

Nicaragua Soldiers And Armed Civilians Fighting

By TOM FENTON
Associated Press Writer
MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — A nationwide strike called to force the ouster of President Anastasio Somoza appeared to be losing steam today, but fighting raged between national guard troops and armed civilians controlling much of the northern city of Matagalpa. No reliable figures were available on the effectiveness of the strike, in Managua or in the provinces. But only about half of the stores in the capital's major shopping center were closed Wednesday and most businesses elsewhere in the capital were open. "It certainly is not causing a crisis," said one diplomat who asked not to be named. The strike was called a week ago by political leaders opposed to Somoza. It was supported later by the Nicaraguan Confederation of Chambers of Commerce and the Nicaraguan Development Institute, the country's two leading associations of businessmen and industrialists. But the response to the members apparently was flagging. The archbishop of Managua, Miguel Obando y Bravo, failed in an attempt to stop the bloody fighting in Matagalpa, a city of 40,000 about 100 miles north of Managua and returned to the capital to try to see the president.

"It was a scene of savagery like I've never seen," one veteran Latin American correspondent said of the situation in Matagalpa. The correspondent, who asked not to be named, said there was continual gunfire.

The number of deaths confirmed by the government or the Red Cross rose to 38 since the latest outbreak of violence Aug. 22, when leftist guerrillas took over the capitol building and seized 1,500 hostages. But eyewitness accounts from Matagalpa indicated the toll was much higher.

AP photographer Valente Cotera followed Archbishop Obando into the town Wednesday after national guardsmen blocking the road agreed to hold their fire.

"When we went in the archbishop shouted over a bullhorn that he came to arrange a truce," Cotera reported. "People were glad to see us and ran into the streets to help remove the barricades. All of them were armed, mostly with handguns. We finally reached a blocked intersection where we were stopped by people who said they didn't want a ceasefire, and that it was just a national guard trick to test their position."

"About that time the guard opened up with rifle fire a block away and the crowd bolted."

Freeing 48

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Castro government has decided to allow 48 Cuban political prisoners to seek entry to the United States and U.S. authorities will soon begin screening them to determine which will be admitted, the Justice Department announced today.

Attorney General Griffin B. Bell said in a statement that the Cuban government has already released some of the prisoners and more will be released soon. All of the persons are still in Cuba.

A Justice Department spokesman, Terrence B. Adamson, said 30 members of the prisoners' families also are seeking entry to the United States. He said that ultimately as many as 1,000 Cubans may apply for entry under the program.

Adamson said the Castro government initiated the procedure about two weeks ago when it disclosed to State Department officials in Havana that it was willing to let the prisoners emigrate.

A screening team, which has not yet been chosen, will travel to Havana to interview the applicants and the FBI and the Immigration and Naturalization Service will help in investigating their backgrounds.

Pres. Carter Asks Aid Of Governors

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

Looking rested and fit, President Carter urged a dozen governors today to support a natural gas price compromise, saying the effect would be "devastating" if Congress fails to enact an energy plan.

Returning early from a Western holiday to wrestle with issues that conceivably could make or break his administration, Carter put the natural gas bill at the top of his postvacation agenda.

Although the president said the compromise, soon to be debated by the Senate, is "not perfect," he argued that rejection by Congress would be devastating to the standing of the dollar, the big national trade deficit and inflation.

"The entire world is looking to see if we have the national will" to adopt an energy blueprint, Carter declared.

The meeting with the delegation of governors preceded another selling session with about 100 representatives of major natural gas users scheduled for late afternoon.

But the fate of natural gas legislation is only one of an array of complex issues and disputes that Carter must contend with in the days and weeks ahead.

Reaching climactic stages at a point when the president is striving to boost his popularity and escape a can't-do image are such other issues as Middle East peace, prospective income tax cuts, Civil Service reorganization, water policy and allocation of defense funds.

These rank with energy policy as items that may well determine Carter's standing with the voters as the 1980 election campaign draws ever closer.

Carter, his wife Rosalynn and daughter Amy returned to the White House early Wednesday evening after a flight by helicopter and Air Force One from Grand Teton National Park in Wyoming. The president cut his vacation two days short to be here for strategy sessions on the natural gas debate and to prepare for next week's summit meeting at Camp David, Md., with Israel's Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Egypt's President Anwar Sadat.

Before leaving Wyoming, Carter told a questioner he "would be reluctant" to send U.S. troops to the Middle East as part of a peace settlement between Israel and its Arab neighbors, but he did not rule out the possibility.

"I don't know," Carter said. "We will just have to wait and see. I would be reluctant to do that."

Natural gas legislation, facing a filibuster threat and an uncertain future in the Senate, dominated Carter's schedule in his first day back in the Oval Office.

Besides meeting with governors and gas users, the president had aides arrange a general staff meeting to draft strategy for the Senate debate that begins Sept. 11.

Indicators Index Signals Possible Slowing Economy

WASHINGTON (AP) — New orders for manufactured goods dropped sharply in July in what a Commerce Department economist calls "another signal of weakness" in the American economy.

And although the Labor Department announced a record 2.1 percent average wage increase for American workers in the second quarter of this year, that fell short of the 2.9 percent rise in consumer prices over the same April-June period.

The Commerce Department said Wednesday factory orders dropped 3.8 percent in July, the largest dip in four years, and orders for durable goods such as appliances and cars fell 6.4 percent.

The Commerce economist, who asked not to be named, said, "As things now stand, I think we're headed for a slower economy." He said more economic data was needed before trying to guess how steep the slowdown might be.

The Carter administration has forecast economic growth of about 3.5 percent during the second half of this year, a moderate growth rate. But continuing decline in factory orders could undermine that.

The dollar-value of new orders in July dropped $4.9 billion — to $122.7 billion — following a decline of 0.7 percent in June, the first back-to-back drop in new orders since April and May of last year.

Orders fell 6.6 percent in December 1974 as the nation sank into the deepest recession since World War II.

Some economists and government officials have warned that a recession is possible next year if inflation is not soon controlled.

Meanwhile, the Labor

Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said Wednesday the 2.1 percent rise in the average worker's pay was the largest in the three years it has kept track. The previous record was a 1.9 percent rise during the first quarter of this year.

Wages and salaries have risen an average of 7.8 percent during the 12 months through the end of June compared with a 7.4 percent rise in consumer prices during that period, the bureau said.

It attributed the second-quarter rise to large pay gains for construction workers, deferred cost-of-living raises for truck drivers and substantial increases in commissions for stock and bond brokers and car salesmen.

Boeing's Coup

LONDON (AP) — Boeing Co., the large U.S. aircraft manufacturer which has lately been fighting off challenges to its position of dominance in the passenger aircraft field, scored a major coup today when Eastern Airlines and British airlines teamed up on a $680 million order for a new line of Boeing jets.

The two airlines will purchase a total of 40 Boeing 757s, a new narrow-bodied plane seating 180 passengers.

British government spokesmen said British Airways, the state-owned national airline, will be taking 19 of the planes with Eastern already committed to purchasing 21.

Boeing has been locked in competition recently with a European consortium for dominance in the next generation of passenger jets. The European Airbus has been sold to several U.S. and world airlines, including Eastern.

The separate British and Eastern orders will also provide a major lift for Rolls-Royce, now a state-run enterprise, which has for months been negotiating to develop a new "535" version of its RB211 engine. The engine will power the 757.

Boeing got a boost in June when United Airlines became the first to order the manufacturer's Boeing 767, a 200-passenger wide-bodied craft designed for medium-range flights.

Although the British Airlines move, finalized by government ministers Wednesday, will herald a phase of closer cooperation with the United States in aerospace development, it will at the same time inevitably generate difficulties with Britain's partners in the European Economic Community.

The Labor Government here has been under intense pressure from the French and West German governments to look to Europe rather than to America for partners in future aerospace developments.

Yet British authorities are insisting that the decision announced today will not necessarily rule out the option of close cooperation between the British, French and West Germans in plans for the "Euroairbus." Such plans are still under negotiation. The A300-B10 airbus project has become a source of British-French dispute.

Britain, as the price of joining the Airbus project, insisted the aircraft be powered with a specially designed "524" version of the Rolls-Royce RB211. But the French have opted for an engine developed by General Electric Co., a major producer of electrical equipment head-quartered in the United States.

Another source of difficulty involves whether British or other foreign companies should be awarded the contract for the construction of the wings to be used by the Airbus.

A HOTLINE APPEAL

ARMY BUDDY

Carl W. Price of Holland, Mich. was searching here yesterday for anyone who might remember a James Joyce who visited here during World War II. Price, whose daughter is Mrs. Edward Cook of Conetoe, has now returned to Michigan, but is eager to get information about his old friend.

Joyce, whom he knew at Fort Bragg, used to bring him along on visits to a Wood family who lived on a tobacco farm near Greenville, he said. The Woods had daughters whom he believes were named Ulene (spelling uncertain) and Frances.

Anyone having information about Joyce is asked to call Hotline at 752-6166.

Price believes that Joyce's family lived in or near Greenville, also, but Hotline's examination of Greenville city directories from the 1940's turned up no leads on any Joyce family.

We've talked to Dr. James Joyce of the East Carolina University Physics Department faculty. He is not the one we're seeking.

Helms Warns America Must Adopt Priorities

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Jesse Helms, who cautioned a gathering here Wednesday that, "America doesn't have a chance for survival unless and until we get our priorities straight," said that he senses a "thread of unity fanning out across the country that can save us."

Helms, North Carolina's senior senator in Washington, spoke to a group of supporters who gathered for a noon luncheon in his honor, sponsored by the North Carolina Congressional Club.

The Republican senator, who serves as honorary chairman of the club, offered brief remarks and then answered questions on a variety of topics from the luncheon participants.

Helms, a staunch opponent of Washington bureaucracy, apologized to the gathering for preaching but he said Americans must realize that there is "just one source for our blessings." He said the nation must "work together, pray together and stand united."

The first term senator said that the public has become aware of the source of the nation's problems and where it used to turn to Washington for solutions, it "now realizes that Washington doesn't solve the problem because Washington is the problem."

He said that big business can take care of itself to "deal with bureaucratic red tape" but small businesses are unable to fight the bureaucracy and are consequently going out of business. Small business, he suggested, is resentful of the "three biggies: big government, big labor unions, and big business."

Helms said the federal budget must be balanced and he added, "I don't want anyone telling me we can't do it. We can." He contended that in order to do it, federal spending will have to be cut, the government will have to stop paying people not to work, and programs such as CETA, which he labeled a "monstrosity," will have to be shelved.

"There is enough fat in all departments to balance the budget," he said, adding that "unless and until we do, inflation will not be brought under control."

Helms said that statistics he has received show that the current federal deficit stands at $71 billion. In contrast, he continued, President Carter has indicated that the deficit is in the 50 millions.

White House experts have had trouble with logic, Helms chided, and "now they are having difficulty with simple arithmetic." The bookkeeping used by the White House is "unpardonable," he said.

Helms said that vote on the controversial Labor Reform Bill, which he said was designed to "stop the flow of industry to right-to-work states," went down to the last minute before it was

Hairstyles Herald Styles

CHICAGO (AP) — Fall's figure-flattering "V" silhouette is fashion's biggest change in recent years, with wide padded shoulders in the '30s styles of Joan Crawford, or like Lauren Bacall in the '50s.

The "new waist" looks small in wide leather belts or doublewrap sashes, pants are pared down to a straight "cigarette" style, and skirts hug hips and thighs — often with a slit up the front or side.

Hairstyles adapt to the "executive suite" look, too, with subtler, more controlled styling, according to the Helene Curtis Hairstylists Advisory Board.

The overall effect of fall '78 hairstyles, according to Don Hill of Los Angeles, is that "novelty is out. People want a refreshing look, hair that's attractive, prettier and more natural. The frizz and 'mechanical' looks are changing into softer, more classical styles."

To set the stage for attractive hair, advisory board members agree that Leslie Caron-length short layers and pixie-look curls play a leading role this fall.

Brenda Longhofer, of Louisville, Ky., explains, "Hair's going to be shorter, cut closer to the head to reflect the slimmer fashion shape."

As an example, Carrie White, Los Angeles-based hairstylist whose clients include movie stars, describes one of her fall styles as "early Gwen Verdon." The effect of loose curls and an irregular rather than geometric shape is "hair that's framed so the head has a halo."

A more finished, dressier, molded look in hairstyles mirrors the elegant contrasts in fabric textures such as nubby wools worn with smooth silks.

Instead of tight, all-over curls and "unfinished" styles, Michael Swiger of Phoenix, Ariz., sees "lots of waves, curl and movement that's looser and a little more controlled," with an assortment of hair textures in contrasting straight and wavy sections.

Waves range from a Veronica Lake "dip" style for longer hair to John Dellaria's "rippled" effect of delicate, smooth curls molded close to the face. The trend-setting Boston hairdresser's "Quasar" collection for fall features short, curly looks, angled and multiple layered for softness. His light, easy-wear closer-to-the-head hair fashions reflect the sophisticated '50s look.

Whether or not gentlemen prefer blondes, apparently many women prefer to be blondes, since the Hairstylists Advisory Board said there was a heavy demand for blanding.

Victor Figueroa, New York-based stylist, comments, "Designer showings have a look reminiscent of Monroe, and this ties into the current popularity of blanding, which was so popular in the '50s."

Brenda Longhofer agrees that today's blonde bombshells will benefit from warm, soft shades that complement skin and eye tones, rather than the bleached-out "white blonde" look of earlier years.

Red shades are popular, too, Carrie White reports. She uses "at least three colors" on made-over redheads "for a natural, loose, piece-y look."

For latter-day Monroes and Lucys alike, hairstyles will be shorter and less "sauvage" this fall as fashion is influenced by the more conservative, sophisticated look of earlier years.

But while the look may be based on the rolled, teased and time-consuming coils of 1950 glamour queens, today's hair is easy to care for and more natural-looking. "American women have become accustomed to natural-looking hair and uncontrived styles," Figueroa notes. "They're not going to give up wash-and-wear hair."

Can Teen-Ager Sue His Mother?

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1978 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 13-year-old boy. Last fall my father promised me a motorcycle if I would complete one year at military school. I agreed, and completed the full year, but when I asked him for the cycle, he said unless I had the agreement in writing — which I don't have — I am out of luck.

Now my mother has made me the same offer. I told her she would have to put it in writing, so she did. I really want that motorcycle, Abby.

If my mother backs out of the agreement, can I take her to court and use my sister as a witness?

CADET

DEAR CADET: Only a lawyer can give you legal advice. But a parent who fails to uphold his part of a bargain because it wasn't "in writing" is setting a very poor example in integrity. A person's word should be as good as his signature.

DEAR ABBY: After 14 years of a childless marriage, my husband and I adopted a beautiful baby girl. (We are white; the baby is of mixed blood.) A year later we were blessed with our own little son! And the following year, another son. We love them all, but here's the problem.

My husband's father, who was against our adopting the little girl in the first place, goes out of his way to hurt the child. He favors the boys with gifts and treats, and leaves the little girl standing without — hurt and envious. Behind our backs he refers to the girl as "that illegitimate half-breed Jeff took to raise." She is a sweet and adorable child, and much prettier than his own "legitimate" granddaughters.

We don't want to cause trouble, so we make excuses for Grandpa's slights, but how can I stand by and say nothing? When we leave his home I vow I'll never take the children there again, but I always weaken and do, hoping he'll behave better. What can be done?

BOILING BY THE BAY

DEAR BOILING: Let Grandpa know that you will tolerate no more of his cruel conduct. Deny him the privilege of seeing ANY of your children until he agrees to treat all your children equally. If he doesn't agree, it will be HIS loss!

DEAR ABBY: Everybody says I have a good personality, and although I am far from beautiful, people tell me I am not a bad-looking girl. But I am 17 and have never had an honest-to-goodness date. I mean a date that wasn't fixed up by somebody.

I wear glasses. Could that be my trouble? Please don't suggest contact lenses because I can't stand the thought of sticking something right INTO my eye. I don't want to be an old maid. Can you help me?

FOUR EYES: ST. ROBERT, MO.

DEAR FOUR: Glasses rarely (if ever) have cost a girl her popularity, but they frequently provide a good excuse, which is easily seen through. If you want to be popular, try to develop the kind of personality other people find attractive. Forget about yourself and the impression you're creating, and concentrate on making the fellow you're with glad that he's with you!

CONFIDENTIAL TO BUBBA IN CHICAGO: You may be able to dodge your responsibilities, but you can't dodge the consequences of dodging your responsibilities. Think about it.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple do-your-own-thing ceremony, get Abby's new booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I have a little piece of costume jewelry I wear from time to time. It's a little button that reads, "If man's home is his castle... let him clean it."

I didn't flaunt that little message back in the days when I was a full-time serf and mother. Face it, I had whole days to devote to dust and static electricity on socks, but as time went on things in the castle began to change.

I became a three-time-a-week court jester for a newspaper syndicate, took on a few more responsible things in the community, and the appearance of three children took a bite out of my long lunch hours.

Most men recognize the need to share some of the domesticity. Others refuse to believe that housework is an equal opportunity employer.

With the opening of school at hand when everything gets crazy, I've made out a manual for husbands who might like to pitch in.

HOW TO OPERATE CHILDREN: Push alarm button on the clock the night before to manual. Set three inches from child's ear. It will activate child at 7:00 who will rush around the house like an out-of-control garden hose.

To keep child in running order, fill with food six times a day and have regular checkups. (You... not the children.)

MATHEMATICAL FORMULA FOR GETTING FIVE PEOPLE AROUND THE TABLE AT THE SAME TIME FOR DINNER: As soon as one meal is finished, start to thaw for the next one. Gauge 1/2 pound meat per person, one potato and two vegetables; subtracting one potato for dieters; adding an extra portion of meat for football hopeful; and trying to anticipate who ate soft pretzels on the way home from school or who had a birthday at the office. Use six o'clock as fail-safe time for which there is no return, being careful to calculate interstate traffic on exit 16, overtime, ride home from friend's house and late practice.

