'More Flexibility' Said Needed In Summit Talks

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

CAMP DAVID, Md. (AP) — The Middle East summit has produced fresh Egyptian-Israeli contacts but is approaching a deadline at sundown today that could keep it in limbo until next week.

Pursuing his middleman role, President Carter met twice Thursday with Egypt's Anwar Sadat, who later conferred with Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan.

The summit press office announced belatedly that Ezer Weizman, the Israeli defense minister, also met with Sadat on Wednesday night.

Although Carter has not brought Israel's Menachem Begin and Sadat together at the conference table since Sept. 7, it was apparent that all three delegations were involved in a busy round of meetings.

But spokesman Jody Powell said "more progress and more flexibility are essential" if the parley is to succeed.

Powell, the White House press secretary, said Thursday that Carter's strenuous effort to win Israeli-Egyptian agreement on a "framework for reaching peace" in the Mideast has yet to succeed.

However, Powell seemed to drop a hint that participants remained hopeful of fashioning a comprehensive blueprint for continuing negotiations after Camp David.

Acknowledging that a proposed summit-ending document was being considered, he said, "It is certainly more than three or four paragraphs, I can tell you that."

There were conflicting reports in the Middle East as to how long the summit would last.

The Cairo newspaper Al Akhbar, rating the chances of reaching an agreement as "virtually nil," said President Sadat probably would leave the conference for Washington today.

Al Akhbar's editor-in-chief, Musa Sabry, wrote from Camp David, "The conference now is going through its last hopeless moment." He said Carter is undertaking "his last efforts to save the conference, but these efforts seem hopeless."

Meanwhile, Israel's Foreign Ministry said the summit is "likely to last over the weekend."

In Detroit, Former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said Thursday he was optimistic about the talks and "I expect them to succeed."

Sen. Richard Stone, D-Fla., chairman of the Senate Mideast subcommittee, said in a telephone interview that he has kept in touch with the talks indirectly and declared, "I have not been dampened in my optimism."

Declining to speculate on how or when the talks will end, Powell said he was trying to "strike a balance" between optimism and pessimism.

"An extreme in either direction is simply not justified by the facts of the matter," he said. "It is a very difficult situation in which we have to deal with a considerable amount of uncertainty."

Reminded that he had said 24 hours earlier the summit was in its "final stages," Powell, who is spokesman for all three governments, said:

"How long the final stage will last is a matter of some conjecture. The final stage could be the longest stage."

An American official, who asked not to be identified, said the conference could continue beyond the Jewish Sabbath, a 24-hour period ending at nightfall Saturday.

Managua Bracing For Rebel Act On Independence Day

By TOM FENTON
Associated Press Writer

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Nicaraguan commandos backed by armored cars and machine gun-firing helicopters pressed their assault today on the city of Leon. But the rebels there and in two other northern cities appeared to be holding on, and Managua braced for a possible attack to coincide with the country's independence day.

The Venezuelan government, meanwhile, dispatched four warplanes and a military transport to Nicaragua's southern neighbor Costa Rica. Venezuelan President Carlos Andres Perez, who has called for international mediation of the Nicaraguan conflict, denied any hostile intentions, however.

The Venezuelan planes — two Canberra light bombers, two OV-10 fighter-bombers and a C130 transport — were reported to have arrived Thursday in San Jose, capital of Costa Rica, a democratic nation without armed forces.

Perez also sent his foreign minister, Simon Alberto Consalvi, to San Jose.

Political observers in Caracas interpreted the Venezuelan move as a show of support for tiny Costa Rica, whose airspace was violated earlier this week by Nicaraguan forces pursuing guerrillas. But there was no indication the Venezuelans would become directly involved in the Nicaraguan fighting.

Leon, Nicaragua's second largest city with a population of 100,000, has been occupied since Saturday by Sandinista guerrillas seeking the overthrow of Prescdent Anastasio Somoza. The leftist guerrillas and ordinary citizens supporting them also hold two other major cities in northwest Nicaragua, Esteli and Chinandega.

The rebels have lost control of the southern city of Masaya and reportedly were repulsed in an attack on Penas Blancas on the Costa Rican border. However, they were still entrenched in Diriamba, 20 miles south of Managua, Jinotepe, five miles south of Diriamba, and Rivas, 55 miles further south.

Somoza has mobilized reserves of the national guard, the nation's army, to counter the rebel attacks, declared martial law and placed Managua under 8 p.m.-to 5 a.m. curfew. The Red Cross estimates 500 persons have been killed in the week's fighting nationwide, but Somoza admits to only 30 guardsmen slain.

Several Changes In City Personnel Announced

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

City Manager Ed Wyatt announced several key administrative personnel changes at Thursday night's City Council session.

Wyatt reported that Joe Laney, the executive director of the Redevelopment Commission and Housing Authority, "has been designated on a permanent basis as Community Development Task Force Director."

The city manager introduced Bobby E. Roberson, who is presently engaged in the contracting business in Wilson, as the city's new Director of Planning. Roberson was on hand with his wife at last night's meeting but will assume his new duties here within the next month, Wyatt said.

In addition, Ben Shivar, who has been employed in the City Planning Department here, has been transferred to the position of Community Development Coordinator, according to Wyatt, and J. L. (Skip) Browder, who has served as acting city planner for the past several months, will resume his position as senior planner.

Jesse Harris, the city's Community Development-Citizen Participation Officer and Human Relations Director, will be relocated from Moyewood to the third floor of the Municipal Building and will be directly responsible to the city manager on a day to day basis, it was noted.

Laney, who has been serving as CD director since May, has been employed by the Redevelopment Commission and Housing Authority since 1972. Wyatt said that Laney played a key role in filing the city's three-year Small Cities application with the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Laney, who will continue in his role as executive director of the two city agencies, is married and the father of three children.

Roberson, 35, is a native of Washington and, according to Wyatt, "has a wealth of municipal planning and administrative experience." Wyatt said that Roberson began his professional career with the city of Wilson as its first resident planner and established the planning department.

Prior to entering private business last year, Roberson served as assistant to the city manager and director of planning in Wilson. He graduated from Atlantic Christian College and pursued graduate studies in public affairs at the University of North Carolina.

Shivar, who has been associated with the city as a planner since October of 1976, received a B.A. degree in political science from the University of North Carolina at Charlotte and Master of Public Affairs degree from N.C. State University.

According to Wyatt, the new coordinator "will be involved with staff support of the CD program especially in the city's effort to receive discretionary funding from HUD." In addition, Shivar will be involved in grants programs, it was mentioned, and seeking out sources of state and federal funding.

Wyatt pointed out, "With a great need for planning in Greenville, it has been determined that the Planning Department would be responsible only for planning in order to be responsive to the needs of a rapidly growing community."

He added, "Of immediate importance is the completion of the land development codes review and the completion of the annexation feasibility study. Additionally, the Planning Department will continue to carry out the planning aspects of the CD program."

Still Search For Victims

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Rescue workers and clean-up crews got a break in the weather today as they sifted debris for bodies in the aftermath of torrential rains that caused at least $15 million in damages and left 10 people dead, including seven children.

"We're definitely out of the woods, at least for the moment," Robert McKechnie, a weather service forecaster, said as partly cloudy skies prevailed over the area Thursday night.

The damage estimate could double when detailed surveys have been finished, city officials reported, and the state Office of Emergency Services said it might have been the city's worst flood.

Ted Sniegocki, a city spokesman, said municipal facilities suffered $3.8 million in damage, private property $7.25 million. He said 400 to 500 homes in Little Rock had been damaged.

The National Insurance Institute estimated damage to vehicles, contractors equipment and mobile homes at about $5 million.

The number of National Guard soldiers on duty was cut from 116 to 28 Thursday but guardsmen still were assigned to patrol one flooded subdivision overnight.

Eight people died in Little Rock and two in Benton, a community of 17,000 some 22 miles southwest of here. Seven of the victims were age 10 or younger. The oldest victim was a 33-year-old mother of five.

They drowned Wednesday after rains of 5 to 13 inches changed placid creeks snaking through central Arkansas into raging torrents that swept out of their banks.

Little Rock's eight dead were in a two-mile area along Rock Creek.

As water receded, rescue workers checked a 30-squareblock residential area for bodies in the wreckage emerging from under six feet of water.

"We hope we don't find any more (bodies), but we're afraid we'll find a few more," said Lt. Ed Ethridge of the Little Rock police.

In Benton, 7-year-old Darrel McCutcheon and his brother, Paul, died while walking home from school. Their bodies were found in a railroad yard.

The other victims included Linda Millirons, 33; Ronnie Cole, 3; Lisa Michelle Scarver, 1; Justin Talley, 3; Gwen Robinson, 8, and her brother, Carlo Robinson, 5; Marjorie Zaloudek, 22, and Marjorita Green, 18, all of Little Rock.

Gov. David Pryor asked President Carter to declare the area a disaster area, which would make it eligible for federal assistance under several programs.

Heavy rains inundated east Texas Thursday wih 15 inches drenching Center before noon.

Less Smoking

WASHINGTON (AP) — Smoking is expected to fall this year to its lowest American level since 1970 in at least in one area — the number of cigarettes sold per person 18 years or older — the Agriculture Department says.

A USDA report Thursday said tentative estimates show per capita adult smoking at 4,000 cigarettes — 200 packs of 20 each — this year, down from 4,051 in 1977.

The per capita figures include non-smokers as well as smokers.

The per capita rate was 3,985 cigarettes in 1970 and has been above 4,000 since then, said Robert H. Miller, who worked on the report.

The figure first rose above 4,000 in 1959, he said.

The peak year was 1963, just before the U.S. surgeon general's report linking smoking with lung disease and other ailments. The figure that year was 4,345 cigarettes — more than 217 packs — for each American 18 or older.

"CALENDAR ADVERTISING"

Some Greenville area businesses may be receiving bills from "Law Enforcement Calendar" for advertising that was never bargained for by anyone in the business.

In fact, says Doug Jackson, Crime Prevention Officer of the Greenville Police Department, it's very doubtful that any such calendar would ever be printed or could possibly hold all the advertising that has been "sold" throughout the country.

Jackson began investigation of the "Calendar" after a local store received a statement for $42.50 which looked very professional and even had the correct address of the firm down to the first name of the advertising director.

The return address used is Law Enforcement Calendar, National Press Building-Room 1129, Washington, D. C. 20045.

Jackson alerted a detective in the Consumer Fraud Division of the District of Columbia Police Department who told him he went to the room where the mail is going and found it "full of unopened mail."

