

Saudi Arabia Refuses To Support Camp David Deal

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (AP) - Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance wound up his talks with Saudi leaders today, still uncertain whether they will support the Camp David peace accords.

Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev, meanwhile, reiterated his nation's opposition to the Camp David plan, calling it a "separate deal" between Egypt and Israel that produced "nothing but the illusion of a settlement."

Vance, after a working lunch with Prince Sultan, the acting Saudi foreign minister, said he and the Saudis over two days held "discussions in depth that were absolutely essential."

Vance's next and last stop, Syria, already is committed to rejection of the new Israeli-Egyptian agreements.

Speaking privately, American officials said they were not discouraged with the trip thus far and that they would continue to push for at least an Arab willingness to let the Camp David plan go forward.

"It's gone about as expected. It's too early to tell what Jordan and the others will do," said one official.

Libyan leader Moammar Khadafi and Palestinian chief Yasser Arafat, participating in a hard-line

Arab summit in Damascus, unexpectedly traveled to Jordan today and met with Hussein in an apparent bid to talk him into joining their "rejectionist" front against the Camp David plan.

Vance wound up two days of meetings with Hussein in Amman Thursday, and while Foreign Minister Hassan Ibrahim said Jordan would keep the dialogue going with the United States, he repeated Hussein's initial reservations about the plan's failure to guarantee complete Israeli withdrawal from occupied territories or the rights of Palestinians to form a state. Jordan is supposed to play a central role in the peace process.

Then Vance flew to oil-rich Saudi Arabia, a country which the Carter administration has been cultivating for some time in hopes that it would be a force for moderation in the Arab world. King Khaled received Vance for only 30 minutes. The Saudi monarch is in poor health and he plans to fly to Cleveland for medical tests next week. Vance then met for more than two hours with Crown Prince Fahd.

Afterwards, the results were much the same. State Department spokesman Hoddling Carter said Vance intended to continue talking to the Saudis, but Carter could report no change in the announced Saudi position that the accords are an unacceptable framework for a final solution to the Middle East problem.

The Saudis cite the same reasons as the Jordanians.

DOMES FIRE - A huge pillar of black smoke and flames spews into the air from a 294 million-gallon underground strategic oil reserve in Hackberry, La. The fire was declared "under control" three hours after it erupted from the shaft. (AP Laser-photo)

Spark Set Off A Huge Oil Reserve

HACKBERRY, La. (AP) - A towering pillar of flames billowed over an alligator-infested swamp of palmetto and sawgrass today following an explosion that left one man dead and another seriously injured at the showcase storage site of the nation's strategic petroleum reserves.

The fire, visible 25 miles away overnight, was expected to burn for at least two days. It was fed from an underground cavern - 10 stories high and as big as a city block - that held 7 million barrels of crude oil being stored as a hedge against foreign oil embargos.

The fire roared up a six-inch drill pipe during routine maintenance late Thursday and caught about 20 men on a steel drilling rig, officials said. Two men were burned while four dived to safety in a mudbank and the others clambered down a staircase just ahead of the flames. The heat melted the drilling rig.

"We don't know what happened," said Bill Parker, deputy project manager.

But workmen said the fire was touched off by a spark that was struck while they were pulling a drilling bit up the pipe.

"A big stream of oil spewed into the air about 50 to 60 feet high for about 40 seconds. Then there was a loud explosion that rocked my truck and the oil caught on fire," said George LaBove, a mechanical inspector who was about a quarter mile away.

The dead man was identified as Clarence Simon Sr., 38, of Abbeville, La. In stable condition with burns over half of his body was Bradley Bergeron, 22, of New Iberia, La.

"We've got every trick in the book working to try and control it," said Parker.

Earthen dikes were hastily pushed up to contain the flames in a 200-square-foot puddle.

"There will be an inquiry," Parker said. "There were men on the rig platform so we will have plenty of witnesses."

Parker said the oil in the cavern was under pressure of 650 pounds per square inch, which was forcing oil back through the well hole.

"We are going to have 25,000 to 30,000 barrels come out of there before the pressure is equalized," he said. "First we have got to get the fire out, then stop the oil."

It was the first serious accident involving the $8 billion federal project to store half a billion barrels of crude oil.

The burning oil came from one of five caverns at the Hackberry dome, which was the first of four storage sites along the Gulf Coast to take on oil. It blew when the cavern was half full.

The work crew was conducting a routine oilfield maintenance chore - cleaning out a dirty hole extending 3,240 feet down into the cavern, officials said.

Syria Defers Visit

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) - The Syrian government announced today it was indefinitely postponing Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance's visit to Damascus to discuss the Camp David accords with President Hafez Assad.

The announcement said the visit was postponed because the three-day-old summit meeting here of hard-line Arab leaders would continue through the weekend, when Vance was supposed to have been in Damascus. It said Assad has apologized to Vance about the abrupt change in plans.

The summit meeting here of Arab leaders opposed to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's unilateral peace initiatives was convened specifically to prevent the implementation of the Camp David accords.

In earlier statements, Syrian officials said Assad had agreed to receive Vance out of courtesy, in response to a specific request from Carter.

There was no immediate explanation of any likely additional reasons behind the last-minute cancellation of the visit.

Excitement In Asheville On Eve Of Carter's Visit

By MONTE PLOTT Associated Press Writer

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) - Jimmy Carter came here a couple of years ago and local Democrats worked to get a crowd out for their man.

But that was before he became President Carter.

The difference is evidenced by some 300 persons - party regulars, volunteers, and precinct organizers - who have worked feverishly this week to have it all just so when Air Force One floats President Jimmy Carter to the local airport this afternoon.

"We've got so many people working in here that they're overrunning the place," Margie Davis, a precinct coordinator, said Thursday afternoon as workers prepared posters at local Democratic headquarters.

Carter, on his second visit to North Carolina in two months, was to appear here on behalf of Democratic candidates for the U.S. House and Senate.

After landing at 4:30 p.m. and delivering a few remarks at the airport for U.S. Rep. Lamar Gudger of the 11th District, Carter was to take his motorcade to the plush Biltmore Estate where a rally was scheduled for Senate candidate John Ingram.

A reception to raise funds for Ingram was to be open only to party loyalists who shelled out $500 per ticket.

After the rally, the motorcade was to return to the airport with Carter's jet leaving at 6:25 p.m. for another political appearance in South Carolina.

Carter's visit here was delayed one week because last Friday the Mideast peace talks at Camp David were at a crucial stage.

But local supporters of Carter said the delay only served to increase the interest in his visit.

"The excitement here this week has been terrific," Ms. Davis said.

"Everybody has had more time to think about it. You're always let down when something like this is postponed, but last week with the summit going on, it was in the back of our minds that he might not make it."

Carter's success at Camp David went a long way in strengthening his image with voters, according to White House observers.

And even an official of Ingram's opposition campaign, that of incumbent Republican Sen. Jesse Helms, conceded that the visit could not have been better timed for Ingram.

"It has to be helpful to Ingram," Raleigh attorney Tom Ellis, Helms' campaign manager said in a telephone interview.

"The president is certainly on a popularity upswing now. But Jimmy Carter's always said some nice things about Jesse Helms so I'm not going to worry about his coming down here," Ellis said.

Honor Begin

JERUSALEM (AP) - Israel planned a red carpet welcome for Prime Minister Menachem Begin today when he returns from the Camp David summit, with pageantry usually reserved for its most important foreign visitors.

Police, expecting huge crowds for Begin's arrival, ordered access roads to the airport blocked off for three hours before the scheduled arrival. National television, which normally does not begin broadcasting until early evening, planned a live broadcast of the event.

"This morning I bring you good tidings from Camp David," Begin told a news conference in London, where he stopped to brief Prime Minister James Callaghan on the outcome of the summit. "Let us all hope that in the future there will be real peace in the Middle East for the benefit of all the races dwelling there and for the benefit of all mankind."

Couldn't Recall?

WASHINGTON (AP) - Former CIA Director Richard Helms said today that a former attorney general could not have told the truth when he swore he could not recall meeting with Helms about the handling of a Soviet defector, Yuri Nosenko.

Testifying at a House assassinations committee hearing on the death of President John F. Kennedy, Helms presented memos of his meeting with Nicholas B. Katzenbach to discuss the Nosenko matter on April 2, 1964.

Katzenbach on Thursday denied under oath that he had any recollection of such a meeting.

Katzenbach was deputy attorney general at the time of Kennedy's assassination in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963. He subsequently served as attorney general and now is a counsel to IBM Corp.

There was no immediate comment from him today on Helms' testimony.

Nosenko defected to the United States in 1964, claiming he had been a high-ranking Soviet KGB official and had extensive knowledge of Lee Harvey Oswald's activities during his three-year stay in Russia.

Law Enforcement Role Is Honored At Dinner

By LYNN CAVERLY Reflector Staff Writer The Greenville-Pitt County law enforcement personnel were honored at the second annual Law Enforcement Appreciation Dinner last night at the Greenville Golf and Country Club, sponsored by the Law Enforcement Committee, Greenville Area Chamber of Commerce.

Approximately 240 law enforcement officers and chamber members turned out for the event and to hear guest speaker Dr. Charles P. McDowell, professor and chairman of the Administration of Justice Department of Guilford College.

A noted author, Dr. McDowell has published numerous articles about law enforcement skills and casework. Addressing the real-life problems of the law enforcement officer, not just the way it looks, Dr. McDowell cited many reasons for the uncommon amount of stress and other distressing symptoms often experienced by law enforcement officers.

"These symptoms are a result of many different reasons," McDowell said. "Some of these being low pay, bureaucratic red-tape and laws that need to be reformed." McDowell added that law enforcement is in "a renaissance period" and what the public has got to realize is that the "people in the business of law enforcement are its most important asset."

Set Sights On '79 Pay Raise

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) - North Carolina State Government Employees Association delegates say they will probably ask the General Assembly for a 6 percent pay raise plus $400 per year for each employee for 1979.

That proposal was made at the 33rd annual convention here. The 240 delegates of the 12,200 member organization will make a final decision on the pay raise request by the concluding day of the convention Saturday.

Edward Elias, promotions director for the association, said the chances of getting at least a portion of the pay request seem relatively good.

WIFE ABUSE PROGRAM

I was watching tv one night last week and heard there is a program in Wake County called "Wife Abuse." I was wondering if there is such a thing offered in Pitt County, and, if so, is there any charge. If not, can it be started? F. S.

The Real Crisis Intervention Center here offers a limited "Battered Person" program. Mary Larew said applications for funds for a more extensive program were not approved, but that, with the limited program, some counseling is done, referrals are made, and overnight accommodations and some food can be provided when need be. ## Can't Say No To Goopy Desserts

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I have just lost 20 pounds, which is something I've been trying to do for years. However, a problem has developed. When I'm a dinner guest at someone's home and a goopy dessert is offered and I turn it down, the hostess will loudly announce, "Oh, you and your diet! You're so skinny, it wouldn't hurt you to put on a few pounds!"

Of course, all eyes are on me and I never know what to do or say. I don't like to make a big deal out of explaining that I really don't want it (nobody would believe me anyway), so I take it and eat it, and afterwards I could kick myself. Is there a better way to handle this situation? I hate scenes.

EMBARRASSED

DEAR EMBARRASSED: Instead of being embarrassed, be proud! Simply say, "I'm watching my calories."

And if you get any feedback about how skinny you are, let it be known that you worked hard to get that way and want to stay that way.

But if you lack the courage to stand your ground in a public confrontation, quietly accept the dessert, push it around on your plate, and leave it.

DEAR ABBY: My son (a sophomore in high school) is getting to be a very clever thief. We give him a generous allowance and if he asked for anything extra, we would be glad to give it to him, but he doesn't ask, he just helps himself. He doesn't need anything. He just steals for the thrill of stealing.

I know he has been in my purse and stolen money. And I have seen him take money from his father's wallet. He has stolen little things from his friends, and now I find that he's taken things from the grocery store, drugstore and other places of business.

I keep finding things in his room that I know he didn't buy. I have even threatened to take him to the police to frighten him, but nothing helps. Am I raising a criminal? Please help me.

ILLINOIS MOM

DEAR MOM: A child who steals for the thrill of stealing needs professional help. He can be straightened out if he's taken in hand early. Threatening him with the police is unwise. A policeman should be identified as a friend who protects us and our property, not an enemy who would take pleasure in punishing our wrongdoing. Ask your family doctor whom to see about this boy.

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend whose company I enjoy immensely and we see each other at least once a week—but it is always at MY house.

She has a lovely home and a housekeeper, so there is no reason in the world why she can't invite me to her house once in a while.

When I see her or talk to her on the phone, she always says, "Do come over to see me sometime." I don't consider this a proper invitation. When I invite her to my home, I telephone and ask her to come on a specific afternoon.

I don't want to offend her, but I would like her to know that her "come over sometime" invitation doesn't sound very sincere to me.

How should this be handled? Or am I too touchy?

MRS. ANONYMOUS

DEAR MRS. ANONYMOUS: Are you too touchy? No. And how should it be handled? The next time your vague friend asks you to come over "sometime"—ask, "When?"

Miss Peggy Keeping, bride-elect of Grover Cleveland Haddock Jr., was honored at a lingerie shower at the home of Mrs. Curtis L. Hardee Sr. Monday evening.

She was given a corsage of miniature white mums with wedding bells which complemented her green dress.

Miss Terry Elks assisted the hostess in receiving guests and presided at the bride's book.

The house was decorated throughout with fall flowers and lighted candles. The refreshment table was covered with a white lace trimmed cloth and centered with an arrangement of white mums interspersed with greenery and lighted tapers. Mrs. Grover C. Haddock Sr., mother of the bridegroom-elect, poured punch.

Good-byes were said by the hostess.

Montage Book Club Meets

The first fall meeting of the Montage Book Club was held at the home of Mrs. Barbara Radeka and Mrs. Anna Andrews was co-hostess.

President Mrs. Judy Kopping presided at the business session and Mrs. Joyce Hastings outlined the program for the year.

Fewer Mules Showing Up At Festival

GUEST OF HONOR — Mule Days are under way in Benson. This is Garland McLamb, who says he founded the festival in 1950, and his old mule, Kate, who still plows a garden plot for McLamb. (AP Laserphoto)

BENSON, N.C. (AP) — Novelist William Faulkner once said of the mule, "He will labor 10 years willingly and patiently for you, for the privilege of kicking you once."

An apt description of the animal that used to be at the very heart of Southern agriculture. But now automation has made him a vanishing breed as a working tool on the farm.

The town of Benson hasn't forgotten. And every year at this time, it turns out for four days to honor the hard-working, cantankerous creature. It's time for Mule Days in Benson.

