

Name First Juror In Prison-Escape Trial Of Little

By WILLIAM M. WELCH Associated Press Writer RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) - The first juror was seated today for the prison-escape trial of Joan Little as defense attorney Jerry Paul conducted long and tedious questioning of each prospect.

occasionally taking notes and whispering to Paul as he asked potential jurors if they believed she had escaped and if they could presume her innocence. There were two blacks and 10 whites in the first pool of 12 prospective jurors. Each was interviewed separately.

Court Judge James H. Pou Bailey ordered Kunstler free two hours after sheriff's deputies arrested him for approaching the judge and attempting to give him a legal petition.

One juror was rejected and a second woman was still being questioned by Paul when court was adjourned. Bailey ordered the woman sequestered overnight, and said the entire jury would be sequestered when seated.

KUNSTLER ARRESTED - Attorney William Kunstler was arrested Monday, and charged with obstructing court proceedings in the trial of Joan Little for prison escape. Charges were dropped but Judge H. Pou Bailey denied Kunstler's request to join Jerry Paul (left) in Little's defense. (AP Laserphoto)

Bailey rejected two motions to dismiss the case, a bid by Kunstler to represent Miss Little in the case and another to let him sit at the defense table anyway.

The afternoon session was held up for two hours when Kunstler and Paul filed a petition with the clerk of U.S. District Court in Raleigh to remove the case to federal court. The legal maneuver, filed under what Kunstler said was a reconstruction-era federal statute that protected blacks from some local prosecution, suspended the state court action while federal Judge Franklin Dupree considered the petition.

Dupree dismissed the petition, and Bailey read his ruling in Superior Court.

Kunstler's arrest was not his first confrontation with a judge in Miss Little's behalf. He was found in contempt of court and jailed for two hours during a one-day appearance in Miss Little's celebrated 1975 murder trial, in which she was acquitted of the ice-pick slaying of a Beaufort County jailer.

In Monday's arrest, Kunstler left his seat among courtroom visitors and was attempting to give Bailey a copy of the federal petition when deputies grabbed him. Kunstler said the federal statute required the judge be given a copy.

Russians Try 2 Dissidents

By SETH MYDANS Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) - Soviet court officials said testimony was given today in the trial of dissident Anatoly Shcharansky about his alleged espionage relationship with an American newspaper correspondent.

In Kaluga, 100 miles away, the wife of Alexander Ginzburg, on trial for anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda, was ejected from the courtroom after an outburst in which she later said she shouted at a prosecution witness, "God will be your judge."

Shcharansky, 30, a computer expert and Jewish activist, faces the death penalty on a charge of spying for the United States. Ginzburg, 41, also a Jew, faces 15 years punishment. Both men have pleaded innocent and their trials have raised protests around the world.

In a gesture of American support, Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance will meet in Geneva later this week with Shcharansky's wife, Avital, an American official said in Washington. Vance, who over the weekend condemned Soviet actions against Shcharansky and other prominent dissidents, will be in Geneva for arms talks with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

A court official in Moscow read reporters a statement saying a secret session of the Shcharansky trial was told he provided "intelligence and other information" to a foreign correspondent who, "as established by competent bodies, is an agent of one of the Western military intelligence services."

The official, Magomet Pirbudagov, did not mention the correspondent's name, but cited articles about parapsychology and genetic engineering written by Los Angeles Times correspondent Robert C. Toth.

Toth was interrogated by Soviet police before he left Moscow a year ago about his contacts with Shcharansky. In a statement Monday from Washington, Toth denied working for any intelligence agency and called the allegations "nonsense."

According to Pirbudagov, Shcharansky helped the foreign correspondent make contacts in the scientific community here and distributed his questionnaires to scientists. He said Shcharansky confirmed the evidence of investigators about his contacts with the correspondent.

He said the court also heard about an article Toth wrote, with Shcharansky's help, suggesting that the locations of secret enterprises could be deduced from the workplaces of Jews who were denied exit visas on national security grounds.

Road Funds

The Department of Transportation has allocated $314,614 for secondary road construction in Pitt County for the 1978-1979 fiscal year.

The Pitt allocation was part of $23.32 million allocated statewide for secondary road construction this year.

Pitt has 270.52 miles of unpaved secondary roads.

Secondary construction allocations are based on the number of unpaved miles of secondary roads in the state.

Martin County's allocation for the fiscal year total $170,751, based on 146.82 miles of unpaved secondary roads, while Green County was allocated $94,319, based on 81.10 miles of unpaved roads.

Senate Expected OK New Carrier

By TERENCE HUNT Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - A $2 billion aircraft carrier opposed by the Carter administration appears headed for Senate approval without a major fight, but battle lines are being drawn over a Navy aircraft program.

Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., planned to offer an amendment today to kill a proposed $982 million for the F-18 fighter, a plane that has been given only a lukewarm endorsement from the Navy but which has some powerful allies in Congress.

The F-18 issue is shaping up as perhaps the only major contest in a $36 billion weapons authorization bill that moved onto the Senate floor Monday. The measure calls for spending $595 million more than the administration proposed but $1.8 billion less than the House recently authorized.

In the opening debate, there was no sign of opposition to the nuclear-powered aircraft carrier added to the bill by the Armed Services Committee over the administration's objections. The House has voted overwhelmingly to build a 1,000-foot-long nuclear carrier.

The administration, while still officially opposing the ship, has not mounted much of a campaign against it, according to sources who asked not to be named. Supporters say the ship probably would be the last large-deck carrier to be built.

Hart, in a prepared Senate speech, argued that the F-18, which has not gone into production, is dependent on large carriers and would lock the country into building more such ships. He also said it has lost its cost advantage over the F-14 fighter.

Among the F-18's supporters are Sen. Edward Kennedy and House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., both of Massachusetts, where the F-18 engine would be produced by General Electric. Other strong supporters include members of Congress from Missouri, where the airframe would be built, and California, home of Northrup Corp., a major subcontractor on the project.

Kennedy's office said he would oppose Hart's amendments on grounds that the aircraft's performance has won wide acclaim and - contrary to Hart's assertion - is relatively inexpensive to build, operate and maintain.

A Navy memorandum to Defense Secretary Brown last year said that "although the F18 provides some capabilities that we would like to have, in light of fiscal constraints we surely face, it is far preferable to terminate it than suffer the ... loss in other aviation and non-aviation programs, which otherwise seems inevitable."

Points To Va. Extravagance

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) - Local property taxation in Virginia is growing at a faster rate than in California, where voters placed constitutional restraints on real estate levies.

Virginia Secretary of Administration and Finance Charles Walker told the House Appropriations Committee here Monday that from 1966 to 1976 property tax collections in Virginia climbed from $75 for every Virginia man, woman and child to $173, for a 131 percent increase.

During the same period, Walker told the legislators, California's per capita property tax collections climbed from $198 to $415, or 110 percent. California voters last month approved Proposition 13, an amendment to the California constitution that places a local property tax ceiling of 1 percent of assessed value and limits hikes in assessments.

Walker also told the committee that Virginia's state and local tax collections have risen at a higher rate in the last 10 years than in any other state.

Virginia collects $609 dollars in state and local taxes yearly on a per capita basis, compared with $964 in California Walker said, adding that the 10-year increase in Virginia was 188 percent, while in California it was 144 percent.

The state official did not offer any conclusions from the figures, but after Proposition 13 was approved, some state and local government officials voiced fears that a similar taxpayers' revolt could happen in Virginia.

Some legislators have indicated they will introduce similar tax limitation bills in the 1979 General Assembly.

Reports Project Actions

By TOM BAINES Reflector Staff Writer

The Redevelopment Commission, meeting in a brief summer session, heard staff reports last night on the status of acquisition, disposition, relocation and rehabilitation in the various project areas.

Kirby Boyd, staff real estate officer, reported that four parcels were acquired since the June meeting, including two parcels in Southside and two in the West Meadowbrook area. Vacant lots were involved in the Meadowbrook purchases, he noted.

Boyd told the commissioners that two structures were removed from the Southside project area since the last session.

One relocation was handled in Southside, according to project manager Faye Brewington, while no relocation activity took place in West Meadowbrook during the month.

Ed Cobb, rehabilitation officer, said that one 3-1/2 loan was completed since the last meeting but since more inspections are now being made, particularly in West Greenville, the number of loans and grants initiated should see a sizeable increase.

Cobb noted that the rehabilitation loan and grant activity involved mainly the Riverdale, Biltmore and Higgs neighborhoods.

Cloud Over Vance's Trip

WASHINGTON (AP) - Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance is off to Geneva today to see if he can make headway in slowing the nuclear weapons race despite steadily souring relations with the Soviet Union.

Trials of top Russian dissidents Anatoly Shcharansky and Alexander Ginzburg clouded an already complicated Vance mission, but he said the imperatives of preventing nuclear annihilation left him no alternative but to go ahead with the negotiations.

Over the last several months the two superpowers have made only halting progress toward a treaty to limit their long-range bombers and intercontinental ballistic missiles.

As Vance prepared for his meetings with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko on Wednesday and Thursday, the Carter administration weighed a decision on ways to protect U.S. land-based missiles from potential Russian assault.

This is likely to add to existing differences between the two sides on how to restrict development and deployment of new missiles and what to do about the Soviet Backfire bomber.

The missile-protecting technique under consideration is a sort of "shell game." Thousands of extra holes would be dug for the American Minutemen. Then the missiles would be shifted from silo to silo periodically to hide them from the Russians.

Despite this tentative step to shore up U.S. defenses, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., let fly in the Senate with a blistering attack on U.S. negotiating strategy.

Jackson, who has a hardliner reputation, said the Carter administration was inclined to one-sided arms agreements with the Russians.

"It is high time we stopped the dangerous practice of entering into unequal deals with Moscow in the misguided notion that Soviet leaders will reward our generosity with restraint in international affairs," Jackson said.

A fellow Democrat, Sen. Thomas McIntyre of New Hampshire, shot back that Jackson was "carping about a treaty that we haven't seen yet."

FLEA FEEDBACK

Helen Bach of Helen's Grooming World called after seeing the Hotline item about fleas in the house to say that there is an insecticide fogger on the market which kills all fleas and other insects in an enclosed area in one application. She says the fogger may be left for 30 minutes or longer in any area of up to 5,000 cubic feet to do its killing work. It does no harm to plants or furniture, but all people and animals should be evacuated, she said. The foggers are available at her store, Mrs. Bach said, and probably at others in the Greenville area, also.

Ayden Bd. Rules Zone Closed To Livestock Mart

By REBECCA BUFFALO Reflector Staff Writer

AYDEN - The Ayden Board of Commissioners voted not to accept a livestock market in a zone set aside for industrial park use in a public hearing held during its regular meeting last night.

Bryan Hargett, a local agribusinessman, had come before the board previously to request permission to build a livestock market in the Ayden area.

The board learned yesterday that Hargett had opted to build the proposed business in an area located down from Ayden-Grifton High School.

Though the business would not then be built in the M-1 zone, located on the Highway 11 Bypass near the USI Plant, the board went on record to deny approval.

The board adopted the Ayden thoroughfare plan as discussed in a workshop session last week.

The Ayden thoroughfare plan, now to be sent to the state Department of Transportation, is a projection for Ayden for the next 20-50 years.

Dr. Elliott Dixon, board member, discussed sending the plan back to the Ayden Planning Board to include a loop in the western portion of town.

