County Budget-Writing Entering Final Stages

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County Commissioners yesterday moved closer to finalizing the 1978-1979 budget as they gave tentative approval to almost all items in the proposed budget, other than funds for the Pitt County and Greenville City school systems.

Expenditures for the schools are expected to be considered in detail at a 5 p.m. Monday session.

Tentative approval came last night for budgets for the Tax Supervisor's office ($186,700), including two new tax clerks; the Tax Collector's office ($85,500); Civil Prepardness ($12,000); Register of Deeds ($115,100); the Planning Department ($37,100); and Buildings and Grounds ($372,400).

In considering the budget for the Sheriff's Department, commissioners agreed not to pick up three federal grant programs for which continuation funding has not been approved (juvenile, crime prevention and evidence technician grants), but tentatively okayed two new deputies.

The board also gave a tentative nod to removing the radio dispatchers from the regular Sheriff's Department budget — creating a separate division including three dispatchers requested by the Fire Marshal to operate a central communications system to dispatch sheriff's deputies, fire units and rescue squads from a central location. However, the dispatchers, just as the jail, would operate under the Sheriff's Department.

With the changes, the Sheriff's Department would receive about $502,000 in the coming year.

For the Fire Marshal 's budget, the board last night gave tentative approval to a $400 increase in funds to each county fire department, as well as a $20,000 appropriation toward the purchase of new fire trucks.

This year, commissioners appropriated $3,300 for each fire department in Pitt. Under the proposed 1978-1979 budget, each department would receive $3,700

The proposed $20,000 for new fire trucks would provide $5,000 toward the purchase of four new fire fighting units in the coming fiscal year.

Including the contributions to the various fire departments, the Fire Marshal 's budget would total $143,900.

Other budgets given tentative approval yesterday include: Electrical Inspector ($32,500); the Jail ($160,900); Data Processing ($584,700), including funds to provide 24-hour a day service to Pitt Memorial Hospital, which in turn would reimburse the county for the service; the county's share of the Agricultural Extension Service budget ($90,100); Pitt Soil and Water Conservation ($32,700); the Health Department and animal control ($397,800); and the Medical Examiner program ($13,350).

Commissioners continue to talk about a tax rate of about 96 cents per $100 valuation to raise funds to finance the proposed 1978-1979 budget — an amount 4 cents over the present rate of 92 cents per $100 valuation.

One cent on the tax rate brings in about $90,280.

Tar Heels Asked Provide Input On Growth Direction

By LORI COOKE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt threw out "a proposal for public discussion" on what pattern North Carolina's growth ought to take at his news conference Thursday.

"It's not a final policy," said Arnold Zogry, assistant secretary for policy development and management in the state Administration Department. "But it's clearly an indication of the direction the state Goals and Policy Board thinks we should be going in."

That direction is widespread and spread throughout the state, the idea being that everyone in the state ought to have a share in growth and the prosperity usually associated with it.

"We want opportunities for jobs and a better lifestyle to be found in many places, not just a few," said the report in its opening summary.

"Balanced growth," which the report says implies "bringing the right kind of growth to the locations needing jobs while preserving those unique features of North Carolina that enhance our quality of life," is seen as the desirable goal for the state.

The state plans to hold four public hearings in July to get public response to the suggestions in the policy statements. After that, Zogry said, the Goals and Policy Board will begin more definite planning for the shape of North Carolina's future.

The report is based on the responses to a survey last fall called "North Carolina Tomorrow" by more than 100,000 North Carolinians and to the outcome of 100 county conferences on growth and economic development.

Its focus is on "trying to preserve the kind of pattern we have" in population and jobs in North Carolina, Zogry said. That pattern is summed up in the statement in the summary that, "We live in dispersed places and we want it to stay that way."

So the jobs location policy, according to the policy report, is "to encourage diversified job growth in different areas of the state so that sufficient work opportunities at higher wage levels can exist where people live."

North Carolina is now the 11th-largest state in population and projections indicate it will become the 10th-largest during the 1980s. But it is "becoming urban in a different way from most large states," according to the report, because "we do not have dominant big cities."

Persons who answered the mass survey last fall saw the major problem area facing North Carolina as jobs, unemployment and the economy. They suggested the state respond by bringing in new industry, creating new jobs, and paying better wages.

Open To All

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled today that New Jersey may not prohibit other states from dumping their garbage in New Jersey.

The 7-to-2 decision potentially has great impact on other states facing the same environmental problems. The court held that the garbage ban violated the commerce clause of the U.S. Constitution.

Justice Potter Stewart, in his opinion for the majority, said New Jersey cannot discriminate in favor of its own garbage by banning out-of-state waste.

GAS RATIONING PLAN UNVEILED — Energy Secretary James Schlesinger announced a standby plan to ration gasoline among motorists in an energy emergency Thursday. (AP Laserphoto)

Gasoline Rationing Said Unlikely, But Govm't Preparing

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration says gasoline rationing is unlikely, but if it comes, those with a stable of automobiles would be the big winners, while one-car families would take a back seat.

President Carter's proposed standby rationing plan announced Thursday would allot gas in times of national petroleum shortages on the basis of motor vehicle registration. The more cars a family or business had, the more rationing coupons it could obtain.

Energy Secretary James Schlesinger said it is unlikely the program ever will have to be used, adding that "only in a period of national emergency could one make such a plan work."

As was the case with the country's only other rationing experiment during World War II, the Carter proposal, which must still be approved by Congress, may also bring out those trying to avoid it.

What's to stop a person from filling his yard with low-cost second-hand "clunkers" just to make himself eligible for more rationing coupons? Probably little, says Schlesinger.

But Schlesinger added that such a motorist "would have to think that through well in advance" to make sure he is getting his money's worth. And he said the government is studying ways to prevent people from exploiting the program with such tactics, but hasn't found an answer.

Advises Cutback

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister James Callaghan says the United States should cut back its energy consumption as a contribution to international economic recovery.

In an exclusive interview Thursday at No. 10 Downing St., his official residence, the Labor Party leader told The Associated Press.

"America is using 50 units of power for every one used by India or 24 by the United Kingdom. So their use of energy per head is twice as large as ours and 50 times that of India. It's possible, and I'm not criticizing the U.S., for there to be a useful conservation program ...without hardship."

Callaghan spoke shortly before reports circulated in Washington that President Carter may act on his own to raise fuel prices if Congress does not act on his year-old energy bill. The prime minister said he favors unilateral action by Carter to curb oil consumption if Congress fails to move.

The related issues of rising U.S. oil consumption and trade deficits will be central at the semiannual economic summit meeting the goverment chiefs of the United States, Britain, France, West Germany, Japan, Italy and Canada in Bonn next month.

Income Study

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Per capita income in North Carolina increased faster than the national average from 1966 to 1976, and the way people in the state earning their livings shifted during that time.

Those are some of the findings of a recent study on income by the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond.

According to the report, North Carolina still trails the national average in the dollar amount of its per capita income.

The study indicated that the way North Carolinians earn their money shifted heavily toward manufacturing and trade during the 10-year period.

"The pattern in North Carolina differs from the national pattern," the study said. "Manufacturing is by far the most important source of personal income in North Carolina, accounting for almost a third of labor and proprietors' income.

"But income from manufacturing in North Carolina grew almost 140 percent from 1966 to 1976, compared with 93.3 percent growth for the nation. At the same time, income from trade and service industries also grew significantly faster than in the nation," the report said.

Per capita income, which is the total amount of money made by people 14 and older divided by the total population, was $5,453 for 1976 in North Carolina. That was up 135.3 percent from $2,317 in 1966.

Nationally, per capita income was at $6,399 in 1976, up from $2,963 ten years earlier for a jump of 116 percent.

Labor Law Revision Is Given Senate Setback

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supporters of proposed labor law revisions are back almost to square one in their long fight to win Senate passage of the labor-backed legislation.

Backers of the measure conceded defeat Thursday in their struggle to break a long, Republican-led filibuster against the bill and had the measure returned to the Human Resources Committee for redrafting.

It was a setback for both the Carter administration and organized labor, both of which worked hard to get the bill through the Senate.

Sens. Robert C. Byrd, D-W. Va., the majority leader, and Harrison A. Williams, D-N.J., the panel's chairman, both said the bill will be back.

But Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, leader of the filibuster, said he is ready to mount a second talkathon if the measure re-emerges from committee along its current lines.

"I suspect if they literally try to write a fair bill it would not be acceptable to organized labor," he said.

Under the Senate's action, the committee has authority to return the measure to the floor any time after July 15, but is not required to do so.

Normally, sending a measure back to committee under these circumstances is tantamount to killing the bill.

The legislation calls for stiffer penalties against labor law violators and would give unions additional leverage in their drive to organize workers.

Specifically, it would speed up the timetable for electons on union representation, would expand the size of the National Labor Relations Board and would give unions the right to send professional organizers onto company premises under tightly controlled circumstances.

Organized labor lobbied hard to win approval for the bill and was hoping to come away with a clear victory in light of other setbacks in recent months.

Retaliation By House To S. Korean Refusal Is Picking Up Steam

By BRIAN B. KING
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — In retaliation for South Korea's refusal to let former ambassador Kim Dong Jo talk with Leon Jaworski about allegations of passing out money to congressmen, the House wants to take away $56 million in easy-credit food sales to that country.

If Korea is cut out of the Food for Peace program next year, it would be an unprecedented cutback of economic aid to a major ally.

The Agency for International Development said at the same time that, if the Senate goes along with the ban on such economic aid for 1979, it will cancel the $59.5-million contract for such purchases this year that it is to sign Monday.

In response to the House move the South Korean here issued a statement decrying what it called the demand for Korea to be "coerced into violating international legal order and its dignity as a sovereign state.

"This action is particularly regrettable in that it ignores the cooperation the Republic of Korea already has extended to the executive and legislative branches of the government of the United States in the investigation of alleged improprieties."

Welfare Overhaul Dead For Current Session

By ROBERT PARRY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional leaders, citing lack of time and a clogged legislative calendar, say President Carter's welfare overhaul bill is dead for this session. However, supporters are already planning to revive the $20 billion proposal next year.

Rep. James C. Corman, D-Calif., sponsor of the administration bill, said Thursday night the welfare plan was shelved for the year after several days of talks among House and Senate leaders.

Corman said the decision came after House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. was told by Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd that a backlog of legislative business — and a lack of time in this election year — would prevent the bill from being considered in the Senate.

Some Democratic leaders were also reportedly concerned about the cost of the bill at a time when tax-conscious voters seem to favor spending restraint.

"The speaker has said all along that unless there was reasonable hope to get it through the Senate, he was not going to bring it up this year," Corman said.

O'Neill informed his Democratic lieutenants of his decision not to press ahead with the welfare bill at a closed meeting Thursday morning, Corman added.

The White House had no immediate comment on the decision.

Carter made reform of the nation's welfare laws one of his campaign pledges in 1976. He unveiled his overhaul plan last August, urging Congress "to totally scrap" the existing welfare system.

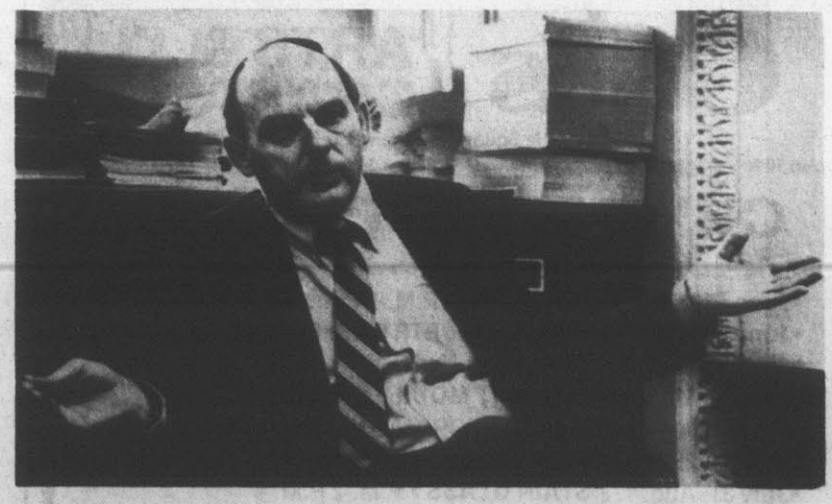

The administration proposal would create 1.3 million public service jobs and abolish existing food stamp and multiple assistance programs in favor of single cash payments for welfare recipients.

Carter's welfare proposal cleared a special House welfare committee largely unscathed in February, but has made little progress since then.

Corman, chairman of the special committee, said the welfare bill was in trouble when the president's tax cut bill was sent to the House Ways and Means Committee first.

"When the administration decided to put the welfare bill behind the tax bill, that doomed it," Corman said. "If the tax bill had gone through quickly, we might have gotten the welfare reform bill over there (to the Senate) quickly."

The president's tax cut proposal has been bogged down in the Ways and Means Committee for several months.

COVERUP SAID POSSIBLE — Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., talks to reporters on Capitol Hill after the Senate Intelligence subcommittee which he heads reported that high U.S. officials ignored repeated early warnings that Tongsun Park and Korean Central Intelligence Agency operatives were trying to buy influence in Congress. Stevenson told reporters he could not definitely rule out the possibility of a coverup. (AP Laserphoto)

Designer Practices Her Craft In Paris

By SUZY PATTERSON
AP Fashion Writer

PARIS (AP) — Paris is providing the finishing touches in the training of a hot young American fashion designer whose life sounds like any young American girl's dream.

Sue Ekahn, a striking, ebullient 6-footer, is only 22, but already has her unique place in the fashion world.

Last year Sue, from Merrick, N.Y., and four other American girls won a French government competition for $5,000 scholarships to study fashion at the Chambre Syndicale de la Couture.

On Sue's first day at school she was appalled to find that she was supposed to cut out a "toile," or linen prototype for a blouse.

"Like, that's not what I came for." She transferred to a professional class.

She had already designed professionally for Seventh Avenue manufacturers, and wears her own models around Paris.

Her clothes are much like herself — big, modern and well-made. She often wears her Paris prize-winning white full dress with matching shawl. "But this is my eye-stopper," she said, hauling out a long caramel mohair coat, which she donned over a ruffled red tiered skirt, checked blouse and knit tie, trendy Mary Jane pumps and bobby sox.

"I came to Paris to be inspired," said Sue, who looks continually carried away. She has been soaking up inspiration in her oak-beamed Left Bank studio, liberally decorated with her own things: a Marilyn Monroe poster, a collection of antique shoes, piles of fashion magazines, and a dummy-mannequin of her size.

Sue sometimes played hooky from school in Paris, but not to gossip in cafes, as most students do; she did it for work, and turned out most of a collection for Chantal Thomass, a young ready-to-wear designer.

Raised in New York and Long Island, Sue habitually collects prizes. False modesty is not one of her faults.

"I was Miss High School," she smiled. "An A student, varsity volleyball and so on."

She worked hard for success at Rhode Island School of Design. "I had dates every night with my sewing machine, and made friends with the night-watchman so that I could work after hours."

She won the "Mademoiselle" magazine guest editorship, a Capezio shoe design award, the Next Great Designer Award given by the International Ladies Garment Workers Union (ILGWU), and a prize from the American Velvet Company.

Sue was destined for fashion. Her father, a buyer, escorted her as a little girl on tours of the garment district. "And I was always well-dressed," she remembers.

"I designed my first garment line in the fifth grade, and earned a profit of $5.86 making doll clothes for my friends."

Paris was her dream world. "French women are fantastically chic. Take the Metro: look at the girls in the bank; even my bakery girl dresses in the latest thing."

Though she has not worked for her official sponsor, Cardin, she calls him Pierre and goes to all his parties. Another part of her research has involved the discos, where hordes of young exorcise their Saturday night fever.

Sue kept adding to her list of prizes in Paris, with a Saga Mink contest, and British Vogue's spring talent contest, earning a trip to London.

The whole Paris scene has been grist to her mode mill. After dinner at the fashionable Coupole restaurant, she sat down at her drawing board to sketch a new lace-cuffed dress for the hat-check girls. "I hate those old polyester things they're wearing."

"I want to make my statement," says Sue firmly. "And Paris is helping me do that. My secret ambition? I've just got to meet Diana Vreeland. I want to be a fashion designer, and I'd like to design theater and film costumes."

She plans to go back to New York to sort out her thoughts, and already has potential backers for her own business.

Dear Abby

Father's Temper Upsets Daughter

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband (I'll call him Frank) and I are in our late 20s, have been married four years and have a 2-year-old daughter I'll call Tammy.

Frank has always had a rotten temper. Well, last week he got mad and slapped me around and I cried. Tammy was in the room at the time and saw it all, and now Tammy won't have anything to do with her father. When he comes near her, she turns her head away and cries. If he tries to touch her, she screams and draws away.

This hurts Frank something terrible. I keep telling him that Tammy will forget and get over it in time. Will she?

RHODE ISLAND RED

DEAR RED: Tammy may, in time, become more "forgiving"—but don't count on her to forget.

In the meantime, unless you enjoy being slapped around, insist that Frank get some professional help in learning how to control his temper. A man who "slaps" his wife around has serious problems.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 16-year-old male with a problem. On the first date with a girl, I feel no irresistible urge to kiss her or to make out with her as is expected of most guys nowadays. I feel that I should get to know the girl better in order to be certain of my feelings toward her.

It seems that most girls expect a guy to do more than just talk or hold hands even before they know him very well. Is my slow approach normal and something to be desired? Or should I go ahead and jump all over a girl as is expected? I'm sure many boys my age are wondering the same thing and we'd be greatly relieved of much pressure if we knew how to act.

UNCERTAIN

DEAR UNCERTAIN: Who said "all" girls expect a guy to jump all over them on the first date? My mail tells me that most girls prefer the "slow approach," and I recommend it.

DEAR ABBY: My wife is one of those women who knows everything. And her most thorough area of knowledge is what "most" husbands do and do not do, although I can't for the life of me figure out where she gets all her information.

We have an electric "shampooer" that is no heavier to push around than the average vacuum cleaner, so it's not too hard for her to operate.

I am employed full time. My wife is not employed outside the home. Our three children are in school all day. We live in a well-furnished house with all the modern conveniences. My wife insists that I should shampoo the rugs because "most" husbands do. Do they?

DENVER DUDE

DEAR DUDE: I can't speak for "most" husbands, and neither can your wife. But what "they" do should have no bearing on who does what in your home. Instead of working yourself into a lather over this seemingly trivial problem, why not take turns?

CONFIDENTIAL TO M.M.: If you want your children to turn out well, spend twice as much time with them, and half as much money.

DEAR ABBY: I've been seeing a psychologist for about five months. He's a male and so am I. On my first visit to his office, he had me strip naked, stand before a mirror and talk about my body. I don't know if he asks his female patients to do this, but all of his male patients that I've spoken to told me that he did the same thing with them. (He asks his patients not to mention this procedure to others.)

