D. C. Bill Passes Senate

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — With two key victories in hand, supporters of congressional voting representation for the 700,000 residents of the urban, largely black District of Columbia are striking out for state capitals where they still must win 38 contests.

After Senate passage Tuesday night — the vote was 67-32, just one more than needed — the constitutional amendment is on its way through the ratification process, and President Carter is taking the lead. Other supporters of the measure pledge a massive drive to win ratification.

As the Senate joined the House in opening the way for voting rights for the city, Carter conceded winning ratification by three-fourths (38) of the states would be a "difficult task."

The House had passed the amendment in March. It does not require the signature of the president.

"The ratification process for every constitutional amendment is naturally difficult and time consuming. But we cannot let this opportunity to ensure human rights at home slip away," Carter said in a statement issued by the White House. The president was vacationing in Idaho when the measure passed.

In a separate statement, Vice President Walter Mondale said, "The president and I both commit the resources of the executive branch to this effort since ratification of this amendment is one of our highest priorities."

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., who led the fight for Senate approval, said he would do "everything in my power to aid" in gaining ratification within the prescribed seven-year time limit.

Opponents of the measure said legislatures were unlikely to approve, partly because it would enhance urban voting strength in Congress at the expense of rural and small-town areas.

Two Youths Slain In N. Y.

New York Police say between 20 and 30 detectives have been assigned investigation of the murders of a 13-year-old Brooklyn boy and his seven-year-old sister whose mother is originally from Robersonville.

Police said Mrs. Thelma Little Kelly, 38, called first her sister who lived across the street and then police when she could not wake seven-year-old LaShawn Saturday morning. The child had been strangled and sexually abused, the medical examiner said.

Thirteen-year-old Gregory Kelly was missing from his bed. A police search located his body hanging in the motor room of a rooftop elevator less than a block from the apartment. The medical examiner said he, too, had been sexually abused.

Mrs. Kelly, a widow who works as a hotel housekeeper, told police the children were sleeping safely in their beds when she retired Friday night. She said she was sleeping in another room of the fifth-floor apartment in the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn and heard nothing.

Police surmise that one or more intruders entered the apartment either with a key which Mrs. Kelly said she had lost or by lowering themselves from the roof of the seven-story building and entering a bedroom window.

Mrs. Kelly, who had one other child, a 17-year-old daughter who lives with her grandmother near Robersonville, is due to arrive in Martin County tomorrow. The children's funeral is tentatively set for Saturday in Robersonville.

Guerrillas Free Some Hostages

By JUAN MALTES
Associated Press Writer

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Left-wing guerrillas who shot to the National Palace in a bloody surprise attack freed women and children hostages this morning but continued to hold more than 100 government officials and legislators.

Among the hostages taken in the Tuesday attack were a nephew and cousin of President Anastasio Somoza. It was not immediately clear whether either was released.

National guard spokesman Col. Aquiles Arada Escobar said the guerrillas had released "many women and children," but he declined to say how many were freed.

Three Roman Catholic bishops were trying to mediate a peaceful end to the stand-off. The guerrillas, in a statement released to reporters, demanded the release of all political prisoners, estimated at more than 120, safe conduct out of the country for those freed and for themselves, and $10 million in cash.

More than 100 soldiers of the national guard, Nicaragua's army, spread out in a 10-block area around the palace. Other guardsmen in jeeps and armored personnel carriers set up roadblocks on highways leading out of Managua and patrolled city streets.

A score of Sandinista National Liberation Front guerrillas stormed the palace, which houses many government offices and both houses of Congress, during a session of the Chamber of Deputies Tuesday afternoon. The raiders wore uniforms similar to those of the national guard.

Presidential spokesman Archibaldo Arostegui said four soldiers were killed and at least six wounded in the attack. The Red Cross reported one of the hostages telephoned and said there were 15 injured.

The 52-year-old president, whose heavily guarded offices are elsewhere, was not in the palace at the time. But Jose Somoza Abrego, the president's nephew whose father is acting commander of the national guard, and Luis Pallais Debayle, a cousin who is deputy speaker of the lower house, were among those taken hostage. Arostegui said.

White House Is Rotating

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House isn't sinking. But it does appear to be rotating.

So say preliminary findings from a survey team that spent five days last month in a routine check of the presidential mansion's foundation.

The rotation is barely measurable, and even if confirmed through further checking is no cause for immediate alarm.

Charles T. Whalen, an official of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's geodetic survey, said his findings indicate that the southwest corner of the White House, adjacent to the Rose Garden, has sunk five one-hundredths of an inch since a 1971 survey.

But at the same time the northeast corner, on the left to a person facing the building from Pennsylvania Avenue, has risen about the same distance.

"This would really indicate that you're having a slight rotation about an axis which would run through the southeast and northwest corners of the White House," Whalen said.

He said the apparent rotation could be a result of normal settling following the extensive renovation of the presidential mansion during the Truman administration.

Even if the movement continues, it would not necessarily cause cracks in the walls, provided the settling continues as evenly as it apparently has so far, Whalen said.

He stressed that the movements were so slight as to be barely measurable with the precision leveling devices used in such work.

"This would be a preliminary look at it," he said. "We have to take a harder look at the data."

Similar surveys, taken in 1955, 1971 and 1974 had shown no detectable settling since the original renovation in 1949-52, Whalen said.

Experts Say Conclave Will Pick By Monday

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Experts estimate that the conclave of Roman Catholic cardinals will elect a successor to Pope Paul VI by Monday, the third day of balloting.

"We look for a peaceable conclave," said Msgr. George

Leonard, an aide to Cardinal Basil Hume of England. "There are no vibrations of tensions or feelings boiling up. It should be over by lunchtime Monday."

Although the 11 conclaves held in the last 150 years averaged about 11 days, the six previous ones in the 20th century averaged only three days of balloting. The shortest was in 1939, when Pius XII was elected in one day, but he went into the conclave the big favorite. No one is in that position this time.

Leonard spoke at a news conference along with the Rev. Paul Boyle, superior general of the Passionist Fathers, and two Jesuits, the Revs. Vincent O'Keefe and Donal Campion.

"Without sign of struggle and without the likelihood of the cardinals getting into a situation in which small swing votes become controlling, I would also guess it would be over by noon Monday," said Campion.

The cardinals will be locked into the conclave area of the Apostolic Palace after a prayer service and procession Friday afternoon. Voting four times a day will begin Saturday.

There had been some speculation earlier that the voting would be prolonged, due to the widely expanded international representation among the cardinals, the lack of an outstanding favorite and the controversy among the church's rank and file over such issues as the ban on artificial contraception, priestly celibacy and modernization of the church ritual.

But comments from several cardinals indicated a general middle-ground accord among them, an agreement on firm adherence to doctrine but with latitude in methods of applying it.

Cardinal Terence Cooke of New York reported a "very brotherly and friendly atmosphere" and said: "We're all hopeful that the conclave will not be prolonged, but I wouldn't want to be a prophet."

"We know each other better than has been the case in past conclaves," said Cardinal John Darden of Detroit. "Because of the new multiple contacts, we have more personal acquaintance and understanding of each other's judgments about various matters."

Although the Vatican Curia guards its figures on the cost of the conclave as zealously as it guards the Vatican's budget, some experts estimate it will cost about $5,500 a day after the doors are locked.

Six Items For Council

The City Council will consider six items of business on Thursday night, Aug. 24, when it reconvenes the recessed meeting of Aug. 10.

The key item on the agenda for the meeting involves the introduction of a bond order by the Council and calling for a public hearing on the bond order on Sept. 7.

Other business items include: authorization for the city clerk to amend Section VI of Resolution 424 which was adopted by the Council on Aug. 10; consideration of the proposed alignment of 14th Street from Dickinson Avenue to a point some 120 feet north of the center line of the existing Farmville Boulevard;

Consideration of a recommendation of the Traffic Commission to install a traffic signal at the intersection of Third and Tyson Streets;

Consideration of a budget amendment to provide funds for minor remodeling of the first floor of city hall; and consideration of a budget amendment to provide funds to renovate the Moyewood Family and Day Care Center.

The reconvened Council session is scheduled for 7 p.m.

Waterfall, Rapids Lie Ahead For Carter During River Trip

By MAUREEN SANTINI
Associated Press Writer

ALONG THE SALMON RIVER, Idaho (AP) — The seven-foot Tappan waterfall and rough rapids lay ahead as President Carter began his second day in a black rubber raft on the primitive Salmon River.

The first family's raft was heading for the rough water shortly after breaking camp today on the banks of the river's Middle Fork.

Carter, his wife, Rosalynn, and their children, Amy, Jack and Chip, set out on their three-day glide down an isolated, 80-mile section of river early Tuesday.

Except for a few brief bursts of sunlight, the first day's journey of 30 miles was marred by overcast skies that gave way frequently to rain, drizzle and hail in the 60-degree weather.

The trip — billed as a private, family vacation — began with a flourish as the denim-clad first family shoved off in the midst of a group of five, 20-foot rafts.

During the day, the Carters fished, catching three cutthroat trout which were thrown back into the clean, shallow water. Later there was a coffee break at the only lodge in the area when the cold rain interrupted the fun.

With Secret Service agents in the lead, the second craft carried Phil Wise, White House appointments secretary; Robert Peterson, the president's military aide; Jack Kightlinger, a White House photographer, and Bill Guth, a partner in the raft company that outfitted the trip. Third in line was the presidential raft, Norman Guth, coowner of the raft company, acted as boatman. His 11-year-old daughter, Mira, was along to keep 10-year-old Amy company.

Following close behind was a fourth raft carrying Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus, his wife, Carol, and Dr. William Lukash, the president's physician.

Another raft for agents brought up the rear. The river was calm the first day, except for a few white rapids. Stretching about 100 feet across, the clear water flows between mountains dotted with yellow and ponderosa pines and firs. At different points, there were mallards flying low near the shore and golden eagles soaring above the trees.

The party is moving down the river at about 5 mph — about one-third the pace possible in spring, when he river depth reaches an average of six feet and the trip becomes more dangerous.

Paula Guth, wife of Bill Guth, traveled ahead to set up camp for the first family after their long day's journey. The dinner menu included marinated beef roast, broiled on an open fire, baked potatoes with sour cream, tossed green salad, broccoli and oatmeal cake, she said.

Mrs. Guth said the same dinner is served other rafters who pay $300 a person to make the trip. Her sister-in-law, Kaye Guth of Salmon, declined Tuesday to say how much the Carters paid for the trip.

A HOTLINE APPEAL

PUT IN WRONG CAR

Twelve to 24 gospel song books owned by Mrs. Mamie Gardner of 1306 N. Pitt Street here were mistakenly put in a car that looked similar to hers Sunday afternoon. The car, believed to be a maroon Chevrolet with a tan top, was parked at English Chapel Church on the 264 Bypass at the time. The books are in a black briefcase. Mrs. Gardner is a musician and is in need of these books. Her address is 1306 N. Pitt Street; her phone number, 758-4010. Previous inquiries and advertisements have brought no results, her son, Calvin, said.

A HOTLINE FEEDBACK

"EXCELLENT" RESPONSE

The Make America Beautiful Committee of the Greenville-Pitt County Board of Realtors says response to the recent Hotline appeal for items for a benefit yard sale for the Greenville Rescue Squad was "excellent."

"Garden clubs, churches, community leaders and many, many others made donations," the group indicated, adding that $955 was made during the Saturday sale.

ERA Would Give Dad A Chance

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My wife works the 4 p.m. to midnight shift. She got into the habit of going dancing and drinking every night after work with two of her girlfriends. She'd get home at 3 or 4 in the morning, and when I complained, she said she hadn't done anything wrong. I told her I was afraid it might lead to something, and sure enough it did. She started staying out all night.

Abby, we have two kids, 5 and 9, and I didn't think she was acting like a proper mother. Finally, she got tired of my criticism and she filed for divorce. I was told she could get a divorce, plus I would have to give her our mobile home and pay child support, which would just about keep me broke.

Is there a chance that I can get custody of my kids? What about a man's rights? I love my kids as much as she does, and I'm a better father to them than she is a mother.

I can't afford to hire a lawyer to fight her. I'm 31 and she's 30. I live in Lee County, Ala., where a man doesn't stand a chance in a divorce case.

Please help me.

J.M.

DEAR J.M.: Get in touch with your local Legal Aid Society if you can't afford to engage a lawyer. Your situation is a classic example of why we need the Equal Rights Amendment. MEN are entitled to equal rights with women. In some states (yours especially) men are discriminated against.

DEAR ABBY: The other night my husband and I were guests for the first time at the home of a couple we had recently met. We caught a glimpse of their lovely living room as they ushered us into their "family room" in the back of the house, where we were entertained.

We have a family room, too, but we always entertain our guests in the living room.

What is it with people nowadays that they put you in a room with broken-down furniture, or worse yet, take you downstairs to the "recreation room," and save their living room for display purposes only?

How do you feel about this trend, Abby?

SICK OF FAMILY ROOMS

DEAR SICK: Frankly, if the company is good, I don't care where I sit, as long as a dog doesn't come and sit on my lap.

DEAR ABBY: I have been a secretary for many years and have always dressed conservatively as I was taught to do in business school.

Recently I have been in offices where some young female employees wear see-through blouses, backless dresses, even strapless dresses and bare midriff outfits that would be appropriate for the beach. And pants are OK, except those that are so tight they show every curve and line of a woman's anatomy. (Enough said?)

Am I out of step with the times, Abby? Or has common sense and simple modesty gone out the office window?

OLD-TIMER

DEAR OLD-TIMER: Unfortunately, common sense is still very uncommon in some quarters. Some offices have a dress code. But many that don't, should have.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple do-your-own-thing ceremony, get Abby's new booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Dail-Calhoun Vows Spoken

BETHESDA, MD.— Laura Louise Calhoun of St. Andrews, Tenn., and Edward Louis Dail of Knoxville, Tenn., were married Aug. 12 9:30 p.m. at the Bethesda Presbyterian Church here. Talmadge Haynes officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Calhoun of Bethesda, Md. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Dail Sr. of Winterville.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Linda Doderidge of Annapolis, Md., served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Bettie Wade of Ayden, sister of the bridegroom, Anna Dail of Winterville, sister of the bridegroom, Allison Andrews of Stanford, Calif., Nancy Lee Petrowski of Lewisburg, W. Va., and Terri Peat of Atlanta, Ga.

Kathy and Karen Dail of Winterville and Kristie Wade of Ayden, nieces of the bridegroom, served as flower girls. Kevin Wade of Ayden, nephew of the bridegroom, served as ring bearer.

Ashley Dail of Winterville served as his brother's best man. Ushers were Dr. Gary Riggs of Augusta, Ga., John Riggs of Winston-Salem, David Grant of Renton, Wash., and Chris Calhoun of Hilton Head Island, S. C., brother of the bride.

Mrs. John L. Ward, organist, and Diane Shield, soloist, provided the nuptial music.

A reception was held at the Bethesda Women's Club. A light supper was served and guests were entertained by the Regis Noel Band.

After a wedding trip to the Outer Banks of North Carolina, the couple will reside in Richmond, Va.

The bride is a graduate of Davidson College where she received her bachelor's degree in art. She has just completed a year of teaching math at St. Andrews School, Tenn. The bridegroom is a graduate of Davidson College, where he received his bachelor's degree. He received his master's of teaching degree from Duke University and another bachelor's degree in architecture from the University of Tennessee. He is employed as an architectural project manager with Heilig-Meyers, Richmond, Va.

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

Associated Press Food Editor

Regional American food customs never cease to fascinate me. Maybe you, too. Brought up in Canada as I was, I had never heard of any jelly other than mint being regularly offered with lamb. But recently a friend said, after a Florida visit, that lime jelly is often substituted in that state for the mint. Floridians also serve the lime jelly with hot muffins or as a spread for toast.

The following recipe for lime jelly was adapted from one used by a Dade County, Fla., extension home economist. You might want to make some of the jelly during August when limes are in peak supply. If you use the optional food coloring, the jelly will be a pretty green, and you may want to save some of the jars for Christmas entertaining and/or holiday gifts. Minus the food coloring, my jelly was a light amber color.

LIME JELLY

6 to 8 medium-size limes, at room temperature 1 1/4 cups water
4 cups sugar 1/2 of a 6-ounce bottle

liquid fruit pectin, see Note below
Green food coloring, if desired

Roll each lime between the palm of your hand and a counter to loosen the pulp so you will get as much juice as possible from it. Grate the rind from 5 of the limes. Squeeze the juice from as many of the limes as necessary to measure 1 1/4 cup. Stir together the lime rind, the lime juice and the water: let stand for 10 minutes. Pour into a jelly cloth or bag and squeeze out the liquid. Measure 2 1/2 cups of this liquid into a 4 or 5 quart saucepot. Thoroughly stir in the sugar.

Over high heat, stirring constantly, bring to a boil. At once stir in the pectin; stirring constantly, bring to full rolling boil and boil hard for 1 minute. Remove from the heat. With a metal spoon, skim off the foam. It used, stir in a few drops of the green food coloring. Quickly ladle into hot, sterilized jelly glasses. At once cover with 1-inch hot paraffin.

Makes 4 1/2 cups, enough for six 6-ounce jelly glasses.

Note: Liquid fruit pectin is now available (in some areas) in foil pouches, two to a 6-ounce package. In this recipe, one pouch of the pectin may be substituted for the 1/2 of a 6-ounce bottle called for.

The orientation session included workshops for the various chapter officers, general session, N. C. division board meeting and luncheon.

Members participating from Greenville were Margie Davis, president of the local group, Janie Radford, vice president, Helen Rollins, recording secretary, and Judith Wilson, treasurer.

Secretaries To Meet Monday

The Greenville Chapter of the National Secretaries Association will meet Monday at the Three Steers. Dinner will be served at 6:15 p.m. followed by a meeting at seven o'clock.

Mail Strike Threat Grows

By STEVEN R. HURST
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A major postal union, which rejected a proposed contract, will ask for federal mediation in an effort to avert a national strike, a high-ranking official of the union said today.

The 181,000-member National Association of Letter Carriers rejected the tentative contract by a 4-3 margin.

But the union will ask the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service to seek renegotiations with the U.S. Postal Service, said the union official, who asked that he not be identified.

In rejecting the pact, the letter carriers union may force two other postal unions to ignore their ratification votes regardless of the outcome. Counts by the two other unions are expected by the end of the week.

The constitution of the letter carriers union calls for new negotiations to begin in five days of a contract rejection. If the Postal Service will not renegotiate, as it has promised, then union president J. Joseph Vacca is empowered to call a national strike.

He also could call a strike if the new negotiations are not completed within 15 days, according to the constitution.

Vacca was unavailable for comment today with his office saying he was "in a meeting."

A letter carriers walkout could lead to strikes by the rest of the more than 500,000 unionized postal workers. James T. Schaefer, letter carriers national vice president, said on July 31 that the three unions had agreed not to put the contract into effect if any one union votes against it.

Votes from the 299,000-member American Postal Workers Union and the 36,000-member Mail Handlers Division of the Laborers' International Union have not yet been tabulated. The APWU ballots had a Tuesday midnight deadline, a spokesman said.

