

Nation Spared Postal Snarl As Tentative Contract Produced

By JEFFREY MILLS Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation was spared the snarl of a mail strike today as marathon bargaining produced a tentative new three-year contract for postal workers.

The pact gives 500,000 U.S. Postal Service employees a 19.5 percent pay increase while insuring, officials say, that the next mail rate hike won't come for 2 1/2 to 3 years.

Postmaster General William F. Bolger called the settlement "very fair" and said it "fits in very well" with President Carter's anti-inflation wage guidelines.

Emmet Andrews, president of the largest of four unions, called the settlement "the best we can get."

James La Penta of the mail handlers union called the wage settlement a "respectable" package that is "pretty responsible. We didn't go crazy."

The accord continues job security and cost-of-living allowance protections — the only two demands over which union leaders had said their rank-and-file would be willing to call an illegal strike.

Andrews, president of the American Postal Workers Union, estimated the pay increase, including cost-of-living projections, would yield $1,609 more in wages over the next three years.

The unions had sought a raise of $1,965 over two years in the $15,877 average postal worker's salary.

The Carter administration had made the talks a key test of its anti-inflation program, which attempts to moderate the large wage gains won by unions in recent years.

"I think its a little bit over Mr. Carter's program," Andrews said. Carter has called for a 5.5 percent ceiling on federal wage increases.

Subtracting the cost-of-living provisions, the new pact provides a 2 percent general wage increase in the first year, 3 percent in the second and 5 percent in the final year, Andrews said.

He said he would not try to influence the union membership in the voting, which begins around Aug. 1. "I'm leaving it up to them. The members are the ones that have to live with it."

Bolger said the agreement "fits in with the plans I have, the goals I have for the Postal Service to retain its rates for the next 2 1/2 to 3 years."

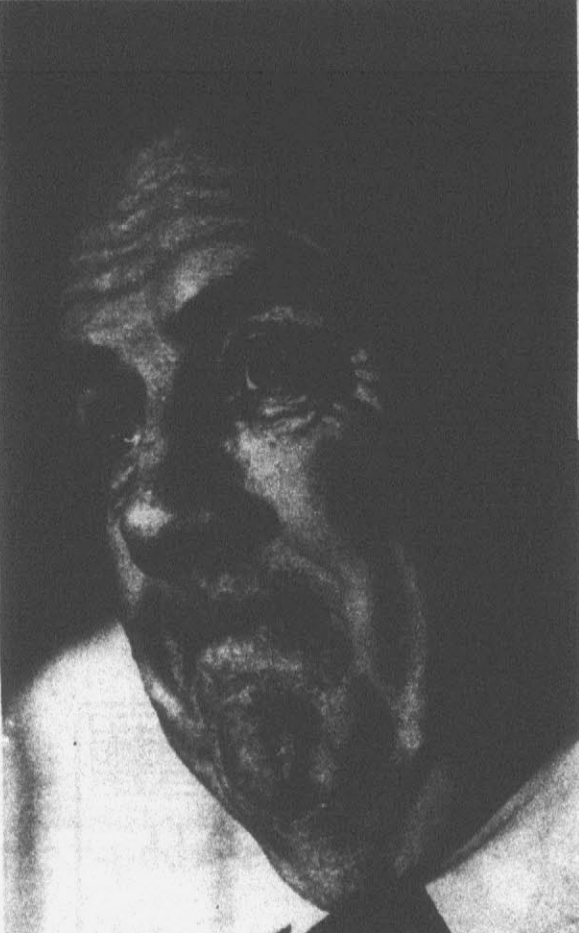

He said the no-layoff clause would not immediately hamper Postal Service efforts to trim its work force to hold down labor cost, but he said it might hinder the effort as new technology becomes available.

Management had said the provision was preventing it from cutting its work force and holding down future postage rate increases. Negotiators for the postal workers, mail handlers and letter carriers unions called the 25-word phrase crucial for the future job security of their workers.

La Penta called the contract "historic document because the unions have had to show that employers cannot take away items won in previous contracts."

Andrews said the negotiators became stalled over the final wage package at 2:30 a.m. EDT today. They asked for Bolger to enter the talks, which he did. The settlement came less than two hours later.

"You've just seen the definition of all-night bargaining," Andrews added. A settlement seemed more probable at midday Thursday after agreement was reached on the no-layoff and cost-of-living issues.

'Worst In 3 Years' Inflation Up, But So Is GNP

By MICHAEL DOAN Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's economy grew by the largest amount in more than two years during the spring, but inflation during the second quarter of this year was the worst in three years, the Commerce Department said today.

The department said consumers in the spring made the purchases they postponed during the severe winter.

The inflation rate during the second quarter was 10 percent, the worst performance since a 10.7 percent inflation rate in the first quarter of 1975.

The combined output of goods and services — the Gross National Product — grew at an annual rate of 7.4 percent in the second quarter after adjustment for inflation, the department said. The annual rate averages the figures over an entire year.

The spring economic growth was not as strong as the 8 percent to 9 percent gain some economists were expecting. However, it was the biggest quarter since winter 1976, when the economy grew by 9.3 percent near the end of the recession.

Many economists say a slower growth rate will be needed for the rest of the year if inflation is to be brought under control. The government is forecasting a growth rate for the entire year of about 4 percent, just enough to keep people with enough jobs to prevent the economy from faltering.

The report showed that final sales to businesses and consumers increased at an annual rate of 7.2 percent, one of the largest increases on record. Sales had fallen off 1.6 percent in the first quarter as winter storms kept people home from stores and their jobs.

The figures are adjusted to account for seasonal variations, but the winter was a bigger drag on business than usual.

The 7.4 percent increase in the second quarter followed a decline of 0.1 percent in the first quarter and a 3.2 percent increase in the fourth quarter of last year.

In the entire first half, the nation's output grew at a rate of 3.5 percent, smaller than the 4.5 percent in the second half of last year, the department said.

The department said the coal strike and the severe weather depressed output in the first quarter of 1978.

"In the second quarter, a rebound added to output," the department said. "If the effects of the coal strike and severe weather are set aside, the increase in real GNP would have been about 3 percent in each quarter," the department said.

The combined output of goods and services surpassed an annual rate of $2 trillion for the first time. The total gross national product was $2,077 trillion.

Postal Terms Appear To Be Acceptable Vendetta Against Soviets Is Denied By Pres. Carter

By STUART SAVAGE Reflector Staff Writer

Local Postal workers seemed to agree with a tentative three-year contract agreement reached during bargaining sessions in Washington, D.C. early Friday.

Ray Hardee, president of the 31-member local Postal Workers Union, said Friday, "Everybody's happy that the thing is settled," but admitted, "actually, we haven't gotten any official word here. All I know is what I've heard on the radio."

Hardee noted that the contract will have to be printed up and, "sent out for ratification," adding that postal workers in Greenville, "won't really know until we see it and read it."

The union president emphasized, "I'm very critical of the Postal Service for waiting until the last minute to do this stuff."

Hardee said there were, "no meaningful negotiations until the past 10 days...I'm very critical of that," since the Postal Service could have begun in April.

"I think this was very dangerous. It could have led to consequences nobody wanted," he added.

Greenville Postmaster Lloyd Mills said Friday that, "as of right now," all local workers have, "accepted" the proposed contract and, "all of them are working."

"I haven't heard any comment against it," Mills noted. "All the mail is moving as normal."

The bargaining in Washington, produced a tentative new three-year contract which calls for a 19.5 percent pay increase over the next three years, including a cost-of-living provision and job security protection.

Subtracting the cost-of-living provision, the tentative contract calls for a two percent general wage hike the first year, a three percent increase the second year, and a five-percent increase the third year.

Union voting on the contract, which also provides for no postal rate increase for 2 1/2 or 3 years, should begin about August 1.

State Of Siege

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) The military government of Gen. Hugo Banzer declared a state of siege today in the face of a reported armed rebellion in the nation's second largest city and continuing protests over annulment of the presidential election.

The state of siege suspends all constitutional guarantees. It was issued after the Council of Ministers said it received reports of a civil and military rebellion in Santa Cruz de la Sierra in eastern Bolivia, 630 miles from La Paz.

The rebellion was said to be headed by the presidential candidate handpicked by the military government, Air Force Gen. Juan Pereda Astum.

It was not immediately clear what forces were backing the reported uprising. Initial reports said the Air Force Academy, which is in Santa Cruz, had joined the rebels.

The government also decreed all schools be shut down throughout the country. Armored cars and anti-riot police patrolled the streets of La Paz. It was not known if any arrests had been made.

Pereda, 47, amassed the largest percentage of votes — slightly over 50 percent, in the election two weeks ago.

But the National Electoral Court voided the elections, which international observers and opposition political parties had denounced as fraud-ridden.

Blame Confused U.S. Guidelines

WILKESBORO, N.C. (AP) — The head of the Wilkes County board of commissioners says confusing federal guidelines are to blame for allegations that the county illegally spent funds intended for a public jobs program.

Commission Chairman Gerald Lankford also said no one in county government had intentionally misused any of the federal funds.

A routine state audit of the program found that $45,201 had been paid to ineligible recipients during 1975. Benjamin F. Carraway, director of the state's Division of Internal Audit, said this week.

Carraway said the audit showed 12 instances in which persons were hired in public jobs in Wilkes County in 1975 although they had not been unemployed 30 days.

DIED IN FLOODS

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Twenty-four persons have drowned in different parts of Pakistan as a result of heavy flooding caused by monsoon rains, officials reported Thursday.

Tobacco Prices Still Up

VALDOSTA, Ga. (AP) — Sales of Georgia-Florida flue-cured tobacco continued very good today as grade prices remained steady to slightly higher compared to Thursday, official observers said.

The practical top price remained at $155 per hundredweight with selected offerings, mainly cutters, bringing this price, the Federal-State Market News Service said.

Sales volume was light to medium today.

Early sales showed these grades and prices: X4F, fair orange lugs, selling from $145 to $155 per hundred; P4L, fair lemon primings, $135 to $145; P5F, low primings, $125 to $140; and N2, nondescript, from $55 to $100 per hundred pounds.

Thursday's sales totaled 4,496,702 pounds, selling at $5,835,682, or an average of $129.78 per hundred — $2.27 above Wednesday's opening.

Total pounds for the first two days of auctions was put at 9,771,105 pounds, selling for $12,560,978, or an average of $128.55 for the season.

Stabilization Corp. receipts Thursday were 1.4 percent, adjusting the season's total to 1.3 percent.

Georgia tobacco sold Thursday at an average of $130.27 per hundred pounds and Florida leaf brought $129.43.

or 35 percent — would violate some principles of his tax revision plan. Carter said the worrisome rate of inflation — now running at an annual pace of 10 percent — should "top off" later this year and that his anti-inflation program is building momentum.

"Someone has got to control it," he said. "I'm doing all I can."

Carter said he disagreed with the statement by U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young that there are "hundreds, perhaps thousands" of political prisoners in the Soviet Union and declared: "I know Andy regrets having made that statement, which was embarrassing to me. I don't believe he will do it again."

Carter reprimanded the envoy on Saturday for the statement.

The president's comments on the Soviet Union were the latest in a series he has made to define the U.S.-Soviet relationship.

He said that he had no more plans to cut off trade with Moscow, after his administration's announcement Wednesday that it would not allow Tass, the Soviet news agency, to purchase a Sperry Univac computer. Carter said the equipment far exceeded Tass' stated needs for use during the 1980 Olympics in Moscow.

Earlier Thursday, Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland said Carter had no intention of halting U.S. grain sales to the Soviet Union to retaliate against Moscow's human rights policies.

The Wednesday trade announcement, made with as little fanfare as possible, responded to congressional pressure to maintain a hard line in the wake of the latest Soviet crackdown on dissidents while doing as little damage as possible to Carter's goal of negotiating a Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty that can win Senate approval.

He said his own criticism of the Soviet bloc's prosecution of not only such dissidents as Anatoly Shcharansky and Yuri Orlov, but also a Lithuanian and two East Germans, was expressed "in a very moderate way."

Moscow has called such criticism interference in internal Soviet affairs, and Carter volunteered that "we cannot interfere in the internal affairs of the Soviet Union."

But he reminded Moscow that Soviet officials voluntarily signed the Helsinki agreement guaranteeing that the principles of human rights would be observed and said he was concerned about Russian efforts "to punish dissidents for monitoring compliance with the Helsinki agreements."

The president said he was "not specifically" aware of any talks underway to free Shcharansky and other dissidents, but he also said it was not a subject he felt he could discuss.

The president also avoided any detailed discussion of the resignation four hours earlier of Dr. Peter Bourne, his adviser on drug abuse and medicine who admitted writing a prescription for a highly controlled drug, using a false name for the aide receiving it.

"There are some allegations which will be the subject of investigation, and because I would not want my comments inadvertently to affect or to influence those investigations, I will have no further comment on this subject this evening and will not answer questions on this subject," he said in a six-sentence opening statement on Bourne's resignation.

Later, asked whether Bourne had ever prescribed medicine for him, the president said: "Dr. Bourne has never given me any treatment of any kind."

On other topics, Carter said: —Members of Congress will not end their current session before the November elections without having acted on his controversial civil service reorganization proposal.

—He would direct Joseph A. Califano Jr., secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, to begin by the end of the month consultations on the principles for establishing a national health care system.

