HEADING FOR THEIR HEROES — Excited New York Yankee fans pour over barricades and onto the runways at Newark Airport last night in an effort to get to where they expected an aircraft to land, carrying the world champion baseball team. A fire truck with torrents of water from hoses helped scatter the crowd, estimated at 5,000. Heroes they may have been, but the Yankees did not choose to face the crowd and landed out of sight of the fans. They were whisked away in buses before anyone could reach them. (AP Laserphoto)

Testing Denounced And Defended In Raleigh

By NOEL YANCEY

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — About 200 people turned out at a public hearing today to hear speakers denounce and defend the state's competency testing program for high school students.

Although the hearing was planned to get public opinion on proposed guidelines for the competency and achievement testing programs approved by the legislature, speakers mainly spoke against the competency testing itself. Dr. William Brown, a hearing officer, presided.

Wekesa Madzimoyo, representing the Chapel Hill-Carrboro Coalition for Quality Education, urged parents to keep their children home on Nov. 1 and Nov. 2, when the competency tests are to be given to high school juniors, who must pass them to receive a diploma when they graduate. Students will have four chances to pass the test.

Madzimoyo said the tests were "ill designed for the improvement of the black community" and would result in "putting the nail in the coffin of black colleges."

Charles Finch, chairman of the Durham Coalition for Quality Education, said competency testing would deny high school diplomas to half of all high school seniors.

Both Finch and Madzimoyo argued that the hearing was scheduled when working parents and school students could not be present.

"This hearing was deliberately set at a time when teachers cannot be here. Parents who are working cannot be here, and students cannot be here," said Finch.

"This is not a public hearing. The state has yet to hold a public hearing on competency testing," he said.

Lofi Hirshman defended the competency testing but criticized the tests as they are to be administered. Mrs. Hirshman said the schools are responsible for turning out functioning citizens and taxpayers have a "right to demand proof of students' skills."

But competency testing in high school is a "prime example of locking the barn door after the horse is gone," she said, adding that the 11th grade "is too late for competency testing." Mrs. Hirshman said dropouts, "those who need it worst, will not get it."

Speakers were required to register as they entered and were limited to five minutes each.

Identified

The Pitt County Memorial Hospital patient who's been called "John Doe" since he was brought in comatose Sept. 28 has been tentatively identified, Greenville Police said this morning.

Based on fingerprint identification, the man seems to be Briscoe Stewart, 41, last known address, St. Leonard, Md. Capt. Paul Jewett said the FBI communication stated Stewart was born June 30, 1937 in Prince Frederick, Md. The St. Leonard address was as of 1956.

Hospital Patient Representative Ed Hackett, given the information this morning, said he will be pursuing location of any known relatives today.

The man, who was hit by a truck Sept. 28 in Wilson County, remains "condition virtually unchanged" in the Intensive Care Unit of the hospital.

Expect Carter Air Plans On Anti-Inflation

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press
Washington (AP) —

President Carter is expected to unveil his long-awaited "Phase II" anti-inflation program next Tuesday, possibly in a televised address, it was learned today.

Carter has not yet requested broadcast time for a speech, however, and White House officials continue to insist that the president has not yet put the finishing touches on the new package.

Presidential spokesman Jody Powell said Wednesday that the new program would be announced early next week "at the earliest."

Carter has been saying publicly for weeks that his new program will be announced soon, will be "tough" but "fair," and will not include mandatory wage or price controls, which the president has consistently said he would not seek except in a national emergency.

The toughened-up program comes after the weaker anti-inflation program Carter announced earlier this year, when he held pay raises for federal workers to 5.5 percent and called for business and labor to show restraint.

However, inflation has shown signs of worsening since then, and Carter's advisers have been working for months on a new package.

Some administration officials have predicted the new program will include voluntary guidelines of about 5.75 percent per year on prices and 7 percent per year on wages. But Powell has warned reporters that such reports may not prove accurate because the president hasn't yet made the final decisions.

And in a speech Tuesday, AFL-CIO president George Meany complained that news leaks about the coming anti-inflation program are prompting businessmen to raise prices now to avoid the predicted restraints.

Saudi Arabia has 2,000 men, Sudan 800 and Syria more than 26,000 in the force, which is supposed to enforce the armistice that ended the Lebanese civil war in 1976.

Saudi armored cars waited at three locations in Beirut's Moslem sector, ready to cross the dividing "green line" as liaison officers checked deployment routes.

The Christian command announced it ordered its militiamen to observe the cease-fire strictly during the redeployment, which was expected to take 48 hours. But occasional gunfire was

Rhodesians Raid Guerrilla Leader HQ

By MAUREN JOHNSON

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Rhodesian forces attacked guerrilla leader Joshua Nkomo's military headquarters 12 miles north of the Zambian capital of Lusaka today while other Rhodesian soldiers fought Robert Mugabe's forces 50 miles inside Mozambique.

Zambian Radio said the attack was "repulsed by gallant Zambian forces."

A Rhodesian army communique said Rhodesian troops attacked the headquarters of Nkomo's Zimbabwe African People's Union "from which terrorist operations ... are planned and have been launched against Rhodesia."

It said the troops were returning to their bases from the raid some 90 miles inside Zambia but gave no other details.

The Zambian government said Rhodesian warplanes began bombing the guerrilla camp at 8:30 a.m., and Zambian troops and ambulances were rushed to the site. Casualties were believed to be heavy, a dispatch from Lusaka said. It reported the bombing was felt in the shantytowns surrounding Lusaka, some of which were damaged by the impact of the explosions.

The road to the camp was reported crowded with vehicles taking dead and wounded to Lusaka's University Teaching Hospital.

There was no immediate comment from Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda, who earlier this month reopened the Zambian-Rhodesian border so imports could travel from South Africa and Mozambique across Rhodesia to his landlocked country.

The attack was the third major raid into Zambia which Rhodesian forces have admitted since Nkomo's and Mugabe's two guerrilla forces began their war against white rule six years ago. More than 10 cross-border attacks have been made against Mugabe's guerrilla forces in base camps in Mozambique, to the east of Rhodesia.

Zambia is on Rhodesia's northwest border.

On Wednesday, the Rhodesian military announced their second major attack within four weeks against the bases in Mozambique. Rhodesian troops were still fighting in Mozambique today, military sources said, but there has been no report of what they have achieved.

Nkomo is believed to have up to 10,000 guerrillas in camps in Zambia and Angola, while Mugabe has some 15,000 in Mozambique and 8,000 more operating inside Rhodesia.

The Zambian raid came on the eve of talks in Washington between U.S. and British officials and Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith. The British and American governments are trying to get Smith, Nkomo and Mugabe to open negotiations to form a government uniting all factions.

Farmville Chosen As Site For New Industrial Plant

FARMVILLE — Electrical Utilities Co. of La Salle, Ill. announced that it has selected Farmville as the site for a new 12,000 square foot manufacturing facility.

Richard L. Hauser, president and chief executive officer of E.U.C., said that start-up employment at the new plant will be approximately 25 people.

Hauser reported that construction on the ten-acre site in the western section of Farmville will begin this month, with plans calling for the plant to be operational by next February.

Electrical Utilities Co. manufactures capacitors, an electrical component used in many home appliances as well as industrial applications. The official said that the Farmville plant is in addition to existing facilities in La Salle, where some 250 people are employed.

"Our need for expansion as a result of recent growth has prompted our decision to build an additional plant," Hauser commented. "Farmville was chosen because of excellent labor availability, and a fine spirit of cooperation from townspeople, Farmville Industries, and the Economic Council."

The spokesman added that the Farmville location will place the company in a better geographic position to service existing customers in the northeast and southeast, as well as providing better access to raw materials located on the east coast.

Linwood E. Mercer, president of the Farmville Economic Council, pointed out, "We are very pleased to welcome the E.U.C. as a new corporate citizen in the Farmville area. The diversification and mix this industry will provide our area is a real asset."

He added, "Farmville pledges its support in making this a profitable and productive location."

Bruce Beasley Jr., chairman of the Pitt County Development Commission, stated, "The citizens of Farmville and the Farmville Economic Council are to be congratulated for the hard work and the effort put forth to secure this project for their community. Electrical Utilities Co. represents a high technology company that will continue to emphasize the diversification objectives of our commission."

Beasley said the "officials of E.U.C. are to be commended for selecting Farmville and for the confidence they have demonstrated in Pitt County by locating in our area."

The E.U.C. began as a partnership in 1934 in Chicago and was incorporated in the State of Illinois in 1939. Additional space requirements prompted a relocation of the entire business in 1943 to the present location in La Salle, the company reported.

Beasley said that there is a possibility that two additional industrial development announcements may be made for the Pitt County area before the end of the year.

Replacing Syrian Army At Beirut's Flashpoints

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press
Beirut, Lebanon (AP) —

Saudi Arabian and Sudanese troops prepared today to replace Syrian forces in flashpoints around Beirut's Christian sector as part of a plan to ward off further Syrian-Christian fighting.

Officials said the redeployment was the first step in a security plan worked out by Lebanese President Elias Sarkis to consolidate a 13-day-old cease-fire between the Syrians and Christian militias.

The plan was endorsed at a weekend meeting south of Beirut by Syria, Saudi Arabia and other Arab nations contributing troops or funds to the Syrian-dominated Arab Deterrent Force in Lebanon.

Saudi Arabia has 2,000 men, Sudan 800 and Syria more than 26,000 in the force, which is supposed to enforce the armistice that ended the Lebanese civil war in 1976.

Saudi armored cars waited at three locations in Beirut's Moslem sector, ready to cross the dividing "green line" as liaison officers checked deployment routes.

The Christian command announced it ordered its militiamen to observe the cease-fire strictly during the redeployment, which was expected to take 48 hours. But occasional gunfire was heard in the heart of the Christian enclave in the residential quarter of Ashrafieh and at the Quarantine Bridge where the Syrians have been blockading the Christian supply route from the hinterland north of the city to East Beirut.

The shooting did not prevent hard-pressed Christian inhabitants from surging to the streets to shop and line up for water.

Both sectors of the capital still was without public water as a result of the recent 10-days Syrian attack in which 1,200 Lebanese were reported killed. Electricity was rationed, but business started to pick up after announcement of the results of the Arab conference.

Sources at the headquarters of the Christian Phalange Party in the Ashrafieh district said they expected the Saudis and Sudanese to take over of the Quarantine Bridge and the 25-story Rizk Tower on Friday.

The Syrians used the unfinished skyscraper as a rocket base during the three major Syrian-Christian battles in and around Beirut in which 2,000 Lebanese have been reported killed in eight months.

A spokesman for the Arab Deterrent Force told reporters the Syrians would maintain other positions in the Christian enclave and would reinforce hilltop posts the Christian part of the city.

