Cardinal Baggio Said To Be Front Runner In Papal Field

By EDWARD MAGRI
Associated Press Writer

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Italian Embassy to the Vatican and a leftist Genoa newspaper's computer make Italian Cardinal Sebastiano Baggio the front runner in the race for pope.

A Rome newspaper reported that Ambassador Vittorio Cordero di Montezemolo prepared a "working paper" surveying 12 papabili, or possible popes. It said he concluded that Baggio, 65, and Cardinal Paolo Bertoli, 70, would be the leading contenders in the secret conclave of cardinals beginning Friday to elect a successor to Pope Paul VI.

Both are veterans of the Vatican Curia, the central administration of the Roman Catholic Church.

Baggio, the prefect of the Congregation of the Bishops, was reported "well liked by the Curia" and "intelligent, able, patient and tenacious."

The working paper said Bertoli, former head of the Congregation for the Causes of the Saints, was "open to religious renewal" and had "the right energy."

The survey also said despite speculation that a non-Italian might be chosen, an Italian seemed a shoo-in because of their "flexibility, knowledge of the complex (Vatican) mechanism and habit of freeing themselves from nationalistic attitudes."

The ambassador confirmed the existence of the working paper but said it was "for internal use only" and was never forwarded to the Italian Foreign Ministry.

Baggio, a Vatican diplomat who has traveled extensively in North and South America, also came in ahead in a computer survey the leftist Genoa newspaper Il Lavoro said it made.

The paper said it fed its computer biographical data and political and ecclesiastical "ratings" of the 111 cardinals who will vote in the conclave. It said while no cardinal got the highest possible score of 100 points, Baggio, outgoing head of the Vatican's Congregation for the Bishops, came in first with 81.04.

Bertoli was second with 79.92. Then came the retired archbishop of Turin, Giovanni Pellegrino, with 79.53; the archbishop of Genoa, Giuseppe Siri, 79.25, and Albini Luciani, the patriarch of Venice, 77.02.

The paper did not disclose the criteria in its point system.

Bound by an oath of secrecy, the cardinals carefully avoid making their preferences known in public. But there is much private discussion and subtle politicking before they enter the conclave area of the Apostolic Palace.

When the cardinals enter the conclave area Friday evening, all doors will be locked. They will sleep in cells with sealed windows. They will be allowed to receive or send out no newspapers or magazines. Other printed matter and letters must be submitted to the scrutiny of Bishop Ernesto Civaldi, secretary of the Sacred College of the Cardinals.

Large Group Appears To Protest Rezoning

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

A large crowd turned out last night in apparent opposition to a rezoning request before the city Planning and Zoning Commission involving property at the intersection of Club Pines Drive and NC 11.

Spokesmen for the citizen gathering were applauded after they voiced strong opposition to a request by AJHM, with John Moye serving as agent, to rezone approximately 1.9 acres at the intersection from the residential designation of R-9 to Office and Institutional.

The spokesmen cited safety hazards, especially to children of the Club Pines subdivision, as a result of an increase in traffic that they said would follow development of the AJHM property.

The tract under consideration is located on the north and south sides of Club Pines Drive at the NC 11 intersection. It was noted by acting city planner, Skip Browder.

Moye explained that the property was inherited in 1970 and the R-9 zoning already applied. He contended that the highway frontage would not be desirable for a home and he said the property owners felt they were making a proper request to rezone.

Commission chairman E. E. (Ed) Howell, recognizing the size of the gathering at the meeting, asked that spokesmen for the citizens address the matter rather than have everyone voice opposition. Asking that spokesmen limit their remarks to three minutes, Howell emphasized that "this is not a public hearing."

A 30-day tabling period automatically applies to rezoning requests, it was pointed out, unless commissioners vote to waive the procedure. Howell told the audience that they would have another chance to voice their opposition.

Miles Frost of 601 Club Pines Drive, who said he was the third property owner to locate on the drive in 1973, pointed to the "protective zone" that was included not only for Club Pines but for other nearby sections.

Frost noted that Club Pines is the only area that requires three school buses to pick up children with the only access available through Club Pines Drive. Saying that the safety of children was his basic concern, Frost added that he purchased property in the area with the sanctity of the residential zoning in mind.

Dr. Ed Davis of 401 Club Pines Drive said that residents of the area have already been through a problem with the City Council regarding the entrance to the new Carolina East Mall, going up across NC 11.

Davis said that residents were concerned with the traffic flow generated by rezoning and development of the property at the intersection. Motorists are using Club Pine Drive as a short cut to NC 11, it was mentioned.

According to Davis, no rezoning change would be acceptable in the area.

Howell assured the citizens on hand that the commission would "take your thoughts into consideration" in making its recommendation to the City Council. That recommendation would follow next month's meeting. In a matter on the joint planning board agenda, commissioners voted to ask the Council to consider changing the R6-Mobile Home permitted uses to include mobile home parks. Currently, the zone permits individual mobile units.

The board action followed a request by J. T. Williams to rezone 2.3 acres in Azalea Gardens Mobile Home Park, located just east of Brook Valley subdivision, from RA-20 to R6-Mobile Home. Williams, noting that the park was built prior to zoning designations being applied to the property, explained that he wanted to take out some units on the front that have been rented for offices and replace them with modular units that would be rented as apartments.

Browder added that Williams indicated he wanted to make the zoning for the area conform to multi-family usage. Present R6-Mobile Home zones do not allow mobile home park development, he said.

Browder said that since the rezoning matter would be tabled anyway, the Council could be requested to consider changing the mobile home zone in the meantime and if it occurred, Williams might consider having the entire park property rezoned.

Williams indicated that he would agree if the park became a permitted use under the mobile home designation. He said that he had planned to put in the modular units in place of mobile homes in phases.

A third request for rezoning, submitted by Kenneth Whichard for 42.7 acres south of Greenville Boulevard between Seaboard Coast Line Railroad and Belvedere Subdivision, was also tabled for 30 days.

Whichard is seeking to rezone the property, which currently is designated for RA-20 (residential-agricultural) use, into three tracts, involving Highway Commercial, R-6 and R-9. The property is located behind the tract proposed as the development site for the new Sheraton Motel on Greenville Boulevard.

The Highway Commercial section would border on the railroad, it was explained, and involve approximately 18 to 20 acres of the total tract. An evergreen shrubbery buffer would be planned between the residential and R-6 sections.

A resident of Belvedere Subdivision said that he was concerned about traffic inflow from the new development into Belvedere and he asked about the plans for access roads into the subdivision.

Whichard said that no specific road plan has been decided and streets could either tie in with Belvedere or not tie in, depending on development plans.

Commissioners voted to waive the 30-day tabling period and recommend to the Council that the request of Ferrell L. Blount III for rezoning a tract on the north side of 14th Street between Chanele's Restaurant and Green Mill Run from Office and Institutional to Downtown Commercial Fringe be approved.

Browder said the rezoning of CDF would make the property compatible with current uses in the area. Blount had originally requested that 24,650 square feet of the tract be rezoned, the planner reported, but after looking at the overall tract, it was decided that the initial request involved spot zoning.

The rezoning would provide CDF to the floodway of Green Mill Run, Browder said.

The request of A. J. Speight for rezoning 24,650 square feet on the south side of NC 43 between the Texaco Station and

New Element In Liquor Furor

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A new area of disagreement has cropped up between opponents and supporters of mixed drinks here.

The question is whether supporters of liquor by the drink are inviting punishment from God.

"When you violate the spiritual law of God you pay the price," anti-liquor leader Henderson Belk says.

"You watch whoever's involved in the campaign (for mixed drinks) and see what happens to them," Belk told 14 persons gathered at a Methodist church Tuesday night.

State Rep. Parks Helms of Charlotte, a catalyst in getting local option mixed-drink legislation through the state General Assembly this year, disagrees.

"Well, you know, I don't believe in a vindictive or a judgmental God," Helms said Wednesday at a news conference called by mixed drink supporters to discuss the new legislation.

The Rev. Coy Privette, chief strategist for anti-liquor forces, declined to align himself with Belk's statements.

"I can't play God," Privette said. "When all of us stand in His presence, we can ask Him a lot of questions we don't know."

Privette said the main issue in the campaign is the best way to control the distribution of liquor.

"I have not seen or read what he (Belk) said. I have to talk to my dear brother about what he said," Privette said.

Mecklenburg County will hold the state's first local-option referendum on Sept. 8. Both supporters and opponents of liquor by the drink have organized and launched campaigns.

Belk, a member of the wealthy department-store family, cited what he described as examples of what happens to persons who support liquor by the drink.

The family of the late Joseph Kennedy, an importer of Scotch whiskey, lost three sons to early deaths, including the late President John Kennedy. Another son, Sen. Ted Kennedy, was seriously injured in a plane crash and a youth in the family lost a leg to cancer, Belk said.

He also mentioned John J. Ryan of Charlotte, a former vice president of Southern Bell Telephone Co.

Ryan, who headed an unsuccessful statewide campaign for mixed drinks in 1973, was embroiled in legal and personal troubles for five years in connection with political slush funds within Southern Bell. Ryan went through an emotional trial in May on charges he embezzled money from Southern Bell, but he was acquitted.

Asked if Ryan's troubles happened because he supported mixed drinks, Belk said, "I'm making a notation of what happened to him since the liquor-by-the-drink thing... That curse was on him when he took that job."

Helms responded to Belk's statements by saying he believes people will be judged on the basis of "what they're really worth."

Liquor advocates called the news conference for Helms to discuss the local-option legislation.

Helms said the measure for the first time will make it illegal for a bartender to sell to a person who is drunk. The courts will have to set an exact definition for intoxication, Helms said.

Carter Raft Trip Ending

By MAUREEN SANTINI
Associated Press Writer

ALONG THE SALMON RIVER, Idaho (AP) — President Carter is taking a last 16-mile run down the rapids of the Middle Fork of the Salmon River before he flies to Wyoming for a week at Grand Teton National Park.

After breaking camp at Elk Bar today, the president and his family head toward the bluffs of the Impassable Canyon and end their three-day rafting and camping trip at the confluence of the Salmon River and its Middle Fork.

In the Teton, where he will spend the last week of the two-week holiday, Carter said he plans to hike, fish, and ride horses. He plans to visit Yellowstone National Park.

During the 71-mile river journey that began Tuesday, the first family shot seven feet down a waterfall in their 20-foot rubber raft. After clearing the fall, an aluminum handle snapped on one of the raft's two long oars. Carter, his wife Rosalynn, daughter Amy, and sons Chip and Jack, were delayed for an hour as they went ashore while boatmen repaired the oar.

Mrs. Carter and Amy spent that hour fishing from the shore.

The party drifted 24 miles Wednesday through rapids broken by stretches of smooth, calm water.

The brilliant weather on Wednesday contrasted with the rain and hail that greeted the party after it set out on the river Tuesday. Skies Wednesday were blue and temperatures hit the upper 70s.

The president — accompanied by four rafts carrying Secret Service agents, White House aides, and Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus and his wife Carol — stopped for lunch at a sandy spot under a ponderosa pine. Later the party stopped to gather firewood before setting up camp for the night.

Nicaragua Agrees To Release Of Prisoners

By TOM FENTON

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) —

The government agreed today to end a two-day stand-off with guerrillas besieged in Nicaragua's National Palace by providing ransom money and a safe flight out of the country for the guerrillas and freed political prisoners, a presidential spokesman said.

Justo Garcia, a spokesman for President Anastasio Somoza, said the leftist guerrillas released 200 hostages they had held since Tuesday but planned to take five hostages with them out of the country, apparently three Roman Catholic churchmen serving as mediators and two diplomats.

He said the guerrillas would fly out later this morning, reportedly for Panama and Venezuela. Garcia said he believed the guerrillas had agreed to accept a $5 million ransom, half their original demand.

There was no immediate confirmation of the release of hostages from the Red Cross, which has been monitoring the situation.

Garcia said three planes, including a Venezuelan air force C-130 transport, were waiting at Nicaragua's Las Mercedes International Airport to fly the guerrillas, believed to number 100, their five captives, and the prisoners out of the country.

The national registry of the other two aircraft was not known, but the guerrillas had demanded planes from Mexico and Panama.

There was no official word of how many freed prisoners would be flown out of this Central American nation, but a Venezuelan report put the number at 150.

The guerrillas, members of the Sandinista National Liberation Front, had freed about 300 hostages in groups Wednesday.

The Sandinistas shot their way into the National Palace while the Chamber of Deputies was in session Tuesday afternoon, killing eight persons, most of them National Guard officers, and wounding 15 others.

In addition to freedom for political prisoners, they demanded $10 million in cash and the broadcast of a statement of charges against the Somoza regime. There was no word of the response to the ransom demand, but the government radio-television station read their statement Wednesday evening.

Police Car Wrecks During Chase Of Stolen Auto

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

A Greenville Police Department car, involved in the chase of a stolen Mercedes Benz, collided with a boat and trailer at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Charles Street about 10 p.m. yesterday.

Highway Patrolmen first spotted the stolen car near Calico, South of Greenville on N.C. 43, but lost the Mercedes following a brief chase.

A short time later, Sheriff Ralph Tyson and deputies spotted the car, owned by Dr. Edgar S. Douglas of Greenville, at Hollywood Cross Roads, about seven miles South of Greenville, and gave pursuit.

Tyson said at one point in the chase, he was directly behind the fleeing vehicle while a car driven by Deputy Lee Pascasio was directly in front of the Mercedes when the driver rammed the rear of the leading Sheriff's Department vehicle, causing minor damage to the cars and causing minor injuries to the deputy.

Greenville Police joined the chase near the city limits and as one of the city cars entered the Charles Street-Greenville Boulevard intersection, it collided with a boat and trailer owned by C. Eugene Prescott of 106 Williamsburg Rd., causing heavy damage to the Police Department car and several thousand dollars damage to the 18-foot boat and trailer.

