City Council Asks County California Increase Funds Participation Cuts Back Its Taxes

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
Greenville City Councilmen and members of the Board of County Commissioners met last night for their second scheduled quarterly meeting to discuss items of joint interest to the two governing boards.

The major items discussed at the session included Greenville's rescue squad, Sheppard Memorial Library, the Pitt-Greenville Airport Authority, and the county take-over of the city landfill.

Opening the discussion, Mayor Percy Cox told commissioners that the rescue squad budget for the current fiscal year totaled $132,000 and said the squad has requested $229,000 for the coming fiscal year.

"There's no way we can meet this budget," he said, without more participation from the county.

Noting that commissioners appropriated $9,700 for the Greenville squad for 1977-1978, Cox said that in April, the Greenville squad responded to 131 calls inside the city limits and 41 calls in the county. He added that squad vehicles traveled 685 miles responding to city calls and 578 miles answering calls outside the city limits.

The council, Cox said, has tentatively recommended a budget of $152,000 for the squad for the coming year, adding that, "this does not give them, the $21,000 (for a vehicle and equipment,)" they need.

Cox suggested that if more funds are not raised the city may be forced to "cut out county calls" because of the lack of equipment and manpower to handle them. "We don't want to do this," he emphasized.

Several of the commissioners expressed the opinion that something can be worked out with the city.

Commissioner Bruce Strickland emphasized that "it's a real credit to this county to have the rescue squad you have in this city."

The boards agreed to have the city and county manager work out some solution to the problem.

The Board of Commissioners for a number of years has appropriated funds for rescue squads throughout the county. Prior to last night's session, County Manager Reginald Gray had recommended $3,000 for squads in Ayden, Bethel, Gritton, Farmville and Winterville for the coming fiscal year, while recommending $2,200 for Fountain and $9,735 for Greenville.

Gray has also recommended three dispatchers for the Fire Marshall's office to provide central dispatch for all emergency services in the county, including rescue squads.

County Manager Reginald Gray assured the city council that the county is prepared to take over operations of the Greenville landfill July 1, as part of the Pitt solid waste program.

Several months ago the city offered to lease the landfill to the county at no charge as part of a county proposal to provide solid waste disposal service for the entire county. That project includes locating a number of 40-cubic yard containers at sites throughout the county over a three-year period to provide persons living outside municipal limits a more convenient place to dispose of their solid waste.

The county, when it takes over operations of the city landfill, will close the present county site just west of Greenville and reopen it after the city site has been filled to capacity.

Councilwoman Judy Green requested commissioners give serious consideration to increasing county participation in the funding of Sheppard Memorial Library. Mrs. Green stressed that the library, "serves every class of people, not only in Greenville, but in Pitt County. If the library doesn't get the money, it will have to cut services," she noted.

"I think it's only fair," she continued, that the county and city share equally in funding the operations of the library, "if you can do this."

Commissioners have just begun their study of the proposed 1978-1979 budget. However, Gray, in his budget message to the board, recom-

Problems Of Non-Whites Presented School Board

By REBECCA BUFFALO
Reflector Staff Writer

D. D. Garrett, Sr., president of the Pitt County Branch of the NAACP, and John Taylor, former assistant superintendent of the Pitt County Board of Education, appeared before the county school board yesterday to discuss problems faced by the non-white person in the present school system.

Stating that the board is comprised of all white members, Garrett, said there were no black principals in the four county high schools and only a few in the elementary school level. Garrett said also that the board afternoon meeting hour was unfair to the working parent.

John Taylor said that the non-white community and the school board needed to develop "teamwork."

Taylor asked the board members not to create "negativism" among teachers.

"Teachers need to be free to teach," Taylor stated.

According to Taylor, black children need black educators.

Garrett expressed his feelings concerning competency tests given to high school students.

"The tests will have negative results for the next five to ten years for the black and underprivileged," he said.

Garrett asked the board if it would be possible to give the tests to pre-school children before they are prejudiced.

In other business, Tom Craft, associate superintendent, presented for approval a $127,601.24 Driver Training Budget for 1978-79.

The budget, which covers 76 teaching months, as well as 1,063 prospective students, was approved.

School Finance Officer Dan Thomas presented an amended budget resolution for the board's approval.

Charles Entzminger of Cha Rich Music and Gerald Crane of the Music Shop appeared before the board to clarify the situation concerning rental equipment used by the county schools.

Larry Graham, a local attorney, and Susan Quinn, representing the Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce, both spoke in behalf of the two local businesses. Superintendent Ott Alford appointed a committee to further study the situation.

Katheryn Lewis, director of pupil personnel services, brought before the board a child abuse reporting policy.

The policy, which complies with state regulations, allows Department of Social Services protective services workers to interview suspected abused children in the school, was accepted by the board.

Superintendent Ott Alford and the entire board recommended Judy Budacz, presently employed by W. H. Robinson Primary School in Winterville, to become principal of Falkland School.

Mrs. Budacz, recommended by the Falkland Advisory Council, will replace Joshua Potter, who has assumed the principal's duties at North Pitt High School.

WINNERS — Paul Gann, left, and Howard Jarvis hold up their hands Tuesday night in Los Angeles as their co-authored initiative, Proposition 13, was overwhelmingly approved. (AP Laserphoto)

By PETER J. BOYER
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — They didn't look like revolutionaries, those screaming housewives, construction workers and assorted political novices, but they permitted no other description.

"You're damn right we feel like revolutionaries," said Dick Molinoy, a cigar-chewing swimming pool installer. "I'm here because this is American history being made. ... How do I feel about Howard Jarvis? He should be president. If he could cook, I'd marry him."

Howard Jarvis was the hero of the day as co-author of Proposition 13, an initiative limiting property taxes to 1 percent of market value and cutting property tax revenue by about 7 billion.

It swept to passage Tuesday by a thundering tide of taxpayers' outrage.

"Proposition 13 is a people's revolution," one little old woman exclaimed hoarsely. "This is our Boston Tea Party."

Many supporters wore teabags beneath their "Yes on 13" buttons.

At Proposition 13 headquarters at the Biltmore Hotel here, the crowd bubbled as each election report showed the initiative pulling further ahead. The excitement became barely controlled frenzy when Jarvis appeared. The screaming faithful greeted their hero with 10 minutes of unbroken adulation.

"This is a victory for freedom and liberty in the United States," Jarvis told his disciples. "This is a new revolution against the politicians and insensitive bureaucrats whose philosophy is spend, spend, spend ... tax, tax, tax."

"Don't be surprised if the politicians try to cut the heart out of Proposition 13," Jarvis said. "But to those politicians, I give this warning: We, the taxpayers have spoken. Now we are watching you. To ignore us is political suicide."

Jarvis spoke of tax revolts in other states, saying the movement will "spread from Maine to California. Let's begin tomorrow to take our tax victory across the United States."

Paul Gann, co-sponsor of Proposition 13, said the victory showed "people have decided they are going to have to look after their own interests."

Across town, Proposition 13 opponents bemoaned what they called an emotional victory for the initiative, complaining that Jarvis exploited the angry mood of the California taxpayer. "The proponents of Proposition 13 have been very adept at tapping the public's frustrations and emotions," said Darlene Daniel, government finance director of the League of Women Voters.

Re-Elect Forbes President

Alfred A. Forbes, Raynor Forbes & Clark Warehouse, was reelected president of the Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade.

ALFRED A. FORBES

According to Forbes, his family brought tobacco to Pitt County in 1886. His uncle was one of the original owners of the Greenville Tobacco Warehouse, built in 1890. Forbes has two children, Major A. A. Forbes III of Hawaii and Mrs. Suzanne Ruffin of Manassas, Va., as well as three grandchildren.

Other officers were reelected as follows: J. B. Belcher, vice president, and J. N. Bryan, secretary-treasurer.

Big Pot Cargo Is Confiscated

LUMBERTON, N.C. (AP) — Officers confiscated more than a ton of marijuana they found aboard an airplane that landed without landing lights at the Lumberton airport around midnight Tuesday.

Acting on a report from airport security guard Everett Bass that a mysterious airplane had landed at the airport without landing lights, police investigated and found a World War II vintage plane parked on a runway. There was no one around.

Ater the policeman was joined by a highway patrolman, a search was made of the plane, described as a twin engine 1941 Lockheed Lodestar. There was no one aboard. A search of the surrounding area also yielded no suspects.

The officers said they found more than 75 bales aboard the plane, estimated to contain between 2,000 and 3,500 pounds of marijuana.

Hearings On Pitt Budget

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

County Commissioners this morning began a series of budget hearings, with various department heads presenting supporting data for the funds they requested in the proposed 1978-1979 budget.

Appropriations for the current year's budget total $21.4 million, while requests from the various departments and agencies funded by the commissioners for fiscal year 1978-1979 total $25.41 million. In his budget message to the board, county manager Reginald Gray has recommended expenditures totaling some $22.76 million.

Commissioners took their first look at the proposed budget at an afternoon session yesterday, and again reviewed Gray's budget message.

Salaries account for the largest portion of the increase in the budget, with Gray recommending a six per cent cost of living increase for county workers as has been recommended for State employees by the governor and the Advisory Budget Commission.

Other areas with major increases include the schools, the county's solid waste disposal program, and $1.79 million for renovation of the old hospital building as a county office facility.

The schools have requested $1.47 million more than they received this year for current expense items and more than $900,000 in new capital outlay funds. Gray has recommended a 10.6 per cent increase in the current expense appropriation and a 33.2 percent decrease in the current level of spending for capital projects.

The recommended solid waste budget amounts to $588,500, as compared with a $148,900 budget this year.

The proposed increase includes some $92,600 for purchase of bulk containers to be located on sites throughout the county and $160,000 to prepare the sites.

The proposed budget also includes $84,880 for contract hauling of the containers to the central landfill for disposal, and $25,000 for payments to municipalities which elect to haul their own solid waste to the landfill for disposal.

The county landfill, located on the Allen Road just west of Greenville, will close at the end of this fiscal year and the county will take over operation of the Greenville landfill July 1, providing solid waste disposal for the entire county at one location. The bulk containers located throughout the county will provide residents living outside municipalities a place to dispose of their waste without having to travel to the landfill.

The Department of Social Services budget, as recommended by Gray, totals $1.46 million as compared to the current year appropriation of $1.23 million, although the department requested $1.57 million.

Gray has also recommended $25,000 for the Eastern Carolina Sheltered Workshop as a capital expense item to help match a federal grant for a recreational and housing unit. The Sheltered Workshop requested $50,000 from the county.

One other sizeable request came from Sheppard Memorial Library, which, ac-

Confrontation Or Cooperation Choice Is Offered

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, in a major policy speech, told the Soviet Union today it "can choose either confrontation or cooperation" and find the United States prepared to meet either challenge.

Speaking against a backdrop of heightened superpower tensions, Carter said he was convinced the Soviet people want peace and that their government was trying "in good faith" to complete a treaty limiting strategic nuclear weapons.

But, by contrast, Carter said in a commencement address at the U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis, Md., the Soviets were exploiting instability in Africa as they try to expand their influence.

"To the Soviet Union," he said in his prepared remarks, "detente seems to mean a continuing aggressive struggle for political advantage and increased influence in a variety of ways."

Detente — accommodation between the two superpowers — must be "truly reciprocal," he said, with both the United States and the Soviet Union exercising restraint in troubled areas and in turbulent times.

Carter's speech, touted by his principal advisers as clarifying U.S. attitudes toward the Soviet Union, mixed both hard-line and conciliatory gestures. He consulted with Zbigniew Brzezinski, his national security adviser, and Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, among others, in preparing it.

The speech went through several drafts and was certain to be read closely in allied and friendly capitals for insights into evolving U.S. policies abroad.

An administration official, briefing reporters before Carter flew to Annapolis for the ceremony, said completion of arms control agreements and peaceful solutions to African conflicts depended on the Soviet Union as well as the United States.

The potential impact on Moscow was difficult to assess. The Russians have rebutted administration accusations until now, training their fire principally on Brzezinski, who accused them of breaking "the code of detente."

Carter took a cold view of Soviet intervention in Angola and Ethiopia through "proxy forces" — a clear allusion to Cuban troops that helped a Marxist faction triumph in Angola's civil war and helped Ethiopia to repel an invasion from Somalia.

This "persistent military involvement," Carter said, threatens regional peace as well as the independence of African nations.

For these reasons, he went on, the United States "will support African efforts to contain such intrusion," as it did by assisting in the civilian rescue effort in Zaire's Shaba province.

STREET MARKER REPLACEMENT

I live in Floral Park subdivision off Mumford Road just outside the Greenville City Limits. The street markers out here are faded and dilapidated. Recently the Rescue Squad had trouble finding the particular house it was called to because of this situation. I want to know who to contact to get these markers redone. Mrs. Shelton Smith Hotline contacted the Maintenance Division of the State Dept. of Transportation and learned that the streets in Floral Park are on the state highway system. We were told that the state is responsible for marking the streets with state road numbers and maintaining these, plus safety signs like stop and yield signs, but not for given street name markers.

County Planner Larry Hurlocker said that your subdivision is no longer the responsibility of the developer, so residents like yourself would have to take the responsibility.

Greenville Public Works Director Mayo Allen said the City of Greenville cannot provide signs for you, even though the subdivision is within the one-mile extraterritorial area surrounding Greenville. However, he said, the city does have a policy of allowing the city signs department to make signs for nearby subdivisions at cost, so there may be some uniformity if and when the subdivision is ever brought into the city. Cost, he said, would be $20 for a two-way sign; $28.50 for a four-way one, including a device for locking the plates in. Two-inch poles would be $10 each.

You say this cost is probably prohibitive at this time, but you and your neighbors are planning to undertake the project in some fashion. You asked that Hotline suggest that your neighbors who wish to help out contact you or your husband.

Couple Weds In Double Ring Ceremony Sunday

MRS. CHARLES DOIL KILLMON

FARMVILLE — Marlboro Free Will Baptist Church was the scene of the 3 p.m. Sunday wedding of Claudia Diane Williford of Farmville and Charles Doil Killmon of Greenville. The Rev. William Scott Sowers officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Joseph Claude Williford and the late Mr. Williford of Farmville. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Charles Norman Killmon and the late Mr. Killmon of Morehead City.

The church was decorated with two tree candelabras with yellow snapdragons and white pom poms. Green ferns formed a background behind the priedieu. Spring bouquets graced the hallway and reception table.

The bride given in marriage by her brother, Robert Lee Williford of Jacksonville, wore a formal gown of white silk organza fashioned with a colonial neckline, empire waist and bishop sleeves. The bodice and sleeves featured Venise lace appliques. The A-line skirt was designed with a chapel length train with matching lace on the skirt. Her chapel length veil was decorated and bordered with Venise lace. She carried a bouquet of daisies, roses and baby's breath.

Miss Trina Spear of Greenville served as maid of honor. She wore a maize medicino original floor length gown. Fashioned of polyester crepe, the dress featured spaghetti straps, empire waist and crystal pleats. The gown was accentuated with a jewel neck cape which flowed in the back. She carried a basket of daisies and baby's breath, decorated with a green bow.

The bridesmaids were Mrs. Dennis Tyson of Lincolnton, sister of the bride, Mrs. Connie M. Little Jr., sister of the bride, Mrs. Wayne Bryant of Greenville, Mrs. Morris Lewis of Farmville, and Miss Angie Flora of Farmville. The bridesmaids wore dresses of Nile green. They also carried baskets of daisies and baby's breath. Clusters of silk lily-of-the-valley with strands of Nile green ribbon were worn in their hair.

Charles Norman Killmon Jr., brother of the bridegroom from Morehead City, served as best man. The ushers were Dan Redyk, brother-in-law of the bridegroom from Baltimore, Md., Leavy Brock Jr. of Greenville, David Goodwin, Larry Stryon and Rubin Taylor, of Morehead City.

Karen Hester of Ayden, niece of the bride, was the flower girl. Michael Little, nephew of the bride, served as ring bearer. Mrs. Jesse Brann of Farmville, aunt of the bride, directed the wedding.

Mrs. William Scott Sowers of Farmville, organist, presented the nuptial music. Steve Sutton of Greenville sang "More."

The mother of the bride wore a formal gown of light blue trevira polyester, featuring a chiffon cape which flowed down the back of the dress. She wore white cymbidium orchids.

Dear Abby

It's Still Best To Tell Mother

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing in reference to the letter from the young girl who said that her foster father had been making advances toward her. You advised her to tell her foster mother at once!

Abby, I know you meant well, but I have learned after many years of experience as a child protection worker in a public welfare agency that telling the mother is useless.

In most cases, the mother would think the child is lying. And in other cases, if the girl is believed, the mother will refuse to bring charges against her husband for fear of the family's reputation and what the law might do to her husband. Then, too, if he's sent to prison, her breadwinner is gone! So she resolves all this by pronouncing the girl a liar and ingrate.

I would recommend that the girl tell her social worker or school counselor. They are trained to help the girl and her foster family.

N.Y. SOCIAL WORKER

DEAR SOCIAL WORKER: Whether she is believed or not, I still think it is imperative that the child tell her foster mother first. Then, if the situation doesn't improve, I always advise the child to seek help from a trusted teacher, adult relative, school counselor, clergyman or neighbor. Otherwise, when the father is confronted, the mother will know that the child has gone to "outsiders"—instead of coming to her—which could create even more difficulties in the home.

DEAR ABBY: What is your opinion of a woman who would take a job as a "housekeeper" for a single man? Part of the deal is that the housekeeper has to LIVE on the place.

If a woman sells all her own household goods, and sells (or rents) her own house so she can move in with a man and keep house for him, how do you think that looks?

What does the community think of a woman who would hire herself out this way? And what do YOU think?

NO NAME, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: Personally, I couldn't care less. But if I were to give it one moment's thought, I would assume that the housekeeper is KEEPING—not PLAYING—house. Now, what's YOUR problem, lady?

DEAR ABBY: Some new neighbors moved into our area, and we share a two-party line. Abby, this woman speaks as good English as I—I have heard her. But when she talks on the phone she always speaks a foreign language! I consider this an insult to me. What do you think of a neighbor like this?

Crone-Latham Vows Solemnized Recently

RALEIGH — Dinwiddie Chapel at Peace College was the scene of the wedding ceremony of Angela Loy Latham and Charles William Crone Jr. Saturday, May 27, at 4 p.m. The double ring ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Rufus Stark.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Mildred Best Latham of Greenville, and Mr. Lloyd Watson Latham of Wilson. Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Crone of Clayton are parents of the bridegroom.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her sister, Mrs. Lee Roy Thomas III of New Bern, was the honor attendant.

Bridesmaids were Miss Jean Patrick Spangler of Raleigh, Mrs. Dred Stuart Walston Jr. and Mrs. Thomas Jordan Rowland, both of Wilson, Mrs. Andrew Weathersbee III of Charlotte, Miss Linda Yvonne Bottoms of Wilson, Mrs. William Shelton Wilkins Jr. of Mount Olive, and Miss Mary Ellen Stockton of Raleigh.

The bridegroom's father was best man and ushers were Robert Peyton Crone of Clayton, brother of the bridegroom, James Bradley Crone, John L. Harris III and Earl Ledbetter Bowman, both of Chapel Hill, William Shelton Wilkins Jr. of Mount Olive, Dalma Hughes Barber of Rocky Mount, William Clem Poston of Raleigh, Timothy Byrd of Greenville, and Beal Brent Plyler III of Wilson.

A program of wedding music was presented by Monty Bosick, organist, and Dr. Robert C. Pope, vocalist.

The bride wore a gown of white satin glo qiana knit fashioned with a Queen Anne neckline, fitted empire bodice and cap sleeves. The neckline and bodice were adorned with appliqued Venise lace and matching lace created the cap sleeves. The full A-line skirt fell to floor length with a border, of matching lace that flowed into a full chapel train.

After a wedding trip to Portugal, the couple will live in Clayton.

The bride is a graduate of Peace College and UNC-CH. She is a promotion specialist with the N. C. Department of Agriculture. The bridegroom is a graduate of UNC-CH, where he was a Morehead Scholar. He is a partner in Charles Crone Associates, Inc., Raleigh.

A reception was held following the ceremony at the Velvet Cloak Inn given by the father of the bride.

Pre-nuptial events honoring the couple included a wedding breakfast given by Miss Carey Barbour, Mr. and Mrs. Swede Barbour Jr., Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Bass, Mrs. Lawrence Cooper, Dr. and Mrs. Minter Payne, Mr. and Mrs. Stan Pede and Mrs. Alfred Taylor.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Croone entertained at a rehearsal cocktail Buffet at the Raleigh Club. Miss Ellen Stockton of Raleigh entertained at a bridesmaids luncheon.

Harps Can Be Heavy As Well As Heavenly

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Harpists, say those who are work like devils to play like angels and being one is hardly heavenly.

What's so angelic, they ask, about lugging around a 78-pound, 6-foot-tall musical instrument that probably costs you about $8,500.

To get a melody by plucking the strings means time-consuming and painstaking winding and rewinding the heads in the tuning process. If that doesn't bring you down to earth try being a harpist at a cocktail lounge.

That is how Susan Strasek uses her talents on the harp at a cocktail lounge in the Bond Court Hotel.

She said some bar patrons request such numbers as "Dueling Banjos" and "Melancholy Baby," but, apparently in deference to the instrument, one of the most frequently requested tunes is "Clair de Lune," by Debussy.

Being a barroom harpist is only part of her work. She also plays in the evenings at the hotel's dining room and at Sunday brunch.

Miss Strasek, 25, takes other engagements at Blossom Music Center, concerts and special events in the Cleveland area. She has performed as second harpist with the Cleveland Orchestra.

Despite the problems of transporting and tuning her instrument, Miss Strasek has been dedicated to the harp since she started training on it at the age of 9.

She said she was inspired to take up the harp when she was about 6 by the Marx Brothers movies where Harpo Marx played it.

"I suppose I was captivated by his playing," she said. "What he played sounded nice. We have the same birthdates, I found out later. I believe a little bit in astrology."

Her father, Frank Strasek, is an orchestra leader in Cleveland and her mother is a pianist and songwriter. Miss Strasek began studying piano when she was 5.

Applause is infrequent during her performances but she said her ego does not demand a lot of recognition.

"Nor does the harp command applause," she said. "The harp creates an atmosphere. It's pleasant, and it's more subtle than other types of entertainment."

"I suppose I enjoy it a great deal because it lets me express myself."

Auxiliary Officers Installed

The American Legion Auxiliary Unit 39 installed its officers Thursday night. Mrs. Betty Tetterton, Third District president, Unit 15, Washington, was the installing officer.

Officers are Sarah J. Ashton, president, Frances Strawn, vice president, Faye Adams, secretary, Lois Dail, treasurer, Mayo Rogers, chaplain, Lou Wilson, historian, and Mamie Roper, sergeant-at-arms.

A report from the poppy chairman, Betty Levey, was given. The 1978 Poppy Day donations were $1,350.

Mrs. Ashton announced the Girls States delegates, Susan Warshauer, Susan Tucker and June Wease, would give reports at the September meeting, which will be a covered-dish supper. Delegates to Boys State will also be invited.

The department convention will be held in Winston-Salem July 15-18. Miss Paige Levey will represent Division One as a page. Mrs. Dail, Miss Tammy Levey, Dr. Levey and Mrs. Ashton will be attending.

Miss Margaret Register and Mrs. Sallie Reagan assisted the installing officer. Dr. Levey presented the officers and hostesses corsages.

