Legislators Tackle Diverse Proposals

By WILLIAM M. WELCH Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — House members prepared to take up liquor-by-the-drink and senators heard a proposal to lower North Carolina's personal income tax, as the 1978 General Assembly convened Wednesday.

The short legislative term, called primarily to revise the 1978-79 state budget but expected to consider a number of other topics as well, was gavelled to session at 12 noon by House Speaker Carl Stewart and Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green.

Green promptly predicted the session would be concluded in two weeks, although some legislators expect a longer meeting, perhaps up to five weeks.

In the House, intense lobbying was underway for the local option mixed drink bill, which cleared the Senate last year and awaits House consideration. Rep. Parks Helms, D-Mecklenburg, a prime mover behind the measure, said he was being cautious but believed supporters were within one or two votes of victory.

Lobbyists for the bill were in evidence as the session began, but none would volunteer a head-count on the measure. "We're keeping as low a profile as possible now," one said.

Rep. Bennie Schwartz, D-New Hanover, chairman of the House ABC committee, said the bill was likely to be reported out next week. Committee action is expected to be perfunctory. Helms said he planned to consult with Stewart on timing of the bill's consideration, but predicted swift action.

"I think we'd want to do the liquor bill before we take up these other bills that have to go through committee work," he said.

A longer wait, one supporter suggested privately, would give opponents of the measure, led by the Baptist State Convention and the Christian Action League, more time to lobby.

Across the hall, state Sen. Lawrence Davis, a defeated candidate for the Democratic nomination to the U.S. Senate, proposed that the legislature enact an across-the-board decrease in state income tax totaling $56.75 million.

Davis' proposal would raise the income levels of each tax bracket by 50 percent, thus lowering many North Carolinians to a lower state tax liability. He proposed it be paid for by making cuts in the $279 million supplemental budget proposal of Gov. Jim Hunt, but did not specify all the items that would be cut.

"I recommend that we give some consideration to sharing some of this quarter billion dollars with the taxpayers," Davis said.

Davis' proposal was viewed skeptically by top legislative budget-makers.

"It was a damn good political speech," said Sen. Harold Hardison, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee. "I'd like to have a Lear Jet too, but I have to figure out a way to pay for it."

"I agree with him in principle," he added. "It'd be nice, but he's come too late and there's just not the money."

In other legislative action:

—The House and Senate Appropriation Committees were scheduled to hold public hearings today on the recommended budget, with spokesmen for teachers, state employees, the community colleges and educational groups supporting more funding for exceptional children expected to be heard. Also to speak are spokesmen for a right-to-life group opposed to state funding of Medicaid abortions, and a group favoring the same issue.

—The House and Senate Public Utilities committees scheduled joint hearings for Tuesday, June 6, on Gov. Jim Hunt's nomination of Ed Hipp to the state Utilities Commission.

—Bills were filed in the House and Senate that would revise North Carolina's open meetings law, requiring public notice for most governmental meetings. Legislative rules for the short session allowed the introduction of it and several other bills because they were the recommendation of study commissions appointed by the General Assembly.

—Several bills recommended by a study commission on aging were filed in both chambers, including one that would allow local boards of education to use school buses to transport the elderly.

—A measure was being prepared for introduction that would return state recognition to the Cherokee and several other Indian tribes. Rep. Liston Ramsey, D-Madison, said that recognition was inadvertently deleted last year when the legislature reorganized the Commission on Indian Affairs and rewrote state statutes dealing with Indians.

—The Senate approved a resolution honoring Duke University's basketball team, which lost in the finals of the NCAA championship to Kentucky this year.

U.S. Defense Secretary Questions NATO Effort

By GEORGE GEDDA Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — As Atlantic alliance nations embark on an unprecedented effort to modernize their defenses, U.S. Defense Secretary Harold Brown says he doubts the move will compensate for the massive buildup by the Soviet-led Warsaw Pact.

The North Atlantic Treaty Organization summit meeting ended Wednesday with adoption of a defense program that could cost up to $100 billion in increased military spending over the next 15 years. The United States is expected to provide about half the total.

President Carter termed the agreement a revitalization of the alliance. Brown said he did not believe a year ago that NATO was capable of such a cooperative effort.

But the defense secretary told newsmen it is "very unlikely" that the 15-nation agreement would compensate for the recent "adverse trends" in the East-West arms imbalance. The Warsaw Pact countries have taken a commanding lead over NATO in the number of combat-ready troops, tanks and tactical combat aircraft.

Brown said the balance of forces over the next 15 years would depend, in part, on Warsaw Pact military spending over the same period. He said recent arms spending patterns are not encouraging.

Even if the NATO countries fulfill their individual pledges to increase spending by 3 percent a year, it still would be 1 percent to 2 percent below the average annual rate of increase by the Soviets and their allies over the past two decades, he said. He also questioned whether NATO has the resolve to overcome the chronic problem of individual countries producing the same weapons and support materiel, leading to wasteful duplication.

Brown's caution was shared by an alliance study of East-West relations made public Wednesday.

"The Soviet Union can be expected to continue to attach high priority to the steady enhancement of its military strength across the entire range of capabilities," the study said.

The administration has all but abandoned the possibility of submitting the treaty to the Senate before next year. Ratification requires approval by a vote of two-thirds.

Vance, Gromyko Talk 5 Hours; But No SALT

By BARRY SCHWEID Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A new U.S.-Soviet treaty to limit strategic nuclear weapons remains elusive despite intensive negotiations between Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

At the end of a wearying five-hour meeting Wednesday at the U.S. mission to the United Nations, prospects for early completion of an agreement appeared dim.

Gromyko told reporters crowded into the mission lobby that there was no point in denying the U.S.-Soviet dispute over Africa and declining superpower relations entered into his discussions with Vance.

Asked to describe those relations, the veteran diplomat, his face glistening with perspiration, replied: "I would like to see them better than they are at this point."

Vance too acknowledged that "the relationships between our two countries are in a state of tension. There's no question about that."

Asked whether any of the key issues in dispute had been settled with Gromyko, he replied quickly: "No. All I can say is that we examined in depth the two principal remaining issues, which are very tough issues, and we've still got more work to do."

Ingram Vows Win With Party Unity

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State Insurance Commissioner John Ingram vowed Wednesday he will be North Carolina's next United States senator with the backing of a united Democratic party.

Ingram won the Democratic nomination to the U.S. Senate Tuesday in a primary runoff election that saw him score a stunning defeat over former banker Luther Hodges Jr.

Ingram said at a victory breakfast Wednesday that all his opponents have pledged their support to his campaign, including Hodges. Ingram will face incumbent Republican Sen. Jesse Helms in the general election in November.

"The Democrats of this state have elected me as their standard-bearer," Ingram said. "But we are going to run this campaign as a team. And with the Democrats united behind me, we will win in November."

Ingram said that so far, Helms has been known as the people's candidate. But Ingram said he will be the people's candidate in the upcoming election.

Helms, in Raleigh Wednesday, said in a telephone interview he had no way to assess whether Ingram will be an easier man to defeat in November than Hodges would have been.

"Either one of them would have been difficult to beat," he said. "I've never thought for a moment that this thing would be unanimous. I have no way to assess which of them would be harder or easier to beat. We're going to plow along like we have been and do the best we can."

Helms noted that voter turnout for the runoff had been low and suggested it might be because neither candidate had told the electorate what it wanted to hear.

In the upcoming campaign, Ingram said his strategy will be the same as in the past. He said he will speak to the issues and run on his record.

"We have a record of doing something about problems — not just talking about problems," Ingram said. "And I am satisfied that our message will be responded to by both Democrats and Republicans."

Ingram said he will retain his post as insurance commissioner while campaigning for the Senate seat.

Meanwhile, Hodges supporters who gathered at a Raleigh hotel Wednesday attributed their loss to the light voter turnout. Hodges had flown home to Charlotte Tuesday night after congratulating Ingram on his victory.

In all, only 26 percent of the state's 1.7 million Democrats voted. In the first primary on May 2, Hodges topped the field of eight candidates, leading second-place voter getter Ingram by 14 percent.

"Our polls Friday showed us with a comfortable lead," Hodges campaign manager George Autry said. "Our polls showed enough North Carolinians wanted us to win. Just not enough of them bothered to vote the second time."

Autry also said Ingram's steady attack on Hodges for big spending, personal loans and banker's background, took its toll.

But Autry predicted Hodges will be heard from again in North Carolina politics. He described the defeated candidate as a new face "that's going to be around again."

Hundreds Had A $1,000 Vision

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — A technical snag led several hundred southern West Virginians to believe they had won $1,000 in a food store promotional contest. Officials of the Foodland grocery stores said an Oak Hill television station, WOAY-TV, ran the wrong video tape of a previously recorded horse race.

The promotion, called "Foodland Let's Go to the Races," involves the food chain supplying its customers with numbered game cards. Customers win if the numbers on their cards match the winners of the five races.

Safety Awards Go To 59 Firms At Annual Program Last Night

By REBECCA BUFFALOEE Reflector Staff Writer

John Brooks, North Carolina Commissioner of Labor, presented safety awards to 59 businesses in the Greenville area at a dinner program last night.

The dinner, sponsored by the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce, featured Brooks, a Greenville native, as speaker. More than 100 guests from area businesses attended.

Brooks commended the award recipients on meeting the high standards of the occupational safety program. He spoke of the rising economic growth throughout the state, and assured guests that Greenville should feel the growth in the next two to three years.

Ron Perry, N.C. Department of Labor announced the names of the winners while Commissioner Brooks handed out the award certificates. Union Carbide Corporation, Battery Products division, and "The Daily Reflector" both were recognized for 13 consecutive years of safe operation.

Collins and Aikman Corporation, Farmville plant, was awarded a special certificate for 3,209,968 continuous safe employee hours, as well as a fifth consecutive year award.

The dinner was the 24th in a series of 30 labor department safety award presentations. The companies qualified for awards by maintaining a perfect safety record during 1977, or by recording an occupational injury rate at least 50 percent below the statewide rate for their particular industry.

David G. Nichols, chairman of the membership services committee of the chamber, presided at the program. Mayor Percy Cox pronounced the invocation. Thomas L. Edwards, vice president of the economic and industrial development division of the chamber, welcomed guests and gave a short biography on Commissioner Brooks.

First year recipients were as follows: Blue Bell, Inc., La Grange and Windsor; Cox Armature Works, Inc.; Empire Brushes, Inc.; F & D Motor Co., Inc.; Greenville Police Department; Greenville Recreation and Parks Department; Greenville City Hall; Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co.; Pitt County Memorial Hospital, Inc.; Pitt & Greene Electric Membership Corp.;

HOUSEHOLD ITEMS NEEDED A Pitt County family — mother and father and three teenaged children — lost everything they had in a fire some months ago. They lived temporarily in a tenant house, but had to vacate it when the farming season began. They now have hopes of getting a trailer to live in, since the father has found a farm labor job. (The mother has worked all along), but with their trailer payments, there will be no money for linens, dishes, and the other incidentals needed to furnish a home. Hotline is appealing for these items for the family. Anyone wishing to help should contact a friend of the family, Mrs. Carolyn Hulon, who has agreed to be responsible. Her phone number is 756-5442.

BILLY'S DOING WELL Hotline has been overwhelmingly gratified by the tremendous response from the public to the plight of a Pitt County man, Billy Justice, who underwent a bone marrow transplant for leukemia in New York City. Hundreds of dollars have been donated to help out with the expenses associated with the operation, which involved the transplanting of bone marrow from his sister to him. His fiancée, Debbie Travis, reported yesterday that he is doing quite well and has been told by his doctors at Sloan-Kettering Institute that they may start to talking with him about going home in a couple of weeks. Miss Travis and Justice's sister, Ann Cash of Kinston, both have returned home and gone back to their respective jobs, she reported. She expressed appreciation to every one of the hundreds of persons who have helped out in any way.

Fairy Tale Fashions

ONCE UPON a time, in spring 1978, little girls went back to wearing dresses. They loved tiers and ruffles and flounces. Everything was covered in lace and ribbons. The colors were soft pastels and tiny floral prints. The dresses came both long and short; some had shawls; off-the-shoulder and lace-trimmed blouses came with hip-smocked and tiered skirts, plus shawls.

Reader's Life Beginning At 60

DEAR ABBY: You had a letter from a loving husband whose only complaint was a wife of 32 years who had a habit of saving everything for a rainy day. He said he had bought her some beautiful nightgowns, but she never wore any of them. (Some were still in their original boxes after 20 years!)

