Unemployment Drops But Wholesale Prices Rising

By MICHAEL DOAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The unemployment rate dropped dramatically from 6.1 percent to 5.7 percent of the nation's workforce in June, the lowest rate in nearly four years, the Labor Department said today.

Teen-agers accounted for about half of the 400,000 decline in the number of unemployed persons during June, as their jobless rate dropped from 16.5 percent to 14.2 percent.

Nearly all of this gain was among white teen-agers, the department said.

A booming economy produced 710,000 new jobs last month, the biggest increase since 800,000 positions were created in November 1977.

Meanwhile, the Labor Department reported that rising food costs again contributed to a 0.7 percent increase in wholesale prices last month, the same increase as in May. The rises were smaller than during last winter, but could still keep inflation going at an 8.4 percent rate if they continue throughout the year.

Wholesale prices for food rose 1.1 percent in June, a sharp jump from the 0.95 percent gain the month before.

The 5.7 percent jobless rate last month marked the first time that unemployment has fallen below the 6 percent barrier since October 1974, when it was 5.9 percent. And the June level was the lowest since the 5.4 percent rate in August 1974.

Unemployment peaked at 9.1 percent in May 1975 before dropping to 7.1 percent in April and 6.1 percent in February of this year.

The Labor Department said the unemployment rate among black teen-agers, a major concern to the Carter administration, declined only slightly, from 38.4 percent to 37.1 percent.

A department analyst, Jack Bregger, said much of the gain for white teen-agers last month could be attributed to the opening up of summer jobs.

The unemployment rate for adult men dropped from 4.2 percent to 3.9 percent in June, while joblessness among adult women declined from 6.3 percent to 6.1 percent.

Blacks and other minorities had slightly better luck finding jobs as their unemployment rate dipped from 12.3 percent to 11.9 percent.

The biggest gain in June was in the construction industry, where 85,000 jobs were created. In the past year, about 500,000 persons have found new building jobs, but most economists expect the housing boom to level off later in the year.

Other industries enlarging their payrolls were state and local government, service industries, retail stores and finance, insurance and real estate companies.

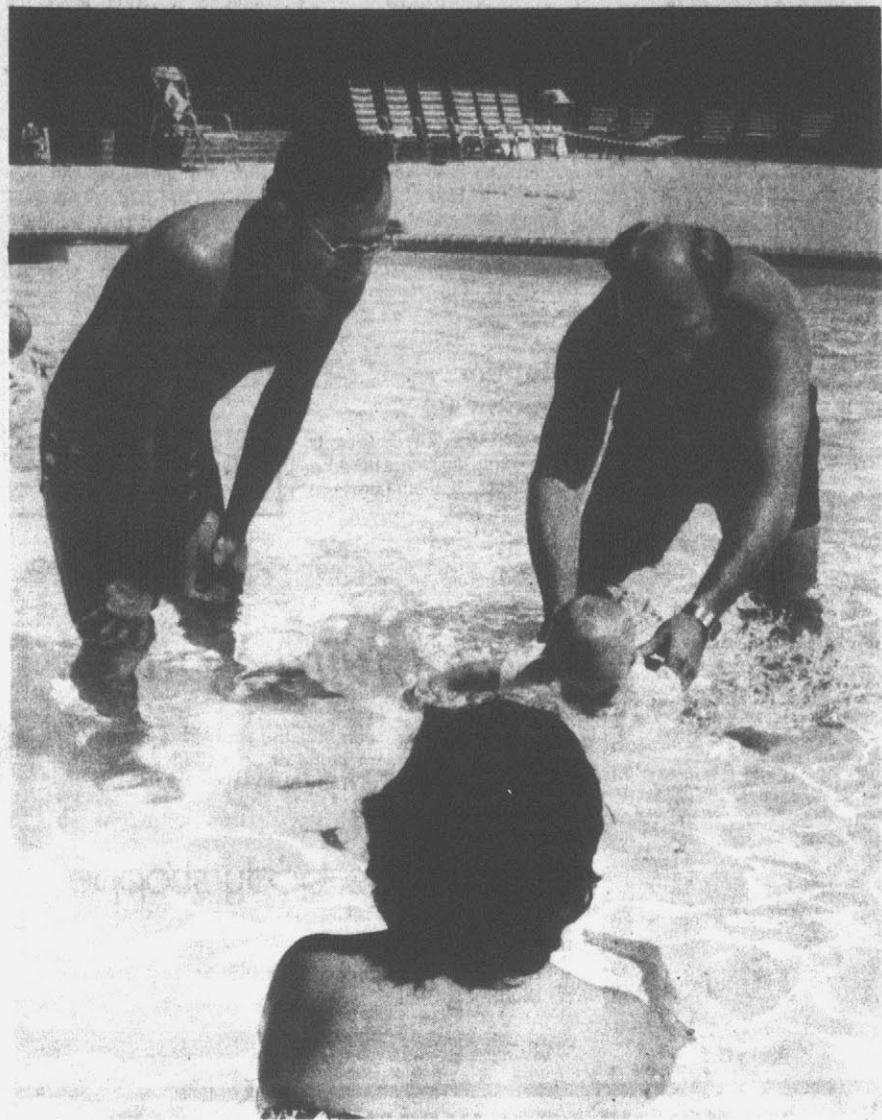

However, factories did little new hiring after employing 645,000 new workers over the past year, the department said.

Overall, 94.8 million persons held jobs in June, providing 38.9 percent of the working-age population with jobs, a record high.

Despite the failure of wholesale prices to dip in June from May's 0.7 percent growth rate, a top economic adviser to President Carter predicts a sharp slowdown later this year in food price increases, which soared at an annual rate of 18.1 percent in the first five months of this year.

Charles Schultze, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, says he expects the inflation rate to brake to about 5 percent for the rest of the year, after climbing at an annual rate of 10.2 percent from January to May.

LEARNING YOUNG — Corey Hutcherson, five and a half months, gets a push from his father, Ken, while learning about the water. Instructor Ray Scharf, left, said that he has taught children from five months to two and three about the water, or in some cases, the children actually make paddling motions with their arms and legs.

Scharf said that the intention of the class is to get the children only accustomed with the water. He said a great number of the small toddlers can float on their own. Corey is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Hutcherson, of Greenville. Scharf said nine or ten children and parents participated in the summer program. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Project Funds Asked

North Carolina Secretary of Natural Resources and Community Development Howard N. Lee has recommended federal funding for recreation projects in Ayden, Grifton and Farmville.

According to an official newsletter of the department, "in almost all cases, the federal agency (U. S. Heritage Conservation and Recreation Service) concurs with state recommendations."

The tentative amounts are as follows:

— $30,096 for Third Street Park in Ayden. The project consists of the development of 2.6 acres, including two tennis courts, baseball field and landscaping.

— $29,787 for Grifton Park Improvement. Details include further development of two existing park sites. The civic center site improvements include two tennis courts, parking area, picnic area, children play area and utilities. The Picnic shelter, playground area, renovation of two tennis courts and utilities are proposed improvements for the town park site.

— $30,867 has been asked for the Farmville Municipal Athletic Complex. Proposed project plans include development of 7.1 acres in the areas of landscaping, grading, picnic area, softball field, two tennis courts, water system, electrical system, fencing and engineering.

The federal funds will be matched on approximately a 50-50 basis by the local agency receiving the funds.

Letter that hopefully will be an asset for Farmville when the decision is made. It was reported that the town has signed a five year lease, with option of five more years, for use of Askew property near the town for use as a refuse transfer station. The town is to sublease the site to Pitt County, since the county is taking over the solid waste responsibility from the town.

With no ado, the area west of Farmville on Highway 264 was annexed by ordinance. The effective date is July 1, 1979.

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Israel and Syria squared off against each other today because of the Syrian attack on Lebanese Christians, and Lebanese President Elias Sarkis threatened to resign unless both Syria and the Christians gave him a free hand to govern.

An Israeli army spokesman in Tel Aviv confirmed a report by Radio Israel that the Jewish state had strengthened its forces "along the entire border" to the north. The reinforcements were sent up as another warning to Syria to stop its attack on Israel's Christian allies in Lebanon, the rightwing Phalange and National Liberal parties and their militias.

To counter the Israeli threat, Syrian President Hafez Assad put his armed forces on full alert, the usually reliable Middle East Reporter said. It reported that front-line forces facing Israeli troops across the U.N. buffer zone on the Golan Heights were put on a war footing.

Israel sent more troops to the Lebanese border and the Golan Heights after sending a warning flight of seven Israeli warplanes over Beirut on Thursday and a statement by Defense Minister Ezer Weizman that Israel would have to "do more than just take note" of the pounding Syrian guns were giving Beirut's Christian quarter.

The Israeli spokesman said the reinforcement also was designed to deter Palestinian guerrillas from taking advantage of the Syrian action by stepping up activity against Christians in south Lebanon.

Sarkis' demand for full authority was reported by an aide who said the president probably would announce his resignation today if he did not get satisfaction.

The aide, who asked not to be identified, said the United States, Britain and France called on Israel and Syria to avoid a military confrontation and urged the president to remain at his post.

"I have the legality but not the authority," the 53-year-old president reportedly said.

Informed sources said he was demanding a redefinition of the Syrian role in law enforcement and the eventual disarming of all Christian and Moslem militias and the Palestinian guerrillas.

The Lebanese state radio said both Christian and Moslem leaders were trying to dissuade Sarkis, a Christian with no political following or private militia, from quitting.

Syria's gunners were silent today, observing an uproclaimed cease-fire that began at dawn Thursday after the heaviest barrage of the six-day Syrian attack on the Christian half of Beirut. Sporadic sniper fire continued from Christian militiamen, but the 600,000

Christian residents began venturing out of their basement shelters.

The police reported at least 184 Christians killed and 615 wounded since the first Syrian attack last Saturday. Syria did not report its casualties, but Christian gunmen claimed they killed many of their foes.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A moon has been discovered orbiting the planet Pluto, a finding astronomers say reveals as well that the solar system's most distant planet also is its smallest, the U.S. Naval Observatory announced today.

The discovery leaves only Mercury and Venus, the nearest planets to the sun, without moons. The finding brings to 35 the number of satellites circling the other seven planets.

CIA Agent Book Profit Impounded

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — A federal district judge today ordered that every cent Frank W. Snapp III makes from publication of a book about CIA actions during the fall of Saigon shall be impounded in a court-supervised trust.

This may mean that Snapp will have to forfeit all his profits from the book, "Decent Interval." Attorneys have said the case will be appealed to higher courts.

U.S. District Judge Oren R. Lewis also ruled that Snapp will be enjoined from any further violation of a secrecy agreement which he signed when he went to work for the Central Intelligence Agency requiring that anything he wrote about the agency should be submitted for pre-publication review.

"The CIA cannot protect its intelligence sources and methods if its agents are allowed to determine what intelligence ought to be made public," Lewis said in a written order.

"One who breaches his trust and secrecy agreements with the agency of the United States charged with the responsibility for protecting intelligence sources and methods ought not to be permitted to retain his ill-gotten gains.

"Anything less will not suffice to prevent unauthorized disclosure of such information."

Snapp contended that his book did not disclose any confidential information, and government prosecutors in the civil suit did not contest this.

The CIA maintained, however, that the book disclosed information about agency operations which should remain secret.

Lewis said that Snapp admitted he did everything he could to keep the CIA from knowing about the book prior to its publication.

"The court finds from this evidence that Frank W. Snapp III willfully, deliberately and surreptitiously breached his position of trust with the CIA and the secrecy agreement dated Sept. 16, 1968."

Mike Regan of the Pitt County Extension Office said he and other extension agents know you're not the only one. They've received many calls to this effect in recent weeks. He suggested that anyone having this problem call the state Extension Teletip Service, 1-800-662-7301, and ask for Tape 2703. The call is free and the information is detailed about how to prevent or get rid of fleas in one's home. For further assistance one may contact the local Extension Office, of course. A listing of the myriad subjects that may be learned about via the Teletip line is also available from the Extension Service.

Hotline recently ran an item about who one could get to make pillows from a featherbed. Mrs. Ellen Pilgreen of Winterville is experienced in this job and would be glad to talk to anyone interested, she said. Her phone number is 756-0509.

Also, we've learned from another reader that Sears has ticking already cut and sewn to pillow size that may be closed either by stitching or with a zipper, so one could make his own with a minimum of effort.

We've also learned from this item what a goldmine you have if you have goosedown or other feathers in good shape. Goosedown pillows sell for between $70 and $80 apiece, a reader has informed us.

FARMVILLE — Farmville Economic Council Director Ann McGaughey last night asked for and received promise of a letter of intent from the Town Commissioners to provide extension of water and sewer to the site of an industrial site.

Mrs. McGaughey said she is dealing with a very desirable prospective industry for the town now and has shown several sites around town. Another visit by company officials will be made soon and she is promised that she will have in hand a letter that hopefully will be an asset for Farmville when the decision is made.

It was reported that the town has signed a five year lease, with option of five more years, for use of Askew property near the town for use as a refuse transfer station. The town is to sublease the site to Pitt County, since the county is taking over the solid waste responsibility from the town.

With no ado, the area west of Farmville on Highway 264 was annexed by ordinance. The effective date is July 1, 1979.

Also annexed was a

Carolina Power and Light switch station that has been just outside the town limits. CP&L voluntarily requested this annexation to help the Town protect its franchise tax receipts for electricity that will be delivered through this switch station.