KNOW YOUR LAUNDRY: Clothes in the dirty clothes hamper are not dirty — only discarded. Clothes on the floor have not been discarded, but are only dirty. Clothes on the bed are not dirty and not discarded — only in limbo. Clothes that are being worn are definitely dirty.

JOIN SOMETHING. It may not help you with your frustrations, your anxieties, your loneliness, your boredom, nor will it clean your oven. But they give you little buttons to wear that make you laugh once in awhile.

Outage Due Terminator

The power outage experienced by residents at Stratford Arms on Tuesday night was the result of the malfunction of a traffic locator terminator, according to Malcolm Green, Assistant Director, Greenville Utilities.

The terminator, located at a terminal point of one of the underground cables beneath a manhole, was, according to Green, an older type no longer being manufactured.

Because of this, Green said, the terminator was replaced with a new terminator, and this resulted in the area being without power a little longer than would be normal if only repair to the terminator had been necessary.

Also, it was discovered that a tent had been pitched over the area housing the terminator. This, Green said, creates a build-up of excessive heat which can be a contributing factor to a terminator malfunctioning.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, arguing that medical care is a basic human right, stands poised to have the federal government take over all costs of providing medical care for the nation.

Kennedy was dissenting from President Carter's plan for a phased in national health program.

Kennedy sees health care as a "basic human right" not a "conditional" and said a "conditional right is basically not a right."

"The issue before the American people is not can we afford national health insurance — it's can we afford not to have it."

Unfortunately Sen. Kennedy doesn't explain his ideas of where the government is going to find the funds to support a national health program which will pay for every visit every citizen makes to a doctor's office. We only have to look to other nations where such systems are leading to government bankruptcy and poor medical care.

We would be at the forefront in maintaining that the poor deserve adequate medical care. Possibly the middle class deserves protection against catastrophic illness which could wipe the family out.

But, in fact, most families seem to be able to pay the cost of a simple visit to the doctor for a cold or other minor illness. Why saddle these families, through taxes, with the cost of the hypochondriac who wants to run to a physician everyday with some imagined illness?

Let's tailor government participation in health care to actual needs of our citizens, rather than launching a total program whose costs could be horrendous.

Nursing Homes' Efforts

By BILL NOBLITT

Resistance

RALEIGH — There have been horror stories about nursing homes in North Carolina and elsewhere in the nation.

"Every headline in the paper about poor care hurts us all, and costs us all dearly," admits Judy Brown, a Rocky Mount nursing home executive who is spearheading a drive in this state toward self-inspection and improvement.

She is chairman of the standards and ethics committee of the North Carolina Health Care Facilities Association. Just slightly more than one year ago the committee which Ms. Brown heads made its first on-site inspection of a nursing home to spot problems and potential problems and urge the operator to improve.

Since then, 64 of the state's 187 licensed nursing homes have participated in the "peer review" process, and the inspections are on target to becoming a regular thing for all such facilities.

The end result, Ms. Brown hopes, will be a new public confidence and respect for well operated, professional nursing homes.

programs and services; people with specialized training and college degrees are entering the field; there are more nursing homes as people live longer and changes in society demand this care for the elderly as opposed to home care.

In addition, also largely as a result of past problems, nursing homes are subjected to more stringent licensing and inspection procedures by state and federal authorities than perhaps any other business. One administrator reports that he was inspected a total of 110 times in one year, by specialists ranging from health and social services operations to a medical review group looking at quality of care and an egg inspector checking refrigeration methods.

In addition to inspecting the homes, the peer review committee also encourages facilities to expand their programs. A nursing home must provide a registered nurse. The association is pushing program and social directors, dietitians, and therapists as future additions to the staff.

BILL NOBLITT

But isn't peer review — nursing home specialists inspecting one another — something like setting the fox to guard the henhouse?

Not when your intention is to become truly professional, responds Ms. Brown. "We are tough in these inspections, and we are professional. We go in looking at a lot of things including administrative procedures and programs. But the most important thing we look at is the patient. Seeing them and talking with them tells you exactly what is going on in the building."

Inspection

Members of the committee come from Hickory, Elizabeth City, Greenville, Tryon, High Point, Raleigh, Saluda, Pinehurst, and Pleasant Garden, giving it enough professional and geographic distribution to avoid favoritism in its work, Ms. Brown feels.

THE "GREAT SPONGE" PLAN

Empty Holes For Defense

WASHINGTON DATELINE (Copyright)

By PHILIP C. CLARKE

There's an intriguing new defense scheme being discussed in and around the Pentagon these days. It's called MAP, for "multiple aim point". Curiously, the "multiple aiming" would be done not by us but by the Soviets against U.S. targets.

What MAP proposes to do is dig from 4,000 to 6,000 empty holes in an area around some of our Minuteman missile silos in order to confuse the Russians. This would be accomplished by shifting from hole to hole about 300 of our Minutemen ICBM's so that the Soviets would never know for sure which of the holes contained a real U.S. missile.

The strategy behind MAP is different, to say the least.

By the mid-1980s, the Soviet Union is expected to have at least 6,000 powerful and highly-accurate nuclear warheads available for a crippling first-strike against our land-based ICBM's. The U.S. has no defense at all against the threat of such a devastating surprise attack. So, the authors of the MAP scheme suggest that by digging thousands of dummy missile holes the Russians would be forced to fire all of their 6,000 nukes if they expected to knock out all of our real ICBM's before they could be launched in retaliation.

Pentagon sources have been quoted as saying that the MAP plan with its 6,000 holes and 300 transportable missiles could build for about $20 billion. This, they say, is about half of what it would cost to install a mobile-missile system using underground tunnels to

Strength For Today

A CONSTRUCTIVE REACTION

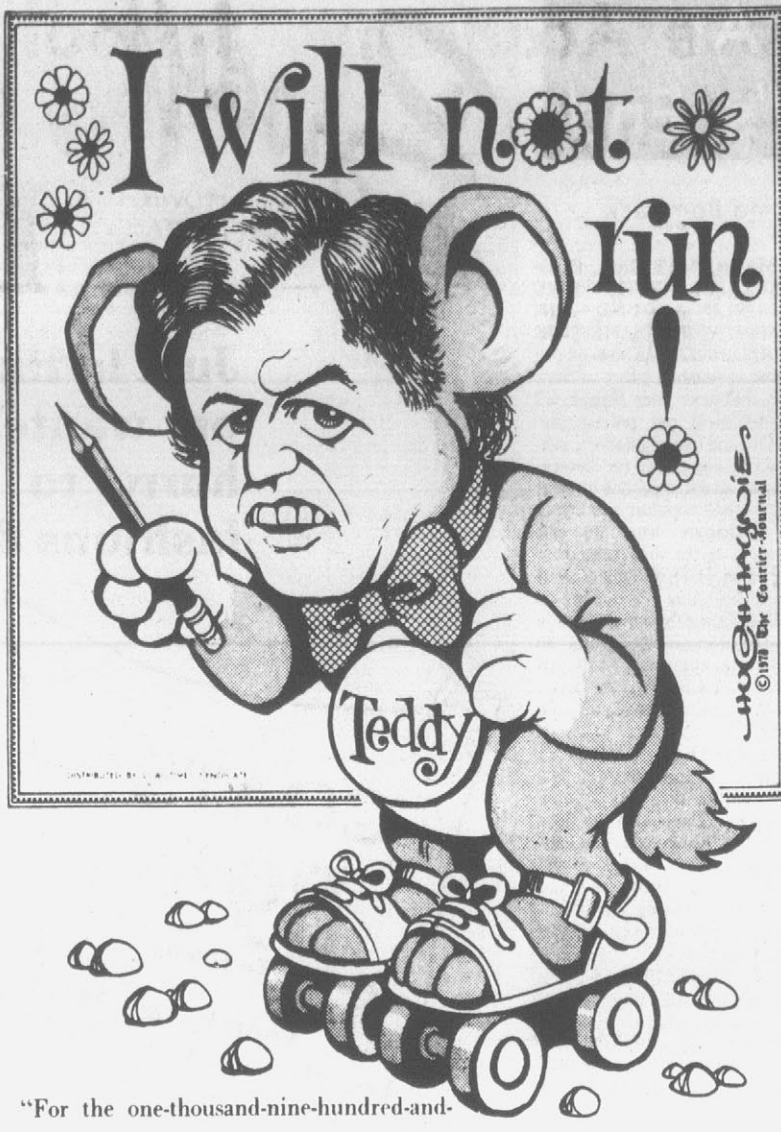

A nurseryman recently was dismayed to find that teen-age vandals had smashed nearly a thousand dollars worth of glass in one of his greenhouses. He was insured against damage of this sort and shortly thereafter received a check to cover his losses.

Surprisingly, he took this check to the local Boy Scout headquarters and turned it over to the officials there as a contribution. "Organizations like the Boy Scouts will do more to stop this kind of vandalism than the police," he said.

Even more surprising than the nurseryman's action was his origin. As a boy he had been a refugee from Nazi Germany and lost both his parents in the holocaust there. If anyone would have demanded revenge for vandalism, it would seem to have been this man.

How many of us would have reacted in the way he did? No need to answer. Most of us would have pocketed the insurance money, grumbling.

Mr. Madison, Roll Over

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — Proponents of the D. C. amendment to the Constitution needed 66 votes last week. In the showdown they got 67, if Barry Goldwater had only voted the conscience of a good conservative, this grotesque proposition would have gone down in deserved defeat. Instead, it has gone out to the states for ratification.

Doubtless, Mr. Goldwater was persuaded to vote for the resolution by the proponents' appeal to human rights and to what Senator Edward Kennedy called "simple justice." These appeals are valid, but they were misplaced in this botched-up amendment. Mr. Goldwater and his compa-

Other Editors Say Reaching N.C.

(Henderson Dispatch)

Governor Hunt's statement that he might support a tax cut in the Legislature next year may reflect a tax revolt which is sweeping the country after California voters led the way on Proposition 13 in a referendum last spring. What the western state did has no legal application here, but the action there is contagious and appears to be catching fire over a large portion of the country.

In North Carolina there has been traditional acceptance of enormous appropriations made by the Legislature. Little backlash occurred over some phases of the manner of disposing of a multibillion dollar revenue surplus by the short legislative session last June. But there was quiet resentment.

Whether there will be another surplus a year hence depends upon the national economy. But if there shall be, it ought to be turned back to taxpayers instead of being spent on new ventures. The $8.5 million legislative office palace, for example, and large pay raises for members.

The June session passed a resolution calling on the Advisory Budget Commission to consider a $100 million income tax cut, if budget surpluses warrant it. That, of course, was only a suggestion. The lawmakers had a golden opportunity to vote relief two months ago.

The Budget Commission will have the usual requests for increases from State departments, and which will have to be sifted. What the Commission proposes will have powerful influence in shaping the 1979-80 budget. While the Legislature goes along generally, there are additions and some reductions here and there.

The lawmakers have shown little inclination in recent years to trim spending. There is, of course, the impact of inflation on State finances.

Governor Hunt wants an available surplus returned to taxpayers which is where it should go, as far as possible. Certainly those who pay are entitled to a shake now and then; and especially now.

nions voted in haste. Lovers of the Constitution will repent at leisure.

The amendment says, in Section 1, that "for purposes of representation in the Congress, election of the President and Vice President, and Article V of this Constitution, the District constituting the seat of government of the United States shall be treated as though it were a state."

The wording is clumsy, clumsy, clumsy! The chefs who cooked up that syntactical hash never heard of the rules of parallelism. Section 2 is worse. Section 2 says: "The exercise of the rights and powers conferred under this article shall be by the people of the District constituting the set, and as shall be provided by the Congress."

James Madison, roll over in thy grave! Does anyone profess to know what is meant by Section 2? To be sure, if the District of Columbia is to elect two senators and one representative, the people must elect them. Who else would elect them? But let us pursue the whole of this mishmash amendment as it flaps and stumbles its way toward a place in the supreme law of the land.

The District is to be treated "as though it were a state." This hypothesis is to apply in three functions only: (1) representation in the Congress, (2) election of presidents, and (3) the exercise of powers under Article V, which provides for future amendments to the Constitution.

But everyone knows that the District is not a state. The District is to remain subject to the most positive, least ambiguous provision in the whole of the Constitution.

Chops Another Billion

By DOUG WILLIS
Associated Press Writer

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., who joined the Proposition 13 crusade only after its landslide victory in this election year, chopped another $1 billion off state taxes by signing a bill that will allow Californians to "keep more money in their pockets."

Brown, a Democrat, on Wednesday signed a bill which state Republicans take credit for originating. He said the measure would lead to the biggest state income tax reduction in California history.

The income tax cut — which comes on top of Proposition 13's $7 billion cut in property taxes — will slice taxes an extra $168 for the average California family of four with a $20,000 income.

The combined income tax and property tax cuts will reduce the average homeowner's annual tax bills by $750 to $1,000.

"Not since the income tax was invented have we ever seen a permanent reduction in its provisions so Californians can keep more money in their pockets," Brown said. "This really does help the middle income and lower income taxpayers."

Each taxpayer will get at least a $75 tax cut, while each couple filing a joint return will realize at least a $150 tax cut, unless their taxes already are less than those amounts.

Senior citizens, both renters and homeowners, get up to $375 each in additional tax cuts under the income tax cut bill.

The signing climaxed Brown's continuing efforts to respond to what he calls his "marching orders" — the 65 percent "yes" vote on Proposition 13.

Brown, up for re-election this year, originally opposed Proposition 13 but quickly embraced it after overwhelming voter approval in June.

Brown said the income tax cut can be financed from the state's estimated $5 billion budget surplus and still leave $3 billion to $4 billion next year to assist cities, counties and schools hit by Proposition 13's property tax cuts.

A major provision of the bill requires annual adjustment of income tax brackets and tax

K. T. Fire did damage to the city gas plant at 2:45 p.m. today. Fire Chief George Gardner estimates damage at $1,000.

Gardner said an oil pipe burst and the blaze was caused by a pilot light on some of the gas plant equipment. Two switchboard panels were burned out and machinery in the plant was damaged.

It was explained that since the building was iron and brick, the blaze was confined and the flames were kept from spreading to other parts of the plant. About 20 minutes were required to subdue the blaze.

Big-Name Growth Stocks Rise

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The leading role taken by the big-name growth stocks in the market's rally this summer has provoked some speculation that glamor might once again be coming into fashion on Wall Street.

If that happens, it would mark a dramatic change. Over the past five years, the once elite group of glamor stocks has enjoyed about as much vogue as tail fins or the Nehru jacket.

For the most part, the companies themselves — household names like IBM, Xerox, Kodak, Johnson & Johnson, Coca-Cola, McDonald's and Avon Products — have continued to compile impressive earnings records.

Anthony Tabell, an analyst at the Princeton, N.J., firm of Delafield, Harvey, Tabell, reported that a statistical composite of a dozen of these companies has shown steady earnings growth at a compound annual rate of better than 12 percent since the mid-1960s.

Yet an index of their stock prices calculated by Tabell fell from 117 in 1972 to 44 around the bottom of the 1973-74 bear market, and had recovered only to 55 by the end of 1977.

The price-earnings ratio of the stocks in the index — a widely used measure of investors' enthusiasm for a given issue or group of issues — tumbled from 52 at the end of 1972 to 13 five years later.

Tabell noted that this slide was partly the result of general market weakness. The price earnings ratio of Standard & Poor's 500-stock composite index fell during the same time span from 18 to eight.

But he also pointed out that the growth stocks suffered disproportionately because of a shift in the investing pattern of institutions such as pension funds, which once were the glamor's biggest fans.

Working with data collected by the Securities and Exchange Commission, Tabell observed that pension funds in 1972 poured 95 percent of the money they received into stocks.

By 1977, that percentage had fallen to 21 percent. And in the first quarter of 1978, pension funds sold more stock than they bought for the first time on record.

The flow of money into pension funds, in the form of contributions by both corporations and employees, reached a record of $21 billion in 1977.

Tabell noted that that was equivalent to 2.7 percent of the total market value of all stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange, and 11.59 percent of the value of all stocks traded during the year.

School Lunch Policy Is Set

The Pitt County and Greenville City Schools have announced the policy governing free meals, reduced price meals, and free milk for children unable to pay the full price of meals and milk served under the National School Lunch, School Breakfast, and Special Milk Programs.

School officials in the two systems have adopted the statewide scale based on family size, and family income that is the criteria for determining eligibility.

Tables showing the applicable information (with income figures given in dollars) follow:

Family Size	Free Meals Free Milk	Reduced Price Meals
1	0 - 4,190	4,191 - 6,530
2	0 - 5,500	5,501 - 8,580
3	0 - 6,810	6,811 - 10,630
4	0 - 8,110	8,111 - 12,660
5	0 - 9,310	9,311 - 14,530
6	0 - 10,510	10,511 - 16,400
7	0 - 11,600	11,601 - 18,100
8	0 - 12,690	12,691 - 19,790
9	0 - 13,680	13,681 - 21,330
10	0 - 14,660	14,661 - 22,870
11	0 - 15,640	15,641 - 24,390
12	0 - 16,610	16,611 - 25,910

NOTE: For each additional family member over 12 in number, add $970 for free meals, free milk; and $1,520 for reduced price meals.

Children from families whose income is at or below the levels shown above are eligible for free or reduced price meals or free milk. (An extra half pint free milk is available to those who are eligible for free meals.)

In addition, families not meeting these criteria but with other unusual expenses due to unusually high medical expenses because of mental or physical condition of a child, or because of disaster or casualty losses, are urged to apply.

Application forms are being sent to all homes in a letter to parents. Additional copies are available at the principal's office in each school.