Stancil's duties will include providing technical advice to maintain and strengthen economic growth and development in the towns, coordinating planning efforts with similar county and regional efforts, providing town officials with technical assistance concerning revenue sharing, community development and additional federal programs, as well as advising on matters concerning solid waste collection and disposal, taxes, water and sewer facilities, and fire and rescue services.

Stancil currently a candidate for a masters degree in public administration at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, will move immediately into the position with a starting salary of $11,297.

The town advisor position was established through a $20,000 Planning Assistance Grant to the Mid-East Commission. The original application requesting the grant funds, was written by a member of the commission's government coordination program.

Bruce Beasley III, executive director of the commission, said, "We feel very fortunate to have Mr. Stancil, a John Gold Scholar, working with us."

"His work should have a profound impact on the future of the communities," Beasley continued.

Stancil has voiced an interest in local government and a desire to work with the small communities.

"I am looking forward to it as a new learning experience for me and I am excited by the new challenge," Stancil noted.

I see big trucks tearing up Greenville's streets and I wonder — aren't there any weight limits for vehicles traveling on city streets like there are out on the highway. Seems like they should be even stricter. Big trucks cut through my street all the time to a construction site. I've called the police, but it does no good. J. H.

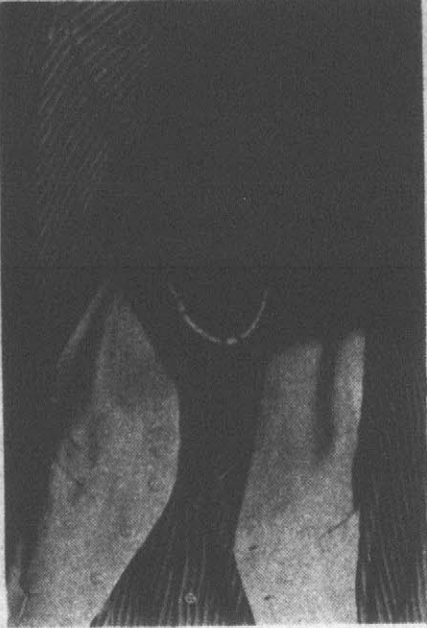

There are many streets in Greenville where no truck larger than a pickup is allowed, Police Chief Glenn Cannon said. He said the Police Department makes every effort to enforce these restrictions.

Most of the truck traffic through the city is on state-maintained thoroughfares, he said, where state vehicular weight inspectors are in authority. He said the police department has no means for weighing and, therefore, can do little about enforcing weight limits.

Inspector G. L. Beddard said truck weight limits are subject to the vehicle's being licensed to carry set declared amounts. In other words, the owner states when he buys a license the amount of weight he anticipates carrying and pays accordingly.

There are restricted highways which are marked as to maximum allowable weights. On posted secondary roads the maximum axle weight is 13,000 pounds, with a tolerance of 1,000 pounds per axle permitted. The maximum allowable gross weight on the National System of Interstate and Defense Highways is pounds.

This is an oversimplified explanation of the weight laws. For more information, one may contact the inspections office, 752-4435.

Woman Makes Money Shopping For Others

By MELANIE DEEDS
WEST BLOOMFIELD, Mich. (UPI) — Gloria Check admits she is a "shopaholic."

She has an eye for fashion and absolutely loves to shop — at sprawling malls and tiny boutiques, discount stores and garage sales.

That's why she went into business for herself as "The Wardrobe Mistress." Now the 42-year-old mother of four gets paid for shopping for other people.

Her business card looks like a price tag with a hole punched at the top and a string pulled through it. She helps Detroit-area women plan, budget and assemble their wardrobes.

For $30, she visits their homes and tells them what's right and wrong about their clothing. For an additional $15 an hour, she buys new clothes for them.

"It's a mistaken cliché that all women love to shop," said Mrs. Check, a petite blonde whose flair for fashion is evident in her own impeccable and well-coordinated clothing. "Of course, many do — but for others, clothes shopping is a frustrating and disappointing experience."

Mrs. Check reads fashion magazines, studies newspaper women's sections daily and is on the mailing lists of dozens of apparel stores.

She knows exactly when and where to go for "just the right little shirt," a blazer that brings an old dress to life or bargain-priced accessories.

With more and more women choosing careers outside the home, Mrs. Check said, many can use a bit of guidance if only because of the increasing demands on their time.

"Let's face it, today women function in many roles," she said. "In order to play these changing parts on the stage of life, it's necessary to organize ourselves."

"That's where I, The Wardrobe Mistress, enter the picture."

In a recent visit to Marcia Adler's home in West Bloomfield, Mrs. Check spent an hour talking about fashion to her new client, a busy mother of two children who works part-time at a resale shop. She then began tearing apart Mrs. Adler's closet.

"You know who is making clothes in this color?" she asked when Mrs. Adler pulled out a blouse that needed matching slacks.

"Oh, I just saw a blouse that would go well with this," she added when her client displayed a rarely worn denim patchwork skirt.

After coordinating several separates into attractive, new outfits, Mrs. Check opened a bulging tote bag.

She pulled out scarves of various sizes, a floral shawl and nearly a dozen belts for use in a demonstration accessorizing outfits.

"You can use scarves like jewelry," she said, twisting the silky material tight and forming a thin necklace of cloth around her neck.

"You have to be very imaginative," Mrs. Check also has published a 12-page booklet with tips on putting together a wardrobe. It is free to her customers and $2.75 a copy at fashion shows and club meetings she attends. It wasn't easy to sit down and compose the booklet, she said.

She kept hearing a small voice asking, "What are you doing at that typewriter when you know that today the stores are taking their third markdown?"

Couple Honored On Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Tronto celebrated their 25th anniversary recently.

An anniversary mass was held by Father J. Paul Byron of St. Peter's Catholic Church. The couple's son, Joseph Jr., entertained at an anniversary party at the Tar River Party House.

Approximately 60 friends were present including Father Byron and the couple's former pastor, Father Maurice Spillane of New Bern.

The honorees were given flowers by their son. The refreshment table was covered with a white linen and lace cloth and highlighted by crystal hurricane shades holding light white candles flanking a center arrangement of carnations, snapdragons and mums.

The couple was honored at a dinner held at the Villa Nova East, Pelham, N. Y., Sunday, July 9.

Man A Menace Behind The Wheel

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I've never seen this problem in print before, but you have no idea how much it means to those of us who are faced with it.

My husband thinks his car is a plaything. It is unbelievable how immature he becomes when he gets behind the wheel.

For example, he'll pick out a car on the road and try to "race" with it. Or he'll drive with no hands on the wheel, and steer with his KNEES. Or if he sees a pedestrian slowly crossing the street, he'll speed up and aim his car right at him and stop abruptly to "scare" him. He also tries to frighten other drivers by seeing how close he can come to them without actually hitting them. Believe me, we've had some pretty close calls.

He even does these things when our three impressionable youngsters are in the car, and they seem to enjoy it. If I say one word to him, he flies into a rage, so I just sit there and tremble in silence.

Can you help me?

SHOW OFF'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: If the most you can do is "tremble" when your husband risks the lives of his family—as well as his own and strangers'—you have a bigger problem than you think.

Call the traffic division of your local police department and report the boob. Give them his license number, and the description of his car, and let them know approximately when and where they can find him. Of course, they can't touch him until they catch him breaking the law, but if he drives as you say he does, they'll soon nab him.

DEAR ABBY: What would you do if your husband came home with lipstick on his shirt, trousers, underwear and some on his neck, too? Also, Sheldon has hairs on his coat, and they were a color like nobody in our family has. (Looks like a redhead.)

I questioned him, and he swore up and down he didn't know how any of this stuff got there.

Sheldon works in an office with just one woman. I've never met her, but he says she's as homely as a mud fence. I want to trust him, but with all this evidence, how can I?

SHELDON'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: First I'd find out if this "mud fence" has red hair. If she has, I'd suspect that she was close enough to Sheldon to transfer the above-mentioned evidence. (P.S. Any man who comes home in that shape can plead "amnesia" and get away with it.)

DEAR ABBY: My mother-in-law is so superstitious it's not even funny. I don't mind if she believes in all those crazy old-fashioned superstitions, but now she's starting in on me!

I have been married for seven years, and I'm expecting my first baby in October, and this crepe-hanger mother-in-law of mine keeps insisting that it is "bad luck" to buy even a rattle for the baby until it gets here. (She says "the devil" might be displeased if I talk too much about my good luck—and something might happen.)

I am furious, Abby. Some of my friends want to give me a baby shower, but with all this silly superstitious talk, I'm afraid to let them.

I am healthy as a horse and would like to prepare for this baby I've waited so long for, but I hate to go behind my mother-in-law's back.

What should I do?

EXPECTING IN TEXAS

DEAR EXPECTING: Tell your mother-in-law that YOU aren't superstitious, and you prefer to be prepared for the healthy baby you have every reason to believe you will have. Then go ahead and prepare, and good luck.

Cheaper Cuts Of Beef Gain In Popularity

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer
The soaring price of beef recently moved President Carter to urge consumers to shun the costlier cuts and go in for more economical portions.

Sound advice, but you get what you pay for. Cheaper cuts, like chuck, can be pretty tough unless stewed for hours. So that would not leave much in the way of beef dishes, except ragout and pot roast.

One answer is tenderizer: the natural kind that has no additives. This type, I'm told, is made from the juice of unripened papaya. The extract is crystallized so that it can be sprinkled over meat. To give taste, herbs and spices are sometimes added to the crystals.

Such tenderizers are said to separate the connective tissues found in all meats and to soften the fibers. Connective tissue can also be tenderized by exposure to long, slow heat, but some chefs complain that the meat loses its natural flavor after a while.

Advocates of natural tenderizers point out that with reduced cooking time, there is less meat shrinkage, although I don't think the difference would be all that great. As a fringe benefit, you use stove or oven for a shorter time and thus contribute to energy conservation.

Such tenderizers, incidentally, are not used only on beef. They are said to improve poultry, pork chops and even baked fish fillets. But beef is where they shine.

I recently sampled a 3-inch slab of chuck that had been grilled like a choice steak after being tenderized, and it came out very well. Not as good as a prime cut of sirloin, perhaps, but still a very edible piece of meat.

My hostess first moistened the chuck on all sides with water, then pierced it deeply with a fork at half-inch intervals, sprinkled it with tenderizer crystals and popped the meat onto the grill. The beef, which weighed four pounds, took close to 45 minutes to cook and it came out medium rare. It was left standing on a meat board for five minutes after removal from the grill and carved into diagonal slices about a quarter-inch thick.

The chuck steak I had was made more flavorful by the addition of a tangy, Texas-style sauce. Here's the recipe.

- 2 cups cider vinegar
  - 2 cups ketchup
  - 1/2 cup sugar
  - 1 tablespoon chili powder
  - 1 teaspoon salt 1 1/2 teaspoons coarse black pepper
  - Dash Tabasco
  - 2 tablespoons honey
  - 1 bay leaf 1/2 teaspoon oregano
- Combine all ingredients in saucepan. Simmer 30 minutes, till sauce thickens. Serve in bowl, along with brush to apply amount desired.

By The Associated Press
A small low pressure center over the North Carolina coast touched off a few scattered showers in the northeast portion of the state Thursday, and spread cloudiness as far inland as the Piedmont.
Rainfall was light but the cloudiness helped hold down temperatures over the northeast. Raleigh and Wilmington reached a high of 91 degrees while the temperature got no higher than 83 at Rocky Mount.

However, hot, hazy and humid weather will continue over the state for several more days. The forecast was for mostly sunny today and Saturday, and fair Sunday. Daytime high readings are expected to range from the high 80s to the low 90s through the weekend, with 80s in the mountains and at the beaches and 90s elsewhere.

Washington Again Tied Up By Wildcat Walkout

By The Associated Press
Washington's commuters scrambled for a ride again today as a wildcat strike kept the bus and subway system shut down. But a wildcat by New Orleans garbagemen ended as trucks made pickups along the streets of that humid city. And many of Philadelphia's 19,600 striking employees were voting on a contract to end their week-long walkout.
Cody Pfantstiel, spokesman for the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority, said "There is no system today," after bus and subway workers failed for the second straight day to report at dawn for their rush-hour shifts.
Normal work arrival times for federal and district government employees were suspended.
The strikers appeared undeterred by either a judge's back-to-work order or the transit authority's suspension of at least 180 drivers, motormen and mechanics for their part in the walkout.

The bus and subway operators have honored picket lines thrown up by about 100 garage mechanics to protest Metro's failure to include a cost-of-living allowance of 20 cents an hour in their latest paycheck. Metro drivers and mechanics receive an average of $8.16 an hour.
In New Orleans, most of the 328 garbagemen were back at work for the first time since Tuesday, when they struck over complaints that many trucks were unusable. The trucks were an issue because garbagemen get paid only if they complete their routes.
The Philadelphia workers, including garbagemen, recreation and health workers, stuck to the picket lines pending the outcome of an all-day vote on a tentative contract.
Garbage, rotting under 90-degree temperatures and attracting swarms of flies, has been accumulating on many city streets. Most city services were closed or curtailed, including health centers and licensing boards.
The main issues have been the workers' demand for a 9 percent pay hike to match police and firemen and the city's threat to lay off hundreds of employees to pay for any raises.

Mayor Ernest Morial promised Thursday that at least 80 of the city's 122 trucks would be available today, and that no strikers would be punished for the walkout.
About one-third of the garbagemen had reported for work Thursday under a judge's order.

