

Nicaragua Said Seething

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Nicaraguans seeking the ouster of President Anastasio Somoza clashed with national guardsmen in major towns across the country as a general strike gathered momentum and reports circulated of rebellious talk in the army.

National guard sources said there have been open discussions of revolt broadcast over guard radio stations. But foreign diplomats said they believe Somoza will be able to retain control of the guard, Nicaragua's 7,500-man army.

Officers of the guard are reported upset over Somoza's capitulation to the 25 Sandinista Liberation Front guerrillas who seized the National Palace and more than 1,000 hostages last week and forced the president to let them and 59 imprisoned Sandinistas go to Panama.

Managua was quiet Sunday, but demonstrators erected street barricades and threw bombs at troops in Jinotepe, Diriamba, Esteli, Matagalpa, Leon, Chinandega and Granada, the largest towns outside the capital.

No deaths were confirmed, but the Red Cross said there were dozens of injured and unconfirmed reports of fatalities.

Guardsmen clashed with street demonstrators in Jinotepe, 35 miles south of Managua, where there has been virtual street war for three days, and in Diriamba, about five miles north of Jinotepe.

Shooting was reported in Matagalpa, about 100 miles north of Managua. A Red Cross spokesman said thousands of demonstrators were building bonfires and that both demonstrators and guardsmen were erecting street barricades.

Thousands of demonstrators also were reported in the streets of Leon Sunday night.

Political opponents of Somoza predicted Managua would be paralyzed today by the general strike after 34 of the country's 36 chambers of commerce voted Sunday to back the four-day-old walkout. They urged their members to close down their businesses until Somoza resigns.

The strike, which has been more effective in the provinces than in the capital, was launched Friday by the Broad Opposition Front, a coalition of a dozen political parties and three labor groups.

Kennedy Warns Of Health Cost Revolt

By DON McLEOD
AP Political Writer
BOSTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy warned the nation's governors today that soaring health costs will produce a citizens' uprising that will make the taxpayers' revolt pale in comparison.

"The current non-system of medical care is a failure," the Massachusetts Democrat told the opening general session of the National Governors' Association's annual convention.

"If left unchecked, that failure will become a disaster — a disaster that will destroy federal and state budgets, seriously injure the economy, cause countless human tragedies, and in my opinion, create a citizens' revolt that will pale the current concern over taxes," Kennedy said.

Kennedy, a leading congressional champion of national health care, renewed his attack on President Carter's health proposals, which he has called inadequate.

Calling health care a basic human right, Kennedy said, "Some who espoused that right want to condition it — to condition it on many things over which the health care system has no control — the general state of the economy, the size of the budget deficit, the presence or absence of major strikes, or oil embargoes.

"But human rights are not conditional," he said. "And a commitment to a conditional human rights is no commitment at all."

Kennedy reminded the governors that the burden of providing health care for uninsured citizens falls chiefly on state and local governments and said it is adding to their tax revolt problems.

The governors' association is on record as recognizing the national health problem but has failed to agree on a course of action.

In an opening news conference Sunday, Gov. William Milliken of Michigan, chairman of the group, and host Gov. Michael Dukakis of Massachusetts agreed there was no agreement among the governors either.

Dukakis said there is "clearly a division of opinion within the association" on health care and that is why a major portion of the agenda was given to the issue.

"It is very true that we have not been able to reach general agreement across the whole association," Milliken said, "and I strongly suspect that we will not reach that at least until after the elections, until there are a number of new governors and we have had an updating on the problem across the country."

The governors have been debating the issue for years, and there is felt to be a majority in support of comprehensive national health care. However, it takes a two-thirds vote to get a policy resolution passed by the association and a bipartisan bloc of political and fiscal conservatives has been able to prevent an agreement.

New Step To Support Dollar

WASHINGTON (AP)—In another action to help support the dollar, the Federal Reserve Board took steps today to encourage borrowing of foreign held dollars by American banks.

About $500 billion in U.S. dollars are held overseas. They are called "Eurodollars" because they are outside the control of U.S. banking authorities.

To encourage use of the so called Eurodollars by American banks, the Federal Reserve Board today removed the requirement that U.S. banks must maintain reserves equal to 4 percent of what they borrow abroad.

"The effect of the reserve reduction is intended to encourage member banks to substitute Eurodollar borrowings for domestic borrowings as a source of funds," the board said in a statement.

If the action has the intended effect, it would mean some of the foreign-held dollars would be returned to this country for use in domestic lending. This would reduce the amount of dollars held abroad, contributing to overall strength of the American currency.

The action is the third taken in recent weeks by U.S. financial authorities to help strengthen the dollar on world money markets. The Fed previously increased its interest rate on loans to banks to make holding dollars more attractive, and the Treasury Department has increased the amount of gold it will sell at its monthly auctions.

Postal Strike Is Shaping Up As 'Only Alternative'

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

With a strike deadline of midnight tonight, the Postal Service today refused to budge from a position that postal unions said would result in a walkout.

Postmaster General William F. Bolger repeated his unwillingness to reopen negotiations with unions that have said they would begin striking at midnight if he doesn't return to the bargaining table.

"As far as I'm concerned, we have finished our negotiations," Bolger told the National League of Postmasters convention.

Bolger, as he has frequently in the past, pressed for pursuing the legal steps when a contract is rejected. These steps include binding arbitration if the two sides cannot find an agreement.

Bolger said that he doesn't think that most of his employees want an illegal strike. "They realize that a strike would do permanent damage to the Postal Service."

He said the diversion of much mail to other means of delivery would hurt the unions by reducing the need for manpower in the Postal Service.

"A strike would be the worst possible thing that could happen to the Postal Service," Bolger said.

Meanwhile, one union president is mandated by his members to call a strike by midnight tonight if there is no resumption of bargaining. Another union president, under similar mandate, has a midnight Wednesday deadline.

"We have completed our negotiations as far as I'm concerned. ... I still am not going back to the bargaining table," Bolger said.

He was interviewed on CBS' "Face the Nation."

Bolger continued to press for the processes provided by law for instances where union members, as they have in this case, refuse to accept a tentative agreement. Those processes are fact-finding under the supervision of federal mediators and, if a settlement is still not reached, binding arbitration.

The unions, however, have rejected this course, saying the choice for Bolger is to renegotiate or face a strike.

Despite the seemingly dug-in positions on both sides, Bolger continued to predict there would be no strike. "I think most of the postal employees are law-abiding people. They will certainly carry out the intent of the law, and not strike, in my opinion," he said.

There was no sign Sunday of any give in the union positions. Union leaders met on and off with federal mediators and for a time informally with Bolger. A source close to the situation said, "Of substance, nothing really has changed."

The Postal Service, citing the law against mail strikes, got a court restraining order Saturday forbidding strikes by the two largest postal unions. However, neither the law nor a court order prevented widespread local walkouts in 1970.

Members of three unions have voted down a tentative contract reached July 21. They are the 299,000-member American Postal Workers Union, the 181,000-member National Association of Letter Carriers and the 36,000-member mailhandlers division of the Laborers International Union.

The APWU has mandated

President Emmet Andrews to get the Postal Service back to the bargaining table by midnight Wednesday or call a strike. For the letter carriers union, the deadline is tonight. The mailhandlers union has no such mandate.

The rejected agreement called for 19.5 percent increases in wages and cost-of-living payments over three years. This would boost average postal salaries from the present $15,877 to around $19,200 by 1981.

Direct Deposit 'Safe'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 7.7 million recipients of Social Security and other federal benefit plans whose monthly checks normally go directly to their banks will not be affected by a strike of postal workers, but more than 26 million other beneficiaries could face delays, the government said today.

But sources said privately there are plans to continue delivering all first-class mail, including benefit checks using supervisory personnel or the military and that benefit recipients can expect to be able to get their checks either at their usual addressees or possibly from the general delivery window at their local post office.

Bob Thompson, a spokesman for the Treasury Department, which processes Social Security checks, said people who have signed up for the Social Security Administration's "direct deposit" plan get their money through the Federal Reserve System which relies on couriers and electronic communications.

Truck Said Seized In PCB-Dumping Probe

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State law enforcement officers have seized a truck believed to be connected with the illegal dumping of PCBs along 270 miles of North Carolina highways, state Attorney General Rufus Edmisten said Sunday.

Edmisten would not comment on what state officials may do with the truck or on whether arrests are expected in the case.

"We have jurisdiction of the truck, but I'll give no details," Edmisten said.

The truck was picked up Thursday by New York authorities. It was being held at the Falconer, N.Y., state police station where it had been kept for inspection by North Carolina State Bureau of Investigation agents. Edmisten declined to comment on the new location of the truck.

"We're in a crucial phase of the operation," Edmisten said. "Something could break in a matter of days."

When asked if the truck would be brought to North Carolina, Edmisten said, "I can't answer any questions, I can simply say the New York police no longer have possession of the truck."

Edmisten said no charges were filed in the case Sunday.

The probe, conducted by the SBI, New York authorities and the federal Department of Environmental Protection, stems from the dumpings this month of chemicals containing PCBs. The spills occurred along roadsides in 14 North Carolina counties.

State transportation authorities spent last week spreading activated charcoal along the contaminated roadsides to absorb the chemical. The spraying operation was completed Saturday, a transportation spokesman said.

North Carolina officials are considering scraping up the contaminated soil from along the roads and burying it in a landfill.

The EPA must approve any site chosen to dispose of the chemical.

New Pope Keeping Appointees Of Predecessor

By EDWARD MAGRI
Associated Press Writer
VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope John Paul I demonstrated his dedication to the policies of Pope Paul VI today by continuing in office the chief officials of the Roman Catholic Church's central administration appointed by his predecessor.

The new pontiff reappointed French Cardinal Jean Villot as Secretary of State, the equivalent of the Vatican's prime minister, and the heads of the nine Sacred Congregations, the main departments of the Vatican Curia.

Among the latter is Cardinal John Wright of Boston, who heads the Congregation for the Clergy and did not participate in the election of Pope John Paul Saturday because he was hospitalized for eye surgery. He was released from hospital Saturday and is recuperating.

In another affirmation of Pope Paul's policy, the new pope reconfirmed Archbishop Agostino Casaroli as Secretary of the Council for Public Affairs, the Vatican's foreign minister.

The Vatican announcement said all the heads of congregations would serve the remainder of the five-year terms to which they were appointed by Pope Paul. However, this five-year period does not apply to Villot, Casaroli, or Archbishop Giuseppe Caprio, the substitute secretary of state, who are the pope's personal choices.

In addition to Cardinal Wright, the congregation heads are Cardinal Franjo Seper of Yugoslavia, the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, the former Holy Office; Cardinal Sebastiano Baggio, Congregation of Bishops; Cardinal James P. Knox, Australia, Sacraments and Divine Worship; Cardinal Eduardo Pironio, Argentina, Congregation for the Religious; Cardinal Agnelo Rossi, Evangelization of the Peoples; Cardinal Corrado Bafile, Italy, Causes of the Saints; Cardinal Gabriel Marie Garrone, France, Catholic Education; Cardinal Pierre Paul Philippe, France, Oriental Churches.

