

Report Jobless Rate In July Saw Sharp Increase

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Unemployment rose sharply in July, climbing to 6.2 percent of the labor force, with teen-agers and women bearing the brunt of the increased joblessness, the government reported today.

throughout most employment categories. The Labor Department gave the following breakdown in July joblessness compared with the previous month:

- Adult men, 4.1 percent, up from 3.9 percent in June.
- Adult women, 6.5 percent, up from 6.1.
- Teen-agers, 16.3 percent, up from 14.2.
- Whites, 5.3 percent, up from 4.9.
- Blacks 12.5 percent, up from 11.9.
- Full-time workers, 5.7 percent, up from 5.2.
- White-collar workers, 3.8 percent, up from 3.5.
- Blue-collar workers, 6.9 percent, up from 6.5. The department said overall unemployment rose by 440,000, with teen-agers accounting for about half of the increase. Total unemployment in July was just under 6.2 million, while employment was 94.4 million.

The July increase more than reversed all of the employment gains in June, when unemployment had dropped to 5.7 percent from 6.1 percent in May.

A Labor Department analyst said the July increase in joblessness was "as hard to understand" as the steep June decline, and he said statistical problems could have accounted for much of the change.

"When something goes up so sharply and then falls back in the next month, there is a tendency to think the former figure was aberrant," he said.

The analyst also noted that a separate jobs measurement in July showed that non-farm employment had actually increased, rising by 265,000 jobs, a further indication of statistical problems.

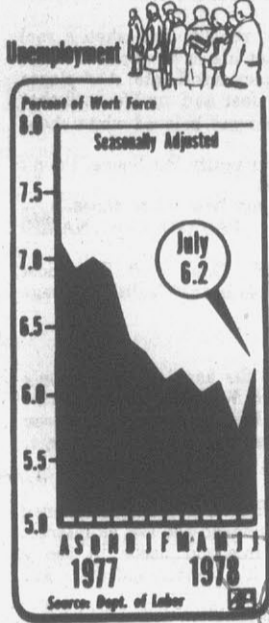

The difference between the two measurements, one taken in a household survey and the other provided by employers, is "not technically explainable ...

there is something unreliable about one of them," said the analyst, who declined use of his name.

However, he said the 6.2 percent unemployment rate in July was a good indication of overall joblessness in the economy.

Carter administration economists say the 5.7 percent June jobless rate could turn out to be the best for the year, in view of the moves underway to slow the growth of the economy to combat inflation.

They said they hoped the public would give it credit for doing better than expected in reducing unemployment.

$4 Billion Farm Loan Bill Signed By Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter today signed a $4 billion farm-loan bill that he said would allow some debt-ridden farmers to stay in business.

"The act I am signing today will give many farmers an opportunity to refinance the debts they incurred during the past period of low prices," the president said in a statement issued as he signed the bill in the White House rose garden.

"For some, this will mean the difference between staying in farming and being driven out." The bill provides $4 billion in emergency loan authority for roughly 60,000 farmers who went into debt after farm prices fell from their record high levels in 1973-74.

It allows farmers who qualify to consolidate and refinance their debts.

The bill also creates a special program to allow beginning and low-income farm families to get low-interest mortgages, and it raises loan ceilings and the total available credit under Farmers Home Administration programs.

Other provisions of the bill authorize spending for water and sewer projects for small communities, and make credit available from the Farmers Home Administration for limited family partnerships, family farm corporations and farmer cooperatives.

Carter took the opportunity to point out that farm prices have been rising. "Farm income is expected to rise by at least $5 billion, or 25 per cent, this year," he said.

"In 40 years, this is the most far-reaching and effective farm credit legislation that the Congress has passed," the president said of the loan bill.

He said it would cost the taxpayers a "minimal" amount of money to subsidize the loans to farmers.

Pitt Demos Plan Large Turnout To Greet President

By STUART SAVAGE

Pitt County Democrat Executive Committee chairman Betty Speir said today that members of the Pitt executive committee and, "a lot of other people," are expected to travel to Wilson, tomorrow to see Pres. Jimmy Carter.

According to Mrs. Speir, the State Democratic Executive Committee has scheduled an 11 a.m. meeting in Wilson, Saturday, before Carter's expected arrival at 1:20 p.m.

Mrs. Speir said posters and handbills were distributed in Pitt Thursday and today, publicizing the president's visit, which is designed to aid Democratic senatorial candidate John Ingram's campaign and demonstrate Carter's interest and support for tobacco.

She said she received telephone calls Wednesday from "White House advance men," expressing the hope that "Greenville and Pitt County will be well represented," because, "the president will speak on issues of interest to them."

Mrs. Speir noted that State Democrat Party Chairman Betty McCain has sent Mrs. J. B. Spilman of Greenville a "VIP pass into a special section," for Carter's visit. But according to the Pitt party official, "there will be no seating arrangements for anybody."

Carter's only public appearance will be on the grounds of the city library, with his speech scheduled for 1:30 to 1:45 p.m.

"There'll be plenty of parking space and plenty of space available for those who come," Mrs. Speir noted, adding that bands will entertain those who gather at the library before Carter arrives.

Commenting on her VIP invitation, Mrs. Spilman said "I've got tickets and really want to go."

Reflecting the staunch

Democrat noted that she was on the same program with the late Pres. Franklin D. Roosevelt in Charlotte, then was a guest on Roosevelt's yacht during a visit to Manteo.

"I was on the committee when Kennedy (on a campaign tour before his election as president) came to Greenville and sat on stage with him," Mrs. Spilman noted.

She added that, "I had a special invitation to Truman's inauguration, but I didn't attend," because of illness, although, "I still have the invitation framed."

Mrs. Spilman added, "I'm looking forward to Carter. I think he is one of the greatest presidents we'll ever have in this world."

Henry Oglesby of Grifton, who will attend the State Executive Committee meeting, said, "I'm going, I'll be there."

"I certainly think it's a great thing for North Carolina," to have the president visit. "As far as I know, it's the nearest a president has been to us," since the late president Lyndon Johnson visited Rocky Mount.

"The people," according to Oglesby, "whether they like his (Carter's) program or not, should turn out and welcome him."

"I just think it's great the president is coming, regardless of what conditions he's coming under."

Alterations

WILSON, N.C. (AP) — White House officials issued a revised schedule Thursday for President Carter's three and one-half hour visit to this eastern North Carolina town Saturday.

Carter had been scheduled to arrive by jet at Rocky Mount-Wilson Regional Airport at noon, but the arrival time was pushed back to 1:30 p.m. The arrival is not open to the public.

The president will give a speech at the Wilson County Public Library at 1:45 p.m., attend a luncheon with invited guests at 2:40 p.m. and visit a tobacco warehouse at 3:35 p.m.

Carter is scheduled to leave by plane at 4:50 p.m.

Price Dip Thursday On Greenville Mart

Prices were down Thursday from the first two auction days on the Greenville Tobacco Market as the percentage of non-descript tobacco on the warehouse floors increased.

J. N. Bryan, sales supervisor of the Tobacco Board of Trade here, said that the market averaged $115.72 per hundred pounds yesterday as 762,839 pounds sold for $882,762. Opening day average here was $119.56 while Wednesday's figure slipped to $119.03.

Stabilization receipts remained low Thursday, Bryan said, as only 2.5 percent of the total volume was designated for the government loan program.

The market figures for the third sales day brought season totals to 2,588,611 pounds sold for $3,059,763, an overall average of $118.20.

With quality still remaining high, Bryan said that offerings yesterday consisted of 75 percent primings and lugs, five percent cutters, and 20 percent non-descript. Non-descript tobacco accounted for 15 percent of Wednesday's volume.

Caution Any Change In Tobacco Price Support Program Will Hurt N.C.

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
SMITHFIELD, N.C. (AP) — Any change in the federal tobacco price support system may endanger North Carolina's economy, a house agriculture subcommittee heard in special hearings here today.

"With an overall industry the size of tobacco, it should be obvious all of North Carolina would be affected if the tobacco program ceased," state Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham said. "Every businessman and woman in North Carolina would feel the crush of depression. The losses would be incalculable."

A four-member congressional panel headed by Rep. Walter Jones, D-N.C., held the hearing to gather evidence for future congressional battles with tobacco foes over the support system.

Rep. Charles Whitley, D-N.C., whose district includes Smithfield, Rep. John Jenrette, D-S.C., and Rep. Keith Sebelius, R-Kan., heard state officials, industry spokesmen and local farmers stress their dependence on supports.

The hearing is one of a series, following one in Georgia. Jones said more

Sept. 10 Is For Grandparents

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's grandparents will be honored with a day of their own next month.

President Carter on Thursday declared Sept. 10 "National Grandparents Day." He said the elders of each family have the responsibility for setting the moral tone for the family and for passing on the traditional values of our nation to their children and grandchildren.

hearings will be held in Kentucky and Washington.

Tobacco, Graham said, is a $1 billion cash crop in North Carolina, and nearly 300,000 persons work in growing and manufacturing tobacco and cigarettes in the state.

"Any change in our basic tobacco price support program would, of course, endanger the structure and foundation of Tar Heel agriculture," Sen. Robert Morgana, D-N.C., said in a statement read to the committee.

Bruce Flye, chairman of Tobacco Associates of Battleground, said removal of the price supports would not halt production of tobacco or cigarettes. But, he said, it would destroy the crops' price stability and small farming.

"The abandonment of the program means that we will simply revert to the bust or boom days of the 20s and 30s, based on survival of the fittest," he said.

Communication Links For Visiting Carter Await At Every Turn

WILSON — John Byrd, district commercial manager for Carolina Telephone in Wilson has mixed emotions about President Carter's visit here Saturday.

When Carter's plane touches down at the Rocky Mount-Wilson Airport, the end of a telephone line will be lying beside the runway where the plane is expected to stop so that the crew can be contacted at any time during his stay.

The president also must have contact at all times with national defense and other government functions.

Telephones travel with him and await him at every point on his daily schedule. The burden of that responsibility lies with the local telephone company where he is visiting.

Byrd said telephone company employees have the heavy burden of being certain that the president's lines of communication with the world remain open during the Wilson visit.

Before the advanced men and Secret Service agents arrived in Wilson to prepare for Saturday's visit, eight telephone lines were ready at their motel. Switchboard and radio equipment brought by the government people a week ago was operational Tuesday, with lines into Carolina's Telephone's Wilson office and out to the five points on the president's itinerary, including fast three-digit dialing from two meters through the central office to the government switchboard.

The 19 radio channels — just lines for the government — include five to the downtown control center, five to the airport, three to the warehouse where the president will see a mock tobacco auction, and a half-dozen to the motel where he will rest, Byrd explained.

The telephone company official noted that radio and television stations will be serviced with lines, while 40 long distance lines have been set up for the news media, with 20 at the First Baptist Church and others at the various points on the itinerary, along with five local circuits and two teletype circuits.

Byrd would not estimate how much the operation would cost. However, as an example, he explained that the five radio lines and two telephone lines to the airplane and the president's "holding room" at the airport cost $1,810.50.

Pitt Industrial Mission To Minnesota Is Planned

Bruce Beasley Jr. of Fountain, chairman of the Pitt County Development Commission, announced that an industrial mission has been set by the commission for the Minneapolis-St. Paul areas of Minnesota Aug. 6-10.

Beasley said that the purpose of the trip is to make presentations of the Greenville-Pitt County area to over 20 industrial firms headquartered in Minnesota. Joining the chairman on the trip will be Reese Hart, commission executive director; Jim Aarstad, deputy director of the Industrial Development Division of the N.C. Department of Commerce; and Jim Latham, industrial development representative of the Commerce Department.

Beasley pointed out, "Although we have many active industrial prospects now, the purpose of our visit is to present our area to firms identified as being prime future candidates for capital investments in the southeast."

He said the commission has been working with the Department of Commerce and with Dun and Bradstreet in isolating those industrial firms with potential facility needs which could be satisfied by locating in the Pitt County area.

According to Beasley, "Pitt County has been very successful in achieving tentative capital investment this year. We have several available buildings which are on the verge of being sold."

He added, "We have had very good plant expansions at North American Fiberglass and at Regional Storage in Greenville and at Sterling Radiator in Farmville, and we expect at least one additional major expansion announcement prior to the end of 1978."

He said the trip, however, "will enable our commission to cultivate future contacts and to work even closer with the officials of the Department of Commerce toward realizing future economic growth for our area."

Commission records indicate that over 21,000 persons are currently employed in Pitt County, with 7,200 working directly in manufacturing. Average weekly manufacturing wage in the county is approximately $182 per week, which is more than 51 percent above the weekly manufacturing wage paid in 1972.

Beasley said that some of the firms scheduled for visits by the mission participants include American Hoist Josten's, Minnesota Rubber Co., 3M, Pillsbury Co., Control Data, General Mills, Raygo Inc., Electric Machinery Manufacturing Co., and the Hormel Co.

Plane Cleaner Now Does Repairs

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two years ago, Laurel Bernia was cleaning airline passenger cabins and thinking it was time to start doing something else. Today she is a fully licensed mechanic for Continental Airlines.

It wasn't easy. Married and the mother of four, Mrs. Bernia put in a full day at a technical trade school and worked the night shift at the airline.

"It was rough," says the 31-year-old blonde, "not because I was a woman in a man's world — the hard part was squeezing 30 hours into every day."

