Crawford Convicted, But Free To Leave USSR

By HARRY DUNPHY
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Judge Lev Mironov convicted U.S. businessman Francis J. Crawford today of buying rubles on the black market and gave him the five-year suspended sentence requested by prosecutors. The U.S. Embassy said Crawford is free to leave the country.

There had been speculation he might be held pending the trial of two accused Soviet spies held in the United States and exchanged for them.

Crawford immediately went to the embassy to apply for an exit visa from the Soviet Foreign Ministry. The process usually takes from four to seven days but can be done faster. Crawford said he could leave as early as Friday night. Crawford's three Soviet codefendants also got the sentences recommended by the prosecutor.

Vladimir Kiselev, the admitted ringleader of the black market and currency-manipulating gang Crawford was convicted of dealing with, was sentenced to five years in a labor camp without exile and will have his property confiscated.

His seamstress wife, Ludmila, who admitted helping him, received a five-year suspended sentence and three years probation.

Alla Solovyova, 23, a cashier in a foreign currency store who also admitted selling currency to the Kiselevs, was sentenced to four years in a labor camp with confiscation of her property.

Crawford complained that his sentence was about the same as that of Ludmila Kiselev's, and "that I did nothing."

Crawford said he plans to leave "as soon as possible" but did not disclose his destination. He said he would discuss his further plans with his employer, International Harvester, in Chicago.

Crawford's Soviet lawyer Leonid M. Popov said he felt prosecution evidence "was not sufficient to convict Crawford" and that most of the witnesses were unreliable. He would not comment on whether he thought the verdict was political.

Selection of the jury for the trial of the two Russians was delayed in Newark Tuesday until Sept. 27, after Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko's annual visit to the United States for the opening of the U.N. General Assembly and talks with U.S. officials. There has been no indication how long the trial will last.

"The court considers that all the cases were proved and all the defendants are guilty," Mironov said. "Crawford's guilt was proved without doubt."

Sadat, Begin Are Talking Under Secrecy Shroud

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

CAMP DAVID, Md. (AP) — Anwar Sadat and Menachem Begin are talking face-to-face for the first time since Christmas but President Carter is sealing their words at the Mideast summit in secrecy.

The Egyptian president and Israeli prime minister agreed to meet with Carter this morning for their second joint session in as many days.

Carter brought the two leaders together for nearly two hours Wednesday afternoon on a flagstone patio behind Carter's mountaintop lodge.

But there was no word on any progress. The main sticking points involve control of the Gaza Strip and the West Bank of the Jordan River, lands Israel captured in the 1967 war.

Jody Powell, the White House press secretary and official summit spokesman, told reporters not to expect any substantive announcement until later in the meetings — which could continue for two weeks.

"We are not going to be involved on a daily basis in attempting to characterize or discuss the substance of the meetings," Powell said.

Meanwhile today, two newspapers in Beirut, Lebanon, reported that Syria is proposing to hard-line Arab countries that they enter into defense pacts with the Soviet Union if the United States signs a mutual defense treaty with Israel as a result of the summit.

The papers said Syrian Foreign Minister Abdul Halim Khaddam is making the proposal during a tour of leftist Arab countries. Khaddam flew to Tripoli on Wednesday to see Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy and then to Algeria to confer with President Houari Boumediene.

As Carter arrived Monday, he said the participants "will be almost uniquely isolated from the press and from the outside world."

The president said he hoped the secrecy would remove any need for Sadat or Begin to engage in "political posturing."

After the talks, Carter, Begin and their wives hiked through the 134-acre wooded retreat for more than an hour. Mrs. Begin had arrived early in the afternoon, as had Carter's 28-year-old son, Chip.

Sadat, who grew up on a farm, took a 45-minute drive around the rolling Maryland countryside, dotted with picture postcard farms. An official said Sadat, whose wife is in Paris tending to a sick grandchild, had never seen this part of the United States.

Powell had no comment on the first joint session, but said Carter's meetings with Sadat earlier Wednesday and with Begin on Tuesday were informal.

"The style and tone has been quite informal," Powell said. All three government chiefs were in casual clothes, he said. Official photos of the first joint meeting, however, showed only Carter in sports clothes.

The president's intervention marks the first time an American chief executive has met simultaneously with Israeli and Egyptian chiefs of state in hopes of settling the decades-old conflict in the Mideast.

Little Progress In Trade Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) —

Trade talks between senior U.S. and Japanese trade officials seem to be making little headway, U.S. officials say.

The talks, which began on Tuesday, involve a long-standing dispute over Japanese barriers to U.S. agricultural products.

The Governmental Division of the 1978-79 United Way drive in Pitt County will have co-chairmen, according to campaign chairman Jerry Fulford.

Fulford reported that county Extension personnel Leroy James and Dale Everett Panaro will team this year to coordinate the Governmental Division activities.

James, a native of Hertford County, has served as Extension chairman in Pitt County since March, having assumed the post following the resignation of Ed Yancey.

James began his Extension career as an assistant agricultural agent in Wayne County in 1958 and joined the Pitt County staff as an agent in 1962.

He received his B.S. degree in animal husbandry in 1965 and M.S. degree in agricultural education in 1971 from A & T State University, Greensboro.

House Fails Kill Nuke Carrier Veto

WASHINGTON (AP) —

The House today sustained President Carter's veto of the defense authorization bill, thus scuttling a proposed $2-billion nuclear aircraft carrier he had termed a waste of military dollars.

The vote was 206-191 in favor of upholding the president's veto. A two-thirds vote is necessary to enact a bill over the president's objection, and leaders on both sides of the issue had expected a much closer outcome.

The action sent the overall $37 billion defense authorization bill back to committee for redrafting, this time without the nuclear carrier and possibly with some new funds requested by Carter.

Carter vetoed the $37 billion defense authorization bill featuring the nuclear carrier Aug. 17, describing the carrier as wasteful at the expense of other, more vital defense projects.

Although the chairmen of both the House and Senate Armed Services committees joined the intensive drive to override the president, Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill and other House Democratic leaders stood by Carter and predicted he would be sustained by a narrow margin.

Carter's veto was the fifth of his presidency and the first to draw an attempt to override, which requires a two-thirds vote in both houses.

It was also the first veto of a major defense program in modern history, triggering protests from many that Carter was interfering with the constitutional duty of Congress "to make rules for the government... of the land and naval forces."

House Republican Whip Robert Michel of Illinois declared late Wednesday, "We only regret that the president has allowed political considerations to enter into his veto... and obstruct us in the exercise of our constitutional responsibility."

Employment In Pitt Up 2,830

The civilian labor force in the Greenville Labor Area (Pitt County) was estimated at 45,170 in July, up 2,830 from May according to the Employment Security Commission. Both employment and unemployment increased over the two-month period, with the employment increase resulting from seasonal worker additions in the agricultural sector, and with unemployment increase resulting from temporary layoffs by some firms in early July for plant inventory.

Agricultural employment in Pitt County, following normal seasonal trends, increased by 3,190 persons from May to July.

Total employment in Pitt County is expected to decline substantially by mid-November. This worker decline will result from the seasonal drop in agricultural employment. Tobacco employment should increase over the next two to four months due to the addition of workers by local processing plants. Government employment, which declined with the closing of schools, should increase by mid-November.

Employment in most of the other non-agricultural industry groups is expected to remain fairly stable.

More Pitt County employers are taking advantage of on-the-job training assistance offered to them through the CETA program. Over $150,000 in on-the-job training contracts have been obligated this fiscal year for Pitt County.

More training funds are available through the HIRE-II programs with emphasis on training veterans.

Feminists Run Eating Club In Northampton

By RUTH BAYARD SMITH
Associated Press Writer

NORTHAMPTON, Mass. (AP) — It's a women's club all right, but you won't find anyone at the Common Woman wearing white gloves or planning the upcoming town social.

Although club members have been known to sip tea — albeit an organic blend — the Common Woman is a long way from the female service organizations and ladies' auxiliary groups that have flourished in America over the past 100 years.

This downtown Northampton club is a place for women who are interested in feminism and vegetarianism. So far, about 500 have become members.

"We wanted to provide a space where women could feel comfortable in a feminist atmosphere," said Holly, a former English graduate student and one of the club's founders.

Two years ago the founders knew they wanted to open a restaurant for women. That idea, however, caused some problems.

"We discovered that as a public facility, we could not legally exclude men," Molly, another charter member, explained.

"We could have put a sign on the door asking men not to come in. We could have memorized a rap about 'women's space' and given it to each man who walked in the door."

"But," said Holly, "we didn't want to think of the space as one where men are excluded. Instead, it's one where all women can be included."

The women still regard outsiders with some suspicion — they say news media coverage has focused on their alleged anti-male bias — and they asked that their last names not be used.

Club status has drawbacks. "Because we're non-profit, we can't advertise," commented Holly. "And because we can't advertise, we are limited in the ways we can reach out to women."

The club began in December 1976, after a group of nine women raised $20,000. They taught themselves the restaurant business, built tables and chairs and renovated their modest, two-story wooden building.

From the outset, the women have been committed to what they call "alternative economics." As often as possible, they buy food from cooperatives.

The women say they'll channel any profits back into the business or into other women's projects. The Common Woman now takes in enough for the women to pay themselves "almost a living wage."

The name comes from the poetry of feminist Judy Grahn: "The common woman is common as the best of bread and will rise and will become strong."

Club founders set out to build a restaurant without building a hierarchy. It was a new experience for them — and a disconcerting one for some people with whom they dealt outside the collective.

"During the closing of our property, I watched the bank president looking as if he was crossing a huge intersection without a traffic light," Molly said. "He was nodding at each of us, not knowing who to maintain eye contact with."

None of the original nine is still in the group. The Common Woman is now run by four women, one of whom is Kate, a craftswoman who explained why the collective's membership changes:

"I've been here since February 1977, and I'll probably stay for about another year. When you're involved with something like this, you're involved intensely. It's hard to keep up that kind of energy."

The dining style at the Common Woman is casual. Patrons place their own orders and help clean the tables. Meals are moderately priced and include quiches, omelettes, crepes and other vegetarian dishes.

In an attempt to reach a more traditional type of woman, dinners have been held at the Common Woman for female therapists and scientists. These comparatively elegant affairs have attracted many women who otherwise would never come to the club.

The collective's approach seems radical to some. The results, said Holly, are worth it: "This is women helping women. For me, one of the most exciting things that's happened at Common Woman is that we've all learned skills to pass on to other women."

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

When I first started writing a column, I opened the paper one morning to discover a colleague columnist had died.

At that precise moment, the phone rang and my mother's voice said dryly, "They go in threes, you know."

A month or so later, another one expired and I knew who would be on the phone before I answered it. "That's two," said Mother cheerily.

It was a good year and a half before Mother called one morning and said, "Didn't I tell you?"

"Tell me what."

"They go in threes. Every time a politician, an entertainer, a sports figure, or a writer goes, there's three of 'em. Did you see in the paper where they guy who was a skywriter crashed?"

"Mom! Writing 'OX ROAST SEPT. 1-3' did not make him a columnist."

"It's close enough," she declared, and hung up.

