Lebanon Cease-Fire Still Holds, But Snipers Active

NO SANCTUARY — Shell holes mark the Red Cross flag that flies over the International Red Cross's Tabaris Headquarters in East Beirut. The cease-fire which came into effect Saturday appears to be holding. (AP Laserphoto)

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Sniper fire killed three persons trying to cross a Syrian-held bridge into Christian east Beirut today, it was reported, but the Syrian-Christian cease-fire generally appeared to be holding for a second day.

Lebanese President Elias Sarkis, meanwhile, ended three days of urgent talks in Damascus with Syria's President Hafez Assad and left for Saudi Arabia and meetings with Saudi leaders.

Sarkis, whose Damascus talks produced the cease-fire, is trying to work out a permanent solution to the conflict here between the Christians and the Syrian-dominated peacekeeping force in Beirut, which is trying to assert control over and disarm the Christian militias. A token contingent from Saudi Arabia is part of the Arab League force.

The Voice of Lebanon, Beirut's Christian radio station, said the city had its second quiet night in a row after 10 days of heavy fighting between Syrian troops and Christian militiamen. But it said that early this morning "Syrian snipers" killed three persons and wounded another in the Quarantina Bridge area while they were trying to enter East Beirut.

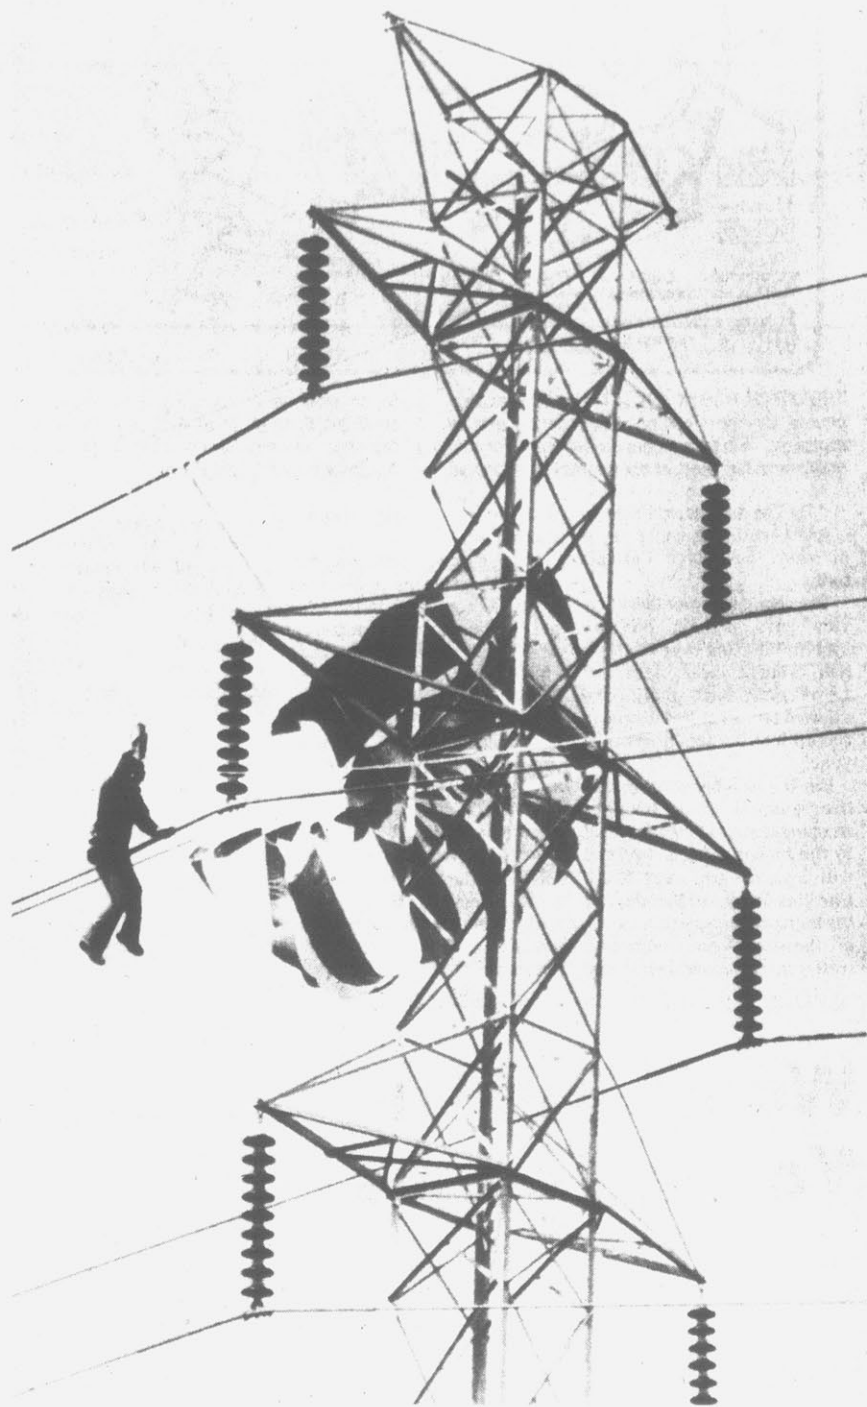

The only cease-fire violation reported Sunday was sniper fire that broke out at the bridge as hundreds of fleeing Christian families were trying to get across it. After that flurry of shots, all main crossroads between Christian and Moslem areas were closed, and the Syrians blocked supply columns bound for the Christian areas.

The Syrian-held bridge is on the supply route to east Beirut from the Christian port of Jounieh, 15 miles to the north. The bridge area was the scene of some of the heaviest of last week's fighting as the Christian militias made repeated attempts to recapture it and open the supply line.

As the Christians in East Beirut assessed the damage to their war-ravaged homes, offices and shops, leftist Lebanese Moslem groups called a general strike in Moslem west Beirut to protest a French proposal that the Syrians withdraw from Christian areas and that Christian and Moslem units of the reconstituted Lebanese army man buffer zones between the Syrians and the Christian militias.

The leftists charge that the Christians control the Lebanese army, which disintegrated during the Lebanese civil war and is now being rebuilt.

Beirut police said 1,300 Lebanese were killed and more than 2,000 wounded before the truce took hold Saturday night, about 18 hours after the U.N. Security Council appealed for an end to the bloodshed. Syria has not reported its casualties.

Wired For Death

VERY SCARY SITUATION — Seventeen-year-old Danny Matthews of Irving, Texas finds himself in serious trouble Sunday as he hangs approximately sixty feet in the air from a high power line that was carrying 138,000 volts. The incident occurred when the teenager was sailing in a parasail that was being pulled by a truck and a strong crosswind forced Matthews into the lines. Trapped on his perch for about an hour, Matthews was rescued by Dallas Fire Dept. rescue units and then taken to a nearby hospital in fair condition with burns on his hands and feet. (AP Laserphoto)

Urge Senate Tie Tax Cut To Spending Reductions

By ROBERT PARRY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A bipartisan group of 21 senators urged the Senate today to tie tax cuts in future years directly to reductions in federal spending.

allowing new reductions in 1980 through 1983 only if spending does not exceed the inflation rate plus one percent.

In addition, a tax cut would be allowed in 1982 only if the federal budget is balanced by that time.

The proposal, sponsored chiefly by Sens. Sam Nunn, DGa., Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., Henry Bellon, R-Okla., and William Roth, R-Del., would not affect the Finance Committee's proposed tax cuts for 1979.

Sponsors estimate the plan would, over the four-year period, give additional tax cuts totaling $453 to a typical fourmember family earning $20,000 a year.

While the Senate works on taxes this week, the House will consider President Carter's long-delayed energy package. Both houses hope to adjourn for the year on Saturday.

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd has said failure to pass either a tax cut bill or the energy package would prevent final adjournment this week and might force a lame-duck session after the November elections.

Byrd scheduled a cloture vote today aimed at preventing unrelated proposals from being attached to the $29.7 billion tax cut bill, which has become the biggest Senate roadblock to adjournment.

If the cloture motion fails, dozens of amendments seeking to reshape the bill would have to be considered. Some amendments represent last-ditch efforts by senators to save nontax proposals that would otherwise die when the session ends.

After the Senate passes a tax cut bill, it must still be reconciled with the House version, which calls for $16.3 billion in tax reductions. Carter has hinted that he might veto anything above $20 billion to $21 billion.

"NO-HUNGER BREAD"

I ordered some "No-Hunger Bread," which is supposed to be helpful in losing weight from American Health Foods Inc. in Canton, Ohio. I have my canceled check for $10. I've written asking for a refund, after the company sent a letter saying that it had "encountered legal difficulties with the U. S. Food and Drug Administration in marketing the product. I haven't received my money. The company's had it since January. Mrs. M. C.

Hotline sent a request for a refund for you, enclosing a photostatic copy of your canceled check. You report you got your money back.

The "difficulty" with the FDA, we learned from a copy of the letter sent customers, involved the company's claim that the bread would cause weight loss. "Under the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act, we are not allowed to make, in our labeling, accompanying brochures or any other written material, any representation or suggestion that our bread is in any way effective in the prevention, cure or mitigation of disease or will, by itself, make you lose weight or eliminate appetite," the letter said.

It the opinion of a local nutritionist that this bread would have, in no way, harmed you, but that homemade or store-purchased high fiber bread (containing bran) or other high fiber food like raw fruits and vegetables would be just as helpful and much less expensive and less difficult to obtain.

Supporters Say Diggs Got 'Bum Rap' From Jury

DETROIT (AP) — Many of his constituents, including the Baptist minister from his church, say Rep. Charles Diggs Jr. got a bum rap when a jury convicted him on 29 counts of mail fraud.

The Rev. Charles Adams of the Hartford Avenue Baptist Church, where Diggs is a trustee, said Sunday the congressman was railroaded by overzealous government prosecutors.

Diggs, the nation's senior black congressman, was convicted Saturday by a Washington jury on 29 counts of defrauding the government of $66,000 in a payroll kickback scheme.

"He will be a trustee of this church as long as he wants to be, and as long as the congregation wants him to be. And they do," said Adams.

Diggs is a politician who fights for his constituents. Adams told the congregation. "Has there ever been one of us out fighting for our rights that they haven't been out to get?" Adams asked.

The minister called the deliberations "very short" to convict a person on 29 counts. He said many jurors made up their minds about the verdict before they began deliberating.

After the verdict, Diggs said "the U.S. Attorney's Office was out to get me."

The congressman said he agreed with David Povich, his chief defense lawyer, who said he was picked out for relatively common payroll practices in Washington.

Adams, asked if he saw any similarities between Diggs and the late New York Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, said both Diggs and Powell "are black, both had senior status in the House of Representatives and both had a power base among black population." But he said there were differences in their lifestyles.

Tropical Storm

MIAMI (AP) — Tropical Storm Juliet, the 10th tropical storm of the 1978 Atlantic season, formed today in the Atlantic Ocean northeast of Puerto Rico, the National Hurricane Center said.

Forecasters said Juliet, moving toward the west-northwest at about 12 miles an hour in the open Atlantic, posed no immediate threat to the land.

They said the storm's maximum sustained winds were estimated at 50 mph and gales extended 100 miles to the north and east of its center.

At noon EDT, Juliet was centered at 20.3 north latitude and 64.0 west longitude, forecasters said.

Three Championships In A Row Next Goal For Local Rescue Unit

Greenville Rescue Squad competition teams continued their winning tradition Saturday by taking first place in heavy duty rescue and second place in first aid competition at the 22nd annual conference of North Carolina Association of Rescue Squads, held in Fayetteville.

Including the trophies won Saturday, Greenville teams have taken a dozen trophies in international competition, including three world championships (the latest on September 1, in Houston, Texas), and 28 trophies in State competition, including 15 first place awards in rescue and first aid competition.

Greenville teams began participating in first aid and rescue competitions in 1961, and took their first world championship title in 1962 — the first U.S. team ever to win the international world championship title. Their second world championship title came in competition in St. Louis last year.

"We're going to try to make it three in a row next year," Tony Brannon, Assistant Chief of Rescue, with the Greenville Fire and Rescue Division said. "Nobody has ever won the championship three times in a row," he noted.

Squad members participating in Saturday's rescue competition included: Tony Brannon, captain; Stuart Savage, co-captain; Michael Branch, Bill Beavans, Joe Burris, Wayne Ross, Robert O'Neal, Ervin Hardee, and Brent Stocks.

First aid team members included: Branch (captain), Savage (co-captain), Burris, Beavans, and Stocks.

"We never give up," Brannon said. "We've been beaten alot, but we just come back and try harder."

Brannon noted that training for competition provides a tangible goal for squad members to work toward.

and helps maintain a high level of interest within the squad.

"The training keeps the men on their toes and better trained to handle the day-to-day emergencies," the rescue officers face. Brannon noted.

Columbus Daze

By SAM HARTZ

WASHINGTON (AP) — Today is Columbus Day, thanks to Congress, but the Oct. 9 date it occurs on is the least felicitous since passage of the Monday Holiday Act.

Last year's Oct. 10 was much better. Along with other holiday switches, the historic date of Oct. 12 was changed to the second Monday in October to give workers a longer weekend.

But the 1978 calendar is unkind to Columbus. For one thing, Oct. 9 is also Leif Erikson Day. His backers say he reached North America around 1000 A.D., 492 years before Columbus. Leif got a special day while the national holiday went to Columbus.

Erikson's Norwegian countrymen don't like that, much less having to share his holiday with Columbus.

Also, 486 years ago today the Genoan had little to celebrate. On Oct. 9, 1492, the crews of the Nina, Pinta and Santa Maria were close to mutiny. An Oct. 7 "Land Ho!" had been a dud. Never had the men voyaged so long without sight of land. And despite Columbus' urging to "Sail On!" the situation looked grim.

Next day, Columbus persuaded his crew to stick it out for three more days. On Oct. 12, the adventurers landed on an island he called San Salvador.

But Oct. 9? Columbus might have preferred to forget the day rather than commemorate it.