It was noted that the town will adopt a utilities due process procedure, including the following: placing of a notice in August bills; giving notice to all new customers as they apply for service; publishing a monthly newspaper ad; and printing a notice on the next bill forms next spring, at which time the first three procedures would be discontinued. The notice would say that customers who dispute the correctness of a bill have the right to request a hearing and that this should be done by the 15th of the month. Hearings will be held by the town administrator or the finance director before the 20th so that the hearing cannot be used as a means of prolonging payment. The bill clerk and utilities personnel will continue to provide account histories, meter checks and other data for the hearings.

The town administrator reported that he has received two proposals for public officials liability insurance — one from Unimark-McDonald, which is co-sponsored by the National League of cities and the ICMA and the other from International Surplus Lines through local insurance agent, Jim Lancaster. He said he is still analyzing the two and will prepare a side-by-side comparison for the Commissioners' further study. He reported that the General Assembly has also created a study commission to investigate creation of the North Carolina plan to provide this type of insurance.

It was reported that the inflow and infiltration report for the sewer system has been submitted to the EPA. Actions to reduce sewer inflow and infiltration that are cost-effective amount to $195,056. As soon as EPA acts on the report, rehabilitation work can be begun, it was noted.

Street improvements award was made to the L. A. Reynolds Company, with work to go as far as money allows, based on unit prices. The town administrator was given permission to pay for all the improvements without (Continued on page 8)

Young Program Manager Touts Joys Of Flying

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — It was love at first flight for Karen Coyle, who took her first airplane ride at the age of 15.

By the age of 17 she had learned to fly and had soloed, and now, a veteran pilot at the age of 22, she is sharing her enthusiasm for flying with others as manager of a national program to generate interest in learning to fly.

"Flying is one of the few pursuits you can use both in business and for personal and pleasure aspects," Miss Coyle said in an interview. "You can get more places and do more things in less time, stopping anywhere you want — with close to 14,000 airports to choose from — not having to depend on scheduled aircraft. Just about any occupation that exists today can utilize aviation."

Miss Coyle, who lives in Washington, D.C., flies a single-engine, four-passenger plane around the country, speaking before civic, high school and college groups in her work as manager of the TakeOff program for the General Aviation Manufacturers Association.

"General aviation," she explains, "is flying all aircraft except commercial scheduled and military aircraft. People from every walk of life fly — a beautiful cross section of the population is flying. I know pilots from a 14-year-old boy too young to solo to a 94-year-old grandmother."

Miss Coyle, who was wearing a gold skirt that matched her shoulder-length hair, a gold-and-brown blouse, gold earrings and a tiny gold airplane pin, got her first taste of air travel at 15 when she visited an aunt in Minnesota. She fell in love with O'Hare airport in Chicago.

"I'd always had a love for organization, and O'Hare seemed extraordinarily efficient — people moving, coming from everywhere, going everywhere, and all those beautiful airplanes around."

She decided to become an airport manager, enrolling in the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks, which offered the only business degree in aviation in the country at that time.

She was one of three women among the 168 men starting the course, which included such studies as aerospace legislation, air transportation, air transport utilization, airport management, airline operations, weather modification, air traffic control and, of course, flying.

"I was 17 and a freshman when I soloed," she recalled. "It was total, absolute exhilaration; I think I was floating 10 feet off the ground for weeks."

During her college career Miss Coyle flew a night airmail route, taking the job to build up multi-engine time as well as for the salary. Three nights a week she took off from Grand Forks at 9, making various stops to drop off mail en route to Minneapolis. There she and her copilot "had a cup of coffee, loaded another ton of mail and headed back, making stops along the way, got home about 5 a.m., slept till 7 and got up for an 8 o'clock class."

Miss Coyle, a member of UND's flying team, received the National Intercollegiate Flying Association's Outstanding Woman Pilot Award in 1975. She has a commercial license with instrument rating and multi-engine rating and is a certified flight instructor. She has 1,650 hours of flying time.

"To learn to fly you must have the ability to absorb knowledge and the intelligence to utilize that knowledge. You have to have a degree of self-confidence, since you are in an environment initially alien," she says, stressing the word "initially" and adding, "Flying to me is like getting into my car."

"A good pilot and a safe pilot are synonymous. A safe pilot knows his personal limitations and the limitations of his aircraft and respects them both."

After she completes her work with the TakeOff program, which aims at getting 300,000

Girls Go Where The Action Is

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband owns his own business. It's small, but fairly successful. He has 10 men working for him and one girl I'll call her "Jill" who handles the office and does a great job. Jill is only 20 and not super-attractive, but not ugly either.

My husband and four of the men who work for him recently formed a bowling team. They're all married men with families. Well, Jill decided that these men need her support, so she started showing up at the bowling alley with a girlfriend when the men bowl.

One of the wives complained to me about it, so I told my husband and he said it's a free country and Jill can go anywhere she wants. He said he doesn't want to lose her as an employee, so he's not going to say anything to her.

I say she should be told very nicely to clean up her act. She gave my husband a Christmas present after working for him about a month. I think she's coming on too strong, but if you think I'm wrong, I'll let it go.

Sign me...

LOOKING OUT FOR NO. 1

DEAR LOOKING: I fail to see what is "dirty" about the girl's act. I agree with your husband. Jill has a right to go where she wants. And if you and the other wives are wise, you'll pull in your claws.

DEAR ABBY: I wish you would say something about the selfishness of people who buy two-door automobiles when they could just as easily buy a car with four doors. Of course, those two-door car owners don't have to worry. They always ride up in front, and never have the inconvenience of having to crawl in and out of a car and be confined back there with no leg room whatsoever.

Please don't tell me that two-door cars are cheaper. When one spends $6,000 for an automobile, a few hundred dollars more doesn't matter. I have also heard the excuse that two-door models are sportier and better looking! That is also ridiculous.

Personally, I would rather stay home than ride in the back seat of a two-door car. And I hope you will see fit to print this in your column because I know others share my opinion.

NO NAME, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: Two-door cars are preferred by some parents with small children. Others prefer them for other reasons. The option is yours: Ride or stay home.

DEAR ABBY: When I married my husband he was a quiet, modest man, but success has changed him. We have just returned from a "vacation" that I must admit I did not enjoy.

My husband's financial success has given him what he calls "confidence." I call it an overbearing tendency to brag. Everyone we met had to listen to his rags-to-riches story. It was embarrassing. He has made an outstanding success in business, but where is his modesty and taste? Proud as I am of his success, I long for the humble man who sat quietly by my side and talked of something other than himself and his money.

I love him. How can I help him?

HIS WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Tell him, my dear. Tell him.

new licensed pilots in the United States and Canada by 1980. Miss Coyle plans to stay in aviation in some kind of administrative capacity, perhaps airport management or working for a manufacturer — but not as a commercial pilot.

"I don't want to fly a bus that's computerized and you just press a button. It's not like my airplane, where if I touch it, it responds," she says.

"And I don't have the patience to be a flight engineer, then a co-captain, then captain. I like being captain right now. I'm too impatient to do anything else."

Thousands Homeless After Flooding Of Rochester

MAJOR PILEUP — These five cars were neatly shuffled by the force of Thursday's flooding Zumbro River in southeast Rochester, N.Y. Some 4,000 people were evacuated from their homes but no estimate of the damage has been made yet. (AP Laserphoto)

By KARREN MILLS
Associated Press Writer
ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP) — Thousands of residents remained homeless and thousands more were without electricity today as authorities began a house-to-house survey of damage from heavy flooding that left at least five people dead.

About 80 percent of the city's 58,000 residents were without electricity and officials said widespread power outages might continue through Saturday.

Some of the 5,000 residents forced from their homes Wednesday night returned late Thursday. But most stayed with relatives or at hotels.

The Red Cross said 159 people spent Thursday night at shelters set up in three churches and one state hospital in Rochester.

In addition to the flooding, officials were concerned about a power dam on the Zumbro River about 10 miles north of town.

An engineer flying over the area spotted what he said was an old crack in the dam. It was to be surveyed today.

"Whether it's an old crack or not, we're going to take precautions," Deputy Sheriff Marty Burns said.

Most roads into the city had been closed by high water but were re-opened late in the day.

U.S. Sen. Wendell Anderson, D-Minn., and Gov. Rudy Perpich toured the city by helicopter and car and said they would ask President Carter to declare the southeastern Minnesota city a disaster area.

Some local officials estimated damage at nearly $50 million.

The Zumbro crested at about 23 feet, 11 feet above flood stage, after up to 9 inches of rain fell Wednesday night. A flash flood watch was called off early today, though the National Weather Service said there was a chance of light thunder-showers.

The dead included four elderly people who drowned early Thursday when the elevator they were riding at a nursing home descended into the flooded basement. The fifth victim died when her car plunged off an Olmsted County road about 10 miles southwest of Rochester.

They were identified as Lillian Hoesly, 72, a nursing assistant at National Health Enterprises Nursing Home, home residents Mary Ellis, Anna Starke and Florence Larsen, and Bonnie Carol Keller, 38, rural Stewartville.

Alice Fauver, who was evacuated from her home, said some people in her neighborhood strung up ropes across a flooded street to drag themselves out of the swift current to safety.

"People I've never seen in my life have been helping. They've been fixing coffee, fixing food, helping clean up," said Ms. Fauver.

Some 100 regular and off-duty volunteers — augmented by 100 members of the National Guard, officers from the state Department of Natural Resources and Civil Defense workers — joined the battle to rescue flood victims, many of whom could be reached only by boat.

Striking Police Try To Rally Public Support

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP) — New Bern's 34 police officers, who walked off the job last weekend in a dispute over a pay raise, are trying to drum up public support for their battle with the Board of Aldermen.

Officers began circulating petitions Thursday endorsing their request for a 10 percent pay raise, and they circulated leaflets urging residents to attend a meeting of the Board of Aldermen next Tuesday night.

The meeting Tuesday is the last scheduled meeting of the aldermen before a July 20 deadline the board has given the officers for returning to work.

Meanwhile, members of the board say they have no apologies for tripling their own salaries while rejecting the 10 percent pay raise sought by the police force.

The entire police department resigned last Friday night after the aldermen approved a budget that included a pay raise of 6 percent for city employees. The board raised the pay of aldermen from $600 to $1,800 a year, doubled the salary of Mayor L.R. Morgan to $3,600 and added $100 to the annual stipend of alderman Charlie Kimbrell, who serves as mayor pro-tem.

"Nobody's running for office for money," Alderman Paul Cox said in a telephone interview. "There are still lots of things we do that we spend money for. Nobody's questioning what the county commissioners make, which is twice as much."

The salary increases for the aldermen, which amounted to about one-fourth the expenditure that the raises sought by police would have cost, added about $8,325 to the city budget and more than doubled the total allotment for the Board of Aldermen to $15,800.

Kimbrell has indicated he does not expect the police officers to return to their jobs by the July 20 deadline. The city began advertising Monday for replacements.

Several officers have been cleaning out their desks, raising questions about the handling of pending criminal cases.

A.B. Dickerson, who was an investigator, said he has about 140 cases pending, including almost 50 he solved last week but did not have time to make reports on.

"It's going to be almost impossible for anyone to pick up where I left off," said Dickerson, who added that there are about 289 cases pending in the files.

Although Dickerson said he plans to appear in court to tes-

Town Finding Marijuana

MORGANTON, N.C. (AP) — Authorities say a record amount of locally grown marijuana has been seized in Burke County this year.

There seems to be some question about whether more marijuana is being grown or if law enforcement officers are simply finding more of what is being raised.

"It's everywhere," one detective said. "This is the season."

Acting on a tip, officers recently found 14 stalks of marijuana growing beside a beauty shop in the eastern part of the county. They said the plants were almost ready for harvest and could have brought in up to $300 each.

"It was good stuff," an official said. "They had two rows of corn and a row of marijuana planted. You could see it from the road driving by."

Victoria Lynn Shell, 24, of Rutherford College was charged with felonious manufacturing of marijuana.

One officer said the increase in the amount of marijuana being confiscated this year results from the way the courts are handling offenders.

"People seem to be braver this year," he said. "The courts don't do things to people with marijuana, so they're braver."

Other theories of law enforcement officers are that investigators "are just doing more roadwork" and that more people are calling in tips when they see marijuana being grown.

Shower Songs Will Not Melt Or Drip Anymore

CRYSTAL MOUNTAIN, N.C. (AP) — Brill Huntley loves to sing in the shower. His problem is he never remembers the words.

He's tried writing out the words, but they drip off the paper, and then the paper slides off the shower wall when it gets wet.

Huntley passed the tradition of singing in the shower to his older son, Wood, a 31-year-old Philadelphia lawyer. Two and a half years ago, Wood was visiting home at Crystal Mountain, 15 miles west of Blowing Rock. He heard his father struggling to remember lyrics in the shower. He decided to take the problem home and work on it.

He came up with four boxed sets of eight waterproof plastic song cards. Each set is complete with a pegged suction cup to hang on the shower wall.

The lyrics include "The Band Played On," "In the Good Old Summertime," "Oh, Susannah" and "She'll Be Comin' Round the Mountain." The Huntleys named it "Singin' Sam's Shower Songs." All are guaranteed not to melt or drip.

"Dad embodies Singin' Sam," Wood explained. "He enjoys people."

Merchandizing their product has brought the older Huntley an unexpected fame. He was with Wood at a wholesale bath and linen show in New York in April — and found himself singing on television.

"I was wearing my button that says, 'I sing shower songs in the shower,'" Huntley said. "I decided I'd walk down and see an art show in Central Park about two blocks down. There was a big crowd of folks, and the TV people happened to be there."

"All of a sudden, that microphone was in my hand and a man was asking me, 'What is this shower songs all about?'"

"I started to tell him, and he said, 'Don't tell me — tell the country! You're on TV.' And he asked me to sing."