In checking with my friends, it seems we have something in common. They all have mothers who serve as hollow-eyed gypsies when it comes to the Big Three connection. We seem to be dealing with the past four generations who do not let fact and reasoning get in the way of their predictions. On the outside, they look like women who don't really believe that dancing on a grave can cause cavities . . . kissing during a full-moon can make you pregnant . . . or drying your hair with a henna can make you crazy . . . but when pressed to the wall, they will admit that when you go you're going to take two others with you.

Somehow, I'd be more impressed with these soothsayers if there was a time limit put on the trilogy, but the rules of the game are not set up with that kind of sophistication.

Also, the prominence of the three is a little questionable. Following the deaths of Bing Crosby and Elvis Presley, I questioned Mother on the passing of the third one and she said, "He was a singer, but you didn't know him." Since there is obviously no logic and no basis to this old wives' tale, I have no intention of passing it on to my children. I mean if a person can stamp out just one fallacy in his lifetime, the living has been worth it. My daughter shoved a newspaper under my nose a few weeks ago where the headline carried news of the death of the Pope. "Grandma says they go in threes," she mused. Where have I failed?

Don't Let Sub Become Permanent

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: May I comment on the letter from the wife who felt threatened by her husband's secretary when she and a girlfriend became self-appointed cheerleaders at the company's bowling games. (Very few wives attended, so the girls went to give the men moral support.)

That wife should smarten up and realize that if her husband's secretary is taking her place at the bowling alley, she may be cheering him on in other areas, too.

Perhaps the wife had been invited first, but refused because, "We can't afford a sitter" or "Bowling is so boring."

I finally figured out that my husband's secretary saw him as a handsome young executive who would handle every emergency, while I saw him as the guy who never remembered to carry out the garbage. Small wonder that when his ego needed pampering, he turned to her and they had an affair. When I learned about it, the shock opened my eyes, and I realized that the qualities that I loved in him when we were first married were still there, and that a baby-sitter was cheaper than a divorce. We saved our marriage by working out our problems together.

And I learned how important it was for me to attend the company bowling games.

I think that wife should take a good look at her marriage. Perhaps if the secretary's behavior makes her feel insecure, she has a reason to be. Sign me . . .

WISER NOW

DEAR WISER: The moral to that story is: "Don't permit a substitute to fill in too often, lest the substitute become a permanent replacement."

DEAR ABBY: I don't want to disclose my source, but I know for a fact that a certain dental nurse is having an affair and is using her boss's dental office for her rendezvous.

I think she has a lot of nerve taking advantage of her boss's dental quarters in this way, and I'm sure he would have a fit if he knew about it. She has been working for him for quite some time and he trusts her.

Should I tell the dentist?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: When it comes to dentists, the usual advice is to "Open wide." In this case, I say, "Keep your mouth shut."

CONFIDENTIAL TO J.J.: Every liar is a coward. Putting it simply, most people lie because they don't have the courage to tell the truth.

Town's Eighth Bombing Injuries Two; No Clues

By ANNE PERRY
Associated Press Writer
SPEEDWAY, Ind. (AP) — The bomber "has got to be caught," says a friend of the man and woman injured in the eighth explosion to rock this central Indiana community in six days. But police say they have no suspects and know of no motive.

School just four blocks from the Indianapolis Motor Speedway. Carl David DeLong and his wife, Sandy, both 39, were injured as they waited for their son, Steve, to shower after a freshman football game.

The bomb was believed placed in a paper bag and DeLong may have kicked the bag, setting it off, officials said. He was in critical condition today at Wishard Memorial Hospital where doctors said he might lose half his right leg. Mrs. DeLong was in fair condition.

Wednesday night, for the first time, a bomb exploded where people were present, in the parking lot of Speedway High packed tightly in a 12-ounce beverage can wrapped in a towel and a coil, believed to be part of a timer.

The first four explosions came Friday night, starting about 10 p.m., and early Saturday. A car was damaged and plate windows were shattered. One of the Saturday bombs was set outside the high school.

Director Is Appointed

Ms. Terry Jane Crosby has been named executive director for the Coastal Plains Chapter of the National Foundation-March of Dimes.

"I knew something like this was bound to happen," said Marlin Snyder, 37, a friend of DeLong and one of an estimated 200 persons who attended the game. "The bomber has been lucky before tonight and nobody's been hurt. That person has got to be caught."

Two more blasts went off Sunday at a bowling alley, the first again coming at 10 p.m. The seventh exploded about the same time Tuesday night, wrecking the unoccupied car of an off-duty policeman outside an apartment complex.

The appointment of Ms. Crosby, a Shelby native and East Carolina University graduate, was announced by Mrs. Carolyn Craig, chapter chairman.

A group of businessmen prepared to offer a reward today for information about the bomber.

Because no people had been endangered before, police originally theorized the explosions were part of a prank.

Ms. Perri Lynn Morgan will serve as volunteer services coordinator for the Coastal Plains Chapter. Mrs. Craig noted. She, too, is an East Carolina University graduate.

Authorities theorize the bombings are the work of one person.

Agents of the Treasury Department's Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms were called in after the first four bombings, assistant U.S. Attorney Bernard Pylitt said.

The Coastal Plains Chapter-March of Dimes is a merger of 17 counties in the Greenville area, and provides public, professional, and community service programs and materials aimed at the prevention of birth defects.

The device in each case was composed of a six-volt battery, a cooking timer, gunpowder

On Wednesday, the ATF and local police began referring reporters' questions to the office of U.S. Attorney Virginia Dill McCarty, who is assisting in the investigation.

The chapter offices are located at 123 West Third St.

We Enjoy Best Of Rescuers

Our area has every reason to be proud of the Greenville Rescue Squad for the job it does of serving the public day-by-day.

But the superior calibre of the squad is brought sharply into focus with the winning of the world championship in heavy rescue last week.

Not only did the squad win this year but it was the second consecutive year that it has taken the honor and the third time the honor has come to Greenville.

The local squad has won many trophies in state and international competition and, in fact, its first aid group won sixth place in last week's competition at Houston.

What's important about the skills shown in the competition is how they are used when real emergencies arise.

Tony Brannon, assistant chief for rescue, said, "Training for competition keeps the men on their toes, and better trained to handle the day-to-day emergencies."

That's what the training is all about, but winning awards is an excellent measurement of how well the training has gone. The Greenville Rescue Squad has proven it is the best, and that should be comforting to all of us.

Long-Time Pitt Demo Leader Missed

The death of John G. Clark Sr. Monday was sad- dening to his many friends and to long-time Democrats throughout the state.

Mr. Clark was a powerful political figure in Pitt County and served as Democratic Party chair- man from 1943 to 1961. He also served as a state Highway Commissioner and in other public posi- tions.

Age had reduced his active participation in Democratic Party affairs in recent years, but we can be sure that his interest in the party never flagged.

Wildlife Fees May Rise

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — A proposed 40 percent hike in fishing and hunting fees for North Carolinians will surely hurt a number of low-income people, and most likely contribute to an even sharper decline in numbers of people enjoying those activities, top officials of the North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission concede.

But the push is on for the 1979 General Assembly to add nearly $3 million per year to the agency's income.

"It may be a burden on some ... but the fact is that license fees are our only source of income, and we must have the money", says Richard B. Hamilton bluntly.

The alternative, he says, is to cut back those game management, law enforce- ment, and research pro- grams which the public demands.

The dollars in the proposed increase are mostly just to keep the agency abreast of inflation. Only some minor expansions are planned: some new equipment and uniforms, duty officers to handle violation reports, in- creased attention to fur-bearing animals, a hunting safety officer, and two small building projects of less than $250,000.

Boats, Too

Increased boat registra- tion fees are also proposed; up from the present $3 to $5.50 per year, or $13 for the three-year registration. Some 180,000 boats are registered, and growing at nine percent per year. About 40,000 boats were added to the registration requirement when the General Assembly extended coverage to small boats with motors less than 10 horsepower.

Funds are used to main- tain 130 launching ramps, and Hamilton said plans are to build five or six new ramps in the next two years. Water maintenance of existing ramps is high on his priorities.

But while boating grows leading to budget increases without too much difficulty, hunting and fishing are on the decline.

Hamilton predicts that raising the fees will hasten that downward trend. The sportsman with expensive gear can well afford the license hike, Hamilton feels, but concedes that low-income people, teenagers (licenses are required from age 16), and county residents who have been fishing free will doubtless feel the fee hike. If approved by the General Assembly.

County residents using natural bait have fished free. "We lose $50,000 to $100,000 each year in revenue as a result of that. Efforts in the past to eliminate this have not succeeded — it is a real popular thing with the Legislature," Hamilton said. The commission will try again to repeal that system.

But the commission backed off on a proposal to require licenses for the elderly or handicapped. Both fish and hunt free.

Ironically, the money lost from free fishing by residents of a county almost exactly matches the supplement taken from license in- come to help fund the monthly Wildlife in North in North Carolina magazine.

Only A Private Visit

By EDITH M. LEDERER
Associated Press Writer
SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — The government doesn't want former President Richard Nixon to visit Australia, and neither do most of the newspapers. But the cattlemen want him to come and tell them how to get more of the U.S. market despite the opposition of American beef producers.

The Australian Cattlemen's Union, one of the country's most powerful lobbies, has invited Nixon to speak Sept. 23 to its annual convention at Surfers Paradise, a resort on the Queensland coast about 450 miles north of Sydney.

The union's national director, Barry Cassell, said a telegram inviting Nixon to speak was sent to San Clemente Wednesday following a telephone conversation with one of the former president's aides. He said no reply has been received yet.

To the editor:

Government interference into the marketplace has permitted labor unions to achieve a monopoly on the supply of labor in certain industries. Labor unions are using the strike to artificially restrict the supply of labor, thus driving up wages.

Dr. Gary North, editor of "Biblical Economics Today," makes this point: "The striker argues that he has the right not to work, but his employer does not have the right to hire someone to replace him. Modern compulsory trade unionism is based on the wholly immoral premise that the worker owns his job (can exclude others from the position) even though he refuses to work for his employer. To add insult to immorality, most trade unionists also want government food stamps, unemployment benefits (tax-free), and other forms of taxpayer-financed benefits while they are striking."

The Bible says in II Thessalonians 3:10, "For even when we were with you, this we commanded you, that if any would not work, neither should he eat." If a man chooses to strike instead of work, the taxpayer should not pick up the tab. I realize this statement is contrary to the philosophy of the Welfare State. This assertion also contradicts the Social Gospel taught in some of our pulpits. Either we build our political house on the rock of God's Word — or we build it on the sinking sand of the philosophies of men.

To the editor:

On the weekend before school started, the neighborhood of Club Pines held a block party and covered dish supper. By the kind permission of Ed Wyatt, our city manager, we had a section of Club Pines Road blocked off for our tables and chairs, volleyball net and games. Through Mayo Allen's cooperation, the Public Works Department delivered the barricades for the street and the traffic cones, supplied by the Division of Paint and Signs and Ernest Harris, which we used for a bicycle obstacle course for the kids.