The traditional Oct. 12 and the second Monday in October will coincide in 1992, fortuitously marking the 500th anniversary of Columbus' landing in the New World.

But not so fortuitous will be the millennium of Erikson's arrival, eight years later in 2000. It's due for celebration on Columbus Day, too.

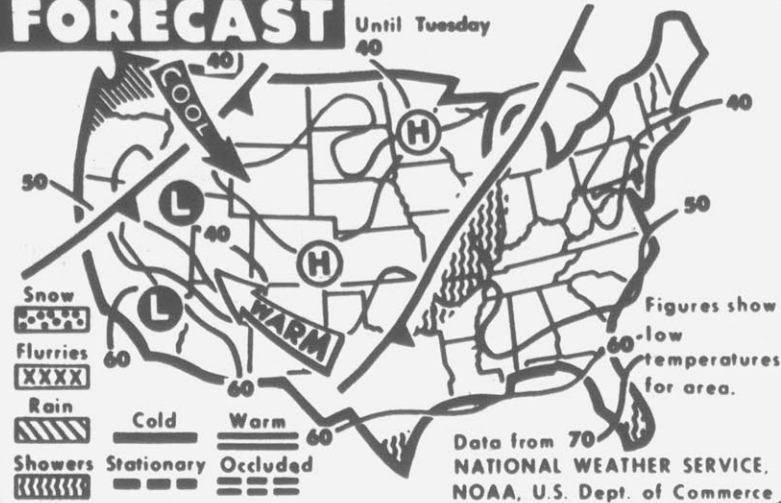

As for Columbus Day 1978, 14 states still cling to the traditional Oct. 12 despite Congress.

And it's Landing Day in Wisconsin and Discoverer's Day in Hawaii — allowing one to honor Columbus, Erikson, and other nominees for the discovery of America including the Irish, Basques and ancient Phoenicians.

FORECAST

Until Tuesday

WEATHER FORECAST—Clear skies are expected for most of the nation until Tuesday morning. Warm weather is forecast for the Southwest but most of the country is expected to be seasonably cool. Showers are due for southern Florida, from Arkansas through the Midwest and rain is expected in the Pacific Northwest. (AP Laserphoto)

By The Associated Press
Another sunny but cool day is in store for North Carolina today.

The National Weather Service says a high pressure system hovering over the state has brought clear skies and calm conditions that have allowed temperatures to drop to record lows for this time of the year.

But the weather service says the system that brought freezing temperatures and frost to the mountains this weekend will lose its grip over North Carolina today and Tuesday. As the high pressure system moves off the coast today, winds will shift to a more southerly direction, bringing warmer temperatures.

Sunday was a sunny, cool day with temperatures in the high 60s in the southeast and low 60s in the Piedmont and mountains. The temperature peaked at a chilly 39 atop Grandfather Mountain Sunday.

It was chilly all over the state this morning, with Asheville dropping to a record-breaking 33 degrees. Temperatures today are expected to rise into the middle and upper 60s east of the mountains but will remain in the 50s in the mountains. It will be fair and cool tonight, with lows ranging in the upper 30s in the northwest to the 50s along the coast.

Would Punish Young Toughs

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy says

states should get tough with violent juveniles, bringing them to trial in adult courts and sentencing them to "significant punishment."

"The idea of independent juvenile courts ... has backfired," the Massachusetts Democrat said. "There has been a notorious lack of rehabilitation. The violent juvenile is often let off with a slap on the wrist."

In a speech Sunday to a convention of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, Kennedy for the first time endorsed moves to try youths accused of violent crimes in adult courts rather than in the more protective atmosphere of juvenile courts.

"Some significant punishment should be imposed on the young offender who commits a violent crime," he said. "This should translate into jail in a special juvenile facility for the most serious violent offender."

Kennedy takes over next year as chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, which handles most federal anti-crime legislation. His hard line on juvenile crime surprised some listeners accustomed to the senator's liberal voting record.

Kennedy said the nature of the crime, rather than the defendant's age, should determine which court handles the case.

"Age cannot justify treating the 17-year-old rapist or murderer differently from his adult counterpart," Kennedy said. "The poor, the black, the elderly — those most often victimized by crime — do not make such distinctions. Nor should the courts."

Most states now provide that defendants under 18 must be tried in juvenile courts where the proceedings often are secret and the records kept sealed. But some states — including New York — have modified their system to transfer juveniles accused of violent crime into adult courts and, in some cases, to provide adult trials for anyone over 16.

Helms Asks Volunteers

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Sen. Jesse Helms' campaign manager has appealed in his latest mass mailing for volunteers to help in the fight against Democratic challenger John Ingram.

The Helms campaign, which has used large mailings throughout the United States to raise about $5 million, solicited manpower in a recent letter signed by manager Thomas F. Ellis of Raleigh.

"We desperately need your help for a few hours in each of the few remaining weeks" before the Nov. 7 election, Ellis wrote. "We do not have enough volunteers to contact the number of voters needed to re-elect Jesse."

Ellis said Ingram's defeat of Luther Hodges Jr. in the Democratic primary runoff in May "proved that (television) advertising does not win elections. Personal contact is the surest way."

He estimated that more than 25,000 people are working on behalf of Helms, a freshman Republican. Officials of the campaign have said there are about 100 full-time and 50 part-time paid workers in the campaign.

Meanwhile, GOP officials said Sen. Orrin G. Hatch, R-Utah, will campaign in eastern North Carolina next week on behalf of two Republican congressional candidates challenging incumbent Democrats.

He will campaign in Robeson County Oct. 17 for Raymond Schrupp, who is attempting to unseat Rep. Charles G. Rose III in the 7th District, and Oct. 18 for Barry Gardner, a 2nd District Republican challenging Rep. L.H. Fountain.

Still Denies Threat Was Hoax

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (AP) — Kathi Wagner is leaving her job at the motel where she claims to have uncovered a possible presidential assassination plot.

The Secret Service says Ms. Wagner was responsible for a hoax threat on President Carter's life, but Ms. Wagner is sticking by her story.

She says her interrogation by the Secret Service following the Aug. 28 incident "was uncalled for because they assumed I was lying and guilty until proven innocent."

Dennis Crandall, a Secret Service agent in Salt Lake City who took part in the investigation, said that "after what we consider a very thorough investigation, we concluded that the story was a fabrication."

No arrests or charges were made, but Crandall said, "We are keeping apprised of what she is up to." He said Ms. Wagner "can appear very charming and lucid at times."

Ms. Wagner, a 23-year-old divorced mother of two and a former mental patient, says an unidentified man in a tailored suit and flashy tie knocked her unconscious in a hotel room she had entered to clean. Ramada Inn employees said the room contained a mirror on which were the soap-scrubbed words, "The president will die Thursday."

Next to the mirror was a picture of Carter with an "X" etched over it and mattresses in the room had been burned. Ms. Wagner said the man told her, "You shouldn't have come in here," before hitting her on the head with a handgun, knocking her unconscious.

She was hospitalized briefly for shock and smoke inhalation. Carter and his family were vacationing at the time in Wyoming's Grand Teton National Park, but made a brief stop in Idaho Falls two days after the incident.

Described by authorities as "not very cooperative" during questioning, Ms. Wagner said she took a polygraph test administered by the Idaho Falls Police Department and was told she failed it.

Crandall said he could not comment on the test or even confirm it was given.

"They were really giving me a bad time," Ms. Wagner said of the Secret Service. "They stated to me that I had passed out and subconsciously done these things that the man did." She said she had experienced five blackouts during the previous year, but each lasted "just seconds" and "I wouldn't do anything during them."

She said she was told by authorities at a closed magistrate court hearing Sept. 6 that if she would voluntarily spend five days at the state mental hospital — "to get over all I'd been through" — they would drop plans for a commitment hearing.

She agreed. While at the hospital, she said a psychiatrist

"told me that I was not mentally ill."

It was her second stay at State Hospital South in Blackfoot. She said she entered the hospital last February suffering from depression brought on by her failing marriage. For the past five months she has lived with foster parents in Idaho Falls — an arrangement set up by her Mormon Church bishop in Rexburg.

Ms. Wagner, who likes to draw cartoon characters and write poetry, said today was to be her last day of work at the motel. Using state vocational rehabilitation money, she plans to enter business school for training in bookkeeping.

"The only thing about the whole thing that bothers me a lot is the fact it was brought up during my divorce hearing and I get funny looks from people who think they've heard my name but aren't sure," she said. When they find out who she is, she said people tell her, "I thought you were locked up."

Ms. Wagner, whose five-year marriage recently ended in divorce, said custody of their two children is pending in court. She wants to find a better job so she can support her children, who are with their father, she said.

Awards, Plaques Offered For Most Perfect Tobacco Leaf

A contest to find the most perfect tobacco leaf will be held in Greenville during the Southern Flue-Cured Tobacco Festival the week of Nov. 12.

Dubbed the "Commissioners' Contest for the Most Perfect Leaf," the event will include entries from North Carolina and the other flue-cured tobacco producing states.

According to Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham, North Carolina tobacco producers wishing to participate should submit a single leaf, properly identified, to the temporary offices of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture, 121 W. Jones St., Raleigh, Oct. 23-27.

Contest rules require only single leaf entries. All must come from a tobacco farm and be of a variety accessible to all farmers. No tobacco from test farms, test plots or test varieties may be entered. The most perfect leaf will be selected on length, width and appearance.

Upon a decision by a panel of judges, the top three leaves in North Carolina will be judged against the winning entries from the other participating states. The final contest will be held in Greenville, 3 p.m., Nov. 13.

Winning farmers will receive cash awards and plaques. Commissioners from the top three states will receive plaques. For more information, call Tommy Bunn, Tobacco Marketing Specialist, NCDA, Raleigh, N. C. 27611, or call 733-7136.

Find Suicide And Murder

MOUNT HOLLY, N.C. (AP) — Authorities say a Gaston County man apparently committed suicide early Sunday after fatally shooting his wife when they met by chance along a local street.

Nancy Young, 32, was driving to visit a friend when her husband, Bobby Ray Young, 33, fell in behind her on Pine Street about 2:30 a.m., Capt. Pat Starnes of the Gaston County Sheriff's Department said. He said a friend and neighbor of the couple also happened to be in the area.

Starnes said that after the Youngs stopped and quarreled, Young pulled a pistol and fatally shot his wife at the wheel of her car. She died about two and a half hours later while undergoing surgery at Gaston Memorial Hospital.

The neighbor, whose name was not revealed, tried to take Young's pistol away from him but gave up after being threatened, Starnes said. He said Young walked into his father's yard a few minutes later and fatally shot himself.

Authorities said the Youngs, who had a son and daughter, apparently had been separated for several weeks. Starnes termed the episode was an apparent murder-suicide but said a final ruling will be issued following autopsies by the State Medical Examiners Office in Chapel Hill.

Fire Prevention Week Declared

Greenville Mayor Percy Cox has proclaimed the week of Oct. 9-13 as Fire Prevention Week in the city, calling on all citizens to continue efforts to maintain safety.

Cox noted that attention should be given to the recognition and correction of fire hazards in the interest of public safety.

Participation of all citizens serves to create a sense of safety consciousness among young people, according to Cox. It is also the duty of each person to help keep the community free of dangerous and hazardous conditions, Cox noted.

Open Central Kitchen For 14 Nutrition Sites

Region Q Services, a non-profit organization, opened a new kitchen Oct. 2 to provide 525 meals at 14 nutrition sites in the Mid-East region.

The kitchen, located in Oak City, is operated by a staff of eight, including three cooks, four transporters, and a manager.

Last year the nutrition program was catered by a private firm which brought the meals from Dunn.

Arrest 12 In Boat Seizures

CHARLESTON (AP) — Authorities arrested 12 persons in Florida and Georgia over the weekend when they seized several boats and confiscated at least 17,000 pounds of marijuana.

But in South Carolina, where officials had another boat under surveillance, four people aboard a cabin cruiser heading up a Beaufort County creek, apparently became wary and jumped overboard before officials seized the boat.

Federal and state law enforcement officials said Sunday they expect to make no arrests for the next few days in connection with the seizure of the abandoned cruiser which was loaded with several tons of marijuana.

The seizures in South Carolina, Georgia and Florida were part of a tri-state effort involving about 70 law enforcement officials.

Eight Colombian and Ecuadorean nationals were arrested in Georgia and four Americans arrested in Florida, according to Frank G. Kinney, Jr., director of the U.S. Customs Patrol for South Carolina.

Officials in South Carolina had kept the cruiser, the Skylark II, under surveillance as it headed north to Beaufort County. But when they took the boat no one was on board, Kinney said.

"We were forced to play surveillance very loose because of the remote area we were in," Kinney said. "But it's just a matter of time before the four will be incarcerated."

Home port for the Skylark, which is being held at the Charleston Coast Guard Base is Bal Harbor, Fla.

Official reports show about 250 65-lb. bales of marijuana aboard the Skylark, but authorities would give no estimate on the quantity of marijuana seized, pending actual weighing of the drug at the S.C. State Ports Authority.

A True Alarm For Safety

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR READERS: It's Fire Prevention Week again, and I have had so many requests to repeat my column on fire prevention that it has become a tradition. So here it is, with up-dated figures:

Last year, 10,074 Americans perished and 33,400 civilians, plus 106,100 firemen, were seriously injured in 3,513,000 fires. In Canada, 829 deaths were caused by 69,651 fires.

A large percentage of the dead were children, elderly persons and invalids who had been left alone "for just a few minutes."

The chief causes of fires, in order of the toll taken, were:

1. Smoking
2. Electrical wiring
3. Heating and cooking equipment
4. Children playing with matches
5. Open flames and sparks
6. Flammable liquids
7. Suspected arson
8. Chimneys and flues
9. Lightning
10. Spontaneous ignition

The total fire loss last year was $6,064,000,000 in the U.S. and $503,894,438 in Canada.

Now for some tips that could save your life:

Be sure your cigarette is out. Matches, too. Never leave matches and lighters within the reach of children.

Don't run cords under rugs or over radiators where they may get damaged. Replace a cord if it is frayed.

