Decisive Turning Point In Middle East Peace

By FERRY WIMMER
VIENNA, Austria (UPI) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat said Saturday that efforts to reach a durable peace in the Middle East have reached a "decisive turning point."

Sadat made his remarks after a two-hour meeting with Chancellor Bruno Kreisky. He has scheduled talks Sunday with Israeli opposition leader Shimon Peres.

"Our cause of peace has reached a decisive turning point," Sadat told a news conference. "Let us hope that the discussions here will bring us closer to our goal of obtaining durable peace."

Sadat and Peres arrived Friday on Kreisky's invitation for private talks on the Middle East situation. The two conferred February 11 in Salzburg, a meeting also arranged by Kreisky.

An Austrian government spokesman said the meeting between Sadat and Peres will take place Sunday morning in the Chancellery.

"I shall be meeting with Peres and I am always optimistic and ready for a dialogue," Sadat said. "It will be interesting to see whether Israel also wants to continue the dialogue."

Sadat said he was grateful for the opportunity to review the Middle East situation shortly before the conference of Egypt's and Israel's foreign ministers and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance in mid-July in London.

"I am in constant contact with President Carter," Sadat said. "I appreciate his initiative to arrange the London conference."

Sadat said there are no plans for a meeting between him and Carter during his current trip because his schedule calls for him to return home one day before Carter arrives in Europe for the world economic conference in Bonn.

"We have no plans for a meeting, but I cannot exclude it if it should be convenient," Sadat said.

Sadat said he did not mention the questions of the Golan heights and Sinai in his newest peace plan, presented last Wednesday and already rejected by the Israeli cabinet.

"because our main aim is to settle the problem of the Palestinians."

Syria Has Asked For Russian Support

By DAVID D. PEARCE
BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Syria reportedly sought Soviet support Saturday in the event Israel intervenes in Lebanon. Sniper fire kept Beirut tense but the unofficial truce between Syrian troops and Christian forces generally held.

President Elias Sarkis, who has threatened to resign if the fighting re-erupts, was continuing his efforts to settle the latest Lebanese crisis, which took on the proportions of a budding Middle East conflict when Israel threatened to intervene to save its Christian allies from being "annihilated."

Beirut newspapers said Syria sent a "high-ranking" official to Moscow to seek Soviet support in the face of the Israeli warnings.

The Middle East Reporter, a usually well-informed Beirut newsletter, quoted "East European sources" as saying that the Kremlin has assured Damascus that "it will not stand idly by if Israel tried to strike at Syria."

Despite occasional sniping, Beirut remained calm for the third straight day. U P I correspondent Ned Tenko, who managed to cross the lines into the Christian sector of east Beirut, reported that the damage from a week of heavy Syrian shelling was immense.

Soviet Trials May Compromise Progress

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Cyrus Vance Saturday deplored the Kremlin's decision to bring to trial two Soviet dissidents, but said Strategic Arms Limitation Talks would take place as scheduled next Wednesday in Geneva.

"These men and women of uncommon courage are being put on trial under a number of pretexts," Vance told a news conference. "In truth they are being put on trial for defending fundamental human rights."

"We will pursue our efforts to secure a strategic arms limitation agreement ... because it is in our national interest ... to do so," Vance said.

Henry Harrell Dies Saturday

Mr. J. Henry Harrell, 79, a prominent Greenville attorney, died Saturday in Pitt Memorial Hospital.

A native of Bertie County, Harrell practiced law in Windsor prior to coming to Greenville as a partner with the late L.W. Gaylord. He continued to practice law in Greenville until his retirement in 1978.

He had served for several years as chairman of the Pitt County Democratic Party, was a member of the State Democratic Executive Committee, chairman of the Pitt County Board of

Resigned

Pitt County Board of Health Chairman Ed N. Warren says the Board has accepted the resignation of Roger J. Barnaby as director of the County Health Department.

The resignation is to be effective Oct. 31. Barnaby has been health director here for five years. He indicated to the board that he probably will go into teaching and related areas of public and allied health.

New Bern Chief Fired

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP) — Former police chief John Worsham said Saturday he was completely surprised by the Board of Aldermen's decision to fire him Friday.

The board gave the city's other 34 policemen until Monday to end a week-long walkout. The aldermen had initially given the men until July 20 to return to their jobs. But they have been advertising for a new police force for several days.

Emerging from a 2 1/2-hour meeting late Friday afternoon, the aldermen gave no hint of a compromise with the police, who threw down their badges June 30 after their request for a 10 percent pay increase was rejected by the aldermen. The board approved instead a 6 percent wage hike for city employees.

Worsham, a former FBI agent who has been police chief for the past seven years, said he was not expecting to be fired because he had proposed a compromise to City Attorney A.D. Ward Monday.

"I think it is bad when people cannot sit down and reason together," Worsham said. "I feel badly about the whole thing."

Warren said a search committee has been appointed. It is composed of Dr. Ron Thiele; Dr. Charles Fitzgerald, Dr. Earl Trevathan, Reginald Gray and Warren.

Italy Elects Hero President

By JACK R. PAYTON
ROME (UPI) — World War II resistance hero Sandro Pertini, 81, won election as the first Socialist president of Italy Saturday to replace disgraced Christian Democrat Giovanni Leone.

Pertini, who had abandoned hope for his candidacy four days earlier, won his seven-year term as the nation's seventh president on the 16th ballot in parliament. He got 832 of the 995 votes cast by deputies, senators and regional delegates — the largest margin since the republic was formed in 1946.

Italy's political parties had been unprepared for the presidential elections, which began June 29. The May 9 assassination of former Premier Aldo Moro by Red Brigades urban guerrillas removed the candidate who was generally considered to be Leone's most likely successor.

The terrorist group stepped up its campaign of violence this week as parliament dined on with ineffective ballots. Three "kneecapping" attacks wounded industrial executives in Milan, Turin and Genoa.

Pertini will be sworn in Sunday to replace Leone, 69, who resigned abruptly June 15 due to a left-wing press campaign accusing him of tax evasion, corruption and involvement in the Lockheed Aircraft Corp. bribery scandal.

Courage Is Shown By Carter

By GENE GIBBONS
WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter has shown great political courage in attempting to promote a Mideast peace agreement but his efforts will prove fruitless because of the inflexibility of Israel and its U.S. supporters, Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., said Saturday.

Abourezk, the Senate's only Arab-American member, assailed Israeli policy and the power of the so-called Israeli lobby on "UPI Roundtable," a broadcast interview program. The South Dakota Democrat predicted failure for U.S. efforts to revive the Sadat peace initiative by bringing the Egyptian and Israeli foreign ministers together in London next week for a meeting with Secretary of State Cyrus Vance.

"The peace talks are not going anywhere. The Israeli government, in response to public opinion in Israel, will not give up the occupied territory," he said. Abourezk praised Carter's efforts to keep flagging Middle East peace hopes alive, saying "he's gone farther than any other president I know of. I think he's been very courageous as presidents go."

Carter has publicly criticized Israel's unwillingness to be more forthcoming on a key sticking point in the negotiations — the question of the political future of its occupied territory on the West Bank and the Gaza Strip. But Abourezk predicted the president would be forced to stop short of applying pressure to get Israel to change its stand.

"We have the ability to lever Israel because we furnish a lot of weapons, a lot of money out of the taxpayers' treasury. The trouble is while we have the ability, we won't use it."

Abourezk said U.S. policymakers lack the will because they are afraid of confronting the so-called Israeli lobby. "Whenever they take a stand that's unpopular with Israel, they have to take a lot of guff."

"The Israeli lobby, which is a very powerful lobby, is able to call on millions of American Jews to pressure the president and members of Congress if U.S. policy doesn't happen to agree with Israel's policy. Our foreign policy in the Middle East has essentially been directed by the Israeli government, and that's wrong."

Spaceship Docking

MOSCOW (UPI) — A robot spaceship carrying food, fuel and water to two cosmonauts circling the Earth headed Saturday for a docking with the Salyut 6 space station. Cosmonauts Alexander Ivanchenko and Vladimir Kovalev were preparing to receive the Progress 2 robot capsule, which was sent into orbit on Friday from the Baikonur space center in Soviet Central Asia.

It carries food and water, materials for more experiments on the station, clothing and, more importantly, volatile jet fuel and liquid oxygen. The capsule is a stripped down version of the Soyuz 29 space capsule that carried the two cosmonauts to the station on June 17.

Exec Managed Cayman Branch

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A Northwestern Bank executive who was suspended last month after FBI agents found $600,000 in safety deposit boxes at a Northwestern branch in Advance, was at one time manager of the bank's Grand Cayman branch.

Odell M. Wilson was placed on a leave of absence with pay after the FBI, acting on a tip, raided five safety deposit boxes in Advance three weeks ago. The trustee of the safety deposit boxes was listed as former Raleigh attorney John D. McConnell Jr., who has admitted making several trips to the Cayman Islands to deposit money in secret accounts for heroin dealers.

Northwestern's Advance branch is a satellite of the branch at Clemmons, where Wilson was in charge.

Jack N. Crawford, manager of the Advance branch, was also placed on leave of absence after the raid. "It is my understanding that the Clemmons manager (Wilson) has jurisdiction over both branches," said State Banking Commissioner Thomas N. Bradford.

Advance is in Davie County, and Clemmons is in Forsyth County. Austin A. Adams, senior vice president of Northwestern, would not comment Friday on the suspensions. He did not say whether the FBI had asked that Wilson and Crawford be suspended or whether the FBI had asked the bank not to comment.

Adams confirmed that Wilson managed the bank's Grand Cayman branch for "a couple of years, I don't have the exact information." McConnell testified to grand juries in Raleigh and New York in 1976 that on several occasions he deposited funds in secret Grand Cayman bank accounts for convicted heroin dealers Leslie "Ike" Atkinson and Frank Lucas. McConnell said he placed $400,000 to $600,000 of the drug dealers' money in an account

White House Is Not Smiling Over Carter's Smiling Face

WHY THE PRESIDENT USED OUR AIR FORCE INSTEAD OF HIS.

A President is a person who knows a lot about himself... Emery Air Freight... The White House is not smiling...

UNHAPPY WITH AD ... The White House said Friday that it did not authorize use of President Carter's picture that appeared in this advertisement that ran in three magazines recently. By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House isn't smiling on President Carter's smiling face gracing a magazine advertisement for an air freight company.

Emery Air Freight used Carter's picture in ads in three magazines, topped by a headline and text publicizing the White House's use of the Wilton, Conn., firm to ship packages. The White House says the use of Carter's picture was unauthorized.

Claudia Townsend, an assistant White House press secretary, said Emery's advertising agency had asked permission to use the picture and the request was turned down. Richard W. Wiebe, Emery's advertising manager, and Jerry Della Femina, board chairman of Della Femina, Travisano Co., the New York firm responsible for Emery's advertising, both said they were unaware that such permission had been sought and denied.

Traffic World, a publication featuring news of the transportation industry. Previous Emery advertisements featured pictures of Richard M. Nixon and Henry A. Kissinger, when Nixon was president. One award-winning advertisement, using the globe-trotting former secretary of state's picture, said: "We go to more places than Henry Kissinger."

The advertisement using Carter's picture claims that when Carter has a package to ship, he uses the Emery "air force" rather than the U.S. Air Force. Ms. Townsend said the White House has used Emery on six or seven occasions so far this fiscal year, which ends Sept. 30, at a total cost of less than $400.

She was unable to give details about the packages shipped via Emery, or why a private carrier was used. Della Femina said they were official White House parcels and not personal effects of the presidential family.

"Normally publications will not accept advertisements using the president or Mrs. Carter without written permission, and the White House doesn't grant it," she said. "The White House does not endorse products or participate in commercial advertisements," she said.

Investigation

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The FBI has begun an investigation to determine whether the civil rights of a young Lumbee Indian were violated when he was injured while being arrested by a highway patrolman. Lumbee leaders in Robeson County have accused highway patrolmen of using excessive force while arresting Lumbees for traffic violations.

The most recent accusations resulted from the case of Terry Lockee, a 22-year-old Lumbee from Robeson County, whose skull was fractured when he was hit with a flashlight during an arrest by a trooper. The trooper said he hit Lockee in self defense.

Chuck Richards of the FBI's Charlotte office acknowledged that the Lockee case is under investigation, but he refused to comment on whether other cases of alleged brutality are being studied.

Carlton had said earlier that the probe was stalled because witnesses refused to talk with investigators. The Lockee family denied the statement, saying they cooperated to the extent of turning medical records over to patrol investigators.

The state Commission on Indian Affairs is also investigating the Lockee case and studying ways to improve relations between Lumbees and state troopers.

'More Rehash Than Reform'

By JANET STAIHAR
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—President Carter is about to announce his plan to reorganize the problem-riddled Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, an agency established during the Nixon administration to help local communities combat crime.

But some congressional critics who have seen drafts of the plan are calling Carter's proposal "more of a rehash than a reform."
In his 1976 campaign, Carter accused LEAA of wasting millions of taxpayers' dollars "while making almost no contribution to reducing crime."

Now with the help of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., who will be chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee next year, replacing the retiring Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., the president has put together a proposed reorganization of LEAA that will stress earmarking of funds for big cities with high crime rates.

The four-year authorization bill would call for a spending ceiling of $825 million annually for LEAA and its programs. The agency's current authorization is about the same, but its actual appropriation is only $641 million annually.

Details of Carter's reorganization plan are to be made public on Monday at a White House ceremony to which key congressional backers of the plan have been invited. Among them are Kennedy and Rep. Peter W. Rodino, D-N.J., chairman of the House Judiciary Committee.

The LEAA's war on crime was conceived during the Johnson administration but actually came into existence under President Richard M. Nixon in 1969. Since then the LEAA, an agency of the Justice Department, has spent more than $6 billion.

The LEAA has been sharply criticized for providing federal money for localities and states to buy such police hardware as souped-up squad cars, bullet-proof vests, helicopters and guns.

Carter's plan would try to reduce questionable uses of LEAA funds by banning, in most cases, grants for police construction projects or salary increases.

It would try to cut LEAA paperwork by 75 percent, primarily by reducing the number of planning documents and grant applications, required of fund recipients. And there would be added encouragement for community participation in LEAA programs.

The bill would provide larger grants for certain states, based on a formula that would include population, crime rates, local spending on criminal justice and local tax contributions. Most of the states eligible for more money under Carter's plan would be in the eastern half of the nation.

"The problem with the bill is that it is very vague," said one congressional aide who asked not to be identified.

"For instance, the bill calls for 'improvements' in LEAA but doesn't define an improvement," he said.

The aide also complained that proposed restrictions against funds being used for police hardware or salaries are so cloudy that they could easily be circumvented.

Driving Passion

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Pruett Ray has a driving passion for Studebaker automobiles.

So much so that he keeps seven in shape for driving and has 200 others lined up around the meadow of his farm near the Wake-Durham county line. He uses them as a source of cheap parts for his other Studebakers, which have not been manufactured in 12 years.

"When I was 14, I decided I wanted either the '33 Studebaker coupe or the '49 Ford coupe. I found the Studebaker first, and it's been Studebakers ever since," said Ray, 32.

"I keep them lined up in an orderly fashion, and having it in the cow pasture is nice because the cows keep down the grass," he explained, adding that old Studebakers are becoming hard to find.

But many folks haven't forgotten them. Ray belongs to a local Studebaker club with 90 members. He said the state club has 250 members and the national club 9,000.

The Studebakers Ray keeps in running condition include his boyhood obsession, the '33 coupe, a '32 coupe, a '41 Champion, a '39 President and a '63 Hawk Grand Torino. He drives one of them to work at IBM, where he is a computer programmer.

He also owns an Avanti, a sports car with a fiberglass body, the only Studebaker car still being produced. Ray uses it mostly as a vacation car.

"They are great cars, and they were always unique. Their slogan was, 'Different by Design.'" Ray said of Studebaker cars. "And they are economical. My '52 gets 18 miles to the gallon around town and 24 on the highway."

He said his cars are easy to repair because many parts are interchangeable and many parts from his junk cars can be used for repairs.

"They didn't change the parts unless they were sure they had a better design, and even tried to fix it so that it would still fit their older cars," he said.

"They were trying to sell economy in the 1960s and they went out of business," he commented sadly.

Ray pointed out that Studebaker started producing horse-drawn buggies in 1852 and began building electric cars in 1900.

When the company put out its first gasoline-powered model in 1910, it became the only carriage maker in America to make a successful transition from horse-drawn to horseless carriages.

Government Welcome To Book Profits

By DONALD SANDERS
Associated Press Writer
ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP)—Former CIA agent Frank W. Snepp III says the federal government is welcome to the profits he earned from his book on the agency. But he says it "won't buy back the honor that the CIA lost in the final days of the Vietnam War or purchase its immunity from responsible criticism."
Snepp was ordered by U.S. District Judge Oren R. Lewis on Friday to surrender his "ill-gotten gains" from the book, "Decent Interval," and to get the Central Intelligence Agency's approval before publishing anything else about the CIA.

Lewis ordered Snepp's profits from the book placed in trust pending an appeal. The money presumably will go to the Treasury in the event an appeal fails.

Snepp, who says he has received $60,000 so far from sales of the book, has 60 days in which to ask for an appellate review of Friday's judgment.

"You're witnessing here something that is really quite unprecedented in American history because an American dared to criticize the government and do so responsibly," Snepp said after Lewis' decision was announced.

"He is being gagged and cannot speak out. ... And that's something I thought was reserved for the countries the CIA is working against."

Snepp, who was a CIA agent for 7½ years and served two tours of duty in Vietnam, contended in his book that the intelligence agency made errors in judgment during the U.S. evacuation of Saigon in 1975, which resulted in leaving behind many Vietnamese who had aided the United States.

The CIA sued Snepp, charging that he had broken an oath to clear his manuscript with the agency before publication.

Snepp contended that publication was legal because he was bound only to submit for clearance any manuscript that contained classified material. He said his book, published last November, did not disclose any confidential information.

The Justice Department did not dispute that assertion, but said the book contained information on CIA activities that should not have been publicized.

Lewis said Snepp's "willful refusal to comply with his pre-publication review obligations to the CIA demonstrates, unless redressed, the potential vulnerability of all information provided to the CIA on a confidential basis."

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP)—Attorneys for two men convicted of spying for communist Vietnam say they will appeal the decision that brought their clients prison sentences of 15 years each.

U.S. District Judge Albert V. Bryan Jr. meted out the sentences late Friday to Ronald L.

Humphrey, 42, a former employee of the U.S. Information Agency, and David Troung, 32, a Vietnamese national who has lived in the United States for 13 years.

The two were convicted by a federal trial jury May 19 on six counts of espionage, conspiracy, theft of government documents and failure to register as foreign agents.

Each could have been sentenced to a maximum of life imprisonment plus 35 years. Bryan sentenced them to two 15-year sentences on the major counts and to terms of lesser duration on other charges, but he specified that the terms be served concurrently rather than consecutively.

This means that neither man will have to serve more than 15 years, and both will be eligible to apply for parole after 55 months.

'Gran Slam For Cancer'

The Greenville Jaycees announced sponsorship with the American Cancer Society of a "Grand Slam for Cancer" project on July 15 to raise funds to support projects of the Society.

Ron Hartis, who is serving as chairman of the project, said that the "grand slam" event is scheduled to begin at 9 a.m. at Guy Smith Stadium.

He explained that under the project format, participants will solicit sponsors in the community to pledge money for each home run they hit out of ten chances. Sponsors, it was noted, might include parents, local businesses, the participant himself, or others.

Hartis said that the ball field will be marked off for grand slam competition on four levels: eight to ten year old participants; 11 to 13-year-olds; 14 to 16-year-olds; and 17 and over. Boys and girls are eligible to participate.

Sponsor sheets are available now at the Greenville Recreation Department on Elm Street, Bond Sporting Goods, H. L. Hodges, or from the Jaycees, he added. Potential sponsors should call Hartis at 752-1981 or 758-4188 or Bob Desoto at 758-7483 or 758-4188.

Hartis said that sponsor sheets should be taken to Guy Smith on the day of the event for official scoring and pledges will be collected by the participants following the competition.

Trophies and prizes will be awarded for top money collectors, it was mentioned, and each participant receives a certificate signed by the honorary chairman of the statewide project, Jim "Catfish" Hunter.

Hartis encouraged area participation in the event, especially by Little Leaguers, Babe Ruth players, Prep Leaguers, and softball players.

Money raised through the "Grand Slam for Cancer" project for the Cancer Society will be used to finance research and special needs of cancer victims.

This female liver and white-colored Irish setter-pointer mixed is being sought a home by the Pitt County Humane Society. She is four or five years old and has been pronounced healthy by a veterinarian.

Also needing homes are a black female hounddog; four mixed-breed puppies; a male neutered cat, about a year old and very affectionate; and a black female medium-sized dog, found at the Sheltered workshop, very affectionate, a great pet for children. There are also numerous kittens available.

Anyone wishing to adopt any of these animals or to place animals for adoption should call the Humane Society, 758-PETS. The phone is an answering service conducted at Helen's Grooming World here. Hours are usual business hours weekdays and from 3 to 6 p. m. Sundays.

Volunteers for Humane Society work continue to be needed, Pres. Jeanette Fiore.

Mistake Makes Man Richer

DALLAS (UPI)—C.D. Pate cashed a $100 check at a Houston supermarket this week and his change may be worth as much as $10,000.

Two of the bills he received as change were $20 bills — on one side. When he turned them over, they were only $10 bills.

The mistake was not a counterfeiting slipup, but the "Rolls Royce of errors" by the U.S. Treasury Department, said one rare coin and currency dealer.

Allen Green, another coin and currency dealer, said a similar mistake occurred in Florida a few years ago. He said those bills were now worth between $2,000 and $5,000 each.

The two-faced bills, with a $20 Andrew Jackson face and a $10 U.S. Treasury back, were two of 160 distributed in the Houston area by the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas.

"We retrieved 120 of them and sent them back to the Treasury Department," said Federal Reserve spokesman Charles Worley. "But 40 bills got into circulation."

Pate said he did not notice the bills until the cashier called him at home to inform him he might have some phony money. At the cashier's request, he returned them to the store and exchanged them for two $10 bills.

The cashier called back later and said he had checked with authorities, and that Pate could keep the funny money if he desired.

Pate returned to the store again. "Now they're mine," he said.

High Speed Train Not Feasible

A study has shown that a proposed high-speed railroad through the Piedmont area of North and South Carolina is not feasible.

The system would connect Raleigh, Greensboro, Charlotte and Anderson, S. C., along with other cities on the route.

The study found high public interest but said that population density along the route was not sufficient to justify the passenger service, at least not until the 21st century.

In this age of the automobile, the results of the study are not particularly surprising, even though the high-speed railroad would undoubtedly be the most efficient way to move people.

What the study is saying is that because of the auto the railroad is not feasible. Actually at the turn of the century and on into this century many passenger trains ran in North Carolina, including a number of regularly scheduled trains to Greenville and other Pitt County towns.

As roads and vehicles developed, the trains disappeared and few of us want to give up the convenience of personal transportation.

Nude Bathing Came To Ocracoke Island

Nude bathing, a phenomenon of the west coast, apparently has come to North Carolina on Ocracoke.

It had come, that is, until a newspaper article appeared concerning nude bathing on deserted beaches north of the National Park Service cam-ground. There is a state law against nude bathing and the Hyde County sheriff said he had directed deputies to issue citations.

Reportedly the deputies were keeping a sharp eye for violations, which under some circumstances might not be bad duty.

Escaping Low-Pay Jobs

By Bill Noblitt

RALEIGH—North Carolina must "change its manufacturing profile" says Commerce Secretary D.M. (Laurie) Faircloth in order to escape from bottom place nationally in average factory wages.

Diversity is demanded to offset the traditionally low-paying industries which dominate North Carolina, the head of the state's economic development effort believes, and he has bluntly stated a goal:

"We will emphasize industrial diversification, and to the Governor, I am recommending as a goal for 1981 that at least 48 per cent—if not half—of our manufacturing jobs come from industries other than textile, apparel, or furniture.

"That is a notch to put on the yardstick," says Faircloth.

Off The Bottom

His second major goal: "I also intend to see that North Carolina gets off the bottom of the heap in average manufacturing wages. I say that by 1981, we should be 46th."

Faircloth sees a direct link between prevailing low wages and the grip which textiles, apparel, and furniture have on North Carolina. The effort to diversify must be aimed at bringing in higher paying industries to compete with those already here.

"During the 1974-75 recession, North Carolina's unemployment shot up above the national average to over 10 per cent, and one-industry towns were severely struck.

"By contrast, those areas in the state with diversified industrial bases suffered little. Unemployment in the Raleigh-Durham-Chapel Hill Triangle, for instance, hardly rose above five per cent," Faircloth reported.

Just how strong is the control exercised by textiles, apparel, and furniture?

A study by Research Triangle Institute experts noted that in North Carolina about 60 per cent of those employed in manufacturing jobs are employed in those industries. Nationally, the three make up only 15 per cent of the total work force.

BILL NOBLITT

Most Jobs

Faircloth says over one third of the state's factory jobs are in textiles (249,000—plus jobs), and another 72,000 are employed in the apparel business—a textile-related occupation. After that comes furniture-making with 70,000 jobs.

There is then a sharp drop to electrical machinery with 39,000 jobs, chemical production and the food industry with 37,000 each, non-electrical machinery with 35,000; tobacco manufacturers with 28,000, metal working with 25,300; and lumber or wood operations with 23,000.

"Meanwhile it is a fact of economic life that few of North Carolina's larger industries pay high wages. One of the state's most troubling economic statistics is the figure that shows North Carolina last in the country in average factory wages—fiftieth," Faircloth said. The state's per capita income for 1976 was $5,509, "but that is still below the national average of $6,441 and ranks 40th from the top."

Emphasis on diversity does not mean, says Faircloth, that success will come overnight. "And certainly we will not turn our backs on our largest industrial employers...because of the under-developed condition of parts of our state and the educational gaps in our work force, we sometimes may find that expansion of existing low wage plants is in the best interest of the state."

Faircloth puts his first emphasis on "a policy of economic diversification aimed at high-paying industries (to) raise our workers' wage status."

"The American newsmen have been found guilty and are hereby sentenced! The date for their trial will be announced later."

Sunday Morning Notes

George Threewitts, of the ECU News Bureau, has a modest collection of guns, which he started as a teenager, mostly of Civil War vintage.

As Dr. Leo Jenkins was concluding his work as chancellor before retiring George was helping him get some things together to be placed in the university library.

They were working in the basement of the chancellor's residence when George noticed an old rifle hanging on the wall.

He asked about it and learned that Jenkins had gotten it when he was a Marine on Iwo Jima during World War II. It was a Japanese sniper's rifle.

George admired the rifle and mentioned that he sure would like to have it for his collection.

Jenkins replied that it was a gift and a happy George took the rifle to his office.

"I was concerned that he might change his mind," George says. In about 45 minutes Jenkins did call.

"You know that rifle I gave you," Jenkins said as George's heart sank. Then... "Bring it back over and I'll sign it, if that will make it more valuable to you."

"It sure would," George said with a sigh of relief.

George plans to mount the rifle after cleaning it and put a plaque on it concerning its origins.

George is careful to point out he collects guns only for display. He has about a dozen Civil War weapons and some from World War I and II. The springs and firing pins have been removed to make them inoperable.

Two local young ladies showed that they cared about animals recently by donating their savings of $15.92 to the Pitt County Humane Society. Deborah and Laurie Little, 11 and eight year old daughters of Larkin and Betty Little made the donation.

Other Editors Say Museum Image

(The Raleigh Times)

The North Carolina Art Society and Art Museum Director Moussa Domit want to tone down the glittering, social-elitist image of both society and museum and reach out to welcome the common folk to the world of art.

This isn't going to be easy, particularly with the museum moving soon to its fancy new outer-suburban home on Blue Ridge Road. The old Morgan Street building has plenty of drawbacks but at least it never put anyone off by being too fancy. And for convenience to tourists, including busloads of schoolchildren, it can't be beat. Lacking convenience, the new museum must indeed bend over backwards to extend its welcome.

Certainly there is snobbery in the view of art patronage as the exclusive domain of the upper crust. Still, it is hard to conceive of any major museum thriving without the interest of the wealthy, and without a certain amount of overlap between the art world and the worlds of political and business and professional influence.

But the effort, especially in a government museum, should always be in the direction Domit and the society now profess to be taking—toward art as one of life's joys for everyone, "masses" as well as "classes."

Among the features and programs Domit says are planned for the new museum, some could further this democratic direction. Classes for allages, hostel space for overnight programs, and dining facilities are particularly promising avenues.

Museum dining, for example, absolutely should not be limited to one sort of meal. Especially because of its isolated new location, the museum must offer both a place for gracious-lady patrons to lunch with reasonable elegance and dignity and a place where the less well-heeled and more hurried, young and old, in large numbers or singly, can get something quick, tasty and nourishing for a low price.

The long battle over moving the museum left scars. Domit and the dedicated Art Society volunteers can heal these scars and serve the state well if they follow up their announced intent to broaden the museum's appeal with commitment and actions. These always speak louder than words—or pictures.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Friends Helping Out Ford

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—Gerald R. Ford's old pals on Capitol Hill are overriding protests from his potential rivals for the 1980 presidential nomination to dip into party campaign funds for him — stirring up dying embers of the blazing Ford-Reagan bitterness two years ago.

Without announcement or authorization, Ford's friends who control the Republican congressional campaign committee are paying the $36,500 salary this year for Ford's political aide. While supposedly hired to help Ford campaign for 1978 congressional candidates, the aide will be invaluable in preparing a 1980 presidential run by Ford.

Neither one political aide nor $36,500 will make Ford president again, but they could represent something much bigger. His backers clearly intend that Jerry Ford will be chief beneficiary of Republican gains in congressional elections providing momentum for his presidential comeback. The campaign committee fulfilled a similar function for Richard M. Nixon in the dramatic Republican congressional gains of 1966.

What bothers many Republicans, however, is not the example of Nixon in 1966 but of Ford in 1976. To Reaganites, the incident all too closely resembles Ford's use of the party apparatus to beat back Ronald Reagan's challenge two years ago.

The decision to start paying for Ford's political aide in April was made by Rep. Guy Vander Jagt, the committee chairman, and Steven Stockmeyer, its executive director, without notifying other committee members; like Ford, both are from Michigan. The aide is Charles Greenleaf (still another Michigan), who was a Ford delegate hunter and campaign assistant in 1976. Greenleaf is answerable to Ford only and is located at Palm Springs, Calif., the former president's home.

Nobody would have suspected this cozy arrangement except for a June 2 account by New York Times reporter Adam Clymer. Bob Barrett, Ford's former military aide and present executive assistant, revealed to Clymer what an experienced politician would have concealed. Greenleaf's work, said Barrett, "would make it easier for Mr. Ford to exercise his options in 1980."

That set off grumbling in Republican cloakrooms, even among such Ford stalwarts as Rep. Bob Michel of Illinois, House minority whip. But another Illinois congressman, Rep. Philip Crane, did more than grumble.

Crane, a Reagan supporter in 1976 and a possible candidate himself in 1980, on June 8 fired off to Vander Jagt a series of blunt questions: Who made the decision? Who else is eligible for such help? How much will Greenleaf be paid? "Is this consistent with the objectives behind the formation of a Republican congressional campaign committee?"

Vander Jagt replied on June 14 by sidestepping Crane's questions. Instead, he used that hoary politician's device of attacking the news story while claiming Greenleaf "is part of our Congressional Advocates program."

Stockmeyer told us helping Ford has two precedents: Nixon in 1966 and John B. Connally in 1976. But the subsidy for Nixon (variously estimated at $30,000 to $80,000) was specially raised and did not come out of committee funds. The help for 1976 congressional campaign activities by Connally (not then a presidential prospect) was around $8,000 to pay a scheduler hired by the committee and located in Washington.

Are the other 25 "Congressional Advocates" eligible for their own Greenleaf? "We'll do the same for anybody who asks," Stockmeyer told us. Not so, says his boss. Vander Jagt told us Ford is "a special case," lacking funds or staff.

Actually, Ford has more resources than his potential rivals: 12 staffers, seven of whom are fully paid for by the federal government with no statutory restrictions on their political use. Defending Vander Jagt June 15 that paying Greenleaf should not "be imposed on the taxpayer." If so, he has leftover funds from the President Ford Committee's (PFC) campaign fund of 1976.

Vander Jagt has put out the fires in the cloakrooms, at least among Ford stalwarts. "After all, he is an ex-president," Michel told us, adding, however, that he wants no more special help for Ford. But Crane was considerably less satisfied after talking to Vander Jagt, who turned down a Greenleaf for "Congressional Advocate" Crane.

Vander Jagt has yet to answer a similar request from Lyn Nofziger, Reagan's longtime political adviser. "We feel that this kind of preferential treatment (for Ford) will be disturbing to many who have contributed to the congressional commit-

Good News And Bad In 2nd Half

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP)—We enter the second half of 1978 hauling a mixed bag of economic fears and hopes, tension and relief, good news and bad, bright prospects and grim.

While some might describe this situation as one in which we don't know whether to laugh or cry, its impact on stock market advisers has been confusion. The indicators, you might say, are blinking green and red.

What can analysts make of gambling stocks providing the leadership on the New York Stock Exchange? Is it bad money chasing out good? Is the infusion of excitement isolated or contagious? What are the odds?

Cesar's World Inc. hit the jackpot, leading all Big Board stocks through June Playboy Enterprises followed at 196.67. And on the Amex, Resorts International soared 220.9 percent.

But, a study by Interactive Data Corp. shows, shares of some of the market's most substantial companies also soared, especially in the aerospace, agricultural machinery and electronics categories.

In the second quarter, for example, the market value of International Business Machines rose by $3.18 billion, while Eastman Kodak rose $1.80 billion and Schlumberger $1.41 billion.

While brokers wonder just what is and is not a blue chip, especially since the casinos lay prior claim to the term, there is need for clarification also in what's happening in consumer forecasting.

Tax Debate Ahead

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP)—The White House is trying to promote its own kind of taxpayer revolt, seeking public pressure to get President Carter's version of tax reduction through a balky Congress.

Vice President Walter F. Mondale says he'll help lead the charge, and dares the Republicans to make it an issue in the congressional election campaign.

They already are.

"I relish a debate with them over tax policy," Mondale said in an interview. "They've always been for loopholes for the privileged. For the Republican Party to argue that at this moment they've had a deathbed conversion and now want to bring relief to the average American—I don't think they're believable."

He may not believe them, but a good many voters apparently do. An Associated Press-NBC News poll showed the parties in a virtual dead heat on the question of which can do a better job of keeping taxes down. Thirty-one percent said the Democrats could, 29 percent said the Republicans and 26 percent said neither. The rest weren't sure.

Carter's tax bill now calls for about $15 billion in reductions, but House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes calls it a phony. He contends that under the bill, the average household will be paying about $100 more in taxes next year because of inflation and Social Security tax increases.

The Republicans are pushing for a 30 percent tax cut over a three-year period, and they'll be doing a lot of talking about it in the congressional campaign.

"Starting here and now, Republicans intend to make sure that the American voter knows which party seeks a real tax cut," Rhodes said.

But talking is about all they can do at this point. They do not have the votes to put over their tax cut bill. A Republican-sponsored measure to cut the capital gains tax has substantial support in Congress, but President Carter has made clear that if it is part of the final bill, he will veto it.

He calls it a windfall for the rich. Rhodes says it is needed to promote capital investment and thus create jobs.

Economic arguments aside, the last thing the administration needs is to veto a tax cut in the year of congressional elections and of Proposition 13.

So it is trying to line up a Ways and Means Committee majority for a $15 billion income tax reduction stripped of the revisions Carter wanted in the name of reform, and of the capital gains tax cut he opposes.

"We propose tax cuts, we want tax cuts, but we want them to be fair and we think the American people want them to be fair," Mondale said.

Strength For Today

THE TRIPOD

John Wesley, the founder of Methodism, had three imperatives with which he ordered his life. They were: believe, love, and obey.

These are the legs of a tripod upon which life may rest secure. They represent three fundamental aspects of life—right commitment, right emotion, and purposeful action.

We must have right commitment toward life before we can begin to live it in a make mistakes and fall short of our goals, but with proper commitment at least we are started in the right direction.

Love is the attitude which should dominate our relations toward other people.

With the right commitment and the right attitude toward others, we are then ready for action. This action Wesley characterized as "obedience." If God has given us truth, then life consists of a searching out of that truth daily and obeying it.

Few Offer Guidelines

By George Gallup
Second of two parts

PRINCETON, N.J. — It is not difficult to see why alcohol abuse has become one of the nation's most serious problems. A recent Gallup study on the problem drinker in American society reveals the following:

*As many as one-half of all parents say they set no guidelines regarding the use of alcoholic beverages by their children. An earlier survey showed four in 10 of parents failing to do so in the case of their teenage children.

*One drinker in 10 admits that their pattern of alcohol use would not be a good model for their children to follow, while another 15 percent express uncertainty or do not offer an opinion.

In this respect, it is interesting to note that about half of all drinkers say they have no specific rules or guidelines regarding their own use of alcoholic beverages.

*About one person in 12 believes there to be no risks involved with the regular use of alcohol, while another 16 percent either express uncertainty or do not give an opinion.

*About one person in six says he or she would not know where or to whom to turn for help in the event someone in his or her family had a drinking problem.

That America faces a serious drinking problem is seen from the same study. As reported in part one yesterday, one person in four (24 percent) says an alcohol-related problem has adversely affected his or her family life. The figure in 1974 was 12 percent. In addition, the proportion of Americans who admit to overindulgence on occasion has increased sharply from 18 percent on year ago to 23 percent today. The current percentage is 34 percent among drinkers.

The current study was undertaken by the Gallup Poll in close cooperation with Rev. David C. Hancock of Prevention of Alcohol Problems, Inc., Minneapolis, and Rev. David A. Works of the North Conway Institute, Boston.

Following are the questions and results:

*Do you have any specific rules or guidelines regarding your own use of alcoholic beverages?

A surprising number of Americans show a lack of awareness about the risks involved in alcohol, the need to set guidelines for themselves and their children, and finally what to do in the event their families are hit by alcohol related problems.

At the same time, however, Americans appear to be increasingly aware that alcohol abuse is a growing threat to American society and are receptive to new approaches to deal with this problem.

Earlier Gallup surveys, for example, have found large majorities holding the belief that alcohol is a disease and should be treated as such in a hospital, and to be in favor of requiring alcoholics to go to special institutions for treatment.

Furthermore, more than eight in 10 adults have been found to favor a law to require all drivers suspected of having consumed too much alcohol to take a breath or blood test to determine the amount of alcohol consumed.

As many as four in 10 persons have been found to favor a law — similar to those in Scandinavian countries — that would send a driver to jail if it is discovered that he has consumed more than one drink of an alcoholic beverage.

In addition, there appears to be a growing awareness and response to the problem of teenage drinking. A survey con-

Hail To The Chief: Changing The Image

BY JAMES J. KILPATRICK

Some of the cynics in the Washington press corps have been going hoo-hah and ho-ho at the appointment of Jerry Rafshoon, the old Atlanta ad man, as "assistant to the president for communications." The appointment was announced May 18, and has produced thus far "Salt Peanuts" and "Hail to the Chief."

The return of "Hail to the Chief" is widely regarded as a step in the right direction. Early in the Carter administration, so the snicker went, the president ordered his band to play "Hi to the Chief" instead. What has happened, more often than not, is that the band has played nothing at all at moments when some stirring music would have enhanced an occasion. The president's rendition of "Salt Peanuts" at the recent Jazz Festival was purely painful, and ought not to be rubbed in.

As presidential image-maker, Mr. Rafshoon has a tough row to hoe. He will not lack for advice from the press. Remarkably, he is getting almost identical counsel from liberals and conservatives alike. It boils down to this: Tell the president to scrub the aw, shucks, small-town, friendly neighbor act. Tell him, in the name of the Founding Fathers, to put on a presidential image instead.

Let me get serious for a moment or two, because the matter is far more serious than Mr. Carter himself seems to understand it to be. Many of the president's troubles, both at home and abroad, stem directly from the image he has presented to the world.

What is the image? Until quite recently, when Mr. Rafshoon's cosmetic applications began to show up, the president of the United States could have his choice of soft little adjectives with rounded corners: affable, diffident, indecisive, friendly, unassuming, eager to please. The president has been modest to a fault, but to borrow from Winston Churchill, Mr. Carter has much to be modest about.

It was understandable, even commendable, that Mr. Carter on entering the White House would want to put his own different stamp upon the office. His populist zeal took him too far. By the time Mr. Carter came on the scene, little remained of the "imperial presidency" of Richard Nixon. The light-opera uniforms for the guards had disappeared; the Marine Corps trumpeters—the ones with the pennants—had been returned to the brass section of the band; Gerald Ford had imbued the presidency with just the right combination of dignity and informality.

Mr. Carter abolished the limousines. He cut back on receptions and entertainment. His top staff people lolled about in casual dress. He insisted on carrying his own suit bag as he got on and off the airplane. He spent a night in Mississippi, a night in Massachusetts; he posed incessantly for family album pictures. We saw daughter Amy at formal functions, nodding over a book. Time after time, whenever the opportunity presented itself, Mr. Carter mewed bashfully in the fashion of Uriah Heep: "I'm no better than you are," he would say.

All this, we may assume, was supposed to humanize the president. The people would "identify" with him. They would see him not as a remote and authoritarian figure, but as a scout-master, Sunday school teacher, manager of the produce department at the local supermarket. From the start, this has been the administration of "Jimmy" Carter.

It's been a flop. The incredulous Russians have reacted to Mr. Carter's classless attitudes with nearly total contempt. Israelis and Egyptians alike have rebuffed his overtures. On Capitol Hill, members of the House and Senate gain a tentative hand on the bridge when they feel it, and they have bolted. Mr. Carter's wagon train has run off in all directions.

Perhaps Mr. Rafshoon can restore some sense of panache, some aura of power. The American people—I am certain of this—are more dismayed than impressed by folksy Jimmy. certain amount of pomp and ceremony, of white ties and ritual. A few "Salt Peanuts" go an awfully long way.

But it won't be easy to put some snap in the president's let-us-pray homilies, or to modify the greys-and-cattish, po'boy image that now is firmly fixed. Mr. Rafshoon's problem, and Mr. Carter's also, is that the most skillful exercises in image-making can't do much for a fellow who really, truly, honestly, is in fact affable, diffident, indecisive, and all the rest.

