

$1.242 Million Grant For Greenville OK'd By HUD

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Congressman Walter Jones today announced approval by the Department of Housing and Urban Development of a $1.242 million Community Development block grant for Greenville.

Jones said that the city's CD program is designed to meet the needs of Greenville and improve the capacity of the city to meet future problems.

"It reflects many of the needs of the community as articulated by its citizens and community leaders," the representative observed.

Jones pointed out that the program has main emphasis on housing, rehabilitation, neighborhood improvement projects, and property acquisitions for redevelopment.

Joe Laney, who directs the CD effort in Greenville, reported that the $1.242 million represents the city's fourth year funding under the Community Development program. Greenville, which received $1.9 million in each of the first three years of participation, will apply for $600,000 next year.

According to Laney, the fourth year grant includes land acquisition funding for the purchase of parking lots in the downtown district, completion of the West Meadowbrook Redevelopment Project, and commencement of the new South Evans Project.

In the area of public works, funds are included for the widening of 14th Street from Charles to the Seaboard Coast Line Railroad, construction of tennis courts at Guy Smith and Evans Parks, and water and sewer improvements in the Southside Urban Renewal Project.

In addition, he added, the CD grant includes funds to carry on the continuing code enforcement, rehabilitation and relocation programs.

A new feature, Laney said, is funding for a crime prevention officer to work in the western area of the city.

Greenville has submitted an application for a Small Cities program grant to supplement the CD funding. Laney said that the city expects to receive word on the application from HUD by July 15.

He reported that the 1978-79 application seeks $500,000 in Small Cities funds while $1 million will be sought for each of the following two years.

Looking Ahead

WASHINGTON (AP) — Budget Director James McIntyre Jr. now expects an estimated deficit of $20 billion in 1981 — the year President Carter wanted to balance the budget.

According to an aide, the budget official told a meeting that Carter's goal must be pushed back at least a year.

The budget deficit in the current financial year should be about $50 billion, down from the $62 billion originally estimated, McIntyre said. The deficit for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1 could fall below $50 billion instead of the $61 billion estimated previously, he said.

The lower deficit for the current year will result from government agencies spending less than the amount budgeted.

Tentative Approval Given Items On County Budget

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County Commissioners yesterday gave tentative approval to a number of items in the proposed 1978-1979 budget, including $96,000 for Sheppard Memorial Library, $588,500 for implementation of a county-wide solid waste disposal program, and increased appropriations for area rescue squads.

In giving tentative approval to the $96,000 library budget, commissioners tended to disregard suggestions by library officials that they may have to close two branch libraries in Greenville as well as the bookmobile.

The library has requested $115,800 for the coming fiscal year — a 29 per cent increase over the current appropriation of $89,800.

In giving tentative approval to the solid waste budget, the board okayed expenses for operating a single sanitary landfill in the county as well as $252,600 for the purchase of bulk containers and site preparation to locate them throughout the county to provide a place for people to dispose of their solid waste. It also provides $25,000 for payments of municipalities in the county to haul their waste to the landfill and $84,880 for contract hauling of the bulk containers to the landfill.

Some $386,000 of the $588,500 budget will come from revenue sharing funds to finance capital expenditure items connected with the solid waste project.

Commissioners yesterday tentatively approved omitting some $23,100 requested for deficit funding of the Pitt Ambulance Service and agreed to ask Pitt Memorial Hospital, which oversees operations of the service, to take over the financial obligations of the operating budget.

The board also gave tentative approval to include $30,400 for the Greenville Rescue Squad as well as $3,000 each for squads in Ayden, Bethel, Grifton, Farmville and Winterville and $2,200 for Fountain.

In earmarking $30,400 for Greenville, commissioners agreed to fund 20 per cent of the city's rescue budget, recommended by the city manager at $152,200. City officials told commissioners earlier this month that some 40 percent of the squad's calls were to areas outside the city limits.

The county this year appropriated $9,735 for the Greenville squad and $2,750 for other squads in the county, with the exception of Fountain, which received $2,062.50 this year.

For the coming year, commissioners propose $3,000 for squads with two trucks and $2,200 for Fountain, which operates only one rescue vehicle.

Commissioners also gave tentative approval to a $1,600 appropriation for a life support squad in Falkland. The funds would be used to purchase radio equipment for the life support unit.

The life support unit concept, approved earlier by the board, would provide areas without rescue squads trained emergency medical technicians who could respond to emergency situations and provide basic life support until rescue units could arrive at the scene.

Under the program, local area residents would be trained and operate under a sponsor-squad and would be provided basic life support equipment.

In other action yesterday, the board gave tentative approval to a $49,000 Development Commission budget, a $254,300 revaluation budget and $23,900 for the Mid-East Commission.

Also given tentative approval was a $12,400

Skokie March Dubious

CHICAGO (AP) — A small band of American Nazis, flush from a legal victory in its battle to demonstrate in a Chicago park, may forego a march in the heavily Jewish suburb of Skokie. But militant Jews and Skokie officials are acting as though the march is still on for Sunday.

A federal judge ruled Tuesday that the Nazis could demonstrate in Marquette Park without posting a $60,000 insurance bond, thus meeting the final condition for canceling the Skokie march put forth by Frank Collin, head of the National Socialist Party of America.

Collin has said several times over the past month that he would call off the march in Skokie if the Nazis could rally in Marquette Park, near Nazi headquarters on Chicago's southwest side. But Collin delayed an announcement on the Nazis' plans until Thursday.

In a related development, an emergency hearing was scheduled today in Circuit Court on a lawsuit to block the Skokie demonstration filed by Louis Black of Skokie. Black contended the Nazis were not legally registered with the state and thus not entitled to a permit.

Jewish and other religious and ethnic groups have organized a counter-demonstration of up to 50,000 people and the militant Jewish Defense League has promised violence if Nazis march in Skokie, home of several thousand Jewish survivors of the Nazi holocaust in which 6 million Jews were killed.

The chief added that Tyson was charged with burglary and assault with a deadly weapon, in connection with a 12:45 a.m. incident May 8 at 1410 Dickinson Ave.

Cannon said Tyson allegedly entered the Dickinson Avenue home through a window and stabbed Stuart Timothy Hoyle with a steak knife.

In addition to the charges he was arrested for yesterday, Tyson faces prosecution in connection with another break-in and two additional burglary and rape cases.

Cannon said Police charged Tyson with breaking, entering and larceny in May in connection with a break-in at 602 Church St. on May 6, where he allegedly took a tape player.

Earlier, Tyson had been charged with burglary and rape in connection with two incidents in the North Greenville area, one on March 29 and the second on May 8.

Arrested For Murder, Rape, Kidnapping, Burglary, Etc.

Greenville Police, following indictments by the Pitt County Grand Jury, yesterday arrested 19-year-old Linwood Earl Tyson on seven charges ranging from murder and rape to kidnapping, burglary, breaking, entering and larceny, and assault with a deadly weapon.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Tyson, of 507 Church St., was charged with murder in the shotgun slaying of Marvin Earl Stepps at his home at 1406 Mill St., about 5 a.m. April 8.

The chief noted that Tyson was also charged with burglary, kidnapping and rape in connection with the same incident.

Tyson, according to Cannon, allegedly entered the Stepps home through a window and shot Stepps two times with a .410 gauge shotgun.

Tyson, Cannon said, was also charged with breaking, entering and larceny in connection with the theft of a .410 gauge shotgun, a coin collection and a bicycle from 1208 Myrtle Ave. about 12:30 a.m. March 23.

Hospital Board Told Dept. Of Laboratory Medicine Accredited

By CAROL TYLER
Reflector Staff Writer

The Department of Laboratory Medicine of Pitt County Memorial Hospital has been accredited by the College of American Pathologists, the trustees of the hospital were told last night.

Dr. Lee West, pathologist, explained how the survey of the department was carried out by the College and credited George Williams, laboratory coordinator, and Carolyn Hodges, survey coordinator, with much of the effort which went into qualifying the department for this approval. He noted that the PCMH Laboratory Medicine Department is now one of 1,500 in the nation and 30 in North Carolina to be so accredited.

The trustees approved a travel reimbursement schedule, modeled after the state scale, for those trustees who might wish to use it. The rates would be 15 cents per mile; $13 per day for sleeping accommodations, and $2.25 for breakfast; $2.75 for lunch; and $5 for dinner.

According to the finance committee report, given by Norfleet Sugg, treasurer, the hospital is in a good cash position now, with accounts receivable down a little. Some $10,000 profit (difference between patient revenue and operating expenses) was realized this past month, he indicated.

The Board approved a finance committee recommendation that Planters National Bank handle hospital accounts for the next two fiscal years. This action was taken based on bids submitted by five of Pitt County's six banks.

Approval was given for the requesting of bids for auditing the hospital's records for the next year.

It was noted that Jack Richardson, Hospital Director, is bringing honor to Pitt County by being the presiding officer at the annual meeting of the N. C. Hospital Association being held in Wilmington this week.

Also noted was the approval of Assistant Administrator Rick Gilstrap as a fellow of the American College of Hospital Administrators, with fellowship honors to be bestowed in Anaheim, Calif. in September.

A budget workshop will be held July 18, it was announced.

Ambulance Committee Chairman Eldon Coltrane reported that the ambulance

Four People Injured In Belhaven Plane Crash

BELHAVEN — Four persons, including a Greenville resident, were reportedly in fair condition in the Pungo District Hospital as the results of injuries received in the crash of a small plane east of Belhaven just before dark on Wednesday.

The four persons injured are Mary Jo Beck of Greenville, Axson Smith, Jr. of Belhaven, Donna Stokes and William Thomas Taylor, addresses unknown.

The crash occurred shortly after 8:30 p.m. on a field adjacent to the air strip at Riverside Campsite. The campsite, in the Ponzor Community of Beaufort-Hyde Counties, is located ten miles east of Belhaven, two miles off U.S. 264. The site is in Hyde County.

Smith was the pilot of the Grumman low-wing, single engine plane. The plane is one leased from a Florida company.

According to eye-witnesses at the scene, Smith apparently overshot the landing strip, the plane bounced, went off the field and when Smith attempted to turn the plane, a wing caught in a small tree. This apparently caused the plane to crash, coming to a stop in a clear area adjacent to the air strip.

The Belhaven Rescue Squad reported to the scene and transported the injured passengers to Pungo District Hospital. Unconfirmed reports state that injuries were principally multiple cuts received by the passengers.

Captain Willie O'Neal of the Belhaven Police Dept. said investigation of the crash was being continued.

Volunteer Army Problems Cited

WASHINGTON (AP) — The inspector general of the 8th U.S. Army in Korea says there are serious problems with the all-volunteer force at every level of command.

Col. William Chamberlain said Tuesday that education standards have dropped, and commanders are being tied up with personal problems of their troops, including housing, bill payments and wife abuse. Chamberlain and other witnesses testified before the Senate Armed Services Subcommittee on Manpower and Personnel.

Moving Ahead

STEADYING POLE — Greenville Utilities crew members work carefully as they lower a power pole holding 115,000 volt transmission lines into the ground at the new shopping center site on Highway 33. Two poles were placed in new holes following grading at the development site. A GUC spokesman said that the work was done while the transmission lines, which serve some 80 per cent of the south side of the river, were energized or "hot." (Reflector Staff Photo)

Fourteen Are Dead In Salonika Quake

By PAUL ANASTASIADES
Associated Press Writer

SALONIKA, Greece (AP) — Police say 14 persons were killed and about 150 injured in a powerful earthquake that devastated large areas of Salonika, Greece's second largest city, and sent most of the 600,000 residents fleeing to the countryside.

The quake, which registered 6.5 on the Richter scale, struck the capital of northern Greece at 11:03 p.m. Tuesday after a month of lesser tremors. Bulgaria and Yugoslavia, like Greece in the Balkan earthquake belt, also were shaken but reported no casualties.

People jumped from balconies. Persons trapped beneath the ruins cried for help.

"The damage and disruption is quite serious," said Gov. Costas Pylarinos, "but with most of the city being new it has resisted remarkably well. It could have been worse."

New buildings appeared to withstand the shock well. But older buildings were badly damaged. Many had been cracked by the earlier shocks. Police said 11 persons were killed when two old apartment buildings collapsed.

U.S. Consul General Dan Zachary said there were no reports of any Americans killed or injured. Zachary said the consulate, in a six-story building which overlooks the harbor, had sustained some damage.

Bill and Marianne Tsikitas and Dean Zigouris, three medical students at Salonika University Medical School from Astoria, N.Y., said they were studying on the balcony of a third-floor apartment when the building began to shake.

REFUND

I ordered a "portable garage" from Sunset House in Beverly Hills, Calif. last October. The "garage" was just a big sheet of plastic and I couldn't handle it anyway by the time it arrived because I had broken my wrist. I sent it back with a refund request. I've written two letters since, too, but just can't get back the $14.99 the company owes me. The check was for $23.13, but I kept part of the merchandise. Mrs. T. H.

When you first came to Hotline, you had sent back the merchandise, but had not written to the company yourself. So we encouraged you to do this and to send along a photostat of your canceled check. This you report you did — twice.

When, some months later, you came back to us, we did write the company, enclosed a photostat of your check and explaining the situation. You reported about six weeks later that you had received your refund and were pleased.

Miss Cox, Mr. Wilson Marry Sunday Afternoon

VANCEBORO — Miss Vicki Sue Cox and Charles Gary Wilson were united in marriage Sunday at 4 p.m. in the Oak Grove Free Will Baptist Church here. The Rev. Donald Coates of Smithfield officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Hubert Cox Sr. of Vanceboro. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Garnett Wilson of Rocky Mount.

The couple presented a long-stemmed yellow rose to each mother. Doug Seymour of Pikeville, pianist, presented a program of pre-nuptial music. Miss Jan Glenn of Goldsboro sang the "Love Theme" and Miss Sherry Jones of Smithfield sang "Evergreen." The bridegroom sang "It Seems I've Always Loved You" and the bride sang "Have Thine Own Way Lord" as a duet.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father. She wore a formal length gown of white organza over peau de soie designed with an open squared neckline outlined in scalloped French chantilly lace beaded with pearls. The empire bodice featured an overlay of matching lace trimmed in appliques of floral chantilly lace beaded with pearls. The long fitted sleeves repeated the lace appliques with cuffs of ruffled organza. The modified A-line skirt and attached chapel length train were enhanced by a deep ruffled flounce at the hemline topped by a panel of chantilly lace. Lace motifs were scattered over the skirt and train. An organza bow was centered at the waistline in back.

She wore an imported Swiss bridal hat overlaid with organza and matching chantilly lace appliques with long flowing veil of imported illusion. She carried a nosegay of yellow roses and baby's breath.

Miss Dianne Hill of Snow Hill was maid of honor. Bridesmaids included Miss Melanie Haire of Creswell, Mrs. Sandi Taylor of Fayetteville, Mrs. Debi Hinson of Buies Creek, Miss Vicki Powell of New Bern and Mrs. Susie Cox of Washington, sister-in-law of the bride. Junior bridesmaid was Miss Carol Wilson of Rocky Mount, sister of the bridegroom.

The attendants wore formal length gowns of maize and white checked gingham designed with a scoop neckline with a gathered front bodice with a self-tie at the center. The flared cap sleeves were edged in white eyelet and the circular skirt was enhanced with a ruffled flounce of eyelet at the hemline. The gown was complemented by an all-white apron with sash that tied in back. The apron was styled with a miniature eyelet edging threaded with maize ribbon and accented by motifs of maize roses and green leaved embroidered by the bride's mother. They wore natural imported Panama hats encircled with maize ribbon with streamers and carried wicker baskets of yellow and white pom poms with yellow and white streamers.

Honorary bridesmaids were Miss Sarah Stryon of Davis, Mrs. Teresa Caroon of Lowland, and Miss Bonnie Stevens of Garner. They wore formal length gowns and carried long, stemmed yellow carnations.

The bridegroom's father was best man and ushers included Todd Spear of Creswell, Doug Griffin and Don Johnson of Rocky Mount, Roney McCoy of New Bern, Colby Benton of Fremont, and Jimmy Cox of Washington, brother of the bride.

The mother of the bride selected a formal length gown of tiolet green knit with a lace bodice and matching lace coat. Mrs. Wilson wore a formal length gown of deep rose knit with a sunburst pleated skirt. White cymbidium orchids were worn by the mothers. Mrs. Lennie Adams of Ayden, grandmother of the bride, was presented a corsage of yellow pom poms.

Mrs. Hilda Boyd of Chocowinity presided at the register and the wedding was directed by Mrs. Mattie Hardee of Ayden, great aunt of the bride.

For a wedding trip, the bride changed into a beige and apricot flowered dress and wore her mother's corsage. The couple will live in Rocky Mount after a trip to Williamsburg, Va.

The bride is a graduate of West Craven High School and Mount Olive College. She is employed with Piece Goods Shops, Inc., and was manager of the Greenville store. The bridegroom is a graduate of Rocky Mount Senior High School and Mount Olive College. He is affiliated with Wilson Adjustment and Appraisal Service, Rocky Mount.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony in the Chapman's Methodist Church fellowship hall.

Assisting at the reception were Mrs. Mary Adams, Mrs. Eunice Adams, Mrs. Linda Adams, Mrs. Evelyn Purser, Mrs. Mildred Cox and Mrs. Johanna Cox, aunts of the bride.

Following the wedding rehearsal Saturday, the parents of the bridegroom entertained at an after-rehearsal dinner at Parker's, Greenville. Gifts were presented to the attendants.

Dear Abby

She's A Slave To Pinball Machines

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a happily married 29-year-old housewife with two beautiful children and a faithful husband. My problem is unusual—in fact, I have never seen it mentioned in your column.

I'm addicted to pinball machines! A day doesn't go by when I don't have the urge to play. I'm now at a point where I'm spending much too much time and household money on the machines. Where can I get help? I feel so stupid.

THE JUNGLE QUEEN

DEAR QUEEN: Admitting that you have a problem you can't handle alone shows that you are very intelligent. Your pinball machine addiction is a form of compulsive gambling. Find Gamblers Anonymous in your telephone directory and acquaint yourself with that wonderful self-help group. (No fees, no membership and no commitment. Just attend, and listen.)

If there's no G.A. in your area, your nearest mental health clinic has counseling available at a price you can afford.

DEAR ABBY: I have been dating a guy named Al for about two months. My problem is that Al doesn't know how to kiss. He is 22 years old, hasn't been around much and kisses me like he's kissing his grandmother.

I know how a guy should kiss a girl, and poor Al doesn't know the first thing about it.

Is there some way I can tell him without offending him? I would like to hang on to him, but I'm afraid if I criticize his kissing he will drop me.

Can you please give Al (and guys like him) a simple 1-2-3 lesson on how to kiss? I'm sure I'm not the only girl with this problem.

ISHY KISSES

DEAR ISHY: Kiss him the way you'd like to be kissed. Then hang on to your hat.

DEAR ABBY: What do you do when you ask the waitress for separate checks and she says, "Sorry, it's against the house policy."

Ever hear of that? Well, that's what happened to me.

MIFFED IN MASS.

DEAR MIFFED: I'd ask to see the manager and state my complaint to him (or her). If that didn't produce separate checks, I'd take all future business elsewhere.

DEAR ABBY: You wrote a whole column on the "dirty tricks" that humans perpetrate on dogs (such as letting them run loose and breed accidentally).

Well, I am tired of dogs leaving their dirty tricks on my lawn! I'm tired of shoveling dirty tricks off my yard so I won't have to warn each visitor to step carefully.

I think you left out an important law concerning care of dogs. Any parent who gives a child a dog should specify that the child is obligated to shovel up the dirty tricks his dog leaves on neighbors' lawns.

I have learned to cope with dogs tipping over my garbage cans. I rinse off meat papers and even sprinkle chili powder over anything that might interest dogs, and I always make sure the lid on my garbage can is tightly secured. Dogs have learned a new respect for my garbage cans, but not for my lawn.

Come on, Abby, be a friend to countless thousands of people who are abused by dumb animals, and print this letter.

DOGGONE MAD IN MESA, ARIZ.

DEAR DOGGONE: The dirty tricks that dogs perpetrate on humans would be completely eliminated if every dog owner accepted the responsibility for his dog's actions—as he well should!

Weightlift Coach OKs Girls As Grid Players

By STEVE DOERSCHUK
Canton Repository

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Henry McGhee Jr. contends half of the 300 women he has trained in weightlifting could play high school football.

"If a girl had taken the proper weight training and wanted to play football, I'd encourage her," said the Canton YMCA's weightlifting coordinator, a star high school football player himself in 1966.

"A girl with the same muscle mass as a boy will be as strong as a boy," said McGhee. "Her leg is even slightly stronger, pound for pound."

McGhee said his observations are drawn from experience and the findings of Jack Wilmore, a California physiologist.

Seven high school athletic directors were surveyed after a Dayton federal judge ruled girls could participate on boys' contact sports teams. Each director said he doubted girls could play football.

"Some of their remarks were emotional and unresearched," charged McGhee.

The YMCA official said, "Dr. Wilmore's findings say high school boys are at only 75 percent of their developmental potential. High school girls have reached about 100 percent of this potential."

"Because of the hormone testosterone, guys will eventually be larger. But in high school, girls are developed to the point that they could compete in contact sports."

'Fix-It' Manual Helps Women

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

Women often are amazed to find they are capable of performing repair tasks that formerly were earmarked for appliance shops.

With the number of small appliances in the home proliferating — along with the inconvenience of delivering or mailing such objects to a repair center — it is time to learn how to do it yourself.

Then, too, many people discard potentially good articles, because the things grew old-looking while waiting to be repaired. In addition to toasters, blenders, mixers, waffle makers, can openers, coffee makers and the like there are those chairs that might need re-caning or a table that might need a patch of veneer.

Putting it all together is the "Fix-It-Yourself" manual which is crammed with encouraging solutions that make the job easier. For example, "a bit of chewing gum on the top of a screw driver will hold a screw long enough to start it in an inaccessible hole." (You also get the pleasure of chewing the gum!)

It's a little hint but it might come in handy when trying to cope with a tiny screw to fit in a tiny hole.

And there are the surprises. If your coffeemaker produces only weak perked coffee, you may not be using it with water of the proper temperature.