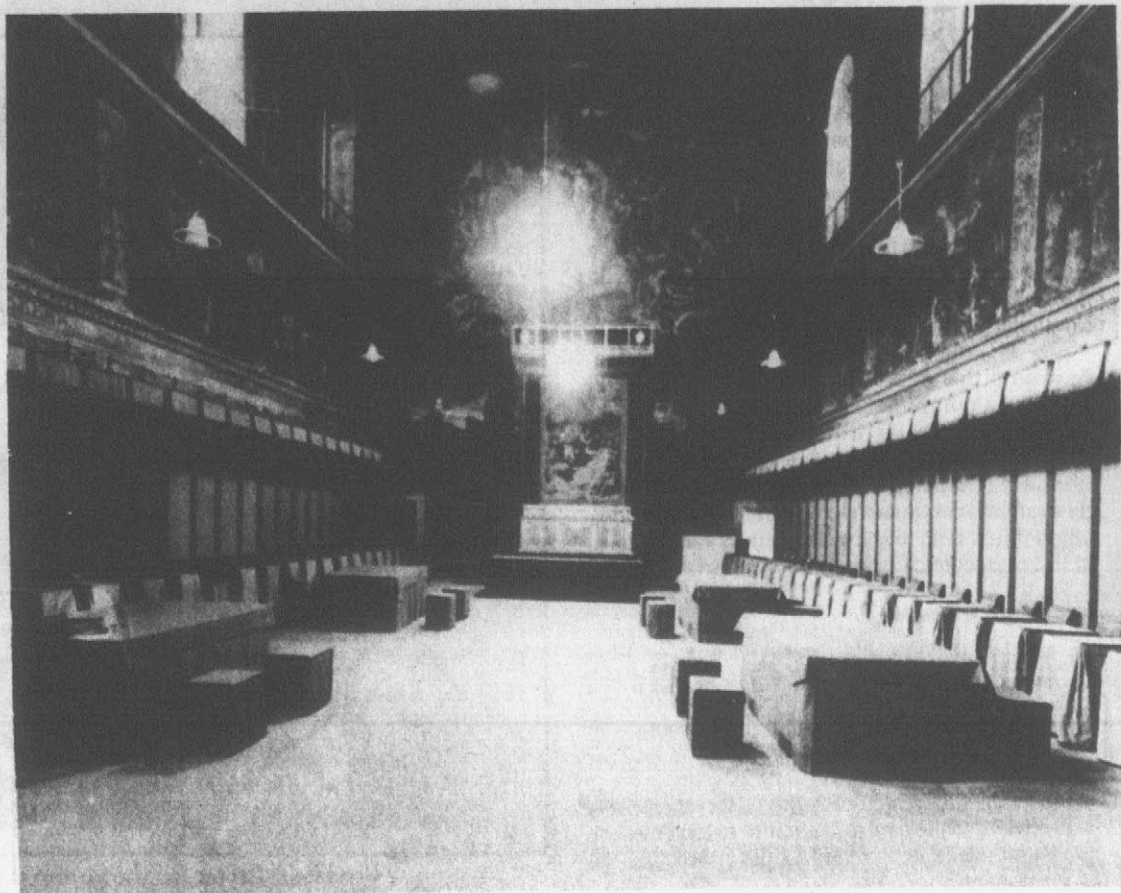

The pact rejected by the letter carriers called for a 19.5 percent pay increase and cost-of-living benefits over three years.

The agreement would continue a clause forbidding layoffs, which union leaders said was the main issue during the three months of negotiations.

A letter carriers source, who asked not to be named, said the union would ask the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service to seek renegotiations with the U.S. Postal Service. But the service is not bound to honor the request.

Postmaster General William F. Bolger has said the contract talks would not be reopened. "We have completed our negotiations," he said earlier this month.

Federal law, which makes a strike by postal workers illegal, provides for government mediators to name a fact-finding panel to recommend a solution in case of union rejection. If there is still no agreement, the law provides for binding arbitration by a separate panel.

Hunt Unhappy Over Slowness

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Administration insiders say Gov. Jim Hunt is unhappy at the slow pace of state Health Director Jacob Koomen's response to alerting or examining victims of toxic chemical spills earlier this month.

The News and Observer of Raleigh quotes a Hunt advisor as complaining that officials at the public health agency "don't get up and do anything. They take a pat-pat-on-the-head approach."

Although rural Johnston County residents complained of weakening, nausea, diarrhea, dizziness and cramps shortly after the PCB-laced spills were discovered, state epidemiologist Martin P. Hines, who acted as Koomen's spokesman, insisted that no significant health hazard existed.

A week later, Hines maintained that a health survey of spill areas was unnecessary.

Publicly, Hunt has backed the stance of state health officials over the problem.

"I think we made an adequate response here," he said at his weekly press conference last week.

He announced last Thursday that leaflets explaining PCB hazards for livestock and people would be hand-delivered to all exposed residents.

Hines is awaiting the results of a batch of blood tests he decided to make after Hunt became involved in the situation.

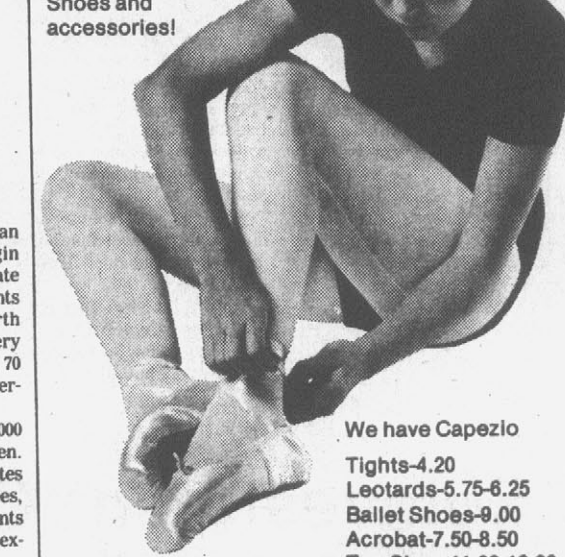

"If there wasn't a health problem," said one source quoted by the News and Observer, "there sure was a public information problem."

Koomen Monday defended his Division of Health Services, which is also helping to find sites to dispose of the PCB-contaminated soil that will be scraped from 270 miles of North Carolina roadsides.

"I have superior subordinates," Koomen said. "Martin Hines is among the most honored epidemiologists in the land."

"We have a long-established machinery for dealing with different kinds of spills," he said. "We first of all wanted to ensure that there was no public panic."

18,000 At State U.

RALEIGH — More than 18,000 students will begin classes at North Carolina State University on Monday. Students come from all 100 North Carolina counties, most every state, and from more than 70 foreign countries for the university's 90th school year.

Of the 18,000, upwards of 3,000 students will be freshmen. Another 3,000 will be candidates for master's and Ph.D. degrees, and about a third of the students will be women — at one time excluded from the university.

Minority enrollment is expected to be up significantly. It is estimated the number of blacks in the freshmen class will be about 200, compared to 150 last fall. Overall, black enrollment now nears the 1,000 mark.

This fall for the first time, the School of Design's new addition, a $2 million, 37,000 square-foot facility, will be open. Also, the old State Capital Insurance Company building on Hillsborough Street is being completely renovated to create new space for the university computing center and for other purposes.

Assassination Plot Studied

The Warren Commission long ago officially closed the Kennedy assassination case with the conclusion that the fatal bullets were fired by Lee Harvey Oswald, acting alone.

The doubts have remained all these years, however, and perhaps they will always be there. At any rate, concern about the assassination recently prompted the House Select Committee on Assassinations to order a re-enactment of the rifle fire in Dealey Plaza, Dallas where President Kennedy was shot in 1963.

The area was sealed off and police marksmen were stationed in the old Texas School Book Depository to fire shots into sandbags on the street.

Significantly additional shots were fired from a grassy knoll where some believe another gunman was active on the day Kennedy was killed. A tape made through a policeman's open microphone on the infamous day gives some evidence of a possible fourth shot, as opposed to three reported by the Warren Commission. The authorities are now trying to duplicate the conditions under which the original tape was made for comparative purposes.

It is doubtful there has ever been an investigation more thorough than that conducted by the Warren Commission into the presidential assassination. Yet there are doubts, and questions about a conspiracy continue to surface. As long as there are new points raised we suppose that Congress should continue to look into any possibilities which might tend to show that others were involved in a presidential assassination plot.

Tiny Plant Holds Up Highway To Va.

A little plant, on the endangered species list, is holding up construction of a $10 million southeastern bypass of Suffolk, Va.

The road, if it is built, could mean a better route for people in our area traveling to the Tidewater Virginia area.

The alternative to destroying the rare plant life would be moving the planned highway route — or abandoning the project entirely.

It is a good example of some of the choices we will have to make as we attempt to extend modern facilities, while at the same time protecting the environment.

THIS AFTERNOON

Another Tax Scheme

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—The tax people don't want to be license tag sellers, and the tag sellers don't want to collect taxes. The officials in Raleigh at the Division of Motor Vehicles figure it's hard enough trying to keep the records straight on vehicle plates without complicating matters, and county tax collectors don't have the time or manpower to compare license plate lists with tax lists.

The end result: North Carolina counties and cities are still getting beat out of a lot of local property tax money by people who either don't bother to list their cars, or deliberately list them erroneously so a lower tax is levied.

In an effort to resolve the stalemate, a study committee of the General Assembly is now considering some system of providing a colored sticker on the windshield to indicate that local property taxes have been paid on the particular vehicle.

This, of course, would make policemen the tax collectors, opponents argue.

and only further clutter up the driver's view.

Six Years After six years of argument, it appears the dilemma is no closer to solution than ever.

Members of the Property Tax Study Commission chaired by State Rep. Bob Jones, D-Rutherford, plan to pursue the matter of a sticker despite early signals of a number of problems. Here, briefly, is how that proposal would work:

The vehicle's owner would be given the appropriate colored sticker for that year by the local tax supervisor when local property taxes are paid. License plates would still be gotten in the same manner from the Division of Motor Vehicles without any relationship to whether property taxes were paid.

Then, if the police see a car not displaying the proper sticker a citation would be issued charging the driver with failing to pay his local property taxes.

Experts are warning of numerous problems in that: police have enough to do without trying to enforce a property tax measure; would the driver or the owner receive the citation; if a lawman in Watauga County spots a Dare County car without a sticker, would he or the local court care; what would keep taxpayers from erroneously listing a lower priced vehicle, or even getting stickers from junked cars?

BILL NOBLITT

Overcoming some of these problems would require taxpayers to appear in person at a special time of the year to report their vehicles and get numbered stickers (an alternative under discussion).

That raises numerous other problems, including added paperwork and bother to taxpayers, need for more personnel in the tax offices, a cumbersome filing system and the continuing potential for fraud.

Dragging On The subject of how to collect vehicle taxes has been the subject of one of the General Assembly's longest running and most controversial arguments. It has been proposed that the state collect the tax when license plates are sold then return the money to local governments; that local tag dealers collect the tax when they register the vehicles; or that local tax collectors become the license plate agents. Opponents to change have been outspoken, including auto dealers who fear they would become tax collectors at time of sale, and plain citizens who see any system putting added burdens on them.

Rep. Jones continues to press the matter, however, convinced that some system is essential to curbing a widespread practice which is costing local governments as much as $25 million a year.

Some counties compare state and local lists to catch cheaters, others don't. It is common for thousands of vehicle owners to take a chance on not getting caught, or to list vehicles in a county which they know doesn't cross check.

I Am Being Followed

(Art Buchwald is on assignment for a few weeks trying to find out if there are any Cuban troops on Cape Cod. He left behind his all-time favorite columns.)

WASHINGTON — For the past 20 years I have been followed by a man I have never met or even seen. This man, for some reason I still haven't figured out, is determined to see that no matter where I go, I don't get any sleep.

It doesn't make any difference how secret I keep my movements, he always manages to find out where I'm going and then he either gets the hotel room above me or next to me and goes to work.

At first I thought it was an accident when he appeared, but now I am sure he really has it in for me, though for the life of me I cannot figure out why.

In the meantime I've been accumulating bits and pieces of information on him, and I know quite a bit about him and his habits, which may eventually lead me to his identity.

For example, I know he wears a large-size shoe, possibly a 10 or 11. I discovered this seven years ago when I stayed at the Savoy Hotel in London, and he had the room above me. Every morning at 2 or 3 he came in and dropped his shoes heavily on the floor two or three times, to make sure I was awake.

I know he smokes a lot, because five years ago at the Georges V Hotel in Paris he started coughing every night at midnight and didn't stop until 7 o'clock in the morning.

He always carries a hammer with him, and every chance he gets he starts hammering nails into the wall. But if he gets the room above me, he prefers to hammer tacks into the carpet.

Once in Geneva, during the Big Four conference, the only accommodation he could get was a room three floors above me, so he started hammering on a hot-water pipe.

He's a very sneaky person, and when I leave word with the telephone operator, after a particularly late night, that I don't want any telephone calls, he calls up anyway and pretends he wants to speak to a person in another room.

I know he owns a dog because once when I was on the QEII he had the dog bark during the entire voyage.

ART BUCHWALD

He always seems to have a great deal of money. Two years ago I was staying at the Hotel Pierre in New York City, and he couldn't get in, so he bought a pneumatic drill and started drilling a hole in the street below my window at 8 o'clock in the morning. Another time he bought a motor scooter in St. Tropez and sent his 18-year-old son out to rev it up all night long.

Several times he's had friends in California call him long distance at 3:30 in the morning, and then he pretends he can't hear them and starts screaming at the top of his voice. Occasionally he turns up the volume of his radio until I start banging on the wall, which is his cue to start banging back.

The reason I am writing about him now is he's turned up in Chicago at the Drake Hotel, and this time he's brought along his wife. They're in the next room, and they've been fighting with each other ever since I got here. I don't know if it's an act or whether they really hate each other, but the language they use at 3 o'clock in the morning is something frightening to hear.

When he isn't screaming at his wife he's watching the late night movie "Tora, Tora, Tora."

But this time he's gone too far. If his wife doesn't do it first, I am going to kill him with my bare hands.

Lots Of Action

By JAY PERKINS

Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — Watching the House in action is something like observing a centipede — there's lots of action for so little forward movement.

But even a centipede can move briskly once it spies a juicy morsel.

And the juiciest morsel of all to the House is its recess — or, as they prefer to call it, the district home work period.

So it was this past week in Congress.

On Monday, the House worked until 9 p.m., debating and finally passing a $7.1 billion foreign aid bill.

Tuesday, it spent seven hours debating before deciding to grant supporters of the proposed Equal Rights Amendment another three Several motions relative to traffic safety were presented and endorsed in a special meeting of the Greenville Board of Aldermen.

When school opens for the ensuing fall term, a police officer will be stationed at the Training, Third Street and West Greenville schools during the lunch hour and when the regular school day recesses for the afternoon.

Superintendent J. H. Rose and assistant Scout Executive George W. Thomason will be approached with the plan of organizing Scout patrols to station the schools to promote traffic safety.

If this program is perfected members of the patrol would have badges to identify themselves with the safety unit.

Greenville's police committee was ordered to employ a special officer to regulate traffic conditions and check the number of speed violations.

Another motion was introduced and adopted, which calls for putting identification lettering on police cars and other publicly owned motor vehicles.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Brown Vs. Carter

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — While playing the good soldier publicly, Defense Secretary Harold Brown has confided to top Democrats in Congress that he wishes the president had chosen another way to stop the controversial nuclear-powered carrier short of vetoing the defense authorization bill.

This private word from Brown shows again that Mr. Carter cannot keep his top officials at his side when he overrides their own advice in critically important decisions. Brown favored the "recission" route: impounding the carrier funds, with Congress having power to order their spending in a separate vote.

Besides incurring Brown's private displeasure, the president rankled senior Democrats on the House Armed Services Committee by inviting one of the committee's most junior members — Rep. Bob Carr of Michigan — to the White House Aug. 17. Present were House Democratic leaders plus the committee's top Democrats — but not Rep. Charles Bennett of Florida, chairman of the seapower subcommittee. That alone was strange; the reason for the veto was to strip the nuclear carrier out of the bill.

Instead of Bennett, committee leaders were amazed to see second-termer Carr, the committee's toughest critic of the nuclear carrier. Carr's amendment to strip the carrier from the bill lost on the House floor by a humiliating 293 to 106 — a vote that some senior members say reflected Carr's personal popularity.

Rebuffing Carter's Bid The Carter administration's first attempt to recruit a former Nixon-Ford luminary failed when retired Lt. Gen. Brent Scowcroft, national security adviser in the Ford White House, rejected an offer to negotiate European troop reductions with the Russians in Vienna.

Up to now, President Carter has systematically ignored policymakers from previous Republican administrations, even such nonpartisan figures as Scowcroft. But Secretary of State Cyrus Vance got White House approval to offer the negotiating post to Scowcroft when it was vacated by Stanley Resor, who became a deputy defense secretary.

Scowcroft considered the offer, then turned it down. An intimate of former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, Scowcroft disagrees with Mr. Carter on many of his political-military policies.

Muzzling Bosworth? Fear inside the White House over the alleged muzzling of Barry Bosworth as the administration's chief jawboner on the wage front was reflected in the swift reaction to a Republican attack by Rep. John Anderson of Illinois.

Anderson, chairman of the House Republican caucus, charged that creation of a new wage committee led by Secretary of Labor Ray Marshall was a "muzzling" of

Public Forum

Letters submitted for Public Forum must be limited to 300 words.

To the editor:

Recently two very important decisions were made that should have significant impact on the human rights movement in our nation — the Supreme Court's Bakke decision and the Baptist Commitment to Human Rights in Atlanta.

Although I was disappointed at first with the Supreme Court's ruling in the Bakke Case, it may be the best thing that has happened for race relations in recent years. During the past 20 years the Courts and Federal Government have been called upon far too often to solve problems that would never have existed had people really wanted to do unto others as they would want done unto themselves. The Bakke decision could be saying to us — the court will not do what we must do and do on our own for others.

As the Supreme Court was backing off, the Baptists of our Nation were taking a giant step into the area of Human Rights. The Commitment for Human Rights made in Atlanta is long overdue. I feel the Human Rights movement in this Country would have been farther along had our Baptist churches been concerned as they now appear to be. This Commitment by our Southern Baptists denomination hopefully is just the start of many Commitments of Baptists throughout our Nation and North Carolina.

I am proud that our Baptist leadership inspired this bold step in Atlanta. I am hopeful that this Commitment will become our Commitment for North Carolina Baptists in Raleigh in November.

We have the kind of leadership in N. C. — both in government and in our churches — that can lead our State and Nation into a new Commitment to make Human Rights a personal goal for everyone.

Will Baptists pick up the torch in N. C.? We Baptists can lead our State and Nation into a new era with PAAP — Personal Affirmative Action People.

Strength For Today

A BASIC DOCTRINE

The doctrine of the atonement is basic to Christian faith, but it is sometimes hard for believers to understand.

Atonement is "at-one-ment" with God. It was brought into existence by the death of Christ on the cross. This action harmonized the relationship between God and man, which up to that time had been intermittent and chaotic. "By his stripes we are healed." "Christ died for our sins, according to the scriptures." "Him who knew no sin he made to be sin on our behalf; that we might become the righteousness of God in him."

In plain modern English these words mean that sin is a thing of such terrifying consequence that God was willing to undergo an infinite sacrifice Himself that the power of sin over men's hearts might be broken. The crucifixion of Christ represents the malignancy of sin, the love of God, and the earnestness with which God is seeking after the sinner soul of man

Dividend Reinvestment Growing

By CHET CURRIER AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Increasing numbers of American companies and their shareholders are taking part in a type of program that seems to have appeal for all concerned — the dividend reinvestment plan.

For the companies, faced with a sluggish market for sales of new stock, these plans provide a means of raising capital.

A prime example is American Telephone & Telegraph, the nation's most widely held corporation with close to 3 million shareowners, which reports that it raised $1 billion through its dividend-reinvestment program in 1976-77, and expects to see another $686 million this year.

For the investor, meanwhile, these optional plans typically offer a savings on the usual brokerage commissions. And recently some companies have added an extra feature, allowing the investor to buy stock at a 5 percent discount from the going market price.

Stockholders join such a plan by signing an agreement with the corporation authorizing it to invest all their dividends in additional shares rather than sending them the payouts in cash.

In a good many cases, they can also periodically invest additional money through the plan.

Like most "new ideas," this one has actually been around for a long time. Many mutual funds have offered automatic reinvestment programs for years.

But as Robert Ferris, senior staff executive at the New York firm of Georson & Co., which specializes in investor relations, points out, it is only in the last two to five years that the concept has caught on with corporate America.

"We've really just broken the ice so far," Ferris said.

Robert S. Salomon Jr., head of stock research at the investment firm of Salomon Brothers, estimated in a recent report that some 900 companies now have some sort of dividend reinvestment plan. Of these, the firm counted 43 that offer the 5 percent discount — about twice as many as there were a year ago.

At present it is estimated that only some 10 to 15 percent of the eligible dividends are being reinvested.

Delegation Divided On Whether Some Americans Are Still Held

By DENIS D. GRAY
Associated Press Writer

HANOI, Vietnam (AP)—The leader of a U.S. congressional delegation visiting Vietnam says he believes none of the Americans missing in the Vietnam War are still alive. But two others say they think some might still turn up.

Rep. G. V. Montgomery, D-Miss., head of the eight-member group, said Tuesday the Vietnamese are trying to resolve the MIA issue to clear a major stumbling block to normal relations with the United States, and that he believes none of the MIAs are alive.