Never leave small children or invalids alone in the house. Not even for a few minutes.

Have your wiring and electrical installations done by a professional.

Store oily rags and paints in a cool place in tightly sealed metal containers.

Never use flammable liquids for drycleaning indoors. Never smoke in bed.

Have a fire drill in your home to be sure everyone knows what to do in case of fire. Designate a specific meeting place outside so you will all know who's outside of the house.

Remember: Fire extinguishers put out 97 percent of all fires on which they were used, and most large fires start as small fires. So, invest in a compact, easy-to-use fire extinguisher. Keep it handy in your kitchen, or be prudent and buy one for your cottage, car, boat and the back bedroom.

Some excellent smoke and fire-detection systems are available to homeowners. Shop around, and buy the one that suits your needs.

NOW, in case of fire:

If you suspect fire, alert the rest of the household. But first feel the top of the door. If it's hot, don't open it. Escape through the window.

If you can't open the window, break it with a chair. Cover the rough edges with a blanket, sit on the window ledge with one leg hanging outside and one inside, and wait for help.

The phone number of your fire department should be taped on every telephone. If it isn't, don't fumble around trying to find it. Get out and call from a neighbor's house.

If you live in an apartment building, use the stairway. Don't take a chance on the elevator. If it fails, you're trapped.

Once out, stay out. No treasure is worth risking your life. It took less than three minutes to read this column. Was it worth it? I hope so.

Many Voices Were Silenced

The death of Edgar Bergen silenced not one, but many voices, in the entertainment world. Bergen, one of the great performers of radio days, was also the voice of Charlie McCarthy, Mortimer Snerd and other delightful characters who fascinated Americans for decades. Charlie McCarthy was a personality in his own right in the minds of his millions of fans. His sharp wit, emanating from Bergen's mind, was, and will continue to be, classic entertainment.

Ironically Bergen had announced the retirement of Charlie, Mortimer and his other characters only a short time ago. Now with Bergen's death they are all gone, but we are left with thousands of pleasant memories.

Fascinating Yet So Potentially Tragic

There is nothing so interesting — and at the same time so potentially tragic — as the birth of Siamese twins. In Raleigh last week Siamese twin girls were delivered. They are undergoing study at Duke Medical Center where the possibility of separating them surgically is under consideration. It recalled the Bunker brothers who spent their lives joined together and traveled with a show for years. They then settled in Mount Airy, married and led as normal lives as possible until their deaths. Modern surgical methods may allow the Raleigh Siamese twins to be separated, but the delicate surgery won't be attempted without careful study.

Aware Of Wildlife Issue

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — The arguments for and against increased hunting and fishing license fees in North Carolina have Gov. Jim Hunt carefully picking his way, like the rural resident he is, straddling through a barbed wire fence.

On the one hand, he is saying, the state's wildlife program is great and needs to grow greater. On the other, money is tight. The commission has serious financial problems, the governor conceded in a talk with members of the Wildlife Federation recently. "I know that salary increases for state employees have cut into the commission's financial resources in recent years to the tune of half a million a year."

"I know that the increase in the number of free hunting and fishing license — for older people, disabled people, and other deserving groups — has also reduced wildlife revenue," Hunt said. But he told the wildlife partisans the same thing he is telling cabinet secretaries and others in budget conferences:

Money. "We must be sensitive to our citizens' concerns about inflation, taxes and waste ... our first order of business, before we start asking for more money for any program, must be to make sure that we are operating as efficiently as possible."

"I hope we will have your support and your advice in doing that," the governor said. The Wildlife Commission has decided to go to the 1979 General Assembly with a proposed license fee increase, and a change which would require a license for fishing with natural bait in your home county; which currently doesn't require a license.

Before seeking the 40 percent fee hike, the commission made a bid for General Fund money in the new budget — that is, some regular tax money rather than being restricted only to license fee income.

"I do not favor reaching into the state's General Fund to increase the Wildlife Commission appropriations. I stand by that position tonight," the governor told the federation members. As for the license increase: "This administration has an open mind on how best to deal with the wildlife program's financial problems. At the same time, we have to look with caution upon any proposal to increase hunting and fishing license fees in this period of high inflation, which plays the devil with family budgets, most of all, low-income family budgets."

BILL NOBLITT

The governor's office has been flooded with citizen viewpoints in recent weeks generated largely by comments from one of his top aides critical of "burgeoning bureaucracy" in the Wildlife Services.

Referring to those comments which appeared in this column, Gov. Hunt said, "As for things I said and things reported of me that I did not say about our wildlife program, I want to assure you tonight that I fully support a better program."

When? "And when the time comes, I will support an expansion of that program within the limits of our financial ability and within the limits of sound state fiscal policy." But the critical comments are "somebody else's words, not mine, and whoever uttered them was not speaking for me," Hunt said. "Nor does anyone speak for me who would suggest that the wildlife Commission's law enforcement officers do not need modern equipment ... any suggestion that this administration wants to take away the game warden's vehicle, his uniform, his weapon or any other essential equipment is just plain absurd."

"Such a suggestion has been made by one unnamed official. And I ... say that it should be no cause at all for any morale problems within the ranks of our game law enforcers or for concern on the part of sportsmen," Hunt said.

Pledging to support any "reasonable and practical" proposals for wildlife program growth, the governor left unsettled the question of how to pay for such. The Wildlife Federation is a group of sportsmen closely identified with the Wildlife Commission itself which operates the program outside any other state agency supervision; the last major agency to remain autonomous.

Casey Struck Out Again

NEWS ITEM — Judge rules that women reporters must be permitted in baseball locker rooms.

It seemed extremely rocky for the Mudville Nine that day: They blew the game in Springfield on a stupid double play. So when a girl reporter walked in their locker room They decided to play ball with her to take away the gloom.

Cooney made the first pass, and he fell upon his face: Burrows tried to sacrifice, but couldn't get to base. Flynn was left in right field, and never got her name: It looked as though poor Mudville would lose another game.

Then from the locker players went up a joyous yell: It rumbled in the showers it rattled in the dell. It struck upon the saunas, and rebounded on the flat: For Casey, Mighty Casey, was advancing to the bat.

There was ease in Casey's manner, a smile on Casey's face. As he whispered to the lady, "Would you like to see my place?" "Pas ce soir," the lady said, "and please take off your hat." "That's no way to talk," Flynn said, "when Casey's up to bat."

She frowned in great displeasure, a hand upon her hip.

She stuck a mike in Casey's face and almost cut his lip. "Strike One," the shortstop called out, as he doubled up and roared. "Casey's swinging wildly and he hasn't even scored."

Casey dug his feet in as he made another pitch: "Let's have a drink at your place and take away this itch."

ART BUCHWALD

"I have a date," the lady said, "so knock off all the chatter: Tell me why you blew the game as Mudville's greatest batter."

"Strike Two," the catcher shouted as he rolled upon the floor. Casey blushed with anger for he could not take much more. "I have a brand-new Caddy" (Continued on page 5)

Other Editors Say The Scuppernong

(The Raleigh Times)
To most of us a bait of scuppernong grapes is a must every autumn. The harvest begins in September and lasts with luck till frost — now that growers with pick-your-own vineyards have stretched the season with new late varieties. There is always discussion about whether the black Bullaces, or Bullis, which is the wild "fox grape", is a scuppernong. It has become the granddaddy of a whole new group of winy scuppernong type grapes with the same tough skin and delicate aroma. These belong to the same family as the scuppernongs — the Muscadines.

There is only one true "scuppernong" and it comes from the mother vineyard of those blond grapes found wild in northeastern North Carolina where the Scuppernong River runs. And this same variety is planted right along with the other new kinds — it thrives on company since it is not self-pollinating. Sometimes it is smart to plant a new variety like Carlos, a bronze to copper grape, to beef up the tired generation old scuppernong that is sagging on the arbor. Carlos, named for Dr. Carlos Williams of NCSU, has a bonus characteristic — it picks with a dry stem, and does not tear as it comes off the vine. This means it will keep without fermenting much longer and can be shipped.

And scuppernongs, muscadines, fox grapes, call them what you wish, are Southern bounty alone. They cannot live where winters have customary zero temperatures. And don't fuss because you have to spit out the tough hulls — if it weren't for these the bees and birds would get them long before you did. Another bonus is that the scuppernong doesn't need pampering. It grows regardless. Some say burying old shoes around the vine helps. At least it won't hurt.

NEW YORK (AP) — Everyone dwells upon the financial consequences of inflation but rarely do we think of it in terms of morality. But inflation involves cheating and deception. It inverts values. It rewards the profligate and penalizes the thrifty. It diverts capital from production to quick-buck schemes. Some say it encourages gambling. Those who spend a lifetime paying insurance premiums or building bank accounts, denying themselves in order to finance their retirement, are embittered when they see the results. After all the bright promises. Those who live for the present and borrow from the future to finance it are rewarded for their foresight and permitted to pay back in cheap money. Children quickly learn the lesson: Don't be a sucker. It undermines various productive pursuits. Corporations that can create jobs only by investing capital in new or improved facilities decline to do so because inflation makes the future too risky. New businesses, which traditionally account for most of the new jobs, can't get started because they can't afford the high interest rates, which almost always accompany persistent inflation. Many companies sometimes react to rising prices by cutting quality and quantity. Inferior ingredients and smaller

Strength For Today

MARVELS OF CREATION
One's first introduction to a microscope is a revealing experience. The instrument introduces us to a world we could not have imagined, if we did not see it. As we examine nature in its different phases, as revealed by the instrument, we are amazed by the order, precision and beauty of design, whether the object examined is a planet or a particle invisible to the naked eye. All life appears to be part of a unit. The universe was not made in portions. The mathematical formula of probability renders absurd the contention that the universe took on its present form by chance. There is too much design in it for anyone to believe a proposition of this kind. The Biblical doctrine of creation still maintains its place of authority in the thinking of most men, including scientists. "In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth."

WASHINGTON TODAY

Price In Pleasing Voters

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — This time, President Carter decided to play hard ball with Congress. He won, but there may be a price for his successful veto of a public works bill prized by Congress.

Still, the president is likely to score some points with the voters. There are a lot more people worried about the cost of living and government spending than about dams and water diversion projects.

That is the way Carter cast the issue. "I urge you to help me control inflation and to set an example of leadership for the nation by supporting my veto," he said. The House did, by a narrow margin that widened to 53 votes as congressmen saw the way the count was going and, in many cases, switched sides during the roll call.

And if the public works controversy costs Carter some House and Senate allies on other administration legislation in the closing days of the congressional session, the White House knew and accepted the risk.

For the second time, Carter challenged one of the prerogatives congressmen treasure: control of federal water projects back home. First time out, he played it the congressional way and compromised in his opposition to an assortment of projects the administration didn't want financed. He spared some, Congress dropped some, and it never came to a showdown. Carter has said since that he should have forced the issue with a veto then. This time he did, on a $10.2 billion bill he called inflationary, wasteful and absolutely unacceptable.

In doing so, he is followed a strategy he had held largely in reserve — appealing past Congress to the people. That's why he talked about the veto, to the Cabinet

NOW To Press Boycott On ERA Issue

By LEE BYRD
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Organization for Women is vowing to press its economic boycott of states that have not embraced the Equal Rights Amendment, despite legal challenges and the new time won in which to obtain their ratification.

Though clearly in a festive mood over the Senate vote extending until June 30, 1982, the deadline for ERA's acceptance by at least 38 states, some 2,000 delegates at NOW's annual conference renewed their declaration of a "state of emergency" on the issue.

The action means that NOW's limited boycott of the 15 states yet to ratify will continue, said President Eleanor Smeal. Scores of organizations, including the Democratic National Committee, dozens of labor unions and even some local governments, have observed the NOW boycott by refusing to attend or hold conventions in the target states.

Two states, Missouri and Nevada, are suing NOW over the boycott, with the Missouri case set for trial in U.S. District Court at Kansas City on Oct. 30.

Ms. Smeal acknowledged that the suits threaten the group's financial resources, "but we're not about to quit."

She said the 15 states have lost millions of dollars in convention and travel business so far, because the boycott "has the support and prayers of the vast majority of Americans who want to see equal rights for women written into the Constitution."

The other boycotted states are Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, Illinois, Oklahoma, Utah and Arizona. Four of the 35 states that have ratified the ERA have attempted to reverse their decision — Kentucky, Tennessee, Idaho and Nebraska — but the legality of such actions remains in question and those states are not on the boycott list.

The Justice Department has said it is up to Congress to decide if such decisions are legal. Kentucky's action was vetoed by its acting governor.

Opponents of ERA, which would outlaw discrimination on the basis of sex, vow an equally determined effort to keep the amendment out of the Constitution.

Phyllis Schlafly, head of Stop ERA, predicts the 15 states will continue to withhold approval and that others will rescind their ratifications. She also says she expects several states to challenge the ratification deadline extension in federal courts.

NOW's state of emergency declaration says the ERA "continues to be the primary focus of our activity and our resources," and that the ratification drive remain "a national campaign, active in all states" rather than just those that have not yet approved.

The conference did address several other policy questions on Sunday, with more scheduled for consideration today after an appearance by Coretta Scott King.

It approved a resolution calling for stringent new laws to bar the sterilization of women without their consent and first informing them of alternatives. It asked also for government research on "alternative methods of birth control, with emphasis on male contraception."

The conference approved a bill of rights for homemakers, which calls for marriage to be legally recognized as "a truly equal partnership" giving both husband and wife the same rights over property and money. The economic value of homemaking has long been overlooked by the courts in property and divorce disputes, NOW said, and should be given the same weight as a spouse's income contributions in any future settlements.

Historic Newspapers In Unique Display At ECU

ECU News Bureau
Copies of historic English and American newspapers are on display this week in East Carolina University's Joyner Library.

The exhibition, including items from the collection of Ira L. Baker, professor of journalism at ECU, is arranged to coincide with National Newspaper Week, Oct. 9-13.