For example, the tap water for a coffee brewer should be between 40 degrees and 50 degrees (Fahrenheit), using 1½ tablespoons of coffee for each six-ounce cup, the manual points out. Switch to cold water for electric percolators. If they are filled with warm water, the coffee brew will be too weak. (Other problems could include a clogged perk valve, valve cover and basket, which might require cleaning.)

Bookbinding, china, porcelain, glass and jewelry repair can be intriguing — you can learn how to make new links, close old ones or repair a ring.

You may want to delegate messy jobs — plumbing or repairing dishwashers, dryers, ranges, ovens, waste disposals, washing machines — to a favorite man. You can take over the chair caning, rushing or upholstery of chairs. Then, too, there are the audio and visual repairs and the servicing of pools and other equipment.

As for fishing tackle, snow blowers, lawnmowers, chain saws, women may not have the interest. But bicycle repair may be something that intrigues you. At least, you'll learn what makes the wheels go around as you pedal up the road.

This book also provides a run-down on adhesives, their properties and uses. The applicators' setting time, strength and flexibility are listed and may save you lots of time and anxiety. Everyone has adhesive problems that just weren't solved the way the label on the bottle or tube suggested, but they may ultimately be useful in repairing another object of different material.

(The "Fix-It-Yourself" Manual is published by Readers Digest.)

Note-Able Phone Now Available

NEW YORK (UPI)—A wall telephone with an interchangeable built-in magnetic blackboard or cork board panel is among new designs from the telephone company. It comes with a rotary dial or Touch-Tone service in a variety of colors with simulated wood frames. Under warranty, the housing will be repaired or replaced free for six months.

Changing from blackboard to cork board or vice versa is a simple do-it-yourself project. The working components inside remain phone company property and are supplied and maintained as part of the standard monthly service charge.

Processor Attachment Whips Cream

NEW HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI)—New food processor attachments for one major brand now enable the user to whip cream and egg whites, slice one narrow vegetable at a time and crush ice, a function that would dull the standard chopping blade that comes with each unit.

A baffle that fits over the motor shaft enables the processor to whip cream and egg whites with normal volume.

A slicing guide that looks like a doll-size ski pole with a disc-shaped handle and pointed steel shaft allows a user to slice long, narrow vegetables such as raw carrots singly. The pole holds the vegetable upright while you push it through the feed tube. The handle stops the guide before it can touch the slicing disc and cause an accident.

The ice-crushing attachment is a blunt-edged steel blade also designed for mixing foods such as doughs and batters.

Other new optional attachments for the Waring food processor are: a french fry and thick and thin slicing discs and an extra set of standard attachments: bowl, lid, pusher, chopping blade and slicing and shredding discs, handy for kosher households that need different utensils for meat and dairy food.

The same company recently introduced a home vegetable juicer smaller than an electric blender. Every part except the motor base is top-rack dishwasher safe and comes apart

WHAT IS ACTUAL $$$ VALUE OF THE TYPICAL HOUSEWIFE?

Combine the abilities of a housekeeper, nurse, purchasing agent, cook, chauffeur, economist and more.

Mix with tender loving care and maternal instinct. Presto. You are face-to-face with the modern-day wife and mother.

Part of the magic here, though, is that her value to her family is probably a lot greater than most people realize—until they think about it.

STATISTICAL DATA

That's what statisticians of the American Council of Life Insurance found. In their research they calculated her tasks, the time she spends on each and the wage rate for those jobs based on averages of a large East coast city.

Then they compared their figures with that of other studies on the worth of a housewife with two children and came to this conclusion. In terms of cold cash around the home, today's average housewife is worth exactly $17,351.88 per year, conservatively speaking.

The figures are based on the assumption that she performs her tasks for about 100 hours each week, seven days a week.

Here's a breakdown: Nursemaid duties—45.1 hours at $2.70 per—$121.77 a week. Dietician—1.2 hours at $4.00 per—$4.80 a week. Food buyer—3.3 hours at $2.70—$8.91 a week. Cook—13.1 hours at $3.50—$45.85 a week. Dishwasher—6.2 hours at $2.80—$17.36 a week. Housekeeper—17.5 hours at $4.50—$78.75 a week. Laundry—5.9 hours at $3.00—$17.70 a week. Seamstress—1.3 hours at $3.50—$4.55 a week. Maintenance man—1.7 hours at $3.50—$5.95 a week. Gardener—2.3 hours at $3.50—$8.05 a week. Chauffeur—2 hours at $10.00—$20.00 a week. Overall, her 99.6 hour work week is worth $333.69.

WIFE POWER

Consequently, there is a growing respect for the role a wife plays in her family's economy and an increasing realization that her loss would create hardships for a family that go beyond the emotional area.

In the past years, it was often felt that if the male head of the house was the wage earner, life insurance for him alone was sufficient. But today, more and more people realize the economic value of a wife, mother and homemaker, and the importance of having her insured too.

The majority of women who purchase life insurance today are married, and indications are that many of them make these purchases early in their married lives.

More Than A Budget Evolved

The State Legislature has completed a 13 day session in the second year of the biennium to approve budgetary matters.

The session was not limited exclusively to the budget, however, and the most sensational development was approval of a bill which started out in the Senate last year. That would be the liquor-by-the-drink local option bill. It had the approval of the Senate in 1977 and awaited House action.

The bill first went down to defeat in the House. Then in one of the dramatic moments of Legislative history it was revived and approved by the House. Later it won overwhelming approval of House amendments in the Senate and mixed drink local option became law.

The Legislature also had the task of determining how to spend $292 million of state revenues. In some cases it did well; in others the actions were so-so.

Some $116 million went for a six percent pay increase for state employees and teachers. Some thought it wasn't enough, but certainly this increase is justifiable in inflationary times.

The Legislature provided additional funds to reduce student-teacher ratios in junior high school, funds for transportation of pupils to school who face dangerous road conditions, funds for reduction of student-teacher ratios in community colleges.

Medicaid dental costs funds were restored and $500,000 was appropriated for providing attorneys to poor defendants in capital cases. There was also $17.5 million for prison construction.

Higher education did well in capital improvements with $10 million going to traditionally black campuses and $7 million assuring the development of a veterinary medicine school.

The vet school was, and still is, controversial, but we view it as a sound development, which hopefully will help our state develop its livestock industry.

We aren't thrilled with the approval of funds for a new state office building in Raleigh, since we can be certain that more space means more government employees. Nor do we think the Legislature did well to grant itself large pay raises. It would have been far better to keep the increases in line with what was given to state employees.

All-in-all though it was a productive session... one that didn't bog down in petty fights and one that provided funds for some essential areas which should keep North Carolina on the move.

As Of Today, It Is Officially Summer

In case you don't know today is the first day of Summer.

If you wanted to observe the new season coming in at the precise time, it's too late. Summer began at 2:10 p.m. The summer solstice began precisely at that time when the sun was furthest north from the equator and, for our part of the world, the days are longest.

From this point on the sun will be moving southward, eventually to bring about autumn and finally a cold winter.

For now, however, its officially summer. Enjoy it.

THIS AFTERNOON Unready For Mass Transit

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—North Carolina is a long way from being ready for "mass transit" either connecting urban areas across the state's Piedmont section, or within urban areas.

In fact, a legislative study commission has concluded, we ought to be talking about "public transportation systems" using taxis, minibuses, jitneys-for-hire, carpools, and buses instead of mass transit; and that ought not be limited to urban areas.

"It has become apparent that many communities and citizens are not served by mass transit nor are many of them likely to receive such service in the foreseeable future. The cost of providing such service would be too high—both to the provider and to the customer."

Few Systems

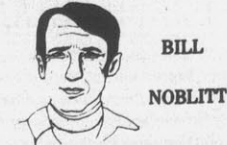

"While there are approximately 43 cities in North Carolina with population over 10,000, only about 14 of them have mass transit programs. About 29 have no form of transportation service other than taxis or special service vehicles," the overview of transit reports.

Furthermore, because of this state's rural-oriented living patterns, large numbers of people can never be served by urban mass transit... people in rural areas without access to transportation," the study group feels.

Thus, attention ought to be shifted away from mass transit and toward public transportation. The committee even recommends that the terms "bus lines" and "mass transit system" be changed to "public transportation systems," and communities "should be encouraged to examine the total public transportation picture (buses, mini-buses, taxis, van-for-hire, car-pooling, etc.) in allocating resources; citizens in less urban areas are entitled to some consideration...."

While the study group does make some specific recommendations, none are of a revolutionary nature. The subject is complex, technical, and important to people whether they live in town or

BILL NOBLITT

Local Problems

There are two reasons for that conclusion, the report notes:

—The subject is indeed local, and solutions must be tailored to local needs and demands.

—Without local interest and support neither mass transit nor any other "paratransit system can survive.

From its research, the commission on local mass transit is making several far-reaching recommendations to the General Assembly:

that a sophisticated inter-city transit system is not an "immediate, high priority need" for many years, and probably then only as part of a larger inter-state system; that government at state and local levels will be asked to subsidize cost of transportation, and "it is unrealistic to expect profitable or break-even result;" and that a car carrying two or more passengers is both efficient and realistic, and regulations which hamper car or van-pooling and jitney-for-hire operations should be changed.

The committee recommends that state money (Powell Bill) for local roads be made available for local transportation purposes if the community desires, and that local governments be allowed to "set up" transportation authorities and issue general obligation bonds to finance systems.

Also, the committee suggests that churches be allowed to charge for use of their parking lots in conjunction with public transport without jeopardizing property tax exclusions.

AN ECONOMIC OPINION Understandable Inflation

By HENRY HAZLITT
Introductory Remarks
by R. H. Goldsborough

Inflation is a dirty nine-letter word which is every consumer's and businessman's concern. It boggles the mind while it empties the pocketbook. Labor blames Business. Business blames Labor. The Government blames both. For many years, only conservatives blamed the government. Most ivory-tower Keynesian economists promoted deficit spending (and hence inflation) as a cure for everything short of ingrown toenails. They warned that economics and inflation were too complicated for the average American to understand. This was to keep Joe and Mary Public in the economic dark with "Keynesian-wool" pulled over their eyes.

Ever since Harry Hopkins advised FDR to "Tax, tax, spend, spend, and elect," some politicians have bought the hidden-tax idea of inflation. However the mood of the public seems to have changed. History will record that the first shot of the 20th century American revolution against taxes and inflation was the victory of Proposition 13 in California. That was only the beginning. If the pork-barrel politicians don't get the message now, they will certainly get the message on election day. Inflation, high taxes and inflated government budgets are going to be a thing of the past.

Henry Hazlitt, the noted economist, writer and lecturer has provided us with a very simple-to-understand explanation of inflation and its cause. Here is Mr. Hazlitt's statement:

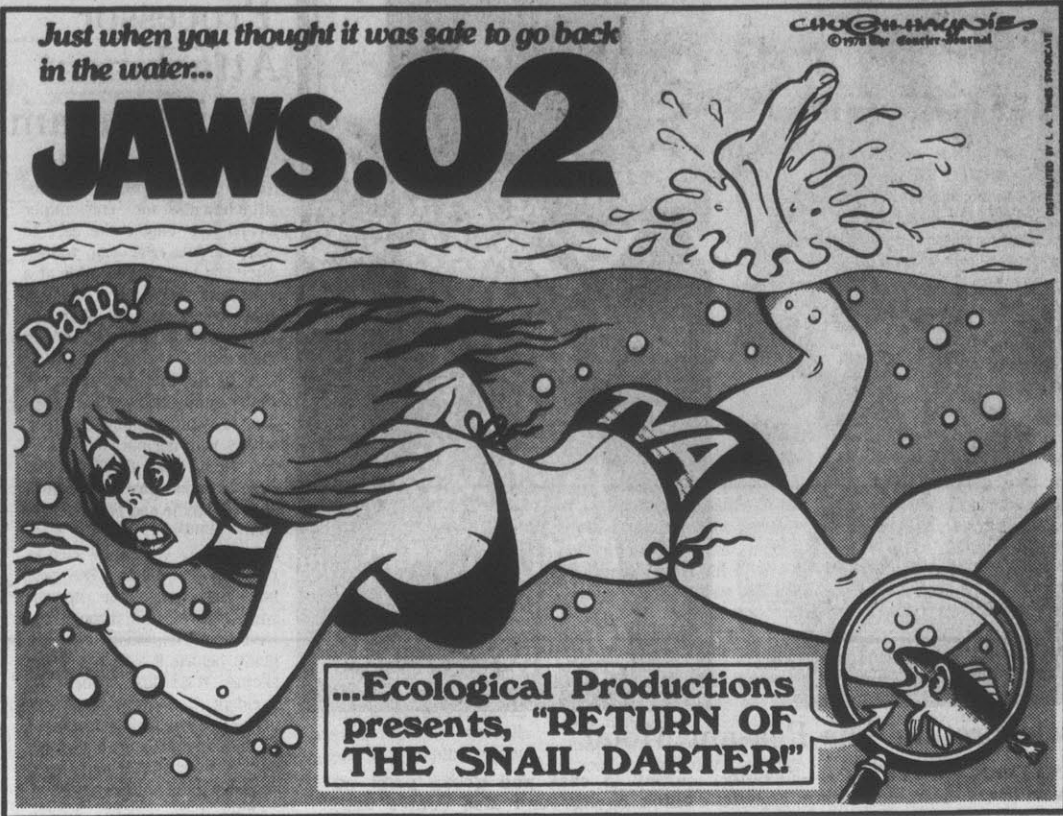

1. Inflation is an increase in the quantity of money and credit. Its chief consequence is soaring prices. Therefore inflation — if we misuse the term to mean the rising prices themselves — is caused solely by printing more money. For this the government's monetary policies are entirely responsible.

2. The most frequent reason for printing more money is the existence of an unbalanced budget. Unbalanced budgets are caused by extravagant expenditures which the government is unwilling or unable to pay for by raising corresponding tax revenues. The excessive expenditures are mainly the result of governmental efforts to redistribute wealth and income — in short, to force the productive to support the unproductive. This erodes the working incentives of both the productive and the unproductive.

3. The causes of inflation are not, as so often said, "multiple and complex," but simply the result of printing too much money. There is no such thing as "cost-push" inflation. If, without an increase in the stock of money, wage or other costs are forced up, and producers try to pass these costs along by raising their selling prices, most of them will merely sell

By ART BUCHWALD A Star On The Filter

WASHINGTON — I just received, anonymously, an unclassified cable to the State Department from the American Embassy in Doha, Qatar, one of the Arab countries involved in the boycott of Israel.

It reads as follows, and I swear I did not make up one word of it.

"1 — During routine visit to Doha Boycott Office, Embassy Commercial Specialist was made aware of possible problem which Philip Morris

Tobacco Co. may face in marketing Merit cigarettes in the Middle East. Something about the structure of the filter on Merit cigarettes causes tar to be deposited on the mouthpiece end of the white filter in the form of a six-pointed star. The star is clearly visible when the cigarette is smoked approximately half its length. (Further smoking causes the star to be lost in a general brown stain.)

"2 — Our Commercial

ART BUCHWALD

Specialist told Boycott Office officials that this obviously not a serious matter. Office Director agreed but indicated he had already received numerous complaints (including one from the palace), and he then introduced our man to the latest batch of complainers who were sitting in his outer office.

"3 — Boycott Office Director is trying to head off complaints, but fears that sale of Merit cigarettes, and subsequent complaints about the star appearing on the end of the filter element, may lead to the banning of all Philip Morris products, including the immensely popular Marlboro brand."

You may laugh, if you want to, but if you're a stockholder of Philip Morris, this is no joking matter. The Philip Morris Co. never, in all its wildest dreams, thought of developing a cigarette filter which would produce a Star of David on it, and even if it did, it certainly wouldn't export such a cigarette filter to an Arab country.

The only explanation that makes any sense is that the Israeli secret service people have developed such a filter and infiltrated the Merit factory. If this is true, it is one of the great breakthroughs in postwar covert operations, and one that has made the CIA green with envy.

There have been rumors that for years CIA scientists have been working on a cigarette filter which would produce an American flag when half-smoked by someone in a Communist country. But the Central Intelligence Agency has not been able to overcome the incredible problems of getting the tar to produce 50 stars and 13 stripes that would fit on the filter.

The Soviet Union's KGB is also said to be unsuccessful in developing a filter that would produce a hammer and sickle while someone was puffing away. Even the Japanese,

Gossip Circuit Game

By DON McLEOD
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — There's a new game on the political gossip circuit these days, and the object is to guess two years in advance whether President Carter will face a significant Democratic challenge for nomination to a second term in the White House.

The winning answer, or at least the consensus so far, is: He might.

With Carter in a public opinion poll slump, there is an ample corps of Republicans testing their prospects as possible 1980 candidates, and those would-be challengers delight in suggesting that he may face Democratic trouble before the GOP begins its campaign.

"If he stays vulnerable, somebody in his own party is going to challenge him," said one Republican who, like most of the guessers, preferred to remain anonymous. "If he is as County agent R. R. Bennett declared today that tobacco and other Pitt County crops had been permanently damaged by recent rains and unless the downpours cease, further loss would be experienced by farmers.

Bennett said tobacco in sandy soil had suffered the worst damage. He said the original root had died and the plants had to develop new ones.

Well developed tobacco also was hurt in that it buttoned out before the plants were full grown and as a result would grow but little more.

The corn crop of the state also has been damaged by the recent rains and the yield will be smaller than it was for the past two years.

An average of an inch of rain fell in Greenville the last two days, B. T. Clark, local weather spokesman, revealed.

So far during the month a total of 5.80 inches have been recorded. Five inches a month is regarded as "extra heavy," Clark said.

Some See Onset Of Downturn

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — In its fourth year, old age for an expansion, the economy is getting puffy with high prices and interest rates that, say those who claim to know, means the onset of tougher times.

And that means its time again to wonder what will happen to housing, which in past years always has been hit the first, the hardest and the longest by inflation and the downturns that follow.

Will it happen again? Maybe not. But a little background first.

The economic debate now is not whether a downturn will occur but when, and whether it will be a "rolling adjustment," as the economists call a spell of uneasiness, or something more like a fall on the face.

Samplings so far show an inclination toward the former, although some have dared use "recession," but like a doctor uncertain of his prognosis, prefacing their verdict with "brief" and "mild."

When? Nothing precise yet; maybe 1979, or perhaps not until 1981. The former seems to be nearer the consensus, but one very large bank maintains the odds favor a decline no earlier than 1980.

As usual, the housing markets need not wait. An economy that refuses to acknowledge its weakness always produces a temperature change, measured by the thermometer of interest rates. They are headed up now.

Home mortgage rates have risen in every month this year, and those for conventional loans — not backed by government — reached 9.37 percent in May, matching the highest ever recorded by the Federal Home Loan Bank.

Since mortgage expense often is the biggest factor in homebuying, sometimes doubling the basic cost, it is no surprise that housing starts fell 4.9 percent in May, though remaining at a relatively high level.

But this first symptom could be portentous. In the multifamily market, for example, Advance Mortgage Corp., a Citibank affiliate, forecasts a sharp decline in unsubsidized activity late this year.

Housing's sensitivity is not just with rates themselves, but with the drain on funds such rates produce, because money that in other times would be available for mortgages seeks higher rates elsewhere.

That process has not yet produced an outflow from the traditional mortgage lenders, the savings banks and savings and loan associations, but already it has restricted the funds available for housing.

The nation's mutual savings banks have just learned, for example, that they took in only $100 million over withdrawals last month, the worst May since an outflow of $182 million in May 1974.

The reason is obvious: savings institutions are by law limited in the interest rates they can offer depositors. Simply by transferring funds elsewhere, their depositors might be able to earn more.

I called the Israeli Embassy to see if I could get further information on how they did it.

The man on the other end of the line was very upset. "How did you find out about it?" I told him I couldn't reveal my sources.

"We don't have such a filter," he said. "And if we did, we couldn't talk about it."

"But the Arabs insist you do. There are Stars of David in ashtrays all over Doha, and they're getting very upset."

"Then they shouldn't smoke so much."

"That's not the point," I told him. "Something like this could start another Middle East war. You start messing with Philip Morris cigarette filters, and no one knows where it will lead."

"If they smoke fast they won't see it," the Israeli said.

"So you intend to keep putting Stars of David in Merit cigarette filters?"

"I didn't admit we were doing it. But if Philip Morris wants to give us 100 F-15 fighter jets, we might switch to Camels."

fewer goods. The result will be reduced output and loss of jobs. Higher costs can only be passed along in higher selling prices when consumers have more money to pay the higher prices.

4. Price controls cannot stop or slow down inflation. They always do harm. Price controls simply squeeze or wipe out profit margins, disrupt production, and lead to bottlenecks and shortages. All government price and wage control, or even "monitoring", is merely an attempt by the politicians to shift the blame for inflation on to producers and sellers in-

However, the pattern of past years may be muted because, effective June 1, government regulations were eased, permitting thrift institutions to offer more competitive 8-year, 8 percent accounts.

Morgan Guaranty also suggests the possibility that housing may fare better than in other economic cycles because, it says, potential buyers have a heightened recognition of homeownership as an inflation hedge.

And, says the National Association of Realtors, "Neither the shrinkage of mortgage credit nor the corresponding boost in interest rates has shown any sign of dampening the existing home market."

Again, the question: Will housing be dumped off its foundation again this year or next, as it has been during other inflation-downturn economic cycles?

It could be, yes, but this time there is a fighting chance it can maintain balance in relation to other sectors of the economy. The public seems eager, and the thrifths seem better able to hold onto cash.

But there is no question at all about costs:

—You will pay more for houses for months to come, and most likely for years and perhaps forever if serious recessions do not result in price deflation.

—You will pay higher and higher rates for mortgage loans — and may not get them at all where usury rates forbid higher rates — until inflation is brought under more control.

By RICHARD LOWE
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Wrangling over the difference between practices and procedures, an aluminum company and the Tennessee Valley Authority have five days to tell a judge whether he should delay a TVA power rate increase.

Consolidated Aluminum Co., asking Judge L. Clure Morton of U.S. District Court to delay an average 8.9 percent TVA rate hike effective July 2, told him Tuesday the government-owned utility has procedures that must be followed.

"TVA does have a procedure in their rate making," Don Winsor, a Consolidated lawyer, said. "They have called it a practice and now call it a process. A rose by another name is still a rose."

