National Economic Growth Rate Steady

By MICHAEL DOAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The inflation rate slowed to 7 percent annual rate during the summer and the economy grew at a steady, moderate rate, the Commerce Department said today.

The third-quarter inflation rate was the smallest of the year and followed a rate of 11 percent in the spring.

However, other economic indicators have pointed to a new surge in price increases, and President Carter is preparing to announce new, tougher antiinflation measures in a broadcast address to the nation Tuesday night.

The Commerce Department said the economy grew at an annual rate of 3.4 percent in the June-September quarter. That is abut average for the year and is encouraging to some government economists.

That growth rate would mean the economy is strong enough to keep most people employed but would not aggravate inflation, they say.

The economy is "basically sound and healthy, well situated for a continuation of moderate but steady economic growth," Courtenay Slater, a Commerce Department economist, said in a recent speech.

Some economists were worried that consumers would stop buying as many cars, houses and other products last summer and that the economy would slow down.

But more people got jobs and others built up their debts as demand for both consumer and business products continued.

So instead of a slump, the problem facing the administration is higher prices. President Carter plans to announce his new anti-inflation program to the country Tuesday night.

Administration officials have been describing the program to business and labor leaders, telling them it will include voluntary guidelines of 5.75 percent for annual price increases and 7 percent on wages.

However, White House officials have cautioned that Carter has not made a final decision on it.

Alfred Kahn, chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board, is Carter's leading choice to become administrator of the new anti-inflation program, according to several administration officials.

Kahn would supplement Robert S. Strauss, the president's special trade negotiator who wants to concentrate on international trade talks, but Struass would still play a major role in the inflation fight.

In a speech Tuesday, AFL-CIO President George Meany complained that news leaks about the coming anti-inflation program are prompting businesses to raise prices now to avoid the predicted restraints.

Israeli, Egyptian Peace Negotiators Hit A Snag

WASHINGTON (AP) — The question of linking a peace treaty between Israel and Egypt to progress on solutions for the West Bank and other Mideast areas is coming between negotiators for the two countries.

Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan says it is "very doubtful" the differences on that point can be resolved by the delegations now involved in the Mideast peace talks.

President Carter, on the other hand, maintains that the talks are not stalled and that "we don't have any particular problem."

The situation stems from Egyptian determination to tie its proposed peace treaty with Israel to progress toward solving separate disputes involving the West Bank and Jerusalem, the Gaza Strip and the Palestinians, informed sources said.

The sources, speaking privately, said Egypt has asked for a clause in the treaty to open its provisions to review after five years.

That was an attempt to link peace in the Sinai Peninsula explicitly with the transition to Palestinian autonomy on the West Bank and in Gaza, which the Camp David framework says should take place over the same five-year period.

With such a clause, the sources said, Egypt could tell skeptics in the Arab world that Israel would have to pay with concessions on the West Bank and Gaza for the separate peace it seeks with Egypt.

But the Israelis have rejected Egypt's demand, insisting that the treaty must be considered as permanent from the outset.

Efforts to compromise by linking some other aspect of the treaty to a five-year timetable or by exchanging letters have not satisfied both parties, the sources said.

That was the situation when Carter walked across Pennsylvania Avenue Thursday to dine with delegation leaders at Blair House, site of the talks.

Competency Test Impact Is Observed

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The president of the North Carolina Association of School Administrators was one of a number of people at a public hearing Thursday who supported the planned competency testing of high school juniors.

"We believe this program, on balance, is a healthy, positive step and the end result will be an improvement," said Doris Lewis, president of the group and principal of a Harnett County elementary school.

She was one a about 200 people who attended a public hearing on the competency tests, which the state plans to give to high school juniors in November. Students will be required to pass both the mathematics and the reading sections before receiving high school diplomas.

"This year is the first in a long time that I have seen children take their books home and take notes in class," said John Lukas, principal of Hillside High School in Durham.

The public hearing was set to hear opinions on proposed guidelines for the new competency testing program.

But the hearing turned into more of a debate on the principle of testing, with some speakers denouncing them as "culturally biased."

Charles Finch of Durham, chairman of the Coalition for Quality Education, said half the high school seniors in the state would be denied diplomas if the competency tests are given.

He and others also objected to the timing of the hearing, which started Thursday morning. "Parents who are working cannot be here, and students cannot be here," he said.

Among other opponents was H.M. Mickey Michaux, former legislator and now U.S. Attorney for the state's middle district. He said he opposed the test because it was thrust on 11th graders this year without giving them a chance to prepare for it.

Although some speakers urged students to boycott the test, others said the tests are important.

"We support those youngsters who see the need to take the test and pass it as soon as possible to get into college," said L.G. Cooper, who representted the largely black North Carolina Alumni and Friends Coalition.

Coastal Search Said Continuing

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) — Debris beleived to be from a cabin cruiser missing since last Saurday was sighted Thursday, and a search for the six men who were aboard will continue, a Coast Guard spokesman said.

Chief Petty Officer Wade M. Neil, quartermaster at the search headquarters, said a yellow bag and an orange rope were spotted about 35 miles southeast of Topsail Inlet, N.C.

However, the debris could not be positively identified as belonging to the missing Buddy II, said Capt. Thomas L. Wedgewood, the search coordinator.

Man Charged In House Explosion And Blaze

Charles Douglas Jones, 57 of 108 Howell St., was arrested by Greenville Police yesterday on charges of fraudulent burning of property and conspiracy, in connection with an explosion and fire which destroyed his home here October 14, Capt. Paul Jewett said this morning.

Jewett said the arrest followed an intensive investigation by Greenville officers and agents of the State Bureau of Investigation which began shortly after Jones' home was destroyed by an explosion and fire about 11 p.m. last Saturday.

The police official noted that warrants, charging fraudulent burning and conspiracy have been issued for a second man—Carlton Ray Matthews, 20 of Chestnut Street — in connection with the incident.

Matthews, according to Jewett, is a patient in Pitt Memorial Hospital, where he is being treated for burns allegedly received when the dwelling exploded while he was still inside. Jewett noted that the warrants will be served on Matthews when he is released from the hospital.

Bond for Jones was set at $20,000 in connection with the case, pending a hearing of the case in court.

Officials at the fire scene Saturday 'reported they detected the odor of gasoline.

Carter Shows Support In 'Signing' ERA Extension

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter signed the deadline extension for ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment today, saying he wanted to demonstrate his support for ERA "as strongly as I can" even though his signature is not required.

"I urge all the people of the country to join me in correcting a basic defect in the Constitution of the United States," Carter said at a brief ceremony in the White House Cabinet Room.

"I hope we can start our efforts very early and not wait until the last hours of intense debate in the legislatures," he said.

The signing ceremony was attended by Carter's wife, Rosalynn, several congressional supporters of the ERA and representatives of women's rights groups.

Although Congress has never previously extended the time for ratifying a constitutional amendment, Carter said it was "well known" that such a resolution does not require presidential signature.

"But I particularly wanted to add my signature to demonstrate as strongly as I can my full support for the Equal Rights Amendment," he said.

In testimony before the constitutional rights subcommittee of the House Judiciary Committee, John Harmon, assistant attorney general in charge of the Justice Department's Office of Legal Counsel, has said, "Our opinion is that this matter would not have to go to the president."

Harmon said in the testimony last year the department believes court decisions have established that the president has nothing to do with the process of amending the Constitution or with "the accompanying obligation ... to pass on the timeliness of the ratification."

On the other hand, Charles L. Black Jr., a law professor at Yale University, said he believed the extension "ought to be submitted to the president for his signature." Black said a 1798 Supreme Court decision excluding the president from the amending process was "inadequately reasoned."

Tom Duncan, legal assistant to House Parliamentarian William Holmes Brown, said Brown decided it was "more prudent" to have the resolution sent to the president in view of the difference of opinion.

Insurance Industry To Press New Rate Boost

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The insurance industry said today it will appeal state Insurance Commissioner John Ingram's denial of a requested 5.6 percent increase in automobile insurance and implement the higher rates Dec. 1.

The rate increase affects private passenger automobile coverage. It was rejected last month by Ingram. Under a law enacted by the General Assembly last year, the industry can charge the higher rates anyway while appealing through the courts.

The increase is the second one this year for automobile insurance. The industry implemented a 6 percent hike in April after Ingram rejected it. That case is still on appeal.

Bernard Parker, chairman of the North Carolina Rate Bureau, which represents the industry in rate cases, said in a prepared statement that the industry had statistics showing it needed a 15.5 percent increase above the April hike. The new law limits increases to 12 percent this year.

Parker said even with the latest increase, auto insurance rates would be lower in North Carolina than in most other states.

"What this means is that basically North Carolina would be a good state in which to do business except for the unrealistic regulatory climate which prevents insurance companies from coping effectively with inflation," Parker said.

In rejecting the request, Ingram said the higher rates were excessive, and accused the industry of failing to account for income which companies receive from investments of policyholders' premiums.

Under the 1977 law, insurance companies would be required to refund any excessive amounts collected if the courts uphold the commissioner's ruling.

APPEAL

SCHOOL ART SUPPLIES

The art teacher at Ayden Middle School, Marsha Hemby, has asked Hotline to appeal to local businesses to donate any left-over or scrap materials to the students for use in their projects. She mentioned that they can use rug samples, wallpaper books, yarn scraps, newsprint, large boxes, blocks of wood and just about anything that is normally thrown away in the course of business.

If any businesses feel they might have acceptable materials, they can call Marsha at 756-7912, or contact her through the school.

Annual Haunted House Will Open Tonight At 7:00

The Greenville Jaycees announced that the club's third annual Haunted House will open tonight at 7 p.m. and operate each evening through Oct. 31.

Project chairman Richard Briley said that the Haunted House is located this year at the old Pitt County fairgrounds site at the corner of Airport Road and NC 11. The Jaycees have utilized the former livestock building as the "haunted" location, he noted.

This year, club members have prepared six "haunted" rooms, including an "old cemetery," chainsaw room, a takeoff on the movie, "The Exorcist," a "werewolf" room, a wrestling match between a "couple of ghouls that are chained up," and a surprise room, Briley reported.

He said that admission to the facility will be $1.25 per person for all ages and he added that the Jaycees advise parents not to allow children under six to tour the house. The chapter also urges parents to accompany children under ten years of age, he noted.

According to Briley, the Jaycees will set up special rates for groups desiring to tour the facility and he asked that a spokesman for any group considering the tour call him at 758-3568 or 756-6357 to make the arrangements.

The Jaycees will operate a concession stand at the 'Haunted House' this year, he said. Parking is available inside the former fairground area.

Briley said that proceeds from the project go towards the Jaycees' community service work.

Judicious Use Of Credit Urged By Professor

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — If you're worried about getting into debt, you may want to take a look at a few barometers offered by a University of Iowa professor to see how your debt load stacks up against those of your neighbors.

The average American is using 20 percent of his after-tax income to pay installments on a home mortgage and such major items as cars and household appliances, Professor Richard Stevenson notes.

"If you're in the 25-to-44 age bracket, you may be earmarking considerably more than one dollar out of every five left after taxes for such debts," the finance professor points out. "These are the years when you're setting up housekeeping and raising a family, so you'll be in the market not only for a house, but for all its furnishings. Many of us make such purchases 'on time.'"

Since 1972, the number of Americans aged 25 to 44 has been increasing at seven times the rate of the 1946-71 period as a result of the post-World War II baby boom.

This accounts, in part at least, for the recent boom in consumer installment credit, Dr. Stevenson explains.

The amount of money Americans owed for installment purchases at the end of 1977 was $216 billion, up more than 31 percent from the end of 1975. This did not include mortgage loans on residential property, which totaled $652 billion at the end of 1977, up 33 percent from two years before.

More Americans are in the first-car-buying stage now, too, Stevenson points out. This accounts for some of the 32 percent rise in automobile installment credit from March 1977, to March 1978.

Yet with all our borrowing, nationwide rates of delinquency in paying off installment loans are low, Stevenson says.

Going into debt has some pluses, the University of Iowa professor points out:

—Homeowners often can take interest expense and property taxes as itemized deductions on their tax returns.

—If inflation continues, you'll be paying off that mortgage and those installments on new cars and household appliances with cheaper dollars, since prices and interest rates "freeze" at the time you make your purchase in most cases.

—The salary from which you'll be making those payments will be going up as wages rise to keep up with inflation, so your installment payments will shrink in the percentage of your income they take.

—You build up a good credit record by paying off your debts on time.

Stevenson believes that by 1985 many Americans may be spending as much as 35 percent of their after-tax income on housing expenses — mortgage payments (interest and principal, property taxes and insurance).

"As prices continue to rise and interest rates go up, it's hard to argue today against buying a house, even if you become 'house poor' for a few years," he says.

Each family is unique in the amount of installment credit it can handle, Stevenson says. So study your resources: Are both wife and husband bringing home paychecks? Are teenagers earning their own clothes and incidentals? Do your job benefits include health and major medical insurance and a good pension plan? Do you have a financial "security blanket" in savings you can tap if an emergency arises?

Despite the potential benefits of taking on debt, excessive borrowing does restrict a family's financial flexibility, Stevenson points out. For example, you may have to pass up that new-car bargain because your existing debts keep you from getting more credit.

"If you're still in doubt about whether to buy your first home or make some other major investment, seek professional advice," Stevenson says. "Find an investment counselor or some other unbiased professional to assess your financial situation.

"You don't need to be a millionaire any more to make it worthwhile to seek competent help in making the best use of your money," he adds.

Wife Needs Independence

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am 24 and Larry is 29, and here is my story: We moved in with Larry's parents right after we got married. ("Only until we find a place of our own," he promised.) Well, it's been five years, and here I sit with two lovely children and a closet full of unused wedding presents.

My in-laws are very nice, and some people think I've got it easy with Larry's mother to do all the cooking, and a built-in baby-sitter for the kids, but I'm miserable. Larry's mother has her own way of doing things, and I help her as much as she lets me, but it's still her house, not mine.

