Morganton City Manager Accepts Greenville Post

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
Mayor Percy Cox announced today that Edward A. (Ed) Wyatt, who is presently serving as city manager in Morganton, has accepted the post as Greenville's new city manager.

In announcing that Wyatt, 36, has agreed to take the city manager's position here, Cox said that the new manager will assume his duties "somewhere around July 15."

According to the mayor, the City Council was unanimous in its choice of Wyatt for the job that is currently being held here by City Engineer Charlie Holliday.

Holliday agreed to serve as city manager on an interim basis following the resignation of James E. Caldwell in late March.

Cox reported that Wyatt will receive a salary of $31,000 here.

A native of Petersburg, Va., the new city manager earned his B.S. degree in business from Virginia Polytechnic Institute in 1964 and received the Master of Commerce degree in 1969 from the University of Richmond. He also holds the M.A. degree in political science from Appalachian State University.

Wyatt assumed his duties in Morganton, a city of 16,000, in 1973 after serving from 1970-73 as city manager of Washington in Beaufort County.

As the chief executive officer in Morganton, he was responsible for the city's annual $10.5 million budget and 245 full-time and 33 CETA employees.

During his tenure there, Wyatt has been involved in several areas, including: establishment of a Department of Planning and Community Development; participating in CD bloc grant funds; completion of urban renewal projects; development of city-wide miniparks; and thoroughfare planning and implementation.

In addition, he administered completion of a $10.5 million sewer program and $1 million water program in the city.

As city manager, he also initiated several activities, including an annual report, services pamphlet, monthly newspaper column, information center, and an organizational policy of solving citizen complaints.

Emphasis, it was pointed out, was placed on employee relations by initiating personnel orientation and input sessions, supervisors management seminars, newsletter, and comprehensive improvements of employee benefits and programs.

Prior to serving in Washington, Wyatt held the post of assistant to the city manager in Petersburg, Va. from 1967 until 1970.

Wyatt was listed in the "Outstanding Young Men of America" in 1977 and "Who's Who in the South and Southeast" in 1978. He received "Key Man" recognition in 1971-72 with the Washington Jaycees.

An Episcopalian, he was involved in the United Fund in Morganton and was a member of the Morganton Rotary Club.

Wyatt and his wife, Regina, have two sons, Edward and Stephen.

Cox said that the city received approximately 100 applications for the city manager's job and six candidates were invited here for interviews. The application review process was handled by a screening committee of the City Council, he noted, which reported regularly to the full Council.

County Agrees To U.S. 264 Request

Pitt County Commissioners this morning, at the request of Farmville Mayor Sara Albritton, agreed to adopt a resolution citing the Farmville community's desire to have the present five-lane section of U.S. 264 at Farmville included as a part of the highway improvement project between Wilson and Greenville.

Mrs. Albritton told the board, "Farmville is united in our efforts to keep the improved section of the present highway a part of any improvement of the Wilson to Greenville link.

"This is what we want," she emphasized. "We don't feel like you were speaking for Farmville at all." Mrs. Albritton said referring to a resolution presented at a Department of Transportation hearing last week in Kinston, in which the Board of Commissioners made no reference to the location of a route for the improved roadway.

Commissioners agreed to study several proposals made by Ned Wolf, representing the Pitt County Hunger Task Force, designed to facilitate the issuance of food stamps to persons qualifying for them in the county.

Wolf, who said some 8,100 persons received food stamps in Pitt in April, suggested there are "13,000 others not receiving them that would qualify."

Wolf suggested sending food stamp workers to the various satellite health clinics to certify food stamp recipients, establish an appointment system so persons applying would not have to wait in line so long, hire a full-time outreach coordinator, coordinate outreach with health department workers, and assign food stamp workers specific areas of the county so they may work with the same recipients month after month.

Commissioners also agreed to study a request from the Pitt County Livestock Association for $45,000 to help fund construction of a livestock arena at the new Pitt County Fair site.

Frankie Singleton, association president, told the board that his group hopes to build an 80 by 100 foot metal building at the new fair site.

Carter Urges 'Reform'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter today told senators leading the fight for labor law revisions that he remained committed to the legislation, which he called "both needed and moderate."

The Senate, returning from a week-long recess today, faces continuation of a Republican-led filibuster on the legislation.

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, who attended the 10-minute meeting with Carter in the White House Cabinet Room, planned this afternoon to file the first motion to limit the debate, setting up a vote on that cloture petition Wednesday.

Carter said he called the meeting "to reaffirm my own commitment to passing labor law reform." He said the bill was "constructive for the future well-being of employers and employees."

"There are many elements in the present law that are not enforced adequately," he said.

The president said there was "unwarranted delay in settling labor disputes" and that as the result of technicalities in the law such disputes can be carried on for months or years.

He also said there was a need to insure "punishment for those who violate our labor relations."

Sen. Harrison Williams, D-N.J., chairman of Human Resources Committee, said after the meeting that he doubted the first vote on the cloture motion would be successful but that the filibuster would be broken "certainly by the end of next week." The petition requires the votes of 60 senators for passage.

The filibuster was in its 10th day today.

they hear as elected officials in much the same way as directors listen to shareholders."

According to Howard, "whether it involves running a city or a corporation, the manager and directors both need to know what the others are thinking...and doing."

He pointed out that the reason "Greenville wanted the Council-Manager form was to get politics out of the system. Politics shouldn't enter into it."

Discussing personnel functions, Howard said that "if there is a lot of public opinion about a particular employee of the city, you should have

Clears Way For Escapee's Return

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today cleared the way for New York authorities to return Joan Little to North Carolina.

Apparently rejecting arguments that Miss Little's life would be endangered in North Carolina's custody, the nation's highest court turned down a request that her extradition be postponed until her lawyers could file a formal appeal.

Miss Little now faces return to a North Carolina prison to finish serving a term on a breaking-and-entering conviction and possible additional time on escape charges.

Deputy Attorney General Howard Kramer said it would probably be late this week before Miss Little was returned to North Carolina.

"There's always a slight delay because any denial of an order by the U.S. Supreme Court has to be transmitted to the proper authorities in New York so that they know it's okay for North Carolina authorities to come and get Miss Little. After that, it's just a question of working her into the extradition schedule."

Miss Little, who is black, became the focal point of civil rights and women's rights activists in 1975 when she stood trial on charges of murdering a Beaufort County, N.C., jail guard.

She said the guard, Clarence Alligood, attempted to sexually assault her and that she stabbed him with an icepick in self-defense.

She was acquitted after a two-month trial that attracted international attention but was later imprisoned on an unrelated breaking-and-entering conviction.

Last Oct. 15, Miss Little escaped from the North Carolina Correction Center for Women near Raleigh.

She was arrested in Brooklyn, N.Y., last Dec. 6.

In asking the Supreme Court to block her extradition, Miss Little's lawyers argued that "there is a plan or conspiracy on the part of various officials of the state of North Carolina to murder her should she be returned."

North Carolina officials have denied that there is any such conspiracy.

The lawyers said they should be allowed to present evidence to back up their allegations. They asked the justices to postpone the extradition until they consider a formal appeal aimed at forcing a lower court to review that evidence.

"Petitioner is not asking that her serious and shocking allegations be accepted at face value by this or any other court," lawyers William Kunstler and Jerry Paul said.

"She seeks only the opportunity to present her proof so that a rational and informed judgment can be made as to whether to return her to North Carolina."

Toddler Hero

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — James Rackemann is only 2 years old but he is already a hero.

Fire officials credit the toddler with saving his family Sunday after fire broke out in their west side home.

Fire Lt. Donald Graston commended the child for "discovering the fire and alerting the rest of the family to the danger."

Four members of his family were injured escaping from the house, but fireman said none of the injuries was serious.

Helen Gaddie, 70, the tot's grandmother and owner of the one-story house said James, who was asleep in his parent's bedroom, probably was awakened by the fire's smoke or heat, which she said was intense.

The little boy's screams wakened his parents, Gene and Cheryl Rackemann, who grabbed him and escaped through the bedroom window Mrs. Gaddie and James' 7-year-old brother, Christopher, escaped through a bathroom window.

THEATRICAL MAKEUP

Is there any place in this area that carries theatrical makeup? I read an article in a Raleigh newspaper last year shortly before Halloween which described a "clinic" held at a Raleigh store for those who wished to make themselves up, but good, for Halloween. I would love to do something similar with my kindergarten class and thought I'd check in plenty of time to get the necessary supplies for next fall. B. T.

Hotline knows of no store here that stocks theatrical makeup, though there may be one that we failed to check. If not, perhaps some will give it a try before next fall. It sounds like fun — for Halloween or any time.

Perhaps some Clown Alley member or member of the ECU Drama Department faculty can provide the name of a supplier if any store is interested.

Council Members Concur On Role Assigned To City Manager Post

Second of Two Parts

"I feel that the council-manager form of government is exactly like running a major corporation," commented Councilman John Howard, "where you have a hired president and a board of directors that hire that president. It's the president's job to carry out the policies of the board of directors."

Howard, a six-term veteran, said that he feels daily operations of the city "should be entirely in the manager's prerogative. The council should keep the manager apprised of what input to the manager and then leave the decision up to him."

The Council hires the manager, city clerk and city attorney, he said, with everybody else at city hall "working for the manager."

According to the councilman, the council should have no direct communication with any employee of the city.

Summing up his view of the local government, Howard observed that the city manager is the overseer of day to day operations and decisions relating to carrying out day to day work.

"General policy is set by the Council for him (manager) to follow," he added.

Council member Judy Greene said she considered the city manager as the administrative head of the city with the council having the responsibility for hiring the manager and working with him.

Mrs. Greene related that "if we have a complaint or need certain types of information, we go to him. Any time we have a complaint at city hall, we go to the city manager and let him handle it through channels."

According to Mrs. Greene,

Sheltered Workshop Is Given Accreditation

The Eastern Carolina Sheltered Workshop and Vocational Rehabilitation Center here has received a three-year accreditation from the Commission on Accreditation of Rehabilitation Facilities.

Howard G. Dawkins, executive director of the Sheltered Workshop, was informed of the accreditation in a letter from commission executive director, Alan H. Toppel.

In his letter, Toppel pointed out, "It is a pleasure to inform you that your facility has successfully met high standards of performance and has been accredited for its programs of vocational development and work activity" for a three-year period.

Toppel, who forwarded a copy of the accreditation survey report, told Dawkins, "Everyone involved in your facility can rightfully be proud of the unique distinction of being accredited."

He added, "We commend you for your performance which has resulted in accreditation, and your constant efforts to improve the quality of your program."

The Sheltered Workshop also received letters of commendation from Congressman Walter B. Jones, Governor Jim Hunt, and U.S. Senators Robert Morgan and Jesse Helms.

According to Dawkins, the new accreditation is the result of "five years of hard work and planning by the entire staff" of the workshop.

He reported that the local facility is the only non-profit workshop in North Carolina and one of six rehabilitation facilities accredited in the state.

"Through these advances in technology, programming, staff buildings, etc., we are able now to provide topnotch program services for those with a disability," Dawkins commented.

The survey report noted, "The governing body and the staff are commended for outstanding community involvement and relations. The Division of Vocational Rehabilitation representatives spoke highly of not only the high quality services offered by the facility, but also the facility's exceptional involvement in the community as a whole."