Mrs. Ashton expressed her appreciation to members and officers.

Mrs. Ashton will be installed as president of District Three at the department convention. Mrs. Louise Tucker and Mrs. Martha Rosa Whitehurst, chairman of the telephone committee, was recognized. The auxiliary will not hold meetings during July and August.

Anniversary Graduation Reunion Held

The Belvoir-Falkland High School Class of 1953 met to celebrate the 25th anniversary of its graduation Saturday at the Beef Barn here.

Neel Dupree Carson extended the welcome and Billy Ross gave the invocation. The class program was read by Nell Clark Eastwood.

Janette Boyd Spain recognized former teachers as special guests. They were Ola and Charlotte Forrest of Tarboro, Phil Taylor of Halifax, and J. T. Cobb and Lou Nelson of Greenville.

Class members who attended were Neel Dupree Carson of Kenbridge, Va., Dorothy Daniels Sawtell of Fredericksburg, Va., Wooty Manning Ledbetter of Yadkinville, Doris Nichols Pollard of Chesapeake, Va., June Turner Cherry of Charleston, S. C., Burley Clark of Frankinton, Alice McLawhorn White of Ayden, Elmer Harrell of Falkland, Billy Ross, Janette Boyd Spain, Elizabeth Brewer Brown, Howard Bullock, Neil Clark Eastwood, Seber Cobb, Barbara Dixon Tyson, and James Heath, all of Greenville.

The group plans to meet again in five years.

Shower Given Bride-Elect

A floating miscellaneous shower for Teresa Manning of Greenville, bride-elect of Carroll Griffin of Farmville, was held Sunday afternoon.

The shower was given by Miss Manning's aunts, Mrs. Pat Nichols, Mrs. Alberta Moye, Mrs. Janice Moore and Mrs. Tanya Jones at the home of Mrs. Jones.

The honoree was remembered with a mum corsage by her aunts.

The shower was attended by approximately 40 guests.

The wedding will take place June 10.

Summer Air Condition Tips

If you're thinking of installing air conditioning this year, consider these recommendations from agricultural extension specialists at N. C. State University.

Window air conditioners should be placed on the cool or north side of the house if possible. If installing central air conditioning, the compressor-condenser unit located outside the home should be shaded.

Also consider installing an attic exhaust fan. This will help to remove hot air from the attic and help reduce the cooling load of the air conditioner.

Engagement Announced

MISS MARILYN DIANNE MALLARD, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Mallard of Pollocksville, who announce her engagement to Thomas William Watson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyall Watson of Denville, N. J. The wedding will take place Aug. 19.

No-Growth Note Is Ominous

County Manager Reginald Gray recommended a county budget for the fiscal year 1978-79 to the county commissioners Monday.

There was an ominous note in his comments. Gray said that in preparing budget recommendations "I have taken into consideration revenue projections which are disappointing." He cited growth which has not kept pace with inflation, and this may mean a property tax increase.

After a flurry of industrial activity, there has been almost no new industrial development in Pitt County for years. We have heard reports that a major new industry which was considering our county has decided to go elsewhere.

One would think that in the face of all this the county commissioners would be concerned, and concerned enough to do whatever is necessary to encourage industries to consider Pitt County for location of future plants.

Yet, even after hearing the dismal report on economic growth Monday, our county commissioners turned around and approved a resolution which could kill the county's chance of obtaining a fully-controlled access highway leading westward to Raleigh. The commissioners embraced the Farmville position of continuing U. S. 264 along its present route at Farmville.

What the county commissioners can be thinking of is beyond us, to favor continuing to use the present meandering U. S. 264 route and create a virtual highway mess through Pitt County.

We think it is about time that the county commissioners started considering the interests of working people in Farmville, Greenville, and everywhere else in Pitt County. Future jobs are at stake here, and Pitt citizens who want to see an adequate and safe highway constructed—one that will enhance economic development—had better let the commissioners know how they feel before it's too late.

Drinks Take Lots Of Time

By Bill Noblitt

RALEIGH — Is North Carolina preoccupied with mixed alcoholic beverages?

The debate rages on this year in the General Assembly as lawmakers ponder whether to allow local option elections on serving mixed drinks in communities across the state.

This year's consideration is not a new proposal, but continuation of that begun in the 1977 session. The Senate adopted the proposal. When defeat appeared certain in the House of Representatives, strategists pushed the legislation into committee to be held for action in this rump session.

How many times has liquor held center stage?

Six, or seven, or eight, depending on whether you count such holdover battles as one or two.

Beginning 10 years ago, this state witnessed a steady stream of legislative maneuverings for liquor by the drink.

In 1967 and in 1969, similar local option measures were introduced which would have allowed mixed drinks if area residents approved. The first died in committee. The second died on the floor of the House of Representatives.

Two Counts

Back once more, in 1971, the mixed drinks question took the form of special legislation allowing a local option vote in only Moore and Mecklenburg Counties. The General Assembly allowed that; but the courts rejected such a measure as regulating trade in only two areas of the state, noting that such regulation must be applied uniformly statewide.

In 1973, the General Assembly set up a statewide referendum to settle once and for all the big question—do people want mixed drinks or not?

That November the vote went 292,397 in favor; 676,102 opposed.

Such an overwhelming defeat left people on both sides of the issue dumbfounded. Mixed drinks, many predicted, would never raise their controversial heads in this state again. Only Wake, Orange, and Mecklenburg County residents approved sufficient in numbers to carry the measure in those three of the state's 100 counties.

Then, an infamous trick took place and just one year later mixed drinks once again appeared for General

BILL NOBLITT

Assembly action. In 1974, as the General Assembly was in that rush to adjourn period when anything can and does happen, a "little amendment" to the Charlotte zoning law was described as just a technical change and sailed through both houses of the assembly. It was then found that the measure actually allowed liquor-by-the-drink in Mecklenburg and Guilford counties. The assembly hastily recalled and killed the law.

Three years later, in 1977, State Senator William Smith, D-New Hanover, put in a proposal to allow local option votes.

Opposed

Smith opposed mixed drinks personally, but said he believes in letting those who want them have the opportunity to win an election.

The 1977 measure is the one now before the state. It allows any area in which state-owned Alcoholic Beverage Control stores are located to vote on allowing mixed drink sales. Permits would go only to social establishments such as civic, fraternal, recreational, or patriotic clubs, or restaurants eligible for brown-bagging permits. Both systems could co-exist—both brown bags and mixed drinks.

The measure required that liquor be purchased in the local ABC store and that a special $5 tax be paid on each gallon in addition to current taxes.

A 15-Cent Breakthrough

WASHINGTON — While many people have complained about a first-class stamp going up from 13 cents to 15 cents, the U.S. Postal Service is very proud of it.

I talked to one of the men who developed the 15-cent stamp and he considers it one of the greatest breakthroughs in mail delivery since the invention of the zip code.

"For years we've dreamed of a 15-cent stamp, but it is one thing to have the concept and another to make it a reality. Ever since the people upstairs said they wanted it, we have been working day and night to develop one according to their needs."

"What specifically did they want?"

"They said they wanted a stamp lighter in weight so we could get more letters on an airplane. At the same time it had to take a beating from hail and snow and sleet. The stamp also had to be flexible enough to bend when it was bought in rolls instead of sheets. And the most important requirement was that it could not be used again when the post office failed to cancel it."

ART BUCHWALD

"How did you solve the last problem?"

"That was the most difficult," he said. "The post office has been losing between $10 million and $20 million a year because when people got a letter with a stamp that was not canceled they steamed it off and used it again. This is a federal crime, but very few federal attorneys will prosecute."

"They say it is too difficult to find a jury that will convict someone for recycling a postage stamp. So the people upstairs told us we had to come up with a stamp that couldn't be used twice. It wasn't an easy assignment. The first thing we developed was a glue with an explosive base. When a person tried to pry off an uncanceled stamp from a letter, the stamp would blow his hand off. We thought we had the solution but the Occupational Safety and Health Administration raised objections so we had to go back to the drawing board."

"That was tough luck," I said, "because it would have done away with the crime."

"Then we came up with a blue dye. If you tried to get the stamp off the envelope you would be covered from head to foot with this indelible dye, and then our postal inspectors would be able to make a foolproof arrest."

"The people upstairs didn't go for that!"

"They did, but the postal workers kept getting the dye all over their clothes and wanted the service to pay for new uniforms."

"What was the answer?"

"A secret glue which makes it impossible to steam the stamp off. It self-destructs if anyone tampers with it after it has been stuck on an envelope. It's the biggest breakthrough since the invention of air mail."

"Will the new 15-cent stamp speed up the delivery of mail?"

"I should hope so. With less weight and more stable corners, our new 15-cent stamp could break the record from New York to Washington by 45 minutes. A first-class letter can now get to any place within 500 miles in less than four days."

"That soon?" I said in amazement.

"Our only problem at the

Ready To Defer To Reagan

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Rep. Jack Kemp, secretly boosted by Republican kingmakers for the 1980 presidential nomination, has privately passed word to Ronald Reagan that he will step aside if Reagan runs.

Kemp, probably the party's hottest article today, gave a Reagan confidant this message:

He wants to run for the Senate in 1980 from New York, whether or not Sen. Jacob Javits retires. Noting speculation about his running for president that year, he pledged to support a Reagan candidacy. "You have my word in blood on that," Kemp said.

That reaffirms a clear path through the party's conservative wing if Reagan runs again, with Sen. Robert Dole previously declaring he would not oppose him. And Reagan seems likely to make an announcement early next year that he is "exploring" another race—a de facto announcement of candidacy. Kemp's deferral to Reagan eliminates a possible confrontation between master and pupil. While a professional football quarterback a decade ago, Kemp worked off-season on then-Gov. Reagan's staff.

Besides his basic conservative support, Kemp has been winning moderate Republican backing that eludes Reagan. For instance, liberal Minnesota Senate candidate Rudy Boschwitz (currently leading Democratic Sen. Wendell Anderson by 11 percentage points in the polls) wants Kemp's help. Advisers have told Boschwitz a Reagan appearance would hurt more than it would help.

A footnote: Reagan insiders doubt another Reagan-Ford bloodbath in 1980. They feel Gerald Ford will not enter the primaries but hope for a deadlocked convention that would turn to him. Reagan, enthusiastic and optimistic, will take the primary route.

Zbig And Hua

The cement in the new bonds between Communist Chinese leader Hua Kuo-feng and Zbigniew Brzezinski, President Carter's national security adviser, was Brzezinski's 3½-hour briefing on the whole range of U.S. strategic planning. Using the controversial PRM 10 as his guideline for the U.S. world role, Brzezinski exposed to Hua intimate U.S. military and political secrets. Henry Kissinger did much the same when he went to China for former President Richard Nixon. But he never told the world that he had laid bare U.S. strategic plans for Peking.

That difference pleased Chairman Hua. In another first, Brzezinski also authorized "counterpart" talks with Chinese leaders on trade and cultural exchanges. Even State Department aides who accompanied both Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and Brzezinski to China told us that Brzezinski's visit "clearly enhanced" U.S.-Chinese relations, compared with Vance's mission last spring.

What makes Brzezinski look so good to Chairman Hua is China's pathological fear of Soviet military power. The Chinese take to Brzezinski, now established as the leading if not the only hawk in the Carter administration, as a Peking duck to water.

A footnote: A key new factor is China's sudden purchases of U.S. grain—a record one million tons so far this year. Nevertheless, the fundamental dispute with Peking over close U.S. ties to Taiwan looks no closer to solution.

Maverick Flaherty

Maverick Democrat Peter Flaherty, who quit as President Carter's deputy attorney general to run for governor of Pennsylvania, is so far ahead that he neither courts nor expects help from the White House.

Like another maverick Democrat who wants no White House help—Gov. Jim Exon of Nebraska, running for the Senate—Flaherty patterns his campaign on individualistic politics. He is keeping arm's length from Big Labor and the state's regular Democratic organization, appealing not to established power blocs but to rank-and-file voters. That is the same politics which brought Jimmy Carter himself to the White House.

Flaherty looks almost unbeatable today in unpublished preprimary polls taken for Pennsylvania Republican leaders. One poll in early May showed Flaherty beating Republican nominee Richard L. Thornburgh, another former deputy attorney general, by a surprising 55 percent to 16 percent.

Both are from Pittsburgh, but former Mayor Flaherty's high standing with Pittsburgh voters gravely reduces Thornburgh's prospects there. That was the reason some Republicans fought hard for the nomination of Arlen Specter, former Philadelphia district attorney. Flaherty's only serious problem would be a decision by Philadelphia Mayor Frank Rizzo to take a third-term bid to the voters in a November referendum to amend the no-third-term ban. Flaherty would find it hard to duck taking a position that either way would alienate tens of thousands of Philadelphians.

WATER OF LIFE

A boat in the mouth of the Amazon River once sent out a call to another boat for fresh water. The Amazon is 150 miles wide at its mouth, and the captain of the distressed ship believed that he was out in the open sea.

The word came back from the other boat: "Lower your buckets over the side and get all the water you want. You are not in the ocean. You are in the mouth of the Amazon River."

God has already given us power to do an endless number of things for ourselves which desperately need to be done. We keep asking God to help us when as a matter of fact He has already helped us by giving us the powers by which we can help ourselves.

This does not mean that we should not pray. It only means that we should change our way of praying. We should stop asking God to give us powers we already possess and should ask instead that He stir within us the disposition to use these powers intelligently.

To the editor:

As a volunteer Red Cross instructor, I feel compelled to convey the following facts to the Greenville area public:

- No Red Cross certified instructor is allowed to charge any fee for his services in training the public in water safety, first aid, cardio-pulmonary resuscitation, etc.
- Any person who pays for swimming or first aid classes can rest assured that they are not eligible to receive an official Red Cross certification from the local Red Cross chapter. It should be noted, also, that this certification can only come from Mrs. Ruth Taylor, Chapter Executive Secretary for Pitt County Red Cross.
- Anyone doubting the authenticity of these facts should communicate directly with either Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Nell Stallings, local First Aid and Water Safety Volunteer Chairman, or the Piedmont Carolinas Red Cross Division Offices in Charlotte, 1-704-376-1661.

Many dedicated Red Cross volunteers give freely of their time to pass on their training and expertise to the public at no charge. When an individual is certified as a Red Cross instructor, he or she signs an agreement that there will be no charge for his or her instruction.

In recent years, certain individuals in the Greenville area have openly advertised that classes were available in various forms of water safety at an advertised fee. Further, these persons have led the public to believe in some cases that they would receive Red Cross certification for their efforts. These same individuals have alleged in their advertisements that they possessed certain Red Cross instructor's ratings that they, in fact, did not have, in some cases.

Courses in First Aid and Water Safety are available through the local Red Cross Chapter at NO CHARGE. All of these activities are funded through your contributions to the United Fund.

Will Americans Accept Less?

By John Cunliff

AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — If you judge from the limited results of primary voting returns, the anger of Americans against rising taxes is taking a very practical turn.

Reviewing returns from California, especially, and Ohio and New Jersey also, some political analysts are likely to see a tendency of Americans to translate their anger into practical politics.

But if there is evidence from the polls that Americans are fed up with rising taxes, there is less proof that they are willing to accept the alternative, which is a reduction of government services.

That, of course, is not just the other side of the proposition. It is the difficult side. Lower taxes are always acceptable if divorced from considerations of what taxes buy in goods and services.

But there is evidence also that price isn't the sole consideration. Studies show that many Americans just don't believe they are obtaining quality services. And they are convinced that waste is rampant.

No question about it: Americans are disturbed about the level of taxes, and some would claim there is evidence also that they are equally upset about government involvement in their lives.

Through taxes, it is said, local, state and federal governments are dictating to business, labor and homeowners, and attempting to dictate to each other, with the federal government by all measures the winner.

But there is abundant evidence also that institutions such as business, labor, and consumers are seeking more each year from government, while at the same time denouncing its power over them.

These demands, combined with inflation—which, it is often argued, is largely a product of big government and deficit spending—have indeed made life difficult for taxpayers.

The Tax Foundation, a tax-exempt organization zealously dedicated to reducing taxes by demonstrating waste, claims that the combined toll of taxes at all levels has risen 350 percent since 1960.

In recent years taxes in most areas have been rising at least as fast as increases in personal incomes, and now they often constitute the biggest single item in household budgets.

A typical taxpayer, the Tax Foundation notes, now works

RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — A neighbor whom we have known since she was that high is getting married soon and, in my post as poet laureate-designate of Rainbow Lake, has asked me to provide some quotations on life and love for the ceremony.

"We don't want Kahilil Gibran and any of that Prophet stuff," she said. "Everyone's using him at weddings."

I didn't know the Lebanese versifier was that big into the marriage stick, but then the last wedding I attended was Princess Anne's, with a press card in lieu of an embossed invite from the queen, and the archbishop of Canterbury stuck pretty much to the traditional text.

But this, apparently, is to be one of those mod do-it-yourself weddings, where the principals make up the script and the rubrics as they go along. The preacher, if any, is pretty much limited to an oleaginous mouthing of the necessary legalities without committing anyone to anything that might cause problems later in court.

Lots will be said about love but none of that anti-feminist claptrap about obeying or going to wither where thou witerest. The bride already has decided to keep her maiden name.

Since he likes to ski and she prefers sunny beaches, they have compromised on separate vacations, but they will honeymoon together at a dude ranch.

For a change, it seems that no roar of "we was robbed" is likely to follow Saturday's statewide primary. In view of the big margins by which two statewide races were decided, nobody short of Tom-Tom Heblin could attribute his defeat to "fraud and corruption" of the unholy opposition. The Toms idea of a fraudulent and corrupt election is any one in which the other side wins.

As a result, there is not likely to be any widespread demand in the 1939 General Assembly for a return to the old convention system of nomination.

Dr. Charles H. Herty, who has earned renown by producing paper from pine and gum trees' told Governor Hoyer today that the field for paper production in the south is practically unlimited.

"Before many years," said Herty, who operates laboratories at Savannah, Georgia, "perhaps the south's greatest cash crop will be its crop of trees trees."

Official canvass of Saturday's primary election, scheduled for 11 a.m. today, was postponed when representatives from two precincts—Pactolus and Falkland—failed to make an appearance.

J. H. Harrell, chairperson of the Pitt County Board of Elections, said the vote would be canvassed tomorrow at 1:30 p.m.

Solitary Prison Life For Joan Little

By KATHRYN WHITE
Associated Press Writer
With Laserphoto

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Upon her extradition, Joan Little will be tucked into a small, barren cell in the inmost recesses of the North Carolina Correctional Center for Women here.

She will live a solitary life, with no contact with other inmates, while prison authorities consider disciplinary action against her for her escape. Miss Little will leave her small compartment for only a few hours a day, for recreation, showers, meals and possibly some other programs.

A group of reporters were led Tuesday through the barred gates that set off the high security area to the austere, brick building in which she will be housed, Dorm C. The group then passed through a thick, steel door into a narrow hallway, off which barred cells extended.

Each freshly painted yellow cell contained four cots, an open toilet and a sink. But prison officials said Miss Little would have the cell to herself, at least at first.

Under administrative procedures, Miss Little could receive a maximum of 30 additional days of imprisonment for her escape and one to 15 days of punitive segregation.

State Prison Director Ralph Edwards also said she may face escape charges in the courts, where a conviction could add a maximum of two years to her sentence. But officials said she would be treated like other prisoners.

"Every reasonable precaution will be made to protect Miss Little at this prison," Edwards said. "I am not fearful of her safety at this institution. There are no unusual hazards."

Miss Little, 24, had been living in a more spacious, minimum security unit with single rooms and unlocked doors before she escaped from the prison last October.

After being captured in New York in December, Miss Little and her attorneys unsuccessfully fought her extradition to North Carolina in court, contending that her life would be endangered if she were returned to the prison.

An appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court, her last attempt to finish serving her term in New York, was denied Monday and she is expected to return to North Carolina within a week.

Miss Little gained notoriety during a 1975 trial in which she was found innocent in the icepick slaying of a jailer. She has been serving a seven-to-10-year sentence for breaking and entering, with the minimum term scheduled to expire Nov. 18, 1981.

Other friends we know getting married later in the month are hosting a his and hers shower, at which it will be perfectly proper to present the groom with a vacuum cleaner, a rotisserie, an electric can opener and other playthings for the pleasures to be shared with his bride in the ensuing contractual arrangements.

No Public Comment On Farmville Annexation Plan

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer
FARMLVILLE — A public hearing on the annexation of property on Highway 264 West brought no public comment during the Farmville Commissioners' meeting here last night.

The annexation ordinance is expected to be adopted during the next regular meeting of the Board, set for Thursday, July 6, at 7:30 p.m. The meeting is being postponed two days because the regular meeting time, the first Tuesday, falls on Independence Day.

A public hearing on land use and housing plans under the town's 701 grant was also set for the July 6 meeting.

The Board agreed to the following:

- to pay for the number of gallons of fuel used by the National Guard Armory here this past year over the previous year's usage, because the Armory has been used as the site for the Older Adult Nutrition Program.
- to change order for the waste treatment plant project, including $6,295 for three six-inch butterfly valves for air water backwash required by the N. C. Div. of Environmental Management; $937.30 to the Electricon Inc. for wiring and control design additions and changes to serve pumps and motors; and $9,594.29 to E & R Inc. for addition of switched capacitor banks to improve power factor on high voltage circuits to the treatment plant; and $705 for the rerouting of a water line not correctly shown on the as-built drawings.

disputed utilities bill;

- notification of persons by letter who have not complied with the town ordinance concerning sewer tap-on and subsequent seeking of warrants for violators;
- that a portion of the town landfill site may be leased by the county for a refuse transfer station if all other prospects in the Farmville area are exhausted. (Building Inspector H. P. Norman told the group that Marvin Horton of Tarboro had told him that he and the county are pursuing an agreement on another site, however.)
- to an ordinance for only south-side-of-Lang Street parking, following a meeting between the Town Administrator and the Police Chief and Lang Street residents;

- to applying for a grant to provide a van for senior citizen transportation if a local non-profit group can be formed to be entirely responsible for the transportation project, with the town's having no direct responsibility.
- to accept a $9,000 grant from the state for conducting an inventory and developing appearance guidelines for historic structures in the central business district. The town's matching share will be one-third cash, one third in-kind services and private contributions.
- to allow Mr. and Mrs. Joe Kue an easement across a town street to put in drainage for their yard, with the Kues bearing all the expense;
- for the demolition of a structure at 405 S. Walnut Street unless it is brought into compliance by July 20;

- to the drafting of a letter to the state clean water office protesting all Pitt County's clean water grant money's going to the county "at the expense of the municipalities";
- to tell the Housing Authority that the town will pay for maintenance of the Pine Grove Apartments street lights if the Authority will foot the bill for the electric power. Previously the Authority has paid for both, but it has been pointed out that the town should be providing the same level of service for this area as it does for the rest of the town. It was determined that this area has 22 lights when the "normal" number would be nine. Therefore, the board felt that handling maintenance would hopefully be equivalent to power and maintenance for about nine lights.

- to get estimates on roofing and other improvements for the old agriculture building on the old high school property and to board up windows in the gymnasium annex;
- to provide water stubouts, but not sewer ones for subdividers until the town's subdivision ordinance revision can be completed.
- to hold town employees to 30 days accrued vacation time, but to allow those who have already accumulated more than this amount to either take time off or be paid for it before the beginning of the new fiscal year;
- to amend the budget to show a revenue and an appropriation of $3,858 for the one month of the

CETA beautification project that will fall within this fiscal year;

- the appointment of Bob Wheless to the Housing Authority to replace Mike Ryan, who is moving out of town.