Every time the subject of moving comes up, Larry's father say, "Why move and pay rent when you can live here for free? We have plenty of room." (It's true, but I would rather have a place of my own.) Larry has a good job and we can afford it.

The children are getting spoiled by their grandparents, and I'm getting fed up. Please help me.

TRAPPED IN ILLINOIS

DEAR TRAPPED: Face it, your husband is reluctant to give up the comfort and security provided by his parents. But if you don't insist that he cut the cord and leave the nest, you will be living with them indefinitely. Start a campaign now for your independence. (A suggested slogan: "A place to call mine in '79!")

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I recently visited some out-of-town friends we hadn't seen in years. We wanted to stay at a motel but they wouldn't hear of it, so we ended up staying with them, which was a big mistake.

During our visit our hostess spent half her time doing housework and cleaning up.

After every meal, out came the vacuum cleaner! She was constantly mopping, scrubbing or polishing. As soon as my husband dropped one ash in the ashtray, she'd grab it and clean it. She ran around with a mop or a dust cloth in her hand all the time we were there.

I realize that cleanliness it next to Godliness, but she wore us out just watching her clean up.

Her fussiness spoiled my vacation. Are such actions normal?

DIRTY DELORES

DEAR DELORES: No. Your hostess sounds like a compulsive cleaner-upper. Although she may be a meticulous housekeeper, that's not what hospitality is all about. Hospitality is the art of making one's guests feel genuinely comfortable.

DEAR ABBY: By looking at me you wouldn't think I had a problem in the world. I'm middle-age, attractive and married to a beautiful guy (my age). He's handsome, good-natured and generous. We're both healthy, young at heart, and love a good time. We take fabulous vacations (Hawaii, Switzerland, cruises) and we get along great. I really love the guy and he loves me.

The problem: On weekends he takes me to dinner and then to a club for dancing. We both love to dance, but as soon as we get there he starts looking around for women without escorts. The pretty ones he asks to dance. (He says he feels sorry for them.)

I've sat out plenty of dances while he dances up a storm with these unescorted ladies.

Should I let him dance to his heart's content while I sit alone? Or should I give him a taste of his own medicine and pick up the stag men to dance with?

HUMILIATED

DEAR HUMILIATED: Don't pick up any stags to dance with or that will be the beginning of the end. Tell your "generous, good-natured" guy that charity begins at home. And let him know you mean business!

Do you wish you had more friends? For the secret of popularity, get Abby's new booklet: "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Cookoff Set For Chili Buffs

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

If there was ever a dish that stirred the emotions, it is that volcanic mixture of minced meat, beans and chili peppers which is said to have been invented by a group of nuns in Mexico.

Humorist Will Rogers said he judged a town by the quality of its chili con carne. And Jesse James, the outlaw, is reported to have refused to rob a bank in McKinney, Texas, because his favorite chili parlor was located in the town.

With such devotion, it is not surprising that a group of aficionados, known as "chili heads," have formed an International Chili Appreciation Society. This year, the society will stage its annual World Championship Chili Cookoff on Oct. 22 in Rosamond, Calif.

About 30,000 chili buffs are expected to show up for the cookoff, tasting spoons in hand. There will be marching bands, various kinds of entertainment and above all, a series of chilieating contests. The air should be redolent with the tantalizing aroma of the big chili pots, their contents at various stages of preparation.

California is an appropriate site for the fete. The Golden State is regarded as unofficial headquarters for the spicy peppers from which chili takes its name.

Actually, chili powder forms the flavor base for the dish. It is a blend of spices, with chili peppers as the main ingredient. Also included are ground cumin seed, ground oregano, powdered garlic and salt.

The powder makes a delicious seasoner for eggs, stews, marinades, Spanish rice, sauces and soups. Some enthusiasts even mix it with butter and daub it on corn on the cob.

Chili lovers who cannot make it to Rosamond can console themselves with a local cookoff. They are a lot of fun at group picnics, church suppers and after-game get-togethers. Start with a container of chili powder and let your imagination take over. And it doesn't have to be limited to beef ad bean mixtures. Here's a recipe for chili chicken. ¼ cup instant minced onion
1 teaspoon instant minced garlic, ¼ cup water
2 tablespoons oil
2 jars (15½ ounces each) meatless spaghetti sauce
2 tablespoons chili powder, ½ teaspoon Tabasco
4 cups diced cooked chicken
4 cups cooked macaroni
2 cups cottage cheese
8 ounces mozzarella cheese, sliced

Combine onion and garlic with water, let stand 10 minutes to rehydrate. In medium saucepan, heat oil. Add rehydrated onion and garlic; saute 5 minutes. Stir in spaghetti sauce, chili powder and Tabasco. Bring to boil; reduce heat and simmer, covered, 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Stir in chicken. Pour one third of sauce mixture into bottom of oiled 13 by 9 by 2-inch casserole. Top with 2 cups macaroni, then 1 cup cottage cheese. Repeat layering once more, ending with layer of sauce. Top with mozzarella cheese. Bake in preheated 350-degree oven about 30 minutes. Serves 10. Good with chilled beer or ale.

Cancer Society Awards Presented Thursday

The annual Awards Dinner of the Pitt County Unit of the American Cancer Society was held Thursday evening at David's Steak Place here.

Crusade chairmen, Cliff Frelke and Mary Ann Gray, reported that $16,315 was contributed to fight cancer during the crusade. This is the largest amount ever given in Pitt County for cancer education and treatment, they said.

Awards were presented to the Pitt County Automobile Dealers Association for its holding of a car auction to benefit the crusade; the Greenville Jaycees for the club's work in "The Grand Slam" and the Oral Cancer Detection Clinic; and Wally Wooles for his work as chairman of the Walter Hagan Golf Tournament.

Crusade Chairmen's Awards went to Frelke and Gray.

Mrs. Irene Carroll received an engraved silver platter for her work as unit director and Mrs. James Nelson, a silver bowl as outstanding volunteer.

Dr. Emmett Walsh, outgoing president, received a lapel pin noting two years as president and past service as a crusade chairman.

Speaker for the evening was Sheryll Kincaid of the Raleigh office of the American Cancer Society, who explained the organization of the society on the unit level and how it can work most effectively.

Dr. Stephen Bartlett presented a slate of officers who were unanimously elected. They are Mrs. Inez Martinez, president; Frances Young of Bethel, first vice president; and Cliff Frelke, second vice president.

Flocking Into Western N.C.

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — There won't be much room at the inns this weekend for tourists coming to the mountains to view the fall foliage, officials say.

Emergency bedding may be necessary Friday and Saturday nights in Asheville because virtually no motel rooms will be available, said Richard D. Trammell, director of the Asheville Chamber of Commerce's convention and visitors bureau.

The Buncombe County Civil Preparedness unit and the American Red Cross have provided accomodations for stranded travellers for the past two weekends at the Asheville High School gymnasium.

"While I realize that more people have more time to get out and view this fall splendor on the weekend, I would urge as many as possible to plan their trips on the (Blue Ridge) Parkway for weekdays," said Gary Everhardt, superintendent of the parkway.

"That way, they can avoid much of the heavy traffic and congestion we nearly always experience on weekends ..." he said.

Trammel said that one major motel in Asheville, the Great Smokies Hilton, has no rooms available for the next five days.

The North Carolina League of Municipalities convention opens Sunday and will bring about 1,500 visitors to the city, he said. Several smaller conventions are also expected in town.

But for those who do make it to the western mountains, a real treat should be in store.

Everhardt said colors should be at their peak this weekend and next week.

Colors should be at their best north of Mount Mitchell and very good at higher elevations south and west of there.

Leaf Prices Said Steady

FARMVILLE — Prices remained steady on the Farmville Tobacco Market Thursday compared with previous prices this week, according to Louis N. Williams, sales supervisor, Farmville Tobacco Board of Trade.

Top price paid this week by a company was $1.85 for good leaf and wrapper grades. Volume of sales was heavy Thursday, with all firms having full sales. Stabilization receipts totaled 3.77 percent of gross sales, compared with 30.63 percent last year.

The Farmville market sold 676,271 pounds Thursday for $901,136, an average of $133.25 per hundredweight. To date, the Farmville market has sold 28,695,145 pounds for $39,950,744, and average of $139.22 per hundred pounds, compared with $117.23 a year ago.

Hopefully The End Of An Era

Jefferson Davis was a southern gentlemen of the highest order.

He chose to stand with his beloved South when the tragedy of the War Between the States temporarily split the Union.

He rose to the office of president of the Confederacy, and when the war was over and the nation re-united Davis was no longer a citizen.

That's the way it remained until this week when another southern president — this one chief executive of all the states, including many added since Jeff Davis' time — chose to remedy the situation.

President Carter granted amnesty to Jefferson Davis.

"Our nation needs to clear away the guilts and enmities and recriminations of the past, to finally set at rest the divisions that threatened to destroy our nation and to discredit the great principles on which it was founded," said Carter, as he signed an amnesty bill for Davis.

All other Confederate leaders had had their citizenship restored, most of them in the amnesty bill of 1876.

Things dragged on a long time for Jefferson Davis — it was 88 years after his death, in fact — but we can officially welcome him back to U.S. citizenship.

The Homeowner Really Pays And Pays

It comes as no surprise to home owners that they spend $400 per month, or more, for their homes.

While most homeowners are congratulating themselves on buying and realizing an increase in the value of their houses, they are aware that other cost of owning a home are going up.

As the value of the house increases, so do property taxes; insurance on the higher valued property goes up and utilities steadily increase. All that is not to mention the cost of maintenance which escalates every day.

Even some who presently own their homes might find they eventually can't afford the taxes, utilities, insurance and maintenance for the property.

Record Book's Entries

By JEFF BRADLEY
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Crossing the Atlantic in a balloon, climbing the stairs of the Empire State Building, and blowing 270 smoke rings from one puff of a cigarette set new marks in the 1979 edition of the Guinness Book of Records, published in London today.

American balloonists Ben Abruzzo, Max Anderson and Larry Newman made the first successful crossing of the Atlantic in a balloon last August, leaving Presque Isle, Maine, and landing at Evreux, France, in 137 hours and 6 minutes.

Gary Muhroke of New York City was embarrassed by the record he set climbing the 1,575 stairs of the Empire State Building in 12 minutes, 32 seconds. At the time he was drawing a 12,000-dollar-a-year disability pension from the New York Fire Department, according to an entry in the new edition.

The highest recorded number of smoke rings blown from a single puff of a cigarette is now 270, accomplished by Jan Forman, of Copenhagen, Denmark, on June 6, 1978.

Other new records in the 25th annual edition of Guinness include:

—The world's tallest cactus, a 78-foot armless variety discovered at Cave Creek, Ariz., last April.

—The world's longest fingernails, owned by Shridhar Chillal, 41, of Poona, India, whose champion thumbnail is now 22½ inches long.

—The first long-playing album to sell 12 million copies, the "Saturday Night Fever" soundtrack featuring John Travolta.

—The world's most expensive printed book, the Pforzheimer copy of the Gutenberg Bible bought for $2.4 million by the University of Texas last June.

Walter Cavanaugh of Santa Clara, Calif., claims the record for having the most credit cards — 897 of them, worth more than $1 million in credit. He keeps them in the world's longest wallet, 250 feet long.

Under the category, "Birthday card, most parsimonious," Mrs. Amelia Finch, 66, of Lakehurst, N.J., and Paul E. Warburgh, 76, of Huntington, N.J., claim a dubious disinction. They have exchanged the same card since Feb. 1, 1927.

Looking To Swift Justice

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Key crime fighters in state government are putting a great deal of faith in speedy trials as key ingredient in the expanding arsenal of weapons to reduce crime in North Carolina.

The new law became effective earlier this month in the first phase of steps: a 120-day limit between indictment and trial, coming down to 90 days in a couple of years.

Gov. Jim Hunt says he would like to see the time limit drop even further in the future — perhaps to 60 days, in a reasonable period of time; even 30 days, eventually.

This attitude is widely shared by law enforcement officers and other crime experts: that it is the certainty and speed with which punishment is handed out which most directly works on the criminal mind.

What is ahead for North Carolina's speedy trial procedure?

Escape

There is already evidence that court officials are seeking ways out. Complaints are heard that the paperwork and the crush of business will make it difficult if not impossible to meet the deadlines — at least in some districts.

Gov. Hunt and legislative leaders will turn an unsympathetic ear to those arguments. Before the legislation was adopted by the General Assembly, Court officials on all three major sides were asked what would be needed to make the system work.

District attorneys, judges and clerks of court have been given increased funds for staff to handle the load, and Gov. Hunt says he doesn't feel that this should cause any problem.

Will district attorneys be able to adequately prepare their cases for trial in the time allowed? Some argue yes; some no. Future statistics on reduced charges, plea bargaining, and cases dropped should prove enlightening in this respect. Across the aisle, defense lawyers are protesting that the deadline may not allow proper defense preparation.

BILL NOBLITT

This should not prove the case since when real problems are evident, the court can — on written orders from the judge — extend the deadline. Meanwhile, it is obvious that some defense attorneys who have sought and won delays in the past "waiting on the change" will run into hard times. The "change" , to those not familiar with the slang expression, is cash payment for the lawyer before the case is disposed of.

In rural counties where court sessions are not as regular, the law allows delay beyond the 120 days.

Essential

In the face of these and other problems, state officials remain convinced that the law is essential to convincing wouldbe criminals to restrain their activities.

"I want to see punishment — fair trials and justice — meted out just as quickly as possible," Hunt says. At present nearly a fourth of the criminal cases take six months or longer until trial.

Will the success of the speedy trial efford depend upon the lawyers — either on the bench or in defense or prosecuting?

To a considerable degree it will, state officials concur. But there is another factor, Hunt believes.