Bill Shelley of the Mid-East Commission, who has been assigned to work with Ayden in the thoroughfare plan, explained to the board that the planning board had considered the proposed loop and was recommending it to the state DOT. The plan allows area to be saved for needed roads as industry and subdivisions enlarge the town, according to Ralph Ford, town clerk.

A public hearing was held at the beginning of the meeting concerning the closing of the alley located on property owned by Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Spruill on the eastern section of town.

The closing was approved and an order was adopted stating the case.

According to Ford, the closing will allow a maximum of five houses to be built in that area. Three houses would (Continued on page 6)

Birth Of First 'Test Tube Baby' Is Awaited

LONDON (AP) - A "test tube baby" will be born by Caesarean section at Oldham, in northern England, within three weeks, medical sources predicted today.

David Sanders, a spokesman for the British government's Medical Research Council, said there is no single authority on the existence of a live test tube baby, but he said it was generally accepted this will be the first one. "But no one can claim with absolute certainty one way or another," the spokesman said.

as "Mrs. A." is reported to be 32 years old and married to a railroad worker in his late 30s. In nine years of marriage she had been unable to conceive.

A successful birth would climax a dozen years of work by gynecologist Dr. Patrick Steptoe, 65, and Dr. Robert Edwards, 52, a Cambridge University physiologist.

The test tube technique is designed for women who cannot conceive because of obstruction in the fallopian tubes that carry eggs from the ovaries to the uterus.

It differs from cloning, the creation of a child from a single cell of one parent, in that the test tube method uses a male sperm and a female egg. There is no record of a birth by cloning, and the claim by writer David Norvik in his recent book "In His Image" that he knew of a successful cloning is generally regarded as unfounded.

The book's publisher J.B. Lippincott Co. has been sued in the United States by a British research scientist and biologist who says his reputation for knowledge in experimental embryology was injured by the unauthorized use of his name in the book.

The suit was filed Monday in U.S. District Court in Philadelphia on behalf of Dr. J.D. Bromhall of Oxford, England. Bromhall is seeking $7 million in damages, plus an unspecified portion of the profits from the book on the grounds that part of the profits derived from use of his name.

The scientist claims that Norvik published, without authorization, excerpts from Bromhall's doctoral thesis which explores the possibility of human cloning. He seeks a court declaration that the book is a "fraud and a hoax, that is fiction and not non-fiction."

There was no immediate comment from Lippincott.

The doctors in England found they could fertilize a female egg with male sperm in an extremely complicated glass test tube. They then planted the fertilized eggs into the wombs of women who had been trying in vain to become pregnant.

Women using the technique became pregnant but miscarried, usually within a few weeks of implantation.

Why Mrs. A. apparently succeeded where other women failed will not be publicly known until the doctors publish details of their work.

She and her husband spent a lot of money seeing consultants about her failure to conceive. It was established that the fault was not her husband's but a defect in her fallopian tubes. That led them to the Steptoe-Roberts laboratory, where Mr. A.'s sperm was used to fertilize an egg from Mrs. A. in a test tube containing a culture medium. After four days the fertilized egg was inserted into Mrs. A.'s womb.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

(Author's Note: This is one of a series on How America Vacations and how shots can help. Today's column deals with renting a cabin near the beach.)

When people talk about the beach, the frame of reference is always a personal one.

Children see it as miles of smooth, white sand, seashells, making castles with a bucket and shovel, burying their feet, and floating on mattresses.

When Daddy fantasizes about the beach it's "innie" navels, bronze bodies shimmering with oil, cold beer, and holding your stomach in for six or eight hours at a time.

When Mother visualizes the beach, she sees it as a laundromat.

For some unexplained reason, boasted it was furnished with the "bare basics." That included three iced tea spoons, two plates, one cup, an olive fork, a one-quart saucepan, a flower sifter and three waterbeds — especially when it rained.

It was also listed as being "on the beach" and for all I know it was at one time. That's before they filled it in with a four-lane highway. To get to the beach now you had to pack supplies for the entire day, outrun the traffic, and take turns going back and forth for all the things you forgot.

A lot of people exodus every year from the city to the beaches in search of pounding waves, sand and cool nights. Me? I'd settle for a laundromat with a window in it.

Concorde Flight Jacket Takes Off

By JOHN MOODY
UPI Men's Fashion Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — Two years ago, almost every store in the country was carrying a shiny silver-colored jacket with the word "Porsche" marching boldly down the sleeve and the never-ending American love affair with speed and fast cars had found a new form of expression.

But fads die quickly in on-the-move America. This year the new "in" jacket venerates the fastest-ever mode of transportation — the Concorde SST, that needle-nosed sleek streak that crosses the Atlantic at twice the speed of sound.

"It's a status symbol jacket. That's what I'm selling it as," he said in a recent interview near his Greenwich Village studio.

"It's being sold only in four stores — Bloomingdale's, Saks Fifth Avenue, Nieman Marcus and I. Magnin — and a few boutiques."

The construction of the jacket certainly isn't ordinary. "It's aluminized rip-stop nylon. That's nylon that has been suspended in a vacuum and shot with aluminum," Kay explained. "The lining is a lightweight cotton blend."

But what he hopes will sell the garment are the colorful patches that proclaim the names of the airlines, and gimmicks like snap pilot pockets and the detachable inner "cockpit pouch."

Since hitting the market last fall, Kay says he's sold about 15,000 jackets in the U.S. and Britain. He got a publicity boost when big names like Jackie Onassis, actresses Goldie Hawn, Jaclyn Smith and Faye Dunaway and songstress Diana Ross wore the jackets at the chic spots they patronize.

He's also given one of the jackets to each member of the British Airways and Air France Concorde crews and the 100 pilots who fly the bird.

"I think the success of the jacket was predictable," says Kay, a 32-year-old former director of catalogue advertising for American Express.

"We're moving away from the blue collar chic trend. Things like butcher aprons that were very fashionable in Paris a few years ago aren't being worn now. We're into the hero trend now. I think a part of all of us wants to be a race car driver, or in this case, a Concorde pilot."

Fears Worst For Falsifying Age

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Many years ago I falsified my age on my driver's license. (I deducted three years from my birth date.) I am now 62, and I look every year of it.

I am actually entitled to some senior citizen benefits, but my driver's license says I'm only 59!

In order to change the birth date on my driver's license, I have to write to the State Department of Motor Vehicles. I haven't written to them because I'm terrified of the consequences. I've never been in any kind of trouble in my entire lifetime, and I have an unblemished driving record.

Will I lose my license? I can't have that happen! Will I be arrested? Will I have to pay a stiff fine? What will my punishment be?

Please find out what's in store for me. If the penalty is too great, I'll leave well enough alone and forget the benefits. I don't want to go to jail, but I think they may have to lock me up in a mental institution if I have to worry much longer over this mess I got myself into years ago. Has anyone else ever had this problem?

If you use this letter, for heaven's sake, please change my name.

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: Many others have had this problem, and if that's the worst crime anyone ever committed, we'd all be saints.

Simply provide proof of your real age to the Department of Motor Vehicles (a copy of your birth certificate is considered acceptable documentation), and all will be forgiven and forgotten.

DEAR ABBY: At the bottom of your column you say, "You'll feel better if you get it off your chest," so I am writing to get something off my chest.

I get along OK with my mother-in-law, although deep down I've always had the feeling that she never really liked me.

What bugs me most about her is this: When she calls our house and I answer the phone, she says, "Let me talk to Dennis!"

She never asks me how I am or anything.

I don't have the nerve to tell her to her face how much this irritates me, but if I were to pick up the paper one day and see this letter in your column, it would really make my day.

SOMEBODY WHO FEELS LIKE NOBODY

DEAR SOMEBODY: I'm glad I was able to make your day.

DEAR ABBY: Recently I received an invitation to a bridal shower that was to take place four days after the invitation had been mailed.

I hardly knew the bride-to-be, and besides, the shower was being held in a city over 350 miles away! To me, it was a blatant request for a gift, since it was obvious that I couldn't possibly attend. Feeling as I did, I didn't respond (even though the invitation was R.S.V.P.), nor did I send a gift.

Later, my mother said I showed poor manners by not sending a gift, and she felt I certainly should have responded to the R.S.V.P. I say no one ever expected me to come, and they showed poor manners by even sending me the invitation under those circumstances.

Can you settle this argument for us? Is it proper to send bridal shower invitations to people you know can't possibly attend?

UNDER FIRE IN OREGON

DEAR UNDER FIRE: Your mother is half right. You showed poor manners in not responding to the R.S.V.P. However, a gift is always optional under these circumstances. No one is required to give one.

Man And Woman Held In Killing Family Of 5

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — A man who allegedly led police to a sandy grave containing the bodies of five former in-laws is in jail on $500,000 bond, and a woman who police implicate in the execution-style killings also has been jailed on the same bond.

Ovide Joseph Dugas, 31, was charged with five counts of kidnapping and Linda Mae Burnett with five counts of murder in the case.

Jefferson County District Attorney James McGrath said Monday that murder charges would be filed against Dugas after pathologist reports determined whether the five victims were killed in Jefferson County or in nearby rural Chambers County, where the victims lived.

Dugas was arrested and jailed in Chambers County. Jefferson County officials would have to show where the murders were committed before asking for his transfer. His woman companion was arrested in Jefferson County.

"We're putting a few things together. For the moment you might say we're biding our time," McGrath said.

Police said they believed Dugas blamed his in-laws for the failure of his marriage to their daughter, Mary Phillips, about two years ago. She was not home during the Fourth of July holiday, when the victims disappeared.

The victims were Dugas' former father-in-law, Bishop Phillips, 64; Phillips' wife, Ester, 66; their son, Elmer, 31; his wife, Martha, 35; and their son, Jason, 4. The younger Phillips, who lived in Oklahoma, were visiting their parents over the July 4 weekend.

The bodies were found Sunday night buried in a shallow grave about 10 miles from their blood-spattered Chambers County home. All five had been shot several times and their hands and feet were bound.

Dugas was arrested Friday. Police say he led them to the grave.

Burglary Is Public Employee Unions Said Also Charged Straining Public's Patience

James Earl Evans, 25 of 1202 Forbes St., arrested last week in connection with the rape of an 11-year-old girl here July 3, was charged by Greenville Police yesterday with burglary, assault with intent to commit rape and with larceny after breaking and entering in connection with a July 5 incident, chief Glenn Cannon reported today.

Cannon said Evans was charged yesterday with entering a house at 1110 Forbes St. through a kitchen window and threatening, at knife point, to assault one of two young women asleep in the dwelling.

The intruder fled the dwelling through a door when the woman verbally resisted.

An intensive investigation by police and State Bureau of Investigation agents led to Evans' arrest Friday on charges of burglary and rape in connection with a July 3 incident in which an 11-year-old child was raped at knife-point by an intruder who entered her room through a window as she slept.

ATLANTA (AP) — More and more public employees are joining unions, but tax-revolt-minded citizens are less likely than ever to sympathize with striking workers, county officials were told Monday.

"The public has gotten fed up" with strikes by municipal and county workers, said Edward J. Gusty, commissioner of personnel in Onondaga County, N.Y.

He was one of several participants in a panel discussion at the annual conference of the National Association of Counties.

The public has "given in (to striking workers) in the past because of the inconvenience," Gusty said, "but now things are starting to change."

"They'll take their own garbage to the dump first," another delegate said.

Charles Mulcahy, the NACo's labor counsel, said union membership is growing among public employees and more states are likely to approve some sort of employee strike provision.

Eight states already provide for limited strikes, allowing elected officials to negotiate with their own employees, he said.

Mulcahy said compulsory arbitration is not desirable for government workers because it takes decisions out of the hands of elected officials and puts them in the hands of "college professor types."