Sino-Japanese Peace Gesture

TOKYO (AP) — Yosuke Nakae, director general of the Foreign Ministry's Asian Affairs Bureau, has gone to Peking to resume negotiations for a Sino-Japanese treaty of peace and friendship.
The negotiations were suspended nearly three years ago because the Chinese demanded inclusion of a clause in the proposed treaty rejecting hegemony, or foreign domination, of any country in Asia.
The Japanese feared this would antagonize the Soviet Union because of the persistent Chinese charge that hegemony in Asia is a Soviet goal.

New Facility For Disabled

ATLANTA — A former U.S. Navy Reserve facility in Washington, N. C. will soon be used to provide services for Beaufort County's disabled children and adults.
Ms. Sara V. Craig, principal regional official in HEW's Region IV, will present the deed to the property declared surplus by the Navy to the Beaufort County Developmental Center, Inc. The transfer is scheduled to take place on July 30.
The facility, located on Route 33, has served as a Naval Reserve training center for the past 20 years. The Beaufort County organization plans to renovate the facility and to construct an additional building to serve mentally retarded and physically handicapped residents of the county. It is being planned primarily to house programs for adults.

Begin's Leadership Attacked By Israel's Opposition Party

By FRANK CREPEAU
Associated Press Writer
TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israel's opposition Labor Party has launched a sharp personal attack on the leadership of Prime Minister Menachem Begin and suggested that he is physically and mentally ill.
The accusations were made at a closed session of the Labor Party Thursday night during a heated discussion of the clash between Begin and Labor leader Shimon Peres earlier in the week over Mideast peace moves.
Reports from the meeting said former Prime Minister Golda Meir questioned whether Begin was in full control of his senses. "This sickness cannot justify anything" she was reported to have said. "When a close friend comes into your house and ruins it all you can't just stand and watch it with equanimity."

Former Finance Minister Yehoshua Rabinowitz said Begin's behavior "was that of a person who is not normal."
Shlomo Hillel, former minister of police, said he was convinced Begin's behavior was "a result of medications."
That was a reference to persistent reports that the 64-year-old prime minister, who has suffered heart trouble and has diabetes, is in failing health and heavily treated with medicines. Begin's doctors have strongly denied such reports.

Mrs. Meir was not available for comment. A Labor Party spokesman, Yosef Bellin, said he could not give quotations from the closed meeting, "but the newspaper reports are not lies."
A source close to the prime minister dismissed the Labor outburst. "The Labor Party is famous for this kind of personal attack, usually by Labor members against other Labor members, and this time they made an attack on Begin."
He called it "a result of great disappointment that this government is not going to fall and that they are not going to return to power."

whether he'd talked to Sadat about a territorial compromise and Begin supporters accused Peres of "trying to rise to power on Sadat's back."
At issue is the Begin view that the Peres meeting may have undercut the government's peace moves and that Sadat was using the meeting with Peres to put pressure on the Begin government.
Begin also vetoed a proposal that Peres try to arrange a meeting with King Hussein of Jordan.

Checked On 2 Collisions

An estimated $3,450 property damage resulted from two collisions investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.
Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a three-car collision on Greene Street, 50 feet North of the Martin Street intersection about 4:45 p.m.
Drivers involved were identified as Kenneth Mark Davis of 105 South Summit St., Sandra Felton Kelley of Route 6, Greenville, and Oscar Henry Roebuck III of 206 West 13th St.
Investigators, who charged Davis with failing to reduce his speed enough to avoid an accident, estimated damage at $1,200 to the Davis car, $800 to the Roebuck car and $150 to the Kelley vehicle.
Cars driven by John Russell Barnes of Route 4, Tarboro, and Sarah Blount Cox of Winterville, collided about 4:48 p.m. at the intersection of Greene Street and Mumford Road.
Police estimated damage from the collision at $600 to the Barnes car and $700 to the Cox vehicle.

Va. License Endangered

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green may have violated Virginia law last year when he named his brother as his only partner in a Brookneal, Va., tobacco warehouse, Virginia's commissioner of agriculture and consumer resources said Thursday.
A spokesman for the tobacco exporters' association said Virginia officials should revoke Green's licence if they determined he had been involved in "rabbit hunting" or other unethical or illegal tobacco warehouse practices.
Virginia Agriculture Commissioner S. Mason Carbaugh said he had notified Green of the possible violation in a July 9 letter. Green will have a chance to respond next Thursday in a meeting with Carbaugh in Richmond, Va.
Green's licence was jeopardized by testimony last month at the "rabbit-hunting" trial of George H. Joyce Jr. and Darwin E. Herring, two warehouse employees, who said that Green and the warehouse manager knew about illegal "rabbit-hunting" operations at the warehouse.

Fortune Survey Shows N.C. Is Well Regarded

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A Fortune magazine survey shows that North Carolina is rated as one of the top three states among business executives who plan to build new plants within the next three years.
The survey was mailed to 1,000 corporations in the fall of 1976. A total of 577 executives responded to the questionnaire.
"I believe this survey underscores the good news of more and better jobs for North Carolinians," said Commerce Secretary D. M. "Lauch" Faircloth. "More importantly, our high rating is reflected in our record investment capital figures for 1977 and our strong start this year."
Factors the businessmen considered important when deciding on a location for a new plant included availability of energy supplies, productivity of workers, community receptiveness and state and local attitude toward taxes.

Plan Observing Of Pastor Day

No Monopoly On Black Vote

Guilford County Republican leaders say they will go after black voters this fall. There was a time when many black voters were strongly Republican, the party of the great emancipator Abraham Lincoln. In recent years the more liberal Democratic party has attracted black voters to the point where they have virtually deserted the GOP. There is no reason why the Democrats should have a monopoly on black votes, just as the Republicans don't claim all the corporate presidents of the nation.

There are many successful blacks in our nation today who would be comfortable in the Republican party, and no doubt they could persuade large groups of black citizens to join with them. Neither party can, or should, offer all that every one in every minority group needs, and the Republican party's job will be to demonstrate to influential blacks that it offers them a substantial role in party affairs. When that comes about we will once again have the strong two-party system that is so essential to survival of our democratic society.

Tobacco Sales Point To Good Prices

The opening prices on the Georgia-Florida Tobacco markets were heartening to Eastern N. C. growers. Tobacco quality was reported good and demand on opening sales was reported very good. With an apparent high quality tobacco now coming out of the fields in our area farmers can be hopeful for record prices when sales reach our area.

The 'Sun Belt Superstar'

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — The Boston Globe newspaper in a story headlining its business section on a recent Sunday tabbed our state: "North Carolina ... Sun Belt Superstar."

The lengthy newspaper report written by Globe Staff-writer Jonathan Fierbringer reports that, "Companies are trekking here from all over America, leaving a trail as noticeable as the tar on the heels of Gen. Cornwallis' soldiers, the Revolutionary War Redcoats who gave this state its nickname." Interviewing state officials, company executives, workers who are among those employed by the growing ranks of new firms, Fierbringer concludes, "The attractions that turn the heads of business executives are healthy profits, lower taxes, lots of land, rural settings, few unions, a sunny climate and available, hard-working, inexpensive labor." There is also a dark side, he reports. As a vivid example of what it takes to be a front runner in today's national economy, North Carolina must make tradeoffs to get the edge—tradeoffs such as a welfare budget only half of that in Massachusetts; one of the nation's highest poverty rates; low per capita income.

Bright Side

"A businessman may only see the bright side of the attractions but North Carolina has to live with both. And although there does not appear to be any substantial support to have the state spend more to alleviate poverty, it has been the general policy of state government since the late 1950s to raise the level of wages in the state, to diversify, and thereby strengthen the economy of North Carolina. "It is an economist's and a businessman's program, set on the belief that the best human service program is a growing economy and more jobs," Fierbringer writes. For manufacturing firms moving to North Carolina, the writer found the attractions to be "cooperation of state and local governments, the abundance of rural land, the rural workforce, low wages and a work ethic which managers claim gives them more money for their money."

BILL NOBLITT

Such firms as Data General opening a plant in Johnston County, wages are paid higher than those prevailing in Massachusetts. But says J. Bradley Stroup, "People in Massachusetts are doing less for more ... The company came to North Carolina as a manufacturer not really for business tax breaks or cheap labor, but for productivity." Ben Dalton, manager of the North Carolina operation, finds the "work ethic is better here than it is in industrialized parts of the country." Thack Brown, public relations manager for Burroughs Wellcome says he thought it would take some time in a move to Greenville to reach the production level the company had in New York. Better Work "But in a short time the people in Greenville had surpassed the productivity of Tuckahoe ... you have to walk in there feel the atmosphere in that place," Brown commented. Livability is another key factor, aside from productivity. A number of executives, researchers, and employees comment on weather, safety, outdoor life and conclude they wouldn't likely go back up North. Those moving here, however, find living is not cheaper. Housing is higher, cars also; while a savings in property taxes is usually offset by higher income taxes. One of the papier transfers is George Potts who went from Wall Street to product planning for Data General, the article reports. His son had friends in the city who had been mugged, and said of moving to North Carolina: "Daddy, I won't be mugged." Potts has found "the soft life, la dolce vita ... You can walk outside and have coffee on the deck in the morning ... raccoons come up and feed at night ... New York doesn't have raccoons."

OLYMPIC NAIL-BITING TEAM

Stark Row Of Dead

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
MALESTER, Okla. (AP) — Years before the computer threatened to reduce all humanity to a statistic, men lived and died by the numbers:

60939
12-25-1900
10-29-59
Women, too:
70376 B-F
1-16-1938

Stark in their entirety, blunt as the presiding judge's gavel, these are epitaphs on the white-washed headstones in the prison cemetery across the highway from the maximum security wing of the Oklahoma penitentiary. By the hundreds, the convict dead are lock-stopped into orderly rows, each in his last narrow cell forever laid, serving the final sentence. No crosses, no sculptured angels, no uncouth rhymes implore the passing tribute of a sigh. Not even a "Beloved Father, Of..." or a "Loving Wife Of..." or a "Rest in Peace."

All we know of 60939 is that he was born on Christmas Day, 1900 and died at age 58 on Oct. 29, 1959. Somewhere along the way, melancholy marked him for her own. If he wasn't a lifer, it turned out that way. Off to the side near the unlocked gate, segregated by race and sex, 70376 B-F, a black female who died at age 23, rests in the shade of a giant cottonwood tree. Free at last. What was her crime? How long could she have served to die so young? Was the few hundred yard journey across the road and under the wooden arch marked "prison cemetery" her first and only trip outside those high walls since sentencing? There is no question of the fate of:

18354 EXC
White male, executed. The crude printed figures don't tell us when or why. With that low number was he hanged? Or had the electric chair come to Oklahoma by then? Time and the wind that never seems to cease blowing across these plains have obliterated the numbers on most of the other stones in "Death Row," which seems a strange designation for that part of the graveyard reserved for prisoners dispatched by the state instead of their Maker. One tombstone has its head lopped off so that only the letters "EXC" appear on the portion of stone protruding from the sod like a busted tooth. W 20391 rates yellow plastic flowers on his grave, the only evidence of grief hereabouts, save for the keening of the locusts in the tall grass. On visitors' day at the penitentiary, a handful of relatives may cross the road and open the gate, but perhaps months and years and decades go by without anyone pausing to remember W 11252 or B 7563. From yonder machine-gun mounted tower, sirens wail the prisoners' passing hours — get up, wash up, line up, chow up, work details, bed check — without anymore disturbing the sleep of W 14021 or B 19722. Not all the numbers here are nameless in death. James Whithope, Leroy Ellis, John Barber, Andrew Suggs and a few others have their names as well as their numbers on their headstones, a custom that seems to have begun around 1939, judging from the dates.

25th Anniversary Gift

WASHINGTON — A lady in Virginia was arrested and found guilty of eating two strawberries in a supermarket. It was a national story, and many people thought the arrest was outrageous. That is because they didn't know what the stores are getting for strawberries this summer. The price of fruit is out of sight. I discovered this the other day when I took my wife to Neam's Market to buy her an anniversary present. We went to the fruit and vegetable department. But first we had to ring the bell before the guard opened the steel door. "We're interested in fruit," we told him. We were ushered into a carpeted room where Mr. Neam himself came out and sat behind his Louis XIV desk. We were asked to be seated across from him. "Can I be of service?" he asked. "We were looking for something in fruit for our 25th anniversary," I said. Mr. Neam snapped his fingers and an assistant brought out a tray of strawberries. "I have a matched pair that just arrived," he said, holding two of the most beautiful strawberries I have ever seen.

ART BUCHWALD

My wife's eyes glowed. "How much are they?" "With or without the sugar?" he wanted to know. "With the sugar." He wrote down the price on a piece of paper. I gulped. "Do you have anything else?" He snapped his fingers again and the assistant brought out another tray. "These are pears shaped like diamonds," he said. "Note the luster of the skin when I hold it up to the light. Elizabeth Taylor had one of these for breakfast when her husband John Warner was running in the primary."

I could see my wife's mouth watering. "I don't think we're in Elizabeth Taylor's class," she said. "Consider this diamond-shaped pear an investment. In three days when it's ripe it will be worth three times what you paid for it."