Odds And Ends Are The Hallmark Of A Trader

PENSACOLA, Fla.—Trader Jon, wearing one blue sock and one red sock, a red baseball cap and a yellow sweatshirt, walks with a slow, shuffling gait. He points to his mismatched socks. "There's a $100,000 reward for anyone who can catch me without them. They're my trademark."

Trader Jon is John Weissman, 65, owner and operator of Trader Jon's Tavern, located in the tough waterfront district of South Palafox in Pensacola. His tavern has acquired a worldwide reputation as a meeting place for footloose travelers via recommendations by pilots, sailors, writers and, Trader Jon would say, anyone interested in having a good time.

Hundreds of pictures are on the walls, autographed photos of famous pilots and movie stars. Ernest Borgnine, John Glenn, and all the original astronauts. And all are grinning like the cat who's just swallowed the canary.

A teetotaler himself, Trader Jon won't hesitate to offer you coffee or a soft drink if you show no interest in sidling up to one of the barber's chairs at the bar. That's because, he says, there's more to life than making a fast buck.

He's a friendly man, full of stories about people who have stopped by his tavern. He remembers when Ernest Hemingway came in, and Tennessee Williams, and John Wayne, and the list goes on.

Trader Jon got his nickname more than 25 years ago when he opened for business and began trading drinks for various items of undetermined value. At first glance, the tavern resembles nothing quite so much as it does a junk shop. Clutter is everywhere—on the walls, hanging from the ceiling, piled on the floor. But it's not all junk by any means. It's a lifetime's accumulation of odds and ends, and some of the articles are of historical interest.

Near the front door is a shark's jaw, a barracuda's head, an enormous wood carving, a training glove left by Mohammed Ali, ship's lanterns—and to the right, over head there's a skeleton of a 20-year-old girl.

Unearthed in Alabama 160 years ago, the skeleton was once owned by Dr. Robert Davis, a cousin of Jefferson Davis. It's not easy to see the skeleton in the dim light, but, once spotted, it's practically impossible to ignore. Every bone is in place and Trader Jon bought the complete set for $18.

There are also dozens of giant model airplanes donated by pilots. "If you don't have a model hanging in Trader's," he says, "you don't fly in the air show."

When you stand near him

Trader Jon will introduce you to everyone who comes in the door.

"See that man over there?" he says. "He's the best darned rope man in the world."

He's talking about Tex Sullivan, a tall, lanky ex-sailor, whose handiwork can be seen all over the tavern. With one length of rope, Tex can weave a lampshade that will leave you baffled for hours.

Like Trader Jon, Tex is outspoken and gregarious, more than happy to show the newcomer around. He is a long-time friend of Trader's and knows the stories behind the artifacts by heart.

"See that pirogue," Tex says, pointing to an ancient canoe hung from the ceiling. "Back when the Indian Chief Geronimo was held prisoner out on the island, they used to have to take him back and forth to the mainland by boat. They had about 10 of these pirogues, and this one you see here was one of the original boats they used." He raps his knuckles against the bow. "See, it's solid through and through."

Trader Jon stoops under the wing of an airplane, and walks past a model blimp—over to where one of his pictures has slipped. He adjusts the picture and then nods goodbye to a visitor.

Platitudes And Cliches Are Argument-Winners

I am firmly convinced that those who frequently win arguments are not armed with the truth; they just know the most cliches. Take Phillip, for example. Whenever we disagree on something, he starts pulling out platitudes from every nook and cranny of his twisted brain and states them with all the finality of ancient cosmic verities. I, on the other hand, usually lose these arguments because I always seem to garble cliches—as in "The pot calling the kettle rusty" or "Snakes and snails may break my bones . . ."

Naturally, this is irritating, but I never felt any real need to improve myself until we started looking for housing in Durham. Suddenly, life became a running battle, with ammunition supplied by Mother Goose. And I was definitely getting the raw end of the deal. All I wanted to do was to lapse into terminal depression, but Phillip kept coming up with demented goodies like, "If you don't have to work for it, it's not worth it." I knew that I had to find a way to muzzle him before I murdered him.

So last week before we went to Durham for the fourth time to look for housing, I checked out a book of proverbs from the library and memorized them. And sure enough, on the first morning of our fourth hunt, he started warming up the minute he got out of bed. "Rise and shine," he said cheerfully. "The early bird catches the worm."

"I hid my head under the pillow. "As you make your bed, so must you lie in it," I mumbled. "That doesn't make sense," he said. "Let's get going. I've already got the day mapped out."

I peeped out from my pillow. "If the blind lead the blind," I said, "both shall fall in the ditch."

"Fortune favors the bold," I argued.

"Perhaps," he said. "But everything comes to him who waits. Our day will come."

"One 'take it' is worth more than two 'thou shalt have it,'" I pouted. "We'll find something that's right for us," he said soothingly. "It just takes time and common sense."

"Little wit in the head makes much work for the feet," I yelled, sensing that I was losing ground.

"Look, honey," he said. "Be reasonable. All I'm asking is for you to think about it awhile. Second thoughts are best."

"Trust your first instinct!" I cried.

"Would you stop and listen to yourself?" he said. "You sound ridiculous. Why don't you put your mind into gear and think for yourself for just a minute? We just can't get financing. This place is too expensive. Now give me the map and let's go look at that duplex."

I stopped a minute and searched for an apt reply. Finally, I found one. "Here's the map," I said. "Stick it in your ear."

Still No Guarantee Against A Summer Blackout

By MARTIN MERZER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Power companies around the country, learning from New York's citywide blackout last year, have strengthened their systems for delivering electricity this summer. But officials still aren't offering guarantees that a major blackout won't happen again.

"We know damn well that once you say there probably won't be a blackout, there usually is one," says Francis Rivett, a spokesman for New York's Public Service Commission. "We don't tempt fate."

So far in 1978, about 775,000 Americans have endured power failures lasting from a few minutes to 17 hours.

Hundreds of thousands of others were affected by voltage reductions caused mainly by the coal strike earlier this year.

It was just about a year ago that Charles Luce, chairman of Consolidated Edison of New York, was saying his utility was in its best shape in 15 years. Three days later, after lightning bolts hit transmission equipment on a hot and humid July 13, 9 million metropolitan New York area residents dependent on Con Ed were plunged into a total power loss.

It took nearly 18 hours to restore all service. Hundreds were hurt in looting and accidents. Damage claims for $10 billion were filed.

A 208-page staff report by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission Thursday said the New York City emergency "resulted from a combination of natural elements, equipment malfunctions, questionable system design features, and operating errors."

The report, however, praised Con Ed for taking corrective steps since then which it said now make the city's electrical system less vulnerable to a similar blackout.

Following the New York blackout, the Federal Power Commission ordered each utility to examine its system.

"There was quite a bit learned from the New York blackout," said Dave Nevius of the National Electric Reliability Council, which monitors power reliability throughout the nation.

"It's unfortunate, but this is the way other systems learn to make provisions against similar problems in their areas."

Among utilities surveyed by The Associated Press:

—Detroit Edison, serving about 5 million people, said it made dramatic gains in load shedding, the process by which a utility stops power to a relatively few customers in order to maintain service to the rest. Slow, skippy load shedding contributed to New York's problem last year, investigators have said.

"It used to take us about 30 minutes to shed (about one-fifth of the) load, now we're down to three minutes by using more sophisticated equipment," said Ken Falk, a Detroit Edison official.

—Florida Power & Light Co., serving about 2 million people in south and central Florida, installed a "system simulator" to teach controllers how to respond to developing power emergencies, such as a flight simulator teaches pilots to handle emergencies. FP&L also is installing a more sophisticated control center to monitor power flow.

—The Los Angeles Department of Water and Power, serving about 7 million people, now tests load-shedding devices every three months, instead of every six, and is building a new control center. "We also had our dispatchers go over what happened in New York," said Carl Osborne, the department's operations manager. "We subjected them to refresher training and we're examining various alternatives to use if we had to make a start from a complete blackout."

—Con Ed repaired a longbroken power supply line with a New Jersey utility and installed another to Long Island — two more avenues through which to receive power in emergencies. Also, the utility now can start reserve generators by remote control from its headquarters instead of waiting for workers to travel to each location.

Con Ed spokesman Irv Levine said the utility has "adequate reserves for this summer and we feel we'll be able to supply the needs of our customers, barring an unforeseen event."

But it is the threat of those unforeseen events that prevents utility officials from guaranteeing trouble-free service.

In the past week alone, San Francisco suffered through two power failures and some residents of Montana, Idaho, Wyoming and South Dakota were without electricity.

In the North Central states, the failure was hauntingly familiar.

New York's blackout began when lightning struck crucial transmission lines. Devices that were supposed to limit damage failed, and by the time a Con Ed controller reacted, the entire system was blacked out.

In the North Central outage, lightning struck a transmission line, and W.R. Bosshart, chief of systems operations for the Bonneville Power Administration, said a safety device failed.

Whatever the condition of electricity supply now, utility officials have been warning for some time that its reliability will decline by the mid-1980s. During peak demand, utilities may have to black out areas on a rotating basis, they say.

The recession of the mid-1970s, governmental and environmental objections to locations and designs of power plants, and confusion over which fuel the federal government would favor all have contributed to a shortage of power plants, the officials warn.

That, alongside the chance of more immediate blackouts, has led many firms and large residential projects to install their own generators.

Starrett City, a 5,880-family Brooklyn, N.Y., housing complex, has its own power plant; Georgia-Pacific Co. is installing gas turbines in many plants; the Ford Motor Co. produces some of its own power; a 32-story Manhattan office building is being rebuilt with its own generators.

As for the rest of us, utility officials say they have ample supplies of fuel now and are reasonably certain there won't be large, systemwide failures this summer. But the key word is "reasonably."

"Good fuel supplies and large reserves (of power) don't tell the whole story," said Nevius. "If we get extremely hot weather for an extended period over a large area—in other words a lot of strain—there is always the possibility of problems."

Don't Write Off Wallace, He May Be Running Again

By REX THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Don't write off George Corley Wallace just yet. His retirement from public office next January may be only temporary. He says so himself — throwing in a lot of maybes.

The governor, 58 years old and partially paralyzed, is barred by law from seeking reelection when his term is over, and he is not a candidate for any other office this year.

But, Wallace said in an interview with The Associated Press, "I might change my mind" and seek a Senate seat, perhaps in 1980. "I haven't ruled it out."

Then, however, he added, "I don't think that's much of a possibility."

So, what about the governorship? The state constitution says no one can serve more than two consecutive terms as governor, but it does not rule out staying out four years and then running again.

Does Wallace have that in mind? "The odds now would be against it," he replied. But, he added quickly, "the odds can always change. I don't rule it out."

However, another Wallace, Cornelia, who was divorced from Wallace in January, entered the Democratic race for governor on Friday, 15 minutes before the filing deadline. She said she had not discussed her candidacy with her former husband.

At one time, Wallace had been saying he would be a candidate to succeed Sen. John Sparkman, who is retiring at the end of this year. Then he withdrew from that race.

After that, when Sen. James B. Allen died from a heart attack June 1, the governor considered running for Allen's unexpired term. But he gave that up, too, saying it would not be "the proper thing for me to do."

Even at that time, though, he emphasized he was not retiring from politics, and said, "I expect to remain politically active for years to come."

That left the door open for a possible Senate race, or maybe for a fourth term as governor, at some later time.

He has not talked of running for president since 1976, when he dropped out of his third serious campaign for the presidency and threw his support to Jimmy Carter.

As things stand now in Alabama, a new governor will be elected Nov. 7, and Wallace says he does not plan to endorse any candidate. In fact, he has told members of his cabinet they will have to resign if they get involved "in anyone else's campaign."

Since his divorce nine months ago, Wallace admittedly has had spells of loneliness — "everybody gets that way now and then," he says — but he adds, "It's no big problem. I'm not all that lonely."

Except for his 17-year-old daughter, Janie Lee, and the state troopers who guard him around the clock, the governor lives alone in the two-story executive mansion not far from downtown Montgomery.

Little, Tucker Are Candidates

Robert G. Little of Rt. 1, Grimesland and Ralph C. Tucker of Greenville, incumbent members of the Pitt Soil and Water Conservation Service, announced that they have filed for reelection.

Both men will seek reelection as non-partisan candidates in the November general election. Their terms expire every four years.

Little, who is currently serving as chairman of the Pitt district, was appointed to the five-member board in 1963 and has been reelected in successive elections since that time. A farmer, he also serves as chairman of Area Five of the Soil and Water Conservation Service, which involves 20 eastern counties.

Little was instrumental in getting the Chicod Creek Drainage District underway, it was pointed out, with the project in the bidding stage now.

The candidate, who is also associated with Grimesland Plant Food Inc., served eight years as a county commissioner, including one year as chairman. He was a member of the local Selective Service Board for over three years and served on the Pitt Board of Health.

Little is a member of Salem Methodist Church.

Tucker has been a member of the board since 1970 when he was initially appointed to replace Hugh Winslow. The incumbent, who represents Greenville and surrounding townships, is currently secretary and treasurer of the Pitt Service.

He is first vice president of the N.C. State Association of the Soil and Water Conservation District and is also chairman of the Mid-East Resource, Conservation and Development Council, covering Pitt, Beaufort, Martin, Hertford, and Bertie counties.

A Greenville native, Tucker farms in the Pitt County area, having retired from Wachovia Bank & Trust Co. He is a member of the local American Legion post, the V.F.W., and Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church.

"We are dedicated to the improvement of soil and water conservation, not only in Pitt County, but throughout North Carolina and the United States," Tucker commented.

No Fine Or Jail For Now

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Tennessee Valley Authority divers will begin exploring three rivers next week trying to find out how many snail darters stand in the way of the agency's $119 million Tellico Dam.

TVA officials said Friday the exploration, which is dependent on proper weather conditions, is the first step in tagging the rare three-inch fish to get a more accurate count of how many exist.

Louis Gwin, a spokesman for the agency, said the actual tagging is expected to begin in August after TVA obtains a permit for the operation from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

The U.S. Supreme Court ruled last month that TVA cannot complete the dam because the lake it would impound would destroy the home of darter, which is protected as an endangered species.

The underwater exploration program was announced Friday at one of a series of meetings between TVA Chairman S. David Freeman and Richard Herbst, assistant secretary of the Interior. The meetings were begun after the court's ruling in an effort to complete the Tellico project without destroying the darter.

The Fish and Wildlife Service now lists a 17-mile section of the Little Tennessee River, which would be turned into a 16,000-acre lake if the dam's gates are closed, as the darter's only critical habitat.

Gwin said the divers will concentrate on exploring the environmental conditions of the Little Tennessee, the Tennessee and the Hiwassee Rivers.

TVA estimates there are now between 1,000 and 1,500 darters in the Little Tennessee and between 1,500 and 1,900 in the Hiwassee after officials transplanted 700 of them there two years ago.

Gwin said darters also have been spotted in some areas of Watts Bar Lake on the Tennessee River but an estimate on how many may be there has never been made.

TVA has contended in the past that if the darter can reproduce and survive in streams other than the Little Tennessee, there is no reason under the Endangered Species Act for not completing the dam.

Freeman, however, says he has not made up his mind on whether he favors completing the 12-year-old project with the lake regardless of the snail darter controversy.

Gallup Poll...

ducted for the Charles F. Kettering Foundation shows an overwhelming 84 percent favoring a required course on the effects of drugs and alcohol. Actually, such courses are now being given in many schools.

A similar survey showed that more than three of every four U.S. adults approve of the idea of offering courses at school for parents as a regular part of the public school educational process. And their top choice would be a course dealing with drugs, smoking and use of alcohol.

The results reported today are based on in-person interviews with 1,523 adults, 18 and older, conducted in more than 300 scientifically selected localities across the nation during the period April 21-24.

Governor

By GARRY MITCHELL
Associated Press Writer

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — "I just hope people evaluate my candidacy on its own," said Cornelia Wallace, handing over paperwork Friday to run for governor.

Without fanfare, the divorced wife of Gov. George C. Wallace walked into State Democratic Party headquarters 15 minutes before the 5 p.m. (CST) deadline to qualify.

She declined to disclose what made her decide to run for the governorship.

"I want to give the people the chance to vote for someone honest," the tanned 38-year-old said, candidly adding, "Just call it an insurance policy."

It was reported that Mrs. Wallace's mother, Ruby Folsom Austin of Montgomery, had spent the morning urging her daughter to run for governor.

"I'll go and announce myself if you don't," Mrs. Austin vowed.

The former first lady, in an out-of-court divorce settlement, received a $75,000 cash award and some of the couple's personal property, including a lot on Lake Martin near Montgomery.

She said she had not consulted with Wallace about running. She wouldn't speculate on whether she would draw votes from the governor's constituency.

Billy Joe Camp, the governor's press secretary, said Wallace would have no comment on his former wife's political ambitions.

The Wallaces were married Jan. 4, 1971, shortly before he was inaugurated for his second term. They were divorced exactly seven years later.

Mrs. Wallace, who lives in Montgomery with her two sons, admitted her campaign was somewhat unorganized at present. There's not yet a campaign headquarters.

candidate for the Alabama Public Service Commission.

Mrs. Wallace's uncle, former Gov. James E. "Big Jim" Folsom, also is a candidate for governor in the Democratic primary Sept. 5.

Waiting for an elevator leaving at party headquarters, Mrs. Wallace was embraced by frequent candidate Ralph "Shorty" Price, who is also running for governor.

"This is my year to win," Price chided Mrs. Wallace. "You vote for me this year, and I'll vote for you next year."

Special Labels For Protein

HO HUM — Three-year-old Jeremy Wood and his sister Heather, 4, started showing the signs of a hard day's work as they accompanied their mother, Joan, on her lawn mowing rounds at the family's truck stop south of Zumbrota, Minn., Friday afternoon. (AP Laserphoto)

ATLANTA (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration soon may require special labels on liquid protein diet products warning consumers and physicians of possible health hazards, health officials said Friday.

Studies by the national Center for Disease Control and the FDA, released Friday, indicated that women aged 25 to 44 who were on liquid protein diets ran a nearly 30 times greater chance of cardiac death than women in the same age group who were not on the diet.

Sixteen white women who were on the diet and who died in the past year fit a distinctive clinical and pathological pattern, the studies found.

Normally there should be no more than two cardiac deaths per 100,000 annually in that age group, but the CDC said the studies showed that the mortality rate of women on liquid protein diets would be 59 per 100,000.

"Thus, it appears that in this age group prolonged use of the liquid protein diet accounts for a significant increase in mortality," the CDC said.

"There is little reason to doubt that the present data, which show an increased risk for white women aged 25 to 44 with prolonged use of the diet, would also apply to both sexes and all age and racial groups," said Dr. Harold Sours, a medical epidemiologist at the CDC.

"At the present time, insufficient information is available to insure the safety of persons on such regimens," he added.

The studies said 58 deaths were reported in the latter half of 1977 and early this year among women between 25 and 44 who were on the liquid protein diet. But some of the women had medical problems which may have contributed to their deaths, the studies said.

Deaths related to the liquid protein diets first were reported about a year ago. The studies reported that the diets involved at least 50 brand name products.

Supporters of such diets claim they are safe if properly supervised, but the FDA says they are dangerous, even to those under medical supervision. The CDC reported last November that proteins in the diets "are nutritionally of low biological quality, indicating that they do not contain the full complement of essential amino acids."

A nationwide survey in March and April showed that no more than 98,000 white women between 25 and 44 were on the liquid protein diet for a month or more, and no more than 37,000 were on it for two months or more in 1977.

Robert B. Kaskey, President of Robard Corp., Cherry Hill, N.J., and director of the Protein Products Association, responded to the report, saying,

"To date, no one has proved a direct cause-and-effect relationship between the sensible human use of liquid protein and any serious adverse effect." In another development Friday, the CDC reported that the California Department of Health has withdrawn approval of a rabies vaccine derived from chick embryos because the vaccine actually causes rabies in about three of every million dogs immunized.

Although the vaccine was banned in California on July 1, the CDC said it will continue to be available in other states.

Shakespearean Theater Opens Despite Odds

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Drama Writer
STRATFORD, Conn. (AP) — Forget the tough odds and doom omens. The curtain is going up again at the American Shakespeare Theater.

"We've come through," says Konrad Matthaei, president of the widely known drama enterprise which, after 22 summer seasons, succumbed to fiscal anemia and creative palsy in 1976.

"What we have done, in corporate terms," he adds,

"is achieve a complete turnaround."

A production of "Twelfth Night," starring Lynn Redgrave and Penny Fuller, opens Wednesday, restoring the big, grey, pseudo-Elizabethan structure on the banks of the Housatonic River to its original, classic purpose.

If all goes well during the six-week engagement, several plays will be done on a longer schedule next year.

In the new setup, major attention still centers on the works of Shakespeare, England's noted son, but the performance agenda also now includes dance, opera and direct-from-Broadway musicals.

The diversification is designed to keep the 1,534-seat auditorium in use all year and serve a wider variety of the public's artistic interests.

"By becoming a combination of things," says executive director Richard Bader, "we are able to pay the high costs of Shakespearean productions."

The operating budget for the first business year through September is $1.4 million—a bit less than what costs were previously just for the summertime operation. Of that sum, $200,000 is for "Twelfth Night."

Bader lists tough management, efficiency and innovation as the three main ingredients of revamped policy. Accomplishments reported thus far indicate gratifying results.

The American Shakespeare Theater, Bader says, was founded "by a group of wealthy individuals who made up annual deficits" as an annual festival to compete with the thespic displays at the original Stratford and Stratford, Ontario. "When those people died or lost interest, there was no strong administration or financial structure."

By 1976 the institution was $800,000 in debt, and creditors were clamoring. The board of governors suspended operations.

"Some of us never really gave up," says Matthaei of that deep-gloom phase. Matthaei, an actor turned businessman, had joined the board in 1973, was president by 1976 and is one of the small carryover core still active.

Bader, a veteran of 15 years as a consultant and administrator for several New York City culture-oriented agencies, was brought in as executive director.

"The real change we wanted," says Matthaei, "was correlation of fiscal responsibility and artistic integrity. We believe we have now found that formula."

For an immediate infusion of cash, the group last September booked limited

FROM SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

By MARGARET CLARK

Few streets in the world hold the allure of New York's Fifth Avenue. Now, in FIFTH AVENUE: A VERY SOCIAL HISTORY, Kate Simon has painted a dazzling panorama of a century and a half played out on the pavements of one of the most prestigious avenues in the world. The author describes the high society of the original Four Hundred, and their extravagant balls and parties in mammoth mansions on the Avenue. She not only gives her readers a view of the great palaces along the way, but we see the famous art galleries, museums and houses of fashion. And the parade continues to the swamp that was to become Central Park all the way to Harlem. FIFTH AVENUE is a most delectable banquet of tidbits for those who can't have enough of Old New York.

BLESS ME FATHER by Neil Boyd is the warmly irreverent and delightful account of the author's initiation into the priesthood some twenty-five years ago. When he first began his career in London, Father Neil soon found that there was a good deal going on in the world that they didn't tell him about in the Seminary. They did not, for instance, prepare him for the penitent little boy who confused the commandments and confessed to adultery. They certainly didn't prepare him for Father Duddleswell, a crusty prelate as sly as a fox and dogmatic as any Pope. This religious rogue leads his young colleague through a series of adventures that often leave Father Neil aghast, and will leave the reader alternately with laughter and sympathy.

A deeply compassionate book about a better way of caring for the dying is THE HOSPICE MOVEMENT by Sando Stoddard. A hospice is a "caring community" for the terminally ill, offering help in the sick person's home when possible and inpatient service when necessary. Unlike the hospital, the hospice favors pain and symptom control via strong medications. Expressions of personality are encouraged; young children and even pets are welcomed by the staff. In describing hospices here and in England, Stoddard cites the works of Elizabeth Kubler-Ross and other influential movement supporters who affirm that dying is not an event put a process, and one that requires assistance. Her argument has a variety of merits, and even those who resist the concept will attend to the idea of limited medical intervention in order that one may die with dignity at home or in a home-like setting.

Soprano Melton Performs

RALEIGH — Soprano Joan Melton, formerly head of the music department at Peace College in Raleigh, will present a concert this Sunday, July 9, at 4 p.m. on the first floor of the N.C. Museum of Art.

Dr. Melton, a twentieth-century music specialist, plans to include a variety of works from several musical periods. Composers included on the program are: Johann Sebastian Bach, Alban Berg, Gian Carlo Menotti and Charles Gounod. The program also features

"Three Songs on Classical Burmese Texts," works composed by Joan Melton.

This Sunday event is part of the Museum-sponsored concert and lecture series. All events are free and open to the public.

SECCA Awards Announced

WINSTON-SALEM — The Southeastern Center for Contemporary Art (SECCA) announced the award-winning artists and their works recently in 46th Southeastern Competition in drawing, photography and printmaking. Roxanne Reep of Greenville was among ten winners whose work were selected from 95 works exhibited. She won a Purchase Award for her work 90-1234PQR/W.

The 46th Southeastern Competition will be open to the public from July 8-August 23. A SECCA curator will present a tour and discussion of the exhibition on Tuesday, July 11 at 10 a.m. Both the tour and SECCA are open to the public and are free of charge. SECCA's summer hours are: Tuesday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., and it is located at 750 Marguerite Dr., Winston-Salem.

YOUNG AT HEART — Alberta Hunter performed recently at New York University's Loeb Center. The concert, entitled "Jazz for the Young at Heart," was presented as part of the Newport Jazz Festival. (AP Laserphoto)

Hand Weavings On Display

Dual Exhibitions Open

The Greenville Art Center invites the public to attend the opening of a dual-exhibition of paintings and graphics by Paul Martick and George Roland today from 3-5 p.m. A reception honoring the artists will be held at this time.

Both men are faculty members of the School of Art, University of Virginia. Martick is a native of Boston, while Roland is from Washington, D.C. The exhibitions will be on display through July.

Dr. Ward To Retire

WINSTON-SALEM — Robert Ward, Pulitzer Prize-winning composer who came to Winston-Salem in 1967 to succeed Vittorio Giannini as head of the North Carolina School of the Arts and who has been closely associated with its development ever since, has announced to Chancellor Robert Suderburg that he will retire from the NCSA music faculty in the fall of 1979.

Dr. Ward, currently on a year's leave of absence to complete a commission for a fifth opera, said his decision to seek early retirement was based on the same considerations which prompted him, in 1973, to resign as chancellor in order to "step down to a less time-consuming position in the school." He now wishes to retire from teaching in order to devote his full time to composition.

While other commissions are pending, Dr. Ward said that his first priority is to complete his fifth opera in time for the opening of Charlotte's new Spirit Square Theatre. Commissioned especially for the occasion by the Charlotte Opera, and using a libretto now being produced by Jon Hartman under a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts, the opera is based on the factual 12th-century story of Abelard and Heloise. The theatre dedication is tentatively scheduled for the fall of 1979.

The opera will be his second work recently commissioned by a Charlotte-based musical organization. His Symphony No. 5, "Canticles of America" was commissioned by the Charlotte Oratorio Singers, which gave its premiere performance during the 1976 Bicentennial celebration.

His fourth opera, "Claudia Legare," based on Ibsen's "Hedda Gabler," was premiered this year by the Minneapolis Opera. It was also an operatic composer that Dr. Ward first won international recognition.

"The Crucible" received both the Pulitzer Prize in Music and the New York Music Critics Circle Citation in 1962 and its German premiere the following year marked the first time that an American composer had ever conducted a premiere of his own work in a German opera house.

Before coming to Winston-Salem, Dr. Ward taught at Columbia University and the Juilliard School. A graduate of the Eastman School of Music and a postgraduate student of composition at Juilliard, he has been acknowledged for outstanding service to the arts with an honorary doctorate of music from the Peabody Institute and an honorary doctorate in fine arts from Duke University.

Disc Jockey - Game Show Host Busy

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Wink Martindale, emcee of "The New Tic Tac Dough" game show, tapes ten shows a week in addition to devoting three hours a day to his duties as disc jockey at a Los Angeles radio station (KMPC).

Martindale, whose given name is a truncated version of Winston, and his wife, Sandy, were married three years ago. He has four children by a previous marriage: Lisa, 22; Lyn, 21; Laura, 18; and son Wink Jr., 16.

The Martindales, sans children, live in a typical Southern California ranch-style house in Pacific Palisades. They bought the place shortly after they married and decided to do things the easy way.

The dwelling was a model home with all the furnishings color coordinated. Wink and Sandy decided the decor couldn't be improved upon so they bought the house lock, stock and draperies.

It has four bedrooms and an office. The carpets are lime green with green, orange and yellow coordinates, providing a perpetually bright and sunny atmosphere.

Wink's only addition to the property is a hot tub in the yard, complete with Jacuzzi, in which he relaxes for half an hour every day. He needs all the relaxation he can get.

On a typical morning Martindale is up at 5 to read the papers while he sips a cup of coffee. He gets to his KMPC office at 9 o'clock to put in an hour's preparation for every hour he is on the air. He is on the air from noon until 3 p.m.

He leaves the station by 4, often working in a few sets of tennis with Sandy in the afternoons. Then the Martindales jump in the hot tub before going out for dinner.

"Sandy doesn't like to cook," Wink says. "And I'm not much use around the kitchen either. Fortunately, we both love to eat at good restaurants. We like continental cuisine, Spanish and Chinese foods."

They are not above asking for doggy bags at the fanciest restaurants. The Martindale menage includes a pair of pups, Gambit and Macho.

Martindale is an unreconstructed clothes horse. As the emcee of the game show "Gambit" for several years he collected 150 suits, paying a fraction of their cost in a deal with a well-known clothier. All 150 suits are still in style and hang in his closet.

At the moment Martindale is selecting another huge wardrobe for the new CBS game show although he says, "I only wear a tie when I have to."

Thanks to his many years as a disc jockey, Martindale also has collected an impressive number of phonograph records and cassettes. He has catholic tastes in music and a compulsion to keep up with new trends.

Sandy, who dated Elvis Presley for six years, is national chairman of the St. Jude Elvis Presley Memorial Fund with a goal of raising more than a million dollars for a new floor at the Memphis, Tenn., hospital.

Until "Tic Tac Dough" began, the Martindales used to enjoy weekends in Palm Springs. Now Saturday and Sunday are devoted to taping five nighttime syndication shows and five CBS 10 a.m. versions of the show.

However, Wink bought a new condominium on the Hawaiian island of Maui and hopes to spend a few weeks in the new digs when he gets a vacation.

DIRECTING REHEARSAL...of the East Carolina University Music Camp is ECU School of Music faculty member Harold A. Jones. The ECU Summer Music Camp will present a concert this Sunday at 7 p.m. in front of the A. J. Fletcher Music Center on Tenth Street. Also directing the music for the performance is Ray Haney, director of the East Bladen High School Band, and Bert Owen, director of the Scotland High School Band of Lenoir County. Musical selections will include a wide variety of styles from popular music, concert works and music from Broadway shows. The group is attended by over 200 students from the southeastern region of the country with instructions from outstanding high school and university music programs. The course of study includes band performance, theory, private music lessons and a full recreation program. Another concert will be performed at the same location on Sunday, July 23, under the direction of Herbert L. Carter. The public is invited to both events.

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jack Klugman raises his voice a lot. It is, he says, one of the things that got him into acting—and into trouble.

He's demonstrative, with animated gestures and a voice that clamors for attention.

"I come from a large Italian neighborhood," says Klugman. "It comes from trying to express yourself. 'MAN! I was out with this GIRL and she was BUILT!' His voice rises with the inflections and his hands outline an hourglass figure.

"If you wanted attention, if you wanted to be heard, you had to talk like that," he says. "You had to be part actor, and that's what got me into the business. It's also why I cook the best pasta."

Klugman, as the medical examiner on the NBC television series "Quincy," clamors for attention with a loud voice, unorthodox methods and a keen sense of medicine.

The show, which moves from Friday to Thursday night next season, began in 1976 as part of the 90-minute "Sunday Mystery Movie," then switched to an hour series at midseason.

Klugman went to "Quincy" after five years with Tony Randall in ABC's "The Odd Couple." He won two Emmy awards as sloppy sports writer Oscar Madison, who railed against the neatness of Randall's Felix Unger.

"I was ready for drama after that," Klugman says. "It's like food — you want a little Chinese, then some Italian. But even in the midst of this I do things that are as wild as anything I did on 'The Odd Couple.' At the end of a scene yesterday, I grabbed a pitcher and dumped ice tea over Sam's head. They let me be me."

Sam is Quincy's laboratory analyst, played by Robert Ito.

Klugman's outspokenness landed him in a peck of trouble earlier this season. He loudly complained about the poor quality of the scripts for the series — and the writers took it personally. The two sides fought it out in the newspapers until a truce of sorts was reached.

"I hope it's peaceful now," says Klugman. "I made a mistake in the way I said it. They got even by taking shots at me in every sketch at the annual writers' meeting."

"They'll have another chance to get even. I wrote a show with Jim Rosin. Now they can say, 'He calls THIS writing?'"

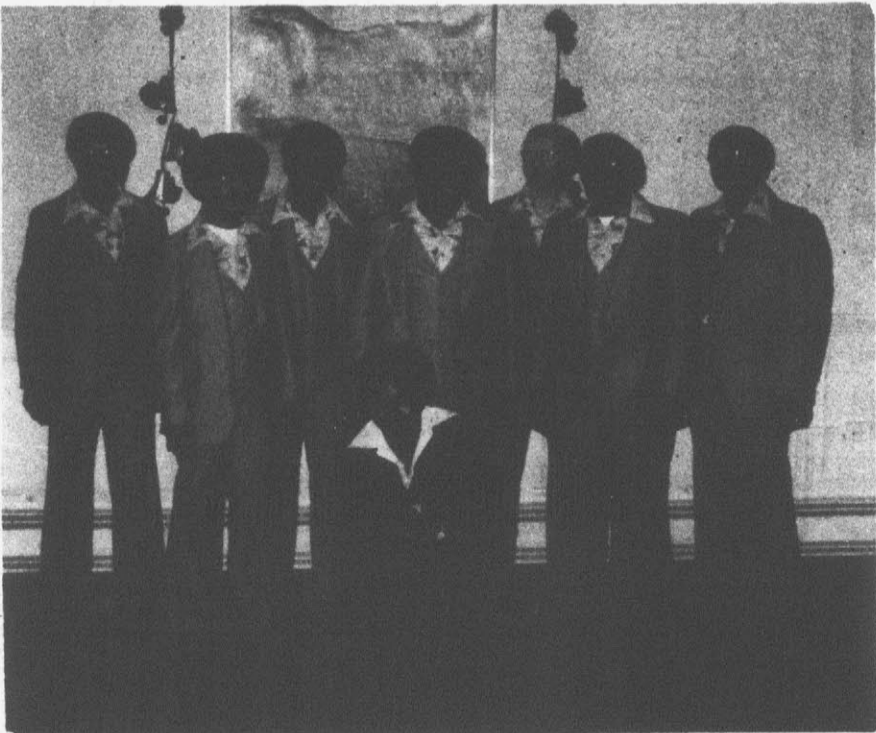

He wrote two scripts for 'Kraft Theater' in 1956 for shows that starred Walter Matthau and Cliff Robertson. "I haven't written anything since then until now because of the bad experience of rewriting. The producer wanted so many changes. Just like I do now."

engagements of "Fiddler on the Roof," "South Pacific," "Godspell" and "Shenandoah," which set a weekly record gross of $125,000. They were part of management's determination to reach a larger audience in the area. For the same reason, a resident ballet group and opera company also were installed. Modern dance has since been added.

To herald the change, a new title was added to the American Shakespeare Theater — the Connecticut Center for the Performing Arts.

"Now we have a variety of things for a variety of people," says Bader. Early this year Gerald Freedman was retained as artistic director. Freedman, a high-credentialed veteran of legit, opera, musical theater and television, calls his job "a challenging opportunity." In the past, he says, "nobody in theater felt this place was interesting. It was certainly respectable, but the artistic community never felt it was a place of dramatic challenge.

"I'm not sure how that image can be dispelled," Freedman says, "but I want to create a place where our best and most interesting actors will want to work." The 51-year-old stager plans to draw from the pool of performers he worked with during lengthy association with Joseph Papp's New York Shakespeare Festival and The Acting Company founded by John Houseman.

On the business side, Bader reports positive signs. "When we started out, no one wanted to come near us," he says. "Since 'Variety' printed some of our box office grosses, everyone is knocking at our door."

How long and loudly that continues depends to a considerable extent on how well received "Twelfth Night" is.

Varied Topics Featured

"Hospitality House", with host Kay Currie, will feature interviews taped at the 27th annual Convention of Women in American Radio and Television held in Los Angeles June 13-17. The schedule of interviews for today's show at 12 noon on WITN is:

— Dr. Bruce Meed, director of professional services at Roche Laboratories. He will discuss the use and misuse of tranquilizers in "What's New About Drugs?"

— Helen Horton, director of consumer services at Miles Laboratories. She will have recipes that are perfect for patio and cookout meals and are low in calories and cholesterol.

— Jackson Browning, director of health, safety and environmental affairs at Union Carbide in New York city. He will tell about a survey conducted among Americans concerning cancer, its causes and approaches to prevention.

Phil Shroff, originally of Bombay, India, manager of fashion and fabric at Monsanto Textiles in New York city. He will preview fall fashions.

DARLINGTON, S.C. — Plans for the 1978 Shriners' South Carolina Music Festival have been announced by Jolly Jeepster Director Bud Dudley of Hartsville.

The event will be held on Sunday, August 6, from 1 until 8 p.m. at the Darlington International Dragway.

This marks the second year that the Omar Jolly Jeepsters, a non-profit shrine unit that annually contributes thousands of dollars to the Crippled Children's Hospital in Greenville, S. C., has sponsored the festival.

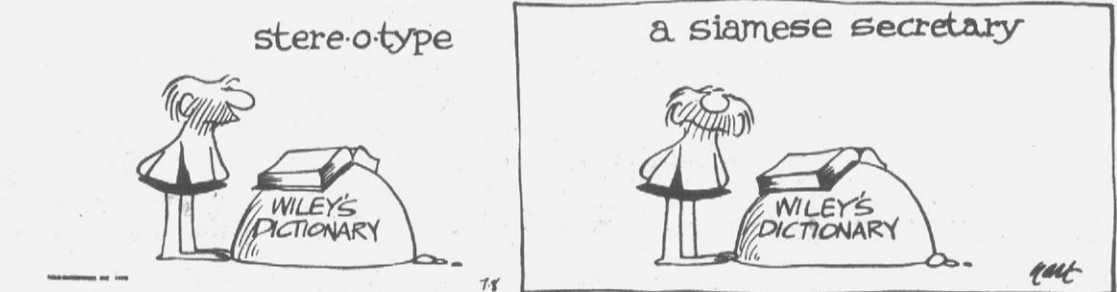

In addition, the festival will feature amateur and semi-professional talent. Twenty-five finalists will compete at the festival for top honors. Other activity planned by the shriners includes an air demonstration by the U. S. Navy, square dance exhibition and the appearance of beauty queens and special VIP's. Tickets are on sale at $5.50. They will be $7 on the day of the show. Children under 8 are admitted free. Tickets are available by sending a cashier's check or money-order to Shriners' S. C. Country Music Festival, P. O. Box 169, Darlington, S. C. 29532. Further information can be obtained by calling 332-0123.

'Prairie' changes
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Michael Landon, star and producer of the "Little House on the Prairie" series, says new faces and places will be featured on the show when it begins its fifth season in the fall. Landon said economic conditions force the Ingalls family to move from their farm in Walnut Grove into the noisy city of Winoka. One of the new faces on the show is Matthew Laborteau, 11, who joins the cast as a street urchin taken into the Ingalls family.

Daniel Ellsberg Simply Dreads 'Spasm War' Idea

DANIEL ELLSBERG, a former Pentagon analyst, speaks at press conference in Denver. "There is no more important work for my life now than preventing the use of nuclear bombs," he says. (UPI Photo)

By DEBORAH FRAZIER
GOLDEN, Colo. (UPI) — Daniel Ellsberg slipped off his backpack and sat on the railroad tracks leading to the Rocky Flats nuclear weapons plant. The notorious Pentagon analyst was there because of a 20-year-old top secret war plan.

In 1958 Ellsberg was a defense analyst for the Rand Corp., a research firm studying strategy preparation. He said he learned then the Pentagon had a single option for general war — massive nuclear bombing of every military installation and major city in China and the Soviet Union. Ellsberg was the first civilian to see the "spasm war" plan, which would have been activated for any conflict involving more than a division of Soviet troops anywhere in the world.

"They had constructed the most evil plan that has ever existed. It would have killed 325 million people immediately," Ellsberg said. He then explained he was finally revealing the secret war plan to prove "nuclear holocaust" was, and still is, a possibility. Ellsberg had blown his reputation for keeping secrets in 1971 when he circulated a top secret report on U.S. military involvement in Vietnam, ordered by then-Defense Secretary Robert McNamara in 1967. The Pentagon Papers, as the report came to be called, showed U.S. entanglement was deeper than the public was told. The disclosure cost Ellsberg his job although the resulting federal espionage charges were dismissed in 1973. But Ellsberg had kept the secret that the Joint Chiefs of Staff's lone option in 1960 for general war called for massive thermonuclear bombing. By upbringing, Ellsberg is a likely keeper of national secrets. The son of a Detroit engineer, he was raised a Christian Scientist and attended the exclusive Cranbrook Academy on scholarship. When he was 14, the U.S. dropped an atomic bomb on Nagasaki. Ellsberg dates his stance as a nuclear pacifist from then. His high school graduating class voted him "most likely to make a contribution to human progress." On a Pepsi-Cola scholarship, Ellsberg studied economic theory at Harvard, graduating summa cum laude in 1952. After graduation, he studied at Kings College, Cambridge, on a Woodrow Wilson Fellowship and received his masters from Harvard in 1953. Although a likely doctoral candidate, he forfeited his student deferment and joined the Marines. The choice of service was based on his belief in "doing it right," Ellsberg said. A first lieutenant, he re-enlisted for an extra year in hopes of seeing action when his unit moved to the Middle East during the Suez conflict. Ellsberg returned to Harvard to write his thesis. He also began consulting at the Rand Corp., and offered defense strategy advice through intermediaries to Sen. John Kennedy, D-Mass. In 1959, he and his wife moved to Los Angeles to join Rand full-time. At that time, Ellsberg's world outlook was so grim that he refused to file for an annuity because he did not believe he would live to collect the sum. A "cold warrior" by self-description, Ellsberg was respected as an armaments and control specialist. In 1960, his advice to Kennedy paid off with a White House consulting appointment. During his tenure at Rand, Ellsberg had read portions of the general war plan. He said he was eager to read the master plan and asked the Joint Chiefs of Staff for the Joint Strategic Capabilities Plan, or JSCP, upon arriving in Washington. The JSCP contained three sets of orders for dealing with differing levels of conflict. At that time, he said, the first two options concerned cold war and limited war.