Action was tabled on condemnation of a structure at 501 S. Cameron Street, owned by the Anna Carr heirs.

Bob Shields of Shields-Wyatt Associates architectural firm of Rocky Mount presented a space needs study his firm has been working on for Farmville for some time. He showed preliminary drawings of a municipal-police-Chamber of Commerce building for the property in the 200 block of N. Main Street and showed slides of various building styles that could be utilized.

Joint Meeting...

mended a 6.89 per cent increase in funding for the library in the coming year, pointing out that the county has increased the library budget anywhere from 16.1 per cent to as much as 27.46 per cent since fiscal year 1974-1975.

The library, according to Gray, requested a 29 per cent increase in spending next year over the current level of appropriations.

Both the city and county boards agreed last night to seek a special act of the General Assembly in 1979 to change the makeup of the Pitt-Greenville Airport Authority.

At present, the city council appoints two members to the authority as does the Board of County Commissioners. In turn, the four appointed members elect a fifth member. A member of the council and a commissioner serve as non-voting members of the authority.

The governmental officials last night approved changes in the authority which would allow all of the members to be appointed and give both the council member and the commissioner voting rights.

"We want it changed so the city and county members can vote," Alton Gardner, chairman of the Board of Commissioners said.

The next joint meeting of the two governing bodies was scheduled for September 12.

School Board...

die School, was awarded the first Bonnie K. Langston Award, given in recognition of the regular classroom teacher who contributes the most in uplifting cultural arts interest among students. Mrs. Gray has assisted in making costumes and aiding the school chorus.

Procter & Gamble awarded two cash prizes of $50 to outstanding high school students. The awards were presented to Chris Paramore, a junior at D. H. Conley High School, outstanding math student, and Russell Clift, a junior at North Pitt High School, outstanding science student.

Rodney Bullock, transportation supervisor, presented safe driving awards for the first time to those county bus drivers who have driven for two years without an accident.

The recipients were as follows: Thomas Lee Summerlin, North Pitt attendance area; Eddie Norris, Ayden-Grifton attendance area; Neil Johnson, D. H. Conley attendance area; Judy Gay, Farmville Central attendance area.

A special "Safe Transportation" award was given to the Ayden-Grifton attendance area, including elementary and high schools, for only five accidents in 60,000 miles of travel.

Mrs. Donna Ware, school food service director, presented plaques to the school cafeterias that maintained the highest health ratings for the school year. The cafeterias were at Ayden-Grifton High School, Bethel Elementary, Farmville Middle, Grifton Elementary, G. R. Whitfield, and Pactolus Elementary.

Assitant Superintendent Jack Edwards presented a health education booklet for kindergarten through eighth grades for the board's approval.

He also presented a list of guidelines to be used for student teachers and interns. These guidelines will require placement centers to place applicants through the board. The board approved the booklet and the guidelines.

Leck Keeter, assistant superintendent, discussed the probability of East Carolina University nursing students screening Chicod Elementary students from grades four through eight for health purposes.

The program is the first step in allowing ECU students to screen children beyond kindergarten through third grade.

The board approved this resolution for the 1978-79 school year.

Offer Blood Pressure Clinic

A free blood pressure-checking clinic has been scheduled by the Greenville Moose Lodge on Wednesday evenings for seven consecutive weeks.

Douglas Gayhardt, community service chairman for the Greenville lodge, has arranged for the service to be available from 6 p.m. until 9 p.m. each Wednesday through July 19. Nurses will conduct the tests, it was noted.

Lodge Governor Crockett Webb said statistics indicate that one out of every ten persons beyond the age of 15 has hypertension without being aware of the affliction.

A lot of good things came from our move to new headquarters. For one thing, we now have a more beautiful showroom for displaying our exciting 1978 Chevrolets. Cars like the Third Generation Monte Carlo and the new-size Malibu. And the Caprice, Impala, Chevette, Monza, Nova, Camaro and Corvette. Plus, to let you pack up and go, there are wagons in a variety of sizes as well as a long lineup of tough Chevy trucks.

Then, too, our Service Department is settled into their bright, well-equipped work area, ready to keep your car in good operating condition. Along with our efficient Parts Department that's well-stocked with needed materials for immediate use.

But despite our big move, one thing hasn't changed. We still have our staff of hard-working salespeople and service technicians who take justifiable pride in their work. We depend on them, and once you get to know them, so will you.

We think our big move was a good one, giving us better facilities and giving you better service. Stop in soon and see if it isn't so.

Number Of Surprises In Primaries, Money Issues

By DAVE GOLDBERG
Associated Press Writer
"Enough." California voters told their tax collectors, and the echo of frustration skipped across the country, helping to dump four-term Sen. Clifford Case in New Jersey and denying money to Ohio's largest school districts.

While California voters were overwhelmingly approving a cut in their property taxes by 57 percent Tuesday, New Jersey Republicans turned out the 74-year-old Case in favor of 34-year-old Jeffrey Bell, who favors a 30 percent cut in federal income taxes.

It was the busiest political day of this non-presidential election year and there were a number of noteworthy victories.

They included:
—The victory by former basketball star Bill Bradley in the Democratic Senate race in New Jersey;

—The nomination of Wayne Hays, the former Congressional power in a Democratic primary for a seat in the Ohio House;

—The victory of state Attorney General Evelle Younger over former Los Angeles Police Chief Ed Davis in the California Republican gubernatorial primary;

—The easy win by Rep. Max Baucus over appointed Sen. Paul Hatfield in Montana's Democratic Senate primary.

—Mississippi's first competitive Senate race in 30 years, in which Gov. Cliff Finch and lawyer Maurice Dantin qualified for the June 27 Democratic runoff, and Rep. Thad Cochran won the Republican race.

But the theme of the day was taxes. Voters in Cleveland and Columbus, Ohio, overwhelmingly rejected new tax levies that school officials said were necessary to keep their systems running next year.

And if California's tax rebellion — the approval of controversial Proposition 13 — was expected, the Republican primary in New Jersey was not.

Case, who has one of the most liberal records among Senate Republicans, had been expected to win easily against Bell. A former aide to Ronald Reagan who had campaign help from former Treasury Secretary William Simon and Rep. Jack Kemp of New York, Bell was unknown statewide.

But he had one issue — his tax cut proposal, which an AP-NBC News Election day poll showed was important to half the people who voted for him. Bell claimed that was the reason for his win. "From coast to coast, the American people are building to a tidal wave of tax revolt," he said. "They are saying enough."

But Bell also benefited from one of the lightest turnouts ever in a New Jersey GOP primary, meaning that conservatives with the most ardent interest in voting were the most likely to show up at the polls. Case conceded afterward he may have taken Bell's challenge too lightly.

Bell will now face Bradley, the former Rhodes scholar and New York Knickerbocker star who easily defeated former State Treasurer Richard Leone in the Democratic primary. Bradley capitalized on his image as a celebrity and the campaign help of celebrity friends — Robert Redford, Dustin Hoffman, Jack Nicholson, Paul Simon, Willis Reed. As of now, he is a heavy favorite for November.

California's property tax cut won by a vote of nearly 2-to-1. It puts a ceiling of 1 percent on taxes; rolls back assessments to 1975 levels and limits assessment increases to 2 percent. Opponents had charged it would curtail local government services and lead to thousands of public employe layoffs.

It was a major issue in the governor's race. Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., who adamantly opposed it, had only token opposition in the Democratic primary. But Younger and Davis, who both favored 13, ran 1-2 in the GOP primary against Assemblyman Ken Maddy and San Diego Mayor Pete Wilson, who both opposed it.

In other races:
MONTANA: Baucus' win over Hatfield puts him up against 35-year-old investment banker Larry Williams, who won the Republican primary for the Senate. Tippi Huntley, widow of newscaster Chet Huntley, was locked in a tight race for a Republican Congressional nomination.

OHIO: The school tax votes and Hays victory overshadowed easy wins by Gov. James Rhodes in the GOP gubernatorial primary and Lt. Gov. Richard Celeste on the Democratic side.

IOWA: Former Lt. Gov. Roger Jepsen defeated state Commerce Commissioner Maurice Van Nostrand for the Republican Senate nomination. He will face Sen. Dick Clark, who faced only token opposition. Republican Gov. Robert Ray won renomination and will face Jerome Fitzgerald, who won the Democratic primary.

NEW MEXICO: Joe Skeen, who lost four years ago to Gov. Jerry Apodaca, won the Republican primary for governor and will face former Gov.

Bruce King, the Democratic victor. Apodaca, a Democrat, cannot succeed himself.

SOUTH DAKOTA: Rep. Larry Pressler, a Republican, and

Democrat Don Barnett will meet in November for the Senate seat being vacated by retiring Democratic Sen. James Abourezk. Democratic State Sen. Roger McKellips and Republican Attorney General William Janklow won gubernatorial nominations.

CALIFORNIA: In lesser races, Rep. Yvonne Braithwaite Burke, a familiar face at two Democratic National Conventions, held a narrow lead in the Democratic primary for attorney general. Mike Curb, leader of a singing group, was running ahead in the Republican primary for lieutenant governor.

Arrest Man Inside Store

Greenville Police early today arrested a 21-year-old man inside Shivers Surplus on Dickinson Avenue, near the Clark Street intersection.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Julius Carter James of 900 Ward St. was charged with breaking and entering, after officers found the man inside the surplus store about 12:10 a.m.

James allegedly gained entrance to the building through a rear door.

He was placed under a $3,000 bond pending hearing of the case in court.

Print Brochure For Summer's Activities

A complete brochure of the 1978 Summer Program of the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department has been published and is available to interested persons. A copy may be picked up at the department's office at 2000 Cedar Lane.

Activities for all ages are being scheduled at the various centers, facilities, parks and playgrounds under the jurisdiction of the department.

These include the Tot Lot at Elm Street and South Greenville; the Jaycee Park Day Camp; and the Children's Summer Theater, all geared to activities for young children.

Movies will be shown at three centers during the summer, beginning June 26 and ending July 31.

The mobile recreation program will have two mobile units visiting parks and playgrounds; and the youth baseball and softball program will encompass small fry, girls softball, big fry, and big eight.

Among special summer events planned are: Playdays, craft and pet shows, a canoe race, classes in ballet and jazz, and guitar classes.

Eight concerts featuring local and state entertainment are scheduled for Sunday in the Park. The first took place June 4 and seven more remain to be presented.

The city pool will have classes for various age groups in learning to swim, as well as advanced lifesaving, first aid, synchronized swimming and swim meets.

Sports activities include tennis lesson on three levels, golf, track, jogging, softball, baseball, basketball, and exercise classes.

Special population programs this summer will cover activities at Camp Sunshine, programs for the visually handicapped, activities for nursing home residents, swimming for handicapped, day camps for older adults, wheelchair basketball, ADAP programs, activities for E.A.R.T.H., and special olympic bowling.

The Senior Citizens Center, open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday will have crafts, games, and hot meals.

Gymnasiums located at three sites—Elm Street, South Greenville and West Greenville, will have various programs and suggestions for additional programs.

Water Involves A Lot Of Jobs

LOMBARD, Ill. (AP) — The industry involved in the manufacture, sale and servicing of water softening equipment consists of over 5,000 businesses with nearly $1 billion in annual sales.

According to a survey by the Water Quality Association, the industry employs 50,000 men and women, serves nearly 11 million families, and over 1/4 million commercial-industrial and institutional establishments.

will be considered. Reservations for tennis courts at Elm Street Park and Jaycee Park can be made for one and one-half hours by calling at least a day ahead. Persons wanting information by phone are to call the city number, 752-4137 and ask for the recreation department.

Chosen Pitt Delegate To Resource Workshop

Young farmer Kenneth Smith, a graduating senior at Ayden-Grifton High School, has been chosen as Pitt County's delegate to the 1978 Resource Conservation Workshop. The workshop is to be held Monday through Saturday, June 12-16 on the North Carolina State University campus.

The selection of Smith to represent Pitt County was by the Pitt Soil and Water Conservation District. The workshop is sponsored jointly by the N. C. Association of Soil and Water Districts; the N. C. Chapter of the Soil Conservation Society of America; and the N. C. State Soil and Water Conservation Commission.

Graduating seniors and rising seniors interested in conservation fields are chosen for the workshop. About 100 delegates from across North Carolina are expected to attend the event.

Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Smith, Jr. of the Colonial Acres Farm at Cannon's Cross Roads (Route 2, Ayden), is a member of the Science Club and the National Honor Society at Ayden-Grifton High School. He is also a member of the Ayden Christian Church Youth Group.

He plans to attend North Carolina State University before graduating from high school, and to major in life sciences.

Competing For Energy Grants

Greenville is vying for one of 15 federal grants to be awarded to various communities throughout the nation as part of a two-year pilot study on Comprehensive Community Energy Management planning.

The U.S. Department of Energy, according to Reese Helms, manager of Greenville Utilities Commission's Energy Conservation office, is evaluating the effectiveness of energy policy applied at the local government level and plans to select 15 communities of varying sizes to initiate the $3.5 million program.

Reese said that the program will require the support and cooperation of all sectors of the community — private citizens, business, industry, agriculture, education and government would be required to pool their efforts into the preparation of a detailed energy management plan for Greenville.

Greenville Utilities, he said, has been designated by the city to act as the lead agency for the preparation of the proposal and for the administration of the program, should Greenville's proposal be accepted by the Department of Energy.

The GUC energy conservation office is currently working to prepare a proposal for a Comprehensive Community Energy Management program. Helms added, and is seeking letters of endorsement from individuals, organizations, and agencies throughout the community.

Helms observed, "The more letters of public endorsement that can be included in the proposal, the better the chances that Greenville will be one of the 15 communities chosen to participate in the study."

Helms indicated that a resolution is being circulated throughout the community regarding endorsement of the program concept and he expressed hope that as many people as possible will sign it.

He said that Greenville residents who wish to sign the resolution can do so at the GUC main office building at the corner of Fifth and Washington Streets.

The resolution is also being circulated through a number of neighborhoods in the community.

It points out, "The private citizens of a community convey a major and lasting impact on the community by virtue of their attitude about and use of energy resources."

The resolution also notes, "Individual decisions regarding the efficient utilization of energy are of supreme importance to the proper growth and development of the community in terms of the continued availability of energy."

Helms said that Greenville's proposal must be submitted by June 16.

Five Accidents Here Tuesday

An estimated $4,875 property damage resulted from a series of five traffic collisions investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 7:58 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Hooker Road.

Officers said cars driven by Jacque Stuckey Grady of 63 Cedar La., Tony Bryant Lewis of 1708 Englewood Dr., and Margaret Ann Pearman of Concord were involved in the mishap.

No damage resulted to the Pearman vehicle, while damage was estimated at $300 to the Grady car and $2,300 to the Lewis vehicle.

Charles Everett Patterson of Route 1, Huntersville was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 5:15 p.m. mishap on Greenville Boulevard, 200 feet East of the Arlington Boulevard intersection.

Officers reported the Patterson car collided with an auto operated by Ruth Slade Kelly of 205 North Elm St., resulting in an estimated $500 damage to the Patterson vehicle and $350 damage to the Kelly car.

Cars driven by Robert Dalton Stencil of Route 1, Greenville and James Angelo Maurakis of 301 Greenwood Dr. collided about 4:53 p.m. on Greene Street, 150 feet South of the First Street intersection.

Police, who charged Stencil with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety, estimated damage at $225 to the Stencil car and $275 to the Maurakis auto.

Cars driven by two Route 1, Greenville residents, Jean Poole Creech and Bettie Avery Joyner, collided about 4:52 p.m. on Sixth Street, 500 feet West of the Memorial Drive intersection.

Damage from the collision was set at $200 to the Joyner car and $250 to the Creech car.

A 5:32 p.m. mishap on Charles Street, 150 feet South of the Greenville Boulevard intersection involved vehicles operated by Nancy Lorraine Demeter of Golden Road, and Jesse Arnold Averette of 2004 Brook Rd.

Damage from the collision was estimated at $300 to the Demeter car and $175 to the Averette vehicle.

Grad With Skills Has A Future

BETHLEHEM, Pa. (AP) — There's a bright outlook this year for college graduates with specific skills, according to a survey by the College Placement Council. But the future appears less favorable for those students who followed a general curriculum.

Results of the survey released Tuesday indicate that employers this year intend to hire 11 per cent more college graduates than a year ago. However, a 2 percent decrease compared to last year is predicted in hiring in non-technical fields.

Hairdresser Of Current Movie

Miss Shirley Crawford, a native of Greenville, and a professional hair stylist, is the hairdresser of the stars in "Our Winning Season," a movie currently playing at Plaza Cinema 2 Theater.

SHIRLEY CRAWFORD

Miss Crawford in earlier years was also a walk-on for Anne Baxter in Miss Baxter's movies. "Our Winning Season" was filmed in Georgia, at Griffin and a rural community near Griffin. During the filming, Pitt County family members of Miss Crawford visited the set. Those visiting were Ms. Crawford's sister, Mrs. J. C. Pollard, her daughter and son-in-law, Paula and Don Mills, and Mrs. Pollard's granddaughter, Deane Mills.

In addition to being hair stylist for the cast of numerous movies, Ms. Crawford has worked in that capacity on several television shows, including the Red Buttons-Jill St. John telethon and "Bronc" starring Jack Palance.

Ten Percent Pay Raise By State Given No Chance

By GLENN STEPHENS
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Legislative budget leaders are giving a proposed 10 percent pay raise for teachers and state employees little chance of winning approval during the General Assembly's current session.

Sen. Bob Wynne and Rep. Joe Johnson, both D-Wake, unveiled the pay raise bill Tuesday, saying it would cost about $190 million, which they said is available in surplus funds.

But Rep. Ed Holmes, D-Chat-ham, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, said there is almost no chance the measure will be approved.

"I think we're pretty much set on 6 percent," Holmes said, noting that the Joint Legislative Appropriations Committee last week rejected a move to increase the size of pay raises recommended by Gov. Jim Hunt and the Advisory Budget Commission.

Wynne and Johnson conceded that their proposal faces an uphill fight but insisted that teachers and state employees need a 10 percent raise to keep up with inflation. Wynne said a recent report from Washington showed consumer prices are rising at a rate of 10 percent annually.

The two legislators also said in a joint statement that teachers and state employees went along with the legislature in 1975 when it asked them to forego a pay raise because of an economic downturn.

"Implied in our request not have a pay increase in the face of double-digit inflation was a promise to give them an adequate raise when the money became available," the statement said. "There is a surplus in excess of the amount we are requesting."

The joint appropriations committee met Tuesday but delayed action on most of the controversial spending proposals in Hunt's $279 million supplemental appropriations budget, which it is reviewing on an item-by-item basis.

The panel, which began work on the bill last week, has approved most of the spending items but has not taken up the most controversial proposals — $1 million for continuing Medicaid funding of abortions, $8.5 million for construction of a new state office building and $7.2 million for a new veterinary school at North Carolina State University.

After giving approval to 22 items Tuesday, the panel planned to begin taking up the more than two dozen remaining proposals at a meeting today.

Sen. Craig Lawing, D-Mecklenburg, introduced a bill Tuesday that would amend state banking laws to ensure that certain information collected during the investigation, examination or audit of banks is confidential.

Lawing, chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, said he introduced the bill at the request of the governor's office and the state treasurer's office. He said he hasn't taken a stand for or against it but will let the committee give it a "full hearing."

In other legislative action:

—The Joint Legislative Appropriations Committee continued to go over the $279 million supplemental appropriations budget. It approved about half the items and held the rest for further study.

—The Senate confirmed Hunt's nomination of Thomas Brufford as interim banking commissioner. He succeeds John Tropman, who resigned under pressure recently.

—The House Health Committee stalled in its consideration of compromise legislation amending a bill passed last year to regulate physicians' assistants and nurse practitioners. Under the bill, a physician's assistant would be authorized to order a nurse to administer treatment to a patient, but the nurse could decline if she believed the order improper.

The committee bogged down over a section that would allow physician assistant to dispense drugs only if no pharmacy was in a reasonable distance. The committee will meet again to consider an amendment allowing drugs to be dispensed at any time:

—Bills were proposed that would appropriate $3 million to finance community alternatives for keeping troubled children out of rest homes. The bills, by Sen. Kathy Sebo and Rep. Margaret Tennille, would raise by $1 million the amount recommended by the Advisory Budget Commission.
—The Joint House and Senate Public Utilities committees voted unanimously to approve the governor's nomination of Ed Hipp, former general counsel of the state Utilities Commission, to a seat on the commission. The nomination now goes to a joint session of both chambers:

—The House Judiciary II Committee tentatively adopted 10 minor amendments to the proposed open meetings bill, including one that adds wire services to the media that must be notified of certain meetings;
—The House Judiciary II Committee also amended and approved a Senate-passed measure that would require three days on jail for anyone convicted of a second offense of drunken driving. The measure, backed by Rep. Dave DeRamus, D-Forsyth, was changed to include a provision allowing alcoholic rehabilitation under a state-approved program as an alternative to jail. It would apply to those whose prior drunken driving offense was within he past three years.

New bills filed Tuesday included:
—A House bill to tax stock-owned savings and loan associations the same as mutual savings and loans;
—A bill to restore recognition of North Carolina Indian tribes, inadvertently written out of state law last year;
—A bill to appropriate $75,000 to control the multiflora rose, which some contend is threatening cropland in western areas:

—A bill that would appropriate $200,000 to study ways North Carolina could participate in the 1982 world's fair at Knoxville, Tenn.;
—A bill that would appropriate $12 million to be used by the state's school boards at their discretion.

PEEPING TOM LAW
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state Supreme Court Tuesday upheld the constitutionality of North Carolina's "Peeping Tom" law. The ruling came on a motion to dismiss the case against John Shelton Banks, a minor accused of violating the law in that he "did unlawfully and willfully peep secretly into a room occupied by Alvalena Manring, a female person."

SETTLEMENT — Rosabella Burch, 45, who lived with J. Paul Getty for the last 15 years of the billionaire's life, is to get $150,000 for herself and her two children under an agreement approved in Los Angeles Superior Court. She had initially sought $500,000 and $1,000 a month for life in a claim filed against the estate in November. (AP Laser-photo)

Cocaine's Effects on the Nose

For the past two years, I've been sniffing small amounts of cocaine. Many of my friends do the same thing at parties. I'm the only one who's in trouble because of it. For the past six weeks, I can't get a breath of air into my nose. It feels like there's a clamp on it. I'm 28 years old. Could this all be just from sniffing cocaine? — Mr. H.S., Calif.
Dear Mr. S.:

I hate to start out by chastising you, but at the age of 26 you should have known better than to become ensnared into such a dangerous habit. Apparently, age alone is not the criterion for having good sense. It seems that people of all ages are playing the game of Russian roulette with cocaine. Is it pseudo-sophistication? Or is it self-destruction? Perhaps you know the answer better than I.

Hundreds of people like yourself are toying with their lives and their destiny with the cocaine fad which has reached epidemic proportions.