Vatican sources said the pope may call a consistory this year to appoint new cardinals. Several cities which traditionally have cardinals presently are headed by bishops. They include Tokyo, Dublin and Turin. Also, the pope is said to have promised a cardinalship to Bishop Ernesto Civardi, secretary of the conclave which elected him.

The new pope dug into the business of church administration after pledging to overcome "internal tension" within the church and to continue the work of his two predecessors whose names he took.

All executive appointments in the Curia, the church's central bureaucracy, expired automatically with the death of Pope Paul on Aug. 6. But John Paul had been expected to reappoint most or all of them both because of his commitment to carry on Pope Paul's policies and because of his own lack of Curia experience.

The new pope's only experience at the Vatican was as a member of the executive board of the Congregation for Sacraments and Divine Cult. He has spent nearly all his life in the Venice area, as a priest in his native diocese in the Alps, as bishop of Vittorio Veneto and for the past nine years as Cardinal Albino Luciani, patriarch of Venice.

Elected Saturday on the first day of voting by 111 cardinals locked in the Borgia Apartments of the Apostolic Palace, the new pope will be crowned Sunday. But the Vatican has not announced whether the coronation Mass will be in St. Peter's Basilica or in the square in front of it, where Pope Paul VI held his coronation in 1963.

A surprise choice who doesn't have an international reputation, John Paul is considered by some a conservative but was termed a "moderate" by Cardinal John Dearden of Detroit. And moderation was the keynote of his speech Sunday to the cardinals in which he pledged to carry on the reforms launched by the 1962-65 Vatican Council and the programs of Pope Paul.

He said the church's first duty is evangelization. He also pledged to go ahead with the movement for Christian reunification, "without doctrinal ceding but also without hesitation," to carry forward "with patience and firmness" the dialogue with non-Christians, and to help peace initiatives in "the turbulent world."

He made clear he gives high priority to obedience to the hierarchy. "We wish to preserve the integrity of the great discipline of the church in the life of priests and of the faithful," he said, and he called for "a strict response to our will."

This and his insistence on doctrinal continuity was interpreted as a clear indication that he would continue Pope Paul's controversial bans on artificial contraception, married priests and the ordination of women. But he made no direct reference to these issues dividing the church.

"He's taught theology, and he wants to keep the church true to solid theology," said Cardinal John Carberry of St. Louis.

"I don't see much change, but he will be very effective at continuity of program," said Cardinal John Cody of Chicago. "I do not have the wisdom or the heart of Pope John. Nor do I have the preparation and culture of Pope Paul," John Paul told a crowd of 200,000 in St. Peter's Square at noon Sunday. "However, I stand in their place. I must try to serve the church. I hope you will help me with your prayers."

He also received his first official invitation for a trip abroad. Archbishop Rosendo

Huesca of Puebla, Mexico, sent a telegram asking him to attend a conference of Latin-American bishops opening Oct. 12. Cardinal Pablo Munoz Vega of Quito, Ecuador, said it was too early to say whether the pope would go abroad so soon after taking over.

Ponders 'Swan Song' In Revue

NEW FAIRFIELD, Conn. (AP)—Douglas Fairbanks Jr., who has appeared in more than 75 movies, is looking for a swan song, but not on film.

The actor, renowned for roles in movies like "Gunga Din" and "Angels Over Broadway," is weighing whether to make a long-postponed Broadway debut with a new musical revue that is playing on the summer theater circuit, "Out on a Limb."

"I won't make up my mind until October whether the show is strong enough to try to take it to Broadway," the 68-year-old actor said.

Divided On Bond Issues

KERNERSVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Kernersville voters, plagued with contaminated drinking water last summer when chemicals were dumped into the reservoir, are divided in their sentiments on two bond issues for water and sewer proposals.

Kernersville will vote on the bond issues Nov. 7.

One question on the ballot will be a $1.2 million water bond issue to finance a link with the county water system. The other is a bond issue of up to $800,000 to connect the Kernersville sewage system with the Winston-Salem-Forsyth County system.

Mayor Roger P. Swisher said Kernersville's growth and prosperity depend on the approval of both bond issues so the town can be permanently linked to the larger water and sewer systems.

But Harvey Pulliam, a salvage dealer-auctioneer, said he believes both issues should be rejected by the voters. He said Kernersville should be independent and self-reliant in meeting its water, sewer and other needs.

Larry Brown, a member of the town's board of aldermen, has taken an in-between view. He said Kernersville should look for outside help only if and when outside assistance is needed.

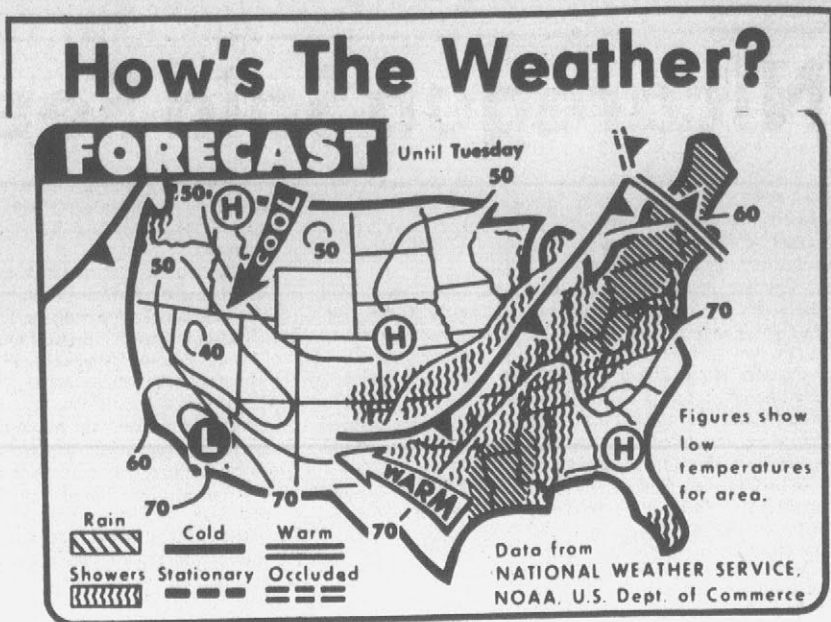

Brown chairs a newly formed citizens' committee dedicated to defeating the water bond proposal and returning to the use of Kernersville's own water system.

He said the water in the town's reservoir, though once polluted by a chemical spill, is still safe to drink. Brown said there is enough water in the reservoir to meet Kernersville's needs for 15 to 20 years.

However, Brown said he favors linking the town to the city-county sewage system because the town's present treatment plant has reached its limit.

1 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
1 cup cider vinegar
1 cup water
1 cinnamon stick
Skin peaches; halve and pit. In a large saucepan over moderate heat, stir together the remaining ingredients until the sugar dissolves; simmer for about 5 minutes. Add the peaches. Simmer uncovered until peaches are barely tender — 3 to 5 minutes. Chill. Drain or serve with a slotted spoon. Makes 8 to 16 servings — 1 or 2 peaches halves per portion.

White-Powell Vows Solemnized Sunday

BELL ARTHUR — The wedding of Miss Georgia Ann Powell and David Keith White was solemnized Sunday at 3 p.m. in the Bell Arthur Christian Church. The Rev. Linwood E. Kilpatrick performed the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. William Allen Powell of Rt. 1, Greenville, and Mr. and Mrs. G. Cecil White of Rt. 2, Robersonville.

Nuptial music was presented by D. J. Rasberry, organist, and Mrs. d D. J. Rasberry, pianist. Mrs. Vida McLawhorn sang "There Is Love."

The bride and bridegroom entered the church together. The bride wore a formal length gown of white organza over white peau de soie designed with a Queen Anne neckline edged in scalloped chantilly lace beaded with pearls. The empire bodice was overlaid in French chantilly lace with the full bishop sleeves in the matching lace with the cuffs of scalloped lace. The waistline also featured the beaded lace.

The modified A-line skirt and attached chapel length train were enhanced by cascading tiers of organza edged in chantilly lace. She wore a fingertip illusion veil edged in silk Venise lace and carried a full cascade of yellow roses, baby's breath and daisies.

Miss Shannon Johnston, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a formal length gown of yellow organza trimmed in white lace. She carried a basket of daisy petals with yellow ribbon streamers.

Ushers included William Allen Powell Jr. of Greenville, brother of the bride, and G. Richard White of Raleigh, brother of the bridegroom.

The mother of the bride wore a formal length gown of apricot knit with a matching lace coat. The mother of the bridegroom wore a formal length gown of pastel blue chiffon with a matching cape. Both wore white orchid corsages. Mrs. Alice Coker, great aunt of the bride, was remembered with a white carnation corsage.

Mrs. Geneva Lewis of Greenville directed the candlelight ceremony.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents entertained guests in the fellowship hall of the church. Miss Jessica Johnston, cousin of the bride, presided at the guest register. The bride's portrait was displayed on a table covered with white lace.

After the first traditional slice of cake was cut by the bride couple, the cake was served by Mrs. J. C. Johnston, aunt of the bride. Punch was poured by Mrs. Judy Davenport, cousin of the bridegroom. A summer color scheme of yellow and green was carried out through the use of daisies, carnations and greenery.

The Rev. and Mrs. Johnnie Maurice said the good-byes.

For a wedding trip to Wrightsville Beach, the bride changed into a dress of floral print. She wore her mother's corsage. The couple will reside at Rt. 1, Greenville.

The bride is a graduate of Farmville Central High School and East Carolina University. The bridegroom is a graduate of Robersonville High School and

Wants To Ban Most Teachers

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Since statistics show that 98.3 percent of all child molesters are heterosexual, I'm organizing a crusade to prohibit heterosexual teachers from instructing children of the opposite sex.

I don't want my daughter molested by a heterosexual male teacher, or my son seduced by a heterosexual female teacher. I'd appreciate your comments.

CONCERNED PARENT

DEAR PARENT: Your statistics are correct, but banning all heterosexual teachers on the chance that one might molest a child is unfair. However, if you proceed with your crusade, be sure to enlist the help of Anita Bryant—since she wants so desperately to "save" our children.

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for 38 years and my problem is my mother-in-law. Mums has been a widow for 10 years. She lives 400 miles from here, and spends most of her time and money just traveling around visiting relatives.

We have a guest room, but Mums prefers to sleep on the living room sofa where she can see and hear everything. And she snores so loud we can't hear the TV.

She complains about my coffee, my cooking, our children and our grandchildren. She soaks her false teeth in one of my best china cups, and when she leaves I have to throw the cup out.

We never know when she's coming. She just calls us from the bus depot and tells us to come and get her. If we had plans to go out of town ourselves, it's too bad. We can't leave her in our home alone because she never locks a door. She's not forgetful—just trusting.

I have a strange feeling she's headed this way and I don't think I can stand another one of her visits. When she comes she stays anywhere from three days to three months. Help!

HAD IT WITH MUMS

DEAR HAD IT: A telephone call to Mums would put you at ease. Call her and find out what her plans are.

Next time she comes, tell her where you want her to sleep and where to soak her false teeth, and also set a time limit on her visit. And while she's in your home, be firm with the crusty old girl. She sounds like she'd rather enjoy going a few rounds with her family.