In fact, mechanical things come easily to her and always have.

"We lived way out in rural east Texas — just my mom, me and my brother and sister. We had an old water pump that used to break down about once a month and I'd fix it. When I got old enough to drive, I worked on the car, too."

She thinks there are a lot of women who would make good mechanics, despite the stereotype assumption that most of them can't figure out how to use a screwdriver.

"You have to be able to see how things go together and how they work in relation to each other, and you need manual dexterity," she notes, "but none of that has anything to do with which sex you are."

Since airlines do most of their maintenance at night, that's when Mrs. Bernia works. She does engine and airframe repair, tows aircraft around with tractor-tugs, and is learning to taxi Continental's big DC-10 and 727 jets between the maintenance hangar and the passenger boarding gates — a job done by airline mechanics, not pilots.

Mrs. Bernia, who is 5 feet, 6 inches tall and weighs 125 pounds, says you have to be in good physical condition to do the work required of an airline mechanic, "but you don't have to be King Kong."

"We have power-driven and hydraulic tools for certain jobs that just can't be done with muscle, and of course the men use them, too."

She is very enthusiastic about her job and about the support she got during her two-year effort from her husband and her children, who range in age from 5 to 15.

"The kids think it's neat, and they like telling people what their mom does for a living and then watching their reaction. My husband has fun announcing that he's done all the hard work he's going to do and now it's my turn," she says.

Her co-workers and supervisors say they enjoy having her around and that she is a competent professional. William Sanders, the Federal Aviation Administration inspector who gave Mrs. Bernia her licensing examination, says she is the first woman he has ever tested and that she did extremely well.

Mrs. Bernia and her husband own a towing service in Hawthorne, a suburb of Los Angeles, and he takes care of the administrative end. Does she do repair work on the trucks or the family cars?

"Not on your life!" she says. "We've got a mechanic to do that."

PEACH SLUMP AND STRAWBERRY GRUNT—This version of an old-time dessert is easy to make in a modern skillet with a non-stick surface.

Ever Hear Of A Slump-Grunt?

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

DEAR CECILY: A friend and I decided to ask you to settle an argument over the old-fashioned puddings called slumps and grunts. One of us says they are the same. One of us thinks there is a difference between them. — STRONG-MINDED.

DEAR STRONG-MINDED: I'm afraid I've never had time for all the research I should like to do on slumps and grunts, and so I suggest we let a dictionary settle the argument.

According to Webster, a slump is made by dropping biscuit dough on any kind of cooking fruit; a grunt is made by dropping biscuit dough on cooking berries. Your query inspired me to try a recipe for a slump-grunt — biscuit dough dropped on peaches and strawberries.

For this recipe we used a new skillet with a premium non-stick surface that worked perfectly. Slumps and grunts may be made in the oven, but in hot weather the skillet versions made on top of the range are enticing. — C.B.

PEACH SLUMP AND STRAWBERRY GRUNT

- 1 cup sugar
- 1 cup boiling water
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 1/2 pounds (6 medium) firm-ripe peaches
- 1 cup buttermilk baking mix
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1 teaspoon finely grated lemon rind
- Light cream or half-and-half
- 1 cup halved medium-size strawberries

In a 10-inch premium non-stick skillet, over medium heat, stir together the 1 cup sugar, water and lemon juice until the sugar dissolves; set aside off heat.

Fill a 3-quart saucepan about three-quarters full of hot tap water; bring to a boil; remove from heat. At once add the peaches. Let stand until skins loosen — about 2 minutes. With a slotted spoon remove the peaches and rinse under cold running water. Slip off skins and slice between 1/4 and 1/2 inch thick — there should be 3 cups.

In a 1-quart bowl stir together the baking mix, the 1 tablespoon sugar and the lemon rind. Add 1-3rd cup light cream and stir until a soft dough forms; set aside.

Over medium heat bring the sugar mixture in the skillet to a boil; reduce the heat so the syrup simmers. Stir in the peaches. At once drop the dumpling mixture by tablespoonfuls, in 8 portions and well apart, over the simmering peaches. Let simmer, uncovered, for 10 minutes. Cover tightly and simmer until a cake tester inserted in the center of a dumpling comes out clean — 10 minutes longer. Turn off the heat but leave the skillet on the unit. Put the strawberries, cut side down, over the peaches and, if you like, garnish each dumpling with one. With a tablespoon, drizzle a little of the peach syrup over each strawberry. Serve at once, using a large plastic spoon to remove the dumplings and fruit to individual bowls. Pass "pour" cream.

Makes 8 servings.

Is It Proper To Send Announcements?

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: We are adopting a baby and plan to bring it home from the hospital when it is two days old. Although the baby will not be ours legally for six months, we would like to let friends know that we have the baby.

Is it proper to send out announcements as soon as we get the baby home, or must we wait until the adoption is legal? R.R.

DEAR R.: The consensus of those who have adopted babies is that it's proper to make the announcement as soon as the new arrival is in your home.

DEAR ABBY: My life was utterly meaningless until I read your column today and learned that the official date for donning my white shoes is MEMORIAL DAY—and not one day before!

Thanks to you, Dear Abby, my life has taken a real meaning. White shoes are what life is all about. But for how long? I must know the exact cutoff date! And please tell me, what do I do with my feet and my life until that magic moment when I can wear my beloved white shoes again?

In the meantime, you'd better notify Pat Boone. I don't think he knows about this yet.

Sign me, "Standing Pat in my new white shoes." PAT (MY REAL NAME)

CONFIDENTIAL TO E.A.P.: Don't bluff. The most refreshing and underused phrase in the English language is: "I don't know."

DEAR ABBY: DESPERATE IN DENVER complained because her relatively young husband had lost all interest in sex. You replied, "Your husband needs to see a physician. If it's not physical, it's mental, and there are cures for both."

Sorry, but it won't help. The problem described by this unfulfilled 40-year-old housewife probably goes back to the time when the institution of marriage began.

Even though I am a heart surgeon, I have known countless male patients (and friends) who strike out at home, but score like crazy at the office. This particular paradox is probably an allergic reaction to the marriage certificate—regardless of whether it's printed on rice paper, papyrus, tapestry or whatever.

If that poor love-starved woman in Denver would dissolve her marriage, take up belly dancing, and then live in sin with the same guy she divorced, it would probably solve her problem.

NEW YORK SURGEON

DEAR SURGEON: You maintain that marriage destroys romance simply because it's legal.

Nonsense! Romance's mortal enemy is the rigor mortis that sets in when a relationship becomes boring, monotonous and stale.

Nurturing romance is a 50-50 proposition, or a joint effort.

Teens Bridging Generation Gap

NORTHBROOK, Ill. (AP) — The generations came together as equals to learn about each other at a recent "Youth and Aging" conference organized by a Pennsylvania teen-ager.

Sixteen-year-old Joyce Collier gathered together her fellow student council members at her suburban Philadelphia high school to meet with representatives from such groups as the Gray Panthers. They all spent the day in a round of discussions and workshops on growing old in America.

"The conference was very successful," says Joyce. "It was a mutual learning situation, though I think the young people gained more from the experience. We gained an understanding of how older people feel about social issues facing our nation. Now we are better able to form our own opinions."

Joyce is one of scores of high-achieving teens listed in "Who's Who Among American High School Students" found to be building bridges across the generation gap by adopting grandparents, volunteering in convalescent homes and helping the elderly with chores.

There seems to be a trend toward breaking down age barriers among young and old, according to the book's publisher, Paul Krouse.

"When we started talking to outstanding teens 12 years ago, 'generation gap' was a widely used and practiced term," he says. "Today's kids — at least the high achievers we know — want to expand their knowledge and understanding of all people, so many are getting acquainted with older adults and learning the lessons of wisdom which older people have to lend."

Jim Firman, Intergenerational Services Coordinator for the National Council on Aging, tends to agree.

"Young people are a tremendous untapped resource," says Firman. "There's a great need among older people for professional services like shopping, helping with cleaning and just friendly visiting. The services that kids can provide are often critical, enabling older people to maintain their independence."

Two elderly women in Hico, Tex., age 84 and 94, are able to remain in their homes because busy teen-ager Debbie Barnett cooks, cleans and runs errands for them.

"Neither one of them wants to go to a nursing home and, without me, they probably would," says Debbie, who gets high school credits for her work with the two seniors. "It makes me feel really good to know that I can help them. And, it's one of the easiest jobs anyone can do."

Paul Barton, a teen from San Diego, Calif., who has been a magician for four years, takes his magic show to convalescent homes.

Older people in Orleans, Minn., were surprised to receive many gifts this year from teens like Patricia Stewart who chose them as "Secret Grandparents."

One commonly-seen friendly visitor to Rew, Pa., nursing homes is Amber Biddle, 17. She spurred her social-service club to hold monthly birthday celebrations and holiday parties at nearby residences for seniors.

The club's teens sing to the residents, play bingo with them, make greeting cards for them and just simply talk with them.

"They love us," says Amber. "They'll join in with us, and play along on their instruments. They tell us stories about when they were our age, and give us advice."

"If I could, I would tell other teen-agers to just love older people as if they were their own grandparents," she adds. "The older people are just as interested in learning about new things and in meeting new friends as we are."

As the span has narrowed between the generations, the teens' knowledge and experience has widened, Krouse points out. "At least these kids will grow older without the fear of aging. And that's a nice feeling."

Pictures of the school taken from the inside cover of the annual were place mats.

Zula Rouse, everlasting president, read letters from Noonie Galloway Clark of Texas and Garland Bailey, former principal, of Kinston, who could not attend. Each graduate and the senior advisor, Guyla Clark, told briefly about his or her past 25 years.

By JANE SEE WHITE
Associated Press Writer
NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — State officials vow to spare no expense to evacuate families from their chemically poisoned homes, but hundreds of frightened residents of the tidy Love Canal district say the rescue is too little, too late.

Gov. Hugh Carey has asked President Carter to declare the neighborhood of small white clapboard houses a federal disaster area. Carey said toxic chemicals dumped there 30 years ago had created a "crisis of horrendous proportions." Carey's appeal came following a state Health Department report noting a high incidence of miscarriages and birth defects in the area abutting a filled canal once used as a dump for chemical wastes. The state stopped short of ordering an evacuation, but warned pregnant women and families with infants under age 2 to move out.

Carey told President Carter that as many as 500 homes may be imperiled by the chemicals that ooze up from the old canal.

State Director of Operations Thomas Frey promised more than 600 irate Love Canal homeowners Thursday that the 35 families with pregnant women or infants would be moved into alternative housing "as soon as physically possible."

Frey said that shelter under consideration included subsidized public housing and houses on the private market, either for sale or for rent. He did not elaborate.

Frey said New York officials would meet at the White House next Wednesday to plot strategy with federal disaster, housing and environmental officials.

But the tormented residents of Love Canal were not pacified.

"I don't care how they do it. I want out," said Bonnie Snyder. "My 3-year-old adopted daughter is healthy, thank God, but I want her out of here. I will never feel safe here again."

Burly, bearded Terrence McCartney lives one block from the field that spouts puddles of chemical sewage. He stormed from the meeting.

"My wife is eight months pregnant. It's too late now. She's been here all the time."

Plan 400th Anniversary

MANTEO — Residents of eastern North Carolina are invited to attend the first meeting of "America's Four Hundredth Anniversary Committee" being held at 2 p.m. Saturday, August 5.

The meeting will be in the Fort Raleigh Visitor Center and is designed to hear suggestions for the committee's consideration on ways to observe the upcoming observances planned between 1984 and 1987.

Among those serving on the committee are Dr. H. G. Jones of Chapel Hill, chairman; Paul Green of Chapel Hill, playwright and author of "The Lost Colony"; Elizabeth Vann Moore of Edenton, historian of the Albemarle area; Emma Neal Morrison of Washington D. C. and Kill Devil Hills, former chairperson of the Roanoke Island Historical Association, and Dr. Herbert Paschal, chairman of the Department of History, East Carolina University.

What are they going to do about that? If the damage is done, man, the damage is done," he said.

"How do you deal with something like this?" said Jim Burns, a press aide to Carey. "How do you cut across all the agencies and rules and regulations and where do you stop? How many blocks? How far do you go before people are satisfied that they're out of harm?"

The three-hour meeting between Frey and residents was held in the auditorium of the 99th Street Elementary School, which abuts the canal. The board of education said Thursday the school would not open in September because of the chemicals. Residents say that in recent years, ancient, rusty chemical-filled barrels have sprouted up out of the school's softball field, which is laid out over the old canal.

Frey said Carey would seek emergency state legislation next week to allow property tax relief for some residents.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — The National Weather Service forecast for today until early Saturday predicts showers for the southern states from eastern New Mexico to the Atlantic coast. Showers are also forecast for part of Washington's Pacific coast. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
The forecast today calls for variable cloudiness with scattered showers and thundershowers across North Carolina, with thundershowers more numerous and accompanied by heavy rains in the western portion of the state. Highs today will be in the 70s in the mountains and in the 80s elsewhere.

Heavy rains dominated the Piedmont Thursday night with flooding in Charlotte. The thundershowers, accompanied by heavy rains, moved into the southern Piedmont late Thursday afternoon and early evening, producing over four inches of rain in parts of Charlotte. A warm humid and unstable flow of tropical air continues across North Carolina. In addition, a cold front along the Kentucky-Tennessee border will push into the northern and western sections of the state later today, triggering more showers and thundershowers through Saturday.

