently decided that she has an "immune deficiency." Can you explain this to us? — Mr. & Mrs. C.E., Tenn.

Dear Mr. & Mrs. E.:
In the past 25 years, a great deal has been learned about immunodeficiency diseases. This is a group of various disorders characterized by a greater susceptibility to infections. Many young children who have constant and repeated infections were found to have little or no immunity to the germs that affected them.

When once this is suspected, there are a number of highly sophisticated laboratory tests which can now determine positive evidence of a lack of immunity. Studies made on the blood can show a deficiency of globulin which normally is so important as a protective factor.

It is now possible to increase resistance to infections by giving a child regular doses of gamma globulin. The explosion of information in the science of immunology portends great hope for the control of many deficiency problems.

I live with my daughter and her husband. They have a young infant. I can't stand their new-fangled ways of letting the child cry before being fed. I know that when my children were small I fed them on a regular schedule. Wasn't this better? — Mrs. R.T., La. Dear Grandma T.:

Now, you just leave those young folks alone. It's generally accepted today that "demand feeding" has many advantages over the method that you once used. Forcefully imposing food on infants who aren't hungry is not necessarily the best way to get them to enjoy food. You can be sure that your grandchild will flourish by being fed only when he sends out his own little signal. Living as you do with your children is evidence of their affection for you. Over the years, you're going to find that there are many departures from that which you once considered the ideal way to bring up a child. Soon, you will be questioning many other things that differ from your own ideas. You should prepare yourself and accept these "new-fangled" notions. If you don't, there is always the possibility that you will introduce conflicts in your relationship with your daughter and son-in-law.

I have a polyp in my rectum. If I don't have it removed can it ever become cancerous? — Mr. J.L., N.H.

Dear Mr. L.:
Polyps of the rectum are very common and are usually benign (non-cancerous). There are many reasons why polyps should be removed after they are recognized. Sometimes they bleed profusely and they can be responsible for intestinal symptoms.

It is known that, on rare occasions, a benign polyp can become cancerous. If your doctor suggests removing it, why not do it and stop worrying?

HOW TO DO A LITTLE BUSINESS ON YOUR OWN...

Holding a garage sale is a fun way to do a little business on your own... but it takes a bit of planning.

Like you'll want to decide what to sell and how much to charge for each item... and then you'll need price tags so other people will know what you're charging.

And you'll have to be able to make change for all your customers... so that means you should have lots of one dollar bills and an assortment of coins.

Then you'll want to advertise your sale to attract that crowd. You can do it with a sign or signs in your neighborhood... but you'll want a bigger crowd than that... so you'll run an ad in Classified which tells the time and place of your sale to a host of potential buyers.

One more thing... get up early the day of your sale! When people read about a Garage Sale in Classified, they shop early.

Have fun with your little business adventure!

Next Move?

CHICAGO (AP) — After battling alcoholism for years, John A. Smith finally has a master's degree in urban studies, but he doesn't quite know what to do with it.

He's been studying the city inside out for years—as a garbage truck driver at the incinerator yard.

That's why it came as a surprise to some neighbors and acquaintances when Smith, 51, marched to "Pomp and Circumstance" at Loyola University commencement ceremonies Saturday.

He says he's not sure how he will be able to use his degree. "I don't know if there's any chance of starting anything this late in the game," he said. "I would like to do something that requires more head work, but I'm not sure what."

He received seven A's and five B's in his graduate program. Despite his academic status, Smith said he likes his job because it gives him time to think and it is worthwhile.

Columbus Said Testers' Choice

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — If you can sell it in Columbus, marketing experts agree, you can sell it to America.

Betty Spencer, executive vice president of Dwight Spencer and Associates of Columbus, says the city is one of her firm's favorite areas for gauging consumer response to a new product or service.

If any city can be called typical, Columbus can be, said Mrs. Spencer, whose organization test marketed products in 111 cities for 75 companies last year.

And a Reader's Digest publication, "Inside Test City, U.S.A.," agrees that Ohio's capital is one of the best test markets in the nation.

Mrs. Spencer said the variety of employers in the area — light industry, state government, insurance companies and banks — assures that the employees, and thus the population of the area, will be diverse.

Columbus has a diversified and stable economy. The economy of a city like Akron would fluctuate greatly with the ups and downs of the rubber industry.

It is self-contained and relatively isolated. Outside media influences would not distort a test. The buying habits of people in Dayton, for example, would be heavily influenced by media in Cincinnati.

Electronic banking machines, introduced by City National Bank in Columbus, gained acceptance in the city long before they were used in many other areas.

John Russell, the bank's vice president of marketing, said the machines' use in Columbus was watched closely by other banks and their popularity here has led to their development nationwide.

It's not always a product that is being tested, said Mark Cunningham, account executive with Burke Marketing Research of Cincinnati, which has a field office here.

Often a firm will test the public's reaction to a new price, package or advertising, Cunningham said. He said his company does research for 250 companies and often uses Columbus for its tests.

Other cities used often as test markets are Syracuse and Rochester, N.Y.; Indianapolis and Fort Wayne, Ind.; Milwaukee, Phoenix, Atlanta and Dallas.

Where a company chooses to test its products often depends on how much money it has to spend on research, according to Mrs. Spencer.

An elaborate campaign would include test marketing in cities from the major regions of the country, said Mrs. Spencer.

But if a company can only afford to test in one market, it's usually one in the Midwest, like Columbus, she said.

See Record Bread Price

WASHINGTON (AP) — A one-pound loaf of white bread costs nearly 12 cents more than in 1971 — the year before grain exports to the Soviet Union and other nations sparked large price increases for bread, the Agriculture Department says.

The department also said the cost of a loaf of bread is at its highest in three years.

A one-pound loaf cost an average of 36.2 cents in stores in March, the latest month for which figures are available.

The 1971 price was 24.8 cents while the 1975 cost reached 36 cents a loaf before dropping slightly, department figures show.

The year 1975 ended three years of spiraling prices triggered by the grain exports. Those sales had helped push up wheat prices and began an unprecedented three years of high prices for farmers.

Wheat prices have risen appreciably since last fall, but the history of bread prices shows that rising middleman costs for turning grain into finished loaves have played a much more important role.

According to Agriculture Department experts on food marketing costs, retail bread prices since 1971 have risen about 46 percent while the farm value of wheat used to make the bread has gone up only 19 percent.

In 1971, the 24.8-cent loaf contained only about 2.8 cents worth of wheat, based on wheat's farm value of $1.34 a bushel. This March, the 36.2-cent loaf had 3.1 cents worth of wheat, based on an average farm price of $2.67 a bushel.

A new report to be issued later this week by the Labor Department will be used by the Agriculture Department to analyze April bread prices.

Varied Observances Of Memorial Day

By The Associated Press

Many celebrated Memorial Day in the traditional manner, paying respect to the 700,000 Americans who died in wars. For some, it was a day to frolic outdoors or take advantage of a holiday sale. And for others, it meant sheer confusion.

While most of the nation followed the federal government's lead and observed Memorial Day on Monday, residents of six states — Illinois, Maryland, New Hampshire, New Mexico, New York, Vermont and West Virginia — officially observed the holiday today.

In New York, the nation's financial center — Wall Street — seemed to be operating in slow motion Monday. The stock exchanges were closed, but banks were open.

One of today's scheduled marches, in Great Neck on New York's Long Island, has been the focus of a court suit.

U.S. District Judge Jack B. Weinstein ruled Monday that the North Shore Right-to-Life Committee had a right to march in the parade, sponsored by American Legion Post 304. The Legion had said its march to honor war dead would be overshadowed by controversy if the anti-abortionists participated.

Elsewhere, traditional Memorial Day observances caused little stir Monday.

In Arlington, Va., Secretary of Defense Harold Brown presided over the laying of the wreath at the Tomb of the Unknowns in Arlington National Cemetery. He said the country should rededicate itself to preserving the strength of its armed forces "so that it need not be proved in combat."

