

Quake Cleanup Underway

By ROBERT LOCKE
Associated Press Writer
SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Residents of this seaside resort community hit by an earthquake that injured at least 50 people cleaned up the debris today caused by shattered windows, flooded streets, cracked highways and a derailed train.

The powerful 110-second temblor, which struck at 3:54 p.m. PDT Sunday, measured 5.1 on the Richter scale — the worst quake to hit the area in more than 30 years. It was centered six miles south of here, offshore in the Santa Barbara Channel.

Many of those injured were cut by flying glass and tumbling dishes, police said. Electric, gas and water lines were severed as the ground shifted and twisted. Most of the utilities were restored by morning, however.

The quake rattled a five-county area and was felt as far away as Los Angeles, 100 miles to the southeast. Several small aftershocks were felt up to seven hours after the main jolt.

Officials had no immediate dollar estimate of damages. "It just scared us," said Joe Loebman, 38, who lives on the ocean about two miles from the center of town. "As soon as it happened, we got outside and there were a lot of very scared people."

Structural damage was minimal, but many residents today had to clear broken glass and other debris from their homes. Downtown Santa Barbara, hit hard in a 1941 quake, escaped without serious damage this time. Goleta, just north of here, absorbed most of the damage, and many windows shattered by the tremor were covered with plywood.

"It was like being inside a paint shaker," said California Highway Patrol Officer Gene Hunt, who was home in Goleta when the quake hit. "With no warning, the house started shaking violently from side to side. I was lying on the living room floor reading the Sunday paper. My very first thought was a car had run into my house or that an airplane had crashed. But then it kept going and I knew what it was."

Most of the 50 people rushed to Goleta Valley Community Hospital's emergency room were treated for minor cuts and bruises, but Dr. Donald Rink said one woman was admitted to the intensive care unit with burns and was listed in good condition. Another person suffered a broken back, he said.

BELK-TYLER GROUNDBREAKING — Greenville Banks, Belk's local manager, Mayor Percy Cox, and Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce president Charles Burnette, break ground for the new Belk-Tyler store at Greenville Mall on N.C. 11 just south of the U.S. 264 intersection this morning as Ed Walker, Chamber of Commerce executive director looks on. The 120,940 square foot Belk's store, scheduled to open in the Fall of 1979, will replace the 36,000 square foot downtown store which opened in 1937. Reported to be the most modern of any Belk store in North Carolina, the new facility will be the largest store of any kind East of Raleigh. Belk's and a Sears Roebuck retail store will form the two anchor units for the $25.9 million regional shopping mall, which will include almost 500,000 square feet in the enclosed facility, several buildings on the outside, and a smaller shopping center. The development will involve roughly 48 acres of the 81 acre site. Mall developers Ernest W. Hahn, Inc. of Hawthorne, California, is recognized as one of the largest developers of regional shopping centers in the United States.

Abernathy: King Was Warned

By MARGARET GENTRY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Martin Luther King Jr.'s chief lieutenant in the civil rights movement said today he believes King received advance warning of his assassination.

"I think he had received some word from some sources that he was going to be assassinated," the Rev. Ralph David Abernathy told the House assassinations committee as the panel opened a week of public hearings on its investigation of King's death.

Under further questioning, however, Abernathy said he has "no knowledge" of any warning delivered to King. He said that although he and King were the closest of friends, King had said nothing to him about any threats.

Abernathy recalled that the night before the murder in Memphis, Tenn., April 4, 1968, King delivered a speech in which he seemed to foretell his death.

That was a famous speech in which King declared, "I have been to the mountain top and I have seen the promised land." In more than an hour of testimony, Abernathy described his relationship with King from the time they first met in Atlanta in 1951. He traced the development of King's belief in nonviolence as the most effective way to protest mistreatment of blacks throughout the South in the 1950s and 1960s.

And he told of King's efforts to show his support for the mostly black sanitation workers of Memphis who were striking for wage increases. Sympathy for the strike brought King, Abernathy and other strategists of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference to Memphis to lead a civil rights march on March 28, 1968.

When the March turned violent, King became extremely depressed but concluded later that he would return to lead a peaceful protest, Abernathy recounted.

Throughout his experiences in Memphis and elsewhere, King distrusted law enforcement agencies and felt he could not rely on them for protection, Abernathy continued.

"He really did not rely on or trust the police powers in this country," Abernathy said. "He knew the FBI was against him and could not be trusted. He knew the CIA was against him and could not be trusted. His hotel rooms had been bugged. The police were looked on as an enemy."

Abernathy, who succeeded King as head of the SCLC, was the only witness during the opening day of testimony.

As the session opened, committee members said they have investigated 21 allegations of conspiracy in the King murder but will reserve judgment until reviewing all the evidence.

Israelis Shelve Settlement Plan

By LARRY THORSON
Associated Press Writer
TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The Israeli Cabinet, trying to blunt a political storm, today shelved plans to build five new Jewish settlements in the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River until after the Camp David summit next month.

radio he objected to the timing of the decision to build the new settlements in the Jordan Valley, although his party — the minority Democratic Movement for Change — favors increasing Jewish outposts in the West Bank.

"I thought that, although we are for such a thing (the settlements), we don't have to do it exactly while the negotiations take place," Yadin said. "My objection was against the timing."

The Cabinet made the decision on the five new settlements June 28 but ruled that meeting was a session of the ministerial defense committee, a device that clamps strict secrecy and military censorship on the proceedings. The secret was kept until a week ago when some Knesset members began complaining about the censorship and saying the public was being denied essential information.

Naor said Yadin brought the decision before the Cabinet along with his protest and the Cabinet decided to defer the entire matter.

The semi-official state radio said the Cabinet also turned back efforts to rescind the decision.

"The government decided to discuss the matter after the Camp David meeting," Cabinet Secretary Arie Naor told reporters after the Cabinet met in Jerusalem.

President Carter will mediate the Sept. 5 meeting of Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat at Carter's Maryland mountain retreat in a bid to revitalize the flagging peace drive launched by Sadat last November.

Begin is vacationing and did not attend today's Cabinet session. Also absent was Agriculture Minister Ariel Sharon, the Cabinet's chief advocate of new settlements in the occupied territories. Naor said they were informed of the decision during the meeting.

The session was chaired by Deputy Prime Minister Yigael Yadin.

In an interview after the meeting, Yadin told Israeli

Kucinich Escapes Recall

CLEVELAND (AP) — A jubilant Mayor Dennis Kucinich, clinging to a thin 275-vote margin, joked with hundreds of cheering supporters after apparently surviving a bitter recall effort.

If he wins by one vote, "it will be good enough," Kucinich said Sunday night as Cuyahoga County election officials took the first steps toward a recount.

With all of Cleveland's 645 voting precincts reported, Kucinich turned back the recall drive by an unofficial vote of 60,308 to 60,033.

Cleveland has been plagued with problems since Kucinich took office on Nov. 14, 1977, but the recall drive was triggered when the mayor fired Police Chief Richard Hongisto during a televised news conference March 24.

Contacted after the recall vote, Hongisto, now head of New York state's prison system, said he does not expect any changes for the better. "It's hard to kill a city. But he'll (Kucinich) do a fair job of trying," Hongisto told a reporter.

"I don't think Dennis won. I just think the people said they didn't want anything as drastic as a recall." But Kucinich was exuberant. "Thank God for the people of the city of Cleveland for ignoring my imperfections and giving my administration another chance," the 31-year-old mayor said. If the victory is sustained, he would complete his two-year term in the $50,000-a-year post.

Factions Begin Lobbying For Kind Of New Pope They Desire

By MICHAEL J. DUFFY
Associated Press Writer
ROME (AP) — Factions within the Roman Catholic Church have begun lobbying for the kind of new pope they want as the mourning period for Paul VI continues and thousands pray at his tomb.

The 112 cardinals expected to vote for Paul's successor will be locked into their secret electoral conclave on Aug. 25. Meanwhile, the lobbyists are busy.

Names are avoided, but they pour out detail on what kind of man they want — his theological tendencies, his personality, his policies on various issues.

The ultra-conservative Italian organization Civiltà Cristiana, which considered Pope Paul too liberal, put up posters in St. Peter's Square Saturday morning calling for election of a "teacher of a crystal-clear doctrine and a custodian of truth against current heresy and errors of the so-called 'modern humanism.'"

A liberal American group, the Committee for the Responsible Election of the Pope, held a news conference Sunday morning at which the Rev. Andrew M. Greeley of Chicago called for an open-minded, progressive pope, "a holy man with a smile."

The committee also sent each of the cardinals a copy of the new book "The Inner Elite," containing dossiers on each of the cardinals.

A group of progressive Catholic theologians and scholars gave their requirements in a letter to the Italian weekly Panorama. The signers included Yves Congar of France, Hans Kueng of Switzerland, Eduard Schillebeeck of the Netherlands, Giuseppe Alberigo of Italy and Greeley.

They said the next pope should be open to the world and other religious groups, an authentic pastor of souls, a promoter of women's rights and a decentralizer of papal power.

They called for him to "elevate the synod of bishops from a mere consultative organ to a deliberative one and to give concrete competencies to the episcopal conferences."

Some of the cardinals mentioned as "papabili" — possible popes — have also made statements about the kind of man who is needed.

A total of 115 of the 130 members of the College of Cardinals are eligible to take part in the electoral conclave because they are under 80, but three reportedly will be absent because of poor health. The absentees will include Cardinal John Wright of the United States, who is in a Boston hospital for eye surgery.

Meanwhile, the Vatican grotto opened to the public at 7 a.m. Sunday for the first time since the body of Pope Paul was placed there Saturday night, and a steady stream of people went down the two flights of stairs to pray at the simple slab atop the new grave.

The College of Cardinals gave a reception Sunday morning for Rosalynn Carter and the other members of the 110 foreign delegations who attended the funeral. Before her flight back to Washington, Mrs. Carter also toured St. Peter's but did not visit Pope Paul's grave.

Carter Visits Farmers Meet

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, seeking to make political hay out of rising farm prices, flew to Missouri today to address a farmers' convention.

He was expected to reiterate the administration's message that farmers' income is up 25 per cent this year, a figure White House domestic policy adviser Stuart Eizenstat repeated in a television interview Sunday.

With farm prices up and last winter's militant "farm strike" all but dead, Carter's advisers felt the timing right for the trip to Columbia, Mo., to address the 61st annual convention of the Midcontinent Farmers Association.

"The president has not given a strictly farm speech since he's been in office, and we thought that it would be a propitious time to do so," said presidential spokesman Rex Granum.

Association spokesman Jack Hackethorn predicted a warm welcome for Carter from the 9,000 to 10,000 persons expected to attend the convention at the University of Missouri field house.

The 165,000-member organization, composed of several farmer-owned cooperatives, is generally considered middle-of-the-road politically. Hackethorn said few of the federation's members joined the militant strikers even before the protest movement collapsed with the coming of the spring planting season and rising farm prices.

"Everybody seems to be pleased and excited," Hackethorn said in a telephone interview.

He said MFA members feel Carter, the first sitting president to visit Columbia since native Missourian Harry S. Truman, is doing "very well right now."

"Six months ago there was a lot of complaining. But now cattle prices are up. Hog prices are holding their own. Dairy prices are up. Soybeans are up. Wheat's up some, and so's corn. The only thing that's not up is cotton. Crops look good."

"The farm strike is dead," said Mark Abels, spokesman for Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., who relayed the MFA's invitation to Carter.

Hackethorn said some members who raise cattle have made "a lot of noise" about Carter's decision to allow a relatively modest rise in beef imports, but he said the cattlemen weren't suffering.

He said current cattle prices are "pretty good," and added that Carter's move seems to have quieted a potential consumer protest about skyrocketing retail beef prices.

Running Is Good For His Heart

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband started running every morning before work for his health. He said he felt like a new man, and he really looked terrific. He lost 15 pounds and started to pay more attention to his diet.