Officer Doug Jackson did a fantastic job of explaining bicycle safety rules to the children and inspecting the many bicycles. He also spent time speaking to the adults on community safety. Chief Glenn Cannon kindly granted permission for Officer Jackson's attendance.

All of the approximately 125 parents and children enjoyed the wonderful company, delicious food and, with the help of these city officials, had a great time. Their cooperation is a continuing reminder of how great living in Greenville is.

peculiar circumstances at- tending the retirement of Hayward's predecessor, Adm. James L. Holloway III, two months ago. Holloway, who advocates a nuclear carrier, was denied the visit with the president traditionally accorded to a military chief completing his term.

Even more revealing was Holloway's experience in making farewell remarks at Annapolis July 1. Submitting prepared remarks to the office of the secretary of defense June 28, the admiral was informed that five references to "maritime superiority" must be eliminated or softened. An aide to Holloway snapped that Pentagon civilians would have midshipmen exhorting their football team to "lie Army" next year.

Holloway appealed the blue-pencilling, making clear he would talk about "maritime superiority" at Annapolis, with or without approval. Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense Tom Lambert rescinded all but one of the changes but in-

THE INSIDE REPORT

Navy Wants Superiority

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — President Carter's effort to put a short leash on his admirals has run into their determination to maintain U.S. naval supremacy against arms control pressures inside the administration.

Adm. Thomas B. Hayward, newly installed chief of naval operations, is caught in the middle. On Aug. 18, he gave verbal orders to senior officers not to speak out against the president's veto of the defense bill (which authorizes a new nuclear aircraft carrier of the Nimitz class.) But those orders evoked such anger in the Navy that Hayward's private memo to flag officers a week later was an exercise in ambiguity which avoided clear support of the president.

In truth, the naval brass clearly support an override of the president's veto with nothing less at stake than naval superiority — not mere equivalence with the Soviet fleet. Arms control advocates dominating the national security bureaucracy oppose naval supremacy as inimical to U.S.-Soviet strategic balance. To admirals and arms controllers alike, the nuclear carrier is integral to naval supremacy.

The conflict resulted in sisted on keeping one.

Hayward had been no less an advocate than Holloway of naval supremacy and the nuclear carrier, but encountered new White House determination to leash the joint chiefs of staff. That resolve hardened after the defense bill veto became a centerpiece of the president's campaign for political rehabilitation.

Accordingly, meeting with several assistant chiefs and other flag officers at the pentagon Aug. 18, Hayward supported the veto and ordered the officers not to help the override. His motives seem clear: not to jeopardize White House backing for a conventionally powered (non-nuclear) carrier next year. Besides, the president's veto then seemed sure to be sustained.

But Hayward was rocked by criticism from naval officers over his capitulation to Mr. Carter just as support for the override was building in Congress. The result was an Aug. 25 "confidential" memorandum from Highway patrolman H. B. Smith along with members of the Greenville police department are making an effort to apprehend the person or persons who took a quantity of tobacco and a school bus, and later abandoned the bus, a truck and their cargo of tobacco around 4 a.m. today.

At least 400 pounds of tobacco were said to have been stolen from Tom Tyson's farm near Bell's Fork about five miles from Greenville on the New Bern highway. The truck on which the tobacco was being hauled became stalled. A school bus was "borrowed" from the yard of a home along the highway to tow the truck.

Large Bets On Legal Gambling

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Speculators have been placing some heavy bets lately on the future of the legal gambling business in this country.

Their hopes that the gambling industry can win approval to spread out from Nevada and Atlantic City, N.J., and accelerate its already strong growth rate have inspired a much-publicized bull market for stocks with links to the business.

Wall Street investors, of course, are always busy trying to catch a ride on the wave of the future. This has led to a steady succession of stock-market fads — bowling, mobile homes, CB radios and many more — most of which eventually collapsed.

But the fact remains that a lot of money has been made, at least on paper, in the gambling stocks. According to figures by Barron's magazine, the aggregate market value of 12 gambling-related stocks increased by $2.26 billion in the first eight months of the year.

Caesars World shares gained more than 600 percent in price; Resorts International and Golden Nugget each rose better than fivefold; Playboy Enterprises and Bally Manufacturing tripled; and Ramada Inns, Del E. Webb Enterprises and Harrah's more than doubled.

Most of these stocks have been heavily traded, contributing to a record pace of activity for the year to date on the New York Stock Exchange. Such a booming market would appear to be a stockbroker's dream, since it helps generate extra commission dollars, which are still a basic source of revenues for the securities industry.

But many Wall Streeters profess wariness or downright concern over the periodic outbreaks of "gambling fever" that have hit the market. And in the past few days leading exchanges and brokers have limited or barred altogether any buying of the stocks on credit.

"With recent prices five or 10 times this year's low quotations, anyone who calls these things 'investments' probably thinks a lottery ticket is as sure a thing as a certificate of deposit," said William LeFevre, an analyst at Granger & Co., in a market commentary.

The gambling stocks also have acquired a reputation for depressing the rest of the market whenever they have one of their runups. Because they are speculative, brokers say, they scare some conservative money managers away from the market.

And even though the market is usually thought of as an amoral mechanism that concentrates on dollars and cents and leaves value judgments to others, many brokers evidently feel more comfortable putting their customers into steel or computers than into gambling.

In fact moral, social and aesthetic questions, not just sheer economics, are closely involved in the industry's long-range prospects, just as they are in debates over whether gambling should come to Miami Beach, New York City or other possible sites.

EVIDENCE OF GOD

It is interesting to see how Christians and non-believers base such different conclusions on the same evidence. To Christians, the world has always been filled with indications of God's presence. In the realities of nature and the richness of human personality, Christians see the results of God's power and love. The non-believer looking at this same world sees only the operation of natural laws—impersonal, indifferent, irrelevant to any moral considerations.

This fact should not cause alarm or doubt to Christians. Every teacher knows that some pupils can read a book through from cover to cover without understanding it.

But these students are not hopeless cases. They can be taught to read intelligently. Similarly, there are millions of people who need and want to know of God's presence in the world if we will but show them. "The harvest truly is plenteous, but the laborers are few."

disagree with a couple of his favorite ventures: he wants to ad amendments to the Constitution to prohibit abortions and to permit prayer in schools, and I think the Constitution would be better off without them. But I can admire the consistency, the courtesy and the determination with which he has waged his campaign.

Born in Monroe, N.C. in 1921, Helms worked his way through Wake Forest as a manual laborer, waiter and dishwasher. He went first into journalism, as a reporter for the Raleigh Times. After a hitch in the Navy in World War II, he returned to the Times as city editor. Later he would serve 12 years as editorial director of Raleigh's WRAL-TV, giving joy to Tarheel conservatives and giving apoplexy to the liberal News & Observer.

Most reporters, editors and pundits shun political temptation. Helms made no secret of his love for public service. He won four terms on the Raleigh City Council. He worked in Washington for two North Carolina senators. He involved himself deeply in North Carolina politics. By the time he was ready to make his run for the Senate in 1972, he had accumulated an encyclopedic knowledge of the state and its people. He won by 54.1 percent, and unless his supporters get overconfident, he should win his second term against state insurance commissioner John Ingram in November. In a state still predominantly Democratic, Helms knows it won't be easy.

But for all its reputation as a valley of liberalism between two mountains of reaction, North Carolina has strong conservative leanings. For many voters, Helms is the champion of balanced budgets, reduced federal regulation and the enterprise system. He fought the Panama Canal treaties, he is a consistent anti-communist hawk in foreign affairs, he combats the welfare state, and as a father and grandfather himself he embodies all the old virtues of family, home and fireside.

Besides all that, Helms publicly denounces Welfare Secretary Joe Califano, the anti-tobacco man, in phrases that fall like music on the farmers' ears. Within the gentlemen's club, such old Southern customs are well understood.

already obtained for the early authorization and funding of a follow-on carrier to replace (the) Midway." Hayward told his fellow admirals. "My position has been, and remains, that we must start as soon as possible on a replacement for Midway, and that the replacement must be at least as capable as the ship replaced." This delphic utterance falls obviously short of Defense Secretary Harold Brown's desire that a conventional carrier be endorsed.

Nor does Hayward's memo flatly instruct the admirals to stay clear of the veto override fight, saying instead: "It is important that we refrain from any actions which could jeopardize the existing basic support for a follow-on carrier, or diminish our influence over decisions relating to it." This could be interpreted as follows: if you lobby to override the veto, don't get caught!

Although hard-nosed admirals feel Hayward abandoned naval interests, it is doubtful whether he could do more under the intense pressure he faces—as when he attended the Armed Forces Policy Council meeting Aug. 28. Deputy Defense Secretary Charles Duncan instructed all present to help sustain the president's veto (informing them they would be coordinated by Richard Moe, political aide to Vice President Mondale).

The admirals view such activity as incompatible not only with traditions of American naval strategy, as laid down by Adm. Alfred Mahan, but with Defense Department Directive 5100.1 instructing the Navy "to gain and maintain general naval supremacy." In a difficult hour, Adm. Hayward's memo avoids violating that trust.

would be invaluable because of his knowledge of the United States cattle lobby," said Cassell. He added that the United States is the biggest foreign market for Australian beef, and the American market is highly susceptible to pressure from American cattlemen.

Last week, the conservative government turned down Nixon's request to make an official visit to Australia and meet with Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser. The government said an official visit would be "inopportune" because of other official visits during September and October.

An aide of the ex-president said he planned to come anyway because "scores of Australian citizens" asked him to visit. A government source, who asked not to be identified, said he would be given a tourist visa "provided it's a genuinely

Refuse Drop Sheriff Suit

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—A federal court judge has refused to dismiss a suit filed against Alamance County Sheriff John Hardy Stockard by a former deputy.

Stockard asked U.S. District Judge Hiram Ward to throw out the allegation that he fired William Clyde Walters because the former deputy gave information to a Burlington newspaper for a series of articles about an "illegal political fund."

However, Ward granted agreed to dismiss charges that Stockard violated the deputy's right to association and due process of law.

Walters filed a $200,000 suit against Stockard, alleging he was forced to resign because he refused to contribute to the sheriff's re-election campaign and to allow his name to be used in a newspaper advertisement expressing support for Stockard.

Stockard maintained that Walters was asked to resign because of "insubordination, dishonesty, being absent without leave, and being discourteous to citizens."

The Burlington newspaper publish stories in December 1975 about an investigation of Stockard's re-election fund by the State Bureau of Investigation.

Ward's order included an allegation that Stockard said he wanted to get a copy of the SBI report to find out who talked to a reporter about the fund and said that the sheriff suspected Walters.

The request Chavis to travel to Washington was made by Rep. Ronald Dellums, D-Calif., for the Institute for Policy Studies' Letelier-Moffitt Memorial Fund. Chavis was selected for human rights endeavors in the United States and the Third World.

Police Procedures On Rape Cases Announced By Chief

Chief Glenn Cannon today made public the Greenville Police Department's procedures for handling rape cases.

The initial response to a reported rape, Cannon said, is usually made by a uniformed officer, whose "first priority is the health and safety of victims of crime. In rape cases, the responding officer has been trained to comfort the victim, see emergency medical care, if needed, and to preserve all evidence available."