In the Detroit suburb of Troy, 23 of the last survivors of the Army's "Polar Bear" unit staged a brief ceremony at a cemetery where 50 of their compatriots are buried.

After the World War I armistice was signed, about 4,000 "Polar Bears" were shipped to the Russian port of Archangel near the Arctic Circle, where, for nearly a year, they fought against the Bolsheviks.

The surviving "Polar Bears" say this year's reunion may have been their last.

Memorial services were held at the Babelas Bridge on the Rio Grande in Albuquerque, N.M. A wreath was tossed into the river in memory of those serving in the Navy who gave their lives at sea.

In Ohio, small American flags were placed at the graves of 206 Confederate soldiers, most of them officers, who died during their imprisonment on Johnson's Island on Lake Erie during the Civil War.

Not all of Monday's ceremonies honored the nation's war dead.

In Southgate, Ky., townspeople gathered for a service at the town's war memorial, a short distance from the site of the Beverly Hills Super Club fire that killed 165 people in May 1977.

And in Moore, Okla., an estimated 400 uniformed law officers joined about 2,000 other mourners for the funeral of a Highway Patrol Lt. Pat Grimes, one of three state troopers gunned down by two Oklahoma prison fugitives last week.

Traffic accidents killed 485 people during the three-day Memorial Day weekend, compared to 432 deaths over the holiday period last year.

The National Safety Council had estimated before the holiday began at 6 p.m. Friday that 400 to 500 people would lose their lives in traffic accidents over the long weekend that ended Monday night.

The worst toll for a comparable three-day holiday was 597 in 1969, and the lowest recent toll was 389 in 1974.

The highest Memorial Day total was 629 deaths in 1968, but that was during a four-day period.

Will Probe Wiretapping

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The Charlotte City Council stepped up its probe of alleged police wiretapping Monday by authorizing an outside investigation.

In an unanimous vote with two members absent, the council authorized Mayor Ken Harris and Mayor Pro-Tem Betty Chafin to recruit an investigator.

The investigator will assist the council in its probe of allegations that Charlotte police used illegal wiretaps in 1972 and 1973 and that Police Chief J.C. Goodman ordered evidence of the wiretaps destroyed.

Goodman has denied knowledge of illegal wiretaps, and has denied ordering the destruction of any evidence of illegal wiretaps.

The council said the investigator should be a lawyer who belongs to the Mecklenburg County Bar and should review U.S. Justice Department documents and other documents related to the allegations.

No salary or qualifications were specified by the council. The person recruited by Harris and Ms. Chafin must be approved by the council and is to report to the council within six weeks after being hired.

The council decided in April to investigate the allegations after the publication of U.S. Justice Department documents that showed some federal prosecutors believed police officials were involved in illegal wiretapping.

Lost Use Of Guinea Base

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Russians apparently no longer have the use of a strategically located West African airfield for their reconnaissance flights over U.S. Navy sea lanes, intelligence sources say.

This setback for the Soviets in Guinea has been generally unnoticed amid reports of Russian and Cuban gains in their African influence.

The development suggests to U.S. intelligence analysts that Guinea's leader, Sekou Toure, may be reacting to Soviet pressure for rights to build a major naval base near the field at Conakry, although Toure still allows Soviet ships to dock there.

The airfield's location is considered strategically important because it lies where the west coast of Africa bulges out into the Atlantic.

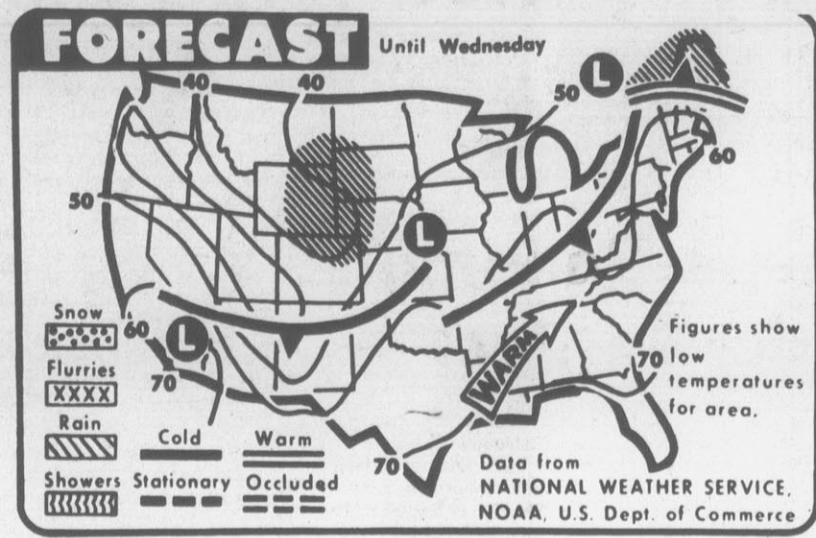

For more than five years, Russian TU95 reconnaissance planes have flown out of the field at Conakry to observe American fleet movements in the central Atlantic.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market, struggling against continued inflation and interest-rate worries, retreated slightly today in quiet post-holiday trading.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off 1.30 at 830.39, after a loss of 15.16 points last week.

Declines held a 6-5 lead over advances among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. The session was expected to be relatively slow with a number of institutions, including New York banks, closed in observance of Memorial Day. The securities markets were shut down for the holiday on Monday.

Brokers said traders were waiting uneasily for Wednesday's report from the Labor Department on the consumer price index for April. Several government officials warned last week that the figures would contain unpleasant news on the pace of inflation.

By this morning a quarter-point increase in the prime lending rate, initiated last Thursday by Chicago's Continental Illinois bank, had been matched by most other leading banks across the country.

That put the basic charge on blue-chip loans at 8 1/2 percent, its highest level in more than three years.

Benguet Consolidated Mining class B stock led the active list, up 3/4 at 4 1/4. A 134,800-share block traded at 4 1/4.

The NYSE's composite index slipped .06 to 54.08. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .09 at 144.21.

Volume on the Big Board came to 9.18 million shares at noontime, against 9.75 million at the same point Friday.

After a two-hour meeting here Monday night, Ecevit and Caramanlis said in a communique that the two countries would resume talks on the Aegean sea dispute in July. The discussions were

Arrest Changed Ned York's Life

By VIRGINIA L. TYSON

Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) —

Since that morning in February when he was arrested for questioning in the Hillside Strangler murder case, actor Ned York says he has been slugged by a friend, dropped by his agent, and forced to go on unemployment.

He says he has been followed, stared at and whispered about.

And he says he has been approached by people on the street who say "Aren't you the nut who...?"

"Being an actor I always wanted to be famous," York, 33, said recently in the first interview since his arrest and release. "I never wanted to be infamous. God knows it wasn't a publicity stunt. Who the hell would want that kind of publicity?"

Police still have not caught the strangler, although they are questioning a former convict, now being held in a federal prison in San Diego, in two of the killings.

York said people believe he was released not because he was innocent, but because police did not have enough evidence to file charges.

"People look at me with hate," he said. "And it blows me away. Maybe if they catch the strangler, it will stop. There's one thing I really dread — what if they never catch the guy?"

York's arrest came the day after Los Angeles police released part of a six-page handwritten letter purportedly sent by the Hillside Strangler in January to Mayor Tom Bradley, a letter police say York did not write.

The night before his arrest, York said, he was smoking

PCP — angel dust — and talking with a friend who had been questioned by police after with the murder of Kristina Weckler, the strangler's seventh victim, because the friend's name had appeared in Miss Weckler's diary.

At the time, the York says he was depressed because his marriage of two years had broken up, by mutual agreement, three weeks earlier.

He doesn't know exactly why he picked up the phone that morning, but he did and called the police.

"He made certain statements that provided investigators enough cause to make the arrest," Daryl F. Gates, then assistant police chief, told a news conference after the arrest.

"I don't know what I said to the police that morning," York says now.