SOCIAL SECURITY TAXES

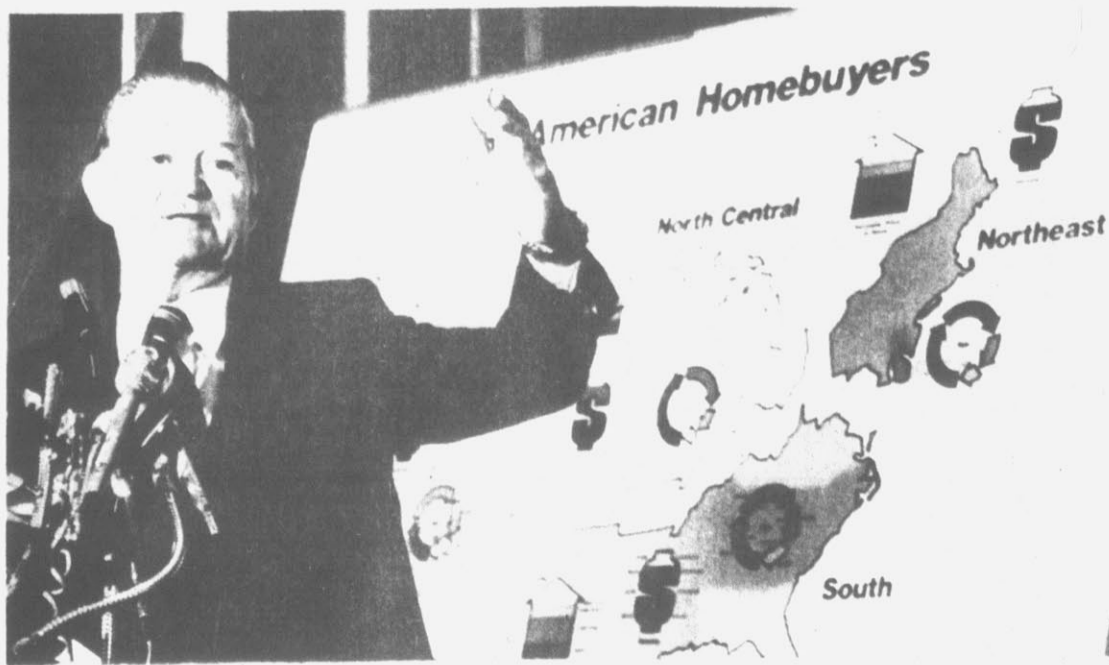

How much money is paid in payroll taxes annually by Pitt County wage earners and their employers?

Hotline contacted Mary Cain, social security manager, who informed us that the Internal Revenue Service would be the agency to contact to obtain those figures. She did so and found out that payroll taxes paid to Social Security are compiled on a state basis. There were no figures available on a county-by-county basis.

"We have had numerous requests for this information," said Cain, "and the IRS hopes to have it available by the first of the year."

Cain mentioned that many of the larger businesses located in Pitt County file their Social Security reports with the IRS through their home offices, the majority of which are located outside of North Carolina and would thus reflect amounts paid in those states, not North Carolina.

American Families Undeterred By Housing Costs

ON HOUSING COSTS — Joseph T. Benedict, vice president of the U.S. League of Savings Association, said yesterday that housing was one of the brightest spots in the national economy despite rising costs. (AP Laserphoto)

By MICHAEL DOAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — American families are taking extra jobs and stretching budgets to buy houses, but eventually the burden may be too much, money lenders say.

"Up to this point, people have been able to afford it," said Dennis J. Jacobs, a savings and loan economist. "However, if inflation continues the way it is, we have our doubts whether that can continue in the long run."

Despite soaring housing prices and interest rates, Americans are continuing to buy large numbers of houses.

The Commerce Department said Wednesday the number of housing units started in September rose 1.4 percent over August, reaching a rate that would mean 2.07 million new buildings for the year. Economists have been expecting housing demand to decline, but instead it is getting stronger.

The United States League of Savings Associations gave one reason in a report Wednesday: Forty-five percent of the housebuying families have two wage earners.

People are also cutting back on investments and other consumer goods to pay for the houses, the league said. And more of them are getting lower down payments.

As a result, they are able to pay housing costs that are going up about 10 to 15 percent a year and interest rates of close to 10 percent.

The league said the average family that bought a home in 1977 paid $400 per month in housing expenses. That included $273 for mortgage payments, $60 for utility bills, $54 for real estate taxes and $13 for insurance.

The rates were higher in big cities, led by San Francisco at $614, Washington, D.C. at $578, Los Angeles at $567, New York at $497 and Miami at $443.

Two of every five home buyers exceeded the traditional limit of spending 25 percent of their income on housing, the league said.

"A great many home buyers are stretching their housing budgets beyond once-standard rules of thumb to accommodate the higher monthly housing costs inflation has brought us," said Joseph T. Benedict, the league's vice president.

Government economists have expressed worry about the rising debt load Americans have taken on. As the unemployment rate has fallen, many housewives have taken jobs. If the economy went into a slump, they could lose those jobs.

Norman Strunk, the league's executive vice president, acknowledged that if one of two wage earners in a family were laid off, the family could face foreclosure. But he added that in the 1973-74 recession there were not many housing foreclosures.

"Most families know what they are getting into," Strunk said. "They want to keep that house."

"We aren't accepting any greater risks," he said. "But I am concerned that the process can't go on forever. A continuation of it is intolerable. At some point it's got to stop... Federal Reserve Chairman G. William Miller said Saturday that if a recession should hit, borrowers would have trouble paying off their loans.

Interrupted Unrighted Wrong Ran By Noises Into Catch 22 Ruling

NEW YORK (AP) — About one-third of the 2,800 concert patrons at Carnegie Hall and many members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra jumped from their seats and fled for cover when what sounded like a barrage of gunfire ripped through Tchaikovsky's Fourth Symphony.

It was about 9:30 p.m. Wednesday when "these wild gunshot sounding noises started resounding throughout the hall in a very loud volume," said orchestra spokesman Peter Gelb. "About a third of the audience leaped out of their seats and started running out of the auditorium. Members of the orchestra leaped off the stage through the wings, running for cover."

But the sound effects that might have gone better with the "1812 Overture" were actually caused by a malfunction in the hall's speaker system, according to Gelb.

He said the panicked members of the orchestra and audience were finally cajoled back to their seats by conductor Seiji Ozawa and violinist Isaac Stern who told them it was a sound system malfunction and that "everybody was safe."

"It was the first time since the bombing of Pearl Harbor that the Boston Symphony had been interrupted by 'something like this,'" Gelb said.

The orchestra was performing the opening concert of its New York season.

WASHINGTON (AP) — For more than 20 years, Beatrice Braude asked why she had been fired from her government job. She says nobody would tell her she was blacklisted as a security risk at the height of the McCarthy era.

She finally learned the truth and sued for back pay and reinstatement. On Wednesday came the irony. A federal court denied her claims, ruling that she had waited too long after her discharge to file the suit.

"It's Catch 22, that's what it is," said Miss Braude. "They are saying 'you should have sued' but it wasn't possible to sue."

It was impossible, she said, because she was able to get documentary proof only after passage of a law in 1974.

The United States Court of Claims divided 2-1 in rendering its decision. Miss Braude's lawyers said they may ask the full nine-member court to hear the case.

Miss Braude, described by one lawyer as a cheerful woman "who makes you wish she were your grandmother," said it all began with her firing on Dec. 31, 1953.

"I had just come back from Europe, doing some research in a small U.S. Information Agency unit, when the lady for whom I worked said I had been summoned by superiors," Miss Braude recalled Wednesday.

"She said that must be about the raise I recommended you for."

Instead, Miss Braude — now a French professor at the University of Massachusetts — was told she was part of a personnel cutback at the agency.

The firing began a 25-year fight to be rehired by Uncle Sam. Not, however, until Congress passed the Privacy Act of 1974 were her lawyers able to pry loose the USIA documents that told the true story.

His Love Poems Were Ordered

LONDON (AP) — Every day for 20 years, Antonio Dos Santos wrote his wife, Rosamunde, a love poem.

But Judge John Lately ruled at a divorce hearing Wednesday that the Portuguese-born Dos Santos didn't write the poems to celebrate the joys of marriage to his English wife, but because his domineering spouse expected her "mild and gentle" husband to write them.

Dos Santos did so in the hope his wife would leave him in peace, the judge said.

"She dominated him in every part of their life and everything had to be as she wanted," Lately said. During their marriage she "overpowered" him "and made him her creature."

The judge granted Dos Santos a divorce, saying his wife behaved unreasonably.

Miss McAllister Weds On Saturday Afternoon

AYDEN — The Ayden Christian Church was the scene of the Saturday afternoon wedding ceremony of Kathleen Ann McAllister and Ernest Franklin Albritton Jr. The ceremony was performed at 5:30.

Daughter of Jeffrey McAllister of Ayden and the late Mrs. Henrietta McAllister, the bride was given in marriage by her father. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Franklin Albritton Sr. of Grifton.

Miss Susan Demain of Ayden was the honor attendant and Miss Heather McAllister, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. The best man was the father of the bridegroom and ushers included Timmie and Tommie Albritton, twin brothers of the bridegroom.

A program of wedding music was presented by Larry Jones, pianist and vocalist. "Wedding Song" was the vocal selection for the ceremony.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Bobby Harris of Belvoir.

The bride wore a formal length gown of white qiana over white peau de sole designed with a high neckline encircled with silk floral Venise lace. The empire bodice was enhanced by a sheer yoke of imported English net embroidered in silk motifs. The long fitted sleeves were trimmed at the cuffs with silk Venise lace and the modified A-line skirt extended to a chapel length attached train. The gown was complemented by a hood of matching qiana outlined in lace matching her gown.

The maid of honor wore a formal length gown of greenspray knit designed with a portrait neckline featuring a bertha collar that extended over the shoulders to a fingertip length. The sleeveless gown was designed with a full flowing knife pleated skirt.

The bride's gown was designed identical to the that of the honor attendant in ice banana knit.

The mother of the bridegroom wore a pink formal dress with a white corsage.

A reception was held after the ceremony at the church in Johnson Hall.

The bride and bridegroom are both graduates of Ayden-Grifton High School and he is serving in the U. S. Air Force.

The couple will live near Sacramento, Calif.

Students' Ideas On Marriage Surveyed

By FRANCINE PERRY
ECU News Bureau

While equality between marriage partners is more generally expected by today's high school students than students of a decade or two ago, students who are white female and middle class are "more equalitarian" in their marital role expectations than those who are black, male and of working class background, say two East Carolina University sociologists.

These conclusions are based on research by former graduate student Kathy Moore and Dr. David Knox of the ECU sociology faculty. The Moore-Knox study involved 252 high school students from both urban and rural North Carolina schools.

The subjects responded to various situations, either agreeing or disagreeing, and their response indicated an "equalitarian" (both spouses as equals) or "traditional" (husband as breadwinner/wife as homemaker) outlook.

Replies were examined according to the sex, race and socioeconomic status of the respondents, in seven areas—authority, homemaking, child care, personal characteristics, social participation, education and employment.

In general, both sexes tended toward equalitarian views of marriage roles, although female students showed more liberal expectations than males.

"Forty-seven percent of the boys agreed that the husband should be 'boss' in a marriage, but only 23 percent of the girls agreed," noted Ms. Moore.

Both sexes indicated that homemaking should be shared, but a gender bias was observed: 90 percent of the girls agreed, as opposed to 70 percent of the boys.

Students of both sexes said responsibility for child care should be divided, but about 70 percent of the boys noted that the husband's major responsibility to his children is "to make a good living," while less than half of the girls agreed with this.

"The male's provider role was again emphasized in the area of personal characteristics," said Dr. Knox.

