Carter Faces Obstacles In Keeping Bonn Pledges

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is home from the Bonn economic summit meeting, where he promised to reduce U.S. oil consumption. Now he faces the difficult task of getting Congress to help him make good on that vow.

After two days of meetings with the leaders of six other major, non-communist industrial nations in Bonn, West Germany, Carter told reporters: "Each one of us was cautious not to promise things we could not subsequently deliver."

Carter will have no trouble fulfilling one part of his promise, raising U.S. oil prices, but the other part — a cutback in U.S. oil imports — may be a lot tougher to achieve.

The president said in Bonn that to help dampen oil consumption by Americans, he would increase the price of domestically produced oil — now an average of $8.99 a barrel — to the world market level, about $13.50 a barrel, by the end of 1980.

Actually, Carter can achieve that goal, and sooner than promised, by doing nothing.

Under legislation Congress passed after the 1973-74 Arab oil embargo, price controls on domestic oil automatically will expire in May 1979, and prices would rise to world levels. The result would be a seven-cent boost in retail gasoline prices.

But in curbing oil imports, the president will have a fight on his hands, no matter how he goes about it.

Carter's proposal to reduce consumption by imposing a tax on domestic crude oil, thus making it competitive in price with imported oil, is in deep trouble in Congress.

Observers say that in an election year, and with Proposition 13 pressures mounting among the voters against higher taxes, it would take a miracle to get a crude oil tax through Congress.

The same pressures would work against any attempt by Carter to achieve the same results by imposing a quota or fee on oil imports, which he can do without permission from Congress.

Even before Carter went to Bonn, the Senate voted to block imposition of an oil import fee, and there is strong support for such a move in the House.

If he tries to slap a quota on oil imports, Carter risks the threat of a legislative ban against that step, with especially heavy backing from East Coast senators and Republicans.

Congressional leaders in the 15-month fight over Carter's energy program had no comment on the president's commitments at the summit. They said they were awaiting specifics.

Growth Plan Is Criticized

By KEITH MILLS

WILLIAMSTON — An ECU economics professor leveled strong criticism at the state's proposed Balanced Economic Growth Plan during a public hearing here Monday night.

Dr. Louis H. Zincone, professor and chairperson of the ECU Economics Department, spoke at a hearing on a state Goals and Policy Board proposal for economic growth.

Zincone, who criticized a report by the board on the growth plan as generally full of "flowery words which can be interpreted whatever way a bureaucrat wishes to interpret them," said if family ownership in North Carolina's fish and farm industries is to be maintained, it should be stimulated with business techniques to insure agriculture a viable place in economic growth.

The board's report was submitted at the request of Gov. James B. Hunt Jr., who attended the hearing, as "a balanced growth policy to help guide the state" in the future.

Within the policy is a plan to establish a division or agency in the Commerce Department to encourage state and local governments to work together for federal funds for areas of the state that need the most help.

"The role of central manager given to the governor vitiates any local control," he said. "My conversations with people along the coast indicate that they feel local control is best."

Local planners, Zincone said, have often been "dragged kicking and screaming into cooperation with the state," and the problems with Careteret County's recent involvement with Coastal Area Management Act authorities bears this out.

The report, he said, supports the expansion of family owned and operated units in agriculture and the seafood industry.

"I would take issue not with family ownership and control, but with whether one family can run an enterprise which is large enough to be efficient," he said. "It is quite clear to me that the optimum size of the firm in both the seafood and agriculture industries now exceeds the resources of one family."

"A single family farming one plot or fishing one boat can't afford the equipment to compete in the modern marketplace."

Thus, the state should encourage "innovations and organization of farms which would keep them under control of one or a few families and still enable them to attain a size which can compete favorably in the agricultural markets," he said. "These innovations may be cooperatives, closely held corporations, public corporations or other forms of organizations which may be

Another Snag For 'Energy Package'

WASHINGTON (AP) — As the Senate moves toward expected approval of the first part of President Carter's energy plan, another section dealing with natural-gas pricing appears in fresh trouble.

The snag is the latest obstacle thrown in the way of an energy package that has been plagued with one problem after another since its introduction in Congress 15 months ago.

Senate action was on tap today on legislation designed to force many industries and power plants to convert from oil and natural gas to coal — the first section of the five-part energy plan to go before either house for a final vote. Passage by a wide margin was expected for the non-controversial bill.

Action had originally been scheduled for last Friday, but was delayed because of what amounted to a one-man filibuster by Sen. Harrison Schmitt, R-N.M., an opponent.

At the same time, new troubles surfaced Monday for the proposed compromise to lift price controls from natural gas in 1985 — a bargain tediously crafted in five months of negotiations.

It now appears jeopardized by an attempt to lift federal price controls from a substantial amount of domestically produced oil, a move some industry critics claim goes too far — perhaps costing consumers up to $3 billion a year in higher energy costs.

House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, tried to get the oil-deregulation proposal approved as an amendment to a bill authorizing programs for the Department of Energy.

But House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill had the entire bill set aside Monday after some leading lawmakers on energy issues, including Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Energy Committee, threatened to oppose the natural-gas compromise if the Wright amendment were adopted.

Jackson and other critics claimed Wright's proposal would be too generous to the oil industry, especially on top of concessions made to the industry on natural gas.

Jackson claims the natural gas compromise — approved by House-Senate conferees but not yet acted on in either chamber — is in deep trouble in the Senate anyway, where it faces an almost-certain filibuster by opponents from both political extremes.

Senate sources say it now appears unlikely that leaders can muster the needed 60 votes to break such a filibuster, and that the Wright deregulation proposal may be hurting the bill's chances even more.

On Monday, still without any final congressional action on his 15-month old energy package, Carter joined leaders of six other non-Communist industrial nations in vowing to take steps to increase employment worldwide and reduce U.S. oil consumption by raising prices and cutting imports.

Carter pledged to increase the price of U.S. oil — now as low as $5.23 a barrel — to world levels — now approximately $13.50 — by the end of 1980, although without specifying exactly how he would accomplish this.

Planning Action By City School Bd.

Approval was given to the organization for instruction in the elementary schools for the coming year; and participation of Rose High students in a student convocation series at East Carolina University at a cost of $1,000 was authorized by the Greenville Board of Education Monday night.

In the first full meeting of the new board of six elected and three appointed members presided over by new chairperson Theresa Shank, the board unanimously adopted a plan for elementary schools based on recommendations made at workshop meetings held in June.

Under the plan for the 1978-79 school year, kindergarten classes will be self-contained; and grades one through three will operate on a flexible arrangement. This arrangement will "allow teachers and principals to carefully study each grade level and select the organizational plan that seems to best fit the needs of the school at that particular time."

For grades four through six, the plan calls for "exchange classes for language arts and math if there are two or more classes on the same grade level in the school. Where there is a multi-aged class, the principal and teachers will decide whether the intermediate grades for this class to be self-contained or exchange with other classes for language arts and math."

In the plans for grades one through three and four through six, they "must be approved by the director of instruction and the superintendent."

Approval of student participation in the Student Convocation Series at a cost of $1,000 followed Superintendent Glenn Cox's outlining the proposal plan. Cox explained that in a meeting with Mendenhall Student Center director Rudy Alexander, an offer had been made by Alexander to reserve 100 seats at $10 each that would cover five performances per $10 ticket.

Students taking part in the convocation series would be permitted to choose to attend five from among 25 attractions to be presented at East Carolina University during the coming season. Choices are available in five categories — events in music, lectures, dance, travel-adventure films and drama.

The vote carried a stipulation that the source of funds for the program "will be determined at a later date." Also, the board will later determine the manner of distribution of the 100 tickets among Rose High students.

Interest was expressed in making arrangements to have one of the lecturers, Jesse Jackson, appear before a student assembly at the time he comes to Greenville for a lecture. It was noted that the local chapter of the N. C. Association of Educators has already undertaken initial steps to contact Jackson's agent on such a possibility.

Relative to the 200 pages plus document "Pitt County-Greenville City School Survey: Planning Data 1977-78" prepared by the N. C. Dept. of Public Instruction, Division of School Planning, which is the initial study as background for a possible merger of the two schools, Cox asked and was given permission by the board to contact County School Superintendent Ott Alford to make arrangements for future meetings.

Cox will work with Alford in scheduling a joint meeting of the two boards, at which time the document will be reviewed with the public invited to attend.

Members also asked Cox to prepare additional data not included in the recently published document.

Dollar Moves Down

LONDON (AP) — The dollar fell on European money markets today, reflecting disappointment at the results of the Bonn economic summit. The gold price rose.

In Tokyo, the dollar moved down in negative reaction to the summit, the recovered to close at 202.175, down from Monday's closing 202.975 yen.

Early rates for the dollar, compared with late rates Monday:

- Frankfurt 2.06125 West German marks, down from 2.0655
- Zurich 1.8250 Swiss francs, down from 1.82695
- Paris 4.4612 French francs, down from 4.4785
- Amsterdam 2.2280 Dutch guilders, down from 2.2295
- Milan 848.40 Italian lire, down from 849.30

In London, it took $1.88795 to buy one British pound, down from $1.8840 Monday.

The price of one ounce of gold in Zurich stood at $185.625, up by 75 cents an ounce from Monday's $184.875. Gold was fixed in London mid-morning at $185.40 an ounce, up $1.20 from $184.20.

Dealers said the gold price rise and the dollar's weakness could result in "interesting prices" at the sale in Washington later in the day of 300,000 ounces of gold.

Arlington Boulevard Segment Is Completed And Open To Traffic

The long awaited opening of vehicular traffic to the new segment of Arlington Boulevard from Evans Street to Hooker Road took place Monday, according to City Engineer Charlie Holliday.

The city spokesman said that state highway workers completed the installation of traffic signals at Evans Street around noon yesterday and the corridor was opened a short time later.

Signals have also been installed at the Hooker Road intersection by the city, according to Holliday, and street markings are being put in.

Holliday reported that work is still underway at the railroad crossing on Arlington with the installation of signals at the crossing expected to be completed in roughly one month.

The city engineer said that motorists should be aware that the surface that is now being driven on is only the base course and plans call for the finish course to be installed in approximately 30 days.

"People will think this is one of the roughest surfaces," Holliday explained, "but a finish course will be placed to smooth out the existing surface." He noted that the base course must be subjected to traffic for proper compaction before the final surface is installed.

The new Arlington segment is dual-laned on each side of a median strip and offers motoring access from Memorial Drive to Red Banks Road.

Our ham radio buddies there suggested we call you. Mrs. Gordon McCrary, Oriental.

Hotline does not make a practice of following up on lost animal items because of the potential volume. However, because you're a visitor to Greenville and are at a disadvantage making local contacts, we have alerted the Greenville and Pitt County Animal Control Offices, the Pitt County Humane Society (which is doing some calling and some searching), and workers at Dr. Tucker's office and others in the Medical Pavilion. Band Aids Are A School Item

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

It started out innocently enough—a suggestion by Greenville City Board of Education member Mrs. Nancy Middleton that first aid trained personnel be a goal for each of the city's schools.

Superintendent of City Schools Glenn Cox informed the board that as a result of the first aid training program carried out at Rose High late in the past school year, "there are now several trained persons in the school system, mostly at Rose High, but some from other schools."

At that time board member Mrs. Sue Zadeits interjected a remark about the availability, and sometimes, the non-availability of Band Aids in the schools.

"I understand that some PTA's have been approached about fund raising to buy Band Aids for some of the schools," Mrs. Zadeits commented. "If there's no money for Band Aids, and if the PTA doesn't buy them, who will buy Band Aids for the students?" Mrs. Zadeits asked.

Cox assured Mrs. Zadeits that the purchase of Band Aids come "out of funds for school supplies. Which funds they are purchased from is the choice of the individual schools."

Miles Frost remarked that if it was necessary to vote on funds for Band Aids, he would. "I don't want it said I'd vote against money for Band Aids in the school," Frost said.

Cox replied "I'd hate to see this board take a vote on the matter of buying Band Aids for the school."

The discussion on Band Aids was ended by action on the part of chairperson Mrs. Theresa Shank. "May I make a suggestion that Cox ask the principals at each school to make the purchase of Band Aids part of their standard equipment."

The board quickly concurred in Mrs. Shank's suggestion, then moved on to bigger issues.

City School Bd...

The meeting, Cox surmised, will most likely be held during the month of September.

Board acceptance of the 1978-79 city school budget approved by the County Commissioners was tabled pending a special call meeting to be held on or before July 31.

The tabling action will give board members additional time to review the budget—$2,325,678.16 for current expense and $173,195.00 for capital outlay—with an eye to making some last minute shifts in line items if that is felt to be necessary before the budget is submitted to computers for a final readout.

One of the reasons for tabling was the question of the source of funds to hire a full-time school psychologist, a new position made necessary by the fact that the services of a regional psychologist is no longer available. Additionally, Cox reported that the Pitt Mental Health Department had advised that the needs of students in the city school system was beyond what that agency would be able to provide. It was noted that Pitt County schools currently have three full-time psychologists and that the city school system had an urgent need to employ one to serve about 800 students who would be evaluated under one or another program.

Following the presentation of six plans for student insurance, the board approved a plan submitted by Youthguard Agency based in Wilson. The premium is $4.25 for student, faculty, administrators and clerical personnel of the school on a scholastic (home to school) basis for the 181 school day period; $23.00 annually for students and $33.00 annually for others on a 24-hours, 365-day basis.

Football coverage provided by Youthguard is $18 for players in the tryout stage, with an additional $18 once a player signs for the team.

Other terms of the Youthguard plan provide for a $100 limit to tooth injury; x-ray coverage not to exceed $100 per accident; actual charge for hospital expenses following the first 24 hours, or $75 a day, whichever is less; $750 maximum for miscellaneous hospital expenses; $100 a day for extensive care not exceeding five days per accident; medical insurance up to $25,000; loss of life, $2,000; and loss of limb from $1,000 to $10,000.