"When they pack their bags and move out of town," the elected officials are "stuck" with settlements their budgets may not be able to handle, he said.

At another panel session, Jay Rowen of the federal Work Incentive Program said tax-cutting initiatives like California's Proposition 13 could mean less help for the unemployed.

More people would be left to fend for themselves, possibly with "detrimental" effects on society, he said.

Joanne Richter, director of the Sexual Assault Treatment Center in Broward County, Fla., urged officials at a third discussion session to coordinate their counties' services for victims of crimes.

The facilities needed to help the victims of sexual assault and other crimes are available in most counties, she said. "All that is often needed is a coordinator."

New Deadline For New Bern

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP) — The New Bern Board of Aldermen have given the city's policemen another 24 hours to return to work before being fired.

After a two-hour closed meeting Monday night, aldermen announced they would extend the deadline for police to return to their jobs from 5 p.m. Monday until 5 p.m. Tuesday.

Police, who walked off their jobs over a pay dispute with the aldermen on June 30, ignored Monday's deadline.

The aldermen also announced that a 6 percent salary increase would become effective immediately and that outside consultants will be hired to review the city's wage policies.

Alderman James Ross before Monday night's session asked

Police Captain P.O. Rodgers if police would go back to work if former police chief John Worsham were not reinstated. Rodgers said no.

Worsham, who resigned along with the rest of the police force, was fired Friday by the aldermen. Worsham is a former FBI agent and had been police chief for seven years.

Worsham was not mentioned by the aldermen in Monday night's meeting, but City Manager J.C. Outlaw said his status had not changed.

Mayor L.R. Morgan appealed to the aldermen earlier Monday to extend the deadline while an outside study is made of the city's pay scale. Morgan had previously asked that the police be given until July 20 to return to their jobs.

Police turned in their badges at a Board of Aldermen meeting after the board refused to give them a 10 percent pay hike.

The aldermen approved a 6 percent pay increase for police and a 5 percent merit increase for 30 percent of the police officers.

Police met Sunday and agreed to ignore the 5 p.m. Monday deadline, but they announced that they would attend the regular meeting of the aldermen Tuesday night. Police said Monday night that they will present a petition supporting police demands to the aldermen in Tuesday's meeting.

The city has been advertising for a new police force for a week but has taken no applications.

Donating Extra Penny To Fund

Reynolds Metals Company recently announced that it will donate one cent to the Muscular Dystrophy Association-Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon for every pound of aluminum the company collects at its over 800 recycling points from August 1 through Labor Day. The penny is in addition to the 17 cents per pound normally paid recyclers for their efforts.

The Reynolds Aluminum Recycling Company facility serving the Greenville area is located at Pitt Plaza every Friday from 12 noon to 1 p.m.

Large Turnout For N.C. Growth Talk

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt heard about 300 people gathered at Fayetteville Technical Institute Monday night give their opinions on the state's growth needs in the first of a series of statewide public hearings on a balanced growth plan for North Carolina.

Persons at the hearing said that the state needs bureaucratic restraint and cost-efficient management; that economic prosperity cannot be achieved without energy and conservation planning; and that more money, training and planning are needed from state resources in health, education and welfare and senior citizens' needs.

Balanced growth policy proposals were developed from the "Carolina Tomorrow Survey" conducted by Hunt's office last year. The policy attempts to address the need for job development while balancing economic interests with health, environmental and social issues.

Hunt praised North Carolina and said the state has over two million volunteers. He said citizen participation in the planning of the state's growth is vital.

"There are other places in the country where the people are going backward," Hunt said. "They say 'Leave us alone.' Well, the people of North Carolina are different. We don't want to go back. We can't turn back the hands of progress."

The next hearing will be July 17 in the Williamston High School auditorium in Martin County.

Donna Fargo Is Still A Patient

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (AP) — Country music singer Donna Fargo is still suffering a viral illness that makes portions of her body numb. The malady has forced her to cancel a Sept. 14 appearance at the Kansas State Fair, fair secretary Bob Gottschalk said Monday.

No replacement has been named.

Miss Fargo originally canceled 2 1/2 months of scheduled performances because of the illness. She did want to fulfill late summer commitments, Gottschalk said.

A Foundation Can Be Useful

The Greenville Foundation committee was organized last week, with Dr. Herbert Hadley named as its chairman.

The foundation will be receptive to tax deductible contributions for various trust funds which can be used for community activities.

Greenville's foundation is patterned after the Winston-Salem Foundation. In Winston-Salem's case funds have been applied to charitable purposes as suggested by the donors, or as unrestricted grants for cultural, educational, health or other agencies.

Henry M. Carter, Jr., executive director of the Winston-Salem Foundation, said such foundations are developing rapidly.

"They ultimately make the communities they serve a better place to live," he said.

The Greenville Foundation could serve a very high purpose in our community. We have a rapidly developing area which is considered a desirable place to live.

There are many needs, however, which cannot be met entirely through governmental appropriations. If funds can be obtained for these specialized purposes we can still further improve on the liveability of our community.

Like any great institution, a superior city needs funds for projects which cannot always come from tax sources. Greenville now has the machinery to accept gifts and bequests. We hope that it will be well used.

It's Another Day For Solomon Islanders

Thousands who fought there and millions who lived through World War II will remember the Pacific Solomon Islands.

It was there that the vicious battles of Guadalcanal took place with fierce loss of U. S. and Japanese lives.

Those days are long past and beyond the memory of most residence of the Solomons today.

The islands were back in the news, though. They obtained their independence from Great Britain in ceremonies last week.

For the Solomons it was the opening of a new era, but for visiting war veterans there were old memories of a cruel war which now seems senseless.

THIS AFTERNOON

Court-Watchers' Findings

By Bill Noblitt (First of Two Articles)
RALEIGH—As a series of public hearings on crime and how to fight it are held across the state, North Carolinians would do well to take a close look at Gaston County's court watch program.

It was in that community that citizens first launched an organized effort to monitor the courts from a layman's point of view. The program continues to thrive, and is serving as the launching pad for similar approaches elsewhere in this state and across the nation.

Court watchers have identified problems aplenty in three years more than 100 citizens participated, watching more than 15,000 court proceedings to "assess the kind of justice administered..."

An important point is made by leaders: apparently the problems are not altogether unique to Gaston County, states the preface to a report summing up the activity.

Widespread
All signs point to the same problems—and more—in other courts in North Carolina and other states.

Gaston court watchers were organized by the Gaston County Extension Homemakers Council under leadership of Helen J. Bess who pushed formation of the Concerned Citizens for Justice.

Gov. Jim Hunt now says he wants to see this idea spread across North Carolina.

Citizen observers, say Gaston leaders, are not supposed to pass judgment on legal and technical matters, but rather to watch, learn, and offer constructive criticism and public support for improvement.

"The appearance of justice is something citizen court observers are uniquely qualified to judge," the summary notes. They don't need to understand historical background and all legalities...but instead, to see the system through the eyes of consumers.

What did those consumers discover as students, housewives, retirees, or ordinary people spent long hours in court?

Here from the report is "a final, full evaluation" of the criminal justice system in Gaston County (and other counties), warts and all:

BILL NOBLITT

Witnesses and victims can't find the right courts because information services and signs are few; people mill about seeking help but court officials are sequestered. There's no one to ask.

Noisy and confusing courtroom activity leaves observers and defendants puzzled, and people in the courtrooms—including participants—can't usually hear what is going on as defense lawyers, prosecutors and judges huddle and mumble together.

Too Quiet
Many criminal cases are handled during recess, in mumbled conferences at the judges bench, or in whispered bargaining sessions.

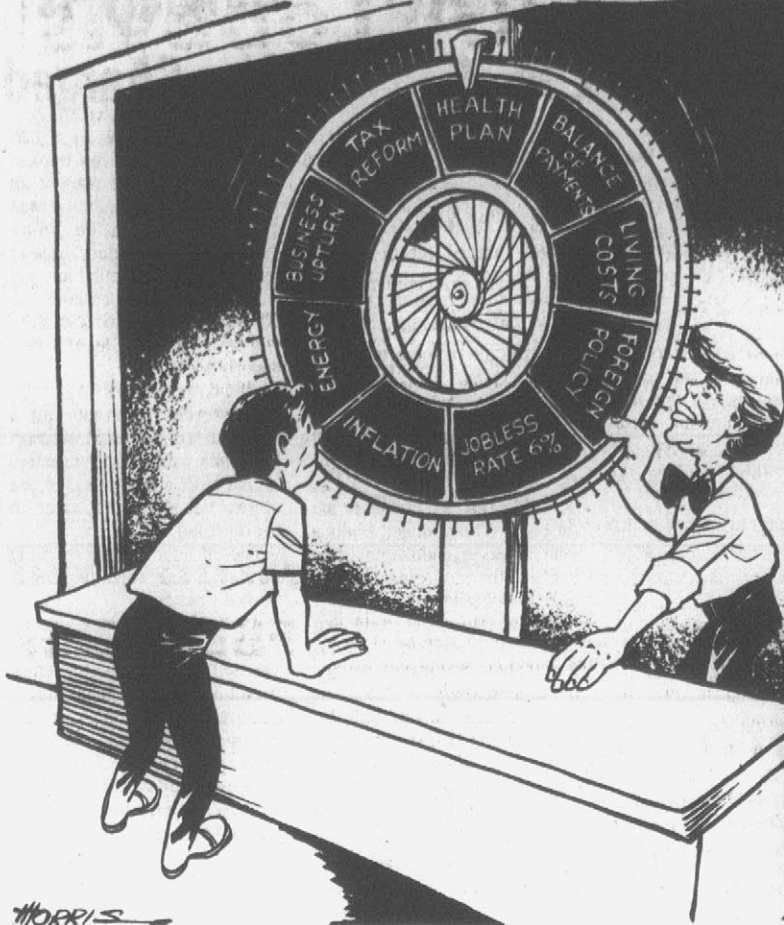

Delays are numerous and frustrating. Cases are continued because defendants need time to pay defense lawyers, there are tardy crime lab reports, the defendant doesn't show, dockets are full, or attorneys on either side are unprepared. Court observers expressed "alarm" at the numerous continuances.

The most significant cause of justice delayed in the courtroom was tardiness on the part of judges, and numerous recesses of considerable length.

Court bailiffs came for a fair share of criticism: they play favorites in allowing people to move about the room or sit where they please, fail to control traffic, rest on the tables, fail to enforce rules of conduct.

The District Attorney's staff on occasion appeared inept, disorganized, unprepared, and outsmarted by defense lawyers.

IF WE COULD JUST WIN ON ONE OF THEM

Weighing Dirty Words

Some of my colleagues of the media are howling with outrage and despair at the Supreme Court's decision in the Case of the Seven Dirty Words. I wish they were howling in a better cause.

Granted, this has been a terrible year for the press at the hands of the high tribunal. Lyle Denniston, Supreme Court reporter for the Washington Star, added up the score the other day: Through June, out of six major decisions, the press had lost five. Perhaps the 5-4 verdict of July 3 in the matter of Station WBAI means we lost six of seven.

But on this last point, I am not so sure. In affirming the action of the Federal Communications Commission in this affair, the Supreme Court may have struck a small but useful blow for good taste and simple decency. Rationally viewed, that prospect has a nice appeal.

