Labor Asks For New Tax Bill

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The AFL-CIO asked the Senate today to junk a House-passed tax bill and approve a simple measure that would focus relief on those earning under $30,000 a year.

Andrew J. Biemiller, AFL-CIO legislative director, said while the bill is labeled tax relief for middle income families, those with incomes above $50,000 would get benefits averaging $1,400 and those earning under $30,000 would receive an average of less than $100.

As an alternative, the AFL-CIO recommended to the Senate Finance Committee that the present $35-per-person tax credit be increased to $150 and that taxpayers get an additional credit equal to 5 percent of their Social Security taxes.

The only benefit for business under this proposal would be the same Social Security tax credit as allowed individuals.

The bill would cost $21 billion in 1979 compared with the $16.3 billion price tag of the House bill.

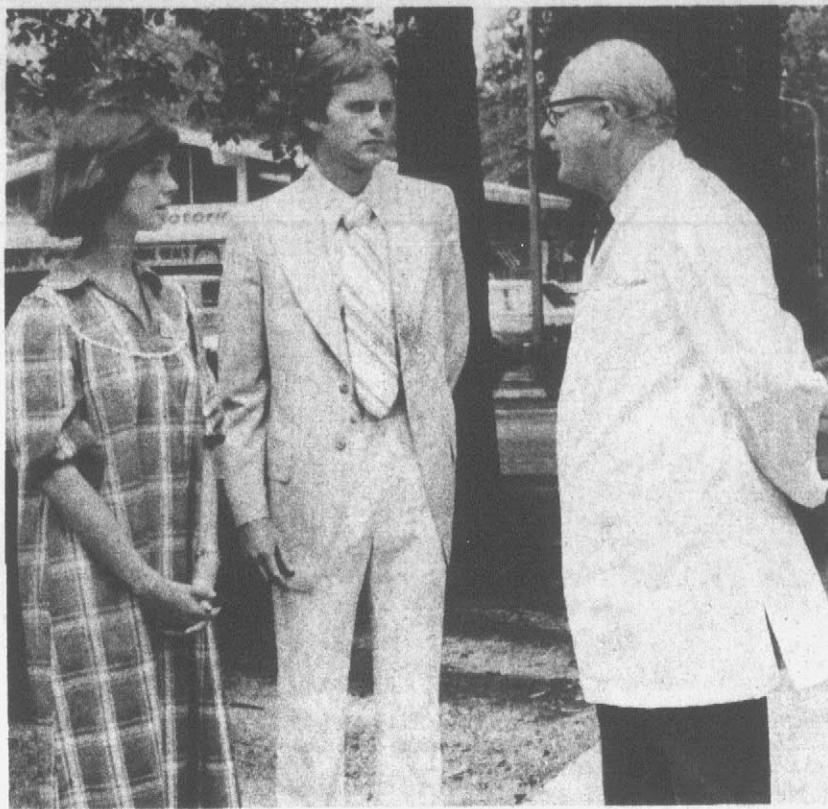

On Monday, representatives of the nation's businesses, usually among the most conservative witnesses to appear before Congress, called for a tax cut nearly twice the size recommended by the Carter administration and the House. There are two catches, though. The Chamber of Commerce says corporations and investors should get a bigger share of the $30 billion tax cut it proposes and that the cut should be accompanied by a slowdown in federal spending growth.

"The time is ripe for Congress to limit 1979 outlays to $480 billion," which would permit a 7 percent growth in spending and still allow a bigger tax cut without increasing the deficit, Jack Carlson, the chamber's chief economist, told the Senate Finance Committee on Monday.

Congress seems likely to limit spending to about $489 billion next year. But the chamber's philosophy on taxes seems to fit well with that of the committee. That panel is expected to enlarge the House-passed tax cut of $16.3 billion — though not to the chamber's $30 billion mark — and is a good bet to increase the share for business and investors.

The Carter administration says it is comfortable with the size of the bill passed by the House, but prefers that a larger share go to lower- and middle-income individuals and that the capital gains relief, aimed at helping investors, be reduced.

City School Board Purchases Lots For Sautler Expansion

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

The shortage of space at Sadie Sautler Elementary School was alleviated a little more with the purchase of four additional parcels of land during the August meeting of the Greenville Board of Education Monday night.

The board approved the purchase of two tracts from Joe Goodson at $9,500 and two tracts from Thad Woolen at $4,000 — for a total of $13,500. This action gives the school an unbroken run of land along Pennsylvania Avenue across that street at the back of the school.

Two budget amendments approved added $88,555.75 to the total current expense fund, bringing that fund to a total of $2,414,233.91. Amendment number one for $37,832.25 increases funds for school administration support, business support and other supporting services. This amount was taken from the $78,156.74 unencumbered funds remaining from last year's budget, and results in $40,324.49 remaining in unencumbered funds.

Budget amendment number two in the amount of $50,723.50 represents CETA funds which were not included in the budget at budget preparation time as it was not known then the amount of such funds to be available. These funds are to be used primarily for regular and special instructional programs, as well as a small allocation of $1,900 for instructional staff development.

Milk and bread bids approved by the board reveal the growing rate of inflation since this time last year. The low bid of 46 cents awarded the Franklin Baking Co. (Sunbeam) for a loaf of bread is 13 cents higher than last year's 31 cents per loaf figure. Other bread prices on the low bid are 46 cents per package for weiner rolls and 40 cents per package for hamburger rolls.

Successful bid for ice cream products went to Carolina Dairy at 11 and one-quarter cents per pint for white milk, one-half cents per pint for chocolate milk, and $1.35 per dozen each for ice cream sandwiches, ice cream on the stick, and ice cream cones.

Agenda items approved after brief discussions include:

— Permission for the fire department to conduct a fire and safety program for all fifth graders in the city schools;

— Permission for high school students to conduct a school-wide, door-to-door, candy sale to raise funds for the junior-senior, club programs and other school programs;

— Approved a staff organization chart for the city schools that has been the subject of previous discussions; and — Approved the resignation of three teachers and the election of a total of 12 additional teachers, including replacement personnel for two of the three who are resigning.

In connection with resignations at this point, board member Ed Carter questioned the procedure for notification of resignation. Superintendent Glenn Cox explained that state law requires a 30 day notice prior to the effective resignation date, and noted that a teacher can be legally retained only for that period.

The board also took action to approve the firm of Dixon, Horne and Duke as legal counsel to serve the board on a retained basis.

A request by a soldier now serving with the U.S. Army in Germany for a Rose High diploma based on completion of the GED test at Pitt Technical Institute and correspondence courses with the University of Maryland was disapproved. Disapproval is in accordance with the policy that spells out pre-arranged procedures available in certain instances. This request did not fall into that category.

Based on authority granted previously to Cox, he informed the board that Pitt County had purchased two old surplus

Oppose Hunt's Liquor Plan

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Allies of Attorney General Rufus Edmisten and Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green plan to push to have the state Alcohol Law Enforcement agency returned to the authority of the state Alcohol Control Board, according to sources quoted in the News and Observer of Raleigh.

That would put them in opposition to Gov. Jim Hunt, who has said he is "completely opposed" to such a move and wants the agency to stay where it is — part of the state Department of Crime Control and Public Safety. The agency was placed under the department last year.

The state association of ABC Boards has formally called for a return of the agents to Alcoholic Control Board authority. So has the Association of Local ABC Law Enforcement Officers.

Edmisten said he had heard "rumblings" of possible legislation to make the switch. Sen. W. Craig Lawing, D-Mecklenburg, said if there is a proposed bill, he would probably support it, citing "a lot of dissatisfaction" among local ABC boards with the present arrangement.

But J. Phil Carlton, secretary of Crime Control and Public Safety, argues it is a mistake to give the power to make and enforce regulations to one agency.

"It's very, very unwise for the two to be together, from the doctrine of separation of powers," he said. "I'm surprised that nobody, ever challenged that."

Local ABC board members and agents say the new system leads to friction between agents of local boards and state alcohol control agents.

"To work with state ABC agents in the field, the local board must meet with another agency," said Luther Anderson, chief of ABC enforcement for Buncombe County. "There's a lack of rapid response."

Carlton insisted that aside from some personality problems, the new system is working fine.

ECU Medical School Welcomes New Class

By LYNN CAVERLY
Reflector Staff Writer

A beautiful summer day greeted some 36 new East Carolina University medical students yesterday during their orientation session. Classes for the students, all from North Carolina, began this morning at 8.

Selected from 432 applicants, all have expressed an interest in primary care medicine. They are also interested in practicing in the state after graduation.

The students are 21 to 30 years old, and seemed to spend most of yesterday afternoon having official class photographs taken and getting to know each other.

Their free time will come to an end shortly when classes in biochemistry, anatomy, histology, embryology and the psychosocial basis of medical practices get underway. Classes will be held in Ragsdale Hall and the Science Complex on the ECU main campus, the Eastern Carolina Family Practice Center and in the medical school teaching addition to Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

Rick Juberg, 30, is one of the older students enrolled in the curriculum and feels he is "more determined" upon entering med school at a later stage in his life.

"I know better what I want to do," Juberg said. He is originally from San Diego and served as a pilot in the Air Force prior to going back to school.

Originally approved by the Liaison Committee for Medical Education (LCME) for 32 students instead of 36, Dr. William E. Laupus, dean of the school, explains the reason for the four additional students.

"We had such a good group of candidates," Laupus said, "that the accrediting agency, LCME, saw fit to approve four additional openings. It was an option that was originally opened to us."

Laupus added that he is pleased with the developments the school has made and said the school is on schedule with the original plans.

"I will make a statement on the state of the medical education building in a couple of months," Laupus said.

There are 82 members on the faculty, Laupus said, and an on-site review by the LCME is planned for November.

Twenty-eight students are beginning their second year of study at the medical school.

Kenyan Leader Kenyatta Dies

By BRIAN JEFFRIES
Associated Press Writer

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — President Jomo Kenyatta, who 10 years after conviction as a Mau Mau terrorist led Kenya to independence in 1963 and then presided over one of black Africa's most effective and stable governments for 15 years, died peacefully in his sleep early today, the government announced.

Kenyatta was believed to be in his 80s, although he himself said he did not know his age. A government news bulletin said he died at the State House in Mombasa, a coastal resort.

Prior to the announcement, there were no indications that his health was failing. But last week he held a reunion for members of his family, a custom often observed by elderly members of the Kikuyu tribe who fear their lives are nearly over.

He was reported in a genial, happy mood, cracking jokes with photographers who recorded the occasion.

Vice President Daniel Arap Moi assumes the presidency under a section of the constitution which provides for the election of a new president within 90 days.

Prior to Kenyatta's death, public debate on his likely successor was illegal under Kenyan law. It was considered a treasonable offense punishable by death.

Because of this situation no obvious successor was allowed to emerge. But the leading contenders, according to political analysts here, include the finance minister, Mwai Kibaki, the attorney general, Charles Njonjo, and former Foreign Minister Njoroge Mungai, as well as Moi.

The government asked all Kenyans "to remain calm" and ordered all flags flown at half-staff until further notice.

Kenyatta, the herdsman grandson of a witch doctor, was among the last of a unique generation of African leaders who during the 1960s brought their peoples from colonial status to independence.

He turned out to be as successful a president as he had been a revolutionary, making friends with the British who had detrained him for eight years as "a leader to darkness and death" in one of Africa's bloodiest freedom struggles, the Mau Mau rebellion. His middle-of-the-road economic and racial policies encouraged prosperity and stability in Kenya.

In later years as he aged, he became increasingly remote and a personality cult grew up around him. Young politicians became impatient with his gradual approach to the problems of a developing nation. But Kenyatta's shrewd and often ruthless maneuvering undercut any serious dissent.

His earliest days were shrouded. "I do not know when I was born — what day, what month or what year," he said.

Most authorities agree he was born between 1890 and 1895 in Kambu district, heartland of the Kikuyu, Kenya's dominant tribe and Kenyatta's power base for a half-century in politics.

Kamau wa Ngengi was his name when, in his stepfather's word, he was "a clever boy, playful and ambitious, who was given to running away and spending whole nights in the bush whenever anything upset him."

The youth immersed himself in tribal lore and once announced that a love spell he had tried "proved successful." He also walked six miles daily to a mission school where he helped with the chores after classes.

He was baptized in 1914 with the Christian name of Johnstone Kamau. But frequent wearing of the beaded belts, or kinyata, of the Masai tribe gave him the last name of Kenyatta, and he later took the African first name of Jomo, which means burning spear.

The British arrested him and convicted him in 1953 of leading the Mau Mau rebellion in which 13,000 Africans and fewer than 100 whites were slain in a four-year period.

Carter, Family Begin Raft Voyage In Idaho

By MAUREEN SANTINI
Associated Press Writer

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — President Carter and his family are embarking upon a costly, elaborately prepared rubber raft trip down an isolated 80-mile stretch of the pristine Salmon River.