Information provided on the application by parents is confidential and will be used only for the purpose of determining eligibility for free or reduced meals.

Applications may be submitted at any time during the school year.

To discourage the possibility of misrepresentation, the application forms contain a statement above the signature certifying that all information furnished in the application is true and correct.

In certain cases foster children are also eligible for the free or reduced meals. If a family has foster children living with them, the family should contact the applicable school office for further information and guidance.

Rocky Mount Garbage Strike Is Called Off

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP) — Rocky Mount garbage collectors should be back on the job today. They agreed Wednesday to call off their strike. Plans were also canceled for a boycott of downtown merchants called in support of the strikers.

The Rev. Thomas Walker, director of the Concerned Citizens Association, said all 36 striking workers, about half of the city's garbage collection crew, agreed to return to work.

The agreement marks the end of a 17-day strike — the fourth walkout by the sanitation workers in recent months. The walkouts were touched off by the arrest of sanitation worker Alexander Evans on a charge of stealing a suit of clothes he said he found near a trash can on his route.

Evans, who was convicted on the charge in Nash County District Court, said he thought the suit was either a gift or had been thrown away. He is appealing his conviction to Nash Superior Court.

Walker said that the group would continue its fund-raising efforts to pay Evans' legal fees, but that there definitely would not be another walkout by sanitation workers.

"The point has been made as far as the walkout is concerned," Walker told a news conference. "We feel that we can handle the problem better with the men on the job. If Evans is found guilty, then we would want to bring all our resources to bear on providing the best legal services possible and not have to worry about providing money for the workers to live on."

A city spokesman said the majority of the strikers had gone to the city personnel office during the day Wednesday to sign up for rehiring. They agreed to return to their jobs after conditions set forth by City Manager Bill Batchelor had been clarified.

advanced-model Soviet ICBM's might be able to strike within one-tenth of a mile of "ground zero".

The MAP plan says Allen, would serve as a sort of "great sponge" to absorb all of the incoming Soviet missiles. The idea would be that the Soviets would be presented with so many targets — or "aim points" — real and dummy, that they would rather negotiate than attack.

At least that's the theory. Suppose, however, that the Soviets opt for a "worst-case scenario" and let loose with all 6,000 of their first-strike missiles? Each of the 6,000 multiple warheads on the Soviet missiles would have an explosive power from 10 to 20 times greater — or more — than the A-bomb that destroyed Hiroshima. Although our existing Minuteman fields cover an area of some 30 to 40 thousand square miles in seven states — North Dakota, South Dakota, Wyoming, Nebraska, Colorado, Montana and Missouri — 6,000 enemy H-bombs even if widely dispersed could devastate a huge amount of territory and kill a lot of Americans.

There's another drawback to MAPS. In SALT II negotiations at Geneva, it appears that the U.S. would be prohibited from deploying mobile ICBM's in any case.

Fortunately, there is an alternative. The U.S. could reactivate the anti-ballistic missile defense system that the Senate more than two years ago voted to dismantle 30 days after the $6 billion system had become operational. It was designed to protect our Minuteman missiles by destroying enemy warheads before they could strike. Of course, to do so the Senate would have to abandon the policy of MAD, or "mutual assured destruction" — a policy, by the way, to which the Soviets have never subscribed.

At least the people of North Dakota, South Dakota, Wyoming, Nebraska, Colorado, Montana and Missouri might breathe a bit easier.

tion: "The Congress shall have power to exercise exclusive legislation in all cases whatsoever over such district ... as may become the seat of the government of the United States."

Under this proposed amendment, the District of Columbia becomes nothing but a nothing; it is not a thing at all. It becomes a political centaur, horned by impotent. It is not to be a state in terms of interstate compacts. Its judicial proceedings are not to enjoy full faith and credit. It gets no guarantee against domestic violence. It has no reserved powers under the 10th Amendment. It does not qualify under the 14th Amendment. And so on.

Under Article V, constitutional amendments may be ratified by the legislatures of three-fourths of the states. Are we to understand that that the District's City Council is to be metamorphosed into a legislature? So great a transformation has not been seen since Puck slipped the ass's head upon the shoulders of Nick Bottom.

The amendment simply is out of tune. It is a stylistic abomination. And to talk politics for a moment, as distinguished from constitutional exegesis, the effect would be to send two liberal, urban Democrats to the Senate in perpetuity, with all the foreseeable consequences in terms of treaties, filibusters, committee membership, and the like.

I said at the outset that appeals to human rights and simple justice are valid. They are valid, and they are overblown. The clamor for voting rights for the District's residents is the amplified bullhorn clamor of a few activists. The people of Washington have had the power to vote for president, vice president, congressional delegate, mayor, council and school board, and their voting turnouts have been abysmal.

But if equal representation is the be-all and end-all, the answer is to cede the whole 62.7 square miles back to Maryland and be done with it. True, Maryland has done nothing to deserve such a fate, but who ever said life is fair?

credits with inflation. Under that provision, known as "indexing," most workers who receive only cost-of-living increases will not move into higher tax brackets. Within five years, the annual tax savings from indexing would be greater than the one-time benefits for 1978, and would continue to grow, an analysis by Brown's finance office says.

State taxes start at 1 percent of annual incomes over $5,000 for individuals and $10,000 for couples, with a top bracket of 11 percent on income in excess of $15,500 for individuals and $31,000 for couples.

Brown signed the bill about 90 minutes after it won final legislative approval on a bipartisan 75-0 Assembly vote. On Monday it was approved 39-0 by the Senate.

Market In Front Of Agriculture Dept.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers are setting out their fresh fruits and vegetables in front of Agriculture Department headquarters to show consumers that supermarkets aren't the only place to buy produce.

The direct farm-to-consumer sales demonstration scheduled for today has the backing of Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland, who promised to be an early customer.

Unless the program is canceled by rain, about 20 farmers from the Washington metropolitan area will sell food in front of the Agriculture Department.

"I'm going there to buy fruits and vegetables for my family, and I expect I'll be buying the world's best food," Bergland said.

Direct farm sales account for only a small part of the food sold nationally — an estimated 3 percent of the fruits and vegetables, for example.

Congress has provided $1.5 million a year to aid local farm-to-consumer projects, but the money was deleted in President Carter's fiscal 1979 budget sent to Congress last winter.

Suspended

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission has suspended Virginia Electric and Power Co.'s proposed 19 percent increase in wholesale electric rates for 30 days.

The move will result in a savings in power costs of about $1 million for Vepco's municipal customers, according to Marshall Lancaster, executive director of Electricities of North Carolina. The commission order also affects the rural electric cooperatives that buy from Vepco.

Vepco filed for the rate hike July 31. If granted in full, it would have meant an increase in the wholesale power costs of $10.7 million a year to the 16 municipalities in North Carolina and the eight in Virginia which are involved.

Electricities had asked for a five-month suspension — the maximum the FERC can grant. Electricities contends that 95 percent of the proposed increase is not justified. But the FERC staff said the increase is excessive by 9.6 percent.

Lost Will To Stay Alive

ANGIER, N.C. (AP) — A few hours after she was told of the death Tuesday of her husband of 59 years, Mattie A. Smith, too was dead. She said she no longer cared to live.

Mattie Smith was 77. She and her husband, James W. "Buster" Smith, raised seven children and lived all their lives in the Angier area.

Harry Lee Smith of Angier, a son, said his father, who was 76, died about 7 a.m. Tuesday in McCain Hospital near Southern Pines. He had been a patient there for about a month.

"One of the children told mother of his death about noon," Smith said. "She had picked beans from the garden this morning shelled them and was preparing to cook dinner."

"She started screaming and hollering that she could not stand it and lost consciousness," he said. She was taken to Erwin Hospital.

"Once she got to the hospital, she revived," Smith said. "But she told doctors attending her to stop trying to do anything for her. She said she wanted to die so she could join him."

Smith said the cause of death had not been determined, but doctors at the hospital said she had lost the will to live.

Mrs. Smith "had been sickly for about 40 years, but she hobbled around on her bad legs and cooked big meals for the family about every weekend."

Smith said his father had farmed in the Angier area most of his life until his retirement about 15 years ago. He said he was not told what caused his father's death.

Workshops Held Today

Workshops detailing information on filing procedures for claims under the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services (CHAMPUS) were held this morning in Greenville.

CHAMPUS, previously under the auspices of Blue Cross of North Carolina, is now being administered by Blue Cross of Southwestern Virginia, which is contractor for North and South Carolina, Kentucky, Indiana, Virginia and Washington, D.C.

Retired military personnel and eligible dependants who wish to receive answers to any questions on CHAMPUS are to write to: Blue Cross Blue Shield of Southwestern Virginia, 3959 Electric Road, S.W., Roanoke, Virginia, 24045. The telephone number is (703) 989-3384 or 4231.

Pamela F. Shorter, a CHAMPUS affairs representative at the meeting here today, noted that the primary difficulty faced by persons attempting to receive reimbursement for medical expenses is due to incorrectly submitted claims. She noted that nationally, 31 percent of all CHAMPUS claims are returned due to incomplete information.

John Paul I Simplifies Inauguration

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul I is simplifying his inauguration Sunday to emphasize the humility and dedication to religion that he wants to characterize his reign, Vatican sources say.

"It's a matter of getting rid of some of the trappings of the past denoting the pope as a civil ruler or king," the Rev. John Long of the Vatican Secretariat for Christian Unity said as details of the ceremony were released were released Wednesday.

The pope has chosen to have a thin, circular band of white wool, called a pallium, placed on his shoulders rather than be crowned with the beehive shaped tiara used for 15 centuries. And he will not be carried to or from the ceremony on the traditional portable throne.

The "coronation" designation has been removed from the Mass that will be held outdoors in St. Peter's Square, as Pope Paul VI's was. Instead the Vatican says it will be the Mass "solemnly marking the beginning of the ministry as Supreme Pastor."

John Paul will also break with tradition by concelebrating the Mass with all the cardinals in Rome, those barred from the electoral conclave by the 80-year age limit as well as those who elected him and those barred from the conclave by the 80-year age limit.

The Vatican said the pope will wear a white cassock and cape and over them a gilded chasuble, a hooded garment. The cardinals will wear white bishops' miters, red cassocks, capes and chasubles.

The pope will say a prayer on the tomb of St. Peter, inside the basilica, then during the singing of the hymn "Veni Creator Spiritus" — "Come Creator Spirit" — will walk in procession with the cardinals through the central front door to the portable altar outside.

He will kiss the altar, seat himself and receive the pallium from Cardinal Pericle Felici, the Italian dean of the cardinal deacons. The wool band, which is adorned with white and black crosses, symbolizes the pope's role as patriarch of the Western Church.

The Vatican has not announced what words will be recited during the placing of the pallium. In the past, when the triple tiara was placed it was accompanied by a tribute to the pope as "the father of princes and kings, guide of the world and vicar upon the earth of Christ Jesus our Savior."

The cardinals will file before him to receive their obedience, and the Mass will also include an address, or homily, by the pope.

Pope John Paul acknowledged his lack of Vatican expertise in an address to a gathering of cardinals Wednesday and told them he will be the humble pupil of experienced church officials to learn how to manage the 700-million-member Roman Catholic Church.

He also said he will try to follow a middle course between those who seek more local autonomy for the bishops and those who advise strict adherence to papal directives.

Some 150,000 School Children Without Teachers

By ELLEN NIMMONS
Associated Press Writer
Some 150,000 schoolchildren across the United States were without their regular teachers today, and eight Indiana teachers were in jail for refusing to return to work, as labor disputes opened the 1978 school year.

The largest school system struck was New Orleans, where some 91,000 students were affected but schools remained open.

Teachers were also on strike in Michigan, Illinois and Indiana.

Other work stoppages were threatened, the situation in many states mirroring that in Michigan, where 192 teacher contracts — about 40 percent — were still up for decision.

Some school bus drivers were also on strike, with New Orleans bus drivers and maintenance men voting to stop work with the expiration of their contract at midnight tonight.
In Tennessee, a strike by county school bus operators cut opening day attendance from the normal 29,000 Wednesday as only 24 of 181 buses traveled their regular routes.

The issue almost everywhere was money.
The New Orleans school board called the 8 percent wage boost sought by the United Teachers of New Orleans "economically suicidal." Officials said schools would stay open despite the work stoppage.

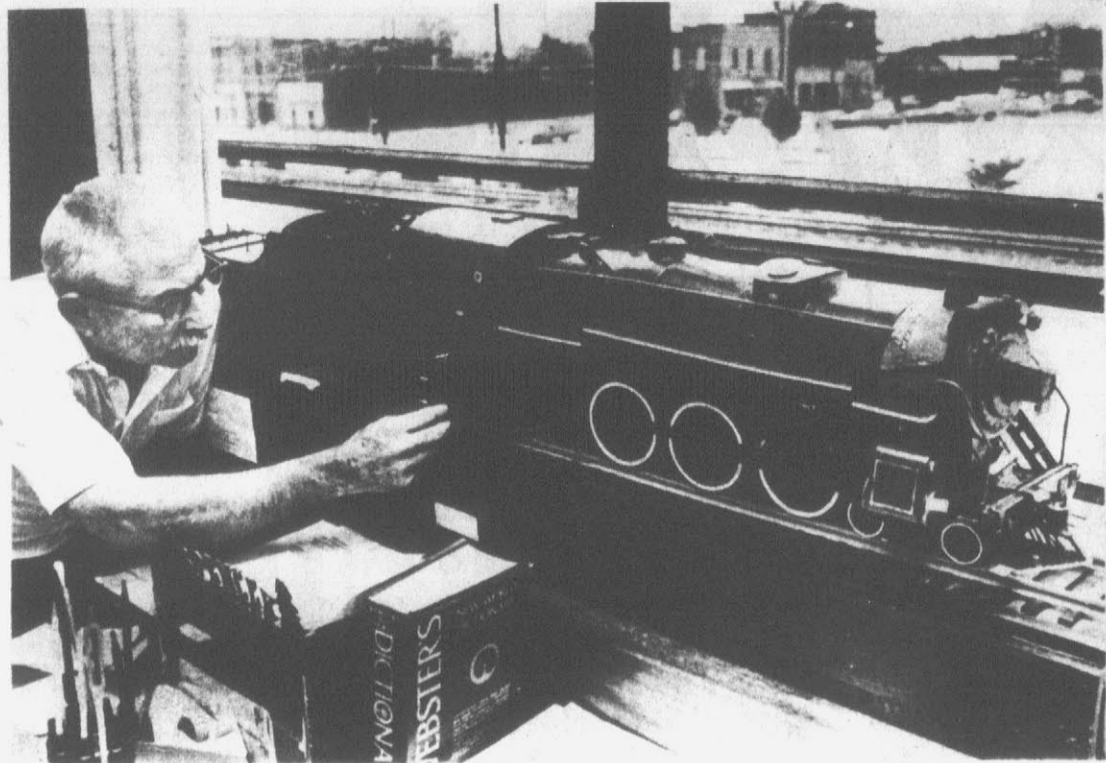

Assistant superintendent Jerry Hart, the school board's chief negotiator, said the board raised its wage increase from $1 million to $2.5 million when negotiations broke off Wednesday, while teachers reduced their demand by only $250,000 — an 8 percent salary increase. Some 4,200 public school teachers in New Orleans now earn between $10,096 and $15,250 annually.
Bus drivers and maintenance workers in New Orleans seek a 7 percent wage increase. The board offered a 4 percent jump. A strike by bus drivers would affect some 14,000 public and about 5,000 parochial school students.

About 335 teachers are on strike in Marion, where the school board has offered a 6.1 percent pay increase, and teachers seek a 12 percent wage jump.

Elsewhere in Indiana, some 130 teachers in Avon and another 330 in Richmond walked the picket lines. Classes were suspended in Richmond.
Some 50,000 students in Illinois were idled by strikes in Rockford, Collinsville, Edwardsville and Waterloo. Strikes were settled in two other districts.

In Michigan, Mount Pleasant teachers rejected a 7 percent salary increase, saying an 8 percent raise was the amount they needed. The school board originally offered a 5 percent pay hike. Teachers were also on strike in Orchard View, Mich.

A major strike was threatened in Cleveland, where the city's 5,000 teachers were told to prepare for picket duty on the scheduled opening day of school Sept. 7.

MADE FROM SCRATCH — Jim Goble of Spencer toys with his model of an old Southern Railroad locomotive, which he built in the 1940s using coffee

cans, coat hangers and "just whatever I could see." (AP Laserphoto)

Home-Built Model Southern RR Steam Engine Now On Exhibit

SPENCER, N.C. (AP) — Jim Goble has had a life-long love affair with steam locomotives. He loved them so much, in fact, that he spent a year and a half back in the 1940s building a model of Southern Railway's famed No. 1401. And that model is now on exhibit at the Historic Spencer Shops here.

But Goble has never worked for the railroad. And even though he grew up in Spencer, he's never even worked in the shops. He has contented himself with watching.

And in his days as a postal worker — one of several jobs he's had — he got close to the love of his life.

"I used to carry the mail from the depot to the post office...and I'd meet all those trains," he said. "I had to carry letters all over the shops. Sometimes they'd have the smokebox open, and you'd have to crawl in there to get them to sign for the letter."

It was while he was a letter carrier that Goble created his No. 1401 model from carved pieces of wood and just about anything else that fit. The only thing he bought was the 10-foot track.

Goble made the model of the 1401 from memory. He'd watch the trains and then go home and fashion the parts for the engine model. "You can see the mistakes now by looking at pictures," he said. "But when I made it, it was all guess work." The real No. 1401 is on display at the Smithsonian Institution.

remodeled the old Spencer post office. He used a lathe made from bed railings to shape them.

The smokebox is a coffee can, the boiler a combination of a lard bucket and a coffee can, and the cab a two-gallon oil can. The pop valves are the tops of spark plugs.