But Rep. Sam G. Hall, D-Texas, said he had a "gut feeling somebody might still turn up." And Rep. W. Henson Moore, R-La., said he had not given up hope.

About 2,500 American servicemen are still unaccounted for in Indochina. All except 355 are listed as dead although their bodies were not recovered.

Premier Phan Van Dong told the congressmen that his government will give them the remains of 11 more U.S. servicemen as proof of its desire to establish full relations with the United States. Montgomery said a C141 Air Force transport will arrive in Hanoi Saturday to get the remains. In Washington, the Defense Department said they would be taken to Hawaii for examination and identification.

Montgomery said identities of the 11 would not be announced until the identification procedure in Hawaii was completed.

Since the end of the war in 1975, Hanoi has turned over the remains of 38 other Americans.

Dong also confirmed a report that Vietnam was dropping its demand for $3 billion in U.S. aid for postwar reconstruction. This had been reported following a meeting in Washington Aug. 7 of Vietnamese diplomats with State Department officials and members of Congress.

Montgomery and his group invited Dong and Vice Foreign Minister Phan Hien to visit the United States, and Montgomery said Hien accepted.

Montgomery said the Vietnamese were "frank and sincere" in their desire for normal relations, and Hien told the Americans at a reception, "Two years ago we would not have thought that it was possible but today the day of getting together has come."

Foreign Ministry spokesman Ngo Diem told U.S. reporters accompanying the congressional delegation that China is trying to get "everyone around them to follow their line," but the Vietnamese "are not the tools of any country, including the Soviet Union."

years and three months to get three recalcitrant states into their column.

And on Wednesday, it worked from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. deciding what federal budget limits it would impose upon itself for appropriations for the coming fiscal year.

But then came Thursday—the last day of work before House members marched off for a two-week respite.

The House passed 10 bills Thursday, rejected another and even found time to pass two resolutions. And it adjourned at 6 p.m.—three hours earlier than any other day of the week.

Admittedly, none of the legislation passed was as complicated—or as rich with the sweat of taxpayers' labor—as some others on which the House spent more time. And admittedly, all of the legislation considered Thursday was in the form of House-Senate conference reports, which means that the House previously had considered the merits—if not all the provisions—of the bills.

But the legislation still was important, ranging from an authorization bill for intelligence activities to legislation revising federal policy on oil and gas drilling.

And so, if this fable has a moral, it is that even a centipede can become a sprinter when the prize is attractive enough.

Rep. Parren Mitchell, the dapper representative from Baltimore, uses satire with the skill of a swordsman. And his latest attack left even his victim laughing at the wounds Mitchell so deftly inflicted.

Responding to a proposal by Rep. Elliott Levitas, D-Ga., to cut federal funding to the cities, the Maryland Democrat told the House how he always planned to settle in Georgia if he ever left Baltimore.

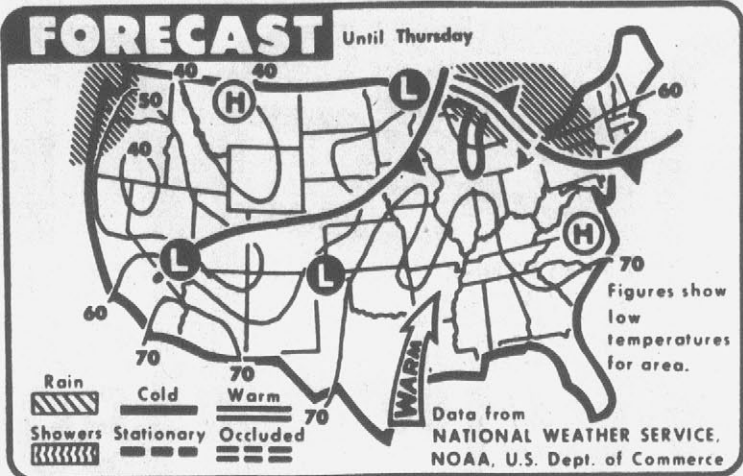

And then he rolled off a list of possible sites: Savannah, "the garden stop of the East Coast, a city in distress;" Athens—"a gorgeous place . . . if it comes out of its financial distress;" Macon, "a symbol of revitalization, which, hopefully, one day will come out of its economic distress.

"Mr. Chairman, I love each one of these Georgia cities so much that I would ask for defeat of the gentleman's amendment," Mitchell said.

Bosworth and "an obvious effort to placate" AFL-CIO president George Meany. What's more, the articulate Anderson hinted this could become a major election issue this fall.

Some presidential aides were not happy about the Marshall move from the beginning. Accordingly, chief economic adviser Charles Schultze wrote a letter to the House Banking Committee denying that Bosworth was muzzled and indicating that Marshall's authority was limited. The Marshall committee, said Schultze, would deal with "specific wage negotiations" only. By implication, therefore, Bosworth can continue to press for wage restraint in general.

The Silent Case

Hopes for conservative Republican Jeffrey Bell overtaking front-running Democrat Bill Bradley in the New Jersey Senate race are fading as Sen. Clifford Case continues his golden silence. Since losing to Bell in a stunning upset in the primary June 6, liberal Republican Case has declined to endorse the victor. In fact, he has said not a word. Furthermore, there is a possibility that President Carter may nominate Case—a longtime member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee—as an ambassador.

Bell's strategists privately doubt he has a chance without Case's endorsement. With Case backing him, they consider Bell a 50-50 shot.

Rival Labor Groups Bog Independence

By DANIEL DROSDOFF
ST. JOHN'S, Antigua (UPI) — "Independence is as inevitable as Christmas," says Lester Bird, deputy premier and chief spokesman for the government ruling the 108-square-mile British associate state of Antigua.

"Of course, we know Christmas will fall on December 25, but we can't say the same about independence," Bird adds. "It's a question of when the psychological moment will take place."

Independence is favored in theory by both of Antigua's major political parties and seemed just around the corner in 1976.

But now the rival political leaders are taking a new look at the idea and stalling.

The glamour of independence has faded as Antigua watches with dismay the economic and political difficulties of Barbados, Guyana, Grenada and other former British Caribbean colonies that achieved independence in recent years.

Antigua's two rival labor parties feel that the ruling party will get too much power if it gains the prestige of leading the island's 70,000 inhabitants to independence.

Both have pledged to fight any move toward independence that is sponsored by a rival political party, with the result that Antigua remains a British possession and will likely stay that way several more years.

In the elections of 1976, the Antigua Labor Party threw out the then ruling Progressive Labor Movement, campaigning on a go-slow stand on independence.

Former premier George Walter, urging a quick break with Britain, won a popular majority but lost power because the island's districting gave a majority in parliament to the Labor Party led by Vere Bird, the island's political patriarch. Vere Bird's son, Lester, has a strong say in running the government and puts independence in the back seat.

Now Walter's party has also abandoned its rush for independence, announcing it will oppose it if the Bird government tries to hold a referendum on the issue.

"We would have no other choice," says Victor McKay, an opposition leader. Independence now, he said, "would put the government in a position whereby it would gain more power."

McKay and other Progressive party leaders accuse the Bird government of systematically trying to destroy the opposition by curbing public assembly, banning party leaders from radio and television and unjustly filing criminal charges against Walter and three of his former ministers for alleged corruption. One of them, McKay, also was charged with slander against the attorney general.

Donald Halstead, former public utilities authority chairman and acting chairman of the Progressive party, is charged with using government funds to buy 5,000 T-shirts for his party faithful and paying members of his trucking company with treasury money.

Halstead says the Bird regime has conducted "wholesale dismissals of our people in government positions."

He said the government was sitting on a keg of dynamite that "could blow up at any time". Government leaders contend they are only enforcing the law in leveling criminal charges against members of the former administration. They say they have no intention in eliminating the opposition party.

Lester Bird, a 40-year-old graduate of the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor and a graduate of British law school, says "I don't think independence occupies the peoples' minds as much as it did 10 years ago."

Antigua will have to build up its industry first and cut down its 15 percent unemployment rate, he says. "Independence depends on getting the economy going."

To do that, the government is building factory shells and renting them to manufacturers for $1 per square foot.

To lure investors, the Bird government has offered tax exemptions of up to 15 years coupled with free convertibility of foreign currency, free repatriation of profits, and the abolition of income taxes.

Lester said the industrial program was modeled on Operation Bootstrap of Puerto Rico, but "we hope to avoid some of the pitfalls Puerto Rico had."

He said companies in Puerto Rico often closed down at the end of their tax exemption period, but in Antigua the tax exemptions will be subject to unlimited renewals.

Zoo Rears Rare Cubs

By C.C. MINICLIER
HARBIN, Manchuria (AP) — Manchurian tiger cubs, like babies everywhere, need lots of nourishment and tender loving care, according to Chao Kueilau.

Mrs. Chao, the tiger breeder of Manchuria, has successfully raised 65 rare Manchurian tiger cubs over the past 20 years, and reports a survival rate of 85 percent for all tiger cubs born in the Harbin zoo.

Harbin, a rail center and the second largest industrial city in northeastern China, is also the principal breeding site for Manchurian tigers, the largest in the world and an endangered species.

Zoo director Chang Hsueh-tien told an interviewer there may only be 100 wild Manchurian tigers still roaming the wooded river banks of Manchuria, with others across the borders of neighboring Russia and North Korea.

"Where there are tigers there are no wolves," Chang said, explaining that wolves are a favorite dish of the tigers, which weigh more than 600 pounds and live 25 years.

Before 1959, he said, China used to export the big beasts to foreign zoos in exchange for other animals, but the export was stopped when Chinese zoos asked for more tigers than were available.

Chang said that all of the tigers in Chinese zoos initially came from Harbin.

He said there were no poachers, adding that the wild tigers, one of two species found in China (the others are smaller and not Manchurian) are given the same high government protection afforded China's rare pandas.

Mrs. Chao, a quiet, gentle woman, had never seen a tiger cub when the first two were born here of a wild tigress in 1959, the last year zoos were permitted to capture them.

She recalled that the mother had no milk for her cubs, so Mrs. Chao moved in with the cubs for four months, bottle feeding them.

She smiled as she remembered how the cubs loved to snuggle in her arms. After they grew up they joined a Chinese acrobatic circus for four years and then returned to the zoo.

Cubs born here are nursed by their mothers for the first 100 days and are then weaned away on small pieces of meat, so the mother will be ready to breed again the following year.

How They Voted On Roll-Calls

By Roll Call Report
WASHINGTON—Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes August 10 through August 16.

HOUSE
ERA EXTENSION—Voted, 233 for and 189 against, to extend by 39 months the deadline for state to ratify the Equal Rights Amendment. The current deadline of March 22, 1979 would be extended to June 30, 1982. The proposed constitutional amendment has been ratified by 35 states. Three more must ratify it before it becomes part of the U.S. Constitution. The Senate has not acted on the resolution (HJ Res 638) to extend the deadline and there is doubt that a final Senate vote will occur this year.

Rep. Barbara Jordan, D-Tex., a supporter, said: "Women have been going through the agony and ecstasy all their lives, and we will continue to do so until the words 'equal rights under the law' shall not be denied because of sex are part of the Constitution. We shall continue unrelentingly as long as is necessary."

Rep. Philip Crane, R-Ill., an opponent, said: "Any retroactive change in the time frame because the desired result has not been achieved violates the solemn spirit with which any constitutional amendment should be approached... Altering the ratification process because of pressure from the groups involved is a step I am wary of taking."

Members voting "yea" favored extending the time for ratifying the ERA.

Reps. Stephen Neal, D-5, Richardson Preyer, D-6, Charles Rose, D-7, and Lamar Gudger, D-11, voted "yea."

Reps. Walter Jones, D-1, L. H. Fountain, D-2, Charles Whitley, D-3, Ike Andrews, D-4, W. G. Hefner, D-8, James Martin, R-9, and James Broyhill, R-10, voted "nay."

GOP TAX CUT—Rejected, 177 for and 240 against, a proposal to reduce individual federal income tax rates across-the-board by about 33 per cent over the next three years. The measure, known as Kemp-Roth for its co-sponsors, Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., and Sen. William Roth, R-Del., is becoming a major campaign issue for the Republican Party. They vote, therefore, provided a clear choice between Democratic Party and GOP approaches to federal taxation.

The vote rejected a motion to send a tax bill back to the Ways and Means Committee with instructions that the committee report it back to the House with Kemp-Roth in it.

Kemp, a supporter, said the proposal would give Americans

"incentive to work, save invest, and take economic risks." He said that the massive tax cut "will expand the total amount of economic activity, expand the total tax base...providing additional revenues with which to offset federal budget deficits...."

Rep. Jim Wright, D-Tex., an opponent, called Kemp-Roth "a glittering bauble of opportunism" that is "the irresponsible way to cut taxes...simply to slash them indiscriminately and without regard for the effect it will have on spiraling deficits and rampaging inflation."

Members voting "yea" favored Kemp-Roth. Martin and Broyhill voted "yea."

Jones, Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Neal, Preyer, Rose, Hefner and Gudger voted "nay."

BUDGET CUT—Defeated, 155 for and 241 against, an amendment to cut fiscal 1979 spending by one per cent (about $5.6 billion) across-the-board in all government programs and departments. The measure was offered to the congressional budget resolution (H Con Res 683) setting overall ceilings and targets for government revenues and expenditures. The resolution sets a maximum federal budget of $561 billion in the fiscal year that begins October 1.

Rep. Jake Pickle, D-Tex., a supporter, said the amendment "may be the very best way to show that we are trying to tighten our belts" and is "perhaps the best, if not the last, chance today for us to make a meaningful cut in the overall budget deficit."

Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., an opponent, said: "I have no objection to people coming in here and cutting specific programs, but this across-the-board, one per cent business I think undignified. I think it is unreflective of the courage and business sense I know is in this House and I don't think we ought to do it."

Members voting "yea" favored the one per cent cut in federal spending. Preyer, Martin and Broyhill voted "yea."

Jones, Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Neal, Rose, Hefner and Gudger voted "nay."

SENATE

TUITION TAX CREDITS—Passed, 65 for 27 against, a bill allowing parents a tax credit of 50 percent of tuition and fees for each child in college or post-secondary vocational school, up to a maximum of $250 per student. The credit is retroactive to August 1, 1978, and will be increased to $500 per student on October 1, 1980. The bill (HR 12050) was sent to conference with the House.

Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., a supporter, said: "The tuition tax credit says to the American taxpayer, 'Yes, we know you struggle for your children. We recognize your efforts.' I think it is time to do something about it. Let us pass this bill."

Sen. Robert Morgan, D-N.C., an opponent, said: "We have to remember that college education is still a personal responsibility... We should also remember that going to college is a highly profitable investment."

Senators voting "yea" favored the tuition tax credit.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R, voted "yea."

Sen. Robert Morgan, D, voted "nay."

TUITION TAX CREDITS—Approved, 56 for and 41 against, an amendment excluding parochial and private elementary and secondary school students from the bill providing tuition tax credits. The bill (HR 12050) was later passed and sent to conference with the House (see vote above). This amendment limited the tax credit to college and post-secondary vocational schooling.

Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., a supporter, said tax credits for parochial school students violated "the constitutional requirement of separation of church and state."

Sen. Robert Packwood, R-Ore., an opponent of the amendment, said that "...what the founders of this country intended, at least as evidenced by their practice, was never to preclude the use of public funds to be given to churches to run schools for primary and secondary children."

Members voting "yea" were opposed to tax credits for private and parochial school education.

Morgan and Helms voted "yea."

CONGRESSMEN FOR D.C.? Agreed, 71 for and 22 against, to debate a proposed constitutional amendment (HJ Res 554) to give the District of Columbia two senators and one or more representatives in Congress.

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., a supporter, said: "We cannot talk about human rights to others in the world until we here at home can show we are recognizing basic human rights. One of the America's fundamental rights is the right to participate in a democracy. Residents of the District are being denied that right."

Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, an opponent, said if the amendment were adopted D.C. "would have all of the privileges of statehood without the concurrent responsibilities, and our system of dual federalism would be seriously damaged."

Virtually all senators voting "nay" oppose the granting of congressmen to D.C.

Morgan and Helms voted "nay."

Higher Bounties

WASHINGTON (AP).—Civilian police would be paid higher cash bounties for catching military deserters if a new Pentagon proposal is adopted.

The Defense Department said Monday the Army is preparing legislation that would initially double and may eventually triple cash payments to civilian police for arresting and returning deserters.

Conflict Begun 15 Years Ago

EDITOR'S NOTE — AP Correspondent Nicolas B. Tatro recently returned to Cairo from a news-gathering visit to Iran during which he interviewed religious leaders.

AP News Analysis
By NICOLAS B. TATRO
Associated Press Writer

CAIRO (AP) — The conflict between Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi and Iran religious leaders was set in motion by a series of reforms the ruler initiated 15 years ago.

The reforms, known as the "white revolution," stripped the leaders of the Shia Moslems, the predominant sect in Iran, of control over vast land holdings and gave equal rights to women. The move was designed to advance the country's transition to a modern society.

Ayatullah Khomeini, the spiritual leader of the Shiite community, led demonstrations that turned into bloody riots and confrontations much like the ones in which at least 100 persons have been killed since January.

Khomeini was exiled in 1963 but from Iraq still leads a radical faction made up mostly of young theology students who seek creation of a pure Islamic state.

The leadership of the mainstream has passed to soft-spoken Ayatullah Shariatmadari, an 80-year-old theologian who lives in spartan simplicity in the holy city of Qum, 100 miles south of Tehran.

He does not seek to supplant the secular government with a religious one and in several recent interviews made clear he thinks coexistence is possible. But he and other religious leaders also made clear that they think the government has gone too far in allowing Western influences to erode traditional values.

"One roof cannot have two weathers," Shariatmadari said, quoting an ancient Persian proverb to illustrate his belief that Western permissiveness won't mix with Islamic traditions.

"One of the things we demand is an end to the showing of sexy films and films of violence which corrupt our children and undermine our families," he continued. "This sort of thing creates disbelief, and that paves the way for communism."