Carter, his wife, Rosalynn, daughter, Amy, and sons Chip and Jack were leaving a motel here shortly after dawn and flying by helicopter to Indian Creek to begin their wilderness adventure.

"It's probably been three years since I have been in a sleeping bag," Carter told reporters when he arrived in Boise Monday night.

"I understand it is an unprecedented vacation (for a president), but I have been looking forward to this for a long time," he added. "I am an old canoeist and kayaker."

Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus and his wife, Carol, were accompanying the presidential party. On the first leg of the journey, the party was expected to travel 30 miles at the rate of 4 1/2 to 6 miles an hour.

The party is using three, 20-foot rubber rafts and a fourth, larger raft for supplies. Secret Service agents were being stationed in dinghies nearby and three rafts with reporters were following at a discrete distance.

After picking up Chip, 28, and Jack, 31, at Robins Air Force Base, Ga., the president flew here from his hometown of Plains, where he began a two-week holiday Friday.

On route aboard Air Force One, Carter told reporters he will remain in contact with the outside world "all the time," using satellite communications and Strategic Air Command planes assigned to fly in the air near him.

His raft was equipped with radio communications.

However, the president did not expect emergencies. "I have issued a directive that there be no crises," he said with a grin.

White House press secretary Jody Powell said Carter personally is paying the raft company the normal fee of "several hundred dollars" for the guides, supplies, equipment and rafts.

But the total cost of the trip to taxpayers was expected to be large since it includes the cost of security, advance planning, Secret Service agents, helicopters, and related support material and services.

Powell said he did not know the final cost.

Rosalynn To Visit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rosalynn Carter will visit Asheville Sept. 28 to dedicate a volunteer health project, a member of Congressman Lamar Gudger's staff announced here Monday.

She scheduled to arrive less than two weeks after President Carter is to pay a visit to the western North Carolina area.

Carter has announced plans to be in Asheville on Sept. 15.

The spokesman for Gudger, who represents the 17-county 11th congressional district, said Mrs. Carter will take part in dedication ceremonies for Health Adventure, a project to teach health practices.

The spokesman said details of Mrs. Carter's visit are still being coordinated, but he said she may campaign for Gudger while in Asheville.

A HOTLINE APPEAL

HOUSE BURNED

Mrs. Ethel Lee Dixon and her family of 16 children and grandchildren were planning to move Saturday. Friday night their house burned and everything they owned, except a few clothes, were destroyed.

The Pitt County Department of Social Services has asked Hotline to appeal for household goods and clothing for the family. Anyone wishing to help them may contact Social Services or the Tazzie Carmon home where they are staying, 756-5939.

Most of the young women in the family wear size 10-12; the young men 30-32 pants. Mrs. Dixon wears size 48. Younger children range in age from one to 12. Mrs. Dixon said the family will appreciate anything shared with them and will pass on to someone else anything they're unable to use.

Mrs. Carmon's home where the family is staying and the site of the house that burned are both located between Worthington's and Haddock's Crossroads near Winterville.

Athletic Group Seeks Members

An all-out drive is on in Greenville to draw in new members for the Rose-Aycock Athletic Foundation.

Details on this and a new program of season tickets were presented to the Greenville City Board of Education on Monday night by Don McGlohon. McGlohon is president-elect of the foundation, and will succeed Dr. Dick Douglas in that position.

McGlohon stressed that the primary goal of the foundation is to create a situation where "more children will have more opportunities for excellence in athletics."

At this time, McGlohon stated, "letters are being sent all parents of students in grades seven through twelve. In these letters, as in approaches to be made to other individuals, individual membership is being offered at $20 each."

It is hoped, McGlohon emphasized, that a sizable number of people will support the Rose-Aycock Athletic Foundation through membership.

Additionally, for the first time this year, a season ticket that will include all sports events at both of the schools is being offered.

The season ticket, priced at $15, is good for what he termed the "revenue sports" — football, basketball and baseball — as well as for tennis, swimming, wrestling and other events.

"It is our hope," McGlohon said, "that people who attend sports events will realize the savings possible through a season ticket and we hope to also generate interest in all the sport events students take part in."

Speaking briefly on pressing needs, McGlohon mentioned the need for outside rest room facilities, and an encompassing study to review approaches for an eventual sports facility to serve both schools.

"The question must be faced on how long we can continue to use Recreation Department and East Carolina University facilities," he said. "We have also got to consider if we are going to use land around Rose High for a facility, if we are going to upgrade facilities at Aycock, and whether we can find a place to have a really nice facility for all the schools in Greenville."

State To Fight Lake Gaston Use

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — A court fight has been promised by North Carolina and Brunswick County officials to block the selection of Lake Gaston as a future water supply source for southeastern Virginia.

"We are opposed to it and are prepared to go to court to fight it," North Carolina Gov. Jim Hunt said in a terse statement Monday after an Army Corps of Engineers' announcement that Lake Gaston is the most desirable water source alternative.

But a spokesman for the governor said legal action will not be started soon because of the lengthy review process.

The choice by Col. Douglas A. Haller, who heads the corps' Norfolk District office, will be reviewed next by the corps' chief engineer in Washington. It then starts a long bureaucratic route back to Congress and could take as long as four years.

Haller said Lake Gaston was chosen from among four possible sites.

He said the lake on the Virginia-North Carolina line could be implemented as a water source without construction of major dams.

"It is not anticipated that families would be displaced or highways abandoned," he added. And he said adverse impacts on fish and wildlife would be minimized.

Brunswick County Administrator Jesse L. Fowler called Haller's conclusions "absurd. He has chosen the most costly and destructive alternative."

If necessary, he said the county will "seek a court injunction to stop efforts to take our water." He added:

"Meanwhile, we plan to follow the corps' recommendation on the administration route to New York and Washington and try to effect a change."

Brunswick County is about 590 square miles in area and has a population of about 16,000. Fowler said its only industry is the lake.

"It's a prime recreation area and the only thing we really have going for us. This year we've spent several thousand dollars to promote it. For us with a $6 million budget, including schools, that's a lot," Fowler said.

A fight also was promised by Rep. W. C. "Dan" Daniel of Virginia's 5th Congressional District, who said the ultimate approval would be fought up the chain of command "in every way possible."

The Democratic congressman, in whose district the lake is located, said "the proposal must go to New York and then through several steps in Washington. Ultimately, it will go to the secretary of the Army and then to Congress."

"In every way possible, I will endeavor to reverse what I believe to be a wrong decision based on faulty preliminary work."

Fowler said he does not agree with Haller's conclusion that adverse impacts will be minimal.

A $13,000 study by a county-hired consultant determined the county bass fishing industry would be destroyed, he said.

The corps proposal calls for a withdrawal site in the Lake Pea Hill Creek tributary near Virginia 626.

"At a withdrawal rate of 75 million gallons a day the flow of the creek will be reversed and the bass will not be able to get to the low creek areas to lay eggs," Fowler said.

Last March the county's bass tournament drew 250 entries and awarded a first prize of $25,000.

"That tournament brought well over $100,000 into our economy in five days," Fowler said.

He said many county inhabitants are angered because they may now have to spend their tax money to fight in court "water supply site study conclusions drawn in the corps funded by our tax money," Fowler said.

The threat of Lake Gaston becoming Tidewater's future supply source has brought the county's real estate development almost to a standstill, he added.

North Carolina residents object to the choice of Lake Gaston because they fear it will prevent industrial development farther to the southeast on the Roanoke River.

During a public hearing regarding the corps' tentative choice of Lake Gaston last March, Hunt suggested

Close Finish Predicted For Alaskan Gov. Race

By The Associated Press

A photo-finish was predicted in Alaska's Republican gubernatorial primary today between a bush pilot and a self-made millionaire developer whose criticism of the handling of anti-war demonstrators led to his departure from the Richard Nixon Cabinet.

In the only other state holding a primary today, Oklahoma voters were deciding races for governor and the U.S. Senate seat given up by the ailing Dewey Bartlett, R-Okla.

Record turnouts were predicted in both states. In Alaska, the Republican primary has been dominated by a rematch between Gov. Jay Hammond and former governor and former U.S. Interior Secretary Walter Hickel. Also on the ballot are two other Republicans and three Democratic candidates for governor.

Polls show Hammond and Hickel with about 27 percent of the vote apiece. However, in Anchorage, home of nearly half of Alaska's 224,542 registered voters, Hickel led by about 9 percent. Incumbents Sen. Ted Stevens and Rep. Don Young, both Republicans, were unopposed in their respective primary elections. State Sen. Pat Rodey of Anchorage was unopposed in the Democratic congressional primary. In 1969, Hickel resigned as governor to join the Nixon Cabinet. But he left suddenly the next year after criticizing as too harsh the president's handling of anti-war demonstrations.

Hammond upset Hickel in the 1974 GOP primary by campaigning on his concern about the effect of the trans-Alaska oil pipeline boom on the quality of life. He has supported industrial projects, but called Hickel the candidate of special interests. Hickel has attacked Hammond as the champion of a no-growth philosophy that is preventing the creation of much-needed jobs.

Oklahoma Gov. David Boren was expected to lead the sevenman field of Democrats for the party's nomination to the U.S. Senate. Others in the field include former Rep. Ed Edmondson and state Sen. Gene Stipe.

Lt. Gov. George Nigh and Attorney General Larry Derryberry, formerly good friends, have waged a fierce fight to win the Democratic nomination to succeed Boren as governor. Ron Shotts, a former Oklahoma University football star, is expected to easily outdistance his two opponents in the Republican gubernatorial primary.

Dr. Robert Kamm, former president of Oklahoma State University, was unopposed for the Republican nomination to the U.S. Senate. If necessary, a runoff election will be held Sept. 19.

Marijuana Is Seized

Pitt County deputies and agents of the State Bureau of Investigation seized some 125 stalks of marijuana Monday that were growing in a field south of the Voice of America site near Bell Arthur.

The six-foot high plants, valued at an estimated $10,000, according to Sheriff Ralph Tyson, were growing in the middle of a corn field on a farm approximately one-half mile south of the VOA site.

Sheriff Tyson said that the plants were located in two or three spots in the corn field. He added that officers removed the plants from the field and destroyed them at the county garage site.

According to the sheriff, the marijuana was spotted by SBI agents from a plane and the Sheriff's Department was notified.

The raid took place at approximately 6 p.m., he said. Investigating is continuing, Sheriff Tyson reported.

Testing Firm Usually Turns Down The Police

By FRED BAYLES Associated Press Writer CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)

Rifle fire in Dallas, students' screams at Kent State, an 18-minute gap on a Nixon White House tape — all are sounds that have punctuated major events of the past two decades.

But for the consulting firm hired to analyze those snippets of history, the job is a minor sideline.

"Congressional investigations are a trivial part of our work," says Samuel Labate, chairman of the board of Bolt, Beranek and Newman. "Most of our work involves acoustic designing for business offices and dormitories. We only took on the investigations because it is of national interest."

Labate says the firm, named for three former Massachusetts Institute of Technology professors who formed the company in 1948, has built a $30 million-a-year business from acoustic engineering.

He says the firm usually turns down the many requests it receives from police departments around the country that want expert advice in analyzing sound data.

"It's not the thrust of our interest," says Labate. "We're very careful about the work we accept because we don't want to get involved in criminal investigations."

The firm first came into prominence in 1974 when, at the request of congressional investigators, it studied an 18-minute gap in one of then-President Richard Nixon's White House tapes.

The firm, and one of its founders, physicist Richard Bolt, said the section of tape containing critical discussions three days after the Watergate break-in was deliberately erased.

The company's electronic ears were listening in Dallas over the weekend as the slaying of President John Kennedy was reenacted for the House Select Committee on Assassinations to determine whether three or four shots were fired at the presidential motorcade on Nov. 22, 1963. The Warren Commission decided three shots were fired that day, and experts generally agree a fourth shot would indicate a second gunman.

Labate said the results of the Dallas test will be available sometime next month. The firm analyzed similar test recordings made at the site of the Kent State shootings to determine the sequence of National Guard gunfire when four students were killed during a 1970 campus anti-war demonstration. That test was done for the Justice Department in its investigation of the shootings.

Labate said both cases involve comparing recordings taken at the time of the actual shootings against test recordings, looking for "sound fingerprints" that will reveal the order of gunfire and even the types of weapons used.

"Every noise has a certain unique frequency, a shape that we can compare with other recordings," he said. "We use standard equipment to analyze the frequency and then make tapes to compare it with known sounds."

Two Wrecks In City

Damages estimated at nearly $1,000 resulted from two traffic accidents investigated here Monday by Greenville Police.

Investigating officers preferred no charges following a 3:35 p.m. wreck at the intersection of Howell and Perkins Streets involving vehicles driven by Debra Louise Edwards of 401 Roundtree Drive and Phillip Andrew Garrett of Rt. 6, Washington.