We wonder if perhaps he is a voyeur. He's about 45, and has a nice wife and family.

If you lie on his couch and feel embarrassed or nervous, he sits on the floor beside you and holds your hand to relax you. I have never heard of a psychologist doing this, have you?

If you return for further sessions and lie on his couch, he asks you to remove your shirt. He has told me that he has seen some very good-looking young men in his practice.

I once heard a well-known psychiatrist say on a talk show, "Never take your clothes off for a shrink."

I'd like your opinion.

JIM IN LOS ANGELES

DEAR JIM: Most psychologists are competent, caring and strictly ethical in their manner of treatment, but if you question the professional ethics of your psychologist, write to the State Board of Medical Quality Assurance, 1430 Howe Ave., Sacramento, Calif. 95825.

Those residing in other states should check out their therapists with their county psychological associations.

THE GREAT HOUDINI—He was a master escape artist and a fantastic magician but his favorite dessert was a simple bread-and-butter custard pudding.

Great Houdini Had A Recipe

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

You may have heard your parents or grandparents talk about the celebrated magician and escape artist Harry Houdini.

He was the man who, during the first quarter of this century, dazzled theater audiences with his sleight of hand and gained worldwide fame by performing sensational, dangerous, unique feats. Two of the latter: escaping from sealed coffins; freeing himself from police handcuffs under a river's ice-covered waters.

As a writer in the 1940s said, "The great Houdini had the flexibility of an eel, the lives of a cat and a bizarre genius that enabled him to sneer at fetters."

Houdini died in the mid-1920s, but in the past couple of years several new books devoted to his art, life and mind have introduced him to a new generation.

Collectors of "magic" memorabilia, as well as cooks, may be interested to know that Houdini contributed a recipe for one of his favorite dishes to a 1916 cookbook. It is for a dessert because, as he acknowledged, "I happen to have a weakness for sweets." After I updated the recipe, his dessert became a favorite at my house.

Interestingly enough, the dish Houdini favored is the sort of soft, sweet "milk" pudding that many of us were fed in childhood. But his pudding isn't an ordinary milk pudding. As he said in the footnote to the recipe, "This one you will not find in any other book." It's not surprising that Houdini would take pride in having a unique recipe.

Perhaps it came from his wife who, according to my friend and neighbor, Charles "Chuck" Verral, knew good food. Chuck tells me that some years after Houdini's death, his widow ran a restaurant in New York City's theater district. The Houdinis had known many theater people and they, along with publishing people like Chuck, used to lunch there. When I asked Chuck what dishes Mrs. Houdini served, he said he couldn't remember any particular ones, but all her food was the fine tearoom variety which, alas, is no more. Prodded to recall just one item on Mrs. Houdini's menu, Chuck immediately answered, "Scrambled illusions!"

BREAD-AND-BUTTER CUSTARD A LA HOUDINI

4 thin slices homestyle bread
Soft butter
1 quart milk
6 large eggs
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
Nutmeg, ground or freshly grated

Trim crusts from bread; lightly butter one side of each. Place, buttered side up, in a single layer in a square glass baking dish (8 by 8 by 2 inches). Scald milk by heating until bubbles appear around the edge. In a large bowl, slightly beat the eggs; add the sugar and vanilla and beat just until blended. Gradually and gently beat in the scalding-hot milk; strain over the bread — the custard mixture will look foamy. Sprinkle generously with nutmeg. Place in the center of a large aluminum roasting pan (17 by 11 by 2 inches). Pour enough hot tap water into the pan to come up as high as the pudding mixture in the dish. Bake in a pre-heated 325-degree oven until a silver or stainless-steel knife inserted in the center comes out clean — 40 minutes. Chill. Makes 8 servings.

Note: After this pudding was chilled, we spread it with homemade, pureed strawberry preserves flavored with kirsch. The light color of the preserves made the pudding look extremely pretty and added to the flavor. — C.B.

One Cannot Go Just Anywhere

One of the results of the new freedoms developed in our nation in recent years, has been a feeling that anyone could go anywhere they want.

It ought to be that way . . . but it isn't. Four teenage girls were allegedly robbed and attacked by a group of men at their camp site on a trip along the Appalachian Trail.

It led David Crockett, an assistant attorney general in Tennessee to comment that he would no more consider walking the trail unarmed than he would think of strolling through Harlem at midnight.

He cited previous attacks on girls along the trail.

Nothing can be done to change the incidents, but they can serve as a warning to anyone contemplating such a trip. It should be ascertained beforehand that the trip can be made in reasonable safety.

Real Manpower Problems For Defense

More and more concern is being heard for the U. S. Army maintained with volunteers, something that was predictable when the draft was eliminated.

The inspector general of the 8th Army in Korea sees serious problems at every command level.

The pool of available young people is going to shrink even more in the years ahead as the young population decreases.

There are serious manpower problems ahead for our armed forces.

Licensing Doubts Raised

By Bill Noblitt

RALEIGH — Back in 1949, Sam J. Ervin, Jr. was a member of the North Carolina Supreme Court. That was before his fame spread even wider as a U.S. Senator.

He wrote a decision in the case of The State versus Owen Ballance nearly 30 years ago which is again drawing some attention as there is a growing feeling that proliferating licensing boards are in danger of creating a controlled, monopolistic economy.

In that case, Senator Ervin (and the court) found that the North Carolina Photographers Board was unconstitutional.

In presenting his arguments, Ervin drew up a list of other occupations which, he felt, could legitimately be regulated by the state if, in fact, the regulation of photographers was found to be in the public interest.

A New Board

On that list was watchmaking. Sure enough, in 1967, the N.C. General Assembly created the N.C. State Board of Examiners for Watchmaking and Repairing.

Other state courts at other times struck down state licensing of dry cleaners, tile contractors.

Yet such licensing procedures continue to grow apace. In 1975, the General Assembly created four new boards: forestors, house movers, landscape contractors, and speech and language pathologists and audiologists.

The state now has 35 licensing boards: architect, auctioneer, barber, accountant, chiropractor, contractor, cosmetologist, dentist, electrical, forestor, hearing aid, house mover, landscape architect, landscape contractor, lawyer, medical doctor, mortuary, nursing, nursing home, optician, optometrist, osteopath, pharmacist, physical therapist, plumbing and heating, podiatrist, psychologist, engineer and land survey, real estate, refrigeration, sanitarian, speech and language, veterinarian, watchmaker, and well digger.

Public funds do not support these activities, but a number of experts believe the system is costing the public money.

The boards operate from fees collected from members and applicants. Many boards restrict trade and prohibit advertising, however, and that is costing the public—members of the attorney general's staff compute the cost at $10 million annually in North Carolina in inflated cost of uncompetetive eyeglasses alone.

BILL NOBLITT

Moratorium

A moratorium on creation of new licensing boards, and a thorough probe of how to bring them under control with action suggested to the 1979 General Assembly is now gearing up in the Sunset Commission.

Attorney General Rufus L. Edmisten told a legislative committee on licensing that, "In the past the licensing of occupations has been to protect the public from harm. The effect of licensing in recent years, however, has often been to protect those licensed from the demands of competition and free enterprise."

In an elaborate portfolio, members of Edmisten's staff display data generally designed to show that many boards are made up of people with a vested interest, that a major problem is a tendency to bar from certain occupations newcomers who might threaten competition, and it is questionable as to what the public interest is in maintaining the licensing board of an occupation which functions purely as a monopolist rather than as a quality control machanism consistent with competition.

But most importantly, the experts concluded, there is "virtually no disagreement among economists that loosening anticompetitive restraints (and allowing advertising) imposed by licensing boards will result in significant benefits to consumers and society at large."

THE INSIDE REPORT

A $500 Dinner With Joe

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Health industry lobbyists unable to gain the briefest audience with Joseph Califano, the secretary of health, education and welfare, can spend a whole evening with him here June 27 — by spelling out a mere $500.

That money would enrich the campaign war chest of Rep. Andrew Maguire, a gravely liberal Democrat from New Jersey whose views collide with the lobbyists' clients. For that $500, the lobbyists not only get "an intimate dinner" with Califano but also cocktails with the secretary of transportation, the speaker of the House and assorted congressional grandees playing key roles in health legislation.

The annual lobbyist shakedown is clearly alive and well in Washington, almost undiminished by post-Watergate morality. Pressure for campaign contributions from lobbyists is traditionally applied by Republicans and Democrats alike, though most heavily by the party in power; it can always order up cabinet members. Jimmy Carter's non-imperial presidency and the advent of reform congressmen such as Andy Maguire have changed nothing.

What is billed as "an evening with two members of the president's cabinet" to help Maguire's "campaign fund" is in the grand tradition. The evening begins at 5:30 p.m. with "cocktails" at the Folger Shakespeare Library. Rep. Paul Rogers of Florida, chairman of the House subcommittee considering health cost containment (which includes Maguire), will be present. So will two other senior members of the parent Commerce committee: Reps. John Moss of California and John Dingell of Michigan.

For lobbyists outside the health field, the pickings are joyful: Transportation Secretary Brock Adams; Sen. Harrison Williams of New Jersey, chairman of the Senate Labor Committee; Rep. Thomas Ashley of Ohio, chairman of the House Special Energy Committee — even Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill.

That costs $100. For another $400, says the invitation, "an intimate dinner with Secretary Califano will follow the reception" at a private home nearby. Since lobbyists seldom penetrate the HEW secretary's inner sanctum, this provides a golden opportunity for a lobbyist to pay his fee and make his case and, more important, report juicy details to his client about dinner with Joe ("So, sir, I told Joe that . . .").

Califano is becoming legend for cavalier treatment of businessmen. He recently kept one health insurance executive waiting 60 minutes beyond the appointed hour, then announced he was too busy to see him. But the secretary has no idea who his dining partners will be June 27. "The guest list is the congressman's responsibility," a Califano aide solemnly told us.

If Califano does not know who is invited, Maguire is not telling. "Are you serious?" cracked the congressman when we requested the names solicited. Maguire is the beau ideal of the famous Watergate class of 1974 elected following Richard Nixon's disgrace, advocating open government and candor. But when we questioned him, he displayed some of the testiness and secrecy of the bad old days.

Did he solicit a list of lobbyists? "We have simply mailed to people I know or to people known by people I know or to lists provided by them," he answered. But does that include lists of lobbyists? "I've answered your question," he snapped.

Actually, Maguire probably could not supply the list. One health industry lobbyist who has never met Maguire was invited by a mutual friend to a recent planning session for the $500 affair over coffee and Danish at a Washington law firm's conference room attended by business lobbyists. Each agreed, in chain-letter style, to produce 20 new prospects. The health lobbyist soon received from Maguire 20 blank invitations, which he mailed to his own list of 20 lobbyists.

Every health insurance lobbyist we checked had received an invitation, though few had ever met Maguire. "I wouldn't know him if he walked through my door," said one who has been prodded by telephone on three occasions since receiving his invitation.

There are signs, however, that the old lobbyist shakedown may not be quite as alive and well as it used to be. One health insurance lobbyist, with a good record of Democratic party activism, has been unable to gain an audience with Califano. "I,ll be damned if I'll be blackmailed or allow clients to be extorted to sit down and have dinner with. Joe Califano," he told

Strength For Today

EXERCISE NEEDED

What many Christians need is not more spiritual food, but more spiritual exercise. They are like the people who have filled up on a big turkey dinner and then spend the next day complaining about how wretched they feel. In both cases, what is needed is to work off some of the food which is glutting the spiritual and physical systems.

The man who complains about inadequate spiritual food needs to peel off his coat and get up a good sweat lifting the burdens from others' shoulders, or clearing from the Lord's pathway the great stones of injustice, hate, and dishonesty which have been rolled thereon by the wickedness and perversity of mankind.

The spirit means very little until it is translated into action, just as food means little until it is transformed into energy. Furthermore, to carry out the analogy, the spirit dies for lack of action, just as food decays when it is not taken in to give strength to the body.

A Sequel For 'Jaws II"

WASHINGTON — "Jaws II" is a success at the box office, Universal Pictures will have no choice but to begin production on "Jaws III." The problem is, how many times can you frighten people with a man-eating shark?

I've been giving it a lot of thought. There is nothing that says "Jaws III" has to be a shark. As Elizabeth Ray once said, "There are a lot of other fish in the sea."

I have my own screen treatment for the third film. "Jaws II," instead of being about a shark, should be about the great snail darter.

The movie would take place at the TVA Tellico Dam in Tennessee. One night, a young workman and Miss Tennessee of 1977 are lying on the banks of the Tellico River telling dam stories, when the girl decides to go swimming. Her boyfriend tells her it's too dangerous, but she goes in anyway.

Out of the murky water appears the cruel head of a monster snail darter measuring three inches from jaws to tail. It swims back and forth, perplexed by the strange body in the water. Suddenly it bares its cruel, razor-sharp teeth and nips the girl on the arm. She screams, but it's too late. The snail darter nips her again on the thigh, then it nips her yet again. The girl frantically swims to shore with nips all over her body.

The workman and the girl go to see the chief of police.

The chief of police reports the incident to the head engineer of the TVA project. "It's obviously a snail darter, the most vicious fish known to dam builders," he tells the chief. "If the story gets out that we have snail darters in the Tellico River, they'll keep us from completing the dam. We have to keep this a secret."

ART BUCHWALD

"But I'm responsible for the lives and safety of the people along the Tellico," protests the chief of police. "Suppose somebody else gets bitten by the snail darter?"

"Don't worry," the engineer assures him, "having nipped Miss Tennessee of 1977 it could be miles from here by now."

Other Editors Say Liberal's Defeat

(Washington Daily News)

The defeat of U.S. Senator Clifford Case, Republican of New Jersey, in the recent primary there, means that one of the most liberal men in the U.S. congress has been let out by the voters of his state.

Senator Case, a four term veteran, was liberal through. Whatever the liberal side presented, he was for it. At 74 years of age, it appeared that he would be there as long as he wished and that his opposition was more of the token variety than real.

But Jeffrey Bell, a 34 year enterprising young fellow, plugged away. He called for a 30 percent decrease in income taxes, and when the votes were counted, Mr. Bell was the winner.

It will be an interesting race in November. The Democrats have also nominated a young man, Bill Bradley, a former professional basketball star and a Princeton graduate, to oppose Mr. Bell. Both are in their thirties, both are energetic and both will wage very active campaigns.

Now if over this nation we could get rid of a few more liberals and bring some old fashioned common sense back into government, we believe our people would be better off. For instance, in New York if Senator Jacob Javits would just be put out to pasture, we would be rid of another far out liberal.

Of course the Democrats have several far out liberals that could stand a little pasture too.

With what seems to be a tax rebellion taking place over the nation, the liberal fellows might be in for more trouble than they admit. Senator Case says he took his opponent too lightly. And the liberals seem to have only one answer for every problem which faces this nation—spend ever more money.

While spending more money might indeed solve some problems, it is not the automatic answer for every problem that some people think. Indeed, it sometimes actually creates more problems than it solves.

Mr. Bell, the new Republican nominee, and Mr. Bradley, the new Democratic nominee in New Jersey, can now square off and neither has any real advantage over the other. Both are new, young, personable, and ambitious.

Mr. Case's defeat is quite a blow to the liberal forces in the U.S. Senate. He has been one of their top leaders for the past 24 years, and his very liberal philosophy has now been turned back by his own New Jersey voters.

It is a real big defeat.

40 Years Ago Today

June 23, 1938

B. T. Clark, in charge of the local weather bureau station, warned today that a "young flood" was in prospect for the Tar River by tomorrow or Saturday.

The river is expected to overflow the banks tonight, warned Clark, and advised persons having stock in these areas to get them out at once.

The river rose more than a foot in the 24- hours ended at 8 a.m. today. It was standing at an even 11 feet yesterday morning, and at 12 feet one inch this morning. Normal is between five and eight feet. Fourteen feet is regarded as flood level.

A $100,000 street improvement program will get underway for Greenville in the near future, Mayor M.K. Blount declared today, following the receipt of a telegram advising that a PWA allotment had been made for this purpose.

No Ivy Grows On Him

By Hugh A. Mulligan
AP Special Correspondent

On the way to the second one, he passed Mark Hopkins College. In other years he would have attended the commencement there too, but there was a "For Sale" sign on the lawn. Rising education costs and the end of the baby boom were about to claim another victim.

Had he chosen to wear his academic robes, Dr. Walter Hendricks was entitled by collegiate protocol to dangle three gold tassels over his left eye from the flat roof of his mortarboard. He had been president of all three colleges. More amazing still, he had founded them all, started them from scratch or whatever he could scratch up.

Before he came along, the Marlboro campus was a dairy farm; Windham was a gravel pit; Mark Hopkins had been the stately porticoed home of a former Vermont governor and federal judge.

All three colleges were founded after World War Two, when Hendricks, already in his 50's, returned from Biarritz, France, where he had helped set up the GI university after completing one career as head of the Humanities Department at the Illinois Institute of Technology.

Yet there was a something uniquely medieval, about these three small colleges located within a 10-mile triangle in the rolling hills of southern Vermont. Hendricks believed that a college was a community of scholars and students, living and working together, taking time out from Spinoza and Shakespeare to help push each other's cars out of the snow, tapping the maple trees together along with the ancient bards and seers. Doing your own thing wasn't as important as letting learning do its thing.

All three schools were progressive to the point that Harvard and Yale are now getting back to where they began: revising the curriculum to stress general knowledge over specialization, preparing a student to fulfill his potential for living and loving and giving, rather than just filling out a job application form.

On the lovely campus Edward Durell Stone designed for Windham College at Hendricks' urging, the founding father watched the academic procession wind past the dormitories named for him and his wife Flora. Then he took a seat in the rear row of the theater, recognized by a few of the older faculty members but unknown to most of the graduates and their parents.

At Marlboro next day, he parked his car near the girls dormitory that had once been the president's house where he raised four children and again chose a rear seat in the auditorium since made famous by the Marlboro Music Festival.

Hendricks spoke optimisticaly of one last effort to save Mark Hopkins College, mustering the old enthusiasm that had persuaded many a failing student to hang in there.

For Walter Hendricks, after all those years and all those beginnings, commencements have always been a time of beginning, of getting on with something and leaving the past behind, which is why no ivy has ever grown on him or any of his colleges.

No Concern For Tomorrow?

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Anayst

NEW YORK (AP) — It isn't the ring of cash registers but their silence that's bothering analysts of retail sales, which have been holding up more strongly than many had anticipated.

The seeming paradox results, as you may have suspected, from the use of credit cards and other instruments of delayed payment that permit the luxury of purchases now and the worries of payment later.