Dazzled, Huntley nonetheless obliged with a lusty rendition of his old standby, "Give My Regards to Broadway."

Wood says he is now doing only enough lawyering to stay alive, while he markets the "Singin' Sam" lyric cards.

"People thought I was crazy when I began this," he said from his office in Philadelphia. "A lot of them still do."

But he's not letting that stop him. The Huntleys' now have another lyrical product — already placed with a hotel chain along the New Jersey Turnpike — the "Singin' Sam's Traveling Sing-Along." It is a four-envelope set of identical lyric cards to put in the glove compartment until the next long auto trip with family or friends. Why a set of sing-along cards for travel?

Well, it's because Brill Huntley likes to sing to pass the miles. But he had this problem in the car — the same one that he had in the shower...

New Director Of ECU Center

ECU News Bureau

Dr. A. H. Woodworth, a Greenville family physician, has been named director of the Eastern Carolina Family Practice Center, the primary care facility operated by the East Carolina University School of Medicine.

DR. A.H. WOODWORTH

He will be responsible for daily operations of the center and the quality of care provided to its patients.

Woodworth received his undergraduate degree from Hiram College, Ohio, and his MD from Albany Medical College, New York. He did postgraduate training at the Cleveland Clinic in Ohio.

After serving two years in the army, he came to Greenville in 1971 as a physician with the ECU Student Health Service. A year later he established a group practice in family medicine.

Woodworth is a member of the American Academy of Family Practice, the N.C. Academy of Family Practice and the Pitt County Medical Society. He serves on the board of directors of the Coastal Plains Heart Association, the N.C. Diabetic Association and the Eastern Carolina Emergency Medical Services Committee.

He is medical director of the Greenville Villa Nursing Home and is on the staff of the Walter B. Jones Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center.

Fire Damaged Portable John

Greenville Firemen were called to the 400 block of Reade Street at 1:57 a.m. when a portable johnny house was reported on fire.

Fire officers reported heavy damage to the portable toilet.

The fire, they reported, apparently spread from the inside of the unit to the outside. No cause for the blaze was reported.

The portable john was owned by Rogers' Rent-A-John of Kinston.

Study Recall

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Elections officials are making a final review of petitions to remove City Council members Clarence Brown and Howard Harris because they were found to be delinquent in their property taxes.

Following the final check by Durham County officials this week, the petitions are expected to be sent to City Clerk Margaret Rollins for certification.

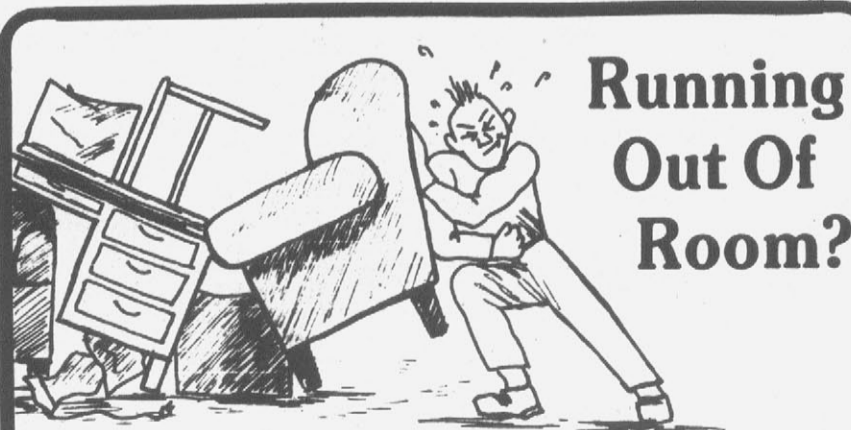

Preliminary examinations of the petitions indicated there were 10,355 signatures on the documents seeking removal of Brown and 10,327 on the ones aimed at removing Harris. At least one fourth — or 10,126 — of the city's registered voters must sign a removal petition for it to be valid.

The City Council voted 10-3 last month to ask Harris and Brown to resign but neither has complied with the request.

The recall drives were begun after tax records showed the two were behind on city and county property tax payments. Records indicated Brown had not filed to pay city or county property taxes for five years and Harris had not paid city taxes for four of five years or county taxes for 15 of 18 years.

A third council member, Carolyn Thornton, was shown to have failed to file taxes for three years. However, Mrs. Thornton, a recent appointee, had not been on the council long enough to be included in the recall when it was begun.

After the petitions are certified by the city clerk, Harris and Brown will have five days to decide whether to resign or face recall elections. Neither has indicated which alternative he will take.

Writers Not Safe In Russia

In Moscow two reporters from "The New York Times" and the "Baltimore Sun" have been charged with "slander" in Soviet courts for reporting the activities of human rights advocates in Russia. It's an old story, of course. Repressive societies don't want the story of the crushing of individual liberties to come out. The Soviets are now warning foreign correspondents that they are not to report on the minute struggle for freedoms in that country. Why the Soviets chose this particular time to haul two foreign correspondents before its courts on such a trumped up charge is a mystery.

Regardless, our nation — and all of the free world where freedom of press and speech are respected — should not take the matter lightly. The Soviets are putting a lot of faith in the 1980 Olympics to be held in Moscow to bathe their society in prestige. But the action against the two U.S. correspondents makes it clear that it is not safe for western world journalists to work in Russia. The free press of the world should make it clear to the Russians that there will be no reporters there for the Olympics unless this most recent oppressive act is resolved and news men stationed in Russia are free to do their jobs without reprisal.

Somehow, Differences Must Be Solved

An Egyptian plan which calls for return of Arab lands held by Israel as a basis for peace, wasn't exactly met with enthusiasm in Tel Aviv. It does, however, get something on the table for negotiation between the Arab and Israeli worlds.

Somehow the differences will eventually have to be settled, if Israel is to have its existence assured. Obviously negotiation will have to be an agonizingly slow process, but the only alternative to this route is the chaos of war.

Hand-In-Hand Approach

By Bill Noblitt
RALEIGH—Can economic growth and development take place hand-in-hand with environmental protection? The North Carolina Nature Conservancy thinks so, and is pushing that approach in this state. The state branch of the national Nature Conservancy organization has established headquarters in Chapel Hill and at a recent organizational meeting set up a state of officers and directors. Chairman is Winston-Salem industrialist Gordon Hanes who gives a clue to the general approach of the effort as he denounces the approach used by other environmental groups: "The Sierra Club, for example...they're against everything. They would just shut down the world if they could," Hanes commented bluntly.

State Department of Natural Resources and Community Development. A good example of that cooperation was seen in the transfer of 13,850 acres of the Green Swamp in Brunswick County to the Nature Conservancy by the Federal Paper Board Company. The Nature Conservancy will hold the property in trust until such time as the state is ready to take ownership. The state and its people benefit by gaining ownership of an area rich in botanical oddities—including the homelands of the Venus flytrap. Federal Paper Board Company benefits by ridding itself of some swampy, unusable land bought at $1.50 per acre—but gaining a tax writeoff of $4 million for the gift. So far, the Nature Conservancy has been involved in saving more than 78,000 acres in North Carolina, including Jockey's Ridge, Core Banks, Dismal Swamp, Chowan Swamp, Merchant Mill Pond, Roan Mountain, and the Henry M. Wright Preserve.

to fund-raising projects to buy the property. Once acquired, the sections may be held by the Nature Conservancy for future management, or turned over to local, state, or federal agencies for management—depending on who can best make use of the property.

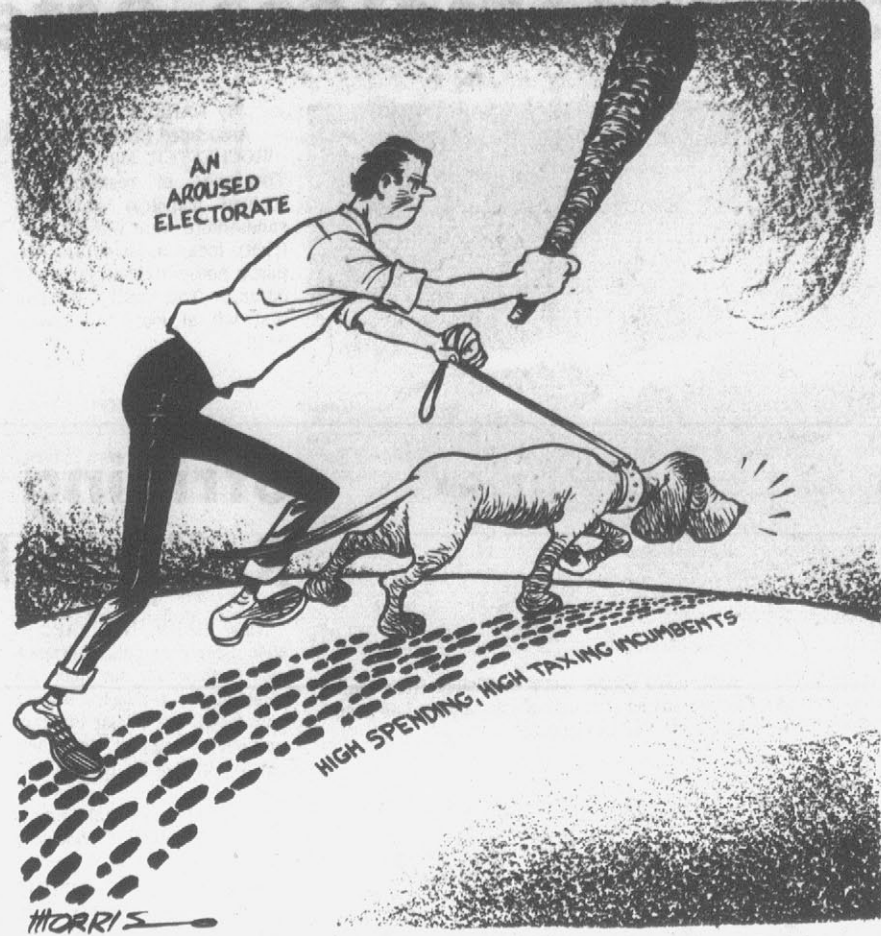

BILL NOBLITT

"What we do is find the best possible group to manage the property whether that be a park service, a wildlife protection agency, or a local garden club," explained Thomas M. Massengale, the national field representative and North Carolina coordinator. A Chapel Hill native, Massengale is a graduate of the University of North Carolina majoring history; has a landscape architect's masters from N.C. State University, and an abiding interest in conservation work which has taken him as far as New Zealand. Back home, now, he feels establishment of the North Carolina Nature Conservancy is a landmark move for a state with so much to protect, from mountains to the seashore. The keyword in the Nature Conservancy program is prompt action. One of the more valuable techniques used is that the private, non-profit agency can move without governmental red tape to secure options and begin purchase of land, while a governmental agency would be hamstrung by funding restrictions and other legal requirements. An example is purchase of an island off the coast of Georgia which Lester Maddox intended to turn into a public beach. While the Legislature was convened to do that (an approach not favored by environmentalists since this would have destroyed the primitive and fragile plant and animal life) the Nature Conservancy bought it and transferred title to a federal agency so it could not be condemned for state use.

Charity In The Palace

WASHINGTON — The headline read "U.S. Law Barring Bribes Blamed for Millions in Lost Sales in Asia." This should not come as a big surprise to anybody. Even a Harvard Business School professor will tell you that payoffs for large contracts are the milk of commerce in 99.6 percent of all the countries in the world. An ambassador from one of the Third World powers stationed in Washington told me over lunch the other day: "The trouble with your law is that you consider it a bribe when a payment is made to someone in order to get a contract. In our country it is a gift of friendship that cements the ties between the company in question and our leaders." "Our SEC always sees the dark side of every issue," I told him. "It isn't as if this gift is going to the president of our country, who is considered a most honorable man. It goes to his wife for her charitable foundation." "What does the foundation do?" "It gives out contracts for schools and hospitals and orphanages." "Who builds them?" I wanted to know. "The president's brother-in-law. He is the largest contractor in our country." "There doesn't seem to be anything wrong with that," I told him. "Does the charitable foundation do anything else?" "It invests its surplus money in bottling plants, fisheries, real estate and hotels. The profits from these enterprises are then distributed to the wives of cabinet members and high-ranking military officers who have their own charitable foundations." "Then as I see it, the bribes — I mean gifts — that an American company is expected to donate to your officials are just part of your method of raising money to provide for the poor people of your country." "That is what we've been trying to explain to your Commerce Department, but to no avail. Let me give you an example. Suppose our country wants to order 1,000 bulldozers at a cost of $50,000 each. We have our choice of buying French bulldozers, British bulldozers, Italian bulldozers or American bulldozers. As you know, there is no difference in bulldozers. If you've seen one, you've seen them all. The French will offer to sell them to us and set aside $5,000 per bulldozer for our president's children's education. The British might sell them to us and donate $7,000 per bulldozer to the president's sister, who lives in Switzerland. The Italians will say they'll give us the bulldozers and allot $10,000 on each one to build a summer palace for our president in Liechtenstein. But the Americans will tell us that they don't want to give us anything but the bulldozers. What kind of way of doing business is that?" "It's a stupid way," I said. "Of course, we'd rather have the American bulldozers, but if we bought them under those conditions our president would become the laughingstock of Asia, and his wife would be ridiculed by everyone in our country because her charitable foundation had no funds." "What is the solution?" (Continued on page 6)