Judge Revokes Citizenship

By SANDRA L. BALMER

Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — A federal judge ruled today that Frank Walus lied to immigration officials by concealing a past as a Gestapo killer during World War II.

Walus, 55, insisted that he never had been a member of the Gestapo and had spent the war years working on farms in Germany.

During a three-week civil trial in March and April, 11 witnesses identified Walus as the man they saw help liquidate Jewish ghettos in Poland from 1939 to 1944.

Defense attorney Robert Korenkiewicz countered with four German citizens who testified that they employed Walus as a farm laborer during World War II. He also introduced into evidence certified German health insurance records listing a Franz Walus as a farm laborer who worked for the four German farmers during the war years.

The government argued during the civil trial that Walus

Says Rules Call For Poor Care

WASHINGTON (AP) —

A Washington physician active in health planning says Medicaid rules in the nation's capital require her to provide inferior care to patients under the program. Dr. Bette Catoe said as a result, she will no longer treat Medicaid patients in her private pediatric practice after Thursday.

Dr. Catoe is former chairman of the District of Columbia's Health Planning Advisory Committee. She noted that since the program only pays for a limited number of visits, she has to stop and consider whether or not a patient is on Medicaid.

Want A Larger Fine By Govm't

WASHINGTON (AP) —

A New York state legislative officer wants to know why the federal government is not seeking a larger fine against Gulf Oil Corp. for alleged participation in a conspiracy to fix uranium prices.

There appears to be no good reason for the government's decision to charge Gulf with a misdemeanor rather than a felony, says William F. Haddad, head of the New York Assembly's Office of Legislative Oversight. Haddad said a legislative committee made a major effort to develop a case against Gulf and submitted its evidence to a grand jury.

'Undone' By Mosquitos

ISHPEMING, Mich. (AP) —

It wasn't so much the long arm of the law as the short legs of the bugs that proved to be Gerald Spenke's undoing, police say.

State Police Trooper David Cope said he was patrolling U.S. 41 Monday afternoon when he spotted a motorist doing more than 100 mph.

Cope said he chased the motorist to a wooded area near this Upper Michigan Peninsula town, where the speeding car screeched to a halt near Lake Michigan, and its driver and a passenger fled on foot.

After a brief chase, police said Cope captured Spenke, 20, of Ishpeming, and his passenger.

But while the officer was preoccupied, Spenke freed himself, got into Cope's patrol car, which had its keys in the ignition, and took off, police said.

A few minutes later, the car was spotted near the town of L'Anse. Another trooper gave chase and trailed the fleeing patrol car into the woods, where Spenke allegedly jumped out and headed into the brush on foot.

Sgt. Darryl Prudom said police were just getting ready to bring in tracking dogs to hunt for the man when he walked out of the woods, complaining that he was being attacked by mosquitos, and surrendered.

Prudom said Spenke was being held at the Marquette County jail Monday on a charge of car theft. His companion was released.

Draws Line On Foreign Aid Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) —

No further cuts should be made in aid for international financial institutions, Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal says. He plans to ask the House to hold the aid figure at the $2.6 billion approved last week by the House Appropriations Committee.

Blumenthal said Monday the figure is $876 million less than the administration's request, "the absolute minimum amount which is consistent with the interests of the United States in the developing world...."

PERTH, Australia (AP) —

Scientists in western Australia have found an archeological site they say pushes the first human habitation of Australia back to 100,000 years; 60,000 years earlier than previously thought.

Legion Wins Opener

By WOODY FEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Pitt County's American Legion baseball team took advantage of three Williamston errors in the first inning last night and went on to score ten runs before the side could be retired.

It allowed Post 39 to open its season on a winning note, taking a 15-2 win over Williamston. The game does not count in the league standings.

Billy Mitchell and Mike Williams combined to gain the victory, with Mitchell getting the win and Williams, a save. Both of the Williamston runs were scored off Mitchell, only one of them earned. He allowed four hits, walked four and struck out none in five innings. Williams allowed two hits, walked two and struck out 11 in four innings.

Russell Holton, the last of five Williamston pitchers, proved the most effective. In two innings, he struck out five without allowing a baserunner.

At one point, Williams and Holton sat down 11 straight batters on strikeouts.

"I'm pleased with the way we played," Manager Ed Hooks said. "We played a good ball game. We had a good defensive game, with just a few mistakes. And we're hitting the ball better than I expected. But since they used several pitchers, it's hard to tell how well we really did."

Hooks said he planned to split the pitching duties between Mitchell and Williams, and felt both of them did well.

Perhaps the biggest problem Hooks now faces is getting ready to play Williamston again. The two play again Friday night, in an official league game. "Playing them again so soon will be tough. They are going to be much stronger, and we'll have to guard against a letdown. They have a couple of people injured who didn't play tonight that will help them, and they also are still missing a few people from Jamesville that will be playing too," Hooks pointed out.

Williamston led briefly, getting a run in the top of the first. Hank Edwards led off with a single up the middle. He stole second, then scored when Cliff Keel hit a two-out double to deep left.

Pitt County came right back with their big ten runs in the bottom of the first to put it out of reach. Only one of the runs, however, was earned.

Nuggie Worthington led off with a walk, and both Ronnie Chapman and Mike Shank reached when their sacrifice bunts were errored, loading the bases.

Kevin Adams brought in the first two runs with a single to left, scoring Worthington and Chapman. Greg Lee walked, and Shank scored when Mitchell's grounder to first was relayed to the plate, where the catcher pulled his foot off the base allowing the run to score.

Adams scored on Skip Topping's sacrifice fly, and Marshall Heath and Worthington both walked, the latter forcing in Lee. Chapman singled in Mitchell and Heath, and a wild pitch scored Worthington. Another brought in Chapman, and Shank, who had walked, scored on a double by Adams.

Pitt County got another in the third on a walk to Chapman and a double by Shank. Two more crossed in the fifth on a hit batter, two base-loading singles, and a two-run single by Williams.

The other two came in the sixth, on a walk, a hit, a wild pitch and a run-scoring double by Shank.

Williamston's other run came in the fifth when Glenn Carlie walked, moved up on a passed ball and scored on a hit by Keel.

Keel led the Williamston hitting with three, while Edwards had two. Adams had three for Pitt County, while Shank had two.

The two teams meet again Friday at 8 p.m. at Harrington Field, officially opening up the season.

Nancy Lopez Captures Third Straight Win

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (AP) — Nancy Lopez smiled when it was suggested that the Ladies Professional Golf Association should change its name to the Lopez Professional Golf Association.

The rookie sensation of the tour captured her third consecutive title Monday by shooting a course record 65 for a 72-hole total of 277 in the $100,000 Golden Lights championship at the Wykagyl Country Club.

Lopez, who has won five tournaments this year, collected $15,000, boosting her earnings to $96,448. She has earned $126,626 since turning pro last July.

"Now it's time to take a rest," she said. "I'm skipping next week's tournament (the Peter Jackson Classic in Toronto). I know how much golf I can play."

"My body says no. The rest will do me good. I'll be ready for the LPGA championship the week after that (June 8-11 at Kings Island, Ohio). No question, I'm very happy and it's not because I'm winning."

"I'm healthy, I'm out in the sun playing golf and I enjoy the people."

Lopez, who had eight birdies and only one bogey in posting her best competitive round ever en route to a three-stroke victory over nine-year veteran JoAnne Carner, has set some goals for the remainder of the year...and also for the future.

"I'd like to reach $200,000 in winnings this year," said the native of Roswell, N.M. "That would mean I break Judy Rankin's record for one year ($150,734)."

"I'd also like to top the $153,000 rookie record Jerry Pate set on the PGA tour two years ago. I know it's impossible to win every tournament and that's not one of my goals. Looking toward the future, however, I'd like to be the best woman golfer ever."

Lopez, who left Tulsa University after two years, never expected to be so successful.