Cocaine is a dangerous drug. When it is used in surgery as an anesthetic, surgeons apply it to the nose in small quantities and in low concentration. When used as you and your friends do, cocaine at first destroys the tiny cilia (hairs) on the lining of the nose and then continues to burn and injure the delicate lining itself. Before long, crusting and scarring follow. After continued use, many changes occur in the nose. Tissues normally free from each other become bound down with adhesions. Air can barely get through the nose, as well you know.

One of the most difficult problems seen by nose and throat specialists are the chronic perforations, or holes, in the nasal septum that separates one side of the nose from the other.

Numerous operations have been tried to repair these holes and to liberate the adhesions in the nose. Extensive operations that virtually take out everything in the nose — the turbinate bones, and even the nasal septum — have been tried in an effort to open the nasal passageway for the free flow of air. None of them are really satisfactory. Unfortunately, the changes in the nose are not usually reversible. I know this is a sad portrait to be painted by one who ordinarily tries to convey a great sense of hope to readers. My only hope is that my despair about helping you will be relayed to anyone who is tempted to be caught in the ridiculous fad of cocaine sniffing. Your friends would be wise to give up this habit before they, too, are in this predicament.

SPEAKING OF YOUR HEALTH... There is no organ in the body that in some way cannot be adversely affected by emotional stress, tensions and inner conflicts. An investment in good health is to learn to modify them.

Old Auto Parts Turned Hobby Into Business

PRIDE AND JOY—Art Davidson, 47, Columbus, Ohio, puts a little more sheen onto the 1932 Lincoln Zephyr automobile, an antique he values at $16,500. Davidson has been an antique car hobbyist for years and in recent years has gone into the business of dealing in antique cars and antique car parts.

By JOE MCKNIGHT
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Art Davidson can get you a new fender for a 1926 Chevrolet or a good ignition system for a 1915 White car.

"It'll fit a truck, too," he said of the White ignition. "There's still some 1926 Chevy fenders that were never used, so I guess they are new."

A hubcap for a 1922 Willys Knight hangs among other hubcaps from nails in the parts section of his auto shop. The rest of the Willys Knight is in the cement block building whose outside wall bears a fading "Auto Repair" sign.

Davidson hasn't had time to check the condition of a transmission in stock for a Franklin, a car that hasn't been made since 1934.

"I've got a lot of parts I haven't taken time to identify yet," he said. "A lot of them go back into the early teens for Fords, Chevrolets, Packards, and others. I get a lot of them from auctions and sales. I buy out people that just want to get rid of old car parts."

Davidson's antique cars and car parts business grew from a childhood interest and a relative's love affair with old cars. At 47, he is a family man with a college degree in business. He ran several businesses before deciding to make a livelihood of his hobby.

"I was mainly a collector for 10 to 12 years," he said. "Oh, sure, I'd sell something now and then or trade up or trade down. I didn't really start into serious selling until about two years ago."

"I was running a car body shop and couldn't get help to do my quality of work, what I knew the customers wanted. So I leased the business and started this full time."

"It's just an overgrown hobby," he said. His dealership is mostly a mail order business and mostly for car parts 40 or more years old. He advertises in national antique car magazines and gets inquiries for parts from hundreds of cities and a half-dozen countries.

He has a few antique cars and some used cars for sale. An antique, in his mind, was made in 1931 or earlier; like the 1931 Packard he bought in 1957, sold when he was a college student hard up for cash, and bought again when business was good in 1972. Used cars, he said, are those made after 1931. "I'm sold down to about 15 or so cars right now and most are just old cars, Fords and Hudsons from the late 1930s or 1940s. A few years ago my peak was 78 cars," he said.

He keeps eight antiques — ranging from the 1922 Willys Knight to a 1931 Packard — in a dusty disarranged auto showroom. For his kind of business, you don't need spit and polish. His customers take their cars and parts wherever they can find them.

The 1940s models that Davidson says are just old are in an outside parking lot.

Present stock also includes a 1923 Hudson with an aluminum body, a 1926 Chevrolet touring car, and a 1930 Packard with original upholstery. He will sell any for a price but prefers to take bids. The Willys Knight, with most of its parts piled in the back seat, has a windshield sticker showing the last bid at $2,095.

His pride and joy is a 1932 Lincoln Zephyr with a V-12 engine. He values it at $16,500 and keeps it at home. He drives the Lincoln Zephyr once or twice a week.

Adventure In Raleigh Of 1865

By Dr. H.G. JONES
For the Associated Press
 CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — All the Union troops who marched into Raleigh on April 1, 1865, Lt. George C. Round of Connecticut may have had the most exciting experience. He and his signal corps detachment followed closely behind General Kilpatrick's cavalrymen who were pursuing the retreating Confederates through the city.

At Blount and Jones streets, Round came upon Raleigh Academy and decided to camp his men there in the trees. He chatted with the headmaster, Jefferson Madison Lovejoy, and sought to assure him that his men would respect the school's property.

Before he could cook the fresh vegetables presented to him by the grateful professor's wife, Round received instructions to establish a signal station atop the Capitol two blocks away.

An hour or so earlier, Capt. John R. Thomas had entered the building and set up his post marshal's office. Governor Vance and other top North Carolina officials had already abandoned the building.

No one was available to show Round the stairway, but by trial and error he eventually found the circuitous way to the upper roof. Failing to locate a ladder to the steep rounded dome, he dangerously pulled himself up by the lightning rod wire.

Suddenly the Federal officer stood at the highest spot in Raleigh and, holding on to the metal decorations topping the crown, he surveyed the horizon, noting the "huge asylum" — Six Hill — in the distance.

Darkness was approaching, but the lieutenant could see that there was a platform several feet below and inside the edge of the crown, so he sprang over the edge into the center.

To his astonishment, the platform was the skylight within the great dome of the Capitol, and the glass broke and fell to the floor far below. Only by reflex action did Round grasp the ironwork and escape a mortal fall.

After regaining his composure, he gingerly lowered himself to the flat portion of the roof and spent the night there. The next morning, his assistant raided a nearby picket fence and brought up enough boards for a platform across the broken skylight.

Now, with safe footing, Round tied his station flag to the top of the lightning rod "as notice to the world that we were ready for business."

On that day, April 14, the signalmen looked down upon the city and surrounding countryside. From the southeast marched thousands of troops, and through his telescope Round could recognize their flags — the armies of the Cumberland, of Tennessee, and of Ohio.

At night, he wrote, "their blazing campfires lit up earth and heaven, while their drumbeats and martial airs rolled in from every direction."

No one knew better than Round that off to the northwest, hidden from his view, were many thousands of Confederate troops who might counterattack at any moment, turning Raleigh into a battleground. But no attack came.

On April 17, Round was in the Senate chamber writing a letter when he received the shocking news of the assassination of President Lincoln. The entire Union army went into mourning, and Round ordered his company tailor to make a black mourning flag which he substituted for his station flag on the lightning rod.

Some of the citizens of Raleigh became terrified. They interpreted the new signal as the "black flag" — the traditional sign of an unmerciful assault.

The signal officer, of course, chuckled heartily when he learned of this supposition.

Then, on the night of April 26, came the confirmation of rumors that Generals Sherman and Johnston had agreed upon an armistice at the Bennett Place near Durham Station. The war was over.

To celebrate, Round picked out his colored signal rockets and arranged them in the crown of the Capitol dome so that he could signal the good news to friend and foe alike.

One by one the rockets were fired into the dark sky, colorfully spelling out the word "P-E-A-C-E."

After the war, the lieutenant, who claimed that he fired the "last signal message of the war" — the message of peace — settled near Manassas, Va., and practiced law. In 1902, at the reunion of the Signal Corps, he recounted his experiences, and a copy of his story, with a photograph of him and his flag atop the Capitol in 1865, is preserved in the State Archives in Raleigh.

Janet Zolko On National Panel

ECU News Bureau

Janet Zolko, assistant professor and Director of Continuing Education Programs for the East Carolina University School of Home Economics, is in Washington, D. C., this week, serving as a consultant to the U. S. Office of Education.

Dr. Zolko is specifically assigned to the Bureau of Occupational and Adult Education, as a panelist to review applications submitted for individual awards under the Vocational Education Teacher Certification Program.

A total of 17 review panels are scheduled to screen about 2,500 applications. Each panel consists of six members, three federal employees and three invited consultants.

A Mansfield State College (Pa.) alumna, Dr. Zolko had advanced degrees from Colorado State University.

Advices Calm In Ethnic Lobbying

NEW YORK (AP) — Jewish and other ethnic lobbying is "as legitimate as business lobbying, union lobbying, regional lobbying, veteran lobbying, aged lobbying and any other kind of lobbying," but keep it calm, says Bertram Gold, head of the American Jewish Committee.

He told the annual meeting of the community relations organization that "we won't make friends or keep them unless we moderate our public paranoia. Certainly we must stand firm on issues that are important to us. But everyone who disagrees with us is not automatically 'the enemy.'"

IN ABSENZIA

OLBIA, Sardinia (AP) — An 11-year-old boy kidnapped by three armed men April 23 has been promoted to the next grade in school. Mauro Carassale's father reportedly has paid a ransom but the child has not been released.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market gave ground today amid more of the selling that set in Tuesday afternoon.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 4.24 to 862.27 in the first half hour.

Losers took a 4-3 lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said some traders were selling stocks to cash in on the market's steady rise over the past six sessions since the Memorial Day weekend.

At the same time, they noted a favorable response to reports that President Carter was pushing for further steps to reduce the deficit in the federal budget for the coming fiscal year.

It was reported that Carter favored a further reduction of his tax-cut proposal from about $19 billion to about $15 billion.

Abbott Laboratories was the early volume leader among NYSE issues, down 3/4 at 35.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average closed with a 2.68 gain at 866.51 after having been up as much as 12 points in early trading.

Advances outnumbered declines by slightly less than a 2-1 margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume came to 51.97 million shares, the fourth largest total in exchange history. The record of 63.51 million was set April 17.

The NYSE's composite index managed a .22 rise to 56.19.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .66 at 147.15.

Arrested On Drug Count

Thomas Steven Joseph, 25 of 116 North Summit St. was arrested by Greenville Police yesterday on charges of possessing hashish, in connection with an investigation involving the U.S. Customs Service and U.S. Postal Inspectors.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Joseph was arrested about 2:30 p.m. after picking up a package containing 22.1 grams of hashish at the Post Office on Second street.

Cannon said the package, which contained a book with its center cut out to hold the hashish, was mailed from Germany and entered the United States at Kennedy Airport. He noted that a Customs dog, Funky, C-132, discovered the illegal drug in the package following a check of the item.

The package, according to Cannon, was addressed to Thomas Joseph at 1208 Cotanche St.

Joseph was placed under a $1,000 bond pending a court hearing on the charge.

BUFFALO, N. Y. — Mack Daniels, formerly of Greenville, died Wednesday here.

He is the brother of Mr. James Daniels and Mrs. Alice Streeter, both of Greenville.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete at this time.

FARMVILLE — Mrs. Pennie Vick Mzingo, 83, of 113 S. Pitt St., died at her home Tuesday.

Funeral services will be conducted 2 p.m. Thursday at the Church St. Chapel of the Farmville Funeral Home. Burial will follow in Forest Hills cemetery.

Mrs. Mzingo, a lifelong resident of the community, was a member of the Beacon Free Will Baptist Church.

Leaflets May Be A Violation

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A black minister last week distributed unsigned leaflets accusing Luther Hodges Jr. of supporting the government of "racist" South Africa.

The Rev. W.M. Cavers of Charlotte, who worked with John Ingram's U.S. Senate campaign locally, said he arranged to have 10,000 leaflets printed and distributed at the polls last Tuesday in 14 predominantly black precincts in Charlotte and in selected areas of Winston-Salem and Durham.

The leaflets may be in violation of state and federal election laws. Both require that political advertisements must state the name of the committee or candidate responsible for them. The leaflets did not.

Cavers said his name was supposed to appear on the leaflets, but they were printed in haste and his name was omitted.

The leaflets said: "Did you know Luther Hodges approved a loan of 1.6 million dollars to Racist South Africa to buy Military computers and Planes for the specific purpose of suppressing the blacks of South Africa. Can we afford to support Luther Hodges for the U.S. Senate?"

Ingram campaign officials in Raleigh denied any advance knowledge of or connection with the leaflets.

George Autry, manager of Hodges' unsuccessful campaign against Ingram for the Democratic senatorial nomination, called the leaflet inaccurate and "reprehensible."

Autry said while Hodges was the chairman of the board of the North Carolina National Bank, the bank's only loan involving South Africa was to an American Cessna aircraft dealer in Johannesburg for a civilian plant.

NCNB spokesman John Jamison said the bank had never loaned money to the government of South Africa.

Hodges was given one of the leaflets on election day and was "disgusted," Autry said.

State elections board secretary Alex Brock said his department usually investigates such matters only if a formal complaint is lodged.

Jersey City, N. J. — Mr. Wright Shaw died this morning in the Jersey City Medical Center. He was the father of Mrs. Hattie Green of Greenville. Funeral arrangements are incomplete at Phillips Brothers Mortuary.

Mrs. McGrath Reported As 'Doing Better'
 City Council member Mildred McGrath, a patient at Pitt Memorial Hospital since Monday night, was expected to be transferred out of the critical care section today, a hospital spokesman reported.

Hospital Director Jack Richardson said today that Mrs. McGrath, who was admitted to the Intensive Care section for a "pulmonary insufficiency and observation," was "doing better" this morning.

The condition of Mrs. McGrath, who has undergone tests in the ICU, was listed today as guarded but satisfactory, the director said.

The Council member's husband, Dr. Harold McGrath, said this morning that his wife "seems to be getting along a little better" and he mentioned that the move from the intensive care area had been indicated.

Pitt Budget...

 cording to Gray, asked for a 29 per cent increase in funds over the current years appropriation.

"I have recommended a 6.89 per cent increase," Gray said, "taking into consideration the fact that they had a 16.21 per cent increase granted last year...an 18.89 per cent increase in 1976-1977...27.46 per cent increase in 1975-1976, and 16.1 per cent increase in 1974-1975."

As recommended, the library budget is proposed at $96,000, as compared with this year's budget of $89,000. The library had requested $115,800.

In addition to county funds appropriated for the library, the Greenville City Council provides financial support for the capital outlay expenses and operating costs.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON, JUNE 7, 1978

Championship To Be Settled Tonight

SEATTLE (AP) — The Seattle SuperSonics and Washington Bullets have saved the best for last.

"I think the seventh game will be the best of the series," said Bullets forward Bobby Dandridge. "I think it will be even right to the last basket..."

"Come Wednesday night," said Sonics forward John Johnson. "It's the biggest game in our franchise's history. And we're going to win."

So the stage is set for the seventh and final game of the National Basketball Association championship series tonight in the Seattle Center Coliseum.

The winning team in the final game of the longest NBA season ever will be crowned the league's 32nd champion. The losing team will find solace in the fact that it isn't a loser at all; it simply will finish second best.

Tonight's game — seven months, 23 days after the opening tap of the regular season — became necessary after Washington humbled the Sonics 117-82 at Landover, Md., Sunday, squaring the best-of-seven playoff finals at three games apiece.

The outcome of the contest pitting these two evenly matched and well-coached clubs hinges on which club executes its game plan best. If the Bullets dominate the boards, get their running game going and work the ball in to their big men like Dandridge and Elvin Hayes, they should win.

If the Sonics can control the tempo of the game with their talented guard trio of Gus Williams, Dennis Johnson and Fred Brown, they should win.

It depends on who you talk to whether the site of the game, the 14,098-seat Coliseum where the Sonics have won 22 straight, will be a factor.

"We're happy to be playing in front of our fans," said Seattle Coach Lenny Wilkens. "The home-court advantage has to help us in a game like this."

Hayes sees it differently. "We're pros. This is a big game and we all know it," he said. "The crowd won't be a factor. The crowd can't play on the floor and the crowd can't put the ball in the hole."

Sunday's game was the worst Seattle has played in weeks. The Bullets, who needed the victory to stay alive in the title chase, dominated in every statistical department.

Washington is counting on a carryover from its 35-point triumph. The Sonics are banking that they can't play that bad twice in a row, and certainly won't look that miserable at home.

"Losing the way they did has got to be on their minds," said Hayes. "It's going to be very difficult for them to shake it so quickly."

Said Paul Silas, the veteran forward of the Sonics: "They've still got to win one more, and ain't no way in hell they're going to do that."

"We've worked hard to get this home court advantage," said Williams. "There's no doubt in anyone's mind we'll win Wednesday. Being with this team, I know we'll come through when we need the big game. I know we'll come through."

Kevin Grevey, the Bullets' best backcourt shooter, played only the first six minutes Sunday due to a sprained wrist on his shooting arm. Washington Coach Dick Motta moved the 6-foot-6 Dandridge into the backcourt, enabling the Bullets to get another big man into the game.

That gave more playing time to reserves Mitch Kupchak and rookie Greg Ballard, who helped Washington dominate the boards that keyed the running game.

Wilkens tried to counter with four frontcourt men in the game, which Motta thought was fine.

"By putting John Johnson in to cover Dandridge, that got a guard out of there. And it's been there guards who have killed us," Motta said.

Wilkens isn't saying what counter-moves he has in mind for tonight. But he did say, "I don't think they can play four forwards against us. All we have to do is use our heads."

Tar Heels Will Face Southern Cal

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — "He gutted it out," Southern California Coach Rod Dedeaux said about pitcher Rod Boxberger after the top-ranked Trojans became the last undefeated team in the College World Series by beating second-ranked Arizona State. Boxberger retired 12 of the final 13 Sun Devil batters as the Trojans took a 5-2 victory Tuesday night. He pitched his way out of a bases-loaded jam in the fifth inning after allowing a run-scoring single and gave up a solo home run to Jamie Allen in the sixth.

"Then Boxberger got tough. It took a lot of guts," said USC's Chris Smith, who doubled home what proved to be the winning run.

The NCAA All-American team was announced before the game, and USC pitcher Bill Bordley was selected along with three Sun Devils — none of whom could hit Boxberger very well.

Bob Horner, the Sun Devils' third baseman who was the first player selected in the major league draft earlier Tuesday, was hitless in four times at bat. Hubie Brooks, the third player taken in the draft, managed only a single and Chris Bando — Milwaukee infielder Sal Bando's younger brother — got two singles, flew out twice and struck out.

Brooks committed three errors in the game after a collision at second base in the third inning with Southern Cal's Bob Skube. Brooks turned the double play but had to get first aid for a cut on his shin.

"He (Brooks) was spiked and the trainer sewed him up. I felt the slide was out toward right center field," said Sun Devil Coach Jim Brock. "It's a judgment call. The umpire was there and is a good and honorable man. From where I was, it looked like an illegal slide." "Anybody standing on the base is open season," said

Skube. "The umpires knew what they were doing."

The biggest crowd ever to see a College World Series game — 15,261 — packed Rosenblatt Stadium for the showdown Tuesday night. Fans were lined up on the field along both foul lines all the way to the fence, but never interfered with play.

"You can play the Rose Bowl football game and it is all over," Dedeaux said. "But here, after a night like this before that crowd, you still have to come back again tomorrow."

Williams, Chapman Pace Post 39 Victory

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

Mike Williams pitched a two-hitter and Ronnie Chapman knocked a three-run homer to lead Pitt County's American Legion baseball team to a 7-1 victory over Washington last night.

Williams' mound work was the real key to the ballgame, which was called due to a steady rain after seven innings. Throwing much more effectively than in his last start, the Rose High product struck out nine batters and walked none.

Williams, now 2-0, did have one disappointment, however: that the game was called before he had a chance to pitch a full nine innings without a walk.

Post 39 manager Ed Hooks said, "I thought we did well under the weather conditions. Williams pitched a fine ballgame and when Ronnie Chapman hit that ball out with a couple of runners on base, that was a big lift for us offensively." Hooks also had praise for his shortstop, Greg Lee, who turned in a couple of outstanding plays in the field.

Washington got its first hit in the first inning, but Pitt County ended the frame in style with a double play. In the bottom of the inning, the host team scored twice to take the lead.

With one away, Chapman walked and stole second. Mike Shank got a base on balls and Kevin Adams followed with an infield hit to load the bases. Washington's shortstop made a diving catch to prevent a run from scoring.

Lee then walked to push Chapman across and Shank scored on Will Sanderson's fielder's choice to second base.

Neither team put a man on again until the third when Sanderson doubled with one away as the charging left fielder slipped on the wet field. He scored when Skip Topping's fly to center field dropped in for a base hit.

Washington's only run came across in the fifth. With two out, David Waters was awarded first base due to catcher's interference. He went to second when Williams threw a wild pitch. Pete Lee knocked a hit up the middle and Waters beat the throw home.

Post 39 scored its final four runs in the sixth. Williams doubled down the left field line with one out and Topping walked. After another out, Worthington hit his second double of the night, scoring Williams, and Chapman followed with a shot over the fence in right field, about 325 feet.

Greg Rowland, who started and pitched 5½ innings, was charged with the loss in his first decision. Hooks said he kept the Pitt County batters off-balance, but the three walks given up in the first and two doubles and home run in the sixth proved costly. He was replaced by Chris Jones, who finished up.

Pitt County is now 4-0 in regular season play, while Washington is 0-3. The local team plays here Thursday night against Wilson.

Jenkins Pulls Repeat Against Kansas City

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
Texas Manager Billy Hunter gave the ball to Ferguson Jenkins and said in so many words, "Do it again."
Of course, not even Hunter could expect a replay of Jenkins' four-hit, one-run performance against the Kansas City Royals earlier this season.
But that's what he got Tuesday night — exactly.
"He's phenomenal," Hunter exuded after watching Jenkins hurl a four-hitter while beating the Royals 2-1. "He can really pitch to spots — and with the team he was facing, you really have to do that."
To make Tuesday night's coincidence even more ironic was Dennis Leonard's presence for the Royals. He was also the losing pitcher when Jenkins, 6-3, last beat Kansas City on April 25.

Bobby Bonds 400-foot home run into the left field stands in the fifth inning proved to be the decisive run.
A's 7, Red Sox 1
Rookie Taylor Duncan drove in four runs with his first two American League hits, a double and a three-run homer, to lead Oakland past Boston. The first six A's runs, charged to Boston starter Bill Lee, were unearned because of three errors by Red Sox third baseman Butch Hobson and one by shortstop Rick Burleson.

Mariners 4, Yankees 3
Jose Baez scored from second on an error by second baseman Willie Randolph in the ninth inning as Seattle beat stumping New York.
Juan Bernhardt opened the Seattle ninth with a double that eluded the diving grasp of right fielder Reggie Jackson and Baez went in to run for Bernhardt. Then Julio Cruz bunted down the third base line and Yankee reliever Rich Gossage made the throw to first, but it glanced off Randolph's glove into the right field bullpen.
The loss was the seventh in the last eight games for the defending world champions.

Orioles 8, Angels 6
Larry Harlow collected three hits off Nolan Ryan and added three stolen bases to pace a 12-hit assault against the California ace as Baltimore won its seventh straight game. Eddie Murray also had three hits off Ryan and reliever Dyar Miller and drove in a pair of runs. The loss was the third straight for Ryan, 3-6.

Brewers 5, Tigers 1
Gorman Thomas belted a two-run homer and Paul Molitor hit a bases-empty shot to back Larry Sorensen's nine-hit pitching, leading Milwaukee over Detroit. Sorensen's complete game was his seventh in a row, tying a Brewer record set last season by Jerry Augustine. The 22-year-old Sorensen tied for the AL lead in complete games with Baltimore's Mike Flanagan.