Jackson said he is contacting the U. S. Postal Inspector and the N. C. Attorney General.

He asked that any business or individual having one of these bills to bring it to him at the Police Department.

Private Club Is Given Approval By Councilmen

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The City Council gave its approval, following a public hearing last night, to a request by "Peaches" for a special use permit to operate a private club and restaurant in the Greenville Square Shopping Center.

In approving the application, tendered on behalf of "Peaches" by Chris Van Nortwick, the Council granted the permit with the stipulation that no films, topless activity, pornographic movies or massage parlor services would be offered at the club.

Van Nortwick, who explained that memberships would be sold for the Peaches Restaurant and Disco, assured the Council that he planned to operate a "first class" business. He distributed copies of the proposed membership rules and charges and noted that the minimum age for membership would be 21.

Councilman John Howard asked Van Nortwick, who said he was president of Sting Corp., representing Peaches, if he would be willing to sign a statement regarding the prohibiting of the activities mentioned. Van Nortwick said that he would be glad to sign such a statement.

Howard noted that the Council was trying to treat Van Nortwick the same way that that R. C. Robbins, who sought to operate a private club back in July, was treated. The Council granted Robbins a special use permit with the same stipulations prohibiting the undesirable activities.

Approval was given by the Council for three projects in the Riverdale, Greenfield Terrace and Higgs Neighborhoods under the General Neighborhood Improvement Program.

Under the program, Community Development

Committee Formed For Information On Tobacco

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Congressman Walter B. Jones today announced the formation of a tobacco program information committee in the House of Representatives. The mission of the committee is to lobby other members of Congress in an effort to preserve and strengthen the existing government tobacco farm program.

The committee's membership will include representatives from congressional districts in which tobacco is grown. Agreement to create the group came at a luncheon meeting attended by 25 members of the House of Representatives. Those attending stressed the importance of concentrating on the topic of the tobacco farm program, rather than the more controversial issues of health impact of cigarettes or restrictions on smoking in public places.

"We've found that many congressmen can be persuaded to vote for the tobacco farm program, once we've explained the facts to them," Jones explained. "So preserving the existing system is our prime contingent."

"By organizing this committee, we can broaden our base of support in Congress and present our case in a more effective manner, Jones said."

A chairman and executive board for the committee will be chosen in the near future. Jones noted that many other such committees, or caucuses, have been formed in Congress recently including groups concentrating on textiles, ports, blue collar workers and women.

Four Collisions Here Yesterday

An estimated $4,225 property damage resulted from a series of four traffic collisions investigated yesterday by Greenville Police.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 5:20 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Myrtle and Raleigh Avenues involving cars driven by Clarence Merton Edwards of Havelock and Tammy Lee Brantley of 511B Watauga Ave.

Police, who charged Edwards with failing to yield the right of way, set damage at $1,100 to the Edwards car and $1,300 to the Brantley vehicle.

James Thomas Fields of 1502 Spruce St. was charged with failing to reduce his speed enough to avoid an accident following investigation of a 7:50 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Tenth Street and College Hill Drive.

Investigators said the Fields car collided with a truck driven by Eugene Carl Clark of Route 6, Greenville, causing no damage to the truck, but resulting in an estimated $1,000 damage to the Fields car.

A 3 p.m. collision at the intersection of Dickinson Avenue and Hooker Road involved vehicles driven by Carol Taft Barrett of 303 Greenfield Blvd. and Cathy Lorraine Ward of Winterville, according to officers who estimated damage at $25 to the truck driven by Barrett and $500 to the Ward car.

Cars driven by Donald Gene Jones Jr. of Route 5, Greenville, and Mark Douglas Woodworth of 125 Avery St. collided about 3:25 p.m. at the intersection of Greene Street and Mumford Road.

Officers estimated damage from the collision at $100 to the Jones car and $200 to the Woodworth auto.

Grandmother Wants Teens To Put Off Wedding

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I have a wonderful 18-year-old grandson I'll call Sonny, who is going to marry an 18-year-old girl he's known two months!

Sonny was graduated from high school with honors, and got a job right away as an apprentice with a good company. They are sending him to school two nights a week. He makes good wages.

The girl he's marrying had a baby four months ago by a man who skipped the state. She and her baby are living with her parents. Sonny had dated her only a few times when he asked her to marry him. Her people grabbed on to him fast, hired a hall and made plans for the wedding which is coming off in two weeks.

My grandson never smoked, drank or messed with girls. He is an inexperienced kid, and I think he's being taken advantage of.

How can I break them up? Not forever, but just long enough for Sonny to get to know the girl better? It's all happening too fast.

GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: Where are Sonny's parents? If he has none, and you are looking after him, enlist the help of a minister, doctor, or a trusted friend to help the boy realize the importance of a marriage commitment. (If Sonny has parents, they should guide him.) If he's not being taken advantage of—and sincerely loves the girl—accept her, and hope for the best.

DEAR ABBY: I kept my mother in my home for nine years. She is senile, babbles endlessly and messes the floor, her clothes, and her bed regularly. What a chore!

When I told my sisters and brothers, who all live out of town, that I wanted to put Mom in a nursing home, you should have heard the howl!

They reminded me of how mother took care of me when I was a helpless baby, now it was my turn to take care of her.

Abby, to compare a child with an elderly senile person is ridiculous.

A child can be diapered in public in a stroller. An elderly person cannot.

A child can be left in a playpen. An elderly person cannot.

It's easy to get a baby sitter, but just try to get someone to stay with an old person. Even relatives won't help.

So I went out and found the cleanest nursing home I could afford and took my mother there. I said goodbye with tears in my eyes to someone who didn't even know me.

Then I went home and started being a wife and mother again. I thanked my husband for his willingness to pay for the care of my mother. (It's not cheap.)

Then the letters started to come from my brothers and sisters who had never kept Mom in their homes for one day. They said, "YOU put Mom in a nursing home! How could you?"

I don't need an answer, Abby. I know I did the right thing. I just had to get this off my chest. If you print this, I'll carry it in my wallet forever.

HEAVY-HEARTED IN N.J.

DEAR HEAVY: Here's something for your wallet.

CONFIDENTIAL TO " SHOULD I?" No. Don't put him on the spot by asking him to tell you in so many words. When a boy stops calling a girl, he is silently telling her that it's all over. Accept it, and turn your attention elsewhere.

If you need help in writing letters of sympathy, congratulations or thank-you letters, get Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for all Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents) envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

'Fashion Fever' Show Held At Country Club

The Greenville Golf and Country Club was the scene of a "fashion fever luncheon" held yesterday. The annual event was sponsored by the ladies of the country club.

Ensembles in berry, turquoise, peach, slate green, navy and shades of brown ranging from oatmeal, camel, earth brown, champagne and chocolate brown, plum and silver gray were modeled.

Cowl necklines, the blouson look, bell boy jacket, shirtwaist dresses, the sack look, seperates and coordinates were among the fashion styles.

ECU Pianist Is Finalist

Donna Coleman, pianist and faculty member in the School of Music, East Carolina University, has placed as one of three finalists in the Kennedy Center/Rockefeller Foundation International Piano Competition.

Competing with 11 other semi-finalists, Ms. Coleman will now enter the finalist competition being held tomorrow and Sunday to determine the ranking of the top three contenders.

She will present a full 90 minute concert at Kennedy Center tomorrow, Saturday, Sept. 16 at 3 p.m. For her program she will play the Beethoven "Sonata in A flat, Opus 110," Charles Ives' "First Sonata for Piano," as well as selections by Salvatore Martirano, David Bates, and Gregory Ballard.

The finalist selected as top performer will receive $10,000, with second and third place performers receiving $5,000 and $3,000, respectively.

Miss Coleman, a newcomer to the ECU School of Music faculty this year, is a specialist in 20th century music, especially the music of Charles Ives. She performed in Greenville on Sept. 6 at the Fletcher Recital Hall in her first local appearance.

Committee Formed For Information On Tobacco

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Congressman Walter B. Jones today announced the formation of a tobacco program information committee in the House of Representatives. The mission of the committee is to lobby other members of Congress in an effort to preserve and strengthen the existing government tobacco farm program.

The committee's membership will include representatives from congressional districts in which tobacco is grown. Agreement to create the group came at a luncheon meeting attended by 25 members of the House of Representatives. Those attending stressed the importance of concentrating on the topic of the tobacco farm program, rather than the more controversial issues of health impact of cigarettes or restrictions on smoking in public places.

"We've found that many congressmen can be persuaded to vote for the tobacco farm program, once we've explained the facts to them," Jones explained. "So preserving the existing system is our prime contingent."

"By organizing this committee, we can broaden our base of support in Congress and present our case in a more effective manner, Jones said."

A chairman and executive board for the committee will be chosen in the near future. Jones noted that many other such committees, or caucuses, have been formed in Congress recently including groups concentrating on textiles, ports, blue collar workers and women.

Grandmother Wants Teens To Put Off Wedding

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I have a wonderful 18-year-old grandson I'll call Sonny, who is going to marry an 18-year-old girl he's known two months!

Sonny was graduated from high school with honors, and got a job right away as an apprentice with a good company. They are sending him to school two nights a week. He makes good wages.

The girl he's marrying had a baby four months ago by a man who skipped the state. She and her baby are living with her parents. Sonny had dated her only a few times when he asked her to marry him. Her people grabbed on to him fast, hired a hall and made plans for the wedding which is coming off in two weeks.

My grandson never smoked, drank or messed with girls. He is an inexperienced kid, and I think he's being taken advantage of.

How can I break them up? Not forever, but just long enough for Sonny to get to know the girl better? It's all happening too fast.

GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: Where are Sonny's parents? If he has none, and you are looking after him, enlist the help of a minister, doctor, or a trusted friend to help the boy realize the importance of a marriage commitment. (If Sonny has parents, they should guide him.) If he's not being taken advantage of—and sincerely loves the girl—accept her, and hope for the best.

DEAR ABBY: I kept my mother in my home for nine years. She is senile, babbles endlessly and messes the floor, her clothes, and her bed regularly. What a chore!

When I told my sisters and brothers, who all live out of town, that I wanted to put Mom in a nursing home, you should have heard the howl!

They reminded me of how mother took care of me when I was a helpless baby, now it was my turn to take care of her.

Abby, to compare a child with an elderly senile person is ridiculous.

A child can be left in a playpen. An elderly person cannot.

It's easy to get a baby sitter, but just try to get someone to stay with an old person. Even relatives won't help.

So I went out and found the cleanest nursing home I could afford and took my mother there. I said goodbye with tears in my eyes to someone who didn't even know me.

