Outdoor Funeral Wednesday For Pope John Paul

By JACK R. PAYTON

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — The Vatican announced Saturday that an outdoor funeral would be held in vast cobblestoned St. Peter's Square next Wednesday for Pope John Paul I whose brief "September Papacy" was likened to the passage of a brilliant shooting star.

The princes of the Roman catholic Church, reenacting the ancient ritual they went through only last month, also announced that a secret conclave would begin 10 days later on Oct. 14 to choose a successor for the bricklayer's son whose wit and warmth endeared him to millions.

More than 150,000 mourners, their faces streaked with tears, said krewell Saturday to the pontiff, whose body, arrayed in the majestic red, white and gold papal vestments so unlike his simple parish priest manner, lay in state in the Vatican Palace's Clementine Hall before being moved to the central altar of St. Peter's Basilica.

Italian Cardinal Pericle Felici, seeming to sum up the feelings of the 700 million Catholic followers still stunned and saddened by the pope's death from a heart attack Thursday night, said:

"His reign was like a great, bright shooting star that disappeared right away. And just as every star, even a passing one, leaves a trace, so these days will leave an imprint in the church."

Some of them praying quietly, others sobbing openly, murners from almost every nation on earth slowly shuffled past the pontiff's bier just as they did seven weeks ago following the death of Pope Paul VI.

Death of the humble priest from the northern Dolomite mountains put an end to the shortest reign in nearly 400 years of church history — a reign that has come to be called by his admirers both inside and outside the Vatican as the "September Papacy."

Twenty-nine of the cardinals who will be selecting John Paul's successor decided during a one hour and 35 minute meeting that his funeral would be held outdoors in the vast, cobblestoned elipse of St.Peter's Square as was that of Pope Paul on August 12.

John Paul, flashing the broad smile that won him the world's affection, walked through that square only 27 days ago to a simple investiture mass attended by 300,000 cheering admirers.

The cardinal also decided to begin the secret conclave to elect the next pope as soon as possible — immediately following the nine days of official mourning that begin with the funeral.

Nineteen days elapsed between the death of Pope Paul VI and the conclave that chose John Paul. This time there will be 16 days for the cardinals to deliberate on their choice of a successor. Of the 127 living cardinals, 112 are under the age of 80 and thus eligible to vote.

Vatican sources said John Paul I would be buried in the Vatican Grottoes below St. Peter's basilica, possibly across a corridor from the tomb of John XXIII. They said a site for the tomb had not been finally chosen but it might be next to the tomb of Benedict XV, who died in 1922, and facing that of Pope John, only a few yards from that of Paul VI.

The misleadingly named Vatican Grottoes are the original basilica built by the Roman emperor Constantine over the reputed Burial site of St. Peter. The present basilica was built above it.

Vatican experts said the cardinals had decided to speed up the timetable for choosing a new pontiff because they had already examined the main problems facing the church and the kind of man needed to deal with them before the conclave that elected John Paul.

According to the experts, the cardinals reached an almost unanimous consensus last month that a prelate with deep pastoral experience as an archbishop was needed to guide the church through the last troubled years of this century.

They had such a man in John Paul, who for nine years served as patriarch of Venice and before that a bishop in Italy's northern Dolomite mountain region where he was born.

The requirements of the church have not changed since John Paul's election, the experts say, and the cardinals will likely choose another pastoral prelate to succeed him.

Two cardinals who fit that description are Salvatore Pappalardo, 60, archbishop of Palermo, Sicily, and Corrado Ursi,70, archbishop of Naples.

ECU Board Of Trustees Approve Proposed Reorganization Plan

By KEITH MILLS
Reflector Staff Writer

Following its regular meeting and a rather lengthy executive session the East Carolina University Board of Trustees reconvened in a public session Saturday to approve the appointment of 120 new staff members and the school's reorganization plan.

Dick Blake, assistant to Chancellor Dr. Thomas Brewer, said in an interview that the board "discussed the reorganization plan at great length" in executive session and it was the concensus of the group that "conclusive deliberations" had been reached and that the plan should be put forth as a formal recommendation.

"The reorganization plan as previously explained would eliminate the positions of vice-chancellor for Health Affairs and vice-chancellor for Administration and Planning," Blake said.

The positions eliminated are currently being held by Dr. Edwin W. Monroe, vice-chancellor of Health Affairs, and Dr. Robert Holt, vice-chancellor for Administration.

Under the plan also, the dean of the medical school will report directly to the chancellor, and the schools of allied health and nursing will fall under the vice-chairman for Academic Affairs," he added."

A formal press conference will not be held, Blake said, but Chancellor Thomas Brewer will be available Monday for individual press interviews.

In other action, Dr. John M. Howell, chancellor for Academic Affairs, told the board that East Carolina University's enrollment for the year is 10,735. He projected an enrollment of 10,800 for the 1979-80 school year.

Dr. Edwin Monroe, vice-chancellor for Health Affairs, told the board that the new neonatal center, which opened officially in July, will be dedicated on October 10.

The clinic is currently caring for 10 babies, and should drastically reduce the infant mortality rate in eastern North Carolina.

Monroe also said enrollment for Health Affairs is at an all time high, which represents a 10 per cent increase in undergraduates and a substantial increase in the number of graduate students.

The med school, itself, has an enrollment of 65 students, Monroe said. They represent 36 counties in North Carolina, eight minorities and 16 women.

"Chancellor Brewer, Dr. Laupus (dean of the Medical School) and I have been working with General Administration to find funding for 45 new residents next year," he said. The school has 31 residents currently and will increase that figure by 14 next year.

On October 14-16 the Liason Committee for Medical Education (LCME) will meet to discuss the status of ECU and student increases.

Monroe also expressed confidence that no problems with accreditation are expected.

He also reported that Health Affairs has gained supplemental funds totaling $3.8 million, as opposed to $2.4 million last year. Ten per cent of the funds are designated strictly as research funds.

Dr. Robert Holt, vice- chairman for Administration, said 2,900 students at the university have received $3,647,490 in financial aid.

Troy W. Pate Jr., chairman of the Board of Trustees, said the board is very much interested in solving the pedestrian and highway traffic problem at 10th Street. Pate was authorized by the board to write a letter to the state Department of Transportation advising them of the problem.

Several board members expressed the opinion that a walkover at the 10th Street crossing would not cost all that much and that the university would fund the project.

POLYMERS EXPLAINED — Dr. Angelo A. Volpe, chairman of the Chemistry Department, presented a slide presentation on the "architectural features of polymer molecules" during Saturday's meeting of the East Carolina University Board of Trustees. The presentation was the first of a new type of staff report, which has been added to the trustees' agenda, on faculty research. Polymers are used in the manufacture of various synthetic products. Shelling Rocks Beirut

By DAVID D. PEARCE

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Syrian troops traded rocket, mortar and artillery fire with Christian militiamen Saturday in the heaviest fighting since the 1975-76 civil war. Both sides blamed the Camp David agreements.

Each side accused the other of starting the shooting, which quickly escalated into one of the most serious Syrian-Christian confrontations since the war.

Although no fficial casualty figures were available, dozens of persons were believed to have been killed or injured in the bombardments that enveloped the city.

In East Beirut, where clouds of black smoke billowed into the sky, a senior rightist commander said the intensity of the shelling exceeded that of early July, when over 600 people were reported killed or injured in heavy Syrian-Christian fighting.

"This is the heaviest we've ever known since it all began — since the beginning of the civil war. It's never been this bad before," said a resident of the Armenian quarter.

The scale of the fighting was greater than at any other period since the "official" end of the 1975-76 civil war.

Christian gunners shelled not only Palestinian but also Moslem neighborhoods of west Beirut, causing several deaths and injuries.

Concerted shelling exchanges extended well into Christian areas of Mount Lebanon north of the city, stretching out along a 15-mile front from Hadath southeast of Beirut to mountain points northeast of the city.

Christian East Beirut was a scene of devastation — rubble littered the streets, buses were overturned and thrown across roads as barricades, and cut telephone wires dangled like spaghetti from their poles. Residents huddled in basement shelters.

Both local residents and Phalangist militia commanders denied a report that Syrian troops had stormed the southeast suburb of Hadath, although the area was subjected to heavy shelling.

Syrian officials said the Christians were attempting to provoke the Syrian forces in Lebanon into a major confrontation in the hope that Israel would intervene on the side of the rightists.

Peace Talks Hampered

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — America's top Middle East envoy said Saturday Israel and Egypt were moving "expeditiously" toward treaty talks, but major fighting in Lebanon and new threats of terrorism hampered the U.S. peace drive.

U.S. diplomat Alfred Atherton arrived in Cairo Saturday from Israel and drove straight to the Barrages residence of President Anwar Sadat on the Nile River for a 75-minute meeting.

Atherton said discussions were still going on regarding the exact opening date, location, delegation line-ups, procedures and other arrangements.

Cuba In Mourning

MIAMI (AP) — The Cuban government has declared a three-day period of mourning for Pope John Paul I, Havana radio said today.

The broadcast monitored in Miami said flags would be flown at half staff at all public buildings and Cuban military establishments through Monday.

Price Change

Home delivery and Sunday edition prices for "The Daily Reflector" will increase October 1, according to Circulation Manager B. R. Hardee.

The new home delivery rate will be $3.50 per month, while the single copy Sunday price will increase to 35-cents.

The single copy daily price of 15-cents will remain unchanged, Hardee said.

The October 1 price change is the first increase since the 15-cents daily price, the 30-cents Sunday edition, and the $3 per month home delivery charge were set in July 1975.

Hardee said the rate increase is the result of rising costs of newsprint and other materials used in the publication of the newspaper.

Focus On 'Hire The Handicapped' Week

Jenny Talley Perfect Example Of Employed Handicapped

By LYNN CAVERLY
Reflector Staff Writer

Jenny Talley works in the insurance department at Pitt County Memorial Hospital. She has been handicapped for the past six years due to multiple sclerosis. And she has only missed less than a day of work since she began her filing job in April of this year.

Hire the Handicapped Week begins today and Jenny is a perfect example of a handicapped employee who can do a job just as well as any non-handicapped person.

"The hospital is an ideal place, structurally speaking, for a handicapped person to work," Jenny said. "The halls and doorways are wide enough for wheelchairs."

"I think the reason most businessess don't make an effort to hire the handicapped is because of the inaccessibility of the buildings for handicapped person. What a lot of them don't realize is that the government will pay for certain programs to renovate buildings to make them more accessible to the handicapped."

Jenny also mentioned misconceptions of the handicapped such as sickly, likely to

7 Children Die In Cleveland Fire

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Seven children died and their mother was critically injured in the city's worst first disaster of the year Friday night.

The blaze broke out in a 2½ story home on Cleveland's East Side and claimed the lives of all seven children of Miniimah and Alhaadee Hasain.

Hasain was at work when the tragedy occurred. He was taken by police to his wife's bedside at Euclid General Hospital.

The children ranged in age from 6 months to 11 years.

A neighbor, Dan Smith, was the first to get to the house. He and another man kicked in the front and side door, but were driven back by intense flames and heat.

"I kept knocking and pounding on the door," Smith said. "Then I kicked it in and I stuck my head inside, but it was too hot. I saw the fire spreading."

Firefighters found one of the boys dead in a chair in the living room. They found three more boys, three girls and their mother in upstairs bedrooms.

Smoke apparently cause the deaths, officials said.

Nieh, 9, and Saeed, 6 months old, died in the emergency room of Euclid General at 12:30 a.m., after efforts to revive them failed.

The other dead children were two boys, Neeiim, 11, and Essau, 4, and three girls, Karima, 8; Halima, 6, and Walida, 5.

Smith's daughter, Brenda, 14, said she heard Mrs. Hasain and some of the children screaming that they were trapped near a second-floor window. Brenda said it appeared they couldn't get the window open.

Smith's wife, Eddie, said, "The fire had to be going a long time before it was discovered. It broke out all the windows. They had to be sleeping. They wouldn't have stayed in there until it got that bad."

Railroads Restoring Services

By E. MICHAEL MYERS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More than 100 railroads, finally freed from a paralyzing four-day strike by a federal court order, struggled Saturday to restore freight and passenger service to the nation.

The strike stranded thousands of commuters, delayed the shipment of grains and other fall harvests and posed a major threat to the economy, prompting the White House to intervene. The Union Pacific Railroad estimated it lost $3.5 million daily during the strike.

Striking railway clerks, assured by a federal judge they are protected against management reprisals, pulled down picket signs and reported to work across the country. A temporary restraining order issued by District Judge Aubrey Robinson Friday forced the railway clerks back on their jobs during a 60-day cooling off period.

Railroad officials said service was being restored promptly and the rail systems should be in normal operating condition before Monday.

Amtrak, its passenger service crippled outside the Boston-Washington corridor, restored service Saturday to 40 states. Amtrak trains on routes of less than 500 miles were dipatched from Chicago, St. Louis, Los Angeles, San Diego and Seattle.

Long distance overnight trains were scheduled to begin running Sunday.

An emergency board established by President Carter will begin seeking a solution Monday to the Norfolk and Western Railway labor dispute that ultimately spread to more than 130 rail systems.

The striking Brotherhood of Railway, Airline and Steamship clerks, in a dispute involving job protection and automated machinery, struck the Virginia-based railroad July 10.

The strike spread to 43 other railroads Tuesday, then 73 railroads Wednesday, and finally to more than 130. Near the end of the week automakers announced shutdowns and other industries began layoffs because of the cutoff of parts and supplies.

The Justice Department joined the railroads in seeking relief and the temporary injunction was issued Friday.

"Reports coming in to union president Fred Kroll indicate that throughout the country practically all pickets have been withdrawn," union spokesman Henry Fleisher said.

George W. Koch, president of the Grocery Manufacturers of America, said the shutdown threatened the nation's autumn grain harvest and resulted in job layoffs in food plants. And the picketing prompted the layoff of at least 6,000 auto workers at General Motors plants in Ohio and California and workers in Kentucky coal mines.

Union Pacific spokesman Rocky Rockwell said many businesses served by the railroad were low on supplies and there were backlogs of trains at grain elevators.

Funds for Teen-age Pregnancies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pregnant teen-agers could obtain government-paid medical help and counseling, including abortion advice, under legislation approved by the Senate and now before a congressional conference committee.

The new program approved Friday authorizes $210 million to be distributed to state and local pregnancy counseling centers over the next three years.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., chairman of a Senate health subcommittee, said there are more than one million pregnancies among women under 17 each year and no uniform effort to assist them.

Six of each 10 pregnant teenagers have their babies and many are unprepared for motherhood, Kennedy said.

Will Expand GSA Investigation

BALTIMORE (AP) — The U.S. attorney who obtained the first indictments in the General Services Administration scandal says he will expand the investigation and deliver more indictments.

The 18 indictments returned Friday charge that employees of the federal government's chief landlord and supplier accepted cash and a wide variety of merchandise ranging from jewelry to a sand blaster from suppliers who were paid for goods the government never got.

Sources who declined to be identified said the additional indictments will involve the Federal Supply Service, like those returned Friday, but also will extend to other areas of GSA's $5-billion-a-year operations.

Sentenced To Life

SMITHFIELD, N.C. (AP) — Norris Carlton Taylor was sentenced to life imprisonment Friday for the murder of a New York model. In the second phase of a week-long trial, a Johnston County Superior Court jury handed the 34-year-old Taylor the life term rather than the death sentence.

After Taylor heard the sentence from Judge Hamilton H. Hobgood, he made an obscene gesture at the judge. He was brought into the courtroom to hear the sentence accompanied by four deputies and bound in handcuffs and leg chains. He showed no emotion when the sentence was read.

After the sentence was read Hogbood said, "I've tried 55,000 cases (during 30 years as a judge) and this is the first time I've ever ordered a defendant to be brought into court in shackles."

Can Assist, Rather Than Arrest

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Since some lawmakers felt jail doesn't offer a satisfactory answer to the problem of the public drunk, a new state law goes into effect Sunday which will allow law enforcement officers to assist the drunk rather than arrest him.

Last year in North Carolina, law officers made 56,000 public drunkeness arrests. Under the new law, officers will be allowed to take a drunk home, to a friend's house or to a treatemnt center rather than to jail. Officers will still have the power to jail a drunk for up to 24 hours. But they will not be able to charge him unless he has been disruptive in public.

Drunks who commit other crimes can still be arrested under the new law. The law provides no loopholes for people charged with drunken driving.

Expect To Set Referendum Date

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Wake County commissioners are expected Monday to set Jan. 12 as the date for a referendum on mixed-drink sales in Wake County restaurants and bars.

Raleigh Chamber of Commerce Director Edward G. Garland is scheduled to make the request at the commission meeting Monday morning.

The referendum would have to be approved by the Wake Board of Elections. Elections Secretary Martha R. McLaughlin said the vote would cost Wake taxpayers $35,000.

Not In Step With Their People

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter says he feels the leaders of Jordan and Syria are out of step with their own people in opposing the Camp David summit accords.

"I think the people there want peace," he said, adding that other Arab leaders will discover this "when and if their leaders show the same courage" exhibited by the leaders of Israel and Egypt.

Carter made the comments in an interview Friday with out-of-town broadcasters. The transcript was released by the White House on Saturday.

Wants VEPCO Increase Denied

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Democratic Senate candidate John Ingram said Saturday the North Carolina Utilities Commission should deny all rate increases for the Virginia Electric & Power Co. until it determines why the utility's rates are higher than rates of other North Carolina utilities. The utility serves the northeastern part of North Carolina.

Ingram said public hearings should be conducted into the effects of Vepco's Washington, D.C. operations on North Carolina customers and the effect of its construction program.

U.S. Abandons Last African Military Post

Farewell To Morocco

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH
Assopiated Press Writer

KENITRA, Morocco (AP) — The United States quietly abandoned its last military foothold in Africa on Saturday with a low-key ceremony that ended a 36-year military presence in Morocco dating back to "Operation Torch," one of the turning points of World War II.

The signature of Navy Capt. William Parrish — commander of the American-run communications bases centered on Kenitra, 25 miles north of the Moroccan capital of Rabat — formally handed over to the Moroccan government all that remained of the multi-million-dollar installation.

Parrish and four other officers were the last in a succession of tens of thousands of American troops who have served here since Gen. George Patton's GIs stormed ashore Nov. 8, 1942 and captured Kenitra — then named Port Lyautey — from the forces of Vichy France after a bloody three-day battle.

There is no monument here to the 567 Americans who died in crushing the bitter resistance of French troops under the Vichy regime's Gen. Charles Nogues.

Greatly expanded and modernized by the United States, the bases at Kenitra and neighboring Sidi Yahia and Bouknadel were placed under nominal Moroccan command in 1965 to counter Communist and third world criticism. But they remained firmly under American control.

Anxious to keep a low profile, the troops and their families lived almost entirely on the bases with their own hospital, club houses, tennis courts and Olympic-size swimming pool.

In a much-publicized exchange with Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev, Morocco's King Hassan II blandly asserted there was no such thing as an American military base in Morocco. But the leftist campaign against the U.S. presence continued until two years ago when the United States decided to "disestablish" the bases costing more than $7 million a year to operate, and replace them with satellite facilities.

In the nine months since American troops left Sidi Yahia, the unguarded base has been looted of all usable equipment left there by the Americans. Refrigerators, light fixtures, door handles, virtually everything that could be moved, have disappeared. A gap in the fence is wide enough for trucks to drive in an out undisturbed.

Moroccan officers have assured American colleagues that this will not be allowed to happen in Kenitra and Bouknadel.

Morgan Endorses Ingram

At an afternoon news conference, Morgan endorsed Ingram's candidacy but explained it as being predicated on party loyalty.

He said he agreed "often" with Ingram's opponent incumbent Sen. Jesse Helms, but said he and Ingram "would be more together" because they shared the Democratic Party philosophy.

Asked about Ingram's criticism of Helms as a tool of the special interests, Morgan said, "I don't know exactly what John Ingram is referring to, but Sen. Helms is a man of integrity. Now, he adheres to the views of special interest groups, but he is not a captive."

The news conference was to have featured Morgan, Ingram, Gov. Jim Hunt, Rep. Walter B. Jones, D-N.C., and Sen. James Sasser, D-Tenn., the keynote speaker for Saturday night's dinner.

But questions to Morgan about his relationship with Ingram and Helms dominated the session.

Toga Parties New Rage

TOGA RAGE — Scene from a recent toga party at an N.C. State University fraternity. Toga parties are all the rage at frat parties these days. (AP Laserphoto)

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Not since streaking as a fad found such popularity on college campuses. But this time it's not scampering about without clothes that is all the rage. It's wearing Roman togas and staging toga parties, a revival of a form of merriment once popular on college campuses.

Togas and toga parties are the "in" form of partying thanks to the movie, "Animal House," a tale of fraternity madness in 1962.

"Students," said North Carolina State University senior Vic Stephenson, "are going to come up with something to entertain themselves."

The newest entertainment scene was set by the movie's fictional Deltas who are about to lose their charter for various prohibited acts. They decide to banish their depression with a toga party.

And North Carolina students and the rest of the country picked up the madness. At NCSU, togas are everywhere. The Phi Kappa Tau brothers togaed last weekend. Tau Kappa Epsilon has also tried the sheeted look, as has Sigma Phi Epsilon. Edwards Grocery, a night spot near the Raleigh campus, has invited students to toga this Sunday. Even dormitory residents are donning togas for their parties.

Thursday night it was toga time at the NCSU Farmhouse fraternity. The fashionable turned out in everything from an "Izod" toga, complete with homemade alligator, torobes of bright floral or stripes. The wrappings ranged from gladiator-style or short to one-shoulder, floor-length designs. Pins, robes and imagination held the togas together.

The frat's one-passenger chariot which is normally used during Greek Week was pulled out of storage for the event.

And at one of the recent toga parties, a concoction comprised of a grape drink and grain alcohol was served. Similar brews, rumor has it, are frequently consumed when toga-ing.

The toga-wearing seems to get the guests in the spirit of things, according to one student who attended a recent toga bash. "Wearing the toga made the party a little different," he said. It got kind of wild..., which most parties do."

The scene also usually includes listening to the Isely Brothers recording of "Shout," another relic of the '60s, and chanting "TO-GA, TO-GA, TO-GA" whenever there's a lull.

To Leave Hospital

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Prime Minister Menahem Begin, who checked himself into a hospital complaining of fatigue, will be released Sunday because "he feels good and his condition is good," his personal physician said Saturday.

Dr. Basil Lewis said the results of a series of tests on the 65-year-old prime minister were satisfactory. During the day Begin caught up on some neglected reading and talked with family and friends.

Striking Teachers

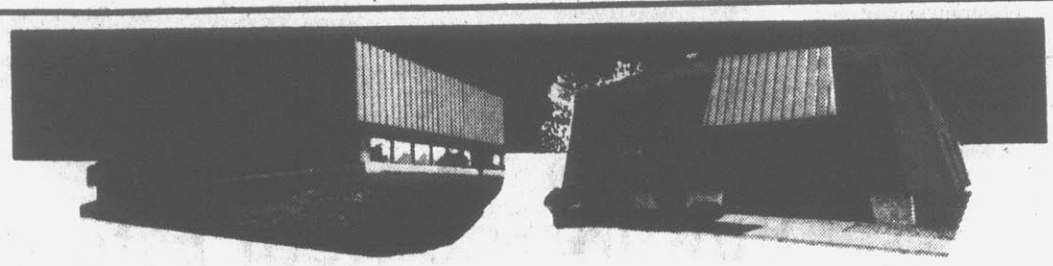

By JACK LESAR
United Press International

Negotiators for the Cleveland School Board and striking employees Saturday opened the second round of court-ordered talks aimed at ending the nation's largest school strike — a three-week walkout that has idled 101,000 pupils.

Tacoma, Wash., teachers, renewing their resolve to stay out of their classrooms until they have a contract, voted to defy a judge's back-to-work order.

There was no report of progress in the Cleveland strike, largest of a smattering of walkouts that idled or otherwise affected more than 200,000 students in 11 states at week's end.

Court-ordered negotiations began in Cleveland Friday after the city School Board unanimously approved a revised budget calling for the layoff of 600 employees and reductions in 13 programs.

Shortcomings Can Be Met

A survey of the court facilities throughout North Carolina has been prepared and inadequacies have been found in Pitt, Greene and Martin Counties.

The extensive survey was prepared by the N. C. State University School of Design for the Administrative Office of the Courts.

The Pitt County Court House has received only a fair rating for accessibility and is said to be practically inaccessible for the handicapped.

The Pitt facility was rated 44th in the state for overall condition and 55th for public access (among the 100 counties).

It was recommended that some non-judicial offices be moved from the court house and 15,500 feet be renovated, which should provide space for the courts through 1985. Later, renovations will be needed and other non-judicial offices will need moving.

Ayden and Farmville court space was considered adequate.

Fortunately work is already underway in the old hospital building which will allow moving of some offices. County commissioners can take credit for being far sighted on this.

They were not so far sighted when a decision was made not to acquire additional property around the court house when it was available. This is already proving a detriment to the court house operation, and the situation will get worse.

Something can be done about improving access for the handicapped. With the emphasis on improving things for the handicapped in Pitt County, planning should start on this immediately.

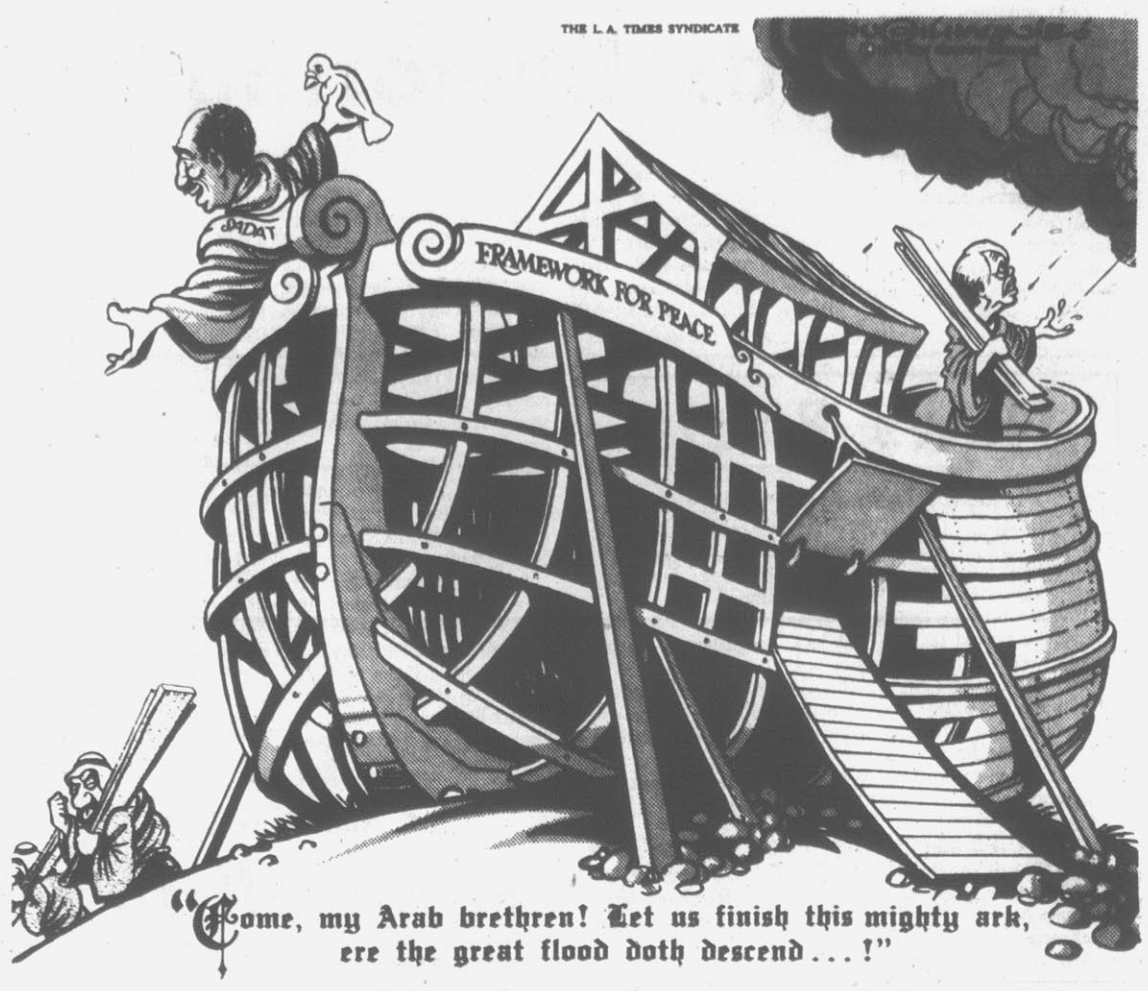

The state court house study provides a good guideline for improvements to the Pitt County Court House. Some of what is needed is already being implemented, and other needs should be met over a reasonable time.

Railroad Stoppage Still Has An Impact

Despite a rail strike which has been hanging over the nation prospects for rail freight getting through to our area seemed favorable this weekend.

Responding to a court order Seaboard Coast Line trains went back to normal last week. The Southern Railway reported supervisory crews were operating trains, although local service had been affected.

Even with the emphasis on highway transportation today, a general railroad strike can paralyze our industrial nation. Its effects can be felt in virtually every town, large or small. Hopefully, the threat of a stoppage will soon be removed.

"Come, my Arab brethren! Let us finish this mighty ark, ere the great flood doth descend . . . !"

THIS AFTERNOON

Accessibility Is Needed

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Much of the attention of officialdom focused on how adequate North Carolina's Courthourses are for high officials like judges, prosecutors, and attorneys, as the public recently got a report on the state's 100 courthouses.

But one section of the book ought to be particularly interesting to those of us who visit the courthouse because we have to — on official business — not because we work there.

Public access was much on the minds of the members of the survey team visiting the county courthouses says Robert P. Burns, project director of the activity carried out by the School of Design at N.C. State University.

Researchers found 682 public activities going on in courthouses, ranging from paying off fines to listing taxes to registering deeds to finding the county manager.

"Inaccessibility, intended or not, is a very serious deficiency," the report suggests. Then it goes on to catalogue such deficiencies and concludes that "most buildings achieve only a fair rating, and that six courthouses and 12 other buildings receive a low overall evaluation and only 39 courthouses and 18 other buildings are considered adequate to excellent."

No Way

What that means, says Burns, is that the researchers looked for directional signs, information booths, unmarked corridors, winding passageways, doors beyond doors without any guidance.

Of the 682 different citizen activities to be done, of necessity, at the courthouse, not even half rated "good access" on the charts.

Burns comments: "Some 200 were extremely difficult to locate — so bad you almost have to get somebody to lead you there." For taxpayers, he added, such a situation is "frustrating and inconvenient."

For the handicapped, things are even rougher. Over three-fourths of the activities (77.8 percent) were found inaccessible, and another 10 percent could be reached only by getting somebody to help. A slim 12.2 percent were found accessible to handicapped individuals.

Wildlife

The final arguments on a proposed 40 percent hike in hunting and fishing license fees will come in the 1979 General Assembly, and despite early adverse public reaction there are those close to the subject who believe legislators will approve the increase.

State Senator Ed Renfrow, D-Johnston, is a member of the Wildlife Commission. He says the full story has not yet been publicly told.

Citizens are demanding more wildlife services such as protection, management, restocking, and refuge designation, he believes.

But these same individuals expect the sportsmen who buy the higher priced licenses to pay for all the services.

The rationale behind revoking free fishing privileges for residents of a given county using natural bait is that those who are fishing free still expect the Wildlife service to stock the streams and police the banks so their fishing will be good.

As for any discussion of a building, Renfrow said, that is probably out for now, even though the agency feels like it has been cheated in past years. The service put up $200,000 for a floor in the Motor Vehicles Building which it could call its own. It was then booted and moved to another state building. Then, the General Assembly decided to start charging rent, and the agency now pays $100,000 per year rent and feels that it originally bought its own space and ought not be charged such a fee.

The nut of it, says Renfrow who pledges that the sportsmen will be heard from on the matter is that expenses are rising while revenue is not — thus, it is a simple case of raising fees or cutting services which he says are already too slim.

Sunday Morning Notes

Mistakes do happen, but one which occurred about a week ago shook up the lives of Linda O'Conner, owner of Happily Ever After on the Mall, and Linda Threewitts, who works there.

"I blame it on George Coffman (Coffman's Mens Wear)," says Linda Threewitts.

The toy store received a shipment of masks and when George saw them he suggested that the two young ladies wear them to Biggs Drug Store at the corner of Third and the Mall where many business people gather for coffee during the morning.

It seemed like a good idea at the time and the two Lindas did just that. They picked out two gorrilla masks and everyone at the drug store thought it was funny.

As they left the drug store the two saw there were no customers in First State Bank across the mall. They know the people who work there well, so on impulse they decided they would pull on the masks and walk in

"We would have never gone in if there had been any customers there," Linda Threewitts said.

At any rate they stooped down at the arch way and pulled on the masks. Hardly had they entered, however, before one girl in the bank recognized them and everyone broke into laughter. Linda Threewitts and Linda O'Conner immediately took off the masks and the joke should have been over . . . but not quite.

In an instant city police officer Randy Edwards entered the the door, as Linda Threewitts described it, "hand on his gun."

He expressed relief that everyone was laughing and raced to the phone to call police headquarters and call off an alert for a possible bank robbery.

He explained that he had stopped at the traffic light and saw two suspects— he couldn't determine if they were male or female — putting on masks and carrying two large bags over their shoulders.

He radioed the police station and headed to the bank.

"We're being very good now and laying low," says Linda Threewitts. "The police were nice and came down with the laws about masks."

"We're not going to do anything like that again," laughed Mrs. Threewitts. "Can you imagine sitting in court and telling the judge we just wanted to show them the masks?"

The two ladies have had a lot of comments since however.

There was an offer from one man to be their "wheel man" (getaway driver).

Someone else offered a pack house as a hideout.

There have been any number of inquiries about their next "job."

To which the ladies reply, "Never."

Italy's Lady Barber

ROME (AP) — Like Figaro, Italy's first lady barber finds herself wanted here, there, everywhere, all at once, for affairs of the head and the heart.

40 Years Ago Today

October 1, 1938

Discontinuance of the rural school through consolidation was argued pro and con last night at the third and final public meeting of the commission appointed to make a study of the North Carolina school system and make recommendations to the next General Assembly.

The meeting was held in the high school auditorium and despite the rainy weather a large crowd attended. Dr. Julian S. Miller, editor of the "Charlotte Observer", presided over the session as chairman. J. H. Rose, superintendent of the Greenville school system, is a member of the commission composed of eight men and one woman, high in education and industrial circles of the state.

Several Greenville citizens took part in the discussions, which included, besides consolidation, vocational training, a state-wide twelfth grade, teacher's salaries, allotment of teachers by enrollment (instead of the present consideration of the average daily attendance), need for more "training for living", which would provide for more training in music, art and literature, a unified county-wide tax-rate, which has been under consideration in this county, and other problems.

Public Forum

Letters submitted for Public Forum must be limited to 300 words.

To the editor:

In reference to the Public Works Bond Vote appeal that was in the Wednesday, Sept. 27 paper, I would like to make the following comments: I have visited the Public Works Department on numerous occasions, and I have never seen any congestion of vehicles or equipment as was shown in the picture of the vote appeal. My visits were always during normal working hours. It has been my observation that, since all employees except supervisors and administrative staff, have been asked to park their personal vehicles at the top of the hill located at Third and Pitt streets, there is ample space for our Public Works Department. The area on Third Street has been designated for Public Works employee parking only. Therefore, if proper management was applied, the space on the present Public Works lot could be used adequately to meet the needs of our Public Works Department. However, from the picture on the vote appeal, it appeared there was little or no space available at Public Works. This is ridiculous! The picture made it appear the area was heavily congested. Well, this is true with any large company when people are coming to work or leaving to go home. It was obvious the picture was taken when every piece of equipment and vehicle was in, and not in its designated parking space. There is space available. Why is it not being used to its best advantage?

Furthermore, I cannot understand why, in recent months, parts of the present Public Works facility have been remodeled (by the taxpayers' money) if Public Works management was considering a bond issue for a new facility. It appears someone needs to concentrate on using the taxpayers' money more wisely. It's obvious that we need better management of Public Works and not a new facility.

Look before you vote Yes to a tax increase that is not needed or feasible.

THE INSIDE REPORT

Few Mid-Term Coattails

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

ASHEVILLE, N.C. — A jubilant Jimmy Carter swept into the Smokies of western North Carolina five days after concluding he Camp David summit to confront the difficulty of translating that personal triumph into help for embattled Democratic candidates.

On his Sept. 22 visit to Asheville, the president was radiantly self-confident and his speeches reminiscent of their 1976 pre-convention form. But it is doubtful that Mr. Carter significantly helped the candidates he came to support. The feeling in North Carolina, before and after his visit, was that the president could generate extra campaign funds here — and little more.

Presidents usually have found it difficult to affect midterm elections, and Mr. Carter has a special problem. Despite his renewed popularity after Camp David, embracing the president's liberal domestic program is risky business for Democratic candidates in an anti-tax, anti-government atmosphere.

North Carolina is especially important because of Sen. Jesse Helms, a rigidly conservative Republican targeted for defeat by the Democratic party's national hierarchy. National chairman John White has taken special interest in this Senate race, bracketing Helms with Strom Thurmond of South Carolina and John Tower of Texas as "radical right" senators to be defeated.

One problem with White's strategy is that North Carolinians simply do not regard Helms as a "radical" six years after he leaped from right-wing television commentator into the U.S. Senate. "Jesse is generally thought of as a fine, Christian gentleman even by people who don't agree with him," one prominent Democrat confided to us.

Another, bigger problem is his opponent: state insurance commissioner John Ingram, a plutocrat-baiting, Bible-quoting populist who upset banker Luther Hodges Jr. in the Democratic primary. The Democratic establishment's contempt for Ingram is typified by this private assessment by one Democratic politician close to Gov. Jim Hunt: "To be blunt, Ingram is irresponsible and demogogic."

Strength For Today

THE WRONG KEYS

People waste a lot of time in life trying to open doors with the wrong keys. Most people, for example, want to open the door to happiness. First they try the money key, then the power key, then the popularity and indulgence keys. But none of the keys fit, and the door will not open.

Other people seem to be opening doors with these keys, but on closer examination it appears that that they are just going through the motions, and the doors remain firmly locked.

What are the keys which really open the doors to contentment, happiness, and health? One of these keys is diligence. Another is self-control. There can be no doubt that the key that opens the door to popularity is thoughtfulness.

But faith is the greatest key. Anyone can have it and thereby open the door into the eternal and walk therein.

Bull In The Real Estate Field

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Merrill Lynch, the big bull of securities, is planning to become a real estate agent, and things in that fragmented industry of small, local firms might never be the same.

"We want to lead the industry in change," said Dakin B. Ferris, the Merrill Lynch & Co. executive vice president to whom the newly created operation, Merrill Lynch Realty Associates, will report.

"The state of development in the residential real estate is comparable to the securities industry in the 1940," he said, referring to the many small firms that grew, merged, or sometimes disappeared.

"We believe we're headed toward that move in real estate."

Merrill Lynch's advantages are enormous in the real estate market which, though made up of local rather than national companies, is much larger than the securities industry.

It already operates an employee relocation firm, a mortgage insurance company, and an asset management concern, and announced a couple of weeks ago that is negotiating to buy a mortgage broker.

"This is the closing of the circle in real estate," said Ferris as he sat in his 47th floor office in lower Manhattan. "It fits very naturally into our concept of being in total financial services."

Mices."

Merrill Lynch has been positioning itself for years, observing the rising prices, the 67 percent home ownership rate, the constant geographical relocation of families — and the profit potential of it.

Securities? Profitable, especially to Merrill Lynch, the biggest factor in the industry. But few people consider there might be even greater profit available in residential real estate.

"We did an in-depth study last year and estimated that $8.7 billion was paid in residential real estate brokerage commissions," said Ferris. "We think that's conservative."

That "conservative" figure, he continued, is several times larger than commissions in the total securities business, which last year amounted to about $2.7 billion.

Perhaps aware that it might be called a oull in the china shop, "the thundering herd," as Merrill Lynch is colloquially called, will enter the residential market with a "significant" but not "great" step.

"We will acquire several firms in the next six months on a geographical basis," meaning, Ferris said, that Merrill Lynch will spread its activities rather than concentrate in a single area.

Observations From Editorial Columns

Let's Build Her

Governor Hunt should proceed with his idea to have built a 160th century sailing vessel similar to the one used in the ill-fated settlement of what is now called The Lost Colony on Roanoke Island.

His proposal, in the thinking stage at the moment, is to build the ship with private donations, have it constructed in Europe, and have it sale to Roanoke Island in commemoration of the 400th anniversary of the settlement there.

It would be an exciting adventure and one sure to focus world attention on our state and early efforts to settle the new world.

It should be no more difficult to raise funds for such a project than it would be to recruit a crew of experienced sailors. Hopefully, the ship would be crewed by Tar Heels.

Perhaps the return trip would be too anti-climactic if we were to build the vessel in this country and sailed her first to Europe.

But that way we probably could raise a lot of money from people willing to book one-way passage for some of the people who go around shouting about how terrible they have found conditions in North Carolina

Let's get on with the project. — The Goldsboro News-Argus

1919 And Now

In 1919 North Carolina tobacco farmers thought they had reached heaven when they sold tobacco for $1 a pound.

This week the average price for tobacco here is more than $1.40 a pound ... but so far there hasn't been any run on silk shirts.

That $1 back in 1919 had more traveling power than the collar in 1978. — The Pilot (Southern Pines)

Rhodesia A Continuing State Dept. Disaster

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

For the past several days, the State Department has been stalling around over a small question in the matter of Rhodesia: Should visas be granted to an official delegation from the Rhodesian government seeking to visit the United States?

It is indeed a small question, but it accurately reflects the large blunders of American policy toward the beleaguered African republic. One hesitates to use superlatives, but a superlative cannot be avoided: President Carter's disastrous record vis-a-vis Rhodesia is the worst he has compiled. This is bungling beyond belief.

The matter of the visas is entirely consistent with the wretched pattern. Two weeks ago, a group of 27 United States senators, led by California's S. I. Hayakawa, extended an invitation to the transitional government at Salisbury to visit Washington. The Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole, a member of the Executive Council, promptly accepted the invitation. On September 20, Sithole, Prime Minister Ian Smith and several other top officials applied to the American consulate in Johannesburg for visas.

Such visas have been often granted in the past. By way of example, 14 black Rhodesian students, traveling on Rhodesian passports, have been granted waivers to study at Carnegie-Mellon University in Pittsburgh. It is captious nonsense— worse than captious nonsense—for State Department flunkeys to object that visas for Sithole and Smith cannot be granted without violating the United Nations resolution of sanctions. That abominable resolution has been violated in every conceivable fashion by every major nation in the world, including the United States in the matter of chrome ore imports. A flimsier excuse could scarcely be contrived.

Of course the Smith-Sithole delegation should be admitted! What has become of Mr. Carter's pious promise to promote full and free discussion in realms of foreign affairs? To deny these visas would be an act of censorship, marvelously pure and brutally simple. Such a policy would smack of suppression at its worst.

But to return to the main theme: Mr. Carter, ably assited by Ambassador Andrew Young and Assistant Secretary Richard M. Moose, has botched a Rhodesian policy so badly that rational observers must weep with anger and frustration.

The whole business is incredible. Mr. Carter nine months ago was offered a choice of courses. He could support the transitional government; or he could support that government's terrorist enemies.

The transitional government is committed to orderly, democratic, supervised elections to name a predominantly black administration. The timetable for total transition to black rule is not as swift as the most zealous apostles of change might desire, but the timetable is clear and specific. The four co-chairmen of the transitional government are pro-Western moderates. They are committed to the preservation of civil liberties, due process of law, multi-racial and multi-party government.

The two factions of terrorists are led by Robert Mugabe and Joshua Nkomo. They hold democracy in total contempt. Neither will promise elections; neither will promise civil liberties. It was Nkomo's guerrillas who shot down the unarmed civilian transport on September 3, and it was Nkomo's terrorists, using Russian automatic weapons, who slaughtered survivors of the crash. Earlier, Mugave's murderers had massacred 37 white missionaries or members of their families.

Unbelievably, Mr. Carter has spurned the pro-Western transitional government and has insisted that the terrorists be given a major role in the formation of an entirely new regime. The president's apparent theory—— a wholly undemonstrable theory——is that Mugabe and Nkomo command overwhelming support among Rhodesia's black population. This is mere conjecture. Outside the principal cities of Salisbury and Bulawayo, the country remains primarily tribal in its social structure. The cause of nationalism, as such, matters little to the older, less educated inhabitants.

There can be little conjecture about the course of events if Mugabe and Nkomo, jointly or separately, accede to power. Chaotic, one-party rule is the prospect, in the bloody fashion of Angola and Mozamvique. It is to plead for support against this bleak future that Smith, Sithole and the others want to visit our shores. Every principle of American tradition cries out to let them be heard.

SORT OF A PERMANENT, TWO-FRONT WAR!

Evans-Novak...

declaring "this fight against the special interests." He says nothing about inflation, refuses to take a position on tax limitation or the Kemp-Roth tax reduction bill and concentrates on blasting Helms as "the $5 million man" because of his bountiful campaign war chest. To establishment Democrats, that will not unseat Jesse Helms.

The purpose of the president's visit was to put a few coins in Ingram's empty treasury. President Carter and Gov. Hunt nudged their rich friends, appalled by Ingram, into buying $500a-couple tickets to a steak dinner at the distinctly non-populist Biltmore Estate in Asheville. Added to the program was an airport rally for freshman Rep. Lamar Gudger, facing a tight reelection battle.

Next came the customary bickering between the White House and local politicians. The president's men demanded that the Gudger rally be held at the airport instead of downtown Asheville, where a much bigger crowd would have gathered. They also insisted the president's speech include a proposal to make North Carolina a "rural laboratory," which Democrats here correctly forecast would be lost in the hoopla.

Such trivia was eclipsed by the Camp David summit. Ingram became markedly more enthusiastic about the president, proclaiming: "This week we have seen the handiwork of (a) great president of the United States who is leading us out of moral depression." Hunt, a long-time Carter booster, believes Ingram should now tie his campaign to the president.

But Helms' blanket opposition to Carter legislation is so popular that Democrats have stopped calling him "Sen. No." Rep. Gudger's Republican opponent, Buncombe County board chairman Curtis Ratcliff, in a speech the day of the president's visit attacked Gudger's 70 percent pro-Carter voting record..

Hunt's proposed solution: identify with the budget-balancing, government-limiting Carter. The president made that course easier in Asheville by reaffirming his pledge "to get government's nose out of the people's business." But like Ingram, he sidestepped the public's preoccupations by not mentioning inflation or tax reduction.

After forgetting to acknowledge Ingram at the airport rally, the president was lavish for him at the Biltmore Estate fund-raiser. "He (Ingram) may not be as sophisticated as some of you," Mr. Carter told the well-heeled, cocktail-sipping audience, "but neither am I." He then proceeded to draw some strained comparisons between Jimmy Carter and John Ingram.

But the president did not give Ingram's supporters what they wanted most: a frontal attack on Helms. Mr. Carter did not mention him. The general perception that Ingram trails for the Senate and Gudger could lose for Congress was left unchanged by the presidential visit. Even after Camp David, midterm coattails are hard to find.

Tend me, cries this — a love letter, whispers that. Figaro here, Figaro there!"

If a sequel to this famous opera is needed, Sandra Kennedy can provide the libretto from first hand experience. Since qualifying as Italy's first licensed lady barber 11 years ago, the tall Australian blonde has found herself in the role of "priest, confessor, psychiatrist and hair stylist" to any number of Italian pop stars, soccer stars, such jet set celebrities as Peter Lawford, Gore Vidal, Anthony Burgess, Morris West and more than a few priests.

"Priests are very vain about their appearance, really quite fastidious," said Ms. Kennedy, lathering up an alien journalistic scalp. "And men in general are much more concerned about good grooming than women, especially when it comes to a manicure and keeping appointments."

An opera aria, but nothing to do with Mozart's or Rossini's Figaro, drifted from the hi-fi speaker through the beam-ceilinged little shop that once had been a wine cellar and more lately a furniture factory in Trastevere — literally: across the Tiber — in Rome's artists quarter. A row of five hair dryers and a sprinkling of fashion magazines among the naughty nudie publications showed that women (Carol Baker and Elizabeth Taylor, for instance) also called here to have their coiffures attended.

"Men are just as likely to spill out their personal problems to their hair dresser as women," said the female Figaro who trained as a barber in her native Sydney but always dreamed of moving to Italy.

"A man with his head wet feels rather helpless," said Sandra, hosing down the head at hand. "He's not in command anymore. He begins to talk about his troubles: the boss this, the job that. Then when he asks a woman's opinion on why women act in a certain way, you know he's got wife or girfriend problems. Out it all comes, just like with women, only you don't see the tears."

The lady barber-confessor effectively cuts off any dissent by clamping a steaming towel over the other end of the conversation.

"I always know when Gore has been under too much pressure," she continued. "The texture of his hair tells me. The fossils are fed by blood from the stomach, you know."

Since her certification in the tonsorial profession in the city where Figaro made his debut in 1816, Sandra has acquired a few female competitors but not too many. "In Italy today, most women's hair stylists are still men," she explained. "It's just not a field women go into very much, although everything else is opening up and they're talking about women priests."

FACING SOUTH

STUART, Fla. — Many people talk about rehabilitation of prisoners. Jo Davidson, of Stuart, Florida, is doing what she can to reach across prison walls with a message of shared humanity and warmth.

Mrs. Davidson, 48, a former stage, nightclub and TV singer, and now a part-time psychotherapist, is the founder and head of a pen-pal organization for prisoners who need someone to communicate with in the outside world

The organization, called Friendship Circle, was born in mid-1975 when Jo Davidson took requests for correspondence from 40 inmates of the Martin County Jail in Stuart.

At that time, Davidson had no idea what she was setting in motion. As prisoners transferred from prison to prison, news of the service spread like wildfire. Soon she had to ask friends, neighbors and organizations to help respond to the ever-increasing letters. Now she and her assistants receive hundreds of letters a year from prisoners in Florida and as far north as Ohio and as far west as Colorado.

Davidson is a frail woman whose successful singing career was shortened by chronic asthma, from which she still suffers. She conceived of the pen-pal service after volunteering to sing for the Martin County Jail prisoners on Christmas Day, 1973. "The jail was filled with God's presence," recalls Mrs. Davidson, who has sung in Las Vegas. "You could hear a pin drop."