We both shook our heads. Mr. Neam, who is to fresh fruit what Bulgari's is to jewelry, was very polite. He snapped his fingers and the assistant took away the tray of pears and brought a tray of peaches, each sitting on its own piece of cotton. "One of these would go lovely with your wife's complexion," he said. "There are only 11 on this tray. Sophia Loren bought one when she was in town a few weeks ago. When these are gone, there won't be any more. As you can see, our designer has made it possible to either eat one as is, or cut it up into small pieces and add sweet cream."

He wrote down the price on a slip of paper. There was no way I could afford it. "We were hoping," I said, "for something that would take up more room in our Waterford fruit bowl." (Continued on page 6)

Other Editors Say 'Meaningful' (The Wilson Times) South Carolina has joined the ranks of a growing list of states concerned about making the high school diploma have meaning. The state legislature is now considering minimum competency legislation similar to that enacted by North Carolina and about 30 other states. These demands for minimum competency are not coming from the education establishment but from the public and from legislators acting for the public. They are coming from disappointed employers, disappointed parents, and even some disappointed students. Some educators have argued that diplomas should be viewed as certifying years of attendance in a school system and not as evidence of a minimum level of literacy. However, the public has never really accepted such a low expectation. Many citizens are now aroused and are saying emphatically that no less than functional literacy should result from 12 years of public schooling for almost all children. Instances of incompetence are to be expected in any field of human endeavor, but the public has become irritated by the prevalence of incompetence among potentially good students. The public believes that schools have certified incompetents as competent by passing them along, graduating them, giving them diplomas, and in some cases awarding them college degrees. So the growing demand for minimum competency testing is partly a response to increasing public irritation over the issuance of diplomas without meaningful standards. This movement represents an emphasis in public education that probably will be around for awhile, and hopefully, the end result will be productive for our students. Although the tests of minimum competency do not cause failure, neither do they guarantee success. As Dr. H. David Bruton, chairman of the North Carolina State Board of Education, has pointed out, "Failing a child doesn't give the school an out; the school has a responsibility to try other ways to help that child." The results of competency testing and the annual achievement testing in North Carolina will provide needed benchmarks for improvement. The actual improvement will depend to a great extent upon more effective teaching and learning and a favorable response by students, parents, educators, boards of education, and yes, legislators.

JIMMY'S WHITE HOUSE

Open Door To More Aides

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) —

Depending on whose version you accept, Congress either is getting a handle on the size and cost of the White House staff, or granting President Carter a license to stock it with high-priced aides. Carter pledged to cut the staff by one-third. Democrats say he has kept that promise. Republicans argue that the administration has simply moved some bodies onto different government payrolls, to make it appear that the staff is smaller. Either way, a bill that soon will be going to Carter will grant him authority to sharply increase the number of high paid aides on his personal staff. The White House would have virtually unlimited authority to hire consultants, and to borrow staff members from other executive agencies. Hugh Carter Jr., the president's assistant for administration, has said there is no intention of adding more than a couple people to the staff. But he said the White House wants flexibility to hire more help "in the event of an emergency like World War III or something like that." World War II, incidentally, didn't require a very drastic expansion of the White House roster. The staff numbered 179 when the war began, 215 when it ended. The bill now awaiting final congressional clearance is an authorization, which means that it sets ceilings and says what can be done with funds to be appropriated in a separate measure. Therepublican critics complain that the ceilings on personnel are so high as to be meaningless, and note that in some instances, the bill simply approves whatever the president deems necessary. There hasn't been a clear congressional authorization for personnel and operating costs at the White House since 1939, when President Franklin D. Roosevelt was authorized 14 staff assistants. The entire staff numbered 157. In theory the limit of 14 presidential assistants has applied ever since, but in fact, Congress has simply appropriated about what each president said he needed to run the White House. The new bill would permit the White House to hire up to 100 presidential aides at top salaries: 25 at $57,500 a year, 25 at $52,500, and 50 at $47,500. There are now 55 White House aides in those pay echelons.

The bill also would authorize unlimited appointments to the presidential staff at salaries below $42,423 a year. "Frankly, it does not sound like Congress is exerting much control," said Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan. It also authorizes the use of employees from other federal payrolls, but it requires the president to report to Congress on borrowed staff members who stay for more than 30 days, and to shift them to the White House payroll if they are there for six months.

40 Years Ago Today

July 21, 1938
D. H. Conley, superintendent of the Pitt County school system, was advised today by Representative Warren that grants had been approved by the PWA for projects at Farmville and Chicod. A gymnasium, including an activity building, will be constructed at the Farmville school. In addition, a new heating plant will be installed to replace the old one, which has been condemned. The projects will cost $83,000. Farmville citizens voted overwhelmingly in favor of issuing bonds to put up 55 percent of the total cost of the projects at an election July 5. The remaining 45 percent will be financed from the PWA grant. The Chicod project will include six new classrooms and an auditorium. The projects will cost approximately $35,000, of which the PWA grant will provide 45 percent of the total. The local funds will be derived from a loan already made with the state. The loan will be repaid with additional taxes already authorized by the district voters. — Lynn Cavery

Strength For Today

UNCHANGING ORDER
Some people have the idea that morals and customs are identical. Whatever is being done is right. This is an insidious and ruinous conclusion. Sins widely practiced are not thereby turned into virtues. A thing does not become right because everybody does it. The age in which we live is particularly characterized by a lack of zeal for definite moral standards. We plead the excuse that we are in an age of transition and that it is very hard to tell what is right and what is wrong. This of course is an excuse rather than a reason. It is no harder today to tell right from wrong than it was a hundred or five hundred years ago. Natural laws do not change from century to century. Ages of transition in no way affect their nature. If we were wise, we would see that the same thing holds true in moral laws. — Elzha Douglas

May Be Forced To Strong Step

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — His

economic performance rated weak, and with important promises unfulfilled, President Carter conceivably might be forced to act in a manner that could be construed as imperious. At stake, among other things, are President Carter's reputation as an international leader, and his credibility on the major domestic issue of restoring price stability to an inflation-distorted economy. The promises were restated at the just-completed meeting of industrial nation leaders in Bonn, West Germany, when Carter pledged to cut both the rate of domestic inflation and the use of imported oil. The problem with such promises is the delivery, and the chance exists that Carter could deliver only if he takes unusually aggressive and authoritarian action that is bound to stir harsh controversy. At this moment, the president is hardly succeeding in his efforts to control inflation, now running at better than 10 percent annually. And his efforts to pass an energy bill have been frustrated by Congress. In fact, criticism and resistance might even have grown stronger over the past year, and could be forcing the president to consider actions he has so far dismissed. The administration's anti-inflation effort has been meeting resistance from business and labor, who fear that voluntary restraints might only worsen their position while inflation in general runs unchecked. So long as this attitude prevails, the administration's jawboning can only get tougher. And that, says a U.S. Chamber of Commerce economist, is what has been happening: "Rougher and more precise." "There is a certain deja vu about it," he said. "We've heard it before." When? "In August 1971," he replied, "when President Nixon froze wages and prices." Nixon at that time already had standby authority from Congress to impose controls. President Carter does not, despite an assumption that authority is passed on from president to president. Can Carter obtain the authority? "Congress has always been happy to give the president standby authority because it takes responsibility of its back," said the Chamber economist. Others might react differently. Business and labor might consider such a move to be a dictatorial interference with their rights, and an explosion of criticism might be expected. But some of the public might react with relief. Still, controls are widely thought to represent failure, a resort to power after more sophisticated and democratic efforts have collapsed. And the same attitude might pertain to the oil situation also. The president has attempted to persuade Congress to tax crude imports, but with little success. His next move could be to impose quotas.

Churchman Sees New Religious Mood

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The new chief executive of the oldest, continuously shepherded Protestant body in the United States senses a rising religious mood in the country.

"There's more awareness than there has been for some time of the religious dimension of reality," says the Rev. Dr. Arie R. Brouwer, general secretary of the Reformed Church in America, now marking its 350th anniversary.

"Without that vision, society is in real trouble and more and more people are realizing it," he says. "I think there's more religion around that there has been for quite a while."

But so far, much of the re-kindled impulse remains diffuse, he says, manifested in novel movements, cults, charismatic groups and specialized meditative practices outside the communal worship and organized work of the churches.

"In some ways, it's a secular response to the mysterious," he said in an interview. "It's all pretty religious, but it doesn't care for organized religion. The churches generally have not found the way to channel and nurture it."

That is a prime need, he added, to develop the modes of worship, the imagery and "intuitive sense" to serve the intensified spiritual yearning and bring the accumulated insights of historic faith to a groping culture to "redeem it and offer it to God."

Brouwer, 42, a tall, easy-mannered church historian and one-time Congregational pastor, became the new administrative head of the Dutch-born Reformed Church late last year, a permanent position he's destined to fill until retirement 23 or more years hence.

It gives him an influential voice in transdenominational Christian affairs, including posts on the governing bodies of the National Council of Churches and World Council of Churches.

"One of the things I intend to work very hard at is closing the communications gap between church officialdom and the general membership," he said, outlining various new methods planned for interchange of information, views and guidance.

Although the 350,000-member Reformed Church is not imposing in size, it's rich in history, with a tradition of theological excellence and of pioneering ecumenism in missions.

It also has a stable of prominent contemporary preachers, such as the Rev. Drs. Norman Vincent Peale of New York and Robert Schuller of the spectacular Garden Grove Community Church in California.

The denomination dates from 1620 when its first clergy came to the New Amsterdam (New York) colony, with an unbroken line of ministers since, longer than that of other early American churches.

Although some of them arrived sooner, such as the Anglicans (Episcopalians) in Jamestown in 1607 and the Puritans (Congregationalists, now the United Church of Christ) in Massachusetts in 1620, they had recurrent intervals without ministers.

Plan Installing First Pastor

Gloria Dei Lutheran Church, a mission congregation of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, will install its first pastor, the Rev. Richard A. Miller, Sunday, 4 p.m., at the Woman's Club, 2603 Green Springs Road.

THE REV. RICHARD A. MILLER

The Rev. Miller comes from the Bethany Lutheran Church, Baltimore, Md. He received his master of divinity degree from Concordia Theological Seminary, Springfield, Ill., and his bachelor's degree from Illinois State University.

The Rev. Miller is married to the former Linda Lee of Waynesville, Ill. They have one daughter, Krista Anne, and will reside at 2311 Deal Place, Greenville.

Gloria Dei has been organized since February, 1978. Worship services are held every Sunday, 8:30 a.m., at the Woman's Club, with Sunday School at 9:30 a.m.

Church Showing Film On Sunday

FARMVILLE — "Shiokari Pass," a new film from the producers of "The Hiding Place," will be shown at the First Baptist Church here Sunday.

The one-hour color release from World Wide Pictures will be shown at 7:30 p.m. Although it has an English soundtrack, the film was originally produced for showing to Japanese audiences. It was filmed entirely in Japan with a Japanese cast and crew.

The Rev. Ronald L. Davis, pastor of the church, invites the public to attend. There will be no admission charge for the program.

Anniversary For Senior Ushers

The senior ushers of Antioch Holiness Church of Bell Arthur are celebrating their 26th anniversary Sunday, July 23 at 3 p.m.

Elder Robert Gay, pastor of St. Matthews F.W.B. Church in Stamford, Conn., will render the service.

Senior Citizen Day At Church

BELL ARTHUR — Arthur's Chapel Church will observe Senior Citizens' Day Sunday at 2 p.m.

Dinner will be served immediately after the morning service. During the 2 o'clock service, Elder Hoyt Hammond of Winterville and his congregation will render services. The public is invited, according to Deacon James Nobles and Deacon James Payton.

New Line Of 'Galilee' Books

NEW YORK (AP) — A new "Galilee" line of books has been launched by Doubleday and Company to appeal to the growing number of evangelicals in the country.

The "Galilee" imprint aims "to tell the born-again readers which of the many Doubleday books are specifically evangelical," says editor Alex Liepa, and help bookstore in serving their "rapidly growing evangelical clientele."

Plan Program On The Trinity

BELL ARTHUR — A program on The Trinity will be presented Saturday at 7:30 p.m. at Arthur's Chapel Church.

Eldress Bessie Dixon of St. Paul and the St. Paul No. 2 Choir will present The Father segment. The Son segment will be presented by Eldress Louise Phillips and the Cherry Lane Choir. The Holy Ghost segment will be presented by Eldress Bettie Rhinehardt and the Arthur's Chapel No. 2 Choir. The public is invited.

Church Marking Women's Day

The Annual Women's Day service will be held at 11 a.m. Sunday at St. Peter Ministry Baptist Church, Route 5, Greenville.

Eldress Mary Wallace of Goldsboro will be the guest speaker. The public is invited to attend.

Concerned Over Greek Minority

NEW YORK (AP) — The president of the National Conference of Christians and Jews sent a message to Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, voicing concern about "persecution and discrimination" against the Greek Christian minority in Istanbul, including clergy of the Eastern Orthodox Patriarch, world spiritual leader of Eastern Orthodoxy.

David Hyatt, a Roman Catholic and NCCJ president, cited claims that "Turkish authorities have been bent on eradicating Christians" as a "pernicious thorn in the nation's side." About 6,000 Greek Christians live in or near Istanbul in the mainly Moslem country.

Sounds Call To 'Righteousness'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Calling for a "recovery of national righteousness," a Southern Baptist leader says Americans "are in the midst of a moral earthquake that is registering 10 on God's Richter scale."