All information given by the victim to investigating officers is confidential, according to the chief, who added that the victim will not be forced to testify in court against her wishes. Cannon also noted that news organizations in the area normally do not publish the name of rape or sexual assault victims.

"All rape victims," Cannon said, are taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital by police officers as soon as possible, if the victim agrees to do so, where emergency room personnel follow a precise procedure in dealing with rape victims to reduce emotional and physical trauma and also to preserve evidence. He noted that medical information gathered at the hospital is also confidential.

Although the initial investigation may be made by uniformed officers responding to the call, a through investigation will be conducted by an experienced detective, while at the same time being sensitive to the victim's need for privacy and understanding.

"Each phase of the investigation will be explained by the investigator," Cannon pointed out, adding that, "all possible efforts will be made to keep the victim and her assailant from having contact with each other."

He added that when needed, police officers will endeavor to protect the victim against intimidation and secret assault, and said telephone taps to trace harassing calls are readily available.

Cannon emphasized, "it is the rape victim who is in control of whether to prosecute or not. Police officers will cooperate with the victim in every possible way to insure the well-being of the victim."

The Benefits of Bran

I now eat a considerable amount of bran. I think it's made me feel better. But I have heard that there might be some dangers to it. Is this true? — Miss F.M., Mich.

Dear Miss M.: The original controversy about the value of bran seems to be dying out. More and more doctors are convinced that there is, indeed, value to a high fiber diet.

Some technical studies have been done on the overuse of bran, but these findings should not affect anyone whose intake is within sensible limits. It has been found that, with overuse, there might be some changes in the calcium and magnesium content in the stools. This is not significant when the bran intake is not overdone.

I don't know what you mean by a "considerable" amount of bran. Unless there is a specific medical condition which contraindicates the use of bran, it is accepted that cereal fiber added to the normal diet can be beneficial.

Bran seems to shorten the time that the feces stay in the intestines. It is believed, therefore, that high fiber diets can be helpful for people with diverticulitis. It may also play a role in preventing cancers of the large intestine.

The new attitudes about high fiber diets indicate that it has distinct advantages in general.

As a young man I had severe acne. It left me with scars on my face. I've always wondered if skin cancers happen more often to people who have such scars. — Mr. P.J.N., Calif.

Dear Mr. N.: The consensus is that skin cancer does not occur more frequently in people who have scarring and pitting of the face due to acne.

Yet it would be prudent to avoid excessive exposure to concentrated sunlight. This same advice is given by skin specialists to many people, even those who do not have the scarring of the skin.

It would do you an injustice to live in constant fear that inevitably you will run into trouble. The wise idea, therefore, is to have your skin checked at occasional intervals. The added assurance is worthwhile.

My 6-year-old daughter coughs only at nighttime. It disturbs her sleep and ours, too. Isn't this odd? — Mrs. T.E., Mass.

Dear Mrs. E.: This story is highly suggestive of an allergic reaction. Many children who seem to be free from coughs during the day may begin to cough at night in their own rooms. Stuffed toys, dusty

Southport Not Upset In Losing Seat Of Govm't

SOUTHPORT, N.C. (AP) — Any other town of 3,000 might be in a dither at having the county government pick up and move out after 170 years. Or at least worried about how to make up for the dollars that departed with the county workers.

But the town fathers in Southport aren't too upset that the Brunswick County seat moved to Bolivia last month. In fact, they say the move might be a good thing.

"Southport has always been here and Southport will continue to be. We've always performed best when our backs are to the wall," said Mayor E.R. Tomlinson Jr.

But without the county workers daily dollar influence and without any solid tourist trade, times are looking a little lean for this town of 3,000 which faces the mouth of the Cape Fear River.

Though the town is a picturesque spot on the North Carolina coast, it does not pull in tourists for any length of time.

"One of the problems" says Pat Dowling, of the SouthportOak Island Chamber of Commerce, "is that plenty people come here, but most go in there and ride around and see the pretty houses and trees and then drive on back to the beaches to spend their money there."

Some do stop at the seafood restaurants at the waterside or at the antique store, or Oliver's Cafe, reputed to have the best hamburgers in the country. Or they might visit the old "Frying Pan" lightship that stood guard duty off Frying Pan Shoals for decades, which is now tied up near the public pier.

But for the most part, they spend their money elsewhere.

Several merchants in the town say there's been no real harm yet — perhaps because the summer season hasn't stopped for the year.

City fathers say they are hoping to attract the dollar-dropping tourists by making Southport sort of an arts colony, a cottage industry town with a variety of shops selling everything from coastal paintings to locally-produced shell craft and driftwood items.

The mayor likes that idea because it is one industry the town can start with very little capital.

"The personality of Southport makes it a very desirable place for something like that," he said.

Others in town are pushing for more capitalization on the town as a river place, beefing up the riverfront with bulkheads and public parks and selling the area as a major attraction.

And there are a variety of other ideas. But even though one has yet to be decided upon, no one seems to be too worried. There is no crisis atmosphere in Southport.

As one old timer put it, the town has always come back.

Lawmen Investigate A Possible Miscarriage

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP) — Gaston County District Attorney Joe Brown successfully prosecuted James Junior Hoke for helping another man break into a house last Maay.

Now, Brown is launching an investigation into the possibility that Hoke might have been convicted for a crime he did not commit.

Hoke, 22, was convicted of helping Rocky Malke, 25, with a residential break-in last May in which two television sets were stolen. He was convicted last week and sentenced to seven years in prison.

However, it has since been discovered that Malke and Hoke were bitter enemies and were unlikely to have collaborated on anything.

On the night in question, Hoke said he was playing cards, and three friends corroborated that story.

The jury, however, believed testimony from Janice Friday, whose house was robbed, that she saw Hoke near her home as she left to pick up her husband on the night of the burglary, just before 11 p.m.

Her two daughters also knew Hoke and said he was at the house, and one of them said a man hit her as he took a television from her room. The other girl said she hid in a bathroom with her little brother.

Officials began wondering about some of the testimony when Hoke attacked Malke as they were being led from the courtroom, reportedly cursing him for remaining silent during the trial.

Malke told the Gastonia Gazette later that Hoke hadn't been involved, although another man, whom he wouldn't identify, drove him to the scene of the burglary.

One of the girls admitted under cross examination that she had named Malke because she knew him and Hoke because her mother had said it was Hoke and she was afraid of her mother. Both girls were asleep when police arrived, and Malke says all the children were sleeping when he was in the house.

Brown said he was skeptical but might arrange a polygraph test for the two men if Malke would sign an affidavit saying Hoke is innocent. Public Defender Jim Funderburk, who defended Malke, said he would try to get a new trial for Hoke.

Guaranteed for a lifetime. A truly modern, straight-line profile, crowned by a genuine gemstone top.

Qualify As A Developer

The Redevelopment Commission yesterday approved the firm of Worsley, Farley, Prescott and Mizelle as the developer of a small parcel at the corner of Third and Cotanche Streets adjacent to its present building.

Meeting in a special session Wednesday afternoon, the commissioners gave their approval of the firm as developer of the 1,450 square foot tract, subject to the approval of the City Council.

The certified public accounting firm indicated last month when it qualified to bid on the small parcel that it planned to landscape the property.

Bid opening on the parcel was held Tuesday and Worsley, Farley, Prescott and Mizelle submitted the only bid, in the amount of $2,000.

The lot is sub-standard as far as lot size requirements in an Office and Institutional zone. The minimum lot size for developing an O & I tract is 7,500 square feet and a variance would be necessary in order to utilize the lot as a separate parcel.

Dr. Cecil Ray Spoke Tuesday

Dr. Cecil Ray, executive secretary of the North Carolina Baptist State Convention, opened a "Bold Mission Rally" held at Immanuel Baptist Church here Tuesday evening.

The rally was held to prepare church key leaders for planning the "Bold Mission Thrust" in area Southern Baptist churches. Following Ray's talk, workshops were held for various classifications of church workers.

Ray said Baptist church leaders must have "maximum expectation" about its plans to enlist 150,000 new people by 1982. He said this plan for boldness should include "double giving, double witnessing and double baptisms."

Teachers In Cleveland Infected By Strike Fever

By LINDEL HUTSON
Associated Press Writer

About 10,000 Cleveland school employees demanding higher pay set up picket lines today, adding to a series of strikes that have disrupted the opening of class for more than 500,000 students across the nation.

Teachers either struck or continued walking the picket line Wednesday in Seattle, Chicago and New Orleans. But in Philadelphia, a tentative agreement could send the city's 250,000 pupils back to school on time next week.

Strikes were either in effect or threatened by teachers in Washington state, Michigan, Pennsylvania, Louisiana, Rhode Island, Connecticut, Illinois, Massachusetts, Ohio, Indiana, Vermont, California, Idaho, New York and New Jersey.

More pay was the main topic in negotiations with belt-tightening districts, but fringe benefits and a reduced number of pupils per class also were factors in some areas.

Teachers in the debt-ridden, 182-school Cleveland district decided Wednesday to strike after last-minute negotiations failed to resolve employee demands for a 20 percent pay hike.

Classes for the 100,000 public school students had been scheduled to start Friday. Peter Carlin, acting school superintendent, said every attempt would be made to keep schools open, and more talks were set for today.

Cleveland teachers now make between $9,100 and $18,650 a year. They have not had a pay raise in two years, but officials say no funds are available. The district got a $21 million state loan last week to keep the schools operating.

In Philadelphia, 13,000

striking teachers were voting today on the two-year proposal approved Wednesday by the executive committee of the Philadelphia Federation of Teachers. The average Philadelphia teacher's salary would be $22,425 a year under the proposal, up from the current $19,500.

An offer of a 4 percent raise for striking New Orleans teachers has been withdrawn—a move one school official contended would complicate negotiation to end the week-old strike.

About one-third of the system's 91,000 students have been in the classrooms despite the walkout. New Orleans teachers now earn between $10,096 and $15,250 annually.

A disagreement over the number of hours teachers are required to work has idled 1,450 teachers in Chicago's nine city colleges since Aug. 18. The strike affects 112,000 students.

About 55,000 students were out of class in Seattle where 4,000 teachers have walked off the job in a wage dispute.

Also in Washington state, a strike by Tacoma teachers kept 31,000 pupils out of school.

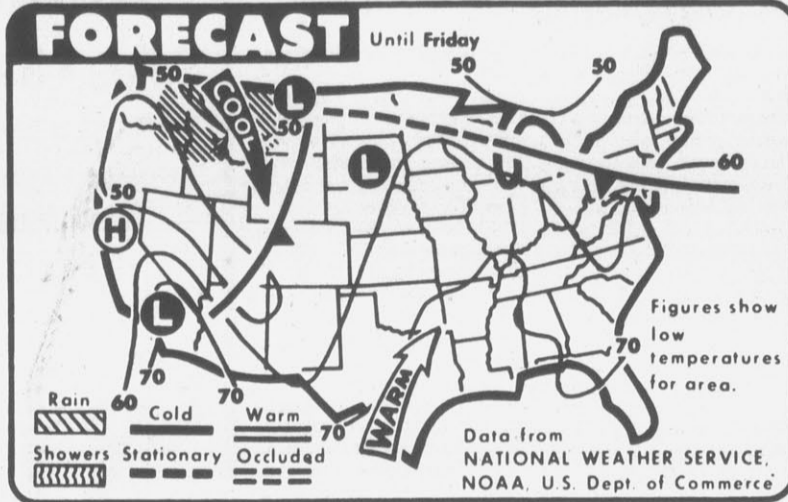

Walkouts by nearly 4,000 teachers in districts in Michigan's Lower Peninsula idled more than 100,000 students. State education officials said 180 of Michigan's 530 public school systems did not have their teachers under contract as classes opened.