Chief Glenn Cannon, who reported Detective C. B. Landreth was driving the car involved in the collision, said the Mercedes stopped in the South-bound lane of Charles Street at the Southern Railroad overpass and the occupant jumped and ran.

Efforts to track the man, who left his shoes beside the roadway, with dogs were unsuccessful.

Cannon said investigation of the theft by the Police Department, and the wreck by the State Highway Patrol, are continuing.

The chief noted that the Douglas car was reported stolen August 18 from 1705 West Sixth St. The keys to the vehicle had been left in the car, Cannon noted.

HEAVY DAMAGE ... resulted when this Greenville Police Department car, involved in the chase of a stolen car last night, collided with a boat and trailer at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Charles Street. No injuries were reported in the mishap.

SIGNS TAKEN DOWN

I would like to know why the State Highway Department took down the signs that stated the districts of the volunteer fire departments. Others signs stating advertisements were not taken down. A. J.

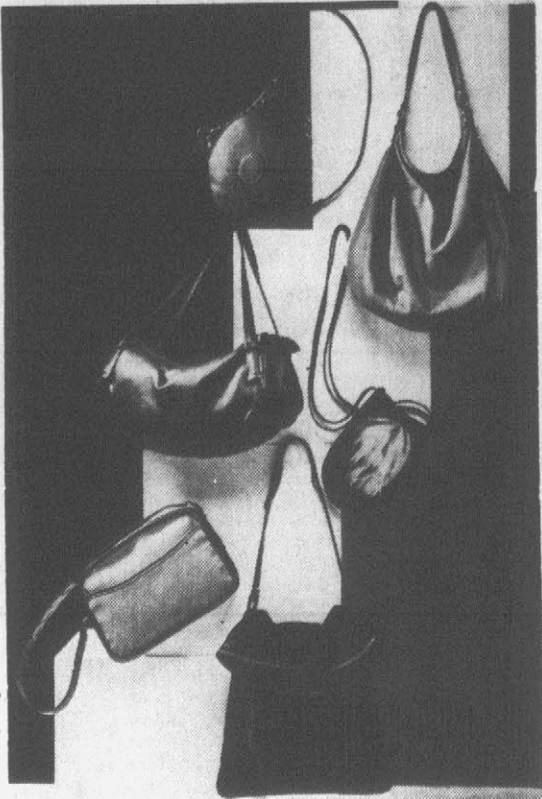

The signs were taken down because they violated state law which says that no unauthorized signs may be erected on state right of way, according to O. L. Potter, District Engineer of the State Department of Transportation.

It was only with ample warning, however, that these signs, donated by N. C. Farm Bureau Insurance and put up by the various volunteer fire departments, were removed, Potter said.

The Pitt County Fire Marshal's Office confirmed that it received a letter dated May 9 from Potter which said, "These signs will have to be removed from the state right of way within 30 days or the Department of Transportation forces will have to take them down. These signs could be set back off the state right of way, if you have the permission from the property owner, except for Routes U.S. 264, NC 11, US 13, US 64 and SR 1590 (Eastern bypass). These roads are under the Outdoor Advertising Act, and you will need a special permit to place these signs off the highway right of way and in a designated area."

The Fire Marshal's office sent out a memo dated May 16 to all fire chiefs in the county, which included a copy of Potter's letter and a list of highways in Pitt County and their respective right of way distances if they are not the "usual" 30 feet.

Persons wishing to erect signs on the highways noted as coming under the Outdoor Advertising Control Act may obtain permit forms from Potter's office. The application fee is $15, with a $5 a year maintenance charge, if approved and continued. Signs can be put up only in specified districts. The address is O. L. Potter, District Engineer, Department of Transportation, Washington, N. C. 27889.

RIGHT ACCENT—Varied handbag styles fit fall's total fashion look. Clockwise from top left, military inspired look canteen shape in soft leather accompanied by a chain and leather strap; soft garment leather in feedbag shape; "blazer" bag that is worn across the body to keep the hands free has feathers on front; another soft, unconstructed shape, this time in suede with leather trim; camera case shape in corduroy with vinyl trim on a long shoulder strap; the new, softer vinyl is used in this banana-shape bag.

Handbags Keep Pace With Fall

NEW YORK (AP) — Just like other fashions, handbags take to a clean, crisp, pulled-together look this fall, reports the National Handbag Association.

Handbags are designed to be functional as well as to fit into the total fashion picture. The result is polished, refined designs with built-in ease, bags meant to go with this season's clothing and to work for the woman.

Fashion shows a narrowline in clothes, with a definition at the waist. Handbags follow this silhouette in leather, in constructed rigid shapes. Shoulder styles, though still important, take a back seat to the clutch and in-hand styling, the association notes.

The "attache," the "star" of last year, has gone smaller and more feminine and plays a major part in fall's total fashion look. Camera styles and satchels project the linear look that clothes seem to call for, while half-moon and military styles take to hard leather shapes.

Fashion emphasis is at the shoulder. Gathers, drawstrings and a touch of padding are soft-shouldering the fashions for fall, and the softened silhouette appears in handbags also.

Vinyl, canvas, chenille and corduroy are made in soft, pouchy shapes. Softest glove leather also makes an impression when pulled together in a slouch pouch look.

With the popularity of the "military" style in coats, blazers and dresses, the "blazer" bag has emerged to accent these looks in "natural" color leather known as nude. Pebble vinyl, snake and canvas join the brigade with details such as webbed shoulder straps, gunmetal hardware and brass trims.

These mini-bags act as body ornaments and can be worn one or more at a time. They hang bandoleer-style across the body, around the neck or over the shoulder, or can be turned into a belt by flipping the pouch through the loop of the strap.

"Annie Get Your Gun"-inspired fashions for fall are leather- or suede-trimmed, beaded or accented with feathers. Many designers create their version in all-over leather and suede, using feminine detailing. This style has extended to handbags, where fringes, feathers and beads provide interest. Whether large in saddle-bag style or small in blazer-bag silhouettes, handbags are accented with leather and offer ample room.

Dazzling nights are either romantic in gossamer and slinky fabrications or bold in Broadway-suit styling. Either way, it's an ultra-feminine look.

To complement this, there are pretty designs in embroidered satin and peau de soie, as well as molded enamel, plastic and box-shaped snake bags, covering a variety of feminine handbag silhouettes.

To keep the hands free when dancing, most evening purses have convertible extra-long straps to hang on the body. If a more conservative look is desired, the straps can be removed or hidden inside the bag.

"Handbags are exciting this season because there is more to choose from in style and fabrications," says Erica Fineberg, fashion director of the National Handbag Association. "They meet almost all women's requirements, whether they be fashion-plates or not, young or mature, executive types or women of leisure."

Dear Abby

Son's A Loser, Mom Complains

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Is losing things a disease? And if so, is there a cure? My son is 30 now, and you would not believe the number of things he has lost in his life. In college he was constantly losing his billfold, books, car keys, briefcases, coats and practically an entire wardrobe!

Since that time, he hasn't improved. He keeps losing watches, sunglasses, clothes, computers and every type of sports equipment you can name. (He even lost an electric blanket once!)

This week his billfold was mailed to him from the sport's arena where he had lost it.

I must have at least 50 beautiful argyle socks—but only one of each kind, because he "lost" the mates.

I am so tired of looking for his things, I am ready to give up. Is there any hope? He's such an easy-going, charming guy, he never gets upset at losing anything. Even a girl. Help me.

LOSER'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: The fact that you wrote to tell me about your son's problem might be a clue to the solution. He has never had to develop a sense of responsibility because he has always had a mother to run interference for him. Let him keep track of his own belongings or suffer the loss. Losing things is not a "disease"—it's a careless habit.

DEAR ABBY: I have been trying to find an insurance company that will cover maternity expenses for a single woman and have been unable to locate one so far. I would greatly appreciate your assistance in finding an insurance company offering this type of coverage.

STILL LOOKING IN CALIF.

DEAR STILL: I don't know where in California you've looked, but apparently you have overlooked some of the most familiar names in insurance companies. I am informed that in almost every case, whatever a married woman is covered for, a single woman must also be covered for—no discrimination!

DEAR ABBY: There is a local hang-out in our small town where I met a boy from another state. We just rode around and talked and he asked to see me the next night. I liked him, so I said OK. That night he told me he was married and had two kids. I should have said goodbye right then and there, but I liked him too much.

Abby, I only intended to have a good time and forget about him, and he said he had the same intentions, but it wasn't that simple for either of us. He says he's in love with me, and I know I love him.

He says he's thinking about divorcing his wife and marrying me. It's gone beyond the point of turning back. I think about him night and day; I can't give him up, even if he is another woman's man. What should I do?

HUNG UP AT 17

DEAR HUNG UP: As long as you keep telling yourself you CAN'T give him up, you won't be able to. Tell yourself you CAN give him up because you must. Wipe the stardust out of your eyes, little girl.

If he should divorce his wife and marry you, what would you have? A guy who romances another girl when his wife is out of sight. Is that the kind of man you want for a husband? Think about it. Then lose him.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

It was the headline that caught my eye.

"For $25,000 you can spend an eternity next to Marilyn Monroe." The story went on to say that an empty burial vault beside the late actress' crypt is on sale.

I happen to have loved that fragile, vulnerable, human being who died prematurely of being loved to death by the media. But as I told my husband, if you're thinking of something in the gift line, don't let me spend my eternity next to Marilyn Monroe.

I've battled comparisons all my life. In college I used to go to those dances where the girls were all lined up against the wall like 57 flavors of ice cream. The guys would cruise up and down trying to find a "well-stacked personality." I was never vanilla.

At my wedding, the photographer went crazy. For every 10 pictures of my matron of honor with good posture, there is one of me with my cheeks inflated and icing dripping off my chin.

When I gave birth, I shared the room with a woman who wore her civilian clothes home, while I had to wear my husband's raincoat over my nightgown.

It's ironic how I always follow a thin girl through the turnstile at the supermarket and sit next to a ballpoint pen in the bleachers.

I never occupy a seat on an airplane but that I look at the seat belt and try to imagine what went above and below the six inches of belt. (My dental floss is longer than that.)

I showed up for the Carson show one night and was not in the least surprised to see that Raquel Welch was on the show. My college-age son met me at the studio. He had an annoying way of not looking at me or staying in the same room when I addressed him. Even when I tapped him on the shoulder and said, "Do you know that if we could have swung a loan for a sailboat in '58, you might never have been born?" His eyes never wavered from her.

From time to time I hear things are changing. I'd like to believe that. And when a woman with fat thighs and an overbite is named Miss America, I might.

Until then, if I don't get better offers... I'm not going.

Club Members Hear Speaker

Tom Lassiter, of Plant and See, was guest speaker at the meeting of the Lake Ellsworth Garden Club. He spoke on selection and care of houseplants.

He explained most nurseries in eastern North Carolina obtain the majority of their plants from Florida and when these houseplants are purchased, special care should be given to acclimate the plants to this area.

President Nan Garrett conducted a business session and Pat Meakin, nominating committee chairperson, reported a list of candidates for club officers had been selected.

Mrs. Sharon Shallow and Mrs. Carol Leonard were hostesses for the meeting.

Bride-Elect Entertained

Miss Rose Tyson, bride-elect of Tony Holloman, was honored Wednesday at a miscellaneous shower given by coworkers of the bride held at the home of Mrs. Danny Huntley.

The bride was presented a red rosebud corsage and a Boston fern used as the refreshment centerpiece.

Special guests included Mrs. Joab Tyson, mother of the bride-elect, and Mrs. Johnny Holloman, mother of the bridegroom-elect.

Thirty-Seven Angels, But No God In New York Phone Book

By JERRY SCHWARTZ
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — There is no God but there are 37 Angels. There is no Devil, befitting a city with 49 Goods and no Bads. A century after the first "List of Subscribers" was published with 271 names, and no numbers, the new Manhattan telephone book is packed with information about New York and New Yorkers.

The latest edition — which hits the street today — weighs four pounds and has 777,100 listings and 1,536 pages. There are more numbers than ever before, but exchange names like Pennsylvania 6-5000 have beeped their last busy signals, the victims of progress.

It will take 17 trucks and 155 deliverers about four weeks to distribute the books.

The first listing is A Forwarding Co., a telephone answering company that also forwards mail. Irving Bennett, president of the company, said his firm actively sought the No. 1 spot.

"To be first in anything is to be synonymous with the best," he said. "We're elated."

At the other end of the book,

Budd Zzzyp wasn't home and a voice at the other end said "Don't call here no more." The listing before Zzzyp, N. Zzherobrouskievskieskiea, did not answer.

There is a Dial-A-Psychotherapist listed, along with Dial-A-Steak, Dial-A-Joke and Dial-A-South-Indian-Song.

There are two Edward Kochs, one of them the mayor.

There are 56 Nixons, none of them Richard; 267 Fords, three of them Gerald; and 441 Carters, including five Jameses and one James E. There are also four George Washingtons and one Georgina Washington.

Postal Service, Union At Standoff

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a mail strike hanging in the balance, the U.S. Postal Service is at a standoff with one of its unions, and two more labor groups may join the dispute by the end of the week.

The nation's letter carriers rejected on Wednesday an agreement negotiated by their union leaders in July. Meanwhile, vote counting due to be finished this week could put two other postal unions in the same situation.

The National Association of Letter Carriers voted 78,000-59,000 against the tentative agreement. Union officials say they want to renegotiate the pact.

NALC President J. Joseph Vacca is authorized by his union constitution to call a nationwide strike by next week if the postal service refuses to return to the bargaining table.

However, Postmaster General William F. Bolger has publicly pledged not to reopen talks. "We have concluded our negotiations," he said in advance of the voting. He seemed to take the same position after the letter carriers' vote was announced.

Bolger, as he has done several times in recent months, warned postal workers about the consequences of a strike.

When some mail handlers walked off their jobs in July in disgust over the tentative agreement, the Postal Service promptly fired more than 100 strikers.