You wisely reminded us, "Enjoy today—for it's later than you think."

Thank you for that timely reminder, Abby. Tomorrow I'll be 60, and I have put off treating myself to things like vacation trips, a brand new car, or even a really good suit of clothes. I never married because there always seemed to be a member of my family who needed money for something, and I never said no to any of them.

Your column was exactly what I needed. Now, life for me will begin at 60. Thanks for listening.

NEW MAN IN MUNCIE, IND.

DEAR NEW MAN: What a coincidence! Today I received a lovely poem from an 84-year-old gentleman who expressed my sentiments perfectly—only more eloquently. And here it is:

"COME LET US LIVE TODAY
Bright ribbons she packed away,
Pretty things, high upon a shelf;
She guarded all the brightness
And even robbed herself.

Carefully she hoarded gifts—
Refused to eat her daily bread,
Saved pennies for a rainy day
And left life's scroll unread.

All these things she guarded
Miserly, day by day,
And one dull morning in her mirror
Found her hair had turned to gray."

Pizza, Yogurt Plentiful In New Products

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

DALLAS (UPI) — New and not-so-new products displayed at the food industry's annual convention in Dallas looked like islands of pizza on a sea of yogurt with occasional icebergs of frozen yogurt dessert.

There was even a yogurt chip-sesame seed snack, currently in test markets in three United States cities and one in western Canada. "Close your eyes and you could be eating almost anything," my notes read. No yogurt flavor was apparent.

One new pizza line has nothing in common with the familiar Italian-style pie except the name. El Chico Corp. of Dallas introduced four varieties of frozen Mexican-style pizza with thick flour tortilla crust. A spokesman said the products combine "the two fastest growing ethnic foods in the prepared foods category." Approach the refried bean and cheese combo cautiously — the jalapeno peppers bite back.

Dadco Food Products of Eau Claire, Wis., showed low-fat diet pizza with thin wheat crust. The cheese and mushroom variety we tasted had a strong oregano-tomato flavor and 293 calories per 12.5 ounce pie.

At the other end of the scale was Chef Boy-ar-dee's 1-pound 6-ounce Double Top Pizza with twice as much topping as crust by weight.

Other products to watch for in coming months:

Six varieties of frozen fish, O'Donnell-Usen Fisheries' Taste O'Sea brand from Boston, packed so the user can prepare one serving at a time. Fillets come in loose tray packs of 12 ounces to 1½ pounds. Three-ounce precut portions come four to a box. Directions call for cooking them from the frozen state, for a juicier, better flavored product.

From Tyson, a Springdale, Ark., poultry processor: in addition to the usual fresh chicken parts, the company sells trays of fresh drumstick-shaped portions of chicken wings, a popular item for cocktail party snacks. The other two wing joints are either used in sausage making or exported to Asian customers, said Carl Nadorff, East Central Sales Manager for the retail division. Tyson also is introducing retail packs of some frozen heat-and-eat entrees from its institutional line. They include two boneless chicken breast products, chicken cordon bleu with ham and cheese filling and chicken Kiev with butter filling.

Improvising on the ice cream sandwich theme, Vroman Foods, Inc., of Toledo, has substituted oatmeal and ginger cookies for the traditional chocolate variety. The ginger cookies were nicely spicy, but the ice cream filling could have been richer. The same company makes 70-calorie low-fat uncoated frozen yogurt bars on sticks.

From Iroquois Brands' Magic Mountain Herb Tea division, City of Industry, Calif.: four new minty flavors in tea bags: Wild Red Mint, Morning Sun, Sweet Orange Spice and Peppermint Spice.

J.M. Smucker Co. of Orrville, Ohio, has added a line of low-sugar fruit spreads to its wide selection of regular jams, jellies, preserves and marmalades. The apricot-orange marmalade spread we tasted had a good flavor but softer texture than regular marmalade.

An imitation that came off better was Kineret Kasher's cheeseless cheesecake. The New York manufacturer developed the dessert to satisfy people who observe the Jewish dietary law forbidding meat and dairy products at the same meal. The creamy, flavorful cake contains neither dairy nor meat products, so it can be served at any time.

Pogens Family Bakery, a 100-year-old Malmoe, Sweden, firm, has built a Los Angeles bakery to produce its line of packaged cookies, including such American favorites as chocolate chip and gingersnaps. It also will market Scandinavian breakfast toast — baked, split and rebaked crisp wheat rolls that are too good to be limited just to the morning meal.

BEARNAISE BURGERS

Go elegant on the patio!

2 pounds ground beef

1-3 cup dry red wine

1 tablespoon finely cut chives

1 teaspoon salt

Pepper to taste

English muffins

Bearnaise Sauce, see below

Watercress, cherry tomatoes and button mushrooms

Mix together the beef, wine, chives, salt and pepper; shape into four 1-inch thick patties. Grill over charcoal. Place on toasted English muffins and spoon Bearnaise sauce over.

Serve with watercress, cherry tomatoes and button mushrooms. Makes 4 servings.

Bearnaise Sauce: Cut a ¼-pound stick of butter into 8 equal parts. In a small saucepan heat to boiling ¼ cup each dry white wine and water, 1 tablespoon minced shallot or scallion, ½ teaspoon dried tarragon (crumbled); simmer until reduced to ¼ cup — 8 to 10 minutes. Strain into a double-boiler top and whisk in 2 egg yolks until foamy; set over simmering (not boiling) water. Stir in 1 pat of the butter at a time, letting it melt and combine before adding the next. Remove top saucepan from water at once.

Adapted from "Best-Ever Barbecues" (Family Circle, $1.50), available in supermarkets and some retail outlets until July 1, 1978.

Food Editor's Note: We turn our Bearnaise Sauce into a wide-mouth vacuum jar; this way it stays warm for a few hours and may be served from the jar as soon as the burgers are grilled. — C.B.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Basically, I am a person with a great deal of faith and literally put myself into the hands of the Deity.

I feel if God does not want me to make fattening yeast rolls, He will let the expiration date on my yeast expire.

If He does not want me to bake a three-layer chocolate cake from my favorite recipe, He will see that I do not have three squares of unsweetened chocolate on my shelves.

The other morning, I awoke and said, "Lord, if you do not want me to go on a diet and get sick, give me a sign."

The sign couldn't have been more obvious. It was posted over the lettuce in the produce section of the supermarket and read: LETTUCE 98 cents.

I don't need a bolt of thunder and a flash of lightning to fall on me. How could I possibly have a lettuce orgy at 98 cents a head.

The omen held true all up and down the produce aisle. The price of celery was exorbitant. Spinach was a luxury item. And when I viewed the price of tomatoes, I didn't know whether to buy three of them or make the house payment.

To some of you who never diet, you will fail to see the ramifications of this piece. In simple language, it means to me that God has taken a side — the side of the dieters. The thousands of men and women who face famine daily — who jog, sweat, groan, exercise, are pounded, patted, steamed, who count calories, pop pills, take shots and who lust . . . don't forget lust. Who wake up every morning knowing that they will never see gravy again.

Volunteer Appreciation Day Held At Hospital

A "volunteer appreciation day" buffet luncheon was held Wednesday afternoon at Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

Approximately 160 volunteers from the PCMH Auxiliary, Greenville Service League and teenagers were invited.

Members of the Greenville Service League participate in fund raising events while mail and flower delivering, escort services, library cart and information desk are services provided by the volunteers.

The hospital auxiliary was organized about a year ago when the new hospital opened. Membership is open to all interested persons, teenagers to senior citizens, male and female.

Adele Moos is director of the Volunteer Service Department at Pitt Memorial. Ms. Moos can be contacted for further information.

The luncheon was held in the private dining room at the hospital. Arrangements of spring flowers were used throughout the room as decorations.

Stocks Have A Record As Investment

INTERSTATE SECURITIES CORPORATION

Despite all the articles in recent years on stocks being a poor inflation hedge, history shows that stocks, relative to other liquid investments, have provided superior returns. In addition, stocks have outpaced inflation. A study published last year by Ibbotson and Sinquefeld compared total returns (capital gains plus income) on common stocks, long-term corporate bonds, treasury bills, and rates on inflation on consumer goods. Stocks were the biggest winners over the period 1926-1976 in terms of total appreciation.

Using the S&P Composite Index with dividends reinvested monthly, $1.00 invested at year-end 1925 grew to $90.57 by year-end 1976, a compounded total return of 9.2% per year. The annual compound return from capital appreciation alone was 4.3%. After adjusting for inflation, the annual compounded total return was 6.7% per year. For the period 1977-2000, Ibbotson and Sinquefeld project stocks to have a compound return of 8.5% per year adjusting for inflation.

How have stocks done versus non-liquid assets: Housing, gold, and silver? Harris Bank analyzed annual real returns (after inflation) on these assets compared with stocks over various periods. Here's how they stacked up. In the years 1890-1975, housing provided a real annual return of 4.8%, gold was down 0.7%, silver was down 0.9%, and stocks were up 6.8%. In each individual period studied (1890-1975, 1912-1975, and 1950-1975) stocks were the winners.

Clarence Darrow once stated, "History repeating itself may be bad in a lot of ways but certainly not when it comes to stock investments. Over reasonable periods of time, stocks have always provided superior returns and kept investors ahead of inflation. This is likely to hold true in the future."

Upsets Make It All Interesting

Surprising was the word most frequently used by writers and commentators in describing State Insurance Commissioner John Ingram's upset victory over Luther Hodges in Tuesday's runoff.

Ingram survived from a field of candidates to represent the Democratic Party in the U. S. Senate race against incumbent Republican Sen. Jesse Helms.

Hodges had been the front runner in the first primary and most observers were predicting that he would be the winner on May 30. But there were signs, that should have been noted by the Hodges camp, that the election was not assured.

First Hodges had not run as strongly as his advisors had hoped he would in the first voting. And as the campaigning proceeded it was Ingram who was making points with the public by attacking the big spending of the Hodges campaign.

Hodges, hopeful of avoiding a bruising fight that could damage party unity, did not hit back as hard as he might have liked. Unfortunately this left him with an image of remaining aloof from the campaign.

The turn-out was light for the second primary and undoubtedly this hurt the front-runner of the first primary.

Upsets have occurred before in North Carolina campaigns, and that is what makes politics interesting. There is nothing sure in balloting until the final votes are counted, and all candidates — even those considered to be leading — should run scared.

However one voted in the primary election, we have to recognize political astuteness of John Ingram in turning the tide.

"Yoo-hoo, Uncle, it's your favorite nephew. Time to bail me out again, y'old cool!"

Everybody Knew It: Inflation Rising

So what else is new? That seemed to be the most prevalent reaction to a government report of a softening April inflation rate.

Housewives and other consumers were already aware that their purchasing power was being eaten away even more.

And probably they understand all too well that government contributes to inflation to a great degree.

When government gets its own inflationary procedures under control, the private sector will respond accordingly.

THIS AFTERNOON

Changes In Regional Units

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Yes, most specialists confess, there have been a lot of problems with North Carolina's Regional Councils of Government. True, some have been creating problems for local city or county governments and acting like another "level of government" as some critics complained.

But there is a definite job to be done across the state on a regional basis, and the councils are the best hope for accomplishing that, members of the state Local Government Advocacy Council agree.

At a recent public hearing, the heads of five state departments (transportation, crime, human resources, administration, and natural resources) talked with the council about past problems, present needs, and future directions in regional councils.

At the bottom of the problems, most agree, is the fact that were locally elected officials are actively involved in running the regional units, they stay on track.

Neglect

"But, as locally elected officials don't devote time and attention necessary, the regional organizations begin to show directions to local governments rather than local governments showing they way they wish to go". Howard N. Lee, secretary of Natural and Community Resources commented.

The advocacy council is chaired by Glenn Deal, president of the statewide Association of County Commissioners and chairman of the board of commissioners in Alexander County. Members represent local governments and are to help get those units more involved in policy making as programs are established.

Lee, whose agency has the closest relationship with local governments and the regional councils, said he found two things wrong with the system when he first took over his duties with state government: confusion between regional field offices of state government, and the regional Councils of Government, and the contract system under which many regional council employees were paid.

BILL NOBLITT

The second problem, he said, boils down to this: many regional planners were busy writing up grants for federal funds to conduct planning programs, and then doing the jobs themselves; in effect seeking planning grants to pay their own salaries.

He is proposing that planners be put on the state, contract system and serve all local units across-the-board whether specific federal funds are available or not.