Arrest Man On Murder Charge

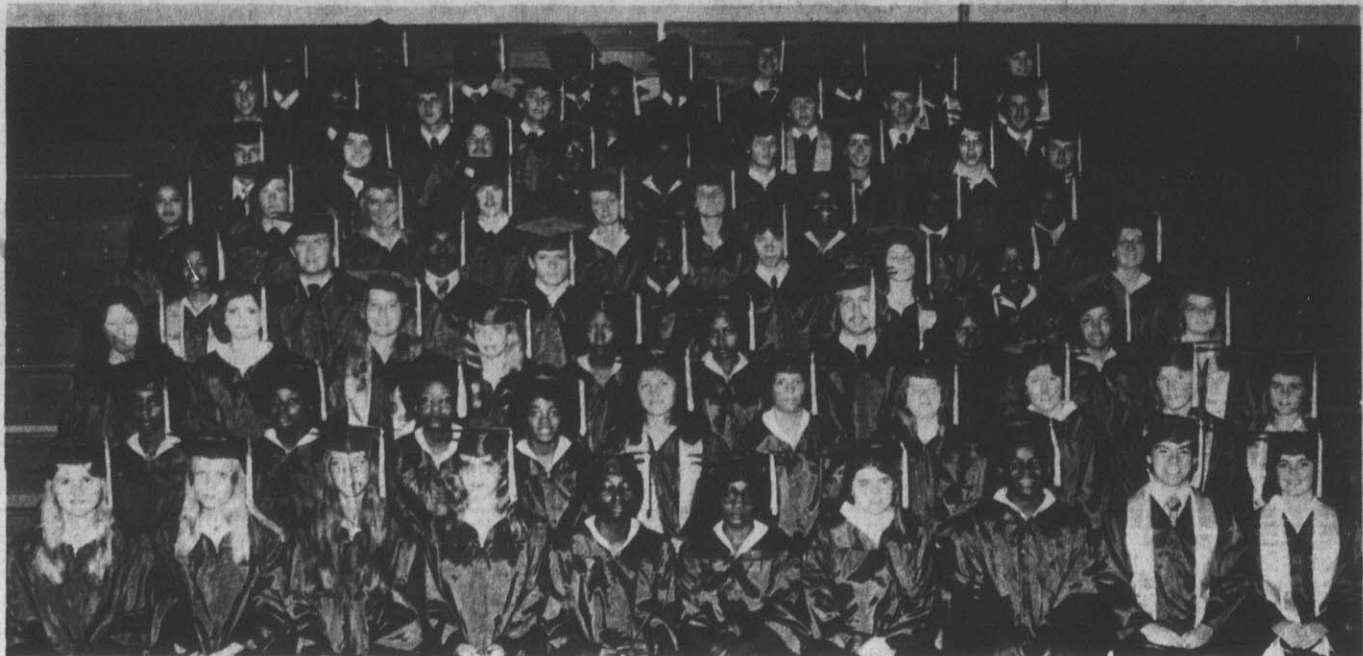

Greenville Police Saturday night arrested Lee Arthur Wooten, 32 of 702B Imperial St. on murder charges following an 11:25 incident at his home.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Wooten allegedly shot 37-year-old Leroy Hart of Darden Drive one time in the neck with a .22 caliber pistol after someone began playing with Wooten's injured foot.

Cannon said Hart, who was staying at the Wooten home, was found by officers on the kitchen floor.

Utilities Commission Public Staff Said Flop

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Almost a year after it was created, the consumer-advocate Public Staff of the North Carolina Public Utilities Commission is described by environmental and consumer groups as a flop.

"It's an absolute disaster," said Jesse C. Riley of Carolina

Environmental Study Group in Charlotte, often a public witness before the commission. "I think those guys should be on the utilities' payroll."

David H. Martin, president of the Conservation Council of North Carolina, and Thomas C. Lominac, president of the consumer-oriented Wake Citizens for Utility Reform, an affiliate of the Carolina Action organization, also criticized the Public Staff, although not as sharply as Riley.

The Public Staff was set up by the 1977 General Assembly to represent consumers in utility matters. It has about 90 employees, three-fifths of the old Utilities Commission staff.

They include attorneys, accountants and engineers. The rest of the old staff still works for the commission.

Consumer and environmental groups are critical of the Public Staff on three major issues:

—They contend that its projections of future demand for power are too high.

—They say the staff has underestimated the potential of solar power and conservation.

—Many of them are vehemently opposed to the staff's stance in favor of nuclear power.

The Public Staff's projections for power demands are higher than estimates by both Carolina Power & Light Co. and Duke Power Co. The Public Staff has recommended that the two utilities step up their construction of new power plants.

Interviews with utilities executives and attorneys produced comments ranging from mildly critical to moderately complimentary.

"It worked out better than we expected," said William H. Grigg, senior vice president of Duke Power. "I think they've made a contribution."

But Stanley Ragone, president of Virginia Electric & Power Co., which provides service to several northeastern North Carolina counties, criticized the staff for its "lack of experience."

Blacks Gain More Posts

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Voter Education Project released figures Saturday indicating that 757 black candidates ran for public office across the South last year and that 68 percent of them — mostly incumbents — were winners.

"We still have not attained representation proportionate to the minority population in many communities throughout the South," said Vivian Malone Jones, the VEP director.

"Blacks comprise 20.4 percent of the South's population, but hold less than 3 percent of the total number of elective offices," she said.

J. Stanley Alexander, research director for the Atlanta-based VEP, said black victories at the polls were concentrated in the lower city council and county offices, where there were the most openings and the most candidates. He said, for instance, that only five blacks ran for congressional seats, all of them losing, and that only eight of 17 black candidates for state House seats were successful last year.

Alexander said a solid majority of the blacks running for mayor — 37 of 58 — were elected in various cities across the South, and that blacks won 390 of 551 city council and 19 of 30 county commission seats they sought. He said VEP figures indicated 62 of the 78 blacks who ran for school board seats were successful.

Seize 20 Tons Of Marijuana

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Three men were to go before a federal magistrate today after the Coast Guard said they were arrested on a shrimp boat loaded with 20 tons of marijuana worth an estimated $14 million.

Those being held were identified as Bert Erwin, 23, address unknown; James Brogle, 27, of Ft. Myers, Fla.; and Robert Chester, 28, of Webster, N.C.

The boat they were on, Adeline Marie, was seized Saturday about 65 miles south of Southwest Pass by a Coast Guard cutter on routine fisheries patrol. The hull of the boat listed its port as Mobile, Ala.

Young Adult Conservation Corps For North Carolina Is Announced

A $1.7 million Young Adult Conservation Corps project for North Carolina has been announced by Howard N. Lee, Secretary of Natural Resources and Community Development.

The federal financed program provides for one year of employment for 176 young adults, 16-23, to assist local and state government on conservation, water and recreation projects.

Eighteen local government recreation departments will receive about $50,000 each for five persons. Burlington will receive about $70,000 for seven persons. Additional funds will support projects at five state parks. There will be 10 jobs at four state parks and 44 at Singletary Lake State Park in Bladen County.

Unemployed persons between 16 and 23 years of age interested in enrolling in the projects in their communities or at the state parks should contact their local Employment Security Commission. Only the project at Singletary Lake will be a residential project. Employees will need to commute to the other projects.

Miss Paige, Mr. Causey Couple Weds In Double Ring Ceremony In Robersonville

Memorial Baptist Church was the setting of the 3 p.m. wedding of Miss Susan Glynn Paige and John Lewis Causey Jr. Sunday. The Rev. Ed Thomas Vinson officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Clifton Paige Jr. of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Lewis Causey of Greenville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore her mother's wedding dress of candlelight satin. The gown was designed with an off-shoulder neckline and a princess style waist bodice. The gown featured long tapered sleeves and a full length skirt with cathedral train. The sleeves and the back of the bodice were trimmed with small covered buttons. The cathedral length veil of imported illusion was attached to a Camelot cap, covered with beaded pearls and Italian lace. Matching lace bordered the tiered illusion. She carried her mother's satin covered Bible, topped with a cascade bouquet of white roses, orchids, stephanotis and springerii ferns, all tied with white bridal satin. Her only jewelry was a diamond pendant, a gift of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Jan Spain, sister of the bride, served as the honor attendant. The bridesmaids were Kathy Paige, sister-in-law of the bride, Faye Strong and Rosalind Johnston, sisters of the bridegroom, Sharon Edwards, cousin of the bride, Wanda Stanfill, all of Greenville, and Vicky Yakim of Greenwood, S.C.

All of the attendants wore formal length gowns of candlelight jersey, with sleeveless coats. The gowns featured slip style bodices. Bands of spring flowers and baby's breath were worn as hairpieces. They carried cascade bouquets of yellow roses, stephanotis and springerii fern, tied with white satin ribbon.

Michele Johnston and Kim Strong, nieces of the bridegroom, served as flower girls. They wore formal length gowns of candlelight jersey. Their dresses were styled with fitted bodices and puffed sleeves. The skirts were edged with a wide ruffle at the hem. The flower girls wore floral headpieces and carried baskets filled with spring flowers.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man. Ushers included Jimmy Paige, brother of the bride, Robert Causey, brother of the bridegroom, Ted Spain, brother-in-law of the

the bride, Donald Cannon, Allen Wagner, all of Greenville, and Alfred Gold, cousin of the bridegroom, of Kinston.

Richard and Ray Gold, cousins of the bridegroom from Kinston, were pages. They lighted the candles before the ceremony.

Missey Strong, niece of the bridegroom, presented wedding bulletins. Her dress was styled to match those of the flower girls. Suzy Cooper of Wilson presided at the register in the northex of the church.

The mother of the bride wore a formal length gown of mint green jersey. The mother of the bridegroom wore a formal length gown of blue jersey. Both mothers wore white orchid corsages.

The grandmothers of the bride, Mrs. J. C. Paige, Mrs. Fred Edwards and Mrs. Vina Simpson, wore formal length dresses and were remembered with white orchids.

After the wedding ceremony, the bride, Donald Cannon, Allen Wagner, all of Greenville, and Alfred Gold, cousin of the bridegroom, of Kinston.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Larry Jones, organist. Soloist Mike Berry sang "My Tribute," "O Perfect Love" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Mrs. Mary Freeland, aunt of the bride, directed the wedding.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was given by the bride's parents in the church fellowship hall. The reception table was covered with a white lace cloth. The table was centered with an arrangement of summer flowers and candles. A four tiered wedding cake was served by Mrs. Frances Gold, aunt of the bridegroom. Mrs. Lucille Sumrill, Mrs. Tull McArthur, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Edwards, Mrs. Richard Anthony and Mr. and Mrs. Leon Freeland, aunts and uncles of the bride, and Mrs. Ann Gold, cousin of the bridegroom, assisted with the reception.

The bride is a junior at East Carolina University where she is majoring in early childhood education. The bridegroom is the owner of John's Wholesale Flowers.

After a wedding trip to the Bahamas, the couple will reside in Greenville. For traveling, the bride wore a three-piece melon linen suit and the orchid corsage from her wedding bouquet.

The bridegroom's parents entertained the wedding party, relatives and out-of-town guests at a dinner Saturday night at the Greenville Moose Lodge.

ROBERSONVILLE — The First Baptist Church was the scene for the wedding of Miss Patricia Gail Keel and Ricky Dale Capps. The Rev. James Hagwood officiated at the 3 p.m. double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Raynor Keel of Robersonville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. James Prentis Capps Sr. of Coats and the late Mrs. Irene Capps Dupree.

The church chancel held a 15 branch candelabra with flowers and greenery. Seven branched candelabras were used on each side with baskets of gladioli, pom poms and chrysanthemums. Standards of palm greenery accented the decorations. Satin bows marked the honor pews. The couple knelt on a prie-dieu for the benediction.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white silk organza over peau de soie. The gown was designed with a Queen Anne neckline, empire waist and bishop sleeves accented with ruffles at the end. Appliques of Venise lace enhanced with motifs of seed pearls adorned the sleeves and A-line skirt. The hemline was edged with Venise flowerettes. A self-fabric bow accented the back of the skirt, which fell into a chapel length train. The bride wore a fingertip veil edged in Venise flowerettes attached to a Camelot cap of matching lace embossed with seed pearls. She carried a cascade arrangement of white sweetheart roses, daisies and blue tinted baby's breath.