Consumer credit has been soaring in recent months, and some retailers are concerned it soon will reach its limit, leading to a pronounced slowdown in sales later this summer or fall.

Furthermore, they say, some of today's purchases are in anticipation of higher prices later. In other words, today's good times could be at the expense of tomorrow; the sales, in effect, may be borrowed.

While the level of outstanding credit had been growing at a $2.6 billion rate for many months, it surged to $4.1 billion in March and $3.7 billion in April, considered by many to be unsustainable rates.

Perhaps a more significant surge has occurred in the amount of new credit extended. That rate surged 7 percent in March and 2.4 percent in April, the latter amounting to a total of $22.1 billion.

Citibank's "Economic Week" observes that since December, "extensions have grown at an astounding 33 percent average annual rate," nearly twice the average growth during the economic expansion.

The surge has focused the eyes of economists on the consumer's debt burden, measured as the ratio of credit extensions to personal income. It reached 15.8 in April, despite increases in personal incomes.

Many economists feel that level is near the limit of consumer endurance and that it foreshadows a downturn, as was the case when it reached that level early in 1973 before the most recent recession.

Automotive analysts are especially concerned. An industry authority, Sindlinger & Co., said this week that "those who can afford to buy now to beat rising prices are creating (a) record hedge."

Sindlinger sees the automotive hedging as restricted to upper income families, indicating still another problem. "They represent about the only households who can afford to hedge buy," said Albert Sindlinger.

Despite concern and even fear, some economists believe the situation hasn't reached a point of no return. They say consumers still could slow their buying gradually rather than be forced to stop suddenly.

But almost nobody questions that the combination of a likely slowdown in credit extensions and the heavy advance buying that already has occurred will be reflected in weaker sales by this fall.

BRINGS RECORD PRICE — A five and three-quarter-inch Mosan enamel medallion depicting the Angel of Charity was sold at a Sotheby Parke Bernet auction in London Thursday for a record $2.22 million. The medallion dating from circa 1150 is attributed to the Belgian goldsmith Godefroid de Claire and was part of the Robert Von Hirsch estate. The record sum for a work art other than a painting was paid by West German dealer Reiner Zietz of Hanover, buying for Staatliche Museum of Berlin. (AP Laserphoto)

Four Still Hide In Wilderness

ELIZABETHTON, Tenn. (AP) — A search for four men accused of raping four teenaged hikers on the Appalachian Trail last week has been cut back but officials say the men still are in the rugged mountains along the Tennessee-North Carolina border.

"We've called off the real intensive manhunt but we're fairly certain they're still in there," Coleman Ramsey, an official in the district attorney general's office, said Thursday.

Authorities say the four men and a fifth arrested last Friday night raped four Raleigh, N.C., women camping atop Buck Mountain on June 15. Two of the women were 16 and the other two were 17.

The five men, all from the Roan Mountain area on the edge of the Cherokee National Forest, have extensive police records, according to officials.

"We'll know them when we see them; it's just a matter of seeing them," Ramsey said. "There's a lot of abandoned cabins and other places where they could be hiding. They also could be posing as backpackers."

David Jones, 22, was arraigned Monday on a rape charge and is being held in the Carter County Jail under $125,000 bond.

The other men named in warrants issued following Jones' arrest are identified as Gregory, Jerry and John Oaks, all brothers, and Billy Johnson.

The women hiked out of the woods on Friday and flagged down a deputy sheriff's car Saturday morning. They were taken to an Elizabethan hospital and picked up by their parents on Sunday.

Set Opening Of I-40 Segment

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A 6.4-mile segment of Interstate 40 from south of Swannanoa to U.S. 70 east of Black Mountain will be opened to traffic June 30.

State Transportation Secretary Thomas Bradshaw Jr. said the $12.5 million project will reduce traffic congestion in Black Mountain and increase tourism and travel in the area.

Lightning Can Strike Twice

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Don't bother to tell the Ronny Odell family of Greensboro that lightning doesn't strike in the same place twice — they don't believe old sayings any more.

That's because their one-story brick house has been struck by lightning twice, two days in a row, in the same room.

"It's really been struck three times," said Bill Mitchell, a neighbor of the Odells, who saw the latest lighting strike Thursday night.

"It had just started raining, and I called my daughter to the kitchen to see the hail," Mitchell said. "I saw first bolt strike — it came down and went into the bedroom on the corner. Then the second bolt hit directly after the other one. They weren't more than a second and a half behind each other."

The Odell house had been struck by lightning almost exactly 24 hours earlier during an another thunderstorm.

Kathleen Odell was still fanning smoke out of her house as her husband Ronny arived home from work Thursday to find his house had been hit by lightning for the second straight day.

"I felt assured by that old saying about lightning not striking the same place twice," Mrs. Odell said. "You have to believe what you see even when it's hard to."

Damage was minor from Wednesday's strike. Only a wall and mirror were cracked.

But the second strike was more serious. The lightning bolt set the walls on fire, and the Odells had to bring saucepans of water from the kitchen to put out the blaze. Mitchell tore sheetrock off the walls to get to the flames inside the walls.

Urge Focus On Family

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Leaders of six Christian denominations have appealed to organizers of the 1979 White House Conference on Families to keep its focus on traditional family values and not let it be diverted to promoting "alternative lifestyles."

The Protestant and Roman Catholic leaders said they recognized that "families must adapt to cultural change" but that "powerful forces" now active in U.S. society may try to use the conference to portray marriage and parenthood as "outworn or obsolete" although they remain essential pillars of social stability.

The statement, signed by leaders of five Protestant bodies and the U.S. Catholic Conference, was submitted by Southern Baptist social-concerns executive Foy Valentine to Joseph Califano, secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, who is planning the conference called by President Carter. Califano said this past week the conference was being rescheduled for sometime after the 1980 presidential elections.

New Moderator Is In Agreement

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Sara Bernice Mosely of Sherman, Texas, the first woman to be elected moderator of the Presbyterian Church in the U.S. (southern), told a news conference she agrees with a study paper's conclusions against ordination of homosexuals.

"It affirms our concern for homosexuals as persons and for their rights as citizens," she said. "But I believe their lifestyle is short of God's intent."

Buchwald...

Two days later, the attorney general of the United States is fishing off a pier when the same snail darter sees a toe in the water. Curious, it swims around for a few moments and then suddenly opens its jaws wide and grasps the toe. The attorney general falls over into the water and fights the snail darter for an hour, but the odds are hopeless. The attorney general is finally dragged out and returns to Washington, vowing to get the snail darter if it's the last thing he does.

In order to save the dam the town decides to hire a tough sea captain who hated snail darters ever since one had bitten off his fingernail years ago. From the description by the victims, he suspects this particular one was the same type of fish that had destroyed the use of his left hand. He is determined to get the snail darter, even if it costs him his life.

Ten yards offshore, the snail darter starts circling under the boat. It nuzzles the side, then it nips one of the oars. The captain glimpses its brown stomach. He is sure now that this is his hated enemy. He takes out the pocket knife and is about to stab it when the chief of police runs down to the shore and shouts, "Stop. The Supreme Court has just ruled 6-3 that the snail darter is an endangered species. If you touch it, I'll have to arrest you."

The captain, his arm raised, pretends not to hear, and the chief takes out his gun and shoots the berserk captain in the chest, explaining later at the inquest, "I had to do it. It was the law of the land."

STOPPED BY MEXICO

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A Mexican coast guard patrol has stopped the small Panamanian-flag freighter Migran in the Caribbean and found 10 tons of marijuana believed bound for the U.S. The ship and crew are being held for investigation.

us. Another lobbyist, also a faithful Democrat, said: "It's shameful, it's outrageous and it's been going on forever."

Our spot check showed no acceptances yet by health insurance lobbyists, a large part of the health lobby. Only one — representing Nationwide Insurance — indicated a clear desire to go if he could get home office clearance. The telephone prodders have their work cut out for them.

Apologists say such shabby methods are necessary for electing outstanding congressmen against tough opposition. But Rep. Barber Conable of New York, senior Republican on the House Ways and Means Committee, never has solicited Washington lobbyists, nor accepted more than $50 from anybody, even when facing a strong challenge from Democrat Midge Constanza in 1974. So maybe there is a decent alternative to the old-fashioned Washington shakedown.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Widely scattered showers are forecast today from the Pacific coast to the upper Great Lakes. Showers are also due for Florida and southern Georgia. Cool weather is expected for northern New England but sunny, warm weather is anticipated for most areas. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press

Thunderstorms rumbled across much of North Carolina Thursday, pelting some areas with hail and strong gusty winds. Heavy downpours accompanied some of the storms, which generally abated during the late afternoon over the western part of the state while continuing into early morning in the east.

Mostly sunny skies were expected today and fair weather is expected to prevail through the weekend. Daytime temperatures are expected to range generally in the 80s with lows at night in the 60s.

Wilmington was one of the warmest spots in the state Thursday as the mercury climbed to 90 degrees. Other highs included Fayetteville with 89, Charlotte 88 and Raleigh and Rocky Mount 87.

Some of the heaviest rains Thursday occurred at Goldsboro, Charlotte, Hickory and Greensboro. Rains persisted during the early hours this morning over the northeast and southeast portions of the state, but there was only a slight chance of any outbreak of afternoon showers.

Mixed Review On Civilian Cops

GRAHAM, N.C. (AP) — After a year in operation, the Civilian Service Organization here has gotten mixed reviews on its performance. Members of the organization say the public is pleased with their auxiliary police work, but law enforcement officials disagree, contending the group comes very close to impersonating police officers.

And state officials say the organization is not what the state had in mind when it encouraged communities to develop neighborhood watch programs.

CSO Chief Charlie Coggins said that when the organization was formed last January, state and local law enforcement officials were afraid they would be a nuisance.

But Coggins says the auxiliary policemen have not gotten in the way of law enforcement officers and instead have contributed a useful service to the community.

He said the 12-man, three-car crime prevention unit patrols neighborhoods and area businesses, acting as a deterrent to potential break-ins and vandalism. They alert conventional law enforcement agencies of any disturbances.

Coggins said the group was formed because conventional law enforcement agencies "were tied up in court a lot," rather than being out on the streets.

The CSO has no law enforcement powers, and Coggins said the officers do not attempt to act as if they do. But they look like conventional law enforcement officers with their uniforms, badges, revolvers and hats and cars with insignias.

The law enforcement officers who object to the presence of the CSO in the community cite their appearance as one of the reasons. Graham Police Chief William Miles feels the group "may convince, by their actions, our out-of-town visitors, and even some of our local folks, that they do, indeed, represent the law here."

Barbara Smith, assistant secretary of the state Crime Control and Public Safety Department, said there is no state law prohibiting what the group is doing.

"Unless they are engaging in illegal arrests, there is no way anybody can control them," she said. "They are just like any other community watch group, except for the guns, uniforms and cars, which is a major difference."

Miles said his department has at times been hampered by the group when the men have responded to a crime scene prior to the police arriving. In some cases, Miles said, they have prevented the police from gaining required information and disturbed the scene of the crime.

On the good side, Miles said, "They have, at times, helped my officers with some traffic handling problems when the occasion arose in Graham for extra men to be on the streets, for carnivals and such."

He said he supports community watch programs, "But when it gets right down to some of our citizens pretending to be police officers without benefit of proper training, it's just not right to my way of thinking."

Coggins said CSO members do not receive the extensive training and schooling that conventional policemen do. And Miles said they cannot be regular police officers under existing regulations until they pass the test requirements and become fully paid, sworn law officers.

A sergeant with the N.C. Highway Patrol said he believes the intentions of the auxiliary police unit were good. But D.R. Steward added, "I think they are going about it the wrong way. Law enforcement needs civilian input. But not done in this manner by a few individuals portraying themselves as law officers."

And Alamance County Sheriff John Stockard said he did not condemn the efforts of the group. "Our jobs depend on help from the public. But there is a right way and a wrong way to provide that help. And they are very close to performing in the wrong way."

Little's Plaints Aired

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Joan Little, who was returned here from New York earlier this month, has filed eight grievances about the conditions of her confinement at the state Correctional Center for Women, her attorney said Thursday.

Attorney Jerry Paul of Durham said the complaints involve her isolated confinement in a "close custody" cell at the penitentiary.

Miss Little escaped from the prison last October and was apprehended in New York about two months later. After claiming her life would be in danger if she was returned to North Carolina, she lost her battle against extradition.

She gained international attention when she was tried for murder in the icepick slaying of a white jailer in 1975. She was serving a term of 7-10 years for breaking and entering when she escaped last fall.

Prison officials scoffed at the idea the 24-year-old black woman would be in any physical danger at the prison and maintained that she would be treated like any other inmate.

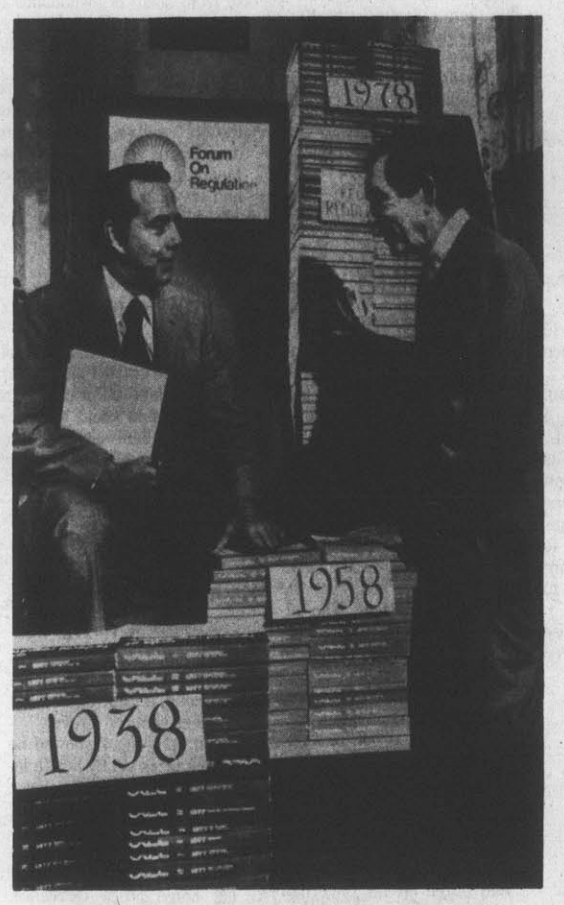

Paul said the grievances included complaints that she was isolated from other inmates, handcuffed for a trip to the prison law library, told not to communicate with other inmates and refused permission to call her lawyer for a time.

The Carolinian, a black-owned newspaper in Raleigh, said Miss Little sent it a copy of her grievances, dated June 13.

"I am filing this grievance because of unnecessary harrassment, treatment since my return to NCCCW (the prison)," the newspaper said. "Yet I am said to be treated 'as any other inmate, no better, no worse.'

"This causes unneeded tension and mental frustrations."

Prison officials could not be reached for comment Thursday.

Nazi Leader Calls Off Planned Skokie March

By MARC WILSON
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Nazi leader Frank Collin says his battle has been won and he has "totally succeeded in restoring white man's free speech rights." But the possibility lingers for a street confrontation between neo-Nazis and militant Jews.

Collin, in full storm trooper regalia, told a news conference Thursday that he was calling off a Skokie march planned for Sunday because a federal court has made it possible for his group to rally in a Chicago park. Collin described his attempts at getting a parade permit in Skokie as "pure agitation" over the free speech issue.

Cancellation of the rally in Skokie — where more than 4,000 survivors of World War II Nazi concentration camps live — was hailed as "a triumph for mankind" by village Mayor Albert Smith.

Collin said he would hold a "victory rally" Saturday afternoon outside a federal building in downtown Chicago. The Jewish Defense League said it would confront the Nazis at the rally.

The militant Jewish Defense League had threatened to confront the Nazis in Skokie.

Rabbi Meir Kahane, founder of the league, attended the news conference and taunted Collin.

"You have no businessn Chicago; come to Skokie where we can deal with you!" Kahane shouted as he stood in the door to Nazi headquarters. Police made Kahane leave.

Collin's remarks came seven hours after U.S. District Judge George Leighton signed an order saying the Nazis may march in Chicago's Marquette Park without posting insurance required by the city park district.

"The people we want to win over to our cause will be found in Marquette Park, certainly not Skokie," Collin said.

Meanwhile, the park district said it was studying Leighton's order and hoped to find a way to block Collin's request for a July 9 parade permit.

"We haven't given him a permit and we don't want to give him one," said district spokesman Arnie Matanky. Matanky said the district probably would issue a statement today.

Collin said he "doubts very much" that the park district can block his request.

"But if they do, we'll just go back to Skokie. We'll start the whole thing over again," he said.

Public Meetings Scheduled For July

RALEIGH — Based on the response to the "North Carolina Tomorrow" survey form distributed statewide last fall, the office of Governor James Hunt has announced four hearings to be held during the month of July.

As a means for public input following the survey conducted by Gov. Hunt and the State Goals and Policy Board, the hearings are designed to reflect citizen's wishes in maintaining the state's small-town lifestyle while protecting the environment.

Among factors considered in the survey and to be emphasized in the hearings are ones such as more and better jobs, welfare, health care, child development, the elderly, and government.

The hearing nearest Greenville will be the one to be held at 7:30 p.m. Monday, July 17 in the Martin County Auditorium on the campus of Williamston High School.

Other meetings will be held in Fayetteville, Thomasville and in Haywood County.

The survey distributed in late 1977 was answered by more than 100,000 Tar Heels. Response was heavy in some areas, and light in others.

The Pitt County figure of the numbers responding is 801 — less than neighboring counties such as Edgecombe with 1,270 responses, and Lenoir, 1'759. Wake County showed the largest response, 5,212, followed by Mecklenburg with 4,155 responses.

Anyone interested in attending the hearing to be held in Willimaston is invited.

GOP Has No Shortage Of Presidential Aspirants

By DON McLEOD
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gerald Ford makes speeches and public appearances and works with an organization called the American Enterprise Institute as he doesn't run for president.

Ronald Reagan makes speeches and public appearances and works with an organization called Citizens for the Republic as he doesn't run or president.

Bob Dole makes speeches and public appearances and works with an organization called Campaign America as he doesn't run for president.

It is hard to find a Republican who will admit running, but just the hope of making Jimmy Carter a one-term president has lots of them tripping over one another trying to campaign by not campaigning.

One, George Bush, has gone further than any one else.

On Thursday night he told a $125-a-plate fundraiser in New Jersey that he "would like to run for president in 1980."

The former envoy to China, CIA director, U.N. ambassador and party chairman said that if Carter continues his present policies, he thinks he has a good chance of beating him in the next election.

The presidential primaries are nearly two years away. Nobody has formally announced a candidacy yet; it would be unseemly. But there is no shortage of candidates to be candidates: "We must have 20 of them out there," says one Republican strategost.