Well, everything was wonderful until he started running after work. I thought it was rather odd for him to come home from work, shower, put on cologne and comb his hair to go running! Then I found out why, quite by accident.

I was driving along the parkway where he runs, when I saw him saying goodbye to a blonde who was getting into her car. She had on running clothes, too. Such a goodbye I never saw outside a movie. They were embracing and looking into each other's eyes like a pair of young lovers. I don't know how old she is, but my husband is 57.

He doesn't know I saw him. Should I tell him? I don't want him to quit running, because it's been so good for him. I can't run with him because I'm not the type. What do you say?

RUNNER'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Don't blame the running. If you husband didn't run, he'd probably run into a blonde somewhere else. Of course you should tell him your saw him. And let the next move be his.

DEAR ABBY: I've been playing Mah-Jongg for over 30 years and I never cheated in my life. However, last night I really don't know what came over me, but I wanted so desperately to make a hand that I cheated.

Well, a dear friend who was out at the time noticed what I had done. Although she didn't say anything to me, I could tell by the expression on her face that she saw me cheat.

The rest of the evening I felt terrible, and that night I couldn't sleep a wink.

I know that I will never cheat again, but how can I rectify this with my good friend? I don't want to lose her friendship over a stupid mistake.

Should I just let it pass? Or should I say something to my friend? Sign me . . .

VERY, VERY SORRY

DEAR SORRY: You are obviously suffering from a very troubled conscience, so go ahead and clear the air with your friend. You'll feel better.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 27, and for the first time in my life I'm in love. He's 34, divorced, and his name is Paul.

Paul and his wife (Theresa) lived next door to my mother, who has been like a second mother to Theresa. Paul and Theresa have two kids. Paul moved out, but Theresa is still my mother's neighbor.

My problem is my mother. Mom should have been a nun. She goes to church every morning and lives by the Bible. Mom insists that in the eyes of the church Paul and Theresa are still married even though their divorce was final a year ago. Mom says if I marry Paul, I'll burn in hell for living in sin.

Mom told me that Theresa told her that she and Paul never stopped sleeping together. Paul told me that he hasn't slept with Theresa since he moved out of the house. I love Paul and he loves me, but I don't know what to believe. What should I do?

MIXED UP IN MINNESOTA

DEAR MIXED UP: Have a heart to heart talk with Paul and get the facts. If he's still sleeping with Theresa, perhaps you should bow out of the picture and give them a chance to reconcile.

But if Paul loves you as he says he does, and it's over between him and his ex, regardless how much your mother meddles, you and Paul will make it to the hitching post.

The Pitt United Fund Board of Directors has approved a budget of $312,269.12 in preparation for the upcoming United Fund drive.

The budget includes funds for a number of worthwhile community agencies. The agencies and their proposed amounts are: Blind, $3,250; N. C. Mental Health, $18,197; Salvation Army, $42,197; 4-H Council, $4,925; Girl Scouts, $18,500; Boy Scouts, $46,241.44; Retarded Citizens, $9,685; Red Cross, $35,200; Boys' Club, $47,000; Real Crisis Center, $10,000; Cystic Fibrosis, $5,000 and N. C. United Fund, $14,697.09.

The total United Fund budget will be $39,803.85 more than last year but, when the effects of inflation are considered, the participating agencies will be receiving little more in tangible aid than in the past.

The United Fund seems to have come up with a realistic budget which provides funds for a number of agencies which in turn aid the community.

Now it is up to citizens and businesses to plan for full financial support of the United Fund.

Ray Of Hope For Hard-Pressed People

Hard pressed families trying to keep their budgets intact, may find a ray of hope from some government figures released last week.

For the first time in ten months there was a drop in wholesale food prices in July.

It wasn't much — only a 0.3 percent decrease from June — but it could mean a slowing in the overall cost of living increase.

General wholesale prices incidentally increased by 0.5 percent in July, but this was the smallest increase in five months.

Inflation is the nation's major economic problem and hopefully some progress is being made in getting the rate of increase under control.

THIS AFTERNOON

Outstrips N.C. Citizenry

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — By two important measures, the growth of government in North Carolina is running ahead of growth in the private sector which pays the bills for government.

State taxes are increasing faster than the growth in personal income of the citizens.

State employment is increasing at a rate ahead of new jobs added in private businesses.

million in 1972.

New Jobs

Overall, jobs in state government have increased at a rate 1.5 percent greater than the growth in private employment.

That same percentage figure holds true for governmental income: taxes have expanded 1.5 percent faster than personal income has increased.

Government is taking more of your dollars at a faster rate than you are able to increase your earnings, and using it to hire more people.

Those close to Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr. say these circumstances are causing him considerable concern, and that the 1979 General Assembly may be called upon to take strong steps to bring the growth of state government under control.

BILL NOBLITT

And these two measurements are related: most of the state's $4 billion budget goes into salaries, fringe benefits, and other expenses directly related to numbers of people.

The conclusion is plain — if you hire more people, it costs more.

Here are some statistics which illustrate the dilemma:

Last year there were 104,700 employees on the state payroll. In 1972 there were 82,300. In all non-agricultural jobs in the state last year there were 2.128 million, compared to 1.9

Statistical data and averages can be used to illustrate a variety of points, but it is clear from available information that governmental salaries continue to increase faster than private salaries; that the average pay for governmental employees is higher than that for comparable private sector workers; that more new jobs are being created in government than in the private sector; and that it is costing private citizens more to keep up that pace.

Hunt has told key members of his administration that he considers exploding personnel costs a serious problem, and employment growth must be cut back from the present 3.5 percent per year to two percent.

Growth in public employment, Hunt feels, should not be greater than the growth in private jobs. Emphasis on productivity, merit rewards, and regular job appraisal should cause government employees to keep the programs going without continually depleting, he believes.

Alternatives

Preliminary staff studies and discussions have produced several alternatives which, if given the force of law, could bring better balance between the ability of citizens to pay for government services.

One suggestion is that growth in the state budget be pegged directly to growth in personal income statewide. Another is that a constant ratio be established governing numbers of state employees in a given program, and numbers of citizens served by that program.

The result of the first alternative would be a lid on the budget — and consequently on taxes — which would remain constant with taxpayer ability to pay.

The result of the second would be a lid on employment, and even some reduction whenever a given program encountered a decline in people needing that service; a situation currently seen in declining enrollment figures in the public schools.

"In order to get this high honor, of course, I have to tip him rather handsomely."

A Think Tank At Work

MARTHA'S VINEYARD, Mass. — We have a think tank on Martha's Vineyard. Because most of the foundation money in the country has dried up we do not have an official building and must hold our meetings on the beach. But the weighty problems of the world are still discussed in depth.

For example, at the last session a professor from Harvard revealed some startling statistics. He said that at the present rate of production there would be 300 billion more test tubes in the world in the year 2000 than there are today.

If each one of these test tubes were used to produce one baby there would not be enough food to supply the world's population.

A woman who heads up the Planned Parenthood Society of West Tisbury said her organization was willing to support a program to put a limit on the number of test tubes made in any given year.

This met with an immediate response from the pro-test tube advocates, who asserted that it was a sin to interfere with new test tubes.

"By destroying test tubes," one of them said, "you are impeding the forward march of chemistry. We will not stand idly by and see anyone break a test tube which could someday be used as a means of fertilizing an egg."

A dean from MIT tried to find a middle ground. "We should not ban the manufacture of test tubes by law. What we have to do is educate the world's population that it must face the consequences if it uses test tubes indiscriminately. We must strive for zero-base test tube manufacturing

Gospel Of Tax Revolt

They are business owners from the city and farmers from the country. Rich and poor. Male and female. Political newcomers and political pros.

They are the preachers of the gospel of tax revolt, united in a commitment to cut government spending, even if it means cutting government services.

The approval of Proposition 13 slashing property taxes by an average of 57 percent in California spawned similar drives in more than a dozen states. "It is what we've been saying all along, and now, people are listening," said Kenneth White, president of the Virginia Taxpayers Association, a small, generally conservative group that was given new life by the success of the California campaign.

goal, and only replace those that have been broken or lost in laboratories.

The Planned Parenthood spokeswoman would have none of it.

"In my opinion we should sterilize every test tube that comes off the line. We can't allow them to proliferate and endanger the whole human race."

The pro-test tube man angrily kicked sand in the Planned Parenthood spokeswoman's face. "Who are you to say what we should or should not do with glass? The test tube is one of the greatest miracles of mankind. By sterilizing test tubes you are interfering with the laws of nature. Our organization will fight for the right of any glass company to make as many test tubes as it wants to."

The Harvard professor said, "I believe this is a serious mistake. We know from our research figures that most of the major powers would not take advantage of their test tubes. But we must think about the Third World countries, which in many cases cannot feed their populations now. If they can get a large supply of test tubes God knows what they'll do with them. Perhaps the solution to the problem would be to put an embargo on test tubes to those countries which cannot feed themselves."

THE INSIDE REPORT

Specter In Germany

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — President Carter's uncertain foreign policy is unwittingly contributing to stepped-up contacts between the Soviet Union and left-wing leaders of West Germany's ruling Social Democratic Party (SPD) who have long opposed Chancellor Helmut Schmidt's devotion to Washington and the North Atlantic alliance (NATO).

Playing the prime role in these very private contacts is Egon Bahr, secretary-general of the SPD. Bahr had extensive talks with Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev shortly before Brezhnev's highly successful visit to Bonn in May. He renewed his Moscow talks in July — not as an emissary of Schmidt, but as agent of the SPD's activist left wing and the party chairman, former chancellor Willy Brandt.

Here is the specter of what has always made the Western alliance tremble: a menacing new version of the 1922 Rapallo Soviet-German treaty. Another Rapallo is certainly no possibility in the near future. Indeed, it is unthinkable in Helmut Schmidt's Germany.

Nevertheless, what is clearly at issue in the Brezhnev-Bahr talks is chilling, even though no immediate threat: West Germany leaving NATO with Soviet guarantees against aggression and with the ultimate prospect of German reunification.

Bahr, a fanatical German nationalist, leads SPD's far-left faction which believes the key to Germany's future reunification is held in Moscow, not Washington. To Bahr and his allies, common political ground will eventually be found between Soviet communism and European socialism.

Political sources in Europe, both West and East, provide the following outline of Bahr's Soviet contacts in Moscow and Bonn, together with collateral talks between other leaders of the SPD's left wing and East European Communist officials.

Bahr attacks the Carter foreign policy, particularly the administration's intention "to play the China card." According to one qualified informant, Bahr agrees with Moscow that the Soviet Union "would not accept this" and would retaliate "in Africa, in the Middle East, in Asia and Western Europe," possibly with a "Berlin crisis." Bahr contends West Germany might not survive a new Berlin crisis.

* The impact of Mr. Carter's human rights policy on the Soviet Union threatens Soviet reaction which could put pressure on West Germany.

* Given these alleged dangers to West Germany, Bahr has asked the Soviets what sort of "guarantees" they could offer "in case of a crisis" between the superpowers.

* To facilitate such a cataclysmic shift in West German policy, a major propaganda operation has been discussed with this purpose: to dramatize perceived dangers of U.S. policy and "Mr. Carter's inexperience in foreign policy." This would start by denying the U.S. "unlimited power" to dictate Western policy to West Germany on strategic arms limitation, Communist China, the Third World and Europe itself.

Bahr and the SPD left wing have exploited President Carter's stunning decision not to produce neutron weapons by constantly

Other Editors Say Life In A Fast Lane

(Greensboro Daily News)

Nick Thimmesh, the syndicated columnist, has written a sobering reflection on the light plane crash which killed Virginia's promising young Republican senatorial candidate, Richard Obenshain, last week.

Politicians take a lot of guff these days, some of it deserved. But Thimmesh minds us that the politician's life is more frenetic than most, and carries risks most of us wouldn't touch with a Lloyds of London policy and a 10-foot pole. The pursuit of politics is often a high-speed chase.