One procedure, he said, is a two-week interval between TVA board meetings. He noted, however, that the rate hike recommended by the utility's staff May 11 was approved only six days later.

"The notice of the meetings, which we knew about two days before the first and eight days before the second, did not provide enough time to develop an intelligent input," he said.

TVA lawyer Charles Wagner said the agency has no procedures and does not have to conduct board meetings at two-week intervals.

Asked by Morton why such meetings have been separated by 14 days in the past, Wagner said, "It has just happened."

If he played golf the same day every week, Morton asked, could it be assumed he followed a practice that could be counted on.

"You could deviate from it if you wanted," Wagner said.

"If the agency has no published rules, you don't have to publish what you don't have," he said. "They're trying to secure rights under a section they don't get under any statute."

TVA's decision to hold the meeting May 17 instead of May 23 was because board member William Jenkins had resigned and chairman Aubrey Wagner was to retire May 18, the lawyer said. The rate hike could not have been approved without a majority of the board — Wagner and David Freeman, he said.

Winsor said TVA acted in an "arbitrary and capricious manner" and denied Consolidated due process by not giving it enough notice.

Wagner said Consolidated had sufficient notice of the rate increase.

Consolidated used two billion kilowatt-hours of electricity at its New Johnsonville, Tenn., smelter last year and its bill was more than $31 million, or 25 percent of production costs, the suit says.

Had the rate increase taken effect last year, the suit says, Consolidated, the eighth largest buyer of TVA's 208 distribution and industrial customers, would have paid an extra $13.6 million. The firm's net income in 1977 was $10.1 million, the suit says.

The firm's electric bill would jump 41 percent if the rate increase, coupled with one approved last year, goes into effect, the suit says, and Consolidated's power costs have risen 245 percent since 1972.

Now Require 90-Day Notice

WASHINGTON (AP) — Oil companies now must provide service station operators with at least 90 days notice before they cancel franchises.

The 90-day requirement was in legislation signed by President Carter Tuesday. The law also says a franchise can be canceled only for certain reasons, including fraud or criminal conduct by the service station owner.

The Greenville Community Ambassador Committee has reported that numerous contributions have been received to help defray expenses for this year's ambassador.

"Response from the people of Greenville has been wonderful," Jo Anne Bath, chairman of the committee said. "The Decca Club, the Anchor Club, the French and Spanish Clubs, and the National Honor Society of Rose High School have donated a large portion of the money raised," Mrs. Bath added.

Funds were raised by students through activities such as car washes, yard sales, bake sales, and some door-to-door solicitation.

Mrs. Bath reports that similar events, held by students of Aycock Junior High, also resulted in substantial contributions donated to the Community Ambassador Fund.

Others within the Greenville community who have responded to appeals are members of the business and professional community, as well as civic clubs and church groups.

To date, Mrs. Bath states, the committee has received approximately $1,600 toward the goal of $2,300 set for the ambassador's expenses for the current year.

Persons who wish to make a contribution may send them to: Jo Anne Bath, 1304 Oakview Drive, Greenville — or call for information, 756-4379.

House To Act On Lost Checks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The full House will consider legislation designed to speed replacement of lost or stolen Social Security checks.

The measure, approved Tuesday by the House Banking Committee, would end a procedure that requires recipients to agree to repay the Treasury if the original and substitute checks are lawfully cashed. Removal of the rule would speed replacement checks by at least several weeks, committee members said.

Fear Impact Of Less Research

But those attending an American Association for the Advancement of Science meeting said Tuesday it's unclear how the government can help without harming the free enterprise system.

Seven Traffic Mishaps Reported Here Tuesday

An estimated $39,775 property damage resulted from a series of seven traffic mishaps investigated here yesterday by

Ruling Is Challenged

A former state Revenue Department employee here has challenged the ruling by a hearing officer for the State Personnel Commission that denied the employee's claim he was dismissed from his job by Democratic officials on political grounds.

The hearing officer, George Ligon Jr., ruled that John H. Banks Jr. lost his job here because of a reduction in state positions ordered by Gov. Jim Hunt. Ligon conducted a hearing here in April.

Banks, in contesting Ligon's findings, requested a hearing before the commission. The matter has been scheduled by the state agency for consideration on Monday in Raleigh.

The ousted employee, who worked with the Revenue Department from December of 1976 until June 30 of last year, charged that his job was eliminated because he was hired during the Republican administration of Gov. Jim Holshouser.

The department claimed at the April hearing that Banks was dismissed not because of his political affiliation but as part of a commission-approved procedure that eliminated 21 vacant jobs and dismissed employees with the least seniority.

Greenville police, including one mishap in which an estimated $35,000 damage resulted.

Investigators said heaviest damage resulted when a tractor-trailer truck overturned about 5:59 p.m. at the intersection of Fifth and Elizabeth Streets.

Police said the tractor-trailer, driven by Jesse W. Rackley Jr. of Rocky Mount, overturned when its 15 ton load of peat shifted while the vehicle was making a turn at the intersection.

Damage to the vehicle and its cargo was set at $35,000.

A 9:02 p.m. collision at the intersection of Greenville and Arlington Boulevards involved cars operated by Roy Raby Smith of 2507 Madison Cir., Penny C. Edwards of Goldsboro, and Sellers C. Dickerson of Route 8, Greenville.

Officers estimated damage at $25 to the Smith car, $1,050 to the Edwards auto and $1,000 to the Dickerson vehicle.

A 7:50 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Fifth and Greene Streets involved cars driven by Jeffrey Mills Nelson of Winterville and Kenneth Robert Mason of Route 2, Blountville, Tenn.

Damage from that mishap, according to investigators, was set at $450 to the Nelson car and $700 to the Mason auto.

An estimated $200 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in a 9 a.m. mishap on the Nursing Home Road, 475 feet South of the Fifth Street intersection.

Police identified the drivers involved as Clifton Otis Whitehurst of Bethel and Susan Gayle West of Durham.

William Stuart Forelines of 2907 Ellsworth Dr. was charged with following too close following investigation of a 9:50 a.m.

mishap at the intersection of 14th and Broad Streets, according to investigators.

Officers reported the Forelines vehicle collided with a car driven by Bobbie Allen Murphy of Route 4, Greenville, causing an estimated $350 damage to the Murphy car and $50 damage to the Forelines vehicle.

A truck driven by Arthur Roscoe Barnhill of Route 5, Greenville, and a car operated by Stephen Lewis Galloway of Tarboro collided about 4:55 p.m. at the intersection of First and Greene Streets, causing an estimated $75 damage to the truck and $300 damage to the Galloway car.

Police reported cars driven by Danny Joe Murphy of 703 East First St., and Leonard Barnes Simpson of 604 North Ash St. collided about 2:20 p.m. on Cherry Court Drive, causing an estimated $300 damage to the Murphy car and $75 damage to the Simpson car.

Get Telephones After 10 Years

STATENVILLE, Ga. (AP) — It took a long time and $80,000-worth of cable, but four families living near the edge of the Okefenokee Swamp in Georgia's Echols County now have telephones.

Continental Telephone Co. had to string 31 miles of cable south from Homerville to reach the new subscribers.

Seeking Auto Tax Compromise

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — House and Senate conferees, trying to settle their differences over President Carter's energy plan, are again searching for a compromise on ways to discourage the building and buying of automobiles that waste gasoline.

The conferees slated a meeting today — for what leaders on both sides hope would be the last time — to try to put the dispute, along with the rest of the president's energy bill, behind them.

But, with no ready compromise in sight, conference leaders were predicting the session may develop into a final tug-of-war between the spokesmen for the two houses.

The dispute began in October, when the conferees disagreed sharply over whether to tax or ban automobiles that get poor gasoline mileage. So they bypassed the issue and went on to something else.

Several weeks later, a separate panel working on tax aspects of the president's plan voted to back the tax, but made its approval contingent on what "The drug can be an inappropriate substitute for more expensive treatment," Gualtieri said. "Sometimes children need to be in special education classes rather than on drug therapy."

At the same time, he said, prejudice or ignorance often prevent children who need the drugs from getting them.

Researchers hope the information gathered during the study will help doctors decide whether a child should be given psychoactive drugs and, if so, at what dosage and for how long.

Study Effects Of Drug-Use

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Researchers at the University of North Carolina School of Medicine are using a federal grant to study long-range side effects of two drugs used on hyperactive, autistic and mentally retarded children.

Scientists at the school said there has been no study of possible side effects resulting from prolonged use of the drugs even through almost a half million children take them.

Without taking psychoactive drugs, mainly Ritalin or Mellarin, the children often become uncontrollable and disruptive, making it difficult for them to get along at home or at school.

The study, funded by the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development, will be directed by Dr. George Breese, professor of psychiatry and pharmacology at UNC. Dr. Tom Gualtieri, an assistant professor of psychiatry, will direct clinical evaluations.

Gualtieri said some children with severe emotional and behavioral problems are self-destructive or hostile and need to be on the drugs, which also may help hyperactive children with short attention spans.

However, he said doctors should be careful about proper use of the drugs.

Appeals Court Rules Out Law

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The State Court of Appeals ruled Tuesday that a law making it illegal for a man and woman to occupy a hotel bedroom "for immoral purposes" is unconstitutional.

The court upheld a ruling by Superior Court Judge William Albright of Guilford County, who said the law is too vague.

"The word 'immoral' is not equivalent to the word 'illegal,' hence enforcement of the statute may involve legal acts which nevertheless are immoral in the view of many citizens," the appeals court said.

"If the legislative intent was to proscribe illicit sexual intercourse, the statute could have specifically so provided."

Tree Grows In Clock Tower

GREENSBURG, Ind. (UPI) — A tree grows out of the top of the county courthouse clock tower in this southeastern Indiana farming community. Old-timers say the tree — now a tourist attraction — is at least the third one to grow through a gap in the wooden tower since the building went up about a century ago.

that kind of regulatory approach."

Existing law calls for automakers to achieve a fleet average — based on all the cars they produce in a given year — of 27.5 mpg by 1985. House conferees say this is as far as they want to go on the issue.

"We're just not going to back down," declared Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., a leading energy conferee and one of the most outspoken congressional supporters of the automobile industry, which strongly opposes the proposed ban.

Making It Easier To Detect Students' Term Paper Fraud

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is making it easier for professors to catch students who turn in term papers they have bought instead of written themselves.

In a case involving a New Jersey company that sold research materials to college students, the Postal Service announced Tuesday a consent judgment that may form a pattern for other firms.

The judgment makes it possible for colleges and faculty members to learn if their students are using papers by the firm. Academic Research Group, Inc. of Rutherford, N.J. The Postal Service had accused the firm of using the mail to misrepresent, naming college professors as the victims. The government agreed to drop the case in return for the firm's agreement to:

- Keep files that will enable it to identify the subject and purchaser of research material;
- Furnish the information to any college or professor who asks; and
- Refrain from advertising in college newspapers or posting flyers on campus bulletin boards.

Walter E. Monaghan, attorney for the firm, said that the company acknowledged no illegal acts in the consent judgment "and there has never been any proof that we did anything illegal."

The government had filed the case last month saying it was a test of its ability to end the mail-order term paper business, which has grown in recent years. Rather than pursuing the case to a judicial determination, federal attorneys decided in favor of an agreement that could be used as a model for other companies.

The government says at least a six companies sell term papers nationally. The companies advertise in campus newspapers and have a full catalog of term papers for sale at about $3 a page. Custom-written term papers can be had on virtually any subject for about $7 per page.

Postal Service attorney Tom Ziebarth said the consent judgment is "tossing the ball into the academic court. If they (colleges) choose to use the tools, they should be able to do something against the cheats in their midst."

Pope Observing An Anniversary

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI observes the 15th anniversary of his election today by going through his usual schedule, including his weekly public audience.

No special ceremony was planned to recall the day in 1963 when the College of Cardinals, after 36 hours in conclave, chose Cardinal Giovanni Battista Montini, the archbishop of Milan, to succeed the late Pope John XXIII.

Instead, the election day and the anniversary of Pope Paul's coronation, June 30, will be celebrated on June 29, the feast day of St. Peter, when the 80-year-old pontiff says a Mass in honor of the first pope in St. Peter's Basilica or in the square in front of it.

Reviewing Pope Paul's reign, the Vatican newspaper Osservatore Romano said in an editorial it had been a "crucified life."

The editorial, by German theologian Rudolph Baubst, was referring to the conflicts arising over the modernization of the church set in motion by the Second Vatican Council in 1962-65.

Baubst said Pope Paul is caught between two fronts, "one of extreme progressives and one of extreme conservatives while the majority — disconcerted — keeps silent."

The pope's most serious challenges, he said, came from the progressives' rebellion against his 1968 ban on all man-made contraceptives and conservative opposition to his modernization of church rites.

Baubst said critics of the ban on contraception, "especially in Germany and the United States," were "so unreasonable and emotional that for many their relationship with the pope has been distorted."

Turning to the rebellion against the modernization of church rituals led by rebel French Bishop Marcel LeFebvre, Haubst wrote that "it is only thanks to the pope's imperturbable patience that a schism has not yet been reached."

House Speaker Would Run If Hunt Does Not

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — House Speaker Carl Albert, D-Gastonia, says he may seek the Democratic nomination for governor in 1980 if Gov. Jim Hunt decides not to seek a second term.

Stewart, a Gastonia attorney, said in an interview with a Charlotte radio station Tuesday that if Hunt decides to seek reelection, "the most obvious office I would be suited to would be lieutenant governor, because a large part of the responsibility is as presiding officer of the Senate."

He said other alternatives would include a race for the U.S. Senate if Sen. Robert Morgan, D-N.C., does not seek reelection or positions on the Council of State.

Stewart supported last year's constitutional amendment allowing a governor and lieutenant governor to serve two consecutive terms.

Arrest 3 Men For Break-In

Greenville police this morning arrested three men on breaking, entering and larceny charges in connection with a 3:35 a.m. break-in at the H and M Radio-TV Shop at 917 Dickinson Ave.

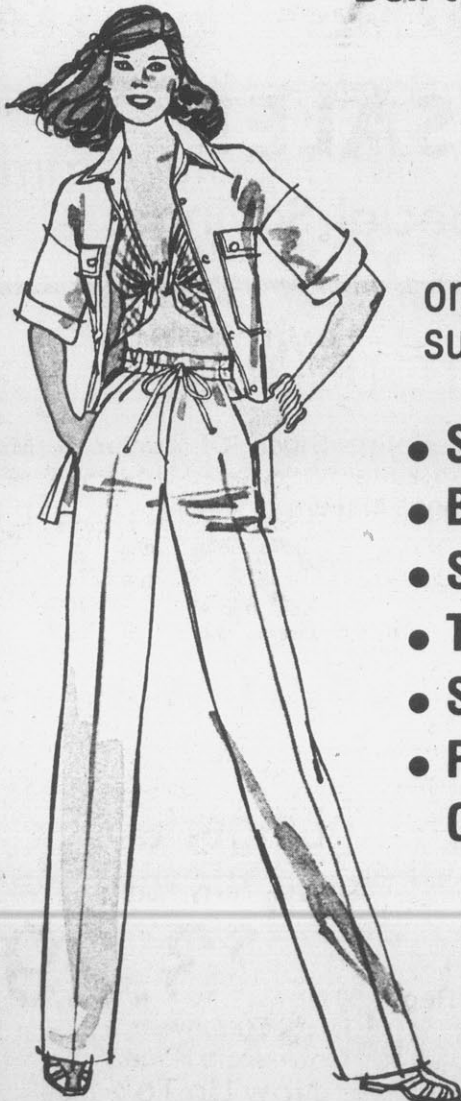

Chief Glenn Cannon identified the three as William Alfred Malleary, 22 of 513 McKinley Ave.; Jerry Coward, 20 of 609 Ford St.; and James Willoughby, 21 of 807 West 14th St.

Cannon said the three allegedly took a tape player and stereo unit from the shop after breaking out a window at the front of the store.

One of the defendants, Coward, allegedly suffered a severe cut on his arm from the broken window glass, Cannon noted.

Faith Helps Fight Habit Of Snacking

By ARNOLD DIBBLE
NEW BRIGHTON, Minn.
(UPI) — It was 3 in the afternoon, just before the kids came home from school and time for Neva Coyle's afternoon "fix" of crackers, cream cheese and jelly.

When you've weighed as much as 248 pounds and fought a weight problem for 35 years, the afternoon snack becomes a daily battle.

"I thought there had to be a way to get the battle out of my mind," Mrs. Coyle said in an interview. "I whirled around and wrote on a piece of paper attached to the refrigerator, 'I give this up to you, Lord.' The battle for that day was gone.

"The next day I wrote it over again. Sometimes twice in one day. I wrote it down over and over and again and again. I didn't feel so helpless any more."

Out of her successful fight against fat came the birth in April, 1977, of "Overeaters Victorious, Inc." It is growing so fast the now-attractive mother of three has a difficult time keeping up with the administrative matters that go with it.

She says, "OV is an association of born-again Christians who are exercising their faith in a real problem area of overeating and overweight."

She is her own walking testimonial to the efficacy of faith.

She now weighs 148 pounds with, as she said, "10 more pounds to go."

"Like everyone else, I tried everything else first," Mrs. Coyle said. "I've been through all the major loss programs. In a moment of desperation, I had intestinal bypass surgery. I lost 60 pounds, but I gained it all back.

"I finally called on God to help. I've weighed 148 pounds for more than five months. It's the longest time I've been thin in my life. Food doesn't have priority any more."

Although OV stresses strong supportive action among members, Mrs. Coyle said it is not based on Alcoholics Anonymous. The initial fee is $20 for active membership or correspondence courses.

Members also are required to read the writings of two living saints in the movement, Frances Hunter, author of "God's Answer to Fat," and Joan Cavanaugh, author of "More of Jesus, Less of Me."

Ms. Hunter warns that the thin, hard line to slenderness calls for disciples to "only buy foods that Jesus, John or Peter would buy."

"If God made it," she wrote, "and man didn't change it, then you can eat it."

"God gives us the good stuff. I can't imagine Jesus Christ coming out of the supermarket with 12 bags of chips — one for each disciple."

Mrs. Coyle knows the job is difficult.

"The first step is a study of the Bible which shows us that compulsiveness of any kind is a spiritual problem, not a physical one," she said. "There is something lacking in you spiritually. You have to put that calorie in your mouth before it turns to fat. We try to deal with people on how to keep that fat out of the mouth."

"It's hard, we realize, to learn to listen to God, learning how to draw on faith. It's there. It's in there. It's hard to get that faith out."

Mrs. Coyle was born in Redlands, Calif., and moved to Minnesota when she was 16. She later met her husband, Leland Coyle, a UNIVAC engineer. She said she was raised in an evangelical Christian home and now attends the Assemblies of God Church in St. Paul.

She founded Overeaters Victorious after calling "a couple of friends to see if they would do (the plan) with me to see if it works. Since then people have found me. It has grown and grown. There is really a need for this."

"We know a person's faith is their strongest motivator. You can't use self love because a fat person doesn't have any self love. It's more like self hate."

Her program has changed the life of her whole family to the point where her son asked the other day: "Say, mom, do you remember pie?"

WHEAT FOR CHINA

WINNIPEG, Manitoba (AP) — The Canadian Wheat Board says it is selling 110 million bushels of wheat to China between September and August 1979. No price was given.

N.C. Commissioners Aware Property Tax Unliked

By The Associated Press
County commissioners in North Carolina say they didn't need the passage of California's Proposition 13 to let them know the feelings of homeowners about rising property taxes. With counties preparing their operating budgets for the coming fiscal year, most commissioners say they would be striving to cut down on expenditures and hold down taxes even if there were no indications of a nationwide tax revolt. Ronald Aycock, executive director and general counsel of the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners, said boards of commissioners have historically kept a close check on property taxes. "I think they would be holding the line or having as small as possible an increase in taxes with or without Proposition 13," Aycock said. "Through the years, there has always been the same concern. "County commissioners have always been reluctant to unduly raise taxes." Proposition 13, approved recently by voters in California, slashes property taxes in that state by about two-thirds, and some observers have forecast it will spark a nationwide revolt against rising taxes. Cumberland, Guilford, Wake and several other counties are considering boosts in property taxes, but many others apparently will get by on current tax rates. The Cumberland County Board of Commissioners is expected to approve an increase that is smaller than the 14-cent raise currently under consideration. Commissioners in Wake and Guilford counties have proposed raises of 5 cents per $100 of assessed valuation. The Wake County budget was given tentative approval on a 4-3 vote Monday, with the three dissenters citing the tax increase as the reason for their opposition. The Guilford County increase was slashed from 10 cents to 5 cents after the budget was cut "to the bone," County Manager John Witherspoon said. Buncombe County also considered a 5-cent boost, but commissioners decided against it and are currently considering a budget calling for no increase at all. New Hanover County Manager Dan Eller said he expects commissioners to get by without a tax increase there, and in Mecklenburg County, assistant budget director Bob Miner said he expects a proposed 1-cent increase to be eliminated. "I think they will be getting rid of the hike, but not because of Proposition 13," Miner said. "There has been casual discussion of it (Proposition 13) among the commissioners and they have reminded department heads to think of it when submitting their fund requests," he added. "They are concerned about it, but not reacting to it." Aycock said the average county tax rate in the state is about 75 cents per $100 of assessed property valuation. State law prohibits counties from setting tax rates higher than $1.50 per $100 of assessed valuation, with certain exceptions. "A great, great percentage of the total county tax revenue is for those things the state says "Thou shalt do," he said. "There is not a lot of local discretion in what the tax rate will be."

More Turn To Insurance

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Faced with an increasing number of lawsuits by their clients, many real estate agencies are seeking malpractice insurance protection. The North Carolina Board of Realtors Inc. has set up an insurance program for realty firms, and officials say 75 agencies have signed up for coverage.

"We call it errors and omission coverage," said Wilson Hunt of J. Wilson Hunt Insurance Agency Inc., a Thomasville firm handling the program.

"Doctors call it malpractice insurance and lawyers call it professional liability coverage," he said. "It all comes down to the same thing."

Officials of the Association of Realtors said one agent is being sued because his advertising said a house had a new furnace and dry basement. The agent said he took the word of the seller that the claims were true, but the buyer of the home charged that they were false.