The list is long and luminous, including senators, congressmen and governors.

There is Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, who got a national image as ranking Republican of the Watergate committee; former Texas Gov. John B. Connally, who turned Republican after heading Democrats for Nixon; and, of course, Bush.

Newer names include Reps. Philip Crane of Illinois, Jack Kemp of New York and John Anderson of Illinois.

Reagan's near miss against Ford in the battle for the 1976 Republican nomination and Ford's against Carter in the election have kept their partisans dreaming of what might have been. Recent polls showing either leading Carter in hypothetical rematches rekindled the flame.

Party insiders believe Ford still commands the loyalty of the traditionalists; that no new mainstreamer has a serious claim to the mantle.

Reagan keeps himself in the forefront of candidate talk through Citizens for the Republic, which he formed from the remains of his 1976 organization. It supports one of the busiest speaking schedules in politics. Reagan also writes a newspaper column and has a radio show.

Ford has benefit of the staff provided all former presidents, but he leans even more on his position as "distinguished fellow" of the American Enterprise Institute, a conservative think tank based in Washington.

Ford spends a lot of time speaking on behalf of the institute, largely to college audiences, but he also is busy maintaining party fences at rallies and fundraisers across the country.

In a recent speech, Ford listed the people he thinks are the Republican contenders. He included his own name. But when pressed on his intentions, he says only that he is keeping his options open.

Dole, who commands a lot of party loyalty for his 1976 campaigning, has formed Campaign America, a committee to support his political activity. He has been to at least 35 states this year, making him and Bush the most active prospects.

When Ford passed over Baker for the No. 2 spot on the 1976 ticket, Baker let it be known that No. 2 would not be enough the next time around. As Senate minority leader he has a large staff and shares with House GOP leader John Rhodes a "Leadership Fund" that supports their party activities.

Baker now spends most of his off-duty time in Tennessee running for re-election. A big victory would raise his prestige for 1980.

Kemp is a rising star, an early tax revolter said to be developing into the GOP's hottest platform personality.

He was among the first to tap the rising taxpayers' rebellion and is sponsoring proposals in Congress to cut income tax rates by 30 percent. A former professional football star, he also appeals to youth.

Crane also is young and dynamic. He is more closely identified with the New Right conservatives. His power base is the American Conservative Union, which he heads. He helped lead the fight against the Panama Canal treaties.

There is talk about some young GOP governors, people like James Thompson of Illinois, Robert Ray of Iowa, William Milliken of Michigan and Pierre S. DuPont of Delaware.

Thompson is running for a second term, and like Baker needs a big victory to boost his national prospects. He won popularity in the party by winning in a 1976 election that otherwise was dismal for Republicans.

Ray, who seems sure to win a fifth term in Iowa this fall, is among the country's most popular governors. Milliken has the same kind of young and bright image, but faces a closer race for re-election in Michigan.

Connally may be the most invited speaker in the party. He formed the John Connally Citizens Forum to support his travels.

He was charged during the Watergate scandals with taking illegal payments from the dairy industry. He was acquitted and now says he is the only one from that era whose name has been officially cleared by a jury.

Fans of Sen. Lowell Weicker of Connecticut, another Watergate committee veteran, have formed a Weicker '80 committee to sound out his prospects. And Sen. Richard Schweicker of Pennsylvania, who Reagan picked in 1976 as his would-be running mate, might inherit some help from the old campaign should Reagan drop out.

GOP HOPEFULS — Nobody has announced yet, but there is no shortage of candidates to be candidates for the GOP Presidential nomination. They include former President Gerald Ford, John Connally, Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-Ill., Sen. Howard Banker, R-Tenn.; and Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., George Bush, Ronald Reagan, and Rep. John Anderson, R-Ill. (AP Laserphoto)

Truck Rams House Again

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Two encounters with a runaway meat truck in the past six months is enough to convince Ida Brown that it's time to move.

"I can't stay here any longer," Mrs. Brown said Thursday as she surveyed the latest damage to her bathroom wall. "This is the second time this has happened and I was hurt this time. I don't know where I'm going, but I have to get away from here."

Mrs. Brown said she was stepping into the bathtub Wednesday when the truck, owned by the Consolidated Meat-Poultry and Egg Co., came rolling down a hill and slammed into her bathroom wall.

"I had one foot in the tub when the truck rammed the tub against the wall and knocked me out of the tub," she said.

Mrs. Brown said it was the same vehicle that hit her bathroom six months ago knocking over her toilet.

Mrs. Brown is now keeping a wary eye.

"That truck is parked in the same place today," she said, "and I hope they can keep it there."

Took Honors In Burlington

Two Greenville based men, Dick Paddock and Fred Roll, took honors in the Mr. Triad Physique competition held last Saturday in Burlington.

Paddock, a 1973 graduate of East Carolina University, placed second in the competition open to male residents of North Carolina. He was a member of the ECU football team from 1969 to 1972. "The judge told me it was a close decision between me and the first place winner, Jack Davenport of Burlington." Paddock calls Greenville "home," and currently is employed in Nags Head.

Both men are just about identical in size — each stand 6' 1" and weigh in at 215 pounds. "We're stepping up our training schedule in preparation for the Mr. North Carolina competition to take place in September," Roll said, indicating the two have concentrated training ahead during the summer months.

Cars Collided At Intersection

Vehicles driven by Everett Lee Hutchings of Route 3, Ayden, and Frances Patrick Oglesby of Grifton, collided about 3:55 p.m. yesterday at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Hooker Road.

Police, who charged Mrs. Oglesby with failing to stop for a stop light, estimated damage from the mishap at $3,000 to the Oglesby car and $2,000 to the truck driven by Hutchings.

Mrs. Oglesby was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment of minor injuries and released.

Lonely Horse Needs Friend

SEATTLE (AP) — Dick, the Belgian draft horse at Woodland Park Zoo, has been in the dumps since his life-long pal, Dan, died recently of the colic.

A replacement would cost $3,000 and the zoo can't afford it. But in a desperate effort to get rid of Dick's blues, zoo officials brought in a 30-year-old mule, Warhoop.

Dick was unimpressed.

Jake O'Shaughnessey's — a Seattle bar whose drafts are a horse of a different color — has come to the rescue, starting a fund to find a successor to Dan. The owners kicked in the first $1,000.

The zoo wants a female and thinks under the circumstances, Jake's Lady would be an appropriate name. Everyone down at Jake's agrees.

Nobody told Dick about it so he hasn't ventured a neigh ... or a yea.

More Trust Among The Church-Goers

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans have more confidence in the churches than in eight other key institutions of society, an extensive study has found. But church-goers trust organized religion much more than those not involved in it.

The study, the first to examine broadly the differing attitudes of the "churched" and the "unchurched," found that 80 percent of church participants have a "great deal" or "quite a lot" of confidence in organized religion — more than feel that way about any other major institution, from big business to the U.S. Congress.

In fact, Congress and television rated the lowest in public confidence both among the churched and the unchurched. Among the unchurched, 73 percent had at least "some" confidence in organized religion, but they ranked it fifth, below banks, public schools, the military and the U.S. Supreme Court.

Since the "unchurched" make up only 41 per cent of the adult population, the overall average gave the highest credence to religion among major institutions. It was ahead even for "unchurched" people of big business, labor unions, Congress and TV.

This was only one aspect of a vast array of comparative data gathered by the Gallup poll organization for an ecumenical coalition of 29 Protestant and Roman Catholic denomminations in a joint project arranged by the National Council of Churches.

With initial results released this week, Peggy L. Shriver of the NCC's research office, said analysis of the vast accumulation of data "has only begun" and that further implications derived from it "may prove even more instructive."

The unusual element of the study, she noted, is that it digs into attitudes of those whom the churches know little about — "the people who don't ever come to church" — and brings out their views in comparison with those of church-goers.

Intriguingly, most of the church-goers said that when they were children, their parents attended church frequently, while this was not the case with most of the presently "unchurched."

Another influential factor — raising a cloud over the future for the churches — is the sharp decline in the proportion of Americans who get religious training in childhood — the percentage having slid from 94 percent in 1952 down to 83 per cent at present.

A key objective of the year-long study, involving personal interviews with a cross-section totalling 2,103 people, was to find out how the "unchurched" differ from church-goers, what factors led them to shun the churches and what churches could do to attract them.

On the latter score, George Gallup Jr. said the findings indicate that about half the 60 million "unchurched" adults are reachable and potentially can be won back to church life, while the other half are less likely to be responsive.

To Address PWP Group

Greenville Chapter 1058 of Parents Without Partners Inc. will hear Dr. Charles Snow tonight at 7:30 at Jarvis Church here.

Dr. Snow is Coordinator of Pre-School Programs in the Department of Child Development and Family Relations at East Carolina University. He will talk about "Principals of Discipline," placing special emphasis on the unique needs of the single-parent home. Babysitting is available at 50 cents per family.

Saturday the chapter is having a family beach trip to Fort Macon State Park. Cars will leave Jarvis Church parking lot at 8 a.m. Members and courtesy card holders are reminded to bring picnic lunches.

The group will be guests of the Goldsboro Chapter Sunday at a family bowling activity. Cars will leave Jarvis Church at 2 p.m. A dutch eat-out will follow the bowling.

Information about PWP may be obtained by calling 752-1674 or 758-9954 evenings.

Bankruptcy For Church In Dunn

DUNN, N.C. (AP) — While it's not uncommon for churches to have financial problems, church and state officials say the Emmanuel Baptist Church will be in an unusual situation when it goes to court next week facing bankruptcy.

The five-year-old independent Baptist church is having difficulty satisfying more than $600,000 in debts, mostly involving the construction of a a modern, 24,000-square-foot building.

Emmanuel Baptist was organized in 1973 by the Rev. Ed Walker after a split in the membership of the Long Branch Pentecostal Church. The new building was financed through the sale of unsecured bonds.

When Walker resigned as pastor in July 1976 following a heart attack, the church had not been able to meet its debt payments for several months. The Rev. Ronald E. Howland says that when he took over as pastor in October 1976 the church was "for all intents and purposes already bankrupt."

Attorneys for the church and a group of its creditors will appear before Judge Thomas M. Moore of Wilson Tuesday to find out whether he will accept a reorganization plan filed under Chapter XI of the federal Bankruptcy Act.

Attorney Patrick H. Pope of Dunn, who represents about 30 of the 148 creditors, termed the repayment plan "totally unreasonable" and "unacceptable to my clients."

However, Robert F. Cook, an Atlanta attorney representing the church, said the plan, permitting the church to continue operation while repaying 75 percent of the bonds over the next 21 years, is the best option he has seen.

The Rev. Bob Shepherd of Sanford, president of the Baptist State Convention General Board, said it is unusual for a church to file for banktuptcy but that it is not unusual for congregations to have trouble with debts.

"Too often, congregations — particularly in independent churches — center around one man, one charismatic-type leader," Shepherd said. "When he leaves, membership falls off and a church that needs its offerings to pay off a bond indebtedness finds itself with a declining income."

Cook said churches, particularly in small towns, generally find it difficult to sell their buildings when financial troubles come along.

"You know, one easy solution is for the congregation to disband and walk away," he said. "I admire the people of these churches that say 'we're going to stick it out. We're going to do our best to pay these debts.'"

Youth Services Sunday Morning

Youth services will be held at Rock Spring Free Will Baptist Church Sunday, 11 a.m., with Elder James Smith, No. 2 choir and ushers in charge of services.

The deacons of the church will celebrate their eighth anniversary Sunday, 4 p.m., with Elder Walter Cherry and Anderson Chapel Missionary Baptist Church in charge of services.

The W. L. Phillips Traveling Choir will sponsor a four-night service beginning Tuesday. The following ministers will speak: Bishop W. H. Mitchell and Good Hope Church, Tuesday; Bishop J. W. Gilbert and Arthur Chapel Church, Wednesday; Bishop J. H. Vines and Lewis Chapel Church, Thursday; Elder J. L. Wilson and Little Creek Church, Friday.

Bishop W. L. Phillips invites the public to attend.

Choral Group Appears Sunday

The Voices of Deliverance of Hertford will appear at Cornerstone Missionary Baptist Church Sunday at 4 p.m. The group is directed by Mrs. Frozine R. Green, an instructor in voice training at Elizabeth City State University.

The presentation is sponsored by the Dollar Club of the church. The public is invited to attend.

Church Marking Its 54th Year

FOUNTAIN — St. James Free Will Baptist Church will celebrate its 54th anniversary with services each night next week.

The Monday through Friday services will feature Albert J. H. Williams of Newark, N. J. as speaker. Different choirs will perform nightly.

Robert Phillips, pastor, invites the public to attend the 7:30 programs.

Evangelist To Be Appearing

Dr. West Shields of Greenville, evangelist, will appear tonight at the Morning Star Holiness Church, Pinetops at 7:30 p.m.

Dr. West will be at Mount Herman Baptist Church, Rocky Mount, Sunday, 11 a.m. He will be accompanied by Bessie Ford and the Morning Star Baptist Church chorus.

The public is invited to attend these services.

Guest Women's Day Speaker

Eldress M. Louise Phillips will be the guest speaker at the annual Women's Day Sunday, 11 a.m., at Simpson Free Will Baptist Church. A special children's talk will be given by Sister Ella Telfaire. Bishop Matthew Best, pastor, and the congregation invite the public to attend.

Attack Agency Tax Proposal

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The president of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod says a recent U.S. Department of Labor ruling requiring private elementary and secondary schools to pay unemployment taxes violates the U.S. Constitution and could cripple church-run parochial schools.

The Rev. Dr. J. A. O. Preus said that getting the ruling reversed is of "highest priority if we are to preserve the separation of church and state." About 1,600 congregations of the denomination run church schools, the nation's largest Protestant educational system.

Lead Services Sunday Evening

Elder Lonnie Tillery and Christ Temple congregation and choir will lead a service at New Hope Temple House of Prayer on Brown Street here Sunday at 6:30 p. m.

Offerings will go to the building fund. The public is invited.

ARGUMENT CHALLENGED

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A three-year study report, issued by the Catholic Theological Society of America, challenges traditional Roman Catholic arguments against ordination of women, and maintains there is no sound theological reason why women should not be admitted to the priesthood.

Bible School To Begin Monday

A week-long Vacation Bible School is being held at Hollywood Presbyterian Church beginning Monday, June 26 and continuing through Friday, June 30.

The Bible School will be held during evening hours, from 7 to 9 p.m. There will be classes for all ages from three year-olds through adult ages. Nursery services will be available for parents needing such services.

Hollywood Church is located six miles south of Greenville on N. C. 43. All interested persons are invited to attend.

Bible School Begins June 26

Vacation Bible School will be held at Maranatha Free Will Baptist Church, located at 1407 E. 14th St., June 26-30, begining at 7:30 each evening.

James Sadler will be conducting the services, for all ages, each evening. Singing, flannelgraph stories, animated cartoons-Bible centered, Bible teaching, games and refreshments will be included.

Unprecedented Co-Pastor Role

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — In an arrangement termed unprecedented, a black woman and a white man have been appointed co-pastors of a United Methodist church in a racially changing neighborhood.

Bishop Earl G. Hunt jr. of Nashville and his cabinet appointed the pair, the Rev. Marjorie Gray, 49, and the Rev. Robert Strickland, 39, to Andrews United Methodist Church.

Singspiration Sunday Night

WINTERVILLE — The Vacation Bible School commencement will be combined with a singspiration at the Winterville Free Will Baptist Church Sunday night at 7:30.

BEST PERFORMANCE

All he has to do is stay on for eight seconds.
But that can be the longest eight seconds of the day when the rodeo performer gets a particularly spirited bronco.
He knows that when he gives the final nod of his head and that big gate is swung open, some horses turn into twisting, turning beasts who seem to breathe fire and stomp lightning.
Yet every performer hopes he will get that very kind of mount. Unless the horse puts on a wild display during the ride, the judges will score the rider low and he will miss the prize.
Anything that brings a special reward usually requires a person to go beyond his normal performance.
Shouldn't we all then be ready to give an extra share of our talents and abilities if we want eternal life—the greatest reward ever promised to man?
This Sunday come to church and find how it's done.

Taxes Are TD Passes To Congressman Jack Kemp

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — America first heard of Jack Kemp when he wore No. 15, as star quarterback for the Buffalo Bills. Kemp's in politics now and his number is 13, as in Proposition 13.

Taxes are to politician Kemp, what the long, touchdown pass was to quarterback Kemp — a dramatic move sure to bring the crowd to its feet to cheer its hero.

Before California voters served notice on public officials everywhere that high taxes are a major political issue, Kemp was viewed as just another junior congressman, good-looking, athletic and more articulate than most.

Obviously ambitious, he was placed ideologically in the conservative wing of the Republican Party.

Then he began pushing his proposal to cut tax rates across the board by 30 percent.

A few people listened and then quickly pointed out that Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, was opposed to the Kemp proposal, as was a majority of the panel.

But the Republican National Committee took up the Kemp plan and began pushing it as a viable issue for GOP candidates to run with in 1978.

Then came Tuesday, June 6, and Kemp had two quick scores, one in California, the other in New Jersey.

California voters, by a margin of 2-1, approved a sweeping rollback of property taxes, while in New Jersey, a little-known conservative upset veteran Sen. Clifford Case in the Republican primary.

A major issue in the campaign of Jeffrey Bell, a former speechwriter for Ronald Reagan, was the Kemp tax cut plan. No one knows how many votes Bell gained with the tax cut issue. Case's overconfidence may have been a far greater factor.

But the fact is that by Wednesday morning, politicians were taking a second look at Jack Kemp and his tax plan.

What they found was a very smooth politician with a clear view of where he'd like to go. And the next stop, politically, is the U.S. Senate in 1981.