"I left college because I thought I would need two years of experience before making any real headway in the pros," continued Lopez, whose 277 was the lowest score on the tour this year.

"Now that I look back on it, I guess I gained more experience than I thought as an amateur. I felt that I needed competition," she said.

The rookie sensation drew plenty of admiration from both Carner and Pat Bradley, whose final round 66 gave her third place at 286.

"I hear Nancy's taking next week off," said Carner, who was the defender. "Now maybe we'll have a chance. I guess I made her mad (Sunday JoAnne kiddingly said she would beat Lopez). From now on I'll shut up, there's no doubt — she'll play well for a long, long time."

Bradley, winner here two years ago, said, "I've never seen any better player at this stage. Nancy's playing like a 10-year veteran."

Sonics, Bullets Clash Tonight

SEATTLE (AP) — Game 4 of the National Basketball Association championship series will be played in Seattle tonight, but it won't be on the SuperSonics' homecourt.

Instead, the Washington Bullets and the Sonics will meet in the Kingdome before what could be the largest crowd in NBA history.

Leading 2-1 in the best-of-seven series, the Sonics are talking confidently about winning the title. Three of the four remaining games will be played in Seattle.

The switch to the Kingdome was the result of a scheduling conflict at the Coliseum, where the Sonics have won 21 consecutive games.

There is no clearcut consensus on whether the Kingdome is a neutral court.

"The next game's (tonight's) really a neutral court, in the Kingdome, but we'll still have 40,000 fans rooting for us," said Sonics guard Gus Williams.

"I don't see how anything in Seattle can be considered neutral," said Washington Coach Dick Motta.

"Every court is the same. We'll actually be using the same floor as we normally use," said Seattle Coach Lenny Wilkens. "But instead of 14,000 fans screaming for us, we'll have 40,000. Tell me that's not going to get a team up."

The Sonics move to the Kingdome on a permanent basis next season, but tonight's game will be the first basketball game ever in the domed stadium. Game 5 Friday night will be in the Coliseum.

Fans hungry for the first NBA title in the Sonics' 11-year history gobbled up the first 29,000 tickets for tonight's game. An additional 15,000 "distant viewing" seats are on sale for $3 apiece.

Present NBA attendance records are 21,564 for a playoff game in Cleveland, 35,077 for a regular season game in the Louisiana Superdome and 41,165 for a doubleheader at the Houston Astrodome in 1969.

The Bullets now are in the same position the Sonics were when they headed east — they need a split on the road.

Seattle managed the split with a 93-92 victory over the Bullets Sunday at Landover, Md.

"When we came back to Washington) we wanted at least a split," said Wilkens. "We did what we had to do, and now we have to feel very confident going home."

"The most important thing is we have to go out there (Seattle) and at least split," said Bullets forward Elvin Hayes. Bullets center Wes Unseld agreed. "They beat us here, we got to beat them out there."

Johnston Co. Tops Snow Hill

SNOW HILL — Johnston County's American Legion baseball team scored a run in the top of the ninth to nip Snow Hill 6-5 last night.

The game was the second in a series of three pre-season exhibition outings for the Snow Hill team which is 1-1. The team will travel to Johnston County Wednesday night and open its regular season at home to Rocky Mount on Friday.

Snow Hill scored first in the game with a pair of runs in the opening inning. Ronnie Chapman singled and stole second and Scott Evans' reached on a fielder's choice. Both runners moved up on Jay Carraway's infield out and Chapman scored when Russell Brann reached on an error. Phillip Gordon singled Evans home.

Johnston County got on the scoreboard with a run in the top of the third. Barry Hales walked and went to third on two passed balls. He scored on Richard Upton's infield out.

Snow Hill scored in the bottom of the frame, but Johnston County added runs in the fourth and fifth and two more in the top of the sixth. Paul Sherrell singled in the sixth and Vaughn Stevenson got a base hit. Greg Gibson's safety scored Sherrell and David Bass got a hit to plate Stevenson.

Two Snow Hill runs came across in the bottom of the frame. Evans singled and Carraway walked. They advanced on Brann's grounder and scored on Allen Moore's single.

The winning run came with two away in the top of the ninth. With one out, David Davis was hit by a pitch. He went to second on a pickoff error. After an out, Sherrell was intentionally walked and Gibson singled in Davis.

Little League

Jaycees 20, Kiwanis 9

The Jaycees romped to a 20-9 victory over the Kiwanis in the North State Little League yesterday.

The Jaycees scored ten second inning runs to put the game on ice as the Kiwanis got rolling too late to really damage the Jaycee lead.

The Jaycees pushed over a run in the first inning to take the lead, then added their ten in the second.

Evan Hause led off the second by reaching on an error. Mike Harris singled and Deon Perkins got a hit, loading the bases. Walks to Scott Pollard and David Hammond brought in the first two runs. Maury Harris singled, scoring another. Toby Fisher, Jordy Smith, Hause and Garris all walked, forcing in four more runs. Smith scored on a wild pitch, and Hause came in on an out. Another wild pitch brought in Garris with the final run.

The Jaycees then added three more in the third, two in the fourth and four more in the fifth.

The Kiwanis got their first four in the bottom of the second. Scott Davis, Jason Galloway and Calvin Glisson walked, loading the bases. A wild pitch scored Davis, and Van Alston singled in Galloway. Glisson scored on an error and Todd Jordan reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Alston.

Four more crossed in the third, and one scored in the fourth.

David Lee, Harris and Smith each had two hits for the Jaycees. No one had more than one for the Kiwanis.

Pepsi-Cola 7, Moose 5

Pepsi-Cola pushed over two runs in the bottom of the fifth to slip past the Moose, 7-5, in the Tar Heel Little League yesterday.

The Moose scored first with a run in the first. Scott Garris led off, reaching on an error. Passed balls moved him to third, and he scored on an error from there.

Pepsi came back to score four in the bottom of the first. Clark Stallings singled and stole second. He took third on a passed ball and scored when Mike Kinley reached on an error. Walter Perkins reached on an error, as did Ken Hofheinz, the latter scoring Kinley and Perkins. Frank Woronoff also reached on an error, scoring Hofheinz.

Pepsi added another in the second for a 5-1 lead. The Moose came back with three in the third, and added another in the fifth to tie it up.

Then, in the bottom of the fifth, Pepsi got two more, getting the win. Perkins singled and moved up on two errors. Hofheinz doubled him in, and scored when Joey Hallow reached on an error.

Jeff Stallings, Clark Stallings and Perkins each had two hits for Pepsi, while no one had more than one for the Moose.

Grimsley Wins Eighth

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON AP Sports Writer

If Ross Grimsley cared to cast a quick glance at the paper this morning — which he probably didn't — he would have seen his name as the winning pitcher in the National League.

Grimsley hurled a four-hitter and became the NL's first eight-game winner Monday night as the Montreal Expos came from behind with three runs in the sixth inning and ended the Chicago Cubs' eight-game winning streak, 4-2.

Ironically, the Cubs' longest winning streak of 1977 was eight games and that one also ended in Montreal.

Grimsley is more concerned with the Expos' status than his own, and if he had to have a newspaper with his breakfast coffee he'd be more concerned with the standings than his own record.

"It's not the first thing I do when I get up," he said. "I don't look at the papers to see if someone is ahead of me. What I'm concerned with is how the team is doing. In this series with the Cubs, if we can win two out of three, or if we take all three of these games, it'll really be outstanding and really get the team fired up. If we win all three we'll be just a half-game behind the Cubs."

Giants 8, Astros 1
Ed Halicki drove in two runs with a fourth-inning single and scattered seven hits as he continued his mastery of Houston in the Astrodome. Halicki is 2-0 this season — he beat the Astros 9-1 with a six-hitter last Thursday in San Francisco — and his earned run average against the Astros in Houston over the past 43 innings is 0.63.

Bill Madlock slammed losing pitcher Floyd Bannister's third pitch of the game for a home run and Halicki delivered a tie-breaking single in the fourth following singles by Willie McCovey and Mike Ivie and a walk to Mike Sadek.