Since then, she has gone to jail several times during holidays and other events to sing unaccompanied a versatile repertoire of songs — popular, blues, inspirational, show tunes and hymns. She always takes along gifts of fruit (especially apples, upon the recommendation of her then five-year-old and apple-loving son, Chad), vegetables and reading matter.

One day it occurred to her that the inmates would feel less alienated toward society, and at the same time be able to express some of their frustrations, if they were able to exchange letters with persons from the outside.

Davidson did not come by her interest in prison lately; it was bred into her. As a child she'd heard numerous discussions about prisoners when her father was a member of the pardon board at the penitentiary in the Canal Zone, where she was born.

Speaking of prisoners in general, Jo Davidson says "I have always had great empathy for them. To me there's no one that's hopeless. I don't judge these people. They need to learn about love and how to love."

Her personal encounters with the Martin County inmates have merely reinforced her views. "When I look in their faces," she says, "I see the same God that is in me and in all of us."

"I'm not saying that we'll reform everybody. Some we reach and some we don't. But at least they know there's someone out there who cares they're alive and has concern for them as individuals."

She notes that "in a few cases, severe depression has been alleviated by our letters — in one instance a suicidal impulse, following the death of a prisoner's father, was checked.

Our writers act as surrogate mothers, grandmothers, sisters and brothers. Some go so far as to visit their prisoner pen-pals. But most remain anonymous, using their first names only and our address, Friendship Circle, Box 1676, Stuart, Florida 33494."

In one exceptional instance, however, the Friendship Circle led to more than simple friendship. One of the writers, according to Mrs. Davidson, married her prisoner pen-pal when he was released. "I had the pleasure of standing up as a witness and singing "The Lord's Prayer" at their wedding," she proudly exclaims.

Although Friendship Circle now includes close to 50 writers who regularly correspond with about 200 prisoners, its founders insist it is not enough. "I need help to write these people," says Jo Davidson, who pays all expenses out of her own pocket. "I don't need money. I really need help, volunteers."

United Way

Bemused By Witches And God At The Table

Our daughter's favorite subject is witches. They hold a very graphic fascination for her. Every time I turn around, she's asking me to draw a picture of a witch cooking a little girl in a cauldron of boiling water. And when she's not bugging me, she's strutting around the house in her little pink sunsuits chanting, "Double, double, toil and trouble..." I swear that if she leans over my bed in the predawn hours and cackles in my ear, they'll have to take me away in a straightjacket.

Her second favorite subject is God. Now I don't know what this says about our child-rearing practices, but I'd like to point out in my defense that I'm a lot better at sketching witches on yellow legal pads than I am at drawing God.

Of course, the very fact that I cannot describe God's personal appearance does make him an interesting subject for speculation, and when Meg found out that he lived "in the sky", she was doubly fascinated. But Phillip opened a can of worms when one night after their recitation of "Now I Lay Me Down to Sleep" he explained to her that people who die go to Heaven to live with God.

The next night at supper she announced that she had died during the night and that God had taken her to Heaven for a visit. "He looked like Spiderman," she added with relish.

"God does not look like Spiderman," I said. "And he didn't take you to Heaven, honey. Once you're in Heaven, you stay there forever."

"Why?" she asked.

The subject of witches was looking more and more appealing. I reached back into my scanty theological resources for an answer that would satisfy her and finally said, "Because God loves us so much that he only puts us here on earth for a little while and then he wants us to come live with him where we can always be good and happy."

"And where you won't yell at me?"

"Yes," I sighed.

"Then why can't I go now?"

"Because I need you here," I said. "I would miss you terribly if you were to die."

"But won't you go with me to Heaven?"

"She certainly hopes so," Phillip chimed in.

Meg was quiet for a few minutes after this, then asked, "If God lives in Heaven, how can he hear my prayers?"

"Because God is in Heaven and down here with us too," Phillip said. "He is everywhere."

I could have choked him for introducing metaphysics to a child who was not yet three. Meg peered around the kitchen and said, "Does he look like a dinosaur?"

"I doubt it," I sighed. "We don't know what God looks like. We can't see Him. Now eat your supper."

"But he's here now?" she persisted.

"Yes," I said. "Now eat your supper."

Instead, she climbed down from her chair, went through several kitchen drawers, and came back with a napkin and a spoon.

"What are you doing, young lady?" Phillip asked.

Little Time Left For GOP To Convince Public

By George Gallup

PRINCETON, N.J. — With fewer than six weeks remaining before election day, the Republican party has failed to convince voters that it is any better able than the rival Democratic party to handle a problem it hoped to turn to its advantage -taxation.

In the latest Gallup Poll, just 25 percent of Americans say the GOP can do a better job of holding down taxes while 31 percent name the Democratic party. Almost half the public, 44 percent, either sees no difference in the ability of the two major parties to handle this issue (33 percent) or is undecided (11 percent).

In fact, the GOP continues to suffer from a serious "issue gap." Not only do voters give the Democrats the benefit of the doubt on this supposedly Republican issue, but they credit the Democraticc party as better able to deal with three other critical questions — reducing federal spending, dealing with inflation, and handling relations with the Soviet Union.

With six in 10 Americans naming inflation as the most important problem facing the nation, it would seem a particularly opportune time for the GOP to take advantage of this issue, but if present attitudes hold through election day this will not be the case.

Currently, 31 percent of Americans say the Democratic party is better able to handle the problem of inflation and only 23 percent give the nod to the Republicans. Another 35 percent see no difference between the parties and 11 percent are undecided.

Another so-called Republican issue — reducing federal spending — is turning out to be nothing of the sort. On this question the Democrats hold a 30-23 percent lead. Again, about half the public either perceive no difference in the abilities of the parties or are undecided on the issue.

If anything, the Republicans may be losing some ground on this issue. In a similar survey conducted in March there was virtually no difference in the percentages citing either of the two parties as best able to cut federal spending. At that time 28 percent named the Democrats and 26 percent the Republicans.

Finally, the public also prefers the Democratic party over the GOP as better able to handle relations with the Soviet Union — the one foreign policy issue that is virtually sure to persist during the coming years.

On this question the Democrats hold a 29-22 percent lead with 33 percent saying there is no difference between the two parties and 16 percent undecided.

This inability to convince voters of its superior ability to deal with the nation's important problems is, no doubt, a major factor in Gallup Poll surveys showing that the GOP will gain few, if any, seats in the House this year.

Assuming voter intentions do not change dramatically during the closing weeks of the campaign, the political composition of the House of Representatives will likely remain much as it is today — about 2-to-1 Democratic.

One Bright Spot

The one bright spot for the GOP in the survey reported today is the fact that on all four of the issues tested, political independents — who account for about one-third of the electorate — are either evenly divided in their attitudes (as in the cases of taxation and inflation) or see the Republicans as better able to deal with the problem.

Mitigating against this, however, is the fact that independents tend to vote less frequently in elections than do those affiliated with either the Democratic or Republican party.

Alternatives Offered By Extended Day School

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

The Extended Day School is a basic program that provides an alternative to students who have problems in conventional classroom situations — a means of continuing their education within the framework of a program designed to meet their individual needs and at the same time prepare them for the realities of the working world.

This year, a total of 125 students are attending the Extended Day program.

Johannes Bleicher, principal of the school, and Tony Gray, an instructor specializing in social work and counselling, talked about a few of the many programs available to the students.

"One of the things I'd like to stress, what I feel is a key to our success, is the cooperation we receive from other agencies," Bleicher commented. He mentioned agencies and groups at East Carolina University and the Pitt County Mental Health Center as two of the prime contributors.

A specific example cited by Gray is that of the Group Counselling Session. "This is an ongoing program," Gray remarked. "We have a social worker from the Mental Health Center work with ten students once a week. Each session will be for three months."

Because the student population numbers some girls who are also young mothers, one of the programs being started and for which Bleicher and Gray both expressed high hopes for is the "Nursery-Infant Care Center."

"The main notion behind this program," Bleicher said, "is the importance of the mother as a participant, not only in childbirth preparation and infant care, but in parent behavior later.

"We're going to keep babies of the students in the center," he added, "not just as a service to keep these young mothers in school, but as a training laboratory."

Gray added that adequate safeguards have been taken to ensure proper care for the young children. "There will be a full-time employee, an adult supervisor as well as a staff member on hand to give basic training. CETA funds are being used for the adult supervisor. Additionally, interns from the School of Nursing, ECU, will be utilized in certain areas of the infant care program."

Bleicher said "we hope to get the Medical School involved in the infant care facility sometime in the near future."

Gray touched on another new phase of work being carried on at the Extended Day School. "We are the site chosen for Project Care," Gray said. "This is funded by Community Alternative monies. As a result of the Creech Bill, young status offenders who are essentially truants, will no longer be sent off to training schools.

"Instead," he continued, "Project Care has been set up to provide an attempt to deal with truant problems, especially children in the sixth, seventh, and eighth grade levels."

Bleicher noted that "at this point, we are working the program through a regular teacher and a recreational therapist. Together, they have formulated a structured academic course that is strong on the recreation element."

Project Care in this stage contains about a dozen youngsters from both the Greenville and Pitt County School systems.

Many of the time-tested early programs of the school continue to show good results. Mainly, they are vocationally oriented, designed to prepare these students for gainful work when school days are over.

"An example of a work program," Gray commented, "is that we have five students working in janitorial, maintenance, and custodial positions. This way, they get paid for their work and at the same time come to school."

CETA funds finances one student who is working as an attendant for children in city schools who are handicapped by cerebral palsy. "This is a paid position that will last for the duration of the school year," Gray said.

Bleicher and Gray both feel that one of the most successful programs last year was a Drug Awareness Symposium. "These were held once a week for two hours over a five week period," Gray explained.

"Among topics covered were health and drugs, alcohol and your mind, drugs and the law, and drugs and your personal values. I honestly feel this program was beneficial to the students."

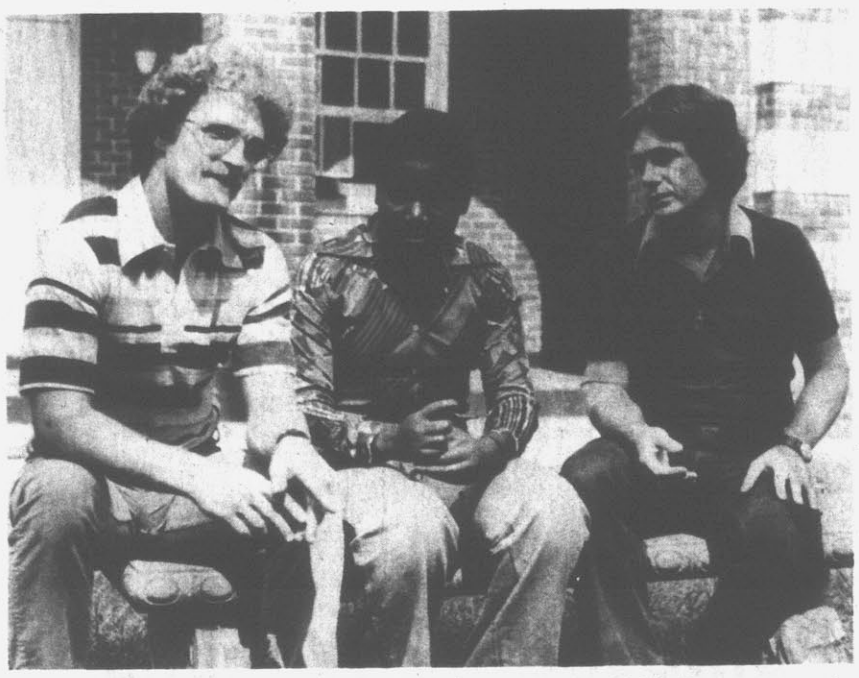

"And in this program," he added, "we had a fine sense of community effort. Altogether, there were 15 to 20 agencies That included law enforcement, mental health, social welfare and other agencies and people."

On the lighter side, students in the Extended Day School at this time are having great fun in a joint art project, that of decorating the student lounge.

"We assigned each of the students taking part a section of wall on which to paint a mural," Dawn Cherry, the art instructor remarked. "The mural is of their choice, though they each were required to make a design in advance and work from that."

Friends Of Library Met Last Wednesday

ECU News Bureau

Approximately 100 persons attended the first annual dinner meeting Wednesday of "Friends of the Library," a newly-formed support organization for the East Carolina University library.

The event, held at the Greenville Country Club, drew local citizens, representatives of area businesses and civic groups, and members of the ECU faculty and staff.

ECU Chancellor Thomas Brewer was featured speaker. Others appearing on the program were Prof. Henry Ferrell, president of the ECU Faculty Senate; Dr. Eugene Brunelle, director of library services at ECU; and Anne Briley, head of the serials department at ECU's Joyner Library.

A proposed charter for the "Friends of the Library" was approved, and three executive officers were elected: John Howard, president; Nelson Crisp, president-elect; and Jane Pridgen, secretary-treasurer.

Serving with the officers as members of the Board of Directors will be Dr. Andrew Best, Betty Brewer, Morris Brody, Dr. Joseph Congleton, John Farley, Rev. William Hadden, Dr. Virginia Herrin, Ann Mattox, Nancy Middleton, Dr. Hugh Patterson, Ovid Pierce, Dr. David Stevens and Dr. Robert Williams.

Persons interested in helping with this effort are invited to join the organization. Information is available from the officers and directors or from the administrative office of Joyner Library, telephone 757-6514.

Fiji Tour Cancelled

FUAFUTI, Tuvalu (AP) — Britain's Princess Margaret is ill with a fever of 104, has cancelled her visits to Tuvalu and Fiji and will be flown to Australia to recover, her private secretary said today.

The 48-year-old princess was in Tuvalu representing her sister Queen Elizabeth II. The little coral atoll becomes independent of Britain at midnight.

"Princess Margaret is quite obviously incapable of carrying out the remainder of her engagements on Tuvalu and her visit to Fiji has been cancelled," her secretary, Lord Napier, said.

PC MHA To Hold Picnic

The Mental Health Association in Pitt County will hold a picnic for Pitt County patients of Cherry Hospital Thursday at noon at the Wildlife Club near Belvoir.

This is an opportunity for entertainment away from the institution for Cherry Patient, Mental Health Association executive secretary, Virgie Easterling said.

The picnic lunch will be catered by Alton Warren. Walter Wilder, lutist and guitarist who is artist-in-residence at Pitt Technical Institute, will furnish entertainment, along with a magician from McDonalds. In case of inclement weather, the event will go on inside the Wildlife Club building.

Could Have Ignored Collision Alert

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A collision alert system that sounded a dozen times a day could have been ignored by traffic controllers when it signaled the nation's worst air crash was imminent, a federal investigator says.

"If that is creating an acceptance of the signal, we sure want to learn that and see what perhaps can be done," Brad Dunbar, a National Transportation Safety Board spokesman, said Friday.

Investigators have determined that a "conflict alert" system at the Miramar Naval Air Station radar facility sounded 17 seconds before Monday's collision of a Pacific Southwest Airlines 727 jetliner and a single-engine Cessna 172.

However, Miramar controllers did not attempt to notify the tower at Lindbergh Field of the alert until after the collision had occurred.

"The controllers didn't believe it was a collision situation," Dunbar said. He said the system sounded a second time about 14 seconds after the collision, presumably triggered by the jetliner dropping below the minimum safe altitude.

Miramar controllers did call Lindbergh after the second alert, Dunbar said, but by then the two planes had already collided and plunged to the ground.

The crash killed all 135 persons aboard the PSA jet and the two occupants of the Cessna. Officials earlier had estimated that another 13 persons died on the ground when bodies and flaming debris hurdled down on them. However, San Diego County Deputy Coroner J.D. Johnson said late Friday that only eight persons have been positively accounted for as ground victims, making the confirmed death toll 145 instead of 150.

Johnson said, however, more victims still could turn up as a result of fingerprint and dental evaluations.

Dunbar said investigators have determined that at least four persons were in the cockpit of the 727 before it crashed, but said he could not confirm reports that the flight crew had been joking back and forth before the collision. The cockpit of a 727 has two jump seats in addition to accommodations for the three-man flight crew.

Investigators have reconstructed part of the jetliner's right wing, the apparent impact point, in an attempt to learn more about the moment of collision. However, chief NTSB investigator Rudolph Kapustin said it might be days before anything is determined from reconstruction efforts.

"They're working with big corn flakes," Kapustin said of the rubble remaining of the jetliner.

Both planes were headed in roughly the same direction when the crash occurred, and the jetliner overtook the Cessna, Dunbar said.

"We can say now they were both on easterly headings," Dunbar said. "We know that the (PSA) plane was closing from behind and, of course, he was closing because his speed was approximately twice that of the Cessna."

KKK Youth Corps

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Dr. James A. Adams, superintendent of the Winston-Salem-Forsyth County schools, said he recently received a letter saying that capters of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan Youth Corps had been formed at five county schools and more groups were planned.

The letter was signed by a man who identified himself as the Klan's information officer. Adams said he replied to the letter asking for more information.

School policy prohibits secret groups or groups that discriminate racially, he said.

Employed Handicapped Person...

"When I first started to work her," Jenny said, "my fellow employees tended to baby me a bit. They would get my coffee for me or get papers off a high shelf. But when they realized I could do it just as easy myself they stopped doing it."

Jenny was 20 years old when she became handicapped. She can still walk some but uses a wheelchair because "when I'm in a hurry, it is easier that way". When she sits at her desk, she gets out of the wheelchair and sits in a desk chair.

Born and raised in eastern North Carolina, Jenny is married to local insurance agent, Bill Talley. "I already had some exposure to insurance work before I even began working here."

The local Employment Security Commission has placed 266 handicapped person in jobs, out of 436 applications made by handicapped persons in the past year, according to Louise Jernagan of the ECS.

"We work with various agencies in trying to find jobs for their clients who have already gone through a rehabilitation or vocational therapy training," Jernagan said.

Atlanta Prison Investigated

By JACK STILLMAN
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Two former inmates at the U.S. Penitentiary in Atlanta have described the huge prison as a hotbed of heroin smuggling, murder and other violence.

Truman Fagg, now serving 45 years at Leavenworth for bank robbery, testified that supervision is so lax at the Atlanta prison that violence is a way of life.

"With the amount of supervision they have ... it wouldn't be very difficult to get at somebody if you wanted to," he said Friday at a hearing of the Senate Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations.

The hearings, which are to continue Monday, are being directed by Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., vice chairman of the subcommittee.

Nunn asked Fagg what he could recommend to curb the availability of narcotics at the penitentiary.

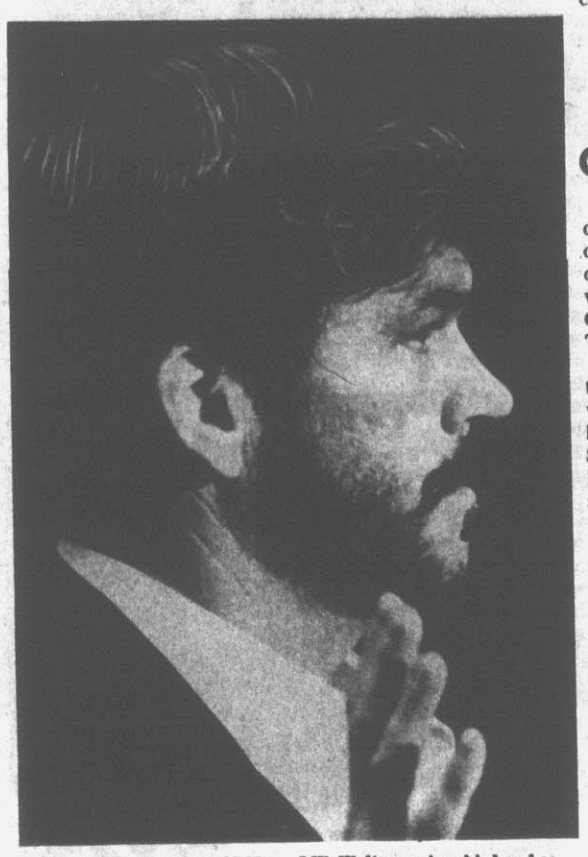

"You'd have to replace a great many employees, or you'd have to shake down the employees every day," Fagg said.

Asked how to curb the availability of weapons, Fagg said: "I don't think you can do anything about that, because if you want to get to somebody you can find ways to do it. It just depends on how bad you want to kill them."

Both Fagg and J.W. Walters, now serving a sentence for bank robbery at Butner, N.C., testified that inmates within the huge Atlanta penitentiary can move freely almost anywhere they want from about 6:30 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Walters said one inmate told him that he had stabbed Franklin Klien, another inmate, to death Nov. 16, 1975, for about $1,200 he found on the body. No charges have been filed in that case.

Walters also testified he obtained heroin that had been smuggled into the penitentiary by a food service employee, John Carroll, who denied the charges when he appeared before the subcommittee later.

FIRST WITNESS SWORN . . . J.W. Walters raises his hand as he is sworn in as the first witness to testify before a Senate subcommittee meeting in Atlanta Friday investigating conditions at the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary where ten inmates have been killed since Oct. 76. Walters is a former inmate at the prison and was escorted by federal marshals. (AP Laserphoto)

State University, She has an interest in political science and English literature. L. C. McMillan, NMSC vice president, who is responsible for the general management of the Achievement Program, said "It is our hope that these young men and women will have an opportunity to attend the college of their choice, and to enroll in studies and pursue a career in the field of their choice after college."

From these 1,500 seminfinalists, about 1,300 are expected to become finalists and compete for at least 575 Achievement Scholarships to be offered in the spring of 1979.

Masami Kiwano's Cycling Goal Is 70 Countries In Six Years

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Sunday Editor

A little more than two years ago, on July 26, 1976, Masami (Sammy) Kiwano said farewell to friends and family in his home town of Oita, on the northern shore of Kyushu, Japan's southernmost major island.

Kiwano's goal is a daring, ambitious one, even for a sturdily built, 28-year old bachelor in prime health — to make a cycling tour of 70 countries of the world in a six-year period.

"My plan is to arrive in Bombay, India, late in 1982," Kiwano explained in his carefully acquired English. "When I do, I will go home slowly, on some boat."

Rest Stop In Greenville

Just now, Kiwano is staying over in Greenville for a breathing spell, the guests of Troy and Yoshiko Dillinder. Mrs. Dillinder, like Kiwano, is a native of Kyushu Island. However, the Dillinders only met Kiwano when he passed through Roanoke Rapids last December where they lived at the time.

"When Sammy and Troy met, they quickly became good friends," Mrs. Dillinder explained. "And I think Sammy likes my cooking. When he came to be with us here in Greenville, I made him throw away peanut butter he had in a jar, and cooked him some real good Japanese food. You cannot believe how much he can eat," she laughed.

Kiwano agreed, but added that "peanut butter has been my most eaten food in the states. It is easy to make peanut butter sandwich when you travel." He explained that limited funds "do not permit that I eat in restaurants. That is too expensive."

At the moment, Kiwano is trying to make a decision on whether to push on or to remain in Greenville long enough to find temporary work to replenish his funds. From the beginning, he has included in his plans the necessity of an occasional work stop.

"I think maybe he will stay awhile," Troy Dillinder commented. "He really seems to like the people he has met here, says there's a friendliness that he enjoys."

"One lady he met gave Sammy a haircut," Mrs. Dillinder smiled. "He needed it too, you should have seen him before, he looked a mess. Another thing," she added, "I think Sammy has adopted Troy, like a father away from home."

The Trip To Date

When Kiwano left his semi-tropical, bamboo rich native shores, his first destination was the country-continent of Australia. "When I finish travel in Australia, I next went to New Zealand," Kiwano explained.

"From there, I go to the island of American Somoa, then to Hawaii."

The Pacific leg of his itinerary completed, Kiwano arrived in the U.S. at Los Angeles.

"At Los Angeles, I rode into Canada, to Alaska, after, across Canada to Quebec and into the U.S. for the east coast."

It was on the east coast leg of his trip that Kiwano met the Dillinders last December.

Turning south from North Carolina, Kiwano continued along the coast (he only smiled when asked if the coastal route was to avoid cycling in more mountainous areas); swung across the Gulf states, then entered Mexico.

Problems In Guatemala

"In Guatemala I come into trouble," Kiwano explained. "There was some shooting a revolution I think, and one night they make trouble for me because I do not know about curfew. I don't like this, so I come back to the U.S."

Kiwano has to make a decision on whether to attempt to include other Central American countries south of Guatemala — Honduras, El Salvador, Nicaragua, Costa Rica and Panama — or to by-pass these countries and to enter South America at another point.

Although the Guatemalan incident has been the only major stumbling block in staying with his itinerary, Kiwano has had a few other harrying moments.

"One time in Canada, I hear a noise in the woods and soon big bears come out so near to me, like over there," he pointed to his bike about 30 feet away. "I think they look hungry, so I don't stay."

Then in Savannah, Georgia, came the one thing any long-distance cyclist most fears — being hit by a motorized vehicle. "A car hit me and it cost me $300 to get my bike fixed," he remarked.

Well Equipped Bike

Kiwano's bicycle is Japanese made, a 15-gear Panasonic. "It is standard make," he said, "not special made for the trip."

After two years plus spent on the road, Kiwano has the arrangement of his traveling gear down to a fine art. "A frame encircling the front wheel and a similar one around the rear wheel provides points of attachment for four sturdy canvas packs. Another canvas pack is in front of the handlebars, and his bedroll fits on the luggage carrier behind the seat. "Here," he indicated a square plastic water jar strapped to the frame "is important piece. I am careful to have water for crossing desert, like in Australia and in the west of the U.S."

A small kit for toilet articles and first-aid also attached to the frame completes his equipment. "All of it weighs about 120 pounds, I think," Kiwano noted.

Physically Conditioned

An adventure such as Kiwano's calls for physical stamina as well as a mental determination, and Kiwano seems well endowed with both. "This trip I plan for a long time, the years when I was a teacher," Kiwano stated.

"I work with my body in teaching, as I teach at a large recreation place, teaching students how to swim, and gymnastics."

"Sammy also holds a third degree Black Belt in Judo and a second degree one in Karate," Dillinder added. "Since he has been with us he stays in practice, exercising. It amazes me, the ease with which he does one-hand push-ups, and he has unbelievably powerful legs."

Plans Book

Although Kiwano's six-year adventure is essentially the fulfilment of a youthful dream to see the world at a leisurely pace, he hopes later to capture his impressions for the benefit of armchair travelers.

"He is modest about his plans," Mrs. Dillinder remarked, "but I know he is excited about writing a book when he has finished this trip."

Young Farmer Draws In Spare Time

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Sunday Editor

Lloyd Payne, a Pamlico County farmer living in the Maribel community near Bayboro, typifies countless young people in America who would, if circumstances were different, make art their profession.

"I've been drawing on my own ever since my junior high school days," Payne answered when asked when he first became interested in art. "I started out and still concentrate mostly on drawing people, most of them like figures in cartoons."

A native of Brockport, a town near Rochester, New York, Payne has been living in Pamlico County for nearly five years. He works on the Sodoma Farms, cultivating and harvesting cabbage, potatoes, and corn. He is married to a local girl, Brenda Armstrong and they have a one and one-half year old daughter, Christie.

"Drawing is what I do when I have a little spare time," Payne stated. "I like working in black and white, and sometimes in color. Brenda always wants me to color whatever I draw, but some things I leave uncolored, like pencil drawings."

A slender, sun-bronzed man, Payne is reluctant to dwell at length on his experiences in Viet Nam. He served two and part of a third tour of duty in various areas of that embattled country — in 1969, 1970 and part of 1971.

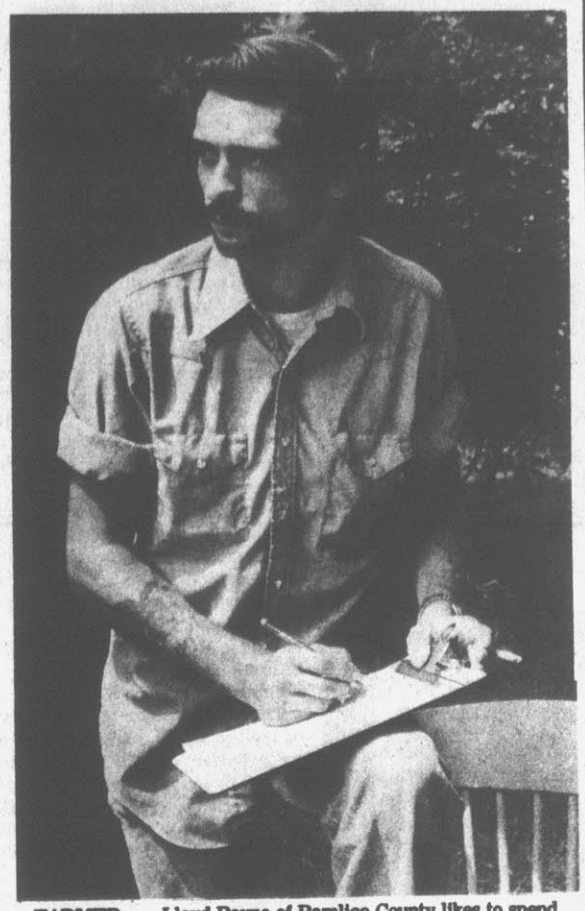

"Things were pretty rough there," he says quietly whenever anyone presses him for details. He was wounded and returned to the states before completing a third tour. All in all, this time in Viet Nam accounted for a major portion of his four and one-half years in the Army.

Though he owes a significant debt of influence to cartoons and comic strips, his work shows a flair for depicting people that is his own.

And like other untrained artists, he hopes someday to "have a chance to get some formal training. I subscribed to a correspondence course some time back," he stated, "but it turned out to be a rip off. They got my money and I got nothing in return."

"Some day," he added "I plan to get some training, that is, if things work out."

In 1918, the British ship Galway Castle was torpedoed in the Atlantic, leaving 189 dead.

Benefit Art Auction

FIVE PAINTINGS AND A CARPET — For the benefit auction of the East Carolina Art Society to be held in conjunction with the Fine Arts Ball on Saturday, Oct. 7, five paintings and a carpet have been donated. Shown above is a detail from a watercolor contributed by western N.C. painter Philip Moose. Also contributed are a watercolor of fishermen by Beaufort artist Charles McNeill; and three works by Greenville artists — a watercolor of a coastal fishing village by Bob Pittman; a Charles Kesler watercolor incorporating figurative and abstract areas; and a trial proof black and white print by Matt Smartt entitled Blueprint. Fieldcrest Mills donated a figured rug.

Book News

FROM SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

By June Parker

Because of the special interest in the past several years in the media, Sheppard Memorial Library has recently selected several new books dealing with the subject. SCRIBBLE SCRIBBLE: NOTES ON THE MEDIA by Nora Ephron is a collection of stories and anecdotes similar to her highly successful CRAZY SALAD. This collection reveals her fascination with all the forms of journalism—whether printed or broadcast. She discusses an unwritten journalistic code of ethics and the media's rights according to the first amendment and describes her disdain for the Haldeman — CBS episode involving checkbook journalism and relates the journalistic problems which Daniel Schorr created. She also talks about developments in the media such as restaurant critics, the new porn, television commericals, news magazine cover stories, and the coverage of political conventions. The stories range from describing the ridiculous to examining important issues facing the media.

A second book, MAXINE CHESHIRE REPORTER by Maxine Cheshire with John Greenya, is an autobiography of a woman who combines the flair of gossip columnist with the intuition and perserverance of a true reporter who double-checks her stories and protects the sources that she has built up through the years. Maxine Cheshire; born in Harlan, Kentucky where her father who was a union lawyer was marked for political assassination several times; grew up quick-witted and inquisitive. In 1954, she started writing for the society pages of the WASHINGTON POST and she credits herself as being one of the persons who upgraded these pages from tea-party chit chat to political misdeeds of the glamorous and powerful. She herself became famous for her stories about the First Ladies. Her stories of the Nixon times such as the unreported gifts from foreign governments, especially the jewels given to the Nixon women are enlightening; however, her best stories in this book are about the Kennedys Her recent work on the "Koreagate" scandal has proved that she is able to carry out the functions of an investigative reporter which may lift her from the gossip column to the front page.

ENTERTAINMENTS

Pippin

October 20, 21, 22, 26, 27, 8:15 p.m., McGinnis Auditorium

A bit bawdy, a tinge satirical, this lighthearted, marvelously entertaining musical is based loosely on the life of Charlemagne's eldest son. Pippin, the idealist, tries to find himself amid the pomp of his father's pleasure-seeking court, among the ruin and desolation of the battlefield, as king of the Holy Roman Empire, and, finally as a common laborer on the estate of a rich widow. Written by Roger O. Hirson with music and lyrics by Stephen (THE MAGIC SHOW, GODSPELL) Schwartz, PIPPIN is a splendiferously theatrical musical with the kick of a lightning bolt. The American musical is alive and well and living in the 8th Century A.D.

MARATHON '33

December 5-9, 8:15 p.m., McGinnis Auditorium

In this stage memoir from her own past, entertainer June Havoc has conjured up the noise, frenzy, tawdriness and desperation of almost 3,000 hours of marathon dancing, bringing the atmosphere of this garish and mindless phenomenon of the 1930's to vivid and colorful life. The work is loaded with character types from the dark days of the depression. The poor devils dance and brawl and cheat and break down, while the promoters feed on them, and the public cheer them on like gladiators being served up to the lions. The central character, June, is a vaudevillian who has been engaged to do a turn for five dollars. In a paper bag she carries everything she owns — her costume, a doll, and a Gideon Bible. Often strident, sometimes amusing, and profoundly sad, MARATHON '33 is a tour de force of theatricality and a touching glimpse of the American will to survive in bitter and trying times.

Emily

February 7-10, 12-17, 8:15 p.m., Studio Theatre

Delving into the childhood of Emily Dickinson, this haunting new play probes the unusual family relationships that emerge and come back into focus years later in the poetic imagery of the mature Emily as an artist. It explores the delicate borders of love and loss between a brother and sister in a frighteningly beautiful and tender portrait of their very close involvement as adolescents that poses tragic consequences for their adult years. After a painstaking but exciting examination of this great American writer of poetry, Mr. Thomas Patterson, professor of playwrighting at UNC-CH, has uncovered a fascinating and heretofore unspoken explanation of the mysteries and enigmas of her life and work, and brought it to the stage in a searing and passionate play.

A CRY OF PLAYERS

April 4-7, 9-14, 8:15 p.m., Studio Theatre

Playwright William (THE MIRACLE WORKER) Gibson's rousing, provocative and ultimately poignant portrait of the youthful William Shakespeare captures perfectly the atmosphere of Elizabethan England. A CRY OF PLAYERS explores the struggle of all artists to obey the urge of their vision and their talent at the cost of comfort, happiness and social responsibility. Will is a rakish, prankish, irresponsible boy — though he is twenty-two years old and the father of three. He loves his wife Anne, but feels oppressed by her. She wants him to take a job as a schoolteacher. He fights her by committing adultery. Yet it is not Anne who is smothering Will: his rebellion is against the drab life to which he was born — from his family's skinning and tanning business to the petty viciousness of small town society. Far more than a colorful, conjectural recreation of Shakespeare's early life, A CRY OF PLAYERS is, in the words of Kelly of the BOSTON GLOBE, "brilliantly conceived, inescapably relevant to all of us."

The Drunkard Auditions Set

Auditions have been scheduled for performers for the first little theater production to be held in the new Greenville Recreation and Parks/Library Building opened earlier this year at 2000 Cedar Lane.

Between the hours of 7 and 10 p.m. on Tuesday and Wednesday, October 3 and 4, auditions will be conducted for casting "The Drunkard," a 19th century melodrama.

Stuart Aronson, who will direct the play, says there are roles for seven men and seven women, as well as one for a young pre-teen girl.

"We also have a need for people to work on costumes, scenery, make-up, for light technicians and stage people," Aronson said. "I hope people interested in this aspect of the theater will also come out on Tuesday or Wednesday night."

Supported by a $500 grant from the N. C. Arts Council, the production is sponsored by the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department.

Aronson noted that no special talent is required on the part of those auditioning, and some of the roles, while calling for music, do not involve a singing talent.

Artist Series Dates

The Student Union Artists Series of East Carolina University, detailed earlier, have now been firmed up so far as dates of various events are concerned.

These are:

— Oct. 11 — Piano recital, Jorge Bolet.

— Nov. 1 — "Tashi," a trio of musicians — Richard Stoltzman, clarinet; Ida Kefavaian, violin; and Fred Sherry, cello. The three will be joined by guest artists Theodore Arm, viola; and Ik-Hwan Bae, viola.

— Jan. 30 — Eugene Fodor, violinist.

— Feb. 20 — Christopher Parkening, classical guitarist; and

Season tickets for this series are on sale at $20 and are available from the Central Ticket Office, Mendenhall Student Center. All performances are to be in the Hendrix Theater and curtain time for each event is at 8 p.m.

RECORDS "PRIDE IN TOBACCO" — Country music star Ed Bruce (above) has recorded a song that tells the story of a tobacco farmer and the love he feels for the crop that has supported his family for generations. Entitled, "Pride in Tobacco," the song is part of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. campaign to advocate the culture and use of tobacco.

Playhouse Season Announced

PIANIST JORGE BOLET . . . will open the ECU 1978-79 Artists Series with a performance on October 11. Season tickets, which cover this and five other events in the Artists Series are priced at $20 and are now available from the Ticket Office in Mendenhall.

The East Carolina Playhouse will salute American playwrights with an "All-American" season this year. The bill-of-fare will feature four major productions of plays by American authors, as well as two "studio" productions, one a play by an American, and the other an original dance work by an American choreographer.

The recent Broadway hit musical based loosely on the life of the medieval emperor Charlemagne's eldest son, "Pippin," opens the season on Oct. 20. Performances will be Oct. 20, 21, 22, 26 and 27 at 8:15 p.m.

"Marathon '33," a stage memoir of entertainer June Hovoc which pinpoints the frenzy of marathon dancing in the 1930's is the second offering of the season. This will open Dec. 5 and run through Dec. 9.

"Marathon '33" is to be the final Playhouse production to be held in McGinnis Auditorium before renovation of the building gets underway.

This play, written by North Carolinian Thomas Patterson, explores the mysteries and enigmas of Miss Dickinson's life and work.

"Emily" will be performed Feb. 7-10 and Feb. 12 in the Studio Theater in the building adjoining McGinnis.

"A Cry of Players" is the final of the four major productions being scheduled for the season and will be on stage — at the Studio Theater — April 4-7 and 9-14. This rousing play by William Gibson, author of "The Miracle Worker" and "Two for the Seesaw" — is a portrait of the youthful Sheakespeare.

Ken Miller is directing "Pippin;" Edgar Loessin will direct "Marathon '33" and "Emily;" and Del Lewis will direct "A Cry of Players."

Studio Productions

In addition to the four major productions, the Playhouse will offer two "Studio" productions — works-in-progress running for limited engatements.

The fall "studio" production will be Lanford Wilson's recent Broadway success, "The Hot L Baltimore." This production will be shown Nov. 2, 3, and 4 in the Studio Theater.

In the spring, the "studio" production will be an original choregographic work by members of the ECU Dancefaculty. This will be presented Feb. 22, 23 and 24.

All performances will be at 8:15 p.m.

Season tickets to cover admission to the four full productions and the two studio productions are now available and are priced at $8.50. These can be purchased from the Playhouse Box Office from 10-4 Monday through Friday, or reserved by calling 757-6390.

New Exhibition Features N.C. Blacks

RALEIGH — A show that was three years in the making opened yesterday at the N. C. Museum of History in Raleigh. "The Black Presence in North Carolina" is an exhibition that broadly examines the accomplishments of black North Carolinians, along with their culture and music, skills and talents.

Blacks — as shopkeepers, soldiers, seamstresses, as educators, ministers, businessmen, lawmakers, landowners and as slave holders — all have been part of North Carolina's history, and this wide spectrum of activities is displayed in the new exhibit.

The chronological progress of black citizens from their African origins through the Civil War and Reconstruction years to the turn of the century are shown; and emphasis is given to their contributions to the state's heritage, according to Rodney Barfield, exhibit director.

Many Afro-Americans served in the Revolution, not only as laborers but as line soldiers. After the Revolution, attitudes towards black were relaxed somewhat. There is the case of two black ministers who have the unusual experience of having their black congregations become predominantly white; and one of them, John Chavis, educator as well as minister, had among his students white children who later became a governor, an ambassador, and a congressman.

George Moses Horton, a poet, published three books of poetry and numerous poems in newspapers and journals between 1820 and 1865. Numerous other North Carolina blacks — businessman Thomas Day; advocate for equal rights James H. Harris; ace mechanic Parker Robbins; and educators Charles Hunter and Charles Waddell Chesnutt, are included in the exhibit.

Photos, furniture, documents and artifacts are used to illustrate the careers of these people and to show their life styles . Also music of black people will be featured, and an LP record of this music will be on sale.

Keith Berger To Perform

Keith Berger is returning to East Carolina University. After conducting one of the most popular workshops of the 1977-78 season, Berger — actor, clown, dancer — will be here for a return engagement at 8 p.m. on October 4 in the Hendrix Theater, in Mendenhall Student Center.

He first gained prominence after appearing on the streets of New York as a street mime — a role he still enjoys when time permits.

Much in demand, Berger has appeared three times in Lincoln Center, has performed at Kennedy Center, and has been featured in "Time" magazine.

One of the most outstanding elements of his rapport with the people he entertains at colleges and universities is his habit of a pre-show visit to camps. In these, he interacts with students whereever they congregate — in cafeterias, student unions, or in classes.

Public tickets for the Berger performance on Oct. 4 are priced at $3 ($2 each for groups of 20 or more) and can be purchased from the Central Ticket Office in Mendenhall Student Center.

Touring Version Of Lost Colony

MANTEO — Young audiences in North Carolina are witnessing an historic first for North Carolina Theater. The oldest outdoor drama in America is now on tour.

The traveling version of the outdoor drama, produced by The Roanoke Island Historical Association, "The Mystery of Roanoke Island" is being performed by The Lost Colony Touring Company.

The production uses an innovative combination of slides, film, pantomime, dance and live action to take a fresh look at the facts surrounding the beginning and end of Sir Walter Raleigh's ill-fated colonization attempt on Roanoke Island in 1587.

The traveling show is written and directed by Jim Thorp. The Lost Colony Touring Company is to perform in 65 North Carolina schools during November. Funds for the production are provided by the N. C. Dept. of Cultural Resources; the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation of Winston-Salem; the N. C. Dept. of Public Instruction; and the Roanoke Island Historical Association.

Canon AE-1
A New Generation

1 The First SLR with a Central Processing Unit
As completely as possible, formerly mechanical controls have been replaced by smaller, electronically automated ones, which render more reliable service and lightning-fast, precision performance. And all functions come under the governing brain of a Central Processing Unit (CPU) which coordinates the SLR system response to any shooting situation.

2 True Shutter-Speed Priority AE
With priority given to shutter speed and the aperture set automatically, no action shot need ever be lost. Because the AE-1 meters within a split-second and the aperture is set just before the shutter is actually released, the possibility of error due to sudden change in conditions is virtually eliminated.

3 Exceptional Versatillity Combined with Handling Ease
Electronic controls and the replacement of many mechanical parts make the AE-1 extremely compact and light-weight. The camera and all its accessories have been designed with all controls centralized and within instant reach for maximum ease of handling. And all metering information is conveniently displayed in the viewfinder.

4 Power Winder A for Continuous Shooting, Electronically
The AE-1 has a great accessory for continuous shooting: The Power Winder A. This unit couples to the AE-1's electronic circuitry to increase your automatic shooting capabilities to 2 frames per second. Single frame shooting is also possible by releasing the shutter button after every single exposure.

5 Flashes to Meet Your Every Need
There are two special flash units, the Speedlite 155A and 199A, which make AE flash photography possible with the AE-1. Mounted on the AE-1, the Speedlite is fully controlled by the camera's microcomputer. The result is genuine automatic control with flash which eliminates the worry about synchronization or shutter speed.

6 Classifying Photographs with the Date Back A
Canon's exclusive imprinting process, which conveniently imprints dates and other data on the film at the very moment of taking the picture, is available as an accessory easily attached to the AE-1. With this device, photos can be easily classified or chronologically arranged for research or any other purpose.

7 Making the Most of Canon FD Lenses
The AE-1 utilizes the full range of Canon FD lenses. Canon makes superb, quality lenses for every possible photographic application and every possible photographic effect. FD lenses have been designed to meet the most stringent requirements of professional photographers.

A great assortment of accessories and attachments is available enabling you to jump right into the world of close-up photography. With them, even those tiny insects you've always wanted on film cannot escape the AE-1's grasp.

Pirates Hold On To Tame Movin' Mavs

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina University, operating for three quarters without quarterback Leander Green, struggled to overcome a strong Texas-Arlington football team last night, 23-17.

Texas, expected to be a strong offensive team, also put up a good defense against the Pirates, and only some early breaks, coupled with some later ones, helped the Pirates to pull out their third victory in five games.

For the unfortunate Movin' Mavs, it was the fifth straight loss, all by only a handful of points.

East Carolina scored early in the game, moving only 15 yards after recovering a fumble on the opening kickoff, with Anthony Collins scoring from the two.

On the second series, the Pirates drove that one in, behind the passing of Green, as the quarterback did the honors on the final three yards for the touchdown. Bill Lamm added both extra points, but it was his school record-tieing three field goals that actually told the tale, as he booted one in the second period and two more in the third. His kicks were 33, 40 and 29 yards.

Texas-Arlington's Tom Skoruppa kicked three field goals of his own, of 35, 27 and 33 yards, while quarterback Roy Dewalt hit split end Scott Burt for a 56-yard pass late in the half that tied the score briefly at 14-14.

East Carolina coach Pat Dye had lots of praise for his opponent, calling UTA a "good offensive football team.

"And I think a fine defensive ball team too" he added. "They definitely gave us problems moving the football. They certainly are a physical football team. This is typical of the games they have played this year."

Dye said that he felt his own defense came up with some key plays late in the game.

"After Green got hurt we had trouble moving the football, but I've got to be proud of our offense. We did take the ball and move it in the second half and get some points. Bill Lamm's kicking was a big factor in the game."

Dye also praised Dewalt as being a fine athlete. "He was absolutely superb."

The coach said the Pirates were able to make some adjustments at defense that worked well. "We've been able to make adjustments at the half every week. Maybe we should be making them in the first quarter. We took away just about everything but the hand-off inside."

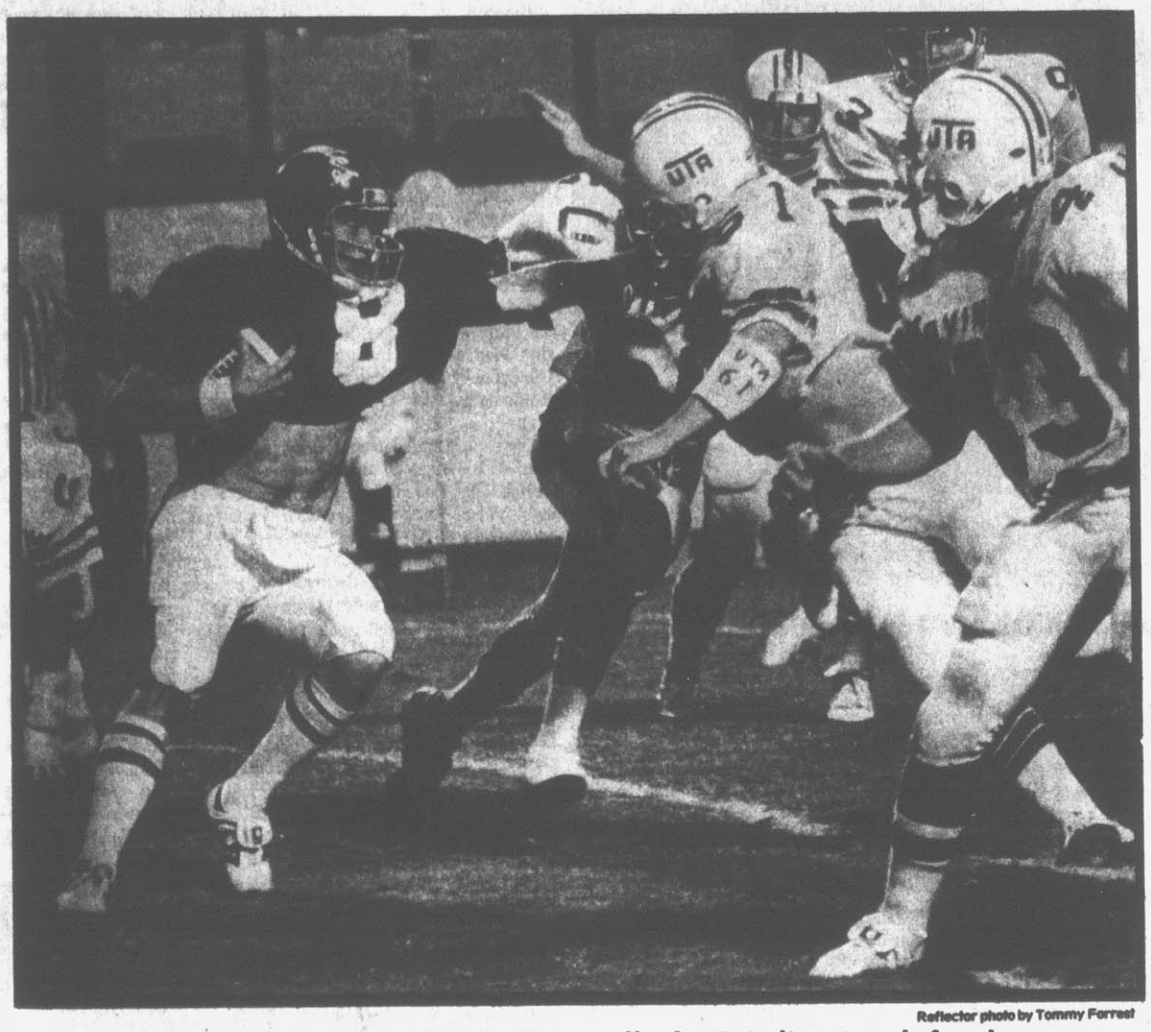

He added that he didn't think the Pirates were flat. "I'm happy to win and proud of them. We didn't play as well as last week, but I think that we were playing a better football team."

Texs was shut down somewhat in the second half, slipping from 232 yards in offense in the first half to 121 in the second.

Without Green, the Pirates didn't do a lot of ball movement, rushing for just 147 yards and passing for 62.