IT'S A YOGURTHOG

SHEFFIELD, England (AP)—A man out for a walk along a country road was surprised to see a yogurt container moving toward him in an unsteady, wavering line.

On closer inspection, he found that a hedgehog had poked his head inside the carton to lick it clean and then had been unable to get out.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — The National Weather Service forecast for today until Friday calls for rain for parts of Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press

A weak trough of low pressure lay along the North Carolina coast today, producing variable cloudiness and setting the stage for scattered light showers along the coast through Friday. Across the remainder of the state, the weather was under the influence of high pressure centered over the southern mountains.

Partly cloudy and hazy skies will prevail across interior sections of North Carolina through Friday. Afternoon temperatures will range in the upper 70s to mid 80s across the mountains and in the upper 80s and low 90s across the remainder of the state.

Under fair skies tonight low temperatures will range in the 60s except for the mid and upper 50s across the mountains. Stagnation advisory remains in effect for the western half of the state and the state Forest Service also has suspended burning permits.

Skies were partly cloudy and hazy across the state Wednesday while afternoon temperatures warmed into the upper 70s and 80s. Among the warmest spots were Elizabeth city with 87 followed by Raleigh-Durham with 86.

Fair weather is expected

Saturday and Sunday with temperatures ranging to the 80s in the mountains and 90s elsewhere.

Proud Parochial School In Chicago Refused To Die

ST. MEL'S SURVIVES — Harvey Gross, right, teaches a consumer economics class on reopening of Providence St. Mel's high school in Chicago. The school was ordered closed by the archdiocese earlier this year, but students and faculty raised $160,000 needed to allow the school to operate. (AP Laser-photo)

CHICAGO (AP) — Students at St. Mel's, the last remaining Catholic school in the black West Side ghetto, are told to believe in themselves, to try to succeed despite the grim world outside.

St. Mel's has followed its own teachings, refusing to become another inner city casualty, despite an edict to close from the archdiocese.

Principal Paul Adams, who led the black high school away from the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Chicago this summer, greeted 400 students in classes this week and said Wednesday he's already working to raise money for next year.

"The cardinal vetoed our staying alive last spring, but I think God overrode his decision," said teacher and basketball coach Julius Walker.

St. Mel's was ordered to close earlier this year. It was one of 28 schools closed or merged by the archdiocese in the last seven years.

Of the 28, 17 were in black or racially mixed neighborhoods. The church justified closure on financial, enrollment and religious grounds, noting few Catholics live in black neighborhoods. The archdiocese's direct subsidy to schools dropped from $2.26 million in 1976 to $2.12 million in 1977.

Officials said the burden of school finance would increasingly be the responsibility of the 451 parishes.

Among parochial schools, St. Mel's was a leader. Half of each entering freshman class dropped out because of tough academic standards. Those who remained were serious students. About 85 percent of its graduates went on to college.

Drugs, gangs, fighting and other ills associated with Chicago schools weren't found there.

To save St. Mel's, students, faculty and Adams mounted a frantic effort to raise $160,000 needed for operations. They appealed to business and the community and cut budgetary corners.

"We believed in ourselves," said Adams. "We kept trying all summer. We raised the money and we finally made it."

Adams said the $160,000 in donations will be joined by $240,000 in tuition and $80,000 from bingo games. "Sure, we've had to cut corners. We had to cut out a few programs. Our whole sports fund is only $3,000 for the whole year. But we're open and I'm already worrying about the next year. I don't want this to be a one-year shot. When I said we will stay open, I meant open for Catholic secondary education good," said Adams. He estimates the school, archdiocese, needs $170,000 for which still provides a Roman repairs.

Youth Charged With Break-In

James Allen Hodge, 16 of 237 Churchill Dr. has been charged with breaking and entering in connection with a July 20 break-in at 126 Longmeadow Rd., Chief Glenn Cannon reported this morning.

Cannon said Hodge, a Rose High School student, allegedly entered the Longmeadow Road home through a window. Nothing was reported missing from the dwelling, the chief noted.

Gov. Hunt Says Progress And Tax Cut Are Not Incompatible

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Gov. Jim Hunt said Wednesday that it is not impossible for North Carolina to continue to progress and cut back on taxes.

Hunt presented that proposition to a group of about 100 Democratic legislative candidates from around the state at an afternoon briefing on issues the 1979 General Assembly will be dealing with. "We are not about to quit making progress in North Carolina. We're prepared to do that at whatever the cost," Hunt said. "But at the same time, we're going to be good stewards of their (taxpayers') money."

"Some will say we can't do both — you've read it in the papers," he said. "I believe we can. We can do both."

Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green and House Speaker Carl Stewart told the candidates that money matters will monopolize the legislative session which convenes in January.

Stewart said he expected an argument over whether tax relief should be provided by rebate, tax cut, removing the sales tax on food or drugs, or by other means. The house speaker also said he hoped tax relief would not be built into the proposed budget package that the governor and Advisory Budget Commission will send to the legislature, but considered after spring tax collections are analyzed. An essential budget for necessary services and progress in vital areas is what needs to be developed, according to Hunt.

"Then, if we have some money left over, instead of finding ways to spend it, let's give it back to the taxpayers in the most equitable way we can design," he said. But Hunt again declined to say how much of a tax break could be afforded.

The combination of inflation and progressive taxes have created the need for a break, Hunt said. He cited example of a person earning $15,000 a year who, if received an 8 percent pay raise, would have his effective buying power cut by 1.4 percent year.

Pet Show Is On Saturday

AYDEN — As part of the Ayden Collard Festival, a Pet Show is scheduled for Saturday afternoon, Sept. 9. Two categories of entries are being held, a show of pets by children aged 13 and under, and an adult category, for persons over 13 with pets to show.

The show, coordinated by Cathy Johnson, will begin at 2 p.m. and continue until about 3:30 p.m. and will be held behind the Ayden Town Hall. There is no entry fee.

Divisions to be judged include dogs, cats, and miscellaneous. Ms. Johnson notes that cows, chickens, pigs or other domesticated animals are not eligible for entry.

Trophies will be given for best of division in the children's and adult's categories, and an overall Pet-of-the-Show trophy will also be given. Among special activities will be judging for the most original pet trick display in the adult category; and in the children's category, for the best dress-up-alike contestant.

Rose In Home Opener Vs. New Bern

Halfback Derwin Clemons

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Rose High School opens its home season Friday night, playing host to New Bern High in a 7:30 p.m. game in Ficklen Stadium.

But the home opener isn't starting off on as happy a note as it could have. The Rampants lost their opening game of the year in the final two minutes of play after seemingly having the game won.

The Rampants held an 8-7 lead over Goldsboro with about two minutes left and faced a third and ten situation at the Goldsboro 31.

Coach Dave Bumgarner called for a pass play over the middle. "It was open. The man was there. The pass was just underthrown," he said.

It sailed right into the arms of a Goldsboro defender, who returned the ball to near midfield, and Goldsboro went on to score a touchdown with slightly over a minute left to gain the 14-8 triumph.

"Maybe we shouldn't have thrown the pass," Bumgarner said earlier this week. "But at the time, we felt that if Goldsboro got the ball back they would score. We wanted another score to put the game about out of reach. If it had worked, we'd have looked great."

Bumgarner felt that the Rampants were physically ready for the opener with the Cougars. "I'll take the blame for some of the mistakes we made. We really expected Goldsboro to give us a much tougher game. We expected them to complete more passes.

"I think we did an outstanding job of containing a very good runner (for Goldsboro). We did a pretty good job on containing their passing except for two plays."

Bumgarner felt that Derwin Clemons and Todd Tyson both ran the ball well. "Tyson has been coming on slowly, but he looked very good against Goldsboro. Actually, we had only one person on offense in the same position as last year (quarterback Joey Mattheis)."

Bumgarner said that there have been some realignments on offense, but no personnel changes for Friday's second game. Defensively, there may be some changes, but these are not certain as yet.

"New Bern is in a rebuilding year under Jean Earl Worthington. They run the I formation and they like to run an inside reverse that's been very successful for them. They lost their opener to Havelock. I think it was 14-6, and then beat West Craven, 20-0, last week. Needless to say, they are vastly improved over last year's team."

Bumgarner said he expects New Bern to run power plays straight at the Rose defense. "They have a good runner in this Benjamin guy and Bell, a big lineman, is their best defensive player. They run two quarterbacks, and one of them, a lefty, likes to throw."

The coach feels that the game is an important one for the Rampants. "We've lost our last three games (going back to last year), and we need a victory. "But I think if we don't get a lot of penalties, like we did last week, we'll be all right. The key to the game will be our ability to move the football. We played too much defense last week and we have to play more offense and keep the ball more."

The Rampants will again be home the following week, playing host to Kinston.

Walton Still Wants To Leave

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Bill Walton still wants to leave the Portland Trail Blazers after reconsidering his request to be traded.

Harry Glickman, general manager of the National Basketball Association club, said Wednesday the 6-foot-11 center's meetings with Blazer owner Larry Weinberg last Saturday and Tuesday in Los Angeles were amicable. He said Walton agreed after the meeting Saturday, which one of his agents had requested, that he would reconsider his intent to leave the team.

"He thought until Tuesday, and he and the Trail Blazers mutually agreed to pursue a trade," Glickman said.

Weinberg issued a brief statement in Portland on Wednesday concerning the six-hour second meeting.

"The Trail Blazers and Walton will continue to seek a trade satisfactory to both," the statement said. "As the Trail Blazers have consistently stated since Walton first expressed a desire to be traded Aug. 1, the trade will have to be one which gives the club value for the league's most valuable player."

Weinberg, in his Los Angeles office, refused further comment.

Walton has not spoken to reporters since the affair erupted on Aug. 4. His agents have said he wants to be traded partly because he disagrees with the team's administration of pain killers to enable injured players to compete. Walton has a yet to recover from a broken foot suffered while under the influence of a pain killer.

He led the team to the NBA championship in 1977 and was chosen the league's most valuable player in 1978.

Little Time To Rest For NBA

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Basketball Association isn't giving the Washington Bullets much time to rest on their laurels.

The NBA announced Tuesday that its 902-game regular season 1978-79 schedule will start Oct. 13 with nine games, including a match-up between the defending champion Bullets at home against the New Orleans Jazz.

The regular season, the earliest opening in NBA history, will conclude Apr. 7 with each of the 22 teams playing 82 games before the top teams start the playoffs, which last about two months.

The Bullets, who took the NBA championship on June 7 with a seventh-game victory over the Seattle SuperSonics, will be transferring from the Midwest Division to the Atlantic Division because of the relocation of the Buffalo franchise in San Diego.

