Energy Package, Tax Bill Are Top Items

Congress Works Toward Adjournment

CONGRATULATIONS ON CIVIL SERVICE REFORM — President Carter shakes hands with Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., at the White House Friday after Carter signed into law the first major revision of the federal civil service system in this century. From left those identifiable are: Sen. By STEVE GERSTEL

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The 95th Congress rolled toward adjournment Saturday with passage of President Carter's energy package all but certain and House-Senate negotiators hammering out a compromise tax bill.

The final session was destined to go late into the night with speculation it might end around dawn.

Both houses, however, still faced a huge stack of unfinished bills — some of them highly controversial — and Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd could not rule out the possibility the session would spill over into next week.

Byrd, obviously tired from a series of post-midnight sessions but still in good spirits, played a tune on his fiddle for reporters and told them, "If it means coming back Monday, we will come back Monday."

Congressional leaders agreed three bills — taxes, energy and a resolution providing money for unfunded agencies — must clear before members can rush home for the final stages of their re-election campaigns.

High on the agenda, but without the same priority, was a compromise public works bill, the Humphrey-Hawkins full-employment bill and legislation to curb the spiraling cost of hospital care.

The Senate also was hampered by a half-hearted filibuster against the energy tax bill, and the House scheduled no votes until after 4 p.m. as members flew to funeral services for Reps. Ralph Metcalfe, D-Ill., and Goodloe Byron, D-Md., who died during the week.

The heavily-Democratic 95th Congress, which frequently warred with Carter, gave the White House some key victories but also some bitter defeats over the two-year stretch.

The president, working with his first Congress, fared best in the area of foreign policy.

The Senate ratified the Panama Canal treaty, ended the Turkish arms embargo and agreed to sell warplanes planes to Egypt and Saudi Arabia as well as Israel.

Among the major bills passed — some sought and some fought by Carter — were civil service reform and four reorganization plans; creation of an Energy Department; a time extension for states to ratify the Equal Rights Amendment; an increase in the minimum wage; new Social Security financing; an extension of state and local public service jobs; and the first inland waterway tax.

But Congress rejected all of Carter's election reforms; killed the labor law revisions; refused to act on the Alaska lands bill; stopped cargo preference; and turned down no-fault insurance.

Keeping In Touch

By HELEN THOMAS
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter stayed in close touch with congressional leaders Saturday, hoping to score more legislative victories before the adjournment.

He made tentative arrangements to fly to Camp David only after the delayed Senate vote on his top priority legislation, the energy package.

Mrs. Carter and daughter Amy, joined by the families of White House aides, motored to the presidential retreat early Saturday for a weekend stay.

The president stayed behind to keep tabs on other pending bills as well, including the final version of tax-cut legislation. He had threatened to veto any tax cut he deems inflationary or grossly inequitable

In an interview with editors and broadcasters, released Saturday, Carter also said most of the work has been done on his long awaited new antiinflation program but he is deferring final decisions to see what Congress does in its final hours.

Involved in the consideration would be budget levels, action on curbing hospital costs and his own decision on whether to sign or veto the tax cut measure.

"I believe that any objective assessment of the accomplishments of the 95th Congress will show they deserve a great deal of credit for courage and also for hard work," Carter told interviewers. "I have never seen a group work harder than they have."

He said he believes he has used the veto sparingly — six times since he has been in office.

He compared that to former President Gerald Ford's record over the same length of time in office, saying, "I think he had something like 46 vetoes. So I think this is a good indication of our good relationship."

Law To Monitor Farmland Sales

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter signed into law Saturday a bill establishing a nationwide system of monitoring foreign purchases of U.S. farmland, but warned that the nation's overall trade policies are opposed to unnecessary restrictions on international investments.

The bill directs the Agriculture secretary to evaluate the effects of foreign investment on family farms and rural communities and sets up a system of reporting requirements by all foreign citizens who hold or acquire a significant interest in American farmland.

Carter said many of the nation's farmers have expressed concerns that increased foreign investment in U.S. farm real estate has driven up land prices. He said there have been fears that foreign investors may be more willing to subdivide or divert the land to other uses.

"While recent surveys by the Commerce Depatment and the General Accounting Office suggest that foreign ownership of domestic farmland is still very low," Cater said in a statement, "I recognized that we need more information on farmland ownership patterns before we reach definite conclusions."

He cautioned that there would not be immediate results from the studies and that the information would have to be analyzed carefully.

"The policy options that arise form such analysis will have to be considered in the light of overall U.S. trade policies, including our opposition to unnecessary restrictions on international investment flows," he said.

"It will be particularly important to evaluate whether various economic trends, including higher real estate prices and absentee ownership of land, are actually due to foreign investment, and whether they reflect other domestic social and economic factors."

$3.3 Million Delinquent Bills

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina Memorial Hospital in Chapel Hill has had patients who did not pay bills totalling $3.3 million since 1975 and after turning the accounts over for collection, recovered only $500,000, state figures released Friday showed.

And $152,229 of that was owed by about 1,800 state employees who left the hospital without paying their bills, said the study released by the legislature's Government Operations Commission.

Seventy-five of the employees earned more than $20,000 a year and one, who left a debt of $14, made $62,215.

The outstanding bills from state employees averaged $85, but some were so small that they would cost more to collect than the bill's total.

"It's true that a number of employees who don't make much may not be able to pay," said Rep. Liston Ramsey, DMadison, who prepared the survey. "But when you have someone making $37,000 and he won't pay, something is wrong."

The names of the employees were not made public on the advise of the state attorney general's office, which said it would violate state privacy laws to release them.

But most of the delinquent state employees accounts were run up by employees at the hospital and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

An Extra $53 Million

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The defense bill signed Friday by President Carter should give North Carolina servicemen and civilian employees an extra $53.8 million over the next 12 months.

The bills authorizes a 5.5 percent pay increase for military and civilian workers. The five main bases in North Carolina have about 95,000 military and 14,000 civilian workers.

The state's largest base is Fort Bragg in Fayetteville. Some 50,000 service personnel there and at nearby Pope Air Force Base will pick up an additional $24.2 million a year.

At Cherry Point Marine Air Station in Havelock, the new bill will raise the base's total annual payroll of $177 million by nearly $10 million. Cherry Point is the home of 9,000 Marines.

In Jacksonville, the new bill will put about $15 million more in the wallets of Camp Lejeune's 36,700 Marines and 2,600 civilian employees.

Seymour Johnson Air Force Base in Goldsboro stands to add about $2.3 million onto its payroll.

The raise is expected to help the economies of the towns.

Roach Problem

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — An inspector for the Division of Health Services, responding to an inmate complaint, has said there is a roach problem at Central Prison but that prison officials are attempting to correct the problem.

Cardinals In Conclave

By SYLVANIA FOA

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Crimson-cassocked cardinals entered the ritual world of the secret conclave Saturday to select an heir to Pope John Paul I as spiritual leader of the world's 700 million Roman Catholics.

"Extra Omnes," chanted the papal master of ceremonies Monsignor Virgilio Noel, ordering "Everyone out" of the Sistine Chapel at 4:46 p.m. (11:46 a.m. EDT).

For the second time in 50 days, the doors of the Sistine Chapel swung shut, sealing 111 princes of the church in the conclave where they must remain until their 264th pontiff is elected.

From now on, the only communication with the conclave will come twice a day by means of smoke signals from a steel chimney atop the Sistine Chapel — white smoke if a pope has been elected and black if he has not.

The cardinals hold their first ballot 9:30 a.m. (4:30 a.m. EDT) today and the first puffs of smoke are expected at noon (7 a.m. EDT).

The cardinals themselves predicted it should take less than two days to elect a successor to John Paul, who died of an apparent heart attack 16 days ago at age 65. But Church experts said the obvious deep divisions among the cardinals entering the conclave augured a longer voting time than the eight hours and 54 minutes it took to elect John Paul — the quickest papal election in almost 400 years.

Five cardinals, all Italians, entered the conclave as "pope" — once again challenging the adage: "He who goes in a pope comes out a cardinal."

In five of the seven papal elections this century, the frontrunning candidates were passed over and "dark horses" chosen.

The diversity between the five echoed the divisions to be conquered by the conclave before any candidate can win the required two-thirds plus one, or 75, votes which will make him pope.

Two — Corrado Ursi, 70, of Naples, and Salvatore Pappalardo, 60, of Palermo, Sicily — are pastoral men, generating the same smiling image that won John Paul instant popularity during his 34-day reign.

The others — Giovanni Benelli, 57, of Florence, Giuseppe Siri, 72, of Genoa, and Pericle Felici, 67, of the Vatican Curia — are more reserved men who may be chosen for their ability to restore order and discipline to the Church.

Vatican experts said the preconclave period, in sharp contrast to that which followed the death of Pope Paul VI last August, was marked by factionalism, hard-nosed politicking and even bitterness.

French Cardinal Jean Villot, the chamberlain of the church, delivered a homily urging them to use their own intellects and judgements in the decision they would soon face.

"Christ has told us what it takes to follow his way," Villot said. "He considers us friends but does not give us some sort of total supernatural enlightenment. He leaves freedom for the working of our intellect and will."

Later, the cardinals met once more in the Pauline Chapel and slowly marched two-by-two into the Sistine Chapel to take their places at long, beige felt-covered tables beneath Michelangelo's magnificent ceiling frescoes of the Creation and against the backdrop of his "Last Judgement."

CONCLAVE AREA LOCKED — Bishop Jacques Martin of France, outgoing head of the Pontifical Household, locks one of the gates of the conclave area in the Sistine Chapel Saturday evening when all 111 cardinals entered the area to elect the successor of late Pope John I. (AP Laserphoto)

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Robert B. Morgan, D-N.C., said Saturday he has cancelled plans to attend NATO briefings this week in Brussels, Belgium.

Smith States Position

By STEWART SLAVIN

CORONADO, Calif. (UPI) — Prime Minister Ian Smith of Rhodesia said Saturday he is willing to meet with black guerrilla leaders and blamed the U.S. State Department for apparently failing to understand his position.

Smith said he would attend a conference with representatives of the United States, Great Britain, his own transitional government and black guerrilla leaders only if no preconditions are placed on it.

But he added that such a conference appeared unlikely because of the present stance of the guerrilla leaders, Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe, who have indicated they would not participate.

Smith made the comments in an interview with reporters at the 19th Annual Conference of United Press International Editors and Publishers (EDICON). About 100 demonstrators gathered outside the hotel in a peaceful protest rally, carrying signs that read, "Black majority, black rule" and "Smith get out and take Carter with you."

Smith reacted with surprise at a statement made Friday by Richard Moose, assistant secretary of state for African nations, in which he asked Smith to make a commitment to attend an all-parties conference.

"We hope he will make it official," Moose said. "If this (result) comes out of his visit, I think it will have served a useful purpose."

"I must say I am surprised at his statement because there is no doubt in my mind that the state department has known what our position is," Smith said. "We've made it clear on a number of occasions even before coming here on this trip the United States and we repeated it many times."

HOUSE EXPLOSION — A wood frame residence located in the 100 block of Howell Street was destroyed by fire late Saturday night following an explosion. The walls of the house were blown to the ground, and when firemen arrived the house was engulfed in flames. One person was taken to the hospital with undetermined injuries, and officials at press time were trying to determine if there were other occupants in the house at the time of the explosion. Firemen noted detecting the odor of gas at the scene. This photo was taken minutes after the explosion, which occurred shortly before 11 p.m. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest).

One Of Siamese Twin Girls Die

DURHAM, N.C. (UPI) — Sonya Bain, the weaker of Siamese twin girls born Oct. 3 and separated in a five and one-half hour operation Thursday, died Saturday at Duke Medical Center.

Dr. Howard Filston, one of the surgeons caring for the girls, said the other girl, Tonya, remained in critical condition.

Filston said Sonya never recovered from Thursday's operation and her poor heart condition gradually worsened through Friday afternoon and early Saturday.

Just after the separation, surgeons conducted an additional operation on Sonya to aid the flow of blood from her heart into her lungs.

"The shunt ... functioned as we had hoped," Filston said in a statement Saturday. "Nevertheless, the weakened heart could not maintain its functions with the demands placed upon it and finally stopped and could not be restarted."

One of the surgeons had said earlier the children had been facing "horrendous odds" against their survival since their birth. Both were born with deformed hearts — hearts connected with a tissue bridge — and both needed medication for their different heart problems. They also needed respirators to be able to breathe.

The children were born connected from the breastbone to the navel. They were separated in an operation that doctors said carried a failure rate of up to 90 percent.

Duke Medical Center spokesman Dave Williamson said as many as 15 doctors and nurses monitored the infants' conditions in the center's Intensive Care Nursery.

Williamson said some of the physicians connected with the case had been up for three consecutive nights caring for the girls.

News Briefs

New Wake Forest Proposal

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Trustees of Wake Forest University unanimously endorsed in principle a plan for a new relationship with the Baptist State Convention at a meeting here Saturday.

A committee of five trustees also was authorized by the board to work with a convention committee named to study the proposal.

Under the proposal, the trustees would select their own successors, the majority of whom would continue to be North Carolina Baptists. The remainder, however, could be non-Baptists and from outside the state.

Currently the convention elects the trustees, and they must be North Carolina Baptists.

Helms Defeated In HEW Battle

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C. has met defeat in his battle to keep the Department of Health, Education and Welfare from requiring racial quotas for student enrollment at the 15 campuses of the University of North Carolina system.

Last month Helms offered an amendment to HEW's budget that would have prohibited HEW from setting enrollment quotas in public universities.

The House put a slightly stronger amendment into its version of the bill.

However, when the House and Senate conferees met to resolve their differences over the legislation they omitted the two amendments instead of working out a compromise between them.

Prepared To Allocate More Funds

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt says he is prepared to allocate another $4.5 million to the schools this fall to finance remedial training for students who flunk the state's first high school competency tests.

In a talk Friday to about 1,000 teachers attending a math conference, Hunt said he would release the money "as soon as the test results come in if students don't do substantially better than we expect them to."

Carter Comments On Peace Hopes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter says the conclusion of an Israeli-Egyptian peace treaty might stop the anti-treaty "posturing" of militant Arabs and encourage Jordan and Saudi Arabia to join negotiations.

In an interview with editors and broadcasters, released Saturday, Carter also said he has completed his answers to the questions sent him by Jordan's King Hussein and presidential advisers are reviewing them.

Carter's replies will help Hussein decide whether he will join the peace-making process.

Three Congressmen Reprimanded

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three California congressmen stand reprimanded today in connection with contributions from a South Korean accused of trying to buy influence. They are the first House members in two years to be so punished.

After lengthy debate, the House voted Friday to reprimand Reps. Edward R. Royball, Charles H. Wilson and John J. McFall.

But for Royball the punishment was a relief because a coalition of minority groups, aided by overwhelming support from the California delegation, succeeded in getting the House to reject a censure motion.

Roybal called the lesser penalty "a victory for me, for the civil rights of all congressmen and for all Americans who believe in the constitutional rights of equal justice for all Americans."

Orders New Elections In Alaska

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Citing "mistakes and confusing procedures," a judge has ordered a replay of Alaska's photo-finish gubernatorial primaries, one of which featured a bitter Republican duel between incumbent Gov. Jay Hammond and former Gov. Walter Hickel.

Superior Court Judge Ralph Moody, in a decision handed down Friday night, concluded that the primaries were sloppily run and ordered "a new election at the earliest practicable date."

Hammond edged Hickel by 98 votes in the Aug. 22 GOP primary, while state Sen. Chancy Croft of Anchorage defeated former state Sen. Ed Merdes of Fairbanks by 260 votes in the Democratic race.

Hickel and Merdes had filed suits alleging that sloppy election procedures cost them victory.

Facing Possible Life Sentences

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Two Soviet employees of the United Nations face possible life in prison after being convicted of trying to pass U.S. defense secrets to their homeland.

A jury of eight men and four women found Valdik Enger, 39, and Rudolf Chernyayev, 43, guilty Friday of conspiring to obtain secret defense data, espionage and conspiracy to deliver the documents to the Soviet government.

U.S. District Judge Frederick Lacey allowed the pair to remain free without bail, in the custody of Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin, at least until Monday when he is to decide whether to jail the two pending a scheduled Oct. 30 sentencing.

Investigating Earlier GSA Officials

By DONALD LAMBRO

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The chief investigator looking into fraud and mismanagement at the General Service Administration disclosed Saturday he is investigating "very high" GSA officials who served in earlier administrations, even though the statute of limitations may have run out in some cases.

Vincent Alto, the former Justice Department prosecutor who has headed GSA's internal investigation since May, said much of his investigation is focusing on higher ups within the agency.

"I am looking into very high officials who have been gone from here for several years but who were involved in multimillion-dollar leasing and construction contracts," Alto said in an interview.

"I'm going back to both tme Ford and Nixon administrations, and I'm even going back before that time — not so much from a prosecuting point of view but to develop a history of fraud within the agency.

"It isn't just the past few years that GSA has been the way it is," Alto said. "Corruption at GSA can be traced back to the Truman administration and has proliferated in each succeeding administration.

GSA officials estimate that at least $100 million a year is lost through fraud by the government's $5 billion building and procurement agency, in addition to more than $165 million lost annually through mismanagement and waste.

Alto said the government's efforts to prosecute former top GSA officials may be thwarted by the five-year statute of limitations, after which criminal convictions cannot be obtained.

Claims Evidence Ray Did Not Murder King

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorney Mark Lane said Saturday he has "irrevocable evidence" that James Earl Ray did not murder Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and that he knows who did and can provide the names of at least two members of the assassins' group.

Lane said persons in high positions in the U.S. government are aware of the information clearing Ray of the sniper murder in Memphis in 1968 but have not divulged it.

"They are, all of them, accessories to the fact in the murder of Dr. Martin Luther King," Lane said.

Lane is the attorney who appeared with Ray in recent hearings before the House Assassinations Committee that investigated the murders of King and President John F. Kennedy.

Ray is serving a 99-year sentence for his confession to killing King with a rifle at a Memphis motel. Ray has recanted the confession, contending he was duped by others who killed King, but the Assassinations Committee did not call for a new trial for Ray.

Lane, in a telephone call to Washington radio station WRC, an NBC affiliate, said he will soon file motions in federal and district courts demanding a trial for Ray.

"We now know, with irrevocable evidence, evidence which is beyond any question, that the most cynical person in the country, even members of Congress, have to accept, we know for the first time who killed Martin Luther King," Lane said.

"Not only the group involved, but we have the names of two of the people involved in the group. We know James Earl Ray is not guilty, we know who was involved.

Identified

GREENBORO, N.C. (UPI) — Guilford County Sheriff Paul H. Gibson said Saturday the state medical examiner has identified a woman's body that was in an apartment freezer for six years as the wife of the renter of the apartment.

Gibson said the body of Julie Cline was found Wednesday by deputies as they were moving furniture from the apartment of Arthur W. Cline Jr. The apartment had been rented since 1972 but apparently never occupied.

Gibson said officials are looking for Cline and he expects a warrant to be issued for Clines arrest Monday.

Tests For Future Teachers

CHAPEL HILL N.C. (AP) — Prospective teachers in North Carolina will have to take two tests before being certifiied under a plan approved Friday by the University of North Carolina Board of Governors.

Under the plan, students who want to become teachers would have to take a test covering English usage, literature, fine arts, social studies, math and sciences before being admitted to teacher training programs.

The second test would be given in the student's senior year. It would cover the program areas in which the student planned to teach. After passing the test and getting his degree, the student would get initial certification for three years.

Dr. Donald Steadman, an associate vice president of the UNC system who helped develop the plan, said it should take three to six years to get it operating fully.

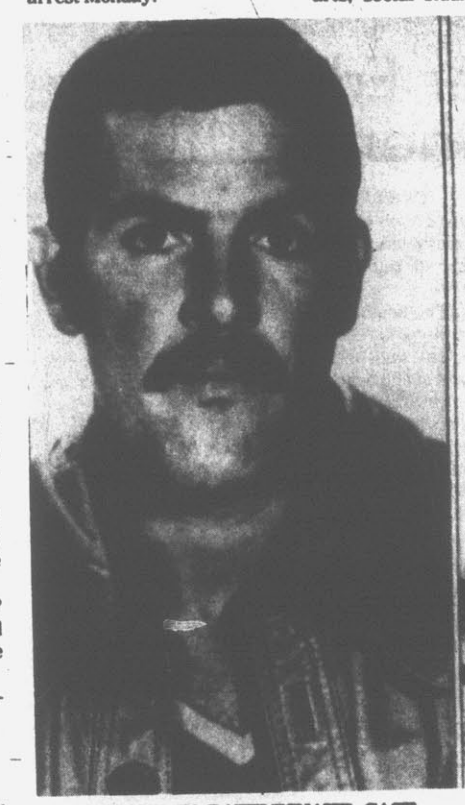

The board hopes to improve the quality of teachers in the state with the program, which is believed to be the first of its kind in the country.

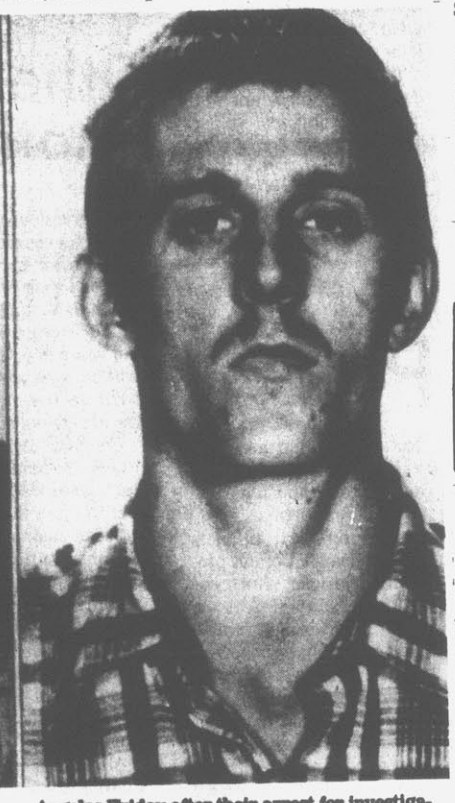

Other parts of the program, which was also approved by the State Board of Education, are:

—A review of entrance requirements for the state's public and private colleges and universities as they apply to teacher education candidates.

—Clarification of the skills required in teacher education programs to produce competent teachers.

The plan was developed by UNC and the state Department of Public Instruction.

A TRIBUTE

During our lifetime, there are those rare occasions when unique people serve humanity so diligently and willingly that the majority of society both takes them for granted and overlooks their humble and sacrificial deeds.

Often when individuals of prestige, glamour and authority depart this life we pay tribute by naming streets and buildings in their honor, by establishing memorials and scholarships, perhaps bequeathed by the deceased or by setting aside holidays in their behalf.

A humble character with a frail bodily frame, but with a great and continuing contribution to mankind departed this life last week. However, no one in Greenville will possibly remember this figure with a bust or a scholarship; yet, none of us will ever forget his unceasing service to this city. He counseled and led young ghetto-doomed, project-mired Black boys through his unyielding service as a Boy Scout Master. He directed his life and aided the development of untold others as church sexton and Sunday School Superintendent at Mount Calvary FWB Church. He educated, trained, corrected, loved high school students at C.M. Eppes and J.H. Rose until his retirement for which Rose prepared a lunch in his honor and awarded him several merited gifts in December, 1977. He, in no small measure, helped to shape the fortunes of numerous young people in Greenville with his example and his direction.

Mr. Willie "Buster" Joyner is dead. His personal value to Greenville and to the world will not erode in the sands of time; rather, it shall forever live for "Bro Buster's" worth lives in the hearts of students, scouts and all of us who knew him and who were privileged to love him.

This man's life exemplifies that one needs not money, clothes, jewelry, fame or land to indeed "Be Somebody." Jesus has provided the world the solace: "Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth." (Matthew 5:5)

Tobacco Festival Is Supported

The First Annual Southern Flue-Cured Tobacco Festival will be held here Nov. 12-18, and the event is creating enthusiasm in state government.

Representatives of the Area Chamber of Commerce visited the governor Monday and he signed a proclamation naming the week of Nov. 12-18 as Tobacco Appreciation Week in North Carolina.

The governor pointed out that tobacco means much to the economy of North Carolina and said he was glad to see the festival staged in Greenville.

The festival will salute the tobacco industry in the states of Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia and Florida.

Tobacco has its share of critics nationally but there is certainly a positive economic side to the growing of tobacco and manufacture of tobacco products. The crop provides a living for thousands of farm families and many more thousands of workers throughout the five southern states.

The Tobacco Festival and Tobacco Appreciation Week will honor those whose hard work have built the industry and benefitted the economy of our Southern region.

North Carolina's Annual Fall Display

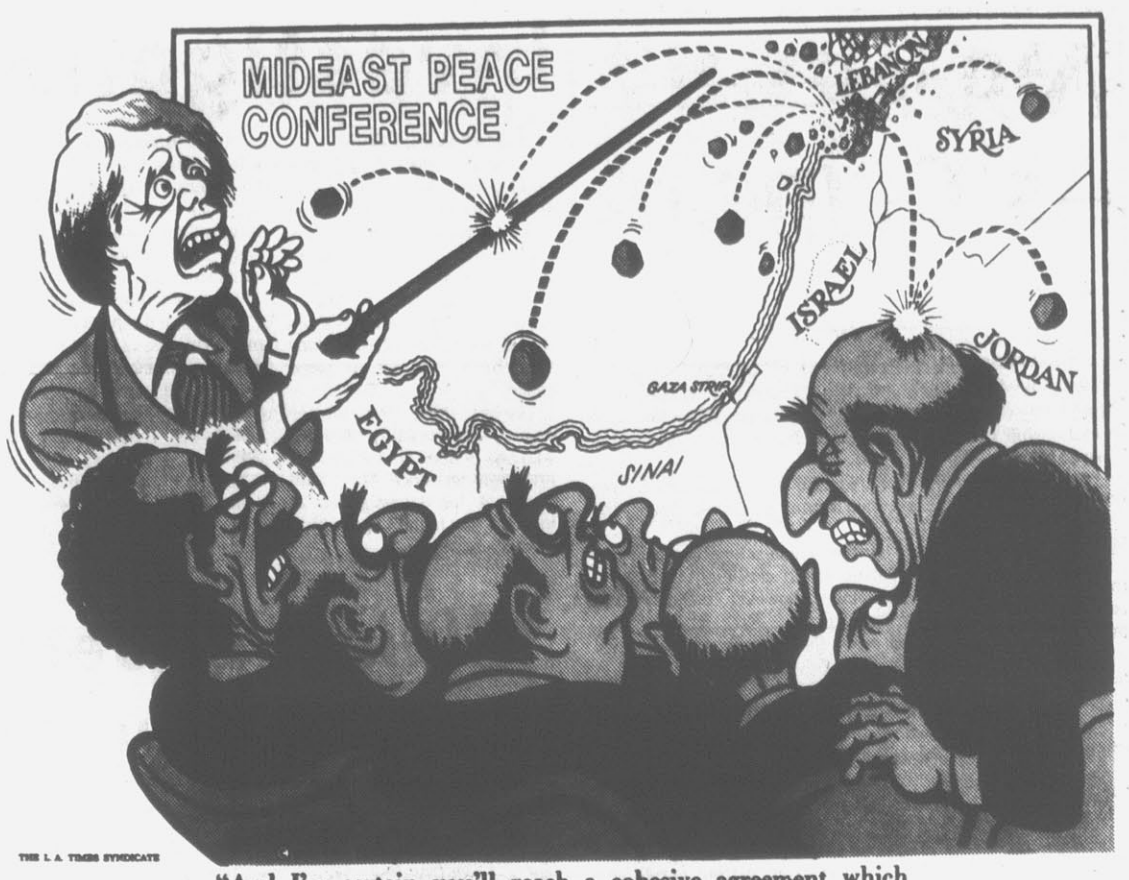

North Carolina's natural attractions are tremendous by any standards

Our coast is characterized by the Outer Banks that attract visiters worldwide.

And to the west are the mountains, which, although they are not the tallest, furnish scenery and recreation that bring thousands of visitors each year.

Sometime this weekend, or during the next few days, the mountains will be their most sensational. The brilliant fall leaves will paint them to create an unsurpassed scene.

The mountains are popular during the summer and in recent years they have become great ski resorts. However, they are most breath-taking for a few days each fall when nature puts on a unique display of colors.

Bank Bandits Run Second

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Gov. Jim Hunt and the North Carolina Bankers Association made a big production recently about the decline in bank robberies in the state.

A $2,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and indictment of a bank robber was largely credited for the happy decrease.

Crime statistics show that in one year bank robberies in North Carolina fell from 85 to 47.

A probing question from a newsman threw a wet blanket on the celebration.

Isn't it true, Banker H.L. Ruth was asked, that there is more money embezzled by bank employees than lost to bank robbers?

"Yes ... that's true," Ruth glumly admitted.

Great State

What's the greatest state in North Carolina?

"We are", say residents of Wilkes (formerly county, now) State in the northwest corner of the rest of the state.

To prove it, the Wilkes Board of (County) Commissioners has adopted a county seal reading: "Great State of Wilkes ... Wilkes County, North Carolina — 1778 — Imperium Intra Imperio."

That Latin phrase, according to County Manager John Barber means, "A State Within a State."

Wilkes is not alone.

Mecklenburg County has for years been referred to as the Great State of Mecklenburg. But that was informal, unofficial, and not always delivered out of respect or endearment for the largest metropolitan area and one generally judged quite "different" from the rest of the state.

Then there is the State of Franklin; a group of western counties which once might have carved for themselves a truly established position as one of the United States, in conjunction with territory now in the State of Tennessee.

BILL NOBLITT

There is more than one state to North Carolina. Which lends some credence to the observation of a widely traveled resident who once observed that North Carolina is the only state in the nation where you can go from West Virginia to Mississippi without crossing a state line.

Chris Award

An onlooker proposed the other day establishment of a special award for legislative study commissions, to be periodically presented to those august bodies which spend so much time and effort probing matters and proposing solutions for consideration.

It would be the Christopher Columbus Award, named to honor that venerable figure who didn't know where he was going; didn't know where he was when he got there; and when he got back home, didn't know where he had been.

More Research

A high state official complains of the tone in a recent column poking fun at those cancelled training seminars on newborn snakes, earth snails and rat social behavior. Such research can yield dividends for people later on, he argues.

The state laboratories are doing some important work in duck embryoes, spiders high on drugs, and day-old mice who can punch a button to get a drink of water.

Sunday Morning Notes

Hurricanes, which form as tropical storms in the Caribbean, are closely watched along the coast of North Carolina, and further inland.

A newcomer might wonder why the storms are so carefully charted by folks who live in Pitt and surrounding counties.

From the time the storms are born they become items in the newspapers. As they grow television weather observers report their positions. Weather maps for charting the hurricanes are available and they are popular items.

There is plenty of reason for concern, and you had to be around in October, 1954 to understand the high interest in hurricanes.

That was the year that Hurricane Hazel moved up the coast of North Carolina. It was not taken too seriously this far inland, but on Oct. 14 Hazel was the top news story of the day in "The Daily Reflector." The storm was reported moving on the capes of North Carolina with winds up to 130 miles per hour... but then sea storms had buffeted the Outer Banks of North Carolina for centuries.

It turned out that Hurricane Hazel was different, however, and the Oct 15 edition reported that there was a Civil Defense mobilization in Pitt County. It was reported the storm had hit the coast and was expected to move through Pitt County during the afternoon.

Move in it did, with perhaps the most awesome winds of modern times. A warehouse on Memorial Drive was demolished and a hangar at the airport received damage, as did some of the planes.

Mostly the damage was just general, however, with large numbers of uprooted trees, and nobody could count the number of tree limbs down in streets and on highways throughout the county. Roof damage was widespread as asphalt shingles were simply broken off the tops of homes. Some metal roofs were rolled up by the high winds. And, of course, there was widespread interruption of electric service.

Rosalie Trotman recalls watching the storm with her mother from the back porch of their home on U. S. 13 north.

"The ground would tremble as whole trees were pulled up by the roots and then toppled over," she remembers. She recalled that she was not afraid, but awed by it all.

Over the weekend reports of widespread damage came in from all over Eastern North Carolina.

The high winds were so general that not much was left untouched in the path of the hurricane.

It was to be the first of several hurricanes over the next several years which would affect our area. Then, in the mysterious ways of nature, the courses of the storms changed and we have been spared such a disaster for two decades.

Those who were around during Hazel are well aware that it can happen again, and hence the interest in following the paths the killer storms take each year. If it is any solice the season for hurricanes is about over, and we weren't hit — but there's next year.

Other Editors Say Another Guilty

(Washington Daily News)

Congressman Charles C. Diggs Jr., Michigan Democrat and a 12-term congressman, has been found guilty of 11 counts of mail fraud and 18 counts of filing falsified congressional payroll forms.

At this writing he has not yet been sentenced, but the maximum sentence he could receive is five years for each count, or 145 years in prison, and fines totalling $191,000. Of course he will not face any such punishment as that, and regardless of what his sentence might be, he will appeal. And perhaps for the next few years his case will be worn out in federal courts.

Congressman Diggs is a black man and he is head of the Black Caucus in congress. He has been very influential, and his trial in Washington, D.C. has drawn considerable interest. Yet the jury that found him guilty was composed of 11 black citizens and one white man. The jury had nine female members sitting on it. Thus members of his own race sitting as his peers found him guilty as charged. Yet his own constituents say differently.

Now what will congress itself do? Will congress be content to leave it alone and just sit there unattentive? Some think it possible, but hardly can congress censure Congressman Edward Roybal of California and turn its head on Congressman Diggs. Yet a committee has recommended censure for Roybal.

Also, Congressman Diggs is up for reelection in Michigan. Coming from a predominantly black district he defeated a black for the Democratic nomination, and he has a black woman Republican running against him in November. But he is expected to win handily.

Here is a man convicted of forcing his staff members to give him back part of the salaries they received. Whether he is truly guilty or innocent is a matter for the courts to say, and the court in the District of Columbia says he is guilty. This is not a race matter in any sense. It is a matter of morals and principles, and if Congressman Diggs can remain in congress through the suffrance of his fellow members, then we must wonder just how congress defines justice. If those who lead us cannot adhere to the everyday principles of honesty, decency, truth and self respect, then they should not be in congress. It just seems to us that it should be that way.

40 Years Ago Today

October 15, 1938

President L. R. Meadows spoke to the students at an East Carolina Teachers College assembly yesterday. His topic was "Some of the Pressing Problems of Education in North Carolina". His purpose was to point out the relation of the public school teacher to these problems.

He spoke first of the great waste of natural resources in the state, illustrating from a number of fields, and said that as teachers reach all the people of classes, a teachers college should feel a special responsibility for making its students conscious of the problem.

Some other problems that prospective teachers need to be familiar with, he discussed briefly—the changing curriculum, demanded by the changing social order, the imperative need for safety education for all and the development of the reading public in North Carolina.

"There are many other problems which will come to your attention," said Dr. Meadows in closing, "which I do not have time to mention. But they will come anyway, whether I get to mention them this morning or not."

THE INSIDE REPORT

Boston's New Tea Party

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

BOSTON — Typifying the political upheaval caused by a socio-economic uprising in Massachusetts, Edward J. King kept a photograph of Gerald R. Ford behind his campaign headquarters desk even after his unexpected nomination as Democratic candidate for governor in the Sept. 19 primary.

One Democratic leader trying to reconcile liberals behind King nearly fainted when he saw the picture and urged that it be taken down. Stubbornly self-assured, King rejected the advice. Not until Chip Carter, the president's son, visited the headquarters and noted the absence of his father's picture did Jimmy Carter replace Jerry Ford on the wall.

While switching photographs, King has changed neither his rhetoric nor his ideology. "I'm free enterprise," King, who was a favorite of the business community while running the Massachusetts Port Authority, told a recent fundraiser in suburban Weston. "I really am — free enterprise and let the people alone." When a Republican lawyer noted that he sounded mighty like a Republican, the Democratic candidate just beamed. Indeed, he had considered running as a Republican or independent before taking the Democratic route.

More is involved than the exotic prospect of a highly conservative governor in the only state George McGovern carried for president. A new Boston Tea Party was launched when ex-pro football lineman King seeking his first public office defeated Gov. Michael Dukakis for the Democratic nomination. "This was a repudiation of two decades of suburban liberalism," one liberal Democratic leader told us. "We had piled program after program for the benefit of constituency groups with no thought of the taxpayers."

The public rose against the state's traditionally high tax burdens to support these programs. King's stands for capital punishment and against abortion were not nearly so important as his promise for a "Massachusetts version" of California's Proposition 13 to reduce property taxes — a fact fully acknowledged by Dukakis.

When King visited businessman George Pine's home in Milford for a fundraiser recently, the assembled middle-class Democrats talked only of tax reduction. "Frankly, I don't like King's position on abortion," one real estate agent told us. "But Dukakis left me when he broke his word not to raise taxes. People have had it up to here with taxes."

State and local officials consider King's tax cut program a delusionn. With some justification, they feel he cannot cut enough waste from welfare and will not antagonize organized labor by squeezing the state's bloated civil service. How, then, can he finance his tax reduction?

Knowingly or not, King's answer is current Republican doctrine: an improved business climate will generate more revenue, which in turn will make possible income tax cuts as well as reduced property levies. Although King told us he had never heard of either the Kemp-Roth bill or the Laffer curve, he has adopted their principles.

His Republican opponent, state House minority leader Francis Hatch, stands in sharp contrast to King on stressing environmental concerns over economic growth, on nuclear power and other issues. "You can't run this state with a

Strength For Today

BORN AGAIN

We hear much today about "born again Christians." Yet this term sometimes provokes objection. Some people point out that they have been loyal members of churches for years and have never had religious experiences. They ask whether they are not as good Christians as those who are presumably "born again".

Only the Lord knows about such matters. But certainly Jesus made it plain that people have to experience a profound transformation of life before they can be called Christian in the truest sense of the term. Jesus said, "Except a man be born again, he cannot see the Kingdom of God." "A man" means any one of us, of course.

But this spiritual rebirth occurs in vastly different ways. For some, it is a sudden experience; for others, a slow growth of understanding; for still others, a transformation of life and its values. But the New Testament undoubtedly teaches that spiritual rebirth is necessary to become a partaker of Christ's promise.

Ingredients For Credit Crunch

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Four of the five ingredients that usually cook up a credit crunch are now present in the economy, according to a recognized authority on the subject. But he still believes such a squeeze will be avoided.

Crunches are serious business because, simply stated, American industry and individuals live on credit. It finances not just the U.S. Government and big corporations, but households and even vacations.

Making it hard to get — because of a tight Federal Reserve money policy and strong demand for what little is available — is analgous to an ogre choking the hero and leaving him limp and shaken.

Since credit crunches precede recessions — an economy gasping for cash can't generate much vigor — the avoidance of one is a cause for cheering.

Alan Sinai doesn't suggest cheering, because we have rapid inflation, nearly full employment, tight money and financial instability, four of the precrunch ingredients. The only one missing is a boom economy.

But the "Crunch Barometer" he maintains for Data Resources Inc., the Lexington, Mass., economic think tank, does show that we're likely to avert the worst, if only by a whisker.

His major worry is about an external shock.

Conceivably, he believes, a shock could come from continued dollar weakness, partly as a consequence of sustained inflation, that would provoke an even tighter Federal Reserve money policy.

But that's not the forecast. Instead, Data Resources, founded by Otto Eckstein, former member of the Council of Economic Advisers, believes relief from "Pre-Crunch Period pressures" is just weeks away.

The current situation of money tightening, Sinai says, will ease late this year and early in 1979. This is the welcome scenario:

1. Real economic growth slows and private sector loan demand eases before the banking system runs dry on liquidity.

2. Inflation decelerates, helping to keep monetary growth within Federal Reserve targets, and thus permitting the Fed to exercise its policy options in seeking economic stability.

3. Continued progress is made toward a tighter federal budget, permitting a less restrictive monetary policy by the Fed.

4. "The Fed is assumed to be more forward-looking than in previous years, acting soon as the economy weakens to prevent a full recession."

5. Dollar stability occurs, easing the Fed's burden defending the dollar.

6. The 1979 tax cuts provide liquidity to households and corporations, interrupting a balance sheet deterioration that has been in process for 1½ years.

See Govm't As Culprit

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J. — "Big government" will be on the minds of many voters when they cast their votes on Nov. 7 for congressional candidates and on state referenda dealing with spending curbs inspired by California's Proposition 13.

Rank-and-file members of both the Republican and Democratic parties blame government for many of the nation's ills. Specifically, these findings emerge from the latest Gallup Poll:

*Government, not business or labor, is held most responsible for inflation;

*"Big government" rather than business or labor poses the greatest threat to the nation's future;

*A majority of Americans say they would vote for, rather than against, a congressional candidate who called for a 5 percent reduction in the federal work force during each of the next four years.

The percentage of Americans currently citing government as the chief culprit in the inflationary spiral (51 percent) is the highest one found in surveys dating back nearly two decades.

That government must bear the burden of blame for inflation is particularly significant in that this finding was recorded at a time when six of every 10 Americans were also saying that inflation is the No. 1 problem facing the nation.

Here is the question asked:

"In your opinion, which is most responsible for inflation — government, business, or labor?"

Following is the trend since 1959 and the latest results by political affiliation:

Responsibility For Inflation

	Government	Business	Labor	No opinion

Greatest Threat

The public not only sees the government as most responsible for inflation, but also as more threatening to the future of the country.

Nearly half of all Americans, 47 percent, say the government poses the biggest threat to the future well-being of the nation compared to 19 percent who cite big labor or big business.

Unlike their attitudes regarding responsibility for inflation, there are differences on this question by political affiliation. Although a plurality of Republicans, Democrats and independents find government most threatening, Democrats are more likely than either Republicans or independents to say the chief threat is big business.

Here is the question, the trend since 1959, and results by political affiliation:

"In your opinion, which of the following do you think will be the biggest threat to the country in the future — big business, big labor or big government?"

bulldozer," Hatch declares As unaware of the Laffer curve ore revenue for lower tax rates) as King, he opposes cutting income or sales taxes while advocating property tax reduction. Hatch comes over as neutral in the midst of tax revolt.

King's headquarters in Boston's financial district lacks the blacks, youths and women (in other than secretarial posts) common to Democratic campaigns. Brawny Ed King, a Boston College football star, would be the state's first Irish Catholic governor elected since 1950. The sense that the guard is about to change is palpable.

Many liberal Democrats bolting to Hatch cite King's preference for superhighways and jet airports over mass transit. Yet, there was considerable public distaste when Dukakis as governor took the rapid transit to work and resisted superhighways. "The people here," one prominent Democrat told us, "don't mind the governor in a big black limousine if their taxes are kept under control."

Defection goes both ways, with members of the tiny state Republican party's right wing deserting Hatch, a slim, 6-foot-4 millionaire patrician who rowed on the Harvard crew. One wellknown Republican who has endorsed Hatch confided: "A lot of us are thrilled by the kind of government Massachusetters will get from King."

King's inner circle is deeply concerned over Boston newspaper exposes of his alleged maladministration at the Port Authority. Nor is King a giant in debate. When by chance the two candidates collided at long distance over a radio talk show recently, Hatch cut the stumbling King to shreds over tax reduction. Hatch eagerly awaits two televised debates next month.

But King's lead is massive. If it is not closed, Boston's new Tea Party will mean a radically different kind of Democrat in charge here. That poses potentially serious consequences for President Carter in 1980, even though his picture belatedly has replaced his Republican predecessor's in Ed King's office.

The Treasury Department's Bureau of Alcohol, Firearms and Tobacco is testing the product.

Roy Parker, manager of the testing project with the AFT in Washington, said the tags will provide "very important leads to bomb investigators." The tags could lead to more convictions and fewer terrorist bombings, Parker said.

Five bills are pending in Congress to make manufacturers add microtaggants to explosives and file their identifying tags with the AFT.

In a recent AFT test, an auto was loaded with explosives and detonated, destroying the car. The federal agents magnetically swept the area and found the microtaggants.

A closer look under a microscope revealed a sequence of colors on each layer of the tags. The color code then revealed the type explosive used, where it was manufactured, when it was made and who distributed it. The distributor could possibly lead police to the actual buyer of the explosives.

Since each tag has nine layers, each one a different color, there are several million different color codes available. The coded microtaggants cost about $200 a pound.

"A dynamite manufacturer would assign a code to every batch (of explosives) he makes up," said Donald O'Brien of the 3M Co., which developed the product. "It has the same information on it the label on dynamite now has, but the label is blown off after the explosion.

A Conservative View

Right To Rescind Has Never Been Ruled Upon

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — The battle over the Equal Rights Amendment to the Constitution, which had been scheduled to end in March of 1979, now has a new deadline. The sovereign states are to have until June of 1982 to decide upon ratification. A few observations are in order.

Last week's bitter, bruising Senate debate resulted from one factor that is not likely to be repeated for years to come. When Congress approved the ERA and sent the proposed resolution out to the states in 1972, Congress wrote a seven-year deadline not into the body of the amendment, but rather into the resolution of submission. If the seven-year clause had been in the body of the amendment, the deadline could not have been changed without a two-thirds vote in each house. This could not possibly have been obtained, and the matter never would have come up.

Observation No. One: Flounders will fly and swallows will swim before Congress makes that mistake again. Seven-year clauses will clutter up the Constitution, but that's the way it's going to be.

The principal fight last week had to do with efforts by Senators Scott of Virginia and Garn of Utah to deal with the matter of rescission. The ERA went out to the states in 1972. Within one year 30 states had tumbled over themselves to ratify. Then a remarkable chill set in. People began asking themselves what constitutionally, legally was meant by "equality of rights under the law". Second thoughts arose. In the ensuing five years, only five more states ratified — and in this same period, four states rescinded.

The purpose of the Scott-Garn proposal was to say that during an extension period, any legislature that had ratified the ERA "may rescind such ratification at any time prior to the ratification of the amendment by three-fourths of the several states." Their proposal lost decisively. The defeat caused some anguish among opponents of the ERA, but it transported ERA supporters into rapture.

Observation No. Two: The anguish and the ecstasy were understandable, but the sighs and shouts were meaningless. Nothing the Senate could have voted on this particular issue would have made any difference. If the states have a right to rescind, this is a constitutional right; it could not be taken from them by killing the Scott-Garn resolution. On the other hand, if the states have no right to rescind, the Congress could not grant it to them.

Is there a right to rescind? Did the legislatures of Idaho, Nebraska, Kentucky and Tennessee, all of which ratified in 1972, act lawfully in subsequently rescinding their ratifications? The short answer is that no one knows, and the Supreme Court has never laid down a positive pronouncement on the issue. Top constitutional scholars are in diametric disagreement.

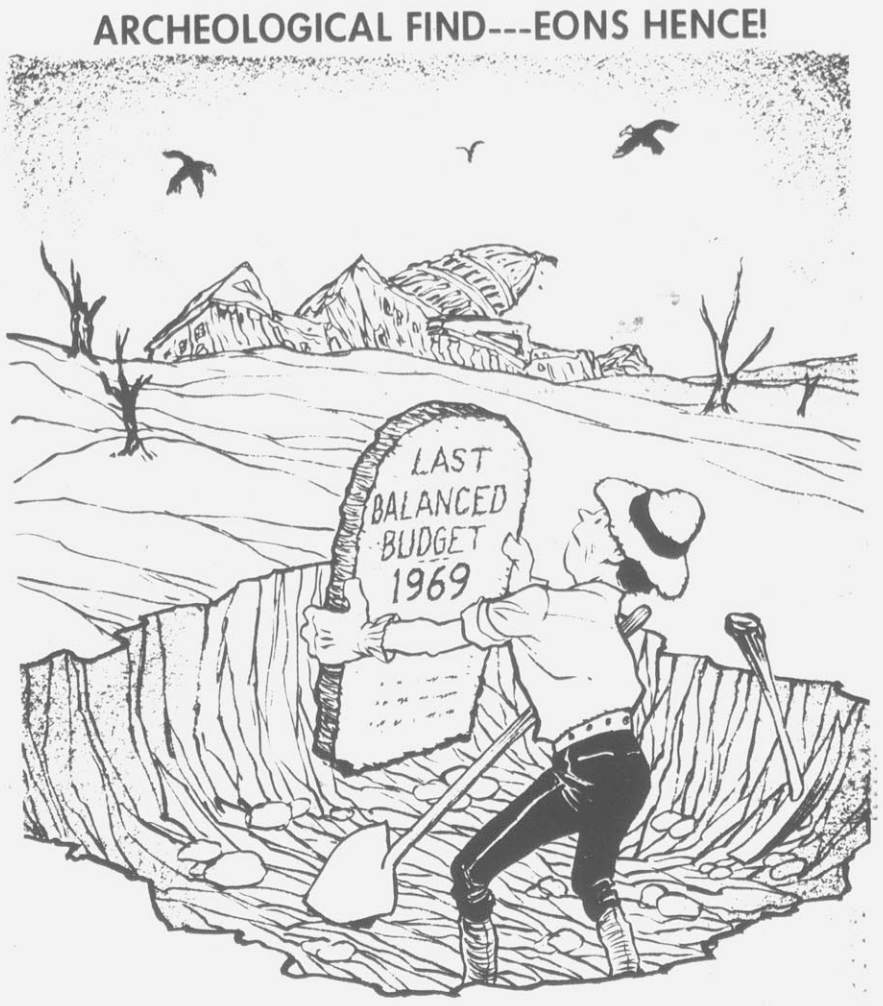

Observation No. Three: Common sense supports the proposition that of course the states have a right to change their mind on a proposed constitutional amendment at any time during the amendment's pendency. This can be demonstrated by the case at hand. Thirty-five legislatures have voted to ratify, 15 have refused. Four of the 35 have rescinded. Let us suppose that Kansas, Montana, Wyoming, South Dakota and West Virginia should vote next year to rescind in the past couple of years, each of them has moved in that direction. That would make nine rescissions. Are we to understand that notwithstanding their clear rejection of the ERA, Congress could count all nine states toward the necessary 38? It sounds inconceivable.

During the extension debate, Senators Bayh of Indiana and Kennedy of Massachusetts offered examples of the ways in which women are discriminated against in today's society. Some examples dealt with state laws. Other examples dealt with federal laws. Still others, such as the complaint that women hold only 9 percent of the seats in state legislatures, dealt with decisions in the private sector.

Observation No. Four: The quickest, easiest way to end the discrimination that results from state laws is to persuade state legislatures to repeal them — or — failing that, to go to court under the 14th Amendment. Senators Bayh and Kennedy are powerful gentlemen. They are perfectly capable of setting in motion the repeal of all federal laws that deny equality of rights on account of sex. As for the third class of complaints, involving wholly private social or political acts, the pending ERA would not touch them anyhow.

I think the ERA is uncertain, unneeded and in terms of its transfer of legislative power from the states to Congress, dangerously unwise. I hope a dozen states rescind. But, Observation No. Five: One way or another, win or lose, the Republic will survive and the status of women will not be greatly changed.

ARCHEOLOGICAL FIND---EONS HENCE!

Facing South

Phillips Was There At Birth Of Presley's Era

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Sam Phillips, the man who shuffled the cards and dealt the first hand of genuine rock'n'roll, now looks back on the days when he, Elvis Presley, Scotty Moore (guitar) and Bill Black (bass) launched a new age of American culture on Phillips' Sun Records. In 1954 and '55 they cut five frantic records, including "That's All Right, Mama", giving Elvis his start and setting the tone for the whole of early rock 'n' roll, which in turn helped transform the American scene into a youthoriented society.

Phillips is a mixture of earthiness and spirituality, and he speaks with evangelical conviction, phrasing his sentences with the cadence of a preacher.

"I think people from the South especially are people who are close to the things that are fundamental — the earth, the wind, the sky, crops, harvesting, mules, broken-down cars." Phillips' early life parallels Presley's in many ways. Both grew up poor in the South.

"You dream a lot about what possibly you could do with your life," he continues. "Poor people dream a lot."

Dreams brought Sam Phillips from Florence, Alabama, to Memphis in the late 1940s, and he went to work at WREC radio. In 1950 he opened his own modest studio, where he recorded everything from weddings to speeches, and began working with local rhythm-and-blues musicians. "I was laughed at by some very good friends because I was recording blacks", he said. "That sort of thing just wasn't done at that time."

If Phillips' work with black artists went against social etiquette of the 1950s, what he did in 1954 had to be even more unsettling. He and three other white men — Presley, Moore and Black — started putting out records with a distinctively black sound. The birth of the music that brought Elvis such fame was not an easy one, though.

"We cut a lot of stuff on Elvis ... we tried a number of times, and we had gotten a lot of stuff that was good, that might have been commercial, but I didn't hear enough in any of the stuff that we had done to get excited."

Then on July 6, 1954, "I came out of the control room and went out into the little studio and said, "Well, look man, we been fiddling around here three or four months and we ain't hacking it. Now, let's get with it. Elvis, what in the world, don't you know some old rhythm-and-blues things or some old country things that we can do something with?" Then I went back in the control room, and he cut down on "That's All Right, Mama" and I thought, 'Oh God, man this is what we've been waiting on'. My mind just snapped.

"I didn't want it to appear just as strictly rhythm and blues — a white man trying to sing like a black man — and I certainly didn't want it to appear country. There was just nobody writing that material that had a country flavor, a black spiritual feel and a good mixture between a white country record and a black record.

"It became easier and easier, and Elvis, of course, became more familiar with Scotty and Bill and with me. And I think he felt, 'Well, man, there're no big shots here. And we can lay it on. We don't have to be artificial about it.'

"I think my biggest contribution was to let these people (the musicians) know that I wasn't a record executive. Never was, and never could be ... Scotty, Bill, Elvis, practically all the people I worked with had the same type of roots. And so instead of a big producer

Child-Rearing Theories Turn Out Mere Theories

By GAIL MICHAELS

It is often said that people should be trained for parenting just as they should for any other important job. And millions of parents are swallowing this without qualification. These are the parents who consume pop psychology books like Lays Potato Chips.

Then there are the rebels. These are the parents who think bookstores should have a sign over their psychology sections..." Must be 49 to read. I.D. Required."

Now these parents are not to be confused with those people who think anal fixation is a new denture cream. Most of them are quite knowledgeable. They have even read enough to know the Piaget is not a French bicycle. But with at least 75 different child-reading theories floating around at any given time, they're beginning to wonder if plain old horse sense doesn't have some merit after all.

I began to feel this way soon after Meg began to talk. I used to think that if a psychologist got a spot on the Today show, he had the Answer. But Meg refused to conform to any of the popular theories. For instance, I got all enthused over logical consequences, which, in essense, assumes that children will respond predictably, like computers. Unfortunately, I found that Meg is about as predictable as a flash flood.

But my faith in psychology was really destroyed when Meg shot down the one child-rearing theory I had venerated since my college days. Somewhere I had been taught that one should never, NEVER answer a child's question, "Why?", with "Because I said so." The damage this answer could cause might be irreparable. So I avoided it like the plague. No matter how many times Meg asked "Why?", I was ready with an answer.

This, however, can get tiring when a child hits the terrible two's. Meg soon learned to wield that one little word like a machete. And like a fool, I, the guilt-ridden parent, just kept offering my neck.

"Why?," Meg asked one night last week when I told her it was bathtime.

I had already answered that question 200 times that day and over 2000 times that week, but I mustered some false cheer and answered, "Because you want to be clean when you go to bed, honey." I then pushed her firmly down the hall to the bathroom.

"Why?," she said.

"Because you feel better when you're clean."

"Why?"

I hoisted her into the bathtub and turned on the tap. "Because," I sighed, "we all feel better when we're clean."

"Why?"

I tried desperately to think of an answer, but she saved me the trouble.

"Why do I have to go to bed, Mommy?" she asked.

"Because little girls need to get plenty of rest so that they will feel good the next morning," I said, lifting her from the bathtub and drying her off.

"Why?"

"Because if you don't get enough sleep, you'll be cranky, and that won't be fun for you or for me. Now put on your pahamas."

"Why?"

At that instance, for some inexplicable reason, I reached the end of my endurance. "Because," I blurted out, "I... said...so!!"

I stood transfixed, waiting for Dr. Joyce Brothers to strike me with lightning or at least for the twinkle to fade forever from my little angel's eyes.

But it didn't. Instead she looked a little relieved. "Okay, Mommy," she said. "Can I wear the red ones?"

Felix Rohatyn The Man Who Saved New York

By VICTORIA GRAHAM
AP Newsfeaturess Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The view from the Empire State Building is not yet radiant, but the clouds of default have lifted, the financial forecast is fair and the man who helped rescue New York from bankruptcy is saying farewell and returning to private life.