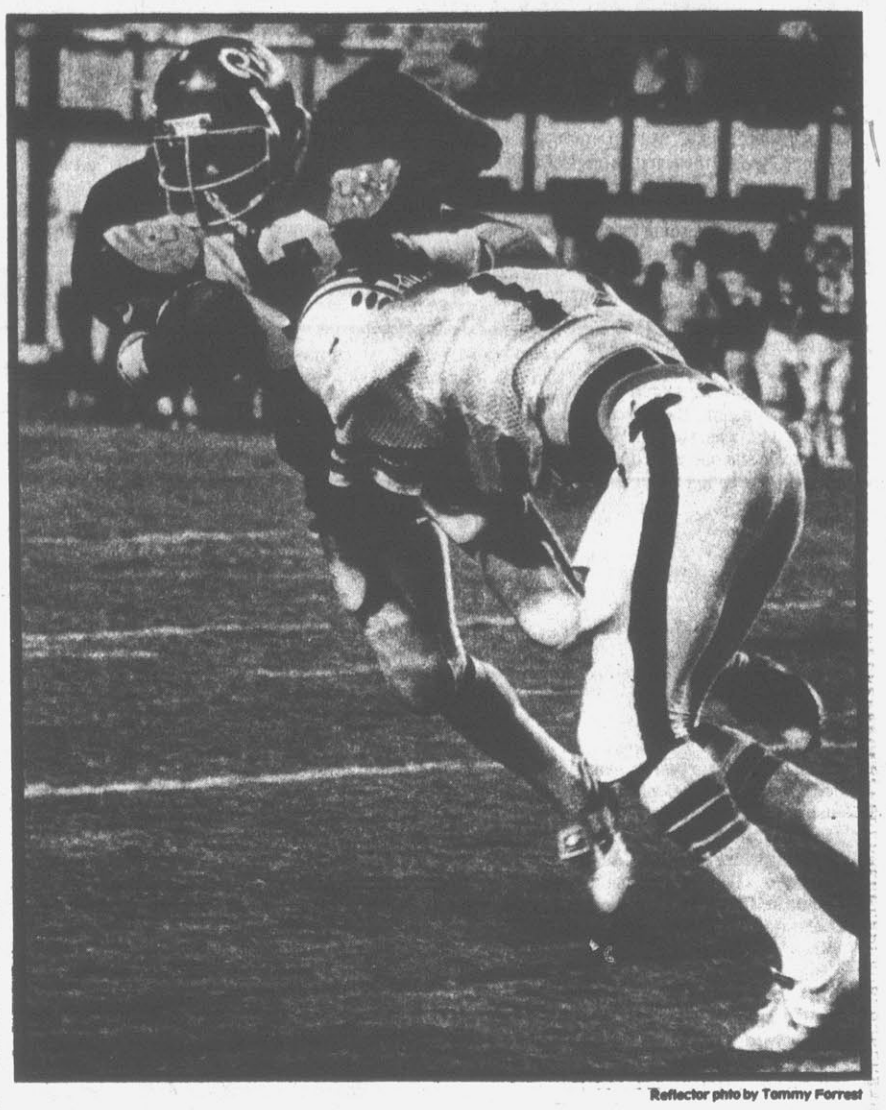

All of that passing was

Phils Get Third Straight Flag

PITTSBURGH (AP) — After one game that followed the script of an entire season, the Philadlphia Phillies popped champagne and the Pittsburgh Pirates spoke of pride.

"After three years, you learn how to open these so they don't pop," Manager Danny Ozark said casually, opening a bottle of bubbly after his Philadelphia Phillies won their third straight National League East title with a 10-8 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

"We didn't lose it. Philadelphia went out and won it," said smiling Pirate Manager Chuck Tanner, whose team trailed 10-4 before their four-run ninth-inning rally ended with the tying run at the plate.

After an Aug. 12 loss in Philadelphia, the Pirates were 11½ games back. But they came on strong with a 24-game home winning streak that was halted Saturday by a 16-hit Phillie barrage that included two solo homers by winning pitcher Randy Lerch, a three-run home by Greg Luzinski and a three-run double by Richie Hebner that proved pivotal.

"That was the biggest hit of my career," Luzinski said of his 35th homer, which gave the Phils a 6-4 lead in the sixth.

"My two were flukes," said the grinning Lerch, who joins the Phillies against the Los Angeles Dodgers in the best-of-five National League championship series that opens Wednesday in Philadelphia.

The Pirates, who needed a four-game sweep of their weekend set with the Phils, finished second for the second year in a row. But they made it interesting with a doubleheader sweep Friday and their late surge Saturday.

"I am tremendously proud of each and every one of these guys," said Willie Stargell, sipping a cup of white wine after belting a grand slam in the first inning and then striking out in the ninth.

"That last inning was just a product of determination. They won it, but they had to earn it," said Stargell.

"We make everything hard," said Phillies shortstop Larry Bowa, who made the final putout. "A 10-4 lead and it winds up 10-8. I'm gonna take the night off and release some emotions. I'll think about the Dodgers tomorrow."

The Phillies won behind the combined 13-hit pitching of Lerch, Warren Brusstar, Tug McGraw and Ron Reed.

Lerch had his only other big league homer earlier this season.

The Phillies took the lead to stay in the sixth inning when Luzinski rapped his three-run homer off reliever Grant Jackson, 7-5.

Yanks Hold Lead With Victory

NEW YORK (AP) — Ed Figueroa pitched a five-hitter to become a 20-game winner for the first time and Chris Chambliss and Roy White drove in two runs apiece in a five-run first inning Saturday as the New York Yankees whipped the Cleveland Indians 7-0 and clinched a tie for the American League East Division pennant.

The Yankees can wrap up their third consecutive division crown by beating the Indians in Sunday's regular-season windup with Catfish Hunter, 12-5, opposing Rick Waits, 12-15. The Boston Red Sox remained one game behind the Yankees by defeating Toronto, 5-1.

The Yankees knocked out Mike Paxton, 12-11, before he could retire a batter. Singles by Mickey Rivers and Thurman Munson and a walk to Reggie Jackson loaded the bases. Graig Nettles singled off the glove of right fielder Dan Briggs for one run, Chambliss doubled for two more and White delivered the final two with a single.

That was more than enough to ensure the Yankees' sixth consecutive victory and 29th in the last 37 games, though they added a run in the second inning and Jackson homered in the fifth. The Indians have dropped six in a row, their longest losing streak of the season.

Figueroa, who has lost nine, walked two and struck out five in notching his eighth straight triumph since he was beaten on Aug. 23.

Red Sox Win To Stay One Back

BOSTON (AP) — Dennis Eckersley posted his 20th victory with a five-hitter Saturday as the Boston Red Sox sent the American League East race down to the wire with a 5-1 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

With their seventh consecutive victory and 11th in the last 13 games, the Red Sox remained one game behind the New York Yankees. The regular season ends Sunday.

Eckersley, who has lost only eight games since being acquired from Cleveland just before the season began, boosted his Fenway Park record to 11-1 with the help of a four-run Boston first inning.

The 23-year old right-hander settled down after surrendering a two-out homer by Roy Howell in the first. He finished with nine strikeouts and one walk.

The Red Sox nailed down the decision quickly against Toronto's Jesse Jefferson, 7-16, with the help of Howell's error on a ground ball by leadoff hitter Rick Burleson in the first.

Carlton Fisk followed with a two-run single, then scored on a single by Fred Lynn and a sacrifice fly by Butch Hobson.

Pitt Holds Off Heels

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Fred Jacobs caught a 13-yard touchdown pass from Rick Trocano late in the fourth quarter to lead ninth-ranked Pittsburgh to a 20-16 win in a see-saw battle over North Carolina in college football Saturday.

Jacobs scored two other touchdowns on short runs to help boost Pitt's record to 3-0.

Unranked North Carolina, seeking an upset win, led three times before the final scoring drive, which covered 80 yards in 12 plays.

Jacobs scored from three yards out to put Pitt ahead 7-3 in the third quarter following a second-quarter field goal by North Carolina's Jeff Hayes.

Paschal caught an 11-yard pass from backup quarterback Clyde Christensen for a touchdown that again put the Tar Heels on top 9-7 in the third quarter. Pitt linebacker Al Chesley blocked the extra point attempt.

Then Jacobs fought six yards to give Pitt a 13-9 lead in the fourth quarter, but Pitt quarterback Rick Trocano fumbled the snap from center and North Carolina got the ball at the Pitt 24-yard line.

From there, Christensen threw for 13 yards to tight end Bob Loomis. Then the 5-foot-9 senior quarterback rushed twice to get the Tar Heels to the Pitt 2-yard line.

After choking off North Carolina's opening drive in three plays, Pitt easily drove from its own 35-yard line to the Tar Heels' 1-yard line.

Michigan Bombs Duke

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Tailback Harlan Huckleby scored two touchdowns on plunges and rushed for 84 yards Saturday as fourth-ranked Michigan clobbered Duke, 52-0, in an intersectional collegiate football game.

The sparkling performance by the 6-foot-2, 200-pound senior speedster from Detroit enabled Huckleby to pass fabled Tom Harmon for sixth place on Michigan's all-time rushing list.

Huckleby dove over from the 1 in the second quarter and again early in the third. His yardage total put him at 2,141 yards. Harmon, who played in 1938-40, had 2,134 yards.

The victory ran Michigan's record to 3-0 while Duke dipped to 2-1.

Michigan drove 50 yards in 11 plays, all on the ground, to score on its first possession with fullback Russell Davis plunging over from the 1.

It was the Wolverines' ballgame from there on out as they scored six of the first seven times they had the ball.

Quarterback Rick Leach ran 12 yards for the second touchdown to climax an 81-yard march in the early moments of the second quarter. Then Huckleby got his first score following the ensuing kickoff after Dale Keitz recovered a fumble by Duke quarterback Mike Dunn at the Blue Devils' 1.

The crowd of 104,832 was the fifth largest in Michigan history and largest ever for a non-conference foe.

After Huckleby's third-quarter touchdown, with just over five minutes gone, Michigan began substituting freely.

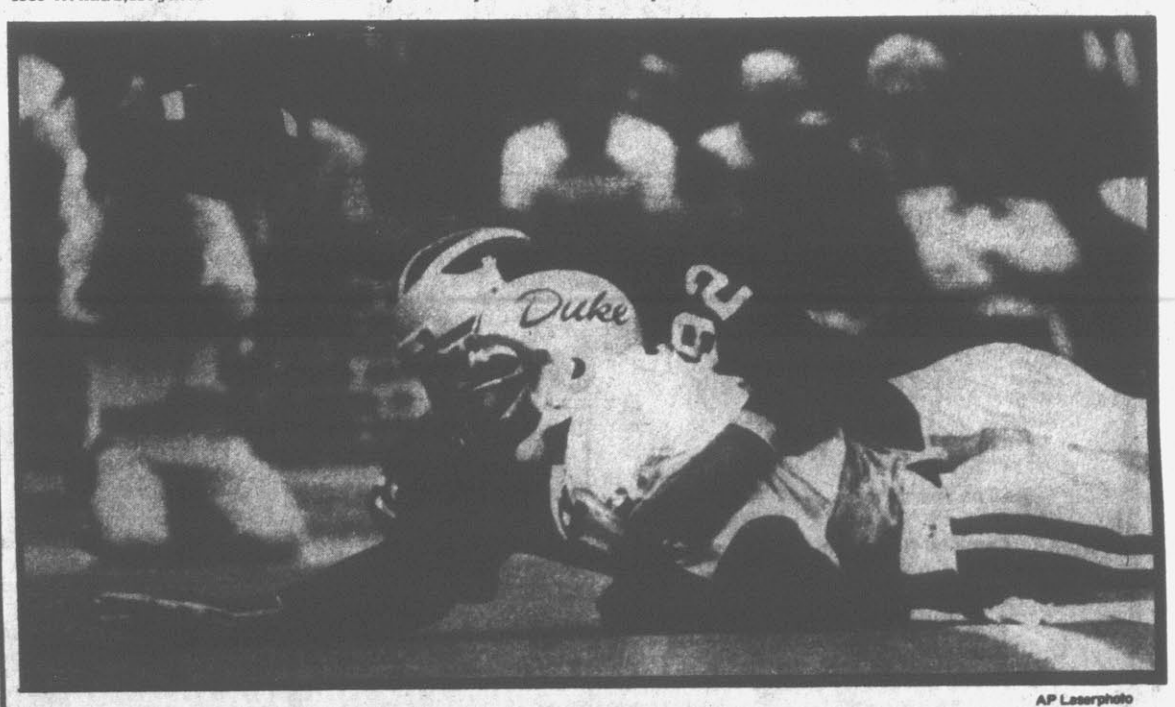

The Wolverines' second posession of the half resulted in a 2-yard touchdown run by fullback Lawrence Reid, climaxing a 68-yard, 10-play march launched by Mike Harden's interception of a Stan Driskell pass.

Michigan turned the game into a full-fledged rout in the final period with two more touchdowns, Rosevelt Smith running six yards for a score and B.J. Dickey throwing an 8-yard touchdown pass to wingback Ralph Clayton.

Atkins-Led Terps Defeat Kentucky

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Steve Atkins, thwarted twice by magnificent Kentucky goalline stands, scored one touchdown while rushing for 153 yards and leading unbeaten and 15th-ranked Maryland to a hard-earned 20-3 victory over the Wildcats Saturday.

Atkins, who topped the 100-yard mark for the fourth consecutive game, scored on a 16-yard run in the second quarter but was stopped four times from the one yard line as Kentucky twice kept Maryland from scoring.

Ed Loncar kicked field goals of 49 and 31 yards early in the fourth quarter for Maryland and the Terps added an insurance TD with 2:48 left to play on a three-yard pass from wingback Don Dotter to Tom Burgess.

The victory was the eighth in a row for Maryland, which has won all four this season, and handed Kentucky its first loss in 12 games.

The Maryland defense stopped Kentucky on the Terps' 34 on the first possession of the game and then allowed just two more first downs until Kentucky's Mike Deaton completed three passes for 49 yards midway through the final quarter.

The Wildcats went 78 yards in the final three minutes of the first half and scored on a 24-yard field goal by Tommy Griggs without making a first down on their own. The Terps were guilty of holding on Kentucky's first punt and then Chuck Smith recovered Steve Trimble's fumble of the next punt on the Maryland 10.

Fuller, Brown Pace Clemson In Big Victory

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — Behind the passing of quarterback Steve Fuller and the running of tailback Lester Brown and fullback Marvin Sims, Clemson cruised to a 31-0 victory over outmanned Villanova in an intersectional college football game Saturday afternoon.

Fuller, the Atlantic Coast Conference Player of the Year last season, hit on 6 of 11 passes for 95 yards and rushed for 61 yards in leading the Tigers to their second win of the season.

Rebounding from a 12-0 loss to nationally ranked Georgia last week, Fuller guided the Tigers to a 28-0 cushion before Clemson's reserves took over at the beginning of the fourth quarter.

Villanova, 2-2, threatened in the third quarter but an alert Clemson defense stopped the Wildcats at the Tiger 6-yard line.

Clemson jumped out to a 7-0 lead with 4:12 to go in the first period when Brown scored from two yards out. Obed Ariri kicked the first of four successful extra point attempts.

Clemson's final touchdown came with 9:51 left in the third quarter when Sims scored from three yards out. The Tigers went 79 yards in 13 plays during the drive.

With reserve quarterback Billy Lott at the helm, Clemson drove deep into Villanova territory late in the final period, setting up the Tigers' final score of the day, a 33-yard field goal by Obed Ariri as time ran out.

Brown was the game's leading rusher, with 9 carries for 84 yards. Clemson tailback Harold Goggins carried 10 times for 78 yards.

Clemson Head Coach Charley Pell said, "The mark of a good football team, in our opinion, is the type that can go out after what we did last week and make a comeback and play with the intensity we had in the first half.

"Villanova has a good football team and they are going to beat a lot of people," Pell added. "They never let up."

Villanova Head Coach Dick Bedesem said the Wildcats practiced all week in front of loudspeakers preparing for the vocal Clemson crowd, and the noise Saturday was not a factor. "I guess they (the fans) felt it was an easy win, and they were not as souped up."

Bedesem said the Clemson field goal at the final buzzer was "a smart move on their part." He added, "They just wanted to give the boy (Ariri) a chance to kick under game conditions."

"Tyeir program showed its total domination of ours," Bedesem said. "We tried to put the ball up a lot more than normal but there were times when the receivers couldn't get to the ball or the quarterbacks couldn't get the ball off."

Pat O'Brien, the starting Villanova quarterback, completed 4 of 14 passes for 50 yards, with two interceptions.

Tech Routs 'Dogs

ATLANTA (AP) — Running back Eddie Lee Ivery bolted for a pair of long touchdown runs and shattered the all-time Georgia Tech rushing record in the process Saturday, powering the Yellow Jackets to a 28-0 college football victory over The Citadel.

Ivery, a 6-foot, 200-pound senior from Thomson, Ga., snapped a scoreless tie midway in the opening quarter by rambling 71 yards with a punt return. He then broke the school rushing record with a 51-yard scoring jaunt with 45 seconds remaining in the third period.

Ivery, who sat out the final quarter, finished with 91 yards in 14 carries, giving him a career total of 2,303 rushing yards, breaking the mark of 2,274 set by David Sims in 197476.

Tech, 2-2, took a 14-0 halftime lead when freshman quarterback Mike Kelley, who connected on 10 of 23 passes for 159 yards, teamed with fullback Rodney Lee on a 51-yard scoring pass.

The Yellow Jackets added another third-period touchdown, converting one of The Citadel's six turnovers into an 11-yard TD when defensive end Sheldon Fox recovered quarterback Tim Russell's fumble in the air and raced into the end zone.

The Citadel, 2-2, penetrated into Tech territory only twice during the contest. Their deepest penetration moved the ball to the Yellow Jacket 13 in the first half, but that threat ended on another fumble.

Gobblers Edge Tribe

BLACKSBURG, Va. (AP) — David Lamie fired a 50-yard touchdown bomb to Ron Zollicoffer on the game's final play Saturday that lifted Virginia Tech's Gobblers to a 22-19 football victory over William & Mary's previously unbeaten Indians.

Zollicoffer was immediately stripped of the ball after he caught it falling into the end zone, but the officials ruled it a touchdown as the Gobblers evened their record at 2-2.

The Lamie-Zollicoffer heroics came after William & Mary quarterback Tom Rozantz had thrown a 59-yard scoring bomb to Ed Schielfelbein to put the Indians, 3-1, ahead 19-15 with 1:29 left.

But Larry Fallen returned the ensuing kickoff to the Tech 34 and Lamie, after moving Tech to midfield only to miss two payses, stepped back to connect with Zollicoffer with no time on the clock.

The Gobblers had overcome a 9-0 deficit in the third quarter as Kenny Lewis raced for two touchdowns, one on a 3-yard run with 6:28 left in the third period and the second with 10:59 left in the game. Lewis finished with 141 yards on 21 carries, scoring his eighth and ninth touchdowns of the season.

Green Leads By Two

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Hubert Green — still insisting the course is too tough for him and still the only man under par — managed a 71 and retained a 2-shot lead Saturday in the third round of the $300,000 World Series of Golf.

"I'm not overly pessimistic about my chances," he said. "Any time I'm around the lead I think I have a chance to win the golf tournament. I've got a crack at it. My chances are better than a lot of guys'.

"But there's still one round to go on a golf course that's tougher than Chinese arithmetic turned upside down. Anything can happen."

Green put together a 54-hole total of 208, 2 shots under par on the vast, sprawling, a 7,180-yard South course at the Firestone Country Club.

The front-runner all the mild, breezy day, Green was tied briefly by the charge of Dr. Gil Morgan, a non-practicing optometrist who rapidly is gaining a reputation as one of the Tour's strongest young players.

Morgan birdied three holes in a row at one stretch, also got to 2 under par for the tournament, then backed off with bogeys on the 16th and 17th holes.

"I wasn't too happy about that," he said. Morgan finished with a 3-under-par 67 and a 210 total.

Keydets Get By Cavs

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — Craig Jones' 36-yard field goal with 6:15 remaining offset a costly fumble and lifted Virginia Military's Keydets to a 17-9 victory over the University of Virginia's Cavaliers here Saturday.

Jones' game-winning boot, set up by linebacker Dale Ogg's pass interception, came after Virginia had taken a 9-7 lead on the final play of the third quarter.

Defensive back Joe Roseborough gave the Cavaliers a touchdown by jarring the ball loose from punt receiver Mike Bellamy and recovering it in the end zone. But Chuck Kelly, who had kicked a 44-yard field goal to give Virginia a 3-0 firstquarter lead, missed the extra point.

Once ahead, 10-9, The Keydets added an insurance score on running back Butch Hostetter's 1-yard plunge with 1:11 showing. That score came four plays after defense back Mike Alston's 43-yard return of a pass interception to the Virginia 3.

N.C. State Slaps Wake Forest

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina State quarterback Scott Smith scored two touchdowns and set up two more as the Wolfpack downed Wake Forest 34-10 Saturday night in an Atlantic Coast Conference football game.

With scoring runs of 7 and 15 yards, and shorter touchdown runs by backs Billy Ray Vickers and Ted Brown, N.C. State boosted its record to 4-0 overall and clinched its first conference game of the season.

Down 20-0 deep in the third period, Wake Forest reserve quarterback David Webber led the Deacons back with a solid running and passing offense. Webber took the Deacons to the one yard line and James McDougald took it over for the first Deacon score with 2:33 left in the third period.

Kicker Steve Schonert added a 32-yard field goal two minutes later.

Wake Forest, which dropped to a 1-3 overall record with the loss and 1-1 in the ACC, threatened again in the fourth period. But the Wolfpack defense held firm on a fourth-and-one play from the Wolfpack 11.

N.C. State took a 13-0 lead to the dressing room at half time.

Brown, who compiled 136 yards rushing in the game, made a one-yard plunge with 7:49 remaining in the third quarter to put the Wolfpack on top 20-0.

After the Deacons put their points on the board, Smith took the ball in from the 15 and reserve quarterback Todd Baker hurled a bomb to split end Buster Ray on an 85-yard touchdown play which completed the Wolfpack's scoring.

Tide Starts Late

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Halfback Tony Nathan, embarrassed by two miscues, sprinted 63 yards on a draw play to start sputtering Alabama's No. 7 team to a 51-28 football victory over Vanderbilt Saturday in the first Southeastern Conference game for both schools.

Vanderbilt had the lead, 2116, on Van Heflin's passes and Frank Mordica's runs when Nathan surprised the Commodores on a third-down play late in the third period.

That opened the gates and Alabama put away the tired Commodores with 27 points in the final quarter.

They came on a 41-yard scoring pass from Jeff Rutledge to Rick Neal, a 3-yard Rutledge run after he and Nathan teamed on a 59-yard pitch-out play, a 28-yard run by Billy Jackson and a 61-yard run by Lou Ikner.

Irish In Rally

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Jerome Heavens bolted 26 yards for a third-period touchdown and Joe Unis added a 27-yard field goal Saturday as Notre Dame shook off the frustrations of two straight losses with a 10-6 victory over previously undefeated Purdue.

Totally outplayed in the first half, in which the Boilermakers cashed in on field goals of 28 and 47 yards by Scott Sovereen for a 6-0 lead, the Irish finally broke on top with Heavens' touchdown to cap a 46-yard drive.

The next time Purdue had the ball, the Boilermakers attempted a double handoff and a pass by Mark Herrmann was intercepted by Randy Harrison, who returned 34 yards to the Purdue 13 before Unis booted the first field goal of his career.

USC Pulls Upset

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — South Carolina, led by the running of Johnny Wright and George Rogers, upset 19th-ranked Georgia, 27-10, in a non-conference college football game Saturday night.

The victory marked the first time since 1959 that South Carolina, a 2-1-1, has defeated Georgia, 2-1.

Wright and Rogers scored one touchdown apiece. Wright rushed for 156 yards and Rogers added 128 yards.

South Carolina's defense kept the Bulldogs from scoring in the last 40 minutes of the game. Two fourth-quarter Georgia threats were thwarted by turnovers.

Spiders Spin Win

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Richmond's Spiders bounced out of a 14-14 tie on free safety Jeff Nixon's 64-yard touchdown run with an intercepted pass Saturday and went on to a runaway 51-28 football victory over a Cincinnati team that couldn't survive its avalanche of errors.

All told, the Spiders turned four interceptions, a fumble and a blocked kick into touchdowns while scoring their first victory in five starts and amassing their greatest number of points since a 62-7 win over Randolph-Macon in 1920.

Moments after Nixon's touchdown run had untied the score, linebacker Ray Kelly picked off another Bearcat pass and raced 37 yards for another Richmond touchdown. And adding insult to injury, the Spiders scored in the closing moments on a three yard run by Demetri Kornegay after Kelly had picked off another Cincinnati pass.

Sluggish Pirates Defeat Mavs

The Pirates got an early break when Fred Chavis recovered a Texas fumble on the kickoff at the UTA 15. It took just four plays for the Pirates to score. Sutton got three on first down then added ten on third down to the two. Collins scored on a lead from there with 13:39 left, and Lamm's kick made it 7-0.

The Bucs got the ball back on their own 42 after a punt and on first down, Green hit Eddie Hicks for 13 yards. On third and 11 from the UTA 46, Green hit Billy Ray Washington up the middle and in a crowd at the 19, a 27-yard gain. Green added six, then Hicks added five to the eight. Two plays by Sutton put it on the three and Green raced around the right side for the score with 8:44 left in the period. That made it 14-0 after Lamm again kicked.

Things got tough after that. The Mavs began to get movin' and drove for their first score, Skoruppa's 35-yard field goal. They drove from their own 20, with Dewalt running three times for 21 yards, and passing twice for 16. But the drive petered out at the 18, and the field goal with 2:33 left make it 14-3.

Arlington came right back on its next possession to drive for another field goal. From the Mav 38, Dewalt again led the way, running twice for 13 yards and passing once to Burt for 21 yards. The Mavs got a first and goal at the seven, but after being pushed back by a delay penalty, settled for Skoruppa's 27-yard field goal with 12:00 left in the half. That made it 14-6.

UTA drove from their own 31 to the ECU 38 before a loss, a penalty and a fumble cost them the ball. East Carolina couldn't move it from inside the UTA 45, and kicked it away.

But Rodney Allen's punt, off the side o his foot, went only five yards to the 36, and the Mavs started a two-play touchdown drive from there. Dewalt hit Jerry Woodard at the Mav 44, and on the next play, went to Burt on the bomb, a 56-yard scoring play. Dewalt then kept the ball around the right side on the conversion play for a two-pointer, tieing the score at 14-14 with 4:51 left.

The Pirates immediately drove back for the first of the three Lamm field goals. From their own 20, the Bucs moved it to the Mav 13. Hicks started it off with a 34-yard scamper, and later added nine yards for a first down at the UTA 18. But the drive died and Lamm booted a 33-yarder to return the lead to the Pirates at 17-14 with 44 seconds left in the half.

The Pirates got an early break in the second half when Noah Clark recovered a Mav fumble at the UTA 31. That was converted into Lamm's second field goal. The Pirates got a first down at the 20 but lost two yards on three plays, and Lamm's 40-yard kick was true, making it 20-14 with 10:04 left in the third period.

Then, a Charlie Carter interception of a Dewalt pass returned 19 yards to the Texas 15 set up the final field goal by Lamm. Again the Pirates were unable to spring for a first down, and Lamm made good on a 29-yarder with 1:09 left in the third quarter. The Pirates then led, 23-14.

An ECU fumble gave Texas good field position at the Pirate 49, but the defense held, only to fumble the ball back at the center of the field three plays later.

Danny Williams picked up 14 yards on first down, and later added 16 yards to the ECU 18 before another fumble turned it over to ECU again.

UTA got it back after a punt at their own 41 and got their final field goal. On the first play from scrimmage, the Pirates wre penalized down to their own 21 on pass interference. The defense held there, and Skoruppa kicked a 33-yarder with 6:54 left.

Even the, it took some more fine defensive play to hold up the victory. Texas got it late in the half at their own 38 and moved it in one play to the ECU 49. But on fourth and five from the 44, Tommy Summer and Zack Valentine combined to bring down Williams for no gain, turning the ball over.

East Carolina controlled it down to their own 25, where a fourth and one play fell just an inch short of a first down, giving Texas one more chance. But the Mavs couldn't move the ball as they gained only 15 yards in the final 45 seconds and time finally ran out on them.

Green, in his short time in the game, threw four passes, hitting all four for 62 yards. Eddie Hicks ran for 66 yards to lead the Pirates in that department.

Dewalt hit 11 of 22 passes for 154 yards. Carter intercepted him twice. Dewalt also rushed for 20 yards. Williams was the leading rusher for the Mavs with 79 yards.

The Pirates take to the road again next Saturday, meeting former Southern Conference foe, Virginia Military Institute at Lexington. It is the start of a three-game road trip, ending that phase of the Pirate season. They close out the year with three home games.

Lackluster Rose Downs Eagles, 14-0

On The Move

Rose High School, obviously not ready to play Friday night, sputtered and stumbled past West Craven High School, 14-0, evening its record at 2-2-1 on the year.

During the first half of the game neither team did much of anything, although West Craven had a couple of threats thank to Rose miscues. Rose managed only four yards in offense in the first half, and turned the ball over four times.

"We were not mentally ready to play tonight," Coach Dave Bumgarner said afterwards.

The Rampants were also handicapped by not having three regulars in the game. Fullback Todd Tyson was sidelined with an injury, while William Frizzell of the defense was ill. Another player was suspended, the coach said.

"It was not a very good way to get ready for our conference play," Bumgarner added. "We got the ball moving in the second half, but still didn't play like we could have."

The Rampants blew several scoring opportunities in the second half, getting stopped once after having first and goal at the four.

Derwin Clemons put Rose on the scoreboard early in the second half with a 10-yard run, while Mark Shank finished it up in the fourth quarter with a 20-yard burst. Ted King kicked both extra points.

The Eagles, who fell to 1-4 with the defeat proved to be a tougher contender than Rose had bargained for. They held the Rampant offense in check much of the time, and offered several threats of their own. Their psssing didn't begin to click until the final period when they completed four of seven for 67 yards.

The Eagles had the first possession across the 50, thanks to the first of two fumbles by Rose (of a total of six mishandlings). That gave West Craven the ball on the 44, but they were twice penalized from there, and lost yardage back across midfield.

Rose got the ball in good field position following a 33-yard punt return by Shank to the WC 46, but the Rampants turned it back over on first down with their second fumble.

Later in the quarter, West Craven took over after a punt on the Rose 49, but promptly fumbled it away. The Eagles got it back early in the second quarter on an interception that gave them the ball at the Rampant 36, but they failed to pick up a first down on fourth and one at the 28.

The Eagles then mounted the lone sustained drive of the half by either team, moving from their own 31 after a punt to as far as the Rose 24 before a 22-yard clipping penalty moved it back and an interception ended the threat.

Even then, the Eagles almost got a chance to get the ball into the end zone. With 32 seconds left, they intercepted another Rampant pass and Howard Coward returned it 20 yards to the Rampant seven. After a rush lost a yard, a 25-yard field goal try by Forrest Moore was off-target.

Rose took advantage of a West Craven fumble on the first play from scrimmage in the second half to set up its first touchdown. Don McGlohon forced Al Warmack to fumble and Jeff Ebron recovered at the Eagle 25.

Clemons picked up seven over left tackle, and Doug Selby got a first down at the 15. After the Eagles were penalized five yards for delay of game, Clemons took a pitch around right end for the score. King's kick made it 7-0 with 10:18 left in the period.

West Craven drove after the kickoff, moving from its 31 to the Rose 38 before a holding penalty killed their drive. Rose then moved from its own 17 to the West Craven three before turning it over on downs.

Shank broke away for 20 yards to start the drive, and Clemons got away for 49 more, nearly scoring. Only the work of James Roach prevented Clemons from getting his second score, as Roach bulldogged Clemons down by the shirttail at the Eagle nine. A penalty gave Rose first down at the four, but four plays gained only a yard, and Rose turned it over on downs.

Rose got it back at the West Craven 22 after a punt, and after failing to gain, tried a 34-yard field goal that was partially blocked and went wide.

Early in the final period, Rose got it back at the WC 42 after another punt. On third and long, Joey Mattheis hit King for 22 yards to the 19. Two more plays lost a yard, then Shank got away through the middle of the line, breaking two tackles on the way to the end zone on a 20-yard run for the final score of the game. King again kicked for the 14-0 score with 8:18 left to play.

West Craven went to the air and moved from its own 45 to the Rose three before fumbling it away, and that ended the scoring threats for the night.

Rose finished the game with 204 yards in total offense, 200 of it in the second half. West Craven ended up with 113 yards in offense, 74 of it in the second half.

The Rampants, now finished with non-league play, travel to Rocky Mount next Friday to open Division I play against the strong Gryphons.

Carew's Struggle

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Peerless rod Carew may be swinging his way toward yet another American League batting title, but the Twins' 32-year old first baseman admits that it's been a real struggle.

"I haven't been strong all year," said Carew, who entered Saturday night's game with a .335 average. "I've been tired this year consistently. There's been too many things going on in my mind about my contract. I've been thinking about that garbage all the time."

Carew needed to go 0-for-8 in his last two games, with Al Oliver of Texas needing six hits in eight at bats to overtake him. That would leave the Minnesota slugger at .330 and Oliver at .331.

Even if Carew sat out the final two games, and Oliver went eight for eight, Carew still would win the championship.

Carew, who has stated that he'll play out his option next year with the Twins because he is unhappy with his estimated salary of $200,000, already has six batting titles under his belt. The prospect of joining such select company as Rogers Hornsby and Stan Musial doesn't have him overwhelmed.

"I've got six. It's nice to have, but people will remember me if I win six or if I win seven."

Only Ty Cobb, who has a dozen titles, Honus Wagner (8), and both Hornsby and Musial (7 each) have more than Carew.

Ted Williams also has six.

Carew, who hit .388 last season and entered 1978 with a lifetime mark of .355, won his first title in 1969 when he hit .332.

Coryell Takes Over Chargers, But Won't Make Great Changes

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

It may not happen this weekend in New England, but it won't be too long before Don Coryell stamps his trademark on the San Diego Chargers.

When Tommy Prothro quit as the Chargers' head coach last Monday, the team hired Coryell, whose philosophy had turned the St. Louis Cardinals into the Cardiac Cardinals, not necessarily one of the winningest teams in the National Football League, but certainly one of the most exciting.

The Chargers, staggering along with a 1-3 record including last Sunday's 24-3 shambles against Green Bay, visit the New England Patriots this Sunday, a team coming off a last-minute 21-14 victory in Oakland which evened its record at 2-2.

But Coryell, who openly acknowledges his disdain for conservatism, won't be reshaping the Chargers just yet. "I'm not going to try and disturb things," he said. "I'm more of a spectator for now. I'm not going to change anything. I'm just trying to learn the offense." For the time being, offensive coordinator Ray Perkins will probably run the show.

Coryell likes to discuss his coaching philosophy in boxing terms, a sport with which he is not unfamiliar since he was a light heavyweight boxer as well as a defensive back at the University of Washington about 30 years ago.

"I'm not a counter-puncher," he said, setting himself apart from those coaches who wait for the other team to bog down or cough up the ball before turning it on. "There's nothing more boring than watching two counter-punchers fight. I don't want to wait for something to happen. Defensively and offensively I believe in making something happen. I don't believe in sitting back and waiting for the other guy to make a mistake.

"I believe in the passing game. I'm not a coach who builds on defense. If you're playing a team with more talent, the only way to win is by throwing the ball well. It's alright for a physically superior team to play conservatively and run over its opponents, but how many teams can do that.. Would a nimble, lighter boxer try to stand toe-to-toe against a heavier slugger?"

The Chargers are lightweights at the moment, only 10th in American Conference rushing and fourth in passing.

The league's No.1 passing team, the Cowboys, will be out to regain a share of the National Conference East lead in the first of its two explosive meetings with the Redskins, who have never lost in six Monday night home games. The No.1 rushing team, as you might expect, is Kansas City, what with its Wing-T offense that shuns the pass (the Chiefs are last in that department) in favor of ball-control drives that steadily gobble up minutes as well as yards.

Over 35 Tourney

Top-seeded Jim Bailey will meet Walter Jones, the second seed, in the finals of the over 35 men's singles tournament of the Greenville Tennis Club. The match will be held at 1:30 p.m. today at the Elm Street courts.

Bailey defeated Tom Sayetta 6-4, 4-6, 6-1 in the semifinals, while Jones downed Bill Still 4-6, 7-5, 2-4 (retired).

In other matches, Carlos Concha defeated Paul Tardiff 6-2, 6-3, Sayetta downed Concha 6-1, 7-5, George Lanford fell to Bailey 6-0, 6-0, Still stopped Curtis Ward 6-1, 6-1 and Jones beat Bill Johnson 6-3, 6-4.

Chargers Crush North Pitt By 46-6

Stop Right There

James Fields of West Craven puts the stop on Rose High School quarterback Joey Mattheis after a gain in Friday night's contest. The Rampants picked up a 14-0 victory with two second half scores in the game. (Reflector Photo)

LITTLEFIELD — Ayden-Grifton grabbed North Pitt's undefeated Panthers by the tail Friday night, and in the words of Panther coach Pat Smith, "They turned us every way but loose." The Chargers controlled both lines of scrimmage and romped to a 46-6 victory.

The Ayden-Grifton offense ran right over the North Pitt defensive unit, which had given up just two touchdowns in the team's four previous victories. The Chargers rolled up a whopping 408 yards on the ground, much of it right up the middle with hard-nosed fullback Billy Holland leading the way. He rushed for 171 yards.

"We were just able to over power them on offense and defense," a happy Ayden- Grifton coach Dixon Sauls said after the ballgame. "I thought we established our power running game, which was our goal."

The Chargers' power was certainly established in the minds of the Panthers who were unable to stop even one Ayden-Grifton play for minus yardage. The winners chalked up 25 first downs and were stopped for no gain on only two occasions. The rest of the time they were running straight ahead behind good blocking by the bigger Ayden-Grifton linemen.

"We knew we had a size advantage in the line and we felt like we could overpower them," Sauls said. "For the first time, we executed on offense."

The win was an important one for the Chargers, Sauls said. After an 0-3 start, they have won their last two ballgames, both Eastern Carolina Conference encounters. "Hopefully, we gained more confidence in ourselves. This was a good game for us."

The Chargers failed to score on their opening possession, but drove 61 yards to paydirt the next time they got the ball. Holland, as he did all night, did much of the work, most of it between the tackles. But when the Chargers got deep into Panther territory, Calvin Ellison took over. He picked up a first down with a 10-yard plunge up the middle to the four and then carried the ball over from there with 2:36 left in the first quarter.

The only offensive difficulties the Chargers had were on extra point attempts. They missed their first three and converted only three of their seven touchdowns. A fumbled snap prevented a PAT kick after the first Ayden-Grifton touchdown.

North Pitt mounted a long drive early in the second quarter, driving inside the Charger 10, but they were driven back and Ayden-Grifton took over on the 16. On second down, Holland went off left tackle, cut to the outside and raced downfield until Jerry Pitt saved a score by pushing him out of bounds at the Panther 33, a pick-up of 42 yards.

Donnie Jackson scored on a 10-yard run after Holland picked up 11 more yards and a holding penalty moved the ball to the 10. That made it 12-6 with 2:16 left in the half.

The Chargers got one more quick TD just before halftime. North Pitt quarterback Bob Hemingway threw a desperation pass up for grabs and Shelton McCarter, the only player near it, intercepted. He returned the ball 33 yards to the North Pitt 33 to set up Holland's two-yard plunge with 50 seconds left.

It didn't take long for the Chargers to prove that they weren't going to have a second-half letdown after taking an 18-0 lead before intermission. They drove the opening kickoff all the way in for a touchdown.

Anthony Chapman reeled off 19 yards on a pitchout and Holland picked up 23 more up the middle. Holland went inside again for six yards down to the Panther 13 and Chapman scored from the 14 and McCarter kicked the PAT to make it 33-0.

On the Panthers' first play after the kickoff, a Hemingway pitch attempt was batted down by Chris Phillips and he recovered the ball for the Chargers at the North Pitt 30.

This time it took six plays for Ayden-Grifton to cross the goal line with Ellison again doing the honors from the two for his third touchdown of the evening. McCarter's kick attempt was wide left and the score remained 39-0 with 3:30 left in the third quarter.

The Panthers picked up one of their first downs after the kickoff, but Hemingway was hit by Brady Quinn and fumbled this ball to Larry Chapman on the next play and the Chargers were off on their final TD drive.

Jackson came in to direct the offense and his keeper around left end picked up 16 yards to the North Pitt one. He called his own number from there and snuck over with 10:17 left in the game. McCarter added the kick to make it 46-0.

When the Panthers finally got on the scoreboard, they struck quickly. They took over following the kickoff at their own 25 and moved the ball to the 40 where William Knight took a pitch around the right side, broke a tackle and put a move on the Ayden-Grifton defensive back to score on a 60-yard run. That run was nearly half the Panthers' total offense.

North Pitt is now 4-1 overall and 1-1 in the ECC. A disappointed, but not devastated Smith said, "We don't feel like we're that bad. We just want to get where we can compete in the conference. It takes time.

"We'll be back; and we're going to win some more ballgames this year somewhere."

The Chargers are at North Lenior next Friday night, while the Panthers will host Southern Nash.

Williamston Rally Falls Short Of Pack

Williamston scored on its first possession of the first period, driving 72 yards after the kickoff. Peele got the first score on a one-yard run.

Washington came back in the second quarter to tie it up after recovering a fumble at the Williamston 25. Jimmy Moore went over from ten yards out and Karl Sayce's extra point tied it up.

Williamston came back with another score on the first possession of the second half, moving 59 yards for the score. Peele finally went over from the seven and Victor Thomas added his second PAT kick for a 14-7 lead.

Washington then scored back-to-back touchdowns following two more Tiger bobbles. They got the first after taking over on the Tiger 26, with Mike Jackson going over from the one. Sayce kicked to tie it at 14-14. Following the kickoff, Williamston again turned the ball over, fumbling at the 33. William Boyd scored from the ten and Sayce's kick made it 21-14.

Williamston then went for the victory, but the two-point run try fell short of the end zone, preserving the Washington victory.

Williamston is now 1-1 in the conference, as is Washington. The Tigers are 1-4 overall, while Washington is 4-1. Williamston travels to Tarboro next Friday, while Washington is host to West Carteret.

Greene Central Rips Conley

SNOW HILL — Greene Central romped to a 34-0 victory over D.H. Conley Friday night as the Rams won their first Eastern Carolina Conference game of the season.

The Rams dominated the game, piling up 282 yards in offense to just 79 for the Vikings.

Greene Central started the scoring in the first period when Greg Holmes broke away on a 52-yard run to the end zone. Jim Fulghum kicked the PAT for a 7-0 lead that held the rest of the quarter.

The Rams came back with two second period scores. John Washington drove in from four yards away, and Ken Johnson scored on a two-yard keeper. Fulghum kicked after each score, but a Viking broke through to block the second, leaving it at 20-0 at the half.

After being shut out in the third period, Greene Central came back with two more scores in the final quarter. Johnson got his second score of the night, going over from the one. That had been set up by a 55-yard run by Holmes.

The other score was a three-yard run by Marvin Suggs, set up by a pass interception by Jeff Scott.

Greene Central missed on two other threats, when field goal attempts were off-target. Conley threatened twice, but failed to push the ball into the end zone.

The result left both teams with 1-1 Eastern Carolina records. Both are also 2-3 overall.

Roanoke Runs By Beddingfield

SARATOGA — Roanoke High School opened its Eastern Plains Conference season with a victory Friday night as the Redskins took a 22-13 win over Beddingfield.

Tony Whitfield led the way for Roanoke, rushing for 130 yards in the game and scoring the team's first touchdown, a 45-yard run in the first quarter. The conversion run failed.

Beddingfield took a brief lead later in the period when Theodore Holley scored from two yards out and Al Hardison kicked the PAT to make it 7-6.

The Redskins regained the lead in the second quarter. Charles Hines went over from the four and Glen Cargile ran the conversion to make it 14-7.

Neither team scored again until the final period of play. In the fourth quarter, Hines capped his second touchdown, this time on a 10-yard run. Barton Roberson ran for the PAT.

Beddingfield's final score came later in the period on a 55-yard pass from Alton Weaver to Dell Ballard. The conversion run was stopped short.

Freeman Leads Farmville To 46-13 Pasting Of Firebirds

FARMVILLE — Farmville Central quarterback Donald Freeman scored three touchdowns and passed for two others in leading the Jaguars to a 46-13 romp past Southern Nash Friday night.

The victory was the second straight for the defending Eastern Carolina Conference champs against league competition. Farmville is 4-1 overall.

Southern Nash threw a slight scare into the Jaguars scoring first for a 7-0 lead. That came on a 56-yard pass from Paul Moragan to Wayne Grady. Grady also added the PAT for the lead that held throughout the first period.

But the Jaguars came back with two scores in the second quarter to take a 14-7 halftime lead. Freeman got things started with a 27-yard pass to Donald Reid, but a two-point try failed leaving the Jaguars trailing, 7-6.

Freeman came back later in the period to score on a five-yard run, and Roger Joyner got a two-point run for the 14-7 lead.

Farmville added three scores in the third period, while Southern got its second and last. Freeman got the first Jaguar touchdown on a 22-yard run.

Southern then came back with another Morgan to Grady pass, this one of 67 yards. That cut the lead to 20-13.

Farmville scored again when Calvin Horne intercepted a Firebird pass and returned it 23 yards for the score. Reid added the PAT kick.

Freeman got his third score of the night later in the period on a three-yard run. That ran the lead to 33-13.

The Jaguars got two more scores in the final quarter. Joyner scored on a five-yard run, and Freeman hit James Tyson for an 87-yard touchdown pass. Reid added a kick after the final score.

Freeman led the Jaguar offense with 94 yards in 12 carries. Tyson had 152 yards in six receptions.

Grady paced the Southern Nash game, catching six passes for 191 yards. Farmville held the Firebirds to just seven yards on the ground.

Farmville travels to D.H. Conley on Friday, while Southern Nash, now 0-2 in the league and 2-3 overall, is at North Pitt.

Pittsburgh Sweeps Pair From Philadelphia; Tightens Race

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

The National League East race took a bizarre twist Friday night, and the Pittsburgh Pirates couldn't be happier at the turn of events.

They won the opener 5-4 when two Philadelphia outfielders watched each other as a fly ball fell between them, then Garry Maddox threw the ball away to enable Ed Ott to score the winning run in the ninth inning. And they took the second game 2-1 as Phillies reliever Warren Brusstar balked with the bases loaded in the ninth.

The Pirates get their chance today when they take on the Phils in the third game of their do-or-die weekend series. If the Pirates win it and win again Sunday, they'll travel to Cincinnati for a makeup game on Monday. Win that and they win the division; lose it and they'll face the Phils in a one-game playoff.

Philadelphia, meanwhile, needs to win either today or Sunday to take the division title. But the champagne stayed on ice, uncorked, Friday night.

In other National League games Friday night, the San Diego Padres beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 3-1, the Cincinnati Reds defeated the Atlanta Braves 7-2, the San Francisco Giants edged the Houston Astros 2-1, the Montreal Expos topped the St. Louis Cardinals 7-5 and the New York Mets and Chicago Cubs split a doubleheader, the Mets taking the opener 3-2 and the Cubs winning the nightcap 5-4.

Padres 3, Dodgers 1

Rollie Fingers recorded his 37th save for San Diego to tie a National League record. Fingers relieved starter John D'Acquisto, 4-3, with two on and two out in the seventh inning and struck out Joe Ferguson on three pitches to end the threat.

Reds 7, Braves 2

Pete Rose drove in five runs with a three-run home run and a two-run single for Cincinnati. He now has 197 hits for the season in his bid to become the first player to amass 200 hits in 10 different seasons.

The Reds' George Foster belted his 38th home run of the season, a two-run shot. He leads the NL with 117 runs batted in.

Giants 2, Astros 1

Ed Halicki fired a seven-hitter for his first victory since Aug. 27 as the Giants set a major league record with their 42nd one-run victory of the season. The 1969 New York Mets held the old record of 41.

Mets 3-4, Cubs 2-5

Nino Espinosa pitched 71-3 strong innings and Doug Flynn contributed a run-scoring triple as the Mets won the opener, but Jerry White smacked a solo homer and Manny Trillo and Dave Rader drove in two runs each as the Cubs took the nightcap.

Expos 7, Cards 5

Pinch-hitter Sam Mejias' runscoring single with two out in the ninth inning snapped a 5-5 tie for Montreal. The Expos added an insurance run on an RBI single by Dave Cash.

St. Louis had tied the score in the eighth when Garry Templeton singled, stole second and scored on Dane Iorg's single.

New Coaches Get Chance To Compare Notes In Sunday Game

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

Marv Levy and Chuck Knox, a couple of new coaches working on National Football League club rebuilding programs, can compare notes when the Kansas City Chiefs and Buffalo Bills meet Sunday.

Both teams have 1-3 records in the young season, but they bring different dispositions into this American Conference game. The Chiefs are dragging after three straight losses including last week's 23-17 overtime toughie against defending champion Denver. The Bills, on the other hand, are looking up after knocking off Baltimore 24-17 last Sunday.

Elsewhere this weekend, two of the three remaining unbeatens will be on the road with Pittsburgh visiting the New York Jets and Los Angeles at New Orleans. Washington, the other 4-0 club, is at home against Dallas in the Monday night game.

In other games, Houston is at Cleveland, San Diego visits New England, Seattle goes to Denver, Detroit plays Green Bay at Milwaukee, Tampa Bay hosts Minnesota, the New York Giants play at Atlanta, Cincinnati goes to San Francisco, Oakland plays at Chicago, Baltimore is at home to Philadelphia and St. Louis visits Miami.

"I think possibly we feel this loss more than the other two," said Levy after the Chiefs lost their OT game to the Broncos. "We played so hard and with a tremendous dedication to winning the game. The players played their hearts out and they didn't succeed."

Levy termed the loss to Denver a bitter disappointment. "But we'll just have to pick ourselves up and go after Buffalo. Each week, we have to continue to improve in every area and, if we do, success will come our way."

The Bills can attest to that. After dropping three straight under Knox, they stung Baltimore last week, riding the pinpoint passing of Joe Ferguson, who took over first place in AFC passing statistics.

"The guys have been working so hard that I'm glad they finally got the satisfaction of winning," said Knox. "No one has worked harder to be successful than Joe Ferguson; he's been coming on and improving each week."

It is that week-to-week improvement that coaches like Levy and Knox must look for to measure their effectiveness.

A couple of teams without those kind of problems are unbeaten Pittsburgh and Los Angeles.

The Rams are riding the NFL's stingiest defense, allowing only 34 points in four consecutive victories. They take their streak to New Orleans against the Saints, who are second in the NFC West behind LA.

The Steelers also have won four straight, allowing just 39 points for the league's second best defense. One more win against the Jets Sunday would give the club its best start ever.