In another case, the seller of a house sued an agent for failure to obtain a fair market price. The court ruled in favor of the seller, forcing the agent to pay the difference between the sale price and fair value.

"If you are a real estate agent and you make an error or an omission that costs somebody a pile of money, you're going to get sued," Hunt said.

Phil Alexander, executive vice president of the Charlotte Board of Realtors, said many firms have used a California insurance company for protection but the firm sharply increased its premiums. He said a considerable number of firms placed money in escrow accounts, but a good many will be turning to the new state program.

He said the average premium paid by the 75 real estate agencies currently involved in the insurance program slightly more than $700 but that premiums range from $250 to $10,000 annually.

Charlotte OKs New Terminal

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Residents of Charlotte have approved by a margin of better than 2-1 a $47-million bond issue to finance a new terminal at Douglas Municipal Airport.

The approval for the new terminal Tuesday showed a major turnaround in voters' sentiment since 1975, when voters rejected a proposal for a new airport terminal.

The vote was 16,893 in favor of the issue and 7,694 against.

The new terminal is scheduled to open July 1, 1982, and will be part of a $59 million airport expansion program to include addition of an air cargo facility at Douglas.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Dr. Craven E. Williams, president of Gardner-Webb College, was appointed by Gov. Jim Hunt Tuesday to a three-year term on the North Carolina Education Council.

Williams is a member of the American Association for Education and the Council for the Advancement and Support of Education.

The council is composed of the members of the state Education Commission of the States plus five others appointed by the governor to serve three-year terms.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market moved broadly lower today on renewed fears of rising interest rates and increased inflation.

The 10:30 Dow Jones index of 30 industrial stocks was off 5.11 to 824.93. Trading was active. Losers outnumbered gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues by better than a 3-1 margin.

EMI topped the most-active list in early trading, down 1/4 to 2 1/2. Georgia Pacific was unchanged at 25 1/2, and Polaroid was down 1/4 to 38. Caesar's World, which lost 2 1/2 Tuesday, was up 1/4 to 27. American Telephone & Telegraph, which reported higher earnings Wednesday, was down 1/4 at 60 1/2.

While the market nervously waited to see if this week's Federal Reserve Open Market Committee meeting will result in higher interest rates, New York's Chase Manhattan Bank quietly boosted the rate on loans to stockbrokers from 8 1/4 percent to 8 3/4 percent. Some analysts said this might precede another industry-wide boost in the prime rate Friday from the 8 1/4 percent level set last week.

In addition, Barry Bosworth, director of the federal Wage and Price Stability Council, predicted the nation's inflation rate would reach 7 percent this year. "We are not so far winning our fight against inflation," he said.

On Tuesday, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials lost ground virtually all day, closing at 830.04, down 8.58.

Declines outnumbered advances by about 2-1, and Big Board volume came to 27.92 million shares against 25.5 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks lost .54 to 54.22. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index dropped 1.35 to 148.22.

Smoke From Trash Fire

The heavy cloud of smoke that area residents witnessed Tuesday southwest of here was the result of a fire that broke out at an abandoned trash pile west of Winterville, the Pitt Fire Marshal's office reported.

Fire Marshal Bobby Joyner said today that the fire was contained to the trash pile located approximately one mile from Winterville on Rural Paved Road 1131.

Joyner said that the Winterville Fire Department responded to the fire at 6:40 p.m. and stayed at the scene until around 10 p.m.

No real damage resulted from the blaze, he added, as adjoining woodlands was not affected.

Joyner noted that the trash pile is still smoldering today.

Plant Expansion

FARMVILLE — The Business Development Corp. of North Carolina reported that it has issued a commitment for a $450,000 loan to assist in financing the expansion of manufacturing facilities for Reed National Corp. here.

Reed National manufactures heating and air conditioning equipment. BDC, it was noted, issued the loan commitment to Rudbeck Realty Corp. The Business Development Corp. made a loan in 1974 to assist in purchasing the Farmville plant from International Paper Co.

The new loan will result in an increase in employment at the Farmville facility from 100 to 125 employees.

Reed National Corp. is headquartered in Westfield, Mass.

Plan New Branch

An application has been submitted to the U.S. Comptroller of the Currency by Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. for permission to locate a branch office on Stantonburg Road opposite ABC Moving and Storage Inc. J. R. Hooper, vice president and office executive for Wachovia here, said in the announcement that if the application is approved by the Comptroller, construction will begin on the new branch this summer.

Hooper reported that Wachovia is "seeking the location in order to better serve our customers in Greenville."

He added, "We believe that public needs and convenience will be met by the full individual and corporate banking services Wachovia could offer through the proposed office."

The bank presently has five branches in Greenville.

Mental Health Board Meeting

The election of new officers highlights the annual dinner meeting of the Pitt County Mental Health Center Board today. Bill McDonald stepped down from his post as chairman at the 4 p.m. activities.

The 25 board members were also to discuss the proposed contract between area mental health authorities and the North Carolina Division of Mental Health and Mental Retardation. Dr. Steve Creech was also to present statistics on the Center's case load for the past year.

Advise Caution

Greenville Police Chief Glenn Cannon today urged local area residents to use caution in light of the increasing number of burglaries, break-ins and rapes recently.

Cannon said residents should, "take all precautions necessary," to prevent such crimes.

He suggested that doors and windows should be secured before retiring for the night, or when no one is at home.

The chief said too, that persons hearing unusual noises or seeing a prowler should call the Police Department immediately.

Art Sale Prices Setting Record

By GRAHAM HEATHCOTE

Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Bidding in the first session of the sale of the von Hirsch art collection ran so high that the auctioneers now expect a total take of at least $18.5 million, $3.7 million more than originally predicted.

The first sales Tuesday night totaled $13,735, double the original estimate by Sotheby Parke Bernet, the auctioneers.

"It's more like a casino than an art auction," said one dealer as the last of the 70 drawings, watercolors and miniatures was sold before excited dealers and collectors overflowing the auction rooms on New Bond Street or bidding by leased telephone lines from the firm's Madison Avenue headquarters in New York.

Tuesday night's opener bore out the advance conclusion that the von Hirsch sale would eclipse Sotheby's record $11.6-million sale last year of the contents of Mentmore Towers, a former Rothschild estate in Buckinghamshire.

The von Hirsch sale continues through Tuesday. Coming up this morning were 27 paintings by El Greco, Rubens, Tintoretto, Tiepolo and other Old Masters.

The stunner of the opening session was a record auction price of $1.2 million paid by Swiss dealer Marianne Feilchenfeldt for a small watercolor landscape by the German artist Albrecht Durer. Painted in 1495, it depicts the rock and church of Doss Trento in northern Italy and will go to a West German museum. Sotheby's presale estimate was $370,000.

The previous record for a watercolor was $665,640 paid for a Cezanne still life in 1973. But the Durer was the only watercolor by that artist still in private hands.

Other top prices Tuesday were $555,000 by the same Swiss dealer for a Durer drawing of Christ on the Mount of Olives, and a record $296,000 by the Cleveland Museum of Art for a Rembrandt drawing of the Hindustani emperor Shah Jahan, who built the Taj Mahal.

The collection was left by Robert von Hirsch, a German leather millionaire who fled from the Nazis in 1933 and died last November at his home in Basel, Switzerland, at the age of 94.

Stanley, Jackson Crack Homers As Yankees Trim Red Sox, 10-4

AL Roundup

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
AP Sports Writer

Why does a chicken cross the bases? To get to the other side of home plate, of course, like after hitting a grand slam homer.

Fred "Chicken" Stanley, the New York Yankees' backup shortstop, received his nickname for the manner in which he runs. Tuesday night, however, the lifetime .226 hitter trotted instead of running after belting his sixth career homer — and second grand slam — to cap a seven-run fourth-inning rally against Boston's Mike Torrez.

Meanwhile, Reggie Jackson added a three-run shot in the ninth and Don Gullett scattered five hits as the Yankees proved that turnaround is fair play — or, in the case of a chicken, fowl play — and trounced the Red Sox 10-4, the same score by which Boston bombed them the night before.

In other American League action, the red-hot Baltimore Orioles defeated the Milwaukee Brewers 8-5 and sliced Boston's lead in the AL East to six games, while the Kansas City Royals edged the Cleveland Indians 3-2 and retained their 1½-game lead in the West over the California Angels, who dined the Minnesota Twins 10-5.

Elsewhere, the Texas Rangers nipped the Oakland A's 5-4, the Seattle Mariners shaded the Chicago White Sox 4-2 and the Detroit Tigers outlasted the Toronto Blue Jays 4-3 in 13 innings.

Orioles 8, Brewers 5

Rich Dauer's two-run double sparked a five-run Baltimore fifth inning and Scott McGregor allowed one hit for 61-3 innings, leading the Orioles to their 17th victory in 18 games.

Royals 3, Indians 2

Kansas City rallied for two runs in the bottom of the eighth on an error by shortstop Tom Veryzer, singles by George Brett and Darrell Porter off starter Rick Wise and Clint Hurdle's grounder off Sid Monge. Winner Larry Gura scattered eight hits.

Angels 10, Twins 5

Brian Downing drilled a three-run homer to cap California's five-run seventh inning and Frank Tanana won his 11th game with help from Dyar Miller in the eighth as the Angels ended Minnesota's six-game winning streak. Tanana allowed 10 hits and five runs and tied New York's Ron Guidry and Montreal's Ross Grimsley for the major league lead in victories.

Rangers 5, A's 4

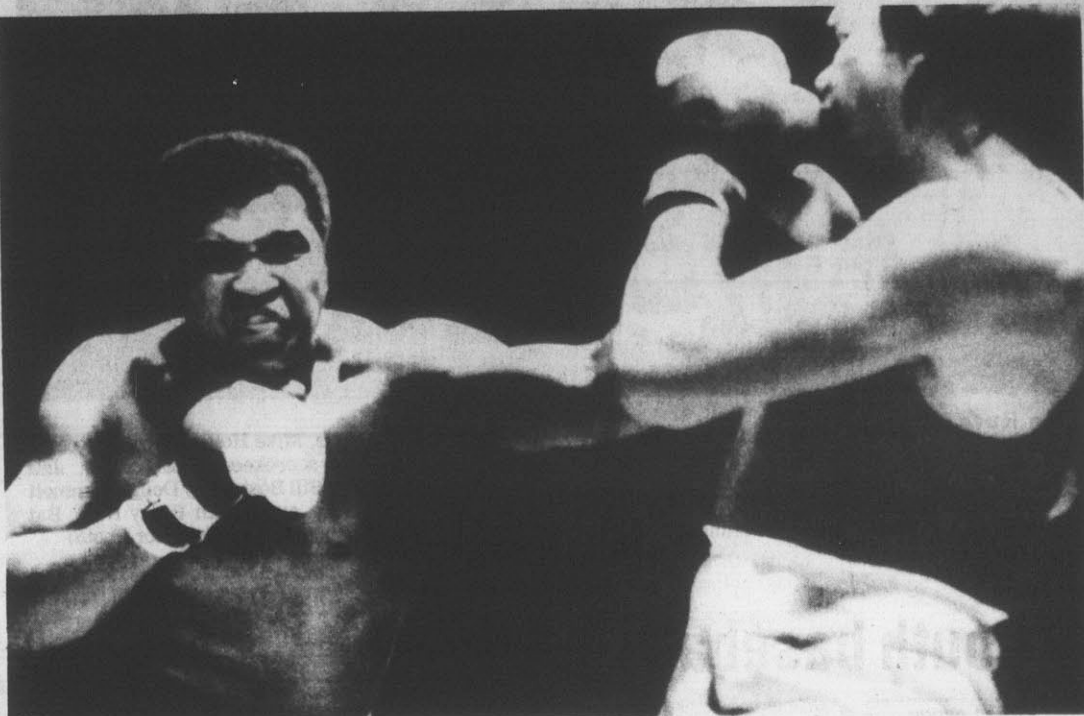

Richie Zisk, hitless in four previous at-bats, singled home the winning run with one out in the bottom of the ninth after a walk to Mike Jorgensen, a sacrifice and an intentional walk to Bump Willis.

Mariners 4, White Sox 2

Bruce Bochte's tie-breaking two-run single in the eighth inning lifted Seattle to its second victory in a row over the White Sox. Dan Meyer hit a two-run homer for the Mariners' other runs while Jim Breazeale hit a pair of homers for Chicago.

Tigers 4, Blue Jays 3

John Wockenuss and Jason Thompson ripped consecutive doubles off Mike Willis with one out in the 13th inning for the run that snapped the Tigers' seven-game losing streak.

Ali Says He's Finished

Former heavyweight champ Muhammad Ali, right, trades punches with a Soviet boxer in one of three two-round unscored exhibition bouts in Moscow Tuesday. Afterwards, Ali said he thought that he had lost one of the bouts, and added on an uncharacteristically modest note: "Me, I'm finished. My day is over. I'm going on guts and courage and native ability." Ali has a September date with Leon Spinks in a title rematch. (AP Laserphoto)

Schaefer 500 Might Not Fill The Field

MOUNT POCONO, Pa. (AP) — Less than a month after the Indianapolis 500, where a record 92 cars were entered for a chance at the 33-car field, it appears there may be trouble assembling that large a field for Sunday's Schaefer 500.

Forty-five entries were received for the Schaefer race, but as practice opened Tuesday at Pocono International Raceway, it was clear fewer than 33 of them would qualify in time trials Thursday and Friday.

Eight of those were backup cars, a couple of others withdrew, some didn't show up, and one, that of rookie Gary Irvin, crashed during a warmup Tuesday.

All the top cars and drivers are here — former winners Tom Sneva, Johnny Rutherford, Al Unser, and A.J. Foyt. But what happened to the others?

John Mahler, the No. 2 driver for a two-car team that's now a one-car team, had some observations.

"We've had a very heavy, grueling schedule since Indianapolis," explained the Bettendorf, Iowa, native. "My teammate Spike Gehlhausen crashed at Indianapolis, so that's why I'm on foot here this weekend.

"Several cars were broken badly and a couple almost destroyed at Mosport, Ontario, two weeks ago. Fortunately not too much happened at Milwaukee last weekend. But a lot of teams are having trouble getting their act together in time to be ready for Pocono."

There was only one day between the Milwaukee race and the opening practice session here, scarcely enough time to tow the racing cars the 1.100 miles.

Only 10 cars made appearances on the track Tuesday. Most of the tuning up is expected to be crammed into one day, today, the last full day of practice before the race.

Track Meet Scheduled

The Greenville Recreation Department will sponsor a track meet for runners of all ages from 5-7 p.m. Thursday. The meet will include all running events, plus the long jump and triple jump. It will be held at the E. B. Aycock track.

Three more came over in the third. Brett Dye walked and Iaboni singled. Darrell Dunn reached on an error, scoring Dye and Iaboni. Dunn moved up on a passed ball and a stolen base and scored on Gary Scott's double.

Two more scored in the fourth and another in the sixth.

Auto Specialty 5, Graniteers 4

Auto Specialty gained a 5-4 victory over the Graniteers in the Prep League last night, and Dr Pepper became league champs.

Dr Pepper needed only one victory or a loss by the Graniteers to clinch the title, and the loss gave it to them without their lifting a bat.

Auto Specialty got its first run in the opening inning. Kenny Goodwin singled and scored when Troy Hudson singled.

The Graniteers came back with two runs in the third. John Langley walked and stole second. He scored when Rodrick Harrell doubled. Bill Owens tripled to score Harrell.

Auto Specialty added another run in the fourth and got two more in the fifth. The Graniteers then came up with two in the seventh to tie it at 4-4.

Auto Specialty got its winning run in the seventh. Goodwin singled with one out, and moved up on a fielder's choice. He scored on Hudson's single.

Harrell had three hits to lead the Graniteers, while Owens had two. Hudson had three and Goodwin, two, for Auto Specialty.

League Leaders

Roderick Harrell of the Graniteers leads the Prep League in hitting with a .455 average through last Friday's games. In second is Randy Warren of Jeannette Cox with a .452 mark.

Terry Smith of Auto Specialty holds down third place with an average of .448, while Rudy Stalls and Louis Fletcher, both of Dr Pepper, follow at .414 and .400, respectively.

Curtis Evans, also of Dr Pepper, is in sixth at .379, while Bill Johnson and Tony Burroughs of Jeannette Cox follow at .364 and .355. Jody Forbes of Auto Specialty is ninth at .346, while Horace Barrett of the Graniteers and John Parnell of Dr Pepper round out the top ten, tied at .333.

Coke scored its first run in the opening inning. Mitchell Brann singled and scored when Jeff Porter reached on an error.

Home Builders tied it up with one in the second. L. Jackson walked and scored on D. Woods double.

The other Home Builders run came in the sixth. E. Wilson doubled and scored on B. Hopkins' single.

But Coke came back with two in the seventh. Johnny Williams hit a home run tying it up. Then, Vince Hankins singled and stole second. He scored when Brann reached on an error.

Foster Provides Fireworks As Cincinnati Rolls Past Giants

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

When the Cincinnati Reds and San Francisco Giants met, everyone knew there would be fireworks. There were — all kinds.

A San Francisco fan shook up things at Candlestick Park for a while by tossing a firecracker on the field. But the real explosion came off the bat of George Foster, who doubled, tripled and homered to lead the Reds to a 6-3 victory over the Giants Tuesday night.

"When we're hitting good," said Foster, "nobody intimidates us — no matter how good they are."

It was a flashy way for the Reds to open their big three-game series with the Giants. The victory in the opener cut San Francisco's West lead to one game over Sparky Anderson's fast-closing team.

"The Giants have surprised a lot of people," said Foster, "but we were able to recover before they got away. We learned our lesson last year when the Los Angeles Dodgers got out in front and stayed there. This year, we knew we had to stay close."

Elsewhere, the Houston Astros defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers 5-3; the St. Louis Cardinals trimmed the Philadelphia Phillies 4-2; the Pittsburgh Pirates downed the Chicago Cubs 6-1; the New York Mets tripped the Montreal Expos 3-0 and the Atlanta Braves turned back the San Diego Padres 5-3 in 10 innings.

NL Roundup

Astros 5, Dodgers 3

James Rodney Richard and Bo McLaughlin combined on an eight-hitter and Houston utilized two errors by Los Angeles shortstop Bill Russell in beating the Dodgers.

Cardinals 4, Phillies 2

Bob Forsch and Mark Littell combined on a seven-hitter and Ken Reitz had two RBI hits as St. Louis beat Philadelphia. With Littell's help, Forsch beat the Phillies for the third time in three tries this season.

Pirates 6, Cubs

Bert Blyleven scattered nine hits to lead Pittsburgh over Chicago and spoil Ken Holtzman's first pitching start since rejoining the Cubs this month. Holtzman, traded away by Chicago after the 1977 season and recently reacquired from the New York Yankees, yielded the first three Pirate runs in the fourth inning.

Mets 3, Expos 0

Steve Henderson drove in two runs with a homer and an RBI grounder and Nino Espinosa pitched a four-hitter to lead New York over Montreal. Espinosa snapped a three-game personal losing streak while improving his record to 6-6. He struck out five and walked two.

The triumph ended a streak for ace Montreal left-hander Ross Grimsley, 11-4, who had posted complete-game victories in his last five decisions.

Braves 5, Padres 3

Run-scoring singles by Dale

Murphy and Bob Horner in the 10th inning snapped a tie and sent Atlanta over San Diego. With two out in the 10th, Gary Matthews ignited the winning rally off left-hander Randy Jones with a triple to center. After Jones intentionally walked Jeff Burroughs, both Murphy and Horner followed with singles to center.

Stones Might Be Penalized

LOS ANGELES (AP) — High jumper Dwight Stones may lose his amateur status because of payments made for his appearance in the Superstars competition to a corporation that lists his mother, sister, grandmother and attorney as officers.

The question is whether the high jumper illegally evaded rules concerned with accepting money, said Ken Worthen, chairman of the registration committee of the Amateur Athletic Union's Southern Pacific Association.

Worthen, whose group met with Stones for four hours Monday, said Tuesday that the former world record holder faces loss of his amateur standing in a controversy over the $33,000 Stones earned in this year's Superstars, a multi-sports competition televised by ABC.

"The money went to Stones' corporation, the Desert Oasis Track Club, which is not recognized by the AAU."

"I guess the basic thing is whether he is an amateur or a professional now," said Worthen, whose group will decide whether to grant Stones an AAU travel permit to compete in Europe this summer.

"Did he illegally evade the AAU rules of amateurism and the international rules of amateurism by this action, or did he legally, through loopholes, avoid the requirements that amateur athletes cannot receive funds?" Worthen asked.

A ruling is expected shortly, as attorneys for both the AAU and Stones are studying the situation.

Stones, 24, formerly held world records indoors at 7 feet, 5'4 inches, outdoors at 7'7 1/2 inches, and was the high jump bronze medalist in the 1976 Olympics.

He said he plans to retire within two years and will expand his Desert Oasis Track Club to assist amateur athletes. Currently, however, the club is listed as a corporation for profit.

International rules of amateurism require that all prize money from sanctioned athletic competition must go to the governing body of the athlete's country.

The U.S. AAU requires that one-third of the funds go to the national body for an athletes' travel fund, one-third to local sports programs and one-third to a non-profit charitable organization chosen by the athlete and the AAU.

"Under the rules he could not give funds to the Desert Oasis Track club," Worthen said. "What has happened is that they waived the right to the money. However, they maintained the personal power to designate where the money will go. That, in the minds of some attorneys, really is not a waiver but a maintenance of control over the funds."

Southern Pitt Little League

Bethel defeated the Bears 14-4 last night in a Southern Pitt Little League baseball game.

Victor Grimes was the winning pitcher and led his team at the plate with three hits. Teammate Tommy Bowers had a pair of doubles. Chuckie Bollinger had two hits for the Bears.

Sports Briefs

CINCINNATI (AP) — Ticket sales for the Cincinnati Bengals are down and an official of the National Football League club blames the decline on the television blackout enacted by Congress.

"Television has had a great effect on it," said Mike Brown, assistant general manager. "No-shows eventually become no-buys."

Since 1974, NFL teams that are sold out 72 hours in advance must allow their games to be televised locally. Brown contends fans are putting off buying in advance in hopes of seeing the games on television. As a result, attendance continues to slip.