THE INSIDE REPORT

Aftermath Of Neutron

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
BONN — President Carter's humiliating treatment of Chancellor Helmut Schmidt in the neutron warhead affair has weakened West German self-confidence to handle another issue of larger importance under U.S. "leadership." That issue is Moscow's sudden acceptance of "parity" in the long-stalled effort to reduce Western and Communist troops in Central Europe. This means that the implications of Mr. Carter's grotesque mismanagement of the neutron affair are far from exhausted. To a degree that unseeing eyes in Washington seem unable to comprehend, the humiliation of the Bonn government has subtly undermined Schmidt's ability to deal from strength against other Soviet political operations. The first of these is the troop-reduction issue. Fresh from his triumph in killing off the neutron "bomb," Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev unexpectedly did two things: he came here for a highly visible state visit, his first in five years (giving the chancellor's office just three weeks to prepare for it); and he presented to the world his lovely little package of "mutual and balanced force reductions" (MBFR). For the first time, he accepted the West's demand for equal ceilings — parity — for Moscow's proposal as read here would dump "collectivity," demanding country-by-country ceilings. That underlines cardinal Soviet postwar strategy: to systematically reduce West German power and influence. As of today, there is no question that the Carter administration will insist both on true parity and on collectivity, in lock-step with West Germany and other NATO. But there is a queasy feeling here about the coming Soviet propaganda campaign for its plan. "They will have public opinion on their side," a leading strategist in Schmidt's government told us. "It is going to be difficult to make the Soviet proposal look as bad as it really is." And then there is Mr. Carter's neutron example. The toplevel West German security council, egged on by the Americans, secretly agreed in January to support U.S. construction of the neutron warhead, and President Carter was personally on what the experts call the "data base" is now assured, with the truth difficult to prove. Catch Two in the Soviet proposal is that it is aimed straight at West Germany. It ignores the West's demand that the 700,000 ceiling be reached by "collective" reductions, not by allocations to individual states. Moscow's proposal as read here would dump "collectivity," demanding country-by-country ceilings. That underlines cardinal Soviet postwar strategy: to systematically reduce West German power and influence. As of today, there is no question that the Carter administration will insist both on true parity and on collectivity, in lock-step with West Germany and other NATO. But there is a queasy feeling here about the coming Soviet propaganda campaign for its plan. "They will have public opinion on their side," a leading strategist in Schmidt's government told us. "It is going to be difficult to make the Soviet proposal look as bad as it really is." And then there is Mr. Carter's neutron example. The toplevel West German security council, egged on by the Americans, secretly agreed in January to support U.S. construction of the neutron warhead, and President Carter was personally informed of this government decision. That followed six months of comprehensive conversations with the Carter administration on the weapon's military, political and strategic implications. There was no disagreement between Bonn and Washington. Schmidt's understanding was explicit: the weapon would go into production; for the ensuing two years the Russians would be pressed for concessions (removal of the SS-20 mobile missile or reduction of the huge Soviet European tank force) as a quid pro quo against actual deployment of the neutron; if no deal could be struck the neutron would be deployed. To carry this issue against his muscular left wing, Schmidt fought a bitter and debilitating rearguard action from the summer of 1977 to the day in March that Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher flew to the chancellor's home in Hamburg to tell him Jimmy Carter had changed his mind. (Stunned, Schmidt asked in effect: are you speaking with your master's voice? His and mine, said Christopher.) "Carter made Schmidt look like a jackass," one Western diplomat told us. But beyond that forgettable (CQ) personal affront, the neutron warhead affair (Continued on page 6)

Other Editors Say A Square Meal

(Greensboro Daily News)
This newspaper carried an item yesterday about a new District of Columbia law requiring a higher degree of truth on restaurant menus. The statute, like a smattering of others in such places as Los Angeles, Chicago and the entire state of Michigan, is aimed at curbing restaurateurs who have a penchant for embellishing their menu items—by calling just plain potatoes Idaho potatoes, for instance, or regular store-bought pastrami Kosher pastrami, or just about any kind of seafood fresh. When pushed, a candid maitre d' may confess his seafood is "fresh frozen," which is a gustatorial oxymoron of the first order. News of the truth-in-feeding law set us to thinking about whole new areas of menu reform. Wouldn't it be nice not to have to ask if the turkey in a much-touted club sandwich were "really" turkey and not some mysterious concoction of light-colored meat scraps pressed, as is a sausage, into service? The imagination takes flight. What of all the mouth-weathering hyperbole on menus these days—enhancing language that, while not strictly untrue, is hyperbolic and unnecessary? George Will, the columnist, has called it "printed noise." Salads, for example, are typically "garden fresh" yet anyone who will look can see the lettuce is brown at the edges and shredded beyond recognition. No hamburger is just a hamburger, ever; it's a juicy ground steak or a jumbo beef patty or somesuch. Don't look for a hot dog—no chef worth his monosodium glutamate calls it anything quite so direct. Why are french fries always "golden," dressings always "tangy," pie crusts always "flaky"? Why are portions invariably "heart-y"? "Americans hear the incessant roar of commerce without listening to it, and read the written roar without really noticing it," observes Mr. Will. "Who would notice if a menu proclaimed 'creamy' steaks and 'sizzling' coleslaw?" The slogan of menu reform is obvious: Today, truth; tomorrow, taste.

Irish Whiskey Poetry

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — A distillery in County Cork has launched an "Irish whiskey poetry competition" under the beguiling slogan, "if there's poetry in your soul, we'll bring it out." Every entrant, regardless of the purity of his verse or the condition of his liver after suitably lubricating the wellsprings of his creativity, will receive an "Honorary Irish Poet" certificate. Now if there's one thing Ireland needs like a hole in the bog, besides another distillery, it's another Irish poet. A few years back I chanced to attend a Christmas party at the embassy in London that the Irish government keeps hidden out on Grosvenor Place, not far from Her Majesty's digs. In the reception line, which after the convenient Irish manner was also the line for the bar and the man shucking the oysters, lurched a brooding, intense young man with a great shock of red hair piled high, parted in the middle and tied with two green ribbons, so they resembled a pair of gift wrapped antlers. He wore a white satin smock, African beads, loud yellow checked trousers and rhinestone studded sandals. "Who's that?" I asked. "That's a famous Irish poet," someone said. "Och, who isn't!" remarked Conn Howard, who was then the embassy press officer and later the Irish consul in Boston. Still, you can't blame the lads anywhere for wanting to be Irish poets. In Ireland, where ironically they speak the purest English, the bard always has been a man apart and of parts. In ancient Gaelic Ireland, the bards wrote the laws and compiled the genealogies, putting them into verse for easier remembering. The "Will of Cathair Mor," from the Book of Rights, an early Irish masterpiece, is an example of this legal lyricizing. The poets outranked the warriors because in Celtic society, as in Ireland today, a deadly jibe was more appreciated than a lethal blow. In olden times the bard was credited with (Continued on page 6)

George A. Snyder, associate of Frank W. Benton, architect of Wilson, discussed in detail a proposed new city hall, fire department, substation and a street department yard with members of the Greenville Board of Aldermen this morning, but no action was taken on any of the projects. The meeting was called by Mayor Pro-Tem L. B. Fleming, in the absence of Mayor M. K. Blount. A quorum was not present and the aldermen were without authority to act on any of the projects. Snyder went through plans for the proposed municipal building which, if erected, will probably be on a new site yet to be determined. The architect drawing provides for offices of the city clerk, tax collector and the city utilities on the first floor, offices on the mezzanine, a court room and the other offices on the top story, with the jail on the roof of the building. —Lynn Caverly

Strength For Today

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY
Many quite intelligent people believe that the way to make religion more appealing is to divest it of its mystery and make it so simple that everyone can readily understand it. Experience proves the opposite. In the first place, it is impossible to make religion so simple that everyone can understand it fully. A religion perfectly understood would cease to be a religion. The very heart of religion is the supernatural, and the reason why we call certain powers supernatural is because they are above and beyond the working of powers with which we are familiar. The religion that we can understand perfectly would never save our souls or give us support in time of trouble. We become religious not when we think we understand the acts of God, but when we acknowledge them and allow them, mysterious though they be, to begin influencing our lives. —Elisha Douglass

Tax Bill Backers Say It Will Help

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — President Carter's characterization of a capital gains tax cut as a potential windfall for millionaires may be the very spur to understanding that its advocates have been hoping for. As they see it, the president is all wet, and when a situation of that sort prevails it is bound to create commentary. It already has, and more is soon to follow in testimony before the Joint Economic Committee. Rather than being a "millionaires relief act," as Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal called the proposal, advocates of a cut say it would spur investment, lower inflation, create jobs, balance the budget. In summary, they say, a cut in the maximum capital gains tax from 49 percent to 25 percent is what the country needs; and that conversely, the trouble with America is that capital investment is discouraged. Supporters of a cut have been seeking a hearing for years, some even since 1969, when the rate was raised to 49 percent, and when, they assert, many of today's economic troubles were generated. Nothing is more basic to the economic health of the United States, these supporters have been saying; but few important economic issues have attracted less attention. Sometimes it has been almost total. Now, some of them feel, Americans who own stock (at least 25 million directly), and those who own homes (48 million), and who thereby stand to be affected by capital gains taxes, are puzzled. Millionaires? In their confusion, it is hoped, many of these people might decide to find out more about the Steiger Amendment to the president's tax cut bill, offered by Rep. William Steiger, R-Wis. Capital is passbook savings. It is stocks, bonds, mortgages. It is money or its equivalent invested in plants, machinery and tools. It is what the local savings bank and the New York Stock Exchange seek to raise. In short, it is money invested in pursuit of more money. Money invested in creating new enterprises or larger or more efficient ones. That, say advocates, is how we create jobs, lower taxes, raise revenues and balance the budget. These supporters can sound almost religious, and certainly philosophical. They frequently call on the testimony of history: Capital investment, they say, is our system; it built America. And now, relative to other countries, notably Japan and Germany, it is quite small. As a percentage of Gross National Product, Japan since 1962 has invested 32 percent in business; the United States, 17.5 percent. Is it any wonder, the capitalists ask, that American productivity growth has been only a fraction of Japan's, and that the U.S. annual increase in GNP has been less than half? And then the clincher is offered: In Japan, as in Germany, France, the Netherlands and Belgium, the maximum capital gains tax is zero. In the United States it is 49.1 percent.

magical powers and thought to be capable of killing a man with satire and dooming his posterity with a withering curse.

The would-be Irish poet today, scribbling his lines in between great inspirational draughts of the sponsor's product, would do well to remember that throughout Irish literature the curse always has outranked the kiss or the caress in poetic imagery.

The national talent for mockery, insult and ridicule, honed on centuries of oppression, has ever outshone poetic intimations of the tender and romantic. It's all well and good for the budding bard to sprinkle his verses with a few machress (my heart, my love) and ma-voorneens (my dearest) just so long as he saves a few biting barbs for the end, like the jibes the Belfast Telegraph used to run as a daily feature: "The mother that reared him would drown nothing." "The foreman had him X-rayed to see if there was a trace of work in him." "Her honeymoon was a bus-man's holiday."

Not Always Best Source
MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A report of an eight-year "action research" project by an agency of the American Lutheran Church says the family is not necessarily the best teacher about sex.

"We can no longer assume that the family is necessarily equipped to share information about sexuality and facilitate development of sexually healthful human beings," the report says.

It was drawn up by the church's Service and Mission division on the basis of a study program on sexuality at the University of Minnesota's Medical School, involving 8,000 students and professionals such as doctors, clergy, social workers and counselors.

"The issue of human sexuality is critical to the life and health of the church and the planet on which we live," the report says. "The project brings the important issue of human sexuality to a place of stature and prominence on the agenda of the American Lutheran Church."

'Anchor Bible' Is Blazing New Trail

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Gradually, one by one, the volumes roll out, 30 of them so far, with 30 more to go, in one of the longest, most comprehensive publishing ventures on the Bible ever undertaken.

The library-sized volume, called "The Anchor Bible," blazed an ecumenical trail at its outset 22 years ago that since has become a common pattern.

It enlisted Protestant, Roman Catholic and Jewish experts in their shared craft and objective: to bring out just what the old, Biblical books sought to say when first recorded in their original settings.

Michigan and general editor for the series.

"It bridges all denominational barriers, crosses all the lines."

When the project first originated in 1956, under the former general editorship of the late archeologist-Scripture scholar William F. Albright, that inter-religious involvement had seemed impossible.

"But he saw it work with his own eyes," says Freedman, an associate of Albright, who died in 1971 with Freedman taking over the editorship. "It was revolutionary when it began. But now it's true of all Biblical scholarship. It's become a common enterprise."

Each member of the team of authors takes on a Biblical book of his particular interest, translates it freshly from the original language and, in a volume or more devoted to it, offers accompanying commentary and notes putting it in context of its historical situation, its culture, linguistic nuances, authorship and purposes.

Unlike most of the modern surge of Bible translations produced by groups of scholars, the Anchor specialists individually render their translations of the books. "The results are uneven like the Bible itself," Freedman said. "The books originally were produced by different writers."

The material draws on recent archeological finds such as the Dead Sea Scrolls, and lately on the newly turned up Ugaritic tablets of ancient Ebla, predating the Bible, but mentioning matters cited in it.

The tablets are "the most important find ever made" in relation to the Bible, Freedman said. "They provide hard information that we've never had before in a way that cannot be challenged."