"Both sexes affirmed that any marriage partner should be congenial and interesting, but 48 percent of the boys felt that 'if the husband is a good worker, respectable and faithful to his family,' other qualities are less important, but only 34 percent of the girls agreed with this."

All students valued education for each spouse as important for "successful family living," but in the area of employment, boys again displayed a tendency to believe in the traditional male breadwinner role: 70 percent said they would have to earn a good living if they expected "love and respect" from the family. Only 36 percent of female respondents agreed.

When the students' replies were analyzed by race, Knox and Moore discovered a trend toward more traditional viewpoints among the black students.

For instance, only 51 percent of the white students thought "the wife should fit her life to her husband's," in contrast to 80 percent of the blacks.

At Wit's End

ITEM: A writer in the Midwest has been reviewing Sunday sermons like a critic reviews plays.

ITEM: A man in California was charged with allegedly hitting a priest whom he found to be boring during Mass. He said, "God made me do it."

ITEM: Church attendance reportedly falls off during football season.

These are all disturbing items, to which church leaders everywhere should be addressing themselves. Martha, a friend of mine who puts together the bulletin for her church each week, shares the same concern. "Something has to be done," she said, "to jolt people out of their apathy. Take this bulletin... please. Every week I break my back gathering information, typing it and making it fit. You know where it ends up? Blowing all over the parking lot. I suspect it rates somewhere between Somnax and sodium pentothal."

"Maybe you should try to jazz it up a bit," I suggested. "You know those tabloid papers you see in the supermarket at the checkout that scream, 'KARL MALDEN LOSES AMERICAN EXPRESS CARD,' 'RERUNS CAUSE MALIGNANCY,' or 'I WENT TOO FAR WITH CHERYL LADD.'"

"I missed that one. What happened?"

"A cab driver missed her house by two blocks."

The next Sunday, I saw the entire congregation in the parking lot in a state of paralysis. To look at them, you'd have thought E. F. Hutton was talking. They were all reading Martha's Sunday Church bulletin.

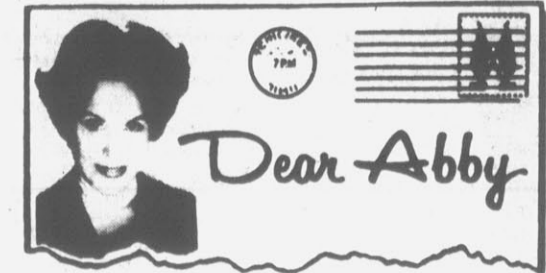

The front page headline caught my eye. "BAZAAR CHAIRMAN NEEDS CALL GIRLS." (A telephone committee to solicit volunteers for the church bazaar were urged to call Mrs. Edwards, 555-8878.)

"PARISH STANDS BY WHILE FATHER BOB IS COMMITTED." (Report of a meeting of the Holy Name group in which only three parishioners showed up.)

"FOUR GOSPELS HIT COUNTRY WESTERN CHART." (Bible study group planned for small suburban church.)

Martha said next week she was having Predictions from the Pulpit and tapes from the confessional.

Marriage Goes On Seven Days A Week

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Fred and I have been married 14 years — if you can call this a marriage. Fred says that marriage is a job, like any other job, and since everybody gets at least one day a week off from his job, a man should get a day a week off from his marriage. So, Fred works at our marriage six days a week, but takes Sundays off.

He leaves the house Saturday night, and I don't see him again until early Monday morning. He puts about 350 miles in his car and I don't have the slightest idea where he's been.

I never heard of any other couple with this kind of arrangement. Have you? But the way Fred explains it, it makes sense.

Is he crazy, or am I?

FRED'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Marriage is a seven-day-a-week job, and there's no time off for good (or bad) behavior. Fred is far from crazy, but I'm not so sure about you, if you're buying it.

DEAR ABBY: After being a widow for three years, I married a man I met in Miami last winter. (I'm 51 and Nate is 59.) You might call it a whirlwind romance, as we had known each other only three weeks. Nate had been divorced for five years.

I had never met any of his family and was looking forward to it. Well, yesterday Nate told me that he had received an invitation to his daughter's wedding, and hoped I wouldn't mind if HE went to Chicago for a few days without me. (We live in New York.)

Abby, I was flabbergasted! I am a lady, and refuse to be hidden away. Nate's family knows he has remarried, so why should they expect him to leave his wife home?

When I told him to tell his daughter that he wanted to bring his wife, he said that his daughter had asked him to please leave me home!

Are second wives supposed to just disappear on such occasions? I know lots of second wives who have attended the weddings of their husband's children by a previous marriage.

Should I insist that if he goes, I go? Or should I tell him that, if he goes, he doesn't have to come back? Or should I swallow my pride and let him go without me?

BURNING IN BINGHAMTON

DEAR BURNING: Let him go — alone. A lady goes only where she is invited.

DEAR ABBY: Just last month I met a very attractive man my own age (60). We met under sad circumstances — his wife was being buried that day. (His wife had been a friend of my sister's.) I have been a widow for several years, but this is the first man who has made me feel "alive" and I can't get him out of my mind.

I don't want him to think I am chasing him, but how can I see him again? I have a feeling he noticed me. All I have to go on is the look in his eyes when we met. He looked into my eyes as if he were reading my mind! And when we said goodbye, he touched my hand quite tenderly. When I walked away, something made me turn back and look at him once more, and there he was — still looking at me. Am I foolish to think he felt something special for me?

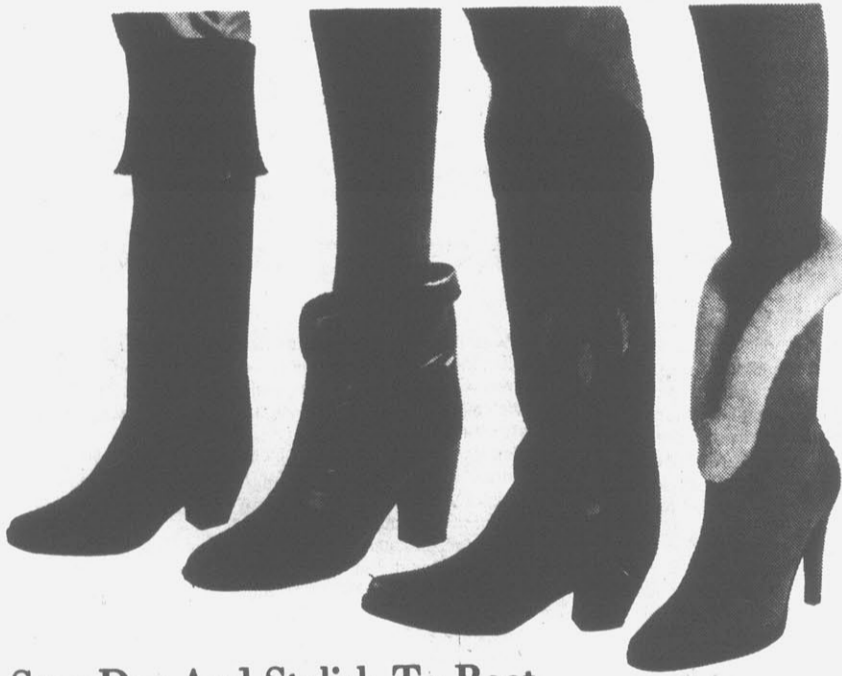

I don't want to wait too long before making a move because he is so very attractive I fear he won't be alone long.

What do you advise?

THINKING OF HIM

DEAR THINKING: You say that his wife had been a good friend of your sister. Ask your sister to invite this poor, grieving widower to her home for dinner. And you be there. How else?

Who said the teen years are the happiest? For Abby's new booklet "What Teenagers Want to Know," write Abby: 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Enclose $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope, please.

World Stirred By New Pope

The selection of Pope John Paul II has created an excitement that has seldom been seen among Catholics over several centuries.

The new pope is non-Italian — the first to come from outside Italy for 455 years. That, in itself is likely to bring new ideas for Catholics, and very likely a new relationship between the Roman Catholic Church and other Christian denominations.

Too, the selection of Cardinal Karol Wojtyla brings a man to the papacy from the communist country of Poland, and that could mean a change in the relationship of the church with the communist world.

It would be a major mistake to expect radical changes from the Vatican with the naming of the Polish pope.

He combined the names of his three predecessors — John Paul II — to signal a continuation of the policies, going back to the second Vatican Council in 1962-65.

That will likely mean gradual reforms within the church, continued improved relations with other Christian faiths and efforts toward better relations with communist governments.

The selection of the Polish pope was surprising, but positive for the church in its relationship with non-Catholics throughout the world.

Once You Get Sandspurs, You're Stuck

Down at Emerald Isle the Department of Transportation seeded shoulders following road improvements.

Unfortunately sandspurs — the mayor says millions of them — sprouted up among the grass. And at a resort area where most people go barefooted sandspurs can be a disaster.

It prompted Mayor Ronald O. Watson to complain to DOT, but alas, anyone who has had experience with sandspurs is aware that once you get them you are just stuck with them... no pun intended.

At any rate DOT has promised to spray in an effort to eliminate the sandspurs next spring. Maybe it will work, but the barefooted vacationers will still have to look out for seashells.

THIS AFTERNOON Parks Like 'Empty Bldg.'

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Blessed with some of nature's most admirable handiwork, North Carolina has moved aggressively to lock up more than 100,000 acres of parkland for use by people.

But the effort so far has produced more raw acres than places for people to do things.

That blunt conclusion by a legislative study commission is graphically spelled out in a five-year development plan undergoing public hearings this week in Raleigh.

"The Park and recreation system in North Carolina is like a new house with empty rooms.

"It's pretty from the outside, but of minimum benefit when there's no furniture inside.

"The time has come to appropriately furnish our parks and recreation system for the citizens of North Carolina," that study commission finds.

Then, with the theme of making the parks more usable by more people running throughout the lengthy development plan, a series of new approaches are called for.

Cost

The total cost of the five-year plan would top $69 million. Some $12.5 million of that would come from federal funds for added land. New programs and people to run them would cost about $9.2 million, and developing usable facilities another $31.7 million.

The commission determined that since 1974 the state has done very well in acquiring new park land. So well, in fact, that no new parks are suggested, but that land acquisitions now be directed at buying natural areas adjoining existing parks. No money is proposed for new parks.

If a need is shown, the commission suggests seeking additional money in the future, and mentions the Central Piedmont as an area where a new park might be needed as the philosophy of providing parks where the people are takes effect.

The major emphasis in the plan is on "making the parks and recreation system more usable for the public." Considerable attention is given to water activities.

Other proposals include expanded camping facilities, construction of rental cabins and lodges, marinas and swimming areas, a statewide network of trails for hiking, biking, horses, and off-road vehicles.