Skies Thursday were partly cloudy in the east and cloudy in the west with scattered showers and thundershowers across the state. Afternoon temperatures reached the low 90s over some parts of the east, with the highest readings of 91 in Raleigh and Durham.

Annual Training

The 398th Supply Co., local Army Reserve unit, recently completed annual training at Ft. Letterkenny Army Depot, Chambersburg, Pa.

The mission of the Greenville unit was to merge with selected elements of the 83,000 civilian employees at the Army post.

The unit is broken down into three sections, according to a spokesman involving Wheel Vehicle Mechanics (trucks), Wheel Mechanics (generators and cranes), and Equipment Storage.

Primary mission of the 398th Supply is to support the Regular Army in the area of supply in the event of declared war. The 398th received the Superior Unit Award in 1971 and has earned several superior ratings since that time for its active duty performance.

Margaret Cherry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Cherry III, Mary Dawson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Dawson, and Susan Corbett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Corbett, were among 238 students selected to participate in the program, a National Foundation of Commended Scholars project.

Students were recommended by their teachers, counselors and principals for the program, which focused on biology, chemistry, computer science, geology and physics during three two-week sessions at Appalachian.

All three students from Greenville attended Greenville Middle School last year.

The Gesture Is What Counts

It is not often that a president of the United States visits Eastern North Carolina, and therefore it is an honor to us that President Carter will be in Wilson Saturday.

The president will arrive at the Wilson-Rocky Mount Airport and travel to the Wilson County Library for a public appearance. Then there will be a private luncheon with Democratic officials.

It should be a pleasant day for Eastern North Carolina Democrats.

What is really important about the trip, however, is the president's gesture of friendship to the tobacco farmer.

Tobacco is under heavy attack by government at the same time that the tobacco price support program is sanctioned by the government. There are those who are telling the administration that the support program should be eliminated, but we can assume the president by his visit is implying support of the tobacco farmer.

Gov. Hunt said Carter cares about the tobacco farmer and the Democratic Party. "That's why he's coming here," Hunt said.

We have to believe that is right. Whatever the Department of Health, Education and Welfare might say about tobacco, destroying the support program is not going to change anything. We think the president recognizes this, and his visit is an indication he understands the problems facing the tobacco farmer.

Tuition Credit Backed

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is holding firm in his opposition to income tax breaks to offset the cost of college and private school education even though the plan's backers have scaled it down to cut costs.

"The president continues his strong opposition" to tuition tax credits. White House spokesman Rex Granum said Thursday after the Senate Finance Committee approved the slimmed-down proposal.

The committee measure would provide a tax credit of up to $500 a year to offset the cost of college tuition, and up to $250 a year to defray tuition at private schools, including parochial institutions.

Congressional aides said the program, when fully in place, would benefit an estimated 12.3 million students, with about 70 percent of the benefits going to defray the cost of college educations and about 30 percent going to offset the cost at private schools.

Backers of the proposal also say it would cost the government an estimated $2.8 billion in the fiscal year beginning Sept. 1, 1982, down from an estimate of nearly $5.3 billion under a measure the Finance Committee approved earlier this year.

The credits permit taxpayers to deduct money directly from taxes owed the government. Current law does not give taxpayers a break on the costs of education, but the idea has been gaining popularity in Congress in recent years.

The Senate has approved several such proposals in the past, and the House of Representatives approved a three-year plan earlier this year. The House bill calls for credits of up to $100 for elementary and secondary school tuition and a maximum of $250 for college tuition.

Sen. William V. Roth Jr., R-Dele., a principal backer of the Senate bill, said the revisions

Maybe Nothing Surprises Any More

In a world where Billy Martin quits as New York Yankees manager only to be rehired for the year 1980 maybe nothing is surprising anymore.

But then one of the world's richest women — a true product of the capitalist world — chooses to marry a Russian Communist bureaucrat and eyebrows are raised again.

That's the way it happened. Christina Onassis took Sergei Kauzov as her husband. The marriage astounded the international set and set off speculation as to how the new bride would run her vast business operations. There will be monumental adjustments to be made in this marriage, but perhaps love will find a way.

Management Is Difficult

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Governor Jim Hunt is finding out something those who served before him also discovered: State government has gotten so big and so diverse it's terribly difficult to manage.

In the business world, a firm is split into operating units according to the specific service to be provided or item produced. Each division can produce independent of the others when that is desirable, but central controls are in place to make sure that the pieces fit together properly and each is accountable to a central authority for the quality of goods or services produced and for efficiency of operation.

State government, the biggest corporation of all in this state, has no such clear lines of authority. The annual budget is over $4 billion. It is the largest employer, with 64,000 in the executive department payrolls, and not including nearly 50,000 more in public schools, higher education, the judiciary and the legislative.

Big Business

"The fact that state government is both large and diverse raises serious concerns about the way in which it is managed", a study committee of the State Goals and Policy Board has concluded.

Successive governors have attempted to bring the bureaucracy under control, creating improvements in management such as centralized budgeting, purchasing, contracting and disbursing, training, organizational structure, information systems, program evaluation.

Such management programs resulted from a desire to run government better, and the specialized support services were organized for that purpose.

But, concludes the Goals and Policy Board, even those programs are "fragmented with little coordination among them. In addition there is no law which requires good management practices to be used. Thus various management practices of proven worth are being implemented in some agencies and ignored in others." That is "costly both in dollars and time, and may be one of the causes of public skepticism about government."

BILL NOBLITT

More than $9 million is spent each year by the agencies created to bring better management to state government. The eleven services are the auditor's office, the budget office, the state property office, the construction office, the purchasing and contract office, the general services division to run buildings, grounds and motor pools, the personnel office, information management staff with employee training programs, educational programs and private consultants. In sum,

Although exact figures for the region are not available, Ms. Jones estimates that about 50 percent of all voter-age blacks in the South remain unregistered. Blacks represent about 16 percent of all registered voters in the South, according to VEP's 1976 figures.

To many blacks who feel their living conditions have not materially improved during the last 20 years, the right to vote has been an empty privilege, says Ms. Jones.

"There have been some improvements — streets, recreational facilities and public employment," she duplicating agencies perform related functions while divisions within various state departments even further replicate similar activities.

The Goals and Policy Board plans to recommend to the 1979 General Assembly a management system "which would take the best practices from private enterprise and adopt them in state government ... pull together those eleven agencies dealing with management under a Total Management Improvement Program."

The proposal would also require that all state agencies participate in the management improvement effort.

Purposely vague in the initial draft report is whether the State Auditor, now an elective position and independent, would actually be merged into a central unit, and whether state departments operated by elective heads (education, labor, state, treasurer, agriculture, justice) would be subject to the Total Management Improvement Program.

Needs Govm't Bailout

(Art Buchwald is on assignment for a few weeks trying to find out if there are any Cuban troops on Cape Cod. He left behind his all-time favorite columns.)

WASHINGTON — My friend, Harvey Kay, president and general manager of Kay's Sandwich and Carry-out Shop in my building, is watching the outcome of the Lockheed Aircraft government loan negotiations with interest. He feels if Lockheed can get the $250 million guaranteed loan, then he has a chance of the government bailing him out of a similar situation.

Harvey told me, "The Lockheed problems, particularly with their C-5A airplane, parallel mine in every way, and I am certain if the government looks on the Lockheed loan favorably they will find a way to get me off the hook, too."

ART BUCHWALD

This is how Harvey tells his story: "About a year ago, a section of the Defense Department was having a farewell party for one of their employees who was leaving to join an aerospace company. They asked me to develop a new type of sandwich which would give the party a big boost. But they wanted me to bring it in for a reasonable price."

"I put my designers to work on it, and we came up with 'The Goldfinger,' which consisted of boneless all-white meat, deep-fried chicken fingers topped with cole slaw, Russian dressing, and pickle slices on a double-twist seeded roll. We estimated we could make the sandwich for $1.25 each, which would include a reasonable profit of 10 percent."

"The food committee giving the party approved the design and ordered 150 sandwiches to be delivered in 30 days on the afternoon of the party."

"I ordered the ingredients, but a few days later I got a call from a secretary. She said that while the Army liked the sandwich as it was, the Navy was wondering if, instead of a double-twist seeded roll, the sandwich could be made with rye bread."

"I explained that regular rye bread would not be able to support the weight of the chicken fingers, and I would

Other Editors Say Strange Game

Washington Daily News

The president of the United States, Jimmy Carter, comes to Wilson, N.C. on Saturday, August 5 for two specific reasons.

Reason number one is that he wishes to improve his image with the tobacco farmers; and number two, he wishes to help the candidacy of Democrat John Ingram for the U.S. Senate.

The fact that he is coming of itself is an honor to North Carolina. Anytime a president visits us, we are honored. But since there are no tobacco sales on Saturdays, and since his only public appearance will be in front of the public library in Wilson. We wonder how many tobacco farmers will be present. Added to this picture is the ever-present image of Joseph Califano, his HEW secretary. Mr. Carter cannot shed that shadow regardless of how hard he might try.

Mr. Ingram is well pleased that Mr. Carter is coming, and apparently he is counting on the president's visit to help him greatly. This is difficult to measure in any campaign, but the fact that Mr. Ingram feels that it will be meaningful is of much value, we feel.

This strange game of politics has many sides to it, and President Carter would surely like to impress upon those present, we suspect, that he too is a farmer who raises peanuts in Georgia. And we have no doubt but what he can speak the language. We are willing to give him credit for what he has accomplished.

However, try as hard as we can, we do not understand exactly what actually can be accomplished in the two areas listed—a better image among tobacco farmers and that of helping Mr. Ingram.

But again, politics is such a strange game that we hesitate to look at one particular facet of it and make a judgment. We do realize that he is coming to the right place, but we wonder about the timing.

We shall have to wait awhile to make the real judgment. When the votes are counted in November, we can look back then and say "well, that August visit of President Carter made a difference." And how much difference, we shall see in the actual votes.

Mr. Carter is making a fine gesture toward North Carolina. And for that measure of political activity we respect him highly

We wish for him a very successful and happy visit.

THE UNREGISTERED

'Disillusioned' By Result

By JON BIXBY

Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Even though great strides have been made in voting rights since the mid 1960s, elected officials are dragging their feet in meeting the needs of blacks and other minority groups, says the head of the Voter Education Project.

As a result, says Vivian Malone Jones, blacks are becoming increasingly "disillusioned" about the effectiveness of the vote and, in some cases, are shunning the ballot box.

As executive director of VEP, Ms. Jones supervises an 11-state non-partisan effort, stretching from Texas to Florida, to register black voters and encourage them to exercise their voting rights.

With a full-time staff of nine and an annual budget of about $500,000, the non-profit public foundation supports the registration work of local volunteer groups.

Ms. Jones acknowledged that increases in black voter registration in the South are "not as great now as immediately after passage of the 1965 Voting Rights Act."

In Alabama, for example, black voter registration skyrocketed from 68,317 to 250,000 between 1962 and 1966, an increase of 265 percent, according to VEP. In the next 10 years, another 71,264 black Alabamians were added to the voting rolls — a 28 percent increase.

Although exact figures for the region are not available, Ms. Jones estimates that about 50 percent of all voter-age blacks in the South remain unregistered. Blacks represent about 16 percent of all registered voters in the South, according to VEP's 1976 figures.

"To many blacks who feel their living conditions have not materially improved during the last 20 years, the right to vote has been an empty privilege, says Ms. Jones.

"There have been some improvements — streets, recreational facilities and public employment," she said. "But generally they have not kept pace with the expectations of the general population."

"They expected more progress and now they are disillusioned," she said.

In order to win increased concessions, blacks and other minority groups will "have to hold elected officials more accountable," she said. "Then we will see some changes, not just empty promises."

Ms. Jones points to President Carter as a politician who, despite campaign promises, "has not done as much as he could have done for blacks."

She specifically criticized Carter for not bringing more qualified blacks into high-level government positions.

It is generally acknowledged that widespread black support

Strength For Today

THE SIMPLICITY OF CHRISTIANITY

It is amazing how many ponderous and turgid tomes have been written to explain the simple teachings of Jesus.

Christianity is perfectly plain and straightforward, yet, throughout the centuries theologians and scholars have been making it complex. We wonder what comment Jesus would make if he were here in the flesh and had the doubtful privilege of reading some of the books designed to explain his teachings.

Doubtless if many present-day theologians and religious education experts had been present 2,000 years ago when Jesus spoke his parables, they would have scorned this naive peasant who spoke about eternal verities in the simple language of a child.

The simplicity of Jesus arose from the fact that He understood perfectly the things about which He was speaking. By contrast, many of his present-day commentators do not seem to know what they are talking about. The deeper we go into the teachings of Jesus, the simpler they become.

Campaigning For Early Birds

By DON McLEOD

AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Like it or not, running for president these days is a game for the early bird.

"And I'm not necessarily sure that that's a good thing," conceded Phil Crane as he nevertheless set a record this week by announcing for the 1980 Republican nomination 19 months in advance of the first primary.

But the facts of political life being what they are today, he had little choice.

A combination of reform rules over the past decade, the proliferation of primaries and the success of recent early bird candidates have made it more risky to wait than to rush in.