Richard Obenshain died en route to Richmond, his home, from a farmers' picnic in rural Winchester. The two-engine plane a supporter had loaned him crashed and burned in the night.

Politics is no stranger to death by air travel — especially the small chartered planes busy men on the rise frequently use. Thimmesh recalls just a few of those who have preceded Obenshain: House Democratic leader Hale Boggs and congressman Nick Begich in Alaska in 1972; California congressman Jerry Pettis in 1975, Missouri Democratic nominee Jerry Litton, his wife and two children just after his 1976 Senate primary victory. And no such list is complete without the Kennedy family. The late president's sister, and Ethel Kennedy's parents and brother were killed in plane crashes. Sen. Edward Kennedy nearly lost his life in a 1964 small plane accident.

Prominent people in many other professions requiring extensive travel have suffered similarly (the entertainment business being one of them, as the current film "The Buddy Holly Story" reminds us).

But it is the politician's peculiar line of work — an obsession to "press the flesh," as President Johnson phrased it, wherever constituents gather — that makes him especially vulnerable.

"Politicians give up those nights by hearth and home because a fire burns in them," Thimmesh writes. "The charge on, even when most people would stay back. They feel they must show command and bravado, lest voters perceive them as stick-in-the-muds. They know about the other politicians killed, shot at by the demented, or even wasted in health by impossible schedules; but like ancient gladiators or toothless prize fighters, they struggle into the arena again."

UNSUSPECTED SIN

Worry is a sin.

This may be a surprising statement, and one with which many people cannot agree. Yet if we go through the Bible we will find the whole of divine revelation testifying to the essential wickedness of worry.

To worry means to doubt God. If we really believe that God holds the universe in the hollow of his hand, then we will not allow the irritations and frustrations of life to discourage us. Nor will we allow calamity and sorrow to plunge us into despair. Anyone who really believes in God and trusts Him is supported by the conviction that all things work together for good to them that love God.

Worry can also be a habit, or even a perverted source of satisfaction to people with masochistic tendencies.

The sin of worry may be very hard to break. But we will be aided in the task of doing so if we always remember that we are objects of God's love.

By JOHN CUNIFF

Ap Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — If corporations understood real estate, said Ben Lambert, they could solve a lot of their financing problems and maybe save money too.

"But," he said, "it's an enigma to most people."

Even corporate finance officers "lack a grasp of what can be accomplished with brick and mortar," said Lambert, president of Eastdil Realty, a subsidiary of Blyth Eastman Dillon & Co.

Eastdil, based here, calls itself a real estate investment banking firm. It's a big one, raising last year more than $800 million in debt and equity capital, and counseling on another $1.5 billion.

In arranging intricate financing deals, such as the $240 million for purchase of the 77,000-acre Irvine Ranch near Los Angeles, or the $57 million Hyatt Regency Hotel mortgage in Dallas, Lambert has few peers.

Real estate is his vocation, equity financing is his specialty and sale-leaseback is his vehicle, each one structured differently through myriad options that serve buyer, seller, lessor, lessee.

"Give some tax benefits to the investors, depreciation to others, cash return to a nontaxable investor," says Lambert rapidly.

"Sell the land to a pension fund and then lease it back. Sell the building to a private investor and structure the sale so the tax benefits can go to someone who can use a shelter."

"What does it all mean?"

"To the extent a company has an exceptional financial track record — solid earnings, a healthy balance sheet — that company can convert physical assets into buck dollars," said Lambert.

And, he asserts, since equity financing probably runs 6 percent to 8 percent, versus debt financing of 10 percent or so, the company saves money in the long run.

"So why don't more companies utilize the technique?" Lambert is asked. His frustration, underlain with pride, shows through. "Old-fashioned attitudes," he replies. "Lack of understanding too."

Because of the complexities of selling physical assets and then leasing them back — and sometimes buying them back at a later date — many companies simply don't consider such moves in their capital plans.

While arrangements differ with every deal, in almost every instance the lessee doesn't disturb its usual lines of credit; it doesn't impinge on the senior debt, such as debentures.

In fact, as is often the case, it can have written into the deal the right to repurchase the assets at the end of a certain period so that, in effect, it doesn't sell the equity either.

groups; today, it has more than 500.

The union, a 10-year-old Washington-based lobbying group, is financed by contributions and by $15-a-year dues paid by the 75,000 individual members. Miss Bezanilla said there are hundreds of organizations working in the field. Some have only a handful of members; others have thousands. "A lot of them are bridge clubs who want to get involved in cutting taxes," Miss Bezanilla said. "We are trying to establish umbrella groups in every state."

An Associated Press spot check shows most of the associations involved in petition drives and other campaigns to trim taxes or spending are loosely organized, financed by small contributions.

One such group is Colorado Spending Limitation Inc., founded in January, staffed by volunteers and paid for by donations. Its driving force is Palmer Burch, 71, retired real estate manager, 20-year veteran of the Legislature, former state treasurer and onetime member of the Denver school board.

As a result of a petition drive by Burch's group, a proposed constitutional amendment will be on the ballot in November to link increases in state spending to increases in the cost of living.

It has been said of Burch that if you ask him the time, he will tell you how to make a watch. He has always been interested in fiscal matters, but previously, approached the problems from the government side of the fence. Now, he leads a campaign he describes as an attempt "to try to control the purse strings through the people."

Robert Tisch, 58, a farmer and county drain commissioner, heads the Tisch Coalition for a Property Tax Cut in Michigan. His proposal would cut property taxes in half and allow an increase of one percentage point in the state's income tax. His support comes largely from rural and suburban regions, although Tisch says the membership includes "every kind of red-blooded American."

The coalition is financed by contributions, but Tisch also plans to record an album—"a real fine piece of patriotic music"—with Jarvis. It will sell for $5.

Danielle Samuelson is a store owner in Keystone, S.D. Her brother, who lives in California, kept her up to date on the events in that state. The day after Proposition 13 was passed, Mrs. Samuelson announced she was starting a similar drive in South Dakota.

Today, Mrs. Samuelson is chairman of Citizens for the Dakota Proposition. She is working to get a measure to limit property taxes on the 1980 ballot. The effort will succeed, she says, even "if I have to walk every block in this state collecting signatures."

S.H. "Zeke" Brauer Jr. of the Nebraska School Improvement Association is a veteran signature collector. Several years ago, he led a successful drive to overturn, by referendum, a bill passed by the Legislature to increase aid for special educational programs. The initiative drive he is leading now would, with a few exceptions, limit annual increases in state spending to 5 percent.

Like Colorado's Burch, Jim Whittenburg of Oregon is familiar on the political scene. Unlike Burch, he has usually been on the outside. The unemployed pharmacist regularly filed petitions on a variety of issues; all were ignored. In the wake of the passage of Proposition 13, Whittenburg filed another petition. This one called for limiting property taxes to 1 percent of market value, and this one was successful. The measure will be on the ballot in November.

Whittenburg, 39, faces problems, however. He is being tried on charges of passing three bad checks worth $120 at Eugene, Ore., firms earlier this year. His attorney entered a plea of innocent-by-reason-of-mental-disease or defect and a psychiatric examination was scheduled. Whittenburg also is charged with harassment and criminal trespass following a recent altercation in a Portland bus depot.

"It won't work," the MIT dean said. "You can't keep the manufacture of test tubes secret for any length of time. With the right materials even a college kid could be able to make one in his basement."

"Then what is the solution?" I asked.

"I think this is a personal matter between a woman and her glass blower. If she wants a test tube then she should be allowed to have one," someone said.

"What about the husband?" a man asked. "Doesn't he have a say in the matter?"

"Only if he gets involved in what the woman wants to do with the test tube."

The meeting broke up in anger. The pro-test tube advocates started making signs for a demonstration in front of the Martha's Vineyard Hospital.

The Planned Parenthood group threatened a counter-demonstration against the Owens Corning Glass Co. And a chemistry professor from Yale said he and his team were now working on a pill that could be put in a test tube to prevent anything sexual happening.

Short Retirement For Justice Beverly Lake

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State Supreme Court Associate Justice I. Beverly Lake will be forced by the mandatory retirement law for judges to leave his position at the end of this month, but his retirement will only last about a month.

Lake, now 72, plans to resume his law teaching career begun at Wake Forest University this fall at Campbell College in Buies Creek.

Some of his associates have said that the years have mellowed Lake, but he said recently that he has not changed his opinion that the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People is the enemy.

Lake said he has had no reason to change his mind about the NAACP. In 1955, he characterized the organization as "the enemy" and called on people "to fight the NAACP county by county, city by city, and classroom by classroom to preserve our public schools as long as possible...it will be a bitter fight...we shall not surrender."

Lake took his attack on the NAACP into his 1960 campaign for the Democratic nomination for governor, and it later caused a breach with his campaign manager for that race, U.S. Sen. Robert Morgan.

When Morgan was campaigning for the Senate in 1974, he appeared before a NAACP group in Charlotte and said that he had managed Lake's 1960 campaign because Lake was once his law professor and friend.

Lake withdrew his support of Morgan after that statement, angered because an impression had been given that Morgan yielded reluctantly to the request of old law professor at Wake Forest University.

Lake said last week that Morgan urged him to run for governor in 1960 because he shared Lake's views on public schools and the antipathy toward the NAACP.

Lake's retirement will come one day before the end of his 13th year on the Supreme Court. He cannot run for another term due to the mandatory retirement age of 72 for judges. He said he is leaving four months before his term expires because he wants to join the Campbell faculty.

Lake said he believes there should be a mandatory retirement age for judges. "While some judges past 72 are mentally and physically able to do excellent work on the appellate courts — retired Chief Justice William H. Bobbitt and retired Associate reminding Schmidt how erratic U.S. policy is today. Schmidt had privately informed Mr. Carter he wanted the neutron warhead (widely opposed inside the SPD) and was left holding the bag when the president ruled against it.

Although Bahr greatly influences the SPD's left wing (compromising about one-third of the party), he lacks power within Schmidt's coalition government. Still, Bahr's wide-ranging explorations pointing toward a possible second Rapallo builds rising pressure on Schmidt.

Widely noticed in the Carter administration is Schmidt's heavy emphasis on East-West détente since Brezhnev's Bonn visit. The chancellor also rejected an appeal from French President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing for French-German "coordination" in blocking Soviet adventures in Africa.

Schmidt is becoming trapped in the continuing uncertainty of Mr. Carter's Washington; he boldly opposes his left wing on neutron weapons, and the president pulls the rug out; he yields to his left wing on Africa, and a common Western European policy is sacrificed.

Justice Carlisle W. Higgins are notable examples — many others cannot," he said.

"It is very difficult for a man to realize that he is losing his energy...his vigor...and it's embarrassing for his friends to tell him so. This kind of work is taxing and it's tiring, and I think age 72 is long enough for a man to try to do it," he said.

"U.S. leadership is not a realistic factor in the great struggle with the Soviets today," one European expert on German politics told us. "There is all too obvious a lack of declared will." That lack of will, and the inconsistency that results from it, is what gives Egon Bahr and his supporters their license to hunt in Moscow for a radical change in West German policy at awesome risk to Europe, the United States and the West.

Reattach Man's Hand

PARIS (AP) — A man's hand, chopped off with a machete during a fight over a woman, was reattached by doctors at the Boucicault Hospital in Paris.

The hospital said 24-year-old Maurice Bottin's hand was cut off during a fight in Le Havre. Friends put a tourniquet on his arm, put the severed hand in ice and rushed them to the Paris hospital. Doctors sewed the hand back on in a 12-hour operation.

Outer Banks Land Is Turned Over To Audubon Society Today

PINE ISLAND, N.C. (AP) — More than two miles of wild beach and marshland on North Carolina's Outer Banks was turned over to the National Audubon Society today by a Winston-Salem businessman to be preserved as a sanctuary for waterfowl and other wildlife.