It was back in 1950 that Garland McLamb says he got the town interested in the idea. "I decided we should have Mule Days in Benson," he says. "I saw that the mule business was going. We had the best mules. I just sort of wanted to honor them before they were all gone."

They are not as numerous as they once used to be. About 300 of them showed up for the first annual round of pulling and appearance contests. Last year there were only 31.

Still, the diminishing number of mules has been more than matched by an increasing number of people. The event has snowballed into a Thursday-through-Sunday weekend that attracts about 50,000 people to this small rural community.

They'll be commemorating a hard-working animal that hasn't really had a heyday since World War II, when vehicles were scarce and "even doctors and lawyers were going into the mule business."

In those days, McLamb was a dealer too, buying from as far away as Texas until the bottom dropped out, leaving him with a carload of the beasts.

"I put 'em on the train and sent them right back to the killers (slaughterhouse)," he said.

McLamb refused to go with the times, though. He used mule power on his own 300 acres until the early 1960s, and only stopped then because harness and plow parts were getting harder to find.

Now he keeps his old Mule, Kate, just to plow a downtown garden. Kate is 36 and McLamb is 69 and he says he's curious to see which will outlive the other.

Act To Aid Rest Home

WINTERVILLE — The Winterville Planning Zoning Board recommended Monday night that the Winterville Town Board amend an ordinance to allow a 100-bed rest home facility to be built northwest between Highway 11 and North Mill St.

The board studied a letter received from Medical Facilities Management, Inc. of Matthews requesting to build in the area, which is zoned as an agricultural-residential area.

According to Ken Weeden, community management specialist, the zoning does not allow rest home facilities by either permitted or conditional use permits.

The board had a choice of rezoning the area to a residential area, which does allow rest homes with a conditional use permit or amending the present ordinance.

The Winterville Town Board of Commissioners are slated to meet in regular session Oct. 2.

Saturday night the ushers' anniversary will be observed with the Rev. Joe Dixon and Bethel Chapel Junior Choir in Charge. Sunday the Rev. Hue Walston and Walston Traveling Choir will lead a 3 p. m. service. The public is invited to all these services.

Mothers' Group Will Resume

The evening group of Mothers and Babies and Mothers and Toddlers is resuming its fall schedule.

This group is designed primarily to meet the needs of mothers who are employed outside the home. The topic of discussion for the next meeting, to be held Tuesday at 8 p. m., will be "Organization for Quality Time."

According to Hilda S. Alford of Mothers and Toddlers, with few hours at home it is vital that this time be as fulfilling as possible for the couple and their children. Mothers are invited to bring suggestions that have worked in their own homes and to share experiences with other women in similar roles. Infants are welcome.

For more information about this meeting or morning meetings of Mothers and Babies and Mothers and Toddlers, one may call 758-4650.

Officers Named By Association

The Pitt County Association of Educational Office Personnel held its fall meeting Tuesday at the Three Steers Restaurant.

Naomi Edwards, president, headed the meeting. Officers for 1978-79 were elected and installed. They are: Ann Love, president, Nancy Bulow, vice president, Jackie Waters, secretary, and Velma Harper, treasurer.

Ellen Cheng and Naomi Edwards conducted a workshop designed to improve letter-writing skills for the educational secretary.

Brenda Willoughby, winner of the AEOP Scholarship for 1977-78, was introduced to the group.

Beautification Involves Many

Chancellor Thomas Brewer of ECU, speaking to an Area Chamber of Commerce meeting, said he wants to make the local campus the "prettiest campus in the state."

"It's already a pretty campus," he said, "and we want to do a lot more."

He said the university would want to join with Greenville and Pitt County in a major beautification campaign.

Neither the university, nor the city, nor the county could have a better goal. Greenville and the university campus are particularly wedded with the campus stretching from First Street all the way to Greenville Boulevard. Therefore any beautification program will involve the efforts of the university, the city, and for that matter private residents which surround the campus.

As Chancellor Brewer says, we already have a pretty campus and fortunately much of the non-campus area has been cleaned up in recent years through urban renewal and other projects.

We are also fortunate that home owners in areas adjacent to the campus take unusual pride in their lawns and gardens.

With all that going there is no real reason why with proper effort the ECU campus can't be the prettiest in the state.

Heat Wave For Final Week Of Summer

Summer will officially come to an end early Saturday, and this week a picture of a blizzard appeared in the papers.

A foot of snow fell along U. S. 212 in Montana.

Furtunately here in the Sun Belt snow is still a long way off. In fact for our area a heat wave was the main characteristic of the final week of summer.

Zoo Faces Up To Reality

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — North Carolina's zoo has run headlong into reality.

What the eventual shape of that establishment atop Purgatory Mountain in a rural area of the Uwharries in "Deep Randolph" County will be is now a matter of conjecture.

Storm signals are plenty. There is no timetable now available for even the first of several stages. The African section was supposed to be ready next year. Bids have come in far in excess of the budget, and plans are now being adjusted. That means expensive items eliminated.

The feeling runs deeply among legislators and some key people in the Department of Natural Resources and Community Development that original plans were just too grandiose; too exotic to stand up to reality.

Howard Lee, head of that agency, hinted at this recently when he said it is time for the zoo to "move from the conceptual stage to the reality stage."

Location
Location in the geographical center of the state on that mountain ridge is proving to be another problem. While centrally located, it develops that the zoo is not where the people are in terms of urban centers; nor on a beaten path with other attractions which tend to draw visitors. The essentially rural and isolated site has also produced a shortage of anxious sponsors, private and corporate, who might otherwise have given more generously of time, dollars and leadership had the zoo been in a more aggressive, affluent community.

Resistance to heavier funding — and even some budding resistance to the zoo itself — can be found among members of the General Assembly, although not sufficient to create material problems.

The recent replacement of the state's first zoo manager also indicates that state officials are coming to grips with reality — even lowering their sights.

Bill Hoff came to North Carolina heralded as one of the nation's most imaginative and respected zoo authorities. The master plan is essentially his as it embraces development of sections reflecting different parts of the world.

BILL NOBLITT

Animals would live in "natural habitats" rather than behind bars, and visitors would safari through the zoo on natural trails seeing the exhibits up close and separated by natural and often invisible barriers. Water exhibits, for example, were to offer a stroll through a grotto of coral reefs and canyons while fish and sealife exhibits appeared at every hand ... even overhead.

New Man
Replacing Hoff is Robert L. Fry, recently retired from the U.S. Marines where he had been for a couple of years director of athletics and parks at Camp Lejeune.

A native of Wyoming, Ill., and graduate of Ohio State University, Fry was a Marine enlisted man when he won a commission in Korea. He climbed to rank of Lieutenant Colonel, and saw duty in Vietnam, North Africa and elsewhere around the world.

Secretary Lee considers hiring Fry another confrontation with reality: "We don't believe it is important that the director be an animal expert. In fact, the less he knows about animals, the better off we are."

A team of curators and designers and construction people will take care of the technicalities. Fry will provide administrative skills, leadership, promotional abilities, and most importantly a close hand with the dwindling money supply, Lee believes.

Fry says his goal is to follow that master plan which "reflects what the General Assembly and the people of North Carolina want. Perhaps not as fast ... but to find the money and flesh it out with some modification in materials or design."

Perils Await Carter

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — And so Jimmy Carter is a bornagain political leader, his fortunes at home revived by the diplomatic triumph of Camp David.

There are perils ahead, for the fragile framework of peace between Egypt and Israel, and for the administration as it turns back to what have seemed intractable domestic problems on taxes, inflation, energy and more.

But Carter returns to that agenda with an aura of command and competence that had not been his since his days as a victorious political campaigner.

At Camp David with Anwar Sadat and Menachem Begin, he campaigned for peace as he had campaigned for office. Only dogged perseverance and patience against long odds carried him through the two-year campaign from Plains to Washington. He never was more effective than when he sat with one, two or a half-dozen political leaders to argue his cause as a candidate — and never more stubbornly determined than when they refused to join it.

Those attributes showed again in the 13 days at Camp David, and with them, Carter gained more than all Henry Kissinger's Middle East shuttles could achieve.

That is not to say that the Camp David accord will withstand the obstacles it now faces. If it does, Carter's diplomatic coup will be complete, but even if it does not, his political gain will be largely intact. "If it breaks down, I don't think the blame comes back to Carter," said pollster Peter Hart.

Hart said that the sense of mastery over events, the mystique of the president in charge at the summit, have made assets of what were liabilities for Carter.

That is underscored in the reaction of two of the congressional leaders of Carter's Democratic party. "I think that with one bold stroke

It Is Somoza, Or Else

WASHINGTON — A well-known columnist came into my office the other day and asked, "Who are you for, Somoza or the Commies in Nicaragua?"

"Why do I only have a choice between a dictator and the Communists? Why can't I be for Lopez?"

"I don't know who Lopez is. Let's say he's the guy in the middle who hates Somoza and can't stand the Communists."

"Because Lopez would get eaten up by the Commies. If you're for the American interests in Central America you have to be for Somoza."

"I don't want to be for Somoza. He's a tyrant and from what I read, a crook."

He's milked the country dry for 40 years. I hope he gets bounced out on his ear."

"What he is and what he does is not our concern. Do you realize if the other side kicks Somoza out, the Commies will have a dagger pointing right at the Panama Canal?"

"Maybe so. But it's obvious Somoza can't hold on much longer, and we should see to it that Lopez is pro-American too. We're not going to do it if we keep training Somoza's national guard officers to shoot the Nicaraguan people."

"So what you're saying is that we should get in bed with Castro?"

"I'm saying no such thing. All I'm saying is that I don't see why we always have to support a military junta when the people want to throw the rascals out."

ART BUCHWALD

"It's quite simple. Most of the generals in South America have been trained at West Point, including Somoza. They speak good English and you can do business with them. You let the people take over and you'll have another Cuba in six months."

"Not if we support Lopez," I said. "The reason the Commies have a chance of taking over is because the people know we're on Somoza's side."

"You're living in a dream world," the columnist said. "Lopez doesn't have the strength to run a middle-of-the-road government."

"He would if we gave him as much military hardware as we've given Somoza. The only thing that's keeping Somoza in power is the stuff we've sold him. Why can't we give it to Lopez?"

"Because if we give the stuff to Lopez it will eventually fall into the hands of the Commies when they topple him. The only way Lopez can stay in power is by being anti-American."

"The people of Nicaragua are only anti-American because they know we support Somoza. If we said we were supporting Lopez we wouldn't get ourselves in a Marxist box."

"How can you be so sure of Lopez? We know what we've got with Somoza. He may be an s.o.b. but he's OUR s.o.b."

"So that means we have to support s.o.b.'s all over the world because it's in our best interests?"

40 Years Ago Today

September 22, 1938

Sheriff J. Knott Proctor said today that he and his deputies had completed the task of serving an order on Greenville and Farmville warehousemen, which asked them to show cause why they should not be restrained from collecting government penalty tax on tobacco this year.

Pitt County's warehouse officials were a part of a combined total of 351 warehousemen in North Carolina named in an action brought by the Anti-Crop Control Association in Wake County.

The ever-lengthening roster of the dead from an equinoctial hurricane which struck the north Atlantic states with a savageness unequalled in a 100 years, neared the 250 mark today and still the figures mounted. The damage to property—hundreds of smashed boats, growing or matured crops, homes, utilities, public building, transportation and communication—was beyond calculation, rising to uncounted millions of dollars.

THE GALLUP POLL

Climate For Minorities

By George Gallup

PRINCETON, N.J. — The climate for women, blacks, Jews and Catholics seeking the nation's political leadership roles has never been more favorable than it is today.

For example, one of the lesser-noted trends in the U.S. society in recent decades has been the decline in prejudice toward persons of different races, religions and backgrounds in terms of their running for the highest political office in the land — the presidency of the U.S.

The latest survey sought to find out how many people would be willing to vote for a woman, a black, a Jew, a Catholic, a divorced person and an atheist for president of the United States.

The current findings show that only in the case of an atheist would a majority of Americans be opposed.

"The most dramatic change has come about in terms of support for a woman for president. Since 1937 the percentage of Americans who say they would be willing to vote for a woman for president has increased from 31 percent to 76 percent in the latest nationwide survey.

"Over this same 40-year period the proportion willing to vote for a Catholic for president has climbed 27 points, from 64 percent in 1937 to 91 percent today.

"The percentage saying they would vote for a Jew was 46 percent in the first survey (in 1937) and is 82 percent today.

"And, as reported earlier, the percentage of people favorable to a presidential candidacy by a black has doubled in just two decades. The first survey, in 1958, showed 38 percent willing to vote for a black for president; the figure today is 77 percent.

A gain in tolerance — at least in terms of voting for presidential candidates — is also noted in the trend on willingness to vote for a divorced person for president. In 1963, 78 percent indicated a willingness to vote for a divorced person for president; today the figure is 84 percent.

One of the most interesting — and dramatic — changes has come about in terms of voting for an atheist for president. In 1958 only 18 percent said they would vote for such a candidate, but today the proportion is 40 percent. However, a majority, 53 percent, indicate they would not vote for an atheist.

Education A Key Factor

Persons with a college background are less likely to object to voting for persons of different backgrounds, races and religions than are persons with less than a college background.

In fact, the growing level of formal education in this country is presumably a key factor in the steady decline in prejudice toward persons of different backgrounds running for president. In 1937, only about 7 percent of the adult population had a college background; today the figure is more than three times as high.

Following are the questions asked and the trend: "If your party nominated a woman for president, would you vote for her if she were qualified for the job?"

Strength For Today

BRICKS vs. IDEAS

Lloyd George, the Welshman who as prime minister guided England through World War I, was speaking one evening in a hall in Wales when a brick crashed through the window and fell at his feet. The prime minister, internationally known as a wit, immediately stooped, picked up the brick, and holding it aloft dramatically exclaimed, "Behold, the only argument of our opponents!"

Ideas can never be destroyed by bricks, no matter how large and heavy they may be. If the ideas are wrong or impractical, time will demonstrate this falling and they will cease to exert any influence. If an idea is sound, however, no amount of force will ever suppress it.

It is remarkable how much blood, sweat, and money has been expended throughout history to suppress ideas. And the ineffectiveness of such efforts has never discouraged their repetition. The only result of such efforts has been to group all the perpetrators with those people who throw bricks through windows.

—Elisha Douglass

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — While not forsaking the immediate battlefield of wage-price negotiations, business and labor are now struggling with each other over more far-reaching and consequential issues.

The battle is little less than an effort by each to tilt the entire political and economic system into a position more favorable to its credos, and each is using all the muscle it can muster.