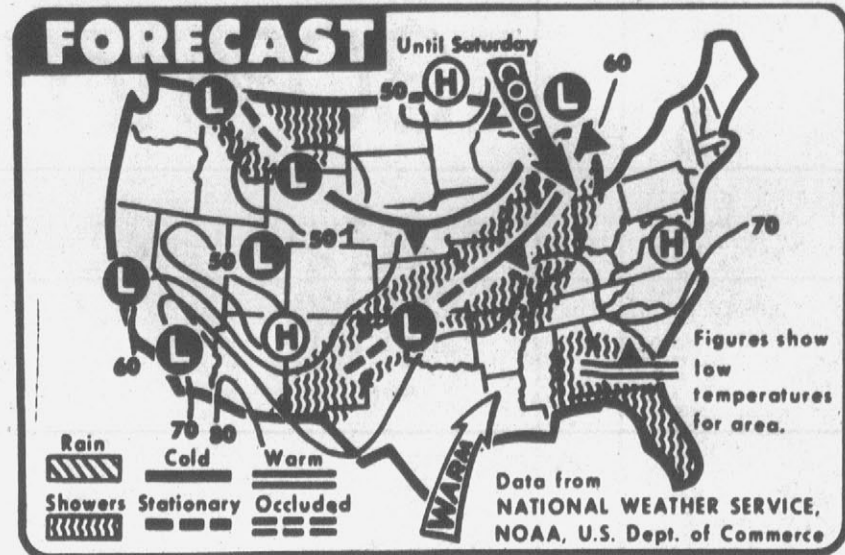

Freedman cited the tablets' mention of Biblical cities whose existence often has been questioned because no previous reference to them ever had been found outside the Bible.

"Now we have absolute incontrovertible evidence they existed," he said. "Behind those Biblical stories of eras before the first books of the Bible ever were written down are solid historical facts."

ANNOUNCEMENT

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Showers are forecast today for Florida, Georgia and Alabama, from New Mexico through the Plains and Midwest to the Great Lakes and from the northern Rockies to the northern Plains. Cooler weather is due from the northern Rockies to the upper Great Lakes but most of the country is expected to be warm. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press

Some cloudiness lingered in the North Carolina mountains today but elsewhere sunny skies prevailed. The fair weather pattern, accompanying a high pressure system centered off the coast of Virginia, is expected to hold through Sunday, although it will become slightly warmer and more humid each day.

Considerable cloudiness and isolated light showers kept temperatures down in the 60s and 70s in the mountains Thursday but the lingering clouds were expected to break up today and give way to temperatures generally in the 70s.

East of the mountains, the sky Thursday was mostly cloudless and temperatures were refreshing. Most high readings for the day peaked in the low 80s, reaching no higher than 85 at Raleigh for one of the warmest maximums.

Temperatures generally have been running five to 10 degrees below normal for the last couple of days, a far cry from the heat wave that settled over the state about this time last year.

Low temperatures this morning ranged from the low 60s in most places to near 70 at Cape Hatteras.

Still Await Apologies

BESSEMER CITY, N.C. (AP) — Officials of this Gaston County town are patiently awaiting apologies from a judge and public defender for remarks they made in jest about the drinking habits of its residents.

Mayor George Hook told members of the town council at a special meeting earlier this week that public defender Jesse Caldwell and Superior Court Judge William T. Grist have promised to apologize.

Bessemer City residents became upset by a recent news article quoting Caldwell as saying, "I think a prerequisite to living in Bessemer City is that you have to drink."

"I think you have to drink to stay there," Grist was quoted as replying.

Local officials wrote a letter of protest to state Chief Justice Susie Sharp and Hook called the special meeting of the town council Tuesday night to discuss apologies.

Public defender Jim Funderburk read a three-page letter from Caldwell explaining his remarks, which he meant to be humorous, and promising to make an apology if municipal officials thought one was in order.

Caldwell had said earlier his comment was made in an attempt to bring some comic relief to a long week of court and that he really didn't believe what he said.

Grist has said he doesn't believe an apology is necessary but that he will write a letter of apology to be made "directly to the people, and not through the news media."

Banker John H. Wheeler Dies

DURHAM, N.C. AP—John Hervey Wheeler, a bank president and political and civil rights figure at the state and national level died Thursday at his home. He was 70.

Wheeler, who joined the black-owned Mechanics and Farmers Bank as a teller in 1929 and became its president in 1952, was a former state Democratic Party official and became North Carolina's first black delegate to a Democratic national convention in 1964.

He was appointed to the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission by President John F. Kennedy in 1961 and worked with Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson in drafting civil rights legislation that was passed by Congress.

Wheeler was one of the first blacks to be appointed to a high position in the state Democratic Party, becoming assistant treasurer in 1968 and later financial director.

Born at Kittrell College, Wheeler grew up in Atlanta, receiving an undergraduate degree with highest honors from Morehouse College in 1929. He studied law in his spare time and at nights and got a law degree from North Carolina Central University in 1947.

Wheeler was a member of the NAACP legal staff for North Carolina and served as vice chairman of the National Citizens' Committee for Community Relations and on the President's Committee on Urban Housing.

He also was elected twice to the presidency of the National Negro Bankers Association and, at the invitation of President Kennedy, was a member of the team that visited West Germany in 1964 to review progress under the Marshall Plan. President Johnson appointed him in 1968 to be one of incorporators of the National Housing Corporation, which was authorized by the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968.

A funeral is scheduled for 11 a.m. Saturday at St. Joseph's AME Church, with burial in Beechwood Cemetery.

Survivors include the widow, Selena Warren Wheeler; a son, Warren Hervey Wheeler; and a daughter, Julia W. Taylor.

Choir Sponsored Special Project

Wells Chapel Celestial Choir, Sandra Moore, director, sponsored its first Annual Express Yourself Hour Sunday.

Each choir member was asked to raise at least $15 to go toward the purchase of new choir robes.

Laven Atkins won first place honors in fund raising, Shirley Ebron, second, and Jennifer Thompson, third. The winners received a trophy, plaque and silver cup, respectively.

Women's Day Service Set

A women's day service will be held Sunday at 11 a.m. at St. John F.W.B. Church. Eldress Mary Simon will deliver the sermon.

Thursday Fire Alarm A Test

Greenville firemen responded to the Federal Building at the intersection of Third and Evans Streets about 2:06 p.m. yesterday when a box alarm from the old post office building was turned in.

Officers said there was no fire, adding that the fire marshal pulled the box alarm for a test.

Men's Day Is Scheduled

With a smile

It was a kind of impertinence—building windmills. Man figured he could get God to do his heavy work for him.

And God did! He turned the grindstone, and smiled.

Man built his mill by a stream. God turned the millwheel, and smiled.

Later man built his electric power plant on a dam, and he started to dabble in nuclear power, and he invented the solar battery. And God is still doing man's work... and still smiling.

The important lesson is that God wants HIS POWER used constructively. And that power isn't all physical.

Start using God's spiritual power next Sunday. It comes with his smile.

And with a Love deeper than we have yet fathomed.

Independence For Solomon Islanders

By PETER O'LOUGHLIN
Associated Press Writer
HONIARA, Solomon Islands (AP) — The independence of the Solomon Islands was celebrated today by more invaders than the World War II battleground has seen since the U.S. Marines landed in 1942.

The capital of the sleepy Pacific island group is overrun this week by Japanese and American soldiers who fought each other here on Guadalcanal, along with dignitaries from 40 nations, sailors from four warships and about 50 foreign newsmen. All three hotels are filled, and no rental cars are to be had.

Independence came today after 85 years of British rule. The Duke of Gloucester, representing Queen Elizabeth II, read a statement in pidgin English, the Union Jack was lowered for the last time and the blue, green and yellow flag of the world's newest nation was raised. Then the U.S. frigate Harold F. Holt and the Australian destroyer Vendetta fired 21-gun salutes.

"Tede wanfla dig dei, hemi kam nao. Kantri blong yufala hem group ap, an kwin hemi wentem evri samting blong yufala. I kam ap gudfala long ogeta ias. Babae I kam," said the duke.

In English that means: "Today is a big day. Your country has grown, has grown up, and the queen wants to see that everything you have and do may turn out well in the years to come."

The queen also praised the population for bravery during World War II and welcomed the Solomons "as a full member of our unique international fellowship," the Commonwealth.

Prime Minister Peter Keniloria, 35, took the oath of office at the ceremony on a sports field and called independence "a challenge and a joy."

The major attractions for the visiting war veterans were the rusting relics they left and "Bloody Ridge," where the Americans and the Japanese fought hand-to-hand for control of Guadalcanal. This week they passed each other peacefully as they toured.

The official U.S. delegation was headed by Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, the former Marine fighter pilot and astronaut. He spent an afternoon diving in Iron Bottom Bay surveying the war junk for which the bay is named.

The 200,000 islanders accepted independence without obvious emotion. Most are subsistence farmers, divided by regional differences and 70 languages.

Carter Proves Outings Do Not Require Hoopla

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
CAMP DAVID, Md. (AP) — Jimmy Carter has demonstrated that it's still possible for a president to travel around the countryside with a minimum of security and very little hoopla.

Few people at any of the five stops on his 200-mile odyssey Thursday knew a presidential motorcade was coming, and that's how the president, in the midst of a 10-day vacation, wanted it.

Because the itinerary had not been announced, the crowds encountering the chief executive, except at his last stop, were typical for a summer weekday. Security precautions, thanks to the secrecy, were kept to an inconspicuous minimum.

The president, his wife, Rosalynn, and other members of the family began their leisurely 11-hour drive through three states with a visit to the chapel in nearby Emmitsburg, Md., where rests the body of Mother Elizabeth Seton, the first American-born saint of the Roman Catholic Church.

Then he toured the battlefield at Gettysburg, Pa., where the Union Army halted the Confederate forces in their northernmost penetration of the Civil War.

Carter showered questions on National Park Service rangers and on Civil War historian Shelby Foote, who spent two hours with the president Wednesday night and accompanied the Carters on their trip.

The reaction of tourist Diane Ellis of Ithaca, N.Y., to having the president suddenly nearby was typical.

Was she surprised? A reporter asked.

"Surprised? I'm in shock." After stopping to visit Mamie Eisenhower at her home on the edge of the battlefield, the president went to Mercersburg, Pa., where he had lunch with his tennis teacher.

Later, Carter went to the Antietam battlefield at Sharpsburg, Md. Looking down from an observation tower, Carter referred to "those Yankees" and called the Union commander in the battle, Gen. Ambrose Burnside, "stupid" for insisting a bridge be taken where 600 Confederate riflemen held off 13,000 Northern troops for four hours.

Only at Harpers Ferry, W.Va., did the presidential party attract much attention.

There, several hundred tourists and townspeople were on hand as Carter, aided by an admittedly nervous park ranger, toured an armory where abolitionist John Brown gathered arms for his raiders, and the fort where federal troops captured Brown in 1859.

Many in the crowd said they had heard rumors the president was coming.

"At first, we didn't think it was such a big thing," said Holly Matt, a 21-year-old park service employee, "but when the president got here, we got real excited."

Face Sentencing For Espionage

By DONALD SANDERS
Associated Press Writer
ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — An American and a Vietnamese expatriate, both insisting on their innocence, face sentencing today on their conviction of spying for communist Vietnam.

"I maintain my innocence of all espionage and conspiracy charges," Ronald L. Humphrey said in a prepared sentencing statement for U.S. District Judge Albert V. Bryan Jr. "I am not a communist. ... In the name of God, I ask for mercy."

Humphrey, 42, is a former U.S. Information Agency employee who was convicted along with David Truong, 32, on six counts of espionage, conspiracy, theft of government documents and failure to register as foreign agents.

Each faces a maximum prison sentence of life plus 35 years. Attorneys for the two men say they will appeal to the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond, Va., and if necessary to the Supreme Court.

Attorneys left for a last-minute decision whether they would make pleas for lenient sentences, or allow Humphrey and Truong to plead on their own before Judge Bryan.

Both have been in the Alexandria city jail since May 19, when a jury convicted them.

Humphrey, a quiet, balding man, says his only interest in passing government documents to Truong was to try to obtain the release of his common-law wife and her children from Saigon.

"I cannot feel remorse for crimes not committed," he said in his statement for the judge. "I am not a spy, not a conspirator, not a foreign agent."

The two were convicted largely on the testimony of Dung Kral, who was a secret paid informant for the CIA and the FBI.

Five men were named as unindicted co-conspirators. Among them was Dinh Ba Thi, Hanoi's former ambassador to the United Nations. He was expelled at Washington's urging, and has since been killed in an auto accident in Vietnam.

Pitt County Pounds Williamston, 10-3

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer
Pitt County rolled to a 10-3 victory last night in the opener of a best-of-three Eastern Area I American Legion playoff series with Williamston. Backed by a strong defense, Post 39 pitcher Mike Williams was able to hold the visitors to just three runs, despite giving up seven hits and seven walks.

Williamston had men on base in eight of the game's innings and led a total of 10 men on base. Most of Williams' troubles came in the early going. The three Williamston runs were scored in the third and fourth innings. "Williams pitched a good ballgame, especially in the late innings," said Pitt coach Ed Hooks.

"We're just real happy to win," Hooks commented. "Our boys played a fine ballgame. They hit well, ran the bases well and played good defense. I think that about sums it up."

Williamston coach John Harrison agreed that defense was a big key. "I just thought Greenville made the plays defensively. They turned over three double plays. Both teams hit the ball well, they just played better defensively."

Harrison was hopeful his team can do better tonight when the series moves to Williamston for the second game. "We're going to pitch Russell Holton...and he's been pretty tough for us. If we can make the plays defensively, we'll be all right."

Hooks said, "We're just going to go out tomorrow and play the very best ballgame we can." Greg Lee and Skip Topping, two hitters who have had their problems this season, were the big guns for Pitt County. Lee was 3-4 at the plate, including a triple and two runs batted in. Topping was 2-4 with a double and three RBIs.