But the third option in the 1960 plan was the Single Integrated Operational Plan or SIOP and was to be activated in the event of any conflict involving more than one division of Soviet troops anywhere in the world, Ellsberg said. It was the only plan for general war the U.S. had going into 1961, he said, the year of the Berlin Crisis. "They had not calculated the ecological effects or the damages due to fallout. The bombs were already prepared. The pilots were on 10-minute alert. And there was no stop order," he said. "And the terrifying thing is that the president had not read the plan and could activate it without knowing what it meant. They had no other plan." Ellsberg, who still defines himself as a cold warrior despite his hawk-to-dove reputation, said he alerted Kennedy administration officials to the plan. McNamara read the plan, he said. On his 30th birthday April 7, 1961, Ellsberg said he completed work on a new general war guidance, providing other options. He spent the next 10 years on the "inside" campaigning against the nuclear option. Weeks after Ellsberg's 47th birthday, he was camped on the tracks leading to the plant that manufactures the nation's nuclear weapons. Sitting outside his tent, pitched on the rolling expanse of rock and cactus that surrounds Rocky Flats, Ellsberg remembers his days on the "inside." He recalls that "some of my best friends were generals" and that he and a few friends recognized every character in the film "Dr. Strangelove." And he says that none of his associates at Rand or in the military has spoken to him since the Pentagon papers were released. Most of the people occupying the tracks with Ellsberg were between 20 and 30. Their reasons ranged from environmental to religious. He was a folk hero, mentor and friend to the group. The former Marine bucked up his new platoon with tales of the world's near-misses with nuclear war.

Ellsberg traces how each president from Truman to Nixon considered the use of nuclear weapons — Truman and Eisenhower in Korea; Kennedy, Johnson and Nixon in Vietnam. He believes Kennedy shared his own opposition to the nuclear option. As his release of the Pentagon Papers was partially a tactic to goad the nation into withdrawing from Vietnam, Ellsberg said his decision to reveal the contents of the top-secret SIOP is a push for nuclear disarmament. Since the charges in the Pentagon Papers case were dropped in 1973 due to government misconduct, Ellsberg has been lecturing against nuclear weapons production. A student of Gandhi and Martin Luther King Jr. since 1968, Ellsberg said Carter is the first president since Kennedy to have a discernable, although unannounced, opposition to nuclear weapons including the neutron bomb. "I believe in the immense power of non-violent civil disobedience. And by being here, we gave Carter the power to say no to the neutron bomb and to all nuclear weapons. That is the lesson of Vietnam — that popular action can end a war that an administration wants to continue."

based on lengthy contamination and massive death tolls, do not apply. So Ellsberg joined the month-long vigil on the tracks, enduring multiple arrests, holding seminars on non-violent action at the tent city and welcoming visitors to the rangeland demonstration. Despite the deprivations, which included missing his wife and 11-month-old son and having to perform his daily shaving ritual with snow several times, Ellsberg looked content in his jeans and rain-molded hat. "There is no more important work for my life now than preventing the use of nuclear bombs. The destructive power is too horrible. This task is worth my life. It is my life. I waited 20 years for this occupation," he said.

Borg Destroys Connors At Wimbledon

By ROBERT JONES
Associated Press Writer

Bjorn Borg returns a shot against as he wins Wimbledon for third straight time.

Last Three-Time Winner Calls Borg 'One Of All-Time Greats'

By GEOFFREY MILLER
AP Sports Writer

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Bjorn Borg destroyed Jimmy Connors 6-2, 6-2, 6-3 in a one-sided Wimbledon final Saturday and won the world's most coveted tennis title for the third year in a row — the first man to achieve the feat since Fred Perry did it in 1936.

The amazing 22-year-old Swedish star collared Connors' service, which was below par, and hit a stream of winners with his double-grip backhand. He finished the American off in 1 hour 47 minutes.

It was a different story from last year's final, when the two men battled for more than three hours and Borg won in five closely contested sets.

Perry, now 69 and a British radio commentator, went straight on to the center court at the end of the match and shook Borg's hand.

The graying Englishman said later: "Borg is one of the all-time greats. Think of him in the same breath as Bill Tilden, Don Budge, Pancho Gonzales, Jack Kramer and Rod Laver."

Borg joins Martina Navratilova among this year's champions. In her first final, she beat two-time champion Chris Evert 2-6, 6-4, 7-5 Friday. She said her victory was for Czechoslovakia, the land she left to seek asylum in the United States nearly three years ago.

Among the crowd of 14,000 Saturday were some fans who had slept four cold, wet nights on the sidewalks outside the All-England club, queuing for standing places at the match.

Some observers had predicted the men's final would be one of the matches of the century, but it wasn't. Connors could not get his first service working, while Borg hit the ball with increasing power and confidence as the duel went on.

"It was one of the best matches I have ever played," Borg said.

Serving statistics told the basic story of the match. Borg served five aces and 19 outright winners. Connors hit no aces and only six service winners.

On the soft grass court, where the ball was apt to bounce low and die, Borg also made prolific use of a sliced backhand which caused Connors all kinds of trouble.

"That is a shot I normally don't use much in matches," Borg said. "But I aimed one or two at Connors' forehand, and the ball kept low and he was in difficulty. So I kept on making the same stroke."

Connors won the first two games and then Borg stacked up six in a row. In the second set Borg broke service for a 2-1 lead, but Connors, lobbing and volleying well, led 4-0 against service in the next game.

"That was probably the most important game of the whole match," Borg said. "I knew that if he won that game it might put him back in contention, so I was determined not to let him win it."

Borg's backhand brought him out of the temporary trouble, and he won the game and raced on towards his target. Whenever Connors threatened to take control, Borg produced rocket-like cross-court backhands and stopped him.

From 2-2, Borg won four straight games to close out the match.

The Swede said his next goal is the U.S. Open title at Flushing Meadow, N.Y., in late August. And he hopes to become the third man in history to do the Grand Slam. He has already won the French title, and now needs the U.S. and Australian crowns.

"I'm now going for the Grand Slam," Borg said. "I have to do that."

When Don Budge and Rod Laver won Grand Slams the Australian championships constituted the first leg. Now the Australian Open has been moved to late December, so Borg could technically claim the Grand Slam by winning all four titles in 1978.

Connors admitted it was one of his bad days. "Physically I was OK, but I never got into the match mentally," he said.

Bob Hewitt and Frew McMillan, South Africa's veteran doubles pair, defeated American youngsters Peter Fleming and John McEnroe 6-1, 6-4, 6-2 to win the men's doubles title together for the third time.

In the mixed doubles final, Bille Jean King missed her third and last chance this year to win a record 20th Wimbledon title when she and Ray Ruffels lost to McMillan and Betty Stove of the Netherlands, 6-2, 6-2.

Hewitt, 38, and McMillan, 36, previously won in 1967 and 1972. Their combined ages gave them a 32-year advantage over the Americans. McEnroe was only 2 years old when Hewitt won his first Wimbledon doubles title.

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Bjorn Borg, the poker-faced Swede, became the first man since Fred Perry to win three Wimbledon singles titles in a row, crushing Jimmy Connors of the United States 6-2, 6-2, 6-3 in a low-key match that lasted less than two hours on a cold and gloomy afternoon.

And Perry, the last Englishman to win here (1934-35-36), was quickly on court afterwards to congratulate the 22-year-old Borg.

The blond master joins Martina Navratilova among this year's champions. In her first appearance in the final here, she beat two-time champion Chris Evert 2-6, 6-4, 7-5 Friday for the title.

The 21-year-old Czech defector is the first winner from an East European country since World War II. She sought asylum in the United States nearly three years ago but said Friday that her triumph was for Czechoslovakia, where her family still lives.

It was the second year in a row Connors and Borg had met in the final, but today's match was only a smudged copy of 1977's thrilling five-setter. And Borg won it mainly on the strength of his service, which put Connors on the defensive. The American rarely had a chance to use the returns and volleys that have electrified center-court crowds for the past five years.

As a measure of Borg's improved serve, throughout the match he produced five aces and 19 outright winners. In contrast, Connors never served an ace and double-faulted four times.

The match was the easiest final in terms of score here since Connors trounced Ken Rosewall four years ago 6-1, 6-1, 6-4, but almost every point was played in long rallies.

But in the early stages each rally ended more often than not with a whimper — an unforced error rather than an outright winner.

"It was probably one of the best matches I've ever played," Borg said afterwards, adding he was surprised at the ease with which he beat Connors.

"I was not scared of his game when I was serving so well. I felt I could break him in nearly every game."

Borg's next target is the U.S. Open, a title he has never won. If he wins that he needs only to win the Australian Open for a Grand Slam.

"I have to do that," he said. The Swede won the Italian and French Open titles earlier this year. The French is a Grand Slam event.

Only once in the match did Connors manage to break Borg's serve — in the second game of the opening set when he went 2-0. That was the only time Connors got any more than a glimpse of the title he won in 1974.

Borg immediately got a game back, levelled at 2-2, and from then on was always streaking ahead.

In that set, Borg broke Connors reeled off six games in row. The reason was plain: the Swede, aggressive and hungry for points, put Connors on the defensive. The American's customary touch and precise volleys and passing returns had sadly deserted him.

It was a string of three unforced errors by Connors in the third game of the second set — a game in which Borg broke for the fourth time — that really did Connors in.

Although he made a valiant effort to recoup — getting within a point of a break in the next game — he folded as Borg stormed to the net and cut off Connors' desperate attempts to pass.

The pattern now was for Borg to get to the net as soon as he safely could. Once there, he forced Connors to overhit, or else punched the American's passing shots to an empty court.

That brought Borg his second set at 6-2. Relaxing the pressure some, he allowed Connors to stay in the match at 3-3. But even so it was only with difficulty that Connors kept his serve, while in Borg's first three service games he dropped only two points.

From 3-3 on, Borg was firmly in the driver's seat. With the

Shave And Party Next For Champ

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Bjorn Borg was to shave off his stubby beard and buy Fred Perry dinner to celebrate his victory over Jimmy Connors Saturday for the Wimbledon men's tennis championship — his third in a row.

"We made the agreement after Bjorn won at Paris," said Perry, the last man to win three successive Wimbledon titles.

"I told him if he matched my record at Wimbledon he'd have to shave off his beard and we'd have dinner together."

"He agreed. I stipulated it would have to be a private affair with no Lennart Bergelin (Borg's coach) or Mariana Simionescu (his fiancée).

"Bjorn has to run off to play Davis Cup matches and I have to travel myself. So maybe it'll be at next year's Wimbledon."

Perry, an Englishman, called Borg "one hell of a tennis player" and said he should be bracketed with such greats as Bill Tilden, Don Budge, Pancho Gonzales, Jack Kramer and Rod Laver.

help of a double fault from Connors, he went to 4-3.

Then on Borg's service, Connors had his chance for a break. Connors got to 40-30 on a superb return of a good Borg serve, a passing forehand from a deep Borg drive and a smash as Borg tried a weak lob to midcourt.

But Borg killed any hopes of a Connors recovery by cutting him off at the net, then pulling out two more service winners that Connors could only net.

That put Borg 5-3 up, with Connors serving desperately to save the match. A backhand flashed by Borg as he ran in raised hopes that Connors might still make a fight of it. But Connors couldn't. Borg appeared at the net again to punch away a backhand, then Connors was forced to volley out. It was over in an hour and 47 minutes.

"Physically I was in the match. I was eager to play," Connors said later. "But mentally I never got into it. He had the momentum going for him."

The American said he felt the crucial game of the match was the fourth of the second set when, trailing 1-2, he got the Swede down 0-40 on service.

"I couldn't break him," Connors said.

Borg served an ace and near ace, climaxed a long rally with an overhead smash and won the last 2 points with powerful services which Connors couldn't return.

Borg also said this was the key to his victory.

Connors insisted that he never quit fighting. "I'm never out of a match until I shake hands," he said. "I wasn't serving well enough to put pressure on him. The few times I could serve and volley I won points."

In the men's doubles final, the veteran pair of Frew McMillan and Bob Hewitt downed American youngsters John McEnroe and Peter Fleming 6-1, 6-4, 6-2.

Borg holds high his third trophy.

Austin Takes Junior Title

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Tracy Austin, the young phenom of American tennis, made up for her fourth-round loss to Martina Navratilova in the Wimbledon women's singles by winning the junior title Saturday.

While most of the Wimbledon spectators were concentrating on Bjorn Borg's final triumph over Jimmy Connors, the 15-year-old Austin beat Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia 6-0, 3-6, 6-4.

The other American teen-age star, Pam Shriver, was beaten in the semifinals of the Wimbledon Plate — the competition for first and second-round losers in the regular draw.

Shriver, 16, went down 6-1, 6-2 to Mona Guerrant.

United States Tops USSR In Overall Meet

By PETE JACOBS
BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — The United States, sparked by sprinters Evelyn Ashford and Steve Williams, won for only the third time overall at the 16th United States-Soviet Union Track and Field Meet Saturday 190-177.

The U.S. men's team outscored their Russian counterparts 119-102, while the Soviet women edged the Americans 75-71.

It was the first overall American victory since 1969. Their other triumph was in 1964. The U.S. men have won 13 times, but the U.S. women have beaten the Soviets only once.

The U.S. men's team won seven events to five for the Soviet men Saturday while the women's team split 3-3 with the Russians.

The meet, which drew 17,500 Friday and 20,500 Saturday at the University of California's Edwards Stadium, saw five meet records broken and one tied, but no world marks.

In the final event, Essie Kelly of Spur, Texas, lost an early lead but regained it and beat Maria Kulchinova of the anchor leg in winning the 1,600-meter relay for the United States in 3:28.2, four-tenths of a second under the previous meet mark set by the Soviets in 1977.

The diminutive Ashford set a meet record and Williams, an alternate, won the 200-meter dashes, enabling the Americans to increase their lead from the 90-88 advantage they held after Friday's events.

Ballock Fights Rain, Field

By ALAN ROBINSON
Associated Press Writer

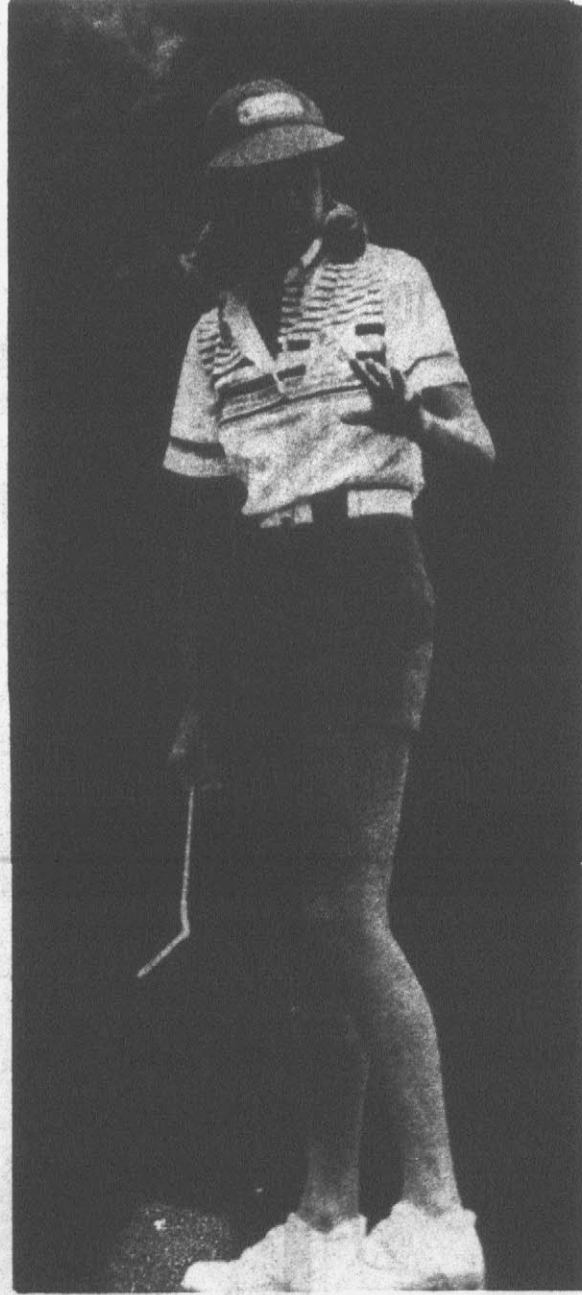

WHEELING, W.Va. (AP) — Cool, poised Jane Ballock, seeking her second consecutive victory on the women's pro golf tour, withstood three rain delays and fired a sizzling five-under par 67, opening a seven-shot lead after the second round of the $75,000 Wheeling LPGA Classic Saturday.

Dropping in seven birdie putts through the raindrops as the rest of the 93-player field fizzled, Ballock finished two rounds with a 135 total.

Sandra Post, the only other golfer under par after 36 holes, birdied the last two holes for a second straight 71 and a 142 total.

Nine shots off the pace at 144 were Penny Pulz, Joyce Kazmierski, Jerilyn Britz, Kathy Martin and JoAnne Carner. Martin and Carner shot 76s after being tied with Ballock for the first round lead with 68s.

Just before the third rain delay of the day, which halted play for one hour, 45 minutes, Ballock and Carner were tied at six-under par on the par-72 6,250-yard Speidel Golf Course. But Carner, who has won $43,000 in the last six weeks since a visit to Sam Snead straightened out her game, quickly shot herself out of the lead by losing six strokes to par in five holes with two double bogeys and two bogeys.

Bob Lunn's Birdies Tie Him With Elder

By MIKE O'BRIEN
AP Sports Writer

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Bob Lunn, winless on the tour for more than six years, birdied five holes on the back nine and finished with a five-under-par 67 Saturday, tying Lee Elder for the third-round lead in the $150,000 Greater Milwaukee Open Golf Tournament.

Elder, the sole leader after each of the first two rounds, shot a second successive 70 to go 10-under, along with Lunn, at 206 after 54 holes on the 7,010-yard Tuckaway Country Club course.

Lee Trevino, enjoying one of the best seasons in his 21-victory career, was a stroke behind after a 68 Saturday. Tied with Trevino after the third round were Artie McNickle and John Mahaffey, who shot 67 and 69, respectively.

Rookie Dave Barr eagled two of the four par 5 holes, but bogeyed the last two holes for a 70. Barr was two strokes back at 208, along with Marty Fleckman, Tim Simpson, Homero Blancas and former U.S. Open winner Lou Graham.

First prize in this tournament — skipped by most of the top pros because of the British Open starting Wednesday — is $30,000.

Lunn, 33, won his sixth and last tournament at Atlanta in 1972. He earned just over $6,000 last year, but a 15th-place tie in the Canadian Open two weeks ago showed that his decline that coincided with a voluntary three-month weight loss of 70 pounds in 1970, might be over. "I got all the way down to 170, and it scared me," Lunn said. "When you lose that much that fast it affects your nervous system, and it's been a long time. I don't know if I've had a better round this year — or in many years."

Lunn played his front nine Saturday in 1-under 35, then birdied five of his next seven holes. His torrid finish was somewhat cooled when he two putted from eight feet for a bogey on the par-3

No. 17.

"I don't think I was choking," Lunn said. "But it's been a long time since I've been in this position. I was nervous, but maybe that's better than being blah without any adrenalin. I hit a lousy chip at 16, leaving it 20 feet away. But then when the putt hit the back of the hole, bounced out and bounced back in, that really picked me up."

Elder, who has won two events in 11 years on the tour, hit his second shot into a sand trap on his final hole, but made a superb recovery and saved par — along with his share of the lead — by sinking a six foot putt.

"I hope I can get out of the box quick tomorrow," Elder said. "I've been playing the later holes well, so who knows? I charged on too many putts."

Trevino, fourth leading money winner on this year's tour, hit 17 greens in his four birdie, no bogey round.

"If I can break it down to 67 or 68 tomorrow, I think I'll have a chance," Trevino said. "I think it will take that long because the greens are relatively slow after all the moisture here. If you give a guy slow greens like these, he can drive into rough and still come back and hold the green."

Horner Powers Braves To Win

By TOM SALADINO
AP Sports Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Bob Horner, Atlanta's No. 1 draft choice, drilled a two-run homer and two doubles Saturday in powering the Braves to a 6-4 victory over the San Diego Padres Saturday in the opener of a two-night doubleheader.

Horner hit his fourth home run of the season off reliever John D'Acquisto, 1-2, in the three-run fifth that put the Braves ahead 5-4.

Gary Matthews doubled in Jerry Royster, who had tripled, one out before Horner drove his shot over the left field fence.

San Diego took a 4-2 lead in the top of the inning, scoring three runs on Royster's error and RBI singles by Dave Winfield and Oscar Gamble. Craig Skok, 2-1, replaced Rick Camp to end the rally.

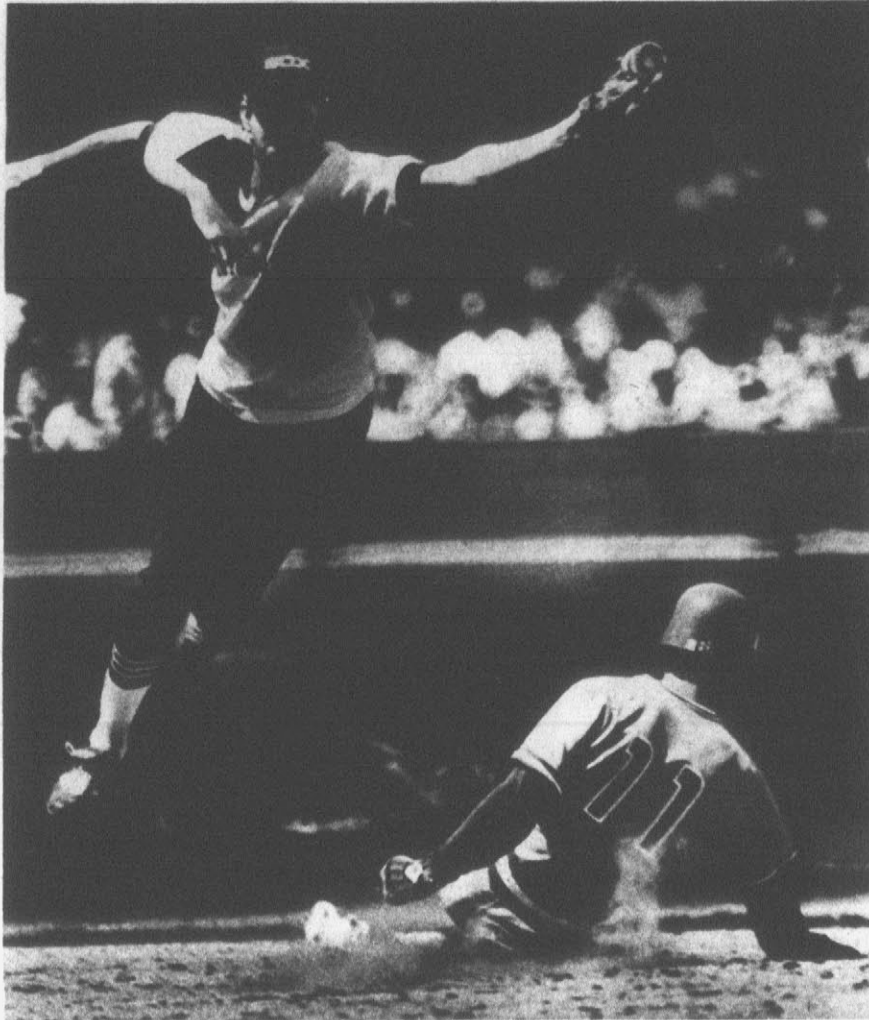

The Padres' other run scored on Ozzie Smith's RBI single in the third inning. Atlanta's other runs came on Dale Murphy's second-inning double, Matthews' third-inning sacrifice fly and another sacrifice fly by Royster in the sixth.

Fisk Leads Way As Bosox Win

CLEVELAND (AP) — Carlton Fisk hit a three-run homer and a two-run double Saturday, sparking the Boston Red Sox to a 12-5 victory over the Cleveland Indians in the opener of a two-night doubleheader.

Dennis Eckersley, 10-2, traded to the Red Sox by Cleveland before the season, pitched his fifth complete game of the campaign. He allowed nine hits and struck out eight while walking two.

Mike Paxton, 6-5, sent to Cleveland in the Eckersley deal, fell behind 4-0 in the first inning on an RBI triple by Jack Brohamer and Fisk's 11th homer of the season.

Carl Yastrzemski's solo homer made it 5-0 in the third and the lead became 7-0 on RBI singles by Frank Duffy and Yastrzemski in the fourth and fifth innings, respectively.

John Returns To Star Game

By JACK STEVENSON
AP Sports Writer

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Tommy John, the man with the rebuilt pitching arm, makes his return to the All-Star game Tuesday on the National League side, a spot he thought he'd earned in 1974 before misfortune struck.

John pitched for the American League in 1968 when the Nationals won 1-0 and in 1972 was traded by the Chicago White Sox to the Los Angeles Dodgers.

So he now pitches for the NL which has won 19 of the last 23 All-Star games and 14 of the last 15.

In 1974, Tommy was 13-3 by midseason with the Dodgers but was bypassed by Yogi Berra, the manager of the NL All-Star team. On the following July 17, John ruptured a ligament in his pitching elbow and needed unusual surgery for the repair. Tendons from his right arm were surgically transferred to the left elbow.

He missed the rest of 1974 and all of 1975.

In 1976 John was 10-10 and last year posted 20-7, but even so wasn't selected for the National League All-Stars. This time Tommy Lasorda, skipper of the NL champion Dodgers of 1977, selected the 35-year-old left-hander although he was only 9-6 this campaign.

"Tommy's been pitching in tough luck," commented Lasorda whose Dodger club won the pennant in his rookie managerial season with the big help from the southpaw. He's been much better than his record indicates.

An appreciative pitcher commented, "It's very meaningful. Very few players have made it in both leagues."

Some who did it were Frank Robinson, Andy Messersmith, Ron Fairly and Jim Bunning. Vida Blue is another former AL All-Star who hurls for the rival league this season.

The National League leads the All-Star series 29-18 and has won the past six games including a 7-5 triumph last season. The New York Yankees' Billy Martin, who piloted that AL squad, will again be at the helm for this game with its 6 p.m. PDT starting time in San Diego Stadium which seats 48,460.

Fans select the players to start the game except for the pitching staff which is selected by the managers — the two whose clubs reached the past World Series.

Ron Guidry, the little left-hander who set a Yankee club record by winning 11 games without defeat starting this year, probably will start for the AL with a pitching staff including his teammate Rich Gossage, Jim Palmer and Mike Flanagan of Baltimore. Frank Tanana of the California Angels, Oakland's Matt Keough and Cleveland's Jim Kern.

The National League staff has John, Tom Seaver of Cincinnati, Blue of San Francisco who formerly starred with the Oakland A's, Steve Rogers and Ross Grimsley of Montreal, Bruce Sutter of the Chicago Cubs, Rollie Fingers of San Diego, Pat Zachry of the New York Mets and Phil Niekro of Atlanta.

The batting orders of both clubs have power, but the fans apparently overlooked some hurting stars of 1978 in choosing the starting lineups.

Cincinnati's catcher Johnny Bench and second baseman Joe Morgan have both been out with the injuries, but led their positions in the balloting. Their back-up players could be seeing a lot of service.

Minnesota's first baseman Rod Carew, also hurt part of this 1978 season, led the balloting for the AL with 4,010,136 votes.

Carew has been named to the All-Star squad all 12 years he's been in the majors, nine times as a second baseman and three times at first.

His AL teammates will be catcher Carlton Fisk of Boston, second baseman Don Money of Milwaukee, shortstop Fred Paek of Kansas City, third baseman George Brett of Kansas City and outfielders Jim Rice of Boston, Reggie Jackson of the Yankees and Richie Zisk of Texas.

Rice, Fisk, Brett, Zisk and Jackson all are previous All-Star starters.

The National League will have Bench behind the plate with Steve Garvey of the Los Angeles Dodgers at first, Morgan at second, Larry Bowa of Philadelphia at shortstop and Pete Rose of Cincinnati at third.

The outfielders will be George Foster of Cincinnati, Rick Monday of the Dodgers and Greg Luzinski of Philadelphia.

The Philadelphians, Bowa and Luzinski, topped the voting with 3,396,054 and 3,503,738 votes, respectively.

Luzinski, Garvey, Bench, Morgan and Foster all started last year. Rose is starting for the seventh time at either third base, second base or the outfield.

Bench is making his 11th All-Star appearance, his 10th straight as a starter. He and Carew are the only players to be elected in each of the years since the fans took over the voting in 1970.

Greenville Captures Babe Ruth District

Pitt County 11, Greenville 5

Pitt County romped to an 11-5 victory over Greenville in the 13-year-old Prep League district tournament at Ayden-Grifton Saturday, forcing a sudden death game today at 2 p.m.

The loss gave both Pitt County and Greenville one defeat each in the double-elimination tournament. The winner will advance into Area G at Windsor for the tournament there starting Wednesday.

Greenville scored its first run in the bottom of the first. Roderick Harrell singled and stole both second and third. He scored on Mont Carter's sacrifice fly.

Pitt County came back with a run in the second. Chris Buck doubled and took third on an error. He scored on Jeff Cutler's grounder.

Pitt took a brief lead with a run in the top of the third, but Greenville came back with three in the bottom of the inning for a 4-2 lead. Pitt went back out with three in the top of the fifth, but again, Greenville scored, tying it at 5-5 in the bottom of the frame.

French Winners

LITTLEFIELD — The Babe Ruth League District 27 held its French's Pennant Award competition yesterday. The activities involve base-running for time, throwing to second base for accuracy and hitting for distance.

Winners included: 15-year-old, Brady Quinn of Grifton, second, Van Parker of Washington; 14-year-old, Mike Askew of Washington, second, Kevin Battle of Grifton; 13-year-old, Joey Joyner of Winterville. There was no second place.

Babe Ruth

Greenville 8, Washington 3

Greenville's Babe Ruth League All-Stars captured the District 27 title with an 8-3 victory over Washington yesterday afternoon.

Greenville went through the double-elimination field at Ayden-Grifton without a loss and will now advance to the Area G tournament, to be held at Windsor. Greenville will receive a bye in the first round, playing its first game Thursday at 8:30 p.m.

Greenville pushed over three runs in the bottom of the second inning. Mike

Clancy Stops Chicago With Three-Hitter, 3-0

By JOE MOOSHL
AP Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Jim Clancy, making his first start in his hometown, stopped the Chicago White Sox on three hits with relief help from Mike Willis Saturday, and Rick Cerone homered to lead the Toronto Blue Jays to a 3-0 victory.

Rick Bosetti doubled and scored in the first inning and Cerone added an insurance run with his first homer of the season in the eighth inning to give Clancy, a 22-year-old right-hander, all the support he needed. Clancy, 6-7, gave up a one-out single to Henry Cruz in the third inning, a leadoff single to Jorge Orta in the seventh and a single to Bob Molinaro with two outs in the eighth, when he was relieved by Willis.

Roy Howell was credited with two runs batted in although he did not get a hit. Bosetti doubled in the first, went to third on Bob Bailor's fly to right and scored as Howell grounded out. The Blue Jays filled the bases in the third on singles by Cerone and Bailor and a walk and Cerone scored as Howell bounced into a force play.

Ken Kravec, 7-6, took the loss although he allowed only five hits while striking out nine.

The Blue Jays had excellent scoring opportunities in the fifth and sixth innings but failed both times.

Luis Gomez opened the fifth by drawing a walk. Bosetti sacrificed and reached on a fielder's choice and Bailor sacrificed both runners along. Howell struck out and Rico Carty was given an intentional walk to fill the bases but Kravec got Otto Velez on a called third strike.

Doug Ault opened the sixth by drawing a walk and went to third on Cerone's one-out single. Gomez fouled out and Bosetti tried to squeeze a run home with a bunt but was thrown out by third baseman Eric Soderholm.

Clancy, who had left 36 passes for friends and relatives, departed after giving up a walk to Don Kessinger with one out in the eighth and a single to Molinaro.

Willis took over for Clancy and got pinch-batter Wayne Nordhagen to fly to left fielder Velez, whose throw home nailed pinch-runner Alan Bannister for an inning-ending double play. Willis set down the Sox in order in the ninth to earn his fourth save.

Randle Sparks Mets Win, 7-0

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Len Randle capped the Mets' three-run third inning with a two-run double and left-hander Kevin Kobel picked up his first major league victory in nearly four years as New York blanked the Chicago Cubs 7-0 Saturday.

Kobel, 1-1, went 61-3 innings, allowing only four hits before he got into trouble in the seventh, giving up a one-out single and walk before Dale Murray relieved.

John Stearns led off the third with a double and scored on Elliott Maddox' single. Doug Flynn singled and center fielder Bobby Murcer overran the ball, allowing Maddox to go to third and Flynn to second. Randle followed with his double to the wall in right-center.

The Mets scored in the first on Lee Mazzilli's solo homer, his 10th of the season and fourth in the past six days.

They added three more in the fifth as Cubs starter Ray Burris, 5-6, walked Randle, yielded a single to Tim Foli and walked Mazzilli before Dave Geisel relieved. After striking out Willie Montanez, Geisel gave up Stearns' RBI single, and Steve Henderson's grounder to first scored another run. Flynn then singled off reliever Donnie Moore, scoring Mazzilli.

Four Get PGA Fines

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Four entrants in the current Greater Milwaukee Open have been fined $200 each for slow play under the Professional Golfers Association's new pace-of-play rule, it was announced Saturday.

Don Pooley, Buddy Gardner, Mark Pfeil and Morris Hatalsky took too much time between shots and forced groups behind them to wait during the second round on Friday, the PGA said.

Seven players have been fined by the PGA since the rule took effect at the Houston Open earlier this year. Jack Renner and John Schroeder were fined at Houston and David Graham was fined at the Memorial Tournament.

Blue Guns Down Reds In Split

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Vida Blue might well have been pitching for Sparky Anderson's Cincinnati Reds this season if Commissioner Bowie Kuhn hadn't stepped in.

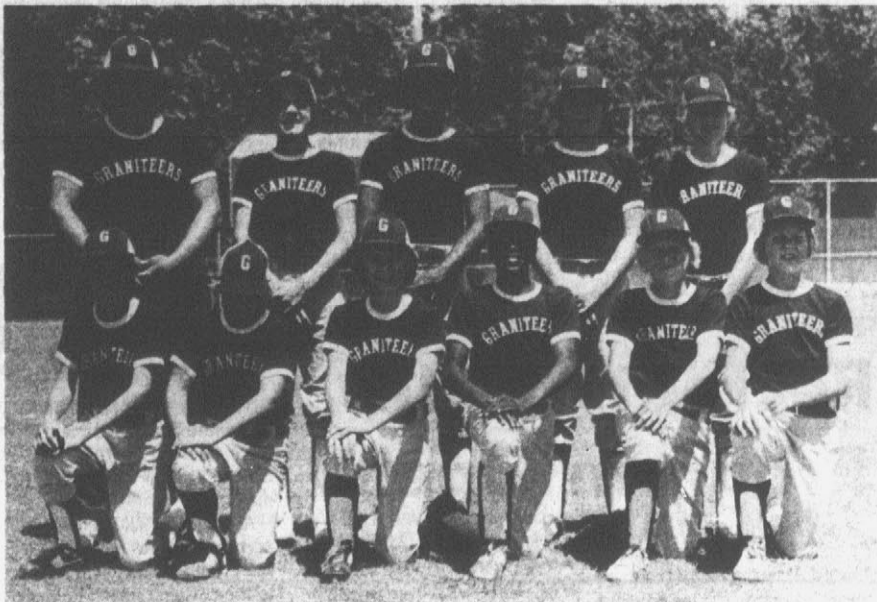

Instead, Blue pitched against them Friday night in the first game of a two-night double-header and came away with his 12th victory, making him the National League's winningest pitcher this season.

But the Giants, after winning 7-6 on homers by Willie McCovey and Darrell Evans and Mike Ivie's decisive ninth-inning RBI double, couldn't complete the sweep. Mike Lum's two-run homer in the fifth inning of the nightcap sank them 2-1.

The split kept the Giants three games ahead of the third-place Reds in the NL West—but coupled with Los Angeles' 7-4 victory in Houston, it trimmed San Francisco's lead over the second-place Dodgers to 2½ games.

In the rest of the National League, Montreal edged Philadelphia 7-6, Chicago outlasted New York 9-7, Pittsburgh shaded St. Louis 2-1 and Atlanta shelled San Diego 11-3.

Dodgers 7, Astros 4
Dusty Baker personally ripped apart Houston's pitching with a double in the second inning, a run-scoring single in the fifth, a two-run homer that broke a seventh-inning tie and

Guidry Finally Loses As Brewers Win, 6-0

By HERSHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Thirteen proved to be an unlucky number for Ron Guidry Friday night.

But it wasn't superstition that did in the New York Yankees' brilliant left-hander after a sizzling 13-0 start this season.

Rather it was the booming bat of Milwaukee's Larry Hise — two homers, four RBIs — and the four-hit pitching of Mike Caldwell as the Brewers whipped the Yankees 6-0.

"I threw a good ball game," Caldwell said, "and all the ground ball kept going to the infielders. I kept the ball down. I was keeping in front of the hitters and they played great defense behind me. Guidry is really a great pitcher. He's 13-1 and going to the All-Star Game. I'm sitting home watching, but at least I know I beat him."

In other American League action, the Cleveland Indians outlasted the Boston Red Sox 10-9, the California Angels trimmed the Seattle Mariners 9-5 for Frank Tanana's 12th victory, the Kansas City Royals shaded the Baltimore Orioles 3-1, the Detroit Tigers clubbed the Texas Rangers 12-7, the Minnesota Twins swept the Oakland A's 3-2 and 1-0 and the Toronto Blue Jays edged the Chicago White Sox 3-2.

Indians 10, Red Sox 9
Tom Verzyer's fourth hit of the game, a one-out single off Bill Campbell in the bottom of the ninth inning, scored Paul Dade from second base with the winning run. The hit nullified a four-run Boston rally with two out in the top of the ninth on Jim Rice's two-run double and Carl Yastrzemski's two-run homer.

Angels, 9, Mariners 5
Home runs by Brian Downing and Don Baylor helped Tanana win his first game since June 20, although he needed help from Dyer Miller and Dave LaRoche to gain his fifth career victory against the Mariners without a loss.

Royals 3, Orioles 1
Amos Otis greeted Baltimore reliever Joe Kerrigan with a two-run single in the fifth inning, while Paul Splittorff checked the Orioles on four hits. Kerrigan came on after Kansas City tied the score 1-1 against Scott McGregor on three walks and George Brett's single.

Twins 3-1, A's 2-0
Rookie Darrell Jackson pitched a three-hit shutout in the nightcap as the Twins ran their winning streak to six games. Earlier, pinch hitter Craig Kusick's single in the ninth inning broke a 1-1 tie and Bob Randall singled home what proved to be the winning run.

Blue Jays 3, White Sox 2
Rico Carty and John Mayberry hit consecutive home runs off Rich Hinton for the tying and lead runs in the sixth inning and Joe Coleman turned in four innings of hitless relief to earn the victory.

day night, while Pitt County was guilty of four errors.

Russell Holton limited Pitt County to only five hits while he struck out ten and walked three. He also hit two batters.

Williamston, after loading the bases in the first inning, pushed over its first two runs in the third.

Ken Gurganus led off the third with a single and Charlie Smith followed with a base hit. After one out, Jack Curlings reached on an error, scoring Gurganus. Trent Ange singled in Smith for a 2-0 lead.

Pitt County offered its first threat in the second, leaving a man at third, and then left a man on second in the third.

But it wasn't until the fifth that Pitt scored its first run. Will Sanderson opened the inning with a hit and Skip Topping followed with another. Jeff Aldridge was hit by a pitch, loading the bases, and Nuggie Worthington hit into a fielder's choice, but it scored Sanderson.

Greenville then tied it up in the top of the seventh, 2-2. Aldridge led off with a single, and Robert Morehead went in to run for him. After two outs, Ronnie Chapman singled, driving Morehead in.

But Williamston came right back to score the game-winning run. Anthony Latham led off the seventh with a ground-ruled double. He moved to third when Charlie Smith grounded out, and when the relay to that base was overthrown, he scooted home to put Williamston ahead for good.

Latham had two hits to lead Williamston, while Sanderson had a pair for Greenville.

The winner of the series will face the winner of the Snow Hill-Wilson series in the league finals next week.

NBA Owners Okay Switch

By HOWARD ULMAN
AP Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — It took the National Basketball Association's Board of Governors only two hours to approve three major developments that will give the league a new look next season.

Friday, the board gave overwhelming support to:

—The transfer of the Buffalo Braves to San Diego;

—An ownership exchange between the Braves and the Boston Celtics; —And a realignment that puts San Diego into the Pacific Division and shifts NBA champion Washington from the Central to the Atlantic to replace Buffalo and Detroit from the Midwest to the Central.

And, in a blockbuster trade that did not need the board's approval, the Braves sent Billy Knight, Marvin Barnes and Nate Archibald to the Celtics for Kermit Washington, Kevin Kunnert and Freeman Williams.

John Y. Brown, the Celtics' new co-owner with Harry Mangurian, said Sidney Wicks probably would go to the Braves within two to four weeks.

With all that, several items remained unresolved after the whirlwind of activity in which Irv Levin took command of the San Diego club.

Who will be that team's coach and general manager? What will be its nickname? How will a conflict in radio rights between San Diego and the Los Angeles Lakers be worked out? Will Wicks end up in San Diego? And what of Red Auerbach, Boston's general manager and one of the dwindling number of links with the Celtics' tradition built on 10 championships in 11 seasons from 1958-59 to 1968-69?

"I have the greatest respect for him," Brown said of Auerbach after the meeting at which the board approved the move to San Diego and the ownership switch by a 21-1 vote. NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien refused to name the opposing team.

Brown said he has made an attractive offer to Auerbach. Auerbach, who won nine championships in 16 seasons as coach and led the Celtics into the playoffs 13 times, said he has job offers from other NBA clubs and has received Brown's permission to talk with them. He said he expected to make a decision in two to four weeks.