Labor's most conspicuous thrust has been in forcing resignations from the board of J.P. Stevens & Co., which the Amalgamated Clothing & Textile Workers say has denied workers "social and economic justice."

With increasingly large investment and savings portfolios, unions also have threatened to withdraw millions of dollars from Manufacturers Hanover Bank, one of whose officers was on the Stevens board.

Equally aggressive, business has stepped up its lobbying efforts, defeating labor on measures involving union picketing and right to work laws, and lessening the size of a minimum wage increase.

The new battlelines are based on philosophical bias and brute power. Both say their ideologies embrace the true essence of America. But to sell their views they rely on organization, numbers and money.

Each is highly aware of the new and renewed efforts to influence not just the immediate and surface issues, but the basic, philosophical approach of Americans to their system.

The lead story in a recent edition of AFL-CIO News carried the headline "Union Counterattack Hits Rising Right Wing Threat," and told of a drive "to get rid of the unions."

In The Federationist, an AFL-CIO magazine, Arch Puddington, executive director of the League for Industrial Democracy, maintains the renewed conflicts result partly from a decline in political party loyalty.

As expected, the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and its lobbying foundation, and more stridently, the National Association of Manufacturers, are in the forefront of the back to basics effort.

Perhaps the only distinct, major area of economic agreement between the two sides — and it isn't solid — is on the matter of wage-price controls, which generally are viewed as intrusions.

While the business viewpoint — less Washington involvement, more free enterprise, lower taxes, more capital incentives — is currently in vogue, labor possesses in its pension funds a powerful counterforce.

These funds aggregate hundreds of billions of dollars, and while their control generally rests with corporate officials, labor might be expected increasingly to insist on an additional say in their use.

he has erased any image of incompetence," said Sen. Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia. "There is now a presumption that the President of the United States is in charge of his affairs and that he knows what he is doing," added Rep. Jim Wright of Texas.
Defensive words, those; evidence of the nagging doubt in the political community that Carter really was up to the job. Those doubts may come again, but not now. Not about the man who convened and controlled what Begin called the Jimmy Carter Conference.
For the time being, that new stature should strengthen Carter in dealing with Congress, where he has endured a long season of setbacks and criticism.
But it is doubtful that even the successful conclusion of a full Middle East peace agreement would permanently resolve the administration's problems on Capitol Hill.

Bureau Will Decide On Insurance Rate Boost

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina Rate Bureau says it will decide in the next 30 days whether to impose a $12 million rate hike for homeowners' insurance coverage, despite its rejection Thursday by state Insurance Commissioner John Ingram.

Ingram, accusing the insurance industry of ignoring some of its income in asking for the rate increase, said Thursday he was hopeful that the N.C. Rate Bureau, which filed the request for the entire industry, would drop its bid for higher rates.
Under a state law enacted last year, the rate bureau can appeal Ingram's decision and implement the higher rate while it awaits a court decision.
The new rates would take effect Dec. 1, and raise homeowners' premiums between 9.1 percent and 13.7 percent, depending on where they live. Ingram said the rates would rise 30 percent for those renting an apartment or home.
"We feel the rate increase is justified," said Paul Mize, general manager of the rate bureau. "And we feel we have provided the evidence at the hearing to support this increase."
Ingram, who is also the Democratic nominee for the U.S. Senate, said at a news conference the June 30 request "was not credible and the rate increase is not justified."
Ingram said he rejected the new rates because the industry, in filing its request, "ignored the income it earns from its investment of the policyholder's money." He also said industry data used to substantiate the request was not audited.
"Errors in unaudited data in other filings resulted in excessive rates being charged North Carolina citizens," he said. "The industry is responsible for the accuracy of the rate filing and the industry has made no effort to ascertain that the data in the filing is accurate."

Automatic Income Tax Hike Added By Committee

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee, sensing a national mood for less government, wants income taxes to go up automatically whenever Congress spends more than it should. Citizens would get the message when they fill out their tax returns. The form would spell out exactly why the tax was being raised — whether to pay for fighting a war or increasing federal aid to education.

The committee voted 8-2 Thursday to add the Republican surtax provision to the big tax-cut bill it is writing. Eight members of the committee were absent, however, and they were to be given an opportunity to cast their votes today.

Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo., chief sponsor of the proposed surtax to curb spending, said the idea is that if politicians have to explain to voters exactly why taxes are going up, they will stop and think before passing new programs.

But if Congress exceeded $531 billion in the 1980 budget, the surtax would be triggered to make up the difference. The only exception would be when unemployment exceeds 7 percent of the work force. In that case, excess spending would be allowed to prime the economy and no surtax would be imposed.

The committee's proposed cut in capital gains taxes on individuals would become effective on Nov. 1, 1978. The reduction for corporate capital gains would take effect next Jan. 1, as would most other provisions in the tax bill.

Six Traffic Collisions In Greenville Thursday

An estimated $6,150 property damage resulted from a series of six traffic collisions investigated by Greenville Police yesterday.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from an 11:45 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Fourth and Summit Streets, involving cars driven by Geneva Carol Holder of Oakmont Sq. and Gloria Jean Baker of Route 8, Greenville.

Damage was set at $1,500 to the Holder car and $1,000 to the Baker vehicle by police, who charged Miss Holder with failing to yield the right of way.

An estimated $1,000 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in a 5:10 p.m. collision at the intersection of 14th and Broad Streets.

Investigators identified the drivers of the vehicles involved as Mark David Tripp of 705 East Gum Rd., and Helema Wilkes Forbes of Winterville.

Tripp was charged with failing to yield the right of way following investigation of the mishap.

An estimated $100 damage resulted to a truck driven by Ricky Horale Mills of Goldsboro, when the vehicle collided with a utility pole at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Dickinson Avenue about 4:12 p.m.

Police estimated damage to the pole and electric transmission lines at $400.

An estimated $450 damage resulted to a car driven by Nelson Blount Crisp of 144 Longmeadow Rd. when the vehicle collided with a truck driven by Jesse Edgar White of Route 3, Windsor, about 3:30 p.m. on Dickinson Avenue, 300 feet West of the Memorial Drive intersection. Investigators reported no damage resulted to the White truck.

Cars driven by Charles Peter Anderson of 1907 East Ninth St. and Susan Martin Greer of 110E Cherry Ct. collided about 5:50 p.m. on Tenth Street, 165 feet East of the Heath Street intersection, investigators reported, causing an estimated $300 damage to the Anderson car and $100 damage to the Greer vehicle.

Police said an estimated $150 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in a 1:30 p.m. collision on Tenth Street, 200 feet West of the Anderson Street intersection.

Drivers of the cars were identified as Clyde Collice Moore of 100 South Warren St., and Karen Dollette Vines of 310 Conley St.

Leaf Quality Slightly Off

FARMVILLE — The quality of offerings Thursday on the Farmville Tobacco Market was off slightly from the previous day, it was reported by Louis Williams, Tobacco Board of Trade sales supervisor.

Williams said that more primings and non-descript grades were responsible for a small drop in the average for the day.

Quality grades of cutters and leaf continued in strong demand, he noted, with the top practical price paid yesterday reaching $1.60 per pound. Some quality grades of leaf and cutters brought as much as $1.70 per pound, he said.

Stabilization receipts accounted for 1.17 percent of gross sales.

Williams reported that the market sold 608,040 pounds for $892,539, an average of $146.79 per hundred pounds. For the season, the market has sold 18,943,269 pounds for $25,956,089, an average of $137.02 per hundred pounds compared with $116.90 a year ago.

Board Denies Use Permit

WINTERVILLE — A grant for a conditional use permit for the Bill Clark Construction Company was denied Monday night by the Board of Adjustments during a public hearing.

The company applied for a permit to build 50 units of apartments in Section Three, Weathington Heights Subdivision.

Dare Expects Large Turnout

MANTEO, N.C. (AP) — Voter turnout was expected to be heavy today as people in Dare County had their chance to decide if mixed-drink sales should be allowed.

This election will be the last vote this year on the local-option mixed-drink bill passed by the General Assembly in June. Charlotte and Mecklenburg County, Southern Pines, Orange County, Sanford and Louisburg have voted 'yes' to mixed-drink sales. Black Mountain rejected the proposal.

After the first of the year, voters in Asheville, New Hanover County and Wilmington, Greensboro, Onslow County and three Brunswick County communities will decide the issue. Wake County is also expected to set a vote early in the year.

In Dare County, both wets and dries are in the midst of an eleventh-hour media campaign to sway Dare voters. In the statewide referendum in 1973, voters turned down liquor by the drink by a margin of 1,070 to 964.

The Christian Action League of Dare County said it had purchased time for 64 radio spots on Thursday and today, along with three full pages of anti-liquor advertising in Thursday's issue of the Coastland Times.

The Dare County Committee for Mixed Beverages has completed a pro-drink mailing to the county's 6,415 registered voters and has also purchased large amounts of radio time and newspaper space.

Pro-drink forces have outspent their opponents, about $3,000 to $1,000 and say they are confident of victory.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Warm temperatures are expected until Saturday morning for the Southeast. Cool weather is expected elsewhere. Some showers and rain are forecast from Georgia-Alabama to the Ohio Valley. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
The first weekend of fall is expected to usher in cooler weather for North Carolina.

A cold front stretching across the mountains from southern New England to the Gulf of Mexico was expected to drift across the state today and tonight, bringing in cooler air and some cloudiness. After high temperatures today in the upper 70s in the mountains and 80s elsewhere, readings are expected to be in the mid 70s to low 80s on Saturday, the first day of autumn.

There will be an increase in cloudiness in the west, but skies were expected to remain clear in the eastern half of the state. However, there is a chance of light showers in the west tonight and over the entire state on Saturday.

A warming trend developed over North Carolina Thursday, with temperatures reaching as high as 90 degrees in Hickory. Overnight lows were moderate, falling into the mid and upper 60s. Little rainfall was reported around the Tar Heel state although there were a few scattered showers in the mountains along the Tennessee border.

Scouting Honor For John Wayne

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — John Wayne, a former Boy Scout, was presented a bronze plaque by former Eagle Scout Gerald R. Ford to honor him as an example of the spirit of America and the ideals of scouting.

The presentation to Wayne was made at a benefit dinner Thursday night held in his honor by the Los Angeles Area Council, Boy Scouts of America in connection with the 577-acre John Wayne Outpost Camp scout facility near Lake Arrowhead, Calif.

Along with former President Ford, who is honorary vice president of the Boy Scouts of America, about 1,200 others attended the dinner, including entertainers Jimmy Stewart and Lucille Ball. Television personality Merv Griffin was master of ceremonies.

Governor Denies Ingram Should Resign To Run For Senate Post

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State Insurance Commissioner John Ingram does not need to resign to run for the U.S. Senate.

any more than incumbent Sen. Jesse Helms should quit to seek re-election, Gov. Jim Hunt says.

Hunt, in a private letter made public Thursday, defended Ingram's steadfast refusal to resign his state job while campaigning against Helms.

"I do not agree that the commissioner should resign his position during this campaign, no more than Sen. Helms should resign his Senate seat to run for re-election," Hunt wrote in response to an August letter from Perry C. Henson Sr., a Greensboro attorney.

"As your letter pointed out, John Ingram was elected Commissioner of Insurance to do a job for the people of North Carolina. He has done that job, and he has repeatedly said that he will not allow the campaign to interfere with carrying out the duties in office. I agree with his position," Hunt wrote.

The letter to Henson, a trial lawyer who often does civil work for insurance companies, was mentioned by Ingram under questioning during a news conference Thursday. Ingram aides later produced a copy of the letter, which they said had been sent to them by Hunt press secretary Gary Pearce.

The letter was the first time Hunt's staff could recall that the governor had taken a position supporting Ingram on the question. State Republican leaders have publicly called on Ingram to resign while he campaigns.

Helms campaign manager Tom Ellis responded to Hunt's letter Thursday, saying, "Ingram has criticized the governor so much — the governor and he are going to kiss and make up, I guess."

Henson confirmed in an interview that he wrote Hunt Aug. 4, expressing his opinion that Ingram and his staff were campaigning on time and should resign.

Deputy press secretary Stephanie Bass said Hunt does not regularly make public his letters, "but the letter concerned Commissioner Ingram, and we felt he ought to know his (Hunt's) reply," she said.

Henson said he, like Ingram and Hunt, is a registered Democrat.

Ingram's news conference was called to announce his rejection of an insurance rate hike request and was held in the insurance department, but Ingram turned to politics in response to questions.

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) — Zambia's electoral commission has scheduled general elections Dec. 12, and President Kenneth Kaunda will run unopposed.

Benefits In Pitt

Social security benefits were being paid to residents of Pitt County at the rate of $2,039,612 a month at the start of 1978, Mary Cain, social security manager in Greenville has revealed.

Of the 12,229 social security beneficiaries living in Pitt County, 5,407 are retired workers and 1,256 are disabled workers. Another 1,141 persons are receiving benefits as the wives or husbands of retired or disabled workers.

Widows, widowers and dependent parents of deceased workers number 1,931, and 2,564 children are being paid benefits.

Also in Pitt County, 5,613 people under the age of 65 and 6,686 people who are 65 and older are receiving monthly social security benefits.

Of the total adult Pitt beneficiaries, 3,684 are men and 6,051 are women.

Ingram, asked how much time he planned to spend in his insurance office between now and the election, said, "Whatever time is necessary, and I'll be in daily communication with my office."

Asked how many days a week that meant, Ingram said, "I don't have that now."

Gliders Tied

LINVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Four pilots were tied for the lead in the Masters Hang Gliding Championship at Grandfather Mountain here after Thursday's competition.

Dennis Pugin of State College, Pa., the current national champion; Dug Lawton of Duluth, Ga., the Cypress Gardens champion; Stu Smith of Linville, who holds the altitude soaring record at Grandfather Mountain of 4,500 feet above the launch site; and a Sean Dever of Golden, Colo., were tied for the lead with only 1/4 of a point against each.

The glider with the lowest number of points against him will win the Masters after Sunday's finals. There are 26 hang glider pilots here competing for the Masters.

Bergen Announces Charlie McCarthy Now Retired

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — After 56 years of partnership, you might think Charlie McCarthy would show a little gratitude when Edgar Bergen announced their retirement. Not so.

"How can you retire when you haven't worked since you met me?" was the monologed dummy's wide-eyed response when Bergen said at a news conference Thursday that America's best-known ventriloquist act was easing out of show business.

Singer Andy Williams was also on hand to say the pickering pair will be making their final appearances with him at Caesars Palace in Las Vegas and at December concerts in Cleveland and Cincinnati.