A watch crystal made the headlamp and the drives are turned by a motor Goble took from an electric fan.

"I worked about a year and a half on it," Goble said. "Back in the 40s we didn't have television to occupy ourselves."

The model is precious to Goble. In fact he says, "If you were to lay a $1,000 bill there, I wouldn't pick it up." He values it so highly because of his love for the real engine.

"It seemed like that engine got more runs. A lot of the trains I met, this was the engine," he said. "The 1401 pulled the Crescent Limited part of the time back then."

No. 1401 was also one of the locomotives that pulled President Franklin D. Roosevelt's funeral train along part of its route, Goble said.

"These are the days I remember," he said. "Everything was steam. When they took away the steam engines, they killed the railroad."

The Smithsonian Institution was founded in Washington, D.C. in 1846.

TWO SIDES — A serious picket stands under an umbrella during a light rain while some students enjoy the attention of the moment at Eleanor McMinn School in New Orleans Wednesday afternoon. The United Teachers Union elected to strike rather than report to class after they were offered a 4 percent increase by the public schools system. (AP Laserphoto)

Small Nebraska Town Is Dreaming Of Snowplow

By ELLEN HADDOW
Associated Press Writer

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — A snowplow is all the small western Nebraska town of Sidney wants. Not a big snowplow, just a little one. A truck with a blade on it would do.

But the federal government wants Sidney to have a big snowplow, one that costs $83,000, plus a $106,000 building to keep it warm.

Sidney, pop. 6,300, needs the plow for its airport, which gets enough snow to warrant use of a snowplow only about half a dozen times a year. The town's current plow is a 1936 truck with a front-end scraper. "It's an old Civil Defense vehicle that we bought in 1954 for $50 and it's seen the last of its days," said city manager Merle Strouse.

Strouse, interviewed by telephone, says Sidney's quest for a snowplow is "a comedy of errors, except nobody is really laughing about it any more."

As Strouse tells it, the city approached the Federal Aviation Administration, which grants funds to airports for paving and other improvements, to ask that part of the $154,000 available to Sidney this year be put toward a new snowplow.

The feds said Sidney didn't have enough snow.

That was early last fall. By December, the FAA had changed its mind and told the town it could go ahead with plans for a snowplow.

But not a little snowplow, which Strouse figures could be had for about $25,000. The FAA said the town needed an $83,000 snowplow.

That's not all, Strouse said the town was told it also needed an airport layout plan, costing about $25,000, plus a building to put the snowplow in — at a cost of $106,000.

Then the State Aeronautics Department stepped into the picture.

Federal funds are awarded with the stipulation that the city put up 10 percent. Although the city had budgeted $9,800 for efforts to get a snowplow, it was unwilling to put up 10 percent of the cost of what it considered a grandiose federal plan. The state said it would pick up some of the local tab.

But Strouse said the state had a condition.

"We could get the snowplow, but if we didn't tie a construction project in the layout plan, we couldn't get anything. ... If you don't take both, you don't get either," he said.

Sidney officials, and a consulting firm it had to hire to prepare the information the government needed, told the FAA and the state Aeronautics Department — again — that all it wanted was a snowplow.

"They said OK," Strouse said, "but you have to take these other things or no-go. We finally worked out a compromise with the state for the snowplow, the emergency equipment building and an airport layout plan.

"By now the project is around $190,000: $25,000 for the plan, $45,000 for the snowplow and $106,000 for the building to put it in.

"We finally sat down with all of them and said: 'Fellas, look. This is the bottom line. We're going to spend $45,000 for a snowplow, $22,000 for an airport plan and $66,000 for a building. That totals $133,000 and of that amount the city will commit $9,800. We don't want anymore of it.'"

An application to that effect is now in the hands of the FAA in Kansas City. If officials there approve the contract, Sidney will get an airport plan, a building — and its snowplow.

Conferees To Decide Fate Of Wilmington-Raleigh Highway

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Negotiations between a House-Senate conference committee in Washington may decide whether the government will put up the money to carry out an old dream of building a four-lane highway from Wilmington to Raleigh.

But, a spokesman for U.S. Rep. Charlie Rose, D-N.C., said the joint committee may not reach a compromise before the federal highway aid program ends Sept. 30. If no agreement is reached by then, there will be no new federal money for highway construction.

Standing in the way of compromise is the big difference in funding proposed in the two bills. The House version would provide almost $36.5 billion for highway construction. Both President Carter and Transportation Secretary Brock Adams oppose it as inflationary.

Last January, the state Board of Transportation included a 90-mile, $160-million interstate-type highway to connect Wilmington and Raleigh in its seven-year improvement plan. However, the board said it had no money for the road. It said construction would await outcome of efforts of the state's congressional delegation to boost North Carolina's share of federal funds.

The House bill would boost from $1.35 billion to $2.1 billion federal funds for the primary highway system, which includes interstate projects. That would boost North Carolina's share of federal aid money from $32 million to $45 million a year for four years.

The measure also would increase the amount of money in a discretionary fund controlled by Adams from $50 million to $125 million. According to Rose aide John Merritt, the Raleigh-to-Wilmington highway is one of six projects which are included by name in the House bill. This makes it a prime candidate for immediate allocations from the discretionary fund.

"This puts us in the best position we've ever been in to get funds for the connector," Merritt said. "But we have traded a lot of green stamps on this one."

N.C. Highway Administrator Billy Rose said a Raleigh-to-Wilmington highway stands a better chance because the route was approved in July by the Federal Highway Commission as a priority road. He said that designation is necessary to qualify for discretionary funds or normal funding.

According to Billy Rose, the state is waiting for federal approval before drafting an environmental impact statement on the highway. If that proceeds on schedule, Rose said the state should be ready to ask for federal money for the project by next spring.

Gave Spouse Scholarships Given Rat Poison By Local Kiwanians

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) —

A Greensboro woman is scheduled to be sentenced today in Guilford County Superior Court after pleading guilty to giving her husband what proved to be a fatal dose of rat poison in an effort to keep him from going out drinking at night.

Susan McMath Broadaway, 27, had been charged with first-degree murder but pleaded guilty to second-degree murder Tuesday as a result of a plea bargaining agreement. The offense carries a maximum penalty prison sentence of 100 years.

Wallace Harrelson, public defender for Mrs. Broadaway, told a judge in court Tuesday that she didn't mean to kill Bruce Wayne Broadaway, 38. The attorney said she only meant to give him enough poison to make him sick so he would stay home nights.

Broadaway died Jan. 9 at a Greensboro hospital after suffering two cardiac arrests. An autopsy revealed evidence of a large amount of arsenic in his body, a pathologist testified.

Police Detective K.W. Brady testified that Mrs. Broadaway said in a statement she began poisoning her husband Dec. 30 when he came home after staying out all night. She gave her husband poison eight times, putting it in coffee and cough medicine, the statement said.

The Greenville Kiwanis Club presented three $100 scholarship Wednesday to former Rose High School students now enrolled at East Carolina University.

The checks were presented to Melanie L. Fornes, Kenny Hall, and Lisa Zicherman by John McConney, president of the club, and Grover Everett, chairman of the scholarship committee.

Miss Fornes is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Fornes of 2704 Crockett Drive. She was a member of the National Honor Society, FHA and a band majorette. She plans to major in dance at ECU.

Hall is the son of Mrs. Nancy Dominick of 113 Lord Ashley Drive. He was a member of the basketball and track teams and plans to major in business at ECU.

Miss Zicherman is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Zicherman of 506 Eleanor Street. She was a member of the National Honor Society, the Mathematics Honor Society, the Spanish Club, and was active in SGA. She plans to major in communications arts at ECU.

The Kiwanis program was presented by David Barber, president of the ECU Circle K Club. He spoke about the activities of the club, which is sponsored by the Greenville Kiwanis Club.

Close Race In Alaska's Vote Count

By G. MICHAEL HARMON
Associated Press Writer
JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — Late returns from Alaska's eight-day-old primary election have yanked Republican Gov. Jay Hammond from a 900-vote deficit to a 36-vote lead over former Gov. Wally Hickel.

The final winner, however, may not be known until mid-September.

Hammond, who never had led since the first precincts began reporting on election day, moved to the front Wednesday night following the tabulation of about 6,700 absentee and questioned ballots.

In Alaska, ballots of voters who went to the polls in the wrong precinct are set aside for counting the week after an election. The so-called questioned votes are not allowed to be counted in state legislative races, but are tabulated in statewide contests.

Elections officers said the returns were neither final nor official.

Officials said there still may be a few scattered absentee ballots in the mails and a formal review of returns by state canvassing boards probably will result in a change of several hundred votes between candidates.

The boards began work Wednesday, but were not expected to report the official election results until Sept. 12.

Alaska law provides for an automatic recount when there is one half of one percent separating candidates. Officials said a recount appeared inevitable, but could not be completed before Sept. 15.

Hammond, a former bush pilot, trailed Hickel, a self-made millionaire developer, by as many as 901 votes on election night.

But the Republican challenger's lead has shrunk steadily over the last week as returns from unreported rural precincts began to trickle into election headquarters, and disappeared altogether when the questioned ballots were tabulated.

Both The Associated Press and Anchorage Daily News had declared Hickel the winner based on his big election-night lead.

Discovered 2 Bodies

SALISBURY, N.C. (AP) — Rowan County authorities said early Thursday there was still no positive identification on the bodies of a boy and girl found beside highways in widely separated sections of the county Monday.

A deputy in the Rowan County Sheriff's Department said authorities were still tentatively identifying the boy as Robert Allen Frank, 17, of Charlottesville, Va. Virginia officials said the identification was made from a birth certificate found in the youth's wallet and from tattoos on his body.

Rowan County officers were in Virginia Beach Wednesday to pick up dental records of a teenage girl who has been reported missing. The records will be compared with the teeth of the dead girl.

Frank was last seen Friday near Charlottesville hitchhiking with a young girl, according to authorities. They said she was believed to be 16 or 17 years old and from Virginia Beach.

The boy's body was found on I-85 about two miles north of Salisbury and the girl's body was found just off highway 52 near Gold Hill, about 12 miles east of Salisbury, Rowan officers said.

Ship Idea Is No Joke

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt's press secretary said Wednesday the idea is definitely not a joke. The governor has been thinking about it for some time and he's quite serious.

No, it's not the tax rebate. This time it's a ship, the governor's talking about.

To commemorate the 400th anniversary of the Lost Colony settlement on Roanoke Island, Hunt wants a 16th century English sailing ship built and sailed across the Atlantic to the spot where English settlers first tried to establish a colony in this country.

The idea has been brewing in his mind for some times, according to aides. What made the governor go public was the discovery that the folks in Boston have a replica of one of the ships involved in the Boston Tea Party protest against the British.

That discovery reportedly sharpened Hunt's enthusiasm for his idea. He is currently in Boston for the National Governors Conference.

Since it would make such a great tourist attraction, the governor said he is determined to get a ship for North Carolina.

"He's very enthusiastic about it," Gary Pearce, press secretary, said Wednesday. "He wants it built and have it come across the ocean, just like for the Lost Colony...but this time we're going to do it right."

So far there are no estimates on how much the venture would cost or who would pay for it.

H.G. Jones, chairman of the group set up by the legislature to plan the celebration for the 400th anniversary said the governor's idea was a good one. But he said there would be a lot of things to consider before deciding on it.

Besides determining the feasibility of the project, one problem would be to decide which ship to duplicate since there were several ships and several voyages in the first attempt at settlement here.

The Lost Colony celebration is planned for 1984 through 1987.

Vatican Bank Policies Rapped

By HILMI TOROS
Associated Press Writer
ROME (AP) — Italy's leading economic weekly accused the Vatican bank today of helping some of the country's richest people evade the laws against the transfer of capital abroad. It appealed to Pope John Paul I to impose "order and morality" on the church's finances.

In an open letter to the new pope, Paolo Panerai, editor of Il Mondo, said the Vatican's financial dealings included "speculation in unhealthy waters." Il Mondo is published by the Milan daily Corriere della Sera, Italy's largest and one of its most respected newspapers.

dramatic contradiction in the most temporal manifestation of the earth: money."

"Believe us, Your Holiness, we understand well the exigencies of the Vatican to have financial autonomy to sustain its apparatus, to spread the faith, in addition to pious works. We believe that is right. But don't you think, Your Holiness, that to achieve those objectives there are ways other than the most unscrupulous channels that capitalism offers?"

Panerai said the Vatican is heavily involved in stock and money markets and that the director of its bank, Bishop Paul Marcinkus of Cicero, Ill., "is the only bishop who sits on the board of directors of a lay bank in one of the fiscal paradises of capitalism: the Cisalpine Overseas Bank of Nassau."

Accompanying the open letter was an unsigned report titled "The Wealth of Peter," that claimed Marcinkus also looks after Vatican investments in various parts of the world through the Continental Illinois Bank of Chicago.

The report said the Vatican bank, called the Institute for Religious Works, holds deposits estimated at $2 billion and its 7,000 depositors include "some of the biggest Italian industrialists and businessmen." It did not give any names.

It said these men use the accounts to transfer their holdings abroad in violation of currency laws forbidding transfer of capital earned in Italy.

Il Mondo said the Vatican lost about $80 million in the collapse of the banking empire of fugitive Sicilian financier Michele Sindona, who was convicted in absentia of bank fraud and sentenced to 3½ years in jail. Sindona is fighting extradition from New York.

The paper said the Vatican has extensive investments in gold and stocks in the United States, including shares in General Motors, General Electric, Shell and Gulf Oil, Bethlehem Steel, IBM, TWA and Pan American.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — The National Weather Service forecast for today until early Friday calls for rain along the Atlantic coast from New York to North Carolina. Rain is also forecast for parts of Montana and Wyoming. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press

A low pressure area associated with what's left of tropical storm Debra was located this morning along the Tennessee-Kentucky border, continuing its northeastward movement.

A weak cold front extended south from the low to the Gulf coast and this frontal system will be moving into North Carolina this evening. As the low moved to the north across the mountains the front was expected to trigger scattered showers and possible thunderstorms across the state.

Scattered thunderstorms with heavy rains developed around the state Wednesday over the western and southern sections before spreading northward during the afternoon.

Lincolnton had three and a half inches of rain, causing some local flooding. Northeast of Charlotte the community of Gold Hill had more than five inches of rain in a two and a half hour period.

High temperatures across the state Wednesday were in the mid 80s in the mountains and ranged from the upper 80s to mid 90s east of the mountains. A high of 94 degrees at Fayetteville was the highest reported in the state. Goldsboro followed with 93 degrees.

High temperatures today were expected to range in the upper 80s to low 90s except for the low to mid 80s in the mountains. Friday will continue to be partly cloudy but the chances of showers and thunderstorms will be less. High temperatures will be in the 80s.

Wound Man During Chase

LINCOLNTON, N.C. (AP) — Officers said Jerry Cochrane Jr., 21, of Lincolnton, was wounded Wednesday after the pickup truck in which he was a passenger tried to elude a sheriff's department roadblock during a chase by deputies.

The truck, officers said, rammed a sheriff's department car at the roadblock, east of Lincolnton, knocking Deputy Walter Fortenberry to the ground.

They said Fortenberry then allegedly fired his service revolver at the fleeing vehicle, striking Cochrane in the shoulder.

Cochrane was listed in unsatisfactory condition at Charlotte Memorial Hospital, after undergoing surgery.

The driver of the vehicle, 21-year-old Richard Clint "Ricky" Ward, was not injured. He was charged with a number of offenses, including driving under the influence, eluding arrest and two counts of assault with a deadly weapon on a law enforcement officer.

Ward was released on $1,000 bond. Lincoln County Sheriff Harven Crouse has asked the State Bureau of Investigation to investigate.

City Counts 2 Accidents

Over $2,400 in damages resulted from two traffic accidents investigated here Wednesday by Greenville Police.

One-Man Drive To Save Lives

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Thanks to the concern and three-year battle of Patrolman Richard Mills of the Police Interstate Patrol, "Slaughterhouse Row" will soon be safer for motorists.

Slaughterhouse Row, the 4.5-mile stretch of Interstate 240 between Lamar and the I-55 interchange north of Whitehaven, claimed 21 lives between 1972 and the middle of last year. Some 142 others were injured.

Patrolman Mills became so sickened pulling dead and battered bodies out of wrecked cars that he launched a oneman crusade to get something done.

He started writing letters to congressmen, to state safety commissioners, to Nathan Picklin, city traffic engineer.

"It was directly due to those letters Mills wrote that the situation is now being corrected," said Picklin.

Suspected Youth Gang Leader Will Smile No More

By PETER ARNETT
AP Special Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP) — Nicky Louie had a smile for everyone, but this week his charm failed. Somebody shot him in the head. This may help him make a decision he told acquaintances he was wrestling with for some time: retire early or — at age 23 — move further into international gangsterism. Police in the Chinatowns of New York, Boston, Chicago and Toronto are interested in his decision. But they'll have to wait. The bullet-ridden Louie, with serious wounds in the head and back, lies in a New York City hospital. He is in satisfactory condition but faces several weeks in intensive care.

"I don't trust anyone," he had told a reporter last year, and only his parents have been allowed past the round-the-clock police guard at his door to find out how he feels now.

Nicky Louie's fate is being watched by New York police who have for nearly a decade been attempting to stamp out Chinatown gangs.

Hired as thugs to protect the traditional illegal gambling that flourish in Chinese communities, the aggressive teenagers soon went into business for themselves and profits grew into the millions.

Famous Chinatown streets such as Mott and Pell became prosperous turf for youth gangs calling themselves such names as the White Eagles and the Flying Dragons. They systematically demanded protection money from businessmen and their own rivalry sometimes erupted in gunfire.