White Sox 3, Indians 0
Francisco Barrios scattered seven hits to lead Chicago over Cleveland. Barrios allowed three walks and struck out three to help the hot White Sox win their ninth game in the last 10.
The White Sox gave Barrios all the runs he needed with a two-run fourth capped by Jorge Orta's RBI double.

Heart Fund Races

The Greenville Jaycees, the Pitt County Heart Fund and the Coastal Carolina Track Club are jointly sponsoring a Heart Fund Run this Saturday through the streets of Greenville.
The event will get underway at 5 p.m. at the corner of First and Evans streets.
Planned for the day are a two-mile walk-run, the first event of the evening. This is for children, families and joggers.
That will be followed by a three-mile competitive race, which will begin at about 6 p.m. Then, an eight-mile race will also be held, to start at around the same time.
Registration will be held at Minges Coliseum from 2:30 p.m. until 5, although entrants may preregister by picking up forms from any Jaycee, from the Sporting Goods, H. L. Hodges Co., or WOOW radio.
Those who preregister may check in at the race site from 3 to 5 p.m. Saturday. A $3 entry fee is being charged to all entrants.

All three events have been sanctioned by the North Carolina Amateur Athletics Union. Trophies and prizes will be awarded, and certificates will be issued to all who complete the events.
The two-mile walk-run course will begin at the corner of First and Evans, and proceed down First to Warren Street and return.
The three-mile course will begin at the same point, go down First to Elm Street, turn right to Fourth Street, then left from there to around Hilltop Street, and return.
The eight-mile course will also begin at First and Evans, going down First to Elm, right on Elm to 14th Street, right to Charles Boulevard, left there to Greenville Boulevard, left there to Golden Road, left there to Cedar Lane, right there to Tenth Street, left there to Fifth, right there to Cemetery Road, right there to Fourth, left there to Elm, right there to First, left there back to the finish line near the starting point.

The event is hoped to be an annual affair, and a Jaycee spokesman said he hoped to have some 300 to 500 entrants for this first race.

Kingman Belts Slam

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer
Dave Kingman's power was switched on, so Chicago Cubs fans got some great entertainment.
But because something switched the power off in Olympic Stadium, Montreal's fans had to settle for entertainment minus bats and balls.
Kingman belted a 400-foot grand-slam homer at Wrigley Field Tuesday to lead the Cubs to their 10th straight victory at home, a 9-4 verdict over the Houston Astros.
Kingman's sixth-inning power display shared the National League spotlight with a sixth-inning power blackout in Montreal, where the Expos led the Padres 2-0 when most of the lights surrounding the field went dim.
With no lights to play by and no explanation available for the blackout, the Montreal-San Diego game was suspended and will be completed tonight prior to the regularly scheduled game. Meanwhile, players from both team provided some im-prompt entertainment for the fans.

The Expos scored their runs in the first on Bill Almon's error on Tony Perez's grounder and Gary Carter's sacrifice fly. Wayne Twitchell was hurling the shutout when the park went dark.
Cubs 9, Astros 4
Houston Manager Bill Virdon made the mistake of ordering pitcher Oscar Zamora to walk Larry Biittner to load the bases and face Kingman.
"Whenever they walk someone to get to me, the ball looks double size," said Kingman. "It happened once before this season when Craig Swan of the Mets walked a guy in front of me. I hit a three-run homer and beat him."
Dave Roberts, 3-0, helped himself with a three-run double and raised his batting average to .417.
Phillies 7, Giants 6
Philadelphia rallied for the second straight night to overcome the Giants. Greg Luzinski's two-out, bases-loaded single knocked home the decisive runs in the ninth as the Phils stormed back from a 6-2 deficit. Luzinski entered the game in a 7-for-61 slump.

Rookie Jim Morrison belted his second homer in as many nights for the Phils, who won their fifth straight.
Cards 4, Reds 1
John Denny handcuffed the Reds on five hits and Jerry Morales had two RBI in the Cards' four-run first inning. Tom Hume and Pedro Borbon held the Cardinals to three hits.
The Cardinals benefitted from three walks and a wild pitch by Hume and two stolen bases by Lou Brock in the first inning.
Pirates 4, Braves 2
Jim Bibby won his second straight start after being placed in the Pirates rotation, holding Atlanta to six hits over seven innings. Kent Tekulve relieved and picked up his sixth save with two innings of one-hit ball.
Dale Murphy hit his fourth homer of the year for Atlanta.

Dodgers 8, Mets 2
Los Angeles snapped its five-game losing streak as Doug Rau, 6-2, went all the way. He was supported by Steve Garvey and Davey Lopes, who each had two RBI.
Willie Montanez homered for New York.

Little League
Graniteers 3, First Federal 2
Three runs in the fifth inning enabled the Graniteers to nip First Federal.
First Federal scored first in the game when Lyn Moore walked, moved to third on an error and scored on Derek Dickens' double.
But the Graniteers turned things around in the fifth. Cedric Hines singled and went to second on a sacrifice by Jon Whichard. He moved to third on a passed ball and scored on a wild pitch.
Pinch hitter Carlton Wilson also walked and moved all the way around on two passed balls and a wild pitch. Terry Warren got a base on balls, moved to third on a passed ball and wild pitch and scored when Lark Worthington singled.

Ervin Best scored First Federal's final run in the sixth when he walked, stole second and came in on a single by Tyrone Barrett.
William Waugh was the leading hitter in the game with a pair for the Graniteers.
Union Carbide 7, Lions 6
Union Carbide built up a 7-1 lead and then held off the Lions, who scored five in the sixth inning.
UC put three runs across in the first inning. Tim West walked and Bill Messick reached on a fielder's choice. Steve Bath singled to score West and he and Messick pulled a double steal. Bath scored when Jeff Holland reached on an error.

In the second, West and Messick walked and were knocked in by Bath's double. Bath followed on Waters' base hit.
The Lions scored their first run in the third. Tony Taylor got a base hit, moved up on an error and a passed ball and scored on Marc Gatlin's fielder's choice.
Jeff Howard scored the winning run in the fifth. He walked, went to second on a passed ball and scored on Messick's single.
Bath had two hits in the game for Union Carbide, while Taylor led the Lions with a pair.

Oakland Pick Will Move In As A Starter

NEW YORK (AP) — Charlie Finley, the owner and manager of the Oakland A's, was barking on the phone to his stand-in manager, Jack McKeon.

"Hey Jack, who you got pitching on Sunday?"

"Broberg," answered McKeon.

"Scratch him, I got a replacement."

"Who he?"

"Michael Thomas Morgan."

"Yeah?"

"Yeah!"

"That's the way to go boss."

Finley, the P.T. Barnum of the baseball world, had done it again, creating excitement and interest out of something as mundane as Tuesday's free agent baseball draft of amateur talent.

Before he even picked the 18-year-old Morgan, a hard-throwing high school senior from Las Vegas, Finley had signed him to a bonus or more than $50,000. Then he decided to throw him into the starting rotation for the A's, leaders in the American League West.

"He has a lot of poise," said Finley from his office in Chicago. "He told me he'd go out there Sunday on that mound, take command, take control and challenge the hitters."

"I think there is a danger of him getting his head knocked off. But after talking with the kid, I realized there was no possibility of his losing his confidence. He impressed me very much with his cocky confidence."

Morgan was the fourth player selected in the draft, which continues today. Until Finley went on his youth kick, the major interest of the draft focused on the domination by College World Series contenders, Arizona State and Southern California.

Arizona State had four players selected, including No. 1 pick Bob Horner by Atlanta, No. 3 selection Hubert Brooks by the New York Mets, and Chris Bando by Cleveland.

Bando is the brother of Milwaukee third baseman Sal Bando, who also once starred at Arizona State.

Southern Cal players were called six times Tuesday, including Rod Boxberger, the No. 11 pick, by Houston, and Rob Hertel, the Trojans' star quarterback in football and infielder in baseball.

Horner, the NCAA career home run leader with 56, expects to come to terms with the Braves after the College World Series this week. Then he will be sent to Savannah of the Southern League for seasoning.

The right-handed Morgan, who struck out 111 batters in 72 innings for Valley High School this season, will be thrown right to the wolves Sunday when he faces Baltimore.

It will be the third time Finley has made an instant major leaguer out of a high school pitcher. On July 16, 1961, Lew Krausse pitched a 3-hit shutout for the A's over the then Los Angeles Angels.

"As soon as the game was over, his father and I jumped over the top of the dugout," Finley said. "I remember it because I cracked my ankle, rushing out to congratulate the kid."

"The second one was my man Catfish Hunter," said Finley, who hadn't planned to be in Oakland this weekend.

"But the kid made me promise that I'd be there, and I told him I would. In fact, I'll be there with bells on."

Horner Top Pick

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Bob Horner, the first player selected in the major league baseball draft Tuesday, said he was disappointed with his 0-for-4 performance at the plate that night in the College World Series. It was another high draft choice who handcuffed the Sun Devils.

"Boxberger was tough. He was throwing me in good spots," said Horner, the Arizona State All American, about Southern California's Rod Boxberger.

Horner, a third baseman who is college baseball's all-time home run king, was picked by Atlanta. He said he was excited and expects to sign soon.

"The way they've been talking, the money will be okay," Horner said following the Sun Devils' 5-2 loss to USC. "The only thing that would keep me from signing would be the money."

Wake Tops ACC Recruiting

By The Associated Press
Wake Forest seems to have sunk the winning basket this year in the annual leap by ACC schools to sign up top basketball prospects.

The Deacons landed three newcomers ranked among the top 50 prospects in the nation. They include 6-foot-8 Guy Morgan of Virginia Beach, described as mobile, physical, swift and a possible starter. Another is Alvis Rogers, a 6-foot-7 North Carolinian who jumps well and plays tough. At 210 pounds, he is agile enough to be a star hurdler in track. James Johnstone, a 6-foot-11, 240-pounder from upstate New York who provides some security in case Larry Harrison doesn't recover fully from a serious knee operation, is the third.

Here's how the other ACC teams fared:

Clemson
Foremost among five recruits is Bill Ross, a 6-foot-10 Floridian who will provide needed help in the pivot. Ross, along with 6-foot-10 South Carolinian Horace Wyatt, and last year's 6-foot-9 recruits, John Campbell and Larry Nance, will give the Tigers more size than they've ever had.

"We're trying to upgrade our stock, getting bigger," said Clemson Coach Bill Foster.

Duke
With the top 10 players returning from the team that went to the NCAA finals, Duke's Bill Foster made Vince Taylor his only recruit. Taylor is from Tate's Creek High School, just minutes away from Lexington, Ky., the home of Kentucky's NCAA national champions. Taylor said he picked Duke because he wanted to get away from home. Scouting service reports describe him as intelligent, an excellent ballhandler and passer, a canny penetrator and a great defense.

Maryland
Coach Lefty Driesell wound up with Reggie Jackson and Dutch Morley. A 6-foot-4 guard and a good mid-range and inscoring, Jackson contributes qualities like control, movement without the ball and defense that Maryland lacked last year. He likely will start at point guard or at the backcourt opening created when Jo Jo Hunter decided to transfer.

Another possible starter is Morley, the playmaker for two years at nationally-recognized DeMatha. He is a 5.6 scorer who averaged seven assists and took five charges a game.

North Carolina
James Black, a 6-foot-2 guard and 17-point-per-game scorer at Cardinal Hayes High School in the Bronx, became very important when Coach Dean Smith was unable to lure the heralded Jerry Eaves away from Louisville to serve as a replacement for All-America Phil Ford. Black will contest holdovers Dave Colescott and Ged Doughton for the point position.

In addition to Black, Smith signed another New Yorker, Chris Brust, a well-regarded power player who missed most of last season with a broken foot.

North Carolina State
Coach Norm Sloan got a power forward to understudy Tiny Pinder in Scott Parzych, a 6-foot-7, 220-pounder who led Lockport Central to a 33-0 record and the Illinois state championship.

Can He Do It Again?

Another 59 Not Expected

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Al Geiberger may win again, but the skinny veteran has little hope of duplicating the manner in which he took the 1977 Danny Thomas-Memphis Golf Classic.

"It's not the sort of thing you can realistically expect to do again," Geiberger said after a practice round for the $250,000 event that gets started Thursday on the hilly, 7,249-yard, par-72 Colonial Country Club course.

He posted an all-time PGA Tour record score of 29-30—59, 13 shots under par, in the second round of last year's event and rode that land-mark achievement to the 11th title of his career.

"It's nice to have that in your record, and a lot of guys have kind of kidded me about it — you know, calling me 'Old No. 59' and so on — but it isn't something you think about a lot. It was just one of those things that happen."

Geiberger underwent major surgery early this season, missed the first dozen tournaments, really hasn't regained top form and doesn't rank among the first 100 money-winners.

And there's another factor. Due to weather conditions last year, players were allowed to lift, clean and place the ball in the fairway. That rule will not be in effect this time.

Although many of the game's top attractions are skipping this tournament to concentrate on preparations for next week's U.S. Open, the field of 150 offers a strong line-up headed by a tough little band of foreigners.

Heading that group, of course, is South African Gary Player, a former Memphis champion and winner of three consecutive events, including the Masters, earlier this season. Joining him are Australian Graham Marsh, the Tour's 1977 Rookie of the Year, and youthful Seve Ballesteros of Spain, the winner of the Greensboro Open earlier this season.

Among the other standouts are veteran Dave Hill, a four-time Memphis champion, and Lee Trevino, a two-time winner. Trevino, winner of the Colonial National Invitation in Fort Worth last month, has played extremely well this year and could be a particular threat.

Other 1978 tournament winners on hand include Miller Barber, Barry Jaeckel, Jerry Heard, Lon Hinkle, Bill Rogers and Andy Bean, winner of last week's Kemper Open.

Portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday will be televised nationally by CBS-TV.

TALL MENTALLY

NEW YORK (AP) — "Tallness is not measured in inches," Franklin Jacobs said, "but is determined by the state of your mind."

Jacobs was as good as his words. At an indoor track meet in Madison Square Garden, he cleared the bar 23 3/4 inches over his head while winning the high jump competition. The 5-8 Jacobs set a world indoor record for the event by going over the bar at 7 feet, 7 1/4 inches.

COACHING CENTER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Basketball coach John Thompson of Georgetown University is one of the tallest coaches in the country in any sport. He is 6-10.

Thompson played center in his active days, first as a high school star in Washington, D.C., then at Providence College, and finally as a reserve for Big Bill Russell on the Boston Celtics.

Contrary to the popular belief, which holds that centers do not make good coaches, Thompson says playing that position gave him a feel for all facets of the game.

Mt. Olive Golfer Leads

CHAPEL HILL, Tenn. (AP) — Texas junior colleges held the upper hand as the National Junior College Athletic Association golf championship moved into its second day today.

McLennan Community College of Waco, Texas carded a team 293 on the tournament's first day Tuesday, good for a two-stroke lead over Western Texas.

For McLennan, golfers Steve Bowman, Bucky Smith and Greg Young each posted a one-over par 73 on the Henry Horton State Park course. Teammate Dave Davis had a 74.

"I'm really pleased with the way we played today," McLennan Coach Jimmy Clayton said after the round. "One day doesn't mean too much, but I like the position we're in."

Clarence Rose of Mount Olive Community College, Mount Olive, N.C., took the individual lead with a three-under par 69. One stroke behind him at 70 was Ken Chase of Scottsdale Community College, Scottsdale, Ariz.

Among the teams, Alexander City State Junior College, Alexander City, Ala., was third with 297. Defending team champion Brevard Community College, Cocoa Beach, Fla., and Broad Community College, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., were deadlocked for fourth with 299.

Cuts were scheduled today among the teams and individuals in the tournament, which ends Friday.

Williamston Wins

Jim Brown, now a movie actor but formerly a star running back for the Cleveland Browns, made 126 touchdowns in his National Football League career, the most for any player.

EDENTON — Williamston's American Legion baseball team romped to an 8-1 victory over Edenton last night.

Details of the game were not available to the Daily Reflector. Williamston is now 3-1, while Edenton fell to 1-1. Williamston plays host to Goldsboro on Thursday night.

Not Much Curbing Federal Consultant Contracts

BY DONALD LAMBRO
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Shortly after taking office, President Carter bluntly ordered a crackdown on federal consultant contracts. More than a year later, the Carter administration can show little for its efforts to curb what have come to be called "the Beltway Bandits."

The government now spends $2 billion a year paying private companies and individuals for information and advice. Some firms, doing nothing else, have grown rich and influential producing thousands of studies each year on everything from telephone surveys to home floor tile.

The "Beltway Bandits" label speaks to this haul of taxpayers' money and the location of many consultant firms in the suburbs of Maryland and Virginia connected by Interstate 495, the Washington beltway.

But more than money is involved. In many respects, consulting has become a fourth branch of government — influencing federal decision-making on major program policies and priorities.

Many consulting firms are so dependent on federal contracts that their staffs have become a new kind of public servants — paid by tax funds but free of the usual controls on government employees.

Accusing the bureaucracy of hiring consultants "excessively, unnecessarily and improperly," Carter ordered his department and agency heads to curb the practice and asked his budget office for guidelines to control consulting.

But a five-week investigation by United Press International into the largely hidden world of consulting firms reveals that since Carter's order, the problem has grown worse. In fact, say congressional investigators, it "has gotten out of control."

Specifically, the UPI inquiry found: Numerous instances of consulting contracts and studies duplicating previous work. Studies that appear to be "spinoffs" from earlier or companion contracts, many of which were proposed by the same consultants.

Increasing numbers of contracts issued without competitive bidding. "Revolving door" practices: experts from private firms taking top positions in government agencies with which they do business; government contract officials moving to consultant jobs.

One federal budget study found that 64 departments and agencies are paying consulting firms at least $1.8 billion a year to perform advisory or consulting work under nearly 34,000 contracts. Some officials estimate the real cost in excess of $2 billion a year.

Last year there were 17,963 consultants or advisers on the federal payroll. The government buys goods and services each year from an estimated 40,000 companies. No one knows how many of these firms do consulting only.

Noting that the Health, Education and Welfare Department was spending over $194 million this year on consultants, the Senate Appropriations Committee said it is "unaware of any instance where a consultant's recommendation has produced a significant program improvement."

The panel also said many HEW contracts are either unnecessary, repeat work done in previous years, or duplicate consulting work done by other agencies.

And the costs continue to rise. HEW's consulting expenses will climb to $247 million in fiscal year 1979.

"They (consultants) are like parasites who feed off the government," said one committee investigator. "It keeps them going year after year."

"What bugs me," says a House committee staffer, "is the repetition. You find the same titles for contracts every year. How many times has Head Start been evaluated? Or migrants? An enormous amount of money has been spent on studying the aged."

The degree to which consulting firms are used can be seen in the Federal Home Loan Bank Board's new $47 million building whose amenities include a skating rink and a French restaurant.

Consultant costs included $40,000 to negotiate leases for the building's retail space; $30,000 for "planning, developing and marketing" commercial space; $9,300 to review what kind of eating facilities were needed; $5,000 to review the potential restaurant operators; $4,500 to "review and recommend" the restaurant operator's plans; $2,000 for an analysis of Washington area skating rinks; and $63,000 for a legal opinion on whether the FHLBB could lease out commercial space in the first place.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development this year will spend $62 million on consulting. Congressional investigators say much of it is unnecessary.

HUD contracts include $143,000 for research and development of residential flooring systems; $189,000 to develop a citizen participation catalogue; $246,000 for a home improvement finance analysis; and $220,000 to produce a local government productivity handbook.

HUD also is issuing $3.5 million in contracts to, in part, arrange workshops around the country so state and local officials can discuss government finance problems.

The U.S. Conference of Mayors got $49,254 for telephone interviews with mayors and other municipal officials on financial management needs. The International City Management Association got $43,000 to hold financial management workshops for city managers. The Municipal Finance Officers Association obtained $96,280 for a financial management survey in six states.

A knowledgeable Senate budget expert says the program is "ridiculous. It won't change any local or state financial capacity."

Although UPI examined hundreds of consulting contracts throughout the government, much of its inquiry was focused on two typical Washington consulting firms.

One is the Urban Institute, a nonprofit research organization created with federal funds by President Johnson over 10 years ago to study and analyze domestic issues and programs.

HEW Secretary Joseph Califano, then a top assistant to Johnson, sparked the idea. HEW this year has given the Institute $2.5 million in contracts.

With a payroll of $6.5 million a year, the Institute employs 300 researchers, data analysts and others whose work brings in $11 million annually. Eighty-six percent of its income comes from 22 federal departments and agencies, the rest from state and local governments, foundations and private corporations.

In addition to its reports, the Institute also is well-known in Washington for its catered dinners where government policymakers, members of Congress and academics gather to hear speakers and exchange views on subjects from unemployment to poverty.

A participant described one of the Institute's recent "welfare symposia" affairs this way:

"Cocktails began at 6:30 p.m. There were bars everywhere. This was followed by a buffet served by tuxedoed waiters, most or all of them Spanish-speaking. The menu included beef bourguignon, eclairs, orange slices in liqueur. The silver was Reed and Barton."

The second firm is Mathematica Policy Research, Inc., set up in 1958 by a group of Princeton professors. It earned $23 million last year — 80 percent of it from the federal government.

With a staff of 600 employees and subsidiaries in Washington, Princeton, N.J., and Bethesda, Md., Mathematica's annual report says the firm has "opened new business potential in information processing for government agencies."

Among Washington consultants, however, the Urban Institute and Mathematica are particularly influential because of their development of a highly sophisticated data model used to project costs of everything from food stamps to welfare reform to a guaranteed annual income.

Called the Transfer Income Model, or TRIM, it first was developed by Urban Institute economists under a $1 million government contract. Later, Mathematica got TRIM by hiring several top Institute researchers who improved it under an HEW contract and began selling its data.

HEW now has its own "TRIM" model, but both firms continue to sell data derived from theirs to various agencies, including Labor and HEW.

Meantime, a substantial number of government contracts are issued on a "sole source" basis, meaning no other firms are invited to bid on the project.

Out of 18 HUD consulting contracts — costing from $877,605 to $9,000 each — given to Mathematica and the Urban Institute in fiscal year 1977 and 1978, only two were selected competitively.

Since 1972, the Labor Department's Employment Training Administration has awarded Mathematica and the Urban Institute 16 different contracts totaling $8.5 million.

Fifteen of the contracts — costing from $2.6 million to $4,800 each — were awarded without competition.

The reason often given by contract officials for these and other sole source awards is that only the firm selected possessed the type of experience needed.

Usually when contracts are put up for bid, a special board ranks the bidders' qualifications without considering costs. Later, a contract official selects from the top-ranked choices based on the best bid, which can be the most expensive.

Last year, the National Bureau of Standards issued a contract for $852,651 to the Urban Institute to analyze and project technology advances over the next 20 years. A government spokesman said the Institute was selected over seven other bids even though it had submitted "the highest bid."

Last year, Carter called for an end to what he termed "revolving door" abuses whereby former government employees may be improperly favored for individual or contracted consulting arrangements."

Robert Harris, the Urban Institute's senior vice president, says no influence ever is exerted in his firm's behalf by former employees now working in government.

Raymond Struyk, a former Institute official, is a deputy assistant secretary in the Office of Research and Demonstration at HUD. Last year it did $3.1 million worth of business with the Institute. But a HUD spokeswoman said Struyk "does not enter into any negotiations" in contracts with the Institute.