Bergen has been the fall guy for his ill-tempered, top-batted partner since 1922, and things weren't much different Thursday.

"It hasn't been easy," McCarthy said of his years with Bergen. "The man has no talent."

He also accused Bergen of being unable to throw his voice without moving his lips.

"I've taken a lot from you," complained Bergen.

"Yes, and you have kept every penny," McCarthy shot back.

Although the partners' show business career will officially end, Bergen, 75, said he might make a few charity appearances and will keep McCarthy for the rest of his life. After that the dummy will have a home at the Smithsonian Institution.

Bergen's lips may move when he throws his voice, but that hasn't keep him from making millions with McCarthy, the dollish Mortimer Snerd, the old maid Effie Klinker and other dummies.

Bergen said Charlie was born in 1922, "but I've always thought of him as an 11-or 12-year-old."

The duo started in small nightclubs and vaudeville, but didn't really become famous until they started their radio show on May 9, 1937. For years the program was radio's No. 1 show.

Charlie's feud with W.C. Fields became legendary over the airwaves, with the two constantly trying to outdo each other's insults.

McCarthy: "Are you eating a tomato or is that your nose?"

Fields: "Why you blockhead! I'm going to feed you into a pencil sharpener."

On one well-publicized show, Charlie was married to voluptuous Marilyn Monroe, who said she was "wearing my wedding dress... something borrowed."

"You didn't borrow enough," McCarthy said of the revealing dress.

Bergen and McCarthy later moved to television, but never matched their radio success.

A generation weaned on television knows Bergen mainly as the father of actress Candice Bergen. He and his wife, former model Frances Westerman, also have a teen-age son.

Charlie may have his faults, but he did help Bergen get his high school diploma.

"In my senior year in high school in Chicago, my English teacher told me that I shouldn't count on graduating," Bergen recalled. But she changed her mind after seeing him perform with McCarthy, saying, "The world needs laughter more than another history teacher."

Guthrie Sued By Promoter

BURLINGTON, Vt. (AP) — Arlo Guthrie sings to his audiences but a former concert promoter is suing him for talking to one audience.

Clayton Fuller contends Guthrie ruined his reputation as a promoter by telling a 1976 Burlington concert audience that "everybody here is being ripped off."

Both Fuller and Guthrie testified Thursday in U.S. District Court in Burlington in a slander suit Fuller filed against Guthrie.

Fuller said that because the turnout for the concert was lower than he expected, he did not have Guthrie's $2,500 fee in cash.

He said he gave Guthrie $950 cash during the intermission, but that Guthrie refused a personal check for the rest.

He said Guthrie returned to the stage, told spectators "everybody here is being ripped off," and advised them never to patronize another concert promoted by Fuller. Guthrie then walked out.

Guthrie testified that he recalled saying that the audience was being ripped off "because they had paid to see a show they were not going to see."

R2-D2 And Force Win

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Star Wars" toys have done battle with "Spacewar" toys and come out victorious.

A federal court judge has ruled that Arco Industries, Inc., must stop manufacturing "Spacewar" toys because they violate the copyright under which "Star Wars" toys are produced.

Judge Irving Hill ruled Thursday that toys based on the characters from the movie "Star Wars," the most profitable film in history, may be manufactured only by the Kenner Products Division of General Mills.

"Star Wars" was produced by 20th Century Fox Film Corp., which granted the copyright to General Mills to make toys based on the film. Fox had filed a $1 million lawsuit here against Arco in June for alleged copyright violation.

The plaintiffs claimed that by copying their line, Arco had significantly damaged possible profits on the toys.

Hill's decision left a monetary award to be determined should Fox or General Mills pursue it further.

An Autopsy Is Ordered

An autopsy was ordered Tuesday following the discovery of the body of an 18-year-old man in a wooded area behind Edgewood Mobile Home Park on 264 Bypass West.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that William Joseph Paul of Lot 70, Edgewood Mobile Home Park, was found dead at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday.

The sheriff reported that indications were that Paul was the victim of an apparent suicide. He noted that Paul was found sitting on the ground, leaning back against a tree with a .12 gauge shotgun on his lap. The victim had suffered a head injury, Sheriff Tyson said, apparently the result of a shotgun blast.

He pointed out that the Sheriff's Department was notified at 8:56 p.m. on Monday that Paul had been missing since 9 a.m. that morning.

Sheriff Tyson said that the body was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for the autopsy.

Rep. Jones Backs 3 Common Cause Issues

First District Congressman Walter Jones has indicated support for three of seven issues presented by Common Cause, a national non-partisan citizens lobby, according to Tony Holland, coordinator of the CC Steering Committee for the First Congressional District.

Holland said Jones responded to questions on Sunset legislation, the extension of time to approve the Equal Rights Amendment, campaign financing by the government for Congressional candidates, reapportionment of congressional districts, congressional ethics, congressional committee rotation, and congressional social security exemption.

According to Holland, Jones indicated he would support Sunset legislation, congressional emphasis on ethics rulings, and for making congressmen and members of their staff subject to social security taxes.

Mars Hill College Is Given $1 Million

MARS HILL — A gift of one million dollars — the largest contribution in the 122-year history of Mars Hill College — has been received from J. Wesley Grayson of Laguna Hills, California.

The money will be used to create the Grayson Scholarship Endowment, out of which the college will offer $4,000 scholarships to outstanding high school students graduating in the upper ten per cent of their class. This will make the newly endowed scholarships the most valuable of all scholarships offered by the Baptist College.

Now retired, Grayson has long been identified with education and finance. For many years associate professor of economics and finance at the University of Kansas and Ohio State University, he established and managed the Ohio office of a brokerage firm with membership in the New York Stock Exchange and the Chicago Board of Trade.

His wife, Polly, is an alumna of Mars Hill, class of 1934, and her family has long been associated with the school. An uncle, Dr. Herbert Lee Moore, was president from 1897 until 1938, and her father, mother, sister and two brothers all attended Mars Hill.

Pigeon Racing Again Sunday

Pirates Seek Revenge Over Cajuns

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina University, odd as it may seem, is battling to get out of a losing streak. Not since 1975 have the Pirates lost as many as two in a row, and not since the end of the 1974 and start of the '75 season have they lost three in a row.

During the past six games over the last two years, the Pirates have won just twice. But Saturday night in Lafayette, La., they get a chance for some revenge over the team that started this latest run of bad luck when they take on Southwestern Louisiana.

The Bucs were rolling along with a 7-1 record last season, thinking "bowl" and generally having fun on the football field. But then, Southwestern blew into Greenville and came away with a 9-7 victory thanks to three field goals by John Reveto and some outstanding defense.

Reveto and the defense are still around this year, but the Ragin' Cajuns are having trouble moving the ball otherwise. They've scored only three points in two games to date—a Reveto field goal.

Oddly enough, the Cajuns haven't posted a victory since they came to Greenville, losing their last three of the season in 1977, and their first two this year.

In those two losses this season, they've allowed only ten points a game to Long Beach State and Tulsa. Tulsa, ECU Coach Pat Dye pointed out, put 35 points on the boards against Virginia Tech the week before and had 21 the week before that against Arkansas State.

"They have a great, great defensive team," Dye said of the Cajuns. "They probably have the two best linebackers we've ever seen at one time. Clarence Hannah made a lot of tackles against us last year, and their other linebacker (Frank Bartley) is a real wild man, despite weighing only 190. He has 4.6 speed and made 14 tackles and had seven assists against Tulsa.

"They have a strong defensive end in Ken Chenier, and a great nose guard in Dale Thomas. In fact he plays better than (Dave) Simmons (of UNC), although he's not as fast. They have great people in their secondary in (Ron) Irving and (Willie) Allen."

In the two games thus far, Southwestern has allowed 300.5 yards a game in total offense, with 168.0 of that through the air and 132.5 off on the ground.

Dye added that, like East

Carolina, the Cajuns have been having their problems offensively. "They haven't been able to establish their running or passing attack, but they are willing to gamble, and that makes them very dangerous."

Dye said that, to win, the Pirates will have to be aggressive on offense and control the Cajun defensive line.

Southwestern is averaging only 192 yards a game, and just 52.5 per game on the ground. One of their two quarterbacks, Ken Mathews has passed for 100 yards a game, hitting 14 of 32 attempts, but getting three picked off. The other quarterback, David Guidry, has hit 7 of 18 for 79 yards, with one interception.

Fullback Allen Strambler is the leading rusher with 42 yards, while tailback Barry Herbert has 39 and alternate Booker Price had 36.

Dye was asked if he saw any signs of a letdown following the State and Carolina games. "No, I haven't detected any. I don't think the same edge might be there. The biggest difference I see on the practice field is that the defense is going out there and having fun, while the offense makes it seem like work. Of course, offense is more mental, and that may have something to do with it."

Dye said that the Pirates would be playing more people on Saturday. "We plan to play a lot of people at every position."

"We're going to take three or four tackles and guards. Tootie Robbins is too good of a player for us to have him on the sidelines, so he's going to be going in a lot in the line, as is Mitchell Johnston. We're going to play John Maness more at center. We have two tight ends, although Perry Allred is not a winner yet. But we can rest Joe Godette with him now."

"We have three wide-outs in Terry Gallaher, Billy Ray Washington and Vern Davenport, and five running backs in Eddie Hicks, Theodore Sutton, Anthony Collins, Mike Hawkins and Sam Harrell. We're going to play Steve Greer more at quarterback, too.

"If we will just do the things we are capable of, we can get some bragging rights," Dye added.

"We used to beat teams physically on offense. But right now, we haven't got that toughness. I just hope it comes soon."

The game, the third in a row on the road for the Pirates, is set to begin at 8 p.m. (EDT) on the Cajun field. A sellout crowd of nearly 25,000 is expected.

Rampants Win Again

Rose High School's cross-country team added another victory to its list, as the Rampants downed Wilson Fike, 26-31, yesterday.

The win was the third in a row for the Rampants. Rocky Mount, also scheduled for the meet, did not show up.

Til Jolly of Rose took first in the meet, finishing in 16:41. Tony Batts of Fike was second in 16:52, followed by teammate Ben Howell in 17:01.

Mike Davis of Rose was fourth in 17:03, with Fike's Perry Morrison finishing fifth in 17:10.

The second five were Bill DaVanzo of Rose, 17:30; Blair Smith of Rose, 17:38; Ted Gartman of Rose, 17:39; Greg Hayes of Fike, 17:41; and Alan Parks of Rose, 17:55.

Other Rose finishers included Dan Mayo, 11th in 18:22; Sterling Ashby, 15th in 19:17; Mike Tucker, 17th in 20:16; Steve Blackwell, 20th in 20:43; and Lathan Mills, 21st in 20:47.

Rose travels to Rocky Mount on Monday.

Lady Bucs Bow To NCS

N. C. State's women's tennis team rolled over East Carolina yesterday for a 9-0 victory.

The Lady Wolfpack won every set, most by a substantial margin. The match was ECU's first of the season, while State is now 1-1.

The Lady Bucs' next match is next Friday at the Methodist Invitational in Fayetteville.

Summary:

- Ginger Lancaster (NCS) d. Pat Stewart, 6-1, 6-0
- Susan Sadrz (NCS) d. Debbie Spinozola, 6-5, 6-0
- Kristen Getz (NCS) d. Anne Grambo, 6-3, 6-2
- Sarah Harmer (NCS) d. Diane Keough, 6-0, 6-2
- Rebecca Barnette (NCS) d. Claire Baker, 6-3, 6-0
- Inza Walston (NCS) d. Karen Jet Freys, 6-0, 6-2
- Sadrz Getz (NCS) d. Steward Grambo, 6-2, 6-2
- Lancaster Barnette (NCS) d. Spinozola Jeffreys, 6-0, 6-2
- Harmer Walston (NCS) d. Baker Keough, 7-5, 6-1

Spikers In Split

DURHAM — East Carolina's women's volleyball team split a pair of matches at Duke University yesterday.

The Lady Pirates lost their first encounter with Duke 15-2, 15-8, but rebounded to defeat Wake Forest in three games 9-15, 15-10, 15-8.

The team is now 2-1 for the season.

Wish Comes True For Bucs' End Gallaher

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

How many times have you ever said to yourself, "Gee, I wish I could do that over again?"

Well, Terry Gallaher, senior split end at East Carolina University, is doing just that.

Last fall, when the final whistle sounded in the Oyster Bowl against William & Mary, Gallaher thought he had played his final collegiate game.

But in January, the NCAA passed a rule allowing the red-shirting of freshmen, and made it retroactive. ECU coaches searched the records and found that Gallaher met the qualifications to play another year.

"I found out a couple of weeks before school let out last year," Gallaher said. "It was quite a shock. I didn't believe it at first. But so many good things could come out of it, that I was very pleased."

Gallaher said it gave him more of an opportunity to move closer to his diploma, to move closer to some school records, and to develop his skills more. "I'd like to play some pro ball, and this extra year should give me more maturity and a better chance to make a pro team," he said.

Gallaher already holds one NCAA record and a couple of school records. He holds the NCAA mark for best average yardage for three or more catches with his three against Appalachian State in 1975, averaging 72.7 yards a catch. He also holds the school receiving career yardage record at 1,248 (currently), and is tied for third in receptions with 59. "I might have a shot at the record (79), but it's probably doubtful."

One he'd like to have is the touchdown receiving record for a career—12. Currently he's tied for the mark with two other players, both having 11.

But it's been six games now since Gallaher caught a touchdown pass. "I thought some about it before the season started. I've been open a couple of times for touchdowns, but it just hasn't worked out. I don't like to think about setting records, however, because then I'll have it on my mind during the season and that won't help me at all. The record will come. I think I'll get it sooner or later."

Surprisingly, Gallaher hasn't caught a long pass this year. He's got five for 34 yards, a 6.8

Rose JV Rallies

Rose High School's junior varsity football team remained unbeaten yesterday, taking a 12-7 victory over Jacksonville.

The two teams played a defensive game most of the day, with no scoring in the first half.

Jacksonville finally put on a touchdown for a 7-0 lead late in the third quarter.

Calvin Nisbet set up the first Rose touchdown, returning the kickoff 85 yards. Kenny Wilson then scored early in the final period to close the gap to 7-6. A two-point try failed.

Then, late in the game, Wilson scored again, moving Rose into a 12-7 lead that held.

The Rampant Cubs play host to Wilson Hunt next Thursday.

Woody
Peele

He came by our desk with a scowl on his face. "No more Mr. Nice Guy," he said. "From now on, I'm playing for keeps."