DEAR ABBY: Timmy and I have been married for six years and have two cute kids. We've had our fights, but nothing serious.

Timmy's mom has never really liked me because before I met Timmy he was serious about a girl named Doris, and his mother wanted him to marry HER.

Well, last week Doris came to town. She's divorced (no kids), and I heard (from one of Timmy's sisters) that his mom arranged for him to meet Doris at her house twice! I don't know the purpose of those meetings, but if Timmy had told me he wanted to see Doris, I'd have been happy to invite her over here.

I am boiling mad at Timmy's mother for that sneaky trick. When I told Timmy what I thought of the whole business, he said I was making a mountain out of a molehill. Am I?

FUMING IN NEW ORLEANS

DEAR FUMING: No. If you think Timmy's mother is deliberately trying to undermine your marriage, you have a right to complain. But Timmy's not entirely blameless. He cooperated (twice), if what you heard was true. Take it up with Timmy.

ECU Campus Resumes Activities

If any reminder is needed that summer is nearing its end, it was came this weekend as 12,000 students and additional staff members, came to Greenville for the East Carolina University fall semester.

Students and faculty have been moving into apartments and other housing locally for a couple of weeks, but the real flood of new people came during the weekend as dormitories on campus filled up in preparation for registration today.

Following registration on Monday and Tuesday classes will get underway on Wednesday. The season's first football game with Western Carolina in enlarged Ficklen Stadium will be held Saturday and by then university life will be back to normal.

The beginning of the fall semester is like so many others of the past — except this year the enrollment is the largest in the history of the school and the university has a new chancellor in Dr. Thomas Brewer.

Life in a community such as ours with an institution as large as ECU in our midst has to some extent to revolve around the campus activities.

Greenville this week will be teeming with activity now that its population has taken a sudden increase. We welcome the students and faculty to the community and the campus.

Elderly Housing Can Serve A Need

The Housing Authority has had trouble getting acceptable bids for a planned mid-rise housing development which would be designed for the elderly.

The complex to be built on Third Street, has been put out for bids a second time and again they were high. Authority spokesmen say they will try to negotiate in attempt to bring cost of the project down.

The elderly housing could serve a number of deserving people and help them to remain self-sufficient. Hopefully a way can be found to build the project.

THIS AFTERNOON A Final Word On Liquor

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—The final word on rules covering mixed drinks in North Carolina will come from the General Assembly.

That message is being gently relayed to those involved in the present rule-making process: a special committee named by Gov. James B. Hunt, Jr. and chaired by former Gov. James E. Holshouser, and the three-man Alcoholic Beverage Control Board chaired by Marvin Speight.

Too many people from top members of the Hunt administration to policymakers in the Department of Crime Control and Public Safety to those active in ABC licensing and supervision think that all the General Assembly did was pass the basic law, and it is now up to others to write the implementing rules and regulations.

"A lot of people are operating on the belief they can do as they please now that the law is passed, and the General Assembly will not have anything to do with it," says Carl Steward, speaker of the House of Representatives.

Involved
The Gaston Democrat warns that the rules, "Won't just go by us."

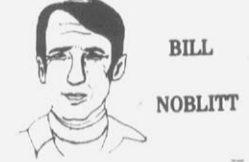

Steward sees the rule-writing process going in a stricter direction than most legislators desire. Hunt is opposed to mixed drinks, and the special committee is weighed in that direction with several anti-liquor spokesmen involved. Crime Control Secretary J. Phil Carlton is also on the record in favor of rigid rules, and Gov. Hunt himself has stated that the key ingredient in regulations will be control.

The Holshouser committee will present its recommendations to the three-man ABC Board chaired by Speight. Speight is an outspoken liberal on the question of mixed drinks and is known to favor less stringent rules. That is one reason Hunt set up the special committee. Meanwhile, a running feud between Speight, who handles licensing and permits, and Carlton, who bosses the law enforcement agency policing alcohol, continues.

State Senator James B. Garrison, D-Stanly, is also miffed that those involved are headed in directions which might run afoul of legislature intent.

The committee recommendations are expected to be super-cautious. "If those recommendations propose things stricter than they were before, things could really get out of hand. I wonder how much authority they have anyway," Garrison pondered. Actually, he reasons, the ABC Board could simply "accept the recommendations courteously" then go in another direction.

BILL NOBLITT

The heart of the problem says Garrison and other legislative leaders is to develop rules neither too strict nor too liberal, but reflecting the intent of the General Assembly to provide a mixed drink law for the state.

Restrictive
There has been talk of restrictive steps such as allowing drinks with a mea-only, to having non-drink sections in restaurants, to not allowing a drink while standing or seated at a bar separate from a restaurant, etc.

"I would hate to see us have to take 40 pages of drink regulations and get into that in detail in the next session of the Assembly," Steward said. Wading through the book on a line-by-line basis would add a month to the session. "But there is the impression that the General Assembly has acted and it is out of our hands. Nothing is ever out of our hands, and if the rules are not balanced and fair as we all want them to be, then we shall have to get into the matter."

On the other hand, some legislators opposed to mixed drinks may find the regulations too relaxed and use the same power to demand legislative attention with an eye to tightening them.

Most experts feel, however, that since the legislation was adopted in the General Assembly after years of battling, lawmakers are now ready for liberalization of liquor law, not tighter control.

THEIR CONVENIENT HOSTAGE!

Parties Are Revealing

By ART BUCHWALD
WASHINGTON — The Washington society pages are different from any others in the world and most people turn to them before they read the front pages. The reason for this is that the hard news about world events is oftentimes buried in paragraphs devoted to embassy receptions, official dinners and Georgetown cocktail parties.

This is how a typical Washington society-page story might read:

"The Russians threw a wonderful party at their embassy last night to celebrate the arrival of the Bolshoi Ballet. In the receiving line was First Secretary Karnonsky, who with his lovely wife Zina greeted the guests. Zina told me she was sorry the ambassador couldn't be there, but he had been called over to the White House to receive a special message from the President. When I asked Zina where the ambassador's wife was, she replied, 'She's packing the ambassador's bag for a trip to Cuba.'

"I was very disappointed, as I enjoy talking to the ambassador and his wife so much. But despite their absence the table was loaded with caviar and smoked sturgeon, and there was a lovely centerpiece of flowers arranged to look like Angola. Zina can do wonders with flowers."

"In the main salon I met Gen. Werick Jablonsky, the handsome Polish military attache, and his beautiful wife, Minka. Werick was telling some funny stories about Berlin, and when I asked him if he thought East to have a nice word for everybody.

"I met Mrs. Nganda Ula, wife of the Ugandan minister for economic affairs, who said her husband could not be there as he was being held prisoner by Idi Amin. Mrs. Ula was wearing an Indian sari of gold threads interwoven with pink, and she looked striking.

"I was about to ask her how she was doing with her house-hunting, when Col. Singh of the Indian Military Mission and his wife greeted

Pork Barrel Data

By DON McLEOD
AP Political Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Sooner or later it had to happen. The pork barrel has been computerized.

This latest marvel of the computer age may have reached its height of folly when the White House released a list of 12,000 counties, cities and villages that might be eligible for aid under President Carter's new national urban policy.

A list that size brings new dimensions to pork barrel — projects included in a bill that provide money for home districts and assure that enough members of Congress will vote for the bill to get it passed.

The urban aid would provide funds for such things as neighborhood rehabilitation and industry recruiting. The hope was most congressmen would be pleased to grab some of this for their districts.

In hindsight, however, some White House strategists concede the list may have been a mistake that helped dig a grave for key portions of the program. But they say it was nonetheless unavoidable.

Only a computer could have produced such a list. It screened every community in the United States according to the eligibility criteria in the Carter plans, and then printed out the 12,000 that passed.

Immediately the list caused problems.

Places like Shaker Heights and Mercer Island showed up on the list of eligible communities. Shaker Heights, outside Cleveland, and Mercer Island, a Seattle suburb, are two of the best heeled communities in America.

This was all the excuse needed for the program's critics to man the torpedoes.

In fact, there were several hundred wealthy communities on the list, a result of a fluke in the formula for determining the needy.

One test of need was a slow growth rate, on the assumption that a community with a static population and economy is in trouble. But some communities plan it that way and have practiced deliberate no-growth or slow-growth policies for years — not because they are poor but to keep the poor out.

When the loophole created

THE INSIDE REPORT Veto Politics By Carter

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — There is substantial evidence that in his daring veto of the defense bill, President Carter was guided chiefly by a desire to reestablish his presidential virility rather than by fervent opposition to a costly, fifth nuclear aircraft carrier.

"The president was looking for a peg to hang his veto on," one usually pro-Carter Democrat on the House Armed Services Committee told us. "The carrier was his best bet."

By asserting presidential mastery and muscling Congress to sustain his veto after Labor Day, Mr. Carter is following public relations adviser Gerald Rafshoon's get-tough formula. But in getting tough, he has risked losing major defense items obtained as trade-offs for the carrier in the intricate congressional logrolling process.

None of the president's military advisers, uniformed or civilian, recommended the veto. There was mirthless laughter in the Pentagon when Mr. Carter told his press conference that he had "not had a single adviser who told me that we ought to go ahead with the nuclear aircraft carrier."

By law, the president's "principal naval adviser" is the chief of naval operations.

Both the present chief, Adm. Thomas B. Hayward, and Adm. James L. Holloway III, replaced by Hayward July 1, have been strong proponents of the nuclear carrier.

Apart from the president himself, the moving force behind the veto was White House political adviser Hamilton Jordan, along with Rafshoon — not Secretary of Defense Harold Brown.

That came out in Brown's private talks with congressional military specialists, sounding out sentiment before the veto. The defense secretary made clear he had not proposed such drastic action, but that Mr. Carter seemed determined on it.

Talking to one friendly congressman, Brown showed this was politics, not defense. He speculated whether the best way to defend the veto would be opposition to the nuclear carrier or opposition to cuts in research and development and in readiness funds. As it turned out, Mr. Carter used both arguments, emphasizing the carrier.

Politics showed itself when one congressman warned Rafshoon the veto might make the president look anti-defense. Rafshoon's answer revealed how clearly the political tactics had been developed: don't worry; the president can deal with that in the veto message. Deal with it he did by calling Congress anti-defense.

Ignored by Rafshoon and Jordan was the effect of the veto on the delicate logrolling needed to produce a defense bill. Although the veto probably will be sustained, writing a new defense bill will be no easy task.

A case in point is liberal Democratic Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado, an Armed Services Committee member highly skeptical of big nuclear carriers. Hart agreed in a trade-off with conservative Republican

To the editor:
Newspaper editors are trying to convince their constituencies newspaper editors should be granted diplomatic immunity from extortion charges in the interest of Freedom of the Press (Conflicts of interest aside), even though such immunity might cost the ordinary citizenry their lives, liberties, and properties. In short, what Farber wouldn't turn over to the judge in chambers to save a life, he was willing to sell to a publisher for 20 pieces of silver. (Or was it a million bucks?)