A report on the School Food Service shows that for the first time in several years, the service has shown a positive cash balance for the 1977-78 school year. As of June 30, 1978, there is a $17,412.47 cash balance. Cox pointed out that the percentage of participation by students in the meal programs has increased from a 50 to 60 percent figure in past years to the 79 percent participation during the 1977-78 school year.

The question of the extent of use of a school board attorney is to be considered at a future meeting. The board asked Cox to gather information on services an attorney can provide in relation to the expense involved and to report this information to them.

Responding to a request from Loyd W. Stokes, Jr., president of Rose High Student Government Association, for SGA representation on the school board in a "non-voting seat" basis, the board concurred that it would welcome and be delighted to have consistent SGA attendance on an observer basis, but that legally seating on a "non-voting basis" could not be offered.

Cox was instructed to inform Stokes of the board's decision; and also it was suggested that an invitation be sent to PTA and other interested agencies encouraging the assignment of a representative to attend as a regular observer. This is being done already by the Chamber of Commerce, the City Council, and other groups in the community.

Other matters to be reviewed at an early date at projected workshops include the study of applications for the position of principal at Rose High; consideration of an application form for employment in the city schools; and the rescheduling of a meeting to inform the public of test score results of tests administered during the past school year. An earlier scheduled meeting on this subject was cancelled when it was discovered that some of the scores had been erroneously reported.

Meeting in executive session at the end of the regular meeting, the board approved the resignation of five school personnel; maternity leave for one teacher; and the election of 30 new personnel. Among the five resigning are three career teachers—Marsha Eakes, art teacher at Rose High; William Byrd, Jr., driver education teacher at Rose High; and Myra D. Pinner, teacher at Eastern Elementary.

In the elected group, Steven Flora was hired as school psychologist; and Arthur Maxwell as employment counselor at Agnes Fullilove Community School.

Approval was given Cox to negotiate with Pitt County school officials on the sale of three excess mobile units—two at Agnes Fullilove and one at Elmhurst Elementary. In the event a suitable purchase agreement is not decided on, the units can then be offered for public auction.

Prison Skipper Is Shipping Out

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — The skipper of the Nevada State Prison's "SS Neversall," a mock-up boat used in a celestial navigation course he taught, is shipping out.

The Parole Board decided Monday to parole Richard Dunn, who had been serving a life term for slaying one man and wounding two others in a barroom shootout in Las Vegas.

Suit Against City Of New Bern Planned By Returning Policemen

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP) — Seventeen New Bern policemen who walked off the job June 30th are planning a lawsuit against the city because returning officers are being given probationary status.

So far 18 New Bern police, including the chief, have returned to work. The policemen reapplied through the Civil Service Board and the way was cleared for their return to work Saturday when the city's Board of Aldermen adopted a resolution exempting the returning officers from the civil service psychological test.

The resolution meant those who had reapplied could return as soon as they were sworn in.

But they will return under a one-year probationary period, which means an officer could be fired at any time by the police chief.

Police Chief John Worsham, who had resigned along with his men, was rehired Friday after a special aldermen meeting. He was the only member of the force the board fired after the walkout.

The mass resignation occurred because police did not get the 10 percent pay hike they were seeking. Instead, the aldermen voted to give all employees a 6 percent raise. The returning officers will receive the 6 percent increase.

But Mayor L.R. Morgan said the aldermen would be reviewing the pay scale with the assistance of the state classification and review office.

Former Capt. P.O. Rodgers said Monday he and other policemen were meeting with an attorney to explore the possibility of a lawsuit.

"In 1969," Rodgers said, "a precedent was set when police officers resigned and were reinstated without a probation period under the same city manager and the same city attorney. Now they say they can't do it."

Rodgers said he was surprised that any of the officers had returned.

New Bern has had a functional police force since Saturday, according to Worsham, "by doubling up the shifts. We are running three shifts rather than four."

In a related action, a secretary in the city's utilities collections office has been suspended without pay for one week for reportedly making a telephone inquiry to the state Elections Board asking about a recall election for the New Bern Board of Aldermen.

Willard Bedwell, city utilities director, said Sally Fisher was suspended because she made the call "on city time, using a city telephone and without prior permission."

Ethnic Chinese Being Expelled

HONG KONG (AP) — Vietnam was reported today to have expelled more than 159,000 ethnic Chinese amid renewed Peking government charges that Vietnamese authorities are forcing the refugees to cross the border without proper papers.

Two Communist newspapers here, Ta Kung Pao and Wen Wei Po, quoting the official Chinese Hsinhua news agency, dismissed as "lies" Vietnamese accusations that Chinese wanted to leave the country because they were afraid of socialism. Reporting that 95 percent of the refugees were from North Vietnam, the papers said that country had been a socialist state since 1960.

China previously estimated some 140,000 ethnic Chinese had been forced to flee Vietnam, claiming they were being systematically persecuted by the authorities. Hanoi denies the accusation, saying some Chinese whose businesses were nationalized opted to leave.

Hsinhua again accused Vietnam of violating a Chinese-Vietnamese border agreement by forcing the refugees at Friendship Bridge and other control points to cross the border into China without proper papers.

The agreement requires Vietnamese border officials to check official repatriation certificates issued by the Chinese Embassy together with exist visas granted by Vietnamese authorities before allowing travellers across the frontier.

Hsinhua said Vietnamese authorities were also using various means to prevent Chinese with required certificates from returning to China.

China has sent two ships to Vietnam to repatriate "victimized" Chinese. Negotiations between the two countries on a joint program to organize the exodus remain deadlocked.

Many of the refugees are descendants of Chinese merchants who have lived and operated businesses in Vietnam for centuries.

China says it wants to repatriate only "victimized" Chinese, while Vietnam counters that there are no victimized Chinese in the country.

Asks Inquiry Into Drugs At Prison

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — A Statesville judge sitting in New Hanover Superior Court has called for an investigation into claims by three prison escapees that drugs, alcohol and sex are regularly sold to inmates at Wilmington prisons.

After sentencing three former Wilmington prisoners on escape charges Monday, Judge Robert A. Collier said he will order the probe by either the State Bureau of Investigation or the Department of Corrections within a day or two.

The judge said inmates implicated prison guards in the alleged sales, and court officials said that two specific guards had been named.

MOSCOW (AP) — Fedor D. Kulakov, a member of the Soviet Union's ruling Politburo, and, in the view of Western diplomats, one of the top candidates to succeed President Leonid I. Brezhnev, died of a heart attack Monday, the Soviet news agency Tass said. He was 60.

Suggestions On Ending Boredom

By VICKI VARELA
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Some people will do anything to avoid boredom, including picking a fight in a karate school, chewing tinfoil or getting the address of everyone who has ever eaten a Big Mac.

These are a few of the suggestions made by 13 men and women at the fourth annual Boredom Anonymous Convention on Monday in Manhattan as part of National Avoid Boredom Week.

Richard Karlen, a dentist from Newark, N.J., read a humorous script about his boredom with his work. He described almost letting a patient choke to death because he was so bored.

"The pharynx became almost totally obstructed with saliva, amalgam debris, cotton balls and 10 frozen fingers," he said.

"My life had become a compendium of insignificant details ... I was being drowned in an ocean of trivia," he continued. "How many more years could I endure this scratching (on fillings) before one day that amalgam carver in my hand suddenly transformed itself into a razor-sharp machete and the patient at that moment became the victim of a dentist gone mad?"

George Lewis, who founded the 200-member anti-boredom society four years ago, said he was dedicated to helping the country overcome boredom by "keeping the mind in a terrific fantasy."

The small group discussed everything from what they think about when they are bored to jokes about boredom to lists of boring people, states, occupations, films, and institutions.

Ranking high on the list of boring people were Billy Carter, Howard Cosell, Barbara Walters, Bella Abzug, Farris Fawcett-Majors and Bert Reynolds.

Boring cities were Cleveland; Cedar Rapids, Iowa; Anchorage, Alaska; Topeka and Kansas City, Kan.; and Omaha, Neb.

Discussion topics that topped the boring list were the energy and Middle East crises, the New York City fiscal crisis and Jimmy Carter's teeth.

'Retractions' Ordered By A Soviet Court

By NIKKI FINKE
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet judge gave two U.S. correspondents five days to print a retraction of reports he ruled slanderous and pay court costs of $3,330 or run the risk of having the Foreign Ministry revoke their accreditation.

Both defendants, Craig Whitney of The New York Times and Harold Piper of The Baltimore Sun, are vacationing in the United States. They notified the president of the Moscow City Court, Lev Almazov, on July 3 that they were withdrawing from active participation in the civil suit, but Almazov went ahead with the trial.

Almazov ruled against the American reporters after the surprise appearance of Georgian dissident Zviad Gamsakhurdia. He testified that his televised confession to anti-Soviet agitation, which the correspondents' reports said friends and relatives believed was fabricated, was authentic.

Gamsakhurdia testified that the televised film, which was shown in the courtroom, corresponded to what he said.

He was accompanied by two uniformed policemen and had dark circles under his eyes. The 39-year-old dissident was sentenced May 19 to three years in a labor camp and two years Siberian exile.

The Soviet radio and television service demanded at the start of today's hearing that Whitney and Piper print retractions and apologies and pay $3,330 in legal costs.

A spokesman for the U.S.S.R. State Committee for Television and Radio demanded that Whitney and Piper apologize both to the Soviet television service and the news program Vremya, or Time. He said the two correspondents accused the radio and TV service and Vremya of falsification.

"They wanted to do moral damage to Vremya and the whole of Soviet television," said the spokesman, a member of the Vremya staff who was not identified. He also accused Whitney and Piper of trying to undermine the prestige of Soviet television abroad and inside the country. To support the latter assertion, he said The New York Times was available in many kiosks and hotels for foreigners while The Baltimore Sun was received by subscribers here.

He also said the correspondents' reports had been picked up by Western radio stations broadcasting to the Soviet Union.

Whitney and Piper had asked Almazov to dismiss the suit, contending it was groundless. But Almazov said he saw no basis for dismissal. Under Soviet law, the hearing could take place without the defendants.

In contrast to the trials last week of dissidents Anatoly Shcharansky and Alexander Ginzburg, from which Western reporters were barred, a limited number of places in the courtroom today were allotted to them.

Sound-Proofed Chicken Coop

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Mattie Kidd is happy, her neighbors are happy and as far as can be determined, her rooster is happy and at last, quiet.

A local radio station has resolved a crisis that started several weeks ago when a woman called Mayor Charles Wheeler at 6:30 a.m. to complain about a crowing chicken in the neighborhood. Wheeler told police to investigate and find the bird.

They did but couldn't jail the rooster because no one living within 100 yards of Mrs. Kidd was willing to swear out a complaint as required by the city's animal control ordinance.

But Dave Lawrence, a disc jockey for station WDAF, heard about the problem and ordered a specially constructed home for the full-voiced rooster—a sound-proof chicken coop.

'Florida Mermaid' Finds New Life

By FRED T. FERGUSON
NEW YORK (UPI) — Her husband, Bill, is a trucker. Her father, too. And two of her brothers — "they tower over me."
But you'd bet Linda Jean Jernigan, from appearances, is an actress or model.
No, Linda's a trucker too. She drives an 18-wheeler just about anywhere there's a load to haul, coast to coast. And, often the load is explosives.
Linda is 32. She's been on the road six years now, ever since Bill called one night from the West Coast. He was lonely, told her he missed her, suggested she be a trucker too. She could share his cab.
When the Jernigans hit the road, her mother and an aunt keep track of their sons, David, 13, and Mike, 11, at home in Huntsville, Ala.
Bill and Linda push their 18-speed Kenworth 20 hours a day. "While he's driving, I'm asleep. We don't see that much of each other on the road."

Plainly, as she tells of her trucker's life, she loves it. And the kidding.
They call her Florida Mermaid on the CB. She's from Orlando, originally.
"Hey Mermaid, get in my tire treads going 'round the next rig."
Or, "Hey Linda, where's your big cigar?"
"Ten-four," she answers. "I'm gonna blow your doors off if you don't get outa my way."
Or, spotting her polishing her nails in the passenger seat. "I see it but I don't believe it."
"You better believe it."
She has tales to tell: When her brakes locked on a downgrade. When she was sideswiped by a trucker — whom she chased to a truck stop and belabored until state police arrived to take over. And she's seen some terrible wrecks.
One thing all this has done is fill her with advice for those folks driving plain old cars. Truckers always have had rather strong opinions about them. Linda's are more charitable.

"After all, I never knew anything about our car until I got to trucking."
To be a trucker, she took a two-month, 240-hour course at Washington Holmes Tech in Chipley, Fla. She boned up on U.S. Department of Transportation regulations, learned defensive driving from the Florida Highway Patrol and had a Red Cross course on first aid. And she learned the care and driving of six different rigs.
Her first trip was to Oklahoma City. She flips out route stops like El Paso, Bangor and Seattle as fast as she pitches advice to those misbegotten souls left by the roadside with a flat.
"People should be aware of their autos. They should read their owner's manual. It tells what is the proper time to change the oil. And they should look under the hood; find out how to put the jack together."