Another former Institute official, Stuart Altman, was a HEW deputy assistant secretary in charge of health policy planning and evaluation in the Nixon and Ford administrations. But Harris said, "We never got a nickel from his office."

Harris adds, however, that "There are people who could be in a position to get us contracts but most of the time we don't know it."

Mathematica's vice president, Harold Beebout, is concerned about "the appearance problem" arising out of employees who enter the government.

"It's very much a negative," he says. "It worries us a lot."

One of his worries is Jodie Allen, who before becoming a special assistant to Labor Secretary Ray Marshall was Mathematica's senior vice president.

Mathematica is under contract to Labor for numerous studies, one of which is to simulate the costs of Labor's welfare reform demonstration program which Allen runs.

The contract, awarded by Assistant Labor Secretary Arnold Packer without competitive bidding, began at $137,000 but after seven changes the cost is now $454,470. A department official says Ms. Allen was chosen by Packer for her present job "because of her work on this contract" while at Mathematica.

Ms. Allen says she has no involvement in any contract selections and in fact has even decided not to use any of the cost estimates being developed by Mathematica on her program. Another Labor Department official, who asked not to be identified, said, "There obviously is the appearance of conflict here."

Says Beebout: "We're worried about the appearance thing and whether or not we can continue with the Labor Department."

One of the questions raised repeatedly during UPI's inquiry was whether the thousands of studies and reports prepared by the consultant industry are read by anyone.

Many are widely disseminated to agency officials and appropriate congressional committees. Many others, contract officials said, are simply "dumped into" the government's data retrieval bank — then forgotten.

"New business" on the agenda includes: resolution adopting a policy of mutual assistance by the Police Department with other law enforcement agencies in the state; consideration of a communications grant application; consideration of a resolution authorizing Green-

Investigating Violence Rumor

LEWISBURG, Pa. (AP) — The federal penitentiary at Lewisburg is under investigation for alleged violence by prison guards.

Several prisoners claimed they were beaten by guards wielding ax handles in an April 14 incident.

The U.S. Justice Department's civil rights division is investigating the charges.

ville Utilities to apply to the U.S. Department of Energy for funding of a Comprehensive Energy Management Program.

Amendments to the city's Sedimentation Control Ordinance; consideration of an ordinance adopting the N.C. Building Code, Volume I; scheduling of a public hearing on proposed amendments to the City Code relating to adult uses;

Beer and wine privilege licenses; consideration of the acceptance and dedication of Howell Street from Perkins Street to Hooker Road; request for refund of a building permit; consideration of tax releases and refunds; and request by the Exchange Club for waiver of the privilege license requirements for the annual Children's Magic Show on July 28.

Young Kennedys Lean To News

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — After years of watching reporters watch their famous elders, the younger generation of Kennedys seems more interested in chasing the news than making it.

Joseph and Rose Kennedy, whose children included a president and two U.S. senators, have at least five grandchildren dabbling in journalism. The dabblers are among 29 grandchildren whose interests vary from law to the political life that made their parents and late grandfather the quarry of reporters.

Caroline Kennedy, whose father John F. Kennedy was once a reporter, was the latest to get a journalistic job when she was hired last week as a summer reporter at the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner.

"I guess it's because we're in contact with the press and become interested in it," Timothy Shriver, one of five children of Sargent and Eunice Kennedy Shriver, said when asked about the grandchildren's penchant for journalism.

"Everyone is exposed to one time or another," the 18-year-old Yale freshman told an interviewer.

Timothy, who has no definite plans for the summer, says he cannot write well enough to seriously consider becoming a reporter. But both his older brother and sister have full-time news jobs.

Robert Sargent Shriver III, 24, is also a reporter for the Herald-Examiner. Shriver, in fact, has been building his career in the best tradition of a newspaperman migrating across the country — from the Annapolis (Md.) Capital, to the City News Bureau in Chicago, to the Chicago Daily News and, finally, to Los Angeles.

His sister Maria, 22, is in a production training program at KYW-TV in Philadelphia. And two sons of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy of New York are also showing a bent for journalism.

David Kennedy, 22, a junior at Harvard who plans to travel in Europe this summer, worked last summer in the Washington bureau of the Nashville Tennessean.

His older brother Robert Jr., 24, wrote a profile for The Boston Globe last August of Judge Frank Johnson Jr. of Alabama, President Carter's first choice for FBI director. His book-length biography of the judge will be published soon. Robert, who graduated from Harvard, is now studying at the London School of Economics and plans to go to law school.

In addition, when Sen. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts led a family trip to China, Caroline and two of his children, Kara and Teddy Jr., sold pictures to newspapers and magazines. Kara, who is at prep school, will be spending this summer traveling in Europe.

Caroline, 20, has also exhibited photographs at a New York gallery. Last summer, she worked at the New York Daily News as a $156-a-week "copy person" in the city room. She is now a junior at Radcliffe and a staff reporter for the Harvard Crimson, but Frank Connolly, president of the student daily, says "she doesn't have a regular beat, and she's not real active."

All of this interest in writing and news is in the family tradition.

John Kennedy wrote briefly for the Hearst newspapers after World War II and won a Pulitzer Prize for "Profiles in Courage." Before marrying him, Jacqueline Bouvier was the "inquiring camera girl" for the Washington Times-Herald and interviewed her future husband. "They've always been brought up in an environment to respect news," said Rick Burke, personal assistant to Sen. Kennedy. "The kids have gotten into that and found it to be very interesting."

Not all the Kennedy kids are going into journalism. Robert and Ethel Kennedy's oldest son, Joseph, 25, considered running for state treasurer of Massachusetts before going to Washington to work for the Community Services Administration. Their oldest daughter, Kathleen, 26, is studying law at the University of New Mexico.

Teddy Jr., 16, whose cancerous right leg was amputated in 1973, wants to work again this summer for the Woods Hole, Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket Steam Ship Authority. Last season he helped park cars in the authority's lot in Hyannis.

'Proposition 13' Offers Impetus In Other States

By The Associated Press
The passage of a sweeping property tax cut plan in California will make things easier for supporters of similar moves in other states, say the people who are backing the efforts for change.

"It will help us tremendously to get our proposal on the ballot," said Cal Williams, head of the Ada County Property Owners Association in Idaho. The association is one of several groups collecting petitions to get a measure on the November ballot limiting property taxes to 1 percent of market value.

Williams said the group has about 20,000 signatures so far and needs 26,000 by July 7 in order to get the proposal on the ballot. "I believe we've been picking up momentum in the last week and I think we're going to make it," said Williams.

Average per capita property taxes in fiscal 1976 ranged from $57 in Alabama to $1,048 in Alaska, according to the Tax Foundation Inc., a nonprofit research group.

A recent Associated Press-NBC News Poll showed 59 percent of those questioned felt the property taxes they paid were too high. Seventy-five percent of those surveyed said they agreed with the statement: "There should be a lid on property taxes, even if that means cutting back some government services."

An AP survey showed measures to eliminate or sharply curtail property taxes are under consideration in six states — Ohio, Montana, Michigan, Oregon, Pennsylvania and Nebraska — in addition to Idaho, although they are in varying stages of development.

In Ohio, for example, a committee is still pondering a proposal for a constitutional amendment to raise the state income tax and cut reliance on property taxes as a source of school financing.

Bills now in Pennsylvania's senate would abolish property taxes as a way of financing public education, raise the state's 2.2 percent personal income tax and increase state funding for education, and raise the number of business taxes.

Vetoes Legal Use Of Laetrille

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — For the second time in as many years, Gov. Hugh Carey has vetoed an attempt by the Legislature to legalize the use of Laetrille.

Carey's wife, Helen, died of cancer in 1974, and the governor has repeatedly recalled that experience in condemning Laetrille as a "cruel hoax" on cancer victims and their families.

In Oregon, a petition drive is under way for a proposed constitutional amendment that would limit property taxes to 1½ percent of assessed valuation or, if the property has been sold since the last assessment, to 1½ percent of the sales price.

Rep. Al Shaw, a Republican from Roseburg, said the passage of California's Proposition 13 "will add fuel to our drive. It should give us a tremendous boost."

Richard Munn of the Legislative Revenue Office said the measure, if approved, would cut Oregon's average property tax of $22 for each $1,000 of assessed valuation to less than $15.

Montana Sen. Robert Watt, a Democrat from Missoula, said the California action "would indicate that the people are very unhappy about taxes."

Watt is supporting a petition drive on behalf of a measure that would abolish the property tax and replace it with a new tax on housing which would be based on income level. He said his plan differs from California's in that it "neither increases nor decreases the amount of revenue available. All this does is transfer all the taxes...to a person's adjusted gross income."

Michigan Taxpayers United for Tax Limitation is campaigning for an initiative that would limit any increase in state revenues to the increase in personal income and would require voter approval for increases in property taxes.

Unlike the California measure, it would not roll back existing taxes. "Ours is a far superior proposal," said Richard Headlee, president of the taxpayers' group. "It does not cause disruption of government."

Headlee said the California victory "will drive responsible officials into our camp because they have to realize ours is the only reasonable approach." Gov. William Milliken and most other state officials oppose the proposal, saying it would merely shift the tax burden. "Everybody wants no more taxes," said William Marshall, president of the state

AFL-CIO. "You have one hell of a time getting them to sit and listen to the cuts in services that would have to occur."

New Middle School Dedicated Here Last Evening

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

In a dedication program held Tuesday evening, the keys to Greenville's newest school, the Middle School, were turned over to principal John Carstarphen by architect George Shoe. The Middle School, constructed at a cost of more than $2 million, has been occupied by seventh graders since February.

A near capacity audience of educators, parents and students was on hand to hear dedication keynote speaker Dr. Jerome Melton praise the efforts of all those responsible for the concept of a middle school, citing these efforts as another indicator of "North Carolina citizens who have committed themselves to building schools, to an extent that perhaps surpasses efforts in any other state in the nation."

Melton, Deputy State Superintendent of the N. C. Department of Public Instruction, noted he had a special feeling about seventh graders, "because I taught seventh graders for several years."

Melton also called on the incoming new school board "to meet the challenge to work on completing the second half of the school, and to develop over the years a program responsive to the true needs and potential of every child."

In brief remarks during his introduction of the guest speaker, chairman of the Greenville Board of Education Henry Dunn commented, "the real dedication of this new school is to the people of Greenville and Pitt County." Dunn noted "this building will probably be remembered as one that took a record time to build."

Glenn Cox, Superintendent of the Greenville City Schools, expressed appreciation to the Pitt County Commissioners for their special appropriation last year, and to the officials of the City of Greenville who helped in so many ways during the construction period.

Under the direction of Johnny Wooten, the Middle School Chorus and orchestra presented a program of music. School board member

Edward Carter recognized guests, and Rev. Gene M. Adams, pastor of Immanuel Baptist Church, delivered the dedicatory prayer. The Greenville Middle School is located on Arlington Boulevard just east of Hooker Road on a 30 acre site. The portion of the school now completed and dedicated comprises 70,081 square feet. When the second half of the building is completed, the total area will be 137,683 square feet. Construction cost of the recently completed portion is $2,103,452, with a pupil capacity of 500.

ACCEPTANCE CEREMONY... Middle School principal John Carstarphen, right, stands in readiness to formally accept the keys to Greenville's newest school from architect George Shoe. A ceremony was held Tuesday night dedicating the school, which has been in use since February.

Named NAACP Mother Of Year

Mrs. Annie L. Cohen of Greenville was named NAACP Mother of the Year Sunday afternoon during the annual Pitt County Branch Pageant.

Mrs. Cohen represented Holy Trinity U. N. H. Church, Greenville, which she serves as president of the Usher Board. She is owner and operator of Cohen House of Beauty and is vice president of the Cosmetology Club, Chapter 24, of Greenville and a member of the N. C. State Beauticians and Cosmetologists Association. She is secretary of the Beauty Ames Saving Club. She and her husband, Purvis

MRS. ANNIE COHEN

Cohen, have three grown children, Evelyn, Ruby and Bobby Cohen.

Runners-up were Mrs. Hattie Hooks of Mount Shiloh Missionary Baptist Church, Winterville; Mrs. Martha Edwards of Macedonia Missionary Baptist Church, Farmville; and Mrs. Molly Fleming of Selvia Chapel Church, Greenville.

OES To Plan For Meeting

Pride of the East Chapter No. 524, Order of the Eastern Star, will meet at the Masonic Hall, W. Fifth Street, Thursday at 8 p.m.

Final plans will be made to attend the District Six meeting to be held in Robersonville Saturday at 10 a.m.

All members are asked to be present.

Drivers Must Be Told If On Reinsurance List

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — From now on, drivers who are insured through the North Carolina Reinsurance Facility will have to be told about it.

The board of governors of the facility voted unanimously Tuesday at the urging of a statewide consumer group to require insurance companies to notify drivers when their liability policies are turned over to the facility.

The facility is a pool through which insurance companies share the losses of drivers they consider to be a poor risk.

Rates for new and renewed policies for reinsured drivers have been 10 percent higher since April 1 than for drivers who are not reinsured. Before then, being insured had no effect on a driver's rates.

About 30 members of the Carolina Action consumer group attended the meeting on the notification issue. The board delayed a decision on Carolina Action's request that companies be required to tell reinsured drivers why their policies were turned over to the facility, and to set up an appeals process for those drivers. The board's attorney said he doubted the board had the authority to impose those rules.

About 30 percent of the state's drivers are insured through the reinsurance facility and most of them are not aware of it. Until last month, insurance companies were prohibited from notifying drivers when their policies were turned over to the facility.

Robert L. Morgan of Charlotte, a Carolina Action member, told the board that firms should be required to give reasons for ceding a policy to the facility. He said it is possible for mistakes to be made.

"It's like a bad credit rating," Morgan said. "You should have a chance to correct it."

'FIRM' DOLLAR
LONDON (AP) — The dollar rose slightly against the Japanese yen in Tokyo trading today and then opened firm on European money markets. The price of gold was up.

See Valuable 'Special' On Cambodia

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — It'll die in ratings against an NBC awards show and ABC's repeat of "Eight is Enough." But skip entertainments tonight and see a valuable CBS News special on Cambodia.

It's "What Hated to Cambodia," reported by Ed Bradley, who covered the final years of both the Vietnam and Cambodian wars.

It offers a chilling study of Cambodian life in the three years since communist Khmer Rouge troops routed the American-backed Lon Nol regime and radically changed the old ways of life.

No U.S. reporters have been let into the new Cambodia to probe reports of oppression, starvation and mass executions that have forced thousands to flee to neighboring Vietnam and Thailand.

So, tonight's show has to lean heavily on accounts of foreign reporters who've visited the area, a French priest who worked there and the Cambodians who've managed to escape to neighboring Thailand. But it also includes film footage and reports of a Yugoslavian news crew recently allowed into Cambodia for a two-week visit.

Their report doesn't go into tales of hunger and mass slayings. But it does paint a relentlessly grim portrait of life in what now is called "Democratic Kampuchea."

It's startling to see the capital, Phnom Penh, once a pleasant, gently bustling city, now a virtual ghost town of empty streets, shuttered stores and sad, shell-battered buildings.

And this dramatizes as only TV can the reports Cambodia's new rulers have emptied the nation's cities, and forcibly moved almost all the residents to the country to build an agrarian society.

The show, which also outlines the effect of U.S. involvement in Cambodia during the Vietnam War, does its best to study claims of widespread killings in the Cambodia that now bars U.S. journalists.

The harshest report is from an Australian, Tony Paul, Hong Kong-based editor for "Reader's Digest." He estimates as many as 2.2 million Cambodians have died to date under the new regime.

But as might be expected, the accounts of greatest impact are those given by Cambodian refugees themselves, particularly a 16-year-old lad who weeps in recalling how his entire family was murdered.

Later, a fan of the new regime, Daniel Burstein, a spokesman for a "pro-Chinese communist" group in the U.S., dismisses massacre tales as propaganda stories, some even told for money.

Bradley cites the weeping boy, gently asks: "Are you going to say that someone paid him to come up with those tears?"

The reply: "No. That's not my point. My point is that 90 per cent of the stories can be discounted."

It's a decidedly minority view in this one-hour show.

The program offers little fresh news of Cambodia. But it is a good, heartening try by CBS to at least go back and see what's become of that quiet land torn apart in the last violent gasps of the Vietnam War.

Awards Won By Gatlin's Music

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Larry Gatlin, who won three awards Tuesday night at the Music City News Popularity Awards show, says his band and the fans deserve much of the credit.

In fan voting, Gatlin was selected male artist of the year, songwriter of the year and band of the year for his group "Family and Friends." He shared top billing with Loretta Lynn, who was chosen No. 1 female vocalist for the 12th straight year and joined Conway Twitty as top duet for the eighth straight time.

"Without John and Mary, it's all for naught," Gatlin said afterwards, referring to the fans. "And I'm so proud for the band, I can't stand it."

Gatlin currently has the No. 2 song on the country charts, "Night Time Magic," which he wrote. He also wrote and recorded a top 10 country hit this spring, "I Just Wish You Were Someone I Love."

Brenda Lee accepted the award for Miss Lynn, who has been selected top female vocalist in this competition every year since the awards were initiated in 1967.

A spokesman for Miss Lynn, David Brokaw, said she was confined to bed at her home 60 miles west of Nashville. "I think she's just run down," he said.

Country music veteran Ernest Tubbs was presented the Founder's Award for contributions to the industry. He was selected by the staff of the Music City News, a monthly country music newspaper published in Nashville. This was the only award not chosen by fans.

Other winners were Don Williams, most promising male artist; Debby Boone, most promising female artist; The Statlers, vocal group of the year for the eighth straight year; The Osborne Brothers, bluegrass group of the year; Roy Clark, musician of the year; Mel Tillis, comedy act of the year; "Heaven's Just a Sin Away" by the Kendalls, single of the year; "Moody Blue" by Elvis Presley, album of the year, and "50 Years of Country Music," best country music television program.

Presley's producer, Felton Jarvis, said in accepting the album of the year award, "Elvis' first love was country music." The program was televised to most of the nation on an independent network.

New Ceramic Classes Set

Additional summer ceramic classes for children have been scheduled at the Greenville Art Center.

An additional session of classes for children ages five through 10 will be held each Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday afternoons, beginning Tuesday, June 13 and continuing through Thursday, June 29. Hours are 1 to 2:30 p.m.

In July, classes will be held, also in creative ceramics, for children ages 11-14. These classes will be conducted each Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, through July 27. Hours will be from 10 to 11:30 a.m.

The fee for each child enrolled for the nine lessons is $12, which includes the cost of most of the material used.

For further information and registration, call the Art Center, 7581-1946 between the hours of 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The bidding:

Opening lead: Jack of ♠.

A subtle bit of deception at trick one created the desired illusion and took in West. When given the lead, he made the "obvious" play that allowed declarer to bring home a slam that seemed doomed to defeat as the cards lay.

In terms of high cards, South's hand might be a bit short of a demand bid, but since the hand contained only three losers, we endorse his action. North's hand was strong enough for a positive response, and he followed up by raising hearts. South boldly contracted for slam, and even with the wasted values in diamonds, it depended on little more than the spade finesse. However, as we can see from the full layout, the finesse, and apparently the contract, was destined to fail.

West cannot be faulted for selecting the jack of clubs as his opening lead. We venture to guess that if the West hand were given to 100 experts, at least 99 would come up with that lead. Most players would follow low from dummy and win the ace, draw some number of trumps and then try the spade finesse. When West won the king, it would be obvious that his side's only hope lay in finding East with the ace of diamonds, and the marked diamond shift would result in down one.

However, South was a resourceful declarer and he chose to add a dash of low cunning to his plan. At trick one he covered the jack of clubs with dummy's queen, and he captured the king of clubs with the ace. Then, without giving the defenders a chance to signal each other, declarer entered dummy with a trump to the nine and ran the jack of spades to the king.

Based on the play at trick one, West thought his opening lead had struck oil. Surely declarer was marked with ace and one club, otherwise why play the queen from dummy? So, with only a moment's hesitation, West led back the ten of clubs. Declarer ruffed gratefully, drew the remaining trumps, then cashed the rest of his spades, discarding all of dummy's diamonds in the process. Thus, he was able to ruff his diamond loser in dummy and claim his slam.

Your play to the first trick could decide the fate of the contract! A writer once remarked: "There's no such thing as a blind opening lead, only deaf opening leaders!" Don't Write Off Carter Yet

By FRANK CORMIER and WALTER R. MEARS
Associated Press Writers
WASHINGTON (AP) — Wait a minute — or better still, a year — before you make any wagers that Jimmy Carter is going to be a one-term president.

He's in a slump, and a bad one. But this is 1978.

Gerald R. Ford got his kicks out of the poll that showed him leading Carter if the election were held now. But he's seen polls change dramatically before, and he said they could again.

Or take the author who predicted between hard covers that Sen. Henry M. Jackson would be the 1976 Democratic presidential nominee. The book didn't sell

Almost.

"It's way too early to be predicting a one-term presidency, like a lot of people are doing," said Republican National Chairman Bill Brock. "It's not too early to be predicting one heck of a contest."

Brock said that will be a boon to the Republicans, whatever the outcome.

Then too, Republican optimism is tempered by the familiar GOP argument over the ideal ideological credentials of the candidate most likely to succeed against Carter.

John Sears, a political pro who worked for Richard Nixon in 1968 and Ronald Reagan in 1976, is betting in print that the Republican nominee, regardless of identity, will be a sure winner.

But Sears could get a good argument, and perhaps a bet, from Patrick Caddell, the youthful, ruffled pollster who regularly tests the political winds for Carter.

Caddell, addressing a business group here recently, readily acknowledged the president "has had a serious drop in public opinion surveys in recent months, no matter how they've been measured."

But Caddell argued that the poll results most Americans read "tend to be masking the amount of personal popularity he maintains individually, in terms of personal qualities."

Moreover, the guru of Cambridge Research Associates finds a "lack of intensity" among Carter's poll-measured detractors.

"I have rarely seen a politician who has reached the levels in overall (low) ratings that Carter has which has not been accompanied by an enormous amount of ...personal hostile reaction," said Caddell.

He said Carter seems to escape the kind of hostility directed at such earlier presidents as Nixon, Lyndon Johnson and Truman when their popularity ratings were similarly slim.

In Caddell's view, public attitudes toward Carter are more ambivalent than negative.

That's significant, he continued, because an officeholder has a better opportunity to stage a ratings comeback "if people do not feel enormously hostile about you."

Programs At Fort Macon

FORT MACON STATE PARK — Two public events both free of charge, have been announced for this week at historic 150-year old Fort Macon near Atlantic Beach.

On Friday, June 9, beginning at 9 a.m., a park staff member will conduct a "Let's Go Fish'n" class. The staff park person will explain salt water fishing, rods and reels, tackle, history of fishing and give pointers on equipment. Those planning to attend are to meet at the Fort Macon parking lot next to the inlet by the display case.

At 3 p.m. Sunday, June 11, park naturalist Mark Joyner will lead an "Island Discovery Hike" along the beach and into the dunes and forest behind the beach. An informal study of animals, insect and plant life will be conducted. Those planning to go are to meet at the bathhouse.

Stock Rally Filled With Uncertainty

Interstate Securities Corp.

The stock market has rallied strongly in recent weeks, but there is still no clear indication whether it is a "bear trap" or the beginning of a new bull market. The market environment is even more uncertain than it was prior to the rally's beginnings. If you are an investor who fears that the market decline has further to go, but you would like to participate if a further advance develops, convertible securities may be for you.