The display features facsimiles of the nation's first attempted newspaper "Public Occurrences, Both Foreign and Domestic," a paper that lasted only one day in 1690 because it was not censored, and the first successful paper, "The Boston News Letter," published in 1704 by Boston postmaster James Campbell.

Other newspapers on exhibit include Joseph Pulitzer's "New York World," James Gordon Bennett's "Herald" and Horace Greeley's "Tribune."

Among the English papers in the display are "The London Gazette," London's first paper which continues to this day, and the Golden Coronation issue of "The London Daily Mail" which chronicled the ascension of Queen Elizabeth II to the throne.

The public is invited to view the collection, which is open throughout the days and several hours each evening in the library's main lobby.

sitting in the parking lot." The news men shrugged her shoulders, "I guess that's all you've got."

"Fraud!" cried Casey's teammates and the echo answered, "Fraud." But a scornful look from Casey and the locker room was awed. They saw his face grow stern and cold, they saw his muscles strain. And they knew that Mighty Casey would not foul out again.

"Look, honey," he said plaintively, "I'll talk about my pain. Let's do it over pizzas and a bottle of champagne." "I haven't time to mess around," the lovely girl cried out. "I've got to meet a deadline; that's what news is all about."

The sneer was gone from Casey's lips, his teeth were clenched in fear. He put his arm around the girl—she socked him in the ear. She took her mike and hit his hand, and kicked him in the shin. "Now tell me, when you get your breath, just why you didn't win!"

Oh, somewhere in this favored land, the moon is shining bright. And girls are doing disco in pants that are too tight. And somewhere men are laughing and drinking Guinness stout. But there's no joy in Mudville—Mighty Casey just struck out.

Congress and I couldn't set a good example for the rest of the nation."

There is a broader issue than the public works bill behind the dispute, and that is Carter's determination to change the way such projects are initiated and paid for. He has said the whole system should be taken out of politics. He also maintains that the full cost of a new project should be reflected in the bill that launches it, instead of being spread out in successive bills over the years.

That would require a basic change in the habits of a Congress. They won't be yielded easily, if at all.

Diplomas Go To Two Inmates

Hyman Chapman and Kenneth Turner, two inmates from the Vocational Rehabilitation Facility on Belvoir Highway, have passed the High School Equivalency Program (GED) after nearly two months of studying and testing.

Team teaching and guidance efforts of the Vocational Rehabilitation Center and Pitt Technical Institute, as well as effort and determination from the two inmates, enabled the two to pass the tests.

Chapman, a native of Greenville, hopes to enroll in the Human Service Technology Program at Pitt Technical Institute.

Turner, an Elizabeth City native, hopes to attend the College of the Albemarle in the Machinist trade area.

Raleigh is the capital of North Carolina. Charlotte is the largest city in North Carolina.

TROUBLE AT THE MARK—Sweden's Ulf Blanche (58070) is almost blown flat at the weather mark as other boats attempted to steer clear of collision in opening race of the Star boat World's competition Sunday on San Francisco Bay. Blanche righted and

Rival Raps Pot Arrests

NEWTON, N.C. (AP) — A drug crackdown that resulted in the arrest of 36 people on felony charges Sunday has sparked a political controversy in the Catawba County sheriff's race.

"It was a grandstand play," said Dean Sigmon, a Republican from Conover who is trying to unseat longtime Sheriff T. Dale Johnson, a Democrat, in the Nov. 7 election.

"I've researched this thing—prior to every election Sheriff Johnson stages a big drug bust or raids liquor operations and cockfights... It's for votes. He's a one-month-before-the-election sheriff."

Besides the 35 people arrested early Sunday, 25 other suspects were being sought by about 90 officers who continued to comb the county.

Authorities said about $20,000 worth of drugs were confiscated in the sweep. All the suspects were freed on bonds ranging from $500 to $15,000.

Sigmon ran political advertisements in the Newton and Hickory newspapers Friday and Saturday predicting the sheriff would stage a drug raid "just before the election." He said Sunday that he had no knowledge of Johnson's plans for the weekend crackdown.

Johnson, 54, who has been sheriff for almost 20 years, denied during a news conference Sunday that the action was politically motivated and accused Sigmon of acting irresponsibly.

"I'll never play politics with drug pushers," the sheriff said. "The ads were irresponsible to say the least. They appeared within hours of the roundup. My opponent can attack me, but when he endangers the lives of my men, I can't remain silent."

Sigmon replied that he didn't believe he endangered the life of anyone and added, "If the sheriff felt his deputies' lives were in jeopardy, why did he make the raid at all?"

Deputies said the drug operation had been planned since March.

Fear Over 1,000 Died In Floods

CALCUTTA, India (AP) — The official death toll in the new monsoon floods in West Bengal state is 623, but it is believed more than 1,000 have died, officials say.

Low-lying parts of Calcutta were flooded again Sunday by driving rains. Authorities say more than 2,100 persons have died since the monsoon rains began in June.

Poll Shows N.C. Likes Carter Over Kennedy

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolinians prefer President Carter over Sen. Edward M. Kennedy for the Democratic presidential nomination and Gerald Ford over Ronald Reagan on the Republican side, according to a poll taken for a Raleigh newspaper.

The poll, taken last week for the News and Observer, asked how those questioned would vote "If the 1980 Democratic presidential primary were held today, and the candidates were Jerry Brown, Jimmy Carter and Edwards-Kennedy..."

Carter was favored by 47.1 percent in the Democratic primary survey while Kennedy was the choice of 24.3 percent and Brown was favored by 7.3 percent. Of the remainder, 3.7 percent wouldn't name their choice, 3.2 percent wouldn't vote, and 14.4 percent weren't sure.

The Republican candidates listed were Ford, Sen. Howard Baker, Rep. Phil Crane, Reagan, John Connally and George Bush.

Ford was the choice of 30.6 percent, Reagan of 23.3 percent, Baker of 10.8 percent, Connally of 6 percent, Crane of 3.4 percent and Bush of 0.5 percent. A significant number, 19.7 percent, were unsure, 2.6 percent wouldn't vote and 3.1 percent wouldn't reveal a choice.

The poll was conducted for the News and Observer by North Carolina Opinion Research Inc., a professional polling firm headed by Walter DeVries.

The sample consisted of 600 registered voters across the state. They were interviewed by telephone last Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Reagan defeated Ford in North Carolina's 1976 GOP presidential primary by a margin of 53 percent to 47 percent. They were the only two candidates on the ballot.

Carter beat Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace in the Democratic primary two years ago by a margin of 56 percent to 36 percent and later picked up 56 percent of the vote to 44 percent for Ford in the presidential election.

Most of those favoring Carter cited factors other than the Camp David peace talks, with one-third saying they felt he was doing the best job he could under the circumstances and 15.8 percent saying he was doing a "good" or "terrific" job.

The most frequently mentioned reasons for disapproval of the president were that he had failed to keep his campaign promises (18.2 percent), he had not accomplished anything (16.5 percent) and that he was not qualified or experienced. He was not a leader, he was doing a poor job, inflation is too high, government spending is wasteful and they opposed the Panama Canal treaties.

Geothermal Hunt Begins

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The U.S. Department of Energy has announced plans to begin exploratory drilling this week to help locate geo-thermal resources in North Carolina's coastal plain.

Officials said Sunday that drilling of the first of four wells planned in North Carolina will begin near Englehard in Hyde County. The work is part of an Energy Department program that will involve 50 sites in an area from New Jersey to Florida.

Authorities are hoping to find hot water or steam trapped within rock formations at depths of a mile or more. They believe the heat could be drawn to the surface from the wells and used to heat buildings and provide energy for industry. A spokesman said other drilling sites in North Carolina are near Stumpy Point in Elizabeth City and the Shawboro-Barco area of Currituck County.

Wells will be drilled to depths of 1,000 feet, and information obtained from the them will be used to select the most promising site for a 7,000-foot well that officials believe will penetrate a geo-thermal reservoir.

Army Investigator Looks Into ROTC Student's Fatal Fall

WESTMINSTER (AP) — An Army investigator is due to report Oct. 16 on the death of Patti Ann Stoner, the 19-year-old Western Maryland college student killed last week during an ROTC training exercise.

Miss Stoner was killed during an exercise known as a "slide for life," in which she was attempting to pull herself across a nylon rope stretched about 40 feet above West Virginia's Cacapon River.

She plummeted onto the rocks in the river below, and 45 minutes later doctors at a hospital in Bloomery, W.Va., said she was dead.

The technique, which is used by combat troops to cross rough terrain or water at high speed, is considered "high risk training" according to Col. George Peters, the ROTC commander at Fort Bragg, N.C., who is in charge of programs in Maryland and three other states.

Army officers at the school have declined to discuss the incident while the investigation is in progress, but cadets who were there recalled what they saw.

Patti Stoner was one of the last two cadets to volunteer for the optional exercise that day, said Roger Bair, the senior cadet of the 27 on the trip.

John Blum, a sophomore cadet, said that both he and Maj. John Shoop suggested that she use a different, less risky method to cross the river.

"Patti said, 'No—I can do it. I know I can do it,'" remembered Blum.

Blum noted that he had crossed the river on the same equipment on the same ropes four times that day, and that the equipment Ms. Stoner used was checked out by Maj. Thomas W. Martell before she began.

Blum said that Martell was coaching her to let herself over the edge of the cliff slowly and carefully, but that just as her feet left solid ground, "her hands came off the rope. They both came off the slide, in a let-go fashion."

ROTC programs at most local schools do not offer the slide-for-life training, and only Western Maryland uses no safety line system.

At Johns Hopkins University, where the ROTC's advanced Ranger program is only three semesters old, Capt. Donald Miller said the slide is not used, but that he would insist on safety lines if the training were to be instituted.

Capt. Jesse Barron of Baltimore's Loyola College said his cadets wear safety belts during the exercise to catch them if they lose their grip.

According to Col. Peters, none of the 14,000 cadets trained in summer camps at Ft. Bragg since 1973 have ever been injured on the slide. He noted that while the exercise is voluntary, only about 5 percent of the ROTC students refuse to try it.

Miss Stoner's death was the third since 1973 in Army ROTC programs at 275 colleges and universities.

Teacher Strike Enters 33rd Day In Cleveland

By The Associated Press
 Teachers in four school districts with some 78,000 pupils are returning to work, but Cleveland's 100,000-student system remained shut as a strike entered its 33rd day.

A walkout by teachers in another large system loomed as the 5,500 members of the Memphis (Tenn.) Education Association were expected to take a strike authorization vote today.

Following resolution of contract disputes, teachers were scheduled to return to work today in Tucson, Ariz.; Burnsville, Minn.; Whitehall, Ohio; and in the David Douglas school district of Portland, Ore.

Classes were to resume today at the 8,000-student University of Bridgeport, in Connecticut, where 270 full-time faculty members went on strike Sept. 22. The teachers agreed over the weekend to accept non-binding arbitration of unresolved issues.

Strikes continued today in several small school districts in Ohio and New Jersey, including the 22,400-pupil Camden system.

In Cleveland, officials of six striking unions representing 10,000 teachers and other employees pledged to try to reach a negotiated settlement.

A spokesman for the School Employees' Unity Committee said negotiations Sunday failed to produce an agreement and that Common Pleas Judge Harry A. Hanna directed that the talks resume today.

The strike, which began Sept. 7, had prevented classes from being held this fall. The unions, whose members have not had any raises for two years, have asked for 20 percent pay increases. Teachers average $14,873 a year.

In Memphis, a union official said his "people are ready to strike" the 113,000-pupil system.

The union's executive committee voted unanimously Sunday to accept its negotiators' recommendation that the school board's latest contract offer be rejected.

Memphis school Superintendent John Freeman said he expects a strike and added that he hopes to keep schools open by using non-striking teachers, administrators and volunteers. About 1,000 teachers are not represented by MEA.

The key issues are salary, teacher evaluation, assignments and teacher influence on school policy.

The MEA is asking for 8.1 percent increases, while the school board has offered 7 percent, including experience increments. Starting salary for a teacher with a bachelor's degree is $1,028 a month.

Sold For $400, Plans A Reunion

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Twenty-six years after her destitute parents sold her for $400, Christina Lawrence, a California divorcee and mother of three, has found her real family and is making plans for a reunion.

"One minute I have nobody else (but my daughters) on the face of this earth, and now all of a sudden, tons of relatives," said Mrs. Lawrence, who said she is saving money for a reunion with a family that includes her natural father, two brothers, six sisters, five uncles, 15 nieces and 23 cousins. Her natural mother died this year.

Mrs. Lawrence, of Escondido, Calif., recently asked the Philadelphia Bulletin to help her find relatives she believed lived in the Philadelphia area.

The newspaper located one of her sisters, Dorothy Miller, 29.

Born in Philadelphia to Thomas and Elva Jean Burns on Aug. 17, 1952, Mrs. Lawrence was sold when she was only 1-day-old to Marcellus and Vivian Haynes of suburban Linwood, according to court testimony. Haynes worked with Mrs. Lawrence's uncle in a factory.

Christina's natural parents attempted to regain custody of her and the case was tied up in court for 14 months before a judge awarded the child to the Haynes.

Two years later, the Haynes separated and Mrs. Haynes took Christina with her to California. Before she died nine years ago, however, Mrs. Haynes showed her adopted daughter newspaper clippings about the custody case.

Mrs. Miller, who was 4 years old when Christina was sold, said she "faintly" remembered going to the Haynes home with her grandmother. "I remember her crib and her room," she said.

"We've been trying so hard to find her," said Mrs. Miller, who lives in Philadelphia.

Attending the event were 22 speech and language clinicians from Nash County and the surrounding area. The workshop was sponsored by the Eastern Area Health Education Center under the direction of EAHCE representative Wyley Ballance.

Poultry

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA) — The North Carolina f.o.b. dock broiler market was steady, supplies adequate, demand good, weights desirable. The dock weighted average price for this week is 40.25 for small purchases of plant grade broilers picked up at processing plants. Estimated average slaughter for today, 1,230,000.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market extended last week's rally today, posting a moderate gain in slow trading.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up 14.20 last week, rose another 4.42 to 884.44 by noon today.