Members of the advocacy council agreed with Lee's assessment of the need to continue the regional councils: "We have experienced conflicts and confusion... but we also have had a positive experience with Lead Regional Organizations.

Boundaries

"There are no boundaries to water problems... no boundaries to air..." Lee suggested. There is a need for regional cooperation on concerns which cut across artificial governmental boundaries drawn on a map; and to help bring services to smaller communities which otherwise could not afford them.

Lee outlined several goals which need to be gained through the regional councils: planning so that the impact of actions on neighbors can be seen; coordinating; monitoring and evaluating programs to make sure they aren't obsolete and which should be continued; and technical assistance "particularly to smaller local units which can't otherwise afford the expertise."

Given those goals, he said, the emphasis should be on local involvement and control. Some change in regional boundary lines to make the areas more compatible might also be in order, he said.

An Urge To Let'er Rip

SAN DIEGO, Calif. — Almost every motorist who ever has been stuck in freeway traffic on a sweltering summer day knows the urge that overwhelms him when he turns off and sees a mile of gloriously empty highway ahead. It is the old urge to let'er rip, and to hell with the consequences.

Californians this week are feeling the old urge. They have an opportunity on June 6 to vote for Proposition 13, the Jarvis-Gann amendment to the state constitution. After metaphorical hours of being trapped in high taxes, extravagant government, and a blood-sucking bureaucracy, they see the glory road. Their pent-up resentments and frustrations are ready to burst. Call them irresponsible, which is what Gov. Jerry Brown calls the proposition; but don't discount human nature. The taxpayers are yearning to toss sobriety to the winds and take a chance on the cops.

The pending amendment is primarily the brainchild of Howard Jarvis, a crusty old character in California politics, but it bears a close relationship to other tax limitation proposals that are spreading throughout the nation. The proposals vary in approach and terminology, but they share this common conviction: The only way to restrain big-spending governments is to deny them the money to spend.

Yes, that is simplistic, and "simplistic" is among the softer adjectives that opponents have applied to Proposition 13. The amendment would have the effect of compelling a reduction of almost two-thirds in property taxes. This would be accomplished by limiting such taxes, which now average 2.8 percent of fair market value, to not more than 1 percent of "full cash value."

The hypothetical family with a $100,000 home (and you would be astounded at the number of $100,000 homes in today's real estate market) is now paying $2,800. After Jarvis the family would pay $1,000 only, and the assessed valuation, prior to sale, could not be increased by more than 2 percent per year.

Depending on whose estimate you believe, local property owners would save $5 billion to $7 billion a year. Another way of putting that is to say that local governments would lose $5 billion to $7 billion a year. Neither statement is precisely accurate. The homeowner who now deducts $2,800 in computing his federal and state income taxes could deduct $1,000 only in the first year post-Jarvis; moreover, as state levies and non-property local levies were increased in a frantic effort to make up the Jarvis gap, homeowners would indirectly pay part of their savings in different ways.

Those on the payroll of county and city governments, especially the teachers, have fallen into savings and heaves. Governor Brown is roaming the state predicting "chaos" if the Jarvis proposal passes. He calls it a "rip-off" and a "consumer fraud". Here in San Diego, in a patent scare tactic that may have lost more than it gained, the Board of Education in April sent pink slips to

Casino Gamble Paying

By PETER MATTIACE
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Resorts International Inc. is winning big on the Boardwalk because its two driving executives took a gamble on casinos here two years ago when Atlantic City was a dubious bet.

It was no wonder the normally serious I.G. "Jack" Davis Jr., the dapper president of Resorts International, was grinning broadly when the casino opened Friday.

Huge crowds waited up to four hours for the chance to take a chance. Company officials will not reveal the casino's Memorial Day weekend take, but they have predicted it will make more than $20 million profit in its first year.

"You're not going to get this smile off my face for a long time," the 51-year-old Harvard-educated businessman said. "It was two years in coming."

Resorts International's casino is alone here, and is likely to be for a year, because the firm was alone when the resort was struggling for any gimmick to shake a reputation for seediness by the seashore.

Resorts International made its move six months before New Jersey's second referendum on casino gambling in 1976. The first was soundly defeated in 1974.

In weeks, the firm tied up 56.6 acres of long-vacant urban renewal land on the Boardwalk with a $200,000 deposit. Then it bought the 1,001-room Chalfonte-Haddon Hall hotel, the best of the old Boardwalk hotels.

The only new money in town, Resorts International contributed almost one-fifth of the city's $1.3 million pro-casino campaign.

Company officials ignored predictions that the new state casino bureaucracy was not ready for gambling. They barreled ahead with almost $40 million in renovations to the 49-year-old hotel.

Prodded by company attorneys, the state was almost embarrassed into passing a special law that allowed the casino to open with a temporary nine-month permit.

40 Years Ago Today

June 1, 1938

President Roosevelt signed amendments to the new crop control law today increasing this year's national tobacco marketing quotas two per cent and providing for redistribution of unused cotton acreage allotments.

The amendments have the effect, agriculture department official said, of increasing the national marketing quota of flue-cured tobacco from 719,000,000 pounds to 793,000,000; dark tobacco from 145,000,000 to 147,000,000 pounds; and burley from 350,000,000 to 357,000,000 pounds.

The increases were authorized by Congress to permit adjustment among growers who complained against reduction in their acreage allotments.

Twenty-one building permits were issued for new construction and alterations in Greenville during May to cost an $63,999, indicating that many local residents are building new homes or repairing their old residences in preparation for the summer.

TURNING TO HARD LINE

Soviet Tensions Escalate

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Soviet tensions are escalating to new heights as the Carter administration tries to cope with rising Soviet pressures in Africa, an internal crackdown on dissidents and a Red military buildup in Eastern Europe.

The tougher U.S. tone has parts of this capital approaching the anti-communist fever that marked the Cold War of the late 1940s and the 1950s.

The administration's aim is to get Russia to reverse itself while satisfying this country's voters — heading toward the fall congressional elections — that the government is alert to the continuing Soviet tests of U.S. resolve.

The rhetoric is mostly that of Zbigniew Brzezinski, the national security adviser who has successfully counseled President Carter to publicize the criticism and to put more "bite" in its statements.

Once thought to favor easing the Cold War, Brzezinski has evolved into a leading skeptic of Soviet intentions. He was recently quoted as explaining, "Anybody who maintains that one has to be constant in one's views in every respect for decades is a jerk."

Why the administration is publicizing its concerns now is not entirely clear.

For instance, there is concern, particularly at the State Department, that the partially completed treaty with the Russians to limit strategic nuclear weapons might be forfeited in the turmoil.

A number of key issues remain unresolved in the deliberations, which were resuming today in New York between Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

Vance acknowledged that the two sides made little progress in weekend talks here despite Carter's personal intercession. Hopes for an early accord or a summit meeting between Carter and Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev this summer are receding.

While the Russians are interested in completing the treaty and aware of the "negative spillover" from the African adventurism, a senior U.S. official said, Moscow is willing to take that risk.

A second concern was raised by another official in general agreement with the administration.

"Once you get the anti-communist monster out of the bag in this country, it is difficult to get it back in," he told the Associated Press.

"If you stir the anti-communist psyche to a sufficient degree that it begins to be really worried about any deals with the Soviets, then even dealing with them on a cultural basis becomes very difficult."

So why is the U.S. taking its new, hard line toward Moscow?

Among the reasons, according to knowledgeable administration officials, are these:

—The frustration that Soviet and Cuban penetration in Africa is deepening despite private Kremlin assurances in March that the Russians would appeal to Havana to cut back.

Since Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin talked with Vance, the Cuban force has ballooned from about 24,000 to between 38,000 and 40,000 men.

—The domestic political pressures that require Carter to demonstrate his determination in dealing with the Russians even as he is trying to conclude the weapons treaty and an accord banning all U.S., Soviet and British nuclear tests.

—Pressures from moderate Arab and African countries seeking reassurances, as one U.S. official put it, "that the president is ready to do

To the editor:

This is an open letter to our teachers at Rose High School from the Class of 1978.

Thank you for the memories. With your help, we have learned. But, not only that, we have experienced much of life under your guidance. Twelve years is a long time to us. It is two-thirds of our lives.

Despite the criticism that is often heavily placed upon your shoulder, we know you've done the best that you could do. We can't see why society wants to blame you for our own shortcomings. Our personalities had already been shaped before we came to you. Now, as we leave you, we realize that you've only wanted to improve our lives.

So you are not faultless — nobody is! But you also set high ideals before us. You tried to help us set our own goals.

We will never be able to thank you enough. Perhaps, when we succeed in life, that will be enough. We'll come back after a while to let you know how well you did through us.

Thanks until we meet again.

Other Inflationary Pressures

By JOHN CUNIFF
NEW YORK (AP) — Inflation isn't just too much money chasing too few goods. It may also be generated by the changing pressures, evolving attitudes and varying values of society.

Such as the demand for a cleaner environment, the quest for better health, the desire for more comfortable retirement, the incidence of crime, the toleration of waste, the growth of government.

These added billions, unless offset by productivity gains, add inevitably to prices, although many Americans, legislators included, sometimes fail to see the association.

Edward Dennison, a Brookings Institution economist, estimates the cost of environmental and worker health and safety regulations, combined with a rising crime rate, reached $36 billion last year.

There is no mystery about the benefits, since they are so obvious: more concern for and sometimes better care of worker health, and markedly cleaner air and water.

But economists are often mystified that the association between costs and prices isn't more readily understood. Costs are prices, they say, or at least the former are passed on as the latter.

Well, many costs anyway. Expenditures that lead to greater productivity are partially absorbed before they reach the consumer. Unfortunately, that is not often true of environmental costs.

Nor of certain other regulatory costs, particularly those that add to paperwork burdens. The Commission on Federal Paperwork reports that 5 million small businesses spend $15 billion to $20 billion a year on paperwork.

The average of $3,000 per business doesn't tell the full story either, because the cost of time from duties that otherwise would add to the financial health of the business, can't be calculated.

What can be calculated is that small businesses that do not pass on the costs as higher prices cannot survive — and that businesses which seek to absorb the higher costs might not survive either.

"The future does not look bright for many of these firms," the assistant director of the Center for the Study of American Business told the House Committee on Small Business recently.

"The impact of the recent expansion of federal government regulation of business has been particularly severe on the smaller companies," said Kenneth W. Chilton of the center.

For the large concern, he said, the added costs may represent merely an uneconomical application of resources. "But it may literally be a matter of the enterprise's life or death for the small firm."

How does the death of the small firm lead to higher prices? The small firm traditionally has been the innovator, the originator of new products.

And why higher prices? That's the penalty we pay for making greater demands on business, often from necessity rather than choice, demands that cannot be paid for immediately through greater productivity.

Strength For Today

RAINBOWS

What present shall I take to my sick friend?

A doctor told recently of seeing in the bedroom of an invalid a present which struck him as being highly original. It was a prism which, when laid in the sunlight on a windowsill, cast a rainbow above the invalid's bed. All day long while the sun was shining, the invalid could see the joyous colors of the rainbow on the ceiling.

For centuries the rainbow has been the symbol of hope. Are we giving our friends when we meet them the inestimable gift of new hope and courage? Flowers have their place in life, and in the form of a sincere compliment spoken at just the right moment, these verbal blossoms cheer the discouraged heart to greater effort.

But rainbows are better than bouquets. If you want to be really kind and helpful to a friend, put something in his life which will make a rainbow over his bed, over his home, over his office — and above all, over the discouraged spirit in an hour of trial.

Czech Communists Facing A Tide Of Dissent

By ROBERT H. REID
Associated Press Writer
BONN, West Germany (AP) — Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev's visit to Czechoslovakia appears designed to shore up President Gustav Husak, plagued by a persistent dissident movement and challenges within his Communist Party.

Western diplomats in Prague believe Brezhnev's support is a major reason the 65-year-old Husak has stayed in power since the Kremlin picked him nearly a decade ago to roll back Alexander Dubcek's liberal reforms.

The Soviets, who keep an estimated 90,000 troops on Czechoslovak soil, want to emphasize their support for Husak as the 10th anniversary of their August 21, 1968 invasion draws near.

"The Soviets are apparently quite satisfied with Husak," said one Western diplomat. "He represents stability and continuity and that's what they want."

At the beginning of the year, unofficial reports reaching the West indicated Husak was under attack within party circles for his handling of the stagnating economy and the Charter 77 dissident movement.