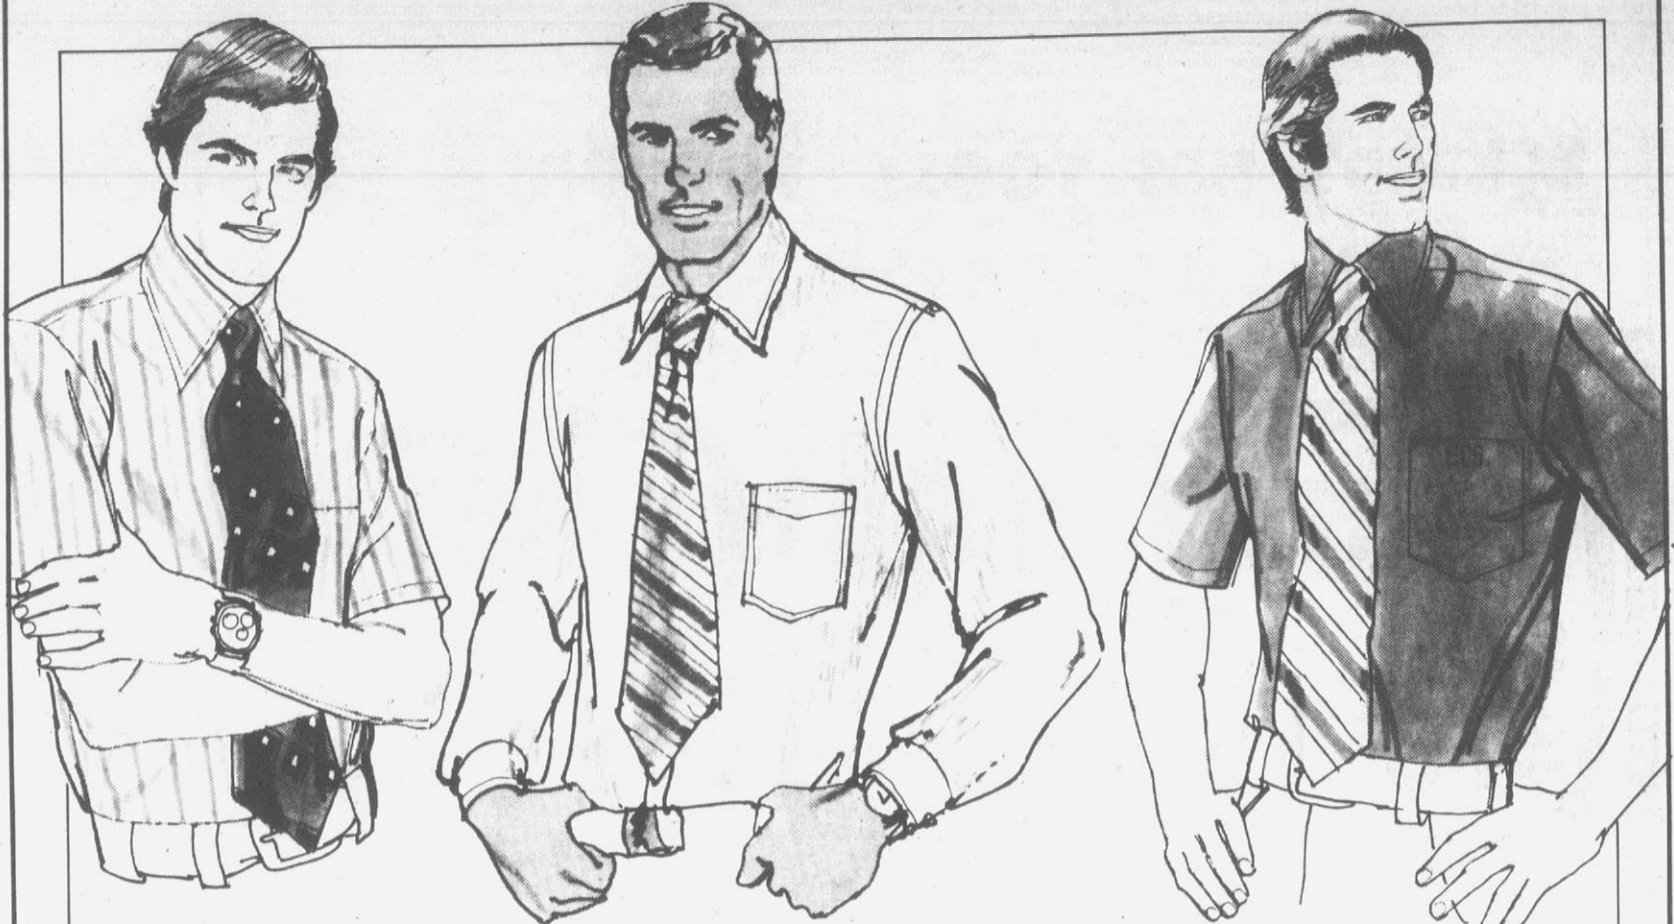

Movie theaters have been a major target of religious rioters in the last eight months along with banks and liquor stores, because the Koran, Islam's holy book, forbids Moslems to drink or charge interest on loans.

The attacks intensified with the start of the holy month of Ramadan, and on Saturday night arsonists set fire to a movie house in the oil-refinery city of Abadan, killing at least 377 persons. The police chief of Abadan blames the attack on the Islamic Marxists, which the government says is an organization of terrorists who mix religious fanaticism with Marxist ideology. But the Shiite leaders say there is no such thing as Islamic Marxists; "it is as ridiculous as saying Marxist capitalists," one commented.

The conservative Moslems also demand separate schools for boys and girls. They express concern over women walking unescorted in the streets at night and the trend among city women to shed the black "chador" veil in favor of figure-revealing Western dress.

To combat these trends, the religious leaders have been pressuring the government to allow a committee of five mullahs, or priests, to review legislation submitted to Parliament to insure that it conforms to Islamic precepts. The 1906 constitution authorized such a panel, but the provision has never been implemented.

Will Honor Balloonists

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Albuquerque will honor its three world-record balloonists with a ticker-tape parade through downtown when they return home Saturday.

Ben Abruzzo, Maxie Anderson and Larry Newman gained worldwide attention last week when they became the first persons to cross the Atlantic Ocean in a balloon.

The three are to arrive at Albuquerque International Airport by private jet Saturday morning. They will be given a red-carpet welcome while balloons hover overhead, said Robert Hoffman, president of the Chamber of Commerce, which is organizing the activities.

The men and their wives will be taken downtown in a motorcade for the parade, Hoffman said.

He said the chamber is working to make available supplies of ticker tape or confetti or some other type of shredded paper to shower on the honorees as they ride through the streets.

The windows of most buildings in the downtown area are sealed, but Hoffman said, "We're going to ask people to go up on the roofs. We're just going to go up on the roofs."

When the balloonists arrive at Civic Plaza in the heart of downtown, they will be greeted by dignitaries including Gov. Jerry Apodaca and Mayor David Rusk. Hot air balloons will be tethered on the plaza as a backdrop for speeches and presentations.

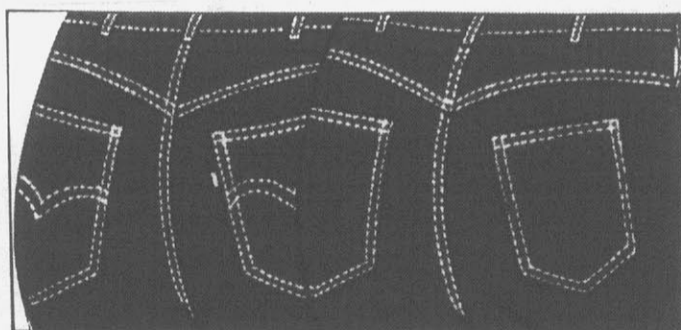

Several bands will be stationed along the route to serenade the heroes.

Ford Corrections Said No Better

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Ford Motor Co.'s planned safety corrections "failed badly" in government crash tests after the company agreed to recall 1.5 million Pintos and 30,000 Mercury Bobcats, the federal safety agency says.

Consumer advocate Ralph Nader told of the failure Monday and the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration later confirmed it.

NHTSA spokesman Hal Parris said that after the failure of the planned corrections the agency forced Ford to go further with its modifications. The latest corrections appear to have remedied the problem of fires when the cars are hit from the rear.

Ford spokesman Chuck Gumushian said he could not say whether the additional corrections, if given final government approval, will delay the recall program. Ford announced the recall June 9, saying free modifications would begin in September.

The Ford spokesman also said he did not know if the additional corrections would make the recall more expensive than the company earlier estimated. The company had said the cost would be $20 to $30 a car, or a total of about $40 million if all owners bring in their cars.

The Pinto has been a highly publicized highway safety issue. In one lawsuit, a California jury awarded a severely burned teenager $128.5 million in damages because of a fiery explosion of a Pinto gas tank when the car was hit from the rear. The amount later was reduced to $6.6 million.

When Ford announced the recall, under pressure from NHTSA, the company said it would replace the fuel-filler pipe and seal with a longer pipe and improved seal, and install a new polyethylene shield across the front of the fuel tank.

But when the cars were tested by NHTSA, the fuel tank still leaked gasoline in a collision. This was the condition that led to the problem of fires NHTSA cited.

In the latest test, conducted Friday, Parris said Ford added a second shield and improved the device that holds the tank.

"There was no leakage. It looks as though this fix will do the job," he said.

Ford has never admitted a safety problem, but agreed to the recall after NHTSA issued a preliminary finding of a fire risk.

Nader, in a letter to Ford Chairman Henry Ford II, charged that the company "continues to pursue an evasive approach" to the safety issue.

He said Ford "is still trying to persuade NHTSA to accept a cheap technical fix for the hazardous fuel tank design that will not meet minimum safety precautions."

Nader has long said the entire fuel tank should be replaced.

The models affected by the recall announced by Ford are all 1971-76 Pintos and 1975-76 Bobcats, except station wagons.

Sign Now Says Tourists—Go

SAN DIEGO (AP) — After advertising high and low and touting itself as "America's Finest City," San Diego finds itself neck-deep in visitors. Now there's a sign near Torrey Pines golf course that reads "Tourist Go Home."

Despite the $5 billion a year that city businesses rake in from tourism, some San Diegans are unhappy about the other things tourists bring — traffic jams, long lines at restaurants and high unemployment.

Attorney John McEvoy said he tries to discourage people from moving to San Diego.

"It's gotten so much like the East that I tell them they might as well stay there," McEvoy says. "It's gotten to be just like New Jersey."

A transplanted New Yorker, Jon Zurbach, said he tells visitors that San Diego is "a dead town and boring. I don't want more people living here."

Finding a parking place at the airport is an ordeal. And "getting into a decent restaurant is unbelievable on weekends or during the summer," says public relations man Bob Morrissey, who edits a newspaper for wine connoisseurs.

The city's economy is unable to absorb all the highly trained graduates from the state college and University of California campuses here. Unemployment has been running about 10 percent, and, one observer commented, "all these young lawyers graduating here don't want to leave and can't find jobs."

Tom Gitchoff, a professor at San Diego State University and one of the many actively counseling against tourism, says that point has passed.

Dramatic Balloon Trip Had Its Moments When All Seemed Lost

By MARCUS ELIASON
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — They took off from a clover field in Maine and their home became a cramped red and yellow gondola dangling below an 11-story balloon like the point on an exclamation mark. Nearly six days later, they landed in a wheat field in France.

What was it really like, the first trans-Atlantic balloon flight? People never cease to ask, and the three balloonists seem at a loss to put it in words. But from interviews and news conferences, a picture begins to emerge.

Larry Newman, Ben Abruzzo and Maxie Anderson would never make it, people said. Nobody had ever made it, six people had died and they too would die. And what was the point anyway, people said.

But the dire prophecies were washed away as the Double Eagle II lofted skyward from Maine and headed down the valley of the Aroostook River toward Europe, 3,200 miles away.

On Sunday, Aug. 13, at 8:42 p.m. EDT, just after the sun had dipped below Squapan Mountain, they cast off from a field owned by retired farmer Merle Sprague near Presque Isle. "Oh my God," a spectator gasped as the balloon dipped for an instant. Then it righted and floated east.

The following Thursday at 7:50 p.m. — 1:50 p.m. EDT — the three men landed in France. They had made it.

In between, there were times when the three, lacking natural air at 20,000 feet, were afraid to doze off lest their oxygen supply falter and they die in their sleep. Storms whipped them and ice crusts pushed them toward the roiling sea like a huge unyielding paw. Winds blew too hard or too soft, equipment inexplicably failed.

The weather was fine as they drifted over Newfoundland. There was a magnificent view of the rugged island, but it gave way to the Atlantic, endless expanses of blue. Veteran balloonists have called it the nearest thing on Earth to outer space.

The three balloonists were businessmen from New Mexico, family men with a passion for the air. Newman, 31 and married just five months, is president of the world's largest maker of hang gliders. Anderson, 44, coppery-haired and handsome, runs a uranium-mining outfit.

Abruzzo, president of a ski factory, is 48, the daddy of the three. He had sworn he would not try to cross the Atlantic again after last year's attempt, when he and Anderson were forced to ditch off Iceland and Abruzzo's legs were ravaged by frostbite.

They had learned much from that failure. For instance, this time they took small heaters. The gondola was equipped with a sea anchor and a sail. They brought axes in case they had to hack off bits of the gondola to keep height.

They had canned sardines, turkey, ham, soup, coffee, tea and cocoa, plus home-made protein-packed concoctions, and a 30-day supply of emergency rations if they were stranded. Newman brought doughnuts.

They carried TV cameras, loads of navigational equipment, and 5,500 pounds of sand and lead for ballast. All told, that "particle of air" weighed five tons, heavy as a truck.

Monday, as they coasted along at 15 to 17 knots, they began to run into trouble. One by one, instruments failed. First, the long-range radio, then the gadget to give their location, then the one that beeped out their position to others. Finally a transmitter conked out, and they depended on a simple ham radio to stay in touch with land.

Their first real crisis came Tuesday night in mid-Atlantic, when ice chunks "like big popcorn balls" encrusted the top of the balloon. Losing height rapidly, they jettisoned valuable ballast, which Anderson said was "like pouring fuel out of a tank." When they had dropped to 4,000 feet the ice melted.

Then came storms. "The storm gets all around you and you hear the seas roaring below," said Anderson, "and you know if you go down you're in bad shape."

To pass time they exercised and played backgammon. Abruzzo and Anderson, experienced balloonists, alternated three-hour watches. Newman grew despondent and Abruzzo told jokes to cheer him up.

Life was unbearably cramped in the 6-by-8-foot gondola. They had to move everything to find a pair of socks. It was, one said, like living in a closet, with all the space in the world above and below, and utterly useless to them.

They relieved themselves in portable camping toilets, or over the side. Newman suffered from dysentery.

Sleeping was difficult, and they never got more than four hours a night. When they had to sleep in oxygen masks it was worse because of the fear that the machines might fail.

Sometimes, during the day, they would rather not have slept.

"You stand on the balcony and watch the world go by below. It's such a magnificent sight that you don't want to sleep, and you have to force yourself," said Anderson.

At 11 p.m. — 5 p.m. EDT — Wednesday, authorities told them that they were over Ireland. They whooped with joy, and resolved to carry on to Paris, where Charles Lindbergh had landed 51 years earlier on the first solo trans-Atlantic airplane flight.

Then they were over the French town of Le Havre, in Europe. But the ballast was running out. They began to jettison everything not essential — failed equipment, clothing, the hang glider Newman had brought in hopes of coasting to land if all else failed.

They kept the champagne they planned to open if they made it.

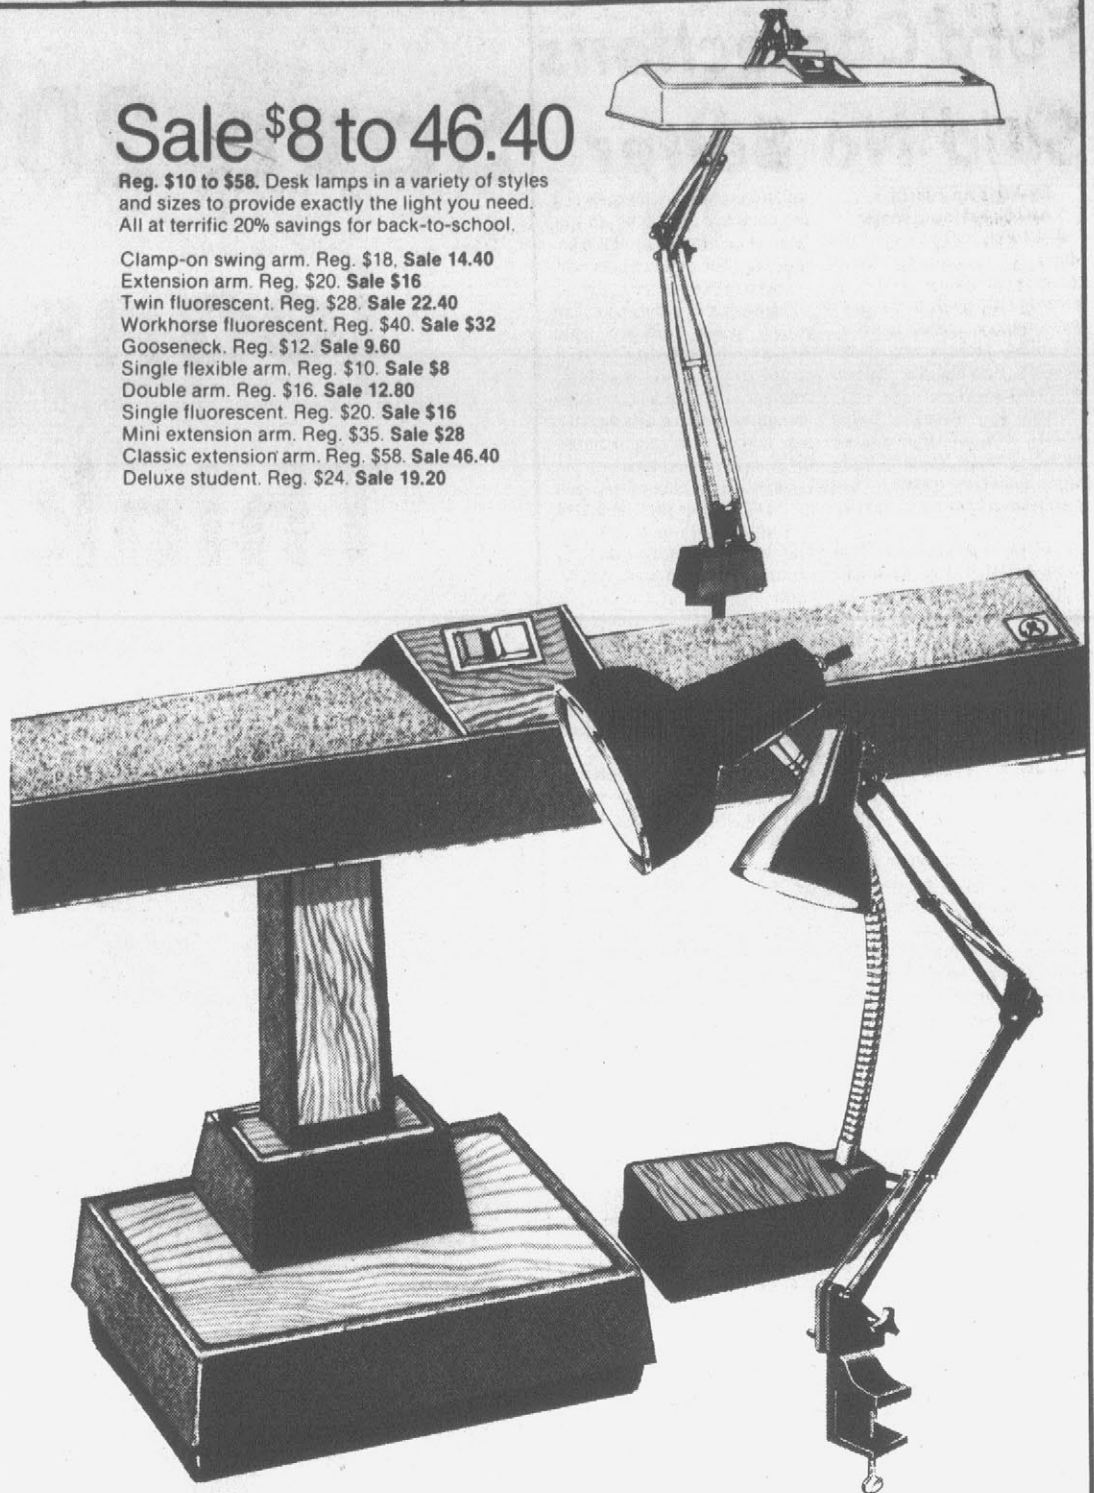

Over the town of Evreux, they knew they could not go on. The last of the ballast was gone. They were 65 miles west of Paris.

Below thousands of Frenchmen waited with a riotous welcome. The balloon, a robust, helium-packed Titan at takeoff, was a swiftly draining carcass as the gondola settled gently to earth.

Quiet Meetings On Rising Cost

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Sheldon Truax and Lewis Spencer, opponents of a bill to force a cap on rising hospital costs, traveled from Wyoming to Washington for a talk with Sen. Malcolm Wallop, R-Wyo. They stayed less than a day.

And while the three were meeting, the Senate Small Business Committee and its chairman, Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., were holding a hearing on the bill as part of a heavily promoted attempt to get hospital cost containment legislation through Congress this year.

The visits by Truax, of Laramie, Wyo., and Spencer, from Casper, were part of a relatively quiet, well-organized campaign by the American Hospital Association to doom the attempt.

For more than a year, the Carter administration and its allies in Congress, including Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and Nelson, have been trying with no success to win approval for a bill limiting the increase in hospital costs to between 9 percent and 10 percent a year. The proposal, they say, would save an estimated $60 billion by 1983.

Last week, Nelson introduced a compromise plan to impose controls limiting the rise to about 14 percent this year and 12 percent in 1979 if voluntary efforts fail to hold increases to those levels.

The hospital association, the American Medical Association and the Federation of American Hospitals announced a voluntary anti-inflation drive several months ago which they say is succeeding so far. Mike Lesparre, hospital association spokesman, said the push has succeeded in cutting the rate of increase by more than three percentage points on an annual basis since the first of the year.

Nelson's proposal touched off a flurry of activity on both sides. Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr., Kennedy and Nelson held a widely publicized news conference to promote the plan, designed, they said, to save about $34 billion in five years.

Nelson immediately announced he would hold two days of hearings, beginning last Friday, and the administration provided its chief economist, Charles Schultze, and a top H&W official to testify favorably.