Toronto Bests Birds As Weaver Ejected

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Toronto's Dave Lemaczky got the best of Baltimore's Jim Palmer, which didn't figure, while umpire Marty Springstead — as usual — had the last word in his running feud with Orioles Manager Earl Weaver.

While Lemaczky, 3-10, who entered the game with a 7.33 earned run average, was besting perennial all-star Palmer 2-0 with last-out help from Mike Willis, Springstead took over undisputed possession of first place in the "Make Weaver a Leaver" club by ejecting the feisty Baltimore skipper for the seventh time. Ron Luciano is second with six thumbs.

In other American League action, the California Angels trounced the Kansas City Royals 9-2, the Seattle Mariners nipped the Oakland A's 3-2, the New York Yankees trimmed the Texas Rangers 7-2, the Boston Red Sox edged the Chicago White Sox 7-6 in 10 innings and the Detroit Tigers downed the Cleveland Indians 8-4.

Bob Bailor singled home an unearned run for Toronto in the fifth inning and Weaver lasted until the eighth, when he argued with umpire Durwood Merrill that Bailor's double into the left field corner was foul. Bailor later scored on Rico Cartay's single.

Angels 9, Royals 2
Slump-ridden Joe Rudi unloaded a grand slam home run in the first inning and a run-scoring single in the third as California moved back into first place in the American League West, one-half game ahead of Oakland. Rudi's blast was his eighth career grand slam and second against the Royals in nine days. Meanwhile, Don Aase held the Royals to seven hits.

Mariners 3, A's 2
Tom Paciorek's two-run single in the seventh inning ended Oakland's four-game winning streak while Paul Mitchell and Enrique Romo collaborated on a four-hitter. The Mariners trailed 2-1 before they loaded the bases with two out against John Johnson and Paciorek greeted Elias Sosa with his broken-bat game-winning hit as Seattle defeated the A's for the first time this season after dropping 10 straight.

Yankees 7, Rangers 2
Roy White and Thurman Munson each drove in two runs, helping Dick Tidrow record his first victory since May 25. Tidrow scattered eight hits in raising his career mark against Texas to 8-2. Meanwhile, the Yankees raked ex-teammate Doc Medich for two hits and two runs in the first inning and two more runs in the second.

Red Sox 7, White Sox 6
Fred Lynn's tie-breaking home run with one out in the 10th inning gave Boston its third consecutive victory after the White Sox tied the score on solo homers by Lamar Johnson in the eighth inning and Bill Nahorodny in the ninth. Lynn's homer was his 13th of the season and third in the two-game series after never having homered in Comiskey Park.

Tigers 8, Indians 4
Jason Thompson, celebrating his 24th birthday and his selection to the AL All-Star team, drove in four runs, three with his 19th homer. Thompson followed a single by Lou Whitaker and a walk to Rusty Staub in the first inning with his homer. The blast off Rick Waits caromed off the facing of the right field upper deck in Tiger Stadium. Steve Kemp also homered for Detroit.

Babe Ruth

Pitt County 13, Pamlico 4

Pitt County's Babe Ruth League All-Stars downed Pamlico, 13-4, yesterday to move into the finals of the losers' bracket in the tournament now underway at Ayden-Grifton High School.

Pitt will face Washington tonight at 8 p.m. in the losers' bracket finals, with the winner moving on to the finals against Greenville. The winner of the double elimination event goes to Area G in Windsor next week.

Pitt pushed over its first run in the first inning. Brady Quinn reached on an error and was wild pitched to second. He scored on Kevin Battle's single.

In the third, Pitt exploded for eight runs to put the game on ice. 9-0. Bob Avery led off, reaching on an error. He stole second and scored on a double by Quinn. Battle doubled him in, then stole third. He scored when Joel Brown singled. Brown was thrown out on Chris Phillips infield grounder, and Phillips then stole second and came all the way home on an error on the play.

Sam Tucker singled and moved up to third on an error. He scored on Art Rouse's single. Rouse stole up and moved to third on an error, scoring when Bob Hemingway tripled. Greg Harrison walked and stole second. Both runners scored on Avery's single.

Pitt added one in the fourth, two in the fifth and one in the sixth.

All four Pamlico runs came in the fifth. Ken Bennett walked and Greg Cooper singled. Stan McQueen walked, loading the bases. Another walk, to Steve Hollowell forced in Bennett. James Moore reached on an error, scoring Cooper, and a single by Zeke Green scored McQueen and Moore.

Tucker led the Pitt hitting with three, while Avery and Battle each had two. Pamlico got only two hits off the combined pitching of Hemingway and Greg Briley.

Greenville 7, Washington 4

Greenville's Babe Ruth All-Stars gained a 7-4 victory over Washington last night in the district tournament at Ayden-Grifton, moving into the finals of the double-elimination event.

Washington faces Pitt County tonight at 8 p.m. in the losers' bracket finals. Washington scored first, getting two runs in the top of the first. Van Parker walked and Bobby Boyd singled. Todd Cutler singled in both runners.

Greenville came back with its first run in the second. Kenny Barnes walked and moved up on an out. Arthur Fletcher reached on an error and Mark Douglas singled, scoring Barnes.

After two more scored in the third for Greenville, Washington came back with one in the fifth and one in the sixth to take a 4-3 lead.

But Greenville came back with four in the sixth to win it. Douglas singled and stole second. Mitch Brann walked as did Junior Neal. Jeff Porter then ran for Neal. Billy Dough singled in Douglas, and an error let Brann score. Porter came in on a passed ball and Roger Williams hit a sacrifice fly to score Dough. Douglas, Jamie Byrd and Dough each had two hits for Greenville, while Cutler had three to pace Washington.

Prep League

Greenville 8, Washington 7

Greenville pushed over a run in the bottom of the seventh to nip Washington by 8-7, in the semifinals of the Prep League All-Star tournament at Ayden-Grifton last night.

Washington will now face Pitt County, a forfeit winner over Pamlico, in tonight's losers' bracket finals at 6 p.m. with the winner taking on Greenville on Saturday for the title.

Greenville got its first run in the bottom of the first. Rod Harrell walked and stole both second and third. He scored on Troy Hudson's sacrifice fly.

Washington came back with two in the second. Jamie Jones singled and Will Mayo walked. Lee Dixon also walked, and a passed ball scored Jones. Kemp Edwards was hit by a pitch, reloading the bases and a walk to Hack High brought in Mayo.

Greenville got another in the second, while Washington scored once in the third and Greenville added two in that frame. Washington added four more in the fourth to take a 7-4 lead.

Greenville added three in the sixth to tie it up, then pushed over the winner in the seventh. Curtis Evans singled and moved up on a fielder's choice. A wild pitch put him on third, and he scored when Harrell singled.

Hudson had two hits to lead Greenville, while Jones had two to pace Washington.

Eastwick Saves Phillie Victory

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

When Rawly Eastwick was with the New York Yankees earlier this season, a lot of people thought that he was being underworked and overpaid.

One of them was Rawly Eastwick. "I knew something was wrong," said the right-handed relief pitcher.

Before Eastwick rusted away altogether in the Yankee bullpen, the high-priced free agent was dealt to the Philadelphia Phillies a couple of weeks ago — and now figures to be earning his money with an over-worked bullpen.

"These guys are counting on me now," said Eastwick after saving a 7-6 victory for Philadelphia over the Montreal Expos Thursday night. "I've got to do a job for them. The rest of the bullpen needs a rest."

Elsewhere in the National League, the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Atlanta Braves 5-1 in 11 innings; the San Francisco Giants turned back the San Diego Padres 5-4; the St. Louis Cardinals tripped the Pittsburgh Pirates 3-2 and the New York Mets beat the Chicago Cubs 9-6.

Eastwick has been noticeably brightened by the change from Yankee Black to Philadelphia

Red. "I'm now with the best organization in baseball," said the 27-year-old Eastwick. "I grew up across the river (Haddonfield, N.J.). I feel at home, I'm relaxed. I go out there without a care in the world. I know I can pitch."

Eastwick gave up just one hit in 4 2/3 innings after relieving starter Jim Kaat. That was a triple to Warren Cromartie in the sixth, the inning the Expos got two unearned runs.

The Phillies rocked NL All-Star Ross Grimsley for 10 hits and seven runs in four innings, including Greg Luzinski's league-leading 20th homer.

Dodgers 5, Braves 1

Dave Lopes blasted a grand slam homer in the bottom of the 11th to lead Los Angeles over Atlanta. Lopes' homer, his 10th of the year and his first career grand slam, came off Craig Skok, the third Atlanta pitcher.

Giants 5, Padres 4
Bill Madlock's three-run triple with one out in the seventh inning triggered San Francisco over San Diego. Randy Jones, making his first relief appearance of the season, walked Marc Hill and Terry Whitfield to start the seventh-inning rally.

Cardinals 3, Pirates 2

Garry Templeton circled the bases in the fifth with the winning run on an infield hit and shortstop Frank Taveras' three-base error as St. Louis beat Pittsburgh. Templeton dashed from first to home after Taveras fielded his grounder and hit the St. Louis runner with his errant throw.

Cubs 9, Mets 6

Willie Montanez's two-run double sparked a five-run sixth inning, leading New York over Chicago. Tim Foli and Lee Mazzilli led off the sixth with singles before Montanez doubled to the wall in left center off Chicago starter Dennis Lamp to score both runners.

Wilson Trips Snow Hill Nine

SNOW HILL — Wilson took advantage of four Snow Hill errors to take a 4-2 victory last night in the first game of their best-of-three Eastern Area I American Legion playoff series.

The two teams play again tomorrow night in Wilson and will return to Snow Hill Sunday for a third game, if needed.

Wilson scored first in the game with a run in the opening frame. Robert Wells led off with a single and was sacrificed to second by Joe McCullen. Carey Griffin got a base hit and the two runners pulled a double steal with Wells scoring.

Snow Hill tied the game in the second inning. Russell Brann singled and base hits by Phillip Gordon and Colyn Beaman scored him.

Wilson scored one run each in the third and fourth. Griffin singled in the third, moved up on a fielder's choice and scored on Tony Pollock's base hit. Larry Deans led off the fourth with a walk and Allen Sharp singled. Robert Simpson loaded things up with a walk and Deans was thrown out at the plate on a wild pitch. Sharp scored when Wells reached on an error.

Snow Hill cut the lead to 3-2 in the sixth when Brann walked and stole second and scored on Allen Moore's single.

Wilson's final run came in the eighth. Pollock singled and Deans reached on an error. Pollock scored on Sharp's infield out.

Griffin and Pollock were both 2-4 to lead the Wilson hitters. Gordon was 3-4 and Beaman 2-4 for Snow Hill.

Rogers In SPLL Win

BETHEL — Rogers Furniture moved into the finals of the Southern Pitt Little League tournament with a 16-3 victory over Chicod last night.

Rogers will face Bethel tonight at 8 p.m. in the championship game.

Alvin Battle was the winning pitcher in the ballgame. Mike Elks and Danny Boyd were both 2-2 and Stacy McCarter hit a home run to pace the Chicod hitters. No Rogers batter had more than one hit.

Chips and putts from area golf courses:

Greenville Golf and Country Club
The team of Danny McNally and Charles Gaskins Jr. took low gross honors in a Fourth-of-July Tournament held, naturally, on the Fourth-of-July at Greenville Golf and Country Club.

The low net was won by Wilbur and Sue Castellow. Second place went to Pat Dye and Betty Akin, while Dye teamed with Ken Hite for third, and with Reg Akin for fourth.

Janet McGlohon had her best score, an 84, while Dye also had his best, a 79, and Harry Leslie had an 87.

Joan Hooper took low gross honors at a Ladies Day tournament. Jean Creech was second. Julia Painter won low net, with Keila McGlohon second.

For upcoming Ladies Days, a no penalty event will be held on July 14, with a Beat the Pro event on July 21.

Grifton Golf and Country Club
The ninth hole at the Grifton Golf and Country Club saw several eagles during the past week.

Wes Barwick picked up an eagle there while playing with Bruce Clements, Brady Quinn and Ron Anderson. Cecil Lilly got one playing with Tommy Riley, George Saleeby and Joe Salensky. Ronnie Hardison picked up one in company with George Saleeby, Gene Gilland and Frankie Harris.

Ayden Golf and Country Club
A couple of eagles were recorded at the Ayden Golf and Country Club this week.

Paul Gibson got an eagle at the fifth hole, holing out a five-iron. He also had his best nine-hole score, a 36. Blanie Moye got an eagle on the seventh hole, holing out a sand wedge.

Tommy Gunn Jr. had his best 18, a 78, while Ed Murphy had two of his better rounds, a 72 and a 79. Gwynn Merritt had his best nine, a 35, while Gil Moore recorded his best nine, a 36. Chuck Allen had an 86 for his best 18, and Thomas Heath recorded one of his better rounds with a 72.

A Superball with A Lady tournament will be held on July 16. Members may sign up in the pro shop.

Brook Valley Golf and Country Club
The team of Mary Harvey, Til Jolly and Susan Corbett took first place in a Ladies' Captain's Choice with a Youth tournament. They shot a 35 over the Brook Valley course.

Second place went to Jenny Kilpatrick, Dan Mayo and Scott Wilson with a 37, while Maxine Hawley, Brian Hill and Jane Ederly finished third, also with a 37.

A Mixed Guest Spectacular will be held Sunday. Signups are underway.

The Interclub Championship will be held at Brook Valley and the deadline for signups by Brook Valley and Greenville members is Wednesday.

The Pitt County Junior Championship will be held at Brook Valley with a signup deadline on Friday, July 14, at 6 p.m. Juniors may sign up at their own courses, and the tournament is open to those 8-17.