Well, it is neither too final a farewell nor too private a life, because Felix Rohatyn has been mentioned for every job from mayor of New York to Secretary of the Treasury. But the sweetest tribute may be the wave from the kid who washes windshields in Harlem — and the taxi driver who wouldn't accept his fare.

Clear and blue-eyed, compact and unimposing, Rohatyn sits in an unremarkable but hardly uneventful office at the investment banking firm of Lazard Freres & Co. He shrugs off vague and future crowns and savors his latest piece of craftsmanship — a solvent city of New York.

A survivor of the Nazi holocaust, he surveys the surviving and reviving city that took him in 36 years ago. Hotels are rising, office space is dear, apartments are scarce, unemployment is down and so are welfare rolls.

"It was not only a great intellectual challenge, but a great emotional high," says the man who finessed the delicately counterbalanced financial structure — some call it a rickety and reckless contraption — that has kept New York from bankruptcy.

"Ninety-five percent of the job is done and it is time to leave," he says. "If a private citizen gets involved in public life and winds up with a fair amount of power, he can overstay and lose it."

True, the city still is not back in the bond market. But the long-term federal loan guarantees — which he proposed two years ago to incredulous naysayers, fought for and won last July — are in the bag.

The 50-year-old, Vienna-born Rohatyn (pronounced ROWa'tn) was the first chairman of Big MAC, the Municipal Assistance Corporation created by the state to refinance $6 billion in short-term city debt.

He has been called the Hank Aaron of deal makers, the Henry Kissinger of finance, the consummate common denominator.

Rohatyn concedes, "I'm a pretty good financial mechanic," but adds, "I'm more of a surgeon. I get called when something is broken. I'm supposed to operate, fix it up and leave as little blood on the floor as possible."

And he was called upon to operate by Gov. Hugh Carey in the summer of 1975 when default glowered from every corner and every watch told the 11th hour.

"I thought we'd just create MAC and get out," Rohatyn says. "Then I thought I'd stay through the first financing. Then there was no way out until the problem was solved. So I stayed."

And while he stayed, Rohatyn became the broker of disparate interests and elevated the politics of persuasion to an art:

He persuaded different interest groups to create MAC; he persuaded the state to give the city money; reluctant labor leaders to defer wage increases and invest pension funds in city bonds; even more reluctant bankers to buy more city securities; and city officials to give up a lot of home rule.

Rohatyn and his survival skills and monetary instincts were shaped 36 years ago in a hotel room in France when he spent an urgent night stuffing toothpaste tubes with gold coins.

It was that money, that left-in-your-hand kind of portable wealth, that helped his family flee the Nazis — from Marseilles, Casablanca and Lisbon to New York.

Over the years, his financial craftsmanship has been impressive:

As a general partner in Lazard Freres, head of its merger and acquisition department and a director of six major corporations, he has arranged formidable corporate marriages.

As a director of ITT, he arranged the acquisition by Lazard Freres of ailing Avis Renta-Car in 1962, helped restore it to health and sold it to ITT. Robert Townsend, who ran Avis with Rohatyn, says, "We used to call Felix 'the fastest gun in the East.'"

In 1970 Rohatyn helped straighten out the New York Stock Exchange when member firms were in danger of going under.

Little Money For Approved Highways

FRANKLIN, N.C. (AP) — The state Board of Transportation approved a number of highway projects Friday, but not enough money is expected to be available to complete all of them for some time.

Bradshaw said that the state's highway improvement needs exceed $7 billion but only $2 billion will be available for projects during the next seven years. During the next four years, the department expects to have $311 a year for improvements, he said.

That means it will be many years before some of the approved projects are constructed.

Also approved yesterday were 53 projects at 42 airports for which $1 million was approved for a three year period. The state money will be supplemented by $4.8 million in local funds and $13 million in federal allocations.

The public transportation of the program listed 45 projects for which $1.5 million was allocated. The federal government will give $10.5 million and local governments will supply $1.3 million.

Highway projects added to the list included:

Relocation and four-laning of U.S. 158 for the Murfreesboro bypass, $8 million.

Widening of U.S. 17 in Craven County, the Vanceboro bypass to Bridgeton, $10 million.

Widening U.S. 1 to four lanes from Franklinton to Henderson, $18 million.

Construction of a new fourlane road, the Benjamin Parkway Extension to the Greensboro-High Point-Winton-Salem Regional Airport, $11 million.

Haw River bypass on U.S. 70 in Alamance County, $4 million.

—Construction of a bypass around High Point connecting with U.S. 311 at both ends, $35 million.

—Widening the Laurinburg bypass to 4 lanes, $3.5 million.

—Inprovements to I-40 through Winston-Salem, $37.6 million.

—Rrelocation of N.C. 268 north of North Wilkesboro, $7 million.

—Widening N.C. 24-27 from N.C. 51 in Mecklenburg County to U.S. 601 in Cabarras County to four lanes, $6 million.

—Widening to four lanes N.C.150 from Cherryville to U.S. 321, $10 million.

—Widening U.S. 221 to four lanes from the Marion bypass to Woodlawn, $7 million, $7 million.

—Widening of U.S. 64 to four lanes from the U.S. 19-129 bypass to Peachtree, $7 million.

VINDICATED — Lt. David Steeves poses in this July 1957 file photo of him with the GI boots equipped with pockets holding a revolver, knife, fishing line, and hook that he credited with saving his life in what he purported at the time to be a 54-day trial of survival in the Sierras. His story of ejecting from an exploding jet and subsequent survival in the woods was highly doubted at the time because the wreckage was never found. In the summer of 1977 Boy Scouts came across the canopy of the jet in the area where Steeves said he parachuted, proving that he had been telling the truth. (AP Laserphoto) behind the glass window, saying 'Man, you got to do this, you got to do that.' I was one of them. We all had the same goal in mind — and that was to achieve acceptance."

In the Sun studio they melded songs, with musical styles that were strikingly innovative. The jerky vocal mannerisms, the driving rhythm, Moore's originality with the lead guitar, Black's probing bass and Phillips' inventive use of his studio's acoustics — all made for records that had an authentic genius about them. Nearly a quarter century later, they are still rated by critics as among the best rock 'n' roll records ever cut.

Phillips admits he has little understanding of what made Elvis such a mass-appeal figure. "This man had the ability to touch people. A great entertainer, yeah. A goodlooking man, yeah. Good showman, yeah." But there was something more ...

"Elvis almost had a Christ-like ability to communicate and to touch. That's what he did for us, as I see it now. I'm not sure we will ever know what gave him this ability except that I think God gave it to him."

Ramar Interested

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Officials at the Philadelphia Zoo are pleased at the interest Ramar is showing in two female lowland gorillas.

Ramar is on breeding loan from the North Carolina Zoo, but his exploits as a lover have been nothing to write home about. He has been hesitant in his approaches to Philadelphia's Haloko and Samantha.

However, Steve Viola, curator of mammals, reported this week: "Ramar is exhibiting behavior that could indeed be considered sexual."

Viola says Ramar has been seen grooming Samantha, and "very often, grooming is a prelude to actual sexual encounters."

Ramar's romances and adjustment to zoo life have been followed by interested persons around the country. Letters pour in daily from well-wishers and fans.

The gorilla gave up the bright lights of television and the night club circuit — where he rode tricycles, played bongos and did handstands on a 10-foot bamboo pole — to devote his energies to the continued survival of his species.

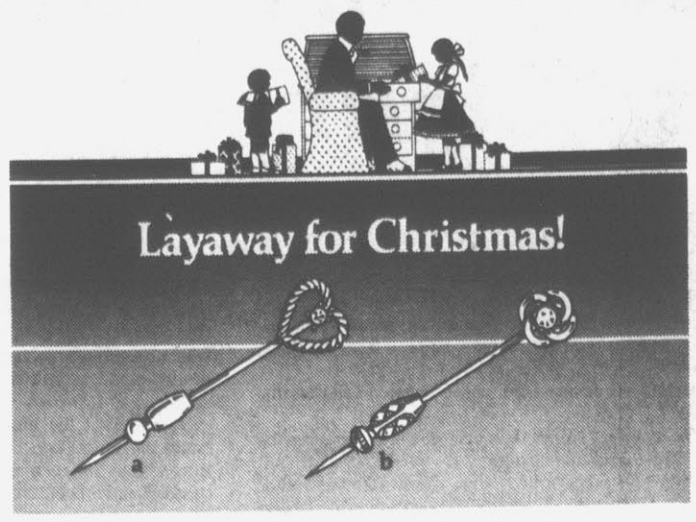

The world's lowland gorillas are dangerously threatened in the wilds of equatorial Africa by habitat destruction and an expanding human population.

Spoke On Bond Issue

Mayo Allen, director of the Greenville Public Works Dept., spoke to the Greenville Civitan Club recently on behalf of the Public Works Bond Issue.

Allen told the group that there is a need for expanding the public works facility in order to keep pace with the rapid growth and expansion of Greenville and to provide good service.

Following the address, the Civitan Club approved a motion to support passage of the Public Works Bond Issue in the November election.

UNC Board Narrowly Defeats Vet School Opposition

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — The University of North Carolina Board of Governors narrowly defeated a measure Friday that would have jeopardized money for the controversial veterinary school at North Carolina State University.

Hugh Cannon, a Raleigh attorney who led the opposition to the vet school on the board, introduced a proposal to give the vet school a lower priority on the budget list the board will submit to the state.

The project, a request for $22.3 million for construction in the next two years, was ranked seventh on the UNC board's priority list, with projects costing $21.9 million ahead of it.

Cannon wanted the priority moved to 10th, which would have put $64.8 million in projects ahead of it and possibly jeopardized the school's funding.

KKK Plans

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — The grand wizard of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan said Friday that the klan plans to set up its state headquaters in High Point.

David E. Duke, 28, met with klansman this week

The board defeated Cannon's proposal 15-11 after UNC President William Friday led a vigorous defense. He argued that the livestock industry needs the vet school and that the legislature would approve the project no matter what the board did.

The board also approved budget requests including:

—$1.2 billion to operate the 16-campus UNC system.

—A $5.9 million art building at UNC-Chapel Hill.

—Building projects of $26 million at N.C. Memorial Hospital in Chapel Hill.

—A $6.1 million music and drama building at Appalachian State University.

—A $6.4 million classroom building at UNC-Greensboro.

—A $3 million classroom building at UNC-Wilmington.

—A $3.5 million greenhouse complex at NCSU.

Seeks Compensation Rate Increase

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state's insurance industry asked the state Insurance Commission Friday for a 19.8 percent increase in rates for worker's compensation insurance.

The request follows a 28.4 percent hike in rates that went into effect Feb. 1.

The N.C. Rate Bureau, which asked for the raise on behalf of the insurance industry, proposed that the 19.8 percent increase go into effect March 1, 1979.

Employers buy workers' compensation insurance to insure their employees against work-related injuries or deaths.

Jerry Hamrick, assistant manager of the rate bureau, said the new rate schedule is based on increases in workers' compensation claims over the past two years.

Secretary Fired

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state Insurance Department fired a confidential secretary Friday who accused officials of requiring her to do political work for Insurance Commissioner John Ingram's U.S. Senate campaign.

Nancy H. Davis was dismissed effective at the end of Friday's workday, said W. Kenneth Brown, the deputy commissioner of insurance for whom Mrs. Davis worked. Brown said that Mrs. Davis was granted two weeks severance pay.

Mrs. Davis could not be reached for comment Friday.

The state Personnel Commission refused to hear her case earlier this week, saying her position was exempt from the state personnel act. Mrs. Davis appealed the case to Wake Superior Court.

Agrees To N C Trial

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Three Chautauqua County, N.Y. men charged with dumping toxic PCBs on 210 miles of North Carolina roadways have conditionally agreed to return to North Carolina to face trial on the federal charges, authorities said Friday.

A spokesman for the U.S. attorney's office in Raleigh said attorneys for Robert J. Burns, 49, and his two sons said they would not object to further efforts by federal authorities to return them to North Carolina.

But Assistant U.S. Attorney James Blackburn said the three men could change their position and continue to fight their return when a federal removal hearing continues Thursday in Buffalo, N.Y.

Pleads Guilty To Murder

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A Wake Forest man pleaded guilty to a charge of first-degree murder Friday in the death in August of a West Virginia schoolteacher who pulled over on a highway to help what he thought was a girl in trouble.

Mike Reyes Llama, one of three defendants in the case, had been charged in the death of Jerry Romine of Point Pleasant, W.Va.

Llamas, 22, also pleaded guilty to four counts of armed robbery, three counts of kidnapping and two counts of conspiracy.

Because of the guilty pleas, Assistant District Attorney Nicholas J. Dombalis said he would not seek the death penalty. However, a jury will still be empanelled to determine whether Llamas should be sentenced to die in the gas chamber or get life imprisonment.

Also charged in the case was Bland Julius Hill, 19, of Youngsville, who will be tried Monday. A third defendant, Terry Ann Hamm, 17, of Wake Forest, is expected to testify for the state.

The Awakening Of Eastern North Carolina Women

Awakenings: Writings and Recollections of Eastern North Carolina Women. Greenville, N.C. 1978. Published by the English Department Writing Program, East Carolina University. 105 pps., $3.00.

"Awakenings" is a collection of the recollections of eastern North Carolina women from the past, and the collectors may be viewed as a crew of six explorer-students skippered by Dr. Sally Brett, a young professor whose vessel was of the English class and whose given course was clear: "Rediscover the words of women."

The course has been completed and "Awakenings" is the log of the journey, both "on" and "off" course.

The six essays cover a period ranging from the 1850s to the present. The first, "Educating the Southern Lady," by Monika Sutherland, carries the reader to the decade before the Civil War at which point women were berthed "in their proper place" by a system which "educated not for the sake of education or knowledge but for the service of their husbands and families."

Ms. Sutherland's article, in effect, points out that women, in their families and family services, seemed asleep to new awakenings, to new points of berth and birth.

Greg Schroder's "Dear Burwell . . ." article is a recollection of letters written by members of a family involved in the Civil War. Author Schroder reveals the manner in which Mrs. Rebecca Pitchford Davis' letters to her son Burwell (and other kin) revealed an awakening of the concept that war-ships and wor-ships are held together and torn asunder by kin-ships: "Girls in both the North and South exhibit complete faith that their side will conquer and are convinced that God and divine justice are their guarantee of victory. The shock and disbelief of the Southern girl after Appomattox are coupled with their questioning of how God could allow such a disaster to occur." (It was as if a new "court of the see" were being launched while lost at sea—an off course courtship.)

"The Courtship of Della Barlow," by Denise Kinlaw, shares the correspondence which took place in the mid and late 1860's between a young girl from Tarboro, Della Barlow, and Colonel John Perry of Tarboro and Beaufort.

Kinlaw's perspective of the letters emphasize the submerged frustration and seemingly pointless position of women in those points of Southern space and time which surrounded the end of the war, but the pre-Civil War woman's status of "sewing and seaming" and seeming for men was being laid to rest; women's new rolls were beginning to emerge.

The Barlow letters illustrate with simple clarity this apparent pointlessness of women whose past tradition of family-service-from-a-pedestal was submerging.

In the literal and chronological center of "Awakenings" is William E. Stephenson's essay, "Part-way from Pedestal to Politics," a chronicle of southern women as represented by the history of Greenville's End of the Century Book Club and its founder, Sallie Southall Cotten. Stephenson carries the reader through three decades of club history beginning with the 1899 birth of a "novel" (based upon the French term fin de siecle) book club, and ending in 1929.

The club began with obvious vision of that which was yet submerged ahead, for Mrs. Cotten banded together 18 charter members who, if left alone, would be "afraid of the uncharted seas of effort which began to be visible to her." (Whereas, on June 6, 1864, Mrs. Davis' letter to her son Burwell indicated she was, in effect, losing her bearings — "these things are . . . too much for a mother to bear. . ." — Mrs. Cotten, in 1899, had visions of a new course for women and took bearings in that direction).

Stephenson shares details and highlights of each of three decades of club history which should be of interest to readers interested in cyclic patterns (re-berths) of the women's movement.

During its second decade of being, the End of the Century Book Club strengthened its ties with a new institution called East Carolina Teachers' Training School.

In the article, "The Class of 1914," author Florine Clark Everett shares the results of her interviews with 13 surviving members of the class of 1914.

These interviews reinforce the concept that women of this time, be they book club members or ECTTS professors, were transforming from observers to servers, for author Everett cites a quote from the school's first issue of its "Training School Quarterly" which indicates that service was not just a printed motto: school activities included "many in which the students were the leaders, the planners, the doers, not the passive observers."

Everett's article continues with vignettes of the 13 women which reveal that women of coastal North Carolina were finding new bearings in a sea of human awakenings.

In the time and space of a vessel — be it a boat, an English class, or an individual woman such as Johnetta Webb Spilman old wakes are transformed into new wakes at the precise point where the forward moving vessel playfully and crazily splits asunder the visible wakes of traditional vessels which preceded them.

Sandra Peek's "Portrait of a Politician" highlights the ongoing life of a dynamic female vessel known as Mrs. J. B. Spilman, who cracked (and continues to WISEly CRACK) the ice of frozen-in-tradition wakes "listing" before her.

Author Peek refers to Mrs. Spilman's early life: "She chose to live her life differently. For her time and place, she was emancipated." And a quote from A. F. Scott's works, cited by Peek and here lightheartedly but significantly edited by the reviewer, offers the reader an insight into the "in-site-full" mileau which surrounded Mrs. Spilman's awakening: — "and the very fluidity brought about by the immense social changes of the 19th century, the breaking up of old way(k)s of doing almost everything, created a climate in which the restructuring of a woman's roll could more easily take place." The vessel called woman, it seemed, was being re-berthed, awakened.

A study of these six essays offers the reader a viewpoint, not of traditional HIStory, but of insightful and inciting HERstory which was "off course and out-a-site." Was sleeping! Was pointless! But "Awakenings" has made visible this point which, perhaps, is best recognized in the life of Mrs. J. B. Spilman, who, in her own awakening, showed that the way(k) for woman to re-create HIStory, of course, is to create HERstory, "off course."

FROM SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

By Willie Mae Gibbs

Agatha Christie, the famous English mystery writer whose books have delighted fans for years, is herself the subject of a new mystery called AGATHA. At age 36 amidst tremendous acclaim drawn from her newest book, Agatha disappeared from her home with no warning. No convincing explanation was ever given for her eleven-day absence. Kathleen Tynam has taken up the challenge and has written in AGATHA an imaginary solution to this authentic mystery. As she puts it, the rather shy Agatha is perhaps unable to derive pleasure from her success because of her preoccupation with the painful fact of her personal life: Colonel Archibald Christie—her severely handsome, possibly spoiled, and quite selfish husband—has declared his love for young Nancy Neele and has asked Agatha for a divorce. His unwillingness to even discuss Agatha's plea for a second chance leaves her in a state of shock. She becomes withdrawn—and disappears, leaving no evidence to allow any definite explanation. How will such an accomplished mystery writer—so used to plotting intrigue, creating suspenseful episodes and then resolving them— react? Will she remain passive, or will she act to alleviate the pain of her betrayal? AGATHA—much more than a speculative narrative about a real mystery—is a portrait of a loving though blinkered woman who has been brought to the brink of despair and has as a result been forced to make a journey toward self-discovery.

SISTERS AND STRANGERS, a new book by Helen Van Slyke, follows the recent successes of her previous works, which have earned her a place on best-seller lists in American Fiction and a wide international following for her novels. This story is a moving account of the "girls" of Sam and Laura Dalton, reunited under their parent's roof for the first time in 30 years. These have been years of disillusion for Frances, the daughter who ran off in the forties with a young actor, and who returned, three marriages later to rediscover and nearly destroy her childhood sweetheart. For Alice, the battered wife, there have been years of misery. For Barbara, career woman and mistress of a prominent congressman, there have been years of pretended happiness. From Paris, Boston, and Washington, they returned to Denver out of "duty" for the celebration of their parents' golden wedding anniversary. There they soon found themselves plunged into joy and tragedy that would dissolve their estrangement and bind them, sisters but strangers no more. Helen Van Slyke portrays these women as they recapture the comfort of sharing and confirm a devotion that not even absence could sever. The realism and compassion that she uses in this portrayal has ranked SISTERS AND STRANGERS as modern human drama in its truest form.

Jan. 15 Deadline For Scholarships

WINSTON-SALEM — North Carolina students currently enrolled in grades seven through 12 are eligible to enter the fifth annual Sanford Scholarships competition, to be held January 26, 1979 at the North Carolina School of the Arts (NCSA).

Winners receive full scholarships, applicable to tuition and fees at NCSA for the school year 1979-80.

Four scholarships — one each in dance, design and production or visual arts, drama, and music, are awarded. Except for the drama scholarship, which is applicable only for the college program, they cover basic expenses for one year in either the NCSA high school or college programs.

Applications to enter the competition can be obtained from Dirk Dawson, NCSA Director of Admissions, P. O. Box 12189, Winston-Salem, N.C., 27107.

Deadline for returning the entry applications is January 15, 1979.

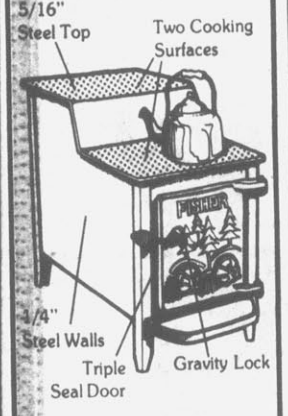

The Sanford Scholarships, which honor former governor Terry Sanford for his role in the founding of NCSA, are awarded to legal residents of North Carolina only. The competition is not open to students already enrolled at NCSA.

Competition regulations differ in details for each of the four performing arts programs, but all consider potential talent as well as current level of proficiency. Candidates eliminated in the Sanford Scholarship competitions will receive full consideration for admission. Financial assistance for these students is dependent on talent and financial need.

More than 100 students competed last year for Sanford Scholarships, and roughly half of these met or exceeded NCSA's standards for admission without further audition requirements.

At present, there are 12 Sanford Scholarship winners still enrolled at NCSA and roughly 150 students who, although they did not win, were admitted on the basis of talent and ability demonstrated in the Sanford Scholarship competition.

78 SEASON 79

an electrifying array of magical, theatrical, passionate and exultant

ENTERTAINMENTS

Pippin

October 20, 21, 22, 26, 27, 8:15 p.m., McGinnis Auditorium

A bit bawdy, a tinge satirical, this lighthearted, marvelously entertaining musical is based loosely on the life of Charlemagne's eldest son. Pippin, the idealist, tries to find himself amid the pomp of his father's pleasure-seeking court, among the ruin and desolation of the battlefield, as king of the Holy Roman Empire, and, finally as a common laborer on the estate of a rich widow. Written by Roger O. Hirson with music and lyrics by Stephen (THE MAGIC SHOW, GODSPELL) Schwartz, PIPPIN is a splendiferously theatrical musical with the kick of a lightning bolt. The American musical is alive and well and living in the 8th Century A.D.

MARATHON '33

December 5-9, 8:15 p.m., McGinnis Auditorium

In this stage memoir from her own past, entertainer June Havoc has conjured up the noise, frenzy, tawdriness and desperation of almost 3,000 hours of marathon dancing, bringing the atmosphere of this garish and mindless phenomenon of the 1930's to vivid and colorful life. The work is loaded with character types from the dark days of the depression. The poor devils dance and brawl and cheat and break down, while the promoters feed on them, and the public cheer them on like gladiators being served up to the lions. The central character, June, is a vaudevillian who has been engaged to do a turn for five dollars. In a paper bag she carries everything she owns — her costume, a doll, and a Gideon Bible. Often strident, sometimes amusing, and profoundly sad, MARATHON '33 is a tour de force of theatricality and a touching glimpse of the American will to survive in bitter and trying times.

Emily

February 7-10, 12-17, 8:15 p.m., Studio Theatre

Delving into the childhood of Emily Dickinson, this haunting new play probes the unusual family relationships that emerge and come back into focus years later in the poetic imagery of the mature Emily as an artist. It explores the delicate borders of love and loss between a brother and sister in a frighteningly beautiful and tender portrait of their very close involvement as adolescents that poses tragic consequences for their adult years. After a painstaking but exciting examination of this great American writer of poetry, Mr. Thomas Patterson, professor of playwrighting at UNC-CH, has uncovered a fascinating and heretofore unspoken explanation of the mysteries and enigmas of her life and work, and brought it to the stage in a searing and passionate play.

A CRY OF PLAYERS

April 4-7, 9-14, 8:15 p.m., Studio Theatre

Playwright William (THE MIRACLE WORKER) Gibson's rousing, provocative and ultimately poignant portrait of the youthful William Shakespeare captures perfectly the atmosphere of Elizabethan England. A CRY OF PLAYERS explores the struggle of all artists to obey the urge of their vision and their talent at the cost of comfort, happiness and social responsibility. Will is a rakish, prankish, irresponsible boy — though he is twenty-two years old and the father of three. He loves his wife Anne, but feels oppressed by her. She wants him to take a job as a schoolteacher. He fights her by committing adultery. Yet it is not Anne who is smothering Will: his rebellion is against the drab life to which he was born — from his family's skinning and tanning business to the petty viciousness of small town society. Far more than a colorful, conjectural recreation of Shakespeare's early life, A CRY OF PLAYERS is, in the words of Kelly of the BOSTON GLOBE, "brilliantly conceived, inescapably relevant to all of us."

BALANCHINE'S BEST — THE GREAT PERFORMANCE SERIES — Patricia McBride and Robert Weiss are shown in the production "Choreography by Balanchine," (Part II), to be shown beginning at 9 p.m. on Wednesday, Oct. 18 over Channel 25, Greenville, PBS Station.

'Pippin' Opening At McGinnis On Friday

Friday, October 20 is the opening date of the Broadway hit musical "Pippin," at the East Carolina Playhouse in McGinnis Auditorium on campus.

Ken Miller, a visiting faculty member with the ECU Department of Drama and Speech, has adapted and restaged the musical, with a book by Roger O. Hirson and music and lyrics by Stephen Schwartz. Miller was a member of the Broadway production for a period of one and one-half years.

Commenting on the play, Miller said: "'Pippin' is really about two different stories. On the surface it is the story of Charlemagne's son Pippin and his life, his relationships with his father and a young woman.

"But more than that," he continued, " 'it is about a young person, be he living in the 14th or 20th century, who is trying to find out how to make something special of his life."

"Pippin" makes particular use of elements of theater magic.

The production at McGinnis is timed to coincide with the installation of ECU Chancellor Thomas B. Brewer. Performance dates are Oct. 20, 21, 22, 26, and 27, with curtain time at 8:15 p.m.

Tom Boyd in the role of Charlemagne is appearing in the Playhouse production through the courtesy of Actors Equity Association.

Steven Williford of Windsor — winner of the 1978-79 Playhouse Scholarship — has the role of the Leading Player; Anthony King of Whiteville is Pippin; Holly Jereme of Johnson City, Tenn. is Fastrada; and Julia Metcalfe of Clarksville, Va. is Catherine.

Two Greenville persons, Matthew Lenco and Brett Cannon, are doubling in the role of Theo; and Hazel Stapelton of the ECU psyschology faculty is Berthe. Stan Edwards of Liberty is Lewis; John Jeter of Wilmington, the Field Marshall; Charlotte's Kim Shipley is the Beggar; and David Owen of Raleigh is the Pirate.

Also in the cast are Denny Wright of Jacksonville, as Noble; Aubrey Barnes of Micro, the peasant; Walkertown native Jane Wilson, Scarf Girl; Michele Mennett, Palm Beach, Fla., Balloon Pants; Stacy Wilkes of Rockville, Md., as Baby Doll; Jennifer Hammond of Whiteville, Wonder Woman; and Kim Woollen of Newport, the Crown Girl.

Harper One-Man Show

Bob Harper, a graduate of the School of Art, East Carolina University, and currently Art Director and Special Assignment Photographer for "The Commission," a monthly foreign missions magazine, will hold a one-man show on Thursday, October 19.

The show will be at the Baptist Student Union Gallery, 511 East Fifth Street, with a talk to be given by Harper, "Religion and Art," at 7:30 p.m. (Parking is available after 5 p.m. in the 9th Street University parking lot and across the street in the Hignite Realty parking lot).

Harper has exhibited world wide, and his first one-man show on foreign soil was in 1969 when he exhibited on the battlefields of Viet Nam for American troops.

In 1970, he received a commission from the U.S. Defense Dept. to prepare a series of paintings for the permanent gallery of the Pentagon. In 1974 the Dept. of Army sent Harper to Germany to promote individual creativity among military personnel.

One of the fields in which Harper has a deep interest and concern is for people in prisons. He has often talked to prisoners about how they can enjoy art and creative involvement, even while behind bars.

In his visit to the Baptist Student Union Gallery, Harper will be available to talk to interested persons throughout the day.

ARTIST BOB HARPER . . . will have a one-man show and be available to talk to interested persons during a one-day visit on Thursday, Oct. 19 at the Baptist Student Union Gallery, 511 East Fifth Street.

Greenville Cloggers Danced At Carnegie Hall

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Sunday Editor

Saturday, September 30 was a hallmark day in a busy year for the traveling members of the Greenville Green Grass Cloggers — and it came about unexpectedly.

Doug Baker, one of the dancers and a former coordinator for the Cloggers, related events that led up to a Carnegie Hall appearance on the last Saturday in September.

"This past summer our group was engaged to teach clogging at a week-long workshop held at Camp Akibi in Pennsylvania. It was an affair sponsored by 'Folklife' magazine, and it was there we met the members of the New Lost City Ramblers, and also Elizabeth Cotton of North Carolina."

Baker said that at that time one of the Ramblers mentioned a concert scheduled for them in Carnegie Hall. "Someone casually said 'we'll put you (the Cloggers) in the show too,' but that none of the Green Grass Cloggers took it seriously."

When the September 30 Carnegie Hall date rolled around, several Greenville Cloggers attended the concert. "We went with the simple intention of going to see the show," Jackson commented.

"It was an appearance celebrating the 20th anniversary of the Lost City Ramblers, with Mike Seeger, John Cohen and Tracy Schwartz performing as the New Lost City Ramblers. The show also included Elizabeth Cotton and the Highwood String Band of Ithaca, New York."

At the end of the scheduled performance, the Cloggers were called on stage to dance. "The audience, a packed one, gave us a standing ovation and called for an encore," Jackson said.

And evidently, some of the show people on hand for the anniversary concert were impressed with the impromptu performance by the Greenville Grass Cloggers.

"Right after the show," Jackson related, "we were approached by representatives of entertainment tours. One man talked to us about the possibility of a tour to China. Another person brought up the possibility of a USO tour."

Although nothing definite was decided, this is not the only time in recent months the Cloggers have been approached with suggestions for special appearances.

After an appearance in the Mariposa Festival in Toronto, Canada, this past summer, the Cloggers have been committed to an appearance in the Winnipeg, Canada Festival in the summer of 1979, and have also been informed they may be asked to dance at the Montreal Folk Festival next year.

"We're real excited about what has happened and about the new possibilities opening up to us," Jackson said.

The traveling members of the cloggers numbers nine dancers — Jackson and four other male dancers — Rodney Sutton, Brian de Marcus, Eddie Carson, and Hunt Mallet; and four female dancers — Eileen Sutton, Karen Philbeck, Beverly Cotton and Amy Fenton. "There's no problem having an extra male in the traveling show," Jackson said. "We need an extra person, and when it's time to dance, we draw straws to see who will and won't dance."

With the summer over, the traveling Cloggers are still maintaining a hectic schedule of public appearances. This week-end, they are dancing in Florida, and from there they travel to Michigan for an engagement.

"Actually," Baker said, "we've been on the road pretty constantly since mid-May, making the circuit in three separate tours."

The first tour was a six-week one covering spots in West Virginia, Pennsylvania, to Louisville, Ky., back to Pennsylvania, into New Jersey, up to the festival in Toronto, Canada, once more in West Virginia, and concluding with performances at the N. C. Folklife Festival in Durham during the fourth of July celebrations.

The second tour was in Pennsylvania and West Virginia; and the third tour took the Cloggers to the Philadelphia Folk Festival and into New Jersey before coming back to Greenville.

"One thing we are definitely looking forward to is another Cloggers Day in Greenville, possibly on December 2," Jackson said. "This program will involve all our dancers and will have dance workshops. It is being financed by a grant from the N. C. Arts Council, and will give us a chance to perform again for the people here at home."

Foreigners On N.C. Folklife Exploration

RALEIGH — Twelve cultural officials from nine foreign countries will be in North Carolina this week to explore the state's folklife, according to an announcement by Sara W. Hodgkins, secretary of the N. C. Dept. of Cultural Resources.

Members of the delegation represent cultural agencies in their home nations — Australia, Colombia, Fiji Island, the Malagasy Republic, Mexico, Nigeria, Romania, Venezuela, and Yugoslavia.

"A professional interest in folklore unites this group," said Millie Covington, coordinator of the International Visitors Program of the International Trade Center at Research Triangle Park, which, along with the Cultural Resources' Office of Folklife Programs, is sponsoring the North Carolina trip.

"With its abundance of living folk traditions, North Carolina is a most attractive place for these men and women to visit."

During a month-long trip to the U.S., the visitors will also visit Washington, D. C., Philadelphia, New York City, Lafayette and New Orleans, La., San Francisco, and Santa Fe.

Entry Time For Photos

Local photographers are reminded that the coming week is the time to submit photographic entries for the R. J. Reynolds Industries statewide photo competition.

Entries are being accepted at the Greenville Art Center, Monday through Saturday, October 16-21. Entries will be taken from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, and from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturday.

Forms to accompany each entry are available at the art center, 802 Evans Street.

DAVID LEWIS

David Lewis is a performer you will want to see. He is a serious person. Serious about his love for the music he plays, serious about the manner in which he performs for you. Each song is a statement. He will play songs you've heard, yet songs you will ask to hear again. He has collected these songs from many different influences. Buddy Holly, Jackson Brown, James Taylor, Tom Rush, John Prine, Jimmy Buffet and more...He has performed with California folk artist John Stewart and former members of The Christy Minstrels. Denver, Vail, Colorado Springs, Kansas City, Amarillo, Des Moines...he has been there. Having tired of the road life (but not his music) David is back home in his native North Carolina performing with more intensity than ever. He will take you where he has been...the good times...the bad times. Hear him and enjoy. He is truly something special.

3RD FUN WEEK!
Don't go straight to see this movie!
Because there's going to be nothing straight about a CHEECH & CHONG film.
Every generation has had their own comedy duo: the 30's had Laurel and Hardy. Abbott & Costello broke up the 40's and Martin and Lewis really fractured the 50's.
CHEECH & CHONG have helped make the 70's go "UP IN SMOKE."
CHEECH & CHONG are the comedy team that gave birth to rock comedy and in the process of turning on a whole generation, sold ten million albums, picked up numerous awards, including Cash Box and Billboard's best comedy duo, and a Grammy for their album, "Los Cochinos."
Now it's time for a CHEECH & CHONG movie.
C & C's "UP IN SMOKE" will make you feel very funny.
So don't go straight to see this movie!

Southern Miss Nips Pirates, 17-16

By JIM KYLE
Reflector Sports Writer

HATTIESBURG, Miss. — East Carolina won the first-half battle of the offense, but Southern Mississippi came out on top in the second half defensive battle and defeated the Pirates 17-16 here last night.

Nearly all of the game's offense came in the first half as the Pirates rallied from a 14-0 deficit to a 16-14 halftime lead. But the Golden Eagles scored a field goal in the third quarter to regain the lead and the USM defense made it stand up for the rest of the game.

Both teams have depended on their defense all season, while their offenses struggled. Last night's game was more of the same. Southern Miss raised its record to 4-2, while East Carolina dropped to 4-3. The Pirates won the battle of total yardage, 298-262.

Eddie Hicks and Sam Harrell scored the two Pirate touchdowns. Hicks took a 10-yard pass from Leander Green, while Harrell scored on an 18-yard run. Lamm kicked the PAT after Harrell's TD, and added a 37-yard field goal. But his missed conversion kick after the first Pirate touchdown loomed large in the final outcome.

The Eagle scoring came on a six-yard run by Chuck Cook, a 51-yard pass from Jeff Hammond to Marvin Harvey and a 35-yard clinching field goal by Randy Boyette.

The win was a satisfying one for Eagle coach Bobby Collins, who watched as his fired-up defensive squad avenged a 48-0 rout at the hands of the Pirates two years ago in Greenville. USM now leads the series between the two schools, 5-2.

ECU Coach Pat Dye said the hard-fought game was the most physical of the year for the Pirates. He said the difference in the contest was the kicking game, especially the missed extra point.

"I was proud of the way our kids came back in the second quarter and made a game of it, but they stopped us in the second half," he said.

Southern Mississippi burned the Pirates for two first-quarter touchdowns and a quick 14-0 lead, but the Bucs fought back, scoring three times in the second period to go in to the dressing room at halftime up, 16-14.

The Eagles scored on a long drive and then got a quick strike for their second TD. They took the opening kickoff and marched 85 yards down the field to open the ballgame. Running backs Tiko Beal and Sammy Winder did most of the work and all but eight yards of the drive came on the ground.

Beal's 12-yard carry moved the ball to midfield and starting quarterback Dane McDaniel picked up another first down at the Pirate 38. Beal broke loose on another 12-yarder, getting a good block from tight end Harvey to put the ball on the ECU 16.

It took four plays for the Eagles to pick up a first down, but McDaniel made it to the seven with the help of the referee's spot. Two plays later, Cook got a well-timed pitch from McDaniel for the TD from six yards out. Boyette booted the PAT with 6:30 on the clock.

Southern Mississippi quickly got the ball back after the kickoff as the Pirates once again fumbled the ball away on their first possession. Green lost the ball on a keeper and Freeman Horton jumped on it for USM at the Eagle 35.

Two plays later, McDaniel was hurt after picking up 26 yards and being hit by Ruffin McNeill. He suffered a shoulder separation and didn't return. Hammond came in to direct the offense, and on his second snap, he faked a handoff into the line and found Harvey wide open on a post pattern for a 51-yard touchdown. That made it 14-0.

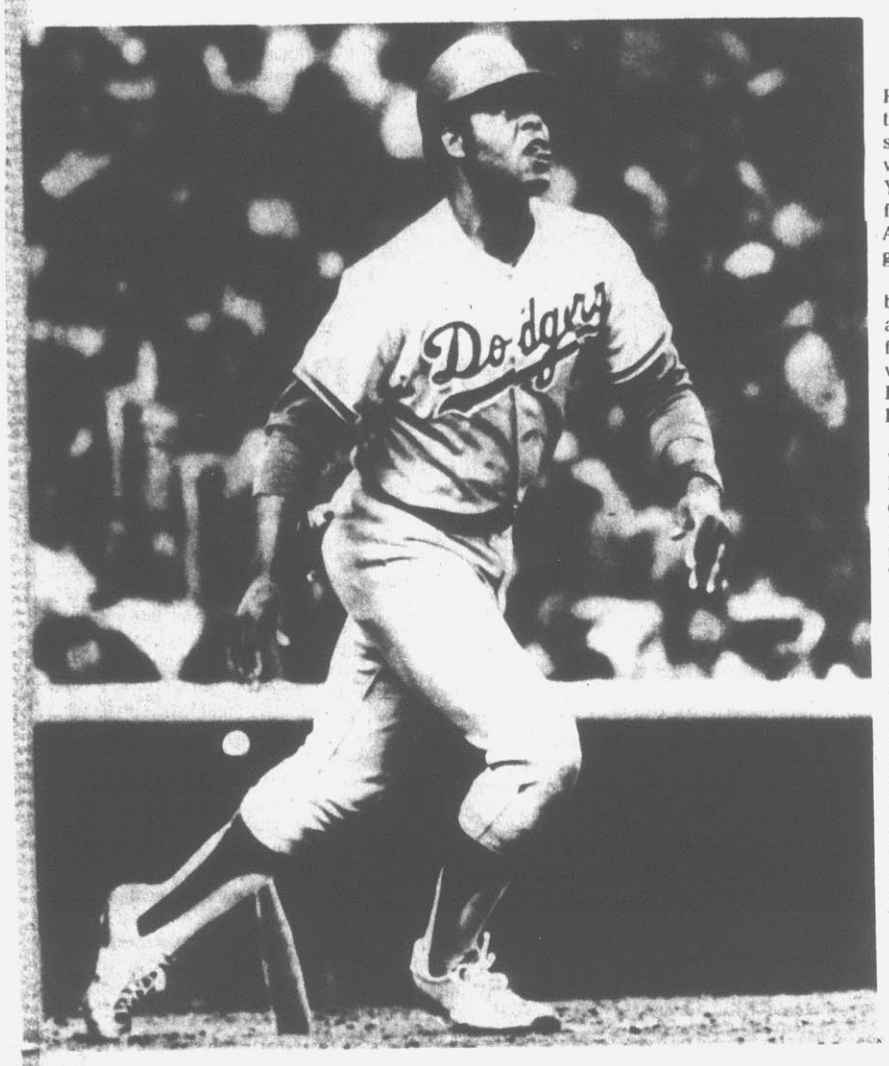

The Pirate offense finally started to move in the second period. Hall got a 10-yard punt return and an unsportsmanlike conduct call gave the Bucs an additional 15 yards to the USM 44. Hicks kept the drive alive with a 10-yard pickup on a quick pitch to the short side on fourth down at 25. He got the Pirates on the scoreboard three plays later when Green hit him in the right flat from the 10. Lamm's conversion kick was wide and came back to haunt the Pirates.

East Carolina drove for a field goal the next time the Pirates got the ball. The drive started at the ECU 11. Greer made a great run on an option play, picking up 37 yards to the Eagle 49 and Green hit Billy Ray Washington on a post pattern to the 23. Washington made a diving catch on the 40-yard gain.

The drive stalled, however, and Lamm booted the ball from 37 yards away. His kick barely cleared the bar, just next to the

Pinella's Hit Sparks Yankees, 4-3

Dodger Reggie Smith watches three-run homer go.

NEW YORK (AP) — Lou Piniella drilled a dramatic twoout single in the 10th inning, scoring Roy White with the winning run as the New York Yankees bounced from behind for a 4-3 victory over Los Angeles in Saturday's fourth game of the 1978 World Series.

The Yankees' victory tied the best-of-seven Series at two wins apiece with Game 5 scheduled for Sunday. Rookie Jim Beattie will pitch for New York with Burt Hooton going for the Dodgers.

Piniella's hit beat rookie Bob Welch, who had come out of the Dodgers bullpen to escape a dangerous jam in the eighth inning when the Yankees rallied to tie the score on a double by Thurman Munson.

With the game tied at 3-3, Rich Gossage reliever for New York and the game settled into a classic duel between two fastball artists.

In the 10th, White battled back from an 0-2 count to work out a walk from Welch with one out. Munson then popped up, but Reggie Jackson — victimized by Welch on a game-ending strikeout in the second Series contest — delivered a single to right, sending White to second.

That brought up Piniella and, on a one-strike pitch, the veteran Yankee hit a single to center that sent White scampering home with the winning run and insured a return trip to California for Game 6 of this Series.

Munson doubled home New York's tying run in the eighth inning before Welch came out of the Dodgers bullpen to preserve the deadlock.

Los Angeles starter Tommy John was nursing a 3-2 lead built on Reggie Smith's threerun homer when Paul Blair opened the Yankees eighth with a single.

Terry Forster relieved John, and White sacrificed the runner to second. That brought up Munson, captain of the Yankees. Forster got ahead on the count at 0-2, one of the strikes a foul ball that smashed off Munson's leg so hard that it rolled all the way to shortstop. On the next pitch, Munson doubled inside third base for the tying run.

After Jackson was hit by a pitch, the 21-year-old Welch — who had saved the Dodgers' second-game victory — relieved again. He retired Piniella on a pop fly, then struck out Graig Nettles, ending the rally.

Then the game settled down to a duel of relievers with Welch of the Dodgers and Gossage of the Yankees matching fastballs as the contest spun into extra innings.

The Yankees got back in the game with two runs in the sixth against John, helped along by a bizarre play involving Dodgers shortstop Bill russell.

With one out, White singled to center and Munson walked on a 3-2 pitch. Jackson followed with a single to right, scoring White with the first New York run. The hit extended Jackson's streak of driving in at least one run to eight consecutive Qorld Series games, tying the all-time record held by Lou Gehrig.

Then, with the score 3-1 and runners at first and second, Piniella lined a shot near second base. Russell gloved the ball for a moment and it seemed like a sure double play with Munson trapped off second.

But Russell dropped the ball. He recovered in time to step on second, forcing Jackson, and it seemed he still might complete the double play with a throw to first.

But the throw was low and struck Jackson — who had only gone a few feet off first base — in the right thigh. It bounced away, into foul territory, allowing Munson to score.

The Dodgers argued that Jackson had interfered with the throw, but the umpires did not allow the protest. It was ruled a fielder's choice with an error on Russell.

Until the fifth, John and New York starter Ed Figueroa were locked in a scoreless game. A 40-minute rain delay had interrupted play in the bottom of the third, and then Smith's threerun homer interrupted the string of scoreboard zeroes in the fifth.

Steve Yeager started the Dodgers rally in the fifth with a one-out double against Figueroa. The Los Angeles catcher ripped a 2-0 pitch up the rightcenter field alley. Figueroa, who experienced control problems all afternoon, then walked Davey Lopes but struck out Bill Russell for the second out.

That brought up Smith, who led the Dodgers with 29 homers during the regular season despite missing more than 30 games with an assortment of injuries.

Figueroa missed with his first pitch but Smith jumped all over the next one, sending it arching well back into the lower deck in right field.

Tar Heels Hold Off Deacons By 34-29

By MONTE PLOTT
Associated Press Writer

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina Coach Dick Crum, who sweated while his Tar Heels held off a fourth-quarter comeback by Wake Forest for a 34-29 North Carolina win, admitted his team's second win of the season was a thriller from the stands but "it's tough on the coaches."

North Carolina held a 31-14 edge after three quarters but Wake Forest came back to within two points before North Carolina iced the game with a field goal.

"The defense did what it had to do. However, we permitted Wake to stay close with our own errors in both offense and defense," Crum said.

John Mackovic, Wake Forest head coach, said his team moved the ball better than it had all year.

"There's not many 1-4 teams that would have fought back the way we did when we were down 31-14 going into the fourth quarter," said Mackovic, whose team fell victim to six fumbles and four interceptions during the afternoon.

"Turnovers in general cost us. Giving them good field position also hurt us," Mackovic said.

Tar Heel star running back Amos Lawrence had his best day of the season with a 180-yard rushing total. But Lawrence sat out the latter part of the game.

"When Amos did not come back, it was because he couldn't," Crum said. "It wasn't because we didn't want him in there. He just had a bad hip pointer."

Wake Forest, down 31-14 after three quarters, fought back to a 31-29 deficit in the fourth quarter on a pair of touchdowns by Eddie Wright. But the Tar Heels held on, adding a 31-yard field goal and intercepting a pass in the final minute to kill a Deacon threat.

The win improved North Carolina's record to 2-3 overall and 1-1 in the ACC. Wake Forest dropped to 1-5 on the season and 1-2 in the conference.

Starting the second half with a 17-14 lead that mirrored two previous scores after Wake Forest fumbles, North Carolina cashed in on two more turnovers in the third period. Halfback Terrence Burrell scored on a 7-yard run after one fumble and defensive guard Daye Simmons grabbed a second fumble and carried it 38 yards for another Tar Heel touchdown.

Lawrence, who rushed for 1,211 yards as a freshman last season but came into the game with only 186 yards this season, broke away repeatedly for diving, dodging runs of up to 20 yards.

With its two-point edge, North Carolina moved to the Deacon 20 late in the game and kicker Jeff Hayes booted a 35-yard field goal with 1:25 remaining. Wake Forest began a

Middies Sink Duke With 31-8 Victory

BY DAVID GOELLER
Associated Press Writer

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Navy's No. 1 ranked defense throttled Duke Saturday and quarterback Bob Leszczynski teamed with split end Phil McConkey for two touchdowns as the Middies won 31-8 to remain unbeaten in five games.

The Middies capitalized on errors by Duke, now, 3-2, to lead 14-0 at halfime, and scored the first two times they had the ball in the third quarter to go up 28-8 before 24,431 fans.

McConkey 's first score came on a 29-yard toss after a poor Duke punt gave Navy a first down on the Blue Devil 38 early in the third period. McConkey was wide open at the 20 and broke a tackle at the five.

Duke's Dennis Taborn returned the kickoff 52 yards to Navy's 48 Quarterback Mike Dunn got the offense moving for the only time of the day and completed a 6-play drive with a 4-yard toss to tailback Mike Stopper.

Navy struck right back with McConkey making a leaping catch for 34 yards in the middle of a 7-play, 77 yard drive. The final play was a 17-yard Lesczcynski pass the McConkey in the end zone in a slant-in pattern.

The Middie defense began the game right at No.1 in the nation statistically and held Duke to 122 yards.

Duke did not complete a pass in the first half. Navy intercepted four passes and recovered two fumbles overall.

Offensively, Lesczcynski completed ten of 12 passes for 128 yards. Four went to McConkey for 94. Tailback Steve Callahan had 98 yards on 21 carries.

Early in the first period, Duke decked Navy punter Art Ohanion to give the Middies a first down in the Blue Devil 32. Two key pass receptions by tight Kurt Gainer led Navy downfield before fullback Larry Klawinski dove over from the one.

In the second period, a Duke gamble backfired when fullback Ned Gonet fumbled on a fourth-and-one situation. The ball was recovered by Navy defensive end Mark Stephens at the Duke 42.

Callahan ran twice for 16 yards, Leszczynksi passed to McConkey at the 16, and a personal foul against Duke gave the Middies first down at the 7.

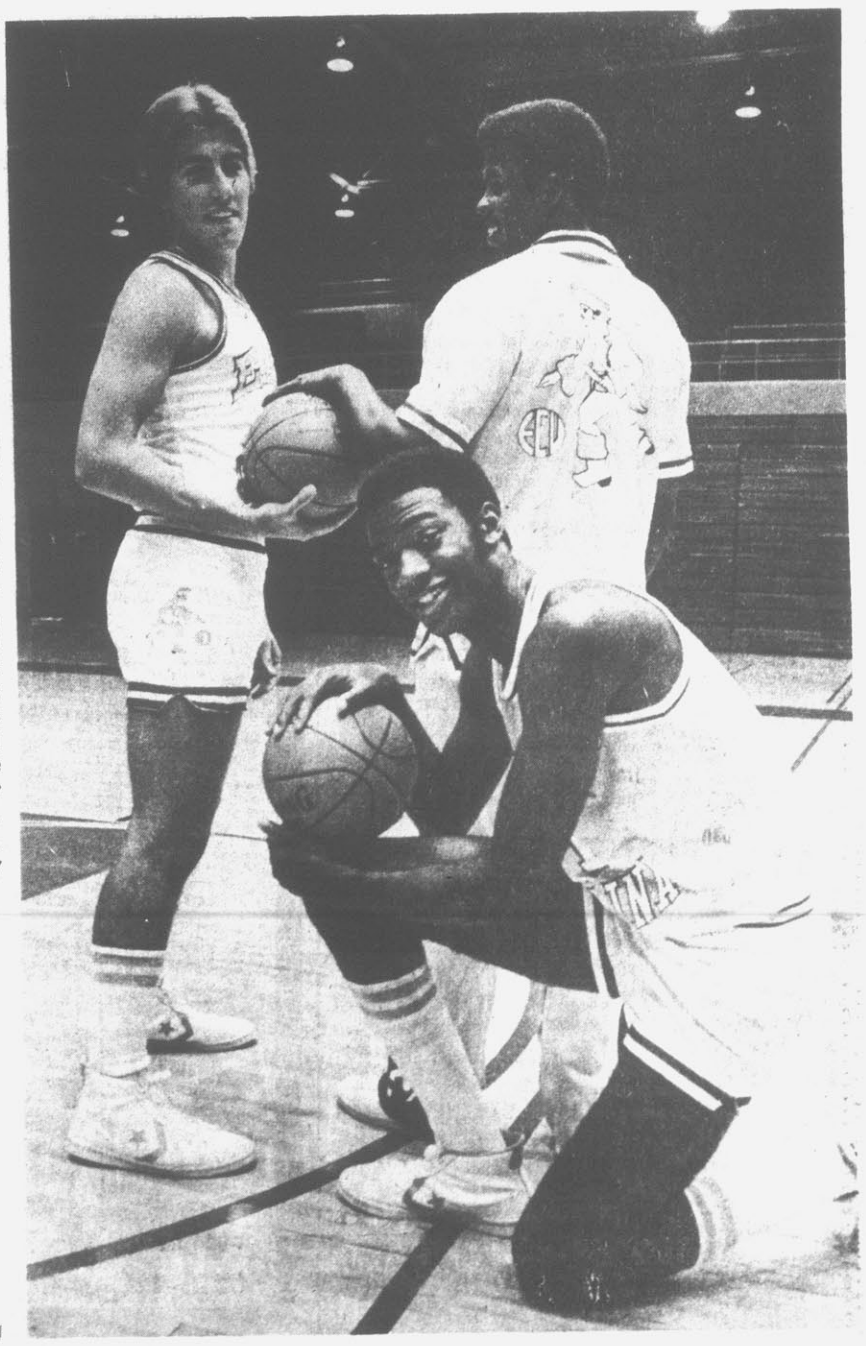

Two plays later, Callahan floated out of the backfield uncovered, took a Leszczynski pass at the three, and scored.

Gillman's Pirates Open Drills With Eye Toward Improvement

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina University's controversial basketball coach, Larry Gillman, says he's going to let the players speak for themselves this year—on the court.

The second-year coach, who last year found himself in deep water following a 9-17 season, was quoted as making a number of promises about the Pirate program in his first year.

But this season, Gillman is not going to be making any promises. He's just going to let the team play and go from there.

Six veterans, including all five starters from last year, return, and are joined by six other scholarship athletes. A tryout for walkons was to be held this morning at 7 p.m., with the first official practice set for 9:15 a.m in Minges Coliseum.

The returning players include only two seniors, 6-3 Oliver Mack, again listed as one of the top players in the country, and 6-9 Greg Cornelius.

Mack, in his junior season, scored 28.0 points per game, and is the second leading returning scorer in the country this fall. Only Indiana State's Larry Byrd scored more points among returners. Oddly enough the two will meet on December 8 in the first round of the Hatter Classic in Deland, Fla., when ECU meets Indiana State.

Joining those two are three juniors, 6-8 Herb Gray, 6-5 Kyle Powers and 6-5 Herb Krusen, and one sophomore, 6-2 Walter Moseley.

Newcomers include junior college transfers Frank Hobson, 6-8, and 6-3 George Maynor, along with freshmen David Underwood, 6-6; Clarence Miles, 6-5; Alton Tyson, 6-11; and Mark McLaurin, 6-6. Underwood, while a freshman, is a transfer from the University of South Carolina and will not be eligible until the seventh game of the season, when the Bucs face Maryland.

"Our veterans have a full year of maturity behind them, and we have no big losses in our program," Gillman said.

As practice opens, Gillman feels the five returning starters have their positions, and will have to be beaten out. Some feel, however, that several of them could lose their starting jobs. Moseley was the starter at the point, with Mack at the big guard spot. Krusen and Gray were the forwards with Cornelius in the middle.

"These five can play. They've been through a rough 26-yard

The final score of the first half was set up by an Eagle turnover. Willie Holley intercepted a Hammond pass on second down after the kickoff at the ECU 47.

Three big plays moved the Bucs in for the score. Terry Gallaher caught a square-out pass from Green for 11 yards and then Theodore Sutton broke loose on a 24-yard jaunt to the Eagle 19. Harrell took a pitch around left end for the score and Lamm's kick made it 16-14 at the half.

The winning points came midway through the third quarter. The Eagles took over at their own 32 following a Pirate punt and Hammond quickly picked up 11 yards to the 44. The Eagle quarterback teamed up with Chuck Brown on an 18-yard pass play over the middle and a late hit against the Bucs moved the ball to the 21. Four plays later, Boyette kicked a 35-yard field goal to put USM ahead for good. The Bucs muffed a chance to stop the Eagles when Holley dropped an interception that looked like a sure TD.

The Pirates crossed midfield only once more in the ballgame as the Southern Miss defense held the Bucs in check. Two desperations passes were intercepted on ECU final two possessions to seal the victory for the Eagles.