These were the facts: A little after 2 o'clock on the afternoon of Oct. 30, 1973, the New York radio station broadcast a "satiric monologue" by George Carlin. A transcript of this alleged humor accompanies the Supreme Court's opinion. The 12-minute monologue consisted almost entirely of the repetitive use of the Seven Dirty Words. The idea, if there was an idea here at all, presumably was that dirty words in themselves are harmless. A listener who heard the broadcast on his car radio complained to the FCC, and early in 1975 the commission handed WBAI a warning—no more than that—and reasserted its authority under the law to act against "patently offensive" material on the air.

In its 1975 opinion, the FCC cited the legal doctrine of the "public nuisance." In his opinion for the majority last week, Mr. Justice Stevens made the same point. A pig in a pigsty is all well and good; a pig in the parlor is a pig out of place. Carlin's monologue at 2 in the morning might be forgivable; at 2 in the afternoon, with children tuning in, it was something else entirely. The majority did not vest the FCC with broad new powers of sweeping censorship; the majority ruled simply that in this case the FCC had not abused its regulatory powers.

It was a mild opinion from the high court. This was not "a harsh blow to the freedom of expression of every person in this country," as the president of the National Association of Broadcasters termed it. Neither was it an opinion to make civil libertarians "practically dizzy with depression," as another critic charged.

Look. It is high time, it seems to me, that someone stuck up for the rights of the enormous majority of our people who find George Carlin's filthy words offensive. Why should they be put on the annoyance of "turning off the set" to avoid this rude intrusion upon their sensibilities? As a nightclub act, this foul-mouthed performance probably has standing in the name of "free speech." No one goes to a nightclub by inadvertence. The radio is accessible to

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)
Wrote Arthur Burns of William Proxmire:

"I wonder about Proxmire's wily fox.
"The Capitol's wily fox.
"Why does he roar
"When others snore."
Wrote William Proxmire of Arthur Burns:
"We miss his human and happy gripe.
"In fact we even miss his pipe."

Those bits of rhyme seem far removed from the debates between Proxmire, the acerbic chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, and Burns, the crusty economist who headed the Federal Reserve Board.

For years they sparred over their differing views on monetary policy.

Burns is gone now. He left the board earlier this year when President Carter decided to name a new chairman.

The latest exchange between the Wisconsin Democrat and the Republican banker occurred when Burns sent Proxmire "a bit of doggerel I found among some papers I have been sorting out."

In his bit of doggerel about Proxmire, Burns lamented:

"Why does he rave
"When the rest of us slave?
"Why does he thunder
"Against this or that imagined blunder?
"And why does he let anger fly
"At the good old Fed's every try?"

To which Proxmire replied:
"With Burns at the Reserve
"The Hill got what we deserve.

"But what we yearned for
"Was not what Arthur Burns had for.

"Now that Arthur did depart
"We have lost our brain — if not our heart."

Burns' successor as head of the Fed, William Miller, has no known reputation as a poet. When Miller's nomination was before the Banking Committee, he inspired no verse from Proxmire.

40 Years Ago Today

July 11, 1938

Howard Hughes, after spanning the Atlantic from New York to Paris non-stop in less than half Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's time, was delayed tonight on his globe-girdling flight by bad weather and slight damage to his big twin-motored monoplane. He announced that he would not take off for Moscow on the second leg until tomorrow. The American flier had hoped to be off within two hours after landing from his record-shattering crossing of 16 hours, 35 minutes from New York.

The estimated 150,000 visitors who greeted the First Lady in Amarillo, Texas, on Mother-in-Laws Day, March 9, may be excused when President Roosevelt stops there late today. Rested by a "nice, quiet family day" in Fort Worth, Texas, President Roosevelt routed his train through the Texas Panhandle bound for the Pacific coast. He arranged three platform appearances en route to Amarillo, the scene of his biggest speech of the day. Arrangements called for a parade from the train to Elwood Park in Amarillo.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Sadat's Hopes In Carter

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

CAIRO — With his "sacred mission" of an overall peace plan under Israeli checkmate, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat now pins all his hopes on the fact that Jimmy Carter "has started to play a full role" in the Mideast peace process for the first time.

President Carter's gradual change from sympathetic mediator to the role of "principal actor" was signalled in Mr. Carter's invitation to Israel and Egypt to send their foreign ministers to meet with Secretary of State Cyrus Vance in London later this month. That American "initiative," Sadat told us in an exclusive interview at his summer seaside palace in Alexandria, marks a major change.

Not only does the London meeting get Sadat off a painful hook. It also opens the way to more American pressure on Israel—regarded by Sadat as essential to save his tattered peace plan.

Sadat acknowledged that he has been forced by Israel to retreat time and again from his original overall peace plan: dropping his talk to play a full role in the Mideast peace process, forgetting his pledge that the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO), not Jordan, must be the West Bank's bargaining agent with Israel, and on lesser parts of the plan he took to Jerusalem last November.

In the face of this Israeli "intransigence," we asked, how does Sadat justify sending his foreign minister for another round of face-to-face talks with Israel?

Because, he said, the London meeting "is a Carter initiative," not Sadat's. If it fails — and no one here expects success — it must be followed by a distinctly American plan. As a precedent for specific American proposals Sadat used the example of the Nixon administration when it drafted the plan that broke the deadlock over Egyptian-Israeli disengagement in the Sinai peninsula after the October 1973 war.

"Henry (former Secretary of State Kissinger) told me there was a deadlock, that the old lady (former Prime Minister Golda Meir) was very stubborn," Sadat said. "So I suggested an American proposal." That time, it worked.

Thus, if Israel's refusal now to fix a timetable for eventual Palestinian self-determination — and to renounce its "right" to Jewish settlements in historic Arab territories — deadlocks the London talks, it will be time for another U.S. plan. "I think it should be done," Sadat said.

Affable and relaxed on the surface, Sadat nevertheless must be having sleepless nights as time runs out on him. He is more pointed these days in his criticisms of Israel's hardline Prime Minister Menahem Begin, more direct in his praise for Israeli Defense Minister Ezer Weizman and for what he calls "the Israeli peace movement."

"Mr. Begin is afraid of peace," he said. "We speak two different languages." Begin's refusal to admit that Israel, after its 1967 conquests, agreed to withdraw from most of the West Bank is "typical" of Begin's finding "something, anything to hide behind" in order to avoid peace. "It appears for some reason that he doesn't want to reach an agreement."

Not so Weizman. At dinner in Jerusalem last November, Sadat told Begin how much he liked Weizman "and Begin was very happy, but he is not happy now." Weizman split with Begin last month over Israel's strategy in dealing with the U.S. on Sadat's peace plan. Begin is now trying to exploit that conflict — a revealing sign of how few negotiating weapons he has left.

Sadat is now under vicious pressure from almost the entire Arab world to admit that his daring Jerusalem peace mission has failed. Syrian President Hafez Assad wants Sadat to make a humiliating public declaration of failure. Algeria would settle for a "private letter" from Sadat to all Arab heads of state ad-

Other Editors Say Some Incurable

(Goldboro News-Argus)

Governor Hugh Carey of New York says he will push for changes in the law to allow for life in prison sentences for juveniles as well as adults who commit violent crimes.

If anyone has any question about the need for such legislation, in New York or any other state where life sentences are not allowed for juveniles, they should look at a recent New York case.

It is the one which triggered Governor Carey's concern. A 15-year-old boy shot and killed a 45-year-old fellow passenger on a subway for no apparent reason. Two days later, the boy appeared in court on a pickpocketing charge and was described by police as being "extremely dangerous".

Police asked that he be confined. But the judge released the boy in his mother's custody, despite a lawyer's warning that the boy would commit a more serious crime.

Two days later the boy shot a trainyard employee in the back, seriously wounding him.

Within less than a week, the youth held a pistol three inches from a subway passenger's temple and murdered him in cold blood.

A cousin explained: "He just got a kick out of blowing them away."

While being held in a detention center, the boy stabbed a fellow inmate in the neck with a fork simply because the other prisoner sat beside him.

In a single day in a Youth Center, he raped a fellow inmate, stole a truck and tried to run down a social worker. He threatened center officials with a crowbar. Later he bludgeoned two officials with a hammer.

A psychiatrist was called to talk with him and he assaulted the doctor.

In a family court appearance he spat on the prosecutor, threw an object at a guard and cursed the judge, telling him he was keeping a list of people he intended to kill.

The boy is now serving an 18-month to five-year sentence. That is all he could be given under New York law.

Governor Carey's move now to change the law will not have any bearing on this youth's case.

Society will have to wait for him to kill again before putting him away forever — which is exactly where he belongs. States having laws that do not take into consideration proper handling of the incredibly incorrigible must, in defense of society, change those laws.

Someday, All A 'Millionaire'

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Want to become a millionaire? Don't despair, you're probably on the way to becoming one. But when you do, there'll probably be plenty of reason to despair.

Why? Because prices probably will be in the millions too.

The millionaire status we refer to is the kind produced by inflation, which raises the prices both of what we have and what we buy. And so, relatively speaking, we're probably no better off.

Still, it is true that many people will become millionaires — in fact, multimillionaires — if the administration's 1978 inflation estimate of 7.2 percent is continued for many years into the future.

You can work out the numbers yourself, and quite easily too, because an approximation of how long it takes to double a figure can be obtained by dividing its rate of growth into 72.

By chance, the projected 7.2 percent inflation rate divides 10 times into 72, which means a doubling of prices every 10 years.

Consider the price of your home. If it now has a market value of $50,000, it will be double that after 10 years. After 20 years it will have a pricetag of $200,000, and after 30 years, $800,000.

That's not a million, but neither is a $50,000 home the upper end of the scale today. It is, instead, close to the median, which means that one-half the homes are valued higher and one-half lower than it.

percent inflation. Still not a million, you say. True, but after 40 years it would be.

Yes, and after 40 years a $5,000-a-year college education would go for $80,000, a $7,000 automobile for $112,000, an 80-cent package of cigarettes for $12.80 and a $12 steak dinner for $192, before tip.

Well, you say, it all evens out. But it doesn't. Unless it contains an inflation escalator clause, the payout of your insurance policy will be in old dollars. And your bank account will have diminished.

Your paycheck might also fail to keep abreast, especially after a certain age, that age depending upon the business you're in and the company you work for. And there are other problems, many of them.

Consider the problem of capital gains. With houses having appreciated so greatly, how could a retiree, for example, afford to pay the income taxes due on such profits?

He might have to forego selling. Even if he could afford to keep the house, don't forget that real estate taxes are based on the value of houses and that could produce a situation in which a person couldn't afford to continue owning a house.

Those who have studied inflation contend that the disease eventually consumes itself, leading to deflation, among other things, and even to various immoralities, including tax cheating.

The chances of a 7.2 percent rate continuing indefinitely are therefore moderated by the probability that a collapse might occur, letting out all the aid that went into puffing up the balloon.

Strength For Today

FROM THAT DAY

Some years ago an artist who did routine work in an advertising office was asked to produce a series of posters for a religious campaign. Inspired by the campaign, he produced a picture of Jesus which was a noteworthy artistic achievement.

From that day onward the artistic quality of his work steadily improved. As this artist said to a friend, "when I created that figure of Christ a new spirit came to dominate my life and gave a totally unexpected vitality to my work."

This experience takes place in the lives of people in many other walks of life. They get a vision of Christ, and after that, things start to happen. First, their lives become dominated by a spirit of nobility and peace. Their efforts then begin to show a new creativeness. They begin to do their everyday work better. The tasks of the day become the means by which they do happy service to God.

Doctors Hunt 'Bad Apples'

By GENE GRABOWSKI
Associated Press Writer
HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Bruised by malpractice suits and buried under hundreds of complaints, Pennsylvania's doctors are fighting back with a program to weed out the bad apples of their profession.