Gangs sprang up in other American and Canadian cities, accompanied by public shootouts and private murders. Police seemed unable to penetrate the traditional Chinese silence toward outside authority, even though some Chinatowns were threatened with bankruptcy.

Police believe that Nicky Louie tried to link it all together. "He tried to be the Joe Columbo of Chinese ancestry," commented one detective, referring to a New York organized crime chieftain with national connections who was gunned down several years ago.

Louie doesn't seem the type. Pale and boyish, he is a dresser so natty that even his jeans are carefully pressed. He would smile disarmingly at reporters who sought to interview him at the Wha Sun coffee shop, his favorite haunt on Mott Street.

Police officers who have arrested him several times over the years — only to release him when witnesses fail to testify — say Louie is above average in intelligence and leadership qualities. But in other ways he is similar to most other youth gang members.

With the Chinese name Lin Poy Luy, he arrived in New York 12 years ago with his immigrant parents from Hong Kong. He left a dilapidated tenement to head a teen-age gang that called itself the Ghost Shadows and roamed one of the poorer neighborhoods of Chinatown.

By 1974, the Ghost Shadows had pushed out competing gangs and moved to the heart of the community.

By 1977, police estimated the Ghost Shadows were taking in more than a million dollars a year in extortion. Chinatown rocked with gunfights as other gangs competed, but Nicky Louie reigned supreme, avoiding at least one assassination attempt.

Then it all fell apart. Police say one reason was ambition. Nicky's brother, Eddie, led a Toronto chapter of the Ghost Shadows, and the brother attempted to recruit gang members in Boston and Chicago. When these new recruits began arriving here, Nicky's formerly loyal, close-knit lieutenants rebelled because they felt threatened by the outsiders.

Two, nicknamed Mongo and Applehead, early this year formed another Ghost Shadows faction. Other gangs began muscling-in.

But a bigger reason for Nicky's downfall, police claim, is the success in an international campaign to stamp out Chinese gangs. Following a conference in Toronto last year, intelligence on gang activities is now routinely filed across the country.

A special task force of 20 New York officers was assigned to Chinatown in February, and they claim to have closed every regular gambling game in the community. "There may be a floating crap game or two, but that is all," said Capt. Allan Hoehl, who heads the Chinatown police precinct.

With revenues cut so drastically, gang members became even more unruly. "Nicky was clever up to a point," one detective said. "But he wanted too much and it blew up in his face."

On Monday night, Nicky was playing a friendly game of mah-jongg in the dimly lit basement of the Gin Beck restaurant on Mott Street. It was supposed to be a safe haven, but a man with a .38 pistol walked through the downstairs kitchen and blasted Louie four times in the head and back.

Louie crawled and ran to the police station around the corner, splattering blood on the pavement. When he regained consciousness two days later, he declined comment on the crime, though police believe he knew his assailant.

"Nicky's already too old for the youth gangs," commented one of the investigating detectives. "I'd say it's time for him to retire."

Celebrate End Of Reading Program

About 200 people were on hand late last week to celebrate the conclusion of a program of summer reading for children sponsored by Sheppard Memorial Library under the guidance of Children's Librarian Joe R. Stines.

The event, held at Green Springs Park, included a picnic with storytelling and games.

During the summer months, 524 children took part in "Off to the Races," in which each child agreed to read 60 easy or 40 juvenile books in a ten week period. More than half the participants completed the requirement.

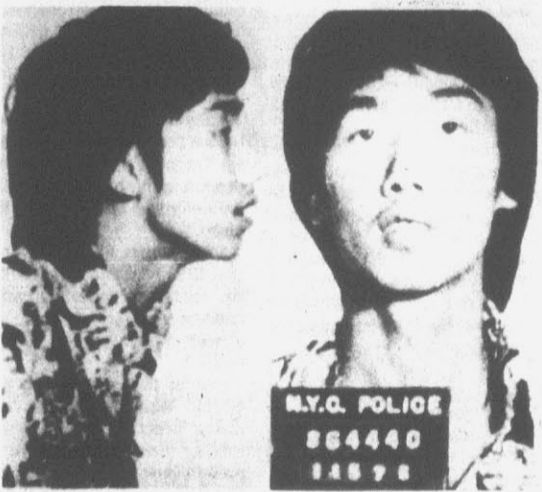

At the Green Springs Park celebration, blue ribbons were awarded to the top two readers from each library (including the bookmobile) and red ribbons were given to the two readers achieving the next highest reading achievement.

Blue ribbon winners were: Children's Library (Sheppard) — Chris Cucchiarra and Rena Meteye; Carver Library —

William Rouse and Shawna Parker; East Branch Library — Miska Lewis and Karin Potts; and bookmobile — B. H. Bland and a tie between Sheila Bland and Susan Hewett.

Red Ribbon winners were: Children's Library — Amy Fagan and Eugene Lao; Carver Library — Ericka Hill and Vickie Barnhill; East Branch Library — Alicia Pascasio and Angela Bunn; and bookmobile — James Gurganus.

Overall top reader was B. H. Bland, a student at Stokes Elementary School. He read 350 "easy" books during the period.

HIS CHARM FAILED — Nicky Louie, 23, had a smile for everyone, but this week his charm failed; somebody shot him. Police believe Louie was a kingpin in the underworld of Chinatown youth gangs. (AP Laserphoto)

Holiday Prices For Gasoline

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Drivers in North Carolina and South Carolina will be paying more for gasoline this Labor Day weekend than they did last year, according to the Carolina Motor Club.

"The prices for gas have been inching up since Memorial Day — traditionally the beginning of the summer travel season," Quinton Anderson, public relations director for the Charlotte-based organization, said Thursday.

"The same thing has happened in previous years. It's just that the figures are higher this year than in the past."

The motor club said while drivers in the two states should have no problem with the supply of gasoline over the three-day holiday period, motorists will be paying anywhere from a fraction of a cent to 3.4 cents more per gallon, with drivers in South Carolina paying about two cents per gallon more than in North Carolina.

Since Memorial Day, prices per gallon for gas have risen an average of 1.5 cents in North Carolina and 2.6 cents in South Carolina, the club said.

It released the following figures from a survey of 138 stations in the two states, including both full-service and self-service prices, as average prices for the Labor Day weekend:

—For North Carolina, 63.1 cents per gallon for regular, 68.7 cents for premium and 67.7 cents for unleaded.

—For South Carolina, 65.2 cents per gallon for regular, 70.7 cents for premium and 69.5 for unleaded.

The motor club said despite price increases in both states during the summer, prices in both are still below the national average.

Doctors at Memorial-Sloan Kettering Cancer Center in New York found that by measuring levels of the antibody before surgery, they could predict the interval before large intestine cancer recurred.

The study, published in today's New England Journal of Medicine, examined patients whose cancer had either penetrated the intestine wall or spread to the lymph nodes.

They found that the period before recurrence ranged from 9.8 months to 30 months, depending on how much of the antibody was circulating in the blood.

The doctors also discovered that if there was a high level of the antibody after surgery, chances were high that the cancer would spread to the liver.

One of the researchers, Dr. Harold Wanebo, said the test has a practical use in determining the kind of care a patient should get after surgery for removal of a cancer in the large intestine.

When the cancer is relatively advanced and antibody levels are high, Wanebo said, "the doctor knows the patient is at much higher risk, and he may want him to consider some form of treatment, such as chemotherapy or radiation, or he may have to increase the frequency of followup checks."

Surviving him are his wife, Mrs. Margaret Gallin Tripp; two daughters, Mrs. Jason Lilly of Vanceboro and Mrs. William Dunn of Honolulu, Hawaii; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ledrew Tripp of Ruffin, S. C.; two sisters, Mrs. Sudie Hudson of Vanceboro and Mrs. Paul Brantley of Goldsboro; five brothers, Denard L. Tripp of Ernul, Linwood E. Tripp of New Bern, Marvin I., Dink and Kenneth H. Tripp, all of Ruffin, S. C.; and four grandchildren.

The family will receive friends at the funeral home tonight from 7 to 9 o'clock.

Whitford. Funeral services for Mrs. Violet (Tom) Whitford of the Dudley's Crossroads community of Craven County will be held Friday at 3:30 p.m. in the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel by the Rev. Grimes. Funeral services for Mrs. Tinnie Williams Grimes, who died Sunday at her home, 109 Wade St., will be held Sunday, 3 p.m., at Whitchard Chapel Holiness Church with Bishop Mark Ebron officiating. Burial will be at the Brown Hill Cemetery.

Mrs. Grimes was a native of Pitt County and spent most of her life in the Stokes community, but had made her home in Greenville for the past four years. She was a member of Whitchard Chapel Holiness Church.

Helms Warns...

(Continued from page 1) defeated. The president, according to the senator, had indicated that he would sign the bill if it reached his desk. Helms mentioned sponsorship of the Academic Freedom Act which he said was designed to get the Department of Health, Education and Welfare "off the backs of colleges and universities." He said that at Duke University, it costs $500 per year per student to "handle red tape" required to comply with HEW regulations. A computer at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro was tied up for five weeks in responding to an HEW inquiry.

Responding to other questions yesterday, the senator said that in response to predictions that another gasoline shortage is on the horizon, there is no shortage of petroleum or natural gas as such but the shortage lies in finding "easy-to-get petroleum or natural gas."

He said that America must "bite the bullet" and let there be capital available sufficient to do research and find new sources of supplies.

The Senate is in a majority against sending American troops to the Middle East, according to Helms, in the face of rumblings that Carter is considering such a move.

Helms said that work on the new multi-million dollar Senate office building, the third in Washington, should be stopped and the beams on the unfinished structure should be left as a "monument to the folly" of the situation.

Discussing the wasteful and unneeded nature of the new facility, he said that "if this doesn't do more to destroy more of what remains of the public's confidence" in government, "then I don't know what does."

Helms was introduced by his campaign manager, Tom Ellis of Raleigh, who said that "this man is not just our senior senator, he is a statesman."

Ellis mentioned that Helms is the first North Carolinian to ever win the Golden Gavel Award, which is presented to senators who have presided over the Senate 100 hours or more in one session.

Dr. Lennox Baker of Raleigh, former N.C. Secretary of Human Resources under Bob Scott and a leader in the fight for East Carolina University's medical school, spoke in support of Helms and said that the senator's voice was "being heard around the world."

He added, "I believe God intended for Jesse to go to Washington."

Helms received a firsthand look at tobacco auctions here following the luncheon as he visited a Greenville warehouse during an afternoon sale. He had earlier assured the luncheon gathering that "we are not going to let anything happen to our tobacco program."

Tenderloin, and bread, wine and other items allegedly in hand, two men were arrested early this morning by patrolling Sheriff Department officers outside a rural grocery store.

Pitt County Sheriff Ralph Tyson said Willie Spellman, 41, of 1015 W. Fourteenth Street, Greenville, and David Junior May, 21, of Rt. 1, Box 152, Greenville were charged with breaking and entering and larceny and are in the Pitt County Jail under $100 bond. A hearing is set for tomorrow.

He said the two were spotted outside Peaden's Grocery on State Road 1200 at 2:15 a.m. He said they apparently had taken a quantity of goods from the store: wine, cigarettes, ham, tenderloin, and bread, but no money. All was recovered, he indicated.

Rampants Open Season At Goldsboro

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
 Rose High School's Rampants open their 1978 football season Friday night, going up against one of the stronger teams on the schedule, a team that they've had little success with during the past seven years.

The Goldsboro Cougars will offer the opposition for Rose in a 7:30 p.m. game in Goldsboro. Only twice since 1971 have the Rampants been able to stop the Cougars, and never in Goldsboro. In addition, Goldsboro hasn't lost a season-opening game since Gerald Wisenhunt became coach at the school.

The Cougars are already ranked, prior to the start of the season, as one of the stronger teams around, while Rose is, at best, in somewhat of a rebuilding year.

Only 11 lettermen return to this fall's Rampant version. And only five players were starters.

Those five include Reggie Selby, Robert Morehead and Joey Mattheis on offense and Curtis Little and Ron Butler on defense.

"But the youngsters we have with us last year on a pretty good junior varsity team," Coach Dave Bumgarner said. "So they know pretty much what we expect of them. Some of them got in a little varsity experience from time to time also. I think we did a better job coaching last year than in the past too, and this has helped to bring them along."

Rose finished the year 5-5 last year, and Bumgarner recalls that it could easily have been 7-3. "We lost in the last couple of minutes to Wilson, and we lost to Northeastern in overtime."

Bumgarner said the deciding factor for this year may be how well the team stays physically. "We don't have a lot of tenth graders we can bring up in some positions. We have a lot of running backs and we have two good lines. But we don't have a lot of skilled people that we need."

The entire offensive line will be a junior one. "We could do the same thing on defense and in the backfield."

"But I don't really know what we can do. There is a sort of gray area out there. We may come out rock-bustin' or then we could be in trouble. I just don't know," Bumgarner said.

Offensively, the coach said he was pleased with the way most things went in the scrimmage with Williamston. "But the offensive line still is not blocking well and this is the key. If they do the things they are supposed to do, we'll be in good shape."

"But I don't look for us to do much out-of-the-ordinary or flashy," he said.

The tentative lineup on offense currently has Ron Butler at tight end, Jerry Daniels and Bill Cob at tackles; Wallace Brown and Vance Taylor at guards; David Holley at center; Ted King at wide receiver; Joey Mattheis at quarterback; Todd Tyson at fullback and Mark Shank and Derwin Clemons at halfbacks.

"We'll probably really play anywhere from 22 to 24 people on offense before the game is over," Bumgarner said. "We'll probably see three quarterbacks and a lot of running backs."

On defense, Bumgarner feels that he has some good-looking people in the line, but he questions the ability to hang in there for an entire game right now. "Our secondary is also somewhat of a question mark for us right now."

Defensive starters include Don McGlohon and Mark Saieed at ends, Curtis Little and Garrett Young at tackles, Jeff Ebron at nose guard; Butler and Bryant Smith at linebackers, Doug Selby and Calvin Jones at corner backs, and William Frizzell and Will Barrett at safeties.

King will handle all of the kicking duties.

"I guess this has to be a rebuilding year for us," Bumgarner said. "But they again, I guess it's not since we have so many kids who know what they are supposed to do."

"But right now, we don't have a killer instinct. Losing doesn't seem that important to us, just playing. I just hope that they get out of that attitude."

No Predictions From Pat Dye

Coach Pat Dye had no predictions at his opening press conference for the 1978 football season at East Carolina University.

"I have no rash predictions," he said. "We can be good; we have ability. But time will tell whether we have a good team."

With a veteran team returning this fall, Dye feels that this could be a banner year for the Pirates, but he noted that this year's schedule is extremely tough from start to finish.

"We can't look ahead to anyone on the schedule, because everyone we play is capable of beating us. Western Carolina is a very good football team."

"I don't think that any of our players are looking past them. I haven't heard any one on the team say anything about any year except Western Carolina," Dye added.

"We've got a lot at stake here Saturday. It's one of our biggest games ever in the history of East Carolina. We're moving into a newly enlarged stadium, we'll probably have the biggest crowd here we've ever had. This shows the growth of progress we've had here."

Dye added that the Pirates face a tough slate after Western Carolina. "Playing State and Carolina on the road is never easy. But we've also got to play teams like Southern Mississippi and Southwestern Louisiana on their fields. I'm sure that we'll be the underdogs in each one of these games. And even in our other games on the road, we're going to be no better than even. Look at VMI, we beat them only one point here last year, and we've got to go to their place this year."

"But at the same time, we can look back and see that we lost two of our last three games last year. Now I want to see if we've gotten our stingers back. A football game is a game of action and not conversation. I want our defense to swarm around the ball."

Dye added that the Pirates face a tough slate after Western Carolina. "Playing State and Carolina on the road is never easy. But we've also got to play teams like Southern Mississippi and Southwestern Louisiana on their fields. I'm sure that we'll be the underdogs in each one of these games. And even in our other games on the road, we're going to be no better than even. Look at VMI, we beat them only one point here last year, and we've got to go to their place this year."

The Pirates also play the University of Richmond, a long-time nemesis in the Oyster Bowl, the site of their heart-breaking loss to William & Mary last season.

"We have some outstanding players, some that we know are winners. But we still have some unproven people on the team, too. I'm just anxious to see them play."

Garvey, After Win, Compares LA To 1974

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer
 The Dodgers are the defending National League champions but star first baseman Steve Garvey compares this year's team to another Los Angeles title winner.

"Those one run wins are great, we haven't had many of them until now and they're nice to get," said Garvey, whose two-out single in the ninth scored Bill North from second with the decisive tally in Los Angeles' 4-3 victory over the Montreal Expos Wednesday night. "They show you that you're winning the tough games. In 1974, it seemed like we always came from behind and that's what wins championships. That's what this team is starting to do."

Mets 10, Giants 4
 Lee Mazzilli collected four hits, including a home run, and drove in three runs, Willie Montanez had a three-run homer and Len Randle had four hits to pace the Mets' 16-hit attack.

Cardinals 4, Astros 2
 For exactly two months, Cardinals' hurler Bob Forsch was having trouble getting everything over the plate. He also was losing: nine in a row to be exact.

"Losing is tough," said Forsch, who broke the skid with a four-hit victory over the Astros. "I didn't feel I was contributing to the club. I felt I was taking up space."

Braves 6, Cubs 2
 Atlanta swept a three-game series with Chicago behind Larry McWilliams, 7-0, as a major leaguer. Phillies 6, Padres 5

 Garry Maddox knocked in Rich Hebner, who had four hits, with a ninth-inning double, in the Phils' victory. It was Maddox's third RBI of the game.

Students Accept Title IX Package

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Calling it a "first step," the five East Carolina University students who had filed a Title IX grievance complaint against the school's athletic department, accepted a package proposed by new chancellor Thomas Brewer yesterday.