One report said Husak actually resigned at one point but was talked into returning by pro-Soviet elements. Another claimed ultra-hardliners were lobbying to split the posts of president and party leader and relegating Husak to the less influential presidency. Although there was no confirmation of the rumors from official sources, Husak mentioned them in a speech last February on the 30th anniversary of the Communist coup.

"There is no crisis here nor will there be," he said. "Let the dogs bark. The caravan goes on."

One of Husak's leading critics was said to have been Jaroslav Hejna, regional party secretary for southern Bohemia. Hejna, 54 and a rising star in the party, was removed from his post and sent last January as ambassador to Bulgaria.

A Western diplomat said Hejna and other party officials from the Czech part of the country were apparently upset over the amount of attention and investment the regime was directing to the Slovaks areas.

The government's handling of the dissident movement has also brought criticism, both from hardliners demanding tougher action and moderates lobbying for a softer approach.

When the dissidents published their first manifesto — Charter 77 — in January 1977, the government-controlled news media launched a campaign labeling the signers traitors, parasites and sexual deviates.

But the campaign served only to publicize the charter, which called on the government to live up to human rights guarantees in its constitution and law codes.

"There is evidence that the Soviets and others in the bloc apparently told them they were tired of trying to excuse Czechoslovakia's rather heavy-handed tactics," a diplomat said.

Despite some softening, the regime is still very sensitive about the dissidents and restricts their contacts with foreign journalists. Policemen are periodically stationed outside the apartments of leading dissidents to keep tabs on their movements and visitors.

This reporter was detained by police for more than an hour following an interview in Prague last month with Charter 77 spokesman Ladislav Hejdanek. Two days later the reporter was expelled. Sources said five signers of the charter were arrested Tuesday on the first day of Brezhnev's four-day visit, presumably to prevent demonstrations. Western observers in Prague say it is difficult to measure the impact of the dissident movement on the Czechoslovak public. Many young Czechoslovaks interviewed at random throughout Prague expressed support for the aims of the movement although none admitted to having signed its manifesto. Hejdanek told The Associated Press more than a third of the estimated 800 signers were workers, although he conceded that the strength of the movement comes from the intellectual class in Prague.

"The situation of Czech culture is worse than in any other Socialist country," Hejdanek said. "Also as a group, the intellectuals are the worst oppressed group in society."

One observer said many of the workers who signed may be intellectuals who lost jobs as teachers, bureaucrats or journals during the purges following Dubcek's ouster. "It's amazing," he said. "You have these guys who were formerly law professors at Charles University stoking coal by day and drafting these legal documents by night."

Congratulated By Gov. Hunt

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt congratulated state Insurance Commissioner John Ingram on his victory Tuesday in the Democratic primary runoff for the U.S. Senate and said he was confident it would lead to a Democratic victory in the fall.

Hunt said Wednesday he plans to campaign vigorously for Ingram and insisted that Ingram's primary runoff with Luther Hodges Jr. had not hurt the Democratic party.

Ingram will face Republican Sen. Jesse Helms in the November election. Hunt said the runoff had been rough but not destructive and predicted the party would do well in November.

"I have seen some nasty campaigns in the state," Hunt said, "and this campaign wasn't nasty. It was just hard-hitting. I believe the North Carolina Democratic party will be strong this fall."

Hunt said he was dismayed by the low voter turnout for Tuesday's runoff election. Figures showed that only about 26 of the state's 1.7 million registered Democrats voted in the runoff.

"Of course, the fact that it was a runoff election was responsible for some lack of voter interest," Hunt said. "But in some districts, for example Wake County, voter turnout was actually higher for the runoff than for the May 2 primary."

Hunt also announced a schedule of 37 public hearings on crime control to be held throughout the state from July 6 to Oct. 19. He said at least one of the conferences would be held in each of the 32 judicial districts, and more hearings are planned for larger districts.

Hunt said Phil Carlton, state Secretary of Crime Control and Public Safety, will preside at each of the hearings which are designed to encourage citizens to help improve the state's criminal justice system. Hunt said he plans to attend several himself.

Board chairman James Crosby, 49, a former investment banker, controls 54 percent of the company's voting stock along with a sister and a brother.

The Resorts International empire sprang from the Mary Carter Paint Co., which Crosby's father bought in 1958. The younger Crosby was brought in from a New Jersey chemical company and Davis, a planning director for Rheem Manufacturing Co., was named president in 1960.

The conglomerate now includes the East's first casino hotel, ownership of two hotels and operation of two casinos in the Bahamas, the internationally known private security agency Intertel, the California theme park Marine World-Africa and a small Florida airline.

Davis and Crosby maintain their influence in almost all company activities, from major real estate acquisitions to design of hallway arches in their hotels.

The rise has not been without turmoil. Resorts International has been dogged for years by charges that it has had connections with organized crime and the CIA in Florida and the Bahamas. But none of the charges has been proven and the firm is presently suing Rolling Stone magazine for libel for a 1976 article.

"The hope that the Russians will get the message, if it is repeated often enough in public and in private, that their actions are not consistent with what Brzezinski calls "the code of detente."

"My hope," he said last weekend, "is that through patient negotiations with us, but also through demonstrated resolve on our part, we can induce the Soviet leaders to conclude that the benefits of accommodation are greater than the short-sighted attempt to exploit global difficulties."

In this vein, the administration has decided to explore with its West European allies in Paris next week possible ways of propping up friendly African countries, perhaps by using NATO as a conduit for arms and other aid.

A growing White House perception and their military power and extending its reach. Specifically, the Russians have converted to a completely mobile army and to an air force equipped for offensive tactical missions. This means new missiles and new warplanes.

The repression of dissidents, typified by the series of trials beginning with that of Yuri Orlov. A monitor of Soviet compliance with the 1975 Helsinki accord on human rights, he has been given a 12-year sentence.

The Soviet crackdown has led groups of American scientists, educators and others to cancel trips to Russia. On Tuesday, Joseph A. Califano Jr., the secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, announced he was postponing a planned trip, largely out of concern over Orlov's trial and the detention of other dissidents.

1,940 teachers telling them they would not be fired in the fall if Proposition 13 should pass. This doubtless galvanized the teachers, but a San Diego doctor who had been lukewarm to Jarvis said he and his colleagues were so incensed by this "transparent intimidation" that they began working for it.

Emotions are running so high that both sides have lost credibility. The Jarvis amendment, though it contains certain safeguards, is not artfully drawn; it almost certainly would have adverse consequences not foreseen by its exhilarated supporters. On the other hand, the hysterical cries of "chaos" and "cut-backs" are mostly the howls of political montebanks who see their powers abruptly circumscribed. California's state treasury is running swollen rivers of surplus; its legislature would have abundant time and money to address whatever crises might follow in the wake of Jarvis.

Last week's California poll showed the outcome too close to call. Much will depend upon the last-minute "no" campaign by the teachers, public employees and other opponents. If their campaign induces a return to the old submissiveness among taxpayers now eager to revolt, Jarvis could expire like a muscle spasm.

Let me venture only two predictions: If Jarvis passes, the good effects will outnumber the bad. If Jarvis fails, in one form or another Jarvis will return.

NBC Won Prime-Time Weekly Rating Race

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC claimed only three of the week's 10 most-watched programs, but fared well in the ratings from then on and won the networks' weekly battle for the prime time television viewer.

NBC's best for the week ending May 28 was a new episode of "Police Story," No. 5 in the A.C. Nielsen Co.'s ratings. A consistent NBC hit, "Little House on the Prairie," was No. 9 for the week, and a third NBC show, "Class of '65," tied for tenth.

Three of the four most-watched shows were on ABC. A new installment of "Laverne and Shirley" was ranked No. 1 in a week marked by at least two-dozen reruns. A rerun of another ABC comedy, "Three's Company," was second.

CBS scored with "The Dain Curse," a three-part production of the Dashiell Hammett novel. The first episode Monday evening was No. 3 in the week's ratings. Part III was tied for tenth and Part II 13th. But it wasn't enough to pull CBS out of third place in the network standings for the week.

NBC's relatively strong start contributed to a rating for the week of 15.1. ABC was at 14.6 and CBS at 14.4. The networks say that means in an average prime time minute, 15.1 percent of "the homes in the country with TV were tuned to NBC."

The rating for "Laverne and Shirley" was 24.3. Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with TV, 24.3 percent saw at least part of the show.

Three ABC shows were ranked at the bottom of the ratings — "Sugar Time" and "Sister Terri," both tied with NBC's "C.P.O. Sharkey" for No. 52, and "Vanishing Wilderness," No. 57. CBS' telecast of the pro basketball playoff game Thursday night was 55th, and NBC's "Comedy Time" 56th.

Here are the week's Top 10 shows:

"Laverne and Shirley," a 24.3 rating representing 17.7 million homes, and "Three's Company," 23.4 or 17.1 million, both ABC; "The Dain Curse," Part I, 22.6 or 16.5 million, CBS; "Happy Days," 22.5 or 16.4 million, ABC; "Police Story," 20.8 or 15.2 million, NBC; "M-A-S-H," 20.4 or 14.9 million, CBS; "Carter Country," 18.7 or 13.6 million, and "Bing Crosby — Life and Legend," 18.6 or 13.5 million, both ABC; "Little House on the Prairie," 18.3 or 13.3 million, NBC, and "The Dain Curse," Part III, CBS, and "Class of '65," NBC, both 18.2 or 13.2 million.

The next 10 shows: Movie, "Rooster Cogburn," NBC; "The Dain Curse," Part II, CBS; "Charlie's Angels," ABC; "Alice," CBS; "Country Night of the Stars," NBC;

Ensure Funds To Reactor Project

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nuclear breeder reactor project is a step closer to staying alive despite President Carter's opposition. The House Appropriations Committee approved $157 million Wednesday to ensure procurement and development of project components without actually beginning construction on the Clinch River site in Tennessee.

STARBERRY — Mr. and Mrs. Howard Mims of 1810 Forest Hill Dr. usually harvest strawberries from their garden at their summer home near Bath. Recently, however, they picked this five-pointed "starberry" from their strawberry patch. "Starberries" would have been just right for the Victory gardens of World War II.

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, JUNE 2, 1978

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You have doubts about handling your practical affairs now. Wait until later when your judgment is better.

ARIES (March 21 to Apr. 19) Avoid arguments with a partner. Give more time to detailed work that is important. Avoid one who could spoil your family life.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A letter you receive could put you in a more favorable position in life. Consider how to make your social life more enviable, also. Avoid one who is jealous of you.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Be clever in handling confidential matters now. Try to add to present assets instead of getting further into debt. Listen to what a confidential adviser has to suggest.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Avoid one who has given you trouble lately and be with good friends who can be helpful to you. A personal wish comes true.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You are civic-minded now and can do much to improve your lot in life as well as that of others. Look for new appliances that could ease your work load. Be wary of interlopers.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You find it hard to start on new interests just now. Enlarge your vision and accept more advanced ideas and use them to your benefit.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You may find it difficult to carry through with promises right now, but later you know exactly how to do so. Do not argue with loved ones. Maintain harmony.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Try to help others who are having rough sledding and show your care. You may be unnecessarily worried over some civic matter, but then you see the picture clearly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) All that work ahead of you could get you down. Put your mind to it early and get it out of the way. Work together with loved one which brings greater understanding.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You have a talent you seldom use, so proceed slowly with it until you are more sure of yourself. Be more affectionate with kin.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Plan time to get conditions at home improved even though it may mean working slowly, but you get good results. A good time for studying into a new project.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) The morning is not good for gadding about since you could meet with an accident, but evening is fine. Conferring with others on the phone is good.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will have a most practical type of nature, so be sure to slant education along such lines and there can be much success in this lifetime. Teach early to work for best results during the lifetime, whether rich or poor.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Honor Maxwells At Unveiling Of Sculpture

HONORED ON WEDNESDAY . . . Mr. and Mrs. Grover C. Maxwell, Sr. of Augusta, Ga. were honored Wednesday at a reception at the Greenville Art Center and later as guests at the society's annual

with proceeds earned from the invested principal to be used as funds for the purchase of works of art for the center.

In the years since Mrs. Moore's death, her brothers have substantially increased the foundation through donations of funds, so that the basic foundation fund now exceeds $100,000.

Health Agency Meets June 14

The Eastern Carolina Health Systems Agency will hold its monthly meeting June 14 at 7:30 p.m. at the Ramada Inn.

Items on the agenda include a report on the Health Systems Plan, approval of the annual implementation plan, review and approval of the ECHSA budget and work program, and several project review reports including one on a start-up assistance grant for the ECU School of Medicine.