Besides the great defensive play by both teams the only other second-half action to get a reaction from the crowd was when a water sprinkler came on just before the end of the third quarter. USM officials said the sprinkler's timing devise malfunctioned.

Dye seemed concerned about the sprinkler, located at about the 13, as the Pirates would be moving in that direction in the final quarter. He sent his managers to try and hold back the water flow and the device was finally cut off after about three minutes. The ECU offense never got a chance to test the wet field, however.

The Pirates travel to Norfolk, Va., to face Richmond in the Oyster Bowl next Saturday and then take a week off before returning to action for a season-ending three-game home stand.

Virginia Tech Pulls Past West Virginia

By ALAN ROBINSON

BLACKSBURG, Va. (AP) — Virginia Tech, sparked by freshman backs Steve Casey and Scott Dovel, overcame a comedy of first-half errors to defeat punchless West Virginia 16-3 Saturday and hand the Mountaineers their fifth straight football loss.

Dovel, substituting for injured tailback Kenny Lewis, banged over from the two-yard line with 4:39 left in the third quarter to give the slow-starting Gobblers a 9-0 lead.

Paced by the running and passing of Casey, starting for the first time in his collegiate career, the Gobblers iced the game with only four seconds left when substitute running back Mike Romagnoli powered his way into the end zone from two yards out.

Playing in place of senior David Lamie, who has an injured hand, Casey rushed 20 times for 101 yards and completed seven of 15 passing attempts for 130 yards.

Dovel's touchdown capped a 71-yard, seven-play scoring drive which saw Casey run for 30 yards and complete a key 14-yard pass to tight end Dave Dolphin that set up the touchdown.

The Gobblers, 3-3, started slowly, but dominated the game as West Virginia could never get its offense rolling. Virginia Tech penetrated within the West Virginia 10-yard line five times in the first half, but managed only a 22-yard field goal by reserve kicker Eric King with two seconds to go in the second quarter to take a 3-0 lead.

King was inserted after Paul Engle ended two other Tech scoring opportunities by missing short-range field goal attempts.

Virginia Tech fumbled eight times, losing three, while West Virginia fumbled seven times losing two. West Virginia also suffered three interceptions as neither of the Mountaineers' quarterbacks — sophomore Dutch Hoffman or freshman Oliver Luck — had any luck moving the Mountaineers' offense.

threatening drive that included a 23-yard pass into Tar Heel territory, but an interception by Bobby Cale preserved the victory.

North Carolina took a 3-0 lead on a first-quarter field goal that came six plays after the Tar Heels lost the ball to Wake Forest on a fumble, then got it back on the next play when the Deacons fumbled.

After Wake Forest scored in the first period, North Carolina scored again with half a minute gone in the second quarter following a replay of the earlier double fumble.

The Tar Heels were threatening from the Wake Forest 6 when quarterback freshman Chuck Sharpe lost the ball on an attempted pitch. The Deacons recovered, but Albert Kirby fumbled on the next, North Carolina recovered on the 21 and Sharpe hit tight end Bob Loomis with an 8-yard touchdown toss five plays later.

Wake Forest's first touchdown came on a 1-yard run by Kirby with 6:09 left in the first quarter. The score came 10 plays after the Deacons got the ball on their 20-yard line and a crucial pass interference call went against North Carolina.

With the ball on the North Carolina 37, Wake Forest quarterback David Webber heaved a pass to split end Wayne Bumgardner. The ball appeared to be overthrown, but a North Carolina defender hit Bumgardner and Deacons' touchdown drive was given a 16-yard boost on the penalty.

Wake Forest scored again in the second quarter on a 2-yard run by back Wayne McMillan. North Carolina's second touchdown came with 4:45 left in the half on a 1-yard run by Sharpe.

Michigan State Stuns Michigan By 24-15

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Quarterback Ed Smith threw two touchdown passes and Michigan State intercepted three Rick Leach aerials Saturday as the Spartans took a stunning 24-15 Big Ten football upset victory over fifth-ranked Michigan.

Smith, who set Michigan State records for completions (27) and passing attempts (41) a week earlier against Notre Dame, hit on 20 of 36 passes for 248 yards. But besides the big air yardage, the Spartans also ran well against the Wolverines, who fell to 4-1 and 1-1 in the conference. Michigan State is 2-3 overall and also 1-1 in the league.

The Spartans shocked Michigan in the first half, dominating all phases of the game to take a 17-0 lead.

Morten Andersen kicked a 38-yard field goal in the first quarter. Fullback Lonnie Middleton scored on a 10-yard pass from Smith in the second quarter and Middleton later in the period dove over from the 1.

The first Spartan touchdown concluded a 10-play, 77-yard drive after Mike Marshall intercepted a Leach pass. The second TD came just four plays and 20 yards after Mark Anderson picked off a Leach aerial.

Marshall also intercepted Leach at the Michigan State 30 late in the half.

Michigan drove 70-yards with the second half kickoff to score on a 3-yard run by Leach. But the Spartans came back with another touchdown, an 11-yard pass from Smith to Mark Brammer and Michigan — which got a 4-yard TD run from Russell Davis — could never get back in it.

Clemson Bombs Virginia, 30-14

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — Tailback Lester Brown rushed for a career high of 178 yards and two touchdowns as Clemson University overcame a streak of early penalties to open its bid for the Atlantic Coast Conference football championship with a solid 30-14 victory over the University of Virginia here Saturday.

The Tigers also got a pair of 6-pointers from quarterback Steve Fuller, their Heisman trophy candidate, as they upped their overall record to 4-1.

A 16-point second quarter in which Brown and Fuller sandwiched touchdown runs around a 35-yard field goal by Obed Ariri enabled Clemson to drop Virginia to 0-3 in conference play and 1-5 overall.

Except for a first-quarter drive that enabled Virginia to tie the score at 7-7, Clemson permitted the Cavaliers to cross mid-field only twice, both times in the final five minutes.

As time ran out, the Cavaliers drove from their 30 to a first-down on the Clemson 4 and, on a fourth and 6 play, scored their other touchdown on a pass from freshman quarterback Todd Kirkley to tight end Tim Moon.

Brown, who had only 170 yards coming into Saturday's game, stunned Virginia with a 59-yard touchdown run on Clemson's first play from scrimmage. Included in his remaining 18 carries was his second quartec touchdown run of 15 yards.

Lady Bucs Defeated

East Carolina University lost its sixth field hockey match of the season yesterday, falling before Davidson, 3-1.

Davidson pushed through two first half goals, then matched East Carolina's one second half score.

Lisa Ballantyne, Kathy Inabet and Ann Clark each scored goals for Davidson, with Inabet adding an assist. Donna Nicholson scored the lone ECU goal on an assist from Sue Jones.

The Pirates also lost to Virginia Tech in a Friday match, but details were unavailable.

Davidson is now 5-1-1, while the Pirates are 1-6.

Yeager positioned himself perfectly, blocked Blair away from the plate, grabbed Smith's one-bounce throw and tagged out the sliding runner.

The run was vital because if the Yankees had scored at that point, they could have won in regulation time. But Smith prevented that, and because he did, Piniella emerged as the game's hero.

Pirates Take Win

The inspired play of halfback Shawn Berry led the East Carolina soccer team to a solid 4-2 victory over Pembroke State here Saturday. The 5-11 freshman scored one goal and his play was consistantly good throughout the afternoon.

The Pirates, in raising their record to 3-6-1, set to new season records, most saves by a team and most assists by a team. Goalie Kevin Tyus also set a new season record for most saves by an individual.

East Carolina was led by Berry, Brad Winchell, Eric Tucker, and Jeff Karpovich, each with one goal and David Radford, who contributed two assists.

Pembroke State was led by Chuck Perry with a goal and an assist and Mike McPhail with a goal. The Braves were held to only eight shots on goal compared to 30 for the Pirates as they dropped their 12th match in 13 outings.

The Pirates next match is Tuesday, when they host UNC-Wilmington.

Montana Sparks Irish To Rally

By JOE MOOSHIL
AP Sports Writer

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Quarterback Joe Montana rallied Notre Dame to three fourth-quarter touchdowns and Jerome Heavens shattered legendary George Gipp's career rushing record Saturday to lead the Irish to a 26-17 victory over previously unbeaten Pittsburgh.

The Panthers, ranked No. 9, had forged into a 17-7 lead early in the fourth quarter when Rick Trocano scored his second touchdown of the game on top of a 33-yard field goal by Mark Schubert.

Faced with the possiblity of their third loss of the season, the Irish suddenly caught fire. Montana directed an 86-yard drive which ended with an 8-yard touchdown pass to Kris Haines.

Notre Dame came right back with a 59-yard march which ended with Montana sneaking across from the 1-yard line after he had completed passes of 30 yards to Haines and 22 yards to Dave Masztak to put the Irish ahead to stay.

Moments later, the Irish recovered a Pitt fumble and Montana hit Vagas Ferguson with a 3-yard touchdown pass to complete the brilliant comeack which marked Notre Dame's third straight victory after a pair of initial losses.

Heavens carried 30 times for 120 yards, giving him a career total of 2,363 yards. Gipp gained 2,341 yards from 19171920.

Montana finished the game with seven straight completions, including two for touchdowns and completed 15 of 25 passes for 218 yards.

Bertie Slips Past Angry Rampants

Floyd Downs Watson, 2-Up

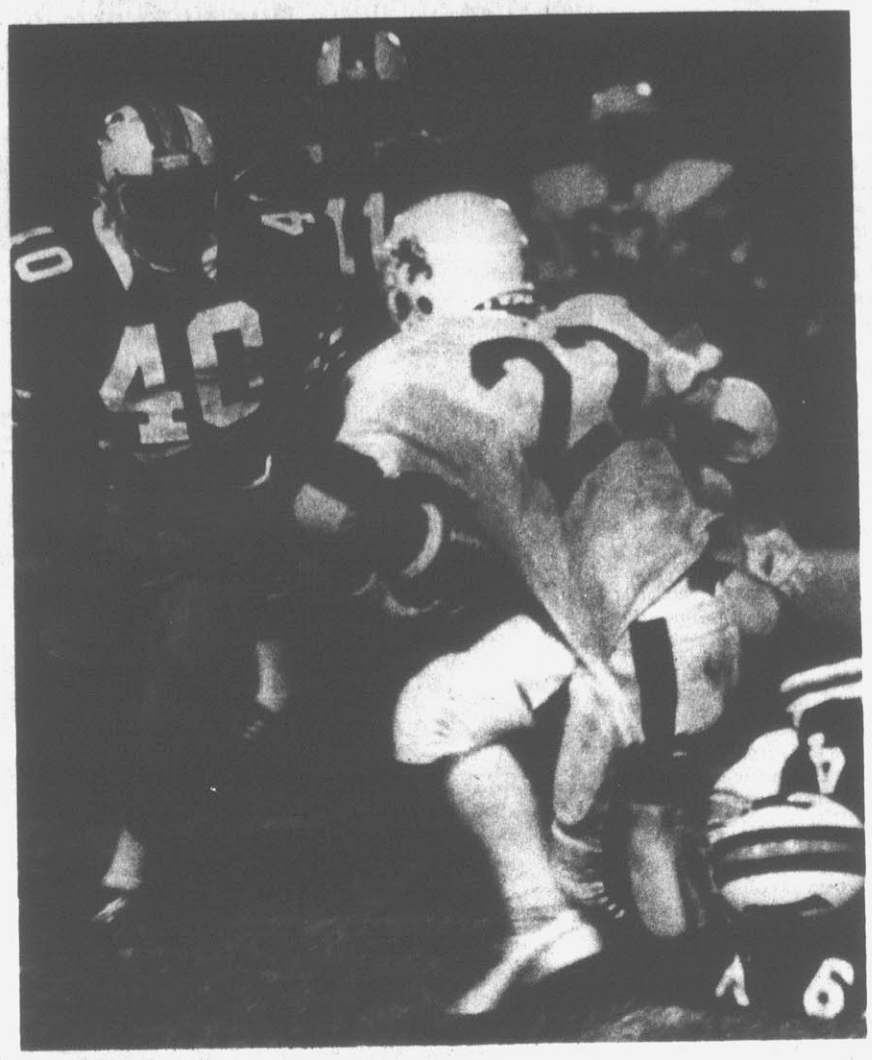

VIRGINIA WATER, England (AP) — A brilliant rally by Tom Watson ended in the tangled undergrowth beside Wentworth course's 18th hole Saturday. And Ray Floyd beat him 2-up to reach the semifinals of the World Match Play Golf Championship.

From five holes down and seven to play, Watson played outstanding golf. He made two birdies and an eagle and came back to one hole down and one to play.

The drama ended at the 502yard, par five 18th hole. Floyd reached the edge of the green in two and was heading for a birdie. Watson sliced his second shot into the trees to the right.

Watson tried to hack his ball throuh a tangled maze of branches. It needed a miraculous shot to keep the match alive. He failed, and walked out of the woods smiling with his hand outstretched to concede the hole.

In the 36-hole match, which began Friday and was halted at the halfway stage overnight, Floyd had an eagle and 12 birdies and Watson shot an eagle and 10 birdies.

Jersey Tackle

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

WINDSOR — By the time the final gun sounded Friday night on the Bertie football field, one could almost see the smoke pouring from the ears of Rose High School coach Dave Bumgarner.

The coach was enraged by the second half officiating in the game, which the Rampants lost, 6-0, to unbeaten Bertie, and he let head linesman Dan Baker, the man who made—or didn't make—several key calls, know all about it.

"We do things to win the ball game, and they throw flags that kill us," Bumgarner said. "If the things he called weren't so obviously bad, I wouldn't say anything. But he just plain blew a flagrant pass interference call, and then called one of our guys for a clip that was no where near being a clip, it just tears you apart. Maybe I'm wrong, and if I am, well, I apologize. But to think that a game has to be determined by calls that poor...."

Bumgarner's key gripes were about several calls made by Baker and other officials, one of which set up the lone Bertie touchdown of the game.

That score came after the Rampants were penalized twice on 15-yard calls, once for face-masking on a punt return, and then for unsportsmanlike conduct when a Rampant allegedly said, "Oh, come on, ref!" That put the ball on the Rose 16, and Bertie took it in on a 17-yard pass three plays later, as Stanley Pugh hit Donald Thompson for the score with 1:35 left in the third period.

Bumgarner contended that the unsportsmanlike conduct call was a poor one, but not nearly as bad as a few others.

The first came just a few plays earlier, when Rose had the ball, first and ten at its own 11. Quarterback Mark Shank kept the ball on the option play around the left side, and ran over a tackler. After he passes, offensive end Ted King collided with the blocker as he attempted to get up, and fell over him. The official flagged him, signaling a clip, but actually calling holding. That nullified Shank's run.

Midway through the fourth period, Rose was again hit with a 15-yard unsportsmanlike conduct call after Shank complained after being hit on a tackle at the Rose 37 on a punt return. The tackler grabbed him by the back and front of the helmet and flung him to the ground, across the sidelines. Shank protested that a face-making penalty should be called, and got only 15 against him for the protest.

One further call came late in the game when a Joey Mattheis pass was intercepted at midfield by D.D. Hoggard. Just before the ball got to Hoggard, intended receiver Ted King was knocked down, several yards upfield, with the ball still in the air. King got 15 on him when he, too, protested the lack of a pass interference call.

"Losing this way leaves a bitter taste," Bumgarner said, backing his players to the hilt on the calls.

Otherwise, the game was a defensive struggle. Rose garnered only 99 yards in total offense, 52 through the air and 47 on the ground. Bertie ended up with 127, including 74 in the air and 53 on the ground.

Rose was also hampered by losing three of four fumbles.

Neither team had a threat in the first period, with both crossing midfield only once. Bertie got to the Rose 48 before penalties cost them the ball and field position. Rose got to the 37 before being thrown back and having to punt.

Both also had one possession in the second period across midfield, and both had scoring opportunities this time. Bertie got the ball at the Rose 27 on a fumble on the first play of the period, but were thrown back to the 40 on three plays and elected to punt.

Later Rose took over on its own 40 and Derwin Clemons got a first down at the Bertie 49 on an 11-yard pitchout. Mattheis then hit Tony Dawson on a 36-yard pass play that saw Dawson have to come back on the ball, fight off a potential tackler at the spot of the catch, then make 10 more yards by cutting across the field. That put the ball on the 15, but by fourth down, Rose had gotten only to the six, and a 23-yard field goal attempt by King was off-target.

Early in the third period, Rose crossed midfield, but then fumbled the ball away back to their own 38. Bertie pushed down to the 12 before a holding penalty pushed them back and they failed to pick up a first down.

From there on, Rose had penalty troubles. After Shank's option run was nullified, Bertie held and forced a punt that saw Rose face-mask on the tackle, with the additional 15 yards tacked on for complaining about the call.

That put the ball on the 16. Nepton Speller got three yards on first down, but Sherman Pugh was thrown back to the 17 on second down. Stanley Pugh then found Thompson open up the middle right at the enge of the end zone. He pulled in the ball for the score with 1:35 left in the period. A two-point try was stopped short of the goal line.

Rose moved the ball back to midfield following the kickoff, then got it back at the Bertie 37 following a punt and a 10-yard Shank return. But on first down, a fumble turned it back over to the Falcons.

Bertie had the ball down deep in Rose territory during the final minute, but chose to just run out the clock.

The loss was the fourth in seven games for Rose, which is now 2-4-1 overall. The Rampants are 0-2 in league play. Bertie is 6-0-1 overall and 2-0 in Division I.

Rose returns home to face Northern Nash next Friday.

schedule last year and they never quit. In fact, they won five of their last eight games, and reversed four earlier defeats, three of them on the road."

Terming last season disappointing, Gillman looks for improvement this year. "But our schedule is probabaly tougher this year with teams like Notre Dame, Detroit, N.C. State, Maryland and South Carolina. Our home schedule is tougher too, and the fans should enoy this."

ECU Athletic Ticket Office personnel said that while season ticket sales haven't begun yet, that inquiries are ahead of last year.

"I think we are more talented than last year," Gillman said. "But we have to shore up our rebounding and play better defense to be successful. We can't be giving the opponent so many shots at the basket. I'd guess we got outrebounded 70 per cent of our games last year."

Shooting was also a problem at times, but Gillman feels that the Pirates improved in that as the season went along, and should show continued improvement this year. Only two of the returning players shot below 50 per cent last year.

"For the most part I was happy with our shot selection," Gillman said.

But free throw shooting is an area where improvement is definitely needed. Only two, Krusen and Mack, shot better than 75 per cent from the line.

"We lost a few games at the line, but then we won a few too," Gillman said. "Our concentration needs improvement here."

Defense is one big area that needs improvement, as the Pirates set a new record for allowing opponent's points last year, 88.8 per game.

"We've got to make them take the poor shot, and then get the ball off the boards. At times last year, our defense wasn't that bad, but we were giving up too many second and third shots, and it made us look helpless."

Gillman said the Pirates would work a lot on intangibles too, self pride, team unity and intensity. "Winning is not easy," Gillman said. "These things will help us. You can talk a lot about the various things you have to do like rebounding, shooting, defense, but if you don't execute and put forth the effort, you won't win."

Gillman feels the center spot can be filled capably by Cornelius, but notes that Hobson and Tyson can also move in here. "Hobson could also play one of the forward positions, as well as Tyson," Gillman said. "We look for a lot of leadership from Greg, too."

The small forward spot will open with Krusen "a heck of a shooter, and just a junior, too," along with Gray and McLaurin.

The power forward spot would likely see Underwood, Cornelius, Tyson, Hobson and Powers, with the latter also playing some guard duty.

Mack, of course, will be at the big guard spot, with Miles working here, at the point and at the forward spot too.

Moseley returns at the point, and Gillman looks for a lot of improvement from him. "Maynor could play here or at the other guard spot. How quickly he makes the transition from junior college to senior will make a big difference in how much he plays."

The Pirates play a 27-game schedule, starting November 25, when the Bucs play host to UNC-Asheville in Minges Coliseum.

Last year, Gillman was quoted as saying the Pirates could win 20 games if all went well. "I said I'd be disappointed if we didn't win 17 or 18," Gillman reminded.

This year—the coach has no predictions. "We're just going to play them one at a time and hope we can improve. We're looking forward to it. Basketball is a game to enjoy, and winning makes it more enjoyable."

Colts, Dolphins Glad To Have QB's Return

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

For Coach Ted Marchibroda and the Baltimore Colts, the long wait appears to be over. Quarterback Bert Jones will probably return to action Sunday against the New York Jets.

"How long can you go without your better football players?" Marchibroda wondered as the Colts staggered along without Jones and a host of others, losing four of their first six games of the season. "We're very fortunate we're in the position we are with the problems we've faced this season. We're 2-4 but only two games out with 10 to go. We feel Bert will be ready to play. From all indications his shoulder is healed."

Jones' preseason shoulder separation was only one of the problems faced by Marchibroda. Lydell Mitchell was traded away to San Diego after getting into a salary dispute. Stan White, George Kunz and several other players also were sidelined by injuries and Nelson Munsey retired.

Still, the Colts are within striking distance of first place in the American Conference East with Miami and New England 4-2.

The Dolphins have played all but eight minutes of the season (the last eight minutes of last Monday night's 21-0 victory over Cincinnati) without quarterback Bob Griese. He figures to start this Sunday in San Diego. And New England may have to do without its No.1 quarterback, Steve Grogan, when the Pats visit Cincinnati. Grogan who has a hand injury.

The Jets, meanwhile, are guided these days by Matt Robinson in the absence of Richard Todd, sidelined by a broken collarbone. New York demolished Buffalo 45-14 last Sunday to even its mark at 3-3.

In Sunday's other games it's Los Angeles at Minnesota, New Orleans at San Francisco, Detroit at Atlanta, Pittsburgh at Cleveland, Seattle vs. Green Bay at Milwaukee, Tampa Bay at the New York Giants, Washington at Philadelphia, Buffalo at Houston, Dallas at St.Louis and Kansas City at Oakland. Chicago, with newly acquired defensive tackle Alan Page, visits Denver Monday night.

Jones has completed 78 percent of his passes against the Jets in nine previous games. The Colts have won six in a row over New York, connecting for 13 touchdowns in that span.

The Jets have gone almost exclusively to a running game in Todd's absence. Last week they gained 231 yards rushing, including 91 by Kevin Long, who tied a one-game club record with three touchdowns on the ground.

Ayden-Grifton Romps To 62-14 Victory Over Greene Central

LITTLEFIELD — Ayden-Grifton High School warmed up for its key meeting with Farmville Central next Friday with a 62-14 romp over Greene Central Friday night.

Donnie Jackson scored three touchdowns, while David Smith scored once and passed for two others to lead the Chargers to their fourth straight win against conference competition.

The Chargers and Jaguars, the only two unbeatens in the conference, meet this coming Friday for what will probably be the championship of the league'

Greene Central got on the scoreboard first, gaining an early lead on the Chargers. Jerry Edwards scored on a 30-yard pass from Greg Holmes and Jimbo Fulghum kicked the PAT for an early 7-0 lead.

But the Chargers came back with two scores before the first quarter was over. Smith got the first on a one-yard dive and Shelton McCarter tied it up with his PAT kick.

McCarter then scored on a 40-yard pass from Smith, and also added the PAT to put A-G ahead for good, 14-7.

Jackson scored two of his three touchdowns in the second period. The first game on a three-yard run, and the second on a seven-yard tear. McCarter was successful on the first of his kicks in this period, giving A-G as 27-7 lead at halftime.

Both teams picked up single scores in the third period. Jackson completed his scoring with a 15-yard pass from Smith, upping the lead to 33-7.

Greene Central came back to see Holmes score on a 56-yard pass from Ken Johnson. Fulghum again kicked and the A-G lead was cut to 33-14.

Ayden-Grifton then closed out the game with four fourth quarter touchdowns, turning it into a rout. Tim Odom got things going, picking up a teammate's fumble and carrying it the final three yards to the end zone. McCarter again kicked.

Brady Quinn followed that up with a 28-yard interception return for a score. Smith passed to Chris Phillips for a two-point conversion.

Billy Holland went 45 yards for the third touchdown, and Quinn finished it up with a ten-yard run for the final score. Smith passed to Jackson for the last PAT.

Holland led the A-G offense with 89 yards, while Anthony Chapman had 78 and Smith had 54.

Odom and Mark Anderson led the defense with 15 tackles each.

Farmville Romps By C.B. Aycock, 47-0

FARMVILLE — Farmville Central's Donald Reid put on a show Friday night as he led the Jaguars to a 47-0 rout of Charles B. Aycock.

Reid scored four touchdowns and kicked five extra points, as he paced the team to its third straight Eastern Carolina Conference victory of the season.

Donald Freeman scored one other touchdown and passed for another, while James Tyson rounded out the scoring with a punt return.

Aycock was totally held in check by the Jaguars, and never got past the Farmville 45 yard line. Aycock managed only 20 yards in total offense, while Farmville ground out 315, and scored on its first five possessions.

Reid got the scoring started in the first period, scoring on a six-yard run. He added the PAT for a 7-0 score.

Reid then came back on the next series with a four-yard scoring run, and once more kicked the PAT, making it 14-0.

Freeman got his touchdown next, scoring from 11 yards out, and once more Reid did the honors with his foot closing out the first period with Farmville in a 21-0 lead.

Thirteen more points went up in the second period. Reid scored his third touchdown on a five-yard run, but penalties on the PAT pushed the ball back, and a 35-yard kick bounced back off the cross-bar.

Roger Joyner closed out the first half scoring by taking a 37-yard pass from Freeman, and Reid once again kicked the PAT, making it 34-0 at halftime.

Reid closed out his touchdown parade in the third period, scoring on a five-yard run. He also added the PAT to make it 41-0.

The last score came then Tyson returned a punt 43 yards to the end zone. Reid's kick this time, was off the mark.

Farmville is now 6-1 overall, and travels to Ayden-Grifton next Friday in a showdown game that will probably mean the conference title.

Southern Nash Downs Vikings By 37-7 Score

SPRING HOPE — Southern Nash gained a 37-7 victory over D.H. Conley, scoring five times before the Vikings finally managed to get on the scoreboard.

The loss was the third straight against conference foes against one defeat, and left the Vikings with a 2-5 overall record.

The game was halted with approximately three minutes left on the clock after Conley had been hit with several penalties.

Wayne Grady, who scored twice for Southern, got things going in the first period, scoring on an 89-yard punt return for a 6-0 lead.

The Firebirds came back with another score in the second period, as Frank Crumel scored on a 12 yard run, and Grady kicked the PAT to make it 13-0. That score held the rest of the half.

Southern then exploded for three third quarter scores. Donnie Alston got the first on a 17-yard run, and Marvin Vick added the second from six yards out.

Grady scored his second touchdown of the game, again on a punt return, this one of 44 yards.

Conley got its lone score in the fourth period as Michael Clemons scored on a 15-yard run.

Southern countered that with a one-yard plunge by Wilfred Walker.

The Firebirds, with the win, moved to 2-2 in the Eastern Carolina Conference and 4-3 overall.

Conley plays host to C.B. Aycock on Friday, while Southern is at home to North Lenoir.

Guidry, Nettles Guide Yanks To Win

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Ron Guidry got the win and Graig Nettles picked up the save, rescuing the New York Yankees in the crucial third game of the 75th World Series.

The Yankees came home Friday night and enjoyed it immensely, beating Los Angeles 5-1 to halve the Dodgers' lead in the best-of-seven Series to 21.

Today, in a rematch of the opening game pitchers, righthander Ed Figueroa was to try and erase his "choke" label when he opposed left-handed sinkerball specialist Tommy John, who had the Yanks hitting ground balls last Tuesday night.

Guidry, the 25-game winner in the regular season, pitched out of jams all night Friday, and his best "out" pitch was the hard grounder to Nettles, the magical third baseman.

"Guidry didn't beat us; Nettles did," said Dodger second baseman Davey Lopes, who was robbed on one of Nettles' gems in the sixth inning with two out and the bases loaded.

"He probably saved four or five runs for the Yanks," said Dodger slugger Steve Garvey, who also was victimized by Nettles' gold glove with the bases loaded and two out in the fifth. "He was the key."

Roy White homered in the opening inning for the Yanks' first run. Nettles singled and scored in the second for all the runs Guidry would need.

"If you save your club a couple of runs, it's as good as an RBI or two," said Nettles, who has been struggling at the plate in the Series. "I think I can play third base as well as anybody."

The Dodgers seemed in awe of Nettles' fielding plays while the Yanks, seeing his greatness all season, considered it just another day at the office for the classy third baseman.

"What he did tonight is not out of the ordinary. It was just on national TV," said Reggie Jackson, the Yankee slugger whose line single knocked in the middle run of a three-run seventh inning off Dodger starter Don Sutton. It was the seventh straight Series game in which Jackson has delivered a run — one short of Lou Gehrig's record set a half century ago.

"His nickname is 'Puff,' but he blew the Dodgers out," quipped Jackson. "(Brooks) Robinson, how could he have played any better?"

Paul Blair, the slick Yankee outfielder, played in Baltimore for several years with Brooks Robinson, the best-fielding third baseman in modern times.

"Both of them were so consistent," said Blair. "Whether they were hitting .330 or .130, they made all the plays in the field. Puff is the closest thing I've seen to Brooks. The man can play.

"The thing Brooks could do better was come in and throw. Puff might have more range going to his left and a little better arm."

Guidry has the best pitching arm in baseball, but he was not overwhelming against the Dodgers. In fact, he was underwhelming.

"I had my fastball in the bullpen but lost it on the way to the mound," said the skinny left-hander. "I realized about the second or third inning that the ball wasn't popping, so I had to resort to something else. I took something off the ball, threw a lot of change-ups and pitched to spots.

"When my fastball is working, I don't have to throw change-ups."

Dodger slugger Reggie Smith fanned to end the game. It was only the fourth strikeout of the game for Guidry, who surrendered a season-high seven walks and eight hits.

"I had anticipated more heat from Guidry," said Smith. "He struck me out on a change-up, a slow change-up. That isn't fair."

Yankee catcher Thurman Munson, who singled in one run and then scored in the seventh, helped nurse Guidry through his struggles.

"You know the song, 'I did it my way.' That's the way Guidry pitched tonight. Slow stuff and more slow stuff. His slider wasn't any good and he didn't pop my glove. It had to be my way," said Munson.

The Dodgers closed within 2-1 in the third on Bill Russell's RBI single. But they never scored again, stranding 11 baserunners — three on third base.

Roanoke Romps Past Edgecombe

LEGGETTS — Roanoke High School snapped from its first Eastern Plains Conference defeat Friday night to romp to a 51-3 victory over North Edgecombe.

Barton Roberson, Charles Hines and Sutton Edmondson each scored twice to help lead the Redskins to their romp.

The Redskins were slow starting, getting only one score in the first period. That came when Tony Whitfield scored on a 16-yard scamper. Clay Roberson kicked the PAT to make it 7-0.

The 'Skins came back with two touchdowns in the second period to run their lead out to 19-0. Both of the scores were by Barton Roberson. He scored the first on a one-yard run, and the second on a 20-yard pass from Jeff Cargile.

North Edgecombe came up with its only score of the night following that, with Willie Johnson kicking a 30-yard field goal.

The Redskins added three more touchdowns in the third period. Hines got the first two on runs of 16 and six yards. Edmondson picked up the third, with an 18-yard return of a North Edgecombe fumble. Whitfield ran over the two-point conversion after that score.

Two final scores came in the last period. Edmondson scored first, with his second touchdown. That came on a 54-yard interception return.

The other score was by Leondus Worsley, scoring on a one-yard plunge.

The victory boosted the Roanoke overall record to 5-2 and to 2-1 in conference play.

The Redskins play host to North Johnston this Friday.

Choo-Choo To Lead Parade

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. — Charlie "Choo Choo" Justice, North Carolina's legendary All-America football player of the late 1940's, will serve as Grand Marshal for the American 500-mile Winson Cup National stock car race on Sunday, October 22 at North Carolina Motor Speedway.

Justice, who now runs his own insurance agency in Greensboro, will be introduced to the crowd and ride at the head of a 36-car field at NASCAR's finest before witnessing his first superspeedway stock car race, set to begin at 12 noon.

The $150,000 event, richest ever for a Grand National race on a one-mile track, will close out the WCGN season in the Carolinas-Virginia area. The American 500 is traditionally the determining point in the Grand National point championship race. Cale Yarborough clinched the title here last year and is in position to do it again.

Justice, admitting that he is eager to see the race drivers in action, has words of praise for NASCAR's management. "NASCAR has done a good job of developing safety procedures," he said. "For the most part, a race driver seems to have less chance of getting hurt than a football player."

As a triple-threat tailback for the University of North Carolina from 1946 through 1949, Justice became a legend with his slippery breakaway runs, running passes and sensational punting. He amassed 5,176 yards for an NCAA total offense record and averaged 42.5 yards punting for another NCAA mark.

He continued his football career with the Washington Redskins, serving them brilliantly as a punter and averaging four yards per carry before retiring after the 1954 season.

North Lenoir Nips Panthers

BETHEL — North Lenoir gained its first Eastern Carolina Conference football victory and only its third overall in a 16-12 win over North Pitt Friday night.

The loss was the third straight for the Panthers, who had won their first four games of the season.

The Hawks led the entire game, scoring the first and third touchdowns of the contest.

The first came in the second period when Dennis Turnage plunged over from the one yard line. Johnny Wiggins made the conversion on a two-point run, making it 8-0.

North Pitt came back to score on a 27-yard pass from Bob Hemingway to Mickey Hines, but the Panthers' two-point try failed, and that became the key to the ball game.

Both teams came back to score in the final quarter. This time, Wiggins did the honors for North Lenoir, scoring from four-yards out. Turnage did a turn-around, scoring the two-pointer on this score.

North Pitt again saw Hemingway and Hines team up for a scoring pass, this one of 12 yards, but again the two-point try fell short.

North Pitt travels to Greene Central next week, while North Lenoir is at Southern Nash.

Ahoskie Rips Williamston

AHOSKIE — The Ahoskie football team romped to a 49-0 victory over Williamston High School Friday night, holding the Tigers to just 86 yards in total offense.

In the meanwhile, Ahoskie rolled up 444 yards in total offense itself.

Ahoskie scored twice in each of the first three periods, with Robert Burke doing the honors on the first three scores. Burke led the Ahoskie attack with 123 yards in 17 carries.

His first two scores came in the opening period of the game. He ran for two yards on the first and three on the second, with Gregory Watford kicking after each of them.

Burke's third score, in the second quarter, came on a 24-yard run. That was followed by a 48-yard pass from William Britt to Glenn Mitchell for the second touchdown of the period. Watford again kicked after each score, making it 28-0 at the half.

Ahoskie added two more scores in the third period. Watford scored a touchdown of his own on a three-yard run, with James Whitaker scoring later in the quarter on a 10-yard run. Watford added two more PATs.

In the final quarter, Ronald Ely scored the last touchdown on a one-yard dive. Alvin Chamble kicked the PAT to close out the scoring.

The loss left the Tigers with a 1-6 record on the year and a 1-3 Northeastern Conference mark. Ahoskie is now 5-1-1 record overall and a 3-0 league mark.

Williamston is at home to Edenton on Friday, while Ahoskie travels to Washington.

LIKES COLLEGIANS

CINCINNATI (AP) — Ed Badrer, the head basketball coach at the University of Cincinnati, took that post after a stint as coach of the Chicago Bulls of the NBA. Badger would rather work with collegians.

"The pros don't want to be taught," he said. "They don't care about learning new things. They just want to continue the way they are. College boys have open minds and are more coachable."

Bullets Start Like They Ended

By ALEX SACHARE

The Bullets received their 1977-78 championship rings from Commissioner Larry O'Brien in ceremonies prior to Friday night's National Basketball Association season opener. They then went out and raced to a 17-4 lead over New Orleans and were never headed, starting their defense of their title with an impressive 117-101 victory.

"I told the players before the game that the ring was symbolic," said Washington Coach Dick Motta. "It's a confidence builder. I wanted to wear it during the game. It's difficult to explain...there's something about being champion.

"But it's history now and the job is ahead of us."

The job is to repeat as champion, something no team has done in the past decade, not since the mighty Boston Celtics in 1968 and 1969.

In other NBA season openers, the Denver Nuggets trimmed the San Antonio Spurs 118-117, the Houston Rockets beat the New York Knicks 111-107, the Cleveland Cavaliers defeated the Boston Celtics 115-101, the Philadelphia 76ers topped the Los Angeles Lakers 110-102, the New Jersey Nets edged the Detroit Pistons 107-105, the Indiana Pacers downed the Atlanta Hawks 117-104, the Phoenix Suns beat the San Diego Clippers 128-114 and the Seattle SuperSonics defeated the Chicago Bulls 104-86.

Nuggets 118, Spurs 117

David Thompson's stuff shot with 23 seconds left capped a 27-point game and broke the final tie as the Nuggets edged the Spurs. A free throw with eight seconds to play by newcomer Charlie Scott provided the margin of victory as San Antonio's Larry Kenon, who scored 20 of his 38 points in the fourth quarter, hit a basket at the buzzer.

Rockets 111, Knicks 107

Moses Malone scored 29 points and grabbed 20 rebounds in outplaying New York's $3 million free agent signee, Marvin Webster. The Rockets built a 20-point lead and turned back a late Knicks charge to win.

Rudy Tomjanovich, playing his first game since having his face shattered by Kermit Washington's punch on Dec. 9, 1977, had 20 points, 12 rebounds and 6 assists. Rick Barry, Houston's $1 million free agent prize, contributed 14 points and 6 assists while Webster, in early foul trouble, was held to 9 points and 5 rebounds.

Cavaliers 115, Celtics 101

Walt Frazier scored 12 of his 18 points in the third quarter as the Cavaliers moved ahead to stay after erasing a four-point halftime deficit. Terry Furlow led Cleveland with 22 points while JoJo White, one of only four holdovers from last year's Celtics, scored 20.

76ers 110, Lakers 102

Julius Erving scored 22 points for Philadelphia, which ran off eight straight points late in the fourth quarter to snap a 90-90 tie. Rookie guard Maurice Cheeks had 11 assists for the Sixers.

Nets 107, Pistons 105

New Jersey, the NBA's only unbeaten team in the preseason, got 35 points from John Williamson and 25 from Bernard King in beating Detroit and spoiling the coaching debut of the Pistons' Dick Vitale before a club-record crowd of 13,688 in the first game at the Pontiac Silverdome.

Pacers 117, Hawks 104

Alex English, signed by Indiana as a free agent this summer after spending two years with Milwaukee, scored 10 of his game-high 26 points in the third period as the Pacers erased a nine-point halftime deficit and went on to beat Atlanta.

Suns 128, Clippers 114

Paul Westphal scored 21 points as Phoenix beat San Diego in the first game for the Clippers, who were the Buffalo Braves last year. Kermit Washington of San Diego led all scorers with 25 points.

Sonics 104, Bulls 86

Dennis Johnson scored 26 points for Seattle and Lonnie Shelton, obtained as compensation after the Knicks signed Webster, came off the bench to add 18. The Sonics pulled away by outscoring the Bulls 22-10 in the final eight minutes.

Bow And Arrow Kill

Mike Seymour, right, of Rt. 9, Box Box 255, Greenville, killed this eight-point buck while hunting on the Calico Hunting Club lands on Friday, September 29, with a bow and arrow. The 185-pound buck was his first bow and arrow kill. He was hunting with Randy Adams, left, when he made the kill.

Gonzalez Beaten

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Sven Davidson downed Pancho Gonzalez 7-5, 3-6, 6-2 in Friday night's first-round play of the $15,000 Grand Masters tennis tournament.

In another opening match at the Anaheim Tennis Center, Whitney Reed scored a 6-3, 7-6 victory over Rex Hartwig, the Grand Masters' top money-winner last year.

The event, for major tournament winners who are now 45 and older, wraps up Sunday.

The tournament is sponsored by Almaden.

The New York Yankees first wore their famous pinstripe uniforms in 1915.

ECU Chemist Going To Soviet Symposium

ECU News Bureau

An East Carolina University scientist will travel to Tashkent deep in the fabled heart of the Asiatic Soviet Union next week to present a paper at an international symposium on polymer chemistry.

Tashkent is the capital of Uzbekistan, most important economically of the Soviet Republics in Central Asia, and will be site of a gathering of nearly 1,000 scientists from around the world Oct. 17-21.

Dr. Angelo A. Volpe, professor and chairman of the Department of Chemistry, ECU, will present a scientific paper, "Synthesis of Diels-Alder Polymers via Benzye Intermediates," reporting on his research in this area. The study involves arrangement of molecular structure in polymers and effects of high temperatures upon such structures, knowledge of which may be applicable in plastics and coating material chemistry.

English and Russian will be the official languages of the symposium and Volpe's report also will include displays by poster, bulletin and board and slides.

Volpe's travel to the International Symposium on Macromolecular Chemistry in Tashkent will be financed in part by an administrative travel grant from ECU. He will leave New York Sunday for arrival in Moscow, via London, on Monday evening. He will reach Tashkent, some 3,000 miles southeast of Moscow, on Tuesday and will spend four days at the symposium.

The symposium is under auspices of the Academy of Sciences of the U.S.S.R. the Polymer Council of the Academy of Sciences, U.S.S.R., the Academy of Sciences of the Uzbek S.S.R. and other refining and petrochemical societies. Several Nobel prize winning chemists are among those invited, Volpe said.

Dr. Volpe's polymer synthesis research began at the Stevens Institute of Technology in New Jersey, and the report he will present was co-authored by Jean M. Dineen, a doctoral student at Stevens, and Ed Howell, an ECU graduate student in chemistry. Dr. Volpe came to ECU last year from Stevens Institute of Technology.

It will be his first trip to any part of the Soviet Union.

ECU Alumna In Peace Corps

ECU News Bureau

Charlotte Marshburn of Raleigh, a 1977 graduate of East Carolina University, has begun service with the U.S.Peace Corps, with an assignment in Kingston, Jamaica.

After five weeks' job orientation in Kingston and Port Antonio, Ms. Marshburn was formally sworn into service in late September, at a ceremony at the residence of the U.S. Ambassador Jamaica.

Mumford To Be Guest At ECU Library Event

ECU News Bureau

Dr. L. Quincy Mumford of Ayden, former Librarian of Congress, will be among the special guests at an open house reception at East Carolina University's Joyner Library Friday, Oct. 27, from 3 to 5 p.m.

The occasion is the first such public reception since the library's most recent expansion was completed. Dr. Mumford was present at the original 1954 dedication of the library building.

Other guests will include ECU Chancellor Thomas Brewer, former Library Director Wendell W. Smiley who coordinated planning for the recent library expansion, and other past members of the ECU library services staff.

Designed by architects Lyle, Bisset, Carlyle and Wolfe, the wing was completed at a total cost of $2,330,079 and has a seating capacity of 900 and a book capacity of 250,000 volumes.

The expansion more than doubled the original library facility, and has made possible the library's present holdings of more than half a million volumes and 664,000 microform items.

Special features of the wing include a new books viewing area in the lobby, seven smoking areas, two conference rooms, private typing rooms, a copying center, clusters of informal seating, art display areas and electronic searching and security systems.

Services and collections housed in the wing include Reference, Documents, University Archives, Circulation, Public Catalog, North Carolina Collection, Reserve Books, Media Center, Juvenile, and Curriculum Laboratory Materials.

ECU's Dr. John Yeager Researching Magnesium

By GEORGETTE HENDRICK
ECU Medical Writer

Magnesium—you eat it in bananas and seafood, but have you ever thought about it protecting you against cardiovascular disease, the nation's number one killer?

Researchers have identified the metalic element as one of several "heart protectors," and a physiologist at the East Carolina University School of Medicine is currently conducting research which may provide further insight into magnesium's role in protecting against hypertension, stroke and other heart diseases.

In a project funded by the North Carolina United Way, Dr John C. Yeager is studying a particular breed of hamster whose heart cells begin to die spontaneously within 30 to 40 days of life. The hamsters live only 200 to 300 days.

Researchers don't know why this animal is an early victim of congestive heart failure, but a defect in the metabolism of magnesium may be the culprit. Either the hamster's blood stream or heart cells do not maintain the proper balance of the element.

In his research Yeager supplements the hamster's magnesium intake by increasing the element in the water supply or by injecting it into the animal. Both young and fetal hamsters receive the extra doses.

"What we want to find out is if higher levels of magnesium will keep the heart cells from dying," says Yeager, who has conducted previous work on magnesium. "We'll be looking at how the element gets from the stomach to the blood stream and then to the heart cells."

The project will provide further information on magnesium's protective effort against heart disease. Essential for nutrition, magnesium is a major constitutent of hard water areas develop less cardiuvascular disease than people living in soft water areas.

In Pitt County, a soft water area, 57 percent of all deaths are attributed to heart disease, compared to 52 percent in North Carolina and 54 percent nationwide.

Assigned To AFROTC

ECU News Bureau

Three Air Force personnel have been assigned to East Carolina University's Air Force ROTC detachment. They are Sgt. Bruce Barry, Capt. Steven Bienstock and Major Billy Tudor.

Barry, an AFROTC staff member at ECU since March, was previously stationed at Wurtsmith Air Force Base in Michigan, where he was with the administrative communications branch.

Bienstock joined the ECU AFROTC unit in July, after a period of service with the 308th Strategic Missile Wing at Little Rock, Ark. Air Force Base.

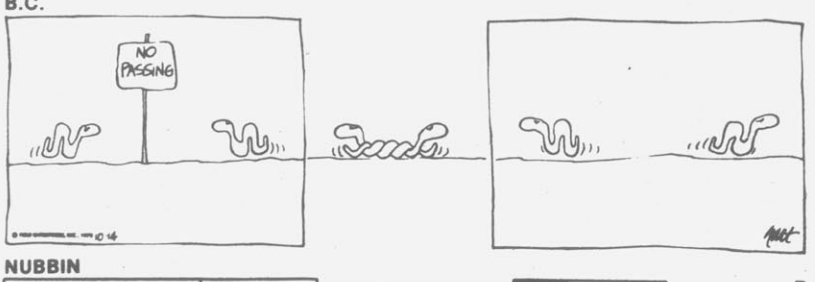

Tudor, came to ECU in August after service with the Air Force Manpower and Personnel Center in San Antonio, Texas.

Answer to yesterday's puzzle.

TYH OXNFYNNXJHYDK NFKYCKL CKKF JZL AXEM YZOXKHTK DLZ-EM YAYCK?

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — BLATANT BLUE JAY CAN BE VICIOUS TO JITTERY NERVES.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: F equals P

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Little Hope For Break In Rising Food Prices

By KRISTIN GOFF
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite government predictions of a bountiful harvest with record crops of corn and some other feed grains this year, economists see little hope for a major break in rapidly rising grocery bills next year.

Livestock, which under normal circumstances might respond to bumper feed crops with a gradual slowing of prices, are under price pressure from reduced herds of cattle, says Ray Daniels, at Chase Econometrics, a forcasting unit of Chase Manhattan Bank.

Like a number of other private food-industry economists, Daniels forecasts food inflation of about 8 percent next year, only a slight reduction from this year's rapid spiral.

Both government and private economists expect overall food prices this year are to average about 10 percent above 1977. That's the highest food inflation rate since 1974, when prices rose more than 14 percent.

The Department of Agriculture hasn't yet made its official 1979 forecast, but department economists are talking about food-price increases in a 5 percent to 10 percent range.

In other business developments this past week:

—Administration officials offered a preview of President Carter's soon-to-be-announced program to combat inflation, by confirming it will combine voluntary wage and price guidelines with tough sanctions against business and labor. Assistant Labor Secretary Arnold Packer said the program would concentrate on small groups or monopolies that have been "abusing their market powers" by limiting supplies and raising prices or wages at will. Separately, Barry Bosworth, a top advisor, said a major recession was likely if the program failed.

—During the week, a congressional conference committee worked on more than 50 differences in the Senate and House-passed versions of tax bills. The Senate bill, passed earlier in the week, is a $29.3 billion package that Carter said was too big. The House bill, passed in August, is a $16.3 billion measure that the President said was tilted too far toward the wealthy.

—The prime rate, a benchmark of interest rates in general, was moved up ¼ percent to 10 percent by the most of the nation's major banks. It was the first time since January 1975 that the interest rate hit the double-digit level. The prime rate is the interest banks charge their best corporate customers and is closely watched

By KRISTIN GOFF
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite government predictions of a bountiful harvest with record crops of corn and some other feed grains this year, economists see little hope for a major break in rapidly rising grocery bills next year.

Livestock, which under normal circumstances might respond to bumper feed crops with a gradual slowing of prices, are under price pressure from reduced herds of cattle, says Ray Daniels, at Chase Econometrics, a forcasting unit of Chase Manhattan Bank.

Like a number of other private food-industry economists, Daniels forecasts food inflation of about 8 percent next year, only a slight reduction from this year's rapid spiral.

Both government and private economists expect overall food prices this year are to average about 10 percent above 1977. That's the highest food inflation rate since 1974, when prices rose more than 14 percent.

The Department of Agriculture hasn't yet made its official 1979 forecast, but department economists are talking about food-price increases in a 5 percent to 10 percent range.

In other business developments this past week:

—Administration officials offered a preview of President Carter's soon-to-be-announced program to combat inflation, by confirming it will combine voluntary wage and price guidelines with tough sanctions against business and labor. Assistant Labor Secretary Arnold Packer said the program would concentrate on small groups or monopolies that have been "abusing their market powers" by limiting supplies and raising prices or wages at will. Separately, Barry Bosworth, a top advisor, said a major recession was likely if the program failed.

—During the week, a congressional conference committee worked on more than 50 differences in the Senate and House-passed versions of tax bills. The Senate bill, passed earlier in the week, is a $29.3 billion package that Carter said was too big. The House bill, passed in August, is a $16.3 billion measure that the President said was tilted too far toward the wealthy.

—The prime rate, a benchmark of interest rates in general, was moved up ¼ percent to 10 percent by the most of the nation's major banks. It was the first time since January 1975 that the interest rate hit the double-digit level. The prime rate is the interest banks charge their best corporate customers and is closely watched

Greenville's Roots Grew From Bath

Towns are people, and if people have roots, then why not towns? How does one go about tracing the roots of a town? Why, through its people, of course. Perhaps you end up in a another town. That's exactly what happends if you begin tracing Greenville's roots. The next stop is Bath, a little town in Beaufort County. Why Bath? Because that's where Richard Evans, founder of Greenville, was born probably between 1734 and 1739.

His father, a sea captain also named Richard, began acquiring property in the area in 1734 and soon married Mary Lillington, granddaughter of Alexander Lillington and John Porter, both prominent residents of the area. Mary's brother, Alexander, became the hero of Moore's Creek Bridge in the War for Independence.

Richard and Mary Evans became the parents of three children born before 1744, Richard, Mary, and George. Meanwhile, Mary's mother, Sarah Porter Lillington, had been widowed, had married Seth Pilkington, and had given him two daughters. One of them, Sarah, married Michael Cautanche (Cotanche, Coutanch), who built for her a house on Front Street that became the showplace of the town.

When the first Richard Evans died in 1753, Michael Cautanche, as executor of the will, became responsible for the children of his brother-in-law. Probably they went to live with him in the house on Front Street. Richard's daughter, Mary, lived out her short life there, dying in 1758 at the age of 19. She was buried in the garden under a soapstone marker, literally covered with statements of her virtue.

Richard was named guardian for his brother in 1756, so he was probably about 18. By 1760, when Pitt County was formed from the northwest corner of Beaufort County, he was selling land in the Bath area left to them by their father and was looking upriver. He and George were well-established in Pitt by 1764 when he was named a captain in the militia. Prior to leaving Bath, Richard married his cousin, Susanna Cautanche, daughter of Sarah Pilkington and Michael Cautanche.

The house built by Michael Cautanche still stands on Front Street in the historic district, its fortunes rising and falling with those of the town. Facing southward, presenting its side to the street, the house has several remarkable features. The central beam is continuous the length of the house, having been cut from a single tree. There is no cookhouse, the kitchen being located in the cellar on the streetside of the house. Here the foundations of the house are visible—they are of whitewashed ballast rocks thrown on the beaches by the crews of ships preparatory to loading the colony's produce for shipment to England.

The most remarkable (and visible) feature of the house is the chimney on the side away from the street. It covers nearly the entire side of the house and is called a "pants chimney" because it looks like a pair of pants standing on the waistband with the legs in the air. Two windows in the chimney open into two small rooms surrounded on three sides by the chimney. The use of these little rooms is open to speculation.

Inside, the rooms are arranged around a large entrance hall running the width of the house. The hall was used also as a dining room when guests were expected. A door at the back provided access to the gardens and

Antidote For Halloween

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

Maida Silverman plans to hang a bouquet of dried mugwort, St. John's wort, dill and vervain on her New York City apartment door at Halloween.

Not that she's superstitious.

But legend and tradition hold all four to be strong protection against witchcraft.

Mullein stalks are also called hags' tapers or witches' tapers, supposedly because they were soaked in tallow and used by witches to light their Black Sabbats — and Halloween is one of the biggest Black Sabbats, Ms. Silverman said in an interview.

On Oct. 25, she is scheduled to deliver a slide-lecture at the New York Horticultural Society on plants that have ancient associations with witchcraft and the occult.

"People took (these associations) very seriously for thousands of years," Ms. Silverman said in an interview. "They still do."

One friend laughed when told a Halloween legend about eating an apple to see your future husband.

"You sit in a dark room a few minutes before midnight, in front of a mirror, with a candle behind you and very slowly eat an apple while looking into the mirror," Ms. Silverman said. The image of your husband-tobe supposedly will appear over your left shoulder.

The friend didn't wait to find out, Ms. Silverman said. First, she began to feel cold. Then, when the candle began to flicker, the woman was so spooked she abandoned both the apple and the experiment. She doesn't laugh about the legend anymore.

Ms. Silverman is an illustrator, craftswoman and author. She writes about herbs and wild plants for magazines and wrote and illustrated "A City Herbal," published last year by A.A. Knopf, Inc.

"Witches were terrific psychologists," Ms. Silverman said. They played on people's fears and superstitions, and "they didn't deal with the classier side of society. They did an active business in abortions and prevention of conception. One of their stocks in trade was he worse something tasted the more effective it was."

They applied the same principle to smell.

"Garlic was probably used because of its pungency," she said. "People would carry garlic cloves in their pockets or in a bag around the neck to protect themselves when they walked abroad at night, especially on Halloween."

They laid sprays of mugwort or bouquets of dried field daisies in cradles to protect babies, especially unbaptized newborns at Halloween, when infants and pregnant mothers might be in danger. The expectant mothers wore bouquets of dried daisies in bags hung round their necks.

Halloween also was a favorite date for preparing charms, amulets and potions for use throughout the year, Ms. Silverman said.

They were believed to have more power than those prepared at other times.

"The powers of darkness were getting stonger as the days grew shorter," she said. Evil sirits had leave to roam on that night. Satan was believed to be present, to 'bless' the things witches readied for their clients and give them added strength.

Mugwort was popular for securing doors, windows, chimneys and other openings against the entry of black witches. (White witches did good deeds, but you don't hear much about that kind.)

Some people say mugwort leaves resemble hands held aloft with fingers spread apart. To ward off witches, of course.

Ms. Silverman thinks dill got its powerful reputation because the cup-shaped seed heads with spikes might entangle witches so they could not escape.

St. Johf's wort gained power, she thinks, because it came under the protection of that saint.

"Probably the best of all for warding off witches was angelica, because it was supposedly under the protection of the Archangel Michael," she said.

MULLEIN STALKS. . .and mugwort have ancient associations with witchcraft. Not that Maida Silverman's superstitious, but she plans to hang a bouquet on her apartment door at Halloween. (UPI Telephoto)

Miss Melinda Deyton Is Bride Of Paul W. Fox

MRS. PAUL WILLIAM FOX

Miss Melinda Yvonne Deyton and Paul William Fox of Raleigh were married Saturday at 4 p.m. in the First Presbyterian Church, Greenville. The Rev. Richard Rhea Gammon and Rather Maurice Spillane performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Guy Deyton Jr. of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Francis Fox Sr. of Ardmore, Pa.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal gown of candlelight silken organza over peau de soie, featuring a portrait neckline and a fitted bodice appliqued with imported French clipped rosepoint chantilly lace beaded with pearls. The A-line skirt and chapel train were edged in a double ruffle of rosepoint lace and gathered net. The bride wore a cathedral length mantilla of Brussels lace and carried a formal cascade bouquet of phalaenopsis orchids, white roses, white pixie carnations and sprays of English ivy tied with bridal satin.