At the same time, the hospital association made calls to its affiliated state organizations urging representatives to come to Washington and meet with as many home-state senators as possible.

"Those (senators) who are for you need strengthening," said the association president, J. Alexander McMahon. "Those who are undecided need the arguments. Those who are against you need persuading."

About 100 people from 30 states made the trip, armed with local-interest arguments against the measure. When they arrived, association officials produced arguments on the national level.

"Basically, our story is that in the hospital industry we've got a voluntary effort (at holding down rises in costs) which seems to be successful," said Truax, an official at the 90-bed Albany County Hospital. "We feel the program ought to have a chance to prove itself before we enter into any more bureaucracy."

Court Rules Treasure His

MIAMI (AP) — Mel Fisher, a balding, former chicken farmer turned treasure hunter, feels vindicated — and richer.

Fisher won a major court victory when U.S. District Judge William O. Mehrrens ordered the state to give up its claim to 25 percent of the estimated $18 million in Spanish treasure recovered in 1973 by Fisher's Treasure Salvors.

"The state has been very troublesome for me," Fisher said of the Monday ruling. "I let my heart pour out at the trial. They were insinuating we were pirates and profit-mongers, destroying artifacts when, in fact, the opposite was true."

Deputy Attorney General James Whisenand said the state will re-appeal its claim to the treasure, which has been locked away in the state archives since Fisher recovered it from the sea 30 miles off Key West.

Dave Horan, attorney for Treasure Salvors, called the ruling a final victory, although he had predicted the state would appeal again.

The state took possession of the silver coins and artifacts, raised from the remains of the sunken Spanish galleon Nuestra Senora de Atocha, which sank during a hurricane in 1622, by claiming a contract it had with Treasure Salvors Inc., entitled the state to 25 percent of the find. Mehrrens, saying the government had no right to the treasure find, ordered the entire find turned over to Treasure Salvors and Armada Research Corp., both founded by Fisher.

Mehrrens ordered that the state Division of Archives, History and Records Management "take nothing for its claim and that its claim is denied in all respects and that all costs be taxed against" the division.

"The finding of a great treasure from the days of the Spanish Main is a cherished dream of not only United States and Florida citizens; countless people from other lands have shared such thoughts," the decision said.

"It would amaze and surprise most citizens of this country, when their dream at the greatest of cost was realized, that agents of the (state of Florida and United States) governments would, on the most flimsy of grounds, lay claim to the treasure," the decision said.

State officials claimed they owned 25 percent of the find even though a U.S. Supreme Court ruling declared the wreck had been outside U.S. territorial waters.

Escaped Murderer's Body Is Found

CASA GRANDE, Ariz. (AP) — The body of escaped murderer Gary Tison has been found hidden under bushes in a desert wash, ending one of Arizona's most intense manhunts.

Five persons are dead since the killer's escape July 30 from Arizona State Prison — and authorities suspect two more bodies will turn up.

Tison had said he wouldn't be taken alive. But he didn't die in a blaze of bullets. He died in the unforgiving Arizona desert, about a mile from where his son Donald was killed in a gun battle with police Aug. 11.

Authorities captured other members of the Tison gang then, but he fled into the desert.

The discovery of Tison's badly decomposed remains came early Tuesday. He had not been wounded, and Eloy Ysasi, an investigator for the medical examiner's office, said he probably died of heat stroke or exposure.

Tison, 42, and Randy Greenawalt, 29, fled the prison after Tison's three sons — Donald, 20; Raymond, 19; and Ricky, 18 — held guards at bay with guns smuggled into a visitors' area.

The body was found on the Papago Indian Reservation near Papago Chemicals Inc., about 17 miles southwest of here.

An employee of the plant, Ray Thomas, 27, of Chuichu, said he had smelled a bad odor for the past four days as he drove down a dirt road from the plant to empty trash containers. Tuesday morning, Thomas and two other workers decided to investigate the smell. They found the body about 20 yards from the road, lying under heavy brush and a tree.

"All that brush was really thick," said Pinal County Sheriff Sgt. Dave Harrington. "We even had to move some of it to take some of our first photographs this morning."

The body was clad in blue pants and a fatigue-type shirt, clothing similar to what Tison was believed to have been wearing, officials said.

Authorities now believe Tison fled into the Silver Ridge Mountains, where he hid out in a cave until the search was called off. They said he apparently left his hideout four days ago looking for water and food.

Tison's sons and Greenawalt are accused of killing a Yuma couple, their young son and a niece near Quartzsite on Aug. 6. The couple and their son were found shotgunning to death.

END OF ROW BREAK — A mule named John performs double duty — to pull a "tobacco truck" and also as a prop for four "breakers" to lean against to be photographed. The four taking a short break at the end of a row are (left to right) Daniel Petteway, James Chavis, Jimmie Petteway, and Ross Petteway. The three

Petteways are brothers. Although few farmers today use mules, several of the old reliables are still in active service on the J. B. Taylor farm on N. C. 11 just north of Greenville, where this photo was taken. (Reflector Photo by Jerry Raynor)

Three City Accidents

An estimated $4,685 property damage resulted from three traffic collisions investigated by Greenville Police, yesterday.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from an 11:25 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Pitt and Martin Streets, involving cars driven by Burney Leland Tucker of Winterville, and Sharon Denise Alphin of 1001 North Pitt St.

Investigators, who charged Miss Alphin with driving left of center, estimated damage at $2,000 to the Tucker car and $800 to the Alphin vehicle.

Cars driven by James Clyde Harvell Jr. of Morehead City and Leon David Hunnings of Lumberton collided about 7:45 a.m. at the intersection of Dickinson and Line Avenues, causing an estimated $1,200 damage to the Harvell car and $10 damage to the Hunnings car.

A 2:25 p.m. collision at the intersection of Fifth and Washington Streets involved a car driven by Cindy Pollard McGowan of Bell Arthur and a truck operated by Robert Glenn Thomas of Route 1, Blounts Creek.

Damage was set by police at $175 to the McGowan car and $500 to the Thomas truck.

Nine Pitt Residents Selected To Attend Library Conference

RALEIGH — Nine Pitt County residents are among the 200 delegates and 100 alternate delegates who have been selected for the October Governor's Conference on Libraries and Information, according to H. William O'Shea, chairman of the delegate selection subcommittee of the conference advisory committee.

Pitt residents chosen as delegates are Rep. Sam D. Bundy, Margaret Cain, Anne Frost, Glenn Jetter, Jr., Rhea S. Resnik, and Jane T. Tripp.

Pitt alternates are Joyce D. Buie, Leigh W. Ledbetter, and Billie L. McDowell.

The conference will be held for the three day period October 19-21 in Raleigh's Civic Center.

O'Shea noted that the delegates, chosen from more than 1,500 nominations all across North Carolina, have been chosen to include racial, geographic, economic, occupation and handicapped representation.

Delegates are expected to be in attendance at the full two and one-half days of the conference. This conference is one of 54 governor's conferences being held in states and U.S. territories in preparation for the White House Conference on Libraries and Information Services scheduled for 1979.

From among the official 200 delegates to the Raleigh conference, 12 will be chosen to attend the forthcoming White House conference.

Governor Hunt has announced that well-known author and scientist Dr. Isaac M. Asimov will be keynote speaker.

Speaking To Kiwanis

Carl E. Whitfield, field representative of the Eastern District of the Governor's Highway Safety Program, will be the guest speaker at the University Kiwanis Club meeting on Monday, Aug. 28.

Whitfield's topic will be traffic related federal standards and strategy for highway safety effectiveness. Julian White will introduce the speaker.

The meeting is scheduled for 12:30 p.m. at the Holiday Inn.

The Steel Service Center Institute predicts the nation's metal service centers will market about 10 percent more steel and other metal products in 1978 than in the previous year.

Emotional Stress Invites Insomnia

I don't remember when I last had a good night's sleep. Sometimes I fall asleep for three or four hours and then get up and stay awake for the rest of the night. I have tried all kinds of pills and medicines. At one time, I was taking a lot more than was good for me. I'd like to know how I can break the habit of insomnia, and especially how to get rid of the pills. — Mr. T.W.P., Wis.

Dear Mr. P.: Let's look at some of the major reasons for insomnia. I am certain that somewhere within this area lies one or more reasons for your problem.

The inability to sleep, or repeated interruptions during sleep, may be caused by the overuse of alcohol, coffee, tea, or tobacco. Severe emotional tensions at work and within the family structure can also be important reasons for sleeplessness. Overexcitement and marked fatigue, too, contribute to a restless sleep or to the difficulty in falling asleep.

Some pills taken for a general medical condition may act as a stimulant. Thyroid tablets, for example, when taken too late in the day, can overactivate the body and cause insomnia. Dietary indiscretion and loading the stomach before going to sleep can also be disturbing.

Many people establish for themselves a rule that says "X" amount of hours is absolutely essential for their well-being. Any variation of this throws them into a "tizzy." There is no fixed rule that says everyone must have the same number of hours of sleep each night. Occasionally, the body's own reserve is such that only a few hours' sleep is necessary. Unless this is realized, some people punish themselves by fitfully tossing in bed and taking their insomnia as a personal insult.

It is at this point that the temptation to use pills arises. The dependency on sleeping pills creeps up on one very slowly. Then it becomes a difficult habit to break.

The emotional tensions that can cause insomnia are then magnified and the cycle of drug dependency is set in motion. When one carefully examines the basic reasons for insomnia and tries to rearrange patterns of living with lessened emotional stress, poor sleeping habits can be broken.

I've had four children, and I know the stretch marks on my abdomen are due to these pregnancies. Can anything be done about them? They are not very pretty. — Mrs. N.J., Calif.

Dear Mrs. J.:

Stretch marks, or "striae gravidarum," occur on the abdomen, breasts, buttocks, and thighs. A slight rupture of the elastic fibers under the skin occurs when there is tension on these areas. Creams, hormones and special electrical gadgets are worthless as methods of eradicating these stretch marks. In extreme cases cosmetic surgery is very effective. The operation is a safe one.

Backers Of Republican Tax Plan Compare It With John Kennedy's

WASHINGTON (AP) — Backers of a Republican proposal to slash income taxes by a third over the next three years compare the plan to Kennedy administration policies that invigorated the U.S. economy 15 years ago.

But a prime architect of the Kennedy program doesn't agree.

"We don't want to stimulate so much that we worsen inflation," Henry H. Fowler, undersecretary of the treasury during the Kennedy years and treasury secretary under President Lyndon B. Johnson, told the Senate Finance Committee on Tuesday.

Things are different today than in 1963 when the late President John F. Kennedy urged a massive tax cut to prime the economy, said Fowler, now an investment banker and stock broker.

"The very serious dollar problem...the very major problem of inflation" did not exist then, he added.

Although Fowler cautioned against rushing into the Kemp-Roth plan, he heartily endorsed a GOP initiative to sharply reduce the tax on capital gains. In fact, he noted that the capital gains plan he advocates is precisely the one he wrote — and Kennedy backed — in 1963.

Led by Sen. William V. Roth, R-Del., and Rep. Jack F. Kemp, R-N.Y., most Republicans in Congress have endorsed the controversial bill that would cut individual income taxes by an average of one-third over three years. The House already has rejected the Kemp-Roth measure and adopted a $16.3 billion tax relief bill.

Backers of the Kemp-Roth plan claim it would spur the economy, bringing in more revenues than it costs, just as a similar tax reduction did during the Kennedy years.

The Carter administration and most economists who have testified before Congress disagree. They say so large a tax cut would worsen inflation.

Fowler, responding to a question from Roth, said something like the Kemp-Roth bill coupled with serious efforts to control federal spending could be a workable solution to inflation. But a long-term tax cut and continued high federal spending would bring larger deficits and more inflation, he said.

On capital gains, Fowler seemed to find himself in agreement with most members of the finance committee. A majority of the Senate, over the opposition of the Carter administration, favors a major cut in capital gains taxes in an effort to boost investment.

Fowler said the House-passed tax cut bill does not go far enough and would not provide across-the-board relief for all investors. Current law taxes one-half of capital gains at the same rate that applies to a taxpayer's wages and other income. Except for a $10,000 exclusion, the remainder is subject to a 15 percent minimum tax, which is designed to ensure that high-income persons do not escape tax altogether.

Jaycees Set Meet

RALEIGH — The Raleigh Jaycees are sponsoring the Second Annual North Carolina Beach Music Convention on Saturday, August 26. The event will be from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. of the grounds at Carter Stadium in Raleigh.

Among popular music groups to be performing will be Bill Pinkney and the Original Drifters; the Showmen; The Embers; Maurice Williams and the Zodiacs; and others.

Tickets are priced at $9 at the gate.

Proceeds realized last year from about 20,000 who attended enabled the Jaycees to make a sizeable donation to build a Boy's Club in Wake County.

Approximately 30,000 people are expected this year and proceeds from the event will be used for a Jaycee program.

Whites Flee Inner Cities

By YARDENA ARAR, Associated Press Writer
SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — A Rand Corp. researcher says that a new study, showing court-ordered integration in inner city schools has led to widespread "white flight" across the nation, backs up his previous prediction that white school enrollment in Los Angeles will plummet when the district's integration program begins in September.

The Rand study, to be presented Sept. 7 at an American Sociological Association meeting in San Francisco, looked at 54 school districts with enrollments of at least 20,000 students.

The report is written by David Armor, a social scientist at the privately run "think tank." Armor also wrote a previous study, commissioned last year by the Board of Education, which forecast the upheaval in Los Angeles school enrollments.

white enrollment in the first year of integration was at least 2 1/2 times as great as the projected drop.

But another social scientist cautions that it would be a mistake to generalize the results of the nationwide study to Los Angeles.

"The basic problem is that the social composition and housing market in Los Angeles are very different from most of the districts that were studied," Gary Orfield of the University of Illinois said in a telephone interview from Champaign, Ill.

Orfield was named to a panel of experts studying the Los Angeles busing plan by Superior Court Judge Paul Egly, who has jurisdiction over the integration work.

Orfield said many young white families are moving to outlying areas because they cannot afford housing within the district, not necessarily because they are fleeing busing.

In the earlier study, Armor said the district would lose between 40,000 and 60,000 white students by 1980 if it implemented an "extensive busing plan." That loss would be in addition to 60,000 white students the district would lose anyway due to a declining birth rate and other factors, Armor said.

He added that he expects white enrollment in the district to drop by 40,000 this fall alone as the plan takes effect — twice the 20,000 decrease he projected without forced busing.

Last fall, he said, white enrollment — expected to dip 8 percent — actually dropped 12 1/2 percent as parents withdrew children in anticipation of mandatory busing being ordered.

Armor's new study was based on birth rate and white out-migration statistics before and after integration programs were instituted in the 54 districts.

"The strongest effects were found in 19 cities that had over 20 percent minorities and available suburbs," Armor said Monday. The effects of integration were weaker in districts including entire counties, making relocation more difficult, he said.

For those 19 cities, Armor used demographic statistics to project what white enrollment levels would have been without integration and compared the results with the actual enrollment after integration.

He found that in all of the 19 cities but one — Springfield, Mass. — the actual drop in

Crackdown On Drunk Drivers

By MARCUS ELIASON, Associated Press Writer
PARIS (AP) — Tipsy motorists are blamed for 40 percent of France's deaths on the roads, and the gendarmes are warring on the traditional winesoaked country lunches and dinners with breathalyzer bags and a tough new drunken-driving law.

Since the start of the summer vacation, thousands of drivers have been flagged down and asked to blow into little plastic bags filled with crystals that go green when hit by boozy breath.

Two thousand were checked last weekend alone, and in only 30 cases did the tell-tale green show up, leading some Frenchmen to think that perhaps they weren't such heavy drinkers after all.

But authorities attribute the meager haul to advance publicity for the areas where tests are conducted.

"We're not trying to catch drunken drivers but to make them not drink when they're about to drive," explained a road safety official. "And you can't accuse us of violating civil liberties if we warn motorists in advance."

The new permissible limit on alcoholic content in the blood of 1.8 milligrams per liter is similar to that in most West European countries but far more generous than the Communist bloc, where no alcoholic content is tolerated.

The law allows a judge — and in serious cases a police chief — to suspend a driving license for three to six years and fine the offender up to $9,200 if he is in an accident while drunk.

A poll of some 450,000 Frenchmen, including youths and non-drivers, found that only 40-50 percent approved of "alcohol test." Most thought "education rather than repression" would cut highway carnage.

Civil libertarians contend the test extends police powers. The motorists' lobby considers it a new onslaught against freedom of the highway. The wine growers and restaurateurs bewail the threatened drop in sales, which is already beginning to show.

Members of the National Assembly from wine-growing areas bogged down the bill in committee for two years. But the statistics won. Of 13,000 persons killed in French traffic accidents in 1977, at least 40 percent died as a result of drunken driving.

In 1950, the Niagara River Pact was signed by Canada and the United States, approving an increase in power output from the Niagara River.

Practicing Passing
North Carolina State quarterback Scott Smith works on his passing as he prepares to lead the Wolfpack in the season opener

Sept. 9 with East Carolina. Coach Bo Rein is counting on Smith, a junior with little playing experience, to be the team leader. (AP Laserphoto)

Smith Will Be State's QB

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina State, which has produced a long line of great quarterbacks, hands that job this year to Scott Smith, an unknown junior with virtually no playing experience.

But Smith, who toiled out of the limelight behind the now graduated Johnny Evans for two years, has remained pretty calm about the new duty — and no small reason is the wealth of experience that will surround him.

"I guess having these players around me — an experienced line, fine backs and wide receivers too — it seems like everybody's had game experience but me," Smith said.

"But I feel like I've had a lot of work in practice, last year and this year, so that I have experience too. I'll be a new face to 45,000 fans, but I won't be to my teammates," he added. "I think they're used to me enough that they'll feel comfortable."

Smith, slender at 6 feet and 184 pounds, told writers on the first stop of ACC Operation Football, a tour of pre-season camps in the Atlantic Coast Conference, that he's only a bit nervous and is anxious for the season to start Sept. 9 against East Carolina.

Part of the nerves, no doubt, are because of the acts he has to follow — Evans, who led the Wolfpack to an 8-4 season and a Peach Bowl win last year, and Dave Buckley, who is N.C. State's career offensive leader, before him.

"They're big shoes to fill, I'll grant you that," said Smith, from College Park, Ga. "But come the first game, I'm not going to exert myself just to throw the great pass or make a great play. I'm going to play my game and those will come. If I do it any different, I'll be hurting the team and myself."

Coach Bo Rein, who gave Smith the job after spring practice, says the quarterback is strongest in the running game but improved his passing over the summer. Smith completed one of two passes last year for 50 yards, and carried the ball 10 times for 29 yards.

But Smith's biggest job may be to become the team leader, and Rein says he's happy with Smith's emergence in that department so far.

He will be called on to lead a largely experienced group, with a backfield that includes All-ACC running back Ted Brown, the senior boosted as the conference's first legitimate Heisman Trophy candidate. Also back there will be Billy Ray Vickers, a junior who rushed for 739 yards last year and whose presence will keep defenders guessing, and Randy Hall, a returning starter at flanker.

The offensive front returns intact, led by junior center Jim Ritcher, smallest of the down linemen at 243 pounds. The punting game is still unsettled, with four possible punters.

On defense, the secondary has three replacements, with junior Woodrow Wilson the returning starter at free safety. Depth there may be thin.

Linebackers should be strong, with seniors Kyle Wescoe and Bill Cowher starting. The line is experienced, with middle guard John Stanton and tackle Brian O'Doherty tested replacements and 259-pound Bubba Green, healthy after a year out with knee surgery, a backup.

So the big Wolfpack question mark is the quarterback, and Smith may be tired of hearing that.

"Everybody asks me, 'do you have confidence, do your teammates have confidence in you,'" he said. "I guess they'll just all have to wait until the first game and see."

49ers Gunning For Rams

By JACK STEVENSON
AP Sports Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Home-grown O.J. Simpson has joined the San Francisco 49ers, who are aiming to dethrone the Los Angeles Rams as National Football Conference West Division champion.

"I know the Rams are the team we have to beat," said Simpson, who attended high school and junior college in San Francisco before winning the Heisman Trophy Award at the University of Southern California.

After then, Simpson starred for the Buffalo Bills of the National Football League. The Bills traded Simpson to San Francisco after the 1977 season.