And while political pros and exhausted candidates continue to complain about the marathon presidential campaigns, Crane's announcement proves the trend is accelerating if anything.

George McGovern started it when he announced a year ahead of time for the 1972 Democratic nomination and won it. That record was beaten when Morris Udall announced in November of 1974 for the 1976 nomination, followed by only a month by the eventual winner, Jimmy Carter.

All three of these men were little known nationally when they began their campaigns, but getting into the field early enabled them to overcome the handicap. Facing a similar prospect, Crane, a conservative

Illinois congressman, hopes to do the same.

If a person is not well known, travelling around the country running for president is a pretty good way to get known. And if you are the only candidate out there running, you are more likely to get attention than if you wait until there are a lot of other candidates on camera.

There are a number of other Republicans with presidential visions who are just as active politically as Crane, speaking to party functions, supporting GOP candidates or helping to raise funds. But the mere fact that Crane is a "presidential candidate" is going to make him a more interesting attraction.

The early bird also has first call on his party's pool of campaign workers. Later entries may find the best people already taken. And the sooner a candidate starts his organization, the more keenly it will be honed when the actual campaigning starts.

Then there's the question of money. On the eve of Crane's announcement, a professional mailing house sent out 100,000 letters to a proven list of conservative political contributors.

The fact that he is an announced candidate should give him fund appeals an advantage over rivals who are attractive to the same donors but who don't represent an active campaign. And future candidates going to the same well later may find it depleted if not dry.

Stronger On Border Belt

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Flue-cured tobacco markets on the South Carolina-Border North Carolina Belt closed the week Thursday with generally stronger prices to growers.

Estimated sales on the Eastern Belt Thursday amounted to 5,254,309 pounds for $6,251,772, an average of $118.98. The average was down by $1.84 from Wednesday's sales.

Eastern Belt markets have sold 18,368,812 pounds for $22,033,825 since last week's opening. The average price for the season is $119.95 per hundred pounds.

Only two North Carolina Middle Belt markets, Fuquay and Sanford, were open on Thursday. They sold a total of 406,848 pounds for $469,403, an average of $115.38 — down by $6.80 from Wednesday.

"She said it didn't matter because the Navy said they wouldn't come to the party if they had to eat double-twist seeded rolls.

"A week went by and the secretary called again. She said the Air Force had just got around to studying 'The Goldfinger' sandwich, and they wanted something more sophisticated than just chicken fingers with cole slaw and dressing and pickle slices. Was it possible to add either a slice of ham or a slice of cheese to the sandwich to give it a better taste?"

"I told her it was always possible, but if you're going to add to a sandwich you have to pay for it. It meant hiring an extra person to cut the ham or cheese, researching where the best place was to put it, testing it and retraining my employees in an entirely new sandwich concept. I couldn't see how I could bring 'The Goldfinger' in for less than $2.25.

"She said it was perfectly okay as long as the sandwich did the job.

"A week went by and I had a visit from the secretary. She told me the Army personnel in the department felt that 'The Goldfinger' should also have lettuce and tomato on it. I explained that if you added lettuce and tomato you would have to have larger slices of rye bread and heavier caraway seeds.

for Carter in the 1976 presidential election provided the former Georgia governor with his margin of victory.

Asked whether blacks would support Carter if the election were repeated today, Ms. Jones declined to speculate. But she said she hopes they would "closely examine what each of the candidates has to offer."

which would bring the cost of the sandwich to $2.95.

"She approved it, but the next day I got a call saying that because of the overrun they wanted to cut back on the order of sandwiches from 150 to 50 and asked if I would eliminate the chicken altogether.

"I told them I was stuck with $300 worth of merchandise and would have to lay off four employees because of the cancellation of 'The Goldfingers.' They said that while the Defense Department would recommend a loan to tide me over, it was up to Congress to decide whether I would get it or not. But first they had to get the Lockheed problem out of the way."

voter registration efforts on two Southeastern states — Georgia and Alabama — where all the constitutional offices and legislative seats are up for election. In addition, two U.S. Senate seats are up for grabs in Alabama, one in Georgia.

Among the target areas in Alabama are the "black-belt" counties of the west-central portion of the state, in addition to the cities of Mobile, Montgomery and Birmingham and the rest of populous Jefferson County.

In Georgia, volunteer voter registration groups supported by VEP are focusing on the 23 counties with majority black populations.

VEP also is supporting legal challenges of local reapportionment and redistricting plans throughout the region that may dilute black voting strength, she said.

Despite the "disillusionment" of the black electorate, Ms. Jones, 36, says the black vote remains a "pivotal force in local elections," particularly in urban areas where the black population has become increasingly concentrated.

Ms. Jones' year-long tenure with VEP follows 12 years of work in civil rights and labor relations for the federal government. It was in June 1963, however, that she won her place in the history of the civil rights movement when she and another student became the first blacks to register at the University of Alabama — despite the defiant "stand in the schoolhouse door" of Gov.

George C. Wallace. As a reminder of how times have changed, particularly in the South, a watercolor poster prominently displayed in her downtown Atlanta office proclaims: "Hands that pick cotton... now can pick our public officials — Register and Vote!"

By RON BARKER
Associated Press Writer
SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Seven children who plunged 11 stories from a hotel balcony had lived in $90-a-day luxury with a father who thought he was God. The children never went to school and rarely spoke to strangers, eating meals in their suite and shunning the hotel pool.

The father, Immanuel David, 39, had committed suicide two days before his wife shoved their children or urged them to leap off the balcony with her Thursday in a bizarre murder-suicide that left only one child alive.

Thirteen-year-old Elizabeth David was in critical but stabilizing condition early today.

Despite pleas from horrified people who watched from the sidewalk Thursday morning, Rachel David helped or pushed her children, ranging in age from 5 to 14, from the balcony. Police said at least three jumped willingly, but witnesses said the younger ones struggled and tried to grab the railing.

After all the children had fallen, officers said some of the onlookers yelled for Mrs. David to jump. She did.

Dead were Mrs. David, 38; Rebyca, 5; David, 6; Joseph, 8; Debra, 9; Joshua, 10; and Rachel, 14.

Elizabeth was in surgery 10 hours Thursday with a team of 15 doctors. Spokeswoman Karyn Haecel at LDS Hospital said the girl had multiple compound fractures and abdominal injuries.

The family had secluded itself in the suite for 14 months. Hotel employees said the children spoke to strangers only with their parents' permission. They said the children stayed in the suite most of the time, never used the hotel pool and never went to school. They were taught by their parents.

Hotel staff apparently didn't question the arrangement because David had told them he had teaching credentials, said hotel manager James Bradley.

David grew up as Bruce Longo and joined the Mormon church after an Army hitch, according to his brother, Dean Longo, who was interviewed by telephone at his Vero Beach, Fla., home.

Longo said he hadn't seen David since their father died nine years ago. Their mother lives in Vero Beach with Longo.

He said he got sporadic phone calls over the years "which may have been his way of retaining some semblance of a family relationship." He said he knew only the two eldest children.

Penny McDonald, a desk clerk at the hotel, said meals were either sent up from the hotel coffee shop, or David would bring food home. She said he paid the $90 rent every day with a $100 bill.

FBI spokesman Bob Davenport said David paid for about $30,000 in food and lodging at the International Dunes.

Police Sgt. Brent Davis, who said he knew David personally, said he never knew the 6-foot-4, 300-pound man to have a job. He said David believed he was God.

An excommunicated member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon), he had formed his own religious cult, consisting mostly of his immediate family members and a few friends, Davis said. Church officials would not comment on the excommunication report.

Police Lt. Roger Kinnersley said Mormon officials had complained that David frequently asked to see church authorities to proclaim upcoming calamities or demand a share of church revenues.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Steve Snarr said he believed the cult leader may have lived from money given him by his followers. One follower, Matthias David, was sentenced to five years in federal prison in May for wire fraud, said Snarr. He said the man was convicted of raising about $8,000 in four months by wiring friends and relatives he needed money for his stepdaughter's medical expenses.

Snarr said Immanuel David was under investigation for wire fraud, as were some of his followers.

Longo said David attended Brigham Young University and served as a Mormon missionary in South America. He met his wife, a native of Sweden, at the university.

Cheryl Williams, the clerk of Salt Lake's Ramada Inn, said while the family lived there, she would have occasional discussions with David about religion. She said he claimed to have silver mines in Sweden, and would make long distance phone calls there. She said whenever he needed money, he would telephone to Sweden and get the money.

She said he talked about buying limousines and building a mansion in Arizona.

Miss Williams said David often spoke of his ability to concentrate and "destroy the world." She said some of the girls who worked in the restaurant at the hotel were afraid of him.

David's body was found in a borrowed van Tuesday. Police said he died of carbon monoxide poisoning. When informed of her husband's death Wednesday, Mrs. David said she couldn't afford to pay for his funeral, police said.

Area Educators Asked To Serve Committee

Several area educators have been asked to serve on a statewide committee to develop a Master Plan for Guidance in North Carolina by State Superintendent of Public Instruction Craig Phillips.

The Division of Pupil Personnel Services of the state education agency presented a resolution to the State Board of Education at its May meeting calling for a committee to study guidance in the state as well as assist in the development of a system for the delivery of guidance services in the public schools.

According to Thelma Lennon, director of the Division of Pupil Personnel Services, representatives from the eight education districts will compose the committee. Representatives on the state task force will include school counselors, vocational educators, counselor educators, as well as members from business and industry.

Local members of the committee, their educational affiliation and position on the committee are: Dr. Betsy Harper, East Carolina University, assistant regional coordinator for education regions 1 and 2; Deborah Stewart, H. B. Sugg School, elementary counselor; Mary Patricia Kelly, Elmhurst School, elementary counselor; Sarah R. Orgel, Extended School Day Program, junior counselor; Ann Harrison, Greenville City Schools, exceptional children member; Linda O'Connor, Happily Ever After, business representative; and Haywood Harris, Martin County Community Action, career education representative.

The two women, who will serve four-year terms, were nominated by the N.C. Cemetery Association, which makes three nominations to the seven-member commission. The governor appoints all members.

Mrs. Dixon is secretary and treasurer of Holly Hill Memorial Park in Thomasville and Mrs. Jones is owner of Onslow Memorial Park in Jacksonville.

Winterville Board Met

WINTERVILLE — The Winterville Board of Adjustments voted last night to deny conditional use permit to Bill Clark's Construction Company for 50 units of apartments to be built in the Weathington Heights subdivision.

The board in its denial felt that the subdivision was zoned for family housing. Also, the board feared that a lack of access roads would cause traffic problems for the subdivision.

In other matters, the board voted approval for the Ruritan Club sign to remain at its present site at the intersection of W. Main St. and Highway 11 Bypass. The club must now appeal to the State Highway Division for a final decision.

Board of Adjustment members are J. H. Weathington, Paul Braxton, Fran Whelihan, Claudie McLawhorn and Calvin Henderson.

Women Named To Commission

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt announced the appointment Thursday of Alice W. Dixon of Thomasville and Doris S. Jones of Jacksonville to the state Cemetery Commission.

The two women, who will serve four-year terms, were nominated by the N.C. Cemetery Association, which makes three nominations to the seven-member commission. The governor appoints all members.

Mrs. Dixon is secretary and treasurer of Holly Hill Memorial Park in Thomasville and Mrs. Jones is owner of Onslow Memorial Park in Jacksonville.

Big Field Of Big Melons

ORANGEBURG, S.C. (AP) — An Orangeburg County farmer has grown what he says is the largest field grown, edible watermelon of its type harvested in recent years in South Carolina.

The 95-pound Jubilee watermelon was grown by Ken Sanders, 33, of Springfield, who has been experimenting with large melons on his 1,000-acre farm.

"I save the seeds from year to year and plant a small quantity each year to try to get a bigger melon," said Sanders, who added he has been growing melons most of his adult life.

"I usually give 'em plenty of room, and I give 'em special attention," he said.

Sanders told an interviewer he plants about an acre with the seeds he has saved from the previous year's harvest and culls the plants, leaving only one melon to a vine. Then he applies a special application of fertilizer.

In 1976 he grew a melon weighing 75 pounds and last year he won the Columbia Food Festival with a Jubilee melon that weighed 85 pounds. He did not enter this year because his harvest was not ready, he said.

Gerald Funderburk of Jefferson, secretary-treasurer of the South Carolina Watermelon Association, said sometimes growers pump up a melon with water and fertilizer and come up with a product of good size but poor quality.

Funderburk said a record Jubilee of good eating quality would probably weigh 65-70 pounds.

Sanders maintains, however, that by using his planting method he has come up with melons of large size and good quality.

REVIVAL TO BEGIN

The announcement was made by Charles W. Dingle, pastor. The public is invited to attend.

PLANT IN ONTARIO?

OTTAWA (AP) — The Ford Motor Co. will build a $553 million auto engine plant employing 2,600 persons in southern Ontario instead of in the United States if agreement is reached on government incentive payments, Industry Minister Jack Horner announced.

Trial Postponed By New Lawyer

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP) — The trial of Alexander Evans, a Rocky Mount sanitation employee whose arrest sparked a walkout by fellow workers, was postponed for one week Thursday because he has a new lawyer.

Evans was charged with larceny after he took a suit of clothes from outside a house. He said he thought the clothing had been left outside for sanitation workers, a practice common in many areas, but the homeowner said it was left out for pickup by a drycleaner.