Police, who reported that no one was injured in the mishap, estimated damages at $400 to the Edwards vehicle and $300 to the Garrett vehicle.

A 6:04 p.m. accident on Evergreen Drive near Overlook Drive involved a car driven by Evelyn Jones Heidenreich of 1501 N. Overlook Drive and a parked vehicle owned by Thomas Critcher Rowlette of 1720 S. Elm Street.

No charges or injuries were reported in the mishap, with damages estimated at $200 to the Rowlette car and $50 to the car driven by Mrs. Heidenreich.

Miss Whitford Weds In Morehead Ceremony

MOREHEAD CITY — St. Andrews Episcopal Church was the scene of the Saturday afternoon wedding ceremony of Judith Elks Whitford and James Albert Hackney.

The Rev. John E. Taylor, of the Church of Holy Cross, Stateburg, S. C., performed the ceremony at two o'clock. A program of wedding music was presented by Ms. Janet Aiken, soloist, and Ms. Nancy Russell, organist.

Given in marriage by her uncle, P. A. Taylor Jr., the bride wore a formal gown of candlelight silk organza, over peau de soie designed with an empire waist, bodice of English net and Chantilly lace. The gown had bishop sleeves and the front of the gown featured bridal pearls in clusters. The attached chapel train flowed from the gown back.

She wore a full length candlelight veil of English net and Chantilly lace and carried a bouquet of cream cymbidium orchids surrounded by ivy and trailing spider fern.

The maid of honor was Lynn Long of Tabor City and bridesmaids included Mary Louise Elks and Blanche Melissa Elks, both of Morehead City.

Frank Miller of Hillsborough was best man and ushers included Walter Robert Elks of Morehead City and Dale Leon Elks of New Bern.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Mary Taylor Elks of Rt. 2, Morehead City, and the late Mr. Walter R. Elks. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Esta Harmon of Pittsboro, and the late Mr. James Bailey Hackney.

The flower girl was Heather Jo Whitford of Morehead City and the ring bearer was Louis Alton Whitford of Morehead City.

MRS. JAMES ALBERT HACKNEY

A reception was held at the church parish hall. Grace Arsenau, Frances Elks, Lib Nethercutt, Ethel Barnhill, Jane Elks, Carol Taylor and Lexanne Lewis assisted.

The bride has been attending

Carteret Technical Institute and will be transferring to UNC. The bridegroom attended UNC and is presently employed as assistant chief technology in the radiology department at N. C. Memorial Chapel Hill, Chapel Hill.

The couple will live in Pittsboro.

Satterfield-Koonce Vows Solemnized

In a double ring ceremony Sunday at 4:00 p.m., Joyce Oakley Koonce became the bride of Dr. G. Howard Satterfield Jr. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. David Goehring in the chapel of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church.

A program of organ music was presented by Mickey Terry.

The bride wore a formal length gown of candlelight knit designed with an open portrait neckline outlined in corded knit fabric. The blouson bodice featured a trim of ivory rachel lace with elbow length draped sleeves. The modified natural waistline was enhanced by a corded belt of self-fabric. The full circular skirt extended into an attached chapel length sweep train.

Her bridal hat was encircled in candlelight satapeau and floral Venise lace appliques. A veil of imported ivory illusion centered by a silk rose trimmed the hat.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Oakley of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Allece Satterfield of Raleigh, and the late Mr. Satterfield.

George Howard Satterfield III of Raleigh, son of the bridegroom, was usher and Emmett Bruce Koonce II of Greenville, son of the bride, was ring bearer.

Lisa, Diane and Debra Satterfield of Raleigh, daughters of the bridegroom, presided at the guest register.

The couple will live in Greenville after a wedding trip to unannounced points.

The bridegroom is a doctor of obstetrics and gynecology, Greenville.

A reception was held at The Gathering Place following the ceremony.

ABWA Chapter Plans Craft Show, Dinner

The Pirate Charter Chapter of the American Business Women's Association will hold a craft show and barbecue dinner Saturday, Sept. 30, from 10 a.m. until 7 p.m.

The show and dinner will be held at the Contentnea Ruritan Clubhouse on Highway 11 between Kinston and Greenville. Approximately 25 area craftsmen will be present to show and sell their crafts. A part of the proceeds from the sale will be given to the chapter's Scholarship Fund to be used to assist local young women. The chapter's membership consists of business women from the Grifton, Kinston and Greenville areas.

Eva Mae Suggs of Grifton is chairman of the dinner committee and is working with members of the Ruritan Club who will prepare the barbecue pork and chicken dinners.

Ruth Staton of Grifton is in charge of the craft show and can be contacted by craftsmen interested in participating. Cheryl Bleizeffer, also of Grifton, is publicity chairman and can be contacted for further information concerning the event.

Dinner will be served from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. and plates will be sold for $2.75 each.

A local Blue Grass band will present entertainment.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Parents have been under fire a lot lately for not knowing their children. They've been accused of selfishly pursuing their own goals and not giving a tinker's toot who their children are, where they are, or where they've been.

This is quite an indictment, and to make a distinction between parents who take their job seriously and those who don't, I offer today a quiz on "HOW WELL DO YOU KNOW YOUR CHILDREN?"

1. Can you name three of their best friends by their first and last names?

2. Do you know when they last changed their underwear?

3. Do you know for a fact that the voice from under the bathroom door belongs to your nine-year-old?

4. Do you know what books are being hidden that they think you don't know that you know they're reading?

5. Do you communicate? Or was the last time they spoke to you when the smoke alarm went off in their room?

6. Do you know where their school is located?

7. Would you recognize your child if the braces were removed?

8. When it's 11 o'clock do they know where their parents are?

9. Can you read their report card without an interpreter?

10. Did they have to flunk biology before you realized they were taking it?

11. How long has it been since they brought their gym shorts home to be laundered?

12. Do you know what they want to be this week when they grow up?

13. What are their allergies besides soap, homework and closing doors?

14. Who are their heroes? Heroines?

15. What do they do with their allowance?

16. What's under their beds?

17. What makes them laugh? Cry?

18. What size are their shoes?

19. Have you ever watched them play anything competitively?

20. Do you understand what was written under their pictures in the yearbook?

21. Who are their favorite relatives? Why?

If you bombed out on the above 21, you can redeem yourself by answering, "How do they feel about themselves?" and still get a pretty good score.

WEEKEND BRUNCH

Fruit Juice
Shirred Eggs Sausage
Biscuit Muffins Beverage

BISCUIT MUFFINS
1 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons sugar
1 egg
1/2 cup milk
1-3rd cup butter or margarine, melted

Stir together the flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Beat together the egg and milk to blend; add to flour mixture with butter. Stir only until dry ingredients are moistened — batter will be lumpy. Fill buttered muffin-pan cups (each 2 1/2 inches across the top and 1 inch deep) two-thirds full. Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean — 25 minutes. Serve at once. Makes 10.

Dear Abby

Riley's Verse Is Good Counsel

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: We wonder how many other families living in the Midwest (or the Northeast) are blessed with relatives who live in Florida. Their letters are mainly weather reports. And whenever they visit, they take a special delight in bad-mouthing the old hometown and state.

First of all, this state was good enough for them for about 55 years. Suddenly, it's the pits! Secondly, not everyone likes hot weather all year. It's monotonous. We happen to enjoy the change of seasons. But somehow, when we try to defend our town, it comes out sounding like sour grapes. HOORAY FOR MISSOURI

DEAR HOORAY: Whether one lives in Missouri or Florida, James Whitcomb Riley's little verse contains good counsel:

"It ain't no use to grumble and complain
It's just as cheap and easy to rejoice;
When God sorts out the weather and sends rain,
W'y rain's my choice."

DEAR ABBY: I'm 35 and my husband is 36, and my problem is his interest in a 66-year-old woman. Can you believe it? This has been going on for the last six years. They work together, and Jim gives her a ride to work and back. But that's not all—they talk on the phone every night, laughing and carrying on like two kids.

Since she doesn't have any means of transportation, Jim carts her around on weekends to do her shopping, errands, doctors' appointments, etc. She pays him back by cutting his hair and giving him manicures and rubdowns. She even clips his toenails!

This woman has been a widow for 20 years, and the only social life she seems to have is with my husband. Some of my friends have asked me if I'm "jealous," so I guess it's common knowledge that he and this old lady have something going.

What I want to know is, what can a 66-year-old woman do for a 36-year-old man?

WONDERING IN TEXAS

DEAR WONDERING: All she has to do is "be there."

DEAR ABBY: I recently became very much attracted to a gentleman who proudly admits to being 75. He's a sharp dresser and is full of fun. I am a middle-aged woman, but this man leaves me in the dust when it comes to dancing, bowling, golf, and any other physical exercise you can name.

He seems very much interested in me. My question: At his age, do you think he's harmless—if you know what I mean?

SOPHIE

DEAR SOPHIE: If you mean what I think you mean, a "harmless" man won't be able to do you any good. But whether he can do you any good without doing you any harm will depend on your condition.

Crossing Stirred Excitement

In this age of journeys to the moon, backed by sophisticated science and engineering, it is a wonder that earthly adventures can still capture the public's imagination.

Three balloonists made the first trans-Atlantic crossing in their own particular type of air transportation.

The Americans did what no one had done before even though balloons have been around longer than powered aircraft or rockets which take men beyond the earth's atmosphere.

They landed in a farm field in Normandy and were greeted by enthusiastic welcomers who tore their balloon apart for souvenirs.

The first balloon crossing was attempted in 1873. Since, there has been the Lindbergh solo flight intercontinental air service, jet crossings and finally Concorde service. Still, no one had made it in a balloon until last week.

The trio got a hero's welcome in Paris following the successful and dangerous flight across the Atlantic and the event generated world wide excitement.

Message Delivered To Foreign Press

The Soviet court dropped civil slander charges against two United States reporters last week.

The judge said retractions were unnecessary since the case had had widespread publicity.

"The New York Times" and "The Baltimore Sun" paid court costs and fines, but the reporters refused to participate in the proceedings.

The Soviet court action was aimed at intimidating the foreign press and to force the journalists to stay clear of the dissident movement.

That message was delivered to the press corps, and then it was deemed pressing the case further was not necessary.

Token Tax Cut Set

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — There is high on the agenda for 1979 legislative action a tax cut for North Carolinians. Leaders in state government including Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr. and influential lawmakers are moving in that direction.

At this stage, the prospect is considered a likely one. But also likely is the prospect that any tax cut adopted in the 1979 General Assembly will be more a token than significant relief.

At this early stage of discussion, sentiment is running toward a one-time tax credit against the 1979 individual income taxes paid by citizens.

While no firm figures are available, the ballpark amount most often mentioned is $100 million. That would be about $18 for every man, woman, and child in the state.

It is almost certain that neither the administration nor the Legislature will seriously entertain the idea of eliminating the sales tax on food, one of the most unpopular sources of state revenue, and one most often pushed for relief.

Food Tax

That portion of the sales tax take annually amounts to nearly $150 million, including all grocery store taxes whether on food or non-food purchases as well as snack bar and restaurant food sales.

Thus, it is possible that those who will push the 1979 tax relief proposal will try to relate it to the food tax, even if only tangentially.

Obviously, argument will arise over the exact method used to spread the tax relief. A tax credit is applied by actually taking the amount of taxes owed the state at the time income taxes are figured. This procedure makes a credit worth more than a deduction which is figured against income before taxes are figured up.

But any tax cutting which is done against individual income taxes normally works to the favor of those earning sufficient to file an income tax form. Those who are working against the food tax feel that this means those most harmed in paying a sales tax at the grocery store would be the ones who are in low income brackets and not filing income tax forms.

Another hangup will be the one-time nature of the developing proposal. Why not move ahead with some permanent form of tax relief?

Planners are fretting over projections from state economists showing a business slowdown late this year and running through are still nervous over continuing taxpayer support for eliminating waste, and interest in forceful measures such as California's Proposition 13. They would like to demonstrate that, contrary to popular opinion, government doesn't try to spend every dollar it gets its hands on, and scheme ways to get more.

Whatever tax cutting is done by the 1979 General Assembly must await further developments in the economy and in revenues produced by current taxes. The always-larger etate budget usually can be financed from increased revenues derived from inflation and increased spending; income grows even without a tax increase.

Gov. Hunt is expected to stand firm on his pledge of no tax increases during his four-year term, not even major shifting of the tax procedures to produce an increase on one category while reducing another. At the same time, he has told his key people not to let a Proposition 13 tax-cut hysteria deter them from proposing important new projects.

much of 1979. While current state income is running just ahead of projections, most experts now operate on the belief that the business boom is slackening and that while government revenues will continue to grow, they will not grow as rapidly as in the past several months.