If the people in a community care what is happening in the courts, get involved enough to see how the system is working, and demand that change takes place, the effect could be enormous.

Defectors Need Love

WASHINGTON — As the conscience of America, I have been giving a lot of time and thought to recent events surrounding the Soviet defector Arkady Shevchenko and his paramour Judy Chavez.

While all the facts in the case have not been disclosed (we have to wait for Judy's and Arkady's books to get the rest of them), this much is agreed upon by everybody.

Shevcbenko had a high position in the U.N. when he came over to our side. He met, or was given, as a reward, Miss Chavez who worked for an "escort" service in Washington. He paid Miss Chavez $500 a night for her friendship, and spent between $35,000 and $40,000 on her for gifts and a trip to the Virgin Islands. He was known in the CIA as "the spy who was never cold."

ART BUCHWALD

The facts that are in dispute are whether Mr. Shevchenko paid for Miss Chavez' services out of his own pocket or whether they were paid for by the CIA to keep him happy and talking. If Arkady spent his own money, he was taken advantage of for being a foreigner. But if the CIA paid for the undercover operation, then the taxpayers have a right to ask some questions.

The first is: Why on earth was the CIA paying Miss Chavez $500 a night when the going rate in the intelligence business for this sort of thing is $100? If Arkady was paying for it, why didn't someone in the FBI or CIA warn him that he was being overcharged for Miss Chavez' nightly companionship?

If the CIA is footing the bill, as Miss Chavez claims, it means there is a serious lack of cost control in the agency when it comes to providing escorts for Soviet defectors.

No loyal American would take issue with the fact that a high-ranking Soviet official, who wants to come over, should get anything he wants from the CIA in exchange for intelligence secrets.

But when you start paying outrageous prices for close encounters of this kind, you

To the editor:

In your Sunday review of "Awakenings " there is an error located in the paragraph about Mrs. J. B. Spilman who "cracked (and continues to WISEly CRACK) the ice of frozen-in-tradition wakes 'listing' before her." Akin to Mrs. Spilman, who by the socio- political standards of the early twentieth century "wandered off course" a MSterious employee of your newspaper "erred off course" (pointlessly, of course) when she or he inserted the word listing rather than the correct word "lieing."

Now we all know that to err is human, to foregive divine, but since the word "err" means "to wander," it seems that to err may also be divine: Any explorer/researcher knows that, in the quest and re-request for eternal truth, "pointless" ERRors often allow the wander-full dis-covery of new insight or vision, and it turns out that this IMPulsive point of di-vision is not pointless after all.

In my review your readers were encouraged to discover new truths in "Awakenings" and especially in the wakes "lieing" before the vessel Mrs. J. B. Spilman. (In other words, the readers were originally encouraged to find "truth'ns" by reading between the "lie'ns.") But because of the error — undoubtedly served by us by some Ms.Chief in your galley — I encourage your readers to add the words "listing" and "listless" to their NAUGHTYcal list of err's. For NOUGHTical err's are out-of-sight but often lead us into new sites of vision: ENTERpretations!

To the editor:

The National Association of Insurance Women adopted the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation "Kiss Your Baby" campaign as a national public relations project. As a member of this organization, we offer the following information.

Lung disease is second only to cancer as the leading cause of death by disease in American children. Cystic Fibrosis is the worst of the lung diseases and is incurable. CF affects all of the body's endocrine glands' including those secreting mucus, tears, saliva and sweat. "Kiss Your Baby" is based on the malfunctioning of the sweat glands. In children with CF, the sweat glands produce a salt content four to five times higher than normal. A salty residue often remains on the skin which can be detected with a kiss.

Through "Kiss Your Baby'," parents can be alerted to this possible sign of CF. If a salty taste is discovered, have your child checked by a physician for Cystic Fibrosis.

Chances are your child does not have CF, but, if so, prompt diagnosis and treatment are essential.

With very special attention, "KISS YOUR BABY."

THE GALLUP POLL

Gain Against Kennedy

By George Gallup

PRINCETON, N.J. — Since the Camp David summit President Jimmy Carter has made substantial gains among Democrats as their choice for the party's 1980 presidential nomination.

In a pre-summit survey, conducted in July, Sen. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts held a 24 percentage point lead over Carter. In the latest survey this edge has been reduced to 5 percentage points.

Kennedy remains the top choice of Democrats across the nation today, winning 39 percent of their vote for the 1980 nomination while Carter is the No. 1 choice of 34 percent — a significant change since July when Kennedy's lead was 44-20 percent.

The change since July has occurred outside the South as well as in the president's home region. In the states comprising the South, Carter now leads Kennedy 41-35 percent whereas in July he trailed the Massachusetts senator 44-26 percent.

Outside the South Carter has narrowed the gap to 41-30 percent in the latest survey — a gain for the president from the 44-20 percent margin Kennedy enjoyed in July.

Currently in third place on the list of Democratic choices is Gov. Edmund (Jerry) Brown of California with 8 percent of the vote, followed by Vice President Walter Mondale — the top pick of 4 percent.

All of the other men on the list submitted to a crosssection of the nation's Democrats — Sen. Henry Jackson (Washington), Sen. George McGovern (South Dakota), Sen. Frank Church (Idaho), Sen. Patrick Moynihan (New York), and Rep. Morris Udall (Arizona) receive less than 4 percent of the vote.

The following question was asked:

"Here is a list of people who have been mentioned as possible presidential candidates for the Democratic party in 1980 (respondents were handed a card with nine names listed). Which ONE would you like to see nominated as the Democratic candidate for president in 1980?"

And here are the latest results among Democrats nationwide compared with the July findings:

1980 Democratic Nomination Choices

Strength For Today

ALWAYS VIGILANT

In China in years past, pirates would sometimes hide in the holds of ship while in port, and then when the vessels were far out at sea, they would come on deck and take possession.

Psychologists tell us that beneath our conscious mind is the subconscious. In it abides all those primitive impulses which have come down to us from time immemorial. In addition to this subconscious mind, there are all those weaknesses and temptations at the bottom of our hearts which, when we are tempted or angry, emerge and devastate. These impulses are like the Chinese pirates who secreted themselves in the hold and then took over the ship.

One of the solemn words of the gospel is "watch", and in the spiritual life as in the life of a nation, the price of security is eternal vigilance. A little weakness can rise up and in one fatal moment spoil all we hold dear. We need to beware of the pirates who secrete themselves in the dark places of our hearts.

Really, You Didn't Get Much

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — After all the lobbying, squabbling, promises, threats and compromises, Congress has produced what is said to be a tax cut of $18.7 billion, but which really might be little or none at all.

That is, if you consider inflation a tax — and it is. It might not be legislated, but it has every bit the same affect. You get the bill, that is. You might say it's nature's remedy for economic excesses.

The message is this: Don't spend your tax cut before you get it.

If you are a married couple with two dependents earning $25,000 from wages and salaries, you would pay income taxes of $3,150 under existing law, and $2,901 under the bill passed by Congress.

You will save $249 on taxes. But it is generally agreed that in 1979 the federal government will be lucky to hold down the inflation rate to 6 percent. At 6 percent your $25,000 would be worth $1,500 less.

And there's another financial hazard if you get a raise to offset inflation: You might find yourself in a higher tax bracket, in effect, paying taxes on inflation.

This inflation, some economists will tell you, is also a Washington product, manufactured from the inability of Congress and the White House to live within what is by far the world's largest budget.

It's axiomatic: While Uncle Sam gives, he also takes. Or, to rephrase, what Uncle Sam gives you is only what you gave him the money to pay for, minus a bit for commissions and living expenses and such.

The unhappy truth is that neither the federal government nor any other institution can shield the ordinary American from these expenses, though futile attempts are always being made to do so.

One Congressman, for example, lamented late last week that business should absorb more of the tax burden. But business is business, and business always passes on its costs or goes out of business.

Government can't do any better, no matter how often the phrase is intoned, "Let the government pick up the bill." It often does, of course, but it always slips it back to you as taxes or inflation.

Consider Social Security. The same family whose income taxes might be reduced $249 because of congressional action, will find its Social Security taxes raised nearly $333. Uncle Sam never gets stuck.

Of course, it's impossible for Uncle Sam to get stuck because he is indigent, dependent for a livelihood on the beneficence of his relatives and on his ability to borrow when he runs short.

New Pope Sounds Appeal For Religion Freedom

By EDWARD MAGRI
Associated Press Writer

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II appealed today for freedom of religion throughout the world and help for "human causes" but said it is not up to the Vatican to pass judgment on individual governments.

Vatican officials, meanwhile, said the new pontiff's first visit abroad will be to Poland, his Communist homeland, and Polish President Henryk Jablonski may extend a formal invitation Monday.

Pope John Paul's remarks came in a speech to members of the Vatican's diplomatic corps, his first on the Roman Catholic Church's relations with the rest of the world. The pope, knowledgable in a half-dozen languages, used French in addressing the diplomats of about 100 countries in the ornate Consistory Hall.

The Holy See "does not seek for itself" any special privileges, he said, but he asked that Christians and other believers all over the world "be allowed to feed their faith" and that freedom of worship be respected everywhere.

Relations between the Vatican and other countries "did not necessarily mean approval of this or that regime, because this is not our business," he said. Diplomatic ties do not mean "the approval of all their (other states') acts in the conduct of public affairs but an appreciation of positive temporal values, a desire or dialogue for those who are legitimately entrusted with providing to the common good of society."

He expressed sympathy for "the often difficult role" of world leaders and stressed the need for aid "to human causes which must be promoted, perhaps through direct intervention, thanks most of all to the education of consciences, giving a specific contribution to justice and peace on the international level."

"The peculiarity of our nation of origin matters little now," said John Paul, the first Polish pope and the first non-Italian to head the church in 455 years. "As a Christian and even more as pope we are and will be the witness of universal law, giving to all the same attention, specially to those who are being tried."

Pope John Paul has sent a telegram to Poland's Communist leaders expressing his "deep desire" to see his homeland develop "spiritually and materially in peace, in the spirit of justice and respect for man."

The telegram was published today on the front page of Poland's Communist Party newspaper.

Bishop Ladislaw Rubin, the highest ranking Polish prelate in the Vatican before John Paul's election, said there was no official confirmation. But he said he had "no doubt" the pontiff will travel to Poland on the 900th anniversary of the death of St. Stanislaus, Poland's patron saint, in May 1979.

St. Stanislaus, bishop of Krakow, was slain by King Boleslaus in a Krakow church in a medieval church-state conflict. He is buried under the main altar of the Krakow cathedral.

"I am convinced John Paul II will go to Poland because St. Stanislaus, the martyr bishop, headed the same diocese from where he left for Rome and for the conclave that made him pontiff," Rubin said.

Cardinal Karol Wojtyla, now Pope John Paul II, was archbishop of Krakow until his election Monday as the first nonItalian pope in 455 years.

Vatican Radio said the Polish bishops already had formally invited John Paul II to attend St. Stanislaus' celebrations.

In a statement to Vatican Radio, Cardinal Stefan Wyszynski, the Polish primate of Warsaw, said the new pope, who likes skiing and mountain excursions, must suffer from being far away from the mountains and woods of Poland.

"You mountaineer, aren't you sad being away from your homeland?" Wyszynski asked over the radio.

The Rev. Taddeus Pieronek, former secretary of the new pontiff, told the Rome Socialist newspaper La Repubblica in Krakow he was certain the pope will come to Poland for the Feast of St. Stanislaus.

"He himself has told us by phone....He told us that he had invited Pope John Paul I to come to Poland May 8. Now he made the same invitation to himself. And he will come not as Pole but as a Pope."

As archbishop of Krakow, Wojtyla had invited John Paul I for a visit. But John Paul I died Sept. 28, just 34 days after his election.

The Polish government already has announced its president will lead the official Polish delegation to the pope's inaugural mass Sunday. Jablonski will be received by Pope John Paul in audience along with other foreign dignitaries on Monday, and this is when the invitation is expected to be made.

Poland's Communist government had vetoed in 1966 and 1970 plans by Pope Paul VI to visit Poland.

Shipbuilders' Claim Is Quietly Probed By Federal Grand Jury

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A federal grand jury here has quietly begun an investigation into charges that Newport News Shipbuilding submitted fraudulent claims for cost overruns on Navy shipbuilding.

The claims stem from overruns since 1967 totaling $943 million on five guided-missile cruisers, two aircraft carriers and seven attack submarines built for the Navy by the giant shipyard.

The yard claimed the Navy was responsible for the extra costs and settled its claims against the Navy on Oct. 5 for $209 million.

But it still faces investigation by the Department of Justice, several congressional committees and the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Sources at U. S. District Court here said the special grand jury, which was seated Wednesday, is expected to spend the rest of the year taking testimony.

John P. Diesel, board chairman of Newport News Ship, Virginia's largest private employer with a payroll of about 24,000, was among the witnesses subpoenaed. Diesel — or a representative — is to testify Nov. 15.

A spokesman for the shipyard said it had not yet determined what its course of action will be. He said the subpoena was not received until late Wednesday.

"We are confident that the government's inquiry will confirm the conclusion of our own investigation that no fraud was involved in the preparation, processing or settlement of these claims," the spokesman said.

Background testimony from Navy witnesses, apparently to acquaint members of the panel with the nature of Navy contracting and with general information on the claims issue, was heard by the grand jury Wednesday.

A Senate subcommittee has been investigating charges that the shipyard filed false claims totaling $221 million for alleged cost overruns in the construction of two carriers.

The Justice Department has been investigating the yard's claim for $92 million in overruns on two nuclear-powered attack submarines.

Navy witnesses appearing Wednesday as the grand jury opened its probe were Capt. Richard J. Grich, manager of the aircraft carrier acquisition project at Navy Sea Systems Command in Washington, and Adm. R. J. Eustace of the Navy Sea Systems Command, the Navy's supervisor of shipbuilding at Newport News Ship during most of the claims dispute.