The newspaper medium has demonstrated their "Miranda mentality" again with their usual aplomb for "throwing out the baby with the bathwater." Fortunately, the First Amendment guarantees are not absolute. For example, newspapers as well as individuals are forbidden malicious libel. Most assuredly, the First Amendment does not guarantee special immunity from prosecution to one group of individuals at the expense of other individuals. The purpose of the Bill of Rights was to secure certain "inalienable rights" from government for all men. Since the Roosevelt era, the Press Club has preached more and more government for the citizenry while seeking greater freedom from government for themselves. In short, the monster nurtured by the press is good for everyone except the press. When the people spoke to cast off their oppression through Proposition 13, the Press attempted to minimize their victory with ambiguities and ridicule. The press is no longer a voice for the interests of the people; the voice of the Press has become self-serving.

To the editor:
A few days ago I received an unexpected surprise. Prior to this, my son's bicycle had been stolen while parked outside in Pitt Plaza. The surprise was that the Greenville Police Department had found the bike after approximately two weeks. The bicycle was not registered with the police dept., and my sons did not even know the serial number on the bike. I had no thoughts that it would ever be recovered, but was impressed by my sons' talk about how nice the investigating officer was and how fast he traveled to the scene when called. Oftentimes many adults don't listen very patiently to the tales of eight- and 12-year-olds, but this policeman did. Officer Thomas J. Spruill took all the information given by my sons and left them with many nice things to say, including, "He was so nice. Mother, we weren't even scared just because he was so big!"

Thanks also to Officer Pat Bundy for letting us check the bicycle, trusting our beliefs that it was my son's, even though it was unfavorably camouflaged and without the serial number.

If my faith in the Greenville Police Department had ever waned, then it has definitely been restored; and I hope all policemen look 10 feet tall to my sons.

Strength For Today

STOP Or Go WATCH?

At a committee meeting, a member sat down and laid his watch on the table before him. "I can stay until eleven-twenty," he said.

"You ought to get a stop-watch," said one of his friends. "No," replied the committee member, "what I need is not a stop-watch but a go-watch.

Probably many of us would do better in life with a go-watch, if there were such a thing. It would not merely measure time, but would help us get started at the proper moment. Many of us never reach our potential for accomplishment because we are slow on the uptake. The better job we want never comes because we never start to look for it. The great book remains unwritten because we have never put the first word on paper. The great invention never appears because we can't get our ideas into tangible form.

A go-watch would not solve all of our problems, but it would at least direct our attention to the points where it is needed.

Evidence Of Trouble Ahead

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Economists manning the lookout posts for signs of a business slowdown have sighted evidence of possible trouble in the area of consumer spending.

Their accounts differ considerably, however, on whether this dark speck on the horizon is likely to become any kind of serious navigation hazard.

After a strong early spring showing, retail sales have flattened out recently, rising by just 0.2 percent in May, 0.1 percent in June and 0.2 percent in July.

"Consumer spending has undergone a discernible change over the past few months," New York's Bankers Trust Co. noted.

"But whether the consumer will continue marking time for a while, as has happened on several previous occasions since the current business expansion began, or whether a real retrenchment in buying lies in the offing is far from certain."

The available data aren't much help in making the picture clearer. On the plus side, government figures showed personal income — naturally a central factor in spending plans — rising faster than inflation in July, following slight declines in the inflation-adjusted figures for the two previous months.

Less favorable indications come from the survey of consumers sponsored by the Conference Board, an independent business research organization. Its index of buying plans, calculated from a survey of 5,000 households nationwide, dropped last month to its lowest level in more than three years.

Merrill Lynch Economics Inc. bases its generally negative forecast on the tendency of both consumers and businesses lately to accelerate their spending in anticipation of continuing inflation — buying to beat expected future price increases.

The firm foresees a sharp slowing of consumer spending, leaving businessmen with excess inventories by the end of the year. The likely result, it says, is a recession in 1979 "of about average duration and magnitude for the post-World War II period."

Bankers Trust economists, though they use softer language, agree that retail sales are likely to be "less than exuberant" in the coming months.

These kinds of warnings, of course, does not sit well with many businessmen who feel that gloomy forecasts can be self-fulfilling.

An executive of one consumer-goods company, when asked recently if he was worried about a possible recession, replied, "No. And if everybody would shut up, there won't be one."

Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina to support the nuclear carriers in return for Helms' backing of a new generation of small carriers favored by Hart.

One day after the veto, Hart wrote all senators urging an override of the veto with this argument: "The Congress produced a carefully crafted, logical and progressive conceptual approach to the question of the future of the carrier. The veto destroys this achievement and puts us back on the treadmill of the carrier question — with no solution in sight."

Routine trade-offs, spun into a seamless web, are at the heart of the congressional defense-budget process. That explains why vetoing a major defense bill is so rare that it has not been tried in this century. In his dramatic effort to show himself a commander-in-chief who truly commands, the president ignored this record for the gamble of large political gain.

For now, however, the president is less concerned with putting the defense bill back together than with mobilizing public opinion behind his argument that he, not Congress, is the staunch fighter for national defense. That was the message Aug. 23 when 200 prominent businessmen were summoned to the White House for enlistment in the anti-carrier crusade led by Vice President Walter Mondale.

Results were mixed. One executive was puzzled that the White House expected him to accept Mondale's word on faith against that of Sen. John Stennis of Mississippi, veteran chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee. "They're crazy if they think I'm going to tell Sen. Stennis he's wrong," the executive told us.

No such national campaign was started against the carrier until after the defense bill was sent to the Oval Office. That only reinforces suspicions about the president's veto motives.

This is loose enough to let in communities with pockets of poverty but enough wealthy residents to keep up the average.

Consequently, 433 names have been lopped from the list. But not before the damage was done. The key programs associated with the list are dead or ailing in Congress, thanks in part to the listmaking.

Which raises the obvious question of why the White House would build such a

Hunt Says Tax Rebate May Be Considered

BOSTON (AP) — North Carolina Gov. Jim Hunt said on a national television show here Sunday that chances are good that he will ask the legislature to consider a rebate on the state income tax next year.

Hunt, in an interview after appearing on ABC's "Issues and Answers" with three other governors, said he could not predict how large a rebate could be expected.

"I think we can give taxpayers some sort of relief," Hunt said. He is attending a national governors conference here.

"We can talk about it because I think we can meet the essential needs of the budget and have some left over for the taxpayers," he said.

Hunt said when asked what a tax rebate would mean to taxpayers, "Well, for example, let's take a $50 rebate — and I'm not saying that's what it's going to be — but $50, that's two new pairs of shoes for a family's children or a deposit to get a kid in one of our universities... It would be meaningful and help."

But Hunt said, acknowledging that some have criticized the rebate plan, "We shouldn't try to fund everything."

"You can talk about all the needs of state services, but there is another side of the coin — the needs of the poor taxpayer who is barely getting along with inflation and the fact that his real income is going down." The tax subject came up in the show when the four governors were asked what they are doing about the taxpayers' revolt created by California's Proposition 13.

In answering the question, Hunt said, "What we have to be is more efficient and in North Carolina we've done that."

"We have a balanced budget and, in my state, we are going to weed the budget down to the essential things so we can have a tax rebate in my state," Hunt said.

In a speech in Asheville last week, Hunt hinted that he was considering some form of tax relief.

Farm Scene

By Leroy James
County Extension Chairman

To do a good job in corn harvesting, Pitt County farmers need to harvest at high moisture content so that field losses can be minimized. Harvesting corn at high moisture content means that trucks will be going to market heavily loaded with wet corn. Some precautions should be taken to insure the quality of the corn remains high through the drying process.

Most farmers know that there are certain molds that can establish themselves on corn kernels both before and after harvest. These fungi grow best when temperatures range between 80 and 100 degrees Fahrenheit and when moisture conditions (relative humidity) are above 85 percent.

High Moisture
Much of the southeast corn crop is harvested at high moisture content which can add to the problems of mold in storage. To insure trouble-free corn crop storage, corn should be dried to 12 to 13 percent moisture within six hours of the time it is harvested. Drying corn within the recommended moisture range will stop most mold growth at any temperature.

There are several guidelines, which if followed during harvesting can reduce mold and possible aflatoxin damage to corn.

Cracked Kernels
Since cracked kernels of grain are more susceptible to mold invasion and fragments of stalks and weeds in harvested grain enhance mold growth, proper combine settings are essential to prevent these hazards.

High moisture corn and other grains that are held in wagons longer than six hours without cooling with forced air, will begin molding.

Proper Maturity
Harvest corn properly

when it has matured. When drying equipment is available, harvest may begin when kernels reach 26 to 28 percent moisture content.

— Install filler plates between threshing and cylinder bars and adjust cylinder to slowest speed and widest clearance to give adequate shelling. Less cracking occurs at low cylinder speeds. Cracking and other damage encourages mold growth and insects.

— Adjust the combine to maximum cleaning of moist trash or grain matter. Farmers might want to consider the use of a rotary screen cleaner at the grain bin to remove trash and weeds, as well as cracked corn kernels, before corn is stored.

Holding Bin
— It is imperative not to hold high moisture corn in wagons or similar holding places for more than six hours. High moisture corn awaiting drying should be placed in a holding place and air forced through it to keep it cool. If corn must be held for more than six hours, peanut drying wagons can be used to cool and dry corn while it awaits drying.

— Corn that collects in auger wells, around dump pits, and other common grain handling areas frequently contain fungi which can cause storage problems. Be sure to clean your elevator dump pit or auger well frequently.

Later Weather
As the weather begins to turn cool, corn in bins should be aerated regularly to prevent moisture condensation when outside temperatures drop. Aeration has replaced the old practice of turning grain and helps eliminate outside air.

Will Explain Peanut Rules

Rules and regulations for the 1978 peanut season will be explained to Pitt County farmers Tuesday, 3 p.m., at the Farm Bureau Building, Greenville.

The meeting, sponsored by the North Carolina ASCS, the Agricultural Extension Service and the Peanut Growers Cooperative Marketing Association, will feature Ernest Miller of the state ASCS, S. Womack Lee, manager of the Peanut Growers Cooperative Marketing Association and Clyde Weathers, agricultural economist, North Carolina State University.

Joe S. Sugg, executive secretary of the North Carolina Peanut Growers Association, will head the meeting. Growers are urged to attend to participate in the question and answer session.

Cattlemen Unsure Of Profit In Beef Prices

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The cost of steak and other beef cuts are leading this year's double-digit increases in food prices and there is no significant easing of beef prices in sight.

But the people who produce this cattle are uncertain about whether they can make money at even these prices.

Cattle producers told UPI reporters that they just reached the point in a complicated 10-year economic cycle where they began to make money again. In fact, they say, beef prices were lower than they were in 1971 and 1972, if inflation is taken into consideration.

Visits N.Y. In 'Self-Defense'

SOUTHAMPTON, N.Y. (AP) — California Gov. Jerry Brown came East to campaign at an elegant Long Island estate, explaining he was acting "in self defense" because candidates from all over the country come to California.

The $100-a-couple fundraiser Sunday was attended by about 200 people, including singer-composer Paul Simon, actress Gilda Radner of "Saturday Night Live," television commentator and author Shana Alexander and local resident Lee Radziwill, sister of Jacqueline Onassis.