A Token

Then why should the state try to trim taxes at all, if the cut will be for just one year and a token at that?

Farber Case: A Lemon

If my brothers of The New York Times are as smart as they universally are thought to be, they will wiggle out of the Farber case as gracefully as they can. What began as a cause celebre has become a bumner instead. The whole affair ought to be shelved, as H. L. Mencken used to say, pianissimo.

The Farber case, if you came in late, involves reporter Myron Farber of the Times. As a consequence of his investigative digging, Dr. Miaro Jascavech is now on trial for murdering several patients at the small Riverdell Hospital in New Jersey 12 years ago. The doctor's defense counsel demanded Farber's notes. Farber refused to surrender them to the trial judge for his inspection in chambers. The judge then failed the reporter and smacked the Times with a horrendous fine.

On two points, in my own view, the trial judge erred. His subpoena was entirely too sweeping; it goes far beyond the particularized limits implicitly imposed by the Fourth Amendment. And the fines of a flat $100,000 plus $5,000 a day are purely vindictive; they reflect the anger of a tinpot tyrant on the bench and cannot be sustained. If the power to punish for contempt embraces the power to impose unrestrained punishments of this magnitude, something had better be done about the power to punish for contempt.

But on balance, the trial judge was right. Farber was standing on the First Amendment, pleading his right of free press to protect his sources. Every one of us in the news business is with him in principle. If we can't effectively protect our sources, pretty soon we will be out of the news business. We will be serving up little more than a purse of handouts instead.

If we of the press have rights under the First Amendment (and the Supreme Court never has bought the proposition we are trying to sell), it is beyond questions that Dr. Jascavech has rights under the Sixth Amendment. The Sixth lays down the rule, with perfect clarity, that all criminal prosecutions.

Public Forum

Letters submitted for Public Forum must be limited to 300 words.

To the editor:

I feel that taxpayers should not be 'hit' with a tax that falls unfairly on the paying public. Every time I pay the tax on food I am reminded that it is not a fair share tax.

For example, when it comes to basic foods that are essential for proper nutrition and subsistence for a family of four, the cost is the same regardless of the income. With a food cost of $100, the tax is $4 — the same tax payment for families whose incomes could range anywhere from below $10,000 to $30,000 and over. Where is the fair share?

The National Center for Economic Alternatives reported (UPI Washington) that the costs of "basic necessities" increased between May and June. The annual rate of price increases for the first half of the year was highest percentage-wise for food as compared to medical care, energy and shelter. With food prices rising faster than the general rate of inflation and the unfairness of the food tax, is it any wonder the average worker still is not keeping up with the cost of living? How can he possibly with the card thus stacked against him? Moreso, since a greater proportion of a low income salary is spent on food, as compared to that of the high income salary. This makes for a gross inequity.

One would think that citizens would consider it shameful disgrace having an unfair tax such as the tax on food in a country that stands for equality. Wouldn't it be feasible: elimination of the food tax by substituting in its place an increased tax on luxury items and non-essentials? If in accord with this view, why don't North Carolinians and fellow Americans speak out and make their voices heard?

THE INSIDE REPORT

Carter And Begin

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Behind the careful stroking of Israeli Prime Minister, Menahem Begin the past few weeks, President Carter is moving toward a Camp David breakthrough to Mideast peace that belies the caveats from U.S. officials, including Jimmy Carter.

This is the essence of the Carter plan, now shaping up behind closed doors in Washington: acceptance of the raw outlines of Begin's own plan for self-autonomy by West Bank, Palestinians as the foundation for assured Arab sovereignty after five years.

Private signals have been sent to Mr. Carter by the Israeli government almost, but not quite, spelling this out. Publicly, Begin opened the door to future Arab sovereignty July 24 when Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan committed Israel to discuss the sovereignty question at the end of five years.

Begin himself will not commit Israel to Arab sovereignty over the area, but his private talks with American Jewish leaders are pointed: start with my five-year self-rule plan; when it ends, I will no longer be prime minister; the momentum of successful self-rule can only lead to full Arab sovereignty, probably in a federation with Jordan.

It is here that the design of Mr. Carter's plan comes into focus. The U.S., not Israel, will act as Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's guarantor for Arab sovereignty following the five years of local self-rule; the U.S. will act as Israel's guarantor for West Bank security safeguards that Sadat himself agrees must extend far beyond the five years of self-rule.

This Carter plan makes a major concession to Israel by leaving out the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO). It requires a major concession from Israel by curtailing inflammatory Jewish settlements on the West Bank.

Point 20 in Begin's Dec. 28 self-rule proposals demanded virtually unlimited new settlements during the five years. But highly placed figures in the right wing of Begin's government feared that new settlements would be forbidden or sharply curtailed by the Camp David summit.

Consequently, on Aug. 13, they leaked a secret Israeli government plan for five immediate new settlements in an effort to engineer a preemptive decision. Instead, within hours after the leak the Begin cabinet ordered the settlements "postponed."

Throughout this internal maneuvering in Jerusalem, the Carter administration was relatively dispassionate. That reflected the president's soft treatment of Begin, a key component of preparations for Camp David.

Until recently, any question about Israeli settlements caused a small earthquake in the White House. Settlements, according to the president and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, were "illegal" and "an obstacle to peace." Yet, when Mr. Carter was asked about the five new settlements on Aug. 13, he replied quietly: "Well, I wish they wouldn't create any more settlements." Whatever Vance's real reaction to five new settlements, he sent Begin a courteous, low-key message asking only that they be "reconsidered" in view of the Camp David summit.

When Vance testified behind closed doors to the

ELECTRIC CLOCKS

Electric clocks, once set at the correct hour and minute, will keep accurate time for an indefinite period thereafter. The reason is that the mechanism of these clocks responds to impulses from the electric power station which are unerringly regular.

Our relationship with God are something like the relationship of electric clocks with the power station. If we set our feet in the right pathways, God will see to it that we continue to walk therein. If we think right thoughts every day, the power which is higher than ourselves will translate those right thoughts into right actions.

But we should note that it is up to us initially to set our lives according to God's law, just as we set our clocks according to the right time as initially recorded by a master timepiece.

Power breakdowns often occur at our earthly utility stations, but this never happens with God's law. The divine power operates without interruption.

Insurance: What's Right For You

By LOUISE COOK

Associated Press Writer
Fires and burglaries, hurricanes and explosions. You read about them every day. What would happen if your house were hit?

Insuring your home against danger is important. Knowing what you get for your premium dollars is equally important.

According to the Insurance Information Institute, industry officials say that as many as half the nation's homeowners may not have as much insurance as they need.

One person's idea of need, however, can be another's idea of luxury. How much is right for you?

As a general rule, most insurance companies advise people to insure their homes for an amount equal to at least 80 percent of the replacement cost. (Replacement cost, NOT purchase price. Inflation has boosted the value of housing so rapidly that you could be in for an unpleasant surprise if you haven't updated your insurance policy.)

If you insure your house for less than 80 percent of replacement value, you will not be repaid in full for damages — even if they total less than the amount of your policy.

Here's how it works.

Suppose you have a house now worth $50,000. You insure it for 80 percent — $40,000. The roof is destroyed and the bill for a replacement is $1,000. You are covered for the full $1,000.

Assume, however, your home is insured for only 60 percent of the replacement cost — $30,000. Again, the roof is destroyed and, again, it costs $1,000. Because your insurance is below the 80 percent level, you will not get the full $1,000. Your payment will be based on the cash value of the roof less depreciation due to wear and tear.

How much does the extra protection cost?

The insurance institute provided some typical coverage figures for a home in Omaha, Neb., worth $57,500. According to the institute, insuring the home for 60 percent of replacement value would cost $208 a year; insuring it for 80 percent would cost $293; and insuring it for 100 percent would cost $378.

How can you keep up with inflation?

"Many companies offer an 'inflation guard endorsement.' The amount of coverage is automatically increased by a specified amount every three months. The fee is relatively low. The

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The intentional dumping of 270 miles or so of toxic, PCB-laden chemicals across rural North Carolina roadside has provided a glimpse of state government's response to a crisis broader and more unexpected than any had imagined.

And the reviews, still coming in, are mixed.

Gov. Jim Hunt, in a news conference called last Thursday to announce what everyone already knew — that the contaminated soil would have to be dug up at a cost of millions of dollars — went on the defensive with some tough questions about his administration's response.

"You can always do it better, but I think an adequate response was made and I think we're moving here now, nine or 10 days from the time we found out the whole magnitude of it, to clean it up," he said. "I think that's adequate."

But privately, one top-ranking administration official conceded afterward that the response, at least by state health officials, had been hesitant and could have been quicker.

T. Mitchell Langdon, the Johnston county farmer who discovered the first toxic spill Aug. 2, certainly thinks so.

"It seems to me that when we have a real crisis there is just an inability on the part of government to respond," he told a reporter 10 days after the spill.

Part of the explanation, state officials said, was a concern that residents not be panicked.

On Aug. 10, several days after it was determined just what the dark, oily strips of roadside were tainted with, Human Resources Secretary Sarah Morrow said there would be no door-to-door public health campaign planned to alert residents of the danger.

One week later, when Hunt returned from a vacation, the response was reversed: county health workers were directed to go door-to-door in County Agent R. R. Bennett today sent letters to tobacco growers in the county advising them that marketing cards will be delivered at designated places in each township on Wednesday of this week.

Bennett has arranged four tobacco grading schools for farmers of Pitt County with two set for tomorrow and two Wednesday.

The school will be conducted by a marketing and grading specialist from the U. S. Department of Agriculture and L. T. Weeks, assistant Tobacco Extension specialist from North Carolina State College.

County Agent Bennett explained that tobacco graders should find the meetings helpful and constructive. He has urged growers to bring their tobacco graders to the school.

Senate Foreign Relations Committee last week, he strongly emphasized this fact: whatever happens at Camp David or after, the Carter administration would never, never use military or economic aid to pressure Israel.

Soft-stroking Begin is part of the Carter plan to obtain from him absolutely necessary settlements concessions at Camp David or later, after Camp David has set the guidelines for new negotiations between Israel and Egypt.

The Carter administration has come full circle in its psychological handling of Begin. It began with kid-glove treatment when Begin and his hard-line Likud coalition took power in the summer of 1977.

After Sadat's memorable trip to Jerusalem, Mr. Carter was increasingly tough toward Begin. Some Carter officials even explored ways of moving Begin out of the premiership in favor of a more flexible politician. That questionable tactic not only failed; it consolidated Begin's political power in Israel and threatened a break between the U.S. and Israel.

Today, with new reasons to believe that Begin will come to Camp David Sept. 5 in a mood to negotiate, Mr. Carter's soft-stroking is designed to enhance that mood. He even took the trouble to send Begin a birthday telegram for his 65th birthday Aug. 16.

Not in 30 years has there been so real a prospect for breaking the Arab-Israeli deadlock. Wisely, the president is playing it down. But if—as now seems probable—the summit pays off, credit will go to Mr. Carter himself at a time when his presidency desperately needs a lift.

the accused "shall" enjoy the right to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor.

In a direct conflict between our tenuous right to protect sources and a defendant's absolute right to evidence that might help him, the defendant on trial for his life surely has the better case. Farber and the Times would have been better advised, after registering a formal protest, to have negotiated a surrender with the judge.

When the contretemps arose late in July, Farber and the Times insisted the reporter was protected by New Jersey's "shield law." This is a state law purporting to protect newsmen from court orders that might result in disclosing confidential sources. The trial judge brushed aside the shield law as if it never had been written. Some of us in the news business agree with him in that position of disdain. Shield laws may provide some tinsel armor against the subpoenas of legislative bodies, but they are going to be rules worthless in criminal prosecutions.

One of the unhappy consequences of the Farber affair is that it has prompted some well-intentioned members of Congress to renew proposals for a national shield law. Senators Pat Moynihan of New York and Alan Cranston of California, and Congressman Philip Crane of Illinois, are rushing to our succor. I wish they would stay off our side. We ought to fight these conflicts one at a time, case by case, relying upon the Constitution alone. Once we accept in principle the power of Congress to give us freedom, we accept in principle the power of Congress to take it away. Thanks, gentlemen, but no thanks.

On August 4, when Farber went to jail, he appeared to be acting as a martyr in a noble cause. Subsequently, it transpired that Farber had entered into a lucrative contract with Doubleday to do a book about the Jascalevich case. The effect was to leave a ring around the collar on his white robes of virtue. It won't wash.

For all these reasons, Farber ought to throw in his hand. Many of us would like to take the issue of protecting our sources back to the Supreme Court, in the hope of moderating the Branzburg decision of 1972. When we do, we will need a better set of facts than the Farber affair provides.

the affected areas, distributing warning notices and reading them to those that couldn't read.