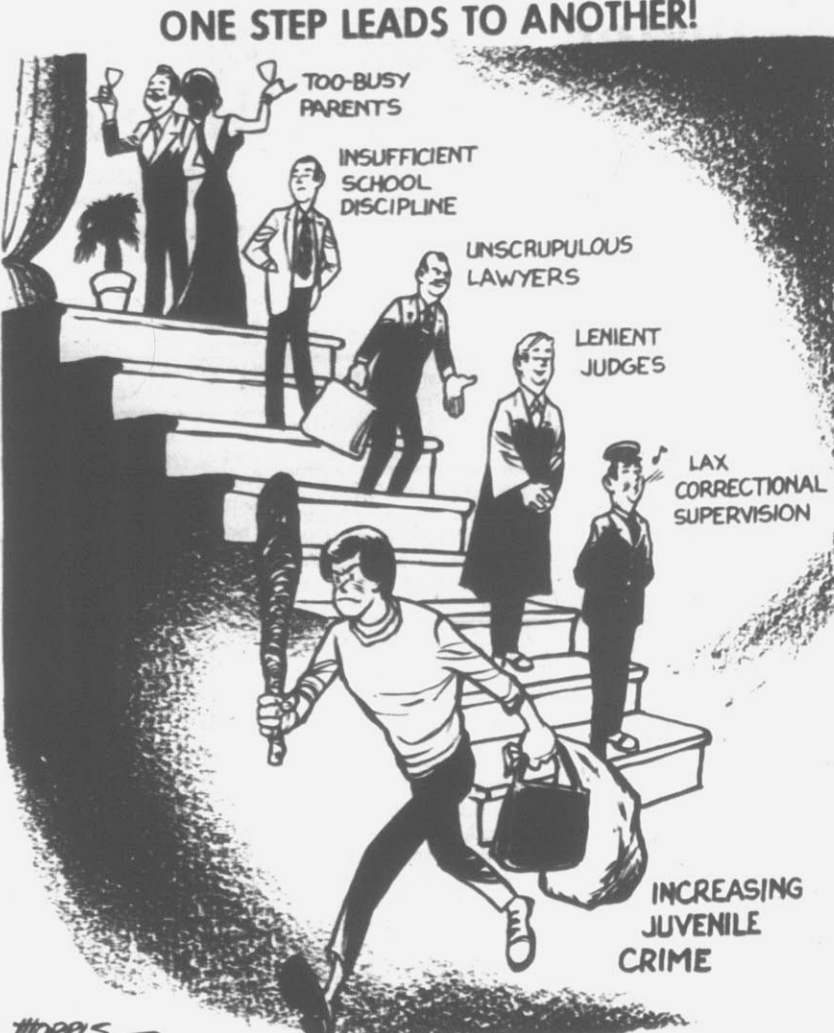

Till now, most of the emphasis in state parks has been at gaining and protecting natural areas. Wilderness camping has been encouraged, along with picnicking and other limited-use activities.

At the same time, people using the parks have increased rapidly. "Other parks with little or no facilities can not relieve the pressure on developed parks, nor can they adequately serve the persons visiting them," the report noted. And while the park system has nearly doubled in size in just four years, "facilities and staff in those parks to make the parks enjoyable has not kept pace."

When adopted finally by the study commission, the recommendations will go to the 1979 General Assembly for funding. Co-chairmen of the study are State Senator James B. Garrison, D-Stanly, and State Rep. G. Ronald Taylor, D-Columbus.

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK An On-Going Struggle

In the history of this Republic, the fight for freedom of religion antedates even the fight for freedom of the press. The two struggles have this in common, that they never end. It is one battle after another. In Frankfort, Ky. the other day, freedom won a victory.

A Kentucky Circuit Court judge, Henry Meigs, handed down an opinion completely vindicating a group of Christian fundamentalist congregations that have set up their own private schools. Metaphorically, at least, the court posted a sign in front of the schools that will say to state officials: Hands off! The schools need to comply only with public regulations having to do with health and safety. For the time being, pending appeal, the state cannot enforce rules governing the who and what and how of teaching.

The Kentucky battle had all the elements of high drama. Every powerful force in the commonwealth was arrayed against the fundamentalist parents and their children. Back in May of 1977, for reasons that never became clear, the State Board of Elementary and Secondary Education suddenly began a crackdown on church-sponsored private schools. The board denied accreditation to 20 such schools, and it ordered local school officials to prosecute parents who enrolled their children in non-approved institutions.

In the fall of 1977, the Christian parents were put ominously on notice. After 16 days, their children would be charged as "habitual truants". In Fayette County, Superintendent Guy S. Potts let it be known that any person who "knowingly induces, assists or causes a minor to become a habitual truant" is subject to 12 months in prison and a fine of $500.

The Christian schools stood firm. They retained William B. Ball of Harrisburg, Pa., to bring suit for injunctive relief. Ball is the Clarence Darrow of religious freedom. He won the Amish case in Wisconsin, the Dunkard case in Ohio, and he is on his way toward winning another such case in North Carolina. Ball came to Frankfort, hoping to talk all hands into a friendly settlement, but he met a reception from the state board that was 10 degrees below zero. So he sued.

Judge Meigs granted a preliminary injunction. The case came to trial in mid-August. It was a honey of a trial. The state board retained one of the most colorful figures in the commonwealth, former Governor Bert Combs, as special defense counsel. Combs is also a former U.S. Circuit Judge, and a senior partner

Other Editors Say Catering To Sloppy

(Greensboro Daily News)

It's as American as apple pie to think up changes for efficiency, and so we knew sooner or later the North Carolina Division of Motor Vehicles would worry itself into doing something about those long lines that build up at state license plate offices every February.

You know how frustrating it can be to get caught in that situation in the middle of a Tar Heel blizzard. So down in Raleigh they're talking about a new plan involving staggered auto tag sales throughout the year.

On its face the plan sounds inviting. Motorists would stop at a license office during a designated period. Previously they would have been told when to renew, possibly based on the order of numerals on license tags or on the motorist's birthday (as with driver's licenses).

Well, the system would cut down on long lines in mid-winter. But we can think of several other considerations not so much on the positive side.

One of them is expense. Officials estimate the change-over would require about 70 full-time employees and could cost the department as much as $1 million initially. Naturally, the department believes the new system would save money in the long run. But that's always the prediction.

Presently the department hires about 100 people to work part-time during the annual renewal period. It has hired as many as 300. Nobody knows what the extra expense would be at local offices (some of them privately managed); but we guarantee it would be substantial on a permanent, year-around basis. Just think about the down-time when no customers would show up.

In the second place, we're not so sure there's a real problem here. Those folks who wait until the last minute — and create all those lines snaking through the parking lots — probably get what they deserve. And most of them know it.

It's been our experience that dropping by the license tag office at some off-beat moment (certainly well before February 15) solves the problem every time.

Should the Division of Motor Vehicles start pandering to the sloppiest among us, to the tune of millions of extra tax dollars? Not on your life. This is Proposition 13 season, brother.

WASHINGTON DATELINE Accountability A Must

By REP. R.E. BAUMAN of Maryland

What do many Congressmen fear the most? War? Inflation? Election Day?

If the House leadership is any indication, many Congressmen's greatest fear is accountability. The very idea of having to go on record as being for or against something is almost enough to cause some Members to tremble. As a result, influential Members of the House of Representatives have been trying to limit the ability of other Members to request roll call votes.

A roll call vote takes 15 minutes. Any Congressman can demand one, and it is done electronically. Each Representative carries a plastic card with a personal coding, so that by inserting the card in a terminal on the House floor he can record his vote. Bells and lights throughout the House office buildings signal Congressmen who are attending committee meetings or doing other work to alert them that a vote is in progress.

So why the push to deny the voters the right to see how their Representatives vote? Because an increasing number of bills are being pushed through without thorough debate, by suspending house rules, and deals can be made and votes traded (or arms twisted) much more readily if the public never learns how a Congressman voted on any given issue.

Critics of roll call votes say that most votes occur on issues that are non-controversial, and pass overwhelmingly. But what may appear routine to much of the nation may be of great importance locally. Also, getting Congressmen on record can change the outcome of a voice vote, since the threat of being under public scrutiny can make them see things a little differently. Two years ago, for instance, a $150,000 Congressional junket to pick up a

Tax Law Corrects Old Abuse

By JOHN CUNIFF AP Business Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — The tax bill passed by Congress appears to include a gift for homeowners, especially those over age 55, who would be able to avoid capital gains taxes on profits from selling their homes.

Under the bill, homeowners of at least that age, would be able to sell their home and avoid taxes on "profits" from the sale. While the exemption would apply only once in a lifetime, it could involve sizable dollars.

But a gift? Some will view it instead as the correction of an old abuse. They feel they have been sending gifts to Uncle Sam for years, and that ungrateful Sam has only asked for more.

They are inclined to give illustrations such as this: The home was bought in 1950 for $11,500. Now, 30 years later, it is sold for $48,000, or $36,500 more. Improvements worth $10,000 were made, however, so they are deducted from the purchase price.

That still leaves a $26,500 gain. Even after subtracting the broker's $2,880 commission from the selling price, the homeowner appears to have a profit of $23,620. Not bad, he says.

For many years Uncle Sam said the same thing, and applied to that "profit" a capital gains tax. It meant that one-half the $23,620, or $11,810, was assessed at the seller's ordinary income tax rate.

Assuming a 25 percent tax bracket, the seller therefore owed Uncle Sam $2,952.50. But by more rational standards, the seller really owed Uncle Sam nothing.

Not a dollar. Not a penny.

In those 28 years, the purchasing power of the dollar declined almost steadily, and in recent years, rapidly, so that today's dollar is really worth something like 35 percent of the 1950 dollar.

Relatively speaking, therefore, the seller did not obtain $48,000 for his house but probably $17,500 in real — that is, comparable — dollars. Deduct $1,000 for the commission, and we have $16,500.

Steady improvements over the years cost perhaps $5,000 in terms of the 1950 dollar, rather than the $10,000 worth of receipts the seller accumulated. Those improvements, remember, were in current dollars.

Still, deducting $5,000 brings the real price down to $11,500, the same as in 1950.

It means no real profit for the seller. And if the new legislation is signed, it will mean no tax payment to Uncle Sam.

For years, however, capital gains have been taxed as real rather than imaginary. Sellers, who did not reinvest in another home of at least the same price within 18 months, paid taxes on "profits."

Assuming President Carter signs the legislation, it would seem these homeowners will be receiving what they should have received a long time ago: simple justice.

But, while the problem is perhaps the most serious for homeowners, the same illogic exists for all capital gains. The value of various investments seem to have soared when they have moved very little.

Strength For Today

GRAFTED FOR QUICK GROWTH

There are many things in life which produce quick, external growth, but have no capacity to bring forth beautiful bloom. Money spent on an endless round of pleasure gives great promise of happiness, but in the end the very tree of life itself is blighted. Every form of sensual and intemperate indulgence is long on promises and short on flower, seed, and harvest. The flowers thus produced are stunted.

But the trouble is that while the privet roots produce plenty of foliage and growth for the lilacs, they do not, for some reason, produce good bloom. So a lovely flourishing lilac bush may turn out to have small, dwarfed flowers which quickly wither and die.

in Tarrant, Combs and Bullitt, one of the state's most prestigious law factories. The Tarrant firm put three lawyers on the case, including another former judge.

The powerful Louisville papers got into the act with editorials defending the principle of state control over minimum standards of education in church-related schools. Governor Julian Carroll added his influence in public statements deploring the fundamentalists' position as a threat to the quality of education in Kentucky.

Ball put together a beautiful case. His pastors, parents and children testified eloquently to the religious nature of their schools. He brought in educational experts to dispute the value of teacher certification. The silver-haired Combs fought back every inch of the way.