The gift of land from Mr. and Mrs. Earl F. Slick about 20 miles south of the Virginia-North Carolina border was dedicated as an Audubon sanctuary at a brief ceremony.

The property is comprised of more than two miles of ocean beach and dunes along a shoestring-shaped peninsula and some 3,600 acres of freshwater marshland — prime waterfowl habitat — in Currituck Sound on the inland side.

Slick, 57, a business executive and investor with an interest in conservation, has owned the Pine Island acreage since 1972. At the ceremony, he noted that there has been increasing pressure for commercial development of the remaining wildlands of the Outer Banks.

He said his gift was to insure that the property — the site of a former shooting club preserve — would be preserved in its present state.

Dr. Elvis J. Stahr, president of the Audubon society, told Slick, "The protection of wildlife and of habitat is at the heart of National Audubon's reason for being, and your gift makes it possible for us to do just that in one of the most important and significant areas of the country."

Stahr announced that the society is establishing a $1 million endowment fund to meet the costs of maintaining the sanctuary.

In addition, he said the Slicks have offered to contribute $250,000 to the endowment fund if the society can match the figure. That would bring the total to $1.5 million.

The new sanctuary will be managed strictly for the benefit of waterfowl and other wildlife, Stahr said, and visitors will be restricted.

Currituck Sound is the wintering area for 100,000 to 200,000 of the ducks and geese of the Atlantic Flyway, and the new sanctuary protects a key area. It is the principal wintering area for the Atlantic snow goose.

Slick, chairman of the development and investment company of RDC Inc. of Winston-Salem, received a governor's conservation achievement award from the North Carolina Wildlife Federation in 1973 for a study he financed of development of Currituck Banks, where the Pine Island property is located.

He also serves on the boards of Southern Broadcasting Co. and U.S. Filter, an engineering, pipeline and chemical firm.

Charged In Incident

Levon Baker, 26 of 1405 Railroad St. has been charged by Greenville police with taking indecent liberties with a child.

Capt. Paul Jewett said the charges against Baker stemmed from a July 29 incident here. Baker was taken into custody Saturday in connection with the case.

Bad Checks Charged

Greenville Police Friday arrested Patricia D. Harris, 27 of Washington, on a number of charges stemming from the passing of worthless checks at Wachovia Bank and Winn Dixie supermarket here earlier this month, Capt. Paul Jewett reported this morning.

Jewett said Mrs. Harris was charged with three counts of fraud, two counts of possession of stolen property and two counts of uttering a forged instrument in connection with the investigation.

The police official noted that Mrs. Harris, placed under a $100,000 bond in connection with the charges here, was also charged in connection with a similar incident in Kinston.

Jewett noted that the checks involved were allegedly stolen from a Washington firm.

Celebrates 40th Year

VADUZ, Liechtenstein (AP) — Prince Franz Joseph II, Europe's longest ruling head of state, is celebrating the 40th anniversary of his reign as leader of Liechtenstein.

With his 40 years in office, the 72-year-old prince is outranked in seniority only by Emperor Hirohito of Japan among the world's 160-odd heads of state.

Liechtenstein, which has 24,000 people in its 61-square-mile area, celebrated Franz's anniversary Sunday with a festive service in the church of Vaduz and a reception in the prince's 13th century castle overlooking the capital village.

Diana Nyad Begins 103-Mile Swim From Havana To Florida

ORTEJASO, Cuba (AP) — Her battle with bureaucracy left behind on Cuban shores, gutsy marathon swimmer Diana Nyad is now fighting the way she knows best, struggling with waves and fatigue in a daring 103-mile duel with the sea on her way to the Florida Keys.

"The size of the waves is the only thing that could defeat that girl," Ken Gundersen, the swimmer's operations manager, said Sunday.

Three-foot waves greeted Ms. Nyad at 2:05 p.m. EDT Sunday as she peeled down to two swim suits, told her crew, "I guess I'll see you all in 2 1/2 days," and stepped into the water about 50 miles west of Havana.

From there, she faced a 60-hour ordeal of exhaustion, seasickness and hallucination, hoping for landfall somewhere in the chain of flat islands that curl southwest from the tip of Florida. If she succeeds, she will have made the longest open-water swim on record.

Ms. Nyad's exact position was not known today because of an unexplained radio outage, but Gundersen said the Coast Guard had picked up a faint signal at midnight that indicated she was about 18 miles from Cuba.

Gundersen said four boats accompanying the swimmer each had a single side band radio with a range of 12,000 miles but that none was functioning. The Coast Guard said the transmission they heard came from a smaller radio with a range of only 40 miles.

Word of the actual beginning of the swim was relayed to the U.S. mainland by messages hand-carried to Havana, then telephoned to U.S. news agencies.

Ms. Nyad, normally self-confident and talkative, was subdued as she began her swim. Two Cuban divers helped her into her renowned shark cage, a heavy wire mesh contraption propelled by its own rear motors and piloted by its own skipper.

Ms. Nyad is abiding by American rules that allow no resting or flotation devices. She cannot touch the sides of the cage.

"She is making it as hard as possible for herself," said Dick Mullins, a Swimming Hall of Fame official on hand to authenticate the swim. "Her swim would be recognized as a great feat even if she allowed herself to take rest stops."

Bottle Notes Said Hoax

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The curators of the Whaling Museum in New Bedford, Mass., and the Mint Museum here had some bad news last week for two North Carolina families who found what appeared to be old bottles containing good-luck notes along the South Carolina coast.

The two bottles, which the notes inside said were cast into the sea by a sailor aboard the whaling ship, Ann Alexander, in the 1880s, were found by families from Charlotte and Asheboro while vacationing on South Carolina beaches last week. And one of the bottles was declared to be authentic by a Charlotte museum director. But Saturday, a curator from the Whaling Museum said the whole thing was obviously a hoax. And Milton Bloch, the director of the Mint Museum here who had said one of the bottles was the real thing, agreed.

Bloch said what changed his mind was the fact that the Whaling Museum said the Ann Alexander sank 25 years before the first of the notes was supposedly written.

"It's hard to understand the motivation," said Bloch Saturday, after learning of the ship's history. But Bloch said he wasn't embarrassed by the incident. "There's no doubt that it's a hoax," he said.

The note in the bottle found by Deeb Fadel of Charlotte said: "To the finder. My name is Robert White. I write this from aboard the Ann Alexander out of New Bedford. We killed our first sperm whale of the voyage yesterday, and I cast this into the sea for good luck. Please post a letter to me telling the whereabouts you found this. Send to Robert White, 310 Salisbury Road, New Bedford, Mass. 17 Sept. 1877."

Another similar note was found by an Asheboro family on a Sept. 17, 1897 date on it. Both notes contained sharks' teeth.

According to the Whaling Museum, the Ann Alexander sank in the Pacific Aug. 20, 1851, 25 years before the first note could have been written. The ship met its end after being attacked in the bow by an infuriated sperm whale crewmen were trying to kill. The museum said no other whaling ship ever bore the name.

"This is a hoax," Whaling Museum curator Phillip Purrington Saturday in answering a query from the Charlotte Observer. Earlier in the week, the Whaling Museum had told the Asheboro Courier-Tribune the bottle and note found by the Asheboro family were frauds.

New Tests May Help Stop Potential Strokes

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina Memorial Hospital here is conducting tests which "eavesdrop" on the bloodstream to identify artery problems, a process which may help prolong the lives of potential stroke victims.

The series of tests involves the use of a highly sensitive microphone that listens to blood flowing through the carotid arteries, which run through the neck and are the major suppliers of blood to the brain. When diseases, such as atherosclerosis, block part of the artery, blood carrying oxygen to the brain may be cut back, causing a stroke.

Cindy A. Kupper, a nurse who conducts the tests in N.C. Memorial's peripheral vascular laboratory, said if diseases in the carotid arteries are detected early enough, doctors can take action that may prevent the onset of strokes.

The tests are a new development in medicine, and three of the four performed at the hospital have been in use less than a year, Ms. Kupper said.

One of the tests spots

"rapids" in the blood vessel. When disease causes the carotid artery to become narrower, turbulence is produced, according to Ms. Kupper. The turbulence causes a noise, called a bruit, which is picked up by the microphone.

Ms. Kupper said when technicians discover a bruit, doctors may diagnose carotid disease.

A second test is based on the slight enlarging in the size of the eye caused by the pulse beat in the eye. Fluid-filled contacts are placed in the eyes, and a device measures the amount of fluid displaced by the pulse. Technicians can get information on what is going on in the carotid artery in the test, Ms. Kupper said.

A third test used a similar method, except that the contacts are filled with air. This test measures the pressure on the ophthalmic artery, which also can be linked to the amount of blood flowing through the carotid.

The final test uses ultrasound to listen to blood vessels around the eyes. In the test, technicians compress certain blood vessels in the head to find out if blood vessels around the eyes are being supplied by the carotid, as they would be in a healthy person.

"We like to run all the tests together because each can tell us something the others can't," Ms. Kupper said.

She said the lab at N.C. Memorial Hospital is the only lab in the state doing carotid artery evaluations.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Confusion Over Cholesterol

I am in a state of utter confusion. Recently, I heard that cholesterol can actually be good for the health. I've always been led to believe that cholesterol is one of the great causes of heart attacks. Has the medical profession changed its mind about this? — Mr. G.T., Mich.

Your confusion is probably based on information you have read about a substance called "high density lipoprotein." This substance, referred to as HDL, has recently been an area of study by doctors and scientists everywhere.

HDL is only a small fragment of cholesterol. The early studies indicate that HDL can actually play a role in the prevention of some forms of heart attack. The substance has been found to be higher in the bloodstream of people who actively exercise and whose alcohol and tobacco intake is not more than moderate.

The HDL level is definitely lower in people who smoke. It is also thought to be lower in women who take birth control pills. When the diet is low in saturated fats, there seems to be an increase in HDL levels in the blood.

For the time being, you must simply accept the fact that doctors still agree that high cholesterol in the bloodstream is a threat to health. More information will be accumulated before long about a way to increase the HDL fragment without risking the dangers of total cholesterol.

To recap this concept, HDL is a small portion of cholesterol. At the moment, it seems to be beneficial in the bloodstream, but total cholesterol is not.

For years, I've always thought I was anemic, and worried about it. Recently, you wrote that many people like myself have been unnecessarily scared about anemia and "tired blood." I took your advice and finally had my blood checked only to find that it was perfectly normal. I want to express my thanks for lifting this burden off my mind. — Mrs. L.L., Del.

Many readers will benefit from your experience. For them, and for you, I want to repeat that anemia is not a disease. When it does exist, it is only a symptom of some underlying condition. Consequently, there is never guesswork about its presence. It is either there or it is not, and there is only one way to find out. That is, by the simple examination of the blood.

Far too many people who are fatigued or who lack energy make their own diagnosis of anemia when, indeed, it does not exist.

DR. COLEMAN welcomes letters from readers. Please write to him in care of this newspaper.

Hearings...

judgment as a committee until all the evidence is in. Nothing else would be fair," committee Chairman Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, said as the hearing began.

Walter Fauntroy, the District of Columbia's delegate to the House and chairman of the subcommittee that focused on King's death, said the panel's investigation has been "comprehensive and thorough."

He said the investigation has covered "every important allegation of conspiracy that has ever been made in the case, 21 of them in all."

Fauntroy did not elaborate. Among the most recent conspiracy theories under investigation have been claims that two St. Louis businessmen, both now dead, offered to finance the assassination of King.

The week of hearings have elements of both a trial and a play and today's session was designed to establish the mood of Memphis on the day of the murder.

"The first theme of the questioning will be Dr. King in Memphis. What did he represent in America, how did he embody symbolically the civil rights movement, and how did he come to Memphis?" a committee representative said at an advance briefing for reporters.