Then I went home and started being a wife and mother again. I thanked my husband for his willingness to pay for the care of my mother. (It's not cheap.)

Then the letters started to come from my brothers and sisters who had never kept Mom in their homes for one day. They said, "YOU put Mom in a nursing home! How could you?"

I don't need an answer, Abby. I know I did the right thing. I just had to get this off my chest. If you print this, I'll carry it in my wallet forever.

HEAVY-HEARTED IN N.J.

DEAR HEAVY: Here's something for your wallet.

CONFIDENTIAL TO " SHOULD I?" No. Don't put him on the spot by asking him to tell you in so many words. When a boy stops calling a girl, he is silently telling her that it's all over. Accept it, and turn your attention elsewhere.

If you need help in writing letters of sympathy, congratulations or thank-you letters, get Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for all Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents) envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Never A Better Time To Fight

Greenville Utilities Commission, although reluctantly, has approved a 13 to 15 percent increase in electric rates for GUC customers.

Utilities spokesmen say the increase is forced on them by a 19 percent increase in wholesale rates which supplies local electricity.

If local users think the retail increase is large, Utilities Director Charles Horne feels the same way about the wholesale increase.

Horne called it "exorbitant...but we are going to fight them tooth-and-nail to bring it down to something we feel is equitable."

ElectriCities, the organization which represents the municipally owned utilities in North Carolina, will intervene in the case and fight the wholesale increase before the Federal Energy Commission.

We cannot think of a better time to fight. Both the wholesale and the retail increases are simply too much, particularly in view of previous increases.

We must force the electric suppliers to hold increases to something approaching reasonable. The increase VEPCO has thrown at the municipalities is totally out of line and we hope the Federal Energy Commission recognizes this.

Possibily More Efficient, Responsive

Civil service reform, which would give supervisors more authority over their workers, has passed the House. A different version has passed the Senate and the differences will be worked out in a joint conference committee.

President Carter was said to be delighted with the victory, since civil service reform was one of his campaign promises.

Approval of the reform bill could make government more efficient and responsive. It is long overdue.

THIS AFTERNOON

Toxic Nightmare Looms

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — There is in North Carolina a "veritable nightmare" of dangerous and toxic chemicals — unmonitored, unrecorded, uncontrolled.

That disturbing observation comes from Attorney General Rufus Edmisten whose investigators from both the Justice Department and the State Bureau of Investigation have been nosing into this situation as a result of the summer's PCB chemical spills along state highways.

In the course of tracking down those responsible, investigators necessarily talked to a lot of people all over the state who are connected in various ways with the chemical industry.

Disposal of outdated, replaced, or banished materials looms on the horizon as a major issue for Tar Heels, Edmisten believes, and the early steps are already underway to bring the General Assembly to grips with the dilemma.

It is a dilemma indeed.

Where?

Scooping up the PCB along the roads left North Carolina with tons of material to safely dispose of. No easy task as site after site was rejected for one reason or another: proximity to people, leakage to ground water, seepage to nearby land.

"We need a site, and have all over ... the country and half of Georgia", Gov. Jim Hunt commented wryly. "We haven't found a place to put it."

If the state in all its legal power can't find a place to put it, consider the plight of the industrial chief faced with a similar problem but without governmental power to locate and buy a disposal site.

And that undergirds the continuing accumulation of toxic wastes in backrooms and warehouses and junkyards across North Carolina.

Hugh Wells, chief of the public staff of the N.C. Utilities Commission says the sheer bulk, complexity and lack of any supervision over such volumes of toxic waste is ultimately going to create a problem which outshadows even the more immediate and visible problem of nuclear waste disposal.

BILL NOBLITT

Gov. Hunt says he is not surprised at the enormity of the problem uncovered during the investigation.

"And I would remind you, this is not just government's problem ... it's the people's problem", Hunt said.

"We have to figure out a way to move this stuff safely. And we have staff people already at work trying to gather information on the existence and transportation of these materials."

Crime?

Even before a proposed new law governing storage, transportation and disposal of wastes is placed on the General Assembly agenda, Hunt said the state will begin moving to at least get a handle on the situation and bring it under whatever controls already exist.

Meanwhile, the dilemma of industry facing almost impossible demands for safe disposal and frustrated in safely meeting the requirements is creating high-level gossip in governmental circles in Raleigh and in Washington.

If you can't safely and legally dispose of such toxic stuff at a reasonable cost, so speculation goes, then some may turn to an organization which places itself above the law, breaks it at every turn successfully, and has years of experience in lawbreaking and a widespread network of agents nationwide who can help direct unlawful disposition of materials — The Syndicate: organized crime.

A CURB ON SMOKING?

And Now, Proposition 5

By SUSAN AGER
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Three months after Californians approved Proposition 13 and helped trigger a national tax revolt, a grassroots campaign to ban smoking in most indoor public places in California has the mighty tobacco industry wheezing.

So far, big tobacco has coughed up about 99 percent of the money for an intense media campaign against Proposition 5 on the Nov. 7 state ballot, an intiative being pushed by a group called Californians for Clean Indoor Air.

Before the campaign is over, the $17 billion industry is expected to spend up to $5 million, a record for a ballot proposal.

"California is considered a bellwether state," noted Jack McDowell of Woodward & McDowell, a local political ad firm that is running the campaign against the proposition.

The industry has reason to worry. The well-regarded California Poll said recently that the initiative, on the ballot after supporters got some 600,000 signatures, is favored by 58 percent of registered voters and opposed by 38 percent.

A few weeks ago Johnny Carson quipped, "Polls show 53 percent of voters are for Proposition 5. The other 47 percent are dead." In fact, the figures closely parallel the estimated percentages of smokers and non-smokers in the country.

Industry fears are that if Proposition 5 passes, it would not only take a bite out of California cigarette sales — 9.5 percent of the national total — but also inspire similar tough restrictions elsewhere. Eventually, tobacco executives say privately, smoking could become unfashionable and sales could wither.

Last year R. J. Reynolds, the nation's top tobacco company and the campaign's biggest contributor, noted that if every American smoker had one less cigarette a day, Reynolds would lose $92 million a year.

As of June 30, when the latest financial reports were filed, Reynolds had contributed $177,000.

So far Proposition 5 opponents, the self-named Californians for Common Sense, have placed ads headlined, "Have They Taken Leave of Their Senses?" in 47 newspapers. Radio spots are running on 89 stations and commercials on 32 television stations.

There are billboards reading, "They're at it again! Vote No on 5," and tobacco distributors are leaving handfuls of matchbooks saying "No More Prohibition!" on bars and in cigarette machines.

In the other corner, Californians for Clean Indoor Air says it will be lucky if it raises $500,000. It is running 30-second spots on two radio stations here and canvassing people in malls and on streets.

Its biggest contribution — $25,000 — came from the state American Cancer Society chapter, for whom it was the first political contribution. The state Lung Association has donated almost as much.

"We should win — except we'll have $5 million against us," said Paul Loveday, a former pro basketball player who helped write the initiative and is its chief spokesman. He and others say they think the slick ads may backfire and win votes for the proposition.

"It's a risk we've been forced to take," says McDowell, 64, a former Pulitzer Prize-winning newsman who has smoked since he was 19. "If we were not acquainting people with what is in the thing, they would still believe they were voting for apple pie and ice cream."

Strength For Today

STOMACH ULCERS

Someone has said that you don't get stomach ulcers from what you eat, but from what is eating you. The ultimate cause of stomach ulcers is well-known — tension, anxiety, frustration, and irregular habits of living. Surgery doesn't do much good unless the patient changes his way of thinking and of living. Whatever is eating you really causes the trouble.

This diagnosis is true not only of stomach ulcers but of many other ailments. How much disease is caused by hate, jealousy, and unhallowed desires only God Himself knows. But there are probably as many physical ailments arising from these causes as from infections and organic disorders. At latest count at least one-half of all the hospital beds in the nation are occupied by mental patients.

Doctors can give us advice about diet and can diagnose our disorders as they come along, but only we can handle the things that are eating us. That is — with the help of God.

Report From The Front

WASHINGTON — When President Carter first introduced his energy bill, he described it as the "moral equivalent of war." The bill now being debated in the Senate bears no resemblance to the one Carter asked for. What went wrong?

To find out I went to see an Energy General at his headquarters. He had charts all over the war room and his aides were pushing dollar signs back and forth across a large map on the table.

"How's the war going?" I asked.

"Everything's going according to plan," he replied. "Our boys should be home from the Senate by Christmas."

"Reports from the front lines indicate your people took a terrible mauling from the oil and gas companies, and the energy bill that the Commander-in-Chief was hoping to get is in ruins."

The General scowled, "We had to destroy the bill to save it."

ART BUCHWALD

"But didn't your people surrender on every major front?"

"We didn't surrender," he said. "We made an orderly retreat. When you're waging the moral equivalent of war, you have to expect casualties. We lost the battle on deregulation of gas, and we suffered a setback on the excise profits tax on oil, and we were hit with a surprise attack in our attempts to make industry switch from gas to coal. But we decided they weren't worth fighting for. Our main objective now is to rescue the energy bill before it is killed."

"I thought the original objective was to protect the consumer and conserve our oil and gas supplies."

"The consumer is safe," the General said. "He may have to pay more for gas and oil if the bill is saved, but you can't fight a moral war without some civilians getting hurt. The strategy of the Commander-in-Chief is to win the hearts of the people so we can have free elections in 1980."

"What about conservation? Your forces seem to have lost that battle."

"We haven't lost the battle. We've just changed our tactics. Instead of charging up the Hill, we have the enemy surrounded. If they expect to survive, they're going to have to produce more

Other Editors Say Sort Wheat & Chaff

(The Raleigh Times)

The state's new proposals to screen would-be teachers for quality before they ever sign a contract — and to keep screening them afterward — are a wise and overdue effort to separate the wheat from the chaff of today's glutted teacher crop.

The only statewide screening requirement now for aspirng teachers is attainment of 950 points out of 1800 possible on the National Teacher Exam. This fence is so low that all too many incompetents can hurdle it.

The Board of Education and the UNC Board of Governors are considering toughening the winnowing process in these three ways:

— Make all college sophomores who want to be teachers pass a minimum competency test in four core subjects before being admitted to education training;

— Require education graduates to pass other competency tests besides the NTE before they are given teaching certificates;

— Formally review every beginning teacher's professional performance after he or she has been on the job three years.