Gainers outpaced losers by more than a 3-2 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

A quiet session was expected with many investors, including New York banks and a number of other investing institutions, closed for Columbus Day.

Analysts found no special developments in the economic news to stimulate buying.

What did seem to be helping the market was the relatively strong showing of stock prices last week, in the face of such adverse news as the government's report Thursday that wholesale prices of finished goods climbed at a 10.8 percent annual rate in September.

Litton Industries led the active list, up 1 at 28 1/4. The company said it had reached agreement in principle to provide a $1.5 billion nationwide "command control and communications" system for Saudi Arabia.

The NYSE's composite index gained 24 to 58.58. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index climbed 58 to 170.81.

Volume on the Big Board totaled just 7.76 million shares at noon, down from 11.42 million at the same point Friday.

Fourteen Deaths On N.C. Roads

By The Associated Press

Traffic accidents around North Carolina during the weekend killed at least 14 people, the Highway Patrol reports.

The deaths pushed the state's highway fatality toll to 1,056 for the year, compared to 1,103 during the same period last year.

A 24-year-old Rocky Mount woman, Margaret Howell, was killed Sunday when she was thrown from a car that overturned on a rural road in Nash County.

Lacy Stevens McEachem, 20, of Fort Bragg was killed Saturday morning when the car in which he was riding ran off a road near Fayetteville.

Terri L. Heath, 71, of Warne, died in a four-car accident Friday night in Murphy. The patrol said Mrs. Heath's car was involved in a head-on collision.

A Cincinnati, Ohio, man was fatally injured on Interstate 85 two miles south of Charlotte Sunday morning. Investigators said Norman Glenn Burris, 36, was killed when his car slid into a car parked on the side of the road. Burris was thrown from his car by the impact and another vehicle ran over him, the patrol said.

Kelly Gerelynn Maher of New City, N.Y., was killed Sunday morning on I-95 in Johnston County when the car in which she was a passenger struck a bridge.

A Washington woman was killed in a one-vehicle accident in Beaufort County Friday night. The patrol said Pearl Powell Crisp, 49, died when her car ran off the road and overturned.

A train-car collision resulted in the death of 69-year-old Hugh Edward Overton of Raeford Friday night. Overton was killed when his car failed to stop at a railroad crossing and was struck by a train outside Fayetteville, the patrol said.

Four members of a Jacksonville family were killed Saturday when their car ran off Interstate 40 and hit a bridge abutment off Glen Alpine in Burke County. They were identified as Ann Valero, 23, David Valero, 22, David Valero Jr., 5, and Shannon Valero, 3.

Michael Stanton, 18, of Pittsboro, was killed Saturday when the car he was driving ran off a rural road 10 1/2 miles south of Pittsboro in Chatham County.

Linwood Gupton, 41, of Louisburg was killed Saturday when he was struck by a hit-and-run driver while he was walking on a rural paved road two miles north of Bunn in Franklin County.

Earl Willis, 19, of Frisco on the Outer Banks was killed Saturday when the car he was driving crossed the center line on North Carolina 12 30 miles south of Nags Head and hit another vehicle head-on.

Test Tube Baby Is Given Name

CALCUTTA, India (AP) —

The world's second known testtube baby has been named Durga, after the Hindu goddess who is perpetually at war with evil, her family announced today.

"Now I am a happy and proud father," said Pravat Kumar Agarwal, 36, the father of the baby girl born Oct. 3. Agarwal, a businessman, and his 31-year-old wife, Bela, had been trying to have a child since 1963, he said.

The 6-day-old infant was named by her paternal grandfather, who said the family had been anxious for Kumar's wife to have a child because he is the eldest son.

The grandfather said the baby and her mother were expected to go home from the hospital early this week.

The chief of West Bengal's state health service praised the work of the three local doctors responsible for the laboratory conception of the baby and the mother's pregnancy and delivery.

"I feel that they have made a breakthrough and applied a novel method in fertilizing ova outside the body, successfully transferring the embryo and delivering a normal baby," said Dr. Mani Chettri.

"I have advised them to submit a detailed scientific account to a proper forum. If what they have achieved stands proper scientific scrutiny, their work will be considered a positive contribution to science, considering particularly the inadequate research facilities available in this country and the odds they had to overcome."

The three doctors, Saroj Kanti Bhattacharya, Subhash Mukherjee and Sunit Mukherjee, said they would present a paper on their technique at a meeting of the Indian Science Conference next January. The two Mukherjees are not related.

The team said because they lacked advanced equipment, they were forced to devise a technique different from the one which resulted in the birth in Britain July 25 of Louise Brown, believed to be the world's first baby conceived outside the human body.

Mrs. Agarwal, like Mrs. Brown, had blocked Fallopian tubes which prevented normal conception, and the condition could not be corrected.

Filston said one of the twins is also back on heart medication.

Doctors had been optimistic that the twins were strong enough to be weaned from their respirator support systems and heart medication. But Filston said the babies responded poorly to attempts to get them to breathe on their own Sunday night.

Filston said the next step is to get the twins stabilized again.

The Siamese twins were born to a David and Geraldine Bain of Fuquay-Varina Tuesday in Wake Medical Center. The babies were transferred to Duke Medical Center Tuesday night.

Allison Takes National 500 Easily

John Utaman (car 00) spins below Glen Jarrett (car 16) coming out of Charlotte's second turn

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — After an afternoon of frequent bumper-to-bumper racing at more than 140 mph, Bobby Allison pushed his Ford to a comfortable 30-second cushion and won his fourth Grand National stock car race of the season Sunday at the National 500.

Allison, one of nine drivers who shared the lead during the 500-miler at the Charlotte Motor Speedway, outlasted David Pearson and survived a strong performance by Richard Petty to take the winner's share of the $262,775 in prizes.

"I felt pretty good late in the race and the car was still going right where I wanted it to go," said the 40-year-old driver from Hueytown, Ala.

"I brushed the wall with about 20 laps to go — I got too high in turns one and two — and that kinda worried me. I thought I might have scraped a tire," said Allison, who led the final 61 of the 334 laps on the 1.5-mile banked speedway.

Allison went into the lead for good by passing Pearson, whose Mercury started from the pole. Allison opened a gap of nearly three-fourths of a lap on Pearson, and the Spartanburg, S.C., driver dropped out of contention when he spun coming out of the final pit stop.

"I guess I just tried to get back in the thick of things and spun out," said Pearson, who finished fifth. "I don't believe it would have happened if I had fresh tires. The car was loose all day and as the track got slicker, the looser we got."

Allison's victory, which earned him the winner's prize of $19,000 and another $21,000 in qualifying and bonus awards, was his second at Charlotte in two days. He won the World Service Life 300 for sportsman cars Saturday.

Darrell Waltrip nipped Dave Marcis at the line to take second place Sunday after Marcis' Chevrolet ran out of gas on the final lap.

"I ran out of gas coming off the second turn," said Marcis, who finished third. "I was hoping I could hold Darrell off. I knew we were cutting the gas thin because the pressure needle was bumping the bottom."

Waltrip said he also ran out of gas, but he made it over the finish line before that happened.

"My car wasn't handling at all," Waltrip said of his Chevrolet. "We came with the same setup that we won with in the World 600 (at Charlotte last May). This time it didn't work and we could never correct the problem on pit stops."

The race featured one of Petty's strongest performances recently until his Chevrolet dropped out with ignition problems after 220 laps.

Petty, searching for his first Grand National win in more than a year, led the race 13 times for a total of 102 laps until he fell out. He was able to pull from the pack for as much as an eight-second lead in the first half.

"It felt so good I took off and went to the front early," said Petty, who has won more Grand National races than any other driver. "I almost never do that no matter how good the car is performing. But I couldn't hold back when the car was ready."

"This lets our team know that we have now caught up," added Petty, who recently switched from a Dodge to a Chevrolet. "We should be ready to win now."

Allison, who stayed close to Petty and passed him for the lead 12 laps before Petty dropped out, said he was happy to see Petty able to run at the front again.

"I don't think I've ever doubted his ability," Allison said. "I don't know what happened to him today but all of a sudden I saw his car on pit road

"While he was out there he was real strong. I thought it was kinda neat that he was up there running that strong and going at it," Allison said.

There were 41 lead changes during the 3½-hour race, attesting to the strength of several drivers who stayed near the front.

Cale Yarborough was a leader six times for a total of 59 laps but fell off the pace suddenly near the 200-lap mark.

"It looked like a bad day at Black Rock," said Yarborough, who tightened his grip on the lead in his bid for an unprecedented third straight championship in the lucrative Winston Cup point series although he finished 22nd.

World Series Opens Tuesday

NEW YORK (AP) — Ready when you are, C.B.

That's right, Hollywood is one day away from the gala opening of the sequel to last year's box office smash, the "Los Angeles Lovers Meet Murmurers' Row."

In baseball lingo, that's the second straight go-round between the National League champion Los Angeles Dodgers and the American League kingpins, the New York Yankees, in the 75th anniversary World Series, opening in Los Angeles Tuesday.

For a sequel to sell, audiences can't be given the same script, so this year's East-West confrontation has a twist worthy of Alfred Hitchcock.

It seems the Dodgers, those advocates of hug-ins on the field, aren't wearing the white hats anymore. And the fussin', feudin' Yanks are no longer sneering under black hats.

After a much-publicized clubhouse fist fight between the Dodgers' Steve Garvey and Don Sutton and the Yanks' disposition turning sweet with a twist of Manager Bob Lemon, the old hero-villain labels just don't apply anymore.

"The last few months all you read was that everything was lovey-dovey with us, while the Dodgers have been bickering," said Graig Nettles, one of the home run heroes in New York's 2-1, pennant-clinching victory over the hard-luck Kansas City Royals Saturday night. "I hope they haven't found the key to our success."

The Yankees beat the Dodgers in a six-game World Series last year in spite of themselves, overcoming bitter player disputes and antagonisms involving owner George Steinbrenner and then Yankee skipper Billy Martin.

Ironically, the Dodgers ripped a page out of the Yanks' book this year, spurring past West Division rivals Cincinnati and San Francisco right after the Garvey-Sutton brawl. Sutton said Garvey's all-American image was fraudulent, calling slugger Reggie Smith the real leader of the team. Garvey had a terrific season, then smacked four homers to lead the Dodgers over Philadelphia for their second straight NL pennant.

Meanwhile, the Yanks had stumbled a whopping 14 games behind Boston several days before the easy-going Lemon replaced the volatile Martin. In Lemon's tenure, the Yankees posted a mark of 48-20 in the regular season and then merrily turned aside Kansas City for the third straight year.

"Lemon straightened things out and got us moving," said Roy White, who became a regular under Lemon and proved his value with the winning homer Saturday night in the clinching game against Kansas City. "I don't think we would be here without him."

Even Thurman Munson, the Yankee captain, has noticed the difference.

"Baseball's a lot of fun again," said Munson, whose feud with Reggie Jackson, the Most Valuable Player in last year's World Series, had been brewing again before Lemon managed to sweep it under his magic carpet.

So with practically the same cast of characters as last year — with only Dodger black and blue replacing Dodger Blue and Yankee pinstripes covering up their 1977 prison stripes — it's time to raise the curtain on another World Series.

Games Dedicated To Late Coach

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Throughout their successful defense of the National League baseball pennant in beating Philadelphia, the Los Angeles Dodgers dedicated their playoff games to The Devil.

They're doing the same in the World Series against the New York Yankees.

The Devil is the nickname given Jim Gilliam, their former star infielder and coach who died late Sunday without ever knowing the Dodgers had dedicated their postseason play to his memory. He had been in a coma since Sept 15 after suffering a stroke.

He played with all four Dodger World Series winners and appeared in 1,210 major league games.

As the first base coach and batting instructor, the 49-year-old senior member of the coaching staff gave advice to the current players.

"We dedicated the playoff to a great man, a great human being and we're dedicating the Fall Classic to him," said Manager Tom Lasorda, who was named to succeed Walter Alton after the 1976 season. It was a managerial job Gilliam would have liked, but he bore no malice.

A member of the Dodgers' organization for 26 years, he was a member of the 1955 team that beat the Yankees in the World Series, his team's first Series win.

Gilliam was the batter who came up behind Maury Wills when the shortstop set his stolen base record. That was a key spot because you can't be swinging away when a teammate is set to steal. He was a team player in every sense of the word.

In gambling, the devil is the master dealer, the odds or the house. Gilliam always put the Dodgers' team first.

"Every time I went to bat, I thought about him," said the current team captain, Davey

Lopes. "I could hear The Devil talking to me."

Before each of the two playoff games at Dodger Stadium there was a moment of silence by the capacity throngs in tribute to Gilliam. His wife visited the clubhouse after Los Angeles beat the Phillies 4-3 in the deciding game.

Pitcher Doug Rau said: "I know you hear a lot of that corny stuff in sports, that 'win one for the Gipper' stuff. But Jim Gilliam really did play a part in this ... for all of us."

For 60 minutes of football Saturday afternoon, East Carolina University's team put on an outstanding display of defense at the expense of VMI.

Yet throughout the game, until the final touchdown with 22 seconds left in the game, the specter of one mistake haunted the Pirates. The Virginia press almost unanimously called the final score "unnecessary." Yet, it was anything but unnecessary.

With the Pirates leading 12-6, it would take only one mistake for VMI to tie the game and then take the lead with the conversion of the extra point. Even giving up the ball late in the game, deep in VMI territory would not insure the victory.

A couple of times, the defense did bend, but it never broke. The closest the Pirates came to giving up a touchdown came midway through the final period.

VMI had opened a drive at its own 20 and moved only three yards in two plays. But then, Robby Clark hit Robert Savage over the middle between the Pirate linebackers and safety men. Savage pulled in the ball around the far hash-marks from the VMI side of the field, then cut across field, getting into the open. Only one man, James Freer, had a shot at him, and he managed to trip Savage up at the Pirate 43 after a 34-yard game. Had Savage gotten past Freer, it probably would have been the touchdown that would have tied it up.