$119.63 Day For Farmville

FARMVILLE — Farmville market prices remained steady and well above last year with top prices of $1.15 per pound, according to Louis N. Williams, sales supervisor, Farmville Tobacco Board of Trade.

Sales consisted mostly of primings, with some cutters and leaf. Williams noted a sharp increase in the volume of nondescript grades over other sale days this week.

A total of 716,719 pounds were sold on the Farmville market yesterday for $857,422. The average was $119.63 per hundredweight.

The season total is 1,779,616 pounds for a total of $2,136,344. The season average is $120.05 per hundredweight.

Gas Pipeline In Voter Registration Fire Rages

FORT MADISON, Iowa (AP) — A gas pipeline ruptured and burst into flames along Highway 2 west of here early today and set several buildings afire, authorities said. Two persons were feared dead and several were injured.

"We haven't removed the bodies from the building because of the intense heat. The heat is just now getting down to where we can go in," said Lee County Sheriff Don Arnold.

He said several buildings were afire in the rural southeastern Iowa community.

Three persons were transferred to the burn unit at University Hospitals in Iowa City, and "two or three others were treated and released," Arnold said.

Hospital officials in Fort Madison identified three of the survivors as Robert Rider, 54, his wife Mary, 49, and their daughter Cindy, 23.

All three were in critical condition with extensive burns, a University Hospitals spokesman said.

Jean Hoffmeister, a spokesman for the disaster control office at the Fort Madison community hospital, confirmed that three persons injured in the fire were treated and released.

The six apparently lived in a house near the fire, she said.

Mecklenburg Has Rush Gas Pipeline In Voter Registration

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Mecklenburg County election officials say they are being swamped with people registering to vote before a Sept. 8 referendum on the sale of liquor by the drink.

County Election Supervisor Bill Clup said Thursday that election workers have signed up about 5,000 new voters since July 1.

"The flood is unbelievable," he said. "We're being overrun."

Most of the new voters are white, live in apartments or are first-time homeowners and fall in the 18-to-35 age group, Clup said. He said those characteristics suggest many are proponents of liquor by the drink.

The General Assembly enacted a local-option liquor by the drink bill this summer, and Charlotte-Mecklenburg will hold the first referendum on the sale of mixed drinks.

If the current registration surge continues through the Aug. 10 deadline, the number of new voters could exceed 10,000, a record for a non-presidential election year, Clup said.

The Mecklenburg Mixed Drink Committee, leading the fight for legalized sales of liquor by the drink, has done some telephone polling of about 200 people who live in middle and upper income areas. The poll showed that the types who traditionally vote regularly have the least interest in the mixed-drink proposal and that people who have the most interest in liquor by the drink are those who often fail to vote.

Jerry Green, a strategist for the committee, said the group "will have to double and triple our effort to get out those who traditionally don't vote."

He said the poll indicates that upper income residents who tend to vote regularly "aren't turned on by liquor by the drink because they already have it in their country clubs."

Answers On Ethics May Emerge Later

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — With each technological advance, ethical questions are raised about the eventual impact. That's the case with the "test-tube conceived" baby born in Britain last month. The full answers usually emerge only later. Sometimes the new techniques bring benefits and sometimes horrors. Often the repercussions are mixed, helping in part, yet generating new, at times graver troubles for humanity.

In regard to the joining of the British man's sperm with his wife's egg, later implanted in her womb and brought to birth of a girl, theologians took varying views of it. Such techniques are a further step toward "technological alienation" and "dehumanization of mankind" says the Rev. Dr. Paul Ramsey, a Methodist ethicist of Princeton University, discussing the general implications.

The Rev. Dr. Franklin

Sherman of the Lutheran School of Theology in Chicago, said he didn't "see anything problematic" about the particular case, but the method could be used in morally dubious ways.

"Morally unacceptable," Bishop Thomas C. Kelly of the U. S. Catholic Conference says of the process. But Rabbi Israel Lau, a Boston authority on Jewish law, said the procedure was proper so long as the mother's egg was fertilized by sperm from her husband.

It "may seem like a small step, but we seem to be taking it without serious thought and study" of the potential effects, says the Rev. Richard Mc-Cormick, a Jesuit, of Georgetown University's Kennedy Institute for the Study of Human Reproduction and Bioethics.

Catholic Bishop Odore Gendron of Manchester, N. H., has called for a broad evaluation of the short and long-term moral consequences of test-tube babies, citing both negative and positive aspects.

He says the process offers hope to many infertile couples and "there is no reason why science cannot and should not be used" to help them, but the test-tube technique "depersonalizes the origin of human life in an unacceptable fashion." Specifically, theologians listed these moral hazards of the process:

It separates procreation from sexual communion, tending to depersonalize it and undermine a vital relationship in marriage, further reducing sex to a mere mechanism.

It could lead to commercialization of reproduction — the "womb renting" business — which wives who want children but do not want to go through the natural process of having them could utilize a surrogate mother, with a fertilized egg planted in the hired woman to bear the child.

Gifted School Permanent

LAURINBURG, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt says the Governor's School East at St. Andrews Presbyterian College is a permanent institution and will double in size in 1979.

Hunt attended open-house ceremonies at the summer school Thursday and addressed faculty and students. "North Carolina needs this new governor's school," he said. "We needed for more than 400 of our gifted and talented young people to have this opportunity each summer."

The original governor's school was held at Salem College in Winston-Salem and is now called the Governor's School West. The one at St. Andrews was created this year and added 200 spaces to the statewide program.

"You are a wonderful resource to this state," Hunt told the students. "You represent the best minds and hearts we have."

GENDER LOVING CARE

Esther has the most beautiful flowers of anyone I know. Every plant she touches seems to grow magically. When her sister discarded some seedlings, Esther rescued it. Within months the plant had grown until it reached the ceiling.

Houseplants must be tended regularly. They must receive water and food. The earth in which they grow must be loosened periodically.

If Christians are to survive and flourish, they must receive the nurture that comes from worship. God's Word, prayer and meditation strengthen and fortify them for a rich life. God's help is OUR tender loving care.

Find it in church this Sunday.

Wing-It-Yourself

Flitting about the skies is a growing flock of hand-made airplanes known as "home-bulks." According to the Federal Aviation Administration there are already more than 4,700 of them, and another 500 or so take wing every year.

Some of the homebuilders design their own planes. Most buy tried-and-tested plans, produced and sold by others, for craft such as the skeletal Breezy and the low-wing, all-metal Sidewinder shown in photographs on this page. Homebulks come in many shapes, styles and sizes; they can be made of metal, wood or fabric or all three; some are flyable scale models of actual planes, other are of completely original design. But they all have to undergo rigorous inspection and be certified by the FAA before they can be flown—they are officially classed in the experimental category as long as the home-builder has done at least 51 percent of the work himself.

It can take $4,500 to $5,000 and two years to build your own plane. Why do it? "They're more fun to fly," is one homebuilder's simple answer. Photographed by Chuck Kocotek.

Warn Proposed Oil Refinery Poses Nat'l Security Threat

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers says a proposed oil refinery on the Elizabeth River in Portsmouth could threaten the national security if an oil tanker sank in the river channel.

In a report released here Thursday, the Corps said a sinking accident, combined with an oil spill or fire, could completely block ship traffic to and from the naval shipyard in Portsmouth.

The report analyzed, in part, the impact of the proposed refinery on the world's largest naval complex.

The Elizabeth River channel, which could be used by refinery tanker traffic, passes by the Norfolk Naval Station and extends to the shipyard in Portsmouth.

Even without an explosion or ship sinking in the harbor, an oil spill could close the harbor, the report concluded.

A major oil spill would, at the minimum, cause vessel delays or reroutings, since the potential for fires would dictate that vessels be kept out of affected areas.

In a national emergency, however, Navy ships would disregard cleanup efforts and proceed through spill sites, the report added.

"Should fire break out, the harbor might be closed and severely limit naval operations," the report said.

The national security question is identified as a major issue that surfaced during a review of the 1977 environmental impact statement on Hampton Roads Energy Co.'s proposal to construct a $550 million oil refinery and terminal along the Elizabeth River's west bank in Portsmouth.

The area, but that cleanup operations could restore beaches to "acceptable conditions" in a relatively short time.

a way to correct deficiencies and update material in the original document prepared by the district office here.

The report was a draft supplement to the original impact statement. It was ordered by the Corps' Washington office as

The task force was named to advise the Washington Corps office after conflicting recommendations were made on whether to build the refinery.

Jimmy Green Warehouse Is Permitted To Open

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A tobacco warehouse owned by North Carolina Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green will be able to open on time August 15 because of a federal judge's ruling that a Virginia agriculture official's decision to delay the opening to Sept. 1 was illegal.

U. S. District Court Judge Robert R. Merhige Jr. ruled Thursday that Virginia Agriculture Commissioner S. Mason Carbaugh overstepped his authority when he ordered the opening of Green's warehouse in Brookneal, Va., delayed.

requested by Green's attorney after a hearing of more than two hours and an additional two hours of studying records in his chambers.

The restraining order granted by Merhige runs for 10 days and can be renewed another 10 days with the judge's consent. He said Green's attorneys would have a "pretty good" chance of getting a permanent injunction.

He said he had not been given an opportunity to cross-examine witnesses while Carbaugh listened to their unsworn statements and "hung them around the neck of the licensee."

Biggs said some 175 tobacco growers have already designated the Jimmy Green Warehouse as the place they intend to sell their tobacco. To delay the warehouse opening would cause them confusion, he said.

In addition, he said, "Our client is going to be severely penalized financially."

Under questioning by Merhige, Assistant Attorney General John B. Purcell Jr. conceded Carbaugh's order was punitive but insisted he had acted within his authority.

But he had no response when Merhige said, "I want you to point to the law that gives you the right to do what you did."

Purcell said to issue the restraining order "would cast a pall over the commissioner's duty to police tobacco warehousing activities."

Rescuers Hunt More Victims

By GREG THOMPSON
Associated Press Writer
BANDERA, Texas (AP) — Grim and weary rescue workers today slogged through mud and high water for a second day, searching for persons still missing in the debris and devastation left by rampaging flood waters already blamed for at least 21 deaths.

flood area again Thursday to rescue 10 people stranded by high waters.

Bandera County sheriff's dispatcher Jackie Doyle said more than 100 persons on ranches and in rural homes around the north and west prongs of the Medina River were cut off.

"Lots of people live up there and are stranded with no water, no phones, no electricity and no food in some cases," she said. "There'll probably be some lives lost there of people we don't even know are missing yet."

Downstream from the area hardest hit by Wednesday's and Thursday's floods, riverfront residents braced for cresting rivers and streams. The Army Corps of Engineers hoped two dammed lakes could contain the flow.

The Pedernales River was expected to flood its banks around Stonewall, Texas, and the LBJ Ranch was in its path. Late Thursday, a witness who flew over the ranch said water covered more than half of the family plot where the late President Lyndon Johnson is buried.

The storms that killed 15 people in the central Texas hill country near here shifted Thursday to west Texas. At least six died late Thursday in Albany when a sudden seven-inch downpour, spawned by the vestiges of Tropical Storm Amelia, flooded a creek and the town drainage system.

Fifteen inches of rain were recorded Thursday night in Throckmorton County north of Albany, about 30 miles from Abilene. Flash flood warnings were issued overnight for at least 25 west Texas counties.

Officials of the Department of Public Safety said the death toll in Albany would almost certainly rise.

Hundreds are homeless and, while official estimates may be weeks away, the damage figure is expected to run into the tens of millions of dollars.

President Carter declared Texas a major disaster area Thursday, freeing federal recovery funds for the three hardest-hit counties in the central hill country — Kerr, Bandera and Kendall. Ironically, the three counties had already been named drought disaster areas.

"This area has gone from a drought disaster area to a flood disaster area in a matter of two days," said Rep. Bob Krueger, D-Texas, who drove through Bandera County with Gov. Dolph Briscoe Thursday. "What we've gotten in the area is a year's worth of rain in only 48 hours. It's astonishing to see the devastating force of the water."

Briscoe, who requested Carter's help, said, "This has to be one of the worst floods in the state's history. The devastation is unbelievable."

Army helicopters from Fort Sam Houston in San Antonio were called to the central Texas

According to "The Goldsboro News-Argus," Mrs. Malissa Blount Shackelford and a daughter, Terrie, were reported seriously injured and hospitalized in Washington, D. C. Two sons, Michael and Randy, were treated and released.

Struck At PLO Bases

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — "The murderers will be hit wherever they are," Israel warned after an air attack into southern Lebanon five hours after a Palestinian bombing of a Tel Aviv market.

The Israeli military command said its planes hit a guerrilla base at Dahar Tutah, 25 miles north of the border, in retaliation for the bomb loaded with nails and ball bearings that killed one person and wounded 48 in an outdoor Tel Aviv market Thursday.

The communique said the base was a "starting point for murder gangs against targets in Israel." It said all the Israeli planes returned safely.

Guerrilla sources in Beirut said six planes attacked a training base in the Zifta Valley of Yasser Arafat's Al Fatah, the biggest guerrilla army in the Palestine Liberation Organization. The sources said damage was heavy.

A PLO spokesman said five civilians were wounded "but our air defenses forced the raiding Israeli planes to leave the area without achieving their goals."