The Rev. Foy Valentine of Nashville' director of the denominations' Christian Life Commission, told worshippers at First Baptist Church, to which President Carter belongs, that the nation's forbears were "far from perfection," but they "cultivated the righteousness without which no nation can long endure.

Youth Day Will Be Observed

Youth day will be observed at Rock Spring Church Sunday. Elder James Smith and No. 2 Choir and Ushers will present the program at 11 a.m.

Elder Leroy Adams and Maple Grove MB Church, Chocowiny, will be in charge of the service at 1:30 p.m.

The public is invited according to W. L. Phillips, pastor.

Jesuit Urges A Free Choice

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Roman Catholics in mixed marriages are required by their church to promise to bring up any children as Catholics, but an Irish priest argues that the rule should be changed.

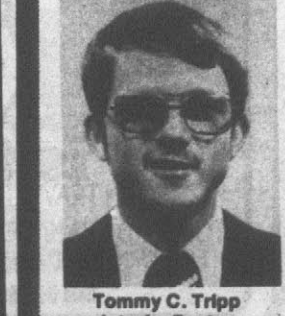

The Rev. John Brady, writing in the Irish Jesuit quarterly, Studies, says couples in mixed marriages should be free to decide whether to bring up their children as Catholics or Protestants.

DIRECTION AND HOPE

You can find plenty of Biblical texts about the wind. That's not why so many colonial churches have weather vanes atop their steeples.

Our early American ancestors were religious—and practical. A weathercock had to be mounted well above trees and roofs which could alter the course of the wind. Often the local church steeple was the highest place.

Nor is there anything irreverent in the custom. For centuries man has looked to the Church for guidance, direction, hope. It seems natural as he pursues his daily work to look to the Church to see which way the wind blows.

We get our weather news today from press, radio and TV. But look to the church of your choosing to gain the faith and courage that see reverent souls through "fair wind or foul."

Shorty Rides Tall For Man In Cowboy's Job

VERNON, Texas (AP) — The sprawling W.T. Waggoner Estate near this northwest Texas city is one of the few places left in the country where one can find working cowboys, and it's there that you'll find a cowpoke named Shorty riding tall in the saddle, more or less.

To Shorty Newman, size means nothing when astride a working quarterhorse, and that's a healthy philosophy for a man 5 feet tall.

Newman is one of 36 full-time cowboys who work the half-million-acre estate, spending most of the time working cattle from the back of a horse.

Newman won't say what his real name is, explaining that "Shorty" is the only name he's ever used.

Shorty's equestrian colleagues take little note of his size.

"We must do it all and take our turn when it comes and this includes all chores," Newman said. He admits his size is often a handicap. "And there's no advantages to being a small cowboy... at least none that I've discovered."

Being small means something special each year when they bring out new broncs from which the cowboys choose their workmate for the year.

Newman gets there first and tries to pick one of the smaller mounts. His current horse stands 14 hands and weighs around 1,000 pounds. The average size and weight among the horses is 15 hands and 1,100 pounds.

Newman is a bachelor cowboy and lives in a modern-day bunkhouse.

When the day's work is done, he and the other singles might "drink a little beer," ride their brons or watch television, where they'll sometimes see a Western movie.

"Television cowboys aren't cowboys," Newman said. "All you ever see them doing is chasing somebody or fighting."

What real cowboys do, Newman said, is rise at 4 a.m., ride a van to the location that will serve as a work site, and spend the day working cattle or mending fences, depending on the season. They get their marching orders from the foreman, wagon boss or straw boss. And they carry out their orders.

While asking no special consideration for his size, Newman isn't a braggart either. "I don't tell anyone I'm a good hand," he said. "I just try to be and let my bosses say if I'm a good hand or not."

Newman has never been turned down for a cowhand job. "When you're on horseback, size don't mean anything," he said. "You just get the job done. You have to put out like anyone. You have to earn your own way. I love cowboying, it's all I ever wanted to do."

His stepmother tried to guide him in another direction when he showed early aptitude with horses, suggesting that a jockey's life might be a realistic goal.

"I just didn't like riding with my knees up under my chin," was the reply that started the career of the state's smallest cowpoke.

Two Killers Gun Down Spanish General And Aide In Madrid

By FENTON WHEELER
Associated Press Writer
MADRID, Spain (AP) — A man and a woman shot and killed an army general and his aide at point-blank range in a car in downtown Madrid today, and an anonymous caller said a little-known leftist gang called the Proletarian Armed Group was responsible. Three policemen were wounded in other parts of the country.

A high government official said the slaying of Brig. Gen. Juan Sanchez Ramos, a 64-year-old artillery officer, and Lt. Col. Juan Perez Rodriguez, appeared to be an attempt to provoke the army into taking over the civilian government of Premier Adolfo Suarez.

But no motive for the slaying was given by a man who telephoned the Madrid news magazine Cambio 16 and said the killers belonged to the Proletarian Armed Group, the magazine said.

Sanchez Ramos was the highest ranking Spaniard assassinated since Premier Luis Carrero Blanco was killed by a bomb in December 1973.

Witnesses described the general's killers as a young man with a mustache and a young woman in a green dress.

They said they got out of a taxi, and approached the general's army car outside his home as his chauffeur was unfolding the one-star flag denoting the rank of brigadier general.

They said the pair fired 11 shots with their pistols at point-blank range through the car window, and that two of them hit the general in the head.

Police said the killers fled in the taxi but that a police sergeant opened fire on them, possibly hitting one. The taxi, with a flat tire and blood stains and two hand grenades inside, apparently had been stolen and was found abandoned at a railroad station for northbound trains. They said the killers forced a motorist to drive them toward a freeway outside Madrid and left him there unharmed.

Police said the killers followed a familiar pattern by terrorists in Spain — picking a victim with a regular routine.

Five years ago, Carrero Blanco was killed by terrorists who put a bomb under a Madrid street where the premier passed daily on his way to mass. The explosion blew Carrero Blanco's car six stories into the air, killing him, his bodyguard and his chauffeur.

Last year, terrorists kidnaped Gen. Emilio Villacusa-saw, head of the army supreme court, as he got ready to enter his official car to go to work.

Four weeks ago, Basque separatists assassinated Spanish journalist Jose Maria Portel as he entered his car to go to work.

The news agency Europa Press said several top military men had reported recently to their commanding officers that they had been followed by persons appearing to map their routes to work.

A Suspect In Crane Death

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Scottsdale police say they have a suspect in the murder of actor Bob Crane but can't press an indictment because they haven't gathered enough evidence.

Officials refused to identify the suspect Thursday, but the Arizona Republic in today's editions said police had tried to get an indictment against John Carpenter, a long-time friend of the actor who played the title role in the Hogan's Heroes television series.

Maricopa County Attorney Charles Hyder said Thursday information provided by police was insufficient to show "probable cause" that the Scottsdale police's suspect committed the crime.

"The evidence they've shown us to date is insufficient to file a complaint or even to show probable cause," said Hyder, who also would not identify the suspect.

Crane was found beaten to death in his Scottsdale hotel room June 29.

The Republic quoted sources as saying Carpenter has been the prime suspect since the slaying occurred. Police have questioned Carpenter at least four times since the murder.

Carpenter reportedly offered to take a "truth serum" and a polygraph test but police reportedly declined the offer, the newspaper said.

Carpenter, who lives in Los Angeles, was not available for comment on the allegations.

Crane was killed by two blows on the side of the head while he slept in an apartment rented for him by a theater where he was appearing.

His body was discovered by an actress who was appearing in the play with Crane.

"I have just the thing," said Mr. Neam, still smiling. He snapped his fingers and the assistant brought out a tray of bananas.

They were still green, but Mr. Neam explained the green ones had the most value because in time they would turn yellow.

My wife picked one up, and I knew from the way she held it that this was what she wanted. "What the heck," I thought. "A 25th anniversary only comes once in a lifetime."

I wrote out the check and they put the banana in a lined box.

Mr. Neam locked the safe and then escorted us to the door. "Come back next week," he said. "We're having an exhibition of rare raspberries loaned to us by the Mellon family who grow them on their farm in Middleburg."

A New Live-And-Tape Show For NBC-TV's Daytime Schedule

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — The departure of "Gong Show" and the return of "Sanford and Son" leave NBC's daytime schedule today. Succeeding them Monday: a new live-and-tape series, "America Alive."

Hosted from New York by Jack Linkletter, son of Art, this new proceeding is a daily grab-bag hour that includes:

- Interviews, mostly outside the studio, that emphasize celebrities, both the regular and momentary kind.

—"Gossip Check," in which Virginia Graham, "ombudsman for the stars," gives stars a podium for responding to whatever gossip about them they feel needs a good responding to.

—Consumer and medical news, and a "People Comedy" segment.

—Music, movie and TV critiques by David Sheehan. He does such now at CBS-owned KNXT-TV here. KNXT says he'll continue there (which gives him the chance to rap an act twice in the same week).

"America Alive" is the brainchild of executive producer Woody Fraser, who since 1961 has cooked up such other TV talkies as the Mike Douglas, Dick Cavett, Virginia Graham and Steve Allen shows.

His last berth: executive producer, ABC's "Good Morning, America," which he joined in 1976. He left it this year, the same year ABC programs whiz Fred Silverman decamped to preside over NBC.

Fraser, 41, a curly haired Ohioan, said his move wasn't linked to that of Silverman. He had two reasons of his own.

One is that "America Alive" is produced by his own company, "and 'Good Morning, America' wasn't, even though I created the concept," he explained by phone from his New York office.

"Secondly, I've had this idea (for the new show) a long time, almost six years, and I felt the time was right for it. It's like a step up from 'Good Morning, America.'" sumer reporter, David Horowitz, in addition to arts critic Sheehan, whom Fraser says will be the first national reviewer to boo or praise network TV shows on network TV.

He said he'd proposed putting both types of reporters on "Good Morning, America," but ABC said no. Why?

Replied the producer: "They just felt, 'Why should we have a television critic on, panning our own stuff, and a consumer critic on, possibly taking away advertising dollars?'"

Did NBC ever express such concerns?

"No," is what the man said.

Pass 4 ♣ Pass Pass

Opening lead: Queen of ♣.

Good defense often consists of no more than weighing possible loss over probable gain. West failed to properly judge the situation on this hand, and declarer took full advantage of the opportunity offered him. South's hand was not strong in terms of point count, but he knew from the auction that he could expect some help from partner. Rather than sell out cheaply to one no trump, he elected to balance with two spades. North had a full opening bid in support of spades, and since his high cards were well placed behind the no trump opener, he raised to game.

West led the queen of clubs and declarer won the ace. He realized that he might have to lose three hearts and the ace of trumps. To avoid that fate, his best chance was to try to execute an end play.

At trick two declarer led a sneaky jack of spades. West played low, and he was given no second chance. Declarer abandoned trumps to try the diamond finesse. When the queen held, declarer cashed the ace and ruffed a diamond. Next came the king of clubs and a club ruff.

Now that the minor suits had been eliminated from both hands, declarer exited with a trump. West was in with the ace, and he had a choice of losing alternatives. If he exited with a minor suit, declarer would discard a heart from dummy while ruffing in his hand, while a heart lead would be up to declarer's king, again limiting his losers in that suit to two. Regardless of what West did, the contract was bound to be made.

West should have realized that the danger of reducing himself to the bare ace of trumps far outweighed the chance that declarer would misguess how to play the trump suit if the queen was missing. If West simply rose with the ace of spades and exited with any card except a heart, sooner or later declarer would have to broach the heart suit on his own. When he does so, he will have to lose three tricks in the suit and his contract.

By remotes, he meant on-location interviews, such as one he plans for Tuesday, a chat from Acapulco, Mexico, with whomever wins the "Miss Universe" contest CBS is airing Monday night.

He denies his show is but a midday echo of ABC's up-at-dawn series. For one thing, he says, he'll do 10 to 15 "remotes" a week, which ABC's show doesn't do. He cited another major difference.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined slightly today amid conjecture that the Federal Reserve was tightening credit further.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 2.69 at 835.93.

Losers outnumbered gainers by a 6-5 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said the Fed's moves in the money markets Thursday seemed to have confirmed that the central bank's Open Market Committee had decided earlier this week to push interest rates up a bit further.

But opinion was divided over whether the Fed was aiming for only a slight tightening or a more substantial increase in rates.

With the market's volatile and inconsistent behavior in recent days, brokers also said it was difficult to get a clear picture of current sentiment. Prices fell on Tuesday, rallied sharply Wednesday and then turned mixed in Thursday's session.

Texaco rose 1/2 to 25 1/2. The company issued a statement today saying it had encountered traces of hydrocarbons at the well it is drilling in the Baltimore Canyon off the New Jersey coast, but had not yet determined whether there were commercially significant amounts of either oil or natural gas.

The NYSE's composite index slipped .10 to 54.97. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .20 at 151.74.

Volume on the Big Board slowed to 10.21 million shares at nontime from 15.49 million at the same point Thursday.

Carter Aide Steps Aside In A Hurry

By MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter effectively kept the Peter Bourne affair from dominating his first prime-time televised news conference, consigning the resigned aide to private life with word that he had been an able public servant and remains a close friend.

Carter refused to discuss the "unfortunate occurrence" further — at least.

Bourne's journey from chief White House adviser on drug abuse to private citizen came in a dizzying sequence of events that stretched over barely 36 hours.