"Here we have a lot of question marks, but I think we could win and win big," said Simpson.

Namath has retired and they felt the receiving corps was strong enough to trade former All-Pro Harold Jackson to the New England Patriots.

The Atlanta Falcons appear at least as good as last year and could surprise in the NFC West, but their fortunes depend heavily on the performance of quarterback Steve Bartkowski.

Bartkowski, however, has been unimpressive in the exhibition season and is in jeopardy of losing his starting job.

New Orleans is counting on quarterback Archie Manning, running back Chuck Muncie, newly-acquired offensive lineman Conrad Dobler and an improved group of pass catchers to improve.

A year ago, the Rams finished with a 10-4 record, with Atlanta at 7-7, San Francisco 5-9 and New Orleans 3-11.

Increasing the problems for the Rams was the decision by Rosenbloom to move the club south to Anaheim in 1980. Those negotiations took up much of the attention usually devoted to players at this time of year.

San Francisco also has a new coach, Pete McCulley, who says his plans are to hand Simpson the ball about 15 times per game, throw it to him 10 times and "if we can get the ball to him 25 times, I'm sure he'll do some things with it."

Questionable is Simpson's recuperation from knee surgery.

Atlanta is worried about Bartkowski, the former All-American who has not lived up to expectations because of injury problems. June Jones III, from Portland State, is challenging for the starting job.

Simpson joins running back Wilbur Jackson in the 49ers' backfield with another local product, Stanford's Jim Plunkett, at quarterback.

The Rams have a power-running duo in Lawrence McCutcheon, who has gained more than a total of 5,000 yards over the past five seasons, and former Heisman winner John Cappelletti.

NFL Clubs Continue Weeding Out Process

By TOM CANAVAN
AP Sports Writer
While most National Football League teams continued to put the finishing touches on their 1978 squads, the Pittsburgh Steelers continue to weed out "That Old Gang of Ours" that brought two consecutive Super Bowl titles to the Steel City.

The latest Super Bowl member to leave was former All-Pro safety Glen Edwards, who was traded to the San Diego Chargers for a future draft Tuesday, as the Steelers and 27 other NFL clubs sought to reach the 50-man roster limit.

Edwards, 31, wanted to renegotiate his contract with the Steelers in 1977 and walked out for a week after the season's seventh game.

"I'm still as fast as anybody out there," Edwards said.

The 6-foot-1, 185-pound Edwards, a seven-year veteran, won a starting job as a rookie out of Florida A&M in 1971. He was named the Steelers' most valuable player in 1974, the year they first won the Super Bowl.

Among other Pittsburgh Super Bowl veterans who have been traded since last season were center Jim Clark, wide receiver Frank Lewis and defensive tackle Ernie Holmes, who was waived this week by the Tampa Bay Buccaneers. Fullback Reggie Harrison, another Steeler with a Super Bowl ring, was cut Monday.

The Steelers also shipped tackle Dave Pureifory, acquired in the offseason from the Green Bay Packers, to the New England Patriots for a future draft choice.

Pittsburgh also announced that second-round draft choice Willie Fry suffered torn tendons in his hand and will be lost for the season. He was placed on the injured reserve list.

Edwards wasn't the only former All-Pro defensive back to be affected in the cutdown moves.

Bruce Taylor, a starter for San Francisco since 1970, was one of eight players waived by the 49ers. The 30-year-old cornerback was a first-round selection in 1970 and had 18 career interceptions.

Free agent quarterbacks Clint Longley and Mark Jackson were among nine players dropped by St. Louis.

Green Bay had five veterans among its 10 cuts. Included were tackle Dick Hines, an 11-year pro and the Packers' offensive captain, defensive end Clarence Williams, a nine-year man, linebacker Tom Toner, who has been with the Packers for six years, and guard Dennis Havig, an eight-year veteran.

The New York Jet cuts included two rookie defensive backs, Levi Armstrong, a seventh-round draft from UCLA, and Ray Eppes, drafted in the eighth round from Clemson.

Seedrick McIntyre, a second-year back who is Auburn's alltime leading rusher, was among three players cut by the Atlanta Falcons.

Kansas City placed two players, guard Darius Helton and safety Ricky Davis, on injured reserve, and waived seven others.

Philadelphia dropped special teams player Vince Papale, who became the oldest rookie in NFL history when he made the Eagles' roster at the age of 30 two years ago. Buffalo cut 1977 starting linebacker Bo Cornell; the New York Giants dropped last year's first-string safety Jim Stienke and the Los Angeles Rams waived Art Thoms, a defensive lineman on the Super Bowl champion Oakland Raiders two seasons ago.

Besides Cornell, who started his NFL career with Cleveland in 1971, the Bills dropped backup quarterback Ken Johnson, who was squeezed out by the acquisition of Bill Munson from San Diego.

Stienke, a five-year regular, lost his job in training camp to Ernie Jones and was one of 10 players cut by the Giants.

The Rams waived seven other players besides Thoms, including former Yale quarterback Brian Dowling and Southern Methodist wide receiver Freeman Johns.

backs, Levi Armstrong, a seventh-round draft from UCLA, and Ray Eppes, drafted in the eighth round from Clemson.

"I saw it coming," Taylor said. "I'm not really disappointed. I've talked it over with my wife and I'm sure I still have some good years left and there are some teams interested."

Some other familiar names fell by the wayside and one, Lydell Mitchell of the Baltimore Colts, remained in limbo when team owner Robert Irsay rejected a compromise settlement reached by the Player Club Relations Committee in Washington that would have ended the running back's holdout.

Farmville Adds Coaches

FARMVILLE — Two new assistant coaches have been added to the Farmville Central coaching staff.

Henry Croom and Rhett Raynor will assist in the coaching duties this year. Croom, from LaGrange, taught at a junior high school in Lenoir County prior to coming to Farmville, where he will teach art and English. He will assist in junior varsity football, coach junior varsity basketball, and assist in a spring sport to be determined.

Raynor, a Southern Wayne High School graduate, recently finished his degree work at East Carolina University. He will teach in the science department at Farmville. His coaching duties will include assisting in varsity football, coaching the "B" team baseball, and assisting in a winter sport to be decided.

Malavasi has returned to the Knox concept of defense with some alterations on offense, but the club already has lost No.1 draft choice — running back Elvis Peacock of Oklahoma — for the season with a knee injury suffered in the Seattle game.

So the Rams have much the same alignment as last year, except that quarterback Joe

Dye Turns Attention To Pirate Kicking Game

Turning his attention to the Pirate kicking game, East Carolina football coach Pat Dye had praise for his kickers, but expressed concern over kick coverage yesterday as the Bucs continued two-a-day drills.

"In a week and a half, our kickers have shown me that we will have improvement in that area this fall," Dye said. "I'm concerned about the way we are covering kicks, though, and we will be working on that a lot in our remaining practices. Poor coverage hurt us in some games last year."

Rodney Allen, a 37.3-yard per try punter a year ago, was cited for his improvement, as was placekicker Bill Lamm. Both had good showings in the Pirates' first scrimmage last Saturday.

"We have some good people to return kicks, too," Dye said. "Like Gerald Hall, who has an 11.1 career punt return average, and Anthony Collins for kickoff returns. But the rest of that phase of the kicking game will take a lot of work before we're ready for Western Carolina."

The Pirates open at home against the Catamounts on Sept. 2.

Royals Are Back On Top In West

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

Pending the outcome of "The Case of the Loaded Bat," the Kansas City Royals are back in first place alone in the American League West.

The Royals scored a 6-3 victory Tuesday night over the Chicago White Sox, and California dropped a 6-2 decision to the New York Yankees, breaking a virtual tie for first place.

However, Chicago Manager Larry Doby fled a protest with the league over the loss, contending Royals designated hitter Hal McRae had stuffed the end of his bat with cork, making it illegal.

Doby filed the protest after McRae singled home a run in the fourth to give the Royals a 4-0 lead.

"We suspect cork, and if they find it, the game reverts to that point and McRae is out," said Doby. "If there's no cork, that's it."

Royals Manager Whitey Herzog, umpire Jerry Neudecker and McRae all indicated there was nothing amiss, however.

Al Cowens provided most of Kansas City's firepower with a two-run homer and an RBI single, backing the pitching of left-hander Larry Gura, 11-3, who pitched 7 1/3 strong innings. Al Hrabosky, the third Royals pitcher, picked up his 16th save elsewhere in the AL. Seattle downed Boston 5-2; Milwaukee swept a pair from Cleveland, 3-2 and 5-4; Baltimore downed Oakland 6-4 in 10 innings; Detroit whipped Minnesota 7-3 and Toronto defeated Texas 3-1.

Yankees 6, Angels 2
Cattfish Hunter, 8-4, picked up his sixth victory in seven decisions since coming off the disabled list, scattering six hits while the Yankees got 15 hits, all singles. Thurman Munson and Chris Chambliss each had three hits.

The Yankees scored three runs in the second inning off loser Frank Tanana, 16-8, who lasted only 4 1/3 innings. Hunter struck out two and walked two.

Mariners 5, Red Sox 2
Glenn Abbott, 6-10, tossed a five-hitter — giving up both runs on homers — and Bruce Bochte broke up a shutout by Luis Tiant in the fifth inning with a home run as Seattle continued to plague the East Division leaders at the Kingdome.

Seattle, which had just taken two of three in a homestand against the Yankees, also got a two-run single in the eighth from Dan Meyer. Abbott yielded home runs to George Scott (No. 9) and Carlton Fisk (No. 19).

Brewers 3-5, Indians 2-4
A controversial double in the eighth inning by Larry Hisle decided the opener, and Milwaukee completed its sweep on Cecil Cooper's bases-loaded single in the ninth inning of the nightcap.

With the score tied 2-2 in the opener, Hisle's double appeared to have given the Brewers a 4-2 lead, driving in two runs. But the Indians protested that a fan had touched the ball, and one runner should be sent back to third. After conferring for about 20 minutes, the umpires agreed and erased one of Milwaukee's runs.

Cooper's single in the ninth inning of the nightcap was the climax of a three-run, two-out rally. Jim Kern, 8-8, who was the loser in both games, walked in two runs preceding Cooper's hit.

Reliever Bill Castro, 4-4, won the first game, and Willie Mueller won the second game as his first major league appearance with 31-3 innings of one-hit relief.

Orioles 6, A's 4
Rick Dempsey doubled home two runs in the top of the 10th as the Orioles, who had blown a 4-0 lead, recovered to beat Oakland.

Baltimore had jumped in front early on first-inning home runs by Terry Harlow and Ken Singleton and Kiko Garcia's two-run triple in the second. Oakland, however, came back with the help of two RBI by Dell Alston on a single and sacrifice fly, and the A's tied it in the eighth on Joe Wallis' runcoring single off Stanhouse.

Tigers 7, Twins 3
Detroit, the hottest team in baseball since the All Star break, won its seventh in its last 10 games on Ron LeFlore's RBI single in the sixth and Tim Corcoran's bases-loaded double in the ninth.

LeFlore, who leads the majors in steals with 58, broke the American League record for consecutive stolen bases without being caught, swiping his 27th in a row in the third inning. The old mark was set last year by Mitchell Page of the Oakland A's. Dave Lopes of the Los Angeles Dodgers holds the major league mark of 38, set in 1975.

Tigers right-hander Jim Slaton, 13-9, scattered seven hits in his 10th complete game of the season.

Blue Jays 3, Rangers 1
Jim Clancy, 10-10, yielded just five singles in 81-3 innings, and reliever Victor Cruz retired the final two men as Toronto sent the Rangers down to their fourth straight loss.

Willie Horton and Al Woods smacked RBI doubles for the Blue Jays in their three-run seventh inning off Texas starter Doc Medich, 7-7. Dave McKay got the third RBI in the inning with a single.

A Base Of His Own

Detroit Tiger Ron LeFlore tips his hat to the crowd as he walks toward the dugout with second base, which was presented to him midway through a game with Minnesota Tuesday night. Earlier, LeFlore had stolen his 27th consecutive base, setting a new American League record. (AP Laserphoto)

Umps' Attorney Is Encouraged

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The attorney who announced a threatened strike by the 52 major league baseball umpires says he is encouraged by offers from the American and National leagues to hold informal negotiations on the dispute.

Philadelphia attorney Richard Phillips, who represents the Umpires Association, said early today that the association's executive board had made no decision on the strike and would continue telephone conferences.

Phillips said if the discussions could start immediately and progress in good faith, he would not want to jeopardize them with a strike.

The umpires are demanding improved benefits and working conditions.

Lee MacPhail, the president of the American League, and Chub Feeney, president of the National League, told Phillips in a telegram Tuesday that they would not reopen negotiations on the umpire's contract.

But both presidents left the door open to future conversations with the Umpires Association.

"Of course, we are always willing to meet informally with you to discuss matters of interest to the umpires, without prejudice to the right of the clubs to insist on compliance with our current agreement," the presidents said in a statement. "If you wish to have such a discussion with us, we would be willing to meet with you at a mutually convenient time."

The umpires currently are in the first year of an agreement signed last winter which carries through the 1981 season.

MacPhail and Feeney cited that agreement in their response to a telegram last week from Phillips that listed the umpires' demands.

"Because of the existence of the current collective bargaining agreement and the scope of negotiations leading thereto, it would be inappropriate at this time to negotiate the matters included in your telegram of August 16," MacPhail and Feeney told Phillips. "As you know, our agreement with the Umpires Association contained a no strike provision which we assume would be honored by the association. Any failure to honor that no-strike commitment would be a clear violation of our agreement and could be very damaging both to our sport and to the umpires themselves."

Berra's Hitting Puts Bucs In Race

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Yogi Berra once summed up a pennant race by saying, "You're never out of it until you're out of it." And thanks to some timely hitting by a chip off the old block named Dale Berra, the Pittsburgh Pirates are right back in a pennant race just when it seemed they were out of it.

"This is the first winning streak we've had all year and it's coming at the right time," Manager Chuck Tanner said Tuesday night after the Pirates defeated the Atlanta Braves 3-1 for their eighth consecutive triumph, with young Berra, a major leaguer for less than a month, delivering what proved to be the winning run with a fifth-inning homer.

The triumph kept the thirdplace Pirates 5 1/2 games behind the pacesetter Philadelphia Phillies, who ended the San Diego Padres' six-game winning streak 5-3. But the Bucs are only 1 1/2 games behind the Chicago Cubs, who bowed to the Houston Astros 2-1.

The West Division race tightened up when the San Francisco Giants whipped the New York Mets 7-4 and the Cincinnati Reds nipped the So. Louis Cardinals 5-4 in 11 innings. The Los Angeles Dodgers, idle Tuesday, lead the Giants by one-half game and the Reds by 2 1/2.

Veteran Willie Stargell homered for Pittsburgh's first run and rookie Don Robinson scattered five hits in 6 2/3 innings for his 10th victory and fifth in a row.

Phillies 5, Padres 3

Mike Schmidt's pair of doubles and one RBI and Bake McBride's three hits and two RBI paced the Phillies. Larry Christenson picked up the victory with 11-3 innings of relief from Ron Reed, who was credited with his 11th save.

The Phillies led from the start when Schmidt drew a leadoff walk in the first inning, took second on a balk and scored on McBride's single. They made it 3-0 in the third on a Schmidt double, a single by Larry Bowa, McBride's RBI single and a run-scoring double by Greg Luzinski, and Schmidt doubled home the eventual winning run in the sixth.

Astros 2, Cubs 1

Mark Lemongello scattered seven hits and Bruce Bochy drove in the winning run with a sixth-inning sacrifice fly. Houston took a 1-0 first-inning lead when Enos Cabell was hit by a pitch, moved to second on a walk to Jose Cruz and scored on Art Howe's single.

The Cubs put together an infield hit, two walks, a wild pitch, a passed ball and 10 stolen bases in the fifth inning but only scored one run. A oneout double by Howe, an intentional walk to Dennis Walling and Jimmy Sexton's single preceded Bochy's sacrifice fly in the sixth.

Giants 7, Mets 4

Darrell Evans brought San Francisco from behind with a three-run homer in the third inning and rookie John Tamargo followed with his first career home run. Evans, who also drove in a run with a sacrifice fly in the first inning, hit his 12th home run of the season in the third after Jack Clark and Willie McCovey singled off Nino Espinosa. Winner Ed Halicki allowed two first-inning runs and then blanked the Mets until the ninth.

Reds 5, Cardinals 4

George Foster singled home the winning run in the bottom of the 11th after Ken Griffey drew a two-out walk and stole second. After being held to two hits for eight innings by Tom Seaver, the Cardinals scored four times in the ninth to tie the game.

The Reds scored on a two-run homer by Dan Driessen in the fourth inning and a two-run single by Griffey in the seventh.

State's Jay Sherrill May Kick For Dallas

DALLAS (AP)—Again, the possible Achilles heel for the Dallas Cowboys is the front portion of a placekicking shoe.

The defending World Champion Cowboys may go into the regular National Football League season with free agent placekicker Jay Sherrill. This is an unsettled position the Cowboys have been in before.

Several years ago it was Efren Herrera who came out of UCLA and finally beat out Toni Fritsch, now with Houston. Herrera kicked well enough to make All-Pro last year but he was traded off to Seattle in a salary impasse.

Before Herrera, it was a steady succession of less than spectacular kickers. Dallas Cowboys Coach Tom Landry decided Tuesday he liked what he saw of Sherrill, who played for North Carolina State.

He said Sherrill would be Dallas' kicker in the preseason finale against the Pittsburgh Steelers Saturday night in Texas Stadium.

Free agent Skip Butler, a former Houston Oiler, failed to impress Landry in his week tryout with the club.

"We'll continue to look at other people but Sherrill has good potential," said Landry. "It's just a question of whether he can come to the top quick enough. He has a lot of pressure on him."

Sherrill is the son of former NFL player Bud Sherrill.

"Jay has a strong leg, good rhythm, and he's the type of kicker who can improve," said Landry. "He has a solid swing and his timing is good. He pushed one off last week against Houston but I think he'll groove his swing."

Landry said Butler "had good experience but wasn't as consistent as I would have liked to see. I just have a feel about kickers. This certainly wasn't any discredit to Skip."

Butler attempted and made an extra point against the Oilers Saturday in a 27-13 loss. Other than that he just kicked off. Sherrill kicked two field goals but missed two long attempts.

Ove Johansson, who formerly kicked for Philadelphia, was cut by the Cowboys two weeks ago. The former Abilene Christian star missed an extra point and had a field goal attempt blocked in his tryout with Dallas.

Landry promised a serious Cowboys team for the Steelers game.

Casper's Induction May Be Needed Boost

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Billy Casper said his induction into the World Golf Hall of Fame "may be just the boost I need."

"Sometimes we need a little help, a little ego-booster, to get us back on the right track. This could be the catalyst I've been needing to get me started again."

Casper, along with Bing Crosby, Clifford Roberts and old British stars Harold Hilton and Dorothy Campbell Hurd, were inducted into the Hall of Fame Tuesday night, swelling to 35 the number of men and women who have been honored since the Hall opened in 1974.

"It's a very rewarding, humbling thing," said Casper. "It's even nicer that it comes while I'm still alive and active and can appreciate it that much more."

Casper, who is competing in the $250,000 Hall of Fame Classic that begins Thursday, didn't discount the possibility of winning that title.

"Wouldn't that be something? That'd really top off the week," he said.

The durable Casper has won 51 American tour titles in a career that spans almost 25 years. Among his major titles are the 1959 and 1966 U.S. Opens and the 1970 Masters. He also acquired a record five Vardon Trophies for the low stroke average on the tour.

Crosby and Roberts, who died within a few months of each other last year, were selected to the Hall's Distinguished Service category. Crosby was the founder and guiding force behind the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am, for four decades a landmark event on the tour.

New Hall Of Famer

Billy Casper bites down on his tongue as he watches his drive on the 10th hole at the Pinehurst Country Club Tuesday. Casper, who is practicing for this week's Colgate-Hall of Fame Golf Classic, will be inducted into the World Golf Hall of Fame Tuesday night in the Modern Era category. (AP Laserphoto)

Redskins' Line A Question Mark

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

Roanoke High School will have some tough competition in its last season in the Eastern Plains Conference, but coach Nolan Respass feels the team can be successful if its interior line comes around.