Similarly, chief state epidemiologist Martin Hines first said there would be no health survey in the affected areas because there was no sufficient hazard.

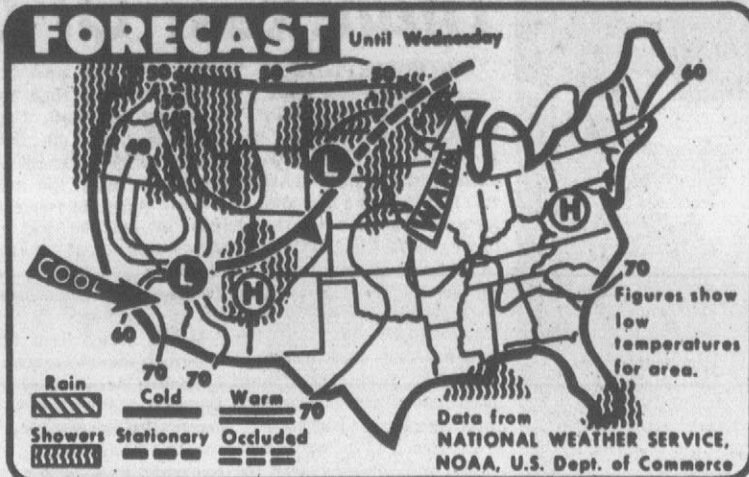

Now, the state health division is taking blood samples from a test group, and the Agriculture Department is looking for PCBs in crops near the affected areas—and has found it in some soybeans.

"One thing we are sure of, is there are no immediate health effects," Dr. Morrow explained last week. "So we felt we had time."

Meanwhile, however, some people may have been exposed to the toxic substance. "The public itself has not been sufficiently notified," said Langdon. "Over the weekend I saw people walking in it and riding their bikes and motorcycles," he said.

State officials also had to take time to learn what

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Showers are expected in the forecast period, Tuesday until Wednesday morning, from the Pacific Northwest to the upper Great Lakes, in the Southwest, the central Gulf and southern Florida. Cool weather is forecast from the Pacific coast to the central Rockies but most of the country is expected to be warm. (AP Laser-photo)

By The Associated Press
Clear skies and cooler air spread from the northern Plains to New England today, while a few showers dotted the Rockies and parts of the Southwest.

Thunderstorms were scattered along the Gulf Coast and in Georgia, Kansas and Texas. More than an inch of rain fell at Pensacola, Fla., late Monday and a tornado damaged a farm at Crowley, Texas.

Areas near the Canadian border had readings in the 50s today, while generally mild temperatures were reported elsewhere around the nation.

The forecast called for scattered showers or thundershowers from the Pacific Northwest into portions of the northern Plains.

Showers also will be scattered from portions of the southern Plateau into the southern Plains and along the coastal portion of the Gulf of Mexico.

Skies will remain mostly sunny over much of California and from the central Plains through the Middle Mississippi Valley into the eastern third of the nation.

It will be hot through much of the Southwest, the southern and central Plains, the Middle and Upper Mississippi Valley and the Upper Great Lakes.

Cool or mild temperatures will extend from the north and central Pacific coastal region into the northern and central Rockies.

Most of the rest of the nation will have warm temperatures.

Temperatures around the nation early today ranged from 43 degrees in Houlton, Maine to 92 in Blythe, Calif.

Cottage Parent Dies After Inmate Beating

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—A man who served as a cottage parent at a state training school, allegedly beaten by four students armed with bed posts, died early today, according to a spokesman at Memorial Mission Hospital where he was taken after the incident.

Larry Buchanan, 37, of Black Mountain, had been reported in critical condition with a severe skull fracture after the attack at the Juvenile Evaluation Center at Swannanoa. Buchanan reportedly had refused to hand over a key during an apparent escape attempt.

Buncombe County Sheriff Thomas Morrissey said Michael S. Tilly, 16, of King, and David Bryon Wooten, 17, of Dallas, were charged along with two younger students initially with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill. The sheriff's office said this morning warrants were being drawn charging the students with murder.

School director Don Pagett said the students were trying to take a key from Buchanan when he was attacked.

After the attack, one of the students went to the office and called another cottage parent to report that Buchanan was hurt.

"It was an isolated and senseless occurrence," Pagett said. "It would have happened to any staff member who was on duty last night. I've known Larry some time, and he was well liked and respected by his colleagues and well liked and respected by the students. It was a senseless tragedy."

THIS SUMMER, WE'D LIKE YOU TO HELP US STRAIGHTEN SOMETHING OUT.

The chart shows you the problem. On a hot summer week-day, everybody uses a lot of electricity all at the same time. This means Vepco has to use all of its equipment to keep up with this big demand. As the demand grows, more power plants must be built to keep up.

This adds to your electric costs. What can you do to help level things off? Here's the plan. It's called Hot Watch 95. And it's simple. On hot summer weekdays when the temperature hits 95°F, we'll be asking you to put Hot Watch 95 into action. This means using your heavy appliances and hot water before 10 a.m. or after 10 p.m.—or on weekends. Be careful not to overcool your home. Make sure the inside temperature is no more than 15°F cooler than the outside temperature. By spreading out your use of electricity, you can help reduce the peak demand for power. That means reducing the need for new power plants. It's one way to help keep your future electric bills under control. And that's something we all want. That's the whole idea behind Hot Watch 95.

youngest pope on record. Some scholars say he was 12, others 30. Both his uncles were popes and he disgraced himself by selling the office to his godfather. Marcellus II, elected in 1555, was the last pope to keep his baptismal name. In the early church, most popes used their own names. The custom of choosing another name was firmly established with the election in 1009 of Sergius IV, who was born Peter Bocca Porci, or Peter Pig's Mouth. Popes have been chosen by a two-thirds majority vote of the conclave since 1274. The choice is not limited to cardinals; any male who has "no just impediment" is eligible. But Urban VI, elected exactly six centuries ago, was the last non-cardinal to be chosen. He was bishop of Bari. Some conclaves were also not so fussy about impediments. Julius II (1503-13), the patron of Michelangelo who commissioned the frescoes in the Sistine Chapel, had three children. Alexander VI, the most scandalous of the Borgias, fathered at least five children, including Lucrezia. The average age of the 111 cardinals who will enter the conclave area in the Borgia apartments on Friday evening is 66. They include 27 Italians, the fewest ever; eight Americans, the most ever; 12 Africans, nine Asians and 29 from the rest of Europe. One third of the world's Catholics live in South America, a statistic dramatized by Brazil's six voting cardinals. A hundred cardinals, all appointed by Paul VI, have never attended a conclave before. With cardinals over 80 excluded by Paul's new rules, only three appointed by Pius XII and eight by John XXIII will be passing through the Damascus Gate into the lockup. When a winner is chosen and accepts, the locked doors will be opened by the youngest cardinal, 49-year-old Jaime Sin of Manila, who will summon a master of ceremonies to bring in a set of papal vestments.

NEW YORK (AP) - Helped by a strengthening dollar, the stock market recovered some of its early losses in moderate trading today. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, which fell nearly 4 points at the opening, gradually recovered. By noon, the Dow index was unchanged at 888.95. Still the market showed mixed signals because declining issues outnumbered gainers by a slight 7-to-5 margin in the broader tally of trading on the New York Stock Exchange. The NYSE composite index rose .03 to 58.59. Big Board volume came to 13.42 million shares against 12.17 million on by mid-day on Monday. The market has declined steadily since Thursday when the Dow industrial index closed above 900 for the first time in more than a year. While analysts said profit-taking was partly responsible for the decline, concern over the dollar has also weighed on the market. The Federal Reserve late last week took steps to tighten credit and raise interest rates in defense of the dollar. The currency, which slipped in late New York trading Monday, rose in mid-morning trading today although traders described volume as moderate. Sony, unchanged at 8 1/2, topped the noon NYSE most active list. Other actively traded issues included Boeing, up 1/4 at 68 1/2; National Airlines, up 1/2 to 30 and Ramada Inns, down 1/2 to 8 1/2. Ramada Inns Monday sold to Resorts International an Atlantic City, N.J. hotel next to Resorts' casino. Resorts class A stock climbed 3 1/2 to 92 1/2 as the most active issue on the American Stock Exchange today. The Amex noon market value index rose .21 to 164.16.

References To Papal Conclave

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN AP Special Correspondent VATICAN CITY (AP) - Ready reference and handy historical guide for armchair Vaticanists waiting for the smoke signals from the conclave beginning Friday to elect a successor to Pope Paul VI: Conclaves - from the Latin cum clave, with key - began in 1216 when Roman popes grew tired of waiting for the election of Honorius III and locked the cardinals inside the papal palace to hurry them along. The longest recorded conclave lasted two years, nine months and three days before choosing Gregory X in 1272. Adrian Florenz of Utrecht, in the Netherlands, who became Adrian VI in 1522, was the last non-Italian chosen. Angelo Roncalli was 77 when he became John XXIII in 1958, the first pope in more than two centuries over 70. Benedict IX, in 1032, is the youngest pope on record. Some scholars say he was 12, others 30. Both his uncles were popes and he disgraced himself by selling the office to his godfather. Marcellus II, elected in 1555, was the last pope to keep his baptismal name. In the early church, most popes used their own names. The custom of choosing another name was firmly established with the election in 1009 of Sergius IV, who was born Peter Bocca Porci, or Peter Pig's Mouth. Popes have been chosen by a two-thirds majority vote of the conclave since 1274. The choice is not limited to cardinals; any male who has "no just impediment" is eligible. But Urban VI, elected exactly six centuries ago, was the last non-cardinal to be chosen. He was bishop of Bari. Some conclaves were also not so fussy about impediments. Julius II (1503-13), the patron of Michelangelo who commissioned the frescoes in the Sistine Chapel, had three children. Alexander VI, the most scandalous of the Borgias, fathered at least five children, including Lucrezia. The average age of the 111 cardinals who will enter the conclave area in the Borgia apartments on Friday evening is 66. They include 27 Italians, the fewest ever; eight Americans, the most ever; 12 Africans, nine Asians and 29 from the rest of Europe. One third of the world's Catholics live in South America, a statistic dramatized by Brazil's six voting cardinals. A hundred cardinals, all appointed by Paul VI, have never attended a conclave before. With cardinals over 80 excluded by Paul's new rules, only three appointed by Pius XII and eight by John XXIII will be passing through the Damascus Gate into the lockup. When a winner is chosen and accepts, the locked doors will be opened by the youngest cardinal, 49-year-old Jaime Sin of Manila, who will summon a master of ceremonies to bring in a set of papal vestments.

State's Economy Fared Better Than Rest Of Country's Did

By MONTE PLOTT Associated Press Writer CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) -

North Carolina's economy has fared better than the national economy during the first half of 1977 and, despite a slowdown in the second half, the year should prove good for the state. That's the opinion from three officials of the state's largest bank corporation, NCNB Corp. The bankers reviewed the national and state economic situations and offered some predictions Monday in a session with reporters in Charlotte. Inflation will probably continue with little relief, the bankers said. And although there is only a low probability of an economic recession this year, the odds will likely increase by late 1979 or 1980. "A recession then would be part of the economic cycle of expansion and then recession," said Hugh McColl, president of North Carolina National Bank. "It probably would not be as severe as the crunch in 1974. The average citizen might not notice it except by what he read in the newspaper but marginal workers - they'd notice because they'd be the ones laid off." McColl joined Tom Storrs, chairman and chief executive of NCNB Corp., and Bill Dougherty, president of the corporation, in assessing both the national and state economies as slowing down in the second half of the year. The national economy is moving from very rapid growth to moderate expansion, they said. Although that trend does not mean a recession is at hand, one may be only a year or so away. "It would be very difficult to avoid recession and expansion as long as you and I have freedom of choice," said Storrs, referring to expanding consumer spending and ensuing inflation which could precede a recession. "The danger is in a big build up and then a crunch, rather than gradual petering out (of growth)," said Hugh McColl, president of the bank. The bankers predicted an increase in the prime lending rate for banks to 9 1/2 percent by the end of the year. The prime rate, which a bank offers to its most credit-worthy commercial customers, has risen to 9 percent in the past year. Their comments on the state economy included: -An appraisal of North Carolina's economy this year as running stronger than the national economy, with gains in income and employment in the state. -Spending in connection with construction set a record for the state last year, rising 44 percent from 1976. Plans for construction spending in the first six months of 1978 nearly doubled those for the first six months of 1977. -Growth should slow down in the second half of the year, but 1977 should be a strong year overall for the state.