Joe Jenkins trod off to the advertising department, intent on climbing from the cellar of the pick panel back to the top, where he claims he belongs.

May be, Joe, may be. But we'll see. Last week, Tom Baines and I turned in duplicate picks, so we remained tied. Guest Dave Bumgarner came up with the best individual selection, a 9-3 chart, and put the Guests into a three-way tie for the top between Baines and this writer, all at 23-11.

Jim Kyle and Vickie Spivey are both tied at 20-14, while Mr. Nice Guy resides in the basement with a 19-15 mark.

It's still close, however, and this week, there are no two picks alike, so there could be some movement.

This week's guest is Laurie Arrants, women's athletic coordinator at East Carolina University.

While she pleaded not to know that much about football, as opposed to field hockey, she did join in with her picks, but got Bob Hemlick, also of the ECU athletic department, to give her a little help.

"I'll blame him for any I get wrong," she said. "I picked all the right ones, and he got all the wrong ones."

Turning to our high school picks, we find last week's record was 5-1, bringing our two week mark to 12-1 on the season.

Farmville Central, after mauling Havelock last time out, visits Greene Central, which won its first game last week. It's the Eastern Carolina opener for the two, and the Jaguars are chasing their third, or is it the fourth straight title. They'll take their first step by beating the Rams.

Ayden-Grifton visits Southern Nash. The Chargers have had some tough going, while Southern Nash has won two of three losing only to Wilson Hunt, a strong team. This could be quite a game, and I'm going with Southern Nash only because they are the home team.

North Pitt travels to C.B. Aycock. The Panthers have gained a lot of confidence in their three opening wins—something unheard of at North Pitt. But this week, they count in the conference and it could be a whole new ball-game. The Falcons of Aycock haven't gotten off to their best start.

This could be a fateful game for the Panthers, and I'm going to pick them to...win!

Rounding out the Eastern Carolina action, North Lenoir is at Conley. The Vikings have played well, but North Lenoir has picked up shutout wins in their last two games. For this, we have to go with the Hawks.

Williamston will be at Roanoke Rapids in the Northeastern Conference. The Tigers are taking it on the chin this year, and Roanoke Rapids is away to a fairly good start. The Yellow Jackets will win this one.

Finally, Jamesville travels to Bath. The Bullets have one win in four starts, along with a tie. Bath has not even a tie to its credit. Jamesville should win.

Turning to our panel, we see Rose traveling down to Jacksonville for a high school game. The Ramprants let us down last week, and all but Spivey have lost faith. Against the 3-0 Cardinals, the panel give a 5-1 thumbs down vote to the Ramprants.

East Carolina, after nearly pulling off their comeback over North Carolina last week, travels to Louisiana to meet Southwestern Louisiana. The Cajuns haven't won since playing the Pirates six games back. They'd like to do it again, and the Bucs would like their revenge. Our panel calls it—by a 6-0 vote—East Carolina to win.

Other consensus picks: Maryland over North Carolina; Army over Virginia; Michigan State over Syracuse; Georgia Tech over Tulane; Clemson over Georgia; Duke over South Carolina; State over West Virginia; LSU over Wake Forest; William & Mary over Villanova; and Notre Dame over Michigan.

Eichelberger's 66 Gives Him Stroke Lead After First Round

By ERIC PREWITT
AP Sports Writer

NAPA, Calif. (AP)—Several members of the pro golf tour, along with a 40-year-old club pro, have found the kind of course most golfers only play in their dreams.

"You felt like you were going to make every putt you had," said Dave Eichelberger after posting a 6-under-par 66 that gave him a share of the first-round lead Thursday in Napa's $200,000 tournament.

Ed Sneed, another of the leaders, also had that feeling—especially after he made a 65-foot putt for an eagle 3 on the 13th hole of Silverado Country Club's 6,481 South course.

"The thing that set up the round was my putting on the back nine. I played it in 6 under," said Sneed, who won the tournament here in 1973. "It's unbelievable how much the course has improved. It's never been in bad shape, but it's much better now than it ever has been."

Rex Caldwell and Jay Haas were the other tour regulars to open with 66s and share the lead on the opening day that saw 78 golfers, over half the field, break par on Silverado's North and South courses, both par 72. The North course is almost 300 yards longer and was playing quite a bit tougher. A foursome at 67 included just one player, Eddie Pearce, from the North course and three who played the South and its lush greens—Pat Fitzsimons, Bob Zender and Pat McGowan.

At 68, in a large group with big-name company such as Tom Watson, Dave Hill and Ben Crenshaw, was 40-year-old Paul Biocini, the club pro from Manteca, Calif.

"This is the first time I've played in a PGA tournament. I feel very lucky and I made some putts," said Biocini.

average. "I think that speaks for the progress of our passing game. People know we can go long and are laying back on us, so now we can make yardage on the short game, too. It's hard to beat a guy who lines up 12 yards deep on you to start with."

Gallaher is still hopeful that he'll get to play on a bowl team. "I don't think the losses have hurt us that much. If we get it together, we can still get in one. It's not how you start, but how you finish. We proved that last year. If we can improve and be the kind of team we're capable of being, I think we can do it."

Gallaher paused. "Last year, I thought we would have a bowl team, but those last few games hurt us. After it was over, I wished I had the chance to live that year over. In a way, I'm getting that wish."

Pirates Win To Stay Close; Perry Captures 20th Victory

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The Chicago Cubs sailed on the reserves, but still couldn't stop the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Despite the use of a National League record-tying 27 players Thursday, the Cubs were found lacking in the defensive area and as a result dropped a 3-2, 14-inning decision to Pittsburgh.

"It was just a typical Pirate battle," said Pittsburgh Manager Chuck Tanner, whose Pirates have been winning close games all year to stay in contention in the hot National League East race.

Pittsburgh's four-hour, 40-minute marathon victory moved the Pirates within 1 1/2 games of the Philadelphia Phillies, who were rained out at Montreal Thursday.

This latest Pirate victory was fashioned with the help of Matt Alexander's running and two wild throws by the Cubs. Alexander, a pinch-runner, scored the winning run in the 14th when he stole second and continued home on a pair of poor throws on the same play.

Elsewhere in the National League, the San Diego Padres beat the San Francisco Giants 5-1; the Houston Astros blanked the Atlanta Braves 2-0 and the St. Louis Cardinals took a 6-2 decision over the New York Mets.

The 27 players used by the Cubs tied an NL record set Sept. 13, 1974 by Philadelphia in a 17-inning game against St. Louis. The Cubs and Pirates used a total of 45 players, falling six short of the NL mark set in the Philadelphia-St. Louis contest.

Padres 5, Giants 1

Gaylord Perry, who turned 40 last Friday, became the first NL pitcher to win 20 games this year as San Diego beat San Francisco.

Jerry Turner singled home two runs as the Padres broke open a close game with a four-run seventh. Gene Richards, who went 4-for-4, and Gene Tenace added RBI singles in the inning.

Perry, who last won 20 games in 1974 while pitching for the Cleveland Indians, was removed in favor of Rollie Fingers after pitching four-hit ball for seven innings. Perry, 20-6, retired the last 10 batters he faced, and 18 out of the last 20.

Astros 2, Braves 0

Ken Forsch pitched a five-hitter and struck out 10 while establishing a personal high with his 10th victory of the season as Houston blanked Atlanta.

Forsch, 10-6, walked only one and allowed only one Atlanta runner to reach third base. Phil Niekro, 19-16, absorbed the loss.

Cardinals 6, Mets 2

John Urrea combined with Buddy Schultz on a four-hitter and belted a two-run single to lead St. Louis over New York.

Urrea, 4-9, who entered the game with a 5.64 earned run average, permitted just a one-out single to Doug Flynn in the fifth inning and struck out four and walked three in seven innings. Schultz pitched the last two innings, allowing a run in the ninth on a triple by Lee Mazzilli and single by Tim Foli.

Hunter Keeps Yanks Going

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

The New York Yankees have the Boston Red Sox on an electric treadmill, and it's been a couple of Yankee right arms turning on the switch.

Catfish Hunter started and Rich Gossage finished in a story that has been repeated numerous times since Hunter came off the disabled list in the middle of July.

And as been their custom since the end of July. When Bob Lemon the manager, the Yankees won. This time they beat Toronto 7-1 as Hunter and Gossage combined on a five-hitter Thursday night. The Red Sox, who have been winning of late — four of the last five games — beat Detroit 5-1 but went nowhere because of the Yankee victory.

With each team having nine games left, the Yankees lead the Red Sox by two games in the American League East.

"We don't have to turn it on," said the inspirational Hunter. "It's going just like last year." Last year, the Yankees won the World Series, but they looked like also-rans until Lemon's easy-going style allowed them to concentrate on baseball rather than the hysterics of the Billy Martin regime.

Elsewhere, Texas beat Minnesota 6-3 and Kansas City whipped Milwaukee 8-4, moving 5½ games ahead of idle California in the AL West race.

Red Sox 5, Tigers 1
Dennis Eckersley, the stopper of the staff, pitched a six-hitter for his 18th victory and his ninth this season following a Boston loss. He also won Sunday, beating the Yankees and salvaging the final game of a crucial three-game weekend series.

Carlton Fisk snapped an 0-for-22 slump with an RBI single in a three-run first inning. After Fisk's two-out hit, Fred Lynn walked to load the bases and Butch Hobson singled in two runs.

Jason Thompson's 25th homer leading off the seventh was the only run for the Tigers, whose manager, Ralph Houk, announced his retirement before the game, effective at the end of the season. Les Moss, manager of the Tigers' top farm club, will get the promotion.

Royals 8, Brewers 4
The magic number is now five for Kansas City's third straight AL West crown. George Brett singled home the tying run in the fourth and clubbed a solo homer in the sixth to help beat Milwaukee and move 5½ games ahead of idle California.

Dennis Leonard scattered 10 hits for his 19th victory in 36 decisions.

Rangers 6, Twins 3
Jon Matlack, 14-13, fired a five-hitter, winning on the road for only the second time in 12 decisions. The hard-throwing left-hander struck out five and walked two for his 17th complete game of the season.

Pinch-hitter Johnny Grubb broke open a 3-2 ballgame with a two-run double that keyed a three-run eighth inning.

Top ACC Contenders Clash At Chapel Hill

By The Associated Press
The first meeting of two Atlantic Coast Conference championship contenders comes Saturday when Maryland, ranked 18th in the country, visits North Carolina.

Both the Terrapins and the Tar Heels enter the game undefeated, but after close calls in games last week — Maryland, with a 24-17 squeaker over Louisville; North Carolina with a 14-10 win over East Carolina.

North Carolina, under new head coach Dick Crum, is the defending conference champion, and Maryland, under coach Jerry Claiborne, is the only nationally ranked team in the ACC.

Quarterback Tim O'Hare and tailback Steve Atkins will lead the Terps, while UNC's Amos Lawrence is expected to play after being sidelined last week with a hip bruise.

Clemson-Georgia
Clemson, the favorite to win the ACC title this year, romped 58-3 over Citadel in a laugher last week, and quarterback Steve Fuller will be back after winning offensive player of the week honors.

He completed all nine of his pass attempts and rushed eight times for 56 yards last week.

Georgia, a two-point winner over Baylor, will be seeking revenge for an early season 7-6 loss to the Tigers last year.

Virginia-Army
Luckless Virginia is not only seeking its first win, but its first score too. They have been shut out by Wake forest and Navy.

Army, 1-0, opened its season last week with a 24-14 win over Lafayette.

W.Va.-NC State
N.C. State will be seeking its third straight victory of the season in a night game against the Mountaineers, who are coming off a 52-10 loss to Oklahoma. West Virginia beat Richmond by two points in their opener.

Conduct First Studies Of Nervous System Cell

By GEORGETTE HEDRICK
ECU Medical Writer

A discussion at a professional meeting two years ago resulted in a meeting this summer between an East Carolina University physiologist and a Latin American biophysicist who together studied for the first time a fundamentally important cell of the nervous system and proved it was possible to examine the cell in other animals.

ly one in the world to have studied and recorded the electrical activity of the cell, which is a mere one fifth-thousandth of an inch thick.

Villegas, whose work had been done only with tropical squid, believed the results of his experiments could be duplicated with cells from other animals. Lieberman agreed and suggested the use of his laboratory model, the crayfish.

Using the same sophisticated techniques that Villegas had used on squid, the two were able to repeat for the first time Villegas' experiments on Schwann cells of the crayfish.

Schwann cells are important because of their role in maintaining the proper environment for nerve cells, the vital communication line in the body. Many diseases of the nervous system are associated with abnormal functions of the Schwann cells, and they are essential in triggering repairs to damaged nerves.

Lieberman is currently preparing his lab to continue the studies started this summer. His work will be funded in part by a two-year, $74,000 grant from the National Science Foundation.

He and Villegas will continue to collaborate on the interactions between the various types of cells in the nervous system. And they plan to meet again this winter back where they started—at a professional meeting where they will present the results of this summer's work to the scientific community.

The bidding:
South West North East

2NT Pass 3♥ Pass
4♥ Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: Jack of ♠.

South, declarer at four hearts, took care to protect his winners while ruffing his losers, and his delicate timing delivered a close four heart contract.

With 18 points and a good five-card major, South felt his hand was too strong to open one no trump. He showed his strength with a jump in no trump at his second turn and North, with three-card heart support and a potential ruffing value in diamonds, gave his partner a choice of contracts. South selected four hearts because his diamond stopper was too tenuous.

West led the jack of spades, and when dummy came down, declarer saw five potential losers—one in trumps if the suit broke normally, three in diamonds and one in clubs. However, the club loser could be discarded on the king of spades, and the third diamond could be ruffed in dummy.

Declarer won the ace of spades and immediately led a low diamond from his hand. East won and saw that it would not help to shift to a trump—declarer could not be stopped from getting his ruff because he was a tempo ahead. So East simply returned a spade to declarer's queen.

A second diamond was won with the ten, and West continued with the ten of spades. Had declarer played the king from dummy, he would have gone down. East would ruff and, though declarer would overruff, he would have no place to park his losing club. But declarer carefully played low from dummy and ruffed in his hand.

Having done so well thus far, declarer was not about to go wrong. He cashed the king and ace of hearts, leaving a high trump outstanding, and then discarded his club loser on the king of spades. It was immaterial whether a defender ruffed this trick or not. Next declarer entered his hand with a high club and ruffed a diamond in dummy. His hand was now high except for the master trump, and the defense could take no more than one trump in addition to two diamonds.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. For a copy and a scorepad, send $1.75 to "Goren-Four Deal," c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 259, Norwood, N.J. 07648. Make checks payable to NEWS-PAPERBOOKS.