Vacca declined to say whether he would call a strike by his 181,000-member union. "I am fully aware of the law on strikes," he told reporters. Vacca supported acceptance of the proposed pact.

Corrections To Bus Routes

The sequence of bus routes for the Greenville City Schools as listed on page 29 of Wednesday's paper was in some instances transposed.

The correct assignment of school bus numbers and schools of routes listed on page 29 are as follows:

— Buses 169, 170, and 171, listed under Aycock, are correct.
— Buses 182, 183, 184, 185, 186, and 187, listed under Aycock, should have been listed under the Rose High assignment of routes.

— Buses 173, 176, 177, 179, 180, and 181, listed under Rose High, are correct.

— Buses 172, 174, 175 and 178, listed under Rose High, should have been listed under Aycock.

District Amendment A Bad One

The Congress of the United States has just approved a constitutional amendment which would create the nation's first city-state.

The Senate passed the amendment, which would authorize members of Congress for the District of Columbia, Tuesday. Proponents now have seven years to obtain ratification by 38 states.

If the amendment passes, the District would have two senators, and representatives according to population.

Proponents of the amendment made persuasive arguments — the District has greater population than seven states, the people living there are without representation, etc.

However, the effect of approving the amendment would be a major deviation from what the framers of the constitution intended. Moreover, approval could prove disastrous to middle America which at last is making its political power felt in government.

The District of Columbia is not the only city which thinks it deserves statehood. The same argument has been advanced for New York City. Although New York is a part of a state, it has been pointed out that its population is more than that of a substantial number of states and therefore it deserves to have its own senators in Congress.

There are a number of other cities which can make the same argument and perhaps win their case, once the city-state principle is established. The result could be a number of city-states, each with two senators and a Senate packed with those concerned with bailing out big cities at middle America's expense.

The concept of senators representing states is not perfect, but it has worked pretty well for our nation and we don't see the District of Columbia amendment as any improvement. It would be far better to carve up the District of Columbia and return jurisdiction to states from which it was originally obtained, if it is deemed that the people living there need representation.

This constitutional amendment is a bad one and it should not be ratified.

THIS AFTERNOON Studying Old Elevators

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—Elevator inspectors are running into some opposition in an effort to upgrade antiquated lifts in North Carolina, but are pushing ahead with the program.

The object of special concern are between 1,500 and 2,000 elevators which have been in operation for many years, some more than 50 years.

Installed long before modern safety requirements, the old elevators often lack safety switches in the doors which keep the device from operating unless shaft doors are closed. Many feature accordion gates or heavy overhead sliding doors.

The danger, according to state inspectors, is not in a fall. Most are in low-rise buildings. But in absence of safety switches and shaft protection when the device is running.

Charles M. Shaw, chief of the elevator division of the state's Department of Labor, says a recent updating of elevator accidents across the state spells out the problem:

Five Deaths

In the past six years, there have been five deaths involving antiquated elevators, and a dozen or more accidents causing injury. The deaths resulted in each instance from the head or body of an individual being crushed between the elevator car and the shaft when inadequate safety doors were in place. In one case there was no safety door on the shaft. Numerous injuries from hands, feet, legs or heads caught were included.

North Carolina has more than 9,000 elevators in service, with the majority being up-to-date with automatic doors which prohibit elevator operation unless the shaft is closed.

Shaw said the statewide enforcement began four years ago at a meeting of the National Association of Elevator Safety Authorities when attention was drawn to numbers of antiquated elevators still in operation around the country.

Federal safety authorities suggested that special safety regulations needed to be

Another Side Of Coin

By CYRYAN

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — Nevada's gaudy casinos exude an atmosphere of easy money and high profits.

State officials routinely report gambling volumes at new highs. And the notion of casino profitability has not been lost on New Jersey, which recently legalized casino gambling.

But there's the other side of the coin. A number of Nevada clubs actually report annual losses, just like any other industry.

"Everyone has an idea all you have to do is open a casino and you open the door to Fort Knox," says U.S. Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., a former governor who built and operated a hotel in Carson City before being elected to Congress. "It's probably the toughest and most competitive business in the world to get off the ground."

Laxalt, the late Howard

Hughes and scores of others have found that owning a gambling club doesn't mean a pot of gold at the end of the rainbow.

Hughes spent more than $100 million buying seven clubs. After 10 years, the businesses had yielded a total profit of about $1 million. He could have put his money in the bank and gained more interest in one year.

Of the 12 largest hotel-casinos on the Las Vegas "Strip," two showed losses last year, another showed a profit of 2 percent and a fourth reported a 4 percent profit, all before federal tax deductions.

It's not that the gambling industry is going broke. The net operating profit statewide for casinos was 11.3 per cent before taxes in 1977. And stocks of gambling companies were among the hottest items on the exchanges in recent months.

But there are instances of casinos going bankrupt. And there is a fear that increased competition from other states might cut into Nevada's business.

"By and large gambling has been profitable as an investment and given a fair return, but there have been exceptions," said Philip Hannifin, former chairman of the state Gaming Control Board and now head of the Nevada operation for Summa Corp., which was wholly owned by Howard Hughes.

"Financial difficulty in the business is not anything new. It's always been a tough business. There used to be an old saying that 'The third bankroll would make it.'"

Gaming officials and accountants say keys to a successful casino are top management, the ability to prevent stealing, and a knack for capitalizing on current trends.

Don McGhie, a certified public accountant in Reno who serves a number of clubs, said, "The obsolescence in casinos is very rapid. The newest casinos draw the top people. The big spender moves on. You can't have a Harry James orchestra if they want to dance to disco."

McGhie said owners con-

To the editor:

Perhaps the greatest indication of what the Equal Rights Amendment will do to the Constitution is the way ERA supporters are breaking the rules of the ratification process. I consider the 39-month extension to be as much a breach of principle as the seven-year extension.

March, 1979, is the deadline originally established by Congress. No proposed constitutional amendment has required more than four years for approval. A seven-year time limit is thus more than sufficient. This seven-year deadline dates back to 1917. Rep. Barry Goldwater (R — Arizona) observes, "When we are considering a change in procedure on a matter as important as ratification of an amendment to the Constitution, historical precedent should not be sacrificed for political expediency, and I believe this is precisely what we would be doing by arbitrarily extending the time limit for ERA."

Leading national newspapers, including "The New York Times" and "The Washington Post," have editorialized against the extension. "The Raleigh Times," an advocate of ERA, has taken this stand: "But more important is the precedent set if the ERA extension carries in the House and Senate. What about future amendments? Will the deadline set at the start be honored? Or will an extension be granted, depending on which side loses? ERA extension makes a liar of Congress."

I despise ERA not only for the atheistic, unisex tenets it espouses, but also for the mockery it is making of our representative form of government.

Home Appetite Still Growing

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — To judge by the most recent evidence, it looks as if it will take something more than amazing prices and record-high mortgage rates to cool down Americans' appetite for houses.

Most of the experts had been expecting housing starts, after their strong recovery ever since the 1974-75 recession, to begin a moderate downturn by mid-summer.

But the Commerce Department reported the other day that new houses were started at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 2.08 million units in July.

That came close to the upward-revised 2.12 million rate listed for June, and ranked as the third best monthly showing this year.

Housing-industry observers, while acknowledging that the expected decline has been postponed, say it has not necessarily been canceled.

"It should have started already, but it hasn't," said Michael Sumichrast, economist at the National Association of Home Builders in Washington.

Sumichrast does not foresee anything like the steep drop the industry experienced three years ago. He is projecting a 10 percent decline in 1979 from this year's housing-starts total.

The Value Line Investment Survey similarly predicts 1.6 million to 1.7 million starts next year, against a 1978 total of 1.8 million to 1.9 million.

The period of retrenchment seems to have been delayed by unexpectedly favorable conditions in the mortgage market. Just when it looked as things were starting to pinch, the mortgage picture stabilized.

For one thing, six-month certificates of deposit pegged to Treasury bill rates, which banks and thrift institutions were permitted to issue beginning June 1, provided lenders with an infusion of funds.

"The six-month certificates really helped," Sumichrast said.

No relatively short-term problem has disturbed the bright picture many observers see for the housing industry in the 1980s. The bulge in the population created by the postWorld

War II baby boom is seen as assuring strong demand for houses for some time to come.

"Another important thrust behind the heightened demand for single-family structures: They have been an outstanding investment during the past 10 years."

That has helped encourage buying of homes by unmarried couples and single people, who until a few years ago would not have been considered much of a factor in the market.

Sumichrast noted a general expectation that mortgage rates will not experience any major decline as long as the inflation rate remains high. "So people decide they might as well buy now," he said.

Georgia Gets Smaller

By ROBERT FURLOW
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — "Georgia got 5,000 acres smaller last year," says Dwight Treadway. He's a federal soil expert lamenting severe new land erosion in the Southeast, a problem he blames on 1970s farm economics and young farmers who ignore their fathers' old land-care lessons.

Prime Southeastern topsoil is "floating down the valleys, creeks and ditches," said Treadway, head of Georgia's office of the U.S. Soil Conservation Service.

But he also said younger farmers are learning their Greenville police were making an effort today to apprehend the person who broke a plate glass display window at Laylars Brothers Jewelry Store on Evans Street last night and removed a 17-jewel wrist watch, valued by one of the jewelers at $59.50.

Officer S. Bowen Dorsey, was called in on the case, and made photographs and took fingerprints at the scene of the robbery. The robber broke only a small piece of the glass window, large enough to put his hand through and lifted the valuable timepiece.

The Rocky Mount district led the entire state in the number of job placements made during July, and Greenville topped all other offices in the state in the number of private placements, according to the North Carolina State Employment Service.

Out of the 1,434 job placements reported by six offices in the district, 502 were made by Greenville.

THE SECRET OF PRAYING

The great English preacher, John Spurgeon, was noted for the homely but graphic way in which he expressed spiritual truth. Speaking about prayer in the context of a church tower, he once said, "Prayer pulls the rope below, and the great bell rings above in the ears of God. Some scarcely stir the bell, for they pray so languidly; others give but an occasional pull at the rope. But he who wins with heaven is the man who grasps the rope boldly and pulls continually with all his might."

St. Paul urged his followers to pray without ceasing. By this he meant that they should maintain toward God at all times an attitude of attention and receptiveness.

One reason why people often fail in prayer is that their prayer life lacks continuity. Facility in prayer grows in the same way as facility in athletics—by practice. We might as well expect to have facility in basketball by practicing once a week or once a month as to expect power in prayer by only occasional resort to it. Continuity is the secret—and the program.

Las Vegas author, lecturer and casino consultant. "It's not like working in a shoe store. You're dealing in cash. It can get away from you very fast. You can't turn your head."

"If you think the 'eye in the sky' is 100 percent, you're wrong. You've got to have experienced help."

The "eye in the sky" is the one-way mirror in the ceiling above the table games which allow spotters to watch for cheating schemes.

The Paradise casino in Las Vegas was forced to close its doors after it fell victim to a credit scheme that bilked owner Bernie Nemerov out of a substantial sum in a short time. Nemerov had prior experience in gambling but didn't detect the "scam" until it was too late.

Goodman agrees a club must keep building and improving to stay in the black. He points to the Tropicana in Las Vegas as an example of a club that "laid dead" for years and suffered.

"They (the Tropicana) used to be called the 'Tiffany of the Strip' 20 years ago. But they let the place run down and lost all their customers," he said. A high-rise tower now is under construction and there are plans to expand the casino as the owners try to regain the club's former fortune.

At one point several years ago, things became so desperate at the Tropicana that some employees secretly put their own money in the cashier cage so the state would not close the casino for lack of an adequate bankroll.

Running a casino takes a lot of ready cash. "The gambling industry requires more start-up cash than a regular business," said McGhie. "Your inventory is cash. A lot of businesses order goods and pay two months later. You can't do that here."

And it needs close watching. "One day in the life of a casino is three days in the life of a regular business," said McGhie, noting the clubs run 24 hours. "If the dealers are dumping the games and the 'crossroads' (professional cheats) are hitting you, you can lose a lot of money in a short time. You have to be on top of it every day if you don't want to get killed."

Despite warnings, many investors are attracted to the business with stars in their eyes.

ject. It is entirely conceivable that some human beings, tobacco has a synergistic impact in combination with other substances thought to cause cancer. We inquire about lung cancer victims: How many cigarettes did they smoke? Do we ask as assiduously: How much bacon did they eat? How much urban smog did they absorb? What kind of stressful people were they?

We never will have all the answers. But we will have many fewer right answers if the anti-smoking establishment persists in crucifying scientists whose findings fail to conform to the party line.

Collision Judgement

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — A federal judge says only the owner and operator of a ship that rammed the Benjamin Harrison Bridge near Hopewell are liable for damage.

U.S. District Judge Richard Lellam ruled Tuesday that at the time of the crash "the Marine Floridian was not seaworthy and the owners and operators were guilty of negligence." The largest of the suits filed in connection with the February 1977 collision was a $7.8 million claim by the state. Others were filed by companies whose businesses allegedly were hurt by closure of the drawbridge.

Furlow Col...

own lessons now. And he saw signs of what he called "a rebirth of the conservation ethic" with help from new-fangled erosion control technology.

So far in the 1970s, Treadway said, "the total amount of erosion is increasing and the amount of soil on each acre is decreasing." He said it's happening throughout the region — southeast Alabama, the Mississippi Delta and west Tennessee are trouble spots — "but the greatest impact has hit Georgia."

Part of the problem is that young farmers feel no urgency to use erosion controls that were burned into their fathers' farming philosophies during erosion disasters of the 1930s.

But another part of the problem is as new as the 1970s, its roots as distant as America's dependence on foreign oil, Treadway said.

With the United States looking for something to trade for oil, he said, "farmers were given somewhat the green light, told to produce all they could and we'd find a market for it in the export field."

That led to more intense farming on more acres — a quick jump to 7 million acres from 6 million in Georgia.