Briefly tracing the history of the foundation, Blount explained that the late Mrs. Rachel Maxwell Moore, sister of the Maxwells and a devoted patron of art in Greenville, had provided in her will that her estate be set up as a trust fund for a foundation

Helms Dinner Set June 10

NEW BERN — Plans have been completed for a dinner honoring U.S. Senator Jesse Helms to be held here June 10 at the Shrine Club at 7 p.m.

The dinner is being sponsored by the North Carolina Congressional Club, and tickets, at $5 each, are available from Central News in New Bern or Havelock, or by calling Alton Corey in Vanceboro at 224-0220.

Maxwell, Sr. told those gathered at the ceremony that he and his family have been happy to help carry on with the work envisioned by his sister, and that they were all grateful and delighted for the recognition shown them through the creation of the sculpted plaque and its installation in the Art Center.

The ceremony took place at a champagne reception held at the Art Center to honor the Maxwells, who came here from their Augusta, Georgia home for the occasion.

Following the reception, the Maxwells were special guests at the 22nd annual dinner and business meeting held at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

East Carolina Art Society president Mrs. Clifton Everett, Sr. welcomed the Maxwell family and reported on highlights of the past year. "Our membership has grown to over 400, which when family membership is considered, means a total membership now of more than 700," Mrs. Everett said.

Other highlights mentioned were the center's sponsorship of the Reynolds North Carolina Artists competition; the center becoming one of 12 galleries in North Carolina affiliated with the N. C. Museum of Art; an attendance record for the 11 art shows of over 20,000 viewers; and the receipt of $1,500 in Grass Root funds for various art classes and programs conducted by the center.

Mrs. Beverly Reid, projects chairman, cited the success of two major projects, the Fine Arts Ball chaired by Mrs. Williams S. Corbett, Jr. and the annual Sidewalk Art Show, chaired by Mrs. Richard C. Taft, Jr. The two resulted in profits of $8,810 and $1,505 respectively.

Acquisition Committee chairperson Mrs. Nell Webb reported that two major works had been purchased during the past year from Rachel Maxwell Moore Foundation funds — a watercolor by Bob Timberlake, and an oil painting by Phillip Moose. She also mentioned the gift of a wood and fabric art work given by Dr. Emily Farnham.

Bruce B. Sugg, Jr., treasurer of the foundation, reported that the fund now has $105,000 in assets. "I want all of you to know that because of the generosity and foresight of Mrs. Moore," Sugg commented, "that the art society has purchased art work costing over $30,000 from money earned from the foundation."

"I want you to know too that Rachel, along with her two generous brothers, have done more for Greenville than any other three people I know about."

Sugg reminisced that as a boy visiting Seven Springs he remembered Rachel Maxwell as a pretty girl with long red hair who could outrace any boy around. "And all the family could play an excellent game of set back," he added.

Art Society officers elected are: vice-president, Mrs. Blanche Monroe; recording secretary, Mrs. Beverly Reid; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Ann Burks; and treasurer, Frank Woolen. Mrs. Clifton Everett, Jr. continues for another year as the society's president. Six new directors were elected — Gerald Crane, Graham Flanagan, Mrs. Pat Kootz, Mrs. William S. Corbett, Jr., and Mrs. James T. Cheatham, all for two-year terms. Six directors serving a second year of a two year are Mrs. Barbara Blount, Bill McConnell, Norwin Pierce, Jerry Raynor, Mrs. Sarah Sugg, and Mrs. Nell Webb.

Pricing Parcel-Handling Into The Red

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service's investment of almost $1 billion in automated package-handling machinery may turn into a money-loser.

The government is projecting the latest parcel rate increase will plummet volume below the system's break-even point.

When the automated system's 21 facilities opened in 1976, the Postal Service said 300 million parcels would have to move through them a year to make its investment worthwhile.

Last month, however, the independent Postal Rate Commission projected that the 35 percent raise in parcel rates which took effect Monday will drive annual volume to under that figure for the first time ever.

Yearly parcel volume, although remaining above 300 million pieces, has been falling in recent years as more Postal Service users turn to private parcel services.

Parcel volume, once more than a billion pieces a year, has not topped 400 million since the system began operating. Meanwhile, the private United Parcel Service, which had a fraction of the parcel business several decades ago, has continued to expand.

This trend will be escalated by the latest parcel increases, according to the Postal Rate Commission, which studies the probable effect of proposed Postal Service rate increases.

The rate commission projected the rate increases will cut Postal Service parcel volume to 279 million pieces a year. Postal experts foresee UPS, the largest private bulk-mail handler, picking up most of the lost business.

To send a 10-pound parcel from Washington to Los Angeles costs $3.72 via United Parcel, but $5.34 under the new postal rate.

The bulk mail system, the Postal Service's largest investment since it was created in 1971, was designed to increase efficiency by concentrating parcel sorting in huge buildings around the country.

But the system depends on a high parcel volume to justify its initial expense. Postmaster General William F. Bolger said the system proved its potential during a 1976 UPS strike when the service, thanks to its extra business, turned a $46 million profit.

Bolger said in an interview that this week's rate increase will affect the financial viability of the system.

"The bulk mail system, as with any mechanized system, depends heavily on volume. The lack of volume certainly makes it less efficient," he said.

Former Postmaster General Winton M. Blount, announcing plans for the system in 1971, called it the first major step in the Postal Service's drive for greater efficiency.

Five years and $997 million later, it opened as critics in Congress and elsewhere expressed skepticism that the system would ever bring back the volume lost to private carriers.

Three Hurt In Collision

SIMPSON — Three persons were injured when a farm tractor and car collided two miles south of here on rural paved road 1755 about 9:20 p.m. Monday.

Highway Patrolman Fred Davis identified the drivers involved as Ronald Marian Evans of Route 1, Grimesland and Marion Odell Parker of Simpson.

Trooper Davis said the Parker car collided with the Evans tractor, causing an estimated $1,000 damage to each of the two vehicles.

Evans was charged with having improper lights, while Mrs. Parker was charged with failing to reduce her speed enough to avoid an accident.

Both drivers and a passenger in the Parker car were reported injured.

Homecoming, Quarterly Meet

A homecoming quarterly meeting will be observed at St. Paul Free Will Baptist Church in Greene County.

The Saturday night program will feature the Rev. Joyner and the church junior choir.

The Sunday morning homecoming address will be given by Mother Johnson of Arthur Chapel Free Will Baptist Church. Pastor Bishop W. L. Phillips, the No. 2 choir and the senior ushers will also participate.

At 2 p.m., dinner will be served. The Rev. Parker of cherry Lane Free Will Baptist Church will speak at 3 p.m.

Discouraged By Low-Rank Rule

WASHINGTON (AP) — GIs with too few stripes often go into debt to bring their families to overseas posts. The reason? Servicemen of the rank of Army corporal or below, with less than two years service, are not entitled to applicable government allowances.

Air Force Sgt. Rickey H. Hooper told a House Armed Services subcommittee Wednesday that as a low-ranking GI he was told he could not take his family to Germany — unless he paid the costs himself. Now he's eligible but he has decided to get out of service to try for a better job.

Collided With A Parked Car

A car driven by Raymond Shelley of 707 West Third St. collided with a parked car owned by Nellie Catherine Gibson of 122B Woodlawn Ave. about 2:25 a.m. today on Contentnea Street, 75 feet south of the Third Street intersection.

Police, who charged Shelley with failing to keep a proper lookout while backing, estimated damage at $300 to the Gibson vehicle and $50 to the Shelley car.

Competency Test Plan Approval Is Expected

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina State Board of Education is expected to approve the recommendations of the state Competency Test Commission for math and reading tests for eleventh graders.

State law requires eleventh graders, beginning next fall, to pass a minimum skills test in reading and math to receive a high school diploma. Those who fail will receive remedial instruction and at least three more chances to pass the tests.

The first round of the competency tests showed that 54 percent of the state's eleventh graders failed to answer correctly at least 70 percent of the math questions on the trial test favored by the commission.

Reading test results showed that 19 percent of the state's eleventh graders failed to answer correctly at least 70 percent of the questions on the trial reading test the commission wants the board to adopt today.

The commission called a press conference Wednesday to release those results from six trial tests taken three months ago by North Carolina's 85,000 eleventh graders. Half the students took three reading tests and half took three math tests.

It was the commission's job to develop the tests and assign a passing score. The tests have now been selected, based on trial test results. But the recommendation on a passing score has been delayed until October, according to James J. Gallagher, commission chairman.

H. David Bruton, state board chairman, said he expected the commission's recommended reading and math tests to be passed in sessions today.

Bruton said the most appropriate response he could make about the results announced Wednesday was not to be disappointed.

"What this really is is an assessment of what we've been doing, and it serves as a benchmark for improvement."

He said he was not surprised by the results and described them as similar to other state's results.

Disadvantaged In Power Choice

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Two university economists studying the state's energy needs, say North Carolina is at a disadvantage among surrounding states in attempts to get new industry because of the state's heavy dependence on electricity.

Their report indicated that electricity North Carolina costs more per kilowatt hour than in the other states or the nation as a whole and that North Carolina depends more heavily than the others on electrical power.

The report noted that North Carolina's ability to stabilize its natural gas situation was hampered by federal control of interstate prices, which remain below the intrastate market.

"It appears that unless the present policies are altered to reflect more rational prices, we shall continue to see the disruption of industrial and end-use allocations of energy by state and federal officials," the report concluded.

Drs. John L. Neufeld and James M. Watts, assistant professors of economics at University of North Carolina at Greensboro also said the state suffers in attracting new industry because it has only one natural gas supplier.

Neufeld is a member of the North Carolina Energy Policy Council, appointed by Gov. Jim Hunt to examine the state's energy problems.

Their report criticized the Federal Power Commission for holding down the interstate price of gas and added that North Carolina "is especially vulnerable because only one major interstate pipeline company services the state."

The reference was to Transcontinental Pipeline Co. of Houston, the only source of supply to all North Carolina gas companies. Transco was forced to curtail deliveries to customers all along the eastern seaboard in 1976 and 1977 when it was unable to buy enough gas at the regulated price to supply everyone.

The two economists studied energy needs of North Carolina textile, apparel and furniture industries, compiling similar statistics for Tennessee, South Carolina and Virginia.

Disadvantaged In Power Choice

The results showed that blacks scored much lower than whites on both the reading and math tests. Eastern North Carolina students scored lower than students in the Piedmont and the west.

Gallagher said the commission selected tests containing no questions requiring knowledge beyond the ninth grade, but he declined to say what grade-level the tests were aligned to.

An official of the Los Angeles school system, where the selected tests were developed, said the reading test did not go beyond the fifth-grade level and the math test sixth-grade level, according to The News and Observer of Raleigh.

Wake Forest Compromise

MURFREESBORO, N.C. (AP) — A compromise worked out between the Baptist State Convention's executive committee and the trustees of Wake Forest University was unanimously endorsed Wednesday by the convention's general board.

The 110-member board also approved guidelines for trustees which indicate the trustees — not the convention — own and operate institutions such as Wake Forest.

The compromise says the trustees acted correctly when they refused in December — contrary to a convention mandate — to change the purpose of a portion of a $300,000 grant to the school from the National Science Foundation.

The compromise also says the trustees will spend $85,000 of university research money in symbolic — but not actual — replacement of federal funds being spent to build a disputed biology department greenhouse.

The convention had objected to use of $85,000 of the NSF grant to build the greenhouse, saying the use of the money violated the Baptist principle of separation of church and state, which is more stringent than U.S. Supreme Court rulings on the subject.

The disagreement developed into a controversy which led to a re-examination of the convention's constitution, its institutions' charters and the re-

Completes Executive Internship Work

Rose High senior Scott Gordley on Wednesday afternoon completed work in the Rose High School Executive Internship Program. Gordley, who works at Procter & Gamble in the program, received a certificate of completion in a ceremony held in the office of Art Galya, Employee Relations Manager at Procter & Gamble.

Galya noted that Gordley, in his internship, "had the opportunity to work in several areas relating to the field of chemical engineering. The experience Scott gained will greatly benefit him in his engineering curriculum at North Carolina State this fall."

Steve Wilkinson was Gordley's advisor at Procter & Gamble.