FORECAST FOR SAT., SEPT. 23, 1978

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Not a good time for taking chances with others by not carrying through with what you have agreed to do. Use your best judgment to ward off temptations to go off on tangents.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Take care you do not make any errors in statements or reports or you could get into serious trouble. Don't expect help from an associate who has worries.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Cut down on expenses right away since you have been extravagant lately. Listen to what an adviser has to suggest so you can build up reserves and add to present income.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Make those changes in your environment that will make you happier and bring more success in the future. Think clearly and logically.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Work early on those restricting conditions and improve them efficiently. Steer clear of a social function where big arguments could start.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Your friends may be too busy now to go along with you for recreation, so be patient and find something constructive to do. Don't try to force your ideas on others.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) It is important that you follow through with the ideas of higher-ups otherwise you lose their support. Attend to that credit matter even if it is irritating. Avoid one who has peculiar ideas.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You have to use diplomacy if you are to gain those aims now, since forcefulness could mean failure. Study new contacts well before accepting.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Get at responsibilities ahead of you early and they are soon completed. Be sure to acquiesce to some request your mate makes of you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You are not getting the cooperation of others today, so wait until a better time to work on your plans. Be patient about some civic matter. Take time for recreation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study well that work you have to do before tackling it. Don't let a co-worker who is having troubles bother you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be more tolerant of those you love and help them with their problems. Use your finest talents and have things as you like them.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) If you are more objective at home, you find you get matters handled better. Get everything in fine order. Accept any invitations you receive but don't do any entertaining at home now.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will want to get involved in everything without accomplishing anything. Teach to finish one thing before going on to another and then the chart becomes a successful one.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

'Vial For Life' Is Emergency Effort

"If we can save even one life, then all our efforts will have been for nothing," said Sarah Jenkins, spokesperson for the Vial of Life program.

The Vial of Life is an identification for emergency need for use by a rescue squad team. Vital information regarding name, age, bloodtype, doctors name, medical history, current medicine being taken, relatives or friends to call, etc., is placed in the vial. The vial is to be located in the same place in every household. It should be placed in the refrigerator, taped under the upper right hand shelf. A yellow disc is placed on the outside of the refrigerator in the upper right corner. The refrigerator has proven the most secure place in the home. It can withstand any number of natural disasters, including fire.

The program is being sponsored by the Pitt County Association of Insurance Women and the Pitt County Insurance Exchange, Inc. Vials and information slips will be available through civic organizations, if they will get in contact with the sponsors, and will also be available at a booth set up at the Pitt County Fair.

For further information contact Sarah S. Jenkins, 758-1133.

Judge Named In 11th District

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — William A. Christian of Sanford has been appointed as a District Court Judge in the 11th Judicial District, according to an announcement made by Gov. Jim Hunt Thursday.

Christian succeeds Judge Robert B. Morgan Sr. of Lillington, who retired recently. He will serve the remainder of a term expiring Dec. 31, 1980.

An assistant district attorney, Christian formerly served as legal adviser to the Cumberland County Sheriff's Department. The 11th District is comprised of the counties of Harnett, Lee and Johnston.

A Message From The President

"Today is the best day for buying a home" and the Greenville Home Builders Association and myself would like to cordially invite you and your family to spend Saturday and Sunday visiting the Homes that will be on our 1978 Parade. You can easily find these homes by following the maps in this newspaper and by the Parade Of Homes signs in the front yards.

The Parade of Homes is designed to give the buying public a chance to see what each builders product is really like. It is not a day of heavy sales pitches or pressures. We in the building industry are very much concerned about the rising costs of homes throughout our nation, but at the same time we are also concerned for the consumers investment in a good quality home. Today you will get a chance to see these homes not only completed but also in different stages of construction. You will also see the many different subcontractors products and names of companies that do the work in your new home. The subcontractors are a vital part of this industry which provides the basic needs of man.

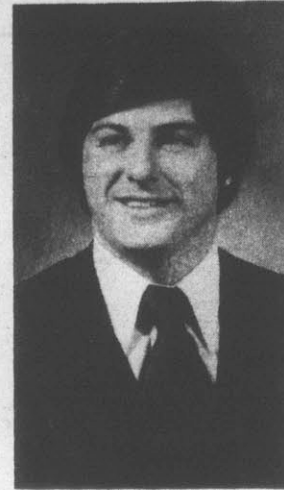

The people of Eastern North Carolina are very fortunate that the builders in their community are professionals that belong to the National Association Of Home Builders. These builders stay abreast of the new developments that are available in the building industry. As buyers you should ask your builder, banker, attorney, carpetman, plumber, electrician or any other of the numerous people involved in building, if he or she belong to the Home Builders Association. Chances are, if they belong, then you're at the right place.

Once again as President of the Greenville Home Builders Association, I would like to invite and encourage you to visit the outstanding homes on OUR 1978 Parade Of Homes.

Sincerely,

Mark Ellis Tipton

Split Level Has Rustic Charm

The "Crofton", located in East Carolina Builders' Stoneybrook Subdivision on State Road 1217 near Bell Arthur, offers a spacious floor plan and rustic charm with an attractively modest price tag. This fully furnished model takes on a lovely rustic quality here with its natural cedar siding and use of old fashioned exterior and interior touches. The living level consists of three bedrooms and two baths, including the master bedroom with shower-bath. A few steps down there's a large living-dining area with cathedral ceiling. An efficiently designed kitchen with custom cabinets is adjacent to the dining area.

In the lower level there is a family room paneled in century-old barn siding with an energy-efficient fireplace and hearth constructed of hand made bricks. Adjoining the family room is a roomy storage utility area.

A wooden rear deck and entry porch add to the warmth of this home designed for those who enjoy entertaining as well as relaxing.

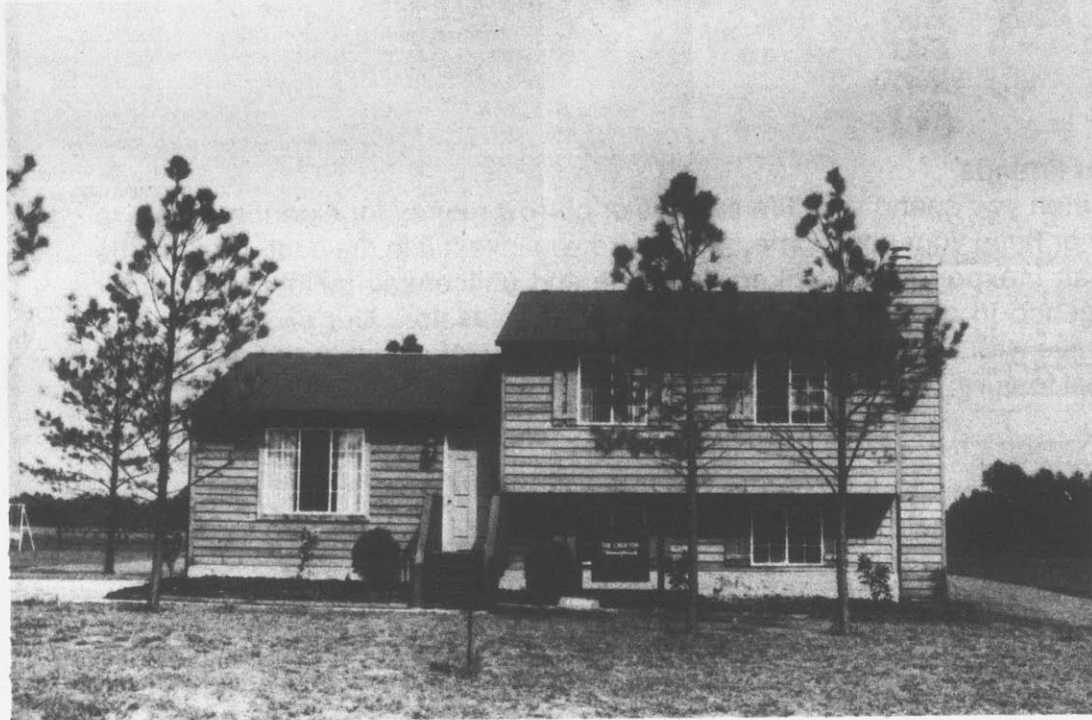

The "Crofton" is one of four-teen new models in the increasingly popular line of homes offered by East Carolina Builders, Inc. Other models range in size from 1200 sq. ft. to 2500 sq. ft., are priced in the low 30's to mid 50's and feature traditional, rustic, and contemporary exteriors as well as single and multi-level floor plans.

"Giving the buyer more home for his money reflects our basic philosophy", says ECB vice-president, Mike Moye. "With new homes averaging fifty thousand dollars or more, and Greenville being number two in the state in housing costs, I think what we're offering is, quite frankly, the best value around."

East Carolina Builders is a licensed general contracting firm specializing in the development of quality residential housing throughout Pitt County. Headed by Greenville attorney, and Realtor, Joseph F. Bowen Jr., the company is currently engaged in the development of Stoneybrook Subdivision, featuring half-acre lots in the country, and precision crafted pre-cut homes by Ryan Homes, Inc., one of the leading home builders in the country.

East Carolina Builders is a member of Greenville Home Builders Association, Greenville-Pitt County Board of Realtors, and Greenville Multiple Listing Service. Bowen is a past president and director of the Realtors and MLS.

Pleasing Design And Spacious

Clean lines, the warmth of wood and unusual extras make the contemporary home unique. Two walk-in closets head the list of nine large storage areas.

Built-in cabinets in great room and cathedral ceilings in foyer and master bedroom offer a showplace for the decorative hanging fixtures located throughout. Leisure time will be happily spent on either of the two decks built around the trees. You won't run out of wood for the fireplace on this heavily wooded lot, cleared just enough for the house but still maintains the natural environment.

The kitchen comes equipped with self-cleaning range, hood, dishwasher and disposal. The breakfast area, accented with a tiffany lamp, looks out onto the deck.

Two ample bedrooms are located on the first floor, while the second floor is a master bedroom suite with a view of the tree tops through a large window located in the loft. Truly a home for easy carefree living.

Watson Associates is a respected contracting firm with experience and a reputation of innovative ideas in construction coupled with economy and efficiency. Dillon Watson, President of the firm and Etsil Gordon are both licensed general contractors as well as REALTORS. The firm is actively involved in the Pitt County Board of REALTORS and The Greenville Home Builders Association. Watson, a graduate of ECU is presently secretary-treasurer of the Greenville Home Builders and a member of the Governmental Affairs Committee, currently working on zoning legislation and a planned unit development concept for the city. Gordon, in addition to her professional work, is actively involved with several community service projects, including the Pitt County Boys Club. She is a regular panelist on Channel 9's Carolina Today Show, and will give a mini course for REALTORS on blueprint reading later this fall. The firm has built office buildings, duplexes, condominiums, custom homes, Kingsberry Homes and conventionally.

Home On A Large Wooded Lot

This contemporary-style home sits on a wooded lot measuring 137 by 271 feet at 3205 Ellsworth Dr. The landscaping is inspired by Disney's EPCOT (Experimental Prototype Community to Tomorrow), by using natural grasses and rolling islands to complement the angular cypress design. A combination of bamboo, pampus grass, tropical bulbs, and yellow-tipped junipers provide the homeowner with year-round beauty and minimal maintenance.

The single story house has a diagonal cypress exterior, with a circular concrete drive providing easy access. Living space includes three bedrooms, two and one-half baths, great room, dining room, kitchen with breakfast room, and an over-garage playroom. Additional space is provided through a two-car garage, breakfast deck and social deck off the great room.

Interior work includes carpets by Larry's Carpetland, paint and stain work by Miller and Davis Associates, color selection by P and B Enterprises, wallpaper by Creative Wallcovering and fixtures by lighting designers.

A special feature of this house is a cathedral ceiling with two skylights in the master bedroom.

For further information, contact Phill Privette, president, P and B Enterprises, at 752-5725.

P and B Enterprises of Greenville Inc., opened for business in February 1978 with over ten years experience in residential construction and related fields. Phil hopes to build a company known for quality and customer satisfaction.

'Mums' the word

Chrysanthemums, with their cheerful personalities, hold the promise of brightening up any and every room in your home. And the thought that they are a fall flower is a myth. Happily, mums can be found in abundance at your florist every season of the year.

They belong to one of the biggest families of plants, which includes daisies, marigolds, goldenrod, even lettuce, and are not always what you think they are.

Those with flat flower heads, as well as spider mums, frequently are mistaken for their first cousin, daisies. Small button varieties known as button pom-pons are sometimes confused with marigolds, another cousin.

But the big, showy Standards—the Incurve, whose tightly clustered petals form a perfect globe, and the Semi-curve, whose shaggy and irregular petals fall short of forming a globe—are unmistakably chrysanthemums. These big beauties have been documented through the ages in the arts of China, the country of their origin.

Whatever the variety, you will find chrysanthemums at your florist in pristine whites, sunny yellows and bright russets, as well as pink and lavender shades.

Three Bedrooms And Comfort

Home No. 4 — 217 Singletree Drive

Built for the young sophisticate, or the older couple who wish to step down to a new home for less than $45,000.00, this contemporary one story brick home with 1350 square feet features three bedrooms, two baths, dining room and the great room, which is a combination living room and family room. While the price is low, this custom "stick built" home is built to the same quality specifications of the larger more expensive models, featuring all the amenities usually not found in homes of this price including plush carpet, built in stove, dishwasher, disposal, heat pump, fireplace and many others.

David Evans

Singletree, a new subdivision located adjacent to Cambridge on Hooker Road, is being developed by the principles of Garris Evans Lumber Company, Inc. Pre-sold custom built homes as well as finished new homes, are now, and will be offered in this community. The developers have had over 20 years experience and have participated in developing many subdivisions such as: Tucker Estates, Forest Hills, North River Estates, Greenbrier, Oakmont, Harrington-Williams, and Brook Valley. Typical lots are approximately 80' x 150' with City Of Greenville streets and underground utilities. Information on Singletree is available through its sales agent, The Evans Company Of Greenville.

Easy refinishing for real wood paneling

Restoring and renovating old homes is a popular way to invest money and a favorite pastime for many people. Often, do-it-yourselfers are confronted by real wood paneling that is dull and worn from years of neglect. The National Paint and Coatings Association says amateur ren-ovators need not panic; real wood paneling is easily refinished, just like wood furniture.

First, smooth the surface by sanding. This can be done by hand or with a power sander. Be sure to sand with the grain of the wood. Go over the surface using a coarse paper, then with a medium grade paper, and finally with a fine grade paper.

Now countersink any protruding nailheads, and fill holes and cracks with wood filler. Sand the filler flush to the rest of the surface by hand.