With the scene set, the committee plans on Tuesday to question a pathologist about the medical investigation following the murder.

But the star witness, scheduled to testify Wednesday through Friday, will be James Earl Ray, serving a 99-year prison sentence after pleading guilty to killing King, a plea he later recanted.

It is not yet clear to the committee what Ray will say — or whether he will say anything at all. The panel obtained a court order requiring Ray to testify, but, the committee spokesman noted, "We can bring him up here with a writ and we can sit him down and we can ask him a question. But if he doesn't answer, what are we going to do — threaten him with jail?"

Since recanting his guilty plea, Ray has asserted that he did not kill King and that he was involved in what he thought was only a narcotics and gun-smuggling ring with a man named Raoul, who framed him for the King assassination.

The hearings will follow the questioning and cross-examination procedure of a trial and, when Ray appears, the similarity will be especially striking.

Rams Fire Allen After Two Games

FULLERTON, Calif. (AP) — George Allen, normally an intense and animated man, looked and sounded tired and forlorn. "It's an unbelievable thing," he said, his voice trailing off.

"Do you think I got a fair chance...two preseason games?" Allen, fired Sunday as coach of the Los Angeles Rams by team owner Carroll Rosenbloom and replaced by assistant Ray Malavasi, said. "I'm not bitter. I'm hurt."

The sudden and dramatic move came after the Rams had lost their first two preseason contests, the opener 14-7 to New England then 17-0 to San Diego last Saturday.

Allen was hired just last February to return to the team that he'd coached from 1966 to 1970, having been fired twice and rehired once by Dan Reeves, the Rams' late president.

Allen said he told Rosenbloom that he was making a mistake.

"I told him what I have to offer is what the Rams need," said Allen, 56. "There were several things he said, that he thought we wouldn't win if I continued as the coach, and that I would work better in the framework of an organization where I'd be general manager and coach.

"All I know is that I did everything in my power, did it the way it should be done, did it my way. We worked hard and were committed to the program we've used successfully all these years and I could not change that if I was to live with myself."

Allen's "way" was not Rosenbloom's way. In a prepared statement, the Rams' owner said: "It is my feeling that I have made a serious error in judgement in believing George Allen could work within our framework."

"It has been extremely difficult for him to adjust to a new situation. Unquestionably he is a fine coach and administrator. His record speaks for itself. However, I'm certain it's in the best interest of all concerned to make this change at this time."

Rosenbloom would not talk in specifics.

There had been a certain amount of unrest in the Rams' Fullerton State training camp, with some players unhappy with Allen's long practices and rah-rah psychology. Five players walked out at one time or another, although contract disputes out of Allen's control were the major problem.

However, that lack of control was apparently another factor in the firing. Allen, who was general manager and coach of the Redskins for the past seven seasons, may have wanted power that Rosenbloom would not relinquish.

Allen, who said he hadn't even finished moving all his furniture back to Los Angeles, will apparently be paid the salary due him under a reported three-year, $200,000 a year contract he'd signed with the Rams.

"George Allen is a fine gentleman and a damn good football coach," said Malavasi, 47. "It (getting fired) happens to nearly everyone. It's happened to me."

Malavasi was serving as offensive coordinator under Allen, although he'd run the Rams' defense for the five years Knox was at the Los Angeles helm. Malavasi had one brief stint as a head coach in the National Football League, serving as Denver Broncos head man for 12 games in an interim capacity in 1966.

He now faces the pressure that led to Knox's leaving for the Buffalo Bills and Allen's being fired.

"Los Angeles fans are spoiled," said Los Angeles linebacker Isiah Robertson. "They want a Super Bowl. And Mr. Rosenbloom wants to give them a Super Bowl. That's the bottom line."

Allen now has been fired four times in his NFL coaching career — three times by the Rams and last January by Redskins' President Edward Bennett Williams. Allen would not agree to contract terms with the Redskins and Williams said he believed the coach was negotiating with the Rams at that time.

"It's probably my saddest decision because I'm very fond of George Allen," said Rosenbloom, who met with Allen for more than an hour at the Rams' camp Sunday afternoon before the announcement.

"I felt it was time to do what I did." Saying he was packing his bags and leaving immediately, Allen then mused, "I guess I made a mistake giving up a great job in Washington. But I'm not worried. I have a fine family and I'm set financially."

Mahaffey Wins 2nd Straight

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — Veteran John Mahaffey was on Cloud Nine when he arrived here as the new PGA champion. Today, he's flying even higher.

As if to prove his dramatic comeback for the PGA title was no fluke, Mahaffey made it two in a row Sunday, going on a birdie spree in the stretch for a record-smashing two-stroke victory in the $225,000 Pleasant Valley Golf Classic.

"To win two tournaments in a row is just unbelievable," the 5-foot-9 Texan said. "I didn't think I had a chance here because I was really tired after winning the PGA last week."

"The tendency after you've won a major championship is to have a letdown, and I didn't want that to happen."

Mahaffey rebounded quickly from the 3-putt bogey on his 65th hole. He ran off four consecutive birdies, sinking putts of one inch and 12, 25 and 5 feet.

Then, on the next to last hole, Mahaffey clinched the victory as Gil Morgan's final hopes were dashed. Morgan struck a tree limb with an iron shot and the ball rolled into a water hazard, forcing him to take a double bogey.

"That was the end for me," the traveling optometrist said. "I just let it get away from me on that one hole. However, I had a lot of opportunities. I missed eight putts for birdies from within 15 feet."

Mahaffey was saved from trouble on the same hole when his fairway shot struck a spectator and bounced back just off the green.

"It saved me from a bogey, or worse," Mahaffey said. "It was a tremendous break."

After lipping the cup and taking a bogey on the 16th green, Mahaffey saved par on the final two holes for a 4-under 67 and a 72-hole score of 14-under 270, breaking the Pleasant Valley PGA record of 271 set last year by Ray Floyd.

Morgan, cheered on as a representative of the sponsoring American Optical Co., and Floyd birdied the last hole for a second-place tie at 272. Morgan had a closing 69. Floyd posted a 67, his 13th consecutive subpar round here since his first visit in 1965.

Free of injuries and personal problems which plagued him for more than two years, Mahaffey, who just turned 30, added $45,000 to the $50,000 banked for the PGA championship. Just one year ago, he failed to make the half-way cut at Pleasant Valley.

Morgan and Floyd collected $20,812 apiece for their runner-up tie. Mark Hayes, the third-round leader, shot a final-round 74, finishing in a tie for fourth with Bruce Lietzke, Bob Shearer and Miller Barber at 276.

Led by Mahaffey, the pros head for the Westchester Classic in Rye, N.Y., this week. Although weary, Mahaffey looms as the man to beat. He wants to become another Ben Hogan, a fellow Texan who didn't win his first major tournament until after he was 30.

Walton Seeks Trade; Wants Golden State

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Bill Walton, the injury-prone Most Valuable Player who didn't like the medical treatment he got with the Portland Trail Blazers, has decided he wants to play for the Golden State Warriors.

"Bill has determined that if he is going to play in the NBA, (Golden State) is where he is going to play," said Jack Scott, the sports activist, author and Walton's friend and adviser.

Warriors General Manager Scotty Stirling, who met with the 6-foot-11 center last week in Portland, also confirmed Sunday night that Walton wanted to play for Golden State.

"That's essentially the story. We have agreed in principal. I won't comment beyond that."

The San Francisco Chronicle reported in today's edition that Walton preferred the Warriors over other National Basketball Association teams because he liked the Bay area, the team, its fans and management.

Scott said, "We felt it was one area of the country that he would get support from the fans..."

The New York Knicks reportedly offered Walton more money but the Warriors offer was large enough, the Chronicle said. The Philadelphia 76ers and the new NBA franchise in San Diego also sought Walton.

Scott said, "If finances were a problem, Bill wouldn't have chosen Golden State. But I think we've said before money isn't the issue. Bill's health is."

Still to be worked out is the compensation for Portland in giving up Walton's services.

Yanks, Orioles Have Trouble In Baltimore

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

The New York Yankees and Baltimore Orioles spent 9 hours, 31 minutes playing 5 hours, 12 minutes of baseball and completing 20½ of the 27 innings they were supposed to have played this weekend.

They managed some of those innings Sunday before the heavens intervened, converting a five-run Yankee seventh into so much extra batting practice and turning an apparent 5-3 New York triumph into a 3-0 Baltimore shutout.

A 2-hour, 27-minute rain delay shortened Friday night's 2-1 Yankees victory to 5½ innings and made a swamp of what ordinarily was the Memorial Stadium outfield. The clubs got help from the weatherman Saturday, but none from the electricians as three power failures delayed the Orioles' 6-4 victory by 76 minutes.

Sunday, forsaking the scuba gear and miner's hats that might have been more appropriate, the teams tried again. Baltimore scored three times in the sixth, the Yanks tallied five in the seventh.

But since scores revert to the last complete inning when rain halts official games — and play was stopped with the Birds batting in the seventh — New York came out on the short end.

Rangers 3-6, Indians 2-5
Kurt Bevacqua's seventh-inning homer helped Doc Medich win the opener and Bobby Bonds' RBI triple highlighted a four-run second inning in the nightcap to power the Texas sweep. The Rangers have won nine of their last 10 while the Indians have lost nine of 10.

Twins 3-2, A's 1-1
Butch Wynegar's eighth-inning single delivered the deciding run, backed a five-hitter by Roger Erickson and capped Minnesota's sweep of Oakland. The A's wasted a seven-hitter by Mike Norris, recently promoted from the minors.

The Twins took the opener on a seven-hitter by Gary Serum and an unearned third-inning run. Rod Carew bunted for a hit, took second when catcher Jim Essian threw wildly past first and scored on the second of Mike Cabbage's three singles.

Blue Jays 3, Royals 2
Bob Bailor went four-for-five, drove in one run and scored the game-winner from second base on a 10th-inning forceout to send Toronto past Kansas City.

Bailor opened the 10th with a single and advanced on Rico Carty's single. One out later Otto Velez grounded to third baseman Jamie Quirk, whose throw to second forced Carty.

Red Sox 4, Brewers 3
Carlton Fisk slapped a basesloaded single past third baseman Sal Bando in the 10th inning to help Boston hand Milwaukee its eighth loss in nine games.

Jerry Remy opened the 10th with a grounder Bando couldn't handle. Jim Rice beat out a single that also gave Bando trouble, then Dwight Evans was walked to load the bases for Fisk.

Earlier, Evans had hit his 22nd homer.

Tigers 10, White Sox 2
Lou Whitaker hit a three-run, inside-the-park home run, Steve Kemp drove in three runs with a pair of singles and Rusty Staub hit his 19th homer of the year to carry Detroit — which has won eight of 10 — past Chicago and hand the White Sox their ninth loss in 11 games.

Mariners 4, Angels 1
Craig Reynolds had a two-run second-inning double to lead Seattle. Lyman Bostock went four-for-four and drove in California's run.

Greenville Salt Water Fishing Club will hold its next regular meeting Tues., August 15, 7:30 p.m. at the First Federal Savings & Loan Assn. Building, Greenville Blvd.

All interested persons please attend.

Campbell, Oilers Play Philadelphia

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oilers Coach O.A. "Bum" Phillips isn't breathing a sigh of relief, but he doesn't think tonight's exhibition game against Philadelphia can be as rugged as his team's opening against Super Bowl entry Denver.

"They may play good, but I don't think their personnel is as good as Denver's," Phillips said of the Eagles. "If they were as good as Denver, they would have been in the Super Bowl."

The Oilers opened the preseason with a 17-12 loss to the Broncos in which rookie Heisman Trophy winner Earl Campbell rushed for 29 yards in 12 carries in his professional debut.

Campbell again will be in the spotlight for the Oilers, but another Houston favorite, Billy "White Shoes" Johnson, is still a holdout.

Phillips said he stays out of contract negotiations, but held a lengthy conversation with Johnson last week without results.