The five students had filed the complaint alleging seven areas of non-compliance with Title IX over discrimination of women athletes in the university athletic program late in the 1977-78 school year. Hearings were held in June and July on the complaints, but yesterday's acceptance of the proposals by the university have apparently ended the hearing phase of the complaint.

"There are definite points that are representative of the university's good faith in assuring the improvement of the (women's) program," spokeswoman Debbie Newby said in a statement to the grievance committee. "However, we feel this revised plan is only the first step toward compliance with Title IX. In order to insure complete fairness and equity for Women's Athletics, the program must be continually monitored and adjusted for perpetual improvement of the program."

She added that she feels the university sees the need for further improvements and will continue to upgrade the program to be in full compliance with Title IX provisions.

The package, as presented by Dr. David B. Stevens, university attorney, is only slightly different from that asked in July by the complainant students, and includes great improvements in budget allocations for women's athletics, as well as other provisions.

The complaint had alleged non-compliance with Title IX in seven areas—game and practice schedules; publicity; locker rooms, practice and competitive facilities; assignment and pay of coaches and recruiting; travel; provision of supplies and equipment; and scholarships.

In the area of game and practice schedules, all of the items requested by the students was provided. These include the policy of allowing in-season sports to have priority use of facilities at the university. Practice schedules have been made for teams using the same facilities, with a rotating schedule for comparable usage of these facilities. A master calendar of sports activities and facilities usage will also be maintained, making sure that conflicts do not occur and that practice schedules are comparable.

In the area of publicity, the university felt that the matter could be handled in a slightly different way than asked. The students had asked for a full-time assistant for the Sports Information Office to handle women's athletics. The university, with the Sports Information Director, has come up with a plan that would provide comparable coverage for all sports, through the use of a full-time secretary, and approximately eight well-trained student helpers.

In addition, a master plan for sports coverage has been prepared, and coaches of each sport have been given full input regarding their sports' publicity. The university has recently hired a full-time promotions director, who will also work with the women's programs.

In the area of locker rooms, practice and competitive facilities, the students had asked for a locker room with up-to-date facilities in Memorial Gym for the gymnastics team; for a temporary wall in the general men's locker room in Minges to provide space for volleyball; for field assignment for softball; for temporary provision for increased locker facilities for other women's use; and for a study for new plans of facilities which would provide more space for women's athletics.

The plan calls for increased locker facilities in Memorial, stating that this construction is now underway. A permanent wall will be constructed in the locker facilities in Minges to allow additional facilities for women in that building. A softball field will be located near Harrington Field and will be ready for the team's use in the spring. Additional locker room facilities will be made available in the spring in Ficklen Stadium, and the study committee will check existing facilities and submit recommendations by May 15, 1979 on what is needed.

In the area of assignment and pay of coaches and recruiting, the students asked for a committee to evaluate coaching needs for women athletes, with adjustments in salary to reflect non-discriminatory supplements, and a $3,000 budget addition for the year for women's recruiting.

The administration policy granted salaries with comparability in terms of individual sports and in terms of the score and requirements for respective positions.

Women's basketball was established as a full-time post with an initial salary of $15,500, an increase of over 500 percent. Funds are also available for an assistant coach in basketball. Coaches' salaries will be monitored and evaluated on a continuing basis. The $3,000 request was fulfilled.

In the area of travel, the students asked for comparable modes of travel and expense allowances, with an additional $8,000 for the 1978-79 year, with another $4,000 to be added the following year.

The university plan calls for comparable allowances during travel for each sport. Travel funds will take into consideration the size of the squad, the distance, and the requirements for overnight accommodations. Adequate and comparable modes of transportation will be assigned for team travel for each sport. Unusual travel requirements will be considered on an individual basis.

The 1978-79 women's travel budget is $14,083, nearly $4,800 less than the students asked, but represents a 35 per cent increase. A contingency fund of $10,000 for sanctioned AIAW and NCAA post-season competition will be maintained.

In the area of supplies and equipment, the students asked for practice uniforms for all sports and a re-evaluation of all women's competitive uniforms, with corrective action to insure quality uniforms for all women's sports.

The university provides for the athletic director and women's coordinator to consult with each team's coach on its needs, and to be sure that adequate practice uniforms are provided in accordance with the desires of the head coaches, and within the budget of the sport. The women's coordinator is surveying the game uniforms, and a plan will be submitted for comparability in quality and condition. A $1,000 increase was put into the basketball budget for women for the option of new uniforms.

In the area of scholarships, the students asked for a percentage share of the scholarship money available, based on the number of women and men participating in intercollegiate athletics at the university. For the coming year, the women asked for $42,000 in these funds, with funds in the future years to reflect the percentage of women athletes.

The university granted $40,825 in scholarship money to women's programs, an increase of $29,107.

The largest proportional increase was in volleyball, $3,568, an increase of 725 percent. The smallest was of $1,200, a 96 per cent increase, for women's swimming. Gymnastics received an added $3,668 (295 per cent increase), while basketball was upped $10,184 (288 per cent). Similar increases were made in other women's sports.

Continued evaluation of women's scholarship needs will be made, with priority for the next two years to bring in line comparable scholarship allocations in the eight men's and women's sports, not counting football.

Each sport will be matched with another. Basketball, tennis, swimming and track will be matched in men's and women's funds; with women's volleyball paired with men's golf; women's field hockey with men's soccer; women's softball with men's baseball; and women's gymnastics with men's wrestling.

Currently, tennis, field hockey and volleyball receive more in scholarships than the comparative men's sports. These women's sports will be curtailed until the men's funds equal theirs. When women's sports receive increases, proportionally larger increases in these three sports will be given to men's, with the same procedure applying to those women's sports currently receiving less than men's.

Funding of the program is expected to come from increased gifts, gate receipts, and increased student activity fees.

Athletic Director Bill Cain said current student activity fees for athletics is $13.50 per semester, and that figure is the lowest of any of the state's major universities. Cain said that Dr. Brewer would recommend hikes in this fee for the 1979-80 school year.

Dr. Brewer has set a goal of total comparability by the 1980-81 school year.

Ole Darlington Hasn't Changed

DARLINGTON, S.C. (AP) — Time trials begin today for the 29th annual Southern 500 at the freshly surfaced Darlington Raceway.

But no one is expecting the new asphalt to make the laps any easier.

"This old speedway might look different now that they've put down new pavement," observed Junior Johnson, builder of Cale Yarborough's Oldsmobile.

"But ain't nothing changed," he said. "The old bumps are still in the same place. They're just harder to see."

Even Bobby Allison, of Hueytown, Ala., who posted the fastest time during practice sessions Wednesday, was reluctant to push the speedway. His 149.74 mph was far off the qualifying record of 155.433 mph set by David Pearson in 1975.

Allison, a top driver on NASCAR's Winston Cup Grand National tour, said the heat of the afternoon on the new asphalt made the going "slick and risky."

"Nobody'll show too much until they have to," he added.

The top 12 positions in the $224,000 Labor Day race will be decided in time trials, which run through Saturday.

Close behind Allison in Wednesday's practice speeds was Darrell Waltrip at 149.02 mph. Pearson was third at 148.57, and reigning Grand National champion and current point leader Yarborough posted a speed of 148.48 mph.

Lennie Pond, at 147.68 mph, and Richard Petty, 147.19 mph, also joined the pole position contenders during the late afternoon practice session.

Petty, Buddy Baker and Benny Parsons locked up in a last-minute run that some observers said yielded the fastest laps of the hot afternoon.

"You wait'll Monday," Johnson said. "It's gonna be another Southern 500 — everybody banging on everybody else."

League Heads Go To Court

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The National and American leagues have brought their heavy hitters into federal court in an attempt to settle a dispute with the guys who nearly always have the final say — the major league umpires.

AL President Lee MacPhail and NL President Chub Feeney both testified Wednesday, contending professional baseball has no obligation to reopen negotiations with the umpires, who staged a one-day walkout last week.

"I suppose we could (renegotiate), but we certainly don't have a moral, legal or any sort of responsibility to do so," Feeney testified.

And MacPhail told the judge: "We feel we that have a valid agreement, that it's complete, that it has a no-strike clause. We don't think we should be forced by the threat of a strike to reopen negotiations. We negotiated every issue raised by the umpires during the contract talks and we have no obligation to reopen those talks."

The umpires, members of the Major League Umpires Association, struck Aug. 25 after demanding 21 new benefits outlined in a telegram sent to both league presidents Aug. 16.

The leagues obtained a temporary restraining order from U.S. District Judge Joseph L. McGlynn Jr., but it came too late to avert the work stoppage in 13 cities last Friday. The leagues used collegiate and retired professional umpires to umpire the games.

Wednesday's hearing concerned a request by both leagues for a temporary injunction to prevent the umpires from striking when the 10-day restraining order expires next Monday.

After three hours of testimony, McGlynn recessed the hearing until 9:30 a.m. today, when seven NL umpires were expected to testify.

The umpires' presence at the hearings Wednesday forced both leagues to cut officiating crews at some night games from four to three.

The National Labor Relations Board also has been asked to force the leagues to reopen the umpires' contract. MacPhail told McGlynn the leagues would comply if so ordered by the NLRB.

The umpires maintain that their contract, signed by their former attorney John Cifeli, is not binding because he did not possess power of attorney and because the pact did not address several points.

The agreement was signed in March 1977. Within a year, the umpires voted to fire Cifeli and hired Richie Phillips, a Philadelphia attorney who also represents National Basketball Association officials.

AFC West Wearing New Paint In '78

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Everything came up orange in the American Football Conference last season when the Denver Broncos won the first championship in the franchise's 18-year history.

Remember the Orange Crush defense and quarterback Craig Morton's magic? Oakland certainly did and also saw both the defense and Morton get peeled by Dallas in the Super Bowl. Now the Raiders are planning on a new paint job for the conference this season with the primary colors to be silver and black — Oakland silver and black, that is.

In the Central Division, Cincinnati is still trying to figure out how it managed to blow the division title to Pittsburgh a year ago and planning its revenge in 1978, while Houston plots to overtake both powerhouses.

Meanwhile, Miami is busy with mini calculators and other devices, trying to avoid the mathematical tangle that gave the AFC East title to Baltimore a year ago. The Dolphins figure to rectify that problem this season.

This is the way the standings should look, notwithstanding injuries, upsets and other mysteries of the 16-game season.

WEST DIVISION
Oakland Raiders
Denver Broncos
San Diego Chargers
Seattle Seahawks
Kansas City Chiefs

CENTRAL DIVISION
Houston Oilers
Pittsburgh Steelers
Cincinnati Bengals
Cleveland Browns

EAST DIVISION
Miami Dolphins
Baltimore Colts
New England Patriots
New York Jets
Buffalo Bills

Regaining its top spot in the West Division and the Conference championship will be no easy task for Oakland. The club begins the season by playing four of its first five games on the road and finishes it against three of the league's stronger clubs, Denver, Miami and Minnesota. But the Raiders will find a way, so help them Al Davis.

Oakland's personnel includes a devastating offensive line anchored by Art Shell and Gene Upshaw, an attack piloted by quarterback Ken Stabler and running backs Mark van Eeghen and Clarence Davis and a 3-4 defense that permitted fewer first downs (204) than any other AFC team.

Oakland's chief title competition should come from defending champion Denver, which rode the Orange Crush enthusiasm to the Super Bowl a year ago. The Crush referred to Denver's defense, which surrendered only 148 points, lowest in the conference last year, and tough cookies like Lyle Alzado, Randy Gradishar, Tom Jackson, Bill Thompson and Louis Wright, all Pro Bowl selections.

The rest of the West figures to be a scramble between San Diego, still trying to crack .500, Seattle, improving its expansion club, and Kansas City, rebuilding under new coach Marv Levy. The Chargers improved their offensive line with the acquisition of Ed White from Minnesota but the price (running back Rickey Young) was high. And then, San Diego came up with Lydell Mitchell to take care of the ball carrying Young used to do. Seattle added place kicker Efen Herrera, who scored 93 points for Dallas' Super Bowl champions.

In the Central race, the Oilers are eyeing a move up the standings ladder, hoping that Heisman Trophy winner Earl Campbell, the No. 1 draft choice, can do for them what Tony Dorsett did for Dallas a year ago. Houston also picked up wide receiver Richard Caster in a trade with the New York Jets to beef up its passing attack, which is directed by Dan Pastorini.

Cincinnati, which somehow managed to miss the playoffs on the final weekend of the last two seasons, may be out of it earlier this time. The Bengals have to replace tight end Bob Trumpy and safety Tommy Casanova, both of whom retired, and defensive standouts Lemar Parrish and Coy Bacon, both traded away in the off-season. Pittsburgh seems past its peak and has begun a face lift with the trades of Super Bowl veterans like center Jim Clack (to the New York Giants), tackle Ernie Holmes (to Tampa Bay), wide receiver Frank Lewis (to Buffalo) and defensive backs Glen Edwards (to San Diego). Cleveland, under new coach Sam Rutigliano, hopes for progress but being stuck in a tough division makes that difficult.

In the East, Miami and Baltimore figure to battle it out again for the top spot with quarterbacks Bob Griese of the Dolphins and Bert Jones of the Colts, the key men. Miami has added running depth with the acquisition of Del Williams from San Francisco and the Dolphins depend on a young, tough defense. Baltimore must replace the departed Mitchell, who was the club's alltime leading rusher. No. 1 draft choice Reese McCall inherits the tight end job with Raymond Chester traded to Oakland for Mike Siani.

New England hopes wide receiver Harold Jackson, obtained from Los Angeles, can replace injured Darryl Stingley and help keep the Patriots in the chase. New York and Buffalo will be watching the development of top drafts — tackle Chris Ward for the Jets and running back Terry Miller for the Bills.

Gimmick Trade Leaves Mann With Raiders

By TOM CANAVAN
AP Sports Writer

The National Football League regular season doesn't open until this weekend, but the Oakland Raiders are already playing games — and winning.

Witness the Errol Mann affair.

Mann, the NFL's leading scorer last season, was traded to the Buffalo Bills by the Raiders Monday in return for "past considerations," apparently leaving Oakland without a kicker for Sunday's opener against the Broncos in Denver.

Then strange things started happening.

Mann refused to report to the Bills, saying he wanted to stay on the West Coast. Buffalo responded by releasing the 11-year veteran.

And do you know where Mann will be playing Sunday?

You're right if you said in Denver with the Raiders.

"We were committed to Errol all along," a Raider spokesman said Wednesday, adding that Mann would be back in the Oakland camp today.

The "trade" of Mann, linebacker Randy McClanahan and wide receiver Mike Levenseller was just an Oakland gimmick so the Bills could keep Mann safely through the cutdown to a 43-player limit and then return him to the Raiders when the limit increased to 45 players.

Levenseller and McClanahan will stay with the Bills, who have now made good on whatever "past considerations" they owed the Raiders.

Kickers and kickoffs also made the news in Dallas and Cleveland and other NFL cities.

The Cowboys signed Rafael Septien as their new kicker while the Browns released their No. 1 punter last season, Greg Coleman.

Meanwhile, it was announced that television coverage on the installation of Pope John Paul I at ceremonies in Rome Sunday may result in delayed kickoffs or the pre-emption of some NFL games on TV.

The new pontiff is to be installed in ceremonies that reportedly will start about noon EDT. The NFL has nine games scheduled to start at 1 p.m. EDT and all nine will be televised by either NBC or CBS.

A spokesman for CBS said Wednesday the network plans to carry Pope John Paul's installation and "it's almost certain some pro football will be pre-empted."

An NBC publicist said the network has not decided if it will cover the pope.

The NFL announced it did not think it would change its starting times but will continue to evaluate the situation. If it appears the papal installation ceremony will last more than a hour, the kickoff times may be changed.

Rose Is On Bench

CINCINNATI (AP) — Pete Rose, sitting out two games at the request of Manager Sparky Anderson to lessen his tension, appears all the more determined to continue his assault on batting records.

Anderson said Tuesday he had decided to rest the veteran Cincinnati third baseman, who had only one hit in 22 bats during the Reds' current plunge that has seen them drop to 7½ games off the pace in the National League West.

Rose, talking during a rain delay in Wednesday night's game with the Pittsburgh Pirates, said he wants to make it clear that he was not being benched.

"Sparky and I talked Sunday. He asked me which two games I wanted to take off. We had first talked about Tuesday night's game but it would have put too much pressure on (replacement) Ray Knight" batting against Bert Blyleven.

"We talked about it again and I thought it would be better for me to sit out here and the first game in St. Louis. Knight batted against Jim Rooker (of Pittsburgh) before and Silvio Martinez (St. Louis) in the minors. It's a better opportunity for Knight," Rose said.

FARMVILLE CENTRAL WILL this season be seeking to continue a trend the Jaguars started a couple of years ago: winning Eastern Carolina Conference football championships.

The Jags have won the ECC title for the past two seasons, and in convincing fashion. Both years Farmville went undefeated in the league and had a great many runaway victories. Counting two victories from the end of the 1975 season, the team has 16 consecutive wins against ECC foes.

Right now, there's no reason to believe the team will let up, either. The Jaguars lost only four starters off of last year's team due to graduation. Two of them were linemen, Len Hunt and Woody Edwards, one was a receiver, Rufus Mayo, and the other a defensive back, Scott Evans.

Returning this season are such notables as the ECC's leading passer last year, Donald Freeman, running back Donald Reid, a top rusher and scorer, and his twin brother, Ronald Reid, a devastating linebacker. Walter Blow, another leading rusher in the ECC last season, has been converted from running back to offensive lineman.

Freeman, a talented signal-caller, has improved his passing arm, according to head coach Gene Brewer. At 6-1, 163, the senior quarterback could be a top college prospect. He runs the Jaguar offense extremely well. James Tyson, the third-leading pass catcher in the ECC last season, will be one of Freeman's main targets. He will operate from the split end position. Other experienced receivers returning from last year's team include tight ends Jeff Tyson and Tony Eason, along with slotback Allen Moore.