Witnesses to testify today included Capt. Charles E. Masalin, Navy project manager for the submarine program at Newport News Ship, and Adm. F. F. Manganaro, who directed the Navy's analysis of shipbuilding claims as head of the Navy Claims Settlement Board.

Also to testify was Timothy L. Foster, a civilian employee in the office of Adm. Hyman G. Rickover.

A BIG HAUL — Melanie and Joshie Baldwin of Bremerton (Wash.) combine the 42 pounds each of them weigh in a truly uphill battle with a 52-pound pumpkin Melanie grew from a seed in her backyard. are not only contributing as President Carter said at his press conference, to inflation but you are setting a precedent for other Soviet defectors, which the United States can ill afford.

The next defector will also expect a $500-a-night female companion, and if she is paid less he will feel that the CIA is not treating him with the same respect they did Arkady. How many "escorts" can our intelligence agency supply at these rates before it starts shortchanging our other spy operations?

Even if the CIA can afford it, other friendly intelligence organizations are furious about the publicity given to the Shevchenko-Chavez affairs.

"We've never paid our girls more than $50 a night," a French intelligence agent told me. "This puts every Western intelligence agency on the spot. The CIA has made the price of sex so high, we may not be able to use it any more as the ultimate weapon."

An Israeli agent thought Arkady was a KGB plant. "What better way to break the CIA budget than to have a defector demand a woman with expensive tastes, a yen for beautiful cars and a desire to make love in beautiful resorts. We could have put up a spy satellite for what it cost the ericans to keep Arkady talking."

Because of all the publicity, the CIA must now give Shevchenko a new cover and move him to a safer city than Washington.

I suggest Cleveland. It is not only a nice place to live, but the going rate there for an "escort" is $35 a night including taxi fare. Making Arkady live in Cleveland while they debriefed him would certainly save the CIA a lot of money.

Fall Sunday School Campaign Mapped

The People's Baptist Temple will hold its Fall Sunday School Campaign October 22-November 12. The title of the campaign is "Great Men of Faith".

Each of the four weeks will be designated in appreciation of several of the better known religious leaders of these days.

October 22 will be in honor of Dr. Jerry Falwell, pastor of the Thomas Road Baptist Church in Lynchburg, Va. He is president and founder of the Liberty Baptist College. His church has an average Sunday School attendance in excess of 10,000.

October 29 will be in honor of Dr. Bob Jones, Sr., founder and past president of Bob Jones University in Greenville, S. C.

November 5 will be in honor of Dr. John R. Rice, founder and editor of the "Sword of the Lord", weekly religious newspaper with a circulation near 300,000, author and evangelist for more than 60 years.

November 12 will be in honor of Dr. Lee Roberson, pastor of the Highland Park Baptist Church in Chattanooga, Tenn., for more than 35 years. He is chancellor and founder of the Tennessee Temple Schools. His church averages better than 10,000 each Sunday in attendance.

J. M. Bragg, pastor of People's Baptist Temple invites the public to attend and view disciples commemorating each work.

The game is almost over, and this is the critical moment. The final score hangs on what Ken does with the ball. If he is successful, he will be the hero of the day. If he isn't, people may not entirely blame him, but even so . . .

Throughout our lives, even if we never touch a football, we cannot avoid coming up against moments when the "final score" depends upon our actions.

Decision-making is never easy, especially when the decision involves others as well as ourselves, and major decisions almost always do. This is when we need a place to go where we can empty our hearts and souls and let the peace and understanding which is God's flow into us . . . that place is the church.

Tail Gunner Is Survivor In Crash Of Giant B52

By CAROL JACKSON
Associated Press Writer

MARCH AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — The lone survivor of the crash of an Air Force B-52 bomber in which five crewmen died was a tail gunner who stumbled from the fiery wreckage and was found staggering through a plowed field.

Master Sgt. Joseph Packey, 35, was reported in stable condition at the March Air Force Base hospital with severe injuries, officials said.

The 244-ton, eight-engine bomber was carrying 61,000 gallons of fuel when it departed on a routine training mission in light fog, Air Force Capt. Carl Rossman said. No nuclear or conventional weapons were aboard the craft, Rossman said, although March is a Strategic Air Command base.

Staff Sgt. John Romines said Packey, originally from Mt. Pleasant, Pa., was found in a plowed field about 300 yards from the site of Thursday's crash.

Romines identified the dead as Maj. William Parkell, 36, of Red Bank, N.J., instructor-pilot; Capt. Robert Mitchell, 29, of Dayton, Ohio, co-pilot; Capt. Michael McCreedy, 32, of Tacoma, Wash., radar navigator; 1st Lt. Robert Tuminello, 26, of Commack, N.Y., navigator, and Capt. Russell Maynard, 27, of Alexandria, Va., electronics warfare officer.

Air Force investigators were trying to determine why the jet crashed one mile southeast of the March runway in a rural area between Sunnymead and Perris — about 65 miles southeast of Los Angeles.

The giant aircraft went down just 100 yards from a mobile home owned by automotive parts distributor Harry Durbin.

Durbin, 50, said he was outside when a sputtering noise attracted his attention. He saw the plane, about 400 feet in the air, bank to the east and lose altitude.

"The left wing hit the ground, then the fuselage, then the whole thing blew up," Durbin said. "I thought they probably heard the explosion all the way to Riverside (about 15 miles away)."

Flaming debris killed 34 animals belonging to grain farmer Al Blakley and set some of his farm equipment on fire.

"I've been through cyclones in Oklahoma, but nothing was as bad as this," said Blakley, 66. "The whole place was on fire. I couldn't tell it was a plane."

The 25-year-old Boeing Stratofortress was used extensively in the Vietnam war and is still the country's major long-range bomber. Usually manned by six to eight men, the craft is designed to deliver heavy payloads of nuclear and conventional weaponry and has a range of up to 6,000 miles.

Honoring Organist Saturday Evening

Roger Ingram, minister of music for several Greenville church choirs and gospel singing groups, will be honored Saturday at 7:30 p.m. at Mount Calvary FWB Church.

"An Evening with Roger" is being sponsored by The Gospelaires of Greenville, one of the groups that Ingram directs and accompanies. All the groups he works with and several others will participate musically. Tributes from those who know him well will be made.

Ingram, 33, much of whose work is volunteer, is employed as assistant parts manager of Grant Buick-Mazda. Reared in Ayden, where he still lives with his mother, Mrs. Daisy Ingram, he first took music under Mrs. Ollie Harris, now of Grifton, who is to be on the program. He started playing publicly in 1959. He is a graduate of South Ayden High School and attended Elizabeth City State University and the U. S. School of Music in Washington, D. C., where he got a degree in piano and organ. He also has an Associate Business degree from Pitt Technical Institute.

Choirs and groups served by him as organist-pianist and/director include the Cornerstone Young Adults Choir, the Mount Calvary Ruth Hill Gospel Chorus, the W. L. Jones Traveling Choir, the Selvia Chapel Gospel Chorus, the Warren Chapel Gospel Chorus, the W. L. Phillips Traveling Choir, and the Gospelaires.

The public is invited, says Mrs. Rosa L. Harris, president of the Gospelaires.

Rehearsal Slated Tonight

The Senior Choir of Mt. Calvary Free Will Baptist Church will hold rehearsal tonight, 7:45 p.m., in the church. All members are asked to be present.

The Senior Choir will observe its 49th anniversary Sunday. Registration will begin at 5 p.m., with the program starting at 6 p.m. Various choirs and singing groups have been invited. Dr. W. L. Jones, pastor, invites the public to attend.

Senior Choir To Honor Organist

The Saint Mary Senior Choir will honor its organist, L. T. Barrett, and his 40th anniversary as accompanist for the Senior Choir of Saint Mary Missionary Baptist Church Sunday, 3 p.m.

Various choirs throughout the community that have performed with Barrett have been invited to attend. The public is also invited.

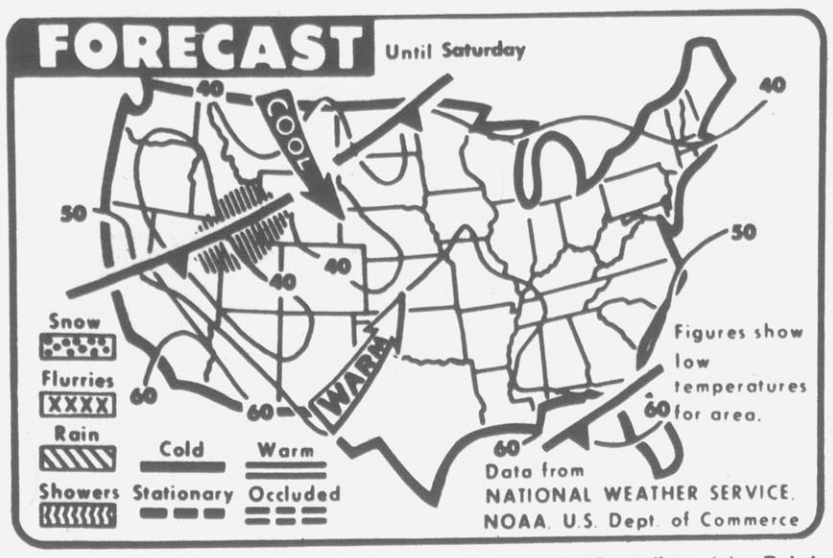
How's The Weather?



WEATHER FORECAST — Warm weather is expected in the period of Friday until Saturday morning in southern areas of the country. Cool weather is forecast for northern states. Rain is due from the central Rockies into the Plains. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press

The weak cold front which entered the state Thursday was expected to continue to control North Carolina weather today.

As the front moved through the state and off shore, the National Weather Service said it would be replaced by high pressure, which will keep the state's weather fair and dry.

Highs Thursday ranged in the 70s. The leader was Wilmington with 77 degrees. Cape Hatteras broke a record low Thursday morning. The previous record was 42 degrees set in 1970. The new low is 39.

Thursday night and this morning skies varied from clear to cloudy. Temperatures ranged from the upper 40s to around 60.

Precipitation for the past 24 hours was zero and none was expected through Saturday morning.

Lung Cancer For More Women

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of women dying of lung cancer nearly doubled between 1973 and 1976, a new study shows, and the American Cancer Society says it's because women have taken up the smoking habits of men.

The fatality statistics, from a report prepared by the National Cancer Institute, show that while both the number of lung cancer cases and the death rate among women are still well below those for men, new cases among males are increasing at a much slower rate, and women are closing the gap.

"Women began to smoke much later than men, and now it's catching up with them," said Irving Rimer, a spokesman for the American Cancer Society in New York. He noted that for the first time teenage girls are smoking at the same rate as teenage boys, whereas the proportion of women who smoke traditionaly has trailed that of men.

Fifteen percent of teenage girls and boys now smoke, he said, predicting that lung cancer death rates for the two sexes will be equal in about 30 years when today's teenagers reach the age at which lung cancer begins to take its toll.

The report, released Thursday, said that only 12 percent of all lung cancer victims live more than three years after their disease is diagnosed.

Increases were also noted for uterine cancer in women and prostate cancer in men. The death rates from those diseases, however, aren't nearly as high as the toll from lung cancer.

While the incidence of cancer generally appears to have risen about 1 percent to 2 percent per year between 1970 and 1976, the institute said, the lung cancer rate among women has risen about 8 percent yearly.

The statistics are the first to be published from an ambitious five-year-old study seeking to keep track of the incidence of cancer, its victims and survivors for years to come. The study costs about $9 million a year and collects data from 11 areas representing about 10 percent of the U.S. population.

The report shows that lung cancer killed 13.2 women per 100,000 population in 1973 and 17.6 women per 100,000 in 1976. Those figures compare with a lung cancer death rate of 60.3 per 100,000 males in 1973 and 65.5 in 1976. While the rates for each sex thus rose between four and five per 100,000, the number of women who died of lung cancer in the 11 areas during that time rose from 1,100 in 1973 to more than 2,000 in 1976.

The institute said the mortality figures for the sample are representative of the national population.

The report shows that lung cancer is by far the most deadly of the most common human malignancies — lung cancer, breast cancer, and colon and rectal cancer. Each strikes nearly twice as often as any other form of the disease.

Coors Considering A Brewery In N.C.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — State officials and Sen. Jesse Helms say the Adolph Coors Brewing Co., producer of Coors beer, is considering building a multi-million dollar brewery in North Carolina.

But a spokesman for the company tells a different story.

"We are not planning to build a brewery in the state of North Carolina," said Robert Keyser, media relations supervisor for the Colorado-based brewery. "There are no plans for a second brewery. Our expansion program calls for increasing the capacity at our brewery in Golden (Colo.)."

The Charlotte News on Thursday quoted an unidentified aide to Gov. Jim Hunt as saying the governor's office had been talking with Coors about six months. "It's all been very secretive," the aide said.

And Helms, who is seeking reelection, flew to Charlotte late Wednesday on a state plane, reportedly to discuss the Coors situation with state development officials.

Coors officials had been in the state earlier in the week, Helms said.

"It's just in the consideration stage," Helms said. He has ties with the Coors company from his broadcasting days in Raleigh, and he shares a conservative philosophy with the Coors family.

Coors was a major stockholder in a now-defunct private news service, Television News Inc., which was used by WRAL in Raleigh, where Helms was editorial spokesman before he ran for the Senate in 1972.

Coors Chairman William Coors, asked about the reports of possibly building a brewery in North Carolina, said the company was only exploring expansion outside of Colorado.

"We see the possibility that in the future we might want to build, and this is the time (to buy land)," he said.

Three North Carolina sites are reported to have been studied by Coors officials, including one in Mecklenburg County and one between Lenoir and Morganton.

The mystique of Coors, an unpasteurized beer sold primarily in Western states, has grown in recent years, partly because of the company's selective distribution, which makes the beer scarce and expensive on the East Coast.