Miss Nancy Deyton of Greenville, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. She chose a formal mauve gown with butterfly sleeves, scooped neckline, blouson waist and accordian pleated skirt. Bridesmaids were Cassie, Grayson, and Kara Deyton of Greenville, sisters of the bride, Josie Rawl of Greenville, Becky Clark of Raleigh, Vickie Davenport of Greenville, Betsy DeHaas of Washington, Pa., and Mary Early of Durham. Their dresses were identical to the honor attendant's. They carried bouquets designed similarly to the honor attendant's using only the happiness ribbon.

The church was centered with a standard arrangement of white gladioli, mums, pom pons and snapdragons flanked with branched candelabra and areca palms. A prie-dieu was at the altar, decorated with Mary De Vone roses and blue cornflowers tied with happiness satin. Pews were marked with satin bows and greenery.

Ushers included William, Andrew, Frank, Robert and Joseph Fox of Ardmore, Pa., brothers of the bridegroom, Timothy Taylor of Ardmore, Pa., Kevin Billerman of Durham and Robert Erich Deyton of Greenville, brother of the bride.

The bride's mother wore a long blue gown with a full skirt and empire waist with a beaded effect. The chiffon gown featured a cape. The bridegroom's mother chose a long tailored plum gown with mandarin neckline and long sleeves. An ice blue formal gown with V-neckline and sheering on the long sleeves was chosen by the grandmother of the bride. All were presented white orchid corsages.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents following the wedding ceremony. The home was decorated throughout with bouquets of pink and mauve pixie carnations, snapdragons, pom pons and baby's breath. The garden was decorated with hanging baskets and hurricane lamps decorated with love birds and pink and white satin. The refreshment table in the garden was covered with a white satin cloth and accented with springerii and a bouquet of pink, mauve, blue and white flowers arranged in a silver footed container flanked by silver candelabra. The bride's table was located in the entrance of the garden and featured the wedding cake.

After a wedding trip to Sea Island, Ga., the couple will reside in Raleigh.

Both the bride and bridegroom are graduates of Duke University. The bride was in the Alpha Delta Phi sorority and is now working toward a master's degree in reading at the University. The bridegroom was on the basketball team and served as a member of the Old Trinity Club and SAE fraternity.

The rehearsal dinner was given at the Greenville Golf and Country Club by the bridegroom's parents for the wedding party and friends. The couple was entertained with a dance at the American Legion Building hosted by friends of the bride. A wedding brunch for the wedding party, friends and out-of-town guests was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Whichard.

Talk Health To Friends

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please put something in your column that would be a tremendous help to a lot of people?

I refer to those individuals who are constantly complaining about their aches and pains. To hear them talk, nobody except themselves ever had a bad back, or stomach trouble or any kind of operation. No matter how hard the listener tries to steer the conversation to a more pleasant subject, these chronic complainers go on and on about their ailments. It's really too depressing for words.

A lot of these folks read your column. Please give them some kind of message. A gentle hint does no good. They go on and on.

TIRED OF HEARING IT

DEAR TIRED: We are all familiar with the type of "organ recital" you describe. In this connection, no one has topped the advice of the late Ella Wheeler Wilcox:

"Talk health. The dreary, never-ending tales of mortal maladies are worn and stale. You cannot charm or interest or please by harping on that minor cord—disease. So, say that you are well, and all is well with you. And God will hear your words and make them true."

DEAR ABBY: Jim and I have been married for over 40 years. We are both in our late 60s and still love each other deeply. However, due to Jim's impotence, we have not been sexually active for at least three years. This has not altered our relationship one iota. We still have a wonderful marriage and don't feel necessarily deprived.

Abby, I resent the constant bombardment from TV, radio and newspaper and magazine articles insisting that anyone who is under 90 and isn't sexually active should rush out and get some kind of therapy in order to live a "full life" again.

Jim and I DO live a full life. Sign me . . .

CONTENTED

DEAR CONTENTED: If you're contented, fine. But the bombardment you resent is intended for the older person who buys the myth (and it IS a myth) that sex is for the young only.

Not true. Of course, with increasing age comes the natural slowing down of the entire body, sexual activities included, but they need not stop.

After all, just because you can no longer Charleston all night doesn't mean you can't waltz for an hour.

DEAR ABBY: I have been going with a woman for nearly two years and I have never seen her in a dress! She absolutely refuses to wear one.

I have quit taking her out in public because she insists on wearing pants everywhere. Once, I even gave her money to buy a dress, but that didn't do any good.

Tell me, Abby, is there something wrong with her? Or do you think maybe I'm expecting too much?

GLEN

DEAR GLEN: There is remote possibility that her legs are disfigured, or she considers them unpresentable.

In any case, it's her right to wear whatever she chooses, and it's your right to refuse to escort her for reasons of your own.

Do you wish you had more friends? For the secret of popularity, get Abby's new booklet: "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

to the kitchen. To the left of the front door is the great parlor overlooking the street. Across the hall are the family dining room and the parlor. This parlor has a door to the garden and access to one of the little rooms in the chimney, as does one of the bedrooms upstairs.

Upstairs are five rooms. The Restoration Committee has chosen to furnish the large room over the great parlor as a master bedroom with the small room next to it as a dressing room, the next room as a servant's room with its rope bed and cornshuck mattress, and the others as family members' rooms. In the hall outside is a large armoire, or wardrobe, a piece of furniture that substituted for closets. The entire house is furnished in the style of the 18th century.

Outside, the formal gardens that were such a prominent feature of the home have disappeared in the 230-odd-years of the house's existence. Certainly the garden was there in the 1760's when Col. Robert Palmer, surveyor-general of the colony, bought the property. In the early years of the 19th century, the house passed to the Marsh family, it whose ownership it continued for more than a century. It is known today as the Palmer-Marsh House, for this period in its history.

At one point, in the early part of this century, it became the Bath Hotel, and certainly one can visualize the central hall as lobby, the great parlor are dining room, etc. At some time, a front porch was added, bringing the old house down another notch from her former grandeur. Fortunately, this state of affairs was not allowed to continue. In the 1950's, with Bath's 250th birthday approaching, the town suddenly remembered its great past and decided to save some of that past for future-generatons. The Palmer-Marsh House was declared a National Historic Landmark in 1970.

In all probability, Richard Evans discussed his plans for migration to Pitt County with Michael Cautanche, his father's good friend, and his uncle-father-in-law, in this house, thus setting in motion a chain of events that was to culminate in the establishment of another town up the river. This is the true beginning of the "trifling" little town on the Tar that George Washington was to visit so many years later on his Southern Tour.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

The students at St. Edward High School in Lakewood, Ohio, wrote me recently and wanted to know what I feel is the greatest challenge facing young people today.

That's easy. The No. 1 challenge facing today's youth is raising parents.

In a world where Moms and Dads are influenced by television, liberation, exchange of sex roles, and permissiveness, young people are going to have to make parent-raising their No. 1 priority or the American family will fall apart.

I overheard two teenagers talking just the other day about their respective parents.

"Can you believe, I haven't eaten a meal with Mom and Dad for a week? Every night they make some excuse to go somewhere."

"I know what you mean," said his friend. "I saw my mother the other night whipping off and I said to her, 'Where do you think you're going in that outfit?' I swear she looked like Annie Hall on a bad day. She said, 'I'm going to a meeting. Everyone else's mother is allowed to go.' I get so sick of hearing that. Do you know I can't go to sleep until I hear her car in the driveway?"

"My Dad is worse. He lives in that car. Out in the morning, home late at night. Then he sits in front of that stupid TV set watching sports all the time. I asked him one night, 'Don't you have any work to bring home from the office?' He said he didn't but I know better."

"Have your parents talked about getting their own apartment?"

"That's all they talk about. If Mom had to do her own dishes every night and Dad had to take out the garbage, they'd be home in two days."

"I don't know . . . mine never seem to want to go anywhere with us anymore."

"Maybe we nagged 'em too much. Or maybe we listened too little."

There was silence, then one boy added, "Where did we fail?"

"I don't know. I got pretty wrapped up in sports one year and it took a lot of time. Maybe we left 'em alone too much?"

"That's no excuse for their making a life of their own."

"Tell me, if you had it to do all over again, would you have parents?"

"Maybe just one — after all, they do look adorable on a Christmas card."

Floats, sponsors, queens and princesses are all part of the thoughts of many Rose High students as preparations for Homecoming begin. All activities of Homecoming Week, Oct. 20-27, have been decided by the Student Government Association and will relate to this year's theme "The Western Frontier."

The final votes for princesses, queens and Mr. and Miss School Spirit were cast Tuesday by the student body. Nominees for sophomore princess are Teresa Brown, Jimi Dawson, Patricia Harrison, Sarah Houston, Patti Lucido and Emily Wilson. Junior class nominations include Jeri Bullock, Jennifer Davis, Angeline Edwards, Leigh Mesner, Michelle Phillips and Gail Wilson.

The names on the Homecoming Queen ballot were decided by the senior class. Two girls will be chosen as queens from the Homecoming Court.

Members of the court include Jill Allen, Mary Blount, Caroline Bruton, JoLindy Daniels, Diane Davis, Nancy Garret, Sharon Gray, Janet Hodges, Laura Lauffer, Carol Lee, Melody Outerbridge and Kathy Streeter.

In addition to nominating members of the court, the seniors also nominated couples who are given the titles of Mr. and Miss School Spirit.

Mary Blount, Sharon Connolly, Rosa King, Carol Lee, Margaret McGlohon and Penney Rhodes are the nominees for Miss School Spirit while Tim Baker, Quentin Eaton, Curtis Little, Kevin Sayers, Wade Stokes and Joe Wallace are the nominees for Mr. School Spirit.

Although the final votes have been cast, winners will not be announced until the Homecoming assembly which will be held Oct. 27.

The majority of clubs as well as the three classes at Rose are now busy with the construction of Homecoming floats. All will participate in the parade and prizes will be given to the best three.

Clubs involved in building floats are the Arts Club, Spanish and French Clubs, Math Club, Chess Club and Science Ecology Club.

All interested members of the Chess Club met Thursday night to set the ladder in the fall tournament. The ladder will be used to later determine members of the chess team.

The Keywanettes may be found today in Washington as they enjoy a cookout prepared by the Key Club. These two clubs are also sponsoring the Homecoming dance again this year. Music will be provided by Great American Pastimes.

Prime Rate Indicator Of Expense In Borrowing

PRIME RATE — Chart shows the prime interest rates over the years since 1972, according to figures from the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System. To the average American, the prime rate is important mainly as an indicator of the expense of borrowing. (AP Laserphoto)

By MARK POTTS
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — You'd probably think the prime rate was more important if you needed a couple of million dollars to invest in a new factory.

To General Motors and other large American companies, news that the prime rate — the interest banks charge their best corporate customers — is going to 10 percent means that borrowing money to finance largescale development is going to cost more.

The increase — the ninth this year — was signaled Thursday when Chase Manhattan Bank, the nation's third largest, raised its prime rate from 9¾ to 10 percent. Other banks are expected to follow Chase's lead in the next few days.

But for the average American, the prime rate is important mainly as an indicator that borrowing is getting more expensive for everybody. That's because the fates of little men and big institutions are entwined. Actions of the government, large banks and major corporations tend eventually to trickle down to affect everyone.

The prime rate is going up because the Federal Reserve Board is making it more expensive for banks to borrow money from the nation's central bank. The intent is to control inflation by slowing economic growth, thus making the beleaguered U.S. dollar more attractive to foreign investors.

But interest rates on consumer loans — such as mortgages, now hovering near 10 percent in many states — are rising because banks are finding themselves pressed for cash to lend. As the economy recovers from the 1974-75 recession, Americans are going back to the loan windows in droves — and operating under time-tested tenets of supply and demand, banks are attempting to limit the requests for loans by making them more expensive.

"It's the demand for credit that really pushes the rates up," according to Leif Olsen, senior vice president of New York's Citibank, the nation's second-largest commercial bank.

So in a sense, increases in the prime rate and increases in consumer interest rates both result from growth in the economy. But the prime rises as a result of efforts to cut the growth signified by the rise in consumer rates.

According to Olsen, comparing increases in the prime to those in consumer rates "is like saying if the price of melons goes up, the price of oranges or bananas will go up."

Why then is the prime so closely watched?

"Because it was unchanged for so long, it received a lot of attention," said Olsen. "I would say the attention it receives is a lot more than it deserves."

Yet the prime rate has a psychological effect on other interest rates.

"It becomes an indicator of where other rates will go" because of its visibility, said David Jones, an economist at Aubrey G. Lanston & Co. Inc., a New York investment-banking firm.

Jones said consumer lending rates "are not as sensitive to money-market conditions as the prime, but they do tend to move in the same direction."

Many economists have suggested shifting the emphasis from the prime to the discount rate — the rate the Federal Reserve charges on loans to member banks. That rate, currently 8 percent, is the one used by other nations as a yardstick.

Jones said the discount rate "has the most effect internationally because it represents the philosophy of the monetary authorities" of a country.

It also reflects the relative strength of a nation's economy. Switzerland, with one of the world's most robust economies, has a discount rate of 1 percent. In West Germany, where the economy is also healthy, the central bank charges 3 percent for loans to banks. The prime rate in those countries is around 6 percent.

Although analysts don't expect the prime rate to go near its record of 12 percent — set four years ago during the recession — it's still a long way from the 6¼ percent it was at just 18 months ago.

But there's some solace from the international scene — in Brazil, where inflation is running rampant, the prime rate stands at 57.25 percent.

For Rent To A Ghost: House And Dark Attic

PITTSBURGH (AP) — What are the chances that a ghost will take a liking to your home on Halloween night and decide to move in?

According to Alan Van Dine, author of "Unconventional Builders," many people who believe in ghosts think architecture can make a difference.

"For instance, some people believe that features such as balconies, long stairways, attics without windows, big basements, towers, clocks or chimneys are open invitations to ghosts," says Van Dine.

"Other features are thought to repel them," adds the 45year-old author, who discusses these ghostly preferences in the chapter, "Designs for the Haunted House." It was originally one of 17 narratives in a series called "Tangents," conceived by Koppers for the building design profession and subsequently published as a book.

"Ghosts are believed to hate mirrors," he points out. "When confronted by one, the ghost vanishes — some say because it is terrified by its own reflection. So a house with a mirror on every wall would be ghost-proof."

A house surrounded by a moat is also thought to be safe, because the majority of ghosts can't — or won't — cross the water.

However, a rival faction of ghost-believers discounts the architectural attract-or-repel theory. They say a ghost simply haunts the place where he left traumatic unfinished business — such as death or a crime, reports Van Dine.

Some of the more infamous ghost houses in this category include:

—The U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y. There, the ghost of a 19th-century maid is said to rumple the bedclothes in the superintendent's mansion. And, a woman who died in a nearby house is said to frighten guests by floating in through an upstairs window.

—The Tower of London, with a violent 800-year history of murders and executions is also said to be haunted. According to report, two of its recurrent supernatural visitors are two wives of Henry VIII.

—Once occupied by Toronto's first mayor, the William Lyon MacKenzie Homestead in Canada is allegedly the home of rowdy ghosts who tramp the steps and pound the piano.

—In addition to unexplained bootsteps heard in the Ford Theater, where John Wilkes Booth shot Lincoln, other evidence suggests ghosts. A Matthew Brady photograph of the empty theater the day after Lincoln's assassination shows an eerie transparent figure close to the president's box.

According to Van Dine, the heir to the Winchester Rifle fortune was one of the strongest believers in the power of architecture to attract or repel ghosts. Fearing a problem with vengeful ghosts (the victims of the repeating rifle), Sarah P. Winchester set out to create a house that would attract friendly ghosts and repel hostile ones.

"Through a spiritualist," says Van Dine, "she was told that she would be safe as long as builders were busy providing accommodations for friendly spirits."

In 38 years, the Winchester House near San Jose, Calif., was worked on and added to continuously until it became a $5-million, 700-room house.

As the story goes, Sarah not only kept construction going, but she let the ghosts design the house themselves — the building plans were received each evening in a seance.

"Unfortunately, the ghosts turned out to be very demanding and untrained. Their plans included intersecting balconies, lots of chimneys for their entrances and exits, 47 fireplaces, bell towers, and a floor made of seven kinds of hardwood," says Van Dine.

"When Mrs. Winchester died in 1922, it took six weeks just to move the furniture — partly because the movers got lost in the labyrinth of rooms."

Finishes Work For Her Degree

GREENSBORO — Mary B. Matney of Greenville was among 379 persons who completed their degree requirements during summer school at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

Miss Matney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bronson Matney Jr., 1411 E. Wright Rd., a German major, received a bachelor of arts degree, cum laude.

Those receiving master's degrees with parents in Pitt County were Wade M. Lehman, son of Mr. and Mrs. George G. Lehman, Dupont Ave., Grifton, master of education degree; and Katherine I. White, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Clifford Inman, 104 N. Sylvan Dr., Greenville, master of education degree.

Harder Impact On Successful

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UPI) — Persons who have always been successful in life may be more susceptible than others to a common mental disorder if they suffer a sudden loss.

Sociologist Barry Glassner of Syracuse University says his recently completed 14-month study of working class manic depressives indicates the majority had undergone extremely stressful periods before the onset of the disorder, characterized by radical mood swings.

Glassner said most of the persons studied had been high achievers who had had great success before suffering a great loss.

Return Of Sailing Ship Is Seriously Talked Today

By SID MOODY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

HAMILTON, BERMUDA (AP) — There are a few perfectly normal people around — people who floss after every meal, who own neckties and wear them, who don't smoke cigarettes with funny weeds in them — who are convinced the return of the sailing ship is just over the horizon.

They are not dreamers or romantics. They are business types with a conviction both simple and compelling: wind is free and eternal.

Oil is neither.

The logic of this is as pure as a wind-driven topgallant sail to John L. Eyre, an early champion of container ships, currently running a tugboat company from this offshore tax haven. If in years to come, American wheat is to continue to get to Bangladesh, New Zealand mutton to Great Britain, Japanese cars to practically anywhere, they are going to go by ship, as they do now. But world trade cannot depend on an indefinite supply of oil. Sooner or later, Eyre reasons, ocean shipping will have to return to its roots: sail, modernized, computerized sail, but nonetheless sail. And better sooner than later.

Jack Eyre, a wry, sandy-haired Yale man of 60, has named the sailing ship he is determined to have launched the "Cornelia Eyre," after his wife.

"When fuel was $1.90 a barrel, you didn't think much about it," says Eyre. "It was about 15 percent of the cost of running a ship. It ranked with insurance and repairs and junk like that. Today it is 40 percent of the operating cost."

Jack Eyre had first gone to sea as a deckhand while still a teen-ager, a summer job his granduncle, Capt. Phineas Banning Blanchard, found for him. His wife taught him to sail while they were honeymooning.

With the blood of a Down East sea captain in his lineage and the tutoring of Cornelia in his past, Eyre didn't need diagrams or old prints to decide him. Sail had a future. But whose sail?

Fortunately, research in commercial sail had not been entirely forgotten while the world's commerce steamed on. The Germans in particular, always uneasy lest war or international turmoil cut off their oil sources, have long kept a weather eye aloft. In 1950 a German aeronautical engineer named Wilhelm Prolss began experimenting with a modern sail carrier he called the Dynaship.

The Dynaship is obviously a sailing vessel, square-rigged and boxy. It is meant strictly for business. It would have shivered the timbers of Capt. Blanchard.

"Uncle Banning would have been polite about it, but he saw going to sea as man against the elements. The Dynaship is all moon buggy stuff. Electric motors set the sails, not men aloft. Everything is all push buttons. A worldwide weather routing service tells the ship where to go from satellite photographs, not the skipper's nose for wind."

Although almost $1 million went into design and model testing of the Dynaship at the University of Hamburg, no prototype has een built.

Eyre's vessel would be similar to the Dynaship. Launching a ship today, however, is not as easy as it was when Helen of Troy launched thousands of them with a wink of an eye, or so a poet said.

"At this moment 10 per cent of the world fleet is idle," says Eyre. "Shipbuilders overbuilt just as OPEC knocked the props from under the tanker business. So today you can buy a good three-year-old ship for 35 cents on the dollar. So who's going to want a sailboat?"

The fact that Cornelia Eyre, the land-based one, has yet to bash a bottle of champagne against anything, is sufficient answer to that.

"The people who are against it really haven't had the energy thing sink through," says Eyre. "Shipping uses about 2 million of the 45 million barrels of oil consumed in the world each day. Higher prices and shortages are considered certain. I'm absolutely certain sail is going to happen."

The potentialities of sail are not entirely lost on the U.S. government. Dr. James Lisnyk of the advanced design department of the U.S. Martime Administration answers his own question: "Will sail work? There's no question. It's been working for centuries."

Right after the 1973 oil crisis, Energy Hot Lines buzzed with suggestions that the American merchant marine return to sail. The Maritime Administration accordingly financed a feasibility study at the University of Michigan.

The study concluded that sail "is not an economical feasible alternative .... in the near future (but) our estimates do show the sailing ship position to be close to equal footing with powered ships, so that the resolution of uncertainties (in design, etc.) and moderate changes in the energy-cost situation might make it more favorable to sail."

William Warner, whose Dyna-Ship Corp. has rights in the Americas to Prolss's patents, says subsequent cost increases of oil have done just that for six of the 12 hypothetical studies used for comparison by Michigan.

"If American shipping operated in a vacuum, sail might be a good answer," says Lisnyk. "But 95 percent of U.S. trade travels under a foreign flag. U.S. ships are much more expensive to build and crew than Liberian or Panamanian, so fuel, which costs the same the world over, is that much more a component of operating costs of the convenience flag ships. From my view, I would expect to see sail coming from those flags."

Warner, meanwhile, with the backing of "some very far-sighted shareholders," is negotiating to buy four 3,000-ton freighters to convert to sail. So far, however, the only Prolss vessel is Warner's own 30-foot Shields class sloop fitted with three square-rigged masts.

"We're outpointed by other Shields on the wind, but off the wind we keep right up."

Another wind-borne debut occurred last March in the Gulf of Mexico when the offshore oil rig Rowan Louisiana unfurled tte largest sail in history — 6,750 square feet — in a test to determine if it would cut towing costs by easing the load on the tug. C.R. Palmer of the Rowan Co. figures if the sail adds half a knot to the speed of the tow, it would save $2,400 a day. On a trip to the Persian Gulf, say, that becomes big money.

To get her through calms and maneuver her in port the Cornelia Eyre would have a diesel engine. Eyre estimates this would consume only a tenth the fuel of a conventional-power ship.

Prolss figures his Dynaship would average 15 knots. The Maritime Administration thinks 10 a safe assumption.

"The first will be only 80 per cent efficient," Eyre figures. "The second will be better. And when it is, you can bet Jtubishi will build 25 of them."

The fellowship of the sea prevails among the advocates of sail. Eyre figures he can buy rights to Prolss's patents from Warner or the European rights from a Scandinavian sea captain who owns them currently. Warner says he woul be glad to offer assistance to any sail project.

What Eyre needs at the moment is his backer.

Should his angel finally come home to roost, Eyre would have further design work done. Then he would search out a shipyard to get Prolss's dream ship on the ways.

"There's no question," says Lisnyk, "that there's a Robert Fulton out there waiting to be crowned."

And mayhap a tiara for Cornelia Eyre, another to launch a thousand sailing ships.

Minnesota Couple Build A Snug Home With Their Bales Of Hay

ELY, Minn. (AP) — The warm, cozy home that Carol and Walter McElderry built for about $400 smells slightly like a hayloft. But that's not surprising.

It is built out of about 200 bales of hay.

"It is surprisingly cozy and comfortable," Carol said. "The first thing people say when they see the place is, they're surprised it's so livable."

Light filters into the home through stained glass windows and skylights, and plants grow in an attached greenhouse, taking advantage of the southern exposure.

Six posts in the center of the house form a circle around an airtight wood stove. At the peak, spruce poles radiate out like an umbrella. The building is hexagonal, with a dozen outer poles shaping the outside.

Walter built the pole structure from pictures that he'd seen of Manitowoc Indian earth lodges.

"In the 1860s settlers in western Nebraska built homes out of baled hay," he said. "The soil was so sandy that it couldn't be cut to make sod, and there were no trees or stones."

Carol said the house took only a month to build in the summer of 1977 with a few days of help from friends, and the actual construction wasn't difficult.

The window and door frames are 12 inches deep, and nailed to wood supports for stability. The window frames sit directly on bales of hay.

"We covered the ground with plastic and laid rugs down," Walter said. "We had planned to mortar the walls, but ran out of time. By November, it was getting a little drafty, so we just put plastic up on the inside and outside." The roof has a layer of plastic under the sod and hay and it doesn't leak when it rains.

One of the main advantages of the McElderrys' hay house is that it was planned to be recycled.

They are building a new stone home, and when that is finished they plan to use the hay from their present home as mulch for their garden.

The McElderrys, who both grew up on the East Coast, said they moved to northern Minnesota in an attempt to simplify their lives.

To get the money they need, both have worked as substitute teachers in nearby schools. Carol teaches English and Walter teaches English, filmmaking and theater. They also create and market their own stained glass windows under the name Rising Sun Stained Glass, and they've done some tree planting for the U.S. Forest Service.

"We're not trying to be entirely self-sufficient," Walter said. "We still have to drive to town. We don't have any desire to go back to horses. But we do want to keep our needs for money down, and have more time for doing things ourselves. I guess you could call it a life of voluntary simplicity. Spiritually, it's been a good thing for us."

HAY HOUSE—Walter McElderry inspects one of the stained glass windows he makes outside the hay house where he lives near Ely, Minn., with his wife, Carol.

Combines Work With Exercise

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Troy Watson knows how to combine work and exercise.

Watson, who works for the Deer Valley Post Office, picks up his mail, drives his jeep to Moon Valley, unhitches his bicycle, drives to his next area and again pedals off.

"My doctor told me to quit smoking, but then I gained weight," said the 51-year-old man. "Then my doctor told me to lose weight."

So he rides his bike, takes a little ribbing but feels much better for his efforts.

Calliope Is Of Bottles

POP MUSICIAN—Steve Bowman sits at the keyboard of his homemade calliope, which uses an old vacuum cleaner to force air over the mouths of soft drink bottles, producing notes that vary according to the level of water inside.

RANDLEMAN, N.C. (AP) — When Steve Bowman was a boy, he noticed that blowing across the top of an almost full soft-drink bottle gave him one sound, and blowing across an empty one gave him another.

Bowman, now 24, has translated that principle and 33 soft drink bottles into a calliope, the kind of organ that old-fashioned circuses featured when they came to town.

But Bowman's is not the large, ornate calliope of the past, powered by steam pipes. His miniature instrument, encased in plywood, uses soft-drink bottles filled with different levels of water to make the music.

It took Bowman, a student at Southeastern Seminary who works at the Pilgrim Tract Co. in Randleman, a month and a half to make the calliope by trial and error — "mostly error," he said.

The calliope consists of five one-quart bottles, five 16-ounce bottles and 23 king-size bottles linked up to produce the sounds of the circus calliope. The larger bottles have a deeper diameter and produce the lower notes to A, two octaves below middle C. While the quart bottles are empty, the king-size bottles are almost filled with water to produce higher notes ranging to F, two octaves above middle C.

The less space between the top of the bottle and the water level, the higher the note.

Each bottle is placed, according to the size and amount of water it contains, in a tray. Between the tray and the 33-key, four-octave range keyboard is a panel. Enclosed in this panel is the mechanism connecting the bottles to the keys.

When Bowman presses a key to play his favorite gospel songs, the fishing line pulls back the valve, made of metal packing strips, from an opening in the back of the panel. The air in the panel, forced through by a vacuum cleaner, then escapes through a copper pipe across the top of the bottle.

That's when the music starts. Of course, the thin notes are rather shrill and the low ones almost too soft. Dampness often makes the keys stick. But that doesn't matter to Bowman, who built the calliope not because of his love for music, but because of his love for steam power.

"I have been fascinated with steam power since I was a little boy," Bowman said. "I used to see the old steam engines at home and I always thought that type of power was incredible."

But it took many changes and innovations before the instrument which now sits on kitchen chairs produced a musical note.

String used instead of fishing lines wore away before half a song was played. Bowman also tried using an electromagnet instead of fishing line to produce an electrical current for the notes.

Finally, a one-note model of what is now the calliope worked. The rest was simple, he said.

"The day I finished it, I played it," Bowman said.

Paying Guest Of Rival Chain

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — Kemmons Wilson, founder and chairman of the board of Holiday Inns of America, spent a night here recently at a competing motel located right across the street from a Holiday Inn.

Wilson became a bedtime Benedict Arnold because two of his friends and business partners own the motel, Travelodge. They bought it from Holiday Inns eight months ago.

Travelodge took full advantage of Wilson's visit.

Just before his arrival, a sign reading, "Welcome Kemmons Wilson, chairman of the board, Holiday Inns, Inc.," went up on the motel's billboard.

Ron Ray, manager of the Holiday Inn across the street, said he wasn't miffed by the snub. "Mr. Wilson is a big boy. When you've got as much money as he's got, you can stay where you want," he said.

Railroads Abandoning Historic Wheatfield Tracks

EDITOR'S NOTE — Long ago, the iron horse opened up America's heartland, sending tracks into the wheat fields and the prairies. In came the machinery and out went the bounty of grain and cattle. But today, the railroads are abandoning those precious but unprofitable branch lines and tracks are vanishing into the wheat fields.

By ERIC NEWHOUSE
Associated Press Writer

GETTYSBURG, S.D. (AP) — The brakes sighed at the prairie crossing, the 10-car train crept over sagging tracks and eased into the station. Engineer Marion Stoppelmoor blinked.

There, at the East Street Crossing, against a backdrop of one grain elevator and one water tower, he saw the Mother's Club, the Chamber of Commerce, the Rotary, the JCs, the farmers of wheat, oats, barley, alfalfa and corn, the cattlemen and the elevator and fertilizer folk.

It was last summer and Stoppelmoor had just guided the second precious train of the year over treacherous track into this town of 2,000 farmers who till the land 17 miles from the Missouri River.

"We love you," someone shouted to a stunned Stoppelmoor.

Mayor V.L. "Pete" Klein, a 72-year-old retired banker who now grows chrysanthemums, said, "We got together to show Chicago and Northwestern that we want continued rail service. It's our life's blood in the prairie."

Today it's not that the farmer and the cowman can't be friends; it's that the farmer and the cowman are having trouble staying friendly with the railroad man. He now wants to abandon the tracks he built into their wheat fields and ranges.

Little towns like Gettysburg depend on those rickety branch tracks that long ago pierced the prairies, opened up the midwest and still serve as arteries for the heartland's bounty. The farmers want to keep their trains.

The branch tracks are seasonal, used for hauling fertilizer and machinery in to the farmers and crops out to the marketplace. The state of South Dakota says that many lines are so dilapidated, with rotted ties and weakened trestles, that they have caused derailments and creeping trains.

The railroads say the branches are too costly to operate or repair. And so they are abandoning them throughout the midwest and leaving farmers to send cattle and crops by truck to modern terminals on the main line. There they can be mass-loaded into huge hopper cars in huge grain trains headed for Gulf ports.

For the present, the 40-mile branch between Gettysburg and Blunt is safe. But it needs so much upgrading that trains often chug along at 5 miles per hour.

But Gettysburg can see the highways and the handwriting on the South Dakotan landscape from the Black Hills to the Big Sioux River.

Thirty percent of the state's track already has been abandoned, leaving 3,130 miles of iron.

The Chicago & Northwestern Railroad, the Milwaukee Road and three smaller carriers want to abandon another 1,500 miles of track — about half the state's remainder.

Because it has almost exclusively branch track, South Dakota is hardest hit, but 12 other midwestern and north central states also are losing their trains.

of the total 21,000 miles of track in the region, about 9,500 miles are up for abandonment.

"We shudder to think about it," says Charles Pearson, district manager of Hubbard Milling Co., a big mill on the Milwaukee Road between Rapid City and Sioux Falls, S.D.

"We're in the middle of one of the best wheat areas and they're thinking of pulling our tracks," he says. "If we lose line, a terrific amount of revenue will be lost to the state."

James R. McDonald, C&N's public relations director, says that most of the track was built between 1860 and 1890, and says, "We're still living with the incredible maze of spaghetti that was laid down when railroads were a central mode of transportation."

"No one supposed then that we would have such an incredible system of secondary roads."

Lloyd Richardson, an Aberdeen, S.D., attorney for the Milwaukee Road, says, "If we have to maintain this archaic system, we won't be able to maintain even our main lines, and the government will have to come in and take us over."

But the farmers don't want to be left to the mercy of the truckers.

"There's no way that trucks could handle the load," said Charles Pearson, the miller on the Milwaukee Road. "In my three elevators alone, there's a quarter of a million bushels of grain that can't get shipped, and it's the same way up and down the line."

The South Dakota Transportation Department says that the doomed branch lines serve areas with the worst roads and that gigantic grain trucks will damage highways.

The iron horse is more energy efficient than the truck, says Arnie Stenseth of the department's railroad division. "If gas and oil go any higher, the trucking industry won't be able to handle the load," he says. "And someone will ask what happened to the railroads."

The U.S. Transportation Department has proposed railswapping in which companies would give up competing lines serving the same area. But often both companies already wanted to abandon those lines.

One salvation could be federal aid, like the funds used to maintain 25 miles of doomed track between Redwood Falls and Sleepy Eye, Minn.

In South Dakota, the Sioux Valley Railroad Authority wants to buy 56 miles of C&N track with money from the Railroad Revitalization and Regulatory Reform Act of 1976.

But the most successful track salvation is in Iowa which works with railroads and shippers to revitalize 790 miles of rail.

The railroads say it costs $150,000 to renovate one mile of branch track—and that's too high for them to bear alone.

But since 1975, Iowa has set aside $12.7 million from general revenue funds for interest-free loans to railroads to upgrade the track. Shippers and railroads are committed to equal shares. The loans will be repaid with the branch line receipts.

The federal government is studying the Iowa model and South Dakota is setting up a similar program.

The railroads, the farmers, cattlemen and the state are happy, and it may be that the old tracks will not vanish in the wheat fields.

Most Choose Retire Early

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A life and health insurance newsletter says boosting the mandatory retirement age to 70 isn't expected to slow a 10-year trend toward earlier retirement — even before age 65.

An article in The Family Economist,says the Inland Steel Co. is a dramatic example: "It reports only 31 of over 18,000 production workers at its Chicago mill are 65 years of age or older."

The newsletter also quotes Social Security Administration figures showing 10.6 million of the 17.6 million workers now drawing benefits retired before age 65.

A Conference Board study found a shrinking proportion of men sticking to jobs until 65.

The newsletter is published by the American Council of Life Insurance and the Health Insurance Institute.

Better 'Eyes' With Infra-Red

WASHINGTON (AP) — Infrared devices have provided sharp new eyes for focusing on hazards faced by firefighters and airline passengers, according to the National Geographic Society.

Developed by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration in Boulder, Colo., the devices pinpoint forest fires, warn of clear air turbulence and detect dangerous wind shears at landing fields.

Scientists are testing a scanning radiometer than can see through the thickest smoke generated by forest fires and zero in on the exact location of a blaze.

From 30,000 feet, the device can map almost 4,000 square miles in just 45 minutes, the Society said.

SHAMAYIM . . . is the name given by artist Jim Whalen to a large circular collage, of which a central detail is shown here. Splashes and lines of many colors against a brilliant yellow background are suggestive of a galaxy or perhaps a field of flowers in sunlight.

WINDOW . . . Paul Hartley's oil and acrylic painting, in shades of purples, is unique in the center's collection in that the painting and its mate in watercolor were both purchased. Hartley's work conveys a sense of the mysterious, framed in a Medieval atmosphere, heightened by his use of multiple surface division through lines and grids.

Greenville Art Center Recent Acquisitions

Text And Photographs By Jerry Raynor

Every year, several new works of art are added to the permanent collection housed at the Greenville Art Center, located at 802 Evans Street.

Some of the works of art are ones given by the artist. Others represent memorial gifts or bequests from estates. The majority of the art, however, comes from purchases made, in most instances, directly from the artist.

These annual purchases are made possible through proceeds realized from the Rachel Maxwell Moore Foundation. The late Mrs. Moore created the foundation, with a stipulation that money earned from the invested principal only was to be used for the sole purpose of purchasing works of art for the permanent collection. In the years since her death, members of her family, particularly two brothers, have made significant contributions to the foundation principal.

As a result, each year the foundation earns between $8,000 and $12,000. While not an amount sufficient to permit the purchase of a "masterpiece" by a renowned artist, it does provide an opportunity to periodically add worthwhile pieces to the collection.

An Acquisitions Committee is responsible for selecting works to be purchased for the permanent collection.

Guidelines for acquisitions emphasize several considerations — primarily, giving priority to purchase of art by regional and state artists, beginning young artists as well as older established ones. Quality, naturally is one of the criteria used in making choices, as is an effort to diversify selections to insure a wide scope of appeal to the general public.

The permanent collection has long outgrown space to exhibit all or most of it at any one time. Eventually, it is hoped this situation can be rectified by the construction of a more spacious, better equipped art center. In the meantime, the center's director, Mrs. Edith Walker, rotates display of items in the collection so that the visitors have opportunities to see different works on different visits.

In addition to the five new acquisitions shown on this page, several others have been added to the collection in the past year. These include a large oil painting of a mountain landscape by Philip Moose; a self-portrait by William Fields; a watercolor by Bob Timberlake; a textile piece by Alda Abramson (donated by Dr. Emily Farnham); three graffitti panels from a Pamlico County beer parlor; and several other smaller pieces.

Watercolors, prints, drawings, sculpture, photographs, paintings, crystal, screens, furniture, and other items are represented in the collection. Artists whose work has been acquired in past years include Francis and Sarah Speight, Ed Reep, Hobson Pittman, Claude Howell, Marilyn Gordley, Donald Sexauer, Mel Stanforth, Emily Farnham, Bob and Sara Edmiston, Peggy Burke, Charles McNeil, Bob Pittman, Frith Winslow, Francis Neel, Praphan Srousita, and many others.

Additionally, a substantial number of WPA works of art were donated to the collection early in the history of the art center.

Altogether, the permanent collection of the Greenville Art Center is an impressive one, and one that increasingly nears the goal of the farsighted woman who envisioned a collection of art for Greenville and area citizens — Mrs. Rachel Maxwell Moore.

A PENSIVE YOUNG GIRL . . . Wes Crawley's bronze sculpture, of a young girl gazing dreamily into space while resting her head on her hands, is a lyrical concept of a traditional piece of sculpture.

A STALK OF CELERY . . . is the subject of Tran Gordley's painting, aptly named "Celery II " and appropriately painted in shades of green. This work represents Gordley's "fruits and vegetables" phase of painting.

STONE VENEER, BALCONY ENHANCE EXTERIOR

By Jerry Bishop

The sleeping areas of this lovely split-level have enjoyed as much designing interest as the living areas of the home, insuring luxurious living throughout the three levels of the "Chartrand."

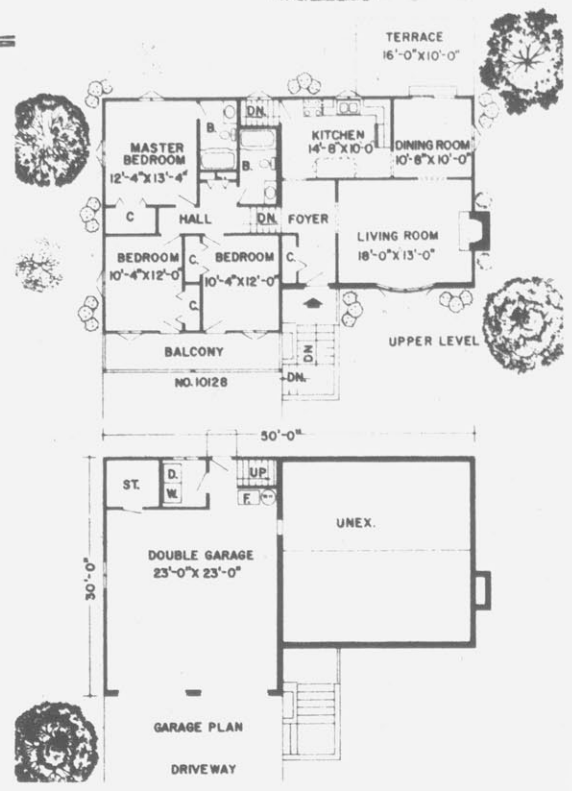

A 23-foot balcony fronts two bedrooms, each with large closet and sharing a full bath. The master bedroom, toward the rear of the home, has its own full bath and walk-in closet. The sleeping area is confined to the top level of the home, providing necessary privacy for comfortable family living.

Down a few steps is the kitchen, dining and living room, which opens from a large foyer. A back stairs from the kitchen to the sleeping area allows private late-night snacking, even though other members of the family may be entertaining visitors in the living room.

The living room is decorated with a bow window and wood-burning fireplace, and the dining room opens to the terrace via sliding glass doors. The kitchen is designed with refrigerator, range and sink in an L-shape for efficient cooking. Eating space is also included here, as well as in the more formal dining room.

The lowest level includes a double garage, storage space and a laundry area. Vertical siding at the balcony area combines with French doors and a stone veneer to create an unusual exterior for the "Chartrand."

What's new on the market?

THE PRODUCT — A transparent adhesive for leather, vinyl and fabric.

Manufacturer's claim — That this product can be used to repair vinyl hardtops, convertible tops, spare tire covers, seat covers, leather and vinyl jackets and trousers, leather gloves and dozens of household items ... that it patches neatly and almost invisibly ...that it requires no heat and dries quickly ... that it is tough and waterproof.

THE PRODUCT — Latex caulking in colors.

Manufacturer's claim — That the line of caulking comes in woodtone, redwood, green, brown, grey and black, five color tones most likely to match most house siding ... that it can also be used indoors on such surfaces as plaster baseboards and doorways ... that it is especially good for sealing openings in exterior shakes and siding ...and that it is water-and mildew-resistant and will not stain other surfaces.

THE PRODUCT — A synthesized lubricant.

Manufacturer's claim — That the lubricant contains micronsized "ball bearings" that penetrate, clean and lubricate virtually any mechanism ... that it coats surfaces with a film that literally displaces dirt, reduces friction and wear, shields against rust and corrosion, dissolves hardened grease and sludge, and frees frozen mechanism ... and that it is especially good for coating power and handsaw blades to make them glide through any wood.

THE PRODUCT — A wire stripper with an adjustable slide stop.

Manufacturer's claim — That the adjustable stop allows stripping without damage to the wire by loosening a slide screw and positioning the stop to a point where the cutter penetrates the insulation without cutting wire strands ... that the stripper also has a convenient cushion grip and a finish to resist rust ...and that it will handle most wire from 10 to 26 gauge.

(Do-it-yourselfers will find much valuable information in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," available by sending $1.50 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, N. J. 07666.)

(The adhesive is manufactured by Advance Color Corp., P.O. Box 54870, Los Angeles, Calif. 90054; the colored caulking by Red Devil, Inc., 2400 Bauxhall Rd., Union, N. J. 07083; the lubricant by the TriFlon Co., 3180 Pullman St., Costa Mesa, Calif. 92626; and the wire stripper by Stanley Tools, Box 1800, New Britain, Conn. 06050.)

N.C. State Univ. Answers Timely Gardening Questions

Q. What are the tradenames of products containing pyrethrum that are recommended for the control of white flies? (P. D., Burlington)

A. Pesticides containing pyrethrum labeled for whitefly control on flowering plants include Destraxol Home and Garden Insect Bomb, Real Kill House and Garden Bug Killer, Real Kill Liquid House and Garden Bug Killer, Stop Insects Liquid, Miller Rose and Flower Spray and Lucky Strike Black Magic for Roses. Commercial growers of ornamental plants should use the resmethrin (SBP 1382), a synthetic pyrethroid.. (Jim Baker, extension entomologist)

Q. Should gladioli bulbs be dug this fall or left in the ground? If they should be dug, how is the best way to store them? (W.G., Statesville)

A. Gladiolus along with canna, dahlia, tuberous begonia and caladium do not overwinter well in most parts of North Carolina. About the time of the first killing frost lift roots, tubers or corms from the ground. Dig deep enough to avoid injury. Leave soil around canna and caladium roots and dahlia tubers. Store in dry place. Shake soil away after it dries and cut away dried stems. Discard any plant parts that show soft spots or disease. (Kim Powell, extension landscape horticulturist)

Q. Is the European Mountain Ash a suitable tree for planting in the Raleigh area? (J.C., Raleigh)

A. European Mountain Ash likely will not do well in the Raleigh area. It is recommended for the eastern mountains and lake states. Root rots and borer insects, along with climatic limitations, would tend to restrict successful plantings of this colorful ornamental in Eastern and Piedmont North Carolina. (Wm. M. Stanton, extension forest resources specialist)

Plates Not Intended For Food

By ELAINE Q. BARROW
AP Newsfeatures

Plates never intended for food are whetting an incredibly different appetite among collectors. Thousands packed a New York City hotel recently for a two-day World Plate Collectors Fair.

Special plates are described as the most widely traded art form in the world, and the waiting line in the hotel's mammoth lobby spilled outdoors in a throng halfway down the block.

"It could be the biggest rush of plate collectors ever," said Thomas Foster, director of development for the Bradford Exchange, the largest single trading center. "We alone filled 19,000 requests for tickets."

Collectors are said to include such notables as Muhammad Ali, John Wayne and Betty Ford, wife of the former president.

"I think plate collection is the biggest unknown phenomenon," Foster said. "It's not much noticed that there are four million people out there in the United States alone who actively collect for artistic, cultural and financial reasons."

Glistening displays represented the newest and most popular wares of such firms as Wedgwood, Spode, Lenox, Goebel, Jensen and Haviland. But the largest share of the market goes to two Danish firms, Royal Copenhagen and Bing & Grondahl, according to the Exchange.

Bing & Grondahl is credited with inspiring the idea of collecting plates when it issued a blue and white porcelain Christmas plate in 1895 called "Behind the Frozen Window." It cost 50 cents then. Today its value is approximately $3,170.

In 1965, a French firm shattered tradition by introducing an etched crystal plate. Now, collectibles are in china, sculptured stone, stained glass, alabaster, copper, silver and even wood. Most are ceramic, however.

The first cameo collector's plate appeared in 1977 and was acclaimed "Plate of the Year." It drew the year's biggest volume of trading.

Entitled, "She Walks in Beauty," it was created for Incolay Studios by Gayle Bright Appleby, a West Coast sculptress. The work was based on the idealized woman of Lord Byron's poem and became the first issue of the Romantic Poets collection. It sold out at the $60 issue price and now is valued at $260.

Many of the plate themes are sentimental, centering on Christmas, Mother's Day, animals, small children, and historical and religious events. One newly introduced is "Scarlett" in what will be a "Gone with the Wind" series.

According to Foster, "Almost all Norman Rockwell plates have a very large following. And plates based on the work of Sister Berta Hummel are a hot item."

Because most of the plates are of limited editions, their value is determined by the ratio of supply and demand. Many which sold originally under $50 now bring prices in the hundreds, some in the thousands, of dollars.

These circumstances cause many persons to collect as an investment.

"Plates will continue to go up, regardless of what happens to the dollar, the yen or the price of gold," says Emil Polk, head of the Collectors Platemakers Guild, a non-profit trade group which sponsored the Fair.

Others collect purely for pleasure. As one person put it, "You can't put IBM (stock) on the wall as decoration."

And a Fair visitor, Rose Giles of Queens, N.Y., whose collection includes "quite a few Rockwells," exclaimed, "I collect for my own pleasure. I just don't have enough money to buy all I want."

About 800,000 collectors are registered with the Bradford Exchange, which distributes a bi-monthly report of the collectors' market. Transactions average 4,000 a day, and at the Fair an electronically transmitted report — reminiscent of Wall Street — kept visitors apprised of the high, low and currently quoted values.

"Gee," said a man watching it, "I just found out that a plate I bought for $35.00 is now worth $135.00."

In September, the Exchange opened a museum in Niles, Ill., featuring what it considers the most comprehensive collection of plates in the world.

"It's the fastest growing avocation," said J. Roderick MacArthur, Bradford president and a director of the Guild. "Take the famous Sotheby Parke Bernet (art dealers). All of it put together isn't anything like the trading in plates. Whatever trading in art is peanuts compared to plates."

Collectors, he said, range from corporation presidents to "ordinary" people. "It's not snobbish."

MacArthur relates that one woman became a collector after she discovered that the $25 plate she was using to feed her cat was worth $1,700. He said:

"You can bet she doesn't use it as a pet dish any more."

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newfeatures

Q. — We will be adding an extra room to the back of our house, but first must open up the wall of our family room. In tearing down the old wall, it is my idea to save the shingles and other materials and use them again on the outside of the new room. In that way, the extra room won't look new while the rest of the structure looks old. Is this a practical idea?

A. — Yes. You will be fortunate, however, if the old materials remain in good condition during the knockdown process and if there is the right amount to cover the new area. But if it can be done, it's an excellent plan. In some cases, people even buy second-hand shingles and the like so that the addition will seem to be as old as the house.

Q. — I hear the credit union where I work will soon make mortgage loans to its members. If this comes about, will the interest charge be the same as a mortgage loan obtained from a bank?

A. — Where such loans have been made (it's a recent development), there are certain regulations that have had to be followed. Interest rates must be competitive, of course, if this new source of mortgage loans is to develop a successful program. The maximum allowed — 12 per cent a year — is on loans maturing in from 12 to 30 years, but this limit is subject to certain state regulations, some of which have a lower allowable maximum interest rate. There are other regulations which must be followed, just as banks, savings and loan associations and other lenders are limited to how such loans can be handled. Credit union home mortgage loans must not exceed 90 percent of the sales price, unless a private mortgage insurance company or a government agency insures or guarantees the loan or that part of the loan in excess of 90 percent of the principal. Even if your credit union hasn't yet entered the home mortgage loan market, it undoubtedly knows now what regulations it must follow. Why not ask before the program is launched?

Q. — There was a small leak in a water tank pipe in our utility room. I stopped it by wrapping a piece of rubber hose round the area, cementing it in place and holding it there with pipe clamps. It is now two weeks since then and the repair seems to have held well. Can I leave it there permanently?

A. — While this is a temporary repair, the hose and clamps can be left in place for the time being. But keep a sharp eye on the patch for the least sign of any dampness. A lot depends on where the leak is and whether the water pressure on the area is constant or just occasional. You should consider the possibility that the leak could be a sign of slow deterioration of the pipe and that other leaks may appear at a later time.

Q. — We have an asphalt shingled roof. During a recent severe windstorm, some of the shingles came loose and shifted position. I put them back in place, applying a little asphalt cement under each one. Do you think they will hold should there be another windstorm like the other one?

A. — No way to decide that. It depends on what kind of job you did. But you can be certain those particular shingles will stay in place during a high wind if you nail them at the corners. Use rustproof nails and cover the heads of the nails with cement. All this is based on the assumption that you are physically able to climb to the roof and know how to exercise the necessary precautions. Otherwise, hire a roofer. When the time comes to reroof, consider the use of shingles that are made especially to withstand high winds.

Q. — The way our house is situated, we can build a patio at the rear or on either of two sides. We haven't decided where it should be. Is there any special place it should be?

A. — The location should be determined by the needs of the family. If privacy is desired, the rear is usually best, but not always. Also, is it to be used for sunbathing? If so, a southern location is best. On the other hand, if the patio is to have a roof, determine where the sun is at certain hours of the day and when it will be low enough in the sky to shine in under the roof. All in all, to decide on the best location, take into consideration everything — privacy, the sun, accessibility and whether any of the possible sites will make construction more difficult.

See The Inside Story

Interior decorating aid can act as an exterior brick finish

Have you considered adding the traditional look of brick to the exterior of your home, but found it was too costly to have done and you didn't have the skill or tools to do it yourself?

Homeowners are now finding they can do the job themselves with the use of Z-BRICK brand facing brick, which for years has been popular as an interior decorative wall facing.

Because of its rich appearance—without the weight, mess or expense of structural brickwork—more people are using Z-BRICK as an exterior siding product.

This unique facing brick is directly applied to any flat exterior surface, such as plywood or cement block. Lap or asbestos sidings should be removed or covered with sheathing to provide a bondable surface. And, because it is applied in individual bricks and not in sheets or panels, a solid brick and mortar look is accomplished in just a few hours.

Tools required are a hacksaw for cutting, broad-bladed putty knife, coarse rasp, small stiff brush, and paper towels or clean rags. The rasp is used to trim bricks and for mitering corners.

If you can obtain a brick cutter, it would be a handy tool in minimizing the cutting effort, but a cutter is not necessary.

Z-BRICK brand facing brick is applied in four easy steps. First, a thin coat of adhesive mortar is troweled onto a clean wall. Then, each brick is individually pressed into place with a wiggling, sliding motion. The mortar should squeeze up into the space between the bricks and should then be smoothed with a small stick or brush.

HOMES CAN NOW HAVE a rich brick exterior look without the weight, mess or expense of structural brickwork. Z-BRICK brand facing brick is completely weatherproof and fireproof. Country Rustic Buff Z-BRICK has been applied to the exterior of this traditional home in Shadow Creek Estates in Carroll Stream, Illinois.

YOU CAN INSTALL Z-BRICK brand facing brick without the use of special tools or skills. When applied properly, Z-BRICK brand facing brick is guaranteed for 10 years.

Any mortar on the surface of the brick or stone should be cleaned up immediately with a damp towel or cloth. When the mortar is set, two coats of sealer should be brushed on for protection.

Z-BRICK brand facing brick is available in three styles and 12 attractive colors. A complete line of the company's adhesive, mortar and sealer products are on hand at your local home improvement center.

For additional information on how you can give your home the rich look of brick, write, Z-BRICK Company, Woodinville, WA 98072.

Planning key to home improvement

How to renovate out of the 'red'!

New homes are expensive. Mortgage money is getting tighter. And it's often a traumatic experience, especially for families with young children, to pull up roots and relocate in strange neighborhoods.

For these and a variety of other reasons, more Americans than ever are choosing to remodel or improve their present homes.

But having made that decision, says the National Home Improvement Council, the average homeowner is at a loss as to how to implement it.

NHIC, the largest professional organization in the $35-billion home improvement industry, suggests the following steps:

1. Choose a reliable contractor. There are only so many things the homeowner can do himself. An NHIC member contractor, on the other hand, has the equipment and manpower to do the job. He knows local building codes and ordinances. And he is an established businessman with roots in the community who has to do a good job to maintain his reputation and stay competitive.

2. Specify standard sizes and labor-saving products. Time and labor are the two most expensive items in home improvement work. Anything you can do to cut either, cuts the cost of your job.

Discuss with your contractor the use of stock-size windows, doors and mouldings. There are literally dozens of standard products, available off the shelf, that snap, bolt or nail into place in a fraction of the time required for their more sophisticated counterparts.

3. Consider energy conservation. The installation of proper amounts of attic to wall insulation, says NHIC, can lower fuel consumption.

The additional cost of insulation is recovered in ten years or less, depending on location, through the use of less expensive heating and cooling equipment and reduced energy usage.

It also pays to specify double or triple-pane insulating glass windows, and adequate weatherstripping on windows and doors.

4. Don't over-improve. New heating and cooling equipment, an updated bathroom, a finished basement or a simple paint job can enhance the livability of your home and add to its longevity. But over-improvement, spending $60,000 on house improvements in a block of $50,000 houses, doesn't make sense.

Remodeling should conform in price and style to the house and neighborhood.

5. Shop for the right home improvement loan. Like any other commodity, money varies in cost. And while there are few "bargains" available, it does pay to shop around.

Check your community's lending institutions—banks, savings and loan associations, your own credit union—and compare interest rates and terms.

You may find that the bank passbook loan, which is borrowing against money in your own savings account, is your best deal. Or you may do better by borrowing against your life insurance.

Consider an FHA home improvement loan and investigate refinancing your mortgage balance.

For additional help in remodeling your home, write NHIC for its informative folder, "How to Start Your Home Improvement Project With the Help of a Reliable Contractor."

THE GOOD LOOKS and unsurpassed durability of Johns-Manville's fiber glass shingles makes them an ideal remodeling investment.

Good decision-making to reduce high cost of labor

The high cost of labor and raw materials contributes substantially to the steep purchase price of a new home.

Although many homeowners opt for remodeling their existing homes, instead of moving to new ones, the cost of home improvements is also likely to be high.