Then, dust thoroughly, so that specks of dust will not show in the finish and mar its appearance.

If you want to change the color of the wood, use a stain or a bleach before applying the new finish. Try to buy the stain and the finish from the same manufacturer to ensure their compatibility.

Varnish and polyurethane are clear finishes which allow the wood grain and color to show through. They are easily applied with a paint brush and can withstand "wear and tear."

Oil finishes are another alternative. They give paneling a more natural appearance than varnishes because they are less glossy, but they are also less resistant to wear.

A varnish is applied in three simple steps: brush it on with a top quality brush, let it soak in and then wipe the paneling dry.

CHANGING THE COLOR of real wood paneling is easy! Use a stain before applying the new finish to darken or even out the color of your paneling. Rub the stain into the wood with a soft, lintless cloth, let it stand for a few minutes, then wipe off the excess.

All The Extras In Ranch Home

This brick and masonite L-ranch style house, located at 401 Sedgefield Dr., is situated on a corner lot measuring 120 by 145 feet. The lawn is landscaped with 12 shrubs and fescue grass, and there is a fenced-in back yard.

The house has three bedrooms, two baths, great room, family room, dining room and kitchen. The master bedroom has a walk-in closet and there is a fireplace in the great room.

There is a paved patio and wood chips have been placed around the house and shrubs. Paneling, wallpaper and carpet cover the house. The foyer has slate flooring and there is vinyl flooring in the bathrooms.

Mechanical equipment includes stove, dishwasher, disposal, heat pump and refrigerator. The house is covered by a one-year warranty.

Realty Industries Inc., built the house and J. B. Hill, construction manager, is the man to call at 756-7800. They have over 25 years of experience in planning, craftsmanship and innovation in building, and have become a volume builder of homes reflecting the needs of growing communities.

Based in Richmond, Va., the firm first opened the Greenville branch in 1973.

Shop to find best finance deal

Home improvement loans have become a shopper's market. Nearly every bank and finance company will welcome an application for a loan to finance a home improvement.

Many contractors make it easy by arranging it for the homeowner. He merely signs the papers that are pulled out of a briefcase.

But like nearly every kind of merchandise sold, the price you pay for the financing and the terms offered can vary greatly from lender to lender, according to the Lenders' Council of NHIC.

The homeowner is advised to shop around to save money and get the very best deal available.

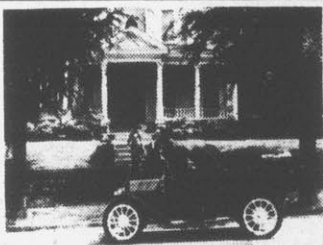

A credit union loan is another possibility, as is a bank passbook loan, one of the cheapest of loans, which is borrowing against money in a savings account at a net cost of no more than two percent or so total interest.

J.B. Hill

Many of the fine old houses you see today were built in an era where pride in craftsmanship meant a great deal. They were comfortable, practical, and built to last. Today these are the qualities you'll find in Greenville's newest planned development, CAMBRIDGE.

CAMBRIDGE offers a variety of three and four bedroom homes, ranging in price from $39,500 to $52,000. All are air conditioned, carpeted throughout and equipped with energy saving heat pumps, with numerous options from which to choose. Whether you're looking for a ranch house, a split level, or a two-story, you'll find them all at CAMBRIDGE. Best of all, if you need financing, it can be arranged conventionally or VA.

Located off Hooker Road CAMBRIDGE was designed by Realty Industries to be near recreation and shopping areas. It's the one development made especially for people like you who want the finest quality home at prices you can afford.

CAMBRIDGE is now open for inspection. For further information, call Blount & Ball Realty Co. at 756-3000.

Modern, And 'Total Comfort'

"ITS ONLY NATURAL" to enter and explore the comfortable style, so necessary for today's life style. To fill the balance and harmony of contemporary with style and comfort is where this home begins. There is no error made in over-doing, but rather a simple clean approach to interior and exterior design.

As you enter the foyer you find a sunken great room which joins a spacious dining room. It opens out to a deck which reflects the quiet coordination of the diagonal motif found in the inter handrails.

There is no reason to be concerned about cabinet space. Obviously, it was an important feature added by the contractor.

Once inside, anyone will immediately sense the nice flow of this 3 bedroom home. It is incredible to realize all the added conveniences along with such a high styled home, double car garage, fireplace, wood parquet flooring and the economical use of a heat pump are mentioning just a few.

It is surely a home one must not miss for it easily adapts to the eclectic look of today.

Architect can help save money

Many a homeowner is reluctant to call on an architect for remodeling because an architect is believed to be unnecessary.

This is not always true and may turn out to be a penny-wise, pound-foolish omission, according to the National Home Improvement Council.

The homeowner who wishes his home to be truly well-designed would do well to consider using an architect for his remodeling project.

An architect can make a major contribution to remodeling—and sometimes even repay his fee in terms of construction savings—when the homeowner needs a new addition, or makes a basic change in the house plan or structure.

At Home With Nature

The phrase "at home with Nature" truly describes this house located on a deeply wooded acre site in the Baywood Subdivision.

Cedar shake shingles form the exterior paneling with illuminating wood-framed glass doors creating a subtle dialogue between enclosure and openness. The interior plan is simple and polished. Centered around the living room is the solarium with skylights, formal dining room, kitchen and breakfast area. The three bedrooms open to a central hallway which is to the left of the foyer.

Every room boasts the elegant French doors opening to small private decks. The natural materials of tile, hardwood floors, and brick fireplace form a harmonious blend in the living and activity areas.

Elegant lines of distinction are the hallmark of homes constructed under the supervision of Jim Rice, builder, developer and general contractor of Rice Construction Company, Inc. Residential and commercial building are the specialties of the firm with an emphasis on total coordination between client, builder, structure and site.

Seek out energy savers

One energy-saving refrigerator uses about a third less electricity than other models not equipped with its special thermostatically controlled motor.

While it is true that the amount of electricity consumed by a refrigerator each operating hour is a modest amount, it's also true that it is operated twenty-four hours around the clock for 365 days a year.

Even though frost-free refrigerators do use more kilowatts of energy annually than non-frost-free models, they avoid the extra energy drain resulting from frost accumulation.

Today's power-saving refrigerators also preserve food longer during power failures, which become alarmingly more common each year.

Is house on time?

If a clock runs five minutes slow or fast, professionals say it is "off time." When timepieces in the home are not accurate, time varies from room to room. Which clock can you depend on?

The makers of Westclox say that every home should have at least two kinds of alarm clocks: springwound, like the wind-up Big Ben and Little Ben models, but also an electric alarm.

The reason is that people forget to wind a clock. Yet power often fails, so an electric alarm isn't infallible. You need both types!

In wall clocks, battery models now have a quartz crystal for utmost accuracy. Westclox Quartzmatic clocks don't need winding or electric power.

Housing Prices Will Soar Under Growth Plan, Study Concludes

WASHINGTON — Another $5,300 could be added to the price of a typical home and an estimated 4,800 local jobs could be lost during the first two years of San Diego County's proposed growth management plan, according to an economic impact analysis prepared by the National Association of Home Builders.

In presenting the results of the six-month study, NAHB Vice President-Treasurer Merrill Butler warned that the long term effects of the San Diego growth plan could be expected to "mushroom", slowing economic activity generally and ruling out the possibility of ever building moderate income housing in the county again without government subsidies.

Under proposed county growth plan, new housing would be restricted to designated urban areas served by existing water and sewer facilities, highways, schools and other public facilities. High density, clustered type developments consisting of a combination of housing types — townhouses, duplexes, apartments and single family homes would be encouraged while traditional single family developments in outlying areas would be prohibited until all the designated areas were developed.

Butler, a home builder from Irvine, Calif., described the plan as being "rigid", unrealistic and typical of well intended growth policies that look good on paper but fail miserably when implemented because they ignore the basic market principles of supply and demand.

The growth plan would immediately fix and restrict the supply of land available for new housing, thus fanning the fires under the most inflation-prone element in housing, Butler warned. The cost of a developed lot nationally now accounts for between 20 to 30 percent of the sales price of new homes, up from about 15 percent of the sales price 20 years ago.

The projected increase in raw land prices in two years would add between $4,000 to $5,300 to the price of a San Diego home, which is already rising 13 percent a year because of other inflationary pressures. The median price of both new and existing homes sold during June in the San Diego area was about $76,000.

Butler noted that the conclusions reached in the NAHB study were similar to findings in broader, national studies, including a Special Task Force Report on Housing Costs recently released by Secretary of Housing Patricia Harris and an independent study conducted by Rutgers University.

While both studies noted that the supply of land is determined by many factors, including natural features of terrain and concentration of ownership, the HUD study singled out "government action — through regulation and investment decisions..." for constricting the supply of land, and pushing up the price of quarter acre lots to $40,000 or more in many metropolitan areas. The Rutgers University study concluded that government regulations in general were responsible for as much as 20 percent of price of a typical new home.

NAHB Economist Richard Ellson, who conducted the study, said the San Diego plan fails to strike this balance, and may even "compound existing growth problems" in San Diego. "One of the justifications for the growth management plan is that public facilities are currently inadequate," Ellson said. "However, compacting future growth into already developed areas will not resolve this problem. Overcrowded schools will become more overcrowded and congestion on roads and highways will worsen."

This decline in housing production, the NAHB econometric model showed, would eliminate 4,800 local jobs at a total loss in personal income of $110 million.

Furthermore, the study showed that a moderate level of new housing construction pays its own way, with the property tax revenue and other taxes generated by the new housing more than offsetting the increased government expenditures.

The econometric model simulated and projected the effects of two rates of population growth at three levels of housing production for 1978-79. The three simulated conditions were used to compare projected prices of finished lots, new single family homes, and selected economic and fiscal characteristics such as employment, personal income and government expenditures and revenues.

A population growth rate of 2.3 percent and housing production rate of 27,000 units annually were used as the basis for comparison. To illustrate the potential impact of the San Diego growth management policy, the same population figure was used but the number of housing starts was reduced to 20,000 units annually. The third simulation, an example of slow growth, reduced population growth to 1.3 percent with a rate of annual housing starts.

The art of hanging art — how to be picture perfect!

If you are considering hanging an oil painting, a mirror, or an entire collection of objects d'art, choosing the right wall spot and using the proper tools are vital.

ENM Company, manufacturers of the ENM Stud Finder™ — an electronic, hand-held tool that detects any metal objects in the wall — suggests starting by choosing the place where you would like to hang an object.

If you're hanging a lightweight object, first cut a piece of paper its same size; attach a small piece of tape to the back and move it around the wall until it is where you want it.

Always be certain you are satisfied with the location before pounding a nail in the wall for, once the hole is made, it's there to stay until you spackle and repaint.

If you're hanging a heavier object that requires more support, use the ENM Stud Finder to locate reinforcing studs inside walls before pounding a nail or drilling a hole.

The ENM Stud Finder can also be used to locate wires, pipes and reinforcing steel inside walls, which should be avoided.

Working on one 9-volt battery, the ENM Stud Finder has super-sensitive electronic circuitry that pinpoints the smallest hidden metal objects with ease. Simply turn the unit on, and scan the wall surface until the light goes on. If the light goes on and off as you scan, you've located a stud. Continuous illumination of the light as you scan indicates metal objects behind a wall.

Once you've determined the best location, centering the art is the next concern.

First, draw a direct center pencil line on the wall above the space planned for the piece. If you're hanging a mirror or picture, measure the distance from the hanging wire (when held by one finger) to the object's top center. Measure that distance down from the wall center point — and, that's the spot to install the fastener.

Now, sit back and bask in the perfection of your work!

Utility Tax Reform Is Supported By NAHB

WASHINGTON — An obscure and seemingly insignificant 1975 tax ruling for public utilities was cited today as being typical of the sort of hidden governmental regulation that drives up the price of housing.

Ernest A. Becker, Sr., a home builder from Las Vegas and president of the National Association of Home Builders, made the observation while testifying before a Senate Subcommittee on Taxation and Debt Management, which is considering legislation to reverse the 1975 Internal Revenue Service Ruling, cited by Becker.

Under the bill introduced by Sen. Paul Laxalt (R-Nev.), regulated electric and gas public utilities would be permitted to treat as nontaxable contributions to capital payments received from builders to help pay for the costs of extending utility services to new developments.

In many areas of the country, Becker noted, builders are required to help cover the costs of constructing and installing such utility services as main water or sewer lines, electric lines, and gas mains as well as the plants from which the gas, electricity or water is transmitted.

Since IRS declared these builder contributions as taxable income in 1975, public utilities have managed to offset this additional tax liability by doubling the payments required of builders who, in turn, passed on the added cost to home buyers.

This problem was partly resolved with the passage of the Tax Reform Act of 1976, which included an amendment exempting water and sewer utilities from the 1975 tax ruling. However, Becker noted, no such provisions was enacted for gas or electric utilities.

Besides providing equal tax treatment for all utilities, Becker said, the Laxalt amendment would help hold the line on the soaring cost of developed land, which today accounts for between 20 and 30 percent of the price of a new home.

Reflecting Williamsburg Charm

Pollard Construction Co., Inc. built this two story Williamsburg style home at 406 Queen Anne Rd. in the Lynndale sub-division.

The first floor of the home includes the foyer, living room, dining room, den with wet bar and fireplace, kitchen with breakfast area, utility room, two bedrooms and one and one-half baths. There is also a large wood deck opening from the den.

The second floor includes two bedrooms with large walk-in closets, one bath and a children's playroom.

Built-ins include a self-cleaning oven, dishwasher, disposal and vent in the kitchen; a wet bar and bookcases in the den as well as two central air conditioning units and dual heat pumps.

Other features of the 3,000-plus square foot home, located on a 125 by 150 foot wooded lot, include plush carpeting throughout, authentic Williamsburg colors, special two piece chairrail and three piece crown molding downstairs.

Special features in the upstairs area include windows seats in the bedroom dormers and built-in laundry hampers.

This home reflects the charm of the Williamsburg tradition by retaining pleasing proportions and authentic details while incorporating all the comforts, convenience and amenities of modern living.

Sam Pollard, the builder is a member of the national, state and local home builders association, and director of the Greenville Parade of Homes. He is also director of Region II, North Carolina, Parade of Homes.

Vines save money for homeowners

Ivy and vines are nature's insulators. Planted on masonry walls, or on trellises or arbors adjacent to wooden walls, they help block out hot summer sun and keep buildings cooler on the inside.

A convection current also develops behind the cool green leaves that draw warm air away from the wall.