Miss Beth Hall of Fayetteville was maid of honor. She wore a light blue empire gown of polyester and cotton voile. It featured a ruffled scoop neckline and deep flounced hem. White lace bordered the hem, inset waist and skirt flounce. She wore a white ruffled sun hat.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Sandra Keel of Robersonville, sister-in-law of the bride, Mrs. Judy Turner of Virginia Beach, Va., sister of the bridegroom, Miss Alice Capps of Coats, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Mondie Swift of Greenville. Their dresses and hats were identical to that of the maid of honor. They carried white baskets of blue daisies and baby's breath. Honorary bridesmaids were Miss Jill Hardy of Greenville, Mrs. Susan Manning of Bethel, and Mrs. Janet Johnson of Robersonville. They all carried long-stemmed yellow roses.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man. Ushers were James Prentis Capps Jr. of Garner, brother of the bridegroom, Tom Turner of Virginia Beach, Va., brother-in-law of the bridegroom, Mike Keel of Robersonville, brother of the bride, and Randy Keel of Chapel Hill, brother of the bride. Honorary ushers were Gus and Micky Keel, cousins of the bride.

Craig Everett, organist, and Miss Laura Wilson, soloist, presented a program of nuptial music. Miss Wilson sang "Time in a Bottle," "If," and "The Wedding Prayer."

Mrs. Brenda White of Williamston directed the wedding.

Immediately following the ceremony, the bride's parents gave a reception in the church fellowship hall. The hall was decorated with greenery and spring flowers. Miss Jan Parker of Chapel Hill presided at the register. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Rogers, aunt and uncle of the bride, Mrs. Alice Briley, aunt of the bride, poured punch while Mrs. Hilda Whitehurst served wedding cake. Good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Doug James, cousins of the bride.

On Saturday, an after-rehearsal party was given by the bridegroom's father at the church fellowship hall. Out-of-town guests and members of the wedding party attended.

The bride was honored with a luncheon on Saturday, given by the bridesmaids at the Three Steers Restaurant in Greenville. The bride's mother, the honorary bridesmaids and the wedding director attended. The bride gave gifts to the bridesmaids.

After a wedding trip to the Poconos Mountains in Pennsylvania, the couple will reside in Greenville.

The bride is a graduate of East Carolina University and is employed as a social worker with the Pitt County Department of Social Services. The bridegroom attended East Carolina University and is presently employed by Ormond Wholesale Co., Greenville.

The mother of the bride and Mrs. Mertice Barefoot were honored with white georgiana orchid corsages. The grandmothers were presented corsages of white carnations.

Bride-Elect Entertained

Miss Sheryl Buck, bride-elect of William E. Moseley, was honored Saturday afternoon by Mrs. David J. Gurganus at an informal social hour at her home.

The refreshment table, covered with a white lace cloth, was centered with an arrangement of pink roses. Arrangements of spring flowers were used throughout the house.

The honoree was remembered with a corsage of white sweetheart roses which complemented her dress of red and white.

Guests remembered the bride-elect with a small kitchen item and shared a favorite recipe.

BPW Annual Convention To Be Held In Charlotte

CHARLOTTE — Over 700 working women representing the North Carolina Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc. will gather for the annual 59th convention here Thursday through Sunday.

State President Julia Hassell of Edenton will preside and those attending will include state officers, past presidents, state committee chairmen, special chairman, district directors, delegates and alternates. Members and guests from the 4,000 plus members are also invited to attend representing the state's 94 clubs.

The clubs of District VII consisting of Amity, Cardinal, Charlotte, Concord, Harrisburg, Metropolitan, Mint Hill and Monroe will be hostesses.

The national representative to the convention will be Mrs. Jeanne C. Squire, past national president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc. She will give information on the program theme "Threshold to New Horizons" and speak at the Saturday night federation banquet.

Other highlights of the convention will be the state federation president's report, business sessions, workshops on various areas of BPW work, election of officers and presentation of awards.

Among those from Greenville who are planning to attend are Naomi Edwards, state finance chairman, Arlene Mallison, president, Nancy Smith, recording secretary, Gladys Stokes and Bonnie Evans.

Also attending will be Jo Nottingham of Greenville, District X Young Careerist winner, who will be in competition for the State Young Careerist.

Mountain Trip Is Planned

A trip to the North Carolina mountains to view the blooming rhododendron has been planned for June 17-18.

The group will leave at 6:30 a.m. Saturday and travel to Roan Mountain via Mystery Hill and spend the night in the Boone-Blowing Rock area. The agenda for Sunday includes a visit to Craggy Gardens on the Blue Ridge Parkway and a tour of the Biltmore House and Gardens.

The trip is being sponsored by the Degree of Pocahontas. For reservations or further information call 756-2366.

More Prosperity On The Farm

Beef and pork prices have risen recently and are expected to go higher. They are soon to be joined by poultry prices, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture. It is expected that broiler chicken wholesale prices will be from 47 to 49 cents per pound in the third quarter of 1978. This is up from the 42.7 cents per pound for the same period of 1977. Although there is record poultry production this year, consumers are expected to turn to chicken for their meals due to the rising beef prices. The news of rising meat prices won't be welcomed by the consumers who have to pay at the retail level. At the same time, however, better farm prices for meat will alleviate the problems of beef, pork and poultry producers. And particularly is our area affected by the wholesale prices of pork and poultry. The production of meats cycles on the farm with herds increased when prices are good. When an over supply develops, prices fall and production is decreased starting the price cycle all over again. Beef and poultry had been reasonably priced for some time now but the growers, saddled with over production, have suffered. Now the prices growers receive for beef, pork and poultry are improving. That could mean more prosperous times on the farm.

Mainstream Needs Young Men Like Him

William "Joe" Wright II became the second of the Wilmington 10 to be released from prison on parole, the first after Gov. Hunt intervened to reduce the sentences. He left with a blast at North Carolina justice, a pledge to work for release of the other eight, and a denial of guilt.

Wright, however, had an outstanding record while in prison, attaining honor status while attending N. C. State. It is not necessary to argue the Wilmington case again in order to say that young men like him need to be brought back into the mainstream of our society.

THIS AFTERNOON Agencies To Help Growth

By Bill Noblitt
RALEIGH — Balanced Growth is a key phrase in future growth for North Carolina communities, and achieving that will demand a great deal of thought and planning by local governments. So critical is this concern that Joseph Grimsley, secretary of the Department of Administration, has labeled the development and implementation of a balanced growth policy "the most important activity of this (Hunt) administration which affects local government...." At its simplest, balanced growth seeks to put the right kinds of new businesses in the right places to benefit most fully the firm, the community, and the individuals who will work or otherwise be affected by the growth. Within the framework, of course, there are a multitude of complexities having to do with job skills and wage scales, public and natural resources, transportation, community needs and desires and abilities, and so on.

So long is the list, so complex the issues, and so directly involved are a host of state and local people both in and out of government, that Grimsley sees an over-riding need for regional planning. A report presented at a recent meeting of the North Carolina Local Government Advocacy Council, Grimsley put it this way: Our new policy must be designed to make the best use of the expanded capabilities of the Lead Regional Organizations. "The LROs as a group are now in position to assume some important responsibilities. The LROs are still essentially areawide planning agencies. However, they are also capable of assisting in the implementation of balanced growth policy and have established a role as providers of a wide array of managerial and technical services for local governments." Those Lead Regional Organizations and the supervising boards call Councils of Government are directed by local governmental officials. Originally designed to coordinate planning and public works across city and county lines throughout compatible regions in the state, the concept has grown to include other programs including actually delivering services through staff people in the regional offices. In talking with the Local government advocacy group, Grimsley suggested that another expansion of regional activities should be in the balanced growth area. "Lead Regional Organizations should be given new roles in liaison, technical assistance, coordination and planning. For example: "Assisting local governments in evaluating growth center potential and the relationships and centers in a region," he reported. Planning "Providing assistance in preparation of local development plans which deal with local economic development and public service priorities," he noted. "Preparing regional capital improvements programs which provide the framework for prioritizing local investments." At the same work session, Transportation Secretary Thomas W. Bradshaw and Human Resources Secretary Sarah Morrow discussed how they are involved in working with the regional councils of government. Howard N. Lee, secretary of the Department of Natural Resources and Community Development summed up the session by suggesting that while some adjustments may be needed in regional boundaries, the concept of regional planning and coordination has proved itself in North Carolina and should be strengthened rather than weakened.

OH, OH---BE CAREFUL, SEÑOR!

By ART BUCHWALD We're Ready If You Are

WASHINGTON — It is sad to think that the cold war is heating up again just at the time President Carter is working on a new tough image. Some cynics believe that the President's advisors are using the Soviet and Cuban penchant for mischief in Africa as a way to keep Mr. Carter from sinking further in the popularity polls in the United States. The problem with choosing Africa to rally around the President is that no one is quite sure who to root for and which side is the good guys and which is the bad. Even Feebleman, the neighborhood's leading hardliner, is confused. "We've got to do something to stop the Soviets in Africa," Feebleman said, "before it's too late." "Who says so?" "The guy whose name I can never pronounce, who is the President's national security advisor." "I know who you mean. What should we do?" "We have to shore up the dictators who are on our side so the dictators on their side don't take over." "Right," I said, "but who are the dictators on our side?" "We won't know until the Soviets stop giving aid to the other side. I think they're supporting the people's rebels, and our guys are supporting the people's liberation forces." "No, you're wrong," I told Feebleman. "The people's rebels are on our side and the people's liberation forces are the Commies." "Well, anyhow, we have to support the side that doesn't pillage and rape." "Both sides pillage and rape," I said. "Don't you remember in Zaire when the rebels went into the Shaba Province and pillaged and raped? As soon as the place was liberated Mobutu's army went in and pillaged and raped the same people. Pillage and rape are not the criteria on which we should base our support." "Then we have to support the side that asks for aid from us after the Soviets and Cubans give weapons and training to the other side," Feebleman said. "Great, but every time we give money to those who ask for our support it winds up in a bank account in Switzerland. Money is not the answer," I said. "We have to give them food and weapons and train them." "Right. That means sending in American soldiers," Feebleman said. "Hardly," I said. "Carter isn't about to send Americans into Africa at this time."

"Well, if the Soviets are using Cubans as mercenaries, we should find a country to do the same thing for us," Feebleman told me. "What country do you have in mind?" "Panama," Feebleman said. "After all, they owe us one. We did give them back the canal." "That's a good idea," I said. "It would be very bad form for the Panamanians to refuse. But I still can't see Congress getting us involved until it knows who we're rooting for. We're going to have to learn the names of the tribes on our side before we give Carter a chance to use his power to thwart the tribes on their side." "Let's call what's-his-name, the President's national security advisor, and ask him to give us the names of people in Africa he wants the Americans to support." Feebleman dialed the

THE INSIDE REPORT Revolt By The Governed

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
LOS ANGELES — The basic reason why Californians are about to defy their state's political establishment by voting themselves $7 billion in instant tax relief can be found in the instinctive response by the politicians to that act of revolt. When the polls last week clearly showed that the state constitutional amendment to radically reduce property taxes was pulling well ahead in Tuesday's (June 5) vote, state legislators and state officials huddled privately to ponder these questions: Can we go to court immediately to set aside the vote? Can we get a new amendment on the November ballot to partially undo the work of this one? Can we adopt new taxes next year to maintain government at its present level? Those frantic responses reveal the dramatic split between the governors and the governed here as elsewhere in the nation. The people regard government as an oppressive burden that fulfills few legitimate needs; their rulers see government as the focus of modern life, whose far-flung operations must not be curtailed. Because of this, the strategy against the tax amendment (sponsored by 75-year-old anti-tax activist Howard Jarvis) threatening the people with diminished government service has gotten nowhere. "The people say: good, go ahead, we can do without it," one worried Democratic assemblyman told us. The events here, therefore, comprise no less an antigovernment revolt than an anti-tax revolt. The voters are sending a message of disapproval to the politicians which may now be duplicated across the land. Gray Davis, the usually perceptive political aide and campaign manager of Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., is almost surely wrong when he calls this "a fight between the haves and the have-nots," the

Chapel Hill Newspaper
Human beings, regardless of their status and background, have human rights to food, clothing, shelter and medical aid. An outcry to stop inflation at all levels gets little or no attention. Why don't we go back and start over, and at least curb inflation on the items that mankind must have in order to survive? In this instance we are not talking about the very poor. We are talking about people who are retired in the community, who live in a nice apartment, and who thought they would have enough money to live in their later years. With food costs going up about 12 percent a year, with telephone and electricity costs increasing, with apartment rent moving up, these people are not only scared to death but they are running out of funds. They are not eligible for any kind of government help, and most of them are too proud to accept it. All their lives they have been able to have the basic things in life and a little more. The little more has long departed, and the basics are slipping away. If the government feels the problem is impossible to correct, let it leave alone the cost of automobiles, vacations, education, luxury clothing, and the finer things in life that are not necessities. Let that same government start fighting the inflation spiral by doing something to take care of the people above. Taking the chance that we might be considered a traitor to North Carolina, we would rather see a subsidy for the basics for the middle class than see a tax cut for the masses and continued subsidy for tobacco. The middle class are the ones who have built America. They have paid their taxes and produced the goods and provided the services, and in their old age they are forgotten. This kind of treatment can destroy America. Certainly it is destroying thousands of people who deserve a much better fate.