A convertible security (debt or preferred) is senior to common stock but junior to straight debt or preferred issues. The interest or dividend is more secure, but the amount is fixed. The hedge against inflation comes not from rising dividends, but through appreciation of the convertible issue as the price of the underlying common stock rises.

Convertible are considered defensive issues — the upside appreciation is not as great as on common stocks, but neither is the downside risk. The higher yield on the convertible security provides some downside protection.

Favorable risk/reward ratios can be achieved by following several guidelines in the selection of convert-converts.

First, the yield on the convert should be reasonably higher than the yield on the underlying common stock. If the yield is not significantly higher, the common stock might be the preferable investment.

Secondly, the convertible issue should sell at the relatively low premium over conversion value, preferably less than 15 percent.

In the case of the convertible preferreds, the conversion value is found by multiplying the price of the common stock by the number of shares the issue is convertible into. If, for instance, the common stock is selling at 40 and the preferred is convertible into 1.862 shares, then the conversion value is 74. If the preferred is selling at 80, it is selling at an 8 percent premium over the conversion value.

One final guideline is that convertible securities selling below their par values are generally more attractive than those selling above par. Those selling above par carry the risk that the issue will be called at par, or at par plus a small premium, therefore forcing conversion into the common stock. Call features and conversion terms should be checked carefully as they are likely to change over a period of time.

Following these guidelines should enable you to choose the right combination of high yield and low conversion premium for maximum risk/reward through a defensive security. For those who do not wish to adopt an aggressive posture in today's uncertain market, convertible securities may be the answer.

“WE’RE NATIONAL, BUT WE’RE NEIGHBORLY”

American Asiaphiles Are Just 'Hung Up On Asia'

By BERT OKULEY
HONG KONG (UPI) — Douglas August Sapper, ex-U.S. Special Forces jungle fighter, sometime soldier of fortune and presently Hong Kong businessman, says his love affair with Asia has ended.

After 13 years, he's thinking of going home to the United States. Well, maybe not just yet — in couple of years if his import-export business doesn't flourish.

The former Green Beret neither drinks nor smokes. At 35, his closely-cropped hair is prematurely grey. It should be. He was in some tight situations in Vietnam in 5th Special Forces Group camps about a 5-iron shot from Cambodia. He was nominated for the Silver Star and won two Bronze Star decorations.

Ask him about his Indochina military experience and he says, "That's like asking somebody what happened at the circus."

Sapper, by then working as a security agent for an airline in Phnom Penh whose management was shadowy but might have had U.S. government connections, stayed behind when the communists took over Cambodia in 1975. He couldn't get any of his Cambodian employees on evacuation flights and wound up with 1,500 other people in the French Embassy compound.

Sapper cooked for his "people" and once when food started running low used his military expertise to cook a gibbon. After 21 days, the Khmer Rouge somehow allowed Sapper and certain other foreigners to leave on trucks for Thailand, which is a long way from his native St. Louis.

Doug Sapper, who quit the Army because he and Uncle Sam disagreed on how the Vietnam war should be conducted, is one of a growing number of American Asiaphiles. None are innocents abroad and all have one thing in common: they want to live out here despite the comforts offered by their homeland.

Jim Turner, ex-Peace Corps volunteer and a parttime teacher, runs a bar and restaurant in Manila staffed almost entirely by midgets and with more job applicants than he can hire.

"The Philippines is it," the 39-year-old Notre Dame graduate from Cedar Rapids, Iowa, replies when asked if he'll ever go home. "I'm having a good time. Maybe I don't make much money, but then who wants the headaches of being rich? And besides, I hate cold weather."

Gerald Stone left the United States 16 years ago, fleeing what he believed was an unhealthy political situation and fearing that nuclear war was about to break out. He felt things were reaching the "On the Beach" end-of-the-world stage. People were actually building bomb shelters and having air raid drills. So Stone moved his family from New York to Sydney, about as far away as one can get from America.

Today Stone, 44, is an award winning television producer-journalist known throughout Australia. He believes Sydney is one of the world's great cities and is convinced he'll never leave. He hasn't taken Australian citizenship, however, and says the discipline of his Midwestern upbringing probably has prevented him from taking the final step.

Tony Dyer, whose card reads "model — actor — ?," first came to Tokyo in 1964 during the summer Olympics. He's been there ever since, having done about 150 commercials, worked in three television series and acted in about 20 movies.

"I'm just hung up on Asia," says the mustachioed Dyer, a child of the depression but who doesn't tell you his age. "I could do much better if I went back to Hollywood, but I just don't like living in the U.S."

Dyer, who was wounded in World War II in North Africa, has a 300-member fan club in Japan and says "fate has been so good to me, it scares me." He's proudest of a film he made in Taiwan ("I played a British general, and they dubbed in a real British accent with Chinese subtitles") which was named best movie of the year by the Asian Film Festival two years ago.

Dyer, who makes $200 to $300 a day when he works, grew up in Troy, Mo., on the west bank of the Mississippi. Thrice married — to an American Indian, an American non-Indian and a Mexican — Dyer says he is considering trying it a fourth time with a Japanese.

Ken Kaliber is a 32-year-old bachelor from Minneapolis, Minn., via Ripon College in Wisconsin, where he majored in mathematics. The ex-U.S. Army captain and Peace Corpsman has lived in Korea for six years and is working as a copy reader for a Korean news agency.

"It is fascinating," he says of Korea. "Almost every day is interesting just because Korea is such a different country."

Kaliber, who pays $113 a month for a single room and board, likes Seoul's "congenial atmosphere." He says he might leave sometime this year despite a knowledge of the Korean language, but if he does his destination won't be the United States.

Then there is "Cowboy." His real name is L.T. Edwards, but nobody calls him that, not since he was a kid in Superior, Wyo. "Cowboy" has been his nickname for most of his 43 years and it is the name of one of the two bars he runs in Bangkok. He retired from the U.S. Air Force in 1974 after 21 years service during which he saw the world, teaching and trouble-shooting. Asia was the last stop for the tall, goateed Edwards.

"Of the last nine years, I've spent seven months in the United States," he says. "I was lost there."

Cowboy is married to a Thai, who manages his other bar. On slow nights, Cowboy is busy. On busy nights, it's packed. His policy: "If you see anything wrong, tell me. I won't try to fix it, I'll fix it."

Edwards bought a home in Louisiana for his mother, who was widowed when he was 9. He also is "very close" to his younger brother still in the Air Force and stationed in the United States.

One of the reasons George F. Glass, a 31-year-old chemist and businessman, is staying in Asia is because he's making a lot of money. In three years, he and a partner have parlayed a $10,500 investment in a Singapore company into a $100,000 a year turnover.

Glass, from the Chicago suburb of Matteson, Ill., is in the ginseng business.

Ginseng is a root plant used as a tonic and restorative by generations of Asians. The root and various teas and extracts from the plant are being more widely used in the west.

"My main idea in coming to Singapore in the first place was to use it as a base from which to learn all I can about Asia, especially China which fascinates me," Glass said.

In summer John Bissell wears the collarless white cotton "kurta" shirt and white baggy pajamas that are the Indian costume and he chats in understandable, if less than fluent, Hindi. But for all his 20 years in Asia, Bissell still has the white-shoe look of the Ivy League.

Bissell was Yale '52, two-year U.S. Navy officer, son of a well-to-do Connecticut family with links to the state's political power structure and nephew of a top CIA official, Richard Bissell.

But with all the chances to join the old boy network, the 47-year-old Bissell now has U.S. registration Number One in the foreigners section of the police department in New Delhi. That means he's the American who's lived the longest continuous stretch in northern India.

His wife, Bim, is Indian and worked as social secretary to U.S. Ambassadors Chester Bowles and John Kenneth Galbreath. He and Bim were married in 1963 at Bowles' residence in New Delhi. They have two children. Bissell runs Fabindia, an exporting firm dealing in handloomed fabrics. He suggests designs, supervises the production of weavers and handles the exports. He originally came out in 1958 as a consultant to the Ford Foundation but found it a "terrific disillusionment."

"India gives you time for development of personal relationships," he says. "Gee, that sounds awfully pompous, but there are more people to do the work, more people in the office and more people in the house. It gives you more time."

"I very much like developing, producing and selling handloomed fabrics. This is the only country in the world where there's a large commercial production. I like it a lot. I like what I do and I couldn't do this anywhere else."

Scholarship For Local Woman

NEWPORT NEWS, VA. — Mrs. Barbara Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard G. Allen, 200 E. Ninth St., Greenville, has been awarded a scholarship from Delta Kappa Gamma, an educational honor society, to continue her graduate studies.

She will use the scholarship to work on her master's degree in French at Middlebury College in Vermont.

A 1965 graduate of East Carolina University, Mrs. Miller teaches English to students who speak other languages. She aided with the resettlement of Vietnamese refugees and was chosen as an Outstanding Young Woman of the Year in 1976.

Revival Series Through Friday

WINTERVILLE — The Rev. Johnny Blount of Snow Hill is conducting a revival each evening through Friday of this week at the Soul-Saving Station, Person Street here.

Missionary Tammy Jean Carmon is in charge of the services, which begin at 8 o'clock each evening. The public is invited, says the pastor, Elder Ella Prayer.

OLDEST PARATROOPER — Command Sgt. Maj. Joseph Castellanos, 61, of the Florida National Guard, believes he is the oldest military paratrooper. He plans only one more jump before retirement in July, and says that will be his last. (AP Laser-photo)

Solar Power For Wastes

By ELAINE APOSTALA
WILTON, Maine (UPI) — A solar-powered waste treatment plant designed for this southwest Maine community may answer energy needs of communities elsewhere, conservation experts say.

To meet standards set by the federal water pollution control act of 1972, Wilton, population 4,300, had to build a waste treatment plant because, although some homes have septic tanks, many have been discharging raw sewage.

The town will soon complete a $6.4 million solar powered facility, 75 percent of it federally funded, according to Allen Ellingwood, spokesman for the Maine Department of Environmental Protection. Of the remainder of the cost, the state is paying 15 percent, the community 10.

Harold Cahill Jr., chief of EPA's municipal construction division in Washington had said the "treatment plant may well be part of the real solution for the future."

"This treatment plant was designed as an energy conserving solar power system. Fiberglass panels will transfer solar heat into the processing areas. Solar collectors will carry heat to the anaerobic digesters. The design, orientation, and exposure have been thoughtfully developed to get the optimum benefits from the climate and geography of the site."

Active and passive solar collectors will be used to capture energy for the system and heat sludge digesters.

While none of the energy supply, energy saving, and energy recovery methods designed into the plant are completely new and untried, the combination of the energy capturing methods in the design is unprecedented and innovative," Rhett said.

These sludge tanks will be maintained at a constant 98 degrees Fahrenheit from the solar energy.

Methane, a colorless, odorless gas that can be used as fuel, is a by-product of the sludge. It will be channeled into storage tanks where it will be kept until needed to operate an electric generator or fuel a hot water boiler when there are no prolonged periods of little or no sun.

The effluent from the Wilton plant will be discharged into a nearby stream except in drought periods. Then, when the stream's flow is low, the effluent will be sprayed into a nearby wooded area where it will provide water and nutrients for trees and plants.

Sludge from the plant will be loaded into trucks and carried to local farmland where it will be used as a soil supplement.

"Saving energy is a big asset for our EPA construction projects, particularly in our goal to cut operating costs for the smaller communities," said John T. Rhett, of the EPA's water program operations.

"While none of the energy supply, energy saving, and energy recovery methods designed into the plant are completely new and untried, the combination of the energy capturing methods in the design is unprecedented and innovative," Rhett said.

Wrong-Way Tourist Will Be Returning

BANGOR, Maine (UPI) — Erwin Kreuz, the wrong-way German tourist who last year thought Bangor was San Francisco, apparently will be returning to Maine — this time intentionally.

The West German brewery worker received national publicity last fall after he stepped off a California-bound plane and spent four days sightseeing in what he thought was a San Francisco suburb. He discovered his 3,000-mile error when he got in a taxi and asked the driver to take him to downtown San Francisco. The fare quoted was far more than he had anticipated.

But that was when Kreuz' whirlwind romance with the Pine Tree state began.

The owners of a German-American restaurant in nearby Old Town, Ken and Gertrude Romine, took Kreuz into their home. Kreuz toured the Statehouse, met the governor, frolicked with Andre the seal and received marriage proposals and offers of land before a San Francisco newspaper flew him and Mrs. Romine's son, Ralph Coffman, to California.

Now Coffman says the developers of a new Bangor mall want to pay Kreuz' way back to Maine so he can appear at the mall's grand opening later this year.

'Sex Appeal' Is Name Of Soap

CHICAGO (UPI) — Will a name such as Sex Appeal sell soap? A Chicago manufacturer of cosmetics and personal care products obviously thinks so. That's the name of one of 12 floral and fragrance creme soaps recently introduced by Jovan, Inc. The others range from such traditional scents as jasmine, carnation, rose and lavender to musk oil and some proprietary names.

Hotline For Pets Helps Community

By KEN FRANCKLING
 CHEPACHET, R.I. (UPI) — Barbara Ducharme picked up her ringing red telephone. "You want the goat?" she asked the caller. "I'll have to see whether it's been taken yet."

"Mrs. Ducharme and several friends decided it was time to do something about the stray and abandoned pets clogging local animal pounds.

"They set up a Pet Phone Hotline to match people wanting family pets with those seeking good homes for animals for which they couldn't provide care. Several area pounds are using the service to avoid destruction of unwanted dogs and cats.

"Our aim is to find homes for animals in trouble," Mrs. Ducharme said. "Most pounds have a five-day visiting period. After that, it's doggie heaven and that's a sin. We've got to stop it."

Response to the program mushroomed beyond the borders of this rural village, 20 miles west of Providence, to a large part of the state. Mrs. Ducharme is encouraging people elsewhere to start similar programs.

"The hotline gets calls from people who found stray animals and seek the owners, and others who lost their pets and want them back.

"Some callers leave orders for specific breeds and ages of animals they'd like to have if they become available. Others aren't fussy.

"We've placed rabbits, chickens, a couple of canaries," she said.

"Our main goal is to lower the animal population so they are all wanted or capable of being placed. We help people get their pets spayed or neutered if they can't afford it."

Some pound operators delay destruction of the animals if they know the Pet Phone group is actively seeking a new owner.

Since the hotline began, Mrs. Ducharme and her friends have placed more than 100 animals in new homes.

"These animals would have been put to sleep," she said. "The cages at the pound are no longer full."

Mrs. Ducharme can be contacted through the Humane Association of Northwestern Rhode Island, Box 355, Pascoag, R.I. 02859.

Some Monkeys Are Recycled

SEATTLE (AP) — Want to buy a Rhesus monkey, slightly used: Or perhaps a new one?

If you are a scientist, you might find an experimental monkey in a "new and used monkeys" bulletin published weekly by the Primate Supply Information Clearinghouse at the University of Washington.

Maryeva Terry, manager of the center, said most of the animals are "used" but some are "new," having been bought but not included in experiments.

The clearinghouse does not physically transfer animals from one laboratory to another, she said, but makes contacts and follow-up inquiries.

Funded by the National Institute of Health, the bulletin, which goes to about 2,800 subscribers nationally, provides a way of using available primates rather than going to the expense of purchasing and importing more. It also help conserve the world's supply of primates used for research, she said.

Recipient Of Scholarship

ECU News Bureau

Edward Ivey Smith of LaGrange, a student in the East Carolina University School of Technology, is this year's recipient of the Jesse R. Dills Scholarship given by the N. C. Industrial Arts Association.

Smith formally accepted the award at the association's recent annual spring exposition in Raleigh.

The Scholarship is awarded each year to a rising senior who excels academically and demonstrates the ability to become an outstanding teacher of industrial arts.

Dr. Thomas Haigwood, dean of the ECU School of Technology, and seven members of the ECU industrial and technical education faculty were present at the Raleigh event to see Smith accept the award.

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
 AP Newsfeatures

Photography is a universal language because a picture can be seen and understood in any country despite the normal barriers of speech and different customs.

And now "Photography: the Universal Language" becomes the first commemorative stamp honoring photography itself by the U.S. Postal Service when it is issued June 26th.

There were two U.S. stamps in the past which related to photography. One honored George Eastman and the other, talking pictures. But the new first class stamp shines an official spotlight of recognition on what has become a hobby, an art and a profession for millions everywhere.

However, it isn't always possible to display a camera and take pictures everywhere with the same universal ease. The Iron Curtain countries come immediately to mind where a camera's innocent prying eyes might be construed as spying eyes by suspicious officials. In other nations, authorities frown on picture taking of any subject that may be considered unsympathetic ... like poverty in any form. Even in our own country, picture-taking can be restricted by some religious sects, like the Amish, or in some places like museums or theaters.

But now, with the vacation season at hand shortly, Americans will soon be off with their cameras to bring back visual memories of people and places overseas and in some of the less familiar areas of our own nation. There are a variety of techniques and methods which photographers use to get pictures of interesting strangers they encounter everywhere.

First, there is the straight, friendly smiling approach. With a few appropriate memorized phrases, you indicate your desire to take some pictures. Here are some helpful phrases in five foreign languages which can be tucked away inside your camera case for ready reference:

"May I take a picture here?" (Spanish): Puedo tomar una foto? (French): Est-ce que je techniques and methods which photographers use to get pictures of interesting strangers they encounter everywhere.

First, there is the straight, friendly smiling approach. With a few appropriate memorized phrases, you indicate your desire to take some pictures. Here are some helpful phrases in five foreign languages which can be tucked away inside your camera case for ready reference:

"May I take your picture, please?" (Spanish): Por favor, puedo fotografiarlo? (French): Est-ce que je peux faire une photo de vous? (Italian): Per favore posso farle una fotografia? (German): Darf ich Sie bitte fotografieren? (Japanese): Sumimasen ga anatano shashin wo totte youoshii desho ka?

"May I take a picture here?" (Spanish): Puedo tomar una foto? (French): Est-ce que je

Prospect Of Rebuilding Ancient Athens Raised

By PAUL ANASTASIADES
 ATHENS, Greece (AP) — The Greek premier suggests that half his country's capital city should be demolished and re-planned. Others say it has no hope of salvation and that an entirely new city should be established elsewhere.

Athens, which mythology fabled as the City of the Gods and the ancients as the center of beauty and culture, is dying.

A series of recent meetings on the phenomenon, presided over by Premier Constantine Caramanlis, cited the key problems as over-population, lack of planning, no greenery, the traffic boom, overall pollution, and unbridled construction that has turned the once-known "City of Jasmim" into a concrete jungle.

"One solution would be to demolish half of Athens, but this is impossible," Caramanlis said after the latest meeting, "and since we can't, we have to at least examine how to save what we can."

Caramanlis said Athens was "the only city in the world" built without a plan. He said the original layout for the city was a Greek-German scheme dating from the beginning of this century and catering to a population of 100,000.

At the end of the first World War there were 300,000 Athenians. Following a heavy influx of refugees and a heavy urbanization trend, the Greek capital along with its environs and port city of Piraeus today concentrates three million or one-third of the country's entire population.

"All this became so without any plan," Caramanlis said.

A master plan for the city drawn up in 1976 has been abandoned. Instead, moves to deal with related problems are occasionally announced, such as an ambitious reforestation project on the mountain slopes and hills surrounding the city, moves to discourage car purchases, stricter traffic laws, and plans for new fly-overs, highways and multistoried garages. A recently set up police squad has been assigned the dubious task of cracking down on noise-makers.

A long-planned subway network is seen by the government as the key solution against congestion and was the foremost topic of attention at the last conference with the premier. But while originally scheduled to function next year, it has not yet even started being built due to the high costs and technical difficulties and may eventually be abandoned.

The government committee assigned to examine remedies noted that Athens remains the least green city of Europe with just over 2 percent, while new cars are running on its narrow roads at the rate of 3,000 additional ones per month.

Added to the 410,000 vehicles jamming the Athenian roads and clustering the pavements is the concentration of half the country's industry on the city's outskirts.

The semi-official environment association has ruled the city-center atmosphere as dangerous to public health, modern-day pollution has been cited al architecture.

A group of independent Athenian civil engineers, admitting they had lost all hope of remedying the situation, recently called on the government to stop wasting effort on Athens. In their published memorandum they said the best solution was to build another city, somewhere in central Greece, to absorb a million persons.

again. The key to success here is to remain inconspicuous.

It is easier to remain inconspicuous by using a telephoto lens, and a popular one that I've used is 135mm. Then you can work from a distance without the subject being forcibly aware of being photographed. The photographer at the same time doesn't feel like he's sneaking a picture.

I recall one photographer whose picture-taking equipment included cartons of small chocolate bars and chewing gum and boxes of inexpensive ballpoint pens. When out looking for pictures, he filled his pockets with these accessories and rewarded his subjects, young and old, with an appropriate goodwill offering.

Still another technique was one I've used and other photographers have found of great value technically. That is to have a Polaroid camera along.

The novelty of producing an instant picture to give to the subject is a sure way of getting instant cooperation from others in the vicinity. At the same time, it's a good way to check the exposure and improve the composition, if necessary, when taking the picture again with transparency or negative film in other cameras.

While photography is a universal language, picture taking has its restrictions. There is no one method that's sure-fire in all places at all times. Even in our own environment and sometimes in our own family circles, a real diplomat of the camera may have to use a combination of all the approaches mentioned. One must gauge the subject's personality and know when to approach with a smile and the right phrase ... and when to remain inconspicuous behind the camera curtain.

Can Nitrite-Free Bacon Still Be Bacon?

LOST RING — Ina Keillor holds the original engagement ring she lost nine years ago in her backyard at Rochester, Minn. which she found last week in a pile of dirt. She lost the ring while trimming branches in the same area. The ring was in good condition. (AP Laserphoto)

By NORMAN D. SANDLER
DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) — While most of the meat industry attempts to come to grips with a federal order to cut back the use of cancer-causing substances in bacon, Ray Kennedy is savoring victory.

Kennedy, an independent Sioux City meatpacker and inventor, has won back-to-back victories in his fight against production of bacon cured with sodium nitrites — substances that have been used for centuries to preserve and flavor processed meats.

For several years, Kennedy has produced nitrite-free pork products, but Agriculture Department rules barred him from marketing them as bacon. Instead, Kennedy's alternative has been called Bakon, and is slated to become Por-Kee when his current labeling permit expires July 1.

The USDA has examined nitrites since 1969. When bacon is fried, the additives — considered vital by the meat industry to preventing botulism poisoning in cured meats — are known to form nitrosamines, which have proven carcinogenic in tests with laboratory animals.

The government, however, did not act until this year to reduce nitrite levels and mandate meat processors to find alternative curing methods — action Kennedy and public-interest groups charged should have been taken long ago.

The USDA also wants to relax its labeling regulations to allow nitrite-free products to be marketed under their traditional names, thereby allowing Kennedy to call Bakon bacon, rather than a bacon alternative.

To Kennedy, who has waged a five-year, $200,000 crusade against the agriculture establishment to place Bakon and other nitrite-free pork products on supermarket shelves, the indecision over a modified nitrite ban has been a classic struggle between an entrenched industry, seeking to protect time-honored production techniques, and the possible threat from a maverick producer.

"The bacon business is primarily a monopoly," Kennedy said. "There has been just one hell of a lot of distortion in all of this, which has misled the public about the nitrosamines."