The situation has given birth to a new crop of do-it-yourselfers. And even those unwilling or unable to do the labor themselves shop around more carefully for good work at a fair price.

In many instances, labor costs far more than materials, points out E.A. Reilly, Merchandising Manager of Roofing at Johns-Manville, a leading residential building products manufacturer.

"Many homeowners make the mistake of choosing inexpensive materials only to find that they have to be replaced in a relatively short time. By that time, inflation combined with costs of labor and new materials will make that initial decision a costly mistake."

Rather, premium materials that are durable and likely to last longer are well worth the higher initial cost. Reilly cites roofing materials as an example.

"Fiber glass shingles, which look virtually identical to conventional asphalt shingles, may cost a little more at the start. Yet conventional asphalt shingles have an average life expectancy of 15 years, whereas fiber glass shingles last 20 to 25 years," he says.

In the long run, concludes Reilly, the homeowner gets a premium product at considerably lower cost by choosing fiber glass over conventional asphalt shingles.

Cost, however, is only one way to determine a product's value. Performance is equally vital.

Using the roofing example once again, Reilly emphasizes the importance of a homeowner comparing the benefits of various shingle types.

"Fiber glass and conventional asphalt shingles may look identical, but closer inspection reveals that the inorganic mat of fiber glass shingles makes them resistant to rot, buckling and shrinking.

"They also have an Underwriters Laboratories fire-resistance rating of "Class A"—the highest available—while most conventional asphalt shingles are rated "Class C."

Carefully choosing the best materials from the start, then, provides a pleasing home improvement result and helps keep labor costs at a minimum.

"Best doesn't have to mean expensive," Reilly reiterates. "In the long term, it's often far cheaper."

For more information about fiber glass shingles, write to Johns-Manville, Box 5705RP, Ken-Caryl Ranch, Denver, Colo. 80217. (Johns-Manville fiber glass shingles are not available in Canada.)

Happiness is clean garage and getting rid of clutter is simple

While you're in the midst of fall cleaning, wouldn't it be great if you didn't have to throw away some possessions around your home just because there's no room for them?

And, wouldn't it be great if you didn't have to climb over, and sort through, all the things that have accumulated during the summer to get at the snow tires and other items you will be needing for the cold weather and vice versa?

If you face this problem every spring or fall, relax, because now there is an answer to this frustrating situation. It is the FlexiWall storage system from Knape & Vogt.

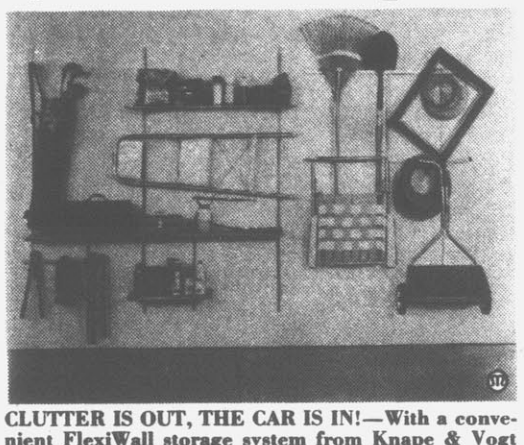

FlexiWall is a simple, do-it-yourself component storage system with brackets, shelves and hooks that attaches to the vertical wall space of your garage, basement or any other area that you might want to use for storage.

Made of heavy duty steel, it can be installed in wallboard or plaster, plywood, brick, masonry or concrete blocks so you can store almost anything anywhere.

FlexiWall is extremely easy to install.

The first rule in installing any type of storage system is to plan ahead. By drawing a plan for your storage needs, you will have a detailed list of component parts you will need for your own needs.

The actual installation of FlexiWall begins with the wall standards. These are channel-shaped strips that attach to the wall surface.

CLUTTER IS OUT, THE CAR IS IN!—With a convenient FlexiWall storage system from Knape & Vogt Mfg. Co., things are neat and orderly and you can bring your car back into the garage where it belongs!

They are pre-drilled and come in lengths of from 2 to 6 feet and can be sawed to the particular length you desire. These standards have vertical shaped slots for attaching the other component parts of the system and provide the necessary support.

Always remember, the heavier the load you want your system to hold, the closer these standards should be spaced.

The other components of the FlexiWall system are all designed to integrate with each other to provide you with many storage options.

Storage is a constant need. As you use one thing, something else usually has to be put away. FlexiWall allows you to do this with great ease.

Since it is a component system, you can change the arrangement at any time to fit ever-changing needs. FlexiWall can help you organize your out-of-season clothes in closets and attics. It can provide an excellent tip-proof rack for storm windows and screens, and makes the hanging of hard-to-store garden equipment easy.

Need a work bench? FlexiWall components can be arranged to give you a neat, uncluttered work area for home repair, garden or hobby use.

Yes, the colder weather is here. Just think how easy fall or spring clean-up would be with a KV FlexiWall storage system and no more search and destroy missions in the garage or basement.

Happiness is a clean garage with FlexiWall from Knape & Vogt.

Carpet capers dogs will do!

In most cases, dogs and new carpeting just do not go together.

Sad but true, dogs shed; dogs get muddy feet; dogs trail greasy bones around.

To keep your dog off your brand new carpet is not all that easy. You can't just say to him, "Now don't go near the broadloom."

To keep him in his own safe environment—while at the same time allowing him to be one of the family—place a baby gate across the entrance to the newly decorated room.

Small dogs will be able to see through the gate; large dogs will be able to see over the gate and will have to be admonished the first several times they jump over it.

Be sure to keep his toys with him in his confinement. And when he is let out to join you, bring out a couple of toys for him to play with. Be sure and return them when you put the dog behind the gate for the night.

Sooner or later, that new carpet will get its first stain. Then it's up to you whether to let your dog roam at will.

You can live without ice on your windows!

Everyone knows windows don't manufacture ice, but if you suffer most of the winter from claustrophobia because you can't see outside, it makes you wonder.

Condensation and ice forming on your windows has a simple explanation . . . and there is a remedy. It's caused by warm, moisture-bearing inside air coming into contact with the colder window surface. As the inside air becomes chilled, its ability to hold moisture is reduced . . . and the moisture condenses out of the air and onto the window.

To find the remedy, you have to consider two factors. Either the inside relative humidity is too high, or the window is too cold. Or it can be both.

A new booklet, "Windows and Condensation," published by Season-all Industries, will help you determine which problem is yours and what you can do about it. It identifies recommended inside relative humidities for different temperature zones and provides suggestions for reducing humidity if it is too high.

It also explains how you can warm up, or insulate, your windows. Single glass, lack of good weatherstripping, and uninsulated metal frames are generally the culprits.

According to Fred M. Schmidt, who authored the booklet, "Condensation on windows is no mystery, but there are a lot of myths surrounding it because the phenomenon isn't understood. 'Windows and Condensation' makes it understandable."

The 28-page, illustrated booklet is available by sending $2 to Season-all Industries, Department MS, Consumer Publications, Indiana, PA 15701.

Mr. Schmidt advises that the entire subject of windows, energy and condensation is not thoroughly understood, even by many of the people who sell window energy conservation products, so it is important that the consumer become knowledgeable.

For the homeowner to invest wisely, it's necessary for him or her to understand condensation, the ways windows lose heat, and the right solutions to the different problems. His suggestion to the homeowner is to know what needs to be done because, more than likely, you won't be talking to someone who does.

Three-dimensional asphalt shingles triple life of roof!

Home remodeling is going through the roof. Estimates are that modernization will be a $40-billion industry by 1980, an impressive 100 percent increase in less than a decade.

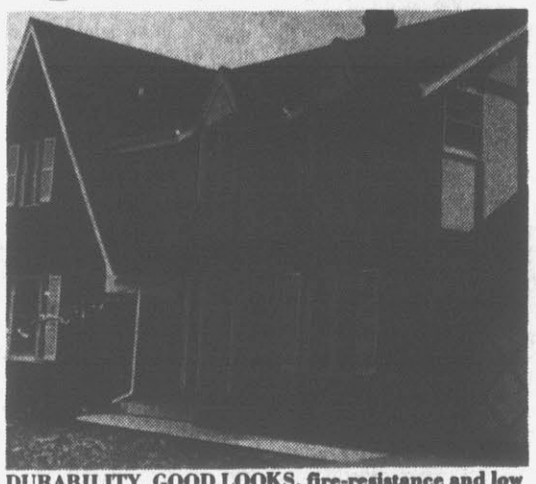

U.S. Census Bureau figures show a steady climb in remodeling activity, with significantly higher expenditures in recent years: $18.6 billion in 1973; $21.2 billion in 1974; $25.1 billion in 1975; and $29 billion in 1976. Latest government data estimate $31.3 billion was spent nationally in 1977.

The modernization surge is attributed to the upward spiral in the costs of construction, labor and energy. For many homeowners, upgrading and expanding their present homes has proved infinitely more practical than moving to a newer or larger residence.

Most homeowners today are sophisticated consumers when it comes to remodeling. That is, they tend to take advantage of building materials that combine good looks, serviceability and safety.

Reroofing, a hefty billion dollar segment of the giant 1978 remodeling market, is a case in point.

In a national survey by the Asphalt Roofing Manufacturers Association, consumers listed durability and appearance as priority characteristics for roofing materials, followed by fire-resistance, long-term economy and low maintenance.

DURABILITY, GOOD LOOKS, fire-resistance and low maintenance are the most wanted characteristics in roofing, notes a survey by the Asphalt Roofing Manufacturers Association. A roof such as this one of three-dimensional asphalt shingles in an eye-appealing earthtone shade provides many years of service, is fire resistant and easy to care for.

All are assets readily available in modern roofing.

Three-dimensional asphalt shingles, for example, are designed to last many years, yet require little maintenance. They give a roof the dramatic, textured appearance that heightens the visual element of any architectural style.

These multi-layered shingles, some handsomely embossed, come in a spectrum of earthtone colors. Most popular are natural shades of brown, slate and beige that simplify color coordination of the house with its surroundings.

The shingles also offer excellent protection. They bear an Underwriters Laboratories' label testifying to their fire resistance, as well as a UL wind resistance label.

Because of the shingles' longer design life, their higher initial cost can be economically amortized.

Another cost-saving factor: asphalt shingles can be installed over most existing roofs, so tear-offs may not be required.

Real wood paneling for easy refinishing

Restoring and renovating old homes is a popular way to invest money and a favorite pastime for many people. Often, do-it-yourselfers are confronted by real wood paneling that is dull and worn from years of neglect. The National Paint and Coatings Association says amateur renovators need not panic; real wood paneling is easily refinished, just like wood furniture.

First, smooth the surface by sanding. This can be done by hand or with a power sander. Be sure to sand with the grain of the wood. Go over the surface using a coarse paper, then with a medium grade paper, and finally with a fine grade paper.

Now countersink any protruding nailheads, and fill holes and cracks with wood filler. Sand the filler flush to the rest of the surface by hand.

Then, dust thoroughly, so that specks of dust will not show in the finish and mar its appearance.

If you want to change the color of the wood, use a stain or a bleach before applying the new finish. Try to buy the stain and the finish from the same manufacturer to ensure their compatibility.

Varnish and polyurethane are clear finishes which allow the wood grain and color to show through. They are easily applied with a paint brush and can withstand "wear and tear."

Oil finishes are another alternative. They give paneling a more natural appearance than varnishes because they are less glossy, but they are also less resistant to wear.

A varnish is applied in three simple steps: brush it on with a top quality brush, let it soak in and then wipe the paneling dry.

CHANGING THE COLOR of real wood paneling is easy! Use a stain before applying the new finish to darken or even out the color of your paneling. Rub the stain into the wood with a soft, lintless cloth, let it stand for a few minutes, then wipe off the excess.

Family fun for everyone

IF YOU'RE PLANNING to convert your basement into a family or recreation room, you'll want to provide something for every member of the family. This room, for example, offers shuffleboard, chess and checkers, a dartboard, and a "refreshment stand." Basement walls were covered with a durable, prefinished hardboard paneling from Masonite Corporation. Ranchwood Light paneling, applied to 1x2 vertical furring strips, has the look of rustic, rough-sawn barnwood and features a random width planking effect. The planks vary in color intensity and are separated by dark grooves. The textured 4x8 panels also have authentically reproduced knots, splits and cracks.

Manufacturers gearing to ease fiber glass insulation shortage

The shortages of fiber glass insulation that many homeowners are experiencing is being met head-on by manufacturers like Johns-Manville, who are now rapidly expanding their insulation production capacity across the nation.

Determined to eventually meet the ever increasing demand for fiber glass insulation, Johns-Manville is in the midst of a $200 million expansion program.

All seven of J-M's domestic fiber glass producing plants will be expanded. This program will result in doubling J-M's fiber glass insulation production capacity by mid-1980 over 1976 levels.

This is the second expansion program for Johns-Manville this decade. In 1975 J-M completed a $100 million fiber glass expansion program that was initiated in 1971.

Despite this major expansion, high demand is expected to continue. "Demand for insulation will continue very strong for the forseeable future," states Joseph D. Murphy, Merchandising Manager for Building Insulations at J-M.

"With new housing starts continuing strong, ever higher thermal standards, and the desire by energy conscious homeowners to increase the thermal efficiency of their homes, the insulation business will continue to experience shortages for at least the next two years."

J-M's fiber glass manufacturing process now features an advanced process which has increased production of fiber glass insulation while consuming less energy.

In pilot operation at J-M's Richmond, Indiana facility, the process is already in service at a new insulation plant at Innisfail, Alberta, Canada. Additional units are being installed at the Winder, Georgia; McPherson, Kansas; Willows, California and St. Avold, France plants.

If your ceiling is going to seed, give it a fall overhaul

Fall is a stunning season in many regions of the country. Knowing it must soon succumb to winter's harsh tyranny, the Great Outdoors seems determined to go out in a blaze of glorious colors.

The Great Indoors is subject to a seasonal cycle, too. Things around the house start going to seed this time of year, victims of summer-vacation neglect. Decay in nature can be a sight that inspires; in the home it's a sight, period.

Ceilings often fall into disrepair around now. The structural strain put on houses by heavy winter snows begins to show up in cracks in the plaster.

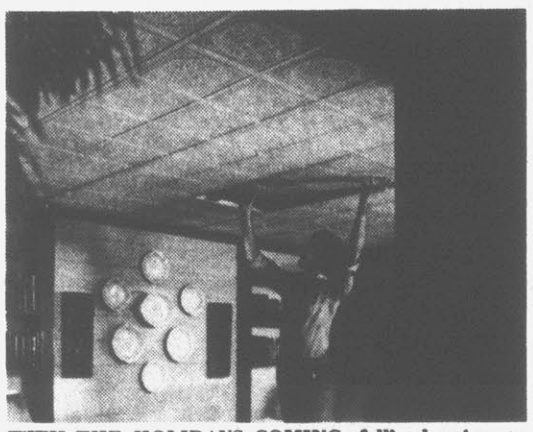

Sudden temperature and humidity shifts from summer to fall can shrink old-fashioned ceiling tiles and widen the seams between them. Old paint can blister and peel off the ceiling.

Autumn's the time to make shabby ceilings presentable again, before friends and relatives start dropping by for the holidays.

Suspended ceilings offer a smart way to cover up damaged ceilings without creating a lot of mess and spending a lot of time and money.

The do-it-yourselfer doesn't have to go through the trouble of filling in and sanding cracks in an old plaster ceiling, or scraping loose paint, to provide a sound base for a new suspended ceiling. That's because the 2′ × 4′ panels in a suspended ceiling never touch the old ceiling. They rest in a metal grid that hangs below it.

The lay-in panels do more than cover up, they resurface the ceiling with pattern. At the factory where the panels are made, sophisticated equipment embosses them with attractive designs, paints and precision-cuts them for accurate alignment.

WITH THE HOLIDAYS COMING, fall's the time to make your old ceiling company-worthy again. Installing a suspended ceiling is an easy and economical way to do this. You not only cover up overhead blemishes, you resurface the ceiling with an attractive new pattern, such as the ornate plaster look of the Armstrong "Victoria" ceiling shown here.

All types of decorative effects—ornate plaster, heavy stucco, wood parquet, boards-and-planks—are now offered in suspended ceilings. While they look for all the world like the real thing, better-quality panels are actually made of mineral fiber, which is washable, fire retardant and resists weather-caused shrinkage and expansion.

Nor does the metal grid supporting the panels have to disrupt the design. There's a new type of suspended ceiling called Headliner that is now available throughout the U.S. It color-matches the grid to blend into the ceiling design.

And there are no staples or glue to fuss with. The panels drop into the grid and rest there freely. To repair or replace one, or reach any wires or pipes above it, you simply lift the panel out. Instead of a panel, you can install an energy-efficient fluorescent light in a grid slot.

Best of all, putting up a suspended ceiling won't imprison you indoors all autumn; you can start and finish the job over a weekend. And you won't have to cash in your Christmas Club account early to buy the materials: a top-of-the-line suspended ceiling for a 12′ × 12′ room runs only about $130, far less than a new sofa or carpet.

More information on suspended ceilings, including maintenance and installation directions, is available in a new booklet entitled, "Consumer Guide to Selecting the Right Ceiling." You can get a free copy by writing to Armstrong Cork Company, Dept. MFH-9, Lancaster, PA 17604

Best home improvement of all: a three-fold home security plan

Home security is a subject of concern for apartment dwellers and home owners.

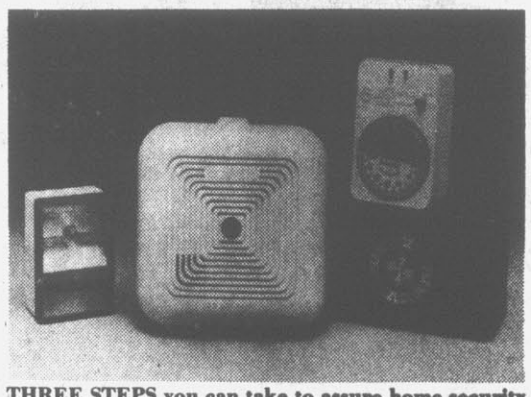

One of the first home improvements which should be considered is the installation of a smoke alarm. Secondly, there are low-cost steps to take to discourage burglars. Lastly, you should protect your home from the hazards of blackouts with an emergency light.

The consumer specialists at General Electric suggest this three-way security plan to assure the safety of your home. Their Home Sentry® Smoke Alarm protects your family from the threat of fire 24 hours a day.

Many fires occur at night when everyone is asleep and unaware of the presence of smoke. A smoke alarm installed outside the bedrooms will provide early warning in case of fire. Fire officials further suggest that you install a smoke detector on every level of a multi-story house.

While you are away, you might consider connecting 24-hour timers to lights and radios on each level of your house.

Light and sound give a lived-in look to an empty house. General Electric makes timers which plug directly into wall outlets or sit on a table or bookshelf. There are even models which have variable settings and switch the lights on and off at different times each night, further fooling anyone watching the house.

THREE STEPS you can take to assure home security include installing a smoke detector, connecting your lights to timers, and installing a security light for emergencies. General Electric provides all these products to help protect your home.

It's always wise to avoid needless tragedy, and if you have to cope with a power failure or blackout, it's smart to have an emergency source of light available. GE's Security Light plugs into any electric outlet where it operates as a night light and recharges itself. Then, when there is a power failure or short circuit, the light automatically comes on. You can also use it as a spare flashlight.

Remember, smoke alarms, timers and emergency lights are three useful ways to help protect your home. And assuring your family's security may be the best home improvement investment you can make.

How to cover walls with that 'professional touch'

Do you like the decorating dash of wallcoverings, but are afraid to tackle the job yourself? Then follow these tips from Sherwin-Williams.

Bedrooms are ideal for first projects, as they require less cutting and fitting than kitchens and baths.

Pick an overall texture or floral design that's easy to match. You'll find that pre-pasted wallcoverings are especially simple. They need only to be soaked in water before applying, and are printed on sturdy, wet-proof stock that is easy to reposition during the hanging process.

Carefully measure the width and height of walls to be covered. Also measure any doors, windows, fireplaces or panelled areas. Your Sherwin-Williams salesperson will use these measurements to figure out how many rolls of wallcovering are needed.

Make sure the walls are clean and dry, and repair any large cracks. "Size" all walls prior to hanging. This makes it easier to remove wall coverings later, when it is time to redecorate, and also aids adhesion.

Wash off any old adhesives or calcimine paint, and sand all rough areas or glossy enameled surfaces. Also remove any loose paper, especially if there are several layers, and take off cover plates from light switches and electrical outlets.

Now begin. Unroll strips of wallcovering on a large surface (a ping-pong table is ideal), matching design and length.

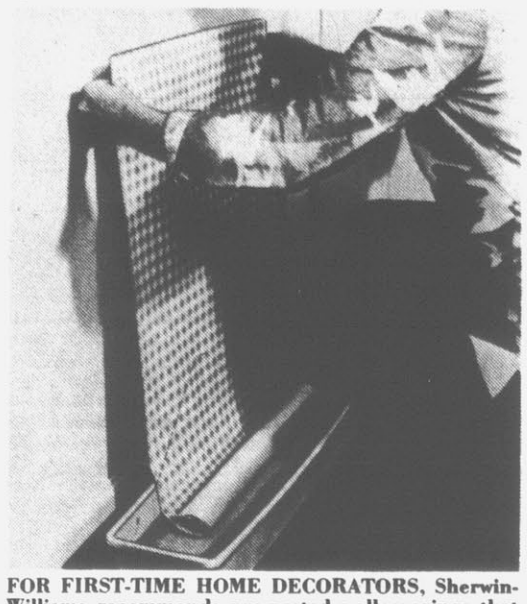

Cut all the strips at once, making each strip about five inches longer than you actually need.

To make sure the strips are hung perfectly straight, draw a vertical line down the wall with a plumb line and colored chalk. This will be your guideline for the first strip.

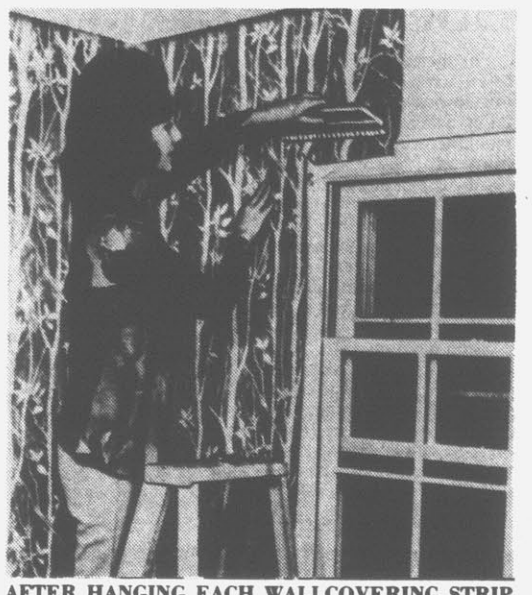

If you're using pre-pasted wallcovering, prior to hanging each strip, place it pasted side out in a special waterbox for 20 to 30 seconds. Then apply to the wall, smoothing out from center to sides with a wide brush or wet sponge to eliminate air bubbles.

Run a seam roller along the edges to fasten them tightly to the wall, and trim excess from top and bottom with a ruler and razor blade or knife.

Continue hanging each strip in this manner, butting edges and matching the design. Sponge off any excess adhesive with clear water before it dries.

FOR FIRST-TIME HOME DECORATORS, Sherwin-Williams recommends pre-pasted wallcoverings that are especially easy to work with. Just leave each strip submerged in water for 20 to 30 seconds as shown here until ready to place on wall.

AFTER HANGING EACH WALLCOVERING STRIP, eliminate air bubbles with a wide brush or sponge, working from center to edges. When smooth, trim excess from ceiling and around windows with ruler and knife or razor blade. Being applied here is "Sherwood Forest," a vinyl pattern from a Sherwin-Williams collection by Style Perfect.®

Use small scraps to cover light switches. Large "leftovers" give instant glamour to closet shelves, waste baskets, lamp shades and picture frames.

For more detailed instructions, pick up the free booklet "How to Hang Wallcoverings," available at the more than 1,500 Sherwin-Williams Decorating Centers nationwide.

With fiber glass roofing . . .

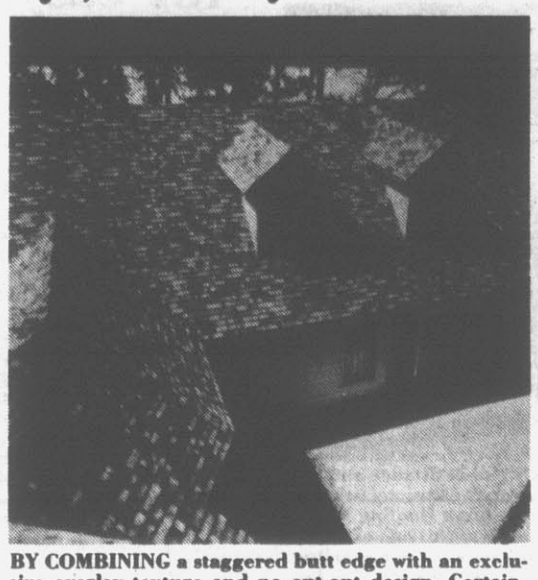

Durability, safety and esthetics all in one

VALLEY FORGE, Pa.—To many homeowners, the purchase of a new roof is a lot like buying an automobile battery or replacement tire. The purchase is made of necessity, and the major concern is to quickly correct the underlying problem.

Unlike a tire or battery, however, reroofing represents a substantial investment. For this reason, the homeowner would be wise to educate himself on the available alternatives before making a hasty decision with which he'll have to live for years to come.

In recent years, most of the roofing shingles sold have been organic-based, asphalt roofing shingles. These are made by saturating a felt or cardboard mat with asphalt, and then coating the surface with ceramic granules. The life expectancy of these shingles is about 15 to 20 years.

Manufacturers such as CertainTeed Corporation, however, have developed superior fiber glass-based asphalt shingles by substituting bonded fiber glass mat for the usual felt core.

BY COMBINING a staggered butt edge with an exclusive overlay texture and no cut-out design, CertainTeed Countrycut roofing shingles offer a totally unique rustic appearance. In seven specially blended colors which complement any architectural style, Countrycut shingles have been awarded Underwriters Laboratories Class "A" fire rating and carry a 25-year limited warranty against manufacturing defects.

Because fiber glass mat is dimensionally stable, fiber glass-based asphalt roofing shingles afford added resistance to the curling, cupping and warping which sometimes afflict organic shingles.

The added durability of fiber glass-based asphalt shingles is reflected in the longer warranty, which for CertainTeed Glasstex and Countrycut shingles is 25 years. When the cost of the roof is amortized over this longer time period, fiber glass is actually more economical than organic roofing.

CertainTeed fiber glass-based roofing affords homeowners other advantages. They are highly resistant to the spread of external fires, as evidenced by their Underwriters Laboratories class "A" fire rating.

By way of contrast, some roofing materials such as untreated wood shakes, have no fire rating at all.

CertainTeed shingles are self-sealing as well. Special adhesive strips are activated by the heat of the sun to "weld" the shingles into a solid, weatherproof shield.

Although substitution of fiber glass mat for saturated felt results in a lighter roofing shingle, homeowners installing fiber glass-based asphalt roofing get the kind of durability available only with the heaviest conventional shingles.

This places less stress on the structure of the home and may even save labor costs by permitting the roofing contractor to install the new roof right over the existing one.

In addition to the many practical advantages of fiber glass-based asphalt roofing shingles, they are also extremely attractive.

CertainTeed Glasstex is the only Class A rated shingle with a deep wood grain texture. CertainTeed Country cut combines a staggered butt edge with an overlay texture and no cut-out design to create a unique rustic appearance.

Glassguard and Glasscraft come in a range of popular colors which blend well with any architectural style.

Durability, safety and esthetics—each is important in the selection of a roof, and each is found in the CertainTeed line of fiber glass-based asphalt roofing products.

Insulating action . . .

Flame-retardant paint gives your family life-saving minutes!

Americans are demonstrating a new awareness of the hazards of fire in the home.

This life and property-saving attitude can be seen in the public's acceptance of the smoke detector and the various other devices and systems designed to give the homeowner early warning of fire, and to keep damage to a minimum should a blaze break out.

One of the latest developments in the area of fire protection is a fire-retardant interior wall paint for household use. The key characteristic of this new wall covering is its intumescence. That means the paint foams and puffs when exposed to fire or extreme heat.

This action produces a thick insulation between flame and the combustible wall underneath, which slows the spread of flame on the wall surface and the resulting development of smoke.

One intumescent coating readily available to the general consumer is Blox-Blaze, a flat latex paint sold through the 3,200 Fuller-O'Brien retail stores across the country.

Blox-Blaze comes in a variety of decorator colors, and can be used for interior walls, ceilings, and trim in all types of residential structures.

According to The O'Brien Corporation, manufacturer of Fuller-O'Brien Paints, the critical period in a fire's development is at the very beginning. It is in the first few minutes that the family must first get out and away from the house, and then take steps to bring the blaze under control.

A fire-retardant paint provides a delaying action during the initial stages of a fire, giving the homeowner an invaluable extra ten minutes in which to safeguard life and property.

Because of these unique inhibiting characteristics, Fuller-O'Brien Paints strongly suggests using fire-retardant wall covering in high-hazard areas such as corridors, stairwells, garages, storage areas, furnace rooms, etc.

In selecting a fire-retardant paint, the consumer should look for the Underwriters' Laboratories seal on the label of the paint can. Blox-Blaze carries the U.L. seal.

U.L. has established a series of tests for these coatings which involve checking the initial product formulation, then regularly spot testing the product during production. This ongoing program assures the customer that the paint meets the critical requirements of this independent testing group.

Today's homeowner is becoming aware that the existence of a fire hydrant on the corner and of a community fire department is no guarantee his property will not be destroyed by fire. The pros need all the help they can get and, most importantly, they have to be summoned as early as possible.

It's the private citizen's responsibility to make sure he can call for help in time.

Winterize equipment for spring!

PORT WASHINGTON, Wis.—As the lawns of North America go into hibernation for the winter, their owners put away their powered walk-behind lawn mowers.

Hopefully, the equipment has been winterized, which is a good practice that contributes to the reliability of its operation the following summer and helps avoid need for more expensive maintenance later.

Now is the time, as the winter is just beginning, to do a thorough preparation for cold weather storage, according to the Simplicity Manufacturing Co. here, a manufacturer of powered lawn and garden equipment. Cold weather is hard on stored equipment, particularly if it is stored dirty.

You don't need to be a mechanic to winterize your equipment nor do you need more than two or three hours. Just follow these steps.

1. With the engine off and the traction control in the disengage position, remove the high tension wire from the sparkplug. Drain the gasoline according to instructions in the manual. Fuel left to stand becomes gummy.

2. Reconnect the high tension wire and start the engine, using the small amount of gasoline still in the carburetor, letting idle until it stops. Let the engine cool and disconnect the high tension wire once again.

Drain the crankcase, making sure to reseal it to prevent dirt entering the engine. Before sealing, add one ounce of new oil and crank the engine a few times to distribute the oil, preventing internal rust.

3. Clean the mower. With the high tension wire still disconnected, tip the mower on its side and remove any dirt or grass clippings that may be sticking to the housing by spraying it with a garden hose.

Scrape out any grass that water will not remove with a brush or paint scraper. You may find that the underside of a steel deck needs a new paint job to prevent rusting. (Simplicity has magnesium decks.)

4. Check the blade fastener and blade for general condition and sharpness. If the blade requires servicing, follow the blade maintenance procedure in the operator's manual.

Make sure the blade is balanced before it is installed and then properly tightened according to the manufacturer's specifications. A simple way to balance a blade is by putting a screwdriver through the center hole. If the blade tips, grind off a little metal from the "low" side.

Rotary lawnmower blades should always be sharpened on the upper surface only.

5. With the mower right side up, clean dirt, grime and grass clippings from the external parts of the engine, shrouding and top of the mower housing.

Give special attention to the cylinder head fins and blower housing, which must be completely clean for proper air cooling.

6. Now service the sparkplug. With the cylinder head clean to insure that foreign matter does not fall into the cylinder, remove the spark plug, clean it and re-gap it or replace it with a new one recommended by the manufacturer. Replace brittle or gashed wire.

7. After a season's use the air cleaner generally becomes quite dirty. Air cleaner elements used on today's mowers are most commonly made of a polyurethane or sponge rubber material.

Wash the element in a liquid soap detergent and warm water solution. Dry the element (avoid twisting it which could cause it to tear) and saturate it with oil. Then squeeze the excess oil out of the element and reassemble the air cleaner.

8. Rotary mowers are always subjected to a great deal of vibration that might cause parts to loosen. Check and tighten all cap screws, bolts, screws and nuts.

Check wheels, too, and tighten as needed. If any part is damaged, repair or replace it.

9. Refill the crankcase with the recommended oil to its proper level. Caution should be taken not to overfill the crankcase as engine damage or starting difficulty could result.

Lubricate and grease other parts of your mower as recommended in the operator's manual.

10. Locate rusty spots. Clean these and paint with a rust inhibiting paint. Cover the mower to protect it from dust and dirt, then store it in a clean dry place.

Best bet for your comfort: the all-electric heat pump

For the homeowner or remodeler looking for an energy-saving and fuel-efficient system for heating and cooling, the answer lies in the heat pump.

A heat pump is an electrically operated system that can both cool and heat a home by pumping heat out during warm weather and into the building when it's cold.

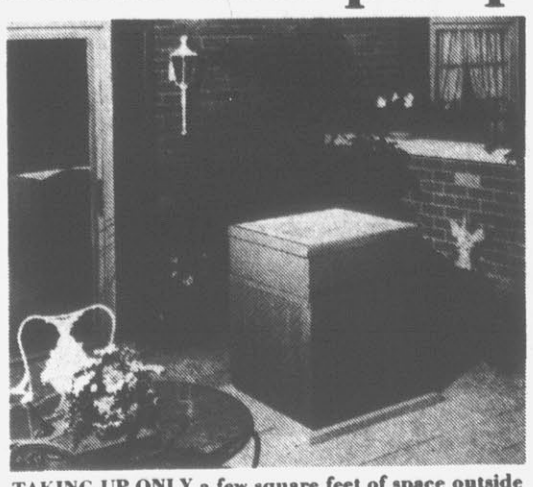

At first glance, it may seem illogical to try to warm a house or office with cool, outside air. Engineers point out, however, that heat-energy exists in all air—even in below-zero air—so the heat pump collects this heat and transfers it into a room.

Moreover, heat pumps are not new, untried devices: General Electric, for example, has been making them since 1935, and introduced its high quality Weathertron® Heat Pump in 1964. Weathertron units are installed and working effectively in warm-temperature southern states and cold-temperature northern states—all year around.

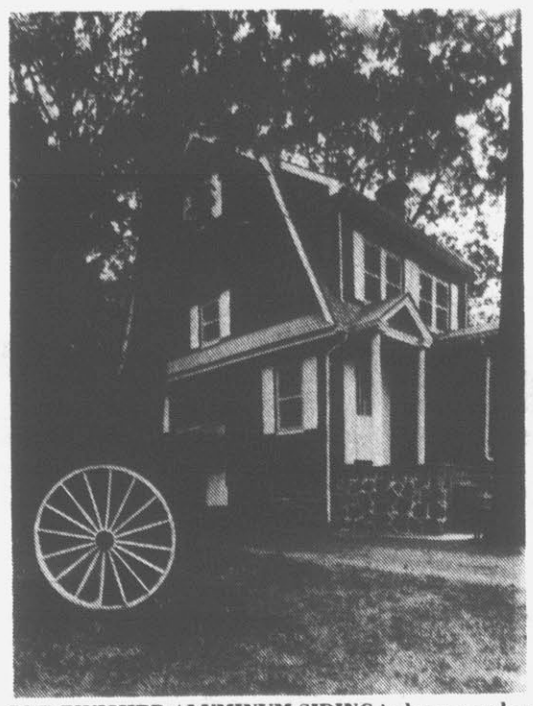

Furthermore, the heat pump is a fuel-efficient electrical heating system when compared to electrical resistance heating. GE engineers point out that it supplies up to 250 percent as much heat as the electrical energy it uses, depending on outdoor temperatures. For example, a five-ton model operated when the outside air is 47 degrees delivers 60,000 BTUs of heat for every 24,552 BTUs of electricity used.

Another advantage over conventional heating-cooling systems is that, being an all-electric system, the heat pump is flameless and therefore produces no fumes, smoke or soot to dirty furnishings. Only filtered air is circulated through ducts to every room in the home.

When used with an automatic thermostat, a heat pump will operate automatically in cooling or heating to maintain the desired comfort level selected.

TAKING UP ONLY a few square feet of space outside the home, the Executive Weathertron® heat pump is an efficient year-round all-electric heating and cooling system.

PRE-FINISHED ALUMINUM SIDING in brown cedar shake style restored this old house and eliminated need for periodic painting. Lighter color aluminum trim and accessories (siffit, fascia, gutters, downspouts, shutters, storm windows and doors) contrast attractively with darker siding. New colors and textures, baked into the aluminum panels, last up to 40 years. Photo: Aluminum Association.

Breakthrough in prefinished siding...

New colors and rich textures add beauty

No matter what the period, style or wall surface of your home, exterior decoration is no longer limited to increasingly expensive painting cycles.

Pre-finished siding has come of age, and whether the house is Victorian, Colonial or contemporary, there's a siding to match it.

Color breakthrough

The biggest news, particularly in aluminum siding, is the wide range of colors and textures now available. Shades of brown, green, blue, ivory, avocado, red and the earth tones are beginning to rival the ever popular white finish.

Embossed textures range from a smooth finish to replicas of almost every style wood finish, even cedar shakes. These styles and paints are often guaranteed for 20 to 40 years, while maintenance is reduced to a minimum.

Pre-finished siding also provides other design alternatives — horizontal panels to accentuate the long, low lines of a ranch house, vertical panels to break up a too-long horizontal sweep, or accent the gable ends of a colonial home.

Trim and accessories, such as corner posts, columns, soffit, fascia, gutters and downspouts, are available to match the siding.

If yours is an older house that boasts prized detail, aluminum fittings can most often be formed to duplicate them. Even gingerbread on a Victorian treasure can be refinished to blend with the new siding and look perfectly at home.

New "charm"

Far from diminishing the character of older houses, aluminum, properly installed, can help retain their charm with the added benefits of reduced maintenance.

While pre-finished siding also comes in vinyl plastic, hardboard and steel, aluminum offers the widest range of colors, styles and accessories, and has the most successful track record. On the market for over 30 years, it has been used to re-side over 11,000,000 homes.

Pre-finished hardboard is available in a wide range of colors and textures but it requires more care than other sidings.

With steel, the exposed edges of the pre-finished siding may be affected by weather.

Vinyl plastic is usually available only in white and pastel colors. It may become brittle at low temperatures and wavy when the temperature goes up.

Long-term characteristics of vinyl siding are not proven since it has only recently become available.

Look around!

Whatever siding you choose, be sure your exterior decorating scheme not only pleases you but also blends well with other houses in the neighborhood.

Decorators suggest limiting your choice of colors to three, including siding, roof and trim, and keeping them complementary.

Having decided on siding, go a step further and choose the insulated kind because it may pay for itself in energy savings and add to your comfort, winter and summer.

Plain siding does not have much insulating value, but when properly installed with insulating backer over aluminum foil it can cut your fuel use.

Choose carefully

Choose your contractor as carefully as you select your siding, because his reputation and expertise will determine the quality of the job. Check with people who have had their homes re-sided, with local bankers, the Better Business Bureau and the Chamber of Commerce.

To help you choose the best type siding for your home, write for a free copy of a new 16-page booklet, "A Homeowner's Guide to Choosing Siding," available from the Aluminum Siding Information Bureau, Dept M9, 250 West 57th Street, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Best doesn't have to be expensive

Since your home is an investment in living as well as savings, it won't pay dividends if neglected. Properly maintained and improved, it will pay a high yield in comfort and convenience and in the avoidance of costly repair bills caused by extended neglect.

Your home also represents a substantial stake in the local community. In general, home improvements tend to raise neighborhood standards and property values.

If handy with tools and experienced in carpentry, homeowners can save money by doing many jobs themselves. Andersen Corporation of Bayport, Minn. suggests that when you buy materials, it pays not to skimp. The leading manufacturer of windows and gliding doors adds that good materials are not necessarily the most expensive.

What you need, says Andersen, are products that look good, are well-made, easy to take care of and last a long time.

One of the more popular do-it-yourself projects these days involves window replacement. It should be a relatively simple job for an experienced handyman.

When an old window is removed, there's a rough opening to fill, just as in new construction. In many cases, stock-sized windows can be purchased to fit the opening from local building supply dealers.

If the new windows don't fit the opening, some carpentry will be required. Andersen, which manufactures vinyl-sheathed Perma-Shield windows and gliding doors, points out that the best replacement window is the best window you can buy because they are likely to be around for a good many years.

Quality windows, such as Andersen's Perma-Shield windows, have a rigid vinyl flange with pre-drilled holes to simplify nailing. Once the window is set in place, it is nailed in one corner, squared and leveled before the rest of the nails are driven.

Besides making nailing easier, the vinyl flange eliminates the need for separate metal flashing to keep out weather. Once the frame is secure, gaps around it are filled in with siding or shingles.

A booklet detailing how to install windows is available free by writing the Andersen Corporation, Dept. DYW, Bayport, Minn. 55003.

How to calculate amount of insulation coverage needed

You know where you want to install insulation. You've decided what "R" number to select. Now, how much should you order to cover the job?

According to the Johns-Manville Insulation Center, to decide how much insulation you need to cover a ceiling, wall or floor, multiply the total area (without deducting for joists or studs) by .90 if framing members are 16" on center. If framing members are 24" on center, multiply by .94.

Here's a simple example: 1,000 square feet of ceiling area with joists spaced 16" on center requires 900 square feet of insulation (1,000 sq. ft. × .90 = 900 sq. ft.).

A roll of blanket insulation measuring 15" wide by 32' long provides 40 square feet of coverage. You need 23 rolls to complete the job.

Photos of furnishings help you move, prove any losses

Pictures of your possessions are a practical thing to have at any time. When you make the picture taking part of your pre-move activities, you can accomplish two things at once. You'll develop your permanent file and make your moving easier, all at the same time.

An accurate record of the way things look, pictures help you settle into the new quarters before you leave your old home. And help you make sure your goods arrive safely.

Take pictures on an inspection tour of the new house, and you'll have visual "blueprints" of window arrangements and floor plans, to help you plan what goes where. Then tag pieces of furniture for their designated spots and they'll get placed where they belong, to save you back-breaking labor later on.

Most important, snapshots of all your valuables, taken before they're placed in the van, will help you recover losses if something gets lost or damaged in transit or at any future time. Photograph large pieces and small, from your antique dining table to a collection of glassware, and you'll have proof of how things looked before the move to support reimbursement claims later on. A Kodak Tele-Ektra 2 camera has two built-in lenses, to show a chair in one shot or, by flicking to the telephoto lens, a close-up view of a china cup, in which details show. The camera is available with an electronic flash that takes up to 100 pictures before batteries need changing.

When you're photographing a large object such as a Chippendale table, the Kodak experts recommend that you take pictures of all four sides. Angle the camera when photographing smooth or glossy surfaces, such as mirrors or table-tops, to avoid a glare in the snapshot.

Group items in a collection, such as china or silver, on a plain rug or tablecloth. Flip over one piece so the trademark shows.

This is but one instance where it's smart to have pictures before something happens. Should disaster strike, a complete photo record of all your valuables, inside the home and garage, will help you remember everything you own to make insurance claims complete—and support these statements for a quick settlement.

Moving, when cupboards and closets have to be emptied, is an excellent time to get these pictures of all your possessions.

Full details on how to build a complete picture record are contained in the Kodak booklet "Photos Help You When Disaster Strikes" (AM-4). It is available at your local photo shop or by writing to Department 841, Eastman Kodak Company, Rochester, N.Y. 14650. Include with your request a self-addressed, envelope and the publication's code, AM-4.

SAVE TIME AND APPREHENSION by taking pictures of your new home and your valuables before you move. Use a Kodak TeleEktra 2 camera to take pictures of your new home so you can pre-plan your room arrangements. And pictures of your possessions taken before you move will help substantiate insurance claims later, if you need them.

WALL-TO-WALL CARPET out-of-a-box . . . now possible with Armstrong's do-it-yourself carpet squares. For only a few hours' and minimal dollar investment, the look of professionally-installed wall-to-wall carpet is practical for the average handyperson. Available ten-to-a-box, KINGS VALLEY (illustrated) is only one of the many textures available in Armstrong carpet squares.

Wall-to-wall carpet comes out of a box

While the price of everything has risen steadily in the past few years, one home furnishing item's cost has fallen faster than autumn leaves.

Advanced technology and sophisticated manufacturing methods have made carpet a better buy today than it was over two decades ago.

Money-saving innovation

Not only are scientists and engineers developing increasingly superior products for less money, they're delivering every conceivable color under the sun, as well as new ways to meet the one rising factor in carpet affordability—installation cost.

The 12" × 12" carpet square is the answer for the would-be handyman. A less-than-skilled person can eliminate the high cost of labor by putting down a roomful of carpet that looks professionally installed in only a few hours.

What's more, high-quality foam backing and adhesive are built into the product. Easier than easy, there is virtually no muss, no fuss, with this wall-to-wall carpet that comes "out of a box," and no additional padding to buy.

Armstrong has packaged carpet squares ten to a box for availability throughout the U.S. It makes squares easily portable from the store and quantity needed easy to calculate.

Myriad constructions are available, too, from velvet plush to sculptured shag. One brand-new shag carpet square line is available in seven tone-on-tone colorations, and is ideal for small or large areas where a soft touch is appreciated underfoot.

To install, here's all you do.

Peel off the protective paper on the back of the square (note arrow direction, and be certain that all run the same way) . . . place the carpet on the floor, and press. A plumb line is advised for installation to begin in the center of the room. Edges are precision cut, and when the squares are installed properly, there are no visible seams.

Since autumn days mean winter's on its way, the look of warmth is as important as its feel. Psychologically, carpet makes a room "feel" warmer.

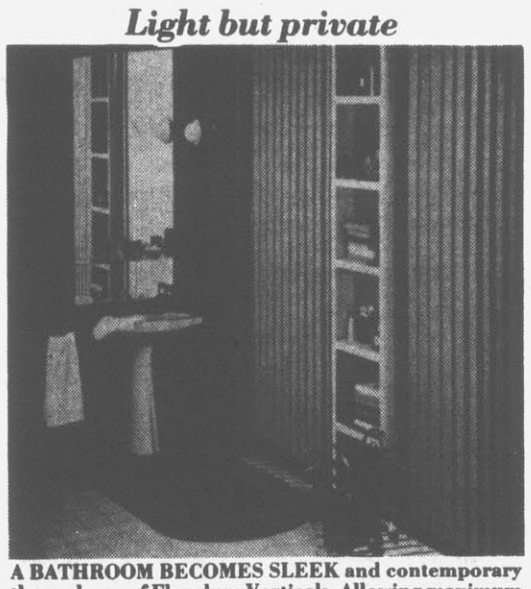

Carpet unifies

Wall-to-wall carpet probably does more to cozy up a room than any other home furnishings item. Its unifying properties make rooms look larger and keep floor housekeeping down to a minimum.

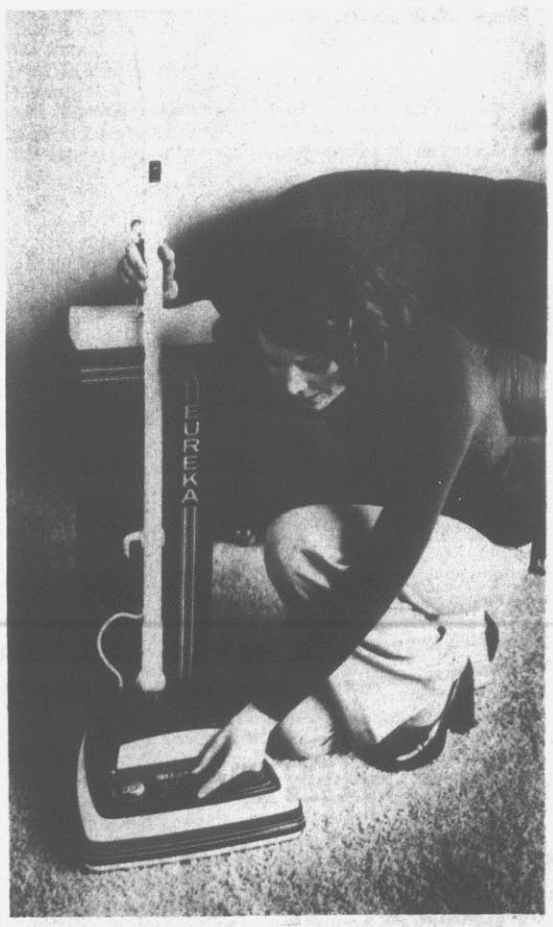

It makes sense this fall to try your hand at one of the easiest ways around to get dynamite decorating at do-it-yourself prices . . . out of a box!

Light but private

A BATHROOM BECOMES SLEEK and contemporary through use of Flexalum Verticals. Allowing maximum control of light and privacy, the Verticals conceal two awkwardly placed windows and a radiator which visually broke up this wall. A simple valance frames the blinds which also give an illusion of greater height. The center storage area was an added bonus.

EXTRA POWERFUL — The most powerful uprights ever made by The Eureka Company, the E.S.P. (Extra Suction Power) line of vacuum cleaners, have 50 percent more suction power than previous models. Two regular width and two Wide Track uprights are featured in the line, which is identifiable by its distinctive brandywine and white colors.

WOODCUTTING is high on the list of fall home improvement chores. Major pruning jobs result in a bonus of firewood, and a chain saw such as this Power Mac 320 can help speed the job along. Saws should be selected on the basis of engine size, bar length and safety equipment.

Fall chores. . . .

Correct chain saw helps homeowners

Almost any homeowner's checklist of fall chores will include woodcutting.

There are fruit and shade trees to be pruned, shrubs and bushes to be cut back, a winter's supply of firewood to be cut and perhaps a construction job or two.

Homeowners with limited time will be using indoor and outdoor power tools in the fall more than any other time of year. For the well-equipped home handyman, the list will include a lightweight, high performance gasoline chain saw.

In selecting a chain saw, as is the case with most power tools, the trick is to pick one that fits the woodcutter's needs, according to the woodcutting experts at McCulloch, a leading saw manufacturer.

Engine size is a good way to gauge a saw's performance. The compact, light, two-cycle engines are about the most powerful for their size a homeowner is likely to encounter. About two cubic inches of displacement is all that's necessary for home woodcutting jobs.

Length of the guide bar and chain is another basis for selection. On consumer models, these range from 10 to 16 inches.

The cutting attachment should be selected to handle the user's largest normal job. For unusually large jobs, like bucking up that old elm tree, buyers should remember that they can cut from both sides of the wood.

Safety equipment is another important criteria for saw selection. A prospective buyer should ask his dealer to explain how various manufacturers' saws help reduce hazards.

McCulloch's new Power Mac series of home-use saws includes a safety package of wraparound chain brake/handguard to help reduce the hazard of kickback, a muffler shield to prevent accidental burns, a throttle latch so that the saw can be started in the safest position, a safety trigger that prevents accidental acceleration, and a chain catcher to help prevent a broken chain from lashing back at the operator.

The Power Macs have 2.1 CID engines and bar lengths ranging from 14 to 16 inches. McCulloch's Auto Sharp semi-automatic chain sharpening system is included on the Power Mac 320 and 340.

For a manufacturer's suggested retail price of $149.95, the Power Mac 310 also includes electronic ignition for easier starting and better peak performance and an anti-vibration system that makes the saw easier and more comfortable to use.

No matter what kind of chain saw is selected for use at home, operators should spend plenty of time studying the owner's instruction manual before the first cut is made.

Cabinets necessary to an efficient kitchen

The millions of Americans who enjoy ethnic and gourmet cooking know the value of having a well-equipped kitchen. A time-saving microwave oven, lots of appliances and a wide selection of utensils are considered by many as absolute necessities for creative cooking.

Whether you're a culinary artist or your skill is limited to meat and potatoes, no kitchen is in tune with the times unless it has an ample supply of cabinets for storage and counter space for the preparation of meals. It is this lack of adequate cabinet space for storing canned goods and the array of utensils and appliances that leads many a homemaker to turn to kitchen remodeling.

WHILE TOO MANY COOKS may spoil the broth, there's seldom a kitchen with too many cabinets. When shopping for new ones, look for the certification seal of the National Kitchen Cabinet Association. Usually found on the inside of a cabinet door or drawer, it assures consumers that the cabinets are designed to provide years of durable service.

Lifestyle a key

When remodeling, the location of kitchen cabinets and work areas and the choice of appliances should be determined by the family's lifestyle, its size and the cooking and cleaning habits of the homemaker.

If you plan to hire a professional remodeler, the National Kitchen Cabinet Association suggests that you make your remodeling ideas clear to the person who's going to do the work.

Take the choice of kitchen cabinets, for example. Today's kitchen cabinets come in a wide range of styles, finishes, period designs and prices. Yet none of these suggest how well the cabinets are built or whether they will provide durable service under the everyday stress and strain common in kitchens.

Check certification

One way to determine whether the cabinets you choose are designed to last is to look for the certification seal of the National Kitchen Cabinet Association. The small, circular blue and white certification seal can usually be found inside a cabinet door or drawer.

To qualify for certification, kitchen cabinets and bath vanities have to meet the tough construction and performance standards of the American National Standards Institute (ANSI). These standards apply to manufactured, factory-finished kitchen and bath cabinets.

Additional information on cabinet selection is in a booklet, which can be obtained for 35 cents from the National Kitchen Cabinet Association, Box 2978, Grand Central Station, New York, N.Y. 10017.

STOP STAINS

Accidentally spill a cocktail, a cup of coffee, a glass of milk? Quick, get the club soda. Just pour it on the wiped up spill, let it fizz, and wipe it up.

BEAT THE HEAT

Take the heat out of the kitchen by installing an exhaust fan in a convenient window. It'll do double duty by helping to keep the rest of the house aired out.

Hang wallcoverings for quick room change

Hanging your own wallcovering can be fun and easy—if you work when your husband and kids are out. This is the advice of Karen Nyman, decorating and paper-hanging consultant for the Wallcovering Information Bureau.

Mrs. Nyman explains that wallcoverings are the easiest and least expensive way of achieving a dramatic effect in a room.

Wallcoverings can make a room seem wider; they can open it up, give it height, make it cozy and even achieve dramatic architectural effects.

As a do-it-yourselfer, now turned professional paperhanger, Mrs. Nyman is knowledgeable about current trends in the most popular wallcovering designs, and has a number of hints to make a first-time room look as though it were done by an expert.

The basic elements of hanging wallcoverings can be mastered in a very short time. In fact, if a woman can follow a sewing pattern, as millions do, she can easily master the art of hanging wallcoverings.

The W.I.B. is offering a How-To-Hang booklet free, which can be obtained, along with a room analysis chart and color selector, by writing to the Wallcovering Information Bureau, Dept. 2M, 66 Morris Avenue, Springfield, New Jersey 07081.

Here are some suggestions from Mrs. Nyman to consider when deciding on the effect you want your wallcovering to achieve:

- A pattern or dark color on the ceiling will lower it
- Small patterns and light colors give the illusion of greater size to a room.
- A dark background or bold pattern can create the impression of furnishing a room.
- Vertical stripes give the effect of height; horizontal stripes can widen a room.
- In cut-up rooms, a small pattern will unify the space.

One important trend in wallcovering designs today, Mrs. Nyman adds, is the natural look. Just as people are filling their homes with plants to feel closer to nature, they're also selecting wallcoverings in cork and linen looks to give a textural effect to their rooms.

For those wishing pattern on their walls, the selection of natural wall murals of forests, beaches and outdoor vistas can bring nature right into the room.

Also popular are the green sweep of leaves in overall patterns as well as Monet-inspired florals in pale pinks and mauves.

Even those living in apartments can now put up wallcoverings, as a number of strippable papers are on the market. Pre-pasted and pre-trimmed papers are available in thousands of patterns to fit the mood desired in any style of room.

PAPERHANGING MADE EASY . . . Getting your wallcovering from the pasting table up the ladder to the wall is easier with the foldover technique called booking. Karen Nyman, professional paper hanger, works carefully and exactly to insure a flawless job. To order a free How-to-Hang booklet, along with a room analysis chart and color selector, write to Wallcovering Information Bureau, Dept. 2M, 66 Morris Avenue, Springfield, New Jersey 07081.