Lay Renewal Is Planned

WINTERVILLE — Lay Renewal weekend services will be held at the Winterville Missionary Baptist Church tonight through Sunday, according to the Rev. Wayne Adkisson.

The Lay Renewal services will allow lay persons to direct several weekend services and discussion sessions concerning renewal of faith. An estimated 26 lay persons from three states will be visiting the church throughout the weekend. The laity team includes six youths.

The schedule for the weekend services are as follows: tonight, covered dish supper, 6:30 p.m., in the fellowship hall, 7:30 p.m., discussion session; Saturday, coffee hours in church members' homes, 10 a.m., luncheon for adults at the Beef Barn, 12 noon, also a cookout for the youth at the church, barbeque dinner and discussion session, 6:30 p.m., at the church; Sunday, Sunday School conducted by laity team, 9:45 a.m., morning worship service conducted by laity team, 11 a.m., evaluation session 7:30 p.m.

The public is invited to attend each of the sessions. For more information, call Wayne Adkisson, 756-5955.

Pupils Tour Facilities

Wellcome Middle School's Rotation Reading students visited Greenville's Fire Department, Mayor's office and the Pitt County Courthouse, after studying a story about a mayor.

With the help of Mayor Cox and City Clerk Lois Worthington, the students acted out a city council meeting in the council chambers. Mayor Cox gave each student a gold seal of the City of Greenville.

At the Fire Department, Firemen Perry Rogers and Tony Smart guided the students through the firemen's quarters and demonstrated fire-fighting equipment. The firemen emphasized that they are continually learning new and better safety procedures.

The last stop was the Pitt County Courthouse where Mrs. Sandra Gaskins directed the students to the courtroom. Judge Robert Wheeler welcomed them and expressed his hope that they would gain some insight into courtroom procedures.

To Convention In Fayetteville

Jehovah's Witnesses from this area will attend a convention in Fayetteville on October 22-23.

The event will be held in Memorial Auditorium and is part of a continuous training program sponsored by the church.

John D. Busby, special representative of the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society of New York, will be the guest speaker Sunday: "Meeting the Test of Christian Loyalty."

All sessions during the two-day conference are open to the public.

Conference To Be In Raleigh

The annual conference of the N.C. Mental Health Centers Association will be held Oct. 25-27 at the Royal Villa in Raleigh.

The theme of the program is Situational Crisis Intervention Services in the Community Program. A number of guest speakers will be featured, including N.C. Governor Jim Hunt, who will discuss "Area Mental Health Programs in North Carolina."

An award will be given to the most outstanding legislator selected by the mental health centers. Other awards will be given to the most outstanding area board member, administrative staff person and clinical staff person.

British Govm't Backs Down; Baby Seals Reprieved

By RICHARD BLYSTONE
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — The British government backed down — but insisted it was right. Ecology activists celebrated — but acknowledged their war is far from won. And 2,000 baby seals will live — at least until they are older and less winsome.

That was the status after a week-long dispute over a plan to "cull" — or slaughter — gray seals in the Orkney Islands off the North Coast of Scotland because they allegedly eat too much from dwindling fish stocks.

Because of "widespread public concern" — the prime minister's office alone received 16,800 protest letters — the government announced Monday it was calling off six Norwegian marksmen who had been hired for $40,000 to kill 900 adult seals.

Licensed local hunters, who were to have killed 4,000 seal pups, will be restricted to 2,000 as in the past, said the announcement from the Scottish Office.

"We achieved what we set out to achieve. They're going to review the whole subject of the seal population," said Ken Weiland, 28, a spokesman for the Greenpeace organization.

Greenpeace stationed two dozen volunteers in tents on rocky islands pledged to stand between the seals and the hired guns, who were brought in, said the Scottish Office, "because they are experts in killing the adult seals, which requires a heavier weapon than the pups."

The confrontation never came off, although the Greenpeace trawler Rainbow Warrior shadowed the Norwegians' ship Kvitingen. Relations between the vessels warmed after Rainbow Warrior relayed a government message, which couldn't otherwise get through to the hunters.

But a change of heart? No, said Weiland. "Governments don't change their nature overnight. It was pressure — pressure from us and pressure from the people. Still it's going to make the government more aware and make them be absolutely sure of their facts and figures before they embark on a course that's going to outrage a lot of people."

However, Scottish Secretary Bruce Millan repeated he is sure of his facts, and that three different advisory groups concerned with seals and other wildlife endorsed the six-year plan aimed at halving Britain's gray seal population.

From a low of 500 in 1914, the grays in Britain have multiplied to an estimated 60,000 — two-thirds of their species in the world, Millan said, adding: "There is no doubt that they are consuming a considerable quantity of fish, which has been put at a value of some 12,000 pounds ($24 million) per annum.

"I am also concerned that the future of the species is not endangered," he declared. He said Greenpeace and other opponents of the cull have brought forward no evidence that the grays' existence would be threatened by the cull.

He called for anyone with facts to submit them for study and publication before next year's seal season.

But he warned that in the end the decision is his, and that sparing seals now might just mean more to cull in the future.

Greenpeace, also known for daring mid-ocean harassment of whaling fleets, had objected to the lack of published evidence from the Scottish office. Weiland said supporters did "an immense amount of research in a very short time," combing libraries and talking with wildlife experts, and then decided to intervene.

"When the news broke we had all the volunteers we could use," said Weiland. "British, Dutch, French, Canadian — seven nationalities in all."

Orkney Islanders disagreed about the hunt. Some fishermen approved of it, but others — including fishermen — formed Selkie, using the local dialect name for seal, and deployed more protesters than the outsiders did.

"This whole thing is an emotional subject that has been blown up out of all proportion," said Roddie McColl, assistant secretary of the Scottish Fishermen's Federation.

"Baby seals with wide eyes may be very endearing, but there's nothing endearing about a grunting, full-grown seal."

On the seals' side yet another champion arose after the government's pullback. The 4,000member Hunt Saboteurs Association announced it was diversifying from its usual disruption of fox, hare and stag hunts and would send a contingent of four dozen to shield the baby seals from even the local hunters.

"Totally misplaced," was Greenpeace's word on that action.

"What's the difference between a Norwegian bullet and a Scottish bullet?" asked Saboteurs spokeswoman Lynn Chamberlain. "We think Greenpeace are wrong to back out now."

New Director For OperationSunshine

Mrs. William Pearsall assumed duties as activities director for Operation Sunshine. She met with the Board of Directors on October 16 to discuss her aims and program plans for the girls who participate in Operation Sunshine, an organization for girls between the ages of 8 and 13 years.

Mrs. Pearsall, holder of a bachelors degree in business education, has taught for five years and has done substitute teaching for as many years. She traveled extensively with her husband while he was serving in the U. S. Air Force, spending some time in Spain.

In discussing her plans with the board, Mrs. Pearsall said that she would plan activities emphasizing personal hygiene, nutrition, cooking, sewing, arts and crafts, knitting, sports and crocheting. She asks anyone wishing to contribute supplies or assistance for the program to contact her at 756-2371. She is looking forward to a successful, expanding program.

Confirmed

Pitt Memorial Hospital Patient Representative Ed Hackett said the "John Doe" in the hospital's intensive care unit has had his identity confirmed by his brother.

The man brought into the hospital without identification Sept. 28 after having been hit by a truck in Wilson County is Lawrence Briscoe Stewart, born in Prince Frederick, Md. in 1937. His brother, whom the hospital official refused to name, was notified by the Maryland State Police about his being a comatose patient here. The identity was confirmed by knowledge of a two-inch scar on his neck.

The brother said he has not seen Lawrence or known his whereabouts for the past 20 years. Lawrence had or has a twin brother, the whereabouts of whom the brother also does not know, Hackett said he was told by Maryland Police.

Church Harvest Festival Set

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices declined broadly again today, continuing their weeklong slide.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which had lost more than 50 points in the last four days, was off another 5.97 at 840.44 by noontime today.

Losers outdistanced gainers by an 8-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The gloomy atmosphere surrounding the market deepened late Thursday as traders apparently anticipated bad news in the Federal Reserve's weekly statistics on the money supply.

Those fears proved to be well founded when the Fed issued data showing a $3.8 billion jump in the basic measure of the money supply for the latest reporting week.

The figures reinforced the belief among a number of analysts that the steady rise of interest rates this year has so far achieved little of its objective of slowing monetary growth.

Ramada Inns led the active list, off ⅜ at 10⅛. A 200,000share block traded at that price.

The NYSE's composite index was down .58 at 55.13. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index fell 2.79 to 155.38.

Volume on the Big Board set an active pace, totaling 17.35 million shares by noontime.

Costs Erasing College Plans

NEW YORK (AP) — The number of families planning to send their children to college has dropped 5 percent since 1977, a survey shows.

A nationwide poll of 1,400 families by Citibank, the nation's second largest commercial bank, indicates 64 percent of families with a student in high school or junior high school "definitely" or "probably" plan to send their child to college.

In 1977, 69 percent of those polled said they intended to send their children on to college. The year before, 67 percent anticipated college for their children.

ACCIDENT INJURES BETHEL MAN — A Bethel man was injured last night when the car he was driving went off the right shoulder, crossed the highway and turned over in a ditch. According to Trooper A. G. Wright, Cecil Gordon Jones, of Bethel, received cuts and other injuries when he was trapped in the overturned vehicle. Wright said Jones was charged with driving left of center and driving under the influence. The accident occurred just outside the Greenville City limits on the old Statonsburg highway about 9:15. Wives Burn; Men Happy

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Wives of Gainesville firemen say they're upset because a female firefighter uses the same shower and bunkroom as their husbands. But the woman's presence has apparently had a beneficial effect on the men.

"Having a woman around there has made the station a more pleasant place to work," said Assistant Fire Chief Freddie Miller. "The men have cleaned up their language quite a bit."

The wives see it differently.

"It's completely immoral," declared one wife. "The men there sleep wearing only their underwear, and those bunks are only a foot apart."

"What are the kids supposed to think?" she asked.

The city's first female firefighter, Ellie Sorel, began work at the Main Street fire station about two weeks ago. Like the men, she is on duty 24 hours and off duty for 48. She sleeps at the station while on duty and uses the one bathroom. Miller said a separate shower period has been set aside for Ms. Sorel.

The wives, however, aren't satisfied and are petitioning for her transfer to another department. A spokeswoman, who didn't want to give her name, said that half the wives have signed and that they'll picket the City Commission on Monday night if they have to.

"If something isn't done, we're all going to go down there ourselves and apply for jobs," the woman said.

Open Doors To Male Reporters

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — The Toledo Troopers, the perennial power of the National Women's Football League, are opening their locker room to male reporters after their playoff game with the Columbus Pacesetters on Saturday night.

"It's the first time we've opened our locker room to the men," said Ken Dippman, a spokesman for the Troopers, who have lost just one game in eight years in the NWFL.

He said reporters would be granted several minutes immediately after the game to interview the Toledo players. Then the locker room will be cleared of the newsmen to permit the players to shower.

"Maybe some of the girls will have to physically throw the men out," said Dippman.

Police Count 5 Accidents

Greenville police estimated $2,925 property damage resulted from a series of five traffic collisions investigated yesterday by officers.

Heaviest damage resulted from a 9:44 a.m. collision on 14th Street, 15 feet East of the Railroad Street intersection, involving cars driven by Lonnie Barrett Anderson of 1007 Douglas Ave. and Helen Waters Jarvis of 403 Line Ave.

Investigators, who charged Anderson with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety, estimated damage at $1,000 to the Anderson car and $200 to the Jarvis auto.

James Milton Wiggins of 1200B West Fifth St. was charged with failing to stop for a stop light following investigation of a 4 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Dickinson and Grande Avenues.

Officers reported the Wiggins car collided with a vehicle driven by Gail Baker Shope of 106 North Oak St., causing an estimated $400 damage to the Shope car and $200 damage to the Wiggins vehicle.

Cars driven by Raymond Jenkins of 1923 Norcott Cir. and Melissa Ann Long of 2603 East Tenth St. collided about 7:58 a.m. on Tenth Street, 40 feet West of the Elm Street intersection, causing an estimated $175 damage to the Jenkins car and $350 damage to the Long auto.

A 7:55 a.m. collision at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Sheraton Drive involved cars operated by Mark Aaron Conway of 2001 Forest Hills Dr. and William Arnold Williamson of 1405 East Wright Rd.

Officers, who charged Conway with failing to yield the right of way, set damage at $50 to the Conway car and $250 to the Williamson vehicle.

A 12:57 p.m. collision at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Trade Street involved cars driven by Donald C. Mann of Ft. Walton Beach, Fla., and Virgil Lynn Tyson of 1521 Broad St. and caused an estimated $200 damage to the Mann vehicle and $100 damage to the Tyson car, police reported.

Responsible For Bringing Light

WEST RUTLAND, Vt. (AP) — Pope John Paul II will be responsible for bringing light into St. Stanislaus Church on Sunday.

The Central Vermont Public Service Corp. says it will delay a scheduled power interruption that day to avoid interfering with special services in the pope's honor.

The utility was planning to cut off power to the area between 10 and 11 a.m. Sunday — the day of the new pope's inauguration at the Vatican. But it decided to put off the repairs for a week after it learned of the services.

CLUB MEETING

The 20th Century Club will meet Sunday at 2:30 p.m. at the home of James Barnhill, 100 Lancaster Dr.

Members have been asked to serve as pallbears for the funeral of William Sherrod Sunday.

OES NOTICE

County ACT Unit Held Meet

The Pitt County Association of Classroom Teachers executive council met Wednesday, October 18, at First Federal Savings and Loan Association.

Council members heard a presentation by Joe Downing of Pitt Technical Institute, concerning community college status for Pitt Tech.

Plans for the up-coming Southeast Regional ACT meeting were discussed. The Pitt County unit will be the only county unit in the state to present a program for the conference. The Southeast Region includes 11 states.

Executive Countil meetings are open to all mem bers.