The weedeaters are 12 medical investigators, the first graduates of a six-week course at Shippensburg State College. On Monday they will start gathering evidence against doctors who do not meet legal and ethical standards of medical practice.

"People no longer consider the medical profession sacrosanct," said James G. Krause, state Medical Education and Licensure Board chairman, who set the cleanup program in motion this spring.

"It's up to the medical profession to pull itself up by its bootstraps or keep losing respect."

The investigators, who will be stationed in Scranton, Pittsburgh, Harrisburg and Philadelphia, will immediately begin examining more than 220 complaints filed with the licensing board the past two years.

Hospital staffers and private physicians alike confide that excessive X-raying and overcharging for examinations are common. Surgeons, though, reportedly commit the most glaring offenses.

"There's a hell of a lot of unnecessary surgery going on in hospitals here and Philadelphia," said a young Pittsburgh surgeon who asked to remain unidentified. "Who has the money for a second opinion before going to the operating room?"

The investigation program was spawned when the state Medical Society, part of the American Medical Association, filed a lawsuit against the licensing board for its failure to use $2 million in physicians' license fees raised in 1976 to combat malpractice.

"Organized medicine always gets blamed for not cleaning its own house and here we were not making use of this pile of money," said Medical Society education director Leroy Erikson, who added that the suit will be dropped when the program is under way.

Almost all the investigators, men and women age 24 to 52, have some health training background. Their studies at Shippensburg include medical record management, administrative law, investigative methods and fundamental subjects like anatomy.

something else: It is also high time for zealous libertarians to stop equating the George Carlins of the garbage circuit with Shakespeare, Chaucer and Twain. In the name of cultural values, let us discriminate. Not one scintilla of evidence suggests the FCC is about to lay clumsy hands on works of art.

The coverage of the Supreme Court's opinion ought to tell us something! Not a single newspaper, so far as I am advised, has printed the Seven Dirty Words, even though we are in business to answer our readers' reasonable questions. This is a matter of editorial judgment, which is all the FCC has asked the broadcasters to exercise. It is a matter of taste.

Finally, the sophisticates of our society would be well advised to back off from the notion that scatology and wit go always hand in hand. It isn't so. There is something pathetic in the performer who relies for his laughs on the "bleeping" this and the "bleeping" that. What a poverty of imagination! What barrenness of mind!

Good men can do better. For the past few months, Reed Irvine, president of Accuracy in Media, has been belaboring the Washington Post for inadequate coverage of the Cambodian massacres. Irvine finally got under the skin of Executive Editor Ben Bradlee. Bradlee wrote him a note denouncing him as a "carping, vindictive, retromingent vigilante." This is the kind of line that reduces the Seven Dirty Words to wooden nickels and elevates cursing to a fine art. No court or commission would dare to disturb it.

The committee endorsed Miller by a vote of 14 to 1. The negative vote was cast by Proxmire.

Since Rep. Otis G. Pike, D-N.Y., decided he'd had enough of Washington and was going to retire from Congress, he has taken delight in poking fun at some of the more obvious congressional foibles.

His latest target was the July Fourth recess, which the House prefers to call "home district work period." Pike noted that the House quit for the holiday on June 29, a Thursday.

In a news release, he said: "A 4th of July recess does not mean you get the 4th of July off. It means you get the week surrounding the 4th of July off. Plus the preceding Friday. It's a good deal."

ERA Lobbyists Given Little Chance

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite their massive weekend rally at the Capitol and their persistent pleas to congressmen, backers of the proposed Equal Rights Amendment are struggling up short in their attempt to force a seven-year extension of the life of the proposal.

Congressional supporters of the ERA had intended to bring the subject before the House Judiciary Committee for a vote today, but scrapped plans when it became clear they lack the votes.

Well-placed congressional sources concede privately it appears unlikely they ever will be able to get a majority of the 34-member committee to agree to the proposed seven-year extension without changes.

As a result, current efforts appear aimed at assembling a majority of committee members behind a compromise four-year extension that the leaders of women's groups will grudgingly accept.

"That would not be a retreat," said one member of Congress who favors the extension.

Thirty-five states have ratified the proposed ERA, which would outlaw discrimination based on sex. Under current law, ratification by three more states is required by next March 22 if the proposal is to become part of the Constitution.

With the deadline only 8½ months away, ERA backers are asking Congress to give states until 1986 to act.

A crowd estimated at 55,000 to 100,000 marched in Washington on Sunday to dramatize their plea, capping the day with a rally at the Capitol.

Backers of the ERA say as many as 5,000 people stayed in Washington on Monday to lobby their congressmen.

Publicly, top leaders of the women's movement as well as congressional backers say they still hope to win approval for the seven-year extension.

And one woman, Allie Hixson of Greensburg, Ky., said, "I don't think any reasonable man will want to go down in history as the man who stood between women and the Constitution."

But one source said Monday a proposal for a seven-year extension would fail by four or five votes in the House committee, and a vote on a four-year extension would result in a tie.

Other proposed changes would enable states that already have ratified the ERA to rescind their approval. Rep. Tom Railsback, R-Ill., a member of the House Judiciary Committee, announced plans Monday to push such a proposal when the panel considers the question.

ERA backers say they will fight it.

Three states — Tennessee, Idaho and Nebraska — have voted to rescind their earlier approval of the proposed amendment, but the legality of their action is in dispute.

In the Senate, meanwhile, no action is expected on the measure until the House committee votes.

Area Students At FBLA Convention

Two members of the D. H. Conley High School chapter of the Future Business Leaders of America (FBLA) left June 30 to attend the 27th annual FBLA-Phi Beta Lambda National Leadership Convention in San Francisco, Calif. They returned Friday.

Jimmy Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thelbert Smith of Winterville, represented North Carolina in the business law competitive event. Nancy Berg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Berg of Cherry Oaks, represented North Carolina as state historian. They were accompanied by Mrs. Mary Thompson, advisor.

In addition to attending the conference, the students toured

San Francisco by bus and boat. They also visited Muir Woods to see the redwood trees.

Approximately 3,200 students and advisors registered for the conference. National officers for the 1978-79 school year were elected at this time. Art Linkletter served as the keynote speaker July 1.

Richard Thomas, formerly of CBS-TV's "The Waltons," was on hand to give awards to the top five organizations at a banquet held July 4.

The five organizations were honored for their contributions to the March of Dimes. Over one million dollars was contributed to the March of Dimes by the national organization last year.

The chart shows you the problem. On a hot summer week-day, everybody uses a lot of electricity all at the same time. This means Vepco has to use all of its equipment to keep up with this big demand. As the demand grows, more power plants must be built to keep up.

This adds to your electric costs. What can you do to help level things off? Here's the plan. It's called Hot Watch 95. And it's simple. On hot summer weekdays when the temperature hits 95°F, we'll be asking you to put Hot Watch 95 into action. This means using your heavy appliances and hot water before 10 a.m. or after 10 p.m.—or on weekends. Be careful not to overcool your home. Make sure the inside temperature is no more than 15°F cooler than the outside temperature. By spreading out your use of electricity, you can help reduce the peak demand for power. That means reducing the need for new power plants. It's one way to help keep your future electric bills under control. And that's something we all want. That's the whole idea behind Hot Watch 95.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market continued the upswing of the past three sessions with a small gain today.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up .60 at 817.39 after an 11-point rise in the past three trading days.

Gainers held a 32 lead over losers in the broad tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Brokers tended to view the advance as a technical rally after the decline of the past four weeks, which erased about half the gains recorded by the Dow Jones industrial average in the spring.

Some chart-watching analysts said buying was encouraged by the Dow average's ability to hold above the 800 level last week.

Wall Street's attention, meanwhile, was beginning to focus on summit talks scheduled to begin Sunday in Bonn, West Germany, among leaders of

The board agreed to lease property to the Seaboard Coast Line between First and Second Streets.

Robert Booth, board member, reviewed with the board the technicalities of the agreement and noted that a public hearing would have to be set on the sublease of the land.

The board accepted a $300 bid on 1972 Chevrolet police vehicle from a local business.

A $10,286 bid on transformers for the Utility Department from Rigby Electric was also accepted by the board.

In other business, the board made its annual recommendation to pay police officers the minimum standard as set by the state Division of Law and Order.

Marvin Baldree, Margie Hart and Peggy Hill were reappointed as members of the Ayden Planning Board.

The board also approved the list set forth from the Fire Department of those firemen who completed the 36 hours of training for certification.

 appropriations committee on efforts by Gov. John Dalton to cut state government spending — efforts that Walker said were being met with resistance by some state agencies.

After explaining some of the steps that have been taken to curtail spending, he said, "Some of the agencies view this as interference with their operations."

Dalton has ordered a sharp reduction on state-paid foreign travel and a limitation on the number of people from a single agency who can attend a business conference. Each trip must be approved by the governor's office.

Walker said there had been many as 50 requests from a single state agency for travel abroad and some gave reasons as vague as "to discuss matters of mutual concern."

Until a lid of five was placed on the number of people in an agency who can attend a conference more than 300 miles from Richmond, he noted, as many as 20 people were representing their agency at conferences all over the country.

Walker said some state-supported colleges and universities are unhappy with a requirement that they avoid deficit spending and keep within the budgeted appropriation for their institutions.

This prompted comment from Sen. Edward E. Willey, D-Richmond, that too many colleges, especially community colleges, are expanding their programs and teaching staffs to conduct courses in belly dancing and basket weaving.

A.T. Johnson Is Fatally Shot

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Dr. Archie Telfer Johnson Jr., 41, a former state government official, was shot to death in his home in Raleigh Monday night, Raleigh police said.

Detective Sgt. R.D. Williams said Johnson's wife, Betty Lou, was taken into custody after the shooting and charged with first degree murder.

Mrs. Johnson is a member of the Republican National Committee.

Johnson, who was a Raleigh pediatrician, was an assistant secretary for health affairs in the state Department of Human Resources under Republican Gov. James E. Holshouser Jr. He was also a close associate of Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green and was a leader of the "Jimmy Green Cabinet," a group that organized in March to raise campaign money for Green.

Patrolman H.T. Cox and K.L. Adams answered a call to the Johnson home about 11:30 p. m. in reference to a shooting, according to Sgt. C. D. Gilbert.

Cox said when he entered the home, he found Johnson's body on the kitchen floor. He shot Johnson had been shot three times.

Johnson had been a supporter of the establishment of a medical school at East Carolina University and had served as a liaison between the Eastern Area Health Education Center and the State AHEC Program of office during the early organization of the Eastern AHEC. Eastern AHEC director Dr. Simmons Patterson this morning said Johnson, "was very deeply involved," in the organization of the program at the Greenville-based AHEC as, "the liaison representative for the central AHEC office," when the Eastern AHEC was formed in 1974. "He has worked closely with us ever since," Patterson noted.

Patterson described Johnson, vice-president of the State Medical Society, as, "one of the family out here," and said, "we owe so much to him," for "getting us off the ground."

Johnson, Patterson noted, has also been in charge of "medical student rotations throughout Eastern North Carolina," through EAHEC, as part of their training.

Blue In, Jackson Out Of Spotlight

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Pitcher Vida Blue and outfielder Reggie Jackson, teammates for so long on the controversial Oakland A's, are in and out of the spotlight for tonight's 49th All-Star Game.

Blue, traded across the bay by Oakland to San Francisco during spring training, becomes the first pitcher ever to start All-Star games for both leagues when he opens on the mound for the Nationals.