In came huge plowing contraptions dragged behind huge tractors down long straight rows in big squared-off fields. Out went the old, slow practices of plowing wiggly rows to keep rain from washing away topsoil.

"They tore out the terraces, tore out the buffer strips," said Treadway. "All that seemed too inefficient."

He spoke almost with awe of a south Georgia farmer with a cultivator that plows 24 rows at once.

"Fantastic," he said. But a machine like that doesn't make tight turns or plow carefully crooked rows. "The old conservation practices used for many, many years just don't fit."

Treadway's federal agency has no enforcement authority in private, land matters, so it searches for techniques that will both preserve land and bring farmers profits.

It's now pushing the idea of "no tillage" cultivation, in which a machine goes down a row spraying a narrow band of herbicide and planting seeds. That way only the narrow band of old vegetation is disturbed, and there's much less likelihood a heavy rain will wash the field's topsoil away before the new crop takes hold. Georgia farmers are using that process on 250,000 acres this year compared to 75,000 acres last year, indicating willingness to cooperate when benefits are clear. Treadway said.

U.S. Reporters Summoned To Appear At Foreign Ministry

MOSCOW (AP) — Two U.S. correspondents who defied a Moscow court by refusing to appear for hearings on charges that they slandered Soviet television were summoned to the Foreign Ministry today.

Harold D. Piper of The Baltimore Sun said he and Craig R. Whitney of The New York Times had been told to appear at the ministry's press department.

Piper said a Foreign Ministry official telephoned him and "politely invited" him to a meeting with Lev Krylov, deputy head of the press department. He said no reason for the meeting was given him.

A Moscow court dropped the slander case against the reporters Friday, but the judge said he would inform the Foreign Ministry they had been "disrespectful to the court." A prosecutor urged earlier in the case that they be stripped of their press accreditations, which would force them to leave the country.

The two reporters refused to attend hearings in the case, saying the court was acting beyond its jurisdiction and that the case was tantamount to censorship.

Whitney and Piper were found guilty July 18 of slandering Soviet television by writing stories that said relatives and friends of jailed Georgian dissident Zviad Gamsakhurdia believed a televised confession by him had been fabricated.

Gamsakhurdia testified at the hearing July 18 that his televised confession was authentic.

The court fined Whitney and Piper $73 each and ordered them to pay court costs totaling $3,424, which they did, but they refused to print retractions of their stories despite a threat of further fines. The judge said he was closing the slander case because the publicity given it made a retraction no longer necessary.

Check On Break-In

FARMVILLE — Farmville Police are investigating a break-in and larceny at the Sterling Radiator Company here over the weekend.

Lt. Wilbur Barber said it was discovered when the plant was opened Monday morning at 6 a. m. that the office door was "battered" and that $50-60 had been taken. He said some good leads have been obtained and are being followed up. The break-in occurred sometime after 11 a. m. Saturday, he said plant officials indicated.

Shock Named As Head Of ECU Math Department

ECU News Bureau
Dr. Robert C. Shock has assumed duties as professor and chairman of the Department of Mathematics at East Carolina University.

Dr. Shock comes to ECU following nine years on the faculty at Southern Illinois University. As chairman of the ECU department, he succeeds the late Tullio J. Pignani, who died in October, 1977.

Dr. Shock holds the Ph.D. in mathematics from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. He received his bachelor of science degree from Bowling Green State University and his master's degree from the University of Arizona. His research specialty is algebra and operations research.

As new chairman of the 31-faculty member department, Shock noted steady growth, saying, "Last year, we taught more than 6,000 students including about 50 undergraduate math majors and about 50 graduate students."

The ECU math department offers five major and four minor degree programs for undergraduates and three graduate degree programs.

New programs in the ECU math department include a bachelor of arts degree in computer science and a master's degree with an applied science minor.

Dr. Shock and his family moved to Greenville this summer. Before joining the

Mt. Calvary Meeting Set

Mount Calvary F.W.B. Church here will hold its annual fellowship quarterly meeting this weekend.

Friday at 7:30 p.m. quarterly conference will be held and Saturday at 7:30 p.m., Holy Communion with Bishop W. L. Jones in charge.

During the Sunday morning worship, music will be provided by the Fellowship Church Choir of St. John F.W.B. Church, Kinston. Dinner will be served immediately after the morning worship in the Education Department of the church.

At 3 p.m. the Rev. E. B. Williams and Philip Church will lead services and at 7:30 p.m. the Rev. A. L. Miller and Warren Chapel F.W.B. Church will close out the weekend of meetings. The public is invited to all these services.

Two-Tiered Price Support For Peanuts

W. F. Tyson, chairperson of the Pitt County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, recently reviewed new regulations governing the peanut program.

The Food and Agricultural

Peanut Meeting

Pitt County peanut farmers will have a chance to learn more about marketing peanuts this year before harvest time, according to Sam Uzzell, associate agricultural extension agent.

Uzzell said that a meeting will be held Tuesday, Aug. 29 at 3 p.m. at the Farm Bureau Building to discuss information concerning "what to do with your peanuts after they are harvested."

He added, "This may be valuable information since there have been a few changes made in bookkeeping under this year's peanut program administered by the U.S. Department of Agriculture."

Speakers for the meeting will include Joe Sugg, executive secretary of the N.C. Peanut Growers Association; Clyde Weathers, professor of agricultural economics at N.C. State University; and Stacy Evans of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation office here.

Uzzell, who urged peanut growers to attend, said that, "Hopefully, every peanut grower will learn something of value and can harvest and market his peanuts with little trouble."

Persons seeking further information should contact Uzzell at 758-1196, he said.

Act of 1977 has a two-tiered price support structure. All peanuts were previously supported from 75 to 90 percent of parity, depending on supply. The higher $420-per-ton price support level is on "quota" peanuts, and the $250-per-ton level is on "additional" peanuts not covered by the quota.

"Most farmers will be able to produce their quotas without planting their entire allotment, however, they could plant the total allotment and produce additional peanuts," Tyson said.

Farmers who market less than their quota in 1978 may market the balance in 1979, in addition to their 1979 quota, if enough acreage is planted to produce the quota, and if total undermarketings for all U. S. farms do not exceed ten percent of the national poundage quota. The national poundage quota for 1978 is 1,680,000 short tons, with allotment set at 1,614,000 acres.

Producers may obtain warehouse-stored loans on their peanuts through peanut grower associations, according to Tyson.

"There will be no deductions for inspection, handling, or storage as under the previous program," Tyson noted.

Farmers may also take out a farm-stored loan on their quota peanuts. Peanuts left on the farm for seed or other use are considered marketed as quota peanuts.

The 1978 peanut allotments are based on last year's farm allotments.

"To retain the full allotment, a farmer must plant enough peanuts to produce as much as 75 percent of the farm poundage quota at least once every three years," Tyson stated. "In addition to the average allotment, a farmer receives a poundage quota based on a proportionate share of the national quota."

Additional peanuts, not contracted for prior to June 15, must be delivered to the grower association at the $250-per-ton loan rate.

To avoid penalties and allotment reductions, farmers must identify the farm on which the peanuts were produced at the time of marketing. Plastic identification cards will be issued by the county ASCS office. A card must accompany each lot of peanuts from weigh-in until after inspection.

About 800 farmers in Pitt County participate in the peanut program, according to Tyson.

Wesleyan Gets Grant

ROCKY MOUNT — North Carolina Wesleyan College in Rocky Mount has been awarded a $10,000 grant from the Emma A. Shaefer Foundation of New York, according to Wesleyan president S. Bruce Petteway.

Funds donated by the foundation, a charitable trust administered by the Morgan Guaranty Trust Company, will be used in support of the performing arts at Wesleyan.

The college has scheduled events in music and theater for the coming school year.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — City garbage collectors who were fired after a walkout last month have filed suit against the city seeking reinstatement in their jobs with back pay.

The suit, filed in district court Tuesday, came a day after the municipal civil service commission refused to hear mass appeals on behalf of the former garbage workers. No date for a hearing on the suit was set. Attorney Edward Camara Jr., who filed the suit, estimated about 120 fired garbage collectors have not been rehired. He said 217 workers filed appeals and no more than 90 were rehired.

County Schools Clarify Boundaries

To alleviate confusion for those parents who are unsure as to which school district (Greenville City Schools or Pitt County Schools) their child belongs in, the Pitt County Board of Education has compiled the following concerning school district lines.

— Lake Ellsworth: At this time, youngsters may attend school in either of the two districts. The County Board of Education is on record in support of a free exchange in this area, but only until the matter of the disputed line has been solved.

— Tucker Estates: Of the 115

lots developed or being developed, 78 lie in the County School District. Lots 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12 on Sherwood Dr., as well as lots 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 23 and 24 on Sonata St. are in the county school district. All lots on Rondo Dr. and Fantasia St. are in the county district. All undeveloped lots which face or back up to Tucker Dr. are also in the county.

— Carriage House Apartments: That portion now under construction lies in the county school district.

— West Haven IV: All of this area is in the county district, which includes Baywood Lane, Woodhaven Court and Woodhaven Road.

— Pinewood Forest, Section Two: This area immediately adjacent to and lying to the south of Lyndale is in the county district. This entire area is being developed.

— Commerce St.: This street is in the county district.

— Cambridge, Singletree and Sedgfield are all in the county district, with the exception of Cambridge Lots B 1-2, A 1, 2, 7, 8, and 9, Sedgfield lots A-19 and 20 and H-J and Singletree A 1, 2, 7, 8, and C 1.

— Windy Ridge, Tuckahoe, Camelot and Cherry Oaks these developments are all in the county district.

— Yorktown Square Townhouses and Courtney Square Apartments: All in the county district.

— North River Estates (adjacent to Greenfield Terrace Subdivision): County district.

— Sherwood Greens, Baywood, Fox Run and Hardee Acres are all in the county district.

According to Ott Alford, superintendent of Pitt County Schools, county school district children enrolled in the Greenville City Schools in the fall of 1977, grades 7-12, are free to continue in attendance or may elect to attend a county school.

All newcomers since the fall of 1977 who live in the county school district in grades K-12 are to attend county schools. Alford notes that in individual instances, based on hardship factors, a limited number of exceptions have been granted.

Alford states that those parents who have not enrolled their children as of yet or who may have enrolled their children in the wrong school district are urged to contact the county school office, 752-6106, for clarification as to assignment.

Identify New York Firm With PCB Dumps

ALLEGANY, N.Y. (AP) — An Allegany firm reportedly has been identified by New York State Police as the company being investigated in North Carolina in the alleged dumping of 33,000 tons of the toxic chemical PCB there.

The North Carolina State Bureau of Investigation claims a western New York company was responsible for dumping the PCB along 270 miles of North Carolina highways in early August, a Buffalo newspaper says.

In today's editions, the Courier-Express quoted an investigator for the state's Bureau of Criminal Investigation as saying that he and North Carolina investigators had spoken with Robert J. Burns, president of the Transformer Sales Co. of Allegany in connection with the probe.

Burns will be interviewed again, said investigator James Burns (no relation to the company president).

The company president, reached at his home in a Jamestown suburb, refused to comment on the allegations.

Police Check Three Wrecks

An estimated $2,200 property damage resulted from a series of three traffic mishaps investigated yesterday by Greenville Police.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 2:55 p.m. mishap on Fifth Street, 25 feet East of the Memorial Drive intersection, involving cars driven by Reba Allen Palmer of Route 8, Greenville, and Dwight D. Reeves of Route 4, Greenville.

Damage from the collision was set at $700 to the Reeves car and $400 to the Palmer vehicle.

Jesse Wayne Williams of 1900 Charles St. was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety, while Earl Harris of Brooklyn, N.Y. was charged with having no operators license, following investigation of a 5:55 p.m. mishap on Greenville Boulevard, 75 feet East of the Secondary Road 1419.

Investigators estimated damage from the collision of the two vehicles at $300 to the Harris car and $500 to the Williams auto.

Officers estimated $300 damage resulted to a car driven by Anne Katherine Williamson of 102B Sara Ln. after the vehicle left the roadway and struck a mailbox at 2907 Rose St. about 3:40 p.m.

Damage to the yard was set at $50.

Presenting Service Tonight

The Rev. J. Ward, Fleming Chapel Choir and Gospel Jubilees will be present a service tonight at Fleming Chapel Church.

The service will begin at eight o'clock.

The church is located near Belvoir. The public is invited to attend.

Prices Steady

FARMVILLE — Grade for grade prices for tobacco remained steady on the Farmville market yesterday, according to Louis N. Williams, sales supervisor, Farmville Tobacco Board of Trade.

Williams noted a slight increase in the volume of low grades of primings and nondescript grades. There was also a slight gain in the volume of cutter and leaf.

The Farmville market sold 658,701 pounds for $911,448, an average of $138.37 per hundredweight. Season totals for Farmville stand at 8,757,391 pounds for $11,219,364, an average of $128.11, as compared with the $102.83 average per hundredweight of last year.

Spoke At Meeting

Pitt County Mental Health Center staff member, Carl Rothrock, told the Rocky Mount Association of Retarded Citizens about the Respite Program recently.

He said Respite Care is a program available to any child or adult who has a primary disability of mental retardation or physical disabilities. The service is for Eastern North Carolina residents seven days a week, 24 hours a day, with a 30-day maximum stay at one time.

Daytime activities for Respite clients are provided for children by the Farmville Day Care Center or the Winterville-Ayden-Grifton Child Development Center. Adult Respite clients participate in Adult Developmental Activity Program in Greenville, of which Rothrock is director.

ADAP and Respite Care are both located in a house on E. Greenville Boulevard and both are programs of the Pitt Co. Mental Health Center. "Both ADAP and Respite Care are designed with a homelike environment with an active and cheerful atmosphere offering appropriate direct care service according to the level of the client's disability," Rothrock said.

No Word On Man

TARBORO — Attempts to locate an 82-year old missing black man, who disappeared two weeks ago from his Conetoe home, have been unsuccessful.