The Redskins finished with a 6-5 overall record last season, losing to Camp Lejeune in the first round of the state 2-A playoffs. After a recent scrimmage, Respass commented, "I think things look fair, considering what we anticipated coming back this year. We were pretty well satisfied with the scrimmage the other night."

Respass is especially pleased with the talent in the offensive backfield, as well as the receivers. He said the Redskins will have a potent passing attack, if the offensive line can protect the quarterback.

On defense, the team's linebackers, defensive ends and secondary are strong. But again, the line is the big question mark.

In the middle of the offensive line will be senior center Street Lee (5-9, 175). He is a returning starter.

No less than eight players are battling for the four interior line positions. They include four seniors, Chuck Matheson (5-8, 205), Will Harris (5-9, 165), Roy Mobley (5-9, 200) and John Taft (6-0, 185); three juniors, Wendell Harts (5-10, 160), Russell Coburn (5-9, 190) and Terry Cotton (5-7, 140); along with sophomore Darryl Land (5-10, 160).

Respass said the biggest problem with the interior linemen is inexperience, none have ever played there before. All eight are about equal at this point, Respass said.

At tight end will be senior Sutton Edmondson (5-11, 165), a returning starter with good hands, although not an abundance of speed. Jerry Johnson (6-1, 185), a senior, will back him up.

The other receiver will be split end Anthony Latham (5-10, 150). The senior is the "bright spot" of the team, Respass said. "He's got real good speed and great receiving ability. He is an added dimension to our team."

Glenn Cargile (6-1, 175), a junior, will be the man responsible for getting the ball to Latham. He played some quarterback last season and runs the offense well, Respass said. His passing has improved greatly since last year. Backing him up will be senior Clay Roberson (5-9, 165). Both quarterbacks have experience.

Senior Barton Roberson (5-10, 165) should get the nod at fullback. He was second string there last year and has made "a great deal of improvement." Backing him up will be junior Wylie Keel (5-10, 185), a transfer student and "a welcome addition to our team," Respass commented.

The Redskins have two halfbacks with experience, senior Charles Hines (5-9, 155) and junior Tony Whitfield (5-10, 155). Hines is the team's big break-away threat and he can run the ball inside our outside. Whitfield is the strongest runner on the team, Respass said.

Three other players will also see time in the backfield. They are seniors Alvin Peterson (5-6, 135) and Leondus Worsley (5-7, 145), along with junior Steve Wallace (5-10, 165).

Offensively, Respass said, "I feel like we're going to be explosive because of the passing attack, but we need protection for the quarterback."

On the other side of the ball, Edmondson and Keel will start at the defensive end spots, with help from senior Maurice Chance (5-10, 155). "I feel like they can do an adequate job," Respass said.

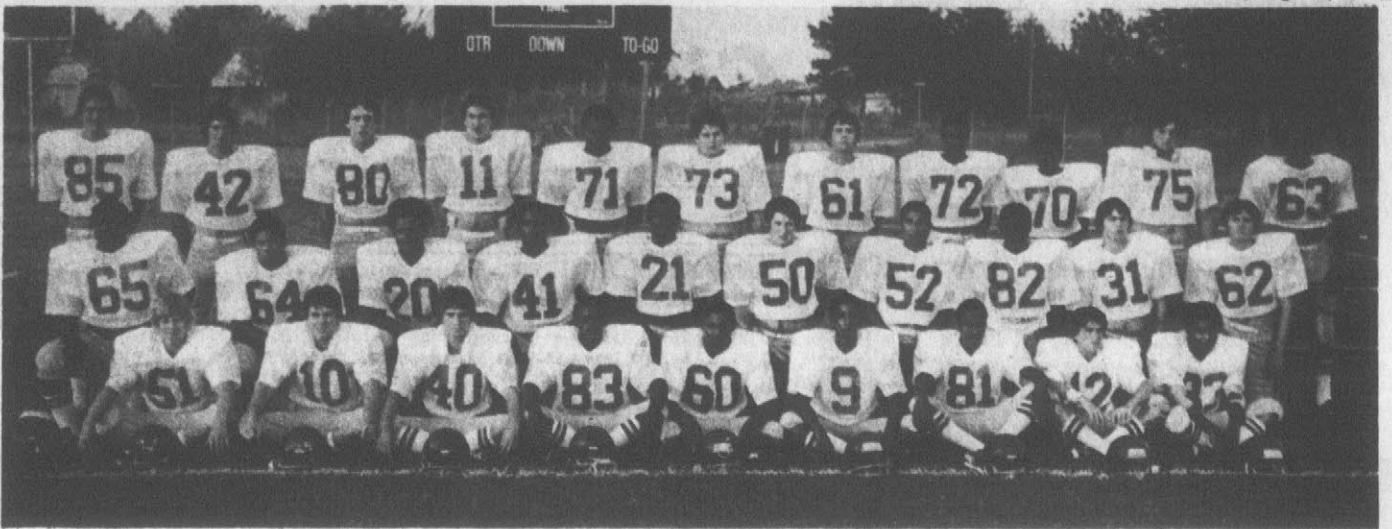

Three players are expected to log time at the tackle spots, Coburn, Matheson and Mobley. Land will be the team's middle guard. "He's a little small, but has a lot of quickness." Backing him up will be Taft.

Johnson, Harris and Lee will be the team's linebackers. Johnson is aggressive and quick, while Harris is a three-year starter who has been all-conference for two years.

In the defensive backfield, Roberson, the most aggressive player on the team, will be at strong safety, while Hines and Cargile will be at the corners. Latham will be the free safety.

This football season will be the last for the Eastern Plains Conference and will include some tough competition, Respass said, including two schools who will be 4-A, Hunt and Beddingfield.

Respass said Hunt, with many former Wilson Pike players, should be the strongest team in the league. But the Roanoke coach is not conceding anything yet. "I feel like we will be able to compete against them, barring injuries, and we have Hunt at our place."

Bjorn Borg: 22 Going On 50

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP)—He looks at you with cold, steely eyes, like a landlord asking for next month's rent. He talks in low, measured tones — with a slight accent — through thin, tight lips that denote seriousness and determination.

Bjorn Borg is a kid of 22, going on 50.

"Sure, I feel emotion like anybody else," he said levelly. "I get mad at myself when I blow a shot. I feel nervous when I am in a tight spot. I am conscious of crowds and distractions."

"I try not to show it. If I play a bad shot, if I do something stupid, if a call goes against me, I shut it out of my mind. If I worry about it, I lose the next point. So I try not to worry."

"How I feel inside I try to keep to myself. If I don't, maybe I lose concentration. If I don't hide it, maybe I give something away to my opponent."

"Do you mean, it's something like playing poker?" he was asked.

The handsome, young Swede looked momentarily perplexed. "Poker?" Perhaps this game was not in his frame of reference.

"Poker?" he repeated. "Maybe, yes." He didn't want to embarrass anyone.

They call him "Mr. Poker Face," "the Machine," "the Scandinavian Iceberg" — this court precisionist with the devastating two-fisted backhand, a top-spin forehand that is like a thunderclap and demeanor as stern and unshakable as the Rock of Gibraltar.

Let Jimmy Connors leap and lunge, strut and swagger, slam and swear. Let volatile Ilie Nastase fume until smoke comes out his ears. Let young John McEnroe throw racquets until his arm goes lame and spit Rose High School will hold a scrimmage football game with Williamston High School on Thursday.

The scrimmage will be held at the Williamston High School field, starting at 7 p.m.

A small admission charge will be made to those wishing to see the scrimmage.

The two teams open the regular season on Friday, September 1, with Rose traveling to Goldsboro, and Williamston hosting Farmville Central.

special significance for him. He is halfway home in pursuit of tennis' Grand Slam — French, Wimbledon, U.S. and Australian titles — and needs only to win the American and add the Australian in December to match the records set by Don Budge and Rod Laver.

"The Grand Slam is always on my mind," Bjorn said. Borg was in New York Tuesday to announce an addition to his numerous commercial enterprises — a six-figure contract to serve as international touring professional for Caesars Palace in Las Vegas where Pancho Gonzales is the tennis director. The young Swede, who has won three straight Wimbledons, three French, two Italian and the WCT championship, already banks more than $1 million a year from prize money and endorsements. After winning Wimbledon, he got $10,000 from a razor firm to shave off his beard on TV.

His mailing address is Monte Carlo. He has a summer mansion in Sweden. But he lives out of a suitcase — "Have Racquet, Will Travel" — and he is part of tennis' greatest road show, the "Borg-Connors Spectacular."

May Have Been Handcuffed

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A policeman may have been handcuffing a 17-year-old youth when he was fatally wounded after an alleged robbery of Kansas City Royals first baseman Pete LaCock, police said Tuesday.

Police Chief Norman A. Caron said Alex M. Clark, who died Monday after being shot Saturday night in a scuffle with LaCock, two companions and a policeman, was "between having one cuff on and no cuffs on" when his .32-caliber revolver discharged.

Police previously said Clark was brought back to the robbery scene after being caught by LaCock and his friends, and was shot as he struggled when they attempted to turn him over to a police officer.

Tuesday's statement by Caron was the first indication that Clark was being handcuffed when he was shot in the right eye.

Earlier Tuesday, the Jackson County prosecutors' office said the case will be reviewed by a grand jury. Jaylynn Fortney, county warrant officer, said the prosecutor had the option of ruling the death as a justifiable homicide or turning the case over to a grand jury. The grand jury still could issue a justifiable homicide ruling, she said.

U.S. Gold Sale Boosts Dollar

By JAMES R. PEIPERT
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. government's decision to sell more of its gold pushed the dollar sharply up on Europe's money markets today and brought the price of gold down below the $200 plateau for the first time in nearly a month.

Washington's announcement that it would increase its monthly gold sale from 300,000 ounces to 750,000 beginning November also touched off heavy buying of dollars in Tokyo but raised the exchange rate little.

The value of the dollar was also helped in Europe by a statement from Crown Prince Fahd, oil-rich Saudi Arabia's chief administrator, that the dollar is still the world's "most important currency" and should remain the medium of exchange for the oil trade.

Morning dollar rates in Europe were:

Zurich — 1.68375 Swiss francs, up from 1.6570 at the close of trading Tuesday.

Frankfurt — 2.0217 marks, up from 1.9990.

Paris — 4.4375 French francs, up from 4.382.

Milan — 845.25 lire, up from 839.

Amsterdam — 2.1825 guilders, up from 2.1590.

In London, the British pound dropped from $1.9295 to $1.9140.

"Right now it's all going the dollar's way," said one London dealer.

The dollar rose to 193 yen in heavy trading on the Tokyo foreign exchange, and $405 million changed hands in spot deals. But later in the day it eased back and closed at 192.05 yen, less than a yen above Tuesday's closing rate of 191.70.

The price of gold plunged more than $7 an ounce. It was quoted in London at $198.75, down $7.50 from Tuesday's closing price, and in Zurich, Europe's other major bullion market, at $198.875, down $7.75. The metal, bought by investors as a hedge in times of monetary uncertainty, broke through the $200 level on July 28 and hit an all-time high of $216.125 an ounce in Zurich on Aug. 15. It began the year at $169.50.

The dollar had been rising in Tokyo since Friday and has gained 7.55 yen, or more than 4 percent, in that time. One foreign exchange expert in the Japanese capital said although the buying spree this morning was the result of the Washington announcement of increased gold sales, the dollar's future still depends on such fundamental factors as the U.S. trade deficit.

Japanese and foreign banks expected additional U.S. measures in the near future to bolster the dollar and were building up their stock of dollars before the rate rose much higher. Volume for the day in Tokyo was very heavy, $723 million in spot turnover and $812 million in combined forward and swap trading.

Solar Power Will Run Airport

By ALLEN CARRIER
PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Working with the sun isn't easy or cheap, but scientists are closing in on a solar power system they hope will provide one solution to future energy shortages.

Planners from local government and officials of Arizona's largest utility are cooperating with engineers from Motorola's Government Electronics Division to build the world's largest solar cell power plant in Phoenix.

The scientists think they may have a successful solar converter operating within two years. More important, they predict that within 15 years the solar cell unit could generate several million kilowatt hours per year — enough electricity to supply the needs of 500 average homes — at a cost low enough to compete with other power sources.

Operating under the Phoenix sun, which shines an average of 294 days a year, the $8.7 million plant will be the largest single practical application of solar technology to date, according to Lee Johnson, a marketing manager for Motorola.

Motorola designed the solar cells and energy collectors with federal funding from the Department of Energy. The city donated a 12-acre site at the Phoenix Sky Harbor International Airport. Arizona Public Service Co. is managing the construction and eventually will operate the plant. And the state's Solar Energy Research Commission is studying possible public benefits from the project.

Construction is scheduled to begin late this fall with completion by late 1980. The plant will generate power for a new terminal at the airport.

The solar cell technology to be employed at the plant, based on technology used in manned and unmanned space projects, came after six years of development costing Motorola about $100 million.

It will produce photovoltaic power generated directly from the sun through use of solar cells.

The airport site was chosen because it met DOE grant requirements that the solar unit have public exposure, that it be built near the city's largest freeway, and that it be used to power an airport terminal building, allowing the public to actually experience solar energy uses.

Motorola engineers have developed photovoltaic concentrators, the most advanced solar modules to date, to collect the sunlight. The concentrators are bowl shaped and 30 inches in diameter. Inside the bowls are flat-plate collectors, onto which optical lenses focus the sun's rays.

The concentrators are set atop a freely moving mechanism geared to track the sun, allowing the concentrators to absorb as much sunlight in a day as possible. Each of the cells can generate 40 watts of power.

The Sky Harbor Airport project will have 14,250 of the concentrators.

Johnson emphasizes cost, not technology, now is the problem.

"The technical maturity has been reached and the systems can be expanded easily; it's the cost we have to bring down," Johnson said.

"It's quite expensive now because of the cost per watt, which is how everyone looks at electrical costs."

Keeping the costs of solar technology within limits is one of the criteria Motorola had to meet before receiving the DOE grant. The energy department is determined to make solar energy a competitive power source.

"We've reached that goal in isolated places," Johnson said. "It may seem expensive here in a developed area served by a large utility. But in some areas we are competitive with other power sources when you consider the costs of power poles and lines needed."

DOE last year decided to fund only solar energy projects which could keep construction costs at $2.00 per watt by 1983 and 50 cents per watt in 1990.

These figures compare with a 1977 Motorola estimate of $18.00 per watt for the Phoenix airport project. The solar plant construction is costing 12 times as much, per watt of electricity produced, as a conventional coal-fired plant.

"The DOE goal over the next ten years is optimistic," Johnson said. "Additional technology breakthroughs are needed before we reach that goal."

Motorola officials said the airport project design is expected to cost about $8.29 per watt once it begins operation.

"By the time we finish the airport project we should find that we can cut costs even further," Johnson said.

Jogger Aims For 3,400-Mile Trip

By REGINA J. HILLS
LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — Trudging through the parched desert, over the Rocky Mountains and across the barren plains can be a lonely experience for a 23-year-old businessman thousands of miles from home.

But marathon runner David J. McGillivray of Medford, Mass., is one determined young man who decided to brave the elements and the terrain to jog coast-to-coast in 80 days.

Ten pounds lighter than when he started June 11, McGillivray is attempting a 3,400-mile jog from Medford, Ore., to Medford, Mass. In mid-July he reached the halfway point of his trip as he jogged through Nebraska and, barring injuries, he plans to be home Aug. 29.

The day before his departure, the 5-foot-6, 128-pound Merrimack, Mass., college valedictorian ran a "ceremonial lap" around the King Dome in Seattle, where the hometown Mariners and the Boston Red Sox were about to play.

He plans another ceremonial lap around Fenway Park in Boston on Aug. 29 — the 80th day of his trip and the day the Mariners and Red Sox meet again.

Although he's a physical fitness advocate, McGillivray said he also hopes to raise money on his cross-country jog for the "Jimmy Fund," a nonprofit organization founded by Red Sox players who contribute to cancer research for children.

"In my heart I'm representing the U.S. to help little kids through the Jimmy Fund," he says. "Heck, I can shed 20 or 30 pounds of my flesh to help maybe one kid."

McGillivray said jogging is a good way to stay in shape but conceded "it's not for everybody."

An actuarial assistant for a Boston firm, McGillivray took a three-month leave of absence from work to participate in "my personal Olympics."

"What I literally did was take myself out of society and put myself in an environment where I am basically on my own," he said. "It's tough... (But) I think about knowing that each step I take is one step closer to home. I think about the kids."

McGillivray said he misses his family and girlfriend, not to mention the occasional night on the town.

"I haven't seen a movie in more than a month, I haven't gone out drinking. Saturday, Sunday, Monday — they're all the same. On July 4th we wanted to go out and party so bad, but all we did was have a cookout."

The first half of McGillivray's trip included some setbacks and several unexpected encounters. At one point he was hospitalized temporarily because of stiff knees. Muscle relaxing pills enabled him to continue the trip.

The unexpected encounters included rattlesnakes in Nevada and grasshopper infestations in eastern Colorado and western Nebraska.

Climbing the Rockies offered another challenge, but, McGillivray said, "It's all downhill from there." He also had to contend with some anxious steers while jogging on a secondary road in the Rockies.

"I was running down a mountain once and one steer was looking across the street. He looked at me like 'whatta you doing.' Right behind him were about seven others. They had to cross the street and I was in the way so I ran like crazy."

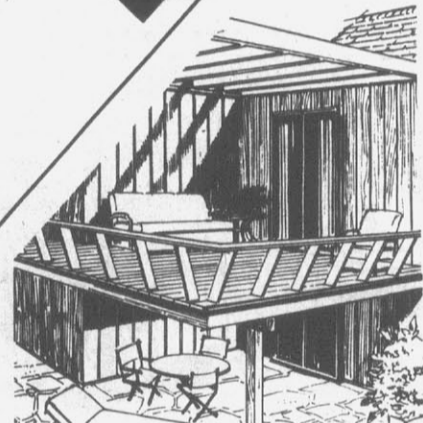

Although completing the 15state trip in 80 days is a major goal, McGillivray said each effort, an average of 45 miles a day, is a great accomplishment.

Three companions in a mobile home, who ride a bicycle or moped or run beside him, help drive away boredom.

"Every day's a new day. It's like 80 separate goals. You get to the point where you're physically fatigued and physically exhausted, but it gets down to the reason you're running."

"If you get a pain, you can't rest; you have to get out there and run with the pain."

Seek Funds To Resume

ROBBINSVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Officials of Graham County are seeking an $800,000 federal grant to reactivate a small railroad which went out of business after a flood in 1975 washed out two trestles.

Renewed operation railroad could mean a lot to the economy of this mountainous region in far western North Carolina.

Back in 1925, the little Graham County Railroad opened for business. It hauled freight from Topton, where it joins the Southern Railroad, to Robbinsville, a distance of about 12 miles.

In the 1960s, the railroad sold its old steam locomotives to the Bear Creek Scenic Railroad and purchased diesel engines, and the two railroads shared the same tracks until 1970, when the line was abandoned for two years.

Service resumed in 1973 when Burlington Industries opened a furniture plant in Robbinsville, but the flood shut the line down again in 1975.

Now Burlington has promised to expand the Robbinsville plant and add 400 jobs if the railroad is reactivated.

The Graham County Development Corp. has applied to the U.S. Economic Development Administration for the grant. Approval, according to corporation president Tom Garden, "is 90 percent certain, but nothing is absolutely sure."

Long-Time Musician Gained Most Fame As Violin Maker

WAYNESVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Ernest Hodges says he doesn't remember when he couldn't read music. He can recall selling possum skins and digging ginseng roots to buy his first banjo.

"It cost $5.98," recalled the 70-year-old North Carolina native, "and I can remember playing all of 'My Old Kentucky Home' when I got it."

Hodges, who has returned to Waynesville to live after an exciting life of music, showed off how his talents on the banjo have progressed over a lifetime. He played Bach on the banjo and made it sound like the music came from a harpsichord.

"I just took Bach and composed it so it could be played on the banjo," Hodges said. "The banjo can be made to sound like the harpsichord," the precursor of the modern piano.

At one time, Hodges was featured over 72 NBC stations as a fiddler and banjoist. He toured extensively with shows and players of the past. In addition, he was the music critic and a member of the editorial arts department of the Atlanta Constitution.

His first instrument before the $5.98 banjo was "a longnecked gourd, and the strings were horsehair," Hodges added.