It was the first Israeli air strike into Lebanon since the Israeli invasion in March to drive the Palestinians back from Israel's northern border. The last Israeli troops withdrew from Lebanon on June 13, and two weeks afterward a bomb in a Jerusalem market killed two persons and wounded 47. But there was no retaliatory Shackelford of Washington, D. C., Marvin E. Shackelford of Goldsboro, Lester Shackelford Jr. and Leonard L. Shackelford, both of Snow Hill.

The family will receive friends at the Hamilton Funeral Home Chapel in Goldsboro Saturday from 8 to 9 p.m.

Taft
Funeral services for Mr. Bennie Taft will be conducted Sunday at 4:30 p.m. at Warren Chapel F.W.B. Church by Elder A. L. Miller. Burial will be in Brown Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Taft was born and reared in Pitt County and educated in Israeli attack then, possibly because U.S. Vice President Walter F. Mondale was arriving in Israel the next day.

Arafat's PLO and the rival Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine each claimed it was responsible for the bomb Thursday in Tel Aviv's Carmel Market. The Popular Front, headed by George Habash, rejects any negotiated settlement with Israel while Arafat says he would agree to one if it provided for a Palestinian state controlled by the PLO.

The U.S. State Department said the market bombing was "a savage and brutal act...that nothing can justify. If the Palestine Liberation Organization claims credit, then our condemnation applies to it."

The bomb was in a black briefcase planted under a stall selling T-shirts and children's clothing. The market was crowded by shoppers preparing for the Jewish Sabbath which starts at sundown today.

Police rounded up a number of Arabs from a section of the market where Palestinians from the occupied Gaza Strip come with produce. A crowd of angry Jews shouted, "Give them to us! Death to the enemy!" Police held the crowd back and took the Arabs away for questioning.

Trevino Reacts

Lee Trevino sticks his tongue out at a missed birdie attempt on the 11th green Thursday during first round action in the

PGA Tournament at Oakmont, Pa. Trevino managed a two-under-par 69 for the round and is two strokes off the pace set by Tom Watson. (AP Laserphoto)

Watson Grabs PGA Lead

OAKMONT, Pa. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus and Mother Nature, maybe the two most potent forces in golf, both accommodated Tom Watson as he took the first-round lead in the PGA National Championship.

Nicklaus did his part Monday by hooking his opening tee shot into a ditch and staying in a rut the rest of the day to finish with an 8-over-par 79.

"It was not my day, and this is the kind of golf course where you can shoot a bad round," said the winner of more major tournaments than anybody in the history of golf.

"The course is very difficult, but I think the rain will make it easier this afternoon," added Nicklaus, who was playing No.

16 when thundershowers brought the first of two rain delays.

The water did soften Oakmont Country Club's previously hard, bouncy greens, making them more vulnerable to accurate irons like the ones wielded by Watson.

"Obviously, the rain affected the whole golf course," Watson said after he managed a 4-under-par 67, which put him 12 strokes ahead of Nicklaus and one ahead of runnerup Dave Stockton at 68.

"We could throw the balls right at the greens," added Watson, who also sank birdie putts of 30 and 35 feet.

It was also a woeeful day for South African Gary Player, and he began it with four putts on the first green.

"You do that and you get scared. You're afraid you're going to miss from everywhere," admitted Player, who double-bogeyed the third hole and eventually finished with a 76, which tied him with U.S. Open champ Andy North and Ray Floyd.

Tied for third at 69, only 2 shots out, were Lee Trevino, Dave Hill, Ben Crenshaw and Johnny Miller.

Trevino, who played in a threesome with Stockton and Watson, got close with a birdie on the final hole.

Miller, mired in a puzzling, two-year slump returned to the scene of his 1973 U.S. Open triumph.

He had a share of the lead at 4-under until he bogeyed the 16th and 18th holes. His 69 was six shots more than the course record 63 he shot here in 1973.

Ten players were clumped at 70, including defending PGA champion Lanny Wadkins, who played in a threesome with Nicklaus.

The six players who finished at 71 included Hubert Green and Wally Armstrong, who had a special first-hole problem when his caddie failed to show.

Armstrong had his bag toted for the first hole by the youngster assigned to carry the score sign for the threesome. The regular caddie arrived on the second hole.

"I couldn't fire him," said Armstrong. "He's my brother."

Hamlet Wins Legion Series

HAMLET — Williamston's drive for the Eastern American Legion championship came to an end last night as Hamlet gained a 4-1 victory and took the best-of-seven series by the same margin to move into the state finals.

Williamston, which ended the season with a 21-12 record, fell behind in the opening inning and never caught up during the evening, which saw the team's final hopes of a comeback fade.

Hamlet pitcher Frank Winfrey limited Williamston to just three hits, two of them by Anthony Latham. Jim High led the Hamlet hitting with two, a double and a home run.

Hamlet moved into the lead in the first inning, scoring a single run. Little was hit by a pitch and Wallace singled. Stubbs followed with another hit, scoring Little.

It stayed that way until the fifth, when Hamlet added two more. Wallace and Stubbs both walked, and both scored on High's double.

Williamston's lone run came in the sixth. Bill Eubanks walked and Toby Holliday reached on an error. Latham followed with a single, scoring Eubanks.

High's home run completed the scoring in the seventh inning for Hamlet.

Hamlet, a 4-1 winner in the series, will meet the winner of the Newell-Asheboro series, now tied at 3-3, for the state title.

Wolfpack Club Seeks Tax Ruling On Dorm

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The Wolfpack Club, a group that aids the athletic program at North Carolina State University, is trying to overturn a decision denying its claim to tax-exempt status for a motel converted to a residence for athletes.

The club owes Wake County $19,986 in taxes on 1977 on the Wolfpack College Inn plus a fine of $1,451 for failure to pay the taxes by a Dec. 31 deadline.

Wake County tax officials denied tax-exempt status for the facility, and the state attorney general's office agreed. The club now plans to appeal the matter to the county commissioners, who have final authority.

"We are a non-profit organization, and all our activities are for non-profit purposes," said Charlie Bryant, president of the Wolfpack Club.

The club is part of the NCSU Student Aid Association Inc., a tax-exempt foundation that supports the university's athletic programs through private contributions. The club contributed $700,000 last year to establish scholarships for NCSU athletes.

It bought the 126-room inn for about $1.25 million in 1975 and converted it into an athletic dormitory in June 1976.

"All our scholarship athletes are housed there," Bryant said. "It's the same as the athletic dorms you find at most major universities."

After deciding the inn was not eligible for tax-exempt status last year, county tax officials asked the attorney general's office for an opinion on the case.

Joseph B. Bilisoly, an assistant county attorney who handles tax matters, said the attorney general's office agreed that the inn is not exempt because it is not used solely for educational purposes. He said if the club is claiming to be a charitable organization "then the charity is limited to only a select few of the student body."

Nicklaus Skies To Eight-Over-Par 72

OAKMONT, Pa. (AP) — It was a dejected Jack Nicklaus who soberly considered the various misadventures that produced an 8-over-par 79 in the first round of the PGA national championship.

"Today, I was not sure the golf ball was round," said Nicklaus, who was expected to tame the terrors of Oakmont but instead fell victim to the demands of the old course in this, the last of the year's four major tests of golfing greatness.

"It was just one of those days. I guess everybody has them," Nicklaus said. "I felt I was playing reasonably well coming in, but I just couldn't get with it, couldn't get with the program."

"But if I shoot 66, that's 145 (for two rounds) and 145 is not a bad score at Oakmont."

He paused a moment and allowed himself a wry smile.

"Obviously, however, I have yet to shoot the 66."

The 79 was not his high effort in a major tournament. "It's not 80, and I've been in the 80s a couple of times," he said.

But he had to make a good putt on the final hole Thursday to stay in the 70s.

Nicklaus, generally considered the finest player the game has seen, started out by driving into a ditch, making bogey.

He got it into the trees on the second hole and had to take his second swing left-handed under a tree. That only advanced it further in the woods. He eventually reached the green in four and two-putted for a double bogey.

"Right about then I was pretty sure it wasn't going to be my day," he said.

But Nicklaus, winner of the British Open and the Philadelphia Classic in his last two starts, declined to count himself out of the event he has won four times.

"They're going to say 'Nicklaus shot 79 and took himself right out of the golf tournament,'" he predicted.

Red Sox Sweep Pair

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

The pennant race in the American League East gets serious in the next couple of weeks — with the contenders all facing each other — and Boston Manager Don Zimmer is glad the Red Sox have finally ended their home run drought.

The Red Sox stretched their lead by two games on New York Thursday night, beating the Yankees 7-5 in the completion of a 17-inning game suspended after 14 frames the previous night and clobbering the World Series champions 8-1 in the regularly scheduled game that was held to 6 1/2 innings by rain.

Jim Rice, who had only one home run in his previous 33 games, Fred Lynn and Bob Bailey homered for Boston in the rain-shortened contest.

The Red Sox, who have lost 11 of their past 16 games, now lead

New York by 8 1/2 games. Milwaukee by six and Baltimore by eight. Baltimore downed Milwaukee 3-2 in 10 innings Thursday night. In the other AL games, Detroit edged Chicago 5-4 in 10 innings, California clobbered Oakland 8-1 and Seattle shaded Minnesota 6-5.

Mike Torrez, 13-6, pitched a six-hitter against the Yankees in the regularly scheduled game, and Bob Stanley, 6-1, pitched three perfect innings after the suspended game resumed in the 15th inning to get that win.

Orioles 3, Brewers 2

Eddie Murray smacked his 21st home run of the season, a solo shot with two out in the bottom of the 10th inning, to lift Baltimore past Milwaukee. Dennis Martinez, 8-8, struck out a career-high 10 batters for the victory, scattering seven hits in a pitching duel with Jerry Augustine, 10-10. Augustine gave up eight hits in the 9-2-3 innings he pitched.

Tigers 5, White Sox 4

Ron LeFlore singled with two out and the bases loaded in the bottom of the 10th inning off Chicago reliever Lerrin LaGrow, 2-4, for the winning run, and Rusty Staub and Milt May homered for the Tigers.

Bob Sykes, 6-5, got the win in relief of Detroit starter Dave Rozema, who yielded Eric Soderholm's 16th home run of the season, a fourth-inning solo shot.

May's homer, his ninth, in the fourth inning gave Detroit a 2-1 lead, and Staub's solo homer, his 17th, boosted the Tigers' lead to 3-1 in the fifth.

Angels 8, A's 1

Right-hander Paul Hartzell,

3-6, tossed a three-hitter for California, striking out two and walking three. Rookie Jim Anderson drove in three runs with a bases-loaded double in the third inning, and Ken Landreaux gave the Angels a 2-0 lead with a first-inning home run, his second of the season.

Oakland starter Steve Renko, 5-6, left in the third inning after Joe Rudi's RBI double. Reliever Mike Norris then walked Tony Solaita, struck out two men, and then yielded Anderson's three-run double.

The only run given up by Hartzell came in the fourth, when Mitchell Page tripled and scored on Willie Horton's infield out.

Mariners 6, Twins 5

Larry Milbourne singled in the winning run in the bottom of the ninth, and Seattle relief ace Enrique Romo, 9-3, got the victory, working two innings

Yarborough Edges Parsons For Pole

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — The speeds haven't climbed much since the last Grand National stock car race at Alabama International Motor Speedway, but the drivers seem to feel more comfortable running them now.

Cale Yarborough edged out Benny Parsons for the pole position for Sunday's $200,000 Talladega 500 by about twenths of a second, 192.917 mph to 192.104 mph, in qualifying Thursday at the 2.66-mile track.

A year ago, Parsons qualified faster than he did Thursday, and since then has spent uncounted thousands of the dollars switching over from a Chevrolet to a supposedly faster Oldsmobile.

Oldsmobiles took four of the top five starting positions, but dollar for dollar, it doesn't seem like the drivers have bought much extra horsepower.

"The car handled better today than it did in May," Yarborough said in describing his two-lap qualifying effort. "I rode the car then. I drove it today."

Yarborough was the fastest qualifier for the Winston 500 in May here at 191.904 mph, but Parsons won the 1977 Talladega 500 pole with a speed of 192.684 mph in a Chevrolet that isn't supposed to be competitive anymore because of rules changes.

And even though his run Thursday was slower, Parsons admitted, "It was about .15 seconds quicker than we expected."

He added, "We're still running up front, but all those other guys aren't as far behind us as they used to be."

Indeed, the first 20 qualifiers were less than 1.7 seconds apart, and it took a speed of 186.685 mph or better to make the first half of the lineup.

The first six qualifiers were above the 190 mph mark, while only two were up there a year ago.

"We were 6-7 mph off the pole in May, so we're much better off now," commented Darrell Waltrip, a former winner who qualified 11th at 188.370 mph.

Buddy Baker, fourth at 191.570 mph, noted, "It's sure better than 21st, where I qualified last time here."

Even Richard Petty, who is giving up his Dodge after this race because he says it won't run fast enough, squeezed out 190.177 mph, good enough for sixth spot.

"It's danged good for us," Petty conceded. "But it still ain't fast enough to keep up if you lose the draft."

The second round of qualifying was scheduled today, as well as more practice runs. Qualifying concludes Saturday. Sunday's race starts at 1 p.m. CDT.

The New York Yankees have been in nine world series sweeps, six on the winning side and three on the losing.