Vinyls and vinyl laminated papers are treated to resist stains, so they are particularly recommended for kitchens, bathrooms, hallways and children's rooms.

Mrs. Nyman suggests looking at friends' homes to see what kind of effect you wish to have for wallcoverings in your home. Also, by looking carefully at the fundamentals of how corners and windows are done, you can learn how to accomplish this yourself.

Another good source of information for the do-it-yourselfer is salespeople at the wallcovering store. They can be very helpful about the number of rolls which will be needed and can advise about the suitability of different types of wallcoverings.

Mrs. Nyman points out that wallcoverings provide good decorating value. A wide variety of wallcoverings are $6 to $12 per single roll. The average cost of covering a small room is less than a good lamp, and your wallcoverings will last for years or until you are ready to change your decor.

Although Mrs. Nyman thinks it's best to work alone when hanging wallcoverings, she points out that it's a real pleasure to see your home transformed by them.

As a person who really loves her job, Mrs. Nyman says, "It's creative, you see results immediately, and you get a real sense of satisfaction.

"Of course, if you don't want to do it yourself, a professional paper hanger can be hired. Either way, you're sure to be delighted with the results."

Don't let 'kitchen blues' spoil your party for you

The candles are lit. The wine waits in a crystal carafe. Silver gleams on the buffet table, and it looks like it's going to be the prettiest party you ever had.

If only you didn't have to think about all those pots and pans waiting to be scrubbed, you could enjoy the party, too!

The "kitchen blues" have plagued women for generations (recently, men have also gotten a taste of clean-up woes). And even in this enlightened age, when almost half the women in America are in the labor force—and presumably have better things to do in their spare time than wield a dishcloth and scrub brush—bookstores and libraries still offer weighty references on the "cleaning arts."

Long ago, "recipes" for the removal of food and stains from metal were passed from one generation of women to another. For dark stains caused by eggs in aluminum, they cooked acid foods such as rhubarb or tomatoes—a method that could be used only in the summer!

Buttermilk was the accepted antidote for corrosion in copper pots, which often were also scrubbed with a mixture of flour, salt, lemon juice and ammonia.

Cast iron always presented problems if it wasn't thoroughly dried—and new brides were cautioned never to store iron utensils with the covers on, lest moisture and rust form inside.

Today, steel wool, soap-filled pads, stiff-bristled scrubbing brushes and scouring powders continue to line grocery shelves, for most metalware still needs at least occasional special treatment.

But scrubbing and stain-removal are methods more appropriate for the nineteenth than for the twentieth century. These days, more and more hostesses are reveling in the freedom and pleasure of cooking with the new non-stick pots and pans featuring mechanically-bonded pure PTFE—the most slippery substance in the world. Made in France by T-Fal, these durable pans do what non-stick has always promised—completely eliminated the need for any cleaning other than a casual swish of a soapy cloth.

That's liberation—and that's what's making today's parties a lot more fun and a lot less work. They're parties even a hostess can enjoy!

ENTERTAINING GUESTS today needn't mean lots of after-the-party drudgery. This non-stick skillet from France, handsome enough for buffet parties, is clean in seconds because of its unique mechanically bonded interior that absolutely prevents food from sticking.

Untamable kitchen? Try these storage helps

Somewhere—hiding amid the food processor, Bundt pan, coffeemaker, canned goods, cleaning supplies, and many other items you live with—there's new room in your kitchen! Impossible? Not when you step back, take a fresh look, and get organized!

Your kitchen should reflect your tastes, requirements and work patterns. And that makes you uniquely qualified to organize the space.

Consider individual needs

To get started, here are basic guidelines, but gear them to your individual needs for best results:

Analyze before you organize. Think about what works for you, and what doesn't. Assess your needs and wants. Which appliances, utensils and serving pieces do you use most often? Arrange these for convenience, storing them close at hand and where they're first used.

Keep less frequently used items in upper cabinets toward the back or maybe labeled and stored away if they are used only seasonally. Make sure your most valuable space—what's easiest to reach—works for you. The difference of a few steps multiplied by all the days in a year can save miles in time and energy.

EASY-TO-INSTALL, inexpensive organizers help keep drawers and cabinets neat-looking and efficient too. Shown from left, are instant drawer organizers, stacking storage bins and a grocery bag holder, a slide-out drawer below the sink, and a clean-up caddy which is portable.

Pare down your life. Simplify. Toss out. Ransack those kitchen cabinets and throw out old pans, odd-sized jars, utensils you never use. Donate worthwhile items to someone who might really find them helpful.

To gain maximum service from every inch of space in your kitchen, put storage aids into action. Think of your cabinets, shelves and walls as the foundation. Now "build on" what you need with storage equipment and accessories.

Furnish bare cabinets with shelf liner or Shelf Kushion® to make them attractive, easy to clean and to protect dishes and glassware. Double your usable space with turntables, slide-out drawers, lid racks, storage bins, dinnerware and plate racks.

Organize!

Are cutlery drawers in chaos? Instant drawer organizers and cutlery trays can do wonders in a hurry, plus keep sharp utensils safely tucked away.

Do you end up searching for sugar, flour, coffee? Keep an attractive canister set on the counter so these staples are always handy.

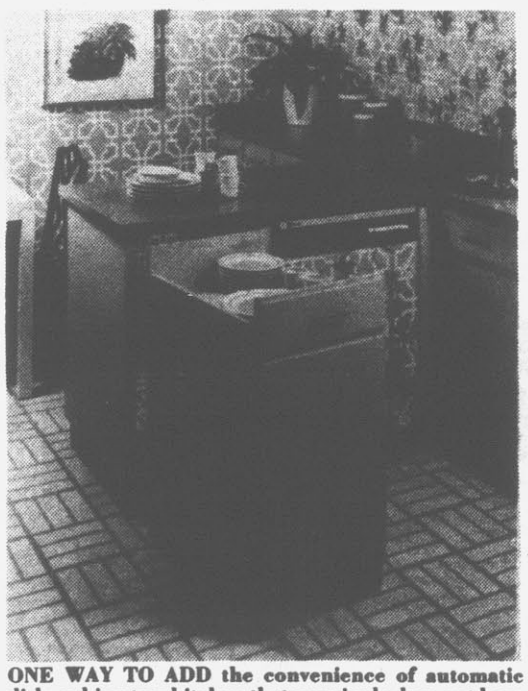

If you've done all you can and feel there's just no more room, consider installing spacemaker drawers. They fit easily under wall cabinets to take advantage of "dead" space.

Many possibilities

Gear the drawer to your needs: there are special ones for bread, utensils and gadgets, and another which serves as a towel and wrap dispenser.

Invest in sturdy plastic storage accessories to ensure lasting use. Since many are portable, you can tote them to the sink for a quick washdown—or to the next state if you move. Hint: Measure cabinet doors and interiors before shopping. You'll have a head start in knowing what to buy and where to put it.

ONE WAY TO ADD the convenience of automatic dishwashing to a kitchen that seemingly does not have cabinet space available for the built-in appliance is to construct a peninsula. Plans for building the unit with a versatile roll-out storage cabinet are available free from Maytag.

Clean-up help comes with peninsula setup

A do-it-yourself kitchen improvement project that can pay off handsomely in added storage space and convenience involves giving up one base cabinet in favor of a visually interesting peninsula.

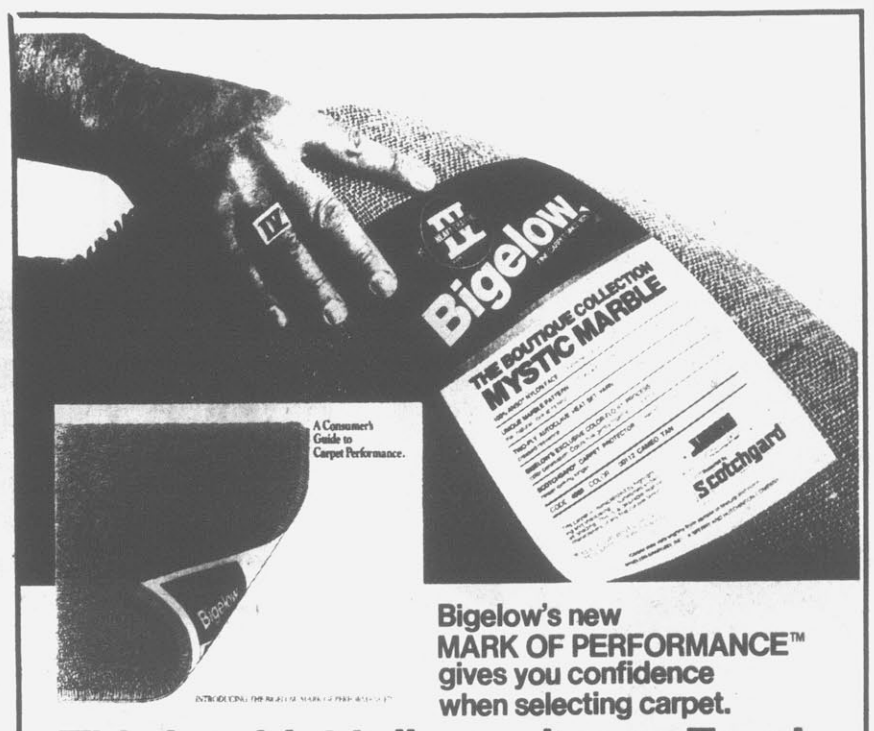

At first glance, kitchens in older or smaller homes often do not have adequate space to install an automatic built-in dishwasher. Maytag designers looked at such a kitchen and came up with an idea and plans for adding a four-foot long peninsula at right angles to an existing kitchen work counter.

This unusual but practical approach permits the dishwasher to be positioned near the sink in proximity to existing water and drain lines. An added bonus is that the sink-dishwasher arrangement is ideal for efficient kitchen cleanup.

Next to the dishwasher, a dish storage cart was designed to roll in and out from either side of the peninsula counter. It can be pulled out from the dishwasher side for loading with clean dishes direct from the dishwasher, and from the table side for setting the table.

The top of the peninsula makes an excellent buffet or work surface. The entire unit serves as a visual divider for a dining area if desired. To add a decorator touch, the front of the dishwasher can be covered with the same material used on the kitchen walls. A special dishwasher trim kit is available for this job.

Plans, including material specifications, for the peninsula and roll-out cart are available free from: Consumer Information Center, The Maytag Company, Newton, Iowa 50208.

Dream kitchen–first plan and then enjoy the results

"THE 'GALLEY OR CORRIDOR' shaped kitchen, as shown above, can be very efficient and pleasant with a minimum amount of space," say Whirlpool home economists. "However," they caution, "good planning and proper placement of appliances is essential to make it a smoothly functioning operation."

The kitchen is probably the most used and lived-in area of your home. It should be a warm, creative and exciting place to be in.

If you don't feel that way about your kitchen, then perhaps it's time to do some positive kitchen planning.

Home economists from Whirlpool Corporation advise that for the first step in planning the kitchen of your dreams, you will need a pencil, graph paper and a measuring tape.

Measure your constants first—the wall-to-wall dimensions of the room and the width, depth and height of your appliances. Draw your present kitchen on the graph paper, using each square to represent an appropriate number of feet or inches. Now draw it again . . . but this time draw it the way you would like it to be.

"The configuration of almost every kitchen is individualized," say the home economists, "but there are four basic shapes to most kitchens."

The "Island" kitchen is a large square or rectangular area of counter and storage space surrounding a center island equipped with a working surface. This design is very convenient for large families in which people work on the food preparation together.

The "L-shaped" kitchen uses two adjoining walls for counter space and appliances and is one of the most popular and widely used in American homes. It provides good counter space and few wasted steps.

The "U-shaped" kitchen is excellent for kitchens with adjoining dinettes or in homes with full dining rooms. Surrounded by working space, the cook has only to turn around to move from one preparation area to another.

The "Galley or Corridor" shape is perhaps the least flexible of the four basic shapes, however it can be very efficient. It is usually long and narrow with appliances and working space on one or both sides of the open center space.

"Once you have decided upon the shape you want your kitchen to take," say the home economists, "the next thing to consider is relocating your appliances and counter space."

The "working triangle," with the sink positioned between the range and the refrigerator, is a very convenient arrangement for meal preparation. It allows you to move from chore to chore with the fewest steps.

Here are some other important points to remember when planning your kitchen:

Sink—The ideal sink location is under a window with a view, but away from the main traffic flow of the room.

"Be especially careful about choosing the location for your sink area," caution the home economists. Moving the sink is not as easy as moving appliances and can be a costly endeavor.

If your kitchen plan does not have an appropriate window, plan to have plenty of light above the sink area.

Range—Keep the range away from windows or doors, where it can be a safety hazard to curtains or people passing by. It is handiest near the sink, but allow at least two feet of counter space between the two.

Refrigerator-Freezer—Usually a corner is the best place for this appliance to provide the smoothest flow for the work area. Be sure to allow full-width clearance to open the door.

Some model refrigerators have reversible doors which you might want to remember when considering a new purchase.

Dishwasher—This appliance is now almost a necessity in many busy homes. Built-in units are best placed on either side of the sink, close to the water supply. Portables can go anywhere and then simply rolled to the sink when needed.

Don't forget to plan space for another member of the "clean-up" crew—the trash compactor. This handy appliance should be positioned near the sink and the dishwasher for the most convenience.

Whirlpool home economists advise that, "next to the proper placement of your kitchen appliances, planning the counter top space is of extreme importance to the smooth operation of your kitchen."

"Your new kitchen plan should provide as much as possible. "With the proper placement of your appliances and plenty of counter space," they say, "you're well on your way to a dream kitchen."

Flexible furniture to fit future needs

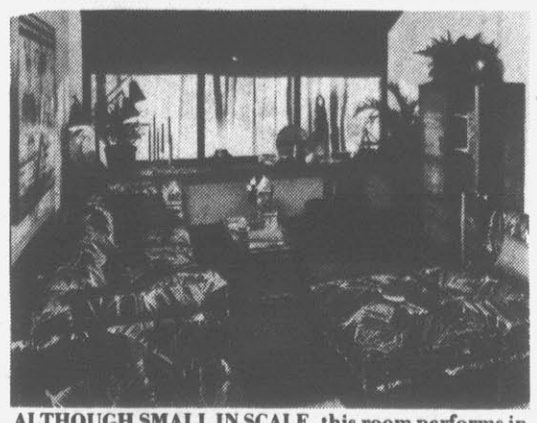

While we are all taught the wisdom of planning ahead, not too many of us really do. It may seem a nearly impossible feat with our lives or our finances, but it really isn't too difficult in some areas. Buying for your home, for example.

Furniture is generally a fairly long term investment, so it makes good sense (as well as cents) to think of it in long range terms. Fortunately, furniture manufacturers are helping on this score.

Much of today's furniture comes in modules that can be grouped and re-grouped in any number of arrangements, making it adaptable to many different rooms.

When you shop, don't think only about the room that the furniture will be used in now, but consider how it could be used elsewhere later on, also.

Some bright, young newly-weds, with a small-scaled home in the present and with an eye to the future, did just that, and with remarkable success. In a very modestly sized living room, they managed not only to provide substantial seating or lounging room and good storage space, but everything that they bought can be rearranged or used elsewhere.

ALTHOUGH SMALL IN SCALE, this room performs in a grand manner. The modular furniture has been used unconventionally to create a sofa and a chaise. The pieces, with a genuine wicker base trimmed with bamboo-turned wood are from American of Martinsville's new "South Pacific" group, as is the unusual trunk and the armoire that can perform multiple storage duties.

It's easy to remember that vacation photographically

You had a wonderful time on your vacation and you got a lot of lovely pictures of new places and activities.

There's no need to hide all this fun in an album—put it on a wall in an easy-to-make montage.

First, pick out those pictures that really show the vacation the way it was . . . action shots, scenics, close-ups of flowers and faces.

Arrange them on a table in a horizontal or vertical layout. A dozen pictures will do nicely, and remember you can take out distractions by simply not showing part of the picture.

After you have your arrangement to your satisfaction, tape the pictures on a piece of cardboard. You can use double face tape or regular tape around the white edges.

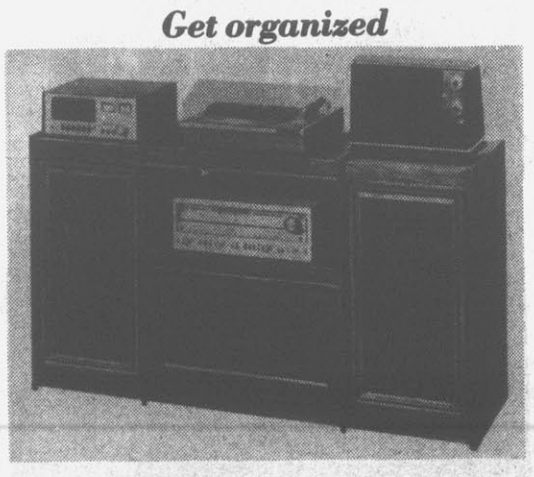

Put a piece of tissue paper over your pictures and draw lines around the pictures, or those parts that you want to display.

Put the tissue paper on a piece of white poster board and trace the lines onto the board. Now cut out the holes with a razor blade. The holes should correspond to the pictures.

Put the poster board and the cardboard together with tape and finish off your montage with a do-it-yourself frame or a brightly colored tape around the edges.

All items for your montage display are readily available at art stores or stationery stores.

Get organized

YOU'VE WONDERED just how to organize the stereo and audio equipment so that the pieces are together and wires don't run throughout the room. From Gusdorf, whose Electronics Furniture is designed to meet the requirements of most audiophiles, comes a home entertainment center with room for everything. The center compartment has a recessed door and a finished back panel with removable record album dividers for additional storage of tapes and accessories. Speaker sections 26¼" high, 16" wide and 15" deep will accommodate basic speaker units while a total separation of 61½" delivers excellent stereo separation. The top center shelf supports black and white TV's up to 22"; color to 21". Steel tie rods insure maximum rigidity and strength to make a sturdy surface for smooth running of a turntable. In simulated walnut veneer, the unit is at home anywhere in living room or family room.

What do you know about roofs?

The day to day life of a roof is rough. Wind, rainstorms and dramatic temperature changes can age a roof prematurely. Snow, melting ice and exposure to 50,000 hours of direct sunlight over a lifetime contribute to this aging process. Knowing how to recognize early warning signs of roof problems will ensure your roof's good health for years to come.

Roofing experts at Bird & Son, located in East Walpole, Mass., have tested a roof's endurance under hundreds of diverse weather conditions. Manufacturers of building materials since 1795, Bird & Son has developed this true/false quiz to help you learn more about your roof.

T _ F _ 1. Sunlight is rougher on roofing shingles than wind, rainstorms, snow or melting ice.

T _ F _ 2. Shingles prevent water leakage.

T _ F _ 3. Overlap is the process that causes water to drop from one shingle to another and finally to the ground.

T _ F _ 4. Roofing is applied from bottom to top.

T _ F _ 5. Metal strips that waterproof the joints of a roof at the chimney are called flashing.

T _ F _ 6. Most roof shapes are variations on two main types, the gable roof and the hip roof.

T _ F _ 7. Different types of roof styles can be combined in one building.

T _ F _ 8. It is important to know what type of skeleton lies beneath a house before deciding on a roof.

T _ F _ 9. Roofs are most vulnerable to leaks where their slopes are broken by chimneys, dormers and valleys.

T _ F _ 10. Asphalt shingle roofs usually last more than 20 years depending upon the weight of the shingle.

T _ F _ 11. Asphalt shingles are easily applied and come with dabs of adhesive that seal the roof against high winds.

T _ F _ 12. The slope of your roof does not affect your choice of materials.

T _ F _ 13. The more nearly level the slope, the slower the run-off of water from the roof, the more highly waterproof the material must be.

T _ F _ 14. Asphalt shingles are widely used on roofs with moderate to steep slopes because they are easy to install, come in a variety of weights, require little maintenance and are available in a wide range of colors.

T _ F _ 15. Asphalt shingles are one of the least expensive yet effective roof coverings available.

According to a Bird & Son roofing expert, the sooner you repair a damaged roof, the more money you'll save in the long run. The first symptoms of an aging roof are bare spots where granules have worn off, broken or curled shingle edges and missing tabs. If you do find signs of roof damage, call your local roofing contractor. He will give you a free inspection with no obligation.

If you would like more information about roofing before you build, remodel or repair, write for the "What You Should Know About Roofing" booklet. Send your name, address and 50¢ to Roofing, Box R-P, Bird & Son, East Walpole, MA 02032.

Textile wallcovering adds visual interest, dimension

If your living space is run down, "re-doing" a wall can be a practical and pleasant alternative to an expensive remodeling job.

Egyptian influence

Influenced by the "Treasures of Tutankhamun," a wallcovering and fabric collection from Perceptive Concepts, the living room walls of one home were covered in "The Gift," a Belgian linen textile wallcovering in jewel tones. The textured weave of this linen wallcovering adds dimension and creates visual interest.

"The Gift" is a design inspired from a chest, one of the most outstanding treasures found in Tutankhamun's tomb. The lid presents a charming scene, Tutankhamun leaning lightly with one hand on a long staff and receiving bouquets of lotus and papyrus, with poppies from his grateful queen, Ankhesenamun.

A touch of the antiquity, romance, and beauty of ancient Egypt is further captured by the goddess Selket, a gold statue reproduced by the Metropolitan Museum of Art from the Tutankhamun Collection.

Exotic accent

The upholstered white linen couch and chairs are accented by the pillows covered in the "Queen's Bouquet," a linen fabric to correlate with "The Gift."

The stainless steel glass cocktail table, accessories, and brown and white striped wool rug, complement and unify this regal room setting.

The three turquoise cabinets from Cy Mann form a pyramid armoire. The cabinet doors may be left open or closed. If left open, there is an inside light box to illuminate the contents within. This pyramid armoire encompasses both practicality and beauty.

Beautiful elegance

This room, once nondescript, now generates interest and elegance with the aura of Egyptian enchantment.

Belgian linen wallcoverings are made with natural fibers and the extraordinary surface interest of these wallcoverings is produced by the subtle variations of texture and color.

The special advantages of linen wallcoverings include anti-static power, strength and resistance to tearing, and acoustical properties.

THROUGH THE USE OF BELGIAN LINEN textile wallcovering, this room, once nondescript, now generates visual interest and elegance in an ambiance of Egyptian enchantment.

Multi-purpose bedroom versatile for all-day use

Any room doubles in value when it's decorated for versatility, as is this multi-purpose bedroom. Glamorous, yet functional, the contemporary theme, with clever use of pattern and texture, works as a charming bedroom, study or a place to entertain friends.

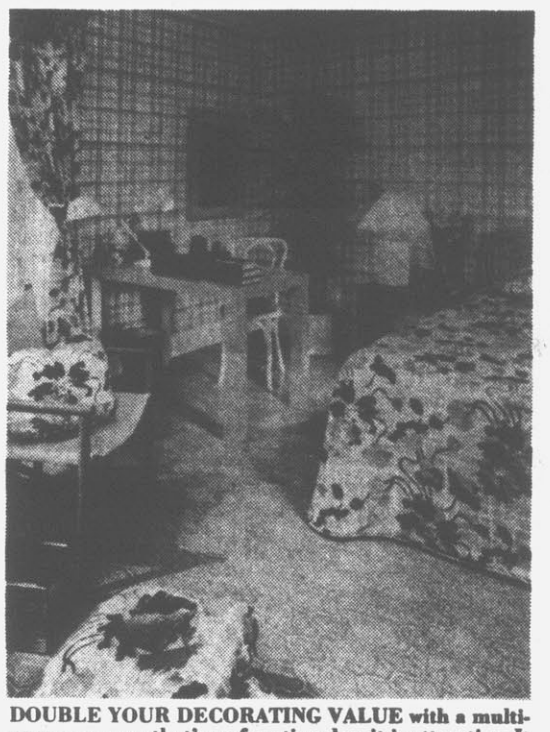

Bright and cheery

The highlighting color scheme starts with a sunny yellow underfoot in Congoleum's Prestige vinyl flooring. Available in wide widths, "Trinity Harbor" can be put in by the handy do-it-yourselfer without the need of seaming in most rooms.

Everything in this room is easy-care, from the boldly flowered drip-dry fabric of the spread, draperies and cushions, to the washable furniture—and the no-wax vinyl flooring, which usually needs only a damp mopping with a mild detergent to maintain its beauty.

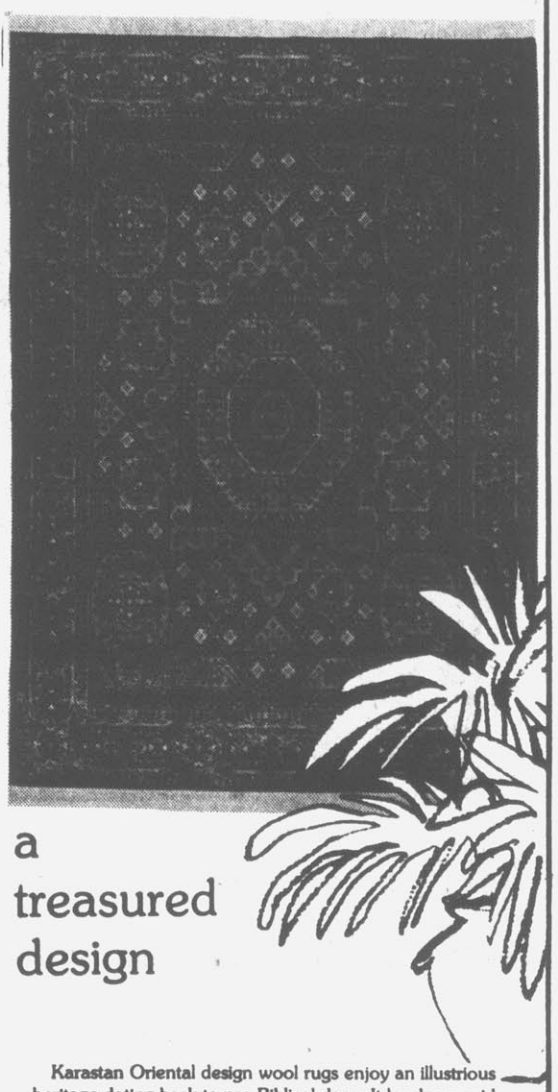

"Easy does it"

For information on how to install cushioned vinyl flooring yourself, send for a free step-by-step installation guide. Write to: "Easy Does It," Consumer Department A, Congoleum Corporation, 195 Belgrove Drive, Kearny, N.J. 07032.

DOUBLE YOUR DECORATING VALUE with a multi-purpose room that's as functional as it is attractive. It works as a bedroom, quiet study or cheerful entertainment getaway. This room is easy to create and easy to care for, using drip-dry fabrics for the draperies, cushions and spread and no-wax Congoleum Prestige vinyl flooring in the "Trinity Harbor" design. The flooring is easy to install, since the wide width means no seaming in most rooms.

The new 'back-to-the-city' trend calls for an expert new approach to remodeling

Their parents moved out, but they're moving back in.

So says the National Home Improvement Council, which indicates that a substantial number of younger, middle-income families, priced out of the suburban housing market, have begun to buy and renovate homes in larger cities across the nation.

As a result, thousands of urban residences that were begging for buyers only a few years ago have recently been snapped up at comparative bargain prices, comments NHIC.

Urban areas favored by the returnees are the solid, blue-collar neighborhoods, while the most sought-after homes are those with a claim to architectural distinction, such as New York's brownstones, San Francisco's Victorians, and Federal-style houses in Philadelphia and Washington.

Reasons cited for the back-to-the-city move include:

- The coming-of-home-buying age of the post World War II generation.
- Mounting new-home costs, now approaching $60,000.
- The availability of low-interest loans for certain types of housing through federal urban rehabilitation programs.
- The expense and inconvenience of long-distance commuting.
- The convenience of being downtown "where everything's at."

Modernization and remodeling of older urban homes is not as formidable a task as it might appear, points out NHIC. Most, although somewhat run down through neglect, are solidly built, spacious and have borne their years well.

Manage household with efficient time

Whether you are employed outside the home, active in community groups, or managing a busy household, your time is too precious to waste on unnecessary or inefficient tasks.

With a little pre-planning, you can organize your daily and weekly chores so there is more time to play with the children, read a good book or just plain relax.

Here are some time-efficient tips to help you shave hours from your current schedule:

- Do more than one thing at a time. While watching television, you could mend or iron clothes. Or, do the dinner dishes while talking on the phone to a friend or relative.

When making a roast dinner, whip up the children's sandwiches and freeze them for a week's worth of school lunches.

- Cook double the amount. Yours may be a family of four, but cook for eight when you are preparing a casserole, roast or meals with sauces (such as spaghetti, chili or coq au vin).

You can serve one-half the amount that night and freeze leftovers for a tasty ready-to-go dinner.

- Clean as you go. Don't let spills, splatters or smudges accumulate—they'll only be harder to clean later. Keep a bottle of Fantastik® spray cleaner in the kitchen, bathroom, laundry room and playroom, ready to spray on any soiled washable surface; then wipe clean the plastic, metal, vinyl or painted surfaces with a clean cloth or paper towel.
- Rotate your cleaning schedule. Assign one room a week to a thorough, top-to-bottom cleaning; tackle the other rooms as you would normally on a weekly schedule.

This means that once every six weeks or so your rooms have been given a fall or spring cleaning.

- Enlist help. Even the smallest child can learn responsibility and help cut down on your daily chores. Start when they're young, teaching them to put away toys and hang up jackets.

How to put mirror magic to better use in the home

By LIS KING

Mirrors have a magic all their own. Just watch the fascinating replay of light and shadow, shapes and colors that a single mirror produces, and it's easy to understand why professional interior designers are such mirror fans.

They know all the incredible tricks mirrors can play on a room: how they can stretch space, almost to infinity. And here, courtesy of Binswanger Mirror Company, are some ideas to put the decorator's brand of magic to work in YOUR home.

• Mirrors are among the least expensive and most effective space-stretching materials. Mirror a wall of a room, and immediately you've doubled its size.

• To widen a narrow room, mirror one of the long walls. Or both!

• Raise the roof with mirrors. Floor-to-ceiling mirror strips will heighten a room visually. Or think about mirroring the ceiling. This effect is fabulous, but remember that you wind up with a duplicate room. So it's an idea best left to perfectionists, who're sure that everything in their room is worth a double image.

• Mirrors are great in today's "natural" interiors. Their sleek finishes provide welcome contrasts to wood, rattan and straw textures.

• Some of today's best-dressed walls wear mirror strips combined with weathered barnwood or clear pine. The mirror strips may run vertically, horizontally, or diagonally. Such treatments are strictly for sophisticated, contemporary rooms.

• Mirrored walls aren't just for contemporary rooms. Since they reflect what's happening in the rest of the room, it stands to reason that they can go traditional and formal as well.

• Crystal sconces look fabulously elegant and cast twice the light when they're mounted on a mirrored wall.

• Hanging a beautifully framed large mirror on a mirrored wall is also a very elegant idea.

• To give a plain-Jane room architectural interest, add mirror panels framed by molding. This was a treatment common in 17th and 18th century France. So this idea is for you if you're mad about Louis XVI furniture.

• An accent mirror looks wonderful in a group of paintings and prints.

• Don't limit framed mirrors to their usual roles above the fireplace mantel or the front hall console. They belong any place where there's something worth reflecting. Hang one above the sideboard in the dining room, for example, to reflect your scrumptious desserts.

• Replace the trite medicine cabinet with a really beautiful mirror.

• A collection of mirrors in varying sizes and shapes is as effective as a series of prize paintings.

For more ideas on decorating with mirrors, write Binswanger Mirror Co., P.O. Box 17127, Memphis TN, 38117. $1 will bring you a beautifully illustrated 24-page idea booklet plus Binswanger's colorful catalog.

A CLOSET WALL becomes decorative, thanks to sliding mirror doors, clear mirror panels above the doors, and Solar Bronze vertical mirror strips, all by Binswanger.

Sprucing up of work areas aids fall 'Mr. Fix-it' projects

As the brisk days of autumn take families away from the great outdoors and back home to where the heart is, handymen head straight for the toolbox to get the house in shape for the cold weather sit-in.

From adding a long put-off game room to routine tasks like putting up storm windows, handymen should first clean up their own workshops or toolbenches in order to efficiently tackle home improvement jobs.

For example, clearing away clutter in the shop area provides an open, non-confining space in which to work. Organizing tools keeps equipment within easy reach and helps avoid unnecessary delays like searching for the #10 wrench last used to tighten a bicycle wheel.

To help the man of the house gear up for fall home improvement, the handyman's good friend Bon Ami offers these suggestions to get hammering in a hurry:

• Sort screws, nails and tacks according to size into clear glass jars and attach to corresponding lids, which have already been nailed to an overhead shelf, for quick and easy selection of the right piece.

• Organize various-sized wrenches, pliers, saws and paintbrushes on a pegboard and outline each item so that tools can easily be returned to the right spot on the board.

• Use file cabinets with deep, long drawers to store drill bits, extension cords, hammers, soldering irons, sandpaper sheets, files and caulking guns. Drop in plastic drawer organizers to hold smaller items like fuses, sockets and washers.

• Eliminate an unnecessary assortment of cleaning aids by stocking one multi-purpose cleaner, like Bon Ami Cleaning Cake, that does the work of several. Use its non-scratch formula to safely clean and effectively polish storm windows, bathroom fixtures, aluminum and chrome surfaces.

The gentle feldspar and soap formula leaves a protective lubricating film that helps retard rust, and it can even be used to prepare wood surfaces before painting for a smooth finish.

• Install shelves above the work space to keep paint cans, putty, oil cans and power tools up and away, yet always within easy reach.

• Get organized in the garage and toolshed, too. When autumn leaves begin to fall, use heavy-duty wall racks to keep rakes close at hand and to hang up shovels, bicycles and even winter's sleds and toboggans. Build an overhead storage space by laying planks between garage crossbeams to store out-of-season items like summer's lawn chairs and grills.

Louver doors . . .

Improve any room

If high costs are forcing you to think twice about expensive remodeling projects, like beautifying a room—reconsider. You can improve the appearance of virtually any room inexpensively with louver doors.

For that closet you've always been meaning to do something about, consider the installation of folding or sliding wood louver doors as a do-it-yourself project. They are available at local home centers or building supply stores in stock sizes and come with special tracks and hardware for easy installation and operation.

A skilled handyman ought to be able to install them in a matter of hours.

Wood louver doors are appropriate for virtually any interior design from Colonial to modern, because of their distinctive "textured" appearance, which adds dimension to otherwise flat wall surfaces.

Besides their good looks, louver doors have a number of practical advantages for closets. Since they either fold back against each other, or slide open and closed, they can be used in areas with little floor clearance.

The louvers also permit the free flow of air to prevent mildew and keep clothes fresh.

Sliding or folding louver doors come either full louvered or with louvers in the top half and solid wood panels in the bottom half.

They can be painted to match or contrast with the room colors, or simply stained or varnished to highlight the rich, natural grain of the wood.

A DYNAMIC FOCAL POINT in this contemporary family room extension to a traditional home is Ridgeway's Viennese regulator clock. Hickory's "Thesis" furniture is modern in mood yet classic in feeling. LouverDrapes at the floor-to-ceiling windows control glare, filter light and add to the room's spacious and architectural feeling.

Self-improvement starts in the home

If a home is considered an extension of self, then home-improvement should be considered just as vital as self-improvement. Often, it's a lot easier.

This year, in lieu of an extension course, consider extending your home. It represents an investment not only in your future, but one which will benefit the entire family and go on reaping dividends year after year.

As home prices soar, more Americans are finding it more economical to build additions than to move to larger quarters. Add a mudroom. Extend your kitchen. Build a family room. Who couldn't use more space?

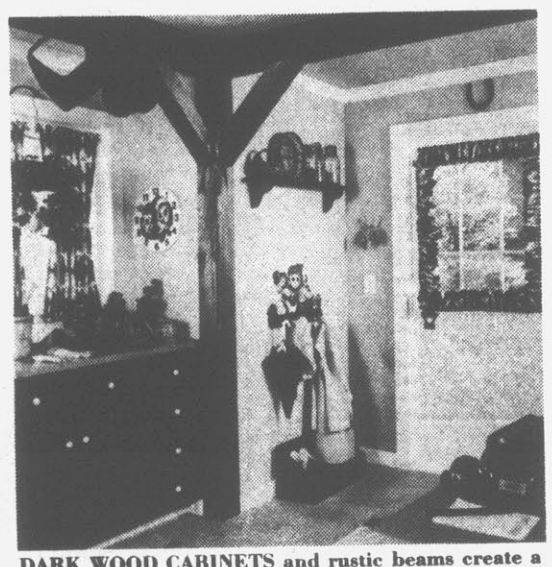

Whether you choose to build the extension yourself or contract it out, an important part of the budget to consider before arranging your home improvement loan should be the furnishings. Planning for this will pay off handsomely and avoid later frustrations.

Which furnishings? Start with plans for walls and windows. If windows are large—and why not with the advent of thermopane—LouverDrapes are a good choice. By controlling light, these vertical blinds actually cut heating and cooling costs and add architectural interest. Like floor covering, this kind of window covering actually adds to the value of your home.

In buying furniture, a key consideration should be style as well as durability. Casual doesn't have to look clunky or makeshift. Modern is an excellent choice, especially if the modern you choose is classic like Hickory's new "Thesis" designs. The light finish makes maintenance easy—an important factor in any choice.

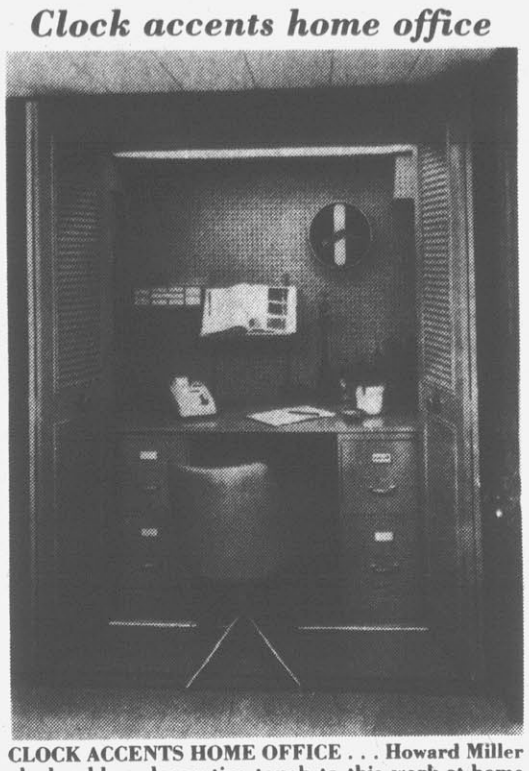

Put accessories on your list. Without them, a room can look bare no matter how well it's furnished. An excellent focal point for the family room or, for that matter, any room you build, is a Ridgeway traditional clock. In wall as well as tall case versions, Ridgeway clocks are instant heirlooms as well as attractive accent pieces.

Planning a mudroom or fun room for the kids? Syroco's new "Raggedy Ann and Andy" accessories are the perfect choice for the walls. And, what could be more practical than the pegged tidy-up or a delightful clock.

DARK WOOD CABINETS and rustic beams create a country mood in this mudroom, an addition to a once-cramped kitchen. Adding fun and function are Syroco's "Raggedy Ann and Andy" pegged tidy-up, a mere $13, and the cordless clock, an affordable $24. These colorful charmers, a bevy of baskets and a ruffle of fabric complete the decorating scheme. Syroco is a division of Dart Industries Inc.

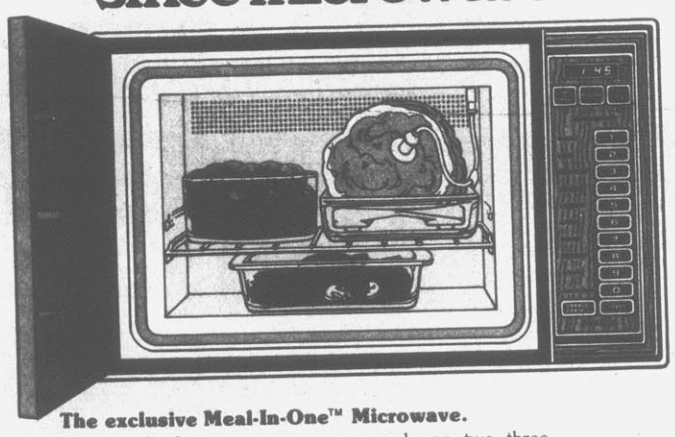

Clock accents home office

CLOCK ACCENTS HOME OFFICE . . . Howard Miller clock adds a decorative touch to this work-at-home office that once was a closet. Desk was created by topping a pair of two-drawer files with a laminate counter; the rear wall was covered with pegboard to accommodate changing work needs; and metal folding doors were installed to close the office from view when not in use. Fluorescents above a translucent diffusing panel in the ceiling provide plenty of light. Battery operated, the handsome contemporary clock has a black dial with white graphics, a charcoal hour hand with red accents, and a red minute hand.

Give room a new look with country wood stain colors

If you are tired of the wallpaper patterns and colors you are living with and want to go a more natural design route, consider redoing a living room or den with wood textures and subtle new woodland stain colors—and try some innovation in your design.

"There are many ways to highlight the beauty of wood without always using the standard or ordinary paneled wall treatment," advises designer Shirley Regendahl, who has just completed a series of exciting wood-oriented room settings for PPG Industries, maker of Pittsburgh Paints.

"One idea that can adapt to many different types of homes and rooms," says the stylist, "is to panel a focal wall with unfinished plywood squares that you arrange in a decorative diagonal fashion, and finish with country-fresh stain colors that bring the charm of the woodland indoors."

The how-to steps in planning the focal wall, and creating a woodsy theme for the whole room, are easy to follow—and for the do-it-yourself designer, this type of project provides an easy way to achieve individuality in design.

—First decide on a focal wall. If you have a fireplace, this wall is ideal. Otherwise, choose the area that provides a background for a conversation furniture grouping.

—To determine how much plywood is needed to cover the wall, find the square footage of the area and add 10 percent for the diagonal treatment.

For a 12-foot wall, for example, three four- by eight-foot sheets of unfinished plywood, cut into 12-inch squares, are needed. Each square should be saw-cut around the edges one-eighth-inch deep to give definition to the individual blocks.

—Next, decide on the grain. Designer Regendahl used birch but a homeowner can select any grain in the unfinished plywood and it can be cut into smaller or larger squares, depending on the visual effect desired.

—Now decide on stain colors that will enhance the grain character and beauty of the wood. Ms. Regendahl used seven different stain colors to blend with the existing natural dark oak stained floor in the room she was redecorating. She chose semi-transparent and solid color stains from Pittsburgh Paints' new Rez wood stain system to obtain the elegant nuances of color that would relate to a country woods setting.

—She combined rich grays, tans and browns in semi-transparent and solid stains to suggest a variety of wood textures. Colors used were weathered shakes, mauvewood, mountain mauve, maple greige, birchwood and beaverwood.

To further enhance the woodland character, she used a livelier stain color from the redwood family, one called scarlet haw, for the room's divider and coffee table.

—Once you have made the important grain and color decisions, then make a paper pattern of the wall design to indicate placement of various stain colors. Number the backs of the squares or blocks to correspond with numbers on the paper.

Using a plumbline, start at the center of the wall, either top or bottom, and fill in the "half-block" areas around ceiling and baseboard last. Use either glue or small, No. 6 finishing nails to attach the diagonals to the wall. The process is similar to and as easy as laying floor tile.

—Stain the plywood "tiles" before applying to the wall and alternate grain pattern, as they are put up, to attain maximum visual texture. To stain, use an ordinary paint brush and apply with grain. Then wipe off the excess and shade as desired to give the surface the shaded quality of natural wood.

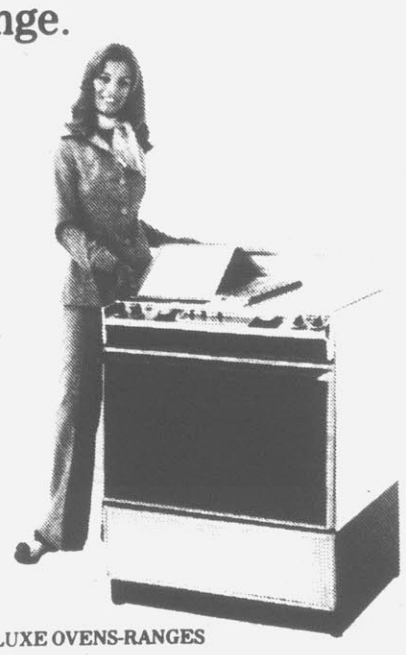

If the surface will receive heavy use—such as a floor or table top—a top coat of Rez polyurethane varnish should be applied to provide finished protection.

According to the Rez stain people, the basic type of stain to use is an individual choice. There is no doubt that purists and real antique artists will choose oil stains, since they do provide greater penetration into the wood.

FROM 7 P.M. UNTIL 9 P.M.

Find out about the refrigerator engineered to save money on your electric bills.

Amana

Instead of the usual 1¾" of foam wall insulation used in most refrigerators, Amana packs 2" of foam wall insulation around the refrigerator section PLUS 2½" around the zero-degree freezer section where it's needed most.

And that really locks in the cold.

Model ESB-14B (14.1 cu. ft.)

Besides saving energy, this Amana 2 PLUS 2½ gives you these convenient features:

- Amana 3-position Energy Saver Control: An auxiliary, external heater strip that is turned "On" and "Off" by this Control minimizes condensation between the freezer and refrigerator sections during high humidity. Under most conditions, you would set the Control on "LO" — which shuts the "heater" completely off to provide maximum savings. "HI" is for high humidity, and uses less electricity than "EX. HI" which is for extremely hot, steamy conditions.
- Only 28" wide. Full-size capacity, yet perfect for kitchens with limited space.
- Convertible doors let you change from right- to left-hand door opening anytime.
- Stor-Mor® doors let you keep space-stealing items out of the cabinet.
- Smoky, see-through meat pan for meat storage.
- Two smoky, see-through crispers for fresh fruit and vegetables.

Want even greater convenience? Choose from four other 2 PLUS 2½ models that are completely Free-O'-Frost.

Hope's All-Star Team Takes Spotlight

Bob Hope's All-Star Comedy Salute to the 75th Anniversary of the World Series — Bob marks the start of his 29th year as an NBC-TV star with this tribute to the fall classic's Diamond Jubilee, Sunday, Oct. 15, 8-10 p.m. on NBC-TV.

Comedian Bob Hope's unique All-Star Baseball team takes the spotlight when his first special of the 1978-79 season — "Bob Hope's All-Star Comedy Salute to the 75th Anniversary of the World Series" — is telecast Sunday, Oct. 15, 8 to 10 p.m. on NBC-TV.

Hope's team roster reads like no other roster. First, there's Steve Martin, one of America's brightest young comedians. Steve could very easily be voted the team's Most Valuable Player. In constant demand, he is the popular guest host of "NBC's Saturday Night Live" and "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson," and his "Let's Get Small" is one of the few comedy albums ever to be certified platinum (signifying sales of 1,000,000 copies). His single, "King Tut," has also been a big hit. Steve has a guest-starring role in the film "Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band," in which he sings "Maxwell's Silver Hammer," and he is now taping his own comedy special for NBC.

Covering for Hope in the outfield will be the Muppets, the adorable Emmy Award-winning (Best Comedy-Variety or Music Series, 1978) bunch of puppets who are returning for a second appearance on a Hope special. Last year, Hope traveled to London where he taped a segment with Miss Piggy, Kermit and the other Muppets. Kermit will appear in this special, along with his friend Waldorf and Statler.

One guest who is a sure-fire bet to hit the winning home run is that All-American gal, Cheryl Tiegs. Recently profiled in Time magazine, Cheryl has filmed over 80 commercials, and posters of her are selling as fast as they are printed.

Adjusting To Stardom

The past year and a half has been a period of constant adjustments for pretty Joyce DeWitt, who co-stars in ABC-TV's "Three's Company" (Tuesdays, 9 to 9:30 p.m.). And as far as Joyce is concerned, she's still making the adjustment to stardom.

"I've been more than cautious," she admits, "because I am a very, very private, hermit-like person, and I very much wanted to maintain my lifestyle as I had always known it.

"So last year, I did very few interviews that were requested, and often I felt rude about declining them. Then I'd feel guilty so I'd do just one to kind of get me off the hook.

"So, making the change to go public, as it were, came very gradual. Suzanne (Somers) and John (Ritter) and my publicist tried very hard to explain to me that it is really a part of the business that I'm now in, which is television. They explained to me that American people deal with TV actors in a very intimate fashion, and therefore they wanted to share this other extension.

"Well, that helped a lot, as did the letters I received," she explains. "Additionally, there were all kinds of articles and things written about me that I had nothing to do with. I would read them then cry because they were so awful, so terrible. I finally decided that rather than let the world get the impression that I'm a real zombie I'd at least better let them know that I'm just a crazy person having a lot of fun."

Lovely Joyce DeWitt stars as Janet Wood...n ABC-TV's hit comedy series, "Three's Company," which airs Tuesdays (9-9:30 p.m.)...Three's Company...now in its second full season on the network, is the hilarious story of two young career women sharing their apartment with a young man under the watchful eye of a disapproving landlord.

Susan Is Surrounded By Dolls

If you judge a person by the company she keeps, then Susan Richardson is a "living doll." Poised comfortably among her wonderful, hand-sewn doll creations, the freckle-faced redhead could easily pass for a contemporary Raggedy Ann. Instead, she is the versatile young actress who stars as 20-year-old Susan Bradford in the popular "Eight is Enough" series, which has returned for its third season (Wednesdays, 8 to 9 p.m. on ABC-TV).

A bright, exuberant young woman, Susan's giant dolls reflect just one of her many creative facets. When a child, ingenuity was a necessity within the modest walls of her rural Coatsville, Penn., home.

Disarmingly honest, Susan reflects, "I guess most people would look at my family and say we were poor. And if everything is based on money, I guess we were. But, in reality, we were never underprivileged, never suffered and never wanted for anything because both of my parents were not only loving but also artists in their own right!"

Susan's father, an expert carpenter, built the family house out of old barnwood. Susan recalls, "It was beautiful and rustic, complete with a genuine bird's nest in the rafters." Holidays and birthdays were always a treat because it often meant receiving a handmade doll from Susan's mother.

"Although there was never enough money for the luxury of store-bought toys," Susan said, "we were actually envied by our playmates because our toys were always more original and lasted much longer than their plastic, commercial models."

Some of Susan's dolls, designed as gifts for her fellow actors, have found loving homes with Barbra Streisand and Loretta Swit. Still others, standing as tall as eight feet, reside with Susan, her husband Michael, a beautiful collection of antiques, and her most-prized possession — a giant, hand-carved rocking horse.

Kurt's Apple-Pie Image

Kurt Russell, handsome star of Walt Disney Productions' "Now You See Him, Now You Don't," to be rebroadcast on "The Wonderful World of Disney," Sundays, Oct. 15 and 22 (7 to 8 p.m. on NBC-TV), likes the all-American boy image which has stayed with him even after 13 years in the entertainment business.

"I like it because I am one," the young actor says. "I'm that way in real life. I like apple-pie and ice cream and all the other stuff."

All the "other stuff" includes letting things happen naturally, refusing to become pretentious and doing a great imitation of Ed Sullivan.

Kurt got his start in acting at the age of ten, when he found two of his heroes, Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris, were about to make a baseball movie called "Safe at Home." He pestered his father, Bing, to arrange an interview for him. Unlike the mythical Hollywood story, Kurt did not get the part, but the damage was done. If his heroes were going to be actors like his father, who for 14 years played the sheriff on "Bonanza," then he wanted the same.

Eventually he debuted in a television series, "Our Man Higgins," and this was followed by several roles in other series.

INCREDIBLE DISCOVERY — Kurt Russell stars as an amazed science student who watches his reading glasses disappear after being dipped into an invisibility solution in "Now You See Him, Now You Don't" on NBC-TV's "The Wonderful World of Disney," Sundays, Oct. 15 and 22 (7-8 p.m.).

San Francisco Surgeon Is Subject

"Dr. Trunkey, call the Emergency Room . . . Dr. Trunkey, call the Emergency . . . Dr. Trunkey, call the Emergency Room . . . "

The insistent voice on the intercom means another life-and-death medical challenge for Dr. Donald Trunkey, Emergency Trauma Surgeon-in-Chief, San Francisco General Hospital, University of California. He is the subject of the third program in the weekly "Lifeline" series, airing Sunday, Oct. 15, 10 to 11 p.m. on NBC-TV.

Each program in this reality series focuses on a different doctor in a different locale. All of the incidents are true, and no actors are ever used.

Among the patients treated by Dr. Trunkey are: a 23-year-old woman with serious gunshot wounds; a 12-year-old admitted for an emergency appendectomy; a 23-year-old motorcyclist with a severly crushed leg; a 20-year-old burn victim, who suffers cardiac arrest; and a 7-year-old boy, whose spleen is lacerated when he is hit by a car.

The hectic and unpredictable work schedule to which Dr. Trunkey tailors his life is illustrated early in the program, when he is called away from a quiet 20th anniversary dinner with his wife to look at Barbara Jones, the gunshot victim. She is bleeding profusely and is near death.

Symphony Begins Season

Much has been written lately about popularization of the performing arts: dancers are now stars, not oddities; operas are audience-grabbers; and classical music is now as familiar as — well — as your favorite television program.

The innovator of all classical music series on television is "Evening at Symphony," now in its fifth season on UNC. The program features the Boston Symphony Orchestra and Music Director Seiji Ozawa in a 13-week season of concerts. Music this season ranges from the most time-honored — Bach, Beethoven, Brahms, Mozart, Wagner — to the works of such contemporary composers as Toru Takemitsu and David Del Tredici, all taped in Boston's famed Symphony Hall. The series premieres Sunday, Oct. 15, at 10 p.m.

The issue of classical music on television brings out a strong response in critics, who either love it (because not everybody can get to Symphony Hall, and not everybody can get to see a conductor or a violinist close up) or hate it (claiming that it's visually distracting and of poor sound quality). These issues will probably be debated as long as musicians continue to be seen on the TV screen. But happily, classical music seems securely established in the television repertory, thanks in great part to the advent of stereo simulcast, to the efforts of those producers who have made the televising of music an art form in itself, and to the pioneering efforts of "Evening at Symphony."

God Decrees Ruin

Popular television stars Nancy Walker, Billy Crystal and Pamela Sue Martin star in "Human Feelings," a 90-minute NBC World Premiere comedy about an angel's earthly misadventures when he tries to save the wicked gambling spa of Las Vegas after a vengeful God has ordered it destroyed. It will be telecast on "NBC Monday Night at the Movies," Oct. 16, 9:30 to 11 p.m.

Walker plays the crusty old God, Crystal plays Miles, an easy-going angel who's looking to broaden his heavenly horizons, and Martin is Verna Gold, the mortal whose redemption leads the angel to fall in love with her.

Thunderously outraged with the increase of sin in Las Vegas, God orders the resort's total devastation in seven days. Miles, an eager-to-please angel, who's frustrated with his job as a clerk-typist in the heavenly music department, convinces God that he should be the angel of mercy to save the town. God annoints him special emissary — with the understanding that he must find six righteous people before the end of the seventh day. Disguised as a moral on vacation, Miles takes on his big assignment.

He is thwarted by Johnny Turner, a crooked casino owner who coerces Verna, his sultry young singer, to find out Miles' real purpose. The results are a series of wacky misadventures and only the Lord herself can save her angel from them.

MOVING HEAVEN AND EARTH — Billy Crystal stars as an angel, who is sent to earth to see if he can save the sin-riddled city of Las Vegas from God's wrath, and Pamela Sue Martin co-stars as the all-too-mortal girl he becomes romantically involved with, in "Human Feelings," a World Premiere comedy to be telecast on "NBC Monday Night at the Movies," Oct. 16 (9:30-11 p.m.).

'Movers And Doers'

Attractive, poised and multi-talented, producer Charlotte Schiff Jones is one of those fascinating movers and doers who may never be seen on "People," the new weekly CBS entertainment series airing Mondays, 8:30 to 9 p.m.

Putting together segments for the series in her West Coach office, one day, and back in New York laying soundtrack, the next, Ms. Jones is unremitting, inspiring from admiring peers such comments as "How does Charlotte do it?" (and then) "Only Charlotte can do it."

Stamina, humor and drive are just a few of the ingredients needed for getting the job done, says Ms. Jones, who is one of the most successful women in America. She was named by Business Week in 1976 as one of the "Top Corporate Women" in the United States.