It began with the disclosure Wednesday morning that the 38-year-old psychiatrist was under investigation by police in the District of Columbia and in suburban Virginia for writing a prescription made out to a phony name. By Wednesday night, Bourne was on paid leave. By Thursday afternoon, he had resigned to spare his long-time friend Jimmy Carter further embarrassment, "especially with Carter's news conference Thursday night," as Bourne put it in an interview.

Four hours after Bourne presented his resignation, Carter stepped before the cameras and in just 107 words reaffirmed his friendship with Bourne, complimented Bourne's public service and expressed his regretful acceptance of the resignation submitted "out of concern for my administration."

Then he announced that with the matter under investigation, he would answer no questions because "I would not want my comments inadvertently to influence those investigations."

He broke that resolve only to assert that he had never been treated by Bourne nor received any drugs from him. He kept the resolve rather than answer whether he shared Bourne's view that attacks on the doctor were really aimed at him.

The whole episode was in sharp contrast to the drawn-out suffering of the administration over the Bert Lance affair, in which another of Carter's close friends became the target of a far larger list of allegations. Lance's departure as head of the Office of Management and Budget came months after the incident first erupted.

And the brevity of the Bourne incident came as a relief to White House staff members who had expressed dismay before the resignation that his difficulties might overwhelm the news conference.

Aides had scheduled the session in prime time to capitalize on what they viewed as a favorable impression created by Carter's just-completed European tour.

Hours before Bourne's resignation was announced by Carter's press secretary, Jody Powell, one mid-level White House aide, who declined to be identified, had said, "People around here have been joking about starting a pool on how long it will take before there is a question unrelated to Bourne's case. A lot of people are dismayed; they feel he should have resigned to avoid embarrassing the president."

Mr. Wooten was a lifelong resident of Greenville. He attended the Greenville City Schools and A & T State University. He was employed by Smith-Waldrop Motors for a number of years.

Surviving him are his wife, Mrs. Elma Carrington Wooten of the home; a foster daughter, Miss Anita Whichard of the home.

Family visitation will be held Saturday from 7:30 to 8:30 p. m. in Flanagan Funeral Chapel.

School Building Lost To Blaze
CLINTON, N. C. (AP) — Fire destroyed one of two classroom buildings at Sampson Middle School Thursday night and four firemen suffered slight injuries battling the blaze, a Clinton Fire Department spokesman said.

The 57-year-old building would have accommodated 267 sixth graders in the coming school year, and school personnel said it will be a problem finding substitute classroom facilities.

The fire was reported about 11 p.m. and Clinton firemen were aided by 13 volunteer units from Sampson County and the Lafayette Village Fire Department from Fayetteville.

The cause of the fire was under investigation. Ann Glover, chairman of the city school board, said it was too early to estimate the damage.

Terrorist Gang Suspect Seized, Jailed In N.Y.

By MARC HUBERT
Associated Press Writer
ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Kristina Berster, a suspected member of the West German Baader-Meinhof terrorist gang, is jailed here on $500,000 bond, charged with trying to walk into the United States from Canada using a bogus passport, the FBI said.

Agents said that three persons with the woman are being sought and may also be members of the terrorist group.

Although West German authorities would not comment on the case, an official in the Karlsruhe, West Germany, prosecutor's office, which has an arrest warrant out for Miss Berster, said she was too minor a figure to bother with an extradition request. However a spokesman for the federal prosecutor's office said that a new arrest warrant was being sought today just in case the Bonn government decided to press for extradition.

The Karlsruhe state official, who asked not to be identified, said Miss Berster had spent seven months in "investigatory custody" in 1971, a suspect in a conspiracy to set off explosives. He had been a member of the Socialist Patients Collective, a leftist-anarchist group that preceded the Baader-Meinhof gang.

Miss Berster, 27, was stopped Sunday as she and the other three tried to cross the border in the sparsely populated area near Alburg, Vt., according to U.S. Attorney William Gray.

FBI agents said Miss Berster showed immigration officials an Iranian passport identifying herself as Shahzad Nobari. She was taken into administrative custody and finally identified Wednesday through fingerprints supplied by West German authorities.

Officials refused to comment on what provoked their suspicion. FBI agents said they did not know how long Miss Berster had been in Canada or why she was there.

The three companions were released because their identification documents appeared to be valid, immigration officials said.

An FBI spokesman in Washington, Homer Boynton, said he believed it was the first time a member of the Baader-Meinhof gang had attempted to enter the United States.

Miss Berster was wanted in West Germany on 1973 charges of criminal conspiracy involving a series of terrorist bombings and the forgery of identity documents. She is also charged with belonging to an illegal organization.

The short, red-haired woman was officially charged with a violation of U.S. passport law Thursday in federal magistrate's court in Burlington, Vt.

"I am not guilty of these things," she said at her arraignment.

Miss Berster was transferred to the Albany County jail late Thursday. Officials at the jail said tight security had been imposed by U.S. marshals.

U.S. Magistrate James Foley has ordered Miss Berster to reappear in federal court at

Speier Hits Cycle In Expos' Victory

By TOM CANAVAN AP Sports Writer

Chris Speier didn't want to steal Pete Rose's headlines — so he made his own in Montreal.

Speier had the best night of his seven-year career, hitting for the cycle (single, double, triple, homer) and driving in six runs Thursday night as the Montreal Expos posted a 7-3 victory over the Atlanta Braves — and he didn't even know he'd achieved the rare feat.

"Cycle? I had no idea, not even after I did it," Speier said. "I didn't realize it until I went out in the infield and I thought about my at-bats."

Speier tripled home a pair of runs in the second inning, singled in the fourth, blasted a three-run homer in the sixth and completed the cycle with an RBI double in the eighth.

And was he impressed? "I don't know if I took Rose's headlines," Speier said. "Not in Cincinnati I won't. He's been in the headlines for 33 days now."

Thirty-three games would be more exact. The Cincinnati Reds captain moved within four games of Tommy Holmes' National League record 37-game hitting streak with a two-out infield single in the fifth inning of the Reds' 8-6 loss to the Philadelphia Phillies.

In the rest of the NL, Pittsburgh edged Los Angeles 7-6 in 10 innings, St. Louis nipped San Diego 3-2, New York swept a double-header from Houston 7-4 and 5-4 and San Francisco's game at Chicago was suspended by darkness in the eighth inning with the Giants leading 9-8. The game will be finished next Friday.

Rose's hit extended his hitting streak to 33 games, tying Hall of Famer Rogers Hornsby for the second-best ever in NL history.

Rose said he's been thinking about the hitting streak — but isn't overly worried about it.

Greg Luzinski and Richie Hebner drove in two runs apiece as Philadelphia moved 3½ games in front of Chicago in the East. Joe Morgan and Ken Henderson had two RBI each for the Reds, who fell 2½ games behind San Francisco in the West.

Expos 7, Braves 3

Woody Fryman was the beneficiary of Speier's 4-for-4 performance, although he needed ninth inning relief from Mike Garman.

Pirates 7, Dodgers 6

Frank Taveras, booed by Pittsburgh fans after making a third-inning error, singled in the 10th and Los Angeles reliever Terry Forster committed a throwing error on the play to give the Pirates their victory over the Dodgers.

Cardinals 3, Padres 2

Pinch-hitter Tony Scott and George Hendrick drilled runcoring singles off slumping San Diego reliever Rollie Fingers, 4-11, in the seventh inning, lifting St. Louis past the Padres and snapping the Cardinals' four-game losing streak.

Mets 7-5, Astros 4-4

John Stearns drove in four runs with a bunt single and a three-run double to lead the Mets past Houston in the first game, then Willie Montanez singled and scored the winning run on pinch-hitter Joel Youngblood's double in the 11th inning of the nightcap. It was New York's first twinbill sweep of the season.

Giants 9, Cubs 8

Jack Clark, who earlier hit a two-run homer, drilled a tiebreaking single in the eighth. It gave San Francisco a lead only moments before darkness halted play in the game that had already been halted three times by rain.

Williamston Beaten In First Game, 10-6

LOUISBURG — Franklin County staged a late-inning rally to defeat Williamston 10-6 last night in the first game of their best-of-seven American Legion playoff series.

The loss was the first of the season for Williamston pitcher Russell Holton, who dropped to 6-1. He started the game and pitched until the eighth, when he was replaced by Charlie Smith.

Williamston scored first in the ballgame when Ken Gurganik walked, Smith reached on a fielder's choice and three walks followed.

Franklin County made it 3-2 in the bottom of the frame. Thomas Crudup singled and Allen Holmes and Stacy Overman walked. Mike Lloyd's infield out plated Crudup and Joe Stepson doubled to score Holmes and Overman.

Williamston tied the game in the fifth. Trent Ange doubled and Glen Cargile singled him in.

Franklin County moved back on top in the seventh with three runs. Roger Strickland and Crudup singled and Jeff Strickland got a hit to score Roger Strickland. Overman doubled in the other two runners.

Williamston scored twice in the eighth to pull to within a run. Latham reached on an error and moved up on a wild pitch. Smith walked and Keel got a single to push Latham in. Ange doubled to score Smith.

Four Franklin County runs wrapped things up in the eighth. Wilson Pierce doubled and Roger Strickland singled him in Crudup singled and an error sent him to third and scored Roger Strickland. Holmes singled to score Crudup and advanced on a balk. Jeff Strickland's infield out moved him to third and he scored on an out by Overman.

Williamston added a final run in the ninth.

Crudup was 3-5, Stepson and the two Stricklands were 2-4 for Franklin County. Ange and Cargile were both 2-4 for Williamston, while Latham and Keel were 2-5.

Williamston goes to Louisburg tonight for the second game of the series before returning home.

More Problems: Leon Spinks Has Accident

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Traffic incidents continue to plague World Boxing Association heavyweight champion Leon Spinks.

The 24-year-old Spinks, who has been arrested five times since March for traffic violations, was involved in a minor auto accident Wednesday, according to security officers at the Palmetto Dunes resort.

However, the accident was not Spinks' fault, said Phil Phillips, resort security chief. No one was injured and no charges were filed.

The officer said a tourist unfamiliar with the island rolled through a stop sign and collided with a 1978 Cadillac driven by Spinks, causing about $200 damage to each car, the officer said.

Spinks was at Hilton Head Island training for his Sept. 15 rematch in New Orleans with Muhammad Ali, whom he defeated last February.

Philips said Spinks, who was fined three times this year for driving without a license, produced a valid Michigan driver's license. The license was apparently obtained after the fines in March, April and June.

North State In Finals; Tar Heel Is Eliminated

TARBORO — A pair of shutouts marked the Area II Little League playoffs yesterday. The Greenville North State All-Stars advanced to the tournament finals with a 15-0 win over Northampton, while Roanoke Rapids ousted the Greenville Tar Heel All-Stars by a 3-0 score.

Roanoke Rapids pitcher Doug Tritt held Tar Heel to just three hits in the ballgame and the team could not get the hits when it needed them. Six runners were in scoring position for Tar Heel, including two men on third, but the team failed to score.

Roanoke Rapids scored two runs in the third and added the final run in the fourth. Les Abshire led off the third, reaching second on an error and Dexter Hardy singled him in. Hardy went to third on hits by Jimmy Smith and Benjamin Arthur and scored when Edward Tant singled.

Mike Seymour scored the RR run in the fourth. He got on by a fielder's choice and stole second. Abshire singled him to third and Dexter Hardy reached on an error to score him.

The second game was a rout from the first inning when North State scored seven runs. Leadoff batter Richard Pace reached second on an error and Kenny Waters singled. Patrick Rand walked to load things up and Marc Gatlin singled in Pace.

Mike Iaboni got a base on balls to score Waters and Mike Smith hit a fielder's choice, with Iaboni being thrown out, to plate Rand. Gatlin scored on an infield out by Stephen Bath and Darryl Pettis reached on an error to score Smith. David Joyner singled and he and Pettis scored when Kenny Waters got a base hit.

North State scored seven more runs in the third and added one in the fourth. Waters, Gatlin and Jester each had two hits for North State, while Henry Bridges had a pair for Northampton. Iaboni was the winning pitcher, limiting Northampton to just three hits.

North State will face Roanoke Rapids for the Area II title today. The winner will advance to the District IV finals next Friday in Morehead City.

Suit Filed By Stones Against AAU

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Banned high jumper Dwight Stones has gone to court challenging the hierarchy of the Amateur Athletic Union and aiming for an overhaul of the rules of amateurism.

The two-time Olympic bronze medal winner wants to regain his amateur status, which was stripped from him by an AAU ruling last June 28.

Stones, 25, filed suit in Superior Court and claimed that the AAU was "corrupt, antiquated and self-serving."

Among his allegations, he charged restraint of trade and involuntary servitude.

Stones and three women track stars — Jane Frederick, Francie Larrieu and Kate Schmidt — were suspended by the AAU because of money they earned in the Superstars competition. Stones received $33,000 and the women lesser amounts.

Stones assigned his money to the Desert Oasis Track Club, a profit corporation of which his family members are the officers. The AAU maintains that amateur athletes must turn over the money to their national and local offices and non-profit organizations.

Stones said his suit does not involve the women, adding, "I'm used to being the guinea pig."

He said he still had the $33,000 and planned to use it for development of his club to train young athletes.

Stones claimed that John Holt, general secretary of the International Amateur Athletic Federation, had approved his plan, an allegation which the AAU says Holt denies.