"Some youngster on the plane told me I was the last winning pitcher for the American League," Blue commented, and then laughed, "I already knew it."

won 6-3 in its current domination of the midsummer classic.

Monday night, however, Jackson became the fifth player to withdraw from the American League squad when he telephoned Manager Billy Martin and reported that he was running a fever of 102-103 degrees. Jackson was promptly replaced by his New York Yankees teammate, third baseman Graig Nettles, who himself had been scratched Sunday with a bruised toe.

Jackson is the only AL starter to pull out but the junior circuit also has lost catcher Thurman Munson; infielder Rick Burleson and outfielder Carl Yastrzemski.

The National League lost starting catcher Johnny Bench, who has been suffering from a bad back in recent weeks. Ted Simmons of St. Louis will replace him.

The NL has won six straight.

14 of 15, 19 of 21 and leads the series 29-18 with one tie. American League President Lee MacPhail calls the recent result "embarrassing."

Manager Tommy Lasorda of the Los Angeles Dodgers, in naming a hurler from arch-rival San Francisco, said Blue's knowledge of American League hitters was a factor, but added, "I think he is the best pitcher in the National League."

Blue, with a 12-4 record, opposes Baltimore's Jim Palmer, 10-7, who was Martin's choice to start for the American shoulder and commented:

"I don't really want to start. I started last year and I embarrassed myself and now I'm hurt. But somebody has to do it."

Palmer missed the Monday workout that drew an estimated 25,000 to the park for the open session.

Martin's starting lineup will have first baseman Rod Carew of the Minnesota Twins leading off, followed by George Brett, Kansas City, 3b; Jim Rice, Boston, lf; Richie Zisk, Texas, rf; Carlton Fisk, Boston, c; Fred Lynn, Boston, cf, replacing Jackson; Don Money, Milwaukee, 2b, and Fred Patek, Kansas City, ss.

Neither manager revealed substitution strategy except Martin, who said, "I'll bring in my left-handed pitchers when Tommy brings in his left-handed hitters."

Ron Guidry, who won 13 games before losing his last start with the Yankees, had been expected to be the starter for the AL, but Martin said his ace hadn't shown his usual velocity in recent outings. "Our players really want to win this one," declared the Yankees' manager. "This is the first time in recent years that the AL really wants to win."

President MacPhail said, "I can say the recent results have been an embarrassment, a league as superior as we are to lose as many as we have."

There was criticism of the fans' voting in determining the team, but the Dodgers' Garvey said he favors retention of the system and said, "There is no greater honor than playing with your peers in this game."

In 1974, Garvey won a starting position as a write-in and wound up as the game's Most Valuable Player.

Blue was asked if he remembered his performance in 1971 and replied, "Oh, yes. Johnny Bench hit a homer off me and Hank Aaron hit his first extra-base hit in an All-Star game."

Aaron's "extra-base hit" also was a homer.

"I've faced all the batters in the American League lineup and they're all tough," said Blue. "I don't think there's an advantage or disadvantage."

Although Lasorda thought there would be advantage. Martin said the advantage would be with the hitters who might have a harder time against a pitcher they hadn't seen before.

"They're all tough on you," said Blue. "The American League bats first and it would be a psychological advantage to us if I can get them out in that first inning."

He said he hadn't expected to be Lasorda's starter but that the appraisal of being the best in the NL was "quite a compliment, quite a compliment."

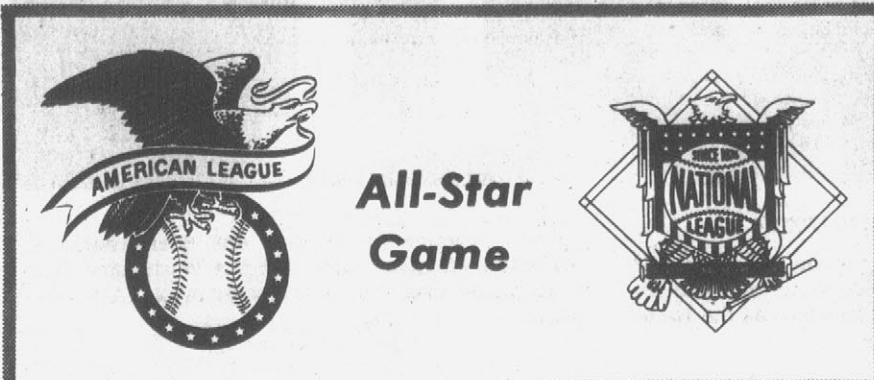

Blue said he expects a high-scoring game because "The American League has a lot of power and the National League always has a lot of sluggers and home run hitters. I will be aware when the batters step up to the plate.

Voting Injustices Abound In Selections

An AP Sports Analysis By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer

SAN DIEGO (AP) — It is time to change the All-Star voting procedures to make this mid-season game a more meaningful collision between the American and National leagues.

On paper, the idea of turning the vote over to the fans was certainly a good one and you can't argue with Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's well-intentioned efforts in that direction eight years ago.

But, sadly, the fan vote has become little more than a popularity contest with familiar names receiving the strongest support. That doesn't always produce the very best performers in the first half of the season. And isn't that what the All-Star Game is all about — a game between two teams of current stars?

The most flagrant example of name-voting this year was the selection of Johnny Bench as the National League's starting catcher. More than 2.4 million fans voted the honor to the Cincinnati catcher, most of them casting ballots while Bench was in a hospital with back problems.

In the last six weeks, while his vote total was mushrooming, Bench played in no more than a half dozen games. He was elected on his reputation for past accomplishments and it is to his credit and good sense that he is passing up the game, allowing Ted Simmons to start behind the plate for the National League.

At second base, the NL starts Joe Morgan, a two-time Most Valuable Player who is struggling along this season with a .254 batting average and some nagging injuries of his own.

There are other examples of voting injustices. Don Money is starting at second base for the American League, despite the fact that he rarely appeared at that position this season. Jeff Burroughs, leading the NL in hitting, was 11th among outfielders because the ballot listed him at first base. He compounded that problem by playing for a mostly anonymous Atlanta team that lacks the glamour and exposure of other clubs.

Players in both leagues generally agree that the fans are doing a poor job with the All-

Star voting franchise. If the fans lose the All-Star vote, who gets it? The players?

The Most Valuable Player, Cy Young Award and Hall of Fame elections are conducted by the Baseball Writers Association of America. If the writers can be trusted with those important awards, wouldn't it follow that they could do a decent job on the All-Star voting as well?

The fans and players might not be thrilled with the idea, but writers do a pretty good job on their other voting tasks. Why not this one, too?

BOUDREAU SHIFT

CLEVELAND (AP) — Hall of Famer Lou Boudreau started his major league career with the Cleveland Indians as a third baseman but won his fame as a shortstop and playing manager. Lou led the Indians to an American League pennant and World Series title in 1948, a year he batted .355.

Lou as a manager devised the "Boudreau Shift," which has now been widely copied as a defense against power hitters. He used it against Ted Williams of Boston, moving his third baseman close to second and playing the shortstop on the right side of second base.

Babe Ruth Teams Go Into Area Tournaments

Prep League, Babe Ruth and Senior Babe Ruth League tournaments open on two fronts Wednesday, with three Greenville teams in action in them.

The Prep League (13-year-old Babe Ruth) All-Stars from Greenville will face hosting Windsor in the opening round of the Area G tournament Wednesday night at 6 p.m.

The winner will advance into Thursday's game against Albemarle at 6 p.m., while the loser moves into the losers bracket for a 6 p.m. Friday game. The finals are scheduled to be played Saturday at 6 p.m., with another game if needed to be scheduled later.

The 13-15-year-old Babe Ruth All-Stars from Greenville will receive a bye in the first round, and then meet the winner of the Albemarle-Windsor game, that to be played Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. Greenville then plays Thursday at 8:30 p.m. The winner advances to the Saturday finals, with the loser moving into a losers' bracket game at 8:30 p.m. Friday.

The winner of the 13-year-old tournament goes to the State Tournament at Taylorsville.

while the 13-15 winner moves into the state field at Statesville.

All games in the 13 and 13-15 tournament will be at Windsor.

Meanwhile, the 16-18 Senior Babe Ruth All-Stars from Pitt County will face Washington at 6 p.m. Wednesday in Edenton.

The winner of that tournament will advance to the state field in Asheville.

The 16-year-old Senior Babe Ruth All-Stars will receive a bye into the state tournament, which they will host starting July 25.

Members of the 16-18 all-star team, announced this morning are: from Ayden-Grifton, Wayne Newton, Jerry Battle, Theodore Davis and Paul Selliff; from Clifton Insurance, Danny Boyd, Joey Matheis, Calvin Parker and Wayne Stokes; from University Kiwanis, Mac Stokes; from Warren Farm Supply, Jeff Hines, Lee Andrews, and Ellis Bedsworth; and from Winterville, Benjamin Wilson, Gary Brock, Louie Dixon, Mike Phillips, and Dale Bailey.

Fabled Old Course Would Be Plowed Up If In This Country

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — If the fabled old course at St. Andrews happened to lie in the United States, they would plow it up and build a string of condominiums on it.
A lot of golfers would cheer.

Traditionalists would weep. She's hardly a pretty creature, and certainly not a nice one — this stretch of whin and gorse and shot-making agony that lies beside the North Sea, the seat of the Royal and Ancient Club, cradle of the game. But she's St. Andrews, she's special and she's opening the doors this week to the world's best professional golfers, gathered for the 107th British Open championship.

Bernard Dawin, the great British golf historian, spoke of her in frightening terms but marveled that she was wooed by "a town given wholeheartedly to golf — the butcher, baker and candlestick maker."

Thirty-two years ago, slamin' Sammy Snead took one look at her and said, "Back home in Virginia, you wouldn't plant beets on a place like that." He won in 1946 and never came back.

Bob Jones was an American whiz kid of 19 when he first set eyes on the craggy old dame in 1921. He took a 43 for nine holes, blew his stack and told friends, "I don't care if I ever play this course again."

In subsequent years, he fell in love with her, won the British Amateur here for one of the four crowns in his 1930 Grand Slam and became an idol of the local populace.

Tom Watson, the young Kansas City shotmaker with the Tom Sawyer look, got his first view of ancient St. Andrews last weekend prior to defense of his title and admitted he was impressed and dazed.

"I don't know whether to hate it or like it," he said. Tom used the neuter gender.

Most golfers and most historians personalize — and feminize — golf courses. Jones once said of Augusta National, site of the Masters: "She is like a fickle woman. You can't push her around. Treat her gently or she'll leap up and bite you."

But Augusta National drapes herself in a cloak of majestic pines. She wears garlands of dogwood, azalia and wisteria in her hair and necklaces of finely fashioned sand around her throat. Most American golf courses are similar — marvelously coiffeured and manicured.

The old lady of St. Andrews is, by comparison, a hag. She hasn't fixed her hair or done her fingernails for centuries. She is just the way God and nature fashioned her. Let no one dare touch a hair on her shaggy head. It's against the law of the township of St. Andrews.

Her hazards are many and unique — swikan burn (creek), crossing the first fairway; Kitchen, Hell, Grave and Ginger bunkers on the 14th; Walk-inshaw's Grave on the 13th; the Principal's Nose on the 16th, Valley of Sin on the 18th; 14 greens shared on both the outgoing and incoming nines.

But no golfer dares shun her. To court her and survive — that's a mark of immortality. Bob Jones knew it. So does Jack Nicklaus.