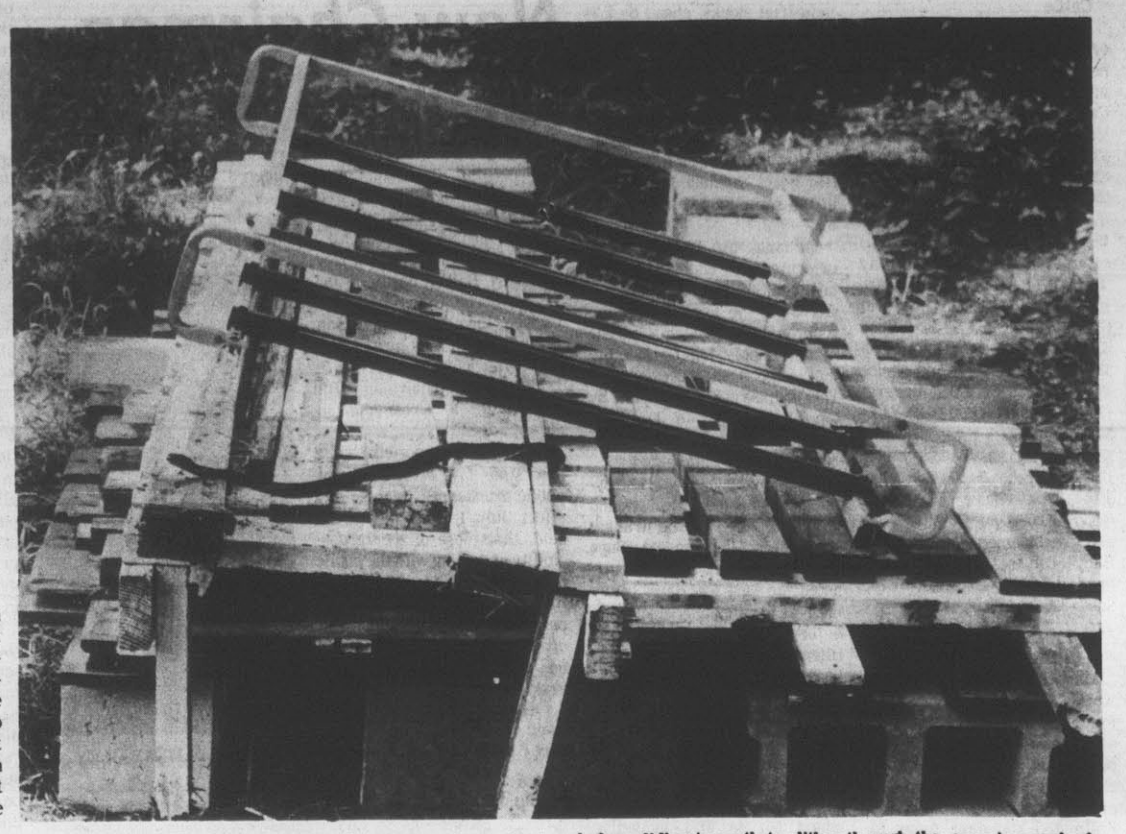

Kemp wants to run for the Senate in 1980 when Jacob K. Javits current term expires. If Javits, also a New York Republican, decides to seek reelection, Kemp says he'll reconsider.

Now, Kemp is putting a little room between himself and Proposition 13.

He calls the California vote "radical surgery," and emphasizes that his plan is designed to stimulate the economy rather than cut government services.

The Buffalo congressman cites economists who say that such a broad tax cut would increase investment and economic activity in general to the point where there would be no revenue loss to the government despite the sharp reduction in rates. Kemp claims his tax cut plan would dramatically reduce unemployment.

At such moments, this conservative Republican sounds very much like Hubert Horatio Humphrey.

DAILY OUTING — Ripples, a half-grown black snake — about three feet long — who makes his home in this stack of old lumber and cement blocks, makes an appearance each day about three in the afternoon. A cautious fellow, he scouts the area for minutes before sliding to earth to slither through the grass in search of whatever a black snake seeks in the afternoons. (Reflector Photo By Jerry Raynor)

The Outdoors Stirs Larger Enthusiasms

By KATHY SYLVESTER
Associated Press Writer

FLINTSTONE, Md (AP) — Hikers, bikers, backpackers and canoeists are out in numbers. They've pulled on their hiking boots, filled their packs, grabbed their paddles and are getting a firsthand glimpse of redbud and mountain streams.

The old timers — the people who have known about the outdoors for years — chuckle when they talk about the more recent converts.

Members of local outdoor groups, such as the Potomac Appalachian Trail club, the Sierra Club or the the Wanderbirds, say their ranks are growing as the novices discover the joys of nature.

"On most every hike we have two or three new members, and it doesn't take long before they're so enthusiastic that they're organizing hikes of their own," said Walter Wells, a veteran hiker and conservation chairman of a local Sierra Club chapter, said.

Wells said the Sierra Club has been constantly growing in recent years, and other outdoor organizations report similar experiences.

The Washington area's Potomac Appalachian Trail Club, which includes suburbs in both Maryland and Virginia, has zoomed to 3,000 members since the early 1970s.

Since its inception 50 years ago, the club has assumed responsibilty for maintenance of 225 miles of the Appalachian trail. Their section of the trail runs from the Susquehanna River in Maryland to the south end of Rockfish Gap near Virginia's Skyline Drive.

The group keeps that segment in good hiking condition, and maintains shelters and cabins which are available for hikers.

For those who prefer less rugged terrain, the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal stretches for 184 rolling miles along the Potomac River, from Washington to Cumberland, Md.

As the Canal, the Appalachian Trail, and the region's many parks become popular weekend retreats, outfitters and stores that supply camping gear have noticed a sharp increase in business.

Bill Plough, who works at Oakton, Virginia's Appalachian Outfitters, says business is booming, with people's interests ranging from backpacking to whitewater canoeing.

"Everybody's trying to get out — they just want to get out of the city," he said. "So they come here to get ideas and advice, as well as equipment."

Plough said he's delighted at the "grand increase" in outdoor sports, but added: "Sometimes you worry that some day it's going to be hard to find a secluded spot."

Wells echoed the sentiment.

"There's no question that the outdoors is where it's at for a great many people these days," he said. "I think it's an opportunity for them to get away from noise — from the interruptions of their daily lives.

"The solitude — if you want to call it that — is something that everyone needs. If the outdoors becomes so popular that the trails get crowded, then we'll all have to move on," he said.

"But right now it's okay, because I can still tell you about a spot in the Shenandoahs that no one else knows about ... ."

Tips On Required Employer Records

Tip for employers on keeping required records are offered by Mary Cain, district manager of the Social Security Office in Greenville.

"Employers must keep accurate records for social security purposes," Ms. Cain states. "Records required are the name and address of each employee, the social security number, the amount of wages paid, and the employer's identification number."

Another requirement is that an employer file certain reports — including summary reports of wages to the Internal Revenue Service after each quarter. This is done on Form 941. Also, a detailed report of wages to the Social Security Administration at the end of each year is required using Form W-2. Each employee is also to receive copies of the W-2 form.

Tips for good record keeping include these suggestions to employers: Copy each new employee's name and number as shown on ther employee's social security card, and make a record of home address. If an employee uses a different name than the one shown on the social security card — or if the employee has a name change — instruct the employee to contact a social security office so that social security records can be changed.

Additional information can be obtained by contacting the social security office located at 103 Plaza Drive, or by telephoning, 756-2368.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market turned mixed today as immediate worries over the rising cost of money abated a bit but as the the dollar continued its recent slide.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, ahead by 2.34 at 11 a.m., was down .34 to 827.36 at noon. Gainers outnumbered losers by just under a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Big Board volume came to 12.99 million shares in the first two hours, against 13.7 million in the same period the day before.

Citibank, usually the leader in prime rate changes, left its prime at 8¾ percent today, a day after the Federal Reserve reported the nation's basic money supply fell by $1.1 billion in the week ended June 14. The prime rate is that paid by top-rated corporate borowers and a possible jump to 9 percent had been anticipated.

Once again, virtually anything connected with casino gambling was in the trading spotlight. Allegheny Airlines rose 1 to 11½. The company noted the past few days' heavy interest in Allegheny stock may be because it has the only certificated airline service to Atlantic City, N.J.

Ramada Inns, which owns 7 percent of casino operator Del E. Webb, was the NYSE volume leader at 9¾, up ⅞. Del E. Webb gained 2¼ to 24⅞. Resorts International class A added 5¾ to 81¾ in active American Stock Exchange trading.

Among other NYSE issues, Howard Johnson's rose 1 to 15⅛. Retail issues were mixed, with Sears Roebuck up ⅛ at 23⅛, May Department Stores up ⅜ at 25 and Federated Department Stores down ⅜ to 36⅛.

Oils were mixed, with an actively-traded Gulf up ⅛ at 23¼ and Mobil off ⅛ at 65⅝. Mobil said it had begun drilling for oil off the New Jersey coast. IBM dropped 1⅝ to 264¾ and Reynolds Industries gained 1⅛ to 54¾.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose .12 to 54.19; at the Amex, the market value index rose .43 to 147.61.

Men's Equality Coalition Gathers

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Participants in the inaugural meeting of a men's liberation organization were told today that males should work toward the elimination of laws that favor women in child support, child custody, alimony and other areas.

Ken Lewis, associate professor of social work at East Carolina University at Greenville, N.C., outlined several areas in which he called for changes during the keynote address at the meeting of Men's Equality Now.

He described MEN as a coalition of action groups that is planning to build support around the nation and in other countries.

"The coalition's chief purpose is to work toward the elimination of unfair institutional bias in domestic issues such as alimony, child support, child custody and visitation — all areas in which laws and courts generally favor women to the detriment of men," Lewis said in prepared remarks.

He said alimony is based on the idea that divorced wives are entitled to financial payments from their former husbands, but that it should be replaced by the concept of "spousal support." He said spousal support would be based on the duration of the marriage and would provide temporary funds for the education or training of an unemployed spouse.

Child custody is a primary concern to MEN, he said, because about 90 percent of all child custody awards in the United States are made in favor of the mother.

"Men's liberationists favor removing contested custody cases from the courtrooms, rather having such matters decided by a panel of qualified experts," said Lewis, director of a project on single-father research

He suggested passage of a uniform child custody jurisdiction law that would prohibit a parent who does not have custody from taking a child across state lines to another jurisdiction.

Lewis said the federal Parent Locator Service, set up to assist states in tracking down runaway fathers who fail to make child-support payments, discriminates against men. He suggested a locator service to help parents who are denied visitaton rights because of a former spouse leaving with the child.

He credited the women's liberation movement with identifying some problems of equality between the sexes but said there are other problems MEN will work to solve.

New Chairman Of Area Board

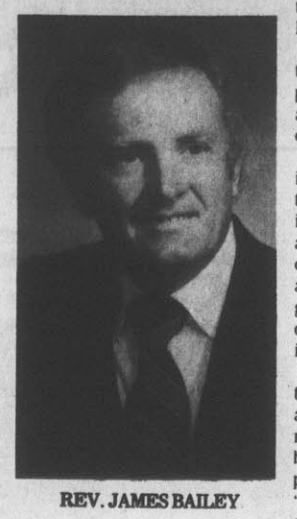

A new chairman and vice chairman of the Pitt County Area Mental Health Board were chosen during a meeting of the Board Tuesday.

The new chairman is the Rev. James H. Bailey, pastor of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church; the new vice-chairman, Raymond Reddrick, principal of G. R. Whitfield School.

The outgoing chairman is Bill McDonald, a Greenville insurance agent.

Rev. Bailey reported that a new state law decriminalizing public drunkenness is to go into effect July 1. This means, he said, that more of the responsibility of dealing with the public inebriate is going to be placed on the shoulders of mental health personnel, with law enforcement officers able to detain, but not use public drunkenness as an arresting offense.

Proposed changes in the fee scale for clients of the respite care program for mentally retarded persons was considered. Following much discussion, the matter was referred to the finance committee for further deliberation.

Seek Involve Pitt Public

The Committee to Keep Pitt County Clean and Beautiful met here yesterday.

The Survey Committee, chaired by Sylvia Wheless, reported that a poster contest for the Pitt County Schools is planned for next fall. This is a public awareness measure.

The need to involve people in each of the townships was emphasized by Sam Uzzell, Assistant Agricultural Extension Agent. Efforts to enlist community-minded people in each township to help clean up and beautify will continue, he said.

Jeff McAllister proposed two amendments to the by-laws which redistribute the representation of directors — one director from each township; two from Greenville, and the elected officers, for a total of 20 directors. Also, membership classes were set up according to the contribution of funds. These amendments must be voted on at the next meeting, which is scheduled for Thursday, July 20, at noon at the Three Steers Restaurant here.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N.C.

Fair weather is indicated Sunday through Tuesday with highs in the 80s and lows in the 60s.

Retaliation...

Peace funds were included in the $18-billion fiscal year 1979 appropriations bill for the Agriculture Department, Food and Drug Administration and related agencies before the 273-125 vote to delete the South Korean funds. A final 326-59 vote sent the package to the Senate.

Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Tex., said that no attempt would be made to cut the hundreds of millions in military aid destined for South Korea and the vote should not be seen as severing relations or an opening for "military adventures" by North Korea.

But Wright, declaring "the honor and integrity of the House is at stake," said that the roughly $4 million in other economic aid to that country is vulnerable to a similar move if the South Korean government doesn't get the message this time.

On May 31, by the greater margin of 321-46, the House voted a resolution stating it was prepared to deny or reduce economic aid if South Korea didn't waive diplomatic immunity for Kim to testify under oath.

Since that time, Jaworski said in a letter to House leaders on Monday, "there has been no substantial indication of cooperation."

Public testimony has accused the former ambassador and his wife of trying to give the money-stuffed envelopes to at least three congressmen. Jaworksi reportedly has told the ethics committee to which he is special counsel that eight to 10 current House members may have received such funds.

The former ambassador has called the charges ridiculous, but Jaworski said his testimony is essential to establish proof.

Costlier Goods As Dollar Falls

WASHINGTON (AP) — The cost of consumer goods will increase from one-half to 1 percent because the dollar has fallen against other currencies in world money markets, a White House official says.

William D. Nordhaus, of the president's Council of Economic Advisers, said about one-half of 1 percent will be directly attributed to the reduction of the dollar's value and another half percent will result from other inflationary factors such as wage and price boosts resulting from higher import prices.

Objection To Tax-Credit Bill

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Jewish Committee, an inter-Jewish community relations organization, has voiced opposition to a bill to provide income tax credits for tuition payments to private schools.

Orthodox Jewish groups have favored the bill, passed by the House of Representatives and now before the U.S. Senate. The AJC said the measure would "undermine the principle of separation of church and state."

Obituary Column

Davenport

GRIMESLAND — The Rev. William Smith Davenport, 61, retired minister of the North Carolina Conference of the United Methodist Church, died at his home near Grimesland Friday.

Funeral services will be held Sunday, 2 p.m., in the Grimesland United Methodist Church. Graveside services will be held at 4:30 Sunday afternoon in the Davenport Family Cemetery in the Mackeys community of Washington County. The body will be taken from the Wilkerson Funeral Home to the church one hour prior to services.

The Rev. Davenport was reared in the Mackeys community in Washington County and for a number of years was a partner in Davenport Hardware Co., Plymouth. He served with the U. S. Navy during World War II. Following his discharge, he attended Louisburg College and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Since 1952, he had served on the Jamesville circuit, Clark St. United Methodist Church, Rocky Mount, Southport United Methodist Church, Havelock United Methodist Church and LaGrange United Methodist Church. He retired in 1976 and had lived near Grimesland since that time.

Legion Clinches Tie

WILLIAMSTON — Pitt County's American Legion baseball team clinched at least a tie for the Eastern Area I championship by defeating Williamston last night 12-3.

The victory was the 13th straight of the season for Post 39, leaving the team with a 13-0 overall record and 11-0 conference mark. Pitt County has three games remaining on its regular season schedule. A victory in any of those games or a loss of any game by Snow Hill, will give the local team the undisputed title.

Post 39 put Williamston away early last night, building up a 12-0 lead in the first five innings. The home team didn't score until the eighth, when all three runs came across.

Winning pitcher Mike Williams went the distance for Pitt County, holding Williamston to just four hits. Mitch Smith was the loser, while Anthony Latham and Trent Ange both pitched in relief.

Pitt County banged out 11 hits, led by Will Sanderson and Jeff Aldridge with two each. Sanderson was responsible for four runs batted in, while Aldridge had three RBI's. Ronnie Chapman batting over .500, was 1-2, garnering a triple.

Pitt County put a trio of runs on the scoreboard in the first inning. Nuggie Worthington led off with a walk and was sacrificed to second by Chapman. Mike Shank waited out a base on balls and Kevin Adams singled to load things up. Worthington scored on a wild pitch, while Sanderson singled in Shank and Adams.

Three more runs were scored by Pitt County in the third. With one out, Chapman walked and Shank followed with a single. Adams knocked in Chapman with a base hit, but Shank was thrown out when Greg Lee reached on a fielder's choice. A wild pitch moved both runners up and they scored on a double by Sanderson.

The final six runs came in the fifth. Shank walked and Adams reached on an error. Both moved up on Greg Lee's sacrifice and Sanderson loaded the bases with a walk. Aldridge tripled them in and followed on a wild pitch. Williams and Worthington then walked and Chapman hit a triple to clear the bases.

Williamston scored three runs in the eighth. Ken Gurganus led off with a single and Bill Eubank walked. Both moved up on a passed ball and Latham reached on an error to score them. He came in on a double by Charlie Smith.

Williamston is now 6-5 for the season and will play at Snow Hill on Saturday. Post 39's next outing is also Saturday at Washington.

Denny Can't Seem To Hit The Right Time

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The last time he pitched, his opposite number was Tom Seaver — and the Cincinnati ace threw a no-hitter.

Thursday night, he ran into a hot Steve Carlton and the result was another tough loss for the St. Louis Cardinal pitcher.

"He pitched as good a game as I've seen since I took over (in April), including Tom Seaver's no-hitter," Cardinal Manager Ken Boyer said after a 2-1 loss to the Phillies. "With the stuff Denny had tonight, I wouldn't have been surprised if he pitched a no-hitter."

Denny allowed only three hits, struck out five and walked none in a complete-game performance, but lost because the Cardinals' offense consisted only of Keith Hernandez's home run.

Carlton, meanwhile, allowed the Cardinals only six other hits as he gained his fourth victory in his last five starts, his eighth this year and No. 199 of his career.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Cincinnati Reds beat the San Francisco Giants 5-0; the Houston Astros edged the Los Angeles Dodgers 4-3; the San Diego Padres blanked the Atlanta Braves 2-0 and the Montreal Expos trimmed the New York Mets 2-0.

NL Roundup

Reds 5, Giants 0

Bill Bonham and Manny Sarmiento combined on a three-hitter and Bonham belted a run-scoring single, helping Cincinnati beat San Francisco. Bonham was lifted after a one-out single and two walks loaded the bases for San Francisco in the seventh. Sarmiento took over and worked out of the jam, allowing just one hit the rest of the way for his fourth save.

Astros 4, Dodgers 3

Enos Cabell's two-out, tie-breaking single in the ninth inning led Houston over Los Angeles. Joe Niekro scattered six Los Angeles hits to earn the victory. He allowed only three hits after the first inning, when the Dodgers scored twice on Dave Lopes' home run and a sacrifice fly by Dusty Baker.

Padres 2, Braves 0

Bob Owchinko combined with Rollie Fingers on a five-hitter to pitch San Diego over Atlanta. Owchinko struck out two and walked one through 72-3 innings before Fingers finished up to record his 16th save.