Ms. Jones' credentials are impressive. She served as executive vice president and director of Manhattan Cable Television, Inc. She worked for Teleprompter Corp., where she was National Director of Community Development. She produced commercials, industrial films, Off Broadway plays, and a series of television musical variety shows.

In 1972, Ms. Jones won a best program award from the National Cable Television Association. She was executive producer of the cable television series, "New York, Live," which won a New York Emmy Award in 1974.

Star-Studded Western

Lee Marvin, Oliver Reed, Robert Culp, Elizabeth Ashley, Strother Martin, Sylvia Miles, Kay Lenz and Howard Platt star in a comedy-western, "The Great Scout and Cathouse Thursday," to be rebroadcast on "The CBS Tuesday Night Movies," Oct. 17, 9 to 11 p.m.

It's 1908 and Colorado isn't quite the Old West anymore. Leathery Indian fighter-scout Sam Longwood (Marvin) finds himself something of an anachroism in a world that includes automobiles and street lights. He and his friends, a half-Indian Harvard graduate (Reed) and a grizzled old cowboy (Martin), have too much time on their hands, so, to keep busy, they kidnap the girls of Mike's (Miss Miles) bordello.

This sortie gains them a new cohort, the 17-year-old almost innocent Thursday (Miss Lenz), who decides she prefers their company to her profession.

Not everyone in Colorado finds adjusting to modern times so difficult. Longwood's former partner, Jack Colby (Culp), has become a railroad tycoon, has married Longwood's former girlfriend, Nancy Sue (Miss Ashley), and is managing a fighter (Platt) on the side.

This success infuriates Longwood, who remembers Colby as the man who cheated him out of $60,000. For revenge, Longwood kidnaps sharp-tongued Nancy Sue and demands the money as ransom. Colby says he would rather keep the money, so Longwood and company devise a new scheme calling on all their resources to recoup the cash.

Elizabeth Ashley portrays Lee Marvin's one-time romance, whom he kidnaps, in "The Great Scout and Cathouse Thursday," to be rebroadcast on "The CBS Tuesday Night Movies," Oct. 17 (9-11 p.m.).

Robards in TV movie

Jason Robards has been signed to star in "The Melodeon," a two-hour motion picture for CBS-TV.

'Catch-22' Airs

The only way to get out of flying more combat missions is to prove that you're crazy, but if you're sensible enough to want to stop flying combat missions then you are obviously not crazy, and that's the catch in "Catch-22," Joseph Heller's contemporary classic which is seen this week on "The Tuesday Movie of the Week," Oct. 17 at 11:30 p.m. on ABC-TV.

Alan Arkin, Art Garfunkle, Bob Newhart, Anthony Perkins, Martin Sheen, Orson Welles, Paula Prentiss and Jon Voight are among the performers in the all-star cast in the dark comedy of military frustrations during World War II. The film, directed by Mike Nichols from a screenplay by Buck Henry, is based on Heller's best-selling novel.

Tossarian (Arkin) is a young bomber pilot trapped in the surreal, wonderless land of war where a depressed pilot crashes his own plane to punish himself, the quarter-master trades medical supplies for fresh eggs, the Major's office is open to receive complaints only when he isn't there and, every time Tossarian completes the required number of bombing missions, the number is raised to require one more. In Joseph Heller's vision of war, the inmates are running the asylum.

Another series for Conrad

Robert Conrad, who starred in NBC-TV's "Black Sheep Squadron," has been signed for another series, "Duke of Chicago," also for NBC.

'Mother, Jugs & Speed'

Death and disaster are all in a day's work for ambulance drivers Raquel Welch and Harvey Keitel, and the dangers that surround them make their moments of tenderness even more precious in "Mother, Jugs and Speed," a modern comedy making its television premiere on "The ABC Sunday Night Movie," Sunday, Oct. 15 (9-11 p.m.).

The often madcap efforts by a shoddy ambulance company to remain in business is the basis of "Mother, Jugs and Speed," airing as the "ABC Sunday Night Movie," Oct. 15, at 9 p.m. Bill Cosby, Raquel Welch and Harvey Keitel star as an unlikely but surprisingly likeable trio of paramedics working for a corrupt ambulance service.

Cosby stars as Mother, the company's genial jokester, heavy drinker and ace driver; Ms. Welch as Jugs, who is determined to abandon the switchboard for a chance behind the wheel, and Keitel as Speed, a suspensed cop who joins the company because it's the only job he can get. Other members of the cast are Larry Hagman — another driver whose eyes too often stay off the road and onto female patients; and Bruce Davison, as Mother's pot-smoking partner who wants out of the grim business.

Routine business for the motley team of paramedics includes daily encounters with drug addicts, drunkards, pregnant women and attempted suicides, and also entails coping with cut-throat competition from a rival company in dubious ways like slashing tires and bribing police.

While the environment and episodes are gritty, the film is injected with humor and breakneck action which tempers the grim and volatile situations depicted.

Throughout the film the performers are a delight. Cosby is as comically on-target as ever, and Keitel has delivered another convincing portrayal.

'Escape' Airs

Marc Singer and Robin Gambell star in Jonathan Reynolds' psychological comedy, "Escape," on "Visions," Monday, Oct. 16, at 9 p.m. on PBS.

The comedy-drama centers around the experience of two men tunneling free to the 'real' world from what they consider a demeaning, unworthy institution. The fantasy of their adventure allows them a make-believe attachment — one of dominance and subservience — between otherwise isolated and completely disparate personalities.

The leader (Gambell), an intellectually adroit linguistics professor, treats the younger man (Singer) as his lackey and begins to like life underground, indulging his whims and bossing his "student" unmercifully. During the course of their journey to "freedom," however, their roles are subtly reversed, and it is the young student who is ready to face reality.

Balanchine Performs

George Balanchine, generally regarded as the foremost living choreographer in the world of ballet, is honored on Great Performances' "Dance in America" in an encore of the highly acclaimed "Choreography by Balanchine, Part II" to be seen Wednesday, Oct. 18, 9 to 10:30 p.m., on PBS.

The program consists of three selections from the innovative dance suite "Jewels," including excerpts from "Emeralds," with music by Faure, featuring Karin von Arnoldingen and Sean Lavery; the pas de deux from "Rubies," with music by Stravinsky, danced by Patricia McBride and Robert Weiss; and the pas de deux from "Diamonds," with music by Tchaikovsky and danced by Suzanne Farrell and Peter Martins. The program also includes Balanchine's "Stravinsky Violin Concerto" featuring Kay Mazzo, Peter Martins, Bart Cook and Karin von Arnoldingen.

Renowned New York City Ballet dancer Edward Villella will introduce the performance, with a commentary written by Arlene Croce.

Balanchine has served as the Artistic Director for the New York City Ballet for 29 years. He is, according to Bernard Taper of the New Yorker, "The first to make choreography the star of the show. He has evolved what has been called perhaps the purest kind of ballet, in which all the drama is in the dance itself — in the pattern of movement unfolding in intimate relationship with music."

The son of a composer, Balanchine made his dancing debut in his native Russia at the age of ten, and spent a decade in Europe as an acclaimed choreographer before moving to America in 1933 where he founded the School of American Ballet with Lincoln Kirstein. In 1975, he was proclaimed a member of the Legion of Honor by the French Government and was also inducted as a member of the Entertainment Hall of Fame, the first choreographer to be so honored.

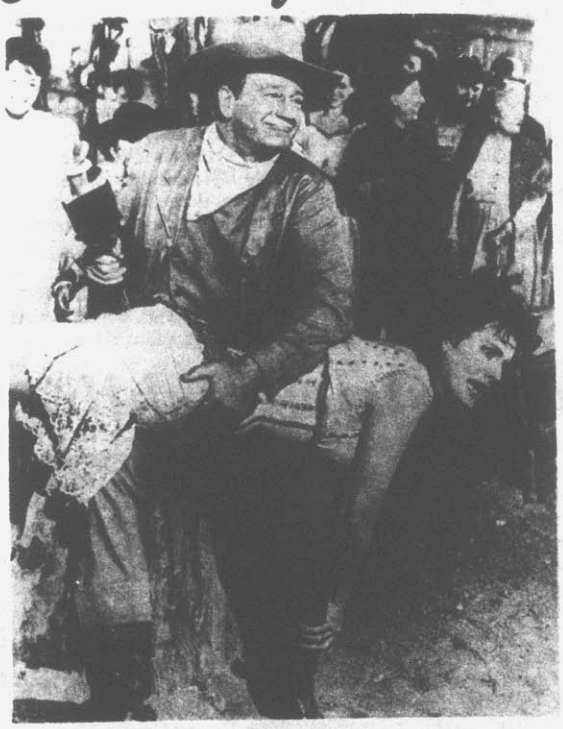

"Choreography by Balanchine, Part II" with members of the New York City Ballet, was first telecast in December, 1977.

Instant fame

Costume designers Jean-Pierre Dorleac has been getting star attention since the premiere of "Battlestar: Galactica." His costumes for the series were so impressive that he has already received offers to design for two Broadway shows.

The series' producer, Glen Larson, has also signed Pierre to design the wardrobe for his multi-million-dollar movie, "Buck Rogers in the 25th Century."

John Wayne Is 'McLintock'

OVER HIS KNEE — George Washington McLintock (John Wayne), cattle baron, banker and leading citizen, takes his estranged wife Katherine (Maureen O'Hara) over his knee in "McLintock," a western comedy-drama to be colorcast on the "CBS Wednesday Night Movie," Oct. 18 (9-11:30 p.m.).

John Wayne and Maureen O'Hara star as an estranged husband and wife in "McLintock," light-hearted, brawling, romantic story which will be broadcast on "The CBS Wednesday Night Movie," Oct. 18 (9-11:30 p.m.).

Yvonne DeCarlo guest stars with Patrick Wayne, Stefanie Powers and Jack Kruschen. Chill Wills co-stars in the film.

George Washington McLintock (Wayne), a rip-snorting cattle baron, has everything he wants except his wife Katherine (Miss O'Hara), from whom he is estranged, and his 17-year-old daughter Becky (Miss Powers), who is away at college in the East. When his wife demands a divorce and custody of their daughter, McLintock resorts to an old-fashioned technique to bring her to her senses.

John Ritter will make his big screen starring debut in "Who Says Nice Guys Finish Last?"

Production on the contemporary comedy will begin in January.

Not What He Seems

Probably because of his role as Raj on "What's Happening?" (Thursdays, 8:30 to 9 p.m. on ABC-TV), Ernest Thomas seems to be just another young and handsome actor who has found success on a TV series.

However, for Ernest, that's far from true.

Sure, he is the product of a Black ghetto who has made good, but there's more to it than that.

Born and raised in a housing project in Gary, Ind., Ernest found security away from drugs, gangs and crime in a neighborhood church.

"It was kind of a sheltered life from the standpoint that as a member of a Pentecostal Church I restricted myself from social things," he explains. "I was more into saving people from sin, and I was very good at getting people into the church and leaving behind what they had been doing. I was also superintendent of the Sunday School.

"I was active in the church from the time I was about 10 or 11," the soft-spoken actor explains. "I went to that church all the way through high school and until I went away to college."

Instilled with an intent desire to better himself and to concentrate on an education, Ernest holds a Bachelor of Science Degree in social psychology. Yet, it was while in college that he began doing stage plays, and after graduation he was accepted by the Academy of Dramatic Arts where he studied for two years.

A California resident only since 1975 when he captured the role as Roger in the popular series, he is strikingly different in appearance off camera since he does not wear glasses.

However, in addition to being a successful actor, Ernest is the author of a yet-untitled novel that has been optioned for publication next year. He is also a partner in a production company and he'll soon be heard on record as he turns his attention to singing.

Pike's Peek

HOLLYWOOD — The ever-present smiles on the set of "THREE'S COMPANY" have been dampened somewhat with the news that AUDRA LINDLEY, better known as Mrs. Roper, and her husband JAMES WHITMORE have separated and appear headed for the divorce courts.

JANE SEYMOUR was apparently offered a staggering salary in an eleventh hour attempt to persuade her to remain with the cast of "BATTLESTAR GALACTICA." Staying true to her vow that she doesn't want to get involved in a weekly series, she said no. That's the reason her character was killed in the second regular segment of the season.

While there are those who persist in reporting that the stars of "CHARLIE'S ANGELS" don't get along and are at each other's throats repeatedly, in truth, there couldn't be a happier set. In fact, all the headlines about their arguments are beginning to bring a lot of yawns from KATE, JACKIE and CHERYL.

The taping of "PHOTOPLAY MAGAZINE'S GOLD MEDAL AWARDS" — which will be broadcast on ABC in late November as a special — was a long and tedious procedure. But, with MAC DAVIS' tribute to ELVIS PRESLEY and JOHN WAYNE introducing LUCILLE BALL, and STEVE MARTIN exchanging one-liners with BURT REYNOLDS, it is a worthy show.

JA'NET DUBOIS of "GOOD TIMES" who has written three original songs and recorded them in demo form, is this close to putting her name on the dotted line of a recording contract. Incidentally, any resemblance between herself and her TV character, Willona, is a stretched imagination.

Not all is well on the set of "GRANDPA GOES TO WASHINGTON." While JACK ALBERTSON, LARRY LINVILLE, SUE ANE LANGDON and the rest of the cast get along charmingly, the lack of continuity among their characters is resulting in considerable anxieties.

The early Neilsen ratings indicate that with few exceptions TV viewers are not anxious to change their nightly habits, which has gotten even ABC in a dither since a couple of their new shows are faltering miserably. NBC and CBS, meanwhile, are plotting major schedule changes already, a couple of which may be announced before you read this!

JACKIE ZEMEN of daytime's "GENERAL HOSPITAL" finally tied the knot with longtime boyfriend MURRAY THE K in a private New York ceremony. Murray is a former Gotham disc jockey who produced the successful "BEATLEMANIA" stage production.

Tapestries Exhibit

"The Flowery Tale," a loving look at representative selections from hundreds of years of tapestries from around the world assembled at New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art four years ago, will be rebroadcast as "Behold Wondrous Things — 1974," Sunday, Oct. 15, 10 to 10:30 a.m. on CBS-TV.

Filmed at the Metropolitan, the traveling "Masterpieces of Tapestry" exhibit dazzled thousands of museum-goers with nearly 100 works — scattered from Cleveland to Leningrad — that were once only the province of the rich and powerful.

"The Flowery Tale" will be introduced by Charles Collingwood, and the program is part of the CBS News religious retrospective honoring the 30th anniversary of "Lamp Unto My Feet" and the 25th anniversary of "Look Up and Live."

'More Than Friends'

"More Than Friends," airing as "The ABC Friday Night Movie," Oct. 20, 9 to 11 p.m, is more than just another film to its stars, Penny Marshall and Rob Reiner. In real life the two are husband and wife, and the movie comedy is loosely based on their own meeting while both were in high school and the rocky romance that followed.

Rob rose to fame as Archie Bunker's maligned son-in-law on "All in the Family." For most of a decade it was the nation's top show — but it was bumped down a notch by Penny's debut in her own blue-collar bonanza, "Laverne and Shirley." "I love it!" Rob gloated at the time, "I'd like my family to be in control of the air-waves as long as possible."

Penny and Rob, now in their early 30's, might have begun sharing their lives 20 years earlier except, she says, "we weren't allowed to cross the street." That street was the wide Grand Concourse in the Bronx where the Marshalls and Reiners lived opposite each other on the same block. Rob's father was then starring on Sid Caesar's TV show, while Penny's father was making industrial films. The only time the two families met was when Penny asked Carl for an autograph when he was grocery shopping in her building.

Both families eventually migrated to California, and Penny and Rob met at a party. After a 18-month courtship, they were married in 1971 in an impromptu ceremony. Rob pledged, "I'll always be your best friend," and Penny vowed, "I'll try not to make you nervous." The wedding dinner was carry-out Chinese.

Rob, Penny and Trace, her daughter by a prior marriage, live in an unpretentious lemon-lime ranch house in North Hollywood. "This place has been a real hangout for our friends," says Rob, who encourages pals like Richard Dreyfuss and Louise Lasser to come by for casual meals. Recently, with incomes growing healthier by the day, the two have been looking for a new house. "But if 'Laverne' gets cancelled," warns Rob, "we'll be moving back here."

Dolly Parton Stars

Dolly Parton, one of the most exciting women performing and writing in the music world today, will star in her first network television special — a 90-minute major musical event — on NBC in the fall of 1979.

"We are tremendously enthused about this project," NBC's Mike Weinblatt said, while making the announcement of the special. "Dolly Parton is one of the brightest stars in show business history. She is one of the few artists who has broadened her appeal to become as immensely important in the popular music field as she is in country music. Her writing and her performing combine simply country values with marvelous sophistication."

Dolly Parton began writing songs and making music even before she could read and write. The day after she graduated from high school, she moved to Nashville to pursue her dream. Within a few months, she had signed her first recording contract. Three years later, she began touring with Porter Wagoner and appearing on his syndicated television show. She also signed with RCA Records.

For years, Dolly Parton was one of the most successful country performers. She was named Female Vocalist of the Year by the Country Music Association in 1975 and 1976. Then, two years ago, she decided to "cross over" — to widen her audience. Last year, her album "Here You Come Again" did the trick, becoming a million-seller. And her latest album, "Heartbreak," placed her even more firmly in the hearts of the broader-than-country audience. This year, the Country Music Association has honored Dolly by nominating her for awards in four categories (Entertainer of the Year, Female Vocalist of the Year, Single of the Year, Album of the Year).

Movie Studies Underworld

A professional gunman, hired by his brother to kill a gangland rival, draws a young girl into his own violent life in "Mongo's Back in Town," starring Telly Savalas, Sally Field, Anne Francis and Joe Don Baker, on "The CBS Late Movie," Friday, Oct. 20 at 12:30 a.m.

In this revealing study of the underworld, written by a real-life prison inmate, professional gunman Mongo Nash (Joe Don Baker) picks up a small-town girl, Vikki (Sally Field), when he comes home to help his ruthless brother, Mike.

Mongo learns that a veteran policeman (Telly Savalas) has his brother under surveillance in a counterfeit money case.

'Rollermania' Is Spreading

When The Monkees burst into the limelight of super stardom a decade ago, they did so as a direct result of their television show.

Such is not the case for the Bay City Rollers, who are enjoying a resurgance in popularity as the stars-hosts of NBC's "Krofft Super Star Show" (telecast Saturday mornings) — as if they need a resurgance.

As the parents of so many preteens and teen-agers know, the Rollers have enjoyed the gold ring of success for the past five years. However, in a fashion similar to The Beatles, success came to the Rollers more than five years after their inception.

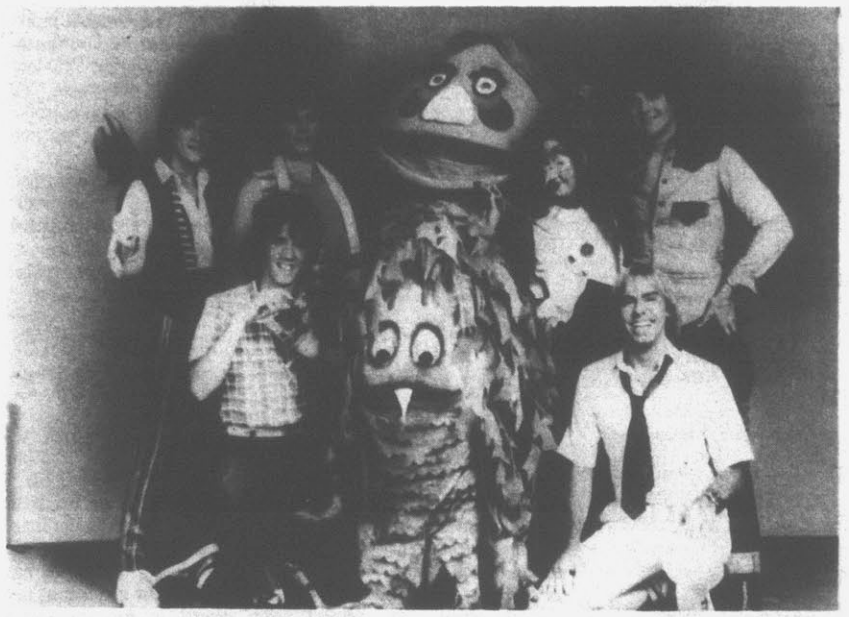

"The show actually gives us the chance to show what else we can do," explains Roller Derek, who vividly remembers going to ballrooms in England and Scotland to watch in envy as Alan, his brother Eric and Les received plaudits from fans back in 1967.

"We called ourselves the Saxtons," said Alan, the oldest Roller, "but we wanted a more American name, so we came up with Rollers. Then we wanted to tag something else on this, and we came up with Bay City."

Adds Derek: "Woody and I were involved in our own groups in '67 and '68, and even then the girls were all big fans of Alan's band. We used to go watch them perform, and it was like, 'Aw, you bunch of bruisers!' It was really something. All the girls would be in front, and the guys and boyfriends would be in the back yelling abuses at the band."

It was 1969 that Derek and Woody joined the Saxtons, and the name was changed to Rollers. During the ensuing five years, the group's popularity continued to mount in their native home. Finally, the American record buyers discovered them, and it's been non-stop ever since. Today their popularity knows no language barriers, and some of their biggest success has come in Japan.

This popularity has been enhanced by Alan's recent return. The combination of his return and the TV show — which the group believes is serving as a means of introducing their talent to their fans' parents — promises to bring a brand new wave of Rollermania. Does that sound familiar, parents?

JIMMY McNICHOL, who just completed filming of his TV movie of the week, "CHAMPIONS," has been signed by CBS to star in a pilot for his own series. It's called "CRUISIN'," and Jim portrays a lifeguard.

KRISTY McNICHOL, meanwhile, has a new single just recorded by RCA Records. It's called "PAGE BY PAGE," and on the flip side is her brother's rendition of "GIRL, YOU REALLY GOT ME GOIN'." Kristy's first recording effort, that of "HE'S SO FINE," has resulted in sales of just over a half million.

DEBBY BOONE turned a lot of heads when she strolled into the commissary at 20th Century-Fox with a frizzy shag that covered her eyes, skin-tight jeans, rumpled over-blouse and a long scarf a la Mick Jagger. About her new look, Debby said, "I'm bored with the beauty queen routine."

SHAUN CASSIDY is assuring his fans, friends and family that his togetherness with model ANN PENNINGTON is not a whirlwind romance that's going to take them to the altar anytime soon. Nevertheless, they remain all but inseparable.

Now it's reported that LES McKEOWN was the victim of a cream pie in the face just before he left the BAY CITY ROLLERS for a return visit to England while the rest of the group departed for a tour of Japan. It's not been clarified who tossed the pie.

Burglars recently forced their way into LINDA RONSTADT'S Malibu Beach home, and besides taking an untold number of items, they slashed furniture, paintings and even walls!

Tom Seaver Signs With NBC

Three-time Cy Young Award winner Tom Seaver has signed a multi-year contract as a commentator for NBC Sports. His first assignment will be to provide commentary during the network's exclusive coverage of the 1978 World Series.

Seaver, who toiled 10 seasons with the New York Mets (1967-1977) before being traded to Cincinnati, started his broadcasting career in the fall of 1975 working as the weekend sportscaster on WCBS-TV in New York. He later worked on two golf tournaments for CBS before getting his first major exposure as a commentator during coverage of the 1976 League Championship Series for ABC. In 1977 he worked in the broadcast booth during ABC's coverage of the World Series and was acclaimed for his incisive and forthright commentary. In November, 1977, he became host of "Greatest Sports Legend," a 30-minute syndicated program.

As a commentator for the 1978 World Series, Seaver joins an outstanding broadcast team that includes Curt Gowdy, who will act as host of the coverage, and game commentators Joe Garagiola and Tony Kubek. All members of the broadcast crew are not without extensive World Series experience. Gowdy, the dean of network sportscasters, has covered 12 previous Fall Classics for the network.

Doubleheader To Be Televised

ABC-TV will televise a NCAA doubleheader starting at 12:30 p.m., Saturday, Oct. 21, with the second game following at 4 p.m. The teams participating in the games will not be announced by the Network until the preceeding Monday.

ABC Sports' Don Bernstein has indicated that this policy of selecting the games on the Monday preceeding the airing stems from the Network's desire to provide football fans with the best possible contest available. It affords the selection committee the opportunity to see if the teams they are interested in continue their winning ways before making a commitment.

Texas and Arkansas, for example, will meet on Oct. 21 in what appears to be another classic battle between these two old rivals. Last year this match-up determined the Southwest Conference title as Texas handed Arkansas its only defeat 13-9.

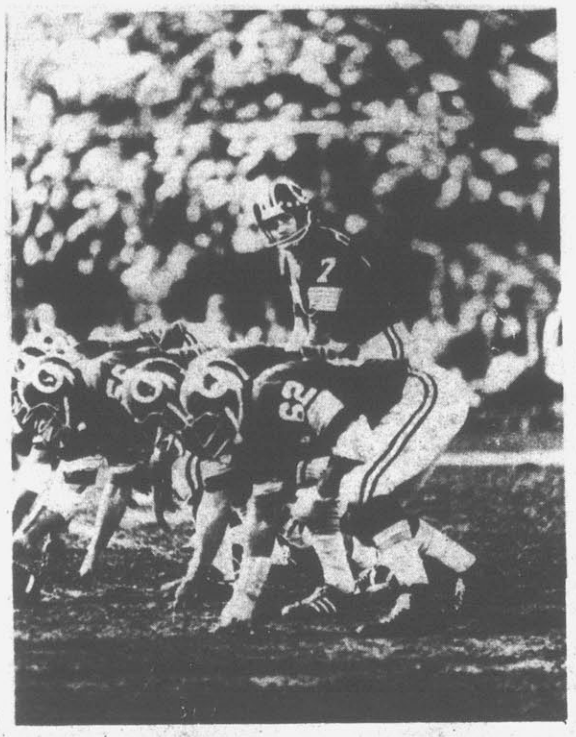

The Texas-Arkansas game this season also appears to be shaping up into another good football game. In fact, the NCAA and ABC selection committee has televised this contest 11 of the past 13 years, which says something for the national attention the game has attracted in the past.

Arkansas will be led by their gifted option quarterback, Ron Calcagni, who will pilot their explosive offense. Last season Calcagni passed 1,147 yards and rushed for more than 546.

The Arkansas running attack will also be formidable with senior Ben Cowins, who rambled for 1,162 yards last year and 1,192 the year before. Cowins will be joined by Mike Forrest and Roland Sales, the hero of Arkansas' Orange Bowl victory over Oklahoma this past January.

The Texas Longhorns also sport a high-powered offense and are led by senior quarterback Randy McEachen, who passed 906 yards and eight TDs last year.

On the ground, running back Johnny "Ham" Jones returns. He was able to gain 489 yards last season in the shadow of All American and Heisman Trophy winner Earl Campbell. Trying to fill Campbell's shoes is junior Jimmy Johnson, who is helped by A.J. Jones.

Joe Theismann keeps leading the Washington Redskins to victory, and the "Over the Hill" gang are hoping for another winning game when they battle the Philadelphia Eagles Sunday, at 1 p.m. on CBS-TV.

Brodie's Solution

Each week of the National Football League season seems to bring about new controversies which arise over officiating calls that have directly affected, and sometimes reversed, the outcome of a game.

Officials are being pressured and publicly maligned as never before. The NFL heirarchy recognizes the limitations of the current system and is making studies to better the situation. But what can be done now, when seemingly more and more questionable calls are determining winners and losers?

NBC Sports commentator John Brodie voiced his opinion on the subject on a recent edition of "NFL '78," which ironically preceded coverage of yet another game — Pittsburgh vs. Cleveland — that had its apparent outcome reversed because of a disputed call by an official.

"There is one solution that could be employed right now. The fan's big concern is that it's the crucial call at the crucial time in a critical game that makes the wrong winner in a football game.

"They (the NFL) have a man who's an observer (at each game). He's an official — Jack Reader, Art McNally and several others — who sits and observes the officials while they're calling the game. This man may as well be given an official title, coordinator, you name it. He can sit with a monitor, take a look at the calls that have been made and then give each team the opportunity to make a claim using one of their timeouts so as not to delay the game.

"He would then confer with the umpire and then the two of them would decide whether or not there were illegalities in the call and, if there were, allow the call to be changed. Had this procedure been in effort there would not have been several winners who went down in the books as losers.

"It's my simple opinion that you can put a stop-gap to an uncontrollable situation right now and then sit down next year and go over what can be done to get the game back to where the official is in control."

Comeback

A couple of seasons ago, Riley Odoms was on top of the world. At this time, many experts regarded the 6-4, 238-pound tight end for the Denver Broncos as the best at his position. Then came a series of nagging injuries that slowed the big Bronco to a halt.

But that was the past two seasons. This year, Odoms is alive and well, and back regularly at his familiar position with the defending AFC champions.

Odoms and the rest of the Denver Broncos face a stiff challenge when they meet the rugged Chicago Bears on "ABC's Monday Night Football" Oct 16., at 9 p.m.

Bible Stories To Air

Some of the greatest stories ever told — Noah and the Ark, Moses and the Exodus of the Israelites, David and Goliath will be presented on NBC-TV in an epic six-and-one-half-hour production of "Stories From the Bible," to be broadcast in three parts on consecutive nights during National Bible Week, Nov. 19-25. Lew Ayres, John Carradine and Robert Culp head the distinguished cast.

"We believe this is the first time National Bible Week has been recognized on network television in this scope," said NBC's Deanne Barkley. "We will present the stirring, dramatic Bible stories that are timeless in their appeal and transcent any individual religious conviction."

Ayres will portray Noah and will be joined in separate stories by Carradine as the older King David, Culp as Joshua, Roger Kern as the young David, John Beck as Samson, Ann Turkel as Delilah, Ted Cassidy as Goliath, Hugh O'Brian as Abner, Vic Morrow as the Pharoah, John Dehner as Debuknar, Jeff Corey as King Saul, and Tom Hallick as Solomon. The part of Moses, the venerated Hebrew lawgiver, will be cast later.

Each installment will dramatize three or four familiar Biblical tales.

Many sets are still under construction for the production which began filming in August. A wooden ark is being readied, along with plans for a sprawling battle sequence, complete with hundreds of chariots and thousands of "soldiers." Also under construction is a set for the walls of Jericho.

Ayres' motion picture career spans five decades and includes starring roles in "All Quiet on the Western Front" and several "Dr. Kildare" films in the 1930s. Carradine, a familiar movie villain, has appeared in hundreds of films, including "The Egyptian."

Hallick has co-starred on the popular daytime series, "The Young and the Restless."

Culp, co-star of the "I Spy" television series, was featured in the motion picture "Bob and Carol and Ted and Alice." Beck recently co-starred in "The Other Side of Midnight" and "Rollerball." Kern co-starred in the series "The Young Pioneers." O'Brian starred in the title role of the hit series "Wyatt Earp." Corey, whose stage, film and TV career spans more than four decades, is a noted drama teacher.

Fun Is In Store

Next Saturday, Oct. 21, Lawrence Welk's fans will enjoy the "time of their lives" when the genial maestro's program features happy songs and romantic ballads whose lyrics sing about Time's exciting minutes, hours and years!

Time-titled tunes featured include "Minute Waltz," by Bob Ralston, "Anytime" sung by Ava Barber, "Until It's Time for You to Go," dueted by Ralna and Guy Hovis, "My Time is Your Time," tapped out by Arthur Duncan, and "Through the Years," Joe Feeney's tenor solo.

"Time on My Hands" is clarineted by Henry Cuesta and the band, and Anacani warbles the Spanish lyrics of "Time Was," with Bobby Burgess and Cissy King waltzing to "Three O'Clock in the Morning."

Johnny Zell's trumpet zings out to Harry James' "It's Been a Long, Long Time," Lawrence and the band romp through "One O'Clock Jump," and the Aldridge Sisters and the Otwell twin brothers offer "Cryin' Time." "Seems Like Old Times" is Jim Roberts' solo, aided by his dog, Elmer ("Scene-Stealer") Fudd, and Mary Lou Metzger teams with Jack Imel to sing-dance "Step in Time."

Serving You Comes First in the Kroger Sav-on Garden

That's what you'll find at Kroger Sav-on. Most of our fresh fruits and vegetables are in bulk displays as opposed to pre-packaged, as many stores have. You can choose one green pepper or 5, one lemon or a dozen, and YOU pick and choose the one you want. Then take your choice to the "Gardener" for weighing and pricing. Your Kroger Sav-on "Gardeners" will be pleased to answer your questions about any of the hundreds of fresh fruits and vegetables we have here for you.

THE COURAGEOUS BOY WHO BATTLES ALLERGIES WITH HIS 'MAGIC' HELMET

IS JACLYN SMITH A REAL-LIFE ANGEL?

SPORTS SPECIAL: SKATING, FOOTBALL AND THE WORLD SERIES

ASK THEM YOURSELF

Send the question, on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

He watches over our wildlife.

FOR LYNN A. GREENWALT, Director, U.S. Dept. of the Interior Fish and Wildlife Service

Is there any part of our country that accommodates larger numbers of migratory birds than other sections of the U.S., and what effect do they have on the locals in those parts? —Mrs. Clare Lenore Strand, Osnabrock, N.Dak.

● The two to three million ducks and geese that converge upon the Tule Lake National Wildlife Refuge on the California-Oregon state line each fall during their southward migration provide an incredible spectacle of nature unsurpassed anywhere in this country (and possibly in the world). Local businesses certainly feel the impact of the thousands of people who come each fall to witness this huge concentration of waterfowl, and farmers depend on the refuge to delay the migration during the critical weeks needed to harvest their crops.

FOR THE "ASK" EDITOR

I just saw Hooper and would like you to straighten something out for me. It seems that Sally Field, the star of the movie, has a terrible reputation in Hollywood for being stuck-up and goes around thinking she's better than everyone else. — T.M., Council Bluffs, Iowa

● We got on to Sally, whose reaction was one of surprise and then amusement. "I'm not in the least bit stuck-up," she declared. "I'm just very shy. I prefer to be on the edge of attention, not in the center of it." She obviously is modest as well as shy because she added, "I don't know that many people who'd invite me to their parties — but if I am invited, I'd just as soon not go." Sally claims she leads something of a schizo life: "When I'm working, I'm all actress. The rest of the time I prefer isolation. I'm a big homebody and very domestic, and I really enjoy taking care of my kids."

Just a very shy girl.

FOR MONTY HALL, host of Let's Make a Deal

What method do you use to pick a contestant from the trading floor? It must be tough with all of them jumping around and shouting at you. —Elvira Spencer, Rolling Fork, Miss.

● I don't have any set routine or trick, but I have tried to avoid selecting anyone wearing a costume that could injure me during their acrobatics upon winning. I've been hurt many times by overenthusiastic contestants who have accidently knocked me down.

FOR PAT COLLINS, host of Good Morning America

What plans do you have to keep your show different from all the other talk shows? —D.O., Gary, Ind.

● Our show has a relaxed and informal style, and that's one reason I was eager to join it. Morning TV has to be easy to take. After all, it's 7:00 a.m., and for many people we are the first contact with the outside world. No one at that hour wants to be screamed at or preached to. Ideally, every story and every interview should help the person at home get through the long day.

FOR REBECCA BLAKE, fashion photographer

You coached Faye Dunaway, who plays a photographer in the film, Eyes of Laura Mars. Since Faye has a reputation for being a "know-all," how much trouble did you have with her? —G.T., Lake Charles, La.

● If Faye is a "know-all," it's news to me because I did not see any signs of it. As a matter of fact, she was anxious to learn — and did very quickly. She came and watched me work at my studio a couple of months before the actual filming began, and I worked with her on the set.

FOR ROBERT STIGWOOD, producer of Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band

Are you disappointed with the bad reviews of your movie? —P. Johnson, Flint, Mich.

● No, because it has been doing well at the box office and three million copies of the sound-track album sold before the movie opened. As to the reviews, all I can say is that good critics liked it! If there is any blot on my record, however, I'm sure it'll be more than erased by my next movie, Moment to Moment, with John Travolta and Lily Tomlin.

FOR JOSEPH LAITIN, Assistant Secretary of the U.S. Treasury, Public Affairs

Since gold is presently bought and sold by the ounce (troy), when the U.S. changes to the metric system, will the trading unit for gold be redesignated? —Mary Keas, Alexandria, Va.

● The U.S. Government has no plans to change the trading unit for gold from the fine troy ounce. The current standard of measuring gold is accepted generally, even in countries already on the metric system.

FOR SYLVIA WALLACE, wife of novelist Irving Wallace

I know you are a writer, too, but were there ever times when you resented the fact that your husband was better known than you? —H.M., Joplin, Mo.

● Lots of them. The most ego-shattering part of being married to a "big name" is the way other people view the author's mate. Or rather don't view the mate. It's as though you're invisible. I've come to realize that, of course, Irving is still our family's main "attraction," and I know how to handle it now.

PRO AND CON

Should All Americans Be Guaranteed Comprehensive Medical Care?

PRO Senator Ted Kennedy, (D.), Mass., member, Human Resources Subcommittee on Health

Every major industrialized nation in the world, except the United States, has decided that adequate health care should be a right for all its citizens. But today, 25 million Americans have no health insurance and millions more find premiums climbing and coverage declining. National health insurance would guarantee decent health care for all Americans, not just the wealthy. In addition, a comprehensive health plan will provide the means to curb skyrocketing inflation in the health-care industry. It would provide a double blessing by freeing Americans from the fear of ruin in the event of disease and by contributing to the fight against inflation.

CON Rep. Philip M. Crane (R.) Ill., member, House Ways and Means Subcommittee on Health

Wide World

National health insurance will not better serve our medical needs. Rising costs do not justify it. Costs for other services are rising faster. A 1967 dollars-worth of health care costs $1.85 today. Comparable current price levels in other areas are: auto repairs, $1.90; appliance repairs, $2.00; plumbing, $2.10; postal, $2.22. The increased access to primary care, which this would encourage, creates the likelihood of abuse at the expense of those who are truly sick. This could mean the difference between life and death. The same Government responsible for Amtrak and the postal service cannot be entrusted with our health.

THE BOY IN THE PLASTIC HELMET

After two years the doctors said the hyperallergic child should be institutionalized, but his parents refused to give up.

By Larry Clinton Jr.

Five-year-old Jared Reisman is getting dressed to play outdoors. First he slips into his T-shirt, jeans and sneakers. Then, with the help of his mother Marlene, he fastens on a shiny plastic helmet that looks as if it's part of a Star Wars costume.

Dashing out the front door, young Jared isn't aware that he's making medical history. But as Marlene Reisman watches him romping in the yard of their Carmichael, Calif., home, she says another silent thank-you for the technological breakthroughs that have helped her unique son.

Jared's helmet is no science-fiction toy. It's a vital life-support system that filters the air he breathes and permits him to function in the outside world. Jared suffers from severe allergies to airborne particles, and inhaling unfiltered air makes him so congested that crippling headaches, fever, even delirium can result. "If Jared took that helmet off for five minutes out-of-doors," says his father Barry, "he'd wind up sick for weeks."

For the first 18 months of his life, Jared was a healthy, alert child. "He started walking at just nine months," Marlene recalls, "and he was already riding a tricycle at 18 months." Then, on a trip to Disneyland, the boy developed severe flulike symptoms that kept getting worse instead of better. This was the start of a two-year torment that Marlene remembers as a "bottomless pit."

At first, local physicians had trouble diagnosing Jared's symptoms, especially since the family history had been unusually allergy-free. The typical treatments for allergies, decongestant medicines and desensitizing injections to build natural immunities, failed because Jared was unable to tolerate medication.

"Even a quarter-teaspoon of antihistamine could put him into a deep sleep for 36 hours," Barry remembers. "And the side effects — restlessness, loss of coordination and appetite, inability to concentrate — would persist for weeks."

At one point, an exasperated doctor told the Reismans the only way Jared could escape the allergies on earth would be to go to the moon. This callous remark actually held the key that would later help alleviate Jared's problems.

Continued tests and treatments failed to produce positive results, and the boy's physical and mental condition steadily deteriorated. The diagnosis changed from allergic reaction to mental retardation. The Reismans were told that nothing further could be done for their son except to institutionalize him. "Eventually they told us not to come back anymore," Marlene recalls. "They even refused to refer us to other specialists."

As Jared's condition worsened, Barry — who is a chemical engineer for the California Air Resources Board — and Marlene — who had done graduate work in physiology and had kept up with advances in immunology, anesthesiology and pharmacology — decided to attempt a third method of allergy treatment: avoidance of the allergens. "I couldn't have done the physiological evaluations of Jared's condition that Marlene did," Barry notes. "But once she uncovered the problems, I was in a better position to do the legwork in tracking down solutions." On the advice of a doctor at the University of Oregon Medical Center, they installed two high-efficiency glass-fiber filters in the forced-air heating system of their comfortable ranch-style house. The effect was immediate.

"That night Jared had his most peaceful sleep in years," Marlene recalls. "He slept for 15 hours." As his health improved, so did Jared's curiosity and learning ability. Marlene began tutoring him in schoolwork, and Jared responded eagerly. "He was impatient to do everything he couldn't before," says Marlene.

Of course, the newly rejuvenated four-year-old was still a prisoner of his home, with its sealed windows and purified air. The success of the filters convinced the Reismans that the solution to their son's problems lay in biomedical engineering. What was needed, they reasoned, was a portable air-purification mechanism.

One of Barry's friends referred him to industrial hygienist Bruce Held at the University of California's Lawrence Livermore Laboratory. Held, who had been working on breathing devices for fire fighters, volunteered to construct a special headpiece small enough to fit Jared comfortably. What he came up with was a soft hat with visor and drawstrings at the neck, which he cut down and suspended inside a small climber's helmet. A battery-powered air purifier and plastic hose were attached.

This purifier, with its two filters and nickel-cadmium batteries, weighs five pounds and fits into a child-sized knapsack. It is a positive pressure system, pumping filtered air into Jared's mask.

When Jared received the device (which he calls "my mask") a little over a year ago, it literally opened up new worlds to him. Now, says Marlene, her inquisitive young son "has more energy than outlets." He enjoys studying science, math and reading and is particularly interested in the newfound out-of-doors. After years of constant attention, Jared likes to be alone occasionally and takes pride in being allowed to play in the front yard. Other children are fascinated by his headgear and frequently ask how they can get a similar "space helmet" of their own.

Dr. Charles May of the Department of Pediatrics in Denver's prestigious National Jewish Hospital and Research Center has agreed to take on Jared's case personally to determine the true cause of his problems which, he suspects, may be aggravated by a metabolic disorder affecting the production of enzymes that normally combat environmental irritants. It is obvious, however, that Jared's present protective equipment is insufficient for trips to and from Denver.

To solve this problem, Barry contacted Dr. Ralph D. Feigin of the Baylor College of Medicine in Houston, personal physician for David, the "bubble boy." Dr. Feigin has arranged for the National Aeronautics and Space Agency to construct a movable isolation chamber, or "bubble," and a protective suit for Jared, so that he'll be able to fly from California to Colorado.

Marlene notes that the chamber and suit will also allow Jared to start school, "since they will protect his skin from allergens and keep out any germs the other children might be carrying."

Five-year-old Jared himself is so busy that he rarely looks back, only occasionally recalling the time "when I hurt" and sometimes worrying about other people getting tired or ill "without their masks."

"One of our happiest moments," says Marlene, "came during a visit to a neighborhood park after a cleansing rain earlier this year. Jared hugged the trees," she smiles, "and then he said, 'I love you world.'" FW

Outdoors, Jared must live within an allergy-free bubble. At home, there's freedom in an air-conditioned house with sealed windows and purified air.

THE VERY PROPER LIFE AND GOOD TIMES OF JACLYN SMITH

Nate Cutler / Globe Photos

Boyfriend Dennis Cole and Jaclyn: there are rumors of marriage.

By Peer J. Oppenheimer

How can a girl be beautiful and nice and moral and famous and talented and on her way to being wealthy and still be real?

Naturally and easily, if you're Jaclyn Smith, who plays the part of Kelly Garrett in ABC-TV's Charlie's Angels.

Her beauty is heart-deep. Her niceness is not turned on and off but glows steadily. Her morals, learned early from her parents, are principles that guide all her actions. Her fame is secure. Her talent sparkles in increasingly difficult roles (in a CBS movie-of-the-week, Escape from Bogen County, she played the part of a plain, disheveled, very unglamorous woman; in an upcoming two-and-a-half hour movie, The Users, based on Joyce Haber's novel of the same name, she appears as a prostitute who eventually becomes a prominent figure in the business of making Hollywood films). Her bank account is building rapidly: she makes about $500,000 a year from commercials and $15,000 for each episode of Charlie's Angels (with two more to go on her five-year contract after this year, it seems very likely that she'll receive hefty pay escalations).

Too good to be true? No, Jaclyn Smith is the exception who breaks all the Hollywood rules by not breaking the rules of ethical behavior. She is a real person, not a reel character, and the secret ingredient that makes her a flesh-and-blood human being instead of Ms. Goody-Two-Shoes is determination. She is determined to be true to herself, to say no when she wants to say no and yes when she wants to say yes, and I don't know when she's not sure.

From the beginning of her career, Jackie has refused to use dirty words, drink or smoke, have a live-in relationship with her steady boyfriend, Dennis Cole, or pose in the nude. She turned down a small fortune when magazine editors wanted to photograph her for their centerfolds. "I couldn't believe they'd pay me a million to take off my clothes," Jaclyn says, And she blushes a bit as she recalls the offer.

Determination — this is the trait that manifested itself when she was still a very little girl. She could very well have remained a happy tomboy, riding horses on her parents' farm in Luling, Texas, if it hadn't been for the pretty pink tutu worn by her girlfriend next door. "She had such fun wearing it," Jaclyn recalls, "that I begged for ballet lessons." Her mother tried to make piano intriguing, but Jaclyn would have none of it. "I didn't like piano but I loved ballet from the beginning. I still do, and I dance every day. I feel it is a pure art form and the best way to express the inner being."

She studied ballet with complete dedication, even forcing herself to overcome her almost overpowering homesickness to go to New York for lessons. But she was as honest as she was determined, so reluctantly she gave up her dream of becoming a prima ballerina. "I realized before too long that I'd gotten there a little late. Most of the George Balanchine dancers in training were younger than I. I decided my talents lay in teaching. Someday that's still what I'd like to do — special ballet for underprivileged and handicapped children."

Throughout that period in New York, her parents backed her with money, love and understanding. They saw to it that she never felt under such pressure that she'd be tempted to compromise her own high standards in order to get ahead. "I feel lucky to have been brought up with a sense of conscience," Jaclyn says. "You have to have some boundaries or things get too free.

"In the early days of my career I was offered a job as a dancer — not just a show girl — at Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas, and the money would have meant quite a bit to me at the time. I couldn't make up my mind what to do. All my parents said was, 'Well, it is Las Vegas.' So I decided not to. And to show you how things work out, that's when I got my first commercial, which was the beginning of making my own living. If I'd gone to Vegas, I might still be in the desert!

"My upbringing gave me a sense of morality, something to hold onto. I think religion is morality. A way of living. I admire my parents and their simple lifestyle. I want that for me. Whenever I am off the TV series, I do everything myself and get back to basic living. It's not only good for me, it's necessary. Believe me, when I look around, my folks seem to be the happiest people I know."

Jaclyn had another dream: she wanted to be as happily married as her parents and to raise a family. She fell in love with actor Roger Davis (he's appeared in the TV series, Alias Smith and Jones, and was featured in the movie Nashville Girls) when she was in New York. They had a big storybook wedding, with her grandfather — a Texas circuit-riding Methodist preacher — officiating.

The marriage lasted five years, deteriorating during the last two. "It wasn't my career that caused a problem because I didn't have one then," Jaclyn recalls. "I gave up what I had been doing to concentrate on Roger and his career. All I've ever wanted was a little house, a white picket fence and a baby. I devoted myself to my marriage because that's the way I do with friendships, work, everything. I wish I were a little more casual. When you take things so seriously, you expect too much from others in return, and you get disappointed. It always causes more worry."

Jaclyn regrets they had no children. "Roger has worked out a lot of his problems, and I think he would have made a good father. I know I would have been a good mother. We are close friends now, so the child would have had a lot of love — and now I'd have a child that I want.

"I want someone who respects me for what I believe in, and I believe in fidelity, children, home. Of course, I also want a man with a sense of humor, who's fun."

Jaclyn's description of her ideal man seems to fit Dennis Cole perfectly. He's considered part of the family by her folks in Texas (he has a teenage son of his own who gets along very well with Jaclyn), he is handsome, he has an infectious sense of humor. Most important of all, as a former musician turned actor, he understands Jaclyn's present need to commit herself totally to her career, her desire to grow and develop as an actress.

In the pursuit of her career Jaclyn is equally determined not to bend her principles to accommodate her ambition. No matter how much it might serve her own ends, she cannot tell a lie — to herself or to others. She says, "My mother even hated the word. She'd always say 'story.' I grew up thinking 'lie' was a bad word. I still do. I always will."

Then she smiles. No Hollywood tinsel but a warm Texas sunburst. And one sees how a girl can be real-beautiful-nice-moral-famous-talented — and on her way to being wealthy. FW

A PARENTS' PRIMER FOR HELPING SCHOOLS TEACH CHILDREN

Want a better school system? Then get involved. Here's how.

By Carl Marburger

With school boards, school principals, school superintendents and schoolteachers all playing dominant roles in the education of our youngsters, the question becomes: why should parents get involved?

There are five good reasons:

- No one person or group should control the decisions that affect the lives of youngsters in schools.
- No one person or group has a monopoly on either wisdom or knowledge.
- While professionals bring significant skills to the educational process, parents and citizens possess an equally important asset — their concern and aspirations for children.
- Shared decision-making is a crucial ingredient of the democratic process.
- There is increasing evidence that participation by parents makes a positive difference in the achievement and attitudes of children.

Here are the A-B-C's of how you can have a vital say in your youngsters' education.

A. First of all, you can become better informed. There are five ways in which you can get important information:

- Ask school officials for a copy in writing of any educational policy or budget information, etc., you may need.
- Ask students about what really happens in their schools.
- Find out which persons on the school staff (teachers, custodians, the librarian, counselors, classroom aides) are concerned about quality education. Learn from them what actually occurs daily in classrooms. Never identify the persons who give you vital information unless you have received their permission. A concerned teacher can raise questions and push for change "through channels," but in the end he or she is a school employee and subject to dismissal.
- Find out what is happening in other districts by visiting different schools.
- Be persistent. Keep asking. In one district it took parents 18 months to arrange for the reading scores for each school to be published in a comprehensible form. In another, within three months parents obtained an agreement with the board of education to obtain agendas in advance of board meetings.

B. Once you are well informed, the next thing you can do is organize. Most administrators, board of education members and teachers are convinced that they need help from parents and citizens in assessing school needs and supporting school programs and budgets. But many of them are fearful of what they call a "pooling of ignorance," with the potential of damaging children. In theory, they support parent involvement, in practice, they often resist it.

It is important to reach out to other informed and concerned parents. You need to organize other parents and citizens who wish to help and who want a voice. As a group there are many things you can accomplish, but there are three steps that should be taken if you are to be effective:

- Identify the problems and select one that can be solved in a short time.
- Decide what you want to change and when you want to change it.
- Plan how you are going to make the changes — who will be responsible for what tasks.

C. The third thing you can do — after your organized group is functioning well — is to learn to work with the school staff. Many professionals are deeply concerned about the children with whom they spend five or more hours a day. It is essential to discover who they are and to build good working relationships with them.

If a school staff resists your efforts to become involved, try moving up the line of authority — from the school to the superintendent to the board of education. If this gets no results, then it may be necessary to:

- Appeal to political leaders or state officials who may have authority or influence over the school board.
- Take legal action, as a last resort, by bringing suit on a violation of rights or to challenge a policy or practice.

One last word: the formal experience of schooling is only one part of your youngsters' education. Work for better schools, but remember that you are your children's primary educator.

Circulation-quality silver gaming coins for private play at the casinos of issue. Individual Proofs reserved by the casinos for presentation to important persons.

Complete Proof Sets available exclusively from The Franklin Mint.

Ordering deadline for Proof Sets is October 31, 1978.

The Casino at Baden-Baden . . . the San Remo in Italy . . . Crockford's Club in London . . . Castle Harbour in Antigua . . . the Casino de Paradise in Nairobi . . . Caesars Palace in Las Vegas . . . the Casino aboard the luxury liner QE II . . .

These are the great casinos of the world. Glittering palaces of fortune where millions are made—and lost—overnight. Exotic places of intrigue and romance where aristocrats and adventurers, moguls and movie stars, princes and potentates come to try their luck. Here, glamorous women bedecked in diamonds mingle with oil sheiks and professional gamblers—and hushed conversation in many languages provides a steady undercurrent to the clicking of dice and the shuffling of playing cards.

Precious metal gaming coins minted for private play

The most universally-recognized symbols of the world's great casinos are the chips which they issue regularly for play at their tables. Not as well-known, however, are the precious metal gaming coins that casinos often use for private play. Such gaming coins are distinctive—because they bear unique designs that capture the special character and the ambience of the casinos they represent.

The Franklin Mint, which is the world's largest private mint, is now striking a number of privately-issued silver gaming coins for the world's great casinos. These silver coins are struck in circulation quality for use by the casinos. In addition, an extremely limited number of Proofs are minted—for presentation by the casino to distinguished patrons.

These individual Proofs are not circulated, and only a very limited number are ever minted for any one casino. Therefore, they are extremely difficult to come by. But now, The Franklin Mint—with the express permission of the individual casinos—is assembling a collection of Proofs of these sterling silver gaming coins. And the mint is able to offer complete Proof Sets to collectors. These Proof Sets—comprising 25 silver gaming coins from as many leading casinos—are available on a limited basis only and strictly by subscription from The Franklin Mint.

Each silver gaming coin has an established face value, and is redeemable at the casino of issue. While the face value differs for each gaming coin, the average face value is equivalent to $25 U.S. at current exchange rates.

An exotic and varied collection

Each gaming coin bears an original design that symbolizes the casino issuing it. For example, the Colon International Casino gaming coin depicts an ancient Spanish galleon. The gaming coin of the Casino de Paradise in Nairobi features a majestic lion's head. The Spielbanken Austria gaming coin portrays the beautiful flying goddess of fortune . . .

Not only are the designs of these gaming coins different—but the shapes and sizes vary throughout the collection as well. Furthermore, the edge of each gaming coin will bear a unique reeding pattern, which will distinguish that casino's gaming coin for security purposes.

Rare and intrinsically significant

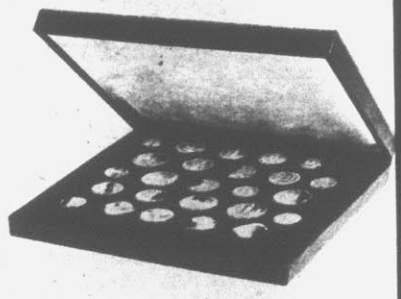

Although these sterling silver Proofs will be redeemable—at face value—at the casinos themselves, it is unlikely that anyone would ever want to redeem them. For they are likely to be far more desirable as collector's treasures—possessing as they do both uniqueness and rarity.

The issue price for each solid sterling silver Proof is just $35—a rather modest premium for a limited edition Proof strike, over the average face value of $25. And a custom designed presentation case will be provided at no added charge.

These silver Proof gaming coins will be issued at the rate of one each month, and each will be accompanied by a specially-written commentary describing the casino it represents. And a Certificate of Authenticity, attesting to the official status of each gaming coin and its limited edition Proof status, will also be included.

Subscriptions for Proof Sets available for a limited period of time

All subscription applications for The Official Gaming Coins of the World's Great Casinos must be entered no later than October 31, 1978—the world-wide deadline for this collection. After that date, these official gaming coins will never be offered again anywhere in the world. To subscribe, mail the application below directly to The Franklin Mint, Franklin Center, Pennsylvania, by October 31st.

A special Proof Set presentation case will be provided for storage and display of the complete collection of twenty-five sterling silver gaming coins.

FOR WOMEN: A NEW RETIREMENT PLAN

If you have a part-time income from self-employment, there are ways to save — with less taxes, too.

By Donald R. German

Consider these frightening statistics: half of American women over 65 have less than $3,000 a year in income. Pensions received by retired women average about $80 per month.