"It's important. People are trying to keep their cars longer because they've gotten so expensive to buy."
"When I started driving a truck, I became aware of the little bitty things that I could do that would save a lot of trouble and money. I got familiar with the engine. I even started working on our car with my husband."
Bill entered her in a 1975 "Queen of the Road" contest. She won and that led to her work as car care counselor for the Fram and Autolite Corporations.
"Now I go to schools and talk to driver education classes about safe driving and car care."
"I tell them how to change the oil filter and spark plugs. It's so easy and it can save a lot of money and trouble later."
"Those spark plugs go 52 million times a year."
"These mechanical things, they have to be repaired. I never used to, but now I know."
"You know, on the road, we truckers have to make a safety check every 24 hours. If anything really upsets me, it's when people say, 'You just drive that truck into the ground.' We have to do a lot of work maintaining it and there's a lot of bookwork too. It makes you really aware."

trucks have — directly behind the trailer. I tell them not to get so close to trucks. You take a 55-foot truck with trailer and its 72,000 pounds. When it passes, it creates wind turbulence. It's even worse for the car driver if it's raining."
"I tell them not to cut close in front of a truck. That's just as dangerous. I tell them they've got to really keep their mind on driving."
What does a woman do driving alone? "What lady truckers do when they're alone," she says and explains, "Quite a few of them are divorced or one partner has died."
"Lock the doors, even if you're just going across town. Tell a friend, 'Give me 30 minutes to get home, then call me.' If you have a breakdown, put the hood up, tie a handkerchief on the door handle or put out a red light. Then lock those doors and check the windows."
Linda knows many drivers will not want to get involved with actual car maintenance. But she recommends they learn enough to know what should be done for the car and exactly what their mechanic does to it.
For all drivers, she says one step they can take after following her initial advice is to read a 40-page booklet on car care and safety entitled "To keep your car working for you," available for 50 cents for postage and handling from Fram Corp. Dept. U. P. O. Box 6346, Providence, R.I. 02940.

Tell Children They Have Failed

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I are ordinary people (now retired). We're trying to get along on Social Security, so we must draw on our savings, which of course are limited. We have four children, all adults and married with children of their own, up to college age.
From time to time, in order to help them out, we have lent our children money, interest-free. They promised to pay us back in installments. After two or three installments, they quit paying, although they seem to have money for pleasure trips, expensive luxuries, etc.
"There is honor among thieves," it is said. What has happened to our kids? Where have we failed?
FORGOTTEN IN MANKATO

DEAR FORGOTTEN: Don't assume that because your children have not honored their commitments YOU have failed. THEY have failed. You can lead some people to a fountain of integrity, but you can't make them drink from it. (P.S. Silence implies agreement. Speak up!)

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for 20 years, and our problem is our sex life. What's a "turn on" for him is definitely a "turn off" for me. He insists on talking about other women when he's making love. I'm hurt because it's never ME he is making love to—it's always a friend, or a stranger, or a movie actress.

I don't want anyone else, and never have. Oh, sure, I've wondered what it would be like with Burt Reynolds, but what woman hasn't? I could never talk about other men during lovemaking. My husband says fantasizing would help us both, and there is nothing wrong with it. Is he right, or am I?

I long for those days early in our marriage when he let me know that he was glad I was the girl in his arms, and he didn't need all these fantasies. He thinks I'm square. Is this a common problem?
TURNED OFF IN TORRENCE

DEAR TURNED OFF: Yes, it's a very common problem. There are no "rules" in lovemaking, save one: "Whatever is pleasing to both parties is OK."

Since sex is your problem, I suggest that you consult a qualified sex therapist (they usually work in teams, a man and a woman to counsel the couple). Most universities now have a human sexuality program in their medical schools. Or perhaps your physician or clergyman can recommend a therapist.

Honorary Chairman Is Announced

RALEIGH — Mrs. Sydnor Montgomery White has been chosen honorary chairman of the Terpsichorean Club's 52nd North Carolina Debutante Ball.
She will entertain the mothers of the debutantes at a brunch Friday, Sept. 8, at the Carolina Country Club prior to the official presentation that evening at the Raleigh Civic Center.
Mrs. White is the former Ann Geoghegan of Raleigh. Her husband is president of Motor Bearings and Parts Co. The Whites have three children.

Grandma Knew Best About Spring Tonics

NEW YORK (UPI) — Maybe grandma knew best about spring tonics when she made them with molasses.

Elaine Rose of Cornell University's Cooperative Extension Service recommends dark molasses as a good inexpensive source of iron. It costs less than $1 for a 12-ounce bottle in the New York City area.

Ms. Rose says many nutrition experts say the hundreds of dollars a year some people spend on vitamins and dietary supplements "are at best a waste of money and at worst a potential health hazard, especially in the case of vitamins A and D, which can cause toxic reactions."

"Not many consumers realize that when they take 10 grams or 10,000 milligrams of vitamin C a day they are taking the equivalent of close to 100 8-ounce glasses of orange juice."

Trucker's Safety Tips For Holiday Driver

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tips for the vacation motorist from professional truck driver Linda Jean Jernigan:
Start with the three-minute safety check: Wiper blades, brakes, lights, steering, tires, radiator.
Make sure your anti-freeze is okay. Check brake fluid, oil. Carry extra oil in the trunk. Put in a new oil filter, especially before pulling campers.
Have a safety kit with you: white flag, flasher, screw driver, pliers, and electric tape for hoses. Replacing a little $4 hose on the road usually winds up costing $10 to $15.
Have a pre-trip plan: How far you're going, who to call if an accident occurs. Carry extra checks or cash, and a first aid kit and blanket, especially if traveling with kids.
Always go where there are plenty of people. Don't go into dark rest areas at night. They're okay by day but they're real dangerous at night.
If you get lost, don't be afraid to ask directions. Ask a trucker. If he's going your way, ask, "Do you mind if I follow you?" They usually don't provided you don't crowd them. Stay at least one car length behind for every 10 miles of speed."

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

A lot of mothers this summer are hiring their own children to do jobs around the house, and it's a revelation to find out what kind of a price is being put on things women have always done for nothing.
The teenage daughter of a friend of mine actually put out a price list for chores that reads something like this:
Bedmaking; Against the wall, 35 cents; normal, 30 cents; bunk, 50 cents.
Babysitting! Toilet trained, 50 cents an hour; spitters and biters, 60 cents, climbers and travelers, 85 cents.
Diaper Changing: Liquids, 50 cents; solids, $1.50.
Cooking: Junk food, 35 cents a serving; opening cans and turn-mother.

"I mean, I cannot be expected to take care of the house, babysit, cook, change the hose; provide entertainment, make decisions, bind up wounds; close the windows when it rains, pick up and be a secretary at those prices."
The mother related the story to her husband that night and said, "Frankly, if you'd pay me that much I'd get my old job back."
He said, "Sorry, we're looking for a younger woman."
She ran away from home last week.
When a recipe calls for cocoa, use the unsweetened kind. Do not use an instant cocoa mix (unless it is called for), because it is usually a blend of cocoa, sugar, flavoring and sometimes nonfat dry milk.

Facing A Cycle Of Disinterest

A 24 percent failure rate on the high school competency test has been reported for 11th graders in the Pitt County schools by John H. McKnight, director of testing and research.

The figure is particularly distressing since the rate for the state as a whole on competency test is 13 percent.

Females in Pitt County did better than males at 17 percent as opposed to 29 percent. Whites did better than blacks with the percentages of failure being ten percent and 38 percent.

Socio-economic status entered the picture quite strongly with 41 percent of students whose parents finished the eighth grade or less failing. In addition there was a 44 percent failure rate for students whose parents make $5,000 per year or less.

Without continuing the dismal figures suffice it to say the math test findings were even worse.

This year's tests were on a trial basis, but next year the tests results could mean retentions for the failing students and issuance of certificates of attendance for them.

What can be done? McKnight recommended remedial instruction for failing students, but long range we need to do even more. It is obvious that being disadvantaged has something to do with a poor showing on the tests, and so disadvantaged students need more individual help.

How this can be provided in Pitt and other counties is a difficult problem, but bold approaches will be needed to break the cycle of disinterest in academics which prevails from generation-to-generation.

The Ideals Aim At New ECU Heights

Chancellor Thomas B. Brewer made a commitment to excellence in one of his first addresses here, before the Winterville Kiwanis Club last week.

"Our goals will be high but realistic. We will be imaginative and bold," he declared. "We will try new approaches and new ideas. Some will fail and some will work. But we will succeed."

If the institution can be so guided, then East Carolina University can't help but reach new heights in the years ahead.

THIS AFTERNOON

A 'Training We Shall Go

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — From Nags Head hotels to Blue Ridge Mountain resorts, state employees are whistling a happy tune called "A-Training We Shall Go."

It is the latest fad in government, and whatever name it goes by, it's costing taxpayers millions. Called retreats, seminars, workshops, in-service — or just plain training — depending upon the job level of participants, each agency has a training office, and there is an overall training program in the Department of Administration.

But it is impossible to get a handle on the dollars or time being spent. There is no central clearinghouse for information — largely because such information would obviously create a furor.

Legislators have from time to time fussed about the training activities and wondered how much is going on; how much it is costing.

"We have never been able to pull that information together," says a senior budget analyst on the Legislative staff. "It is buried everywhere: special grants, federal grants, personnel budgets. They even changed the name of one program to keep it from looking like training."

No Totals

Nowhere in the budget does the simple lump-sum classification training appear. Employees involved use travel money, meals money, and hotel money to cover part of the cost. Incidental costs are gotten from various places in the budget.

And in many instances companies which do business with the people in the particular agency having the training session will provide hospitality rooms and get-acquainted cocktail parties during the meeting.

While many training sessions are being held in resort areas, others are going on closer to Raleigh. Quail Rost Conference Center near Durham is a popular location, as is the Ramada Inn at Apex. Quail Rost is a rustic hunting retreat which can offer limited sleeping accommodations but elaborate eating and conferring quarters.

The appeal of the Apex Ramada Inn is singular: it is just over the line from Raleigh beyond which state employees can receive travel and per diem expenses to cover cost of meals for being "away from home". Ten miles away from home.

BILL NOBLITT

State Senator I.C. Crawford, D-Bumcombe, has been consistently one of the most outspoken critics of the training activities. "They hire somebody qualified to do a job, pay a good salary, then put them in a training program to train them to do a job", he complains.

But that level of training barely scratches the surface. The big push is training by upper management people of mid-management people so they can train lower-management people to train the field people.

Train Trainers

Numerous planning and pre-training seminars are held to start the training and to train the trainers. The General Assembly has regularly endorsed the need for more training of the people who actually touch clients: social workers, classroom teachers, counselors, custodial personnel.

But specialists in the training field report that middle and upper level bureaucrats have gotten nervous because low echelon people were getting ahead of them in newer techniques, policy interpretation, forms handling, and so the program runs up and down the ranks.

A brief review of one set of monthly activity reports from a single governmental agency reflects the priority attached to training: "spent three days training; met to discuss workshop; met to plan grant for career training at entry level; attended field managers seminar; attended seminar at Nags Head; plan to attend retreat; training session at McKimmon Center; 14 supervisory personnel attended workshop; assistant branch managers and supervisors at training seminar in Greensboro; three members at seminar in Wilmington; training at Chapel Hill;" and the litany runs on and on for pages.

Time To Throw Him Out

WASHINGTON — There comes a point, even in the most long-suffering relationship, when enough is too much. That point was reached last week with Andrew Young, President Carter, a baseball fan, knows what he ought to do: Throw the bum out.

If Young were merely Citizen Andrew Young, or even Congressman Andrew Young, his outrageous conduct could be ignored. But he is Ambassador Andrew Young. He is publicly identified as the president's close friend and confidant. Mr. Carter has praised him without reservation as "the best" in his administration.

But the ambassador doesn't want to play on the team. He wants to put on a grandstand performance, solo, popping off whenever it pleases him.

Let us keep the circumstances in mind. In Moscow, the trial had begun of Anatoly Shcharansky on charges of treason. Mr. Carter himself had flatly denied that Shcharansky ever had spied for the CIA. The president had protested and deplored the trial in every way open to a president. Secretary Vance, in Europe, had pointedly announced his intention to meet with Mrs. Shcharansky to express American sympathy and support.

At precisely this point, Mr. Young came lumbering into print, flapping his irresponsible jaw. He gave an interview to a French newspaper, Le Matin, in which he pooh-poohed the Shcharansky affair. The trial, he thought, was merely a gesture of defiance and independence on the part of the Soviet Union.

"After all," he added grandly, "in our prisons there are also hundreds, maybe even thousands of people I would call political prisoners."

When reporters caught up with Mr. Young in Geneva, and asked him to verify the quotation attributed to him, he willingly confirmed the remark. While nobody is in jail in America merely for criticizing the government, "there are all varieties of political prisoners." People are sent to prison in America "much more because they are poor than because they are bad."

This reckless performance of Mr. Young's part is quite simply indefensible. To say there may be "thousands" of "political prisoners" in American jails is a lie. No semantic explanation can soften or excuse the bizarre accusation.

When will Mr. Carter agree that enough is too much? From the very beginning of his service in the Carter administration, Mr. Young has been a large embarrassment. As ambassador to the United Nations, he is supposed to function as a diplomat, but diplomacy has no appeal for Andrew Young. He has insulted the British. He has insulted the Swedes. He could not find the sense of restraint that might have prevented him from saying publicly that South Africa's Prime Minister Vorster is "very much over the hill intellectually and in every other kind of way."

The chronicle of Mr. Young's offenses against taste, truth and diplomacy runs on and on. In an interview in Playboy, he got in a slur at former Presidents Nixon and Ford. They were "racists", with "no understanding of the problems of colored people anywhere." In a second installment of his interview with Le Matin, he hurled a fantastic charge against Rhodesia's Prime Minister Ian Smith. Without one shred

Weigh Travel Options

Cutting costs for summer vacations doesn't have to mean cutting corners if you are willing to spend a little time exploring all the available travel options.

Start saving when you start planning. Take advantage of toll-free telephone numbers. Many state travel offices and most major transportation and lodging companies maintain these numbers; check your local telephone directory for specifics.

The Travel Information Center of the United States Travel Service also has a toll-free number—800-243-2372. (Connecticut residents should call 800-822-7611.) The center can answer questions about specific locations and tell you where to get more information.

Here are some general suggestions from the travel service on saving money in three major areas: transportation, accommodations and food.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Carrying A Small Stick

By ROWLAND EVANS
and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — When Dr. Samuel Huntington of the National Security Council (NSC) staff on the evening of July 10 discussed with Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan how to handle the Russians, it followed a policy debate waged within the national security bureaucracy for six weeks and now threatening to divide the Democratic party.