Strength For Today

Minister Plenipotentiary
John Adams and his wife Abigail trained their son, John Quincy Adams, for the greatness he attained. The father took the boy on an important diplomatic trip when the youngster was only eleven years old, and at fifteen John Quincy was secretary to the diplomatic mission in Russia. Abigail Adams, writing to her son at this time, said: "Your conscience is the minister plenipotentiary of God Almighty in your breast. See to it that this minister never negotiates in vain. Attend to Him in opposition to all the courts in the world." John Adams lived to see his son become president of the United States as the father himself had been. John and Abigail Adams stand as two of the most conscientious, intelligent, and successful parents in the history of our country. It is interesting to note that their training of their distinguished son always emphasized the vital role of religion. —by Elisha Douglass

Deterrent To Full Employment

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — A jobless rate of 6.1 percent, such as occurred in May, generally suggests that we're a long way from full employment. But it may be the best rate that can be achieved for the time being. The reason is inflation. With a rate of 7 percent for the entire year now a possibility, the Carter administration has little choice but to turn its attention toward the restraint of wages and prices. In other words, it must cool things, and when an economy is cooled it hardly provides a warm environment for unemployed workers. In fact, it could mean that some who are now employed might lose their jobs. What the economists now are saying is that we can't have our cake and eat it. That is, we can't hope to lower unemployment substantially while trying at the same time to reduce the rate of inflation. There comes a point, they say, when efforts to employ more workers puts upward pressure on prices, the reason being that the workers newly hired may be of marginal ability and thus among the least efficient. The shock to the administration and others is that the point of interaction has come while the jobless rate is still so high. Some authorities had hoped to push unemployment under 5 percent. But there is evidence now that a further decline in joblessness would automatically result in higher prices, an eventuality no politician can ignore. Higher prices affect everyone; unemployment doesn't. For the time being, therefore, it seems likely that "full employment" isn't the 4 percent we had envisioned, but about 50 percent higher than that. Is something wrong with the measuring stick? The suggestion is strong, and some economists swear that a 6 percent jobless rate today is equal to a 4 percent rate 10 years ago. Today's jobless rate is exaggerated, they say. While explanations differ somewhat, the most common assertion is that the work force, now at 100 million for the first time, has become swollen with people who are other than primary breadwinners. Women are the most numerous addition to the work force, and some of them are not wholly dependent upon the income received. Some might even seek employment for reasons such as personal fulfillment. While there is nothing to be criticized in such behavior, say those who study the statistics, the effect is to so enlarge the work force that the increase in jobs isn't sufficient to lower the jobless rate. At the same time, they explain, there has been a growth in unemployment benefits, making it easier for an individual to bide his or her time while waiting for precisely the position desired. Theoretically, therefore, we may be closer to "full employment" than is realized. Employers might now be accepting the least efficient workers, adding to their production costs and therefore to prices.

For Some Reason, No Contact

SEATTLE (AP) — Mrs. D took Jimmy Carter at his word when the president said he wanted his White House to be "in close touch" with citizens. But the Seattle woman now isn't sure anyone at the White House can read.

Mrs. D. who said she did not want her full name used, turned over to The Seattle Times copies of letters that illustrate her experience.

Oct. 15, 1977 — Mrs. D wrote to the White House, saying she and many of her friends were opposed to Jack Tanner being named a federal judge. She asked Carter not to nominate the Tacoma, Wash., attorney.

Oct. 28, 1977 — A White House letter, signed by James

F. Gammill Jr., director of the presidential personnel office, was sent to Mrs. D. It thanked her for her recommendation of "Warren D. Riebe for a position in this administration."

Nov. 17, 1977 — Mrs. D wrote to the White House again, repeating that she opposed Tanner's nomination and that she could not understand the White House letter. "Your letter," she wrote, "states that you received my letter in which I recommend Warren D. Riebe for a position in this administration." Who is Warren D. Riebe?

"For some reason my letters are not comprehended... Is it too much to expect someone in your office to really read the letters?"

"I have tried to make excuses for this inability to read. Perhaps your employees have all had speed-reading courses. Perhaps they are all drunk. Perhaps they just read what they want to read."

Mrs. D sent no more letters, but the non-communication over Tanner continued.

Last Jan. 19, the White House sent Tanner's name to the Senate for confirmation. But on May 4, Carter, while in Portland, Ore., said the Tanner recommendation had not reached him yet.

The next day, the president's press secretary acknowledged Carter did not know about Tanner's nomination going through the White House earlier.

But a vexing question still remains for Mrs. D: Who is Warren D. Riebe?

Friends Gather In Remembrance

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — A governor, a movie star, and hundreds of friends gathered on the 10th anniversary of Robert F. Kennedy's assassination to praise the slain senator and rededicate themselves to his spirit.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. told a crowd of some 300 people Sunday at St. John's Episcopal Church that the country has changed since Kennedy died.

"In the last 10 years, the spirit this country has missed is the heroic spirit of Robert Kennedy," Brown said. He urged Americans to "reach into our own hearts and find that spirit of daring."

Actress Shirley MacLaine, sometimes near tears, praised Kennedy's role in politics and his "gentle spirit" in personal matters.

Miss MacLaine, a delegate to the 1968 Democratic convention in Chicago, spoke of Kennedy's murder.

"He forgave even those who reviled him and was struck down by an assassin's bullet at the height of his glory," she said.

Kennedy was shot in the kitchen of the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles, moments after winning the California primary in the 1968 presidential race.

His convicted assassin was Sirhan Bishara Sirhan, a Jordanian who refuses to discuss his motives. Sirhan is serving a life term at Soledad in Northern California. He will become eligible for parole in 1985.

Miss MacLaine brought many in the audience to tears when she quoted a passage from Shakespeare that Robert Kennedy had recited at a tribute to his slain brother, President John F. Kennedy.

The passage read: "When he dies, take him and cut him out in little stars and he will make the face of heaven so fine that all the world will be in love with night."

Higher Rate of Police List Deaths In N.Y. 3 Accidents

NEW YORK (AP) — Government health records indicate that the death rate in New York City is 16 percent above the national death rate, the National Health Education Committee says.

The committee — a group of citizens and physicians that tries to inform the public on health issues — concluded Sunday that one reason for the higher death rate in the city was a lack of adequate screening programs for high blood pressure, a leading contributor to heart attacks and strokes.

An estimated $7,200 property damage resulted from three mishaps investigated by Greenville Police late Saturday night.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 10:15 p.m. mishap at the intersection of 14th and Evans Streets involving cars driven by Ronald Whitaker Pollock of Shady Knoll Trailer Pk., and Robert Shelton Olorogge of 2506 East Tenth St.

Police, who estimated damage from the collision at $3,000 to the Pollock car and $500 to the Olorogge vehicle, charged Olorogge with failing to stop for a stop light.

Michael George Dixon of 528 Westchester Rd. was charged with failing to reduce his speed enough to avoid an accident following investigation of an 11:19 p.m. collision on Tenth Street, 50 feet West of the Cedar Lane intersection.

Investigators reported the Dixon car collided with an auto driven by Bryon Keith Butler of 2003 Crocket Dr., causing an estimated $800 damage to the Dixon car and $900 damage to the Butler auto.

An 11:50 p.m. mishap on Dickinson Avenue, 55 feet West of the 14th Street intersection, resulted in Roy Lee Speight of Colonial Park Trailer Pk. being charged with driving under the influence.

Police reported the Speight car collided with a utility pole, causing an estimated $1,800 damage to the car he was driving and $200 damage to the pole and wires.

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — A 1929 Duesenberg Model J selling for $180,000 to a Denver bidder was the top car sold at the three-day James C. Leake Antique and Classic Car Auction.

More than $5.2 million was bid for some 450 cars during the three-day auction that ended Saturday.

The Duesenberg was sold by Tom Barrett of Scottsdale, Ariz., to Zac Vrinkerhoff of Denver.

Profs Pull Out Over Expulsion

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Forty-eight Northwestern University professors have withdrawn from a joint doctoral program with a seminary in protest against the expulsion of two homosexual ministerial students.

Faculty at the Garrett-Evangelical Theological seminary in Evanston voted May 15 to expel the two students after they announced their homosexuality in letters to seminary officials. The Northwestern professors, who supervise the Garrett students' doctoral studies, said they believe homosexuality is irrelevant to a student's academic credentials.

erty tax relief. To the amazement and contempt of colleagues, Priolo endorsed Jarvis and has since become an ardent advocate of lowered property taxes and no new taxes to replace them.

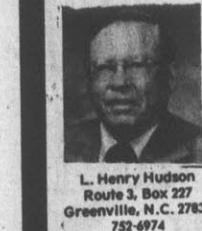

"It's a matter of getting your mind away from the Sacramento scene, where government is everything," he explained to us.

Jerry Brown, as quick to perceive shifts in public moods as any politician in America, was caught from behind by the Jarvis amendment as badly as conventional politicians. But as Jarvis approached victory at the polls, the governor last week gingerly backed away from the pro-government militancy of the rulers and sided up to the anti-government passion of the ruled. That shift, with its national implications, will be the subject of our next column from here.

City Manager...

one of two freshmen members on the Council, she has felt free to call a department head if she had questions on minor items but she feels the city manager should be contacted on all major problems or decisions regarding department functions.

"I respect him (the city manager) as the administrative head of the city and if we work through him on major decision type matters, then we are following through on the normal chain of command," the council member said.

She added, however, "If all six members of the council called the city manager on everything, he would be overrun with questions. He has enough to do."

Mrs. Greene said she thinks a "good situation" exists here with council members feeling free to work with the city manager.

Charles Vincent, the second new member on the board, said that he takes the traditional approach to the city's governing structure. He noted, "We hire the city manager and it's his job to run the city as efficiently as he can through his department heads and normal chain of command."

Vincent said, "I view my role on the council as setting policy" in determining what direction the city should take.

Noting that, "I see myself in an advisory capacity," he explained, "I make it a point not to interfere with department heads or to violate the chain of command."

Vincent continued, "When someone tells me something needs to be done, generally, I tell the city manager. Occasionally, if it is routine, I will mention it to a department head if I see them first." Beyond that, according to the councilman, the work of the departments is totally under the city manager's function.

Vincent suggested that in the past, Greenville has had city managers who "didn't want council members talking to department heads."

He pointed out that the present form of government is the "most practical form we could have" with one man as head of the city with managerial responsibilities and department heads who understand their operations.

According to Vincent, while the city manager has his duties and responsibilities, the Council also has a duty to "insist and make sure that the city manager follows up on suggestions made by the Council." Council members have to have a general knowledge of what is going on in order to make suggestions, he asserted.

Vincent agreed with the other Council members in their contention that they should not be involved in personnel matters. Personnel decisions rest solely with the city manager, it was agreed.

Holliday, who is serving in a dual role as city manager and city engineer during the Council's search for a new manager, said that he felt the duties of the Council and manager should "dove tail" but not overlap.

The city manager's office should serve a liaison role between the public and the City Council, he contended.

"I feel it is the city manager's duty to carry out the regulations and ordinances set up by the Council and see that they are implemented in accordance with Council wishes," the veteran official stated.