"I would like for the amateur system to be changed," said

Stones, who explained that his suit was brought because he wants to continue competing, including participating in the 1980 Summer Olympic Games at Moscow.

Thursday, Judge Robert Well ordered AAU officials to appear Aug. 10 to show cause why a preliminary injunction should not be issued. Such an injunction would permit Stones to compete pending further litigation.

"The AAU is making slaves of the athlete," Stones said before Thursday's hearing after his suit was filed by attorney Peter de Krassel.

Stones was in Europe when the AAU suspension was announced and has not been allowed to compete since then.

A pair of eagles were recorded during the week. George Merritt eagled the seventh hole by holing out a 7-wood and Pat Joyner eagled the sixth hole with a 9-iron.
Pat Joyner had her best round ever, an even-par 72. Donna Lane had one of her better rounds, a 78.
The Superball tournament scheduled for last Sunday was rained out. It will be rescheduled at a later date.

Brook Valley Country Club
The Pitt County Junior tournament was held last Tuesday, drawing 35 participants. In the 11 and under boys group, Jim Blount of Greenville was first, while Darryl Blake of Farmville was second.
Gary Hobgood of Farmville won the 12-14 boys group with a 76. Runner-up was Gordon Douglas of Brook Valley with a 77.
Greg House of Greenville took top honors in the 15-17 boys category with a 73, while Steve Woodward followed with a 74. Woodward won a playoff from Mike Moye and Kelly Kee, who also had 74's.
Courtney Lancaster of Farmville took first place in the 15-17 girls division.

In this week's Jack and Jill tournament, the first group is Jennette Cox, Frank Orgel, Betty Shinn and Emil Lacoste. Second is Shirley Martin, Doug Morgan and Ellen and Jim Fleming. Third is Nina Barrett, Bob Helmick and Doris and Andy Boles. Fourth is Kay and Marty Yancey and Joanne and Scrappy Proctor.

The four-man best ball tournament slated for July 29 and 30 has been rescheduled for the fall. Upcoming events include a Junior Captain's Choice for all Brook Valley juniors on August 1 and a Father-Son tournament on August 5 and 6. Signup will be at the club.

Ron Guidry says it's a nice feeling being needed. And, oh boy, do the New York Yankees need him.
Without Guidry's glittering 14-1 record, the defending world champs would feel like the world chumps.
"It's a privilege to know that they are depending on me so much and I can come through for them," said Guidry after fashioning his latest victory, a 4-0, four-hit beauty over the Minnesota Twins Thursday night.
Even with the triumph, the Yankees are still floundering in the middle of the American League East, 13 games behind the front-running Boston Red Sox. They would be even lower than fourth place without Guidry's 13-game credit.
"When Guidry's right, it's a mismatch against everyone," noted Yankee Manager Billy Martin, who has witnessed the collapse of most of his heralded pitching staff this season.

Guidry doesn't see himself as Atlas holding up the world, though.
"When I retire," he said, "everyone will remember who Catfish Hunter was and who Don Gullett was. I just want them to remember that I pitched for the Yankees, too."
In other American League action, the Milwaukee Brewers beat the Boston Red Sox 8-6 and the Kansas City Royals edged the Texas Rangers 2-1. The Chicago-Baltimore game was postponed by rain.
Guidry became the major leagues' first 14-game winner with his shutout over the Twins. The left-hander, who won 13 straight games at the start of the season before losing to Milwaukee on July 7, struck out eight and walked three.

The Yankees scored two runs in the first inning, one on an RBI single by Thurman Munson and the other on a balk by loser Darrell Jackson, 2-3, for all the runs they needed.
Brewers 8, Red Sox 6
Charlie Moore's solo homer in the third inning and two-run single in a four-run fourth and strong relief pitching by Ed Rodriguez led Milwaukee over Boston.
Rodriguez, 2-3, earned the victory after taking over in the second inning. The right-hander pitched into the ninth, when he gave up his sixth hit, a two-run single to Rice, before needing last-out relief help from Bob McClure. The game was delayed by rain two hours, 23 minutes at the start.
Royals 2, Rangers 1
Steve Braun's pinch single with two out in the ninth inning scored Willie Wilson from third, leading Kansas City over Texas. Wilson ran for Clint Hurdle, who singled off Doyle Alexander, 6-6. Tom Poquette then singled up the middle to move the fleet Wilson to third and set up Braun's game-winning hit.
"That was probably the most important hit I've gotten," said Braun. "I was really afraid he (left fielder Al Oliver) was going to catch it. I knew I hit the ball well, but I was afraid I hit it too well."

Green Works Hard; Gains Philly Lead

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Hubert Green says that golf comes easy to a lot of players, but he has to work hard to maintain his reputation as one of the game's best players.
"Normally I get lax mentally," Green explained Thursday after shooting a six-underpar 65 for the first-round lead in the $250,000 Philadelphia Golf Classic by one stroke over Jack Nicklaus.
"I have to work on my game. I'm not like some players who just go out there and play," Green said following his round of an eagle, five birdies and just one bogey.
"Take putting," said Green. "I've just worked hard on it. With my stance and swing I have to work on it. I don't have the natural swing of some of the other players."
Green said he was playing pretty well and expressed confidence that he could continue his performance through the final three days of this designated tournament.
"I should play well the next two or three weeks," predicted Green, who claims he never makes predictions.
Green has a stock answer when asked if his record score of 271 over the Whitemarsh Valley Country Club will be broken this year.
"I leave predictions for weathermen and radio announcers," says the winner of 12 tour events since turning pro in 1970.
The odds are that Green's 17-under-par triumph at Whitemarsh in 1974 will be shattered. He already is six under, and this is a designated field, meaning that all the stars — except South African Gary Player, who was excused — are playing.
In addition, Nicklaus, who won the British Open last week for the third time, seems to be at the top of his game.
Another factor is that the field of 156 is finding the 6,615-yard course an easy target.
Going into today's second round, eight players were at 67, 11 at 68, 12 at 69, 24 at 70 — a total of 57 breaking par. There were 19 at par 71.

It is an understatement to say the course took a beating Thursday.
Both Green and Nicklaus said the rough was short and the greens soft, perfect conditions for low scores.
Ben Crenshaw, who tied for second in the British Open, two strokes behind Nicklaus, led the group at 67. Also at that figure were Bill Rogers, Hale Irwin, Dave Graham, Bruce Lietzke and rookie Jim Nelford, a switch-hitter from British Columbia.
Andy Bean, the tour's leading money winner and a three-time winner this year, was at 68, while Tom Watson, another triple winner and second on the money list, was at 69, along with Lee Trevino.
U.S. Open champion Andy North, Lanny Wadkins, Gene Littler, Dave Hill and Mark Hayes were among those at 70.

Young Paces Field In U.S. Women's Open

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Donna Caponi Young had the lead and some high hopes. Hollis Stacy was bugged by a bee. And remarkable Nancy Lopez had herself in position and was simply waiting for the putts to start falling.
"I'm really hitting the ball well and I'm rolling the putts really well. I'm sure they'll be falling tomorrow," said Lopez after a 71 had left her three shots off the veteran Young's record-matching pace Thursday in the first round of the U.S. Women's Open Golf Championship.
"That was a good score," Lopez said after matching par over the hot, humid hills of the 6,115-yard Country Club of Indianapolis course.
"Now I can improve. If you have a bad first round, you have to fight just to get back in the tournament. If you have a really low score, it's hard to improve and that can bother you mentally."
"I'm in good position. And I expect to improve."
The improvement could come in the putting, often the strong part of Lopez' game. The largest gallery of the day watched her miss a pair of par-saving five-foot putts and fall again on a seven-footer for a birdie.

The 21-year-old Lopez has captured the fancy of the nation's golfing millions with her spectacular exploits that have produced seven victories, including a record five in a row, in her rookie season that ends this week.
Young, playing late in the hazy day with the heat and humidity reaching toward the mid-90's, birdied her last hole for a three-under-par 68 that put her two strokes ahead of the field, tied the best first-round score ever in the women's Open.

System Working Well: Carter

WASHINGTON — President Carter said Thursday that he believes the criminal justice system has worked well in the Wilmington 10 case, and he said he does not consider them political prisoners.

Carter said at a news conference that the Justice Department has reviewed the case of nine black men and one white woman and "so far as I know there is no legal basis for further action on the case by the Justice Department."

Jack Cozort, legal counsel to Gov. Jim Hunt, met with an official of the U.S. State Department's human rights division earlier this week to discuss the Wilmington 10 case. He said the State Department does not consider the Wilmington 10 political prisoners.

The Wilmington 10 were convicted of charges stemming from the firebombing of a grocery store during racial violence in Wilmington in 1971. The group, which has maintained its innocence, has been supported by civil rights activists throughout the country and has been cited by some as an example of political prisoners in the United States.

Meanwhile, in Raleigh the United Church of Christ's Commission for Racial Justice has sent Carter a list of the people it considers political prisoners in the United States.

The commission has called for creation of a panel to study the issue of political prisoners in America.

Joyner said the list was compiled by the Rev. Ben Chavis, a member of the Wilmington 10, whom the commission considers "the best United States example of a political prisoner."

Andy Young Has Vocal Black 'Constituency'

PRICHARD, Ala. (AP)—A national board of black mayors, accusing President Carter of insulting blacks in his reprimand of U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young, says American government needs "more of Ambassador Young's type of honesty and candor."

"We, like Andrew Young, believe it cannot be gained that there are political prisoners in American jails," said the 176-member National Conference of Black Mayors.

The criticism of Carter was given in a nine-page statement released Thursday by the conference executive director, Michelle Kourouma, in Atlanta, and the conference president, Mayor A.J. Cooper of Prichard.

A conference spokesman, Jerome Ford of Atlanta, said the statement had the approval of the group's 26-member board of directors.

The statement referred to President Carter's recent reprimand of Young for commenting that there are "hundreds, perhaps thousands" of political prisoners in America. Young, who offered clarifications to his comment, apologized to Carter.

The statement from the black mayors said Carter failed to grasp "the contemporary reality of political prisoners in America."

More honesty on the order of Young's, it said, might place the United States "in bold contrast to the stark Soviet posture of both denying the existence of human rights problems and giving governmental sanction to the actions causing the problems."

It added, "The reprimand of Ambassador Andrew Young for stating the plain truth with regard to real life in America, after an orchestrated chorus of abusive commentary from conservative white America, is an insult to the black voters who paraded to the polls to provide the margin of difference in electing Jimmy Carter."

"The contemporary reality of political prisoners in America must be understood and accepted by the President," the statement said.

It said examples of political repression were the Wilmington 10 case in North Carolina, "the Mark Hampton murder in Chicago, the Black Panther trials, the Chicago Seven case and the contempt trial of some of the lawyers involved, the FBI's illegal efforts to discredit the civil rights movement, and the FBI's COINTEL PRO operation and the legendary Angela Davis case . . ."

"These examples," it said, "do not include the thousands of blacks and whites sent to jail for essentially political activity in support of unpopular causes."

"More importantly, all of these illustrations do not even begin to address the many Americans consigned to eternity by summary execution by American law enforcement officials without the benefit of judge, jury or appellate process."

Irv Joyner of the commission's Criminal Justice Program said in a statement issued with the list Thursday that it was drawn up in "light of the confusion, publicity and criticism directed at United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young for statements to the effect that there are political prisoners in the United States."

Complain Over Porno Film Tax

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)—France is violating its obligations to the European Common Market by taxing pornographic films, the nine-nation group's executive commission says.

The commission sent a notice to the French government explaining that its tax on porno movies and films that incite to violence violates "treaty provisions concerning services, the free movement of goods and aid."

The commission said it was going to start proceedings against the tax in the European Court of Justice.

Red Cross To Offer Course

The Greenville Recreation and Parks Department will offer a Red Cross course in Standard First Aid and Personal Safety beginning Tuesday, July 25.

The courses are to be held on Tuesday and Thursday nights from 7 to 9 p.m. Interested persons are to pre-register by calling 758-7340.

There is no charge for this course and all necessary materials will be supplied except for textbook and manual.

WILL BE READY — Former CIA Director George Bush isn't saying whether he'll run for president, but added in a Sun Valley, Idaho talk last night "I'm certainly doing everything I should be doing if I intend to run". Bush said he'll announce next year whether he will seek the Republican presidential nomination. (AP Laserphoto)

Planning Grants

A total of $209,500 in planning grants to 39 local governments has been announced by Howard N. Lee, Secretary of Natural Resources and Community Development.

The Federally financed grants are matched on a 60-40 basis by local governments. They will be used to undertake projects ranging from development of zoning ordinances to land use and housing conditions surveys.

Local area grants include: Bethel, $1,200 to develop a thoroughfare plan; Farmville, $6,600 to extend its land use plan, update its zoning ordinance, to develop a master drainage plan and to develop a monitoring and evaluation system; and Fountain, $632 to develop a zoning ordinance. The largest grant given statewide was the one given Farmville.

Uniting To Combat Reassignment Plan

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—In an effort to stop a pupil reassignment plan, 44 families have joined together in a suit against the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Board of Education.

The suit, filed Thursday in U.S. District Court here, contends that using the plan to re-establish racial balances in some schools will violate the constitutional rights of children involved in the shift.

The plan, scheduled for implementation this fall, would move nearly 4,800 pupils in the 79,000-pupil system to new schools.