The two Reids will anchor the team's defense. Both play linebacker and Brewer said the Jaguar defense is more or less built around them. The hard-hitting pair were terrors to opposing running backs last season and should be the same this year.

THE JAGUARS ARE obviously the team to beat, but there will be some challengers. Ayden-Grifton, which has lost only two ECC games in the past two seasons, is hoping to finally knock the Jags off this year.

Experienced quarterback David Smith will direct the Charger offense. He passed for over 900 yards last year, despite three games played in the rain.

But the team has little experience at the running back spots, and the loss of big lineman Mike Teachey will be a blow to the team's running game.

D. H. Conley won its first game of the season last Friday night, a 9-6 win over East Carteret. The Vikings also have an experienced field general, Jeff Allen, and depth, but no experience in the backfield.

North Pitt will be an improved team, most observers agree, but time will tell if they can provide any threat to the perennial powers in the conference.

Greene Central was looking forward to stellar running back James Best's senior season. Best was by far the leading rusher in the conference last season with over 1,000 yards. But he failed to report to practice this season and that has put a big damper on the Rams' plans.

North Lenoir is another team that could surprise some folks this season. But the team to watch is Farmville Central, which went to the Eastern 3-A finals two years ago and got to the second round of the playoffs last year. The Jags are on the prowl for another ECC championship and another shot at the state title.

Guidry Wins 19th Game, But Suffers Injury To His Ankle

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

Ron Guidry gave up eight hits — but it was the final one that hurt the talented New York Yankee left-hander the most.

The major leagues' winningest pitcher was touched for just seven base hits and he ran his record to 19-2 Wednesday night as the Yankees downed the Baltimore Orioles 5-4.

But Guidry had to leave the game after the eighth hit — a blow to the ankle when the Orioles' Ken Singleton accidentally let the bat slip out of his hands in the seventh inning.

"There's nothing much you can do to get out of the way," said New York Manager Bob Lemon, a Hall of Fame pitcher. "It's just a reflex action."

Singleton yelled a warning to Guidry when he lost control of the bat and was the first player to reach the mound to aid the fallen pitcher.

"I don't have good grip strength batting right-handed, especially on pitches away," said Singleton, a switch-hitter who is still recovering from an off-season operation on his right elbow.

Guidry, hit on the inside of his left ankle was taken to a hospital where X-rays showed no fractures. The Yankees said he suffered a bruised ankle and it was not known if he would miss his next scheduled pitching assignment.

"I think he's had trouble with that ankle before," said Lemon. "He has thin ankles. I think it scared him at the moment, more than anything else. It scared everybody. When he got up and walked, we all felt better."

In other AL games Wednesday, Boston and Toronto split a double-header, the Red Sox winning the opener 2-1 and Toronto taking the nightcap 7-6; Kansas City clobbered the Chicago White Sox 12-0 and Milwaukee at Cleveland was rained out.

Cliff Johnson's run-scoring single in the seventh boosted the Yankees to victory.

The game matched the two winningest pitchers in the major leagues, but neither Guidry nor Mike Flanagan, Baltimore's 17-game winner, was sharp.

Guidry, who had allowed only five earned runs in his last 6823 innings and had not given up a home run since Aug. 4, yielded a two-run homer by Doug DeCinces and a solo shot by Rick Dempsey.

"It didn't turn out to be the pitchers' duel we'd expected," Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver said.

Red Sox 2-6, Blue Jays 1-7
Bob Bailor's eighth-inning double, his fourth hit of the game, drove in two runs and offset Jim Rice's slugging show to boost Toronto to a victory in the nightcap and a split of its doubleheader with Boston. Rice had two home runs, his 35th and 36th of the season, and a double in the losing cause.

Boston won the first game 2-1 as right-hander Dennis Eckersley pitched a five-hitter for his 16th victory.

Royals 12, White Sox 0
Darrell Porter drove in four runs and Pete LaCock chased home three to back Larry Gura's five-hit pitching and give Kansas City its romp over Chicago. The triumph was Kansas City's third in four games and increased the Royals' margin to two games over idle California in the American League West.

Porter hit three singles, a sacrifice fly and his 14th home run of the season. LaCock slammed a double and three singles.

Santa Fe Railroad Still Rolling, Showing Profits

By STEVEN R. REED
DALLAS (UPI) — At $1 million per mile, the nation's second largest railroad doesn't lay as much track as it did when herds of buffalo grazed on the right of way of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe line.

But, as a less-romantic corporate entity in the sprawling Santa Fe Industries, it makes a lot more money — $79 million net last year with a better performance forecast for 1978 by new President Larry Cena.

"Our (railroad) forefathers were very kind by putting us into the particular geography we serve," Cena, 56, said of Santa Fe's 12,300 miles of track reaching from Chicago to the Gulf Coast and from the Mississippi River to the Golden Gate.

To Americans who think all railroads are in financial trouble, can't meet schedules, break down regularly, tie up highway crossings, are antiquated and destined for the scrapheap, Cena says it simply isn't so.

There is, for example, the expenditure by Santa Fe of $185 million announced this month to purchase new diesel locomotives, freight and auto cars and convert other cars to new service.

And, this was no forced, once-in-a-decade upgrading. Last year the railroad spent $102 million for similar equipment and improvements.

"I've been around the property for 30 years," Cena, who became president of the railroad Jan. 1, said in a telephone interview from his Chicago office. "We've not ever been hard pressed for capital investment. It has been the philosophy of Santa Fe to keep its property up. It's a continuing program. The capital approach is just a philosophy we've always followed."

"When you have the numbers, they look pretty impressive — and they are — but inflation has taken a little toll and we now are in the fine position of having increased business. The reason for the last ($185 million) expenditure is we needed to handle the business we have and that we now see (in the future)."

Santa Fe's fastest growing revenue producer is the piggyback movement of trucks and containers — 396,000 were handled in 1977. But the steady income producer and that which has attracted increased attention and controversy is coal hauling.

Cena embraces the philosophy encountered throughout the rail industry: that the transportation of coal from mine to furnace is the God-given domain of the iron horse and proponents of coal slurry pipelines are encroaching where they don't belong.

"We really have had no problems as far as the railroad is concerned in handling coal," Cena said. "It's a fairly simple commodity to handle. We have plenty of capacity on the railroad. We have good tracks, we've spent lots of money and have a fine locomotive fleet. As far as the railroad in particular, we have had no problems in handling coal and anticipate no problem."

"As far as the slurry pipeline, we're very opposed to it. We know we have the capacity (to haul western coal). I personally have a lot of concern with why anyone would want to be tied to slurries. When you have a pipeline from one origin to one destination you're sure not very flexible in handling coal. When it arrives in slurry form (small pieces carried by water) there's lots of problems there."

"Basically, we are obviously opposed to the entire question of the slurry pipeline. We think it should be handled on the railroad."

In 1976 Santa Fe hauled 5.6 million tons of coal and Cena estimated the figure will quadruple by next year. A 100-mile route across New Mexico, for which the railroad currently is considering purchase of right of way, will cost an estimated $1 million per mile, the largest Santa Fe track expansion project since the Depression.

The prospect of increased national coal consumption from western mines has directed criticism at railroads from those who foresee coal-laden trains running endlessly across the prairies, clattering nightlong through small towns long abandoned by carriers who prefer hauling freight to passengers — and who care little about blocking crossings for hours.

Cena says such criticism is "a bunch of poppycock from the coal slurry people."

"The fact is, coal trains move. There's no reason for them to stop and block a city or a community. They continue to move."

"We have 12,000 miles of railroad. Every 24 hours into this system we put 500 trains. Let's say we're fortunate enough to have an additional 50 trains per day, a 10 percent increase. There's no logic to say a 10 percent increase of coal trains would cause crossing problems. They go in an orderly fashion. It only takes a couple of minutes to clear when you're running."

"We've had a 25 percent increase in intermodal (piggyback) and I've never heard anybody say it was causing any problems in any isolated towns. In fact, they're very happy and it has caused a heck of a lot of people to be employed."

As an example, Cena cited the 1,000-mile route which annually carries 1 million tons of coal from York Canyon, N.M., to a Kaiser Industries plant in Fontana, Calif. Residents of communities along the route see two trains — one full and one empty — every four days. "Incidentally, never once in 11 years have we received a complaint of a crossing being blocked by that or any other train other than one in trouble."

Despite competition generated by truck lines and merged railroads, Santa Fe — second in the industry in net income to Union Pacific — probably will become more profitable without merging for reasons which Cena tends to oversimplify.

"Our basic philosophy on merging is that you do not merge unless it is a profitable situation for the stockholder. You don't merge because it happens to be the popular thing to talk about or to overcome a specific problem. The politicians seem to think the way to overcome the deficiency of a bankrupt railroad is to cause it to merge with a profitable railroad."

So, how will the railroad handle the competition?

"By selling one thing — good service," Cena said. "We have fast schedules. We're very service oriented and we sell like crazy. The customers love us for it."

The Santa Fe doesn't go east of Chicago, but Cena boasts manufacturers truck goods from New York, Cincinnati, Detroit — "from any place you can think of" — to make connections.

"Why would a guy drive from New York to Chicago and get on Santa Fe? The customer wants No. 1 dependability. Transportation is every bit as important to him as us."

Union President Proclaims He's Avowed Socialist

By MIKE FEINSILBER
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — Everyone knows Americans instinctively accept free enterprise. Oh, a few radicals advocate replacing capitalism, but they are on the fringe — voices crying in the dark.
 So what can one make of William Wimpinger? He is president of the International Association of Machinists, which has three quarters of a million members. He is not on the fringe.
 And he calls himself a socialist.
 "Nobody ever told me it was a dirty word," he says gruffly.

 Nor is Wimpinger your ordinary labor leader in other respects.
 He's one of the few to call for the out-to-pasturization of that grand old symbol, the 83-year-old George Meany, who "should have packed it in when he was about 75."
 Wimpinger advocates cutting defense spending, even though jobs held by IAM members would be eliminated, and share-the-wealth tax increases that would soak the rich but also hit the wallets of union workers in $20,000-plus brackets.

 "I could pay more taxes," he reasons. "In Sweden and other socialist countries, people carry tax burdens of 45-50 percent. So what? If their standard of living is better than ours, why are we throwing rocks?"
 Wimpinger is 53, burly, with rimless glasses and heavy hands and a voice that goes alto in anger when he talks about labor's frustrations.
 Because of his hard-to-pronounce name, everyone calls him "Wimp" or "Wimpy."
 His father, who worked for the Cleveland Plain-Dealer, was called "Winnie." He taught "Wimp" to appreciate unionism.

 "All during the Depression, I ate when other kids didn't because my old man was a union printer," he says.
 He dropped out of a technical high school to join the Navy in World War II. With the war over, he took a job as an auto mechanic. He still finds relaxation fixing the family cars.
 At a Buick dealership, he beeced so often the shop steward said that if he knew so much about running things he should become the steward.

 He became the steward, then went to work as a fulltime union organizer and came to IAM headquarters in Washington in 1955.
 A year ago, after 10 years as IAM vice president, he was elected the $59,500-a-year president of the union, the nation's seventh largest. Last winter, with Meany's blessing, he was installed on the AFL-CIO executive council.
 To some he represents the new wave in unionism — a potential challenger to Meany or Meany's heir apparent and to the AFL-CIO's midstream policies.

 To some, he sounds like Howard Beale in the movie "Network" who took up shouting, "I'm mad as hell and I'm not going to take it any more!"
 He turns uncharacteristically coy when asked about challenging Meany: "I never say no," he says. "but I have no current design to do it."
 He says he couldn't beat Meany: fellow union leaders see him as "too dangerous."
 He charges Meany cannot win respect from young workers and is out of touch with the rank and file.

 Wimpinger says he is on the road 70 percent of the time and, unlike Meany, drops in unannounced at union meetings. He sits listening in a back row, he says, until "somebody says, 'Who's that SOB in a suit?'"
 For all his talk, Wimpinger did nothing to stop the last AFL-CIO convention from reelecting Meany by acclamation.
 He says under Meany the labor movement abdicated leadership in not making common cause with the blacks.

the women's movement, the Vietnam peaceniks, the environmentalists and consumerists.
 The head of the AFL-CIO should be the second most powerful man in America, he says: if labor had linked up with other elements for reform, the coalition would be running the country.
 Even though IAM members make warplanes, Wimpinger opposes higher defense spending and opposed the sale of jets to Saudi Arabia.
 He says displaced IAM workers could instead make things society needs — mass transit and solar energy systems, for example.
 Wimpinger says he and officials of the United Auto Workers, a powerful and liberal union which is outside the AFL-CIO, informally talk merger prospects from time to time. He'd welcome a merger, he says, even though it would leave him a junior partner.
 Wimpinger's socialism is of the homespun, seat-of-the-pants sort, full of ad hoc solutions he thinks up while shaving. He is no doctrinaire, textbook socialist.
 He thinks true competition no longer exists and he advocates nationalizing industry that tampers with the system.
 "Nationalize anybody who won't compete," he says. "If U.S. Steel and Bethlehem Steel price fix, I'd start United States Government Steel."
 He expands: "We've got to get over the notion that you sacrifice the welfare of people on the altar of the needs of a free enterprise system, especially when the damn system doesn't exist. The taproot of the system is supposed to be what? Free enterprise."
 "Where the hell is it? In every major product line in this country today — from oatmeal to lightbulbs, steel, tin, aluminum, cereal, cardboard boxes — over 50 percent of the product is controlled by four or fewer firms.
 "If I am in charge of one of the components of any major industry in this country today, I only have to make three phone calls to rig the price. We're being systematically screwed."

Shrub Again A Rubber-Source

WASHINGTON (AP) — An obscure desert shrub called guayule is bouncing back as a valuable source of rubber, according to the National Geographic Society.
 After World War II, the kneehigh bush with silver-gray leaves fell into decline. But renewed interest in the plant has been kindled because the steady demand for rubber has put increasing pressure on production.
 A worldwide shortage is predicted by 1985, and rubber prices are expected to soar.
 Guayule is a plant that grows wild in parts of Texas and Mexico's Chihuahuan desert. It produces a material with physical properties virtually identical to those of natural rubber, the National Geographic said.
 The big rubber companies are keeping close track of guayule developments, with Goodyear making small testplantings of the bush in Arizona.

CHIP Co-Star Shuns Movies About Vietnam War

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — A few Vietnam War movies are at large these days. But Larry Wilcox, the young co-star of NBC's "CHiPs," has no great desire to see them. He saw 13 months of the real thing.

He was a Marine artilleryman, did part of his Vietnam tour as a forward observer in a rifle company in the war's class of '67-68. Home was Con Thien, a much-shelled outpost near the Demilitarized Zone.

"Yeah, got to hear the noise," he said with a shrug and a grin. Unlike some vets, he doesn't like to tell war stories. He did so only because a visitor who'd been in Vietnam asked him about it.

"We were always in the bush, probably the northernmost outfit in Vietnam except for some recon outfits across the DMZ," said Larry, who never was wounded in the war. Miraculous, some would say.

"No, I'd say I got in the hole faster," he says. "A lot of my buddies got hit, killed. Maybe I just lucked out."

Wilcox, the clean-cut kid in those Union 76 gas ads and costar of a new NBC movie, "Raid on Coffeyville," was born in San Diego, raised in Rawlins, Wyo. He became a Marine for an odd reason.

He wanted to avoid the Army. He'd studied drama at Wyoming University and Pierce College here, then, after a death in the family, was back home working in Wyoming.

when he got a draft notice. It prompted Wilcox, whose brother and uncle had been Marines, to immediately sign up for three years in the Marine Reserves.

He spoke some French, he said, and hoped he'd wind up after boot camp guarding a quiet U.S. Embassy. But papers assigning him to language school went astray, as often happens to papers in the service.

"The next thing I knew, I was in Da Nang. I'd just finished reading an article in Life magazine about Con Thien, the hellhole of Vietnam, always bombarded with artillery."

"I asked where I am going. Guy says, 'Con Thien, ever hear of it?' And I go, 'Ohhhhhh, me,'" he said, laughing about it now.

As fate would have it, when he became a retired Marine after Vietnam, his first acting job was in a commercial. For the Air Force.

After that, said the soft-spoken actor, he did 20 more commercials, two years in "Lassie" and a score of TV movies and series roles before landing "CHiPs" last season. He credits his Marine tour with helping his post-war efforts to get acting jobs. After boot camp and Vietnam, nothing here scares him.

Wilcox, who lives in suburban Thousand Oaks with his wife, Judy, and their two kids, now wants to try writing and directing, and maybe do both some day instead of act. It's more fun, he says.

But this veteran of Vietnam has written no script about that war and doesn't plan to.

"No, I don't," Larry Wilcox said gently. "Mainly it's because I don't want to get into all the personal things I knew. To me, it was something that strengthened my character, but I don't want to wallow in it."

Chapel Hill Police Curb Town's Rowdy Nightlife

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Nightlifers in this university town better watch their moves in the future. Police say they plan to clamp down on nightlife because things have just gotten too rowdy.

"On Sept. 1, we're starting a special enforcement program to control all the littering, vandalism, public drunkenness, disorderly conduct, assaults and affrays that have been increasing lately," said Herman Stone, chief of police in the town that is home of the University of North Carolina. Stone said the enforcement drive would cover the entire business district. He said a special squad of policemen, including officers on foot and in cars, in plain clothes and in uniform will patrol the area.

The crackdown is the result of complaints from citizens and downtown merchants and what the officers themselves have seen.

Police Capt. Arnold Gold said, "We're not just trying to fill the jails up, but we are definitely going after the troublemakers."

And officers are seeking more vigorous punishment of those arrested and convicted as a result of the crackdown.