Opposing coaches Chuck Noll of the Steelers and Walt Michaels can talk over old times. They were linebacking teammates with Cleveland's 1954-1955 NFL champions.

The Browns, whose controversial overtime loss to the Steelers last week ended a three-game winning streak for new coach Sam Rutigliano, try to recover against Houston. The Oilers own the AFC's No. 1 rusher in Heisman Trophy winner Earl Campbell, who has gained 399 yards in his first four professional games.

Yanks, Bosox Both In Wins

By KEN RPPOPORT

The days are dwindling down to a precious few for the Boston Red Sox.

"There's only one thing we can do," says Boston Manager Don Zimmer. "We just have to go out and win the next two days and hope that Cleveland can take at least one game from New York."

The Red Sox have their backs to the proverbial wall — in this case, the "Green Monster" at Fenway Park — and must connect this weekend against the Toronto Blue Jays to keep their hopes alive in the American League East race.

The Red Sox stayed on the heels of the pacesetting Yankees with an 11-0 victory over the Blue Jays Friday night. That kept Boston a game behind the Yankees, who defeated the Cleveland Indians 3-1.

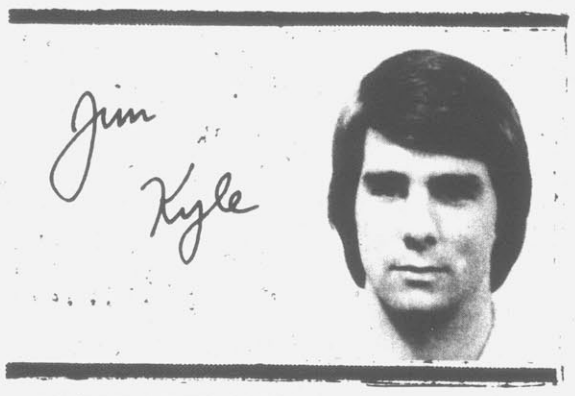

Elsewhere in the American League, the Kansas City Royals blanked the Minnesota Twins 4-0; the Detroit Tigers edged the Baltimore Orioles 3-2; the Milwaukee Brewers turned back the Oakland A's 3-1; the Chicago White Sox outscored the California Angels 9-6 and the Texas Rangers walloped the Seattle Mariners 11-4.

Jim Rice became the American League's first slugger to reach 400 total bases in a season since Joe DiMaggio in 1937 and relief specialist Bob Stanley allowed just two hits in seven innings in an unusual start for Boston.

FISHERIES PERSONNEL from the N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission recently stocked 13,000 striped-white bass hybrids in the Campbells Creek and Spring Creek waterfowl impoundments near Hobucken in an effort to improve fishing in these areas.

"These impoundments present us with an unusual problem because they're managed primarily for waterfowl," said Bill Miller, a Commission fisheries biologist from Kinston. "The water level in the impoundments is drawn down every four or five years, and most of the fish either die or are pumped out of the impoundments."

Miller hopes that the experimental stocking of the hybrid bass will overcome the problem of losing fish every four years. The hybrid bass should reach 10 to 12 inches in length in one year; and by the time the impoundments are drawn down again, the fish should weigh from four to five pounds.

"Anglers should enjoy good fishing about two years after the initial stocking," added Miller. "And the fishing should stay good until we have to drain the impoundment. Of course, we have to restock the hybrids after the drainage, but we already have to do that anyway."

In the past, when largemouth bass were stocked in the impoundments, fishing for them was good, but the fish seldom reached larger sizes. One to three pound bass are common in the impoundments, but they seldom grow larger.

According to Miller, the food supply in the impoundments is sufficient for the hybrids to attain maximum growth. From past experience gained in stocking Piedmont reservoirs, Miller feels the hybrid bass will probably feed mainly on sunfish.

"The small fingerlings which we stock will feed mostly on bottom organisms, which are abundant, until the fish reach a larger size," said Miller. "Then they will begin feeding on other fish. In addition to the sunfish in the impoundments, there is a good supply of saltwater prey species available that were pumped into the impoundments when they were initially filled.

The striped-white bass hybrids were chosen for the stocking project because of their growth rate, Miller said. They also should provide excellent sport fishing. Other stockings have indicated that the fish display hybrid vigor. By crossing the two species, the offspring become more aggressive and are more easily caught than either of the parent species.

The fish were raised at the Fayetteville hatchery. Female white bass were crossed with male striped bass to produce the hybrids.

Training Time For Hunters

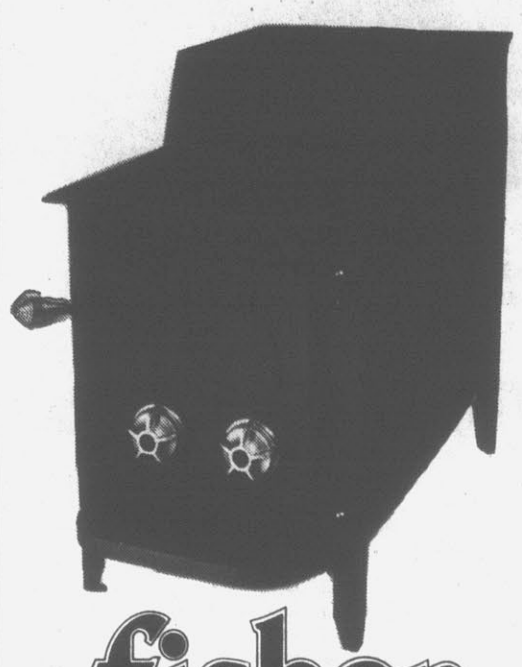

Every year, heart attacks kill thousands of people in the United States and hunters are not immune to this malady. Hunters, like any other sportsmen, should be in good shape and the best way to accomplish this through a regular training program.

There are several steps a hunter can take to minimize the chances of suffering a heart attack in the field. The first is to get a physical examination from a qualified physician and have him recommend an exercise program that will fit the hunter's needs and capabilities before the season rolls around.

Preseason hiking or tracking is one way to get exercise and can also play off during hunting season. This helps the hunter become familiar with the land he will hunt, helps him become familiar with the patterns of game movement and also helps him get used to the activity of the hunting season.

The main thing to remember while hunting is not to overdo it. Stop and take a break when fatigue sets in and continue hunting after the rest.

Ford Agrees To Join KC Kings

By SCOTT KRAFT
Associated Press Writer

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — General Manager Joe Axelson held the Kansas City Kings jersey up to Phil Ford, the club's first-round draft pick who almost got away.

"He'll be wearing No. 1," a beaming Axelson said at a hastily called news conference Friday night. "And we hope he wears it an awful long time ...you will, won't you?"

The two-time All-America guard from North Carolina smiled and nodded, confirming a five-year contract with the Kings. Four tense months had passed since the 6-foot-2 playmaker was drafted by the National Basketball Association club and promptly remarked: "I doubt that you'll see me in a Kansas City uniform next season."

Ford acknowledged Friday that he didn't want to play for a team that was losing or rebuilding. But he believes the Kings, who finished 31-51 last season, and Cotton Fitzsimmons, Kansas City's first-styear head coach, can be winners.

"They've (Axelson and Fitzsimmons) convinced me there's a good program here in Kansas City," Ford said. "This is a good city, and I hope we can bring a world championship here.

Ford, who was to begin workouts with Kansas City today, added, "I'm glad things are behind us now. I'm coming into Kansas City with an open mind. I'm not going to be unhappy or sulking."

Throughout the negotiations, Axelson was stubborn. When he announced "the door is closed" on possible trade talks involving Ford, he added: "Ford is our property for a year, come hell or high water."

"We had some real obstacles earlier in the summer, but we got pretty serious in the last week," he said.

Asked why the Kings picked Ford when they knew he might not play for Kansas City, Fitzsimmons said: "We had to draft him and then take our chances from there. We needed to turn this thing around — and I think Phil Ford can do it."

Fitzsimmons said Ford "will not be rushed into play, although I'm sure he'll catch up quickly on what he's missed."

Axelson said he believes the guard tandem of Otis Birdsong and Ford, "could be a backcourt for all time in this league."

Ford and his agents met with Axelson throughout the day Friday. Terms of the contract were not released, but Axelson said, "we spent more than we thought we were going to."

Ford, Carolina's all-time assist leader with 753, was considered the best point guard in the collegiate ranks last year and was named player of the year by the U.S. Basketball Writers, the National Association of Basketball Coaches and Sporting News. He was the leading scorer in the school's history with 2,290 points, an 18.6 average.

His statistics improved each year as North Carolina, climaxed by his senior year when he averaged 20.8 points a game. Ford was a consensus all-America his junior and senior years. He was also a member of the 1976 Olympic team, which won a gold medal.

Jackson and Lou Piniella delivered consecutive run-scoring singles in the eighth inning to rally New York past Cleveland. The Indians had broken a scoreless tie in the top of the inning, nicking Jim Beattie for the game's first run on a two-out RBI single by Rick Manning.

Beattie allowed four hits in the eight innings he worked, and then turned the lead over to relief ace Rich Gossage, who earned his 26th save of the season.

Royals 4, Twins 0

Dennis Leonard pitched five innings of two-hit ball for his 21st victory as Kansas City beat Minnesota. The Royals, with their third straight American League West title already tucked away, gave their reserves and minor leaguers a chance to perform.

Tigers 3, Orioles 2

Jim Slaton won his 17th game with the help of John Hiller's 14th save as Detroit beat Baltimore. Baltimore's Rich Dauer tied a major league record for consecutive errorless chances by second basemen when he handled his 418th chance without an error in the eighth inning.

Brewers 3, A's 1

Bill Travers hurled a five-hitter to pitch Milwaukee over Oakland. Milwaukee scored the only runs it needed for Travers, 12-11, in the second on two-out, RBI singles off Keough, 8-15, by Don Money and Cecil Cooper.

White Sox 9, Angels 6

Steve Trout, son of former Detroit pitching star Dizzy Trout, won his third game without a loss with late relief help and Harry Chappas drove in three runs with a pair of sacrifice flies and a single to pace Chicago over California.

Rangers 11, Mariners 4

Toby Harrah blasted a threerun homer and Bobby Bond drove in two runs and stole three bases to lead Texas over Seattle.

LIKES CONTRACTS

BOSTON (AP) — The celebrated lawyer and agent for sports personalities, Bob Woolf, is not too happy over the trend in athletics which finds more and more performers seeking renegotiation of contracts that have a year or more to run.

"Even though I represent athletes," Woolf wrote, "I don't consider them entirely blameless — especially in the area of renegotiating contracts. I believe in the sanctity of a contract and, in fact, I have lost several clients just over that one point."

SOUNDNESS A MUST

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — S is for speed, stamina, and soundness and all three go into the makeup of a great race horse, according to the famous breeder, Leslie Combs II.

"Soundness rates just as high with me as speed and stamina," Combs said. "The important thing is you can't win a race unless your horse is sound enough to run in it."

Yankees Close Dressing Room

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The troublesome issue of clubhouse access for reporters became a cause celebre at Yankee Stadium Friday night and produced a mid-game reversal of newly-stated dressing room rules by the New York Yankees.

Acting under a clarification of an earlier sex descrimination ruling issued by Federal Court Judge Constance Baker Motley, the Yankees at first said they would close their dressing room for 45 minutes after games to give players time to get dressed. Then, the team abruptly changed its mind.

Judge Motley had ruled earlier in the week that the Yankees must open their clubhouse at the same time to both male and female reporters, affording them equal access to the players.

The ruling came in a suit by Sport Illustrated reporter Mellisa Ludtke against Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and the Yankees after she was denied entry to the dressing room during the 1977 World Series.

In an amended order issued Friday, Judge Motley gave the defendants three options to comply with the decision. They could install swinging doors or curtains to provide the players with privacy, or provide a press lounge for post-game interviews, or bar all members of the press "for any period of time sufficient to permit all players to dress or undress before admitting any member of the press to the locker room."

The Yankees chose the third option and announced a 45-minute ban on dressing room access for all media covering their games. "We have to abide by the judge's decision," said George Steinbrenner, principal owner of the team. "The Yankees didn't do it. Baseball is going to appeal this, but we aren't."

Members of the New York Chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America reacted angrily to the club's action.

"I'm highly incensed with the Yankees," said Murray Chass of the New York Times, vicechairman of the chapter. "They are hiding behind a court order to keep us out for 45 minutes. I'm even more incensed that the Yankees and baseball are trying ot force the male sports writers to band together to prevent the women from entering the locker rooms. I totally resent that they are using us."

Defining 'Comfort' Considered A Peril

To Energy Conservation

The major peril to energy conservation is the individual's definition of the word "comfort," according to Reese Helms, director of Energy Conservation for the Greenville Utilities Commission, who says the word simply means "being in thermal equilibrium with your environment."

Helms, who is currently waging a professional campaign, which he takes rather personally, against inefficient home heating and cooling, and wasteful spending by homeowners and apartment dwellers, said in a recent interview that his strategy is based on "spending money" and "habits, or lifestyle."

The rationale for this strategy takes into consideration the different factors that can help any particular individual obtain comfort while saving energy and dollars.

"The answer I give most of the time when people call to question me on energy is that it depends," he said.

"Different people keep warm under certain circumstances. Take temperature for example. In terms of temperature, some people can only be comfortable with the setting over 70.

"For every temperature higher and the attempt to maintain it means a three to five per cent increase in whatever system is used for heating.

"This is also an indicator of what could be saved by dialing down: for every degree you dial down you can expect a three to five per cent savings.

"So temperature is a direct and significant factor as to what it costs to heat a home.

"From a medical standpoint, it's true that elderly people require higher temperatures, as do people with certain afflictions.

"As a rule it is healthier to maintain a lower temperature. It doesn't cost anything to turn it down, but the savings can be significant.

"My family, we're 65'ers."

The energy saver said that when it gets cold "you can put on more clothing. Putting on a sweater is considerably cheaper.

"Also, it's been found, as would be expected, that there are different levels between men and women, and between people in terms of age. Women are generally more warm-natured than men."

People ask if it is more economical to turn back the temperature at night while they are sleeping.

"Of course you could use a blanket," he said, "so sleeping is no problem.

"If you turn down when you go to sleep and turn up when you get up, it can mean significant savings.

"In fact, night setback works well for most systems, except for heat pump systems. A heat pump system is a slow recovery system and has to run somewhat longer to bring the temperature back up.

"As far as GUC is concerned, we recommend a setting of 68, if not lower, and adding clothing if necessary to keep warm. This will mean savings and warmth.

"It depends on the interaction of three systems," he said — "the structural system (or the non- energized system), the energized or possibly mechanical system, and the human system.

"It is the interaction of these three systems that determines, wherever anybody lives, what the energy consumption pattern for any particular residence will be.

"Why does it cost me more to heat my home than it does you? You really can't say, because it involves so many variables ... whether it's a severe winter or a mild winter. We don't know what the upcoming season will be like, but it will have a dramatic effect on how much energy is consumed."

The first consideration is the orientation of the structure and its relationship to other buildings: "Is it exposed to the wind and is there a natural or artificial wind barrier?

"The characteristics of the structure itself, whether it's an apartment, home, trailer, or tent, are a big determinant as to how much energy is being consumed."

1. Design — what shape is it — is it a long thin rectangle, a square, one story or two-story? Into the design you must consider how many windows and doors, how much glass and where it is.

"Certain designs and shapes are inherently more energy conserving. A slightly rectangular home, not quite square, is more energy-efficiently designed than an H-shaped or L-shaped home. It has more to do with the exposed wall surface area."

Helms said a home 30-feet by 50-feet, with a ceiling of eight feet, would have an exposed exterior wall area of 1,280-feet, whereas a longer structure of 25 feet by 60- feet would have an exposed surface area of 1,360-feet.

"A slight rectangle is better than a perfect square— a house built deeper is more energy conserving than a house built longer," he said. "Even more energy inefficient is a home with L-shaped wings, because it would have more surface area exposed to the outside.

"The idea has been set forth that a two-story is more efficient than a one- story — this is not necessarily true. If the one-story home is built relatively deep, it would be as efficient as the two-story home."

Currently there is a growing interest in looking at energy conservation from the ground up, and that includes design.

"For years there have been popular home styles which are still built and sold because people like the way they look. But you can blend energy efficiency and looks (or aesthetics) into the home.

"How many windows are you going to start putting in there? The more glass area the more heat loss you're going to have, because glass loses from eight to 12 times more heat per square foot than does a typically insulated wall section. Traditionally, the average home has around 14-15 per cent of the floor area as glass.

"Another way of reducing energy loss is to reduce the glass to floor area ratio. A home of 1,500 feet with 15 per cent glass to floor ratio would have 225 square feet of glass. In the design of the home, if you reduced that glass to floor ratio to 10 per cent you would see a significant savings in heat loss.

"Some of the big offenders are sliding glass doors (found in most apartments) and bay windows and French doors. French doors are particularly troublesome because they have a lot of glass area. If they are not protected by storm doors or some type of overhang they will warp and result in even more energy loss.

"That's why I recommend that if you have to have French doors that you make sure they're double glazed. You can cut heat loss in half by using double panes."

Even the most energy efficient design and how well it works is determined by the quality of construction, he said.

"Modular homes and factory homes have the advantage in terms of this feature because when they are built there is no risk of human error and the construction is tighter.

"This is a problem in virtually all building construction; if attention is not given to the home, particularly when it's being framed and dried-in, then a lot of energy inefficiencies can be built into the home.

"The builder should address himself to these problems — using more insulation and tighter construction.

"I spend a great deal of time evaluating the quality of new construction in terms of thermal efficiency. In one particular home there were several batts of fiberglass insulation left off, and there were two wall cavity sections missed altogether.

"Building costs are so high that builders are looking for ways to reduce building costs. The key is that they have to find ways of doing these things without necessarily increasing the cost of the house; and I praise them for that. I'm not fixing any blame on anybody, but we do need tighter controls: this includes general contractors and sub-contractors.

"One concern of the builder is that the buyer may have to pay more for extra materials, but the homeowner can save in the long run with tighter construction."

Unlike the homeowner, the person who rents is somewhat limited with regards to the energy efficiency of the structure, but there is the flexibility of inquiring from the manager what the energy characteristics of the apartment are.

"People who live in apartments and those who have lived in apartments for years — if they see cracks or feel air coming in, they should make the manager aware of these things that could be corrected," he said.

"From the manager's point of view — and everyone talks about high rent — putting in storm windows and caulking will mean the rent has to be raised.

"There are some cheap types of weather stripping that renters could buy themselves and install in a matter of minutes. For an investment of $5 or so, they can help seal out some of that cold air coming into the apartment.

"You can always make storm windows by using cheap plastic materials.

"Renters do have some alternatives if the owner of the apartment is just not in a position to do these things himself. I'm not in a position to condemn apartment owners who do not go around placing storm windows, because there is the cost situation.

"But the person who is building has unlimited potential for incorporating energy saving features into the home that is being built."

Helms said his office offers advice and information to anyone who wants it. "Particularly for people building, we have tips we can pass along. We have a lot of people who come in and say 'Tell me what to do;' and we are offering a valuable service in that respect."

2. The energy using system — all the things in the home that consume electricity or energy.

"It's good for homeowners to know what things in the home use the most energy," he said.

"Someone who says I'm going to use candles instead of lights at night, but keeps the thermostat above 68 and uses a lot of hot water, is missing the boat because light consumes only five per cent or less (typically) of the total energy usage.

"Still, turn out the lights when they are not in use — only five per cent — but why use it if you don't need to use it?"

Water heating — a lot of potential savings here, Helms said.

"Water heating is generally the second largest user of total energy in the home. But for people who heat with oil, an electric water heater is probably the number one electricity user.

"One of the fastest ways to save money is to check the thermostat reading on the water heater. If it is set at 150 degrees, you might consider turning it back to 120, which could result in about a six per cent savings for total electric customers or a 12 per cent savings for people who use oil or some other type of fuel.

"Turning the stat back results in savings equal to about one week of free hot water per month," he added.

Customers should be cautioned to turn off the breaker switch and make sure no power is going to the water heater before checking anything.

"A lot of people don't know where the thermostat is located on a water heater," he said. "The most common type of water heater around here is the tall, cylindrical type (apartments generally use the flat table type), which has two panels that can be removed by unscrewing the set screws. Sometimes there will be some insulation that you have to pull back so you can see the face of the thermo dial. Then there is a little pointer that points to the setting, and if it reads high it can be turned back with a flathead screwdriver.

"If you are not sure the main breaker is off, cut the main power because there is a risk of shock involved."

Is 120 degrees warm enough? "Yes it is for almost all household functions," he said. "But the question of the dishwasher remains. It seems that most automatic dishwashers require a temperature of 140 degrees to effectively clean the dishes. But this doesn't mean you have to keep the water heater set in one position for an appliance you only use once or twice a week.

"Most dishwashers have booster heaters that bring the water temperature up to the necessary level. Also, there is supposed to be a detergent that does not require 140-degree water for washing dishes."

Is it worth the effort to spend money on energy saving devices such as a timer?

"I think persons who are thinking about getting an automatic timer should consider several things: how much water do they use? (the national average shows that hot water usage is somewhere around 20 gallons per day per person.)

"I think timers are a better investment for people whose hot water usage is comparatively higher. A couple with no children, relatively conservative, and both work and are gone during the day, compared to a family of four, who use considerably more hot water — most likely a timer would be a better investment for the large family simply because it uses more hot water."

Another example. "Take two homes where the hot water is not being used, but is being maintained at 120 degrees: one of the homes has a timer which keeps the heater off for 12 hours and then turns it on again, as opposed to the other home where the water tank has not been turned off with a timer; at the end of 24 hours there will be little or no difference in the amount of energy they use to keep the water at that temperature.

"So it depends on how much water they use, and that is not to say that the timer saves that much electricity, because it has to make up time lost, as opposed to the water tank that stays on. People should not conclude that a timer is going to save money. You have to look at your particular situation.

"Convenience is a factor in favor of the timer though, because it is more convenient than switching the heater on and off manually and it saves wear and tear on the circuit breaker."

The average price range for a timer is $20-$30, with an electrician's fee for installation of $25-$30, for a total cost of $45-$60 installed.

Refrigerators, stoves, washers and dryers are all major energy consumers in the home, according to Helms. However, more information on major appliances can be obtained at the Energy Conservation office.

3. The people factor, or human system.

"We use energy for comfort and convenience," he said, "and how much we use is going to depend on our attitude about the way energy should be used.

"The challenge I would make to individual homeowners who want to reduce their bill and save energy is that they should adopt the energy conservation ethic: use energy wisely. Use what you need, but need what you use."

Helms said his office is currently developing a program, which he reluctantly calls "Kilowatch," to help people get started on an energy budget which will help them measure the amount of energy being used and record the results.

"We just need to get some things printed that will facilitate record keeping for our customers; so an energy saver's handbook is being developed now. It will teach them how to record meter readings, if they don't know how, because if they feel serious enough to set up an energy budget they must be able to read a meter and record the readings.

"We're also looking for candidates to participate in some energy consumption research regarding electricity users such as water heaters and timers. Before we can give more than an "it depends" answer to questions, we have to test these devices and determine how they work and how much they save.

"We hope to find a number of families who are willing to help us collect some firsthand information so we can compare it to other similar situations. For instance, we would like to take a family of four that uses a water heater timer and compare their water consumption with another family of four that does not use a timer. Then we can get some indication as to how effective the device really is."

Another approach for detecting energy wastefulness is infrared thermography, which would provide a photographic indication of how much heat is escaping from individual homes.

"Its value has been demonstrated to us firsthand. We are attempting to set up or have available infrared equipment this winter, and we would like to begin by getting some idea from customers as to how many would like infrared pictures taken of their homes.

"We would have to charge some type of fee because the equipment is extremely expensive; hoepefully, the fee would not exceed $10 per customer.

"We would like for our customers to go ahead and contact us if they are interested," he said. "What they would be getting for their money would be a closeup from the ground of their homes and detailed information about what the pictures show: in most cases what they show is obvious, but more importantly the photos sometimes detect heat loss problems that are not so obvious. Thermograms can detect problems you wouldn't think existed. This is a service we want to provide because its ability to detect heat loss is unparalleled by any other method we know of. It can see things we wouldn't otherwise be able to see — missing insulation behind walls, insulation you thought was there but is not."

— Humidity: "In the winter if there is more moisture in the air, you can be more comfortable with lower temperatures. Buying a humidifier for energy conservation is something that needs to be looked at more closely. It is a good investment, but only in a limited number of cases. Strictly as an energy conservation strategy, adding a humidifier is limited in its impact."

— Air motion: "In winter the trick is not to have excessive air motion. If a draft occurs because of poor caulking around windows or other cracks exposed to the outside, a person will be more uncomfortable because of increased air motion.

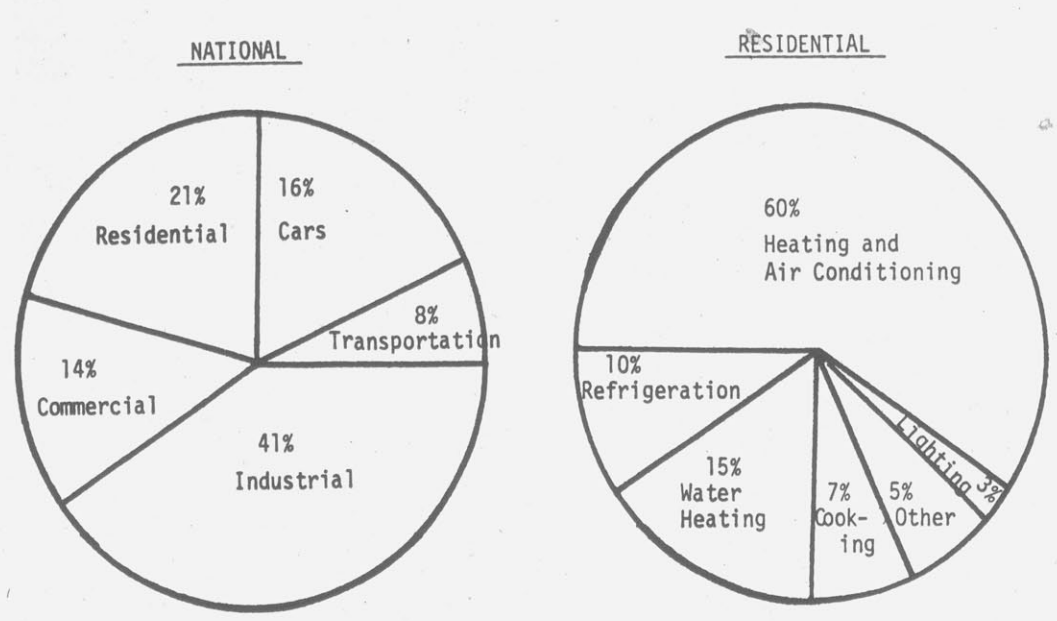

A direct example of the "people factor" can be applied to air motion, he said. The more outside doors are opened and closed, the more air motion will be introduced into the home.

— Mean radiant temperature: "This term refers to the surface temperature of the objects in the house, including walls, ceilings, and surroundings. A person could turn his thermostat up to 80 degrees, but, if he is sitting close to a poorly insulated wall the fact that the wall temperature is lower than the body temperature means that he will be cold. So people are more inclined to be cold when the surface temperature is cold.

"All of these factors are important because they determine how much energy is required to heat a home to the point that the occupants are comfortable."

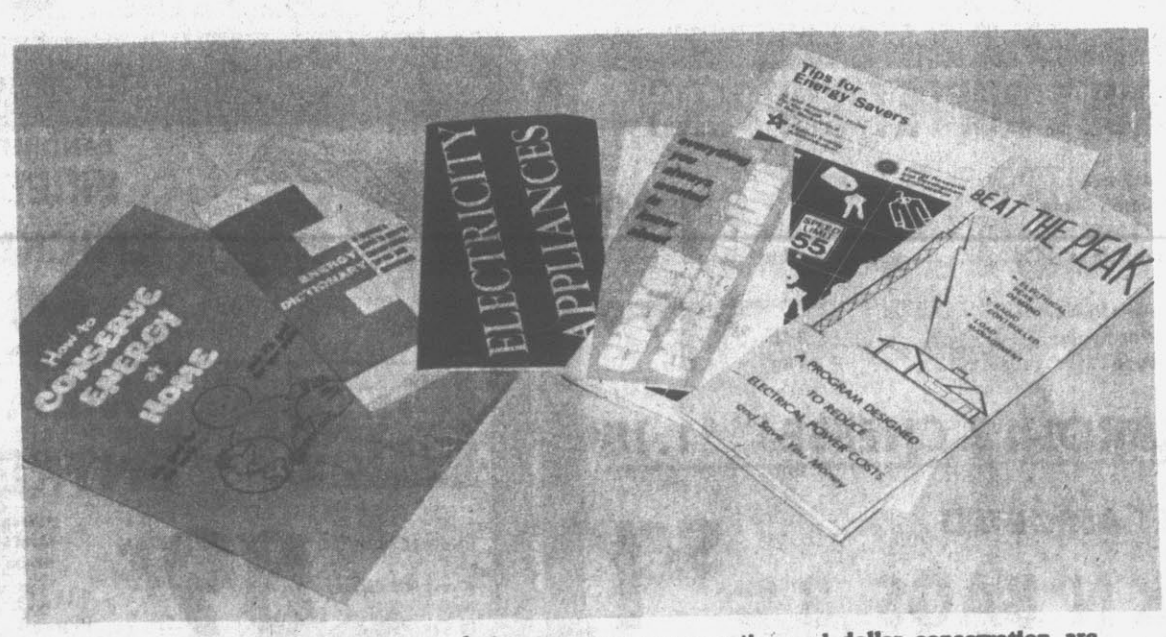

Anyone wishing free information concerning energy conservation may call the Energy Conservation Department of the Greenville Utilities Commission at 752-7166, or visit the office at 200 W. Fifth St. Helms' staff includes Phil Morin, assistant, and Vicki Moody, secretary.

More People Believe Bigger Is Not Always Better For Them

JONATHAN WOLMAN
Associated Press Writer

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — Matthew Cohn, a part-time chimney sweep and enthusiastic salesman of wood-burning stoves, is something of a foot soldier in the "moral equivalent of war."

Cohn runs the North Country Stove Works here. If a garbage man can be called a "sanitation engineer," Cohn could be called "appropriate technologist."

Appropriate technology (AT) is a burgeoning discipline that develops new energy systems and innovative uses for technology in small-scale, decentralized projects. An emigrant from New York, Cohn is part of the loose-knit brigade of entrepreneurs and researchers whose work challenges traditional reliance on expensive, dwindling supplies of fossil fuel.

"You'd have to be crazy not to burn wood around here," Cohn says. "It's everywhere and it's free." Sales have been good in the four months he's run his shop, he says. "I'm a little bit of a missionary here. I want to spread the word about ... wood."

In practically every community, urban and rural, someone is experimenting with alternative technologies, from windmills atop a New York City tenement to a solar greenhouse in the tundra of Upper Michigan; from organic farming in Fresno to a methane conversion system in Great Falls, Mont.

"This area (appropriate technology) is growing by leaps and bounds," says Isao Fugimoto of the University of California-Davis. "People are active in dozens of fields—housing, gardening, farming, food distribution."

In response to this tide of activity, and in an effort to cultivate AT's potential to cushion, slightly, the impact of future fuel shortages, appropriate technology is beginning to draw government support. AT is a tiny but growing element of the effort to achieve energy independence.

Sixty miles from here, in Butte, is the National Center for Appropriate Technology, a small operation funded with $3.3 million from the federal anti-poverty agency, the Community Services Administration. In Washington, the mammoth Department of Energy is establishing an Office of Small-Scale Technology, with funding of at least $8 million for AT.

Several states, including California, Alaska, Massachusetts and Montana are also supporting appropriate technology efforts, or plan to.

The best known, and best funded, projects generally involve "solar systems." Not all solar projects qualify as AT, however. For example, Boeing Corp. is studying the use of satellites for solar power plants — a tour de force of big-ticket, high technology. A typical AT project is more modest.

"Appropriate technology is more than just innovation," says Isao Fugimoto. "We are challenging the bigger-is-better tendency."

Most projects are funded with the spare change and the spare time of the researchers themselves. But government-funded projects are typical of the range of activities in the field. Among those funded in part by the National Center for Appropriate Technology:

—A mining consultant is studying the potential for a small coal mine on the Northern Cheyenne reservation at Lame Deer, Mont. Most of the tribe's coal comes from Wyoming now, the NCAT says. It hopes an independent source can be developed.

—The center's largest ($94,000) and best-known project is on the Lower East Side of New York City. There, lowincome teenagers are working on several projects — urban gardening, wind-power energy, solar installations and aquaculture (raising fish for sale as food or fertilizer).

—In Oakland, Calif., a group called Trust for Public Land is building a water-pumping windmill at the Fruitvale Community Garden. The windmill will provide water for the garden, located in the Bay Area, hard hit in recent years by water shortages.

A greenhouse is part of a senior citizen center under construction in Iron River, Mich., where the natural growing season is so short that you ca miss it with a long nap. To use the greenhouse crops, the Ball Corp. is donating part of a cannery operation to the local Community Action Agency.

—In Fresno, Calif., the National Land for People Foundation is involved in an effort to bury two acres of farmland under a foot of organic wastes in a test of no-tillage, no-pesticide farming.

In Chicago, NCAT helped a group working to save the South Shore Railroad with a campaign to increase ridership, figuring that rail commuting is better than automobiles. In Blodgett, Oregon, the Mid-Williamette Valley Growers' Association has started a farmer's market.

"We're interested in developing new relationships, bringing people into closer contact with the farmers and manufacturers who offer products," says Fugimoto, who served as associate director of NCAT before returning to UC-Davis this summer.

One catalyst for appropriate technology is the work of E.F. Schumacher, author of "Small is Beautiful," a book that attracted a world-wide following for the British scientist.

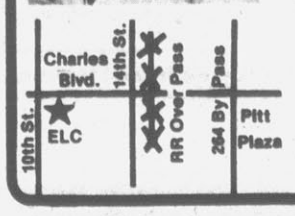

Following Schumacher's death recently, his associate George McRobie recalled, "In 1975, Fritz allowed himself one of his rare predictions (about appropriate technology). The idea, he said, would go through three stages: first, widespread rejection; next, we would be told that it is necessary, but impossible in practice. And finally, that it was both necessary and practical, but that we weren't doing enough of it."

Full Designation Is Granted ECHSA By Dept. Of HEW

Full designation has been granted the Eastern Carolina Health Systems Agency by the Department of HEW, effective today.

With full designation, the agency will have the authority to approve or disapprove, rather than merely comment on, the health programs and projects it reviews. It has been operating under conditional designation for two years.

In the letter confirming the designation, Dr. G. A. Reich, regional health administrator for HEW, said, "Your agency, being one of the newest health planning agencies in Region VI, has made outstanding progress during the period of Conditional Designation."

Roy Selby, executive director says that progress was accomplished with much effort on the part of the staff, the time and interest of the 57 volunteer Governing Body members, and public participation each step of the way. Attendance by the volunteer Governing Body has averaged over 80 percent, in spite of travel distances within the 29-county health service area of Eastern North Carolina.

During conditional designation, the ECHSA developed the 1978'83 Health Systems Plan and the 1978'79 Annual Implementation Plan, and organized a governing body that reflects a balance among various element of the health service area population. Policies and procedures were developed for ECHSA activities and a work program was devised.

The agency reviewed and made recommendations to the State Health Planning and Development Agency on $23,786,723 worth of capital improvements and $67,157,518 worth of federal health projects and programs. The staff also provided technical assistance to communities, groups and organizations working to improve local health care situations.

Public meetings were held at each stage of development of both the agency and its plans to solicit comments and suggestions regarding agency priorities and directions. Efforts were made to coordinate organizational and planning activities with other planning and development agencies in and out of the health service area.

MAGAZINE BIRTHDAY

The Economist Newspaper Group is the United States arm of the British-based company.

Begin Observing Nat'l 4-H Week

Pitt County 4-H members and their adult leaders will join forces today through Saturday with other youth in North Carolina and across the nation to observe National 4-H Week.

The theme of the special observance is "4-H: Freedom to Be," according to Dale Panaro, Associate Extension Agent for 4-H.

"Our 4-H'ers and leaders will rally behind the theme to point out that 4-H is an informal, learn-by-doing approach to education in which young people choose their own projects and set individual goals for achievement," Panaro commented.

During National 4-H Week, Mrs. Panaro pointed out that special events will be held to encourage more youth, ages nine to 19, to join 4-H, urge more men, women and older teens to volunteer as 4-H leaders, acknowledge support for the 4-H program, recognize important contributions of parents and consider future needs and plans for the group.

The 4-H program is conducted through county offices by the North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service at North Carolina State University and A & T State University.

County School Lunch Menu

Lunchroom menus for the coming week at the Pitt County schools have been announced as follow:

Monday — Cheeseburger on bun, french fries, cole slaw, fruit cup, milk;

UTC Sights On Carrier Corp.

By MARK POTTS
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — United Technologies Corp. is at it again.

UTC, the aerospace conglomerate that has been one of the most aggressive participants in the takeover game, has set its sights on Carrier Corp., the company founded by and named after the man who produced the first commercial air conditioner.

Carrier is fighting the $1 billion proposal. UTC originally proposed a tax-free merger with Carrier through a securities exchange, but when Carrier's board rejected that idea, UTC said it would go ahead with a tender offer for 49 percent of Carrier's stock and complete the merger through a cash deal or exchange of securities.

Although UTC indicated a willingness to negotiate, Carrier Chairman Melvin C. Holm said "United's 'offer' to negotiate a merger, coupled with the threat of an imminent tender offer, is tantamount, in the board's view, to blackmail and represents an unconscionable course of conduct by United."

But United's conduct may not have been the only thing about the offer Carrier objected to. "We believe the United offer is clearly inadequate from a financial point of view," said Holm, leaving the door open a crack.

Barring a unilateral move by United to raise its offer from the current $28 a share, Carrier could force United's hand by finding another company to make a competing offer — a "white knight," in takeover parlance.

Carrier denied reports that it had discussed merger with other companies, holding to Helms' statement that "We believe that in the long run the interests of all parties will be best served if Carrier remains an independent company."

In other business developments this past week:

—Many of the nation's railway clerks walked off the job in sympathy to the three-month clerks' strike against the Norfolk & Western Railway. The strike closed most of the nation's railroads, hurt much of the nation's industry and led President Carter to form a railstrike emergency board to mediate the dispute.

Merger OK'd

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A merger between American Credit Corp. and Barclays Bank International Ltd. of London was approved Friday by American Credit shareholders.

With 76 percent of the outstanding shares represented, the vote was 99 percent in favor of the merger. The merger is now subject to the approval of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System.

American Credit, which reported earnings of $14.3 million last year, is a diversified financial company with operations in commercial and consumer lending, insurance and factoring. The company has about 350 offices in 21 states.

Listens To Handicapped

By MIKE FEINSILBER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Day after day, Max Cleland probably sees more handicapped people than anyone in America. He travels the country searching them out—to see them, and to be seen by them.

Cleland, 36, is the tripleamputee who heads the Veterans Administration. He travels 5,000 miles a month and wherever he is, he goes into the wards of VA hospitals.

He is persuaded by a deep personal experience that the mere sight of him — in his wheelchair, with one arm and no legs but obviously a successful man, full of life and in love with living — is enough to give a psychological boost to the wounded who are still struggling to come to terms with their loss.

"When you're an amputee, your self image is really destroyed," he said in an interview.

"The self you were is no more. There's inevitably a period of depression and a sense of grief and loss, just as though you'd lost a loved one."

There was a time during his 18 months in Army and VA hospitals, Cleland says, when he gave fleeting thoughts to suicide. But he was sustained — finally rescued — by those in as bad a shape as his own.

During his period of rehabilitation, he was invited to New York City for a weekend on the town by a group of war amputees.

"I saw a double-amputee walking, dancing, driving a car, married to a lovely wife, holding a steady job. It was one of the best things that happened to me. It showed me more than anything my therapists could possibly have shown me."

"That's why I don't mind being visible. That's why I go into the wards."

Through television, he has become a nationally known figure — a good-natured man, blond and broad-shouldered, laughing, swimming, driving a car, shooting baskets through a hoop, wheeling himself down a corridor at top speed, opening doors with a shove from the shoulder. His verve and zest are infectious.

Recovering from his Vietnam wounds at Walter Reed Army Hospital, Cleland discovered a "peer support" system among his fellow disabled patients. The disabled buoyed one another. If one was down, the others rallied around him, "creating a life raft of support so he couldn't sink."

Now, as VA head, he is working to get that concept built into the VA system. He has pushed through the Senate and into the House a bill creating a psychological rehabilitation program for Vietnam veterans based on the idea of peer-group support.

Some 350,000 came home from that war wounded, half of them seriously enough to be hospitalized.

But Cleland thinks there are even more — hundreds of thousands of veterans of that difficult war — who "are mental or emotional casualties who need peer group support to help them put their lives in order."

"Four out of 10 Vietnam veterans we see now have psychological problems," he says. "Their suicide rate is 10 to 15 perecent higher than those who did not go.

"We are getting men showing all the signs of combat fatigue three, four or five years after their return home — anxiety, tension, sleeplessness, difficulty holding a job. It is a delayed stress reaction. And part of the stress comes from being in a war and coming home and having to justify yourself."

Cleland was a product of a hospital system that could be indifferent and cruel.

When he was transferred from Walter Reed to a VA Hospital in Washington, he says, "I found a lack of sensitivity. I found there wasn't great hope for me to be rehabilitated. After I'd been looking forward for four months to being fitted for artificial limbs, I was told I might not be fitted at all.

"We still have a lot of work to do in rehabilitation. That's been one of my disappointments here — but I won't be disappointed forever."

He was asked what advice he would offer the handicapped—and what he would tell others who want to know how to deal with the handicapped.

"If I were to wish anything for the disabled, it would be self-acceptance," he said. "That's the beginning of rehabilitation.

"To the public, I would advise they they accept disabled people as people. See him first as a person, then address the question of his disability."

Whatever their condition, he said, people should see themselves for what they have, not what they lack.

TFW Helps Women Reenter Community

Jane D. goes to her job as a dental assistant each workday morning. Throughout the day, she performs the normal duties of a dental assistant. . . But there is a difference between her and others in the field. At 5 p.m. Jane D. (a fictitious name) returns to a home operated by the North Carolina Department of Corrections on the Eastern Bypass.

Most Greenville and Pitt County citizens are unaware that a treatment facility for women (TFW) exists in the area. This community-based facility, located at the intersection of Highway 33 and 264 Bypass, has been in operation since June, 1977.

The modest but attractive brick house with its spacious grounds is a temporary residence for women who are within a year of parole or release from the North Carolina Correctional Center for Women in Raleigh (NCCW), and who have been approved for the program through a careful screening committee.

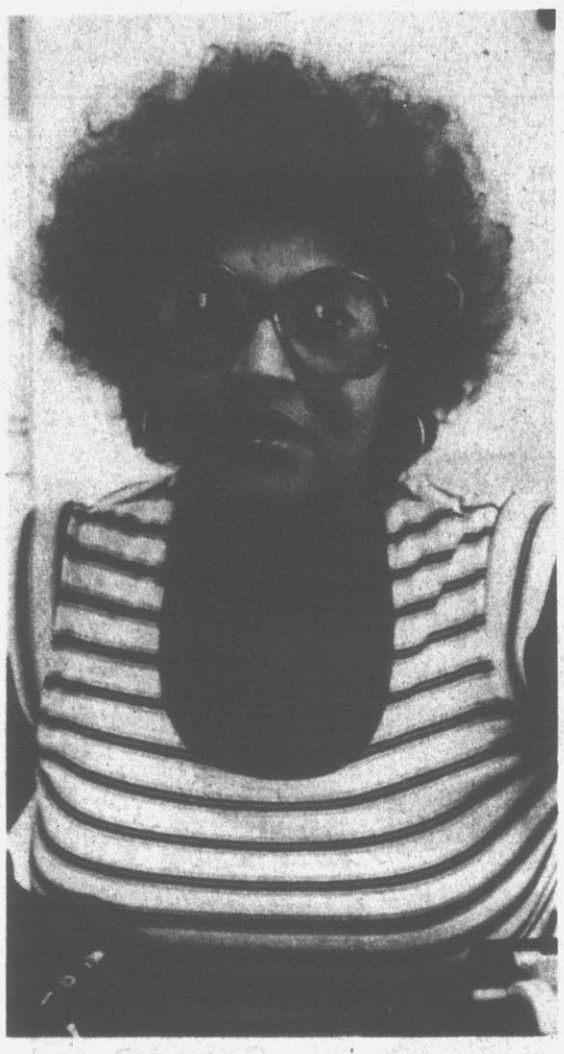

Mrs. Shelby Gorham Teel, director of the Greenville TFW, described in a recent interview how program participants are selected. A bulletin is first sent to inmates at NCCW concerning availability of space here. Interested individuals sign up and their cases are then reviewed by one staff member at NCCW who is a contact person for TFW's throughout North Carolina (five at present).

Those women whose cases are approved then appear before a screening committee consisting of four corrections personnel: two from the Eastern Area Administrative Office in Greenville (Mrs. Teel is one), one from NCCW, and usually a staff member from this TFW (on her own time). Every potential resident is in the next to highest level of honor grade—level 4. "This puts them in a level to be involved in a lot of community programs. Their record must be clear of any attempted prison escape within a year's time and there can be no major disciplinary infractions within six months," said Mrs. Teel.

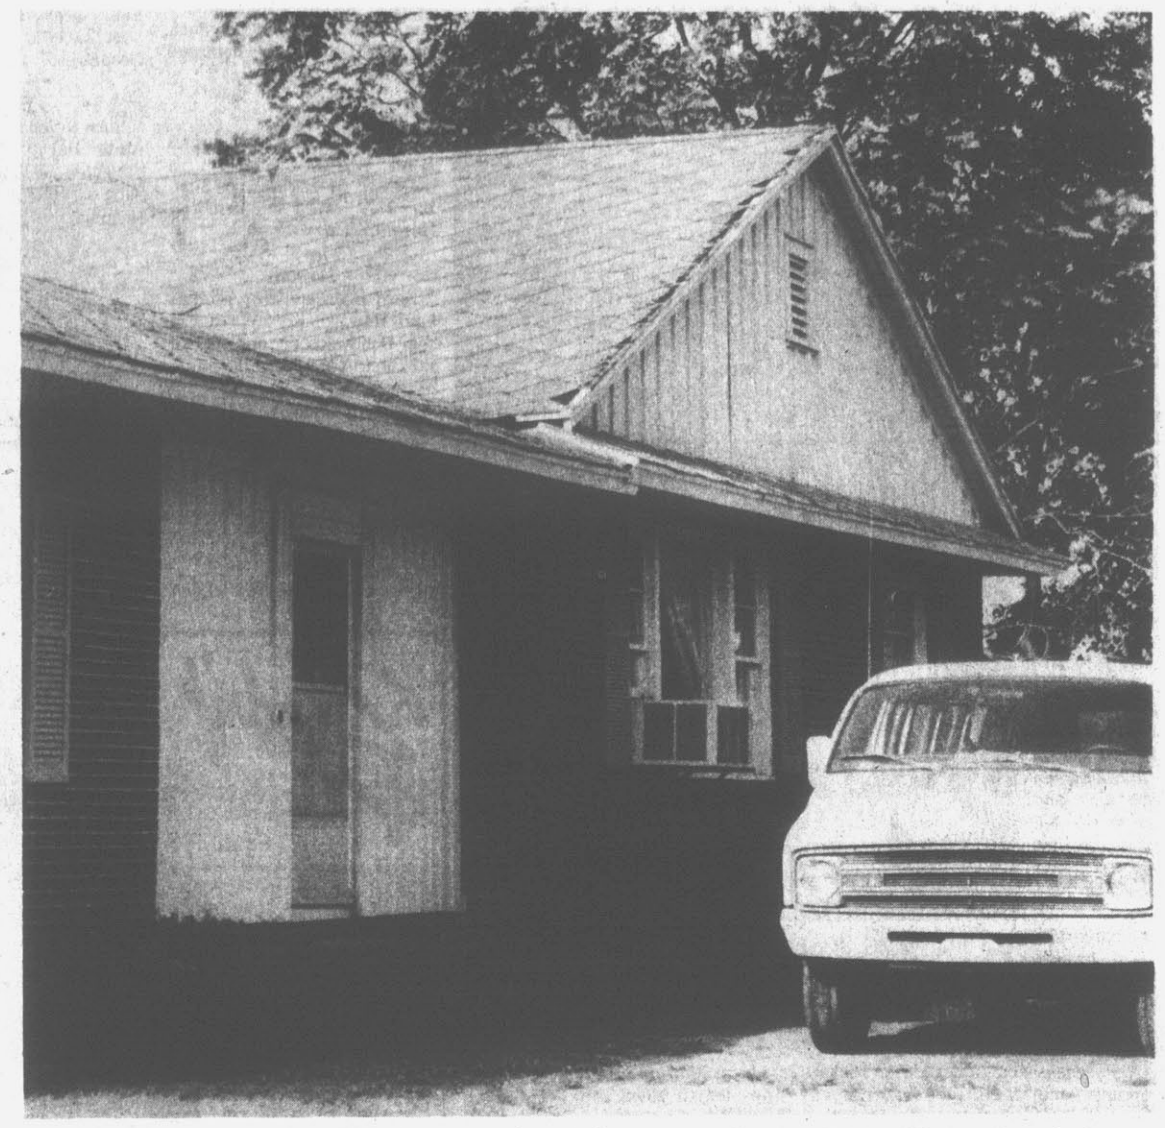

The Greenville TFW has four counselors who work rotating shifts of 24 hours each at the facility. They are Diane Wilkinson, Geraldine Keech, Darlyn White, and Gwen Stubblefield. Their official title is Program Assistant Wardens. Two of the counselors began their work in October, 1977 and one in July, 1978. Mrs. Stubblefield transferred in December, 1977 from the administrative section of the prison department.

Prior to the present group of counselors, there were three other staff members who all resigned before January, 1978.

Mrs. Teel pointed out that the present four counselors have all managed households and constitute an organized staff. "Gwen (Mrs. Stubblefield) and Diane (Mrs. Wilkinson) both have kids and the situation here is a lot like dealing with kids, although we realize we're dealing with adults."

LOCAL PROGRAM DIRECTOR. . .is Shelby Gorham Teel.

TRANSPORT VAN. . .provided by the North Carolina Department of Corrections is used for travel by TFW residents to and from employment and recreational activities. The van is parked beside the main entrance to the house.