"I did everything but beg him to come back, and I did a little of that, too," Phillips said. "I thought maybe he'd go back (to training camp) with us after our game here last week, but he didn't."

Phillips said Johnson's absence hurt the Oiler performance against Denver. "He's the best there is, so whatever we got on our kick returns, he would have gotten more," Phillips said.

Philadelphia Coach Dick Vermeil will counter Campbell's presence with a pair of former Texas collegians at the running back positions — Cleveland Franklin of Baylor and Wilbert Montgomery of Abilene Christian.

"I'm very impressed with Montgomery right now," Vermeil said. "Everybody on the field is impressed with him too, especially the defensive people who try and tackle him."

Franklin was injured most of his senior year at Baylor, and carried the ball only once last season for the Eagles, but he has, at least temporarily, beaten out fullback Mike Hogan.

"I want to see what Cleveland can do playing on the first string," Vermeil said. "I also want to see what a guy does playing second team. Competitiveness sometimes is a good evaluator."

The Eagles won their exhibition opener against Miami in the Hall of Fame game at Canton, Ohio, but lost to New Orleans last week in a game played at Mexico City. Kickoff for tonight's game is 8 p.m. CDT.

The second round of preseason play began Friday night as Washington defeated Green Bay 20-12, giving Coach Jack Pardee his first triumph with his new club.

In Saturday's action, Dallas stung Denver in a rematch of Super Bowl XII, this time by the score of 21-14. Roger Staubach threw two TD passes to Tony Hill and linebacker Mike Hegman scampered 66 yards with an interception for the Cowboys final score. Norris Weese passed for both Bronco touchdowns.

Los Angeles, 0-2, was soundly beaten by San Diego 17-0 and Rams owner Carroll Rosenbloom announced Sunday night that new head coach George Allen had been fired.

In a prepared announcement, Rosenbloom said hiring Allen had been a mistake.

"It is my feeling that I have made a serious error in judgment in believing George Allen could work within our framework," Rosenbloom said. "It has been extremely difficult for him to adjust to a new situation."

Offensive coordinator Ray Malavasi was named to replace Allen.

New England, with the help of a 50-yard bomb from quarterback Steve Grogan to wide receiver Stanley Morgan, defeated Oakland 21-7.

The Patriots received encouraging news Sunday when it was learned that wide receiver Darryl Stingley, who was carried from the field on a stretcher, was not as seriously hurt as had been feared. A surgeon said that Stingley had suffered some paralysis immediately after the injury, but was able to move after surgery in Castro Valley, Calif.

In the battle for bragging rights in New York, the Jets won 27-23 over the Giants. The Jets were led by quarterback Richard Todd, who threw three touchdown passes, the final one an 18-yard strike to Wesley Walker with 1:24 remaining in the game. Rookie quarterback Doug Williams, out of Grambling, threw a third-quarter, 3-yard touchdown pass to Louis Carter as Tampa Bay, 2-0, surprised Baltimore 23-12. The Bucs' Jimmy DuBose ran for 80 yards, 24 of them on a third-quarter touchdown jaunt.

Pittsburgh intercepted five passes but it took a Mike Kruczek-to-Lynn Swann 35-yard touchdown pass in the fourth quarter to give the Steelers a 13-7 triumph over the defense-minded Falcons.

In other Saturday games, undefeated Seattle, who has not allowed a touchdown in their two games, beat San Francisco 20-6. Kansas City made it two in a row with a 17-13 victory over Minnesota, 1-1. St. Louis defeated Chicago 26-14 and Cleveland got past Buffalo 20-10.

Giants Down Dodgers In 11

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

If the San Francisco Giants and Los Angeles Dodgers keep up their wild battles in the National League West, they both may drop from exhaustion before the season ends.

The latest installment in baseball's hottest rivalry was an epic 11-inning affair Sunday in which the Giants defeated the Dodgers 7-6 and moved back into first place in the division. Los Angeles fell a game back and Cincinnati is 1½ games out after losing to San Diego 3-2.

"A game like this could only happen between the Dodgers and the Giants," said Jack Clark, San Francisco's hero with a run-scoring single in the 11th inning. "Maybe now people will believe San Francisco is the real thing. Maybe we haven't convinced everybody but, out of 20 people, I'd say we've convinced 15."

One of those convinced was Dodgers outfielder Reggie Smith. "They battled back

They wouldn't have been on top for so long without being a good club."

Smith hit two homers and Lee Lacy had one for the Dodgers in regulation play while the Giants got four runs in the second on Jim Dwyer's two-run double and RBI singles by Clark and Willie McCovey.

Elsewhere in the NL, San Diego beat Cincinnati 3-2, Houston blanked Atlanta 3-0, Chicago edged Montreal 2-1, Pittsburgh subdued Philadelphia 7-3 and St. Louis topped New York 6-1.

The Dodgers and Giants thus split eight games in the last 11 days. San Francisco won the first two games of a four-game set at home last week before the Dodgers came back to take the next two. In Los Angeles this weekend, the Dodgers were victors in the opening pair of contests and the Giants took the final two.

Padres 3, Reds 2
Eric Rasmussen won his 11th game in 20 decisions with relief help from Bob Shirley, who gained his third save and extended to seven straight games his scoreless pitching streak.

San Diego scored all three runs in the first inning, two on RBI singles by Dave Winfield and Oscar Gamble.

The loss dropped the Reds to third place in the Wild West scramble, and San Diego is nine games back in fourth place.

Astros 3, Braves 0

Bob Watson slammed a two-run homer in a three-run first inning and Vern Ruhle threw a five-hitter for his second straight shutout for Houston.

Ruhle, 2-0 since joining the Astros, has allowed only one unearned run in his last 26 innings for an earned run average of 0.38. He has allowed just three earned runs in 29 innings.

Cubs 2, Expos 1

Dave Kingman's solo homer in the sixth inning boosted Rick Reuschel to his 11th victory in 21 decisions and handed Montreal rookie pitcher Scott Sanderson a defeat in his first major-league decision.

Kingman's home run, No. 18 on the season, was his first since Aug. 4 and second since June 30. He spent most of July on the disabled list.

Pirates 7, Phillies 3

After surrendering 29 hits and 25 runs to division-leading Philadelphia in the last two games, Pittsburgh woke up with some timely hitting and pitching.

Don Robinson hurled a sixhitter and struck out six, and the Pirates got 12 hits, including a three-run homer by Dave Parker. The Phillies had won the first three games of the series.

Cardinals 6, Mets 1
St. Louis swept a three-game set with New York and tied the Mets for fifth place in the East, the first time in nearly three months that the Cardinals were not in sole possession of last place.

Pete Vuckovich, the NL earned run average leader among starting pitchers, hurled a four-hitter and had a run-scoring single. He struck out seven and walked one.

Former Mets Wayne Garrett and Mike Phillips had seven hits between them to lead the Cardinals attack.

Rankin Changes Irons; Wins LPGA Tournament

MANHASSET, N.Y. (AP) — What do you do when you play golf for a living and you have a lower back problem that has been bothering you since 1973 and causes you to come back only two feet on your backswing?

Switch to a new set of irons. That's what Judy Rankin did in the Ladies Professional Golf Association $100,000 tournament that concluded Sunday at the North Hills Country Club.

It turned out to be the right cure. Rankin, the leading money-winner on the circuit in 1976 and again in 1977, shot a par-73 on the 6,143-yard course to finish at a 9-under 283, two strokes ahead of Debbie Massey, Rookie of the Year in 1977, and Pam Higgins.

Sally Little was fourth with 286. Beth Stone had the best round in the windup of the 72-hole classic, a 4-under-69 and that resulted in a deadlock for fifth with veteran Kathy Whitworth at 288.

The 33-year-old Rankin, who hails from Midland, Texas, only revealed her switch to the new irons after the victory that was worth $15,000 and raised her current earnings to $49,360.

That is a far cry from the $150,734 she collected in 1976 or the $122,890 earned last year.

"I had some changes made in my old irons exactly one year ago," explained the 5-foot-3½, 110-pounder. "It was right after this same tournament."

"Once the work was completed, I never questioned it. I assumed the clubs were the same. Things had gotten so bad, however, that I had to make a change and I asked for a new set."

"They arrived in time for the pro-am here on Wednesday. I didn't know what they weighed and I didn't want to know. I just played."

Rankin, winless this season after five victories last year, had such horrible showings as 53rd in the US Open, 49th in the Orange Blossom Classic at St. Petersburg and 44th in the Sun Star Classic at Los Angeles.

We Think You Should Know Why You May Not Get To See A Carolina Football Game This Year

Just a few seasons ago, it was easy to get seats to a Tar Heel Football game at the last minute. Sell-outs were rare and some games were played in Kenan Stadium with more than a third of the stands empty.

During those years, the easy availability of tickets was a convenience for fans and never caused a serious financial problem to the Carolina Athletic Department. Then, almost overnight, the cumulative effect of inflation and a greatly expanded women's athletic program changed all that. Then it did become a problem—a serious one.

That's when you began seeing the sizzling letters spelling "Carolina Fever" on billboards, mailing pieces, TV commercials and newspaper ads beckoning fans to Kenan Stadium. And as they always do, Carolina fans came through in record numbers, filling Kenan to the brim and greatly strengthening the total Carolina Athletic program in the process.

This year, the "Fever" is epidemic as Tar Heel fans everywhere await the dawn of a new football era under highly regarded Coach Dick Crum. Ticket sales have been incredible. We even had to eliminate Band Day to accommodate some of the demand. Although seats were still available at this writing, we now expect that none will be left for ANY Carolina game by the time the season begins.

If there are still tickets remaining by the time you read this, you may want to get them now, while the getting is good, at the main branch of NCNB in your city. If they're gone by the time you get there, we apologize for the inconvenience and hope you will understand.

And to our Carolina fans everywhere who have supported Tar Heel Football so magnificently of late, we would like to take this opportunity to extend our deepest appreciation.

CAROLINA FEVER

There's no cure once the last seat is sold and there's no fan like a Tar Heel fan.

New Measure Before Senate

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, which appears ready to approve a tuition tax credit, now must decide whether to vote property tax relief for homeowners.

Senate leaders arranged a vote late today on a proposal that would allow a federal income tax credit of up to $150 as a direct offset for that portion of state and local property taxes earmarked for schools.

That would help all homeowners — not just those with children in school.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., seeks to add the amendment to a bill that eventually would permit a tax credit of up to $500 a year for college students and up to $250 for parents of pupils who attend private elementary and secondary schools.

Noting that 65 percent of American families own their homes, Goldwater said, "I think it is high time that we provide federal tax relief to this growing class of citizens who are up against the mounting pressure of higher residential assessments."

No one would be allowed to take the $150 property tax credit and the tuition credit in the same year.

The education aid bill is the major item of business facing the Senate this week. Final approval of the bill in some form is expected Tuesday or Wednesday.

The House may vote this week on a bill that would give the states until June 30, 1982, to complete ratification of the proposed Equal Rights Amendment. A fight will come on whether states that already have ratified the constitutional amendment should be allowed to rescind their action during the same time period.

The ERA, designed to prohibit discrimination based on sex, has been ratified by the legislatures of 35 states. Those of Idaho, Kentucky, Nebraska and Tennessee have rescinded their votes, although the action of Kentucky has been vetoed. The Justice Department says it will be up to Congress to determine whether the rescissions count.

The proposal needs the approval of 38 states to become part of the Constitution. It was submitted to the states by Congress in 1972, with a seven-year period allowed for ratification.

Flood Problems Still A Reality

BURNSVILLE, N.C. (AP) — For many Western North Carolina residents whose property and homes were damaged or destroyed by flooding last November, problems from the flood are still a reality.

But most of the aid that was available during the first few weeks after the flood is now gone, and many residents have been left on their own to struggle to put their lives back in order.