Expos 2, Mets 0

Wayne Garrett's first home run of the season staked Hal Dues to an early lead and the young right-hander combined on a two-hitter with Mike Garman to help Montreal beat New York. With one out in the first, Garrett, a former Met, homered to give the Expos a 1-0 lead, and they added a run in the fourth on an RBI single by Del Unser, another former Met.

Error Helps Guidry Keep String Alive

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

When you're hot, you're hot, and Ron Guidry can only hope that one of these days the rest of the New York Yankees will join him.

Guidry was trailing 1-0 — Ron LeFlore's leadoff homer in the first inning — and was two outs away from having his unbeaten 1978 streak snapped at 11-0 Thursday night when the Yankees, with the aid of a costly Detroit error, rallied for four runs in the ninth inning and defeated the Tigers 4-2.

That enabled Guidry to tie the club record with a 12-0 start and left him three short of the American League record. The major league mark is 19-0.

"This is a big boost," said Guidry, who allowed six hits and struck out eight before giving way to Rich Gossage following a leadoff walk in the bottom of the ninth. "I feel very fortunate to win this game. When you're in a streak, you get breaks once in a while like this."

The rest of the Yankees have been slumping — take away Guidry's 12 wins and they are 27-28 — and they still trail first-place Boston by 7½ games in the AL East. They also are one game behind the Baltimore Orioles, who hammered the Milwaukee Brewers 10-3.

Elsewhere, the California Angels shaded the Minnesota Twins 4-2 in 12 innings, the Texas Rangers trounced the Oakland A's 8-2 and the Seattle Mariners downed the Chicago White Sox 8-6 in 10 innings.

Reggie Jackson homered with one out to begin the Yankees' four-run ninth after Dave Rozema held them to four singles over the first eight innings.

Orioles 10, Brewers 3

The Orioles also have a hot pitcher in Mike Flanagan, 11-4, who scattered 10 hits in posting his sixth consecutive triumph, while Eddie Murray's two-run homer sparked a four-run first inning and Kiko Garcia knocked in three runs with a double and a single. Lee May also homered as Baltimore won for the 18th time in its last 20 games.

AL Roundup

Angels 4, Twins 2

Ken Landreaux and Ron Jackson drove in 12th-inning runs with consecutive singles, enabling California to move within one percentage point of first-place Kansas City in the AL West. The Angels meet the Royals eight times in the next 15 games.

Rangers 8, A's 2

texas battered teenager Mike Morgan for six runs in the first three innings, including Bump Wills' triple and Bobby Bonds' double, and romped behind Dock Ellis' six-hit pitching. The 18-year-old Morgan, losing his third game in as many professional and major league starts, lasted only 21-3 innings. Meanwhile, Ellis blanked Oakland until the seventh when Wayne Gross hit a two-run homer.

Mariners 8, White Sox 6

Bob Stinson, who homered in the second inning, drilled a tie-breaking double in Seattle's two-run 10th as the lowly Mariners posted their fourth consecutive victory and third in a row over the White Sox. Bob Robertson singled with one out in the 10th off Jim Willoughby and pinch runner Larry Milbourne went to second on Bill Stein's single. One out later, Stinson doubled and a second run scored on Julio Cruz's infield hit.

Mantle In Hospital

DALLAS (AP) — Former New York Yankee superstar Mickey Mantle has been hospitalized in serious condition for treatment of ulcers, and his doctor says Mantle will remain hospitalized for at least one week.

Mantle entered Brookhaven Hospital Wednesday afternoon when officials said he was in critical condition.

Dr. Frank Altick said Mantle was in "serious but improved condition" Thursday night in the intensive care unit.

"He asked me not to put out any information about his condition," Altick said. But the doctor confirmed reports about Mantle's condition.

Altick said Mantle's attitude was "absolutely great."

"He's handling everything in his very quiet way," Altick said. "I can assure you he's very much okay."

Roy True, Mantle's attorney and business associate, said Mantle had abdominal pains Tuesday night and woke up with bleeding ulcers.

"The guy has just been on the road, one place to another, and the guy is just tired," True said. "I just think it caught up with him."

Dutch Team Is Experienced

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Holland could go into the World Cup soccer final against Argentina this Sunday with nine players who have been through it all before. That would be an all-time record.

If experience in big matches counts for anything, the Dutch will have a head start over the host country. Four years ago, at Munich's Olympic Stadium, they lost 2-1 to West Germany after taking a first-minute lead.

The greatest of all Dutch players, Johann Cruyff, has retired. Another 1974 star, Wim van Hanegem, has left the team. But the other nine are likely to be in Buenos Aires' River Plate Stadium Sunday.

"Cruyff was a wonderful player and is a great loss," said Arie Haan, the man who took over from Cruyff as captain. "But we had to start afresh and we have evolved a new style and a new pattern."

The survivors from the 1974 final who could play this Sunday are goalkeeper Jan Jongbloed, defenders Haan, Wim Suurbier, Wim Rijsbergen and Ernie Brandts, midfielders Wim Jansen and Johan Neeskens, and strikers Johnny Rep and Rob Rensenbrink.

A 10th member of the current squad, Rene van der Kerkhof, went on as a substitute in the later stages of the 1974 final.

Not all of these men will necessarily play. Jongbloed, the oldest player in the tournament at 37, has kept goal in only some of the games. His appearance depends on whether Holland's other goalie, Piet Schrijvers, recovers from injury.

Suurbier and Rijsbergen have both missed three matches because of injury but are working hard to be fit for the final.

If they all turn out they will surpass Brazil's record of fielding eight of the same players in the finals of 1958 and 1962. Brazil won the cup each time.

That great Brazilian team included legendary names like Pele, Didi and Garrincha. But Pele, the 17-year-old match-winner of 1958, missed the 1962 final.

The Dutch confessed they would have preferred to play Brazil in the final.

Like Holland, Argentina has played in the final once before, in the inaugural tournament of 1930. Neither country has ever won the Cup.

Spinks Again Caught By Law

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Heavyweight boxer Leon Spinks, cited by Jacksonville police Wednesday for driving without a license, was ticketed again Thursday, this time for speeding.

The speeding citation, accusing the 24-year-old fighter of driving 45 mph in a 20 mph zone, was the fifth traffic ticket he has received this year.

Spinks was stopped by a city policeman Wednesday for driving without a license and driving with an expired license plate. Officers said he has a valid Michigan license but was ticketed for driving without it.

Spinks told police he was leaving Jacksonville Thursday for Michigan to begin training for his Sept. 15 bout with Muhammad Ali.

In both cases here, he appeared before a magistrate and paid fines.

Spinks won the heavyweight crown from Ali on a split decision Feb. 15. He still holds the World Boxing Association title, but the Wold Boxing Council stripped Spinks of its version of the championship for allegedly backing out of an agreement to fight challenger Ken Norton.

Norton subsequently lost the WBC title to Larry Holmes.

Spinks has been ticketed three times for driving without a license and twice for speeding during the last four months.

He was arrested in St. Louis in April on charges of possession of one hundredth of a gram of cocaine and a small quantity of marijuana and driving without a license. The drug charges were dismissed, but he was fined on the traffic citation.

He was arrested in St. Louis in March for driving without a license and driving the wrong way on a one-way street. A highway patrolman arrested Spinks in Beaufort County, S.C., last Saturday for speeding.

Lopez After Sixth Win

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — Nancy Lopez, whose record-smashing play and pretty smile have made her a drawing card for women's pro golf, stood on the brink of another first today in the opening round of the $50,000 Lady Keystone Open.

A win by the 21-year-old rookie would extend her record victory skein to six straight, more than any woman professional has ever won and a notch closer to the men's record — 11 in a row by Byron Nelson in 1945.

It also would add to the record purse of $153,336 she's won since turning pro July 29. No other golfer, man or woman, has ever won that much in a rookie year.

"Every shot I hit feels easier than it did a month ago," Lopez said Thursday after testing the par-72, 6,398-yard long Hershey Country Club Course. "I have a great deal of confidence. I'm hitting the ball right where I want it to go."

In 1978, she's won seven Ladies Professional Golf Association tournaments. In contrast, no LPGA rival has won more than once this year.

Her fifth straight victory at Rochester, N.Y., last weekend broke an LPGA mark held, among others, by Mickey Wright and Kathy Whitworth, the tour's all-time money-winner. Whitworth's 13 wins in one year is a record within Lopez' grasp.

Putters Lose Out

Rocky Mount, down by 20 strokes with one round to go, came back to beat Greenville by two strokes and claim the Eastern Regional Putt-Putt Championship for the second straight year.

Wilson came in third, 18 strokes off the pace.

Greenville was led in the final match by Quincy Scarborough with an 88, while Robert Stancill had 90, Bobby Ipock had 93, Ken Paramore had 94 and John Foster had a 106.

Lack Of Center, Fouls Hurt Deacs

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Wake Forest basketball coach Carl Tacy says the absence of center Larry Harrison and too many fouls were decisive factors Thursday night when the Deacons lost to the Yugoslavian Olympic team in overtime.

The Deacons, playing in a four-team tournament in Venice, Italy, fell 119-117 to even their record in the meet at 1-1.

"Their team was much taller and five of our players fouled out," Tacy said in a telephone conversation with Wake Forest's sports information director, Bruce Herman, following the contest.

"At the end of the game, we were playing with four guards and a forward," Tacy said. "We missed Larry Harrison's height and experience. We would have been in good shape if we had had him."

Harrison is sidelined because of a recent knee operation and was unable to make the trip to Italy.

The Deacons, who beat Poland 100-86 in opening-round play Wednesday night, play Italy, the national European champion, tonight. They return home Sunday.

Yugoslavia scored a field goal in the final second to pull out the victory Thursday night. Mario Delrbufic was the game's top scorer with 33 points.

Wake Forest was led by Leroy McDonald with 23 points and Rod Griffin with 18. Griffin was the top scorer in game against Poland with 17 points.

The tournament features Wake Forest and the Olympic teams of Poland, Yugoslavia and Italy.

Steve Rogers, a member of the Grifton Golf and Country Club, was a member of the winning team in the Amana Pro-Am Tournament at Amana, Iowa, this past Monday.

Rogers, of J.A. Rogers Furniture Co., Grifton, was invited by the regional distributor to take part in the regional Amana tournament, which was held at Mid-Pines. Rogers, a ten-handicap player, won that event with a net 71, and qualified for the national event.

There, his team shot a net 55 to win the event. His team consisted of pro Lou Graham, Carl Dowd of Denver, Colo., Mike Sarensky of Iowa City, Iowa, and Al Meger of Chicago.

"There are 41 teams in the tournament, over 200 people," Rogers recounted. He received a trophy and a driver as his prize.

A 20-year golfing veteran, Rogers said the tournament was the highlight of his career. He was flown out to Amana on Saturday and returned on Tuesday. "Sunday night, they had a big show for us that would have taken you a week to see at Las Vegas," Rogers said. Many of the celebreties played in the tournament, also. They included former President Ford, Roy Clark, Tennessee Ernie Ford and others.

"It was the nicest tournament I've ever played in," Rogers said. "Gary Player, who was the low pro, said it was the best one-day pro-am he's participated in. It's also the richest pro-am. They had 30,000 people there to watch it." Rogers said that Amana flew in many of the golfers who participated in the U.S. Open in Denver after they finished up there to play in the Amana affair. "J.C. Snead was one of the last to finish at Denver, and he was there by 10 o'clock Sunday night."

All-in-all, Rogers counted it as a memorable trip, one he is unlikely to forget.

Brook Valley Golf and Country Club

The team of Jill Carney, Bob Haverty, Ginny Kilpatrick and Billy Morton took first place in a Jack and Jill Tournament this week at Brook Valley Golf and Country Club.

They finished with a 32 net and won on a card playoff with the team of Sue and Pat Dye and Peggy and Joe Hallow, who also had 32. Finishing third with a 33 were Elsie and Willard Wilson, and Pam and Joey McGroaty.

Lida Hayes Freuler had her best score on the back side with a 45, while playing with Janet McGlohon, who had her best, a 47.

Joe LaMott had an eagle on the 15th hole, hitting a three-wood and a seven-iron.

The team of Evelyn Ward, Mary Meade Powell, Nancy Baker and Dee Riddett won a women's Captain's Choice event.

Janet and Keila McGlohon took first place in a Greenville Guest Day held by the women's association. Dorothy Wooles and Peggy Barnes finished second.

A July 4 Family Spectactular is being planned. Those wishing to participate should sign up in the clubhouse.

Ayden Golf and Country Club

John Ham turned in his best nine, a 36. Donnie Taylor had his best nine, a 34.

Sparky McCaskill eagled the second hole, a par five.

Greenville Golf and Country Club

The team of Don and Janet McGlohon, Dallas and Patsy McPherson captured first place in the Dates and Mates Tournament this past week. Second place went to Don and Celeste Wilkerson and Reid and Joan Hooper. Third were Wilbur and Sue Castellow and Smith and Jean Creech.

Paul Evans had his best round, a 69, which included a 29 on the front side. Janet McGlohon had her best, a 92, while Dallas McPherson recorded a 74, as did Ed Warren. Gail McClelland chipped in on 17 for a birdie.

The team of Mable Blount, Joan Hooper, Joan Warren and Betty Lou Howard took first place in the gross category in a Ladies Day tournament. Janet and Keila McGlohon, Sue Hardy and Ann Evans won low net honors.

Reid and Joan Hooper took first place in a Better Ball of Pair Tournament. Ray Edwards and Charles Bridgers were second, followed by Steve Horne and Ray Edwards. Ed Warren and Ken Hite took fourth place.

The deadline for signing up for the Father-Son Tournament is June 29, with the even set for July 1-2. Tee times are from 8 to 10 a.m. each day.

The Interclub Championship will be held at Brook Valley on July 15-16.

Farmville Golf and Country Club

The Farmville Golf and Country Club held its annual Member-Guest Tournament last weekend.

The team of Gene Eason and Roger Hamm took first place in the championship flight. Donald Parker and B. Pittman were second, and Nelson Tugwell and Butch Budd were third.

In the first flight, Donnie Langston and Danny Langston took top honors. Jim Burk and Ray Lee were second, with Harold Trowbridge and Bill Jones third.

Floyd Messer Jr. and Leroy Price took the second flight, followed by Critz Hillard and John Felton, in second, and Danny Griffis and Milton Beaman. In the third flight, Carter Smith and Jerry Smith took first, followed by Dan Satterthwaite and Richard Moldin in second, and Gordon Lee and Bob Detherage in third.

In the fourth flight, Burt Warren and David Burns took first, with Tommie Wainwright and Larry Tripplett second and Ben Hardison and Virgil Kirkland third.

Little League

Optimists 7, Kiwanis 4

The Optimists claimed a 7-4 victory over the Kiwanis in the North State Little League yesterday, keeping their slim title hopes alive.

The defeat, however, eliminated the Kiwanis from the race.

The Optimists got their first run in the first. Brett Dye reached on a fielder's choice and Mike Iaboni singled. Both moved up on a wild pitch, and Dye scored on Darrell Dunn's infield out.

The Kiwanis came back in the fifth to score three and take the lead. Ed Farley tripled, and Van Alston reached on an infield hit. John Jordan reached on an error, scoring Farley, and he and Alston pulled a double steal, scoring Alston. A wild pitch scored Jordan.

The Optimists came up with six runs in the sixth to win it. George Iaboni walked and Jason Byrd reached on an error. Doyle Kirkland was also safe on an error, loading the bases. Dye walked to force in Iaboni, and a walk to Mike Iaboni brought in Boyd. Dunn then finished it off with a grand-slam home run.

Mike Iaboni got two hits to lead the Optimists, while Alston and Farley each had two for the Kiwanis.

Pepsi-Cola 4, Big Value Drugs 1

Pepsi-Cola kept its drive for the Tar Heel Little League title going with 4-1 victory over Big Value Drugs yesterday.

Pepsi has a half-game lead over the Moose and has one game left to play.

Big Value got its only run in the top of the first. Jeff Austin walked and stole second. He scored on Steve Wall's double.

Pepsi tied it up with one in the fourth. Walter Perkins singled and moved up on a passed ball. He advanced on an out and scored on an error.

The other three came in the fifth. Clark Stallings walked and moved up on a passed ball. Mike Kinley singled and an error let Stallings score. Raju Singh singled, scoring Kinley. Singh later scored on an out.

Singh held Big Value to only one hit, Wall's double. Kinley had two hits to lead Pepsi.

Prep League

Dr Pepper 3, Cox Realty 2

Prep League champion Dr Pepper gained a 3-2 victory over Cox Realty yesterday as the season drew towards a close. Both teams have one game remaining on the schedule.

Dr Pepper got two runs in the first. Rudy Stalls reached on an error and. stole both second and third. He scored when Kenny Kirkland reached on an error. Marshall Rand singled in Kirkland.

Cox came up with two in the third. Lance Searl walked and stole second. He scored when Randy Warren singled. Warren moved up on an error and scored on an out by Mont Carter.

Dr Pepper got the winning run in the sixth. Rand singled and moved up to score on a hit by Curtis Evans.

Warren had two hits for Cox, while Rand and Evans each had two for Dr Pepper.

Senior Babe Ruth

Clifton Insurance 13, Warren Farm 8

Clifton Insurance rolled to a 13-8 victory over Warren Farm Supply in the Senior Babe Ruth League last night.

Warren took the lead in the third inning, scoring five times. Nelson Worsley walked and Robert Bunn singled. William Knight walked, loading the bases. Jeff Hines singled in Worsley and Bunn, and both Knight and Hines came in when Lee Andrews tripled. Andrews scored on Jay Bedsworth's single.

Clifton, which had scored once in the second, came back with one in the fourth and added two more in the fifth to cut the lead to 5-4.

Then, in the sixth, Clifton pushed over six runs that won the game. Joe Mattheis walked and stole second, taking third on a passed ball. Mark Shank also walked and moved up ona passed ball. Mike Campbell doubled both of them in and scored when Jamie Adams singled. Danny Boyd tripled in Adams, and Lindsey Winstead was hit by a pitch. He stole second and an error let both him and Boyd score.

Clifton added three more in the seventh, while Warren got three in the bottom of the sixth.

Winstead. and Campbell each had three hits and Adams had two for Clifton, while Hines and Bedsworth each had two for Warren.

Ayden-Grifton 7, Farmville 0

Ayden-Grifton drew closer to the Senior Babe Ruth League title with a 7-0 forfeit victory over Farmville last night.

Ayden-Grifton has a half-game lead over Winterville.

Babe Ruth

Coca-Cola 6, Wachovia Bank 5

Coca-Cola pushed over two runs in the bottom of the seventh inning to slip past Wachovia Bank, 6-5, in the Babe Ruth League last night.

Wachovia took the lead with one in the third as Mike Tucker singled and moved up on a hit by Mark Sasser. Sammy Hodges reached on a fielder's choice and Scott Southerland singled to score Tucker.