Charlie Heath, a resident of the town of Conetoe and a retired farmer and cotton mill worker, reportedly left his home about midnight Thursday, August 10 and has not been seen since. At the time he left his home, he was wearing a brown short sleeve shirt, green khaki trousers, and hushpuppy shoes.

Members of the Edgecombe County Sheriff's Department conducted an intensive search for Heath, using bloodhounds and volunteers to comb the Conetoe and surrounding areas.

A spokesman for the sheriff's office this morning said that all possible leads are being followed, and that the family has posted a $500 reward for any information on the whereabouts of Heath.

A bulletin has been issued in a 50-mile radius of Tarboro, and the public has been asked to contact the Edgecombe Sheriff's office, phone 823-5757 in the event a person fitting Heath's description is seen.

Music Program Is Scheduled

A musical program will be held Saturday at 8 p.m. at Fleming Chapel Church.

Groups will include the Gospel Travelers of Greenville and the Mighty Travelers of Hamilton.

The public is invited to attend.

NOTICE TO TELEPHONE CUSTOMERS

We are planning changes that will increase one daytime rate (to the United Kingdom) and reduce rates for most other overseas calls.

The American Telephone & Telegraph Company (AT&T) has filed a new schedule of overseas rates with the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) which decreases the charges for most overseas calls and increases the daytime dial rate to the United Kingdom. Rates to Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands will not be affected.

The Company has asked that the new rate schedule become effective on November 15, 1978. The new rates will be applicable only to overseas calls billed within the United States Mainland.

The lower rates are based on reduced charges for overseas satellite circuits which AT&T leases from the Communications Satellite Corporation (COMSAT). AT&T, complying with an FCC request, is reducing its rates to give telephone customers the full benefit of the COMSAT reductions.

International dial rates to 47 countries

The proposed new International daytime dial rate for calls between the U.S. and the U.K. that are billed in the United States will be 25% higher.

For example, a three-minute daytime call that now costs $3.60 would rise to $4.50, additional minutes going up from $1.20 to $1.50 each. This new International Dial rate will be about 17% lower than the day Operator Station rate. The existing $3.60 rate will still be retained, however, for night and Sunday calling.

Under the proposed changes, International Dial rates would be introduced to 46 additional overseas countries, enabling customers to save from 11% to 25% compared with the cost of current day Operator Station rates.

It is important to note that customers calling from areas not presently equipped for International

Dial would still benefit from the lower dial-direct rates even though the call would have to be completed by the operator. However, if the customer requests special operator assistance or special billing, the Operator Station rate will be applied.

Dial rates for 17 additional Caribbean locations

The proposed changes would extend the application of dial rates, now limited to the Bahamas and Bermuda, to 17 additional locations in the Caribbean (Area Code 809). Customers would enjoy a reduction of 9% to 16% for all calls dialed and completed without the assistance of a telephone company operator.

Additional-minute rates reduced for most overseas calls

The additional-minute rates are being reduced from about 6% to 20% for calls to most overseas countries and areas.

Exceptions to proposed rate reduction

All of the above rate changes are applicable to all overseas countries and areas except the Bahamas, Bermuda, Cuba, St. Pierre and Miquelon.

All overseas calls to be discounted 15% during next 12 months

In addition to the rate reductions mentioned above, a temporary 15% discount will apply to all overseas calls. The purpose of the discount is to pass along to telephone customers the refund AT&T has received for satellite rentals from COMSAT. The 15% discount will become effective on November 15, 1978, and will expire on November 14, 1979, unless sooner cancelled, changed or extended.

The following examples illustrate typical rate changes proposed for overseas calling.*

Tar Heels To Fight Gaston Proposal

By ESTES THOMPSON
Associated Press Writer

GASBURG, Va. (AP) — "There is no logic to it," Jesse L. Fowler says of a federal proposal to pipe drinking water from Lake Gaston to Tidewater, Va.

Fowler, secretary-treasurer of the Roanoke River Valley Association, was one of about 70 people who met here Wednesday, planning to fight the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' proposal.

"We're having to spend our own hard-earned money to fight a recommendation financed with our own tax dollars to protect our natural resources," Fowler said.

Ed Perry, who sells real estate on the North Carolina side of Lake Gaston, put the situation another way:

"We're going to raise a racket so they'll know we're against it."

The river association will coordinate the opposition, including a class-action suit for landowners as a last resort.

"If all goes well, we're talking about a four-year fight," Fowler said.

Fowler, also Brunswick County administrator, said his county is willing to go to court to stop the 75 million-gallon-a-day pipeline.

The project, including pipe and pumping stations, would cost $278 million and be completed by 1988.

Lake Gaston lies on the Virginia-North Carolina border near Lawrenceville, Va. and Roanoke Rapids, N.C. It was formed in the early 1960s by a dam on the Roanoke River in North Carolina.

Fowler said the long fight could follow the recommendation by the corps' Norfolk district through higher Army review to Congress.

Opponents need to get ready, he said, by getting an independent engineering study to determine effects of the pipeline. Research by counsel on current laws and an advertising campaign in Tidewater to tell the opponents' story also are needed, he added.

The river association needs $25,000 to start the project, Fowler said, a sum that will have to be raised.

"We have tried on every occasion possible to state the points we have. But all we get are off-the-wall answers," said Morris Wells, executive director of the Southside Planning District Commission. Wells said the Blackwater-Nottoway river system north of Lake Gaston would be better for the project.

State Sen. James Edmunds, D-Kenbridge, said two lakes near Petersburg or desalinization of sea water should be considered.

"Petersburg said they had plans for their water, but we have plans for this water," Edmunds said.

Both U.S. senators from North Carolina oppose the plan, as do representatives from districts bordering the lake in North Carolina and Virginia.

North Carolina Gov. James Hunt also opposes the plan, but Gov. John Dalton of Virginia has endorsed it.

"I'm not surprised Dalton went for it," said retired tobacco farmer N.B. Johnson. "There are more votes in Norfolk alone than in two counties here."

Fowler and Perry said real estate sales have dropped about 25 percent in the past year, since the proposal was announced.

Many expensive homes dot the well-developed 350-mile shoreline, including one owned by U.S. Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C.

Before the lake was built, Brunswick County and its North Carolina neighbors had strictly agricultural economies. Now, tourism and recreation greatly enhance their financial pictures.

Perry said North Carolina

health authorities rate Lake Gaston's water just below drinking water in quality.

"This place is a paradise," Perry said.

The Architectural Drafting Technology Department at Pitt Technical Institute designed a recreational facility for the city of Greenville.

Although the project will not be built, it gave PTI students some design experience before working in an architect's office.

The project also helped the Greenville Department of Recreation and Parks in gaining concepts for future development of recreational facilities.

Students took a projected site of approximately 55 acres for development of a site plan, which included a building, baseball field, swimming pool, tennis courts, nature trails and other facilities. The building would house a gymnasium, small library and craft and meeting rooms.

Edward F. Martin Jr., chairman of the architectural technology department at PTI, Mack Simpson and Bill Powell of the East Carolina University Regional Development Institute and Mike Waters of the Greenville Department of Parks and Recreation were among those who critiqued the project.

moderate trading today as Wall Street awaited government figures on money supply and trade.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was off just .34 at 896.66. Advancing issues outnumbered losers by a slight 6-5 margin in a midday tally of trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The NYSE composite index of more than 1,500 common stocks gained .09 to 59.21. By midday Big Board volume came to 14.00 million shares, down from heavy trading of 17.29 million in the same period on Wednesday.

There appeared to be little trend in the market after gains in the previous two sessions tied partly to improvement of the dollar in currency markets. The dollar was mixed in early currency trading today.

Analysts said some traders may be awaiting the Federal Reserve Board's weekly money supply report after the close of trading today and Friday's monthly report on the latest U.S. trade figures to provide some direction.

Dow Chemical, up 3/4 at 28 1/4 topped the noon NYSE most active list. Trading included a 199,000-share block at 28.

Among other actively traded issues, Del Webb rose 1/4 to 26 1/4 and Bally climbed 1 to 48 1/4.

Pan American, the most active NYSE issue Wednesday after a report that it offered to merge with National Airline, had not traded by midday because of an imbalance of buy orders. It closed Wednesday at 8 1/2, up 1 point. National has not traded since Tuesday when it closed at 30 1/4.

On the American Stock Exchange, Texas International Airline which had earlier expressed interest in a merger with National, rose 1 1/4 to 14 3/4 inactive trading. The Amex market value index gained .86 to 166.53.

Commissioners gave their approval to the sedimentation and erosion control plan for Section V of Lake Ellsworth Subdivision and also to the preliminary plat and sedimentation and erosion control plan for the convenience center which is a part of Carolina East Mall.

Commissioners expressed some concern that several trees that exist on the convenience center development site will have to be removed. Mrs. Priscilla (Sis) East, who attended her first meeting as a new member of the city board, said that it troubled her that trees would be removed from the area. She was told that new trees were planned.

A spokesman for the Carolina East developers said that it would not be possible to leave the trees due to the parking lot pattern. Commissioner Wes Hankins had asked if it would be possible to retain at least some of the trees by planning around

Landscaping plans for the development will be presented in more detail with the submission of the final plat, the spokesman reported. Plans call for landscaping to exceed the five percent of total area required by the city ordinance, he said.

The bid opening marked the second time that general contract proposals have been received for the housing mid-rise. The initial bid opening in December of 1977 resulted in the low offer being considerably over the project budget and the bids were subsequently rejected.

The Section Eight project was redesigned and the Housing Authority asked HUD for an increase in the number of units proposed for development. The Authority hopes to build a five-story, 12-units-per-floor complex, reflecting an increase of ten units over the original plans.

In addition to the Rouse bid, other proposals were submitted by: T. A. Nye and Sons Inc., $1,762,800; L. P. Cox Co., $1,777,000; Barnhill Contracting Co., $1,792,350; and D. R. Allen and Sons, $1,920,900.

On hand for the bid opening were Joe Laney, executive director of the Housing Authority; Housing Commissioner Dr.

Stabilization receipts yesterday accounted to 10.29 percent of total sales, Bryan reported.

Top practical price paid by the buying companies was $1.55 per pound, he said, with offerings consisting of leaf, cutters, lugs, primings and an increase in non-descript tobacco.

Wednesday's totals brought the season average to $124.18 per hundred pounds as 14,149,161 pounds have been sold here so far for $17,569,935, according to Tobacco Board of Trade sales supervisor, J. N. Bryan.

The trial of the case was continuing today.

According to the complaint, Mayberry alleged he was told his contract was not renewed because of a decline in enrollment in the foreign languages department.

Mayberry testified yesterday that the non-renewal of his contract followed a disagreement with department chairman Joseph A. Fernandez over a policy of requiring students to speaking only Spanish in classrooms while studying advanced Spanish literature.

According to Mayberry, Fernandez told two instructors they would not be employed because they did not have doctorate degrees, although Fernandez hired his wife, who had neither a master's nor doctorate, and the wife of the chairman of the Business Administration Department who did not have a doctorate.

Revival services will begin tonight at Community Chapel Pentecostal Church, Portertown, and will continue through Saturday. The speaker, the Rev. former Southern Hospital Supply building from Medical Arts to Downtown Commercial Fringe was tabled for 30 days.

Attorney Fred Mattox, representing the petitioner, said that the property has been undeveloped for some time and there is apparently no medical arts demand for the tract. None of the bordering developments are medical arts in nature, he said.

Browder, noting that the property has 142 feet of frontage on Fifth Street, said that rezoning the property would extend the CDF zone that currently exists adjacent to the tract. He said that development of bordering property has rendered the medical arts zoning designation for the small tract obsolete.

Commissioners gave their approval to the sedimentation and erosion control plan for Section V of Lake Ellsworth Subdivision and also to the preliminary plat and sedimentation and erosion control plan for the convenience center which is a part of Carolina East Mall.

Commissioners expressed some concern that several trees that exist on the convenience center development site will have to be removed. Mrs. Priscilla (Sis) East, who attended her first meeting as a new member of the city board, said that it troubled her that trees would be removed from the area. She was told that new trees were planned.

A spokesman for the Carolina East developers said that it would not be possible to leave the trees due to the parking lot pattern. Commissioner Wes Hankins had asked if it would be possible to retain at least some of the trees by planning around

Landscaping plans for the development will be presented in more detail with the submission of the final plat, the spokesman reported. Plans call for landscaping to exceed the five percent of total area required by the city ordinance, he said.

The bid opening marked the second time that general contract proposals have been received for the housing mid-rise. The initial bid opening in December of 1977 resulted in the low offer being considerably over the project budget and the bids were subsequently rejected.

The Section Eight project was redesigned and the Housing Authority asked HUD for an increase in the number of units proposed for development. The Authority hopes to build a five-story, 12-units-per-floor complex, reflecting an increase of ten units over the original plans.

In addition to the Rouse bid, other proposals were submitted by: T. A. Nye and Sons Inc., $1,762,800; L. P. Cox Co., $1,777,000; Barnhill Contracting Co., $1,792,350; and D. R. Allen and Sons, $1,920,900.

On hand for the bid opening were Joe Laney, executive director of the Housing Authority; Housing Commissioner Dr.

Dodgers' Eastern Swing Successful

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

The Los Angeles Dodgers, clinging tenaciously to a one-half game lead over the San Francisco Giants in the National League West, returned home today after what Manager Tom Lasorda called a very successful trip East.

"It's been a long trip," Lasorda said Wednesday after the Dodgers defeated the Montreal Expos 4-2.

On their Eastern swing, the Dodgers went 6-2 with series in Philadelphia, New York and Montreal.

The Giants, meanwhile, are keeping pace with the Dodgers. San Francisco completed a three-game sweep of the Mets Wednesday with a 2-1 victory.