NFL clubs are paid about $4 million a year for TV rights. "It seems to me it only makes each team more dependent upon the league," Brown said.

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds have signed their No. 1 choice in the secondary draft — right-handed pitcher Brad Lesley — and assigned him to their Class A Northwest League club at Eugene, Ore.

Krepps Tells Mayors Proposition 13 Carries Risk

By DON McLEOD
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTA (AP) — Commerce Secretary Juanita Krepps said today that California's Proposition 13 poses a threat which could destroy the nation's cities if it leads to blind cutting of services as well as taxes. "Clearly, a significant diminution of services will produce panic out-migrations of firms and residents, further diminishing the tax base and further reducing the ability of affected cities to meet minimum needs," Mrs. Krepps said.

Addressing the final session of the U.S. Conference of Mayors meeting, the commerce secretary called the situation "potentially the most vicious of cycles." Proposition 13, an initiative overwhelmingly approved by California voters June 6, would cut property taxes in that state 57 percent. It has been the maior topic of discussion at the mayors' meeting and has been cited as probably the first wave of a nationwide taxpayers' revolt.

"The challenges posed by Proposition 13 make your difficult job even more onerous," Mrs. Krepps sympathized with the mayors.

"I share your concern about the need to maintain essential services in the face of real or potential tax rebellions."

However, Mrs. Krepps, apparently in some sympathy with the taxpayers, said that future programs "must be even more carefully targeted and selective than before."

One day earlier at the conference, the nation's mayors were saying the White House had given them a city-saving program they could support, and Vice President Walter Mondale was saying the people will back it despite the taxpayers' revolt.

Mondale announced a National Development Bank, the final piece in President Carter's National Urban Policy program, on Tuesday and said the jittery taxpayers will support it because it is fair and efficient.

The initial response from the U.S. Conference of Mayors, which had been demanding many of these programs, was one of jubilation.

"It's remarkable that the administration has sent 16 pieces of legislation dealing with urban America to the Congress less than three months from the date that the president outlined the urban policy," Mayor Lee Alexander of Syracuse, N.Y., said.

Speaking as president of the conference, Alexander said the development bank proposal "is one that we can support. We want to be as supportive as we can."

The "Urban" would use up about $2 billion in federal outlays over the next three years.

but Mondale said it would generate as much as $16 billion in private investment in troubled communities.

The program would guarantee loans, subsidize low interest rates and make outright grants to business and industry willing to locate in decayed areas or improve existing facilities rather than flee to the suburbs.

Mondale said the mounting taxpayer resistance would not oppose such a project because "the way we've shaped this program will commend itself to the common sense of the American people."

"I've seen many, many surveys recently, and every one of them says that an overwhelming majority of the American people want not less but more done for housing, for education, for the environment, for health needs," Mondale said.

Mondale said the Proposition 13 initiative which California voters approved overwhelmingly earlier this month, slashing their property taxes by 57 percent, was not a message for public officials to cut such services.

"I think Americans are not unresponsive of human needs," he said. "I don't think anyone's giving that message. What they do want is government that's efficient, that's respectful, that doesn't waste, and that is precisely how we're perceiving it."

"Americans are, and always will be, willing to do their part," he said. "But they want to know that their tax dollars are going to the people with the greatest need. They want programs that reach their target."

"And they want to share the burden of paying for these goals, but they want to share it equitably and fairly," Mondale said. "They want a system, including a tax system, that makes sense."

Going Abroad? Look Up The Health Regulations

By JACK STILLMAN
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTA (AP) — If overseas travel is on your docket this summer, chances are you won't need any vaccinations. But there is also a chance that you will need them and won't realize it.

An estimated 2.3 million Americans will be traveling outside the United States this summer, 519,000 of them in Europe, federal officials say.

To keep from being detained, or even barred from visiting a country on your itinerary, the national Center for Disease Control and the U.S. Public Health Service recommend certain procedures.

An intricate international system outlining immunization requirements from every country — from the French Territory of the Afars to Zambia — has been prepared and is constantly updated.

Although travelers from the United States may not be required to receive certain vaccinations before leaving the country, they are required to show proof of immunization upon entry to many foreign countries.

Regulations can change while a traveler is in transit and although there is no protection against this, Public Health Service officials suggest that travelers provide them with a list of proposed stops in the sequence of the visits and they will check the status of each country and determine what immunizations are required.

International health regulations cover four quarantinable diseases — smallpox, cholera, yellow fever and plague.

The regulations also cover many diseases which are non-quarantinable including: African sleeping sickness, diphtheria, giardiasis, malaria, meningococcal disease, polio, rabies, tetanus, tuberculosis, typhoid fever, typhus fever and viral hepatitis.

Immunization requirements for these diseases vary from country to country and an unprepared traveler could be turned back from some borders without proper immunization documents, the CDC says.

But there are other things that could spoil a vacation abroad, and the CDC has provided a few hints to make traveling more convenient.

—If you wear glasses, take along an extra pair, or at least a lens prescription.

—If you have a physical condition that could require emergency care, carry a card, medical tag or bracelet.

—If you require special prescription medication, carry an adequate supply and a letter from a physician with information for medical authorities in case of an emergency.

—If you're a heavy water drinker, watch where you drink it. Water may be safe in hotels used by American travelers in large cities, but only chlorinated water sources protect against viral and bacterial waterborne diseases. In some cases, it may be advisable to drink only beverages such as tea and coffee made with boiled water.

Wallace Rules Out Senate Bid

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Gov. George C. Wallace said today he has decided against running for the unexpired term of the late U. S. Sen. James B. Allen.

"I do not feel that this would be the proper thing for me to do," he said in a prepared statement released from his office.

Wallace said earlier this year he would run for the Senate to succeed the veteran Sen. John Sparkman, who is retiring after the end of his present term next January. But later the governor withdrew from that race.

After Allen died from a heart attack June 1, Wallace's press secretary, Billy Joe Camp, said the governor was "giving consideration" to the race for Allen's unexpired term ending in January, 1981.

But the governor said today "after much consideration, I have decided not to run for either U. S. Senate seat."

Allen's widow, Maryon, was appointed by the governor to serve temporarily in the Senate until a successor is elected Nov. 7. She also is a candidate for the rest of the unexpired term.

Wallace said his decision "does not mean I am retiring from politics."

"I expect to remain politically active for years to come," he said, "and will continue my interest and concern for those things that affect the people of Alabama and our nation."

The 58-year-old partially paralyzed governor said he is grateful for the "many letters, telegrams, phone calls and personal visits that I have received urging me to reconsider my earlier decision and qualify for the Senate race."

"But I do not feel that this would be the proper thing for me to do."

Fire Erupted In Closet, Bedroom

Greenville firemen were called to 1907 East Fourth Street last night when fire erupted in a closet and bedroom of the dwelling.

Officers, who reported the blaze was reported at 11:08 p.m., said the fire was brought quickly under control.

Investigators reported the fire apparently erupted in a closet and spread to a bedroom, causing fire damage to the room and heavy smoke damage to the remainder of the dwelling.

The cause of the blaze is still under investigation, fire officials said.

No one was at home at the time the fire erupted, investigators noted.

SHRIMP CATCH — Docks along the Mississippi coast were scenes of activity Tuesday after the shrimping season opened at noon Monday. There were some reports that the shrimp were abundant. Fishermen were receiving as little as 57 cents per pound for the smallest shrimp, numbering 50-60 to the pound, while those numbering 21-25 per pound were bringing as much as 86 cents. Registering At Library

H. B. Sugg School summer library activities will begin with registration Monday. Registration will continue through Friday.

Participation is limited only to those students in kindergarten, TMR, and grades four and five who attended H. B. Sugg School this past year. Students from other area schools, as well as pre-registered kindergarten children will not be allowed to participate. Involvement in educational activities will be by individual registration only.

The program will be held in the school library and will include language experience, story telling, films and filmstrips, puppetry, games, leisure reading, dramatization, vocabulary and educational television.

Group activities will be held daily from 10-12 noon and 1-3 p.m., beginning Monday and ending August 4.

Parents are urged to give their children the opportunity to take advantage of the summer program so as to bridge the summer lag between academic sessions. The program is free. Bus transportation will not be available.

Misses Linda Mayo and Loraine Anderson will head the program.

Story Of Trapping An Unlikely Suspect Unfolds

By WILLIAM PRATER
Associated Press Writer

MASON, Mich. (AP) — Music teacher Duane Smith sat alone in his darkened home. He ignored a ringing telephone. Then a microphone in the garage picked up the sound of footsteps crunching in the snow.

Smith had hoped to catch the mysterious person who for three years had splattered noxious chemicals on the homes and cars of classical music instructors and students. He was startled by his quarry.

"Why Rosetta, what are you doing here?" Smith asked when he caught a locally prominent biochemist whose three children played in the Okemos High School orchestra.

Smith gave that account in his testimony at a preliminary hearing for Rosetta Reusch in Ingham County District Court, where she is charged with breaking and entering Smith's home with intent to commit felony.

The hearing was to resume today.

The only charges filed involve the break-in at Smith's home, but the prosecution contends she is responsible for more than 100 chemical attacks on about 20 families in Okemos.

an upper middle class community adjacent to Michigan State University.

Victims of the chemical attacks say they suffered nausea, blurred eyesight and a burning sensation in the throat from chemicals dumped into the air vents of their cars. Analysis of the chemicals revealed mercury, arsenic, zinc and lead.

None of the victims reported serious injury, but Smith says he still suffers nausea. Blood tests show his body contains too much mercury.

Some of the university town's cultural upper crust gathered in the courtroom Tuesday as the hearing began, some to speak against the woman who prosecutors say was jealous of students who sat higher in the orchestra than her own children.

Among those testifying were Smith, father of a violinist and a cellist who have won music scholarships; and a professor of violin who said he was fired as a tutor for Mrs. Reusch's son, Chris, after he suggested the boy needed more basic instruction.

Smith's family found chemicals in their car on almost a dozen occasions dating back to late 1976. Smith said he had found a pattern to the chemical dumpings: the victims were usually members of the close-knit classical music community and the vandalism was discovered after a family returned from a concert or recital.

On March 17, just after one of Smith's sons had been honored for musical achievements and his picture was printed in the newspaper, Smith's family went to a recital. He stayed home.

"I thought conditions were about right for a visit," recalled Smith. He rigged a microphone to transmit noises from the garage.

The microphone picked up approaching footsteps. The intruder's head appeared through a side door, then darted back as static erupted on the hidden microphone.

Smith said he ran into the garage and exclaimed: "Why Rosetta, what are you doing here?"

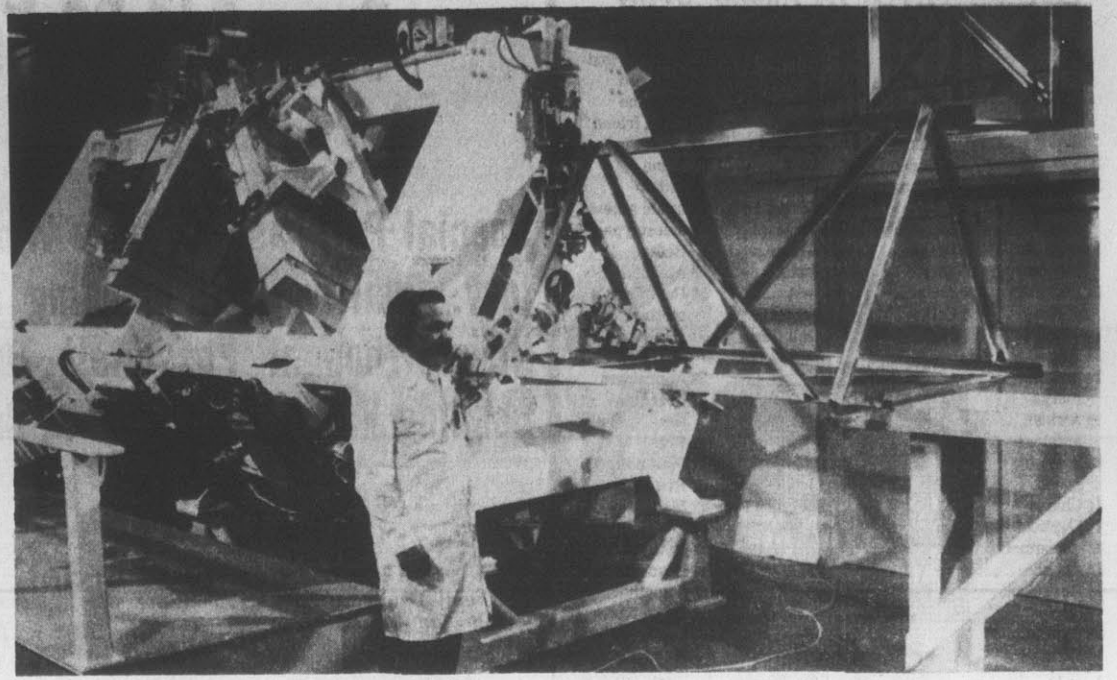

He said she replied: "It's not what you think. It's over. You won't be bothered again."

Smith said he photographed Mrs. Reusch in his garage and grabbed the arm of her coat to keep her from leaving.

Afterwards, the music teacher offered Mrs. Reusch tea, and they sat and talked until police arrived.

"I asked her why we were chosen (as targets for chemical attacks)," Smith recalled. "She said Marilyn Kessler (a music teacher) had picked on her kids ... and my kids picked on her kids. At recitals or something."

Mrs. Reusch has not yet entered a plea in the case. A short, refined-looking woman with slumped shoulders and dark circles under her eyes, she sat quietly throughout the hearing, making detailed notes along with her husband, William, also a Michigan State chemist.

Congress Keeps Baseball Habit

By ROBERT M. ANDREWS
Associated Press Writer

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — Speaker Clarence Cannon banned it as undignified. Speaker Sam Rayburn banned it as dangerous. But the annual congressional baseball game still survives, and the Republicans might as well have it banned as no contest.

Tuesday night, on a hot, muggy field in this Washington suburb, House Republicans trotted out their ace pitcher, William Cohen of Maine, to make mincemeat of the Democrats for the 14th time in the 17 years the current series has been played.

Cohen, firing wicked curves and steaming fast balls, subdued the hapless Democrats 4-3, despite a desperate challenge from Democrat Martin Russo of Illinois, who vainly tried twice to steal home in the sixth inning of the seven-inning game.

House GOP Leader John J. Rhodes of Arizona said wistfully afterward that he wished his party could do as well at the polls.

The Democrats sniffed victory behind pitcher Ron Mottl of Ohio for the first two innings, but their 3-2 lead turned into a tie in the third when Republican Lou Frey Jr. of Florida scored on a long single to left field by Gary Myers of Pennsylvania.

Paul N. "Pete" McCloskey of California scored the Republicans' winning run in the fifth inning when third baseman Russo overthrew first base. It was the second such feat in two years for McCloskey.

Russo's embarrassment turned to desperation under merciless heckling from GOP manager Silvio Conte of Massachusetts on the sidelines. In the next inning, Russo quickly slammed a single, then stole second and third.

Minutes later, with two out and the bases loaded, Russo tried to steal home but was ruled back. He tried again, but was tagged out in a cloud of dust at the plate.

From there on, Cohen coasted to victory. It was his finale on the mound — he is leaving the House to run this fall for the Senate seat held by William Hathaway of Maine — and manager Conte praised him later for pitching "a helluva game."

Democratic first baseman Walter Fauntroy, the House delegate from the District of Columbia, was top scorer of the evening with two runs.

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, asked for his professional appraisal of the playing, thought for a moment, smiled weakly and replied: "They both played very interesting baseball."

Orange County Referendum Call

HILLSBOROUGH, N.C. (AP) — The Orange County Board of Commissioners called Tuesday for a referendum on the liquor-by-the-drink.

The board suggested Sept. 12 as a possible date for a vote on the issue.

A date for the referendum will be decided by the county Board of Elections.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

What Causes Heartburn?

Everything that I eat turns to acid. Twenty minutes after I eat almost anything, I get heartburn which lasts until I get some medicine in me. I've tried every one of them. But I'm looking for one that will prevent the heartburn. — Mrs. L.L., Va. Dear Mrs. L.:

"Everything I eat turns to acid" is a misconception. This self-made explanation for your heartburn has served only to keep you from a thorough investigation of your problem.

It must be obvious by now that taking antacids may relieve your distress, but it certainly is not the answer to your fundamental problem.

Hydrochloric acid and digestive juices are manufactured mostly in the stomach. There is a small muscle, or sphincter, that normally keeps the acid and the juices in the stomach. Sometimes, the acid finds its way through the sphincter into the lower end of the esophagus, the tube through which food passes from mouth to the stomach. This is known as "reflux." It is responsible for the chronic complaint of heartburn. It is suggested that reflux can be caused by lifting heavy objects, by slumping in a chair after a heavy meal, by overdistention of the stomach with large meals, wearing tight girdles or belts, by overindulgence in alcohol and tobacco or by swallowing air while eating. A hiatus hernia or ulcers of the stomach and upper intestine may also account for persistent heartburn. With so many possible causes of heartburn, the time now is ripe for you to find out the reason for your distress. Antacids will temporarily relieve your discomfort, but if you're interested in preventing the heartburn, you and your doctor must coordinate your efforts to pinpoint the exact reason for your chronic complaint.

I tripped and fell and was taken to the emergency room of a local hospital. Would you believe that I was taken care of by a man who was not even an M.D.? — Miss D.F.R., Ohio. Dear Miss R.:

You did not say anywhere in your letter how well you were treated. I must assume that your complete recovery was therefore a testimonial to the excellent attention and care given to you by a "paramedic." The demands of modern medicine are so great that many time-consuming routine responsibilities are now being assigned to the well-trained personnel known as "paramedic assistants." These paramedics do not have the M.D. degree, but they have undergone rigorous training and supervision.

Their competence and skill have made it possible to relieve doctors of many of the lesser burdens that compromise their time. An important part of the paramedic training is to know exactly their limitations and when to call the doctor for special help and consultation. The paramedics play a vital role in the health team.

DR. COLEMAN welcomes letters from readers. Please write to him in care of this newspaper.

Billions Lost By Consumers

NEW YORK (UPI) — Crimes against business — white collar crime — cost American consumers between $30 and $40 billion a year, according to a recent survey by American Management Associations.

These crimes, which the study says have reached epidemic proportions, include embezzlement, employee pilferage, shoplifting, guest theft, commercial bribery and insurance fraud.

Law enforcement experts know less about these offenses than any other kind of crime and prosecution is rare even for those caught in the act.

ISN'T IT ROMANTIC

If you like to lose yourself in romantic fantasy, rejoice. From the glitter and splendour of the Edwardian Era (1901-1910) comes this nostalgic collection of Apothecary furniture styled for today's living. Isn't it looooooove-ly! These creations by award-winning designer Leonard Eisen are from the golden age of King Edward VII who gave his name to a glorious chapter in British history when there was lightness and gaiety and dancing 'til dawn. Utterly fanciful! Charming delights! Apothecary takes its name from the old fashioned English chemist shoppe. You'll love the contemporary, rich, warm burnished brown distressed maple. The collection is scaled to harmonize as accent pieces with your present decor. Or, as a room full of lighter, fanciful furniture. There are partitioned drawers—so convenient for storing reminders. Drawer fronts carry individual antiqued brass plates with the names of fifteen exotic-sounding remedies that might be from the time of Dickens: helleborous, mandragora and others. Multi-facet crystal drawer-pulls tailor these classics. Our manufacturer uses 21 finishing steps to make each piece in this collection a gem. Best of all, Apothecary is so practical. You'll want to be the first to have these romantic Edwardian treasures. After all, who says you can't live like a king!

Training Suggested By Doctor

By DALE SINGER
ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Women need only one thing to compete successfully with men in most sports — proper preparation. That's the view of Dr. Lyle J. Micheli, a Harvard physician and director of sports medicine at the Children's Hospital Medical Center in Boston. Micheli is watching the growing participation of women and children in sports — and the growing number of injuries that result. He wants all athletes to spend more time training to reduce the frequency and severity of their injuries.

Any athletic activity, even simple running or throwing, results in small strains of muscles. Without proper preparation, Micheli said, these injuries can lead to more severe hurts.

"In any sports activity you have to prepare with slow, progressive activity," he said at a sports medicine symposium sponsored by St. Louis University. "If you get women who began running without the proper preparation, you're going to have a rash of injuries. You can count on it."

Micheli said many women who take up distance running suffer knee injuries. He compared the situation to 10 years ago when women began increased involvement in downhill skiing. Many were injured, he said, because they went too far too fast.

"Now you don't see so many skiing injuries, simply because the women have learned to ski. They've prepared properly."

Where sheer force is a factor, women are at a disadvantage because of size, Micheli said. But he sees no physical reason why most sports cannot be coed. So far, he said, cultural factors have been the biggest barrier for women.

"It's more nurture than nature," he said. In some sports the women may have an edge, he added.

"Women's bodies generally have more fat, and there is some evidence they may be able to use that fat better than men. It may be that women can do better than men in long endurance sports, such as runs of 50 miles or longer."

As the father of two daughters — a 12-year-old who rides and jumps and a 6-year-old budding gymnast — Micheli's interest in women's sports also extends to proper training of children.

"We're not looking closely enough at what we are doing when we organize all these sports for kids. We may be subjecting them to too much stress at an early age."

"Sports stems from play, but children's play gets them out of the adult world, into an area of fantasy that is not adult-organized. Adults must realize how impressionable these children are and how sensitive an area this is."

Micheli said the era of pickup games has ended because of stiff competition for playing time and space in sports such as hockey. He wants to make sure that the training is professional.

"Our most susceptible athletes are being trained by our least competent trainers. They're well meaning — no one wants to do wrong by kids — but we have to organize things better if we stay with the system of community-based sports."

As for children and women invading the traditionally male-dominated sports world, Micheli suggests ballet as the best possible training.

"Ballet has learned to bring people along slowly," he said. "In some schools you have to be in training three or four years before you ever get up on your toes. It teaches flexibility, endurance and technique. If you want to have a child who's a good basketball player, have him take ballet."

'Animal Bird' At North Pole

SYLVANIA, Ohio (AP) — A child approached Jim Marshall at the public library here and requested a book on "animal birds."