Reds 7, Braves 5

Mike Lum's tie-breaking three-run homer capped a four-run eighth-inning rally by the Reds, who tied the game 4-4 on

Dave Concepcion's single following a walk to Pete Rose and a bad-hop double past third by Ken Griffey. Cincinnati's other three runs came in the fifth inning on George Foster's eighth homer.

Dodgers 9, Padres 6
Bill Russell doubled and singled twice and Lee Lacy homered to lead a 10-hit Los Angeles attack while Tommy John earned his seventh victory in nine decisions with relief help from Terry Forster.

Phillies 4, Pirates 3

Richie Hebner's bases-loaded single with two out in the 14th inning scored Bud Harrelson with the winning run. Harrelson opened the 14th against newly acquired reliever Dave Hamilton with a walk, Bake McBride sacrificed and Larry Bowa grounded out.

Pittsburgh Manager Chuck Tanner ordered an intentional walk to Mike Schmidt, who is mired in an 0-for-20 slump, but Hamilton also walked Jerry Martin, loading the bases. Hebner, a former Pirate, then lashed a single to right field.

Mets 7-3, Cardinals 3-6

Jerry Morales' tie-breaking two-run double in the 10th inning paced the Cardinals' victory in the nightcap, ending a five-game losing streak. It was only the second victory for the Cardinals in their last 18 games and the first time in 12 games they scored more than two runs. The Mets won the opener as Pat Zachry hurled a three-hitter and singled to start a five-run fifth inning, which included two-run homers by Bruce Boicclair and Willie Montanez.

Unser Won't Forget This Birthday Present

By STEVE HERMAN AP Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — "This is a birthday and a half," said an emotional Al Unser, who took home the biggest paycheck of his long racing career for winning the Indianapolis 500 a third time. "This has been a month I'll never forget."

Unser's 39th birthday, a day after his eight-second victory over a hard-charging Tom Sneva, was celebrated at the annual Indy victory banquet Monday night. He accepted the winner's check for a record $290,364 and became only the second $1 million career winner in Indy history.

Unser's total earnings in 13 races here now stand at $1,153,144, trailing only four-time winner A.J. Foyt's winnings of $1,210,891.

"The day you win your first race, or your second or your third, it's the same feeling," said a happy and thankful Unser, whose older brother Bobby, a two-time Indy winner, ended up sixth after the official standings and prize distribution were announced Monday night. "It's just a thrill I'll never forget."

The 62nd running of the 500 was also the richest. The total purse, topping $1 million for the ninth straight year, was a record $1,145,225, breaking the former record of $1,116,807 set last year when Foyt won. Unser's share also topped the former record winning prize of $271,698 that he took home for the first of his back-to-back victories in 1970-71.

Sunday's race, in which Sneva wound up in the runner-up spot for the second year in a row, looked at first like it would be a duel to the finish between Unser and Danny Ongais, who had won two of the four previous U.S. Auto Club championship races this season.

Ongais grabbed the lead at the very start and was in front

Bethel rolled to a 16-6 victory over Sunshine Garden Center yesterday in the Southern Pitt Little League.

Junior Herber was the winning pitcher.

Chris Ayers led the Bethel hitting with two, one a home run. Scott Rawls and Bill Blount also added two hits each. Kenny Credle had two to pace Sunshine.

Chicod gained a 10-9 win over the Griffon Bears in another game.

Mike Edwards was the winning pitcher.

Edwards also led the hitting with three, while Stacy McCarter had two, one a homer. Steve Miller also had two hits.

No one had more than one for the Bears.

much of the early going. Sneva, who set one and four-lap qualification records to earn a pole-position start, took the lead for just a lap here and there, but Unser steadily climbed toward the front and was fighting for the lead after 200 miles.

From that point on, the lead see-sawed between Ongais and Unser until Ongais blew his engine on the 145th lap. Unser then kept the lead, except for one lap when he made a pit stop, but had to hold off Sneva in the final 20 laps.

After Sneva's final pit stop, Unser held a lead of nearly a half-minute. But Unser, who clipped a wing on his racer while exiting from his own pit, was losing about one second per lap and finally took the checkered flag with Sneva just 8.2 seconds behind. It was the second-closest finish in Indy history.

Although six yellow caution lights were displayed, only one was for an accident. And that was a minor incident when Spike Gehlhausen hit the wall on the backstretch and walked away unharmed.

"This was as good a year for safety as we've ever had," said chief steward Tom Binford. "And we had a good safety record not because of any heroic act but because the system worked. If I ever saw a race in which the drivers took care of themselves and each other, this was it. I am very proud of them. It was a fantastic race, a safe race."

Unser's winnings included $18,150 for leading 121 laps at $150 per lap. Sneva, who took over the USAC championship points lead with his second-place finish, earned $112,704, including $450 for leading three laps. Third-place winnings of $61,769 went to former champ Gordon Johncock, and his teammate, Steve Krisloff, earned $38,704 for fourth.

Wally Dallenbach received $33,882 for fifth, and Bobby Unser took home $31,228 for sixth place.

"I'd like to congratulate my brother for winning another race," said the older of the two racing brothers from Albuquerque, N.M. "I'm just sorry he did it before I did."

Twenty-seven of the 33 drivers attended the banquet. Those missing were Pancho Carter and Sheldon Kinser, who drove in Sunday's sprint car race at Salem, Ind.; Cliff Hucul, Salt Walther, Mario Andretti and Foyt, who had to take care of business in Houston.

"But to show you how strong Foyt is," Al Unser said, "he sent me a telegram tonight congratulating me. He's a true champion."

Rick Mears, who qualified on the front row at more than 200 mph but finished 23rd in the race, and Larry Rice, who started 30th and worked up to 11th at the end, tied in voting by sports writers as rookies of the year.

Women Begin N-S Tourney

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — The Women's North and South Amateur Golf Tournament, shaping up as a wide-open affair, began match play today with no pronounced favorite among the 64 survivors of Monday's qualifying round.

It's also shaping up as an endurance contest in view of the revised schedule calling for double rounds Wednesday and Thursday.

The finalists Friday will be playing their sixth match in four days and if the 90-degree weather continues, they will be sorely tested physically.

Marcia Dolan of Danbury, Conn., tops the first quarter of the draw. It also includes Curtis Cup teammates Judy Oliver of Sewickley, Pa., and Carolyn Hill of Placentia, Calif., and Helen Sigel Wilson of Gladwyn, Pa., who will captain the team that meets the British at Rye, N.Y. in August, but will not play in the matches.

The second quarter is headed by Betsy Waynick of Greensboro, who 3-putted the last green to lose a qualifying medal tie with Leslie Shannon of Miami. Shannon, who birdied all six of the par-5 holes, led the field of 118 with a 70, 4 under par, for the 5,850-yard No. 2 course at the Pinehurst Country Club.

With her in the third quarter were Brenda Goldsmith of San Antonio, Texas, another cup team member, and Cathy Sherk of Ontario, Canada, U.S. Amateur runnerup last summer.

The fourth quarter includes the other cup player in the field, Noreen Uihlein of East Providence, R.I., and Lori Garbacz, 19, of Gainesville, Fla., current Mexican amateur champion.

The size and quality of the field prompted officials to increase the number of match play spots from 32 to 64. Monday's play vindicates their judgment.

Guthrie Wants To Be Thought Of As Driver

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — After fighting three years to prove herself behind the wheel, Janet Guthrie hopes her ninth-place finish in Sunday's Indianapolis 500 will leave her just another driver with a satisfied sponsor.

"I was shooting for the top five, but I got the top 10 — and I'll take it," Guthrie said, moments after easing out of her Wildcat racer and into the arms of her ecstatic crew.