The event, arranged by Manhattan Borough President Andrew Stein, was held on the lawn at the home of Stein's father, Jerry Finkelstein, a local Democratic figure and publisher of the New York Law Journal.

Brown, who was en route to the National Governors Conference in Boston, insisted, "I'm not running for president. No, no."

But then President Carter decided to increase the 1.3 billion pound beef import quota by 200 million pounds. This depressed prices, threw their accounting out of kilter, and created a group of very angry cattlemen.

Retail beef prices this summer are averaging about 30 percent more than last year and are expected to average 23 percent higher for the year as a whole, says Agriculture Department economist Allen Johnson.

Prices should keep rising for the next three years, with the rate of increase depending on the health of the economy, the price of feed, the cost of other meat and the psychology of cattlemen.

Psychology is a fragile factor. The producers must choose whether to expand their herds or cut down on production, and that is related to economics, and to expectations of future prices.

This year, cattlemen were making profits for the first time since 1973 and paying off heavy debts incurred over four years of substantial losses aggravated by last year's drought.

Carter increased imports and fed cattle prices dropped by about $120 a head, calf prices dropped by about $30 and yearling feeders dropped by $55.

"Since the imports came out, you check the supermarket and you'll find they have not lowered the finished product very much," said Orville Kalsem of Huxley, Iowa.

Bob Fritzer, who fattens cattle for market in Sterling, Colo., explained his side of the economic situation.

"You must realize that we just took a 15 percent decrease over the last 2½ months," he said. "We were just getting to the point of this year when we could realize a little profit and the president comes along and opens up imports. That put us back in a deficit situation."

Les Guthrie, president of the Tulare, Calif., Cattlemen's Association, says he is skeptical but guardedly optimistic about the economic future.

He reports only a nominal profit after last year's drought reduced his grazing land and forced him to sell 20 percent of his cattle at a loss.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market moved lower today even though the government moved to ease two of Wall Street's major worries, the weak dollar and inflation.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was off 4.24 at noon to 891.29. Declines led advances by a slim margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. Big Board volume totaled 13.32 million shares in the first two hours of trading, down sharply from the two-hour tally of 15.92 million Friday.

The Federal Reserve made it easier today for banks to borrow funds in the Eurodollar market — dollars held outside the United States. Fed economists said increased demand for Eurodollars could push up interest rates and encourage holders of foreign currencies to trade them for dollars they could lend at attractive rates.

Adams Artifacts Are Recovered

QUINCY, Mass. (AP) — Artifacts stolen earlier this month from the historic home of John and Abigail Adams have been recovered in woods about 500 yards from the house.

Two boys discovered two swords while playing in the area and took them home. The father of one of the boys called police, who on Sunday found other items, including muskets, a powder horn and the wedding vest of the nation's second president. All had been wrapped in a rug and were intact, authorities said.

Boeing Expects Productive Year

SEATTLE (AP) — The president of Boeing Commercial Airplane Co. says the firm expects to end 1978 with about $6 billion in orders for existing production airplanes and new models.

Enrollment Shift Eyed

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Winston-Salem State University, once an all-black teachers' college, is making an effort to attract more white students.

Last fall, Winston-Salem State had 222 white students, only about 10.2 percent of its student body. But Emily H. Harper, WSSU admissions officer, said she expects white enrollment to increase this year.

The school's faculty is 40 percent white. Most of WSSU's white students are not the typical college student. Most of them, whether enrolled in day or evening classes, are older and have homes, families and jobs. Most attend classes on campus and go home. Few live in dormitories or participate in social activities on campus.

During orientation last week for about 800 new students at the university, one white student said she saw only about 20 other whites.

The goal of the state university system, as submitted to the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, is to increase white enrollment at WSSU to 16 percent of the student body by fall of 1981.

Area Agents Arrest Trio

Three persons were arrested by area agents of the Alcohol Law Enforcement Agency on Friday night with illegal liquor possession counts levied against two of the men.

Pitt ALE agent Danny Dilda said that he and agent Warren Hopkins arrested Louis Edwards Jr., 25, of Rt. 1, Grimesland and charged him with possession of alcoholic beverages in an unauthorized place and also with obstructing Dilda by hindering, delaying and refusing to cooperate with an officer. Edwards was arrested at 6:45 p.m.

Dilda, who said the incident took place at Dewey Gaskins' Grocery at Calico on Highway 43, said that bond was set at $100 on the possession count and $200 on the obstruction charge. Trial date was set for Sept. 26.

Gaskins, according to the agent, was arrested on a charge of interfering with an ALE officer in the performance of his duty. Trial date for Gaskins, 42, who listed a Rt. 1, Grimesland address, was set for Sept. 26. Bond was set at $300.

James Henry Langley, 55, of Rt. 1, Bethel, was arrested at the Alibi Club off Highway 903 at 10:25 p.m. Friday and charged with possession of tax paid liquor in an unauthorized place. Langley was cited to court for a Sept. 26 trial appearance.

Fire Damages Pool Room

Fire and smoke damaged Happy's Pool Room on Cotanche Street about 7:30 a.m. today. Fire Department officers reported.

Investigators said the blaze apparently resulted from a short circuit in an electric motor on a drink cooler and spread to a counter in the building.

Robt. Shaw Dies At 51

NEW YORK (AP) — Robert Shaw, the actor known for his portrayals of rugged adventurers in such movies as "Jaws" and "The Deep," has died of an apparent heart attack near his home in Tourmakeady Island near Dublin, his New York press agent reported today.

The 51-year-old actor, who also wrote several books and plays, was driving with his wife Virginia and 1 1/2-year-old son Thomas at about 5 p.m. Sunday when he suffered the attack, said publicist Mirna Post. He died at home, she said.

Born in Lancashire, England, Shaw started his acting career as a member of the Old Vic drama company in the 1950s and performed in numerous productions in England.

The brown-haired, blue-eyed Shaw first came to the attention of the American movie-going public as a villain in the James Bond movie, "From Russia With Love." He went on to appear in such films as "Robin and Marian," "The Sting" and "Black Sunday," but found his greatest acclaim as a fisherman in the thrillers, "Jaws" and "The Deep."

Two films made before his death, "Force Ten from Navarone" and "Avalanche Express," have not yet been released.

In addition, Shaw made a name for himself as a writer. His first book, "The Hiding Place," was published in 1959. It was about wartime Germany, and recently was made into a full-length motion picture. He wrote four other novels.

Shaw also wrote three plays, among them "The Man In The Glass Booth," a docu-drama about the trial of Nazi Adolf Eichmann.

Shaw, whose first wife, actress Mary Ure, died several years ago, is survived by his wife and 10 children.

Watson Takes Hall Of Fame

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Tom Watson is the year's leading money-winner again, holder of four 1978 tournament titles, in position to gain another Player of the Year title and closing in on some other ambitions such as the Vardon Trophy and Ryder Cup.

At least some of those good things can be attributed to the instant, iron-clad and unhesitating adherence to the rules of golf by Tom Kite, who called a self-imposed penalty for an infraction no one else saw, a penalty that eventually knocked him out of a playoff role and let Watson escape with the title in the Hall of Fame Classic.

"That cost me the tournament," a disconsolate Kite said Sunday, then responded to a question: "You're damn right it hurts."

Watson Misses Putt

Tom Watson reacts to a missed putt on the 15th green during Sunday's final round of the Colgate-Hall of Fame Golf Classic at Pinehurst Country Club.

Watson won his fourth tournament of the year with a score of 277. The $50,000 first prize makes him the tour's leading money winner. (AP Laserphoto)

The incident, which occurred well out of the range of the national television cameras and wasn't even observed by Kite's playing partners, Hale Irwin and Howard Twitty, took place on the fifth hole of the final round on the No. 2 course at the Pinehurst Country Club.

Kite had missed a 15-foot birdie putt. He had a tap-in of less than a foot for a par. As he set the club down, the ball rolled, "about this much," he said and held thumb and forefinger less than one-quarter inch apart.

Under the rules, it was a oneshot penalty. Kite immediately stepped back from the ball and told Hale Irwin, one of his playing partners, "I'm calling a penalty. My ball moved."

Neither Irwin nor Howard Twitty, who were playing with Kite, saw it. Those three eventually tied for second behind Watson — by the margin of the one-stroke penalty Kite called on himself.

Watson, playing in front of Kite, Irwin and Twitty, was unaware of the incident until after he'd watched both Kite and Twitty fail on long, 18th hole birdie putts that would have sent it to a playoff.

Twitty's putt hung on the lip. Kite's just slipped by, and he collapsed in an agonized heap.

"It has to be very disheartening," Watson said. "It's something you have no control over."

He won this one with a 277 total, 7 under par, after a closing 71. He had a commanding five-shot lead at the turn, then had to hang on against the trio who finished a single shot back. Irwin had a closing 73, including a birdie on the last hole, Kite a 71 and Twitty 67. Danny Edwards came out of the pack with a 65 and took fifth at 279.

The victory was worth $50,000 and pushed Watson's earnings to a leading $303,429. He also moved ahead of Lee Trevino in the Vardon Trophy standings for the leading stroke average on the tour, 70.18 to 70.31.

And, with his previous wins in Tucson, the Bing Crosby and Byron Nelson, he's won more U.S. tournaments than any other player this season, which makes him the leading candidate to repeat as Player of the Year.

Hamlin Gets 1st Victory In LPGA

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — The celebrity attention Shelley Hamlin received for winning her first LPGA tournament was just as surprising to her as the victory itself.

"Do you always have champagne after every tournament," she asked, spying the winner's libation on the tables. "I haven't ever done this before, you know. In fact, I've never gone into a press tent."

Hamlin's personality reflected the champagne she drank — bubbly. The 29-year-old former national collegiate champion from Stanford had just sunk a six-foot birdie putt on the 18th hole to claim a 1-stroke victory over Kathy Whitworth in the $75,000 Patty Berg Golf Classic at Keller Golf Course.

"I love to talk, too," she warned reporters. "You probably won't be able to shut me up now."

Hamlin fired a 4-under-par 69 for a 10-under, 54-hole total of 208. Whitworth, who started the day 1 shot behind second-round leader Marlene Floyd, birdied the first four holes, but suffered through two double bogeys on the back nine to finish with a 72.

"I folded like a wet noodle," said Whitworth, the LPGA alltime leading money winner and a member of the ladies' Hall of Fame. "I don't know how else to put it. For 52 holes I held it together. Maybe next time I can hold it together for 54 holes."

Whitworth was 13-under-par at one point and held as much as a 3-stroke lead through most of the final round. But her first double bogey came at the 14th hole and she missed a five-foot bogey putt on 17 for the other.

Hamlin, meanwhile, was 11 under through 16 holes.

"When I looked back at Kathy's scoreboard on 17, I figured I had a chance. I thought if I parred 17 and birdied 18 I'd be okay," said Hamlin, who picked up a winner's check of $11,250.

She took a bogey on the rugged 17th hole, however, leaving her in a dead heat with Whitworth.

"After I left the 17th I was a little disappointed in myself," Hamlin admitted. "I knew I had to birdie 18, and everything went just right."