The new San Diego franchise will play in the Pacific Division while the Detroit Pistons will move from the Midwest Division to the Central Division, replacing Washington.

The Pistons also will make another move — from the Cobo Arena in downtown Detroit to suburban Pontiac, Mich., the site of the Silverdome.

Detroit won't be alone in moving. The SuperSonics also will be in a new arena this season — the Kingdome.

The Kansas City Kings will play some of their home games away from their regular arena. The Kings have three "home" games scheduled for the Checkerdome in St. Louis.

The NBA All-Star game will be played in the Silverdome Feb. 4 and the Hall of Fame game at Springfield, Mass., between the Portland Trail Blazers and the SuperSonics, is scheduled for Dec. 3.

Stickers Set Slate

East Carolina has announced a 12-event field hockey schedule for this fall, opening September 21.

Old Dominion, the initial opponent, will play one of only three home dates on the Pirates' six-week schedule. Virginia Tech visits Greenville to meet coach Laurie Arrants' charges on October 13, with Davidson coming the following day.

The complete schedule:

September 21, Old Dominion; 22 at Wake Forest; 23 Appalachian State at Winston Salem; 26 at Duke.

Oct. 9 at Pfeiffer; 13 Virginia Tech; 14 Davidson; 20 at UNC Chapel Hill; 21 at High Point; 27-29 at NCAIAW Tournament, Boone.

Nov. 4 at Deep South Tournament, Greenville, S.C.; 10-11 AIAW Region 2 Tournament.

Eddie Hicks Out For Saturday's Game; Others Also On Hurt List

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Captain Pat Dye dropped a bombshell at his weekly press conference Wednesday afternoon, announcing that star running back Eddie Hicks will miss Saturday's game with N.C. State, and that he may also miss the following week's game with the University of North Carolina.

"Eddie suffered a collapsed lung on the very first play from scrimmage Saturday night (against Western Carolina). He was struck from behind on the tackle, and no body realized what had happened. He played the entire game, then went through practice on Monday before it was discovered," Dye told the gathered press.

"He's in the hospital now, and he's definitely out of Saturday's game, and we really are not counting on him to be ready for Carolina."

Dye said that the Pirates are the most banged up that they've ever been at this time. "Tony Collins is hurt and is doubtful for the game. There are a lot of others who are playing hurt. It's really kind of frightening when you realize we've got to play a team as physical as N.C. State is, then turn right around and play another one like Carolina."

Dye said that Mike Hawkins, a sophomore, would fill Hicks' spot, while Theodore Sutton will move back in at fullback. Sutton, the regular fullback, missed most of last week's game, while Collins, who moves between fullback and halfback, played the former position. Sam Harrell will round out the other running back slot. "We've got three freshmen behind them," Dye said.

Dye explained to the press that coaching mistakes caused the Western Carolina game to be as poorly played as it was.

"We made some mistakes in calling plays, and in preparing the team for the game," he said. "We spent so much time telling the defense how good Western's offense was, we forgot about the Western defense, and that had an effect on the game. This was by far the best Western Carolina team we've seen since I've been here," the coach added.

"Our kicking game wasn't good. We did run back the opening kickoff well, and we did a good job of coverage on kicks, but that's about all," Dye said.

"We met only one of our goals on offense—to average 15 yards per pass. On defense, it was a different story. We made all but two goals, getting a score and allowing that 58-yard pass play. Otherwise, our defense played an excellent game."

While Dye said the team was crippled up from the game, he said that hard hitting was continuing. "We've got to get some of these young people ready to play, so we've got to keep hitting."

Dunn Won't Be Duke Starter

By The Associated Press

As North Carolina Atlantic Coast Conference football teams ready for their openers this weekend, Duke Coach Mike McGee announced Wednesday that quarterback Mike Dunn will not be starting in Saturday's game against Georgia Tech.

The Blue Devil senior, who holds six team offensive records, jammed his right thumb in practice last week and has not been involved in contact work since then. He may see some action in the game, however.

Junior Stanley Driskell of Atlanta, who has one letter for Duke, will start against the Yellow Jackets, McGee said.

"The doctors put Mike's thumb back in a cast this afternoon and it will not be removed until Saturday morning," McGee said after Wednesday's Blue Devil practice. "They feel that at this time the best treatment is to immobilize the thumb."

McGee said Dunn's thumb would be re-examined Saturday with the hope it will have recovered enough for him to play.

Meanwhile, North Carolina State Coach Bo Rein and East Carolina Coach Pat Dye commented on their upcoming meeting Saturday. It will be the season opener for the Wolfpack, but the second game of the season for ECU, an independent, who defeated Western Carolina last week, 14-6, in Greenville.

Rein said Wednesday that N.C. State should have a double incentive in Saturday night's game against East Carolina: revenge for last year's loss to the Pirates and hopes for starting the season on a winning note.

"Just because of last year, we might want to play doubly as hard this year," he said. "But the big thing for us is that we've got to get off on the right foot, and that's the case no matter who we play. That's where the psychological advantage approach may come in to play."

Rein said he was impressed with the Pirates' backfield, that their offensiveline is bigger and stronger than last year and the defense is exceptionally quick.

But Dye said his team has the worst injury list it has had since he became coach. He said Wednesday that running back Eddie Hicks will not play Saturday because of a partially collapsed lung.

"It's frightening to play a team as physical and as strong as N.C. State and have North Carolina the next week and be as beat up as we are," he said. "But we'll show up."

Hicks was injured on the opening play of the Pirates game last weekend but completed the game, gaining 59 yards on 15 carries.

He complained of sore ribs and pain in his right side during practice Monday, and subsequent tests showed the partially collapsed right lung.

Dye said starting fullback Theodore Sutton, who was withheld from the Western Carolina game because of a knee injury suffered in practice, will play against the Wolfpack even though he has not fully recovered. Right halfback Anthony Collins, who had a turned ankle last week, may also see action.

McGRAW'S ERROR

NEW YORK (AP)—The late, great John McGraw didn't let many star ball players get away once he had them under contract—but one who escaped was Hall of Fame pitcher Waite Hoyt.

McGraw signed Hoyt at the age of 16 out of Erasmus Hall High School in Brooklyn. He put the young righthander in one inning of one game for the New York Giants and saw Waite fan two men. McGraw then sent Hoyt to the minors and was careless enough to let his option lapse. Hoyt eventually went to the Boston Red Sox and from there to the New York Yankees where he haunted McGraw in World Series play.

Yastrzemski Helps Tiant Gain Two-Hit Victory Over Baltimore

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

Luis Tiant pitched a two-hitter and won; Dennis Martinez pitched a two-hitter and lost. The difference was Carl Yastrzemski—tired, battered, bruised Carl Yastrzemski—who just happens to play for Tiant's team—the Boston Red Sox.

Despite recurring back problems that have forced him out of the lineup and despite torn ligaments in his right hand, the 39-year-old Yastrzemski cracked a two-run seventh-inning homer to back 37-year-old Tiant in a 2-0 victory over the Baltimore Orioles Wednesday night.

"The two young guys did it tonight—Tiant and Yastrzemski," mused Boston Manager Don Zimmer after the Red Sox had won for only the second time in seven starts. "We don't know what's going to happen from here on out, but this was a big one for us."

It was big because the Red Sox—four games in front of second-place New York in the American League's East Division—open a four-game series with the Yankees tonight at their Fenway Park home. "We've got to do it ourselves," said Zimmer.

In other AL games, the Yankees downed Detroit 8-2, Kansas City clipped Oakland 11-8 in 12 innings, Texas thrashed California 11-5 and 9-2, Milwaukee beat Toronto 7-0 and Chicago edged Minnesota 1-0.

Yankees 8, Tigers 2

Mickey Rivers cracked three hits and scored three times, including once in the Yankees' four-run fifth inning, while Ed Figueroa and Sparky Lyle helped stop Ron LeFlore's hitting streak at 27 games in the New York victory over Detroit.

Royals 11, A's 8

Kansas City rallied from a seven-run deficit and tied the game 8-8 in the ninth on a two-out triple by Frank White and a single by Steve Braun.

Rico Carty had driven in four runs with his 28th homer of the year and a single, but Kansas City pulled out the triumph with three 12th-inning runs—one on Al Cowens' bases-loaded single and two more on a single by Amos Otis—to extend its AL West lead to three games over California.

Rangers 11-9, Angels 5-2

John Ellis cracked a two-run double in a five-run third inning to help Texas win the nightcap after Toby Harrah's three-run homer in a five-run seventh powered the Rangers in the opener.

Brewers 7, Blue Jays 0

Robin Yount went 4-for-4 and drove in five runs with two two-run homers and a single, backing Larry Sorensen's four-hitter and helping Milwaukee hand Toronto its sixth consecutive loss.

White Sox 1, Twins 0

Chicago's Ken Kravec and Minnesota's Dave Goltz matched five-hitters, but Kravec won on Greg Pryor's RBI single in the fifth inning.

Navratilova, Evert Closer To The Finals

NEW YORK (AP)—They'll tell you the same cliches, but don't be fooled. After No. 1 seed Martina Navratilova and second-rated Chris Evert have played all those other matches "one match at a time," they expect to be facing each other across the net at the U.S. Open.

At stake will be the women's singles championship, a No. 1 ranking and as much pride as these two combative women can muster. You don't rise to the top in a very competitive sport without having a special feeling inside that says No. 1 is the only numeral worth having.

And there can only be one No. 1.

"I'm not any more confident than before that I'm gonna get into the finals," said Navratilova, the Czech expatriate who wasn't pushed too hard Wednesday in downing longtime Eastern European opponent Virginia Ruzici of Romania 6-3, 6-2.

"I'm just taking one match at a time," the 21-year-old resident of Dallas said with barely a trace of an accent. "I'm just getting closer (to the finals), that's all."

Evert was tested a bit more in her match against 15-year-old phenom Tracy Austin of Rolling Hills, Calif., proving stronger and steeper, and prevailing 7-5, 6-1.

"In the second set I played very, very well," said the 23-year-old Floridian, who is bidding to become the first woman in more than 40 years to win this event four straight times. "I'm very pleased, especially with my serve. I'm getting better with every match."

The semifinal opponents of the top two seeds were to be decided today when 16-year-old Pam Shriver, the No. 14 seed from Lutherville, Md., met Leslie Hunt of Australia and No. 15 Kathy May of Beverly Hills, Calif., played fourth-ranked Wendy Turnbull of Australia.

Pirates Keep Winning; LA Ups Lead

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

A plane ride last month really got the Pittsburgh Pirates off the ground and they haven't come down to earth yet.

"We were in Philadelphia and had just been humiliated and were 11½ games behind."

Pirate Manager Chuck Tanner recalls. "But on the plane after the trip I knew right then that we were going to start winning."

How did he know? "We were healthy," says Tanner. "We had seven pitchers capable of starting and we took off from there."

The pitching, actually, has been a true part of the Pirates' recent success — which included Wednesday night's 4-1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals. That was the 11th straight triumph for the Pirates and their 23rd in 26 games.