Hearing Date Set For Trio

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) - An Aug. 31 date has been set for a probable cause hearing for a 17-year-old girl and two men charged with first-degree murder in the weekend slaying of a West Virginia man along a Wake County roadside. Mike Reyes Lamas, 21, Terry Ann Hamm, 17, both of Wake Forest, and Bland Julius Hill Jr., 19, of Youngsville, are being held without bond in Wake Jail on charges of first-degree murder, robbery with a dangerous weapon and kidnapping. The charges stem from the shooting death early Saturday of Jerry Romine, 32, a high school teacher from Point Pleasant, W.Va. Romine was allegedly shot when he and two men companions stopped on N.C. 98 to assist a young woman standing by a car, apparently in need of help. Two armed, masked men appeared from nearby woods and robbed the West Virginia men, deputies said, then locked Romine's companions in the trunk of the car. Romine was allegedly found fatally shot when his friends were able to break out of the trunk. Bond for the kidnapping and robbery charges was set at $70,000 each by District Court Judge Samuel Pretlowe Winborne at separate first appearance hearings Monday. But no bond was permitted on the murder charges. Llamas said at a bond hearing Monday that he would hire his own attorney, but the other two received court-appointed defense counsel. At the time of his arrest, Llamas was on probation from Durham County, state Corrections Department officials said Monday. He was serving a five-year suspended sentence for possession of marijuana, which was being transferred to Wake County for supervision, officials said.

Vikes Lack Depth And Experience

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

Despite a lack of depth and experience, D. H. Conley football coach Chuck Dunn feels the Vikings can have a good season.

"We've got a lot of new players and how fast they come around and how well we avoid injuries is going to be real important for us."

The Vikings open their season Friday night when they host East Carteret. They have a one week jump on most of the other schools in the area. Last Friday, the team had its pre-season scrimmage.

"The scrimmage looked about like most scrimmages, but there were a few pleasant surprises. But, we lost a couple through injuries who will be out for awhile."

Offensively, Dunn said the team is "not there yet — we still need a lot of work. But, we've got some good kids who want to play."

Senior Jeff Allen (5-8, 160) returns at quarterback to lead the offense. He was a starter last year and part of his sophomore year, so he has plenty of experience.

Six players will probably rotate in the backfield this season, but only two have any experience carrying the ball. They are senior Peter Carmon (5-11, 160) and junior Curtis Joyner (5-7, 145). Dunn said Joyner is probably the quickest of the backs.

The other four offensive backs are senior Michael Clemons (5-8, 140), juniors Arnell Credle (5-7, 145) and Anthony Carmon (5-9, 145) and sophomore Noah Edwards (5-9, 160). Dunn said Credle suffered a broken wrist in the team's scrimmage and will be out for awhile. Clemons will do some duty at wide receiver, while Anthony Carmon has been a pleasant surprise on practice. Edwards is in his first year on the varsity.

Overall, the backfield is "going to be O.K. We don't have any super back or size, but we've got good quickness and know the fundamentals. I think that by running them in and out, they'll be able to do the job," Dunn said.

On the offensive line, Jeffid (5-10, 150) will start at tight end. He is a good blocker and receiver, Dunn said.

At the tackles will be seniors Allen Meeks (6-2, 250) and Sam Allen (6-0, 210). Meeks is a three-year starter, while Allen started as a sophomore, but did not play last year.

The guards will be junior Jerry Coward (5-9, 170) and senior Linwood Pugh (5-9, 165). Pugh is listed as the quickest lineman. Senior Holden Rouse (6-0, 170) will get the nod at center and sophomore Bobby Carmon (6-0, 160) will see duty at both ends.

On the defensive side, Dunn said he was "real pleased with the defense Friday night. Of course, at this point, the defense is usually ahead of the offense. But, we're using a lot of people who have not played before, so I'm pleased with the defense."

Four players are battling for the two defensive end spots. They are Gould, Bobby Carmon, Rouse and senior Joey Weathington (5-6, 140).

Dunn said he will use three players at defensive tackle, Meeks and senior Steve McLawhorn (5-11, 218), along with junior Mike Daniels (5-6, 265).

At the noseguard will be Linwood Pugh, and possibly Joe Greene (5-9, 160).

Of the defensive line, Dunn said, "There's some size there and we think they'll do a good job as the season progresses."

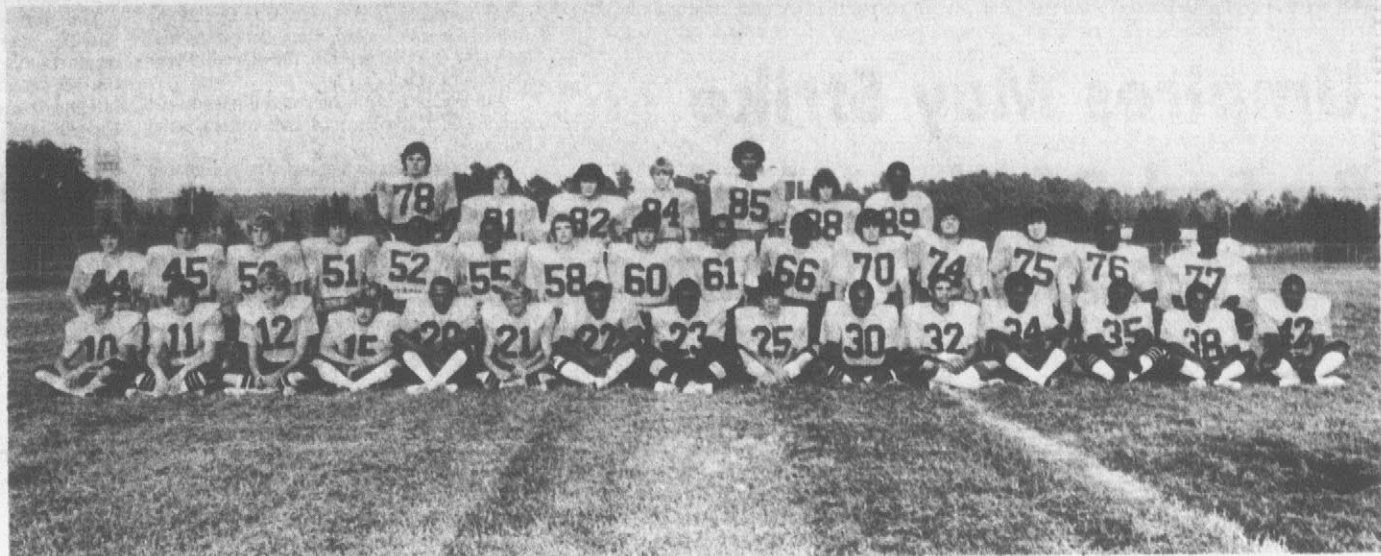

The team will have two linebackers and four players will probably share time at those spots. They are Peter Carmon, Edwards, Coward and sophomore Jeffrey Adams (5-9, 160).

In the defensive backfield, four players are working at cornerback. Clemons, Carson, Joyner and Anthony Carmon. At safety will be Credle, junior James Chapman (5-8, 130) and sophomore David Sutton (5-7, 140) and Chris McDaniel (5-10, 140).

Clemons and Peter Carmon will handle the team's placekicking duties, Dunn said, while sophomore Troy Perkins (6-0, 150) will do the punting. None of the kickers has any game experience, but they have done well in practice, Dunn said.

In the Eastern Carolina Conference this year, Dunn said, "I can't see why anybody is going to beat Farmville. They have the vast majority of what they had last year back." Farmville won the title last season and has been undefeated in the league for the past two years.

The Vikings' success this year "depends on the development of these younger players. If they come around, I think we can have a successful season," Dunn said.

Conley Vikings

Perry Wins 15th Over Phils

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

Gaylord Perry hopes to spend a few more years pitching for the San Diego Padres. Joe Sambito will be hurling for the Houston Astros in the future but wishes he wasn't. And New York's Jerry Koosman probably wishes he could pitch for any team that can score some runs.

All three pitchers worked Monday night with mixed results.

Perry, who'll be 40 years old next month, stymied the Philadelphia Phillies on six hits through seven innings for his 15th victory in 21 decisions this year, a 7-3 decision that was the Padres' sixth road triumph in a row.

Sambito, unhappy with the treatment he has received from Houston management, nevertheless signed a contract with the Astros prior to their 8-3 victory over Chicago. He then hurled 11-3 innings of shutout relief to preserve J.R. Richard's 13th win.

Koosman again was victimized by the Mets' offensive and defensive shortcomings, striking out 13 Giants and surrendering two unearned runs in 10 innings in a game the Mets finally lost 4-2 in 11.

Elsewhere in the National League, Montreal downed Los Angeles 4-2 and St. Louis pummeled Cincinnati 14-9.

Padres 7, Phillies 3

Perry, the wily veteran who has recorded at least 15 victories in each of the last 13 years, appears to be making a run at the Cy Young Award as the league's best pitcher. He was helped by Fernando Gonzalez's four hits and a two-run homer by Gene Tenace.

Astros 6, Cubs 3

Jose Cruz had four hits and drove in four runs as Houston ran its home hot streak to 15 victories in the last 17 games. However, the triumph was the first for Houston in seven games after it dropped six in a row at Pittsburgh. Sambito, 26, has a record of 4-6 this season and leads Houston pitchers in appearances with 50.

Giants 4, Mets 2

Koosman pitched magnificently but, as his 3-13 record and 3.66 ERA would indicate, got little help from his teammates. His 13 strikeouts tied the high for the NL this season.

The Giants got the right hops and the timely hits in the 11th. Rob Andrews' two-run triple knocked in the decisive runs.

Vida Blue, seeking his 17th victory, went nine innings for the Giants, who moved within a game of first-place Los Angeles in the NL West.

Expos 4, Dodgers 2

Solo homers by Andre

Dawson, Warren Cromartie and Gary Carter carried Ross Grimsley to his 15th victory.

Cardinals 14, Reds 9

St. Louis belted out 23 hits, including four each by George Hendrick and Jerry Mumphrey and three by Lou Brock. That more than offset a two-homer, six-RBI night for Ken Griffey.

Improvement Is Aim For Pirate Gridders

By The Associated Press

East Carolina Coach Pat Dye has his most experienced team ever back this fall, and his talk is of improvement over a powerful 8-3 team.

"There's a lot of work to do to have the kind of defensive team we want and the kind of season we want to have," Dye says. "But we have good people with more experience than we've ever had coming back before, so I know we can have a fine defensive team this fall."

Last year began with big wins, but ended in disappointment with two upset losses to Southwestern Louisiana and William and Mary. Dye says the Pirates won't get caught looking again.

"It was the poorest coaching job we've done at East Carolina," he said. "We were an undisciplined team, which the penalties (728 yards) reflected."

"Character has always been a big part of our success — the character and leadership of our seniors. Last year, I was very disappointed with our senior leadership," he said.

The Pirates open early. On Sept. 2 at home against Western Carolina in newly remodeled Ficklen Stadium, then help in-state rivals North Carolina State and North Carolina open their campaigns on successive Saturdays.

They'll be aiming to repeat a two-game sweep against Atlantic Coast Conference teams, and to win the Bucs' first bowl bid since 1965.

Among the brightest spots on defense is 6-3, 212-pound end Zack Valentine.

"Zack is the backbone of our defense," Dye says. "Technically, he's about perfect."

There is a gap in that line, however, as the Pirates have lost 230-pound senior tackle Wayne Poole to an injury, and the starting linebackers are all gone.

The backfield is the real strength, with senior Gerald Hall, who had four interceptions last year, returning at free safety and tested junior Ruffin McNeill — who scored a game-saving tackle on the 2yard line with seconds left against N.C. State last year — at the strong safety.

On offense, Leander Green returns as an experienced wishbone quarterback, and the Bucs are full of running backs with Eddie Hicks and Anthony Collins the certain starters. Dye says both have proven good blockers in preseason practices too.

Receivers are likely to be Terry Gallaher, who had 27 catches last year, and junior Billy Ray Washington.

Oklahoma Gets Nod As Favorite

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Earle Bruce would hate to see anyone but Oklahoma favored this year in the Big Eight Conference.

"If you didn't make Oklahoma the favorite, everybody would collapse," says the Iowa State head coach.

But Bruce also says there are more good football players at Iowa State this year than ever. And nobody in the Big Eight, after watching the Cyclones go 8-3 each of the past two regular seasons, is arguing.

The 17 starters who are back after leading Oklahoma to last year's Big Eight title are logically expected to do it again.

Four of the eight schools have new athletic directors and two have new head coaches. Regardless of who winds up in the Orange Bowl — and most observers figure Oklahoma, Nebraska, Iowa State and Colorado are the best shots — the champion seems unlikely to be as powerful as the Nebraska-Oklahoma titans who ruled earlier in this decade.

Not surprisingly, the top teams in the league, Oklahoma, Nebraska, Iowa State and Colorado, are the same ones who have their athletic directors coming back.

Good athletes always abound at Nebraska, and the Huskers, say Osborne, never have had two running backs at the same time the caliber of Rick Berns and I.M. Hipp. As a consequence, Osborne is designing a Veer-type offense to supplement the I-formation so both can be on the field at the same time.