Floyd and Jerilyn Britz tied for third with 9-under totals of 210. First-round leader Barbara Moxness, who shot a tournament record 65 Friday, dropped out of contention with a 77 and finished at 216.

Two-time defending Women's U.S. Open champion Hollis Stacy, after rounds of 69 and 68, ballooned to a 75 Sunday to wind up in a tie for sixth at 212 with Pat Meyers. Jane Blalock was fifth, turning in a thirdround score of 69.

Porter Sparks Royals

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The hometown Texas crowd at Arlington Stadium was getting on Kansas City catcher Darrell Porter Sunday night, so Porter took it out on the hometown Rangers.

He hit a pair of solo homers and Amos Otis drove in two more runs with a homer and single as the Royals ended a four-game losing streak, as well as the Rangers' four-game winning streak, 4-2 and hopped over the California Angels back into first place in the American League West.

Elsewhere, the Boston Red Sox nipped California 4-3 in 12 innings, the New York Yankees beat the Oakland A's 6-2, the Detroit Tigers downed the Milwaukee Brewers 4-2, the Baltimore Orioles edged the Seattle Mariners 4-3, the Chicago White Sox blanked the Cleveland Indians 6-0 and the Minnesota Twins shaded the Toronto Blue Jays 3-2 in 11 innings.

Red Sox 4, Angels 3
Boston's pinch runner Jerry Remy scored the tying run by sprinting home from second base on a two-out throwing error by California third baseman Carney Lansford in the 12th inning. Butch Hobson followed with a game-winning single. The Angels, who tied the score 2-2 in the ninth on Danny Goodwin's pinch double, had taken a 3-2 lead in the top of the 12th on a double by Rick Miller and a single by Don Baylor.

Yankees 6, A's 2
Chris Chambliss and Graig Nettles slammed two home runs apiece and Catfish Hunter won his sixth consecutive decision with help the last two innings from Rich Gossage. The game was enlivened by an argument in the fifth inning in which crew chief Russ Goetz had to shove Oakland's Joe Wallis away from second base umpire Nick Bremigan.

Bremigan called Oakland's Mike Edwards out on an attempted steal after hesitating to be sure that shortstop Bucky Dent had not dropped the throw. Edwards was ejected for flinging his helmet.

Tigers 4, Brewers 2
Lou Whitaker drove in three runs with a pair of singles and Jim Slaton won his 14th game, despite yielding the 29th home run of the season to Milwaukee's Gorman Thomas. Whitaker singled home a run in the third inning and singled two more runs across in the fifth.

Orioles 4, Mariners 3
Eddie Murray's two-run homer off Enrique Romo in the bottom of the ninth inning following Ken Singleton's double lifted Baltimore to its sixth consecutive victory. It was the 25th homer for Murray, who also doubled home Baltimore's first run in the opening inning.

White Sox 6, Indians 0
Rookie left-hander Ross Baumgarten tossed a five-hitter for his first shutout and complete game in the majors. He walked one and had batting support from Thad Bosley, who collected two singles, a double and a triple.

Twins 3, Blue Jays 2
Willie Norwood singled home pinch runner Rob Wilfong from second base in the 11th inning after Butch Wynegar led off with a double. That enabled the Twins to end a seven-game losing streak.

NFL Season Beginning For Real

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

And now the season begins for real...except for Bob Griese...and Bert Jones...and Ken Anderson...and perhaps David Whitehurst...and...

It's not the brand of football the National Football League was hoping for this season, not after last year when 20 quarterbacks were sent reeling to the sidelines for various lengths of time by injuries.

On one murderous Sunday last season, Fran Tarkenton suffered a broken ankle, Bill Munson and Lynn Dickey each sustained a broken leg, Brian Sipe and Terry Bradshaw received shoulder injuries and James Harris limped off with a sprained ankle.

In the off-season, when the NFL wrestled with the problem of injuries in general, the hue and cry died down. It may well increase once more this week.

During the final weekend of the exhibition season (when players are supposed to be working themselves into shape,) another covey of quarterbacks bit the dust — along with the usual number of injuries to other players.

Griese's left knee was torn up when he was tackled after throwing a pass during Miami's 24-20 victory over Tampa Bay. Griese will probably be out for at least half the season. Don Strock, who threw just four passes in 1977, will quarterback the Dolphins.

Jones sustained an incomplete separation of his right shoulder when he, too, was tackled during Baltimore's 17-3 victory over Detroit. It's not known how long Jones will be sidelined. Bill Troup is the Colts' No. 2 quarterback — but he's also injured, so Mike Kirkland will probably end up with the job.

Anderson of Cincinnati and Whitehurst of Green Bay were injured in the Bengals' 17-14 triumph. Anderson received a broken middle finger on his right hand, an injury that will sideline him at least four weeks and make John Reaves No. 1.

Cardinals Riding Hot Win Streak

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

For most of this season, the St. Louis Cardinals have suffered. Finally, however, the enigmatic National League team is playing the way it was expected to.

Hardly lacking for talent with players like Ted Simmons, Lou Brock, Keith Hernandez, Garry Templeton and Ken Reitz in the lineup, St. Louis was in last place in the NL East for almost four months. Now the Cardinals have hit a hot streak that has seen them victorious in 17 of their last 22 games, including a 14-3 bombing of Atlanta Sunday that was their fourth straight triumph.

What has turned the Cards around? "Runs," said Manager Ken Boyer. "Our pitching has been basically good all along. We just weren't putting any runs on the board."

Reitz led the way with three hits, including his 10th homer and three RBI as the Cardinals handed the Braves their seventh straight loss.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Chicago Cubs defeated Cincinnati 7-1;

Philadelphia bested Los Angeles 9-3; Montreal won the opener of a double-header with San Francisco 2-1 in 10 innings, then the Giants took the second game 11-2; Pittsburgh was an 8-5 victor over Houston, and San Diego beat the New York Mets 3-0.

Cubs 7, Reds 1

Cincinnati would like to get that winning feeling back. The Reds have dropped 14 of 20 since taking a half-game lead in the West on Aug. 6. They're five games behind first-place Los Angeles.

The latest loss was Tom Seaver's 13th in 24 decisions, the most games he's ever lost in one season. Dave Kingman had a three-run homer and drove in four runs for the Cubs.

Phillies 9, Dodgers 3

Philadelphia maintained its 2½-game lead in the East thanks to a healthy hitting display. Bake McBride slugged a homer and three singles and scored four times and Greg Luzinski singled and doubled with three RBI.

Mike Schmidt and Larry Bowa each had three hits in a 13-hit Phillies' attack.

Expos 2-2, Giants 1-11

Ross Grimsley, 16-9, outduelled Vida Blue, 16-7, in the opener, tying Blue for the league lead in victories. Blue lost in his fourth attempt at his 17th win. Dave Cash's one-out single in the 10th scored Chris Speier with the winning run for Montreal.

In the nightcap, Ed Halicki tossed a six-hitter. Jim Dwyer, Jack Clark and Mike Ivie homered and the Giants got seven unearned runs in the sixth inning. John Tamargo had two hits in that inning.

Pirates 8, Astros 5

Pittsburgh snapped Houston's five-game victory streak as Willie Stargell homered and singled to knock in three runs and Kent Tekulve picked up his 26th save in a club-record 73rd appearance of the season.

Padres 3, Mets 0

Eric Rasmussen had little trouble with the Mets, six-hitting them for the 11th victory in his last 14 decisions and his third shutout in 1978.

Jerry Turner tripled in a run in the first and scored on a groundout for Padres, who got an unearned run in the seventh.

That time has finally arrived. This is the week that football gets underway in earnest in this part of the country.

Most eyes, of course, are going to be on the Pirates of East Carolina. Many, many people have been passing by, and many even stopping in, to take looks at the new Ficklen Stadium which has grown these past eight months on the Pirate campus.

There are over 35,000 seats now for the fans. There is a new press facility, one which we press members have long prayed for. There is a new scoreboard that is comparable to any a college has to offer anywhere around.

East Carolina truly has one of the finest football facilities in this state right now. It is the fourth largest in the state, trailing only Carter in Raleigh, Kenan in Chapel Hill and Wade in Durham. But its overall facilities are second to none.

This of course, will add to the pressure on the Pirates. They want to show that East Carolina can generate the crowds that can fill the stadium. Granted that this year's home schedule has no big teams on the slate (such as N.C. State, Carolina or Duke). But hopefully, some of these teams can be attracted in the future. Reportedly, Wake Forest is supposed to be coming in the next few years, according to schedules made up some years back.

The Bucs open Saturday night against Western Carolina.

Many eyes will be on Ficklen to see how the Pirates do. After this weekend's games, there are trips to Raleigh and Chapel Hill for State and Carolina. It adds up to another tough opening for East Carolina, but victories in all three would certainly place them in a favorable position to be included in later bowl pictures should they continue to win.

In the high school areas, Rose High School's Rampants looked quite good in their scrimmage Thursday night, but this weekend's opener with Goldsboro will tell a whole lot more. A win there would certainly give the Rampants a bright outlook for the rest of the season.

Conley got off on a winning note during the past weekend, while Roanoke, still a 2-A school, looked good against 4-A Bertie in a losing effort.

Farmville Central is still pegged as the team to beat in the Eastern Carolina Conference, and a lot of good football will lie ahead in that conference.

So come this weekend, support your favorite team, and Saturday, help open the "new" Ficklen with the largest crowd ever.

Clemson Planning To Go To The Air

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — Clemson quarterback Steve Fuller returns for his senior season as Atlantic Coast Conference player-of-the-year and engineer of the Tigers' turnaround from ACC cellar to 8-3-1 and the Gator Bowl. What more could he want this year?

Aside from winning the league title, after finishing a close second, it's to get to throw more passes, to direct an even more wide-open offense this season. And Charley Pell, conference coach-of-the-year after one season, has that in mind, too.

"We've been throwing it all the time in practice. Throw, throw, throw, till we can do it in our sleep," Fuller, a Spartanburg native, said during a visit by Operation Football, a pre-season writers' tour of the football camps in the ACC.

"I think that's where our offense can really go. I hope we'll throw it more this year."

That's not to say Fuller didn't throw the ball last year. He did, about 15 or 16 times a game, as Clemson was third in the ACC in passing offense, and Fuller led the league in total offense, moving the ball 1,900 yards and being responsible for 14 touchdowns.

Fuller is one of 13 returning starters and six who come back after making the all-conference team. Also among them is his favorite receiver, senior Jerry Butler, who will probably never be forgotten here for an amazing leaping grab with 49 seconds to go that gave the Tigers a 31-27 victory over rival South Carolina last season.

"We've got the players to do more passing," says Fuller. "With Jerry Butler, it's foolish not to do it."

Fuller is something of an all-American boy hero, with boyish good looks and an academic average of one B and the rest A's after three years.

"He's a make-something-happen fellow. He's what you look for in an athlete," says Pell, who adds that Fuller has remained unaffected by all the attention he's gotten after last year's spectaculars. "There hasn't been a flicker of change in him in the two years since I met him. He's got those things you can't coach."

After all the success of last season, Fuller says he feels an added pressure as the Tigers' Sept. 16 opener against the Citadel approaches. Last year, no one was expecting much from Clemson after a 3-6-2 season. This year, many will be surprised if they don't win the conference.