Forego Put Out To Pasture

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Willie Shoemaker, whose more than 7,000 winners make him the winningest jockey of all time, Monday called the retired Forego "easily one of the best horses I've ever ridden."

Forego was retired less than $62,000 short of becoming the first racehorse to reach the $2 million mark in career earnings.

"It's too bad it had to happen now," Shoemaker said at Hollywood Park. "But I'm sure that the man (trainer Frank Whiteley) did what he thinks is best for the horse."

Forego, an 8-year-old gelding, was retired because of gimpy legs. He won $1,938,957 to $1-977,896 for Kelo, who was retired in 1966. Forego tried to surpass Kelo's mark in the Suburban Handicap at Belmont Park on July 4 but finished fifth in a six-horse field.

Whiteley said Forego's left front pastern, the part of the leg just above the ankle, was aggravated in the race. He also said the Belmont veterinarian confirmed the presence of bone chips.

Ironically, Forego's retirement eased a possible ticklish situation for Shoemaker, who might have been forced to choose between Forego and Exceller, a top stakes horse being sent east from California. Shoemaker is Exceller's regular rider.

St. Andrews: A Very Special Course That Must Be Played Right

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — "If you were going to build a new course, you certainly wouldn't build one like this," said Arnold Palmer.

"If I tried to lay out another course like this one, people would laugh at me and say, 'Call that a golf course?'" said Jack Nicklaus.

"It's a very well laid-out course," said Andy Bean, this year's top U.S. money winner. "You've got to hit a perfect shot to get close."

They were all talking about the Old Course at St. Andrews, cradle of the game and mecca for golfers the world over. On Wednesday, St. Andrews stages its seventh British Open since World War II and its 22nd since the Open was first played 120 years ago.

Both Nicklaus, and Palmer hastened to get the record straight — they weren't guilty of high golfing treason.

"It's a very subtle course — though some people might call it by other names," said Palmer, who played his first Open at St. Andrews 19 years ago. "To play it properly you've got to take a great deal of thought."

"I think it's fabulous," said Nicklaus, who like Palmer is a two-time Open winner. Nicklaus won in 1970, the last time the Open was played here.

"You've got to accept it for what it is — the home of golf. Some people may say it's the worst course they've seen. It isn't, and I love it," Nicklaus said.

Bean arrived here Sunday after an overnight flight from the United States. Three hours afterwards he made his first acquaintance with the course and shot a 4-under-par 68 in practice.

"I must admit that when I first saw it I thought it was rougher than we expect in the U.S. But the more you play it, the more you learn to respect it," he said.

St. Andrews is a course, windswept most of the time, without trees, with gorse lining the fairways and with hidden sandtraps and undulations to catch the unwary.

Nicklaus and Tom Watson, who won the Open in 1975 and again last year, are joint 6-1 favorites to win this time.

'Weird' Morning Disc Jockey Says Fun Of Radio Near Gone

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Richard "Sweet Dick" Whittington recently had a small part in a new episode of "The Waltons." It seemed odd to find him amid CBS' tribe of quiet, stable Virginians.

This is because he usually is a practitioner of weird as the morning disc jockey at station KGIL in suburban San Fernando, where he's worked for most of the last 13 years.

Take what he considers his proudest moment. The year was 1975. He got to wondering who fathered "66 illegitimate dinghies" he counted while touring the Queen Mary, berthed at nearby Long Beach.

He decided a tour boat, King of Long Beach, was responsible. So, he set out to make the Queen an honest ocean liner. Which led to a huge wedding to legitimize her 66 dinghies.

Sweet Dick served as the minister. The ceremonies featured: —A 26-foot-long bridal garter. —The late Bing Crosby crooning "True Love" via a phone and loudspeaker hookup. —Crowds of men and women on the decks of the King of Long Beach and the Queen Mary shouting "I do" at the appropriate moment.

"They give me complete freedom here as long as I don't endanger the license," says the free-wheeling Whittington, at 44 one of a dwindling breed of zanies working in radio today.

A Korean War veteran and ex-boxer, he readily admits he tries to come up each year with a massive mind-duster, such as the Queen Mary caper, to publicize KGIL, nationally if possible.

This year's event was a trip to New Zealand, where he got officials to acquire Winnetka as a new state. Winnetka is a tiny Los Angeles suburb of which he happens to be the mayor.

It wanted to secede from Los Angeles for tax reasons, he says.

In 1964, during what he calls "a low point in my career," he got a certain amount of publicity he didn't quite plan while working at a small radio sta-

Sophia's Visit Makes Headlines

ROME (AP) — Now, a visit to Rome by actress Sophia Loren makes headlines.

It never was that way — until 16 months ago when, on her last trip here, she was detained at Leonardo Da Vinci Airport for nine hours as police interrogated her on a currency export matter. She and her husband, Carlo Ponti, have since been charged with illegally transferring $12 million in Italian lire out of the country. Trial is scheduled for October.

Her visit Monday went a lot smoother. The Italian news agency ANSA reported. Now a French citizen, Miss Loren, 43, arrived by train from Paris, visited a film studio to try on costumes for her upcoming Lina Wertmuller film and then quickly returned to the French capital.

Discussing Rape Still Difficult

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A television reporter, who sought to help rape victims by candidly discussing her own rape, says the publicity surrounding her disclosure has slowed the healing of her psychic wounds.

"When I'm in the streets, in restaurants, I think of myself as a rape victim. I'm tired of being scared. I just want it to be all over," Carolyn Craven said in an interview before the airing Monday of a series on rape she produced for ABC-TV's "Good Morning, America."

Six months ago this week she chose to go before television cameras and bear the pain and embarrassment of recounting the horror of her rape. Her story received international exposure and she traveled the talk show circuit as what she calls a "professional rape victim."

Ms. Craven was the 60th known victim of a notorious Berkeley man with a foul odor that earned him the nickname "Stinky." She had written about him three times as a reporter for KQED-TV in San Francisco.

She says now that the response she received from other rape victims, who said they were helped by hearing her talk about the experience, has been gratifying.

"Part of me says that it's wonderful...But another part of me says I want to go on about the rest of my life," she said.

However, having to recall repeatedly the terror of that night six months ago has delayed her emotional recovery. "I know it makes me afraid of strange men in the streets."

While completing the television series Ms. Craven stayed

Can't Break MCA Contract

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singer Olivia Newton-John's can't break with MCA Records, a court has ruled.

The star of the movie "Grease" claims the record company hasn't provided enough promotion for her albums. She also says her name was used without her permission to promote such things as McDonald's hamburger discount program.

Judge Norman R. Dowds ruled that Miss Newton-John, 29, could not record albums or perform as a recording artist for anyone other than MCA under her contract expires in April 1982.

Ms. Craven says her relationship with her boyfriend, which was strained by the mental anguish after the rape, has "become normal again."

Her son, Gabriel, who cried at her door while Stinky threatened to kill him if he did not return to his bed, appears to have recovered.

Stinky remains at large, although he has not struck since he raped Ms. Craven.

Ms. Craven plans to continue her campaign against rape.

"Until there is no more rape, I will fight against it."

Some finesses are easy to spot. Others can appear in unusual combinations.

After South opened two no trump, North employed the Stayman Convention in an attempt to locate a major suit fit—with his unbalanced distribution, the hand rated to play better in a suit. East took advantage of the vulnerability to introduce a lead-directing bid, and when South showed his major suit, North had just enough to raise.

West led the nine of diamonds, complicating life for declarer. (On any other lead, declarer would have to exercise only a modicum of care in the play to virtually ensure his contract.) Declarer won the ace of diamonds, drew three rounds of trumps and led a club to the ten. East won the king, cashed a diamond and exited with a spade. Declarer tried the finesse, and ended up losing a spade, a diamond and two clubs for down one.

Declarer's line would have succeeded if West held both missing club honors, but that was not too likely in view of the bidding and the fact that West did not lead the king of clubs. What declarer did overlook was the possibility of a club finesse!

After drawing trumps, declarer should have led a low club to the eight in dummy. If this loses to the nine, declarer can concede another club, ruff two clubs in dummy and then fall back on the spade finesse for his contract.

As the cards lie, the eight of clubs will force the king from East. The best East can do is cash a diamond and shift to a spade. Declarer rises with the king and leads another club to the ten, which drives out the ace. Now declarer can discard two spades from dummy on the queen and jack of clubs, and then ruff his losing spade in dummy. That will hold his losses to a diamond and two clubs.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. Your Daily HOROSCOPE from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A very good time to think about your relationship with others for you now can make them more a part of your everyday life and activities. You gain more headway in attaining the goals and ambitions which appeal to you and them.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Meet with partners and clear up any misunderstandings you may have had with them. Try to be better informed as to world conditions that could affect you as well. Show ingenuity at work.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Your workload is heavy but keep at it and you gain much. Find a better way to cooperate with fellow workers. Avoid one who can put a damper on your plans; give you a feeling of inadequacy.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Plan time for amusements in the company of good friends you really enjoy. Don't neglect to pay bills and make a good investment as well. A special favor done to loved one brings added happiness.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Give more attention to your home and family and make everything harmonious and charming there. A new project is in the offing that could be very good for you. Study it carefully.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Good day to handle reports and statements, bills intelligently and to get out correspondence. Improve transportation and make sure utilities are working properly.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You now know exactly how to handle financial affairs with others and can work quickly on them. Budgeting assets more wisely is good.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Do whatever will bring you more goodwill from others who are important in your life. Dress well. Take time for social pleasures that mean a good deal to you and meet interesting people.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You are able to take care of private matters more intelligently now, so get an early start on them. Talk matters over with the one you love and get cooperation you need.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Plan time to be with kind friends and show how devoted you are to them, get good results. Being cooperative pays off.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Go after the backing you need from a bigwig that can make your life easier and more profitable. Your hunches are working fine, so be sure to follow them for best results.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You understand conditions around you better now and can make changes that bring advancement. Improve career affairs intelligently. You now have a better slant on things.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Have a good talk with the one you love and come to a fine understanding by being cooperative. Come to an agreement with debtors and creditors. Avoid one who is jealous of you.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will understand how best to get along with others, so be certain to provide for a good education that will help your progeny to make the most of this fine quality which can lead to big success throughout the lifetime. Sant education toward forming partnerships, doing precision work and the like.

Charge Manslaughter In Death Of Recruits

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Two drill instructors who put recruits through "excessive and prolonged" physical training during their first day of basic training at Fort Jackson have been charged with involuntary manslaughter in connection with the deaths of two trainees, Army officials have said.

Sgt. Willie L. Alexander of Timmonsville, S.C., and Sgt. 1st Class Lawrence Chapman Jr. of Pickens, S.C., were also charged with dereliction of duty and maltreatment of the stricken trainees, Lt. Col. James G. Garner said Monday.

Garner, a member of the judge advocate general's staff, said a second investigation will be made to determine if the drill sergeants should be court-martialed.

The preliminary findings indicated Pvt. Wayne A. Krasnow of Cynnet, Ohio, and Lester T. Watts of York, S.C., both 18 and 60 other recruits were given "excessive and prolonged" physical training soon after arriving at the base, according to Garner, the military counterpart of a civilian attorney.

Krasnow and Watts arrived at their basic training area mid-afternoon on June 29, when temperatures were in the mid to upper 90s. They collapsed that night.

Krasnow died a little over an hour after he was stricken and Watts died shortly after midnight, both of heart failure due to heat stroke, doctors said.

Appearing at a news conference with Garner were Lt. Col. Mae Pomeroy, base public relations chief; Col. Mims Aultman, commander of Moncrief Hospital on the base; and Lt. Col. F.H. Chandler, the fort's director of training.