Moynihan thought Huntington was asking him to publicly urge stopping U.S. technology transfers to the Soviet Union as a protest against the dissident trials; Huntington says he intended no such request. But the two former Harvard professors fully agreed that needed oil drilling bits should not be sent to Russia just when the Kremlin is thumbing its nose at Jimmy Carter's concern for human rights.

Huntington, an intimate of NSC director Zbigniew Brzezinski, was not inciting mutiny against President Carter. Rather, he was trying to influence the final outcome of a debate involving much more than drilling bits.

Senior figures in the administration and Congress fear that Mr. Carter is turning Teddy Roosevelt on his head, speaking loudly while carrying the small stick supplied by the State Department. They feel the President must not let the world believe that the Soviet Union can play the barbarian without fear of meaningful reaction from Washington.

That Secretary of State Cyrus Vance feels differently was revealed to one worried Democratic senator soon after Moscow announced dissident trials all over the Soviet Union. "Cy," asked the senator, "what do you think the Russians are up to?"

"Oh," the secretary of state replied, "I think they're trying to get all of this out of the way" — in other words, getting Soviet ducks in a row so as to permit the serious business of negotiating. The senator was chilled.

But this mindset was well laid out long before the dissident trials convened. During weeks of internal debate over technology transfer, the State Department argued against any linkage whatever with general Soviet conduct. The NSC staff disagreed. Huntington's staff study on "oil vulnerability" showed how much the Kremlin depends on drilling bits to be produced by a Russian plant built by an American firm, Dresser Industries.

Huntington expounded his position in supposedly off-the-record remarks to an annual conference at West Point June 16. The NSC aide, who will return to Harvard this fall, stressed he was speaking only for himself in linking technology transfers to Soviet behavior. Businessmen present, with visions of Russian trade dancing in their heads, bristled (confirming Lenin's forecast that capitalists will sell the rope for their own hanging). After an account was published in the Washington Post of June 26, the Literary Gazette of Moscow broadened its assault on Brzezinski by attacking the Huntington speech.

The Dresser Industries deal was brought up during discussion at West Point. But the decision was going against the NSC staff and in favor of the State Department. Accordingly, defense-oriented senators — including Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington — got in the act by "discreetly" pushing the NSC position on Dresser Industries with the president.

When the Kremlin convened the dissident trials, Vance (taking advice from his Soviet affairs expert, Dr. Marshall Shulman) was in

Strength For Today

SEEDS CARRIED BY THE WIND

One of the first Christian missionaries in India, born a Hindu, told an interesting story about how his career began.

A student of English in a local high school, he took a part time job unpacking goods from abroad at an import warehouse. On one occasion he unpacked a box from England containing a valuable art object. To prevent the art object from becoming damaged en route, someone had surrounded it in the crate with Bibles. Doubtless the person had conceived this as a unique way of spreading the Word.

The student learned his English by reading the Bible through, word for word. The result was that he became an outstanding Christian preacher.

Many times some verse of scripture has been unveiled in all its glory to the waiting and needy heart of someone who has been walking in darkness. Let us hope that in the future the message of God can be spread in as many wondrous ways as it has in the past.

More Emphasis On Gold Role

By CHERYL DEBES
AP Business Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Like most Americans, Josiah Bailey, a certified public accountant, worries about inflation. So he began a new billing system April 1. He now charges his clients 0.2723 troy ounces of gold for an hour's work.

Of course, the Morehead City, N.C., businessman still collects his fees in dollars. The difference is that they're dollars pegged to the price of gold.

Since early April, gold prices have fluctuated between $167.30 and $186.60 an ounce. Accordingly, Bailey's hourly rate slumped to $45.56 on April 24, then gradually increased to a peak $50.81 in mid-June.

But despite the fluctuations, Bailey is perfectly satisfied with his system.

"When the price went down to $170 an ounce, I even sent a letter to my clients suggesting they take advantage of the decline," he chuckled.

Bailey says that's "my way of coping with inflation. I think that gold will retain its purchasing power better than paper currencies."

Bailey is among the first to take advantage of a federal law that last October restored the legality of receiving gold as payment for goods or services. Specifically, it makes contracts denominated in gold, or currencies linked to gold's price, enforceable in court.

But in a larger sense, the 56-year-old businessman exemplifies what some experts describe as a subtle shift in public sentiment that puts more emphasis on the monetary role of gold.

The dominant trend, begun when the United States and other nations suspended the gold standard at the outbreak of World War I, has been a lessening of the historical tie between gold and money.

Indeed, the U.S. Treasury's long-term policy is to diminish or completely abandon the use of gold as a money standard.

Inherent restraints imposed by gold on government spending "are too severe. They imply a discipline at a time when the old notions of balanced budgets, of paying when you buy, have gone out the window," explained Martin McAulex, foreign exchange administrator at Continental Bank in Chicago.

"The idea of re-monetizing gold is not politically palatable. It would not only disrupt the economy, but the work habits and standard of living of the man on the street," he said.

Specialists also cite a potential threat to the dollar's premier status in the international monetary structure. "If a direct link were revived between gold and world currencies, it could result in a transfer of economic power from the United States to the principal gold-producing nations, namely South Africa and the Soviet Union," said Howard Levine, a metals analyst for ACLI International Commodities Inc.

Nevertheless, economists identify a growing preference for gold among individuals both in this country and abroad. They explain the phenomenon in a nutshell — an inflation rate that has eaten away a sizable chunk of what paper money can buy.

Many federal and state parks have campsites available for from $1 to $5 a night. Cottages and tents at privately owned campgrounds are available for as little as $7 to $17 a night.
If nothing but a hotel or motel will suit your needs, make sure you pay only for what you want. If you don't intend to swim, pick a motel without a pool. If you won't be eating in the fancy restaurant, look for a place with a simple coffee shop. Take advantage of off-season rates and packages that combine a room with sight-seeing. Look for hotels and motels which allow children to occupy their parents' room at no extra charge. Reserve in advance and ask for minimum-rate accommodations. Consider a hotel or motel on the outskirts of town.

FOOD

The best way to save money on food is to cook your own. If you don't have the facilities, however, or don't want to cook, consider picnics. Carry a basket stocked with utensils from home and stop along the way for sandwich ingredients, etc.
If you particularly want to try a fancy restaurant, considering splurging at lunch instead of dinner. Portions may be slightly smaller, but prices will usually be considerably lower.

control. He rejected a suggestion by Malcolm Toon, U.S. ambassador in Moscow, that Vance's arms control (SALT) discussions in Geneva be postponed. Some State Department officials hinted many more such suggestions might exit Toon from Moscow.
It soon became clear that the principal reaction by Washington was cancellation of a Moscow visit by the deputy director of U.S. Environmental Protection. That was ludicrously unsatisfactory not only to Jackson, Moynihan and other senators, but also important senior figures in the administration.
Consequently, Jackson took the Senate floor July 10 to declare: "When the Soviets are doing so much to provoke us...this is the time for us to let the Russians know that we can play the game, too." Without talking to Huntington or anybody else on the NSC staff, Jackson decided to go public on his private technology transfer maneuvers. On July 11, he urged halting the Dresser Industries deal plus a Sperry Univac computer system sale to the TASS news agency.
Scoop Jackson, whose anti-Soviet rhetoric has never matched Jimmy Carter's in shrillness, is pleading with the President to carry a bigger stick. But sources in the bureaucracy report that Vance went to Geneva with important SALT concessions in his briefcase. If he actually pulled out the concessions instead of turning off the technology deals, the agitation and concern here this week will be only a pale preview of what's ahead.

City Boy In Smithy Role

COOKSVILLE, Wis. (AP) — In Butch Hach's recycled blacksmith shop, don't expect him to shoe your horse.
Hach was a bored big city factory worker until, chancing upon a blacksmith working at a heritage exposition in Madison two years ago, he decided to start a new life as a smithy in this southern Wisconsin country village.
He and his son, Carl, 13, have rebuilt a 19th century shed for his new trade. Except for a concrete floor and a tin roof, the two-story building is made generally of such recycled materials as handsome wood beams and some 12-foot maple-panel flooring which he salvaged from a University of Wisconsin fieldhouse and now are walls.
The university's center-floor red 'W' insignia overlooks Hach's forge and a museum-piece 500-pound anvil. He works as a builder of steamers, stoves, racks and other items used by the area's cigar-wrappers tobacco growers.
But, showing his city-boy side, he avoids shoeing horses. "I have this thing about being kicked," he said.

Amb. Young Has More To Say

PARIS (AP) — Ambassador Andrew Young says the timing of his remark about U.S. political prisoners may have been wrong but he'll have more to say about "what is a political prisoner in the United States."
"I didn't overstate the number of people." America's first black ambassador to the United Nations said in an interview in Geneva with the International Herald Tribune. "It was a casual statement which perhaps should not have been made, especially not at this time, and I'm reluctant to discuss it now. But I assure you that I'll come back to the question of what is a political prisoner in the United States."

Last week, as the Carter administration was severely criticizing the Soviet government for putting dissidents Anatoly Shcharansky and Alexander Ginzburg on trial, Young told the French Socialist newspaper Le Matin: "There are hundreds, perhaps thousands of political prisoners in the United States."

to a leftist French newspaper whose readership would tend to discredit any critique made by the Americans on the grounds that we are just playing domestic politics for that this is just another chapter in the cold war rhetoric.

Young claimed he was quoted out of context, but President Carter and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance reprimanded him. There were also demands in Congress for his dismissal and an impeachment resolution in the House of Representatives which was voted down overwhelmingly.

"A critique of the Soviet Union becomes stronger when given from the perspective of having faced up to U.S. weaknesses and imperfections.

"I'm sure Europe doesn't understand this, but I think our experiment in America in open discussion of foreign policy is the only way to get important and controversial things done in our American system."

Power told Young that "many people, including, of course, Carter, felt you overstated the case."

"The overstatement was there," Young replied, "and I guess it was particularly bad to equate the Soviet system of justice with the system of justice in the United States. I don't think those two can be equated."

"The point I was making in the interview was that the process of human rights development in societies can be similar even when the societies are different."

Private Prosecutor Is Hired In Jackson Death

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Attorney General Rufus Edmisten says he sees nothing unfair about a wealthy family being permitted to employ a private attorney to assist in the prosecution of a case about which they feel very strongly.

Edmisten said this when asked for comment on the action of the family of Dr. Archie T. Johnson Jr. in hiring Raleigh criminal attorney Russell W. DeMent Jr. to assist the staff of the district attorney in prosecuting his widow on a charge of first degree murder.

Edmisten noted that hiring a private prosecutor is not unusual in North Carolina and said, "there is a long common law right for a family to employ a private prosecutor in cases where they feel very strongly and have the financial ability to do so."

Edmisten noted that private prosecutors are appointed with the assent of the district attorney and work under his supervision and control.

"Private prosecutors can be of great assistance to a district attorney because they can devote unlimited time to the preparation of a case," Edmisten said.

He also pointed out that having private prosecutors tends to even up things between the prosecution and defense because it also can hire as many private attorneys as those involved can afford.

DeMent confirmed Monday he had been hired by Johnson's father, A.T. Johnson of Benson, late last week. He said he will aid the Wake County District attorney's staff in prosecuting Mrs. Johnson who was indicted on a first degree murder charge Monday by the Wake County Grand Jury.

Police charged Mrs. Johnson after they found Johnson shot to death at the couple's home July 10. He had been shot in the head, chest and abdomen.

When contacted at his home Monday, the elder Johnson had no comment about the hiring of DeMent.

DeMent said, however, he is considering making a motion to give his clients custody of the Johnson's three children, Ashley, 13, Celeste, 11, and Julie 8. They have been in custody of their mother since she was released on $25,000 bond Tuesday.

Johnson, a 41-year-old pediatrician, served during the administration of Republican Gov. Jim Holshouser as an assistant secretary of the State Department of Human Resources. He also had close ties with Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green, a Democrat, and was a member of the faculty of the University of North Carolina Medical School.

Police and friends said the Johnsons had been having marital difficulties and had been separated for about a month prior to the slaying.

Beat-Up Green Station Wagon Hunted In Oklahoma Killings

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A nationwide all-points bulletin is out for a beat-up green station wagon seen speeding with its lights out from a shopping center where six restaurant workers were later found slain.

Police spokesman Tom Mundy said the bulletin was issued in reaction to reports that a 1970-73 wood-paneled Oldsmobile was seen leaving the parking lot of the Southern Hills Shopping Center late Sunday. Police refused to say who had seen the station wagon or to discuss any other possible clues.

"We'll have to keep those things to ourselves for prosecution in the case, for evidence," Detective Sgt. Jim Woodie said Monday.

Mike Click, 25, manager of the Sirlin Stockade Restaurant, found the six victims — each shot in the head — in a walk-in food cooler at about 11 p.m. Sunday.

Click had gone to the steakhouse because supervisors in the chain restaurant's home office were disturbed when employees did not call in nightly cash totals and could not be reached by telephone.

Five male workers were dead when police arrived, Mundy said.

The sixth victim, Terri Horst, 16, of Oklahoma City, was rushed to Oklahoma Children's Memorial Hospital suffering from gunshot wounds to the head and chest.

Mundy said she never regained consciousness and died at 12:15 a.m. Monday before doctors could get her to an operating room.

A friend of Miss Horst, Carlos Joyce, told police he arrived at the restaurant to meet her at 10:30 p.m. but the employees were not finished working. According to Mundy, Joyce went back to his car and drove around for half an hour, arriving back at the restaurant just as Click drove up.

The other victims were identified as assistant manager Louis Zacharias, 40; Isaac Freeman, 56, a janitor; Anthony Teu, 17; David Salzman, 16, all from Oklahoma City; and David Lindsay, 17, of Moore, an Oklahoma City suburb.

Click guessed that more than $1,000 had been stolen from the restaurant's safe, basing his estimate on a normal Sunday take of $1,000 to $2,000.

Laboratory tests Monday determined two pistols were used in the slayings and at least nine shots were fired in the cooler, Mundy said, indicating at least two assailants were involved.