Perplexed, the librarian asked if he wanted a book about birds and animals. The answer was no.

Did he want a book about animals? He did not.

Well, was this book about some special kind of bird? No, the youngster said impatiently, it was a book about Animal Bird, the man who went to the North Pole.

Marshall found him a biography of Admiral Byrd.

Consider Attempt Transplant Tin y Snail Darter

By MATT YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
VONORE, Tenn. (AP) — The Interior Department and the Tennessee Valley Authority are now considering transplanting a tiny fish that has blocked a $119-million dam to another river, officials say.

Moving the 1,500 snail darters in the Little Tennessee River to another stream is being weighed as one alternative for completing TVA's Tellico Dam project. Assistant Interior Secretary Robert Herbst said Tuesday.

Herbst made the remarks as residents in the three counties surrounding the dam complained about the government's insensitivity to the local people since the project was begun in 1966.

Former landowners said TVA promised the project would bring industry and jobs when the government took 38,000 acres of their land for a lake to be impounded behind the reservoir.

With the project 95 percent completed and $107 million of the money already spent, they said they couldn't understand why it was being halted by a three-inch fish not discovered until five years ago.

"I saw grown men cry when TVA took their places," Ralph Patton, pastor of a Vonore church, said. "The people are getting fed up with this baloney," he said, citing the vote two weeks ago in California to reduce property taxes.

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled last Thursday that TVA could not close the dam's gates because it would destroy the home of the snail darter, which is protected by the 1973 Endangered Species Act.

"It seems like ever since World War II, the government's been starting things that it never finishes," said Kenneth Watson of Madisonville. "We're getting tired of our tax dollars being wasted."

Watson was one of about 500 people, most of them favoring completion of the lake, who spoke to Herbst and TVA Chairman S. David Freeman in a sometimes rowdy hearing at Madisonville High School.

Herbst said transplanting the snail darter is only one of the alternatives being considered. Others include returning the land to the farmers and allowing the concrete structure to remain in place as a "dry dam" for use only in cases of severe flooding.

"I can't promise you what the answer will ultimately be," he said. "There's a full array of concerns and no consensus of opinion on what would be best economically."

Until Freeman succeeded Aubrey Wagner as TVA's chairman last month, the government utility has refused to consider any alternative other than completing the project with the lake.

The Interior Department the past two years has taken a similar stiff stand on the opposite side, refusing TVA's requests to transplant the darters remaining in the Little Tennessee to the neighboring Holston, Hiwassee or other rivers.

"That impasse is over," Herbst said. "The two agencies are cooperating and we've resolved to come up with a recommendation to Congress by Aug. 10."

Farmers who asked their land be returned and environmentalists who opposed the project were booed and shouted down by the dam's supporters, many wearing bumper stickers saying "Let's get rid of dry-dam Freeman" across their foreheads or on their chests.

At Vonore, Postmaster Charles Monday said a large new post office built to serve 5,000 families because TVA predicted an influx of 5,000 new families lost $5,500 last year because it still is serving only 700 families.

"The one thing I've learned is that the people have been promised a lot by TVA and not much has been delivered," Freeman said. "I don't think the industrial development is going to happen automatically whether you have a lake or not."

Cherokee Indians repeated their opposition to the project because it would flood 11 cities of their ancestors. Among them are Tenasi, the namesake for Tennessee; Chota, the one-time capital of the Cherokee Nation, and Tuskegee, the birthplace of their greatest chief, Sequoyah.

"The Cherokees began to be forced out of the valley from the time of the American Revolution," said Duane King, curator of a Cherokee museum on the tribe's North Carolina reservation. "The Little Tennessee Valley has the same attraction to the Cherokees that Israel has to the Jews."

Meanwhile, Herbst said he did not think a bill by Sens. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., and John Culver, D-Iowa, to amend the Endangered Species Act would affect the Tellico project one way or the other if it is passed.

The bill would establish a seven-member, Cabinet-level committee to exempt projects from the law if at least five of its members felt the public good outweighed the value of the endangered species.

"The law's not needed," Herbst said. "We've had 5,000 cases in which there have been potential conflicts and all but three of them, including the snail darter, have been resolved without detriment to the project or the species."

May Become Reluctant Radio Network Owner

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The University of North Carolina may soon be the reluctant owner and operator of a statewide, public-financed FM radio network.

The General Assembly, in its closing days last week, enacted a measure appropriating $125,000 to the university to design a statewide radio system and report back to the legislature next year.

The project has been pushed by Rep. William H. McMillan, D-Iredell, who said he hopes to gain enough money from the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, private foundations and next year's General Assembly to get the network on the air.

"My idea was to use some of the university's television equipment now in use and see if we couldn't set up a system that would reach across state," McMillan, a Statesville lawyer, said. "Time is pretty important because these educational frequencies are being grabbed up quickly."

In 1975 the legislature approved a resolution offered by McMillan urging UNC officials to study a non-commercial radio network, but the UNC administration has not endorsed the project since then.

"It's just something that we didn't ask for," said Jay Jenkins, special assistant to UNC President William C. Friday. "It wasn't our baby, and we're in the dark over it."

John Young, director of television at UNC-Chapel Hill, said the university has not supported the plan because it believes public radio is best left to local stations.

"We have not advocated a parallel state radio network. But we haven't opposed it," Young said. "My own personal feeling is public radio should be developed across the state to a greater extent than it is now, but at a local level."

McMillan originally sought $1.76 million to completely equip the system and begin operation. That was reduced by legislative budget committees, and the $125,000 appropriation for the coming fiscal year was cut from a $5.8 million capital appropriation to the UNC tele-

Seeks Probe Of Dunn Fire

DUNN, N.C. (AP) — Police Chief B.P. Jones says he plans to ask the State Bureau of Investigation to help local authorities determine whether arson was the cause of a fire that resulted in about $500,000 in damages Monday night.

Jones said a preliminary investigation "turned up enough evidence to make us believe an arsonist is responsible."

The blaze destroyed two warehouses and threatened to engulf a number of other businesses in Dunn before about 200 firemen from 14 area fire departments brought it under control early Tuesday morning.

The first alarm was turned in about 11 p.m. Monday when the blaze was discovered in a corner of Lee's Planters tobacco warehouse about six blocks from the downtown area.

There were no injuries, but at least two firemen were treated for smoke inhalation.

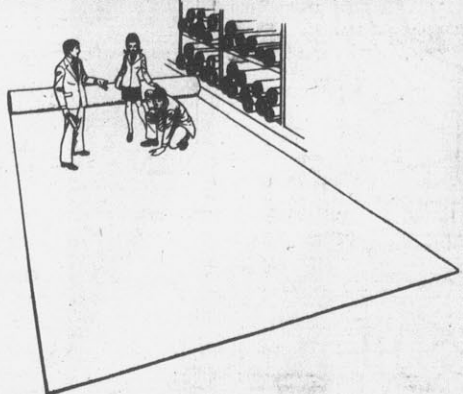

Leland Lee, owner of the two warehouses, estimated it would cost more than $350,000 to replace the two buildings. Also destroyed were 6,000 tobacco sheets and stocks of fertilizer, furniture, building materials and chemicals that were in the warehouses.

Mayor Abe Elmore said the fire was accompanied by a series of explosions, apparently of chemicals stored in the tobacco warehouse, that could be heard at his home three miles away.

"I think the firemen did an outstanding job in fighting this thing," Elmore said.

Commentary On Faddish Language In Lush Living

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — It's a pity NBC's Edwin Newman never saw the "Doonesbury" comic about a laid-back author of a book called "Mellow: How to Get It." But he's done the next best thing.

He spent a week in what some call the world's mellow capital — lovely, wealthy Marin County north of San Francisco — for a July 20 NBC News special entitled: "I Want It All Now."

Newman found himself going with the flow in such hamlets as Mill Valley, Tiburon, Belvedere and Larkspur.

He inspected a way of life espousing hot baths in redwood tubs, fine wine, jogging, mental therapy, and mandatory serenity marred only by an occasional primal scream in the night.

What particularly fascinated the noted author of two books on language was all the "psycho-babble," phrases born in psychology, raised at the analyst's and now home-staying in mellow Marin.

Newman had this to say about the joint:

"It struck me as a place where the most vague, unspecified, fashionable, faddish language is employed, often to no purpose other than to make a sound, a noise, not to convey any information."

"And I think there's some logic to it, because so much of what is engaged in out there is, of its nature, unspecified. A good deal of it borders on mysticism, if not faith."

He had reference to therapy or encounter-group alumni who speak of "my space," "getting in touch with myself," "parenting," "self-actualizing," and the biggie, "owning my power."

"I'm not entirely certain what that means," Newman mused. "But I think what they want it to mean is that you understand what you can do and are able to do it."

He was asked if he saw any one self-actualize in public.

"There were some who came close to it," he shrugged. "A favorite word out there is 'nurture' and it's popular to combine it with 'self,' so you have a self-nurturing experience."

"A sufficient amount of self-nurturing no doubt will lead to self-actualization," Newman, emphasizing there are many serious, sensible folks who don't talk this way in mellow Marin, thinks those who do have "entered the realm of pop psychology. In this realm, the expression, 'to come from your feelings rather than your head,' is valued above all."

Is this all fresco noodlework due to the water there or what?

Newman's theory: Great climate, scenery, wealth and considerable leisure time has provoked many young, middle-aged and ancient Mariners to go calling on themselves and see if anyone's home.

In case you wonder where Ed is coming from, where his head is at, he — or at least his voice — was coming from the phone at his office in New York.

That's where his head was at when interviewed.

Tough Going For Italians

ROME (UPI) — Italy's winning films at the Cannes Film Festival the past two years are having difficulties at home because of language problems.

This year's Cannes Golden Palm winner, "Tree of the Clouds," was filmed in the dialect of the northern town of Bergamo, which theater owners estimate only about 30 percent of their patrons can understand.

Last year's winner, "Padre Padrone" (Father, Master), was filmed in Sardinian dialect and theater owners said many Italian patrons needed the picture's French subtitles to understand it.

The bidding:
North East South West
1 NT Pass 2 ♣ Dble.
Rdble. Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: Queen of ♣.

There is an irresistible desire on the part of some players to make themselves heard at the table. That can prove to be very expensive.

After North opened one no trump, South decided to employ the Stayman Convention to check on whether his side had a 4-4 heart fit. West thought it would be nice to get a club lead if North were declarer, so he doubled. North redoubled to show a strong club holding, and South decided that, with his club filler and good hand, he would just as soon play in two clubs redoubled as anywhere else. As the cards lie, North-South can make a slam in hearts, but there was no way they were going to bid it. In fact, by playing two clubs redoubled, they scored more than the vulnerable slam!

West led the queen of hearts, won by the king. The jack of spades was covered by the king and won by the ace. With an announced trump stack at his left, declarer was in no hurry to touch trumps. He led the queen of diamonds, East put up the king and declarer won.

Declarer cashed the ace of hearts and queen of spades, then entered his hand with the ten of spades. Next he cashed the jack of diamonds, his seventh trick, and continued with the ten.

West could do no better than ruff with the eight, and a heart was discarded. West cached the queen of hearts (it would not have helped East to ruff) and now he was forced to lead a trump, which ran to declarer's queen. After finessing the jack of trumps, declarer took the club ace and conceded the last trick to West's high trump.

In all, declarer collected ten tricks, so he scored two redoubled overtricks. Declarer netted 800 for the overtricks, 160 for two clubs redoubled and 50 for insult. Add to that 700 for the rubber, and the total on the hand was 1710!

Your play to the first trick could decide the fate of the contract! A writer once remarked: "There's no such thing as a blind opening lead, only deaf opening leaders!" GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day when it would not be advisable to take on any new ventures of importance and make sure that you protect long-time interests. Use common sense to gain your aims.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Following the suggestions of higher-ups now will be to your benefit. Be sure to use extreme caution in motion at this time.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Make sure you first check those new ideas with higher-ups and get their okay before you put them in operation.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) It's important now you carry through with promises made to others. Show more thoughtfulness at home and increase harmony.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) It is wise to go along with the ideas of an associate for good results later on. Avoid one who opposes you. Think constructively.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Complete the work you have started before you take on any more. Taking health treatments can improve your appearance.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Engage in new amusements you like, but count the cost. Being more objective now can help you gain your aims.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Be careful not to argue at home or you could regret it later. Obtain the financial advice you need from business expert. Make plans to engage in favorite hobby with congenials.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Think of ways to have increased abundance in the days ahead. Steer clear of a close tie who could give you emotional stress.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Monetary affairs are vital to your welfare at this time and you can handle them most intelligently. Express happiness.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) If you persevere in what you are doing now, you make progress, even though you think you are not doing so.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A good day to think about some new plan for the near future that is worthwhile. Sidestep a troublemaker.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Analyze your long-time aims so you will know how best to proceed in order to gain them. Seek the support of higher-ups.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will appear to be somber early in life but upon reaching maturity will adopt a lighter vein and be a happier person. Religious teaching must start early for best results. Be sure to give the best education you can afford.

Mother Lives In A Deep Coma

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Pictures scattered about the hospital room show a smiling baby girl, but the emaciated woman lying in the bed gives no sign of recognizing her daughter.

Doctors say Laurie Goforth, 18, never has recognized her daughter and probably never will.

Mrs. Goforth gave birth to Susan Michelle last Jan. 8 while in a coma. About two weeks earlier, her husband, Ricky, had rushed her 50 miles in an ambulance to a hospital after she suffered a heart attack.

"Late at night when I think about Laurie, I wonder if she's ever going to come out of her coma, and when," Ricky says softly. "I'm not bitter at what happened to her. It could happen to anybody."

Susan, Michelle is 5 months old now. Her grandmother, Mrs. A.L. Butcher, says pediatricians have found the brown-haired, blue-eyed baby normal in every way.

"Each day, I show Susan pictures of Laurie, but she's too little to realize what's happened yet," Mrs. Butcher says through tears. "I'm the only mother she's ever known."

Since Laurie was hospitalized Dec. 18, her husband quit his job as an apprentice machinist and found work in this Panhandle city, 50 miles from their home in Borger. A small apartment near Northwest Texas Hospital is now his home during the cruel vigil.

At 21, Ricky Goforth has a wife who may never again call his name, a daughter living 50 miles away with her grandparents and $24,000 in mostly unpaid hospital bills.

Benefit dances and rodeos in Borger have raised about $2,000 toward the Goforth's expenses. An insurance policy taken out five days before the heart attack that brought on Laurie's coma was canceled.

"There is no way Ricky can pay for everything," said Mrs. Butcher. "Not unless he works until he's about 75. We went to Social Security and they sent one $50 check but that was all. They stopped because they said the hospital was state-county assisted. Medicaid did the same thing."

Laurie now shares a room with two other comatose patients. Dr. Louis Finney, a neurosurgeon, says there is almost no hope she will ever escape her dream-like state.

"I've never sent them a bill," says Finney. "This is just one of those public service things you do when it's necessary."

Goforth visits his wife almost daily. Her eyes follow him when he enters the room, but doctors say it is just a reaction to the light change. Goforth is convinced the childhood sweetheart he married still recognizes him.

"I keep telling myself she's going get better," he says. "She's got to. I hope for it. I pray for it."

See Example In Maryland

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Spurred by a recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling, members of the North Carolina Service Station Association are planning to renew their fight for a state law to prohibit oil companies from operating service stations.

The court upheld the constitutionality of a Maryland law barring petroleum producers or refiners from operating service stations there. The statute had been challenged by five oil companies, Exxon, Shell, Gulf, Continental and Ashland.

Independent service station operators in North Carolina have long favored a law such as the one in Maryland, and Rep. Mark Short, D-Guilford, proposed similar legislation last year. The bill was defeated by a two-vote margin.

"We will contact our legislators and tell them we would like to see a law like this passed, although for us to get something accomplished at the state level will be difficult," said Robert Dugan, head of the Guilford chapter of the service station association.

Ray Edwards, president of the association, said several members of the General Assembly have promised to support such legislation next year. "We are confident that something will be done with the bill this time," Edwards said.

But a spokesman for an oil company said the industry will fight any move to exclude major oil producers from operation of service stations. He said such legislation would hurt consumers because it would "create another profit level" and force a rise in gasoline prices.

Officials said enactment of legislation proposed by the association would force major oil companies to sell or lease more than 80 company-operated stations in the state.

Keep A Low Car Boiling Point

NEW YORK (UPI) — Summer heat and traffic jams can raise your boiling point as well as your cars, but it doesn't have to happen.

Car air-conditioning puts extra stress on daily performance, says an antifreeze-coolant manufacturer. One preventive measure he recommends: drain the car's cooling system, flush it and refill with fresh anti-freeze-coolant at a 50 percent minimum concentration once a year. This guards against engine boilover by raising the system's boiling point.

The manufacturer also recommends checking the condition of the radiator cap. If it is more than two years old, it should be replaced because it probably has lost its ability to hold pressure securely. If so, the coolant's boiling point is lowered and boilovers on the highway can result.

Prof Studies Hamburger's Role

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — Irwin Feller studies hamburgers. Some colleagues snicker about his academic appetite, but the federal government takes it seriously.

"I've spent a good portion of the last two years defending my professional status around here," chuckled the Penn State University professor, proud owner of a three-dimensional Big Mac puzzle.

"If I was studying energy, everybody could understand. But a lot of hamburger? ..."

Feller, an economist, is director of Penn State's Institute of Policy Planning and Evaluation, which has been studying the nation's ground beef industry for two years.

The institute was recently awarded a $428,000 National Science Foundation grant to continue its work in evaluating the cost and benefit of government regulation in the hamburger business.

The study will look at rules for producing and selling hamburger, from safety regulations in slaughter houses to truth-in-advertising laws affecting such things as fat content and burger weight.

"The question is how do you develop a procedure to estimate the benefits consumers, producers and workers receive from federal, state and local regulations and what are the costs?" said Feller.

"Not only that, but what groups bear the costs of regulation and what groups get the benefits?"

The institute previously concluded that America's taste for ground beef is growing. Consumption in 1975 totaled between 6.9 billion and 7.6 billion pounds, up nearly 50 percent in a decade.

"Truly, the United States has become a hamburger society, and the ground beef industry deserves serious study and attention," its first report said.

It noted that 22 percent of the beef consumed in the United States during 1975 was ground-up from 18 percent just three years earlier.

Feller thinks the popularity of fast-food chains explains the increase, and adds there is evidence the nation's meat regulators are not geared to this developing system of food supply.

"I'm not saying that they're handling it poorly or that the hamburger you get in McDonald's or Burger King is not as good," he said. "It's just that you find less government regulation."

"We want to find out if there's a better way to handle regulation," Feller explained.

The new study is actually the second phase of a Penn State research project, which is part of a larger NSF examination of government regulation. The first phase was designed to outline a method for determining the costs and benefits of regulations.

A preliminary estimate of the impact of one regulation — the federal Wholesome Meat Inspection Act — placed the cost of enforcement and compliance at nearly $33.5 million.

Quotas on foreign beef imports are likely to have an equal impact, Feller said.

"The impact on the market price is very small, less than a cent a pound," he said. "By itself that's not important, however. If the benefits are small, it may still be a waste."

SANCTUARY

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Encouraged by initial success in helping wildlife, two California-based organizations have announced plans to establish a wildlife sanctuary in the southern Sierra.

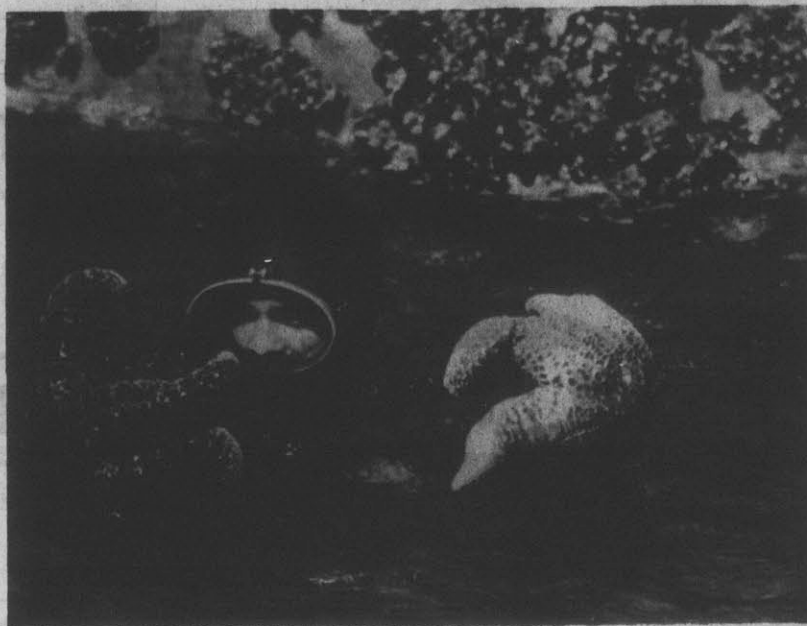

Dr. Loren Lutz, president of the Society for the Conservation of Bighorn Sheep, said his organization and the California Society for the Care and Protection of Wildlife plan to purchase 34,000 acres of wildland in eastern Kern County.

System Solves Both Problems

MARLOW, England (UPI) — Why does a large building need both heating and cooling at the same time?

Because on a cold day the occupants of outside rooms are chilly, and those in the center are uncomfortably warm from the heat generated by lights, machinery and human bodies.

The new Bisham Abbey National Sports Center here solves both problems with one system. Two chillers built by York Europe keep inside spaces cool, and the hot water their operation generates is used to heat areas on the building's perimeter. This reduces energy consumption by as much as 64 percent compared with most systems, which don't utilize the hot water.

STAR WAR — A diver surfaces with two large starfish near a mussel-encrusted leg of an offshore oil drilling platform (rear). Chevron has been experimenting off Santa Barbara, Calif., with the starfish which feeds on the shellfish. By removing a barrier of prickly-spined sea anemones that sting the feet of the starfish, the starfish would have easy access to its dinner. (AP Laserphoto)

Missionaries In Rhodesia Appear A Special Target

By MAUREEN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

BULAWAYO, Rhodesia (AP) — It was night in the Rhodesian bush and Gunvor Pallson, a Swedish schoolmistress, was in her bungalow when the dreaded knock sounded at her door.

It was the first inkling of another guerrilla attack on another school, a death notice for two more missionary teachers.