In winter, ivies and vines planted on the windward sides of a building help block out chilling winds and serve as insulation to keep heat in and cold air out.

Can You Afford A New Home?

The average income family has been priced out of the new home market by rising costs and inflationary factors? Not so at all, according to Walter S. Pollard, Jr., president of Pollard Construction Company.

Pollard, a recognized housing expert, speaks with the authority of a man who has spent more than seventeen years studying and working in all phases of the homebuilding business — from member of the national, state and local HBA to Director of Region II North Carolina Parade Of Homes.

"The so-called affordability gap for the average income homebuyer is a myth," Pollard said.

As a case in point, Pollard cites figures compiled from statistics supplied by the National Association Of Home Builders and the Census Bureau. "When great, great grandfather bought his home in 1895, the average price of a new home was $4,500, but his average yearly income was only $482. The ratio of the price of his home to his income was almost 10 per cent. We're selling a completely modern, three bedroom home in the Greenville area for $40,000, or a ratio price to current median income of $13,500, at approximately 3 per cent. What this all boils down to, is that today's middle income homebuyer can afford his new luxury home much better than his great, great grandfather could afford his four walls and a roof."

Pollard said that over the last 10 years, the average price of all new homes in this country have risen 100.4 per cent. And, in the same period of time, average income has risen 101.8 per cent, which bears out his contention that income is keeping pace with the inflationary factors that have a bearing on the price of a new home.

One of the side benefits to the current inflationary factor's effect on the housing market is that escalating costs have brought about a revolutionary improvement in construction techniques. To keep the cost per square foot within reason, new and better technology, along with new and better materials have been developed to utilize every square inch of space.

"With our energy situation becoming more critical every day," Pollard said, "nobody can afford a loosely put together home that leaks air and wastes fuel. That's one of the reasons Pollard Construction uses the most efficient insulation available. The windows and doors, all of the framing members are cut to such exact tolerances that you just don't get any air leaks."

Pollard contends that a modern home will be a much better home than great, great grandfather ever dreamed would be possible. For one thing, it will be a better insulated home. Because of the critical energy situation, the homebuilding industry has had to respond with better building methods to prevent air leaks, and the addition of full thick insulation in floors, walls and ceilings has become a standard construction feature for any quality builder.

"You see," Pollard explained, "it's no longer only original price and the mortgage payments that represent the major cost concerns of families. Energy costs have also come to be of great importance, and as they continue to climb, we can see them becoming the single most expensive element in the family budget. A new, well-insulated home, can literally save thousands of dollars on heating and cooling costs, and when you take that savings into consideration, it's much more economical to buy a new home than to continue to maintain an older, less energy-efficient home"

The homebuilding industry has come of age in the past few years, and great, great grandfather would be amazed if he could witness the technology at work in the construction of a modern home.

As Pollard put it, "For affordability, sound construction, availability of financing and energy-conserving insulation factors that make dollars and sense — the good old days of home ownership are now — right now."

Helpful care tips for lawn equipment

Just about every homeowner in America has one or more pieces of yard and lawn equipment and knows the basic ways to work them. But not everyone is as readily familiar with the safety and maintenance procedures that should be observed for their proper operation and care.

If you own or operate any yard and lawn equipment, consult this safety and maintenance checklist to ensure that no potential equipment problems exist:

- Never use electric tools when it's raining or on wet surfaces.

- Use a power lawn mower or clippers only in dry grass or on dry shrubs.

- If you use a metal ladder, keep it away from electric power lines.

The green thumb

Plants have become the biggest "must" in home decor, and it's no wonder. Greenery adds a refreshing touch to any room and looks right with every style of furnishings, from contemporary to colonial.

If you are or would like to be a plant-lover, but lack a green thumb, have a home that's too dark or drafty for plants, or just want to fill in and brighten up hard-to-decorate areas, don't despair; you can spruce up your abode with beautiful artificial houseplants.

Escalation of Raw Land Prices Likely To Continue

Raw land costs have been one of the dominant factors in the hyperinflated rise in the prices of new homes. Recently published data shows that large increases in raw land prices are likely to continue into the near future. One of the best indicators of potential changes in residential land price is that of farm land values. Over the past five years the average value per acre of farm land has nearly doubled (98.3 percent) to $490 in February 1978 from $247 in March 1973. This is an astounding 14.7 percent average annual rate of increase.

The only bright spot is that the rate of increase during the twelve month period ending February 1, 1978 slowed somewhat to 8.8 percent. This is the smallest annual percentage increase since 1972. Farm land analysts are anticipating a 6 to 10 percent increase during the twelve month period ending in February 1979. A major cause of the slow down in the rate of increase in farm land values was the lack of strength in agricultural prices over the past four years that ended last Fall.

Farm land values and real estate transfers data are published by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. It obtains its data from two main sources. Average value per acre estimates are based on data provided by USDA crop reporters. Data on actual farm sales and information on local markets are obtained from farm real estate brokers, local bankers, county officials and other knowledgeable persons through semiannual surveys.

This data is the only comprehensive source of raw land costs available on a national basis at the present time. (Note: The NAHB subsidiary, Home Owners Warranty Corporation (HOW) is now providing finished residential land cost data for units insured under its warranty program. Extensive data is available for the past three years.)

About 25 million acres of agricultural land was transferred during the twelve month period ending in February 1978. This was up 7 percent from the slightly more than 23 million acres transferred during the previous period; but still well below the recent peak of nearly 42 million acres in the 1974 period. The average value per acre of farm land sold declined to $595 from $645. The principal reason for this was the dominance of the Mountain States in the transfer of land which accounted for 32 percent of the total land sales (over 8 million acres).

The price per acre in the Mountain States dropped from $244 to $175. Weak cattle prices over an extended period until early this year is the cause of the large amount of acreage sold and, consequently, the drop in price. A significant number of large tracts—10,000 to 100,000 acres—were sold. These large tracts alone account for most of the drop in price since they naturally tend to be less expensive. Also, there is strong reason to believe that a number of the large sales occurred as a direct result of the owners being in distress over the weak cattle prices that have plagued them for some time.

In most of the regions the value of land for all potential uses increased during the twelve month period ending in February of this year.

Agricultural use continues to be expected for 90 percent of the acreage transferred during the most recent period. This is generally about the same as it has been over the past several years. Residential subdivision was the only other significant area accounting for 5 percent of the acreage transferred. As with the total acreage this proportion is also biased by the Mountain States. Over 800,000 acres of farm real estate were purchased in this region with a potential subdivision use over the next five years. Strong population growth and the relative weakness of cattle and agricultural products for most of the period no doubt led residential land developers to take advantage of the situation.

If one were to adjust for this abnormally high amount of purchase in the Mountain States, land transfers in the latest period would be closer to the 463,000 acres of the previous period which ended in February 1977. The last two years are well above the 1975 and 1976 periods when less than 275,000 acres were sold respectively, but well below the 1.67 million of 1974 and the 726,000 acres transferred in 1973. With the continued strong demand for new housing that is anticipated throughout most of the 1980s, purchases of farm real estate can be expected to move upward. This is especially true given the nature of the present demand which is strongly oriented towards single family structures.

As a result of the aberration caused by the Mountain States the price of farm land sold for potential residential subdivision use declined to $642 from $958. Prices in most of the ten regions (see box on page 3 for definition of regions) for which data is reported showed increases. The highest priced farm land intended for residential use is in the Corn Belt states. During the latest period the average sales price was $1,715 per acre. This region has had the highest priced land for potential subdivision use for the past three years. This is tied to the fact that this region has also had the highest priced farm land over the past five years. A strong industrial base and extensive agricultural use in this region is the prime cause for the high price.

Land in the Northeast had the second highest price both for farm land in general and land that is sold for potential residential subdivision use. The price in the latest period was $1,531 per acre for land intended for subdivisions.

This was up sharply from the previous year's $1,007 per acre. The latest price was 22 percent over its previous high in 1974 of $1,264. Thirty-nine thousand acres of farm land were sold in the latest period for potential residential subdivision use in this region—up from the 29,000 of the previous period but still well below the 100,000 acres sold in 1973.

Increasing urbanization, especially in Virginia and North Carolina is the probable cause for the rapidly rising prices in the Appalachian region of farm land intended for subdivision use within the next five years.

Say 'welcome' with flowers

Starting at the front door, flowers in your home are synonymous with hospitality and a generous spirit toward welcoming friends to your home. To say nothing of the pleasure they give every member of your family.

There's nothing that says flowers should be arranged according to any formal rules. In fact, the most important consideration is that, however modest or grand a bouquet, it reflects the lifestyle enjoyed at your house.

The kinds of containers can set the mood. Baskets of all kinds can be called into service for large and small arrangements that are natural and easy. Country crocks, even teapots, have lots of possibilities. And what is more glorious than a graceful arrangement of roses in a gleaming silver bowl?

Over the next few months chrysanthemums will bring their special kind of sunshine to any corner of your home. Why not put that sunny glow into your entrance hall as the first "hello."

Modern methods make care of carpets a snap

Your carpets and rugs are among the most expensive furnishings in your home. So, it's no wonder that you want to take the best care of them you can. That means regular cleaning and attention to spots and stains — with the help of modern carpet care techniques.

Actually, when it comes to cleaning, your carpet is very much like your kitchen floor. Most likely, you frequently sweep the kitchen to remove dirt and crumbs and wash it regularly to remove greasy dirt build-up.

Similarly, your carpet needs to be vacuumed to remove the gritty dirt that can shorten its life. This should be done a minimum of once a week, using long, slow strokes and going over each area several times. For best results, your vacuum should also be in top working condition.

How to make outdoor projects quick and fun

A wishing well planter can add a touch of beauty and interest to your yard or patio without taking a lot of time or money thanks to new easy-to-follow plans now available.

With the appearance of old, heavy brick, the planter may look difficult, but you can actually build-it-yourself in a few afternoons. The quick assembly time and low cost is due to a unique construction, using plywood and Z-BRICK brand facebrick.

The brick facings are less than 1/2-inch thick, yet they look and feel remarkably like their heavy, hard-to-handle real counterparts. The Z-BRICK is applied to a simple plywood sheathing to give the wishing well the look of real masonry—without messy mortars or concrete.

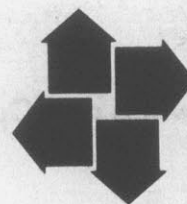

The plans tell you how to build the roof and crank assembly and you can choose from several different designs.

Lightweight Z-BRICK is both fireproof and weatherproof, making it ideal for all kinds of outdoor projects, like barbecues and planter boxes.

Available in several textures and colors, Z-BRICK will fit right into almost any yard or home decor.

Plans for the wishing well planter, as well as for four other easy-to-build summer projects are available by sending 50¢ to Z-Brick Company, Dept MDPB, Woodinville, WA 98072.

Imaginative Design

The "Woodbine", located at 507 Lancelot Drive in beautiful Camelot Subdivision, is the newest addition to the popular line of homes offered by East Carolina Builders. It features a subtle blend of contemporary styling and rustic cedar charm. Architecturally, the home is a "Mid Level" — an interesting variation on the venerable split level design, resulting in a floor plan that is at once dramatic and functional.

At the mid level is a large vaulted-ceiling living room which overlooks the lower level with its 26' x 17' family room and open-sided fireplace. From the living room one looks up into the elevated dining room with its clerestory windows and cathedral ceiling. An old fashioned screened porch adjoins the dining room. Also on the upper level are 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, and an eat-in kitchen adjoining the dining room.

A large basement with plenty of room for utility-storage area, as well as a future bedroom, adds to the extraordinary value and livability of this handsome new residence.

East Carolina Builders continues into the 1978 season with their increasingly popular line of homes aimed at the middle income buyer.

Organized in the early seventies by local attorney and businessman, Joseph F. Bowen, Jr., East Carolina Builders last year joined forces with one of the giants of the housing industry, Ryan Homes, Inc., in order to bring to the Greenville area the highly sophisticated production techniques that have been developed by Ryan over the past two decades.

The local company has also adopted Ryan's now famous Standard Energy Package' a combination of features designed to "Super Seal" their homes against heat loss in critical areas, reduce energy consumption, and lower utility bills by so much as 40 per cent.

East Carolina Builders, is currently engaged in the development of Stoneybrook, a rural residential community between Greenville and Farmville, and has homes under construction in Cherry Oaks, Camelot, Lake Ellsworth, Lake Glenwood, and Stoneybrook.

In 1976 Mike Moye joined the company as vice-president. Moye is a Greenville native whose family has been associated with the construction business for many years. His responsibilities include marketing, promotion, and subdivision development.

Contemporary Redwood Home

This redwood contemporary on State Road 1728-Lot 3 in Lake Glenwood can recover 60 percent or more of heat normally lost up the chimney and can provide most of the house's heating requirements on its own.

Situated on a heavily wooded, natural setting lot measuring 100 by 223 feet, the house has three bedrooms, two baths, kitchen great room and separate utility room.

Additional living space is afforded through the oversize garage, 24 by 26 feet, and a deck built with pressure-treated lumber.

Top quality G. E. appliances are installed and the kitchen features cabinets of solid hardwood. The bathrooms are large and feature full tub with showers.

Older home know-how

More people today are looking for an older home when they buy a house. Not only have building costs soared but older homes often have more charm, are better built, and are in established neighborhoods with services and facilities.

However, buying an older home can be risky if you don't know what you're doing.

There is a book called Finding and Fixing the Older Home which can help you avoid the pitfalls in buying an older home. It describes how to judge house values, appraise house construction, and spot trouble areas that might need expensive repairs — it even tells you how to deal with financing.

There are complete details on repairs and remodeling once the purchase is made. All instructions are so basic and specific that you can tell whether you can tackle the job personally or will need a contractor.

The "open" interior arrangement features extra-large rooms, and there is attic storage reachable through disappearing stairs.

Located in the city school district, P and B Enterprises of Greenville, or a local realtor via MLS, are the people to see about this wonder heat-saving house complete with G. E. heat-pump system, steel insulated doors and full-perimeter foundation for best thermal efficiency.

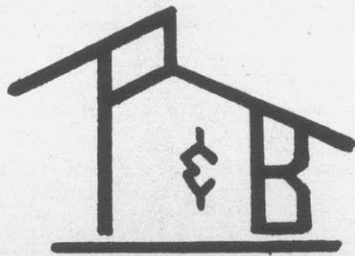

The house is pre-wired for telephones and has full-height screens with double-hung wood windows that feature swing-out design for easy removal of both frame and glass for cleaning and maintenance. The utility room features easy access from garage and centralizes all high-maintenance, heavy electrical load equipment, including main switchboard, heatpump air handler, water heater, washer and dryer.