"This is the most horrendous crime in the Oklahoma City area since I've been a police officer," Chief Tom Heggy said. "I've talked to officers who have been on the force 20 to 25 years and it's the worst they've seen. It was a shock to walk into that cooler and see those five victims."

Police said the victims were slain between 10:30 p.m. and 11 p.m. At a press conference Monday, officers appealed to anyone who might have been in or near the restaurant at that time to call police.

A $30,000 reward for the capture and conviction of the slayers was set up by Sirlin Stockade and by Sonic Industries, another Oklahoma City-based restaurant chain.

Jail Sentence For A Mother-Beater

NEW YORK (AP) — Vickie Greco, 55, wept in Queens Criminal Court when her son, Lenny, 31, was sentenced to 90 days in jail on charges of beating and robbing her.

Meanwhile, Palmeri Herron, 42, whose 19-year-old son, John, was arrested Sunday for beating her, told the Daily News Monday that she wanted the charges dropped. She also said she wanted police to stop searching for her 17-year-old son, Brian, who allegedly fled the family apartment when police arrived.

Greco was arrested Sunday after his mother, a widow, called police and told them he had beaten her the day before and taken $165. A police officer entering the apartment reportedly found that the woman had locked herself in the bathroom after her son beat her again. Greco was reported asleep on the floor.

Greco, who had drawn an earlier 90-day jail term in connection with such assaults, and who has also been charged in a pending complaint with choking his mother, pleaded guilty Monday to the lesser offense of petty larceny.

John Herron, was arrested Sunday and charged with assault, grand larceny and unlawful imprisonment of his mother. He was released without bail providing he stays with his father in suburban Medford.

Mrs. Herron was found in the bathroom of the apartment where she apparently had been locked since 11 a.m. Saturday, the day her sons allegedly beat her about the face and head.

The sons had been beating their mother for months because she refused them money for drugs and rock concerts, police said.

Commission Meeting Set

The Mid-East Commission will meet Wednesday night in the conference room at the commission's offices in Washington, at 7:30.

Items on the agenda include appointment of new members to the Regional Manpower Advisory Committee, a review and approval of Comprehensive Employment and Training Act program operators for the 1979 fiscal year, and approval of community planning contracts with the towns of Farmville, Fountain, Bethel, Jamesville and Hamilton.

Other items include the consideration of approval for an Historic Preservation planning grant, approval of nutrition project grant awards and the area aging plan, and the appointment of Mrs. Lee Steele of Washington to the Emergency Medical Services Committee.

The commission will also prioritize senior citizens center applications and consider a final application of the Housing Opportunity Plan.

Evangelist Is Dismayed

DENVER (AP) — Ruth Carter Stapleton, the evangelist sister of President Carter, says reading a quote attributed to her in the current Newsweek magazine which said Jesus was just a man was "the most devastating experience of my life."

She is featured in the magazine's latest issue and is quoted as saying "Jesus was just a man" ordained by God to carry mankind's burdens.

"And I believe that through the Holy Spirit, God can be in me just as he was in Jesus," the president's sister is quoted as saying.

Here for a Christian Book-sellers Association meeting, Mrs. Stapleton distributed a written statement saying she is an "orthodox Christian" who believes in Christ as "the living, bodily-resurrected Son of God who died for my sins upon the cross."

Mrs. Stapleton said the Newsweek article contained 21 errors, including claims that she keeps in almost daily contact with Hustler magazine publisher Larry Flynt.

She said she said Flynt every two weeks or so and conceded that she had asked him to shut down Hustler magazine.

Mrs. Stapleton said a Newsweek writer called her before the magazine came out and warned her the article would contain some things "that are going to make your hair stand on end."

City Garbage Is Piling Up

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Garbage piling up from a five-day strike by 19,000 municipal workers could begin to pose a health threat, a top city official warns. But the city remains adamant in its intention to lay off some employees — a main issue in the walkout.

"In some areas, such as sanitation, the strike has been very effective," City Managing Director Hille Levinson said Monday. He said administration officials were monitoring the trash situation closely because of the possibility of a health threat, but that there were no immediate plans to haul trash from 29 sites set aside for residents' garbage.

The strike that started Friday continued to cut other services as well, with most recreational facilities closed and health care units operating on a referral and emergency-only basis. Public property was not being maintained, city officials said, and street work had halted.

In two city-run nursing homes, supervisors and volunteers maintained services with few problems, Levinson said. But some patients in one of the facilities have been transferred to hospitals in the city, he said.

The issue of layoffs, along with pay raises, has stalled negotiations with two chapters of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

Levinson said the city's earlier estimate that up to 3,500 workers would be laid off to finance raises for others was still a good estimate.

Postal Service, 3 Unions Tackle Major Obstacles

By OWEN ULLMANN
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a possible mail strike three days off, the U.S. Postal Service and three unions are for the first time beginning head-to-head confrontation of major obstacles to a new contract.

There was no indication, however, that any progress was being made on such key issues as wages, job security and compulsory overtime.

A source close to the negotiations said the two sides met until late Monday night, discussing a bitter dispute over a no-layoff clause that the unions won in 1973 and insist on retaining in the new accord. The Postal Service wants to eliminate the provision.

But the Monday night session did not get to wages, on which vast disagreement remains, the source said.

While the two sides had stated their positions in initial discussions three months ago, Monday's session marked the first time management and the unions had tried to grapple with the biggest differences between them since federal mediators entered the picture a week ago.

Progress was made on several minor issues during the last week, said the source, who asked to remain anonymous.

The current three-year pact covering 554,000 workers expires at midnight Thursday, and although postal strikes are forbidden by federal law, some local union leaders have threatened walkouts if a new agreement is not reached in time.

That happened in 1970, when 220,000 workers, mainly on the East Coast, staged wildcat strikes.

While negotiators met at a Washington hotel, a group known as the Public Service Research Council, which opposes public employees' strikes, filed suit in federal court seeking to have any striking postal worker fired.

The Postal Service has repeatedly told its employees that a striking worker could be fined up to $1,000 and sentenced to a year in jail.

The sanctions were not used in 1970, however, as part of an agreement that ended the strike.

Meanwhile, the Postal Service, updating its strike contingency plans, is considering asking for federal troops to handle the mail, forbidding temporarily some types of mail or requiring people to pick up their mail in the event of a strike.

Postal management has reportedly proposed a three-year contract that included virtually no general increase in the first year except for a cost-of-living adjustment. The general increase for the second and third years was described by one source as "generous."

However, union sources have labeled the offer "ridiculous" in that it was less than the 5.5 percent annual increase President Carter is recommending for federal workers this year.

The three postal unions have asked for a $1,965 wage increase per worker over two years — roughly double what the Carter administration hopes the talks will produce — plus full cost-of-living protection.

Based on a projected annual inflation rate of 7 percent, the unions' wage demand would amount to about a 13 percent annual increase from the $15,877 the average postal worker now receives.

The administration has made the eventual settlement a key test of its anti-inflation program, which attempts to moderate the large wage gains won by unions in recent years.

Shipyard Is Prepared To Trade A Dry Dock

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (AP) — Newport News Shipbuilding says it will trade a new submarine dry dock for a satisfactory settlement of the yard's shipbuilding contract claims against the Navy.

Shipyard plans for an expanded submarine repair facility are being used as leverage in what may be the last round of negotiations with the Navy over settlement of the $742 million in outstanding claims, sources close to the talks said Monday.

The $50 million expansion program would double the yard's capacity to overhaul and refuel nuclear submarines by 1981, and the Navy has promised the yard enough work to keep the new facility busy.

Under the present construction plan, more than 1,000 additional workers would be needed in submarine repair.

Shipyard officials, however, say they planned to expand the sub repair facilities last fall only because they believed the yard's claims would be settled and relations with the Navy were improving.

In a letter to Assistant Navy Secretary Edward Hidalgo, the Navy's top claims negotiator, shipyard Chairman John P. Diesel reportedly said last month that the Navy should not plan on further investments in facilities for Navy work here without a claims settlement.

The yard has one drydock and adjacent outfitting piers devoted to submarine overhauls, and usually has three overhauls under way, completing two of the 18-month jobs every year.

More than 2,000 workers are employed in overhaul-refueling work. The overhauls cost $40 million to $50 million, and the yard regularly earns 15 percent or more on them, making the overhauls some of the most profitable jobs the yard undertakes.

A new drydock would increase the yard's sub overhaul capacity to four a year.

With more than 100 nuclear-powered submarines in the fleet, many of them nearing overhaul age, the Navy needs the additional overhaul facilities and has promised the additional work to the yard, Navy sources said. But the future of the facility now appears to hinge on the Navy's willingness to settle the shipyard's claims out of court.

In the past month, the Navy has settled more than $1.5 billion in claims with its other two major shipbuilders. But Newport News Ship and Navy negotiators remain nearly $70 million apart in their talks over a similar settlement for the yard here.

The Navy is offering about $130 million; the shipyard wants nearly $200 million.

Soil Conservation Booklet Published

A new 280-page booklet, "Potential Best Management Practices to Control Sediment," has been prepared and published by the USDA-Soil Conservation Service.

A guide to controlling conservation practices of non-point source sediment pollution, the booklet is described by Jesse L. Hicks, SCS state conservationist as having "high potential to inform people on the practices they may need to make our waters swimmable and fishable by 1983."

Among conservation problem solvers are conservation cropping, chiseling, and subsoiling, as well as contour planting, cover crops, critical area planting, debris basins and field windbreaks.

"Of course, the assistance listed in this new book has been available for years through professional employees of the Soil Conservation Service," Hicks noted.

No public distribution of the booklet will be made, since only a limited number was printed. Reference copies are available in the county offices of SCS.

Health Care 'Milestone'

SNOW HILL — Greene County Health Care, Inc., a private non-profit organization formed in 1975 to improve Greene County health care services, announced Friday that Dr. James M. Curfman, D. D. S., who has been affiliated with the organization for the past two years, will convert his dental service to a private practice as of September.

Dr. Curfman, presently a National Health Service Corps dentist, has requested to assume the total operation of the practice, with details to be worked out with the organization throughout the summer.

According to Wick Ekum, vice chairman of the organization, "This is a major accomplishment for GCHC. The NHSC was designed to help communities like ours to attract doctors and dentists like Dr. Curfman."

"This government program has hereby proven its value by now moving from a tax supported activity to a tax paying private enterprise," Ekum continued.

The Lenoir County Dental Society, Fifth District Dental Society and the Pitt Beaufort Dental Study Group all lent their support to Dr. Curfman in building his practice.

Guilford's Republicans Aiming At Black Vote

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Republican leaders in Guilford County are gearing up to go after a voter this fall that they've traditionally written off — the black voter.

The Democrats have perennially dominated the county's largely black precincts. But the local GOP is ready for a fight, to the point where it's bringing in a political firm which specializes in selling Republican candidates to black voters.

A representative of Wright, McNeil and Associates, based in Columbus, Ga., will be in Greensboro this week to talk with county party chairman Jim Burnley and Republicans whose names will appear on the local ballot in November.

The consultant, Phyllis Berry, will appear Thursday at a campaign reception for Greensboro lawyer Leon Stanback, a black Republican running for district attorney.

The firm was founded a few years ago by Bob Wright and John McNeil, two black Republicans who in 1976 were instrumental in swinging the black vote in the Columbus area to Gerald Ford.

That feat caught the attention of national GOP Chairman William Brock, who has put the firm under contract to the Republican National Committee. The committee has targeted several areas around the country where the firm's expertise could help win local elections for Republicans.

According to the committee's political director, Charles Black, Guilford is one of the localities that appears promising.

"You don't necessarily have to get a majority of the black vote to win an election," Black said. "Oftentimes, if you can manage to get as much as 20 or 25 percent, you can make the difference between winning and losing."

A case in point, Black said, was Republican Ken Harris' recent victory in the mayoral race in Charlotte. In that election, Harris captured about 40 percent of the black vote, not a majority but enough to win.

Wright, McNeil was active in Harris' campaign, and helped pave the way for a Republican victory in a recent special election in Louisiana.

Burnley said Ms. Berry probably would spend a substantial amount of time in North Carolina and might assist with Republican congressional candidate Hamilton Horton's campaign in the 5th District.

Pay Boost For Firemen

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Striking firefighters voted overwhelmingly today to accept a new contract and immediately began returning to work, ending a five-day walkout that left this city of 400,000 with reduced fire protection.

The vote at the pre-dawn meeting was 358-30 in favor of approval. Herb Segal, lawyer for the union, had called the meeting after a tentative agreement was reached early today.

Union president Larry Atwell said all firefighters could be back to work as early as three or four hours after ratification of a contract.

"We feel this is a fair agreement," Segal said. "We think the city has at last negotiated in good faith and we are pleased and hopeful that the membership will agree that we got exactly what we wanted."

Segal said the agreement calls for firemen with five years experience, who previously made $11,085, to receive a $1,600 raise in annual wages — about a 14 percent hike. Originally the firemen had been offered a 5.5 percent raise.

Segal said the city also agreed to drop contempt procedures against the union for failure to honor a back-to-work order and that firemen won't be penalized for taking part in the strike.

The strike closed all but seven of the city's 23 fire stations. Twenty-eight Fire Department supervisors and about 200 National Guard troops had staffed eight houses, but one had to be closed Monday when some supervisory personnel were ordered off the job by doctors.

Billy Graham Ministry Dipping Into Reserves

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — In a policy change for the Billy Graham ministry, the organization has issued its first detailed yearly financial report, which shows the ministry took in $39.3 million in 1977 and spent or contributed $50 million, the Washington Bureau of the Charlotte Observer reported Monday.

The Billy Graham Evangelistic Association, the main arm of Graham's ministry, put out a typewritten statement in 1976 covering only the association's finances. There was pressure from newspapers, public interest groups and the government for the association's finances to be made public.

The report on 1977's finances includes the association and other branches of Graham's ministry — a movie producing company, a book publishing company and a charitable foundation.

Graham expressed concern last year that disclosing his group's large income might discourage contributions, especially the $8 and $10 gifts that are the bulk of the donations.