When the 10 to 15 gunmen finished their raid, two young British women teachers were dead, caught in a single burst of automatic weapons fire. Miss Pallson, the 37-year-old vice principal of the Salvation Army's secondary school for black girls, survived with minor wounds.

The raid was the latest in a series of attacks on bush stations that left 19 white missionaries dead and closed dozens of mission schools and hospitals since December 1976. It was then that the retired Roman Catholic bishop of Bulaw wayo, Adolph Schmitt, 72, and two nuns were shot to death on a lonely road — the first to die in the guerrilla campaign against white missionaries.

The Salvation Army school had been kept open after guerrilla threats or raids closed four major missions run by the Roman Catholic, Anglican and Methodist churches in the surrounding area of southwest Rhodesia.

The raids and abductions of pupils occur in areas infiltrated by guerrillas of nationalist leader Joshua Nkomo and his political ally, Robert Mugabe.

The effect of the six-year guerrilla war on the vastly more numerous schools run by the government's black councils has been even greater.

Tony Smith, in charge of the government's still-segregated black state school system, says guerrillas have forced the closing of about 800 schools, and thrown 200,000 children — a fifth of the expected enrollment — out of class. Forty-five black teachers employed by the councils have been killed.

But to the Christian churches, the attacks are a cruel and puzzling response to nine decades of spreading literacy, medical care and Christian beliefs among 6.7 million blacks. In recent years missionaries have endorsed greater rights for blacks in Rhodesia.

Some churchmen claim the raids are an outgrowth of the indoctrination they say communist countries have handed guerrillas along with arms: wipe out Christianity before making Rhodesia a black-run, Marxist state.

Others maintain that many young militants look upon missionaries as people who brought Christianity and education but tampered with tribal tradition, although well meaning, and instilled a sense of inferiority for some about Africa's past.

Hardest hit has been Rhodesia's missionary giant, the Roman Catholic Church. All but three of the slain white missionaries were Catholics. Guerrilla activity has forced the closure of nine of 38 major black Catholic secondary schools, including some of the oldest in the country.

The church pioneered biracial education in Rhodesia by desegregating its white schools about 15 years ago.

At its missionary peak, before a state ruling 10 years ago forced churches to hand over most mission primary schools to local councils, the Catholic Church controlled the education of about 200,000 children.

The Catholic hierarchy also has been the most outspoken critic of the white-minority government, replaced three months ago as a prelude to black rule by a biracial interim administration, which has not been accepted by the guerrilla leaders.

In the past year and a half, 11 Catholic priests and nuns have been deported — five fewer than the number whose deaths the military blame on guerrillas.

"There are some guerrilla insurgents who are much in favor of the Catholic Church as having stood up for the rights of the oppressed," the Rev. Richard Randolph, British Jesuit secretary of the Catholic Bishops Conference, said in an interview.

"There are other insurgents who have an antipathy for all organized Christianity, particularly the highly organized Christianity of the Roman Catholic Church," he added.

Anglican Bishop Robert Mercer of Matabeleland, whose vast diocese includes all of southwest Rhodesia, discerns a deliberate campaign against the churches.

"Their (the guerrillas') instructions are that a Marxist utopia is imminent," he said. "In this there must be no divided loyalties. Therefore the church and missions must be destroyed."

Mercer added that everytime

a school is closed, "it is a victory for the terrorists and it means more children without risking the lives of other people's children."

Radio Club To Join Field Day

This will be the eleventh year for the Brightleaf Amateur Radio Club to participate in the national field day competition, sponsored by the American Radio League. It will be held on the campus of Pitt Technical Institute.

Again this year the call to be used during the operations is the club call, W4AMC. In addition to the multitransmitter set-up, there will be a beginners (Novice) operation and another call-sign will be used. This operating position will be set up and operated only by Novice and Technician class licensees.

Chairman Wayne Ross, and co-chairman Lee Hemink advise plans are progressing and the antennae will be erected Saturday morning. The competition will be a twenty-four hour operation, ending Sunday afternoon.

BARC was organized in 1967 and has reported progress through the years with one of the projects being to prepare the amateur radio operators for emergencies that may arise when amateur communication facilities may be needed. During the field day, emergency power will be solely used, and no commercial power will be permitted. Both Morse code and voice operation will be utilized in the exercise with several transmitters operating simultaneously on different frequency bands.

Mayor Percy Cox has proclaimed the week of June 19-25 as Amateur Radio Week in recognition of the services performed and emergency preparations of the Brightleaf Amateur Radio Club. The public has been invited to visit Pitt Tech and observe the operations.

Communists In World Exceed 70 Million

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — According to Richard Staar, associate director of the Hoover Institution at Stanford University, an estimated or claimed membership in Communist countries around the world topped 70 million last year, an increase of 5.5 million over 1976.

Communist China reported an increase of five million members and now accounts for 35 million, half the world's total Communist regimes in Eastern Europe reported a gain of 500,000 party members, mainly in the Soviet Union. Total membership now is about 28 million, including 16 million Soviet communists.

The American Communist Party claims 18,000 members, an increase of 3,000 "but this figure is probably inflated," said Staar in the introduction of the 1978 Yearbook on International Communist Affairs, the 12th in an annual series published by Hoover.

Lots Of Plastic In 1978 Autos

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — More than half a billion pounds of fiber glass-reinforced plastics (FRP) will be used in American-made vehicles this year.

Owens-Corning Fiberglass Corp., a producer of fiber glass reinforcements for plastics, estimates that 541 million pounds of FRP will go into U.S. vehicles in 1978, a gain of 10.5 percent over the expected total for this year and 29.5 percent over the total used in 1976.

Life Becoming More Difficult For The Smokers

By ANNE ZUSY
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "Smoking should be confined to consenting adults in private."

"I don't spit in your face, please don't blow smoke in mine."

As these slogans from a national anti-smokers' campaign suggest, life is becoming more difficult for smokers as their habit clashes with ever more outspoken non-smokers. The non-smokers are beyond the dirty look stage and do not hesitate to speak sharply on planes, buses or restaurants. Sometimes arguments get fiery.

More and more, it also is becoming illegal for smokers to light up in public. Only eight states are without some kind of ban on smoking in public places, anti-smoking forces say. Some 100 cities, 25 counties and 15 universities have separate rules against it. And more bills against smoking are expected before legislatures this year.

On the federal level, the Civil Aeronautics Board is considering a ban on pipe and cigar smoking on airliners. The board is tied 2-2 and the fifth member has asked for more time to study the question. Should the ban pass, a rule against all smoking on airplanes would be proposed, opened to public comment and probably voted on next year.

Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano, an outspoken non-smoker after years of cigarettes, supports a total ban on airplane smoking and has pledged to help cure the country's "most preventable health problem."

And though he thinks "education and not regulation" is the answer, he said in an interview, the bans against smoking in public places "are a healthy trend."

They prevent those who object from becoming "involuntary smokers," he said. "Consenting adults can smoke in their own home."

Califano also said the smoking bans mesh with his proposed $30 million anti-smoking campaign for fiscal 1979 and the new HEW division on smoking and health. He said he does not object to the "freedom to smoke ... But I am saying we've got to put money into education to combat the tobacco industry's image of the Marlboro man and the glamorous woman."

Others are trying to do the same. There is ASH, the 10-year-old, Washington-based Action on Smoking and Health, which is fighting to increase existing bans. There are the American Cancer Society and state lung associations, which are preparing new anti-smoking commercials to be broadcast this summer.

On the other side there are the industry-backed Tobacco Institute in Washington and Smokers United, a new group in New York pledged to fight "obnoxious and tyrannical" smoking bans, HEW proposals and other proposed anti-smoking regulations.

James Stewart, director of the new group, said in an interview that the anti-smoking laws are "simply unconstitutional." The "campaign against the anti-smoking campaign will be used as a focal point to say 'stop all this anti-everything legislation,'" he said.

Stewart, chairman of an insurance brokerage firm, said his group now has fewer than 200 members. "Two dozen or so are non-smokers," he said, adding that the group "has no connection whatsoever" with the Tobacco Institute.

Non-smokers, Stewart added, "can live their lives by avoiding places with smokers if they so choose. I'm going to continue refusing to give up anything, because this is an invasion of my individual rights."

ASH director John Bahnza disagreed. "There is an old legal maxim — my right to swing my fist ends where your nose begins," he said, adding that smokers are "not given a constitutionally protected right, but a privilege."

One third of all American adults older than 21 are smokers, according to government statistics. Federal regulations now ban smoking on buses, planes and trains except within specified areas. The government also prohibits smoking in coal mines, oil and gas wells and caves.

Caves became off-limits after a study showed that cave guides and other employees who smoke on the job faced a higher risk of cancer because of the combination of smoking and high radiation levels in the caves. The high levels were found to pose no danger to visitors.

State laws range from bans against smoking in "all but the back 20 percent of seats on buses" in the tobacco state of Virginia, to the Clean Air Act of Minnesota, which prohibits smoking in all public meetings and public places except bars.

Bans in other states and cities cover everything in between. Some laws ban smoking in certain stores or in all stores, in elevators, in churches and in schools. Among oddities, it is illegal to smoke in bed in Independence, Mo., and in Indianapolis. In Montgomery County, Md., the ban includes opera houses, of which there are none. In Sacramento, Calif., smoking is banned in shops except those selling tobacco.

State or local laws require mandatory non-smoking restaurant sections in Alaska, Arkansas, California, Michigan, Minnesota, North Dakota and Utah. Such a law takes effect in New Jersey early next year, and 17 other states are considering similar legislation. Some restaurants and businesses have voluntarily created smoking and no-smoking areas.

Meanwhile, all sides on the public smoking issue agree that enforcement is next to impossible. But even their agreement prompts different reactions.

"The point of these laws is not to make criminals out of smokers," explained Jim Mulrooney, a director of Minnesota's Lung Association. "What we hope to do is consciousness-raising — to get people to realize that sometimes their smoking seriously bothers others."

The anti-smoking campaign "has prompted ... a consciousness raising for smokers," agreed Connie Drath of the Tobacco Institute. And smokers "must acknowledge the fact that there are those who object to it. We recognize that."

But, she added, the advocates of non-smoking are trying to enact laws "that turn smokers into criminals. And that we don't like. We'd rather that non-smoking be a matter of common courtesy."

Simpler Life In Monastery

CONYERS, Ga. (AP) — The Trappist monk was wearing a T-shirt and slacks as he worked in the greenhouse.

"I think they expect to find us behind bars," he said, referring to visitors at the Monastery of the Holy Ghost, where he and 64 other monks are spending their lives dedicated to God.

"They seem to ask us, 'Why do you stay here?'" said the monk, Brother Francis Michael. Others ask, "Aren't you people celibate?" or "Are you Catholics?"

"They want to know what we do here. Most of them think we are being trained for something and that we will go on to someplace. I tell them about our life, our services, how we pray. I go through that with them and then they say, 'Yes, but what do you do?'" said Michael.

"We are a contemplative order: we have no external apostolate (hospitals or schools)," explained Monsignor Dom Augustine Moore, abbot of the monastery which covers 2,000 acres in Rockdale County.

The Catholic monastery, the third largest of 16 Trappist monasteries in the country, was founded in 1944 by 17 Trappist monks from Kentucky.

Inside, the monks' austere daily life is governed by the Holy Rule of St. Benedict formed 1,500 years ago.

The men rise at 3:45 a.m. and pray at 4 a.m. After breakfast, reading and private meditation, they attend a 7 a.m. High Mass.

Then there are two hours of study or prayer and then secular duties, which include planting, cleaning, baking or working in the stained glass window shop. They go to bed at 8:30 p.m.

Women are banned from entering the monastery proper and there are no televisions, radios or newspapers.

To support themselves, the monks run a greenhouse, a bakery that produces 4,500 loaves of bread a week and the stained glass shop.

"We make enough to support ourselves and our excess goes to charity," said another monk.

The first home built on the monastery site was a barn. Then a wood house was built, and finally the monks began their 20-year project of building the present monastery, a high quadrangle of white stone.

The monks built it themselves, under the eye of a professional builder.

They first earned a living farming, but the economy forced them to switch to small industries.

Brother Paul, who is in charge of the greenhouse, agrees that tourists, who average about 600 a week, don't seem to understand the monks' way of life, in which the primary concern is the inner life of meditation and prayer.

"A lot of them do not associate us very closely with the Catholic Church," he said. "One fellow stayed here for two or three days in the guest house and fell in love with the life."

"He said, 'I want to become a monk,'" he said. "Then he added, 'But does that mean I have to become a Catholic?'"

'Superbook' Loves Role

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Joe Ferguson is known to most of his friends as a library employee.

But to dozens of youngsters, he's no ordinary man. He's "Superbook."

"Hi, boys and girls. I'm Superbook and I'm here to tell you to go to the library," he tells a group of youngsters at a day care center.

The idea behind "Superbook," part of the Greensboro Public Library's Early Childhood Education Program, is to promote an interest in and readiness for reading among pre-school children.

"When you take something and put 'super' in front of it, it really impresses the kids," said Ferguson, who wears a T-shirt with "Superbook" and an emblem on the front.

Ferguson and Cynthia Moore, director of the program, visit about 25 schools and daycare centers, making monthly trips filled with games, songs, pictures, puppets, films and other activities to keep the attention of the youngsters.

Miss Moore strums a guitar and leads the children in singing.

Ferguson, who has a degree in early childhood education from North Carolina A&T University, said he enjoys the ability to do something out of the ordinary.

"I knew there was a great need for men to work in this area," he said. "I love it. When I got this job I felt like somebody made this job for me."

Civil Defense Is All But Ignored By Washington

By MILLER BONNER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A sneak enemy nuclear attack on the areas U.S. defense planners consider the most likely targets could kill eight of 10 residents, according to a recent federal report.

"We have no civil defense program, merely the apparatus to start one," said Bardyl Tirana, head of the Pentagon's Defense Civil Preparedness Agency. He supervised President Carter's inauguration before moving to his latest job.

Dr. William K. Chipman, deputy assistant director of the agency, put it this way:

"Assuming people take shelter roughly where they are and assuming people got, say, 15 minutes of warning ... something like 110 million people would survive, give or take a million."

And the nation's vulnerability is not likely to diminish quickly.

America's civil defense program would need about a year of advance warning to provide actual shelter against the initial nuclear blast for half the nation's 230 million people, Chipman said.

A senate governmental affairs committee is set to open hearings today on a plan that President Carter unveiled Monday to reorganize into a single office federal agencies which deal with natural and man-made disasters.

While "there is a strong interest in civil defense ... there has been no decision to increase the emphasis on civil defense," Tirana said of the plan.

Among responsibilities of the new office would be the job of providing federal aid after a terrorist attack, which is not now assigned to any one agency.

The task force that devised the reorganization plan said in its report that "national security capabilities of civilian government at all levels have eroded considerably in the past decade."

Should an international crisis develop now, the Russians would be able to toss "the big chip" onto the table of the high-stakes poker game between two nations brandishing the world's most fearful nuclear stockpiles. The "big chip" — in the vocabulary of preparedness agency officials — is the Soviets' ability to quickly evacuate their cities.

The United States, with no up-to-date evacuation plan, has no such chip.

That gives the Soviets two options, according to Dr. Leon Goure, a University of Miami expert on Soviet civil defense.

They can shelter their population in place and give little or no warning to the enemy. Or, he says, they can evacuate their cities, which "could give Moscow major leverage in a crisis situation, especially if the U.S. were unable to disperse, or effectively shelter, its own urban population."

Remembering the Berlin crisis of 1961 and the Cuban missile crises one year later, Americans can appreciate the Soviet desire for "major leverage."

During a March speech to the Institute of American Relations, Paul Nitze, the chief U.S. negotiator for SALT I, recalled the factors surrounding Berlin and Cuba. He concluded that the Soviets gave in to American demands because "there was nothing they (Soviets) could do about it."

"We also had sufficient strategic nuclear superiority so there was no chance that they would go on alert and threaten us in the situation," he said. "The upshot was that they had no alternative but to back down."

Today, the Russians "don't want a nuclear war. They simply want the same advantage we had during the Cuban missile crisis," said Nitze.

Goure quotes four-star Gen. Alexander Altunin, the Russian civil defense chief, to illustrate the Soviet point of view. Russia's preparation, said the general, "for defense against means of mass destruction has become, without a doubt, one of the decisive strategic factors ensuring the ability of the state to function in wartime and, in the final analysis, the attainment of victory."

In the last decade, the Soviet Union has spent an estimated $65 billion for civil defense, while the United States has spent $898 million. Russia's civil defense program currently has an annual budget of $1 billion, compared to a U.S. expenditure below $100 million a year.

Altunin has under his command an estimated 100,000 active-duty military personnel. Tirana heads an agency of 600 federal employees who coordinate activities with about 5,500 state and local civil defense workers.

Tips For Bike Riders On Avoiding Accidents

NEW YORK (AP) — With the current boom in bicycle riding, there has been an increase in the number of bicycle accidents, reports George Frazier, president of the Independent Insurance Agents of America.

In 1970 there were 780 motor vehicle-related deaths, while in 1977 there were 950, with a high percentage in the under-14 age category. Predictions for 1978 put that figure at an all-time high of 1,100 deaths. There are no statistics available on bicycle rider fatalities not involving motor vehicles.

There will be some 105 million bikes on the road in the United States this year, Frazier says, which is almost double the number just 10 years ago, when there were 56 million.

The countrywide group of independent insurance agents headed by Frazier offers these suggestions for reducing the number of bicycle accidents:

—Test brakes to be sure they work properly.

—Avoid situations that require hard braking on anything but hard, dry pavement.

—Equip bikes with a white headlight and a red rear reflector.

—Do not wear loose clothing. A loose pant leg can easily be caught in the bicycle chain.

—Check to see that the horn or bell can be heard at least 100 feet away.

—Obey traffic rules. The rules that make driving a car safe apply to bike riding.

How Tar Heel Representatives, Senators Voted

By Roll Call Report
WASHINGTON — Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes June 8 through June 14.

HOUSE
ECHO OF PROP. 13 — Adopted, 220 for and 181 against, an amendment to cut $800 million from the budgets of the departments of Labor and HEW. The vote was interpreted as a direct response to the so-called taxpayer revolt sparked by passage in California of Proposition 13. The amendment was attached to the $57.9 billion fiscal 1979 appropriations bill for the two departments. The bill (HR 12929) was later passed and sent to the Senate.

The amendment effects a two-per-cent, across-the-board cut in all programs except those such as Social Security whose spending levels are fixed by law. Decisions on which programs would be cut and by how much are left up to Labor and HEW officials. No single program may be cut by more than five per cent.

Rep. Clarence Miller, R-Ohio, the sponsor, said the HEW budget is larger than that of the 50 states combined. "Almost everyone is concerned today about the explosive cost of government. The vote in California on Proposition 13 underscores what the public thinks."

Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Mass., an opponent, asked: "Just where would this cut come? Would it be in the basic opportunity grants program, the Title I Elementary and Secondary Education account, or perhaps health resource funding...research in cancer, heart, lung, arthritis, child beating?"

Members voting "yea" favored the amendment.

Reps. L. H. Fountain, D-2, Charles Whitley, D-3, Ike Andrews, D-4, Stephen Neal, D-5, W. G. Hefner, D-8, James Martin, R-9, James Broyhill, R-10, and Lamar Gudgeon, D-11, voted "yea."

Reps. Walter Jones, D-1, Richardson Preyer, D-6, and Charles Rose, D-7, voted "nay."

FREEBIES — Adopted, 214 for and 159 against, an amendment to curtail the practice of House members having free access to congressional wall calendars and agricultural yearbooks (which they mail to constituents) and plants from the U.S. Botanic Garden and shipping trunks (which many members utilize personally or in their offices). Under the amendment, members would have to pay for such items out of their office expense allowances. Presently, government agencies provide such accessories at virtually no cost. The amendment was attached to HR 12935, a bill appropriating money for the legislative branch, later passed and sent to the Senate.

Rep. William Armstrong, R-Colo., the sponsor, said that House members often say: "Of course, the calendar practice is reprehensible. Of course it is not a good expenditure of the taxpayers' funds. Of course we ought to curtail it some day..." Armstrong added: "Year after year the same refrain. Well, I think this would be an excellent time to do it."

Rep. Bob Traxler, D-Mich., an opponent, said: "There is no more popular publication among my rural constituents than the Agricultural Yearbook." He said he would ask Armstrong "not to take away that publication that represents to my constituents their communication with the American government that they pay taxes to."

Members voting "yea" favored curtailing the practice.

Fountain, Neal, Martin and Broyhill voted "yea."

Jones, Whitley, Andrews, Preyer, Rose, Hefner and Gudgeon voted "nay."

TELEVISION — Voted, 235 for and 150 against, to put the House rather than private journalists in control of the cameras when the House begin televising floor proceedings. The vote adopted an amendment — to a bill funding congressional operations (HR 12935) — stipulating that money cannot be spent for operation of cameras by any party other than the House.

Network news departments and other journalistic organizations say the controversy is a First Amendment question of who will control the news, government or the governed. Many House members, however, say the networks would televise them in a "circus" context that would convey an unrealistic picture of House activity.

Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Tex., a supporter, said: "We are not trying to pass judgment...on the journalistic skill or objectivity of network journalism.... The question is whether we have confidence in the U.S. House of Representatives to record its own proceedings with dignity and integrity as an historic record for now and for the future."

Majority Leader John Rhodes, R-Ariz., an opponent, said: "I would much rather put my faith in the content of television programs which come from this House in the networks, because I think they may be unfair to all of us, but in an absolutely fair way."

Jones, Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Rose, Hefner, Martin and Gudgeon voted "yea."

Broyhill voted "nay."

FILIBUSTER — Failed, 58 for and 41 against, to achieve the three-fifths majority required to end the filibuster against the bill (HR 8410) to amend the 1935 National Labor Relations Act.

The bill is favored by organized labor and the Administration and opposed by the business community and many Republican and conservatives. The thrust of its many changes in the 43-year-old law is to make it easier for workers to organize and win contracts from management. The bill has been passed by the House.

Senators voting "yea" wanted to end the filibuster.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R, voted "nay."

Sen. Robert Morgan, D, did not vote.