For the Pirates, it was one of two very key plays in the final half. The other came just minutes later when Theodore Sutton broke loose on a 38-yard scamper on third and sixteen at the Pirate 48. That set up a first down that led five plays later to the Pirate's only offensive touchdown.

For the defense, it was a stellar game. They sacked the quarterback 13 times, with Zack Valentine leading with three. Fred Chavis, Tommy Summer and Ruffin McNeill each were credited with two sacks.

For Gerald Hall, too, it was a great day. Not only did he tie the school record in punt return yardage for a single game with 121 yards, he scored the go-ahead touchdown on a 74-yard return. (The old mark, by the way, was set by Tommy Bullock against Marshall in 1968.) Hall also intercepted two passes, returning them for 34 yards.

Billy Ray Washington, with one reception for 39 yards, moved into the top ten single season receiving lists, replacing Jimmy Adkins (1968) and Vic Wilfore (1973). They had 331 yards in receiving, while Washington, now tenth, has 345, and the chance to move on up. His next stepping stone would be 1965's Ruffin Odom with 367 yards.

Eddie Hicks moved to fifth in career rushing with 1,822 yards, moving past Tom Michel, who had 1,788 in 1961-63.

Larry Who?

Here it is, October ninth, and basketball practice is set to start in just six more days, this coming Sunday.

And not a word has been heard out of ECU's coach, Larry Gillman.

Last year, by this time, the young coach had filled the pages with words about the coming season.

This year, no one would even know he's around. The season starts on November 25 when UNC-Asheville comes to town, and unless we've missed something, Gillman isn't even on the list to speak to the Greenville Sports Club before then, as is customary before the season begins.

It's a complete turnaround for the second-year head coach, who is going to let his players do the talking for him this year. The Pirates have a tougher schedule this year, but while Gillman is making no, repeat NO predictions, most feel the Bucs will show an improved record.

Steelers Off To Best Start

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

The Pittsburgh Steelers are off to the best start of their 46 years in the National Football League, and they're loving every yard of it.

With Terry Bradshaw completing all but five of the 18 passes he attempted for 231 yards and Franco Harris running for 104 yards, the Steelers walloped Atlanta 31-7 Sunday.

Pittsburgh is now 6-0 — one of three NFL teams with a perfect record — and leads the American Conference Central Division by two full games over Cleveland.

"The only thing we get excited about is the last one," Steelers defensive tackle Joe Greene said after the game. "I mean, really jumping up and down and saying, 'Wow, we!'"

Greene's nonchalance, however, did not typify the Steelers. In fact, Coach Chuck Noll called Bradshaw to the sidelines in the third quarter and told him to quit smiling and waving to his wife, figure skater JoJo Starbuck, who was sitting in the stands.

"He (Noll) was smiling when he called Terry," said wide receiver Lynn Swan. "After all, he has often said, 'Let's make Sunday fun-day.'"

One of Bradshaw's passes was for a touchdown, an 11-yarder to John Stallworth in the fourth quarter, and the Pittsburgh quarterback ran 6 yards for a second-quarter score. Rocky Bleier also scored twice.

Like Pittsburgh, Los Angeles easily held onto its flawless record, downing San Francisco 27-10. The other 6-0 team, Washington, had to scramble past Detroit 21-19 on a Joe Theismann touchdown pass with less than two minutes to go.

Elsewhere in the NFL, Oakland rallied to beat Houston 21-7. Dallas clobbered the New York Giants 24-3. Green Bay outdueled Chicago 24-14. Cleveland defeated New Orleans 24-1. San Diego shut out Denver 23-0. New England whipped Philadelphia 24-14. Baltimore beat St. Louis 30-17. Tampa Bay routed Kansas City 30-13. Seattle edged Minnesota 29-28 and the New York Jets crushed Buffalo 45-14. Monday night's game pits winless Cincinnati against Miami.

Rams 27, Oilers 10
Rhodes scholar Pat Haden made the 49ers smart with a pair of touchdown passes, a 3-yarder to John Cappelletti and an 11-yarder to Willie Miller, and Cullen Bryant ran 10 yards for a touchdown as LA took a whopping four-game lead over Atlanta in the AFC West.

San Francisco's O.J. Simpson ran for 83 yards on 20 carries and caught four passes worth 30 yards, but the Rams' defense kept him out of the end zone.

Redskins 31, Lions 19
Theismann's winning pass, a 25-yarder to John McDaniel, came with 1:24 left as Washington retained its two-game lead over Dallas in the National Conference West.

The Redskins led 14-12 on a 21-yard TD pass from Theismann to Jean Fugett early in the fourth quarter, but Detroit forced Theismann to try again when Rick Kane ran 6 yards for a score with 5:52 left.

Raiders 21, Oilers 17
Houston led 17-7 in the third quarter and was driving for what would have been the clinching touchdown when disaster struck and Oakland once again pulled the game out. Running back Earl Campbell fumbled on the Raiders' 4-yard line and Oakland safety Charles Phillips ran it back 96 yards for a TD that closed the gap to 17-14.

Ken Stabler then led Oakland on an 80-yard, fourth-quarter TD march, capped by a 4-yard pass to Dave Casper with 42 seconds left. Casper had to wrestle the ball from defender Greg Sternick for the score.

Cowboys 24, Giants 3
After an admittedly sub-par performance last Monday night against Washington, Roger Staubach threw three touchdown passes to get Dallas back on the winning track. Two of Staubach's TDs were to Tony Hill.

Packers 34, Bears 14
The Green Bay-Chicago game was for the NFC Central lead, and the Packers won it with a "shades of the 1960s" defensive performance. Safety Steve Luke returned an intercepted pass 63 yards for a touchdown and recovered a fumble that set up a field goal. Defensive tackle Carl Barzilauskas intercepted a pass that set up another TD.

Quarterback David Whitehurst capped the Packers' scoring with a 58-yard pass to rookie James Lofton.

Browns 24, Saints 16
Cleo Miller rushed for 93 yards and scored a touchdown, and Cleveland quarterback Brian Sipe threw a 14-yard touchdown pass to Ozzie Newsome in the Browns' victory.

Chargers 23, Broncos 0
Dan Fouts completed 22 of 34 passes, including a 14-yard TD to Hank Bauer, and San Diego's defense recorded the shutout by stopping Denver's only two scoring threats. One Bronco drive stalled on downs in the final minute on the Chargers 7-yard line.

Patriots 24, Eagles 14
New England quarterback Steve Grogan threw 58 yards to Stanley Morgan for a touchdown and linebacker Steve Nelson recovered three Philadelphia fumbles.

Colts 30, Cards 17
Lyle Blackwood intercepted a pass and ran 79 yards for a touchdown, and blocked punts by Randy Burke and Lloyd Mumphord set up other scores as Baltimore sent first-year NFL Coach Bud Wilkinson's Cardinals down to their sixth straight loss.

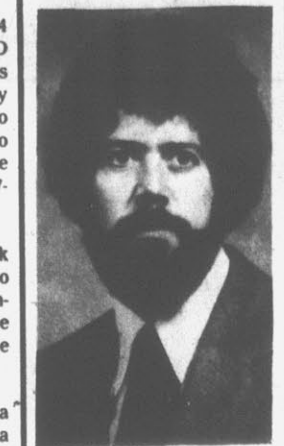

Bucs 30, Chiefs 13
Rookie Doug Williams threw for one touchdown and engineered three more fourth-quarter TD drives as Tampa Bay routed Kansas City.

Seahawks 29, Vikings 28
Efren Herrera kicked a 19-yard field goal with three seconds left to give Seattle a comeback victory.

Jets 45, Bills 14
Kevin Long ran for three touchdowns and Bruce Harper returned a punt 82 yards for a TD to help the New York Jets to the highest scoring game this year in the NFL.

Rein's Top 10 Dream Becomes A Nightmare

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Early in the third quarter, Bo Rein had visions of an unbeaten season and a shot at the Top 10. But that dream quickly turned into a nightmare for the North Carolina State coach.

Rein saw his Wolfpack pull to within three points of Maryland, 10-7, on quarterback Scott Smith's two-yard touchdown run. The chance of upsetting the 12th-ranked Terps, however, lasted only until the ensuing kickoff.

Steve Atkins took the kick and returned it 98 yards for a Maryland touchdown. The Terps added to their margin when the next kickoff was fumbled and Steve Trimble recovered in the Wolfpack end zone. All three scores came within 25 seconds and sent 20th-ranked State to its first defeat of the season.

"In the second half we got what we wanted — a turnover," said Rein. "About 20 seconds later, it was all over."

Coach Jerry Claiborne of Maryland saw his club solidify its national ranking. "With a 10-0 lead, we figured if we stayed even going into the fourth quarter with the wind at our backs, we'd have a big advantage," Claiborne said. "But we stressed controlling the ball in the third quarter. Then we fumbled on the first cottonpicking play.

"After State's touchdown, we needed something at that point to get our momentum going. Steve's kickoff return was super. And Ed Loncar put the ball right where we wanted it on the next kickoff and we got great coverage."

State crossed midfield just once in the first half, bottled up partly because of an 18 mph wind which twice gave Maryland field position for 10 quick points in the first quarter.

Maryland, meanwhile, converted three third-down plays, following a wind-blown 28-yard punt, before Alvin Maddox scored from eight yards out. A 25-yard punt preceded a 38-yard field goal by Loncar.

Up May Be What Razorbacks Needed

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Maybe a drop from No. 2 to No. 4 in the college football ratings was just what Arkansas needed.

After holding onto the runner-up position for the first month of the season, Arkansas slipped two places last week after struggling past Tulsa on the heels of a hard-fought victory over winless Oklahoma State a week earlier.

But the Razorbacks came alive Saturday night and trounced Texas Christian 42-3 in their Southwest Conference opener as Jerry Eckwood and Micheal Forrest each tallied twice and Ron Calvagni directed four scoring drives.

The sixth-ranked Texas

Longhorns dropped a 31-10 decision to No. 1-rated Oklahoma over the weekend.

Oklahoma, Arkansas, fifth-ranked Penn State and No. 7 Texas A&M all won impressively. Penn State whipped Kentucky 30-0 while the Texas Aggies clobbered Texas Tech 38-9.

Penn State not only extended the nation's longest major college winning streak to 15 games by trouncing Kentucky but also avenged last season's only defeat. Chuck Fusina was the ringleader, throwing two passes to Scott Fitzkee to set up a short plunge by Matt Suhey and then hitting Fitzkee for an 18-yard touchdown as the Lions grabbed a 14-0 first-period lead. Said Penn State's Joe Paterno: "I thought at the start of the season that this could possibly be our best team. We're not there yet, but we're getting a little better each week."

It doesn't seem as though Oklahoma can get much better. The Sooners stormed 77 yards in five plays on their first possession, with Billy Sims scoring from 18 yards out after a 55-yard dash by Kenny King. Sims, who carried 25 times for 131 yards, tallied again on a 1-yard plunge in the second period.

"Sims is everything I ever heard he would be," said Texas linebacker Lance Taylor. "Oklahoma certainly is the No. 1 team in the nation...they were today."

Texas A&M spotted Texas Tech an early 6-0 lead and then roared back to maul the Red Raiders as Curtis Dickey rushed 20 times for 161 yards, his fourth consecutive 100-yard performance. Dickey scored on a 15-yard run while David Brothers tallied twice and Mike Mosley added a 64-yard touchdown dash.

Southern California, runner-up in The Associated Press ratings, had the weekend off while Michigan and Ohio State, the Big Ten's Big Two, almost came unglued on the same weekend. Third-ranked Michigan rallied to defeat Arizona 21-17 after falling behind 17-7 in the first half while No. 14 Ohio State blew a 14-point lead in the final period and settled for a 35-35 standoff with Southern Methodist.

Michigan needed a 1-yard fourth-down plunge by Russell Davis with 5½ minutes remaining to overtake Arizona while SMU's Mike Ford, who completed 36 of 57 passes for 341 yards and a touchdown, scored his second and third TDs of the game in the final period to help the Mustangs deadlock Ohio State.

"We made colossal mistakes and we were lucky to win," said Michigan's Bo Schembechler, "but maybe this will help us in the long run."

Ohio State almost lost but SMU's Eddie Garcia missed a 47-yard last-second field goal attempt.

"We blew it," said Ohio

State's Woody Hayes. "We had a 14-point lead and got a little frivolous. We put some other people in and they had enough offense to get back into the game. We let them out of the box."

Rounding out the Top Ten: —Eighth-ranked Alabama got the go-ahead touchdown on Tony Nathan's third-period plunge, and a 36-yard pass from Jeff Rutledge to Rick Neal in the fourth quarter provided the clincher as the Crimson Tide held off Washington 20-17.

—Ninth-ranked Pitt overwhelmed Boston College 32-15 as Ray Jones scored twice while Rick Trocano tallied one touchdown and passed 29 yards to Gordon Jones for another.

—Tom Sorley scored one TD and threw for one in leading No. 10 Nebraska to a 23-0 rout of No. 15 Iowa State. The losers invaded Nebraska territory only four times.

Louisiana State's Charles Alexander gained 156 yards on 40 carries and scored once as the 11th-ranked Tigers whipped Florida 34-21.

Steve Atkins' 98-yard kickoff return in the third period and Steve Trimble's end zone fumble recovery on the ensuing kickoff helped No. 12 Maryland beat No. 20 North Carolina State. No. 13 Colorado marched 96 yards for a third-period touchdown that nailed down a 17-7 triumph over Kansas.

UCLA, the No. 16 team, nipped Pac-10 rival Stanford, No. 17, 27-26 on Peter Boermeester's 37-yard field goal with 27 seconds left. Florida State's Jimmy Jordan, who lost his starting job during the week, came off the bench and threw a pair of fourth-quarter scoring passes, including a 58-yard bomb to Sam Platt with 1:29 left, as the Seminoles overtook Cincinnati 26-21.