Since the report does not itemize contributions, it does not show whether there were fewer small contributions after the disclosure of the World Evangelism and Christian Education Fund's existence in 1977. The fund is Graham's charitable contribution.

The Graham ministries spent about $10 million more than it took in last year by dipping into a reserve consisting mainly of securities and real estate, the report shows.

The largest single contribution, $7.7 million, went from the World Evangelism fund to Graham's alma mater, Wheaton College in Illinois, according to the report. Wheaton is building a $15 million Billy Graham Center with archives, a library and laymen's Bible training programs.

The 1977 contribution to Wheaton reduced World Evangelism's holdings for $15.6 million at the end of the year, compared to a year-end balance of $23 million in 1976, the report said.

A total of $11.2 million was spent for radio, television and films, compared to $8.7 million last year, the report said, while $3.2 million was spent to publish Decision Magazine, up from $2.6 million in 1976.

Another Cape Fear River Spill Disclosed Under Investigation

SANFORD, N.C. (AP) — Four months after state officials investigated an eight-mile formaldehyde spill in the Cape Fear River, another spill — reportedly 28 miles long — is under investigation.

And state officials said Monday they have yet to determine the source of the spill which caused the temporary shutdown of five water plants.

The spill was detected late Sunday by officials at the Sanford water plant, and forced temporary shutoffs in water plants in Lillington, Dunn, Erwin and Benson as well as Sanford.

Fayetteville water officials Monday monitored the spill but as of Monday night, no trace of the chemical had reached that city. Officials said they expected it to eventually reach there, but that it may be too diluted to detect.

Sanford City Manager O.B. Stokes said he would ask for an inquiry by Gov. Jim Hunt or State Attorney General Rufus Edmisten unless this latest spill is fully investigated and polluters named.

Yielded To Inmate Pleas

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — "I would do it again if I thought I wouldn't get arrested," said Violet Guilli as she sat in a jail cell waiting for someone to pay her $25 fine after yielding to the pleas of inmates and going topless as she walked by the Norfolk City Jail Saturday.

She pleaded guilty Monday to indecent exposure, but Judge William Shapero found her guilty of disorderly conduct instead. He also sentenced her to spend 19 days in jail but suspended the jail term on the condition she behave herself.

"I was walking past the jail, taking some cigarettes to my old man, when the guys started yelling to me to undress," the go-go dancer said.

Miss Guilli, 5-6 and 129 pounds, and measuring 34-24-34, said she lifted her skin-tight black T-shirt. "I thought it was funny. I thought no one could really see me," the Philadelphia native said. "Then they said it looked real good. I just laughed. I thought my old man was up there, too, and maybe he was calling."

She said her boyfriend is serving a 90-day term on a disorderly conduct conviction.

Arrest Trio In Incidents

Greenville Police early today arrested three men on charges of attempted breaking and entering and damage to personal property charges following investigation of two incidents on Mill Street, according to Chief Glenn Cannon.

Cannon said Steven Kyle Price, 22 of Shady Knoll Trailer Park, Eddie Alphin, 21 of 1001 North Pitt St., and Stephen Paul Cox, 23 of 200 Dudley St., were charged with attempted breaking and entering following an incident at 1508 Mill St.

The chief noted that the three were charged with damage to personal property after they allegedly broke a window in a dwelling at 707A Mill St.

In addition, Cannon noted that Price and Cox were charged with an assault on a female at the 707A Mill St. home.

The incidents, the chief noted, occurred about 12:30 a.m.

No Prosecution

LONDON (AP) — Journalist Derek Humphry, who admitted helping his cancer-stricken wife to kill herself three years ago, will not be prosecuted, a Director of Public Prosecutions spokesman said today.

He had faced a possible maximum prison sentence of 14 years for assisting in his wife's suicide, but the spokesman said there was insufficient evidence to justify prosecution.

Humphry, 47, said in a television program last March that he gave his terminally ill wife, Jean, a lethal dose of drugs in a mug of coffee.

On the program, he said his wife of 20 years chose the moment to die by saying "It's time you went and got me something to drink."

After the program, he was interviewed by police, and later said if he were charged he would plead guilty and ask for the mercy of the court.

GARAGE SALE

HOW TO DO A LITTLE BUSINESS ON YOUR OWN...

Holding a garage sale is a fun way to do a little business on your own... but it takes a bit of planning.

Like you'll want to decide what to sell and how much to charge for each item... and then you'll need price tags so other people will know what you're charging.

And you'll have to be able to make change for all your customers... so that means you should have lots of one dollar bills and an assortment of coins.

Then you'll want to advertise your sale to attract that crowd. You can do it with a sign or signs in your neighborhood... but you'll want a bigger crowd than that... so you'll run an ad in Classified which tells the time and place of your sale to a host of potential buyers.

One more thing... get up early the day of your sale! When people read about a Garage Sale in Classified, they shop early.

Have fun with your little business adventure!

Growth Plan...

completely new."
Zincone also criticized the report's intent to encourage further growth in the Piedmont crescent, to become "even more important in the economy of our state."
"This means that you are proposing not a policy of encouraging proportional growth or a policy of encouraging relatively high growth in smaller towns, but you are encouraging relatively high growth in the dense, urban areas," he added.
"The plan's basic definition of balance is 'inconsistent' and 'impossible,'" he noted.
"You define balance as redressing imbalances... encouraging growth in relatively underdeveloped areas while maintaining the present geographical balance between where the people are and where the jobs are."
"But encouraging development in less developed areas will increase jobs in those areas and must upset the jobs, population ratio. You cannot have it both ways."
Regarding the board's report on preservation of the environment, Zincone said "we should decide how much environmental degradation we are willing to sacrifice for enhanced growth and then stick to it. Let there be no doubt; what attracts industry to North Carolina is, in part, our natural resources and environment."
"As more individuals enter the state, these resources will be degraded. We cannot avoid deciding when to call a halt to development in deference to the environment."

The economist said the critical time has not yet arrived but the plan "equivocates" and simply "states that the environment will be used wisely... which leaves the door open for any and all interpretations of the policy and makes it impossible for the voters to judge whether the policy is being carried out."

Two Persons Arrested In Rural Store Robbery

ROUNDTREE - Two persons were arrested in Greenville yesterday afternoon and charged with an armed robbery that was reported at a rural store here a short time earlier.

Pitt Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that Dean Keith Joyner, 18, of Rt. 1, Box 306, Farmville, were taken into custody around 1:30 p.m. after a Greenville police officer spotted a car matching the description provided by the robbery victims.

Sheriff Tyson reported that the two men, who were jailed under $25,000 bond each, were charged with armed robbery at Phoebe Carmon's Store here on Rt. 1, Ayden.
The sheriff said that Mrs. Carmon was in the store with her son, Willis, when the robbery took place. He noted that the victims reported two men entered the store and one of them went back to their car and returned with a rifle.
Sheriff Tyson said that Willis Carmon was instructed to place the money from the cash register in a paper bag. Approximately $400 was reported taken, he added.

He said that the men allegedly started out of the store, taking Willis Carmon, but then brought him back inside and took him to a supply room where he was told to remain.

Chess Masters Play To A Draw
By EDITH M. LEDERER
Associated Press Writer
BAGUIO CITY, Philippines (AP) - Challenger Viktor Korchnoi and world chess champion Anatoly Karpov played to a draw today in the opening game of Korchnoi's grudge match for the title.
Karpov offered Korchnoi a draw after 18 moves, and the game, which experts described as "unexceptional," ended after two hours of play.

Korchnoi, the 47-year-old defector from the Soviet Union, made a traditional English opening, one of his favorites. The 27-year-old Soviet champion transposed it into a queen's gambit which Korchnoi declined.

Some 'Senility' Said Mislabeled
WASHINGTON (AP) - Ten percent to 20 percent of the elderly senile are suffering from conditions that could be treated if doctors only recognized them, a group of experts on aging say. That estimate was included in a draft report for the National Institute of Health.
Dr. Richard Besdine of Harvard Medical School, author of the report, said 300,000 to 600,000 of the estimated 3 million Americans who show symptoms of brain failure are mistakenly labeled "senile" and often go untreated in nursing homes and mental hospitals. One of the largest single causes of false senility, aging experts said, was drug intoxication, particularly with tranquilizers.

Two Persons Arrested In Rural Store Robbery

ROUNDTREE - Two persons were arrested in Greenville yesterday afternoon and charged with an armed robbery that was reported at a rural store here a short time earlier.

Pitt Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that Dean Keith Joyner, 18, of Rt. 1, Box 306, Farmville, were taken into custody around 1:30 p.m. after a Greenville police officer spotted a car matching the description provided by the robbery victims.

Sheriff Tyson reported that the two men, who were jailed under $25,000 bond each, were charged with armed robbery at Phoebe Carmon's Store here on Rt. 1, Ayden.
The sheriff said that Mrs. Carmon was in the store with her son, Willis, when the robbery took place. He noted that the victims reported two men entered the store and one of them went back to their car and returned with a rifle.
Sheriff Tyson said that Willis Carmon was instructed to place the money from the cash register in a paper bag. Approximately $400 was reported taken, he added.

He said that the men allegedly started out of the store, taking Willis Carmon, but then brought him back inside and took him to a supply room where he was told to remain.
Sheriff Tyson, who noted that the incident was reported to his department at 12:59 p.m., said that a Greenville officer saw a vehicle matching the description on

Chess Masters Play To A Draw

BAGUIO CITY, Philippines (AP) - Challenger Viktor Korchnoi and world chess champion Anatoly Karpov played to a draw today in the opening game of Korchnoi's grudge match for the title.
Karpov offered Korchnoi a draw after 18 moves, and the game, which experts described as "unexceptional," ended after two hours of play.

Korchnoi, the 47-year-old defector from the Soviet Union, made a traditional English opening, one of his favorites. The 27-year-old Soviet champion transposed it into a queen's gambit which Korchnoi declined.

Some 'Senility' Said Mislabeled
WASHINGTON (AP) - Ten percent to 20 percent of the elderly senile are suffering from conditions that could be treated if doctors only recognized them, a group of experts on aging say. That estimate was included in a draft report for the National Institute of Health.
Dr. Richard Besdine of Harvard Medical School, author of the report, said 300,000 to 600,000 of the estimated 3 million Americans who show symptoms of brain failure are mistakenly labeled "senile" and often go untreated in nursing homes and mental hospitals. One of the largest single causes of false senility, aging experts said, was drug intoxication, particularly with tranquilizers.

Stolen Propane Tanker Found

The propane gas tanker that was reported stolen Sunday from a Bethel firm was found Monday night in Fayetteville, according to Pitt Sheriff Ralph Tyson.

Sheriff Tyson said that the gas truck, owned by Carson Gas Co., was spotted at the Barbecue Lodge on Highway 301 North around 8 p.m.

The sheriff said that Fayetteville authorities reported that the truck had two flat tires when found and the engine was still running and doors locked.
He added that the truck had been straight-wired to start the engine but a spare key had apparently been discovered by the thief or thieves. Local authorities had feared that the vehicle had been straight-wired when the theft took place, noting the danger of an explosion as the vehicle was being operated.

Other than the flat tires, the truck has not been damaged, it was noted.
The truck was expected to be brought back to Pitt County later today, the sheriff said.

Aviation Pact With Israel
WASHINGTON (AP) - A new civil aviation agreement between the United States and Israel is designed to expand air travel between the two countries and to lower the cost. Officials announced that the agreement would permit Israel to choose two new landing points in the United States immediately and two more cities in one year. Currently, El Al Israel Airlines can land only in New York City.

Many Attempt To Hide Hurts
CHICAGO (AP) - Many wives whose husbands beat them try to hide that fact from doctors by waiting days before seeking medical help and by inventing a false cause for their injuries, according to a report in the Journal of the American Medical Association.
Beaten women often come to hospital emergency rooms a day or two after they are hurt, said the report in the July 21 Journal. It said that physicians eventually may be responsible, as they are in child abuse cases in some states, to recognize wife abuse cases and act as a witness or refer the victim to social agencies.

Old Times With Yanks

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

It's just like old times with the New York Yankees — feuding, fussing and fighting.

And guess who's in the eye of the storm once more. Why, it's none other than Billy Martin and Reggie Jackson.

Martin, the stormy Yankee manager, virtually was breathing fire at Jackson after the outfielder with the brittle ego dismissed a hitting sign during Monday night's 9-7, 11-inning loss to the Kansas City Royals.

"The bunt was on, on the first pitch," Martin said. "It was then taken off via verbal instructions by the third base coach. The manager's orders were just disregarded. He bunted in defiance of a verbal order to hit."

Jackson was then instructed by a coach that his services were no longer needed in the game and that he was suspended indefinitely without pay.

The other American League games Monday night were far less heated. The Texas Rangers whipped the Baltimore Orioles 2-0 in 11 innings; the Boston Red Sox stopped the Minnesota Twins 3-2 in 10 innings; the Cleveland Indians turned back the Seattle Mariners 5-2; the Detroit Tigers edged the California Angels 4-3 in 10 innings; the Oakland A's trimmed the Toronto Blue Jays 5-3 and the Milwaukee Brewers beat the Chicago White Sox 6-1.

Rangers 2, Orioles 0

A sacrifice fly by Bobby Bonds snapped a scoreless tie in the 11th inning and Juan Beniquez followed with a home run, leading Texas over Baltimore.

Red Sox 3, Twins 2

Carlton Fisk delivered a two-out, 10th-inning single to lead Boston past Minnesota. Trailing 2-1 into the bottom of the 10th, the Red Sox came back to tie it on Jim Rice's two-out single off reliever Mike Marshall, 4-7.

Indians 5, Mariners 2

Andre Thornton drove in three runs with a two-run homer in the eighth, his 19th of the year, and a bases-loaded walk in the third to lead Cleveland over Seattle.

Tigers 4, Angels 3

John Wockenuss singled home Rusty Staub from third base with a two-out single in the 10th inning, pacing Detroit over California, dropping the Angels percentage points behind Kansas City for the AL West lead.