Purpose And Goals Of TFW

"The program is designed to help a woman find a beneficial job in the community once she leaves here," said Mrs. Teel, who has been with the program for a year and a half. "We cover a 24-county area. First choice in residents are those who are native to Greenville and surrounding area. We can't do much good for those from more outlying areas like Elizabeth City. It is easier to contact family members in this area," she continued.

Four basic programs are offered at the Greenville TFW as well as at the Women's Correctional Center in Raleigh: work release, study release, home leaves, and community volunteer programs. "There are close to 600 women at NCCW — seven here," said Mrs. Teel. "The same programs are offered there but places like this are closer to a home-like situation."

One of the major factors in choosing a resident who is from this locale results from the time and expense of employers involved with training residents for jobs. A person from this area will be paroled here and will probably stay here. "It takes from two weeks to a month to locate employment for a resident," Mrs. Teel explained. "You have to do a selling job on employers, and if you get a job for an out-of-town resident and she leaves shortly after employment, the employer loses interest and is reluctant to work with future residents."

"Some area employers are reluctant to hire residents due to personnel policies," added Mrs. Stubblefield. "Also just because it's a prison system. As soon as you say TFW you can tell if they are for or against," Mrs. Teel stated.

Regulations, Policies

"A resident is still within the rules and regulations of the prison system," the director said. "She knows what she can or cannot do. There is always the possibility she will try to leave but those here are not likely to try to leave. It would jeopardize their parole program and release and their residency. Problem residents can be sent back to NCCW."

Mrs. Stubblefield went on to say, "She has to maintain good relations with the staff, residents, and on her job. This is a transition period between very close supervision and society."

The residents have restricted hours during the week due to work schedules. Lights are turned off at 11 p.m. on week nights and 1 a.m. or later on weekends. Visits by family members and friends at the house are conducted by a counselor each Sunday afternoon. A resident may leave the premises at a scheduled time only and is accompanied by an approved Community Volunteer, an approved Family Sponsor for Home Leave participation, or a staff member for other community activities.

All residents are involved in meal preparation, grocery shopping, household duties, proper hygiene, and managing their weekly draw (personal account—$15.00—from employers. "They are totally responsible for turning in all funds from work release," said Mrs. Teel. Deductions from individual paychecks are as follows: $15.00 for personal expenses, $3.45 for each workday for household maintenance, and 70 cents for transportation. A van for transportation is supplied by the Department of Corrections and is driven by a staff member.

All of the residents are presently employed. One is a dental assistant, one is a garment maker, three are seamstresses, one works for a dry cleaner and one works for the Salvation Army. The residents enjoy recreational activities when not working or studying. Said one of the women, "We go to the movies. We go bowling, go to the skating rink. We get free passes twice a month—to the movies, bowling, and skating."

Mrs. Teel arrived at her present vocation in an indirect manner. As a student at Elizabeth City State University, she majored in English with an interest in journalistic news reporting. She did her internship at "The Daily Advance" in Elizabeth City and covered local news at radio station WGAI where she sometimes wrote copy material, typed, recorded, etc.

From Elizabeth City, Mrs. Teel came to Pitt County and was first employed here as a typist at the Eastern Area Reception Diagnostic Center in Maury (where all male inmates for 24 eastern counties are received after being sentenced by the courts). She was promoted to PA1 (Program Assistant) and shortly thereafter received another promotion to PA2 at the same place. She was then transferred to the Eastern Area Administrative Office in Greenville as a PA2 and worked there for eight months before being selected to direct the pilot TFW program in Greenville.

In recalling the early months of the local TFW, Mrs. Teel said there were many roadblocks to surpass. A house had to be located. Community residents had to be quizzed for interest in the program. The house needed maintenance and refurbishing. Residents had to be screened prior to actual commencement of operations.

"Everything had to meet OSHA regulations. Everything had to meet our specifications. It was a lot of work," Mrs. Stubblefield said. Mrs. Teel continued by adding, "A lot of things we have here have been donated. The program started out as a federal grant which ended in June, 1978 and was picked up by the state."

It is the hope of Shelby Teel and her co-workers that every major metropolitan area can establish and maintain residences.

One of the residents (there are seven) summed up her feelings about the program in this manner: "I'd like to see the community become more involved as far as jobs are concerned and as far as getting into our program. If they would come out and see the house and talk to us, maybe they would understand."

Pickett-Stanley Vows Solemnized On Saturday

FARMVILLE — Emily Elaine Stanley and Joseph Mark Pickett of Farmville were united in marriage Saturday at 4 p.m. in the Friendship Free Will Baptist Church here. The Rev. Walter Reynolds officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stanley of Farmville. The bridegroom is the son of the late Samuel Macks and Mrs. Shirley M. Pickett.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, wore a candlelight qiana gown fashioned with a fitted bodice of Venise lace and long sleeves of appliqued lace. The accordian pleated skirt featured a chapel length hemline. She wore a matching headpiece of venise lace with a chapel length veil. The bride carried a candlelight lace-covered Bible, centered with a white orchid and white miniature carnations.

The chancel of the church was decorated with a 17 branch candelabra, flanked with two nine branch candelabra, all interspersed with ferns. Four baskets of greenery and the unity candle completed the scene.

Susan Beaman, organist, and Emerson Hobgood, soloist, presented the nuptial music. Hobgood sang "If" "We've Only Just Begun" and "The Wedding Prayer."

MRS. JOSEPH MARK PICKETT

Samuel Macks Pickett Jr. of Raleigh, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man. Ushers included Tony Cobb of Farmville, cousin of the bride, and Rodney Hill of Ayden.

The mother of the bride wore a chiffon polyester formal length gown with an attached full length cape. Mrs. Mary Helen Merritt of Goldsboro, aunt of the bridegroom, wore a mint green formal length chiffon polyester gown. Both women wore white orchid corsages. The grandmother of the bride, Mrs. Emily Parker, was presented a white carnation corsage.

A reception was given immediately following the ceremony by the parents of the bride and the bride's grandmother. Mrs. Harvey Cobb served the three-tiered wedding cake and Mrs. Ralph Shirley poured punch. The reception table was decorated with a candle arrangement interspersed with blue and white daisies.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Shirley, aunt and uncle of the bride, gave a rehearsal party Friday at their home in Farmville. Approximately 30 guests attended. The bridal couple remembered the honor attendants with gifts.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

All the child psychology books I've ever read take you down the yellow brick road past puberty, serious petting, into mature relationships and leave you.

But parenting isn't like that. There are 30 million parents out there with kids between the ages of 18-55 who drift in and out of their lives like a revolving door.

The empty nest syndrome is overrated. I have heard of some parents who moved during the night to another city (and left no forwarding address). Others have installed pay showers. Still another parent I know waited until her son got up one night to use the bathroom, then painted his room pink and rented it to a pocket computer salesman.

No parent likes to change locks, but the situation is definitely getting out of hand. Children simply aren't leaving the home after school anymore as they did in the '60s. When they do, they multiply and come back tenfold.

So how do you displace an aging teenager? It isn't easy. When our son's bedroom began to take on the appeal of a roadside zoo (complete with sawdust on the floor), we took action.

First, we set the table for two. This made him aware that he was not expected for dinner.

Second, we intercepted his mail, wrote "No such person at this address" and had it returned to the post office for forwarding.

We posted signs in the hallway reading, "OCCUPANCY BY MORE THAN TWO IN THIS HOUSE IS A FIRE HAZARD."

We were considering telling him he would have to share his room with the family pet (and buying a wolf) when we came up with a daring but cruel idea. We stopped stocking the refrigerator.

I'll never forget the look of fear in that child's eyes standing in front of the refrigerator door (the hairs in his nose becoming frosted) saying, "Is that all there is?" if I live to be a hundred.

We never saw him again.

You hear a lot of dialogue on the death of the American family. Families aren't dying. They're merging into big conglomerates. Daughters and sons who are between roommates (legal and lethal) drift in and approach the desk like they're in a hotel asking, "Is my old room still available?" Cribs and strollers appear with babies. Cars and special menus are requested.

I rechecked my child psychology book the other day for the answer and wondered, "Is there life after the index?"

On The Young Side

Sharon Connolly

Blue jeans, suspenders, overalls and straw hats were not unusual sights at Rose High School Friday. Such clothing was worn by many students who wished to show their school spirit and to support the theme of the day "Farm Day." The idea, initiated by the Varsity Cheerleaders, was developed to excite the student body for the Friday night football game.

With this same goal in mind the senior class officers invited all fellow seniors to meet at the 50-yard line Friday night to form a cheering section. The seniors also held a meeting Thursday morning to discuss future plans concerning the construction of a homecoming float.

Because the last dance was such a success, the Monogram Club sponsored another after the game Friday night. Disc jockey Jeff French again provided the music for dancing along with the coliseum sound and a full light show.

The Monogram Club is also sponsoring a bus to the Rocky Mount game next Friday. All interested persons are invited to sign up.

At the first official meeting of the Keywanettes, club members elected two more members to the executive committee. Chosen as the new sophomore board of directors were Missy Dye and Karen Wheeler.

Other business during the meeting including forming a committee to make posters and banners before each home football game. Pat Moore was named chairman of the group.

At the French Club meeting Thursday afternoon, the time was spent amending the club constitution. The club also plans to prepare a float for the homecoming parade.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Esterbrook Haigler Jr. of Raleigh announce the engagement of their daughter, Frances Lee, to Roy Victor Taylor Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Victor Taylor of Greenville. The wedding will take place Dec. 2.

Accept Father's Young Wife

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am 15 and my parents are divorced. My mother has remarried and so has my father. The problem is, my father has had TWO divorces, and is engaged to be married again. That doesn't really bother me. It's his life and he's entitled to happiness, but Abby, he is 53 and his girlfriend is 23! And that bothers me.

I've talked to him about it, but it did no good. He says he doesn't want to be alone. I can understand that, but I wish he'd find a woman nearer his age.

Don't get me wrong. I like his girlfriend, it's just that she is younger than my older sister.

I love my father very much. What can I do?

WORRIED ABOUT DAD

DEAR WORRIED: Cool it. If you really love your father and want him to be happy, the best thing you can do for him is to accept his young wife, and hope for the best.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 20-year-old male and I'm gay. My best friend (I'll call him Bob) and I recently got into some heavy discussions and ended up confessing our innermost secrets.

When I told Bob I was gay, he became very angry and said he never wanted me near him again. Then he left.

I am not sexually attracted to Bob. He's my best friend and I don't want to lose him. Other than my friendship with him, I'm pretty much a loner.

Last year I was on the verge of taking my life, so I went to a suicide prevention center. They talked me out of going through with it, but now I'm considering suicide again. I've analyzed my situation and seriously wonder if my life is worth the pain of living it.

I look to you as a last chance, Abby. If your advice doesn't help me, I will just go with what I think is the best solution.

Please answer soon. I can't wait much longer.

CONFIDENTIAL IN DETROIT

DEAR CONFIDENTIAL: Your former friend Bob has a lot to learn about homosexuality if he feels threatened by your confession, and ended your friendship for that reason. You haven't lost much. Friends worth having accept you as you are.

Please go back to the suicide prevention center. They do more than just talk you out of committing suicide. They have competent counselors who will help you get your head together. Go now, and write to me soon and tell me how you're doing. I care.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple do-your-own-thing ceremony, get Abby's new booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

DEAR CECILY: My family loves fried chicken and I often buy it on my way back from work so we can have it for supper. Now I notice there's a new home utensil that pressure-fries chicken fast and I'm thinking of getting it. Have you tried it? — BUSY MOTHER.

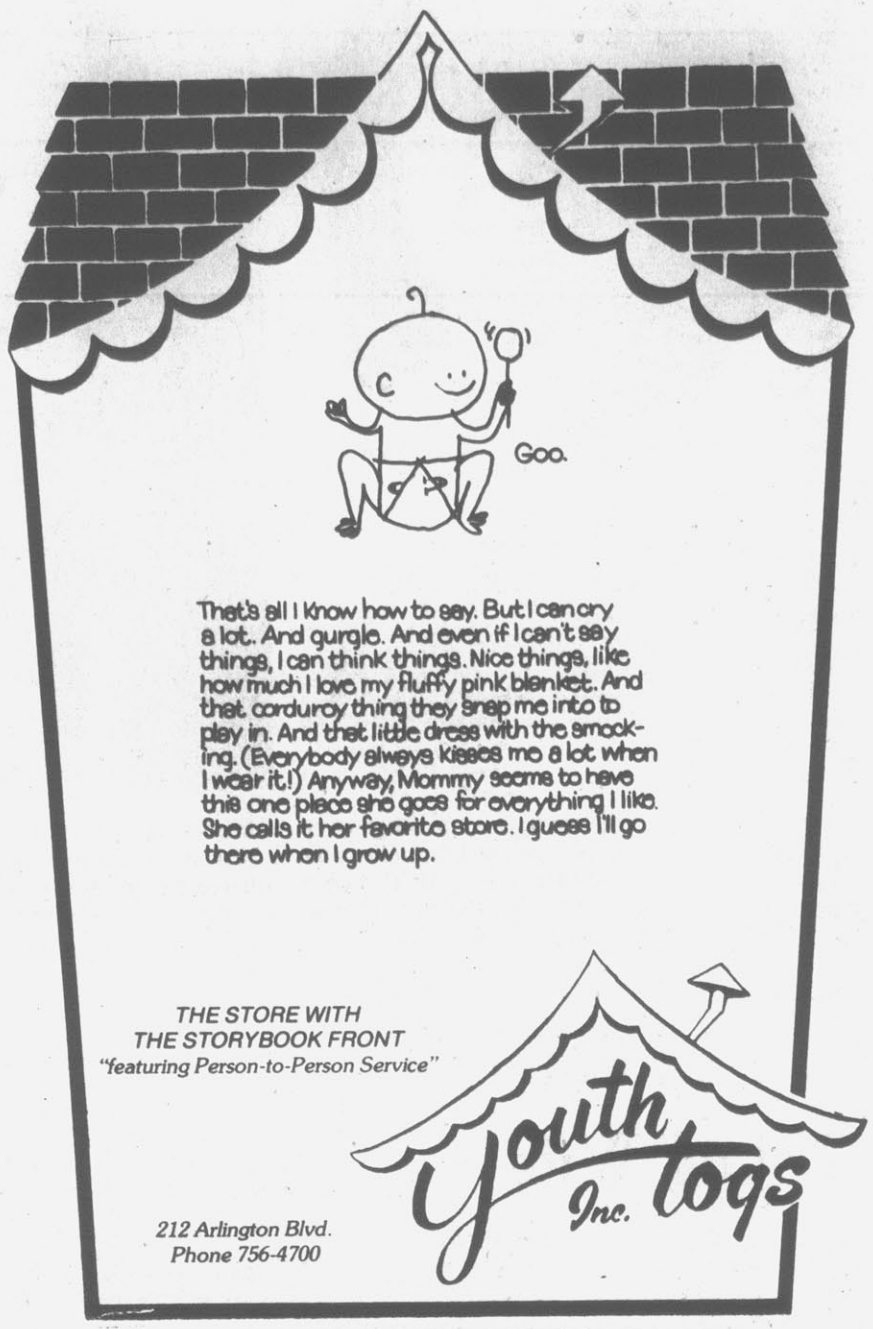

DEAR BUSY MOTHER: The new bucket-style low-pressure fryer is simple to use, easy to clean and certainly speedy. Pieces of chicken are dipped in an egg-and-milk or egg-and-water wash, rolled in seasoned flour and then low-pressure-fried in oil; this treatment gives a crisp coating that's not overly thick. There are also many other dishes you can low-pressure-fry speedily in the utensil — from stuffed pork chops to individual main-dish pies. We worked out a recipe for chicken wings that's fun to serve to the family or for a party. — C.B.

CHICKEN WING FRY

- ¼ cup honey
- ¼ cup soy sauce
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- ¼ teaspoon ground ginger
- ¼ teaspoon garlic powder
- 12 chicken wings (about 1¾ pounds), tips removed
- 1 teaspoon cornstarch combined with 1 tablespoon water

Stir together the honey, soy sauce, lemon juice, ginger and garlic powder. Marinate the chicken wings in the mixture for a few hours or overnight. Drain wings, saving marinade. Fry the wings in one batch in a 6-quart, bucket-style, low-pressure fryer according to utensil manufacturer's directions. Drain the wings thoroughly on brown paper and keep hot. In a small saucepan stir together the saved marinade and the cornstarch mixture; stirring constantly, cook over moderate heat until thickened, clear and boiling; makes about 2-3rds cup sauce. Pour the sauce over the wings and serve with rice. Makes 4 main-dish servings. Or serve the sauce as a dip with the wings for a party refresher.

"As the chill of autumn replaces the warm breezes of summer, homemakers across the country should begin to plan their fall house cleaning," says Hilda Johnson, consumer information specialist for Johnson Wax.

Hilda was in Greenville several weeks ago on her biyearly visit to North Carolina.

"Fall cleaning is really more getting ready for winter," she said, "a period of transition between warm weather and cold weather. Just as spring brought outdoor activities into play, fall is a time for handling such chores as putting away the picnic furniture, cleaning up the grill for the winter, getting the storm windows and doors cleaned up and ready for use."

The home economist pointed out fall is also a good time to look around for signs of summer wear and tear on one's house.

Several suggestions for cleaning were offered by her. "First get ready. This might involve such simple tasks as checking out the equipment you are going to use to and make sure it is in good working condition. You should assemble your supplies in an easy-to-carry kit.

"Do the routine chores first. Check the heating system and especially the filter. Look at the windows to see if they need cleaning before the storm windows go up. Examine storage areas to see if they need attention before packing up summer lawn furniture, toys and appliances," she continued.

In closing she added "Then the homemaker should start a room-by-room assessment of what needs to be done and what is needed to accomplish the task."

Booklets entitled "Home Care" and "Car Care" are available according to Hilda by writing to her at Johnson Wax, P. O. Box 541000, Atlanta, Ga., 30308.

Couple Weds In Farmville Friday

FARMVILLE — The Farmville Church of God was the scene for the 8 p.m. wedding ceremony uniting Linda Grace Curry of Farmville and David Earl Bullock of Greenville. The Rev. T. I. Efird performed the double ring ceremony Friday.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Curry of Farmville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis David Bullock of Greenville.

MRS. DAVID EARL BULLOCK

The bride, given in marriage by David May, wore a floor length gown of bridal satin covered with chiffon. The dress featured a chapel length tubular train, empire waist, full length sleeves and a full A-line skirt. Lace accented the empire waist. Her fingertip bouffant veil of silk illusion was caught to a lace headband seeded with pearls. The bride carried a cascade of yellow and white daisies with ivy.

Maid of honor was Miss Angela Bullock of Greenville, daughter of the bridegroom. She chose a full length empire A-line styled gown of green dotted swiss. Lace with yellow ribbon complemented the neck, sleeves and skirt. She wore a green wide brim hat trimmmed with yellow ribbon and carried a nosegay of yellow daisies.

Evelyn Hill of Rt. 1, Fountain, and Pam R. Strickland of Rt. 2, Farmville, served as bridesmaids. Their dresses were styled identically to the honor attendant's gown in yellow with white lace and green ribbon. They wore yellow hats with green ribbons and carried nosegays of white daisies.

The father of the bridegroom served as his son's best man. Ushers included Jamie Norville of Rt. 2, Farmville, and Nicky Taylor of Stokes, brother-in-law of the bridegroom.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in Greenville.

The bride is employed by Empire Brushes of Greenville. The bridegroom is employed by Daniels Construction Co., Greenville.

A cake-cutting was held Thursday night in the fellowship building of the Marlboro Free Will Baptist Church, Farmville. The serving table was covered with a lace cutwork cloth centered with an arrangement of yellow and white daisies flanked by tapers. A yellow and green motif was used in the decorations. After the bridal couple cut the first slice, cake was served by Margaret May and punch was served by Mary Roebuck.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, OCT. 2, 1978

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Not a good time for doing anything of a dramatic or unorthodox nature since this could bring you much trouble, big expenses best avoided. You need to exercise care and patience with everyone, so take time to do those seemingly unimportant chores that are actually vital to the whole pattern of your existence. Being thorough brings best results.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You are overworking and could undermine your health if you don't do something about it now. Take a more optimistic outlook on life.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Take care of chores early so that you have more free time for cultural things that please you. Do more reading and explore new worlds.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Check out brochures that give you an opening into a new field of endeavor through which you can profit in the future. Learn to economize more in certain areas.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Plan how to beautify your home and also make it more comfortable and functional. Get legitimate estimates. Take care you do not pay twice for the same bill through inadvertence.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) A neighborly gesture whether at home or in business could yield fine benefits now, so be thoughtful. Not a day for assuming new responsibilities.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Make sure that the grounds around your home are well taken care of. Think your way through some problem that has long been vexing you. Come up with the right answer.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Take time to update your files so that they will be more operative in the days ahead. Make sure you do not lose important papers in the process. Take some time out for light recreation.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A good day to meet with bigwigs and get much planned for the future. Make sure credit affairs are in good order. Pay pressing bills.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You have neglected an important obligation and should now handle it intelligently. Don't permit a younger person who is too ambitious to hurt you in business.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Try to get your bills paid on time and cut down on interest costs. Avoid that tendency to nag at home; think more constructively, kindly. Check accounts and make sure they are correct.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Try to think more of yourself and less of others and you need not have to struggle - own worst enemy, so reconcile

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Take a more positive stance where you know you are right and a more satisfying life can be yours. Don't permit the opposite sex to hurt you. Be more businesslike in dealing with others.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will have a deep insight into matters both religious and psychic and should have education slanted along lines where just such a quality is a necessity such as the ministry, medicine, astrology, etc., whether male or female. Teach early the value of money and how best to handle it.

Early Yuletide For Muppets

NEW YORK (UPI) — It was Christmas this summer at the Sesame Street studio here as the show's cast of human and Muppet characters prepared their first Christmas special, "Christmas Eve on Sesame Street."

The hour-long program, tentatively scheduled to be broadcast on PBS on Dec. 21 (and rebroadcast closer to Christmas Day), will answer the question, "How DOES Santa Claus get down the chimney?"

Paperwork Has Multiplied

PARSIPPANY, N. J. (UPI) — The expansion of regulations and the associated detailing required for licensing a nuclear generating plant can be measured by the number of books it takes to record the information.

When General Public Utilities Corporation started up a nuclear plant in late 1974 at Three Mile Island, in Pennsylvania, the licensing application and its required backup materials filled five thick books.

GPU is starting up a second nuclear plant at the same location this year. Its application for the second plant will fill 22 thick volumes.

Better Life For Aleuts, But The Scars Remain

EDITOR'S NOTE — For generations it was a miserable life for the Aleuts forced into seal hunting on the Pribilof Islands in the Bering Sea. Times are better now, but scars remain.

By ROBERT WELLER
Associated Press Writer

PRIBILOF ISLANDS, Alaska (AP) — The wedding reception began with a disco tune from Saturday Night Fever. The gaiety dimmed when the all Aleut band began playing "Slaves of the Harvest," a song that could have been a Negro spiritual about life on the plantation.

"Misty early mornings,
I hear the boss man's warning."

The words of Max Lestenkof told of a miserable life harvesting fur seals on a government-operated "Arctic plantation" on two tiny specks of land in the Bering Sea.

"Aleut man,
You got to get to work."

For more than 180 years, several hundred Aleut Indians were forced to work, first by their Russian conquerors and then by the Americans who bought Alaska from the czar.

"I'm going to get them for Master,
Uncle Sam.
Slaves of the harvest,
Look what they're doing to me."

The U.S. Indian Claims Commission, which went out of business on Sept. 30, recently held that the federal government owes the 700 Aleuts of the islands of St. Paul and St. George $11.2 million for forcing them to harvest the precious fur seals.

The commission noted that millions of dollars in profits were made from the harvest while Pribilovians were held "in a condition of impoverished near-peonage" until well into the 20th Century.

Pribilovians couldn't leave the islands without permission, their mail was censored, schooling was arbitrarily halted at age 16, no one could visit without government permission and for years the workers were given credits at the government store instead of money.

The commission also referred to "the sheer misery in which the Pribilof Aleuts lived. The record shows that compensation to the Aleuts was absolutely minimal and that the Aleuts suffered terribly because of lack of proper housing, fuel, food, clothing, water and sanitation."

Gabriel Stepetin, 67, a leader in the 27-year fight for the claim, says, "It was terrible. If I hadn't been able to get away from the island, I would hate the white man today."

Stepetin, with white hair and a handsome moustache, could have just stepped off a Moscow street. Other Aleuts resemble other Indian peoples, while still others appear to have Japanese lineage. Some believe they are related to the Ainu people, the aboriginal population of Japan.

Stepetin ran the government store for several years before World War II. He recalled that "government personnel got everything fresh; we got what was left. And when the sealhunting was going on, there was no meat in the store, except for the white people. When I complained, they threatened to expel me from the islands."

The grass-covered islands of rolling hills and fog-bound rocky shores had been uninhabited except for millions of fur seals, a large fox population and more than 100 species of birds until the Russians forcibly moved Aleuts from their homes in the Aleutian Island Chain, which lies more than 200 miles to the south of the Pribilofs. The Russians transplanted the Aleuts in the late 1700s after the seal population of the chain was depleted by overhunting.

Under the Russian regime, the total Aleut population, estimated at 20,000, dropped to barely 4,000. An official Russian observer at the time noted that "it was necessary to exterminate" many Aleuts because they constantly rebelled against their enslavement.

Nevertheless, Russian cultural influences remained after their departure, and to this day the Russian Orthodox church is an important force in the community. Villagers have Russian surnames.

After the United States bought Alaska in 1867, Congress awarded the Alaska Commercial Co. a 20-year monopoly to harvest Pribilof seals. The contract required the company to provide basic necessities to villagers, and it said Aleuts could not be forced to work. Those who refused, however, could be thrown out of their homes.

Within 10 years, the profits from Pribilof sealing had covered the $7 million cost of the purchase of Alaska.

The Aleuts welcomed American rule at first. The company built new housing — fairly impractical, as it turned out — and paid the community 40 cents per seal skin.

In a typical year, the Aleuts received $40,000 for skins that brought the company a revenue of $1 million after it paid the federal government $300,000 for the monopoly.

Over the years, overharvesting reduced the seal population and the Aleuts, finding their economic lot not much improved since the Russian days, began to chafe. In 1881, a strike over the prohibition of liquor was quickly broken by the company.

The federal government began providing a subsidy to the Aleuts, and Congress in 1911 ordered the Bureau of Commercial Fisheries to take over the seal harvest. One of its first steps was a five-year moratorium on taking seals except for food.

With the advent of World War II and the Japanese attack on the Aleutians, the Pribilofs were deemed dangerous and the islanders evacuated to Funter Bay, almost 1,500 miles to the south in southeastern Alaska.

But several islanders, Stepetin among them, managed to reach the nearby territorial capital of Juneau. They got jobs and discovered life in an open society.

When the Pribilovians were returned to their homes in 1944, their leaders began pushing for self-government. In 1950, they were given the rights afforded other Indians under the 1934 Indian Reorganization Act.

In 1951, a community council filed the claim for land rights and compensation with the Indian Claims Commission. By the late 1960s the Aleuts had achieved independence. In 1970 they received title to their lands.

The seal harvest, still the mainstay of the islands, remains under control of the National Marine Fisheries Service. And the seal population, says Agafin Krukoff, is prospering.

But now there's another headache. Pressure from environmentalists and others to end the seal harvest is mounting. They object to the clubbing of seals.

Meanwhile, the islanders are not entirely satisfied with their $11.2 million award. They want additional money, contending that not all claims were dealt with.

Still, islanders now must decide whether to invest the claim money or give part of it at least to the older villagers, who were the most disadvantaged.

Stepetin, who would qualify, is in favor of investment.

"I'm satisfied with what I have accomplished," he says. "My people are recognized as human beings."

Mailman Paints Postal Mural

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The mural in the new postal station at the Cervantes Convention Center was painted by postman James Stinebaker, who took time off from his lettercarrying route.

Stinebaker, 49, has enlivened the walls of four post offices with scenes depicting the city's history.

"Painting is a lot harder than letter-carrying," he said, "because after you carry mail you go home and forget about it. This goes home with you until it's done."

Stinebaker never signs his murals.

Occupational Preparation Is Offered

By TIMOTHY HARPER
Associated Press Writer

MENOMONIE, Wis. (AP) — At the University of Wisconsin Stout, students bake cookies, wash dishes, sell clothes and work on factory assembly lines.

But unlike most students at most other colleges, their menial labors are for academic credits rather than pocket money.

And unlike many other students nowadays, they have well-paying jobs in their fields waiting for them when they graduate.

Call it a glorified trade school, "Factory U" or "Cookie Tech," if you will, but this most unusual institution of higher learning has been getting results in its own way for three-quarters of a century.

In fact, the Stout "idea" may have finally come of age in the last decade, since the bottom has fallen out of the job market for traditional college liberal arts graduates.

Big and small schools alike, competing for the 1970s enrollee whose primary interest in a sheepskin is a better job, are integrating work experience in new curricula.

While national college enrollments are slowing, Stout's is increasing, up to 6,700 this fall. About 600 qualified applicants were turned away because of budget limitations.

Swanson himself is the epitome of a Stout graduate. He came here three decades ago as a student. What he learned helped him earn his Ph.D. degree and become a respected academic and administrator. It also helped him build a fashionable home here with his own hands.

UW-Stout has four schools: industry and technology, home economics, liberal studies and education. It offers two dozen majors, from auto mechanics and manufacturing engineering to applied math and fashion merchandising.

There are a host of submajors and minors also available, including traditional areas of study such as art, biology, busines administration, English, history, sociology and physical education.

Those disciplines, however, aren't what draw students to Stout. They come to take all the courses they can in industrial design, graphic arts technology, packaging, technical sales and service, traffic safety or plastics materials and processes.

"We probably require more general education than most schools which provide the traditional liberal arts education," he says. "It's not training, it's educating."

For instance, he says a Stout graduate hired to manage a factory has studied math, physics, biology, economics and psychology.

"We force students into a multidisciplinary look at society," Face says.

Stout students run a restaurant, a boutique and a factory, rotating duties from design to production to sales; money earned is used as capital to expand the business the following term.

"The Stout kid is not afraid to get his hands dirty," says placement director Robert Dahlke. "The Stout kid comes from a working-class family and knows what work is all about."

Placement of graduates in jobs related to their fields of study is well above 90 percent each year. Dahlke says he has to turn recruiters away and has two or three job-openings for each graduate in most of Stout's majors.

"The Stout hotel-restaurant management grad may start the first week in a management program washing dishes," Dahlke says. "That's fine with them, if that's the way up. They're not afraid to start at the bottom."

Michael Polchopek, a Sears, Roebuck personnel recruiter from Chicago, is impressed with the aggressiveness of Stout graduates. He says they are well prepared to step into a job because of their practical experience.

Students themselves offhandedly concede that theirs may not be an education of the highest academic order.

"I don't think anybody thinks that," says her fiance, Paul Durand, 21, a senior in industrial arts education from Minneapolis. "This is more the type of school for people who want specific jobs, who come here with definite career goals."

To be admitted as freshmen, Stout students must pick a major field of study. They start taking specialized courses in their major right away, and general liberal arts courses are scattered throughout a fouryear curriculum.

The average of 130 credit hours required for graduation — including as much as twice the normal amount of laboratory work — is more than at most schools; there is relatively little time for electives.

"Students at other universities have more freedom from area to area," says Samuel Wood, the dean of students. "They never seem to settle in."

Neighborhood Work Awaits

CHICAGO (AP) — Rubblestrewn neighborhoods can be made into pictures of beauty by putting to work those persons who have the most difficulty in finding a job, a coalition of community groups believes.

The chronically unemployed — the young, the elderly and minorities — can be put to work on mundane and creative projects to make their neighborhoods cheerier and more productive places in which to live.

"The work that most needs doing is in the very places where people who live most need work," says the Chicago Coalition on the Right to Earn a Living.

One of the coalition's projects is the Center for Neighborhood Technology, which operates out of a storefront office. It argues there is plenty of work to do in Chicago's low-income neighborhoods.

Why not put unemployed residents to work sprucing up littered parkways, cleaning up park lagoons, building and tending hundreds of rooftop solar greenhouses and managing fish farms that could be built in the basements of factories, the center asks.

Alfred Portis, a member of the center's board, talks about urban agricultural programs such as the rooftop greenhouses which would give employment not only to neighborhood laborers but also to greenhouse farmers and produce marketers.

One greenhouse has already been built, another is under construction, seven more are planned this year and another half-dozen are still in the planning stages, said Scott Bernstein, center director.

Foods from the greenhouses are nutritious and can be purchased by residents at reasonable cost. The rooftop greenhouses help conserve energy by cooling the roof during the summer and keeping heat from escaping through the roof when the weather is cold, Portis said.

"The potential is definitely there for using agricultural programs in the city," he said. "It's a tremendous idea. It's hard for some of us to picture that happening because the only inner city we've known is a concrete one. But the technology is there, and it's feasible in terms of cost."

The city's Department of Human Services is already supporting one of the center's projects, spending $90,000 for 25 young persons to learn how to build, install and maintain solar systems, including greenhouses.

CAMERA Angles

It's a revolutionary, all-electronic camera that offers automatic film loading, automatic film starting, automatic exposure shooting and automatic film advancing built into a compact body without the conventional auto-wind accessory attachment.

It does not even have the normal film advance lever.

The fs-1 makes the loading of any type of 35mm film cartridge as fumble-free and easy as inserting a cartridge in an Instamatic camera. You open the camera's back, insert the 35mm cartridge, pull the film leader across and close the back. That automatically starts a built-in micro motor which advances the film leader to proper starting position in three seconds. A red diode light on the camera back signals you are ready to shoot the first frame.

After taking No. 1, the motor automatically advances the film to No. 2. If the finger remains on the two-stage, softtouch release button, pictures will be taken and advanced in sequence until the button is released. When the end of the film is reached, the camera senses it automatically and the motor stops. The film must be rewound manually.

All of the camera's operations — emphasizing ALL — are powered by four small penlight batteries in a battery chamber. The battery module locks in snugly around the end of the camera, jutting out enough to act as a handy power grip. There are no separate button batteries. The four AA batteries (alkaline or rechargeable nicads) provide sufficient power to expose 36 cartridges of 20-exposure film (or 20 rolls of 36 exposures). Before the batteries lose power entirely, the camera's electronic system signals ample warning. Lights in the viewfinder flash alternately from top and bottom LEDs (light emitting diodes) when the shutter release is pressed.

The FS-1 uses the "shutter priority" exposure system, where the photographer selects and sets the shutter speed first to suit the action of the subject being photographed. In sports or when shooting active children, a fast shutter speed may be necessary; in scenics or portraits, a slower shutter speed may be preferred for greater depth of field.

Then the camera's built-in computer brain views the scene, determines the amount of light and automatically sets the correct lens opening for a properly exposed picture. It uses a gallium arsenide phosphide photo cell — newly developed — for faster-acting and more precise exposure calculation and operation. It is accurate to within 1-10th of an fast stop it is claimed.

The camera's shutter operation also is unique, using twin micro-solenoids to activate the first and second shutter curtains separately at precisely the right split instant, followed by a motorized mirror return. The action is quieter, smoother and freer of vibration permitting a greater range of slow, hand-held picture taking exposures.

The FS-1 also introduces a new automatic flash system with a specially developed Konica X24 auto flash unit. It links up automatically with the electronic brain center in the camera which tells it what ASA film speed is being used in the camera. The photographer then selects either an f-5.6 or an f-11 switch to set and that is the only adjustment necessary. When the flash is turned on, it starts to charge, and when ready to flash it automatically changes the camera's shutter speed to the flash-synchronization speed of 1-100th second, and its sensor automatically produces the exact amount of light for a properly exposed flash picture.

The FS-1 has a compact and lightweight 40mm f-1.8 lens, fully automatic with manual override, as its standard lens. However, there is also a choice of a 50mm f-1.7, a 50mm f-1.4 and a 57mm f-1.2 lens for those who do not want the slightly wider angle of view of the 40mm lens.

The Konica FS-1 is the latest electronic advance towards the fundamental purpose of a camera — to take a picture. The photographer, whether amateur or professional, should be free to concentrate solely on his subject matter, its composition, its mood, its lighting and on the precise instant of shooting to achieve the most effective result: a good photograph.

If the photographer must take time, effort or thought to make camera adjustments or think of its operations, it is done at some cost to the creative shooting process. If the camera does its functions reliably and accurately, the photographer is more of an artist and less of a calculator or mechanic.

Distribute Statement

WILMINGTON — The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has distributed the final environmental statent about the proposed Carolina Power and Light Co. Mayo Electric Generating Plant for a public review period ending October 23.

CP and L has requested a permit to build a dam that would create a 2,800-acre reservoir and relocate a road, in connection with the Mayo project. The facility will necessitate the displacing of 23 families, taking 700 acres of crop and pasture land out of production, and altering 5,000 of 7,986 acres of project lands for the reservoir, plant and transmission corridors.

Copies of the environmental statement are available from the U.S. Army Engineer District, Wilmington, P.O. Box 1890, Wilmington, N.C. 28402, or at libraries at East Carolina University, N.C. State University, Duke University, and Wake Forrest University.

Open House At Office Oct. 8

WINTERVILLE — Open house will be held at the Family Chiropractic Health Services office on Mill Street here next Sunday, Oct. 8, from 1 to 4 p. m.

The office is that of Dr. Steven I. Cohen, who invites the public.

Parking Big Carriers Is Challenge To Harbor Pilot

BREMERTON, Wash. (AP) — The next time you try squeezing your car into a tiny parking space, think of Clay Leonard trying to park an aircraft carrier.

Leonard, chief pilot for the Puget Sound Naval Shipyard and a marine pilot for 28 of his 50 years, has 13,000 ship movements to his credit — without an accident.

With his years of experience, docking ships is old hat to Leonard, but he still finds aircraft carriers somewhat of a challenge.

"They're about the only ships that are still fun," he said. "There's so much wind area there."

Leonard estimates he has guided about 240 aircraft carriers into their berths. He says driving one isn't as tough as it looks, however.

"You're a little apprehensive to begin with, but after the first few it's all right."

Leonard says naval aviators seem to be better ship drivers because they are familiar with the need for precision.

On the other end of the scale, says Leonard, are submariners. The officer on the bridge can see where the boat is headed, but has to rely on the navigator below to make the decisions about when o turn.

Leonard offers his advice during such situations, whether it's asked for or not, he says. And in most cases, the ship's captain will take the pilot's word about what is best.

"The reason skippers sometimes make mistakes when trying to dock themselves is they don't get the experience in a lifetime that a pilot will get in one year," Leonard said.

Leonard heads a three-man office at PSNS that is responsible for docking all Navy ships in the Puget Sound area.

"I usually tell a captain if he has an especially smooth bridge, or an especially sloppy one. It's not my place to say so, but I tell them anyway."

Pilots are responsible for a ship when tugboats are doing the navigating, and they act in an "advisory capacity" at all other times, although Leonard doesn't care for that terminology.

Whether the pilot is "advising" or actually directing the move, he shares in the responsibility for the ship. Leonard prefers all-or-nothing situations to being in the middle should an accident occur.

"One thing I've noticed is that if a skipper is up for promotion and he wants to be very careful, he always lets the pilot handle everything. They don't want responibility for any damage because that's a blot on their record."

Leonard says he's not the nervous type, so a crowded bridge doesn't bother him.

"What does bother me is when they have these Navy bands on the docks for welcoming parties. They start blowing away at their music and sometimes my tugs can't hear me over the radio."

Smarter Robots In The Future, Assert Experts

CHICAGO (AP) — Right now they're deaf, dumb and blind and assigned to the dirtiest, most menial jobs, but they have a great future ahead of them, according to the experts.

Some day industrial robots will be able to see, hear, speak and maybe even do a bit of thinking, says Charles Rosen, an expert at SRI International, a robot research lab at San Francisco.

Now, he says, "It's hard enough to make a robot that will put a nut on a bolt." So, today's robots slave away, sometimes around the clock, picking red hot billets out of steaming presses, lifting heavy motor casings or spray-painting on an assembly line.

Today's simple-minded "Pick and place" factory robots can "learn" 25 or 30 moves with their arms and claws. Some offer the ability to alternate speed between moves or to heft one-ton objects, all depending on whether it's a $10,000 or $100,000 model. The most sophisticated factory robot can learn 10,000 moves. It is controlled by a computer.

The factory robots look like Neanderthals compared with the sophsticated C3P0 and R2D2 of "Star Wars" fame.

Three basic designs, all featuring a single mechanical arm, dominate the market. One looks like a tank with a single arm protruding from the front and another looks like a phone booth with a giant arm with a hand sticking out.

When it comes to intelligence, though, the computers that control robots reach only a 1-or 2year-old's level, according to Rosen.

But robots are becoming more and more sophisticated. A robot with vision (a TV camera) has been developed at SRI and is already on the market, says Rosen, but the vision is used for inspection only.

"There will be a gradual introduction of smarter robots for the next decade, robots with vision and touch, all coordinated by computer," Rosen says. "It won't be a bombshell, but it is inevitable."

There already exist, in laboratories, robots with vision, touch through pressure-sensitive sensors and computer-controlled brain. "Now it's just a matter of acceptance. It's hard enough for people to accept the plain Unimate," he says, "much less this one."

The Unimate is Unimation Inc.'s robot. Unimation president Joe Engelberger and his Danbury, Conn., company pioneered industrial robots in 1962 when their first model came out. Recently, Unimation sold its 2,000th model and controls about 75 percent of the market. However, the company did not turn its first profit until 1974.

Engelberger says many people still fear robots. Business executives fear union reaction, but so far unions haven't reacted much, Engelberger says. "Most of the unions realize that the younger men coming up just won't take those dirty, demeaning jobs, anyway," he says.

Unimation has 85 robots in one die-casting plant. "The deal was to put in robots over 10 years as people retired. Immigrants used to run the machines, but their children weren't about to do it. So it was set up. I could walk down the line, look at the color of hair (how gray it was), and decide how many robots we'd sell in the next year.

"Nobody lost a job' and because there are five secondary jobs to every die-casting job, employment at the plant actually increased because of increased productivity. The union has said two things: no massive displacements, and whatever the blessings of increased productivity, we get part of it. Give them that, and rational labor leaders will go along."

Jack Wallace, president of the Robot Institute of America, feels the same way. "The robot isn't really a breakthrough; it's just a combination of already developed technologies. We don't want to make an artificial man; nobody wants that. What we want is performance of specific tasks that are mentally beneath the capacity of humans, or physically above it."

Many Choosing Retire Early

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the legal mandatory age now boosted to 70, early indications are that most people are choosing early retirement, even before 65.

That has been the trend for the past 10 years. The American Council of Life Insurance reports 84 percent of those questioned in a national survey agreed that retirement often makes a person feel useless.

Other authorities say there are valid reasons why people retire early despite stated misgivings.

PATIO, DECK ENHANCE LIVING AREAS

THREE BEDROOM DESIGN SPOTLIGHTS MASTER BEDROOM

By Jerry Bishop

Spacious and totally livable, the Caravelle, a three bedroom plan, makes liberal use of outdoor living areas and carefully integrates them with the indoors.

Ground level patio and upper level deck unite two living areas and expand them, while the indoor areas themselves opt for generously proportioned rooms and free-flowing traffic pattern.

The exterior is neat and crisply stated, with a shake shingle roof and intricately paneled front door adding interest. Inside, family needs are recognized and met with such features as an elegant master bedroom, first floor laundry and half bath, and expansive living-dining area.

Entry is into a foyer, with coat closet at hand and convenient access to the garage and upper level. The powder room at left is separated from the laundry by a folding door for an efficient use of space.

For food preparation and family dining, the L-shaped kitchen sets aside a breakfast area. Next to the kitchen, living and dining areas intermingle for an airy room that is equally successful with party groups or small gatherings. The ground level patio is linked to the living area by sliding glass doors, and to the upper deck by a set of stairs.

Three bedrooms occupy the upper level of the home. Besides the "smaller" bedrooms that span more than 16 x 12 ft., the design also provides a master bedroom, lavishly provided with dressing area, private bath, double closets, and entry to the garage-top deck.

For possible use as a recreation room or additional storage, the plan shows another 884 sq. ft. of space in the large basement.

Fireplaces A Popular Feature

By ELAINE Q. BARROW

The primitive appeal of a blaze in a fireplace can inspire more romance than any other feature of your home.

You gaze into the flickering flames and become almost mesmerized. Whatever tensions you feel seem to vanish in a swelling sense of serenity.

If this is your response, you're not alone. A recent builders' poll showed that among the top four features home buyers insist upon is a fireplace.

The Bureau of Census reported that fireplaces were built in 52 percent of the new homes constructed in 1975, an 18 percent increase over 1971.

If starting the fire falls to your lot, you don't need a woodsman's merit badge to handle it. It does take technique and practice, but it follows a pattern like a recipe for preparing a special dish.

Choice of wood is a good starting point. Hard woods like oak, maple, birch and hickory burn longer with a minimum of smoke. Soft woods — pine, spruce or fir — burn hot and fast. They are best used as kindling or combined with harder woods.

Well-seasoned woods are rated No. 1 because of their lower moisture content. And here's some forest lore: You can tell seasoned wood by the cracks in the grain. Also, when you clap two logs together, there is a hollow, ringing sound.

Wood is most commonly sold by the cord, a neatly piled stack of logs, but the amount of wood varies. Probably the least confusing approach is to buy it by weight and ask if the price includes delivery and stacking.

Next comes the way you lay the wood in the fireplace. Having a grate is a good idea because it elevates the logs above the firebox floor and permits all-round circulation of air. Keep in mind that the blaze feeds on both wood and air; the mixture is a must for combustion.

Air circulation, then, is a consideration when you position the logs. For the average fireplace, three to four logs that touch — but don't block the flow of air — make a good fire. A log larger than the others, placed at the rear, can serve as a blacklog. It is a heat "holder" and helps to radiate the warmth into the room.

According to the Fireplace Institute, a trade association, one should always remember to open the chimney damper before lighting the fire. This not only takes smoke away, but increases the draw of air.

A word of caution. Regardless of impatience to get a blaze going in a hurry, never use chemicals or "lighter" fuels. It's not worth the danger of spreading the fire out of control. Also, most of them have a disagreeable odor.

Your choice of screen to prevent sparks from popping into the room depends on how much you want to spend. The lowest-priced type is a rigid mesh screen that is placed standing across the front of the fireplace.

A surer barrier is a more costly one with a frame that is fitted into the fireplace opening. A series of dangling chains block the opening and, because they yield slightly when struck, absorb the momentum of a flying spark, preventing penetration.

A practical point discovered by some homemakers involves the house thermostat which controls the temperature of the house as a whole by turning the basement heating unit on or off.

A great number of these 'stats are located in the same room as the fireplace, often within 10 feet. Small wonder that when heat is radiating from the fireplace, the 'stat responds by dropping the temperature in the rest of the house.

This is solved by having an electrician move the 'stat to a different room, possibly the dining or family room.

If you need a rationale for enjoying a fireplace, consider energy conservation. It's a worthy source of supplemental heat. Unlike oil and other fossil fuels, wood is a renewable fuel source. A Federal Energy Administration booklet notes that America has enough surplus fuel woods available to heat 33 million homes all winter.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG

Q. — My husband and I are owners of a hardware store and we have always endeavored to have shellac on the shelves for those who desire the product. We do have difficulty at times obtaining the shellac and sometimes we get the 4-pound cut and sometimes the 3-pound cut. We aren't quite sure what they mean. Why is the terminology "pound" used when we are dealing with a pint or a quart of liquid? And how does one explain the dilution of shellac of 3 and 4-pound cuts or is that important anyway?

A. — The term comes from the amount of shellac gum dissolved to each gallon of pure alcohol. If 3 pounds of shellac gum are dissolved, it becomes a 3-pound cut, and so on. To convert a 4-pound cut of shellac to a 3-pound cut, mix half a pint of denatured alcohol with one quarter of shellac. Actually, for most ordinary work, a 50-50 mixture is fine, although some professionals advocate twice as much shellac as alcohol. Most wood finishers develop their own favorite mixtures after a period of time.

Q. — I have been making wooden storage cabinets for my friends and relatives for several years. Now I am thinking of going into business for myself. Is there any book that specializes in the manufacture and sale of cabinets.

A. — There are books on making cabinets and many on how to market products. The only combined storage cabinet production and sales manual with which I am familiar is put out by Long's Cabinets, 1792 Houston Road, Portland, Ore. 97535. The author's cabinet layout graph and calculator have been selected for use in a major cabinet maker's dealer training program.

Q. — I seem to do well with most kinds of paint and the clear wood finishes, but always have trouble with enamel. Is there some special way of applying enamel with a brush?

A. — If you do well with varnish, use the same method with enamel. If you brush it out, as you might do with most paints, it will tend to become sticky. Varnishes and enamels have to be flowed on, then brushed lightly to prevent runs and sags. If you brush it out too much, that's when the trouble starts.

(The techniques of applying varnish, shellac, lacquer, stain, bleach, etc., are detailed in Andy Lang's booklet, "Wood Finishing in the Home," which can be obtained by sending 35 cents and a long, STAMPED, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column, but individual correspondence cannot be undertaken.)

Gardening Questions

Q. Are trees ever recommended as foundation plantings? (W.M., Davidson)

A. Yes. Small ornamental trees with possibilities as foundation plantings include dogwood, Japanese maple, river birch, redbud, crepe myrtle, saucer magnolia, mountain ash and sourwood. All of these trees have landscape characteristics, such as form, bark texture, flowers and leaves, that make them desirable. (Kim Powell, extension landscape horticulturist)

Q. What kind of worms are boring into the stem of my roses and what can I do? (H.H., Kinston)

A. The worms are European corn borers. Now that corn and other field crops are drying up the borers are looking for green succulent plants like your roses. Apply Sevin as often as needed, which may be three-day intervals. (Jim Baker, extension entomologist)

Q. I know there has been controversy over chemicals used for fire ant control. What chemicals, if any, are now approved for this use.? (B.C., Morehead City)

A. Homeowners can use either chlorpyrifos, which is sold as Dursban, or diazinon in a 50 percent wettable powder form. Certified pesticide applicators can use either chlordane or diazinon in an emulsifiable liquid form. (Charles Apperson, extension entomologist)

Q. My crepe myrtle is turning black. What could be the problem? (Mrs. H.S., Siler City)

A. Sooty mold, which is growing in the "honeydew" secreted by the crepe myrtle aphid. I'm afraid your crepe myrtle leaves will remain black until they drop. However, you can help to prevent an infestation of aphids next year by spraying your crepe myrtle with either malathion, Orthene or diazinon. If you don't kill the aphids this fall, they will overwinter in egg form attached to the bark of your crepe myrtle. (Jim Baker, extension entomolotist)

One of the most interesting points emerging from a survey on retirement housing is that there apper to be two stages in the retirement life of many elderly persons, each of which affects where they reside.