Guthrie endured a hairline fracture in her right wrist — sustained Friday in a charity tennis match — and a cockpit too short for her lanky, 5-foot-9 frame. She pushed her four-cylinder car to an average speed of 152.965 miles per hour over the 475 miles she had driven when winner Al Unser took the checkered flag.

A year ago, she finished 29th in her first Indy start, spending more time in the pits than on the track.

She clearly felt her performance had dealt a blow to any who still doubted her ability to race with the top drivers on the U.S. Auto Club circuit.

Has she proven anything? "Probably in somebody's mind, but not mine," she said outside her Gasoline Alley garage. "I'm glad if it meant something to people who think

Winterville Gets Victory

WINTERVILLE — Winterville gained a 4-2 victory over Ayden yesterday in the Pitt County Babe Ruth League.

Sammy Tucker was the winning pitcher for Winterville, hurling a three-hitter. He struck out 11 on the way to the win.

Tucker also led the Winterville hitting with two. No one for Ayden had more than one.

Winterville is now 1-2 in league play.

that a woman still couldn't do it — maybe this will be one more little bit of evidence against that."

Like any driver, sponsorship is the big question now in Guthrie's racing future.

"I really think that (retaining a sponsor) is the most difficult part of racing for a woman," she said, making it clear that she hopes to remain with Texaco, which opened its purses at the last minute and allowed her a free hand in directing her Indy 500 effort.

She said she "had some feedback that Texaco is very pleased," but she wouldn't know for sure until meeting with company officials in the next two weeks.

Guthrie's harshest words were for the speedway management.

"I did feel they should have taken some steps to find a garage for a serious entrant with a major new sponsor," she said, referring to a dispute earlier in the month when speedway officials did not assign her a garage. "But the speedway management was absolutely immovable."

The 1934 Detroit Tiger infield of Hank Greenberg, Charlie Gehringer, Billy Rogell and Marvin Owen drove in a total of 462 runs.

McEnroe Takes NCAA Net Title

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Stanford's John McEnroe finished his collegiate career early — but exactly the way he wanted it.

"It was an honest win and an honest way to go out," McEnroe said after beating power-serving John Sadri of North Carolina State 7-6, 7-6, 5-7, 7-6 to win the National Collegiate Athletic Association singles tennis championship Monday.

The match took more than four hours.

"This is the way I wanted to finish up my career as a collegian," said the California freshman, adding he plans to turn professional and enter his first pro tournament this summer during an English clay court contest about a week before Wimbledon.

Sadri isn't waiting that long. The senior said he will make his professional debut Wednesday in Greenville, S.C.

John Austin and Bruce Nichols of UCLA defeated Gary Plock and Kevin Curren of Texas 6-4, 6-4 and 6-2 for the doubles championship.

Sadri served 24 aces in the contest, but McEnroe won the match by twice breaking the power-hitter's serve to win the tie-breaking game of the final set 5-3.

"I didn't think I was returning too badly," McEnroe said.

"In fact, I thought I was returning serve pretty well. I wasn't sure how well he could volley, but he surprised me."

"Every part of his game is good," Sadri conceded after the match.

McEnroe, 18, was seeded No. 1 in the individual competition, while Sadri, 22, was 11th seed.

Austin and Nichols went to the finals in doubles competition last year and lost to Bruce Manson and Chris Lewis of Southern California.

In their first match this year, they broke Curren's service in the first set and went ahead 4-3. They held services the rest of the set to win 6-4.

UCLA broke Curren's service again in the second set to go ahead 2-1, held service to take the second set, also 6-4, and broke Curren's service in the first game of the third set, going ahead 4-1.

OFFICIAL NORTH CAROLINA STATE INSPECTION STATION

Messersmith Makes Successful Return

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer
Andy Messersmith could have taken the money and run. Instead, he took the long road back — and on Monday night, he arrived.

In his first regular-season pitching appearance since last July 3, when he suffered an elbow injury that required surgery, and his first appearance of any kind since March 16, when he suffered a separated shoulder in an exhibition game, Messersmith made believers out of a lot of people — including himself.

"If I had logically thought about what could happen in my first game back, the answer would be 'Not this,'" the New York Yankees' right-hander said after pitching five innings of one-hit ball in the Yankees' 2-0 victory in Cleveland. "If I saw myself else go through what I did, I'd say I didn't expect something like this."

Messersmith, who makes something more than $300,000 a year, played for Atlanta when he suffered his elbow injury last season, a mediocre season in which he finished at 5-4, not the kind of showing for a man who had won his free agency and began haggling over seven-figure contracts a few years back.

When the Yankees bought that contract, a lot of eyebrows shot up. New York, after all, already had a lot of golden arms like Catfish Hunter, Mike Torrez and Don Gullett. And when Messersmith was hurt again in a spill at first base in spring training, heads began shaking. It was wasted money, the cynics said.

Well, Hunter and Gullett are on the disabled list and Torrez is in Boston, where he raised his record to 7-2 Monday.

He gave the Yankees five sensational innings, striking out three batters, walking one, yielding only a first-inning single by Jim Norris and retiring the last eight Indians he faced. The only reason he didn't get a victory is that Rick Waits blanked the Yankees in that stretch.

Rawly Eastwick was even better than Messersmith over the final four innings. He was perfect, setting down all 12 Cleveland batters, four of them on strikeouts. He got the victory when Graig Nettles followed Lou Piniella's seventh-inning single with his 11th home run of the season.

Red Sox 5, Blue Jays 4
Just as Messersmith did his Hollywood script thing, Dwight Evans did his, hitting a game-winning homer in the eighth for his ailing son to keep the Red Sox two games ahead of the Yankees in the East Division.

"I was trying to hit it for my little boy," he said of 5-year-old Timothy, suffering from an eye ailment that has required several operations.

Orioles 6, Tigers 3
Carlos Lopez started the slugging for Baltimore with a first-inning homer, then Lee May took over. He blasted a three-run homer in the third inning and a solo shot in the fifth. Scott McGregor of the Orioles went the distance for the fourth straight time. He was tagged for a two-run homer by Rusty Staub of the Tigers in the ninth.

White Sox 7, Angels 0
Thad Bosley, acquired by Chicago from the Angels last winter and called up from the minors only last weekend, hit his first major league homer and also doubled and singled to drive in four runs in support of Pablo Torrealba's four-hitter for the White Sox.

A's 6, Brewers 2
Pete Broberg's six-hitter and Jeff Newman's homer enabled the A's to beat Milwaukee and regain a one-game lead over the Angels in the West. The triumph ended a four-game losing streak for Broberg, who had begun the season with four straight wins.

Rangers 7-2, Twins 1-7
Dock Ellis and Roger Moret checked Minnesota on three hits in the first game and Al Oliver drove in four runs with a pair of sacrifice flies, a homer and a single for Texas. It was Moret's first appearance for the Rangers since he lapsed into a catatonic state April 12 and spent several weeks under observation.

In the second game, the Twins settled matters with a four-run first, two scoring on Jose Morales' double.

These Are Not The Best Of Times For Chicago White Sox Faithful

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer
These have not been the best of times for Chicago White Sox fans. And that's putting it mildly.

No team has won fewer games this season than the heroes of Chicago's South Side and it took three straight over the last two days to reach 15 for the season. What makes that even tougher to take is the fact that across town, the North Side Cubs are sitting in first place in their division.

Have the fates no mercy? If they are nothing else, White Sox fans are loyal. They remember the glory days of Jungle Jim Rivera, Barry Latham, Jim Landis, Dave Philley and the others who made rooting for the Pale Hose something of a religion.

So it came to pass that during the current crisis last week of the loyalists felt compelled to step forward and take action. The Sox were in the throes of one of their frequent throwing slumps when an anonymous fan decided the pitching staff needed immediate help. That was before shutouts Sunday and Monday by Francisco Barrios and Pablo Torrealba lent some respectability to the Chicago mound situation.

There are obviously no barriers, not even sex.