Some protests can be expected from the teachers' side, and they should be heard — but with close examination of the protesters' motives. The large number of teachers still in Tar Heel classrooms who cannot teach good English usage or coherent writing because they don't know either themselves are entitled to share the blame for their lack of background with the antiquated and often segregated systems that trained them. But the teachers of tomorrow should have no such excuse.

No state in the union has yet adopted a teacher standards plan as broad as the one proposed for North Carolina. For this state, with its all-too-sorry past public-school history to take the lead would be gratifying proof of the attitude turnaround that has brought increasing pressure for quality education here ever since the Sanford administration of the early 60s.

Along with the stiffer requirements should go better incentives in the form of salaries high enough to make Tar Heel teaching worth the while of the best in the business.

No matter how many people want to be teachers, good ones will never be a glut on the market. North Carolina not only can afford to get choosy, it can't afford not to.

Texan Owns Castle

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

DROMOLAND CASTLE, EIRE (AP) — Most of the guests, including the cardinal from Los Angeles, don't realize it but the leprechaun-faced lord of the ancestral castle that has become Ireland's most elegant hotel is actually a Texan who lives in Parkersburg, W.Va.

Himself, as the locals call him, is Bernard P. McDonough. He bought Dromoland Castle, ancestral home of the O'Briens, five minutes after he first saw it between planes at nearby Shannon Airport in 1962.

Sir Donough O'Brien, the 16th Baron of Inchiquin and a direct descendent of Brian Boru, the High King of Ireland, was sitting on the front steps when the American millionaire drove up.

McDonough, whose grandfather had traveled past this very castle exactly a 100 years before to emigrate from County Galway and work on the railroads in America, asking Lord Inchiquin how long his family had lived there.

"For more than a thousand years," his lordship replied.

"Then," McDonough picked up the story over breakfast," he rattled off a price and I said I'd take it. I thought it would take $250,000 to fix up — it took $2 million."

An army of 485 workmen, including 70 carpenters, 65 painters, 30 pipefitters and the Dorothy Draper interior decorating firm — the largest such work force ever assembled in Ireland — set about the miracle of transforming the drafty old castle with only eight antique bathrooms into a luxury hotel with 67 baths for each of the 67 guest rooms in less than six months.

Now jet-setters from all over the world flock to Dromoland Castle for the shooting, the golf, the salmon and trout fishing, the horseback riding and the deep-sea fishing off the spectacular County Clare coast.

The Texas-born magnate, who made his money in construction — not counting his 200 shoe stores, his ship building firm and other enterprises, says he has only one hobby.

"My hobby is never being

Lieutenant Lester Jones, who heads the Troop A division of the State Highway Patrol, said today that pistol practice for members of the Eastern division will begin in a week or two.

Lieut. Jones said the practice will be held at Williamston. The team will begin with seven members and later be reduced to five members. Sergeant G. C. Bissett of New Bern will make the team selections.

After the organization program is completed, members of the pistol team will compete with patrol marksmen in other divisions of the state. A metal plaque is awarded the team making the best showing during the year. year.

In Line To Stage Filibusters

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's getting so a senator has to get in line if he wants to stage a filibuster.

As the 95th Congress slogs toward its last hurrah, at least four filibusters are a very real threat in the Senate.

When Capitol veterans try to figure out why filibusters — or at least the threat of them — seem more commonplace these days, they often point to the more gentlemanly approach to filibustering that has evolved during the past few years.

They also note the time pressures members of Congress feel when they see election day closing in, as it is this year.

Opponents of the natural gas bill now being debated in the Senate are threatening to use their right of unlimited debate to hold the floor and block a final vote on the measure.

Lined up behind them are threats to try to talk to death bills that would extend the deadline for ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment, designate millions of acres of Alaska as park and wilderness and implement a $931 million settlement of shipbuilding claims by two defense contractors.

Talk is a cherished pastime in the Senate chamber. And the filibuster is honored as the minority's defense against the majority.

However, the majority is not defenseless against a filibuster. A limit can be placed on debate by invoking cloture, which requires the support of 60 of the 100 senators.

It all sounds very orderly, but there's a feeling around the Capitol that something has gone wrong with the system.

Students of the rules, like the late Sen. James B. Allen, DAla., made a mockery of cloture by managing to prolong debate for days even after the majority had mustered 60 votes. An effort to tighten the rules to prohibit that was blocked. By a filibuster, of course.

In recent years, under majority leaders Mike Mansfield and, now, Robert C. Byrd, the response to filibusters has changed.

Filibusters no longer are like they were in the days of the late Lyndon B. Johnson when senators bedded down on cots and were jarred awake at any hour by quorum calls that sent them red-eyed and staggering onto the Senate floor to register their presence.

In those days the physical and mental toll was high enough to prompt senators to reserve the filibuster for only the most critical issues.

The last major, round-the-clock filibuster was directed against the 1964 Civil Rights Act.

Since then, with a couple of exceptions lasting less than 24 hours, the Senate has moved to filibuster by consent — an agreement under which the debate goes on only during normal working hours until cloture is invoked or the bill is withdrawn. This way the Senate recesses at a reasonable hour and returns the next morning, its members fresh and rested.

It's a more civilized way to operate. But it seems to have made filibusters routine events.

Scholar Says Ark Not Sighted

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Accounts in the popular media lately have implied that remains of Noah's Ark have been found on Mount Ararat in Turkey. But it's not likely, says an Old Testament scholar who has surveyed the evidence.

The Rev. Dr. Lloyd R. Bailey of Duke University Divinity School concludes that the implications circulated in recent filmed and written accounts are based on hearsay evidence and invalid scientific tests.

Others, including scientists at the University of California and the University of Miami, also have challenged claims that wood from the ancient ark has been found high on the snowsheathed mountain.

Bailey gives a full-scale airing to the issue in a book, "Where is Noah's Ark," being published by Abingdon Press. He particularly takes issue with an NBC-TV movie, "In Search of Noah's Ark."

"When I saw the movie, I determined it was high time someone established in the field of biblical scholarship should have his 'say' in the matter, also," he says.

"This seemed particularly appropriate in order for ministers, pastors and teachers in university religion departments to be able to evaluate for themselves the claims the movie and recent popular books have made for the ark's survival."

He says most scholars "have not wanted to dignify the claims about the discovery of the ark by disputing them," with the result that there has been no source where people could get an "informed, calm, not-controversial" assessment of the popular claims.

Noting that possible existence of the ark has been a subject of speculation for centuries, he says reports of the ark being visible high in the "mountains of Ararat" go back to the third century BC.

"Mountains of Ararat" is the key phrase used in Genesis 8:4 in reference to the ark's resting place after the flood.

While popular assumptions have been that the landing was on Mount Ararat, located in Armenia near the Turkish border with the Soviet Union and Iran, the Bible does not say that. The ancient land of Ararat contained several mountain ranges, Bailey says, with various cultures picking various ranges and mountains as the spot.

But the recent spate of presentations about the ark have centered on Mount Ararat, called "Agri Dagi" in Turkish, relying mainly on these four points of "evidence", namely:

— Ancient reports of the ark's sighting.

— Current eye-witness accounts of an "intact wooden structure" with the general dimensions of the ark given in the Bible being found on the 13,500-foot snow line on Mount Ararat.

— Air and ground photos showing a boat-shaped structure.

— Hand-hewn beams said to have been recovered from glacial ice on Mount Ararat, reportedly dated by testing laboratories at "an age of 5,000 years." The ark supposedly was built about 2500 B.C.

Hoping
Hope does, indeed, spring eternal. It's worth getting on tiptoes to see if there's something in the mailbox, because it's so wonderful when there is.
Children don't give up easily. She'll go back every day . . . she'll keep trying. It's different when you're older. Then footsteps tend to lag; some of the bounce has been taken out of you.
All right. No one expects you to be a rubber ball, bouncing back every time life slaps you down. But on the other hand, balls that never bounce back, like flat tires, get tossed on the scrap heap, for obvious reasons.
Next time there's no mail in your box, whether that box is real or imaginary, start thinking that maybe you should write the first letter, take the first step.
Why not make it toward church?

Plan 'Galactica' For A Long Run

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP)— Americans will be divided in debate Monday. At issue will be whether "Star Wars" is better than the "Battlestar Galactica" making a three-hour ABC debut this Sunday night.

To quote Billy Martin, I take no sides. I just say "Battlestar" proves all is not lost in TV, that some in it still care enough to do their very best and that this is it in all areas.

Produced by "Star Wars" special-effects whiz John Dkystra, the saga doesn't have earthlings seeking new planets. Instead, humans of all creeds and colors set out to find planet Earth.

What starts their voyage is a space-age Pearl Harbor attack on their home planets by the wicked Cylons, mechanical giants bent on exterminating humanity and replacing it with technology.

As at Pearl Harbor, peace talks precede the sneak attack, the humans' guard is down and the only leader worried by the Cylons is Lorne Greene, cast as Cmdr. Adama, head of the good ship Galactica.

That his fears are justified is tragically shown when one of his two sons (both are fighter pilots) dies in the first round of good vs. evil, the latter depicted by sinister Darth Vader types.

As with "Star Wars," this and other aerial — pardon me, space — jousting offers brilliant special effects, painstaking attention to detail and realistic-sounding pilot chatter.

And the combat sequences — the good guys' ships resemble an F-100 up front, a four-barrel Phantom jet in back — are so beautifully executed even current or former aerial gunsels will applaud.

Besides Greene, who lead a ragtag, 220-ship collection of survivors after the attack, other good thespians abound in the show.

The standouts are Richard Hatch, as his surviving son; Dirk Benedict as raffish, ladychasing Lt. Starbuck; Maren Jensen as Greene's daughter, for whom Starbuck has big eyes, and Herb Jefferson as Starbuck's reliable wingman, Lt. Boomer.

To chronicle events after the sneak attack is like trying to put the Johnstown Flood in an eyedropper. The film is so rich in plot twists, turns and welledited scenes it defies brief description.

But rest assured it is industrial-strength entertainment, its moments of great drama and doom nicely mixed with sly bits of humor, such as a outer-space resort scene involving a trio of lady singers.

Starbuck thinks they're great, even though each has four eyes and two mouths. He could get rich were he their agent, he says.

Sighs his wingman: "Every creature in the universe is out to exterminate us and you want to hire a vocal group."

Despite its rousing supply of action, up to and include a mighty zap-out (once called shoot-outs), the show's characters have much more dimension than the comic-book types of "Star Wars."

Which is a good idea, considering that "Battlestar" is a series and will need a big supply of character studies to tide it over each week once Sunday's $7 million whiz-bang concludes.

But mercy, what a grand way to start.