It was evident from the letters of the retired that not only do many persons change their minds about their intentions in the year or two before retirement, but many do so after retirement, in some cases 5 to 10 years after retirement and in some cases before and after that.

The most important factor in such changes is the state of health of one or both of the couples. A health change for the worse influences the decision of whether to move, and, if so, where. When this change occurs several years after retirement, it often forces a couple, otherwise satisfied with their retirement choice, to make a second big move, occasionally back to an old neighborhood, but more often nearer to a relative who can give some physical assistance or closer to health care facilities.

If the letters are an accurate criterion, this occurs the time.

Back to the statistics: of the 1,242 retired persons who replied to the questions in a recent column about retirement housing, 755 said they decided not to make a change at retirement time. Of the 604 not yet retired, 264 planned to move when one or both quit working. One hundred and twenty-seven expected to buy smaller houses, 71 hoped to rent apartments, 38 were interested in condominiums and similar arrangements, and 10 said they would look into the possibility of living in mobile homes. There was an almost even division between those who wanted to remain in or near their present neighborhoods or, at the least, in the same general area, and those who expected to move a considerable distance away, usually to a place with a warmer climate.

High on the list of reasons for not moving from present neighborhoods (among both retired and non-retired) was nearness to friends and relatives. The retired generally said they were comfortable where they were in terms of available facilities, but a few said they just didn't like the idea of moving again at their age.

Of 246 non-retired persons planning to go into smaller houses, rentals, condominiums and mobile homes, 96 gave their present property taxes as the chief reason. But all had a multiplicity of reasons, including a desire for a better climate, less housework and [illegible], a deterioration of services, a deterioration a wish to change their mode of life.

There was little comment about the term "senior citizen," with three persons saying they hated it, two saying they had no objection to it and one saying that it "matters how elderly people are treated, not what they are called." This seeming apathy towards the use of the term is somewhat contrary to what a few organized groups of elderly persons have been saying. Indeed, quite a few letter writers told of belonging to groups which used the words "senior citizens" in the titles of their organizations.

Inventions Mirror Of The Times

By TERRY KIRKPATRICK
AP Newsfeatures Writer

More than four million inventions have been patented by the government since 1790, and it would be too much to expect all of them to have found useful life in factory, office or home.

Good thing, too, in this gadget-manic era, since our attics probably couldn't bear the weight.

Yet the parade of patents, odd and ordinary, successful and not, relegated now in techno-jargon and diagram to dusty archives, serves another purpose: a history of the times, preoccupations and aspirations of people.

The world war was only three years past and among the 28,086 patents granted that year were innumerable improvements to implements of destruction — bombsights, torpedoes, code machines and land mines, including a land mine that could be set to ignore several vehicles passing over it before exploding; for the foot soldier, a combination shearsrifle, so that he could attack a position protected by barbed wire, clipping the wire and firing as he charged.

The great migration to the suburbs was on, and inventors wanted to improve the ride with automobile roof designs to insulate cars from heat, cold or noise, a headlight dimmer, a slow-down signal, a heated windshield wiper, a tire deflation signal, a car refreshment tray, and a phonograph to announces points of interest along the route.

With the postwar baby boom, there were more mouths to feed. That inspired a spinach dry-cleaning machine, a machine to make crisp bread, a method of making powdered mashed potatoes, an electronic baking oven, and a fish scalerscraper.

Inventors like to combine things. The patent list for 1948 contains a combination compact and flashlight, a combination baby carriage and shopping cart and a combination magnifier and telephone dialer.

They also like to separate what is already combined. Hence, a process for mechanically separating eggs from their shells, a bean and pea pod splitter and a feather engaging drum for chicken plucking machines.

A Peach-Fed 'Possum Has An Advocate

By CHARLES S. TAYLOR

CLANTON, Ala. (UPI) — They call him the "possum man" and it is quickly apparent why — he keeps one in his office at city hall.

The "possum man" is the mayor of Clanton, Frank Basil Clark, 48, who also is president of the National Possum Growers and Breeders Association of America.

No one in the association ever contradicts the name of the group by correctly spelling it "opossum." According to Clark, the "o" in opossum is invisible.

"Eat more possum" says a bumper sticker on Clark's car. The association's motto is "a registered possum is a better possum."

Usually, if Clark is around, so is a possum. So it was on a hot summer afternoon as Clark sat in his office in Clanton, a small town in central Alabama, and talked about his favorite subject.

"I've got a possum running around here somewhere," the mayor said. He looked in a paper bag beneath his desk.

"He's gone!" exclaimed the mayor, who began a systematic search under his desk and behind furniture. Finally he said, "I see his tail," and thereupon pulled a small hairy creature from behind a piece of office furniture.

Clark held the possum for a few minutes, which by this time had started drooling. He explained that the possum moistens its tail this way. The tail, to which the possum pumps its blood, serves as a "radiator" to keep its body cool.

Being president of such an association, one would think that Clark would tell a joke a minute about possums. But behind his handlebar moustache, the mayor adopts a serious vein when talking about the ratlike animals, one of the few marsupials living outside Australia.

Possums have a face like a fox, a tail like a monkey, ears like a bat and human-like hands. They carry their young in a pouch like the kangaroo.

Clark says possums are rapid breeders, their meat high in protein, and they could be the answer to the world's food problem. They also have a simple, elementary biologic structure and make excellent animals for medical research, he said.

"Could you not learn auto mechanics on a A-model?" he asked.

Clark said several research hospitals have started using possums in their work but the meat of the animal is hard to find on any menu except possibly the Explorer's Club in New York.

"The fat in a possum is lowsaturated," he said, "and cleans your arteries like a rotorooter."

There are about 35,000 association members who pay a $5 fee to join, and there are 100 actual growers. You do not have to own a possum to be a member, nor is there any initiation rite requiring a prospective member to eat possum, which Clrrk says sells for $8 to $10 per pound.

"I can't afford it," says Clark, who reported that possum meat tastes "a little like pork and a little like chicken," and is especially good served with sweet potatoes.

Despite Clark's defense of the possum as a source of high protein food and animals for research, it is apparent that in this part of the country, at least, the possum's greatest value is as an animal to hunt.

Clark himself has been on many such adventures. Usually, the possum, once treed by dogs and captured, is turned loose, to be hunted again.

"We need a bunch more possums," said Clark. "We could sell a million possums if we had them."

At the end of about six hours of talking about the possum, interpersed with a lunch break and several other interruptions, the mayor's desk was littered with notes from his secretary, presumably about official business.

But Clark said "I put possums first and everything else falls right into place."

Taxidermist Dreams Of A Final, Glorious Trophy

NICE KITTY—Max Shipley, left, and his son, Max Eugene, put the finishing touches on an African lion just before delivering it to its owner. Shipley, of Columbus, Ohio, has been a taxidermist for 33 years, and his son is following him in the trade.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The 8-foot Alaskan brown bear in Max Shipley's home is a little like a Sherman tank.

Even if it doesn't move or make noise, it's awfully hard to ignore. That is, unless you've seen the pouncing African lion in his garage.

Both beasts are beyond causing harm. Shipley is a taxidermist.

It's an art he admired as a child. In high school he sent away for a correspondence course on taxidermy.

It set his career.

The first thing he mounted was a pigeon. Since then the list of animals he has worked on might make Noah envious. There have been hundreds of deer, penguins, mountain sheep, lions, tigers, gazelles, moose, bears and birds.

He doesn't take every job offered him. He won't mount pets.

"We can't make them look the same as the owner remembers them," he said.

Shipley, a short man with glasses, who speaks softly, chuckled as he told about one of the weirdest jobs he was asked to do. A man called to say he had killed a bobcat and wanted it mounted. When the hunter arrived, Shipley saw that the man had "somebody's big Angora cat."

But it's deer that really keep the wolves from his door. Mounting deer hunters' trophies is a major part of business. His son, Max Eugene, who works with him, has done all the deer and antelope for the last 12 years, Shipley said.

When he receives an animal, Shipley immediately ships the skin to Colorado to be tanned.

"All we do is taxidermy, we don't do any tanning," he said. "That's an art in itself. An individual can't do both."

When the skin is returned, Shipley soaks it to make it flexible and mounts it on a frame. The skin has to be sewn and molded to fit the frame.

"I've wanted a big bear since I was a little kid," he said. "It took me 60 years before I got it, but I got it."

Shipley said he shot Moe on an Alaskan hunting trip. Sometimes he hunts with a gun; other times with cameras. He uses pictures to guide him in his taxidermy work.

Although he's been at it for 33 years, Shipley has no plans to retire and there is still one trophy he wants — a full elephant head.

If he gets it, Ole Moe may have to move over.

A Deranged Knee Is One Of Problems

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Health Editor

"Deranged knees" and "enraged tonsils" reportedly made some Americans see a doctor last year.

Others saw a physician for "alligany in both eyes" or "confusion in the nose" or "post-natal drip" or "semimental conditions."

"Ingestion of the intestines" and "stomach clamp" are two more of 1977's bothersome medical conditions.

Those unusual maladies are among patient descriptions of ailments as reported to interviewers in the $18 million Medical Costs Survey underway for the government by Research Triangle Institute, Research Triangle Park, N.C.

The biggest ever health survey is expected to produce millions of bits of information for planners of National Health Insurance.

The funny-sounding conditions are among 110,000 descriptions of ailments fed into the survey's computer for future reference. The inventory of unusual conditions also includes "high-pertension," "blue venus," "be-nine tumor" and "spilt lip."

Among eye conditions reported were "vibrating eyes," "eyes mattering," and "flashing eyes."

One person sought medical care for "heart hemorrhoids."

An update on the survey in "Hypotenuse," a Research Triangle Institute publication, notes that one person reported having "molds removed."

Health problems cited by other individuals included a recluse spider bite, Indian fire and chicken nails. One respondent's condition was listed as "smashed."

The joint sponsors of the research are the National Center for Health Services and the National Center for Health Statistics. During the household survey spanning 18 months, field staff traveled nearly two million miles and spent 298,960 hours, including travel time, surveying an estimated 13,500 households involving 40,000 persons.

The household surveys marked the first phase of the huge information-gathering project. The second major phase, following up with the physicians and other medical providers cited by the householders, has just started.

Also to be contacted will be insurers and employers through whom the respondents obtained group insurance.

The project leader, Dr. Daniel Horvitz, said a chief motivation behind the massive research undertaking is to provide information needed to estimate costs and benefits of various proposals for national health insurance.

Government officials will have uses for the survey results other than assessing health insurance plans, according to Horvitz. The many applications may include determining the impact of possible changes in federal income tax provisions relating to medical expenses.

Blind Biker Is On Fast Team

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Larry Crowe is blind but he is on the tandem bicycling team that holds the Kentucky tandem time-trial record.

Tandem bicycle racing requires a team effort. The "stoker" on the back and the "pilot" on the front have to be pretty much equal in strength and stamina.

They completed the 25-mile national time-trial course near Carrollton in 61 minutes two years ago, a state record for tandems.

According to experts, tandem riding around the country is on the rise and the blind are heavily involved because of the opportunity it gives them to stretch their muscles and feel the countryside.

'Centennial' No Mini-Series

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — To call "Centennial" a mini-series is to beggar the meaning of the term.

"Centennial" is anything but mini. It is the longest film ever made for television or the movies. It will take 26 hours on NBC to tell the story that closely follows the novel by James A. Michener.

"On this project I have no other life," says John Wilder, executive producer for the $30 million production, who also adapted the story and wrote 10 hours of the script. He's at the studio from early in the morning until late at night. At home, he spends hours more on the phone with problems at the filming sites.

Fifteen hours have been filmed so far, entirely on location in Colorado, Ohio and Kentucky, with the cattle drive sequence filmed in Texas. Six hours are now in production. Three hours are being prepared for the camera, and a final two-hour script is in rewrite.

The first, three-hour episode airs tonight on NBC, with a two-hour episode next Sunday, telling one complete story sequence. After that "Centennial" will be off the air for two weeks, then air irregularly on Sundays until February.

"Centennial," like most Michener books, is part fiction, part history and part ecology lesson. Even seeing only brief, isolated scenes suggests its epic strength. Seldom has television had the talents of such a masterful storyteller as Michener.

The story tracks the hardy frontiersmen and the events that shaped the West, from the 1700s to the present day. Robert Conrad is the French-Canadian fur trapper Pasquinel. It is probably the first role that has ever challenged his acting ability, and he meets it admirably. Richard Chamberlain is his partner, McKeag, a red-bearded Scot who flees to America after killing a Highland lord.

Their story occupies the first five hours. Sally Kellerman, Raymond Burr and Barbara Carrera also star. Subsequent stories star Chad Everett, Richard Crenna, Brian Keith, Lynn Redgrave, Donald Pleasence, Dennis Weaver and David Janssen.

Although "Centennial" is presently ruling Wilder's life, it was the opportunity to make the film that lured him to Universal Studios.

He had previously produced "The Streets of San Francisco," one of the best police shows ever on television. Frank Price, then president of Universal Television, wanted to bring Wilder to the studio.

"Frank asked me what he could offer me," says Wilder, a former child actor in the heyday of radio. "I said I'd heard he had the rights to 'Centennial.' He said 'it's yours.' My stomach leaped into my mouth. I asked him how he wanted to do it. He said, 'That's up to you.'"

Possibly First In Unusual PhD

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Stephen Sloan is believed to be the first person in the country to receive a doctorate in human sexuality.

He received the degree in September, 1977, from New York University where a program that offers a Ph. D. in human sexuality was established in 1970. A lot of people started through the program before he did, he said, but most were part-time students, and he was the first to finish.

Dr. Sloan, 28, who has been doing some counseling work here, said his primary interest was in counseling the handicapped and the elderly, and in teaching.

LIFE IN HAWAII

HONOLULU (AP) — Hawaii led the nation in buying ordinary life insurance in 1977, according to the American Council of Life Insurance.

The council said newly purchased life insurance totaled $4,958 per household in Hawaii last year, followed by $4,867 in Utah and $4,789 in laska.

The United States average was $3,313.

Civilization Is A Threat

By BJORN EDLUND

KIRUNA, Sweden (UPI) — Lars Pittsa, pointing across the Kiruna valley and the teeming mining town to the ragged outline of the iron ore mountain, sighed and said: "To us Lapps, all this is an intrusion.

For the Lapps, original inhabitors of the north of Scandinavia, civilization is a threat to their traditional livelihood — reindeer.

"This was prime grazing land. Our forefathers led their reindeer through this valley to the mountains in the spring and back to winter grazing down by the coast in the fall," Pittsa said.

Of 20,000 Swedish Lapps, some 2,500 make their living by raising reindeer, selling the meat and making handicrafts. Pittsa said 44 Lapp villages own a total of 200,000 reindeer.

"My village, Sorkaitum, has 9,000 reindeer. We are 30 families living in a 'village' of 15 square miles," he said.

The 44 Lapp village areas — where reindeer-raising Lapps are entitled to hunt and fish all year and take wood for personal use — cover more than one quarter of Sweden in broad strips from the Baltic Sea to the Norwegian border.

Only Lapps whose parents or grand-parents raised reindeer and belonged to Lapp villages obtain rights to hold reindeer.

Pittsa, a modern, middleaged Lapp who uses his snowmobile and car to watch his herd in winter, said his people's situation has improved.

"But the interests of the Lapps often clash with the interests of the rest of society. My village has lost a third of its best grazing land to a power dam.

"Though we received compensation, no money can make up for the loss of good grazing as water fills a valley and you are left with barren mountain tops," he said.

Pittsa said Sweden's Lapps produce $3.2 million to $4.3 million worth of reindeer meat yearly, and could step up production "almost indefinitely" without running ahead of demand.

"The right to the land is the basic thing for us," he said.

Recognized since the beginning of the century but often violated by dam construction, forestry projects and mining, Lapp rights to the land were established in a parliamentary bill in 1977.

"Our main problem lies in the future," Pittsa said. "In 1520 years time, we will face a population crisis. Lapp women often fall for blue-eyed Swedes and move to the cities down south.

"Many reindeer Lapps are old bachelors, and without children growing up to learn reindeer keeping, our culture faces extinction," he said.

"The Lapp year begins in May," Pittsa said. "Then the reindeer calves are born, down in the low country near the Baltic Sea.

"In early summer, as snow melts, we trail the herds up to the mountains near the Norwegian border, where they graze through the warm season.

"Then, in the fall, we move the animals back to the coast, where the winter is milder than in the mountains and the reindeer can get through the snow to graze the moss of the coast woodlands."

In early winter, the reindeer are rounded up and animals earmarked for slaughter are separated from the herd.

Despite modern help from helicopters, small aircraft, snowmobiles and cars to look after the reindeer, the Lapps live according to their age-old tradition — following their herds over the cycle of the subarctic year.

"I am sure we will survive as a culture. Perhaps only through help from the society which threatens us, but we will survive," Pittsa said.

LOCUSTS FOR DINNER?

DURBAN, South Africa (AP) — South African scientists say locusts could feed the masses, noting a swarm carries about a ton of locusts per hectare, and a recent swarm covered 1,300 hectares.

"Since they consist of more han 53 percent crude protein, this represents about 65 million kilograms of concentrated airborne protein," the scientists explained.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Breathing Difficulty Demands Doctor's Attention

Can the opening and closing of my mouth have any effect on how much air gets into my lungs? For instance, whenever I sit down to eat (I don't slouch) it seems as if I don't get enough air into my lungs and I have to stand up and take a deep breath. — Mr. R.S., Calif.

Dear Mr. S.:

It must be obvious to you that no possible diagnosis can be made here to clarify your problem. Even if I were to venture an opinion, and I certainly would not, it would do you an injustice. Why, then, do I choose to answer your letter at all?

I do so because it shows me how lax some people are about seeking a proper solution to their medical problems by consulting their own physicians.

Now, what would your doctor do? He would evaluate your weight, your blood pressure, study your heart and do pulmonary studies of the lungs. He would want to know if you smoke, if you overeat and if you are particularly tense during meals. Complete inquiry into your past medical history and an evaluation of all the tests would inevitably lead to a proper diagnosis.

Once this is established, treatment and some change of your regime will be helpful.

Your problem does not seem to be a very complex one. Delaying that visit to your doctor further emphasizes your anxiety and serves only to complicate it.

* * *

I would like to have plastic surgery of my nose to improve my appearance. My problem is I don't know where to go to have this done. Would you be kind enough to send me some information? Also, is it possible to tell before an operation what the nose will look like afterwards? — Mr. A.N.R., Mass.

Dear Mr. R.:

In every major medical community in the country there are many excellent and highly trained plastic surgeons. The ideal way to find such a person is to discuss this matter with your own doctor who undoubtedly knows the very best surgeons that are available locally.

His past relationship with such doctors gives him an excellent idea about their competence as surgeons as well as their psychological understanding of their patients' needs. For cosmetic surgery does, indeed, demand such understanding, in addition to surgical skills.

Cosmetic plastic surgeons are usually able to give a patient a good idea of what the nose will look like after the operation. Unless there is some unusually difficult nasal condition, it is possible to predict within a reasonable degree a fairly good picture of the future nose.

Approach Their Credit Limits

WASHINGTON (AP) — The recent rapid growth of East-West trade is likely to slow because the Soviet Union and other Communist nations are approaching their limit in borrowing from the West and some may be unable to pay on time the nearly $50 billion they already owe, according to the Brookings Institution.

A new study released Wednesday by the Washingtonbased economic research institution said the Communist nations need to borrow from the West to finance imports. It added that while Poland and Bulgaria are in the worst shape, "not one of the ... countries is without a debt servicing problem," including the Soviet Union.

Salute To American Imagination

"A Salute to American Imagination," a major two-hour entertainment special commerating the 75th anniversary of the Ford Motor Company, airs Thursday, Oct. 5, 8 to 10 p.m., on CBS-TV. Joining in the dramatic, humorous and musical celebration are top stars and other distinguished personalities from the fields of theater, literature and space science.

Hosting the event will be Joanne Woodward, Paul Newman, Madeline Kahn and Telly Savalas.

Through the performances of the special's stars, viewers will see themselves as they have been mirrored in song and dance, on stage and in book and film during the seven and a half decades that have seen the country advance from horse-drawn carriages to moon-landing space ships.

The special also looks ahead as it focuses on what goes on in the imaginations of people ranging from Henry Ford and Neil Armstrong, the first man to walk on the moon, to young school children who have known no age before the space age. The children are among the cross section of typical Americans interviewed by international explorer-cinematographer Mike Hoover in "The People Speak" segments, which were shot this summer across the country and are woven throughout the special.

Miller comments on his Pulitzer Prize-winner "Death of a Salesman," an excerpt from which is performed by Edward Asner and Martin Sheen. Simon introduces the dramatic scene from his "The Prisoner of Second Avenue," reenacted by Lee Grant and Martin Balsam. And Williams discusses the excerpt from "The Glass Menagerie" in which John Ritter and Ronee Blakley play the leading roles.

Musical numbers, helping to tell us who we were and are and what we hope to be, are performed by Ray Charles, Aretha Franklin, Kris Kristofferson and Rita Coolidge, Johnny Mathis, Ethel Merman, Hedwig & Crossley, and the UCLA Choir.

Among the comedy highlights is a skit on inventions with Sid Caesar and Imogene Coca.

The special also depicts how imagination entered the growth of small town and big city life, how it affects the way we work, how we entertain ourselves, love and marriage, and how it will propel us further into the future "on our way to the stars."

Paul Newman and Joanne Woodward are among the hosts on "A Salute to American Imagination," the major two-hour entertainment special in which a roster of top stars and other distinguished personalities join for a dramatic, humorous and musical celebration of the Ford Motor Company's 75th anniversary. It will be broadcast Thursday, Oct. 5 (8-10 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

'Centennial' To Air

"Centennial," a monumental 26-hour adaptation of James A. Michener's best-selling novel, gets under way with a three-hour presentation on NBC-TV's "The Big Event" Sunday, Oct. 1, at 8 p.m. The huge production, the largest single project ever presented on television, was filmed entirely on location at sites extending from the Colorado Rockies to the Ohio River separating Kentucky and Ohio. Another unit was shooting simultaneously in Texas reenacting the first massive cattle drive north.

The series has a veritable wagon load of stars — Robert Conrad, Richard Chamberlain, Raymond Burr, Chad Everett, Clint Walker, Michael Ansara, Alex Karras, Richard Crenna, Sally Kellerman, Barbara Carrera and Chief Dan George. Some 200 Indians recruited from South Dakota, Wyoming, New Mexico, Utah and other Western states provide authentic atmosphere. In addition, 250 members of the American Mountain Men Association participate in the filming of a rendezvous scene.

Michener provides a brief introduction, setting the scene in the Colorado Rockies for the epic drama which is the longest motion picture ever made.

Centennial is a fictional town in Colorado. The narrative, based on historical facts, chronicles changes and upheavals beginning with the Indians and extending through the white man's arrival in the West. Depicted is the influx over the years of trappers, adventurers, gold-seekers, ranchers, homesteaders, farmers and spectulators.

Conrad stars as Pasquinel, a French-Canadian trader, who intrudes on Indian land along Colorado's Platte River in search of pelts. He has a critical confrontation with Arapaho hero Lame Beaver (Ansara), but they soon become friends and Pasquinel's fur trading operation is launched.

Later, Pasquinel meets head on with unfriendly Pawnees who are holding Scot fugitive McKeag (Chamberlain) prisoner. The Frenchman negotiates a unique deal — he swaps a gun for McKeag and the two become partners.

During a trio to take pelts to St. Louis, Pasquinel marries Lise Bockweiss (Kellerman), daughter of a German silversmith (Burr). And though he heads back to the wilderness, his family is established.

Part II of "Centennial" will air Sunday, Oct. 8

PANORAMIC WESTERN — Michael Ansara (l) portrays an Indian leader, Richard Chamberlain (c) and Robert Conrad are European settlers who establish a foothold in the Old West, and Barbara Carrera plays the Indian woman Chamberlain marries, in "Centennial," the NBC-TV miniseries based on James A. Michener's best-seller. The epic drama will open on "The Big Event," Sunday, Oct. 1 (8-11 p.m.).

Stevenson: Time To Grow Up

Parker Stevenson thinks it's time to grow up!

The 26-year-old actor has been earning a good living in front of a camera for some 15 years, but he believes it's time to finally portray a character who is his own age.

"I think it's essential for my career and me," the personable actor says, "to portray someone different while I'm still doing 'The Hardy Boys.' Maybe play a heavy, play my age instead of a younger person.

I've always played down, played younger, and that's been good in the sense that it's been easier for me. However, I'm ready to spread my wings and grow up a little — play 26 in something that is a nice contrast to this role.

"I don't think I have to go overboard about it," he says with a grin. "I think that can be a mistake, but I do feel there is certain material for which I'm physically appropriate to do."

His remarks are not to suggest that he wants to leave "The Hardy Boys," but rather to do a TV or movie role that will serve as another stepping stone in his career.

"The series is great. I love doing it, and it, too, is a nice stepping stone, I hope. But it shouldn't be the cause of exclusion from anything else. The trouble, of course, is finding something, and I'm now searching for a property on my own, because I don't want to have to sit back and wait for something."

He agrees when it's suggested that his interest in doing a more mature role is a reflection of a deeper commitment to his career and the placement of it as the number one priority in his life.

"Most of my friends that I went to school with are settled down, maybe married, but I've gotten used to having a certain mobility," he admits. "I find that very exciting.

"In a sense, it would be very tempting to settle down with someone and have a house and two dogs, sharing everything that's going on. But the nature of the show is such that it's 24 hours a day, and I think my career calls for that. I want to make that type of commitment to it. I don't ever want to feel that, 'Gee, I short-changed myself.' I don't want to have any regrets, and just being aware of that reflects the commitment. I no longer have any fear of that commitment. Thus, the career does come first in my life."

Jaclyn Smith Stars

Jaclyn Smith stars as a small-town girl with a dark past who falls in love with a fading screen star, goes with him to Hollywood and masterminds his spectacular professional and personal comeback in "The Users," a 2-and-a-half hour motion picture airing as "The ABC Sunday Night Movie," Oct. 1, 9 to 11:30 p.m.

Tony Curtis, Red Buttons, Alan Feinstein, Joan Fontaine, John Forsythe, George Hamilton, Darren McGavin, Carrie Nye and Michelle Phillips round out the starring cast.

In a dramatic departure from her role of Kelly Garrett in "Charlie's Angels," Ms. Smith plays Elena, an admitted former call girl who gratefully accepts an invitation from veteran screen actor Randy Brent (Curtis) to leave Arizona and live with him in Hollywood. Soon afterward they are married. When Elena sees how Hollywood powers have demoralized Randy, she embarks on a courageous crusade to put him back on top and restore his dignity.

Jaclyn Smith stars as a small town girl who uses her beauty and charm to rise to the very top of Hollywood's high-powered social ladder in "The Users," a behind-the-camera drama of glamour and scandal in the movie capitol making its world premiere on "The ABC Sunday Night Movie," Oct. 1 (9-11:30 p.m.).

Lavish Set And Effects Used In Film

Jules Verne created magic on the printed page, and Walt Disney captured that magic on the screen in two feature films with the assistance of Peter Ellenshaw and other special effects craftsmen.

Ellenshaw was the matte artist for "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea" (the first Disney film to receive an Academy Award for special effects). He also served as director of special photographic effects for "In Search of the Castaways," the 1962 adaptation of a Verne story making its television debut on "The Wonderful World of Disney" in two parts, Sunday, Oct. 1 and 8, at 7 p.m. on NBC-TV.

The movie, starring Hayley Mills, Maurice Chevalier and George Sanders, boasts some of the most lavish special effects and imaginative sets in Disney history. In bringing the globetrotting spectacle to the screen, Walt Disney matched real life splendor with sets large enough to occupy four immense sound stages.

One of the most impressive sets was a scale reproduction of a section of the South American Andes, over which a band of adventurers begin a perilous journey to find a missing sea captain. Skilled Disney artisans worked two months building the mountain range, then destroyed it in one minute for a spectacular earthquake scene.

Ellenshaw implemented the Andes set as the backdrop for a violent avalanche, an especially difficult effect. The explorers are placed on a rock that becomes a makeshift toboggan sled that speeds exhilaratingly through caves of menacing stalactites.

A particularly dazzling interior set was the meticulous copy of a 150-foot South American Ombu tree. A stickler for realism, Disney had 600 Ombu branches flown in from Argentine Pampas to insure authenticity.

Ellenshaw and special effects craftsmen made good use of the Ombu. They arranged for a flash flood to engulf the tree, and then created a bolt of lightning to strike and transform it into a blazing inferno.

The script called for a "luxurious steam yacht circa 1870," so Disney built a 150-foot replica of the first ocean-going steam vessel. Other impressive sets included reproductions of the ports of Glasgow, Scotland, and Melbourne, Australia; a New Zealand Maori Village and stockade, and a simulated live volcano.

Ellenshaw, whose association with Walt Disney Productions spans three decades, is currently the production designer of Disney's upcoming "Space Probe," the $16 million science fiction fantasy that will utilize special effects never before seen in a motion picture.

Public Affairs Series Airs

NBC News anchorman David Brinkley started working at the "Wilmington Star-News" while in high school, and has been in the news business ever since. Brinkley is the guest of President William C. Friday when the new season of "North Carolina People" premieres Sunday, Oct. 1, at 6 p.m. on UNC-TV.

Brinkley, who lived in Wilmington until he was 20, says that he always liked to write, and still likes it best. "I'm not good at talking," he smiles.

Asked about President Carter and the political climate of the country, Brinkley says that Carter is going through what most recent presidents have experienced.

Stars Impressed

When Greer Garson, Robert Young and Dorothy McGuire sat on the sidelines of NBC-TV's "Little Women" set, in between takes for the four-hour miniseries (to be telecast in two parts, Oct. 2 and 3, 9 to 11 p.m. both nights), they didn't play "remember when?" Instead, the three veteran motion picture stars compared their views on today's young performers — as exemplified in the young stars with whom they had been working.

"I don't know where they're getting the training," Young said. "Maybe in the colleges, but I do know they are totally professional, absolutely prepared and ready to go to work. I think they're just wonderful."

Oscar winner Greer Garson (Best Actress, "Mrs. Miniver," 1942) seconded Young's praises and added, "I've done a lot of work with the college students in Santa Fe and I can't tell you how impressed I am with the way they are preparing themselves. When they get onstage and in front of a camera, you know how hard they've worked, and it's wonderfully rewarding to appear with them. They're learning every second, and enjoying it so much!"

In the David Victor production of "Little Women" the three veteran stars appear in scenes with a host of young people.

Susan Dey has the "plum" role of Jo March, a tomboy of the Civil War era who is a would-be writer. She and young actress Eve Plumb, who plays the fragile Beth March, learned their craft as child performers in the television series "The Partridge Family and "The Brady Bunch." As the years have gone by, they have perfected their art in a series of dramatic portrayals that have been praised by people who watched them grow up — literally — on camera.

Meredith Baxter Birney (who plays Meg March in "Little Women" and has a starring role in the prime-time series "Family") cut her teeth in acting in the situation comedy series "Bridget Loves Birnie."

Only fair-haired Ann Dusenberry — Amy March — is a product of college drama classes, having majored in theater at Occidental College in Los Angeles. Her acquaintance with Shaw, Moliere, and Shakespeare gave her ease in the period costumes and mannered speech of the Civil War era of "Little Women."

Whatever training the young people brought to their roles, Garson, Young and McGuire insisted the end results were uniformly admirable.

Susan Dey stars as Jo March when "NBC Monday Night at the Movies" presents their adaptation of Louisa May Alcott's classic tale "Little Women," in two parts Monday, Oct. 2 (9-11 p.m.) and on Tuesday, Oct. 3 (9-11 p.m.).

Children's Programs

New faces, places and experiences highlight PBS's fall line-up of children's programs. Old favorites "Sesame Street," "The Electric Company," "Mister Rogers" and "Zoom" are joined by three new series and new episodes of "Once Upon a Classic," "Studio See" and "Rebop."

The award-winning children's program, "The Big Blue Marble," premieres Monday, Oct. 2. Done in an international magazine format, the program visits such places as Japan, India, Kenya, Italy and the United States to show how children live, work, play and grow. Another feature of the series is the "Dear Pen Pal" segment which allows children to correspond with others around the world.

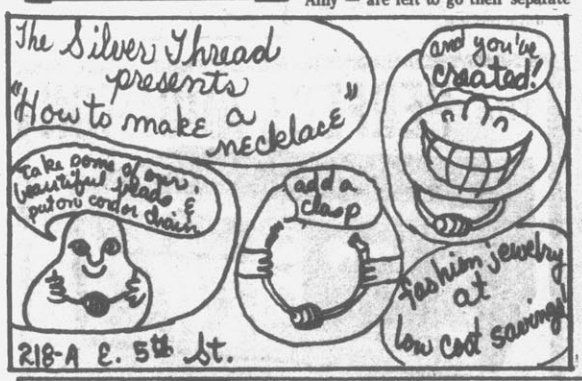

The "Freestyle" series uses short dramatizations to expand children's knowledge of the world of work and reduce the stereotyping of career-related interests and activities. In the process, the series gives youngsters knowledge about specific adult occupations and family roles.

A new addition to the "in-school" schedule is "Trade-Offs," a series designed to uncomplicate the world of economics for nine to thirteen-year-olds. The fundamental economic problems depicted in the short dramatizations are common to the everyday lives of children. The series is also intended to help them become more effective decision-makers and ultimately more responsible citizens.

"Once Upon a Classic" will begin its third season with the adventure series "Dominic" in eight half-hour episodes.

"Studio See's" second season begins with a program exploring TV violence. Producer Jayne Adair describes the show as a "behind-the-scenes, close-up look at how stunts and cosmetics make TV action look as real as possible."

"Roots" star Levar Burton is the host of "Rebop," a multicultural television series. Its goals are to instill an appreciation and understanding of the uniqueness of every individual.

Role Was Good Change

Handsome Robert Ginty couldn't be happier.

After all, it's not every actor who can see his very first television series cancelled, then turn around the next day and get a second one without missing a season in-between.

However, that's exactly what Bob's done, and not only is there a significant contrast in the two roles — there's a similarity of change in himself.

"When I left New York, people were saying, 'How can you do that? How can you leave what you've got here and go out there hoping you'll find another job?' It's amazing how things have fallen together. No sooner was 'Black Sheep Squadron' cancelled that I got roles in two movies.

"However, I had already made the decision not to return to 'Black Sheep' regardless, and people again said, 'How can you do that?' It's just that I felt it was the right move to make. I've always wanted to keep making that step-by-step progression as an actor. Then, the day after I notified NBC that I wouldn't return to the series, I got a call from CBS about coming over to discuss 'Paper Chase' with them.

"Well, I picked up the script, put on the wardrobe and the character was right there. It was heaven-sent since this role is a complete opposite of the character I played on 'Black Sheep.' Instead of the naive young lieutenant, now it's the very aggressive, very intelligent, sharp organizer of this group of Harvard law students."

In much the same fashion, Bob himself has made the transition from one character to another.

"When I started 'Black Sheep,' I was new, young, green and not too sure of myself or of the business," he says honestly. "But since then I've been given a great number of opportunities, and I definately have to thank a lot of people for that.

Robert Ginty co-stars as Anderson, a member of the first-year study group enrolled in Prof. Kingsfield's contract law class, in "The Paper Chase." The compelling drama about the intense competition among students in law school airs Tuesdays (8-9 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

'Pumping Iron'

Feature length films return to PBS with the premiere of "Cinema Showcase," a new series of ten recent films of international repute. "Pumping Iron," George and Jerome Gary's 1977 documentary on the bodybuilding mystique, debuts the series on Tuesday, Oct. 3, at 9 p.m. on PBS.

Based on a book that became a runaway best seller, "Pumping Iron" is a fascinating look into the world of the bodybuilder, where getting in shape becomes less a means to an end than an end in itself. The camera focuses on the kind of men (such as Arnold Schwarznegger and Louis Ferrigno) who compete for the World Bodybuilding Championship title, and on the rigorous training they undertake.

Ironically, the writer and producers of "Pumping Iron," the first serious treatment of bodybuilding by the movies, were faced with a herculean task of their own just getting the picture off the ground. It bogged down at almost every stage in its development. Getting the film financed, produced and edited became a feat involving the same persistence, energy and dedication found in the bodybuilders themselves.

It all began when novelist Charles Gaines and photographer George Butler collaborated on an article for Sports Illustrated about the Mr. East Coast Contest in Massachusetts. The story was a triumph for bodybuilding — the first time a national magazine had published a favorable piece on the sport.

But every magazine in New York turned Gaines and Butler down when they wanted to cover the World Bodybuilding Championship in Bagdad, Iraq. Finally, "Life" magazine came through.

The two collaborators next expanded their interest into a book which finally found a receptive editor at Simon and Schuster — and became an underground classic now in its fifth printing.

Then, when George Butler hit on the idea of a film, response was less than enthusiastic. A short film about the contest in Bagdad was impossible to finance.

Two years later the two found interested parties — a film crew was assembled and the movie was shot the summer of 1974.

Model Is Now Actress

Barbara Carrera, who has a starring role in the opening segment of "Centennial," airing Sunday, Oct. 1, 8 to 11 p.m. on NBC-TV, first gained international attention by starring as Maria, the mysterious woman in the film adaptation of H.G. Wells' classic, "The Island of Dr. Moreau," with Burt Lancaster and Michael York.

This marked Barbara's third leading role in a major film after she abandoned a highly successful career as a high fashion model. She has appeared on the cover of all the leading magazines, including Vogue, Cosmopolitan, Bazaar and others.

Barbara starred in "The Master Gunfighter," when she was discovered by Producer Tom ("Billy Jack") Laughlin's wife, Delores Taylor. Taylor spotted Barbara's picture in a magazine in Paris and determined they needed a leading lady with "those looks."

After they tracked Barbara down, they flew her to Hollywood and a screen test followed. "They didn't look any further and they decided on me," Barbara recalls.

Her third leading lady role was opposite Rock Hudson in "Embryo," a demanding role in which she had to age scores of years.

And now, as Clay Basket, in the James A. Michener best-selling novel, Barbara once again ages through the script. She goes from a young girl to an older woman.

Carrera is a native of Nicaragua, but came to the United States at age 11. She received her formal education both in this country in convents and in Europe and speaks fluently in five languages.

'Carrie' Airs On CBS-TV

An unpopular teen-ager uses her supernatural powers to gain a devastating revenge against her cruel classmates, in "Carrie," the hit thriller, starring Sissy Spacek, Piper Laurie, John Travolta, Amy Irving and William Katt, being broadcast for the first time on television on "The CBS Tuesday Night Movies," Oct. 3, 9 to 11 p.m.

Miss Spacek and Miss Laurie were nominated for Academy Awards for their performances in the Brian DePalma horror tale, released theatrically in 1976.

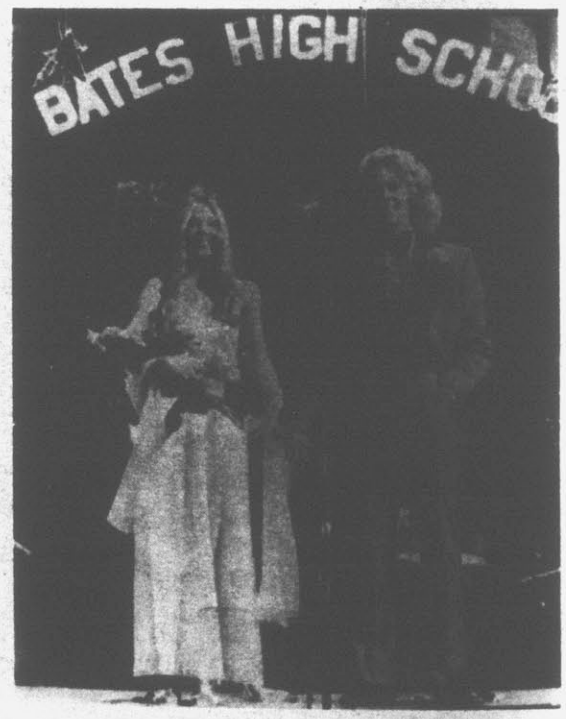

Carrie (Miss Spacek) is shy, withdrawn, unpopular and naive. At home, her mother (Miss Laurie) runs her life with a fanatically stern hand. At school, her classmates subject her to taunts and cruel jokes. What they don't know is that Carrie has a supernatural power to make objects move through concentration, a telekinetic power she will eventually use against them.

The scene is set when a sympathetic gym teacher (Betty Buckley) catches some of Carrie's tormentors in action and disciplines them. Their ringleader, Chris (Nancy Allen), vows to get even with Carrie for spoiling their fun.

Chris and her boyfriend (Travolta) choose the senior prom as their opportunity. Another student (Miss Irving), feeling sorry for Carrie, has arranged for her boyfriend (Katt) to escort Carrie to the prom dance.

In her excitement, Carrie is radiant. To her amazement, she is named Queen of the Prom. But it's all part of Chris' plot to humiliate Carrie. It is also the last straw, as Carrie angrily unleashes her supernatural fury.

De Palma has used every trick in the book to keep emotional involvement at a near-constant peak, and his efforts were not in vain. Younger viewers will be particularly prone to identify with its heroine's plight, being gleefully led through her gruesome vendetta.

An unpopular student (Sissy Spacek) is elected queen of the prom but, as she proudly stands with her escort (William Katt), her classmates are setting up a cruel prank, unaware of her supernatural powers for revenge, in "Carrie." The thriller will be broadcast for the first time on television on "The CBS Tuesday Night Movie," Oct. 3 (9-11 p.m.).

Blockbuster To Air

The blockbuster hit satirical drama, "Network," winner of four Academy Awards and starring Faye Dunaway, William Holden, Peter Finch and Robert Duvall, will be broadcast for the first time on television on "The CBS Wednesday Night Movies," Oct. 4, 9 to approximately 11:17 p.m.

Dunaway and Finch were awarded Oscars as best actress and best actor for their performances, and Beatrice Straight was named best supporting actress. Screenwriter Paddy Chayefsky also won an Oscar for "Network."

Sidney Lumet directed the funny, yet terrifying, account of the power struggle in a failing television network, the United Broadcasting System, recently taken over by a giant conglomerate determined to make it a profitable enterprise.

As part of the revamping, veteran newscaster Howard Beale (Finch) has been given the axe by his old friend and boss, Max Schumacher (Holden). Distraught, Beale goes berserk on his broadcast and announces his upcoming on-and-air suicide.

Schumacher, the news division and network executives are thrown into an uproar by Beale's bizarre action, but up-and-coming programming executive Diana Christensen (Dunaway) sees the event in a different light.

Beale has evoked controversy and front-page headlines. His ratings climb and Diana becomes determined to take control of the Howard Beale Show and make it the vanguard of her programming strategy, a plan that includes a series showing on-the-spot footage of terrorist acts taken by the radicals who commit them.

Schumacher is appalled and angered by the inhumane changes he sees at UBS, but once it is clear that the conglomerate's network hatchetman (Duvall) is backing Diana, Max finds few firm allies. He is soon out of a job himself, but not out of network affairs. Despite his distaste for Diana's ruthless actions and the devotion of his wife (Straight) and family, Max finds himself drawn to Diana.

Peter Finch won an Academy Award for his performance as Howard Beale, the mad prophet of television news, in "Network," the satiric drama that won four Oscars, to be broadcast for the first time on television on "The CBS Wednesday Night Movie," Oct. 4 (9-11:30 p.m.).

'Clark's Live Wednesday'

In a live telecast from Hollywood, glamour queen Raquel Welch, "Soap" star Billy Crystal, eight Elvis Presley impersonators, Oscar and Grammy winner Paul Williams, stunt expert Steve Baker with the daring "Race for Live," comedian Rodney Dangerfield and disco singing sensations The Village People — with a salute to the disco fever that is sweeping the world — are guests on "Dick Clark's Live Wednesday," Oct. 4, 8 to 9 p.m. on NBC-TV.

Raquel Welch's face adorned over 400 magazine covers before she launched her movie career in the 1960s, starring in films that ranged from "Fantastic Voyage" and "One Million Years, B.C." to "Bedazzled" and "Myra Breckinridge." She made her Las Vegas nightclub debut in 1973.

Billy Crystal has made numerous appearances as a stand-up comedian on 'The Tonight Show,' and has also won widespread popularity portraying sex-troubled Jodie Campbell on "Soap."

The eight impersonators of Elvis Presley will pay tribute to the late superstar by singing some of his greatest hits.

Singer-actor-composer Paul Williams is a prolific writer of his songs. His "We've Only Just Begun" has become the wedding song of the 70s. His other hits include "Rainy Days and Mondays," "An Old Fashioned Love Song" and "I Won't Last a Day Without You." He wrote the score for the film "Bugsy Malone," and won a 1976 Oscar and Grammy for writing — with Barbra Streisand — "Evergreen" (Love Theme from "A Star Is Born").

Stunt expert Steve Baker returns to the show to attempt the incredible "Race for Life." Shackled inside a box, Baker will have seven seconds to escape before an automobile, traveling at 65 mph, impacts on the box.

'It's Never Too Late'

To Telly Savalas, work has always represented a growing source of challenge, pleasure, opportunity and fulfillment, tempered by an occasional disappointment or unplanned detour.

All of which makes him pretty much like the rest of us, and eminently qualified to host a segment concerning the effect of imagination on the work ethic, in "A Salute to American Imagination," airing Thursday, Oct. 5, 8 to 10 p.m. on CBS-TV.

What makes Savalas different from most of us is his lifelong pursuit of the unpredictable, the new and the untried, while accepting the conventional necessity of working for a living.

"Work is a necessity for most of us," Savalas says in his introduction. "But each year, imagination makes it less of a trial and more of a pleasure."

A young Telly Savalas inherited an enthusiasm for challenge and a bent for "giving new things at least one good try" from his Greek immigrant father who, the actors says, got into every kind of business from investments to lunch counters, and whose fortunes ran, alternately, from wealth to want. "He taught us," Savalas recalls, "to think big and to do everything with spirit."

Savalas, who gained worldwide fame as "Kojak," followed the premise willingly and to this day he admits to finding life "quite unattractive" when it comes predictable.

His own imagination and drive led him in many diverse directions, and they still do. The Emmy-winning actor came to the theater late (he was in his thirties) and accidentally, through an audition that was meant for someone else.

Along the way, he drove trucks, peddled merchandise, served in the Army, earned a college degree in psychology, took an unsuccessful try at medical school, acted as assistant director of the U.S. Department of State Information Services for the Near East, South Asia and Africa, served a stint as a television news and special events director, taught adult education classes, and directed a little theater group.

During the past couple of years, Savalas has added several new dimensions to his work experience. He created and performed in a cabaret act, became a top-selling recording artist with a gold record to his credit, and wrote, directed and starred in a feature film. No wonder he can advise, as he does in the special, that "it's never too late, and it's never too early, for imagination to turn up new possibilities."

Pike's Peek

HOLLYWOOD — ANDREW STEVENS has yet to visit the set of "CHARLIE'S ANGELS," which has gotten a lot of the show's cast and crew overly anxious in their anticipation of meeting KATE JACKSON'S husband. However, it seems Kate and Andrew are intent of not combining business with pleasure. Besides, as Kate said when her husband's absence was mentioned, "Yes, but it makes it a lot more fun to go home at night this way!"

He may be tactfully avoiding the details, but DENNIS COLE, JACLYN SMITH'S steady, was spotted leaving the same Beverly Hills jeweler twice within a week.

TANYA TUCKER, who makes her acting debut in an upcoming NBC-TV movie, has recloated to a hillside Malibu Beach home, though she still has her ranch outside Nashville. Not coincidentally, her first album in almost a year will be released the same time the movie airs.

RUE McCLANAHAN is optimistic but objective about the possible success of her new TV series, "APPLE PIE," on ABC. Says Rue, "There have been a lot of quality TV shows that have not been successes," illustrating her realization that as good as she feels her show is, if it's not a hit she won't be embarrassed.

CONNIE SELLECCA, one of the stars of CBS' new "FLYING HIGH" series, insists she's got psychic ability and claims she knew she'd have a TV series long before she was ever cast in her current role. Fortunately for her agent, he didn't bet against her.

ADRIENNE BARBEAU, having graduated from "MAUDE'S" daughter to a pin-up girl (her poster will be rolling off the presses any day now), isn't allowing her busy schedule in four TV movies to interfere with her private life. She and actor JOHN CARPENTER, whom she met while doing the film "HIGH RISE", have announced their engagement and their plans to wed by year's end.

There are so many people involved in the production and the promotion of "BATTLESTAR: GALACTICA" that one observer suggests that if the series doesn't make it, there'll be more than 1,000 people out of work!

As successful as the new "MAVERICK" was in the ratings, very few critics across the country liked it, and there's no doubt that ABC is weighing that very carefully in trying to decide whether to go ahead with its plans to make it a mid-season replacement.

'Opium' Airs On PBS

The drug heroin — the deadly white powder manufactured from the opium poppy — is one of the most effective painkillers known. It is also highly addictive, and thousands of addicts throughout the world pay handsomely to obtain their supply.

The resulting network of crime and politics that begins in the Golden Triangle of Laos, Burma, and Thailand and spreads through the backstreets of the world into the corridors of power at the White House is detailed in "Opium" — Adrian Cowell's remarkable three-part documentary that will be broadcast nationwide on PBS this week.

News To Be Revised

CBS News has begun planning for a revised format of morning news programming that will include a 90-minute Sunday morning edition — the first of its kind in network history — through-Friday format, in the 7 to 8 a.m. time period.

The new six-days-a-week broadcast will have the overall title "Morning," with each individual day of the week linked specifically to the title. Thus, the Sunday edition will be called "Sunday Morning." Slated to air freom 10 to 11:30 a.m., the program will be oriented toward reports in the cultural, entertainment, religious and public affairs areas and will contrast with the daily edition much as most Sunday newspapers relate to their daily counterparts.

"Sunday Morning" will replace "Lamp Unto My Feet," "Look Up and Live" and "Camera Three," long-time fixtures in the time period, and the new broadcast series will be preempted several times each year for important religious specials.

Commenting on the Sunday program, CBS News' Bill Leonard, says: "One of the obvious gaps in television programming is that no network has supplied in recent years the kind of informational broadcast with the particular appeal to those viewers with a wide range of curiosity about the world about them. This will be a national Sunday-morning newspaper of the air, designed for the kind of people who like to browse through a Sunday paper. It will not only provide late-breaking news, but will also explore in detail a variety of interests — sometimes in straight reportorial fashion, sometimes editorially.