Mrs. Wende Allen is the teacher at Rose High who coordinates students participating in the program. In addition to Gordley, nine other students are enrolled. The students and their employers are:

— Gwen Harris, City Manager's office; Ellen Pollock, Howard, Vincent, and Duffus, attorneys; Donna Edwards, Mendenhall Student Center, ECU and also Barwick-Ridgeway Vet Hospital; David Fulghum, Greenville City Schools; and Debbie Girdharry, School of Medicine, ECU and John Stallings, pharmacist at Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

Juvenile Crime Workshop Set

The North Carolina Lutheran Church Women Task Force on Juvenile Justice will sponsor a workshop for adults interested in exploring alternatives to help young people in the community who find themselves in trouble with the law. The workshop will be held Sunday, June 4, from 3-5 p.m. at the Prince of Peace Lutheran Church, 809 Plaza Blvd., Kinston.

As of July 1 of this year, juveniles who are guilty of a status offense will no longer be committed to training schools. This will place an additional responsibility for these juveniles on the local community. A status offense is an act that, if committed by an adult, would not be considered by a crime. They include acts such as running away, truancy and undisciplined behavior.

Since passage of this law, House Bill 456, the Community Based Alternatives (CBA) Section of the Department of Human Resources has been established to aid counties in providing alternative programs to training school.

J. Phil Carlton, Secretary, N. C. Department of Crime Control and Public Safety, cited in a recent address three areas in which continued improvements are needed to fight crime in North Carolina. Two of these were: 1) to find a way to slow down the juvenile delinquency rate because that's where crime starts, and 2) to stimulate community involvement in all areas of crime control.

The Lutheran Church Women have received many good comments on the work they have accomplished in these specific areas.

Seattle Seeks Cozier Court

SEATTLE (AP) — The Seattle SuperSonics are going back to their cozy little Coliseum, which seats only a fourth the number of people held in the hall of horrors they played in earlier this week.

And now the Washington Bullets know they have one more shot before their own hometown folks.

Almost as much attention was lavished on the site of Game 4 in the National Basketball Association championship series — Seattle's Kingdom — as on the game itself Tuesday night.

For the Sonics, it was the same floor on which they won 21 straight. But the court was set up in the Kingdom, home of the baseball Mariners, the football Seahawks and the soccer Sounders.

The Sonics weren't scheduled to move into the Kingdom until next season. After Tuesday night's game, they wished things had gone according to schedule.

Game 5 of the best-of-seven playoff finals will be played Friday night at the Seattle Center Coliseum, the normal 15,000-seat home of the Sonics. A scheduling conflict Tuesday forced them out.

With the series now tied 2-2, the Bullets know they'll be the host for Game 6 at the Capital Centre in Landover, Md., Sunday afternoon. If a seventh game is necessary, it's back at the Coliseum next Wednesday.

The Kingdom crowd of 39,457 — the domed stadium holds more than 60,000 — was an NBA single-game attendance record.

But the Sonics got caught sightseeing, blew a 15-point lead and barely managed a 106-106 tie in regulation time. The Bullets won in overtime, 120-116.

While the Sonics were looking over their new court, they forgot about the Bullets backcourt. Three Bullet guards helped direct the overtime victory, with 12 of Washington's 14 points in the extra period.

Six of those points were put on the scoreboard by the Bullet's No. 3 guard, Charles Johnson, who didn't have a job with Washington until Jan. 24.

"This is a game of opportunities," Johnson said after the win. "There is never a plan to have someone take a shot — only to take good shots. I got the good shots in overtime, and they were going in."

"CJ has been a big help for us," said Bullet's coach Dick Motta. "He's been through it all before, and there's no substitute for experience. We'd be in trouble without him."

"CJ helps everyone out on the court," said Bullets star Elvin Hayes. "You want a player like that, who knows what he's doing out there. I don't see how any team could let him go."

"You have to handle the pressure in the NBA," said Johnson, who played with the Golden State Warriors when they won the title in 1975. "Some of the most emotionally stable people I know are in the NBA. Of course, some of the craziest people I know are in the NBA, too."

Pitt County Legion Team Set To Open 1978 Baseball Season

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Greenville's American Legion baseball team hopes to be quite competitive in this year's Area I Eastern League play, but Manager Ed Hooks acknowledges that pitching might mean the difference in whether the Pitt County team can repeat last year's title.

"I think we'll have a successful year," Hooks said, "but that doesn't mean we'll win the championship again. We can't win on our laurels, but I think we have the potential to be in the thick of the fight."

If there is a problem for Pitt County, it will be in its lack of pitching depth. "We have an experienced club. We lost only three starters, but one of them was a pitcher, and we haven't replaced him."

youth baseball

Babe Ruth

Home Builders 6, Action Movers 3

A four-run fifth-inning rally allowed the Home Builders to come from behind and defeat Action Movers.

Action scored first in the game and took a 2-0 lead with runs in the first and second innings, but Home Builders scored in the bottom of the second. Both teams added a run in the fourth inning to make it 3-2.

Danny Woods led off the decisive fifth inning with a single for Home Builders and Jeff Jones and Shelton Wilson followed with base hits of their own.

Roger Williams reached when he was hit by a pitch to score Woods and Barry Tyson singled to plate James and Wilson. Lloyd Jackson reached on an error to plate Williams.

Tyson and Bobby Hopkins each had two hits for Home Builders, while Kenny Barnes had a pair of hits for Action Movers.

Pepsi-Cola 16, Coca-Cola 5

Pepsi-Cola had little trouble in gaining a victory over Coca-Cola last night.

Coke scored first in the game with runs by Mitch Brown and Kelly Kee in the top of the first, but Junior Neal and Billy Dough came across for Pepsi in the bottom of the frame.

Pepsi wrapped up the victory with five runs in the third inning. Emmett Walsh led off the frame with a single and made it to second on a passed ball. Mike Thurber got a base hit and also moved up on a passed ball. Walsh scored on Bill Bost's infield out, while Thurber came in when Mike Holloman singled.

Junior Neal hit a safety and both runners advanced on an error. Holloman scored and Neal went to third on a passed ball. Mark Douglas walked and he and Neal scored when Dough reached on an error.

Walsh went 3-4 for Pepsi, while Thurber had two hits. Steve Chapman had a pair of hits for Coke.

Little League

Big Value 13, First Federal 5

Big Value came up with six runs in the second inning to put the game out of reach early and down First Federal.

FF got a pair of runs in the top of the first on Mont Brown's single and William Waugh's home run, but Scott Irwin scored for BVD in the bottom of the frame.

Ervin Best scored for First Federal in the top of the second to make it 3-2 before the Big Value onslaught.

Jeff Austin led off the bottom of the second with a single for BVD and Mike Walsh followed with a base hit. Both of them scored when Matthew Saieed reached on a two-base error. Irwin singled and Saieed scored on a wild pitch. A base hit by Sterling Edwards moved Irwin to third and he scored from there on a sacrifice fly by Les Turner. Edwards came in when Kevin Lang singled and Lang scored when Walsh reached on an error.

Irwin, Edwards and Walsh each had three hits for Big Value, with Walsh hitting a home run. None of the First Federal batters had more than one hit.

In the North State League, a game between Union Carbide and the Optimists was called after seven innings with the score tied at 8-8.

Billy Mitchell and Mike Williams currently are the top pitchers on the staff. "They are our only definite starters," Hooks said. "Kevin Adams can also pitch some, and Skip Topping pitched some for Rose this year, but we would like to be able to keep him behind the plate as much as possible."

All of the pitching for the team is right-handed. "Obviously two pitchers are not enough when you are playing three or four games a week," the manager said. "But both are competitive boys and are strong, so hopefully we won't need a lot of relief pitching."

Defensive play could be the strong point for the team. "This may be the strongest part of our game, due to our experience."

Besides having Topping behind the plate as a newcomer, Pitt County finds experience at the other positions. Will Sanderson is back at first, where he saw some action last year. Ronnie Chapman returns at second, and Greg Lee is back at shortstop, giving Pitt County solid defense up the middle. Kevin Adams will be at third.

In the outfield, Nuggie Worthington returns in left, while Mike Shank has moved from right to center. Two newcomers, Marshall Heath and Robert Morehead will be vying for the rightfield position, along with veteran Jeff Aldridge, currently sidelined with an injury.

Roy Briley, a utility infielder, could also see right field action. There are two others expected to join the team once they finish out-of-town schooling: Peter Pace and Jay Wood.

"I was pleased with our hitting in the game Monday night," Hooks said. "It was stronger than I anticipated, but it was still hard to judge since Williamston used so many pitchers. I don't think we'll produce as many runs per game as we did last year, but I think we can get enough to win most of our games."

Pitt County opens its Area I Eastern schedule Friday at 8 p.m. at Harrington Field, hosting Williamston.

Snow Hill In 5-1 Defeat

SMITHFIELD — Johnston County pushed over two runs in the fifth and two more in the eighth to take a 5-1 victory over Snow Hill last night in American Legion exhibition baseball.

The Snow Hill unit was hampered by not having several players present due to other commitments.

Snow Hill got its only runs in the top of the first inning. Colyn Beaman walked and moved up when a pickoff attempt was booted. Mike Chase singled him to third, and Beaman scored on Jay Carraway's hit.

Johnston County came back to score the tying run in the bottom of the first. With two outs, Wayne Brown doubled and scored on Tim Barbour's single.

Johnston County added two more in the fifth. Richard Upton singled and both Paul Sherrill and Brown walked. Jack Wooten singled, scoring Upton and Sherrill.

In the eighth, Johnston County got its other two runs. David Vance reached on an error and Upton walked. Sherrill reached on a fielder's choice, and a hit by Barbour scored two runs.

Carraway led the Snow Hill hitting with two, while Upton and Barbour each had two for Johnston County.

Snow Hill's Area I Eastern League opener with Rocky Mount, set Friday, has been postponed.

Lucama Eliminates Jamesville From 1-A Field; Gains Finals

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Lucama's Les Renfrow cracked out a three-run double in the second inning and powered the Cobras to a 4-2 victory over Jamesville last night at Harrington Field. The victory moved Lucama into the State 1-A baseball finals and ousted the Beaufort-Hyde-Martin champions.

The loss was the first suffered by Jamesville to a 1-A opponent this year. They finished the season on a 20-4 mark, having lost once to 2-A competition, once to 3-A opponents, and once to an out-of-state school of comparable 4-A size.

Assistant Coach Ron Davenport said afterwards that the Bullets apparently were a little nervous about playing the game in spacious Harrington. In addition, there was a large crowd of supporters for both teams, swelling the stands to near half-capacity.

"The team you saw tonight wasn't the Jamesville team that played all year," Davenport said.

After getting out of a minor jam in the first inning, Jamesville put the first run of the game on the board in the bottom of the first.

Toby Holliday led off with a single into center, and Dan Lilley came on to run for him. A passed ball moved Lilley up, and a wild pitch moved him on to third. The ball, bouncing away from the catcher, rolling into the Bullet dugout, and Lilley was awarded another base, scoring the run.

But that was to be it until the sixth inning for the Bullets, who found it difficult to get wood on the ball against Lucama hurler Keith Lucas. The Bullets also chased a number of bad pitches, helping Lucas build up a seven-strike-out game.

The Cobras, meanwhile, moved into the lead in the second inning, scoring three runs. Larry Proctor led off with an infield hit on a high-hopper to second. Charles Curlings followed with a single to left, and a walk to Sandy Johnson loaded the bases.

Jamesville pitcher Trent Ange then got a strikeout and a short fly to get two away, and it appeared he might get out of trouble. But Renfrow lined a ball into left center that went all the way to the fence, scoring all three baserunners, and leaving Renfrow on second with a double.

In the third, Lucama added its insurance run. Jeff Watson popped up to short right, where the rightfielder, first baseman and second baseman gathered under it. The rightfielder finally called the others off, then dropped the ball. As Watson moved on to second on the play, the fielder picked the ball up, and overthrew second, allowing Watson to move on to third.

Proctor walked, and catcher Holliday had him picked off on a steal attempt, but the ball was dropped, leaving both runners safe. Curlings hit a sacrifice fly to score Watson for a 4-1 lead.

Lucama threatened in the fourth, fifth and seventh, but never scored again.

Jamesville left the bases loaded in the bottom of the second, and left men on second base in the fourth, fifth and seventh innings, but to no avail.

Only in the sixth did the Bullets get another run in. Designated hitter Keith Modlin led off the sixth, getting hit by a pitch, and Alan Frazier ran for him. He stole second and moved on to third on an error on the attempted pickoff. Keith Long doubled, scoring Frazier, but the rally ended there.