You've heard horror stories about elderly people getting by, by eating canned pet food. Unfortunately, the stories are sometimes true. If you have some years to go until your own retirement, you can take steps to keep this kind of thing from happening to you. Consider the following example:

Amelia, age 50, writes a weekly column for her local newspaper for which she receives $15 a week. With two unpaid vacation weeks, this totals $750 a year. Amelia's husband earns an annual salary of $18,000 and is covered by his employer's pension plan. Amelia has decided to place her entire $750 in earnings—on which she will pay no current Federal income tax—into a special savings plan in her own name. By age 65, Amelia's savings, having been carefully invested in bank certificates of deposit at 7.75 percent, will total well over $20,000. After that, with an annuity earning interest of 7.75 percent, Amelia will receive a monthly income of $240 for a period of 10 years.

The well-known Keogh Plan was set up to allow self-employed persons to save for retirement. Under this plan, those who are self-employed can put aside 15 percent of all self-employment income, up to a maximum of $7,500 a year, and defer tax payments until they begin to withdraw the funds, which they may begin to do at any time after age 59 1/2 and must begin to do by age 70 1/2. Many doctors, lawyers and other professionals are enrolled in Keogh Plans.

In addition, a less familiar clause offers a real chance at extra retirement security for housewives and others who have a small side income. Dubbed the "Mini-Keogh Plan," this portion of the law stipulates that a person whose adjusted gross income, computed on an individual basis, does not exceed $15,000 a year, may put 100 percent of self-employed income, up to a maximum of $750 a year, into a tax-sheltered Keogh Plan.

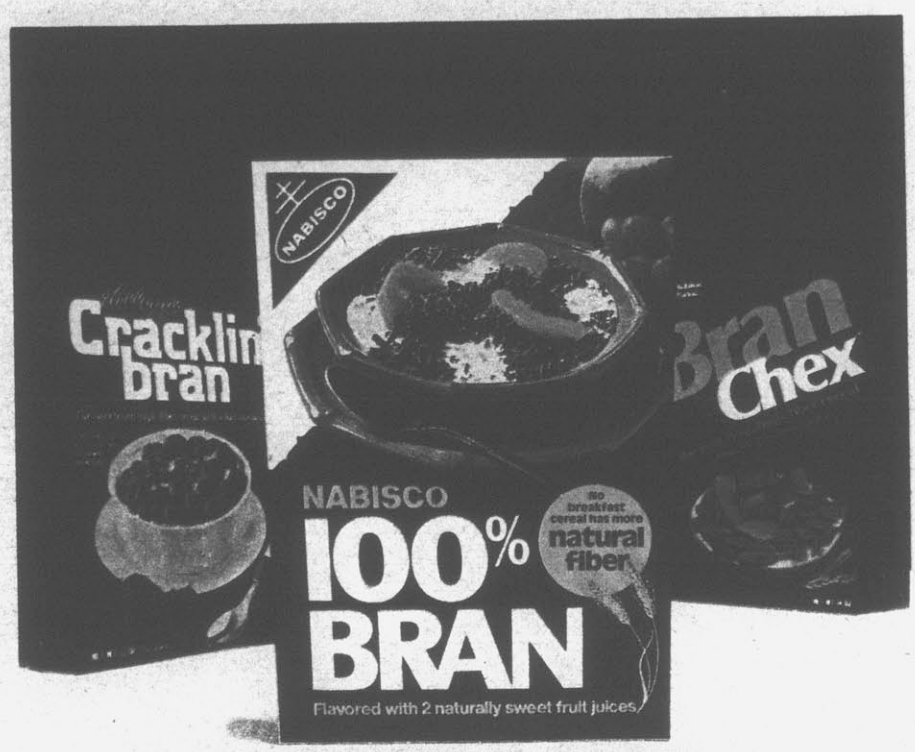

If you are a woman with a part-time income from self-employment, here is a chance to reduce current tax payments while guaranteeing a better retirement. Consider the following important points:

1. Your adjusted gross income, computed on an individual basis, must not exceed $15,000 per year. In Amelia's case, her individual annual income is $750, so she can put the entire amount into her Keogh Plan. Her husband's income does not count, even though they file a joint return. But she must complete Schedules C and SE and attach them to their return. She simply shows her deposits in her Keogh Plan on Form 1040 as a deduction from income, so the amount added by the Schedule C is eliminated.

2. You must use an approved plan. For this purpose, there are special U.S. Government retirement bonds, your bank or savings institution will enroll you in its plan, or you can invest in special life-insurance or mutual-funds plans.

3. A plan must be established before the end of the taxable year, but contributions to the plan may be made until the following April 15.

You can get further details by writing to the Internal Revenue office nearest you and asking for Publication 560, Retirement Plans for Self-Employed Individuals, and Publication 566, Questions and Answers on Retirement Plans for the Self-Employed. Or talk to officials at your bank. FW

WORLD SERIES FEVER

"Ducky" Medwick was pelted with garbage and "Dizzy" Dean, for the first time ever, was speechless.

By Frank Slocum

Professional football's Super Bowl, horse racing's Kentucky Derby, boxing's heavyweight-title fight and auto-racing's Indy 500 are big, big dates on the American sports calendar. But they're all one-day wonders, so that public excitement peaks and falls quickly. Not so baseball's World Series, which can stretch out over a period of days — with time-off for travel in between — until one team wins four out of seven games.

So the tension mounts, the fan-aticism is contagious, and even those who can't tell a pitchout from a wild pitch are afflicted with World Series-itis. Aficionados and neophytes, baseball historians and trivia buffs, all are fascinated by the spectacle — and each spectator, whether seated in the ball park or in front of the television set, focuses on different aspects of the game, according to his or her special interest.

Even before some dignitary or other throws out the first ball before the first game the fever begins to rise. I once got a telephone call in Philadelphia from a man in Halifax, Nova Scotia. He had heard that I was working in the baseball business (I was employed by the National League at the time), and he wanted me to get him some Series tickets. When I admitted that I hadn't the vaguest idea who he was, he reminded me that he had been the night-elevator operator in a building my family had once lived in. I confessed that I didn't really remember the day-elevator operator in that building, let alone the night man, since we had moved out when I was five years old.

In 1956 Walter O'Malley got a much tougher ticket request than that. The Dodgers' owner had easily sold out the small Brooklyn ball park when he got a call from Washington. Guess who wanted to come to the ball game? O'Malley quickly assured the White House that there would be no problem taking care of President Dwight D. Eisenhower and his party. But O'Malley spoke too quickly. It was pointed out that the party included the Presidential Secret Service detail and that about 40 seats were needed — not just any 40 seats, but specified locations from which the President could best be protected.

Somehow, someway, O'Malley managed to fulfill the White House's request.

Once the Series starts, fan-aticism grips some unlikely people. For example, when a reporter called the noted scientist, Vannevar Bush, to check out an important story about the atomic bomb, Dr. Bush asked, "Could you call back later? I'm listening to the World Series on the radio, and I don't want to miss anything." And then there was the late William Frawley, the actor best known for his role of Fred Mertz on the still-running I Love Lucy shows, who had a clause in all his contracts stating that he didn't have to work while the Series was being played.

Kids, old-timers and in-betweeners who are turned-on by sports statistics take delight in the fact that complete and separate sets of statistics have been kept for the 74 World Series that have been played to date. Now with the 1978 classic on, I am prepared to go out on a limb and predict that two records will definitely not be broken. On October 10, 1920, Cleveland second baseman, Bill Wambsganss, made an unassisted triple play. On October 8th, 1956, New York Yankee pitcher, Don Larsen, pitched a perfect no-hit, no-run, no-one-on-base game. Maybe somebody might tie one of those marks, but unless they change the rules, nobody's going to break either one of them.

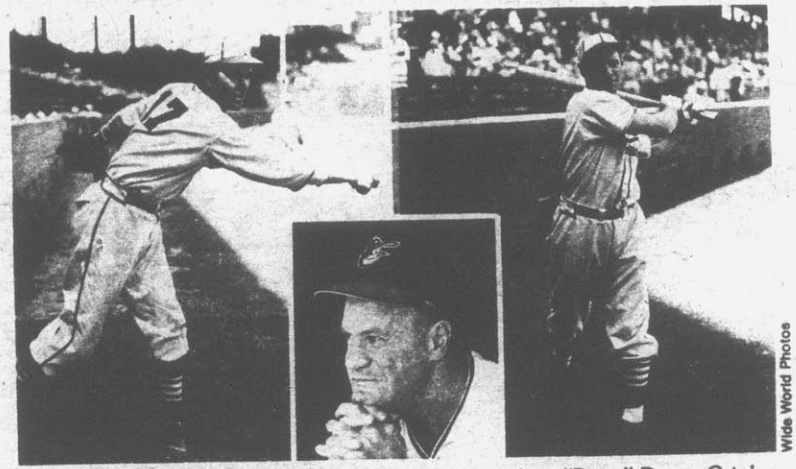

Larsen's perfect game, incidentally, prompted one of my favorite stories. After the contest, one reporter got the pitcher's attention long enough to ask a question that belongs in the record book. He asked Larsen, "Would you say this is the best game you ever pitched?"

Sometimes, of course, baseball writers rise to the occasion. When the members of the press were being polled for predictions on the outcome of the 1945 Series between the Chicago Cubs and the Detroit Tigers, veteran sports columnist, Warren Brown, carefully looked over the rosters of the two teams and said perceptively, "I don't think either one of 'em can win it."

Some World Series — like some people who play in them — are more colorful than others. And the "colorfulest" of all, to borrow a word from the late Casey Stengel, probably took place in 1934, which brought together the Detroit Tigers and the St. Louis Cardinals. In the St. Louis clubhouse before the first game, manager Frankie Frisch reviewed how the members of "The Gas House Gang" (the nickname for the Cards) should position themselves defensively for each of the Detroit hitters. At the end of his talk, Frisch asked if there were any questions. Such usually loquacious players as Leo "Lippy" Durocher and the Dean brothers, "Dizzy" and "Daffy," stared at the floor. Finally, "Pepper" Martin raised his hand and said, "Skipper, I got a question. Should I paint my midget racing car red with black wheels or black with red wheels?"

In the seventh game of that Series, "Ducky" Medwick slid hard into Detroit third baseman Marvin Owen. When the inning ended and Medwick tried to take his position in left field, the Tiger fans bombarded him with fruit, garbage and cardboard boxes. Said Medwick later, "I know why they threw it at me. What I can't figure out is why they brought it to the ball park in the first place."

All this and tantalizing trivia, too. Let's try a World Series mini-quiz.

What team has the best World Series record? The first impulse might well be to say the New York Yankees because they have been in so many and won so many. (This is clearly reflected in Series records involving individual stars: the player who has appeared in the most World Series, has played in the most games, has been to bat the most times and gotten the most hits is . . . Yankee Yogi Berra. The most victories by a pitcher? Yankee Whitey Ford. The most losses by a pitcher? The same Whitey Ford.)

But getting back to what team has the best World Series record. The answer is . . . the Oakland A's. They have been in three and won them all.

Another question: what managers have the best percentage records in the Series? The best records were chalked up by Hank Bauer and George Stallings. Each managed in one autumn classic: Bauer — the 1966 Orioles and Stallings — the 1914 Braves. Each led his team to a four-game sweep.

Wide World Photos

But looking back across a lot of World Series memories, I would have to say one that I recall as clearly as any took place in the fifth game of the 1970 World Series. The Cincinnati Reds came to the ninth inning trailing the Baltimore Orioles, 9 to 3. The first two men were out: one more to go and the Orioles would be world champions. The scheduled batter was Hal McRae, who had been Cincinnati's leading hitter during the series. Unexpectedly the Reds manager, Sparky Anderson, called McRae back to the bench and sent up Pat Corrales, a catcher, to pinch-hit. It was a move that made no sense. Corrales grounded out to Brooks Robinson, and it was all over.

Later, in the quiet Cincinnati clubhouse, Anderson explained, "When you're a back-up catcher behind Johnny Bench, most people don't know you're around. But Pat Corrales helped me, never complained and encouraged the other guys. I know that this might be the only chance in his life for Pat Corrales to play in a World Series. I'm sorry he didn't get a hit, but I'm very glad I gave him his chance."

And now it's another mad, mad, mad, mad World Series! FW

Observations

Well-seasoned. Originally, seasons were invented to help us decide whether to wear spring, summer, fall or winter clothes, and to remember when to take vacations. Nowadays, however, you can't tell the seasons without a program. Every sport has one. So do the arts—opera, theater, ballet, and so on. There are even off seasons for resort hotels, airlines, and baseball players, among others. We've even created two seasons of our own—the "Masterpiece Theatre" season in 1970, and the "Mobil Showcase" season in 1974.

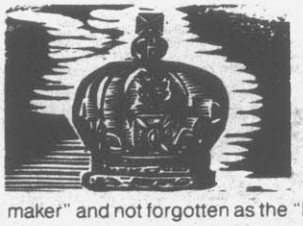

Grand duchess. Next Sunday, as part of the current "Masterpiece Theatre" season, the Public Broadcasting Service will begin a 15-week presentation of The Duchess of Duke Street. Set in turn-of-the-century London, the series was created by John Hawkesworth, the man responsible for all the installments of Upstairs, Downstairs. The series traces the fortunes of Louisa Trotter (nee Leyton) who rises from scullery maid to become owner of one of London's most elegant hotels. In its portrayal of Mrs. Trotter, her hotel, and its famous and infamous guests, The Duchess of Duke Street offers television viewing of uncommon wit and style.

"Sorry, lady—it's time for Masterpiece Theatre"

Countrified. The work of two prolific masters of the English short story will be featured in a four-part "Masterpiece Theatre" series on PBS beginning February 4. Under the title, Country Matters, the series presents brilliant dramatizations of The Sullens Sisters and Crippled Bloom, by A. E. Coppard, and H. E. Bates' Breeze Anstey and An Aspidistra in Babylon. The writing styles of Coppard and Bates differed greatly. But they shared a love of the English countryside, and an understanding of human nature, which infuses these four dramatic presentations with warmth and sensitivity.

Coming attractions. A highlight of the 1978-79 "Mobil Showcase" season, beginning in mid-January, will be a presentation on commercial television of Edward the King. This 13-week series is a fascinating dramatization of the life of Edward VII—Queen Victoria's son—who is remembered as "Edward the Peacemaker" and not forgotten as the "Playboy Prince." It is the story of a great age and its remarkable personalities. In March, "Masterpiece Theatre" will offer Lillie, a 13-week series based on the life of Lillie Langtry, the famous actress whose life and career bridged the Victorian and Edwardian eras. Check your local listings for broadcast dates and times in your area, and keep watching this space for more about the 1978-79 "Masterpiece Theatre" and "Mobil Showcase" seasons.

HOCKEY'S HAUNTED STANLEY CUP

Although this championship trophy is kept under guard it still manages to get into trouble.

By Murray Janoff

It's a short, squat, silver-plated punch bowl that cost Lord Stanley of Preston, the Governor General of Canada, only $50 back in 1893; since then, however, more than $18,000,000 have been spent in altering its shape and in engraving names on its surface. And there's also the expense of protecting it as it perches on a sturdy, stocky pedestal in a niche in the Hockey Hall of Fame in Toronto.

The punch bowl is only removed from the hall temporarily for ceremonial occasions — and then under heavy guard. It's the Stanley Cup, emblematic of professional ice-hockey supremacy. Or is it? Is this the real trophy, or is it a replica? Has the actual punch bowl been locked away for safekeeping so that it couldn't be lost, wouldn't stray and shouldn't be stolen? Only the officers of the Hockey Hall of Fame know for sure — and they're not talking. Why this secrecy?

Well, some hockey historians think that, at the least, the Cup is jinxed, and, at the most, it has an independent life of its own.

Let's begin at the beginning. In principle, Lord Stanley's idea seemed to be a good one. An avid sportsman, he decided the trophy should be presented to the amateur hockey champions of Canada. And in practice the changes in sponsorship of the Cup appear to be orderly and logical. By 1910, the National Hockey Association was presenting the punch bowl annually to its championship team. Since 1926, it has been competed for only by the professional National Hockey League, and, since 1946, it has been under the NHL's direct control.

But just beneath this simple chronology lurks a tale that might be titled, The Cup Runneth All Over.

Episode One: The Silver Seven won the trophy numerous times. After one such success they celebrated far into the night. Somehow conversation got around to kicking ability, and somebody proved a point by booting Lord Stanley's gift high and far — into a canal. Next day, a sober team rushed back to the spot. T punch bowl was found, resting atop a f zen canal, dented and frosted and saf

Episode Two: On one occasion victorious Montreal Canadiens took Cup to a photographer's studio to hav team picture taken. Later, everybo went home and left the trophy behin The photographer's mother walked in the studio. What an odd bowl! She dec ed to plant flowers in it. Camouflage nobody found the Cup for three days.

Episode Three: Through the yea the Canadiens have been the winninge team. (They're defending again this se son.) But in 1924 they almost lost t trophy in an unexpected way. Toastin their victory, they decided to move th party to the home of their owner, Le Dandurand. En route, their car had blowout. Somebody placed the Stanle Cup on the sidewalk while they fixed th tire. When they got to Dandurand home...ooops! Back they went. Th Cup was shining there in the night.

Episode Four: The Chicago Black hawks won the Cup in 1961 and decide to display it in the lobby of their Chicag stadium. A year later they faced Montrea in a playoff game in Chicago and pro ceeded to mop up the ice with the visi tors. An irate fan, who had traveled from Canada to lend support to his team, spot ted the trophy and took it.

"I wanted to take it back to Montrea where it belongs," he explained adamantly to the cops who nabbed him as he was leaving the stadium accompanied by the Stanley Cup.

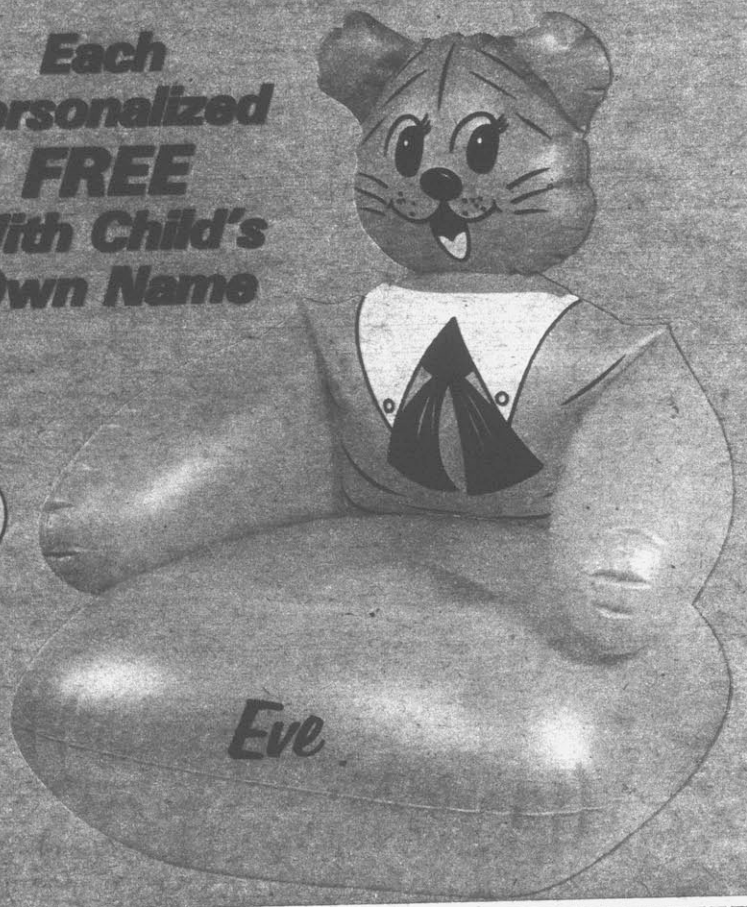

Episode Five: On Christmas night, 1970, the Stanley Cup — which had been enshrined in Hockey's Hall of Fame in 1963 for safekeeping — was found lying in the driveway of Wallace Harkness, a Toronto detective. Harkness had been searching three weeks for it after it had been stolen.

The End? Probably not where the Stanley Cup is concerned. To Be Continued? More likely, so watch the sports page — or the crime news — for the next episode. FW

NATALIE DUNN: WORLD CHAMPION ON ROLLER SKATES

Anything an ice skater does, she can do, too — plus a triple salchow and a triple mapes.

Wide World

By Barry Abbott

When Natalie Dunn became the first American woman ever to win the world figure-roller-skating championship she realized a dream her family had had ever since she was two-years old. It was at that tender age that her parents, Omar and Dolores Dunn, put her on skates and noticed that she had unusual grace and balance. "It took thousands of hours of practice to make that dream come true," says the 21-year-old Natalie.

Natalie is two-time world champion, having won the honors the first time in Rome in 1976 and then successfully defending her crown in Montreal in 1977. She was upset by a 17-year-old rival, JoAnne Young, in the 1977 United States championship competition but came back to regain the U.S. title in Lincoln, Neb., this past summer.

Natalie is one of the few female skaters in history who is able to perform the triple salchow and triple mapes — two of the most intricate and difficult maneuvers in roller-skating. To keep improving her skating skill, she practices up to seven hours a day.

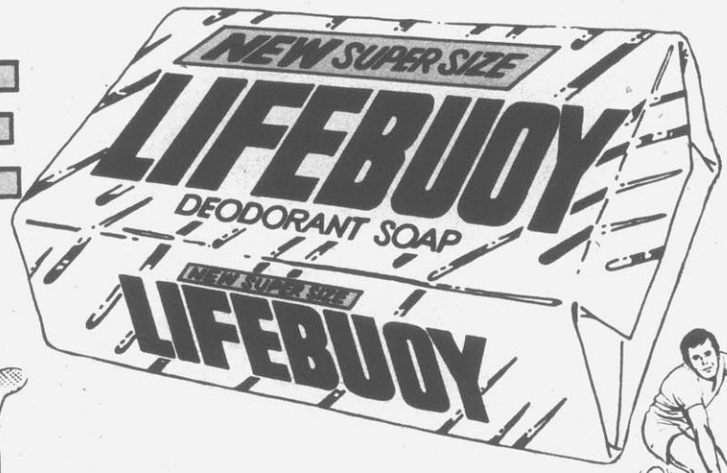

Figure-skating champions who perform on ice frequently go on to big-money rewards as professionals. Dorothy Hamill, who won Olympic ice-skating honors, landed a lucrative contract with the touring Ice Capades and cashed in as a TV performer. No such riches are available to the queens and kings of the roller rinks, but what disturbs these stars even more is that they don't get sufficient public credit for their achievements. "The routines that we perform on wooden floors surpass what the best ice skaters do with their blades," Natalie points out. "Dorothy Hamill is considered sensational because she can do a triple jump. But the triple jump has been almost a basic routine with top roller skaters for a long time.

The announcement that roller-skating will be added to the schedule of the 1979 Pan-American Games adds to the prestige of this sport, and officials of the U.S. Amateur Confederation of Roller Skating are now advocating that it become part of the Olympic Games.

Whether she performs in the Olympics or not, Natalie feels that roller-skating has opened new vistas for her. She's had the opportunity to travel to all parts of the world and meet all kinds of "fascinating people." She confesses to being a "sports nut." "Skating is tops with me, but I also love to play tennis," she tells you. She loves to dance but says she doesn't get much chance for such socializing because skating consumes so much of her time. She's good at designing clothes and intends to create skating dresses as well as to eventually follow her parents' footsteps by coaching roller-skating and owning a rink of her own. FW

LYLE ALZADO HITS ONLY ON SUNDAY

As a young thug, the only place he was going was to jail — until someone cared.

Photos by UPI

Lyle has a reputation for sacking enemy quarterbacks. As a kid, he did all the wrong things; now everything is just right.

By Barry Abramson

As a youngster, he was a terror: getting into brawls, stealing cars and spending a good deal of time in jail cells. Yet today, at 29, Lyle Alzado — football star and one of the most beloved citizens of Denver, Colo. — is a heroic model, the kind of person that underprivileged and wayward kids would like to be.

Lyle works with these youngsters constantly. "They can identify with me," he explains. "I can reach them when I let them know that I did all the wrong things, just as they've been doing, but that I learned to care about myself and to care how I was going to live the rest of my life. I let them know that if they learn to care, they'll straighten out like I did."

The 6'3", 260-pound All-Pro defensive end for Denver's "Orange Crush" grew up in Brooklyn and later moved to Long Island. He was one of five children of an Italian-Spanish father and a Jewish mother, and he remembers his childhood as a horror scene. In a book he has written with Paul Zimmerman, called Mile High, he says his father "would show up at home only when he felt like it and was drunk and crazy half the time he did come around."

Lyle's father finally left the family for good, and Lyle's mother had to support the household by working in a flower shop. "Kids would start laughing at me because I had nothing — and that's when I started fighting," Lyle recalls. "I started beating on people so they'd be afraid to laugh at me."

At Lawrence High School, his fights got him suspended periodically or landed him in the local police station.

It was football coach Jack Martilotta who showed Lyle that someone really cared about him. The coach urged the boy to use his strength and energy on the gridiron rather than waste it in destructive behavior. Lyle became an outstanding varsity player.

Martilotta arranged for the boy to be accepted as a student at Yankton, a small college in South Dakota, when major schools would not offer him football scholarships because of his police record. Although Alzado played fullback, linebacker and, finally, defensive end there — and was selected as Most Valuable Player in a postseason Copper Bowl contest held in Butte, Mont. — Yankton was the kind of small college whose games were never observed by professional scouts.

But fate gave Lyle a break. The assistant coach of the Denver Broncos, Stan Jones, was on a scouting trip in Butte in 1971, and his car broke down. Having nothing better to do, he went over to nearby Montana Tech where the coach was showing some football films. When the 1970 Copper Bowl game was projected on the screen, Jones noticed one unusually quick defensive standout who was involved in almost every play. The player was Alzado, and Jones decided he was material for the Broncos.

To the surprise of everybody else in the National Football League, Alzado was picked fourth by Denver in the next professional draft. And when Pete Duranko, a veteran player, injured a leg in an exhibition game, Alzado took his place and became a regular. He quickly established a reputation for "sacking" the enemy quarterback.

Lyle had his greatest season in football in 1977. His defensive play was a key factor in Denver's successful march to the championship of the American Conference of the NFL. And although the Broncos were gunned down by the Dallas Cowboys in the Super Bowl, he thinks his team will certainly carry off the top prize this season.

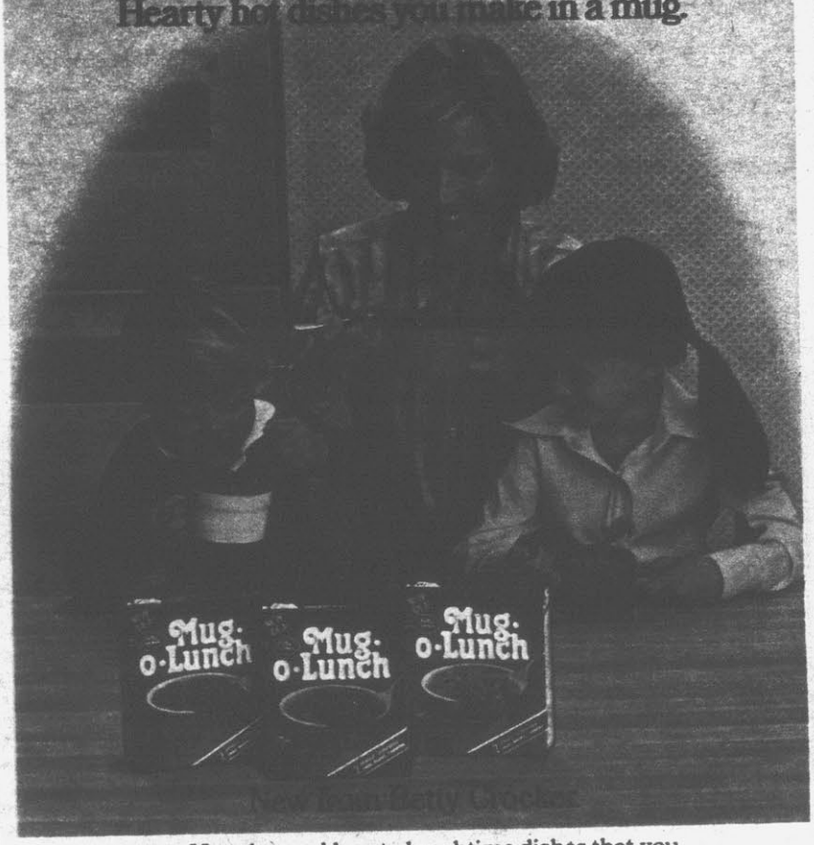

Today, when Lyle's not roaming around in an opposing team's backfield, he's rapping with troubled youngsters. He says, "My wife and I have no kids of our own, and I need to help kids. We owe it to the people of Denver."

For Bronco rooters, especially the kids, the affection is mutual. FW

PEOPLE QUIZ/By John E. Gibson

Are women as aggressive as men?
Are men more stubborn than women?

HOW MEN AND WOMEN BEHAVE DIFFERENTLY

TRUE OR FALSE?

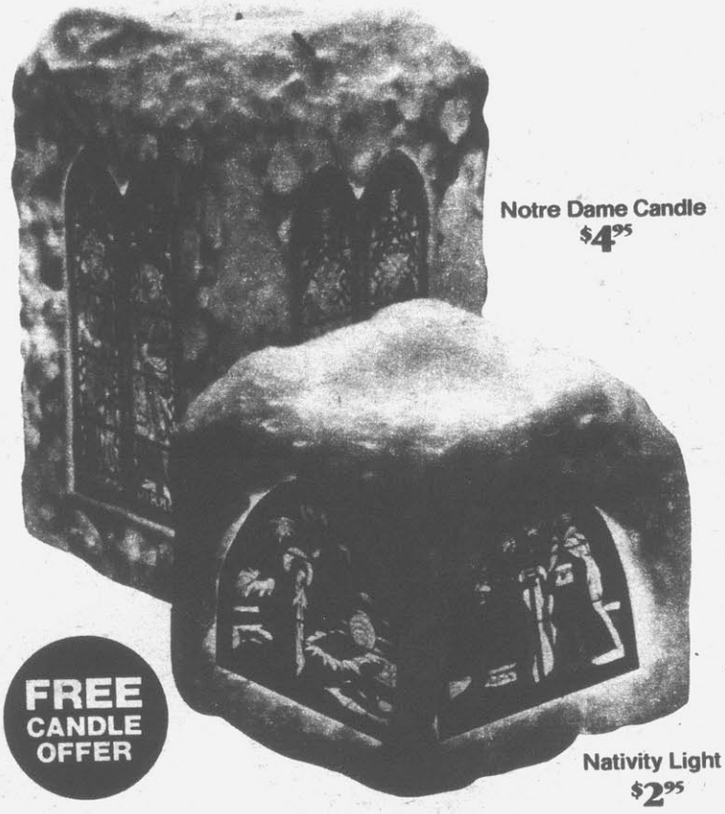

1. Women are less aggressive than men — they simply lack a man's capacity to express their anger aggressively, either physically or verbally.
2. Wives have more romantic fantasies than husbands do.
3. Women are more stubborn than men, harder to persuade than men and less persuasive.
4. When you talk to a woman she listens in a different way than a man does.
5. Women are more concerned with the welfare of others than men are.

ANSWERS

1. False. A University of Wisconsin study evaluated the results of researchers with this conclusion: "The commonly held belief that men are almost always more physically aggressive than women and that women display more indirect or displaced aggression is not supported by the evidence." On the contrary, it was found that when aggression is perceived as justified, women can and do act as aggressively as men. It is pointed out that women may appear to be less capable of aggression than men when certain conditions obtain that cause them to inhibit their desire to commit an aggressive act. These conditions include: where there is a fear of retaliation, where there is a feeling of guilt or when the woman empathizes with the person she is inclined to aggress against "puts herself in the other's place" — and ends up feeling sorry for the person. It is noted that women are more subject to feelings of guilt and have a greater capacity for empathy than men.
2. False. A random selection of married couples — who had been married from 1 to 19 years and had at least 1 child — was studied at Denmark's University of Aalborg. Conclusion of the study: "Men were found to have a higher incidence of fantasies relating to love and romance. And men were more inclined to have fantasies involving several persons. For both sexes in about 50 percent of the cases the spouse never appeared in the fantasy." It is also noted that analysis of the content of fantasies suggests that men's have action-achievement content and women's a tender and emotional, person-oriented content.
3. False. Ohio University studies show that women not only tend to be more persuasive than men but are also more persuadable. In other words, if a woman wants something from someone, she's more adept than a man at getting the other person to feel that she should have it. But it's also easier to talk her out of the idea — and that helps to even things up.
4. True. Southern Illinois University studies of sex differences on this point show that men pay more attention to what you say, while women pay more attention to the way you say it. And it is noted that the attention which women pay to messages conveyed by tone of voice, mannerisms and body movements can enable them to make more accurate inferences about feelings and emotions.
5. True. University of Michigan studies, sponsored by the National Institute of Mental Health, show that females have more consideration for the welfare of others and have more humanistic moral values than males. Men were found to place greater emphasis on achievement and personal success. Typical findings cited on sex differences in this regard showed females to behave more morally than males in situations where there were no witnesses to report their actions or exert influence on their behavior. "Females were found more likely to return valuables found in the street when no witnesses were present; but when others were in the vicinity males returned them as often as females." FW

IN MARILYN'S KITCHEN

This month we make Swedish Hash: Pytt i Panna. My father, whose parents came from Sweden, used to enjoy this dish that his mother made.

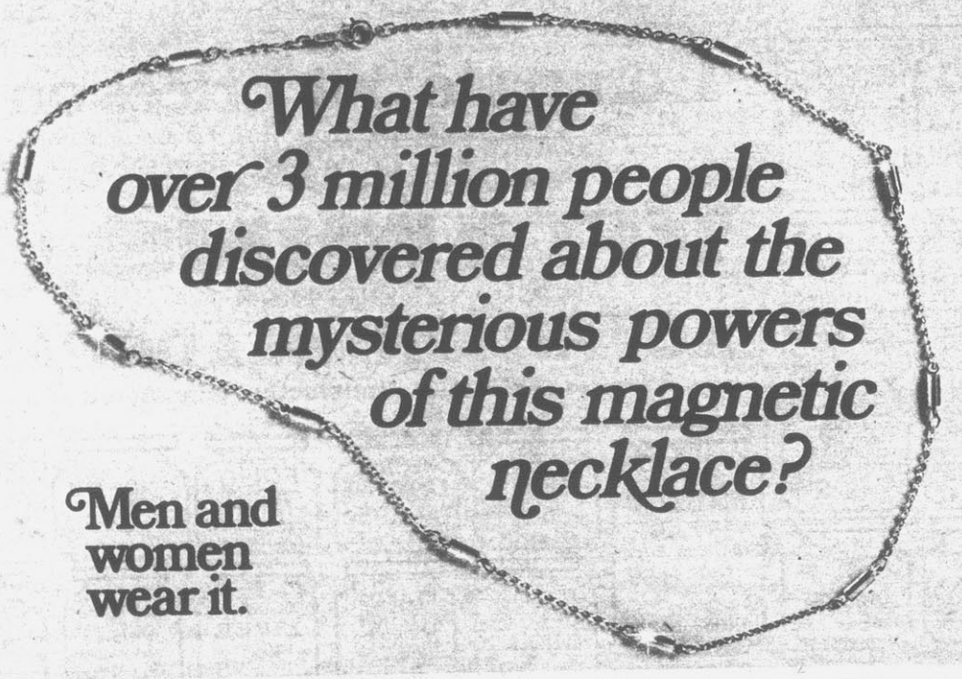

SWEDISH HASH

1 lb. roast or boiled beef or lamb
5 or 6 medium-sized raw potatoes
½ lb. smoked or boiled ham
2 medium-sized yellow onions
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 tablespoons oil
1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley
Salt and few twists freshly ground black pepper
4 to 6 fried eggs

1. Dice the meat into ¼″ cubes by first cutting into strips and then crosswise.
2. Peel potatoes and cut into ¼″ cubes. Place diced potatoes in cold water to prevent them from discoloring. When ready to use potatoes, drain and spread out on paper towels. Pat with paper towels until thoroughly dry.
3. Finely chop the onions.
4. Melt half of butter and oil in heavy skillet over high heat. When the bubbling subsides, add the potatoes. Lower heat to medium and fry slowly for 15 to 20 minutes, turning potatoes with a wide spatula until they are crisp and browned on all sides.
5. Remove potatoes from pan and set aside to drain. Keep warm.
6. Add remaining butter and oil to pan and sauté onions, stirring until limp. Raise heat slightly, add the diced meats and fry with the onions about 10 minutes or until meats are nicely browned.
7. Add fried potatoes; cook together for a few minutes or until heated throughout. Add parsley. Season with salt and several twists freshly ground black pepper.
8. Arrange individual servings on hot plates and top each with a fried egg.

This necklace is no ordinary necklace. The necklace pictured on this page is the authentic, internationally famous TDK EPAULE™ magnetic necklace.

It is one of the most unique works of original jewelry ever created. It contains at least nine magnets. For their size they are unbelievably powerful. In fact, since it was first introduced in Japan just 2 short years ago, over 3 million people have purchased it, worn it, and value its effects. Currently over 100,000 necklaces per month are being sold, and it would not be stretching a point to say that it is the most popular necklace in all of history. Its appeal is universal. It is worn by men and women, young and old.

As more and more people experience the powers of this mysterious necklace, word has begun to spread around the world. Articles about its vast popular acceptance have appeared in leading American newspapers.

Now it is being offered for sale in this country by TDK. You can wear this magnetic necklace and experience its powers for a full 30 days—without any financial risk at all.

JAPANESE GOVERNMENT CERTIFIED

The Government of Japan has certified and approved these necklaces to be sold throughout Japan. There are over 30,000 drug stores now selling EPAULE™ in Japan alone. Now, stores throughout the world are offering this exact same necklace being offered to you.

SPACE AGE TECHNOLOGY

These elegant, cylindrical magnets are really super powerful in spite of their small size. They are made of Rare Earth Cobalt (REC) and their perpetual magnetic field is actually well over 16 times more powerful than the force fields of traditional magnets and were developed for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration of the U.S. Government (NASA) for use in space flights. For the technically minded, their magnetic power rating is 16 Mega Gauss Oersted, providing a magnetic field around each capsule of 1300 gauss, making EPAULE™ the most powerful magnetic necklace commercially available.

$500 MILLION DOLLAR COMPANY

TDK, founded over 40 years ago, is one of the world's leading manufacturers of magnetic and electronic products. You perhaps know them by the "TDK" brand magnetic tapes sold in the U.S. and throughout the world, which are valued for their high quality.

DISCOVER WHAT EPAULE™ CAN ADD TO YOUR LIFE

Man has known about the strange power of magnetism for thousands of years. Yet only since TDK developed the EPAULE™ magnetic necklace has the personal use of magnetic power become popular. As noted earlier, over 3 million people have already experienced the powers of this magnetic necklace in their lives.

NOW IT IS YOUR TURN

What will magnetism accomplish for you? Well, there are on record the actual experiences of thousands of satisfied owners of EPAULE™ Yet to tell you about them would only be relating the experiences of others to you on a second-hand basis. And, since the true nature of magnetism is still a mystery, we'd rather let you discover, for yourself, how the mysteries of the magnetic force embodied in this authentic TDK EPAULE™ magnetic necklace can affect your life.

30 DAY MONEY BACK GUARANTEE

We will send it to you to use and wear for a full 30 days. We know you'll love its simple unisex elegance. It's plated with genuine 14K gold or sparkling white rhodium. Your choice to wear 24 hours a day.

If for any reason you're not completely satisfied with EPAULE,™ just return it within 30 days and we'll rush you a full, unquestioned refund of the purchase price. Note: Not for use with pacemakers.

JOBMANSHIP

Learn To Get Along With A Woman Boss

The simplest and best way is to do the same things you would do to get along with a man boss. But because of various inaccurate ideas, both men and women have to be careful they don't invent job problems for themselves when their supervisor is a woman. Almost half of all American women have paying jobs. As equal-employment laws and women's competence have their effect, more and more people will have women superiors. If you do, avoid these traps — and allow the female boss the same range of emotions you'd allow a man.

An article in Anvil, a prestigious business publication, recently pointed out that people typically assume a woman manager will exhibit only two kinds of behavior: either she's soft-spoken and yielding, which proves she "isn't going to rock the boat," or she's dubbed "an aggressive, destructive female" because she's a hard worker herself and demands hard work of others.

Allowing for only two kinds of behavior is an unrealistic way to analyze any boss — male or female. If you're going to get along with a woman supervisor and make your own workdays pleasant, you'll have to develop the same tolerance for her personal managerial style as you would for a male manager's individual style.

Don't ask your union to protect prejudice: refusal to work for a woman is now as illegal as prejudice against working for someone of a different religion or different skin color. An important management newsletter, White Collar Management, reports a significant case where a man in a Pennsylvania carpet factory refused to take orders from a woman supervisor. He began a campaign of overstaying his rest periods and mimicking her speech. After two written warnings, he was fired. The man appealed to his union on the grounds that an employee could refuse to work for a particular supervisor, and he suggested he be transferred. The arbitrator (a man) decided, "Apparently this man disliked taking orders from a female . . . Women will be taking a bigger part in our modern society — handling many jobs and duties that formerly were unheard of. This is something that we males will have to adjust to. Grievance denied."

Amazing "Burn-fat-by-the-hour" program Developed by Doctors at Boston Medical School

BURNS AWAY MORE FAT EACH 24 HOURS THAN IF YOU RAN 14 MILES A DAY!

Incredible "Crash-Loss" Breakthrough Reported in Leading American Magazines Works So Fast You Can Actually Measure the Difference In Your Waistline In Just 24 to 48 Hours!

Yes, LOSE up to 6 POUNDS the first 48 HOURS — LOSE up to 12 POUNDS the first 7 days — LOSE up to 7, 5, even 7 POUNDS MORE the next 7 days — and continue to burn away as much as 7 to 9 pounds more fat every 2 weeks thereafter, (if you still need it) . . . until you've finally lost 50 — 70 — 100 pounds OR MORE . . . without fasting, without constant willpower, without constant pangs of hunger or a single moment of body-racking exercise!

Recommended by the U.S. Government's very own doctors to members of Congress who want to lose weight fast . . . Hailed as the weight-loss "breakthrough of the century" by leading medical journals . . . here at last is the most effective NO-DRUG program for FAST — INSTANT — PERMANENT LIFETIME WEIGHT-LOSS ever made available to the public without a prescription!

WORKS SO FAST THE FIRST WEEK ALONE YOU LOSE AS MUCH AS 1½ TO 2 POUNDS OF BOTH FLUID AND FAT EVERY 24 HOURS!

Direct from the pages of medical journals and leading American magazines come reports of an incredible "fat burning" breakthrough by medical researchers at one of Boston's foremost medical schools! Reports of a new "crash-loss" program (featuring a remarkable natural substance) that safely yet surely steps up FAT-BURNING METABOLISM . . . forces your system to ATTACK bulging pockets of fat . . . and starts to shrink and burn that fat in just a matter of hours!

Yes, from one of New England's leading medical centers comes the new SUPER FAT-BURNER way to turn up your "inner furnace" . . . unlock those clinging pockets of fat . . . break them down SO FAST . . . you burn off excess bulge at the unbelievable rate of up to 6 POUNDS of both fluid and fat GONE the very first weekend alone! *

Think of it! You actually burn away more fat each 24 hours than if you ran 12 to 14 miles a day! Lose more inches each week than if you did 300 sit-ups each morning and 300 push-ups each night! Actually LOSE as much as A FULL SIZE THE FIRST 7 DAYS . . . and from 3 to 5 inches off your waistline the very first month!

That's right! Weight-loss results and inches-off wonders that absolutely stagger the imagination. Just look:

U.S. ARMY OFFICERS LOSE WEIGHT 3 TIMES FASTER THAN EVER BEFORE!

Case History #1: When medical researchers in Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Los Angeles first tested this new hi-amino concept on a scientific weight-loss program . . . they reported astonishing results of as much as 12 POUNDS LOST IN JUST THE FIRST 7 DAYS! — 16 to 18 pounds gone by the end of week number two — and most mind-boggling of all — U.S. Army Officers actually losing weight 3 times faster than ever before! As much as 50 POUNDS GONE, like that!

WAISTLINES SHRINK UP TO 3 INCHES IN 7 DAYS — A FULL 5 INCHES SMALLER IN A SINGLE MONTH!

Case History #2: When first rumors of this medical breakthrough leaked out to professional actors, actresses and celebrities . . . they immediately rushed to the offices of America's leading weight-loss specialists to get their hands on this "magic compound"; and no wonder! Because the first week alone they carved away as much as 2 pounds a day . . . 13 pounds a week . . . were forced to take in their belts 3 notches smaller in just 10 days!

DOCTORS REPORT: AVERAGE LOSS — 57 POUNDS!

Case History #3: But most significant of all . . . when universities, hospitals and medical schools, (such as New York's Leading Medical School and Cleveland's largest hospital) tested this newly discovered "crash-loss" program on patients who all their lives had been hopelessly overweight . . . they reported astonishing losses of as much as 2 pounds a day at the start . . . 20 to 30 pounds a month . . . as much as 70 pounds lost over a single summer season! — by simply stepping up their fat-burning metabolism and burning, melting, oxidizing 50, 70, 100 pounds of hard-set fat . . . FASTER, SURER than they had ever dreamed possible!

WORKS LIKE "POWDERED HEAT" — MAKES YOUR INNER FURNACE BREAK DOWN BODY FAT!

What is this wondrous new development that helps safely stimulate fat-burning metabolism and shrink your body's fat cells the moment it starts working in your system? It is a totally new concept in the war against fat. An ANTI-FAT WEAPON unlike anything you've ever seen, or tried in your life. A FAT-BURNING aid that helps you convert body fat to body fuel AUTOMATICALLY . . . and EVAPORATE excess pounds and inches starting the very first day!

Think of it! A medically proven formula that is such an effective reducing aid . . . that when combined with the food you eat on this "crash-loss" program . . . burns off as much fat each 24 hours as if you jogged up to 14 miles a day . . . or played 3 hours of tennis in the most brutal heat!

The name of this wondrous amino formula is "THERA-SLIM-100" and here is precisely how you use it to win the body and figure of your dreams as you:

LOSE UP TO 4 TO 6 INCHES OFF YOUR WAISTLINE

LOSE UP TO 2 TO 5 INCHES OFF YOUR HIPS

LOSE UP TO 3 INCHES OFF YOUR THIGHS

LOSE UP TO 4 INCHES OFF YOUR BUTTOCKS

LOSE UP TO 4 INCHES OFF YOUR STOMACH

and as we've said before, starting not in weeks, but in mere days.

HELPS YOUR BODY CONVERT STORED UP FAT TO BURNED UP ENERGY! At this very moment — having read this far — you are but one short step away from LIFETIME IMMUNITY TO FAT! Now comes your FINAL GIANT STEP into a whole new world of LIFETIME SLIMNESS.

Of course, there is one thing you must keep in mind. With the "THERA-SLIM-100" way to LIFETIME SLIMNESS you cannot gorge yourself on all sorts of fattening foods, candies and desserts. Not that you'd ever want to, because with "THERA-SLIM-100" — due to your new, stepped up metabolism — besides enormous weight-loss you also experience a loss of hunger. Which makes it one of the easiest ways to lose weight fast. Now here's how simple it is:

STEP #1 — YOU EAT

In addition to the wide and tasty selection of food you enjoy morning and night, (all scientifically programmed to help maintain a high-level of FAT BURN-OFF)

STEP #2 — YOU TAKE "THERA-SLIM-100" hi amino compound.

Once a day you take "THERA-SLIM-100" in a glass of water, (just like refreshing fruit juice). This hi-amino intake helps keep the fat-burning chain-reaction going ALL 24 HOURS OF THE DAY — NON STOP!

STEP #3 — YOU HAVE AUTOMATICALLY STEPPED UP YOUR FAT-BURNING METABOLISM — SO YOU AUTOMATICALLY BURN OFF EXCESS WEIGHT!

In virtually no time at all, you make your inner furnace accelerate fat burn-off! Safely, gently, yet surely you cause a gradual change in your fat-burning metabolism as you "rev-up" that inner furnace.

The result: Your body begins to eliminate stored-up fat and fluid at a rate so incredibly fast, the very first weekend alone YOU DRAIN AWAY AS MUCH AS 5 OR 6 POUNDS!

In short, with the "THERA-SLIM-100" weight-loss program you force your body to automatically convert body fat to body fuel . . . automatically shrink fatty cells . . . drain off excess flab . . . flush it right out of your system ONCE AND FOR ALL!

Never before has medical science offered you a surer, faster, more effective weight-loss method, (short of total fasting) than this super fat-burning breakthrough developed at one of Boston's Leading Medical Schools.

THE FACTS ARE IN! THE RESEARCH IS DONE! THE INCREDIBLE WEIGHT-SLASHING RESULTS HAVE BEEN PROVEN BEYOND A SHADOW OF A DOUBT BY MEDICAL SCHOOLS — HOSPITALS — DOCTORS — AND SCORES AND SCORES OF OVERWEIGHT PATIENTS! NOW THE FINAL STEP IS UP TO YOU!

REMEMBER: You must see dramatic results in just 24 hours — results you can measure with both your scale and your tape measure . . . you must lose:

up to 6 lbs. the first 48 hours up to 12 lbs. the first 7 days up to 7 lbs. more the next 7 days or it costs you nothing! Simply return within 10 days for full refund (except postage and handling, of course). Act now!

IF YOU READ NOTHING ELSE — READ THIS!

What you see on this page is the announcement of the latest breakthrough by medical science in the war against fat. Developed at one of Boston's leading medical schools, the incredible weight-loss results this new "crash-loss" program delivers are so astonishing (average loss 57 lbs.) it has been featured in every leading medical journal . . . given headline coverage in the medical news columns of many major newspapers. Aside now — ABSOLUTE STARVATION — there is no surer, faster, more effective way to slash away pounds and inches than with this Boston Medical School discovery.

However, before starting we advise you to consult with your physician to be sure you are in normal health and your only problem is excess weight. Individuals with gout, heart disease, diabetes or pregnant women should not use it at all. As a matter of fact, we insist that you show this entire program to your family physician . . . have him check you regularly to make sure you're not losing too much, too fast . . . and advise when you've lost enough. See if he doesn't agree that the "THERA-SLIM-100" road to Lifetime Slimness, including the recommended progressive daily toneup, isn't by far the most effective approach to the conquest of excess weight ever developed by medical science.

CREATE THESE FESTIVE CHRISTMAS DECORATIONS

glazed della Robbia-styled wreath f fruit, gourds, pine cones and ribbons.

Felt forms a "boot" around an empty can and is perfect for candy canes.

Colorful mobile fish ornaments are uickly made from paper.

Make Christmas even brighter and more exciting by creating your own decorations.

Start with stunning della Robbia-like wreath with fruit, gourds, pine cones and ribbons or "nature's own" wreath of pine cones for your front door.

WHAT IN THE WORLD

Choosing A New Doctor

If you've moved to another city recently, chances are you don't have a personal physician yet. Here are some suggestions from the Health Insurance Institute to help you in finding a new doctor:

- Look for a general practitioner or primary-care doctor (such as an internist, family-practice specialist or, for children, a pediatrician). One of them can refer you to more specialized doctors if needed.
- Call the state or county medical society for names of doctors in your new neighborhood.
- Call a hospital and ask for someone who makes referrals to family doctors. If there's a medical school nearby, ask for a referral to someone who has teaching responsibilities.
- Ask a friend to suggest a family doctor, and ask him these questions to help you with your decision: does the doctor take time to explain your friend's medical problems and their treatment? How long is the usual wait for an appointment for a nonemergency medical problem? How long is your friend's average wait in the doctor's office?

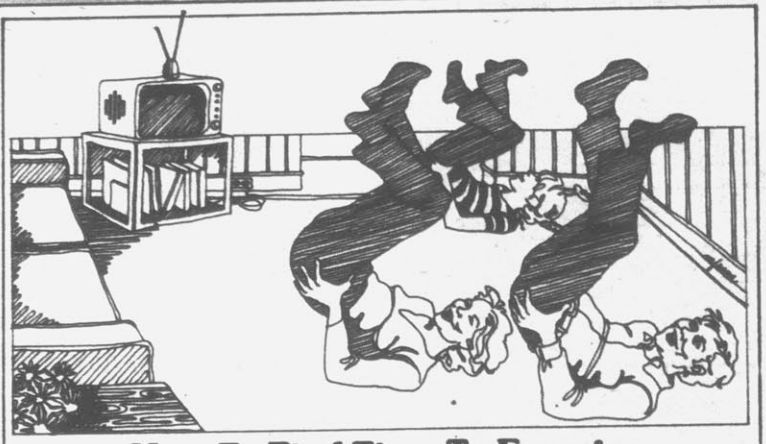

Evaluating Your Warranty

One refrigerator you're considering buying costs $50 more than another but is offering a full warranty for a year instead of 90 days. Which should you buy? You'll be able to make a better decision if you know how to compare warranties.

Experts say the first question to ask about any warranty is exactly what services it covers and for how long a period of time. In general, under a full warranty, the manufacturer must pay for both labor and parts during the period of coverage, offer a refund or replacement if a "reasonable" number of attempts haven't made the item serviceable, and pay for any "consequential damage."

If the warranty is a limited one, you should be sure to find out where the item will be serviced — in your home or in the dealer's workshop. Who pays for the transportation? Does the warranty cover only parts, or labor as well?

How To Find Time To Exercise

Do you have trouble finding time to exercise? If so, you have a lot of company, says Dr. Dorothy V. Harris, prof. of physical education at Penn State. But, as she says, if you're sufficiently committed to an exercise program you can find a way to work it into your schedule.

"You may find that you have to give up something like cocktails or a television program or merely get up earlier in the morning," she says. "Depending on whether you're a morning or an evening person, you may find lunchtime is convenient or perhaps you can find time after work."

Dr. Harris believes that the group who finds it most difficult to exercise is mothers with young children. "They can organize a group to help each other with babysitting," Dr. Harris advises. "Or, better yet, get the family involved by delaying dinner for half an hour or so."

An important part of finding the time, says Dr. Harris, is selecting the proper exercise. "Your exercise should not be discouraging. It should be something you can enjoy."

Finally, Dr. Harris adds that it's important to remember that exercise doesn't have to be a sport. "Exercise can be incorporated into one's day. You can walk up the stairs instead of taking an elevator or park farther away. And never drive to a place you can reach by walking."

Preventing Infant Nutritional Problems

Frederic Lewis

Is your baby getting enough iron? Iron-deficiency anemia, commonly associated with women and the elderly has become the number-1 nutritional problem among American infants, experts say. Studies indicate that 1 out of every 5 babies develops symptoms of iron deficiency during the first 2 years of life regardless of race, economic level or even amount of food eaten. That's because it's the quality — more than the quantity — of the infant's early diet that is at the root of the problem.

If iron deficiency isn't corrected, the problem may have long-range effects on the growing infant. A recent study at the Harvard Medical School reports that iron-deficient babies may show symptoms ranging from fatigue, irritability and loss of appetite to more serious problems such as slow growth, inattention, hyperactivity and lowered intelligence.

Doctors say that most healthy infants are born with enough prenatal iron stores to last 4 to 5 months. After this period, iron must be replaced through iron from breast milk, iron-fortified formula or medicinal iron supplements (cow's milk is a poor source of available iron). Since most infants are switched from breast milk or formula to a diet of cow's milk and solid baby foods at the age when their iron stores are depleted, many doctors recommend giving the infant the breast or bottle before offering the solid foods.

Quick Takes

A pain killer more potent than heroin or morphine but without addictive and sedative side effects is apparently available within the human body itself, reports Medical World News. Scientists say that when a synthetic amino acid known as d-phenylalanine (DPA) is injected, it activates the body's own pain-fighting chemicals. In preliminary trials, over 80% of chronic pain patients who had not been helped by treatment with conventional pain killers, surgery or acupuncture reported their pain usually ended within 2 days of treatment with DPA. As soon as pain ceased, the patients stopped taking the drug and remained pain-free for up to 30 days — with no withdrawal symptoms.

Preseason sports polls are not very reliable says a Univ. of Utah prof. According to James Croft, who conducted statistical studies of the preseason college football rankings made by several publications over the past 10 years, a team picked to finish in the top 5 only managed to do so an average of 50% of the time.

Doctors complain about their bills, too says Medical Economics magazine. The magazine reports that ⅔ of the physicians it surveyed feel they get overcharged for such services as auto and home repairs simply because they're doctors.