Auburn was the only member of the Top Twenty to bow to an unranked team. The 19th-ranked Tigers grabbed a 15-14 lead over Miami of Florida with 1:26 remaining on Joe Cribbs' 1-yard run and Charlie Trotman's 2-point conversion pass to Mark Robbins. But the Hurricanes got a 42-yard run from Otis Anderson, setting up Dan Miller's 24-yard field in the closing seconds as Miami posted a 17-15 triumph.

By The Associated Press

No. 12 Maryland is now the only undefeated team in the Atlantic Coast Conference, and with its 31-7 whipping of previously unbeaten North Carolina State has command of the league it once dominated.

Maryland, 5-0 overall and 2-0 in the ACC, knocked N.C. State from its winning streak and national ranking.

Duke is now in second place as the only other team unbeaten in the league but has yet to face anyone but Virginia. Next are

N.C. State and Wake Forest at 1-1. North Carolina at 0-1 and Virginia at 0-2. Clemson plays its first league opponent, Virginia, this Saturday.

Maryland 31, NC State 7

State, down by just 10-7 in the third quarter, was shelled by two straight Terp touchdowns within 24 seconds of the Wolf-pack score. Tailback Steve Atkins returned a kickoff 98 yards for a touchdown, and on the ensuing kickoff State's Dwight Sullivan fumbled and Maryland's Steve Trimble recovered in the end zone for another score.

"I knew right away I'd make it on the kickoff return," said Atkins. "You could have driven two or three trucks through that hole."

Atkins ended with 132 yards rushing while State's bruised Ted Brown gained 78 yards on 19 carries but did not start.

State, 4-1, has this Saturday off, while Maryland goes to Syracuse.

Miami 7, N. Carolina 3

"It's hard to put your finger on what's wrong," North Carolina Coach Dick Crum said after the loss, a defensive yawner in which the Tar Heels' troubled offense showed little life under the new starting quarterback, freshman Chuck Sharpe.

"I'm disappointed for our kids, not at them. They're frustrated now. They just haven't been able to put things together the way they should," Crum said.

Miami, the team Crum coached until this year, whipped the Tar Heels on a bit of old trickery, a reverse pass by flanker Don Treadwell, good for 65 yards and the only touchdown.

North Carolina is now a surprising 1-3, and goes to Wake Forest Saturday.

Clemson 38, VPI 17

"Steve Fuller again showed why he is the best quarterback in the country," Clemson Coach Charley Pell said of his quarterback. Fuller, last year's conference player-of-the-year, ran for two touchdowns, completed nine of 15 passes for 128 yards and gathered another 106 yards rushing.

His receiver, Jerry Butler, caught seven passes for 103 yards and set a school record for career reception yards — 1,603.

"Jerry Butler was nothing short of great today," Pell said. "He's tremendous."

"When it rains, it pours. And it certainly poured out there today," said VPI Coach Bill Dooley, who played Clemson to a tie last year when he coached North Carolina.

Clemson, now 3-1, begins its conference schedule at Virginia Saturday, and plays all its ACC opponents in a row, with Maryland Nov. 18.

Duke 20, Virginia 13

"I am pleased with the victory," said Blue Devil coach Mike McGee. "Virginia has a good football team. They kept their plays and executed them well. I thought our defense played relatively well."

The win left Duke 3-1, its only loss a 52-0 shutout a week ago at Michigan. The Blue Devils go to Navy Saturday.

Virginia dropped to 1-4.

Purdue 14, Wake Forest 7

Wake Forest's defense kept the Deacons close all day, but the offense managed only 42 yards on the ground.

Wake, 1-4, got its only score on a 9-yard run by James McDougald and held a one-point lead briefly in the fourth quarter before Purdue scored on Russell Pope's 2-yard run.

Yanks: A Sense Of Accomplishment

NEW YORK (AP) — "We came back from the grave," said outfield Lou Piniella, describing the New York Yankees' incredible charge from 14 games out on July 20 to their third consecutive American League pennant Saturday night.

The clubhouse celebration wasn't nearly as wild as the one in 1976, when Chris Chambliss' dramatic ninth-inning home run gave the Yankees' first flag in a dozen years. Nor was it as frenzied as the one that followed the Reggie Jackson Show in last year's World Series.

More than a feeling of outright joy, there was a sense of accomplishment, of rallying from farther behind than any team in baseball history. "The first time you win something is always the best," Piniella said, "but what made it so exciting this year is that we had to come from so far back.

No one really gave us much of a chance."

Not even Bob Lemon, who replaced Billy Martin as manager on July 25 with the Yankees 10½ games in arrears. Only five days earlier, the deficit had been 14 games.

Did Lemon really think the Yankees had a chance to overhaul the red-hot Boston

Red Sox?

"No, not the way they were rolling," he admitted Saturday night in the solitude of his office just off the clubhouse, his hair still matted with champagne. "It flashed on and off in my mind a couple of times, but it didn't really flash on for good until we swept those four games in Boston."

Keydets Made Bucs Work

LEXINGTON, Va. (AP) — VMI put up a valiant struggle and made East Carolina, a two touchdown-favorite over the Keydets, work right up until the final minute of the game Saturday to take a 19-6 victory.

Pirate senior Jerald Hall returned one punt 74 yards for a touchdown and set up a field goal with another punt to clinch the Pirate win.

East Carolina, led by linebacker Mike Brewington with 10 tackles and defensive end Fred Chavis with seven, held VMI to one yard rushing and a total offense of 77 yards.

The Pirates' struggle came in the final minute as they twice failed to score after moving to first downs inside the Keydet 10. VMI had converted fumble recoveries deep in East Carolina territory into a pair of field goals by Craig Jones in the third period, cutting a 9-0 deficit to just three points.

The Pirates then came back with a field goal of their own at the end of the third quarter and finally iced their win as halfback Sam Harrell scored from three with 30 seconds to go in the game.

ECU's record now stands at 4-2 for the season.

VMI's quarterbacks were sacked 13 times for losses totaling 92 yards as it suffered its third defeat in five games.

Hall's scoring run came with 2:15 left in the first quarter as he sidestepped several would-be tacklers before breaking into the clear. But Bill Lamm's extra point attempt was wide.

Early in the second period, Hall ran 30 yards to the VMI 38. From there, the Pirates moved

136-Year-Old Inspired Drama

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) —

There's an amazing guy named Charlie Smith who lives in the pleasant Polk County town of Bartow, Fla. He's been around a while. Last July 4, he celebrated his 136th birthday.

Tonight, "Visions," the fine PBS series of original dramas, starts Season No. 3 with a tale inspired by the life of Smith, a former slave, cowboy, train robber, bounty hunter, saloon keeper and more.

Called "Charlie Smith and the Fritter Tree," it's based on written and taped chats with him, but is billed as a fictionalization, "television fantasy," not what commercial TV calls a docu-drama.

Three good actors — Donny Cooper, Glynn Turman and Richard Ward — respectively depict him as a kid, a young man and an older citizen.

Alas, despite a wealth of anecdotes about Smith's colorful life, the show isn't too hot. It tries to offer a rollicking, lively flavor but often winds up just strained and self-conscious.

It tells its tale in the "Miss Jane Pittman" manner, the old man narrating flashbacks of his life from 1854 to 1920 (the latter seems an odd stopping point, considering ensuing events in America).

Proceedings begin in a Bartow nursing home. There,

Smith (Ward), then age 134, is seen sitting in his room, sporting a white cowboy hat and passing the time with a young orderly (Clifton Powell).

"I can't stand bein' around all them old folks out there," he rasps. Then he chortles, burns a cigarette and tells how he came to America from Liberia — as a kid sold at auction in New Orleans.

A rough-looking Texas rancher named Charles Smith (Richard Dysart) buys the lad to whom he'll eventually give his name. The slave-owner proves a benevolent, decent man.

"You won't find me hard to get along with," he tells the 12-year-old. "I treat my people fair. They don't want for nothin'."

The boy becomes a man, a first-rate cowpuncher Smith greatly admires. A free man after the Civil War, he decides to stay on with the old rancher. He likes the guy, and good fellowship runs rampant.

Save for one use of the word "nigger" by the rancher's young son, there's almost no display of bigotry, overt or otherwise, not only on the ranch but throughout much of the show.

True, there is a scene in which hooded Klansmen lynch a boyhood friend of Smith, and later one of discrimination at a movie theater. But the general impression is that this easy-going former slave rarely met racial abuse as he wandered the Southwest and South in occupations ranging from gunslinger to carnival attraction.

Yes, the play is a "fantasy." But it's stretching it a bit to so downplay the bigotry of the times, even though this first TV effort of writer Charles Johnson is an admirable effort to accentuate the positive in Charlie Smith's lengthy life.

Well, you can't expect perfection on the first go. Anyway, that's not the aim of "Visions," made by KCET here. Its idea is to find new writers and original dramas for public TV in America.

The BBC may complain, but "Visions" has the right idea.

Again, Dolly Parton Favored To Take Some CMA Awards

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) —

Dolly Parton has a confession as she heads into tonight's nationally televised Country Music Association awards show as the most-nominated performer. She didn't vote.

"I never do vote," she said in an interview. "I just don't get a chance to sit down and look things over. But I wouldn't vote for myself."

Miss Parton is a finalist for the top award, entertainer of the year, and three other major awards to be presented during the live show at the Grand Ole Opry House from 9:30 p.m. to 11 p.m. EDT. She also is a finalist for top female vocalist, single of the year and album of the year. The album and single were the million-selling "Here You Come Again."

Finalists in three categories are Willie Nelson, Waylon Jennings, the Kendalls, Kenny Rogers and Ronnie Milsap.

"I expect to win something, but I'll not be a bitter loser," Miss Parton said. "It's been a big year for me. If I could pick a category to win, it would be entertainer of the year. But someone has to win and someone has to lose."

Other finalists for entertainer of the year are Crystal Gayle, Milsap, Rogers and Mel Tillis. Finalists for top male vocalist are Larry Gatlin, Milsap, Nelson, Rogers and Don Williams. Joining Miss Parton in the running for top female vocalist are Janie Fricke, Miss Cash, Emmylou Harris and Barbara Mandrell.

There will be one inductee into the Country Music Hall of Fame. Finalists are Johnny Cash, Vernon Dalhart, Grandpa Jones, Hank Snow and the Sons of the Pioneers.

Performing during the show will be Gatlin, Miss Mandrell, Rogers, Dottie West, Miss Gayle, Miss Harris, the Charlie Daniels Band, Miss Parton, the Statler Brothers, show host

Cash and June Carter.

Opening lead: Two of ♣.

The Philip Morris European Cup Tournament played in Biarritz produced a classic lesson hand. How would you play four spades after a heart lead?

Once North could freely support spades, it would have been foolish indeed for South to meekly sell out to four hearts, even vulnerable. Not only was there no guarantee that his side could defeat the opposing game, there were also reasonable prospects that four spades would be a makeable contract, rather than just a cheap sacrifice. Note that this was the case on both counts.

West led a heart to East's king, and East continued the suit for lack of anything better. Declarer ruffed and surveyed his resources. He had a sure loser in clubs unless diamonds broke 3-3 and the defenders never got around to establishing their club trick, which was a remote chance at best. Since he had already lost a heart, he could afford to lose only one diamond. That could be managed if he could guess which defender, if either, held a doubleton diamond honor. But there was a sure-trick line that would work against any distribution of the adverse cards.

Declarer entered dummy with the king of trumps, drawing both outstanding cards in the suit, and then ruffed dummy's last heart. Now he simply cashed the ace of clubs and gave up a trick in clubs.

He did not care which defender won the club trick, for either would have to concede a stuff-ruff or open up the diamond suit.

The defenders did the best they could. East won the second club, and he shifted to a low diamond. Declarer ducked and West won the king. But now he was forced to lead a diamond into declarer's tenace, so there was no way the defenders could come to a second diamond trick.

Belgian Singer Loses Fight

PARIS (AP) — Jacques Brel, whose songs were popularized in the United States by the hit New York musical "Jacques Brel Is Alive and Well and Living in Paris," died in a suburban hospital early today after a 10-year battle with cancer. He was 49.

The Belgian singer and song writer entered the hospital on July 28. He had been living in retirement in the Marquesas Islands in the South Pacific since 1973 but returned to his native Brussels for an operation in 1974 and to Paris last year to make what turned out to be his last record.

His songs were bitter and ironic or tender love songs. His biggest hits included "Amsterdam," "The Flat Country," "The North Winds," "Don't Leave Me" and "When One Only Has Love."

At the height of his success in 1966, he announced he would give no more concerts and turned to the theater and the movies, both as actor and director. His biggest success was in the French version of "The Man of la Mancha."

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Producer-director Irwin Allen has started filming "Beyond The Poseidon Adventure" with an all-star cast which includes Michael Caine, Sally Field, Telly Savalas, Peter Boyle, Shirley Jones and Karl Malden.

Theatre Owners To Oppose Blind Bids

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Theater owners in North Carolina are gearing up to challenge blind bidding, a practice under which they must bid for the right to show films they have never seen.

The National Association of Theater Owners is getting ready for a drive in the 1979 General Assembly to outlaw blind bidding, which has come under fire from owners of theaters across the country.

When theater owners bid on a motion picture, they guarantee the film's distributor a percentage of the box office receipts, usually beginning at 90 percent, and a certain length of the showing engagement.

Owners say it is unfair for them to have to bid on a movie they haven't seen because it forces them to risk losing thousands of dollars on films that have little appeal.

But distributors, represented by the Motion Picture Association of America, maintain that making and showing movies is a risky business for everyone involved. They say eight of the top 10 money makers, including "Star Wars," were among films that were blind-bid last year.

Sandy Jordan, a member of the board of the theater owners' group in the Carolinas and city manager of Martin Theaters in Raleigh, is heading the campaign against blind-bidding in the state while Raleigh attorney Henry Mitchell has been retained by the distributors to watch out for their interests.

Exploitation Result Feared

WASHINGTON (AP) — A church defender of the public's rights in broadcasting says a proposed congressional bill to free television and radio broadcasters from all federal regulation would subject the American public to unrestrained exploitation.