Pigeon Racing Club Held Meet

The Golden Leaf Pigeon Racing Club held its first meet Sunday, with 122 birds released from Lumberton by Kincey Worthington of Winterville.

Ray Evans of Ayden took first and second place honors in the first race, with Tommy Fisher of Winterville capturing the two top places in the second race.

There will be five more races this season, with the next race this Sunday. The birds will be taken to Dillon, S. C.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, SEPT. 16, 1978

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: It is possible for you to have problems with some associates unless you make a point to clearly understand now what they have in mind. Use caution in human relations.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Use extreme care in motion today and avoid possible accident. Wait until evening for a heart-to-heart talk with loved one.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Not a good day to get the cooperation you want from friends to gain a cherished longing. They are too busy with own affairs.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Taking risks with your reputation could prove disastrous at this time, so use extreme care and improve your situation.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Not the right day to work on plans you have in mind for a new project. Don't confide in a newcomer who cause trouble.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Be precise in the handling of important business matters and give attention to details. Take time to improve your surroundings.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A close associate is not in a good mood so don't waste time conversing at length right now. Be sensible in what you do.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Attend to routine chores early in the day so you'll have time for recreation later. Handle a business matter wisely.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You have important work to do now, so forget recreation until later in the day. Come to a better accord with mate.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Not a good day to try to make situation at home better, so devote yourself to other matters for now. Improve your health.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Contact good friends and bring happiness into their lives. Sidestep one could be detrimental to your progress.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) If you use honest methods, you can now build up your financial reserve. Strive for increased happiness.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) A feeling of discontent could be with you early in the day, but keep busy and it will go away completely.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will understand how to be cautious in the building of any structures and would do well in the construction field, so give an education along such lines for best results. There is an excellent artist in this chart.

Begin Repair 7 Bridges

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Department of Transportation crews are working to repair bridges and secondary roads in Henderson and Yancey counties that were washed out by heavy rains and high water Thursday morning.

County officials said no damage estimates are available.

Seven bridges and seven secondary roads were washed out by the storm in Henderson County. One bridge is out on secondary roads 1792 and 1802, with three out on 1799 and two on 1722.

Secondary roads which were washed out in the Henderson County area include 1710, 1703, 1719, 1704, 1614, 1725 and 1712.

Traffic is being detoured over local routes while crews are at work on the roads and bridges. Water on secondary road 1720 in Henderson County has limited traffic to one lane. Washouts and slides have been reported on U.S. 64 but traffic is moving on the road.

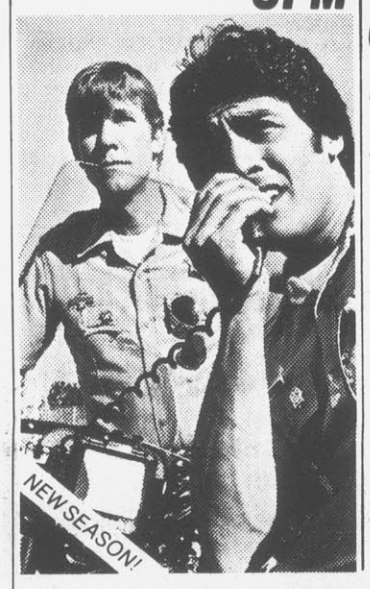

The Henderson County washouts are all in the area of Dana, Edneyville and Bat Cave. Flooding streams include Clear Creek and Big Hungry Creek.

In Yancey County, three bridges were washed out and closed to traffic. Two bridges over the Toe River on secondary roads 1159 were reopened to traffic Thursday afternoon. The third bridge, located on secondary road 1337 near Burnsville, will be closed for approximately one week. Area residents are being transported in and out by boat.

Already, 33 states and scores of cities have restricted public smoking to some degree, including near-total bans in Utah and Minnesota. But Proposition 5 is stricter and more complicated.

Exemptions include private offices and homes, bars, pool halls and rooms in hotels, motels and college dormitories. Restaurants would have to set up no-smoking sections, although they could consist of as little as one table. Cabbies could smoke only if they had no riders.

Under the measure, smoking by employees would be legal at the workplace if everyone in the room smokes, or if there is a separate lounge — half of which must be partitioned off for non-smokers.

It also allows smoking at rock concerts, professional boxing and wrestling and roller derbies. But it bars smoking at amateur matches, hockey games and jazz or classical concerts in the same places.

Opponents seize upon those discrepancies. A radio ad asks, "What'll they think of next?" then speculates that jogging could be banned on Thursday and humming allowed only for freckled people one hour a day.

Loveday admits the provisions under attack were "a public relations mistake, but legally they were very wise."

"We made a policy decision to exempt those areas because we want the law to work," he said, adding that the initiative would allow the legislature to amend such details.

Most of the anti-5 ads also point out that errant smokers would be arrested. But under the proposal, a violation is like a parking ticket, with a mandatory $50 fine. Supporters say smokers would be arrested only if fines weren't paid and warrants were issued.

"This gives protection to those who really need and want it," says Loveday. "The only reason this is going to work is that most smokers are considerate people."

Ads also attack the proposal as Big Brotherism. Supporters compare it to New York City's new law requiring dog owners to scoop up after their pets in public.

Opponents say it may cost $280 million for required partitions, signs and production time lost to smoking breaks. Supporters say it will save up to $169 million a year in lower health care costs, fewer fires and less employee sick time.

poor again," said McDonough, as he looked out the big picture window over Dromoland's emerald expanse of lawn, bog and winding river.

At age 14, McDonough went to work in a West Virginia foundry at 15 cents an hour. "Thirty years later I bought it for $3 million. Nothing in life gave me greater pleasure, not even the law school building that Georgetown University named after me. They let me out after three years with a hard-earned law degree. Forty years later when I gave them a million dollars, on top of the million I'd already given them when they called the building McDonough Law Hall, it sounded like I bought it."

President Nixon stayed at Dromoland during his search for Irish forbears. The Beatles are frequent guests and so is Cardinal Timothy Manning, the Irish-born archbishop of Los Angeles.

One-Sided Vote Ahead

SANFORD, N.C. (AP) — The liquor-by-the-drink vote here next Wednesday appears to be cut and dried, since the drys are the only ones doing any campaigning on the issue.

Liquor proponents, if there are any, have been silent, while the drys have mounted drives against mixed drinks on several fronts.

The Rev. Ed Wilson, spokesman for the Christian Action League in Lee County, said his organization was reactivated from the 1973 liquor vote to fight liquor sales. He said the group has distributed thousands of handbills and bumper stickers urging Lee residents to defeat liquor sales.

Many Sanford churches are participating in the one-sided fight, with ministers including anti-drink handbills in their Sunday church bulletins.

"There are no organized pro forces," said Hal Siler, executive vice president of the Sanford area Chamber of Commerce. "It's kind of low key here, oddly enough. We're not a convention center, don't depend on tourists a great deal, so it's not the all-encompassing economic issue it was in Charlotte and Southern Pines."

The Sanford area has traditionally voted dry, and Lee County outside of Sanford doesn't permit beer and wine sales.

Some Lee County voters consider it odd that the town bothered to hahve a referendum on mix drinks sales at all.

oil and gas. Our troops are dug in and our intelligence indicates morale amongst the major oil companies is dropping every day. It's only a matter of time before the energy forces that have been fighting us will wave the white flag."

"They seem to have won everything they wanted. Even if they sued for peace tomorrow what will your side have gained?"

The General said bitterly, "The media keep saying we're losing. But there is more at stake here than whether we win or lose a few skirmishes. Do you realize that if we don't save the energy bill the entire prestige of the United States will go down the drain? The dollar will be attacked and the national will of Americans to fight for energy will be in doubt."

An aide put several more dollar signs on the map.

"What's he doing?" I asked the General.

"We have to put more bucks into the line," the General said. "Our original estimates of what this war would cost every American were much lower than we thought."

"Why don't you people just quit and start all over again?"

"Because," said the General tartly, "the Commander- in-Chief doesn't want to go down in history as the first President who lost a moral equivalent of war."

Urge Clean-Up Of Neuse River

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP) — More than 1,000 fishermen and concerned citizens along the Neuse River have signed petitions urging Gov. Jim Hunt to take "corrective measures to eliminate industrial waste being discharged into the Neuse River."Pollution has plagued the Neuse River for years, but the latest drive to clean up the river has been spurred by the appearance of an unidentified black substance which sticks to boats, fishermen's nets and even water skiers.

"I wish I could tell you what it is," said Dennis Spitzbergen of the state Division of Marine Fisheries.

Some of the fishermen think the Weyerhauser Pulp Mill is the main source of the pollution, but state environmental official Preston Howard said there wasn't any evidence to support the charge.

"Weyerhauser has been very cooperative, aand as far as I know is following the water control regulations set down by the Environmental Protection Agency," Howard said.

But fishermen disagreed and said the pollution is slowly killing their livelihood and the river.

"If Weyerhauser is following the regulations, they are legally killing the river," said fishermen Don Basnight. "We need a tighter set of regulations."

Spitzbergen said other sources of pollution might be the sewage systems of cities along the Neuse River.

Hens,

The North Carolina hen market was steady, trending higher for next week, supplies about adequate, demand good. Prices paid per pound for hens over seven pounds at farm for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday slaughter, 19 cents.

NEW YORK (AP) — Concern over a bulge in the money supply and rising interest rates helped push stock prices into another broad decline today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which fell 12.56 Thursday for its sharpest decline in more than eight months, lost another 5.37 to 881.67 by noontime today.

Declines overwhelmed advances by a 4-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Widespread fears of bad monetary news were realized late Thursday when the Federal Reserve listed a $4.7 billion jump in the basic measure of the money supply for the latest reporting week.

Many economists consider rapid monetary growth the primary reason for the nation's high inflation rate. The Federal Reserve has been tightening credit in an effort to restrain the money supply's expansion, and that has led to higher interest rates.

Today many large banks raised their prime lending rates from 9¼ to 9½ percent, the highest level for the basic charge on blue chip loans in 3½ years.

Stocks with gambling interests were mostly higher again after a spectacular four-day rise. Resorts International class A stock, which jumped 66 points from Monday's opening through the close on Thursday, was up another 8 at 198 today on the American Stock Exchange.

The NYSE's composite index fell .33 to 59.04, and the Amex market value index was down .26 at 175.51.

Volume on the Big Board reached 16.74 million shares by noontime, against 15.71 million at the same point Thursday.

Councilmen...