Colorado returns 13 lettermen, including All-Conference running back James Mayberry. Of greater significance is the schedule, which includes eight home games and trips only to Oklahoma State, Missouri and Kansas State.

Kansas State, under new head Coach Jim Dickey, will be trying to win its first Big Eight game in three years. Missouri, under new head Coach Warren Powers, will be trying to awaken the slumbering giant people always have referred to when speaking of the Tigers. Kansas Coach Bud Moore, for the first time since he came to the Jayhawks in 1975, will not be using the Wishbone offense, deeming it wise to fit the plan to the personnel rather than the other way around.

West Texas State has about as many returning starters as Oklahoma and is regarded the favorite to retain the Missouri Valley Conference title.

Bucs Make Changes

East Carolina head football coach Pat Dye Monday announced one change in the Pirate defensive starting unit and eight on alternate units, including elevating two freshmen to back-up roles, after evaluating the entire first week of practice and the films of Saturday's scrimmage session.

Vance Tingler, a senior letterman from Wilson, was elevated to the first unit at the left tackle spot on defense. Sophomore Nate Wigfall will be the back-up there, with senior D. T. Joyner, the former back-up, moving over to the second right tackle position, where Tingler had been.

Freshman Marvin Cobb of Raleigh was installed as the second unit fullback after impressive practice and scrimmage work. He will be joined on the second unit by halfbacks Sam Harrell and Mike Hawkins.

John Hallow of Greenville, S. C., another freshman, was named as the second unit nose guard from among a trio of frosh Dye had indicated were vying for the post.

Matt Jones was shifted to the second center spot behind Jeff Hagans, replacing the injured Ron Headley. Bill Pinkney was elevated to the second team at strong safety behind Ruffin McNeill.

The Pirates worked twice Monday, but in pads in the afternoon session only. They are preparing for a Sept. 2 opener against Western Carolina.

Flanagan Misses In No-Hitter Bid

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

The tension built with each inning Mike Flanagan kept the Oakland A's hitless. After completing two-thirds of the job, the young Baltimore left-hander couldn't help being aware he was flirting with a pitcher's dream. "I started thinking about the no-hitter after six innings," said the 26-year-old Flanagan. "There are nine outs to go. I kept telling myself, but the no-hitter was secondary." Not much later, it was over. After Dell Alton walked and stole second, Flanagan got the first out in the Oakland seventh, then faced 13-year veteran Rico Carty.

"I didn't have the luxury of a big lead, so I couldn't pitch around any of their hitters," said Flanagan.

So he battled Carty and lost. The designated hitter, acquired last Monday from Toronto in the Willie Horton deal, slapped a run-scoring single and Baltimore's 3-0 lead was cut to 3-1.

Flanagan, 16-11, gave up just two more hits — Bruce Robinson's double and Mitchell Page's RBI single in the ninth — while striking out eight and walking three to pace the Orioles' 3-2 victory and hand the A's their ninth loss in 10 games.

In the other American League games, the Detroit Tigers rocked the Minnesota Twins 9-6 and the Toronto Blue Jays bested the Texas Rangers 8-6.

Tigers 9, Twins 6
Lance Parrish knocked in six runs with the first grand slam of his career and a two-run triple, helping Jack Billingham, 14-5, to his ninth consecutive victory and powering Detroit past Minnesota.

Tim Corcoran singled, took second on a sacrifice and took third on Ron LeFlore's single. LeFlore stole second — his 57th theft of the season and 26th consecutive successful attempt — and Rusty Staub walked to set up Parrish's 12th home run of the year. That gave Detroit a 9-2 lead in the seventh.

The steal by LeFlore tied the AL mark for consecutive thefts set last season by Oakland's Mitchell Page and left him 12 short of tying the major league mark set by the Dodgers' Dave Lopes.

Blue Jays 8, Rangers 6
Willie Horton cracked a two-run homer in the fourth and Alan Ashby cracked a two-run single in Toronto's five-run fifth, helping the Blue Jays survive four Texas home runs and hand the Rangers their fifth loss in six games.

"On most days, four home runs is enough," said Texas Manager Billy Hunter, who watched his Rangers waste homers by Bobby Bonds, Jim Sundberg, Kurt Bevacqua and Al Oliver.

Umpires May Strike By End Of The Week

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The 52 major league umpires, claiming baseball officials have balked at discussing their demands for improved benefits and working conditions, have threatened to strike by the end of the week.

Attorney Richard Phillips, who represents the Major League Umpires Association, said he filed an unfair labor practices suit Monday against the National and American leagues with the National Labor Relations Board.

"The feeling on the part of most umpires is that at this point we will engage in a work stoppage in order to force the major leagues to desist from unfair labor practices," said Phillips.

"The NLRB will initiate its own investigation," Phillips said.

But the lawyer added, "It will be decided this week (by the umpires) whether to strike before the NLRB makes its decision. I don't think we will sit back and wait."

Phillips said the umpires' association executive board, which consists of four National League and three American League umpires, would confer by phone, probably today and Wednesday, to make a final decision on the strike.

National League President Chub Feeney, contacted at the San Francisco Giants-New York Mets game in New York, said a strike "is not going to happen."

Bob Fishel, assistant to the president of the American League, confirmed the umpires' association had sent President Lee MacPhail a request to negotiate.

But, Fishel said, the wire had only arrived Friday and it was unclear whether the umpires were seeking changes in the current five-year contract or whether they were offering proposals for a 1981 contract.

Veeck Sent Midget To Bat For Browns

An AP Sports Analysis
By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Eddie Gaedel came to bat only once, and then, not even officially. But, because he was a part of a major league baseball game, his name dutifully is listed in the game's record books. The only tipoff to his unique slice of the game's history is the entry recording his vital statistics.

Next to his height, it says: 3 feet, 7 inches.

It was 27 years ago this week, in August 1951, when owner Bill Veeck interrupted the dog days of summer to send baseball's first — and so far only — midget up to bat for the late and rarely lamented St. Louis Browns.

You have to understand that the Browns didn't have to wait for August for the dog days. The Browns had dog days in May. This was a bad baseball team. Worse than that, the Browns were boring. Veeck could endure bad. Boring, however, was unacceptable to the flamboyant showman who now owns the Chicago White Sox.

So Veeck decided to inject some pizzazz into the bleak Browns' show. The answer would be Gaedel, a willing little fellow, who signed a standard American League contract on a Friday and showed up as a pinch hitter two days later.

The Browns, playing at home against the Detroit Tigers in the second game of a Sunday doubleheader, listed Frank Saucier as the center fielder and had him leading off. He played the field in the top of the first, but when the Browns came to bat in the bottom half of the inning, he was not the first batter. Instead of Saucier, a largesized birthday cake appeared at home plate where Detroit catcher Bob Swift and umpire Ed Hurley eyed it warily. On the mound, pitcher Bob Cain was properly curious.

"We thought it was just another one of Veeck's jokes," Cain said of the cake.

At the proper moment, the layers popped open and there was Gaedel, dressed up in his miniature Browns uniform. Cain, Swift and Hurley could hardly believe their eyes.

"I remember, the umpire went over the Browns' dugout and asked to see a contract," said Cain. "Zack Taylor was the manager and he was ready. He had the contract in his back pocket. Then Hurley came out to the mound. He said, 'Bob, it's legitimate. You'll have to pitch to him. He has a contract.'"

Now came the strategy conference between pitcher and catcher. How do you pitch to a midget? "Swift started laughing," said Cain. "He said, 'Try to get a strike.'"

Against a 3-foot-7 midget? That's like the age-old advice that managers often give pitchers. "Don't walk this guy," they like to say, "but don't give him anything to hit."

Cain considered his task. "I'll go to the best I can," he told Swift, sounding sincere. Swift certainly tried to help his pitcher. "Bob lay down on his side, resting his head on his hands, trying to give me a low target," said Cain. Then Gaedel took his batting stance, ending any chance the pitcher had. "He spread his legs and crouched over."

Pitching to the bent-over midget, Cain threw four straight balls and Gaedel trotted down to first base.

"Those four balls were ordinary strikes to anybody else, but they were just too high for him," said Cain.

Jim Delsing pinch ran for Gaedel and, just that quickly, the midget's major league career was over. "I think Veeck said he was on the roof and he swore if Gaedel had swung at a pitch, he would have shot him on the spot," said Cain.

Moore's Family Worried

SAN DIEGO (AP) — "Mom would have called us, she's that type of woman," the 19-year-old daughter of former boxing champion Archie Moore says of reports Moore and his wife were injured in an automobile crash in Africa. "That's why we're worried."

She would have called us by now if everything were all right," their daughter J'Marie said Monday.

The six children of the former world light-heavyweight champion are waiting for news on the condition of their parents. The crash reportedly occurred sometime last week in Nigeria.

Moore has been in Africa for two years instructing Nigeria's Olympic boxing team.

The first report, that Moore's spine had been severed, came in a State Department press release that never reached his family. Mrs. Moore reportedly suffered a broken wrist and internal injuries. However, State Department spokesman Tom Reston said Monday that Moore suffered serious back injuries, but did not break his back or sever his spine.

Wheelchair Game Is Set

The Greenville "Steelwheels" wheelchair basketball team, the newest member of the Carolina Wheelchair Basketball Conference, will host follow conference member Raleigh's "Capital City Hustlers" for a series of exhibition games on Saturday, August 26.

The two-game series will be played at the Elm Street Gymnasium with the first game beginning at 5 p.m. and the second at 7 p.m. Admission for the doubleheader is $1, and tickets may be purchased at the game or in advance at the Greenville Recreation Department. These exhibitions will be a prelude to the 1978-79 season for the Steelwheels, who will play a 22-game regular season schedule. Anyone interested in tickets may call Bill Twine at 752-4137, ext. 262 or Richard Hudson at 757-4446.

Elder Leads

Allen Elder shot an opening night 85 to take a one-stroke lead over Ken Paromare after 54 holes in the City Putt Putt Championship at the Greenville course.

Robert Stancill's 92 was good enough for third place and Alan Parks holds down fourth with a 94.

In the handicap division, Eddie Robinson is the leader with an 86 and Joel Manger and Junior Knox follow at 88. The tournament continues tonight.

Tourney Planned

The Winterville Recreation Commission will sponsor an invitational softball tournament on August 24-27 at the A. G. Cox field.

The event will include about 20 teams, preferably 10 men's teams and 10 women's teams. Entry fee will be $40 with a deadline of August 21. For more information, call Ricky Phillips or Cathy Barber at 756-6085 between 2-10:30 p.m.

World-Wide Field In Little League

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — Eight teams of young baseball players from around the world are entered in the 32nd annual Little League World Series, with four teams scheduled to begin the quarter-final round today.

The U.S. Eastern champions from Rockville Centre, N.Y., faced the Western team, San Ramon Valley, from Danville, Calif., and the European champions from the U.S. Air Force Torrejon Air Base in Madrid faced the Latin American winners, Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic. Wednesday's quarter-final games will pit the Canadian champions from Surrey, British Columbia, against the perennially strong Far East representatives from Pin-Tung, Taiwan. Also, the U.S. Southern team from Lexington, Ky., will face the Midwest champs from Palentine, Ill.

Muskie Finds Good Partner

KENNEBUNK BEACH, Maine (AP) — U.S. Sen. Edmund Muskie has found a formidable golfing partner, his 17-year-old son Edmund Jr.

The twosome won the annual parent-child tournament at Webhannet Golf Club in Kennebunk Beach, near where the Muskies have a summer home, with a combined net score of 71 on the par-70 course.

The younger Muskie, known as Ned, shot a hole-in-one on the 158-yard, par-3 15th hole to help clinch the victory Sunday.

Dear Charlie:
If you think that Stratford, England, is noted only for its Shakespeare festivals, you have never played in its bridge congress. I played there this year, and had the opportunity to watch in admiration as my partner, Paul Chelma of Paris, made a very fine play.

We reached six spades on the above auction. It was quite a popular contract, but the bad diamond break proved to be too much for many declarers.

They won the opening lead, drew trumps in two rounds, ending in dummy, and then ruffed a heart. After cashing the ace of diamonds, they entered dummy with the king of clubs to take the diamond finesse. When East discarded a heart on this trick, declarer rose with the king and tried the club finesse. East won the queen and exited with a club, and partner still had to lose a diamond trick.

Paul found a sure-trick line for his contract. After drawing trumps and ruffing the second heart, he cashed the ace and king of diamonds. Had both defenders followed, he would have conceded a diamond trick and claimed the rest to make his slam.

When East discarded a heart, Paul fell back on his alternative plan. He led a club, and no matter what West did, the contract was secure. In the actual play West followed low, and Paul inserted dummy's eight. East won the nine, but he was faced with a choice of losing options. A club would be into dummy's A-K-J, allowing Paul to discard one diamond while ruffing in dummy, and the other would go on a high club.