"It is time we move forward to explore new ground in the informational area. While we are bringing to a close the long and distinguished programming accomplishments of three shows, we feel strongly that within the new framework we will continue to serve the interests of the religious community as well as those whose deep cultural interests have led them to 'Camera Three' over the years."

'Ebony Exposures'

A government-sponsored program that trains women to become carpenters, electricians, plumbers, brick masons and welders is the subject of the first program as "Ebony Exposures" begins a new season Wednesday, Oct. 4, at 7 p.m. on PBS.

Audrey Kates, the show's producer and host, visits the Carolina Skill Advancement Center in Raleigh to see how the skilled training and improvement program works. "The women are enthusiastic and excited about being trained for non-traditional roles," says Ms. Kates. The training program is available to females exclusively.

Ms. Scottie Ferguson is director of the Advancement Center, which is housed in a building formerly occupied by the Raleigh Police Training Academy.

Michele Will Tell

Q: My husband and I have been debating about actress Susan Walden, who plays Linda Larkin on "The Young and the Restless." I say she's the actress who played Joanne a while back. He says he's not because she's so thin. J. Altman, Goldsboro, N.C.

A: Sorry . . . but you lose. Kay Heberly played Joanne. She was extremely overweight when she joined the show, and watching Joanne shed pounds was an inspiration to many viewers. To this day, however, Kay will not reveal the diet she followed.

A: Write to Duncan, the man who's keeping the art of tap dancing alive in this country, c-o Don Fedderson Productions, 4024 Radford Ave., Studio City, Calif. 91604.

Q: What has happened to James Drury, who starred in "The Virginian"? L. Collins, Florence, S.C.

A: Since 'Virginian,' Drury has starred in two series — "Men From Shiloh" and "Firehouse" — guested in others, and made several feature films. He's currently touring the country with a play.

Q: Please tell me about Ken Howard, who played Thomas Jefferson in "1776." D. Gallant, Hopewell, Va.

A: "1776" was the springboard that shot Howard's career skyward. He's starred in two ill-fated TV series, "Adam's Rib" and "Manhunter," made numerous guest appearances in other shows, and has a long list of film credits. His most recent outing on TV was in "Critical List," a two-parter on NBC. Howard stands 6-foot-6 and was an outstanding basketball player in high school. He'd originally planned to study law after graduation from Amherst College, but a scholarship from the Yale Drama School caused him to change directions.

Q: Please tell me who starred in "God's Little Acre." There has been a fight in my family about it. K. McClain, Lexington, N.C.

She's A 'Crazy Texan'

Actresses are chosen for a particular role for various reasons, but Pat Klous, one of the co-stars of CBS-TV's new light-hearted comedy, "Flying High" (Fridays, 10 to 11 p.m.), probably has a 'first' among these reasons. Why was she, with no acting experience whatsoever, chosen?

"It's easy," she exclaimed. "They were looking for a crazy Texas, and that's what I am!"

Crazy she's not, but a Texan she is, and she fits the character of Marcy Bower, who's described as a wholesome farm girl from Sweetwater, Texas.

"It's been so easy to slip into my character," explains Pat, "because I know this kind of girl. I've visited small towns in Texas all my life, and they come on like 'Gangbusters'!"

"In fact," she continued, "when I saw the pilot, I realized that I looked just like a cousin of mine, and I couldn't wait for her to see it. I know she just died!"

"But Marcy's going to get a little more sophisticated, and she's not going to keep coming on so strong."

Pat grew up in the not-so-small town called Wichita Falls, where she was an outstanding student while in high school. She later graduated from the University of Texas, majoring in psychology and biology.

Pat had good intentions of becoming a teacher, but these plans were shelved while she was attending graduate school in Dallas.

She worked as a model to support herself, and was spotted one day by a representative of the prominent New York modeling agency, Wilhelmina, Inc.

That event, in 1976, led to a move to New York, where she has quickly became one of the most active figures on the modeling scene.

Pat and her co-stars, Connie Sellecca and Kathryn Witt — also successful models — were chosen for the series by Hollywood producer Mark Carliner.

Weighs Pros, Cons

Fame has its pros and cons. Just ask Randolph Mantooth, who is guest-starring in the segment of "Project U.F.O." airing Thursday, Oct. 5 (8 to 9 p.m., on NBC-TV). Mantooth, who portrays a cargo plane navigator in "The Pipeline Incident," skyrocketed to stardom as paramedic John Gage in "Emergency!"

On the positive side, Mantooth is doing what he loves most — acting.

But he is basically a private person who finds himself a much-recognized public person.

Mantooth values privacy a great deal and he believes other actors feel the same way. Once, out of admiration, he trailed Anthony Quinn through New York streets for two miles without speaking to him. When Quinn was working at Universal at the same time Mantooth was doing "Emergency!" Randy often brushed past him on the studio lot but never spoke a word to him.

"I did break down, a little," recalls Mantooth. "I wrote him a fan letter."

This serious, intense young man enjoys camping excursions — alone. His favorite activity is tramping through desert or mountain regions with his sleeping bag. His notion of gracious living is to chew beef jerky on an auto trip across the country to Nova Scotia.

Step Became Leap

The historic stride that astronaut Neil Armstrong took on the surface of the moon on July 20, 1969, was indeed "a giant one for mankind," but it was a baby step compared to the mind-bobbling challenges that have erupted in the wake of that extraordinary feat.

The mysterical-magical world of space exploration advanced from comic-strip fantasy to emerging reality with that first tentative football. Armstrong joins Paul Newman for an informal discussion on some of the resultant revolutionary changes that confront man's life style, during "A Salute to American Imagination," the two-hour all-star variety special celebrating the 75th anniversary of Ford Motor Company, to be broadcast in October.

Their conversation will deal with how American imagination has led the way to outer space and with such literally earth-shaking puzzles as the possibility (probability, according to most scientists) of other civilizations in the galaxy, how we are to find them, how we will communicate and, finally, what we will say.

"There's no doubt," says Newman, "that many men, perhaps even all men, will leave the surface of the earth and stand on other moons and stars."

The man who left earthly history's first footprints on a satellite agrees. The next "giant leap," says Armstrong, may well be communication with another solar system, or even with another life form. "That leap," states the famed astronaut, "is alredy being prepared for. Apollo Ten is on its way — somewhere between Venus and Jupiter — to the limitless space that surrounds our galaxy."

Futurist scientists believe that before the demise of this planet, we will have colonized possibly millions of worlds all over the universe and will almost certainly have met other intelligences doing the same thing. Earth may then be visited, studied, wondered over, and revered in somewhat the same way that modern history buffs are enjoying the King Tut exhibit.

'How Come I Found You?'

A boy on the run from an orphanage, an elderly woman who shoplifts health food, two hyperactive foreign missionaries with a passion for baseball and a puppy called "Puddles" — for a very good reason — make life even more complicated for two amateur bank robbers seeking a hideout in "If I'm Lost, How Come I Found You?," airing on "ABC Weekend Specials" in two parts, with the concluding segment scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 7, 12-noon to 12:30 p.m.

This very funny romp uses broad comedy and a wonderful cast of offbeat characters to make its point about the futility of always running away. The father-son relationship that develops between one of the fugitives and the boy — two lost souls looking for a home — provides the salvation for both.

When 12-year-old Quacky Quackenbush runs away from an orphanage to his Aunt Maggie's rooming house (she is in jail for shoplifting), he is taken captive by Jerry and Clem, two bank robbers looking for a quiet hideout to dodge the police.

Unfortunately — for the robbers — the rooming house is anything but quiet. Aunt Maggie returns from jail, neighbor-ladies burst in for a bridge party, new roomers who speak no English move in, the local sheriff drops by to invite everyone — including the robbers — to a barbecue, and "Puddles" earns his name on Clem's shoes. After a very short while, the question becomes: "Who are the captors, who are the captives?"

To complicate things even further, Jerry discovers that he really likes Quacky and his wacky aunt, and realizes that life on the run is really no life at all.

Moosie Grier stars as Quacky Quackenbush with Ron Soble as Jerry and Ron Feinberg as Clem. Special guest star is Irene Tedrow.

Moosie Drier has a puppy called Puddles to be his friend and protector when his house is invaded by bankrobbers in "If I'm Lost, How Come I Found You?," Part II airing on the "ABC Weekend Specials" series, Saturday, Oct. 7 (12-12:30 p.m.).

Blair Brown Stars

Blair Brown, who starred in "Wheels" and "Captain and the Kings" mini-series, will star in "And I Alone Survived," a two-hour NBC World Premiere movie telling the true story of a woman's unconquerable will to live following an airplane crash in which she was the sole survivor.

Co-stars are David Akyroyd, James G. Richardson, Vera Miles, Elizabeth Cheshire, G.D. Spradlin, Charles Gray, Maggie Cooper, Christopher Allport and Pat Corley.

Brown portrays 29-year-old Lauren Elder, who, with two friends, took off from Oakland, Calif., April 26, 1976, in a single-engine plane en route to a picnic in Death Valley. A sudden downdraft seized the aircraft over the Sierras, causing it to crash into 12,360-foot Mt. Bradley, just below the crest.

By the next morning, both of Elder's injured companions were dead. Somehow — hallucinating, her teeth smashed, an arm fractured, a knee gashed — she managed to drag herself down one-and-a-half miles of ice and rock to Independence, Calif., where she got help.

"Her story is almost unbelievable," said Deanne Barkley, on NBC-TV. "It's absolutely extraordinary that she escaped death in the crash. This is a story of human courage, endurance, and one woman's will to live."

The Teen Scene

WILLIE AAMES, of "EIGHT IS ENOUGH," is keeping busier than normal. 17-year-old Willie just bought himself his very own house, a four-bedroom structure no less, just a couple of blocks away from his parent's home in Newport Beach. He's also driving a new MG sports car.

CONNIE NEWTON, Elizabeth on the same show, may be just a year out of high school, but she, too has her own residence now. In Connie's case, her family's home is in the Orange County sector of Los Angeles, which has meant she's had to commute no less than an hour to work every day. Thus, she's rented an apartment close to the studio and goes home on weekends.

KENNY ROGERS, DOTTIE WEST and EDDIE RABBITT appear in concerts in Greensville, S.C., Oct. 13th, Columbia, S.C. on Nov. 28th, and Fayetteville, N.C., Nov. 29th.

K.C. AND THE SUNSHINE BAND began its first major concert tour in more than a year last month and will arrive in Hampton, Va., Oct. 18th, then Charlotte, N.C., Oct. 20th and Columbia, S.C., a day later. On Oct. 22nd, they'll be appearing in Richmond Va., and on the 24th they'll be appearing in Charleston, S.C.

Count On Young Depth

In the last 12 years, the Dallas Cowboys have won their way into the playoffs 11 times. Through these years they have replenished aging personnel with intelligent and talented young men.

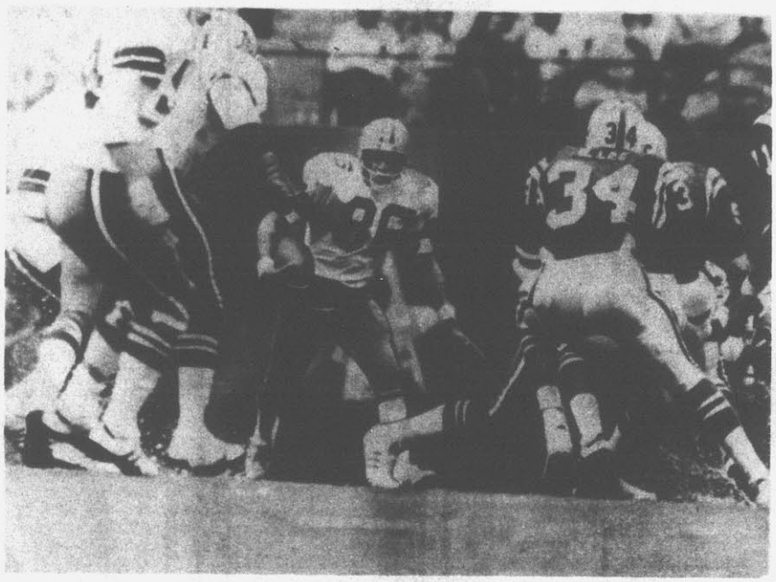

The Dallas Cowboys hope to continue their winning ways when they meet the Washington Redskins Monday, Oct. 2, at 9 p.m. on ABC-TV.

The defending Super Bowl Champions are a young team. Eight of the Cowboy starters have played professional football only three years. Waiting in the wings behind the other older and more experienced players are outstanding young people, anxious for an opportunity to knock.

Dallas has been able to emerge more successfully from the college draft than other NFC teams despite their winning ways. This can be attributed to their shrewdness and scientific approach to evaluating talent.

The young depth amassed by Dallas should become even more important this seson with the new 16 game schedule. While the new schedule appeals to both fans and owners, the coaches around the league are less than elated.

"The schedule is going to be tougher, no doubt, and it will be tougher for all contending teams because the good teams will be playing each other more," said Dallas coach, Tom Landry.

Butch Johnson is a clutch performer for the Dallas Cowboys returning punts and kickoffs and sharing duties as a wide receiver. Dallas will meet Washington on Monday, Oct. 2 at 9 p.m. on ABC-TV.

Nettles' Winning Tangent

For the first half of the season, the long ball was a seldom-used weapon in the New York Yankee arsenal. Home runs were down considerably among the Yankees' big hitters. Chris Chambliss, for one, had gone one stretch of over 50 games without a single homer. And Craig Nettles, who usually plucks his in bunches, had a no-homer string of 27 games. Then came the middle of August when Nettles went on a tangent, hitting six in 11 games. Summer came late for Nettles, who in seasons pasts usually heats up at bat just about when the weather does.

Porter Is The Key

Darrell Porter celebrated his move to Kansas City last year by batting .275 with 16 home runs and 60 RBIs to help the Royals win their second straight American League West title.

The rugged 26-year-old, a left-thanded-swinger from Oklahoma City, has had another outstanding season, enabling the Royals to head to their third straight American League playoff. The third game in the best-of-five series will be televised by ABC Friday, Oct. 6, at 3 p.m.

Porter, obtained by the Royals from Milwaukee with pitcher Jim Colborn before last season, says he has never felt more comfortable in a baseball uniform.

"Now I feel more at ease around our fans," he points out. "Trying to fit in with the new club and its fans is an adjustment. Except for the new surroundings, I didn't have a lot of trouble last season. There was little pressure because everybody on the club was having a good year. I didn't have to ask myself to do something extra."

Lauren Cruising Along

Lauren Tewes, who normally guides the social calendar for others in her co-starring role as the cruise director for ABC-TV's happy hit, "Love Boat" (Saturdays, 9 to 10 p.m.), had to unscramble her own jam-packed schedule recently. The busy young actress finalized some scenes for "Love Boat's" forthcoming Thanksgiving Day episode ("It was a full Thanksgiving Day turkey dinner at 9 a.m. on the set," she says, "but delicious!"), and then flew immediately to Las Vegas as a feature guest star opposite Robert Urich in another ABC series, "Vega$."

The "Vega$" role is a complete reversal of character for Lauren. Her good natured "Love Boat" comedic characterization of Julie McCoy gives way to an indepth portrayal of a tormented psychopathic avenger for the drama.

Lauren faced another quick change immediately on her return to Hollywood. In one day, she made her first talk-show appearance on "The Dinah Shore Show" and then raced across town to tape "Hollywood Squares," also a game-show first for the versatile Miss Tewes.

Next it was time to begin dancing lessons — disco dancing, that is — in a burst of energy guaranteed to generate aching muscles while she packed for a 10-day cruise to Acapulco aboard the Love Boat. It wasn't a job ride, however. Lauren is filming a special two-hour "Love Boat" episode written especially for her Julie McCoy character, and she spends a lot of time on the ship's disco floor in "Julie's Reunion" stanza, dated to air in November.

Maybe there'll be a pause for some well-deserved rest soon. But don't bank on it — Lauren Tewes is a hot new television star and the producers are picking up the vibes.

Lauren Tewes IS cruising' right along.

Jack Cole 'Hangs Ten'

Wealthy jet-setter Jack Cole (Dack Rambo) "hangs ten" when he poses as a surfer to protect an important government witness who has been relocated to the Hawaiian island of Oahu, the special two-hour premiere of the action-adventure series, "Sword of Justice" Saturday, Oct. 7, 9 to 11 p.m. on NBC-TV.

Belinda J. Montgomery and Sian Barbara Allen guest-star.

After two out of three witnesses who testified against a crime czar are systematically eliminated, Cole's friend, government agent Arthur Woods (Alex Courtney) offers a new identity to Julie Lang (Montgomery), the remaining one. Lang is transferred from the mainland to an isolated Hawaiian beach house. When Cole learns that Raphael (Curtis Credel), a much-feared assassin, is hot on Julie's trail, he and his sidekick, Hector (Bert Rosario), pose as surfers to shadow her. After a crooked federal marshall assigned to guard her is found slain, Julie, who distrusts strangers and neighbors, reluctantly accepts Jack's assistance.

Cine-Magic Sets Clock

Forty-eight hours ago, it was 1978 in the British town of Corfe Castle. But now the 20th century seems to have vanished.

There's not a TV antenna or a power line in sight. No honking cars, no blaring radios, no jangling telephones disturb the incredible quiet. Only the clomp of a horse-drawn wagon echoes through the cobble-stoned streets around the sleepy Dorset village square.

Cinematic magic has set back the clock 140 years, transforming Corfe Castle into an authentic period setting for the TV adaptation of Thomas Hardy's "The Mayor of Casterbridge," the Masterpiece Theatre presentation starring Alan Bates, seen Sundays at 9 p.m., on PBS.

MUSTANG
1979: The New Breed.

"A whole New Breed with sportscar styling."

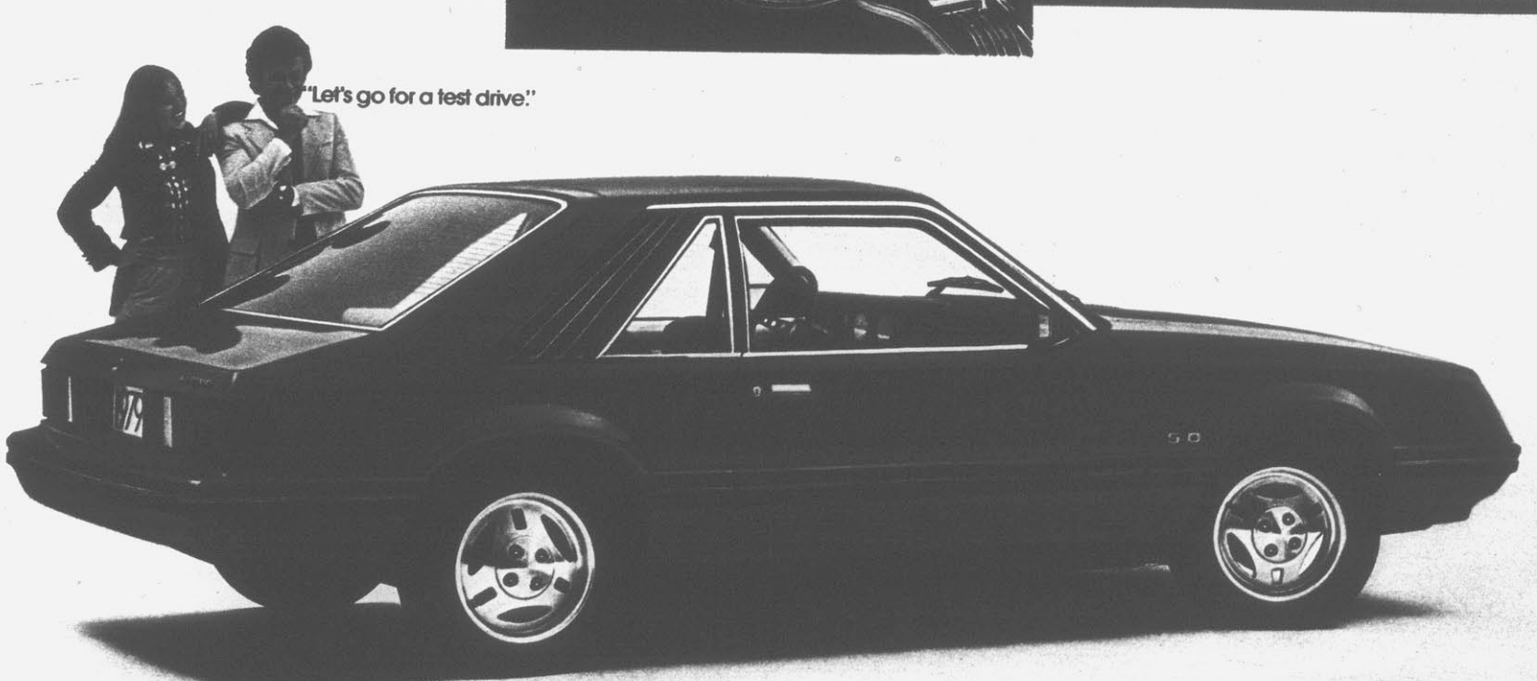

Mustang 2-door Sport in Silver Metallic

Presenting a whole New Breed of Mustang for 1979—with dramatic new sportscar styling giving it one of the most aerodynamically efficient designs of any car now built in America. And precise handling with sportscar features like rack 'n pinion steering and a suspension system that helps flatten corners. Choose from four engines:

a standard 2.3 litre overhead cam engine or options of V-6, V-8...even a Turbocharged Mustang. This Mustang is roomier and wider than last year. Yet, with all this, it's still sticker priced to help you bring one home. In 2-door or 3-door models. At your Ford Dealer's...take a test drive in the new 1979 Ford Mustang.

"Let's go for a test drive."

Mustang 3-door Sport in Tangerine

LTD 1979: A New American Road Car.

"It's sure got the room we need."

"And the luxury we've been promising ourselves."

Ford LTD Landau 4-door
in Red Glow with Dark Red vinyl roof

Introducing the most completely new LTD in 14 years. Truly a new American Road Car for 1979. With more passenger room than last year for road car comfort on long trips, more handling ease and more window area. In addition to its standard 5.0 litre V-8 engine, every 1979 LTD comes equipped with important full-size car features in 2-door, 4-door and wagon models. LTD for 1979—a road car to take you across town or across the country. Prove it...take a test drive.

More about mileage. At the time of publication, 1979 EPA estimates were unavailable. See your local Ford Dealer for actual 1979 EPA mileage economy estimates.

"Test drive it and see why we call it the New American Road Car."

FAIRMONT

The best selling new car ever introduced.

Fairmont 4-door in Dark Pine Metallic with Chamois vinyl roof

In the 1978 model year more Fairmonts were sold than any other new car nameplate ever. Now Ford introduces the 1979 Fairmont. Priced right, it provides roomy comfort for five. In fact, Fairmont has almost 90% of the room of most full-size cars* and great EPA mileage estimates† In 2-door, 4-door and 4-door wagon models.

FUTURA

The Futura is now.

Sporty Futura Coupe in Midnight Blue Metallic

There's a unique personal car for now—the '79 Ford Fairmont Futura. Futura gives you advanced styling with the look of tomorrow, now. Futura has the space efficiency for now ...with comfortable seating for five. Futura has great EPA gas mileage ratings† and a price that says why wait. With Ford's Fairmont Futura... the future isn't someday. It's here right now! Take a test drive at your local Ford Dealer... today.

PINTO
A new design for '79.

"A new ESS model with sporty European styling."

New Pinto ESS in Silver Metallic

New Pinto 3-door with Cruising Package in Polar White

"New up front and in the back."

New Pinto 2-door in Bright Red

A new look inside and out for '79. Pinto, more than 2½ million sold since its introduction, offers fresh choices like the new ESS with a sporty European look. And Pinto comes with standard equipment like bucket seats, AM radio (may be deleted for credit), electric rear window defroster, front disc brakes, tinted glass all around, electronic ignition, rack and pinion steering and more. All this value... at a surprising price.

FIESTA
Wundercar.

"Built in Germany and backed by Ford."

"No wonder it's Europe's success car."*

Fiesta Sport in Yellow

Fiesta Ghia in Dark Blue

Ford's imported Fiesta really is a little Wundercar. It has front-wheel drive and Michelin steel-belted radial tires for sure-footed traction to handle ice and snow. There's rack and pinion steering and other standard features that would warm a car buff's heart. And over 5,400 Ford Dealers coast to coast provide convenient service for your Wundercar. Take a test drive, now.

THUNDERBIRD

Come fly with me!

Thunderbird Heritage in Maroon

This new 1979 Thunderbird Heritage is the most exclusive Thunderbird we offer. As you'd expect from a car that has become a legend in luxury, this very special Thunderbird comes with power front disc brakes, automatic transmission, AM/FM Stereo Search Radio, power steering, power windows, six-way driver's seat, power door locks, air conditioning and more. See what it's like to drive a "legend." At your Ford Dealer's.

LTD II

Traditional style and value in a sporty mid-size car.

If you're in the market for a 6-passenger car, 2-door or 4-door, take a ride in Ford's LTD II. It's a trim, sporty, mid-size car at a surprising price. But you get the room, luxury and standard features which are optional on many other cars: automatic transmission, power steering, power front disc brakes, V-8 engine, steel-belted radials and more.

LTD II 2-door Brougham in Pastel Chamois

GRANADA

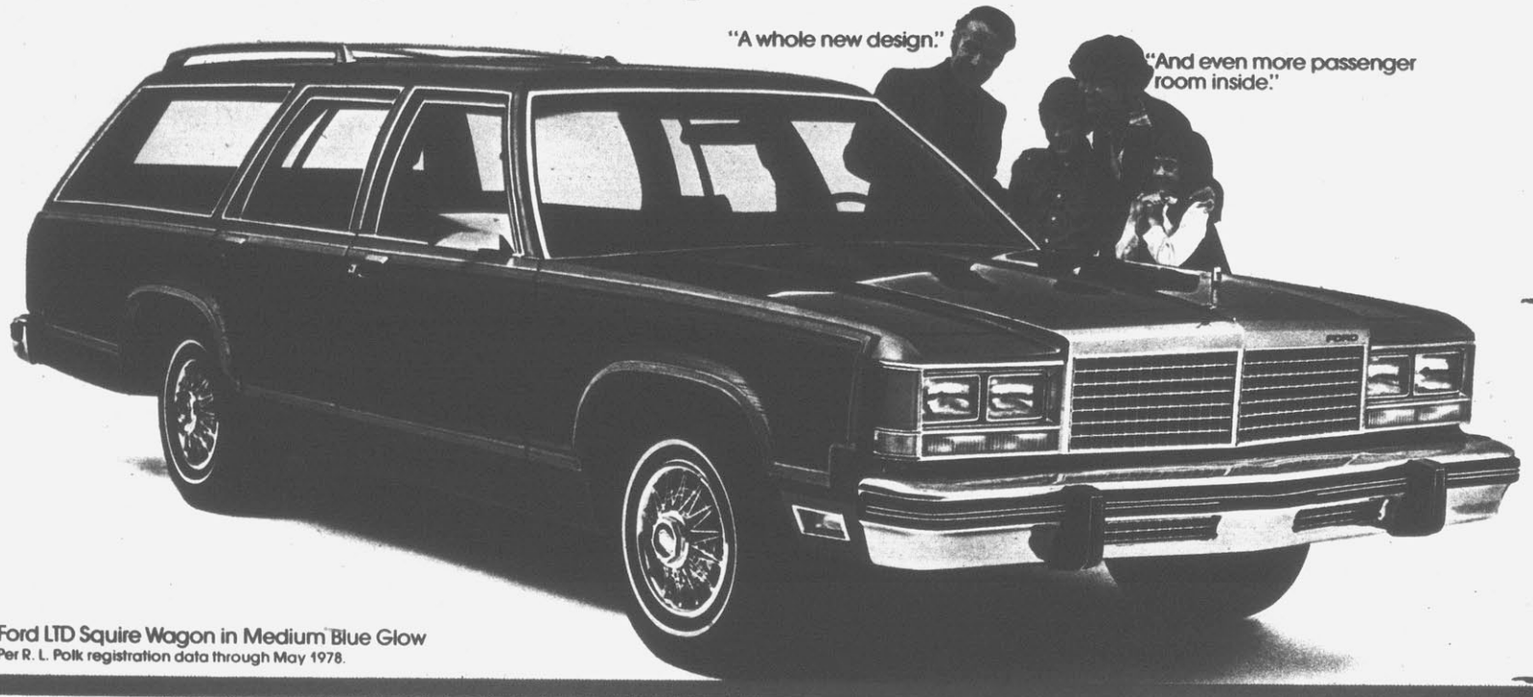

An American Classic.

Granada Ghia 4-door in Silver Metallic/Black

If you want the best of both worlds—European luxury car styling—and a Granada price—see your Ford Dealer. Make your own comparison. Compare Granada's elegant styling and clean functional lines with far more expensive cars like Mercedes-Benz. Its ride is largely due to Granada's independent front suspension with stabilizer bar and Hotchkiss rear suspension. In 2-door, 4-door, Granada Ghia and ESS models.

Ford LTD Squire Wagon in Medium Blue Glow

Fairmont Squire Wagon in White

LTD Here's a new wagon for the American Road from the Wagonmaster. Ford's all-new 6-passenger LTD for 1979 (eight passengers with optional dual-facing rear seats). A wagon with more handling ease, more window area, more passenger room than last year's Ford Country Squire. That's efficient design! That's riding in comfort! Try it.

FAIRMONT America's favorite . . . the best-selling 1978 wagon in the country. Fairmont is trim, sleek and easy to handle, with plenty of room and comfort for five and a generous cargo area. Try this one on for size.

Pinto Squire Wagon in Tangerine

PINTO Since its introduction in 1972, Pinto Wagon has been a sales success. It has room, surprising cargo space, sporty good looks and many standard features for added comfort and convenience.

Captain's Club Wagon in Walnut Glow/Light Sand

CAPTAIN'S CLUB The new 7-passenger model (shown above) has quad swivel/reclining seats and a seat-bed combo. Other Captain's Club models seat up to 15.

● Sophisticated electronic protective devices augment security personnel and other safeguards throughout mint field offices, to maximize security of employees and property. Procedures such as inspection of all individuals upon leaving secured areas and weighing and reconciling precious metals when transferring them to different processing divisions are other security-control practices. Also used is a system known as "joint sealing," whereby vaults are taped with multisignature documents bearing Government seals, which are affixed to the vaults. Generally, the loyalty and integrity of mint workers have been of the highest character. Mint employees are carefully selected for their positions of high trust. It is necessary, however, that these safeguards be employed.

FOR THE "ASK" EDITOR

Is there any truth to the awful rumor that my idol, Paul Newman, has given up acting and is turning to politics? —B.K., Monterey, Calif.

● None whatsoever. In a couple of months you'll be seeing him in Quintette with Genevieve Bujold, and he also has signed to do another Irwin Allen "disaster" film. With more than 30 movies to his credit, Newman, 53, has been involved with politics since the 1950's. World disarmament is his main, private interest. Last May, the President and the Secretary of State appointed Newman as delegate to the UN General Assembly's tenth special session (also the first devoted to disarmament). In return for spending six weeks at the UN, with full, 8-hour working days, the actor — referred to as The Hon. Paul Newman — received $217.32 per day for his efforts, described by professional diplomats as of the highest order.

Frank Edwards/Fotos International

Call him The Hon. Paul Newman.

FOR LISA HARROW, star of All Things Bright and Beautiful

Since you're British and toured our country in connection with the movie, I'd like to know what place impressed you most of all? —J.R., Port Arthur, Texas

● I must have visited almost every big city in America and many of the smaller ones. Without a doubt, the one spot I'll never forget is Lewiston, Idaho. It's like a little green and warm jewel nestled in the hills with charming homes and gorgeous views. I could settle down in such a town.

Are you still married to Loretta Young? —G.H., Johnson City, Tenn.

● I'm not married to Loretta. Georgiana, my wife of 33 years, is Loretta's half-sister. I first saw Georgiana when we both stopped at a traffic light. I tried following her, but traffic got in the way. Luck was on my side, though. We met on a blind date, and I proposed three hours later. It took her a week to say "yes."

FOR JOHN TRAVOLTA, star of Grease

How are you coping as Hollywood's newest idol? —Walter Webb, Fayetteville, N.C.

● It's all so new and strange that I can't believe it's happening. When I see and hear all that stuff about me, I feel I'm reading about someone else who has the same name. Since I've only been an "idol" for not quite a year (I've been working nonstop since Saturday Night Fever was finished), I haven't had time to get used to it or fed up with it. The only break I had was when I took my mom and dad to Europe.

FOR SUSAN SCHUTZ, poet

Your books have sold over five million copies. What's the reason? —C.D., Bangor, Maine

● I think that a lot of people are searching for a more meaningful life. When you dig beneath everyone's surface, you will find that all people are alike — everyone wants to love, everyone wants to be loved, everyone needs someone to understand them. In my books, I am writing about my feelings and my values. Based on the many letters I receive, I know individuals are experiencing the same thing.

FOR MELISSA GILBERT, star of Little House on the Prairie

What's all this about your sassing everyone in sight on the set? —T.N., Newton, N.J.

● Me sassy? Never! We do a lot of joking and fooling around while we're working, but if any of us show signs of getting smart-alecky, we get put in our place fast. Michael Landon treats us like normal kids, and although he laughs and plays around a lot, when that camera rolls, all the fooling disappears.

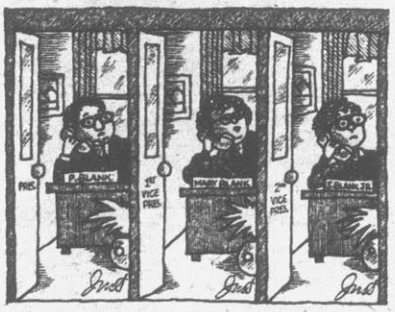

FOR ED GARVEY, Executive Director, National Football League Players Ass'n.

Since soccer seems to be gaining ground in the U.S. how will it affect recruiting in other sports? —Albert Ray Parker, Aroda, Va.

● Recruitment for other sports is already being affected. There are 1½ million youngsters playing soccer. When you take that many youngsters away from traditional American sports, you also can be sure that the level of play and competition in soccer is going to improve tremendously.

PRO AND CON

Are Nepotism Rules In Employment Justified?

PRO George G. Branam, vice chancellor, academic affairs, University of New Orleans

We believe that some restriction in the employment of related individuals is essential. Our policy is that members of the same family should be employable within the organization, on the basis of individual merit, but we avoid direct supervision of one spouse over the other. Abuse of position by giving unfair advantage to one's husband or wife can be avoided by the careful attention of supervisors. Favoritism is readily detected, and if administrators are doing their jobs properly, it will not be allowed to occur. Far more important is the right of each individual to have a job and to advance on the basis of ability without automatic denial because a relative is already employed — but with the forementioned restriction.

CON Dr. M. Elizabeth Tidball, professor of physiology, George Washington University Medical Center

Of course not! Surely we, as a society, have progressed sufficiently in our enlightenment and honesty to cast off the arbitrary and false crutches of an earlier era. As partners in a dual-career marriage, both my husband and I have experienced a multitude of subtle and formal barriers to our professional involvement and advancement. These restrictions have not only rendered difficult our ability to contribute the best of our talents, expertise and enthusiasm; additionally, by extension, they impose burdens upon the effectiveness of marriage by undermining its significance as a valued societal institution. Merit must therefore emerge as the single legitimate consideration for opening opportunities to individuals.

HOW A BANKER-LAWYER-INDIAN CHIEF LEADS A QUIET REVOLUTION

By Jack Moseley

When businessman Ross Swimmer is introduced as "president of the First National Bank of Tahlequah, Oklahoma, he is instantly accepted. But when he is presented as the "principal chief of the Cherokee Indian Nation," the reaction frequently is disbelief.

"Why not?" replies Swimmer. "What's an Indian supposed to look like?"

And how's an Indian supposed to act? For in addition to the way he dresses (impeccably tailored suits) and speaks (articulatively persuasive), Swimmer is a hard-working, tennis-playing, briefcase-toting executive who, as banker and lawyer and Indian chief, is spearheading an economic revolution involving 30,000 Cherokees in 14 counties of what once was called Indian Territory.

Swimmer meets people's preconceptions head-on. "The way the Indian has been stereotyped, you'd think that being poor and downtrodden was a requirement for us to be proud of our heritage. Poverty has nothing to do with that. Economic independence is what frees you to enjoy your heritage, live where you want, do what you choose, whether it's playing tennis or Indian stickball, practicing law or trapping animals in the forests. But time is running out for the Indian to stand on his own two feet financially and still preserve his tribal identity, his culture and his heritage.

"One day — possibly within the next 10 years — the Government is going to stop recognizing Indian tribes. Federal funding for programs for Indians will be eliminated or be sharply reduced. The Indian will have to stand alone. That's why the Cherokees are working so fast — to get ready for that day."

Swimmer takes a quick glance at his appointment calendar — he seems always to be racing against time — and then adds: "My goals for my people and my personal goals for my two sons [Joseph, 8, and Michael, 6] are the same: we must have a strong tribe to provide leadership and opportunities that will put more people to work."

For a person to follow Swimmer through a typical day is like a greyhound trying to chase a mechanical rabbit: you can sometimes keep him in sight, but you can never quite catch up with him. So let's start at what would be the end of the average executive's working hours.

After the 34-year-old bank president leaves his office in Tahlequah, a town of about 10,000 inhabitants in the heart of Oklahoma's "Indian Country," he rushes to the nearby tribal headquarters. Two Cherokee secretaries have been preparing for his arrival. "I have studied the Cherokee language, which is very difficult to speak, but I don't do it at all well," confesses the chief. "The secretaries are much better at that than I am. Although most of the tribe speaks English, many still tend to think in Cherokee."

At tribal headquarters, Swimmer rattles off a few statistics relating to the way in which the Cherokees, under his leadership during a less than three-year period, have been changing their economic way of life:

- Forty-five thousand acres of once-worthless land purchased from the Federal Government in the past 10 years are being transformed into tree farms and cattle pastures. Youngsters are being encouraged to enroll in education programs in ranch management and cattle-breeding.
- Collectively owned tribal assets have doubled to more than $24 million, and Cherokees now enjoy the highest rate of employment of all American Indian tribes.
- The tribe has recently completed constructing the 2,000th Cherokee-built new home in eastern Oklahoma.

Swimmer stops talking and begins shuffling through papers, making notes in the margins. There are contracts to negotiate involving industrial parks and companies, like the electronic-component assembly plant that the Cherokees established and operate. The tribe-owned Cherokee Nation Utility Company supplies electricity to diversified tribal businesses, including a major motel, an office building and shops related to the $600-million tourist industry in the area.

By late afternoon, Swimmer is still going strong. He drives to his split-level,

A COMPENDIUM OF CUSTOMS

Eternal flame: Considered a gift from God, fire in Cherokee villages was never allowed to die. During the frigid "Trail of Tears" march of the Cherokee from Georgia to Oklahoma, this fire was kept burning. Today in Oklahoma, at least 13 fires from that flame still burn.

Bury the hatchet: Legend states that Indians placed a hatchet in a pole of their counsel hut for the duration of any war. The hatchet was believed to absorb the evil of war. When peace came, the hatchet was ceremoniously buried.

Capital punishment: When a Cherokee was sentenced to death by burning at the stake, the individual was freed for 90 days to get his affairs in order. No condemned Cherokee ever failed to return for his tribal punishment.

Eagle feathers: In many tribes, it was believed that an Indian who killed an eagle, hawk or other bird of prey could not enter into heaven after death. Therefore, despite the abundance of such Splitting the blanket: The marriage of a brave and a squaw involved the sewing of the couple being wed into a blanket. Divorce was accomplished by literally splitting the blanket into which they had been sewn.

contemporary home for a dinner of steak and potatoes — "just like anybody else." Then, after the meal is finished, he leaves to participate in other Cherokee activities, with his wife Margaret and the two boys. (He does this at least three nights each week.)

"I really enjoy going to stomp dances and church singings," Swimmer says with a grin. "It's a real education in Cherokee heritage for the boys, and they like to tell their classmates about the things we do together in the evenings. His first day at school, in fact, Michael told his teacher: 'My dad's an Indian chief; I'm an Indian; my brother is an Indian. But my mama is just a cowboy.'" Mrs. Swimmer actually is part Indian, but her family never registered with the Federal Government to establish Indian identity and rights.

Sometimes when the Swimmer family shows up at tribal functions, the chief is invited to lead a hymn in Cherokee. "I try," he says, "even if I can't carry a tune or speak the language very well.

"What I really enjoy is being able to help, especially the elderly Cherokees, with things like Social Security and medical-care problems. It's important for these people to see the chief and know that he cares about them.

"Health and nutrition programs are our top priority," he explains. "Good health and a proper diet are essential to the economic development of the tribe."

For Swimmer, the word "economic" is almost synonymous with the word "human." The chief of the Cherokees, unlike many leaders of other tribes, is convinced that the only real power American Indians will ever have must be economic. "There are less than a million Indians scattered all over this country," he says. "They can't elect one congressman, senator or governor. But because of the energy crisis, Washington will listen one day when it discovers that between 20 and 30 percent of all the coal reserves in this country are under Indian lands. That's economic power."

Swimmer and the Cherokees are not waiting, however. "We're developing the economic clout in eastern Oklahoma that will cause the politicans to listen. In some ways, we have an advantage in that Oklahoma — which has more Indians than any other state — does not have reservations that isolate us from other Americans."

It's now late at night but Swimmer stops off at the National Cherokee Museum before heading home. The sight of the exhibits there causes him to reminisce a bit about his own family's history, especially about his father who was one of the first Indians to receive a scholarship from the Bureau of Indian Affairs after the turn of the century. "My dad is an attorney. He studied in Oregon, Nebraska and at the University of Oklahoma. I was brought up to be proud I was an Indian and followed in my father's footsteps. Dad had many Indian clients, but my deep involvement with the tribe did not come until I was a practicing lawyer in Oklahoma City."

Swimmer confesses that the stress he puts on the necessity for economic development is not favored by all Cherokees, yet he also readily admits that this particular emphasis did not originate with him. "Many of the good things happening to our tribe today are the fruits of seeds planted by W.W. Keeler, the former Cherokee chief, who was top corporate officer of The Phillips Petroleum Company. He involved me in tribal affairs in 1970, when I moved to Tahlequah. He also was dedicated to economic development. Since I was elected principal chief in 1975, I have continued to move toward that goal. But I'm still not completely accepted. Some Cherokees look at my life-style and say, 'He isn't really one of us.' But I really am. My roots are the same as theirs.

"We still have many who are poor and uneducated. The Cherokees are just beginning to dig out. They have endured a great deal and managed to survive, but they still have a long way to go."

Now Swimmer's thoughts shift to the past history of his tribe. As a member of the board of the nonprofit Cherokee Historical Association, he is intensely concerned that his tribe's progress in the present and prospects for the future do not make the Cherokees forsake and forget their heritage. The museum helps to preserve this — and so does the nightly performance of "The Trail of Tears," a historical pageant in the world's only air-conditioned outdoor theater.

The chief is proud of the fact that the "museum and drama attract visitors from all states and about 102 foreign countries. They now rate as one of the 10 best off-the-beaten-path tourist stops in America."

It's time to go home. But Ross Swimmer expresses one last thought. "The past is something the future can be built upon. I would like all people everywhere, perhaps 10 years from now, to say that the Cherokee Indian Nation set the example for progress and prosperity for all American Indians." FW

Running the gauntlet: The Indian phrase is "between two lines of people." This was never used as a form of punishment. Instead, it represented a test of endurance for young men, and blows delivered were never intended to be fatal.

Pacifiers: Indian babies were considered "very good children." One reason, perhaps, was that when squaws dressed deer, they gave the children small pieces of cleaned intestine from the game to chew on.

Breathing room: Called "leaving an open space" by Cherokee conjurers, this phrase applied to the placement of a great invisible serpent around a hut to ward off witches. The medicine man always was careful to leave a small space between the head and the tail of the snake so that the family could go down to the spring and get water.

Scalping: Indians believed that a person had to be whole and perfect to enter heaven. When an enemy was killed, a brave would usually cut off a finger, an ear or a scalp. Otherwise, he feared he would have to continue to fight the individual in the afterworld.

Women's rights: Cherokee women owned everything in the village. Any wife had the right to evict her husband by throwing his clothing out of the family hut. And when braves took prisoners, the women tested the captives' courage with torture. If a prisoner displayed bravery, he was allowed to live and become a Cherokee.

GARY BUSEY: HE KEEPS BUDDY HOLLY'S MEMORY ALIVE

By Jane Hershey

Buddy Holly, born Charles Hardin of Lubbock, Texas, was one of rock music's most innovative pioneers, with the musical vitality to move millions of teenagers (and even their parents!) with his own kind of rhythmic energy and good will. Holly was among the very first in the 1950's "Elvis" generation who actually wrote, arranged, even produced his own top-10-bound materials. When he died in a plane crash on the biggest American tour ever, he was only 23. In that short space of time, Holly wrote and recorded nearly 50 original songs.

When Columbia Pictures obtained the go-ahead to film The Buddy Holly Story, the film company knew that it had something quite special on its hands, but the coveted role went to a relative newcomer to motion-picture stardom, singer-actor Gary Busey.

After the film's completion, Columbia opened The Buddy Holly Story in Holly's hometown, and Busey paid a moving visit both to the singer's parents and since-remarried widow, Maria Elena.

"The whole thing was pretty emotional for all of us," Busey recalls. "Buddy's parents wanted me to dedicate a park in his name — they were all dressed for going to church, and there I was in my surfer shirt and mirrored sunglasses. They treated me just like their son.

"Maria Elena is now married to a man named Joe Diaz who works with the Puerto Rican Government. She's got three kids and seems really happy, thank God. When Columbia played her a rough segment of the film, she asked where they had found the tape of Buddy singing those songs. When they told her it was me, Maria said, 'Gary's gotten inside Buddy.' That really made it for me."

Holly recorded his songs both alone and with a band called The Crickets. If you listen to the radio today, chances are that you'll hear at least one of his songs, kept immortal by such performers as Linda Ronstadt, Waylon Jennings, Don McLean and Paul McCartney and Denny Laine of Wings. Songs like "That'll Be The Day," "It's So Easy" and "Rave On." In fact, McCartney now owns the publishing rights to most of Buddy Holly's music, and John Lennon once said that the name "The Beatles" came into his head because he was trying to find something that sounded like The Crickets. Since the movie's release and glowing reception, no doubt there will be even more Holly on the airwaves and in the concert halls.

Gary Busey feels extremely good about this revival. One gets the feeling that Busey and Buddy really might have meshed souls up there onscreen. "I've been told that we have the same biorhythms," he laughs.

Busey has appeared in films such as Gumball Rally, A Star is Born, and Straight Time (in which he portrayed a fat drug-addict friend of Dustin Hoffman's) as well as in some television dramas. He can also be seen, concurrent with the Holly film in Jon Milius's surfing epic, Big Wednesday.

But it was the chance to play

Buddy Holly and get into this surprisingly complex musician's persona which Busey regards as his most exciting professional experience to date. One could say that Busey, despite his formerly heavy frame and straight corn-field hair, was fated to play Holly from the very beginning of the project's conception.

"Joyce Selznick, who cast The Buddy Holly Story, insisted that I get the role" Busey says. "In three days, I got the part. They dyed my hair and gave me two permanents, but the rest just came naturally."

The Buddy Holly Story has already been dubbed as one of this year's biggest success stories, but it was Busey's son, Jake, who summed up the film's ultimate emotional tug.

Recalls Gary: "My wife Judy and I were at a private screening. I was hugging former Cricket Jerry Allison who was overcome with shock and joy at seeing me up there playing Buddy, his buddy. Suddenly, Judy came over with little Jake and I asked him how he liked the film. He was crying, too.

"Daddy," he sniffed, "Why did that man have to die when he was having so much fun?" FW

Of all nature's creatures, birds surely are among the most appealing. And waterbirds in particular hold a special place in the hearts of bird lovers because of their distinctive grace and beauty. Now, twelve of the world's loveliest waterbirds are portrayed for the first time in an exquisite collection of fine porcelain plates.

Outstanding Original Paintings

Each of the twelve Waterbird Plates depicts a work of art by the internationally-known English wildlife artist Eric Tenney. He created these paintings exclusively for this collection; they will never appear anywhere else.

In the time-honored tradition of fine porcelain

THE WATERBIRD PLATES will be crafted of fine Bavarian porcelain, which is greatly esteemed for its translucence, whiteness, and strength. The tradition of Bavarian porcelain is among the oldest in the Western World; indeed, it was in Saxony that the first true porcelain was developed in Europe, over two and a half centuries ago.

The Waterbird Plates continue this tradition of inspired artistry and painstaking skill. It can take years to create a series of plates of this supreme quality, and it would be impossible without the specialized knowledge and craftsmanship that only a few master porcelain makers possess.

Each Waterbird Plate will measure approximately 9½ inches in diameter, a size that makes it possible to show each bird in precise detail in its natural habitat. To add to the splendor and elegance of the collection, a border of 24 kt. gold will be hand-applied to each plate.

A Limited Edition at a Guaranteed Price

Because the original paintings are so exceptional, the Waterbird Plates are expected to have enduring collecting importance. This truly is a collection you can acquire with confidence and display in your home with pride.

The Waterbird Plates are available in the U.S. exclusively from the Danbury Mint; none will be sold in museums, galleries or stores. The U.S. edition of this magnificent collection is limited to the number of orders postmarked by October 31, 1978, and then will be closed forever. As a subscriber you will receive a certificate of registration authenticating the limited edition status of your collection.

Despite the fact that collector plates of comparable size and quality are being widely offered at $45. or $50. and more, the original issue price for the Waterbird Plates has been set at just $35. each. Moreover, this original issue price is guaranteed to each subscriber for the entire collection.

Observations

A fable for now. Once, over a land of great plenty, ruled King Sam the Avuncular, whose noble appetite for new dishes made welcome the greatest of cooks. Given free rein, these busy workers vied for gold and honor, and their bountiful concoctions helped bring prosperity. But some unproductive folk had trouble swallowing the realm's success and befuddled the monarch with mean-spirited questions: "Are you sure this new meat dish is really good for you? Why not impose controls so your soup will cost less?" The king's manner and purse tightened as his suspicions were fed.

"What's this?" he demanded as smooth, dark dessert was set before him. "Saccra-Mousse," replied the inventive chef. "Though rich and sweet and filling, it fattens not." "Yum," thought the monarch. But his advisers whispered, "You'd best test it first." "Oh, very well," the king sighed, and ordered a hundredweight stuffed daily for a month down the Royal Taster, who sickened gravely. The cook suffered the loss of his head. And Saccra-Mousse, over the protests of dieters, was forever banned.