Neighborhood Improvement funds will be used for curbing, guttering and paving of Davis Street from Ward Street north to Third Street in Riverdale, with costs amounting to $7,666.08.

In addition, some 3,500 linear feet of sidewalks will be placed on Greenfield Boulevard in the Greenfield Terrace section at a cost of $20,000.

GNIP funds from Community Development will be allocated ($9,398) to establish a neighborhood park for recreation development in the Higgs Neighborhood. Plans for the park will be brought back to next month's meeting for consideration.

Councilman Clarence Gray noted that the Greenfield Terrace residents would like to have the opportunity to set priorities for the funds designated for their area. He said that he would not favor taking the funds out of the sidewalk project, however, for fear that they might be lost and not be designated again for that purpose.

Jesse Harris, the city's human relations director, said that Greenfield Terrace residents had set as their number one priority the establishment of a community building but since there were not enough funds available to build that structure, the city staff made an effort to allocate funds to the three neighborhoods on an equitable basis.

Under the GNIP, some $80,000 was allocated for neighborhood projects in the three sections, it was explained. Presently, a total of $29,936 has either been spent or encumbered for projects in all three neighborhoods, leaving some $50,064 for future projects.

The suggestions for allocations in the three neighborhoods were the result of meetings in the sections with residents who indicated their areas of need.

The Council, after discussing briefly an ordinance suggested by the Recreation and Parks Commission regulating conduct in public parks, providing for enforcement, and prescribing penalties for violation, tabled action on the document and referred it back to the commission.

Council members indicated that several sections of the proposed ordinance might need revisions and Mayor Percy Cox said that he felt the ordinance might be too restrictive.

Recreation and Parks director Boyd Lee said that Park personnel had been operating without any stated authority in the past and the ordinance was designed to give rangers enforcement authorization. He noted that the ordinance did not give the rangers the authority to make arrests.

Gray suggested that action of the ordinance be tabled until "some of the vagueness" could be cleared up.

Approval was given, following a public hearing, for the closing of a portion of Charles Street from Ninth northerly to an alley south of Mendenhall Student Center. Action on the street closing was taken in response to a request by the Board of Trustees at East Carolina University.

Other business conducted last night included:

— Reappointment of John Bizzell, Mrs. Rosa Brewington and Robert White to three-year terms on the Human Relations Council and appointment of Mrs. Gladys Sanders and William Wright to their first three-year terms on the HRC;

— Reappointment of Tommy Morris to a new four-year term on the Permanent Building Codes Review Board;

— Reappointment of Arthur Ray Rogers and James Harris Jr. to new three-year terms on the Rehabilitation Grant and Loan Committee;

— Renewal of permits for one year for the mobile home located adjacent to the old hospital used by the Eastern Area Health Education Center, and for the mobile structure used by the ECU School of Allied Health and Social Professions adjacent to the Pitt County Community Health Center;

City Council To Wear Helmets

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The New Orleans City Council is going under cover.

Noting citizens were "becoming increasingly belligerent and hostile toward elected officials," the City Council passed a resolution requiring councilmen to wear helmets during council meetings.

The helmets are intended as protection from disgruntled voters and flying barbs, aspersions and villifications, the tongue-in-cheek resolution said.

After Councilman Frank Friedler read his resolution, the seven councilmen solemnly donned hard hats.

Legalized, But 28 Years Late

TURLOCK, Calif. (AP) — The fire department here is finally legal — just 28 years late.

Fire Chief Larry Hughes says the department never received official authority to put out fires when it switched from an all-volunteer force to a mixture of paid and volunteer fire-fighters 28 years ago.

The City Council put it right this week, adopting an ordinance to establish the Turlock Fire Department.

Has Dike, But Not Optimistic

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — After two "once in a century" rainstorms, Earl Amundson decided to copy the Dutch — he spent the summer building a 6-foot-high dike around his back yard.

He figures water from the two rainstorms — in August, 1977, and in April — dumped about six feet of water in his basement, causing $16,000 in damage.

So Amundson and his neighbors convinced the city to haul in fill for his dike and another next door.

Despite the dike, Amundson isn't optimistic. It is, he said "our bad luck."

Pirates Challenge Tough Tar Heels

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

In those glorious days of the Hollywood musical, the leading lady would invarably come down with a sore throat just prior to opening night.

And invarably, some kid from the chorus line would step forward to shyly proclaim that she knew all the lines and steps, and the show would be saved.

Well, not only has the lead been down at East Carolina University's football show, but several of the top leading characters.

But as yet, director Pat Dye hasn't found anyone to step out of the chorus line to take their places.

And with the Tar Heels of North Carolina awaiting the Pirates in Chapel Hill on Saturday, it might be a good time for someone to take those first timid steps and make the third act a hit.

Dye didn't really like Act I (Western Carolina) although it played to nearly a packed house and got some good reviews. Act II (N.C. State) also drew a packed house but there was little to cheer up those backing the Pirates.

Now, with the curtain set to rise on Act III (North Carolina), some critics are beginning to sharpen their knives for the kill, but Dye holds out hope.

Still hampered by injuries, Dye hopes to have most of his charges ready for the show on Saturday. Quarterback Leander Green is "doubtful," along with Anthony Collins at running back and Joe Godette at tight end.

Eddie Hicks is expected to be back, but after missing nearly two weeks of practice, it is uncertain whether he'll be effective.

While the Tar Heel act hasn't had a chance to be reviewed yet, the advance publicity has been richly followed. With such stars as Amos Lawrence, Mike Salzano, and a veteran defense, the Heels gained pre-season Top Twenty honors, but did not appear on that list after the first full week of play.

"They have a big, strong line on offense, with only a tight end and a center new," Dye said. "And both of those are good athletes. Their offensive backs, Lawrence and (Doug Paschal) are very good. Lawrence is as good as anyone in the country, and Paschal is a good inside runner and blocker."

Dye praised Chris Kupec as being a strong, experienced quarterback, and noted that Clyde Christensen, who may get the starting nod, is a fine option quarterback.

"There won't be a player on the field who won't do his job," Dye said of the Heels.

"Defensively, they are just as good, and they've got most of their people back. If they are untested anywhere it's in their kicking game." There freshman Jeff Hayes will operate.

"Hayes ought to be tickled to death about opening against East Carolina. We seem to bring out the best in field goal kickers everywhere we go," Dye said. In the past few seasons, the Pirates have lost several games to field goals—including last week's game to N.C. State where rookie Nathan Ritter kicked a school record five field goals.

Other field goal losses include two of the three last year, to Southwestern Louisiana and South Carolina; and the previous year to North Carolina.

"We have to eliminate our mistakes if we want to have a chance. We're going to have to play strong and hard. If we play at our best," Dye said, "we may have a chance to make a game of it.

"But if we play any other way, it could be embarrassing for us," he added.

The two teams will be meeting for the fifth time, with North Carolina holding a 3-1 lead in the series. Carolina won the opening game, 42-19, then sneaked past in the second, 28-27. East Carolina won in 1975, in a 38-17 romp, and Carolina came back with field goals to win, 12-10, in 1976. The two did not meet last year.

Kickoff is set for 1:30 p.m. in Kenan Stadium, and a sellout crowd of over 48,000 is expected.

Pirate Secondary

East Carolina University's defensive backfield, virtually intact from last year, will face the test of the University of North Carolina's new veer attack Saturday in Kenan Stadium in Chapel Hill. From left to right are Willie Holley, Ruffin McNeill, Gerald Hall and Charlie Carter. The Pirates will be attempting to win their second game in three starts against the Tar Heels.

Bouton Makes Comeback, Hurls 4-1 Victory Over San Francisco

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Jim Bouton's "Ball Four" made a lot of people mad when it was a best-seller in the 1960s, but some got even madder when he was promoted to the major leagues earlier this month.

Manager Sparky Anderson of the Cincinnati Reds, for one, protested to Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, and outfielder Reggie Smith of the Los Angeles Dodgers called it — in so many words — a disgrace.

Now they, among others, might have to reconsider their hasty judgments.

The 39-year-old Bouton showed Thursday that he still had something left in his right arm after an eight-year absence, pitching the Atlanta Braves to a 4-1 decision over the San Francisco Giants with late relief help.

Dodgers 2, Astros 1

Dave Lopes and Ron Cey slugged home runs to lead Los Angeles over Houston as the Dodgers established an all-time major league attendance record at home. Rick Rhoden, 9-7, making his first start since July 31, earned the victory and Terry Forster preserved it with his 20th save.

Padres 8, Reds 1

Gene Tenace hit a three-run homer, Broderick Perkins and Jerry Turner each drove in two runs and Bob Shirley and John D'Aquisto combined to throw a six-hitter as San Diego whipped Cincinnati.

Phillies 11, Cubs 5

Bake McBride slammed a double, his ninth home run and drove across three runs as Philadelphia beat Chicago and lowered the "magic number" for clinching the National League East title to 13.

This was a hitting contest from the second inning on as both starters, Chicago's Rick Reuschel and Philadelphia's Randy Lerch, departed early.

Pirates 7, Cardinals 4

Phil Garner hit a grand slam home run to back the combined seven-hit pitching of Jim Rooker and Kent Tekulve and lead Pittsburgh over St. Louis. Garner's grand slam, the first of his major league career, came in the sixth inning when the Pirates broke a scoreless tie with five runs off losing pitcher Bob Forsch, 11-17. Rooker improved his record to 9-10.

Mets 7, Expos 6

Ed Kranepool's three-run pinch homer in the sixth enabled New York to come back from a six-run deficit and defeat Montreal.

Kranepool's homer off loser Randy Miller, 0-1, was his third of the season, all as a pinchhitter. It was also the second time he had beaten Montreal with a pinch homer this year.

After a perfect week with the high school picks, we tend to be a little worried about this week, since things seem to even themselves out.

Our panel's picks, however, continue along well, with a two-way tie for first place after two weeks. Tom Baines and this writer are knotted for the lead with 15-7 records, while Jim Kyle, Vickie Spivey and our guests are right behind at 14-8. Last year's champ, Joe Jenkins, trails with a 12-10 record, and continues to insist that he's only giving up a firm head start before he puts on a charge from the rear.

Last week's guest, Pat Dye, knocked the guests from the lead, but only by a game, and we're turned to the high school ranks this week for our guest, tabbing Dave Bumgarner of Rose High School for an appearance.

While Dye could not do otherwise than to pick East Carolina to win last week, Bumgarner picks Rose to win this week. We wish him better luck than Dye had.

Six high school games are on tap for this week, not counting Rose's contest with Kinston. We scored a perfect 7-0 mark last week, and would like to continue that trend.