Jack and Jill tournaments will be held this coming Wednesday and again on July 19. A covered dish supper will follow each of them.

Jim Harris recently had his best round, a 41-42-83.

Navratilova Defeats Evert

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Martina Navratilova, appearing in the final for the first time, defeated two-time champion Chris Evert today 2-6, 6-4, 7-5 for the women's singles title in the Wimbledon tennis championships.

Navratilova, the strong Czech left-hander who defected to the United States almost three years ago, became the first player born in an Eastern European country to win the women's title here.

She staged a marvellous recovery in the final set. After taking a 2-0 lead, she allowed Evert four games. But Navratilova took five of the next six games to take the title.

Although Evert survived a break point at 5-4, Navratilova broke for 6-5 and then held her serve to love for the match.

Martina Navratilova stretches to return a shot from Chris Evert in their Ladies Singles final match Friday at Wimbledon. Navratilova captured the title by defeating Evert, 2-6, 6-4, 7-5. (AP Laser-photo)

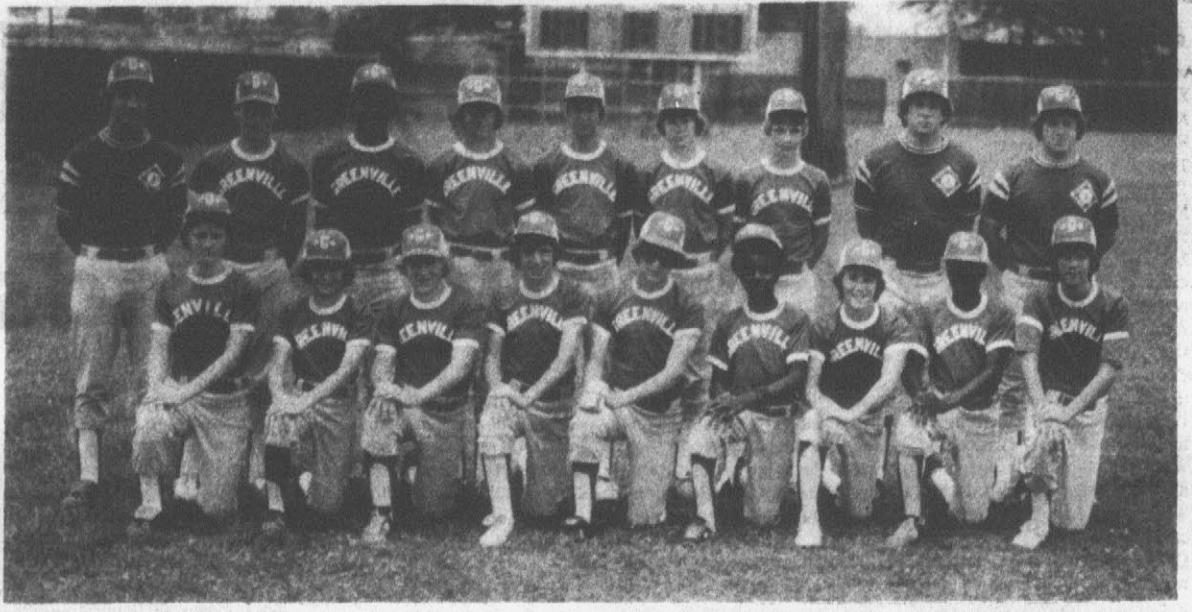

Willie Hathaway carded his first hole-in-one on the 195-yard 18th hole recently. He used a five-iron for the shot while playing with L.G. Catlett, James Phelps and Ralph Sullivan.

Glenn Cox had his best round, a 37-38-75. The team of Simon Moye, Mike Moye, Macon Moye and Charlie Bill Moye won the July 5th Family Spectacular with a 30, tying with W.L. Allen Sr., Walker Allen, Betsy Allen, Lee Allen and Jim Ward, who also had a 30. Second place went to Scott Kee, Kelly Kee Jr., Jolinda Kee and Kelly Kee Sr., with a 31.

A driving contest was also held, with Si Moye winning the 11 and under division; Kelly Kee Jr. winning for 12-15; Mike Moye for 16-20; Jim Ward III for 20-40, and Bob Helmick for 40 and over.

Dorothy Woolees recently won first place for fewest putts in a Ladies Day event. Miriam Martin, Peggy Hallow, Jinny Hill and Janet McGlohon all tied for second.

The women also have completed their Ringer Tournament, with Jeanette Thomas winning low gross. Mary Meade Powell won the prize for most improvement.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — THRIVING GLADIOLI CAN THRILL NOVICE GARDENER.
Today's Cryptoquip clue: C equals L.

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Three CBS Shows Dominate Monday

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS captured the Monday night television audience with a lineup of "Lou Grant," "One Day at a Time" and "M-A-S-H" and went on to win the networks' ratings battle for the week of June 26-July 2.

The CBS programs finished one-two-three in ratings compiled by the A.C. Nielsen Co. CBS, in all, had six of the week's Top 10 shows, and ABC had four. NBC's best was No. 11, "Quincy, M.E."

Eighteen of the week's Top 20 programs were repeats of earlier episodes. The exceptions were "Switch" on CBS, No. 9, and "60 Minutes" on the same network, No. 16.

An ABC News Closeup, "Youth Terror: The View from Behind the Gun," was broadcast opposite an NBC Reports show, "Escape from Madness," and came out the winner. The ABC show, which several stations in the network did not carry, was 26th; the NBC program tied for 57th.

CBS's strong start contributed to a rating for the week of 14.5. ABC was second at 13.8 and NBC third at 11.4. The networks say that means in an average prime time minute during the week, 14.5 percent of the homes in the country with TV were tuned to CBS.

The rating for the week's top show, "Lou Grant," was 23.3. Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with television, 23.3 percent saw at least part of the program.

The six programs at the bottom of the ratings were on NBC — No. 62 "Clappers," followed by the Saturday movie, "The War Between the Tates," "Chico and the Man," "Headliners with David Frost," "Man from Atlantis" and a special report on the Supreme Court's Bakke decision.

He's only been acting nine years. To do it, he chucked a career as a chemical company executive in his native Little Rock, Ark., at the fairly advanced age of 26.

The reason for the chucking, Gerard says, is that while he was succeeding in business, he felt his life was empty, that there should be more to it than chemical and memos.

"At about the same time, I heard Peggy Lee's 'Is That All There Is,' and it really hit home," he grinned. "So I started thinking about what I'd enjoyed most when I was younger."

It proved to be the memories of the amateur acting he'd done in elementary, high school and college plays. So he decided to quit business and give emoting a whirl.

He says the whirl began in New York. There, he drove a cab by night and studied acting by day at the American Musical and Dramatic Academy, his tutor Philip Burton, stepfather of Richard Burton.

In 1970 he got his first paying job, an Old Milwaukee Beer commercial. Not high art, but it paid the rent and led to more commercials and 2½ years in an NBC soap opera, "The Doctors."

Women and Heart Attacks

Do women have fewer heart attacks than men? If this is true, what is the explanation? — Mrs. T.E., Okla. Dear Mrs. E.:

A long-continuing series of studies, known as the "Framingham Project," constantly offers more information about the total understanding of heart disease, strokes and other vascular problems.

Recently, a long-term population study did confirm the fact that women have fewer heart attacks and strokes than men. It is suspected that differences in hormone balance may be an important factor, for it is noted in younger people, especially, that women are less prone to heart attacks. As women grow older, however, the differences becomes less marked.

Does this mean that women should not exert as much care as men in the prevention of heart attacks? No, it does not, for in both sexes it is most important that high blood pressure be recognized early and treated intensively. Diabetes, too, must be diagnosed early and uninterruptedly treated. Obesity is a threat to both men and women. Cigarette smoking, an important offender, must be completely stopped or modified if the effect on the vascular system is to be controlled.

Even though there may be some biological differences that offer more hope to women than to men in terms of cardiovascular problems, there must be no relaxation of all the rules for sensible preventive medicine.

I have a fatty growth on the back of my neck. Although the doctor tells me it's not cancerous, I'm worried. At the same time, I'm terrified of having it removed. I need someone to make the decision for me. — Mrs. A.A., W.Va. Dear Mrs. A.:

Perhaps you can make that decision yourself when I assure you that fatty tumors, or "lipomas," are benign, non-cancerous growths. It is rare, extremely rare, that this type of tumor ever degenerates and becomes cancerous.

Why, then, should this tumor be removed? Obviously, it is a constant source of anxiety that is undermining your emotional good health. Since the operation is such a simple one, there is no sensible reason why you should procrastinate and avoid having it done. Usually, the operation is done under local anesthesia. The scar is insignificant. The cosmetic and psychological value of having it done should help you make the decision.

Morgan Wealth Mostly In Land

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Robert Morgan, D-N.C., has filed a financial disclosure statement showing the bulk of his wealth is in farm property in Harnett County and real estate holdings in Lillington. Senators must report their assets under broad categories of value such as "from $15,001-$50,000." Morgan's net worth would be between $210,000 and $978,000, according to the report.

Morgan listed farm property valued at between $96,000 and $255,000; other real estate worth between $170,000 and $430,000; stock in various businesses, including two banks and American Telephone & Telegraph, valued at between $55,000 and $185,000; and lesser holdings in farm equipment, savings accounts, retirement benefits and certificates of deposit.

The senator's liabilities included mortgages of $20,000 to $65,000 and loans of $27,000 to $90,000.

A member of the Senate Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs Committee, Morgan reported he owns stock valued at between $5,000 and $15,000 in Southern National Corp. and less than $5,000 in Banshares of N.C. Inc. He is president of a savings and loan association and a cemetery and owner of a dry cleaners.

The financial disclosure report was due May 30, but Morgan got an extension and filed the statement June 15.

The farm property listed in the report includes a 111-acre farm adjoined by a two and a half acre farm in the upper Little River Township of Harnett County and half interest in a 228-acre farm in Anderson Creek Township. Morgan's real estate holdings include 13 lots in the Brenda Hills subdivision of Lillington Township, three and a half lots in the Barbecue Township, two lots at Holden Beach and a lot and a half in the Neill's Creek Township.

Newspaper's Education Board Urged Sale Agreed Put Money Into Roads

BURLINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Freedom Newspapers Inc. has tentatively agreed to purchase the Burlington Times-News, which would become the fifth North Carolina daily in the Freedom group.

David T. Rutledge, Times-News general manager, said stockholders had reached a preliminary agreement Thursday with Freedom to sell their stock, subject to conclusion of a detailed stock purchase agreement that satisfies both sides.

Freedom Newspapers is based in Santa Anna, Calif., and includes 28 daily papers, ranging in circulation from 9,000 to 225,000.

C.H. Hoiles, chairman of the board of Freedom, said the 75-year-old newspaper group is owned entirely by the Hoiles family "and the men and women who are members of the newspapers' staffs."

North Carolina papers currently in the Freedom group include the Gastonia Gazette, the New Bern Sun-Journal, the Kingston Free Press and the Jacksonville Daily News.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state Board of Education has been urged to spend about $3.7 million to repair roads in the mountains of western North Carolina as part of an effort to reduce the number of days schools in the area must be closed because of snow and ice. Schools in some mountain counties lost more than 40 days during the 1977-78 academic year because of road conditions, and a task force was established to study ways of improving the situation.

Hugh Morton, head of the task force on severe weather, told the board Thursday the state would actually save money by spending the $3.7 million to repair roads rather than extending the school year to make up for lost days.

"The bottom line is going to show some saved money," Morton said.

He said the package of recommendations, which will also be sent to the Department of Transportation, could cut the number of days lost because of ice and snow in half during the first year.

Other recommendations of the task force included:

—Use of only experienced adult drivers for school buses.

—That parents take more responsibility for getting children to bus pickup points during bad weather.

—That buses be equipped with snow tires and chains from Thanksgiving to Easter.

On other matters, the board approved materials for the annual achievement testing program for another year and decided to use the same texts next year that were used this year. The General Assembly approved the testing program itself and appropriated money for it.

The scores of this year's tests will not be available until next month, officials said. The achievement tests are given to the first, second, third, sixth and ninth grades and are not the same as the competency tests given to high school students.

Opening lead: King of ♣.

One of the major differences between rubber bridge and duplicate pairs is the importance of tournament bridge places on overtricks. However, on occasion, the play of the hand should be the same at either form of competition, as this hand from a Philip Morris European Cup tournament illustrates.

The bidding was straightforward. In terms of high cards, South's hand might not be all that powerful, but it contained few losers outside the trump suit. Once North could raise spades, South decided that he would have reasonable play for game.

West led the king of diamonds, and declarer ruffed. A low spade fetched the queen, king and ace, and East returned another diamond, which declarer ruffed. How would you continue? Obviously, you must assume that East has the rest of the trumps—West surely would not have played the queen from Q-x. Therefore, you have lost trump control. To regain it, you must force East to ruff and reduce himself to your trump length. So you must run one of your side suits. Does it make any difference which?

At the table, declarer played his top clubs. East ruffed the second club and led another diamond, forcing declarer to ruff again. Now East had to score the ten of trumps, so declarer just made his contract.

Declarer started on the wrong suit. Observe the difference if he had run the suit in which his side held fewer cards. When everyone follows the three rounds of hearts, declarer can play the thirteenth heart and discard dummy's last diamond. When East ruffs, he can no longer weaken declarer's trump holding. If he plays another diamond, declarer can ruff in dummy, take the marked finesse for the ten of trumps and claim the rest of the tricks for an overtrick. No other defense is any better.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do you know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. ## Some Progress Toward Accord BREMEN, West Germany (AP) — Leaders of West European nations meeting here are having trouble reaching a unified policy for the Bonn economic summit July 16-17 with the United States and Japan. But they report some progress toward a joint fund to stabilize their currencies.