Levin said he might have an announcement within a few days on a successor to Cotton Fitzsimmons, who left the Braves' coaching job after last season and became coach of the Kansas City Kings. Levin also said he might make a decision soon on a general manager.

He said the team would not be known as the Braves. A contest may be held in which the public would suggest nicknames, Levin said.

NBA bylaws protect a team's broadcasting rights within a 75-mile radius. The San Diego move creates a conflict with Los Angeles.

When the post was created, Holderman said that he wanted the athletic vice president to work with the school's eight regional campuses as well as the main campus in Columbia.

Carlen threatened to sue the school over the creation of the post because, he said, the vice president would assume some of his duties. But Holderman maintained he was merely delegating some of his presidential authority to the vice president, not taking any powers away from Carlen.

Putnam Named At S. Carolina

COLUMBIA (AP) — William F. Putnam will replace James B. Morris as the University of South Carolina's vice president for athletic affairs July 15.

Morris assumed the newly created post on an interim basis March 1 amid the objections of football coach and Athletic Director Jim Carlen.

Putnam, 49, is USC's representative to the National Collegiate Athletic Association and associate dean of the College of Business Administration.

In announcing Putnam's appointment, USC President James B. Holderman said Putnam has "administrative skill, knowledge of athletic affairs" and a "commitment to the task of building a strong USC system."

ILIE'S NEW TOY

NEW YORK (AP) — Ilie Nastase, frequently a tennis rebel, has managed to get around the International Tennis Federation edict against the so-called "spaghetti" rackets.

The resourceful Romanian came up with an oddly-strung racket which gave his shots exaggerated topspin. His "gimmick" was that the four horizontal center strings lay flat on the vertical strings instead of being intertwined.

"The racket is like a new toy to Ilie," another pro, Jaime Filloil laughed.

Only One Regret For Champ

Jim Kyle

By WINSOR DOBBIN
AP Sports Writer
WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Martina Navratilova had just one regret about her Wimbledon women's tennis triumph. "I just wish my family was here to share this moment with me," said the Czech-born Navratilova, who defected to the United States three years ago. Navratilova's family watched their daughter's greatest triumph on television Friday. Although her father was refused permission by the Czech government to come to England and watch the tournament, and while the Czech media has completely ignored her exploits, her family drove to a town close to the German border so they could watch their daughter on television. And she did them proud. Her father, an economics engineer who coached her before she fled the country, saw his daughter overcome a 2-4 deficit in the final set and beat Chris Evert 2-6, 6-4, 7-5.

Although she is now awaiting U.S. citizenship, Navratilova said her victory was a victory for Czechoslovakia. "I will always be Czech, no matter what," she confessed. "The whole time I was thinking of my family," she said, adding that she was trying to get her family out of Czechoslovakia so they could join her in Dallas, where she lives. She even discussed her hopes with the Duchess of Kent. The sensation of winning Wimbledon was not what Navratilova expected. "I've always wondered what it would be like," she said. "It is very different. "I feel like I have so many emotions. I don't know what I should do first, laugh, scream or cry." "I've striven for it ever since I knew there was a Wimbledon," said Navratilova. "It is the greatest moment of my life." The new champion said she felt the key to her victory was her attitude late in the match. "I was a notch better in the closing stages," she said, comparing the triumph with a victory over Evert two weeks ago in Eastbourne, England, where the pressure was not as great. "When the going got tough, I got tough." Navratilova, who just a year ago was regarded as a firebrand, Friday confirmed how much her new attitude had improved her game. "I'm never going to go back to what I was," she said. "I've changed a lot." But she admitted her victory was not easy. "It is very difficult to beat Chris twice in a row," she said. "I was thinking that I would much rather beat her here than at Eastbourne." Sitting contentedly sipping a drink, Navratilova was clearly thinking of home. "I hope the Czech people are proud of me," she said.

THE BOATING INDUSTRY ASSOCIATION has issued a "consumer alert" to warn outboard motor owners against mixing less oil with their gas than the motor manufacturer recommends.

Donald I. Reed, BIA director of engineering, said several marketers of outboard motor oil have been advertising and labeling their products as "BIA Certified, TC-W" and recommending a gas-to-oil mixing ratio of 100:1. Outboarders who follow these recommendations may be risking mechanical problems that could void their warranties, Reed warned.

"The fact is, that BIA certifies two-cycle engine oils to be used at manufacturer-recommended ratios; all American outboard manufacturers currently recommend 50:1," Reed said. "Mixing gas and oil at 100:1 could cause bearing failure and shorten engine life, especially if lead-free fuels are being used."

Outboard motor manufacturers require that their recommendations be followed in order to keep the motor's warranty valid, Reed added.

"We've warned every oil marketer we've discovered making such claims to alter them, but the cans of misleadingly-labeled oil already on the market are causing problems," according to Reed.

The BIA has no argument the quality of the oil, only its labeling, Reed said. "We have no quarrel with the oils themselves. We've had no reports of problems when they're used at the recommended 50:1 ratio," he concluded.

Anglers Win Citations

Two Greenville fishermen have been awarded citations in the North Carolina Saltwater Fishing Tournament by the N. C. Department of Commerce.

The two, John B. McDonald and Vann A. Gurkins, both won honors in the cobia division. McDonald landed a 50-lb., 8 oz. cobia at Blair Channel near Okraoke on May 26, while Gurkins caught a 51-lb. cobia near ## Cape Lookout on June 3.

Fishing Outing A Success

A total of 40 people and 10 boats participated in an outing of the Greenville Saltwater Fishing Club on June 17. The outing was viewed as a big success and the group landed a number of king mackerel and dolphin.

No Drug Without A Risk; Cortisone Is An Example

EDITOR'S NOTE — Few would question the benefits of so-called miracle drugs. But no drug is without risk. Cortisone is one. It first was thought of as a panacea, but later it was found that while effective, it can produce dangerous side effects.

By BRIAN SULLIVAN
AP Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It was 30 years ago that Dr. Philip Hench tried a new drug on patients badly crippled with rheumatoid arthritis in the Mayo Clinic. The substance was cortisone.

Today, tennis players with bursitis, arthritis and asthma patients are familiar with the artificial hormone that puts out painful fires in the body. Cortisone, one of the broader group of corticosteroids, is almost as well known as penicillin.

The steroids, potent medication, can attack a wide variety of diseases, but they can also produce potent, disagreeable side effects. The same corticosteroid that can relieve the agonies of rheumatoid arthritis and bronchial asthma like no other medicine can also produce high blood pressure, peptic ulcer and other troubles.

So the physician prescribing a cortisone-like steroid — they are a $225 million business today — must prescribe with great care.

"This is the excellent example of a drug you think is going to be a panacea," says

Dr. Carol Prouditt, senior scientist in the American Medical Association's department of drugs. "There is a tremendously wide range of usefulness and problems associated with them. Corticosteroids serve as an example of the things you learn about drugs only with use."

Cortisone had its clinical beginnings in 1948, when Hench was treating rheumatoid arthritis patients at the Mayo Clinic. The early results were dramatic.

In September of that year, as Donald Robinson recalls in "The Miracle Finders," an account of key developments in modern medicine, Hench injected cortisone into a 29-year-old woman who had been bedridden for four years with crippling rheumatoid arthritis.

Two days later, on Sept. 23, "for the first time in several weeks, she could roll over in bed easily. On Sept. 24, she was able to get out of bed and exercise. She could raise her arms over her head. By Oct. 1, her pain and stiffness were almost completely gone. She went shopping in downtown Rochester for three hours."

"Other patients who were in grisly shape with rheumatoid arthritis were given Compound E (cortisone). They all responded excellently."

But cortisone did not cure arthritis or any other disease. It just controlled the symptoms. And a range of side effects began to appear with prolonged use.

As research continued over the years, doctors found that cortisone, or more properly corticosteroids in general, had a dazzling range of effects on many diseases — and carried about as imposing a potential for undesirable, dangerous side effects. Most of the cortisone-like drugs now in use are synthetic agents that have replaced cortisone and have been tailored in the laboratory for more specific uses.

These synthetic analogs, as they are called, are effective because of their potent anti-inflammatory effects in many diseases. Inflammatory disease is a reaction of body tissue to some irritant. Unlike antibiotics, which kill disease-causing bacteria in the body, the steroids provide the body tissue with a resistance, a protective mantle, against the inflammation. But at the same time, they let bacteria or viruses — if they are causing the inflammation — multiply.

Another illness on which steroids can have a striking effect is bronchial asthma. Most treatment for the labored, agitated breathing is of the symptoms alone, not the cause. When all else fails, steroids come close to treating the source — they somehow "knock out the asthma," while conventional treatment often provides merely temporary relief.

Among the many problems associated with steroid use: They can cause cataracts, glaucoma, peptic ulcer and diabetes; produce high blood pressure; mask some signs of infection; increase salt and water retention; cause potassium loss which can lead to heart trouble; promote calcium loss; produce an odd, puffy "moon face" appearance; suppress a child's growth, cause menstrual irregularities and neurological disorders.

"Psychic derangements may appear when corticosteroids are used," says Physicians' Desk Reference, a guidebook on prescription drugs. "These may range from euphoria, insomnia, mood swings, personality changes and severe depression to frank psychotic manifestations."

Also, there is no real knowledge of possible effects on pregnancy, experts say, so the use of steroids on pregnant women has to be weighed against possible harm to the fetus.

Another danger with steroid treatment, according to Ms. Prouditt, is that the introduction of artificial steroids can interrupt a feedback system that the body's normal hormone system depends on, thus suppressing the pituitary gland. The patient's own adrenal gland production can be affected, and perhaps lead to adrenal insufficiency.

For the future, the AMA's Ms. Prouditt says, there's need to educate both physicians and the public about drugs like steroids. "There's no question that corticosteroids were overused in the early years — and probably still are, like antibiotics," she says.

And the public, she adds, should become "more sophisticated about medicines. It's more than just popping a pill. Risks also are involved. There's no drug you can take without risk. Sometimes the more dramatic the therapeutic effect, the greater the risk."

And the public, she adds, should become "more sophisticated about medicines. It's more than just popping a pill. Risks also are involved. There's no drug you can take without risk. Sometimes the more dramatic the therapeutic effect, the greater the risk."

Also, there is no real knowledge of possible effects on pregnancy, experts say, so the use of steroids on pregnant women has to be weighed against possible harm to the fetus.

Another danger with steroid treatment, according to Ms. Prouditt, is that the introduction of artificial steroids can interrupt a feedback system that the body's normal hormone system depends on, thus suppressing the pituitary gland. The patient's own adrenal gland production can be affected, and perhaps lead to adrenal insufficiency.

For the future, the AMA's Ms. Prouditt says, there's need to educate both physicians and the public about drugs like steroids. "There's no question that corticosteroids were overused in the early years — and probably still are, like antibiotics," she says.

Army Luring More Blacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Black representation in the Army, already at a record level, will continue to climb, key indicators suggest.

The Air Force, Marine Corps and Navy also report record or near-record black percentages, but they are well below the Army's level.

In the year's first three months, 31 percent of young Army enlistees were black. And reenlistments by blacks completing their first tour of duty, the Army said, are about 1.7 times the rate among whites.

A scarcity of civilian jobs was believed to be a significant factor in the high black enlistments.

Army personnel specialists say recruiters' successes in attracting black high school graduates have contributed to elevating the overall quality of the Army's enlisted ranks.

While some senior officers acknowledge there is a lingering concern that a rise in black enlistments might lead at some point to a "white flight" from the Army, manpower experts say there are no signs such a problem could be developing.

As of April 30, 27.7 percent of all Army enlisted men and women were black. The Marines reported 17.7 percent; the Air Force, 14.8 percent; and the Navy, 8.9 percent.

Defense specialists say blacks represent about 12 percent of the country's military age population.

Pikes, the most ravenous of fresh-water fishes, mostly depend on small fish, insects and aquatic invertebrates for their meals. Larger members of this family have been known to prey upon muskrat and waterfowl.

PLAN YOUR HOME

By Jerry Bishop

Four well-executed one bedroom apartments are made even more desirable with their front-facing balconies in the Griffin, a two story design. Besides the appealing facade, however, the plan offers tenants such desirable extras as a kitchen-based laundry niche, an open living and dining room arrangement, and adequate closet space.

The shake-shingled roof, with overhangs to shield the units from wind and weather, joins with the balconies and large stretches of glass to create a pleasing exterior. Notable also is the rear view, which incorporates a courtyard into the plan.

Inside, the four units are quite similar except that upper level units enjoy balconies off the bedroom and living room and the dimensions are slightly larger.

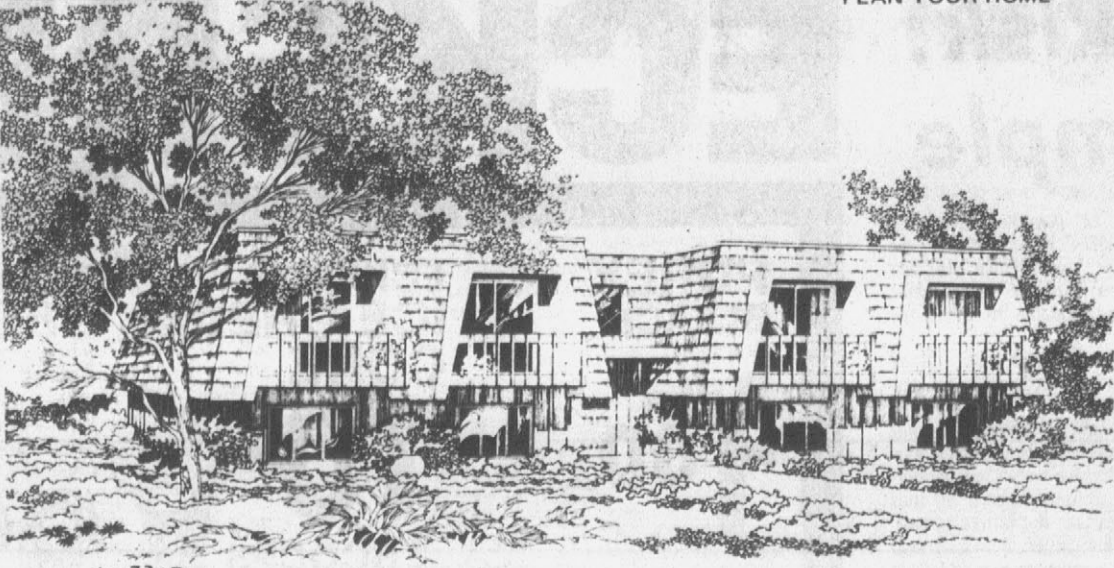

Entry is into the living-dining area of each unit at a spot where the living room itself is spared cross-traffic. The union of living and dining areas procedures a spacious, airy spot for entertaining or day-to-day living.

The 12-ft. two-wall kitchen shows a generous supply of counter space and cabinets, and a convenient laundry niche is tucked at one end.

The 13-ft bedroom offers plenty of wall space and a long closet, with coat and linen closets in the hallway. A full bath is included.

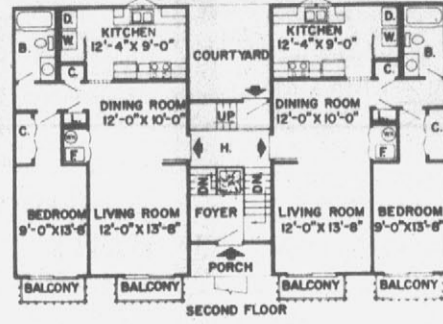

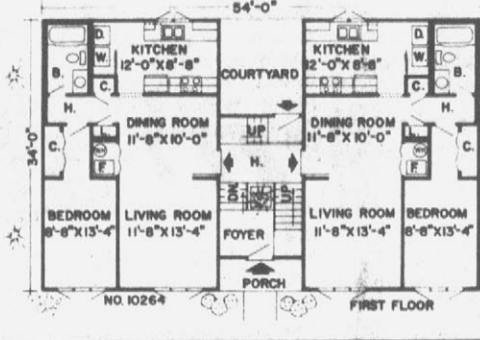

Utilities are within reach but out of sight in a compact niche off the dining room.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

A first-aid emergency kit should be in every home workshop.

There are many ways to avoid having to make use of it. All of them involve certain principles of safety which we are inclined to neglect when working on a project.

It is difficult to avoid spilling something on the workshop floor every once in a while. That doesn't necessarily mean a large quantity of liquid; a drop can bring about the same disastrous result if you slip on it. An important safety rule for the workshop, therefore, is to stop whatever you are doing instantly whenever anything, even a non-liquid, is dropped on the floor. That especially includes nails, screws and other small objects. Even a piece of paper on the floor can cause you to slip.

Another time to stop whatever you are doing at once is when somebody comes into the workshop while you are operating a power tool, especially an electric saw. Turn off the motor before you engage in conversation. It is a matter of record that accidents with power tools are more likely to occur when you are familiar with the machines and begin to work casually and carelessly. Be sure the electric plug on any power tool is disconnected before you make any adjustment on it.

Halt work on a project when you get fatigued or bored. If you are tired, rest. If you are bored, vary the type of task you are doing every so often.

Not following the directions on the label of a container is one way to suffer illness or injury. If the label says the product should be used only in a well-ventilated area, pay attention to the advice even if you have used the same product 20 times in a closed room without trouble. This might be the time for the trouble. Many products, such as paint removers and contact cements, were once available only in flammable and volatile formulas but can now be obtained without those hazards. Read the labels to find out which type you are buying.

Other safety tips include not smoking while using a sprayer (and many other items); not using dull tools; sanding wooden handles that might cause splinters; being certain outside ladders are firmly secured at the top and well-based at the bottom; wearing goggles when grinding or performing any task where particles might fly; not using a file without a handle; being sure the hammer head is tight; and keeping paints, acids, solvents, etc., locked in cabinets where they are not accessible to children.

Also, dress for the job. Loose clothing is not only a nuisance, but dangerous when you are performing many do-it-yourself tasks, especially while using power tools.

Here's the Answer

Q—Can you settle an argument about what a "plumber's friend" is? I say it is the auger that is used to clean drains and clogged pipes. My friend says it is a rubber plunger. Who is right?

A—Your friend. It is sometimes called a plunger, sometimes a "plumber's friend," sometimes a force cup. Whatever it is called, it is a rubber suction cup on the end of a handle that is used to unclog drains and toilet bowls.

finish coat, use half alcohol, half shellac. Wood finishers have personal preferences about shellac mixtures and, after you have used it a few times, you will begin to develop your own favorite percentages of alcohol to shellac.

Q—We are building a summer house way out in the country. Is it better to have a cesspool or a septic tank?

A—A septic tank is an improvement on a cesspool. In fact, in some areas, cesspools no longer are permitted. A cesspool is cheaper. If you decided to have one installed, better be sure the local laws allow it.

Q—I read recently about a kind of pressure-treated lumber. Where can I buy it, and are there any plans for projects using it?

A—More and more lumber yards are carrying this type of wood. Wherever it is sold, plans for outdoor projects are available without cost.

Q—How long are asphalt shingles supposed to last?

A—Most of today's asphalt shingles are designed to provide satisfactory service for between 15 and 25 years.

Q—I bought a bottle of shellac a couple of weeks ago. Since I have never used shellac, I was disappointed to find that there are no instructions on the bottle for mixing it with a thinner, which I understand is required.

A—The mixing of shellac with denatured alcohol depends on the so-called "cut" of the kind you buy. For your first job, when mixing shellac as a sealer, use about three parts of denatured alcohol to one part of shellac; when mixing it as a

Tip-Offs On The Cleaning Lady

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

A father of four was recently indoctrinated into the fine art of choosing a cleaning lady. His wife was ill.

It was no small financial transaction, $6 an hour, and he needed the helper once a week for eight hours. He learned a lot from three experiences, and he passes on some suggestions that might be helpful to others: "Better not choose the hired hand for a Monday — she may be sleeping off a Sunday bender while you wait to give instructions before leaping on the train for work.

"She may telephone and chose to do her own bargaining tomorrow.

"When she arrives, she will delay you with one of the many tales that cleaning persons seem to have on tap. There are the car problems — motor trouble, bad battery, brakes and the like. You name it. Her car can muster it up. Or if it isn't the car perhaps it was her husband or children taken suddenly ill or she had to drive a child to a day camp because the bus broke down.

"Be sure the wine or liquor bottles are kept out of reach. If she is to be there alone, she'll find them if she is inclined to nip while your wife naps. I leave out a few empty bottles and store current bottles with neighbors.

"She may have no respect for your towels. She may wad up wash cloths and guest towels and use them with abrasive cleaners. The cleaner-upper may have popped them into the washing machine afterward, and without your knowledge of what has happened they may turn up full of holes caused by the caustic cleaners.

"Who knows, she may use bath towels or anything else available in the bathroom that will soak up water and cleanser to clean the tub and the basin and maybe even the floor (you may get lucky and have a cleaning person that doesn't do floors!)"

He's had the experience with their favorite towel which now looks like a nesting place for swallows — at least there are plenty of holes in it.
 "Expensive, perfumed soap may be used to wash the dog (cleaning persons who don't do floors surprisingly enough may do dogs) ... expensive perfume may be squirted about where she has been smoking and don't be surprised that lipstick-stained cigarette butts are left in the ash trays (which you paid her to clean) after she has left."

On the one occasion when he spent a day at home with the cleaning person, the employer made several other observations:

She likes to drink milk out of the carton, since this saves washing a glass after use. Ditto ginger ale or any other liquid stored in the refrigerator. Then, too, if her shoes need a little touching up a handy kitchen dish towel can be used.

As the parent points out, not all housekeepers would put a family through such unpleasanties, but recognizing the signs might help pinpoint some types not suited for your employment.

Reduce Temptation For A Home-Burglary Type

NEW YORK (UPI) — With the burglary rate increasing, a home security check-up is a good idea before leaving on vacation.

The number of burglaries committed in the United States rose 23 percent between 1972 and 1976, the most recent year for which figures are available, says Glen E. Jorgensen, president of a home improvement finance company.

Jorgensen said 3.089 million burglaries were reported in 1976.

Here, from Jorgensen and a New York City-based private security firm, are tips on protecting your home when you are there or away.

—Install chains on all outside doors that are long enough to let you see out but too short for an arm to reach in. But be aware that a man's full weight thrown only once against a chain lock often will force it to give way.

—Install a wide-angle peephole if your door is solid.

—Hollow metal doors are best, followed by wooden doors at least 1 1/4 inches thick or lighter wood doors with metal sheathing.

—Use automatic electrical timers to turn lights and radios on and off. They can fool a burglar into thinking you are home when you're not.

—Consider sacrificing some privacy provided by dense, overgrown shrubbery and hedges; they make good hiding places for thieves.

—If your sash windows are reachable from the ground, install a simple bolt-key lock that effectively secures the bottom and top sash together from the inside.

—If your exterior doors are paneled, bolt a strong plywood or metal sheet to the inside surface, then paint and trim it with decorative molding.

—Use a special etching device, now available on loan from many police departments, to put your name or social security number permanently on valuables. This helps police trace and possibly recover stolen articles.

—Install dead-bolt locks on outside doors. They operate with a key inserted in a cylinder. Be sure the cylinder is pick-resistant and protect it with a guard plate, an inexpensive metal device that keeps the cylinder from being removed.

—Use safety glass for large window panels or cover the panels inside with strong mesh or steel bars.

—Folding or sliding steel gates are the only effective way of protecting glass terrace or french doors that are screened from public view or located where breaking glass would not be immediately heard. The gates should be inside on heavy tracks top and bottom, so they cannot be pried and bent enough to let a thief in.

—Consider adding emergency exterior floodlighting. Burglars hesitate to attack a well-lighted house and many have been surprised into fleeing when lights suddenly come on all around them.

—Check any wall-mounted air conditioners to make sure they cannot be pried loose from outside.

—Don't tempt thieves by displaying valuables such as a silver service, expensive paintings, color television and stereo sets where they are visible from a window or door.

American Dream Is A Nightmare For Many Elderly

(Editor's Note: For the elderly living on limited fixed incomes, the American dream has become a "stigmatic nightmare." Max Arman, 72, a free-lance writer, wrote UPI in submitting a feature on the housing problems that confront senior citizens in his home county in New Jersey. "What's true of Bergen County is probably paralleled in every suburban area in the country," he said. Here is his story.)

For many elderly persons, American Dream is nightmare
By MAX ARMAN
Written for UPI

ENGLEWOOD, N.J. (UPI) — "The day Israel gives housing to Arafat on the west bank of the Jordan," declared Mary O'Connor, militant Gray Panther, "that's the day our elderly will get it on the west bank of the Hudson River."

Mrs. O'Connor is talking about housing prospects for the elderly in New Jersey's "Northern Valley," particularly 8 of the 15 affluent towns flanking the Hudson.

Seventy and asthmatic, she has been living on a $52 monthly food stamp budget and waiting for more than 10 years to get a federally subsidized apartment. For as many years, this has been adamantly opposed, acrimoniously debated by what she scornfully called, "the valley's middle class squirearchy."

She is one of 3,000 elderly — three-fifths of whom are widows — who comprise not quite 3 percent of the total population of these green townships. Mrs. O'Connor rents two rooms in another widow's home, where she prepares her meals in a tiny kitchen equipped with a box-sized refrigerator and a diminutive gas range. "It's more like a jumped-up hot plate. I'm welcome to use my landlady's kitchen, but that's hardly worth the trouble. I just heat a can." She eats meat once a week, a hamburger with a friend at McDonald's.

Once married and a homeowner in the valley, her husband's illness "took everything," and she lives on $223 a month from Social Security. It costs her $170 for rent, $10 for the phone and another $10 for asthma medicine, leaving her with $30. From this, she pays $24 for $52 worth of food stamps. Limited to not quite $13 a week for food, she's "learned to eat sparingly."

John and Helen Rollins fare as poorly. From their combined Social Security income of $400 monthly, they pay $325 for rent. With the remaining $75, they buy $96 worth of food stamps for $68. "That leaves us $7 on which we may go to an occasional movie or for bus fare to visit a friend ... always provided we don't have to put those dollars aside for a pair of shoes."

(Max Arman, the 72-year-old author of this article who "works when I can find it," and his wife recently sold their three-bedroom home of 30 years in Englewood, N.J., and moved into a two-bedroom apartment in nearby Leonia. "While I'm not as broke as most of the people I write about," he said, "the house with increased taxes and maintenance was too much for me to cover. I had to make a decision whether to be able to go into New York once in awhile for a show and dinner or keep the house.")

For many, the choice is either to keep the house and not eat properly or sell the house and hope the equity will carry them for their remaining years.

Phone calls to two of the valley hospitals produced no records on malnutrition cases. A social service worker in one, differentiated between "malnutrition, per se, and simply not eating enough." This nicety escapes George Stanton, the tax collector for Cresskill, N.J., who told about one elderly woman trying to live on her fixed income.

"For three days none of her neighbors had seen her. The police found her unconscious on the living room floor. She'd been paying her home taxes to me out of her Social Security checks."

Mrs. Gayle Goddard, a Red Cross worker in affluent Ridgewood, N.J., speaking of another widow, said, "Every other month the Pascack Valley ambulance would pick her up, give her three square meals for a few days and discharge her as cured — till the next time. Rather than have others see them using the food stamps, they'd rather starve, and they do."

Mrs. Donna Metzger, a Bergen County Welfare Board supervisor, lists food stamp users, town by Northern Valley town. Bergenfield's 30,000 with 400 needy aging, has 28 "on stamps." Dumont's 20,000 with 250 needing rent subsidies, lists 11. Cresskill, with 8300 citizens and 180 in need, has but one elderly person on stamps. Tenafly, population 16,500, and approximately 300 needing rent subsidies, has nine. Westwood's 12,000 with about 600 who qualify for the subsidy, shows 11. Closter's 9,000 and 170 elderly poor, has but 8 using the stamps.

Most elderly citizens, many former homeowners, consider stamps a social stigma. Some take the bus to another town's grocer. "These are very proud people," says Cresskill mayor Andy Vaccaro. "It took almost two years to find how many would apply for the public housing I've been pushing. Finally, an out-of-town firm, working in strictest confidence, got figures from less than half of the town."

For the 3,000 estimated living near or below the poverty level in the Northern Valley, and for perhaps as many precariously near that level, rent subsidized shelter is one solution. Simply put, senior-citizen housing is apartment house dwelling with only a fourth of the tenant's income paid toward the rental. The remainder of the rent, which would otherwise come to about $400 an apartment, is paid or subsidized by the federal department of Housing and Urban Development.

For Mrs. O'Connor, this would mean that only $55-56 would come out of her Social Security check, leaving her $167 for food, clothing and incidentals, instead of her present $52 to $59.

The host town pays nothing for construction or maintenance of public housing for the elderly. In fact, towns benefit considerably by gaining jobs and the residents' increased buying power. One would think a township would jump at the chance to see the building up, solving as it does, a social problem, paying for itself, making minimal demands on the town's services and bringing with it jobs and consumers.

Far from it. Homeowners organize committees against it, are its most bitter, obstinate and resourceful opponents. Where the construction go-ahead from the relatively slow-moving county, state and federal agencies may take no more than two to three years, internecine squabbling in the town hall, legal suits and other stalling maneuvers consume twice or triple that period.

Leonia needed almost 13 years before it could start building, Englewood 7. Dumont reversed its council decision to build, and Cresskill wore out both council and mayor after site and financing had been approved by public housing agencies. To stop any future possibility of housing for its elderly, Cresskill's "junta," as Mrs. O'Connor puts it, re-zoned the available building site for one-family homes.

The issue has never been the housing, as any homeowner knows. The concern was how such housing would affect the value of the town's homes. Said Bill, an elderly homeowner who asked not to be identified further: the house "is the single big-best purchase I'll never make. Fifteen years ago, I put down ten grand, most of my savings, for the house, selling then, like yours, for around $25,000.

"The bank gave me a $15,000 mortgage. Figure a couple hundred up or down, it cost me twenty-five grand to pay out the fifteen. So far, that's a fat $35,000, but only 'so far.' Now let's add the taxes, around $700 in '68, today $1600 and climbing. Let's say they averaged $1,000 a year for the fifteen years. That's only a subtotal of $50,000. Because, do-it-yourself or not, you've got to figure $500 a year for paint and plumber. Slice it any way you want, that adds, for the fifteen years, another $7,500. That's $57,500. I'm pretty handy, but it's still $57,500."

Aside from a modest federal civil service pension and an equally modest savings account, slimmed by sending two boys through college, the resale value of Bill's house is by far his largest asset and must be protected against any change that may erode it. He may need that money when he retires.

Growing Ranks Of Vegetarians

NEW YORK (AP) — Both young people and the elderly have been swelling the number of vegetarians from 3 million to 10 million in the last five years, but for different reasons, says the author of a vegetarian cookbook.

"Peer pressure as well as moral considerations are turning young people to vegetarianism," says William Manners, author with his sister-in-law, Ruth Ann Manners, of "The Quick and Easy Vegetarian Cookbook." "Environmental concerns, increased interest in Eastern religions and natural living are also factors."

"The principal reasons for older people going vegetarian are health and economics," he adds. "Protein that costs $2.50 as beef, or $1.25 as fish, costs only 50 cents in vegetable form."

"The Quick and Easy Vegetarian Cookbook" is published by M. Evans.

Friends Helped Blind Lawyer

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — "Being blind has not impeded my career," says Albert Good. "If anything it has enhanced my progress."

Good graduated from the law school at West Virginia University at the top of his class in 1939. Now specializing in corporate and estate work, he is president of two horse-racing tracks and the lawyer for the state Dental Association. He also serves on numerous boards of directors.

Good, a 62-year-old father of three, went through high school and college before the advent of portable tape recorders or talking calculators. "I relied on friends and teachers to help me out," he says. "And I still count on my friends. They help in special ways."

Need Help? There's Most Likely A Group For You

EDITOR'S NOTE — If you have a personal problem, there's probably an anonymous group for you. If you can't find it, check with the self-help group that helps find anonymous self-help groups.

By TERRY KIRKPATRICK
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Are you fat, tall, short, brilliant, neurotic, emotional, addicted, in debt, about to give birth, a parent, not a parent, a parent of twins, depressed, divorced, widowed, or a gambler?

If so, there's a group for you, probably meeting nearby. It's estimated that 5 million people are members of several hundred different types of self-help groups.

There's even a sort of self-help group for self-help groups. It's called the National Self-Help Clearinghouse. If anti-war and environmental clear-inghouses were symbolic of the 1960s movements for broad social change, the self-help clearinghouse is a sign of the '70s preoccupation with personal problems.

"People in different self-help groups have much to learn from one another," says Alan Gartner, a bearded, jovial professor of urban studies and co-founder of the clearinghouse.

Like where to meet. How to find new members. How to keep them coming back. What to do if they don't. A Parents Anonymous group in New York recently wanted to contact some parents who came a few times then quit, but it couldn't locate them. They were anonymous.

Such concerns have been considered at a half-dozen conferences sponsored by the clearinghouse since it was formed a year ago under the auspices of City University of New York, where Gartner teaches. Since it began its newsletter, the mailing list has grown from several hundred names to 5,000.

"It seems to be clear that there is a much greater growth in self-help groups now than 10 years ago," Gartner says.

For one thing, he says, problems today are more likely to be chronic or behavior-related. As people live longer they are more subject to incurable conditions like diabetes, arthritis, cancer, hypertension or emphysema. Behavioral problems like overeating or smoking can't always be treated by doctors, either.

The popularity of self-help groups also stems in part from an anti-professional mood — although many groups were started by professionals and depend on them — and a growing awareness that government health and welfare programs are too bureaucratic.

Among the people from various self-help groups at a clearinghouse conference last year was a member of Overeaters Anonymous, who discovered to her horror that a luncheon buffet, the worst kind of temptation, was planned. She phoned her "buddy," who joined her, with a supply of cottage cheese, celery and fruit.

Gartner also sees self-help groups filling the gaps left by the declining influence of the family, church and neighborhood.

"And a lot of people feel alienated in a big society," says Frank Riessman, co-founder of the clearinghouse and professor of education at Queens College. "People feel powerless to solve society's larger problems. But they can do something in a group. There is an immediate result and benefit."

Many groups follow the pattern of Alcoholics Anonymous, which was formed in 1935 and is perhaps the oldest such group still going.

Emotions Anonymous, for instance, was started in 1971 in St. Paul, Minn., by someone with an emotional problem. Since then about 300 chapters have begun around the country and abroad. Each has anywhere from five to 30 members.

Self-help groups begin in diverse ways. The Jewish Funeral Directors of America Inc. recently hired a social worker experienced in setting up groups to write a book telling funeral directors how to form groups for widows.

"It's a marketing tool," Gartner says.

"It's a nice thing for funeral homes to do," Riessman says.

Both acknowledge that groups might harm as well as help. They might delay a person from seeking needed professional help. They tend to blame the victim for his troubles when the blame may lie elsewhere. A person may become dependent on the group. It may perpetuate the problem.

And self-help groups aren't for everyone.

A woman called Gartner one day to find a group she could join. He explained how the groups work.

"I don't think this self-help is for me," she said. "I don't have enough patience to listen to other people's problems."

Indians Pressing Their Claims To Land And Rights

EDITOR'S NOTE — When the white man came to America, he claimed the land as his own, settling from time to time to give the Indians rights to certain land, certain water, certain minerals. Now, politically aware Indians are claiming those rights and whites in Maine, in Arizona, in Washington state, in South Dakota, are seeing their own interests undermined. It's up to the federal government to settle the hassles equitably.

By JAMES PHILLIPS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The dispute has been going on since the white man first stepped ashore and claimed land inhabited only by Indians. It intensified into bloodshed as the white man moved across the country. From the Plains to the desert to the Pacific Northwest, tribal lands were seized, water rights appropriated, and restrictions placed on harvesting the natural bounty of an unspoiled continent. The continent was settled and the dispute died down, only to rise again in the social consciousness of the 20th century.

Indian claims to land and rights long ago expropriated by the white man represent America's longest continuous legal saga — and its most complex. Tribes are seeking land in the East, water in the West, fishing rights in the Upper Great Lakes and Puget Sound. And they want additional compensation for lands across the country that were sold decades or centuries ago.

So complex are the disputes that the Interior Department is concentrating on negotiating settlements in three cases — land claims to much of the state of Maine, water rights in central Arizona and fishing rights in the state of Washington. The assumption is that agreements there will provide models that will avoid long court battles in the many other cases across the country.

But there is another case pending that may set precedents. The U.S. Court of Claims is now considering whether the United States in the 1870s unconstitutionally acquired more than 7 million acres of land from the Sioux in South Dakota's Black Hills. If the court rules in favor of the Indians, the government would owe them about $105 million in land costs and interest.

Some Indians feel that whatever the outcome, the disputes have been good for the tribe. "It has given rise to a new social consciousness — that Indians can challenge the world out there," says a Penobscot woman in Maine. "Even if the land case doesn't give them anything, it will give them consciousness of an ethnic identity."

Others think the court fights aren't enough. To dramatize their claims, about 500 Indians are marching from California to Washington to protest pieces of federal legislation that they say would strip them of the land, mineral and wildlife claims they say they hold under previous treaties.

Those bills are part of a backlash in Congress against what some members feel are "outlandish claims by Indians."

"We had a very favorable climate in Congress several years ago," says Forrest Girard, assistant secretary of Interior for Indian Affairs. "It's fairly hostile now."

The Maine dispute appears closest to settlement. It involves claims by the Penobscot and Passamaquoddy tribes to 12.5 million acres, two-thirds of the state.

The Indians' legal argument is similar to arguments in other eastern land cases. It rests on a 1790 law prohibiting individuals or local governments from taking or buying tribal land without the express approval of Congress. In the Maine case, there was no such Congressional approval.

Both tribes have voted overwhelmingly to accept an administration-negotiated settlement that would give them $25 million in federal funds and $1.7 million a year over 15 years from the state. Large landholders, primarily timber companies, would have to give the tribes 300,000 acres of choice timberland and an option to buy an additional 200,000 acres at the fair market value of about $112 an acre.

Neither the state nor the timber companies has agreed to the proposal, but both have left the door open for future negotiation. The Indians intend to press their suit if no agreement is reached.

The Carter administration, meanwhile, is planning to introduce legislation asking for $25 million to partially reimburse small property owners who lose land.

Interior Department Solicitor Leo Krulitz says the legislation would end claims on almost all of Maine's inhabited acres. But what the settlement would mean to each of the 4,000 Indians is uncertain.

In addition to the Maine dispute, major suits east of the Mississippi have been brought by the Oneida Nation, which seeks 200,000 acres in central New York; the St. Regis Mohawk tribe, 12,500 acres in New York, including some land within the city limits of Fort Covington and Massena; the Cayuga tribe, 62,000 acres around Cayuga Lake in upstate New York; the Catawba tribe, 140,000 acres in South Carolina; Narragansett tribe, 3,200 acres in Rhode Island; and the Chitimacha tribe, 4,000 acres in Louisiana.

In the West, the dispute centers on water, precious and in short supply.

The complex Arizona dispute involves Indians on five reserervations and the city of Tucson, largest city in the world that's wholly dependent on ground water from wells. The Indians argue that the increasing use by Tucson of water from their reservations is drastically lowering their own water table. The Washington fishing controversy stems from a decision by U.S. District Judge George Boldt, giving 22 tribes the right to half the harvestable catch of fish in rivers that empty into Puget Sound.

Commercial salmon fishermen maintain that the ruling, based on treaties signed with 22 tribes in the 1850s, deprived them of their rightful catch and threatens their livelihood. Sport anglers complain that Indians are catching and selling steelhead trout. They claim these should be caught only for sport.

A task force of federal and state officials and commercial fishermen has been meeting almost daily for a year in an attempt to resolve the impasse.

Classes In Dance Set

Classes in ballet and jazz dance exercise will be offered to eastern North Carolina adults this summer by the East Carolina University Division of Continuing Education.

Instructor for all dance courses is Michele Mennett who studied dance in Florida and New York and has been an apprentice at the Alvin Ailey School.

"Intermediate Ballet" will meet Tuesday and Thursday evenings, July 11 - August 3, from 8 to 9 p.m. The class is open to persons with previous ballet experience.

"Beginning Jazz Dance Exercise" (Tuesdays and Thursdays, July 11 - August 3, 7-8 p.m.) and "Intermediate Jazz Dance Exercise" (Mondays and Wednesdays, July 10 - August 2, 2:30 - 3:30 p.m.) will emphasize dance as a pleasant way to exercise the muscles and develop general flexibility and coordination.

Further information about the dance classes and other summer course offerings is available from the Office of Non-Credit Programs, Division of Continuing Education, East Carolina University, Greenville, N.C., telephone 757-6143.

Physiologist Earns Grant

ECU News Bureau
Dr. S. Gregory Iams, assistant professor of physiology at the East Carolina University School of Medicine, has received a $5,000 grant from the N.C. Heart Association to study the role of the thyroid gland in the development of hypertension.

The project is designed to determine if depressing the action of the thyroid gland will depress or inhibit high blood pressure, a disease afflicting millions of Americans.

Iams is studying the disease in the spontaneously hypersensitive rat, an animal with inherited high blood pressure that closely resembles the disease as it helps in man. The research will help determine if hormones secreted by the thyroid gland, which controls body growth and metabolism, act in conjunction with the nervous system to cause high blood pressure in the animals.

Iams has conducted previous research on the role of the endocrine system in hypertension.

Pressure Rises In Mid-Life

NEW YORK (AP) — A report of a study by the American Jewish Committee finds that women in mid-life are under greater pressure than at any other period of their lives. The report states:

"Dissatisfied with their own opportunities for individual achievement, yet tied down by obligations to parents and children, these women are the candidates for anxiety and depression."

Priest's Pay Increase OK'd

YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO (AP) — Roman Catholic Bishop James W. Malone has approved recommendations of the diocesan Senate of Priests for a temporary salary increase to all diocesan priests, raising the base monthly salary of pastors from $325 to $425 and for associate pastors from $275 to $375. He also asked a further study of priests' income.

Brunei Reborn By Vast Oil Bonanza

By KENNETH L. WHITING
Associated Press Writer

BANDAR SERI BEGAWAN, Brunei (AP) — Picture a land ruled by a rich sultan whose subjects pay no income tax and enjoy free medical care, pensions and education through the university level.

There's no pollution, the temperature averages between 76 and 86, and balmy breezes sweep over miles of unspoiled beaches.