Prisoner In Apartment

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — No charges have been filed in the case of a 75-year-old grandmother who police say has been locked in her apartment for the past two months by her daughter.

Ada Kate Morgan, director of the Montgomery office of the Department of Pensions and Security, said the grandmother, Nellie Adams, made it clear she did not want to press charges against her daughter.

Police Sgt. John Anderson identified the daughter as Betty McCoy.

Mrs. Adams was freed from the apartment Thursday after a padlock on the door to her three-bedroom apartment was cut off on police orders. Police said they were alerted to the situation by managers of the apartment complex.

Anderson said Mrs. Adams told authorities that her daughter had kept her locked in the apartment and had let her out only to endorse her monthly checks from the Department of Pensions and Securities.

"I told her not to lock that door," Mrs. Adams said after she was freed. "But she locks it every day. I've been having trouble with Betty since my mama died. She's so stubborn in her mind, I can't do anything with her."

Mrs. Adams told police her daughter said she was using her mother's monthly check to pay the rent. However, Mrs. Adams said she did not believe that to be true since she has had to move three times because the rent has not been paid.

Bucs, Spiders Tangle In Oyster Bowl

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Last year, the Pirates of East Carolina went to the Oyster Bowl filled with the prospect of adding another victory to their season.

But William & Mary, their opponent in the game, had a better idea, coming away with a 21-17 victory in the contest.

Saturday, the Pirates return to Norfolk, this time facing the Spiders of the University of Richmond.

The renewal of the Richmond-East Carolina series marks a key game for both teams. The Pirates are coming off their third loss of the year, a close, 17-16 defeat at the hands of Southern Mississippi. Richmond, meanwhile, has won by once in seven games.

Overall, Richmond leads the series between the two, 11-8, but East Carolina has won the last two games between the two, including last year's 35-14 victory.

But in the Pat Dye era at East Carolina, the two teams stand even, each winning twice.

Dye calls the contest a key one for the Pirates as they start the march toward the end of the season.

"We have a chance to get things together and finish strong," he said.

Richmond, at the same time, has a chance to make some things happen for its team by beating the Pirates. And the Spiders always seem to play a little stronger against the Bucs.

"I'm probably a lot higher on Richmond than our fans are," Dye said Wednesday. "But I've seen their game films, and our fans haven't. They only look at the record, but we see how good a team Richmond really is."

Dye pointed out that Richmond has been in every game it has played, with the possible exception of last week's 23-6 defeat at the hands of VMI. "It's been a frustrating season for them. But they had a chance to win in every game except VMI."

Richmond lost to Southern Mississippi in the season's opener, 10-7, then fell to West Virginia, 14-12. Unbeaten Wisconsin topped them, 7-6, and they fell to Appalachian State, 24-19.

The lone victory came in an astounding upset of Cincinnati, when they took a 51-28 win, showing that they are capable of doing a lot of things well.

Villanoiva then took a 17-14 win over them, before the VMI game this past weekend.

"They've got good players, and a strong line. They've got super speed at the running backs, and their defense is probably as good as anyone we play.

"(Jesse) Williams has got to be the fastest back in America, and his back-up man, Reggie Evans, isn't bad either."

Williams is the top rusher on the team with 394 yards, while fullback Demitri Kornegay has 321. Evans has rushed for 292 yards, while quarterback James Short has 276 yards.

Overall Richmond has rushed for 1,279 yards and held their opponents to 1,322.

Backup quarterback Greg Gregory is the leading passer, hitting 29 of 63 for 286 yards, and two touchdowns. He has been intercepted four times. Short has hit on 22 of 54 passes for 279 yards, none of them for scores. Five of his passes have been picked off. Gregory, however, has only been sacked once, while Short has been hit behind the line seven times.

Williams and Kornegay have been the chief targets of the quarterbacks, each catching nine passes. Tight end Ian Beckstead has eight receptions, while split end Jay Arvai has seven catches and Evans has six.

Williams, who runs back kickoffs, is averaging 28.2 yards per return, among the national leaders in that category while free safety and All-American candidate Jeff Nixon, is among the top punt returners with a 12.6 average.

Placekicker Steve Adams has hit on four of eight field goal attempts, the longest of 36 yards.

The game, to be played at Foreman Field in Norfolk, is an annual benefit of the Shrine, in behalf of its children's hospitals.

Sanford Tops DHC

FAYETTEVILLE — D. H. Conley was defeated in the first round of the state volleyball tournament here last night, dropping a three-game decision to Terry Sanford, 15-10, 8-15, 15-4.

The Valkyries, champions of the 3-A Eastern Carolina Conference, played hard against the Lady Bulldogs, Conley coach Norma Respess said, but may have been the victims of too much second-guessing on the court.

Terry Sanford, the champions of 4-A Division III, will now advance in state play.

Cubs Take 7th In Row

RED OAK — Rose High School's junior varsity remained unbeaten through eight games yesterday, squeezing out a 20-19 win over Northern Nash.

Rose scored in the first, third and fourth periods, and picked up conversions after two of those scores. Northern picked up scores in the first, second and fourth periods, but missed on two of the fateful points, including a two-point try in the final quarter that could have won the game.

Alonzo Taylor scored the first two Rose touchdowns going 13 yards for the first and 30 for the second. Mike Thurber kicked extra points after each of the scores.

Kenny Barnes got the final touchdown, with a oneyard plunge.

Northern's touchdowns came following a blocked punt, after three penalties gave them excellent field position, and after a 60-yard run.

Taylor led the Rose offense with 125 yards rushing, while Kenny Wilson had 77 yards and Barnes had 63. Rose had 287 yards rushing all together.

The Rampants travel to Wilson Fike on Thursday.

Northern Nash	6	7	0	6—19

Travel Routes

East Carolina University fans traveling to Saturday's Oyster Bowl game between the Pirates and Richmond may follow these instructions if they are unfamiliar with the route.

Follow U.S. 13 to Suffolk, Va., then take U.S. 58 to Bowers Hill, where I-64 is intersected. Follow I-64 to Portsmouth and take the Mid-Town Tunnel to Norfolk. Then take Hampton Blvd. for about three miles, and the stadium, Foreman Field, is on the left at 48th and Hampton, just beyond the Old Dominion University campus.

Gurley Colby (A) defeated Cutler Ibarra, 8 3.
Number three singles cancelled because of darkness.

Rose 9, Beddingfield 0

Rose High School romped to a 9-0 victory over Beddingfield yesterday, having little trouble in the win.

Beddingfield never won more than one game in a singles match, and took only nine games in the three doubles matches.

The win left Rose with a 5-5 overall record and a 5-4 Division I mark. They play host to Raleigh Sanderson on Saturday.

In exhibition singles, Bernestine Haselrig downed Jenine Richardson, 8-2, Chris Galya beat Hilda Richardson, 8-0, and Lisa Selby beat Lanide Edwards, 8-0.

Rampants Are 2nd

Northern Nash's Frank Brown set a new course record in leading the Knights to a victory in a three-way cross-country meet here yesterday.

Brown finished the race in 15:38, breaking the old Rose High course record of 16:11 held by Til Jolley. Northern Nash won the meet with 28 points, followed by Rose with 34 and D. H. Conley with 84.

Jolley came in second in the race in 16:09, while Sam Poullen of Northern finished in 16:18 and teammate Tim Avent had a time of 16:25. Jeff Credle of Conley rounded out the top five in 16:30.

Two Rose runners followed, Dan Mayo in 16:36 and Steve Blackwell in 16:38. Willie Alston of Northern Nash took eighth in 16:47, while Bill DaVanzo of Rose had a time of 17:03, followed by Rose's Blair Smith in tenth place in 17:04.

Other Rampant finishers were Ted Gartman, 11th in 17:06, Allen Parks, 14th in 17:20, Michael Davis, 16th in 17:48, Sterling Ashby, 19th in 18:56 and Michael Tucker, 20th in 19:22.

The Rampants are now 10-7 on the season and will compete in the Division I meet next Thursday at Beddingfield.

Sutton: Bucs Want To Redeem Themselves

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Theodore Sutton wasn't making any fancy moves, and really had nothing to gain, but suddenly found himself surrounded with nowhere to go.

Sutton, the East Carolina University fullback from Kinston, was making his way into the Pirates' Cove at Jones Dorm Wednesday, headed for lunch when he suddenly found himself the object of a crowd of people.

It was the ECU press corps that brought him to a half. And Sutton quietly obliged them all.

The first thing that brought the eyes of the press to Sutton was a heavy, thick bandage on his right wrist and arm. "It's nothing serious," he assured everyone. "I have a small bone chip, and I expect to be ready to play on Saturday. I don't think it will bother me at all."

Sutton is the leading ball carrier for the Pirates this year, having rushed for 440 yards in seven games. The last two games, he's been the leading rusher for the Pirates for each game.

He was asked about Coach Pat Dye's statement that practice on Tuesday was one of the worst ever since he's been with ECU. "Yeah," Sutton said, "it might have been. It was just one of those days when nobody could do anything right. I think we'll snap out of it though."

Sutton said that he was looking forward to this weekend's game in the Oyster Bowl against Richmond. "We didn't play well against William & Mary last year in that game, and we want to redeem ourselves. We not only want to beat William & Mary in a couple of weeks to show them that it wasn't the real us, we want to show the Tidewater people this weekend that we're not the same team they saw last year."

Like his head coach, Sutton believes that a bowl game at the end of the season is still a possibility, but the fullback believes that it would be a longshot now. "Our offense has got to score a lot of points over the next four games and our defense has to shut people off for us to have any chance."

"We were hoping for a 9-2 season (after losing to State and Carolina), but now that's out of the question. So I guess we'll just have to shoot for 8-3. Not many teams will be able to say they're 8-3 after the season is over, I guess."

Sutton compared the Pirate situation now to that of last year when the final few games came around. "I guess we're just getting toward the end of the year and a little tired. But we can't afford to get the same attitude we had last year if we want to finish strong."

Sutton led the Pirate rushing last year with 706 yards, and now has a net of 1,146 over his career. He needs only 307 more to being his climb up the Top Ten ladder for the Pirates in career rushing, and Saturday he'd like to take a big step up that ladder at the expense of the Spiders.

We have it here—exclusively. Larry Gillman makes his predictions.

Well, not really. At least not the basketball predictions that everyone would like to here.

We've got the ECU basketball coach for our guest panel member this week, making his picks for the 12 contests on the list.

The standings didn't change a bit last week as everyone but Vickie Spivey recorded 8-4 weeks. Spivey went 6-6.

That left Tom Baines in the lead with a 58-23 mark, followed by this writer at 56-25. Our guests and Joe Jenkins are one back, 55-26, followed by Jim Kyle at 54-27, and Vickie Spivey at 49-32.

Our guest last week, Tom "Skip" Foreman of WCHL in Chapel Hill, also went 8-4. Gillman predicts that his picks will be the best among the guests. Bill Cain currently is holding first there with a 10-2 mark.

Turning first to our high school picks, last week, we recorded a 6-1 mark, bringing us to 32-7 on the year.

This week, there are some tough ones, however, including the big meeting between Ayden-Grifton and Farmville Central.

Outside the Eastern Carolina Conference, we find North Johnston visiting Roanoke. The Redskins are out to prove that they are second-best, if they can't have the best role in the Eastern Plains. Roanoke should be able to pull this one out.

Edenton visits Williamston in the Northeastern Conference. The two have both found troubles this year, and this one could really be a toss-up. A lot will depend on how "down" the Tigers are following two straight shutout losses. But we think they can snap back and take this one.

Turning to the ECC, we find C.B. Aycock at Conley. The Vikes have some injury problems. Aycock hasn't done well. It's a toss-up too, but we'll have to go with Aycock.

North Pitt visits Greene Central. The Panthers lost last week after we thought they'd pull one out. Greene Central has shown the ability to play well at times. This could be another close one, but our choice is with Greene Central.

Finally, the big game at Ayden-Grifton, where the Farmville Central Jaguars will be trying to just about sew up the title for another year.

This one will be hard fought all the way. The home field advantage could decide it, but we are going to stick with the Jaguars to pull away with the win.

Turning to our panel's picks, we find the Pirates of East Carolina traveling to Norfolk for a return appearance in the Oyster Bowl. Last year, they embarrassed themselves against William& Mary, and this year, they face Richmond, a long-time foe.

Our panel is confident this week, however, and goes right down the line with a perfect 6-0 pull for the Pirates.

The same thing isn't true for the Rampants of Rose High, however. Rose, in a nose-dive in the conference, is still trying for its first Division I victory. The panel doesn't know how to set this one up, and has divided, 3-3, calling it a toss-up.

Our other concensus picks find Clemson over Duke; State over Carolina; Arkansas over Texas; Auburn over Georgia Tech; Oklahoma State over Kansas; Maryland over Wake Forest; Virginia Tech over Virginia; Citadel over Appalachian; Southern Mississippi and Memphis State, a toss-up; and South Carolina over Mississippi.

A final word from Coach Gillman on his predictions: "These are the only predictions you're going to get from me!"

Aw, shucks!

Texas Will Go With Experience For Matchup Against Arkansas

By The Associated Press

Texas Coach Fred Akers says he plans to open with experience rather than youth when his eighth-ranked Longhorns take on third-ranked Arkansas Saturday in a matchup of Southwest Conference powers.

Akers will start senior Randy McEachern at quarterback rather than freshman Donnie Little, explaining that McEachern has "poise and maturity, a settling effect on what is already a young unit."

Akers added that Little would see action for Texas, 4-1 overall and 2-0 in the SWC, the only loss having come at the hands of top-ranked Oklahoma. Arkansas is 4-0 overall and 1-0 in conference play.

McEachern came off the bench last week to rally Texas from a 9-0 deficit to a 26-16 victory over North Texas State.

Arkansas Coach Lou Holtz says McEachern gives Texas more of an aerial threat.