While Jamesville ends its season with the defeat, Lucama, now 19-6, will be the host team for the State 1-A championships, a best-of-three series, next weekend.

THE OPERA ISN'T over yet, because the fat lady hasn't sung.

That's Washington Bullets coach Dick Motta's way of saying don't count his team out until the final gun. The Bullets, given up for dead by many after falling behind by 15 points in the third quarter Tuesday night, rallied to defeat the Seattle SuperSonics and even their NBA championship series at two games apiece.

The game was a memorable one for the fans who saw it for a number of reasons. For one thing, it was played in front of the largest crowd ever to witness a single professional basketball game, 39,457. Only a doubleheader in the Houston Astrodome has attracted more people, 41,165.

The game was played in the Kingdome, which is to be the SuperSonics home court next season. The team utilized the much-smaller Seattle Center this year and will play the fifth game of the series there Friday night. The Sonics have won their last 21 games in Seattle Center.

An amazing Bullet rally, which sent the game into overtime, was sparked by former North Carolina center Mitch Kupchak. Midway through the third quarter, the Bullets fell behind by 15 points, 85-70. But the Sonics began to miss shots, due to a large extent to their poor selection, and Kupchak's hustling play sparked Washington. He fouled out late in the fourth quarter, however.

The Bullets stormed back to take the lead, and had the final shot with the game tied in regulation, but a superb block by Dennis Johnson sent it into overtime.

The Bullets quickly gained control in the extra period and held off the Sonics to force a trip back to Washington for game six.

Stadium Will Be 64th Largest

The expansion of East Carolina University's Ficklen Stadium from 20,000 seats to 35,000 will make it the 64th largest collegiate stadium in the nation, according to the list of stadiums in the 1978 "World Almanac".

Work on the stadium has been progressing rapidly since the weather has improved this spring. The concrete work is nearing completion and the installation of seats has already begun. In addition, the new press box is shaping up well.

Athletic Director Bill Cain said the construction is moving on schedule and the contractors should have no trouble finishing by their deadline, which is before the first home game next September. "It's looking good, as far as we're concerned," Cain commented.

The expansion will make Ficklen the fourth-largest stadium in the state behind North Carolina's Kenan Stadium (47,000), N. C. State's Carter Stadium (44,000) and Duke's Wallace Wade Stadium (44,000). Wake Forest's Groves Stadium holds 30,000. The largest stadium in the nation is Michigan's stadium, which holds 101,701. Stanford Stadium is second among colleges at 90,000.

Correction

Last week's column on college basketball recruiting incorrectly reported that Kevin Stallings will go to Duke. Stallings will actually attend Minnesota, while 6-5 Vince Taylor of Lexington, Ky. has signed with the Blue Devils.

Sherk Had A Score To Settle

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — As Brenda Goldsmith of San Antonio, Texas, prepared to play Cathy Sherk, long-hitting Canadian from Ontario, in the quarterfinals of the Women's North and South Amateur Golf Tournament today, she had a score to settle.

When they met last August in the U.S. Amateur semifinals in Cincinnati, Sherk scored a resounding 9 and 8 victory. She won the first eight holes, halved the ninth and ended the rout by winning the 10th.

Goldsmith didn't know it at the time, but she was playing with a broken rib, suffered earlier that week. She had assumed it was a muscle pull.

"I got this far and I want to prove to the Curtis Cup selectors that I won't be a quitter," she said then of her decision to continue despite playing in pain.

She entered a hospital the next day and played no golf for almost three months. However, she did impress the Cup selectors and is on the team that meets the British in Rye, N.Y., in two months.

She scored two victories Wednesday as the field was whittled to eight. Two more rounds today on the 5,850-yard No. 2 course at the Pinehurst Country Club will be followed by the 18-hole finals Friday.

Other quarterfinal matches today sent Connie Day of Cleveland, Tenn., against Laurie Rinker of Stuart, Fla.; Lucille Ray of Fort Mill, S.C., against Curtis Cup player Lancy Smith of Snyder, N.Y.; and 17-year-old Bari Brandwynne of Reno, Nev., against Lori Garback.

Ellis Valentine Vents Anger By Slapping Homer, Cub Pitcher

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

Montreal Expos outfielder Ellis Valentine sounded a little like the character played by Peter Finch in the movie "Network," who stuck his head defiantly out the window and hollered: "I'm mad as hell, and I'm not going to take it anymore."

In the movie, Finch vented his frustration by threatening to commit suicide before millions on national television. Valentine vented his by smacking a three-run homer in Montreal's 9-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs, then smacking Cubs catcher Dave Rader before 18,647 spectators at Olympic Stadium Wednesday night.

"I'm just tired of being thrown at," said Valentine. "The last nine or 10 games, they've been throwing at our hitters. I'm fed up, and I'm not taking it."

Small wonder. With Wednesday night's victory, the Expos have won seven of their past 10 games, outscoring the opposition 58-22. They have had 7-, 9-, 11- and 15-run games in that string.

Wednesday's victory moved Montreal within one-half game of Chicago, still leading the National League East.

Valentine's homer, his sixth, came in the Expos' four-run first inning. When he came to bat in the fifth, Cubs pitcher Dennis Lamp, 1-5, threw Valentine two balls, both low and inside.

When Valentine went after Rader, both benches cleared. The ruckus, however, was soon stopped. Valentine was ejected and no one was hurt.

Left-hander Rudy May, 5-5, scattered five hits for the victory. The Expos also scored four unearned runs in that fifth inning, two on second baseman Manny Trillo's throwing error, one on Andre Dawson's single, and another on Rader's throwing error.

Pirates 2, Phils 1
Phil Garner scored the winning run when Phils pitcher Randy Lerch, 3-5, balked him home in the first inning in an odd game in which none of the runs was batted in. John Candelaria, 5-6, got the victory.

Reds 10, Braves 4
Pete Rose and George Foster each homered in the Reds' five-run third inning, and Mike Lum added a solo shot in the ninth to give Tom Seaver, 5-4, his fourth straight victory. Seaver went eight innings and yielded nine hits, including a two-run homer to Biff Pocoroba.

Cards 5, Mets 4
Bob Forsch, 7-3, gave up six hits in seven innings before getting relief help from Buddy Schultz, and the Cards extended their winning streak to three games. St. Louis scored twice in the first inning when John

Road Atlanta Hosts Event

ATLANTA (AP) — The prestigious International Race of Champions will be held next year at Road Atlanta and a NASCAR Grand National stock car race will be held there in 1980, says the track's new owner, Don Whittington.

The announcement Wednesday that a NASCAR race would be held at Road Atlanta in 1980 puts the track on a collision course with Atlanta International Raceway, which has held stock car racing rights in this area for 19 years.

"The NASCAR thing will happen in two years," said Whittington. "I have talked to (NASCAR head) Bill France, and we have agreed we can work it out within two years. We can't have a NASCAR race at Road Atlanta until we make improvements in crowd control and access."

Atlanta International Raceway officials weren't keen on the idea of competition.

"From our standpoint in our expansion we have gone through, we have guarded very closely against infringing on other people's racing territory," said Bobby Batson, an AIR vice president. "By that I mean Atlanta has excellent facilities for road, oval and drag racing. It has been our goal to bring in events suitable for oval racing (only)."

"As far as Road Atlanta having a Grand National Race, I would have to talk to NASCAR officials before making a comment on it. We have absolute faith and confidence in NASCAR that they would not want to have competition between two tracks located so close together. I don't think Pete Rozelle would want two NFL franchises that close together," Batson said.

The International Race of Champions is a series of races involving the best Formula One, Indianapolis, stock car and sports car drivers, all driving identical machines built by the same people.

In the past it has been a series of 100-milers, beginning at Michigan International Raceway, continuing at the Riverside, Calif., course and concluding in February at Daytona International Speedway. The winning driver receives $50,000 and all the races are nationally televised.

Tully Ponders Vault Record

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Mike Tully sat in the Hayward Field stands and watched the sun-drenched athletes warm up for the NCAA Outdoor Track and Field Championships, what he calls "the weirdest meet in the United States."

Tully, 21, has known his share of weirdness lately.

Two weeks ago, about 40 miles up the road from where the NCAA meets today, the UCLA senior experienced his most frustrating day in pole vaulting.

He just shakes his head when he talks about that day in Corvallis at the Pacific-8 Championships when he may or may not have set a world record at 18-8 1/2.

"I don't know if it will count or not," he said. "I've heard 10 different stories."

What happened was this: Tully started at 17 feet and didn't miss. After clinching first place, he asked that the bar be set at 18-8 1/2, one-half inch above Dave Roberts' world mark.

Tully made it, and as he was walking away with his fists held high, the bar dropped to the ground. Track officials say the wind blew it off. Tully says the officials knocked it off.

Tully wouldn't predict a first-place finish in the NCAA meet, let alone a world record, even though he is the lone 18-footer in a field struggling a foot below. He also cleared 18-2 1/2 in a dual meet here this spring.

But Tully also looks out at the Hayward Field pole vault pit and remembers the two world records set there — by Roberts in 1976 in the Olympic Trials and by Bob Seagren in 1972.

Houk Looks For Short And Long Man

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Ralph Houk knows the long and the short of it...and he'd rather have one of each. Still, he'll settle for a refugee from the bullpen if it'll keep the Detroit Tigers together.

"One outstanding long man and one outstanding short man win pennants — not starters. And I know because I've been there," the Tigers beleaguered manager said Tuesday night after Milt Wilcox, a reliever when the season began and counted on as the Tigers' "long" man, scattered eight Milwaukee hits and rode Aurelio Rodriguez's two runs batted in to a 3-0 victory over the Brewers.

The shutout by Wilcox, 4-2, was the fifth of his big-league career and his second with Detroit. He stepped into the starting rotation April 25 and has since spun four complete-game victories.

Could Wilcox be the new ace? "I don't think this club really has an ace at the moment," he said, shrugging off the suggestion. "Our ace is in Florida, trying to get his arm in shape."

White Sox 17, Angels 2
Chicago lambasted the Angels with an 11-run fifth inning, highlighted by bases-loaded doubles by Chet Lemon and Bill Nahorodny. Jorge Orta added to the 22-hit White Sox assault by getting four singles and a homer, driving in four runs. Almost overlooked in the offense was Steve Stone's five-hit pitching for Chicago.

Orioles 3, Yankees 2
New York struck for a pair of second-inning runs on Chris Chambliss' double, a walk to Cliff Johnson and Paul Blair's double into the left field corner. Ken Singleton hit a game-tying homer in the fourth, then Baltimore scored the winning run without a hit in the fifth. Rick Dempsey reached first when third baseman Graig Nettles dropped his line drive for an error and Dempsey came around on a stolen base and two Ed Figueroa wild pitches.

Blue Jays 6, Red Sox 2
Toronto sent veteran southpaw Bill Lee packing with a six-run first inning and Jim Clancy breezed to his second straight victory with a 7-3-inning, eight-strikeout performance.

Otto Velez started the Blue Jays' uprising with a two-run double and Rick Bosetti ended it the same way.

Royals 8, Mariners 3
Frank White and Amos Otis slammed successive home runs to open the fifth inning for Kansas City and Paul Splittorff scattered 11 Seattle hits as the Royals climbed within one-half game of idle, first-place Oakland in the West Division.

With Lopez Missing, Others Have Chance

TORONTO (AP) — Now that Nancy Lopez isn't in town, the scramble for the top prize can begin in earnest.

Lopez, the leading money winner this year on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour with $96,448, is not playing in this week's tournament, which began today on the hilly par 73, 6,265-yard St. George's Golf and Country Club course.

Although the tournament has $100,000 in prize money — $15,000 to the winner — Lopez will not be on hand to shoot for her fourth consecutive LPGA victory. Lopez is honoring a commitment to play an exhibition match with men's professional Tom Watson.

So with Lopez away, the girls will now play.

One who has a good shot at the top prize is Penny Pulz, the No. 2 money-winner with $54,916.

Although Pulz, 25, a native of Australia who makes her home in California, has not won a tournament this year, she has been close many times, with a second place in the Winners Circle tournament and fourth-place finishes in the last two events.

To say that Pulz has improved her game would be an understatement. Her career winnings over her first four years on the tour amounted to $44,932 and she surprised that after four months this year.

"Sure it's the best start of my career," Pulz said Wednesday.

"I've just been a more consistent player than in the past."

"I'm driving a lot better and am hitting more greens and consequently am getting a better opportunity to make birdie."

Sooner or later, however, the name Lopez pops into the conversation.