Two more came over in the fourth. But in the bottom of the fourth, Coke rallied for four runs. Jim Jones walked, as did Elvy Forrest. John Williams singled in both runners, then stole second. Paul MacMillian singled and a hit by Mitch Brann scored both runners.

Wachovia added one in the fifth and one in the sixth to take a 5-4 lead, but Coke then got two in the bottom of the seventh to take the win.

Jeff Porter started the seventh with a single and Kelly Kee walked. Jones also walked, loading the bases. Williams then doubled in both Porter and Kee for the win.

Southerland and Tucker had two hits for Wachovia, while MacMillian, and Brann each had two and Williams had three for Coke.

Unlikely Hero Grabs The Lead

OAKVILLE, Ontario (AP) — "Sensational," said Jack Nicklaus.

"Unbelievable," said Lee Trevino.

The object of their comments was one of the pro golf tour's more unlikely heros, Jeff Hewes, who slipped through a howling wind to a 4-under-par 67 and a 3-stroke lead Thursday in the first round of the $250,000 Canadian Open Golf Tournament.

He's 6-foot-3½ and said his listed weight of 146 isn't quite right. "I've lost some weight since then. I'm 139 now."

Hewes, 31, has attended the PGA Tour Qualifying School seven times. On four of those occasions he failed to gain his playing rights. He's had his card lifted twice because of poor play. This is his third attempt at it.

And he's assured of playing at least one more year. He's won some $14,000 this season, well above the minimum standards. Most of that — $9,000 — came off his victory in the Oklahoma City Open, a satellite event.

"It was real windy there, too," Hewes said. "I've never really considered myself a good wind player, but I think the key to it is patience. I've got a lot of patience. Anybody that's been to as many schools as I have has to have a lot of patience. In the wind, you just go along and try not to do anything real stupid."

The winds were 25-30 miles per hour and combined with the undulating greens to produce some of the highest scores of the year on the pro tour. Fifty players, approximately one-third of the field, shot 80 or higher.

Among them were Hubert Green, 81; Billy Casper, 81; Mark Hayes, 82, and Lon Hinkle, 80.

Arnold Palmer, who won his first professional title in this tournament 23 years ago, Terry Diehl and Ben Crenshaw were tied for second at 70. The group at par 71 included Mark Lye, Australian Bob Shearer and Jim Colbert.

Swim Club In Close Victory

KINSTON — The Greenville Swim Club won its first dual meet of the summer season Wednesday night, defeating Kinston 254½-243½ in a meet that went down to the final event.

Led by Lance Timmons and Susan Tucker with three first-place finishes each, Greenville was able to hold off a late challenge by the Kinston club.

N.C. Libertarians Expect To Get Back On Ballot

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Leaders of the Libertarian Party, which is "100 percent for civil liberties and economic freedom," say they expect to succeed in their effort to get their party back on the North Carolina ballot.

Party supporters, who have been working to get the 10,000 names needed to get on the ballot, said Tuesday they had collected about 15,000 names on petitions and they hope that by time county elections boards winnow out ineligible names they will have the required 10,000.

"We think that will do it," said Craig Springer, 4th District chairman for the party. He said that party leaders expect to present the petitions with the required number of names to the state Board of Elections by July 1.

After that, he said, leaders expect to hold a state convention in Greensboro in July to nominate candidates for the Nov. 7 election so that a slate can be presented to the elections board by an Aug. 1 deadline.

"Hopefully, we will have a full slate of candidates," Springer said.

The Libertarian Party went through the same process and got on the ballot in 1976, but it lost its place on the ballot when neither its presidential candidate, Roger McBride, nor its gubernatorial candidate, Harlan K. Andrews of Greensboro, received 10 percent of the vote.

Asked what the Libertaria Party stands for, Springer said that "the basic definition of libertarian is we do not believe in the initiation of force to achieve social and political goals."

"We are neither liberal nor conservative," he added. "We're the very opposite of totalitarian in that we're 100 percent for civil liberties and economic freedom."

He said Libertarians believe that "as long as people do not agress against other people they should be let alone to live their lives as they see fit." For that reason, he said, the party opposes the prosecution of persons involved in victimless crimes.

He said the party believes that Congress should pass no laws abridging freedom of trade and that the "proper function of government is to protect individual rights in which we need the police, the courts and very little else.

"Libertarians believe that taxation is theft and envision a society of voluntary institutions where minimum government could be paid for through a fee system or voluntary contributions," Springer said.

"We're not idealists, and we don't expect to achieve that overnight because you'd have chaos," he said.

In foreign policy, he said the Libertarian Party believes in nonintervention and would not have the United States serving as "the policeman of the world."

In California, he said, the Libertarian Party would have supported Proposition 13.

"That would be a cutback in the power of the state, and of course we would be for Proposition 13," he said.

UFO Watcher Advises Fall Is The Best Season

CLAYTON, N.C. (AP) — Pete Cooke has some advice for people on the lookout for unidentified flying objects.

An investigator for a group that collects information about UFOs, Cooke says fall is the best time of year and dusk is the best time of day to sight a UFO.

Most UFOs start out from a stationary position in the sky, according to Cooke, and most of the ones he has seen are red, white or bluish-green.

Cooke, 45, a security guard for the state Museum of Art, claims to have seen a number of UFOs during the past three years, and he has been accepted as a field investigator for the Mutual UFO Network.

He said the network, known as MUFON, collects information at its headquarters in Sequin, Tex., and researches UFOs through personal experiences. The organization hopes to prove or disprove the existence of UFOs.

One thing Cooke has learned from his experience is that many people are suspicious of anyone who claims to have seen a UFO.

So he is careful to share his sightings with the barber, grocer and an officer of the Clayton Police Department.

"There's quite a few people I've pointed them out to," he said. "I'm not by myself."

He said his most vivid encounter was in 1976, when he spotted from his backyard an object about the size of an airplane moving rapidly across the sky.

A landing light shining, it hovered over trees and moved slowly to the church across the street from his home, Cooke said. He said the light went off and he watched the object for several hours before going to bed.

"There weren't any motors or any kind of humming sound," Cooke said. "It was about the size of an airplane but round like a saucer. It probably would have terrified me if it had landed. But as it was, I was just trying to do research."

Cooke rejects the notion that there are any convenetional explanations for any of the UFOs he's seen.

"They way they dart about, I just can't accept that its just something the U.S. left sitting up there in the air," he said. "I'll keep on believing until somebody tells me or shows me different."

Moonshining Is Not Dead

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Despite a decline in moonshining activity over the past decade, federal agents say the old folk tradition isn't dead.

In fact, officals of the U.S. Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Bureau report there are indications of a resurgence of moonshining in parts of North Carolina.

"It's not like it was back in '65 and '68, but there has been a small surge in illegal distilleries since about the beginning of this year," said Glenn Fleming, resident agent-in-charge of the ATF office in Winston-Salem.

He said AFT agents and state and local authorities have broken up two large stills in central North Carolina in recent weeks. One was a 7,000-gallon creekside operation in Stokes County and the other a 10,000-gallon plant near Elon College.

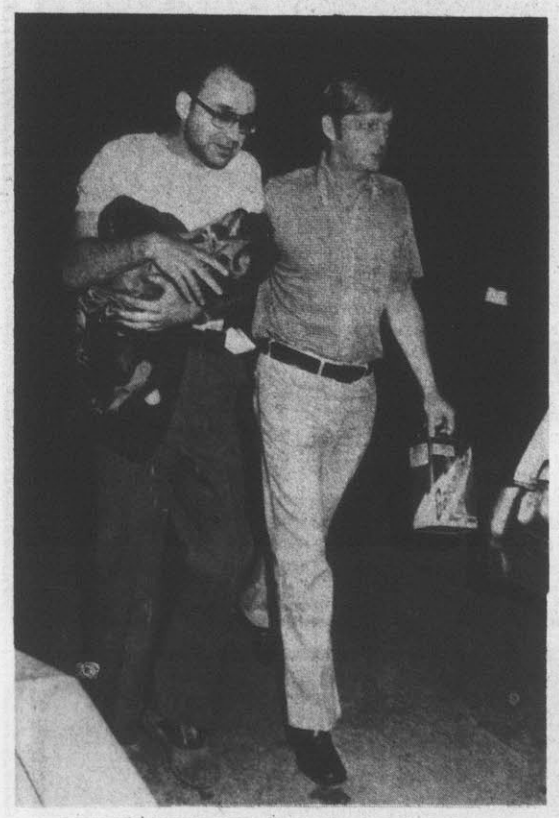

"Any time you have two big ones in a month, you know something has happened," he said.

The revival of moonshining activity could be one of the first signs of a recession, the AFT agent said.

"Whenever people are out of a job, they do something to get money," he said. "And people will always drink liquor. So for those who know the ancient art of distillery, bootlegging just seems natural."

Some people like white lightning because its taste is different from that of whiskey sold in ABC stores, he said, while others at one time bought it because it was cheaper. However, he said the price of sugar and other ingredients is driving the price of moonshine higher than the retail price of brand whiskey.

ATF agents and ABC officials closed 34 stills and confiscated 20,770 gallons of mash during the six-month period ended in May. Twenty-four stills were broken up during the same period a year ago.

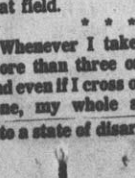

ARRESTED AT NAZI HQ — Irving Lewis, left, of Chicago, is taken by a policeman to bomb and arson headquarters in Chicago Thursday. Lewis was arrested when he pulled his car, laden with six gasoline-filled bottles fitted with makeshift wicks, behind Rockwall Hall, headquarters of Frank Collin's Nazi group. Lewis was charged with possession of explosive materials. (AP Laserphoto)

BIZZELL TO SPEAK

The 25th anniversary of the Mother's League of Greenville will be observed at Wynn's Chapel Sunday at 5 p.m. The theme is "Love in Action," with John Bizzell speaking on the many projects that the league has sponsored this past year. Mrs. Esther Laughinghouse, president, invites the public to attend.

Childhood Arthritis

I was shocked to learn that our 12-year-old boy has arthritis. No one in our family, not even the older ones, have ever had anything like it. Could this be a mistaken diagnosis? — Mrs. J.J.B., Neb.

Dear Mrs. B.:

Almost everybody associates arthritis with the process of aging. This is not true. Although arthritis, with all of its divisions and sub-divisions, occurs far more frequently in adults, it is seen occasionally in children. In fact, there are many variations of childhood rheumatoid arthritis that have captured the attention of rheumatologists.

X-ray studies of the joints, blood studies and immunoglobulin deficiency tests are made in an effort to track down the cause and to definitely establish the specific diagnosis.

I am certain that before your doctor committed himself to such a diagnosis, these and all other tests were made to definitely establish the diagnosis. I have often told readers that when any confusion exists about a diagnosis or treatment you must communicate with your doctor. Doctors are aware of the fact that when such confusion exists it can erode or destroy the relationship with their patients.

With complex problems like juvenile rheumatoid arthritis, doctors welcome the opportunity to confer with their colleagues and to seek the advice of other specialists in that field.

* * *

Whenever I take a flight of more than three or four hours and even if I cross only one time zone, my whole system goes into a state of disarray. It takes me three or four days to get back into balance and to be able to function normally again. Is there any way of controlling this? — Mr. B.H., Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. H.:

The physical and psychological changes associated with the "jet lag" phenomenon are technically known as "dysrhythmia." As the name implies, the time clock mechanism of all body organs is thrown out of gear and strange patterns of rhythmic behavior follow.

When the body's time clock goes off, fluctuations of body temperature, changes in respiration and in the rate of the heartbeat, and even the urinary outflow become evident. The normal flow of digestive juices and the hormone balance are also disturbed.

On your next trip, try to conform your activities to your time of departure rather than to your time of arrival in your new place. Try to gently ease yourself into the new time change by gradually adjusting your "body time clock" to the new environment.

For example, should you leave Washington at 6 p.m. to go to California, you will arrive there at about midnight, your departure time. Due to the time changes, it will be only 9 p.m. in California and the evening will still be young. There is a temptation to stay up. Don't! If you retire in terms of your departure time, your fatigue and body rhythm time will be less affected.

Sees No Danger By Cable TV

WASHINGTON (AP) — Local television stations should not fear losing viewers because of cable television, says Robert L. Schmidt, president of the National Cable Television Association.

"There is simply no substantive proof that cable television service — no matter how extensive — jeopardizes local broadcast service anywhere in the country," Schmidt said Thursday.

The National Association of Broadcasters, to which most broadcast stations belong, said, however, that studies show audience losses by TV stations competing with cable TV. But the cable association disputed the methods used by NAB in reaching its conclusions.

Offer Children Harvest Jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Children aged 10 and 11 will be allowed to hand harvest some crops as part of new Labor Department regulations. Previously children under 12 could not engage in farm labor.

The new regulations, which take effect immediately, limit the childrens' work to five hours a day with a maximum 30-hour week. The employer also must meet a number of other requirements and must show that no other labor is available, the Labor Department said.

Declarer and the defenders engaged in an exhilarating duel to determine whether or not declarer could eliminate a blockage in a key suit. It was a pity that one of them had to lose.

South had a difficult bid to make at his second turn. He decided that the excellent "body" of his hand (the 10s and 9s) made it worth more than its face value of 20 HCPs, so he elected to stretch a bit by rebidding two no trump. In the hope that his club suit would be a source of tricks, North raised to game.

West led his fourth-best spade, and declarer realized that he was only one pip away from an excellent contract—exchange the eight and the nine of clubs between his hand and dummy, and declarer would be odds-on to take seven club tricks. As it was, declarer would have to win the third club in his hand, thus blocking the suit with no way to get back to dummy to cash the long clubs. One plan was to lead a club immediately and duck in the hope that West would have to win the first round. But if East got in and returned a spade, the defenders might be able to cash four spade tricks to go with the club.

Declarer decided that he could increase his chances by trying to enlist the help of the enemy. If spades were 4-4 or 5-3 and he could induce West to run his long suit, declarer would be able to discard a club from his hand, which would free dummy's suit.

Accordingly, declarer captured the queen of spades with the king and immediately shot back the spade jack. West won the ace, but was a bit jaundiced about this "gift." If declarer was giving West the freedom to run his spades, then it could not be right to clear the suit. So West shifted to a club.

Declarer won the ace and continued with another spade to West's ten. But West still refused to cash his spades to give declarer a club sluff. Instead, he exited with a heart. Declarer won and now ducked a club to East. Regardless of what East returned, declarer had the rest of the tricks, for he could cash the ace and lead his last club to dummy's king to run the suit.

Both Farrah, Travolta In The Wings

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — ABC's new programs chief says Farrah Fawcett-Majors will return to "Charlie's Angels" and John Travolta will return to "Welcome Back, Kotter" next season, but each on a limited basis.

Okay. But how does Anthony Thomopolous, a little-known executive, feel about following a tough act — succeeding Fred Silverman, who helped make ABC No.1 and now will try do that for No.3 NBC?

"It's a question I was unprepared for," he dead-panned in a 45-minute lunch chat Thursday with some 90 TV critics here for the press visit the networks give each year. His reply drew laughter.

"I have enormous respect for him," he said of Silverman, who today scheduled his first news conference since becoming head of the NBC television and radio networks on June 9.

Thomopoulos, 40, who ironically began his career at NBC in 1959, was picked Feb. 1 to succeed the man credited with helping first CBS, then ABC achieve ratings dominance.

Despite the great attention given Silverman's programming expertise, Thomopoulos took care to cite his famous predecessor's recent remarks to NBC affiliates about the importance of teamwork.

"I agree with him," he said. "No man can do this job himself. He must rely on the expertise of a very strong support team."

Without saying if he felt ABC would stay No. 1 in ratings next season, Thomopoulos said "what I hope to accomplish is to add balance and diversity to our schedule." He did not elaborate.

Of Travolta, who went from ABC's "Kotter" to movie fame in "Saturday Night Fever," he said the actor had offered to live up to his contract, to be in all 22 "Kotter" episodes made next season and forsake his busy movie schedule if ABC insisted.

"I must tell you, I applaud him," he said, adding that agreement was reached for the actor to appear — and star — in just eight shows.

He also said Miss Fawcett-Majors, embroiled in a lawsuit when she left the hit "Charlie's Angels" after its first season to work in movies, will return — but just in three episodes next season.

He did not say if the two would continue in their shows after that.

The visiting TV critics laughed and applauded his reply to a question about when he thinks, with Silverman gone, he will make his own mark as head of programming at ABC.

"I think it'll be determined when you people take me out of short pants and put me in long pants," he said with a wry grin.

Corrections Dept.: We erred Thursday in saying CBS's "60 Minutes" did not credit tiny Mother Jones magazine for sparking headlines about and inquiries into the safety of gas tanks in Ford Pintos.

We did not hear it during the show's report on Pinto gas tanks. But Mike Wallace and executive producer Don Hewitt say Mother Jones was indeed cited by Wallace as he capped his gas-tank story.

Thus debited, we now credit them with giving credit where credit is due.

Teed Off By Gatherings

ATLANTA (AP) — Golfers using the public course in Piedmont Park have more obstacles than treacherous greens or sand traps — a group of young people who meet regularly at the fourth hole to drink wine and beer, toss Frisbees and enjoy the fairway sunshine.

Carl Seldon, assistant golf pro at the course, says golfers are being harassed and forced to play elsewhere.

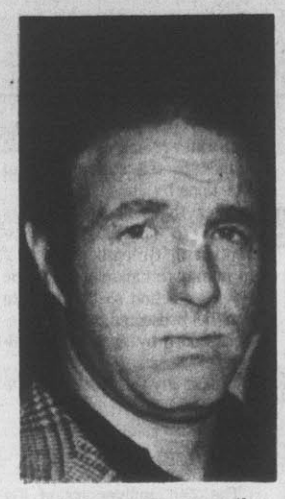

"It's ridiculous that people pay their money to play and have to put up with someone out there drinking wine," he said.

A mounted patrolman at the park said the group has been gathering for several months, although he has regularly run them off.

One female golfer says she was chased down the fairway one day this week as she tried to play through.

Other golfers say they encounter youths sprawled on blankets in the fairway who grab golf balls and keep up a stream of comments that disturbs chip-shot concentration.

Benjamin A.G. Fuller Jr. has been appointed curator at Mystic Seaport in Connecticut.

JAMES CAAN says the private Buffalo Club (of Buffalo, N.Y.) has reneged on an agreement to permit scenes from his new movie to be filmed in the club, and "now we have no place to go". The president of the club denied that permission was ever granted. (AP Laserphoto)

Ex-Union Man Led Filibuster Victory

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Once Orrin Hatch was a card-carrying union member — Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers' International Union — to be exact.

Now he doesn't seem to have much in common with the AFL-CIO.