Self-Taught Nancy Lopez Seeks Victory In European Tournament

SUNNINGDALE, England (AP) — For a woman who claims she has never had a golf lesson in her life, 21-year-old Nancy Lopez hasn't done too badly for herself.

Currently she is the top money winner on the U.S. circuit with seven wins to her credit, and she is trying for an eighth in the European LPGA tournament here on Sunningdale's 6174 yard, par 74 course.

She has been having trouble with her swing, but she claims she's cured it now — all by herself.

"I've never been taught, so I don't know what I am doing wrong — I have to figure it out for myself," she said after posting a 1-under-par 73 in the first round Thursday.

"I did watch a golf clinic once, and I tried to follow what they were talking about — but it was no use. I don't like getting bogged down in theory," she said.

By contrast, Sally Little, the blonde South African who is leading the field of 80 with a first round 5-under-par 69, believes very much in theory.

"I've got a video machine, and I always watch myself to see where I am liable to go wrong — then I talk about it," she said. "Before coming here I wasn't happy about my swing but the video has helped me correct it."

Little, with a string of six birdies and only a single bogey to mar her card, led throughout the opening round Thursday and confessed she likes it that way.

"It is a good feeling to be in front. I feel I have got more chance to win and I certainly don't mind being a frontrunner," she said.

But Little didn't have it all her own way Thursday.

Laura Baugh, the sunny and photogenic American, is snapping at her heels after a 4-underpar first round 70 that included a blistering run of five birdies in a row.

Baugh, who said she was stale after playing far too much golf in the early part of the year, came to Sunningdale after a week of lazing about — "just sitting in the sun reading and cooking, it was great" — and quickly got back into top form.

Giants Nip Dodgers To Hold Onto Game Lead In The West

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The San Francisco Giants show the bruises, but the Los Angeles Dodgers are on the ropes after a fifth straight loss.

"This is a rough game. We don't wear any pads," said Terry Whitfield, who scored from second base on Darrell Evans' ninth-inning single to give the Giants a 5-4 victory Thursday night.

Whitfield, the team's left fielder, is playing with 20 stitches over an eye from a basepath collision in Houston early this week. Center fielder Larry Herndon and right fielder Jack Clark are nursing injuries suffered in a collision that gave Lee Lacy a controversial inside-the-park home run in the top of the ninth Thursday night.

"We beat the Dodgers twice, once when Larry caught that ball and once on Evans' hit," insisted Clark.

The Giants, leading the National League's Western Division by a game over Cincinnati, would have dropped into second by percentage points had they lost. The third place Dodgers, defending champions, now trail by 3½ and face the Giants' pitching ace, Vida Blue, tonight.

In Thursday's only other National League game, the Chicago Cubs beat the St. Louis Cardinals for the 12th time in 12 tries this season, winning 3-2 on Bill Buckner's tie-breaking single in the seventh. The Cubs, second in the East, are now 3½ games behind the idle Philadelphia Phillies.

The Dodgers' Lacy freak homer to right-center came off Giants starter Jim Barr with the bases empty and two out. Herndon caught the ball just before running into Clark and it popped out of his glove after he fell to the artificial turf and rolled over.

"I thought I had it long enough," said Herndon, and Manager Joe Altobelli, who felt the same way, got kicked out of the game for arguing the point.

Some fans among the 42,084 at Candlestick Park for the opener of a four-game series displayed their displeasure by throwing beer and other things as Lacy returned to the Dodgers' dugout.

Earlier, they had the opportunity to cheer Willie McCovey's 504th career homer, a two-run blast off Don Sutton in the first.

Randy Moffitt, 7-4, relieved Barr and got the final out in the ninth. A leadoff walk to Whitfield led to the downfall of Los Angeles reliever Terry Foster, 3-1, in the bottom of the inning.

Heily Cruz, in the game for Clark, sacrificed Whitfield to second and Mike Ivie was walked to set up Evans, who said, "If I could have written the script, this is how it would have ended."

Cubs 3, Cards 2

Buckner singled home the eventual winning run off St. Louis starter Pete Vuckovich, 8-9, in the seventh inning, giving Chicago its 12th victory without a loss this season over the Cardinals.

Rodney Scott opened the inning with a walk, took second on a passed ball and scored on Buckner's line single.

Tourney Scheduled

A women's softball tournament will be held in Kingston on August 12-13 at Woodington Junior High.

All interested teams are invited to contact E. B. Lewis at 527-1478 for more information. Deadline for entries is August 7.

Even Democrat Officials See Carter In 'Trouble'

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — "I don't think up to now, Carter has measured up to the expectations of the American public."

"Basically, people are disappointed."

"He's perceived as failing."

In this time of political troubles for Jimmy Carter, those comments are not from his Republican opponents. Neither are they from a sampling of voters who may or may not have supported him in 1976.

They are the comments of Democratic Party officials across the nation, the people who devote their lives to electing Democrats to offices from the presidency to county commissioner.

And they are worried about the political standing of the Democrat who swept out of relative obscurity in 1976 to return the White House to Democratic control after eight years of Republican rule.

There are the public opinion polls, those nagging expressions of discontent. There are the stalemates in Congress on energy and taxes. And the angry outbursts from Ted Kennedy and Thomas "Tip" O'Neill.

A week ago, Kennedy, the Massachusetts senator who has made such a point of demonstrating loyalty to Carter, broke with the president on national health insurance. Kennedy wants the administration to push for congressional action. Carter insists on a slower approach.

House Speaker O'Neill also has played the role of Carter loyalist and played it well. But O'Neill is an old-time Boston politician, with the allegiances that implies, and he publicly complained that he was "deeply hurt" when the White House fired a long-time friend from a top job in the General Services Administration.

Democratic Party officials around the country are reluctant to criticize their president. "I don't like as a party chairman and as an individual to add to the symphony of criticism when he's down in the polls," said Bert Coffey, California Democratic Party chairman.

"This president has tried," he added. "I think he's a very hard-working guy...But he's perceived as failing."

Part of the problem, as Coffey sees it, was that in his campaign, Carter raised expectations in voters that haven't been fulfilled.

Richard J. Coffey, New Jersey party chairman and an early Carter supporter, said that though he thought Carter was "a man of tremendous ability," he too saw him as falling below expectations.

Not all the comments were pessimistic. Neale Chaney, Washington state chairman, said that "the price of wheat is up so the farmers aren't angry anymore." He noted that 65,000 people turned out when Carter was in Spokane, a huge crowd for that area.

"I haven't seen any Republican that people are enthusiastic about," he added.

In Louisiana, Jesse Bankston said the Georgia native in the White House still commands the loyalty of the South. "I don't see any great deal of erosion," he said, adding that part of Carter's problem was a media bias against southerners.

"He's a southerner and he going to get a lot more criticism than if he were a Bostonian," he said. "I think he's suffering under the heavy hand of the press."

Claire Rumpel, a leader in Minnesota's Democratic Farm Labor Party, said that when she calls rural areas to assess voter sentiment, she often is told, "Everybody is mad at Carter out here."

The farmers in her state are angry, but she finds no comparable discontent in urban areas.

In Nevada, Didi Carson said Carter's popularity is down because he advocates a halt in nuclear testing, a move she estimates would cost 5,000 jobs in the state. But the Nevada chairman said Carter isn't perceived as failing to live up to campaign promises.

"I honestly think the president is making an effort to do what he said he would do,"

she said.

But a lot of issues — inflation, energy, health insurance, foremost among them — are mentioned in talks with party officials.

"I would say to the president, I want a health insurance bill," said Bert Coffey.

"His biggest problem is that damned inflation," said Chaney.

Without fail, John White, the Texan who recently became Democratic national chairman, drew praise from party officials as a man who has improved communications between Washington and the states.

"We had reason to complain for quite a while," said Chaney. "Appointments were being made and we were reading about them in the newspaper...There's been a turnaround due to John White."

There are two more years until the 1980 campaign, but politicians can't resist guessing how candidates might match up.

Could Carter beat Ronald Reagan in Louisiana? Bankston said he would but added, "I don't think Carter could beat Kennedy in Louisiana."

In Minnesota, California, Washington and New Jersey, Kennedy also was cited. But the senator insists he won't be a candidate in 1980.

If party officials have their way, Kennedy will be campaigning in their states this year. They want Carter — even presidents down in the polls draw crowds — but they want Kennedy too.

Coffey was asked which man candidates in California would prefer to campaign for them.

The chairman emphasized that it was a hypothetical question, that no one was making such choices and then he paused and said, "Kennedy would be asked for more often." Then he hesitated again and added, "I don't say that jumping up and down."

Accused Of Ervin Feels Congress Vote-Buying Can't Extend Deadline

ALBANY, Ga. (AP) — A Dougherty County grand jury has indicted the Rev. Glennon King on a charge of offering to buy votes for himself in three elections here.

King, who gained national attention in 1976 when he tried to integrate President Carter's church in Plains, Ga., is running for the Albany City Commission, the Dougherty County Commission and the state House of Representatives.

Chief Assistant District Attorney Hobie Hind said the indictment, returned by the grand jury Thursday, stemmed from a newspaper advertisement published July 21 in the weekly Albany Journal, in which King offered to pay $100 to anyone who would "punch for me three times."

The ad "has $100" right in the middle of it. And it has a picture of him and another black man, apparently a pugilist," Hind said. "It says, 'If you will punch for me three times, I will give you $100.'"

Hind said King told a member of the district attorney's staff that the phrase "punch for me" meant giving support, not voting for him. He said King, who is "somewhere in Alabama," made the statement in a long distance collect call to the district attorney's office.

Conviction on the charge carries a penalty of one to three years in prison and/or a $2,000 fine, Hind said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Returning to the Senate Caucus Room where he presided over the Watergate hearings, former Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr. said Thursday that Congress does not have the authority to extend the deadline for ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment.

Ervin engaged in a spirited but friendly debate with Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., sponsor of a resolution to extend the deadline, during more than two hours of testimony before a Senate subcommittee.

"If you want the time extended, why not submit the constitutional amendment again," Ervin asked Bayh.

"I'll tell you why not," he said in answer to his own question. "You probably couldn't get half a dozen ratifications."

"That's speculation," Bayh responded.

When Congress proposed the Constitutional amendment in 1972, it set a deadline of March 22, 1979, for ratification by three-fourths of the states. So far, legislatures of 35 of the necessary 38 states have approved the ERA.

Ervin, the North Carolina Democrat who calls himself a "country lawyer," said the 95th Congress does not have the power to amend the deadline set by the 91st Congress.

He also maintained that since the March 22 deadline is incorporated in the ERA ratifications of 29 states "the ratifying resolutions of these 29 states will become null and void after March 22, 1979, if ERA is not ratified by the legislatures of three-fourths of the states by that date."

The former senator also criticized ERA backers who have disputed the right of four states to rescind their ratification of the ERA.

Ervin labeled the ERA "unnecessary, unrealistic and destructive of the system of government the Constitution was ordained to establish."

Ervin, the North Carolina Democrat who calls himself a

Compiles Book On Fantasy TV

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — If you want to curl up with a good book on TV's sci-fi, fantasy, horror, surrealistic or flat weird shows, get "Fantastic Television" by Gary Gerani. Then start curling.

His 192-page effort surveys nearly 30 years of abnormal TV, from "The Time Tunnel" to "The Prisoner," from "Night Gallery" to "Kolchak: The Night Stalker," from "Superman" to "Capt. Nice."

Published in soft-cover a year ago, now in its third printing, it covers more than 200 shows. Some get but a paragraph, others two and three pages of study. It's quite a scholarly work.

"It was kind of an ordeal," sighed Gerani, 24, who has enjoyed abnormal TV shows — including those older he — since childhood. His tome took him a year to research and write.

He did it at night, on weekends, and, he laughs, "occasionally I'd try to sneak it in at work, but I had to be very careful."

His is not your average work. He says he writes the bubblegum cards, many based on TV shows or films, for the Topps Chewing Gum Co. in New York, where he lives.

Many epics inspected by his "Fantastic Television," like "Atom Squad" (NBC, 1953), verge on the obscure. And who, except all of us, recalls that "Capt. Z-Ro" aired in 1955?

How did Gerani compile his data on shows major and minor?

"Well, much of it was memory, stuff I knew as a fan, and I knew others who were into it (unusual TV) from a nostalgia viewpoint," explained the compiler, aided in his task by Paul H. Schulman.

He had a vast collection of pictures and publicity handouts. So did they. So did studios and syndicators whose displays of yesteryear still can be sighted on today's TV for the 90th or so time.

He says he just pieced it all together. When program credit data was lacking, he just sat at his TV set and copied it all down from the geriatric repeats of programs way past their prime time.

As an abnormal-show buff, Gerani was asked which is his all-time favorite. Surprisingly, "Star Trek" wasn't it. "Outer Limits," an ABC mind-duster of 1963 vintage, was.

That series, which "took control" of your set and gave you a pre-LSD trip each week, was "so unlike what you'd find on TV in terms of off-beat characters," he said.

It also had brilliant photography, not just special effects, he added: "It was above and beyond the call of duty, visually."

He was asked to assess the current crop of abnormal TV shows. CBS' "Incredible Hulk" got his approval, ditto ABC's new star-warring "Battle Star," at least from his reading of the first script.