"To admit that you're not glad that she's not here this week would be crazy," Pulz said with a laugh. "Seriously, everybody on the tour loves Nancy. She's just great for the game."

"However, she's on such a hot streak $3 it's almost scary. When you play against her you have to keep in the back of your mind the thought that she is human and that sooner or later she'll cool off."

Others to be considered this week are JoAnne Carner, the winner in 1975 when the tournament was last played at St. George's. Carner won in a play-off against Carol Mann.

Kemper Golfers Keep An Eye On The Sky

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — With the first round of the Kemper Open golf tournament set for today, some of the golfers on the 7,160-yard, par-72 Quail Hollow Country Club course will keep an eye on the sky.

Not that bad weather is predicted for the $300,000, 72-hole event. Indeed, the tournament has a history of sunny skies and hot, muggy weather was the outlook for this year's competition. But weather is definitely a factor.

"There are a whole lot of people who could win it," said Joe Inman, who won the Kemper Open in 1976.

He added, "Bad weather cuts down on the number of people who can win because you have to be so strong to play well then. But when it's hot and dry, distance is not as much a factor."

"Plus, this is the kind of course on which you can make up for a mediocre round. You can shoot 74 one day and then come back and shoot 65. It's not tight around the greens. You're not standing up there with a two iron in your hand looking at water on the left and bunkers on the right and scared to hit. You've got big greens and the bunkers aren't that hard to play out of so you can just go ahead and fire away."

Inman joins a crowded field of players to watch in the Kemper Open. Defending champion Tom Weiskopf is back, along with Lee Trevino, Gary Player, Gene Littler, Arnold Palmer, Ray Floyd and Hale Irwin. Absent among the top name players are Jack Nicklaus, Tom Watson and Hubert Green.

Palmer won't have far to go for the tournament — he owns a house on the 15th fairway at Quail Hollow Country Club.

A year ago, the fairway behind Palmer's house looked like one huge divot, as much of the course showed the effects of a harsh winter.

All fairways were lined off for the Kemper last year, and inside the lines, the pros were allowed to lift, clean and place their ball anywhere they could spot a speck of grass.

The year, however, grass is back. Only the landing area for drives on the first hole was white-lined.

How They Voted In Washington

ROLL CALL REPORT

How They Voted
WASHINGTON—Here's how area House members were recorded on major roll call votes May 18 through May 24. There were no votes in the Senate because of a filibuster.

ALASKAN LANDS Rejected, 141 for and 251 against, an amendment to reduce by five million acres the Alaskan wilderness to be preserved in its natural state by the federal government. The amendment was proposed to HR 39, later passed and sent to the Senate. The bill puts about 102 million acres in preserves such as the National Park System, National Wildlife Refuge, Wild and Scenic River System and the National Wilderness Preservation System. Committee and floor consideration of the bill has provoked a classic environment vs. development confrontation.

Rep. Don Young, R-Alaska, the sponsor, said: "I am sorry to say that statehood did not terminate our status as a colony... the pending legislation is the grossest example of the type of situation forced on the citizens of Alaska by this Congress and this government for years."

Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., an opponent, said that in granting statehood the federal government allotted 105 million acres to Alaska. "But we are not going to give large areas in the middle of a new national park (to Alaska). This consists of 14 acres and five million acres."

Members voting "yea" favored reducing the protected federal acres by five million acres.

Reps. Walter Jones, D-1, James Martin, R-9, and James Broyhill, R-10, voted "yea."

Reps. L. H. Fountain, D-2, Charles Whitley, D-3, Ike Andrews, D-1, Stephen Neal, E-5, Richardson Preyer, D-6, Charles Rose, D-7, W. G. Hefner, D-8, and Lamar Gudger, D-11, noted "nay."

DEFENSE BUDGET Rejected, 115 for and 287 against, an attempt to replace a defense bill approved by the Armed Services Committee with a less-expensive substitute that was almost identical to the defense procurement bill sent to Capitol Hill by the Pentagon and White House. Following this vote, the House passed and sent to the Senate the committee-approved version. The bill (HR 10929) authorizes the Pentagon to spend $37.9 billion on weapons and research in fiscal 1979, which begins next October.

The price tag of the substitute was $35.5 billion, roughly the amount recommended by the House a few weeks ago when it approved the fiscal 1979 "target" budget.

Rep. Bob Carr, D-Mich., sponsor of the substitute, criticized the Armed Services Committee for approving "in a Christmashike attitude" a bill that "is not in step and in tune with the House as a whole."

Rep. Robert Sikes, D-Fla., an opponent, said: "The time in today's world of strange forces how much heart and guts America will have for that confrontation. The easy way would be compromise. Then compromise again—and again—until all that American stands for is gone."

Members voting "yea" favored the defense cut.
Rose voted "yea."
Jones, Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Hefner, Martin, Broyhill and Gudger voted "nay."

GI'S IN KOREA Rejected, 142 for and 247 against, an amendment to thwart the Administration plan to gradually withdraw all 32,000 U.S. ground troops in South Korea. The amendment permitted a withdrawal of only 6,000 troops. It was proposed to HR 10929, the fiscal 1979 defense procurement bill later passed and sent to the Senate (see vote above).

Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y., the sponsor, said that "if we were to remove all our infantry forces from Korea... the temptation would be very great for (the North Koreans) to attack."

Rep. Stephen Solarz, D-N.Y., an opponent, said that after the 32,000 troops are gone "we will still have a military presence in South Korea because (Carter) is not planning to withdraw our air presence or our naval presence with South Korean and surrounding waters."

Members voting "nay" favored the troop withdrawal plan.

Fountain, Martin, Broyhill and Gudger voted "yea"; Jones, Whitley, Neal, Preyer and Hefner voted "nay"; Andrews and Rose did not vote.

Food-For-Thought On Paradise

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — If taxes didn't wipe you out, you may be planning a summer vacation overseas. It's with fine timing, then, that PBS now offers you a tourist show, "Who Pays for Paradise?"

But the program, sent to PBS stations tonight (check local listings), isn't the usual jazz advising you where to go, what to see, how to dress and what happens if you partake of the local waters.

Instead, "Paradise" is a food-for-thought hour on the bad effects of tourism in the Caribbean and what the growth of tourism is doing to the so-called Third World nations in Africa.

Be warned this proceeding is gloomy. Its theme:

The natives have met the enemy and they are us — and the Swiss, Swedes, British, French and Germans that our organizers profitably pack off in herds to exotic locales of surf, sun and play.

But the real villains, it suggests, are multinational firms that do the herd-packing and earn huge revenues they keep, with little of the tour loot reaching the people who need it most — the natives.

Early in the show, made by Boston's WGBH-TV as one of its "World" documentaries, George Odum, a St. Lucia journalist, says: "It is a well-known fact in Caribbean tourism that about 80 cents of every ... tourist dollar is repatriated and sent back to the investors overseas."

But no proof is offered, a flaw repeated when similar statements are made in the African nations — the Ivory Coast, Senegal and Gambia — that the program inspects.

And when narrator Lynette Saxe asserts that "multinational corporations dominate tourism in the Third World," only one company is identified, only one bill of particulars is presented.

You mostly get sad, repeated and obvious contrasts of the grinding poverty of the natives with the goodies enjoyed by vacationing white hordes at the luxury encampments they rarely leave.

It is noted that Third World nations offer tour moguls great tax concessions because local poverty is great, any revenue, however small, is welcomed and hopes abound that "tourist facilities will attract other investment."

But after serving up a repetitive list of complaints about how the natives don't benefit from tourism, how tourism is warping national values, "Paradise" offers little else.

No tourists are queried, no tour moguls asked if their firms should show more social conscience, no government officials grilled on why foreign tour firms aren't made to put much more of their earnings back in the area whence it came.

It makes "Who Pays for Paradise" a show that raises an important issue, then gradually poops out by failing to come up with facts, figures and answers from those in charge.

You should see it. It does at least offer food for thought. But the fare is feeble, and it shouldn't have been.

Former Israeli internationalist Moshe Katz gave a fine exhibition of card-reading to bring home his four heart contract on this hand from the Tel Aviv segment of the Philip Morris European Cup competition.

We report the bidding as it occurred at the table, though we find the action of some of the participants rather strange. Note that a four spade contract by West would depend only on his being able to limit his diamond and spade losers to two. Why West did not try four spades after his partner had shown values is something of a mystery to us. As the cards lie, four spades might have failed by a trick, but that certainly was better than what actually happened.

West got his side off to a good start when he led a low diamond. Declarer captured the queen with the ace and led a trump to the ten and ace. East continued with a diamond, and the king and jack completed the defensive book. West exited with the king of spades to the ace, and declarer was faced with the enormous problem of avoiding a club loser.

Declarer counted West for six or seven spades (after all, he did rebid a broken suit at the three-level) and he had shown up with four diamonds. Declarer saw that he had a chance if West held a singleton nine or ten of clubs—twice as probable as a singleton queen, especially in view of East's two club bid.

Accordingly, declarer led the jack of clubs from dummy. East covered and declarer took the ace. He was delighted to see West drop the nine. A trump to the jack confirmed the soundness of declarer's analysis, and now all that remained was to hope that West's club was singleton.

Declarer led a club and finessed the eight. When this held, the contract was home. Katz cashed the king of clubs and ruffed his remaining club in dummy. His king-queen-seven of trumps took the last three tricks.

Improved, Long-Range Missile For Russians

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A new long-range missile now deployed by Russia is more accurate than any previous nuclear weapon aimed from submarines against the United States, according to U.S. intelligence officials.

The SSN18 can hurl three warheads at widely separated targets and has sufficient range to enjoy "a degree of sanctuary" from U.S. anti-submarine forces, the Pentagon says. Naval intelligence considers the SSN18 bigger and more accurate than the earlier generation SSN8, which can loft only a single warhead. The new missile has been test-fired with multiple warheads over a 4,700-mile range and has traveled up to 5,750 miles with a single warhead. This means SSN18s could strike targets in the United States from Delta submarines stationed relatively close to Soviet home ports. The range of both the SSN18 and the SSN8 is about 1,800 miles longer than that of the submarine-fired U.S. Poseidon missile. However, each Poseidon carries 10 warheads that can be targeted separately. The intelligence report on the SSN18's deployment in Delta-class submarines comes while President Carter and national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski are voicing concern about increasing Soviet armaments.

NATO heads of government decided here Wednesday to modernize their defenses, but Defense Secretary Harold Brown said he doubts the move will compensate for the massive buildup by the Soviet-led Warsaw Pact. The communist countries have taken a commanding lead over NATO in the number of combat-ready troops, tanks and tactical combat aircraft, he said.

The SSN18 is the third major Soviet missile to become combat-ready in the last six months. The Russians also are working on a bigger missile-firing submarine called the Typhoon but little is known about it, U.S. intelligence says.

The United States trails Russia in developing submarine-launched missiles with a range in the 4,500-mile class. The U.S. Trident multiple-warhead missile is expected to be combat-ready in October 1979, replacing Poseidon missiles in 10 submarines.

New National Smoker Study:

Important News For 100's Smokers:

Smokers rate taste of MERIT 100's equal to —or better than—leading high tar 100's.

Can low tar MERIT 100's—packed with 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco—measure up to the taste expectations of high tar 100's smokers?

Read the results from a new, nationwide research effort involving smokers who actually taste-tested MERIT 100's against leading high tar 100's.

Results Endorse MERIT Breakthrough

Confirmed: Majority of 100's smokers rate MERIT 100's taste equal to—or better than—leading high tar 100's tested! Cigarettes having up to 70% more tar.

Confirmed: Majority of 100's smokers confirm taste satisfaction of low tar MERIT 100's.

Detailed interviews were also conducted with current MERIT 100's smokers.

Confirmed: 85% of MERIT 100's smokers say it was an "easy switch" from high tar brands.

Confirmed: Overwhelming majority of MERIT 100's smokers say their former high tar brands weren't missed!

Confirmed: 9 out of 10 MERIT 100's smokers not considering other brands.

First Major Alternative To High Tar Smoking

MERIT 100's has proven conclusively that it not only delivers the flavor of high tar brands—but continues to satisfy!

This ability to satisfy over long periods of time could be the most important evidence to date that MERIT 100's is what it claims to be: The first major alternative to high tar smoking.

Kings: 8 mg "tar," 0.6 mg nicotine av. per cigarette, FTC Report Aug. '77 100's: 11 mg "tar," 0.8 mg nicotine av. per cigarette by FTC Method.