Giants 2, Mets 1

Marc Hill, pinch-hitting for starting pitcher Bob Knepper, drove in the winning run with a double in the ninth inning, giving the Giants their 36th victory in 59 one-run games. The Giants scored their other run in the second on Roger Metzger's single. The Mets also scored in the second on Doug Flynn's RBI single.

Padres 6, Phils 5

Jerry Turner smacked a three-run homer and Padres shortstop Ozzie Smith scored the winning run in the eighth on Derrell Thomas' triple. The homer was Turner's fifth this season as a pinch-hitter, one short of the major league mark. Smith singled and stole second before Thomas' gamewinning hit. Rollie Fingers, 511, got the win in relief of Randy Jones, who breezed through the first four innings before the Phils exploded for four runs on five hits in the fifth.

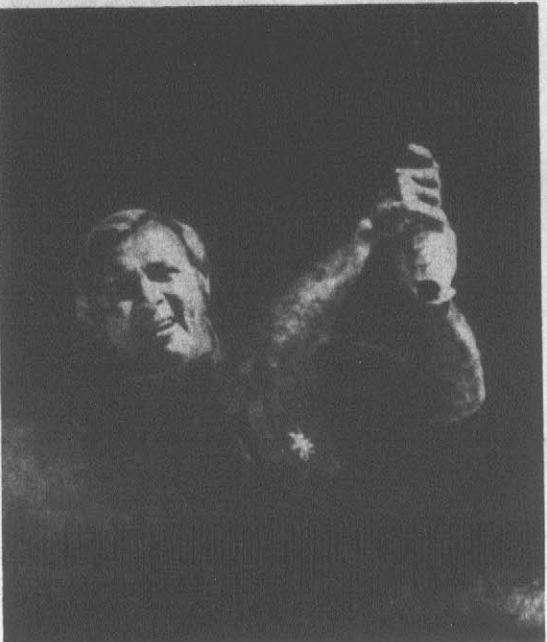

Astros 3, Cubs 0

Ken Forsch, 7-4, won his first game as a starting pitcher in three years and combined with Joe Sambito on a six-hit shutout over the Cubs, who blew another chance to gain ground on Philadelphia.

Forsch allowed four hits in seven innings and Sambito hurled the final two innings for his ninth save.

Pirates 4, Braves 3

Dave Parker singled home a run in Pittsburgh's three-run fifth inning and scored the winning run in front of Ed Ott's 12th-inning single, as the Pirates extended their winning streak to nine games.

Sand Blaster

Palmer Tries Out New Putting Style

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Arnold Palmer is trying something new.

He hunched over a putt on the practice green, his hands some four inches apart and the forefinger of the right hand pointing down the shaft.

"What's this?" asked Bob Rosburg, television commentator and former PGA champion. "You only go to that style when you're over 70 years old."

Palmer just grinned and hit another 30-footer dead into the back of the cup.

"A little experiment," he said before teeing off in today's first round of the $250,000 Hall of Fame Golf Classic.

There have been countless little experiments by the most popular player in the game's history. Many of them have concerned his putting.

"No matter what anybody says, I was never a truly great putter," said the 48-year-old Palmer. "I putted because it was my salvation. Sometimes it was the only alternative I had."

"I still enjoy the game, the people, the competition."

And he's still very competitive.

"I've been in position to win several times over the last couple of years. But every time I get there, I manage to do something dumb. My concentration isn't all that good, and that makes it very difficult for me to do the things I want to do."

Palmer, however, remains among golf's greatest drawing cards and is, at worst, a sentimental favorite in the event that began on the No. 2 course at the Pinehurst Country Club, a famed old layout that has been toughened and lengthened since Hale Irwin's 20-under-par winning effort last year.

Irwin is back to defend. He hasn't won this season but has collected almost $160,000 off a series of high finishes including a second, four thirds and a couple of fourths.

Andy Bean and Tom Watson, each a three-time winner this season and separated by less than $4,300, resume their struggle for the leading money winning spot.

Other standouts in the 156-man field include Jerry Pate, Ben Crenshaw, Ray Floyd and Billy Casper, a new member of the World Golf Hall of Fame.

Colts Trade Mitchell

BALTIMORE (AP) — With hopes of reconciliation evaporating rapidly, and bitter feelings building even more quickly, the Baltimore Colts have apparently decided to solve their problems with Lydell Mitchell by trading him to San Diego.

The Chargers announced Wednesday night that they had traded running back Joe Washington and an undisclosed draft choice for Mitchell, Baltimore's all-time leading rusher.

"We have not come to contractual agreement with Lydell," said Tank Younger, San Diego's assistant general manager. "We have not signed him to a contract, but we have traded Joe Washington and an undisclosed draft choice for his services."

But the Colts called the announcement premature, since Mitchell and San Diego had not reached the contract agreement necessary to consummate the trade.

But whether or not Mitchell plays with the Chargers this season, his prospects of wearing a Colt jersey again became even more remote Wednesday.

In addition to their contract troubles, the former Penn State star and the Colts are still embroiled in a grievance filed by Mitchell with the National Football League Player-Club Relations Committee.

Mitchell charged the team with racial discrimination, bad faith bargaining and illegally fining him $500 a day for missing practice.

The racism charge was apparently the last straw for Colts' owner Robert Irsay, who demanded an apology from the running back.

"He tells me I'm like a father, that I treat him so beautifully. Then he calls me a racist. I can't tolerate a man like that on the Baltimore Colts," said Irsay in a statement issued from his Skokie, Ill., home.

ECU Practice Features Watermelon

A surprise watermelon feast was no doubt the highlight of practice Wednesday afternoon as far as East Carolina's football players were concerned.

"It's something we like to do every year during two-a-days," explained coach Pat Dye.

"They don't know when it's coming, though."

The Pirates worked twice yesterday with only light contact, that coming in the afternoon drill.

"We're tired and beat up some, and we still have a lot to learn," Dye continued. "So we didn't hit as much today as we have been."

For the second day, practice included work against the offensive and defensive schemes used by Western Carolina, the opponent in the Bucs' home opener Sept. 2.

Freshman fullback Marvin Cobb, a second team performer, returned to action after missing one day's work with a bruised chest.

Cowboys Cut Randolph

DALLAS (AP) — Veteran fullback Charles Young, Dallas' No. 1 draft pick out of North Carolina State in 1974, and placekicker Skip Butler were cut by the Cowboys on Wednesday as the National Football League team trimmed its roster to 50 players.

Seven other players were waived.

Head Coach Tom Landry said Tuesday that Butler, acquired only weeks earlier to help shore up the Cowboy kicking game, would go. That made rookie Jay Sherill the No. 1 Dallas kicker.

Young's career with the Cowboys was hampered by injuries which kept him out of action much of the time.

Kenny Randle, a rookie from USC was placed on the injured reserve list because of a bad shoulder.

Also waived were tight end Bryon Bilcik, a free agent from Brigham Young; safety Darrel Davis, a free agent from Northwest Missouri State; cornerback Devon Ford, a free agent from Appalachian State; guard Greg Peters, No. 12 draft choice from California; guard Tom Randall, No. 7 draft pick from Iowa State; linebacker Harold Randolph, No. 6 draft choice from East Carolina and linebacker Kinnie Weaver, a free agent from Vanderbilt.

Comer Pitches First Major League Shutout

HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Steve Comer went to visit his sick grandmother Wednesday but it wasn't an excuse to go see a baseball game.

Comer reported for work as scheduled Wednesday night and hurled a six-hitter for his first major league shutout, snapping a four-game Texas losing streak and pitching the Rangers to a 2-0 victory over the Minnesota Twins.

It was a happy Minnesota homecoming for Comer, a 24-year-old right-hander who was born in Minneapolis, was a star pitcher for the University of Minnesota and lives in Excelsior, just minutes from Metropolitan Stadium.

Asked how he spent the day, Comer said: "I visited my grandmother in the hospital. I was running around all day visiting friends. I guess I didn't have that much time to gear up for the game. But it's really nice to come back here, to come back home. I had about 60 people watching, 20 from my family and probably about 40 friends."

The victory left the thirdplace Rangers seven games out in the American League West. The Kansas City Royals were beaten by the Chicago White Sox 3-0 and had their lead over second-place California sliced to one percentage point when the Angels downed the New York Yankees 6-3.

White Sox 3, Royals 0

Ken Kravec fired a four-hitter, striking out nine, and Claudell Washington's third hit of the game, a two-run single in the eighth inning off Dennis Leonard, broke up a scoreless duel.

Angels 6, Yankees 3

Don Baylor slammed his 26th home run, doubled and singled home a run, Joe Rudi hit a pair of sacrifice flies and Chris Knapp, subbing for Don Aase after an auto accident, picked up his 13th victory with help from Tom Griffin and Dave LaRoche.

Mariners 5, Red Sox 3

Two-run singles by Ruppert Jones and Lee Stanton off Mike Torrez in the sixth inning rallied Seattle from a three-run deficit to a 4-3 lead. It was the Mariners' fourth victory in a row. Boston's Jim Rice hit his 31st homer, a two-run shot off Byron McLaughlin in the first inning.

Kristi Overton

Skis In Nationals

Eight-year-old Kristi Overton will be competing in the 1978 National Water Ski Championships in Ann Arbor, Mich. this weekend.

Kristi, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Parker Overton of Greenville, is the state champion in junior girls' tricks and will be competing for the national title in that category.

Kristi has been skiing since she was four years old. She won the state crown at the state meet held in Wilson last month, her third state title in a row. She then took first place in the Southern Regionals held in Miami, Fla. earlier this month. She is the youngest female in the country to hold an E. P. (excellent performance) rating and to ski barefoot.

Over 400 skiers are expected to compete in the five-day national championships.

Stingley Has Surgery

CASTRO VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — Surgeons are pleased with their operation on the broken neck of Darryl Stingley, New England Patriots' wide receiver injured in a game here Aug. 12, but are making no predictions yet on the extent of recovery expectable.

After Wednesday's surgery at Eden Hospital in this Oakland suburb, a statement was issued by Tom Hoffman, Patriots' business manager, saying:

"His attending physicians were pleased with the operation and his condition...His postoperative condition is excellent. The operation and anesthesia were uneventful and a highly satisfactory boney position was obtained."

Stingley, a Patriots starter and in the sixth year of his National Football League career, was hit by Oakland defensive back Jack Tatum while trying to catch a pass in a preseason game at Oakland Coliseum.

Brewers 9, Indians 4

Sal Bando, whose 15th homer tied the score in the sixth inning, singled and scored the go ahead run on loser Sid Monge's throwing error in a five-run eighth as the Brewers won for the 10th time in their last 11 games.

Blue Jays 4-5, Tigers 3-4

Dave McKay and Otto Velez clubbed two-run homers in the nightcap after McKay singled home the winning run in the 12th inning of the opener following Alan Ashby's double. Al Woods' homer accounted for Toronto's first three runs.

Bears Are Still Trying To Dump Minnesota

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The National Football Conference Central Division, formerly called the "Black and Blue" division, has shown a definite purple tinge of late. But the Chicago Bears will try this year to continue their 1977 objective — dethrone the Minnesota Vikings as champions.

Minnesota, which suffered through its worst season since 1972, still managed a 9-5 record last year. That mark, matched by Chicago, was good enough to give the Vikings their ninth division title in the past 10 years, because they scored more points against the Bears in two games.

Last year, the Bears split with Minnesota, beat Los Angeles, got 1,852 yards rushing from star Walter Payton, and won six games in a row at the end of the season in earning their first playoff berth since 1963.

The Vikings had two seasons in 1977 — one with quarterback Fran Tarkenton and one without him. The 38-year-old signalcaller suffered a broken leg in the ninth game against Cincinnati, the first major injury of his illustrious career.

Backup Bob Lee got the Vikings past the Los Angeles and into the NFC championship game against Dallas, however, and Tommy Kramer, the Vikings' No.1 draft pick in 1977, is viewed as the team's leader when Tarkenton finally quits.

In Chicago, the Bears go as Payton goes, which can be good and bad. Dallas showed in the playoffs last December what can happen to a team when its prime offensive threat is shut down, by thrashing the Bears.

The rest of the division is weak, with surprising Tampa Bay probably the most improved team. The Bucs, after a winless 1976 season, won their final two games in 1977, and have three straight triumphs this preseason.

Although the offense managed only 103 points last year, the defense was one of the better units in the NFC, spearheaded by end Lee Roy Selmon.

Tight end Jimmie Giles will help the passing game, which finished last in the league in 1977, but Coach John McKay must decide among Gary Huff, Mike Boryla and rookie Doug Williams as his starting quarterback.

Injuries plagued Detroit last season, especially on offense, where the line allowed a league-high 54 quarterback sacks. Running back Horace King gained 521 yards rushing and 238 on 40 pas receptions, but new Coach Monte Clark will be seeking more consistency from the entire offense to go with a defense which ranked fifth in the NFC.

Green Bay Coach Bart Starr admits that his squad still is a few years away from divisional contention, but offensive tackle Mark Koncar is an example of a good young player Starr is seeking.

Quarterback still is a question mark, with young David Whitehurst now the starter because of injuries to Lynn Dickey. The Packers drafted standout James Lofton from Stanford, giving them a deep threat at wide receiver.

Umps, Leagues Meet

NEW YORK (AP) — Representatives of the Major League Umpires Association and presidents of the National and American leagues were to meet informally today to discuss the umpires' demands for better benefits and working conditions.