Easy loans help its subjects buy cars, homes and color television sets. Food, gasoline and electric power are subsidized. Even the unemployed seem to have plenty of spending money.

Fairy tale? No, this is contemporary Brunei, in distant Borneo.

Some call it a "Shellfare" state rather than a welfare state because it is money generated by Shell Oil that enables Sultan Sir Muda Hassanah Bolikhiah to keep his 170,000 subjects in cozy comfort.

Despite all this governmental largesse, Brunei is rolling in money. Revenues last year were $902 million, up from $811 million the year before. Most of it came from oil, which accounts for nearly 90 percent of the gross domestic product.

This year the government plans to spend $418 million, and a surplus of $605 million is expected.

"These are golden years for Brunei and with such a strong financial background there have been no budgetary problems," glowed the country's chief financial officer, John Lee, in his 1978 budget speech before the Legislative Council.

Until oil was discovered in the 1920s, Brunei was the impoverished husk of a once-powerful Moslem empire, shrunk to 2,226 square miles, a bit larger than Delaware.

Oil pumped life back into Brunei, which also became the first in Asia to produce liquefied natural gas. Brunei Shell, owned half by the government and half by Royal Dutch Shell, is producing about 230,000 barrels a day, the second-largest producer after Indonesia in Southeast Asia.

But the golden affluence that oil, and rising oil prices, ultimately provided, failed to alter the conservative cast of society, and there's none of the personal extravagance of oil-rich Arabs on a spree.

True, Sultan Muda has a personal fleet of about 20 cars, including a red Lamborghini and a green Mercedes, but most of the new purchases among Brunei's 24,644 registered cars are middle-priced Japanese imports.

The permissive society has yet to gain a toe-hold in the sultanate. Kissing in public is banned. The main jail usually contains women who become pregnant before marriage. Some inmates are new brides who gave birth before the statutory nine months elapsed. A Department of Religious Affairs keeps tabs on such transgressions.

All forms of gambling are barred. Western pop music is frowned upon, there are no night clubs in the capital and no bars except in hotels, or private clubs like the Royal Brunei Yacht Club, social center for the large British community. No daily newspapers, either.

British officers lead Brunei's armed forces, and many senior civil servants, teachers, administrators and policemen are British. Westerners in the oil fields are mostly British and Dutch.

A Gurkha battalion led by British officers and paid by the sultan is stationed at Seria. Britain handles the territory's foreign affairs, but Brunei otherwise has internal self rule, which doesn't include elections, by the sultan's choice.

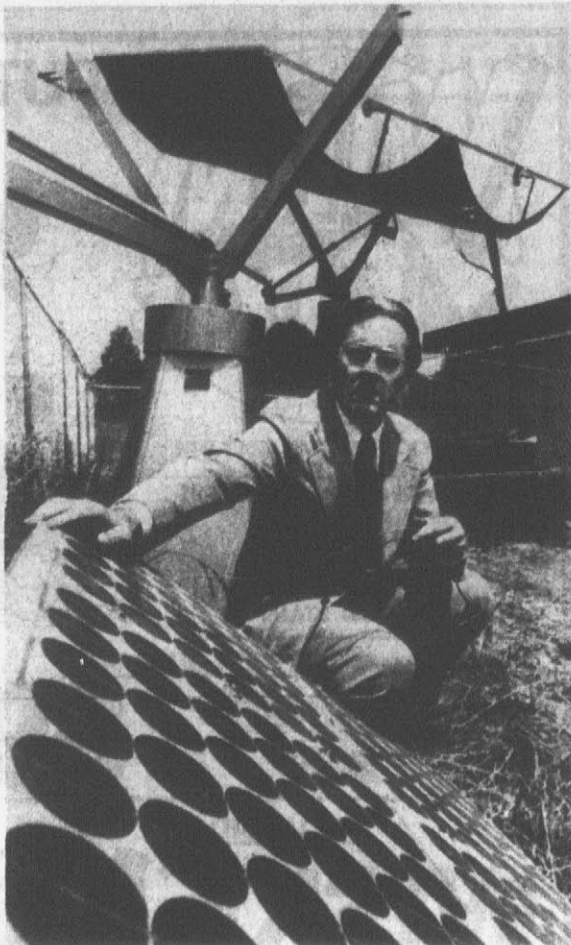

About 30,000 residents of the capital live on land and another 20,000 in a village on stilts in the Brunei River. The river village looks like a slum to the uninitiated, but piped water, schools, clinics and other services are also out there on stilts. TV aerials sprout in the village, and its well-dressed inhabitants commute downtown in speedboats.

The government has been using oil money to build apartment complexes, 800 miles of roads, sports centers, schools and office buildings. This has been done gradually, however, and there is no frantic construction boom as in Iran, Saudi Arabia and other Middle Eastern oil states.

Pride of place in the capital goes to a gilt-domed mosque named for Sir Omar.

Despite Brunei's material well being, it underwent a brief rebellion, quickly crushed by British troops flown in from Singapore. That came after Sir Omar Ali Saifuddin, then sultan, tried an election in 1962 but refused to allow the party that won all 16 elective seats to the 32-member Legislative Council to form a government.

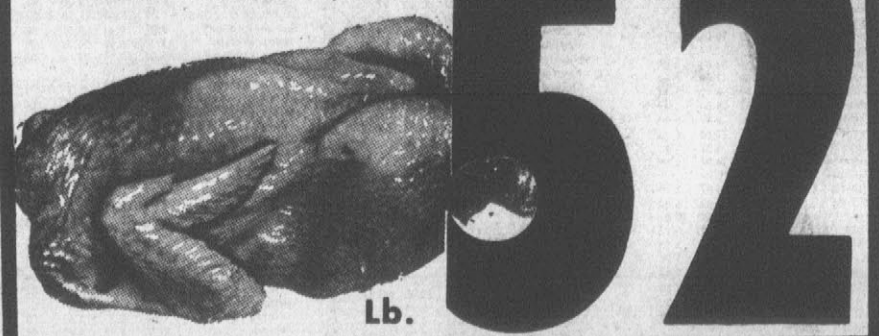

The state of emergency declared then remains in effect 16 years later. There are signs that Britain worries a bit about its close treaty relationship with Brunei and would like to negotiate itself further into the background, but official sources here say they want the arrangement to remain unchanged.

Racing Pigeons Begin Training At Early Age

WASHINGTON (AP) — Racing pigeons begin their training when they are about four weeks old, according to the National Geographic Society.

At first, the birds, which have been bred for the sport since the early 1800s, stay in their own lofts. Then they are allowed to fly around the area. Their owners, after this initial period, will take them on longer and longer trips before releasing them to fly home.

Pigeon races start with owners bringing their birds, which have been banded, to the starting point in crates. They are released en masse and allowed to fly home.

When each bird returns, its owner removes the band and puts it into a device that records the time. Distance from starting point to roost is measured and correlated with time to determine the winning bird.

Pigeons have been clocked as fast as 90 mph with favorable winds and one U.S. Army bird made a 2,300-mile flight, according to National Geographic.

Peaceful Pitt County Summers Recalled

By Patricia Evans Mills

It's one of those bright, beautiful days that characterize summer in Pitt County. The newly-mown grass outside my window and the huge pecan and walnut "shade trees" across the way remind me of other summers stretching in a brightly colored mosaic across the mind's eye. Barefeet and shorts headed for the bookmobile. If you can't get to the library, it will come to you. Check out 14, 15 books, and in two days, there's nothing left to read.

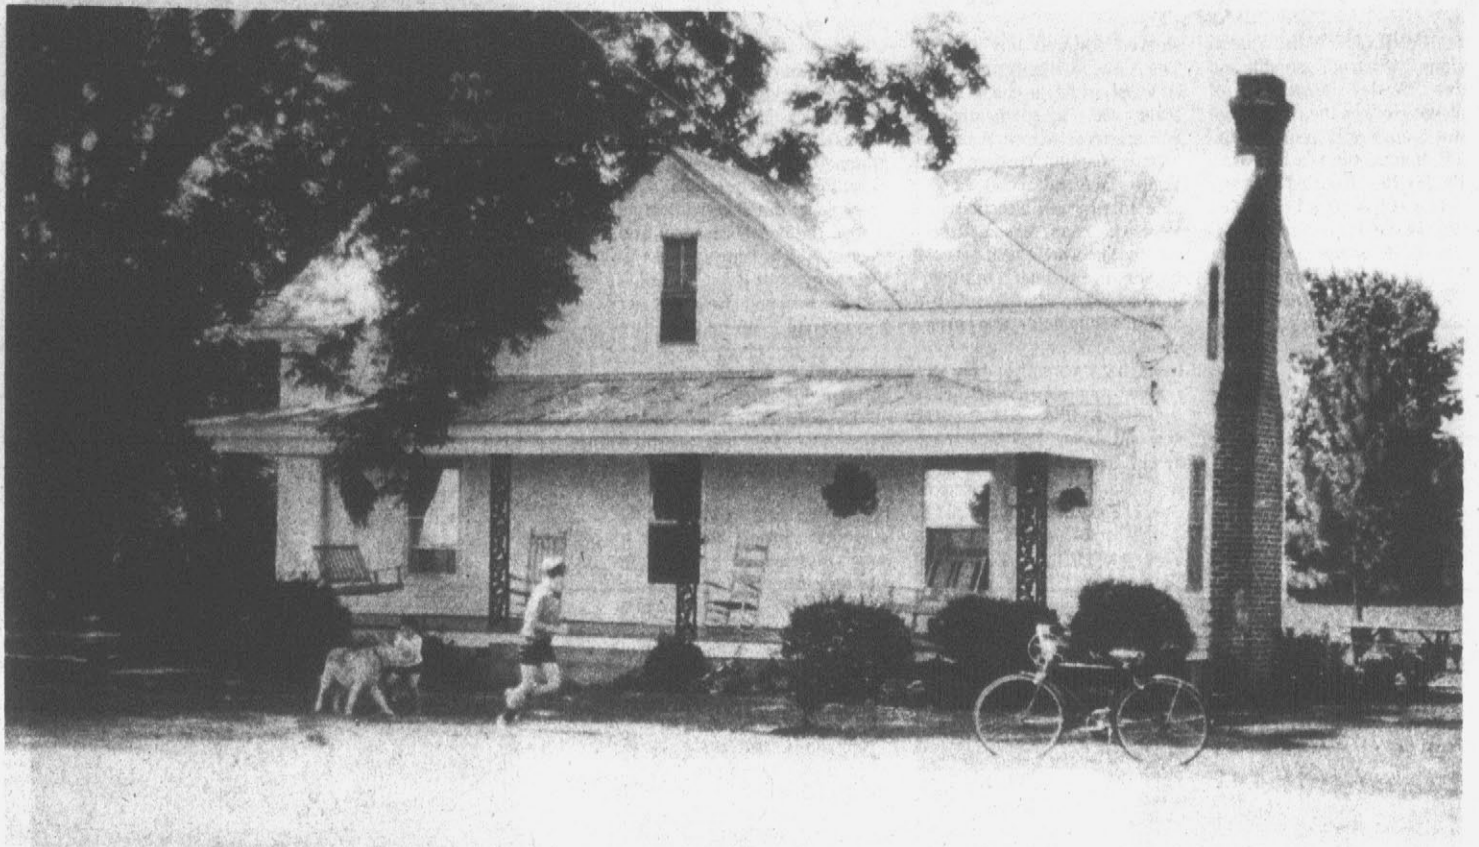

Summers in rural Pitt County during the Fifties meant long, hot days in constant quest of "something to do." In those days, parents weren't burdened with the driving urge to find entertainment for the kids during the summer. Or maybe it's the necessity to find babysitters that keeps parents in a constant search for new activities. At any rate, in the 1950's, most mothers were at home and their children were free from structured activity for awhile, at least, during the summer.

So, without swimming pools, skating rinks, bowling alleys, or the Recreation Department (the city had one, but this is the country, remember?) what did we do in the olden days?

Well, we had CHORES. You know, "Wash the dishes and make the beds before you go out to play." Everybody had his area of responsibility, strictly along sexist lines. The girls "helped out" in the house and garden, while the boys took care of the yard and any animals (except chickens; chickens is woman's work). After the chores were done, you were free until dinnertime (noon, or thereabouts). Since it was usually hot, you found a cool place and something that didn't require much activity, like reading on that stack of li'bry books you got off'n the book-mobile, or fishin' down 't the branch. Catching minnows was alright, too—you could use them next fishing-time.

Come dinnertime, you were expected to be in your place at table, face and hands clean, hair combed and shirt on. Bare chests were out, but bare feet were o.k. (Well, after all, they were under the table, and couldn't be seen.) Dinner was a big meal, usually consisting entirely of food produced on the place: ham, collards, potatoes, and roasin' ear corn were favorites. After a meal like that you

13-Year-Old With Pacemaker Is Active In School Sports

BY MICHAEL J. BUGEJA
OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — Kimberly Kyles, a frisky 13-year-old, competes in school sports and leads a typically teen-age life — although she has worn a heart pacemaker for the past 10 years.

She was among the first group of children in the United States to get permanently implanted pacemakers.

"When Kimberly was born, they told us nothing could be done. She has complete heart block," said her mother, Donna Kyles. "At first I thought I would have a mechanical child, but she's doing beautifully."

Kimberly said her implanted pacemaker "doesn't bother me at all, except if I run long distances, I get dizzy. But I do all the gymnastics, swimming and can run short distances in track."

She ran the 100-yard dash last year at Millard Central Junior High School. This year she played on the gymnastics and volleyball teams.

"She's also an honor student," her mother said.

"Kimberly would have a bed-chamber existence if it weren't for her pacemaker," said Dr. William Fleming of the Nebraska Medical Center.

Mrs. Kyles said her daughter has had "eight or nine pacemakers. A couple of those were put in because she developed an infection. But we hope the one put in last October will last her until 1982."

Fleming, 43, is planning a study of about Nebraska children who wear pacemakers.

"They're doing well," he said. "A number of them have needed battery changes and there was one broken wire that had a kink in it. But there have been no infections in at least a couple of years."

He said advances in pacemaker technology and medical techniques have decreased the risk of infections. Active children are prone to such infections because a tear in the skin often exposes wires.

"Now we're putting the wires in different places and it gives them more protection," said Fleming. He said the wires now are placed beneath muscle layers instead of just under the skin.

Fleming said children make up only three percent of the people who need pacemakers: "The average age is about 58."

Children with heart block and implanted pacemakers "may have some limitations on physical activity," Fleming said. "They may get tired before their compatriots, but they can't overdo it to the point of passing out."

"I let them play basketball and soccer, but not hockey,"

Hard-To-Place Kids Adopted

By ELLEN L. SLOTT
LANCASTER, Pa. (UPI) — the United States, 350,000 children shuffle from one foster home to another because nobody wants them.

Paradoxically, thousands of potential parents pay high legal fees and endure agonizing waits to adopt a child. But they don't want the available children, those who are hard to place because of age, race or physical, mental or emotional disabilities.

"I think it's sad," says Laurie Flynn, mother of 11 — "homemade," as she calls them, and five adopted.

Mrs. Flynn, 32, is an advocate of children's rights and president of the Pennsylvania Coalition for Children, a group of parents who have adopted so-called hard-to-place children.

My husband and I both were from divorced homes," Mrs. Flynn said in an interview. "I know what it's like to feel lonely, to have a parent leave or to lose a parent. I just look at the kids in that situation and I see myself."

The Flynns' first two biological children, Shannon, 10, and Kerry, 8, were born while Flynn, 34, was a law student in Washington, D.C. They tried to adopt a child in Washington but, "Everywhere we went we met with real suspicion. 'My heavens, you folks already have a biological child. Why would you want another one?'" she recalled.

The Flynns then moved to York, Pa., where adoption agencies' reactions were unexpectedly different. Almost immediately, they adopted a biracial child, Lea, now 6.

Two more biological children, red-haired Joey, 6, and Maureen, 5, a mirror image of her blonde mother, were born before the Flynns adopted a second child, Daniel, 6 months old at the time, and now 5 years. "He was considered hard-to-place not only because of his racial background but because his biological parents are inmates of an institution for the mentally retarded," Mrs. Flynn said. "He himself is not mentally retarded, but I guess the retardation in his background scares people."

Between 1974-75, Bridget, now 3, was born, and two American Indian teen-agers were adopted: Sara, then 14, and her brother, Michael, now 16.

Mrs. Flynn said Michael has been plagued with emotional and behavioral problems resulting from a difficult youth during which he lived in six different foster homes.

"It's a very difficult transition for a kid who has grown up 8, 10 or 12 years in one environment to move into an upper middle class professional family-oriented environment and accept us as we are," she said. "As hard as they (Sara and Michael) have tried, they must have spent a good deal of time feeling as though they were looking in a store window.

"Part of the problem is our foster care system that just allows kids to hang in foster care forever and ever."

She said thousands of children will spend their youth in foster homes unless their parents legally free them for adoption.

After adopting Mike in April 1975 the Flynns added Christopher, a handsome Vietnamese child whose court-estimated age is nine.

"Then we had 10," she mused. "We thought that was a neat number." But that didn't last long: "We were looking for a companion for Daniel."

"Transracial adoptions — it's an area people have strong feelings about. We felt that adopting Daniel was the right thing to do. It was not a choice of a black home or a white home. It was a white home or no home. We didn't feel comfortable raising just one black child."

The "companion" they chose is Andrew, an animated 3-year-old whose parents also were mental patients.

The children were "thrilled when we got Andrew," Mrs. Flynn said, adding that none of their children, biological or adopted, has shown jealousy or animosity toward one another.

"They are aware, of course, of who's adopted and who's not," she said. "But they're so surrounded by adoption. They figure that adoption is something that's neat and they think it's nice. The homemade kids are always eager to adopt new kids."

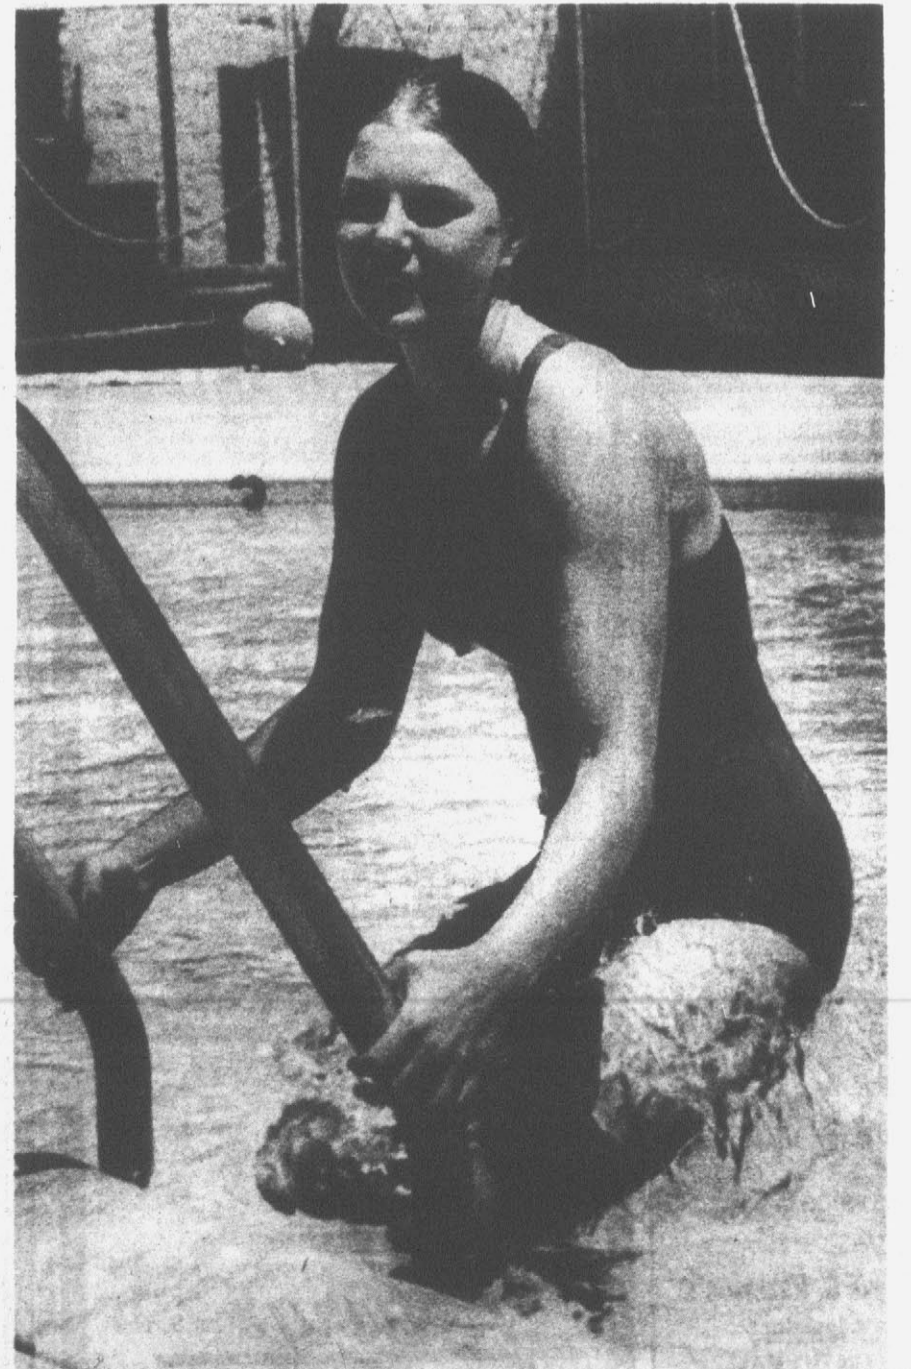

In fact, she said, "we do anticipate at one point adding one more."

Asked if she had a particular child in mind, Mrs. Flynn said with a laugh: "Let's see, we don't have anyone in the fourth grade."

PENNSYLVANIA COUPLE... Laurie and Joseph Flynn pose with nine of their 11 children. Six are "homemade," as she calls them and five adopted. In the front row are Daniel, five, Maureen, five, Lea, six, and Kerry, eight; middle row, Joey, six, Bridget, three, and Andrew, three; top, Christopher, nine, a Vietnamese, and Shannon, 10. (UPI Telephoto)

Fuquay-O'Brien Vows Exchanged Saturday

FARMVILLE — Miss Sharon Delane O'Brien of Farmville and Dewey Wesley Fuquay Jr. of Raleigh pledged their marriage vows Saturday, 2 p.m., at the First Baptist Church of Farmville. The Rev. Ronald Davis and the Rev. Clyde Dunn officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Pender O'Brien of Farmville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Huggins Bradham Jr. of Farmville.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a white formal gown of imported satin. The bodice was accented by re-embroidered Alencon lace sprinkled with Venise daisy appliques over English net. A high collar was attached to a sheer scoop yoke. The long fitted sleeves featured tiny buttons. The A-line skirt fell from a raised waist, while the chapel length train was complemented by bordered Venise lace. A layered chapel mantilla bordered with Venise lace and applied with lace motifs was attached to a Venise lace cap etched with seed pearls. She wore a gold bracelet belonging to her maternal grandmother, who had worn it on her wedding day. She carried a cascade of white daisies, pink roses, baby's breath and ivy.

Miss Angie Denise O'Brien, sister of the bride, served as the maid of honor. She selected a formal strawberry blouson dress of chiffon and knit and carried a cascade bouquet of pink daisies, baby's breath and ivy. She wore a daisy and baby's breath in her hair.

Bridesmaids were Miss JoAnn Sermons of Farmville, Miss Renee Jenkins of Colonial Heights, Va., Miss Susie St. Clair of Hopewell, Va., Miss Debbie Maloney of Wilson and Miss Terri Porter of Greenville, S. C. They wore dresses identical to that of the honor attendant and wore sprigs of baby's breath in their hair.

Miss Suzanne Bradham of Farmville, niece of the bridegroom, served as flower girl. She wore a light pink organza formal dress softly gathered at the waist with a sash in the back. The skirt was accented with rows of lace interlaced with ribbon. The scoop neckline bodice was trimmed in matching lace and ribbon. She wore a daisy attached to a matching pink bow in her hair.

Master Gary O'Brien, cousin of the bride, was ring bearer. He carried the rings on a pillow which was carried by the bridegroom in his aunt's wedding.

Herman H. Bradham Jr. served as his son's best man. Ushers included Frank L. Bradham of Farmville and Marvin Jones Fuquay of Wilson, brothers of the bridegroom, Randy Willis and Vail Willis of Raleigh, cousins of the bridegroom, Steve Martin of Rocky Mount, James Warren of Falls Church, Va. and Gary Liles of Raleigh.

Miss Janet Bottoms of organist, gave a program of nuptial music. Misses Debbie Maloney and Cindy Hill of Wilson sang "Song of Ruth." Miss Maloney sang "The Lord's Prayer."

Mrs. Cedric Davis and Mrs. Gene Beaman directed the wedding. Misses Cindy Hill and Mary Jordan presided at the register.

The mother of the bride wore a cerulean blue knit gown. She wore a white cymbidium orchid corsage.

The mother of the groom wore a formal gown of peach chiffon over taffeta.

Following the ceremony, a reception was given in the D. A. R. Chapter House. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Cedric Davis and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Willis of Raleigh. The main serving table was covered with lace and linen tablecloth. A mixture of summer flowers in a silver bowl served as the centerpiece.

Mrs. Gene Beaman, Mrs. Norris Eason, Mrs. Ray Mewborn, Mrs. Frank Styers, all of Farmville, Mrs. William Cook of New Bern and Mrs. Ralph Fallen of Nathalia, Va. assisted in serving. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bradham of Farmville said the good byes.

For a wedding trip to the Bahamas, the bride changed into a blue linen suit with a floral blouse. She wore a corsage lifted from her bridal bouquet. After the trip, the couple will reside in Raleigh.

The bride is a graduate of Farmville Central High School and Atlantic Christian College, where she received a bachelor's degree in education. The bridegroom is a graduate of Farmville Central High School and Atlantic Christian College, where he received a bachelor's degree in business. He is employed in the home office of F. C. X. in Raleigh.

The bride is employed by Pitt Memorial Hospital and the bridegroom is employed by Union Carbide.

MRS. DEWEY WESLEY FUQUAY JR.

Couple Weds In Ceremony Conducted On Saturday

Lois M. Wetherington and Donnie Lee Williams were united in marriage Saturday, July 1, at 7:00 p.m. in the Black Jack Free Will Baptist Church. The Rev. Bobby Bazen, their pastor, officiated at the candlelight ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. Ed Mills of Rt. 2, Ayden, and the late Mrs. Mills. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie D. Williams of Black Jack.

The bridal couple entered the church together. The bride wore a formal length gown of light blue interlock polyester. The gown was fashioned with a fitted waist, tapered long sleeves of Venise lace and a sunburst pleated skirt. She wore a matching blue and white shoulder length veil and carried a bridal cascade of miniature white carnations, blue snowflake pompons and baby's breath.

Mrs. Faye Hall of Winterville, sister of the bridegroom, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Faye Figlewski of Rocky Mount, Mrs. Rita Everett and Miss Wanda Mills of Rt. 2, Ayden, cousins of the bride.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man and ushers included Johnie Williams of Ayden, and Jimmy Williams of Black Jack, brothers of the bridegroom, and Oscar Hall, brother-in-law of the bridegroom.

After a wedding trip to the coast, the couple will live in Winterville.

Engagement Announced

MISS DARLENE BOYD, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Boyd of Winterville, who announce her engagement to Otis Harold Jeffries III, son of Mr. Otis Harold Jeffries Jr. of Raleigh. The wedding will take place Aug. 12.

Couple Weds Saturday In Fayetteville Church

FAYETTEVILLE — The wedding of Marian Ruth Barragan of Raleigh and Robert Preston Clark, also of Raleigh, took place in St. Michael's Church here Saturday at 2:00 p.m.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Rt. Rev. Monsignor Frederick Koch and the bride was given in marriage by her father.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Barragan Jr. of Fayetteville. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. George Attaway Clark Jr. of Greenville. He is a certified public accountant with Cherry, Bekaert and Holland in Raleigh. Mrs. John Louis Fitzpatrick of Newport, R. I. attended her sister as matron of honor and Mr. Clark attended his son as best man.

Ushers were Joseph Bruce Barragan of Spartanburg, S. C., brother of the bride; Frank Klingon Barragan of Raleigh, brother of the bride; and George Howard Clark of Greenville, S. C., brother of the bridegroom.

Organist was Mrs. Joseph C. Schreck of Savannah, Ga., aunt of the bride.

A reception given by the bride's parents at the Highland Country Club followed the wedding.

Church Women Hold Meeting

The St. Peter's Women's Club held its meeting Wednesday in the school hall. President Bobbie Parsons conducted the meeting and welcomed Laurie Fowler as a special guest.

Plans for the group's trash and treasure sale set for September had the card party to be held in November were discussed.

The president announced the club would hold a luncheon Aug. 28 at the Ramada Inn for Sister Chris Gellings who will be leaving the parish in September to go to Raleigh.

A craft workshop followed the meeting.

Judith Ann Bunzey Is Bride

Judith Ann Bunzey became the bride of Leslie Phillip Floyd in a ceremony conducted at Hooker Memorial Christian Church here Saturday at 8:00 p.m. by Richard T. Williams, pastor of the Greenville Seventh Day Adventist Church.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length gown of white organza over peau de soie designed with a Queen Anne neckline edged in scalloped chantilly lace beaded with pearls. The empire bodice was overlaid in French chantilly lace with full bishop sleeves of matching lace. The waistline also featured beaded lace. The modified A-line skirt and chapel train were enhanced by cascading tiers of organza edged in lace. She wore a mantilla of white organza edged in chantilly lace. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses and white pompons with baby's breath.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Ronald R. Bunzey of Greenville. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Paul Floyd of Olanta, S. C. Mr. Floyd was his son's best man.

The maid of honor was Janet Bunzey, the bride's sister. She wore a yellow flowered crepe gown with voile sleeves and collar and carried a nosegay of white pompons, blue daisies and baby's breath with yellow streamers.

Bridesmaids were Catherine Crawford of Collegedale, Tenn. and Elizabeth Smith of Greenville. They wore gowns of blue flowered crepe with matching voile sleeves and collar and carried nosegays similar to that of the maid of honor, but with blue streamers.

The flower girl, Ashlee White, niece of the bridegroom of Olanta, S. C., wore a blue flowered voile gown styled similarly to those of the bridesmaids. She carried a basket of white pompons, blue daisies and baby's breath.

The Bible bearer was Bruce Smith of Greenville. Ushers were Jeff Engle of Collegedale, Tenn. and Jereld Bunzey, brother of the bride, of Greenville.

MRS. LESLIE PHILLIP FLOYD

Organist was Sylvia Williams and the soloist was William J. Platt, grandfather of the bride.

The bride's mother wore a formal-length dress of pink with matching lace jacket and a corsage of pale pink roses and baby's breath. The bridegroom's mother chose a formal-length blue dress and a corsage of deep pink roses and baby's breath.

The couple will live in Chattanooga, Tenn. The bridegroom is employed by McKee Baking Company of Collegedale, Tenn. The bride is a graduate of Rose High School and has attended Southern Missionary College in Collegedale, Tenn. The bridegroom graduated from Olanta High School in Olanta, S. C. and Coker College in Hartsville, S. C. and has attended Southern Missionary College, also.

The rehearsal party was given in the fellowship hall of the church by the bridegroom's family. A buffet luncheon was held in the bride's parents' home.

Miss Speir, Dr. Brown Wed Saturday Evening

BETHEL — Carolyn Grace Speir and Dr. Townsend Brown Jr. were married in the Bethel United Methodist Church here Saturday at 6:30 p.m.

Their vows were said before the Rev. Ellis Bedsworth and the Rev. Robert K. Smith, uncle of the bride.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Ordway Speir of Bethel. The bridegroom is the son of Townsend Brown Sr. of Virginia Beach, Va. and Mrs. Mary Perkins Brown, also of Virginia Beach. Mr. Townsend was his son's best man.

The bride's gown was of white delustered satin with an empire bodice and oval neckline of alencon lace, with additional motifs of heirloom rosepoint lace re-embroidered with seed pearls. The lace was originally worn by the bride's great-grandmother. A full length veil of silk illusion and alencon lace was attached to a satin bandeaux edged in seed pearls. She carried a cascade of white Jack Frost roses with peace lilies and feverfew.

Matron of honor was Mrs. H. Craig Price of Chapel Hill, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Mark I. Thompson of Winston-Salem, Mrs. Julius Dees of Greenville, Mrs. David Charles Miller of Atlanta, Ga., Miss Lynda Dean Speir, cousin of the bride, of Dorset, Vt., Mrs. Carl I. Carlson III of Charleston, S.C., Mrs. Daniel R. Stevenson of Chapel Hill, Miss Louise Cartwright Eshelman of Alexandria, Va., Miss Virginia Betts Wiltshire of Alexandria, Va., and Miss Nancy Dennis Hill of Alexandria, Va.

The attendants wore floor length gowns of cotton voile. A motif of summer flowers on white was repeated in short boleros and the borders of the full skirts. The matron of honor carried a nosegay of miniature coral carnations, feverfew and baby's breath.

Florence Amanda Crisp of Greenville was the flower girl. Her dress was of fabric identical to that of the bridesmaids' dresses, but was fashioned with a bertha neckline and full skirt gathered at the waist with a ribbon of blending colors. She carried a replica of the bridesmaids' flowers.

Ushers were Timothy Traugott Brown and Samuel Robbins Brown II, brothers of the bridegroom, both of Virginia Beach, Va., James Barbour Rixey II, cousin of the bridegroom of Virginia Beach, Harvey Craig Price of Chapel Hill, Donald Bradford Kidd of Birmingham, Ala., Bernard Candler Grigsby III of New York City, Richard Hoxie Middleton Jr. of Savannah, Ga., and James Clifton Wheat III and William Cabell French, both of Richmond, Va.

Jordan Smith of Greenville, cousin of the bride, was junior usher.

A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Robert Harold Staton, organist, and Mrs. Mary Wells Andrews, vocalist. The wedding was directed by Mrs. R. J. Whitehurst and Mrs. J. M. Butterworth.

After a wedding trip to Bermuda, the couple will live in Virginia Beach, Va.

The bride is a graduate of St. Mary's Junior College and Salem College. She made her debut in 1971 at the North Carolina Debutante Ball held in Raleigh.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Washington and Lee University and received his D.D.S. from Georgetown University. He is presently serving as a dentist in the U. S. Navy.

A reception was held at the Greenville Golf and Country Club following the ceremony.

The bride's table was decorated with snapdragons, larkspur, daisies and baby's breath in pastel colors.

Music was provided by the Contrast Trio of Greenville.

At Wit's End

By Ermo Bombeck

(Author's Note: This is one of a series on How America Vacations and how shots can help. Today's column deals with Cruises.)

Cruises can best be summed up by a slide presentation of our trip to the Caribbean.

The first slide is of a marlin carved out of ice holding 175 pounds of shrimp. The next one is a picture of me stuffing pizza into every hole in my face. The third slide is of a buffet featuring 135 desserts. (This one gives you bad skin just by looking at it). All 96 slides have food as a focal point.

The truth is, most cruises are floating cookies. Like Pavlov's dog, you are conditioned to a series of chimes. Everytime the chimes ring, you loosen your belt, unzip your slacks if the zipper is concealed under an overblouse, and announce, "Let's go eat. They're playing our song."

An early-bird roll and coffee is followed by breakfast. This is followed by appetizers, which precedes lunch. Midafternoon snacks are followed by cocktails of Dr. and Mrs. Sellers L. Crisp of Greenville given for members of the bridal party and out-of-town guests.

The parents of the bridegroom entertained the wedding party and out-of-town guests at a dinner at the Greenville Golf and Country Club Friday. Friends and relatives of the bride entertained at a dance at the country club following dinner. Music was provided by Bill Bollin group of Chapel Hill.

and hors d'oeuvres, which precedes dinner, which is followed by a midnight buffet and pre-dawn breakfast.

In addition to eating, there are all kinds of games to be played aboard ship. There's the deck chair shuffle. On your first day you are assigned your own personal deck chair. Most of the trip is spent making sure no one else sits on your personal deck chair.

There's the Beauty Shop Story Hour. This is a competition among all the women on the ship to see who can tell the saddest story of why her hair needs to be done before they reach port. (Whimpering and threats of reprisals are always effective.)

Watching one another grow. This is a favorite. Once I asked my husband why he was wearing a life preserver and he wasn't.

The "Irregularity Exchange Hour" in which passengers compare their degrees of nausea, queasiness, and frequency. There are many pluses to a cruise. Clothes are hung up on hangers and stay there for the entire trip. The passengers are pampered and entertained and if they don't relax, it's their own fault.

But a word of caution: Take maternity underwear.

Miss Pleasant, Rev. Underwood Are Married

Janet Elaine Pleasant became the bride of the Rev. Joe Dan Underwood Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock in Temple Free Will Baptist Church here.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Lemuel Pleasant of Greenville. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Daniel Underwood of Smithfield. The Rev. Richard Kennedy and the Rev. Van Dale Hudson officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an organza gown designed with a scoop neckline with venise lace trim and long sleeves edged with lace and organza ruffles. The lace trimmed skirt flowed into a chapel train. She wore a matching lace headpiece attached to a lace-edged illusion veil. Her bouquet was of white daisies and pink baby's breath.

The bride had a matron and a maid of honor, Mrs. Jane Randlett and Miss Pat Pleasant, the latter the sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Miss Alicia Pleasant, sister of the bride, of Greenville, Mrs. Brenda Harrison of Lynchburg, Va., Miss Margo Paramore, cousin of the bride, of Kinston and Miss Vickie Curtis of Hampton, Va. The attendants wore scoopneck, empire waist dresses and carried bouquets of white daisies, pink carnations and baby's breath. They wore baby's breath in their hair.

Miss Heather Gray, cousin of the bride, of Rt. 1. Grimesland was flower girl. She wore an off-white empire waist long dress, trimmed in the printed material of the bridesmaids' dresses. She carried a basket of daisies.

Doug Randlett served the bridegroom as best man. Ring bearer was Chris Hill of Chapel Hill. Ushers were David Johnson of Greenville, Robert Underwood, brother of the bridegroom, of Rocky Mount, William Harrison of Lynchburg, Va., and Mike Paramore and Randy McGowan, cousins of the bride, of Kinston and Greenville respectively.

Music was provided by Kent Bryant of Kinston, organist; Dwight and Debra Whitworth, vocal soloists; and Mike Paramore, guitar soloist. The Whitworths sang "Gentle Shepherd" and "He Leadeth Me."

A reception was held in the fellowship room of the church. Punch was served by Mrs. Lois Gray, aunt of the bride. The cake was made and served by Mrs. Becky McGowan and Mrs. Hazel Reel, aunts of the bride.

After a wedding trip to Williamsburg, Va., the Rev. and Mrs. Underwood will live on Rt. 11, Sanford. The bridegroom, attended Bob Jones University, Greenville, S.C., and is pastor of Kendale Acres FWB Church, Sanford. His bride is a graduate of Free Will Baptist Bible College, Nashville, Tenn.

Dropout In Trouble Warns Other Teens

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 16-year-old girl who has been in trouble ever since I can remember. In the last two years I have been kicked out of seven schools. My trouble started when I began to skip school, make up lies, etc. I lost my temper and hit a teacher and had to face an assault charge last month.

My parents have disowned me, and I will probably spend the remainder of my teen years in institutions and group homes. (Right now I'm in Booth Brown Hall in St. Paul, Minn.)

Even though I want terribly to finish high school and go to college, I don't have any high school credits. I hope there will be room in your column to print this message to teenagers who are on their way to having the same kind of problems I am now facing.

If any of you teenagers want to make something of your lives, please stay in school and make the best of it. Going to school is much easier than sitting behind locked doors watching the rest of the world live and learn, and wishing you could.

FINISHED AT 16

DEAR 16: Your letter bears an important message for other teens. But don't abandon your hopes for college. If you really want to go, you can get those credits by working hard, and with determination you can also work your way through college. Nobody is "finished" unless she quits trying.

DEAR ABBY: I agree with the advice you gave to that woman who said her husband kept all his money in the refrigerator. It's not a very good idea to keep too much cold cash on hand. However, I think you should have told her husband that she should keep his money in the freezer, so if anybody hit him up for a loan, he could truthfully say, "Sorry, but all my assets are frozen."
J.V.G. IN SUN CITY, ARIZ.

DEAR J.V.G.: If it's not a good idea to keep too much cold cash on hand, it's a worse idea to keep one's assets frozen. And with inflation climbing, it could be painful to sit too long on a frozen asset.

DEAR ABBY: When my husband died six months ago, a very nice-looking man attended the funeral. He said he had been a very good friend of my husband's. I never saw the man before, but he couldn't have been nicer to me. He kept from three days to two weeks.

Shopping Tips For Fashion

WEST BLOOMFIELD, Mich. (UPI) — Gloria Check, The Wardrobe Mistress, says it's easy to assemble a versatile, fashionable closet of clothes without going broke.

—Read newspaper and magazine articles by knowledgeable fashion authorities to keep up on new trends and inexpensive ways to update your wardrobe.

—Write newspaper fashion editors or feature writers and ask their opinion or advice.

—Spend time window shopping to see how mannequins are dressed in high fashion stores.

—Visit stores and try on new looks.

—Invest in a few good pieces of jewelry. "Jewelry is probably the single most important accessory in your entire wardrobe," Mrs. Check says.

—Take advantage of sales but examine clothing carefully. The time to discover any damage is in the store, not at home.

—Know the difference between clearance sale, damage sale and mark-down sale.

—Inquire about return policies — the time limit can range

Peaceful Summers

needed a nap, but usually everybody returned to whatever he was doing before, maybe a little slower. All but the girls—girls cleaned up the kitchen. In about an hour, they, too, were free to pursue any personal projects they might have. Generally, the hours between one and four were spent in front of the new TV set to keep up with the lives of: Nancy and Chris Hughes and older of two of their three children; Bert and all the Bauers, three generations of them; Vanessa Dale, who was on trial for the murder of her husband (who wasn't dead at all, we learned nearly 20 years later); and struggling with Constance Ford to keep her niece from learning that she was not her aunt, but her mother.

After supper (a light meal of leftovers) everybody came alive as the day cooled into night. Kids gathered for baseball games in backyards, playing until it was too dark to see the ball. Blind-man's bluff would sometimes become the next game—everybody was truly blind—or "Buffalo Gals Won't You Come Out Tonight" (hide and seek to music), until the neighbor kids had to go home. Often, you could get in a few minutes of chasing lightning bugs (fireflies to you city folk) before the last call to bath and bed.