By the Memorial Day holiday, 67 replies had been received at the Tribune box number. Four of every five were serious responses from Sox anxious to help the White Sox out of their pitching dilemma. One ex-batting practice pitcher offered his services and so did a youngster who pointed out that he had received a college pitching scholarship.

But sprinkled throughout the serious replies were some that offered comic relief. The White Sox, of course, can use any kind of relief they can get right now and if Bill Veeck and Co. care for a few smiles to interrupt the frowns this season has produced, they might consider those other responses.

There was, for example, the one from "Leftee Go Mezz" who offered to pitch free of charge. Fracturing the language along the way, Leftee wrote: "U can have my servicez for nothing. Monee doez not apeel to me. I'd hurl for your team for the gloree and the t.v. commurshils I'd surelee gett."

Old Leftee signed the letter: "Your pennant insurancz."
Speaking of old, another reply came from Ricardo Jorge

Bourjailio who offered vast experience, saying he had pitched in Venezuela for 42 years. He started, explained Ricardo, when he was six.

Bourjailio's qualifications are unique. He claims to be something of an ironman, once having pitched 61 innings in a game which lasted 16 hours, 42 minutes. His team lost, he explained, but it wasn't a complete washout because the reliever was charged with the setback.

Luke "Country Boy" Stables sent along a detailed statistical rundown. It lists him as 5-foot-8, 215 pounds and 43 years old next month. His well-traveled career includes stops at "Lake Murky" in the "Big Muddy" league; "Biloxi" in the "Gulf & Western"; and one year with "Kung Fu" in, of course, "Japan." Country Boy has the added asset of throwing either left-handed or right-handed, depending on what the situation requires.

Assembling the replies is Joseph Shaker, Sr., who heads the agency through which the ad was placed. He will pass them along to Veeck who, it should be remembered, once hired a midget for the old St. Louis Browns.
Stay loose, Country Boy.

Try Luck At This Track

ATLANTA (AP) — Roger Gardner of Albany, Ga., was unable to scrape up enough money to race in the Indianapolis 500 on Memorial Day weekend. So he came here to Indy Raceways to join other racing buffs who zoom around the amateur track more for fun than profit.

Indy Raceways is part of a nationally franchised chain that recently has opened a facility in Atlanta. It features the three-quarter-sized race cars similar to those which compete every year on Memorial Day weekend in the Indianapolis 500, according to manager Dick Williams.

The race cars can be driven about 40 mph on a curved track and up to 75 mph on a straightaway, mechanic Wayne Durden said.

Summer Waite of Atlanta described his first lap as "super."

At Least 35 Inmates Injured In Workhouse Brawl

By JOHN NOLAN
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Two prisoners with knives triggered a Monday night brawl inside the Metropolitan Workhouse that left at least 35 prisoners and two guards injured, a sheriff's deputy said. Chief Deputy Sheriff H.B. "Buck" McPherson of the Metropolitan Nashville sheriff's office said one knife was stolen from the workhouse kitchen and the other was a pocket knife. He said he didn't know how the inmates obtained the knives. The brawling started early Monday evening in a television room at the workhouse when two inmates started fighting over money, McPherson said. Another inmate attempting to break up the fight was stabbed, he said. Another deputy, Claude Hall, said the disturbance was quelled within an hour after it began. An official at Metropolitan General Hospital said 23 persons were treated and released. Three were admitted and were listed in satisfactory condition, a General Hospital spokesman said. Hubbard Hospital officials said 16 were treated there and none admitted.

There were 210 inmates in the brick two-story workhouse, which Police Chief Joe Casey said houses prisoners already tried and sentenced. Chain link fencing topped by barbed wire separates the workhouse from neighboring apartment buildings.

McPherson was unable to give details of the melee or how many guards were involved in quelling the disturbance. Casey said about 50 police officers were called to the workhouse to help restore order.

Several prisoners were to be questioned today about the fracas, the deputy said.

A reporter watched as some 20 inmates were wheeled out on stretchers or led away from the workhouse to police vans. Some were heavily bandaged and one man's face was covered with blood under a swath of bandages around his head.

The fighting shattered the quiet of a warm night in a residential East Nashville neighborhood, across the Cumberland River from downtown. Police blocked off surrounding streets as residents rushed to the lawns of neighboring apartment buildings to watch.

Helmeted police officers carrying riot sticks later ran across the street, jumping a low wall, to clear onlookers from lawns after bottles were hurled onto the workhouse's front steps. Within minutes, the street in front of the workhouse was littered with broken glass.

Some persons arriving late, identifying themselves as relatives or friends of those in the workhouse, anxiously asked what had happened. Workhouse officials answered questions and occasionally directed them to police paddy wagons for information.

Workhouse authorities were unable to say when the fighting began. Claude Hall, a sheriff's deputy, said it began around 7:30 p.m., CDT, but another official said it started an hour earlier.

McPherson said the brawl was the workhouse's biggest disturbance since a riot in the early 1960s. Sheriff Fate Thomas was reported out of town and could not be reached for comment.

RECORD LEAP — Dale Buggins, a 17-year-old Australian daredevil is shown in the middle of his world record leap at Newcastle International Motordrome Sunday. Buggins flew his motorcycle over 25 automobiles, topping the previous record of Eddie Kidd of England by 3 cars. The young stunt cyclist says he will travel to the U.S. in September to take on Evil Knievel. (AP Laserphoto)

Objects To Tom McNish Set Goal Appointment In 'Heartbreak Hotel'

ATLANTA (AP) — Anita Bryant does not have enough experience in Baptist life to become first vice president of the Southern Baptist Convention, says The Christian Index, a Georgia-based Baptist publication.

ANITA BRYANT

Baptist Press has reported that Miss Bryant has been approached by an unnamed group which wants to nominate her for first vice president of the 13 million member denomination when it meets in Atlanta June 13-15.

Editor Jack Harwell, wrote in an editorial in this week's Index, published by the Georgia Baptist Convention, "Anita Bryant seems to be a fine Christian woman. Her pastor in Miami says she is a loyal church leader, but she has never served in any association, state convention or Southern Baptist office we know about."

EVEREST WEEK

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — Tenzing Norgay, one of the first two men to reach the summit of the world's tallest mountain, was the chief guest today at ceremonies opening Everest Week, marking the 25th anniversary of the conquest of Mount Everest.

By Hugh A. Mulligan
AP Special Correspondent
ATLANTA (AP) — Somewhere in the middle of that 6½-year long dark night, somewhere between the beatings with a truck fan belt and the months spent in solitary with no eye-to-eye contact with the other prisoners, Tom McNish vowed that if he ever got out of North Vietnam alive, he'd make something of his life. He'd spend the rest of his days, if any came his way, helping other people.

On June 12, at the Emory University graduation exercises, the promise made in a Hanoi prison called "Heartbreak Hotel" becomes a reality. Thomas McNish, F-105 pilot, becomes Thomas McNish M.D. His heart is set on a family practice, "treating kids mostly." At 36 years old, he's the second oldest in his class.

McNish, from Franklin, N.C., was 24 years old when he was shot down on a September Sunday in 1966 within 10 miles of Hanoi.

It's all there, still vivid in his mind, "but it seems like it happened to someone else." The radar-controlled ack-ack catching up with him over the target, the plane on fire, ejecting, tearing up his knee on the way out, the welcoming committee of soldiers and farmers when he landed in the rice paddy, being dragged into town with a rope around his neck and passing out several times on the way.

Then the days and weeks and months and years of waiting, of longing, of torture, of everything but despair. "I never gave up," said Tom, bouncing his 2-year-old son on his knee. "No day was so black I didn't think our release was six months away. When six months passed, I'd think in terms of another six."

A quarter of his life up to then spent in rat-ridden, mosquito-infested prison camps with names like "The Zoo," "The Pool Hall," "Heartbreak Hotel" and "Skid Row," the torture camp for "attitude cases, the bad guys who wouldn't cooperate with the propaganda teams."