On October 3, Judge Meigs found for the plaintiff schools on every significant point. The state had demonstrated no compelling need to impose its regulations upon the schools. The schools were an "exercise of religion", absolutely protected by the Constitution.

Judge Meigs rejected the state's contention that its rules were benign, minimal, and subject to flexible interpretation. The standards were "mandatory". To gain approval, he said, a church-related school must comply strictly with them. But especially in the matter of textbooks' the court ruled that the state could not constitutionally impose its choice — even a choice among ten books per course — upon Christian parents who wanted Bible-related textbooks instead. As for certification, "the extent or duration of teacher training can not be demonstrated by professional research to have any effect at all upon student academic achievement."

The state is appealing. Eventually the case may reach the U.S. Supreme Court, but for now the fundamentalists' bells are ringing — for schools, and for freedom too.

Simpler Tax Forms Have Price

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — When the time comes to file federal income taxes in 1979, most taxpayers will find the process a little simpler because of the tax bill just passed by Congress. But simplicity has its price.

—As many as 2 million couples or single people would pay higher taxes because Congress voted to eliminate the existing individual tax credit in the name of simplicity.

—Millions who itemize deductions would no longer be allowed a federal tax break for the state and local gasoline taxes they pay.

—The 25 tax brackets in current law would be reduced to 15 for couples and 16 for single people. This simplifies the tax laws and allows somewhat higher earnings before the individual is pushed into a higher tax bracket — a move calculated to partially offset the effects of inflation. However, it simplifies the filing process for relatively few people because most taxpayers already need only look at a table to determine how much they owe.

The changes, if President Carter signs the tax bill, will apply to the 1979 tax year. Most taxpayers would not encounter them until they file their 1979 returns in early 1980.

Here are some details:
TAX CREDITS — Current law allows a taxpayer to reduce taxes owed by $35 for oneself, a spouse and dependents. A four-member family would subtract $140 from its tax bill. That's simple enough.

But in an effort to spread some tax relief to middle-income single people and small families, Congress had allowed an option to the straight $35-per-person credit. Instead, a taxpayer — individual or family — could take a credit for 2 percent of the first $9,000 of taxable income, or a maximum credit of $180.

The Internal Revenue Service found a lot of taxpayers were confused by the option and many made mathematical errors. So now, Congress is getting rid of the credit and the option.

As a substitute, the current $750-per-person exemption would be increased to $1,000.

GASOLINE TAXES — Ending the gasoline-tax deduction aims not only to eliminate mathematical mistakes but to make it more attractive for people to stop itemizing deductions and start taking the standard deduction.

About three-quarters of the 88.5 million individual tax returns now use the standard deduction; nearly all who itemize claim a deduction for state and local gasoline taxes. Repealing the deduction would cost these itemizers an average of about $30 more a year in federal income tax.

The IRS has always had problems policing the gasolinetax deduction because there is no easy way to determine the accuracy of the mileage driven and the fuel efficiency of a car when a taxpayer claims the deduction.

One Injured In Accident

One person was reported injured and an estimated $1,100 damage resulted from two traffic mishaps investigated yesterday by Greenville Police.

Officers reported Thomas Eberowitz of Route 3, Ayden, was injured when he stepped from the curb into the side of a car driven by Nancy Thomas Harris of Route 1, Greenville about 5:25 p.m. at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Fifth Street.

Eberowitz was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment of injuries he received in the mishap.

Cars driven by Teresa Louise Lamb of Tarboro, and Pauline Barnes Holmes of Route 2, Walstonburg collided about 3:40 p.m. at the intersection of Memorial Drive and the Belvoir Highway, causing an estimated $800 damage to the Lamb vehicle and $300 damage to the Holmes car.

Constitutional business. So the only real business that remains, where the presence of a quorum can be demanded, is in voting. Now, those who would make Congress a rubber stamp want to take away the right to call for votes also.

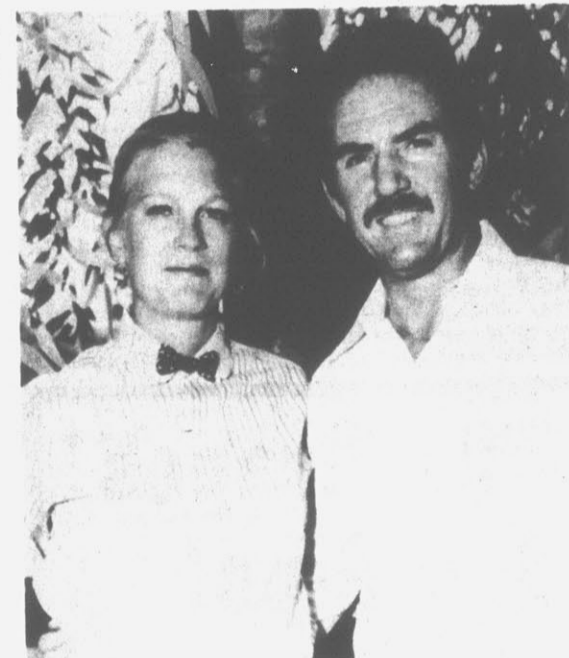

After the second try by House leaders to change the rules and curtail what they see as a nuisance, I spoke personally with Speaker "Tip" O'Neill and asked him not to allow rules changes at this time for the protection of all parties and philosophies, not just my own. He agreed to postpone debate on the rules changes until the 96th Congress next year.

A small victory has been won, then, in the battle that should never have been. A legislative body that denies the electorate the right to see its processes and hold it accountable for its actions is one that takes a long step towards tyranny. Dictatorship, whether by one or by a majority, is an ever-present danger even in a democracy.

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Diplomats report the Carter administration plans to get Egypt and Israel involved in joint economic projects funded by the United States as soon as they have signed a peace treaty.

The sources said administration officials plan to lose no time in getting the two countries working together in a relationship that will cement the treaty, but they are having trouble coming up with enough ideas to match the amount of spending envisaged.

The diplomats, who are Western and refused to be quoted by name, said there was favorable sentiment in Congress to increase U.S. aid to Egypt by about 50 percent to roughly $1.5 billion yearly. Aid to Israel would be beefed up similarly.

Much of the extra aid money would be earmarked for projects of common interest to the two neighboring countries, which have been in a state of war for the past 30 years.

"The trouble is there are not enough projects easily identifiable that the two countries could get interested in," one source said. Egypt and Israel are separated by the 140-milewide Sinai Desert, which Israel occupied in the 1967 war. Under the projected treaty it is to be returned to Egypt in a maximum of three years.

It would be easier to find projects involving Israel, Jordan and the occupied West Bank that lies between them, the diplomats added.

The diplomats said the White House, the State Department and the Department of Energy are involved in the preliminary planning.

"The kind of spending being talked about would have to be approved right at the top," one source said.

The United States will probably finance the construction of a road from the eastern Sinai across a narrow strip of Israel to Jordan, the diplomats said. The road was specifically approved in the Camp David frameworks.

Another possibility would be a "Fulbright scholarship program" for experts and technicians from Egypt and Israel, the diplomats said. The Fulbright program, named for former Sen. J. William Fulbright, brought students from foreign countries to the United States. The diplomats said the Egyptian-Israeli program would exchange technical expertise between the two countries but the United States would pay the bill.

A primary field of cooperation would be energy, the diplomats said. They predicted that Israel would be allowed to buy the oil they have discovered in the Sinai and offshore from it after the fields are returned to Egypt. "But that would be a straight commercial transaction," one source said. He said the exact nature of Egyptian-Israeli cooperation on energy remains to be decided.

Accuse Contractors Of Role In Fraud At GSA

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prosecutors have accused four private contractors in the Washington, D.C., area of conspiring with federal workers to defraud the government of $580,000, the latest in a string of charges involving the General Services Administration.

Criminal informations were filed Wednesday in U.S. District Court, charging that the contractors made up or inflated contracts totaling about $1.4 million in order to share $380,000 in kickbacks and other payoffs with GSA employees.

The contractors are David H. Smith, Robert C. Wear, Thomas E. Jenkins and James B.

Wheatley. GSA employees accused of conspiring with them were not charged in the criminal complaints.

Criminal informations are formal charges filed in court in place of grand jury indictments.

Eighteen GSA store managers and other employees were indicted earlier by a federal grand jury in Baltimore, accused of padding supply invoices in return for gifts from private firms.

Fifteen have pleaded guilty to conspiring to defraud the government; one has pleaded not guilty, and two others are still to be arraigned.

The maximum penalty for conviction of the fraud conspiracy charge is five years in jail and a $10,000 fine.

Wednesday's new charges concern contracts for maintenance and repair work on federal buildings.

Smith is accused of helping defraud the government of $210,000, which he is alleged to have divided with conspirators who worked for GSA. Wear is accused of taking part in a $310,000 fraud, and Jenkins and Wheatley are each accused of dividing $30,000 with GSA workers. The GSA employees got most of the money in all cases, prosecutors said.

Jay Solomon, GSA's administrator, has predicted at least 60 indictments will result from various government investigations into charges of widespread corruption over more than a decade at the agency which is the federal government's principal landlord and supplier.

Water Short In Western N.C.

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A hot, dry summer has brought a severe water shortage to Western North Carolina towns that has closed down schools and sparked fears of real water emergencies.

Schools were closed half a day Monday and Tuesday in Andrews and Robbinsville to conserve water, but classes were back in session Wednesday.

Andrews Mayor Ty Burnette said a well at a local plant had been hooked up to the town's water system, and the extra 50 gallons a minute was enough to allow a full class schedule.

Robbinsville officials have ordered strict conservation measures which cut school water use from 50,000 gallons a day to between 5,000 and 6,000 gallons, allowing schools to operate on their regular schedules.

The town's only laundramat and all car washing facilities remained shut down Wednesday.

Officials in several mountain towns say unless heavy rains fall within the next week or two they will be forced to have water trucked in.

Other towns with water shortages include:

—Boone, where the water situation is still severe, despite help from Appalachian State University.

—Brevard, where Brevard College took fall break two days early because of the water shortage.

—Sylva, where the reservoir was down by two thirds and officials were pumping water from Fisher Creek and urging citizens to boil it before drinking.

—Weaverville and Woodfin, where the water shortage forced a hookup with the Asheville water system.

Charge Five In Drug Ring

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — A federal grand jury here has indicted five North Carolinians on charges of conspiracy to import $1.5 million worth of cocaine into the United States.

All five are charged with conspiring to import "large quantities of cocaine."

The five indicted last week include Stanley Roger Carter, 28, of Rockwell; Carlene Leverne Tucker of Faith; Reba Ayne Jones Bailey of Mount Pleasant; Luther Monroe Brown Jr., 20, of Concord; and Leslie Colin Lowrance, 21, of Greensboro. Sources close to the investigation said there were about 6½ pounds of cocaine with a street value of $1.5 million. Agents found the drug concealed in a woman's girdle.

The five pleaded innocent last week during arraignment in Greensboro. Their trial has been scheduled for Nov. 14.

According to the indictment, last November Brown, Carter and Lowrance went to Lima, Peru, Panama City, Panama and Nassau in the Bahamas to buy cocaine.