Of course, Sundays were different. There were no chores, for one thing. And, if you got up early enough, you could experience something of what Adam must have felt before God made Eve and ended solitude, except for brief glimpses on early Sundays when the world slept late.

Then there was Church, and perfect attendance pins, Sunday dinners (and company), the "funnies," lazy afternoons on the floor in front of the electric fan, ended by the Ed Sullivan Show and Disneyland.

Yes, those were the days of innocence, before the world had its consciousness raised, before Mom went out and got a job to fulfill herself and began rushing around finding someplace to park the kids—before the monsters of overpopulation, hunger in the Third World and Appalachia, the rising crime rate, etc., etc. came to life and put an end to peace of mind. But outside my window, the world looks just as it always did—newly-mown grass, patriarchal shade trees, and little boys on bicycles raising the dust on a country dirt road.

Junior Achievement Involves Many

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — Some quarter-million students in grades 10-12 participated this past school year in 8,000 Junior Achievement companies. Thousands of adult adviser volunteers also took part in the annual program designed to give young people a practical introduction to the business world.

13-Year-Old

(Continued from page C-1) lacrosse or football because there is a danger to the wires. Not all doctors will agree with this, but I let children do everything they possibly can."

It's possible, he said, because "the whole system of pacemaker technology is getting better."

Cookie sheets are best when they have no sides or only one side (or part of one side) because then the cookie tops will brown best.

Fleming recommends lithium rather than nuclear-powered pacemakers for his younger patients.

"Nuclear pacemakers are very expensive, $6,500 and up. Even assuming they will last a lifetime, the present lithium-powered units are about $2,000 and will probably last 10 to 14 years."

Paperwork is another reason Fleming shuns nuclear-powered units.

"Before you put one in, you must have an autopsy permit to recover it," he said. "An institute must certify to the Atomic Energy Commission that it will retrieve it no matter when and where."

Fleming said the next generation of lithium-powered pacemakers can be built now but have not yet been thoroughly tested. They will use a different chemical, he said, and last about 25 years.

To toast sesame seeds on top of the range, sprinkle them over the bottom of a heavy skillet and stir constantly over moderate heat until they are colored.

Many Keep Their Vows Until Their Money Is Gone

EDITOR'S NOTE — For richer, for poorer; in sickness and in health... They kept their marriage vows until they lost their money to medical expenses. Then they took the only way out.

By JACK MORGAN
Everett (Wash.) Herald
EVERETT, Wash. (AP) — It wasn't that he wanted a divorce — "we had only one argument in 25 years" — or that he hadn't tried to keep his wife with him and work, too.

He did try.
But after 25 years of marriage, Lawrence Rhodes was forced to divorce his wife, Betty, so she would be properly cared for in a local nursing home at state expense.

Before that, Rhodes guesses he spent about $135,000 caring for his wife after she contracted multiple sclerosis in 1960.

In the process, he lost a 24-head dairy farm, used up a small family inheritance and worked in a local lumber mill for 10 years before losing that job last September.

It was in 1974 that Rhodes and his wife talked over their financial situation, consulted social workers and concluded divorce was the only answer.

By mutual agreement, the remaining family assets would be transferred to Rhodes, leaving his wife penniless and eligible for the state to take over costs of her care in a nursing home.

They filed for divorce in Island County. When it became final, the state began paying for the full-time care of Mrs. Rhodes at Josephine Sunset Home in Stanwood, where she is today.

Elders Turn To Big Bands

VAN NUYS, Calif. (AP) — It's like any singles' club — the long bar on one side, tables with small groups of men and women anxiously peering at each other from behind martinis and daquiris on the other. A juke box blares across the empty dance floor.

One of the men tosses down his drink and self-consciously treks across the room to a well-coiffed woman sitting with a friend. He asks for a dance.

Much as it sounds like a trendy disco, it's not.

It's the Mona Lisa, a club in this Los Angeles suburb, "for the over 30 crowd," as the brightly lit sign proclaims. The juke box features Artie Shaw and Glenn Miller, among others, and there's not an acid or punk rock selection listed.

"The older people like to have their own place," says the bar's co-owner, Art Gren. "This is the best age group in the world. I mean, two guys 55 aren't going to get into a fight."

Sherry Muir, one of the barmaids, has worked there for more than two years and says the people are "fantastic."

The Mona Lisa has no corner on the market for big band dancing in the Los Angeles area.

Parry Rames and Les Brown still play the Grove. Wilshire Boulevard's Bounty Room has a free-play juke box well-stocked with Benny Goodman and Ella Fitzgerald, and in nearby Long Beach, with its large retirement community, a string of bars features selections from times past.

California Music Co., a supplier for commercial consumers, says its sales of swing-era records have doubled recently.

One of the firm's bigger customers, juke box entrepreneur Lou Zeiden, says he's noticed the revival in swing music, and is glad of it for more than just business reasons.

"It's good music," he says. "You can dance or sit down and listen to it."

"It hurt then and it still hurts," says Rhodes. They were happy, he says, and before her illness his wife worked alongside him on the farm caring for the animals.

He visits his wife in the nursing home regularly — three times a week or more.

"Yes, I still love her," he says. Sometimes he brings special foods that the nursing home doesn't serve — crab, shrimp, maybe a dill pickle and — her favorite — Swedish fruit soup.

In the past, she was able to take some trips outside. Now she is bedridden. Though unusual, the Rhodeses' solution to financial woes is not unique. Other couples, mostly senior citizens, have done the same thing, say social workers.

When their saga began, the state's Medicaid law said each spouse was responsible for the other. That meant Rhodes' resources had to be virtually exhausted before Medicaid would help Betty.

Since then, changes in the law make it possible to preserve some assets in a medical crisis. Under new state regulations, after a month in a nursing home, one spouse can seek Medicaid without impairing the financial condition of the other. They are considered separated.

Still the assets are considered community property between married people, and it may be necessary for one spouse to divest about half of the couple's resources before becoming eligible for Medicaid.

But another change in the regulation, made in October 1977, allows the state to turn its head while someone who wants aid rearranges the holdings.

For example, part or all of one's property may be given to children or relatives or anyone. Or the holdings may be sold for a pittance, with an informal buy-back arrangement later.

Then, if application is made for Medicaid, past holdings are ignored.

Before last year, the state could have challenged a transfer of resources unless "adequate consideration" was received. Then those resources would have been considered before any state aid was given.

The Everett office of the Department of Social and Health Services says there are sometimes complex situations involving holdings, and each case must be considered individually.

Lawrence and Betty Rhodes decided to divorce in order to preserve some of their assets for their two sons.

When asked if he was bitter, at first he said he wasn't. "But you know," he added, "young people who haven't worked a day in their lives, bitter they get all the help and they can get all kinds of help. That's what I can't see. I feel those who really need it, with sicknesses and all, can't."

AGAIN, BY POPULAR DEMAND!

Joining Equal Rights March

WASHINGTON (AP) — A religious committee for the Equal Rights Amendment, including representatives of 32 Christian and Jewish groups, plans participation in a national march this Sunday supporting extension of the ERA ratification deadline.

"There should not be artificial time limitations on an issue of human rights," says Nancy McConnell, a United Methodist committee officer. "As long as inequality under the law exists, the fullness of our humanity under God has not been realized."

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day to think in terms of how you can best enhance your various duties so that later in the week you will be able to achieve much better results. Also, make plans for the weeks ahead.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Study just how to make your work more skillful and higher-paying in the future. Discuss your affairs with a trusted friend.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Take treatments to improve your health and appearance. Ideal evening for pleasing the one you love.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You can easily clear up a condition at home by taking quick action. This is not the right time to pursue a new project.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Attend to those services that give you peace of mind. Sidestep one who could be detrimental to your progress.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Handle practical affairs in the home and make this a most productive day. Be sure to show more consideration for others.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Take care of any personal affairs in a most precise manner. See what you can do about pleasing your true friends.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) If you encourage your comrades, you gain their goodwill and their assistance. Show increased devotion to mate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Contact good friends and bring more happiness into their lives. Be sure to improve your appearance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Study the tenets that could bring you more inspiration and success in the future. Accept an invitation to a party.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Make sure that you keep a promise you have made to another. Take no chances with your reputation in the evening.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A situation arises that needs your immediate and concentrated attention before it is straightened out. Relax at home tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Try to be of greater service to others now. State your desires to loved one and come to a better understanding.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will like to do detailed work and could become most successful at whatever is tackled before others because of this natural ability. Don't neglect religious training early in life to set the life on the right path.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, JULY 10, 1978

GENERAL TENDENCIES: All kinds of problems are on the horizon today. Look at them objectively and don't allow yourself the luxury of getting depressed. The end of the day finds an improved set of conditions in effect and especially if you make a point to consider new ways to get ahead.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) The day starts with problems at work, but don't let it bother you since later all works out fine for you. Avoid a co-worker who could be trying for a little while. Think logically.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Plan time to get into details of your specialized work so that you can do a better job. Later you can have the recreation that appeals to you.

A loved one is in a petty mood, so smile and it soon passes.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Take care you do not start any trouble at home, but strive for more harmony instead. Handle the problems you have instead of running away from them.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Use particular care while driving, especially on the highways, and avoid trouble. Visit with congenials and gain much favor, good ideas. Use cleverness to build a new stand for yourself.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Consider ways to save more in the future instead of spending so much. Cut down on extravagances. Handle that property matter well and get good results. Avoid the office crank.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have to change your pattern of living quite a bit if you are to gain your finest aims. Spend some time with a good friend.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Plan time to improve the conditions around you and be happier in the future. Stick to business and then you can have more fun with a loved one. Be charming.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Take care of important business early. Reserve the evening for visiting with friends, relatives. Know what your true desires are and then go after them in a positive manner.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) First make your plans and then handle official matters for the rest of the day. A bigwig can be most helpful to you during the evening. Relax and rest on your laurels.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study the stumbling blocks in the path of your progress early and know how to get rid of them. Meet with experts and good advice in other areas of your endeavors.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Analyze your commitments well and then handle them to the best of your ability. Don't ask co-workers for favors as yet. First get your plans worked out nicely.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) A partner is apt to be in a bad mood so avoid him until later in the day. A civic matter does not suit you but later it can be changed.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be able to things very well provided the education is adequate and the training at home intelligent. Teach early to study fundamentals thoroughly and to understand them before going on to the next steps.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

First Need Is People

GREENHORN, Ore. (AP) — One of the communities the Carter administration wants to aid as a distressed urban area has no industry, no electricity, no phone service, no paved roads — and for at least part of the year no people.

Greenhorn is an old, turn-of-the-century mining town 50 miles or so as the road turns west of Baker in Eastern Oregon. Nowadays it's a group of summer cabins. The state highway map grants it a population of three.

The community, however, is incorporated and many of the 17 landowners maintain their voting residence there, although nobody lives there in the wintertime, says Mayor Miles Potter, 62.

Potter, who spends the winters in Portland, has written a book chronicling the mining history of Oregon.

The Carter administration listed four criteria, of which communities must meet three, to receive the development benefits:

—Its unemployment rate is above the national average.
—Its five-year growth rate of employment is below the national average.

—Its five-year growth of population is below the national average.
—Its five-year absolute change in per-capita income is below the national average.

The benefits include tax exemption for small issue bonds and investment tax credit for industry.

Since the cabin owners are all retired and the only employee in the whole town is a summer watchman, Greenhorn qualifies handsily.

"I'm not surprised," Potter chuckled. He says he has no intention of applying for industrial development money at present, since the whole town is engaged in a legal squabble with Baker County over who actually owns the place.

"If we ever get our affairs in order, I suppose we would be entitled to something," he said by telephone from his Portland home.

British photographer Stephen Dalton is high on flying whether it's by man, insects, birds or aircraft.

He soars with enthusiasm as a hang-glider fan and pilot, is an expert in the field of aerodynamics, and is one of the world's top photographers of insects and birds in stop-motion. No wonder that "The Miracle of Flight" by Dalton is a fascinating investigation into the nature of flight in all its forms. With 100 illustrations, 56 of them in color, and 90 diagrams, the book portrays the ingenious mechanisms which nature has devised and which man has copied.

Dalton covers a lot of territory and time, tracing the evolution of flight from the first flying insects of millions of years ago to supersonic flight of the space age. He starts with the basic principles of aerodynamics which are fundamental to all types of flight. He devised advanced techniques to photograph insects and birds to explain how flying creatures use their wings to remain airborne. Millions of years after the evolution of wings in insects and birds, man learned to fly. The history of flight by man is followed from the early bizarre attempts to the ultimate success of the Wright brothers at Kitty Hawk, N. C. in 1903. The final chapter deals with modern aircraft including supersonic flight.

England, is a fellow and medal winner of the Royal Photographic Society and a winner of Nikon and Kodak awards for notable achievement in photography. His work, acclaimed for the clarity and the beauty of insects and birds in free flight, appeared in a previous book, "Borne on the Wind," published in 1975.

His basic photo equipment is a 35mm Leicaflex SL camera with precision macro telephoto lenses. He used Kodachrome film for its consistent quality. But his shutter and flash equipment for taking high-speed photos of free flight flying were developed to order since none were available that could satisfy Dalton's specific requirements.

An insect's flight is fast, frenzied and haphazardly erratic. Dalton decided to direct and pinpoint its appearance in a precise area in space so that he could focus on that area in advance. All he had to do was to devise a device to detect the insect's presence the instant it arrived and to have a camera shutter opened at the same precise instant... and have enough light to take its picture.

Normal shutters open within 1-20th of a second, but in that time an insect can be 10 inches past the point of focus. Dalton designed an optical-electronic system to detect insects in free flight. It used a very thin beam of light with an ultra-sensitive amplifier directed at a photo-electric eye. To make it more effective, the beam was duplicated by a series of reflecting mirrors. It was so sensitive, even the shadow of an insect's antennae touching a light beam was enough to trigger a camera and high-speed flash.

Then he designed and built a shutter which would open in 1-400th of a second when triggered. The shutter was clamped in front of a 100mm macro tele lens and used instead of the Leica's focal plane shutter which was kept in a locked-open position.

A colleague, an electronics engineer interested in photography, collaborated in the project. He designed and built a flash unit which provided a flash duration of 1-25,000th of a second. It was fast enough to freeze the movement of flapping wings yet powerful enough to expose Kodachrome film at a small aperture for maximum depth of field. In addition, it was portable and could be used on location for bird photography. To direct an insect's flight path, Dalton rigged a tunnel arrangement into which the insect was released. It would fly towards the other end opening into the great outdoors. But along the way, it encountered the light beams which triggered its own pictures. The results were magnificent color photographs that were sharp, artistically beautiful and an invaluable aid in the study of aerodynamics.

Courses in Agriculture Attract Non-Farmers

By SCOTT KRAFT
Associated Press Writer
MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Jim Buchanan figured that one day he'd sink his own plow blade into the soil surrounding his family's farm in Little River, Kan. But there were others with similar aspirations — namely Buchanan's five brothers. "Dad said he couldn't pick only one of us. So none of us plans to go back to the farm," Buchanan said.

While a senior at Kansas State University, Buchanan considered buying his own farm after graduation. But he guessed he'd need at least 640 acres of a mixture of grazing and farmland to turn a profit, and that would have run more than $400,000 for the land alone.

Buchanan abandoned hope for a return to the farm, but he still wanted to be in agriculture. So now, he's working on a master's degree in agriculture economics. "I felt my knowledge of farming could be an advantage in the business world," he said.

And last fall, a Chicago-based commodities corporation selected the 25-year-old Buchanan to open its new office in Manhattan, Kan. He became a commodities broker. Buchanan was one of nearly 100,000 students enrolled at agriculture colleges in the United States last fall. And he's one of a growing number of students today who see agriculture colleges as a catapult to well-paying jobs in government and agribusiness rather than four-year leaves from the family farm.

Administrators at most of the major land-grant schools boast booming enrollments, including more women and more students from urban backgrounds, and more non-farm courses in the curriculum. In 15 years, enrollment in the agriculture program at the 70 land-grant colleges doubled, according to figures compiled by Iowa State University. And the percentage of women in the agriculture program jumped from less than 5 percent in 1963 to about 30 percent in 1977.

At Kansas State University, fewer than 600 students were enrolled in agriculture in 1962, compared with 2,374 last fall. And the university says applications from prospective freshmen are up. "We're eager to have new students, because the jobs are waiting," says Dr. Dave Mugler, acting dean of the College of Agriculture at Kansas State University. "Despite problems on the farm, the job market is still exceedingly good to our graduates."

About 34 percent of last year's graduates in agriculture at KSU went to work in agribusiness, compared with 31 percent the year before. And only 23 percent returned to the farm in 1977, compared with 29 percent a year before. Some say the expanding curricula in agriculture colleges have been at least partly responsible for increases in total enrollments and more women and city dwellers in agriculture. At Kansas State, for example, the agriculture program in the 1960s consisted of six major areas of study. Today, there are 20 programs available, including diverse fields such as horticulture therapy, food science, natural resources management and crop protection. Administrators at the universities say urban students are flocking to courses in the environment, landscaping and floriculture (flower arranging), for example. And more students with farm backgrounds are opting for agriculture studies in marketing and processing.

Famed Tower Is 900 Years Old

WASHINGTON (AP) — Britain's famed Tower of London is 900 years old this year. The National Geographic Society says the tower is England's most popular tourist attraction — three million persons visited it in 1977.
Among the things a visitor can see at the tower are: the crown jewels; a chopping block and axes; dungeons and instruments of torture, and suits of armor.
Work on the tower was begun by William the Conqueror in 1078, 12 years after his invasion of England.

GARDEN FOR BLIND
HAMBURG, Germany (AP) — Some 16 beds of flowers and plants — selected specially for blind persons — have been installed in Hamburg's City Park.
The beds are on platforms some 30 inches high and are surrounded by a handrail. They contain herbs, evergreens, small trees, flowers and various types of grasses, all arranged in sequence and for easy access to the hands of the blind. Each bed contains a tablet describing the contents in Braille.

Ben Gazzara Stars In Fact-Based Drama Of Youth's Drug Addiction

FAMILY IN DISTRESS — Ben Gazzara, left and Eileen Brennan star as the parents of a teenage son, Richie (Robby Benson), who becomes addicted to drugs and throws his home into unceasing turmoil in "The Death of Richie," on NBC-TV's "The Big Event" Tuesday, July 11 (9 to 11 p.m.)

Mental Child Abuse Explored In Movie

Talia Shire and Burt Young star in "Daddy I Don't Like It Like This," airing as "The CBS Wednesday Night Movie," July 12, 9 to 11 p.m.

The two-hour drama, written by Young, concerns mental child abuse in an Italian-American family in New York City. The picture also stars Doug McKeon as the unhappy son of parents (Shire and Young), who try to make up for their own disappointments through the child. Co-stars include Erica Yohn and Tresa Hughes.

The compelling story of how a child becomes the victim of his parents starts with the marriage of a young couple, Carol and Rocco Agnelli, who have high hopes for their life together.

Ambitious but untrained, the husband gives up a career as a boxer and plans to go into business himself. But he is sidetracked by the necessity of making a living, and goes to work at a monotonous job in a knitting mill.

Carol and Rocco unwittingly impose their own expectations on their son, Peter (McKeon), who is under additional pressure from the strict discipline of the nuns at his parochial school.

Ben Gazzara stars in a fact-based drama about the shattering effect a 16-year-old boy's drug addiction has on his family in "The Death of Richie," to be rebroadcast on NBC-TV's "The Big Event" Tuesday, July 11, 9 to 11 p.m.

Unable to communicate or reason with his son, George Werner (Gazzara) turns to the juvenile authorities to help him. He asks for a court hearing on the matter but later withdraws the request when Richie (Robby Benson) takes a job at a hamburger stand.

But he soon quits and falls back into his old ways. And in desperation, his mother, Carol (Eileen Brennan), attends a group therapy session for the parents of drug addicts hoping to find a solution to the problem.

The drama is based on the book "Richie" by Thomas Thompson.

Gazzara has had a number of 'identities' since he was born to immigrant Italian parents in New York. He has been a sadistic military school bully ("End As a Man," the Broadway play that made him a star), a junkie (also on Broadway, in "Hatful of Rain"), a government agent (in "Pursuit," one of many TV movies in which he has starred), and for three years on Television, a man preparing for his own death (Gazzara didn't die, but "Run for Your Life" did).

After a series of stage successes (including "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof"), things slowed down for Gazzara; the movie version of "End As a Man" (called "The Strange One"), was a failure, and his next Broadway appearance was in a very unsuccessful play ("Night Circus").

The double setback didn't really hurt Gazzara. His next appearance on film was in the highly successful "Anatomy of a Murder" with Lee Remick (who also played Gazzara's love interest in the TV movie, "QB VII").

After many other films the actor starred in his first television series, "Arrest and Trial," followed by another play on Broadway — the Actors Studio production of Eugene O'Neill's "Strange Interlude" which was a huge success.

Then came "Run for Your Life," that had a three-year run.

Screen Classic To Air

"West Side Story," the screen classic which won 10 Academy Awards, including Best Picture of the Year, will be rebroadcast on "The CBS Tuesday Night at the Movies," July 11, 8 to 11 p.m.

The movie, based on the smash Broadway musical, stars Natalie Wood, Richard Beymer, Russ Tamblyn, Rita Moreno and George Chakiris. Miss Moreno and Chakiris won Oscars for their performances in the movie, an updated version of "Romeo and Juliet" that takes place on the streets of New York's West Side.

In the story, two rival gangs — the Jets, headed by Riff (Tamblyn) and the Sharks, led by Bernardo (Chakiris) — are observing an uneasy truce when both decide to attend a neighborhood dance.

During the dance, Jet member Tony (Beymer), who has been losing interest in gang life, reluctantly agrees to back Riff in challenging the Sharks to a rumble. A time for the fight is set, but before the night is over, Tony meets and falls in love with Bernardo's sister, Maria (Miss Wood).

Maria is equally enthralled by her brother's enemy. They meet secretly and decide to marry. But Tony faces a dilemma. Either he backs out on his closest friends or he comes into violent conflict with Maria's brother.

Miss Moreno plays Anita, Bernardo's sweetheart and Maria's confidant.

Leonard Bernstein composed the score for the musical drama and Stephen Sondheim wrote the lyrics. The songs, many of which have become standards, include: "The Jet Song," "Something's Coming," "Maria," "America," "Tonight," "Gee, Officer Krupke," "I Feel Pretty," "One Hand, One Heart," "Somewhere," "Cool," "A Boy Like That," and "I Have a Love."

In addition to the best-picture award and Miss Moreno's and Chakiris' Oscars, "West Side Story" won Academy Awards for direction (Robert Wise and Jerome Robbins), cinematography, art direction, sound musical scoring, editing, and costume design.

Richard Beymer and Natalie Wood star as lovers who try to cross the tragic barrier of ethnic antagonisms, in "West Side Story," the Academy Award-winning musical, to be rebroadcast on "The CBS Tuesday Night Movie," July 11 (9-11 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

Tropical Fish Featured

Host Hal Linden explores the world of the tropical fish in art, literature, legend, mythology and in the environment on the award-winning young people's magazine series, "Animals Animals Animals." Sunday, July 9, 11:30 to 11:55 a.m., on ABC-TV.

'Animals' features Scott Bodie, a tropical fish doctor in New York who makes house calls. Scott shows how to build a fish tank and maintain it.

An animated fable, "The Golden Fish," tells about a beautiful goldfish and a very sad prince, and proves that while a fish may be cold-blooded, it can also have a very warm heart.

The program also includes an animated poem, "Sounds in a Fish Tank."

Mary Is Multi-Talented

Mary Stuart has been communicating with television audiences for more than 27 years through the warm, likable character of Joanne Vincent in "Search for Tomorrow," a daytime serial that airs on CBS-TV. And, during the past few years, she's found other ways of communicating and is spinning new careers for herself. She's recorded an album titled "Mary Stuart," and is now in the midst of writing a book.

Mary says the book will be a memoir "that's written on three levels," detailing her incredible run as Jo on "Search," as well as flashbacks to her Tulsa (Okla.) childhood and her years in Hollywood in the '40s when she was groomed by MGM's Joe Pasternak to be a studio starlet and leading lady to the likes of the late Errol Flynn.

The actress is sandwitching in her writing between her 'Search' stints, her musical concert and lecture tours, recording sessions of her original musical compositions and coaching lessons to young actor friends in her living room. She has also recently completed the narration of a children's movie that was produced and written by a few of her proteges.

Columbo Matches Wits With Network Executive

Trish Van Devere guest-stars as a ruthless TV network executive who concocts an intricately timed homicide plan, in "Make Me A Perfect Murder," a "Columbo" drama on NBC-TV's "The Big Event" Sunday, July 9, 9 to 11 p.m. Peter Falk stars as Lieutenant Columbo.

Also appearing in the drama are Patrick O'Neal as the head of the network; Laurence Luckinbill as the network official who is the target of the homicide plot; James McEachin as a projectionist; and singer Lainie Kazan as an over-the-hill singer.

Kay Freestone, passed over for an anticipated promotion by her lover-boss, Mark Andrews, carries out his perfectly timed execution while supposedly screening a film for New York VIPs. Lieutenant Columbo suspects Kay as well as the VIPs, until he discovers Kay had the most to gain from Mark's death. As Columbo closes in on her, she tried to pacify the police detective while calming a terrified star (Kazan), meeting network programming schedules and covering her tracks to prevent incrimination.

Peter Falk, who so effectively portrays the raincoat-clad detective. thinks one reason the show has been so popular is viewers identify with his character.

"It's just like other shows — 'Rhoda,' 'I Love Lucy,' 'The Carol Burnett Show,' 'The Honeymooners' — they identify with the character."

Another thing going for Columbo is that he's always dealing with so-called 'classy' murders.

"I think that part of the idea of the show right from the start was to have the guy in the old raincoat — with the old car and the old shoes — tangle with people that have it all," he said in typical Columbo dialect. "They had it all — good clothes, the good address — and the money and the wealth — and the power. It was to have him take those select few — that crowd — and bring 'em down to earth."

There's never been an unsolved murder on "Columbo." Nor will there be.

COLUMBO'S QUARRY — Trish Van Devere guest stars as a ruthless television network executive who is a suspect in the slaying of her lover-boss in "Make Me A Perfect Murder," a "Columbo" presentation on NBC-TV's "The Big Event," Sunday, July 9 (9 to 11 p.m.)

CARPET TIPS

KICK THE "GUMS" OUT!

A clean carpet is long-lasting. Sometimes, people take their floors for granted. While renting an apartment, for example, they allow their flooring often can be reclaimed, but luxurious carpet will die of gummed up fibers and neglect without regular attention.

Don't neglect carpet. Give it the once-per-week vacuuming treatment. Kick the "gums" out! Let your carpet live...

'Pops' Opens 49th

As sure a sign of summer as baseball games and lemonade is a new season of "Evening at Pops" with the Boston Pops Orchestra and its inimitable conductor, Arthur Fiedler. 1978 marks the 49th year that Maestro Fiedler, fondly called "Mr. Pops" by music lovers across the country, has led the Boston Pops Orchestra in an era that has had no parallel in the history of symphonic ensembles.

Star Of 'Soap' Turns To Sailing And Sea

The adage that you can take the boy out of the farm, but you can't take the farm out of the boy, does not apply to Robert Mandan. There's no farm left in him, he has fallen in love with sailing and the sea.

became friends of the Christmans and are now "crew."

The Kohala plays the waters between Southern California and the off-shore islands, where the seas get as rough as any in the world.

Robert is a Missourian who grew up hard by the Arkansas border. He left that pastoral setting at an early age and began a career that led to Broadway and then to Hollywood, where he is now starring as Chester Tate in ABC-TV's "Soap," airing Mondays and Tuesdays at 11:30 p.m.

Bob Mandan has been out there when a casual weekend sail turns into a screaming, howling nightmare. The hot, dry Santa Ana winds that originate in California's deserts give little warning as they turn the sea into a beautiful, white-capped froth. Or a storm from far out at sea can rip into the channel, wrecking havoc on boaters before it tears into the coastline.

3:20 (17) Open Up

While in New York and on visits to Massachusetts, he got his first taste of sailing and was hooked. The exhilaration of the sea followed him to the West Coast. At every opportunity he "would go sit at a boatowner's feet and learn." Bob now has found the master of the sea that he totally admires. Chuck Chrisman and his wife Marie are retired and live on the 36-foot ketch, Kohala, on the Pacific Ocean some 25 miles up the coast from Hollywood. Mandan, and his wife, Sherry, Bob has been on the ocean, lashed to the tiller, as giant waves slapped him across the face, leaving his mouth puffed and his eyes feeling like they'd been stung by a thousand bees.

Bob has been out when incredible seas lunged at his boat, lifting its bowsprit to the heavens like a huge swordfish, and leaving him swearing that the craft would surely break in half when it came down.

But Bob has also been out there when a good, fresh wind gets the maxium speed out of the craft, and the sun or stars shine down, and it is heaven.

A wag once said that the two happiest days in a guy's life are when he buys a boat and when he sells it.

Not so for Chuck Chrisman and Robert Mandan. The Kohala is Chuck's life. It took Chuck and Maria 15 years to build it themselves, and it is fast becoming Robert Mandan's life. He is learning at the master's feet, and for good reason.

Robert Mandan wants to sail around the world.

A Talented Little Girl

A charming new personality joined the "Good Times" cast last season — Janet Jackson, the 12-year-old 'littles' member of the famed musical Jackson family.

She was introduced to viewers as a mysterious little girl with even more mysterious scars who touched the lives of Willona and the Evans family when they inadvertently discovered her well-kept secret and then told it to the police. But their efforts to save the child almost led to her destruction. Part I of the four-part story will be rebroadcast Monday, July 10, 8:30 to 9 p.m., on CBS-TV.

Michael (Ralph Carter) shares a prize possession with Penny (Janet Jackson) on "Good Times," in Part I of a four-part story, Monday, July 10 (8:30-9 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

Phil Foster's 'Other' Kids Number Hundreds

AS Frank De Fazio, Phil Foster is the on-screen father of Penny Marshall and the father-advisor to Cindy Williams in their roles as "Laverne and Shirley" (Tuesday, 8:30 to 9 p.m. on ABC-TV).

However, when the veteran comedian turned actor and writer isn't in front of the cameras for the hit comedy show, he's busy with the 'other' kids he has in his life. These number in the hundreds and they're called the "Foster's Kids," which is Phil's school for would-be comedians and actors in New York.

"It's my belief that comedy can be taught," Phil says. "The only thing I try to do is teach the individual how to use the creativeness in himself, or herself. Too many comics, especially stand-up comics, will get and unconsciously adopt the habit of copying someone they've seen. It may not be the exact same material but they'll duplicate mannerisms and gestures."

"The 'Foster's Kids' is designed to help comics understand and use what they have to contribute as individuals, and it's also for people who are not comedians."
 "I mean, there's a way to do drama and still be light about it, and it's those techniques that I try to impress upon an actor"

Certainly Phil has been an asset to those he's worked with, as much as he has to his sons, Dan and Mike, whom he raised from their youth following his divorce from the boys' mother. Even when Phil's career took him on the road for weeks and months at a time, he was a long-distance father to Dan and Mike. Unlike Frank De Fazio, however, Phil seldom raised his voice when it became necessary to discipline his sons. "I never yelled with these kids of mine," he says, "and I never hit them. I just made my point and if they didn't understand my point, we talked about it. I used to put them on their own because I did travel, telling them simply that I expected them to chip in on their own lives."

Williams Declares 'Potsie's Ageless'

"I don't base Potsie on the fifties," says Anson Williams, co-star of ABC-TV's "Happy Days" (Tuesdays, 8 to 8:30 p.m.). "His language and his walk and attitude might be fifties," offers Anson, "but Potsies and Fonzie and Ralphies — they're all universal characters. There's no set year for them. I think that's why the series has been so successful because all the kids can now relate to that since that's how their friends are today."

Aside from Anson's performing career, there is another aspect of his life which he feels very strongly about — his work for charitable organizations.

For the past few years, Anson has sung, emceed, acted, hosted and raised money for the National Easter Seals Drive and the Cerebral Palsy Foundation. His total concern for his fellow man and his desire for getting down to a more personal level when dealing with the handicapped is evident.

"No one is made aware of the plight of the handicapped," explains Anson. "They don't see them around in public, as extras on TV or in public schools. If people would look at someone's soul instead of their physical being, not only would it help make the disabled first class citizens, but it would help all of us too as people. It reflects universally, everything."

Although Anson first made waves as an actor through "Happy Days," his previous experience had been in summer stock musicals and even singing TV commercials. He's appeared in "The Music Man," "The Sound of Music" and "South Pacific."

Being realistic, Anson admits that "always in the back of my mind was the thought that, if I made it in acting, the music end would come along with it."

True, because he has sung in several episodes of the series, and has written two songs for the show.

Anson is a frequent guest on "Dinah," "The Mike Douglas Show" and both the daytime and nighttime versions of "Hollywood Squares." He has also guested on Dick Clark's "American Bandstand," and it was on this show that he introduced his recording, "Deeply."

One night wonder...where did Potsie come from. A figment of Anson Williams' imagination?

"Actually, I developed him after two friends of mine who were Potsies. Me?" he asks. "I was born a Richie."

Defends Murder Suspect

Chad Everett stars as an attorney defending a murder suspect who claims she was being blackmailed in the movie "In the Glitter Palace," to be rebroadcast on "NBC Monday Night at the Movies" July 10, 9 to 11 p.m., on NBC-TV.

Vincent Halloran (Everett) takes the case at the urging of Ellen Lange (Barbara Hershey), a former girlfriend who works as a secretary in his office. Halloran's investigation unexpectedly takes him to the fringes of the gay world and he learns that Ellen and the suspect, Casey Walker (Diana Scarwid), were lovers. He also discovers that the murdered woman was blackmailing gay women under threat of exposing them.

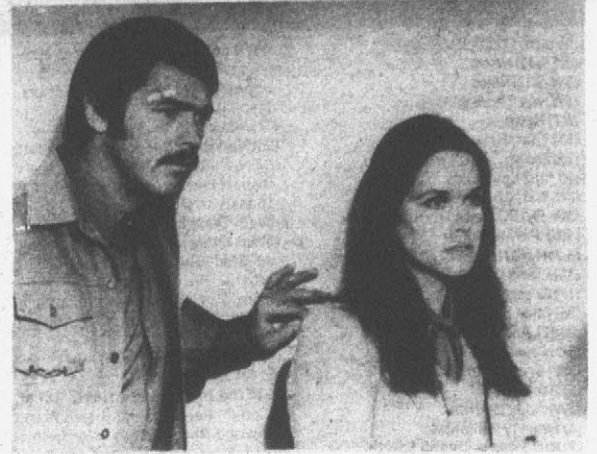

Casey's wealthy father, Raymond Travers (Howard Duff), wants his daughter to plead guilty to manslaughter so the embarrassing matter can be disposed of before adverse disclosures reach the public.

Everett, star of the long-running series on TV, "Medical Center," has been actively involved in acting since his first stage appearance as a 17-year-old high school student in Dearborn, Mich.

He toured India with a State Department-sponsored theatrical group and studied for a time in Rome, returning to the U.S. to complete his college education.

During a three-year tenure at Warner Bros. Television, Everett appeared in "Hawaiian Eye," "77 Sunset Strip," "Surfside Six," "Lawman" and "Bronco" on TV. This led to a lucrative contract with MGM, where he appeared in numerous TV shows and films.

An accomplished horseman, Everett raises thoroughbred race horses on his sprawling ranch in the San Fernando Valley.

UNUSUAL CASE — Chad Everett stars as an attorney who is convinced by a former employee (Barbara Hershey) to take the case of a young female homicide suspect who claims she is being blackmailed because she is gay in "In the Glitter Palace" on "NBC Monday Night at the Movies," July 10 (9-11 p.m.) on NBC-TV.

Mulgrew Featured In 'Alien Lover'

Kate Mulgrew stars as a lonely teenager who finds a strange and intriguing friend in a television image from another dimension in "Alien Lover," the "ABC Mystery of the Week," airing Wednesday, July 12, at 12:30 p.m. on ABC-TV.

Pernell Roberts and Susan Brown also star, as Mike and Marian Ballard, who bring to their home Marian's niece, Susan (Miss Mulgrew), recently released from a sanitarium following the death of her parents in a plane crash.

During her first night at the Ballard house, Susan hears her name called by a distant voice which she traces to the attic where the Ballards' son, Jude, keeps his electronic equipment, including a TV set.

The TV receiver is the source of the mysterious voice, projected on the screen by a handsome young man who calls himself Marc. He tells Susan he exists in a different dimension but will be available whenever she needs him. Her belief in Marc involves Susan in the bizarre fate of two members of the Ballard household.

The cast includes John Venton as Marc, Harry Moses as Richard Rosenstein and David Lewis as Dr. Steiner.

'Squadron' Episode Marks Double Debut

In a double debut, Jeb Adams, 16-year-old son of the late Nick Adams, arrives as an underage pilot and Denise DuBarry checks in as a new nurse, in "Forbidden Fruit," an episode of "The Black Sheep Squadron" encoring Wednesday, July 12, 9 to 10 p.m., on NBC-TV. Robert Conrad, who stars as "Pappy" Boyington, directed the episode. Nurse Samatha Greene (Denise DuBarry) is new to the flyers, but not to either "Pappy" or General Moore; she's a former flame of "Pappy" and the daughter of the general. Because she used her mother's maiden name, Pappy doesn't know she's the general's daughter and the general doesn't know she has arrived on their forward island in the Southwest Pacific. All this comes to a boil when the general walks in on the passionate reunion of Samantha and "Pappy." Meanwhile, the smooth-cheeked Jeb Pruitt (Jeb Adams) is about to be sent home, despite mounting enemy air activity, when his superiors realize he's the only flyer on the island who can handle the new radar plane he had flown a few days earlier in flight school.

"Forbidden Fruit" marked the TV and professional acting debut of young Adams. DuBarry co-starred in the TV movie, "Dead Man's Curve," the story of pop singers Jan and Dean. Other credits include television's "A Year at the Top," "Magic Mango" and "The Gong Show."

The episode also marked the series debut of Kathy McCullen as Nurse Ellis. Her credits include five years of "Fernwood 2 Night" and the forthcoming movie, "Big Wednesday."

Young Writes Scripts

When actor Burt Young didn't like the scripts he was getting, he started writing his own.

Now, the 1977 Oscar-nominee (for "Rocky") is starring in one of his own movies and getting requests to do other story treatments — work he'll have to postpone to finish current acting commitments.

He wrote the script for "Daddy I Don't Like It Like This," in which he stars with Talia Shire. The new motion picture-for-television will air on "The CBS Wednesday Night Movies," July 12, 9 to 11 p.m., on CBS-TV.

He and Miss Shire played brother and sister in the Oscar-winning feature film, "Rocky." This time, they play a young Italian-American couple whose troubled marriage takes its toll on their son, played by 11-year-old Doug Mckean.

'Abide With Me' To Air On PBS

"Abide With Me," a moving dramatic interpretation of a real-life story, will be shown on "Great Performances" Wednesday, July 12, at 9 p.m. on PBS. The program features Kathleen Nesbitt and Ann Francis.

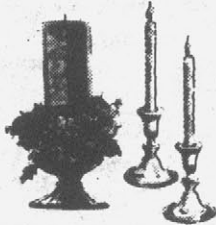

"Abide With Me" was based on Winifred Foley's autobiographical "A Child in the Forest" and filmed in the original Gloucestershire setting. It is set in 1928, in a small sleepy village in England's Cotswald Hills. Fourteen-year-old Winnie Mason arrives to stay for six months as housekeeper and maid to ninety year old Mrs. Hollins, a lady who insists on being called "Ma'am" and who keeps the child's nose to the grindstone.

'Mr. Wizard' Returns

Peabody Award Winner Don Herbert, famed since 1951 as TV's "Mr. Wizard," has budgeted $500,000 for the TV production and presentation of 65 90-second, two or four-minute science featurettes that will be inserted into adult news and other local programs this fall through syndicated sales.

The new mini-mini series concept of producing scientific insert featurettes is supported by the National Science Foundation, motivated by its educational division's chartered objective to search out new and more popular ways of communicating scientific information. An Advisory Board of 10 leading scientists from varied disciplines contributes and reviews contents of "How About..." insert featurettes.

Subjects will include information, demonstrations and visual effects about volcanoes, floods, fire, space signals, seeds worth more than gold, holography, radar guns, sharks, calories, white cells, bats, tree puller, micro-organisms, meteorites and oil spill clean up. Some of these timeless subjects will be used in news shows or other local programs as additional researched explanatory information to tie into news events as they occur.

In addition to producing-hosting more than 600 "Mr. Wizard" programs over the NBC Television Network (1951-65 and 1971-72), Don Herbert is widely known for his eight years of commercial work as the GE Progress Reporter on CBS-TV.

Author of six popular science books, he is about to start his seventh.

The "How About..." umbrella title derives from what audiences are expected to say to themselves ("How about that!") as they view each segment.

Producer-Director is Ernest R. Rinaldi; writer, Joe Walders' marketing director, Norma Herbert; with syndication sales handled by Bill Dobbins.

Pike's Peek

By Charlie Pike, TV Showtime staff writer. HOLLYWOOD — The cast and crew alike of "Charlie's Angels" was glad to leave Las Vegas after a two-week location, where the casinos and nightlife took their toll on just about everyone. By the time filming was completed, even the well-prepared Cheryl Ladd was slipping away between scenes to catch 40 winks.

Now it's being reported that while Erik Estrada of "CHiPs" may be deeply involved romantically, there's nothing but denials that he's making wedding plans. Besides, his current companion isn't Kristi Lautner as reported last week, but Kathi Lautner, which shows just how inaccurate some gossip can be.

There may be no wedding for two different couples of daytime's "General Hospital" either, but there's a lot of togetherness. Steve Carlson (Dr. Gary Lansing) and Gail Ramsey (Susan Moore) are not hiding their togetherness, both on and off the set, while Chris Robinson (Dr. Rick Webber) and Denise Alexander (Dr. Leslie Faulkner) are devoting a lot of time to each other's side lunching and jogging together.

Of course, the biggest news from 'Hospital' is the departure of Gerald Gordon, the show's Dr. Mark Dante. Gerry's two-year contract expired and, as he vowed he would do, he left the show hosting a posh party at the swank Chasen's Restaurant to commemorate the event.