"I am a firm believer in the Council representing the people and that the voice of the people be considered by the Council and the city manager in turn try to implement the wishes of the people," Holliday added.

He referred to the Council as the "voice of the people" and said that the governing board "should be the one to make final decisions on policies of the city. I feel very strongly that the Council is the policy making body and it is the duty of the city manager to implement policy as established by the Council, on through the departments."

Holliday said that a chain of command is necessary from the Council to city manager to department heads. The system provides an avenue for the public to have a voice, he said, "on down to the implementation of their wishes."

The city manager emphasized that he believes in keeping the Council informed of action taken at city hall.

By DOUG WILLIS
Associated Press Writer
LAGUNA HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Tax crusader Howard Jarvis says his initiative to cut California property taxes $7 billion a year will start a national movement to cut taxes and the power of bureaucrats.

"This amendment doesn't solve all the problems in the world, but it's going to send a message around the world," the 75-year-old tax gadfly told a cheering audience of 500 supporters Sunday in the affluent Orange County suburbs south of Los Angeles.

"In the last few days I've talked to people (in radio interviews) in Michigan, Oklahoma, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Arizona and Utah, and they're going to introduce this amendment."

The polls say the vote in Tuesday's primary election will be between 55 percent and 70 percent in favor of Jarvis' Proposition 13. In some suburbs where assessments have been raised recently, majorities of 4-to-1 or more are predicted.

An Associated Press survey last week found property tax reform is an issue in 39 of the 50 states. Legislators in more than a dozen states already have acted on the issue, although the scope of the changes varies widely. Proposals include market value reassessments, rebates, exemptions for owner-occupied homes, help for the elderly and doing away with property taxes altogether. The amendment, which Jarvis put on California's ballot by collecting 1.5 million voter signatures, would limit annual property taxes to 1 percent of market value. Currently, they range from less than 1 percent in some rural areas to almost 3 percent in some urban areas.

It also would roll back assessments to 1975 figures and then allow increases of no more than 2 percent a year except when property is sold. Assessments in some areas have doubled recently.

The effect of those limits would be to cut the average property tax bill in California 57 percent, or from $1,400 to $600 for the average California family, whose home is now appraised at about $60,000.

That would cut property taxes revenues for schools, cities and counties from $12 billion annually to $5 billion, and by some estimates it would require laying off 300,000 of California's 1.4 million state and local government workers.

Critics, led by Democratic Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., say the Jarvis initiative will cut government programs for the poor. But Brown, who faces a re-election campaign this year, says if that is the will of the people, he will carry it out without increasing other taxes.

"I will vote no on 13," he told a rally of Democratic supporters in Los Angeles on Sunday. "I think it will not provide the relief that people think it will. (If it passes) I will try to minimize the impact. We will all have to make do with what's available," he said.

Boy 'Nazi' Will Be Sentenced Today For Slaying

By ROB WILSON
Associated Press Writer
LANSING, Mich. (AP) — When 15-year-old Roger E. Needham showed up at Everett High School wearing a Nazi party pin and talking quietly about Adolf Hitler, his classmates jeered.

ROGER NEEDHAM

On a cold February day, Needham heard one taunt too many. He pulled a .22-caliber, Luger-style pistol in a crowded school hallway and shot two teasing classmates. One of the boys died.

Today, the frail, slender Needham will be brought from Ingham County Jail to answer for his no contest plea on a murder charge. He is being treated as a juvenile, so Probate Judge Donald Owens will merely pronounce where he will go for detention and therapy.

That will put Roger Needham away until he is at least 19.

But it will not answer the questions asked at Everett High School. Who is Roger Needham; but for his Nazi pin he looked like just another

Marine Held In Shooting

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — A marine private was held today in connection with an early Sunday morning shooting that left a young wife dead and her Marine husband wounded.

The Public Affairs Office identified the woman as Ruth Anne Paul, 23. She and her husband, Sgt. Theodore L. Paul, 28, were shot during an apparent burglary attempt at their residence in a base housing area, a spokesman said.

Paul managed to call military police and he and his wife were rushed to the base hospital where his wife died a few hours later, the spokesman said.

Shortly after the shooting military police arrested the Marine private who, they said, was carrying a .38 caliber revolver and wearing blood-stained clothes. Authorities said he was arrested as he walked through the housing area.

The incident was being investigated by the Naval Investigative Service.

Defeated, Aids Primary Winner

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Former Navy Secretary John Warner, who unsuccessfully sought the Republican nomination for the U.S. Senate at a weekend party state convention, has donated $500 to the campaign of the man who defeated him.

"I'm putting my money where my mouth was" Warner said Sunday in presenting a check to the campaign of former Virginia GOP chairman Richard Obenshain.

Warner was accompanied to the convention rostrum Saturday night by his wife, actress Elizabeth Taylor, when he asked the delegates to "join me in making this great convention unanimous on behalf of Richard Obenshain."

Arrest Man On Break-In Count

Michael Chevalier Pirkey of 301H Eastbrook Apts., was charged with breaking and entering following an 8 p.m. incident at the Fieldcrest Mills warehouse on Hooker Road, Chief Glenn Cannon reported this morning.

Cannon said Fieldcrest employees found Pirkey inside the warehouse, and called police.

Pirkey told officers he was taking photographs for an East Carolina University photography course.

Bond for Pirkey was set at $3,000.

kid in longish hair, blue jeans and tennis shoes. When exactly did he slip from a perhaps unnatural interest in war into a belief in Nazism that could cause him to kill.

Authorities have described Needham as a brilliant loner. They said he once made a detailed blueprint of a Nazi extermination camp complete with gas chambers. A psychiatrist characterized him as "highly intelligent, hostile, intensely angry at everyone."

After the shootings on Feb. 22, authorities found a diary in which the boy had written about his school experiences. One entry read:

"I almost abandoned Hitler last night — out of being pushed too far by my colleagues. I almost went to school without my Nazi party pin in my jacket. But luckily again I had a burst of courage and never again will I think about abandoning Mein Fuhrer and Nazism."

The diary, entitled "My Struggle" after Hitler's "Mein Kampf," also contained this passage: "While I in no way forgive my enemies, I will refrain from killing them for the moment."

The entry was written two days before Needham fatally shot 15-year old Bill Draher and wounded 16-year-old Kevin Jones. Jones, who was grazed in the head in the shooting, later admitted he had been looking for a fight with Needham "because of the Nazi deal."

Curiously, Everett Vice Principal Robert Dingman said, the victims were probably as close friends as Needham had. "He was probably hurt that they were the ones who had done some of the heckling," he said.

He said Needham had taken part in no school activities after a brief stint on the track team. He was considered an excellent builder of models, such as tanks and armored personnel carriers. He took the usual sophomore subjects and was considered intelligent. He got an "A" in science but did not excel in social studies or history.

"He generally didn't apply himself in school," Dingman said. "He was too engulfed in this Nazi thing."

In the semester before the shooting, Dingman said, Needham was absent a lot. No one is certain just when the boy developed his Nazi fascination, and Daniel McLellan, chief assistant prosecutor for Ingham County, said Needham "just seemed to slide into" it.

McLellan said Needham probably became aware of Nazism because of his father, a Cooley Law School professor, is a World War II history buff. The pistol used by the youth belonged to his father, he said.

Needham's parents are divorced and the youth lived with his father, McLellan said. The elder Needham has refused to discuss the case.

The boy's interest in Nazism "was apparently quite accidental. He took whatever interest his father had and perverted it. Hitler was the perfect symbol for his feelings," McLellan said.

Dr. Ames Robey, the psychiatrist who examined Needham, concluded the boy suffers from a rare mental illness that makes him a "true paranoiac," McLellan said. The illness causes "a feeling that I am better and everybody else is no good, that they are the cause of my problems and if I can get rid of them I get rid of my problems."

It is a sickness, he said, "which leads to murder."

Until the shooting, McLellan said, Needham's teachers had little indication of his violent tendencies.

Teachers at the school were reluctant to discuss Needham when questioned last week. One woman teacher who asked not to be named said: "I'm afraid of Roger Needham. He's a different kid."

However, McLellan said, "A few of his teachers said they worried about the kid because his neo-Nazism had come out in school papers, but nothing was done about it. Although he was strange and didn't have any friends, he wasn't doing anything bizarre or crazy."

"In the public school system, if you're not beating up on anybody and are getting good grades, they leave you alone," McLellan said.

Everett Students have now "accepted" the shootings, Dingman said. "There was a lot of sympathy for the boys that were shot," he said, "but also a lot of sympathy for Needham."

As for the legal case, Ingham County Prosecutor Peter Houk decided against treating Needham as an adult because he felt the boy would have been found innocent by reason of insanity. He could have been out on the street in days or weeks, Houk said.

Under Michigan law, juvenile court retains jurisdiction until a person is 19 and then Needham could be released. "Once he's 19, he walks unless we can prove he's still dangerous," McLellan said.

"He's a terribly dangerous person whose only disappointment was that he didn't kill more people when he had the opportunity. He feels no remorse. "I don't know how you fix it."

DEMOCRATS, There Is A DIFFERENCE

John Ingram

Senator Jesse Helms

CALIFANO - UNC - TOBACCO

Ingram doesn't believe in firing HEW Secretary Joseph Califano.

WXII-TV

Senator Jesse Helms has called for immediate removal of Califano for his unwarranted attacks on the Greater University system and our tobacco industry in N.C.

GOVERNMENT SPENDING

Ingram does not believe the budget can be balanced next year, or the next. He would look first at cutting the defense budget.

WUNC-TV and News & Observer

Jesse has voted for six years to cut excessive government spending and require a balanced budget to curb inflation, but he will not sacrifice our defense capability.

EDUCATION

Ingram wants to turn North Carolina education over to another new Washington Bureaucracy—A Department of Education.

Ingram Press Release

Jesse has worked effectively for local and state control of our schools and universities. He introduced the "Academic Freedom Act" in the Senate, to return control of our schools and universities to North Carolinians

PANAMA CANAL

Ingram would have voted to give away the Panama Canal.

Raleigh Times

Jesse Helms led the fight in the U.S. Senate to stop the giveaway of the Canal which weakens our defense capability and our economy.

MILITARY DEFENSE

Ingram would cut the defense budget and vote against building the B-1 Bomber.

WUNC-TV and News & Observer

Jesse, as a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, has voted to make U.S. military strength second to none—including building the B-1 Bomber, which is critical to our national security.

TOBACCO

Ingram says the government should not promote the sale of tobacco abroad.

Fayetteville Observer

Senator Jesse Helms and Governor Jim Hunt successfully arranged for North Carolina farmers to trade $10 million of tobacco abroad—this helped the farmers and our balance of payments.

TUITION TAX CREDITS FOR PARENTS

Ingram is against tuition tax credits for parents.

Charlotte Observer

Jesse Helms sponsored a bill in the U.S. Senate to give needed tax relief to parents who are struggling to send their children to college.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices swept upward today, ignoring widespread weakness overseas in the value of the dollar. The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial issues was up 7.54 to 855.08 in active trading. More than three times as many issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange rose in price than fell.

Analysts said investors were heartened by a decline last week in the rate of gain of wholesale prices and an unexpected drop in the nation's money supply. The money supply figure often gives a clue about future inflation and tighter credit policies designed to fight rising prices. Stock prices rose in the U.S. while the dollar had been slipping all day in foreign exchange trading. A weaker dollar often dampens stock prices because it discourages foreign investors from putting their money into American corporations. Even if their stocks rise, they could lose money when converting the price back into their own currency.

Grumman Corp., the aerospace firm, headed the NYSE's most-active list, rising 1/4 to 19 1/4. A block of 219,700 shares of Grumman was sold earlier today at 19 1/4. Grumman received a $272 million contract last week to build F-14 fighters for the Navy. The company also has announced a new seven-year $175 million financing agreement.

Eastern Airlines also was heavily traded, rising 3/4 to 11. Today's price increases came on top of last week's stronger market, which saw the Dow rise 6.84 to 847.54 Friday, a gain of 15.85 points for the week.