The aim is to re-establish balances set several years ago by a federal court order. The racial makeup of several schools has changed in recent years because of shifting housing patterns.

Plaintiffs in the suit contend that many of the elementary school pupils involved will have to spend two to three hours a day on buses under the plan. The suit says the compulsory reassignments will "unjustly and discriminatorily impose upon pupils a burdensome and harmful disruption of their daily lives."

All the plaintiffs are white, but the suit says the reassignment plan will affect both black and white students. Darrell Myers, one of the plaintiffs and a spokesman for the group, said the suit "really focuses

Act To Control 'Moonlighting'

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Gov. Jim Hunt's administration has adopted a new policy to control moonlighting by state employees, requiring that state workers report their second jobs to their agency heads.

Hunt said the agency heads will then decide if the second jobs conflict with the employees' state duties.

"The intent of the policy is primarily to avoid conflicts of interest and to be sure that the employer (the agency head) knows which employees have second jobs," said state Personnel Director Harold Webb, who announced the policy June 28.

Webb said Thursday that it was not the intent of the policy to stop secondary employment by state workers. He said the purpose of the policy is to ensure that management is aware that a worker has a second job, and that the worker is spending the appropriate amount of time on his state job.

Speakers At Church Series

Elder Tyrone Turnage will be the guest speaker tonight at 8 as Little Creek Free Will Baptist Church begins a weekend of church anniversary services.

The Wilson's Ensemble and Male Chorus will be the host sponsors for tonight's services.

Elder Jesse L. Wilson, pastor, will conduct the Sunday 11 a.m. services.

At 3 p.m. Sunday, the Rev. E. B. Williams and the Philippi Disciples Church of Greenville will be the guest participants. The ministers of Little Creek will serve as sponsors. The public is invited to attend these services.

Yesterday's Cryptquip — PRINTER'S DEVIL PROPOSED TO SEE NO EVIL.

Today's Cryptquip clue: P equals D
 The Cryptquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Shakeup In Leadership At Columbia Pictures

By KRISTIN GOFF
 AP Business Writer
 NEW YORK (AP) — Ousted Columbia Pictures President Alan Hirschfeld says he was fired because he resisted attempts to rehire production chief David Begelman after Begelman admitted misusing company funds.

Hirschfeld, 42, was fired from his $250,000 job Thursday after he refused to resign as president and chief executive officer of Columbia Pictures Industries Inc. Hirschfeld, a former investment banker who had run the company for five years, said he was backed by only one of the seven board members who voted. Chairman Leo Jaffe.

The firing "is a direct outgrowth of the David Begelman affair, during which there were serious differences of opinion and judgment between certain members of the board and myself," Hirschfeld said.

But Dan Lufkin, chairman of the board's executive committee, described the split as "a no fault divorce" that "had nothing to do with the Begelman affair."

"...the focus issue was the lack of unity in fundamentals: development and procedure and strategy," Lufkin said.

"The fact is that you are running a company and there is no treading water. You do everything to achieve harmony and everything was done to achieve harmony but it wasn't achieved."

Several weeks ago, Begelman — who had pleaded no contest to one count of grand theft — was fined, ordered to make restitution by making a movie on the dangers of drugs and placed on probation in Los Angeles.

Begelman had admitted misusing company money, including improperly cashing checks made out to actor Cliff Robertson and others.

Neither Columbia nor Robertson pressed charges against Begelman.

New Board Trying To Keep Family Intact

James H. Bailey, new chairman of the Pitt County Area Mental Health Board, lauded his predecessor, Bill McDonald, for his leadership and service to the board at the monthly meeting Wednesday.

McDonald, Dr. Malene Irons, John Mewborn and Ray Rogers were designated board committee chairpersons. Raymond Reddrick will serve as vice chairman with Dr. Stephen Creech as executive secretary.

Among items of business were approvals of bylaws, personnel, and finance. A revised fee scale for the Respite Care Program for mentally retarded persons was approved. Fees for an alcohol education program were also approved.

Area Director Creech reported that a transitional home, halfway facility for persons released from Cherry Hospital, is being sought. Such a facility would make the 12th essential service mandated by federal law provided by Pitt County Mental Health Center.

ARTIST DIES

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Artist John Craig Sheppard, 64, whose Western-theme oil and water-color paintings have won international recognition, died Wednesday of cancer.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Herbert Henderson, still stunned by his wife's death 12 days ago, is trying to be both mother and father to his 16 children and hold his family together.

Maggie Henderson, who was 41, collapsed at a church service and died a short while later of a stroke.

"I'm sure going to try," said Henderson, who brings home $400 a month from his job as a truck driver for the state. "Me and Maggie both wanted bad for them to have an education and make something of themselves."

Twelve of the Henderson children still live at home.

Until her death, Maggie Henderson cared for her husband and children, who range in age from 4 to 24, with quiet dignity.

A story in the Charlotte Observer gave her family and friends a chance to praise "Mama" and ponder life without her.

"The thing about Mama is she always wanted us to do things together," said 16-year-old Douglas Henderson, a star football player at his junior high school. "When we lived in the country, she would take the least ones out in the woods or the fields for a picnic." "I cannot understand how she did it," said Raymelle House, a friend. "She said there was pride in doing the best they could, but most certainly they need and deserve whatever help they can get."

Asked why they had so many children, Douglas Henderson said he didn't know, "except that she loved us all and cared for us. She was quiet and patient, but she could easily keep us in line."

He said his mother had high blood pressure "and she denied herself. She would try to hide it when she felt bad. Sometimes she couldn't hide it and we'd find out she was out of medicine and hadn't got more."

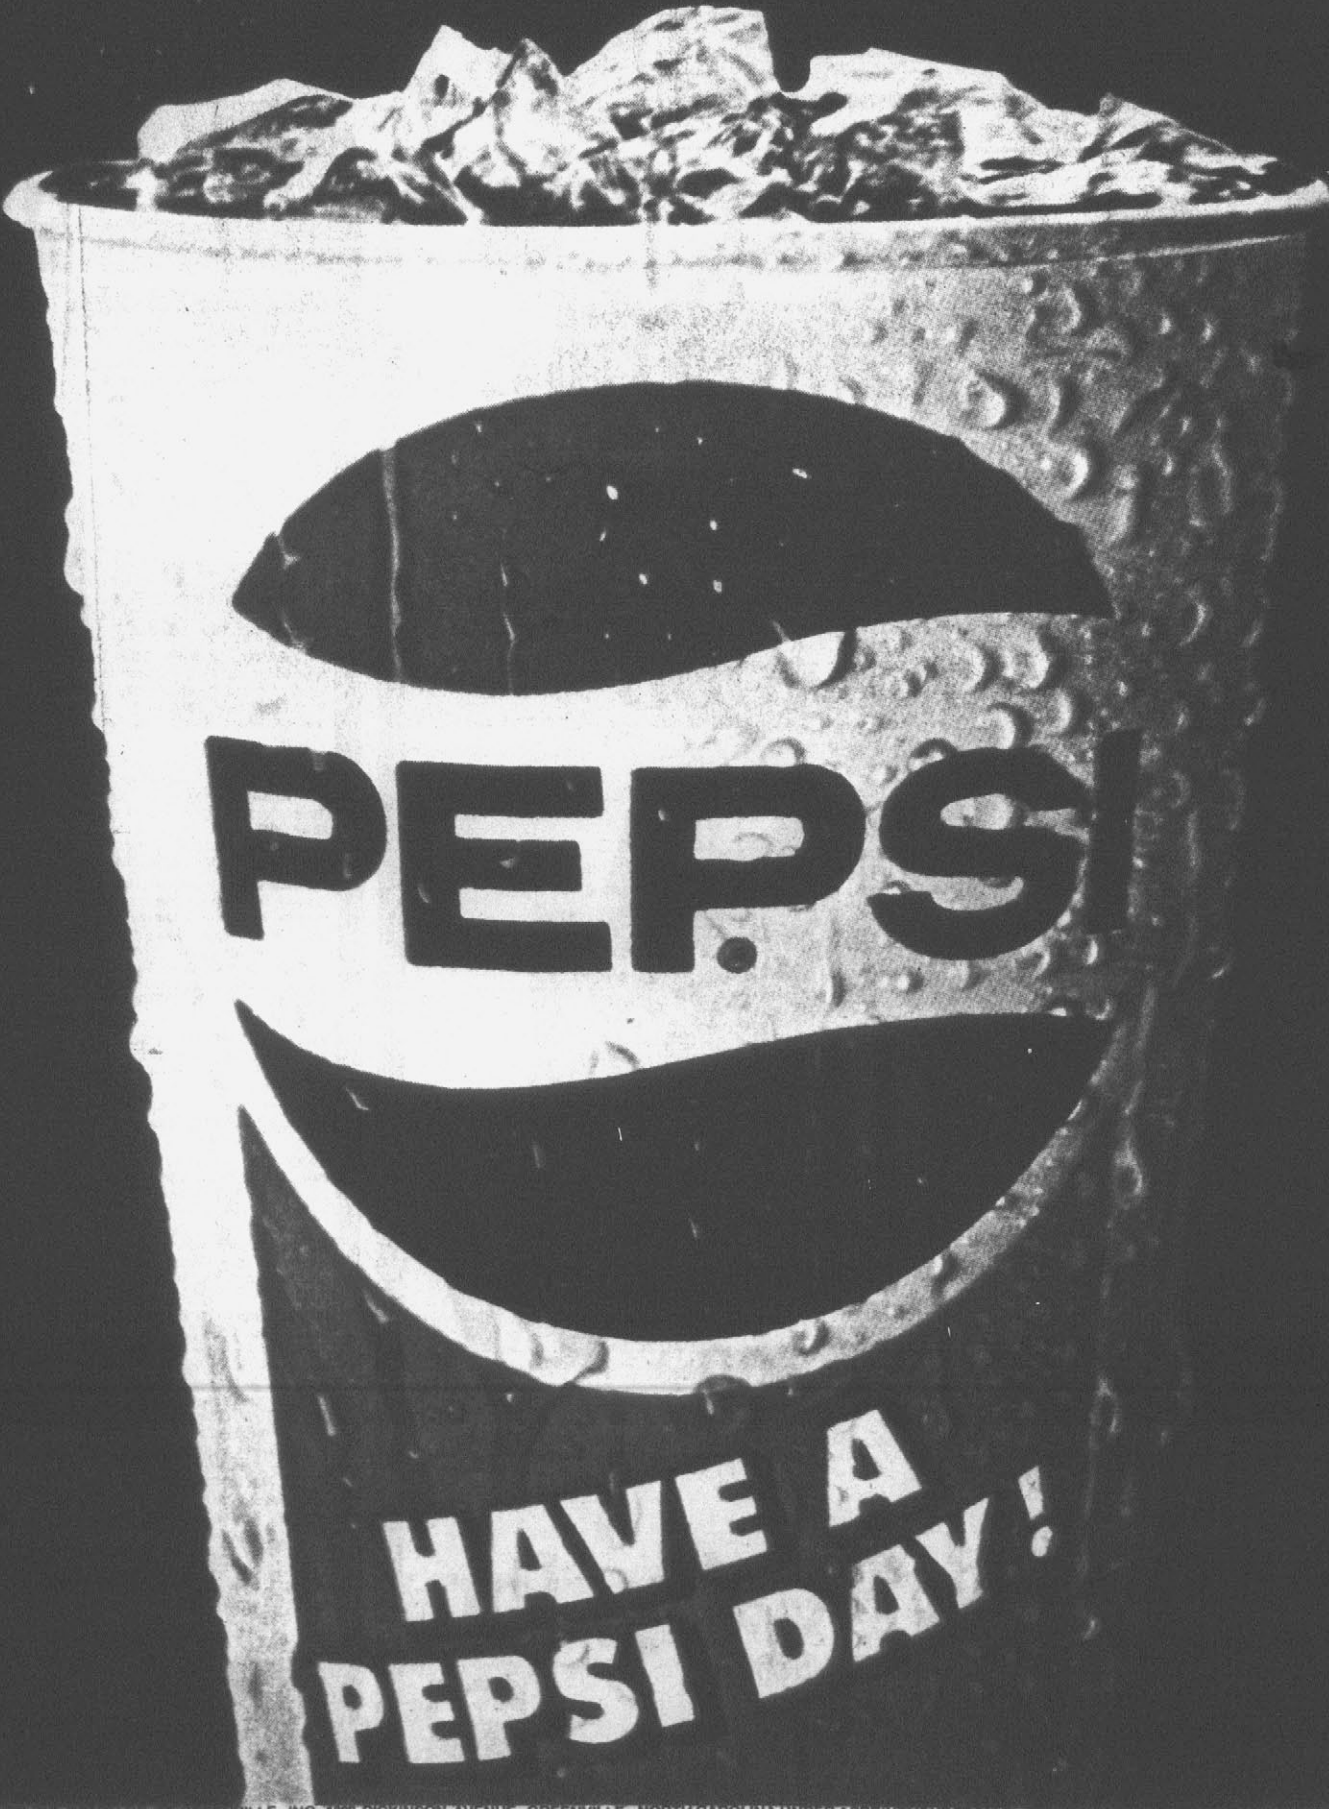

His brother, Michael, was playing guitar at Bible Way Holiness Church "when Mama got up to clap her hands and just toppled over."

"All of us wanted her to be proud of us," Douglas said. "Mama was special."