But it was Hodges' reputation as a master craftsman in making violins that earned him international fame. Some of his violins have been compared with those of the Cremona masters era, the period in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries during which famous violins, including the Stradivarius, were produced in Cremona, Italy.

He will not promise to deliver a violin in less than two years, and does not charge less than $1,000 for one. "I never really timed it," said Hodges, "but one violin maker I know says it takes 300 hours to make a violin."

Hodges said he prefers "violin for your classics and fiddle for your good old hoedowns."

"One of the most important things is to understand the wood you are working with," he said. "The tonal qualities of the wood must be just right. You use spruce for the top, and the rest is maple."

There are 70 pieces to a violin. Hodges said an electrical saw helps, but it's still the work with the hands that is most important.

"You don't want to lose a valuable piece of wood," he said. "Each wood is treated differently, and I work out a blueprint in my mind. Most of the tools I use go back 100 to 150 years."

He believes that a violin, like a fine wine, improves with age. "A good violin will improve 10 percent each year. A violin is like a woman: loving, gay, brilliant or shrewd. A woman is a beautiful creature, the violin is the most beautiful of musical instruments," Hodges said.

"I would like to just point out one thing about the making of a violin," Hodges said. "The violins of the masters of the past have been broken down and measured in every dimension, and other violins have been made exactly to those specifications. And they were miserable failures."

There Are Some Ways That Urban Problems Can Be Solved

By JONATHAN WOLMAN
AP Urban Affairs Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Stuart Eizenstat, the scholarly, circumspect White House adviser, took to the podium recently to talk about "the single most satisfying thing I've done in my 18 months in Washington."

Tax policy? National defense? The Panama Canal? Nothing so monumental. Instead, Eizenstat, head of the president's domestic policy staff, was explaining the status of about 100 administrative changes that form the "nucleus" core of President Carter's urban policy.

Policy initiatives generally revolve around new programs — and the urban policy has its fair share — but there are several factors that explain the attractiveness of reshaping what's already on the books.

Among them:
—You do not have to worry about Congress.
—New regulations come cheap.
—There's gold in them thar hills.

That is, much can be achieved to help the cities simply by redirecting the emphasis of current programs, and by tightening management.

City officials have been complaining for years that federal housing, tax and highway policies have inadvertently stimulated the suburban sprawl that slowly-but-surely sapped the economic and social vitality from many of the nation's central cities.

Thus, the White House directed federal departments and agencies to go through their arsenal of programs to identify "anti-urban" biases, and to correct them.

One example was announced early last week by Housing and Urban Development Secretary Patricia Harris when she finally achieved a semblance of control over the Federal National Mortgage Association, known as Fannie Mae, a quasi-governmental housing finance agency that has been pursuing policies antagonistic to Carter's urban goals.

After months of bitter feuding with Fannie Mae officials, HUD imposed regulations designed to push the agency deep into the business of stimulating central city home investment. "What we will have is a much more socially responsible agency," Eizenstat said.

Eizenstat highlighted other changes in existing programs.

New Environmental Protection Agency rules will make it more difficult for federal sewer money to subsidize suburban sprawl. Changes at the Economic Development Administration will shift EDA's traditional focus away from rural and small town projects. Urban aid will double, to 50 percent of EDA's budget. He also said the administration is on target in its effort to double the amount of federal purchasing from minority-owned businesses.

Argentine wool exports are expected to reach 163,000 tons this year, according to Dr. Mario Cadenas Madariaga, secretary of agriculture.

Golf Ball Sale Brings $13,400

Spearheaded by the Greenville Club, Rotary districts 773, 771 and 769 have raised $13,400, exceeding a goal of $11,000, to remodel the Rotary Cottage at Lake Waccamaw Boys Home.

Dr. George C. Martin Jr., retired East Carolina University geography professor, provided the Rotary Clubs with 5,500 used golf balls which were sold to raise the money. The balls were sold for a minimum of $1 each, but many were sold for much more.

Presentation of the money was made recently in Fayetteville and featured an address by Clem Renouf, president of Rotary International, from Australia. Rotary International is represented in 152 countries.

"This successful fund raising drive," Renouf said, "is typical of Rotary projects that I see in all parts of the world to serve mankind."

The Lake Waccamaw Boys

Home is located in Rotary district 773, which raised $11,400 of the fund. An additional $1,000 each was donated by Districts 771 and 769.

The Greenville club led all clubs by donating $2,285, an average of $23.08 per member. In second place was Whiteville with $19.23 per member: Chadburn, $14.66; Clinton, $11.40; Jacksonville, $10.13; Bethel and Pollockville, $10; Maysville, $9.64; Elizabethtown, $9.61; Fayetteville, $9.09; West Fayetteville, $8.77; and Morehead City, $8.62.

Other clubs participating in order of contributions per member include Red Springs, Washington, Lillington, Wallace, Mount Olive, Wilmington, Fairmont, Swansboro, Goldsboro, Dunn, Lumberton, Kinston, Belhaven-Pantego, Ayden, Farmville, Clarkton, Warsaw-Kenansville, Newport and LaGrange.

Surgical Sterilization Shows Marked Increase

By ANN BLACKMAN Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Although fewer women are using the oral contraceptive pill, it is still the most popular method of birth control, a new federal report shows.

Also, almost one-third of America's 27.2 million married couples with wives of child-bearing age are sterile, the report says, a result of the dramatic increase in surgical sterilization among white couples.

"Sterilization is taking over because it is so effective," said Dr. Kathleen Ford, author of the report released by the National Center for Health Statistics.

Sterility is defined as the physical incapability of one or both partners to produce a child.

Ms. Ford's report shows that 22.3 percent of all fertile couples in 1976 used the oral contraceptive pill to prevent conception, a drop from 25.1 percent in 1973.

In contrast, figures show that in 1976, about 7.2 percent of all married couples used a condom for birth control; 6.1 percent used intrauterine devices; 3.4 percent used the rhythm method; 3 percent used foam and 2.9 percent used a diaphragm. The rest used less effective methods, such as withdrawal.

"It is the first time the center has found a decrease in use of the pill," Ms. Ford said in an interview. She added that there was little use of the pill before the 1960s but that use increased rapidly during the 1960s and early 1970s.

Ms. Ford's report shows that in 1976, about 30.2 percent of couples with wives ages 15 to 44 said they were sterile. This was an increase of six percentage points from 1973.

The 1976 figures show that 28.3 percent of all couples were sterile as a result of surgery, and 1.9 percent were sterile for non-surgical reasons, such as disease or congenital defects.

In 1973, 22.9 percent of all couples were sterile as a result of surgery and less than 1 percent for non-surgical reasons.

Figures show that in 1976, about 29.1 percent of white couples were sterile as a result of surgery, compared to 23.1 percent in 1973. The percent of black couples that were sterile as a result of surgery changed only slightly — from 20.8 percent in 1973 to 21.7 percent in 1976.

Courtesy Inspection

The Greenville Police Department and the Mobile Crime Watch will sponsor a third courtesy inspection and radar check program Saturday from 1 p.m. to 6 o'clock on Red Banks Road behind the Ramada Inn.

More than 150 vehicles have been checked in the previous two sessions.

Officers, crime watch members and Junior Police Cadets will offer free courtesy inspections of cars and trucks, checking such safety equipment as brakes, lights, windshield wipers and horns, as well as tires, fan belts and radiator hoses.

Officers will also check vehicle speedometers with a radar unit - giving an opportunity for motorists to see how speed-checking radar operates and at the same time finding out how accurate the car's speedometer is.

Officials said only about 15 per cent of the speedometers checked during the project have been accurate. Some 55 per cent of those checked have been fast, while 30 per cent have been slow.

Plan Trip To

Kings Dominion

Selvia Chapel FWB Church is sponsoring a trip to King's Dominion Saturday.

The bus fare is $10.50 and doesn't include the admission fee to King's Dominion.

The bus will leave the church grounds at 6:30 a.m.

To Celebrate

Anniversary

St. Matthew Choir No. II will celebrate its first anniversary Sunday at 3 p.m. at St. Matthew FWB Church.

The public is invited to attend, according to pastor Hattie Cobb.

Doctors say one medium carrot supplies all the vitamin A you need for one day, and one serving of broccoli fills your daily need for vitamin C.

Gorilla Stirkes Out

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Ramar, the 9-year-old gorilla brought to the Philadelphia Zoo from North Carolina to make a couple of lovely, hairy female gorillas pregnant, hasn't had any luck.

That's because after living with the females for two months, he hasn't even tried. Zoo officials say the problem is that Ramar, who is on loan from the North Carolina Zoo, was raised from infancy by humans and apparently lacks knowledge of gorilla mating habits.

"We're hoping nature will take over," said Steve Viola, the Philadelphia Zoo's assistant curator.

It's conceivable — forgive the expression — that Ramar doesn't care for older women. Both of his potential mates, Samantha and Haloko, are 10.

"Untrue," observed Dr. Robert Snyder, the zoo's director of research. He said Ramar could be frightened or ignorant of the sex scene "because he doesn't really know what to do."

After all, until last July, Ramar had never even seen another adult gorilla.

But things are looking up, said Dr. Wilbur Amand, the Philadelphia Zoo's head veterinarian. "Ramar's slowly coming around and now sits down in close proximity to the females, shares food with them, and they occasionally touch."

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, AUGUST 24, 1978

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Get your facts and figures set clearly in mind and then doublecheck. Later, you have a chance to benefit and gain by a new slant and interest in whatever is basic to your life.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Be precise in handling financial affairs early in the day, then get home affairs improved. Make sure a needed report is correct, also.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Take pains with your appearance early and then you make headway in both business and social matters. Don't sign any papers that you could later regret having done.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Take care you do not cause any further restrictions around you by wrong thinking, acting. Plan carefully instead. Listen to what a trusted adviser has to suggest and follow best ideas.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Forcing your ideas on others just to gain your aims could backfire on you, so be tactful. You have a slow start early but later you contact right persons and get right results.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Handle community affairs early and state your wishes clearly to others. Pay a pressing bill before you confer with a bigwig.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study those new interests well in the morning before you get busy on them later in the day. Don't make that trip hastily until you are sure of what you are doing. Get your books in order.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Steer clear of a gossip and you get much accomplished. Plan repairs to property. Forget emotional desire that is not for you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Forget civic problems for today and get busy on your own business affairs. Be more cooperative with associates.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Instead of concentrating on making changes, get busy and work on present setup and achieve more success. Be practical and persevere for best results. Your hunches are erroneous so don't follow them.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Pay that debt and then you can go to recreations that appeal to you. Don't argue with loved ones. Put creative ideas to work.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Don't argue with an associate but listen to ideas and try to cooperate. Try to understand the thinking of a loved one before getting angry about it.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Work duties are annoying in the morning so spend time getting information you need to make everything work out more smoothly. Try to be more understanding with a partner.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be so concerned with the materialistic that the idealistic could very well be forgotten in the process. Add foreign languages to curriculum and then give your son, daughter free rein.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

So legendary are the skills of Jean Besse, that we tend to overlook the other players on Switzerland's national team. That is unfortunate, for the Swiss are one of Europe's strongest teams. Watch the performance of Tom Fenwick on this hand from the team championship at the recent World Bridge Olympiad in New Orleans.

As you can see, the Swiss have no objection to opening four-card major suits. North was a bit strong for his leap to game, but that did not affect the final contract. West led his singleton spade. Declarer won the ace and returned a spade, which West chose to ruff—a rather unusual action that, fortunately, had no effect on the final result. West shifted to a diamond, and dummy's king lost to East's ace. East returned the king of spades, and declarer was faced with a problem.

If East held the eight of hearts, declarer could ruff three spades, starting with the seven of trumps. However, since West ruffed to have length in hearts, he was more likely to hold the eight, so that line was rejected.

A second choice was to ruff two spades with the K-9 of trumps and rely on the club finesse—a straight 50 percent chance. But Fenwick found an even better line—two diamond finesses! Declarer ruffed the spade return high and led the eight of diamonds. When West played low, declarer discarded a club from dummy. East was forced to win with the queen, and declarer's jack of diamonds was not the tenth trick. The diamond play kept open all of declarer's options. If East won the diamond with the ten, rather than the queen, declarer could still fall back on either of the lines that he had temporarily abandoned. In addition, there was still a third line available—to play West for the queen of diamonds and take a second ruffing finesse in the suit.

Your play to the first trick could decide the fate of the contract! A writer once remarked: "There's no such thing as a blind opening lead, only deaf opening leaders!" Campaign Is Musical CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Gov. Meldrim Thomson, who has battled anti-nuclear demonstrators, high taxes and court rulings, is venturing into the world of popular music in his fight for re-election.

Scheduled for release today is "Live Free or Die," a 45-rpm single that touts the colonial virtues of New Hampshire and carries Thomson's campaign message.

"We are hoping that everyone will be tapping their toes to this song by November," said Peter Thomson, Thomson's son and campaign manager.

"Live Free or Die, don't let the freedom pass you by. Stand up proud and strong and lead this country on," a group sings on side one, which offers the message that the virtues which once made America great now exist almost exclusively in New Hampshire.

On the flip side, with the "Live Free or Die" refrain playing in the background, Thomson reminds voters that New Hampshire is the only state without a general sales or income tax, has a triple-A bond rating and has the lowest unemployment rate in the region.

RFK Asked For Delay

NEW YORK (AP) — Robert Kennedy was "speechless" at the prospect of his sister-in-law Jacqueline marrying Greek shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis and asked her to hold up announcing her plans until after the 1968 Democratic convention, the Ladies Home Journal reports.

An excerpt published today from the upcoming book "Jackie Oh!" by Kitty Kelley, a freelance writer, said Jacqueline Kennedy agreed to the request, saying "I know this is what the Ambassador (her father-in-law, Joseph P. Kennedy) would want me to do."

Fire Hits High Point

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — Fire of undetermined origin demolished a furniture manufacturing plant and warehouse in downtown High Point Tuesday night and destroyed a half dozen vehicles at an adjacent auto dealership.

Robert Peele, owner and operator of the Your Store Discount House plant, was working in the front of the two-story building about 8:10 p.m. when someone knocked on the front door to tell him the building was on fire.

Within an hour the flames had devoured the building, which Peele told Fire Chief H.L. Thompson was not insured, and all its contents.

No one was seriously hurt. Two High Point firemen were taken to High Point Memorial Hospital suffering from smoke inhalation, but they were quickly released.

Chief Thompson called in 75 to 100 firemen. Every piece of heavy equipment in the city was sent, except two held in reserve to protect the rest of the city. A Guil-Rand volunteer fire truck was also sent to High Point to wait in reserve.

Thompson said the fire spread very quickly. "He (Peele) was at work when they heard about it," the chief said. "By the time he could walk two thirds of the way to the back of the building, the smoke was so bad he couldn't see where the fire was. He ran back to the front and called the fire department."

The fire was contained about 9:30 p.m., the chief said.

"The whole building is a total loss," Thompson said. "It was a very difficult fire to fight. Sparks were flying everywhere and floating along South Main.

Farmville Tops Mark

FARMVILLE — Due to an increase of quality tobacco on the Farmville market Tuesday, the daily average of $139.45 broke all previous records, according to Louis N. Williams, sales supervisor for the Farmville Tobacco Board of Trade.

Prices remained steady from Monday, Williams noted. The volume of cutters and leaf Tuesday was the most for the season, with low grades of primings and nondescript accounting for a small percent of sales.

The market sold 664,319 pounds yesterday for $898,485 for $139.45 per hundredweight. This compared with $120.48 per hundredweight last year.

Season totals are 8,098,690 pounds for $1,307,916, an average of $127.28. Last year's average was $101.46 per hundred pounds.

Check On Shooting

Greenville Police are investigating the shooting of two persons near the intersection of 11th and Greene Streets about 1:10 a.m. today.

Chief Glenn Cannon identified the victims as Elizabeth Ann Jollie and Rodney Mills of 1206 South Washington St.

Cannon said the couple were walking near the 11th and Greene intersection when a dog allegedly began running after them. The chief said a bottle was apparently thrown at the dog, after which a man with a shot gun allegedly shot at the pair, causing minor injuries.

Both were treated and released from Pitt Memorial Hospital.

This Father Really Unhappy

By RAMESH C. PANDE
 VARANASI, India (UPI) — The Hindu father of a girl often is the unhappiest man at her wedding — he is losing not only a daughter but his life's savings, too.

Although dowry is forbidden by Indian law, the tradition has become so entrenched that the birth of a girl sometimes is considered a sorrowful occasion.

Looming in her parents' mind is the eventual prospect of her marriage that could wipe out the family's life savings.

One daughter is an unhappy drain. Two or more have been regarded as such a disaster fathers in the Punjab area have been considered justified if they strangled their baby girls.

The dowry means plenty of hard cash, expensive gifts and ornaments for the bridegroom and his innumerable relatives.

In the remote countryside, where the long arm of the law rarely reaches, a list of gift requirements is delivered in advance to the prospective bride's parents.

Cash amounts vary according to the status of the future in-laws. Requested gifts could run from a tractor to a bullock cart.

It is not uncommon for the father of a daughter in a wealthier urban environment to shell out money to finance his son-in-law's studies abroad.

Parents in most cases arrange matches because Indians believe marriages are made in heaven.

Many Reasons For Market Turn

Interstate Securities Corporation

There have been a number of reasons given for the 160 point market advance since March of this year. These have involved prospects that a peak in money rates was near, chances that any recession would be shallow, that stocks were becoming an inflation hedge and that stocks simply reached undervalued levels last winter. The real reason may be somewhat more complicated or at least not so easily understood. That reason pertains to the internal technical condition of the market.

At the end of March, most institutional money interests had built up considerable cash. These mutual funds, pension funds, banks, insurance funds, etc., had been selling on

Bureaucracy Can Help You

By PETER A. BROWN
 NEWTON, Mass. (UPI) — Most people swear at the federal bureaucracy, but Matthew J. Lesko swears by it. Lesko is a Washington-based consultant who makes a living — apparently a pretty good one at that — telling people how to use the vast resources of the federal government at little or no cost.

Essentially, Lesko is an information broker, putting people in touch with the government's expert on everything from pickled fruit to investments.

Lesko's firm, Washington Researchers Inc., will try to find out anything you want to know. And he says more often than not it won't cost him anything to get the information from the government.

Among his clients are some of the nation's biggest corporations. But he's got tips that make life easier for just about everyone. He'll even tell you how to find out how many calories there are in a hot fudge sundae.

"I'm convinced there's nothing you can't get an answer for (from the federal bureaucracy,) if you know where to ask," he told a recent seminar.

Lesko holds seminars around the country for clients — consulting firms, university workers, librarians and such — on how to use the government's resources.

His message is that federal bureaucracy, the object of every politician's scorn, is an information gold mine for researchers.

"The bureaucrat is always a good place to begin; if he balance throughout 1977 and during the first three months of 1978. Then in early April, the dollar began to rebound after a long decline. This reportedly triggered a rush of buy orders from foreign investors that would benefit both from a rising dollar and a rising American stock market. These institutional money interests joined the bandwagon and the 1978 buying stampede was on.

If this technical argument is valid then a sign that the institutional buyers have depleted much of their cash reserve would be negative for the market. Recent cash position readings for the mutual fund industry have been near ten percent. If this drops below eight percent, this indicator will have returned to a negative position.

doesn't know the answer he can often refer us to someone who will. They are pleased to be asked."

Actually, Lesko says, they are more than pleased. "There are hundreds of middle level bureaucrats who develop expertise for years in a specific subject and are just dying to tell someone about it. And they are experts."

Lesko tells about Charlie Porter: "A couple of years ago I had a client wanting to know whether to continue investing in Maine potatoes, which were selling at a high price at the time, or sell what he had."

"I called up everyone I could think of and couldn't find anyone who really was sure. So I looked through the U.S. Department of Agriculture directory and found Charlie listed as the potato expert. I called him, made an appointment, and he told me everything I wanted to know about potatoes, including that it was a poor investment because the prices would soon fall. He was right."

"There are hundreds of middle level bureaucrats in Washington, dying to let you pick their brains. It's just a matter of finding the right Charlie."

Lesko also tells about the time a client wanted to see what a contract between a soft drink manufacturer and a bottler should look like. He thought he had reached a dead end when the industry refused to supply it. Then he found Congress had held hearings on the topic. A sample contract just happened to be in the public record.