The NYSE's composite index today gained .36 to 55.39. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .51 to 146.12.

Volume on the New York Exchange at noon was 15.76 million shares, compared with 13.41 million by noon Friday.

 Memorial Hospital. Hospital administrator Jack Richardson said the vehicle will be used to transport a special $14,000 neonatal unit designed to provide life-support services to infants being brought to the medical facility. The vehicle and other equipment are funded through a State grant. Dr. Steve Creech, director of the Mental Health Center, told the board that the center now has 1,700 active cases. "Most," he said, "are self-referred," and of the total number of cases, a third are black. Most of the individuals, he noted, are female and most single. "There are very few farmers," Creech said, while the number includes 400 children under the age of 21. Commissioners this morning approved continuation of a grant program which provides two liaison officers for the county schools. The two

Arson Reasons Inmate Wounded In Escape Try

WASHINGTON (AP) — Revenge and the desire to commit vandalism are the primary reasons for arson, a study says. Juveniles account for 60 percent of all persons arrested for arson in 1974, added the study by the Aerospace Corp. The report, conducted under a $90,000 grant from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, added that arson generally goes unpunished even though it is one of the nation's most serious offenses. The study, released Sunday, said that only nine persons are arrested for every 100 cases of known or suspected arson. Only two of those are convicted. Simmons is serving a six-month sentence for felonious escape. He was originally sentenced to five months on misdemeanor charges. He was transported to Central Prison Hospital and is reported in good condition.

Real Estate Today

ADVANTAGE OF LARGE MORTGAGE

When buying a home, should you strive for a low down payment with a commensurately large mortgage loan? Here's what some experts say about the value of a large mortgage. The lower your down payment is, the easier it will be to sell your home in the future. The reasoning is that there will be a greater number of prospects who have a smaller amount of cash available to take over a small equity than for a huge down payment or even being forced to take out a new loan at a possibly higher interest rate. The higher interest charge is offset somewhat by a higher tax deduction. The money that would have been put into a large down payment can be used for other income-producing investments. Finally, it's cheaper to borrow mortgage money than any other kind. And you certainly may have to borrow for autos and college tuition if you are an average American. PWP Chapter Meets Tuesday

Greenville Chapter No. 1058 of Parents Without Partners Inc. will hold an introductory meeting Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at Tippy's Taco House.

This meeting is being held to explain the purpose and goals of PWP and is open to all eligible single parents. Literature about the organization will be available. Interested guests are encouraged to arrive at 6:30 and eat with the group.

To be eligible for PWP, one must be single and the parent of a living child. Custody is not a factor. Single men who see their children on weekend are especially encouraged to participate, as the organization offers a number of activities to promote greater interaction between fathers and their children. For more information, one may call 752-1674 evenings.

Surviving her are two sons, Whit of the home and Kellie LeRoy Salsbury of Norfolk, Va.; two foster children, Bennie Purvis of Norfolk, Va. and Avis Purvis Hines of Durham; 25 grandchildren; 26 great-grandchildren; 2 great-great-grandchildren.

The family will receive friends from 8-10 p.m. Tuesday at Hardee's Funeral Chapel.

Farmville Board Meeting Set

WILLIAMS
FARMVILLE — Mrs. Avie Jane S. Williams of 110 Anderson Ave., died in Lumberton Saturday.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete at Joyner's Mortuary.

Mrs. Jenkins Is Seriously Ailing

Mrs. Lillian Jacobsen Jenkins, wife of East Carolina University Chancellor Dr. Leo Jenkins, is listed in "poor" condition as a patient in Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

A University spokesman said Mrs. Jenkins became "weak," weekend before last, at the family's condominium at Emerald Isle and was hospitalized Wednesday. He said her condition apparently worsened this past weekend, while she continued as a patient at Pitt Memorial. The "poor condition" statement is all that is being released by the hospital concerning Mrs. Jenkins.

A New Jersey native, Mrs. Jenkins has lived in Greenville for the past 30 years and has reared her six children here. Her health condition was described as "a blood ailment."

Bean Lands Kemper Title

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A weekend ago, Andy Bean passed up the Atlanta Classic golf tournament to go fishing. This past weekend, he was back on the PGA tour — and he landed a big one. Burning up the front nine, Bean finished with a fourth-round 66 Sunday for a 5-stroke victory in the $300,000 Kemper Open, only his second win in three years on the tour. "You might say I got off to a fast start," said Bean, whose sizzling final round gave him a 15-under-par 273 for the tournament and the $60,000 first-place check. With his muscular 6-foot-4 frame, Bean gets off some of the longest drives of any pro golfer. But he credited his putting — "I think I'm probably one of the better putters on the tour" — for his seven birdies on the final 18 holes at Quail Hollow Country Club.

Starting the day with a 9-under-par 207, 1 stroke behind third-round leader Alan Pate, Bean fired birdies on the second, third and fourth holes, then eagled the par-5 fifth hole. "I think that's the first time I've ever jumped right off the ground," Bean said.

From then on, the rest of the field could only look helplessly at the leader boards. "If someone had put some heat on him, he might have shot 62 or 63," said Andy North, who roomed and played with Bean at the University of Florida and was paired with him Sunday. "He was going for 60 after about the sixth hole. You know you're in trouble when you're playing with someone who's talking about a 60."

North and Mark Hayes finished in a tie for second at 278, but there was little suspense down the back nine. "You hate to admit you're playing for second place with seven or eight holes left," said Hayes, "but that's what Andy (North) and I were doing."

Bean, 25, said his respite from the tour a week earlier helped him prepare for the Kemper, even though he played little golf during his week off.

Arnold Palmer, who faded from a second-round lead to wind up 10 strokes in back of Bean at 283, finished with a flourish nonetheless. He knocked in a 25-foot chip shot from the fringe to birdie the final hole.

Bullets Rout Sonics; Force A Seventh Game

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — To veteran Bobby Dandridge and rookie Greg Ballard, it was just a last-minute offensive change for Washington. To Seattle, it spelled disaster.

Using three forwards and at times a four-forward offense, the Bullets blew out the Seattle SuperSonics 117-82 Sunday to tie the National Basketball Association championship series at three games each.

The final game of the 1977-78 season will be played Wednesday night in the Seattle Coliseum, where the Sonics have won 22 in a row.

Guard Kevin Grevey unknowingly injured the wrist of his shooting arm in Game 5 Friday and it stiffened on the plane ride home from Seattle. Suffering, he finally went into the hospital late Saturday night, but Coach Dick Motta, who did not fly with his team, didn't learn about the injury until Sunday morning.

"It looked like we would have to scratch him (Grevey) because it swelled up and was bothering him," said Motta after the game. "Luckily, I had discussed it with Bobby, the idea of using him at guard previously, because Dennis Johnson (Seattle guard and high scorer) is so tall."

However, Grevey started and tried to play, but was replaced after six minutes by guard Charley Johnson with the Bullets down 11-7. In the second quarter, Motta replaced Johnson with rookie Ballard.

The lineup change put forward Dandridge at the guard slot with Tom Henderson and Ballard along the front line with two veterans, forward Elvin Hayes and center Wes Unseld. In the second half, Mitch Kupchak, normally a forward who sometimes plays at center, replaced Unseld in that lineup. "It was a combination of me going to guard and Greg coming in," said Dandridge of the late second-quarter explosion which moved the Bullets from a 1-point lead with 5:21 remaining, to 47-35 at halftime.

"That's the real Bullets," said Motta. "We played like that against San Antonio and Philadelphia (to reach the finals). I was wondering when we would get a good one."

"Next Wednesday's game should be one hell of a game," Seattle Coach Len Wilkens said. "This was the worst game we've played in a long time. We were totally out of sync. We relied too much on 1-on-1. We didn't play well."

Sweet Firsts Sunday In American League

By The Associated Press
Sunday was a day for sweet firsts in the American League. "This felt 15 times better than I thought it would," said California Angels Manager Jim Fregosi of his club's 4-2 triumph over the Boston Red Sox, his first victory as a manager.

"I felt great. Today I was challenging hitters, which is good," said Milwaukee's Randy Stein, who got his first major league victory in the Brewers' 12-7 opening-game triumph over Cleveland.

"A home run, period, is a big deal for me because I'm a line drive hitter. But a grand slam...I was so excited I jumped when I got to first base," noted Dick Davis, whose first major league bases-loaded homer was the key hit in Milwaukee's first-game win.

"I hadn't really been doing anything wrong at the plate but I had been pressing," said Lenn Sakata, who got his first hit since April 29 in the Brewers' 9-4 nightcap triumph.

The Angels' victory snapped the team's seven-game losing streak. But the Red Sox managed to snap a jinx of their own, finally scoring off Frank Tanana at Anaheim Stadium.

"I don't know what it is, I can't explain it," said Tanana, 9-2, who surrendered two unearned runs to Boston in the ninth inning before getting last-out relief help from Dave LaRoche. Tanana, the AL's first nine game-winner, is 4-0 at home against the Red Sox and hasn't surrendered an earned run in 43 innings there. "Maybe it's having good stuff on the day you pitch against them here."

Brewers 12-9, Indians 7-4
Stein, Davis and Sakata were an excited bunch of Brewers after contributing mightily to the Milwaukee sweep of the Indians.

Other second-game stars for Milwaukee were Sixto Lezcano, with a three-run homer, Paul Molitor with a two-run shot and Sal Bando with a solo job.

A's 6, Yankees 4
Miguel Dilone's first major league homer and Gary Thomasson's round-tripper helped Oakland hand the defending World Champion Yankees their fifth loss in six games.

Orioles 4, Mariners 1
Mike Flanagan's seventh complete game this season and Ken Singleton's four RBI, including a two-run homer, lifted the Orioles to their fifth victory in a row.

Bill Plummer homered for Seattle, which lost its seventh consecutive game.

Royals 13, White Sox 2
Kansas City remained a game behind Oakland in the AL West as Darrell Porter sparked an 18-hit attack with five hits, including a pair of triples and a double.

John Wathan and Al Cowens knocked in three runs each as the White Sox' seven-game victory skein ended.

Rangers 9, Blue Jays 5
Al Oliver drove in four runs with a single and a double and Texas jumped to a 6-0 lead after two innings in support of Dock Ellis, 4-2.

Rick Bosetti and John Mayberry homered for the Blue Jays, who saw starter Dave Lemanczyk, a 13-game winner last year, drop to 1-9.

Tigers 6, Twins 4
Steve Kemp's third homer of the season and three unearned runs were enough to vault the Tigers past Minnesota, despite two home runs by Glenn Adams and a round-tripper by Rod Carew.

Lee To PSU

Billy Lee, a former assistant basketball coach at East Carolina, will be named today as head coach at Pembroke State University, according to a reliable source.

Lee served two years on the Pirate cage staff before resigning this spring. Dan Kinney, an ECU assistant who left to become an assistant at PSU last year, will serve as Lee's top aide, the source said.

ART SCHOOL FIRE. Minimal damage was done in a fire in a second-floor studio-classroom of the Leo W. Jenkins School of Art Building on the East Carolina University campus Sunday morning as Greenville firemen quickly extinguished the blaze. Firemen said the blaze was reported at 8:32 a.m. by Benjamin H. Jenkins of 207-B N. Summit Street. Only a little furniture and no student projects were destroyed, according to Tran Gordley of the School of Art faculty. No damage was done to the building. The cause was not determined. (Reflector Photo By Tommy Forrest)

The FARM SCENE

By Michael E. Regans, Associate Agricultural Extension Agent

Want to know about a modern "wonder of the world?" It's America's farmer. They are truly one of the productive wonders of today's world. They not only feed us - but, are instrumental in keeping America strong.

Each farm worker in the U.S. provides enough food to supply himself and 56 other Americans. Not only do American farmers feed America - they also produce enough food to provide sustenance for an equal population overseas.

This amazing productivity of the American farmer is really a great bargain for Americans. In spite of continuing inflation, the efficiency of American farmers enables American families to eat well for a smaller share of their take-home pay than people in any other nation.