Hatch, an intense, fast-talking Republican conservative from Utah, was the point man in a long filibuster against organized labor's cherished proposed labor law revisions.

He won a very big round on Thursday, when the Senate voted to send the hotly contested measure back to its Human Resources Committee for redrafting.

The move came after backers of the bill conceded they could not crack the tenacious five-week filibuster that Hatch and a group of other, mostly freshmen Republicans threw up against the measure.

The legislation would stiffen penalties labor law violators must pay while also giving unions added leverage in organizing workers.

SEN. ORRIN HATCH

It would speed up the timetable for union representation elections, expand the National Labor Relations Board and allow unions to send recruiters onto company premises under tightly controlled circumstances.

After the vote, Hatch stood in a small room off the Senate floor accepting congratulations from friends.

"I hope at least we've won some respect," he said.

It was an interesting comment from a relatively new senator who took on what appeared to many to be a hopeless task, a senator who confided to others that he sometimes feels he does not fit into the clubby atmosphere of the Senate.

Asked to describe how his boss approaches his work, aide Bill Hendrix said: "Total commitment, almost consecration. He is just very intense on everything. Driven."

It was Hatch who spent long hours on the Senate floor during the filibuster that began May 16, reading speeches, citing studies, parrying opposing senators.

He sought ceaselessly to portray himself as the underdog, telling reporters more than once, "I'm just a freshman senator" battling against the giants of the Senate.

"They've got all the power, immense power," he often said of the Carter administration and the Democratic leadership working for the bill.

Organized labor? "Labor has the most massive influence in Washington, D.C., today," he said shortly after the Senate shipped the bill back to committee.

His speech, like that of many politicians, is rapid-fire. And it can lean to the sarcastic. He referred often during debate and in interviews to the labor measure as "that itty-bitty bill that won't help nobody and won't hurt nobody."

At times, he also seemed humorless. "I said small business would be crushed by this bill, I didn't say totally crushed," he said.

His tenaciousness and rhetoric and willingness to read long speeches on the floor helped earn him the nickname of "Borin' Orrin," a handle he said Thursday he does not mind.

Americans, Russians Research Fuel Process

By BARTON REPPERT
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — American and Soviet scientists have been successfully carrying out joint experiments just outside Moscow on a revolutionary process that could result in the cheaper and more efficient production of electricity, according to U.S. officials.

Dr. William Jackson of the U.S. Department of Energy said the cooperative research effort was helping both countries push ahead with development of the process called magnetohydrodynamics — MHD — as a practical, safe, less expensive and highly efficient method for using fossil fuels, especially coal.

At the same time, he noted, the joint approach was expected to yield sizeable tax dollar savings for Americans, by minimizing the need for the U.S. to duplicate test facilities already existing in the Soviet Union.

In the MHD process, hydrocarbon fuel such as coal or natural gas is burned at extremely high temperatures, up to about 5,000 degrees Fahrenheit. The resulting ionized gas is forced at the speed of a bullet down a channel through an intense magnetic field, thereby producing electricity.

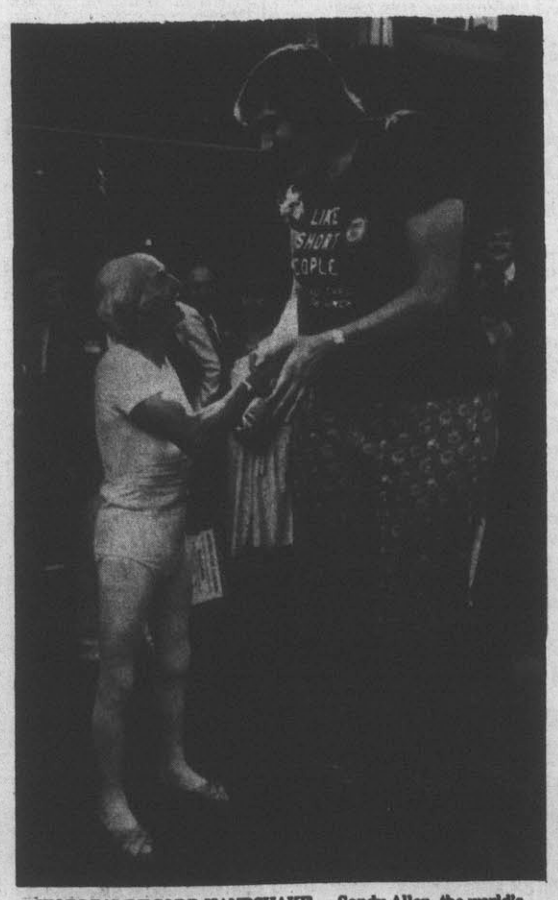

After passing through the magnetic field, the hot gas may then be used for heating water to produce steam for regular turbine generators. This two-step process enables MHD plants to burn fuels much more efficiently than conventional power stations.

Proponents of the process say the method could benefit consumers by producing electricity more cheaply and efficiently from coal, which is in abundant supply in the United States and the Soviet Union.

Specialists note that while conventional generating plants are only about 35 percent efficient in converting hydrocarbon energy into electricity, MHD plants can be built to operate at about 65 percent, resulting in substantial savings of fuel.

Jackson, American co-chairman of the U.S.-Soviet MHD effort, said in an inteview with The Associated Press: "It's been very cost-effective and we're getting good data which is directly applicable to both sides in their own MHD programs."

Jackson was among half a dozen top U.S. MHD specialists visiting Moscow this week to discuss the basic outlines for continuing cooperative research in magnetohydrodynamics over the next five years.

Girl Slain By Hail Of Bullets

ASHEBORO, N.C. (AP) — Police are searching for a man who fired a hail of bullets that killed a 14-year-old girl and wounded her 16-year-old campanion as they tried to put out a fire started by a homemade bomb.

Vickie Clark died at Randolph County Hospital early Thursday after undergoing emergency surgery. A friend, Tammy Hurley, was in satisfactory condition at a hospital in Chapel Hill.

Police said Loretta Cain, 17, a roommate of the two girls, told investigators Miss Hurley and Miss Clark saw a fire outside the house and went out to try to extinguish it.

"When they went out the door, I heard a sound like firecrackers going off," Miss Cain said. She said she went to the door and saw Miss Clark lying in the yard and Miss Hurley on the steps.

"I didn't see anything else, no one running away or anything like that," she said. "I don't think they ever knew what hit them."

Although a motive has not been established, officers said they believe the assailant came to the neighborhood on foot with a rifle and two homemade bombs.

Detective Dexter Trogdon said the bombs appeared to have been made by pouring gasoline into beer bottles stuffed with rags. He said an unexploded bomb was found in bushes across the street from the home of the girls.

"It looks like the bombs were used as a ploy to attract the victims outside the house," he said.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, JUNE 24, 1978

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Difficult conditions from the past should be wisely avoided by you early in the day. Imploy imaginative ideas that can fulfill your cherished desires and lead the way to greater success.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Know what your main goals are and go after them in a precise and positive manner. A friend can be most helpful now.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Take steps to improve your public image before you engage in civic matters. Be more precise where money is concerned.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Put those new ideas to work and get out of a rut. Evening is best spent in amusements that give you the most pleasure.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make sure you keep promises you have made to others and maintain goodwill. Be more understanding of mate.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Use new appliances that will make your work easier and more efficient. Strive for increased harmony with family members.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A fine day to engage in favorite hobby with friends. Come to a better accord with the one you love. Express happiness.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Take part in a recreation that has been alien to you in the past and derive much enjoyment. Take needed health treatments.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) If you are more thoughtful of family members, you can have increased harmony and happiness in the days ahead.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get busy and find more constructive ways of doing your work and get more benefits. Make your social life better.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Know what it is that business contacts expect and try to please them where feasible. Be more thoughtful of mate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Stop worrying so much about a problem that you can do little about. Take steps to improve your social life.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Study your private aims and adopt a more up-to-date system in order to gain more easily. Take steps to improve your appearance.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will have advanced ideas and can easily persuade others to go along with them, so be sure to send to the most modern schools for best results. Some religious training early, but don't force it or your progeny will rebel.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

'Brand X' Will Get Its Chance

ATLANTA (AP) — Brand X may never win in television commercials, but some grocery store chains are gambling that it will succeed on supermarket shelves.

The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co., which operates the A&P grocery chain, has introduced a line of 14 unbranded, or generic, products in 92 stores in the Southeast.

Priced about 30 percent below national brands, the new products have plain white labels with black print reading simply, "Green Beans," "Cream Style Corn" or "Pink Detergent."

The products usually carry a lower government grading than national brands — "extra standard" or "standard" instead of "fancy" or "choice," for instance.

But Billy Sanders, advertising director of the Atlanta division of A&P, said the nutritional value of the food products "is as high as Ann Page (the A&P house brand) or national brands."

Consumers will notice some differences in appearance, he said. "String beans are uneven in length, peas are of mixed size, corn contains more mature kernels, and the macaroni and cheese has a mild sauce."

A&P also is offering trash can liners, facial tissues, bathroom tissue, paper towels, dog food, laundry detergent, liquid bleach and fabric softener in its "economy corner."

At one Atlanta area store where the products were introduced Wednesday, shoppers cleaned out the unbranded display by 3 p.m.

"I think this is going to be something good for the everyday shopper," said Mrs. Leslie Green of Decatur, Ga., as she picked up two packages of macaroni and cheese priced at 17 cents each.

"We are tired of high prices. Advertising is what's keeping the prices up and we can do without that."

Generic products were introduced in the United States about one and a half years ago by a supermarket chain in Chicago.

Critics say consumers will demand quality and will snub the lower-graded generic products.

"We don't feel the consumers would accept that kind of difference (in quality grading) for the little savings they would get," said L.H. Stevens of the Winn-Dixie supermarket chain.

But other supermarket executives are watching the trend.

Sam Alterman, president of a chain that operates Big Apple and Food Giant stores in the Southeast, said his firm is considering 30 generic items now.

AIRCRAFT MAINTENANCE OPPORTUNITIES IN

IRAN

Sure you can do what everyone else does... but why should you?

Bell Helicopter International has immediate openings in IRAN for ambitious individuals. We are seeking people with aircraft maintenance skills to train Iranians in the establishment of their Army Aviation. The following positions are available:

• HELICOPER MECHANICS • AIRCRAFT MECHANICS • DYNAMIC COMPONENT MECHANICS • AVIONICS TECHNICIANS • ARMAMENT REPAIRMEN • AIRCRAFT FIRE CONTROL TECHNICIANS • RECORDS CLERKS • G.S.E. MECHANICS • AIRCRAFT TECHNICAL INSPECTORS • PRODUCTION CONTROL CLERKS • TEMPLATE & FORM BLOCK BUILDERS • MATERIAL BONDERS

Qualifications include solid background in either military or civilian aviation manufacturing environment. Experience in OJT training is desirable in the maintenance areas. The ability to train on a one-to-one or one-to-several person basis is required.

BHI offers excellent compensation and benefit programs as well as relocation and transportation expenses. Additionally, we offer a housing supplement and cost-of-living allowance. We provide an intensive transition course for most of the above positions. For those with children, BHI has opportunities in major cities in Iran with good schooling and medical facilities and for those without children . . . remote assignments with additional bonus incentives.

The Survivors Endured Ordeals To Reach America

By PETER ARNETT
AP Special Correspondent

ADRIAN, Mich. (AP) — They survived.

The odds seemed terribly against it five months ago, 12,000 miles from this prosperous city of trees and large, white houses.

Then, the 50 of them — 14 men, 11 women, 25 children — were aboard a weather-beaten, 30-foot fishing boat that arrived at Khlong Yai, Thailand, after five stormy days at sea. They were among a multitude of Vietnamese boat people fleeing their Communist-run country.

They had no fuel, no water, no food — finally, no hope. The Thais had toughened their policies. The Vietnamese would not be given refuge.

That's when the world saw the boat people through a camera's lens. Photographer Eddie Adams, an Associated Press special correspondent, found them and went aboard their leaky craft. But he was ordered off by Thai police and as he reluctantly left, the Vietnamese started weeping and shouting in fear. An old woman pounded her head with her open palm and cried, "I will die. I will die. I will die."

A mother of five, Nguyen Thi Yen, cradled a sick child in her arms and pleaded for help.

Ellen Kinh Tieu Vien, once a Saigon teacher, saw Adams as a guarantee the refugees would get help. Once he was gone, police towed their small craft out to sea. Adams watched the boat disappear, a white shirt fluttering at its bow as a flag of truce.

Adams' pictures and story on the "the boat with no smiles" were in American newspapers last winter. He never saw the people again.

But they survived.

"Some one was protecting us. Even a pirate turned out to be a protector," explained Ellen, who so unhappily had watched Adams leave their boat in Thailand.

She and some of the others are now in the United States. A Roman Catholic agency in Tampa, Fla., has found an apartment for Nguyen Thi Yen, and she is studying English. She has learned that her husband, who stayed behind for lack of money, is alive in Ho Chi Minh City, formerly Saigon.

And last Sunday, Ellen sat in Christ the Redeemer Church in Adrian and sang hymns. "They are not Christians," sponsor Margaret Jean Sparks said of Ellen and her family. "But they appreciate our feelings about religion and come to church with us. They say they believe our God protected them and helped get them here."

The frightening adventure was described by Ellen in an interview. It began with the adults paying about 25 ounces of gold each to be smuggled from Saigon. Then came a trail of country roads to Vietnam's southern coast, a surreptitious trip to Phuoc Quoc island and finally the dash to Thailand crammed into the tiny boat.

"We had been warned of pirates, but didn't meet any until after the Thai police had dragged us back into the ocean," said Ellen. It was then that four armed men aboard a motor launch ordered them to stop.

"I could tell they were pirates," said Ellen. "They screamed obscenities at us ... The leader was strong and slim, about 40 years old, with dark glasses and wearing an old U.S. army jacket. They were Thai, but some spoke a little Chinese and Vietnamese."

The pirates demanded gold but didn't get enough. They threatened to kill all aboard. "We cried, we begged, I knelt down on my knees," said Ellen's then-fiance, Cuong Chiem. "We had heard pirates were killing boat people. We pleaded for our lives."

The leader was unexpectedly merciful. "Maybe it was because there were mostly children aboard," said Cuong. "He told us the only way to get refuge was to scuttle our boat and throw ourselves at the mercy of the authorities."

"Several hours later about one mile off shore and near midnight, holes were punched in the bottom and we abandoned ship," Ellen said. But they found the water was up to their chests and the sea bottom rocky. They have deep scars on their legs from wounds suffered as they stumbled and fell while wading ashore.

Cuong said the Thai police were at first angry but later sheltered the group in a camp — including the newborn baby that Nguyen Na and his wife named Freedom in hopes the voyage would end with that.

It did. All 50 qualified for sponsorship in the United States. A Lutheran group sent Ellen Vien and Cuong Chiem to Adrian in May, and they were married a few weeks later. Their landlord was best man and local businessmen donated a bridal gown and tuxedo.

Along with Cuong's 9-year-old brother and Ellen's two sisters, the couple settled in an apartment in an old white frame house.

The city of about 28,000 people — a quarter of them Chicanos who came here since World War II — is a few miles northwest of Toledo, Ohio. Its money comes from agriculture and automotive plants. Its theater is said to be the oldest west of Washington.

"We're middle America in the best sense, very conservative in some ways, but progressive in human needs," Mayor Norman Haft said of his city. "We're Bible Belt, but we're cosmopolitan."

The Vietnamese go to local schools, and the adults hope to start vocational training soon. Ellen wants to be a secretary, her sister a nurse. Cuong hopes for a job in one of the automotive factories.

"What we can't stand is not working," said Cuong, who added that he had labored seven days a week in a small textile plant he owned near Saigon.

They try to keep in touch with the others from the boat. Most are scattered around the United States.

"They know they are free now," said their sponsor, Mrs. Sparks. "But they need something more, they need reassurance that they are loved. That is what we are trying to give them."

A LOST SOUL, BUT NOT FORGOTTEN — Nellie Bly, left, in a late 1880s photo, who claimed world attention in 1889 when she circled the globe in a then-astonishing 72 days, 6 hours and 11 minute minutes, once wrote that she pitied the soul whose undistinguished grave bore no mark of loving hands. This week, Woodlawn Cemetary employee Jeanne Capodillup examed the headstone dedicated in the Bronx, New York, cemetery, commemorating the burial place of the famous woman journalist whose grave went unmarked for 56 years. Television's Star Cougar Has Been Retired To Cat Orphanage

YELM, Wash. (AP) — Christopher the cougar was a television star before a tight shooting schedule and a short temper made him unwelcome in Hollywood. Today he lives in an orphanage for exotic cats whose owners have had enough of their tempestuous tabbies.

The Starnses love cats. They have slept with two bobcats on their bed and now Mrs. Starns is rearing two 2-week-old cougars in the house, nursing them with a bottle and special formula.

The compound shelters 33 felines, ranging from a lion to an African leopard and bobcats. Overpopulated zoos also place cats with the sanctuary when homes at other zoos are impossible to find.

Mrs. Starns says the secret to rearing wild animals is to do what their wild mothers do — administer a little discipline.

"In the wild, a mother will whack a disobedient kitten and send the kitten rolling over five or 10 times," she said.

"I don't administer that kind of discipline, but I have a little thong, a rubber slipper, and I give them a spanking when they deserve it."

Christopher appeared on nationwide television commercials as the cougar atop the Lincoln-Mercury sign and also in the TV series "Six Million Dollar Man."

The commercials and programs were produced on strict schedules and Christopher had to perform on days when he wasn't in the mood. He finally rebelled and bit his trainer.

For this he was blacklisted from show business. He would have been killed if he hadn't been rescued by the Starnses, who maintain a particular cautiousness around the temperamental has-been.

But Mrs. Starns completely trusts the cats she raised from kittens, such as Cassandra the leopard. She holds Cassandra in her arms and the leopard licks her hands and purrs.

When she takes Poppy, a 9-month-old cougar, for a walk, the cub begs to be carried.

Cassandra and Poppy will lick her hand, but they won't nip her. They get spanked when they put their teeth on her.

Tina the bobcat suffered an identity crisis. She was reared in a home by a couple who later decided they had to get rid of her.

Tina had never been out of the house and was incensed when she was placed in a pen with other bobcats.

"She thought she was a person," says Mrs. Starns. "She had never seen another animal. She kept crying to get in our house, but she's accepting the fact that she's animal."

Hubcap Became An Instrument

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Ty Soares found a musical instrument right in his own driveway.

He took a hubcap from his father's old car as raw material for an art project at a local high school's art resource center. A little paint, some twine and a pencil, and there it was: the world's first -four-string hubcap.

Ty and other fifth-graders got a chance to play their homemade instruments, including a shoe-box guitar and a two-canned clanger, along with Jeanne Rogers, a teacher and jazz pianist here.