"Last year at this time we were just talking about winning some football games," he recalled. "If we'd just had a 6-4 season, everybody'd be happy. This year, there is a lot more pressure." "We're not going to be able to win on emotion or by surprise this time. We're going to have to be good."

The difference means that Clemson must walk a thin line as the season approaches between sustaining the winning momentum, and battling overconfidence. The Tigers were humbled a bit in their bowl trip — their first since 1959 — when they lost 34-3 in a night-mare.

"We just weren't prepared to play Pitt that night," Fuller said. "But I think it turned out to be a good experience — we learned a lot from that."

Yarborough Wins

BRISTOL, Tenn. (AP) — Cale Yarborough has ruled the roost at Bristol International Raceway the last three years and he couldn't have been happier over the fact the Volunteer 500 Grand National stock car race was run at night for the first time in history.

"Night racing is the best thing since axle grease," said the veteran Oldsmobile driver from Timmonsville, S.C., after he ran away from the field Saturday night for his third straight Volunteer 500 victory and his fifth triumph in his last six starts here.

"The race track was slicker than ever before, but I think it would have been worse in the day. It was like a dirt track. I was slipping and sliding. I ran completely sideways a couple of times," said Yarborough, who never was challenged after he went in front on the 302nd lap.

But Yarborough wasn't the only driver slipping and sliding. The caution flag came out 10 times for 65 laps, the most in the last 10 years here. That held Yarborough's speed on the high-banked, .533-mile track to 88.628 mph.

One of the early victims was Oldsmobile driver Lennie Pond of Chester, Va., who set a 500-mile record of 174.700 mph in winning the Talladega 500 three weeks ago. Pond had set a qualifying record here Friday night of 110.958 mph.

But Pond collided in the 103rd lap with Chevrolet driver

Darrell Waltrip of Franklin, Tenn., and was forced to drop out. He came back later to drive for Richard Petty of Randleman, N.C., making only his second start in a Chevrolet.

"I wasn't pushing that hard. I was just trying to keep him one lap down," Yarborough said of Waltrip, who had ended his string of victories here last spring by winning the Southeastern 500.

"Darrell ran as good as anybody, but when I got ready to stretch him out, I knew I could run away from him whenever I wanted to. I was in front, and the groove belonged to me."

But it was Oldsmobile driver Benny Parsons of Ellerbe, N.C., who finished second in the same lap with Yarborough. Waltrip was third, Dick Brooks of Porterville, Calif., fourth in a Ford and Petty fifth.

Yarborough led six times for 326 laps, Parsons three times for 65 laps and Waltrip once for 46 laps as seven drivers exchanged the lead 16 times during the wreck-filled race.

Pond, Petty, Richard Childress and Bobby Allison all led at least once, but there was no catching Yarborough once he went in front for the final time.

Tigers Hopeful, But Inexperienced

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

WILLIAMSTON — Last year's Williamston football team picked up only three victories in seven starts, and just one of those wins came in Northeastern 3-A Conference play.

This year's team, if anything, is even less experienced, but Coach Dink Mills is hopeful that the outlook is brighter.

"Just about everything is a question mark because of our youth," Mills said. "We have only three seniors on the team who have played any football at all, and just seven out of all together. The other four haven't played since their freshman year, if they played at all."

Overall, only ten people from last year's squad are back, eight of them lettermen, and just six of them starters.

It doesn't give him very much to build with, he admits.

"But we have 16 juniors, and five of them are out for the first time. We're also carrying 14 sophomores now," Mills added.

"With this kind of experience, we still have some good people, but I don't know if we have enough this year, especially when you realize that some teams in the conference have just about everyone back."

Offensively, Mills is switching the Tigers from the wishbone to the veer this year. "We're still learning and I expect that because of this, we'll probably average three of four fumbles a game for a while," he said. Add to that the fact that there is no experience at quarterback, and the learning process gets tougher.

Jim Lilley, one of the quarterbacks, was on the JV team last year, and Rudolph Coffield, the other, didn't play last year. Keith Clark, who could also play quarterback, is listed by Mills as one of the better linebackers, and he doesn't want to play him both ways.

Mills has four running backs he feels can get the job done with a little experience. Larry Williams, listed by Mills as the biggest player he's ever had at 190 pounds, will probably start at right halfback. Chris Peele will be at the other. Linburg White and Vincent Peele are listed for backup roles, but Mills said that both are capable of seeing a great deal of playing time.

Only one lineman returns from last year, right guard David Cullipher. Right now, Mills feels that either Milton Peele or Victor Thomas will start at the tight end position, with Vance Allen at left tackle; Carl Deans at left guard; Butch Griffin at center. Sam Norfleet at right tackle and Steve Griffin at split end. Randy Ellis will be the split back.

"(Butch) Griffin is probably our best athlete," Mills said. "He started at linebacker last year, but we wanted to have a real strong center this year, so we moved him in there."

Defensively, the Tigers could be stronger than on offense, especially in the front line.

Cullipher will be at left end, along with Williams, as the two alternate there. Norfleet is slated for left tackle duty, with Ernest Scott, a returnee at right tackle. Doug Patterson and Vincent Peele will alternate at right end.

Butch Griffin and either Carl Deans or Allen will be at inside linebacker, with Chris Peele and Clark at the outside positions.

White will be the safety, with Terry Gainer at left half and either Randy Ellis or Chuck Rogerson at right half.

"I'm pretty satisfied with our punting game with Ellis kicking," Mills said. Victor Thomas will handle the placements and has looked good.

"On paper, I'd have to pick Tarboro as the top team in the league. They have just about everyone back. Ahoskie should be tough, and Edenton is always strong," Mills said of the league race.

"We've got a tough schedule. With our inexperience, I'd have to say 5-5 would be real good for us. This is definitely a rebuilding year. How good we are depends on how quickly we come along."

Colts, Dolphins Lose QB's

BALTIMORE (AP) — Coach Ted Marchibroda of the Baltimore Colts subscribes to the sports adage that a champion has to be beaten in combat. Preseason warfare, however, may already have taken its toll in the National Football League's American Conference East.

Most everyone expected the AFC East to be a three-way battle among defending champion Baltimore, the Miami Dolphins and the New England Patriots.

Marchibroda felt the Colts would be favored, but that was before they lost quarterback Bert Jones with a partial shoulder separation sustained in last Saturday's 17-3 victory over Detroit in the final week of the exhibition schedule.

And on the same day, Miami lost its quarterback, Bob Griese, with torn ligaments in his left knee. Now the Colts and Dolphins, who were supposed to be in the thick of it, figure as possible also-rans along with the rebuilding Buffalo Bills and New York Jets.

New England generally was credited with having the best talent in the division even before the quarterback injuries, and the Patriots now loom as favorites. First, however, they must overcome the early-season doldrums which saw them lose two of their first three games last season while offensive linemen John Hannah and Leon Gray sat out in a salary dispute.

recuperates.

New England appears to have no individual weaknesses, but the Patriots have been hurt by inconsistency.

The Pats are deep, headed by four players who rank at the top at their positions — Hannah at guard, tight end Russ Francis, fullback Sam Cunningham, and cornerback Mike Haynes.

Cunningham rushed for 1,015 yards while playing hurt last year, and also was the No. 1 target for quarterback Steve Grogan, who passed for 17 TDs in New England's run-oriented offense.

New England led the AFC in defense last year, and its 58 quarterback sacks topped the NFL. Raymond Clayborn led the league in kickoff returns and Stanley Morgan was second in punt returns, both as rookies.

Miami bounced back under another masterful coaching job by Don Shula, who rehired defensive genius Bill Arnsparger after he flunked his head coaching post with the New York Giants.

But the absence of Griese becomes the big question. Griese tore ligaments in his left knee in the Dolphins' 24-20 win over Tampa Bay on Saturday and will be in a cast for about three weeks. He may miss half the season, and his replacement, Don Strock, threw only four passes all last season.

Strock's top targets include Nat Moore, who led the NFL with 12 touchdown receptions, and Duruel Harris.

Buffalo's new coach, Chuck Knox, whose offense thrives on a ground game, takes over a team which led the league in pass attempts last year. Rookie Terry Miller and Roland Hooks must fill the void left by the trading of superstar O.J. Simpson as the Bills try to rebuild from 2-12 and 3-11 seasons.

The "Electric Company" offensive line which opened the way for O.J., is still formidable.

Q.1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠Q82 ♠Q1097643 ♠A92
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South
 1 ♠ 2 ♠ ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—Despite possession of a seven-card suit and reasonable all around values, beware of the danger of a misfit. A response of three diamonds by you would be a rebid of three spades by partner. What do you intend doing then? So pass now and allow partner to reopen the bidding if he has a good hand.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠KJ854 ♠Q93 ♠AJ3 ♠Q84
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
 2 ♠ Pass 2 NT Pass
 3 ♠ Pass ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—Bid three hearts. Partner has shown a minimum hand with six hearts and four diamonds. (With a better hand and 6-4 distribution, partner would rebid two diamonds, then three hearts.) You should be castigated if you considered, even briefly, bidding three no trump.

Q.3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠KJ9762 ♠A83 ♠Q732
 Partner opens the bidding with three clubs. What action do you take?
 A.—Pass. It would be presumptuous on your part to expect you have a better place to play the hand. Even if three spades would be a superior contract, you cannot play there. A response of three spades by you would be forcing and, in all likelihood, partner will rebid four clubs. That could lead to disaster.

Q.4—Neither vulnerable, as South hold:
 ♠AK852 ♠K ♠J965 ♠AKQ
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 ♠ Pass 1 NT Pass ?
 What do you bid now?
 A.—Whatever you do cannot be criticized, but for our money, we would gamble out three no trump. Your side has a combined count of at least 26 points. Even if the opponents can run the heart suit, your king will prevent that if the opening is away from the ace.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠J5 ♠72 ♠Q983 ♠AJ1076
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 1 ♠ 2 ♠ Pass Pass
 2 ♠ 3 ♠ ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—It seems as if East has taken one bid too many. Since your hand should produce three defensive tricks, double; the penalty could be substantial when your side cannot make any contract. If partner is bidding on distribution, he is not honor bound to leave in your penalty double.

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠854 ♠KQ94 ♠KJ76 ♠52
 Partner opens the bidding with one spade. What do you respond?
 A.—You do not have the values for a two-over-one response, so you must choose between two bids: a raise to two spades or one no trump. We are never eager to raise partner on three low trumps, but we dislike even more responding no trump when our hand contains a weak doubleton in an unbid suit. A raise to two spades is the lesser of evils. Experience shows that partner will usually have a five-card suit when he opens one spade.

Q.7—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠AQ8752 ♠94 ♠K6 ♠A106
 The bidding has proceeded:
 South West North East
 1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
 2 ♠ Pass 4 ♠ Pass ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—In terms of high cards your hand is minimum, but the auction has improved its trick-taking potential—the king in partner's suit is a most important card. Indeed, slam could depend on no more than partner's one move by cue-bidding five clubs, and wait to hear what partner does at his next turn.