And the money Americans have left over after paying for their food has been the key to the great growth in production of automobiles, television sets, recreational equipment - all the things that Americans buy and use.

The family farmer in America is living example of free enterprise in action. The productivity of the American farmer and his family, with perhaps some extra help at harvest time, brings us this truly great bounty of food.

You realize farmers are important if you ask the simple question, "Where's my next meal coming from?" The farm of course!

So when you sit down to eat tonight, pause just a moment and remember America's farmers and the bounty of food they provide.

June is Dairy Month - and throughout the Southeast, the celebration will take place under the theme "Milk - A Natural Choice".

For over 40 years consumers have paid special tribute to dairy farm families during June for their unique contributions to our nation's health.

Although milk production and promotion take place all year long, June has been designated as a special month-long salute to the people, and industry who provide consumers with their daily needs of high-quality, nutritious milk and milk products.

After all, milk is a natural choice for consumers. It is a natural choice when you consider the tremendous nutritional qualities of milk. Milk is an excellent source of high-quality protein, calcium, and many other essential vitamins and minerals. Milk is also a natural choice when you consider value. It is very difficult to find a more nutritious food, at a lower cost. And milk's price has remained relatively stable over the past several years, increasing less than the price of most other foods. Milk is a natural choice in terms of the dairy industry's contributions to our economy.

Milk and dairy products are one of the few agricultural commodities produced in each of the 50 states. In many areas, the dairy industry is a large employer and taxpayer. Millions of Southeast consumers will hear the message "Milk - A Natural Choice" during June of this year. June is a time of special honor for the dairy industry of our country - a natural time to say thanks to dairy farm families for providing our daily needs of milk and milk products.

Improving Odds Appear In Heart Transplants

NEW YORK (UPI) - The probability that the heart transplant recipient will survive in good health beyond one year has continued to improve.

A report from the National Heart Institute says the probability that the heart transplant recipient will survive in good health beyond one year has continued to improve.

No Pork In 'Turkey Ham'

By MICHAEL J. CONLON WASHINGTON (UPI) - The government has decided too many consumers think "turkey ham" has pork in it.

As a result the Agriculture Department is proposing a label change that would require the phrase "cured turkey thigh meat" to appear in easily readable print to clear up any confusion.

The American Meat Institute and the National Pork Producers Council had petitioned the department to order an end to use of the word "ham" on anything other than pork products. "Turkey ham" is made from smoked or cured turkey meat and has been growing in popularity.

The two trade associations had contended that a sample of 400 consumers in four major cities showed the phrase was misleading. The Food Safety and Quality Service said, however, that it did not like the way the survey was taken and doubted its conclusions.

But it said it made its own survey as well and found that, while 40 to 54 percent of those polled understood they were buying cured turkey, "there is a substantial group of consumers (8 to 19 percent) that believe it to contain some or all pork meat."

In a notice published in last week's Federal Register, the Agriculture Department also proposed that the word "ham" when used in the phrase "turkey ham" be of the same size and color as the word "turkey" in order to equalize the two ideas in the buyer's mind.

"Turkey ham is finding increasing consumer acceptance," the notice said. As a result it additionally proposed certain standards which must be met for any product which wants to call itself that.

to improve most likely to benefit. Preferably the patient should be less than 50 years of age, should not have high blood pressure in the pulmonary - lung - circulation. The patient also should have no evidence or unresolved pulmonary blood clots or infarctions - lung tissue that died due to poor or cut off circulation. The candidate also should be free of any serious infections and should not have insulin-dependent diabetes.

Improved means for early detection of rejection episodes and for monitoring immunosuppressive therapy. The patient must walk a tight line between suppression and rejection. The improved techniques make it possible to hit rejection early in the game.

Early and aggressive diagnosis and treatment of infections. Infections are a major cause of sickness and death among heart transplant recipients. This is due to their reduced resistance - a result of the immuno-suppressive therapy necessary to prevent and control rejection episodes.

Careful control of diet to cut down the development of hardening of the arteries in the new heart.

The first three months after surgery are likely to be the most critical. In one study of 109 recipients, 49 died during the three month period. But for the ones surviving beyond that prospects for long-term survival improve substantially.

Eighty percent were alive after one year, 66 percent after two years, 52 percent after three years, 48 percent after four years, and 43 percent after five years.

However, waiting for a heart to become available when one has been okayed as a heart transplant patient doesn't always have a happy ending.

A report from the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute notes that among 40 on a waiting list the average survival was 46 days when no hearts became available.

The longest a person with a failing heart lasted on a transplant waiting list before dying was nearly a year. Organ procurement programs are not always successful in the search for suitable donated hearts.

Dear Abby

Kooky Clothes For a Comical You

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Have the clothes designers gone mad or am I crazy? When my husband looked at a recent fashion magazine, he burst out laughing and said if I ever dressed in the absurd fashions of today, he would send me to a shrink. We would appreciate your personal opinion on the latest fashions.

CONNIE AND JOHNNY

DEAR C. AND J.: I agree with you! It's my view that the new clothes are designed for women with no breasts and no hips, who stand 6 feet tall and weigh 105 pounds. Furthermore, this year's styles are intentionally kooky in order to make milady's last year's clothes look completely outdated. Me? I'm wearing what I think looks good on me - regardless of how old it is. And if I need something new, I'll have it made!

DEAR ABBY: As the mother of two small children, I cannot understand how anyone could leave their children for three days without leaving a number where they can be reached. Yet I know they do.

Abby, please inform your readers that whenever parents leave their children in the care of another, a signed document should also be left, which should read as follows: To Whom It May Concern:

This authorizes (baby-sitter) to give permission to any doctor, nurse or hospital to provide normal or emergency medical care as they deem necessary in the best interest of my child (ren) (names and ages).

Sincerely,

Parent (s) and/or Legal Guardian (s)

Without such a document, many doctors, nurses and hospitals cannot provide medical care for these children. Please publish this in your column; you may help to save some young lives!

MRS. C., HOT SPRINGS, ARK.

DEAR MRS. C.: Consider it done.

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend who is always looking for dirt in somebody else's house. The minute she walks in, she looks in the corners for a speck of dust that might have been overlooked.

I have even seen her open closets, cupboards and drawers. It's a habit. She looks behind the davenport, under rugs, and once I saw her look behind somebody's washing machine.

The minute she leaves, she says, "My, she's a terrible housekeeper." Or, "Not a trace of dirt - she must have just cleaned."

What is the matter with a person like that? CURIOUS IN LINCOLN PARK

DEAR CURIOUS: People who are constantly searching for flaws, imperfections and signs of "dirt" around others, do so in order to avoid seeing their own. Pray for them.

Do you wish you had more friends? For the secret of popularity, get Abby's new booklet: "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (24 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Refugees Begin Hunger Strike

CHICAGO (AP) - About 200 Chilean refugees have begun a hunger strike to protest the disappearance of several people under the military junta in the South American country.

A spokesman for the refugees said Sunday that similar strikes will take place in several other U.S. cities and 19 countries.

The spokesman said the refugees in Chicago will continue their strike until the junta releases some information concerning the missing persons. About 200 relatives of the missing persons have been on a hunger strike in Chile for almost two weeks, the spokesman said.

When suckers are your problem, Off-Shoot-T is your answer.

The reason? Off-Shoot-T works! It never gives suckers an even break. For almost a decade, Off-Shoot-T has knocked out more suckers in flue cured tobacco fields than any other chemical contact.

So don't get suckers. Get Off-Shoot-T. Two applications 3 to 5 days apart, plus maleic hydrazide, give you almost perfect sucker control.

Off-Shoot-T lets you top and spray early since it's a contact, not a systemic sucker control agent. And that means better tobacco yields and better leaf quality. An important factor in tobacco exports.

What's more, by practically eliminating suckers, Off-Shoot-T can save you costly hand suckering. And you know that means even more money in your pocket.

This season don't let suckers reduce the quality of your tobacco. Get the Tobacco Belt's best sucker control program with Off-Shoot-T. To help cure suckers in flue cured tobacco.

For more information, write: Agricultural Specialties Department, The Buckeye Cellulose Corporation, 1355 Lynnfield Road - Suite 210, Memphis, TN 38138. Off-Shoot-T 85.

Stay with the reliables.

Bargain basement sucker control is no bargain.

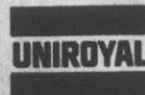

When you're raising a crop that's worth up to $3600 an acre, you don't take chances on anything as basic as sucker control.

That's why most tobacco growers stay with the industry's two leading systemics. MH-30 or Royal MH-30 from Uniroyal Chemical.

Good tobacco growers know that you never sacrifice dependability for price. So go for all the reliability you can buy. Insist on original MH-30 or fast acting Royal MH-30 with Sorbatran*. It's just good business. Uniroyal Chemical, Division of Uniroyal, Inc., Naugatuck, CT 06770.

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠K7 ♥852 ♦J10952 ♠AQ8
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♦ 3 ♠ 4 ♥ ?
What action do you take?
A.—Nothing is clear-cut. However, over the long run a raise to four spades should work out advantageously. First, it's unlikely that you can beat four hearts. Secondly, there are many hands where you might make four spades, and finally, a sacrifice at four spades shouldn't prove expensive. After all, partner did make a vulnerable preempt at the three-level.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠982 ♥AJ1095 ♦8 ♠AK93
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 2NT 3 ♠ ?
What action do you take?
A.—Pass. We wouldn't quarrel with a double, but it is probably wiser to let partner make the decision. A double might not work out at all that well if partner's two no trump bid includes three-card support for your suit and scant spade values, so you should let him clarify his holding.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠A8 ♥J2 ♦KQJ854 ♠Q105
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♥ 1 ♠
Pass Pass 3 ♦ 3 ♠
Pass Pass 4 ♦ Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.—Partner has announced a strong hand, and though you have told him that you have a minimum, he doesn't know that you have a good six-card suit and first-round control of East's suit. You can get both messages across by cue-bidding four spades—partner won't play for more than you have.

Q.4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KJ52 ♥AQ1095 ♦7 ♠K82
What is your opening bid?
A.—Holding four spades and five hearts, it is sometimes correct to open one spade to leave yourself with a convenient rebid. However, this is not the hand for that action—your heart suit is so much better than your spades. Open one heart, and should partner respond two diamonds, rebid two hearts. You are not strong enough to reverse into two spades.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠9763 ♥AQ852 ♦Q76 ♠3
Partner opens the bidding with one no trump. What do you respond?
A.—Bid two clubs, the Stayman Convention, asking partner to bid a four-card major if he has one. If partner rebids two hearts or two spades, raise to game. If partner rebids two diamonds, denying a four-card major suit, you can bid two hearts. That shows a five-card suit and forces partner to bid again.

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♥AKJ873 ♦AKJ92 ♠83
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♥ Pass 2 ♥ 3 ♠ ?
What do you bid now?
A.—Despite the fact that partner could not do more than raise to two hearts at his first turn, there are definite chances for slam. A cue-bid of four spades will alert your partner to your ambitions, and could give you the opportunity to highlight your club weakness later in the auction.

Q.7—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠5 ♥K ♦1097652 ♠107432
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♥ Pass Pass Dble.
Rdble. 1 ♠ ?
What action do you take?
A.—In terms of high cards your hand is not worth much, but distributionally it offers considerable offensive potential. Partner has shown a good hand with his redouble, so we would start looking for a minor-suit fit. Bid two diamonds.

Q.8—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠982 ♥Q103 ♦AQ962 ♠KJ
Your right-hand opponent opens the bidding with one diamond. What action do you take?
A.—What would you like to do? The bidding has been opened in your best suit and you don't have the values for a no trump overall, which would show 16-18 points. Your support for the unbid suits could not be called robust even in the most polite circles. Pass, and see how the auction develops.

Frankie Laine In Quick Recovery
EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — Singer Frankie Laine was admitted to Welborn Hospital's cardiac care unit for a day and a half, but recovered sufficiently to give two concerts the day he was released.