The indictment said the cocaine was purchased by Dec. 2 and they were back in Miami by Dec. 3. The three then went from Miami to Carter's home near Rockwell "carrying a quantity of cocaine," the indictment said.

Mrs. Bailey and Mrs. Tucker discussed importing cocaine in a telephone conversation with Carter in April, the indictment said. It said the women went with Carter to Lima on a second cocaine-buying trip.

Officers said Mrs. Bailey was arrested in Nassau carrying cocaine in her girdle.

How's The Weather?

WEATHER FORECAST — Warm weather is expected in the forecast period, Thursday until Friday morning from southern California into the Midwest. Cool weather is due across most of the northern states. Skies are predicted to be mostly cloudy. (AP Laserphoto)

By The Associated Press
The high pressure area that dominated North Carolina weather for the past couple of days will give way to a cold front moving in from the north, according to the National Weather Service.

The front was expected to enter the state this afternoon. The air behind the front was relatively dry and was not expected to bring rain with it.

Wednesday skies were clear and sunny after early morning fog dotted the state. Highs were in the 60s, except in Wilmington, where it was 71 degrees.

There was no precipitation across the state for the past 24 hours, and none was expected through Friday morning. Friday should be mostly sunny with highs in the upper 50s in the northwest mountains to the low 70s along the coast. Nighttime lows will range from 30s in the northwest mountains to around 50 on the Outer Banks. The weekend will be fair and mild with temperatures warming by Monday.

New Perspective On Awaiting Death

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Marvella Bayh, wife of Indiana Democratic Sen. Birch Bayh, says the simple things in life, like the smell of fried chicken and the sound of rain pattering on the roof, took on new significance when doctors told her she had about a year to live.

In the November Good Housekeeping magazine, Mrs. Bayh writes about "My Fight Against Cancer." In the article, she says her doctor told her in February she had "one good year" to live, "and perhaps five or six or more, with treatment" of her breast cancer.

Mrs. Bayh, 45, writes that she began sobbing. "Suddenly everything seemed unreal. All the speeches I'd made about cancer, facts and figures, research and progress, became jumbled in my head. Finally, Birch insisted I try to eat something. He drove to a carry-out restaurant and brought back some chicken. As he walked in, the smell of fried chicken seemed so great, a pleasure I wanted to savor, to hold on to. I heard the rain

"The recurrence has changed my perspective on life," Mrs. Bayh told a reporter later. "After my recurrence I really have a new personal relationship with my God, which I hadn't had before."

Farm Market Is On Wheels

SPARTA, N.C. (AP) — Sparta has put its agricultural services markets on wheels and is taking them wherever farmers have produce to sell.

The Alleghany Farmers Market is housed in a modified mobile home and can be driven from site to site.

"If every little town had one of these, they would be performing a real service for the people," said B.B. Hawkins. Hawkins had driven over from neighboring Surry County to sell sweet potatoes, honey, side meat and two live roosters. Several Alleghany residents had tomatoes, corn, beans, squash and cucumbers to offer.

The state Agricultural Extension Service operates three mobile roadside markets. They are part of an experimental effort organized by extension workers at A & T State University in Greensboro to help generate more income for small farmers and home gardeners.

"Without the market, people with surplus products and people who need these products have no way of getting together," said Bobby Edwards, extension technician in Alleghany County who oversees the local market.

In addition to the mobile market in Alleghany County, the extension service has a unit in Pamlico County and a third unit that is shared by Warren and Franklin counties.

Dr. Lionel Williams, extension economist at A & T, said the markets went into operation this summer and have been "a learning experience."

"For some farmers, this has been their first experience in direct marketing," Williamson said. "One point that we are trying to get across is that the markets are not a place to dump surplus produce. We want farmers to think about quality as a way of building sales for the future."

Instructor Is A Winner

J. Sam Arnett, an architectural drafting technology instructor at Pitt Technical Institute, has been named second place winner in a state-wide solar house/energy efficient design contest.

The presentation was made at the North Carolina Solar and Appropriate Technology conference held in Raleigh Saturday and Sunday. Wallace Kaufman, president of the North Carolina Land Trustees of America, Inc., sponsors of the contest, made the presentation.

The conference was funded by the United States Department of Energy and the North Carolina Energy Division.

The contest was intended to promote design of low cost, low technology and energy efficient housing that would be attractive to a large segment of the state population. Judging was conducted by a panel of energy experts and the National Center for Appropriate Technology in Butte, Mont.

Arnett designed a 990 square foot passive solar house with a wood stove back-up heating system. A greenhouse was included as part of the house, as well as the heating system.

Fear Emissions Health Hazard

MIDWAY, N.C. (AP) — Four families who live near the Owens-Illinois Co. glass bottle factory here say plant emissions are causing breeding problems with their animals, and they are afraid their own health may be in danger.

The families say they have had problems breeding cattle, pigs, cats, goats and rabbits. They aired their complaints at the Sept. 28 meeting of the Davidson Planning and Zoning Board.

"What I want to know," said Lynn Griggs, "is if it's doing this to my animals, then what is it doing to me?"

Plant officials have denied any connection between the ash and smoke emissions and the breeding problems in the area. They say the plant's emission levels fall within guidelines set by the state.

Fin Johnson, regional supervisor for the state Department of Natural Resources and Community Development, confirmed that the plant meets all air emission requirements, even though local residents have complained of foul odors and snow-like ash particles from the plant.

Johnson said the department would try to determine if something in either the air or water could be the cause of the breeding difficulties.

"This kind of thing is like looking for a needle in a haystack," Johnson said. "What we're looking for is probably something exotic. We'll probably go out and do a sample of water in the wells. After that I hope some of the state's veterinary people will be able to tell us something to look for."

Wrong Season For 3 Burglars

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Three men who tried to burglarize a lodge shouldn't have tried so close to Halloween — and at the witching hour yet.

Police said the three forced open a back door at the Odd Fellows Lodge here, piled several items on the floor, then went upstairs, where a casket with a skeleton inside had been set up in anticipation of a Halloween meeting.

Investigators said the three were so frightened that they dropped several pieces of booty into a pile at the door and then ran through a plate glass window to get out.

J.L. Jousert, who works nearby, said he heard a crash and saw two men drive off in a fast-moving car, hotly pursued by a third man who was running as fast as he could.

In Memory Of

K. D. GORHAM

Perhaps you sang a lovely song
Or sat quietly in a chair.
Perhaps you sent beautiful flowers.
If so, we saw them there.
Perhaps you sent or spoke kind words
As any friend could say.
Perhaps you were not there at all.
Just thought of us that day.
Perhaps you prepared some tasty food
Or maybe furnished a car.
Perhaps you gave financial aid, or rendered a service unseen.
Whatever you did to console the heart,
We thank you so much whatever the part.

Rose Seeks To Halt Skid Vs. Knights

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
Rose High School's Rampants open up a two-game home stand Friday night, entertaining the Knights of Northern Nash High School.

While the odds are now stacked against the Rampants as far as a post-season berth is concerned, there remains a certain amount of pride, and the 7:30 p.m. game in Ficklen Stadium could go a long way toward redeeming some dented spirits.

The Rampants come into the game following a bitter 6-0 defeat at the hands of Bertie Senior High last weekend. The game saw several key penalties that hurt Rose chances, and Coach Dave Bumgarner is still unhappy about the results of those yellow flags.

"After seeing the films, it was easy to tell that we didn't play as well as we are capable of. But when we did do something well, a penalty seemed to set us back. Bertie is a very good football team, but at times, it seemed like other things hurt us worse than Bertie did."

Bumgarner said. "All three of the key plays that resulted in penalties against us (clipping call, and two unsportsmanlike conduct penalties) show up on the field, and didn't do anything to change my mind that the officials missed the calls. The first should never have been called, and the second should have been a face-masking call against Bertie, and the last should have been pass interference."

Bumgarner said the players, however, got too involved with the officials actions and forgot to play the game. "They lost sight of their objective and worried about what the officials were going to call," he said.

The coach also had praise for Bertie. "They keyed on the fullback and stopped up. But then, we blocked poorly and our fullbacks didn't run the ball well either. We have to establish our fullback game if we are going to make the rest of the stuff work."

Seer Apparently Hit Series On The Head

BALTIMORE (AP) — Mark Stone, a stockbroker and self-styled psychic who has appeared on national television, apparently predicted correctly the outcome of each game of the 1978 World Series, including key plays like Reggie Jackson's full-count strikeout and Dave Lopes two-home run performance.

Stone picked the New York Yankees winning the series in six games, saying they would lose the first two games, then take four in a row.

He missed on the scores of three games — all by one run. But he made up for that by uncannily forecasting key plays and trends for all six games between the American League champion Yankees and the National League champion Los Angeles Dodgers.

"It was quite trying," Stone said Wednesday night as his predictions were opened by sports broadcaster Klaus Wagner on WJZ-TV here. "I'm glad it's over."

Stone wrote his predictions on a single sheet of paper Oct. 8, two days before the first game in Los Angeles. The paper was placed in a matchbox which was bound with a rubber band and sealed in an envelope.

That, in turn, was locked in a metal box which was wrapped in brown paper and taped shut, then given to Wagner on the air. Wagner held it until Wednesday night when it was opened during the station's evening newscast.

Stone's predictions included: Game 1 — The Dodgers "will be up" for the series opener.

Yankees winning the series in six games, saying they would lose the first two games, then take four in a row.

Game 2 — Reggie Jackson will come to bat with two outs in the bottom of the ninth, the Yankees down by one run and the potential winning run on base. "On a full count, Reggie will take a mighty swing and the ball will go no where." The Yankees slugger will then throw his bat in disgust. The Dodgers win, 4-3. That's the way it happened.

Game 3 — Yankees third baseman Graig Nettles "will save several runs with an incredible fielding display." Nettles turned in a performance reminiscent of Baltimore's Brooks Robinson in the 1970 Series, stifling Dodgers rallies and helping the Yanks win 5-1. Stone missed the score, picking the Yanks 4-1.

Aycock came back with another touchdown in the third quarter. Robert Brown scored that one on a 53-yard run, with Jeff Porter adding the PAT run to up it to 16-0.

Kinston scored its touchdown after that, on a 50-yard pass. Aycock closed out the scoring with a 56-yard run by Chris McLawhorn.

Bucs' Attitude Worries Dye

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

A somber Pat Dye went before his weekly press conference yesterday, worried about his team's mental outlook as the Pirates head down the stretch of the 1978 season.

The Bucs have four games left to play, including this Saturday's 1:30 p.m. appearance in Norfolk's Oyster Bowl against the University of Richmond.

"I can't say how important this game is to our overall program, our seniors and our whole team," he said.

"What's facing us now is the same that is facing over half of the teams in the country. But the teams with good leadership and character will get back on the positive side, think positively and keep striving toward the goals they had earlier.

"And I'm not 100 per cent sure that we're out of the bowl picture if we can play the best we can for the next four games. We might have a chance, and if we do like we capable of. I'd think that we deserve a chance."

But to get to where Dye wants the Pirates to be going to be an easy task.

"I wish I could give you something to write about," he said. "But it's the same old story. I'm still looking for a complete football game from this team. I really don't know if I'll get one."

Saturday night, against Southern Mississippi, our defense played in the first quarter like a different defense than the one I used to seeing. The offense played like it can for one quarter. We haven't been totally consistent in our offense, defense, and kicking game for one whole game all season.