The Rev. Dr. Everett C. Parker, director of the United Church of Christ Office of Communication, testified before a House subcommittee that the bill would strip away "all requirements for licenses to account for how they serve the public."

Overcame The Bread Poll

HONOLULU (AP) — The official pita bread poll here shows a narrow primary election victory for Honolulu Mayor Frank Fasi in the Democratic gubernatorial race.

In the actual primary election, incumbent Gov. George Ariyoshi was the winner — by 3,612 votes. n

But Ray Owen's pita bread poll at the Middle East Delicatessen gave Fasi the victory — 99 pitas to 98.

Customers buying pita bread — a round, flat bread popular in the Middle East — picked from two racks, one with a Fasi campaign sign, the other with the Ariyoshi label.

Protests Grant To Guerrillas

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Indiana's United Methodist Bishop Ralph T. Alton has protested the recent grant by the World Council of Churches of $85,000 to the Patriotic Front of Rhodesia (Zimbabwe) as a violation of the ecumenical body's policy.

He says he wrote to the WCC general secretary, the Rev. Dr. Philip Potter in Geneva, Switzerland, saying the grant was contrary to the organization's stated policy in "situations of political conflict where church leadership was involved on both sides."

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day when you would be wise to do nothing drastic or dramatic and try to avoid the limelight. Use considerable patience in waiting for conditions to unfold. Make plans for the days ahead.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Don't make any changes of plans with friends now or you could cause a severance of connections. Don't be forceful. Be fair.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Avoid doing anything dramatic or you could get in trouble with a higher-up. Make sure your bills are paid on time.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Don't go off on some kind of spree and lose out where it counts the most. Steer clear of a new contact who is superficial.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Don't try to renege on an obligation or you could get into real trouble. Express your finest talents.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Cooperate more with others in your line of endeavor and get excellent results. Be careful of your reputation at this time.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have to be objective and practical in the handling of business activities to gain your desires. Be reasonable with others.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Any chances you take today could cost you a good deal, so be most careful. The planetary aspects are not favorable today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Make sure to maintain harmony at home by not arguing with anyone there. Not a good day for starting new projects.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be most careful in motion today and avoid possible accident. Don't get caught in a scheme you would later regret.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study how to have greater abundance in the days ahead, but don't make any definite plans at this time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Instead of getting disturbed about something you can do little about, seek happier pursuits. Sidestep a troublemaker.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You have made a promise you now want to break, but it's best for you to keep it. Take time to improve your appearance.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be one who could get in trouble with others if not taught ethical standards early in life. Direct the education along troubleshooting lines for best results. Be sure to give as much encouragement as needed.

Farm Scene

by Samuel N. Uzzell
Assistant Agricultural Extension Agent

Pitt County farmers are nearing the end of another growing season and looking forward to a well deserved rest. Many farmers feel that 1978 was a difficult year in which to grow field crops because there were very few, simple, clear-cut decisions that could be made this year. The best laid plans were knocked out of kilter by several factors, primarily unfavorable market situations and strange weather patterns.

There are some things that just cannot be anticipated. However, farmers can help themselves for next year by doing a little foot work during October, November and December. Farmers will rest easier this winter having taken a few steps this fall in advance of spring.

First on the agenda should be soil testing. For instance, in Pitt County, many peanut crops are not what they might be if liming was properly done. Often a peanut crop following tobacco in rotation will be deficient in lime. Acid soil prevents calcium and some micronutrients from being taken up by the peanut plant, and beneficial nodulating bacteria will suffer accordingly. The result will be yellow, stunted peanuts and often a decrease in yields.

While taking a soil test, it may be very beneficial to separate some of the soil and send it to the nematode assay lab in Raleigh. This year, Mobil Chemical Company and the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Office will provide boxes and pick up points to collect and process any nematode sample, but preferably from tobacco and corn fields, with Mobil paying the $1 per sample cost.

The Weed Science Extension at North Carolina State University suggests a two-minute check on each acre of land to determine what weeds are present, how severe they are and what fields have the worst problems. Fall is the best time to check weeds since they are more visible in harvested fields and will be seeding, which makes them easier to identify. Dr. Harold Coble of NCSU estimates that a good weed map and accompanying records can increase a peanut grower's profits by $20 per acre in weed control alone. If you spend just two minutes an acre, then you might make $10 per minute or $600 per hour, pretty good wages in anybody's book. At any rate, weed mapping is important enough to become one of a farmer's management duties.

So, take a little time this fall to thoroughly check the soil for nematodes and fertility levels. Couple this with a weed map and prepare farm equipment for winter storage. A farmer will enjoy hunting season and good fall fishing along the coast a lot more with fall procedures behind him.

Testing Famed Shroud Of Turin

TURIN, Italy (AP) — Scientists from several countries are making tests today and Tuesday on the Holy Shroud following a public display of the linen cloth believed by many Roman Catholics to be Christ's burial cloth.

The 43-day display of the 14-by-3-foot cloth at the Turin Cathedral ended Sunday, and church officials estimated more than 3 million people saw it. The last previous public display was in 1933, and the cloth was shown on Italian television in 1973.

The image of a tall, bearded man is imprinted on the cloth, and some experts say bloodstains on it correspond to the wounds Christ suffered at his crucifixion. The Vatican has never made public the results of scientific tests made in 1969 in an attempt to determine the age of the cloth.

The first auto accident was recorded in 1896 in New York City.

Handicapped Often Run Into 'Bad Risk' Judgements

By JAMES A. WHITE
UPI Business Writer

"The essence of the insurance business in some ways is discrimination," says John Snore, vice president of underwriting for Prudential Insurance Co. of America. "We can be successful only if we discriminate between good risks and bad risks."

To millions of handicapped Americans wanting insurance protection, there is little argument carriers have to judge risk; the complaint is that they are automatically judged bad risks.

"I'll bet you dollars to donuts that if I went to get automobile insurance today I will pay a higher rate than an able-bodied person with the same driving record," says Jack Powell of the Paralyzed Veterans of America.

Insurance companies don't pretend there hasn't been unfair discrimination in coverage for persons with handicaps but say they are changing their ways. Automatic exclusions or higher rates are giving way to case-by-case evaluation of real risks disabilities might pose.

"The industry probably covers 85 percent of the handicapped on exactly the same basis as everyone else is covered," a State Farm Mutual executive says regarding auto coverage. "It is fairly rare today, compared to past practice, to refuse to write handicapped or to write them only as substandard risks."

Says Snore of Prudential, the nation's largest insurer: "We reject a very small number of applicants for life insurance, something like 2 percent." The discrimination an insurer needs to do to stay in business "is based on an appraisal of each individual," he said.

Clearly though, the insurance industry's record still is far from clean in its dealings with handicapped persons. Some companies and agents use unfair discrimination more than others and practice it more against some types of disabilities and on certain types of insurance than others.

Receiving complaints from the National Federation of the Blind, the National Association of Insurance Commissioners recently asked 12 insurance companies — including the nation's biggest — how they treated a self-supporting blind adult seeking accident, health and life coverage. The findings: — None of the 12 automatically rejected the applicant for basic life insurance and most issue it as standard with no higher rates. But most will not give a waiver of premium clause to blind persons.

— Four companies automatically rejected blind applicants for accidental death or dismemberment coverage and four will not write them disability income insurance.

— Eleven companies take the elapsed time since blindness into account, some saying a 5-year "period of adjustment" is needed before giving standard insurance to a blind applicant.

"We concluded there was indeed countrywide some discrimination against the blind that we thought was unfair," says Ron Todd, assistant commissioner of the Kansas Insurance Department, who headed the commissioners' study that resulted in the association's June approval of a model anti-discrimination law dealing with the blind.

At least a dozen states now have such anti-discrimination rules, some also covering mental and other physical handicaps, and Todd predicts many others will adopt the new rule on the blind.

Several states also now require employers to pay for rehabilitation of disabled workers, a trend that has taken shape as innovative companies have demonstrated the costs are more than made up in workmen's compensation savings and employee morale.

More legislation may result from a new National Association of Insurance Commissioners study. "Side information was developed in the investigation so that we thought an investigation into all handicapped was warranted," Todd said. Work on the broader study is beginning with trying to define "handicapped."

Anti-discrimination doesn't mean insurers can't exclude or charge higher rates; it does mean companies should use some factual basis to show a particular disability poses a higher risk.

A common complaint by handicap groups is that insurers use "common sense" rather than facts to rate risks, even when they must justify their practices to state regulators.

"They walked into the commissioner and said,

"Everybody knows that rates should be higher for blind people," and the commissioner said, "Yea, that makes sense," and approved them," said Ralph Sanders of the National Federation of the Blind. "Those were all the facts they had."

Insurers say they work hard compiling actuarial data. "We're always looking for more and better information on people in a particular group but often it is very small," said Prudential's Snore. "Certainly a measure of judgement has to be applied."

High unemployment among handicapped persons compounds insurance problems because group plans with automatic coverage for anyone hired are no help. Some employers also will not hire workers with handicaps for fear of boosting their premiums although group rates invariably are based on loss experience, not on who joins the group.

Sanders of the National Federation of the Blind thinks a good start has been made against unfair insurance treatment for handicapped persons and that insurers no longer are taking past practices for granted. He also notes that in some ways, those with existing disabilities can prove to be better risks for disability income insurance, for example. "One of the few things that makes this kind of policy operative is going blind," he said. "There's no risk with me going blind."

Some of the notable American photographers who donated a print are: W. Eugene Smith, Philippe Halsman, Cornell Capa, Barbara Morgan, Arthur Rothstein, Eva Rubinstein, Jill Krementz, Walter Chadoha, Ruth Orkin, Nancy Rudolph, Elliott Erwitt, Sandra Weiner, George Silk, Robin Perry, George Tice and Barrett Gallagher.

Presidential official photographers Karl Schumacher and Yoichi Okamoto also are contributors.

In addition, for the first time, some rare and historic examples of photographic collectibles have been assembled for this exhibition and auction. They included daguerreotypes, ambrotypes, tintypes, Edward Curtis gravures and vintage prints from Mathew Brady, Walker Evans and Bob Capa.

An illustrated catalog showing the exhibition-auction's 200 prints will be available in mid-October for those wishing to participate in bidding by mail.

It contains a review of VSP's work, an alphabetical listing of contributing photographers and their pictures and the auction rules. It can be obtained for $2 from: Volunteer Service Photographers, 111 West 57 Street, New York, N.Y. 10019.

more activity to fill empty hours. It provided stimulation and enthusiasm, both mentally and physically, and enriched the lives of those it touched.

Dr. Howard A. Rusk, director of the Institute of Rehabilitation Medicine at the New York University Medical Center, summed it up in these words: "The men and women of Volunteer Service Photographers who share their enthusiasm, skill and training with these patients are doing a splendid service for both the hospitals and the patients. They prove each day that photography is indeed 'just what the doctor ordered.'"

Recently, as the country experienced economic hard times, VSP, like other charitable organizations, felt the crunch of dwindling voluntary contributions and faced the urgent need of raising funds from new sources to continue its year-round work.

The innovative idea of appealing to world-famous photographers for help was born three years ago. They were asked to contribute one signed print for an exhibition, after which the photographs would be auctioned off with the proceeds going to VSP. The response was immediate and heartwarming. The results have enabled VSP's volunteers to maintain their services.

Under VSP president Margaret Goddard, the 1978 response has been no less enthusiastic to the appeal of exhibition chairman Victor Keppler and his cochairmen: photographer Ken Heyman, industry executive Ken Lieberman and this columnist.

Among the international stars who have responded on the three occasions are: Yousuf Karsh of Canada; Henri Cartier-Bresson of France; Paolo Koch and his wife, Elisabeth Weiland of Switzerland; Fritz Henle of St. Croix; T. Tanuma of Japan; Douglas Faulkner from a Pacific Island; Bob Willoughby of Ireland; Paul Huf of Holland; Jose Jasso of Mexico; Eduardo Comesana of

The generosity of about 200 outstanding photographers assures the success this year of the third annual photographic exhibition and auction for the benefit of Volunteer Service Photographers, Inc., the organization which practices "Rehabilitation Through Photography."

Each contributing photographer donated one signed print of his or her work for VSP's Third International Invitational of Photography.

The 10-day exhibition opens in the French Embassy Cultural Services mansion in New York City on Nov. 28. The auction action starts Dec. 7, with the audience present having to outbid the bids received by mail.

VSP has pursued its service of helping the hospitalized, disabled and disadvantaged for 37 years by using photography as a therapeutic tool for recreation, an absorbing hobby or a possible vocation.

Its volunteers are active in 41 programs in the New York area teaching patients, inmates and attendees the basics of taking pictures, processing films, printing contacts and the oil coloring of matte prints. All materials and services are provided free.

Founded in 1941 by Josephine U. Herrick, VSP started as a volunteer community enterprise to enlist photography's services in our country's war effort. Its principal purpose, to help wounded servicemen of World War II in their hospital recovery period, continued with veterans of Korea and Vietnam.

When the military hospitals were phased out, VSP's programs were transferred to civilian hospitals and expanded into youth and senior citizen centers, a prison hospital and rehabilitation centers for the emotionally disturbed, handicapped and drug addicted.

Home improvements that can pay for themselves.

When you sink money into your home, you can be sure it won't go down the drain.

Because many improvements increase the value of your home by the amount of their cost. And in some cases, by substantially more than that.

For example, insulation, storm windows and a central heating/cooling unit increase property values and, at the same time, save you money on operating costs by making your home more energy efficient.

Making a new addition to your home, modernizing a kitchen and adding a bathroom can be sound investments, too.

You'll find many other home improvements that can substantially increase the value of your home in Branch Banking and Trust Company's booklet "Home improvements that can pay for themselves."

Our booklet also includes a number of helpful energy saving tips. Pick up a complimentary copy at any BB&T office.

And to keep the cost of home improvements to a minimum, ask about a money-saving BB&T Simple Interest Loan. (We also make Simple Interest loans for new cars.)

We'll explain all the ways it pays to borrow from BB&T.