"When McEachern makes the big play, it's usually passing," said Holtz. "Little may run up there and hand it to the receiver."

No matter which quarterback is in there, Holtz is prepared for trouble.

"People around the country may be underestimating Texas," said Holtz. "Their defense is every bit as good as it was last year. And except for Earl Campbell, their offense is as good, too."

The Texas-Arkansas game will be one of six regionally televised contests that ABC will follow with a national telecast of the Pacific-10 showdown between 10th-ranked UCLA and California.

"The UCLA offense has just started to come around, and that scares me," says California Coach Roger Theder.

The 10th-ranked Bruins, who outscored Washington State 45-31 last weekend, are 3-0 in the Pac-10 while California is 2-0 in conference play. Both clubs are 5-1 overall.

UCLA is led by running backs Jesse Owens and Theotis Brown, while California relies on the passing of Rich Campbell, who has already picked up 1,361 yards this season. The Bears uncovered a new dimension last week, however, when tailback John Williams — a 24year-old senior who spent three years in minor league baseball before going to college — rushed for 133 yards in a victory over Arizona.

The game has been designated the second Joe Roth Memorial Game, with $1 of each admission going to a scholarship fund named after Roth, the California passing star who died of cancer last year.

"I knew Joe, and he was still competing in the last couple of days of his life. That means something to me," said Williams. "When we go out there Saturday, we can say we're representing a man who would be one of the best athletes in the country if he were still alive today."

Other major games on the schedule include top-ranked Oklahoma at Iowa State, Syracuse at No. 2 Penn State, No. 4 Alabama at Tennessee, No. 5 Nebraska at Colorado, Wake Forest at No. 6 Maryland, Oregon State at No. 7 Southern California and No. 9 Michigan at Wisconsin.

Allison Getting Closer To Cale

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP) — Donnie Allison sort of set the stage for the kind of year he would have when he brought a Pontiac to the Daytona 500 in February. He's spent the rest of the year catching up.

Allison dumped the Pontiac even before the race at Daytona, but the time lost to the teams with Chevrolets and Oldsmobiles has been evident.

Until now, that is.

Allison turned in his strongest showing to date Thursday. He missed bettering by a scant two-hundredths of a second Cale Yarborough's track record of 142.067 mph in the first day of qualifying for Sunday's American 500 Grand National stock car race.

"Almost, but not quite," Allison said after his run at 141.956 mph in his Chevrolet Monte Carlo. "We could have picked up a little more by changing gears, but the car was handling so good I didn't want to take a chance of messing it up.

"All we have to do is unstop the front end and go racing."

Most teams block off the air flow through the radiator during qualifying to make the car run hotter, and therefore, faster. For the race, however, they would cook the engine in just a few miles without unblocking the air flow.

"The car's just super since we unloaded it," said the defending American 500 winner. "Believe me that's a good feeling, especially considering how things have gone for us at times this season."

Allison was asked what kind of pace he expected in the $150,000 race.

"All I can say," he said, "is that Cale better be able to run that speed (142.067 mph) all day Sunday, because I can."

Speeds usually drop off from qualifying when it comes to race day, but that's not always the case at North Carolina Motor Speedway's 1.017-mile oval, which gets faster as it gets hotter and greasier during a race.

"We'll be ready," said Yarborough, "and so will some of those other guys. Especially Donnie. He's flying."

Most teams had expected a strong showing from the Wood brothers Mercury driven by David Pearson, who is a fivetime winner here.

But it never came.

"We dropped a valve in practice," Pearson said glumly.

Pathers Win, 20-6

BETHEL — North Pitt's junior varsity football team rolled to a 20-6 victory over Southwest Edgecombe yesterday.

Barry Warren twice teamed with split end Jerry Simpson for scores, on passes of 45 and 26 yards. The other score came on a one-yard run by Tommy Harris, with Derek Smith adding the two-point conversion.

Southwest's score came on a pass in the third period.

Cited for defensive player were Paul Tucker, Juan Atkinson, Randy Brummel, David Coburn, Mike Short, Dallas Staton and Keith Murphy. Offensive standouts were Barry Gurkins, Robert Carraway, Gordon Dunn, Harry Purvis and Greg Glisson.

North Pitt is now 3-1.

Cox Takes Win Over Chicod

WINTERVILLE — A.G. Cox Junior High rolled to a 48-6 victory over Chicod yesterday.

Leon Cox, Alfred Ross, and Mike Long led the offensive effort, while Robert Adams and Long sparked the defense.

Cox is now 3-0.

Fun Run Is Scheduled

The Coastal Carolina Track Club will hold its weekly "Fun Run" Saturday at 7:30 a.m. starting at North Pitt High School.

The "Joggers Special" will be held Sunday at 8:30 a.m. at E.B. Aycock track.

All interested runners are invited to participate in either event.

State-Carolina Head Three-Game Atlantic Coast Loop Schedule

By The Associated Press

It's a big weekend in the Atlantic Coast Conference this week as six of seven teams play conference games.

NORTH CAROLINA — N.C. STATE

Probably the most-watched game will be this one. The teams meet in Chapel Hill.

Both teams are 1-1 in ACC play and are tied for third place in the standings.

But the conference standings don't say that State's one conference loss is also its only loss of the season. Carolina, on the other hand, is only 2-3 for the year.

Many eyes will be on the running of State's Ted Brown and the Tar Heel's Amos Lawrence.

Brown leads the ACC in rushing with 694 yards. But Lawrence, despite a slow season, appeared to pick up speed last week and rushed for 180 yards against Wake Forest. He led the league last year.

DUKE — CLEMSON

This is also a big one in terms of conference play. The Blue Devils and the Tigers are tied for second place in the ACC.

Clemson's Jerry Butler is one of the top receivers in the country. And the team is 4-1 for the season and was a favorite for conference honors this year.

Duke will be travelling to Death Valley for the game, and the team has lost two big ones on the road this year, first to Michigan, then to Navy.

Clemson has won three straight and is led by Steve Fuller, the conference lea in total offense.

WAKE FOREST — MARYLAND

The Terps will be travelling to Winston-Salem Saturday, and Deacon Coach John Mackovic says Maryland should be really rolling.

Maryland is the sole ACC team in the Top 10, and it should be a reasonably easy game for the team. The Terps are undefeated, but Wake is 15.

But Mackovic said his team is not going to give up. "We will not concede a thing to anybody," he said.

VIRGINIA — VIRGINIA TECH

This game continues a big instate rivalry.

Virginia hasn't been playing well this year, but the team will be on its home turf, which may help.

Flag Football

The Jets shut out the Eagles yesterday 14-0 in a flag football game.

The Jets got a first-quarter touchdown from David Smith on a five-yard run and then added eight points in the fourth period when Jesse Pratt caught a 15-yard TD pass from Dwight Smith and Jimmy Hartley made a tackle in the end zone for a safety.

Soccer

The Stars defeated the Cosmos 2-0 and the Diplomats and the Kicks played to a 0-0 tie.

Both the Stars' goals came in the first quarter. Trip Williford scored on a corner kick three minutes into the game and Mike Coop scored with an assist by Eric Jarman with 10 seconds left in the period.

Greg Ward, Brian Wille and goalie Chip Hessenflow had good game for the Stars. Debbie Seykora and Jeff and Charles Moore all played well for the Cosmos.

Kicks Doug Frelke and Bert Aycock were cited for good play in the Diplomats-Kicks game, along with Diplomats Richard Haselrig, Chris Coble, Clay Deanhart, Robbie McDonald, Kirk Berry, Tom Harwell, Scott Davis and George Iaboni.

COACHES OKAY RULE

SHAWNEE MISSION, Kan. (AP) — The coaches of the major college football teams are overwhelmingly in favor of the new rule going into effect for the 1978 season which decrees that missed field goals are returned to the line of scrimmage.

Of the 139 Division 1-A schools, 97 voted in favor of the changed rule. There were 31 opposed and 11 either were undecided or did not answer a questionnaire on the subject.

Sells Human Skulls As Novelty

By PEGGY ANDERSEN
Associated Press Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Alas, poor Yorick — and Sam and Joe and Susan and Margaret.

Shakespeare's Hamlet goes on to say, "I knew him well." But nobody who knew the original owners of the skulls being marketed by George Dashnau of Philadelphia would recognize them today.

Dashnau, an advertising agency executive, says his $100 novelty is "a fascinating work that commands attention and interest in any room. Death holds a fascination for us mortals. It's a very good angle."

"Back in the Middle Ages it was a real common thing for alchemists to have a skull. And I understand Napoleon Bonaparte gave Josephine two mummies when he came back from Egypt," he said.

"I've been looking for a way to get rich for many years. I've been looking for a product that will catch the public's fancy. If this doesn't do it, nothing will."

The skulls the 55-year-old Dashnau is marketing are provided by a medical supply firm, which wants to remain anonymous. He said he has no idea how old the specimens are or where they come from. They apparently are prepared for medical students, he said.

The skulls are treated to prevent decalcification. The cranium is sectioned to permit viewing of the brain cavity and the lower jaw is fastened with springs which "permit opening and shutting of the mouth in a realistic manner," Dashnau said.

"I try to think of them as old bones — not as people," he said. "There is a certain gruesomeness about it."

And yet, he added, "it's a fascinating thing, really. The bone structures are so wonderfully and delicately made."

Dashnau said he has been a science fiction buff for many years and suggests that may have helped trigger the idea for his product.

"But I think it all started when I was a kid. I saw a print of an alchemist holding a skull and I thought, 'Gee, that would be a keen thing to have.'"

Dashnau said he hopes his clientele will include "business executives who want an unusual desk ornament."

The skulls are the first product from his new mail-order supply house, based at a Flourtown post office box. If they go well, he plans to expa his line of merchandise.

Next: human skeletons $500.

Charged In Murder Of A Bride-To-Be

FRIENDSHIP, Wis. (AP) — The daughter of a deputy sheriff faced arraignment on a charge of first-degree murder in the death of Nancy Potts, whose body was found on the day she was to be married.

Attorney General Bronson La Follette said Thursday that Janna Lynn Henningsen, 21, had been arrested "pursuant to a criminal warrant charging her with first-degree murder in the death of Nancy Potts." La Follette's office was coordinating investigation of the case.

La Follette said Mrs. Henningsen would be arraigned today. He declined further comment.

Mrs. Henningsen is the daughter of Adams County Undersheriff Edwin Williams, a candidate for sheriff in the Nov. 7 election.

Williams had said earlier in the week that state investigators were asked to aid in the case because of its complexity and the discovery of information he declined to discuss.

Miss Potts, 21, of Wisconsin Rapids, a licensed practical nurse at Adams County Memorial Hospital, was to marry Kenny Ray Reichhoff of Brooks last Saturday, but she disappeared four days earlier.

Her body was found Saturday night in the trunk of a car parked on a rural road north of Friendship. Authorities said she had been strangled and beaten.

Reichhoff, 22, spent two years in prison after his conviction in the 1974 slayings of two Adams County men, but the Wisconsin Supreme Court overturned the convictions and he was acquitted at a second trial last year.

Church Music Program

WINTERVILLE — Larry Jones and Donald Waters of the Gallery Piano and Organ Studio, will present a program of church music Sunday night at 7:30 at the Reedy Branch Free Will Baptist Church.

All types of church music will be featured including solos and duets. Jones will be featured at the Yamaha organ and Waters at the piano.

The public is invited to attend according to the Rev. Willis Wilson, pastor.

2 ♠	Pass	3 ◇	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	6 ◇	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♠.

Don't commit yourself to a finesse simply because it's there to be taken. First try to find an alternative line that might increase your chances.

South did not want to open one no trump because of his doubleton heart. He could not rebid one no trump over his partner's heart response because his hand was too strong, so he introduced his second suit. After North jump raised diamonds, South made the delicate cue-bid of three spades. That confirmed his good hand and, at the same time, left open the possibility of playing the hand at three no trump. North needed no further encouragement to contract for slam.

West led the king of spades, and when dummy came down, declarer saw that he was faced with a potential trump and spade loser. Considering the trump suit in isolation, the percentage play for no losers was to finesse for the queen. But in context of the hand as a whole, declarer realized that he had a far better play than banking everything on the trump finesse.

Declarer won the ace of spades and cashed the ace and king of diamonds. When the queen failed to drop, declarer turned his attention to the club suit. When both defenders followed to three rounds of clubs, the contract was home. On the fourth club declarer sluffed dummy's last spade, and it made no difference whether West ruffed or not. Declarer simply continued by ruffing spades in dummy and hearts in his hand. West could score the queen of trumps whenever he pleased, but that was the only trick the defense could get.

Instead of a 50 percent shot—the trump finesse—declarer would have made his contract if the queen of trumps was doubleton, if clubs broke 3-3, or if the defender with the third trump held three or more clubs. Obviously, these combined chances were far superior to a straight finesse.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. For a copy and a scorepad, send $1.75 to "Goren-Four Deal," c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 259, Norwood, N.J. 07648. Make checks payable to NEWSPAPERBOOKS.

National Public Radio Adds New Jersey Voice

By BARBARA LYNCH
Associated Press Writer

NEWARK, N.J. (AP)—A new radio voice is being heard these days in the New York-New Jersey metropolitan area: WBGO-FM, New Jersey's first public radio station.

When it went on the air in early October, WBGO became the 216th station to be affiliated with National Public Radio, the nation's non-profit, noncommercial network.

"We are part of the radio renaissance," says WBGO's station manager, Bob Ottenhoff. "We are rediscovering what radio can do and people are re-discovering radio."

Recent published statistics quoted by Ottenhoff show people listen to radio an average of 3½ hours a day, just 15 minutes less than the average for television.

The new station, one of a dozen to join NPR this year, was originally owned by the Newark Board of Education. The board used the station for instructional broadcasting, mainly for the lower grades, and then only during school hours. The station did not broadcast at all when school was out of session.

The revived station Ottenhoff says, will divide its programming equally between public affairs and music, primarily jazz.