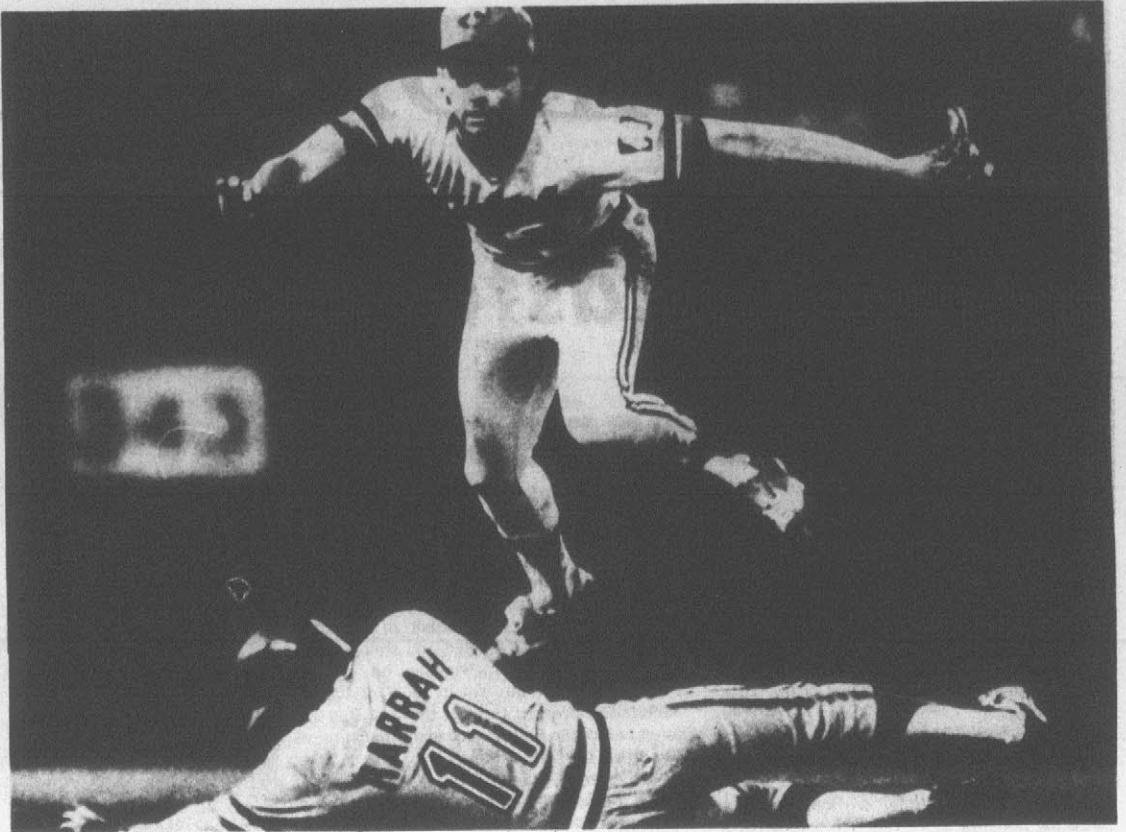

Richie Phillips, a Philadelphia attorney representing the umpires, said Wednesday that AL President Lee McPhail and NL President Chub Feeney had agreed to the meeting at 11:30 a.m. EDT, in the National League offices.

"Lee McPhail and Chub Feeney invited me to sit down and discuss informally the propositions set forth by the umpires," said Phillips. He said he was contacted by the two league officials Wednesday morning about the meeting.

"I think it will be a critical meeting," said Phillips, who indicated a strike by the 52 major league umpires would occur in the near future if the leagues refused to negotiate.

The umpires have a contract that runs through the 1981 season and league officials have refused to reopen negotiations. Phillips, however, said the umpires' demands covered items not included in the contract and therefore are appropriate for negotiation.

Starting Quarterback Position Remains Question For Terrapins

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Maryland senior Tim O'Hare has waited on the sidelines for four years for the job as starting quarterback, and believes he has earned it, at least for the season-opener next month.

But a cautious Coach Jerry Claiborne, hoping to regain the Atlantic Coast Conference crown once dominated by Maryland, says the signal-calling spot remains the major Terrapin question this fall.

O'Hare, a ruddy-faced 6-2, 192-pounder from Montclair, N.Y., is listed as first team on the Terps' latest depth chart. And he says he's itching for the Sept. 9 opener against Tulane.

He was red-shirted one year and played behind proven quarterbacks Bob Avellini, Mark Manges and Larry Dick the other three.

"It feels great," O'Hare said of his new position during the ACC Operation Football writer's tour. "I've waited about four years and it feels good. I've got a few guys nipping at my heels, but it feels good."

"Avellini, Dick, Manges, they do so many things right I couldn't help but learn from them," he added. "I'm as ready as I'll ever be. So it's now or never for me."

Claiborne, accustomed to having two top quarterbacks available, says O'Hare hasn't locked up the position yet. Two sophomores and a junior are listed behind O'Hare, and sophomore Mike Tice is given a solid shot at taking over.

"Right now O'Hare is running the team because of experience. We really don't know who will be our starting quarterback," Claiborne said. "If we played today it'd be O'Hare. But we don't play today."

O'Hare's experience is limited at best. Though the only one with playing time, some close brushes with supposedly easy opponents last year kept him on the bench. He completed just two of five passes for 15 yards all season.

Claiborne says his entire passing game is still in doubt, too, as Vince Kinney and Chuck White, two of the three top receivers on last year's 8-4 team, are gone. Wingback Dean Richards, recovering from a sprained ankle, and tight end Eric Sievers figure to be primary receivers this year.

On defense, Claiborne says he is concerned about depth. But the first team is solid.

Jamesville Gets New Grid Coach

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

First-year Jamesville football coach Jerry Godley said the Bullets are progressing well in practice, despite the fact that he has installed an entirely new offensive and defensive system.

"The guys are working hard," Godley said. "They seem to be doing pretty well; they're progressing quite a bit."

The Bullets will use multiple sets on both offense and defense this season. Godley said the offensive strong points will be the team's three running backs and the offensive line. On defense, the tackles, linebackers and secondary should do well.

Senior leadership will be a weakness for the team, Godley said, with only five seniors on the roster. In addition, there are only 27 players on the squad, so depth will also be a problem. "We're going to have a lot of people going both ways," Godley said.

The team's running backs are senior Stan Lilley (5-10, 175) and juniors Frankie Hardison (6-3, 190) and Alan Frazier (6-1, 175). Godley said Lilley is a "coach's dream kid. He will do anything you ask him to do.

He's a fast runner, too."

Hardison, the fullback, is the type of runner who can go right over people, Godley said. Frazier is the team's "speed back" and is also a smart runner with good hands.

The quarterback will be Trent Ange (6-2, 170). The junior already has two years experience at the spot and Godley said, "In my opinion, Trent is one of the best high school quarterbacks around in this area. He's very smart, can run and pass and is also our kicker. He's just an all-around athlete."

The center will be junior Joey White (5-10, 175). He didn't play last year, but is improving quite a bit.

At the guards will be juniors Bill Hardison (5-8, 165) and Ross Simmons (6-0, 170). Hardison is one of the best blockers on the team, Godley said. Jeff Rogers (6-0, 195), a freshman, will also see a good deal of action at guard.

Two seniors are the team's tackles, Keith Long (6-2, 190) and Wayne Holliday (6-3, 210). Long is also a very good blocker and an aggressive player. Holliday has good size, but needs work on his quickness.

Sophomore Greg Sullivan (6-1, 185) was the team's starting tight end before a recent knee injury. He will miss the Bullets' first game Friday night against Creswell. Filling in will probably be sophomore Ricky Bell (5-10, 160).

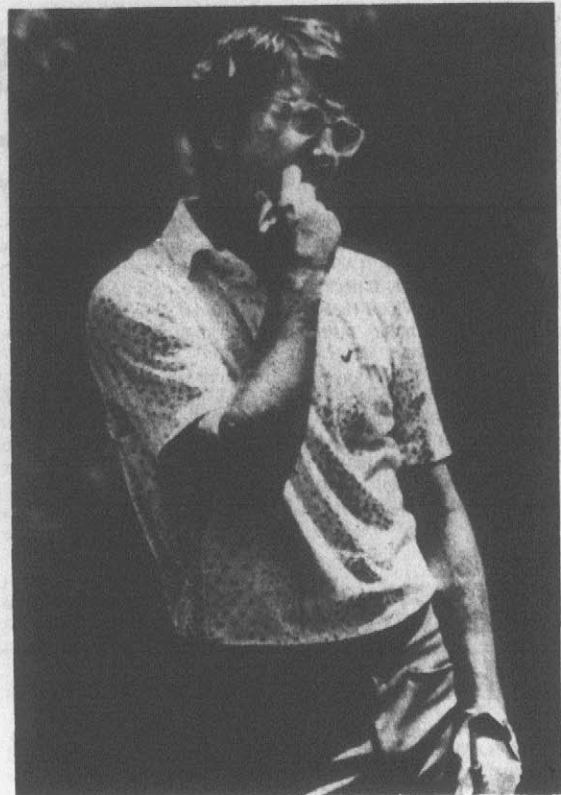

Senior Will Griffin (6-0, 165) will go at split end. Godley termed him "a good athlete."

On defense, Bill Hardison will start at nose guard, while Long, Holliday and junior Joe Gardner (6-0, 195) will play at tackle.

The ends will be Bell, most likely, and junior Billy Moore (6-1, 175), who is "improving quite a bit." Backing the line will be Frankie Hardison and Rogers.

Lilley will be at one corner and the other is a toss-up right now between Griffin and sophomore Brent Davis (5-10, 160). Frazier will be the strong safety and Ange the weak safety.

Of the Tobacco Belt Conference, Godley said he believes every team is "pretty well based." He said the Bullets are confident, however, and "we're looking going 10-0; we always start that way."

Defending Champ

Sunbelt Will Try Clock

ATLANTA (AP) — Fans of delay, stall and freeze tactics are not going to like Sunbelt Conference basketball this year.

But Commissioner Vic Bubas says an experimental 45-second shot clock, approved Wednesday by the conference's faculty representatives, may take hold and spread to other college basketball conferences.

Once it gains possession of the basketball, a Sunbelt team will have 45 seconds to attempt a field goal. The shot clock is to be turned off during the last four minutes of a game and during any overtime periods.

"It permits a team to tease an opponent without stopping action entirely by freezing the ball," Bubas said. "By turning the clock off during the final four minutes of the game, our teams will learn how to protect a lead and prepare for delay tactics they may face when playing non-conference opponents."

If the National Collegiate Athletic Association approves the trial, the timer will be used in all conference and tournament games during the 1978-79 season.

The Sunbelt will be the only college basketball conference playing with a shot clock this year, said Bray Cary, assistant to the commissioner. It will be the only experiment ever with a 45-second limit, he said.

Major Push To Sustain Veto Of Nuke Carrier

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Although President Carter is on vacation, the White House is mounting a major push to sustain his veto of a bill authorizing a $2-billion nuclear-powered aircraft carrier.

Administration bigshots are trying to sell Carter's message through a series of public appearances, through a White House briefing Wednesday for about 250 businessmen, lobbyists and interest-group representatives, and through telephone calls to members of the House scheduled to vote on overriding the veto Sept. 7, the day they return from a Labor Day recess.

The message: Carter vetoed the $37 billion defense bill because Congress cut out too much money for NATO, for maintenance, for research and for other nuts-and-bolts military items to pay for "the world's most expensive ship."

The administration's effort is being quarterbacked by Vice President Walter F. Mondale's chief of staff, Richard Moe, who says of Carter's message: "When it is understood, it is inevitably successful."

Mondale, Defense Secretary Harold Brown and National Security Adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski were the stars of Wednesday's session in the East Room of the White House.

The guests included representatives of the Jewish War Veterans, the U.S. Catholic Conference, Gulf & Western, FMC Corp. and about 250 other businesses or interest groups.

They heard Brzezinski say Carter "vetoed the bill because he wants more defense rather than less, and he wants it sooner rather than later."

Mondale said that, based on reports he had gotten from Capitol Hill, "we are confident it (the veto) will be sustained."

And Brown said: "We can't afford to make billion-dollar mistakes. If the nuclear carrier gets built, I feel that the trend

Hua's Visit Won't Affect Relationships

By BORIS BOSKOVIC
Associated Press Writer
BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Yugoslav officials are stressing that their government doesn't intend for Chinese Chairman Hua Kuo-feng's visit to damage its relations with the Soviet Union and the United States.

Ranking government and Communist Party officials, who asked not to be identified, cited

President Tito's trips within the last year to Moscow, Peking and Washington as proof that "a small country can successfully develop relations with big powers, even though among them (these powers) relations are not the best."

The officials told reporters Yugoslavia's example proves it can have good relations with one power without spoiling ties with any other.

These assurances were prompted by Soviet criticism of Hua's swing through Romania, which pursues a foreign policy independent of Moscow, and Yugoslavia, which successfully defied Soviet domination 30 years ago. Moscow charges that Peking is trying to gain influence in Eastern Europe at Russia's expense.

Commenting on rumors that

Tito would visit the Soviet Union soon after Hua's trip to Yugoslavia ends, the officials said: "Such visits are always possible because our relations are developed and active, but nothing has been fixed."

Asked whether it was intentional that Hua arrived in Belgrade on the 10th anniversary of the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia, Aug. 21, the official said: "Any date in the year can be maliciously made to coincide with any event. In this case there is no connection whatsoever."

The officials said the talks between Hua and his Yugoslav hosts are chiefly concerned with relations between China and Yugoslavia, which they said have been improving at a rapid pace since Tito's trip to China last year.

Students Must Ask For Benefits

Social security benefits to students are not automatic, according to a spokesman for the local office of the Social Security Office. Applications for such benefits — and notification of change in student status — are both the responsibility of the individual student or their parents.

Social security benefits can be paid to unmarried full-time students under 22 when one or more of their parents receive social security retirement or disability benefits, or when a parent dies after working long enough to qualify under certain social security provisions.

Most students in these categories have been receiving benefits throughout their summer vacation because they planned to return to full-time attendance this fall. But many, for one reason or another, may not decide to return to school when fall terms begin.

In such instances, the student is to notify social security promptly so that benefit checks can be discontinued. If checks are not stopped quickly enough, the student may have to repay money received incorrectly.

Students whose benefits were stopped last spring because they did not plan to continue in school — but who have since decided to return to school full-time, and who are under 22 and unmarried, can apply to have benefits started again.