Other cautions commenced. Inspectors dulled the kitchen knives as a safety precaution and banned salads for fear of oil and vinegar spills. Environmental regulators closed the smokehouse. They halted feeding of the soil and removal of pests. No herbs grew at all because each little crop required as many licenses as a whole field of grain. And peat for the fires became scarce after a quarrel over how to treat the bogs. Gradually the land and the kitchens fell idle.

"Hold it! There's a new regulation--you can only put in three and twenty!"

Though forbidden by a great body of regulations to make plans jointly or share new techniques, some cooks still tried to respond loyally. One chef paid 100 pieces of gold from his own pocket to provision a banquet, but the stingy advisers cautioned, "Only two bits of gold, Your Majesty, 'tis sufficient return." "What!" cried the chef, losing his head; first figuratively and then literally.

So it came to pass that only in other lands were new dishes devised. "Oh, tempura!" cried the monarch, while his pundits feared the wurst. In all his land there were only peanut butter sandwiches. King Sam called for master chefs, but none dared appear. Finally, one was discovered in hiding and dragged trembling before the king. "When will you pick up your skillet and create gustatory delights?" the monarch demanded. Quoth the craven: "Nevermore!"

PEOPLE QUIZ/By John E. Gibson

WHAT YOUR FACE REVEALS ABOUT YOU— AND WHAT IT DOESN'T

Margie Frem

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. You can judge a person's intelligence from a photograph of his face — if you know what to look for.

2. What you see in another person's face — the things you "read" in the lines and features — often depends entirely on your attitude toward him and what you may have heard about him.

3. Different features of your face convey different emotions to other people.

4. Happiness is the easiest emotion to read in a person's face.

5. How accurately you are able to judge facial expressions depends to a large extent on whether your life has been humdrum or stimulating and exciting.

ANSWERS

1. False. An eleven-year study of facial expression conducted by the University of California School of Medicine's psychology professor Paul Ekman presented a negative opinion. After evaluating his own findings and those of other leading researchers, he concludes that "There is still no satisfactory evidence of the ability to judge intelligence accurately from a photograph of the face. Moreover, quite apart from the issue of accurate judgments of intelligence, there is actually little information about what constitutes an intelligent face."

2. True. Studies at the University of Oregon have demonstrated that judgments about a person's physical characteristics are by no means independent of one's attitude towards him. It is pointed out, for example, that "It is possible to look at the photograph of an admired person and see a relaxed demeanor, a subdued smile, soft eyes and a kind expression, while another individual who dislikes that person may see a tense or even cruel expression, and no smile."

3. True. Tests at the University of California on the effects conveyed by facial expression show that disgust and happiness were more accurately identified in the mouth than in the eyes or brows; however, fear and sadness were more accurately identified in the eyes than in the mouth or brows. And surprise (rather expectably) was more accurately identified by the eyebrows.

4. False. University of Michigan studies show that facial expressions are as important as words in relating our feelings to others — but that "happiness, the easiest emotion to recognize, is also the most deceitful (and misleading)." It is pointed out that we use the expression connoting happiness to hide many other combinations of feelings that we don't want others to know about. That, it is observed, is where the conflict in communication comes in: when the face doesn't reflect what the person is really feeling.

5. True. Studies at Rutgers University on randomly selected male and female college students have shown that your ability to correctly judge another person's facial expression depends on whether or not you have personally experienced the particular situation which evokes the expression. To put it another way, the person who has "been around" and thus experienced a wide variety of feelings or emotions evoked by all kinds of situations will be a much more accurate judge of facial expressions.

6. True. Psychiatric studies at the University of California cite findings indicating that, in many cases, those neurotics who hide their emotions appear to be incapable of snarling and that "neurotics need to be taught how to snarl." A person who can snarl when he feels like snarling does not need to internalize his aggression but can provide it, when appropriate, with instant expression, which serves as a safety valve. And it is also noted that if the individual's attention is drawn to the fact that others are free to snarl when they feel snarly, he comes to recognize the genuineness of this emotion and the release which comes with snarling. He may then feel free to attempt it himself. FW

RUSS FRANCIS: HE PUTS THE HEX ON THE OPPOSITION

Photos by Wide World

Russ Francis cues a future tight end (1990 season?) about life on the grid. Life on the grid for no. 81 is all scramble and much excitement.

By Barry Abramson

Russ Francis, the All-Pro tight end for the New England Patriots, has a unique method for achieving success on the gridiron. He puts a "hex" on the opposition. Francis is a native of Hawaii, and his hex is an old Hawaiian curse called "kahuna." When you employ kahuna you create a mental picture of what you want to happen, and presto — it happens! Francis explains that his whammy is only used in crucial situations such as occurred in a tough game against Pittsburgh, when the Steeler place-kicker missed what seemed like an easy field goal. The miss insured a 30-27 win for New England.

Francis claims his kahuna also worked its magic in two games against the Oakland Raiders two years ago. The Patriots won the first game but lost the second. "The kahuna did work in that second game," Francis tells you. "We won that, but the officials beat us. I should have used the kahuna on them."

Francis neglected to use his special whammy on opposition defense players in New England's eighth game last year and, as a result, suffered three broken ribs and was out of action for four games. He returned to his team near the end of the season but could not contribute very much because of his weak condition. Without a healthy Francis in action for them, the Patriots lost their chance to make the National Football League playoffs. Francis is confident his team will make it this time.

Patriot coach Chuck Fairbanks says his Hawaiian star has a lot going for him besides superstition. He cites Francis' size and strength (6′ 6″ and 240 pounds), his deft footwork and his ability to outjump defenders and grab long passes out of the air. As a youngster growing up on the island of Oahu, he could run, throw and jump better than anybody else. He broke catchers' mitts with his hard pitches on the baseball field but lost his enthusiasm for pitching when one of his throws accidentally struck a batter on the head and nearly killed him. He switched to football and also achieved prowess as a javelin thrower. "When I finished high school and went to Oregon University, I was ranked third for distance in the country," he recalls, "Everybody agreed I would make the Olympic team and compete in the 1972 Games, but my coach convinced me to change my style. The change ruined me, and I didn't make it."

Francis had one big football season at Oregon — as a junior, when he made second-team All-America. He did not play at all as a senior because Oregon's coach, whom he liked very much, was fired by the college. But Fairbanks had been the coach at Oklahoma when Francis played impressively against his team, and as the coach of the Patriots, he arranged to take the big Hawaiian on the first round of the 1975 draft. Francis made the NFL All-Rookie team in his first year as a pro and graduated to All-Pro the next season.

Francis is a man who seems to do everything well. He's a licensed pilot and runs an executive airline in Hawaii during the off-season. He is also a good scuba diver and surfer, a photographer, a guitar player and an avid reader. He comes from a family of professional wrestlers and has teamed with his brother in tag-team wrestling matches. He's also a nonconformist who doesn't consider football "very important," regularly visits art museums and fine art centers and will not do any TV commercials unless they're for charity. Unlike other athletes who hunt in the off-season, Francis is an ardent conservationist who wants wildlife protected. He says that when he's finished with football he'll get a degree in animal husbandry and probably go on to law school. FW

My Feet Hurt-Nobody Had the Answer -So I Had to Find My Own!

I was retired from business and traveling in Europe, but not enjoying it at all because my feet were killing me. I hurt all over. I guess God must have had his arms around me because almost by accident I found a device in Germany that gave me instant relief when I put them in my shoes. They were called Flexible Featherspring Foot Supports, and the flexible shock-absorbing support they gave my feet was like cradling them on a cushion of air. I could walk, stand, even run. The relief was truly a miracle. And just one pair was all I needed.

I was flabbergasted to find that they were only sold in Europe, so almost right then and there I made arrangements to bring them to America.

Today thousands of Americans have found this blessed relief from foot problems just like V.W., of Cambridge, Maryland, who says:

"I am delighted with the supports. The second day I had them I wore them in three different pairs of shoes, from 7 A.M. to 10 P.M., which included two hours at a cocktail party. It's the first cocktail party I have left in years without wishing I could crawl out on my knees."

Here's why Featherspring work for all of us and why they can work for you. These supports are different from any you may have seen before. They are custom fitted and made for your own feet. They actually imitate the youthful elastic support that nature originally intended your feet to have. Even doctors are amazed. As Dr. C.O.C., of Tucson, Arizona, wrote us:

"Received my wife's Featherspring two days ago. They are super—neither of us can believe the results. She has had terrible feet for years; already no pain. Incidentally, her sore knee is better . . . as a retired physician this result is amazing."

Maybe all this sounds too good to be true but H.S.H., of Louisville, Kentucky, writes:

"I have checked your corporation with the Better Business Bureau and received an excellent report."

Mrs. E.G.C. wrote us and said:

"I didn't know such immediate relief could be obtained for the painful calluses on my foot. I've lived with that pain for years and was told by a podiatrist that foot surgery was the only proper course of treatment. I've been wearing your supports for about two months, and I've not had even a twinge of pain from those calluses."

If you're suffering pain with corns, calluses, old injuries, pain in the balls of your feet, burning nerve ends, painful ankles, backaches or just generally sore, aching feet, Flexible Featherspring will bring you relief with every step you take or your money back without question if you yourself are not completely satisfied.

Don't suffer pain and discomfort needlessly. If your feet hurt, we can help you. Write for more detailed information; there is no obligation whatsoever. No salesman will call.

A NEW WAY TO MAKE PAIN DISAPPEAR

It often is simple. All you need is a creature of your own imagination who'll talk you out of it.

By Donna Buys

A woman came to the University of California Pain Control Unit suffering interminable chest pain following the removal of a breast. When psychologist David Bresler, director of the unit, asked her to visualize the pain, she said it felt like an elephant sitting on her chest. He encouraged her to talk to the elephant about her problems. The elephant agreed to go on a diet, and every day it weighed a little less until it was so light that it sprouted wings and flew off her chest. For the first time since her surgery, she had no pain.

How can talking to an elephant relieve chest pain? This seemingly bizarre interaction is an integral part of guided imagery, one of several means of managing chronic, intractable pain that disrupts people's lives to the extent that they often cannot work, their relationships with other people deteriorate, and they become financially exhausted after long, futile searches for medical treatment that often fails to take away the pain.

Guided imagery is a means of getting in touch with the 90 percent of our brains — some call it the unconscious — that most of us do not use. Through guided imagery, creaturelike advisers are created to help us learn about ourselves. A person with pain talks to the adviser to find out what is causing it, and often this insight alone makes the pain go away.

Finding an adviser is easy. Briefly, here's how Dr. Bresler found one for me.

"Sit with your feet flat on the floor. Close your eyes. Pay attention to your breathing. Imagine a ball of pure energy, a white light that starts at your lower abdomen and, as you inhale, it comes up through your body into your forehead. As you exhale, it goes down your spine, down your legs and into the ground. Now, after a few repetitions of following the energy, imagine yourself in a favorite place, a beautiful peaceful serene place outside, where you can meet your adviser. Now (after I describe this place in detail) look around until you make eye contact with the first living creature you see. (I see a lamb.) Introduce yourself to the lamb. Find out what the lamb's name is — the first name that comes into your mind. (Mary). Tell Mary that you'd like her to meet with you and talk about various things you have on your mind, that you recognize that, like any friendship, it's a fifty-fifty relationship."

After I had established the relationship with Mary, I asked her whether she would help me with my chronic problem of trying to lose weight. Since the adviser represents the part of the mind that sees the whole picture, the adviser invariably knows something we don't know.

Communicating with that other part of our brain is not so unusual according to Bresler. If you have ever said to yourself, 'I knew that was going to happen;' or 'I knew you were going to say that,' it was your adviser who told you. We communicate with that part of our consciousness all the time in dreams, daydreams, fantasies, intuition, flashes of insight. "This technique," explains Bresler, "is a matter of formalizing this communication, so it's not just haphazard but a way of insuring a more permanent, ongoing relationship with oneself." He says some people who are spiritually inclined have God as their adviser. "What better adviser can one have than an all-powerful, all-knowing being?"

In what cases is guided imagery effective in relieving pain? "It's impossible to generalize," says Bresler, "because pain is a highly individual experience. Pain is a friendly message, telling you that something is wrong. It may be primarily a physical problem; for others it may be social. Or it may be primarily psychological, having to do with feelings about ourselves; for some it might be a spiritual message. Guided imagery works for those who understand the message and are able to take appropriate remedial action. Not all can do that."

But there is an adviser within the recesses of all of our minds. The adviser does more than take away pain. The adviser supports us, keeps us out of trouble, tells us how to relieve stress and will come to us at any time. FW

Mrs. Ed Marsh, Ladson, S.C.

See how PHONICS can dramatically improve YOUR child's reading ability and school work . . . Try it FREE for two weeks

Perhaps your son or daughter is very much like young Terry Marsh — bright, enthusiastic — but unable to fully grasp the "look-and-say" reading method taught in most schools today. Your child may be frustrated . . . lagging behind in class.

If so, it's not your child's fault. The fact is, many educators report that at least 40% of our children face this problem and must have training in PHONICS . . . learning the sounds of letters . . . or they will be handicapped throughout their learning years.

Now, thanks to an effective, inexpensive home-tutoring course called The Sound Way To Easy Reading, you can help your youngster gain up to a full year's reading skill — get better grades and build confidence in himself — in just 6 weeks!

Sounds That Teach

Listening to records and using special charts, your child soon learns the sounds of every letter in the alphabet and their blends. When he sounds out the letters, he hears himself saying the word. He's reading!

By the time he completes all 4 records in the course (about 6 weeks for the average child) he'll be able to read up to 85% of all the words in the English language.

Tested and Proved For Children of all Ages

The course works for children in the earliest grades all the way up to high school. In a pilot study by university psychologists, children gained up to a full year's grade in oral reading skill after only 30 lessons with The Sound Way To Easy Reading.

Help Your Child Now— Without Risking A Cent

By starting your child now on the Sound Way To Easy Reading, you can help to improve his attitude toward school — achieve greater success — be better prepared for high school and the future. Can you think of a more valuable, loving gift for your child?

Send for the course today. Send no money. If you don't notice a dramatic improvement in your child's reading after just two weeks, return the course and owe nothing.

USED SUCCESSFULLY
By Over 400,000 Parents who send many letters like these:

Advanced two years — "Your course has made my son want to read. No more frustration with words he doesn't know. In 7 months, Steve's reading level advanced two years."
Mrs. R. Collins, Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

Reading 100% better — "Without The Sound Way To Easy Reading, I believe I would have lost my mind trying to teach my daughter to read. Becky is 11 years old in 5th grade. Now she's reading and spelling 100% better after working just a few weeks with the records.
Mrs. Minnie B. Tyson, Gainesville, Fla.

IN 26,000 SCHOOLS
Teachers are highly enthusiastic

Second grade — "Your course is the best teaching aid a teacher could have. I have been using it for the past two years for my basic second grade reading course. My class looks forward to the record quizzes. Their improvement in reading and spelling has been outstanding."
Mrs. Diane Williamson, Chickasaw, Ala.

Remarkable improvement — " I have seen my remedial groups advance 1½ to 2½ levels in reading in 6 months and show 85% to 90% improvement in spelling. A low achievement 6th grade group showed remarkable improvement. I have convinced many teachers in our school to use your course.

Yes, with this doctor's thrilling ANTI-CALORIE PROGRAM and capsule, you "rev up" your inner furnace — you neutralize all the calories coming in — so not one ounce of the food you eat can possibly turn to fat — and your body is AUTOMATICALLY FORCED to feed itself on stored-up pockets of flab that up to now seemed impossible to budge.

ACTUALLY SHRINKS YOUR BODY'S FAT CELLS STARTING IN JUST HOURS!

Even more significant . . . because this doctor's amazing CAPSULE almost instantly switches off gnawing hunger for hours at a time and puts your appetite into a deep sleep . . . it is not only the MOST POWERFUL REDUCING AID EVER APPROVED FOR PUBLIC RELEASE, without a prescription, BY THE U.S. GOVERNMENT — but a "dynamite" formula that so effectively brings the urge to pick and snack to a SCREECHING HALT . . . you may actually have to remind yourself to eat on this thrilling calorie-deficit CRASH-LOSS PROGRAM . . . in order to prevent yourself from losing too much weight, too fast!

SINCE YOU "ZERO-OUT" THE CALORIES . . . EACH MEAL YOU EAT BRINGS YOU ONE STEP CLOSER TO LIFETIME SLIMNESS!

Yes, based on published reports from professors at leading medical schools . . . PLUS experimental fat-burning studies on U.S. Army officers, West Point Cadets and independent research tests . . . with the food you eat on this doctor's CAPSULE PROGRAM . . . your body automatically neutralizes the effect of all the calories you take in — automatically forces pounds and inches to vanish so FAST, that before you hardly know it, you:

LOSE UP TO 4 TO 6 INCHES OFF YOUR WAISTLINE
LOSE UP TO 2 TO 5 INCHES OFF YOUR HIPS
LOSE UP TO 3 INCHES OFF YOUR THIGHS
LOSE UP TO 4 INCHES OFF YOUR BUTTOCKS
LOSE UP TO 4 INCHES OFF YOUR STOMACH

. . . as you start to win the physique of a naturally skinny person . . . those types who never seem to gain an ounce!

YOUR TUMMY FEELS LIKE YOU FEASTED, BUT YOUR WAISTLINE LOOKS LIKE YOU FASTED!

Just to give you an idea of how fast this thrilling anti-fat weapon burns away excess fat and inches . . . according to California University Medical School research on energy burn-off you can actually melt away more fat each 24 hours than if you ran 10 to 14 miles a day! — Lose more pounds each week than if you did 300 sit-ups each morning and 300 push-ups each night! LOSE as much as a FULL SIZE THE FIRST 5 DAYS ALONE . . . Lose up to 4 — 6 inches off your waistline! Why you'll make excess pounds and inches disappear from sight so fast — that in just 10 days time you will simply refuse to believe your bathroom scale . . . and in just a matter of weeks you may actually need a brand new wardrobe.

VITAL NOTICE: Before starting this program, consult with your physician to be sure you are in normal health and your only problem is excess weight. Individuals with high blood pressure, heart disease, diabetes, or thyroid disease should use only as directed by a family physician and see if he doesn't agree that this Lifetime Road to Slimness including the few minutes of nightly toneup the doctor highly recommends is by far one of the most medically sound, fully sensible approaches to the problem of excess weight.

BEST OF ALL — THERE'S NO CRACKING, NO SLIDEBACK — YOU STAY SLIM FOR GOOD! BECAUSE AT LONG LAST, YOU HAVE IN YOUR HANDS A LIFETIME WEAPON TO DEFEND YOURSELF AGAINST FAT BUILD-UP!

Yes, when you arm yourself with this thrilling ANTI-CALORIE CRASH-BURN PROGRAM and doctor's capsule . . . you actually fortify yourself with the only thing you'll ever need for LIFETIME PROTECTION against excessive fat build-up. That's because, what medical science now offers you is a proven way to neutralize all the calories in the food you eat — gently step up your metabolism . . . stimulate and "target" your body's "fat-burner" chemicals to attack clinging pockets of fat, so you burn away excess flab meal to meal these 3 medically proven ways:

ONE — BECAUSE YOU CONSTANTLY NEUTRALIZE THE EFFECT OF THE CALORIES IN THE FOOD YOU EAT, YOU BURN AWAY STORED-UP FAT AND CONTINUE TO GROW SLIMMER AND SLIMMER FROM MEAL TO MEAL! Yes, when you launch yourself on this doctor's calorie-deficit crash-burn program you gently step up your inner furnace! So when food enters your body, instead of being stored as fat, it is AUTOMATICALLY converted to burn-away energy.

TWO — YOU GRADUALLY ACCELERATE YOUR FAT-BURNING METABOLISM by greater caloric burn-off than intake. Meaning: your body, without you even feeling it, unleashes a steady surge of fat-burner chemicals directly into your system to attack stored-up fat . . . automatically breaks down . . . converts it into fluid . . . that drains right out of your body!

Just like a furnace grows hotter and hotter the more you stoke it . . . so your own body burns away fat faster and faster the more you step up your fat-burning metabolism.

THREE — YOU COMPLETELY DEFEAT THE GREATEST SINGLE CAUSE OF FAT BUILD-UP, runaway appetite and overeating. Because the moment you take this doctor's CAPSULE, ravenous hunger disappears. Gnawing appetite is switched off . . . you lose your craving for food for hours at a time.

More significant . . . when you do eat on this Doctor's CRASH-LOSS diet and Lifetime-Slim maintenance program, since your body completely NEUTRALIZES THE FAT-BUILDING EFFECT OF ALL THE CALORIES IN THE FOOD YOU EAT, excess fat simply cannot form . . . stored-up body fat burned off and melted away by the hour — and you continue to grow slimmer instead of fatter after each meal you eat!

DOCTOR ADVISES: USE THIS CRASH-BURN PROGRAM ONLY WHILE YOU'RE OVERWEIGHT . . . OTHERWISE YOU MIGHT GROW TOO THIN!

Of course, there is one thing you must keep in mind. You cannot use this CAPSULE CRASH-BURN PROGRAM indefinitely . . . otherwise, you might become overly thin. Be sensible. Stop when you reach your ideal weight . . . and eat to keep it!

Also, as long as you are on this ANTI-CALORIE Program you cannot stuff and gorge yourself silly on over-rich, high-fat foods. There is a reasonable limit on just how fast medical science can help you safely burn away fat. BUT — and here's the very heart of this wondrous development: Because this thrilling ANTI-CALORIE concept not only helps you neutralize the effect of the calories in all the food you eat . . . but ALSO satisfies ravenous hunger and puts gnawing appetite to sleep . . . you simply lose that driving urge, that maddening craze to make fattening food the very center of your existence . . . thanks to this medically proven formula that contains the most powerful reducing aid ever approved for release to the public, without a prescription, by the United States Government!

Now just think what this great ANTI-FAT weapon means to you, if all your life you've had to fight off excess pounds, battle away inches?

WHY "KILL" YOURSELF WITH BRUTAL DIET OR TORTUROUS EXERCISE? NOW — YOU CAN ENJOY A LIFETIME OF SLIMNESS WITHOUT RAVENOUS HUNGER!

It means that from this day on . . . when you finally decide "you've had it" you're just sick and tired of being imprisoned by fat . . . you simply start the ALL-OUT ASSAULT ON FAT by taking these medically proven CAPSULES . . . called "Thera-Thin", before eating . . . as part of this incredible "CRASH-BURN" PROGRAM . . . to help you NEUTRALIZE ALL THE CALORIES IN THE FOOD YOU EAT! You gently raise the level of your fat-burning metabolism . . . "rev up" that inner furnace . . . unlock and activate the natural chemical fat-burners nature has placed in your body . . . and BURN AWAY FAT, MELT AWAY INCHES as you start to grow slimmer and slimmer from meal to meal!

THE FACTS ARE IN! THE RESEARCH IS DONE! THE CONCEPT BEHIND THIS INCREDIBLE WEIGHT-SLASHING DEVELOPMENT HAS BEEN PROVEN BEYOND A SHADOW OF A DOUBT BY THE NATION'S LEADING MEDICAL AUTHORITIES. NOW THE FINAL STEP IS UP TO YOU!

REMEMBER: You must see dramatic results in just 24 hours — results you can see on your scale with your very own eyes, the very first morning . . . yes, you must:

LOSE up to 6 lbs. the first 48 hours
LOSE up to 10 lbs. the first 7 days
LOSE up to 7 lbs. more the next 7 days or "Thera-Thin" costs you nothing! Simply return within 10 days for full refund (except postage and handling, of course). Act now! Send NO-RISK TRIAL SUPPLY today!

CELEBRATE SCHOOL LUNCH WEEK

By Marilyn Hansen

This year, "School Lunch Week" is being observed October 8 to 14. The school-lunch program is an important part of the day for many children. It is estimated that 26.5 million people are fed each school day.

Each school year a "Universal Menu" is selected by an appointed board at the American School Food Service Association. This menu is served to students across the country during National School Lunch Week. The menu selected is based on its appeal to students, nutritional contributions, simplicity of preparation and the wide availability of its ingredients.

A PARENT'S GUIDE TO COLLEGIATE "SLANGUAGE"

If you're a "wimp" you may be in "the pits" because you're not out "snaking it" or getting "wasted."

By Bethany Kandel

If you've just sent a youngster off to college for the first time or plan a homecoming weekend back at the old alma mater, you'll need to brush up on campus slang to be able to understand what the kids are talking about.

Some of yesterday's standbys are still around — "grinds" can be found in the library, "jocks" on the athletic field and "BMOC's" wherever the girls are — but those of you who once thought you were "hip" to collegiate "jive" will have to learn a new lingo.

Some slanguage is limited to one school, since it's linked to a specific aspect of life there. For example, students who study late at Wesleyan are called "squids." That's because when all the other lights on campus are dark, those still shining in the glassed-in library give it an aquariumlike appearance.

Other words are more universal among today's students, and some, in fact, are part of the youth culture as a whole. Being "mellow" means being relaxed or "laid back." But if something is really felt or experienced intensely, that means it's "heavy" or "deep."

If something's a "panic" or a "rush," then it really rates. But if it's a "bummer" or "the pits," it's what previous collegians called a "downer."

On the academic side of college life, courses good for easy A's — like "rocks for jocks" (basic geology) or "astro-gut" (elementary astronomy) or "moonlight and magnolias" (history of the antebellum South) — are still called "guts," or, at the University of Wisconsin, "sacks." If you "punt" a course at M.I.T., that means you drop it.

If you do well on a test, you "ace" it; if badly, you feel like you should "hang it up" or "bag it." The secret to doing well is to "stay loose," or, at the University of Delaware, to "cool your jets."

On the party scene, the guys are "snaking" (chasing) the girls, and in this age of equality a girl can be "on the snake," too. (And forget about the word "co-ed"; that's only used by newspaper headline writers.) If you hear about "trolling" at Michigan State, you know some guys are desperately on the lookout for some action.

If you lose your girlfriend or boyfriend to someone else, then you have every right to be "biffed" (bitter). But if you're not interested in a campus romance, it may be because you have "HTH" (home town honey).

Don't expect to find a "nerd," "wimp" or "geek" at a Saturday-night party because he or she is probably back in the dorm alone, "begging out." You won't find a "weenie" (Yale), a "tool" (M.I.T.) or a "throat" (Rutgers) at many parties, either; they're in the library studying.

The night before a paper is due or a test is scheduled you'll find lots of students pulling "all-nighters."

Because of the weird hours college kids keep, they develop the late-night "munchies." These hunger pains can sometimes only be satisfied by "pigging-out" or, at the University of California at Davis, by "porking-out."

Youngsters are still getting "bombed," "buzzed" or "wasted" when they drink too much. At the campus pub or frat house they can get their "buzz-on" from chugging a few "brews." At the University of Virginia, a "kegger" is a beer party.

Another popular pastime on campus is playing frisbee. At Brandeis University it's called "torguing." A favorite activity for most "sandbags" at Cornell (those who never study) is "varsity suntan." Sunglasses and tanning lotion are the only equipment needed for this sport, and the biggest "sandbag jocks" have the darkest tans.

If you are a "space cadet," you are on another planet and barely "with it." But if you are an "airhead," you have nothing upstairs, and you are really "out of it." If you don't know a "ralph" from a "louie," then you don't know right from left.

But there is a down-to-earth side, too. If you go to the forestry school at Syracuse, you are called a "stump." And aspiring medical students at Cornell really lay it on the line. What they are taking is called "premoney." FW

The Royal Dutch Horticultural Society invites you to acquire

The Flowers of Holland Thimble Collection

For just $9.75 each—twelve exquisite collector's thimbles in fine porcelain, hand-decorated in 24 karat gold, portraying the best-loved flowers of The Netherlands.

Subscription deadline: October 31, 1978.

THE FLOWERS OF HOLLAND are admired the world over for their color, beauty and vigor. And, through the centuries, the great Dutch painters have created some of the loveliest of all floral art.

In this tradition, The Royal Dutch Horticultural Society has authorized Franklin Porcelain, Amsterdam to create a unique new collection—The Flowers of Holland Thimble Collection—twelve collector's thimbles of fine porcelain, designed by the internationally renowned artist Ronald Van Ruyckevelt.

The beauty of flowers—in fine porcelain

Each thimble is a true work of art in miniature, though small enough to cradle in the palm of your hand. You may clearly see, not only the exact form of the flowers portrayed, but the tiniest, most delicate features of each, captured in the living colors of nature: from the brilliant flame tints of the tulip, to the soft, dusky pink of the fritillary. The botanical name of each flower—in elegant script—will form an integral part of the design of each thimble. And the finishing touch will be provided by a border of 24 karat gold—skillfully applied by hand. This extraordinary collection thus represents a veritable gallery of botanical art in miniature—still further enhanced by the pure translucency of fine porcelain.

Yours to arrange as you like

Merely to touch one of these graceful thimbles is to sense with subtle pleasure the rich smoothness of finely glazed porcelain. To examine one with a careful eye is to see the familiar thimble transformed into an object of true beauty. And, as a subscriber to The Flowers of Holland Thimble Collection, you will be able to set out the thimbles one by one, or in small groups, on an occasional table, a mantelpiece, in a china cabinet—or in the special display frame provided—where you may enjoy all the lively profusion of color and design which is one of the collection's chief delights.

Timeless loveliness in limited edition

These beautiful thimbles are available only as a collection and only in limited edition. Each subscriber will receive a Certificate of Authenticity, attesting to the limits of the edition, and an informative folder on the flowers portrayed.

This collection is available exclusively through Franklin Porcelain. In the United States, all applications should be sent to Franklin Porcelain, Franklin Center, Pennsylvania. The price of each thimble will be just $9.75. The thimbles will be issued at the rate of one per month, beginning in December.

The application below must be postmarked no later than October 31st to be eligible. When all eligible orders have been filled, no more of these beautiful thimbles will ever be created. So the number of collections in existence will never exceed the number of valid applications received postmarked by the official closing date.

HOW MUCH IS YOUR HOUSE REALLY WORTH?

Real-estate appraisers are best for judging a building's true worth, but there are ways you can do it yourself.

By Dorothy Tymon

Too often, purchasers of property buy with their hearts instead of their heads and end up paying an excessive price for a fireplace with a house wrapped around it or with land bought for "investment" that may take two generations before it becomes useful — if at all.

Determining property values is what real-estate appraising is all about. It is an art that comes from experience supported by a knowledge of the physical, economic, social and legal aspects of the property. Mortgage lenders, insurance companies, builders and professional real-estate investors would not invest a single dollar without a written report from a qualified appraiser. (Most appraisers are members of a professional society. One of the oldest is the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers, with headquarters at 155 East Superior Street, Chicago, Ill. 60611. Write for its directory if you wish to find a member in your locality.)

But if for some reason you do not wish to use an appraiser, you can "do it yourself" if you carefully follow these tips: 1. Arm yourself with information about your locality on construction materials and labor costs, building codes, property law, zoning ordinances, neighborhood characteristics, population trends, transportation facilities and proposed regulations. 2. Use one or a combination of the three basic approaches to evaluating property followed by the professionals: Cost approach, Market or Comparative Value Approach, Income Approach. None should be used by itself, but the purpose or eventual use of the property — own use, investment, resale — determines where the emphasis is placed.

The following examples are oversimplified, but they will give you a hint on how to proceed.

Cost Approach. For this you need a construction-cost handbook of recent date and a set of plans and specifications. Because of regional differences, national averages are difficult to provide, but recent figures provide some generalization. In 1977 a single-family house of 1200 sq. ft. of floor space cost about $20 a square foot to build. To the $24,000-house cost must be added $3,000 for the garage and $8,000, or one-third more, for the underlying land. Financing charges (including related legal fees) take 20 percent, or $5,000, and 30 percent, or another $8,000, goes for builder's overhead and profit. This totals $48,000, which is the average price of a house today without "extras," such things as insulation, storms and screens, even a basement are "extras."

Market Value Approach. This involves gathering data on the prices at which simtlar properties in the immediate vicinity sold within a recent period. While there are no two properties exactly alike, there should be enough similarities to make a comparison. Mortgage lenders rate comparative prices of great importance when deciding how much of a loan to grant.

Income Approach. Particularly important when evaluating commercial properties and multiple dwellings. A detailed operation expense list is a requirement and includes the cost of heat, utilities, cleaning, mortgage payments, property taxes, repairs, reserves and management. Then obtain the gross income from leases. Leases should also be checked for expiration dates and rental-escalation arrangements. Gross income minus expenses give the net return.

To calculate the percent return, one must know the amount invested rather than the price. Assume a multiple dwelling cost $100,000, but had a $76,000 mortgage. Thus, the investment is $24,000. The annual expenses are $9,000 and the rental income is $12,000. The net return of $3,000 is figured as a percentage of invested capital. That $3,000 is one-eighth of the $24,000, which translates into about a 12-percent return. Additional income may be derived through tax deductions for mortgage interest, property taxes and depreciation write-offs.

Evaluating vacant land for investment merits a discussion in itself, but for most buyers it provides about the same odds as shooting dice. FW

HOW TO SUCCESSFULLY RAISE MONEY FOR CHARITY

By Bernice E. Sheldon

For many, the solution lies in staging special events — bringing people together to raise funds through luncheon and dinner parties, fashion shows, bazaars, charity balls, auctions, fairs and festivals, theater benefits and other happenings.

Some of the projects turn out to be real money-makers, taking in hundreds — even thousands — of dollars. But many barely break even or, what's worse, wind up in the red.

Can those so-so results and failures be averted? Of course. Just about any event can end successfully, and here's how to make it happen.

Begin by deciding what to stage. The best bet is an event that matches the tastes and interests of your community, so pay attention to local preferences and select something that's compatible.

Pick a chairperson who will get the job done with minimum fuss and maximum success. Look for someone with the ability to plan and direct, a talent for handling people, initiative, good judgment, imagination, patience and tact, flexibility, a sense of humor and the capacity to cope with pressure and deal with emergencies.

Form an active, energetic committee. Bypass the "talkers" and concentrate on finding the "doers," people who can translate ideas into reality, manage details, meet deadlines and sell tickets.

Draw up a checklist. Include everything that must be done before, during and after the affair, and specify deadlines for completion. Check off each task as it is assigned and fulfilled. The checklist will provide a step-by-step working guide and help prevent oversights and errors.

Allow sufficient time for preparation. Just how much depends on the event itself. The larger and more elaborate the affair, the more time that's needed for planning and organizing and conducting effective publicity and ticket-selling campaigns. For instance, a gala charity ball with a hefty financial goal calls for eight to 10 months of preparation. Something more modest can get by with as little as three months' work.

Be realistic about the cost of tickets. Aim for a figure that will assure a favorable profit yet appeal to the public.

If there's a community calendar, consult it before settling on a date. If not, poll other local causes to see what they have planned. This will keep two or more functions from competing with each other.

Steer clear of dates that conflict with religious holidays or long holiday weekends. Plan an alternate postrain date for an outdoor affair.

Hold the event in a place that's spacious enough to accommodate the audience and the activities with ease. Be sure it meets fire, safety and health regulations. If it's an outdoor function, ask the police department to issue an appropriate permit for it.

Avoid overspending by carefully calculating expenses in advance. Keep costs down by soliciting donations of services, materials and merchandise. Canvass local business firms for underwriting support. Sometimes they will lend a hand provided there is appreciable public acknowledgment and exposure.

Talk to a reliable insurance broker who can offer sound advice about suitable coverage. Most events take place without mishap; nonetheless, accidents can happen, and it's best to be on the safe side.

Distribute who, what, when, where and why releases to local papers, contact women's page and feature editors about stories and notify papers to list the affair in their Calendar of Events section.

If the budget permits, consider using "visibles" such as posters, handbills, bumper stickers, flyers or balloons.

There also are some postevent "musts." Issue appropriate thanks to everyone who contributed to the event's success — the chairman, committee members, donors of services, materials and merchandise and the news-media people and others who helped to publicize the affair for you.

And the most important "must" of all: Make an honest evaluation of the event. It will pinpoint weak spots, weed out committee members who performed poorly and focus attention on mistakes. The information provided by a review will prove invaluable in planning and staging future functions. FW

The Amazing Diet Secret Of A Desperate Housewife

My name is Nancy Pryor. I am 35 years old. I am a housewife and mother of three children. I would like to tell you something personal about myself.

One day last September I just broke down and started to cry.

I couldn't help it. I had reached my breaking point. I felt like I was going to have a nervous breakdown.

It happened one Monday morning right after I got on the bathroom scales to weigh myself. I had been on a strict diet for nearly 2 months. I had gone off the diet over the weekend to give myself a break and just to live like a normal human being for a couple of days. Now the scales said I weighed 188 pounds. I just couldn't believe it! That meant that in one lousy weekend I had more than gained back every single pound I had lost in the last 3 weeks.

Maybe this doesn't sound like a big deal to you, but to me it felt like a tragedy.

I had been trying to lose weight for the last 5½ years. I had tried liquid protein. I had tried fasting. I had tried hypnosis. I had tried exercise. I had tried sauna belts. For a while I even used dangerous diet drugs. As far as diets go I tried almost every one I heard about. The Adkins diet. The Stillman diet. The grapefruit diet. The Women's Ski Team diet. Etc. Etc. You name it — I tried it.

The results were always the same. I would struggle and struggle to lose a few pounds and then the very first time I would give myself a small break the weight would come right back on.

It had happened many times before, but somehow this time it seemed like the last straw. I didn't know where to turn or what else to try. I was about to give up.

Don't get me wrong. I don't want this to sound like a sob story. I'm not telling you all this because I want you to feel sorry for me. There is no need for that anyway. My story has a very happy ending.

My story has a happy ending because the very next day I made a discovery that has changed my entire life. I found an amazing way to lose weight that I never dreamed existed.

I am not going to tell you where I found this secret. However, I will tell you this much: I did not get this information from a doctor. I did not get this information from a diet book. I did not find this information in a magazine. I did not find this information in a newspaper. I did not get this information from any of the so-called "diet experts."

To tell the truth, I stumbled across this information totally by accident when I was looking for something else.

But all that doesn't matter. What does matter is that at last I have found an answer.

Let me tell you why I think my diet secret is so fantastic.

MELTS FAT FAST

First of all, this diet works fast. It literally burns off fat by the hour. If you go on this diet in the morning you will be losing weight before lunch. You will lose weight faster on this diet than if you ran 7 miles every day. You will be able to measure the difference in your waistline in 24 to 36 hours. I think this is the fastest safe diet in the world. If you can find a diet that works faster I will buy it from you and gladly pay you good money for it.

NO HUNGER

I'll tell you a secret. You will never lose weight and keep it off on any diet that leaves you hungry. Hunger is an irresistible force. Sooner or later, willpower always gives in to hunger.

This diet brings hunger to a dead full stop. You will never be hungry. As a matter of fact, one of the unique features of this diet makes it metabolically impossible for you to experience hunger. To me, it's like heaven.

76% MORE ENERGY

This diet converts body fat to body fuel. Starting on the 5th day of this diet your energy will begin to increase dramatically. It will increase every day until the 9th day when it begins to level off. After that your energy level will stay about the same. This new energy level will probably be about 76% higher than your level is now.

"...You will lose weight faster on this diet than if you ran 7 miles every day. You will be able to measure the difference in your waist line in 24 to 36 hours. I think this is the fastest safe diet in the world. If you can find a diet that works faster I will buy it from you and gladly pay you good money for it..."

SIMPLE AND EASY

This diet is very simple. It is easy to follow even if you eat in restaurants all the time. You do not count calories. You do not measure portions. The only thing you keep track of is how much you lose.

HEALTHY AND SAFE

This is not just a weight loss diet. It is a health diet also. It is safe. It is probably much safer than the way you eat right now.

Don't ever take a chance with your health. It's not worth it. Besides it is not necessary. You can lose weight fast with my diet plus get healthier every day you stay on it.

NO EXERCISE

You do not have to exercise to lose weight with this diet. However, since after the first few days you will have a lot more energy you will probably become more active. But you will lose weight very rapidly whether you become more active or not.

AUTOMATIC WEIGHT LOSE

Right after you go on this diet you start to lose weight automatically. You don't have to think about it all the time. Since you are never hungry you would probably forget you were on a diet if you weren't losing weight so fast.

As you can tell by now, I have come up with something pretty good. I think my diet is the best way to lose weight I have ever heard about. You will lose weight very fast and you will never be hungry. You will not have to count calories or measure portions. You can eat out as often as you like. Your health will improve and your energy will increase. Except for when you weigh yourself you will probably forget you are on a diet.

There are four reasons this diet works so well. These four reasons make this diet different from any other. Here are those reasons.

Reason #1 This diet makes liberal use of a natural food substance that eliminates hunger. This food substance is widely used in Europe but almost unheard of in the United States. It looks and tastes exactly like table sugar. You use it the same way. You can mix it in your coffee or sprinkle it on cereals or use it in recipes as a substitute for table sugar. This substance is perfectly safe. Remember — it is a food not a drug. It is much better for you than ordinary table sugar (sucrose) because it does not provoke an insulin response. When eaten regularly throughout the day this substance very dramatically reduces hunger. It also has a soothing effect on jangled nerves.

Reason #2 This diet has a different plan of attack. This diet forces you to form a very new habit. This new habit is pleasurable and fun. This habit makes it possible to stay on any diet for life without ever feeling deprived. This new habit makes everything easy. It is so simple you will wonder why you never thought of it yourself.

"...I have lost 75 pounds. My friends say I look 15 years younger. I enjoy a peace of mind I have never before experienced. I feel good all the time. Best of all, my husband has fallen in love with me all over again."

Reason #3 This diet contains 5 delicious foods that may very well be new to you. I am going to ask you to eat at least one of these 5 foods every day. All of them are what I call "natural food tranquilizers." At exactly the same time these foods are releasing new energy into your system they also work to release all tension from your nerves and muscles and give you an emotional lift. Believe me it is very hard to diet if you are upset and in a bad mood all the time!

Reason #4 This diet contains yet another unique food substance that releases the natural fat burning power of your system. This substance increases the amount of calories your body burns each day thereby allowing you to eat more without weight gain.

A SPARKLING NEW BODY

This diet has been a Godsend to me. I have a sparkling new body. I have lost 75 pounds. I now weigh 113 and I wear a size 6 dress. (I used to wear an 18). I have more energy now than I had when I was a teenager. I am in better health than I can ever remember. My friends say I look 15 years younger. I enjoy a peace of mind I have never before experienced. I feel good all the time. Best of all, my husband has fallen in love with me all over again.

Will this amazing little diet work for you? I am sure it will. All I ask is that you be open-minded enough to give me a chance to prove it even though I am an everyday housewife and not a diet doctor or anything like that.

I have written a book that tells you about my secret diet. It is easy-to-read. It tells you exactly what to do step-by-step. You can read my book in one evening. Then the very next day you can start losing weight so fast you just won't believe it.

NO RISK

Here's how you can read my book and try my diet without any financial risk at all. Go ahead and order my book by mail. Keep it 30 days and read it and check it out. Then if you are unhappy with it, send it back and I will return your payment to you quietly and without question.

If you are extra skeptical I suggest you postdate your check or money order by 30 days. I promise and guarantee I will not deposit it for at least that amount of time. Then if you decide to return my book I will send back your uncashed check or money order with no questions asked.

To order, write your name and address and the words "DIET SECRET" on a piece of paper and send it with $10.00 to me - Nancy Pryor, Dept. FW-1, 161 Maplewood Ave., P.O. Box 177, Maplewood New Jersey 07040. I will send your book promptly by return mail. If you have any questions you can call me. My number is (201) 744-3777. Checks and money orders should be made payable to me - Nancy Pryor. (It is not a good idea to mail cash).

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY

ON THE WATCH

I watch my diet when I eat:
I watch the eggs, the fatty meat,
I watch the food I stow inside
That possibly could make me wide.

I watch the sugar, starches too,
I watch them closely, it is true.
I watch what I put on my plate,
For what I eat could spell my fate.

Don't get me wrong, though. On the quiet
I must confess that I don't diet,
Yet on my record there's no blotch:
I do just what I said — I watch.

—Richard Armour

A failing businessman was bailed out of his financial woes by his wife surprising him with $1,000. "Where on earth did you get the money?" he asked.

"Well," replied the wife with quiet satisfaction, "Since we've been married, everytime you kissed me, I put a dollar in a jar."

"Gee," said the grateful husband, "Now I wish I'd given you more business."

—Al Batt

My neighbor was enthusiastic: "I found this wonderful diet book. It worked so well and so fast, it just took my breadth away."

—Frank Tyger

"I love to see fat people laugh," a skinny friend wistfully told me. "So much of them has a good time." —Robert Orben

Checking Your Pet's Health

You and your family see your doctor for annual checkups — but what about your pet? If it's been over a year since your pet's last visit to a vet, you might consider taking him next week during National Pet Health Week.

Why does your pet need a yearly checkup? Dr. James McKinley says that during his examination, the vet can pinpoint problems which might become serious if neglected. He can assess the pet's growth and development and look for "senior citizens' diseases" in animals over 6 years of age. In addition, immunizations may be needed or a change of food advised to help control such conditions as overweight, heart trouble and liver and kidney disorders.

In between checkups, Dr. McKinley says that pet owners can be on the alert for these 5 major signs of animal-health problems: rapid weight loss, blood in the urine or bowels, a cough that persists, excessive itching, loose stools or vomiting that persists.

If the animal exhibits any of these symptoms, Dr. McKinley says the owner should contact a veterinarian.

Psychological Problems After Losing Weight

Many successful dieters are surprised to find that losing weight can result in psychological problems. But you can handle them successfully if you know what to expect says Dr. Henry A. Jordan, an associate clinical prof. of psychiatry at the Univ. of Pennsylvania.

Problems are more likely with rapid weight loss. Anytime you lose more than 35 or 40 pounds there can be psychological effects because people start treating you differently says Jordan.

Dr. Jordan, coauthor of the book Eating Is Okay, says successful dieters may experience "inadvertent sabotage" by spouses or friends: "There's been a change in the relationship, and other people become anxious because they don't know how it will affect them. So they try to get the dieter back where he or she was."

Increased attractiveness can be a problem for some, particularly women who have been overweight since adolescence. "These women may not know how to handle situations that come up because they're more attractive to the opposite sex," he says.

Dr. Jordan believes people who have lost more than 30 pounds generally require 12 to 18 months to adjust. He advises losing weight gradually. And don't wait until you've reached your goal to start experimenting with new clothes and physical activities; that way, you'll have time to "grow into" your new self.

Hockey Floors Them

What's like ice hockey minus the expensive equipment, injuries and even the ice? The answer is floor hockey, and in the 16 years since it was developed by a recreation director in Battle Creek, Mich., the sport has become the solution for many physical-education teachers' problems. Today the game is played in more than 400 cities in the U.S. and Canada, as well as in Sweden and other parts of Western Europe.

Injuries are minimized by using lightweight plastic sticks and hollowed-out pucks. There is no body-checking, and the sport, which is played by both boys and girls, emphasizes speed and agility rather than height and weight. For these reasons, floor hockey has also become popular with special-education classes.

The sport is also attractive to schools and recreation departments because the equipment is inexpensive and requires no expensive protective gear for most players. For more information write: Phil Carlson, c/o COSOM, 7317 Cahill Road, Minneapolis, Minn. 55435.

Quick Takes

Patients may need larger doses of pain killers in the evening than they do in the morning reports a new study. Volunteers in an experiment at the Chicago Medical School tolerated the pain of mild electric shocks better in the morning than later in the day. The researchers believe the difference in pain thresholds is a result of biological cycles.

Professional football is the favorite sport of America's television viewers, followed closely by college football, professional baseball, college basketball and pro basketball according to a nationwide study done by the Opinion Research Corp. of Princeton, N.J. More men (90%) than women (76%) surveyed watch TV sports, and sports-viewing tends to increase with the viewer's educational level.

It's costing a family of 4 an average of $17,106 a year to live "moderately" well says the Bureau of Labor Statistics. This "moderate" budget allows the wife to purchase 3 new dresses every 2 years and assumes that the family refrigerator and range will last almost 17 years.

Almost half of the marriages of girls who become pregnant before 18 end in divorce within 3 years says a Univ. of Penn. study. The study also reports that although most of the teenage mothers studied returned to high school after their child was born, the majority of them eventually dropped out, but 90% of their classmates graduated.

Every day, industrial wastes, fertilizers, pesticides and chemicals are finding their way into the water you drink. The EPA has determined that drinking water in 79 cities is already polluted. And it may be causing cancer!

The problem is so severe that the Federal Government is now forcing action. By 1983, your city's water supply will be filtered by charcoal. This is an EPA mandate, but don't wait!

Are We MAD To Sell GENUINE DIAMONDS

At Only $8.95 A Half Carat?

Yes, genuine. Natural uncut diamonds. Not man-made, not imitations. While they last — before South Africa explodes. Such diamonds have quadrupled in price in 15 years. And do you know what a top news magazine predicts?

NO DEALERS. NO WHOLESALERS. NO MORE THAN $1500 WORTH TO ANYONE—EVEN OIL SHEIKS.

We're out to win a lot of new customers. So please don't ask us to sell you more than 100 carats of these diamonds even if you can easily afford them.

You've just struck diamonds. Now — before Africa goes up in flames — you can own those magnificent gems that are everyone's best friend these days at only $8.95 a half carat. Yes, genuine, natural diamonds, the world's most precious jewels. Not from a laboratory but directly from those fabled South African mines, including those of the legendary DeBeers.

Certified authentic by top diamond expert

These diamonds are certified authentic by a leading international diamond expert, former curator at the Smithsonian Institution. According to estimates reported recently in a top news magazine, the world's diamond deposits will soon be exhausted. With diamonds increasing in value four times in 15 years, it seems reasonable to suppose the value of these diamonds will rise even more sharply when South Africa explodes into full-scale war, which it could do momentarily.

But regardless if war comes, this is a risk-free — in fact, brilliant — purchase. Almost as brilliant as a handful of DeBeers diamonds. For they're sold on an unheard-of 3-year money-back guarantee! How can we sell these exciting diamonds for only $8.95 a half carat? 1st, we buy directly from the source. No middlemen. 2nd, the tremendous purchasing power of our parent company let us make a super buy. 3rd, you don't pay for having your diamonds face lifted! You get our diamonds in their pure natural state, just as they came from the mines. Real conversation pieces!

A super-buy today — an heirloom tomorrow

Keep these diamonds as is: they could be among your family's most treasured heirlooms. Or ask a jeweler to set them in silver or gold, or in some jewelry you now own. (The cost of setting is quite reasonable.) Attractively gift-cased. Get several as gifts. But hurry. Get these beauties while they last! Specify number of carats — ½ to 5 — for each diamond.

INCREDIBLE 3-YEAR REPURCHASE GUARANTEE

You must be completely delighted with your Genuine Diamonds or simply return them within 3 years for a complete refund of your purchase price! (except shipping & handling).