Notice that it would not help West to play the ten of clubs when that suit is led. Declarer simply covers with dummy's jack, East wins the queen, but he is end played in the same way.

Forgetting Troubles And Taking To Sea

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — Jack Triebel was fed up. He was fed up with all the phone calls and the crushing routine, fed up with watching the rest of the world from behind a desk.

In his mind's eye he had seen the dream. Now, 53 and president of the family business, Jack Triebel has decided to pursue it.

"My friends all think we're crazy," says Triebel. He and his wife, Punky, will leave home forever this month, climb aboard their new 40-foot sailboat and spend the rest of their lives at sea, working at odd jobs in various ports to support themselves.

"I was getting stale after 35 years or so in the business and wanted something different," he says. "You get to the point where you're saturated with the same thing day after day."

Triebel has turned over his financial interests in the clothes hunting business to his son, Hunter, and his brother, Field. The Triebel's fashionable home is on the market. The furniture has been sold or given to seven children, all grown or in college.

"The boat is at Annapolis (Md.)," he says. "It will take a month or so to complete some necessary work and get it fitted out, and then Punky and I expect to sail to the Caribbean islands about Oct. 20."

Their savings will be exhausted by the time they reach the islands, he said. To get by, they will work part-time.

"We figure we will try to work weekends to make ends meet, and still have four or five days for sailing," Triebel says. "I'm a mechanic, a plumber. I could be a guard, a bartender, wash windows — but I'd just as soon not get into the cleaning and laundry business down there."

Mrs. Triebel says she looks forward to the sea adventure. She admits it will be new for someone whose life has been bounded by security and stability, but says there is something curiously satisfying about making the break.

"I'm going to cook and read until I get tired of doing it, and then I'll try something else," she says.

That might be "working as a teller in a bank, maybe working in a filling station — I never tried that. Or I might be a domestic; it's more fun cleaning someone else's house..."

"When you pick up the newspaper and see people in their 50s dropping dead — well, if we waited until retirement age of 65, or even 62, we probably wouldn't be able to go," she said.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 23, 1978

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The manner in which you handle all details including financial ones is very important now. Be prepared later in the day to have an unexpected situation arise. Be wise and do not react hastily, but let the strange conditions work themselves out.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Study every facet of property and finances now and make sure all is in good order. Don't make any new investments until you have had time to get the right answers.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Take time to improve health and appearance and then get busy making calls, influencing people in your favor. Choose friends wisely.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Study whatever it is that has kept you from advancing in the past and eliminate hurdles now. Listen to suggestions of an adviser and make any necessary revisions.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Listen to what friends have to suggest about making changes that could be to your benefit. Avoid those who are only trying to ruin you.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Study civic tasks well and do whatever will stamp you as an A-1 citizen. Use more modern methods for improving credit affairs.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study every practical way through which you can advance more quickly now. The trip you are planning should be studied well. Make sure you can afford it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Carry through with pressing obligations and get good results. Try to please loved one with gifts and courtesies. Show true devotion.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Partners may be acting strangely so be alerted and keep your cool. Conditions in general are puzzling. Take it easy and relax.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Look about for more modern ways of handling your affairs and get better results. If an annoying situation arises, don't be irritated.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Forget that antiquated form of recreation you have been delving in and find something more exciting. Revive creative talents, too. Be happy with loved ones.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Study the situation at home and do whatever will improve conditions there. Forget about entertaining at home. Wait for a better time.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Seek out more modern methods you need to improve any condition that interests you, whether at home or in business. Discuss problems with an expert and get good advice.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be practical in nature but not be prepared for changes that come from time, so be sure to teach to accept them and know that they are steppingstones to greater things. Be sure to stress the importance of having a good education and then success is possible during the lifetime.

Irving Berlin Given TV Salute Tonight

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A classy music show appears on TV about as often as the sun rises in the West. But such a miracle is on NBC tonight. It's a brilliant tour of the music of Irving Berlin.

The chief guides: singers Steve Lawrence and Eydie Gorme, who a season or so ago did an equally superb job for ABC on a similar show featuring the Broadway and film music of Cole Porter.

In tonight's Berlin trip, they're backed by some pretty fair troops: Carol Burnett, Sammy Davis Jr. and Oscar Peterson, the great jazz pianist. All of them appear to be having great fun.

Things commence with a brisk medley of tunes that go from "Heat Wave" to "The Girl That I Marry," the latter sung against sort of a minuet counter-melody that typifies the show's imaginativeness.

There's a brief, sensitive scene in which Lawrence tells how Berlin, now 90, came to the U.S. from Russia when he was a toddler, son of a cantor named Moses Baline.

Then Davis essays one of Berlin's first hits, "Alexander's Ragtime Band," initially in the style of the late vaudevillean, Bert Williams, who first sang it, then in other styles ranging from Dikeland to disco. It's followed by a surprise of sorts.

Which is Peterson, not famed as a singer, singing "Cheek to Cheek." He sounds eerily like another guy who started as a jazz pianist but did much better as a vocalist — the late Nat King Cole.

Peterson sings "Cheek" as a ballad. Then he plays it at varied tempos, backed by such other top jazzmen as his old sidekick, guitarist Herb Ellis, and bassist Ray Brown.

(I thought this the best part of the show, but it could be just the pleasant shock of hearing great jazz on a network in prime time. Networks usually regard jazz as sure ratings poison.)

Other good segments abound, particularly the duets of Burnett and Gorme in a lively song-and-dance routine done in an Army setting, where some of Berlin's wartime tunes are reprised.

Miss B. also does a poignant version of Berlin's bluesy

"Supertime," one of the better lesser-known tunes among the 800 he's composed in his long and productive career.

An eyeball treat: director Dwight Hemion's imaginative use of freeze-frame and slowmotion techniques in a ballet sequence featuring Leslie Brown.

About the music arrangements of Billy Byers, Ian Fraser, Joe Lipman and Peter Matz: They are, in three words, nothing but tasty.

The only time the show really lags is at the finale, when Lawrence and his bride render a mostly-slow collection of tunes.

But it's a minor flaw in a first-rate proceeding put together by Emmy-winners Hemion and his partner, Producer Gary Smith.

They do consistently fine work. And if you want a rewarding sample of it, be sure to tune in their "Steve & Eydie Celebrate Irving Berlin" on NBC tonight.

Jumping Networks

NEW YORK (AP) — Stanley Siegel, a New York television personality who makes no secret of his network aspirations, is jumping from ABC to CBS. But it's still at the local level.

A spokesman said Thursday that Siegel will be host of a program for WCBS-TV similar in format to the one-hour talk show for which he has been host for WABC-TV.

"Stanley Siegel is a unique personality," said Neil Derrough, WCBS vice president and general manager. "He has the ability to capture the imagination of New Yorkers, and we are very excited about the new broadcast possibilities that we will be able to explore with Stanley."

Inexperience Might Be Help

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gloria Schaffer thinks her lack of experience in aviation might help her if she's confirmed as a member of the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Mrs. Schaffer told a Senate Commerce Committee confirmation hearing Monday that anyone with strong knowledge of the airline industry might have a conflict of interest. The Connecticut secretary of state added that she's been studying aviation issues since President Carter nominated her.

'High Risk' Students To Be Found

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer

Remedial training is the order of the day in North Carolina's public schools as the 145 school systems prepare for the competency tests to be given to all 11th graders in November.

An Associate Press survey Monday of eight of the state's largest school systems indicated that they were busy trying to identify the children who pose a "high risk" of failing the test so that they may be given remedial training in reading and math both before and after the November tests.

"We've got a remedial program all the way from grade 4 to 12," said Dr. Jay Robinson, superintendent of Charlotte-Mecklenburg, the state's largest school system. "We don't believe that any failures on this (competency test) are acceptable. In order to reach that goal we have to consider that everyone is capable of passing if there is sufficient effort on the part of the school system and the pupil."

The Charlotte-Mecklenburg system went to work on the competency test sooner than most and developed its own test, which was given to its 10th graders last November.

The results on a par with results of the tests given statewide to 11th graders in a dry run a few months later. Many children did poorly on reading and a far greater number were unable to solve simple math problems.

Children who fell down on Charlotte's competency tests last November were given remedial training the second semester. Then the test was given them again. "We cut down that percentage (of low scores) considerably," said Betsy Haley, director of testing for the Charlotte-Mecklenburg system.

This year, Charlotte-Mecklenburg schools will have 110 tutors giving remedial training to children who scored low on last year's test. Miss Haley said. The tutors, she said, are fully qualified teachers.

Similar programs are being started by other school systems in the state with emphasis on identifying children who are apt to need help and giving them remedial work before November, when the first round of testing begins.

They're also gearing up for more remedial work after the test results are known.

But Asheville schools are thinking even further ahead, requiring an additional high school math course for all students. Other school systems may follow suit.

Dr. James Adams, superintendent of the Winston-Salem-Forsyth County schools, said his system has a two-phase program geared to the test.

"The first phase is to do everything we can to make sure children pass the test, and the second phase is to give remedial training to those with poor test scores," he said.

In the first phase, the schools will try to identify students who are likely to fail and give them diagnostic tests "to pinpoint their weaknesses." He said 10 extra teachers are being hired to help regular teachers give remedial training to these children.

Teachers will also receive inservice training on how to incorporate math training into such courses as home economics and consumer education.

In phase two, Adams said many students will be rescheduled into special remedial classes and a summer school program for remedial training will be set up.

Later, he said, the Winston-Salem-Forsyth system will consider adding another math course to the required list because "children in high school don't elect a lot of math."

"We have been working this summer in order to prepare for the testing program by having teachers try to identify students who might be considered high risks and we have built into the schedule time slots for remedial courses," said Janice Ressegger, a guidance counselor with the Guilford County schools.

"We have employed two additional teachers, one to work in math and one in language arts for remedial work," said Dr. Donald Jones, superintendent of the Asheville school system. Children there scored "a little above the state average" on the trial run competency test last spring even though 37 percent of its students are black and many are low income.

Dr. Ben Brooks, superintendent of the Durham city schools, which are predominantly black, has said that the children in his system need more time to get ready before a passing score on the competency test is a prerequisite for a high school diploma. But, ready or not, the state is going to make that requirement apply to the 1980 graduates.

Brooks said that in his schools, the results of achievement tests given ninth graders last year are being used to identify children who "are likely to have trouble with the competency tests and we are putting these children into remedial classes."

He said that some elementary school teachers will be used to administer the remedial training because "it is easier to move elementary teachers up than retrain high school teachers who are subject matter oriented."

Dr. Kenneth Newbold,

superintendent of the Greensboro city schools, said his system would emphasize training in "test taking skills" for pupils generally. "For students we identify as high risk, we are going to take the $85,000 we're getting from the state for remedial work to hire some additional personnel to do some supplementary teaching."

"The goal we are seeking is to get the highest number possible to pass the test," added Newbold who said the Greensboro children scored above the state average on the test last spring, but "we still did not do as well as we would have liked, especially with our minority children."

Wake County school officials said they planned to make remedial math lessons a part of some other high school courses, from social studies to business and vocational education and some basic math and English courses will place more emphasis on problems similar to those on the test.

"We in math will be working closely with people in reading, social studies and vocational education," said Barbara D.

Rogers, math director for the Wake County system. "Remediation will be the responsibility of every discipline."

Will Ask For Remedial Funds

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — To help high school students who fail their first attempt at the statewide competency test in November, the state Board of Education has agreed to ask the General Assembly for an extra $15 million next year.

The competency test will be given to high school juniors this fall for the first time. Three additional opportunities to pass the test will be given those who fail. If they continue to fail, they will not receive their diplomas upon graduation.

The legislature appropriated $4.4 million this year for special tutoring for students who need help for this year's test, but it is generally agreed that this isn't enough.

The $15 million would be for the 1979-80 and 1980-81 school years, and it is doubtful whether even that much would be enough.

"I do not know how much we will need," said state School Board Chairman H. David Bruton.

State school officials estimate that one fourth of all children in grades 7-12 will need some remedial help in order to pass. The school board decided on the remedial funding request at a special meeting Sunday. In other action, the board:

—Proposed that class size be reduced to a maximum of 26 students in grades 4-8 over the next two years. The maximum now ranges from 33 to 35 students.

—Decided to ask the legislature for $124.3 million to implement recommendations of a legislative study committee last April, including reduced class size, more principals and more counselors.

—Proposed a total increase of $288 million in the present $1 billion annual public school budget during the 1979-81 biennium.

Die In Flash Flood

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Monsoon rains flooded numerous low-lying communities in four Indian states during the weekend, and 25 people have died of cholera in one flooded district, Katihar, 210 miles north of Calcutta, the United News of India reported.

At least 500 people are reported to have died in India since the floods began.