Olivia Newton-John's long-time manager-boyfriend is said to be reaching the boiling point in having to stand back in the shadows while "his girl" and John Travolta hug, kiss and hold hands for the sake of publicity surrounding the release of their film, "Grease." Lee Kramer is very close to leaving Olivia's life, but then, he's been close before.

John McCook will take a three-week absence from his 'Young and Restless' role to appear in the summer stage presentation of "Oklahoma."

Priscilla Presley continues to date hair dresser Elie Erzerer but is reportedly packing her bags in preparation for a semi-permanent move to London later this summer when her daughter, Lisa Marie, enrolls in a private boarding school there.

There's rumblings of a major cast change within "The Incredible Hulk" if persistent problems with a certain featured actor aren't resolved. Hint: It's not Bill Bixby.

Fantasy Island Sequel To Air

Unexpected romance and peril greet six people who fly to a plush island resort where they are given the opportunity to live out their most desired fantasies in "Return to Fantasy Island," a sequel to one of last season's most popular television films, airing as "The ABC Thursday Night Movie," July 13, 9 to 11 p.m., on ABC-TV.

Ricardo Montalban returns as the mysterious Mr. Roarke, the owner of Fantasy Island and the purveyor of dreams, assisted by the mysterious Tattoo (Herve Villechaize).

Guest stars are Adrienne Barbeau, Horst Bucholz, Joseph Campanella, George Chakiris, Joseph Cotten, Pat Crowley, Laraine Day, George Maharis, Cameron Mitchell, France Nuyen and Karen Valentine.

In the film, the six guests of Mr. Roarke arrive at the island each with their own secret desires: Lucy and Brian Faber (Miss Crowley and Campanella) wish to see the daughter they gave up for adoption at birth; Janet and Charles Fleming (Miss Valentine and Bucholz) desperately seek a way to relive an entire day in their past in hopes of finding a cause for Janet's amnesia; Margo Dean (Miss Barbeau), a wealthy businesswoman, and her male secretary, Benson (Maharis), find that their fantasy puts their lives in danger.

A Look At Paris—PBS

Songs by Charles Aznavour and Yves Montand, Parisian night-life, composer-pianist Claude Bolling, and a comedy sketch about a hotel with red and white wine taps in each room are among the highlights as Americans get a rare glimpse of French culture on "From Paris With Love: An Evening of French Television." Friday, July 14, 9 p.m. on PBS.

Excerpts from a costume drama, a fast-paced documentary on Bastille Day, and a comedy about the misadventures of a lawyer who is allergic to his wife comprise a major part of the three-hour special.

In addition to the Bastille Day documentary, major segments will include:

- An episode from one of the biggest recent hits on French television, a series based on the Jules Verne novel "Michel Strogoff."
- "Esprit de Suite," concerning a lawyer who makes a series of inept attempts to murder his wife in all sorts of unusual ways.
- "Paris by Night: The Champs-Elysees," a documentary exploring the nightlife of one of Paris' best-known areas.
- An episode from "Les Minichroniques," a series of sketches by Gossing, best known for the cartoon strip "Asterix" which appears in newspapers around the world.

Among the popular singers on the program will be Charles Aznavour; Mireille Mathieu, singing "La Vie en Rose"; and Sylvie Vartan.

French commercials add realism to the evening and give American viewers some amusing insights into differences (and similarities) between advertising tactics in the two countries.

Hosting the program will be popular French TV Network "Speakerine," Evelyn Leclercq. Ms. Leclercq, who regularly cajoles millions of French viewers into staying tuned, will introduce segments of the program in English, from picturesque sites throughout Paris. English dubbing or subtitles will be used for the non-musical portions of the program.

"From Paris With Love" is the first of several "Evening Of..." specials which will bring to American audiences the best of foreign television in a format which would be both entertaining and educational. Planning has begun for future specials from television in other European countries, Australia, Asia, and South America.

Richard Boone Stars

The world's richest man, trapped in a pocket of suspended time without weapons, hunts the last Tyrannosaurus Rex in "The Last Dinosaur," an adventure film rebroadcast as "The ABC Friday Night Movie," July 14, 8 to 10 p.m., on ABC-TV.

Richard Boone stars as Masten Thrust, the obsessive hunter who is so rich, so powerful, that only the undreamed-of trophy — the head of a dinosaur, last survivor of a species extinct for thousands of years — can still excite him.

A graduate of Stanford University, Boone is a sports-car enthusiast, art collector, golfer and bullfight aficionado.

Television Turns To Press

For years, newspapers have scrutinized television, but it's rare when television turns its attention to the press. The American daily newspaper — and how newspaper journalism is affected by newspaper economics — will be explored on an hour-long report, "The Business of Newspapers," a CBS News Special to be broadcast Friday, July 14, 10 to 11 p.m., on CBS-TV.

Anchored by Hughes Rudd (a former newspaperman), the special will examine the business of the pencil press, and how economic considerations can govern editorial policies and coverage.

As is done in other mass market businesses, newspaper companies often engage market research specialists for advice on boosting circulation (and, in turn, advertising rates). In Boston, the broadcast looks at The Herald American's new-found approach to news coverage, with an emphasis on so-called fluff journalism, and the effect on its competitor, The Boston Globe.

In 97 percent of American newspaper cities, there is only one newspaper owner. The result is often a conflict between the public's right to know and what actually gets printed. In Phoenix, where there has been a newspaper monopoly for 40 years, "Some people are concerned," Rudd observes, noting that the commonly owned Gazette and Republic "are using their dominant power to suppress the news." The broadcast traces one possible case of such suppression, the papers' unexpected refusal to print a controversial report on Arizona corruption that was spurred by the murder of Republic investigative reporter Don Bolles.

"The Business of Newspapers" also examines the business of newspaper chains, which now represent more than 72 percent of total daily circulation, and are still growing. "It's been estimated," Rudd says, "that there'll be no independent newspapers and chains will be bought up by rich businesses with no journalistic experience but with a special interest in how certain news stories are covered.

CBS News correspondent Hughes Rudd will narrate the CBS News Hour, "The Business of Newspapers," airing Friday, July 14 (10-11 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

Michele Will Tell

TO D. WARDEN, WARDENSVILL, W.VA.: John Travolta has two brothers and three sisters. One brother, Joey is a singer and has an album coming out any day now.

TO C. GARY, JACKSON, N.C.: Mary Tyler Moore was born in Brooklyn, N.Y., Dec. 29, 1936, and moved with her parents to Calif. at age 10. Her first attention-getting role was as Sam, the secretary with the sexy voice and beautiful legs whose face was never shown on the "Richard Diamond" series (1957-59).

TO B. JACKSON, FLORENCE, S.C.: NBC-TV has pegged "Peter Lundy and the Medicine Hat Stallion," starring Leif Garrett, as a possible series. It's not in the fall line-up, but it could become a mid-season replacement.

TO S. TYREE, MADISON HEIGHTS, VA.: Roy Clark was born in Meherrin, Va. and was raised in Washington, D.C. His father was a popular banjo and guitar player and taught Roy both instruments. By 15, he was playing for dances, and before he was 21 he had formed his own group and was playing nightclub dates and on national TV and radio. Write to him c-o "Hee Haw" ICPR, 909 Third Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022.

TO L. BLANTON, WALLINS CREEK, KY.: Jack Buetel played opposite Jane Russell in "The Outlaw," a notorious sexy western about Billy the Kid (1943). This was Buetel's film debut, but little has been seen of him since.

TO F.M., STAUNTON, VA.: Cheryl Tiegs, 30, grew up in Alhambra, Calif., and left college (Cal State) after a year at 19 to pursue a modeling career in New York City. She began doing cover work at 16 for True Romance and Teen magazines, and she also did a Glamour magazine cover with Ali MacGraw, then a top-notch model.

What's Next, Jack Nicklaus?

Can Jack Nicklaus win another 'major' championship? That is the question that has been on many lips since Nicklaus's demise at the U.S. Open at Cherry Hills. He was in contention going into the final day but came up with a very mediocre effort and was never a threat in the tournament.

Jack gets a chance to put these questions to rest at the home of golf. The Old Course at St. Andrews, in his quest for the British Open Championship. ABC Sports will return to one of golf's most historic sites, The Old Course, the royal and ancient golf club of St. Andrews, Scotland for same-day satellite coverage of the final round of the British Open on Saturday, July 15, at 4:30 p.m.

one stroke. Also on hand will be U.S. Open winner Andy North, Arnold Palmer, Lee Trevino and a star-studded international field.

Tom Watson, winner of last year's British Open at Turnberry, will return to Scotland to defend his championship. Last year Watson edged Nicklaus by Jack Nicklaus needs this championship, for he may be beginning to doubt himself. He has not won a 'major' in several years, and he admits that those are the ones he points for.

Some say Nicklaus no longer has the concentration he once had. Whether that is the truth remains to be seen, but it is puzzling. Last year Nicklaus was second at the Masters, at the British Open, and at the U.S. Open. This year his performance has been slipping.

Prize money in the Open is 125,000 pounds ($237,500), with first prize of 12,500 pounds, about $23,750. The money is not that great, but the thrill of playing at the Old Course draws many. The course has been in existence since 1413 in some form. It is the mecca of golf, as Jack Nicklaus's record is the mecca of golfers.

Pilots Weren't Precursors

"Look, up there in the air. It's a bird, it's a plane, it's...the 'Barney Miller Special'."

Indeed it was, and that airplane spotted in the skies recently was piloted by two very attractive women with the gold medal in the 1978 version of the Air Race Classic, Ltd. as their goal.

In case the name of the race doesn't seem too familiar, the same contest used to be labeled the "Powder Puff Derby." But, that was in a different era. Still, the premise is the same — a group of talented women pilots setting the course from Las Vegas to Florida and opening the throttle for $15,000 in prize money.

Aboard the "Barney Miller Special," named to honor ABC-TV's hit comedy series and sponsored by television producer Danny Arnold, were Margie Robbins and Cec Shulman.

Although air travel for most people is watching a motion picture aboard a commercial jet, Margie and Cec had a more realistic outlook on their cross-country jaunt in a small private plane.

"It was three days away from the kids," Cec observed. "It's being a star," was Margie's comment.

The ladies said they weren't particularly worried about accidents. The worst one recorded in the event was a crash landing on a farm. The pilot was uninjured and the farmer said he was glad the plane had plowed through his hay and not his alfalfa.

"Besides," Cec added with a confident smile, "The 99's (international organization of women pilots) were watching over us to see that everything went right when we were on the ground, and God — she watched over us in the air."

ABC-USGA Contract Signed

ABC Sports and the United States Golf Association have signed a new contract which extends the network's coverage of the U.S. Open and other USGA events through 1980.

Under the new contract with the USGA, ABC will continue to televise the premier golf event in the world — the U.S. Open. In addition, present annual coverage of the U.S. Women's Open and the U.S. Amateur Championship will also be presented.

The network's unprecedented four-day, eight and three-fourths hour coverage of the U.S. Open last month at the Cherry Hills Country Club in Denver was the most comprehensive television presentation of a golf tournament ever done in the United States and included live coverage of all 18 holes on both Saturday and Sunday.

Commenting on the new contract, Frank Tatum, Jr., said "The United States Golf Association is gratified to have ABC Sports providing such comprehensive coverage of the National Championships. Our objective is to have golf depicted so that the viewer will both understand what a complicated and fascinating game it is and appreciate what it takes to play it."

Roone Arledge said, "We are delighted that the U.S. Open and other USGA events will continue to be televised by ABC Sports as a result of this new agreement. The U.S. Open has provided our viewers with countless memorable moments during the years it has been on ABC. We look forward to continuing to bring this classic event to the viewing public."

BARRY NEWMAN IN ACTION-ADVENTURE

Barry Newman stars in "Fear Is the Key," an action adventure to be rebroadcast on "The CBS Saturday Night Movies," July 15, 9 to 11 p.m. on CBS-TV. Also starring are Suzy Kendall and John Vernon.

During his trial in New Orleans, John Talbot makes a daring escape from the courtroom, taking a bystander, Sarah Ruthven, along as a hostage. Talbot steals a car and eludes the police in a harrowing chase deep into the Delta bayous, where he and a co-conspirator use Sarah as their entree into a gang of thieves.

Bay City Rollers Host

The Bay City Rollers, popular rock quintet from Scotland, have been signed by producers Sid and Marty Krofft to host NBC-TV's weekly series, "Krofft Superstar Hour," which premieres Saturday, Sept. 9.

The Rollers, who range in age from 21 to 27, have received five gold albums and wide critical acclaim for their musicianship and a flair for comedy. A group since 1969, the Rollers have made several world tours, playing to capacity crowds everywhere. They toured the U.S. in 1976 and last year played concerts in New York and Los Angeles, both shows selling out within hours after tickets went on sale.

"The Bay City Rollers are the hottest group in the world today," said Marty Krofft. "Wherever they appear they're mobbed by fans. Their impact on the international music scene has been tremendous and we predict an enormous television response to them as well."

Michael Brockman, NBC-TV's vice-president of daytime programming, said, "We're delighted to have the Rollers hosting this fast-paced hour of contemporary music, comedy vignettes and adventure."

"Krofft Superstar Hour" is currently filming in Hollywood and at various locations through Southern California and will continue throughout the summer.

KENNY ROGERS' TV SPECIAL

Kenny Rogers has been signed by CBS-TV to headline a one-hour variety special.

"The Krofft Superstar Hour," premiering in September on NBC-TV, will be hosted by the Bay City Rollers, popular rock quintet from Scotland.

All-Star Game Is A High Point

The Baseball All-Star Game is the high point for many ballplayers in their careers. It is an opportunity for a good player who is relatively obscure because of the lack of his team to get national exposure, and also a chance to be honored for his performance.

The game usually brings about numerous debates concerning which players are selected, as well as the selection process in general. This is the biggest all-star game of any of the professional sports: It draws more media coverage and its viewer rating is tremendous.

Major League Baseball's 49th All-Star Game will be played Tuesday, July 11, in San Diego Stadium, and it will be televised by ABC Sports, beginning at 8:30 p.m.

The National League won last year's game 7-5, running their advantage in the series to 29-18. The American League has won only one game this decade and has been under criticism for not having as much talent as the National League.

This year's manager for the A.L. will be the Yankees' Billy Martin, who's been getting a great deal of advice from many sources on how to beat the N.L. Martin has been told to play for keeps and leave his starters in the game as long as possible, rather than letting everyone play.

Martin will have the services of players like Rod Carew and Jim Rice to score runs for him, and it will be up to pitchers like Rod Cudry and Mike Torrez to keep the lid on the National League.

Tommy Lasorda will try and keep the N.L. streak alive, and he will have great talent with most of the starters coming from the Reds, Dodgers and Phillies. Then he can always select the San Francisco Giants' pitching staff to shut down the American sluggers.

Whatever the result, the All-Star Game is always a classic, and the American Leaguers will certainly be going all-out to win.

JOGGERS EVERYWHERE

Baseball attendance is about 640,000 ahead of last year's record pace, but there's another boom in a sport that's beating baseball — jogging. According to a recent Gallop poll, 25 million Americans are now jogging. That accounts for 11 percent of the U.S. adult population, and the running craze shows no sign of slackening.

Goins To Test Unbeaten Davis

Unbeaten Olympic boxing champion Howard Davis Jr. will be tested by veteran lightweight Norman Goins when CBS Sports presents, live, a boxing special from the Indiana Convention and Exposition Center in Indianapolis, Sunday, July 9, 4 to 6 p.m.

Also scheduled that afternoon is a lightweight bout matching Larry Stanton (who lost a hard-fought, split decision to Davis last month) against Johnny Copeland, who has fought three world champions over the course of his career.

Davis 22, from Glen Cove, Long Island, N.Y., is coming off what many observers consider his toughest fight as a professional after winning a split decision against Stanton in Orlando, Fla., May 13. Now 7-0 a professional, Davis has registered three knockouts.

The Stanton fight was the first 10-rounder for the Olympic champion at 132 pounds, and this will be his second. As an amateur, he racked up an impressive record of 120 victories and had only five defeats.

coverage of the Major League All-Star Game from San Diego on Tuesday, July 11, beginning 8:30 p.m., on ABC-TV.

Joe Garagiola, A Success Story

Joe Garagiola has probably gotten as much mileage out of his athletic career as was humanly possible. He has won numerous broadcasting awards while still doing what he likes best, talking about baseball. His wit and humor blend nicely with Tony Kubek's analysis of the baseball game.

On Saturday, July 15, at 2 p.m., Joe will be on hand when NBC Sports presents Major League Baseball which will feature an exciting game between two top teams.

It seems as if Joe Garagiola has been around baseball forever. He was a major league performer for eight years playing catcher for the St. Louis Cardinals, New York Giants, Pittsburgh Pirates and the Chicago Cubs. He was never a spectacular performer, but he always got the job done.

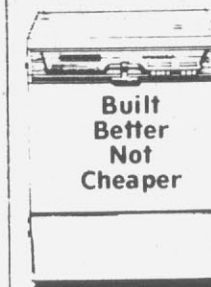

Joe started his broadcasting career as a commentator for the Cardinals, later becoming the play-by-play announcer for the New York Yankees, before joining NBC as a commentator.

Born in the Italian section of St. Louis, Garagiola grew up with Yogi Berra, and for years parlayed Yogi's success and eccentricities into a comedy routine. He certainly doesn't need to tell 'Yogi stories' these days to gain notoriety.

Garagiola has, since those days, worked on the "Today Show," earned a Peabody Award for his outstanding show, "The Baseball World of Joe Garagiola," and has even had a golf tournament named after him. Besides these things, Garagiola has also hosted a game show and does numerous commercials. All of this is not bad for a lifetime .260 hitter who bounced around the National League during his playing days.

Quinlan Case Dramatized

At the age of 21, Karen Quinlan moved from her parents' home in New Jersey to her own apartment — an unremarkable enough event in the life of a young woman that age. Eight months later, however, Karen Quinlan became the center of one of the most remarkable, controversial and potentially influential court cases in the history of American jurisprudence — a trial which dealt directly with the issues of the quality of life and the right to die.

A drama based on this headline-making case about the young woman, "In the Matter of Karen Ann Quinlan," will be rebroadcast on "NBC Saturday Night at the Movies" July 15, 9 to 11 p.m. on NBC-TV. Brian Keith and Piper Laurie star as the parents, Joe and Julia Quinlan.

When their daughter is rushed to the hospital, the Quinlans hold out hope for months that she will fully recover from her unexpected ailment. But as time passes, each visit confirms the reality that Karen Ann's condition is deteriorating and that her life is being sustained by sophisticated medical machinery. After months of soul-searching, they decide that their daughter's inevitable death should be natural and that her life should not be artificially prolonged by technology. They are shocked, however, when hospital authorities and treating physicians refuse to grant their request. Determined that their daughter is entitled to the same dignity in death as she was in life, and to preserve their rights as parents, they pursue the issue in a landmark court case that draws world-wide attention.

David Huffman appears as Paul Armstrong, the attorney who represented the Quinlans in their legal and personal struggles.

Quest For Stardom

Three beautiful, talented and ambitious girls seek superstardom in the music world despite discouragement at almost every turn in their quest for fame in "The Rock Rainbow," a special presentation airing Saturday, July 15, 10 to 11 p.m., on ABC-TV.

Jess, Lil and Catherine find their lives thrown together when they audition for and win jobs as Las Vegas showgirls. But their rocket to the stars fizzles when they discover that the gig is in a fourth-rate revue as foils for a fifth-rate comic.

During the actual trial, Joseph Quinlan said: "I want to put her back into a natural state, if she lives a day, if she lives a year or five years. This is the Lord's will. If He wants her to die, she will be off all the artificial means. This is what I want. It's very simple."

The Quinlans' request was denied, but the New Jersey Supreme Court unanimously reversed the lower court's decision. As a result, the respirator was turned off — and Karen continued to live without it.

ASK THEM YOURSELF

Send the question, on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

Alcohol is no thirst quencher.

FOR RYNE DUREN, former New York Yankees pitcher, now director of the Alcoholic Rehabilitation Program at Stoughton Community Hospital in Wisconsin and author of The Comeback

As a reformed alcoholic, how do you think we should deal with the problem of drinking? — W.P., Dover, N.J.

● We must educate a heretofore ill-educated public to the grim details. We'll win our first victory in the war against booze when we accept that alcohol is a drug, not a thirst quencher. People must be made aware that alcohol can bring out the worst in them. The most peaceful individual can become violent. The biggest enemy in the fight against addiction today is ignorance. Anyone who boasts, "I can drink myself under the table with no hangover," is asking for a death warrant. Those who say "I drink in moderation" have no idea what moderation really is — 1 ounce of alcohol for every 100 pounds of body weight each 24 hours.

FOR THE ASK EDITOR

Did Shelley Hack, currently in the movie If Ever I See You Again, have a bit part in Annie Hall? Just who is she? — M.P., Odessa, Texas

● Yes. Shelley made her screen debut with a walk-on part in Annie Hall. She's also one of today's top models, who insists she's more concerned with becoming a good actress than with being bracketed with such other famed models as Cheryl Tiegs and Farrah Fawcett-Majors. As a teenager, Shelley was sought-after by photographers rather than the other way around. They would not take "no" for an answer until Shelley and her parents finally relented, and she ended up on a magazine cover. There's a side to Shelley not usually associated with glamor girls — she's always preferred poring over books to peering into mirrors. She received a degree from Smith College and studied archeology at Australia's University of Sydney.

Her goal: acting, not modeling.

FOR LORETTA LYNN, country singer

Since you married at 14, would you advise other youngsters to do so? — E.W. Natchez, Miss.

● Definitely not. Ninety-nine percent of such early marriages don't last. My case is a perfect example of "more by luck than judgment." In my case, Doo was the first boy I met. We went together for one month. I thought I was in love, and that was that. Every time we had a fight, I wondered how much different my life would have been had I not got married so young. All these years later, I still do.

FOR SEN. WILLIAM PROXMIRE (D-Wis.)

Which do you rate as the most asinine and absurd projects to waste the taxpayers' money? — Mildred E. Stork, Canton, Ohio ● Here are my three favorites: $103,000 spent to study whether fish that drink tequila are more aggressive than fish that drink gin; $46,000 spent to find out how long it takes to cook breakfast; $27,000 spent to determine why inmates want to escape from jail.

FOR MILTON BERLE

Do you intend to start slowing down after your 70th birthday on Wednesday? — C.I., Council Bluffs, Iowa

● Absolutely not. I'll take my last bow from heaven. Show business is in my blood and bones. I know of nothing else. The only way I know I'll stay young and healthy is by continuing to perform, trying to make people laugh. You'll be seeing lots of me in the fall. I'm hosting a TV documentary about Abbott and Costello and an NBC variety show, and I'm working on a syndicated series.

FOR ANNIE POTTS, star of Corvette Summer

Weren't you told to change your name? Annie Potts sounds so old and homely. — P.M., Muncie, Ind.

● In the days of Archie Leach (Cary Grant) and Frances Gumm (Judy Garland), studios could insist on name-changing. Those days are gone. When I joined the Screen Actors Guild, they saw me register as Ann Hampton Potts (my given name) and wondered why I didn't drop the Potts and become Ann-Hampton. I said that sounded too much like Ann-Margret. Besides, I like my name.

FOR GAIL THAIN PARKER, author of College On Your Own

Of what use is your book when one is applying for a job and the personnel director won't even hand over an application form unless the applicant has a college degree? — T.B., Little Rock, Ark.

● The introduction to my book outlines various ways of getting your degree by passing competency tests. Or it may make more sense for you to enroll part-time in a college program for adults. These are always alternatives.

FOR DR. FRANK FIELD, science editor of WNBC-TV in New York City and cohost of Not for Women Only

Why did you write a book about nutrition and diet? — S.B., Green Bay, Wis.

● Almost any diet, no matter how dangerous in many cases, works; that's why new diet books continue to flood the market. But the truth is that it's how much you eat, what you eat, how active you are, along with genetic influence, that dictates your weight. And weight can be best controlled if one's lifestyle is changed slowly. That's what I wrote about.

PRO Rep. Dan Quayle (R.-Ind.)

The time has come to further limit the Presidency to one six-year term — and also limit the tenure of Congressmen and Federal judges. One six-year term would enable the President to function as a statesman and not as a politician. Special interest pressures, too, would be reduced. Our leader should be free of political considerations in confronting the complex and difficult domestic and international problems. Presidential decisions are often based on what will register at the ballot box. By lengthening the President's term, our nation and the world would have a leader free to do what is right instead of what is politically dictated.

PRO AND CON Should The Presidency Be Limited To One Six-Year Term?

CON Sen. Clifford P. Case (R.-N.J.)

When a system has worked as well as ours for nearly 200 years, there is a strong burden of proof on those who would change it. In the absence of such proof I lean strongly toward making no change. Relieving the President of the need to run for reelection may make him less responsive to popular pressures. If pushed to the extreme this could destroy democracy. A good President is one who feels the people's needs and can mediate among all sections, groups and classes. It would be no service to the country to lift the President above the battle. To paraphrase Mr. Truman, if the President can't stand the heat he shouldn't be in the kitchen.

RICHARD RODGERS: HIS SONGS ARE PART OF AMERICA'S HERITAGE

He was 14 when he wrote his first song and his first show made Broadway when he was 18. Now, at 76, he has 108 hits.

Rodgers with wife Dorothy, his tower of strength, and at work with his two great collaborators, Oscar Hammerstein II (above right) and Larry Hart.

Lynn Farnol Group, Inc.

By Ernest V. Heyn

Composer Richard Rodgers, who was 76 last June, has written more hits than his age — as a matter of fact, a recent list of his song hits adds up to 108.

Many popular composers set out to write individual song hits, not part of a musical play — but Dick Rodgers never does that. All of his hits have been written as an integral part of the story that would help move the story forward. That is why his achievement is especially remarkable — his hits grew out of an artistic whole to which many contributed — the author of the story itself, the writer of the adaptation for the stage, the writer of the words for the songs, the director, the choreographer, the actors and singers —

If you think that in his 77th year, Dick Rodgers is relaxing and enjoying inactivity, you are wrong. When we lunched recently in his office, he told me that his next show is in the works — a musical version of I Remember Mama, a play he and his late partner and collaborator, Oscar Hammerstein II, produced in 1944. In the musical version, Dick is writing the music for the lyrics of Martin Charnin, director and lyricist of the national smash hit, Annie.

About 20 years ago, the author of a book about Richard Rodgers (David Ewen) dedicated it like this: "To Dick's three collaborators: Larry Hart, Oscar Hammerstein II and Dorothy Rodgers."

Let's talk about the last one first. The cliché — behind every great man there is a great woman — applies emphatically to his wife Dorothy, a remarkable woman who is not just a tower of strength during the crises he has faced but is in her own right a fine writer (a monthly column with their oldest daughter Mary for McCall's called "Of Two Minds," four books, including her recent graceful memoir, A Personal Story), an inventor, needleworker, decorator and house planner (she wrote A House in My Head about the lovely summer home the Rodgers built in Fairfield, Connecticut), a humanitarian with countless causes, thoughtful hostess, stimulating conversationalist and, to quote one of her good friends, Marian Thompson (also a writer): "along with all this she is an extraordinarily good-looking woman. She has, in fact, a reputation as a great beauty."

Rodgers' collaborators as lyricists were mainly two: Lorenz Hart and Oscar Hammerstein II. With Hart, he wrote 28 stage musicals, a nightclub revue, eight film musicals and one non-musical play.

Think of it — Rodgers was 14 when he wrote his first song. His first published one was "Auto Show Girl" when he was 15. He was 16 when he met Larry Hart (who was 23), and they began writing songs together at those early ages. Rodgers went to public schools in New York and entered Columbia University when he was 17. His music for the Varsity Show — the first freshman in Columbia's history to have his accepted — was made into a musical called Fly With Me, with Columbia alumnus Larry Hart as lyricist, and was produced on Broadway when Dick was 18. The ensuing musicals with Hart are history, with not enough space to chronicle them here. Just a few: The Garrick Gaieties, The Girl Friend, A Connecticut Yankee, On Your Toes, Babes In Arms, I'd Rather Be Right, I Married an Angel, The Boys from Syracuse and, of course, Pal Joey, which introduced the great dancer, Gene Kelly. Their last show — starring Ray Bolger — was By Jupiter, a year before Larry Hart died in 1943.

when Dick was 18.

Then began the collaboration with Oscar Hammerstein. They worked together for 17 years on nine musicals, including such smash hits as Oklahoma!, Carousel, South Pacific, The King and I, Flower Drum Song and The Sound of Music.

One day, in 1960, the two friends and collaborators had lunch to discuss Oscar's illness — he had cancer and had been too sick to go to New Haven for the try-out of The Sound of Music. At their luncheon, Oscar told Dick his plan: "I'm going to retire to the farm (in Bucks County) — until I die." Dick then tells how a stranger came over to the table and asked for their autographs. Dick and Oscar obliged, whereupon the man became chummy. "I hope you don't mind my saying this," the man said, "but one thing bothers me. You're both extremely successful men, at the top of your profession, and I'm sure you don't have a worry in the world. I was just wondering what could make you look so sad."

But still there was the incomparable music, always by Rodgers. Since Oscar's death that year Rodgers has used other collaborators, but alone he wrote music and lyrics for No Strings, which starred Diahann Carroll and Richard Kiley, with a beautiful score including "The Sweetest Sounds," "Look No Further" and the lilting title song.

Song hits are a great achievement, but what about the man? What is he like?

As his friend, I'm prejudiced. I think he's admirably frank, remarkably modest and marvelously brave. As for his frankness — about one collaborator Rodgers said to me, "He's easy not to like."

Talk to him about his success and he says, "All that stuff about getting inspiration for a song while walking along the street or in the middle of the night is a lot of bunk. You roll up your sleeves and work — work — work!"

I once asked Dick Rodgers about the story that he could compose at his piano while his young daughters, Linda and Mary, were playing in the same room. He replied that he didn't like to compose that way but that he never closed a door when working. When the kids came in he interrupted his work to talk with them — then could go right back to the composing where he'd left off. Such a modest, un-Hollywood approach to creation. And further evidence of his agreement with Edison who said, "Creation is 1% inspiration and 99% perspiration."

He modestly disclaims that his daughter Mary was greatly influenced by his style when she wrote the very successful New York hit, Once Upon a Mattress, which made Carol Burnett a star. He replied to my question: "She does her own thing. But what if she was influenced by her father. I was influenced by a man whose music I greatly admired, Jerome Kern. So what?"

Dick Rodgers thinks Linda, their youngest daughter, has great musical talent which he wishes she would pursue — and as for Mary, he is justifiably proud of her great success with her children's book, Freaky Friday, from which she also wrote a screen play.

Finally, his uncontested bravery: one of the most admirable things about this extraordinary man is that, despite several serious illnesses including an episode of cardiac arrest and a laryngectomy (removal of the larynx), he never has stopped working, and, as observed earlier, he certainly doesn't intend to now. Once my wife talked with him quite frankly about his courage in learning what is known as esophageal speech — a long difficult process, based on sounds emitted from air in the stomach, "I'd think," she said, "that you'd have just rested on your laurels — just written down anything you wanted to say."

To this he replied, giving emphasis to both words: "Who — me?" FW

UNCLE SAM'S FUND FOR CONSCIENCE-RIDDEN CITIZENS

Ever think you've cheated the Government? Well, luckily there's something called the Conscience Fund to help assuage your guilt.

The Treasury's Lena Brown handles the payments to the "guilt" fund.

By Edward Wakin

Sometimes, they quickly see the light. Other times, their consciences have bothered them for 50 years. They are usually troubled by thoughts of defrauding the Federal Government, though for some their remorse may have nothing to do with Uncle Sam. In short, they feel guilty.

For such Americans, a little-known guilt cleanser has operated in Washington since 1811. Called the Conscience Fund, it is handled with due bureaucratic care by the Finance and Analysis Branch of the Bureau of Government Financial Operations, Department of the Treasury. Americans who want to ease guilt feelings send money that is duly accepted, recorded and acknowledged — with no questions asked and no danger of prosecution.

The money may arrive in the mail with name and explanatory note or just as cash in an envelope. In the Treasury's mailroom, they immediately recognize the "conscience money" and send it to Government worker Lena Brown. "I can imagine how those people feel," she says. "They are easing their consciences. It's a big relief to them."

Every letter is its own surprise, whether it's 16 cents for two eight-cent stamps someone re-used or $1,300 for tools taken while in the Navy. But always the sense of relief: "Enclosed is a check for $500 I feel I've owed for several years. I don't know the particulars and this is just an estimate, but it clears my conscience. That's the important thing."

Even anonymous contributors insist on explaining what bothers them. Former Government employees and armed forces veterans head the list of contributors, who are young and old, long-time sufferers and the "converted":

"Just recently I had a rather amazing experience, and many things bothered my conscience, one of which happened during my service in the Army. While stationed in Fort Benning, we were restocking our medical supplies when I helped myself to several bandages, dressings, gauze, etc. and made a first-aid kit using an old memo box. This I kept and brought home with me. I would feel much better if I could either return or pay for these items so I am enclosing $15 which will cover it. I trust that you will see that the money is forwarded to the proper place, as I have heard that there has been a conscience fund set up for this purpose."

Another letter writer was haunted throughout his life by an incident dating back to the 1920s. "Nearly 50 years ago, I had the opportunity to put about $2.00 in my pocket that belonged to the Government. I never knew just why I did this — I did not need the money. Every once in a while I read something that reminds me of the incident, and I always say I should repay it. This time I am doing just that. Enclosed is a $10.00 bill which should be adequate for the refund plus some interest."

One lucky horse player was reminded by a cousin that he should report his race-track winnings. He had not done so in his tax return. But he made up for it by sending $27 for those extra earnings, which totaled $80.

Remorse runs strongly among ex-servicemen and women, such as the $25 contributor who had once taken one ammunition box, medical uniforms and two surgical scissors. A World War II Army nurse sent $10 to cover a hypodermic syringe she "pilfered." A GI who became angry because he couldn't exchange his fatigues for the right size sold them for 200 francs. He sent $4.

An ex-soldier was conscientious down to the card-file dividers that he took. His letter listed 15 items used for "personal purposes," including labels, 3-by-5 cards and mending tape. He not only listed the items but the exact dates they were taken, along with the value of each. He eased his conscience by sending $18.10.

Another precise accounting came from a former GI who took home "many items" after his discharge. He reported that he was now correcting past errors. This included repaying the Government for those items. He sent $267.09.

One of the most conscientious of contributors came from within the Treasury Department. A woman who had worked for the Bureau of Engraving for more than seven years was troubled by the fact that she did not admit she was under five feet — the minimum height for her job as a printer's assistant. She remembered that the job application stated that the fine for perjury was $2,000. That's the amount she sent.

The long arm of conscience is evident in the nickel sent by someone who found it on the street and by the $50 sent for a $25 item taken from a railway station 58 years before. Another letter contained $210 "for some letters I read many years ago and some food I didn't pay for."

• Some have been coping with free-floating guilt, such as the Kansas contributor who sent $50 "for no specific items of record." The money was designed "to reimburse the Government for any obligations I may have incurred through the years which have not been properly handled." A 1974 letter harked back to 1917-18 Army service in France and "a little incident" that may or may not have been wrong. "Since I am not sure," the letter stated, "I have decided to mail this check to the Conscience Fund anyhow."

From the Fund's beginning in 1811, contributors have acted spontaneously. The first contributor sent the Treasury Department $5 during President Madison's Administration. By the end of that first year, $250 was received. The biggest haul came in 1950 with $370,285.

Contributions dropped after that, until spurring in the post-Watergate period. Contributions jumped from $44,165 in 1974 to $229,757 in 1975, then dropped by more than two-thirds. From its 1811 beginning through 1977, the Fund has collected $3,611,452.59.

While each contributor's identity is kept secret, where possible a letter is sent from the Assistant Controller for Finance acknowledging receipt of the money. The letter reports that the money will be credited to the account. "Contributions to the Conscience Fund" and deposited in the Treasury's General Fund (which pays Government expenses).

The letter's final sentence states with bureaucratic applause: "Your desire to make restitution is commendable." But a contributor from Illinois captured the spirit of fellow contributors more poignantly and accurately: "I hope to be forgiven by this restitution." FW

Ycch! Many people think of economics as drab, dreary and unfathomable—a black art whose meaning is the private preserve of bankers, business tycoons and government officials. Like it or not, however, economics affects virtually every aspect of our lives. Understanding where we are—and where we're going—requires at least a basic knowledge of the major building blocks of America's economic system.

Active ingredient. The process which keeps the system healthy and growing is called "capital formation"—creating the wherewithal to provide new factories and machines to produce more goods, more efficiently. Without fresh capital, productivity can't increase—which means your spending power can't grow—and no additional jobs are created, in a year when America needs 1.8 million jobs just to make room for people entering the work force. The money for new capital goods comes from two principal sources: reinvested business profits, and individual savings invested directly in stocks and bonds or indirectly through banks, savings and loan associations, insurance companies, pension funds, and similar institutions.

Bad habits. Unfortunately, our economic system doesn't exactly encourage individual thrift. Only 6 percent of the average U.S. household's disposable income—what's left after all the bills are paid—ends up in some form of savings. People who might otherwise accumulate savings to be used for capital goods are subject to heavy taxation to support government expenditures and our huge national debt. So the amount of money available for investment is less than it might be.

Carrying the load. American industry has traditionally provided much of the funds it needs to expand the supply of capital goods. But this bulwark of economic strength has weakened in recent years under the load of heavier taxes and costly new regulations. Without profits, industry would have neither the incentive nor the ability to invest. But after sharing our annual revenue with governments and paying bills and royalties, Mobil's profit in 1977 amounted to just 2.9 cents for every $1 of revenue—our smallest percentage in five years.

A quote we like (but which worries us). "Whether we look at personal savings or business savings, whether we compare ourselves internationally or to our own past experience, we arrive at the same conclusion: We are not setting aside enough of today's income for tomorrow's growth. We are skimping on our future." Secretary of the Treasury W. Michael Blumenthal, May 8, 1978.

FAIRY-TALE HORSES

Rare and delicate, these animals, bred down from Arabian horses, are less than three feet tall and can do just about anything — except carry a rider.

By Karen Ray

Silver Dollar is a very special horse. When she was born, three doctors and five nurses were in attendance. Now, three years later, at 26 inches high, she is the smallest registered full-grown horse in the world.

Silver Dollar is one of 10 miniature horses owned by Rayford Ely of Oakland, Calif. "Interest in the miniatures has been growing in recent years," says Ely. "The demand for them has risen tremendously."

The tiny animals are extremely rare, however. There are only 200 registered miniature horses of show quality in the world today.

The animals are desirable because they require little space and are gentle, intelligent and, of course, small. To qualify for the International Miniature Horse Registry, a horse must be no taller than 32 inches at the shoulder. (A half-inch difference in height can make a $1,000 difference in its value.) Ely, current president of the International Miniature Horse Association, scoffs at animals that large. All of his horses are under 30 inches.

A former Texan who was always interested in horses, Ely became fascinated by miniatures 10 years ago when he saw one for the first time. He soon purchased a filly, then bought it a companion, and, before long, wanted a stallion. Arabian King (28 inches), a former South American champion, filled the bill. He was the national champion here in 1975 and is Silver Dollar's father.

Celebrity names often pop up when discussing the horses. Recently Arabian King was mated with a mare belonging to Dean Martin. Aristotle Onassis owned three miniatures when he died. The Kennedys own several, and there are always a few in England's Royal Stables.

Perhaps part of the reason for celebrity interest in the horses is their value. Ely estimates he would have no problem selling Arabian King for $25,000, but don't bother to make an offer. Ely considers his horses members of the family. Generally, though, any horse under 30 inches is worth at least $5,000.

"Miniatures are not a new breed," says Ely. "They were bred down in the 16th and 17th centuries from Arabian stock and were the pets of royalty and the aristocracy. But then around 1900 their popularity died out and only now seems to be coming back."

Ely, who owns a foreign-car dealership, keeps the horses in his backyard. Four of them will fit nicely in a stable normally used for one standard horse.

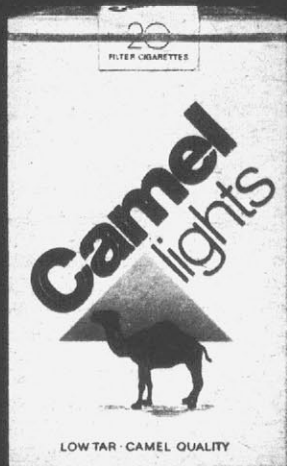

While not exactly housebroken, the horses are often allowed inside the Ely home. "He has good manners," Ely said assuredly when asked if it was safe to bring the stallion onto the thick white carpet.

The animals are intelligent, too. Ely has trained them to "shake hoofs" when a human extends his hand. And, without training, one of his mares discovered how to escape the complicated system of gates in the Ely Horse Hotel. On several occasions she led the herd to freedom. Now the gates are double-locked. The only thing the horses can't do is give rides. They are simply too small to be ridden, even by very young children.

The horses don't require any special attention, and Ely estimates they will live as long — up to 25 years — as a standard horse that received exceptional care. Because the horses are so small, however, they often are too weak to kick themselves out of the mother at birth the way a normal foal does. Hence, when a mare approaches delivery, she is watched round the clock. And Ely's miniature horses are born at the veterinary school at the University of California at Davis, where a professor has taken a special interest in the breed.

At birth a miniature horse may be only 15 inches high, weigh 12 pounds and have all the appeal of any baby animal. The Ely household is exuberant because one of their mares recently foaled a 17-inch 11-pounder. Now the miniature horse population is 201.

WHAT TO DO IF YOUR CHILD DEVELOPS A HERNIA

It's not an uncommon problem, and if you recognize the symptoms, treatment will be simple.

By Alvin Eden, M.D.

The most frequent hernia affecting children and adults is an inguinal hernia. This refers to a hernia developing in the groin area and is the type commonly referred to as a "rupture" or "strain."

Since inguinal hernias in infants and children are not uncommon, parents should be aware of this condition so that they can get prompt medical treatment. An inguinal hernia appears as a painless bulge or lump in the groin that usually is intermittent — sometimes it can be seen, other times it disappears.

It is caused by a congenital weakness of the muscles in the groin area, at the base of the inguinal canal. Normally, this canal is closed. But if there is a weakness present, it allows a part of the intestine to slide down through the canal. This presents itself as a bulge in the groin, or an inguinal hernia.