Anyone with questions on students benefits should call 756-2368.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Make it a point not to break promises that you have made and to avoid whatever tensions and strains and delays may be about. The evening finds you accumulating more energy and resourceful ideas and you are able to make much headway.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Be patient in the face of delays that may occur today to keep you from progressing as you desire. Get busy at other matters and then by evening you can go great guns again.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You need not bother bigwigs during the day for favors since by tonight you know how to proceed intelligently by yourself. Kin may not be understanding early but later are cooperative.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You may be provoked and could lose your temper, but keep calm and later all breaks in your favor. Find right new outlets and add to present income, abundance.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You feel financially depleted but if you think in a positive manner this soon can be remedied. A fellow worker could be annoying but not for long.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Don't give in to that feeling of depression early and travel in the right circles and you soon make this a banner day. Count your blessings and change your attitude. Consider those less fortunate.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Get rid of that feeling of being imposed upon and look into new interests that could bring you real success. Find where you can cut down on expenses and do so.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Don't permit a friend to detain you when you have an important matter to take care of. This is apt to be a difficult time, but evening is fine from the social standpoint.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Handle pesky chores early and then have time for recreation with closest tie. Investigate a matter that puzzles you and get right answers.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) A new contact could be annoying, so avoid. Be with good and trusted friends. Gain personal aims with relative ease.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Forget some misunderstanding with one you truly like and reconcile. Get your public image improved. Handle community matter well and make your area more livable.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Avoid an irate partner for now and get busy on other matters, new projects. Planning a little trip is wise. You can be more successful if you apply yourself more.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Be on guard with others in the morning since they are in a bad mood. Later all changes and you can accomplish a great deal. Take time to improve your state of health.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will need encouragement for work well done in order to make the most of them later on in life. A prideful person here who needs to be taught to use this quality wisely or your progeny could make enemies instead of friends.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Hunt Promises Support For State's Black Universities

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt helped open a moneyraising drive for the United Negro College Fund Wednesday by promising the support of his administration for traditionally black colleges and universities.

The governor said citizens should be more generous in contributing to the Raleigh-area fund-raising drive this year because Dr. Prezell R. Robinson, president of St. Augustine's College, is national president of the fund.

Robinson and Dr. Stanley Smith, president of Shaw University in Raleigh, shared the platform with Hunt during a luncheon attended by about 160 people.

The fund raised $359,289 for St. Augustine's and Shaw, both black universities in Raleigh, last year. Officials said the goal this year is $400,000 for the two schools and $25,000 for the fund.

Hunt acknowledged the dispute between the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and the University of North Carolina System over desegregation of the 16-campus UNC system but said there was never any serious consideration of closing any of the campuses.

"This means we must not just continue to maintain our dual system of historically black private and public colleges but also improve that system, particularly from the standpoint of academic excellence," he said.

Hunt also said there is a disparity in funding of black schools.

"The average endowment per student at private colleges nationally is $4,608. At fund schools, it is $1,780," he said.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

The Town of Fountain, N.C. may soon receive federal grant monies through the Community Development Act of 1974.

The public is invited to express opinions and offer suggestions concerning the use of the grant.

Date: Thursday, August 24th

Time: 7:30 p.m.

Place: Town Council Chambers of the Town Hall

Cigarette Increase

Despite increased anti-smoking activity and rising cigarette prices in many countries, world cigarette production and trade both increased during 1977.

Global output rose by two percent, or 76 billion smokes, increasing from 4.051 trillion in 1976 to 4.127 trillion last year, according to the Foreign Agricultural Service of the national Department of Agriculture.

Output was lower in the United States, West Germany, France and the United Kingdom. Reductions in those countries were more than offset, however, by gains in the People's Republic of China, the Soviet Union, Japan and Brazil, plus smaller increases in most other countries.

World trade in cigarettes jumped nine percent, rising from 242 billion smokes in 1976 to 265 billion last year. Most of the increase resulted in larger exports by the United States and the European Community.

The share of filter-tip cigarettes continued to expand in most countries but at a slower pace. The saturation point has been reached or is being approached in many countries.

Group's Background Surprising

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Jon Bauman, ex-Juilliard man, degreed in music by Columbia U., can sing opera, play classical music and knows from such things as the Lydian mode and the 12-tone row.

What, then, is a long-haired cat like him doing singing "yipyip-yip-mum-mum-mum" in his role as Bowzer, the greasy-haired bass vocalist of the '50s rock group called Sha Na Na.

"Mainly having fun," he cheerfully replied. "I'm enjoying myself. I'm communicating something to everybody—I hope."

Sha Na Na, evolved in 1969 from a staid Columbia vocal group, The Kingsmen, this fall starts its second syndicated season on TV in a weekly show seen on 130 stations, include the five NBC owns.

Bauman, 30, a skinny, friendly guy, is the only classically trained member of this rock-of-Brooklyn tribe. He joined up in 1970 from a post as music director of a naked musicale, "Oh! Calcutta!"

Didn't Sha Na Na's simple, repetitive sounds initially grate on his educated ears?

"Well, yes and no," said the Brooklyn-born singer, who with his wife, Mary, moved here last December from Brooklyn Heights. "To me, music is just a form of expression."

"And '50s rock 'n' roll to me is just as expressive, just in a different way, as anything else. Granted, it's not as musically complex, but socially, what it meant in its time was complex."

Bauman, son of a dentist, said he started in music at age 7, playing piano, first Hanon exercises, then classics, "but like any other kid I started listening to pop music early."

"I reached kind of an early crossroads where I liked both, and I'd be practicing my classical music and listening to the radio—with an earphone—at the same time."

But now, after all those years of formal studies, don't you feel strange to be all greased up and singing informal 1950s rock?

"Well, I've looked at my job mainly as a theatrical one from the very beginning," said Jon, also a trained actor who studied with Lee Strasberg, among others, in New York.

"Musically, sure, it's limited, though it's great music I love and grew up with. But I always did look at it from the very first as an acting job and acting problem, so I created Bowzer."

He said he still practices classical works off-duty, and "one thing I'd like to do would be to have Bowzer conduct a symphony for a young people's concert, to try to cross over that line."

"Others have done it, and I think it's a good thing. These musical tastes can co-exist in a person. One needn't preclude the other."

A major question: What with "Grease," "Happy Days," "American Graffiti" and other forays of the '50s heavily assailing the '70s, shouldn't Dick Clark be impeached?

The basso profundo of Sha Na Na just laughed and laughed.

"That's kind of a tough one, isn't it?" he rumbled.

'Cry Room' Is Movie Feature

LIBERTY, N.C. (AP) — A tear-stained carpet is evidence that the tiny room with two padded chairs in the Curtis Theatre has served its purpose over the last 29 years.

A neon sign proclaiming "Cry Room" points the way to the cubicle, which theater operator John Curtis believes to be the only one of its kind left in North Carolina.

Many first-time patrons of the theater are curious when they see the sign and take a look into the room, seven feet by 10 feet, with a plate-glass window looking into the theater and equipped with speakers piping in sound from the movie. Although the cry room would be an ideal spot for moviegoers overcome with emotion from the tear-jerking film, it was designed to give mothers a place to watch the film without their bawling babies bothering others in the audience.

"It's a convenience, it really is," Curtis said.

"It used to be used more often than it is now, though," he said. "Pictures have changed, you know. There are not as many children brought to the theater as there used to be. Of course, when a Disney movie or something like that attracts a lot of youngsters, we have women who bring children in their arms as well as their older children, and the cry room gets used quite a bit then."

Curtis said his mother, Runa Curtis Greenleaf, had the cry room constructed off the lobby of the theater when it was built in 1949.

"I guess it is the only cry room left in a theater in the state," he said.

Members of several generations from the area around the northeast Piedmont town of Liberty remember trips to the cry room as children.

"One of those times I was old enough to remember," said Vickie Brower, 29. "I was about four years old. I had stumbled and hurt my knee and was crying and mama took me in there."

"Life imitates art," wrote Oscar Wilde. In 1965, a hand was widely published and was credited to Giorgio Belladonna, regarded by many as the world's best player. He denied having made the play, and subsequent research proved the deal to be a composition by Paul Lukacs. This hand, from the Open Paris event in the Fifth World Bridge Olympiad, is almost a carbon copy of that problem, and earned for the declarer, Joe Amsbury of England, an entry in the Bols Brilliance Prize competition.

The contract of four spades was a popular one. Looking at all four hands, it would seem that the contract is doomed—except for the club ace, every important key card is badly placed. If declarer discards two hearts on the diamonds, he must still lose two hearts, the ace of clubs and the king of spades.

Amsbury chose to take advantage of the favorable opening lead by discarding his two clubs on the high diamonds. Even now it seems that he will have to lose three hearts and a trump, for if he comes to his hand with a club ruff to lead a heart to the king, East can win the ace and shift to a trump. When West wins the second heart, he can remove dummy's last trump, and the defenders must score another heart trick.

Declarer's solution was elegant. After taking dummy's high diamonds, he ran the nine of hearts! West won the trick cheaply with the ten, but the contract could no longer be defeated.

West found the best defense—a trump shift. Declarer won the ten and led a heart to the king and ace, but East did not have a second trump to return. His club return was ruffed by declarer, and a heart ruff felled the queen and set up the jack for the game-going trick. Declarer lost only two heart tricks and a trump.

Don't Disregard Fungus Infection

For a number of years I have had a fungus infection under the toenail. What is the treatment for it? — Mr. J.F.T., Pa.

Dear Mr. T.: You do not indicate what you have been doing for your infection over the years. I hope you are not one of the many who lets things go by with the "this too shall pass" attitude. For there are many excellent ways to treat a fungus of the nail.

There are a number of different fungi that can cause this condition. A yeast-like fungus and the "tinea" fungus, that causes athlete's foot, are most commonly responsible.

When this persists for a long time, secondary infections may occur in the area and make healing far more difficult. The application of creams and lotions (with or without antibiotics) is not always the answer. Sometimes scraping the area and removing the accumulated scaling is necessary.

In addition to this, there are excellent anti-fungal medicines which, when taken by mouth, prove to be helpful.

As you can see from my writing, my hand shakes and is very unsteady when I eat or write. When I am very tired, it gets worse and it is very annoying. I am 68. — Mr. O.F., Ohio.

Dear Mr. F.: Tremors of the hands are sometimes noted during periods of great emotional stress or fatigue. These transient tremors are usually of no great significance.

Tremors that persist for a long time are another matter. They demand the most careful neurological study in order to determine the exact cause.

When doctors first see a patient with a tremor, they observe it to see its rhythm and rate and how it is affected by movement or rest.

There are some tremors known as "intention tremors" that appear when a movement is made. There are others, known as "passive" tremors, which seem to lessen, and even disappear entirely, with active movements.

As I mentioned, neurological examination can usually pinpoint the reason. When it is determined, treatment can be started.

There are now excellent drugs which can reduce the severity of tremors in people who have Parkinson's disease. Great strides have been made in a variety of related neurological problems.

Where can I get more information about how to donate my eyes so they can help someone after I am gone? — Mrs. K.C.R., N.H.

Dear Mrs. R.: Your planned gift deserves admiration. I am always touched by those who want to give sight to the sightless. The miraculous accomplishments of modern eye surgery have made the transplantation of corneas a reality. Gift corneas

Singers Perform

The Leary Ervin Singers will be featured at the Saturday evening service at the Greenville Church of God.

The special youth service will begin at 7:30.

The singers will also be present for the 11 a.m. Sunday service. The church is located at the corner of Spruce and Skinner Streets.

Movie, 'Three' Top Week's Ratings

NEW YORK (AP) — A couple of ABC programs, including a previously shown movie and a rerun of "Three's Company," bounced "One Day at a Time" from first place in the ratings, a spot the CBS comedy had held for two weeks in a row.

The strong showing at the top — ABC had three other shows in the Top 10 for the week ending Aug. 20 — left the network ahead of CBS and NBC in their battle for the prime time viewer.

"One Day at a Time," one of four CBS shows in the first 10, was third for the week, while NBC's best, "Quincy, M.E.," tied for ninth.

The 16 highest-rated shows were repeats of previous episodes. CBS' "60 Minutes" was the top new program, No. 17, and ABC's "20-20" newsmagazine was 23rd.

The high score for "Joe Kidd," a feature film starring Clint Eastwood, helped ABC to a rating for the week of 15.6

followed by CBS at 13.7 and NBC at 13.4.

The networks say that means in an average prime time minute during the week, 15.6 percent of the homes in the country with television were tuned to ABC.

The rating for "Joe Kidd" was 24.3, while the week's No. 2 show, ABC's "Three's Company," had 21.8. Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with television, 24.3 percent saw at least part of the movie.

Four of the week's five lowest-rated shows were on

CBS. NBC's "Black Sheep Squadron" was No. 61, followed by four CBS programs — "Friends," CBS Saturday Movie, "Come Back Charleston Blue," "Down Home," and CBS Wednesday Movie, "The Deadly Trap."

Here are the week's 10 most watched programs:

ABC Sunday Movie, "Joe Kidd," with a rating of 24.3 representing 17.7 million homes, and "Three's Company," 21.8 or 15.9 million, both ABC; "M-A-S-H," 21.6 or 15.7 million, "One Day at a Time," 21.2 or 15.5 million, "Barnaby Jones," 20.6 or 15 million, and "Alice," 20.2 or 14.7 million, all CBS; "Laverne and Shirley," 19.8 or 14.4 million, and "Charlie's Angels," 19.6 or 14.2 million, both ABC, and "Carter Country," ABC, and "Quincy, M.E.," NBC, both 19.2 or 14 million.

The next 10 programs: "Starsky and Hutch," "Love Boat," "Fantasy Island" and "Happy Days," all ABC; "Lou Grant," "All in the Family," "60 Minutes" and "The Incredible Hulk," all CBS; "Little House on the Prairie," NBC, and "Hawaii Five-O," CBS, tie.