Torture for a bad attitude varied from kneeling on a concrete floor and standing at attention with your arms raised to having your arms roped together behind your back until the elbows touched and beatings with a truck fan belt which, like a rubber hose, left no scars.

On that sunny Sunday in March 1973, when he was freed in the second prisoner release, Tom McNish was 31 years old. He hadn't read a book in 6½ years. Some of the medical schools he applied to told him he was too old, too much out of the study habit. Yona, the widow with two kids whom he became engaged to at President Nixon's reception for the POW's in the Green Room of the White House, urged him on with his dream and his promise.

Tom was a first lieutenant when he was shot down. Now he is a major. He's headed to the School of Aerospace Medicine in San Antonio. He owes the Air Force nine years for his schooling "and humanity a lot more than that."

Whenever he thinks about the tortures in Skid Row, which is not often, he thinks it might make him a better doctor. "The pain gives you empathy for what the patient in the bed is suffering. One thing prison camp does is let you file a flight plan for life."

Trying Avoid A Pauper's Burial

CHICAGO (AP) — The body of the young black woman was found at the foot of a housing project building nearly three months ago. She had plunged 15 stories from a hall window, but police do not know if she fell, jumped or was pushed. They still don't know who her was.

"We must bury her ourselves. She died here," says Dolly Gill of the city Department of Human Services who lives a half block from where the woman was found. "She belongs to us."

The woman, in her late teens or early 20s, died March 5. Her imported black leather boots were left neatly lined up next to the window. Police said the woman was dressed expensively in designer slacks, a silk blouse and a leather coat.

"I can't stand the thought of some pauper's burial for such a young lady as this," said Ms. Gill, referring to the dead woman's clothing and appearance — 5-foot-10, model-thin with a fine-featured face.

The woman did not live in the building, and Ms. Gill has helped police canvass the south side neighborhood in a futile search for someone who might help solve the mystery of what she calls "the death of Jane Doe."

Publicity about the case brought dozens of calls, some from the parents of runaways from other states. Some who were interested came to Chicago — one from as far away as Arkansas — but as of Sunday she still had not been identified, and police say they are at a dead end.

Ms. Gill has opened a special bank account as a burial fund and has gotten a promise of a free casket from a funeral home.

To collect the $500 she says is needed for a proper funeral, Ms. Gill is distributing flyers around the neighborhood where the death occurred. If enough money is collected, she said, the body will be buried June 5.

"Someone knows her," she said. "But we may never find them."

Orders Psychiatric Examination Of Woman Who Took Infant

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) — A magistrate has ordered a psychiatric examination for a Norfolk woman charged with abduction after a 4-month-old baby taken from a church nursery was found sleeping in a crib in her home.

Mrs. Mary Henderson, 34, was held in lieu of $50,000 bond after detectives — tipped by a neighbor who learned of the abduction while watching the news on television — entered her home early Monday morning and found the child, Jason Jordan.

The child was returned to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Jordan of Gates, N. C., who were waiting at the police station.

Police said they do not know the reason Mrs. Henderson took the child Sunday morning while his parents were attending services at the Rock Church here.

"It appears there is no connection. She didn't know the child and didn't know the parents," said detective Richard Chrisman. He added:

"The nursery workers said a woman came in and said she wanted her baby. When they asked her to identify her baby she pointed and said, 'That one,' and they gave her Jason."

The Jordans, who rejoined the church a month ago after once belonging and then dropping out, drive about 50 miles from their country home to attend services.

"Jason's only been in the nursery a few times and the attendants don't really know who we are. They couldn't be sure of what was going on," said Mrs. Jordan, 27.

An artist who is a member of the congregation drew a composite sketch of the woman described by witnesses and it was shown on area television stations on their late news shows Sunday night.

"...We got a call right after the news went off," Chrisman said. He said the neighbor, who did not want to be identified, told police Mrs. Henderson had said Sunday night, "Hey, look at my new baby."

Chrisman said police went to the house, knocked on the front door and Mrs. Henderson walked out the back door into the arms of waiting detectives. He said the detectives entered the house and found the child asleep in a crib.

"We never doubted that the Lord would bring Jason back. There were several churches praying for him and the police were excellent," said Mrs. Jordan.

"We are fine and the baby is fine," said Jordan, 33, a mechanic who works in Franklin, Va. He and his wife have two other children, Jeffrey, 4, and Beverly, 7, who were in Sunday school at the time of the abduction.

"Beverly told us not to worry because the Lord would watch over Jason. We all kept faith in the fact and we were right," Jordan said.

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — After years of boycotting disarmament negotiations, China showed an interest in them in a speech to the U.N. General Assembly that predicted the Soviet Union will start World War III.

Speaking Monday at the assembly's special session on disarmament, Foreign Minister Huang Hua condemned the 31-nation Geneva disarmament negotiating committee because the Soviet Union and the United States are its co-chairmen. He called for new machinery "truly free of superpower control."

months each fall, and the Geneva committee negotiates on them intermittently the rest of the year.

Huang, apparently envisioning a similar two-tier system, said:

"Questions of disarmament and international security, which concern the interests of all countries, should be deliberated by an international organ with the participation of all countries under the auspices of the United Nations...The items and procedures of disarmament negotiations should be decided on by this organ."

Unresponsive To Viet Vets

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Council of Vietnam Veterans wanted to survey Congress to see whether its members believe the Vietnam veteran is getting enough from the government.

But, the organization said Sunday, of 100 senators and 435 members of the House, only 18 senators and 91 representatives responded.

Of those who replied, more than half said that neither the Congress nor Carter administration are fulfilling their obligation to Vietnam veterans, especially disabled veterans.

"For anyone willing to face up to reality," he said, "the history of the strategic arms limitation talks since they began in 1969 has been a history of strategic arms race between the Soviet Union and the United States...."

"In the eight years of SALT, the Soviet Union has brought its once backward nuclear arsenal up to a par with that of the other superpower."

He accused the Soviet Union of deploying "a million troops" along the Soviet-Chinese border, "increasing its military threat to Western Europe, striving to expand its influence in the Middle East and carrying out a series of military adventures in Africa."

"This superpower flaunting the label of socialism is more aggressive and dangerous than the other superpower," he declared. "It is the most dangerous source of a new world war and is sure to be its chief instigator."

Wolfe Papers Given College

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — St. Mary's College in Raleigh has received a large number of Thomas Wolfe materials, including 10 original signed letters, hundreds of clippings and photographs, for its permanent Wolfe collection.

Dr. and Mrs. John O. Fulenwider of Pageland, S.C., who established the college's permanent Wolfe collection, donated the latest material also. St. Mary's Wolfe collection now contains nearly 1,500 items and is one of the larger institutional collections in the United States.

The new Wolfe material was found packed in five grocery boxes last October in the abandoned home of the late George W. McCoy, former editor of the Asheville Citizen.

Auctioneer and used furniture dealer Bill Hagan, who found the collection, and his wife spent three months sifting through piles of letters, documents and other papers in McCoy's home.

Fulenwider purchased all the Wolfe material, except two letters which Hagan kept, for $6,000.

Wolfe, an Asheville native whose first novel, "Look Homeward, Angel," portrayed the mountain town, was a childhood friend of McCoy's. He died in 1938 at the age of 38.

The letters include five multi-page, handwritten letters to McCoy, written between 1924 and 1930, discussing "Look Homeward, Angel," two other handwritten letters to McCoy, and three typed, signed letters.

Among the other materials found were Wolfe books, scrapbooks, photographs, telegrams, documents, newspaper clippings, and extensive records of the Thomas Wolfe Memorial Association, whose purpose was to spread recognition of the importance of Wolfe's works and memorialize the "Old Kentucky Home," the Asheville boarding house in which Wolfe grew up.

THE POWER OF LOVE — Australian journalist John Everingham, 28, holds his girlfriend Keo Sirisomphone, 25, on the Thailand side of the Mekong River Monday following a daring underwater rescue.