"We still haven't forgotten that there are still needs — many of them — and that there are people out there concerned about their homes and barns and property and future," said Peggyann Murphy, director of the Western North Carolina Flood Committee.

The committee, which operates out of Ms. Murphy's home here, is an interdenominational religious volunteer group formed last December to help flood victims. "There is still a lot of work to be done," Ms. Murphy said.

Federal, state and city agencies along with the Red Cross have administered programs costing more than $1 million, Ms. Murphy said. This figure does not include money spent by the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

"It would appear that all of the needs have been cared for, but they really haven't," Ms. Murphy said. Most of the problems her committee works with involve people who did not qualify for government aid but who must have their homes repaired before winter. Ms. Murphy said volunteers have discovered 54 such cases, most of them elderly people.

"We knew it would take a long time to put things back like they were," she said.

She said most people in Western North Carolina do not believe that the average person in the state "ever realized what a disaster had hit them (in WNC)." "There was a flood in Virginia shortly before and most of the publicity was focused on that, and I don't think this problem got the attention it should have," Ms. Murphy said.

One committee member said that most people associate floods with lowlands and "are inclined to feel that a flood in the mountains just can't be too serious."

Lightning Is Killer In N.C.

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina ranks near the top in the United States in lightning-caused deaths and injuries, according to a study conducted over an eight-year period by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

According to the study, lightning kills at least 200 people a year in the United States. On a per capita basis, North Carolina has 1.16 deaths per million per year, higher than the neighboring states of South Carolina, Virginia and Tennessee.

The report showed that during the period from 1968 to 1976, 53 lightning deaths were reported and 108 injuries recorded in North Carolina.

The study said the deaths put North Carolina second to Florida in lightning deaths. Florida reported 110 lightning deaths during the same time period.

North Carolina ranks fifth in the country in lightning injuries, behind Florida, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania and New York.

Michael Mogil, disaster preparedness specialist for the National Weather Service, said the figures may be even higher since many deaths and injuries by lightning are not reported.

Mogil said many people who survive being struck by lightning are reluctant to report it for fear of ridicule. And he said lightning deaths are often attributed to other causes. Mogil said if there are no visible signs of lightning-death, death is assumed to be caused by cardiac arrest.

According to Mogil, the state's tobacco industry can be blamed for the high number of lightning deaths. He said many tobacco workers are killed or injured by lightning while working in drying sheds.

Pro-Syrian Guerrillas Blamed For Bombing Pro-Iraqi Group

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The leader of a radical Palestinian guerrilla faction supported by Iraq has accused a pro-Syrian guerrilla group of the bombing of his Beirut headquarters in which at least 161 Palestinians are reported dead or missing.

Abul Abass, the 29-year-old head of the pro-Iraqi Palestine Liberation Front said the bombing, which leveled a nine-story apartment building early Sunday, was the work of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine-General Command, led by a former Syrian army captain named Ahmed Gebril.

"They wanted to kill me and the movement in order to undermine reconciliation moves that were under way. They wanted to keep the inter-Palestinian rift brewing," said Abass.

Gebril and his organization were silent, and there was no confirmation of Abass' claim from other sources. But some observers said if Gebril's guerrillas did make the attack, they might have been acting for Yasser Arafat, whose Al Fatah guerrillas have been warring with pro-Iraqi guerrillas in London, Paris and Pakistan for the past month.

Arafat as chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization has been holding reconciliation talks with Abass and other pro-Iraqi guerrilla leaders. The observers said he probably still wants to neutralize his rivals but cannot pursue factional bloodletting publicly and still claim leadership of the entire guerrilla movement.

Abass said 98 persons were known to have died in the explosion, and 63 more were buried in the rubble. He said the dead included 37 of his "highly trained operatives." Eleven Al Fatah guerrillas also were reported killed. Only eight residents were reported to have survived.

Rescue workers said some residents of surrounding buildings also were seriously injured.

The Palestine Liberation Front's headquarters occupied the top three floors of the building, which was on the edge of the Sabra Palestine refugee camp, in Moslem western Beirut. Al Fatah and a third guerrilla faction also had offices in the building, and there were 28 apartments for guerrillas and their families.

Arafat called an emergency meeting of the PLO's executive committee and ordered an investigation of the bombing. He also appointed a committee of representatives from various factions "to take measures to prevent any further bloodshed."

Arafat's Al Fatah and extremist guerrilla factions supported by Iraq have been attacking each other in foreign cities for several weeks. At least 25 persons have been killed. Iraq and its supporters contend that Arab and Palestinian goals can only be realized by a war in which Israel is wiped out, while Arafat has said he would accept a peaceful settlement with Israel if it provided for a Palestinian state.

Training School Dumping Grounds

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — State officials said recently that North Carolina's training schools have to deal with the fact that people often turn their backs on kids in trouble.

And they said the schools are in many cases still dumping grounds for kids who have gotten into trouble.

Public attention was recently focused on the state's training schools with the discovery of sex and beating incidents at Stonewall Jackson Training School in Concord.

Some state officials said they hope the incidents and their effects will force action to improve the schools.

As a result of the incidents, three staff members were dismissed, two others reprimanded and the director reassigned. The school's principal resigned shortly afterward.

State officials said that the school was involved.

The company had planned to begin its cleanup a week ago but a federal judge gave the government five more days to complete its investigation.

incidents at Jackson were not the result of incompetence or deliberate wrongdoing.

"We get the kids out of our hair and put them in these institutions," said Mason Thomas of the Institute of Government in Chapel Hill and member of the task force studying the problems at Jackson. "We assume something good is happening when a lot of something very negative is happening."

"I guess what I'm saying is very little has changed...The training schools are dumping grounds. The children there become out of sight, out of mind, and out of our conscience," Thomas said.

Thomas said the state's training schools are cases of "governmental neglect."

The state Bar Association called the state's training school program a total failure in a 1972 report. In 1975, a second study condemned the training school conditions as "deplorable and without hope." State officials said that while training schools mark the turning point for some kids, they are another step toward a career of crime for others.

Four Die In Wrecks

By The Associated Press
At least four persons were killed during the weekend on North Carolina's highways, including two hitchhikers after they had been picked up by a motorist, according to the state Highway Patrol.

The fatalities bring the state's yearly highway death toll to 809, compared to 896 during the same period last year.

The patrol said two hitchhikers were killed Saturday in Johnston County after the car which picked them up collided head-on with another vehicle about two miles west of Princeton. The patrol identified the victims as Claudia Liban, 22, of Little Neck, N.Y., and Steven Paul Pollak, 25, of London, England.

Waune Shernell Morning, 12, of Robinsonville, was killed early Sunday when he fell from a trailer he was riding on into the roadway. That accident occurred about five miles west of Williamston.

The patrol said Gaston Ellis Treadwell, 26, was killed Friday night in an accident about six miles west of Burgaw when his car ran off the highway and struck a bridge railing.

Begin Moving Tower Debris

WILLOW ISLAND, W.Va. (AP) — Today, 14 weeks and one investigation after 51 men tumbled to terrible deaths from the rim of a power plant's cooling tower, the company bearing the most blame begins removing the twisted steel and shattered concrete so construction on the tower can resume.

Survivors of the victims, who fell 168 feet when scaffolding gave way, are disturbed that the government is permitting the debris to be carted away.

They claim that the chunks of concrete, the steel scaffolding and cables, the shattered timbers and the safety net, which trapped the victims in a steel mesh shroud, contain graphic evidence of negligence on the part of both the company and the federal investigative agency.

The federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration has almost completed its investigation of the April 27 scaffolding collapse at Monongahela Power Co. generating plant here.

OSHA's findings, which lay most of the responsibility for the tragedy on Research-Cottrell Inc., the subcontractor, are being turned over to the Justice Department for possible prosecution.

The agency cited Research-ch-Cottrell, a Bound Brook, N.J., company, for 16 willful violations of federal safety standards in connection with the deaths. The company, which drew more than $100,000 in fines, denies the charges and has appealed the citations.

The victims' families also are disputing the investigation results. Survivors have long held that OSHA failed to maintain proper safety standards at the construction site, some 30 miles north of Parkersburg along the Ohio River. They have said publicly it was a disgrace to let OSHA conduct the investigation when the agency's own credibility

Planners See Disappointment Ahead For Hunt's Growth Plan

By LORI COOKE
Associated Press Writer
CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — There is disappointment ahead for Gov. Jim Hunt and his hopes for vigorous, "balanced" growth for North Carolina, planners at the University of North Carolina believe.

According to UNC studies, North Carolina's economic boom is already slowing down, and the governor and state planners will probably not be able to divert significant growth to areas which wouldn't have gotten it anyway.

Hunt last month announced his administration's "balanced growth policy," a strategy which involves spreading new industrial development to areas where it is needed most, preserving North Carolina's pattern of many medium-sized cities and no dominant ones.

The idea, the governor said, is to "bring jobs to the people" rather than vice versa. "We live in dispersed places and we want it to stay that way," said an accompanying report from the state Goals and Policy Board.

But students of planning at UNC say there's really very little the state can do to direct the flow of growth.

"The pattern has been that industry will locate in the small towns and small metropolitan areas," said Rick Carlisle, graduate researcher at the UNC Department of City and Regional Planning. "There is a natural attraction for industry to small metropolitan areas."

That means eastern North Carolina, which has few such places, is likely to remain predominantly rural and poor. If it is to become prosperous, Carlisle and his colleagues say, the state must find another way.

But there may not be as much prosperity to spread around as Hunt planners seem to believe.

"Growth is slowing in the South," said Dr. Ed Bergman, associated professor in the UNC planning department. "It's part of an international movement and the trend is overseas."

"I think it may happen sooner than expected," added Carlisle. "Growth itself makes an area less desirable."

Another potential obstacle to the Hunt administration plan is the attitude toward growth at the grass roots. Some communities may want more growth than the state planners would like to see them have, while others may desire less.

"People are developing a greater tendency to look around them and say, 'What do we need?'" Bergman said. Some towns appear to want outside industry. Some would prefer expansion of local firms. Still others wish to remain farm-oriented.

Carlisle suggested that the state develop technical and financial programs to help communities which don't want imported industries find other ways to grow.

Patronage System In State Is Most Sophisticated, Efficient

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State officials who are close observers of North Carolina's administrations say the state now has one of the most sophisticated and efficient patronage systems it has ever had.

And they credit Joseph A. Pell, Gov. Jim Hunt's patronage chief, for creating the smoothly-running system.

The governor controls hiring in the nine departments under his cabinet members. At last count, there were 44,229 employees in the nine departments, or about one fourth of the 163,000 state jobs.

The governor has no control over the eight Council of State departments, whose heads are elected statewide. There are about 3,603 employees in those departments.

There are another 115,000 state jobs. workers in the public schools, university system, courts, legislative offices and community colleges, whose jobs are controlled by the institutions.

State officials say competition is fierce for state jobs, and they say this year, 150,000 applications will be received for 9,000 openings in the 17 departments.

In order to cope with the demand for state jobs, Hunt has reworked the hiring system by setting a computerized applicant-referral system. And he hired Pell to upgrade the state's patronage system and put Hunt supporters in state jobs.

Pell, a longtime Democratic Party worker, signed on with the Hunt administration a year ago. He says he does what he was hired to do — put qualified Hunt political supporters in

"We couldn't win by just sending over political hacks," Pell said. "In time, if that's all they were — political hacks — then it would reflect on the (cabinet) secretaries of the departments and that would reflect on the governor."

One state administrator said he had not experienced any serious problem with political hirings.

"Now, that doesn't mean we haven't had some real turkeys sent over, because we have," the administrator said. "But they don't get anywhere and Joe Pell understands. He's of the old school; he knows how the system works and you can talk to him."

Pell's system for getting Hunt supporters into state jobs works in conjunction with a new hiring program that operates through the Office of Personnel and is designed to ensure merit and equity in hiring. The system, called the central applicant referral system, went into effect last fall for all state jobs in Raleigh.