The Philadelphia Phillies, on the other hand, have to be a little tight and a little serious watching the gallant Pittsburgh charge that has brought the Pirates to within a half-game of the National League East leadership.

The Los Angeles Dodgers, meanwhile, stretched their lead to three games over San Francisco in the NL West with a 9-2 victory over the Giants. Elsewhere, the Phillies kept their slim edge in the East by trimming the Chicago Cubs 8-1; the Montreal Expos tripped the New York Mets 8-2 and the San Diego Padres turned back the Atlanta Braves 5-3.

Dodgers 9, Giants 2

Joe Ferguson hit a three-run homer and doubled twice to lead Los Angeles over San Francisco. Doug Rau and Rick Rhoden combined to scatter seven hits as Los Angeles swept the two-game series with San Francisco.

Phillies 8, Cubs 1

Left-hander Steve Carlton pitched a seven-hitter and Mike Schmidt drove in four runs with a double and a three-run homer to lead Philadelphia past Chicago.

Expos 8, Mets 2

Ross Grimsley scattered five hits for his 17th victory of the season and Larry Parrish drove in three runs to lead Montreal over New York in a game called by rain in the bottom of the seventh inning.

Padres 5, Braves 3

Jerry Turner broke a tie with a run-scoring single in the eighth inning, triggering San Diego over Atlanta. Pinch-hitter Oscar Gamble led off the Padres' eighth with a single and moved to second when Barry Evans' dribbler in front of the plate went for a hit. Turner then drilled a single to right, scoring Ozzie Smith, who was running for Gamble.

got the Pittsburgh Pirates off the ground and they haven't come down to earth yet.

Take This...And That!
Chicago Cubs' manager Herman Franks "dusts" home plate umpire Doug Harvey from the right (top) and left (bottom) after Harvey warned Cubs' pitcher Rick Reuschel about

"dusting" in the eighth inning of Wednesday's game at Chicago against Philadelphia. For Franks, it was three kicks and you're out. Harvey ejected Franks from the game. The Cubs lost, 8-1. (AP Laser-photo)

Series Would Give Exposure

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The San Francisco Giants manager looks forward to the day when people will stop calling him "Johnny Antonelli or Joe Botticelli" or other names that, while similar, aren't his.

Joe Altobelli, who has done probably one of the best managing jobs in the major leagues this summer, figures that when people finally get his name right, it will be after some extended national exposure — like in the World Series. "Nobody really knows this team very well," Altobelli said, his voice raised over the country and western music blaring from the clubhouse radio prior to Wednesday's game against the Dodgers. "People don't know who many of the players are, and they never heard of me."

"Most everybody's heard about many of the Dodgers. Much of that recognition coming because they've been in the World Series. And they know a few players — Willie McCovey, Vida Blue — on our team. But players like Jack Clark and Darrell Evans still aren't very well known yet."

Altobelli, whose surprising Giants are in the thick of the National League West race with Los Angeles, said most people just assume the Dodgers will walk off with the NL West pennant.

"They know the Dodgers, they don't know us, so they say, 'Ah, the Dodgers will surely beat the Giants.' But they forget about people like Jack Clark," Altobelli said.

Yellow Jackets, Irish Picked To Win Games

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

Notre Dame knows how Muhammad Ali felt back in 1967 — today the champ, tomorrow just another chump, the title taken away before an angry punch can be thrown in defense.

Voted No. 1 in national college football rankings after some wild upheavals in the bowl games, the Fighting Irish woke up a few months later to learn they had been dropped to No. 5 by the pollsters.

On top: Alabama, which felt it should have been there in the first place.

So Dandy Dan Devine and his talented South Benders set out this week to redress some grievances — with spirit and punch.

Meanwhile, the country gets an early feel of strength in the Pacific 10, spawner of the Rose Bowl, with UCLA-Washington in the headliner but Stanford picked to pull the upset of the week.

Last week: 7-3 for .700. This week's version of Russian roulette:

Notre Dame 30, Missouri 14: They say the Irish have a fullback named Heavens, who can't wait. Missouri is known as the "Show Me" state. Okay, Dandy Dan, show 'em.

UCLA 23, Washington 17: The Huskies are Rose Bowl champions on an impetus kick, but UCLA is determined to halt the pendulum of league supremacy swinging to the north. UCLA has a back named Bashore, which is not a real estate development. He just covers a lot of it.

Nebraska 28, California 20: A tentative vote here. The Cornhuskers may not have recovered from their Alabama bruises — physical and pride.

Stanford 28, Oklahoma 22: Sooner coaching problems spill onto the field.

Penn State 32, Rutgers 7: Ex-Army Coach Red Blaik, a legend, regards Penn State's Joe Paterno as the classiest of the current college coaching breed.

Georgia Tech 20, Duke 17: Tech's Pepper Rodgers has decided to start shooting from the hip with the "I" formation.

Southern Methodist 33, Texas Christian 14: After all, the Mustangs are the papa of the who's-got-the-ball razzle-dazzle.

Mississippi 27, Memphis State 10: Bear Bryant's star pupil, Steve Sloan, has returned to the SEC as Ole Miss coach — and it's not for his health.

Texas A&M 33, Kansas 14: The Aggies are bigger and rangier than the cornstalks of Kansas.

Florida State 20, Syracuse 7: The Seminoles, 10-2 last year, are making eyes — not "I's" — at football's big time.

Postal Talks Fail Narrow Differences

By OWEN ULLMANN
AP Labor Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — With

a bargaining deadline nine days away, officials of the Postal Service and three unions are continuing contract talks that so far have failed to narrow their differences.

Special mediator James Healy planned to first meet separately with the two sides today and then call them together for another round of face-to-face bargaining.

Sources close to the negotiations said the unions, which represent 516,000 postal workers, spent Tuesday and Wednesday arguing their case for a larger pay raise before management bargainers. The Postal Service did not respond to the unions' wage demand, said the sources. "There's nothing happening to report," one union official said after Wednesday's session. He declined to be named.

A proposed settlement reached July 21 was rejected by union members last month.

A nationwide strike was averted only hours before the deadline when the two sides agreed to a limited bargaining session that would require settlement through binding arbitration if the two sides cannot settle on their own by Sept. 16.

The rejected contract gave workers a 19.5 percent pay increase over three years, including cost-of-living boosts, raising the annual salary of a typical postal worker from about $16,000 to $19,100 by 1981.

The unions, arguing that the wage hike does not provide enough protection from inflation, want to remove a ceiling on the cost-of-living adjustments. Under the previous settlement, the cost-of-living raises could not exceed 9.5 percent over the three years.

A negotiated settlement reached before the deadline would have to be resubmitted to postal workers for ratification. But if settlement appears unattainable, Healy would settle the disputed issues himself.

However, an arbitrated settlement would not necessarily remove the threat of a strike if its terms were unacceptable to rank-and-file union members. Strikes by federal employees are illegal.

Leaders of the American Postal Workers Union, representing 165,000 members, have said they would not consider themselves bound by an arbitrated settlement.

Indicted On New Counts

MADISONVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A Monroe County grand jury has indicted Joe Shepard, a fugitive already charged with killing two teen-age girls, on charges of abducting and raping two women.

Shepard, 25, of Tellico Plains, has been at large since July 17 when he used a knife to escape from Bradley County Jail in Cleveland, where he was awaiting trial on the murder charges.

The latest indictments, returned Tuesday, charge him with kidnapping and raping one woman Feb. 26 and another Feb. 27.

It was on Feb. 27 that Roxanne Woodson, 16, of Tellico Plains disappeared, provoking a large-scale search which ended April 8 when her body was found in a shallow grave in the yard of the home of Shepard's parents.

After questioning Shepard, who was arrested and returned from North Carolina, police found the body of Cathy Clowers, 15, who had vanished March 25, 1976. The Clowers girl had been buried in a shallow grave in Polk County.

Anne Chastain, dispatcher at the Bradley County Jail, said Wednesday there were no new leads on Shepard's whereabouts but it was believed he had fled the state.

Two other men who escaped with Shepard were recaptured a short time later.

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, SEPT. 8, 1978

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is a fine day for new beginnings of all kinds, but be careful of specific details to make sure they are accurate. Evening finds some delays and obstacles in the path of long-time goals.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Be enthused about whatever fascinates you most and get much accomplished. Look at a loved one from a different angle and feel happier together.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A different perspective is necessary in dealing with associates for greater success in the future. Get details clear in your mind before you tackle any important work.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Use more up-to-date methods in handling work where you have to meet a deadline. Get more cooperation from co-workers.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Plan a new kind of entertainment early and later it works out fine. Cement better relations with loved ones.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Know what the needs of kin are and have more harmony and happiness at home. Not a good day for entertaining at home. Buckle down to business you have to attend to.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Decide early who can be of greatest assistance to help you in an upcoming project and then waste no time contacting them. Get all the information you will need.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Study your true monetary status and improve it with good planning. Be practical and sensible, though. Don't put off making needed repairs.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You can gain your fondest aims with less effort than usual if you change your attitude. Pay attention to detail where business matters are concerned.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Talk over with trusted persons how to gain your goals more speedily. Try to gain the support of an important person. Clear up problems with loved one where possible.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Look to a clever friend for aid in gaining a personal goal. Get into the details of such. Show that you are open-minded.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get involved in community affairs that will give you added prestige. Do whatever will extend career matters.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Daytime is best for getting out to new places and being with newcomers, but be sure to support a partner in the afternoon, evening. Follow hunches for good results.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be able to take something that is outmoded and make something worthwhile and profitable out of it. Teach early to listen to the views of others before reaching decisions or passing judgment. Add sports to school curricula.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Proposals for regulating liquor-by-the-drink that would allow drinks sold in lounges adjacent to restaurants but strictly limit permits for social clubs "follow the legislature's intent," former Gov. Jim Holshouser said Wednesday.

Holshouser, head of a panel that drafted the regulations, officially released them at a news conference Wednesday and said he believes liquor-by-the-drink may improve alcohol control in the state.

The proposals now go to the Board of Alcoholic Control, and its chairman, Marvin Speight, said it would hold a hearing Oct. 16. Speight said the board would act quickly, and would be ready to issue permits by Nov. 1 if mixed-drink referendums pass in any of seven communities where they are being held this month.

Charlotte and Mecklenburg County votes on the issue Friday, followed four days later by Southern Pines, Orange County and Black Mountain. Other local elections will be held this month in Sanford, Lenoir and Dare County.

The Holshouser panel's recommendations, drafted after a series of public hearings, are most lenient for restaurants but say the establishment must make a majority of its sales in food rather than drinks. The regulations do not restrict mixed drinks to Grade A restaurants.

"I'm sure everyone in North Carolina can find something in these proposals with which they can disagree," Holshouser said. "But I would hope the commission would find them a balanced, reasonable approach."

Holshouser said regulations for social establishments such as private clubs "caused the most difficulty." The proposals are strict for clubs, requiring a 30-day wait for membership, a current roster of members, a "substantial" annual membership fee, a membership committee of at least three persons, written policies and membership requirements that show "a common bond among the members."

Holshouser said he believed additional alcohol law enforcement officers will be needed as more communities vote in liquor-by-the-drink.