A's 5, Blue Jays 3

Rookie left-hander John Johnson pitched a five-hitter as Oakland beat Toronto. Johnson, 7-5, withstood a Toronto rally in the sixth when he gave up a two-run triple to Dave McKay.

The A's scored all their runs off loser Jerry Garvin, 2-10.

Brewers 6, White Sox 1

Dick Davis singled home the go-ahead run in a two-run Milwaukee sixth inning and Ben Oglivie's sacrifice fly capped a four-run seventh, leading the Brewers past Chicago.

Gopher Ball Returns

New York Yankees pitcher Jim "Catfish" Hunter covers his eyes with his cap as Darrell Porter of Kansas City rounds the bases with a home run. It was Hunter's first time on the mound since June 21. He gave up two earned runs in 4½ innings, but lost the game 9-7. (AP Laserphoto)

Billy Martin
... Embattled Manager

Jackson Suspended

NEW YORK (AP) — Reggie Jackson says he is being placed in the position of "greedy moneymaker against the poor little street fighter" after his indefinite suspension without pay for bunting when he was ordered to swing away by Manager Billy Martin.

"He doesn't want me around here, he should be happy now," said a calm Jackson when notified of Martin's decision to suspend him. "Billy hasn't spoken to me for a year and a half so why should he talk to me now? Why should he tell me? Why should I talk to him?"

Jackson was batting after Thurman Munson singled with none out in the 10th inning of a 5-5 game that Kansas City eventually won 9-7 in 11 innings. Third base coach Dick Howser relayed the bunt sign from Martin to Jackson on the first pitch from Kansas City's Al Hrabosky.

"The bunt was on, on the first pitch," Martin explained in his terse, hand-written note that he read to newsmen after a 30-minute private discussion with Yankees General Manager Cedric Tallis. "It was then taken off via verbal instructions by the third base coach. The manager's orders were just disregarded. He bunted in defiance of a verbal order to hit."

In attempting to bunt, Jackson eventually popped to the catcher on a two-strike count. He was then told by "one of Billy's coaches," Gene Michael, that his services were no longer needed during the game.

"Reggie Jackson is suspended without pay effective this moment for deliberately disregarding the manager's instructions," read Martin's statement.

Jackson, 32, spoke of the play in the Yankees' locker room following the game but before Martin's announcement of the suspension.

Red Sox Are Showing No Signs Of Letting Up In Pennant Race

AP Sports Analysis

BOSTON (AP) — And the winner is ... Jack Brohammer?

No, the Red Sox utility infielder won't be voted the American League's most valuable player. But he's one of the few current Boston regulars who won't get some serious consideration.

The Red Sox show no signs of letting up in the AL East where they are making a mockery of the division race. Barring a total collapse, Boston will be in the playoffs and quite possibly the World Series.

It may be hard for the baseball establishment to dip down in the standings and select an AL MVP from another club. The question is: who on the Red Sox is most valuable?

Brohammer. No. He's been filling in for injured third baseman Butch Hobson.

But what about slugger Jim Rice? The AL's second-leading hitter Fred Lynn? Catcher Carlton Fisk? And future hall of famer Carl Yastrzemski?

Réd Carew of the Minnesota Twins was the 1977 winner and Carew is on his way to a seventh AL batting title. The slim Panamanian is steadily streaming toward 3,000 career hits, but he's likely to be overlooked this time.

Last season, Carew narrowly missed hitting .400 and was in the national spotlight. This season, he's sharing center stage with Twins owner Cal Griffith, with whom Carew is waging a contract war.

Carew also benefitted last season from the messy situation in the World Series champion New York Yankee's clubhouse, which reverberated with divorce court bickering rather than the clichés of a winning club.

The Yankees have all-stars, but MVPs are supposed to talk about love of the game rather than the all-mighty dollar or the personality of the manager.

would be close to rock-bottom without him. But Guidry's allure, which counts for something, has been suffocated by the Yankees' back-biting.

And then there's the AL West. The division title may be won by a team that finishes around .500, with heroes who have yet to bubble to the surface.

So, at mid-season, the spotlight is on Boston. The Red Sox not only have nationally recognized stars aplenty, they have a quiet clubhouse to boot.

On the one hand, Rice will be the league's top slugger. But he is often in the line-up as a designated hitter rather than outfielder, and that's a likely strike against him. Lynn was the 1975 MVP as a rookie center fielder and is having a season that, statistically, may surpass his first.

But "Steady Freddy" has been perhaps too consistent — too controversy-free, too quiet — to win sufficient recognition.

Fisk has been an iron man behind the plate and says he's never handled pitchers better. But Fisk, who hit .315 last season, may not reach that plateau again.

There were 208 home runs hit at the Atlanta ball park in 1977, the most in the National League.

Quick Action By Doc Medich Results In Save

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baseball pitchers strive to record saves, but only when George "Doc" Medich is involved are lives at stake.

The Texas hurler, a first-year resident at Allegheny General Hospital in Pittsburgh, saved the life of an apparent heart attack victim in the stands of Memorial Stadium Monday night about an hour before the Rangers were to play the Baltimore Orioles.

Germain Languth, 61, of Pasadena, Md., had no detectable heartbeat or pulse by the time Medich responded to a public address announcement for a doctor and rushed from right field to a box behind third base.

But after Medich directed the emergency treatment, Languth was admitted to nearby Union Memorial Hospital with stable vital signs. Although he was listed in serious condition in the coronary care unit, Languth was described as "alert, and well aware of what's happening around him."

Medich, who said he has been involved in 25 such cases since starting his medical training, gave mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and external heart massage, and then attached tubes and lines for the administering of medication and electrical shock.

The 29-year-old Medich conducted a rare interview in the Texas clubhouse during the game to describe his part in the drama, and again was besieged by newsmen as he ate a postgame snack.

In response to a question, Medich conceded his actions probably saved Languth's life but added modestly: "I was trained, and I was in the right spot at the right time."

"Yes, I guess I saved him," Medich added. "Anytime somebody's lying there without a heartbeat and pulse ... without aid, there's a good chance he would have died."

Medich, involved in a similar incident in the stands of Philadelphia's Veterans Stadium in 1976, when the victim died after receiving emergency aid, said fellow pitcher Dock Ellis had mentioned while they were running in the outfield that someone had suffered a heart attack in the stands.

"I didn't do anything at the time," Medich said, "but when I heard the announcement for help, it was obvious that they hadn't gotten a doctor yet."

A paramedic team, the stadium nurse and city police were eventually involved in the rescue, and life-saving procedures were already underway when Medich arrived.

"But things were kind of disorganized when I got there," Medich said, "and I kind of took over. I started giving orders, and people started following them."

Doc Medich

"There was no spontaneous movement and no palpable pulse," Medich said. "He was not getting enough oxygen." "You can't afford to make mistakes, you can't afford delays," Medich said of the treatment. "You have little control of the situation because you're not sure of the extent of the attack. You just hope you're lucky."

Andrews Slams Winning Home Run

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer
Rob Andrews hesitated for a moment when the ball soared off his bat. In 1,227 previous trips to the plate, the utility San Francisco infielder had never been in such a situation.

Up it went, a rising drive which headed for the left field seats at BUSCH Memorial Stadium in St. Louis.
Still, there was hesitation. Andrews watched his ninth-inning drive and thought it might drop at the base of the wall for a double.

"I didn't. The game was tied 7-7 when Cardinals reliever Buddy Schultz launched a slider towards catcher Ted Simmons, but when the ball came to rest, the Giants had an 8-7 lead and Andrews had the first home run of his career.

"I was stunned. I thought, 'What's going on here?' Then I saw the umpire motioning me around. When you haven't hit a home run in 1,200 and some at-bats, you don't get much chance to practice trotting around the bases.

"I kept telling the guys that they hit the home runs when they didn't count. I said I was going to save mine for a time when it won't game," said Andrews.

Smith's eighth-inning homer, his 15th of the year, snapped a tie and pinned the defeat on Paul Reuschel.

Allen Fined For Redskin Remarks

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Coach George Allen of the Los Angeles Rams has been fined $3,000 by National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle for "acrimonious and destructive statements" concerning the Washington Redskins, the Los Angeles Times said in Tuesday's editions.
Allen spent seven years as Washington's coach and general manager before becoming the Rams' coach for a second time this year. He also was cautioned by Rozelle, the Times said it learned, for public statements that "verge on tampering" with Redskins' quarterback Billy Kilmer.

Allen denied he had tampered with Kilmer, who is in a contract standoff with Redskins' President Edward Bennett Williams.
"Of course we would want Kilmer," Allen said when asked about the caution from Rozelle. "But there is no way we can get him and there has been no tampering."
The fine was for "continuation of direct and personal attacks" on members of the Redskins' management, the Times said. Allen was quoted in one published story after leaving the Redskins that Williams was "petty, mean and vindictive."

Sutton Won't Be Suspended

CHICAGO (AP) — Don Sutton is not the kind of man who has to be told when to speak. But that is precisely the pitcher's predicament, despite a ruling that he will not be suspended for throwing a defaced ball.
National League President Chub Feeney announced the decision Monday. The Los Angeles Dodgers' veteran righthander was ejected from a game in St. Louis Friday night for pitching a defaced ball and had waited quietly through the weekend to find out if he would be suspended.
He had said he plans to sue umpire Doug Harvey, who tossed him out of the Cardinals' game, and the National League for trying to deprive him of his right to make a living.
On Monday, during the Dodgers' 4-3 victory over the Cubs, Sutton received a telephone call in the Los Angeles clubhouse from his attorney, E. Gregory Hookstratten, who told him of the decision.
"His advice was to tell me, 'As difficult as I know it is for you, keep your mouth shut,'" said Sutton as he tried goodnaturedly to fend off reporters after the game. The hurler did not say if he still planned to file a civil suit.
He said Hookstratten told him: "I met with Mr. Feeney. You're not suspended. Keep your mouth shut and I'll talk to you later."
The decision, Sutton said, "doesn't surprise me at all."
While Sutton, who has been accused many times in his 13-year career of doctoring baseballs, shed little light on his plans, Dodger Manager Tom Lasorda's tongue was not tied by legal considerations.
"I'm very enthused," Lasorda said. "It makes me feel good to know they're not penalizing Sutton. We just cannot lose a pitcher caliber of Don Sutton."

Dodds Accepts Kansas St. Post

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — As one embarrassment followed another at Kansas State last autumn, a friend became worried for DeLoss Dodds.
"All this is just killing DeLoss," he confided. "He doesn't say much, but Kansas State is still his school. He loves the place. He feels terrible because there's nothing he can do to help."
While Dodds stayed in Kansas City and tended to his duties as assistant Big Eight Commissioner, Kansas State's situation turned frightfully worse.
In May, amid still another scandal, representatives of the other seven Big Eight schools handed Dodds' alma mater the stiffest football probation ever levied in the conference's history. The school with the poorest win-loss record in major college football the past 40 years was saddled with the toughest penalty.
Already a pauper in terms of money and good athletes, Kansas State was stripped of 20 football scholarships and fined the equivalent of almost $400,000 over a three-year period.
In the minds of some, the question was no longer could Kansas State ever win — rather, could the program continue at the major college level?
On Dodds' desk was an offer to become executive director of a new track and field federation, a position with a good salary and excellent security. After more than two years in the Big Eight office, he was regarded as one of the most promising young men in athletics. Other offers of better jobs would surely follow.
But last week DeLoss Dodds became athletic director at Kansas State. In his hands, and in the hands of head football coach Jim Dickey, is the destiny of Kansas State in major college athletics. It is a monumental challenge. It is a long-shot. Dodds will not work at his job. He'll have to live it.

Martin-Jackson...

"I wanted to get him the best way I could," said Jackson of Munson. "If I get it down, I'm a hero. If not, I'm a bum."
"I've got a man, Lou Piniella, hitting 320 behind me and we've got a good chance to score and win if I move the man up."
After learning of the suspension, Jackson mentioned that he'd told Munson he would bump if Munson got on base.
"When I was on deck, I told Thurm, 'If you get on I'll punt you over.' He said, 'Don't get carried away.'"
Jackson then turned his focus to his recurrent problems with Martin ever since the All-Star outfielder signed a $3 million contract with the club as a free agent after the 1976 season.
"I can't win no matter what I do," said Jackson, who is batting .266, with 14 homers and 51 RBI this season and last year was the hero of the Yankees' World Series triumph over the Dodgers with three home runs in the sixth and deciding game.
"I come off as a big, greedy moneymaker. I'm not going to file a suit or a grievance."
"I've been saying 'Yes, sir' ever since I came here. I'm not going to fight this," he added in a tone that made it seem he expected Martin's decision. "I've never had the summer off. I'm tired and I'm down. Maybe I'll take the 9 a.m. flight to California."

Yet Another TV Talk Show For Los Angeles

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — This hamlet, famed for its stars, faith healers and truss adjusters, doesn't lack talk shows. Merv Griffin's show lives here, ditto Dinah Shore's, ditto NBC's "Tonight" and "Tomorrow."
And come September, yet another one will permanently settle in El Pueblo de Nuestra Señora la Reina de Los Angeles, or LA, as the locals call it.
Said program is "The Mike Douglas Show," now syndicated to 120 stations. It began 16½ years ago in Cleveland, then moved to Philadelphia in 1965. Why is it alighting here now?
Simple, Douglas said by phone from Chicago, where he was visiting a, ah, talk show, Phil Donahue's. He said Los Angeles now is where the entertainment action is, where most show-biz talkers hang out.

His move, he said, began 1½ years ago when he was negotiating a new contract with the Westinghouse broadcast group that produces his program. He told them he wanted to shift the show here.
"They said, 'Emphatically, no,'" he recalled. "We fought for about four weeks, back and forth. I wouldn't sign, they wouldn't change their opinion. I finally said, 'Hell with it,' and signed."