"The entire cured meat industry has suffered tremendously. But they have been drawn into it by groups that control the AMI (American Meat Institute) who want to protect the bacon industry."

The meat industry, through the AMI, denied it has undertaken a concerted effort to deny Kennedy market access and claimed credit for bringing the nitrite issue to the attention of government regulators.

An AMI spokesman said the organization was the first to alert the USDA and Food and Drug Administration about European tests on nitrosamine formation that led to a more in-depth investigation by a panel of experts organized in 1973.

The recently announced nitrite limits, AMI spokesman Bob McMillan said, "are something we've been urging for some time," adding 90 percent of the bacon on the market already conforms to the USDA's first-phase nitrite reduction.

Yet, the AMI fought relaxation of the labeling regulations and intends to persuade the USDA to revise the drastic reduction in nitrite concentrations it has ordered for next year, warning that without nitrites, the risk of botulism formation is far greater.

"If you produce something that's nitrite-free, it's just not bacon," McMillan told UPI. "It doesn't have the red color bacon has, it has to be frozen and it doesn't have the taste. We just don't think these are true bacon products as people know them."

Kennedy denied the AMI's charge his product is not bacon.

His Bakon comes from the pork belly, but goes through a salt curing process, rather than a nitrite treatment. He said the key to inhibiting the formation of botulism is in controlling the temperature during curing — a process he said melts away much of the fat content of regular bacon — and in the consumer's handling of the meat.

"The mention of deadly botulism is ridiculous," Kennedy said. "You'd have the same risk if you mishandled rare beef and unless you store it on the kitchen counter, there's no problem."

Kennedy, despite what appears to be a moral victory, is apprehensive about marketing his product as bacon. The nitrite controversy, he said, has thrown a scare into consumers and made them so suspicious of bacon that he might be wiser to emphasize the no-nitrite quality of Bakon.

"We just want the right to call our product what it is — bacon. We don't like the idea of being denied the use of the label bacon because it makes it look as though we're marketing a pseudo-product," he said. "But there's a bad taste that's been left in the mouths of most consumers with respect to bacon. I like using the label of bacon alternative because we think people don't want to buy cancer cheaper."

McMillan said he has not been able to find evidence of a consumer backlash against bacon.

The AMI's official stand on Kennedy is that it disagrees with his. McMillan said he has

Chicago Museum Pays Tribute To Nobelists

By C.G. McDANIEL
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — The accomplishments of the nation's most outstanding scientists are recognized in the new Nobel Hall of Science at the Museum of Science and Industry in Chicago.

The country now has 115 of its scientists numbered among recipients of the world's highest distinction for their accomplishments in physics, chemistry, and medicine and physiology.

At a recent dinner, the five Americans selected as 1977 Nobelists were inducted into the new hall, the first such exhibit in the world.

They are Dr. John H. Van Vleck, professor emeritus of physics at Harvard University; Dr. Roger C.L. Guillemin of the Salk Institute for Biological Studies at San Diego; Dr. Rosalyn S. Yalow of the Veterans Administration Hospital in the Bronx, N.Y.; Dr. Philip W. Anderson of Bell Telephone Laboratories, Murray Hill, N.J., and Dr. Andrew V. Schally of the Veterans Administration Hospital, New Orleans.

The awards are named for Alfred Nobel, the Swedish chemist who invented dynamite, who left his sizable fortune to further science and peace. The first Nobel Prize was awarded in 1901.

The largest number of Nobel Prize winners has come from the United States. And among the American winners, the most have been in medicine and physiology.

The museum exhibit includes photographs of all of the Americans, along with their citations.

In addition, it has what are called participation units which enable visitors to learn through interaction with the exhibit.

These include a simulated cyclotron showing how physicists speed up nuclear particles, a model of a "bubble chamber" explaining the detection of subatomic particles, and an actual spectroscope showing how chemists analyze the light emitted from different sources.

Other exhibits explain genetic research and the current interest in the controversial DNA, which may make genetic manipulation possible.

A slide program presents the life of Alfred Nobel, a sickly and lonely recluse who died in one of his homes in Italy in 1896. At the time of his death he had factories and laboratories on the five continents.

Another exhibit features a film about many of the most recent Nobel laureates.

Still another slide show presents highlights of achievements by the Nobelists in the scientific areas, including vascular surgery, immunization against yellow fever and the treatment of cancer with hormones.

No More Automoton Soldiers In New Bundeswehr

By DAVID MINTHORN
Associated Press Writer
NEUSTADT, West Germany (AP) — Officers still shout "achtung!" and soldiers click their heels when they salute, but 33 years after the defeat of Hitler's Wehrmacht, the West German army has a democratic flavor that would appall Russian traditionalists.

"If I order my men, 'Stand and fight here. No retreat!' I am convinced they will obey. But not because we have the slavish obedience of the Wehrmacht," says Col. Erich Dietrich, commander of the 6th Panzer Brigade in what is now known as the Bundeswehr.

"We have the discipline, but discipline tempered with comradeship and trust up and down the ranks."

The 495,000-member Bundeswehr is considered one of NATO's best fighting forces. It is not without problems: scattered neo-Nazi incidents, a growing number of conscientious objectors and a goodly number of AWOLs.

But in an army that relies on draftees as its basic source of manpower, there are amenities and reforms unheard of by Hitler's goose-steppers. They include a soldiers' union, elected representatives to carry complaints to officers, even the right to have long hair and beards.

A typical training day around Dietrich's garrison near this Hessian farm town is like a typical training day at any military base anywhere: trainees on the rifle range, tankers practicing driving their 40-ton monsters and simulating live fire with laser devices.

But basic training is hardly the torture that many soldiers — German and American — would remember.

When a soldier is so far off target that his bullets snap a tree branch 30 meters away, the instructors react with tolerant smiles.

"We never yell at the recruits," says 1st Lt. Joerg Pretzel, the range chief. "We try to keep them relaxed because many of them have never fired a weapon before coming into the army."

A draftee in the Bundeswehr serves for 15 months. The troops at this post live in red brick barracks partitioned into rooms holding four men, with beds and bureaus from the 1972 Olympic village in Munich. There are separate day rooms where they can drink beer, read or watch television when off-duty.

(Most U.S. posts have similar amenities in the barracks, but American soldiers in Germany often complain about substandard quarters, many seized from the Germans after World War II.)

The Bundeswehr's workday is from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m., with weekends off. Trainees get $105 a month, but after basic training are paid on the same scale as civil servants. They can belong to the public workers' union, but they do not have the right to strike.

There are the standard military problems — Dietrich says his brigade had 89 AWOLs last year and 80 in 1976. But one problem has existed since the Bundeswehr's inception in 1955 — how to deal with the Nazi past.

Most able-bodied Germans served in the armed forces during World War II, so naturally most of the new army's men were veterans of that war. Even today, 90 percent of Germany's 220 generals and admirals are former Third Reich officers, some personally decorated by Hitler.

Officially, the Bundeswehr continues to view World War II with a double standard — condemning Hitler's tyranny but admiring Germany's military successes. Many units retain "ties of tradition" with disbanded Wehrmacht units, and naval vessels and military bases are often named in honor of World War II heroes.

"No people on earth, no army in the world, can live without history and tradition," says Manfred Woerner, chairman of the armed services committee in Parliament. "History cannot be amputated."

But that has led to several controversies. In 1976, the two top generals of the Luftwaffe — air force — were fired after supporting the visit of Hans Ulrich Rudel, World War II hero and leader of postwar neo-Nazi causes, to a 1976 Bundeswehr reunion.

Last year, 11 army cadets staged a symbolic "Jew burning" during a drinking bout at the Bundeswehr Academy in Munich. The cadets were expelled, but high-ranking officers accused of trying to cover up the incident went unpunished.

At 50, Dietrich represents a group of new Bundeswehr leaders too young to have had any World War II responsibility. And he has pointedly tried to honor those officers who opposed Hitler, posting at the entrance to his headquarters pictures of six Wehrmacht officers who died for plotting against the Fuhrer.

"They died for Germany's honor," says the inscription above the pictures of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, Col. Klaus von Stauffenberg and other members of the July 20, 1944, conspiracy.

'Big Top' Built By Circus-Lover

By CHRIS MEEHAN
Lansing State Journal
LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Harlan Kline has been incurably hooked on the circus ever since he awoke one morning to the sight of elephants being watered in the front yard of his Owosso home.

"I remember looking out that window and it hit me right then and there that I had to be part of the circus somehow," says Kline, now a 70-year-old retired accountant.

Kline didn't pack his bags and run off with the circus, though. Instead, he stayed home and made miniature replicas of circus wagons out of Shredded Wheat cereal boxes.

Today, Kline has more than 100 handcrafted circus pieces — tents, wagons, wild animals and performers — displayed and packed in boxes in his home in Lansing.

"I always like working with my hands, making things," said the short, gray-haired craftsman. "As a kid, I'd make soldiers, guns, landscapes, dioramas out of cardboard."

Throughout his teens, he worked on assorted circus pieces. But he didn't start working in earnest on his miniature circus until he was discharged from the Army in 1946 and took a job teaching accounting at Lansing Business College.

"Then I'd come home and start carving circus figures out of wood just to help blow off steam, to throw away the cares of the day," he says.

While working at his hobby, Kline passed through a succession of accounting positions, ending up as Lansing's budget director before his retirement in 1970.

"It gets in your blood," says Kline. "When the circus used to come to Owosso that was an important event."

"In the circus you would see things you'd never see any other way. The circus brought something to our lives, an enlightenment, an education."

Kline has tried to spread the word of the circus to people in the Lansing area.

"My wife, Frances, and I like to take pieces of my circus around to schools and different groups and tell them how the circus used to be," said Kline.

When they travel, the Klines dress up as clowns, and Kline plays his calliope.

Kline likes a challenge, something to work toward. He is a man of boundless energy.

"People who retire and say they don't have anything to do are crazy," he said. "I've got so much to do I can't keep up."

TRANSPLANT CAPITAL
NEW YORK (UPI) — The United States with more than 200 of the total 354, is the world transplant capital of the world.

How Tar Heel Representatives And Senators Voted

By Roll Call Report
WASHINGTON—Here's how area House members were recorded on major roll call votes May 25 through May 31. There were no Senate votes in the period.

KOREAN SCANDAL—Adopted, 321 for and 46 against, a non-binding resolution expressing the "sense of the House" that Congress should cut off non-military aid to South Korea if that country fails to make a certain official available for sworn testimony to the House Ethics Committee. The official is former Ambassador to the U.S. Kim Dong Jo, who is alleged to have made cash payments to at least ten current Members of Congress. Special Ethics Committee Counsel Leon Jaworski says the cooperation of Kim, who has refused to testify on grounds of diplomatic immunity, is needed for a thorough investigation of the influence-buying scandal.

Majority Leader Jim Wright,

D-Tex., a supporter, called the resolution "a clear and unequivocal expression of the desire—indeed the insistence—on the part of this House to remove the cloud of suspicion that has hovered for too long over these alleged relationships."

Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., an opponent, doubted that the resolution would secure the testimony. He said it would "tend to back the Koreans into a corner," and that giving in to such a threat would "win the epithet of being a lackey of the United States...."

Members voting "yea" favored the resolution.

Reps. Walter Jones, D-1, L. H. Fountain, D-2, Charles Whitley, D-3, Ike Andrews, D-4, Richardson Preyer, D-6, Charles Rose, D-7, W. G. Hefner, D-8, James Brodyhill, R-10, and Lamar Gudger, D-11, voted "yea."

Reps. Stephen Neal, D-5, and James Martin, R-9, did not vote.

BUREAUCRACY?—Adopted, 237 for and 135 against, an amendment to prevent creation of a presidential commission. The proposed nine-member commission was to have spent a year studying whether the U.S. government should establish a "Center for Conflict Resolution." Drawing on the behavioral sciences, such a center would seek to equip the government with more sophisticated techniques for resolving conflicts such as those between nations.

The commission was proposed as part of a foreign relations bill (HR 12598), later passed.

Rep. John Ashbrook, R-Ohio, sponsor of the amendment, asked: "Are we ever going to stop, or are we going to add...one commission on top of another? Somewhere, sometime, someplace we have to say, 'Enough.'"

Rep. Helen Meyner, D-N.J., an opponent, said: "We pay an exorbitant price in money and human suffering when conflicts result needlessly in violence and destruction.... Many conflicts can be avoided. The payoffs from this study could be enormous."

Members voting "yea" opposed creation of the presidential commission.

Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Preyer, Hefner, Brodyhill and Gudger voted "yea."

Jones and Rose voted "nay."

PRISONERS' RIGHTS—Adopted, 178 for and 109 against, an amendment designed to assist prisoners who feel their constitutional rights are violated by penal authorities. It enables the U.S. attorney general to go into court on their behalf provided that their grievance has been screened and referred to the Justice Department by a state court. It was attached to HR 9400, a bill giving the U.S. attorney general power to sue to remedy abuses of institutionalized persons such as the mentally retarded, the elderly and the handicapped. Adoption of the amendment means that under certain circumstances prisoners, too, can be aided by the Justice Department in their complaints against state authorities. The amendment reverses a House vote of several weeks ago which excluded adult prisoners from HR 9400. The bill was passed and sent to the Senate.

Rep. Charles Wiggins, R-Calif., an opponent, said: "It is to be remembered that the House took a position the last time this bill was on the floor and voted by a significant majority to delete correctional institutions from the bill." Members voting "yea" favored broadening the bill to include prisoners.

Jones, Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Neal, Hefner, Martin, Brodyhill and Gudger voted "nay."

NOT AN ECONOMY CAR—Richard Braund poses in front of one of his Duesenberg II at his automotive plant in Elroy, Wis. Braund's sporty replica of the fabled 1933 Duesenberg SJ Speedster sells for about $55,000. He has half-dozen orders for the car and says the first two will emerge from his shop by summer. Two Earned Promotions

ECU News Bureau
 Francis Belcik and Vincent Bellis of the East Carolina University biology faculty have received promotions in rank.

Belcik is being promoted from instructor to assistant professor, and Bellis, from associate professor to professor.

An alumnus of Youngstown State University, Belcik received the MS degree from Oregon State University. He has done additional study at Mississippi Southern and Oregon Universities.

Among his research interests are life processes of sea animals. He is the author of research reports published in three scientific journals.

Belcik joined the ECU faculty in 1965.

Dr. Bellis holds degrees from N. C. State University and received the PhD degree from the University of Western Ontario. He has been a member of the ECU faculty since 1966.

An active researcher, Dr. Bellis has been a specialist in the ecology of algae, the impact of human activity upon aquatic systems, and estuarine ecology. Some of his work has been supported by grants from the Marine Science Council and the National Science Foundation.

Nat'l Exam On July 15

ECU News Bureau
 The National Teacher Examinations (NTE) will be given at East Carolina University July 15.

Scores from the examinations are used by states for certification of teachers, by school systems for selection and identification of leadership qualities, and by colleges as part of their graduation requirements.

The Educational Testing Service, which prepares and administers the tests, says they are designed to measure knowledge gained from professional and general education and in 21 subject-matter fields.

Further information and registration forms are available from the ECU Testing Center, 105 Speight Bldg., or directly from the Educational Testing Service, Box 911, Princeton, NC 08541. The deadline for regular registration is June 22. On-the-spot registration is not permitted.

Hearing Loss Is Top Disability

CHICAGO (UPI)—What do Art Carney, Nanette Fabray and Johnnie Ray have in common? Besides being celebrities, they've all suffered hearing loss of some kind and they're all active in the Better Hearing Institute's Better Hearing and Speech programs which encourage detection and correction of hearing problems.

"Hearing loss is the nation's number one handicapping disability," says Lawrence M. Posen, BHI advisory board member and president of Beltone Electronics Corp., a leading hearing aid manufacturer. "An estimated 14.5 million Americans suffer from hearing impairments," he said.

The Practical Side Of Death Taught To Children

By DAN CHISZAR
Greeley, Colo. (UPI) — "There's nothing here to frighten you in any way," the undertaker told the children.

It was a sunny spring morning and the sixth and seventh graders of Chapel Middle School were in the Adamson Mortuary on a field trip.

They filed into the wooden pews of the mortuary's chapel; fidgeting, chewing gum and whispering among themselves.

"I'm a licensed funeral director," Bob Hansberry was saying at the podium. "The casket is placed on the bier between the lamps." The rustling continued in the pews, and a girl in the second row fiddled with her hair.

Hansberry was explaining the practical details of death: "The hospital calls us, gives us the ward and floor — we immediately send a man to pick up the body. It's brought back here and embalmed." More whispering in the pews.

"Embalming is a process of disinfection, preservation and restoration," said Hansberry. "Decomposition starts immediately after death. In restoration, we try to make the body as lifelike as possible. We try to give the family — in an old mortuary term — a good memory picture.

"Any questions?" he asked. Very few at this point.

Off they went, behind Hansberry, to the mortuary's business office for some talk of death certificates and burial permits.

"There's quite a bit of government paperwork involved," said the undertaker. "That's all taken care of in these offices." Still no questions from the kids.

Up a flight of stairs, and the kids were at the door of the casket display room. "If there's anybody who doesn't want to go in there, that's fine," said Hansberry. Not a sound from the students. "There are basically four types of caskets: cloth-covered wood, hardwood, and the sealing and non-sealing metals," the mortician said amidst the coffins. "The sealing metal caskets are hermetically sealed. They're vermin proof, moisture proof; nothing can get in, nothing can get out."

The kids spread out among the coffins like adults in a used car lot.

Hansberry kept talking: "The price you see on the caskets are not just for the casket. They include all service charges." The questions came quickly now: "Why do you put pillows and blankets in here?" asked one small boy.

"Humm, nobody ever asked that before," said Hansberry. "They're made to look similar to a bed."

"How much is this one?" said another youngster.

"Three thousand dollars," said the undertaker.

"Gee," said a girl to a green sweater and blue jeans.

"Do they make caskets for babies?" said a tiny voice from the group.

"Yes, they're upstairs," answered Hansberry. "Would you like to see them?"

"Yeah," came the collective response, the first sign of intense interest.

"What is this about?" asked an adult in the crowd.

"Well, a lot of them have little brothers and sisters," said Gary Colley, a health teacher who coordinates the school's field trips.

It was Colley who took a suggestion from science teacher Cliff Bartlett and added the mortuary to his list of field trips. Bartlett and another science teacher had prepared the students by including in their classes lessons on death and dying.

Up another flight of stairs, the kids squeezed into a small room filled with tiny, white, cloth-covered coffins.

"We make baby caskets from two feet to three feet," said Hansberry. "And we have one 3½ feet long. We can order larger caskets from Denver."

"Poor babies," whispered one girl holding an instamatic camera.

"Follow me downstairs to the embalming room," said Hansberry.

"Yeah," the kids said again.

"I'm not going in there," said a boy with glasses.

"Chicken," said his friend.

In front of another door, Hansberry again offered the kids a chance to sit it out. No takers.

"This is our preparation room," he said inside the clinical-looking chamber. "We can embalm two bodies at the same time. The tables are stainless steel. This is our embalming machine; it's a stainless steel tank and a pump. The blocks are for holding the head in position. After death, there is no muscle tone. The body is limp, and it has to be held in position."

The kids stared, and several girls clutched their large plastic combs with both hands. Someone accidentally kicked a trash container, and the children started.

Hansberry held up a brown plastic container.

"This is 15 percent formaldehyde. We dilute it with eight ounces to a gallon of water. That makes it 1½ percent formaldehyde solution. We use the same circulation system the body normally uses."

He pointed to his neck. "We inject into the carotid the embalming fluid. This goes around the body and comes out the jugular vein. There are six points where we shoot into the body. A good embalmer hopes he won't have to shoot more than one point, but sometimes you do."

A blonde girl, Tammy Warehime, 14, noticed a block and tackle affixed to the ceiling. "What's that for?" she asked.

"That's for very heavy bodies," answered Hansberry.

Now, it was questions, questions, questions.

"What if a guy got his head chopped off?" said a pudgy boy. "Could you sew it back on?"

"Probably," said Hansberry.

"What if, like, somebody hangs himself, and they turn blue," asked Tammy Warehime. "Could you get the blue out?"

"Sometimes," said Hansberry.

"What if somebody got cut up real bad in a car accident?" asked a boy.

Hansberry reached in a cabinet for a tin of flesh-colored, soft wax.

"We can build ears, noses — in mortuary school we had to build complete faces," he said.

In time, he led them through a door opening into the garage, where parked was a hearse of unexpected brightness, a strange mixture of gleaming tan and gold.

"How much does it cost?" asked one child.

"A new funeral coach like this will run about $25,000," said Hansberry.

"Wow," said many.

"I thought they were black," said another.

"The trouble with black is they're hard to keep clean," said the undertaker.

"Why do they drive slow?" asked the girl in the green sweater — Dena Lunsford, 11.

"It's a matter of respect," said Hansberry. "Years ago, when they used horse-drawn coaches, the family would walk behind, and that's where it started."

"Well, we're running out of time," said the funeral director, and he led the kids outside.

At the door, one small boy looked back at the hearse. "I thought they used black because they were sad," he said to his friend.

The kids tramped outside and into a yellow school bus marked "Weld County School District No. 6 Greeley."

Back at Chapel Middle School, some comments from kids who took a previous tour of Adamson's Mortuary:

Lee Torres, 12, on the need for undertakers: "Yeah, I couldn't build caskets like those. All I could build is a crate. I just can't see my grandmother or grandfather in a crate."

Carl Dowland, 11, on his fear of death: "No, well, maybe a little."

Kathy McElhinney, 13 on undertakers: "Well, when grandma died, they looked like Dracula. Now, they're like regular people."

Wes Jones, 12: "This is the best field trip we ever went on. I learned more on this one than any of the others."

Todd Taylor, 13: "Before, I didn't know what goes on in a mortuary. In there, they see those things all the time. It made death look ordinary, like it happens all the time."

Pathologist Will Tour

ECU News Bureau

Dr. Donald R. Hoffman, associate professor of pathology at the East Carolina University School of Medicine, will conduct five postgraduate courses in allergy at hospitals and medical schools across the country during June.

The courses will focus on the diagnosis of food allergy. Each of the sessions will attract over 100 physicians specializing in allergies and related fields.

The one-day sessions are sponsored by Georgetown University, Washington, D. C.; Tufts University and St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Boston, Mass.; the Los Angeles Society of Allergy and Clinical Immunology, Anaheim, Calif.; the Cleveland Allergy Society and Mt. Sinai Hospital, Cleveland, Ohio; and Henry Ford Hospital, Detroit, Mich.

Little Progress In Ethics Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Ethics Committee counsel says the panel has not progressed too far in its investigation into gift money given Sen. Herman Talmadge at annual birthday parties.

But the issue would "ultimately" come before the committee, counsel C. Braxton Valentine said Sunday. The ethics committee on Thursday is scheduled to discuss Talmadge's acceptance of other small cash donations from friends.

Offer Tour Of Historic Houses

LITCHFIELD, Conn. (UPI) — Visitors to Litchfield Open House Day, July 8, will step back into the past when they cross the thresholds of six historic houses included on the tour.

Litchfield, with its background of early Indian raids, Revolutionary War heroes and 19th century intellectuals, is regarded by many as the ultimate New England village.

For tickets and information write: Mrs. Nicholas Sampson, South Street, Box 1045, Litchfield, Conn. 06759, or call (203) 567-5486.