Q.8—As South vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠Q9 ♠K109 ♠AJ10652 ♠J7
 The bidding has proceeded:
 North East South West
 1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
 2 NT Pass 3 ♠ Pass
 3 NT Pass ?
 What action do you take?
 A.—Although partner probably has no more than a doubleton in your suit, your hand merits a move toward slam—you have a good six-card suit, fine intermediates (10s and 9s) and 11 points. The obvious bid is four no trump. That is not asking in this sequence. It's a quantitative raise in no trump, asking partner to bid a slam if he is maximum.

Actor Patrick O'Neal Dreams Of Directing

By JAY SHARBUTT
 AP Television Writer
BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP)—We usually visit a saloon here called the Ginger Man to take the waters. But this time it was to chat with the co-owner about a TV drama in which he climbs a mountain.
 He's Patrick O'Neal, the actor. This week, his syndicated "Calloway's Climb" airs in 76 cities. He plays a college professor who finds high trouble while scaling a mountain with his wife.
 He said he'll do three more syndicated drama specials, all set outdoors, this season in addition to playing the head of a big law firm in the new CBS series, "Kaz."

 A tall, gray-haired man with a dry, sardonic sense of humor, O'Neal said he signed for "Climb" upon being promised he could direct the next show. He's serious about directing after a long career acting.
 A native of Ocala, Fla., he began emoting in TV back in its so-called "Golden Age" in the early 1950s, and also has been acclaimed for his Broadway work and such films as "A Fine Madness."

 The former student of New York acting gurus Sanford Meisner and Lee Strasberg was asked if he's ever directed a TV show before.
 "Some directors I work with say I do it all the time," he mused. "But no, not officially, although I did it and also wrote when I was in the Air Force."
 With the prospect of directing civilians now, he also has begun scribbling again, too. He says he's writing one "Kaz" episode.
 He's tried screenwriting before, he said, "but it's mostly been incomplete. It's a funny phenomena that's happened."
 "I often thought, 'I wish things hadn't worked out so well for me as an actor. But nearly all my old (actor) friends from way back have become producers, writers, directors.'"
 "But I never stopped long enough to say, 'Wait a minute, I want to go over and do those things.' Maybe now, though."

Students Write On Social Issues

BALTIMORE (UPI) — A contest for high school newspaper staffers nationwide will get their views on sexuality, teenage pregnancy and parenthood.

The Baltimore-based National Organization of Non-Parents is sponsoring the articles competition in response to a study that showed the majority of students questioned were dissatisfied that their school papers did not cover important social issues.

Dr. Peter Scales, N.O.N. project director, says students will be encouraged to write thoughtful articles guided by questions such as: "How can you avoid being a casualty of the sexual revolution?" and "How much would a child cost you — are you kidding yourself?"

The editors of Newspaper Enterprise Association will consider the winning entries for publication as op ed articles in more than 700 dailies throughout the United States.

Coastal Counties Advised Prepare For Hurricane

When Donna visited North Carolina in 1960, she injured over 100 persons, killed eight, and did millions of dollars of damage in coastal communities between Wilmington and Nags Head. Who was this creature of destruction? Donna was the last devastating hurricane to hit North Carolina.

Although it has been almost twenty years since a major storm hit the state, coastal residents should not be unconcerned. "We're in a lull of hurricane activity," says Dr. Neil Frank, Director of the National Hurricane Center in Miami, "but no one must assume it's not a problem."

Experience and common sense have taught some coastal dwellers how to cope with the hurricane. But there are always newcomers.

Since Donna's visit, more and more people have moved into ocean front condominiums and low-lying coastal areas. Since populations have grown so swiftly in these areas, most residents have never felt the full impact of these great storms and are largely unaware of their dangers. Others have developed a false sense of security.

The National Weather Service has improved its hurricane prediction capabilities dramatically in recent years, but even the most accurate predictions are only warning measures. Hurricane advisories can help you save your life...but you must help.

Governor Jim Hunt has declared August 14-20 as Hurricane Awareness Week. During that week, films, exhibits, and speakers will be scheduled at the state's three Marine Resources Centers in Manteo, Morehead City, and Fort Fisher to alert coastal residents to the dangers of hurricanes.

Residents should study the following hurricane safety rules so they will be prepared to save themselves and their families should a hurricane hit.

HURRICANE SAFETY RULES

1. Enter each hurricane season prepared. Every June through November, recheck your supply of boards, tools, batteries, nonperishable foods, and other equipment needed when a hurricane strikes.

2. When you hear the first tropical cyclone advisory, listen for future messages; this will prepare you for a hurricane emergency well in advance of the issuance of watches and warnings.

3. When your area is covered by a HURRICANE WATCH, continue normal activities but stay tuned to radio or television for all National Weather Service advisories. Remember, a HURRICANE WATCH means possible danger within twenty-four hours; if the danger materializes, a HURRICANE WARNING will be issued. Meanwhile, keep alert and ignore rumors.

4. When your area receives a HURRICANE WARNING:

Plan your time before the storm arrives and avoid the last-minute hurry which might leave you unprepared or marooned.

Keep calm until the emergency has ended.

Leave low-lying areas that may be swept by high tides or storm waves.

Leave mobile homes for more substantial shelter. They are particularly vulnerable to overturning during strong winds. Damage can be minimized by securing mobile homes with heavy cables anchored in concrete footing.

Move your boat securely before the storm arrives, or evacuate it to a designated area. When your boat is moored, don't return once the wind and waves are up.

Board up windows or protect them with storm shutters or tape. Danger to small windows is mainly from wind-driven debris. Larger windows may be broken by wind pressure.

Secure outdoor objects that might be blown away or uprooted or store them inside before the storm strikes.

Store drinking water in clean bathtubs, jugs, bottles and cooking utensils; your town's water supply may be contaminated.

Check your batter-powered equipment. Your radio may be your only link with the outside world, and emergency cooking facilities, lights and flashlights will be essential if utilities are interrupted.

Keep your car fueled. Service stations may be inoperable for several days.

Stay at home if it is sturdy and on high ground; if not, move to a designated shelter and stay there until the storm is over.

Remain indoors during the hurricane. Travel is extremely dangerous when winds and tides whip through your area.

Monitor the storm's position through National Weather Service advisories.

5. Beware the eye of the hurricane. If the calm storm center passes directly overhead, there will be a lull in the wind lasting from a few minutes to half an hour or more. Stay in a safe place unless emergency repairs are absolutely necessary. But remember, at the other side of the eye, the winds rise very rapidly to hurricane force, and come from the opposite direction.

6. Remember that hurricanes moving inland can cause severe flooding. Stay away from river banks and streams.

7. Tornadoes spawned by hurricanes are among the storms' worst killers. When a hurricane approaches, listen for tornado watches and warnings. A tornado watch means tornadoes are expected to develop; a warning means a tornado has actually been sighted. When your area receives a tornado warning, seek inside shelter immediately, preferably below ground level. If you are caught outside, move away from the path of the tornado at a right angle. If there is no time to escape, lie flat in a ditch or ravine.

8. When the hurricane has passed:

Seek necessary medical care at Red Cross disaster stations or hospitals.

Stay out of disaster areas. Unless you are qualified to help, your presence might hamper first-aid and rescue work.

Drive carefully along debris filled streets and avoid loose or dangling wires.

Report dangling wires to your power company and broken sewer or water mains to the water department.

Prevent fires. Lowered water pressure may make fire fighting difficult.

Check refrigerated food for spoilage if power has been off during the storm.

Dim View Of 'Gay Rights'

ATLANTA (UPI) — Just as drinking and driving don't mix, neither do gay rights and television, the president of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union said Saturday.

Speaking before the WCTU's annual convention here, Mrs. Herman Stanley warned that a trend among television programs to depict homosexuality as normal could have grave consequences.

"Some have switched from crime and violence to illicit sex programs and are depicting homosexual living as normal, thus minimizing the importance of marital relationships," she said. "The same type of material is also finding its way to children's book shelves and among children's stories, thus making it difficult to provide children with the aspects of social and Christian behavior."

Mrs. Stanley also took issue with television commercials and programs which depict beer parties as a healthy form of recreation.

"The moral depravity of programs on television is creating a swelling tide of crime and violence, immoral behavior and a breakdown of family life," she said. "The responsibility for this trend to profanity and vulgarity must be borne by the viewing public as well as the networks."

In a prepared text for delivery Sunday, the treasurer of the WCTU called on Christian women to become more active in their communities to fight alcoholism.

Mrs. Margaret Gee said the "most innocent victims of the problem of alcoholism among pregnant women are the unborn children."

"Statistics show that more than 10,000 annually are killed by liquor, while only one is killed by a mad dog. We shoot the dog but license the liquor," she said.

More Girls Are Often Bored

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — A study of 350 children here turned up the fact that while 38 percent of the boys were described by their parents and friends as never bored, less than 1 percent of the girls fell into that category.

The survey by the Mental Health Center of Boulder County said 52 percent of the girls were described in the category of being bored "pretty often" compared to 9.2 percent of the boys. The report said girls had more sleeping problems but had a higher level of self-esteem and better grades in school. Boys were more likely to have behavior problems, temper tantrums and lower grades.

HIGH MERCURY LEVELS

OTTAWA (AP) — Thirty persons in the Quebec Arctic settlement of Sugluk, an Eskimo community, have dangerously high levels of mercury in their blood, the Health Department reports. It is believed to have resulted from eating contaminated whales and seals.

'I know why I smoke.'

"There's only one reason I ever smoked. Good taste.

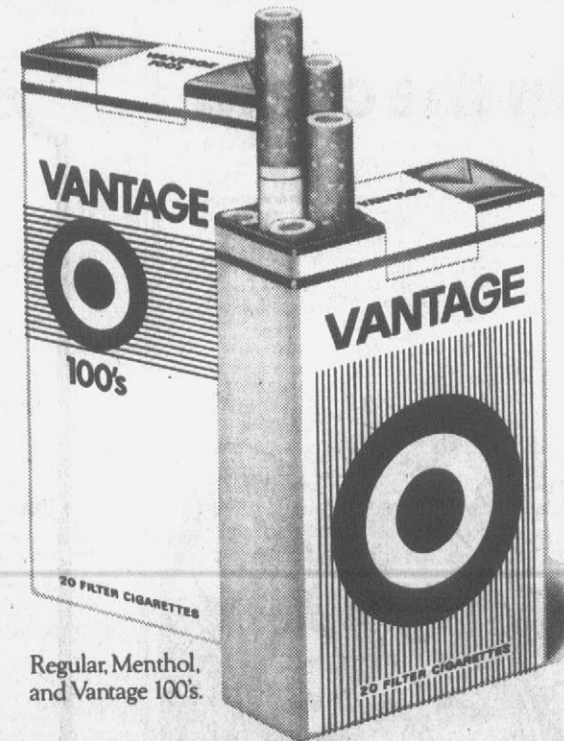

"So when I switched to low tar, I wasn't about to give that up. If you don't smoke for taste what else is there?"

"But there was all that talk about tar.

"Unfortunately, most low tar cigarettes tasted like nothing. Then I tried Vantage.

"Vantage gives me the taste I enjoy. And the low tar I've been looking for."