Because of this, Dye said he was very concerned. "Tuesday we had the worst practice I can remember since I've been here. We seemed to approach practice like a whipped dog, with our tails between our legs. There was no enthusiasm, and not much of anything that looked like a football team out there.

"I don't know if they've given up or what. I know I haven't given up on them, and I don't think our staff has. I hope our fans haven't."

"Remember, we're only five points away from being 6-1 right now. In both of our close losses, we've outplayed our opponents. We didn't get beat, we just got outscored."

Dye said he was reminded of his first team, that came up to this point of the year with only a so-so record and then finished strong. "If you do this, a lot of people don't think about how you started out, but how you finished. We have a chance to finish strong, if we'll only do it."

Looking back at the Southern Mississippi game, which saw the Pirates lose 17-16 after having rallied from 14-0 to lead 16-14. Dye said that there were some good things in the game.

"There are so many ifs, ands or buts in a close game like that," he said. "It was a very physical game on both sides

And except for a 15-yard penalty in the second half, both teams played about evenly. They got a field goal, however, and that was the difference."

Dye said the most disappointing thing was that the Pirates, after coming back from behind to lead, couldn't maintain the momentum in the second half.

"It was a great opportunity for our team to grow up and mature and display the type of character I want it to have. When you can win and come out on top in a tough, physical game on the road, then you've got something."

"I saw nothing to show me that we can't be that type of team, but we still haven't got what we've been looking for," he added.

"The potential is there, but potential is worthless unless it comes through," Dye said.

YANKEE CATCHER AND CAPTAIN Thurman Munson came up from his crouch, his eyes on Ron Cey's foul fly. Flipping away his mask with much the same relish as Reggie Jackson when he flips his bat after hitting a home run ball, Munson grabbed the ball from the air with his mitt to complete the Yanks' final comeback of an amazing season.

"The team that refused to die," as outfielder Paul Blair tagged them, had successfully defended their world championship. It was an uphill climb all the way that produced some unlikely heroes from within the ranks of the New York team.

The World Series victory was the 22nd for the Yankee organization, the most ever for a single team, but has to be one of the hardest ever won. The team was a whopping 14 games behind the Boston Red Sox at one point in July, but made it back. They fell behind 2-0 to the Los Angeles Dodgers in the World Series, but made it back. Both comebacks were unprecedented.

Play at home keyed both rallies. Late in the season, the Yankees won two of three against Boston in New York to take a 3-1 lead over the Red Sox. The best the Sox could do after that was tie the Yankees for the American League Eastern Division title and force a one-game playoff. New York won that game 5-4. The key was the play of shortstop Bucky Dent, who hit a three-run homer to erase a 2-0 Boston lead.

THE YANKEES THEN dispensed with the Kansas City Royals in four games for the right to meet the Dodgers in a repeat of last year's World Series matchup.

The Dodgers, gaining a lot of momentum from the untimely death of former player and pitching coach Jim Gilliam, won the first two games of the Series by scores of 11-5 and 4-3. Both games were in Los Angeles and it was evident the Yankees would have to win all three games in New York to even have a shot at coming back.

Only a handful of teams had ever won the Series after losing the first two games, and none had taken four straight games to do it. But that's exactly what the 1978 Yankees proceeded to do.

Returning to the friendly confines of larger Yankee Stadium, New York got its first victory last Friday night with a 5-1 win. The Yankees then tied the series at 2-2 Saturday in an exciting 4-3 10-inning affair. Completing the home sweep Sunday afternoon, the Yankees embarrassed the Dodgers 12-2.

That set up Tuesday night's clincher back on the West Coast. The Dodgers got off to a 1-0 lead with Davey Lopes' lead-off home run, but the Yankees quickly took control in the game and coasted to a 7-2 win and the title of World Champions.

DENT, WHO BATTED .417 for the series, was named most valuable player. The shortstop hit in 10 of his 24 at-bats, including a double, while batting in the ninth position. He had a total of seven runs batted in.

But a bigger surprise was the hitting of second baseman Brian Doyle. A little-known whose play in the series was made possible only by an injury to all-star Willie Randolph, Doyle hit .438 in the series and, along with Dent, had three hits in the finale.

Doyle also turned in some brilliant glove play. The Yankees couldn't have asked for more from the eighth-position hitter.

That was a big key. The last two hitters in the lineup both batted over .400, while the rest of the team turned in a solid performance at the plate. As a team, the Yankees turned in a .306 batting performance, a new Series record.

Reggie Jackson, the team slugger, provided some more offensive fireworks with two home runs, but perhaps the biggest play he made in the Series came in game four. Trailing 3-0, Jackson singled to score teammate Roy White. With Thurman Munson on second and Jackson on first, Lou Piniella lined a shot towards second baseman Bill Russell.

Russell got the ball in his glove, but dropped it. He recovered in time to tag second and force Jackson out and make the throw to first for an inning-ending double play. But, the throw hit Jackson in the thigh and Munson scored the tying run.

On instant replay, Jackson was seen throwing his hip towards the ball, thus breaking up the double play. The umpires can't be blamed for missing it, however. It was such a subtle move it could only be detected from one camera angle, and only in slow motion.

SURPRISINGLY, PITCHING ACE Ron Guidry, who piled up 25 wins during the season, played a relatively minor role in the World Series. He made only one appearance, winning the first game in New York.

Perhaps the most important pitching performance was turned in by Jim Beattie, probably the least-known of the New York pitching regulars. Beattie who started the year in the minors, hadn't had a complete game all season, yet he went the distance in game five, holding the Dodgers to nine hits and two runs. That win gave the Yankees a 3-2 lead and allowed them to pitch Catfish Hunter instead of Guidry Tuesday night.

Hunter, a comeback story himself, performed admirably. He gave up his patented first-inning homer, but went on to hold the Dodgers to just five more hits and one more run in a seven-inning stint. Hunter got off to a miserable start this year, but shoulder manipulation helped him turn things around and get 11 wins.

In addition, Rich Gossage turned in some brilliant play in relief. He made three appearances and was the winning pitcher in game four.

SOLID DEFENSIVE PLAY also had a big role for the Yankees. Third baseman Graig Nettles was a vacuum cleaner throughout the six games, but really shined in the three New York contests. Time after time Nettles made the difficult look routine, robbing Dodger batters of hits, knocking down sure extra-base raps, holding up runners and saving runs.

The rest of the infield, Dent, Doyle and Chris Chambliss and Jim Spencer at first, was not quite as spectacular as Nettles, but was very solid defensively. The team had just two misplays, both by Dent. Two double plays aided in the final win.

The Yankees have announced the manager Bob Lemon, who guided the team through all the comebacks, will relinquish his job to Billy Martin, who started the year at the helm, in 1980. Lemon, a quiet, humble man, said he just let the team play.

That, of course, is understating the fact. And one has to wonder if the Yankees will let him leave in 1980 if he leads the team to a third straight championship next year.

Game 4 — "A runner will be hit by a thrown ball and create some controversy." Jackson was hit by an infield throw at first base, the ball bouncing away, scoring a run and helping the Yanks win 4-3 in 10 innings. Stone had picked the Yankees by 4-2.

Game 5 — "A Yankees pitcher will go all the way and the Yanks will hit as if there's no tomorrow." New York won 12-2. A Stone had predicted, and right-hander Jim Beattie went all the way for the Yankees.

Game 6 — One of the Yankees outfielders "will slam into a wall" while trying to make a spectacular catch. Right fielder Lou Piniella bounced off the wall while chasing a fly ball. He returned to help the Yanks win 7-2 and wrap up a second consecutive world title. Stone had the score 8-2.

"I couldn't believe it, honestly," said Wagner. "He couldn't have gotten to it beforehand. No way he could have faked it — no way."

Wagner said Stone had appeared on several network TV shows, including those hosted by Johnny Carson and Dick Cavett, as well as shows at WJZ. Among previous predictions was picking the NCAA basketball championship score last year to the exact points, Wagner said.

Wagner said he had been reluctant at first to do the piece with Stone, "but he came in and we talked about it, and our news director approved it, so we went with it."

Stone was not paid for his work, Wagner added. "He just wanted to do it for the publicity," he said.

Garland Told To Rest

By The Associated Press
CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Indians pitcher Wayne Garland, who is trying to come back from shoulder surgery, has been told to sit out the winter baseball season in Puerto Rico.

The Indians said Wednesday that Dr. Frank Jobe, who operated on Garland earlier this year, advised the right-hander to take it easy and continue to follow a regimen of exercise workouts and light throwing every three days.

General Manager Phil Seghi said Garland's recovery is running ahead of schedule but he fears the pitcher will rush things too much if he plays winter baseball.

Jobe is to operate on catcher Gary Alexander Nov. 3 to remove floating calcium chips in his right elbow. Alexander was plagued by the ailment for the entire season, but managed to hit 27 home runs.

The home team in the National Football League must have 24 footballs available for testing by the referee one hour before game time.

Less Employer Paperwork In Reporting Employee Wages

Six million employers will have much less paperwork when reporting wages for social security and federal income tax purposes for over 100 million workers, according to Mary Cain, District Manager of the Greenville Social Security Office.

Ms. Cain says the reduced amount of paperwork is the result of a change based on a new law effective for 1978, one that hopefully will save millions of dollars for both employers and the government.

For the past 40 years, most employers have had to report employees' wages to IRS every three months, and most used IRS Form 941, along with detailed wage data on each employee.

All employers completed a W-3 Form at the end of the year for each employee which showed total wages earned for income tax purposes.

Effective with 1978, employers no longer have to submit detailed quarterly wage data. Instead, they will report wages on an annual basis, using the familiar W-2 (Wages and Tax Statement) form.

This means, Ms. Cain pointed out, that employers will complete only one wage report a year, rather than five as in the past.

However, employers still must send summary wage and tax liability information to IRS once a quarter.

Another time and labor savings method that can be used by employers is reporting wages electronically. An estimated 40,000 employers with small computers are capable of reporting by this method, which is relatively inexpensive. When this method is used by employers, the Social Security Administration sends tape and disk reporters a verified summary of reported wages by tape, microfiche, or paper—whichever way an employer prefers.

Employers wanting more information on this electronic reporting are to ask for one of two booklets—TIB4a, "Magnetic Tape Reporting;" or TIB4b, "Diskette and Disk Cartridge Reporting."

Methodist Bishop Invited Meet Pope

ATLANTA (AP)—The head of the United Methodist church in Georgia has accepted an invitation to meet with Pope John Paul II Saturday at the Vatican.

Bishop William R. Cannon, president of the World Methodist Council, said he would remain in Rome for the enthronement of the new pope Sunday.

Cannon was an observer at the Vatican II Council, and has known most of the recent Roman Catholic pontiffs.

Although he has never before met Pope John Paul II, Cannon said, "I am pleased with the choice."

"It shows again the international character of the papacy. It had become an Italian domain for 450 years," he said. "In the Middle Ages they always took popes from different parts of the world." The World Methodist Council.

Despite the lack of entries, South managed to utilize dummy's long suit in order to bring home a very tenuous three no trump contract.