These hernias are seen much more frequently in boys than in girls. They can be present at birth or may appear at any age thereafter. Inguinal hernias develop more often on the right side than the left but they also can pop out on both sides. Let me put to rest once and for all the old wives' tale that crying causes a hernia to develop. This just is not true. The idea that a baby boy should not be allowed to cry in order to prevent the development of a hernia is ridiculous.

There is another misconception about inguinal hernias in children, and that is that they can be treated with trusses. A truss will never cure the problem and has no place in managing an inguinal hernia.

What should be done if you notice a swelling in the groin of your baby?

Obviously, your physician should be immediately notified. A hernia can usually be reduced simply by applying gentle pressure with a warm hand or warm towel. If the baby is crying at the time, reduction of the hernia becomes more difficult; however, inguinal hernias are almost always easily reducible. Usually they reduce spontaneously.

The treatment is surgery, whenever the diagnosis is made. This operation can be performed at any age, including the newborn period and is relatively simple. Quite often the baby is sent home from the hospital the same day as the operation. Surgery should never be postponed for too long. The longer the hernia is allowed to remain, the greater the likelihood of its becoming strangulated, in which case a piece of the intestine gets stuck and cannot be pushed back. When this happens, it is an emergency and surgery is more difficult. Many pediatric surgeons routinely do surgery on both sides although there is only a hernia on one side. This is especially true when they are operating on a child under two years of age. The reason is that there is a good chance of a hernia appearing on the opposite side later on, so they take care of both in the same operative procedure.

Don't worry too much about inguinal hernias. The whole point is to contact your child's physician if you notice any lump or swelling or mass in the groin area.

RIBS WITH TOMATO PEACH BARBECUE SAUCE

- 4 lbs. spareribs
- Water
- 1 onion stuck with 2 whole cloves
- 1 bay leaf
- 1 can (10 1/4 ozs.) condensed tomato soup
- 2 cups peeled, chopped peaches
- 1/2 cup light corn syrup
- 1/2 cup cider vinegar
- 1/2 cup firmly packed brown sugar
- 1/4 cup corn oil
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 1 tablespoon dry mustard
- 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1 1/2 teaspoons paprika
- 1/2 teaspoon ground black pepper
- 1/4 teaspoon garlic powder

- Place spareribs in 5-quart kettle; add water to depth of 1". Add onion and bay leaf, cover. Bring to boil over high heat; reduce heat and boil gently 1 hour or until fork tender.
- In 3-quart saucepan stir together soup, peaches, corn syrup, cider vinegar, sugar, corn oil, salt, mustard, Worcestershire sauce, paprika, pepper and garlic powder. Stirring constantly, bring to boil over medium heat. Reduce heat and simmer, uncovered, 20 minutes, stirring occasionally. Drain ribs. Brush generously with sauce.
- To grill: Place ribs 6" from source of heat, basting and turning frequently, about 15 minutes or until browned. Heat sauce and serve as a dipping sauce.
- Any remaining sauce may be stored in refrigerator in tightly covered jar 1 month.

Makes 6 servings
2 2/3 cups sauce

- 1 quart vanilla ice cream, softened

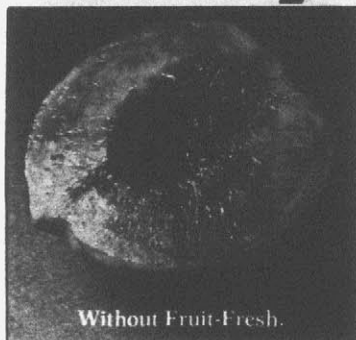

- Grease 9-inch pan. In large bowl, stir together corn syrup and peanut butter until well mixed. Stir in cereal and almonds just until moistened.

- Press 3 cups of the mixture into bottom of springform pan. Cover with ice cream, level top with spatula. Freeze 1 hour until firm. Press remaining cereal mixture evenly over ice cream. Cover and freeze until firm.

Makes 8 to 10 servings

Yukky. Yummy.

Without Fruit-Fresh.

With Fruit-Fresh.

Peaches preserved in ordinary canning syrup for 12 hours.

Fruit-Fresh. You need it for canning, freezing, and fresh fruit.

If you want all the fruit you serve to look and taste its freshest, what you really need is Fruit-Fresh. Because Fruit-Fresh contains a special ingredient that locks in the natural, "just-picked" color and flavor. Which means no more brown, mushy-looking peaches.

Fruit-Fresh is economical, too. A 5-oz. can will preserve up to 75 lbs. of peaches. Here's how: For Canning: simply add Fruit-Fresh to the regular syrup. For Freezing: add Fruit-Fresh to the syrup or dry sugar. For Fresh Fruit: sprinkle Fruit-Fresh on your just-sliced fruit before refrigerating. Sound good? It tastes delicious.

Keeps fruit looking and tasting fresher.

Spicy and Delicious Vegetable Conserve.

VEGETABLE CONSERVE

- 3 cups chopped, peeled tomatoes
- 2 cups chopped onions
- 1 cup chopped green pepper
- 1 teaspoon celery
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon hot pepper sauce
- 1 cup cider vinegar
- 1/4 cup lemon juice
- 2 1/2 cups sugar
- 1 1/2 teaspoons ground cinnamon
- 1/2 teaspoon ground cloves
- 1 cup raisins
- 1 cup coarsely chopped walnuts

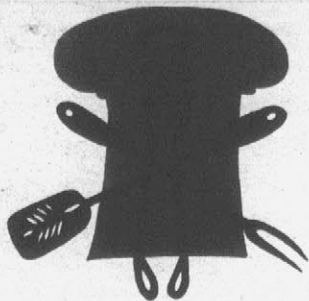

- In large bowl, mix tomatoes, onions, green pepper, celery, salt and pepper sauce. Cover and refrigerate overnight.
- Drain vegetables and reserve 1 cup liquid. In large kettle, mix vegetable liquid, vinegar, lemon juice, sugar, cinnamon and cloves. Bring to a boil over medium heat, stirring constantly. Add chopped vegetables, raisins and nuts.
- Simmer, uncovered, 10 minutes. Ladle immediately into hot sterilized jelly or canning jars to within 1/4 inch of rim. Screw on lids.
- Place jars in a large kettle and add hot water to cover jars by 2 inches. Bring to a boil and boil 10 minutes. Remove jars from water and cool. Store in a cool place. Makes 4 pints

NO WONDER COLD SOUPS HAVE CAUGHT ON!

Remember just a few years ago when vichyssoise and maybe gazpacho were the only cold soups we enjoyed? And, frankly, didn't we have them most often while dining out in restaurants?

Well today vichyssoise and gazpacho are still with us, but look further and you'll find a whole array of deliciously shivering spoonfuls.

We've collected some old favorites for you and a few new chilling blends. Try one. Some of the fun of all this lies in serving in icy-cold bowls, cups or goblets, with imaginative garnishes and stirrers.

CARROT VICHYSOISE

- 3 cups pared sliced potatoes
- 2 cups pared sliced carrots
- 2 leeks, thinly sliced (white part)
- 3 cups boiling water
- 4 chicken bouillon cubes
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons butter, melted
- 1 cup heavy or light cream
- 1 cup milk
- ¼ teaspoon hot pepper sauce

1. In a large, heavy saucepan combine potatoes, carrots, leeks, boiling water, bouillon cubes and salt. Cook, covered, until very tender, about 40 to 45 minutes.

2. Put mixture through strainer, sieve or food mill. Add butter, cream, milk and pepper sauce. Mix well.

3. Chill and serve cold or reheat in double boiler over hot water. Beat with wire whisk before serving. Top with grated carrot or parsley. Makes 6 servings

Walter Storck

CHILLED ZUCCHINI SOUP

- ½ cup margarine
- 1 cup sliced green onion
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 3 cups sliced unpeeled zucchini
- 1 cup water

- 2 chicken bouillon cubes
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 4 cups milk
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- ¼ cup sauterne or dry vermouth
- ½ cup finely diced raw zucchini

SPAIN'S GAZPACHO. considered one of the most cooling, attractive soups in the world, is a blend of fresh tomatoes, onion, cucumber, green pepper and garlic accompanied by spoon-on bowls of chopped vegetables.

1. In 3-quart saucepan, melt margarine over medium heat. Add onion and garlic; cook 5 minutes or until lightly browned.
2. Add zucchini; cook, stirring frequently, 10 minutes or until zucchini is - very soft. Add water, bouillon cubes, salt and pepper. Cover and simmer 15 minutes.

3. Place in blender container a little at a time. Cover and blend 30 seconds or until liquefied. Return to saucepan.

4. Stir milk into cornstarch smoothly. Add to saucepan. Stirring constantly, bring to boil over medium heat and boil 1 minute. Stir in sauterne. Cover and chill several hours or overnight. Before serving, sprinkle with diced zucchini.

Makes 6 (1 cup) servings

GAZPACHO

- 5 medium tomatoes, peeled, seeded and chopped
- 3 medium sweet red peppers, seeded and chopped
- 3 medium cucumbers, peeled, seeded and chopped
- 2 red onions, peeled and chopped
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 2½ cups tomato juice
- ½ cup corn oil
- 2 tablespoons red wine vinegar
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- ½ teaspoon hot pepper sauce
- ½ teaspoon dried oregano leaves
- ½ teaspoon dried basil leaves

1. Set aside for garnish ¼ cup each tomato, pepper, cucumber and onion. In large bowl, mix together remaining tomato, pepper, cucumber and onion. Add garlic, tomato juice, corn oil, vinegar, salt, lemon juice, hot pepper sauce, oregano and basil.
2. Pour half of mixture into blender. Blend at high speed 15 seconds or until vegetables are minced.
3. Repeat until all vegetables are blended. Chill 2 hours. To serve, garnish with reserved chopped vegetables.

Makes 11 cups

SENEGALESE SOUP

- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- ½ cup chopped onion
- ½ cup chopped celery
- ½ cup peeled, chopped green apple
- 1 tablespoon flour
- 1 teaspoon curry powder
- 2 cans (13¼-oz. size) chicken broth
- 1 cup diced cooked chicken or 1 can (5 ozs.) boned chicken
- 1 cup light cream
- Chopped chives or chopped salted peanuts

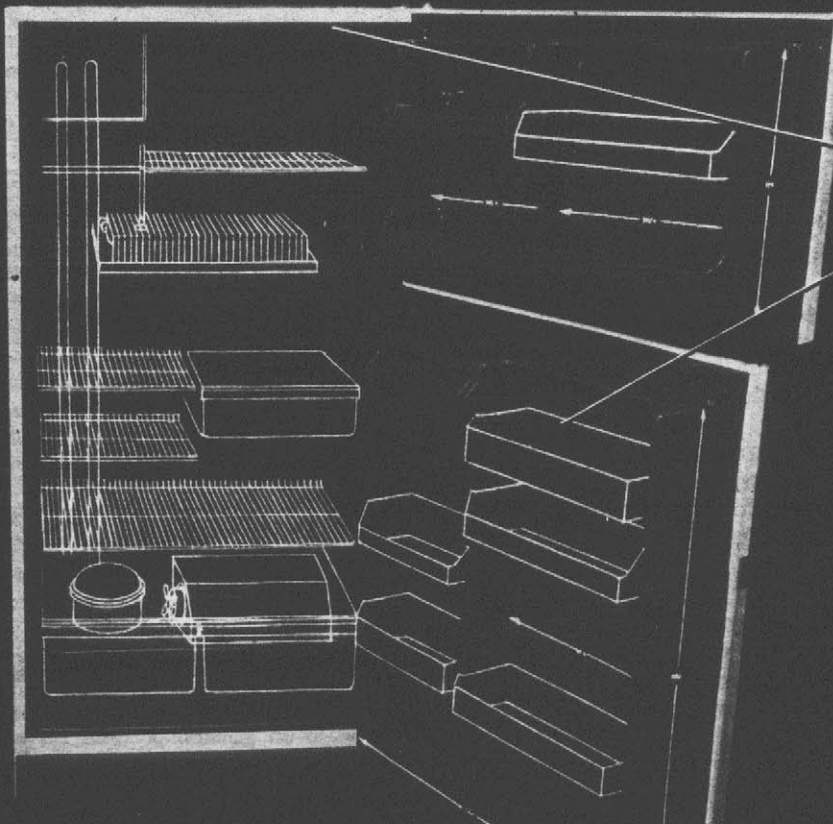

1. In large saucepan melt butter. Add onion, celery and apple, sauté 5 to 7 minutes, stirring frequently.
2. Remove from heat. Stir in flour and curry powder smoothly. Add chicken broth and chicken.
3. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until soup comes to boiling.
4. Process soup 2 cups at a time in electric blender at high speed until smooth.
5. Pour blended soup into large bowl. Stir in cream. Cover and refrigerate until very cold.
6. Beat with wire whisk just before serving. Sprinkle with chopped chives or chopped salted peanuts.

Makes 6 to 8 servings

BOOKS AND COOKS

An imaginative little cookbook recently came to my attention: The Taming of The C.A.N.D.Y. Monster by Vicki Lansky. It is a cookbook designed to help you get your kids "to eat less junk...without sacrificing convenience or good taste."

On a recent interview, I met Vicki Lansky and spoke to her about her life and her book.

The book came about after she had two children herself because she thought there was a real need to provide parents with good answers on how to properly feed their children.

The writing of the book and its production became a family project that grew and grew. As a result her husband, Vicki Lansky and daughter Dana.

Bruce Lansky, became increasingly involved and finally created Meadowbrook Press in their home.

Vicki herself has gotten involved in office management, buying supplies, paying bills and making print layouts. All this is fitted in between her regular mother duties of getting Doug, 7, and Dana, 5, off to school and being at home when they come from school.

Other mothers in the area work for Meadowbrook Press on a flexible schedule, making their own hours.

The book is chock full of all kinds of good nutrition advice and recipes. A few recipes from the book follow.

To get your copy of The Taming of The C.A.N.D.Y. Monster send check for $4.45; post paid, to Meadowbrook Press, Dept. FW, 15235 Minnetonka Blvd., Minnetonka, Minn. 55343.

KEEP-ON-HAND SNOW CONES

Freeze orange juice (or any other flavored juice) in ice-cube trays. Pop frozen juice cubes into a plastic bag to store. Put three to six of these cubes at a time in blender. Turn blender on and off until cubes reach snowy consistency. Pile into a paper cup to serve.

The whole batch blended at once and stored in the freezer will keep its carnival consistency. Kids can serve themselves. Adding a little water makes it a "slush." Even kids who don't usually care for orange juice like it this way.

UNBIRTHDAY CAKE

- 4 eggs, separated
- 1 cup sugar
- ½ cup honey
- ½ cup unsifted whole wheat flour
- 1½ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
- 4 tablespoons unsweetened cocoa or carob powder
- 2 teaspoons baking soda
- 2 cups sour cream
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract

1. Preheat oven to 350°F. Grease and flour 10-inch bundt pan. Beat egg whites until frothy, add yolks and beat again.
2. Add sugar, honey and both flours. Mix cocoa, baking soda, sour cream and vanilla; blend into flour mixture.
3. Pour batter into prepared pan. Bake for 50 to 60 minutes.
4. Cool in pan 10 minutes, then invert onto rack to cool completely.

Vicki says, "Cake is equally delectable baked in two greased and floured 9-inch pans or a 13- x 9- x 2-inch pan (baked 30 to 35 minutes) or in 24 cupcake cup pans." Makes 1 large cake

The Sunnyside Drive Canning Company declares a dividend.

Sue Bishop gave away more green beans from her garden than her family ate.

Sally Finster discovered a bargain in the farmers market on fresh carrots.

Aunt Elaine remembered how her mother canned fresh vegetables, and the Sunnyside Drive Canning Company was born.

Three neighborhood ladies who bought a Presto® canner and had a great time all summer, bargains all winter.

Sue's extra beans went into the cupboard for winter eating. Those once-a-summer bargains from the farmers market became family treats in January. Aunt Elaine insisted their canner be Presto because that's what her mother used.

With 70 years of experience to share, Presto made it easy. Full instructions, step by step, and the confidence of Presto quality.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture recommends pressure canning as the only safe method for low acid foods. Presto pioneered this method of home canning.

The Sunnyside ladies bought a second Presto canner this year.

Start your own canning company with your neighbors, or—go it alone. It's a sure investment with big dividends in money and delicious food for your family.

Reynolds Wrap. The Best Wrap Around.

America's favorite snack food is having a birthday. Yes, it's the potato chip, which celebrates its 125th year.

Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, a renowned hostess, is also an enthusiastic potato-chip fan and has written The Potato Cookbook. Why? It was her husband's great-great-grandfather, Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt, who played a major role in the invention of chips.

While dining in Saratoga Springs, N.Y., one August evening, the Commodore complained that his fried potatoes were sliced too thick and sent them back to the kitchen.

The chef was outraged at the insult. So he quickly sliced up a new batch of potatoes paper-thin, boiled them in oil until they were crisp, salted them and served them to the waiting Commodore. The Commodore was ecstatic with their appearance, flavor and crispness and demanded more!

For today's eating, here are several of Mrs. Whitney's favorite potato chip recipes from The Potato Chip Cookbook. If you would like a copy of the book, send your name and address to: Maple Hill Press, Inc., Box 890 FW, Lexington, Ky. 40501. Enclose check for $2.31. Kentucky residents include 10¢ for sales tax.

New National Smoker Study:

Merit Taste Matches High Tar Competition!

High tar smokers report: low tar MERIT delivers flavor of leading high tar brands.

Can low tar MERIT with 'Enriched Flavor'™ tobacco measure up to the flavor delivery of high tar cigarettes?

Read the research results of a new national smoker study conducted with high tar smokers—smokers like yourself—who taste-tested MERIT against leading high tar brands.

Results Endorse MERIT Breakthrough

Confirmed: Majority of high tar smokers rate MERIT taste equal to—or better than—leading high tar cigarettes tested! Cigarettes having up to twice the tar.

Confirmed: Majority of high tar smokers confirm taste satisfaction of low tar MERIT.

Detailed interviews were also conducted with current MERIT smokers.

© Philip Morris Inc. 1978

Confirmed: 85% of MERIT smokers say it was an "easy switch" from high tar brands.

Confirmed: Overwhelming majority of MERIT smokers say their former high tar brands weren't missed!

Confirmed: 9 out of 10 MERIT smokers not considering other brands.

First Major Alternative To High Tar Smoking

MERIT has proven conclusively that it not only delivers the flavor of high tar brands—but continues to satisfy!

This ability to satisfy over long periods of time could be the most important evidence to date that MERIT is what it claims to be: The first major alternative to high tar smoking.

Take any 11

Here's a brand-new selection from the Columbia Record & Tape Club. Over 290 latest hits and all-time favorites are listed on these four pages — not only the best and newest from the huge Columbia catalog... but also new releases and old favorites from A&M, Arista, Capitol, Epic, London, Mercury, MCA, Motown, MGM, Polydor, 20th Century, United Artists and many, many other outstanding labels.

And since this new selection represents the very best from every field of music, you won't have any difficulty whatsoever in finding eleven to suit your musical taste. Best of all, the eleven you choose are yours for only $1.00, plus shipping and handling.

Quips & Quotes

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY

NUMBERS GAME

Be it boy and boy
Or a girl and a boy,
What leads to a fight?
Two children, one toy.

If the children are young
And the toy is new
The ratio should always Be two to two.

But often two toys
Lead to scream and taunt:
It's one of the two
That both of them want.

—Richard Armour

TWO LANERS

There's a new car out called the Amnesia. It's the only one made that Detroit can't recall.

—Edward Allen

And then there was the wife trying to get her husband to buy a car, but he didn't seem to take to the idea. "What," he roared, "me buy a new car? Do you think cars grow on trees?"

come from plants."

—Dorothea Kent

Most of us have two chances to become millionaires — fat and slim.

LITTLE EMILY

BUREAU

"Nice try, Bradley."

FAMILY WEEKLY, July 9, 1978 ■ 27

The rash grade-schooler was visiting a museum. A guide pointed out a handsome vase and commented, "This vase is more than 2,000 years old."

plained the scholar. "It's only 1978 now."

—Thomas LaMance

America today is facing the most serious drug-abuse problem of them all — the cost of prescriptions.

—Robert Orben

Insects have highly developed brains. How else would they find out where we have our picnics?

—Al Batt

Two sparrows were in the habit of lunching together. The first sparrow waited and waited for his companion to arrive. Finally, he showed up. "What took you so long?" his fine-feathered friend asked.

"Oh, it was such a nice day I decided to walk."

—Gene Yasenak

Not the lowest tar...

the best tasting.

No wonder today's Kent is America's No. 1 selling low tar.
We re-made Kent with less tar and a smoother, fuller taste.
A taste that makes switching to a low tar easy.

Today's Kent. The easy switch to low tar.

A DYNAMIC NEW METHOD FOR TEACHING MATH

It's as simple as the fingers on your hand, and it helps your children add as quickly as a computer.

FINGER VALUES

Here is a diagram of Chisanbop.

Each finger and thumb has its own value. By pressing down a combination of fingers and thumbs you can represent any number from 1 to 99.

SAMPLE PROBLEM

Add 18 and 16

First, represent the 18 by pressing down the left index finger and the right thumb, index, middle and ring fingers. Then, to add 16, think of it as 10 plus 5 plus 1.

Add the 10 by pressing down the middle finger on your left hand, keeping down the fingers already pressed.

To add the 5, you have to make an exchange between hands.

Lift your right thumb, which subtracts 5. Then, put down your left ring finger, which adds 10, for a net addition of 5.

To add the 1, press down your right little finger.

Then, read off the answer from the way your fingers and thumbs now are pressed.

By Ruth Foster

An exciting new digital calculator, whose simplicity rivals the wheel, has caught the eye of school officials across the country.

This calculator can add, subtract, multiply and divide multi-digit numbers at amazing speeds as well as perform algebraic computations.

Best of all, every member of the family already has it. So what is this amazing device? Fingers. Fingers literally are turned into calculators through a new — at least to America — system called Chisanbop.

Chisanbop, which means finger calculation method in Korea, where it originated, is simple. (see above)

To calculate, the fingers representing the desired numbers are pressed against a desk or hard surface, similar to operating a calculator and enabling a running tally to be kept.

During recent demonstrations on the Today and Tonight shows, grade-school children accurately added series of four- and five-digit numbers at electronic calculator speeds — even beating the time of a college math professor who used a pocket calculator — although Edwin Lieberthal, co-founder of Chisanbop Enterprises, Inc., stresses speed is not the main objective of the method. The main purpose is to give students an in-depth understanding of mathematics.

Where did this "finger math" suddenly come from? It took two decades of growing pains for Chisanbop to mature from an idea by a Korean teacher into a method now gaining national attention.

Sung Jin Pai, a noted Korean mathematician, originally conceived the idea of Chisanbop in the late 1950's.

His son, Hang Young Pai, began teaching the method shortly after his arrival in the United States in 1976 to students at the Korean-American School in N.Y.

He quietly taught Chisanbop, and drew little attention. Then, quite by accident, Lieberthal, a marketing executive, found out about Pai's work.

Lieberthal says there is a significant difference between the obvious simplicity of the method and the difficulties of learning how to teach such nuances as multiplication and dealing with large sums. Teachers will need to complete 35 hours of concentrated training on the subject before being certified to teach it.

WHAT IN THE WORLD

Using Coupons

Are you really cutting your food bills by clipping coupons, or are you spending more in time and gasoline than you save? You can use the coupons you clip more efficiently if you follow some suggestions from Harold E. Neigh, an assoc. professor at Penn State Univ.

Neigh says the first step is to get organized — clip and file all the coupons for products you use in one place. Then use the coupons when there is a special on the product and buy more than a normal supply. Or take advantage of the coupons when a store offers double or sometimes triple value for a coupon.

Should you change brands as necessary to take advantage of coupons? Neigh says that it may be worth a try. "Sometimes switching can save you money," he says. Of course, trying a new brand may have an unexpected bonus — it could turn out that you'll prefer it to the one you normally use.

How To Prevent Poisoning

Don't let your children be among those youngsters poisoned each year by hazardous household substances. To help poisonproof your home, here are some suggestions from the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission:

- Keep all medicines and hazardous products locked up when not in use.
- Keep all hazardous products in their original containers.
- When giving medicine to children, never suggest that medicine is candy.
- Promptly dispose of prescription drugs by flushing them down the toilet once the illness is over.
- Don't store any other hazardous products with medicines.
- Keep handy the phone numbers of the nearest poison-control center, hospital emergency room and physician.

Summer-Dieting Tips

Dieting is never a picnic, but summer seems to be the best season for easy dieting. "In summer the dieter is less apt to feel deprived because the lowest calorie foods — crisp salads, cold soups, colorful fruit drinks in iced glasses — are summer staples even for nondieters," says Lois L. Lindauer, international director of The Diet Workshop.

To help make your summer slenderizing easier, here are some tips from The Diet Workshop:

- Use fresh herbs you grow yourself or buy at the grocer's to add some spice to low-calorie dishes.
- Make lunchtime more pleasant by eating outside so you can enjoy the sun and your lunch salad at the same time. If you're eating in a restaurant, order à la carte so you can order the lowest calorie foods but have a variety of items.

- Going to a party? Have a dietetic milkshake you yourself make by whipping 1/3 cup of dry-milk powder, a very ripe banana, a capful of vanilla extract and 4 ice cubes in a blender before you go so that you won't be ravenous.
- Barbecue is not another word for beef. Try chicken and fish for a slenderizing change of taste.
- Instead of using an oily marinade, try any of the bottled dietetic dressings or whip up your own combination of vegetable bouillon, vinegar and spices.

Boozing Rats Behave Like People

They have cocktail hours and nightcaps, form groups that hang out at "bars" and even go on group binges. But they're not people — they're rats.

In an experiment conducted by Dr. Gaylord Ellison, prof. of psychology at UCLA, rats in a socially enriched environment given access to alcohol developed social drinking patterns very much like those of human beings.

The rats' dwellings (burrows) surrounded a straw-covered playground with a watering place. The watering place had spouts from which rats could choose to drink either water or a 10% alcohol, anise-flavored solution. Two peak periods of alcohol consumption developed in the colony — a "cocktail hour" just before feeding time and a "nightcap" period prior to the time the rats retired to their burrows.

The rats also tended to gather in groups at the alcohol spout — their local bar — and socialize spiritedly. In addition, the rats developed a cycle of alcohol consumption with a high alcohol intake day — a "party" — followed by several days of increased water intake, and then another bingelike party day.

In addition to the unlimited alcohol, the rats enjoyed other amenities including being allowed to feast daily on leftovers from the dining room at the UCLA Faculty Center.

Quick Takes

Thousands of hospitalized pregnant women may be subjecting their unborn children to drugs and procedures that could be dangerous — because they don't know they're pregnant. Two N.J. gynecologists screened women between ages 12 and 50 who entered a hospital over a 4-year period and discovered that 56% who were pregnant unfortunately didn't know it. To reduce the risk, women of child-bearing age should be routinely given a pregnancy test when admitted.

Safety air bags are inflationary in more ways than one. Experts say that the air bags will add an extra $200-$300 to the price of a new car when they become mandatory in 1981. And, ironically, although the bags are supposed to be increasing passenger safety, it's expected that auto insurance rates will rise because once an air bag inflates, the cost of replacement is about $700.

Aspirin may have a new use — preventing potentially fatal blood clots in postoperative patients. In a Massachusetts study only 25 percent of post-operative patients who received the aspirin regimen developed clots compared to 45% of the control group. But there's one reservation about the aspirin's protective powers — for an as yet unknown reason, it only seems to have the desired effect on male patients.

OUR STORY: BY SOME MIRACLE SIR MAXWELL SURVIVED THE GRAND MELEE.

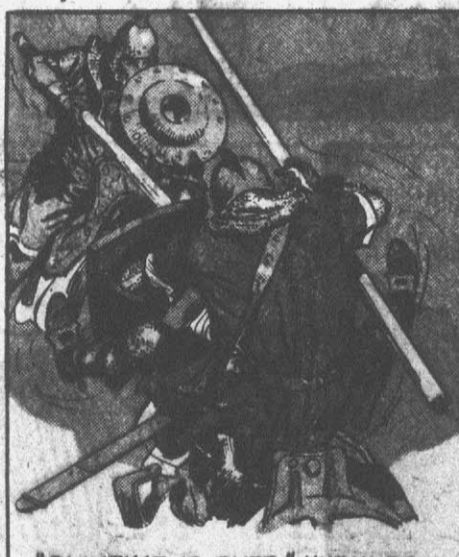

NOW THE CHAMPIONS STAND BEFORE THEIR PAVILIONS WAITING TO ACCOMMODATE ANY HARRY ENOUGH TO CHALLENGE THEM. THEY ARE PRINCE VALIANT, SIR GAWAIN, LAUNCELOT AND GALAHAD. BUT THERE IS WHITE SHOWING IN THE GLOSSY HAIR OF GAWAIN, AND LAUNCELOT MOVES MORE SLOWLY.

SIR MAXWELL REMEMBERS THAT, FOR THE FIRST TIME, HE HAS WON A TOURNAMENT. "SQUIRE! FETCH MY STEED AND A STOUT SPEAR. I WILL CHALLENGE PRINCE VALIANT AND BECOME A CHAMPION!"

THE CHALLENGE IS MADE AND ACCEPTED. ON THE FIRST PASS VAL SEEMS TO BE IN TROUBLE. THE ONLOOKERS GASP IN AMAZEMENT AND A CHEER GOES UP FOR SIR MAXWELL.

"PLAYTIME IS OVER," MURMURS VAL AS THEY BEGIN THE SECOND COURSE AND MAXWELL IS NEATLY PLUCKED FROM HIS SADDLE AND DUMPED ON THE SWARD.

AFTER THE TOURNAMENT A GREAT BALL IS HELD AND SIR MAXWELL IS CONGRATULATED BY ALL. FOR HAS HE NOT ONLY EARNED MUCH HONOR IN THE MELEE BUT ALSO CHALLENGED ONE OF THE GREAT CHAMPIONS AND NEARLY UNHORSED HIM?

Wyatt On The Job As City Manager

Ed Wyatt began his duties this morning as Greenville's new city manager with prospects for a busy first week on the job.

Wyatt, who arrived for work early, said that Mayor Percy Cox planned to introduce him to the city staff at a 10:30 a.m. session.

"I'm delighted to be in Greenville," the new manager commented this morning, "and my wife will be moving here around the middle of the week."

Wyatt, who comes to Greenville from Morganton where he served as city manager, said that his activities for the week will include a City Council workshop session this afternoon, a Greenville Utilities meeting Tuesday night, the annual dinner of the Recreation Commission on Wednesday evening, and his first regular Council meeting on Thursday night.

Wyatt reported that he and his wife, Regina, and their three sons plan to rent an apartment here initially but he added that "we're thinking in terms of building" in the near future.

Wyatt, 36, accepted the Greenville post early last month following an intensive search by the Council for a new manager that involved the review of approximately 100 applications. The Morganton manager was one of six candidates invited here for interviews.

The Petersburg, Va. native was city manager of Beaufort County from 1970 to 1973 before he accepted the Morganton post.

Prominent Dissidents Are Put On Trial By Moscow

By SETH MYDANS
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union put two of its most prominent dissidents on trial today despite vigorous protests from the United States. Both pleaded innocent to the charges against them.

Anatoly Shcharansky, 30, a key member of the Jewish emigration movement here, denied allegations that he had spied for the CIA, systematically feeding "state secrets" to known intelligence agents, a representative of the Soviet Supreme Court reported. Shcharansky is charged with high treason. The maximum sentence is death, but he is expected to get a long term in a labor camp if convicted.

A court official said Shcharansky was accused of supplying agents with state secrets "including information about the locations of a number of defense enterprises which are secret." Alexander Ginzburg, 41, an associate of exiled author

Alexander Solzhenitsyn, went before a court in Kaluga, 100 miles south of Moscow, on the lesser charge of "anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda," and pleaded innocent at the opening of his trial.

Western reporters were barred from both courtrooms.

Ginzburg's wife, Irina, who saw her husband for the first time since his arrest 17 months ago, told Western reporters, "He refused to testify but made this refusal conditional on what witnesses said." Officials of the three-judge court, in a pink and yellow former mansion, said Ginzburg told the court he might revise his plea if his guilt is proved.

They said he was accused of distributing and preparing anti-Soviet literature containing "slandering fabrications defaming the Soviet Union," including works by Solzhenitsyn. Mrs. Ginzburg said the indictment mentioned Solzhenitsyn's

"Gulag Archipelago," among others.

Ginzburg, like Shcharansky a Jew, managed a fund Solzhenitsyn finances to aid the families of Soviet political prisoners.

Two other trials also got under way today, one involving Lithuanian human rights activist Viktoras Pyatkus and the other a mystery figure accused of spying and identified by the Soviet press only as "A. Filatov." Members of the dissident movement said they had never heard of him.

Congress Returns From Long Holiday

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A shopping list of $36 billion worth of weapons and research programs for the Pentagon is awaiting Senate action as Congress returns today from a 10-day holiday.

The Senate's agenda calls for action this week on the weapons authorization bill, a $4 billion military construction measure and a proposal to extend a law protecting endangered species of animals and plants.

The House on Tuesday takes up legislation authorizing $10.3 billion for educational programs, primarily those for disadvantaged children. Then it begins debate on a bill authorizing some $13 billion in energy programs, including the Clinch River, Tenn., breeder reactor program. President Carter wants the project killed, but Congress is trying to keep it alive.

Later in the week, a Senate debate is scheduled on extending the five-year-old Endangered Species Act. Last month's Supreme Court ruling halting work on the Tellico Dam in Tennessee to protect the tiny Snail Darter has prompted calls for more flexibility in the law.

Congressional aides say the Senate is likely to vote for a federal commission that could grant exemptions under the act if the benefits of a project clearly outweigh those of preserving a species.

The Carter administration opposes altering the legislation.

The weapons authorization bill before the Senate calls for spending $613 million above the administrator's request but $1.8 billion less than the House authorized recently.

Changes endorsed by the Senate Armed Services Committee in the Navy's shipbuilding program accounted for a net boost of $890 million in proposed spending on ships.

The committee also proposed major increases in construction programs for the Navy's F-14 and F-18 fighters. Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., plans to lead a Senate fight to end the $982 million program for the F-18, a plane not held in high esteem by the Navy but popular with some members of Congress.

The committee recommended spending $1.9 billion for a 1,000-foot-long nuclear-powered aircraft carrier Carter opposes. The Senate is expected to follow House action and vote to build the ship anyway.

The administration, which did not propose building any carriers this year, wants future models to be smaller and less expensive than the nuclear-powered craft.

Committee sources reported no signs of a serious floor challenge to the nuclear carrier, although they don't flatly rule out the possibility of a fight.

Hart says the F-18 makes the Navy too dependent on big carriers and that it is losing what was supposed to have been a cost advantage over the F-14.

The Armed Services Committee also added $45 million to convert a Marine landing ship to a small carrier for helicopters and vertical-or shorttakeoff aircraft (VSTOL). The committee billed the conversion as a start toward the smaller carriers the administration wants.

The Senate may vote this week on Carter's proposal to prohibit most future power plants from burning oil or natural gas while encouraging greater use of coal. Democratic leaders would like to see some part of the president's energy package approved before he leaves Thursday for an economic summit meeting in Bonn, West Germany.

Fall From Cliff Fatal To Youth

TRAPHILL, N. C. (AP) — A teen-age Wilkes County youth fell to his death Sunday at the Stone Mountain State Park, according to the Wilkes County Sheriff's Department.

A spokesman said Jerry Ray Wagoner of Wilkesboro slipped on some rocks, then slid about 30 feet on wet rocks before falling from a 30-foot cliff.

The spokesman said investigators were told that the accident, which occurred about 4 p.m., came after Wagoner and four companions went to a spot where they had planned to slide on rocks.

THOUSANDS MARCH — A group dressed in white and carrying suffragists' banners of the last century, were among the marchers in Washington Sunday to urge Congress to extend the time for ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment. Estimates of the crowd varied widely with police putting the crowd at 55,000 and the National Park Service saying its count ranged from 90,000 to 100,000. (AP Laserphoto)

ERA Backers Urged To Lobby For Added Time

By PEGGY SIMPSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Backers of the Equal Rights Amendment, who marched by the tens of thousands Sunday in support of the proposal, were lobbying members of Congress today to extend the March deadline for ratifying the measure.

The National Organization for Women and more than 300 other groups staged the march and a rally on the steps of the Capitol to dramatize their stand that, even if the proposal dies next spring, the issue will not fade away.

Bella Abzug, co-chairwoman of the National Advisory Committee on Women, told the marchers to "lobby (members of Congress) and make as a condition of support of their reelection a vote for the ERA extension."

The head of the liberal Americans for Democratic Action, Patsy Mink, told the marchers not to leave Washington "without having a firm commitment, yes or no, from every member" of Congress.

"And if they dare to turn us down," she added, "...we will turn them out on the next election day."

Eleanor Holmes Norton, head of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, told the crowd, "We marched up Constitution Avenue today (Sunday), but we are going to march from one end of America to another until women are as free as men."

"We are going to march from one end of America to another until the ERA is law," she said.

The proposal, passed by Congress in 1972 to ban discrimination based on sex, will die March 22 unless three more states ratify it or Congress extends the seven years given proposed constitutional amendments to win approval from 38 state legislatures.

The extension is in serious trouble in the House Judiciary Committee, where supporters have delayed its consideration, presumably because they don't have the votes to pass it.

The marchers were told to boycott the 15 states that have not ratified the ERA and to consider more dramatic steps.

Feminist Gloria Steinem, noting that suffragists chained themselves to the White House and were forced in jail as they campaigned for the right to vote, said ERA supporters might have to block highways.

"It is time we rocked not only the cradle but the boat of democracy," said pioneer feminist Wilma Scott Heide.

Sadat Reportedly Ready To Mothball Peace Plan

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — President Anwar Sadat reportedly says he will mothball his peace plan, rejected by Israel, if the Israelis will discuss principles rather than details when the foreign ministers of the two countries meet in London next week.

Sadat met here Sunday with Shimon Peres, leader of Israel's opposition Labor Party. Afterward, Peres' spokesman reported Sadat said he would be willing to "put the plan aside if the discussions move toward declaration of principles and not detailed plans."

In Jerusalem, Prime Minister Menachem Begin's cabinet rejected the Egyptian proposal, disclosed last Wednesday, as "completely unacceptable." But the cabinet agreed to send Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan to meet July 18-19 in London with Egyptian Foreign Minister Mohammed Ibrahim Kamel and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance.

The official agenda is to consist of the Egyptian peace plan and an Israeli plan that Egypt vetoed last December, leading to the breakdown in direct talks the following month. Peres' spokesman, Yossi Beilin, did not specify how far Sadat would be willing to let the Egyptian delegation depart from his proposals in London.

Begin said after the cabinet meeting that Dayan, accompanied by five aides, "will present our peace plan and will contribute, will do his best to contribute to the resumption of the peacemaking process."

But Cabinet Secretary Arie Naoor told reporters: "No change in Israel's plan was decided upon."

Sadat told a news conference before he met with Peres that a rise if the London talks fail. But he said he was counting on the United States as a "full partner" in negotiations to "use its efforts to ease the situation" if the impasse continues.

The Egyptian leader said Israel had not changed its position enough to warrant his meeting again with Begin, as he did last Christmas in Ismailia, Egypt.

Sadat's proposals call for Israel to return East Jerusalem to Arab control and to turn over the occupied West Bank to Jordan and the Gaza Strip to Egypt for an interim five-year period. After that, the 1.1 million Palestinian Arabs living in the West Bank and Gaza would decide their own future political status.

Israel's plan calls for retention of the West Bank and Gaza, limited self rule for the Palestinians for five years, and then negotiations on the future status of the territories. And Israel refuses to consider giving up East Jerusalem, which it annexed after the 1973 war.

Beilin said Peres, while rebuffing the Egyptian demand for withdrawal from all occupied territories, considered it important that the Sadat plan mentioned neither a Palestinian state nor the Palestine Liberation Organization, with which Vance on Saturday said Shcharansky and Ginzburg were being tried for "asserting fundamental human rights — to speak out." Both men were active in the Helsinki human rights group formed to report on Soviet violations of the human rights provisions of the 1975 Helsinki accords on European security and cooperation.

The founder of the Helsinki group, Yuri Orlov, was sentenced May 18 to seven years at hard labor plus five years of Siberian exile.

Shcharansky, who turned to active dissidence after he was denied permission to emigrate to Israel in 1973, is accused of feeding information to the CIA via diplomats and news correspondents. The maximum sentence for high treason is death, but he is expected to get a long term in a labor camp.

Police barred Shcharansky's mother and brother from the Proletarsky Regional People's Court today, but when they insisted they would trans-

ANATOLY SHCHARANSKY

Shcharansky, a computer expert, also was charged with giving a foreign state assistance by conducting hostile activities against the Soviet Union and with anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda.

The U.S. Embassy sent second secretaries to the Shcharansky and Ginzburg trials "to show our concern and the concern of the people of the United States in these trials." Both were barred from the courtrooms and stood outside with foreign reporters and members of the dissident movement.

The State Department in a statement Friday approved by President Carter warned that the fate of the two human rights activists will have an impact on the "constructive development" of Soviet-American relations.

To emphasize its disapproval, the Carter administration cancelled visits to Moscow by a scientific delegation headed by Carter's chief science adviser and by an official of the Environmental Protection Agency.

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance is going ahead with his meeting with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko in Switzerland Wednesday to try to clear some of the roadblocks to a new treaty limiting nuclear arms. But a State Department official said Vance would also deliver a message from Carter to Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev expressing U.S. concern over Soviet treatment of dissidents.

Pitt Education Board Will Meet On Tuesday

The Pitt County Board of Education will meet Tuesday, 2 p.m., for its regular July session. Highlights on the agenda include the following:

- The survey study conducted by the State Department of Public Instruction concerning the Greenville City and Pitt County Schools tentative merger will be presented. It is proposed that Dr. Spencer, chairman of the study group, return in the near future for a joint meeting of the two boards to lead a review of the findings.
- Alice Keene will report on the Community Schools Program and will seek advice concerning possible federal funding for construction of certain outdoor recreational facilities.

— John McKnight, director of testing and research for Pitt County Schools, will present test data received on the competency tests conducted in April.

— Dan Thomas, school finance officer, will request approval of an amended budget resolution.

— Superintendent Ott Alford will report on the response of local school advisory councils concerning "racial balances" as related to officers, cheerleaders, etc.