"There's going to be a need for a new kind of enforcement officer, one with an accounting background who can go through a restaurant's books and determine if 51 percent of its sales are in food, not mixed drinks," he said.

Under the law enacted by the legislature this summer, the current practice of brown-bagging, in which drinkers take their own bottles to their tables, will be banned in restaurants selling mixed drinks but permitted with drink sales in social establishments.

Holshouser said he thought the next legislature should "examine very carefully" that policy.

School Order Wins A Stay

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The court order requiring 63 Christian schools to file annual operational reports with the state Board of Education was temporarily stayed Wednesday by the North Carolina Court of Appeals until the court decides whether it will review the case.

The court could stay the lower court order indefinitely pending review of the case or it could lift the stay and require the schools to comply.

The ruling requiring the schools to comply with the state-regulation for the annual reports was handed down Tuesday by Wake Superior Court Judge Donald Smith.

The state took 11 of the 63 church-affiliated schools objecting to the filing of the reports to court. The schools refused to file the reports this past school year because they said they represented state regulation of religion. But the state maintains the reports are necessary to insure that all children in North Carolina receive an equal educational opportunity.

Smith ruled Tuesday that the state has the authority to regulate certain aspects of private schools, even if the schools are church affiliated. The judge said the state's overall regulation of operations did not interfere with religious freedom.

If the appeals court orders the schools to comply with Smith's order, the schools could ask the N.C. Supreme Court to stay the order.

Church officials said Tuesday, after Smith's ruling was made public, that they would take their fight against the reports all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court if necessary. They also have said they will not file the reports this year and will go to jail if necessary.

The state has 13 days to respond to the schools' request for review of the case and an indefinite stay of Smith's order.

favorite to hold the jack of hearts.

To avoid losing two hearts, declarer needed an elimination and end play. After drawing trumps, declarer should cash the ace and king of clubs and ruff a club, eliminating both minor suits from his combined holding.

Now declarer leads the king of hearts, and West is faced with a Hobson's choice. Ducking the heart cannot help, for declarer simply leads another heart toward his queen to hold his heart losers to one. But winning the ace of hearts is no better because West cannot safely exit from his hand. If he plays a diamond, he presents declarer with a ruff-stuff. And if West leads a heart, declarer runs that round to his ten, and again he loses no more than one heart.

A theme well known to readers of bridge columns cropped up in one of the games at the American Contract Bridge League's Summer North American Championships, held in Toronto, July 21-30.

Had his five-card major suit not been so good, South would have opened the bidding with one no trump. Over his actual one spade opening West overcalled two hearts and North raised to two spades. South felt that, in view of his partner's free raise, he had enough to go to game.

West led the king of diamonds and continued with ace and another. Declarer won the queen and drew trumps in two rounds. Now his problem was to avoid two heart losers.

The declarer we watched apparently was not a student of bridge columns. He led a heart to the queen and, when that won, he continued with a finesse of the ten. West won the jack and cashed the ace for down one.

Without the heart overcall, declarer's line was reasonable. However, West's interference changed all that, for now he was a strong

Re-Run Season Ending

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC posted notice it's ready for the new TV season by listing eight of the 10 most-watched programs during the week ending Sept. 3, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. show.

A preview installment of CBS' "Flying High" comedy series was the week's mostwatched program, but that didn't keep ABC from winning the networks' ratings competition for the sixth week in a row.

ABC finished the week with a rating of 15.8, compared to 14.3 for CBS and 13.9 for NBC. The networks say that means in an average prime time minute during the week, 15.8 percent of the homes in the country were watching ABC.

The success of "Flying High," a comedy based on the antics of a group of airline stewardesses, was clear indication TV watchers are anxious to leave the summer reruns behind. Eighteen of the 20 top-rated shows were repeats.

"Flying High" pulled a rating of 28.2, which means of all the homes in the country with TV, 28.2 percent saw at least part of the program. The other Top 20 show broadcast for the first time, "New Maverick," an ABC movie based on the old Western series starring James Garner and Jack Kelley, was No. 8.

The bottom of the ratings belonged to CBS and NBC. NBC's "Bionic Woman" was No. 49, followed "Police Story" on NBC and three CBS shows, "The Bob Newhart Show," "Plant Family" and a news special.

Here are the week's Top 10

TV programs:
"Flying High," with a rating of 28.2 representing 20.5 million homes. CBS: "Three's Company," 23.1 or 16.8 million, "Laverne and Shirley," 22.8 or 16.6 million, and "Charlie's Angels," 22.3 or 16.3 million, all ABC; "M-A-S-H," 21.7 or 15.8 million, CBS; "Carter Country," 19.9 or 14.5 million, "Happy Days," 19.8 or 14.4 million, ABC movie, "New Maverick," 19.4 or 14.1 million, and "Starky and Hutch," 18.8 or 13.7 million, all ABC, and "The Jeffersons," 18.4 or 14.3 million, CBS.

'Lifeline' Has Flaws, But Worth Your Time

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Barring a last-minute schedule shift, an advance peek at NBC's new "Lifeline" medical series is available tonight. The non-fiction show has flaws, but it's well worth your time.

It's made by the same folks who did CBS' superb "Body Human" medical specials — Thomas W. Moore, Dr. Robert Fuiz and the Tomorrow Entertainment and Medcom companies.

Although NBC calls the series "pioneering," it does exactly what "Body Human" did. It follows doctors about their often-risky labors, shows the medical crises they and their patients face.

Tonight, it observes the life and work of Dr. Judson Randolph, chief surgeon at Children's Hospital, National Medical Center, in Washington, D.C., where he's seen treating five young patients.

First comes the personal side of Randolph, a tall, pleasant man with a Southern twang. We see him at a high school football game with his two sons, reminiscing about his high school days.

He was too skinny to play football, he recalls, but tried anyway. Later, he found that in the operating room "you can be as good as you want to be, no matter what you weigh."

Then, to show the wide range of medical decisions he must make, he faces the show's first patient, a newborn baby boy with a malformed swallowing tube. Immediate surgery is needed.

And he does it, gently warning the father the infant will be in critical condition the next 10 to 14 days.

The next case: A 15-year-old boy with a history of diabetes and severe abdominal pains that puzzle the doctors.

Another patient: A 9-year-old girl with a golf ball-size mass in her right lung. It could be malignant. Exploratory surgery might be needed.

However, perhaps in implied response to charges surgeons are often too quick to operate, no surgery is ordered for either patient. Only observation and further tests occur.

Amid brief glimpses of Randolph helping two young burn victims — one dies 55 days later — the show's major crisis proves the baby boy, who develops post-operative complications and is near death.

Center Finds Child Sexual Abuse Not Uncommon

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

"Hello. This is a recorded message. If you think you are being sexually abused, please stay on the line... You may feel scared now, but help is available... You don't have to give your name."

That is the beginning of the 2½-minute message you will hear if you call the sex-abuse hotline operated by Child and Family Services of Knoxville, Tenn., under a grant from the federal government.

Nine hundred calls a month come to the hotline. The average age of the callers is 15; most are girls. They seek help with a problem that people are reluctant to even recognize: the sexual abuse of children within a family situation. Incest.

One in 10 of the callers stays on the line after the recording ends and talks to a counselor. The others listen to the information and hang up. Officials say some youngsters — they do not know how many — dial the recording several times, trying to work up the courage to tell their troubles.

Charles Gentry, head of Child and Family Services, a private, non-profit, voluntary agency, said he believes sexual abuse of children is increasing. "With more single-parent households we're going through a transition in our whole culture as far as family structure and I think it does lend itself to sex abuse of children... Many people who are feeling inadequate as adults turn to children for affection and may eventually turn to the child for sexual pleasure."

Other authorities say the increase in divorce and remarriage, creating parents who are not biologically related to their children, has helped make the problem worse.

Douglas Besharov, director of the National Center, on Child Abuse and Neglect, which provided $43,000 to finance the Knoxville hotline in a year-long experiment, said an estimated 60,000 to 100,000 children are sexually abused by family members or friends every year.

According to 1974 statistics compiled by the National Clearinghouse on Child Neglect and Abuse of the American Humane Association, about 12 percent of all validated cases of child abuse involve sex.

The Knoxville program, which started in February, is believed to be the only one of its kind in the country, combining a taped message with follow-up counseling for the youngsters and their families.

Kee McFarlane, a program director with the National Center on Child Abuse, said the impersonality of the initial recorded message encourages children to call about sexual abuse. "There is a fear of reporting, a fear of asking questions," Ms. McFarlane said. "Knowing for sure that they can get a tape recording that they can hang up on" makes it easier for the youngsters, she said.

"The anonymous call permits the person to relax a bit," said Gentry. The hotline is aimed primarily at children, rather than at social workers, counselors or other adults. It is designed to help them with a problem which they often are too scared to admit.

Youngsters who stay on the line after the recorded message talk to one of two professional counselors. They may give their names if they wish but do not have to. Information on callers who identify themselves is relayed to the protective services division of the Tennessee Department of Human Services for investigation.

"Ordinarily, about 10 percent of the people who call stay on the line," Gentry said. "On the average we report eight to 10 cases a month that we feel are fairly certain, valid, sex-abuse cases." The others who stay on the line want information or reassurance.

The taped message also is designed to reassure and inform: "Sex abuse may be any kind of physical contact that makes you uncomfortable and uneasy. In other words, if you have a feeling something is wrong you may be right."

"Sex abuse is any kind of fondling or sexual play between an adult and a child or between an adult and a teen-ager or between a child and someone slightly older... It can include disclosing private parts of the body. Sometimes it means taking pictures of nude or partly nude children or teen-agers..."

Most of the callers to the Knoxville hotline are children, but some are adults. "Occasionally, we get a call from an abuser," Gentry said. "I remember one of the situations was a fellow who had attempted sex with a 5-year-old... He started feeling very guilty about it and then he called us and did report himself."

One caller, a girl, was only 7 years old. "It was an attempted intercourse situation by the father," Gentry said.

Federal officials hope to use the experience gained in Knoxville, a city of 180,000, to help other communities set up similar programs. Authorities also are trying to train school counselors and other professionals to recognize the problem.

Too often, said Gentry, adults do not want to hear a child's problem; they block out what they do not want to believe. "It's very easy for a counselor to say to a kid, 'Oh, that didn't really happen.'"

The Knoxville hotline has brought more callers than expected. As a result, Gentry's agency has a "tremendous waiting list" — 50 cases — for follow-up counseling. If the youngsters are not helped soon, he said, it may be too late.

"Many of those 50 cases will not be treatable by the time we get to them," he said. "They will start to build defenses against counseling services."

No studies have been done so far to determine what has happened to the youngsters who called the hotline and reported a problem. Gentry is encouraged, however, by the initial response. "I think people are beginning to talk about the problem," he said.

"Just because other places demand big deposits doesn't mean Planters does. They think All Americans deserve interest as high as 5½%, 6%, even 6½% for as little as one dollar."

Federal law and regulation prohibit the payment of a time deposit prior to maturity unless three months of the interest thereon is forfeited and interest on the amount withdrawn is reduced to the passbook rate.