Laine, 64, complained of dizziness about 30 minutes into a performance at the Executive Hotel in Evansville Thursday night and was admitted to the hospital, said spokesman John Mayer.

Hospital spokesman Larry Baum said Cugat, 78, returned to his Wilshire District home Sunday.

Many Win Share Of Theater Awards

By WILLIAM GLOVER

AP Drama Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — This year's Tony Award for the best musical of the Broadway season went to "Ain't Misbehavin'," a sassy Harlem jazz revue, while "Da," a gentle Irish memory play, took the best drama prize.

Besides getting the top silver medallions Sunday night, announced at the end of a CBS telecast that as usual ran over-time, "Ain't Misbehavin'" got two other awards, for outstanding musical direction by Richard Maltby Jr. and for the featured performance of Nell Carter.

"Da," written by Hugh Leonard, also won the drama director award for Melvin Bernhardt in his Broadway debut, the star actor prize for veteran Barnard Hughes and the featured actor citation for Lester Rawlins.

Both of the winning shows originated in off-Broadway theaters, and both previously won the annual citations of the New York Drama Critics Circle. Ironically, another nominated musical, "On the Twentieth Century," got more Tonys than "Ain't Misbehavin'," scooping five for actor John Cullum, featured actor Kevin Kline, scenic designer Robin Wagner, best score by Cy Coleman with lyrics by Betty Comden and Adolph Green, and best book, also by Comden and Green.

Under regulations established by the League of New York Theaters and Producers, which administers the awards, "Ain't Misbehavin'" was not eligible for either score or book nomination because it uses the music of the late Thomas "Fats" Waller and has only a fragmentary story line.

Liza Minnelli was picked as top musical actress for "The Act." The other individual honors in musical categories went to Bob Fosse as choreographer of "Dancin'" and to Jules Fisher, the same show's lighting designer.

The top dramatic actress trophy went to Jessica Tandy in "The Gin Game." Picked as the outstanding featured play actress was Ann Wedgeworth in "Chapter Two." A new competitive classification this year, for an outstanding revival, was won by "Dracula," which got another prize for the costumes by Edward Gorey.

The third annual special Tony for an outside-of-New York resident performing organization was presented to the Long Wharf Theater of New Haven, Conn.

The League's Lawrence Langner Award for distinguished lifetime achievement was presented by Bob Hope in absentia to composer Irving Berlin.

After the telecast, the black tie and dinner gown audience at the Shubert Theater trekked cross-town for a midnight celebration in the Waldorf-Astoria Grand Ballroom.

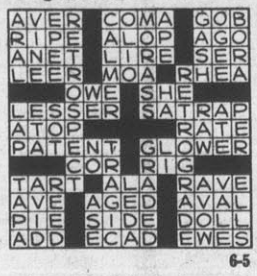

Tonys were first awarded in 1947 in memory of Antoinette Perry, one of the founders of the American Theater Wing, a tax-exempt organization which today promotes theater around the country.

NAMED BEST ACTOR — Veteran actor Barnard Hughes smiles after winning the best actor award in the 32nd annual Tony Awards Sunday night. Hughes was cited for his portrayal of an irascible Irish father in "Da", which also won best play. (AP Laserphoto)

CRYPTOQUIP 6-5

UNOONKE YNA'F OKNEQNF C
TNOAN YQT UNQEC

Saturday's Cryptquip — CASTLES IN AIR CANNOT OCCUPY OUR LANDED PROPERTY.

© 1978 King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Today's Cryptquip clue: E equals D

The Cryptquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

MUSIC IN THE TETONS

TETON VILLAGE, Wyo. (UPI) — The Grand Teton Music Festival will offer 29 different programs of symphonic music, chamber music and opera-in-concert-form during its July 20-Aug. 26 season in the Teton Mountains, 40 miles south of Yellowstone National Park.

SMILING IN DEFEAT — Former Navy Secretary John Warner looks down from the podium as he urges the GOP Senatorial nominating convention in Virginia to support Richard Obenshain in the summer campaign months ahead. 'Save-Skylab' Effort Ready

By AL ROSSITER JR.
UPI Science Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The save-Skylab effort resumes Monday and by next Saturday the federal space agency hopes the 84-ton orbiting laboratory will have maneuvered into a position that will keep it from falling back to Earth as early as next spring.

If the week's operation is successful, scientists believe the abandoned Skylab will stay up long enough for space shuttle astronauts to use a remotely controlled rocket unit to either push it into a higher orbit or send it on a safe path back toward Earth.

If Skylab's orientation cannot be changed, scientists predict the drag of the very thin upper fringes of Earth's atmosphere will gradually slow it down, letting it to fall gradually into the grip of the atmosphere so it will re-enter as early as April 1979.

Although much of Skylab's 118-foot hulk would be expected to burn up from atmospheric friction, some pieces probably would survive and could hit anywhere along the broad belt beneath its orbit. The ship covers 75 percent of the world's land including all states except Alaska.

Skylab, launched in 1973, was contacted by radio last March for the first time since 1974.

A series of operations since then have confirmed that most of its systems still work and have charged 22 of its 26 batteries with solar energy.

Object of the maneuvers planned this week is to turn Skylab so that it will present the slimmest profile in its forward movement as it circles the globe once every 90 minutes at a current altitude of 242 miles.

Key to the operation are two large spinning wheels that store momentum and act to maintain a desired position. These gyroscopes must work to hold Skylab in the right attitude because there is not enough gas aboard the ship to use small control jets.

Skylab has three such gyroscopes, but one failed in 1973. In addition, one was overheating when the Skylab mission ended and its fate will not be known until the units are started up Thursday.

Controllers at the Johnson Space Center in Houston Monday will turn on a set of electric heaters to warm up the gyros. If the gyros work properly, Skylab will start changing position Friday with the final maneuver scheduled for 6:55 a.m. EDT Saturday.

The planned drag reduction position is expected to add six to 12 months to Skylab's estimated orbital lifetime.

Electronic Payment Is Near In N.C.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The day is soon coming in North Carolina when companies with multi-state operations can pay distant payrolls from headquarters without writing a check, and individuals can pay bills in other parts of the country just by authorizing a bank to transfer the money.

It will all happen electronically, and it moved a step closer to reality today when the Automated Clearing Houses in the Fifth Federal Reserve District, which includes North Carolina, and those in the Twelfth District, including Washington and Utah, phased into the developing network.

By October the entire country, with the exception of Nevada and West Virginia, will be connected by the electronic funds transfer network.

"EFT is nothing more than an improvement on our financial delivery systems, just as the check was an improvement on the use of cash for certain purposes," said Mike Shade, executive director of the North Carolina Automated Clearing House Association.

There are 32 automated clearing houses throughout the country. The federal government makes the largest use of them, making about 120 million payments a year to recipients of Social Security, civilian and military retirement, and others.

North Carolina's ACH began operating in July, 1976. Currently 80 financial institutions are members: 74 banks, three savings and loan associations, and three credit unions. They handle financial transactions for over 120 companies, organizations, government bodies and colleges.

General Electric at Wilmington uses EFT for automatic payroll deposit, as do North Carolina State University, Hanes Corporation, Forsyth County, Charlotte Memorial Hospital, and the Alcoa Plant at Badin. Suppliers of Medicaid medical care also are paid through the service.

The big motivation in developing the EFT service, according to Shade, has been the rising cost of payment systems. "The cost of processing paper documents, including checks, associated with the present payments delivery system is two-thirds direct labor. And the transaction volume is staggering, due to consumer acceptance of financial services.

"For example," he said, "in 1945 Americans wrote five billion checks; in 1977, 32 billion, and by 1980 the total will be at least 44 billion. In 1975 it cost approximately 20 cents to process each check; we expect the cost to be 34 cents by 1980.

"You don't have to be a student of economics to recognize that financial institutions cannot continue to provide the same level of services at today's prices unless something is done to stem the flood of paper that must be processed. That's what the Automated Clearing House is designed to accomplish.

Police and FBI agents say mobsters control most of the bootleg trade which enriches North Carolina but cheats other states out of at least $400 million a year. Forty percent of all cigarettes wholesaled in North Carolina ends up in smugglers' hands.

In the first of a three-part series on cigarette smuggling, the Observer said it found: —A federal grand jury in Philadelphia is probing North Carolina's largest wholesaler, Southern Wholesale Co. of Goldsboro Inc., because of suspected organized crime involvement. Paul Vinson Jr., owner of 90 percent of Southern, declined comment except to say he had sold no cigarettes without North Carolina tax stamps. He confirmed that the grand jury has subpoenaed some of his employees and records.

—Smugglers' suppliers no longer are confined to outlets along major north-south highways in eastern North Carolina. They flourish throughout the state, primarily supplying high-tax states like Florida, New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Michigan, Minnesota and the New England area.

—Police say there have been at least five killings in other states which may have been related to smuggling in the past three years. Cigarette smoking has become a major income source for organized crime, and finances loansharking and narcotics.

Cigarette smugglers make their profits by buying cigarettes cheaply in North Carolina and selling them in high-tax states without paying the taxes. The Observer says it has learned when the case of Morris Kessler of Brooklyn, the alleged mastermind of the cigarette smuggling operation in New York, comes to trial, evidence will show that unstamped cigarettes for his operation came from Metrolina Tobacco Co. of Albemarle.

Wayne Morris, owner of Metrolina in 1976, told the Observer he never sold cigarettes without North Carolina tax stamps.

Morris couldn't explain to the Observer reporters how New York agents found cases of cigarettes in their original, unopened factory boxes with his company's name stamped on the side but bearing no North Carolina stamps. The Observer did not say how it learned in advance about the evidence in the Kessler trial.

It's legal in North Carolina to sell any amount of cigarettes, as long as taxes are paid and the proper stamps are affixed. Buyers may be considered smugglers when they carry cigarettes into another state without paying that state's taxes, but they haven't violated any North Carolina laws.

As more sophisticated smugglers moved into the business, they began counterfeiting tax stamps of high-tax Northern states. That allowed them to sell cigarettes more openly and at higher prices, but they needed cigarettes unblemished by North Carolina stamps to do that.

One place to get those is from wholesalers willing to violate state laws and leave the stamp off. And the smugglers get another bonus: buying wholesale is cheaper.

Southern Wholesale Co.'s sale of $50 million worth of cigarettes a year makes it one of the biggest among 200 North Carolina cigarette wholesalers.

Southern operates out of offices in a small shopping center on the edge of Goldsboro, 50 miles east of Raleigh.

Lee Bryan, vice president and owner of 10 percent of the company, says "those idiots up North" referring to the police, don't know what they're talking about when they make accusations against Southern.

"You've got the wrong idea about me," he said, referring all questions to Paul Vinson, Southern's president and the man who owns the other 90 percent of the company.

Vinson, 40, the Jaycees' Goldsboro man of the year in 1962, said his business is "just as clean as the Junior Women's Club."

But police believe otherwise. Two months ago, FBI agents in Philadelphia raided the Phillips Candy and Tobacco Co., which was suspected of distributing smuggled cigarettes with counterfeit Pennsylvania tax stamps.

Their search warrants said they were looking for business records pertaining to Southern. They found none, but the Observer has learned they did find unstamped cigarettes in boxes bearing Southern's name.

Vinson says he "never heard of that company until I read about it in tobacco journals." The unstamped cigarettes, he says, "did not come from Southern Wholesale."

He does business, Vinson said, only with legitimate retailers and has no control over whom they sell to.

And he said he's at the center of federal attention because, "When you're the biggest of something, on the top, they pick at you. We took a lot of business away from people. We've stepped on a lot of toes. It's really a highly competitive, cutthroat business."

Vinson denied ever selling unstamped cigarettes.

TOWN COMMONS DOCK FOR HOUSEBOAT — The town commons walkway became the temporary dock for a house boat last week before movers were to remove it from the river. Owner Bob Montaquila said he purchased the boat from a friend and brought it from Morehead City where the boat was built and kept for the last two years. Montaquila said he was having the 1600 square foot house removed from the water and will make it permanent residence overlooking the river. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)