"All of a sudden, out of the clear blue, they do a complete about-face and say, 'We want to move the show to Los Angeles, how do you feel about it?'"
He felt quite good about it. So in August, he'll move his staff here, including his show's seven-man band, and start taping Sept. 11 at CBS' Television City in midtown Los Angeles.

Ironically, Douglas says he once thought of shifting the show to New York, if only because all the other talk shows were here. But he found most of Fun City's show-biz troops were here, too.

"I'm seeing dyed-in-the-wool New Yorkers living in Los Angeles now, and that really makes you sit up and take notice," he mused. "You say,

"Wait a minute, if he or she moved out here, you know the business is here."

He laughed when advised it's easy to detect the mass exodus of New Yorkers: all the apartment doors here have four locks now.

With most of the talk shows here, it's theoretically possible in one day for a gab guest to start a sentence with Merv Griffin, get to the verb with Dinah Shore, leave an adjective with Johnny Carson and drop off the preposition after midnight with Tom Snyder.
Doesn't this raise the prospect the guest will have naught but a dangling participle left by the time he gets to Douglas?

"Not really," said the genial Irishman. "I'm not saying this to pat myself on the back, but there are certain people who'll come on my show and won't go on the others. And vice versa, I'm sure."

"I'm not worried about that at all. I'll love the competition. I've been living with it the past 16½ years, so I'm used to it."

"I think it's going to be exciting here. I know it'll perk us up, make us work harder than ever."

'Project U.F.O.' Sticks Pretty Close To Facts

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jack Webb thinks it's possible somebody out there is watching us, but for "Project U.F.O." it's "just the facts, ma'am."

"With millions and millions of planets in space, I cannot believe we're alone," said Webb, once the star of "Dragnet" and now executive producer of the NBC series. "And with the rate we're polluting our planet, we better not be."

"I think there are other lives out there, both advanced and primitive civilizations. We've got to look outward. Just as we had a westward expansion, we've got to have a space expansion."

Webb, however, sticks close to the documents from the Air Force's Project Blue Book in the popular new series "Project U.F.O."

That's not to say, however, that the series isn't hyped with special effects of spaceships and extraterrestrial beings. It is. In fact, a casual viewer might get the idea that the spaceships are for real rather than a re-creation of someone's reported sighting.

"We're not saying they're from outer space," Webb said. "We can't say that and the U.S. government can't say that until one lands. But I think people are more willing to accept the fact that it could be machines from another planet.

"Project U.F.O." premiered earlier this year, riding a crest of interest in space and UFOs spurred by such movies as "Star Wars" and "Close Encounters of the Third Kind."

Webb acquired a microfilm of Operation Blue Book's voluminous documents, dating back to 1947, after it became public under the Freedom of Information Act.

In the past 30 years, an estimated 15 million Americans say they have seen unidentified flying objects, once called "flying saucers." Their ranks include astronauts, pilots, policemen and even President Carter, when he was governor of Georgia.

"The Air Force got into it because there were so many reports it felt there could be a threat to national security," said Webb.

About 12 percent of the sightings were never explained. Air Force investigators found the rest to be anything from weather balloons to weather phenomena to outright hoaxes. It's on that 12 percent that "Project U.F.O." is focused.

William Jordan played the Air Force investigator in the first season, but in the fall when the series switches from Sundays to Thursdays, he will be replaced by Edward Winter. Caskey Swain remains in his role as his assistant.

Webb, who starred as the laconic Sgt. Joe Friday ("Just the facts, ma'am") in "Dragnet," said he did not want the role himself. "The thought never crossed my mind," he said. "I'm too old and I don't care that much about performing. I enjoy being a producer."

The bidding:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
3 NT Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: Four of ♣.

All declarer had to do to make his contract was to count up to nine tricks. If you think that is so easy, cover the East-West hands with your thumbs and see how you would play three no trump after a heart lead.

South was too strong to open one no trump. When North could do no more than raise to two clubs, South gave up all thoughts of slam and settled for the obvious game.

West lead his fourth-best heart and declarer correctly won the trick—if he held up, the defenders might have shifted to diamonds, posing an even greater threat to the contract. If the club finesse succeeded, there would be nine tricks, so declarer ran the queen of clubs to East's king.

Back came a heart and declarer ducked. West won and continued with a heart to force out the ace. When declarer led a spade, West grabbed the ace and cashed his hearts for a one-trick set.

West is the danger hand because he surely has the long hearts, and he is the one whose entries have to be attacked. Since the contract will always be made if the club finesse wins, declarer should see what he can do to prevent West from gaining the lead if the club finesse fails.

Assuming that the club finesse will lose, declarer has only eight tricks. His ninth will have to come from the spade suit, so declarer should lead a spade at trick two. West can win and lead another heart, but declarer takes the ace and tries the club finesse. Even though it loses, the contract is safe. If East has another heart, the suit is breaking 4-3 and the defenders do not have enough heart tricks to beat the contract. And if West started with five hearts, East has no way of getting to West so that the defenders can cash their long hearts.

Notice that, if we assume that West has long hearts, no lie of the cards will defeat the contract providing that declarer leads a spade at trick two. In fact, as the cards lie, declarer may emerge with an overtrick for his expertise.

Stamps In The News

AP Newsfeatures
By SYD KRONISH

George M. Cohan was a Yankee Doodle Dandy, born on the 4th of July. But the U.S. Postal Service has changed the date of issuance for a new 15-cent stamp commemorating the 100th birthday of the great showman to July 3. First day ceremonies are listed for Brown University at Providence, R.I., Cohan's place of birth.

George attained fame as an actor, song writer, playwright and producer — but through it all he was intensely patriotic. From 1901 to 1940 he produced 80 Broadway shows, many of

"You're A Grand Old Flag," and "Yankee Doodle Dandy." The design of the new stamp features two images of Cohan. One is a portrait and the other is a dancing figure wearing the familiar straw hat and carrying a cane. The two images are shown against a square backdrop of stars. The caption "George M. Cohan" appears at the top of the stamp and below that is "Yankee Doodle Dandy." Across the bottom on one line is "Performing Arts USA 15c."

A revised and enlarged edition of the Minkus "Scandinavia and Baltic Countries Stamp Album" was recently released by Minkus Publications. The album is designed to accommodate the stamps issued by Denmark, Danish West Indies, Greenland, Finland and its early occupation areas, Iceland, Norway, Sweden, Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania and Memel. The Faroe Islands has been added as a new stamp-issuing entity. The 336-page album has large pages printed on one side only. The pages are profusely illustrated and provision is made for stamps from the first issues through 1977. The retail price for the new two-post album is $39.50. It is available at your local stamp dealer or stamp department.

"CAPEX 78" Souvenir Sheets can be ordered via a special reservation system at the 248 philatelic centers in the U.S. The sheets go on sale Aug. 28. The reservation system will permit collectors to obtain quantities of souvenir sheets in a convenient manner, the Postal Service says. Through July 28, you may reserve the sheets by visiting one of the philatelic centers and filling out a reservation form. The sheets go on sale Aug. 28, and you may pick up your reserved sheets at any time between that date and Oct. 13. Reservations will not be honored after Oct. 13. If you do not know the locations of the philatelic centers in your area, you may get a complete list free by writing to

Traveling Salesmen Feel Victimized By Measures

By MALCOLM N. CARTER
Associated Press Writer

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP) — With the sparkle in his eyes long spent, the salesman's eyelids hang somehow heavier at the end of the day.

Orders will go unmet once more, put off until tomorrow. Sales reports will go unwritten once more. And once more, Hy Kaplan will go alone to yet another joyless motel room.

He is 53 years old and a traveling salesman since 1952, one of hundreds holding a march in Washington Tuesday to protest bills before Congress that they say would unwittingly discriminate against them.

The proposals would raise taxes on fuel-inefficient cars and remove some deductions for business meals derided as "three-martini lunches."

"Why can't they protect us for a change?" the gray-haired salesman asks. "I feel the things they're coming up with are basically hurting the middle-income man."

His "fuel-inefficient" 1977 Chrysler, Kaplan says, is the container for his bread and butter — the sample dresses, 175 of them this day, that he hauls from one backwater town to the next.

"I bought this car for the trunk," he relates. "That's the way I buy a car — with a tape measure."

And lunches laced with martinis? More often than not, it's a cup of black coffee sweetened with a sugar substitute and, Kaplan mutters, a fast-food hamburger bereft of fattening bun.

This day begins at 8:30 in a motel outside Pittsburgh. The $21 room is but one expense. He pays for meals, telephone calls, gasoline, his car, the sample dresses, health insurance and Social Security. Last year, he says, he made nearly $40,000 in commissions on more than $1 million worth of Young Edwardian dresses. He netted about $18,000.

His first telephone calls this morning produce little more than the disappointments that riddle a salesman's day. Today the snag is one canceled appointment after another — appointments made before leaving home in Lido Beach, N.Y., three days earlier.

"When you drive 500 miles to make appointments and they're not there, it's kind of frustrating," Kaplan says. "And it happens a lot. They know that the salesman is always going to come back to them. They know."

John Harrigan, who owns 11 stores, is not in any, and not at home. Kaplan tries anyway, drives into downtown Pittsburgh and, crisp in a blue blazer, strolls into the store. Praising the racks, he tells the manager he's out of a voile model that has sold well. Then he asks her to call and see if Harrigan has surfaced.

Meantime, it's back to the phone, hoping he can see the owner of a Chambersburg store later: "Tell Steve I'll be there. He's passed up the line twice without even seeing it. I'll be there later."

After he hangs up, he charms a young saleswoman. "Hiya, doll," he says. "See what I get with this job? All the young chicks."

Notwithstanding jokes about traveling salesmen, Kaplan says later, he gets long lonely nights instead of such "chicks."

His wife has come to accept his absences, which started two years after he was married, Kaplan says. But he adds that she has had to be father as well as mother to their four children, now grown.

Kaplan logs 35,000-40,000 miles annually, passes whole months away from home and spends perhaps 250 days a year in his territory, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Washington and southern New Jersey.

On the telephone again, he learns yet another appointment is off.

Harrigan has not appeared, so Kaplan passes time by going for coffee. He finds a parking ticket on his car. It will cost him $10.

When Harrigan finally surfaces, he complains that only the sheer polyesters are moving. Kaplan placates him, promising free samples for the salespersons who sell the most of his line. Heading east on the turnpike, he doesn't wear his seat belt, doesn't turn on the radio and doesn't listen to the CB jabber.

"With the tape deck, with the Steve Martin tapes, with all the tapes, they don't mean nothing," Kaplan says. "You're still sitting there alone."

He detours to Ligonier, but one store owner is out of town and a second store is going out of business. Kaplan makes for Somerset, where the proprietor says she's too busy for him.

More telephone calls, and one is good news: An order from Altoona is confirmed. But Steve, the man he had tried to reach in Chambersburg, is unhappy with Young Edwardian sales and won't see Kaplan.

"There's no end to this," Kaplan sighs, starting to wilt in the heat. "You just keep on going."

Enduring snail-paced trailers and snarled toll lines, he reaches Bedford, 95 miles from Pittsburgh, just before 5 p.m. And — at last — Dixie Stuff says she'll look at the line. "if you hurry."

Kaplan is transfixed. He darts outside, wrestles three bags of dresses onto a rack and struggles back in. One "number" at a time, he fairly pirouettes before the woman, his spiel like the patter of a carnival pitchman. He sees himself as a record. "The needle's in the groove," he says. It is like being on stage, and he is the star.

"When the cameras are running and the lights are on, there's no stopping me," Kaplan says. "Suddenly everything changes."

This is his reward. This, and the 33 dresses she orders.

In Lancaster by 8, he's traveled more than 250 miles and worked 13 hours. He says he knows no other life and wishes none other.

There'll be no retirement, he says. But maybe his wife soon will join him on the road. For comfort tonight, there's only her call.

For companionship, there's the TV. It plays on and on into the night as Hy Kaplan, his star now dimmed, sinks oblivious into sleep.

LIFE OF A SALESMAN — Hy Kaplan places his sample dresses on a rack outside a store in his three-state territory. Kaplan is on the road up to 13 hours a day, 250 days a year, and has joined other salesmen to protest bills before congress they say will hurt them. (AP Laserphoto)

Tax Protest In Wiston-Salem

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Taking their cue from California's Proposition 13, a group of Winston-Salem citizens have organized a group called "STOP" to fight for property tax reductions.

"We pledge to each and every elected official, each and every department head, each and every outside agency and special interest group that insists on causing a burdensome tax increase — never again will there be taxation in Winston-Salem and Forsyth County without representation," said Gene A. Conrad, a member of the group's board.

About 150 people attended the group's first public meeting last week and heard speakers praise a county commissioner and a city alderman who voted against recently adopted budgets which called for tax increases.

One farmer commented that he could not see "what's wrong with taking a meatax approach to cutting spending. They're taking your money with a steam shovel."

Dr. Richard E. Nash, a dentist who took a leading role in organizing STOP, an acronym for Stabilize Property Taxes Now, announced that the group would try to have a majority of the county's 111,000 registered voters sign petitions by October calling for a $1 limit on the combined Winston-Salem-Forsyth County tax rate. The two now have a combined rate of $1.49.

Those present were asked to fill out questionnaires asking how they could help STOP. The group hopes to push projects including a letter-to-the-editor campaign, a committee to monitor public meetings of the board of aldermen and county commissioners, a "STOP Watch" committee to evaluate the propriety of various appropriations made by the city and county governing boards, a task force to research alternate sources of revenue for local government, and meet-the-candidate sessions during the fall campaign.

Alcohol Limits Car Emissions

NEW YORK (AP) — Carbon monoxide emissions from cars would be cut 17 percent if all late-model autos in New York used a fuel containing 10 percent alcohol, according to a survey reported by the U.S. Department of Energy.

The federal study, done by the Aerospace Corp. as a consultant to the energy department, used a computer to estimate the reduced air pollution if all 1975 through 1978 cars and taxis in the city used the 10 percent alcohol mixture.