Had he not held a low doubleton diamond, South might have opened two no trump—the fact that most of his points were in aces and kings increased the value of his hand, but stoppers in all four suits are a prerequisite for a two no trump opening bid. North could not act freely over West's overall, and South reopened the bidding with a double. After North dutifully showed his long suit, South displayed great power when he ventured to two no trump. Since North had shown nothing to this point, he had ample values to raise to game.

Celebrities Are Different

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD AP—Last night instead of watching the stars on television I talked about interviewing them for a class at UCLA.

I had never conducted a class before, and frankly I would have rather faced a star who just separated from his wife, was mad at his agent, thought the network was going to dump his show, or didn't like what I said about his series.

It's much easier to face people with a pad and pen in hand than to stand up in front of a class. But a friend asked me to do one class on "The Personality Interview" at the UCLA Extension School while he was on vacation.

I've been a reporter for 26 years and for the last 11 years I've been interviewing movie and television personalities. And, yes, a lot of the class, there was a difference between interviewing an ordinary person and a celebrity.

The interview with the celebrity is more ritualized. First of all, every star is insulated behind a Berlin Wall of press agents, business managers, agents and lawyers. At an interview some will cling to the press agent like a security blanket. I only make one demand of a press agent: be quiet and don't interfere during the interview. Let him coach the star before, not during the interview.

The star has an image to project and promote. It can be Mr. Nice Guy, macho, maverick, Miss Sex Symbol, or what's more fashionable now, I am not a sex symbol.

You try to probe beneath that, politely but persistently. No one's ever threatened to punch me out, but I've had a few threats to stop the interview.

One big TV star got white knuckles and his jaw muscles twitched, but he answered my question about reports that he had an inflated ego. So, I've learned if you have any nasty questions, save them for last.

Never make the mistake of believing a star wants to be your buddy, no matter how friendly he is during the interview. The friendliness is part of the ritual. (This is not to say, however, that some stars are not genuinely outgoing and friendly.) There's nothing more deflating to the ego than to have your new friend pass you five minutes after the interview is over and fail to recognize you.

I was raised before the advent of television, when Hollywood still meant glamor and stars

NBC's World Series Tops Rating List

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC captured more than half the nation's TV audience with the opening game of the 1978 World Series, and held onto at least that share with the second and third games, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. show.

The strong showing at the ballpark left NBC in first place — and ABC out of it — for the first time this fall.

The series' first game Tuesday night, from Los Angeles, scored a 33.1 rating, with Game 2 Wednesday night were bigger than life like Clark Gable and Spencer Tracy and Gary Cooper.

When I finally began to meet stars I found they really were no different than anyone else. Just bigger egos, more pampered, and possibly a little more insecure because it's such a tenuous profession. Without the favorable camera angles and glamorous lighting nearly all have imperfections, and they say and do the same dumb things that all the rest of us do.

People become actors because of an ego drive to perform before an audience — even if it's only an audience of one.

in third and telecast of the series third game, from New York Friday evening, in second place.

Nielsen says the ratings for the first game means slightly less than a third of the nation's TV homes were tuned in for at least part of the action.

NBC scored, too, with a couple of specials — No. 4 "Rescue from Gilligan's Island" and No. 5 "Bob Hope's Salute to the World Series."

NBC's rating for the week ending Oct. 15 was 25.9, highest of the season for any network. The networks say that means in an average prime time minute, 25.9 percent of the homes in the country with TV were tuned to NBC.

ABC was second for the first time since the new programming began, at 18.7, and CBS third for the fourth week in a row at 16.

As usual, ABC claimed the week's top regular program, "Mork and Mindy," in sixth place. That show, new this season, was followed in the ratings by ABC's "Three's Company."

"Paper Chase" in 62nd and "American Girls," tied for 63rd with NBC's "Weekend."

Here are the week's Top 10 television shows:

World Series Game 1, with a rating of 33.1 representing 24.7 million homes, Game 3, 32.9 or 24.5 million, Game 2, 32.2 or 23.5 million, "Rescue from Gilligan's Island," 30.2 or 22.5 million, and "Bob Hope's Salute to the World Series," 29.1 or 21.7 million, all NBC; "Mork and Mindy," 26.4 or 19.7 million, and "Three's Company," 25.9 or 19.3 million, both ABC; "MASH," CBS, and "Wonderful World of Disney," NBC, both 25.6 or 19.1 million, and "Laverne and Shirley," 25.5 or 19 million, ABC.

The next 10 shows:

Country Music Awards, CBS;

"Little House on the Prairie,"

NBC; "Happy Days," ABC;

"CHiPs," NBC; "What's

Happening" and "Barney

Miller," both ABC, tie; "Soap,"

ABC; "Barnaby Jones," CBS,

and "Eight is Enough" and

"Battlestar Galactica," both

ABC, tie.

Helen Hayes Is Ordered Rest

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actress Helen Hayes has been ordered by her doctor to drop out of an upcoming television movie project because she's suffering from exhaustion, a spokesman says.

Miss Hayes, 78, was to play a central role in the NBC television dramatization of Helen Van Slyke's novel, "The Best Place To Be." The movie is scheduled to begin filming Oct. 30.

"Miss Hayes' doctor has insisted that she curtail all activities until she has fully recovered from sheer exhaustion that has her bedded in her Nyack, N.Y., home," Ross Hunter, the movie's producer, said Wednesday.

Miss Hayes, best known for her work on stage, has earned two Academy Awards — a best actress Oscar in 1932 for "The Sin of Madelon Claudet" and a 1971 Oscar for her supporting role in "Airport."

VICTORIA, British Columbia (AP)—Poor Benjamin, a sea lion at Sealand, might feel better in about 10 months when his mate, Tora, is expected to produce a little pup to take his mind off his recent tragedy.
Benjamin has been off his food and remorseful since he accidentally mashed his late son, Brutus, who liked to sleep on his dad's back at night.

Elections Compromise Accepted By South Africa

By SERGE SCHMEMANN
Associated Press Writer
PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — Prime Minister Pieter W. Botha announced a compromise today under which South Africa will proceed with its own elections in South-West Africa while resuming full-scale negotiations for U.N.-supervised elections in the territory next year.

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, who had spent three days in secret negotiations on South-West Africa's transition to independence and black-majority rule.

Botha stopped short of full acceptance of the U.N. plan. But he said he would use his "best efforts" to persuade local leaders elected in December to go ahead with the later elections.

The Western powers, for their part, said they would urge special U.N. representative Martti Ahtisaari "to immediately resume discussions" with South African Administrator-General Marthinus Steyn within the framework of the Security Council resolutions calling for an internationally acceptable independence in the long-disputed territory.

The United States, Britain, France, West Germany, France and Canada made clear in the joint statement they would regard the December election as "null and void."

South Africa said the December poll "must be seen as an internal process to elect leaders."

Answering questions at a news conference later, Botha indicated the leaders chosen in the poll would be used as a counterbalance to U.N. recognition of the black militant South West Africa People's Organization as the "sole legitimate representative" of the Namibian people.

The December election is virtually certain to provide a heavy majority for the South African-backed Democratic Turnhalle Alliance, since neither SWAPO nor the moderate Namibia National Alliance are participating.

The joint statement basically represents South Africa's acceptance of the "two-election" compromise frequently suggested during the three days of highly secret talks by Western diplomats.

Although South Africa has yet to give its irrevocable approval to the U.N. plan, it should have little trouble persuading the Democratic Turnhalle Alliance to urge its acceptance in December.

Vance and the other Western diplomats left Pretoria Wednesday.

Vance stopped briefly in Khartoum to talk with Sudanese

President Gaafar Mohamed Nimeiri and arrived today in Geneva. He was meeting today and Friday with the U.S. delegation negotiating a new nuclear arms limitation treaty with the Russians and on Saturday goes to Moscow for another round of those negotiations with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

Vance and the other foreign ministers left compromise proposals they hoped would persuade Botha and his conservative cabinet to accept the United Nations plan for an internationally-supervised transition to independence in mineral-rich South-West Africa, also called Namibia.

The key proposal would allow South Africa's white-minority government to hold the unsupervised election it has called in South-West Africa for Dec. 48, but the South Africans would agree to an election supervised by the U.N. in mid-1979.

The December vote would be treated as something of a public-opinion referendum, while the 1979 balloting would elect a constituent assembly to write the constitution for independent Namibia. The South African government has been anxious to put an elected government in control before the end of the year because it believes biracial factions that want to continue close ties with South Africa will be elected. It fears that if there is a delay in the voting, the leftist black South-West Africa People's Organization, or SWAPO, which has been fighting a guerrilla war against white rule for 12 years, will be able to line up the support of a majority of the million blacks in the territory.

See Drop In Leaf Quality

FARMVILLE — Quality of tobacco on the Farmville Tobacco Market's yesterday's sale was not as good as on the previous day.

Demand for and prices of nondescript and low grades of other types were off, according to Louis Williams, Sales Supervisor of the Farmville Tobacco Board of Trade. Most of volume consisted of leaf and cutter grades, he said. Nondescript grades and damaged tobacco continued to increase in volume. Stabilization receipts accounted for 4.17 percent of gross sales, compared with 32.41 last year on the same day of sale.

The market sold 682,938 pounds for $909,188, for an average of $133.13. To date the market has sold 28,018,875 pounds for $39,049,608, for an average of $139.37, compared with $117.36 last year after the same number of selling days.

Warns Against Crawling Under Railroad Cars

Greenville Police Chief Glenn Cannon yesterday cautioned parents to warn their children against crawling under railroad cars at the Seaboard Coast Line railroad crossing on Arlington Boulevard near the Greenville Middle School.

Cannon said a number of complaints have been received recently about trains blocking the crossing for 15 to 20 minutes at a time, and children crawling under railroad cars while trains are blocking the crossing.

The chief warned that crawling under the cars is a very dangerous practice.

Pointing out that a city ordinance prohibits trains from blocking crossings for more than 10 minutes, Cannon said railroad officials are taking steps to prevent lengthy blocking of the crossing.

Giving Away Paving Blocks

CHICAGO (AP) — Want to take home a piece of Chicago's famous State Street?

It's being torn up for the construction of a mall and the original paving blocks from 1883 are expected to be unearthed next week at the intersection of State and Madison — one of the world's busiest corners.

The blocks will be given to history buffs or any other persons wanting them, officials said.

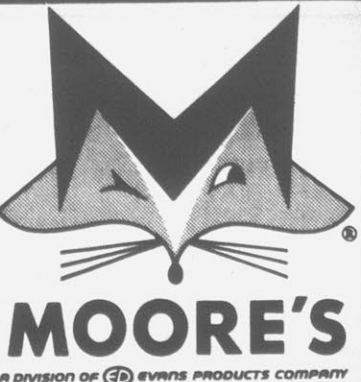

The gray granite blocks, quarried 95 years ago in Wisconsin, measure 4 inches by 5 inches by 12 inches and weigh 15 pounds.

Homecoming At Church

Homecoming will be observed at Sycamore Hill Baptist Church Sunday.

After the regular morning activities, dinner will be served and the Rev. C. P. Briley of Garner will give the afternoon message. The public is invited, says the pastor, the Rev. B. B. Felder.

TRADE AGREEMENT
TOKYO (AP) — Japan and the Soviet Union have ended their annual trade consultations and agreed to expand their bilateral trade as much as possible in 1979, officials said.