But CBS' "Wonder Woman," starring Lynda Carter, got a critic's raspberry from Gerani: "It's a perfect example of what not to do ... she's playing it so bland, there's no characterization."

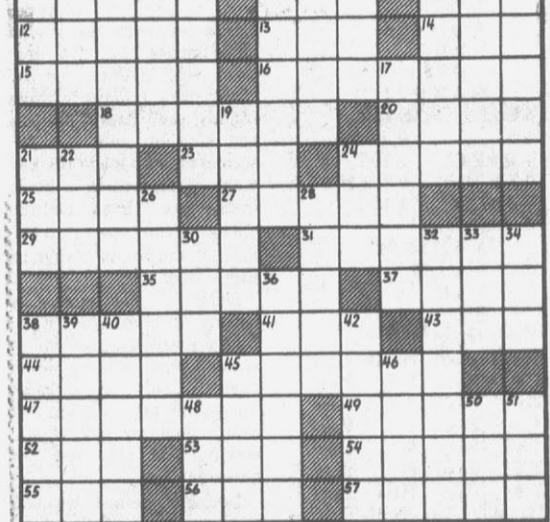

"It could have been a cute idea if done with an eye for fun ... but they're going for a pseudo-Bionic Woman approach. It has no personality."

Princely Eye Disconcerts

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) — It all was so royally embarrassing.

England's Prince Andrew flustered a young female harpist with his admiring gaze and this led Queen Elizabeth II to give the 18-year-old prince a motherly scolding.

It all started when 17-year-old harpist Gianetta Baril broke a sixth octave string on one of the last notes of Handel's Passacaglia during the banquet performance at Government House Wednesday.

The Edmonton musician said later she was disconcerted by the admiring stare of Andrew, who sat at a nearby table facing her.

Afterward, the prince consoled the blushing harpist, saying, "Mum's blaming it on me."

Miss Baril said Prince Andrew seemed to have been discussing her with Archbishop Joseph McNeil, who sat at the same table. When the string broke, the prince looked over to the queen's table and his mother looked back at him disapprovingly, as though it were his fault.

"Afterwards they both came up and spoke to me," said Miss Baril. "I was embarrassed — I have never been redder in my life."

His pet boa constrictor was in the back seat.

Ellis, 24, lost both possessions Wednesday night. So far, there's been no word or screams from the culprits.

Flip Hunting A Helpful Cabbie

DENVER (AP) — In 1955, a Denver cab driver schemed to get a then-struggling Flip Wilson a nightclub job. Now, the comedian wants to locate and thank him.

The comedian said the cabbie and his four brothers successively called a Colorado Springs night spot and said they heard a rumor that Flip Wilson was performing.

Then the cabbie, posing as the comedian's manager, walked into the club with Wilson by his side.

"He tells the girl there taking tickets, 'Inform (the owner) that Flip Wilson and his manager are here...'"

They waited a while and then the cabbie approached the owner and asked her if she would mind if Wilson "did a couple of minutes for his fans."

She didn't mind, and afterwards hired him for a two-week engagement.

Orthokeratology Is Given Poor Grade By Local Ophthalmologist

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer
 Orthokeratology, a system of fitting contact lenses tightly supposed to reshape the eye and improve the sight of near-sighted persons, is a gimmick. This is the assessment of Dr. David White, Greenville ophthalmologist and member of the Council on Public Information of the American Association of Ophthalmology. Orthokeratology is untested and costly and may in the long run prove harmful to the eyes, Dr. White warns. The gimmick, he said, is the promise of adequate vision without visual aids, a promise that appeals to people who have worn glasses all their lives. The technique is primarily directed at the myopic (near-sighted) person. In myopia, the eyeball is misshapened — too long and too steep. Light, therefore, that enters the eye has to travel a greater distance to hit the retina than it travels in the normal eye. Light and the image it carries falls short of focusing on the retina, causing myopia, an inability to see things at a distance. In an attempt to correct the problem through orthokeratology, a series of increasingly tighter-fitting contact lenses are used over a period of time in an effort to reshape the cornea (the clear, soft tissue that covers the eye). Supposedly, the tight-fitting lenses flatten the cornea, making the eye shorter, so light focuses where it should, directly on the retina. According to a recent article in Time Magazine, "orthokeratologists say that they have been able to improve vision so dramatically that many people once with visual acuity of 20/200 or worse are now able to walk around without glasses or contacts for the better part of the day." (However, even the proponents of orthokeratology admit that a retainer contact lens must still be worn for part of the day.) White says a Chicago ophthalmologist, Dr. Burton

Drimmer, says there is not enough scientific information about orthokeratology to say whether it's useful or worthless. There have been no control studies, he said, and most information is word-of-mouth. The National Eye Institute has provided several grants recently for the investigation of orthokeratology. It might be best to wait until results are known, Dr. Krimmer suggests. He said he now believes that the dangers of orthokeratology are greater than any values it has to offer. "When contact lenses are too tight," he said, "they disturb the transfer of gases in and out of the cornea (the cornea breathes as does the skins through its pores). This disturbance can cause the cornea to become cloudy or even ulcerated." "Corneal ulcers, which are similar to bedsores that occur when there has been pressure too long on one spot, are infections that can lead to the loss of an eye," said Dr. Philip Hessburg, a Michigan ophthalmologist. "To my knowledge," Dr. Hessburg said, "there is no evidence to show that we can permanently alter the shape of any soft tissue. If we could do this, we could correct protruding ears by taping them down at night and also destroy the ladies' undergarments industry if use of their garments had this effect." Why then would anyone use orthokeratology? It has worked in some slightly myopic people, the AAO says, but these people probably don't even have to wear regular contact lenses. Orthokeratology produces a temporary change in vision, which may appeal to someone who wants to pass a job interview with no optical device, suggests Dr. Krimmer. He says, though, that people who are required to have perfect eyesight for their jobs, like pilots, may put themselves and others in danger with such a temporary measure. Orthokeratology can take up to several years and cost from

$1,000 to $2,000, the AAO reports. "If you have a high refractive error, orthokeratology will make little difference. There is no reason you should not use ordinary contact lenses that cost less," says Dr. White. "And there is no great advantage with orthokeratology for people for whom the error is not so high. Retainers still have to be worn at night. So why not wear contacts that you're comfortable with all the time and save money?"

Interruption Is Happy Event

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Gov. James Thompson had to interrupt his re-election campaign, but he didn't mind at all. His wife, Jayne, gave birth Thursday to a 7-pound, 4-ounce girl, Samantha Jayne, by Caesarean section. The baby is the couple's first child. "She's beautiful. That's all I can say," Thompson said about two hours after the birth, his voice cracking. Thompson, 42, is prominently mentioned as a Republican candidate for president in 1980. Samantha Jayne measured 20½ inches at birth. "She's going to be tall," said her father, who at 6-feet, 6-inches is called "Big Jim."

Leukemia Victim Wins Military Compensation

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Donald Coe, a former Kentucky soldier who says his leukemia was caused by exposure to atomic blast tests, has won his fight for military compensation, which may amount to $1,000 a month. Coe had contended for over a year that he deserved service-connected compensation after contracting leukemia that he says was caused by witnessing atomic bomb blasts 21 years ago. The Veterans Administration originally refused Coe's claim, but the Board for Veterans Appeals reversed the decision Thursday following lobbying efforts by Rep. Tim Lee Carter, R-Ky., and the Veterans of Foreign Wars. "I was bitter then," said Coe in recalling the initial rebuff.

"But who wouldn't have been, the way they (VA) were handling it? I got kind of angry... But I'm not bitter now." Coe, 44, and father of seven children, is dying of the same disease that killed at least one other former GI who witnessed the nuclear test "Smoky" on Aug. 31, 1957, at Yucca Flats, Nev. Coe and Paul Cooper, of Emmett, Idaho, claimed they were deliberately exposed to the blasts. Cooper won his fight for benefits, but died this past Feb. 8. Earlier this year, several days of congressional hearings were devoted to the atomic blast test series between 1945 and 1963 in Nevada and the Pacific during which thousands of servicemen and an unknown number of civilians were exposed to radiation. Coe was in the 12th Infantry, stationed at Ft. Lewis, Wash., and "they told us that we were picked as top secret men. I seen several nuclear blasts, maybe 15 or 20. I don't remember." After the explosion and resulting heat wave, Coe said the men were told to "get up and watch the mushroom. It just felt like something real hot touching you." The VA, in refusing Coe benefits, said there were no records that he was treated for radiation exposure during his nearly eight years in the Army and that he wasn't eligible for service connected disability benefits. After several visits to Vanderbilt University Hospital in Nashville, Tenn., for treatment, Coe said his health has improved. "I feel very well, but my neck bothers me, and my eyes bother me, and I tire awfully easy." Coe said a VA representative was to meet with him today to discuss the amount of compensation, "which could run from $700 to $1,000 a month." A VA spokesman in Washington said the appeals board ruled only on the entitlement question, leaving to a regional board the amount to be awarded and whether Coe should receive retroactive benefits.

Bridge has become a very important shipboard activity. Almost every cruise liner has a bridge instructor aboard. Today's hand cropped up in a game aboard Holland America's S.S. Rotterdam. Sitting North was jazz great George Shearing, who was the featured entertainer on the cruise, partnered by the bridge instructor, Andy Gabrilovitch of Stamford, Conn.

After North gave a jump preference, South started a cue-bidding sequence. The key to getting to the grand slam was Shearing's heart cue-bid. Gabrilovitch now realized that seven spades

Helms Sees Reagan Out

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)— Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., an active supporter of Ronald Reagan's bid for the Republican presidential nomination two years ago, says he doubts the former California governor will seek the nomination in 1980.

And Helms, a conservative who helped lead the fight against the Panama Canal treaties, adds that he isn't ready to say whether he would support Reagan in another attempt for the GOP nomination.

"I've watched Reagan make some speeches around the country since 1976, and in those situations he just doesn't look to me like somebody who is running for president," Helms said. "You know, he made that sacrifice (a national campaign) once, and that is an awfully big undertaking."

"I think how Nancy (Reagan's wife) feels will be an important factor in his decision, and there is also the fact that he'd be 69 in 1980," Helms added. "He'd be a young 69 but 69 nonetheless."

The North Carolina Republican has not committed himself to either Reagan or Rep. Phillip M. Crane, R-Ill., another conservative who announced recently he will be a candidate for the GOP presidential nomination.

He said Crane "called me before making his announcement, and he called several other people. He's not asking anybody to support him, just getting his name in the pot. He seems to be driving a stake in, just in case."

Helms said he also doubts that Gerald Ford will seek the nomination again in 1980 because "I just don't think Betty Ford will let Jerry run."

If Reagan does decide to seek the nomination, Helms said he will seek assurances that he will pick a conservative as his running mate.

Helms and some other conservatives were upset by Reagan's selection of liberal Sen. Richard Schweiker, R-Pa., as his choice as a vice presidential nominee at the 1976 GOP convention.

Predict Peaking Of Meat Prices

By BRIAN B. KING
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The rapid climb in retail beef prices — up 32 percent from last fall — has peaked, the Agriculture Department is predicting.

And in what could be even better news for inflation-battered consumers, a department report indicated on Thursday that beef prices could fall slightly in coming months.

The department was able to make those predictions at the same time it was saying retailers finally have begun passing on to consumers the full impact of soaring beef prices at the slaughterhouse.

That traditional pass-through normally takes only a few weeks but had been lagging in the current spiral. When beef retailers began to show a more normal pattern in June, slaughter cattle prices — which had risen by more than 40 percent since last fall — slipped slightly, softening the blow.

At that point the increase in retail prices was lagging behind by 8 percentage points.

What department forecasters said they do not yet know is when cattle raisers are going to start rebuilding herds so that prices can come down substantially. The current forecast calls for continued high prices through 1980 or 1981.

Various department surveys have found retail beef prices sliding a little in recent weeks, largely because of supermarket price-cutting.

The report analyzing prices of selected foods in June showed that retailers and wholesalers accounted for 38 percent of the record $1.81-a-pound national average price for choice beef. That compares to 32.3 percent in May and 36.5 percent in March. Retailers accounted for most of the June gain.

Meanwhile, pork prices, compared to June 1977, were up 10.4 percent at the farm and 14.7 percent at retail.

The middleman share was 40.3 percent of the average retail price of $1.44 a pound, compared to 37.9 percent in May and 41.9 percent in April.

At Meet In Greensboro

GREENSBORO — Teresa B. Lucas, Pitt County Mental Health Center, attended a workshop session here yesterday dealing with the implementation of an Employee Assistance Program.

The one-day Occupational-Industrial workshop, sponsored by the occupational departments of various mental health centers in the North and South Central Regions, is aimed at business and industry leaders in explaining the new program.

Lucas is in the process of formulating plans for Pitt County industries to offer EAP programs under the direction of the county mental health department.

The program is devised to aid employees, managers, technicians and their immediate families in solving personal problems and in returning the employee's job performance to an acceptable level.

Need Permit

Greenville Police Chief Glenn Cannon cautioned today that persons soliciting inside the city limits are required to have a permit from the city, or face possible legal action.

The chief noted that solicitors' permits can be obtained from the Police Department, and include an identification card with the solicitor's picture, which the seller should carry at all times while soliciting.

Cannon said residents should notify the Police Department if they are visited by solicitors who cannot produce the city-issued permit.