Capt. Howard Pendergraph said managers of bars are being told of the drive and warned that they would be arrested if they are caught selling alcohol to persons under 18 years old. He said police will be checking youths' identification.

But Pendergraph said bar managers will be happy to see one weekend ritual eliminated.

"People go into grocery stores and buy cheaper beer, then sit outside bars to drink it. They block the streets so people can't pass by, then litter the street with cans and bottles," he said.

On Sunday mornings, workers at the University Methodist Church and University Baptist Church have to pick up beer cans and other debris from Saturday night's revelry before they can hold services, Pendergraph said.

North-South bid well to reach this excellent slam. The key bid was North's raise to four hearts on a doubleton honor. This was perfectly safe, for South had shown a six-card suit with his heart rebid. After discovering that a king was missing, South wisely steered the final contract into no trump, where he rated to have more flexibility in the play.

Record Industry Sales Growing

NEW YORK (AP) — The recording industry in the United States experienced an increase in 1977 over the previous year by 28 percent in dollar sales and 18 percent in unit sales, according to the Recording Industry Association of America.

The greatest percentage increase was registered by prerecorded tape cassettes which rose to 36.9 million in unit sales in 1977 from 21.8 million in 1976, an increase of 69.3 percent.

The only phase of the business which didn't jump was 45 rpm records, called singles, which remained even with 1976, at 190 million units.

Football Game Traffic Pattern Is Basically Same

FOOTBALL TRAFFIC...Football fans driving to ECU home games in Ficklen Stadium should follow the traffic pattern outlined in the map above. Motorists should be aware that only Pirates Club traffic will be allowed to turn onto Berkley Road off 14th Street. Access for other fans to the north side parking area will be off Charles Street.

Police Chief Glenn Cannon said today that traffic going to and from East Carolina University home football games will be routed into and out of Ficklen Stadium parking areas basically the same this year as in the past, with the exception of access to the stadium from Berkley Road.

Cannon explained that this year, the only traffic that will be allowed to turn off 14th Street onto W. Berkley Road will be Pirates Club members who will have parking available on the south side of Ficklen and on part of the north side lot.

Access to the other half of the north lot will be gained off of Charles Street through Ficklen Drive, the chief explained.

Members of the Greenville Police Department and North Carolina State Highway Patrol will be stationed at strategic points in the area of the stadium, it was noted, and parking will again be handled by ECU policemen and employees of a private security service hired by the university.

Cannon said that in the event of rain, the north parking lot at the stadium will not be used. If it rains, he said, vehicles will be directed to other parking facilities in the area of the stadium and not allowed to park in the north lot.

He said that cars parked in no parking zones will be towed at the owner's expense and he mentioned that vehicles parked in restricted areas hamper the flow of traffic and create hazardous conditions for other motorists.

Cannon pointed out that 14th Street from Elm to Charles Streets will be closed to thru traffic from 6 p.m. until game time for night contests and from about 12:30 p.m. until game time for day games. The street will also be closed to thru traffic after each game until the stadium traffic has cleared.

Cannon cautioned motorists to drive carefully and observe all traffic rules.

He said that drivers should be alert and avoid "tailgating" in the heavy traffic.

Most accidents in heavy traffic, Cannon said, are rear-end collisions caused by drivers following the car ahead too closely.

The police official urged motorists to be courteous and not force the right of way, but instead, yield to other motorists.

The Farmville market sold 636,007 pounds for $900,194, an average of $141.54. Season totals are 11,358,373 pounds for $14,891,658, an average of $131.11, as compared with $108.62 last year.

Gird For Long Bargaining Talks

By OWEN ULLMANN AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the threat of a mail strike still hanging over the nation, the Postal Service and three unions are girding for a 15-day bargaining session starting Friday aiming at a settlement of their prolonged contract dispute.

Negotiators for both sides face a deadline of 10 a.m. EDT Sept. 16 for removing their differences over terms of the contract, the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service said on Wednesday.

That timetable is part of a compromise plan proposed by federal mediators to avert threatened illegal walkouts that could involve a half-million postal workers.

Last week, the rank and file of all three unions rejected a proposed contract after four months of negotiations. Union leaders threatened to call strikes unless the Postal Service agreed to return to the bargaining table to improve its wage offer.

The wage package, averaging up to 6.5 percent in annual pay raises over the next three years, was assailed by local union leaders as inadequate.

The Postal Service initially refused to renegotiate, choosing instead to submit the dispute to binding arbitration as provided by law. Management also threatened to fire anyone who participates in a strike.

The two sides agreed to the compromise procedure just hours before a strike was to begin at midnight Monday.

Although the new round of talks delays a strike for at least 15 days, it does not avert the threat of a widespread walkout altogether, because the unions say an unsatisfactory improvement in contract terms could provoke a strike.

Under the compromise, the negotiators will meet with special mediator James J. Healy of Harvard University. If a new settlement is reached, it must be resubmitted to workers for their ratification. But any unresolved issues as of Sept. 16 will be settled by Healy as an arbitrator.

Both sides reportedly have agreed to limit their talks to two key issues: wages and a no-layoff clause that was in the previous pact. There was speculation that the unions might be willing to compromise on no layoffs in exchange for more money.

Career In Fighting Corporate Thievery

By EDWARD CRAIG
UPI BUSINESS WRITER
NEW YORK (UPI) — "There's so much corporate thievery around that I could spend two lifetimes at my job and it would be just as rampant," says Jules Kroll.

A husky, dark-haired six-footer, Kroll runs a firm in his own name which corporations summon when they know, or even suspect, someone is dipping his hand in the till.

To dig out evidence, he employs lawyers, accountants, and others familiar with the ways corporations are ripped off internally.

While neither he nor the others regard themselves as white knights, Kroll makes a prime requisite for the job "a conviction that what we are doing here is important."

"If we don't feel that way, we should get into some other line of work," he says.

The ruggedly handsome Kroll, 37, wishes legislators and other officials would give higher priority to fighting white collar crime.

Texas and Mississippi levy the severest penalties for commercial bribery — maximum 10-year prison terms — but most others impose "slap on the wrist" fines. Twenty-four states don't even classify it as a crime.

This type of lawbreaking "siphons off more money than all the crimes of violence and crimes against property put together," he says. It grosses possibly up to $210 billion annually. Chances of getting caught are one in 10; of getting convicted, one in 100.

"How can we expect to impress our citizenry with the serious problem we have in white collar crime when our courts persist in considering it no more troublesome than a schoolboy prank?"

Contrary to a common belief, white collar thieves are not generally motivated by greed, Kroll says.

"Many times it's revenge

...someone taking it out on the company because a higher-up gave him a reaming," Kroll says.

He recalls one client, a Fortune 500 company he declines to identify further, who had a buyer of advertising material passed over for a vice presidency he thought he deserved. So he took kickbacks equal to what he would have received in increased compensation as a vice president.

"This man was psychologically injured and no longer was as willing to do his job. So he took it out on the company."

When Kroll is called in to root out corporate evildoers, he doesn't always find the corporation champing at the bit to get to the bottom of things.

"Some firms want us to give the appearance that something is being done," he says. "Others want to inspect the evidence, get some assurance there'll be a minimum amount of disruption to the business."

A third group wants everything out in the open, which is the only basis which will persuade him to take a job. "Unless we can let the chips fall where they may, we're not the ones for that firm," he says.

Any firm with the faintest suspicion something is wrong ought to do something about it immediately, Kroll says.

"The longer a company waits the lesser the chance is of detecting it," he says. The corporate criminal, it seems, becomes more clever and sophisticated about covering up his tracks.

Organized crime plays almost no part in this area, he says. Most wrongdoing is done by individuals.

He senses "an increased recognition" in society that something must be done about crime in general and feels that those "who are beating the drums about our moral decadence may be wrong."

"Watergate had something to do with this attitude, I'm sure," he says.

As preparation for his career — though not deliberately so — Kroll spent some time as an assistant under Frank Hogan, former New York County district attorney, now deceased. He worked for the late U.S. Senator Robert Kennedy of New York and once ran unsuccessfully for city councilman.

"My wife Lynn still gives thanks today that I'm not in politics," he smiles.

The Krolls and their four children — the latest, a boy, born in June — live in suburban Westchester County. A sister, Susan, works in public relations; another sister, Nancy, is with an ad agency; a brother, Daniel, is a college student.

Kroll is a graduate of Cornell University (1963) and Georgetown Law Center (1966). He became a consultant after a three-year timeout running a family printing business because his father was ill.

At one time he wanted to be either a baseball player or a forest ranger, and as a catcher on the Cornell baseball team was given a bonus by the Milwaukee Braves on graduation. He didn't pursue baseball.

"I just couldn't hit the curve ball," he says.

Men's Day Will Be Observed

Annual men's day will be observed Sunday at 11 a.m. at Allen Chapel F.W.B. Church.

A board meeting will be held by Department No. 1 Friday night. The Rev. Jasper L. Tyson, pastor, invites the public to attend.

Observing First Anniversary

The first anniversary of Oak Grove Church will be held Sunday at 2 p.m.

Groups appearing for the gospel program include True Light Singers of Elm City, Melody Boys of Simpson, Gospel Travelers of Greenville, Samuel Grove Choir of Wilson, Golden Tones Tripp Singers of Richlands.

A service will begin at 7 p.m. with the Evening Travelers of Tarboro.

Chairman Of Trustees

GLORIETA, N. M. — Norman A. Wiggins, president of Campbell College, was elected chairman of the board of trustees of the Sunday School Board of the Southern Baptist Convention at the organization's annual summer meeting.

Ten new trustees joined the 72 other members of the board at the semi-annual meeting.

First School Day Shouldn't Surprise

MENLO PARK, Calif. (UPI) — The golden rule for sending children to school for the first time is to make sure they know what to expect, says a nationally recognized authority on early childhood education.

"Children often have a very real fear that their mothers won't be coming back to pick them up after their first day of school," says Edith M. Dowley, professor emerita of psychology and education at Stanford University and former director of the university's Bing Nursery School.

Miss Dowley says parents should "explain to the child the relationship between the home and the school."

"Tell him that school is part of the neighborhood and a predictable part of life. Tell him what you will be doing, tell him where you will be, so he can visualize your day and get a sense of the time element involved."

"Tell him what he will be doing so he will understand the amount of time involved for him."

She suggests taking children to school beforehand, and identifying landmarks along the way so they don't get the feeling they are being sent some place far away.

"It's important to introduce the child to the teacher," she says. "The parent should smile and look comfortable with the teacher, so that the child will have someone to model himself after. The parent and teacher should discuss such topics as where the child should sit, the location of the bathroom, and where coats should be hung."

Now a special consultant to Hallmark Cards, Miss Dowley reviews the company's children's books.

Her other tips for the first day of school:

—A child will feel more secure in a new neighborhood if he has his name, address and telephone number in his pocket. If one or both parents work, the child would get additional comfort from having their business phone numbers, too.

—Wearing a T-shirt or jacket with the child's name on it also gives a positive feeling.

—If the teacher permits, it also helps to bring a favorite book or toy from home. "Mothers should try to learn the names of her child's schoolmates and some of the equipment used," Miss Dowley says. "Often a child doesn't know what to say about school because he doesn't know the right words."

Sometimes children don't want to talk about school simply because they have something else on their minds, she adds. "So don't be too curious."

NOTICE OF SIGNIFICANT ENVIRONMENT

The City of Greenville, North Carolina, proposes to request the US Department of Housing and Urban Development to release federal funds under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, P.L. 93-383 to be used for the following projects:

Project One:
a) Improving Drainage - Kearney Park
b) The project will involve the installation of 54 corrugated metal pipe in an open ditch for 350 feet. The ditch will be filled and two or more drop inlets installed in it to intercept surface water.

c) The project is located in Enumeration Districts 17 and 18. d) Projected costs - $25,000.

Project Two:
a) Improving Drainage - Kearney Park
b) The project proposes installation of a drainage pipe in an open ditch and then filling the ditch from the SE corner of the intersection under the Seaboard Coast Line Railroad tracks east to Pitt Street. A pipe under Pitt Street is too small and will be replaced by a larger pipe.

c) The project is located in Enumeration Districts 29 and 31. d) Projected costs - $25,000.

It has been determined that such projects are of sufficient importance to constitute an action significantly affecting the quality of the human environment, and, accordingly, the City of Greenville has decided not to prepare an Environmental Impact Statement under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (P.L. 91-190).

The reasons for such a decision not to prepare such state were as follows:

Project One
The installation of corrugated drain pipe in the ditch and the subsequent filling will eliminate the hazard of an open ditch in the neighborhood. Breeding grounds for mosquitoes and other insects will be eliminated. The odor from the ditch will be eliminated with its covering. Drop inlets installed at various points along the pipe will drain the area.

Project Two
Installation of drain pipe, filling the ditch and installing drop inlets where needed will improve drainage in the area. Erosion can be checked by the filling of ditches. Filling the ditches will eliminate mosquito breeding. The installation of another pipe under the Seaboard Coast Line track will provide better drainage flow where storm water drainage from Kearney Park and runoff from the new middle school converge. A larger pipe under Pitt Street will adequately handle runoff during heavy rain periods.

An Environmental Review record respecting the within projects has been made by the City of Greenville which documents the environmental review of the projects and more fully sets forth the reasons why such statements are not required. The Environmental Review Records are on file at City Hall and are available for public examination and copying, upon request, at the office of the City Planner, between the hours of 8:00 AM and 5:00 PM during weekdays.

No further review of such projects is proposed to be conducted prior to the request for release of Federal funds.

All interested agencies, groups, and persons disagreeing with this decision are invited to submit written comments for consideration by the City of Greenville to the office of the Mayor, for the reasons why such statements are not required. The Environmental Review Records are on file at City Hall and are available for public examination and copying, upon request, at the office of the City Planner, between the hours of 8:00 AM and 5:00 PM during weekdays.

No further review of such projects is proposed to be conducted prior to the request for release of Federal funds.

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Are you ready for a summer photo news item quiz, hot from my season's mailbag — but with the answers immediately so as to cause no mental strain?

What new super-fast film for slides has just become available for fast-action or low-light situations?

It's the new Kodak Ektachrome 400 film with an ASA speed of 400 but which can be push-processed to double that speed to ASA 800. It is balanced for daylight but can be used in home interiors, for night sports events, stage and wedding photography or anywhere with low illumination.

It is particularly useful where high camera shutter speeds are desirable, for sports, for example, or when photographing active children.

It is available in 20-and 36-exposure 35mm cartridges and in 120 roll film size.

What new pocket camera has become available with a fast f1.9 lens for existing-light shooting but also with built-in electronic flash for all-around versatility?

The new Kodak Ektramax 110 camera, right! It has a shutter speed range from 1-30th second for existing light pictures to 1-350th for action with the new 110 cartridge of Kodacolor 400 film. When using the built-in electronic flash, the shutter is automatically set at 1-100th; a blinking ready-signal flashes in the viewfinder and on the camera back; it recycles in two seconds, and offers 200 flashes from two fresh AAA size batteries.

What simple tool can identify your camera and equipment in case it is lost or stolen?

No doubt about it — the Spiratone Security Engraver. It's a pencil-like, carbide-tipped writing tool which leaves an indelible mark on any hard surface such as steel, aluminum, chrome, glass and plastic. Police recommend that you mark your equipment with your driver's license number and the state of issue. This can be checked through the nation's law enforcement agencies' computers 24 hours a day. Such identification on a camera may deter a thief or it can be used to find you if equipment is lost and recovered.

What photo contests are there for your best summer pictures?

There are two I know of. One is the Kodak International Newspaper Snapshot Awards, a great target for amateurs. However, it's almost deadline time and you must locate one of the sponsoring newspapers in your area. Second, there's the Nikon Photo Contest International with entries accepted through Oct. 31. The contest last year drew entries from 51 countries and awarded 142 prizes. Entries can be prints or slides in either color or black-and-white. Details and entry blanks available by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: NPCI, Box 520, Garden City, N.Y. 11530.

How can you protect your loaded cameras and extra film supply from X-ray fogging at airports?

You can hand-carry them and ask for personal inspection or you can buy X-ray-proof pouches.

A new FilmShield Jumbo pouch measuring 16 x 20 inches has just been made available. It can hold two loaded cameras and a large film supply. It can be included in check-through luggage or can be hand-carried through the screening process. FilmShield also comes in a 6 x 13-inch size. The outer layers are barium-impregnated, puncture-resistant polyester and the middle layer has a lead-foil xray barrier.

What deluxe edition of a photographic book includes an original print and how much would it cost?

This one involves a French connection. "Le Troisieme Angle" by Eva Klasson is a monograph from Addison House in this country which was published originally by Birth Editions in France with the innovative approach of including an original print and selling for $125. The book's appearance here coincided with a 40-print exhibition of Eva Klasson's work at the Neikrug Galleries in New York City. "Le Troisieme Angle" consists of images of her own body. It was first seen in Paris last year at the prestigious Pompidou Centre and in a private gallery.

Can you transfer home movies and slides to videotape cassettes for playing back on one's own television set?

Yes, it has been possible for some time but now it is made easier and more economical than ever.

The entire national chain of Potomat stores now has a transfer service which links photography — yesterday's memories — with what is called tomorrow's communication medium, videotape. It will take regular or Super 8mm home-movie films, either silent or sound, and complete slide shows for transfer on videotape cassettes.

The slides can be shown with intervals of 5, 10 or 15 seconds between slides.

The transfer is made on halfinch tape cassettes for playback in either the Sony Betamax or the Matsushita VHS or VTR (videotape recorder) machine depending on which one the photographer has.

Potomat technicians clean, lubricate and repair movie films and can sometimes improve the color rendition by compensating for original faulty color balancing, while making the transfer.

Sound narration and music also can be added later on videotape cassettes to silent movies and slide shows by plugging a microphone into the audio input jack of a recorder.