Farmville Central travels to Havelock to meet the Rams. Farmville suffered its first loss last week to Eastern Wayne, while Havelock is unbeaten. The home field advantage could be the true key to this game, but I'll come back to pick Farmville to win it.

Ayden-Grifton travels to Washington, still looking for its first win in three starts. The Pam Pack appears to be rolling well, and the Chargers are still trying to get on track. We'll have to stick with Washington here.

Roanoke visits Williamston. The Redskins appear to be red-hot, while Williamston is still trying to get going with little experience on its team. Roanoke is the choice.

Greene Central goes to South Lenoir. The Rams are another team that is lacking in experience. This could be a close one, but we'll go along with South Lenoir to win.

Zebulon visits unbeaten North Pitt. We don't recall North Pitt ever beating three teams in a row. We're not real sure that North Pitt has ever won three games in a season, in fact. But the Panthers just might be ready for the big time. We'll go with them.

Finally, Belhaven visits Jamesville. The Bullets lost their first game last week, while Belhaven is trying to recover from the shellacking given them by Roanoke. Again a tough one to call, but we'll go with Belhaven.

Turning to our panel's picks, we close the high school section with Rose playing host to unbeaten Kinston. The Vikings have a good passing attack and this could cause trouble for the Rampants. But our panel apparently felt last week was a good omen, and goes down the line, 6-0, for Rose.

The Pirates of East Carolina travel to Chapel Hill to meet North Carolina. The Heels will be opening up their season with a new coach and a new offense. But the old strengths are still there. The Pirates haven't show any offensive spunk so far, and the panel is waiting to see it. Only one vote for the Pirates, with a 5-1 choice to Carolina.

Other concensus picks show Maryland over Louisville; Navy over Virginia; Clemson over The Citadel; Florida over Southern Methodist; Southern Mississippi and Cincinnati a toss-up; N.C. State over Syracuse; Virginia Tech and Wake Forest, a toss-up; Marshall over Appalachian State; Ohio State over Penn State; and, in a non-football vein, Muhammad Ali over Leon Spinks in the fight tonight.

Cubs Rally Past Kinston

KINSTON — Rose High School's junior varsity spotted Kinston a pair of leads, then came back in the second half to storm to a 27-18 victory last night.

The win was the third straight for the Rampant Cubs.

Kinston scored first in the game, on a 60-yard pass in the first quarter. But Rose came back, with Ken Barnes hitting Donald Johnson on a 20-yard pass for the score. Mike Thurber kicked the PAT for a 7-6 lead.

Kinston again rallied, scoring on another pass to take a 12-7 lead into intermission.

Rose came back with a score in the third period to regain the lead for good. Barnes scored on a three-yard run, then picked up a two-point conversion to up the lead to 16-12.

Barnes then teamed up with Johnson for another aerial score, this one covering 70 yards. Rose closed out the scoring when Curtis Spell blocked a punt and Charles Daise recovered the ball in the end zone for a touchdown.

Kinston ended the scoring in the final period, scoring on another pass.

Rose plays host to Jacksonville on Thursday.

NO NONSENSE SCOT

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — Tom Weiskopf told the story on himself at the British Open in July. Tom, who won the event in 1973, wanted to play a practice round at St. Andrews a couple of days before the first round. He innocently assumed the greens fee would be on the house. It wasn't.

When he checked in at the starter's hut near the first tee he was greeted by a stonyfaced veteran who told him the charge was two pounds in British currency. "Do former champions have to pay?" Weiskopf asked.

"Aye," was the answer. Tom was then told to wait his turn. The wait was a half hour. When he teed up he went as far back as he could. The starter appeared and gruffly told him to tee off where everybody else was.

In a spot like that, you either explode with anger or you laugh. Weiskopf is still chuckling.

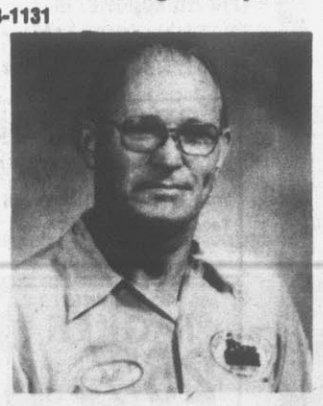

Pete Maravich of the New Orleans Jazz averaged 44.2 points a game as a collegian at Louisiana State.

Crucial Weekend In American League Races Is On Schedule

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

The schedule maker couldn't possibly have known it when he did his work so many months ago, but he set a virtual "do-ordie" scene this weekend for the second-place clubs in both American League divisions.

The Boston Red Sox, who have lost 12 of their last 15 to fall 1½ games behind the Eastleading Yankees, limp into New York for a three-game weekend series. And the California Angels, battling to stay within 3½ games of the first-place Royals, visit Kansas City to start their crucial weekend.

"At this point," said Red Sox Manager Don Zimmer, "we have to have three." He meant victories over New York, which sends Ron Guidry — the fellow with 21 victories in 23 decisions — against Luis Tiant, 10-7.

"We've got to do it ourselves over the weekend, one way or another," said Zimmer. "We can't wait for somebody else to do it."

The Cleveland Indians trimmed Zimmer's Red Sox 4-3 Thursday night, holding on to their lead when Boston stranded the tying run at third base in the ninth.

Yankees 4, Tigers 2

Nettles' big bat and strong relief work by Sparky Lyle helped red-hot New York expand its first-place lead.

Angels 16, Rangers 1

The Angels carried a 3-1 lead into the ninth inning, then — with the assist of two Texas errors that made all the runs unearned — scored 13 runs on 10 hits off five Rangers pitchers to record their first victory in two years at Arlington Stadium.

Royals 5, A's 1

Other than Paul Splittorff's four-hitter and the home run by Amos Otis, the highlight of the Royals' triumph was an attempt by Morgana, the exotic dancer, to run on the field to kiss shortstop Fred Patek.

Brewers 4, Orioles 3

Mike Caldwell pitched a six-hitter for his 19th victory while Robin Yount and Charlie Moore cracked homers as Milwaukee won its 23rd game in 31 outings and stayed within four games of New York.

White Sox 6, Mariners 5

Chet Lemon delivered three runs with a homer and a sacrifice fly to help the White Sox survive a four-run Seattle rally in the ninth.

Aycock In First Win

After a scoreless first half, E. B. Aycock put 20 points on the scoreboard in the final two quarters and defeated Nash Central 20-6 yesterday in the Jaguar's opening football game.

Aycock's first touchdown came on a three-yard plunge by Roger Williams. Barry Smith then returned an interception 25 yards to give the winners a 12-0 lead.

Nash Central cut the margin to 12-6 in the third quarter with a 10-yard scoring run by Greg Taft. Robert Brown ran in from eight yards out in the fourth quarter for Aycock and Williams ran the conversion for the final Jaguar points.

Aycock will host Bertie next Wednesday.

Rampants Win Race

Rose High School's cross-country team opened the season yesterday with a 20-42 victory over Ahoskie High School.

Til Jolley finished the new Rose three-mile course in a time of 16:35 for the Rampants, establishing the first record for the course.

Ahoskie's Ed Sessoms was second, the only Ahoskie runner in the top five, with a time of 16:45.

Rose completed the top five with Michael Davis finishing in 17:06, Blair Smith in 17:13 and Ted Gartman in 17:30.

Wilbur Parker of Ahoskie finished sixth in 17:41, followed by three Rose runners, Alan Parks in 18:01; Dan Mayo in 18:03; and Steve Blackwell in 18:44. Ahoskie's Bill Horton was tenth in 19:25.

The only other Rose runner in the field, Michael Tucker, finished 12th in 19:46.

Rose pays a return visit to Ahoskie on Monday.

Area Girls' Tennis Teams In Action

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Five area high schools will again field tennis teams this fall, and several of them look for improved teams.

Those fielding teams include Rose High in Greenville, Greene Central, Farmville Central, Roanoke and Williamston.

Rose

Rose returns six seniors to this year's team, but in matches so far, Coach Gwen Waller has been disappointed.

"We have experience and depth, and I think we can do a lot better than we've done so far." Rose opened by losing its first two matches by 8-1 scores. "A lot of the girls didn't get in the playing time they should have during the summer and they just haven't rounded out into condition as yet."

Waller said that because of this, it could be two or three weeks into the season before the team is really ready to play. "But with nearly all of our matches in Division I conference play, we just can't wait," Waller said.

Waller feels that the team hasn't developed a mental toughness yet. "If everyone plays at their level, they can be a good team. I just hope after these first two losses they will begin to get it together."

The coach will look for changes on the ladder during the season, with challenge matches expected on off-days. The current ladder has Margaret McGlohon, Chris Dunn, Helen Whitehurst, Caroline Bruton and Pam Talbert playing the first six. They are followed by Jan Stoughton, Nancy Garrett, Laurie Smith, Kim O'Brian, Chris Galya, Bernestine Haselrig and Lisa Selby. The latter three are sophomores, while Grant, Stoughton, and Smith are juniors.

"I look for the top ten players to move around a lot during the year."

In the conference, Waller says that it is tough to make any picks because of the shifting of many students in the Wilson system, and the addition of two schools from that county into the conference.

Farmville Central

The Lady Jaguars are 1-1 so far, having lost only to 4-A Rocky Mount in a close match.

Five people return from last year's team, and there are only seven players all together.

Mary George Baker rounds out the team.

"We only have seven, but all of them can play," Coach Don Dempsey said. "So this is a great help. I look for a good year from us, and I'll really be surprised if we don't win the conference championship."

Since none of the girls are seniors, things look bright for the future in Farmville tennis also.

Roanoke

Only three girls return from last year's Roanoke High School team, and the remaining four members of the unit are all inexperienced freshmen.

"We had only seven girls out until Wednesday," Coach Bert Perkins said, "then another senior with no experience came out, Dee Stanley. She's a good athlete and has potential, but never having played before, it's going to take her a while to get into it. She's aggressive and we need that."

The three returning seniors are Nancy Roberson, Sherri Stout and Nancy Smith, currently holding down the top three spots on the team. They are joined by Dena Morris, Lory Fernandez, Janet Hoskins and Robin Hebbard, all freshmen.

"Morris has improved a lot since she first came out. Her improvement has been one of the bright spots on the team. She's went three sets in each of her first matches. But it's going to take time for all of the freshmen to come around," Perkins said.

Roanoke has moved up to the 3-A Northeastern Conference for tennis, and Perkins is not too unhappy about the move. "We are able to fill our schedule easier, and although it is a step up, it should improve us, since we'll be playing better competition.