Representatives of eight of the nine Common Market governments in attendance specified Thursday what they would do to stimulate their economies as wanted by the United States.

But West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, who would have to do the most, withheld a pledge to expand the German economy. Europe's strongest. He apparently is going to use this at the summit to prod the United States toward reducing its 43 percent dependence on imported oil, a major cause of the dollar's weakness. Informed sources said Schmidt appeared ready to agree in principle that nations with low inflation — West Germany's rate is 2.7 percent annually — and trade surpluses have an obligation to their weaker allies to stimulate their economies to some degree.

The idea is that expansion of the West German economy will generate new demand for imported manufactures and raw materials and thus give a boost to other countries.

To do this, Schmidt is being urged by other European leaders and President Carter to boost government spending or cut taxes. But the chancellor refused to say what new economic growth target he would offer at the Bonn meeting of the seven major non-Communist industrial nations.

UAW Hates Filibuster

DETROIT (AP) — United Auto Workers President Douglas Fraser says the filibuster has hurt organized labor, and he's calling for a change in the rules.

Under present Senate rules, it takes a three-fifths majority to end the long debates known as filibusters. At one time a two-thirds majority was needed. Fraser, in remarks for the NAACP convention in Portland, Ore., said Tuesday that a simple majority should suffice to cut off debate. Legislation favored by unionists was sent back to committee last month after attempts to break a filibuster failed.

Refund Is Ordered

NATCHITOCHES, La. (AP) — General Motors and a local car dealership have been ordered to refund more than $8,000 to a Shreveport man who bought an Oldsmobile with a Chevrolet engine.

The decision by Judge R. B. Williams Monday is believed to be the first of its kind in connection with the Chevrolet engines which GM said last year it put into 128,000 Oldsmobiles, Pontiacs and Buicks. In an out-of-court settlement with Michigan and 46 other states, GM agreed to rebate $200 to each customer involved and to provide a three-year guarantee covering the drive train of their automobile.

Enforcement Of N.C. Anti-Porn Laws Frustrated

By ELISSA McCRARY
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Legal loopholes, long court battles and challenges involving the state's two anti-pornography laws have frustrated state officials and law-enforcement authorities who had hoped to close down the state's adult bookstores and theaters. The General Assembly enacted the two controversial anti-pornography laws during last year's session.

The two statutes passed include a public-nuisance law and a multi-use law, referred to by attorneys as a "poly-porn bill."

The public-nuisance law, which was sponsored by Sen. I. Beverly Lake Jr., D-Wake, allows a district attorney or private citizen to file a civil suit asking the court to declare an adult bookstore or theater a public nuisance.

Under the statute, a judge could temporarily close the business and, if it is then declared a nuisance, all of its contents could be sold.

The multi-use statute divides adult establishments into four categories and makes it illegal for a building to contain more than one. The categories include adult bookstores, movie houses, peep shows and massage businesses.

The state suffered setbacks this year when District Court Judge Franklin Dupree Jr. ruled in separate cases that the anti-pornography laws are unconstitutional.

In a January case involving three Fayetteville adult businesses, Dupree ruled unconstitutional the closing of a business to prevent the sale of unspecified material on which a judge has not ruled.

And Dupree struck down the state's multi-use law in April, ruling that to limit the number of sex-oriented businesses in a building is unconstitutional.

The state has appealed both cases to the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond, Va.

"We have had no real breakthroughs at all, no reduction in adult bookstores that I can see," said District Attorney J. Randolph Riley of Wake County. "We have gotten some coerced compliance with the laws, but the adult-business owners very shortly found it easy to circumvent the laws."

Riley said the number of individual complaints has been less during the past few months, but said he didn't think the lack of formal complaints meant adult businesses in the state are on the decline.

"What we need is the right to use permanent injunctions to close some of these places down," Riley said. "That would certainly strengthen the hand of the law. But I'm not holding my breath for that to be approved."

Riley's assistant, Russell Sherrill, said the First Amendment has been a large stumbling block in enforcing the anti-pornography laws, and he said the state is getting nowhere in its court cases.

"Judges just won't prohibit the sale of films or magazines because they say it violates rights guaranteed by the First Amendment," Sherrill said. "And the cases frankly take up too much time in court. There are just too many big loopholes in the laws."

"We're like a 200-year-old oak tree in the way of a new four-lane highway. Getting anywhere with the new pornography laws is like trying to dig down and get the smallest roots of that tree," Sherrill said.

State Sen. McNeill Smith, D-Guilford, said he felt the laws were unconstitutional and said he warned legislators that the laws wouldn't hold up in court.

"I'm not trying to say 'I told you so,' but I predicted all along that the only laws that would be upheld by the courts would be laws protecting minors and non-consenting adults from adult-bookstore and theater traffic," Smith said.

Smith said the fact that obscenity is hard to define makes pornography cases difficult to prosecute.

"It's something that can't be categorized easily. And it's a situation where most observers take sides without realizing the complexity of the issue," he said.

Sherrill said the state attorney general's office has tried to get assistance from the Federal Bureau of Investigation to control interstate traffic by adult-business owners. But he said the FBI has been unwilling to help control the flow of adult business items into the state.

"We just can't seem to get any federal help at all," Sherrill said. "If we call them and ask for their assistance in a particular case, they just want to know if it involves kiddie pornography. If it doesn't, they aren't interested in helping."

Sherrill said adult bookstores and theaters comprise a well-organized industry that has millions of dollars behind it. He said most of the magazines, films, books and devices sold or shown in the stores come into the state from Florida, California or New York.

"We are at a loss to control these adult businesses. We lost the heart of the public-nuisance statute when a judge ruled that we couldn't set out certain types of magazines and movies as obscene," Sherrill said. "The law without that clause is virtually impossible to enforce. Our hands are tied."

Two Endangered N.C. Species Go Under Study

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Two of North Carolina's endangered species, the American alligator and the red-cockaded woodpecker, will come under close scrutiny for the next five years under a $600,000 grant awarded to North Carolina State University.

In addition to these two species, the manatee, a coastal animal resembling a seal (sometimes called a dugong or sea cow), two species of bats (the Indiana and the gray bat), three species of fish that appear to live only in Lake Waccamaw, the mountain lion, the peregrine falcon, the bald eagle and the brown pelican are on North Carolina's endangered species list.

Dr. Jay D. Hair, NCSU coordinator of Fisheries and Wildlife Sciences who is leading the study, said the NCSU team selected the American alligator and the red-cockaded woodpecker for study because the population levels are still sufficient to obtain significant data.

Through the study, they hope to learn more about the animals to assist the N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission with a management program that would increase their numbers and eventually remove them from the state's endangered species list.

The scientists hope to evaluate the impact of man on the diminishing number of species.

"Extinction is a natural biological process not to be feared," Hair commented. "What is to be feared is the impair of human activity on the demise of a species."

It isn't possible in a five-year study, he said, to determine completely whether an animal is being driven to extinction by the destruction of its critical habitat or whether it is just "evolutionarily not making it." However, man can take steps to preserve the natural habitats and give the species its natural chance for survival.

Once a species is extinct, he said, its gene pool is lost forever, since man cannot recreate or duplicate a gene.

If it is man's activity which is driving the species to extinction (such as is believed to be the case in the destruction of the habitat and the illegal killing of alligators), steps can be taken to encourage the species to come back.

Could Get Safeguard Against Russian Flu

ATLANTA (AP) — Field vaccine tests show that most persons over 25 could be protected against Russian flu with a single shot, while the younger generation will need a series of two doses, the chairman of a national health advisory committee said today.

Dr. Thomas Vernon, acting chairman of the Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices, said his group, which is meeting here, will recommend vaccination levels for the three kinds of influenza threatening the United States this winter —

A-Russian, A-Texas and B-Hong Kong.

Vernon said in a telephone interview that tests which began last April show that 70 to 90 percent of those vaccinated have immunity levels generally well-correlated with protection against disease.

"Trials have been underway since April," Vernon said. "The number of people is not as large as last year and the year before, but larger than any year before 1974."

Vernon said people became wary of flu vaccine after the government's 1976 swine flu immunization program, but that the wariness apparently has not spread to fear of other kinds of vaccines.

The Russian virus was first identified in December 1977 in the Soviet Union and Hong Kong. Its arrival in America was dramatic but not lethal. During the first week in February more than three-fourths of the midshipmen at the U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis, Md., reported to sick call with flu symptoms.

Elsewhere, schools, colleges and military institutions reported numerous cases of illnesses attributed to the A-Russian strain. By late February, as the flu season waned, Russian flu had been identified in 20 states and the District of Columbia, the CDC said.

Most of the victims of Russian flu were under 25, the CDC said. Older persons are likely to have developed immunity to a similar virus prevalent in the United States between 1947 and 1957.

But the Russian strain caused few, if any, deaths in the United States. A CDC survey showed about 1,500 excess deaths attributed to influenza and pneumonia in 121 selected cities, but all caused by the A-Texas and A-Victoria strains.

The Russian flu is not considered a serious threat to normally healthy persons. The greatest risk is to persons over 65 and to younger individuals who suffer chronic illness.

Secretary Joseph Califano of the Department of Health Education and Welfare said in February when proposing a federal program to help states set up annual flu immunization programs that about 8.4 million of the 40 million Americans in the high-risk category now receive annual flu shots.

The government's 1976 mass inoculation program against swine flu was halted after about 500 of the 46 million persons inoculated contracted Guillain-Barre Syndrome, a rare paralyzing disease. About 55 died, and the government is being sued for millions of dollars by survivors or relatives of Guillain-Barre victims.

Officials have said the risk of dying from influenza is more than 400 times the risk of dying from complications of a vaccination.

Arabs Are Suing Co.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two Arab investors are suing Financial General Bankshares and most of its officers and directors for $3 million in damages. The investors, who were involved in an attempt to gain control of the company, said Financial General officials violated federal securities laws and made false statements to shareholders in order to retain their positions.

The suit was filed in U.S. District Court by Faisal Saud Al-Fulaj, former president of Kuwait Airlines, and Sheikh Kamal Adham, former director of Saudi Arabia's intelligence service. Each owns about 4.8 percent of the stock of Financial General, a $2.2-billion Washington holding company that owns 13 banks.

Family Night, Talent Show

Sweet Hope Free Will Baptist Church, Galloways Crossroad, sponsors a special family night and talent show Sunday, 8 p.m.

A musical program will be presented by the New Eastern Travelers of Grimesland and the Angelic Voices of Greenville.

Sister Luella White, president of the Willing Workers Club No. 2, is sponsoring the affair. The Rev. W. J. Best, pastor, invites the public to attend.

Ticket Refund

ECU News Bureau
Persons who purchased tickets for the June 30 East Carolina University appearance of jazz artist Buddy Rich and his band can secure refunds by mailing their tickets to the ECU School of Music, along with their names and addresses. ECU officials ask that each refund-seeker also add where the ticket was purchased.

The concert was canceled because of an air controller slowdown at LaGuardia Airport in New York, which caused a three-hour delay of the departure of the Rich band and their equipment.

Rich was scheduled to appear at ECU in conjunction with the Seventh Annual Percussion Symposium, co-sponsored by the ECU School of Music and the ECU Division of Continuing Education, in cooperation with Ludwig Industries.

Farm Tour Scheduled

Pitt County farmers and agribusinessmen are invited to take a farm tour Wednesday, sponsored by the county Agricultural Extension Service. Interested persons will meet at the American Legion Building, St. Andrews St., Greenville, at 8:30 Wednesday morning for stops at four of the 31 on-farm tests in the county. Other stops will include tours of the corn breeding research, corn weed control, tobacco fertilizer, tobacco disease control and soybean weed control tests. The bus will return to Greenville for a complimentary lunch, according to Gaylon Ambrose, agricultural extension agent. Interested persons should call the extension office, 758-1196, for attendance plans.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N.C.

Church Group Held Pageant

The Echoes of Calvary of Mount Calvary F.W.B. church sponsored its first annual "Pageant of the 50 States" last Sunday.

Miss Barbara Taft was crowned "Miss USA of 1978." Other finalists were Betisha McIntyre, Miss Ohio, first runner up; Deborah Corey, Miss Washington, second runner up; Latonia Streeter, Miss Michigan, third runner up; and Myra Gallop, Miss Alaska, fourth runner up.

Escorts were Montro Streeter, Harry Hines, Darryl Hines, Calvin Jones, Bernard Little and Allen Best.

The pageant was a fund-raising event to pay for a trip to Atlanta for the group.

CLUB WILL MEET

The Friendship Christian Club will meet at the home of Mrs. Mattie Carrell, Rt. 1, Bethel, Monday at 8 p.m. All members are asked to be present.

GUEST SPEAKER

Evangelist Shepard will be the guest speaker at Saints Holy Temple Church, Rt. 6, Greenville, Sunday, 7:30 p.m. Bishop G. B. White, pastor, and Isaac J. Robinson, assistant pastor, invite the public to attend.

Smuggling Is Down

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Narcotics smuggling is drying up, thanks to cooperation between United States and Mexican authorities, says an official of the U.S. Customs Service.

Herbert Fink, district director for San Diego and Imperial counties in California, based his optimism Tuesday on the decline of seizures at Calexico and San Ysidro, which he said have fallen off 20 percent to 25 percent. A total of 21,600 drug seizures was made in the district in 1976 and 14,027 last year, he said. No specific totals have been compiled yet in 1978.