"The backbone of any public radio station is good local news coverage," he says, adding the station will try to cover such local events as meetings of the board of education and the city council.

Within a few weeks, the station will relocate its broadcast tower and increase its power from 20,000 to 32,000 watts. It will have a potential listening audience of 11 million people in the New Jersey-New York metropolitan area.

The new Newark station has an annual budget of $400,000 a year, put together from grants from the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare and private contributions such as the $10,000 gift from one listener who said he enjoyed NPR's prize-winning daily news program, news program, "All Things Considered."

After a few weeks of the new programming, Ottenhoff says, "We're really encouraged by the audience response. Many listeners are requesting programs they've heard on other NPR stations."

Ottenhoff says the station will adopt new call letters, to fit its new identity, after a promotional campaign among listeners.

BLACK STAGE

NEW YORK (AP) — "Black American On Stage," a special exhibition and series of symposia, will be held at the City University Graduate Center beginning Oct. 25.

TO WED — Mary Frances Crosby, 19, daughter of Mrs. Kathryn Crosby and the late Bing Crosby, has announced her forthcoming marriage to Edmund Preston Lottimer, 27, a music publisher and songwriter. The date for the ceremony has not been announced. (AP Laserphoto)

CRYPTOQUIP 10-20

FUQLWN FBEROO NEDYWJ BERDYG QEGJQQN RNG FUQL

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — IMPECUNIOUS MAN CANNOT PAY MODEST DUTY.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: O equals L

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

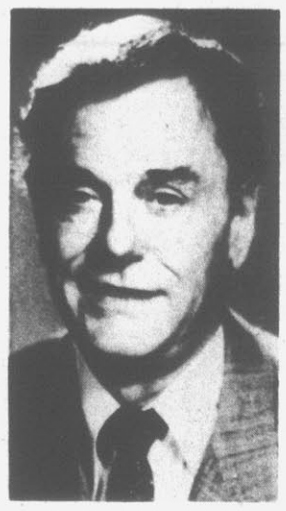
Gig Young And Bride Found Dead

By RUTH LANDA
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A diary on the bedroom desk in actor Gig Young's luxury apartment was open to Sept. 27 and proclaimed in big letters: "We got married today." Nearby, Young, clutching a revolver, lay dead, his bride's body sprawled beside him.

In the next room stood the gleaming Oscar the handsome veteran actor won as the fasttalking dance marathon pitchman in "They Shoot Horses, Don't They?" — marking what he called the "greatest moment of my life."

Young and his 31-year-old wife of three weeks were found shot to death Thursday night — the victims of what police said was an apparent murder-suicide.



GIG YOUNG

Police said the 60-year-old actor apparently shot himself in the head at about 2:30 p.m. after killing his wife, Germanborn Kim Schmidt, in their midtown Manhattan apartment.

Their bodies were found on the bedroom floor. A .38-caliber snub-nose revolver was in Young's hand.

Police said they had no explanation for the deaths, and that no suicide note was found. There was no sign of a struggle in the apartment, which was undergoing redecoration.

Young, who played the debonair sophisticate in scores of movies, once lamented that his career had never brought the leading roles he desired.

"I was always the leading man's best friend," he said.

Recently, he had become bogged down in a series of B movies. He said at one time that no more than five of his 55 films in 30 years "were any good or any good for me."

"I had to pick the best from all the lousy parts they offered me," he said.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE
from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good day for handling home conditions and family matters so that they can be organized on a better basis and work out more as you would like them to be in the days ahead. You are also able to consider your romantic interest and how you can make it more to your satisfaction.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Concentrate on home affairs and solve any problems there wisely. Take time for a little entertainment. Relieve tensions.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Good day to visit with others and come to a better understanding. Look for communications that will help to make you more productive in the future. Do something to please a loved one more.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You now understand better how to add to present income and can start the wheels rolling in such direction. Improve budget so that it is more flexible, easier to follow.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make those changes in current activities that will bring you greater well-being and satisfaction. Get into group activities later and enjoy good friends.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Meet with an adviser and make new plans for the future. Plan more time to be with loved ones and increase mutual happiness.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Ideal time to show your affection for friends you like and get excellent response. Know what your personal desires are and how best to attain them. Be generous but not extravagant.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You can now handle a civic matter for which you have had little time lately and get good results. Show admiration for persons in high office. Avoid one who is overly dynamic and could make trouble.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Using different methods where old conditions are concerned can improve them now.You can gain new allies also. Plan that trip that means a good deal to you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Handle those duties that have accumulated and clear the slate for more important activities ahead. Avoid a known troublemaker.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You can make a fine impression on one who is emotional and come to a fine understanding. Be courteous with associates and gain their cooperation.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You can get much work done if you plan your activities well, make a schedule and keep it. More cooperation from fellow workers is possible if you treat them kindly.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Involve yourself in activities that appeal to you, but plan your itinerary well. Try to please loved ones and be happier.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will understand the wishes and needs of others automatically. Add psychology and philosophy to the school curriculum and increase your child's chances for success. Teach early not to permit others to impose on him or her otherwise a martyr complex will develop.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

To Conduct Programs

ECU News Bureau

Two departments at the East Carolina University School of Medicine will be presenting programs at the American Medical Association Regional Meeting Oct. 21-22 in Asheville.

The Department of Psychiatry will present the "Use of Psychotropic Drugs and Depression." Drs. James L. Mathis, chairman of the department, Charles L. Ravaris and William R. Walker will direct the discussions.

A session on "Office Gynecology" will be directed by the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology. Chairman of the department Dr. Robert G. Brame and Dr. D.E. Darnell Jones will conduct the program.

The regional meeting is presented by AMA Council on Continuing Physician Education in cooperation with the N.C. Medical Society and the medical schools at ECU, Bowman Gray, Duke and UNC.

Local Educators Attend Annual Math Meeting

Pitt County was represented at the Eighth Annual State Mathematics Conference in Charlotte recently by three local educators.

John Ward Jr., mathematics chairman of D.H. Conley High School, presided at a conference session on paper folding in geometry; Mary Moore, co-math chairman from Farmville Central High School, presided at a session on problem solving; and Jane Huffman, county resource teacher, led a "swap-session" on strategies for teaching elementary school mathematics.

Other features of the conference included opening remarks by Governor Jim Hunt and suggestions for "inviting" student success by Dr. William Purkey, UNGreensboro.

Article Includes Area Women

Three area women were mentioned in an article appearing in the October edition of "Southern Cities," a publication of the N.C. League of Municipalities.

Greenville City Council member Mildred McGrath, Farmville Mayor Sara H. Albritton, and Grimesland Mayor Zelda Galloway were mentioned in the Women in Government section, in an article entitled, "A Growing Influence In City Halls in North Carolina."

The article pointed out that the League, in looking at the more than 2,500 elective and managerial positions in its 432 member towns and cities, counted 214 women on municipal governing bodies, 18 serving as mayor, seven serving as manager or administrator, and three serving as city attorneys, full or part-time.

Revival Series Begins Sunday

STOKES — Revival services will be held at the Stokes Baptist Church Sunday through Wednesday nights at 7:30.

Special music will be presented at each service. The Rev. Thurmon Griffin will be the featured speaker.

OVERSEAS EMPLOYMENT OPEN HOUSE

Find out what living and working in Iran is really like. Bring your family. See the sights and hear the sounds of the cities, and the job locations...view typical living quarters...the supermarkets...tour the beaches...the mountains...for a few minutes you'll be there. It's worth the experience, even if you have no interest in an overseas job.

Some of our immediate openings - family and single status —

- HELICOPTER AND FIXED WING MECHANICS
- DYNAMIC COMPONENT MECHANICS
- GSE MECHANICS
- AIRCRAFT TECHNICAL INSPECTORS
- HELICOPTER INSTRUCTOR PILOTS

A PARTICIPATING NCOA/VIP COMPANY

We will be at the NCOA Job Fair Friday October 20, 1978, from 9:00 AM to 4:00 PM. NCOA Service Center, 1911 S.E. June Blvd. Jacksonville, North Carolina, 28540. We will also be accepting applications Saturday and Sunday in Jacksonville at the Holiday Inn. Call collect to Paul Howard at 919/347-6111 and talk to us.

These positions require a military or civilian background in aircraft maintenance or manufacturing, and the ability to train others in an On-The-Job Training program. Visit us during the open house. Learn more about the outstanding income and benefits program, and about living and working in Iran. For those who can relocate without children, we have an exceptionally interesting offer for remote base operations.

For The First Time, ECU Will Display Own Mace

By WILLIAM A. SHIRES
ECU News Bureau Director

For the first time in its 71 year history, East Carolina University has a mace. And it is a thing of dignity and beauty, a work of art.

Weighing 12 pounds, the mace is 43 inches in length with a shaft of sterling silver crowned with a symbolic head holding an unusual purple crystal of fluortie in a golden cage.

The silver shaft is of hammered texture and is divided by a pierced band. A similar design is used at both end and at the head the large crystal is enclosed by phalanges and capped with a circular band of gold in a touch of contemporary symbolism.

Designed and created by John Satterfield of the ECU School of Art faculty, the mace will be ceremoniously displayed for the first time October 28 at the formal installation of Chancellor Thomas B. Brewer. It will be borne by a costumed ceremonial bearer at the head of the academic procession.

The mace itself is a traditional symbol of high office and authority.

Early History Of Maces

In earlier times, the mace was used by medieval knights as a close combat weapon. With a flanged or spiked battle head which could rip through chain mail and plate armor, it was considered superior to the sword and spear in hand to hand fighting.

During the late Middle Ages, royalty and city and borough officials adopted the mace as an emblem of office, designing it with emphasis upon ornate decoration and embellishment of the shaft. A knob or jeweled orb was used instead of a battlehead.

Today, the mace is a ceremonial symbol for such bodies as the British House of Commons, the U.S. House of Representatives, and by a number of cities and by many colleges and universities.

Idea Raised

The idea for an ECU mace was raised during planning for the installation of the chancellor following Dr. Brewer's election early this year.

Satterfield, an artisan and goldsmith, was commissioned to design and fabricate it.

Financing of materials and workmanship was pledged by members of the board of trustees and former trustees at the behest of Dr. John D. Bridgers, Jr. of High Point, a present trustee. It will be known as the Trustees Mace.

Research

Satterfield spent weeks researching the history and symbolism of such a piece, and in design and fabrication of the mace. In addition, he conducted a long search for an appropriate crystal.

Finally, the baseball-sized fluorite crystal was found in a rock and gem shop in Spruce Pine. Satterfield felt immediately that it was the right stone and acquired it for the focal point of the mace. The crystal emits a soft fluorescent glow.

The finished product, Satterfield says, was designed carefully to maintain the visual integrity of a traditional mace and at the same time create a contemporary symbol unique to East Carolina University.

For example, he says, "the phalanges are symbolic of a group of individuals — faculty, administration and trustees— united in achieveing the university's goal of constructive progress."

The purple of the crystal and the gold of the bands that hold it are the ECU colors.

Florida Native

A native of Clearwater, Florida, Satterfield joined the ECU art faculty in 1967. His work has been exhibited at art and jewelry shows throughout the United States and he has had a chalice purchased by the Smithsonian Institution.

Most recently, he was among 41 American goldsmiths selected to show works in the Society of North American Goldsmith's European Exhibition which opens next year in Pforzheim, Germany.

ECU TRUSTEES MACE . . . John Satterfield of the East Carolina University Art faculty holds the ECU mace which he designed and created. A large purple fluorite crystal within a gold cage on the shaft of hammered stering silver is purple and was acquired in Western North Carolina. The mace will be used in the formal academic procession at the installation of the ECU Chancellor on October 28. (ECU News Bureau Photo)

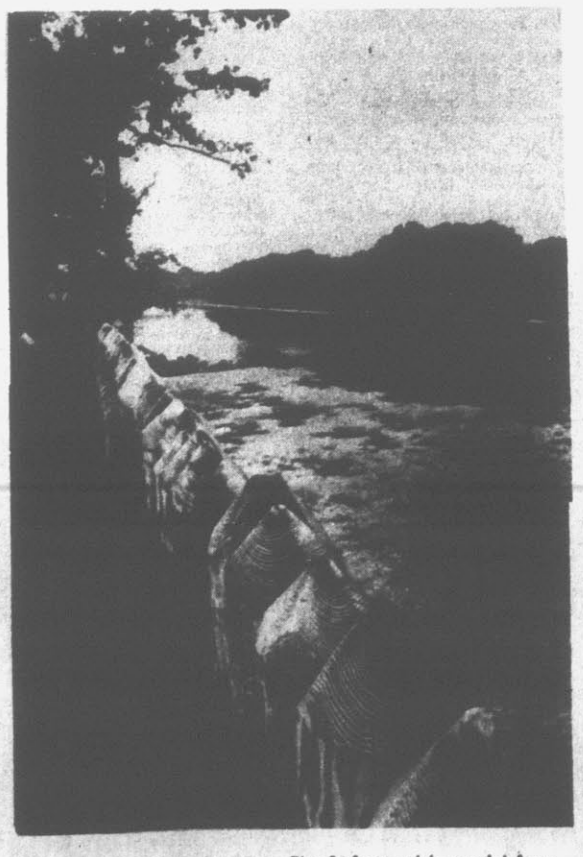
BUSINESS MEETING

The No. 5 Choir of Mount Calvary FWB Church will hold a business meeting Saturday at 7 p. m. at the church. Members are urged to attend, says the president, Lonnie Laughinghouse.



RAMPARTS RESTORED — Sturdy logs cut to a point form the restored ramparts of Ft. Toulouse, a 1770s French fort overlooking the junction of the Coosa and Tallapoosa Rivers below Wetumpka, Alabama. Creek Indians and Spanish explorers also fortified the strategic bluffs. The area, now a state park, is a very rich dig for archaeologists. (AP Laserphoto)