"With the four freshmen we have, the future should be bright. If we can get four new freshmen out every year, things will improve. Right now, there is just not that much interest in tennis in the school and community. It hasn't caught on yet, but it is coming."

Greene Central

Four girls return from last year's Greene Central team, and two others who did not play last year, but played the year before have joined them.

The Lady Rams field one of the largest teams in the area, with 11 out for the team.

The four returning players are seniors Crystal Pittman, Michelle Allbritton and Bonnie Creech and junior Denise Butler.

Joining them are seniors Lisa Morris, Christie Manning, Theresa Harris and Georgia Sugg, along with junior Laura Herring, sophomore Stacey Pittman and freshman Mary Beth Whitfield.

"We're really still a young team," Coach Steve Bryant said. "Most of the girls haven't played that much before, and it will take us a while to come around. But I think we have a chance to do pretty fair before the year is up.

"We're still trying to build the program. Tennis isn't that big in Greene County, and I'm hoping to attract more younger girls so that we will have a chance to grow."

Bryant's team lost their opener to North Duplin, 6-3, and had a return match with that team yesterday. "I think our conference race will be pretty tough. C.B. Aycock has most of its players back, and Farmville is always tough. Southern Nash is fielding a team for the first time, so we really can't tell much about them."

Williamston

Williamston returns three members of last year's team, but is largely inexperienced. Coach Peggy Taylor has 12 girls out all together.

Returning are JoAnna Lilley, a senior, at number one, and Mary Grace Baker, a sophomore, at number two. There are two other seniors in the top six, Lisa Roebuck and Beth Boyd, and they are joined by a freshman Theresa Duffy, Cathy Everett, a sophomore, and Amy Griffin, a freshman, have battled for the sixth spot in the singles.

Sophomore Kathy Gurganus is the other returning member of the team, while freshmen Amy Jones, Ann Davis, Danya Stevens and Serena Chesson round out the unit.

"We're not that experienced," Taylor said. "Duffy is playing in her first year of organized tennis and is doing a real good job. Actually, Lilly and Baker are the only ones with any team experience, and Baker has come a long way since last year."

Taylor said she expected Tarboro to be one of the stronger teams in the league, but the Valkyries fell to the Tigerettes in their first meeting. "I also look for Washington and Roanoke Rapids to field strong teams," she said. "I just hope to survive."

Rampette Netters

HOUSTON (AP) — You always remember the ones that got away, whether it was romance, fishing or golf.

Doug Sanders still recalls the 3-foot putt he missed on the 18th green of the final round of the 1970 British Open. It dropped him into a tie with Jack Nicklaus at the end of regulation play and he lost a playoff the next day.

See Brisk Sale Of Testing Kits

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — An instructional kit to help students with the reading section of the state competency tests is selling briskly in school systems around the state.

About 150 of the kits, manufactured by EDL-McGraw Hill and priced at $199.95 each, have been sold to North Carolina school systems, according to a company spokesman in the Atlanta regional office. The spokesman said some school systems have bought more than one kit, while others have not bought any.

The kit was put together by a subsidiary of the company that distributes the competency test. The distributor has assured buyers that questions in the kit parallel the questions on the reading section of the test.

But Elaine Scheier, the kit's editor, said the kit will not teach poor readers to read better. She said in a telephone interview Thursday from New York that the kit is designed to introduce students to the kinds of practical reading problems on the test.

Ms. Scheier said teachers may use the kit before the competency test is administered in November to prepare students for the questions they will face. After the test, teachers can assign students specific exercises from the kit to practice the types of questions they missed.

Ms. Scheier said the kit is designed to be effective for students with at least a fourth grade reading level. State educators have said the competency test requires no skills taught after the ninth grade.

Students will be required to pass the competency test to receive a high school diploma. Students who fail the test will get remedial help and three more chances to take the test and pass it by the end of their senior year. Those who do not pass will receive a certificate of attendance if they have fulfilled all other graduation requirements.

"WE'RE NATIONAL BUT WE'RE NEIGHBORLY"

Two More Semifinalists

Two more Pitt County students are semifinalists in the National Merit Scholarship program, in which 15,000 students nationally have achieved this status in the 24th annual program.

These two bring to 11 the total of students in Pitt County who have achieved the semifinalist stage — three from the county schools and eight from Rose High School.

The two are:

— Patricia Tenpenny, a senior at Ayden-Grifton High School. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Tenpenny of Ayden, she is a member of the National Honor Society, the Science and French Clubs, a member of the school band, and was one of five chief marshals. Tenpenny attended Governor's school this past summer, and is active in the Explorer Post at Pitt Memorial Hospital. She says that for her career, she will possibly choose some kind of scientific research.

— Russell Clift, senior at North Pitt High School is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Clift of Bethel. Clift attended the 1978 Governor's School, in the field of natural science, and was a marshal for the 1978 graduating class. He is a member of the National Honor Society and the North Pitt Student Council. A member of the North Pitt football team, he plays guard. Clift hopes to attend UNC-CH, and plans to major in some field of science.

Speaker In 1980 Race

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — House Speaker Carl Stewart is joining several other state officials and tossing his hat in the ring for the post of lieutenant governor in 1980.

Stewart is running for his seventh term in the House this fall, which would virtually guarantee his re-election to the Speaker's post.

J. Edward Stowe, a friend of Stewart's in Gastonia, has sent out letters to 118 of Stewart's friends asking for $500 contributions for a possible "statewide race" in 1980.

The letter doesn't mention the lieutenant governorship, "but of course that's exactly what we're talking about," Stewart said.

Stewart, attempting to avoid criticism for raising funds while Senate candidate John Ingram is having problems getting donations, has limited his campaign to Gaston County friends capable of giving $500.

Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green is considering running for the governorship in 1980, a race Stewart said he would make himself if Gov. Jim Hunt decided not to seek re-election.

Stewart may have a lot of company if he goes ahead with his plans to seek the lieutenant governorship. Green may change his mind about running against Hunt and try to keep his job.

State Transportation Secretary Tom Bradshaw has shown interest in the post. Another possible contender is state Sen. Lawrence Davis of Winston-Salem. Howard N. Lee, secretary of natural resources and community development, has also indicated he may run for lieutenant governor.

MATHEMATICS STUDY — Dr. Lokenath Debnath, ECU professor of mathemathics, is host to a gathering of scholars and educators to mark the fifth anniversary of opening of the ECU Overseas Editorial Office of advanced mathematics research journals of which Dr. Debnath is editor and director. Left to right are Dr. Robert Williams, UNC associate vice president for academic affairs; ECU Chancellor Thomas B. Brewer; Dr. John Howell, ECU vice chancellor for academic affairs and Dr. Debnath. REFERENDUM DATE

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The Greensboro City Council has tentatively set Friday, Feb. 9, 1979 as the date for a local referendum on liquor-by-the-drink.

Attorney Joins Firm

D. Michael Strickland, 25, a native of Pine Level, has recently joined the Greenville law firm of Gaylord, Singleton and McNally DA.

D.M. STRICKLAND

Strickland, a graduate of North Johnston High School, was awarded his law degree at Wake Forest University last spring. He earned his B.S. Degree, with honors, in engineering operations from North Carolina State University.

He held a position on the Moot Court Board of Wake Forest University and is a member of Phi Delta Phi, a legal fraternity. He was also vice-president of Pi Kappa Alpha, a social fraternity at NCSU, and a member of the Engineering Operations Society.

Strickland resides with his wife, Brenda Crocker Strickland, also of Pine Level, at 104 N. Ash St., Apt. 3, Tar River Estates.

In-Place Treatment Of PCB-Dumping Weighed

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State officials, who have run into roadblocks in their attempts to find a suitable site for the burial of PCB-contaminated soil dumped along the state's roadsides, are considering treating the soil where it was dumped and leaving it there.

Gov. Jim Hunt said Thursday that the search for a burial site for the soil is continuing, but that officials have not decided on a location.

Robert A. Carter, water-quality specialist with the state Department of Natural Resources and Community Development, said officials will meet Friday or early next week to consider proposals on ways to treat the contaminated soil along 210 miles of North Carolina roads.

"It may be that treatment in place may be the only thing we can do," Carter told state environmental commission officials.

Carter said trial runs to test the equipment used to pick up the dirt had produced problems. He said in a test Wednesday to remove the contaminated soil, a residue of dust was left that workers were unable to remove.

"If it is a problem, we may have to look at other procedures," Carter said.

Carter said the state has received a number of proposals from scientists for treating the PCB in the soil. He said the contaminated soil could be coated with enzymes, amines or microbes that would eliminate the PCBs.

The state plans to conduct its first test of the pick-up equipment on contaminated soil next Thursday, Carter said. He said plans for the test call for workers in protective coveralls and respirators to clear about 200 yards of roadside in Granville County.

Carter said traffic will be closed off and the effects on air, water and soil will be noted during the test. He said the soil that is removed will be stored in "a giant baggie" on state property, probably in Warren County.

Meanwhile, state health officials have received about 30 offers from landowners to sell land to the state as a burial site for the soil. June Milby, a spokesewoman for the Human Resources Department, said the tracts of land are being evaluated to see if they meet federal Environmental Protection Agency requirements.

Fall Meeting For Track Club Sunday

The Coastal Carolina Track Club will hold its first meeting of the fall season Sunday at 6:30 p. m. in Room 142 of Minges Coliseum on the East Carolina University campus, entrance on the tennis court side of the building.

Dr. Jim Bowman, orthopedic surgeon and ECU team physician, will lead a seminar on "Leg Injuries and Athletes." The public is invited to attend the talk and the question and answer session which will follow.

At 4 p. m. the Club's Board of Directors will meet at the Arlington Street branch of Home Savings and Loan Association.

Saturday the usual Fun Run will be held. Those wishing to run any distance from six to 26 miles will meet at North Pitt High School at 6:30 a. m. Those wishing to run less than six miles will meet at the ECU Track at 8 a. m.

A picnic and fun run will be held in conjunction with the Wilson Running Club and the Tar River (Rocky Mount) Running Club at Sunset Park in Rocky Mount Sunday, Sept. 24, at 2 p. m.

Several clinics will be held this fall concerning the entire physiology of exercise. Two sports podiatrists will be on the November meeting program.

Farmville Mart Prices Steady

FARMVILLE — Prices on the Farmville market remained steady Thursday. More less desirable grades were marketed than on any previous sales day this week, with nondescript increasing in volume.

Leaf and cutter grades accounted for most of the volume, and Stabilization receipts accounted for .87 per cent of the gross sales.