They said they could not give details of circumstances leading to the charges against Alexander and Chapman, because publicity might jeopardize fair proceedings for the two sergeants if they are brought to a military trial.

"Not that I'm aware of," she replied.

Garner told reporters that kind of disclosure would be improper at the pre-trial stage.

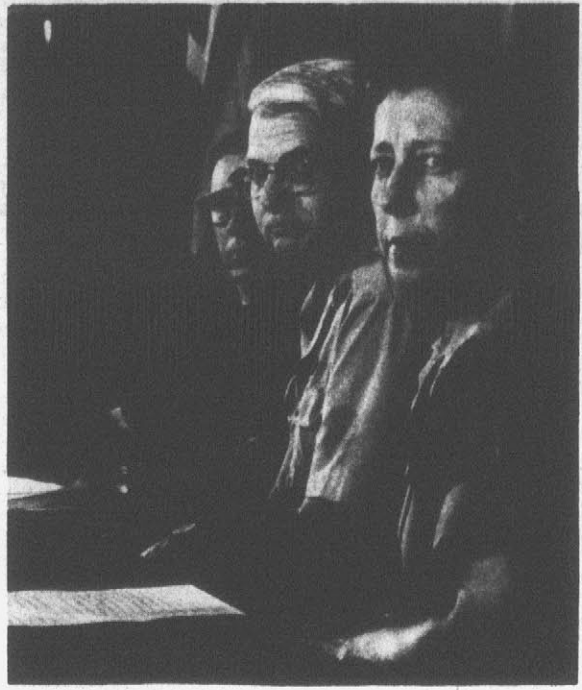

"Everything is going to come out" eventually, the Army attorney said. "Nothing is going to be covered up."

Aultman said physical exams taken by Krasnow and Watts before they arrived at Fort Jackson revealed no "significant physical defects." The medical officer said Watts was three pounds overweight and Krasnow's blood pressure "was in the upper levels of normal."

The charges were brought against Alexander and Chapman by Lt. Col. Alex Holder, commander of the 3rd Battalion, 1st Training Brigade, who recommended a general court martial.

An officer has been appointed to conduct a follow-up investigation and make a recommendation for disposition of the case, Garner said the charges could be dropped, the sergeants could receive reprimands without being brought to trial, or a court martial could be ordered.

The involuntary manslaughter charge carries a maximum penalty of three years at hard labor and a dishonorable discharge. The maximum for maltreatment is one year, forfeiture of pay and a dishonorable discharge. The dereliction of duty charge carries a maximum of three months confinement and forfeiture of pay for that length of time.

Speaking of Your Health... Lester L. Coleman, M.D. A Cry of Desperation

Many adolescents live in a state of confusion and conflict. Some, in desperation, cry out for help. Others are not so fortunate and continue to bear a burden that devalues their energy and affects their happiness and scholastic achievement.

This letter, written by Miss D.C., represents the conflicts of post-adolescence and early adulthood. Parents who read it may be given new insight into the unexpressed fears and problems that beset young people. Miss D.C. writes:

"Every morning I cry a little because I don't want to face another day with my struggle. I used to be an excellent tennis player. Now, I don't have the energy to be alert and my body feels heavy and worn out. I find it hard to listen and can't concentrate on study. I am 19 years old and a sophomore at college.

"I began to drink and smoke marijuana. That didn't help me. I hate being a different person and no longer want to live. My future seems dim and hard. Night after night, I can't sleep. My parents believe I have "mono" and anemia, as it runs easy in my family. They think it's all due to the stress at school. But I believe I'm going through a deep depression.

"As I write, I feel a little better and I'm glad to be alive."
— Miss D.C., Ohio.

Dear Miss C.:

The key line in your letter is the last one. The fact that you are writing to me, a total stranger, is very significant. You are able to express the painful thoughts you have and, at the same time, maintain your anonymity.

DR. COLEMAN welcomes letters from readers. Please write to him in care of this newspaper.

Ingram's Campaign Chest Is Depleted

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — John R. Ingram, the Democratic nominee for the U.S. Senate, is facing an election campaign against Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., with very little money after paying the bills from the primary campaign.

According to Ingram's campaign finance report filed Monday with the state Elections Board, his campaign committee had $3,258.63 on June 30. The report showed debts of $23,153.80, of which $20,000 is money Ingram loaned his campaign before the May 30 Democratic runoff election.

Ingram, state Insurance Commissioner, spent almost $75,000 on his campaign for the Democratic nomination, compared to about $1 million spent by Luther H. Hodges Jr., whom Ingram defeated in the runoff.

Helms had raised about $3.5 million as of mid-April, although he had no Republic primary opposition.

Carter Wrenn, Helms' campaign treasurer, said Monday the June 30 campaign report for Helms would be filed Wednesday, two days late. He said the Federal Election Commission had been told that Helms' report was running late because of the large number of contributors.

Wrenn would not give an approximate figure for Helms' campaign funds on hand.

Since the runoff, Ingram said he has received about $7,000 in contributions, most of them $100 or less.

Ingram's report showed that he has received three $1,000 contributions, the maximum the law allows for individuals.

Local Option Vote OK'd

BLACK MOUNTAIN, N.C. (AP) — The Black Mountain Board of Aldermen approved a local mixed-drink referendum in a 4-1 vote Monday night.

The Buncombe County Board of Elections will meet Friday to set a date for the Black Mountain vote.

Howard Jarvis In Big Demand

OXNARD, Calif. (AP) — Proposition 13 author Howard Jarvis is in such demand he can't even find time to appear in court on a drunken driving charge.

The 75-year-old Jarvis arrived for his Monday trial, but was promptly excused so he would not miss a Chicago talk show engagement.

"It's not unusual," Jarvis told reporters as he left Municipal Court. "I'll be back tomorrow unless the airplane lands in Lake Michigan."

Jarvis, who left his lawyer in charge of jury selection, did find time to declare himself innocent of driving while intoxicated. He has pleaded guilty of driving without a valid driver's license.

John D. Rockefeller III Killed In Auto Accident

By HENRIETTA LEITH
Associated Press Writer
POCANTICO HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — John Davison Rockefeller 3d, the quiet philanthropist who busied himself with Asia, population control and the performing arts while his brothers and son were making names in business and politics, died in a three-car crash.

Low, a high school senior who was taking driver's education this summer, was killed. Miss Lesko was in fair condition in the intensive care unit of a hospital. A woman driving the third car was listed in good condition.

Rockefeller, 72, died instantly Monday in the accident about a mile from the Rockefellers' Pocantico Hills compound in Westchester County about 30 miles north of Manhattan, police said.

He was a grandson of John D. Rockefeller, the oil magnate who built the family fortune, brother of former Vice President and New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, and father of John D. Rockefeller 4th, the governor of West Virginia.

Police said Rockefeller was in a 1965 Mustang driven by his secretary, 38-year-old Monica Lesko, when the crash occurred on a winding two-lane road about 6 p.m. The area overlooking the Hudson River in Westchester County is 30 miles north of New York City.

Police said a car driven by David Low, 16, of nearby Briarcliff Manor swung wide on a curve and sideswiped a third car, then plunged across the dividing line to crash head-on into Miss Lesko's car.

Considering Galifianakis

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House ethics committee will meet Tuesday and Wednesday to decide what action to take in the case of former Rep. Nick Galifianakis, D-N.C., and other members of Congress accused of taking money from South Korean rice merchant Tongsun Park.

Galifianakis is one of 31 former and current Congressmen accused by Park of taking campaign contributions from South Korea.

"The committee is going to consider the cases of everybody Park mentioned (in testimony to the committee), and that included Nick," a committee source said Monday.

Former Galifianakis aide Barbara Fletcher testified before the committee in April that Park gave her $10,000 in $100 bills for Galifianakis in 1972 when he was running for the Senate.

According to Miss Fletcher, she used most of the money for campaign expenses and that after the election, which Galifianakis lost to Jesse Helms, the rest of the funds were turned over to Galifianakis.

Galifianakis has refused to comment publicly on the payment. When contacted Monday, he refused to discuss the case.

Committee sources said Galifianakis either testified before the committee in closed session or was questioned by the committee staff, but the sources would not disclose what Galifianakis told the committee.

Federal officials said in April it was unlikely that Galifianakis would be prosecuted under federal election campaign laws. But they declined to comment on whether he might be prosecuted for tax evasion.

chairman of the Chase Manhattan Bank, third largest bank in the United States.

But the brother who carried the name synonymous with fabulous wealth sought neither more wealth nor power, and spent his life on such pursuits as friendship with Asia, population control, arts in education, and, finally, the performing arts.

In 1956, when the sprawling Lincoln Center, home of the Metropolitan Opera, the New York Philharmonic and many other theater and musical groups, was in the planning stages, Rockefeller was asked why he was getting involved in "show biz."

He replied that his travels had led him to believe "in art, and the exchange of art, as vital in helping international understanding," and he thought it was important to offset the belief among people of other countries "that the emphasis in our country is on the material side."

Born in New York City, Rockefeller attended the Browning and Loomis prep schools before going to Princeton, where he was voted "most likely to succeed" by his 1929 graduating class.

In 1931 he was named a trustee of the Rockefeller Foundation, set up by his grandfather in 1913 "to promote the well-being of mankind throughout the world," and in 1952 he succeeded John Foster Dulles as chairman of the foundation when Dulles was named secretary of state by President Dwight Eisenhower.

In the same year, Rockefeller was elected president of the Japan Society and went to Japan to discuss setting up an international cultural exchange center in Tokyo.

Rockefeller's interest in Asia also led to the establishment of the Asian Society and its headquarters in New York, Asia House, for further cultural exchange. His own foundation, the JDR 3d Fund, concerned itself primarily with Asian culture.

His concern over population problems led him to help set up the Population Council and to get the signatures of 30 world leaders on a Statement on Population presented to the United Nations in 1967.

Rockefeller was married in 1932 to Blanchette Ferry Hooker, a Vassar graduate whom he met while they were both doing social work with the poor and young delinquents in New York City. In addition to his wife and son, he is survived by three daughters, Sandra Rockefeller, Hope Aldrich, and Mrs. Mark Dayton, and six grandchildren. Funeral arrangements were incomplete, a family spokesman said.

Miss Lesko and Rockefeller were driving to the Pocantico Hills estate, home of his brother Nelson, from John Rockefeller's estate to the north in Scarborough.

Rockefeller's son was in Washington when he learned of his father's death. He joined his mother, Blanchette, at the family compound.

Rockefeller was the eldest of the five sons of John D. Rockefeller Jr. Winthrop, who became governor of Arkansas, died of cancer in 1973, and their only sister and eldest child in the family, Abby Rockefeller Mauze, died three years ago, also of cancer.

While Nelson and Winthrop devoted themselves to politics, brother Laurance concentrated on conservation and business, including resorts in the Virgin Islands and Wyoming, and David became president and

Police List 2 Accidents

An estimated $1,625 property damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 5:15 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Dickinson Avenue and the Memorial Drive exit road, involving cars driven by Patsy Lane Kite of Vanceboro and Wanda Sue Brady of Greenville.

Police estimated damage from the collision at $1,000 to the Kite car and $300 to the Brady auto.

Cars driven by Charles Duane Williams of 103 Hathorne Rd., and Beverly Parks James of 116B North Meade St. collided about 11 a.m. at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Trade Street, causing an estimated $300 damage to the Williams vehicle and $25 damage to the James car.

Williams was charged by investigators with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety in connection with the mishap.