CAR takes applicants, checks to see if they meet certain qualifications, stores them in a computer and throws out about 15 names for every job opening.

State Personnel Director Harold H. Webb said he sees no conflict in the CAR system and Pell's patronage methods.

"It is the nature of government that you have patronage," Webb said. "It is important that the governor have his supporters in key positions and in some not-so-key positions, but he needs loyal people. You have to reach a balance or compromise, and I think we have."

Dyslexia Funds Ruled Illegal

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina Court of Appeals ruling last month reversed a 1977 state Superior Court decision and barred counties from financing private schools.

In the ruling, the court said Gaston County commissioners acted illegally in 1977 when they appropriated $47,068 to the Dyslexia School of North Carolina Inc. The school is a private institution in Dallas, N.C., for children who suffer from dyslexia, a learning disability which causes reading problems.

In making the decision, the court reversed a July 1977 decision by Judge Sam Ervin III in Gaston Superior Court. Ervin ruled that the appropriation was legal.

"If the Appeals Court had held Ervin's decision to be legal, then there would be nothing to stop county commissioners from directly funding a private school and diverting those funds from programs in the local public school system," said George T. Register, a Raleigh lawyer who represents the state School Boards Association. The Appeals Court decision, handed down by Judge Burley B. Mitchell Jr., said that the state Constitution allows governing bodies to appropriate public funds only for public purposes.

Mitchell wrote that even though the school, as a private non-profit corporation engaged in benevolent activity, it is still a private institution.

"As such it may not receive appropriations and expenditures from public funds as a constitutionally permissible means of achieving the desirable and commendable end of assisting in the education of dyslexic children of Gaston County," he said.

A suit was filed against the commissioners by James F. Hughey, a Gaston resident who said the funding of the school was a violation of state laws. He brought the lawsuit in April 1977 after the commissioners had appropriated $25,000 to the school. The remainder of the $47,068 appropriation was withheld pending the outcome of the suit.

Voters Decide Town's Future

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — If a survey conducted last month by Pinehurst Inc. is accurate, the decision in the Sept. 12 referendum on whether Pinehurst will become a full-fledged town or remain under the control of Pinehurst Inc. rests with 40 percent of the town's voters who are undecided.

Pinehurst Inc. is a subsidiary of the New Jersey-based Diamondhead Corp. The relationship between the corporation, which opposes incorporation, and the village's affluent residents is unusual in North Carolina.

After buying Pinehurst in 1970 from the heirs of founder Edgar Tufts, the corporation set up a village council and appointed a majority of its members.

Disgruntled residents filed a suit in 1973 and won the right to elect all council members to run the town. However, Pinehurst Inc. retained veto power, which is yet unused, over any council decision.

Incorporation supporters cite the veto provision and their feeling that the council is ineffective as their arguments for incorporation. They also point to the availability of state and federal funds to incorporated municipalities, possible annexation by nearby Southern Pines, inadequate zoning protection and the prospect of lower taxes.

The growth of Pinehurst Inc. from a $27 million property valuation in 1972 to $84 million today, has been rapid. Some of the town's residents say they believe the face of Pinehurst is threatened.

But E.W. Partiff, local developer, president of the village council and a 13-year Pennsylvania transplant, said the fears are unfounded.

Partiff admitted there are "no gifts" from Pinehurst-Diamondhead, but he said it is a good corporate citizen that rescued the village from deterioration when it purchased it for $9 million.

"If this corporation declined, we could always incorporate it if it is in our best interests," he said.

He said the survey, conducted by North Carolina State University graduate students hired by Pinehurst Inc., showed that 85 percent of the residents felt the corporation was doing a good job, and 75 percent had no complaints.

"There's an old axiom: If it works, don't fix it," Partiff said.

All Well On Balloon

BEDFORD, Mass. (AP) — Three men from New Mexico were drifting high above the Atlantic well east of Newfoundland today and said all was going well on the third day of their attempt to be the first to cross the ocean by Balloon.

"We're OK on all systems," Ben Abbruzzo reported from the Double Eagle II, a helium-filled black balloon trimmed with silver. "The balloon is flying reasonably well. Our plan is to climb to 15,000 feet (today) and 20,000 the day after."

The craft was reported 150 miles east of Newfoundland Sunday night, heading due east at about 20 mph. It was slowly picking up speed and sailing at about 10,000 feet. The balloonists, who took off from Presque Isle, Maine, Friday night, said they hoped to reach northern Europe by early Thursday and perhaps touch down near Brest, France.

There have been 17 previous recorded attempts to cross the Atlantic by balloon, and the challenge has claimed several lives.

Guardsmen Patrol Memphis Streets

By LESSEAGO
Associated Press Writer
MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — National Guardsmen in riot gear swept through the streets of Memphis in jeeps and armored personnel carriers today, rounding up picketing police officers who violated a dusk-to-dawn curfew.

Mayor Wyeth Chandler ordered about 100 armed Tennessee Guardsmen — part of 1,200 soldiers activated in response to a walkout that entered its fourth day today — to help non-striking policemen arrest picketing officers at precinct houses.

About 50 strikers were arrested by early today and charged with violation of the curfew and threatening a breach of peace.

Meanwhile, union firemen threatened to stage their own walkout, continuing a strike interrupted by a court order July 4.

Local 1744 of the International Association of Firefighters votes today in two meetings on whether to accept a city wage offer.

The deployment of National Guardsmen, who last month fought fires during the firemen's walkout, could influence their decision. But even before the arrests, two union officers, who asked not to be identified, predicted the offer would be rejected.

At a televised news conference early today, a haggard-looking Chandler said he decided to deploy the guardsmen after rocks were thrown through windows at Central Police Headquarters and two precinct stations.

The soldiers, wearing plastic face masks and body armor and carrying automatic rifles, roared down Memphis' Union Avenue in a convoy of trucks and tracked vehicles.

When guardsmen arrived at headquarters, police director E.W. Chapman and chief of operations John Molnar, the department's ranking uniformed officer, led a group of shotguncarrying supervisors from the building to inform about 25 pickets they were under arrest.

The strikers raised their hands and submitted without a struggle. Additional arrests were made at three of the city's four precinct headquarters.

About 1,100 policemen have been on strike since 11 p.m. Thursday when the union rejected the city's final wage offer. Supervisory officers and sheriff's deputies working 12-hour shifts have been providing police patrols during the strike.

Interior Official Is Unhurt In Plane Crash

AGANA, Guam (AP) — A twin-engine U.S. Navy airplane carrying Undersecretary of the Interior James Joseph, two admirals and 27 other persons crashed today in the Pacific Ocean and sank.

Joseph, the admirals and 27 passengers and crew were rescued, but two Navy men were missing.

Nine persons were hospitalized in good condition today at the Naval Regional Medical Center on Guam, authorities said.

Joseph, Adm. David Cruden, commander of naval forces in the Marianas Islands, and Adm. Neal Clements, chief engineer of the Pacific Fleet, were among those treated and released.

Two other Interior Department officials, Deputy Undersecretary Wallace Green and Ruth Van Cleve, director of territorial affairs were listed in good condition. Adrian Winkel, the department's high commissioner for the Northern Marianas, was treated and released.

The pilot, Capt. Edward Estes, commanding officer of the Naval Air Station on Guam, was hospitalized in good condition.

Initial reports said Guam Gov. Ricardo J. Bordallo was aboard, but the Navy said later he was not on the plane.

The C-117 piston-powered aircraft lost power in one engine and made a controlled ditch landing about 16 miles from Guam, said Lt. Anthony Hilton. The craft broke into two pieces when it plunged into the water.

A B-52 from Anderson Air Force Base on Guam was flying overhead and spotted survivors in the sea. Its crew members threw red dye into the water to mark off the area for rescuers from the Navy and Coast Guard.

The plane was bound for the Yap Islands, about 575 miles southwest of here, and also carried members of the musical band of the Marianas Naval Command.

Rain also fell Monday over portions of the Gulf of Mexico coast, parts of the lower Mississippi Valley, the southern and central Appalachians and along the southern half of the Atlantic Coast.

Weather

By The Associated Press
Wet was the word across most of the nation as showers and thunderstorms dropped rain over the Rockies, the northern and central Plains, eastern Colorado and northeastern Montana.

Rain also fell Monday over portions of the Gulf of Mexico coast, parts of the lower Mississippi Valley, the southern and central Appalachians and along the southern half of the Atlantic Coast.

Cool air pushed across the northern Plateau and northern Rockies, bringing highs up to only the 60s and 70s in portions of Idaho and western Montana, compared with earlier highs in the 80s and 90s. Snow fell in the higher elevations of Idaho, with four inches reported near Salmon, in the eastern part of the state.

Warming trends emerged for parts of New England, with a number of areas reporting highs in the upper 70s and low 80s.

Early morning temperatures around the nation ranged from 43 in Baker, Ore., to 90 in Phoenix, Ariz.

Energy Book ECU Product

ECU News Bureau
"Coping with the Energy Dilemma," a collection of presentations given at an East Carolina University Phi Kappa Phi symposium, has been published by the ECU chapter of Phi Kappa Phi honor society.

The 96-page book includes a selection of nine texts of addresses given at the symposium on various aspects of energy use and conservation: future and past problems, transportation uses, and practical and theoretical alternative sources.

Presentations were originally given at a Phi Kappa Phi symposium on energy Feb. 21-22.

They include:

"Energy Sources of the Future," Dr. John P. Sanders of the Oak Ridge National Laboratory's Engineering Technology Division;

"Solar Energy: A Practical Alternative," Brooks Whitehurst, manager of engineering and technical services for Texasgulf, Inc.;

"The Second Law of Thermodynamics as a Guide to Conservation," Dr. David Lunney of the ECU chemistry faculty;

"The Energy Dilemma: Some Literary Perspectives," Dr. Charles William, Sullivan III of the ECU English faculty;

"Energy Dilemma: Automobile Dilemma," Darryl Davis of the ECU technology faculty;

"The Return of Commercial Sail," Dr. Joseph Norwood Jr.

of the ECU physics faculty;

"Henry David Thoreau: The First Solar Prophet in 19th Century American Architectural Thought," Dr. Biruta Erdmann of the ECU art faculty;

"Ground Water: The Ugly Duckling of Geothermal Energy," Dr. Bryson Trexler Jr. of the ECU geology faculty; and

"The Energy Dilemma: A Free Enterprise Solution" by Lyle Barlow, students in the ECU School of Business.

The texts are illustrated by several graphs, charts and tables. Dr. Norwood's contribution, on the future of commercial sail, is a chapter from his book, "High-Performance Multihull Yacht Design," to be published next year by the British firm Adland Coles, Ltd. of St. Albans.

Copies of the book have been sent to several libraries. Persons interested in securing copies for their own use may write Dr. John Howell, Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs, East Carolina University, Greenville, N.C.

The book is the third annual publication of proceedings of Phi Kappa Phi symposia at ECU. Next year's symposium, "Crisis of Confidence," will involve presentations on the current decline of public confidence in such institutions as business, organized labor, government and religion.

Two Bombs Are Found

NEW YORK (AP) — Dynamite bombs set to go off were recovered early today from outside the United Nations building and from a coin locker in Grand Central station, police reported.

A man with a heavy foreign accent called the NBC switchboard at 4:20 a.m. and told the operator he had placed bombs.

Police later recovered a device consisting of four sticks of dynamite from the north side of the U.N. building at First Avenue and 46th Street, and one with five sticks from a locker at Grand Central in midtown Manhattan.

The devices were removed to the police firing range and explosives disposal dump at Rodman's Neck in the Bronx.

The operator said that because of the man's heavy accent, she was unable to understand who he said he was representing. However, she said she did understand him to say, "I don't want nobody else to get the credit."

CBS also reported receiving a call concerning the bombs, but the security guard who took the call could not be located immediately to relate what was said.