Some Utensils Not For Bacon
CHICAGO (UPI) — Even microwave oven utensils that withstand food temperatures up to 400 degree Fahrenheit are not recommended for cooking bacon because the drippings can become much hotter than other foods, says Pauline Church, home service adviser for a Chicago housewares manufacturer. Nor does Mrs. Church recommend putting the firm's microwave utensils in a conventional gas or electric oven. New items in the line introduced last year include a 4-quart casserole, a 5-quart cake baker and a 1½-quart oval baking server with curved handles.

Wilhelm C. Rontgen, a German, won the Nobel Prize for Physics in 1901.

Coping With Cuban Living

By CHARLES GREEN
Associated Press Writer

HAVANA (AP) — When a faucet started leaking at Douglas Langdon's house, he had to wait weeks for a new part to arrive by diplomatic pouch.

Langdon is a diplomat, but his life is not all cutaway coat and striped trousers. And he is not off in some distant undeveloped country but just 90 miles from U.S. shores.

He is one of 10 persons who operate the office that represents American interests in Cuba. They live in houses or apartments rented by the Cuban government in what used to be Havana's wealthy residential areas.

"Some of them hadn't been occupied in almost 20 years," said Barbara Hutchison, 52, of Newark, Del., the section's public affairs officer. "Some had been used as dormitories for school children."

"Just getting the paint and wallpaper and the light bulbs and the nuts and bolts to fix things up has been pretty frustrating."

"We really had trouble with the plumbing," said Debbie Glassman of New York City, wife of a consular officer, Jon D. Glassman. "You could say our lifestyle is mostly without style."

The 10 diplomats who volunteered for the job moved to Havana in September to open the American interest section. Their main job is to lay the groundwork in case Cuban-U.S. relations improve to the point of restoring full diplomatic relations.

When the group opened up the old U.S. Embassy building, they found a large cache of currency, a painting identified as a Picasso and personal possessions left behind by people who fled Cuba.

Administrative Officer Langdon, 35, of Phoenix, Ariz., said the money and other materials, including some gold coins, are kept locked up while the State Department tries to decide what to do with them.

Meanwhile, the volunteers have to live with their problems. American newspapers arrive weeks late. Toilets leak. They have to sleep under mosquito nets because of the lack of screens. A simple repair job can take weeks until spare parts are shipped by diplomatic pouch via Mexico City. There are still shortages of many parts in Cuba.

One recent Friday a staff wife came with important news to the marble-facade, seven-story embassy building on Havana's Malecon oceanfront drive: "They have fresh tomatoes and lettuce at the diplomatic store!"

"Our day centers around the supermarket," explained Mrs. Glassman, who works as cashier for the section. "Some days they have no meat. We get a lot of sardines from the Soviet Union and pickles from Bulgaria. They were out of eggs for several weeks."

The Americans are allowed to shop at a special store which accepts only hard currency. They have no ration restrictions, as Cubans do, but often race wives of Soviet diplomats, who greatly outnumber them, when word spreads that some sought-after item is available.

The prices they pay are lower than what Cubans pay for such luxury items but on a par with prices in the United States.

The U.S. flag cannot be flown over the building because it is not officially an embassy. A small sign outside says: "Embassy of Switzerland — United States Interest Section." An American eagle is carved on the wall. The Swiss watched

GATOR WITH A SWEET TOOTH — Todd Fagan tosses a giant marshmallow to "Sweet Tooth" an alligator with a taste for goodies at a marina at Ocean Springs, Miss. For the past several years the 6-foot gator has emerged from the marshes for his daily feeding of marshmallows near the dock. He won't touch bread or potato chips, however. (AP Laserphoto)

Market's Advance Is Sending Signals

INTERSTATE SECURITIES CORP.

The Dow Jones Industrials Average recently recorded a new recovery high of 866, but market gains in recent weeks have become increasingly selective. The number of issues recording new highs in this latest rally to 866 failed to match the number making new highs during the mid-May rally. Market breadth has also tended to lose upward momentum. These are indications that the advance is reaching a mature stage. Some type of downside correction can be expected during the coming weeks.

Probably the most intriguing aspect about the 130 point rally this spring has been the ability of the market to rally in the face of rising interest rates. Such a development has occurred very few times in market history. We suspect that the over-poweringly bullish technical forces outweighed the importance of higher money rates. This is entirely plausible during a short period of time. However, it is doubtful that those same technical forces will remain strong enough to prevent a market decline should inflation and interest rates continue to rise in the weeks to come.

If inflation figures continue as bad as they have been thus far this year, the Federal Reserve will undoubtedly be forced to clamp down further. At some time in the future stocks may very well regain their position as a number one inflation hedge. This would more likely occur at a time of monetary expansion rather than at a time when a clamp down is obviously occurring.

Billionaire Building An Empire In Amazon Jungle

By GUY GUGLIOTTA
MONTE DOURADO, Brazil (UPI) — In 1967 American billionaire Daniel K. Ludwig paid just under $6 million for a Connecticut-sized piece of jungle and tropical rain forest lying some 200 miles upstream from the mouth of the Amazon river.

Both Ludwig and the government of Brazil considered it a fair and good price for a tract of unproductive land inhabited for the most part by jaguars, wild pigs, snakes and howler monkeys and populated by a few fishermen, small farmers and nut-gathering settlers.

Eleven years later, Jari Florestal e Agropecuaria Ltda., is the biggest development project ever attempted by a private individual. It is the site of the biggest tree farm in the world and what will eventually be the world's largest rice plantation.

It has an open-pit kaolin mine and a plant to process the fine clay that is used in making everything from glossy paper to "Kaopectate."

Jari has 5 towns, 4 schools, an 80-bed hospital, 17 doctors, 5 dentists, 11 airplanes, a regularly scheduled airline, 4 airstrips and 270 miles of primary and secondary roads.

Ludwig, now 81, made his initial fortune designing, building and sailing the supertankers that came to dominate the oil industry after World War II.

Known in the business world as an innovator and sometimes as a visionary, he could be the world's richest man, with assets estimated at anywhere between $3 and $5 billion.

At Jari the Ludwig touch is everywhere apparent.

His on-site assistants, many of them world-renowned engineers in their own right, describe what is going on there as "the first," "the newest," "the biggest" and "the most original," and speak of "the challenge" that in many cases has delayed retirement or brought them back to Brazil after they thought their jobs were finished.

The latest showpieces are two 30,000-ton barges — one a pulp mill, the other a power plant — built by Ishikawajima Harima Heavy Industries of Japan at a cost of $246 million and towed 15,000 miles from Kure shipyards. Construction of the completed mill and power plant, the tow, the docking and the complicated diking and installation procedure needed to put the factories in place, posed technological and design problems never attempted before by anyone anywhere.

The plants, forests, towns and the 11,000 jobs Ludwig provides for top-level professionals down to day laborers, brought his total commitment to Jari to $529 million by the end of April.

By the end of 1978 his holding company says he will have invested $700 million in the project. By 1982 the figure is expected to reach $1.2 billion.

Ludwig never gives interviews and dislikes being photographed. He lives in New York and works out of the Manhattan offices of National Bulk Carriers, the shipping company that served as the springboard for business interests that today are located mostly outside the United States.

"You know, there's been a lot said about how Daniel K. Ludwig is a recluse or another Howard Hughes," said Don Haight, a dike and dam expert from Oregon who first came to Jari in 1968 and is regarded as one of the project's old-timers. "This is nonsense."

"I've known him for about 10 years, about as well as anybody can know a man like that," he said. "I think that deep down inside he's a simple man who just likes his privacy."

"In New York he walks to work and nobody notices him," Haight said. "In the office there, people never use his name when strangers are around so nobody will know who he is. That way he is never bothered."

Paul Marsteller, an missionary who is assistant to the executive director at Jari, says Ludwig visits the project "on an average of 4 or 5 times a year and stays a few days each time."

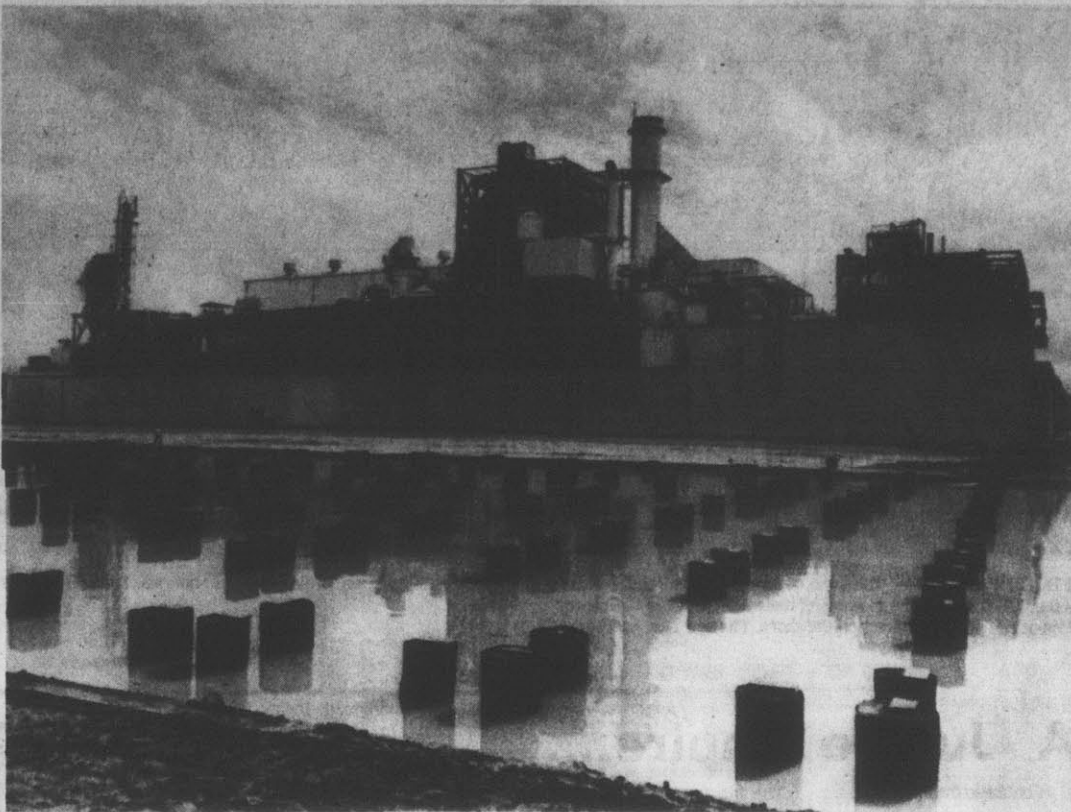

"He's in real good shape and runs the rest of us younger fellows ragged," Marsteller said. "He's very sharp."

When Ludwig is at Jari he stays in a relatively spartan guest house in the administrative town of Monte Dourado, the same lodging used by everyone who visits the project. As in New York, he walks to work, refusing rides from the staff personnel he encounters, many of whom he has known for years.

Principal among these is Jari executive director Elmer Hann, brought in from Japan in May to oversee the installation of the pulp mill and power plant whose construction he supervised for the last two years.

Hann at 77 is a marine engineer of international reputation, who, together with Ludwig in the early 1950s, pioneered big ship construction at Kure and five years ago was awarded the Third Class Order of the Sacred Treasure from the Japanese government.

A FLOATING POWER PLANT, built in Japan and towed 15,000 miles, will rest on pilings in foreground after installation procedure. It is part of a miracle

Known as "the father of modern shipbuilding in Japan," he is also, according to one Jari staff member, "the only man who can tell Daniel K. Ludwig when to stop."

"I admire the man very much," Hann said of Ludwig. "He's always treated me with the utmost respect, but he's a tough taskmaster."

"His vocation and avocation is work. That's how he gets his kicks and he can't figure out why the hell everyone doesn't feel the same way."

Hann calls Jari Ludwig's "one big blaze," but at 81 Ludwig probably cannot count on seeing the project come to full fruition. To date only the rice plantation and the kaolin plant are in production and important revenue will only be realized when the pulp factory starts operation in the first quarter of 1979.

Hann said Ludwig has given all his foreign holdings, "the preponderance of what he happens to own," to a foundation called the Ludwig Institute for Cancer Research which "is supposed to keep everything going" after he dies.

"But he shows no sign of slowing down," Hann said. "He considers me a youngster and I'm 77."

Promotional pamphlets list the size of Jari at 3.75 million acres, or 5,790 square miles, half the size of Belgium, but surveying has not been completed and Ludwig aides in Rio de Janeiro estimate the actual land area could be as much as 6 million acres once the language of the old titles is clarified.

Jari is located just south of the Equator and straddles the Jari river, with approximately half the property in the Brazilian state of Para and half in the Territory of Amapa.

Jari officials estimate the total population of the project at 25,000 men, women and children, about 6,000 of whom live at Monte Dourado, a few miles north of the mill site on the Jari river at Munguba.

Monte Dourado, with four small sawmills and huge sheds for bulldozers, tractors and logging equipment, looks at first like a large lumber camp, but the rows of neat, if featureless white houses that line its streets give the residential areas the air of a military base.

The houses, "staff" for supervisory personnel and "intermediate" for lower echelon foremen and technicians, are made of cement poured into steel molds.

This method of construction is a Ludwig patent and crews at Monte Dourado are building nine units a week to catch up with a housing crisis caused by the flood of experts that have recently arrived to help set up the pulp mill and power plant.

"Staff" pay a nominal monthly rental of $15 a month and "intermediate" dwellers pay $9. All houses come fully furnished with free electricity.

Rice Farm May Be The Biggest

By GUY GUGLIOTTA
SAN RAIMUNDO, Brazil (UPI) — The green revolution and $13 million of Daniel K. Ludwig's money have brought commercial farming to the Amazon River banks in an experiment that may grow into the world's biggest rice plantation.

Ludwig currently has 8,000 acres of reclaimed swampland under cultivation as part of his Jari Florestal e Agropecuaria project in the Amazon, most of it planted in a long-grain Philippine strain known as "IR-22."

His advisors say that the plantation will be expanded to 35,000 acres if market conditions are favorable. Already large by international standards, the full-sized holding is expected to be the biggest rice farm in the world.

The project's director is a Dutchman, Arend Reedijk, only 31, who came to Jari with the rice research team in 1970 and has spent his entire working life on the project.

"Everything is so different here that you have to invent it all," Reedijk said. "We spent five years learning how to develop the process."

The main element that makes Ludwig's rice different from others that no human being ever touches either plants or grain until, as Reedijk said, "it gets to the plate."

Agricultural airplanes are used to seed the rice paddies, fertilize them and treat the rice with insecticide. The rice is thinned and harvested by special low tire pressure harvesters that wallow around in the paddies. Tilling and plowing are done by other low tire pressure tractors. Workers on the plantation are all operators of one type of vehicle or machine or another.

The plantation land, rich river mud that ordinarily floods every year when the Amazon overflows its banks during the rainy season, is reclaimed in 5,000-acre chunks using dredges and bulldozers specially designed for the project so they won't sink out of sight in the marsh.

Double Alarm Alerts Neighbor

ELGIN, Ill. (UPI) — A new wrinkle in home smoke detectors: a model that sounds an alarm in two places at one time, up to 200 feet away.

The device has a transmitter and a receiver that can alert a neighbor as well as the occupants of a house where fire breaks out.

The manufacturer also recommends the unit for vacationers. "Fire departments can stop major fires in unoccupied homes if they are notified fast enough," says Wilbur Ogden, executive vice president of Fyrnetics, Inc.

When smoke or fire break out, the detector sounds an alarm that activates the transmitter. Using radio frequency control, the transmitter sends alarm signals to its AC-powered receiver unit, which also sounds an alarm. Both emit 88 decibels at 10 feet distance simultaneously, a level designed to wake even sound sleepers.

water and major appliances. Monte Dourado has two social clubs, swimming pools, tennis courts, a supermarket and Portuguese and English schools serving 2,800 students. At night adults use the schools as part of the Brazilian government's literacy program and to obtain high school degrees.

Joao Moreira, a civil engineer from Rio who helps plan and administer the town, said that the "staff" numbered about 150 persons before the arrival of the platforms, "about 75 percent Brazilian" and 25 percent "expatriates" that include citizens of about 35 different countries.

Moreira estimated that "about 7,000 or 8,000" people now live in Beiradão, the shantytown across the Jari from the pulp mill and the only thing on the Amapa side of the project besides the kaolin mine.

In Beiradão, where 10 years ago there were only four small houses, Jari citizens can find bars, brothels, brawls and the occasional kilo of marijuana, all the things that Monte Dourado does not provide.

The rest of the project's population is spread out among several work camps, two small "silvivila" settlements designed for the use of forest workers, the industrial complex at Munguba where the mill is, and San Raimundo, the center of the 8,000-acre rice venture on the Amazon 28 miles south of Munguba and 10 minutes by air from Monte Dourado.

The big business of Jari is forestry, the clearing, planting, cultivation and eventual harvesting of a planned 500,000-acre tree farm stretching north and west of Monte Dourado and bordered on all sides by the Amazon Jungle.

The Jari forest is already the biggest ever planted for commercial production, with 250,000 acres under cultivation and an average of 4,000 contract laborers at work pushing back the jungle to make way for more trees.

About 40 percent of the farm is Caribbean pine and 60 percent is gmelina arborea, a fast-growing species never grown commercially before Ludwig brought it to Brazil from Southeast Asia.

Both species were chosen for their pulp potential and for their rapid growth cycle. The gmelina will be thinned three times and clear cut after 10 years while the pine has a rotation cycle of 16 years.

The first trees will reach the pulp mill early in 1979, but their presence in the Amazon has for several years served as the focal point for criticism of the entire Jari project.

Neither species is native to a region known for thin topsoil and a fragile ecosystem that supports an average of 125 different types of trees per hectare of native forest as well as the diverse animal life common to the region.

"Of course we're changing it," said Don Hoppe, a Jari forester and ex-Peace Corps volunteer. "Everything you do here changes the ecosystem."

"If you're a strict conservationist, then any change is bad," he said. "We say that what we are doing is not bad, or necessarily good in an ecological sense, but there's no question that it's different."

"We leave patches of native forest as an ecological measure so the animals will have some place to go," Hoppe said. "Other animals have moved into the gmelina forests, mostly deer."

The Jari foresters made their biggest and, to date, only serious visible mistake in 1970 when they cleared 35,000 acres of native forest with bulldozers and planted it with gmelina.

"You've heard about the thin topsoil in the Amazon," said Paddy Carmichael, a transplanted Ulsterman who has worked on Jari for 5 years. "Well, the bulldozers peeled it right off. Those trees are no taller than two-year-old gmelina planted elsewhere," Carmichael said the stubby 1970 stand would be clear cut as soon as the mill begins operations and replanted in pine.

The rest of the land has been cleared the hard way by laborers who hack away the brush on a contract that pays them about $65 a month, the government minimum salary for the state of Para.

"Most of the laborers are rural workers from the states of Maranhao and Piaui," Carmichael said. "The Paragenses are mostly free agents that live off the land, but in the other two states the land is in the hands of large landowners and the workers can't get a job except as sharecroppers."

In 1973 ex-Brazilian president Emilio Garrastazu Medici was greeted by protesting workers when he visited Jari, many of them victimized by contractors who took money from the projects and pocketed all but a pittance they paid the laborers. "We got terrible publicity from that," Carmichael said. "But we deserved it. We got rid of some of the contractors and have imposed standards that are working." The government has also opened a social assistance office at Jari to ensure fair treatment by the contractors.

For most of the project's non-skilled workers, Jari offers an opportunity to save some money, escape the endemic scourges of malaria and malnutrition, and in many cases learn a skill. "One of the first guys I ever recruited was begging in the street in a town in Maranhao," Carmichael said. "His wife had had a baby three days before and I asked him if he wanted a job. He's been here ever since and his kids will be the technicians of the next generation."

Indians Seek Their Roots

PROVO, Utah (AP) — In the Rocky Mountain town of Provo, Utah, the Indians are hunting again — but this time for their ancestors, in what is believed to be the first class for teaching Indians how to search out their roots. Eleven tribes are represented in the Indian genealogy class at Brigham Young University.

"Contrary to what most people believe, there are many records available from which Indians may find genealogical information," said Dr. V. Robert Westover, assistant professor of Indian education at BYU.

"Most of the history of the tribes has been written by non-Indians because the tribes did not have a written language," added Westover. "Of the five so-called 'civilized' tribes — Cherokee, Choctaw, Chickasaw, Creek and Seminole — only the Cherokees had a written language, and that was after 1800. Today more than 200 tribes have written languages, though."

Most Indians can trace their ancestry back at least four generations, said Westover.

Where do they start? First they need to check with their relatives for information, said Westover, then determine their tribal affiliation. The Indian census rolls (1884-1940), available on microfilm, should be checked next, then the records of the National Archives and Federal Record Centers of the region in which the tribe in question is located. Last, a check of the records of churches which may have been active in missionary work among the tribe in question may be helpful.

"A possible additional benefit from the search: students whose ancestors are on the tribal rolls may receive financial aid for college. Some tribes even have allotments coming from tribal businesses or from leasing oil, gas or mineral rights," said Westover.

Although records are available, there are still some problems in tracing Indian genealogy, he added.

"For example," he explained, "there is a scarcity of birth, death and marriage records for Indians. Indian census started in about 1880. Records prior to that time are mostly from tribal rolls, land allotment records, church or mission records and hospital records."

"Most Indian families have kept word-of-mouth histories of their families, but some of the older Indians' religious beliefs forbid talking about the dead. This often makes them reluctant to tell researchers about their ancestors."

One major difficulty for the Indian genealogists is that the kinship classification may vary among different tribes. In the same generation, the term "father" may apply to an uncle, father or stepfather. "Sister" could mean first cousin, half-sister, daughter or sister.

"Curiously enough, when my students fill in pedigree charts they almost always place their mother above their father. The father was responsible for protecting the family and obtaining meat," Westover said.

The Mormon Church is currently microfilming the Indian records at the National Archives, and about 2,500 rolls of microfilm should be at the Genealogical Library of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon) in Salt Lake City within a year. The Genealogical Society is also purchasing four to five million pages of Indian documents from the Oklahoma Historical Society. Microfilming of Indian records is also being conducted from private Indian collections, church mission records, Bureau of Indian Affairs and tribal records, and the public archives of Canada.
